For some days now newspapers here have been writing about food. They point out that almost all processed foods are adulterated, some of them to the extent of 33 per cent. Sometimes the adulterant is of a harmful nature. Big factories preparing items like jelly engage expert chemists who are expected to give to inferior products the appearance of quality goods. This is done through suitable methods of chemical mixing which save costs. The conclusion to be drawn is that the producers have their eyes only on profit and never care what harm they do to people. These very men then donate a part of their ill-gotten wealth to public causes and so win respect for themselves. They earn reputation as good and virtuous men. In this civilization, therefore, immorality presents itself as morality. There is no doubt that most of the processed foods rely on the use of animal fat. For instance, it is used in cleansing or polishing rice in England. This is a frightful thing, but true all the same. It offends the religious susceptibilities of both Hindus and Muslims. Therefore, the only way out is not to use anything manufactured in the West. In any case, processed foods must never be used.

Brave Japanese Soldier

The newspapers here have reported the death of a brave Japanese, Marquess Ito¹, as the result of a revolver-shot by a Korean. Korea is situated near Japan. The Japanese hold power in Korea as the British do in Egypt and India, enjoying the same rights and privileges. Of course, Japan is not in Korea to oblige her. But the Koreans are known to be a weak people. Were the country to pass under the rule of the Russians or the Chinese, that would pose a threat to Japan, and so Japan herself grabbed it. The Korean people were in no way pleased with this. They have always regarded Japan with hatred. Ito had been attacked twice before this. But Japan, having once tasted Russian blood, was certainly not likely to pull out of Korea so easily. Such is always the intoxication of power. Those who wield the sword generally perish by the sword, just as expert swimmers meet their death by water. The man who fired the revolver-shot bluntly admitted that he had killed Ito because he could not bear to see Japan ruling Korea. It is said that Japan has killed nearly 12,000 Koreans to teach a lesson to the people. This episode shows that power is an ugly thing and that, having once possessed oneself of a country, it is not possible to rest in peace. Some of our young men believe that the British can be driven out of India by killing [some of them]. Even if this is possible, it is not worth doing. Some things in Japan are commendable, but her imitation of Western ways does not deserve to be admired.

¹ This was published in Indian Opinion, 8-1-1910, with the prefatory remarks that these paragraphs had been omitted for want of space from an earlier dispatch from London.

² Prince Hirobumi Ito (1841-1909); Japanese statesman and reformer; was four times Prime Minister between 1886 and 1901. He was appointed Resident General in Korea in 1905 and in 1909 became President of the Privy Council of Japan. He was assassinated during a visit to Harbin.

Why, then, have we described Ito as a brave man? This is a different matter. He had the spirit of patriotism in him from childhood. He was born in 1841. From the earliest time that he began to understand things, he had thoughts of working for Japan’s uplift. He braved many hardships in pursuit of his idea. In the war against Russia, he displayed great courage. He was thus an expert in war; also in mathematics, education, administration, in short, in everything. He must, therefore, be admitted to be a brave man. In subjugating Korea, he used his courage to a wrong end. But those who fall under the spell of the Western civilization cannot help doing so. If Japan is to rule, defend and expand herself through force, she has no option but to conquer the neighbouring lands. The conclusion to be drawn from this is that those who have the real welfare of the people at heart must lead them only along the path of satyagraha.

Mr. G. K. Chesterton is one of the great writers here. He is an Englishman of a liberal temper. Such is the perfection of his style that his writings are read by millions with great avidity. To The Illustrated London News of September 18 he has contributed an article on Indian awakening, which is worth studying. I too believe that what he has said is reasonable. I give below the substance of that part of it which is of special interest:

---

1 The translation has been collated with the original article.
When young Indians talk of independence for India, I get a feeling that they do not understand what they are talking about. I admit that they who demand swarajya are fine fellows; most young idealists are fine fellows. I do not doubt that many of our officials are stupid and oppressive. Most of such officials are stupid and oppressive. But when I see the actual papers and know the views of Indian nationalists, I get bored and feel dubious about them. What they want is not very Indian and not very national. They talk about Herbert Spencer’s philosophy and other similar matters. What is the good of the Indian national spirit if they cannot protect themselves from Herbert Spencer? I am not fond of the philosophy of Buddhism, but it is not so shallow as Spencer’s philosophy. It has some noble ideals, unlike the latter. One of their papers is called The Indian Sociologist. Do the Indian youths want to pollute their ancient villages and poison their kindly homes by introducing Spencer’s philosophy into them?

There is a great difference between a people asking for its own ancient life and a people asking for things that have been wholly invented by somebody else. There is a difference between a conquered people demanding its own institutions and the same people demanding the institutions of the conqueror. Suppose an Indian said: “I wish India had always been free from white men and all their works. Everything has its own faults and we prefer our own. Had we our own institutions, there would have been dynastic wars; but I prefer dying in battle to dying in hospital. There would have been despotism; but I prefer one king whom I hardly even see to a hundred kings regulating my diet and my children. There would have been pestilence; but I would sooner die of the plague than live like a dead man, in constant fear of the plague. There would have been religious differences dangerous to public peace; but I think religion more important than peace. Life is very short; a man must live somehow and die somewhere; the amount of bodily comfort a peasant gets under your way of living is not so much more than mine. If you do not like our way of living, we never asked you to do. Go, and leave us with it.”

1 (1820-1903); English philosopher; author of Principles of Psychology, Synthetic Philosophy and Principles of Sociology
Suppose an Indian said that, I should call him an Indian nationalist. He would be an authentic Indian, and I think it would be very hard to answer him. But the Indian nationalists whose works I have read go on saying: “Give me a ballot box. Give us power, give me the judge’s wig. I have a natural right to be Prime Minister. I have a right to introduce a Budget. My soul is starved if I am excluded from the editorship of the Daily Mail,” or words to that effect. Now this is not so difficult to answer. Even the most sympathetic person may say in reply: “What you say is very fine, my good Indian, but it is we who invented all these things. If they are so good as you make out, you owe it to us that you have ever heard of them. If they are indeed natural rights, you would never even have thought of your natural rights but for us.” If voting is such a very important thing (which I am inclined rather to doubt myself) then, certainly we have some of the authority that belongs to founders. When Indians take a haughty tone in demanding a vote, I imagine to myself the situation reversed. It seems to me very much as if I were to go into Tibet and demand of the Lama that I should be treated as a Mahatma. The Lama would in that case reply: “Our religion is either true or false; it is either worth having or not worth having. If you know better than we do, you do not want our religion. But if you think that our way of life is good, please remember that it is we who discovered and studied it, and we know whether a man is a Mahatma or not. If you want one of our peculiar privileges, you must accept our peculiar discipline and pass our peculiar standards, to get it.”

Perhaps you think that in writing this I am opposing Indian nationalism. But that will be a mistake; I am only letting my mind play round the subject. This is desirable when there is a conflict between two complete civilizations. I also admit the existence of natural rights. The right of a people to express itself, to be itself in action, is a genuine right. Indians have a right to be and to live as Indians. But Herbert Spencer is not Indian; his philosophy is not Indian philosophy; all this clatter about the science of education and other things is not Indian. I often wish it were not English either. But this is our first difficulty, that the Indian nationalist is not national. Indians must reflect over these views of Mr. Chesterton and consider what they should rightly demand. What is the way to make the Indian people happy? May it not be that we seek to advance our own interests in the name of the Indian people? Or, that we have been endeavouring to destroy what the Indian people have carefully nurtured through thousands of years? I, for one, was led by Mr. Chesterton’s article to all these reflections and I place them before readers of Indian Opinion.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 8-1-1910

78. LETTER TO UNDER SECRETARY FOR COLONIES

[LONDON,]

September 20, 1909

SIR,

A letter was received addressed to my colleague, Mr. Amod Bayat, in his absence, from the Natal Immigration Restriction Department in connection with his application for a temporary visiting pass for a priest to take charge of the Mosque in Pietermaritzburg and of a Madressa. This application was made on behalf of and in the name of the whole of the Mohammedan congregation in Pietermaritzburg. I beg to enclose herewith copy of the letter above referred to.

I venture to think that the Earl of Crewe will be able to enter into the feelings of British Indian Mohammedans who, for the purpose of earning an honest livelihood, have settled in that Colony. My colleagues and I consider the letter of the Immigration Restriction Department to be highly offensive to our feelings as men, as British subjects and last but not least, as Mohammedans. A special assurance was given to the Immigration Officer that this priest was required solely for religious purposes and that he would not in any way compete in trade or any other business.

1 Though the letter bears the signature of M. C. Anglia, there is evidence that the draft was Gandhiji’s. In his letter of October 14, 1909, Polak wrote: “Your letter (through one of the Natal delegates) re: the PM Burg Moulvi is strong and excellent—but pardon me if I say the construction is wretched. They say lawyers write bad grammar. I hope I don’t catch the complaint from you! I am appending the letter to my forthcoming book. It seems to be intended for publication, and no secrets are divulged . . .” Polak reproduced the letter as Appendix D to his pamphlet: A Tragedy of Empire. Vide also “Letter to Ameer Ali”, 27-9-1909.
That the community should have to make Herculean efforts to have a simple application like the above granted, and that it should be granted in a manner so offensive to it, and that in a matter in no way touching the economic policy of the Colony, only shows under what trying, humiliating and difficult circumstances British Indians have to exist in Natal. Why a visiting pass should be granted for only a quarter, renewable quarterly and should carry with it a penalty of twenty shillings each time that it is renewed, passes comprehension. A policy such as this, in the humble opinion of the deputation, can only be considered as wantonly cruel. It puts an undue strain upon the patience of the Indian community and, whilst the deputation is still here, I venture to request very serious and earnest consideration by the Earl of Crewe of the anomalous position British Indians occupy in Natal. We consider that a position such as this, intolerable as it is, cannot and ought not to be prolonged with safety to the Empire to which it has hitherto been the pride of British Indians to belong. We would be unjust to ourselves, to the trust that is reposed in us by the community and to the Empire, if we did not assure His Lordship that the humiliating treatment in Natal is corroding the hearts of British Indians, and it is difficult for us to imagine all the consequences that may follow, when it has reached, as it may any day reach, the breaking point. I have written with the approval of my co-delegates somewhat strongly, but on more strongly than the occasion requires.

I have, etc.,

M. C. ANGLIA

Colonial Office Records : 179/255
79. LETTER TO PRIVATE SECRETARY TO LORD CREWE

[LONDON.]
September 23, 1909

SIR,

May I know whether any reply has been received from General Smuts to the cablegram that Mr. Hajee Habib and I understood the Earl of Crewe was to have sent him in connection with the negotiations that are going on for a settlement of the British Indian difficulty in the Transvaal?

I have, etc.,
M. K. GANDHI

Colonial Office Records: 291/142

80. LETTER TO H. S. L. POLAK

[LONDON.]
September 23, 1909

MY DEAR HENRY,

I have your comparatively short letter. I sent the copy of the cablegram received from Johannesburg last week, regarding the refusal of the authorities to give facilities for the Ramzan month.

The enclosed is a copy of the cable sent by the London branch of the All-India Moslem League to the Central League there. I hope that you are carrying on a correspondence with the Central League from Bombay. I quite agree with you that the cancellation of the

---

1 Lord Crewe had promised to cable to General Smuts the result of his interview with Gandhiji and Hajee Habib and press upon him acceptance of the amendment submitted by Gandhiji through Lord Ampthill; vide “Substance of Interview with Lord Crewe”, 16-9-1909; and Appendix “Lord Crewe’s Minute”.

2 To this Gandhiji received a reply from the Colonial Office on October 4, that, “...there is no prospect of his being able to give you any further information for the present with regard to the negotiations respecting the British Indian question in the Transvaal. The Colonial Government must first decide, with the information before them, as to your attitude after your interview with His Lordship on the 16th ultimo, whether they are prepared to introduce legislation on the lines proposed by Mr. Smuts.”

3 This read: “Indian deputation received cablegram Transvaal Mahomedan passive resistance prisoners not allowed facilities Ramzan. Advise instant action.”
meeting was a splendid advertisement for the movement, and an equally good advertisement of the folly of the authorities.¹

The attack by The Advocate of India is simply stupid.² It can hurt nobody but the paper and the writer. If Mr. Wadia has dealt with it, well and good. If he has not, I do not think that it matters. In the two packets of cuttings, you will be surprised to learn that the cutting containing this attack was not to be found. I suppose Kaliandas, or whoever made the cuttings, must have considered that the paragraph was too contemptible even to be seen by us here.

I have not yet heard from Lord Crewe. I am sending a reminder.³

I can understand my letters to you being opened, but that Millie’s letters to you are deliberately opened, passes my comprehension. Let us hope they are all the wiser for having read the letters, and also that they have learnt the meaning of wifely devotion. Her letters must have been quite an education for them.⁴

I am not likely to leave here—unless Smuts’ reply is favourable—for yet a month. Mr. Meyer is now here. I have asked him for an appointment. Unless a dissolution comes soon, the season now is favourable for public activity.

I do not think I have told you that I am coming in touch with all the Indian ladies I can, and get from them letters in Gujarati addressed

¹ In his letter of September 4, Polak wrote: “The cancelled meeting has done much good to the cause. It has focussed attention on the Transvaal, brought round a number of half-hearted people, cleared the ground generally and brought over Sir P. M. He is now working enthusiastically. The meeting, which promises to be a greater success than ever, will be held after all, at the Town Hall, on the 14th. The Government have blundered through ignorance, but the Sheriff through stupidity. The whole story is one of blundering misunderstanding. The Government now realise their folly and the Sheriff’s, and have tendered an apology (imagine it!) and let us have the Town Hall.”

² In regard to this, Polak had written to Gandhiji on September 4, “Mr. Gokhale has cleared up a misunderstanding in the Governor’s mind about myself. You will see it voiced in the personal attack on me by Gordon in The Advocate of India. It is particularly unfair as I had a personal letter to him from the G(eneral) M(anager) of Reuters. I hear that he is a most objectionable cad (Gordon, I mean) and I think H. A. Wadia will reply. I can’t.” Gandhiji addressed a rejoinder to the paper; vide “Letter to The Advocate of India”, 28-9-1909

³ Vide the preceding item.

⁴ Polak’s comment on this, in his letter of October 14, was: “You take the opening of Millie’s letters more philosophically than she and I do. I see that your days of writing love-letters are over! I am sorry for you! I haven’t yet authorised Millie to start classes in marital devotion!” to the Editor of Indian Opinion, encouraging the movement and applauding the devotion of the Indian women. You told me you were going to address a meeting of Indian women. You should get as many letters as you can from them. There is no reason why you should not get letters in English also. I have been getting them in Gujarati from Gujarati women, as I am anxious they should not disregard their mother tongue. One is from Mrs. Dube,¹ a most charming Hindustani lady, who has lived² in Bombay and can therefore read and write Gujarati. The other is from Mrs. K. C. Dinshaw,³ who was for some time in Durban, and who is now travelling in Europe with her husband. You should get a letter from Mrs. Petit, Mrs. Ranade and others. Miss Winterbottom has returned from her holiday. I have suggested a letter of sympathy from English women,⁴ and that they should also put down some small subscription for the relief of the suffering wives and daughters of passive resisters. I would suggest the same kind of thing over there. It is not the amount on which I should lay stress, but the fact of every cultured Indian woman having given even a pice for their sisters in the Transvaal, and I should obtain for it the widest publicity in India. There is no reason, too, why there should not be a women's meeting, only passing resolutions.⁵

I have been thinking of having a prize essay here on passive resistance, and a similar essay from India, along the lines of what we had in Johannesburg. I proposed to Dr. Mehta that he should give the prizes. He has considered it and he is willing to give them. I shall draw up the syllabus and send you a copy, but that will be next week. In the meanwhile, you may consider the following questions:

¹ A letter from Ram Kumari Dube appeared in Indian Opinion, 11-9-1909.
² The original has “oved”, an obvious typing error.
⁴ A letter from Miss Florence Winterbottom was published in Indian Opinion, 25-12-1909, under the heading: “Message to the Wives of Passive Resisters”. Another letter from Hilda Margaret Howsin was published in the issue of 11-12-1909, under the heading: “An English Women’s Letter to the Wives of Passive Resisters”.
⁵ Polak wrote back: “I am glad you are in touch with the Indian ladies in London. I am trying to get a poem from Mrs. Sarojini Naidoo, through Natesan. Mrs. Ranade’s ladies have passed a resolution of sympathy with the Transvaal women and it will be forwarded shortly. One or two of them will write at stated intervals for Indian Opinion. Mrs. Petit will send a letter with pleasure and I shall ask her to get others to write. The Seva Sadan, a ladies’ organisation, have sent Rs. 50 to the Transvaal for the support of the women and they will send a further donation. It was not advisable to pass a resolution at the Bombay women’s meeting as the wives of several officers were taking part.”
1. Who should be the Judge or Judges for India?
2. In whose name should the prize be offered?

The subject will have to be a little delicately handled, as it is evident that the people there, strange as it would appear, do not understand passive resistance at all, and any essay that we may have there to be worth anything must contain an examination of the bearing of passive resistance on public movements in India. You may discuss it with Professor Gokhale and others. The amount to be offered may be £50 on this side and £50 on yours, so that we should be able to attract good writers on either side. I am going to consult Mr. Meyer, Dr. Clifford and others. This prize essay, if any public activity has to be taken up here, will widely advertize the Transvaal cause.

Of the Natal friends, Mr. H. M. Badat has left for Paris. His ultimate goal is Mecca.

I take it that Messrs Omar and Issa Hajee Soomar are still with you.

I have your cablegram with reference to the Surat meeting. I take it that the others have also come off well, and I assume, too, that all your resolutions are being forwarded to the Viceroy of India.

Dr. Mehta is here and will be for a few days. He leaves for Paris on Sunday and he sails from Marseilles for Rangoon on the 1st, reaching Rangoon on the 23rd October. Wherever you are, I think it will be better to go to Rangoon, after corresponding with Dr. Mehta. He will not be able to write to you before hearing from you, as he will not know your address. He thinks that it will be a good idea for you to go to Rangoon. A meeting can be held there, but in any case I am anxious that you should meet him and—he you. If Mr. Omar goes with you, it will be ever so much better. There are many public-spirited Memons and Suraties, and, of course, you will see our friend Mr. Madanjit, and you will see there the freest women on earth. From Calcutta it is three days, from Madras four days, so that you

---

1 About this Polak wanted to consult Gokhale. He wondered if Prof. Bhandarkar would act as judge.
2 Madanjit Vyavaharik, a co-worker of Gandhiji. He set up the International Printing Press in Durban, in 1898, at Gandhiji’s suggestion and with his help started Indian Opinion in 1903, which Gandhiji took over in 1904. Vide “Letter to Madanjit”, 3-6-1902.
3 Polak’s rejoinder to this was: “I am looking forward to ‘seeing the freest women on earth’. I shall discuss them afterwards with Millie, as I did briefly yesterday at Adyar with Leadbeater. I shall try to go over to Malabar before I leave here, in order to see the Nair women, who, I am told, take one husband after another. That beats you all who take one wife after another! I am inclined to think the women are right!”
may go to Rangoon from wherever you are. I do not think you could give more than a week to Rangoon, but if you are pressed for time, you may give less. Dr. Mehta’s address is 14, Mogul Street, Rangoon.

Mr. Thaker suggests that we are so poor that we should save the guinea for the London letter,¹ and stop it at least for the time being. I feel like him and with him, and seeing that today the paper is being used for passive resistance principally, will it not be wise to stop it?
Please let me have your opinion per return.²

The news from Phoenix with reference to West and Miss West was much more reassuring last week. Both are entirely out of danger.

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S. N. 5091

81. LONDON

[Before September 25, 1909]

NATAL DEPUTATION

There is nothing more to report about the activities of this deputation. Correspondence is going on. There was an interview with Mr. Justice Ameer Ali. He attaches great importance to the question of stopping the import of indentured labour. He has promised every help. A clergyman, Dr. Garnett by name, has also been coming to see [the delegates].

Mr. Badat has left for Paris this week. From there, it has been decided, he will proceed to Istanbul and further on to Jedda, and then to holy Mecca.

INDIAN’S BRAINS

There is a report in the Daily News here that a Parsi gentleman has made a discovery which will act as a severe check on forgery.
According to the report, its efficacy will be publicly demonstrated in a few days.

ZANZIBAR INDIANS

A public meeting was held in Zanzibar in connection with the difficulties experienced by the Indians there. Cables were then

¹ Indian Opinion published a weekly dispatch from London by Observer.
² Polak replied: “I don’t like the idea of stopping the London letter. It is the only non-p[assive] r[esistance] thing in the paper, keeping us in touch with the outside world. But do as you like. You are on the spot, and can discuss with Miss Smith.”
received here. A cable was received by Sir Henry Cotton, which has been published in India. A question was also asked in the House of Commons regarding this. In reply, it was stated that Lord Crewe would make an inquiry after the petition mentioned in the cable was received. I hope the Zanzibar Indian Association has sent the petition. If not, it should do so immediately.

LORD KITCHENER'S OPPOSITION TO LORD CURZON

“Who indeed can put out a fire raging in the sea?” Such is the state of affairs between Lord Curzon and Lord Kitchener. Someone has discovered a speech by Lord Kitchener in the same strain, and nearly in the same words, as Lord Curzon’s when he left India. Everyone concludes from this that Lord Kitchener has plagiarized Lord Curzon’s ideas. The matter has given rise to much discussion in newspapers. If the so-called great men appropriate what does not belong to them, what else can we expect from smaller folk?

SUFFRAGETTES

The suffragettes are giving way to impatience. Some of them made an unjustifiable attack on the Prime Minister, and were arrested. They were prosecuted and sentenced. In gaol they went on hunger strike. They had hoped thereby that they would be released. But the authorities have outwitted them and resorted to forcible feeding. Indian satyagrahis must realize from this that the women are not satyagrahis, but are resorting to physical force. For a certainty, they will suffer a set-back now.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 23-10-1909

82. DEPUTATION NOTES [–XIII ]

[Before September 25, 1909]

There has been no further reply from Lord Crewe so far. The probability is that his reply will be unsatisfactory. There is no reason to believe that General Smuts will hurry to reply that he accepts Lord Crewe’s advice. But of this I am sure, that, if General Smuts does not accept the suggestion, the fault will be entirely ours. I am not in a position to write anything more this week.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 23-10-1909
83. CABLE TO BRITISH INDIAN ASSOCIATION

[LONDON,]
September 27, 1909

TO BIAS
JOHANNESBURG

HAIJI HABIB RECEIVED CABLE RETURN IMMEDIATELY. INQUIRE FULLY HIS PEOPLE REPLY.

From a photostat of the draft in Gandhiji’s hand: S. N. 5098 (2)

84. LETTER TO AMEER ALI

[LONDON,]

DEAR MR. AMEER ALI,

I thank you for your letter¹. I have now made a fair copy of the draft letter sent by you, and it will be signed in the course of the day. Mr. Anglia will bring it to you tomorrow at the time appointed by you.

The facts of the case referred to in the letter² addressed to the Under-Secretary, are briefly as follows:

¹ Dated September 26, it read: “Thanks for the drafts. Will you kindly send me by return post full particulars of the case you refer to in your letter to the Colonial Under Secretary? . . . It will give me much pleasure if Mr. Anglia will come round to the Reform Club on Tuesday at 3.30 P.M. I am returning one of the drafts. Will you kindly get it typed and afterwards signed by the delegates and then send it to me?” The letter, however, is not available.
A Moulvi was required for the Mosque in Pietermaritzburg, the capital of Natal. The Maulvi was to combine also the work of a Madressa teacher. This Moulvi was to replace the retiring one. According to the law of Natal, an intending immigrant must have a knowledge of one of the European languages. This Moulvi did not possess such a knowledge. The congregation of the Mosques, therefore, applied to the Government to grant to the Moulvi not the right of immigration, that is, permanent residence, but a certificate enabling him to reside in the Colony for three years. The applicants undertook to give security that the Moulvi, during his residence in Natal, would not carry on any commercial business and that the would leave Natal at the end of the period. After a great deal of waiting, the Government replied that they would grant permission on condition that the certificate was renewed every three months, and that each renewal bore a stamp fee of £1.

Mr. Anglia will show you the letter in question, and you will see from its tenor how insulting it is. In my opinion, we as self-respecting men cannot accept the offensive terms. The stipulation as to quarterly renewals bearing a fee of £1 is, in my opinion, an impudent exaction.

I remain, etc.,

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S.N. 5096

85. LETTER TO MANILAL GANDHI

[London,] September 27, 1909

CHI. MANILAL,

I have received your letter.

You got nervous at the question, “What are you going to do?” If I were to answer on your behalf, I would say that you are going to do your duty. Your present duty is to serve your parents, to study as much as you can get the opportunity to do and to work in the fields. You need not worry about the future; your parents are doing that for you. You will take it upon yourself when they will be no more. You must be definite on this point at least—that you are not going to practise law or medicine. We are poor and want to remain so. Money is required only for maintenance. He who works with his hands and feet gets his livelihood. Our mission is to elevate Phoenix; for through it we can find our soul and serve our country. Be sure that I am always thinking of you. The true occupation of man is to build his character. It is not quite necessary to learn something special for earning [one’s livelihood]. He who does not leave the path of morality never starves, and is not afraid if such a contingency arises. Give up all worry; do whatever study you can there. While writing this I feel like meeting and embracing you; and tears come to my eyes as I am unable to do that. Be sure that Bapu will not be cruel to you. Whatever I do, I do it because I think it to be in your interest. You will never come to grief, for you are doing service to others.

Blessings from

MOHANDAS

From the Gujarati original in Gandhiji’s hand : C. W. 90
Courtesy : Sushilabehn Gandhi

86. LETTER TO “THE ADVOCATE OF INDIA”

[London,]
September 28, 1909

TO
THE EDITOR
THE ADVOCATE OF INDIA
[BOMBAY]

SIR,

Your footnote in the issue of the 9th instant to the letter of Mr. Jehangir Bomanjee Petit, regretting among other things your description of Mr. Henry S. L. Polak as a paid agent, encourages me to address this letter to you.

You say, “We have alluded to Mr. Polak as a paid agent and we \[\text{\textsuperscript{1}}\text{The letter was apparently not published in The Advocates of India. J. B. Petit, however, had it published in the columns of Gujarati, 7-11-1909, under the caption “The Advocate of India and Mr. Polak”, along with the following covering letter: “You will remember that some weeks ago The Advocate of India sought to discredit Mr. Polak’s activity in this country on behalf of our suffering brethren in the Transvaal by representing him as a near ‘paid agent’. On Mr. Polak protesting, the Editor made a half-hearted retraction, but he had neither the grace nor the candour to withdraw the imputation unreservedly. The unworthy attack having attracted Mr. Gandhi’s attention, Mr. Gandhi addressed to the Editor the following letter on the 28th September. It is now nearly a fortnight since that letter must have been received in Bombay, but it is not yet published... Will you kindly publish this letter in your columns? Your contemporary’s conduct in withholding the letter is in keeping with the rest of his behaviour in this not very creditable affair.”} have said we think none the worse of him for that. If, however, that gentleman looks upon this as affecting his status and he can assure we are wrong, we are prepared to apologize to him”. I hope that what follows will assure you that you are wrong and that you will apologize to the British Indians of the Transvaal, whom Mr. Polak represents, for the latter requires no apology. The wrong if any has been done, has been done to those whom he represents.

\]

You say that you think none the worse of Mr. Polak even though he may be a paid agent, and yet the tone of your leading article, which I have read and re-read is undoubtedly calculated materially to discount Mr. Polak’s efforts. I know him personally as a dear friend and brother. He came to the cause, embraced poverty and left the Assistant Editorship of a Johannesburg weekly, which might ultimately have proved much to him, if he had desired the goods of this world. For over four years he received not a farthing from the funds of the British Indian community because he needed nothing. During all that time he was working for the community.

The struggle in the Transvaal has meant for Mr. Polak, as it has meant for many Indians, the deprivation of even the means or rather the opportunity of earning a livelihood. Since then, Mr. Polak, who gives every minute of his time to the struggle, has received enough for his bread and butter from the common funds, and if I know him at all, if the community have not sufficient funds to feed its workers, Mr.
Polak would remain at his post, and, if need be, perish in the attempt to obtain justice for those whose cause, in common with many others, he espouses.

You do not know, nor do the Bombay public, that ever since his marriage, Mr. Polak has given very little of his time to his wife who, in order the better to enable her husband to perform his self-imposed duty, has reconciled herself to a life of almost indefinitely prolonged separation.

I imagine that the term “paid agent” means an agent who names a price adequate to the work he does, and does the work well enough no doubt, in many cases, but does it nevertheless for the money he receives and not for the love of it. If a son in a joint family dying in the performance of his sonship may be described as a paid agent, because he is clothed and fed out of the family funds, then Mr.
Polak is undoubtedly a paid agent, but not until then.

If, after a knowledge of the facts I have ventured to place before you, you will still consider Mr. Polak as a paid agent, I am afraid that his co-delegates, who might have been with him if they had not been imprisoned before their departure by General Smuts, must be described as “paid agents” because their passage and hotel expenses would have been found by the Indian community.

I trust that, in fairness, you will be good enough to find room for this letter.

I am, etc.,

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy : S.N. 5099

87. LETTER TO PRIVATE SECRETARY TO LORD CREWE

[LONDON,]
September 29, 1909

SIR,

Mr. Polak cables from Kathore¹ to the effect that the following cablegram has been addressed by the President of a mass meeting held at Kathore on the 23rd instant to the authorities:

Kathore,² Kholwad Ghela district inhabitants mass meeting strongly protests persecution brethren Transvaal Government. Strongly urges Imperial authority seek immediate solution, prevent cotinuance misery, remove racial insult.

He also cables that excellent meetings were held at Ahmedabad and Surat, where two resolutions urging the Imperial Government to secure relief were passed.

I should be obliged if you would kindly bring this letter to the notice of the Earl of Crewe.

I remain, etc.,

M. K. GANDHI

Colonial Office Records : 291/142

¹ Villages in the former Baroda State, now in the Surat District of Gujarat.
The last name should be Ghalan.

² ibid

³ ibid
MY DEAR HENRY,

At last I have decided about Dr. Mehta’s offer of a scholarship for Manilal, of which I wrote to you, I think, some time ago. I told you, then, that I asked Dr. Mehta to let me use this scholarship for any other person belonging to Phoenix whom I chose. He accepted my proposal, but when he made the offer, I know he made it simply because he felt that he would like to undertake the education of at least one of my sons. Today, however, he is almost as good a passive resister as you and I, and he agrees with me entirely that he should defray the cost of educating some other Phoenixite.

I decided upon Chhaganlal, and I have already written to him by the outgoing mail this week. I wrote to him last week a letters embodying my suggestions, but that letter was sent to Phoenix. I subsequently learned that he was to have left for India on the 15th. By the time this reaches you, he will probably, therefore, be with you. I will not go into all the reasoning that has led me to the following conclusions. After having remained with you there for some time, he should come to London, say to reach here at the latest about the end of March. He should join one of the Inns of Court. The question whether he should actually be called to the Bar or not to be decided later (the odds are that, by that time, we would not want him to be called to the Bar at all). Simultaneously with his legal studies, he should join an English class in one of the institutions here. He should, before embarking, take a definite and formal vow of poverty. He should also take the vow that he will not use the learning acquired here as a means of livelihood, the latter being always found from Phoenix and that he should dedicate his life to a realization of the Phoenix ideals. He should stay in some vegetarian family (I am finding out information about all available vegetarian families in and about London). He should live, if necessary, in a house in one of the suburbs and there do his own cooking and everything. If he feels confidence in himself at the end of the year, we should send one or more from Phoenix at a time for training in London. These will be able to live with him in house, and he having formed a desirable circle

1 These letters are not available.
2 ibid
of friends and acquaintances, those who live with him will be able to get all the advantages of English associations, without having to live in English families, where the cost will be necessarily somewhat greater than if they were living with Chhaganlal. At the same time, if it were considered desirable, they could live in one of the families for just a short time. Chhaganlal should, during his stay, seek contact with every Indian student, in fact, force himself on their attention and, after insinuating himself in their favour, should present both in his life and by conversations, the Phoenix ideals to them. His being here would enable us to pass on, from week to week, correct information as to the progress of the struggle, and he would, in some very slight degree, fill in the gap that would be left by Ritch’s withdrawal. I see nobody here who is capable of replacing Ritch, but there are some who, whilst they may do nothing without a spur, would be glad enough to assist a man like Chhaganlal. If we are not committed to Chhaganlal being called to the Bar, he need not even stay in London for a full three years, he might—if the exigencies of the situation require it—leave London temporarily.

There is no fixed scholarship to be taken from Dr. Mehta; he will simply defray the whole of the expense of Chhaganlal’s stay.
Chhaganlal, on his part, will naturally consider himself to be a trustee for the funds he will receive, and will be living a life of almost perfect simplicity. The cost therefore will be minimised.

I have placed all this before Chhaganlal. Please let him see this letter also. If he agrees to all the suggestions I have made, it rests largely with him and somewhat with you, whether he should come here in March or earlier. It is much better that he remains with you for some time, comes in touch with the people, knows them and studies the question a little more fully. He must bring with him a fair stock of Gujarati books, some Sanskrit books, a Urdu Primer and some English books, which may not be obtainable here or which may cost a great deal. He need not stint himself as to books, because the books will be of use to the other students here. In the choice of books you should consult Dr. Mehta also. I would like Chhaganlal to give Gujarati tuition to Dr. Mehta’s son, as also Hoosen¹ and any other Gujaratis who may be in London.

Of course, the above will have to be sanctioned by the people in Phoenix.

Yours sincerely,

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy : S. N. 5100

¹ Son of Dawad Mahomed
89. LETTER TO PRIVATE SECRETARY TO LORD MORLEY

[London,]
September 30, 1909

SIR,

I beg to enclose herewith for Lord Morley’s information, copy of letter addressed by me to the Private Secretary to the Earl of Crewe.¹

I remain, etc.,

M. K. GANDHI

India Office Records: 3815/09; also, from a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S. N. 5103

90. LETTER TO H. S. L. POLAK²

[London,]
September 30, 1909

MY DEAR HENRY,

I have written to you separately about Chhaganlal. I do not know whether you admire the man who can show patience or whether you admire the man who cannot. The sentence in the letter reads both ways.³ Maud and Ritch read it one way, [I] the other.

I have your cablegram about the meetings in Ahmedabad, Kathore and Surat. They will all carry.

I consider the writings of The Advocate of India very valuable. Even cads render us a signal service . . .” take what Gordon has

¹ Vide “Letter to Private Secretary to Lord Crewe”, 29-9-1909
² This letter is damaged and indistinct at some places. Where possible, words in square brackets have been supplied by conjecture on the basis of the context provided by Polak’s letters to Gandhiji.
³ This was with reference to Polak’s letter of September 10, in which he wrote: “Yours is splendid patience. I envy you. I see more and more the beauty of the Gita teaching—act, and don’t worry about results. But I see more and more how difficult it is to do this, and admire the man who can!” The letter is in Polak’s hand-writing and the exclamation mark is so joined with “can” that if casually seen, it can also be read as “can’t”.
⁴ Here a word is cut off.
written, namely, that you have vested interest in the question. The remark is by no means unjustified. He has demonstrated the absolute necessity for having there a permanent Committee, with some one like Ritch working away day and night and keeping the pot boiling. I hope you will succeed in finding such a man. Have you seen N. V. Gokhale of the Gujarati? I do not wish to imply that he is the likely man. I can think of no one. He will have to be a lover of his work, without many irons in the fire, and with sufficient leisure to devote his attention almost solely to the South African question.

I do not at all share your view that you are receiving an honorarium, rather than a salary. If that were the only distinction, I would agree with Gordon that it is a fine distinction. You will see how I have dealt with it in my letter to the Advocate, copy of which I enclose. The distinction, in my opinion, is fundamental. It is the manner of giving which makes that essential distinction. To the outside world, whether it can be called an honorarium or a salary, it is matter of little concern. They will look upon every payment with suspicion, they will look upon all work with suspicion and refuse to admit that people work without selfish motives or without great consideration. Everybody in Bombay has treated [the editor’s] views with the contempt they deserve, and you may have done likewise. Dr. Mehta who has seen your letter writes to me in Gujarati, of which I gave you a translation:

He (that is you), has been affected by the writing in The Advocate of India, but it is too contemptible to be noticed.

---

1 He was in charge of the English section of Gujarati.
2 Vide “Letter to The Advocate of India”, 28-9-1909
3 In point of fact, Polak had not; this is what he reported to Gandhiji: “Nobody takes the attack seriously, except to arouse indignation against Gordon. I sent a short reply to the latest attack. It seemed called for. It will not appear until after the mail has left. He sent me a note today asking me to call upon him. I told him what I thought about the matter—that the expression gave people to understand that I was a paid agitator. I explained to him that I was a solicitor, etc., etc., and that I received a retainer for my legal work and that my expenses as a member of the deputation were paid. I told him that what I received from public funds did not pay my expenses—Millie will bear only too willing testimony to this! I did not conceal anything from him, and he wound up by telling me that he thought that it was ‘a fine distinction’. Then I let fly. Afterwards I sent him my (your) biography from Indian Opinion. But this only shows that it will be better to call my remuneration a retainer rather than a salary. It preserves the honorary nature of the work and after all, as a salary it is utterly inadequate, whereas as a retainer, it is fair. You and I understand all about it, but people like this think it is ‘a fine distinction’, and can’t understand disinterested work. You might pass this on to South Africa.”
Where there are no selfish motives, there is no occasion for being affected by an imputation of them. Why should one be touched by unjust criticism, when one is doing one’s duty? On the contrary, one ought to know that such unjust criticism is due to ignorance on the part of the critic. When a public worker has no money of his own, it is the duty of those who have it to see to it that such a worker is properly maintained. Certainly, the arrangements made in South Africa about him (you) ought to have been made.

I am giving you a translation of Dr. Mehta’s remarks, because he is such a sober man with an exceedingly balanced mind, and also because of the reasons you know, I want you to come in as close touch as possible with him.

I am writing to Mr. Petit also this week. Copy of the letter to him herewith.

Among the cuttings received, I miss the verses composed about you. I have seen the translation you sent to me, I want to see the original. Nor have I received the Pateti Number of Sanj Vartman.

[I am] delighted that you were able to see the G.O.M. Your lines are most pathetic. I see too that you are now beginning to look beneath the bright surface that presented itself to you on your reaching Bombay.

---

1 This letter is not available.
2 On September 9, Polak had attended a meeting of the Indian Music Society where he was presented with a composition about himself.
3 A Gujarati evening daily of Bombay. The issue carried Polak’s photo and a special article by him.
4 Polak had written: “On Saturday afternoon, his birthday, I saw the G.O.M. It was a touching spectacle to see the little old warrior taking his rest, prior to the final plunge. He was sitting in an armchair, when we arrived, looking out to sea. He welcomed us simply, thanking me earnestly for my work. I blushed to think of his thanking me when he had done so much for which he had received no thanks. He asked me to thank you for sending him Indian opinion, which he read regularly. He also desired me to tell you how much he admired your persistence and perseverance, and how right he thought you were. We did not remain long. He complained of mental and physical fatigue. He was ‘simply living on’—it was all that there was left for him to do. He has, however, sent a letter to the Mass Meeting. When we left, the last we saw of him was sitting once more in his armchair, peacefully looking into the West again, gazing out to sea, as who should look for the soothing hand of Death. It was beautiful—but I felt humbled and subdued. As Mr. Gokhale says, when one goes to see Dadabhai, one performs a pilgrimage 85! He may not last out another year. He is very frail.”
I hope when Chhaganlal is with you, for his own sake you will use him mercilessly, and let him see and learn all there is to be seen and learnt. If the people do not realise thoroughly the spirit of passive resistance, I know that you will make at least the leaders see it. Dr. Mehta is most anxious that Mr. Gokhale should see the heart of it. I hope that Mr. Omar will travel with you wherever you go, but if Mr. Hajee Mohamed and others would travel also with you at their own expense, you should invite them to do so. Your mission will carry greater weight. Has anyone from there been sending detailed accounts in Gujarati for Indian Opinion? If this has not been done, please attend to it. We have to prepare for a prolonged struggle, and it is for that reason that I am going into these details. If you find a thoroughly earnest man or men who want to give themselves entirely to public work, but on the principle mentioned by Dr. Mehta, if they need to be supported, you will recollect we have already discussed that we could consider the proposition.

There is no news yet from Lord Crewe. I am doing my best to speed him on, but the work is necessarily slow. I have seen Mr. Meyer and Dr. Clifford. Mr. Meyer was very good and he says that, if the reply from Lord Crewe is not satisfactory, he would call together influential men and take the necessary steps.\(^1\) I send you a draft syllabus\(^2\) for the competitors for the prize. Dr. Mehta’s name is not to be mentioned as the prize giver. Dr. Clifford will be one of the judges. I am to see the editor of The British Weekly and be guided by him in finally shaping the syllabus and discuss with him as to the best method of inviting competitors.

I am due to speak to the members of the Emerson Club on “Passive Resistance” on the 8th proximo and may speak at Hampstead Peace and Arbitration Society on the 13th or 14th proximo.\(^3\) Both these meetings will deal with the struggle indirectly. It will be on the same lines as the Germiston meeting.\(^4\)

Please correspond with Dr. Mehta most regularly.

I think I told you last week that Dr. Mehta examined Millie.

---

1 Rev. F. B. Meyer later arranged a meeting on November 12.
2 This paper, setting down conditions for the essay on “Ethics of Passive Resistance”, is not available.
3 Vide “Speech at Emerson Club”, 8-10-1909 and “Speech at Hampstead”, 13-10-1909
4 Vide “Speech at Germiston”, 7-6-1909
Dr. Mehta thinks that there is nothing wrong so far as the chest is concerned. From his diagnosis after talking with Millie, he did not consider it necessary even to use the stethoscope. He said that the stethoscope could tell him no more. He thought that it was a ... ing and probably some irritation in the throat. ... belief I have held now for a long time, and I suggested earth bandages for the throat some time ago. I have made my suggestion and I think he will now have these applied to the throat. Anyhow there is not the slightest danger.

Can you secure a special portrait of the G.O.M. for the Indian Opinion? If one is available, well and good, or I hope he will exert himself to give a special sitting for the portrait. You may also collect portraits with photographs of those leaders whom you may consider to be good and really patriotic. You do not mention having seen Professor Velinkar.

Mr. Ali Imam of the All-India Moslem League is at present here. I have had a brief conversation with him. He appealed to me as a very nice man; he is quite informal. He is the leader of the Bar in Patna and a broad-minded man. A dinner is being given today to him; I send you a copy of the notices that were issued. He will be leaving in a fortnight’s time for India. He has come here to put his sons at Oxford and, being here, he has been naturally seeing Lord Morley and others specially in connection with the Mahomedan representation. Will you please watch the papers and, as soon as he comes, then place yourself in communication with him. He will be of very great assistance.

From the typewritten office copy: S. N. 5102

91. LETTER TO LEO TOLSTOY

LONDON,
October 1, 1909

SIR,

I take the liberty of inviting your attention to what has been going on in the Transvaal (South Africa) for nearly three years.

There is in that Colony a British Indian population of nearly 13,000. These Indians have, for several years, laboured under various legal disabilities. The prejudice against colour and in some respects against Asiatics is intense in that Colony. It is largely due, so far as Asiatics are concerned, to trade jealousy. The climax was reached three years ago, with a law\(^1\) which I and many others considered to be degrading and calculated to unman those to whom it was applicable. I felt that submission to a law of this nature was inconsistent with the spirit of true religion. I and some of my friends were and still are firm believers in the doctrine of non-resistance to evil. I had the privilege of studying your writings also, which left a deep impression on my mind. British Indians, before whom the position was fully explained, accepted the advice that we should not submit to the legislation, but that we should suffer imprisonment, or whatever other penalties the law may impose for its breach. The result has been that nearly one-half of the Indian population, that was unable to stand the heat of the struggle, to suffer the hardships of imprisonment, have withdrawn from the Transvaal rather than submit to [the] law which they have considered degrading. Of the other half, nearly 2,500 have for conscience’s sake allowed themselves to be imprisoned, some as many as five times. The imprisonments have varied from four days to six months, in the majority of cases with hard labour. Many have been financially ruined. At present there are over a hundred passive resisters in the Transvaal gaols. Some of these have been very poor men, earning their livelihood from day to day. The result has been that their wives and children have had to be supported out of public contributions, also largely raised from passive resisters. This has put a severe strain upon British Indians, but, in my opinion, they have risen to the occasion. The struggle still continues and one does not know when the end will come. This, however, some of us at least have seen most clearly, that passive resistance will and can succeed where brute force must fail. We also notice that, in so far as the struggle has been prolonged, it has been due largely to our weakness and, hence, to a belief having been engendered in the mind of the Government that we would not be able to stand continued suffering.

1 Some words are missing here.
2 ibid

Together with a friend, I have come here to see the Imperial authorities and to place before them the position, with a view to seeking redress. Passive resisters have recognized that they should have nothing to do with pleading with the Government, but the deputation has come at the instance of the weaker members of the community, and it therefore represents their weakness rather than their strength.

\(^1\) The Transvaal Asiatic Law Amendment Ordinance.

But, in the course of my observation here, I have felt that if a general competition for an essay on the Ethics and Efficacy of Passive Resistance were invited, it would popularise the movement and make people think. A friend has raised the question of morality in connexion with the proposed competition. He thinks that such an invitation would be inconsistent with the true spirit of passive resistance and that it would amount to buying opinion. May I ask you to favour me with your opinion on the subject of morality? And if you consider that there is nothing wrong in inviting contributions, I would ask you also to give me the names of those whom I should specially approach to write upon the subject.

There is one thing more with reference to which I would trespass upon your time. A copy of your letter addressed to a Hindu on the present unrest in India has been placed in my hands by a friend. On the face of it, it appears to represent your views. It is the intention of my friend, at his own expense, to have 20,000 copies printed and distributed and to have it translated also. We have, however, not been able to secure the original, and we do not feel justified in printing it, unless we are sure of the accuracy of the copy and of the fact that it is your letter. I venture to enclose herewith a copy of the copy, and should esteem it a favour if you kindly let me know whether it is your letter, whether it is an accurate copy and whether you approve of its publication in the above manner. If you will add anything further to the letter, please do so. I would also venture to make a suggestion. In the concluding paragraph you seem to dissuade the reader from a belief in re-incarnation. I do not know whether (if it is not impertinent on my part to mention this) you have specially studied the question. Re-incarnation or transmigration is a cherished belief with millions in India, indeed, in China also. With many, one might almost say, it is a matter of experience, no longer a matter of academic acceptance. It explains reasonably the many mysteries of life. With some of the passive resisters who have gone through the gaols of the Transvaal, it has been their solace. My object in writing this is not to convince you of the truth of the 1 This was in reply to a letter addressed to Tolstoy by the editors of an underground journal named Free Hindustan, issued from Vancouver. Its chief editor was Tarak Nath Das. Tolstoy’s letter was published in Indian Opinion, 25-12-1909 and 1-1-1910, with a preface by Gandhiji. A Gujarati translation by him was also published, first, in Indian Opinion and, later, in the form of a book.

---

doctrine, but to ask you if you will please remove the word “re-incarnation” from the other things you have dissuaded your reader from. ¹ In the letter in question, you have quoted largely from Krishna² and given reference to passages. I should thank you to give me the title of the book from which the quotations have been made.

I have wearied you with this letter. I am aware that those who honour you and endeavour to follow you have no right to trespass upon your time, but it is rather their duty to refrain from giving you trouble, so far as possible. I have, however, who am an utter stranger to you, taken the liberty of addressing this communication in the interests of truth, and in order to have your advice on problems the solution of which you have made your life-work.³

With respects,

I remain, etc.,

M. K. GANDHI

[COUNT LEO TOLSTOY
YASNAYA POLYANA
RUSSIA]

Tolstoy and Gandhi

92. LONDON

[After October 1, 1909]

NATAL DEPUTATION

There is no further information to give, for the present at least, about the activities of this deputation. There has been no reply so far to the latest letter to Lord Crewe. It is quite possible that there will be none. Mr. Ali Imam has promised to help. The deputation had asked for a permit for the entry of a Moulvi to serve in the mosque at Maritzburg. The Natal Government has sent a reply to the request, against which a strong protest has been addressed to Lord Crewe. The Natal Government has replied to Mr. Amod Bhayat that they will issue a permit for the Moulvi which will be renewable every three months, a fee of £1 being payable at every renewal. This means paying an

¹ Tolstoy agreed to this.
² A booklet written in 1904 by a Bengali saint, Baba Premananda Bharati, then resident in California
³ Tolstoy replied to this letter on October 7; vide Appendix “Tolstoy’s Letter to Gandhiji”.

THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
annual tax of £4. The deputation, writing about this letter to Lord Crewe, has pointed out to him that the reply is an open insult and an offence to the community. How can the community possibly invite a Moulvi on such conditions? The matter has also been taken up by the Muslim League. Personally, I hope that the community will resort to satyagraha rather than submit to such wanton tyranny. First, a Moulvi must enter the Colony after giving due notice. If imprisonment follows, he must accept it. If deported, that, too, he must accept and then raise the banner in India. A satyagrahi must be afraid neither of imprisonment nor of deportation. He must neither mind even being reduced to poverty, nor be frightened, if it comes to that, of being mashed into pulp with a mortar and pestle. A satyagrahi will shine the brighter and grow the more courageous the more he is crushed. Then alone he deserves to be called a satyagrahi. The reply about the Moulvi is an attack on religion; so it appears to me at least. It only means that we are to be denied even religious facilities, so that we may ultimately leave the country is sheer desperation. If the Indians have any spirit in them, they will not leave the country and will follow their respective religious practices in every detail. We will not submit to any injustice that the Government may choose to inflict on us in its toxication of power. Satyagraha is the only straightforward and simple method of fighting patent injustice, the one that will ensure the quickest redress.

SUFFRAGETTES

The suffragette movement has again come into prominence. I wrote earlier that some of the women had crossed the limit of propriety. They not only stoned the Prime Minister’s car, but also attacked the guards. They had armed themselves [for the purpose].
There is no doubt of the women’s courage, but they have used their courage to a wrong end. They are, it seems, serving notice that, should they be denied the franchise, they will resort to stone-throwing, or will go even further and commit arson or murder. If everyone does the same, that will simply mean that, whenever any claim to a right, legitimate or otherwise, is denied, even a murder can be justified. This will be the undoing of nations. These ladies are no longer prepared to submit to any suffering. They went on a hunger-strike with the intention of securing their immediate release. The Government has now resorted to forcible feeding. Food is passed through a tube inserted into the stomach. If the women resort to physical force, they will necessarily invite similar force against them.
That will mean, in the end, that England will no longer be a land worth living in. If these same ladies were to adhere to pure satyagraha, there would be no trouble of any kind. Maybe there will be some delay in their winning the franchise, but the whole social fabric will not be endangered through their activities. If they have been in the wrong, they are bound to suffer. As they have resorted to unruly methods, quite a few women have also turned against them. One of the letter has even gone to the length of saying that, if the franchise is to be won through murders and violence, she does not want it. The suffragettes argue that the present law-makers have grown to be an unscrupulous lot. If the women win power through violent means, that will give us no reason to believe that administration under them will register any very great improvement. I have already pointed out that their example should teach us to eschew violent methods. Another thing that we may learn from them is courage. The methods they have been resorting to these days are, of course, bad, but their determined spirit of resistance, the hardships they suffer, the funds they raise—all these things deserve to be emulated. Nothing ever dishearts them. They have pledged themselves not to rest till they have won the franchise. Faithful to that pledge, they sacrifice their property and their lives to gain their end. When the suffragettes have to put up such a fight against men of their own race in order to secure voting rights for themselves, why should it be surprising that Indian satyagrahis have to carry on a prolonged fight, suffering imprisonment, assaults and hunger?

TOLSTOY’S SATYAGRAHA

Count Tolstoy is a Russian nobleman. He was once a very wealthy man. He is a man of about eighty now, with wide experience of the world. He is considered to be the best among the writers of the West. He may be looked upon as the greatest of satyagrahis.

Acting upon his views, thousands of men have gone to gaol and are still doing so. The Russian Government stands in fear of him. His writings are very trenchant. He is fearless in advising the people not to obey the laws of the Russian Government, not to serve in the army, and so on. Though his writings are proscribed, a great many of them are, in fact, published. The Russian Government has therefore arrested his shiras-tedar¹ and sentenced him to imprisonment. Count Tolstoy’s

¹ Literally, an official of the rank of a head clerk
comments on this action being noteworthy, I give their substance below:

The Russian Government has arrested many persons before my shirastedar, but the drama had a greater effect on me for being enacted in front of my very eyes. Really speaking, it is I that should have been arrested for they were but my writings which he circulated.

When they carried off Gooseff I burst into tears, but this was not out of pity for him and for his fate; there was no reason for me to feel sorry for him, for I knew that Gooseff trusted in his soul-force. No one who does that is ever affected by external circumstances; such a man knows wherein lies his true welfare. They were tears of joy which I shed, for I saw that Gooseff appeared to be pleased that he was arrested and went away with a smile on his face. The man whom they have carried off is a kind and upright person who would harm no one. This man was seized in the night, locked up in a typhus-infected prison, and would be banished to a spot where one can hardly live.

The authorities are afraid of arresting me. They do not like my telling the people that it is not good to kill anyone. If I were to be locked up for five or seven years, that would stop me from writing or speaking. But others in Europe do not think, as they do, that I am an empty-headed man. Hence, instead of arresting me they arrest my men.

But this high-handed action will have no effect. I consider that my views are true, and that it is my duty to propagate them. I am living on only for that purpose, and therefore, I shall continue to express them as long as I live. I shall now send out my writings through others as I used to do through Gooseff. There are many who are ready to take Gooseff’s place. If they arrest everyone who comes to work with me, I shall myself send or give my writings to anyone who asks for them.

I am not, however, writing this letter merely to speak for myself or for Gooseff. What about those who oppress, imprison or hang thousands of men? They will suffer under the curses which the victims of oppression in their suffering call down upon them. Perhaps, some of those who perpetrate this oppression believe that by their actions they are serving the common good. I pity such men. They ought to wake up. They are squandering their God-given wealth of spiritual powers. They never get to taste real happiness. To be sure, what happens to Gooseff and me is of little consequence in itself. But I take this opportunity to tell the tyrannical officers: “Bethink you of yourselves and of your life. Look into your souls and have pity on yourselves.”

---

1 This letter, published in the Daily News, was addressed to L. W. Ritch.
2 This happened on August 18, 1909.

A man who can write this, who has such thoughts and can act up to them has mastered the world, has conquered suffering and achieved his life’s end. True freedom is to be found—only in such a life. That is the kind of freedom we want to achieve in the Transvaal. If India were to achieve such freedom, that indeed would be swarajya.

POLAK’S WORK

The work Mr. Polak has been doing in India will surely bear fruit one day. I can see from the letters which I receive from others that in Bombay they talk of nothing but our struggle. Mr. Polak has certainly captivated the hearts of the people of Bombay.

PETIT’S MUNIFICENCE

Mr. Polak has received very good help in his effort from Mr. Jehangir Bomanjee Petit. Now only is he staying with Mr. Petit, but 20,000 copies of a pamphlet by him were printed by the latter at his own cost. Mr. Petit spent Rs. 1,000/- on this.

These efforts should inspire the satyagrahis to exert themselves with redoubled determination.

MADNESS

A journal named Bande Mataram has recently started coming out in Switzerland, publication in India or England being impossible. It contains open incitement to violence, as if that would make India free this very moment! Even if India could be free that way, what would it do with that freedom? But this time I do not wish to emphasize the question of violence. Some young Indians, carried away by “progressive idea”, pour inconsiderate abuse on those who have spent their lives in the service of India to this day, looking down upon them with contempt. Of course, they cannot by these means bring freedom to India. This Bande Mataram has attacked Mr. Gokhale and his fellow-workers. The author of the article refers to them as mean and cowardly. He thinks he is serving the motherland by making such attacks. Personally, I think that the author of such an article must be puerile. Let us consider a little. It is possibly true that Mr. Gokhale, Sir Pherozeshah Mehta and others are not prepared to go as far as the young men would like to do. Does that mean that what they have done so far is of no value? Mr.
Gokhale lived in poverty and for 18 years taught at the Fergusson College for no more than a subsistence wage. He is a man of such ability that he could have earned much more if he had wanted to. A large portion of what he gets at present as a member of the Legislative Council he spends on philanthropic activities. When Mr. Gokhale lived thus in poverty, there were very few men with any spirit of self-sacrifice in them. Everyone will admit that Mr.
Gokhale’s self-sacrifice was great. Sir Pherozeshah has worked for 30 years in the Bombay Corporation. At that time, there were few men who would work as he did. Shall we denounce these men because, in their views, they would not go as far as we do? It is their work which enables us to go further today. I do not want to enquire whether they are following a wrong course now. I only point out that, even if they are, it does us no credit to denounce them but rather betrays our unworthiness and proves that we have yet to learn the first lessons of freedom. Freedom does not mean licence. I may be free to enjoy what is my own. But it appears that we want to rob others of what is theirs. I have thought it necessary to set down these thoughts because I know that issues of this journal must be finding their way into the hands of readers of Indian Opinion. In the present context, it makes little difference to me whether any reader is an extremist or a moderate. It is the duty of both the extremists and moderates to see that they do not pull down the work of those who have been called the pillars of India; they are welcome to build further on it. Otherwise, they will be cutting off the very branch on which they are sitting.
Humility, earnestness, thoughtfulness in conduct—these are the foundations of swarajya. To speak out what comes into one’s head or to do whatever one likes is mere delirium.

Dr. Mehta

Only recently he contributed to the satyagraha fund. He has now gone to Rangoon.
AZAM HAFFEJI

I see it reported in Indian Opinion that Mr. Azam Haffeji has passed his examination. This is an error. Being short of money, Mr. Azam has not yet been able to secure admission to any school. How, then, could he have passed an examination?

SYED ALI IMAM

A dinner was given on October 1 in honour of Mr. Syed Ali Imam, president of the Bihar [branch of the] All-India Muslim League. It must have been attended by about a hundred men. Dr. Abdool Majid was in the chair. The Reception Committee comprised both Hindus and Muslims. Mr. Verma and Mr. Jaffer were the secretaries. Among the gentlemen present were Sir Henry Cotton, Dr. Rutherford, Mr. Upton, Sir Muncherji Bhownaggree, Mr. Nawab Saheb Syed Hussain Bilgrami, Major Syed Hussain, Mr. Ritch, Mr. [J. H.] Polak, Mr. Bipin Chandra Pal, Mr. Khaparde, Mr. Parikh, Mr. Chhotalal Parekh and others.

Mr. Ali Imam said in his speech that India could remain with England, not under it. Indians must have the same rights [as the British]. They must make a success of what Lord Morley had granted and then demand more. Hindus, Muslims and Parsis must learn to live as one nation. In Turkey, Muslims, Jews and Christians lived in amity, and that was why they commanded respect. In every part [of India] where Hindus were in a majority and the Muslims in a minority, the former should help the latter to gain special rights, and vice versa. If this were done, there would be no Hindu-Muslim problem. There were many reforms to be carried out in India. We must ensure the spread of education and respect for women’s rights. We must not be backward where we have to act on our own. His prayer for good health was received by the gathering with applause.

He was followed by Sir Henry Cotton who said in a short speech that it was for the Indians to win their own rights.

Then Sir Muncherji Bhownaggree spoke. He appealed for good wishes for [the success of] the Transvaal and Natal deputations. Sir Muncherji pointed out in his speech that the problem in South Africa was a very serious one. It had brought two deputations which they ought to help. Our fellow-countrymen were passing through hard times in South Africa. This appeal was also received with great enthusiasm.

Mr. Gandhi then replied. He said that it was in South Africa that the Indian nation was being formed. A nation, he said, could come into being only when people made sacrifices for the sake of freedom. Moreover, the Hindu-Muslim problem just did not arise in South Africa. There it was almost as good as solved. Mr. Imam was quite right when he said that the minorities should have special rights. That was the only way to bring about Hindu-Muslim unity.

The Transvaal Indians, [he said], were fighting—not for self-interest—but for India’s honour. It was for that that Parsee Rustomjee was undergoing imprisonment. Some Sikhs had also gone to gaol. People would thus continue to go to gaol so long as men like Mr. Ali Imam were not free to enter to Transvaal as of right, and they would win that right.

In Natal they want to ruin the traders, exact an annual tax of £3 from poor Indians and prevent the boys from being educated. It was the duty of every Indian to fight such tyranny. The Nawab Saheb was a member of the India Council. It was his duty to press for justice and, if he failed, to resign [his membership].

Indians of the younger generation should examine the meaning of this problem. If they did, there would be a solution in no time.

Speaking next, Major Syed Hussain said that Hindus and Muslims should sit for dinner at the same table in India, just as they did in an English hotel.

Mr. Bipin Chandra Pal said in his speech that Hindus and Muslims could be and must be united. It was an excellent thing, [he said,] that Mr. Ali Imam was honoured by both Hindus and Muslims. Hindus would, of course, remain Hindus and Muslims, but they should be more proud of being Indians.

Speaking again, Mr. Ali Imam said that it was exactly because the South African problem was a very serious one that he had not referred to it in his speech. It was very much present in his mind and he would not forget it. He would, of course, do everything he could for the removal of Indians’ disabilities.

Dr. Rutherford said that Mr. Gandhi’s speech had inspired him with a new spirit. Indians were putting up a good fight in the Transvaal. Their example should be followed by everyone. He would, on his part, render every possible assistance.

Mr. Upton, a Member of Parliament, also spoke in a similar strain. He was followed by Mr. Parikh, and the gathering then dispersed. I need not say that the dinner was attended by members of both the deputations.

Another function in honour of Mr. Ali Imam is to be held at 4 [p.m.] on Tuesday. It will be on behalf of the All-India Muslim League. The gentleman is proceeding to Istanbul, and will return thence to India.

GUJARATI MEETING

A conference is to be held in Kathiawar for the development of the Gujarati language. A meeting of Gujaratis is to be held on Tuesday, under the chairmanship of Sir Muncherji Bhownaggree, to extend support to it. The meeting is being convened by Mr. Rustom Desai, Mr. Hussain Dawad Mahomed and Mr. Jethalal Parikh.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 30-10-1909

93. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

LONDON,
October 3, 1909

CHI. NARANDAS,

Again there is no letter from you. I hope your collection is going on. I wish you to go to South Africa if Chi. Chhaganlal decides to go to England. I would want you to go only if you also think likewise. Your going will automatically do good to your soul. In that case the first thing necessary is your father’s permission. I am writing to respected Khushalbhai. He will give this letter to you only if he thinks of sending you; or he will tell you what he thinks while giving you the letter. Let your reply come here on the assumption that I am here. If your going is decided upon, permission will have to be obtained from Phoenix. If you go there to court imprisonment, no permission would be required; for, in that case, you will have to go to Johannesburg. There is no misery in gaol; rather, there is happiness if one thinks that way. More you may discuss with Chi. Chhaganlal. The Gandhi family has done good deeds as well as bad ones. However, we are known for our good conduct. If we can add to it, that will be our real service to the family. That is why I am always

1 Vide “Speech at Gujarati Meeting”, 5-10-1909
2 Vide the following item.
desirous of stealing away all the young men of character from our family.

Blessings from

MOHANDAS

From the Gujarati original in Gandhiji’s hand : C. W. 4898  Courtesy : Narandas Gandhi

94. LETTER TO KHUSHALCHAND GANDHI

LONDON,
October 3, 1909

RESPECTED KHUSHALBHAI,

Once Chi. Chhaganlal had asked for your permission to let Narandas also be sacrificed for Phoenix. It was, however, not granted at that time. I remember that I, too, had written in that regard. The thing is again being considered here.

There would be nothing wrong, if you spare Narandas; it will be to his good.

It is quite natural to want to have all your sons near you in your old age; nevertheless, it is also infatuation. If, by staying away from you, they can do spiritual good to themselves and if one of them stays with you, why can the others not stay away? It is pure selfishness to keep one’s sons always by one’s side. Our religion preaches selflessness at all times. Therefore, when an occasion arises for them to follow the path of selflessness, it is but proper, as I see it, to let them go. If you can persuade yourself to accept this view, I would request you to permit Chi. Narandas [to join Phoenix].

Of course, the first thing to be considered in this connection is whether or not Narandas himself is inclined to do so. My request holds good only if he is. I do not recall if Narandas is married or not. If he is not married and not even betrothed, he will be, in my opinion, able to do much better work. I have given deep thought to this matter; and I have lived and am living accordingly. I shall not go deeper into it here. I am only putting my ideas before you; for I think and take for granted that among all the brothers you are the one who understands me to some extent.

Chi. Chhaganlal will tell you more. Please do what you think proper after hearing him.

Respects from

MOHANDAS

From the Gujarati original in Gandhiji’s hand : C. W. 4899 Courtesy : Narandas Gandhi

VOL. 10 : 5 AUGUST, 1909 - 9 APRIL, 1910  141
MY LORD.

I beg to thank you for your letter of the 4th instant.\footnote{Gandhiji had written to Lord Ampthill on September 21 and 22, but the letters are not available. The latter’s reply, however, throws some light on their contents; vide Appendix “Lord Ampthills’ Letter to Gandhiji”.} I hope that you enjoyed the short holiday you were able to give yourself. I purposely refrained from wearying you with any further information on the subject. I may now, however, state that Mr. Polak has been very active in India. The public meeting in Bombay was a very great success. Since then, meetings have been held at Surat, Ahmedabad and Kathore. The Indian Press has been discussing the question at much greater length than heretofore and certainly much more intelligently. It now recognises, as it did not do before, that the Transvaal Indians are suffering not for achieving a selfish purpose, but for removing national dishonour.

I gratefully note your advice as to Lord Morley’s letter, and the information you gave me as to the question \footnote{This was answered by Lord Crewe on November 16, when the House of Lords assembled for the winter session.} you have on the Notice Paper of the House of Lords.

I have just received a reply\footnote{This was dated October 4; vide the enclosure, 5-10-1909} from Lord Crewe, copy of which and draft reply thereto I enclose herewith—the latter for your approval or amendment. The reply comes close on what appeared in \textit{The Times} yesterday from its Johannesburg correspondent. Mr. Smuts spoke to the Rand Pioncers, and the correspondent giving the purport of his speech says:

\begin{quote}
Mr. Smuts did not touch on current politics, although various efforts were made to draw him on such questions as, the views of the Government on the subject of coalition, and the rumoured change in the position taken up towards the Asiatic passive resisters. The latter still remains a rumour.

Lord Crewe’s letter, in my opinion, is both satisfactory and highly unsatisfactory—unsatisfactory, because Lord Crewe evidently \end{quote}
fears Mr. Smuts unduly: satisfactory, because negot[iation]. . .

I feel that Mr. Hajee Habib and I should not go away without undertaking some public activity. At first thought, this is what appears to be necessary. We should address, if it is possible, a meeting of the members of the House of Commons who would care to listen to us; we should invite assistance and co-operation from all part[ies;] we should place the position before representatives of various religious denomina-tions; we should circulate the short statement which has been approved by you, with a covering letter bringing the situation up to date; interview those editors who would permit us to see them and address a general letter to the Press. This would probably mean our staying at least to the end of the month. I am also again considering whether it may not be wise for us to pay, subject to consent from the European and the Indian committees in Johannesburg, a brief visit to India and then return via London to South Africa. The first step, however, I take it, would be to send a letter to Lord Crewe, which I would do as soon as I have the draft returned by Your Lordship. With reference to the rest—at your discretion we might have a discussion if you could spare the time and are coming to the city, or, in the absence thereof, I would value Your Lordship’s advice.

I remain, etc.,

[ENCLOSURE]

DRAFT LETTER

[LONDON,]

THE UNDER SECRETARY OF STATE
COLONIAL OFFICE, S. W.

Sir,

I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 4th instant, in connection with the British Indian question in the Transvaal. Mr. Hajee Habib and I are grateful to the Earl of Crewe for the efforts His Lordship has made and will still make in order to bring about a satisfactory settlement, but my colleague and I feel that it is time for us to inform public opinion before our departure, which we are desirous not to indefinitely prolong. I assume that the Earl of 1 A line is missing here.

---

2 This was released on November 5, 1909.
3 Gandhi and Lord Ampthill met the next afternoon.
Crewe has no objection to our making public the net result of the negotiations, so far as they have progressed.\(^1\)

I have, etc.,

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S.N. 5111-2

96. SPEECH AT GUJARATI MEETING

[LONDON, October 5, 1909]

These days a new idea is in the air in India. Hindus, Muslims, Parsis—all are filled with the spirit of “my country” and “our country”. We shall not on this occasion go into the political aspects of the matter. Thinking of it from the point of view of language, it requires little effort to see that we must cultivate pride in our language before we can speak of “our country” with genuine feeling. Turning to recent examples, we find that one strong reason why the Boers enjoy swarajya today is that they and their children mostly use their own language. General Botha uses the Boer language even when talking to Lord Crewe. His knowledge of English can be considered to be much superior to ours, but he uses the language of his motherland as a point of honour and also with the object of setting an example. We come across many other instances of the kind, but there is no need to cite them here.

Personally, therefore, I think it a welcome development that everyone in India, young or old, is beginning to turn his attention to his own language. We find a desire being expressed that the people of India should have one single language. That may, perhaps, happen in future. Everyone will admit that such a language must be an Indian language. But that stage is yet to come. As the basis of my pride as an Indian, I must have pride in myself as a Gujarati. Otherwise we shall be left without any moorings. The leaders in every province

\(^1\) Gandhiji substituted a second draft for this, vide enclosure to “Letter to Lord Ampthill”, 6-10-1909. The communication finally sent, however, was different; vide “Letter to Under Secretary for Colonies”, 8-10-1909

\(^2\) Speaking at a meeting of Gujaratis held in London on October 5, to extend support to the third Gujarati Literary Conference which was to be held at Rajkot, Gandhiji moved the following resolution: “This meeting sends its congratulations to the third session of the Gujarati Literary Conference which is being held at Rajkot during the current month, and wishes it success.” In Indian Opinion the report of the speech appeared under the heading “Some thoughts on Gujarati”. For a report of the meeting, vide Appendix “Gujarati Meeting in London”.

144  THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
have no option but to learn the language of some other province. A Gujarati can learn Bengali, Marathi, Tamil, Hindi, etc., with great ease; there is nothing difficult in that. If only we make on Indian languages half the effort that we waste on English, thanks to certain notions of ours, the situation will change altogether. India’s uplift is, to a very considerable extent, bound up with this. I had been under the sway of Macaulay’s ideas on Indian education. Others, too, are. I have now been disillusioned. I wish that others should be. This is not the occasion, [however,] to dilate on this point. If this argument is correct, we may proceed to consider the case of Gujarati. One cannot help saying that the fact of Gujaratis using English among themselves is an indication of their degraded state. This practice has impoverished the mother tongue. We ourselves despise it and, as a result, lose our self-respect. When I think that I cannot express myself well in Gujarati but can do so in English, I tremble. What good can we expect a man to do to his country when he has grown indifferent to his own language? We cannot even dream of the possibility of the great people of Gujarat ever forgetting their own language and adopting another. If that is so, it will not be an exaggeration to say that those who give up that language are traitors to the country, that is, to their own people. It will not be incorrect to say that a language reflects the image of the people. It is, therefore, a very good sign that Gujarati, Bengali, Urdu and Marathi conferences are beginning to be held.

This fact should give much food for thought to Indians abroad. They carry a heavy responsibility. They will be the leaders of the people. It will be a sin on their part if they themselves grow indifferent to their respective languages.

I have come across men highly educated in English, writing or saying that they know English better than Gujarati. This is a matter of shame for us. What they say is in fact not true. I have no hesitation in saying that those who make such a claim cannot really write or speak correct English. That is but natural. I admit that some thoughts can be expressed with [greater] ease in English, but that, too, is a matter of shame for us. Generally speaking, however, it cannot be claimed that we are quite familiar with the idiom and grammar of the English language. On the other hand, the grammar and the idiom of Gujarati are generally familiar to every Indian as a matter of course. We shall never use in Gujarati the present tense in place of the past. But we shall come across errors in the use of tenses in English even in... the writings of Indians who have been very well educated. Errors is the use of idioms are endless. It does happen that we [sometimes] do not pronounce Gujarati correctly, that we do not distinctly enunciate syllables with more than one sound. This is a fault easy to point out, but it cannot be said for that reason that we know less Gujarati.

I also hear it said that students who come [here] to learn English must have practice in English and, if so, they cannot bother themselves with Gujarati. This is a fallacious notion. If Gujaratis talk Gujarati among themselves, their proficiency in English will not suffer. It may possibly improve, for in that case they will hear only Englishmen’s English and the ear will be so trained as to be able to detect unidiomatic English immediately. Moreover, Indian students in England are not so engrossed in their studies that they cannot spare time for reading Gujarati books. If any student aspires, at the end of his studies, to serve the motherland, to take part in public life, he must find some time for the mother tongue. If English is learnt at the cost of the mother tongue, the purpose of learning English, service of the motherland, will be lost. Such a result will only go to prove that there is no use in learning English. If an operation is likely to lead to the patient’s death, everyone will admit that it had better not be undertaken.

Furthermore, Gujarati is not a language of little worth. No limits can be placed to the growth of a language that has been served by poets like Narasinh Mehta1, Akha Bhagat2 and Dayaram3 and which they have found it possible to develop, a language spoken by followers of three great religions of the world—Hinduism, Islam and Zoroastrianism. The same thought can sometime be expressed in Gujarati in three different ways. He whom the Parsis call Khuda, Muslims Allah-Tala, Hindus Ishvar, is referred to in English by a single word, God. The Gujarati which a Muslim writes, will reflect traces of Arabic and the Persian of Sheikh Saadi4; the Parsi’s Gujarati will reveal the influence of Zoroaster’s Zend and the Gujarati of a Hindu that of Sanskrit. Hindus and Muslims serve all the languages of India, but the Parsis, so to say, were sent by Khuda from

---

1 (1414-79); saint-poet of Gujarat; author of Gandhiji’s favourite hymn; Vaishnav jan to tene kahiye
2 Metaphysical poet of the 17th century, famed for his satire; vedantist and rationalist
3 (1777-1853); Vaishnav poet; author of numerous lyrical compositions popular all over Gujarat
4 (c. 1184-1292); Persian poet
Iran exclusively for the service of Gujarati. Their spirit of adventure can be of great benefit to the Gujarati language. Several Gujarati newspapers are owned by them. They should, therefore, exercise great care to ensure the progress of Gujarati. There is only one request to be made to them, “Please do not murder what has now become your mother tongue and which you can never give up.” Parsi writers express excellent ideas in simple language, but they behave as though they were determined to spite the language in respect of pronunciation and spelling. This is a matter for regret. All the Gujaratis should think about this. On deep reflection, one will be forced to admit that all the three—Hindus, Muslims and Parsis, go their different ways. They seem to be concerned only with their own interests. Muslims have not shown much interest in education so far, and have not, therefore, left their impress on Gujarati; but now they are taking to education. Hindus and Parsis must make a big effort to see that they do. If they become educated, Gujarati may receive a powerful impetus from them.

To the Conference at Rajkot I make this humble request, that its leaders should appoint a standing committee of Hindus, Muslims and Parsis proficient in the language and charge the committee with the duty of watching the trends in the Gujarati writings of all the three communities and of offering advice to the writers. It should also be possible for writers with ideas to have their writings corrected through this committee free of cost.

To the Indians in England I say that—while here, we must not show indifference to this language which is our heritage, but cultivate greater love for it, taking a lesson from the British. If they make it a point to use their own ancestral language in writing or speaking to one another, that will ensure its quicker development. India will make progress, in consequence, and they will be deemed to have discharged their duty. With a little exercise of thought they will find this effort very easy.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 20-11-1909
97. LETTER TO LORD AMPTHILL

[LONDON.]

October 6, 1909

MY LORD,

I enclose herewith the draft letter to Sir Francis Hopwood. As nothing can be lost by sending a letter as per draft, it is not of much moment whether that letter or the letter as per draft sent yesterday, is forwarded. But the more I think [of] the matter, the more I feel that we will not get any further satisfaction at the present moment, and that the ambiguity is deliberate and diplomatic, and, therefore, it does not admit of being cleared up. To me, who am so inexperienced in high politics and diplomacy, the draft enclosed in yesterday’s letter to Your Lordship, appeals as the more correct letter to be sent, after an addition to it sketching roughly the plan of campaign to be followed here and the intended visit to India. However, I am entirely in Your Lordship’s hands, and would be guided by the advice you will kindly give.²

I remain, etc.,

[ENCLOSURE]

DRAFT LETTER

[LONDON.]

October 6, 1909

SIR FRANCIS J. G. HOPWOOD
COLONIAL OFFICE, S. W.

SIR,

With reference to the letter addressed to me over your signature, dated the 4th October, No. 31649—I venture to address you

1 Vide “Letter to Lord Amthill”, 5-10-1909
2 Acknowledging Gandhiji’s letters of October 5 and 6, Lord Amthill wrote on October 7: “. . . I note that on further reflection you are not inclined to adopt the more elaborate procedure which I then suggested. I dare say that your instinct is quite right and there is, of course, ample reason for thinking that in present circumstances Lord Crewe will not be able, even if he were inclined, to pay much attention to your business. In these circumstances I should be very sorry to interfere with your discretion and I agree with you that you cannot go wrong if you write as you first intended, with the addition of a brief explanation of the methods by which you propose to inform the public.”
informally, in order to save time and in order to ascertain, if I may, the exact meaning of the communication. As you are fully aware of the negotiations that have proceeded in connection with the British Indian question in the Transvaal, I take the liberty of asking for my colleague, Mr. Hajee Habib, and myself an informal interview.

The difficulty that faces us is this. The letter referred to by me says:

The Colonial Government must first decide... Whether they are prepared to introduce legislation on the lines proposed by Mr. Smuts.

As reference is made to my attitude at the interview with the Earl of Crewe, I do not know whether the legislation proposed by Mr. Smuts is on the basis suggested by me at the interview, or whether it is on the basis proposed by Mr. Smuts before he embarked for South Africa. As you are aware, there is a fundamental difference between the Indian proposal submitted by me, and what Mr. Smuts was prepared to give. It will be admitted it is of the greatest importance to my colleague and myself to know the exact position taken up by Mr. Smuts after His Lordship’s cable, which evidently was sent after the interview in question.

I remain, etc.

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S. N. 5114-5

98. LETTER TO H. S. L. POLAK

[LONDON,]

October 6, 1909

MY DEAR HENRY,

I have your letter from Kathore. Can you not dismiss me from your conversations, at least with me? I think, for the sake of the cause, too, you should leave me out of consideration except where you may find it necessary to bring me in. I know you will retort that you never unnecessarily discuss me, but that is really not so. Your enthusiasm at times, as you will admit, does carry you away. You will find that, if you persist there will be a reaction, not against me, which would be quite bearable, but against the cause, which you at any rate will not like. I had to speak somewhat like this to Mr. Gokhale also, when I was with him in Calcutta and when he heaped upon me praise that I thought was excessive. Indeed, I spoke to him somewhat bitterly.

1 Gandhiji had stayed with Gokhale for about a month, after the Indian National Congress session, in 1901. Vide An Autobiography, Part III, Chs. XVII to XIX.

I am glad that the life over there does not appear to you to be strange. I never expected it would. You had already sufficiently pictured it in your imagination.

The cuttings received this week are very meagre. Whoever is responsible has not done his duty. I have not even the Times of India report nor the
Bombay Gazette. I never received a report of the ladies’ meeting you addressed,¹ nor the verses composed in your honour. I want badly to see the original.

I am dictating this letter after the receipt of Lord Crewe’s reply, of which by and by. And yet I wish to say that our friends over there, who are so despondent in spite of enthusiastic meetings, have evidently either little faith in the righteousness of our cause, or in the right prevailing in the end, and by the end I do not mean the dim and distant future, but within a measurable time, the measure being the measure of effort put forth. Can you not make them see that the real success lies in the effort itself, which in our case is passive resistance, that we are giving ourselves the finest type of education, better than any university education, that the more prolonged the struggle is, the better will the people be when the end comes, and the better prepared for deserving and procuring further reforms? If the meetings are held there by the leaders without faith in the cause, or in their efficacy, they will inevitably fall flat. They may appear to be enthusiastic, but the undercurrent, which the leaders themselves will have seen, will not be missed by the Government either. Can you not make them see that, although we have no real freedom in India, that is no reason why the Transvaal Indians—if they are worthy of their salt—should not be able to make good their position and why they should not receive from Indians in India that support to which they are entitled? Will they not see that the effort in the Transvaal and the corresponding activity in India must in their very nature bring India nearer her goal, and that, by means of the purest type? Without being impertinent, can we not show to them that no part of the struggle has been idealised in India as the Transvaal one has? Every reform that the Congress has been asking for is intended to bring forth some tangible and worldly good, but not purely and simply that form of good which simply adds to the national manhood, without any visible

¹ On September 15, Polak spoke at a meeting of women in Bombay on “Condition and Status of Indian Women in South Africa”.

150 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI signs. If a handful of the Transvaal Indians are determined to sacrifice themselves for the honour of India, why will not India rise to the occasion and place this thing in the forefront of its programme?
Leaders of India can and ought to place the question boldly either in India or the Colonies. The latter cannot with impunity hurl insult at India and yet pretend to own the Union Jack. We know that the theoretical equality of a very limited type that we are fighting for is of no immediate good. That, to you and to me, is all the greater reason for putting forth the best that is in us. Will the leaders over there not see it? Will they not see that, in fighting the battle, we are presenting the Indian Motherland with a disciplined army of the future; an army that will be able to give a good account of itself against any amount of brute force that may be matched against it? Let the leaders there write to us through the Chairman of the British Indian Association, asking us to go on with the fight and giving us their blessing.

I am speaking on Friday to the Emerson Club on the “Ethics of Passive Resistance”, and on Wednesday the 13th to the Peace and Arbitration Society, Hampstead, on “East and West”.

You will have received Nagappen’s photograph. I wish you could get the papers there to reproduce it. Will you please write to the Indian Review and other papers in Madras, to take it up. I think I told you that I suggested to our people in Johannesburg to found a Nagappen Scholarship. If there is anybody in Bombay or in Madras who would do so, it would be very striking. Let them realise that a youth of 20, of unblemished character, has died for the sake of his country.

Mr. Doke’s book will probably be in my hands next week. Mr.
Cooper promised a few copies even on Saturday.

On Friday came off the function in honour of Mr. Ali Imam.
Quite unexpectedly, a toast was drunk for the South African deputations. Sir Mancherjee had charge of it and he spoke grandly.
There is no denying the fact that he realises the full significance of the struggle. In replying, I gently took Mr. Ali Imam to task for not having referred to the South African question in his speech, and

1 Vide “Speech at Emerson Club”, 8-10-1909
2 Vide “Speech at Hampstead”, 13-10-1909
3 Nasarwanji M. Cooper, editor of the Indian Chronicle, London, published Doke’s biography of Gandhiji.
4 Vide “London”, After 1-10-1909 appealed to the Indian members of the Council that they should demand redress, and if the Indian Council refused to move, they should give up their posts. The Mohammedan member of the Council was present at the function. Mr. Ali Imam thereupon got up and explained why he had not referred to the South African question, saying that it was too vast to be dealt with among many other subjects, but that he had the question at heart and that he would do all he could in India. There was an at-home to him yesterday. I was unable to go as I had to be at a Gujarati Literature Encouragement meeting, but he told Maud that, if you were anywhere near Calcutta, he would ask you to be his guest. Mr. Ali Imam, let me tell you, is a very genial man, and whenever you are on that side, if he makes the offer to you, you should stay with him. You will be on the look-out for him; he will be leaving for India this month.

Mr. Kaikobad Cowasjee Dinshaw and Mrs. Dinshaw left last Saturday. They will be in Bombay by the same mail that will take this letters. Mr. Petit knows him. You may meet his people at Zanzibar. Mrs. Dinshaw has given me a letter¹ addressed to the Editor of Indian Opinion in Gujarati, sympathising with us and encouraging the women who are suffering. Did I also tell you that Mr. Ramsay MacDonald² should be there by this time? Miss Winterbottom speaks highly of him as a very earnest man. He was a member of one of the Ethical Societies. I dare say you will make it a point to see him.

If you have not written short notes to Parsee Rustomjee, Randeri, Sorabjee, Vyas, Nanalal, Cama, Daud Mohamed, Ravikrishna, Medh., . . .', Harilal, Chettiar and others, please do.

Continued 7-10-1909

From the copies of various letters and draft letters you will see how the position stands. By the time this is in your hands, you will have received a cablegram³ also from me. Lord Crewe’s reply is as I have described it in my letter to Lord Ampthill.⁴ One thing is now certain and that is that the struggle is prolonged. I am looking forward to it. My only regret is that, instead of being in the Transvaal,
I am here. There was a meeting of the Committee yesterday, principally to meet the Natal delegates, but the Transvaal question must crop up wherever there is a discussion on South Africa. Lord Ampthill happened to be there; he had not seen my letter. I sketched the programme to him and he approved of it entirely so that there will be a distribution of the statement, probably a meeting of the members of the House of Commons, and such other things. This will take fully three weeks. Before the work is taken up, I have to wait for Lord Ampthill’s approval of one draft letter or the other, then to forward it and then wait for a reply. This may mean a loss of one precious week. The greatest question is, however, the proposed Indian visit. In reality I should not go to India at all. My place is in the Transvaal, but the reasoning that enabled me to come here is the reasoning that is applicable to the visit to India. I feel sure, however, that I must not come to India, if at all, without Mr. Hajee Habib. He realises the importance of the Indian visit, but he has some important business of his own in the Transvaal. He assures me that he sees the inwardness of the struggle, and he wants to take part in it fully in the Transvaal also. If, then, he must return to South Africa, I too must do likewise. The odds, therefore, are that there will be no visit to India. Lord Ampthill himself (this is quite confidential) seems to lay great stress upon the proposed visit to India. Sir Muncherjee, who was present at the Committee meeting yesterday, saw the report of the Bombay meeting as published in Sanj Vartman. He was grieved that there was no “anna” subscription. He thinks that there should be some workers who will make it their business to collect an anna subscription or a pice subscription, and that the papers there should give the widest publicity to these collections. It is undoubtedly a fine method of education, but for that we want an army of workers. If you can get them, it is worth doing. The workers may be those who have South African experience. They need not be very many. If you can get about five in each centre, it is quite enough. Sir Muncherjee also thinks that the stopping of recruiting should take place unofficially also; that we should have speakers going to the places where recruiting agents are sent, and these men should tell the would-be

1 Gandhiji had suggested a pice fund; vide “Cable to H.S.L. Polak” 25-8-1909
The pice subscription, known as “paisa-fund”, originally sponsored by Lokamanya Tilak, had by this time become almost an institution in the Bombay province. The fund was used for the promotion of swadeshi.

2 Of indentured labourers for Natal emigrants that they should not indenture for Natal. This work you can only discuss in Calcutta and Madras. At both these places, I trust, you will make it a point to see the Immigration Depots, meet even the officials, and study the system and come in touch, if possible, with the recruiting agents. So you see that your work there is becoming more and more important, and that the centre of gravitation is shifting to India. No effective work can be or is to be done here without the fire of passive resistance being kept alive in the Transvaal, and there being a tangible response to it in India. If Chhaganlal is prepared to come, it may be advisable—after he has travelled with you a bit—for him to come over here even before March and brave the cold weather. As a matter of fact, Indians do not feel the severity of their first winter in England, and so it may be with Chhaganlal. With Ritch withdrawn—as I hope he will be—from here, Chhaganlal will be able to do some useful work. Lord Ampthill will need somebody who can give him information on points, as they may arise from time to time.

Will you please send important cuttings, both Gujarati and English, to Dr. Mehta also?

I have told you that Mr. Badat, of the Natal deputation, left some time ago. Mr. Bayat, seeing that really there is nothing to be done here is leaving next Saturday, that is the same day as this letter. Mr. Anglia, I understand, is staying as long as we do.

I send you copy of letter I have received this morning from Lord Ampthill. The first draft letter¹ will therefore be sent to the Earl of Crewe.

Yours sincerely,

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S. N. 5113 and 5152a

¹ Vide enclosure to “Letter to Lord Ampthill”, 5-10-1909
I hope my giving indefinite news every week will not dishearten any Indian.

“There’s no help like self-help.” One must learn this saying by heart. I am sure of one thing at least, that the continued delay must be blamed entirely on us. No one must believe that the Government will not notice our weakness. We, of course, know our strong points. But one feels as though we were trying to conceal our weakness. We should give no cause for such a feeling. We have now grown used to imprisonment.

I was, personally, very happy to read that Mr. Nanalal Shah was deported once again and, immediately thereafter, re-arrested. I congratulate him. We must understand once for all that it is far better to die in prison than to be happy outside.

I have an invitation from the Union of Ethical Societies to speak at the Emerson Club. It will not be a political speech. The subject is limited to “The Meaning of Satyagraha”. But it will make a reference to our struggle. There is also a proposal for another speech of the same kind.

I went to see Mr. Meyer, taking advantage of my meeting with him in Johannesburg. He has also agreed to help, should there be an unfavourable reply from Lord Crewe. A similar assurance has been given by Dr. Clifford, a prominent clergyman here, who is an acquaintance of Mr. Doke’s.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 30-10-1909

---

1 This was on October 8; vide “Speech at Emerson Club”, 8-10-1909
2 Vide “Speech at Hampstead”, 13-10-1909
SIR,

I have the honour to acknowledge receipt of your letter of the 4th instant, in connection with the British Indian question in the Transvaal. The last portion of the letter is not quite clear to my colleague and myself. The difficulty that faces us is this. The letter under reply says:

The Colonial Government must first decide . . . whether they are prepared to introduce legislation on the lines proposed by Mr. Smuts.

I do not know whether the legislation proposed by Mr. Smuts is on the basis suggested by me at the interview of the 16th ultimo, or whether it is on the basis proposed by Mr. Smuts before he embarked for South Africa. There is a fundamental difference between the proposal submitted by me and what Mr. Smuts prepared to give. It will be admitted it is of the greatest importance to my colleague and me to know the exact position taken up by Mr. Smuts after His Lordship’s cable, which evidently was sent after the interview in question.

We recognise that the negotiations will now take some time before the final result is known. We are, however, desirous not to indefinitely prolong our stay in this country. My colleague and I, therefore, feel that it is time for us to inform public opinion before our departure. In wanting to do so, we have no desire to embarrass the Earl of Crewe. Indeed, we are grateful to His Lordship for the efforts he has made, and will still make, in order to bring about a satisfactory settlement. In taking up public activity we only wish to strengthen His Lordship’s hands, and to be able to render a satisfactory account of our mission to our countrymen in South Africa. We propose to interview those leaders of public opinion who are likely to be interested in our troubles; if possible to address meetings of representative men; to circulate a short statement in the Press, etc., and, if we receive advice from the European and the Indian Committees at Johannesburg, and if time permits, to pay a visit to India, and to give to the Indian public an account of our mission here.

I assume that the Earl of Crewe has no objection to our making public the net result of the negotiations, so far as they have progressed.

May I request an early reply?

I remain, etc.,

M. K. GANDHI

Colonial Office Records : 291/142; also, from a photostat of the typewritten office copy : S.N. 5119

101. LETTER TO PRIVATE SECRETARY TO LORD MORLEY

[LONDON,
October 8, 1909]

SIR,

I beg to enclose herewith a copy of the last letter from the Earl of Crewe and the reply thereto, in connection with the Transvaal British Indian question, for Lord Morley’s information.

I remain, etc.,

From the typewritten office copy : S. N. 5118

102. LETTER TO LORD AMPTHILL

[LONDON,]

October 8, 1909

MY LORD,

I am obliged to Your Lordship for your letter. As you have thrown the sole responsibility on my shoulders, I have adopted the middle course and combined the two letters into one. I enclose herewith copy of the letter as it has gone forward. I trust it will meet with Your Lordship’s approval. In the meantime, the order is being

1 Vide the preceding item.

2 This was dated October 7.

3 Vide, “Letter to Under Secretary for Colonies”, 8-10-1909

4 Lord Ampthill, in his reply of October 9, denied that he had thrown “the whole responsibility” on Gandhiji’s shoulders for his course of action. He considered that the letter sent to the Colonial Office could not be easily improved upon. “It seems to me to be admirably expressed and it includes everything so that I shall be greatly disappointed if you do not receive a satisfactory reply.”
sent to the printers to strike off 2,000 copies of the statement.¹

I remain, etc.,

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S. N. 5120

103. LETTER TO “GUJARATI PUNCH”

[LONDON,]

October 8, 1909

TO
THE EDITOR
GUJARATI PUNCH
[BOMBAY]

SIR,

You have requested me to write something for the Special Diwali Number.

My life is taken up at present by one single thing—the life-and-death struggle for the fulfilment of the pledge taken by the Indians living in the Transvaal in South Africa. The pledge was taken by thousands of poor Indians—Hindus, Muslims, Parsis, Pubjabis, Bengalis, Madrasis, Gujaratis and others—to uphold India’s honour. A tiny country like the Transvaal refuses entry even to a person like the Dada² of India, a country as vast as the ocean. The few Indians here, illiterate traders, hawkers and labourers, cannot, will not, bear this insult. To obliterate it, to uphold their religion, be it Hinduism or Islam or Zoroastrianism (for every religion teaches us that failure to honour a pledge taken is a violation of one’s religion), 2,580 persons out of a total Indian population of 13,000 in the Transvaal have already suffered imprisonment. Even now many of them are in gaol, and many will go to gaol in future. I must say that the gaol here is a terrible place. We do not get there the food that we are used to, and are classified with the Kaffirs. Many strong-minded Indian women, the so-called weaker sex, bear separation from their husbands in order that the latter may carry on the fight. Some of them, along with their children, go starving. Many of those who suffer thus are Gujaratis, for Hindus and Muslims from Gujarat are in a majority [among the Indians] in this land.

¹ Vide “Statement of Transvaal Indian Case”, 16-7-1909.
² Dadabhai Naoroji
If this letter is published, the readers of the Gujarati Punch must ask themselves on this festival of Diwali what they propose to do for the Transvaal Indians. There will be a Diwali, or Id, or Pateti for them only when they return from the battle-field\(^1\) victorious.

Yours etc.,

MOHANDAS KARAMCHAND GANDHI

[From Gujarati]

Egypt-no Uddharak athawa Mustafa Kamel Pasha-nu Jivan Charitra tatha Bija Lekho

104. SPEECH AT EMERSON CLUB

[LONDON, October 8, 1909]

War with all its glorification of brute force is essentially a degrading thing. It demoralizes those who are trained for it. It brutalizes men of naturally gentle character. It outrages every beautiful canon of morality. Its path of glory is foul with the passions of lust, and red with the blood of murder. This is not the pathway to our goal. The grandest aid to development of strong, pure, beautiful character which is our aim, is the endurance of suffering. Self-restraint, unselfishness, patience, gentleness, these are the flowers which spring beneath the feet of those who accept, but refuse to impose, suffering, and the grim prisons of Johannesburg, Pretoria, Heidelberg and Volksrust are like the four gateways to this garden of God.

Indian Opinion, 12-2-1910

---

\(^1\) The original has a word meaning “army” which appears to be a misprint for another meaning “battle-field”

\(^2\) This is an extract from a report of Gandhiji’s speech on the “Ethics of Passive Resistance” delivered at the Club. It was reproduced in Indian Opinion from the Indian Review, November 1909. In a dispatch from its London correspondent, the Amrit Bazar Patrika, Calcutta, reported that the meeting was held on the premises of the Reform Club to accommodate the large audience.
105. DEPUTATION NOTES [–XV]

[After October 8, 1909]

This time I am in a position to give some more news, but I am afraid it is not very cheering. Lord Crewe has written to say that he has no further information to give “for the present”, and that something will be known after General Smuts has had a discussion with the other members of his Cabinet. There is no information as to what General Smuts will propose to the Cabinet. If the proposal follows Lord Crewe’s cable, that will mean our demand. If he proposes what is in his mind, that will mean the repeal of the Act and admission of a limited number of educated men as a matter of favour but on a permanent basis. If it is this latter proposal which he is thinking of presenting for consideration, we can be sure it will lead to nothing. It will be all right if he presents our demand. But this letter has a deeper significance which must be grasped by every Indian. It is this, that General Smuts wants to gain time by putting forward this excuse, so that in the interval he can break the spirit of the satyagrahis. He would like to concede our demand only if his efforts failed. The satyagrahis should understand this underlying motive of his and keep up the highest spirit. They cannot afford to keep silent or to show any weakness.

This reply of Lord Crewe’s proves that it is not in England that we shall find the means for the solution [of our problems]; we have it in our own hands. If we have failed to gain our demands so far, it is because we have not employed that means, our soul-force, in full measure.

It is not enough that people have gone to gaol. I have often said that we should have no mental reservations. We should place no limit on our self-sacrifice. Rather, we must be prepared to bear every hardship that we may encounter. If we do not, we shall lose the fight. One should not feel as though going to gaol once, or maybe ten times, was all that one could do. We ought to be ready to welcome any suffering, whether imprisonment or death. I hope, therefore, that all the satyagrahis will remain perfectly steadfast and fill the gaols. Every Indian must remember that all over India they are singing praises of the epic struggle in the Transvaal. Polak has been rousing India with his speeches. The newspapers are full of our struggle.
hope that Indians will bear in mind all this and not retreat even an inch—nor show weakness. In England, too, they say the same thing, that the Transvaal Indians have put up a most wonderful show, that they are men who will not accept defeat. Let it be remem-bered that they are fighting the battle for the whole of South Africa.

Lord Crewe's letter referred to above shows that the deputation can no longer continue to work merely in private. It is necessary now to come out in the open. We have, accordingly, requested Lord Crewe’s permission to place the entire matter before the public. That will be done when the permission is received. Thereafter, we shall place the facts before the members of the House of Commons, if they agree to give us a hearing. We shall have the matter discussed in newspapers and also hold such meetings as may be possible.

A very important question facing us is whether or not we should both pay a flying visit to India. On this point, our advisers are of the view that it will be the right thing to do. There are reasons to believe that it will be profitable to pay such a visit.

My own view is that it is in the Transvaal that our main work lies, and even there—in its gaols. There is but one consideration against this. Our coming here this time was an admission of weakness; [we came] in the hope that an early solution could be found. The very reasons which brought us here will justify our going to India. However, there are many other considerations. A visit to India will delay our return to South Africa. As I said above, the work in India will take up much time. We can leave for India after October 30. We shall need about a month there, and another for the journey. By that time, it will be December, and we can return from here at the end of that month. If there is no solution, even after all this, we shall be where we were. The simplest course, instead, appears to be to drop the idea of a visit to India. However, it is necessary that the suggestion which has been discussed here should be placed before everyone. Besides, this extension will involve some expenditure. Personally, I cannot express definite view. If I am asked to state my own view simply as a satyagrahi, I would say that we should immediately return to the Transvaal.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 6-11-1909

---

1 Vide “Letter to Under-Secretary for Colonies”, 8-10-1909
106. LONDON

[After October 8, 1909]

NATAL DEPUTATION

A special meeting of the [South Africa British Indian] Committee was called to meet the Natal deputation. It took place on Wednesday last and was attended by Lord Ampthill, Sir Raymond West, Mr. Thornton, Sir Muncherji Bhownaggree, Mr. Polak and Mr. Ritch. Mr. Anglia acquainted Sir Raymond with the whole position. Lord Ampthill asked for all the documents. He will go through them himself. After reading Lord Crewe’s reply, he felt that there was nothing more to be done.

Mr. Anglia has placed all the facts before the editor of the Daily Telegraph, London. Lord Crewe has replied that the matter is receiving the attention of both Lord Morley and himself. Even the fact that he has replied to say that he is thinking about the Natal problem shows that he has been influenced by [events in] the Transvaal. He is afraid lest Natal, too, should resort to satyagraha.

Mr. Amod Bhayat is returning by the same ship which will carry this letter. He thinks no more remains to be done here. Mr. Anglia, it appears, will be here as long as the Transvaal deputation remains. Probably Mr. Abdul Caadir will do the same.

“ETHICS OF PASSIVE RESISTANCE”

Mr. Gandhi gave a lecture under this title on Friday evening to members of the Union of Ethical Societies at Emerson Club. Miss Winterbottom took the chair on the occasion. Many Indians were present. They included Sir Muncherji, Mr. Pal, Mr. Parikh and others. Miss Joshi and Mrs. Dube had also turned up. The burden of Mr. Gandhi’s speech was that soul force is far superior to brute force, and that it is invincible. Afterwards, a number of questions were answered. The Transvaal problem was raised and everyone was moved by the tale of our sufferings. There was a speech by Mr. Pal, in which he argued that soul force should be backed by physical force. Mr. Gandhi replied that, in that case it would not deserve the name of soul

---

1 The original has “Lucknow”, an obvious misprint.
2 Vide “Speech at Emerson Club”, 8-10-1909
force. There were speeches by Mrs. Tedman and Mrs. Polak. Mr. Ritch also spoke.

SUFFRAGETTE FUNCTION

On the 7th there was a very big gathering of suffragettes in a large hall called Albert Hall. It was attended by hundreds of women. There were speeches by Mrs. Pankhurst and others. Enthusiasm ran so high that a sum of about £3,000 in cash was received on the spot in aid of the struggle. About four of them paid £250 each. In all, the women have collected £51,000 by now. Their journal has a weekly circulation of about 50,000. They appeared determined to fight till death. Leaving aside their use of physical force, they deserve to be emulated for their spirit, their enthusiasm and their intelligence. Their organisation is unrivalled by men. They have, it may be said, a huge army of volunteers. There is no limit to their resourcefulness. They go through extreme suffering. Many a woman has allowed herself to be reduced to poverty for the sake of franchise. Many have given up their jobs. This is no ordinary fight. It will be enough if the Indians follow their example. Only, we should avoid imitating them in their use of physical force. We may be sure that no good will come out of it.

MY HOPE

Mr. Amod Bhayat is returning with a full knowledge of all this. He has been convinced that the Transvaal campaign has been of benefit to Natal as well. He has also been able to see that even the people here get no justice by making petitions. Everyone knows that a petition carries no weight. I hope, therefore, that after returning there, Mr. Amod Bhayat will take to satyagraha. In any case, he has promised to help the satyagraha campaign in the Transvaal.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 6-11-1909
107. LETTER TO MANILAL GANDHI

[London,]

October 12, 1909

CHI. MANILAL,

The service you are rendering to Mr. West and others is the best study for you. He who does his duty is all the while studying. You say that you had to leave your studies; but it is not so. You are certainly studying when you are serving. It would be correct to say that you had to give up reading books. There is no harm in thus leaving studies. One can get academic education later on, one cannot say that one will get an opportunity of serving others later on. . . . Let this be inscribed in your heart that, since your mind is pure, you will not fall ill while serving others. And even if you fall ill, I will not worry. You and I, all of us, will achieve perfection only by being moulded in this manner. Learning to live a good life is in itself education. All else is useless.

Blessings from

MOHANDAS

[From Gujarati]

Gandhi-ji-na Patro

108. SPEECH AT HAMPSTEAD

[London,]

October 13, 1909

Mr. Gandhi said that the question of East and West presented a vast and complex problem. He had had 18 years’ experience of contact between East and West and had endeavoured to study the question, and he felt that he might give an audience such as the present one the results of his observations. As he thought of the subject,

1 The first part of the letter seems to have been omitted in Gandhi-ji-na Patro, the Gujarati collection from which it has been taken.

2 The place of writing given in the source is “Johannesburg” which is evidently wrong as Gandhi was, at the time, in England.

3 Some words have been omitted here.

4 Gandhi-ji spoke on “East and West” at a meeting held under the auspices of the Hampstead Peace and Arbitration Society at the Friends’ Meeting House. C. E. Maurice presided.
his heart sank within him. He would have to say many things which would seem repugnant to his audience, and use hard words. He would also have to speak against a system under which he had been brought up. He hoped they would bear with him if he hurt their feelings. He would have to break many idols which he and his countrymen had worshipped, and which his audience may have worshipped. He then referred to the lines in Kipling’s poem, that “East is East and West is West and never the twain shall meet”, and said he considered that doctrine to be a doctrine of despair, and inconsistent with the evolution of humanity. He felt it utterly impossible to accept a doctrine of that nature. Another English poet, Tennyson, had in his “Vision” clearly foretold the union between East and West and it was because he (the lecturer) believed in that vision that he had cast in his lot with the people of South Africa, who were living there in very great difficulties. It was because he thought it possible for the two peoples to live together in perfect equality that he found himself in South Africa. If he had believed in Kipling’s doctrine, he would never have lived there. There had been individual instances of English and Indian people living together under the same rule without a jarring note, and what was true of individuals could be made true of nations. To a certain extent it was true that there was no meeting place between civilizations. The barriers between the Japanese and the Europeans were daily vanishing, because the Japanese assimilated Western civilization. It seemed to him that the chief characteristic of modern civilization [was that it] worshipped the body more than the spirit, and gave everything for the glorifying of the body. Their railways, telegraphs and telephones, did they tend to help them forward to a moral elevation? When he cast his eyes upon India, what was represented there today under British rule? Modern civilization ruled India. What had it done? He hoped he would not shock his hearers when he said that civilization had done no good to India. There was there a network of railways and telegraphs and telephones; we had given them a Calcutta, a Madras, a Bombay, a Lahore and a Benares—these were symbols of slavery rather than of freedom. He noticed that these modern travelling facilities had reduced their holy places to unholy places. He could picture to himself Benares of old, before there was a mad rush of civilization, and he had seen the Benares of today with his own eyes, an unholy city. He saw the same thing here as in India. The mad activity had unhinged us and, although he was living under the system, it seemed to him desirable that he should speak to them in that strain. He knew it was impossible for the two peoples in India to live together until the British changed their ways. We had offended the religious susceptibilities of the Hindus by sport in their sacred places. Unless this mad rush was changed, a calamity must come. One way would be for them to adopt modern civilization; but far be it from him to say that they should ever do so. India would then be the football of the world, and the two nations would be flying at each other. India was not yet lost, but had been immersed in lethargy. There were many things which could not be understood, for which we must be patient; but one thing was certain, and that was that, so long as this mad rush lasted, with its glorification of the body, the soul within, which was imperishable, must languish.

India, 22-10-1909

109. LETTER TO LORD AMPTHILL

[London,]

October 14, 1909

MY LORD,

A cablegram has just been received from Johannesburg, which says:

Smuts tells newspapers he awaits Secretary State’s answer regarding his proposals.

My interpretation of this cable is that the proposals referred to in Lord Crewe’s letter to which I have sent a reply are Mr. Smuts’ original proposals, and that he is waiting to know whether, if those proposals are carried out, passive resistance will cease. There is no reply yet from Lord Crewe.¹ It is evident to me that, if Lord Crewe and Lord Morley were to do their duty, this is just the psychological moment. When Mr. Smuts made his statement to Reuter’s agent at Southampton before embarking for South Africa, he spoke light-heartedly and confidently, thinking that there was no fight left in the passive resisters. It is evident that he has been disillusioned on reaching Pretoria, and he, therefore, wants to know whether we here are prepared to advise acceptance of his proposals and cessation of passive resistance. Cessation, unless the theoretical right is granted, is impossible. Mr. Doke, in a letter to me, says that passive resisters have never been so strong as they were when his letter left South Africa.

Your Lordship’s obedient servant,

From a photostat of the handwritten office copy: S. N. 5125

¹ Gandhiji received a reply the next day; vide “Letter to Under Secretary for Colonies”, 19-10-1909.
MY DEAR HENRY.

I have your cable from Madras. I am sorry Mr. Doke’s book is not yet ready. I have just got two advance copies, but I suppose it is not necessary for me to send one out to you. As soon as the copies are ready, I shall ask Mr. Cooper to send 250 to Mr. Natesan.

I enclose herewith cutting from The Times reporting the Madras meeting¹. You will see also a cablegram from Pretoria. I do not know what it means. Surely, negotiations have gone on after Smuts’ departure. However, we have to work as if they have fallen through. The report of the Indian Immigration Commission is good at the present juncture. I think that when you are in Calcutta, an attempt should be made to have an All-India deputation to wait on Lord Minto². You may get Sir Charles Turner to join you, though I can well imagine your difficulty, but whether he does or not, there would be no difficulty in having the deputation, and a representative may travel from Madras, Bombay, Allahabad, Lahore, etc. I am writing with reference to your appointment as a delegate to the Congress and [the] Mahomedan Conference. They will be held, I suppose, about the same time, but [if] it is the same day, you will have to use your discretion whether you will go to the Mahomedan Conference or whether you will go to the Congress. Along passive resistance lines, it appears to me that the Mahomedan Conference will be the best. I take it, too, that you will go to Aligarh.

I am still creeping. I had thought that there would be a letter from Lord Crewe in reply to mine at once, but up to the time of dictating this (Thursday Morning) there is none, and until his authority for publishing the net result of the negotiations is received, I feel that nothing can be done. It is now problematical whether, even if a reply is received this week from him, I can finish the work of education before the 30th inst. As you will be seeing practically the whole of India—a privilege I have myself not yet been able to enjoy—I think I should jot down the definite conclusions to which I

¹ This was held on October 11.
² (1845-1914); Viceroy and Governor-General of India, 1905-10
The thing was brewing in my mind, but there was no certain clear light. The heart and brain became more active after I accepted the invitation of the Peace and Arbitration Society to speak to them on “East and West.” It came off last night. I think this meeting was a splendid success; they were earnest folk, but some insolent questions were put on the South African situation. You will be surprised to learn that even in Hampstead there were men enough to stand up for the tragedy in South Africa, and to talk all the claptrap about the Indian trader being a canker, and what not. A dear old lady got up and said that I had uttered disloyal sentiments and, just as we have to deal with idolaters in South Africa who would think of and cling to form and superficiality as in the case of finger-impressions, so had I last night in the Friends’ Meeting House. My main purpose was, in all the questions that were addressed to me, forgotten, and details were warmly taken up and discussed. The following are the conclusions:

1. There is no impassable barrier between East and West.
2. There is no such thing as Western or European civilization, but there is a modern civilization, which is purely material.
3. The people of Europe, before they were touched by modern civilization, had much in common with the people of the East; anyhow, the people of India and, even today, Europeans who are not touched by modern civilization are far better able to mix with the Indians than the offspring of that civilization.
4. It is not the British people who are ruling India, but it is modern civilization, through its railways, telegraphs, telephones, and almost every invention which has been claimed to be a triumph of civilization.
5. Bombay, Calcutta and the other chief cities of India are the real plague spots.
6. If British rule was replaced tomorrow by Indian rule based on modern methods, India would be no better, except that she would be able then to retain some of the money that is drained away to England, but, then, Indians would only become a second or fifth

1 In the office copy from the Sabarmati Sangrahalaya, two pages are missing here. These have been supplied from a handwritten copy in the Gokhale papers with the Servants of India Society, Poona and collated with the part of the letter given in M. K. Gandhi and the South African Indian Problem by Dr. P. J. Mehta.
(7) East and West can only and really meet when the West has thrown overboard modern civilization, almost in its entirety. They can also seemingly meet when East has also adopted modern civilization. But that meeting would be an armed truce, even as it is between, say, Germany and England, both of which nations are living in the Hall of Death in order to avoid being devoured, the one by the other.

(8) It is simply impertinence for any man or any body of men to begin or contemplate reform of the whole world. To attempt to do so by means of highly artificial and speedy locomotion is to attempt the impossible.

(9) Increase of material comforts, it may be generally laid down, does not in any way whatsoever conduce to moral growth.

(10) Medical science is the concentrated essence of Black Magic. Quackery is infinitely preferable to what passes for high medical skill.

(11) Hospitals are the instruments that the Devil has been using for his own purpose, in order to keep his hold on his kingdom. They perpetuate vice, misery and degradation, and real slavery.

(12) I was entirely off the track when I considered that I should receive a medical training. It would be sinful for me in any way whatsoever to take part in the abominations that go on in the hospitals.

If there were no hospitals for venereal diseases, or even for consumptives, we should have less consumption, and less sexual vice amongst us.

(13) India’s salvation consists in unlearning what she has learnt during the past fifty years.

The railways, telegraphs, hospitals, lawyers, doctors, and such like have all to go, and the so-called upper classes have to learn to live conscientiously and religiously and deliberately the simple peasant life, knowing it to be a life giving true happiness.

(14) Indians should wear no machine-made clothing, whether it comes out of European mills or Indian mills.

(15) England can help India to do this, and then she will have justified her hold of India. There seem to be many in England today who think likewise.

(16) There was true wisdom in the sages of old having so regulated society as to limit the material condition of the people: the rude plough of perhaps five thousand years ago is the plough of the husbandman today. Therein lies salvation. People live long, under such conditions, in comparative peace much greater than Europe has enjoyed after having taken up modern activity, and I feel that every enlightened man, certainly every Englishman, may, if he chooses, learn this truth and act according to it.

There is much more than I can write upon today, but the above is enough food for reflection. You will be able to check me when you find me to be wrong.

You will notice, too, that it is the true spirit of passive resistance that has brought me to the above almost definite conclusions. As a passive resister, I am unconcerned whether such a gigantic reformation, shall I call it, can be brought about among people who derive their satisfaction from the present mad rush. If I realize the truth of it, I should rejoice in following it, and, therefore, I could not wait until the whole body of people had commenced. All of us who think likewise have to take the necessary step; and the rest, if we are in the right, must follow. The theory is there: our practice will have to approach it as much as possible. Living in the midst of the rush, we may not be able to shake ourselves free from all taint. Every time I get into a railway car, use a motor-bus, I know that I am doing violence to my sense of what is right. I do not fear the logical result on that basis. The visiting of England is bad, and any communication between South Africa and India by means of Ocean’s grey-hounds is also bad, and so on. You and I can, and may, outgrow those things in our present bodies, but the chief thing is to put our theory right. You will be seeing there all sorts and conditions of men. I, therefore, feel that I should no longer withhold from you what I call the progressive step I have taken mentally. If you agree with me, it will be your duty to tell the revolutionaries and everybody else that the freedom they want, or they think they want, is not to be obtained by killing people or doing violence, but by setting themselves right, and by becoming and remaining truly Indian. Then the British rulers will be servants and not masters. They will be trustees and not tyrants, and they will live in perfect peace with the whole of the inhabitants of India. The future, therefore, lies not with the British race, but with the Indians themselves, and if they have sufficient self-abnegation and abstemiousness, they can make themselves free this very moment, and when we have arrived in India at the simplicity which is still ours largely and which was ours entirely until a few years ago, it will still be possible for the best Indians and the best Europeans to see one another throughout the length and breadth of India and act as the leaven. When there was no rapid locomotion, traders and preachers went on foot, from one end of the country to the other, braving all the dangers, not for pleasure, not for recreating their health, (though all that followed from their tramps,) but for the sake of humanity. Then were Benares and other places of pilgrimage holy cities, whereas today they are an abomination.

You will recollect you used to rate me for talking to my children in Gujarati. I now feel more and more convinced that I was absolutely right in refusing to talk to them in English. Fancy a Gujarati writing to another Gujarati in English, which as you would properly say, he mispronounces and writes ungrammatically. I should certainly never commit the ludicrous blunders in writing in Gujarati that I do in writing or speaking in English. I think that, when I speak in English to an Indian or a foreigner, I in a measure unlearn the language. If I want to learn it well and if I want to attune my ear to it, I can only do so by talking to an Englishman, and by listening to an Englishman speaking.

Now I think I have given you a terrible dose, I hope you will be able to digest it. It is very likely that you with your great imagination and sound common sense have perhaps, in your varied experience there, probably come to the conclusions independently of me. After all, they are not new but they have only now assumed such a concrete form and taken a violent possession of me.

I have just received the following cablegram from Johannesburg:

Smuts tells newspapers he awaits Secretary State’s answer regarding his proposals. London Committee continues for present.

This cablegram means that the question is being somewhat agitated in Johannesburg and that Smuts is no longer sanguine about smashing passive resistance. It shows, too, if Lord Crewe made a supreme effort, he could bring about a settlement. However, we can but fight on. So the London Committee continues. This does not alter the situation, and it eases Ritch’s position.

Poor Mrs. Ritch will have to undergo another and further operation. She may not even survive it. It will be a great relief to her if the living death turns into real death.

Later—Millie was here after the foregoing portion of this letter. was finished. As I considered it to be so important, I read it to her. This was followed by a fruitful discussion, which you can picture to yourself.

Mr. Ali Imam is still here. He leaves, I believe, on Monday.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

From the typewritten office copy: S. N. 5127, a photostat of the handwritten copy and M. K. Gandhi and the South African Indian Problem

111. DEPUTATION NOTES [–XVI]

[October 15, 1909]

The last week was rather bad. First, we saw a cable report in The Times that the talk about a settlement had no truth in it. Mr. Smuts [it said] had a talk with Lord Crewe, but the Government had no intention of conceding the Indian demand.

There was another private cable which reported that Mr. Smuts was awaiting Lord Crewe’s reply.

There was a reply from Lord Crewe today (Friday)\(^1\) in which he says that what General Smuts offered was what he had earlier suggested, namely, repeal of the Act and amendment [of the Immigrants’ Restriction Act] so as to permit the admission of selected educated Indians on a permanent basis. Lord Crewe states, moreover, that it was for us to decide whether we should carry on any public agitation here. He asks us to consider what effect such agitation would have on General Smuts.

That is the situation here. It needs rather careful consideration now as to what is best for us to do. If Mr. Smuts is really thinking of conceding our demands, a public agitation here will prove embarrassing to him. If not, such agitation would be the right course.

It is not easy to express any definite view immediately. Indifference to consequences is justified in pure satyagraha, but one must pause to think when dealing with a mixed lot of men, some strong and some weak. We have now to await the reactions of Lord Amthill and other gentlemen. Before this letter is published, some decisive step will have been taken here. The biggest issue involved in this is that concerning India. But, personally, I feel that as the struggle develops, the correct step will suggest itself at each stage. Meanwhile, everyone will need patience and courage and will have to go through extreme suffering."

\(^1\) October 15; vide “Letter to Under Secretary for Colonies”, 19-10-1909.

The one great man in Russia is Count Tolstoy. I had addressed a letter to him in connection with the struggle and other related matters. I quote below a paragraph from his reply:

"I have just received your most interesting letter, which has given me great pleasure. God help our dear brothers and co-workers in the Transvaal! That same struggle of the tender against the harsh, of meekness and love against pride and violence, is every year making itself more and more felt here among us also, especially in one of the very sharpest of the conflicts of the religious law with the worldly laws—in refusals of military service. Such refusals are becoming ever more and more frequent.

I greet you fraternally, and am glad to have intercourse with you.

This great man has now attained the age of 80. In Europe, at least, one will not find his equal in purity of character and godliness. He has been a soldier, has enjoyed authority over hundreds of thousands of men, has spent millions in enjoyment, and has known a life of luxury. He has no equal among European writers. In spite of all this, he has chosen to live like a fakir at present. He offers uncompromising opposition to oppressive laws in Russia and exhorts others to do the same. But he never employs physical force and forbids others to employ it. He relies entirely on spiritual force. Moreover, his books are read all over the world. We come across a number of men in this land who base their conduct on his principles. He places his trust in God alone. And so, on me at least, his words have had a highly cheering effect, and I hope that every Indian will welcome them and allow them to guide his conduct. It is a matter of deep satisfaction that we have the support of such a great and holy man. His letter shows us convincingly that soul-force—satya-graha—is our only resort. Deputations and the like are all vain efforts.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 13-11-1909

---

1 The Gujarati has “Mahabharat”, obviously a reference to the tribulations of the Pandavas.
3 This is quoted here from the English original signed by Tolstoy. Vide also Appendix “Tolstoy’s Letter to Gandhiji”.

VOL. 10 : 5 AUGUST, 1909 - 9 APRIL, 1910
112. LETTER TO “SOUTH AFRICA”

[LONDON,
Before October 16, 1909]

SIR,

Your Johannesburg correspondent, in his weekly letter published by you in the current issue of your journal, has done a serious injustice to the British Indian community in the Transvaal, by mis-stating facts in connection with the Nagappen case. Moreover, your correspondent has omitted to state in his letter, that many men besides British Indians who have read the evidence laid before the Commissioner, have refused to accept the Commissioner’s finding, and that Mr. Benson, who represented the British Indian Association at the inquiry, has exposed the weakness of the finding in a three-column letter published in the Transvaal Press. That letter still remains unanswered. And after all, what is Major Dixon’s finding? He does leave it an open question as to whether the deceased had two blankets or not. He admits that the deceased did not have rice supplied to him. It is very charitable on the part of your correspondent to suggest that, if no rice were supplied, water certainly was, and that amply. My countrymen, however, consider that even an ample supply of water is not a substitute for rice, nor has the Commissioner, as your correspondent suggested, found that poor Nagappen was healthier when in custody. Any layman, and I should imagine even a medical man, would consider, as certainly did Dr. Godfrey, that partial starvation and insufficiency of clothing, in the very rigorous winter on the high veldt of the Transvaal, apart from anything else, would be quite sufficient to induce pneumonia from which this poor passive resister died within six days after his

---

1 This appeared under the caption: “South Africa Again Corrected” along with the dispatch to which Gandhiji replied. Vide Appendix Dispatch in “south Africa”.

2 Major F. J. Dixon who had held the public inquiry into the case at Yokeskei River Prison Camp on July 19. A report of the evidence tendered was reproduced in Indian Opinion, 24-7-1909, and the Commissioner’s findings, in the issue of 14-8-1909.

3 Alex S. Benson had watched the proceedings and reported his observations in Indian Opinion, 24-7-1909. On August 14, he addressed to The Transvaal Leader a letter criticizing the facile acceptance of the Commissioner’s findings by a section of the Johannesburg Press, which was also published in Indian Opinion, 21-8-1909.

4 Dr. W. Godfrey had attended on Nagappen during his last illness and later certified that the primary cause of his death was acute double pneumonia and that it had been “accelerated by the conduct of the gaol officials, if all is true”.

THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
In spite of your correspondent, the Indian community and many other unbiassed Europeans\(^1\) in the Transvaal, indeed, throughout South Africa, will continue to believe that Nagappen died a martyr to duty, and that his death must lie upon the conscience of those who were in immediate charge of him whilst he was serving imprisonment.

Indian Opinion, 16-10-1909

113. LETTER TO MAGANLAL GANDHI

[LONDON,]

October 18, 1909

DEAR MR. MAGANLAL,

I have your post card of the 15th ultimo\(^2\). With regard to Mr. Budrea, I shall be obliged if you will kindly immediately forward the documents to him at his Dannhauser address. The documents should be sent by registered letter post. I am writing to Mr. Budrea also.\(^3\)

Yours sincerely,

From the typewritten office copy: S. N. 5132

114. LETTER TO BUDREA

[LONDON,]

October 18, 1909

DEAR SIR,

With reference to your letter of the 8th inst., the deposit receipt was on the 12th inst. forwarded by me to Mr. Maganlal Gandhi with a request to obtain your signature thereto, as I thought that you were in Durban. I have now written to him asking him to forward it to you. Immediately upon receipt thereof duly completed by you, I shall re-deposit it as requested.

Yours faithfully,

MR. BUDREA
C/O GURDEEN AHEER
DANHAUSER

From the typewritten office copy: S. N. 5133

---

\(^1\) Among these were Rev. J. J. Doke and Edward Dallow, whose letters to the Transvaal papers were reproduced in Indian opinion, 21-8-1909.

\(^2\) The original has “inst.”, which appears to be a slip.

\(^3\) Vide the following item.
115. LETTER TO UNDER SECRETARY FOR COLONIES

[LONDON,]
October 19, 1909

SIR,

I have the honour to acknowledge receipt of your letter\(^1\) of the 15th instant.

The letter leaves my colleague and me in a state of great uncertainty. The Earl of Crewe was pleased to tell Mr. Hajee Habib and me when we waited on His Lordship on the 16th ultimo that he agreed that the proposal submitted by me was reasonable, and that he would place it before Mr. Smuts for his acceptance. The letter under reply does not say whether the proposal was placed before Mr. Smuts and, if it was, what his decision was in respect of it. His Lordship will, I have no doubt, appreciate the fact that, in order not to prejudice the negotiations that have been carried on, we have remained, so far as the public are concerned, entirely inactive, and we should consider it our duty to do so, so long as the negotiations are carried on on the basis of the proposal submitted by me. The great and prolonged suffering British Indians in the Transvaal are undergoing can only end with the security of the theoretical right of British Indians of culture being attained in accordance with my submission. If, therefore, Mr. Smuts intends only to place his own original proposal made at the time of his departure for South Africa before the Transvaal Ministers and the Transvaal Parliament, it is respectfully submitted that, so far as British Indians are concerned, nothing is to be gained by a policy of inactivity. I feel sure that His Lordship will agree that we should know the exact position under the negotiations, in order that we may thereby guide our conduct and, so far as it lies within our power, facilitate them. May I, therefore, request fuller information on the subject of the negotiations at an early date?

\(^1\) This was in reply to Gandhiji’s letter of October 8 and ran as follows: “... the proposals referred to in the letter from this Department of the 4th instant as a possible basis of legislation with regard to the British Indian question in the Transvaal were those made by Mr. Smuts before his departure, not those made by you at the interview on the 16th ultimo.

“I am to add that the question of the action to be taken by you in connection with the controversy can only be one for your own decision. You will, however, no doubt bear in mind the effect which your proposed course may have on the attitude of the Transvaal Government and Parliament towards Mr. Smuts’ proposals, and will consider whether it is not preferable to await a declaration of their policy in the matter before taking further action.”
I may add that a cablegram received from Johannesburg states that to a newspaper reporter Mr. Smuts said that he was waiting for a reply from the Earl of Crewe before he made any public statement regarding his proposals on the question. This cablegram adds to our difficulty as to the course we should adopt, so long as we are uniformed as to the action which His Lordship proposed to take when the interview of the 16th ultimo was granted.

I have, etc.,

M. K. GANDHI

Colonial Office Records : 291/142; also, from a photostat of the typewritten office copy : S. N. 5136

116. LETTER TO LORD AMPTHILL

[LONDON,]
October 19, 1909

MY LORD,

I have to thank you very much for your letter of the 18th instant, and for your very kind and excellent advice.¹

I have now sent a letter to lord Crewe,² copy of which I enclose herewith, and which I think embodies all the points of your letter. I hope it will meet with your Lordship’s approval.

I remain, etc.,

From the typewritten office copy : S. N. 5137

¹ Lord Ampthill had written : “It was, of course, to be expected that the Colonial Office should wish you to remain quiet and it is difficult to judge how far their advice is disinterested or otherwise. They tell you that it is General Smuts’ own proposals which are under consideration but they do not tell you whether Lord Crewe has taken any steps to show the Transvaal Government that, from your point of view, these proposals are altogether inadequate. If I were in your position, I should point this out to the Colonial Office either by letter or by personal interview before I did anything else and say that, while you are naturally unwilling to embarrass any negotiations which are being made on your behalf, you require some assurance that your latest representations are not being ignored. I would tell them quite plainly, but, of course, in appropriately guarded language, that you cannot allow an unsatisfactory ‘compromise’ to be negotiated while you are kept out of the discussion and then to be told, when it is all over and you are obliged to protest, that you are ‘raising new questions’. I think that they have given you an opening for a representation of this sort which you will well know how to express in a tactful and diplomatic manner. It must be exasperating for you to be put off and kept waiting in this way, and I only hope that the Colonial Office is going straight and not trading on the patience and self-restraint of which you have given such conspicuous proof.”

² Vide the preceding item.
117. LONDON

[Before October 20, 1909]

NATAL DEPUTATION

So far as I can see, there is nothing for this deputation to do now. Mr. Anglia and Hajee Habib are on a brief visit to Paris. They are likely to return in a day or so.

ALI IMAM

Mr. Ali Imam has been mixing a great deal among all the Indians here. He had asked several Indians to tea today, on the eve of his departure. A good many of them attended. Mr. Ali Imam will leave for India on the 20th. He has promised to give every help to our cause from there. He has been appointed public prosecutor in Patna.

SUFFRAGETTES' COURAGE

I have written and spoken strongly in the past against the use of physical force by the suffragettes—women who are demanding votes. But we must show all honour to them, at any rate, for the courage they display and the suffering they go through. Some of them, very delicate women, were recently arrested and sentenced to imprisonment. They refused to take any food, so that those among them who were very weak were let off after being starved for a few days. The rest are still in gaol and refuse to take food; they are, therefore, being forcibly fed with the help of a tube put through the throat.

These women have created such a terror that no member of the Cabinet can attend any function in peace. The suffragettes’ spies follow every member wherever he goes and make a nuisance of themselves. They even pelt him with stones. A mere handful, the women have created a terror as though a great war was on.

Mr. Lloyd George is a member of the Cabinet. He addressed a meeting in Newcastle. But so great was the fear of the suffragettes that the strictest arrangements had to be made for maintaining order. Writing on it, The Times says:

In Mr. Lloyd George’s meeting were to be witnessed strong iron bars, mounted police and crowds. There was a time not very long ago when no tickets were required for admission to such meetings and when one or two constables sufficed to maintain order. But the suffragettes have changed all that. Wherever a member of the Cabinet addresses a meeting, the local authorities have to close the main traffic routes and requisition police and mounted guards in large numbers from neighbouring towns. Everyone who wants to attend the meeting has to show his ticket while he is yet one or two streets away from the venue, and he reaches it at last after passing through narrow lanes. If, on the way, anyone suspects him he may even be required to give his name. All this is a very expensive business.

Such is the women’s spirit. They do not allow themselves a moment’s rest. To the hundreds of thousands of women who oppose them, they merely say: “You do not know your interests. We shall fight for you. That you will not help makes no difference to us.” They have also written to the Government to say that, if it agreed to grant the franchise to women who were qualified for it, those who were in gaol would serve their terms of imprisonment quietly and would not even demand voting rights for themselves. Such brave women will never be defeated. It is obvious that they have no interest of their own to serve. They fear nothing—neither rough treatment nor monetary loss nor being called immodest by the people. There is no short-cut to rights in this world. These very women, by their disorderly behaviour, bring disgrace to a struggle so fine as theirs. Their misdeeds will recoil on themselves in the end. The people here yield to physical force, they worship it. Hence the women will certainly get the vote. But after that they will practise the same kind of tyranny that they are opposing now, so that the masses will remain where they are. If they had based their fight on pure satyagraha, they could have changed conditions all over England and the change would have had repercussions throughout the world. The use of physical force will ultimately lead to selfishness. Taking a warning from their example, we must learn to avoid the use of physical force, but emulate their capacity for suffering. We may also observe that the British will not concede any rights even to the women in their country without putting them to the test.

BLOW FOR A BLOW

I have come across two very beautiful poems in the Gujarati of Bombay. In one of them poet has, without meaning it, given a vivid

1 The original has “The heart will pay for the misdeeds of the hands”, a Gujarati saying.
The lamp not burning,
On what will the moth throw itself and be burnt?
Seeking to burn us,
You burn yourself first.
The union of soul and body,
The same in you as in me,
Unless you wound yourself,
Us you cannot hurt.
So soon as I owned myself your lover,
You stood declared my beloved;
A name I’ve bestowed on you,
And will cease only when I perish.
Such airs you give yourself today,
Your eyes stern and proud;
These your arrows
Will turn back upon you, myself unharmed.
You live, if I live; if I die,
Tell yourself you die too;
Can a tree exist without seed?
The fruit, whereon will it grow?
Where is the king if there are no subjects?
Would he rule over wood and stone?
Your being is wrapped up in mine
Aiming a blow at me,
You shall only hurt yourself.

—Diwano

This is a very interesting gazal. It is addressed by an Indian to an Englishman. “Your arrows will turn back upon you, myself unharmed.” This contains the divine law of satyagraha. So long as the victim does not resist, the aggressor will only injure himself. If we attempt to strike merely at the air, the hand will come down with a jerk. When force is employed only by one party, it will spend itself

---

1 Literally, the mad on 2 A poetic composition in the style of lyrics for want of resistance. That is the reason why every religion has held that, if all human beings were to become good, even the poisonous and predatory creatures would disappear from the world. This may be taken to be a scientific law. If so, it is all success for me so long as I refuse to meet force with force. The man who sought my life will, in the end, meet death himself. In the same way, “Where is the king if there are no subjects, would he rule over wood and stone” means that, if the subjects refuse to recognize the authority of the king, the latter will have nothing to do. The subjects may resort to satyagraha and tell him: “We shall not submit to your orders, no matter whether you imprison or kill us.” There has never been, and will never be, a king in this world who can rule by imprisoning a whole people. The king will lose the game, even if he imprisons only a few who defy him. If all defy him, he just cannot imprison there. The soul of the man who has embraced imprisonment continues its work till, in the end, others too defy [the king] in like manner. All the verses of the poem quoted above deserve careful thinking over.

“FAKIRS WE”

In the same issue, I find another poem—Fakirs We—which also, being quite interesting, I give here:

Fakirs we’ve made of ourselves
For the motherland’s sake;
We’ve kindled the flame of love
To burn us for India’s sake.
We have quit the idols we worshipped,
Flung our books in dust;
The precious begging bowl
We’ve taken up for India’s sake.
The angel’s words and the priest’s
We’ve put away from us,
Turned away from pleasures sweet as nectar
For draughts of bitterest poison.
The tomes of Vedas and Puranas
Down the stream we’ve let them float;
Little do we reck of God,
For India alone is all our care.
Through every vein of our being
   Is coursing a wild intoxication;
Why do you seek, you men of medicine,
   To cure us of that?
In soft living you spend your days,
   'Tis your way of life;
Ours, the bad habit,
   The burden of loyalty to bear.
Such is the strange gladness
   Of the madness in our drunken hearts;
'Tis for India
   And India alone that we live.

—Bulbul

This poem is certainly not as good as the first one, but the idea is good. The words are well arranged. Its fervent sentiment should appeal to a satyagrahi. Without it—without the voluntary poverty of the fakir that it speaks of—it is difficult to be a satyagrahi. One must kindle the flame of the Invisible for the service of India. Then alone shall we be able to discharge the debt we owe to India for having been born in it. When the words, “'Tis for India and for India alone that we live” proceed from the depth of our heart, God will hear us. He sees the heart. He cannot be taken in by words. This is a game to be played in right earnest. A mere actor has no place in it.

INDIAN LANGUAGES

Reading these Gujarati poems, one realizes that it will not be easy to express such thoughts in English words of equal sweetness; for the two words, “satyagraha” and “fakir”, will evoke no response in an Englishman’s heart. Why should we not cultivate a language that is so beautiful? India will be aroused when we touch all the Indian languages with the spirit of patriotism. Mr. Lloyd George, about whom I have already written, was born in Wales, a principality in Great Britain. It has a dialect of its own and Mr. Lloyd George is taking steps to ensure that Welsh children do not forget their language. How much more need is there for Indians to preserve their languages than

1 Literally, a singing bird, songthrush for the Welsh to preserve theirs, and how much more keen should we be?

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 13-11-1909

118. LETTER TO N. M. COOPER

[LONDON,]

October 21, 1909

DEAR MR. COOPER,

Will you kindly send Mr. Doke’s book as follows: 24 copies to Dr. Mehta, 14 Mogul Street, Rangoon, India; 250 copies to Messrs Natesan & Co., Booksellers, Madras, India.

250 copies to the Manager, [Inter]national Printing Press, Durban, Natal, South Africa. (Postal address, Box 182, Durban, Natal)

Yours faithfully,

N. M. COOPER, ESQ.

154, HIGH ROAD

ILFORD

ESSEX

From the typewritten office copy: S. N. 5140

119. LETTER TO PRIVATE SECRETARY TO LORD CREWE

[LONDON,]

October 22, 1909

SIR,

The following cablegram has just been received from Johannesburg:

Twenty-one arrested including Aswat; Thambi sent to prison for three months; Sorabji, Joshi, Medh ordered deported.

Mr. Aswat is a Mohammedan, and Acting President of the British Indian Association, and has now gone to gaol for the third time, and Mr. Thambi is Thambi Naidoo, one of the leaders of the Tamil community, and has now gone to gaol for the fifth or sixth time. The three others who are deported are, one a Parsee and the other two Hindoos, all cultured, educated British Indians, two of whom served as sergeants in the Stretcher Bearer Corps that was formed at the time of the Zulu Rebellion.¹

I have, etc.,

M. K. GANDHI

Colonial Office Records : 291/142; also, from a photostat of the typewritten office copy : S. N. 5141

120. LETTER TO H. S. L. POLAK

[LONDON,]

October 22, 1909

MY DEAR HENRY,

I am not going to write at length this week. You will see the copies of various correspondence which shows that I have still to wait.

Mrs. Ritch has to undergo another serious operation next week. Ritch is now practically fixed up here, possibly for good.

Mr. Doke’s book cannot still be delivered. Poor Cooper is at his wit’s end. His printer being in gaol,² the printer’s wife has not been able to keep her promise. Next week, I think, delivery will take place without fail.

I am sending you one of the booklets of Tolstoy, which you should read. I think it is very good.

Mr. Abdul Caadir leaves for South Africa tomorrow, so that now there will be only Mr. Anglia and Mr. Hajee Habib here.

I enclose herewith Mr. Phelp’s letter and a pamphlet addressed to Mr. Roosevelt.

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy : S. N. 5144

121. DEPUTATION NOTES [–XVII]

[October 22, 1909]

I have now got fed up. I think the reader, too, must have grown tired of reading uncertain news. There is no certain information yet from Lord Crewe and correspondence is going on. So long as he has not washed his hands of the matter entirely, it appears advisable not to give out anything to the public. That is also Lord Ampthill’s advice.

¹ In 1906; vide “Indian Stretcher-Bearer corps”, Before 19-7-1906.
² Vide “London”, 23-7-1909
Just now a cable has been received from Johannesburg, saying that 21 persons were tried and sentenced to three months. They include Mr. Aswat and Mr. Thambi Naidoo. Moreover, Mr. Sorabji, Mr. Joshi and Mr. Medh have been deported. I congratulate all these friends and pray to God to bestow on them the utmost strength of spirit. According to me, such strength is the only real deputation. It is strength which holds the real key. When I think of Mr. Aswat’s and Mr. Sorabji’s health, I even tremble a little, but take heart again because I know that gaol-going is the best course, whatever the state of one’s health.

At this juncture, I wish to see Mr. Dawad Mahomed in the Transvaal. Soldiers cannot afford to wait on their health. I am convinced that, even when in poor health, we are in duty bound to suffer imprisonment for the sake of the motherland. I think many Indians press Mr. Dawad Mahomed, out of their regard for him, that he should plunge himself into the fight only after he is restored to health. I would request him not to heed any such advice, and I would urge those who give such advice that they should not, in the interest of the community, hold back Mr. Dawad Mahomed even for an hour longer. The women who are fighting here go to gaol and give no thought to their health. Moreover, they take no food after going to gaol. Going to the front necessarily means risking one’s head. It is, therefore, my earnest request to everyone not to stop Mr. Dawad Mahomed; rather, people should turn out in their thousands, as on former occasions, to see him off to the Transvaal.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 20-11-1909

122. LETTER TO MANILAL GANDHI

[LONDON, October 22, 1909]

CHI. MANILAL,

Received your letter. I see that you have again begun to be worried about your education. Can you not give an answer to the question, “What class are you in?” Henceforward you may say that you are in Bapu’s class. Why does the idea of study haunt you again and again? If you think of study for earning your livelihood, it is not proper; for God gives food to all. You can get enough to eat even by doing manual labour. Moreover, when we want to die in Phoenix or in some similar mission, why should there be any thought of earning at all? If you want to study for the sake of service to the country, why, you are already doing so. If you want to study in order to have self-knowledge, you have only to learn to be good. Everyone says you are a good person. Only one thing remains. You may want to study in order to be able to do more work. There is no need to hurry about it. Do whatever you can in Phoenix. We shall see to it later on. Please give up all worry if you are sure that I am taking all the necessary care of you.

1 Vide “Letter to Private Secretary to Lord Crewe”, 22-10-1909.

You gave a good reply to Dr. Nanji.
What more shall I write?
I want you to shed all fear. Do have faith in me.

_Blessings from_

MOHANDAS

From the Gujarati original in Gandhiji’s hand: C. W. 91 Courtesy: Sushila-behn Gandhi

123. LONDON

[Before October 23, 1909]

NATAL DEPUTATION

Mr. Abdul Caadir is to leave\(^1\) by the ship which will carry this letter. Mr. Anglia will then be the only one left. He and Mr. Hajee Habib have returned from Paris.

ALI IMAM

Speaking on Sunday at a meeting of the Indian Social Union, Mr. Ali Imam referred to the need for Hindu-Muslim unity. There was no reason [he said] why the two [communities] should have any differences. Muslims and Hindus will both mix with the dust of India. There should be a mutual give-and-take and readiness on the part of both to give in on minor points. India must get _swarajya_ and can get it through [the goodwill of] the British. This is the substance of what he said. He left for India on Wednesday. About 15 Indians,\(^1\)

---

\(^1\) He was to sail on October 23; _vide_ “Letter to H. S. L. Polak”, 22-10-1909

186 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
including Mr. Parikh, Mr. Banerjea, Dr. Abdool Majid and Mr. Bose, were present to give him a send-off. Mr. Ali Imam repeated at the moment of departure that he would exert himself to the utmost about South Africa. Mr. Polak’s sister was also present at the station. Mr. Ali Imam promised to help Polak in every way. Mr. Abdool Aziz Peshawari also left with him.

CHHOTALAL PAREKH

Mr. Chhotalal Ishvarlal Parekh is the first manager of the first Indian bank here. The bank was established in the wake of the swadeshi movement. Its capital is mostly Indian. A farewell party was held in his honour in recognition of his services in placing the bank on a sound footing, and with the object of giving encouragement to the swadeshi movement. After two years of service, Mr. Parekh is leaving for Bombay. The function was attended by about 50 people. Sir Muncherji was in the chair. Tea was followed by a speech from him, in which he spoke of the bank and of Mr. Parekh’s ability. Mr. Parekh was then presented with a silver tea-set. Offering his thanks in reply, he said that India was not new to the profession of banking. Judging from his experience [he said], the bank was sure to make progress. He had encountered no difficulties in England.

Dr. Abdool Majid and Mr. Gandhi also spoke a few words.

MRS. RITCH

I feel sorry to write that Mrs. Ritch’s complaint has not yet been cured and that she will have to undergo another operation. It will be a serious one this time, but Mrs. Ritch has ample courage. As for Mr. Ritch, he is buried under the heavy expenditure on account of her treatment.

SUFFRAGETTES

The women continue to cause great excitement. The newspapers here discuss the question every day. The women were advised by Mr. Churchill to desist from physical attacks, and that has provoked them all the more. Mr. Churchill was to address a meeting, which the suffragettes sought to break up. They openly say that they can secure no justice except by defiance of authority. They have resolved, therefore, to continue to make physical attacks, break up ministers’ meetings and harass them in other ways. Their leaders brave extreme suffering, undaunted by any fear of physical harm. Mrs. Pankhurst, their chief, has gone to America to rouse the women there.

FUTILITY OF BRUTE FORCE

There was a famous man in Spain, Ferrer by name, who worked to spread education among the people. He was, besides, a strong opponent of the Roman Catholics. An atheist, he was an enemy of the State. It appears that he was behind the riot which broke out some time ago in one of the districts of Spain. He was accordingly court-martialled and ordered to be shot. The order was immediately carried out. This has created a stir among a large number of whites in Europe. They assert that Ferrer was not properly tried, that injustice was done to him. It had not been proved [they argue] that he had a hand in the riot. Meetings were held at several places to denounce the Spanish Government. Excitement ran so high among the people of Paris that it appeared as though there would be a big riot. One constable even lost his life.

Here, too, a big open-air meeting was held. People attacked the office of the Spanish Ambassador, but the building was saved because of the strict police arrangements.

Some whites argue that people elsewhere in Europe should not thus interfere in Spain’s domestic affairs. They have no right to do so.

This leads me to think that Ferrer having been shot dead, his comrades want to avenge his death. That will increase mutual hatred. It is now being rumoured that the King of Spain will be killed. What will be the result? It does not seem likely to benefit anyone. It is beyond doubt that Ferrer himself approved of violence. Because he has lost his life, revolutionaries in Europe have given way to a frenzy of excitement, abandoning all reason. There is no concern for justice in all this. “Kill, kill”, that is all they want. If this is the way things go on, no one’s life will be safe in Europe. Emperors and big officers are not safe even today. Since they too are votaries of brute force, the fashion they have set will spread as days pass. Some Indians have been thinking of introducing these methods in India. I think Ferrer’s case should serve as a warning to them.

[From Gujarati]

_Indian Opinion_, 20-11-1909
It is in a way a remarkable thing that the Indian communities in England observe their respective festivals. To be sure, it need not be so very remarkable, but we have been reduced to such a state of degradation that we forget to celebrate our festivals in a country like England. How can we claim, so long as this state of affairs continues, that we are ripe for nationhood? We shall also not be justified in condemning the rulers as being responsible for it. In this matter the fault is obviously ours. It is, therefore, a good thing that the different [Indian] communities have started celebrating their respective festivals.

It was the Parsis who made a beginning. They have been celebrating Pateti for many years now. The Muslims too celebrate Id. The Hindus started two years ago. All the communities join in these celebrations, more or less. That is as it should be. It is certainly necessary for us all to be familiar with one another’s festivals.

The Hindus here arranged a subscription dinner on the Vijaya Dashami\(^1\) day\(^2\). Non-Hindus were invited as guests. The rest took tickets of 4/- each. The dinner was cooked by volunteers from among Indian students of medicine and law. One of them was a very active fellow. He has struggled against odds in order to become a barrister. The same volunteers waited at the table. It cannot be claimed that the arrangements were perfect. The function started behind time. Those in charge of the service also did not know their job well. All the same, considering that this was a new experience, the function went off satisfactorily.

The gathering was entertained by Mr. Hussain Dawad with some songs about gaol life which were set to music. Mr. Gandhi was requested to preside. Vijaya Dashami recalls the war between Rama and Ravana. Mr. Gandhi pointed out in his speech that as a historical personage Shri Ramachandra could be honoured by every Indian.

---

1. The 10th day of Ashvin, on which Lord Rama triumphed over Ravana. The king of Lanka. The day is celebrated by Hindus to mark the triumph of good over evil.
2. This fell on October 24.
Everyone, whether Hindu, Muslim or Parsi, should be proud of belonging to a country which produced a man like Shri Ramachandra. To the extent that he was a great Indian, he should be honoured by every Indian. For the Hindus, he is a god. If India again produced a Ramachandra, a Sita, a Lakshmana and a Bharata, she would attain prosperity in no time. It should be remembered, of course, that before Ramachandra qualified for public service, he suffered exile in the forest for 12 years. Sita went through extreme suffering and Lakshmana lived without sleep all those years and observed celibacy. When Indians learn to live in that manner, they can from that instant count themselves as free men. India has no other way of achieving happiness for herself.

Mr. Hajee Habib proposed a toast to India, and was supported by Mr. Chattopadhyay. Mr. Savarkar delivered a spirited speech on the great excellence of the Ramayana and said that every Indian should realize the significance of the fact that Vijaya Dashami is preceded by Navratri (Roza). The function was attended by about 70 Indians.

LALAJI’S CASE

Lala Lajpatrai had sued The Daily Express here for defamation for making certain allegations against him. Lalaji has been awarded £50 and costs. Some of the judge’s remarks in this case show that, in a political case, it is extremely difficult to get justice from the court. The judge held that, since Lalaji had been banished by a man like Lord Morley, there must be some reason. The remark was altogether uncalled for. He made it, moreover, even though he had no evidence before him on the point, his only object being to mislead the jury by casting aspersions on Lalaji.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 27-11-1909

1 The first nine days of Ashvin usually observed with a fast to render oneself worthy of Goddess Durga’s grace
125. LETTER TO PRIVATE SECRETARY TO LORD CREWE

[LONDON,]
October 26, 1909

SIR,

The following cablegram has just been received from Johannesburg:

Pretoria Indians charged section 39 Town Regulations 1899 residing town. Case 1st November. Sorabji, Medh returned sent to prison for six months.

The first part of the cablegram shows that an old Act that has never been enforced against British Indians is now being revived with a view to remove British Indians from the town of Pretoria to a Location. The latter part shows that Messrs Sorabji and Medh, who according to my letter of the 22nd instant were deported, have been sent to prison for six months. Mr. Sorabji has now gone to gaol, I believe, for the fifth time, and Mr. Medh for the fourth time.²

I have, etc.,

Colonial Office Records : 291/142; also, from a photostat of the typewritten office copy : S. N. 5145

1 Vide “Letter to Private Secretary to Lord Crewe”, 22-10-1909.
2 Replying to this on November 4, the Colonial Office informed Gandhiji that it was in communication with the Transvaal Government on the subject. The latter was asked whether Gandhiji’s statements were correct.

126. LETTER TO PRIVATE SECRETARY TO LORD CREWE

[LONDON,]
October 26, 1909

SIR,

The following cablegram has been received from Madras:

Excellent meetings Madura, Tinnevelly, Palamcotta, Trichinopoly, Salem, Masulipatam, Bellary, Penukonda, also Madras Moslem League. Over dozen District Congress Committees condemning action Transvaal, urging immediate intervention stoppage recruiting. Profound indignation everywhere.

The recruiting mentioned in the cablegram refers to the recruiting of Indian labour for Natal.

I have, etc.,

M. K. GANDHI

Colonial Office Records : 291/142; also, from a photostat of the typewritten office copy : S. N. 5147
127. LETTER TO LORD AMPTHILL

[LONDON,]
October 28, 1909

MY LORD,

I beg to enclose herewith copy of a letter to the Private Secretary to Lord Crewe with reference to meetings held all over the Presidency of Madras.¹

I may also add that cablegrams have been received from Johannes-burg saying that active operations have commenced against passive resisters again in the Transvaal. Twenty-one have been arrested and imprisoned for three months, including the Acting Chairman of the British Indian Association. Three educated Indians were deported, two of whom have returned and have been arrested and sentenced to six months’ imprisonment.²

I remain etc.,

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S. N. 5148

128. LETTER TO LORD AMPTHILL

[LONDON,]
October 29, 1909

MY LORD,

I have received a cablegram as follows:

Committee advises delegates return Africa if work finished London.

This is in reply to my letter¹ which reads as follows (writing on the 8th instant to Mr. Kallenbach, a German friend, who together with Mr. Doke, looks after the matters connected with the struggle there):

This letter will be in your hands on Thursday. My programme now is that we should leave here on the 30th of this month. There is every hope of our being able to finish off the work by that time. If we do,

¹ Vide the preceding item.
² Acknowledging this letter on November 1, Lord Ampthill wrote: “I am very much obliged to you for the news you have sent me, as I should otherwise be in ignorance of what is happening both in India and in South Africa, seeing that the boycott of our cause by the Press is now complete. I am distressed at hearing that there is no relaxation of the active operations against ‘passive resisters’ in the Transvaal”.
³ The original letter is not available.
then comes the question about India. This will be in your hands two days before the proposed date for departure. Unless you hear something from me to the contrary, or unless the situation has developed otherwise, will you please cable what the intention of the Committee is. Next week I may have to cable myself asking for full instructions, but if I do not, a cable from you on receipt hereof may be necessary. The Indian tour means two months, one month for the voyage there and back here, and one month in India—it may mean even more. As a passive resister I feel that the Indian tour, as indeed this tour, is useless, but thinking from the standpoint of non-passive resisters, just as a few months have been given to London, two more may be added to finish off India. There will be, then, a question of funds also, and funds will have to be cabled to me.

Whether the Committee has taken a purely passive-resistance view, or whether it is owing to the want of funds, or both, it seems that, under the circumstances, we should abandon—for the time being at least—the Indian visit. The matter is further complicated by a cable from Mr. Polak, who cables today from India as follows:

Very strongly advise you to come.

But on the whole, I feel that, no matter at what stage the struggle stands, we shall leave definitely on the 13th November for South Africa, and challenge arrest on the Transvaal border.

Lord Crewe’s reply has not yet been received. I do not know what this means, but if it comes too late for public action whilst we are here, I think it should then be carried on by the Committee.¹ Mr. Ritch’s opinion coincides with this view.

I remain, etc.,

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy : S. N. 5150

¹ Acknowledging this letter, Lord Ampthill agreed with this view.
129. LETTER TO AYLMER MAUDE

[LONDON,]
October 29, 1909

DEAR SIR,

I wrote¹ to you last week in reply to your kind note, and as I am anxiously awaiting an appointment from you, I take the liberty of reminding you again. I wonder if my letter has miscarried.

Among the things appertaining to passive resistance that I wish to discuss with you, I would appreciate your advice as to whom I should approach for the publication of Tolstoy’s “Letter to a Hindoo”² which, I presume, you read at Tolstoy’s when you were with him in Russia last month. I offered it to the Daily News for publication, but Mr. Gardiner has sent a message that it is too long for his columns.

I remain,
Yours faithfully,
M. K. GANDHI

AYLMER MAUDE ESQ.³
GREAT BADDOW
CHELMSFORD

From a photostat of the original in Gandhiji’s hand : C. W. 4438

130. LETTER TO H. S. L. POLAK

[LONDON,]
October 29, 1909

MY DEAR HENRY.

At last Mr. Doke’s books are ready. I enclose herewith a list of complimentary copies sent to the newspapers in India. If there are any newspapers left out which, in your opinion, should get complimentary copies, please take them from the parcel that will be received by Natesan, not, I fear, by the mail that takes this letter but by the following mail. I have had great difficulty in getting the copies. Ritch and I have come to the conclusion that, apart from the newspapers, no public men should receive complimentary copies. None have therefore been sent, but if you think that any should be sent on your side, you should consult Dr. Mehta and then distribute. Dr. Mehta has bought 25 copies for such distribution. You may either get some of these or, in order that the same person may not get two copies, after having learnt from him the names of those who may receive his copies, you will be able to get them from Natesan. I take it you have come to some arrangement with Natesan so that we may receive cash without delay. 85 complimentary copies have been distributed here. Of these 81 are to newspapermen. Will you please arrange for cuttings containing the reviews to be sent to Mr. Doke.

¹ This letter is not available.
² Vide “Letter to Leo Tolstoy”, 1-10-1909.
³ Biographer of Tolstoy who, in collaboration with his Russian wife, translated most of his works into English.

I have your two cablegrams, one informing me of the various meetings in the Madras Presidency and of your proposed departure for Rangoon. It is wonderful how Madras has come to the fore on this question. The people there seem to be so practical. They either do a thing thoroughly or do not do it at all. I am glad you will be seeing Dr. Mehta almost immediately on his arrival. I hope that each of you will be pleased with the other.

There is no reply yet from Crewe at the time of dictating this (Thursday evening). Your last letter (I mean the long one, which you evidently dictated) was very interesting and the whole of your family have read it. Of Sally and Maud and other members of your family we shall talk when we meet. Although Maud had left me, we meet almost every-day, and so also with Sally. For some time, I have become emboldened, and have been taking fruit luncheon at the hotel in the sitting-room just as we used to in Johannesburg, and Sally joins us. Twice a week Millie also joins us. Simmonds, of course, is there, and Myron J. Phel very often. He insists on bringing his own contribution. Ritch also drops in. The rest you may picture to yourself. On Sunday last, I presided at the Dussera Festival Dinner.\(^1\) It was given practically by the extremist Committee. Nearly seventy Indians came. I accepted the proposal unhesitatingly so that I might speak to those who might assemble there on the uselessness of violence for securing reforms. This I did. My terms were that no controversial politics were to be touched upon, and these were fully carried out. I drew the 1 It appears this letter was dispatched the next day, i.e., Friday, October 29.

---

moral that I wished to point out from the Ramayana. The Dussera Festival is a celebration of the victory of Rama over Ravana, i.e., of Truth over falsehood. I give you this information to enable you to see how I have been utilizing my time here. I have endeavoured to come in contact with as many Indians as I could. The programme still remains the same. I hope to leave on the 13th November, unless Lord Crewe unduly delays his reply, or unless something very urgent happens here necessitating our presence. The proposal about an Indian visit has been entirely abandoned. I am addressing a meeting of the Indian Social Union¹ on Saturday. There is another meeting of Indian students on Tuesday,² and a third, on Sunday week, of the Indian Majlis at Cambridge.³

Mrs. Ritch undergoes a somewhat dangerous operation on Saturday. The invitation to send a message to the Congress is rather an awkward thing. However, I shall try to write out something. Probably, you will have a copy of my letter⁴ with this.

I see that you have been collecting well in Madras. It is necessary to enquire how the moneys collected are disbursed. Who keeps charge of these moneys? As the struggle is to be a prolonged one, we are bound to support the families of those who might be in gaol. The question has arisen already, so that, if these funds or part of them can be sent for the support of the families, it will be highly satisfactory. A gentleman.⁵ to have subscriptions from others also of the same nature. I hope that there will be no difficulty on your side. Are any men specially appointed to look after the men who are deported? If there are, have you any names? All this information should be published and letters from those who are so helped may also be sent.

After you have finished your tours, so far as I can say at present, you will be staying there until the struggle has ended. If so, I think it will be highly desirable for you to take Hindi or Gujarati lessons. As you will be doing steady Committee work, there may be no difficulty in your having some time.

I have your cablegram saying you strongly advise me to come

---
² Vide “Speech at Meeting of Indians”, 2-11-1909.
³ No report of the speech made on this occasion is available.
⁵ One line is cut off here. to India. I have another cablegram from Johannesburg saying that, if the work was finished here, we should return to the Transvaal. I therefore think that it is highly necessary that I should go to the Transvaal. I feel that I have over-stayed my time here. You should therefore do the best you can under the circumstances. I know there are obvious advantages in our paying a visit to India, but perhaps it is as well that we should not do so just now.

From the typewritten office copy : S. N. 5151

131. DEPUTATION NOTES [–XVIII]
[October 29, 1909]

NOTE ON DEPUTATION

Still there is no final reply from Lord Crewe. Meanwhile, there has been a cable\(^1\) from Johannesburg asking the deputation to return if its work in England is over. There was a cablegram from Madras, at the same time, saying that it was very necessary for us to go to India.
Sir Muncherji is also very keen that we should proceed to India. I am convinced, however, that the right course will be not to go to India.
According to the present arrangements, therefore, we plan to leave here on November 13. If no final reply is received from Lord Crewe, we are thinking of leaving without making any moves in public.
There are only three things to be done by way of public agitation.
They are, a public statement of the history of our [problem], calling a meeting of all clergymen through the Rev. Meyer and, if practicable, aquainting members of the House of Commons with the facts of the case. Out of these, I think we shall carry out the programme which requires the Rev. Meyer’s services. The history may be given, if necessary, after our departure, and a meeting of the members of the House of Commons may also be called after we leave, if that is possible.

A meeting of Indians is to be held on Saturday, since it is felt that Indians should be fully acquainted with the facts. I am to speak there. Another meeting will be held on Tuesday, to explain what steps Indians should take. A third meeting will be held in Cambridge.
These are the steps as at present planned.

But we may be sure that nothing will avail us so long as we do not put forth all our strength. I must point out again and again that there is no other strength. I was glad that Mr. Sorabji and Mr. Medh returned. I congratulate them. Every Indian should emulate these brave Indians. Mr. Sorabji laid the foundation of the second phase of the struggle and it appears as though it will be brought to a successful issue through him. Let the future be what it may, Indians must realize that, in a tyrannical State, honest citizens have their true home in gaol.

\(^1\) It was received on October 29; vide “Letter to Lord Ampthill”, 29-10-1909.

IN AID OF SATYAGRAHIS

An Indian who wants to be known as “A Servant of India” has decided to give Rs. 50/- every month in aid of the poor for the duration of the struggle, and has already handed over a cheque of £3 as the first instalment. It will be good if other Indians too help in this way. I think it is likely that they will.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 27-11-1909

132. LETTER TO G. A. NATESAN

[LONDON, After October 29, 1909]

DEAR SIR,

You have cabled me for a message to the forthcoming Congress. I do not know that I am at all competent to send any message. Simple courtesy, however, demands that I should say something in reply to your cable. At the present moment, I am unable to think of anything but the task immediately before me, namely, the struggle that is going on in the Transvaal. I hope our countrymen throughout India realise that it is national in its aim in that it has been undertaken to save India’s honour. I may be wrong, but I have not hesitated publicly to remark that it is the greatest struggle of modern times, because it is the purest as well in its goal as in its methods. Our countrymen in the Transvaal are fighting for the right of cultured Indians to enter the Transvaal in common with Europeans. In this the fighters have no

---

1 This was published in the December issue of Indian Review. Evidently, Gandhiji had simultaneously sent a copy to Indian Opinion which published it under the heading: “Message to Indian National Congress”. Vide also “Letter to H. S. L. Polak”.29-10-1909.
personal interest to serve, nor is there any material gain to accrue to anybody after the above mentioned right (which has, for the first time in Colonial Legislation, been taken away) is restored. The sons of Hindustan, who are in the Transvaal, are showing that they are capable of fighting for an ideal pure and simple. The methods adopted in order to secure relief are also equally pure and equally simple.
Violence in any shape or form is entirely eschewed. They believe that self-suffering is the only true and effective means to procure lasting reforms. They endeavour to meet and conquer hatred by love.
They oppose the brute or physical force by soul-force. They hold that loyalty to an earthly Sovereign or an earthly constitution is subordinate to loyalty to God and His constitution. In interpreting God’s constitution through their conscience, they admit that they may possibly be wrong. Hence, in resisting or disregarding those man-made laws which they consider to be inconsistent with the eternal laws of God, they accept with resignation the penalties provided by the former, and trust to the working of time and to the best in human nature to make good their position. If they are wrong, they alone suffer, and the established order of things continues. In the process, over 2,500 Indians, or nearly one-half of the resident Indian population, or one-fifth of the possible Indian population of the Transvaal, have suffered imprisonment, carrying with it terrible hardships. Some of them have gone to gaol again and again. Many families have been impoverished. Several merchants have accepted privation rather than surrender their manhood. Incidentally, the Hindu-Mahomedan problem has been solved in South Africa. We rea-

I venture to suggest that a struggle such as this is worthy of occupying the best, if not, indeed, the exclusive attention of the Congress. If it be not impertinent, I would like to distinguish between this and the other items on the programme of the Congress. The opposition to the laws or the policy with which the other items deal does not involve any material suffering; the Congress activity consists in a mental attitude without corresponding action. In the Transvaal case, the law and the policy it enunciates being wrong, we disregard it, and therefore consciously and deliberately suffer material and physical injury; action follows and corresponds to our mental attitude. If the view here submitted be correct, it will be allowed that, in asking for the best place in the Congress programme for the Transvaal question, I have not been un-reasonable. May I also suggest that, in pondering over and concentrating our attention upon passive resistance such as has been described above, we would perchance find out that for the many ills we suffer from in India passive resistance is an infallible panacea. It is worthy of careful study, and I am sure it will be found that it is the only weapon that is suited to the genius of our people and our land, which is the nursery of the most ancient religions and has very little to learn from modern civilization—a civilization based on violence of the blackest type, largely a negation of the Divine in man, and which is rushing headlong to its own ruin.

Indian Opinion, 27-11-1909

133. LETTER TO LORD AMPTHILL

[LONDON, October 30, 1909]

MY LORD,

I have for some time past been wishing to place before Your Lord-ship the result of my observations made here during my brief stay on the nationalist movement among my countrymen.

If you will permit me to say so, I would like to say that I have been much struck by Your Lordship’s candour, sincerity and honesty of which one notices nowadays such an absence among our great public men. I have noticed too that your imperialism does not blind you to matters of obvious justice and that your love of India is genuine and great. All this coupled with my desire to withhold nothing from Your Lordship regarding my own activity about Indian matters as they may have a direct or an indirect bearing on the struggle in the Transvaal, emboldens if it does not require me to

---

1 Though the draft does not carry the addressee’s name, it is clear from the contents that the letter was addressed to Lord Ampthill. Acknowledging it on November 1, he wrote to Gandhiji: “...although I am not yet prepared to make any comment, I hasten to thank you for the expression of your views of which I fully appreciate the spirit and the candour. I must, however, confess that I do not fully understand your arguments and that I am in doubt as to the conclusions at which you have arrived. I should like to talk the matter over with you and I will ask you to come and see me (as I am now in London) as soon as I can see my way to a free moment.”

2 The original bears no date. This is derived from Lord Ampthill’s acknowledgement.
inform you of what I have seen.

I have made it a point to see Indians here of every shade of opinion. Opposed as I am to violence in any shape or form, I have endeavoured specially to come into contact with the so-called extremists who may be better described as the party of violence. This I have done in order if possible to convince them of the error of their ways. I have noticed that some of the members of this party are earnest spirits, possessing a high degree of morality, great intellectual ability and lofty self-sacrifice. They wield an undoubted influence on the young Indians here. They are certainly unsparing in their efforts to impress upon the latter their convictions. One of them came to me with a view to convince me that I was wrong in my methods and that nothing but the use of violence, covert or open or both, was likely to bring about redress of the wrongs they consider they suffer.

An awakening of the national consciousness is unmistakable. But among the majority it is in a crude shape and there is not a corresponding spirit of self-sacrifice. Everywhere I have noticed impatience of British rule. In some cases the hatred of the whole race is virulent. In almost all cases distrust of British statesmen is writ large on their minds. They (the statesmen) are supposed to do nothing unselfishly. Those who are against violence are so only for the time being. They do not disapprove of it. But they are too cowardly or too selfish to avow their opinions publicly. Some consider that the time for violence is not yet. I have practically met no one who believes that India can ever become free without resort to violence.

I believe that repression will be unavailing. At the same time, I feel that the British rulers will not give liberally and in time. The British people appear to me to be obsessed by commercial selfishness. The fault is not of men out of the system and the system is represented by the present civilization which has produced its blasting effect as well on the people here as on India. India suffers additionally only in so far as it is exploited in the interest of foreign capitalists. The true remedy lies, in my humble opinion, in England discarding modern civilization which is en-souled by this spirit of selfishness and materialism, is vain and purpose-less and is a negation of the spirit of Christianity. But this is a large order. It may then be just possible that the British rulers in India may at least do as the Indians do and not impose upon them the modern civilization. Railways, machinery and corresponding increase of indulgent habits are the true badges of slavery of the Indian people as they are of Europeans. I, therefore, have no quarrel with the rulers. I have every quarrel with their methods. I no longer believe as I used to in Lord Macaulay as a benefactor through his minute on education. And I do think that a great deal too much is being made of pax Britannica. To me the rise of the cities like Calcutta and Bombay is a matter for sorrow rather than congratulation. India has lost in having broken up a part of her village system. Holding these views, I share the national spirit but I totally dissent from the methods whether of the extremists or of the moderates. For either party relies ultimately on violence. Violent methods must mean acceptance of modern civilization and therefore of the same ruinous competition we notice here and consequent destruction of true morality. I should be uninterested in the fact as to who rules. I should expect rulers to rule according to my wish otherwise I cease to help them to rule me. I become a passive resister against them. Passive resistance is soul-force exerted against physical force. In other words love conquering hatred.

I do not know how far I have made myself understood and I do not know how far I carry you with me in my reasoning. But I have put the case in the above manner before my countrymen. My purpose in writing to Your Lordship is twofold. The first is to tell Your Lordship that, whenever I can get the time, I would like to take my humble share in national regeneration and the second is either to secure Your Lordship’s cooperation in the larger work if it ever comes to me or to invite your criticism.

The information I have given Your Lordship is quite confidential and not to be made use of prejudicially to my countrymen. I feel that no useful purpose will be served unless the truth is known and proclaimed.

If you will pursue the inquiry further, I shall be pleased to answer any questions you may wish to put. Mr. Ritch has full knowledge of the contents of this letter. If a discussion is considered necessary, I am at your service.

In conclusion, I hope I have not unduly or unwarrantably trespassed upon your courtesy and attention.

I remain, etc.,

From a photostat of the original draft in Gandhiji’s hand : S. N. 5152
The fight (he said) was for freedom of conscience, for mental independence and independence of action, not for the mechanical right of voting. British Indians first emigrated to the Transvaal in 1883, and from the first, their very virtues were set down as vices by those who could not realize how difficult it was for Indians to live in such a country.

They had heard from Lord Lansdowne that the war was undertaken as much for the British Indians as for other Outlanders, but after the war was over, the former were in a much worse position. They could only trade or hold land in Locations reserved for them, they had no burgher rights and no right to walk on the footpath, and it could be imagined how they were therefore treated by the people of the Transvaal when they were so degraded in the eyes of the law. Many statesmen allowed themselves to be betrayed into the hands of a few agitators, rivals in trade of the British Indians, and the new Registration Law of 1906 was used for oppressing British Indians. It was impossible for those who had the slightest sense of self-respect to accept that legislation. Deputations were repulsed, as was the request for a judicial enquiry. British Indians had been thrown into gaol and classed in treatment with the black men being forced to live upon the same dietery, with the consequence that they were practically starved. For the sake of the national honour they became passive resisters. It might be years before they could make themselves heard, but that would only be because they had not suffered enough. They had justice on their side, and Hindus, Mahomedans and Tamils, by working together in the cause, had solved a great racial problem.

India, 5-11-1909

1 Gandhiji addressed the members of the Indian Union Society at the New Reform Club on “The Struggle for Fellow-citizenship in South Africa: Its Lessons”
135. SPEECH AT MEETING OF INDIANS

[LONDON, November 2, 1909]

Mr. Gandhi, in the course of his remarks, stated that in the Transvaal would be solved the question, so far as the whole of South Africa was concerned, of the status of British Indians, and that it had a far-reaching effect in India also, and as the struggle in the Transvaal was for preserving the national honour, every Indian was bound to do his utmost to help the cause. He felt that if Indian volunteers came forward to do propaganda work in London and surrounding districts a great deal could be done to inform public opinion, which was ultimately bound to react on the Transvaal. The volunteers should set apart consistently with their ordinary occupations a certain amount of time for paying house-to-house visits and getting subscriptions from one farthing upward to relieve the distress amongst passive resisters and their families, and signatures to a document expressed sympathy with the struggles of the passive resisters, encouraging them and trusting that the authorities will grant relief.

Indian Opinion, 4-12-1909

136. LETTER TO UNDER SECRETARY FOR COLONIES

[LONDON, November 3, 1909]

SIR,

I shall be obliged if His Lordship the Earl of Crewe could now favour me with a reply to my letter of 19th October.

I have, etc.,

From the typewritten office copy : S. N. 5158

---

1 Convened by Messrs Delgado and Azad, the latter being one of the secretaries of the Muslim League in London, the meeting was held at 3 p. m. in the Essex Hall, Strand. Parekh presided. Hajee Habib and M. C. Anglia also addressed the gathering consisting of some 40 Indians. Vide also “Deputation’s Last Letter”, pp. 522-3 for a fuller report.

2 Vide “Letter to Transvaal British Indians”, 6-11-1909

3 The report stated that some 20 Indians and an equal number of Europeans volunteered to do propaganda work in London, under the guidance of L. W. Ritch, and it was decided to publish later on a weekly bulletin about the progress of the struggle, to be financed by English sympathisers in London. Vide also “Letter to H. S. L. Polak”, 5-11-1909.
137. LETTER TO LORD AMPHILL

[LONDON,]
November 4, 1909

MY LORD,

I have now received a letter from Lord Crewe, of which I enclose a copy¹, which shows clearly where we stand. The last paragraph I do not understand at all. I beg to enclose herewith draft² of the proposed reply to Lord Crewe. I await Your Lordship’s advice before sending it.³

I remain, etc.

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S. N. 5159

138. LETTER TO H. S. L. POLAK

[LONDON,]
November 5, 1909

MY DEAR HENRY,

I can send you only a brief letter today, although I have a lot to say. You will find a copy of the letter from Lord Crewe, and copy of my reply. It has not yet been delivered to Lord Crewe because it has been sent to Lord Ampthill for approval.⁴

The statement⁵ is now being distributed. I send you one copy along with the Times Literary Supplement by parcel post, and I hope to send you also copy of the letter which will accompany the statement, bringing the matters to date. The letter from Lord Crewe has been received in time for the Congress to do its duty. Let us hope that it will.

We leave on 13th November. On Saturday last I addressed a meeting of the Indian Union Society.⁶ All these things are now⁷

¹ Vide Appendix “Letters from Colonial Office and Ampthill”.
² This was the same as the letter sent on November 6; vide “Letter to Under Secretary for Colonies”, 6-11-1909.
³ For Lord Ampthill’s reply, vide Appendix “Letters from Colonial Office and Ampthill”.
⁴ Vide the preceding item.
⁵ This was the printed statement of July 16, which had been withheld from circulation till then. It was released with a covering letter; vide the following item.
necessary in order to let every Indian know the position. There might be a report of the meeting in columns of India. On Tuesday, as per card herewith, there was a meeting of young Indians to consider what they could do. Mr. Anglia, Mr. Hajee Habib, and I spoke to them. The proposition I made before them was that students and other resident Indians should give what time they could regularly to propaganda work, should get a memorandum signed by thousands of people here, with whatever subscription they may choose to give towards the maintenance of the struggle. I send you draft memorandum. A meeting is to be held tomorrow to consider the programme of work and the draft memorandum. The idea is also to publish a weekly bulletin, if possible, that would give a resume of the position in India and South Africa, but there are obvious difficulties about the paper. The paper, in my opinion, cannot be financed from India. It must be self-supporting and any deficiency found by the English people, because I hold that it is their duty from many points of view to take up the work. But you require a man who is able enough, and who can give his exclusive attention to this. Ritch cannot do it at present. It therefore remains to be seen whether this can come out. If Chhaganlal is here in time, there is a likelihood of it. The work of the Committee will continue. I take it that you will correspond with Ritch regularly.

I send you herewith copy of my letter to Lord Ampthill, which is quite confidential, but of course you should know the whole position. After reading the letter I would like you to destroy it. I am sending a copy to Dr. Mehta with a similar request, and I am sending also a copy of this letter to him in order to avoid my having to write about the same thing. If the volunteers do their duty here, and if India makes a sufficient effort, there is no reason why the thing cannot go through, provided, of course, that we in the Transvaal are firm. It is a curious coincidence that along with the letter from Lord Crewe comes the news from the Transvaal that Harilal too is lodged in gaol. I am itching to join him.

I have your cablegram asking me to repeat the last word of my last cable, which I shall do tomorrow in the hope of being able to add something more to the cable. The last word was “NEARCTIC” meaning

---

7 The original has “not”, an obvious typing error.
1 Vide “Speech at Meeting of Indians”, 2-11-1909
2 Vide “Letter to Transvaal British Indians”, 6-11-1909
3 Vide “Letter to Lord Ampthill”, 30-10-1909 thirteenth November. It occurs in the 5th edition of the A.B.C. code.

I am addressing a meeting of the Indian Majlis at Cambridge on Sunday.¹

You will notice from the list of volunteers that both Sally and Maud are offering their help.² The Pater and Mater also are coming tomorrow. I do not know what they will do. Of course if they will they also can do the missionary work, but I can hardly conceive it as possible. Miss Winterbottom has thrown herself into it.

Mr. Doke’s book has been reviewed in the Edinburgh Evening News in about 20 lines. The Times has just acknowledged it, giving a 4-line notice. I do not think it has been reviewed anywhere else yet. Mr. Meyer calls a meeting to bid us farewell and to hear me on the position on Friday the 12th inst. and about sixty people are being invited to tea.³

From the typewritten office copy: S. N. 5162

139. LETTER TO THE PRESS

LONDON,
November 5, 1909

SIR,

The Transvaal British Indian deputation arrived in London on the 10th day of July last. The enclosed statement⁴ of the British Indian case in that Colony was prepared immediately after the arrival in London of that deputation, but it was not issued as delicate negotiations with a view to arriving at a quiet settlement were in progress. We have now learnt that these have proved abortive and that the position remains unchanged. It has therefore become necessary for us to inform the public as to how the matter stands and what the struggle of the British Indians in the Transvaal means.

The ex-Colonial Secretary of the Transvaal during its administration as a Crown Colony, writing in a magazine in South Africa in the month of February last, thus correctly summed up the question:

The position of the Indian leaders is that they will tolerate no law which does

---

¹ No report of this speech is available.
² Vide “Deputation’s Last Letter”, After 6-11-1909.
³ Vide “Speech at Farewell Meeting”, 12-11-1909.
⁴ Vide “Statement of Transvaal Indian Case”, 16-7-1909.
not put them on an equality with Europeans in regard to restriction on immigration. They are willing to see the number of Asiatics limited by administrative action. . . They insist on equality in the terms of the law itself.

That is still the position.

Mr. Smuts, the present Colonial Secretary of the Transvaal, offers to repeal the Registration Law around which the struggle has been raging for the last three years, and to concede to a limited number of British Indians, other than former residents of the Transvaal, certificates of per-manent residence. Were the object aimed at by the British Indians the ad-mission into the Colony of a few more of their brethren, this concession would be material, but the object they have had in view in agitating for the repeal of the Law being to secure legal or theoretical equality in respect of immigration, their purpose is by the proposed maintenance of the legal disability not advanced a step. We are not aware whether the above modification of the present law proposed by Mr. Smuts will take place irrespective of the continuance of the passive resistance at present being offered by the British Indians of the Transvaal, but we are in a position to state that the proposed concession will not satisfy passive resisters. The struggle of the Indian community of that Colony was undertaken in order to obtain the removal of the stigma cast upon the whole of India by this legislation, which imports a racial and colour bar into the Immigration Laws of a British Colony for the first time in the history of Colonial legislation. The principle so laid down, that British Indians may not enter the Transvaal because they are British Indians, is a radical departure from traditional policy, is un-British and intolerable, and if that principle is accepted even tacitly by British Indians, we consider that they will be untrue to themselves, to the land of their birth, and to the Empire to which they belong. Nor is it the passive resisters in the Transvaal who in a matter of this kind have alone to be considered. The whole of India is now awakened to a sense of the insult that the Transvaal legislation offers to her, and we feel that the people here at the heart of the Empire cannot remain unmoved by this departure, so unprecedented and so vital, from Imperial traditions. Mr. Smuts’ proposal brings out the issue in the clearest manner possible. If we were fighting not for a principle but for loaves and fishes, he would be prepared to throw them at us in the shape of residential permits for the small number of cultured British Indians that may be required for our wants, but because we insist upon the removal of the implied racial taint from the legislation of the Colony, he is not prepared to yield an inch. He would give us the husk without the kernel. He declines to remove the badge of inferiority, but is ready to change the present rough-looking symbol for a nicely polished one. British Indians, however, decline to be deluded. They may yield everything, occupy any position, but the badge must be removed first. We, therefore, trust that the public will not be misled by the specious concessions that are being offered into the belief that British Indians, because they do not accept them, are unreasonable in their demands, that they are uncompromising, and that, therefore, they do not deserve the sympathy and support of a common-sense and practical public. In the final reply received by us from Lord Crewe the following is the position that is taken up:

His Lordship explained to you that Mr. Smuts was unable to accept the claim that Asiatics should be placed in a position of equality with Europeans in respect of right of entry or otherwise.

Herein lies the crux. Legal equality in respect of the right of entry, even though never a man does enter, is what British Indians have been fighting for and, according to the reports we have received from the Transvaal, is what some of them, at least, will die for. The only possible justification for holding together the different communities of the Empire under the same Sovereignty is the fact of elementary equality, and it is because the Transvaal legislation cuts at the very root of this principle that British Indians have offered a stubborn resistance.

It would be contrary to fact to argue that no relief can be had in this matter because the Transvaal is a self-governing Colony, and because now South Africa has got its Union. The difficulty of the situation is due to a mistake committed at the centre of the Empire. The Imperial Government are party to the crime against the Imperial Constitution. They sanctioned when they need not have, and when it was their duty not to have sanctioned, the legislation in question. They are now undoubtedly most anxious to settle this troublesome matter. Lord Crewe has endeavored to bring about a satisfactory result, but he is too late. Mr. Smuts, perhaps very properly, has reminded His Lordship of the fact that the legislation in question had received Imperial sanction, and that he should or could not now be called upon to retrace his steps, because the British Indians in the Transvaal had undertaken to disregard the legislation, and to suffer the penalties of such disregard. His position as a politician and as an aspirant to high office in “a white South Africa” is unquestionable, but neither the British public nor the Indian public are interested in his position, nor are they party to this crime of the Imperial Government.

We may add that, during the last four months, arrests and imprison-ments have gone on unabated. The leaders of the community continue to go to prison. The severity of the prison regulations is maintained. The prison diet has been altered for the worse. Prominent medical men of Johannesburg have certified that the present dietary scale for Indian prisoners is deficient. The authorities, unlike their action during last year, have ignored the religious scruples of Mahomedan prisoners, and have refused to give facilities for observing the sacred annual fast which millions of Mahomedans scrupulously undergo from year to year. Sixty passive resisters recently came out of the Pretoria Gaol emaciated and weak. Their message to us is that, starved as they were, they are ready to be re-arrested as soon as the Government wish to lay their hands on them. The Acting Chairman of the British Indian Association has only just been arrested and sentenced to be imprisoned for three months with hard labour. This is his third term. He is a Mahomedan. A brave Parsee, a well-educated man, was deported to Natal. He re-entered, and is now undergoing six months’ imprisonment with hard labour. He is in gaol for the fifth time. A young Indian, an ex-Volunteer sergeant, has also gone to gaol for the third time on the same terms as the Parsee. Wives of imprisoned British Indians and their children either take up baskets of fruit, hawk about and earn their living in order to support themselves, or are being supported from contributions. Mr. Smuts, when he re-embarked for South Africa, said that he had arrived at an understanding with Lord Crewe that would satisfy the large body of British Indians who were heartily sick of the agitation. His prophecy has been totally disproved by what has happened since.

We remain, etc.,

M. K. GANDHI
HAJEE HABIB
SUMMARY OF STATEMENT

The British Indians in the Transvaal have been suffering for the past two years and six months untold suffering in order to secure:

Repeal of a Transvaal law called the Asiatic Registration Act (2 of 1907) which its authors claim to be a measure merely for effecting the identification of the British Indians entitled to remain in the Colony, but which is regarded by the British Indians themselves as most objectionable, because, in reality—

1. The Act wounds their religious susceptibilities and degrades them in many ways; and
2. Read together with another law of a later date (called the Immigration Act), it constitutes an impassable barrier to the immigration of Indians, however highly cultured, on the score of their race and colour.

The desired relief can easily be granted by repealing the Registration Act and slightly amending the Immigration Act, without in any way endangering the colonial policy of preventing an influx of British Indians. The practical effect of such repeal and amendment would be the removal of the racial insult, and would at the most involve the entry of the few Indian new-comers necessary for the spiritual and intellectual needs of the resident community.

The Indians at present actually residing in the Transvaal number about 5,000.

The population of Indians domiciled in the Transvaal is about 13,000.

The difference means that nearly 8,000 Indians have been driven away, for the time being, from the Transvaal, being too weak to undergo the physical suffering of gaol life.

Over 2,500 British Indians have passed through the Transvaal gaols, all but 150 having been imprisoned with hard labour. Sentences have ranged from four days’ to six months’ hard labour. Hundreds of British Indians have been ruined in the struggle. Several families have been supported from public subscriptions, the wage-earners being in the Transvaal gaols. Indians both young and old have suffered and are still suffering imprisonment. Many leaders are at present in the gaols, including the Mahomedan Chairman of the British Indian Association and a Parsee gentleman who is renowned... for his philanthropy throughout South Africa. Fathers and sons have been in gaol at the same time. About sixty Indians have been deported to India, where they were landed penniless and friendless.

A band of noble Europeans in the Transvaal, headed by Mr. Wm. Hosken, M. L. A. of the Transvaal, have formed themselves into a committee for securing justice.

Hindoos and Mahomedans, Parsees and Sikhs are fighting shoulder to shoulder. The struggle to-day is being continued to maintain the honour of the three hundred millions of their fellow-countrymen, and is absolutely selfless. The sufferers have no personal interest to serve.

The Indians contend that General Smuts, the Colonial Secretary of the Transvaal, is under promise to repeal the Asiatic Registration Act of 1907. If that Act had been repealed, the question of educated Indians would have been automatically adjusted, because, without it, the Immigration Law above referred to would not have prevented the entry of highly educated Indians. General Smuts contends that, whilst he discussed the question of repeal of the Act with Mr. Gandhi, he does not remember having made a definite promise. Mr. Gandhi has made an affidavit swearing that such a promise was made and has produced documentary evidence in support of his contention. General Smuts holds that the Indian demands are in effect satisfied in that he wishes to treat the Registration Act as a dead letter and is prepared to admit educated Indians on sufferance and on temporary permits, which may be extended from time to time. Indians hold that they are under a solemn obligation to secure repeal of the Act above-mentioned, and that, if it is a dead letter, it can be of no use to the Government. They further contend that the admission of educated Indians on sufferance is useless because the struggle is not so much to secure the admission of a few individuals as to conserve national honour. It is the unnecessary legal racial disability which makes the situation so degrading, and affords an obiding source of irritation to the whole Indian nation. This legislation is the first of its kind in the history of the Colonies. No other self-governing Colony possesses legislation containing the racial taint, described by Lord Morley as the “bar sinister”.

British Indians do not desire an indiscriminate influx of their countrymen into the Transvaal. They submit that, by a judicious administration of the Immigration Act, all but a few—say six highly educated Indians per year—may be prevented from entering the Colony. The Cape, Australia and other Colonies have solved the question of Asiatic immigration without resort to racial legislation.

From a photostat of the printed copy : S. N. 5180

140. LETTER TO UNDER SECRETARY FOR COLONIES

[LONDON,]
November 6, 1909

SIR,

I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 3rd instant, numbered 34519/1909. It is a matter for very deep regret that the Earl of Crewe is unable to hold out any hopes of obtaining recognition of theoretical equality as to immigration such as is claimed by British Indians in the Transvaal, and as has hitherto been accepted throughout the Colonies, and which alone, it is respectfully submitted, can justify the holding together of different peoples of the world under the same sovereignty. There remains nothing for my colleague and me to do but to place the position before the public and to return to the Transvaal. In view, however, of the Imperial importance of the question, my colleague and I respectfully trust that His Lordship will still use his influence in order to secure the removal of the offensive colour bar in the immigration laws of the Transvaal.

I have, etc.,

M. K. GANDHI

Colonial Office Records : 291/142; also, from a photostat of the typewritten office copy : S. N. 5164

1 Vide Appendix “Letters from Colonial Office and Ampthill”.
2 The Colonial Office reaction to this letter is available in a minute of November 9. On receipt of Gandhiji’s communication, the Colonial Office sent a cable to the Transvaal Government. Vide Appendix “Colonial Office Minute”.

VOL. 10 : 5 AUGUST, 1909 - 9 APRIL, 1910 213
141. LETTER TO TRANSVAAL BRITISH INDIANS

[LONDON,
November 6, 1909]

We of the United Kingdom have learnt, through those who are working here on your behalf, about your sorrows and trials under the British flag. That you are fighting for the honour of your race and your motherland commands our admiration. In our opinion, the Transvaal Government has no right to debar British subjects who may be of a different race or a different colour to themselves from entering that Colony because of colour or race. We hold it to be contrary to the traditions of the Empire to which you and we belong. We appreciate the moderation of your position in that, whilst you naturally insist upon your national honour being preserved un tarnished, you do not oppose the desire of the Colonists in the Transvaal to regulate and restrict immigration from India under general and non-racial legislation, and on economic grounds which to the Colonists appear to be just.

The Method you have adopted for seeking redress appeals to us who believe in religion as the guiding force of life. In making your position good, and in convincing the authorities of the justice of your cause and of the earnestness of your demand, you have not resorted to methods of violence and physical force, but you have heroically suffered in your own persons by refusing to accept a law which you rightly consider to be repugnant to your conscience and by submitting to the penalties provided by it for non-submission. 2,500 of you have already been imprisoned—mostly with hard labour, and for long terms up to six months. Some of you have become impoverished. Wives have patiently borne separation from their husbands, and have also been reduced almost to starvation. Your merchants have allowed their goods to be sold, and have allowed their creditors to take away their stock. In undergoing such suffering you are showing the true spirit of the great teachers of the different religions of the world. We sympathise with you. We mean that our whole life shall testify how earnestly we desire for you strength and courage to continue your struggle, and, as a tangible expression of our sympathy for you, we subscribe our names herein below, and pay whatever we feel impelled to give towards the relief of your distress. We hope that the authorities, as well in the Transvaal as in London, will open their eyes and give immediate relief.

Indian Opinion, 11-12-1909

142. DEPUTATION’S LAST LETTER

[After November 6, 1909]

LORD CREWE’S REPLY

Everything now is as clear as daylight. Lord Crewe has given a plain reply. Says he.

I am to inform you that the proposals in question were those put before you by His Lordship on the 16th of September as having been made by Mr. Smuts, viz., the repal of Act 2 of 1907 and the admission of six educated Asiatics each year on certificates of permanent right of residence, which would involve, in your own view, a real step in advance and would, so far as their practical effect is concerned, provide a solution of the present difficulty. They were not, nor were they connected with, those made by yourself, and involving a theoretical claim for which His Lordship is not able to hold out any hope of obtaining recognition. Indeed, at the interview on the 16th of September, His Lordship explained to you that Mr. Smuts was unable to accept the claim that Asiatics should be placed in a position of equality with Europeans in respect of right of entry or otherwise.

DEPUTATION’S REPLY

The deputation has replied to this letter as under: 1

1 This was published in Indian Opinion with the following sub-headings: “Steps Taken in England : Detailed Statement in Press : Volunteers to Canvaas Support for Struggle.”

2 What follows is an extract from the letter dated November 3 from the Under Secretary for Colonies; vide Appendix “Letters from Colonial Office and Amphill”.

COMMENTS

It is now necessary for every Indian to understand what the struggle is about and how important are the issues involved. We are carrying a burden on behalf of the whole of India. It is but our duty to do so. Mr. Smuts is prepared to offer us whatever we want if only we concede that we are not the equals of whites. He clings to the position that we shall not have equality under the law. He has struck at the root of British principles and the principles of humanity. We have taken the blow on ourselves in order to defend those principles. Were the blow to strike at the root, the British Empire will cease to have any meaning, and it will be slavery for Indians to stay on in the Transvaal or South Africa. No one can enslave us against our will. If we do not recognize the principles of the man [who may attempt to enslave us] and refuse to carry out his orders, we cease to be slaves.

In former times, they used force to impose slavery; now they use blandishments. In olden days, one might say, things were better, since all the evil was there on the surface for everyone to see, with the result that people were repelled by it. When the slaves could no longer bear their sufferings, they ran away or killed themselves. Now that they seek to confer slavery upon us through baits, we readily accept it, not even knowing that it is slavery. We are fighting the battle of satyagraha in South Africa in order to save ourselves from such a plight. The Government know, and we ought to—if we do not know already—that, if we once compel it to give up its effort [to enslave us], the rest will be easy enough for us. We are carrying on a fight for the franchise that really matters. We are demonstrating that we have the potentialities of nationhood in us, the spirit that people aspiring to be a nation must possess.

Moreover, we are not fighting against the Transvaal [Government] only, but also against the Imperial Government, for the latter has assented to the law’ in question. “You will get all that you want if you give up the claim to legal equality;” in other words, “Sign a bond of slavery and you will be treated well.” Or, we may explain this by imagining Germany saying to the British : “Come under our rule and we shall treat you well.” In reply, the British will say : “We do not care to be treated well by you. We are happy defending our freedom, whatever the suffering we may have to go through.” That is exactly the kind of reply that we have been giving for the last three years, and which, I hope, we shall for ever continue to give. Many embraced poverty in the course of the fight for legal equality in respect of right of entry, and we are prepared to lay down our lives in it. I take it that the brave ones who have taken up arms will never retreat. Let every Indian tell himself over and over again that the remedy for this situation is in our own hands, not in those of the Imperial Government or of the Transvaal Government. It is our duty to make formal representations to them and reason with them. But it should not be forgotten that no pressure other than that of our own strength will avail us.

1 The Asiatic Registration Act No. 2 of 1907

FEELINGS

The cable-report in the newspapers about the imprisonment of my son, Harilal, coming as it did at the same time as Lord Crewe’s letter, certainly made me very happy. When so many Indians were re-arrested, I was not in the least happy that my son and I should be free. And just then appeared the cable-report. Miss Polak, who understands my feelings on this matter, congratulated me as she gave me the news. Though I know that the boy, poor child, will suffer, I welcome the news all the same. It will do him good to suffer, and me too; he will be doing a service to the community. It is the command of God [that one should suffer]. Nagappen, you too were a mere child, and sacrificed your life for the sake of the motherland. I regard your sacrifice as a blessing on your family. I believe that, though dead, you are immortal. Why, then, should I be upset by my son’s imprisonment? His associates have returned to gaol. None of them stands to gain anything by doing so, and yet they have submitted to the hardships of gaol. I refuse to believe that this suffering will not be rewarded with happiness and that the law will not be repealed on our terms. I hope that no Indian will be timid enough to entertain such a belief.

TO SOUTH AFRICAN INDIANS

I say to all the Indians in South Africa that this struggle is not confined to the Transvaal, that it is on behalf of them all and that they should extend every encouragement to those who are fighting. To Mr. Abdul Caadir and Mr. Amod Bhayat, who have seen for themselves how matters stand here, I say that their duty requires them to instil the highest spirit in the people. Everyone can, and will, I hope, help to the best of his means, some by expressing their views,

We have only one week before leaving, and plenty to do in the meantime. A printed statement is ready, which is now to be sent round. It is accompanied by a forwarding letter, which reads as follows:

It is hoped that newspapers will publish the letter.

INDIAN UNION SOCIETY

A meeting of the Indian Union Society was held on Saturday, when all the facts about the struggle were placed before the Indians and the whites. A brief report of the meeting appeared in one of the newspapers here.

MEETING OF LONDON INDIANS

A meeting of the local Indians was held on Tuesday last.
Between 40 and 50 Indians were present. Mr. Hajee Habib, Mr.
Anglia and I spoke. I asked for some Indians to come forward as volunteers. They would have to go from house to house and collect signatures on a letter of sympathy. Besides signing the letter, one may also offer, if so inclined, anything from a farthing upwards.
There can be thousands of such signatures. They cannot but produce an effect on the Imperial Government as also on others. In response to the call, about 20 Indians gave their names on the spot. This is a very promising idea. It is likely to take root and, if all the volunteers put their heart into the work, they may achieve a big result. In that case, while pressure is being exerted in India on the one hand, there will be similar pressure in England on the other and, if we meanwhile maintain our spirit in the Transvaal, the fight can well be brought to an early conclusion. Afterwards, some whites, too, gave their names.
In all, the following names have been received:

Messrs G. C. Verma, S. P. Verma, F. Lalan, J. P. patel, K. Amid, N. Dwarkadas, D. C. Ghose, H. M. Bose, G. H. Khan, Abdool Haq. S.
Manga, A. Haffeji, B. Sahai, H. R. Bilimoria, D. Singh, B. Prasad, Hussain Dawad, A. H. Gool, R. G. Munsif, M. K. Azad, P. Banerjee,
A. Mann, H. E. Cheeseman, and among the ladies, Miss F. Winter-bottom, Mrs. G. Nag, Mrs. Polak, Mrs. Dube, Miss Hussain and the

1 The deputation left England on November 13.
3 Vide the preceding item.
There is also an idea that we may start a small journal here in England itself for the duration of the struggle. It should give a digest of all the news received from South Africa and India and should be put on sale at a number of places. The intention is to start the journal only if some whites here offer to finance it. It is their duty to do so, and they must, of course, carry it out. The difficulty is that Mr. Ritch does not have enough time for the purpose and no one equally capable is available at present. There are many who can work under him, but it is necessary to have a man who will offer his whole-time services to the work. The journal can start only when such a man is available.

MEYER’S HELP

To end, Mr. Meyer, the well-known clergyman who had been in Johannesburg for some time, has arranged a tea-party at his own cost to enable people to meet us both. He has invited some 60 persons. We are to explain the whole position there. The function will take place on Friday, the 12th. Things are thus on the move on every side. But the effectiveness of every step will depend on our courage. The following were the final words of Mr. Meyer: “We (the British) shall not be of much help to you. You will have to suffer and go to gaol. It is only when you have done so and when India is aroused that you will see the end of your trials. Otherwise, be sure that nothing will happen. I will, of course, do my best.” This was well-said. It is only deluding ourselves to believe that others will do anything for us.

Dr. Miss Joshi and Mr. Mhaskar have contributed £3 [each] to the struggle. Likewise, Mr. Gokulbhai Dalal has sent 10s. Dr. Joshi has also addressed a letter to the editor [of Indian Opinion].

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 4-12-1909

---

The campaign that women have been carrying on for the franchise can prove most useful to us, or so I think at least. It has importance both for South Africa and India. They do much that deserves to be copied, and much that should be avoided. Like us, they believe that they are being denied their rights, and that they are treated as inferior [to men]. Their struggle has been going on for quite some time. They, too, have two parties, one moderate and the other extremist. The difference between them and us is that they are not satyagrahis, but believe in brute force.

Their courage, their unity, their readiness to bear pecuniary losses, their intelligence—all these deserve to be admired and emulated. They throw stones and injure others, forgetting all sense of propriety, and these ways of theirs deserve to be shunned. Three such incidents occurred only recently. A suffragette in Manchester Gaol was being forcibly fed. She, therefore, resorted to a stratagem which made it impossible to open the door [of her cell]. Thereupon, the authorities sprayed her with a water-hose. Still, she did not open the door. This lady had real courage, indeed, but used it to a wrong end. Those who come forward to suffer are not justified in behaving as she did. Her object was to secure her release from gaol, and she achieved it. But the women won no rights [thereby]. When it came to be known that she was sprayed with a water-hose, she was ordered to be released.

In a certain locality here, election of a member to the House of Commons was going on. Two women went there with the intention of spoiling election papers. They had with them some liquid with which they could burn paper. Having managed somehow to enter the election booth, they squirted the liquid all round. Not many papers were spoiled, but one of the women caused a serious injury to an officer’s eye. This was a very base thing to do. It is being condemned by everyone. And yet, her Association has accepted responsibility for what she did. The women are now being prosecuted.

---

1 Reports of these two incidents appeared in the Gujarati columns of Indian Opinion, 6-11-1909.

At a third place, the broke the door-panes of the physician who used to carry out forcible feeding. This was done merely with the object of damaging the physician’s property. In what way was the physician to blame? He was only an officer of the Government and undertook the task [of forcible feeding]. All these are courageous acts, but courage by itself cannot win any rights. Courage should be put to a worthy use.

I came to know only recently that the suffragettes publish four journals—three weeklies and one monthly. A single branch of their Association raised the entire sum of £50,000 much before the target date, and so, they are now planning to raise the figure to £1,00,000. They have a band of their own, and also a special photographer for their journal. There are meetings of the Association branches at one place or another all through the week. The franchise is nowhere in sight yet, but they refuse to accept defeat and go on fighting. This is surely no ordinary spirit.

BUDGET

The storm over the budget raged for six months in the House of Commons. It has now passed the Budget Bill, which will go to the House of Lords on Monday. The Bill is expected to meet with fierce opposition there. Many believe that the House of Lords will refuse to pass the Budget. In that case, there will be new elections in January. Many people hold that even if that happens, the Liberal Party will win. For the present, the British people are intensely preoccupied with this question. They can think of nothing else, for it is a fierce strife that is going on between the commoners and the nobility. Each side reviles the other and doubts its bona fides. The only thing they have desisted from, so far, is actual physical fighting and that, too, not because they think it bad but because neither side expects to profit by it. They are not likely [however] to invite help from a third party to settle their quarrel. That much is certain.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 4-12-1909
144. INTERVIEW TO REUTER

[LONDON, November 9, 1909]

Mr. Gandhi, interviewed by a representative of Reuter’s Agency, expressed disappointment at the failure of negotiations with Mr. Smuts. He paid a tribute to the efforts of Lord Crewe to effect a settlement of the Asiatic question with the Transvaal Government, but he said that the concessions which had been made did not touch the vital principle of legal equality.

Mr. Gandhi said he expected Hajee Habib and himself to be arrested on the Transvaal border. The campaign with which he was associated would, however, be continued most strenuously in India, the United Kingdom and South Africa, where Indian and English volunteers had organized a house-to-house visitation with the object of securing support and funds.

Indian Opinion, 13-11-1909

145. LETTER TO AYLMER MAUDE

[LONDON, November 10, 1909]

DEAR MR. MAUDE,

I have not succeeded in getting the Manchester Guardian to take up Tolstoy’s “Letter to a Hindoo”. I have not been able to go to the British Museum myself, but I asked a friend to look up Ballou’s books. His books are there.

Could you please now tell me whether you would act as co-judge with Dr. Clifford with reference to the Passive Resistance Essay.

I remain, etc.,

M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat of the handwritten original signed by Gandhiji: C. W. 4439

---

1 This was published under the caption “News from London”.
2 The reference evidently is to Adin Ballou (1803-1890). American Clergyman, founder of Hopedale Community and author of Practical Christian Socialism. I Primitive Christianity and its Corruption and other works. Tolstoy, who mentions him admiringly in The Kingdom of God is within You, was greatly impressed by Ballou’s writings.
146. LETTER TO LORD AMPTHILL

[LONDON,]

November 10, 1909

MY LORD.

I am much obliged to Your Lordship for your letter of today. As you propose to make use of the information about the interview at the forthcoming discussion in the House of Lords, I quite agree that the minutes should be sent to Lord Crewe for confirmation or . . .

I am delighted to learn that your son is making good progress.

I remain, etc.,

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy : S. N. 5172

147. LETTER TO LEO TOLSTOY

[London,]

November 10, 1909

DEAR SIR,

I beg to tender my thanks for your registered letter in connection with the letter addressed to a Hindu, and with the matters that I dealt with in my letter to you.

Having heard about your failing health I refrained, in order to save you the trouble, from sending an acknowledgment, knowing that a written expression of my thanks was a superfluous formality; but Mr. Aylmer Maude, whom I have now been able to meet reassured me that you were keeping very good health indeed and that unfailingly and regularly you attended to your correspondence every morning. It was a very gladsome news to me, and it encourages me to write to you further about matters which are, I know, of the greatest importance according to your teaching.

I beg to send you herewith a copy of a book written by a

1 Vide “Substance of interview with Lord Crewe”, 16-11-1909 and Appendix “Colonial Office Minute”.
2 Some words have not registered on the office copy.
3 On November 7, Lord Ampthill had informed Gandhiji that one of his children was ill, and put off an appointment with him fixed for the next day.
friend—an Englishman, who is at present in South Africa, in connection with my life, in so far as it has a bearing on the struggle with which I am so connected, and to which my life is dedicated. As I am very anxious to engage your active interest and sympathy, I thought that it would not be considered by you as out of the way for me to send you the book.

In my opinion, this struggle of the Indians in the Transvaal is the greatest of modern times, inasmuch as it has been idealised both as to the goal as also the methods adopted to reach the goal. I am not aware of a struggle in which the participants are not to derive any personal advantage at the end of it, and in which 50 per cent. of the persons affected have undergone great suffering and trial for the sake of a principle. It has not been possible for me to advertise the struggle as much as I should like. You command, possibly, the widest public today. If you are satisfied as to the facts you will find set forth in Mr. Doke’s book, and if you consider that the conclusions I have arrived at are justified by the facts, may I ask you to use your influence in any manner you think fit to popularise the movement? If it succeeds, it will be not only a triumph of religion, love and truth over irreligion, hatred and falsehood, but it is highly likely to serve as an example to the millions in India and to people in other parts of the world, who may be down-trodden and will certainly go a great way towards breaking up the party of violence, at least in India. If we hold out to the end, as I think we would, I entertain not the slightest doubt as to its ultimate success; and your encouragement in the way suggested by you can only strengthen us in our resolve.

The negotiations that are going on for a settlement of the question have practically fallen through, and together with my colleague I return to South Africa this week, and invite imprisonment. I may add that my son has happily joined me in the struggle and is now undergoing imprisonment with hard labour for six months. This is his fourth imprisonment in the course of the struggle.

If you would be so good as to reply to this letter, may I ask you to address your reply to me at Johannesburg, S.A., Box 6522.

Hoping that this will find you in good health.

I remain, etc.,

M. K. GANDHI

From an illustration of the original in Mahatma, Vol. I; also, from a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S. N. 5173 148. LETTER TO H. JUST

LONDON,
November 10, 1909

DEAR MR. JUST,

With reference to the official letter No. 34924/1909, may I trouble you to send me a copy of my letter of 24th August last referred to in the above mentioned letter. My clerk seems to have mislaid the carbon copy.

I remain, etc.,

M. K. GANDHI

H. JUST, ESQ.
COLONIAL OFFICE
DOWNING STREET
[ LONDON ]

Colonial Office Records : 291/142

149. LETTER TO UNDER SECRETARY FOR COLONIES

[ LONDON, ]
November 10, 1909

SIR,

I have the honour to draw the attention of the Earl of Crewe to the following cablegram received from Rangoon:

Crowded public meeting held yesterday, attended by all sections community, Indians, Chinese, Burmese, emphatically condemned Transvaal Asiatic legislation, urging immediate Imperial intervention remove racial indignity, prevent further ill-treatment resident Asiatics; urging also stoppage recruitment Indian labour for South Africa until existing grievances have been remedied. Other resolutions passed expressing admiration attitude adopted by Asiatics resident Transvaal. Committee being formed raise fund to alleviate their needs. Great indignation, enthusiasm displayed.

I have, etc.,

M. K. GANDHI

Colonial Office Records : 291/142; also, from a photostat of the typewritten office copy : S. N. 5174

1 Hartmann Just (1854-1929); Assistant Under Secretary of State for the Colonies, 1907-16
2 Vide “Letter to Private Secretary to Lord Crewe”, 24-8-1909.
150. INTERVIEW TO “THE DAILY EXPRESS”

[London,
November 10, 1909]

General Smuts took a step forward when he said he would repeal the obnoxious Asiatic Act and, so far as the status of educated Indians arising from the Act is concerned said he was prepared to grant certificates of permanent residence to a limited number of Indians. This is satisfactory as far as it goes, but it leaves untouched the principle for which and for which alone we have been fighting. That principle is for legal equality so far as immigration is concerned. General Smuts’ offer is not enough to stop passive resistance on our part. Mr. Hajee Habib and myself are returning at once to Johannesburg. The next step probably is that both of us will be arrested at the Transvaal frontier, but the campaign will continue with unabated vigour. Hitherto we have refrained from asking for funds in India or elsewhere outside South Africa, but the severe strain upon our resources and the number of ruined families whom we have to support now make this essential. We have organised a band of Indian and English volunteers who, immediately on our departure from this country, will commence house-to-house visits both in London and in the provinces, asking for signatures for a memorandum to the authorities of the Transvaal and in London.

India, 12-11-1909

151. LETTER TO G. K. GOKHALE

[London,
November 11, 1909]

DEAR PROFESSOR GOKHALE,

Although I have your kind message through Mr. Polak that I should not address you as Professor1, my reverence for you will not enable me to adopt a more familiar style.

1 This report of the interview was reproduced in India from The Daily Express, 10-11-1909.
2 In his letter of September 10, Polak had informed Gandhiji that Gokhale thought it “too formal and he and you know each other too well for these formalities.”
In his last letter, Mr. Polak tells me that overwork and anxiety have ruined your health and that your plain-spokenness has endangered your life. I venture to suggest that you should come to the Transvaal and join us. I claim that the Transvaal struggle is national in every sense of the term. It deserves the highest encouragement. I have considered it to be the greatest struggle of modern time. That it will succeed in the end I have not the slightest doubt. But an early success will break up the violence movement in India.

I have moved very freely among our countrymen here and I notice extreme bitterness against you. Most consider that violence is the only method for securing any reform. In the Transvaal, we are trying to show that violence is futile and that the proper method is self-suffering, i.e., passive resistance. If, therefore, you came to the Transvaal, publicly declaring that it was your intention to share our sorrows and, therefore, to cross the Transvaal border as a citizen of the Empire, you would give it a world-wide significance, the struggle will soon end and your countrymen will know you better. The last consideration may not weigh with you. But it does with me for the sake of themselves. If you would come, and if you are left untouched and I am free, I should deem it a great privilege to nurse you. If you are arrested and imprisoned, I should be delighted. I may be wrong, but I do feel that it is a step worth taking for the sake of India. Feeling so strongly, I would be pardoned for suggesting that the Transvaal question should have a prominent place on the Congress platform and nothing can be so effective as for you to say that you would join the struggle.

I have written this letter in the midst of interruptions. I have not therefore been able to explain all I should like to. I would only [add] that my reverence for you has prompted this suggestion. I would see you reach perfection among your countrymen in S. A., where you would not be misunderstood and where you would be mentioned as nowhere else.

Will you kindly send your reply to me at Johannesburg, Box 6522?

I remain, etc.,

M. K. GANDHI

From the original in Gandhiji’s hand: C. W. 924 Courtesy: Servants of India Society, Poona

---

1 Polak had written on October 14: “You will see what poor Gokhale has to suffer. He tells me (privately) that the Governor sent for him and warned him that his person was in danger. The S [ervants] of I[ndia] watch him day and night and never let him go out unguarded.”
MY DEAR HENRY,

I should like to write a very long letter to you, but I do not know how to. I am full of information of the greatest importance but I cannot give it to you in a presentable form during the time at my disposal. The first thing, however, I want to deal with is Maud’s condition. I had only once joked with her, asking whether she wanted to go to South Africa, and the joke proceeded from a remark made by Hajee Habib, but it is evident that she has been very seriously thinking about it. Last evening she could not restrain herself, and told me she wanted to go to South Africa very badly and work for the cause. I was not surprised, and yet this is not quite accurate, because I was taken aback a little, as I have felt she was permanently fixed up at the place where she is, not that I am at all in love with it, but it appeared to me to be the best in the circumstances. She is very sweet-natured. I think she is capable of great self-sacrifice, and she is willing to work, but I do not know how far the Phoenix life would suit her. Personally, I feel that, if she wants to go to South Africa merely to earn her living, it is hardly worthwhile; but if she wants to work for an ideal, she must have the strength and courage to do it. I have told her all I could about things. I have told her as well as I could about the jarring notes there, and I have told her, too, that there is no money in it. I have further told her how Millie herself finds it difficult to reconcile herself to life at Phoenix. She is in possession of all the information that I can give her. I have further told her that I am not in a position to give a definite opinion, that first of all she must secure Pater’s and Mater’s consent, and then Sally’s. After she has the approval of the three, she should place her position before you, and finally depend upon Millie’s advice. I have told her, too, that however much she may regard my view, and like it, I consider myself incompetent to enter into all a woman’s feelings, and when she has accessible to her Millie’s loving assistance and advice, she cannot do better than rely upon her judgment. She tells me that she wants to be able to send home £4 per month. I have told her that this is not impossible, but that the chief thing to consider is whether she will be able to appreciate and love the Phoenix life. I have told her, too, that there is no definite work that can be assigned to her—that it may be anything, from what is considered the meanest household duties, to teaching, and moulding the characters of the children at Phoenix. Now, I think, I have told you everything. She will be writing you fully. You know her much better than I do, and you will be able to guide her in the path you think best for her moral well-being. The other household matters that I would like to discuss with you must wait, unless I get the time between now and reaching Madeira, but my programme for the voyage is so full that domestic matters which are not urgent are likely to be crowded out. Maud is writing to you very fully, and she has promised to show me her letter, and if I have any further suggestions, after I have read the letter, I will write again. Millie is coming here from Westcliffe on Friday, and I shall fully discuss it with her, as also with Pater and Mater, if I get an opportunity of seeing them. Millie will sleep at the Hotel, so I am looking forward to a long and quiet chat with her. Naturally we are much nearer each other now than we were ever before, having seen more of each other than in Johannesburg, where I rarely met her apart. Waldo and Brownie are looking superb. I still retain the opinion that it is difficult, if not impossible, to match Waldo in beauty, and he is daily becoming more and more wilful! He is certainly very original, and you will appreciate the fact when I tell you that Simmonds completes his happiness. Sally, who is sitting by me, just reminds me that I should not finish this letter without telling you something about Brownie; that he is outgrowing his superficial ugliness, and that he has begun to speak is stale news, but probably you do not know that the first name he learnt to pronounce was Sally’s. Sally may be a good worker in her office; she claims to be an estimable suffragette, not to be beaten by mere man; I can certainly certify to her being at her best when she is with Waldo and Brownie. When one meets a woman who is at her best with children, you know what an opinion I have of her.

Since dictating this letter, I have seen Sally. Just fancy Sally saying she is also anxious to go to Phoenix and that she would simply love the life. I wonder if the taint (?) of simplicity runs through the family and if it only requires a little nursing to bring it all out. She says that is was she who suggested to Maud that Maud should go out, but she also adds that they do not want to desert the parents, and so she recognises that one or the other should stay. I do not know how to take all this. I am afraid that I am very largely, responsible for their enthusiasm. I have spoken in such glowing terms about the charm of simplicity and all that, that they have pictured Phoenix as a Paradise. Simmonds cautions me against any hasty advice or hasty step. His caution I appreciate very greatly, and I therefore pass it on to you. I have no intention of advising the girls to take the plunge.

As I mentioned in another letter, I should like to write at very great length, and yet this is being dictated after one o’clock a.m. and there is a vast amount of humdrum work to go through before Saturday.

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S. N. 5175

153. LETTER TO UNDER SECRETARY FOR COLONIES

[LONDON,]
December 11, 1909

SIR,

I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 9th instant, enclosing a copy of a despatch from the Governor of the Transvaal, together with a minute from the Transvaal Ministers regarding the treatment of British Indian prisoners.

I note in the minute from the Prime Minister’s Office, Pretoria, to the Deputy Governor, that there is a categorical denial of every complaint made. I venture, however, to submit for His Lordship’s consideration the fact that, from my own personal observations made at the different prisons of the Transvaal, the complaints received by me and passed on to the Colonial Office appear to me, in the main, to be substantial.

As to the death of the late Nagappen, the magistrate’s finding has been challenged by the Indian community, as also by the European Committee presided over by Mr. Hosken, and that a

1 E. I. Aswat, Acting Chairman of the British Indian Association, in a letter to the Rand Daily Mail, had expressed surprise at the judgment of the Commission and felt that “sufficient weight has not been attached to some portions of the evidence”. The Secretary of State for the Colonies received on September 30 a communication from the British Indian Committee at Pretoria, saying that Government had been requested to reopen the enquiry. An official of the Colonial Office recorded in a minute dated October 1: “I am afraid this is a bad business. The Government enquiry into Nagappen’s death is a complete white-washing and is accordingly heartily endorsed by the Ministers . . . but the evidence, it is pretty clear, hardly supports the conclusions . . .”
reopening of the enquiry was asked for and refused. 1 Moreover, I invite His Lordship’s attention to the fact that the allegation that the deceased was not supplied with rice was sustained. That the magistrate left it an open question as to whether he had two blankets or not, that the deceased was taken from Johannesburg to a camp in a rigorous winter, and was called upon to do rough work, are undisputed facts.

As to the diet scale, His Lordship is already in possession of the exhaustive report of the independent medical men of Johannesburg bearing out the Indian allegation that this scale is deficient.

With regard to the prisoner Mahomed Khan, I have already stated in my letter 2 of the 16th August that there might be some exaggeration, but I venture to trust that I shall be pardoned for saying that the denials of the officials concerned of the truth of the complaints are hardly sufficient answer. It was open, as it is now, to the Government, if they wish, to invite Mr. Mahomed Khan to corroborate or withdraw his complaints.

The later developments, in the shape of a refusal to allow Indian prisoners to receive religious consolation, and to permit Mahomedans during the sacred months of Ramzan to receive facilities for observing their fast, hardly bear out the statement that Indian prisoners are treated humanely, and that there is no desire on the part of the prison officials to treat them harshly because they are passive resisters.

It is likely that Indian prisoners are now invariably housed in cells by themselves, but it is within my own knowledge that, up to the month of May, Indian prisoners have been housed in the self-same cells as the Natives.

I have, etc.,

M. K. GANDHI

Colonial Office Records: 291/142; also, from a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S. N. 5177

1 The European Committee had appealed to General Lord Methuen, Acting Governor of the Transvaal but the latter, on the advice of his Ministers, had refused to sanction a fresh inquiry.

2 Vide “Letter to Private Secretary to Lord Crewe”, 16-8-1909
154. LETTER TO “DAILY TELEGRAPH”

[LONDON,]

November 11, 1909

THE EDITOR

DAILY TELEGRAPH

DEAR SIR,

I am sorry that you could not spare a few minutes to grant me an interview. I received the message that I was to write to you. The position to date in connection with the Transvaal British Indian question is given in the statement issued to the Press,¹ a copy of which I trust you have seen. The reason why I wished to have a personal interview with you was to place before you the gravity of the Transvaal Indian question. As you will notice from the supplementary statement, the question is not now that of saving the Transvaal from an Asiatic influx; it purely and simply resolves itself into the question whether, so far as immigration is concerned, highly cultured Indians may be placed on an equality with the European immigrants, as they were before the legislation against which passive resistance has been offered and as they are now throughout the British Colonies. Thus, for the first time in the history of Colonial legislation, in the words of Mr. Chamberlain, “an affront” has been put upon the millions in India. In our struggle, therefore, I venture to think that we have a right to expect the Press of the United Kingdom to support us, and I hope that you will see your way to give due publicity to the movement, and favour it with your advocacy, regard being had to the fact that nearly fifty per cent, of the present Indian population of the Transvaal have passed through its goals, and that one young Indian² has succumbed to pneumonia, caught by him, according to the testimony of witnesses, whilst he was in goal.

I remain, etc.,

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S. N. 5176

¹ Vide “Statement of Transvaal Indian Case”, 16-7-1909 and also “Letter to the Press”, 5-11-1909.
² This was Sammy Nagappen; vide “Statement of Transvaal Indian Case”, 16-7-1909.
155. LETTER TO UNDER SECRETARY FOR COLONIES

[LONDON,]

November 12, 1909

SIR,

I have the honour to acknowledge receipt of your letter of the 9th instant. I am not aware of the circumstances beyond what was contained in Mr. Polak’s cablegram, but I am aware of the deportation of Mr. Chunilal Panachand who, although he knew English and, therefore, had a right to enter Natal or the Cape Colony, and although he was domiciled in Delagoa Bay, was deported to India. His is a well-known case.

I myself appeared in another case; that was of Mr. Shelat.¹ He would have been deported to India had he not sent a message to me and had I not appeared before the Magistrate to have the matter rectified. Cases like this can certainly be multiplied, and from the experience I have of the working of the section of the Act bearing on deportation, the hardship caused could be satisfactorily demonstrated.

I have, etc.,

M. K. GANDHI

Colonial Office Records: 291/142; also, from a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S. N. 5178

156. LETTER TO THE INDIAN PRESS¹

[LONDON,]

November 12, 1909

SIR,

I venture to trust that you will give as wide publicity as possible to the statement² that my colleague, Mr. Hajee Habib, and I have issued in connection with the British Indian struggle in the Transvaal. Although it is raging in the Transvaal, the fact that it is a matter of vital importance to the whole of India is so clear that he who runs may ¹ Vide “Trial of Naidoo and Others”, 16-6-1909 and also “Johannesburg Letter”, Before 21-6-1909.

² This was published under the title: “The Indian Struggle in the Transvaal”. Vide also “Letter to the Press”, 5-11-1909.
read, and the Transvaal Government have made that issue clear by emphatically declaring that, although they would give us the incidence that would flow from the granting of the principle we are fighting for, they are not prepared to meet us on the question of the principle itself, and so the struggle must go on. The principle we are fighting for cannot be better described than in the words of the Transvaal Government itself. Lord Crewe says in his reply to the Transvaal British Indian deputation:

His Lordship explained to you that Mr. Smuts was unable to accept the claim that Asiatics should be placed in a position of equality with Europeans in respect of right of entry or otherwise.

The phrase “or otherwise” may, for the time being, be dismissed from consideration. All that we have asked for is equality in the eye of the law with Europeans in respect of the right of entry. It should be remembered that we are fighting for the restoration of this equality, which we enjoyed before the legislation in question was passed, as well during the Boer regime as after the British occupation, that is, up to the close of the year 1906. The doctrine laid down by the Transvaal Government, and assented to by the Imperial Government cuts at the foundation of the Empire. In the words of Lord Ampthill, who has made the cause his own:

It is a matter which touches the honour of our race and affects the unity of the Empire as a whole; it, therefore, concerns every part of the Empire. Moreover, it is certain that any departure from principle, which may be sanctioned or ignored at the heart of the Empire, will operate as a mischievous example to other places inside and out, and then only by some rude shock to the whole system will the arrest of moral decay be possible.

Further on His Lordship states:

Theory can be modified in practice to suit the exigencies of time and place, but if theory is cast to the winds, there is no means of steering practice.

I cannot place our position in clearer terms. If the doctrine of the Transvaal Government be true, the people of India cease to be partners in the Empire, and it is in order to resist this dangerous, immoral and pestilent doctrine that we in the Transvaal are fighting. How is India, including Anglo-India, to help in this national struggle? It should be remembered that we have taken practical steps for seeking redress, that is, we are suffering in our own persons by disregarding a law which we hold to be repugnant to our conscience and to religion in the highest sense of the term. Hundreds of Indians, otherwise illiterate, drawn from all classes, have gone to gaol to vindicate their ideal. Will not India come to the rescue? Will she not make this the all-important issue? Will the Congress give it the most prominent place in its programme? Will the reformed Legislative Council assert its right dignity by undertaking to solve the problem? Whether all this is done or not, may I conclude by assuring the public in India that the fight in the Transvaal will go on so long as a single passive resister is left alive, and I very much question whether the death of every resister can end a struggle such as the Transvaal Indians are engaged in.

1 These are from his introduction to Doke’s biography of Gandhiji; vide Appendix “Lord Amthills’ Letter to Gandhiji”.

234 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI

1 am, etc.,
M. K. GANDHI

Gujarati, 5-12-1909

157. SPEECH AT FAREWELL MEETING
[London, November 12, 1909]

Mr. Gandhi said he was thankful to Mr. Meyer for having called the meeting and given his colleague and him an opportunity of making a statement with reference to the very difficult position of the British Indians in the Transvaal. He thought the caution Mr. Meyer had uttered with reference to what they had been doing in the Transvaal was a very proper caution; they did not come before the public of England for an endorsement of every step they had taken in the struggle, but to receive their generous support, their sympathy and their encouragement, in the arduous struggle in

1 A meeting to bid farewell to Gandhiji and Hajee Habib on the eve of their departure for South Africa was held at Westminster Palace Hotel. Among the guests were Dr. Rutherford, M. P., Sir Raymond West, Sir Frederick Lely, Sir Muncherjee Bhownagree, J. M. Parikh, the Hon’ble Mr. Khare, Motilal Nehru and L. W. Ritch. Rev. F. B. Meyer, the host, introduced Gandhiji and Hajee Habib. Speeches were made by Sir Raymond West and Sir Frederick Lely besides Gandhiji. This is an extract from a report in Indian Opinion.

2 Rev. Meyer had observed: “He thought their presence there did not endorse in every particular all Mr. Gandhi’s works and acts in the long and arduous agitation he had been conducting. If a man made no mistakes, he made nothing. No man had not had to regret some word or act which might have been said or performed better, but, on the whole, their presence at that meeting was their endorsement of a struggle of a singularly pure character and unselfish methods, and he felt they represented a very large number of men who were watching this conflict with interest and who felt that they could not but contribute their influence to it.”
which they were engaged. The question upon which he would venture to occupy their attention for a few minutes was, in his humble opinion, a question of the most solemn importance, not only to the British Indians of the Transvaal, who were engaged in that struggle, but to the whole of the British Empire. It was perfectly true that a certain offer had been made in connection with the struggle, and Mr. Meyer had placed the position quite correctly before them in stating that they declined to accept the offer that had been made because it did not touch the principle for which they were fighting. There were in South Africa nearly 150,000 British Indians who had been settled there for close upon forty years, if not longer. The immigration of British Indians commenced with the system of Indentured Labour in Natal. This was followed by the advent of free British Indians who paid their own passage and these free British Indians it was who had excited the trade jealousy of their rivals in commerce; hence the present British Indian problem in South Africa. The position they occupied in that country was a very difficult and a very delicate position. It was also exceedingly precarious. In Natal, at the Cape, in the Orange Free State, and in the Transvaal, there existed legislation which hurt their feelings, which hurt their self-respect, and which deprived them of many avenues of earning an honest livelihood. In the Transvaal particularly, the position had become exceedingly acute. Before the War, they could not hold landed property. They had, of course, no Burgher rights. They could live only in Locations. They might not walk on the footpaths nor ride on tram cars. With regard to the living in Locations, that difficulty had now been removed, although this was not because of the good-will of the Government, but because a flaw was discovered in the laws of the country. All the other restrictions, it would be seen, vitally affected the position of British Indians in the Transvaal, as also throughout South Africa. Hitherto, that is up to the year 1906, they had been able to put up with these restrictions. They had had to suffer all these disabilities. They had memorialised the Government, they had gone to the British Agent. His friend and co-delegate, Mr. Hajee Habib, could tell them that, during his stay in Pretoria as a merchant of some standing, he had been times without number to the British Agent before the last War, for relief, but very little had been granted. Still there had been the British Agent to fall back upon, who had given them some sympathy and had sometimes obtained a measure of redress, but they had not felt called upon to go beyond taking these steps. When, however, in 1906, the law about which he had to address them was passed, he felt that that was the coping stone of an edifice that was erected in order to degrade them and to drive them out of South Africa. That legislation, as he had elsewhere said, was conceived in distrust, it was born in an atmosphere of criminality, and it was nurtured in arrogant high-handedness. When that legislation was brought in, all kinds of charges were brought against his community, and had since been disproved, and it constituted an attack on their conscience and, he would say, upon their religion also in the truest and highest sense of the word, for it took away from them their manhood. They felt it was utterly impossible to accept legislation of that character. They again approached the Government. He would here add also that the object of that legislation was not only to degrade them, but was, together with the legislation that had been foreshadowed by the gentleman who had introduced that legislation, to put a barrier upon British Indian immigration into the Transvaal. This legislation was to be undertaken for the first time in the history of Colonial legislation. His community realised what all this meant. It was an attempt of the Transvaal Government to introduce into the Statute-book of the Colony the principle that British Indians might not enter the Transvaal because they were British Indians. They felt that very keenly. They felt that it was degrading to the national spirit and their manhood to accept such legislation and to remain in the Colony, and be satisfied simply with having petitioned and memorialised the Government in a matter of such very serious import, and it was for that reason that, when all attempts to secure justice and the removal of this bar sinister had failed, his friend and colleague, Mr. Hajee Habib, had administered an oath in a Johannesburg theatre to all assembled at a mass meeting of British Indians—a meeting of nearly two thousand—not to submit to any legislation of such sinister import, and that meeting had risen as one man and had declared solemnly that, if that legislation were sanctioned by the Imperial Government, they would not accept it but would suffer the penalties for breaking it. Here, they would see, was no personal interest to serve. So long as it was a personal matter, so long as it touched their pockets only, they had put up with the disabilities under which they worked, but when it constituted a reflection on their national honour, when it meant they were not to be considered equal to Europeans even with respect to immigration, and saw that the very foundations upon which the British Constitution is built were being endangered by the Transvaal Colony, they felt that it was time for them to act more vigorously and they had before them two alternatives. One was to meet violence with violence. They rejected that doctrine. What was the other alternative? It was decided by the leaders of the community that they would not adopt any violent method, but that they would not accept this legislation and, instead, would suffer in their own persons the penalties provided. This method had been called, for want of a better phrase, Passive Resistance. He did not know how he could define the meaning he would like to attach to this term. He had been wondering how he could make their attitude clear to his audience, but an incident from the Bible occurred to him—a chapter in the life of Daniel, and he would say that the British Indians in the Transvaal had been doing what Daniel did when he was called upon to accept the laws of the Medes and the Persians, He regretted to have to say that the Imperial Government were party to this crime. They need not have accepted this legislation. They might have known that this legislation would deeply wound the susceptibilities of British Indians, and render it impossible for them to accept it while retaining their self-respect, and they might have stayed the hand of the Transvaal administration. They might have at least hesitated before they set their hand to such a document, but under the exigencies of party politics they had yielded. He could not suggest under what other motives they had lent their countenance to such a law. They (Indians) felt that acceptance was impossible, and so they became passive resisters. In effect they said to the Transvaal Government: “We will fill your gaols and suffer all the penalties you will put us to, but it is impossible for us to accept this law.” He must pause and ask himself what was the meaning of the British Constitution. Did it not confer equality upon the different members of the Empire comprised in the British Constitution? He could understand that. He could consent to remain a subject of an Empire based upon this principle, but, in the light of his experience, he must declare it was utterly impossible for him to give his allegiance to an Empire in which he was not to be treated, even in theory, as an equal of any other member of that Empire. If he was to be treated as an inferior, then he would never aspire to a position of equality. He might be content to be a member of an Empire in which he participated to the extent even of a one per cent. share, but if he was to be merely a slave, then the Empire had absolutely no meaning for him. The term “British subject” then became meaningless to him, and it was this effect of that legislation that he would like to impress upon the meeting, and which they had been feeling for the last three years. This legislation of the Colony of the Transvaal was cutting at the root of the British Empire, and in resisting the doctrine implied by such legislation, they had been rendering a service not only to British India but to the British Empire. They were undoubtedly offering passive resistance not only to the Transvaal Government but to the Imperial Government, and he hoped that meeting would tell him in no uncertain voice that they were doing rightly in doing so (“hear, hear,” and applause). They felt they could not do less and deserve to be members of the British Empire—they would not deserve to be partners in the Empire and, unless there was partnership there could not be Empire. He had therefore not hesitated to say that this struggle was one of the greatest of modern times, and this was so because of the great principle at stake, because of the pure ideal for which they were fighting and, lastly, because of the pure methods they had adopted in endeavouring to attain that ideal. What was the offer that had now been made? It was that this legislation should be repealed, but the condition it was sought to impose was that British Indians shall not in future enter the Transvaal on terms of equality in the eye of the law with Europeans. The Transvaal Government were quite willing to stant British Indians the incidence that would flow from this change of legislation, namely, that a few British Indians would be able on sufferance to enter the Transvaal. They (British Indians) were not satisfied with that. As an illustration, let them suppose a matter telling his slave: “You may sit at the table with me, and live with me: you may enjoy all these privileges, but on this condition, that this bond of slavery shall always exist between us.” Could they suppose the slave would be satisfied? Could the slave be satisfied even with the highest place at that table, whilst the taint of slavery existed? Was it not clear that acquiescence was impossible so long as that bar remained—so long as the taint of slavery was unremoved? They could not accept as sufficient what was now offered by the Colonial Government; hence, they had come to appeal to the British public for their sympathy and support in this struggle. He realised that it was impossible for the Imperial Government to force by arms the hands of the Transvaal Government, and they as passive resisters could not even ask them to appeal to force. They themselves used no force. They asked nobody to use physical violence in their behalf, but they did think that the British public should know what that struggle meant, should learn that 50 per cent of the resident community had already been in the gaols, should know also that one young man had already died of pneumonia contracted in the gaols, that fathers and sons had together gone to gaol, that mothers had taken up baskets and sold fruit in the streets in order to support themselves and their children whilst their husbands were in gaol, that many families had been pauperised and had had to be supported out of contributions. If they, at that meeting, thought that the ideals that had led the passive resisters cheerfully to experience these sufferings appealed to them, they should send that little community of passive resisters their encouragement and sympathy and a word of cheer. They might at least show the Imperial Government that they would be no party to this crime against Imperial conscience. They in the Transvaal knew that they must not rely upon sympathy in England but upon their own strength, and he (Mr. Gandhi) felt that they had that strength. He felt that, so long as a single passive resister was left alive, he would continue the struggle. He had just received a cable from Johannesburg which told him that they were determined to continue to the end. This was a message sent not only from the British Indian Association, but included the small band of European workers who had formed a Committee under Mr. William Hosken, a Member of the Legislative Assembly, and he would ask his hearers to imitate that European Committee and to give them all the encouragement they could, and so hasten the end of their sufferings.

---

Indian Opinion, 11-12-1909

---

1 Sir Raymond West and Sir Frederick Lely spoke next. At the conclusion of the meeting, the following resolution was unanimously passed: “That this meeting desires to express its earnest sympathy with the Transvaal British Indians in their peaceful and selfless struggle for civic rights and to offer its warmest encouragement to them in this struggle.”
The letter translated below calls for an explanation.

Count Tolstoy is a Russian nobleman. He has had his full share of life’s pleasures, and was once a valiant soldier. He has no equal among European writers. After much experience and study, he has come to the conclusion that the political policies generally followed in the world are quite wrong. The chief reason for that, according to him, is that we are vengeful, a habit unworthy of us and contrary to the tenets of all religions. He believes that to return injury for injury does harm both to ourselves and our enemy. According to him, we should not retaliate against anyone who may injure us, but reward him with love instead. He is uncompromising in his loyalty to the principle of returning good for evil.

He does not mean by this that those who suffer must seek no redress. He believes rather that we invite suffering on ourselves through our own fault. An oppressor’s efforts will be in vain if we refuse to submit to his tyranny. Generally, no one will kick me for the mere fun of it. There must be some deeper reason for his doing so. He will kick me to bend me to his will if I have been opposing him. If, in spite of the kicks, I refuse to carry out his orders, he will stop kicking me. It would make no difference to me whether he did so or not. What matters to me is the fact that his order is unjust. Slavery consists in submitting to an unjust order, not in suffering ourselves to be kicked. Real courage and humanity consist in not returning a kick for a kick. This is the core of Tolstoy’s teaching.

The letter translated below was originally written in Russian. It was rendered into English by Tolstoy himself and sent to the editor of Free Hindustan in reply to a letter of his. This editor holds different views from Tolstoy’s and hence he did not publish the letter.

---

1 This is the Preface to the Gujarati translation of Tolstoy’s letter dated December 14, 1908.
2 Not reproduced here
3 By one of Tolstoy’s translators; vide the following item, p. 3.
It reached my hands and a friend asked me whether or not it should be published. I liked the letter. What I saw was a copy of the original letter I sent it to Tolstoy and sought his permission to publish it, asking him at the same time whether the letter was in fact written by him. ¹ His permission having been received, ² both the English version of the letter and a Gujarati translation are being published in Indian Opinion. ³

To me Tolstoy’s letter is of great value. Anyone who has enjoyed the experience of the Transvaal struggle will perceive its value readily enough. A handful of Indian satyagrahis have pitted love or soul-force against the might of the Transvaal Government’s guns. That is the central principle of Tolstoy’s teaching, of the teaching of all religions. Khuda-Ishwar⁴ has endowed our soul with such strength that sheer brute force is of no avail against it. We have been employing that strength against the Transvaal Government not out of hatred or with a view to revenge, but merely in order to resist its unjust order.

But those who have not known what a happy experience satyagraha can be, who have been caught up in the toils of this huge sham of modern civilization, like moths flitting round a flame, will find no interest in Tolstoy’s letter all at once. Such men should pause for a moment and reflect.

Tolstoy gives a simple answer to those Indians who appear impatient to drive the whites out of India. We are [according to him] our own slaves, not of the British. This should be engraved in our minds. The whites cannot remain if we do not want them. If the idea is to drive them out with firearms, let every Indian consider what precious little profit Europe has found in these.

Everyone would be happy to see India free. But there are as many views as men on how that can be brought about. Tolstoy points out a simple way to such men.

Tolstoy has addressed this letter to a Hindu and that is why it cites thoughts from Hindu scriptures. Such thoughts, however, are to be found in the scriptures of every religion. They are such as will be acceptable to all, Hindus, Muslims and Parsis. Religious practices and ¹ Vide “Letter to Leo Tolstoy”, 1-10-1909.

² Vide “Appendix, Tolstoy’s Letter to Gandhiji”, 7-10-1909.
³ Of 25-12-1909, 1-1-1910 & 8-1-1910
⁴ God
dogmas may differ, but the principles of ethics must be the same in all religions. I therefore advise all readers to think [only] of ethics.

No one should assume that I accept all the ideas of Tolstoy.¹ I look upon him as one of my teachers. But I certainly do not agree with all his ideas. The central principle of his teaching is entirely acceptable to me, and it is set out in the letter given below.

In this letter, he has not spared the superstitions of any religion. That is, however, no reason why any proud follower of Hinduism or of any other religion should oppose his teaching. It should suffice for us that he accepts the fundamental principles of every religion. When irreligion poses as religion, as it so often does, even true religion suffers. Tolstoy points this out repeatedly. We must pay the utmost attention to his thought whatever the religion we belong to.

In translating [the letter], I have endeavoured to use the simplest possible Gujarati. I have been mindful of the fact that readers of Indian Opinion prefer simple language. Moreover, I want Tolstoy’s letter to be read by thousands of Gujarati Indians, and difficult language may prove tedious reading to such large numbers. Though all this has been kept in mind, slightly difficult words may have been occasionally used when simpler ones were not available, for which I apologize to the readers.

MOHANDAS KARAMCHAND GANDHI

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 25-12-1909

159. PREFACE TO LEO TOLSTOY’S “LETTER TO A HINDOO”

S. S. KILDONAN CASTLE
November 19, 1909

The letter that is printed below² is a translation prepared by one of Tolstoy’s translators of his letter written in Russian in reply to a letter from the Editor of the Free Hindustan. The letter, after having passed from hand to hand, at last came into my possession through a friend who asked me, as one much interested in Tolstoy’s writings, whether I thought it to be worth publishing. I at once replied in the affirmative and told him I should translate it myself into Gujarati and induce others to translate and publish it into various Indian vernaculars.

¹ Gandhiji did not agree with Tolstoy’s ideas on reincarnation; vide “Letter to Leo Tolstoy”, 1-10-1909.

The letter as received by me was a typewritten copy. It was, therefore, referred to the author who confirmed it as his and kindly granted me permission to print it.

To me, as a humble follower of that great teacher whom I have long looked upon as one of my guides, it is a matter of honour to be connected with the publication of his letter, such, especially, as the one which is now being given to the world.

It is a mere statement of fact to say that every Indian, whether he owns up to it or not, has national aspirations. But there are as many opinions as there are Indian nationalists, as to the exact meaning of that aspiration and more especially as to the methods to be used to attain the end.

One of the accepted and “time-honoured” methods to attain the end is that of violence. The assassination of Sir Curzon Wylie was an illustration in its worst and [most] detestable form of that method. Tolstoy’s life has been devoted to replacing the method of violence for removing tyranny or securing reform by the method of non-resistance to evil. He would meet hatred expressed in violence by love expressed in self-suffering. He admits of no exception to whittle down this great and divine law of Love. He applies it to all the problems that worry mankind.

When a man like Tolstoy, one of the clearest thinkers in the western world, one of the greatest writers, one who, as a soldier, has known what violence is and what it can do, condemns Japan for having blindly followed the law of modern science, falsely so-called, and fears for that country “the greatest calamities”, it is for us to pause and consider whether, in our impatience of English rule, we do not want to replace one evil by another and a worse. India, which is

---

1 Vide “Letter to Leo Tolstoy”, 1-10-1909.
3 Political Aide-de-Camp to the Secretary of State for India was shot dead by a Punjabi student, Madan Lal Dhingra, on July 1, 1909 at a reception by the National Indian Association at the Imperial Institute in South Kensington, London; vide “London”, After 16-7-109.
the nursery of the great faiths of the world, will cease to be nationalist India, whatever else it may become, when it goes through the process of civilisation in the shape of reproduction on that sacred soil of gun factories and hateful industrialism, which has reduced the people of Europe to a state of slavery and all but stifled among them the best instincts, which are the heritage of the human family.

If we do not want the English in India, we must pay the price. Tolstoy indicates it.

Do not resist evil, but also yourselves participate not in evil, in the violent deeds of the administration of the law courts, the collection of taxes and, what is more important, of the soldiers, and no one in the world will enslave you, passionately declares the sage of Yasnaya Polyana. Who can question the truth of what he says in the following:

A commercial company enslaved a nation comprising 200 millions. Tell this to a man free from superstition and he will fail to grasp what these words mean. What does it mean that thirty thousand people, not athletes but rather weak and ill-looking, have enslaved 200 millions of vigorous, clever, strong, freedom-loving people? Do not the figures make it clear that not the English but the Indians have enslaved themselves?

One need not accept all that Tolstoy says—some of his facts are not accurately stated—to realise the central truth of his indictment of the present system which is to understand and act upon the irresistible power of the soul over the body, of love, which is an attribute of the soul, over the brute or body force generated by the stirring up in us of evil passions.

There is no doubt that there is nothing new in what Tolstoy preaches. But his presentation of the old truth is refreshingly forceful. His logic is unassailable. And, above all, he endeavours to practise what he preaches. He preaches to convince. He is sincere and in earnest. He commands attention.

M. K. GANDHI

Indian Opinion, 25-12-1909

---

1 The original has “she”.
PREFACE

I have written some chapters on the subject of Indian Home Rule which I venture to place before the readers of Indian Opinion. I have written because I could not restrain myself. I have read much, I have pondered much, during the stay, for four months' in London, of the Transvaal Indian deputation. I discussed things with as many of my countrymen as I could. I met, too, as many Englishmen as it was 1 This was originally written in Gujarati during Gandhiji’s return journey from England on the Kildonan Castle and published in Indian Opinion, the first twelve chapters on 11-12-1909 and the rest on 18-12-1909. Issued as a booklet in January 1910, it was proscribed in India by the Government of Bombay on March 24, 1910; vide “Our Publications”, (7-5-1910). This hastened Gandhiji’s decision to publish the English translation; vide “Preface to Hind Swaraj”, (20-3-1910). This was issued by the International Printing Press, Phoenix, with a foreword by Gandhiji dated March 20, 1910 and also the English translation of the Gujarati foreword dated November 22, 1909, reproduced here.

The text adopted here is that of the Revised New Edition published in 1939 by the Navajivan Press, Ahmedabad. Their first edition appeared in 1938 with a preface by Mahadev Desai, who also wrote (in the Harijan, 10-9-1938) an article on the Hind Swaraj Special Number of The Aryan Path (September 1938). This article of Desai’s and a message from Gandhiji dated July 14, 1938 were included in the 1939 edition, the proofs of which had been, as Mahadev Desai states in his introductory lines dated December 11, 1938, “revised by numerous friends”. Gandhiji discusses Hind Swaraj in the article “The Unbridgeable Gulf”, Harijan, 14-10-1939.

Ganesh & Co., Madras, brought out the first Indian edition in 1919 with Gandhiji’s foreword dated May 28, 1919. Their fourth edition came out in 1921 with Gandhiji’s article “Hind Swaraj or Indian Home Rule” in Young India, 26-1-1921. Their sixth edition was issued in 1924. In the same year appeared an American edition by H. T. Mazumdar with the title Sermon on the Sea.

Significant variations between the Revised New Edition of 1939 and the Gujarati original published in Indian Opinion in December 1909 are indicated in the footnotes.

2 “Twenty”, according to the original Preface in Gujarati
3 July 10 to November 13
4 The original has: “I have read much, I have pondered much. Also, during my four months’ stay in London in connection with the work of the Transvaal Indian Deputation I discussed.”
possible for me to meet. I consider it my duty now to place before the readers of Indian Opinion the conclusions, which appear to me to be final. The Gujarati subscribers of Indian Opinion number about 800. I am aware that, for every subscriber, there are at least ten persons who read the paper with zest. Those who cannot read Gujarati have the paper read out to them. Such persons have often questioned me about the condition of India. Similar questions were addressed to me in London. I felt, therefore, that it might not be improper for me to ventilate publicly the views expressed by me in private.

These views are mine, and yet not mine. They are mine because I hope to act according to them. They are almost a part of my being. But, yet, they are not mine, because I lay no claim to originality. They have been formed after reading several books. That which I dimly felt received support from these books.

The views I venture to place before the reader are, needless to say, held by many Indians not touched by what is known as civilization, but I ask the reader to believe me when I tell him that they are also held by thousands of Europeans. Those who wish to dive deep, and have time, may read certain books themselves. If time permits me, I hope to translate portions of such books for the benefit of the readers of Indian Opinion.

If the readers of Indian Opinion and others who may see the following chapters will pass their criticism on to me, I shall feel obliged to them.

The only motive is to serve my country, to find out the Truth, and to follow it. If, therefore, my views are proved to be wrong, I shall have no hesitation in rejecting them. If they are proved to be right, I would naturally wish, for the sake of the motherland, that others should adopt them.

To make it easy reading, the chapters are written in the form of a dialogue between the reader and the editor.

Mohandas Karamchand Gandhi

KILDONAN CASTLE,

22-11-1909

[From Gujarati]

1 Vide “Some Authorities”, Appendix I to Hind Swaraj
CHAPTER I: THE CONGRESS AND ITS OFFICIALS

READER: Just at present there is a Home Rule wave passing over India. All our countrymen appear to be pining for National Independence. A similar spirit pervades them even in South Africa. Indians seem to be eager to acquire rights. Will you explain your views in this matter?

EDITOR: You have put the question well, but the answer is not easy. One of the objects of a newspaper is to understand popular feeling and to give expression to it; another is to arouse among the people certain desirable sentiments; and the third is fearlessly to expose popular defects.\(^1\) The exercise of all these three functions is involved in answering your question. To a certain extent the people’s will has to be expressed, certain sentiments will need to be fostered, and defects will have to be brought to light.\(^2\) But, as you have asked the question, it is my duty to answer it.

READER: Do you then consider that a desire for Home Rule has been created among us?

EDITOR: That desire gave rise to the National Congress.\(^3\) The choice of the word “National” implies it.

READER: That, surely, is not the case. Young India seems to ignore the Congress. It is considered to be an instrument for perpetuating British Rule.

EDITOR: That opinion is not justified. Had not the Grand Old Man\(^4\) of India prepared the soil, our young men could not have even spoken about Home Rule. How can we what Mr. Hume\(^5\) has written, how he has lashed us into action, and with what effort he has awakened us, in order to achieve the objects of the Congress? Sir William Wedderburn\(^6\) has given his body, min and money to the same cause. His writings\(^7\) are worthy of perusal to this day. Professor

\(^1\) The original adds: “whatever the difficulties in the way”.
\(^2\) The original has: “and the defects will have to be condemned”.
\(^3\) The original has: “That has been evident since the National Congress was established.”
\(^4\) Dadabhai Naoroji (1825-1917), also vide “The Grand Old Man of India”, 3-9-1910.
\(^5\) A. O. Hume, one of the founders of the Indian National Congress.
\(^6\) President, Indian National Congress at Bombay (1889) and at Allahabad (1910)
\(^7\) The original adds: “on British rule”.

VOL. 10 : 5 AUGUST, 1909 - 9 APRIL, 1910  247
Gokhale in order to prepare the nation, embraced poverty and gave twenty years of his life. Even now, he is living in poverty. The late Justice Budruddin Tyebji was also one of those who, through the Congress, sowed the seed of Home Rule. Similarly, in Bengal, Madras, the Punjab and other places, there have been lovers of India and members of the Congress, both Indian and English.

READER: Stay, stay; you are going too far, you are straying away from my question. I have asked you about Home or Self-Rule; you are discussing foreign rule. I do not desire to hear English names, and you are giving me such names. In these circumstances, I do not think we can ever meet. I shall be pleased if you will confine yourself to Home Rule. All other talk will not satisfy me.

EDITOR: You are impatient. I cannot afford to be likewise. If you will bear with me for a while, I think you will find that you will obtain what you want. Remember the old proverb that the tree does not grow in one day. The fact that you have checked me and that you do not want to hear about the well-wishers of India shows that, for you at any rate, Home Rule is yet far away. If we had many like you, we would never make any advance. This thought is worthy of your attention.

READER: It seems to me that you simply want to put me off by talking round and round. Those whom you consider to be wellwishers of India are not such in my estimation. Why, then, should I listen to your discourse on such people? What has he whom you consider to be the Father of the Nation done for it? He says that the English Governors will do justice and that we should co-operate with them.

EDITOR: I must tell you, with all gentleness, that it must be a matter of shame for us that you should speak about that great man in terms of disrespect. Just look at his work. He has dedicated his life to the service of India. We have learned what we know from him. It was the respected Dadabhai who taught us that the English had sucked our life-blood. What does it matter that, today, his trust is still in the English nation? Is Dadabhai less to be honoured because, in the

---

1 Distinguished Indian leader and statesman, educationist and reformer;
2 Judge of the Bombay High Court and President of the Indian National Congress at Madras (1887); vide footnote of “the Late Mr. Tata”, 20-5-1905.
3 The original has: “This fine talk about other things will not satisfy me.” The first Indian edition had: “All other wise talk . . .”
4 The original has: “Whose services, then, must I hear about?”
exuberance of youth, we are prepared to go a step further? Are we, on that account, wiser than he? It is a mark of wisdom not to kick away the very step from which we have risen higher. The removal\(^1\) of a step from a staircase brings down the whole of it. When, out of infancy, we grow into youth, we do not despise infancy, but on the contrary, we recall with affection the days of our childhood. If, after many years of study, a teacher were to teach me something, and if I were to build a little more on the foundation laid by that teacher, I would not, on that account, be considered wiser than the teacher. He would always command my respect. Such is the case with the Grand Old Man of India. We must admit that he is the author of nationalism.\(^2\)

READER: You have spoken well. I can now understand that we must look upon Mr. Dadabhai with respect. Without him and men like him, we should probably not have the spirit that fires us. How can the same be said of Professor Gokhale? He has constituted himself a great friend of the English; he says that we have to learn a great deal from them, that we have to learn their political wisdom, before we can talk of Home Rule. I am tired of reading his speeches.

EDITOR: If you are tired, it only betrays your impatience. We believe that those, who are discontented with the slowness of their parents and are angry because the parents would not run with their children, are considered disrespectful to their parents. Professor Gokhale occupies the place of a parent. What does it matter if he cannot run with us? A nation that is desirous of securing Home Rule cannot afford to despise its ancestors. We shall become useless, if we lack respect for our elders. Only men with mature thoughts are capable of ruling themselves and not the hasty-tempered. Moreover, how many Indians were there like Professor Gokhale, when he gave himself to Indian education? I verily believe that whatever Professor Gokhale does, he does with pure motives and with a view to serving India. His devotion to the Motherland is so great that he would give his life for it, if necessary. Whatever he says is said not to flatter anyone but because he believes it to be true. We are bound, therefore, to entertain the highest regard for him.

READER: Are we, then, to follow him in every respect?

EDITOR: I never said any such thing. If we conscientiously differed from him, the learned Professor himself would advise us to follow the dictates of our conscience rather than him. Our chief purpose is not to decry his work, but to believe that he is infinitely greater than we are, and to feel assured that compared with his work for India, ours is infinitesimal. Several newspapers write disrespectfully of him. It is our duty to protest against such writings. We should consider men like Professor Gokhale to be the pillars of Home Rule. It is a bad habit to say that another man’s thoughts are bad and ours only are good and that those holding different views from ours are the enemies of the country.

---

\(^1\) The original has: “It must be remembered that the removal.”

\(^2\) The original has: “that he gave a lead to the Indian people.”

READER: I now begin to understand somewhat your meaning. I shall have to think the matter over. But what you say about Mr. Hume and Sir William Wedderburn is beyond my comprehension.

EDITOR: The same rule holds good for the English as for the Indians. I can never subscribe to the statement that all Englishmen are bad. Many Englishmen desire Home Rule for India. That the English people are somewhat more selfish than others is true, but that does not prove that every Englishman is bad. We who seek justice will have to do justice to others. Sir William does not wish ill to India—that should be enough for us. As we proceed, you will see that, if we act justly, India will be sooner free. You will see, too, that if we shun every Englishman as an enemy, Home Rule will be delayed. But if we are just to them, we shall receive their support in our progress towards the goal.

READER: All this seems to me at present to be simply nonsensical. English support and the obtaining of Home Rule are two contradictory things. How can the English people tolerate Home Rule for us? But I do not want you to decide this question for me just yet. To spend time over it is useless. When you have shown how we can have Home Rule, perhaps I shall understand your views. You have prejudiced me against you by discoursing on English help. I would therefore, beseech you not to continue this subject.

EDITOR: I have no desire to do so. That you are prejudiced against me is not a matter for much anxiety. It is well that I should say unpleasant things at the commencement. It is my duty patiently to try to remove your prejudice.

READER: I like that last statement. It emboldens me to say what I like. One thing still puzzles me. I do not understand how the Congress laid the foundation of Home Rule.

EDITOR: Let us see. The Congress brought together Indians from different parts of India, and enthused us with the idea of nationality. The Government used to look upon it with disfavour. The Congress has always insisted that the Nation should control revenue and expenditure. It has always desired self-government after the Canadian model. Whether we can get it or not, whether we desire it or not, and whether there is not something more desirable, are different questions. All I have to show is that the Congress gave us a foretaste of Home Rule. To deprive it of the honour is not proper,¹ and for us to do so would not only be ungrateful, but retard the fulfilment of our object. To treat the Congress² as an institution inimical to our growth as a nation would disable us from using that body.

CHAPTER II: THE PARTITION OF BENGAL

READER: Considering the matter as you put it, it seems proper to say that the foundation of Home Rule was laid by the Congress. But you will admit that this cannot be considered a real awakening. When and how did the real awakening take place?

EDITOR: The seed is never seen. It works underneath the ground, is itself destroyed, and the tree which rises above the ground is alone seen. Such is the case with the Congress. Yet, what you call the real awakening took place after the Partition of Bengal. For this we have to be thankful to Lord Curzon. At the time of the Partition,³ the people of Bengal reasoned with Lord Curzon, but in the pride of power he disregarded all their prayers. He took it for granted that Indians could only prattle, that they could never take any effective steps. He used insulting language, and in the teeth of all opposition partitioned Bengal. That day may be considered to be the day of the partition of the British Empire. The shock the British power received through the Partition has never been equalled by any other act. This does not mean that the other injustices done to India are less glaring than that done by the Partition. The salt-tax is not a small injustice. We shall see many such things later on. But the people were ready to resist the Partition. At that time feeling ran high. Many leading Bengalis were ready to lose their all. They knew their power; hence the conflagration. It is now well-nigh unquenchable; it is not necessary to quench it either. The Partition will go, Bengal will be reunited, but the rift in the English barque will remain; it must daily widen. India awakened is not likely to fall asleep. The demand for the abrogation of the Partition is tantamount to a demand for Home Rule. Leaders in Bengal know this. British officials realize it. That is why the Partition still remains. As time passes, the Nation is being forged. Nations are not formed in a day; the formation requires years.

¹ The original has: “It would be improper for others to claim that honour. . . .”
² The original has: “To dissociate ourselves from the Congress and treat it. . . .”
⁴ In 1905

READER: What, in your opinion, are the results of the Partition?

EDITOR: Hitherto we have considered that for redress of grievances we must approach the throne, and if we get no redress we must sit still, except that we may still petition. After the Partition, people saw that petitions must be backed up by force, and that they must be capable of suffering. This new spirit must be considered to be the chief result of the Partition. That spirit was seen in the outspoken writings in the Press. That which the people said tremulously and in secret began to be said and to be written publicly. The Swadeshi movement was inaugurated. People, young and old, used to run away at the sight of an English face; it now no longer awes them. They do not fear even a row, or being imprisoned. Some of the best sons of India are at present in banishment. This is something different from mere petitioning. That which the people said tremblingly and in secret began to be said and to be written publicly. The Swadeshi movement was inaugurated. People, young and old, used to run away at the sight of an English face; it now no longer awes them. They do not fear even a row, or being imprisoned. Some of the best sons of India are at present in banishment. This is something different from mere petitioning. Thus are the people moved. The spirit generated in Bengal has spread in the north to the Punjab, and in the south to Cape Comorin.

READER: Do you suggest any other striking result?

EDITOR: The Partition has not only made a rift in the English ship but has made it in ours also. Great events always produce great results. Our leaders are divided into two parties: the Moderates and the Extremists. These may be considered as the slow party and the impatient party. Some call the Moderates the timid party, and the Extremists the bold party. All interpret the two words according to their preconceptions. This much is certain—that there has arisen an enmity between the two. The one distrusts the other and imputes motives. At the time of the Surat Congress there was almost a fight. I think that this division is not a good thing for the country, but I think also that such divisions will not last long. It all depends upon the leaders how long they will last.

CHAPTER III: DISCONTENT AND UNREST

READER: Then you consider the Partition to be a cause of the awakening? Do you welcome the unrest which has resulted from it?

---

1. Bal Gangadhar Tilak, the Father of Indian Unrest, was in Mandalay prison at this time.
2. In 1907
EDITOR: When a man rises from sleep, he twists his limbs and is restless. It takes some time before he is entirely awakened. Similarly, although the Partition has caused an awakening, the comatose condition has not yet disappeared. We are still twisting our limbs and are still restless, and just as the state between sleep and awakening must be considered to be necessary, so may the present unrest in India be considered a necessary and, therefore, a proper state. The knowledge that there is unrest will, it is highly probable, enable us to outgrow it. Rising from sleep, we do not continue in a comatose state, but according to our ability, sooner or later, we are completely restored to our senses. So shall we be free from the present unrest which no one likes.

READER: WHAT IS THE OTHER FORM OF UNREST?

EDITOR: Unrest is, in reality, discontent. The latter is only now described as unrest. During the Congress period, it was labelled discontent. Mr. Hume always said that the spread of discontent in India was necessary. This discontent is a very useful thing. As long as a man is contented with his present lot, so long is it difficult to persuade him to come out of it. Therefore it is that every reform must be preceded by discontent. We throw away things we have, only when we cease to like them. Such discontent has been produced among us after reading the great works of Indians and Englishmen. Discontent has led to unrest, and the latter has brought about many deaths, many imprisonments, many banishments. Such a state of things will still continue. It must be so. All these may be considered good signs but they may also lead to bad results.

CHAPTER IV: WHAT IS SWARAJ?

1 The original adds here: “many flights. . . .”

2 Gandhiji must have had in mind the assassination of Englishmen and Indians by terrorists, who were sentenced to death or deportation or long terms of imprisonment. In 1908 Mrs. and Miss Kennedy were killed by Khudi Ram Bose, a youngster of 18, who had flung a bomb at Kingsford, the District Magistrate of Muzaffarpur in Bengal and missed him. Sub-Inspector Nandlal, who had arrested Khudi Ram Bose, was murdered, as also Narendra Gosain, approver in the Alipore Conspiracy Case, in which Aurobindo Ghosh, defended by C. R. Das, who had earlier defended B. C. Pal in sedition cases, was acquitted, in 1909, but many others were awarded heavy sentences including transportation for life. In 1909, Ganesh Savarkar was sentenced to transportation for life on a charge of writing inflammatory verses; and Ashutosh Biswas, Public Prosecutor, was shot dead, while leaving the court in Calcutta. On July 1, a few days before Gandhiji reached London, Madan Lal Dhingra had shot dead Sir Curzon Wyllie in London. Among the banishments were those in 1907 of Lala Lajpatrai and Ajit Singh of the Punjab and of B. G. Tilak who was in prison in Mandalay from 1908 to 1914.
READER: I have now learnt what the Congress has done to make India one nation, how the Partition has caused an awakening, and how discontent and unrest have spread through the land. I would now like to know your views on Swaraj. I fear that our interpretation is not the same as yours.

EDITOR: It is quite possible that we do not attach the same meaning to the term. You and I and all Indians are impatient to obtain Swaraj, but we are certainly not decided as to what it is. To drive the English out of India is a thought heard from many mouths, but it does not seem that many have properly considered why it should be so. I must ask you a question. Do you think that it is necessary to drive away the English, if we get all we want?

READER: I should ask of them only one thing, that is: “Please leave our country.” If, after they have complied with this request, their withdrawal from India means that they are still in India, I should have no objection. Then we would understand that, in their language, the word “gone” is equivalent to “remained”.

EDITOR: Well then, let us suppose that the English have retired. What will you do then?

READER: That question cannot be answered at this stage. The state after withdrawal will depend largely upon the manner of it. If, as you assume, they retire, it seems to me we shall still keep their constitution and shall carry on the Government. If they simply retire for the asking, we should have an army, etc., ready at hand. We should, therefore, have no difficulty in carrying on the Government.

EDITOR: You may think so; I do not. But I will not discuss the matter just now. I have to answer your question, and that I can do well by asking you several questions. Why do you want to drive away the English?

READER: Because India has become impoverished by their Government. They take away our money from year to year. The most important posts are reserved for themselves. We are kept in a state of slavery. They behave insolently towards us and disregard our feelings.

EDITOR: If they do not take our money away, become gentle, and give us responsible posts, would you still consider their presence to be harmful?

READER: That question is useless. It is similar to the question

1 The original has: “is taken to mean, perversely enough.”

254 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
whether there is any harm in associating with a tiger if he changes his nature. Such a question is sheer waste of time. When a tiger changes his nature, Englishmen will change theirs. This is not possible, and to believe it to be possible is contrary to human experience.

EDITOR: Supposing we get Self-Government similar to what the Canadians and the South Africans 1 have, will it be good enough?

READER: That question also is useless. We may get it when we have the same powers; 2 we shall then hoist our own flag. As is Japan, so must India be. We must own our navy, our army, and we must have our own splendour, and then will India’s voice ring through the world.

EDITOR: You have drawn the picture well. In effect it means this: that we want English rule without the Englishman. You want the tiger’s nature, but not the tiger; that is to say, you would make India English. And when it becomes English, it will be called not Hindustan but Englistan. This is not the Swaraj that I want.

READER: I have placed before you my idea of Swaraj as I think it should be. If the education we have received be of any use, if the works of Spencer, Mill and others be of any importance, and if the English Parliament be the Mother of Parliaments, I certainly think that we should copy the English people, and this to such an extent that, just as they do not allow others to obtain a footing in their country, so we should not allow them or others to obtain it in ours. What they have done in their own country has not been done in any other country. It is, therefore, proper for us to import their institutions. But now I want to know your views.

EDITOR: There is need for patience. My views will develop of themselves in the course of this discourse. It is as difficult for me to understand the true nature of Swaraj as it seems to you to be easy. I shall therefore, for the time being, content myself with endeavouring to show that what you call Swaraj is not truly Swaraj.

CHAPTER V: THE CONDITION OF ENGLAND

READER: Then from your statement I deduce that the Government of England is not desirable 3 and not worth copying by us.

1 The original has: “and it is certainly absurd of a man to believe that the impossible will be possible.”
2 The original has: “Boers”.
3 The original has: “when we have firearms in the same way that they have”.
4 The original has: “... the Government which England enjoys is not the right kind and...”
EDITOR: Your deduction is justified. The condition of England at present is pitiable. I pray to God that India may never be in that plight. That which you consider to be the Mother of Parliaments is like a sterile woman and a prostitute. Both these are harsh terms, but exactly fit the case. That Parliament has not yet, of its own accord, done a single good thing. Hence I have compared it to a sterile woman. The natural condition of that Parliament is such that, without outside pressure, it can do nothing. It is like a prostitute because it is under the control of ministers who change from time to time. Today it is under Mr. Asquith, tomorrow it may be under Mr. Balfour.

READER: You have said this sarcastically. The term “sterile woman” is not applicable. The Parliament, being elected by the people, must work under public pressure. This is its quality.

EDITOR: You are mistaken. Let us examine it a little more closely. The best men are supposed to be elected by the people. The members serve without pay and therefore, it must be assumed, only for the public weal. The electors are considered to be educated and therefore we should assume that they would not generally make mistakes in their choice. Such a Parliament should not need the spur of petitions or any other pressure. Its work should be so smooth that its effects would be more apparent day by day. But, as a matter of fact, it is generally acknowledged that the members are hypocritical and selfish. Each thinks of his own little interest. It is fear that is the guiding motive. What is done today may be undone tomorrow. It is not possible to recall a single instance in which finality can be predicted for its work. When the greatest questions are debated, its members have been seen to stretch themselves and to doze. Sometimes the members talk away until the listeners are disgusted. Carlyle has called it the “talking shop of the World”. Members vote for their party without a thought. Their so-called discipline binds them to it. If any member, by way of exception, gives an independent vote, he is considered a renegade. If the money and the time wasted by

---

1 Herbert Henry Asquith (1852-1928), Prime Minister of Great Britain, 1908-16
2 Arthur James Balfour, Prime Minister of Great Britain, 1902-05. The original adds: “and the day after, it will be somebody else”.
3 The original has: “That is its very nature, what keeps it in check.”
4 The original has: “If Parliament were not like a sterile woman, this is what we might expect.”
5 Payment to members began in 1911.
Parliament were entrusted to a few good men, the English nation would be occupying today a much higher platform. Parliament is simply a costly toy of the nation. These views are by no means peculiar to me. Some great English thinkers have expressed them. One of the members of that Parliament recently said that a true Christian could not become a member of it. Another said that it was a baby. And if it has remained a baby after an existence of seven hundred years, when will it outgrow its babyhood?

READER: You have set me thinking; you do not expect me to accept at once all you say. You give me entirely novel views. I shall have to digest them. Will you now explain the epithet “prostitute”?

EDITOR: That you cannot accept my views at once is only right. If you will read the literature on this subject, you will have some idea of it. Parliament is without a real master. Under the Prime Minister, its movement is not steady but it is buffeted about like a prostitute. The Prime Minister is more concerned about his power than about the welfare of Parliament. His energy is concentrated upon securing the success of his party. His care is not always that Parliament shall do right. Prime Ministers are known to have made Parliament do things merely for party advantage. All this is worth thinking over.

READER: Then you are really attacking the very men whom we have hitherto considered to be patriotic and honest?

EDITOR: Yes, that is true; I can have nothing against Prime Ministers, but what I have seen leads me to think that they cannot be considered really patriotic. If they are to be considered honest because they do not take what are generally known as bribes, let them be so considered, but they are open to subtler influences. In order to

---

1 The original adds: “The description of Parliament as a prostitute is also justified.” It is this sentence which probably Gandhiji had in mind when he said later in his preface, dated 28-5-1919, to Hind Swaraj published by Ganesh & Co.: “I have re-read this booklet more than once. The value at the present moment lies in reprinting it as it is. But if I had to revise it, there is only one word I would alter in accordance with a promise made to an English friend. She took exception to my use of the word ‘prostitute’ in speaking of the Parliament. Her fine taste recoiled from the indelicacy of the expression.”

2 The original adds: “It cannot be under one master all the time. But this is not all that I mean.”

3 The original has: “Even when a person becomes its master—say, the Prime Minister—it is not loyal to him all the time. Its ways are always the ways of a prostitute.”
gain their ends, they certainly bribe people with honours. I do not hesitate to say that they have neither real honesty nor a living conscience.

READER: As you express these views about Parliament, I would like to hear you on the English people, so that I may have your view of their Government.

EDITOR: To the English voters their newspaper is their Bible. They take their cue from their newspapers which are often dishonest. The same fact is differently interpreted by different newspapers, according to the party in whose interests they are edited. One newspaper would consider a great Englishman to be a paragon of honesty, another would consider him dishonest. What must be the condition of the people whose newspapers are of this type?

READER: You shall describe it.

EDITOR: These people change their views frequently. It is said that they change them every seven years. These views swing like the pendulum of a clock and are never steadfast. The people would follow a powerful orator or a man who gives them parties, receptions, etc. As are the people, so is their Parliament. They have certainly one quality very strongly developed. They will never allow their country to be lost. If any person were to cast an evil eye on it, they would pluck out his eyes. But that does not mean that the nation possesses every other virtue or that it should be imitated. If India copies England, it is my firm conviction that she will be ruined.

READER: To what do you ascribe this state of England?

EDITOR: It is not due to any peculiar fault of the English people, but the condition is due to modern civilization. It is a civilization only in name. Under it the nations of Europe are becoming degraded and ruined day by day.

CHAPTER VI: CIVILIZATION

READER: Now you will have to explain what you mean by civilization.3

EDITOR: It is not a question of what I mean. Several English

---

1 The original has: “one party magnifying its importance and the other minimising it”.
2 The original has: “join the band-wagon of any powerful orator or man…”
3 The original adds: “According to you, civilization is not civilization but the opposite of it.”
writers refuse to call that civilization which passes under that name. Many books have been written upon that subject. Societies have been formed to cure the nation of the evils of civilization. A great English writer has written a work called Civilization: Its Cause and Cure. Therein he has called it a disease.

READER: Why do we not know this generally?

EDITOR: The answer is very simple. We rarely find people arguing against themselves. Those who are intoxicated by modern civilization are not likely to write against it. Their care will be to find out facts and arguments in support of it, and this they do unconsciously, believing it to be true. A man, whilst he is dreaming, believes in his dream; he is undeceived only when he is awakened from his sleep. A man labouring under the bane of civilization is like a dreaming man. What we usually read are the works of defenders of modern civilization, which undoubtedly claims among its votaries very brilliant and even some very good men. Their writings hypnotize us. And so, one by one, we are drawn into the vortex.

READER: This seems to be very plausible. Now will you tell me something of what you have read and thought of this civilization?

EDITOR: Let us first consider what state of things is described by the word “civilization”. Its true test lies in the fact that people living in it make bodily welfare the object of life. We will take some examples. The people of Europe today live in better-built houses than they did a hundred years ago. This is considered an emblem of civilization, and this is also a matter to promote bodily happiness. Formerly, they wore skins, and used spears as their weapons. Now, they wear long trousers, and, for embellishing their bodies, they wear a variety of clothing, and, instead of spears, they carry with them revolvers containing five or more chambers. If people of a certain country, who have hitherto not been in the habit of wearing much clothing, boots, etc., adopt European clothing, they are supposed to have become civilized out of savagery. Formerly, in Europe, people ploughed their lands mainly by manual labour. Now, one man can plough a vast tract by means of steam engines and can thus amass great wealth. This is called a sign of civilization. Formerly, only a few

1 Edward Carpenter; vide Appendix I to Hind Swaraj, 15-12-1820.
2 The original has: “... an emblem of civilization. This is a matter which concerns physical comfort.”
3 The original adds: “; that is considered a sign of civilization”.
men wrote valuable books.\(^1\) Now, anybody writes and prints anything he likes and poisons people’s minds.\(^2\) Formerly, men travelled in wagons.\(^3\) Now, they fly through the air\(^4\) in trains at the rate of four hundred and more miles per day. This is considered the height of civilization. It has been stated that, as men progress, they shall be able to travel in airships and reach any part of the world in a few hours. Men will not need the use of their hands and feet. They will press a button, and they will have their clothing by their side. They will press another button, and they will have their newspaper. A third, and a motor-car will be in waiting for them. They will have a variety of delicately dished up food. Everything will be done by machinery. Formerly, when people wanted to fight with one another, they measured between them their bodily strength; now it is possible to take away thousands of lives by one man working behind a gun from a hill. This is civilization. Formerly, men worked in the open air only as much as they liked. Now thousands of workmen meet together and for the sake of maintenance work in factories or mines. Their condition is worse than that of beasts. They are obliged to work, at the risk of their lives, at most dangerous occupations, for the sake of millionaires. Formerly, men were made slaves under physical compulsion. Now they are enslaved by temptation of money and of the luxuries that money can buy. There are now diseases of which people never dreamt before, and an army of doctors is engaged in finding out their cures, and so hospitals have increased. This is a test of civilization. Formerly, special messengers were required and much expense was incurred in order to send letters; today, anyone can abuse his fellow by means of a letter for one penny. True, at the same cost, one can send one’s thanks also. Formerly, people had two or three meals consisting of home-made bread and vegetables; now, they require something to eat every two hours so that they have hardly leisure for anything else. What more need I say? All this you can ascertain from several authoritative books. These are all true tests of civilization.\(^5\) And if anyone speaks to the contrary, know that he is

\(^1\) The original has: “Only a few men wrote books, and they were esteemed very highly.”

\(^2\) The original adds: “; this is considered a sign of civilization”.

\(^3\) The original adds: “covering about 20 miles in a day”.

\(^4\) The words for “through the air” are not found in the Gujarati text.

\(^5\) The original has: “All these are indeed taken to be signs of civilization.”
This civilization takes note neither of morality nor of religion. Its votaries calmly state that their business is not to teach religion. Some even consider it to be a superstitious growth. Others put on the cloak of religion, and prate about morality. But, after twenty years' experience, I have come to the conclusion that immorality is often taught in the name of morality. Even a child can understand that in all I have described above there can be no inducement to morality. Civilization seeks to increase bodily comforts, and it fails miserably even in doing so.

This civilization is irreligion, and it has taken such a hold on the people in Europe that those who are in it appear to be half mad. They lack real physical strength or courage. They keep up their energy by intoxication. They can hardly be happy in solitude. Women, who should be the queens of households, wander in the streets or they slave away in factories. For the sake of a pittance, half a million women in England alone are labouring under trying circumstances in factories or similar institutions. This awful fact is one of the causes of the daily growing suffragette movement.

This civilization is such that one has only to be patient and it will be self-destroyed. According to the teaching of Mahomed this would be considered a Satanic Civilization. Hinduism calls it the Black Age. I cannot give you an adequate conception of it. It is eating into the vitals of the English nation. It must be shunned. Parliaments are really emblems of slavery. If you will sufficiently think over this, you will entertain the same opinion and cease to blame the English. They rather deserve our sympathy. They are a shrewd nation and I therefore believe that they will cast off the evil. They are enterprising and industrious, and their mode of thought is not inherently immoral. Neither are they bad at heart. I therefore respect them. Civilization is not an incurable disease, but it should never be forgotten that the

1 The original adds: “Civilization is what I have described it to be.”
2 The original has: “four million”.
3 The original has: “... are labouring like beasts of burden.”
4 The words for “awful” and “daily growing” are not found in the original.
5 The original adds: “That is beyond my capacity.”
6 The original adds: “It is a deadly civilization, and is bound to perish.”
7 The original adds: “These are the reasons why the British Parliament and other parliaments as well are found to be ineffective.”
8 The original has: “It is not that they cannot be cured of this disease of civilization...”
English people are at present afflicted by it.

CHAPTER VII: WHY WAS INDIA LOST?

READER: You have said much about civilization—enough to make me ponder over it. I do not now know what I should adopt and what I should avoid from the nations of Europe, but one question comes to my lips immediately. If civilization is a disease¹ and if it has attacked England, why has she been able to take India, and why is she able to retain it?

EDITOR: Your question is not very difficult to answer, and we shall presently be able to examine the true nature of Swaraj; for I am aware that I have still to answer that question. I will, however, take up your previous question. The English have not taken India; we have given it to them. They are not in India because of their strength, but because we keep them. Let us now see whether these propositions can be sustained. They came to our country originally for purposes of trade. Recall the Company’s officers who made it Bahadur². Who assisted the Company’s officers? Who was tempted at the sight of their silver? Who bought their goods? History testifies that we did all this. In order to become rich all at once we welcomed the Company’s officers with open arms. We assisted them. If I am in the habit of drinking bhang and a seller thereof sells it to me, am I to blame him or myself? By blaming the seller, shall I be able to avoid the habit? And, if a particular retailer is driven away, will not another take his place? A true servant of India will have to go to the root of the matter. If an excess of food has caused me indigestion, I shall certainly not avoid it by blaming water. He is a true physician who probes the cause of disease, and if you pose as a physician for the disease of India, you will have to find out its true cause.

READER: You are right. Now I think you will not have to argue much with me to drive your conclusions home. I am impatient to know your further views. We are now on a most interesting topic. I shall, therefore, endeavour to follow your thought, and stop you when I am in doubt.

¹ The original has: “If civilization is not civilization but the opposite of it, if it is a disease. . . .”
² East India Company
³ Literally, ‘brave’, here ‘powerful’, ‘sovereign’
EDITOR: I am afraid that, in spite of your enthusiasm, as we proceed further, we shall have differences of opinion. Nevertheless, I shall argue only when you stop me. We have already seen that the English merchants were able to get a footing in India because we encouraged them. When our Princes fought among themselves, they sought the assistance of Company Bahadur. That corporation was versed alike in commerce and war. It was unhampered by questions of morality. Its object was to increase its commerce and to make money. It accepted our assistance, and increased the number of its warehouses. To protect the latter it employed an army which was utilized by us also. Is it not then useless to blame the English for what we did at that time? The Hindus and the Mahomedans were at daggers drawn. This, too, gave the Company its opportunity and thus we created the circumstances that gave the Company its control over India. Hence it is truer to say that we gave India to the English than that India was lost.

READER: Will you now tell me how they are able to retain India?

EDITOR: The causes that gave them India enable them to retain it. Some Englishmen state that they took and they hold India by the sword. Both these statements are wrong. The sword is entirely useless for holding India. We alone keep them. Napoleon is said to have described the English as a nation of shop-keepers. It is a fitting description. They hold whatever dominions they have for the sake of their commerce. Their army and their navy are intended to protect it. When the Transvaal offered no such attractions, the late Mr. Gladstone discovered that it was not right for the English to hold it. When it became a paying proposition, resistance led to war. Mr. Chamberlain soon discovered that England enjoyed a suzerainty over the Transvaal. It is related that someone asked the late President Kruger whether there was gold in the moon. He replied that it was highly unlikely because, if there were, the English would have annexed it. Many problems can be solved by remembering that money is their God. Then it follows that we keep the English in India

1 In the original, the paragraph begins: “Very well. I am afraid...”
2 William Ewart Gladstone (1809-98), Prime Minister of Great Britain, 1868-74; 1880-85, 1886, and 1892-94
3 Joseph Chamberlain (1836-1914), Secretary of State for the Colonies, 1895
4 Stephanus Johannes Paulus Kruger (1825-1904), Boer leader and State President of the South African Republic; vide “Memorial to Chamberlain”, 16-5-1899.
for our base self-interest. We like their commerce; they please us by their subtle methods and get what they want from us. To blame them for this is to perpetuate their power. We further strengthen their hold by quarrelling amongst ourselves. If you accept the above statements, it is proved that the English entered India for the purposes of trade. They remain in it for the same purpose and we help them to do so. Their arms and ammunition are perfectly useless. In this connection I remind you that it is the British flag which is waving in Japan and not the Japanese. The English have a treaty with Japan for the sake of their commerce, and you will see that if they can manage it, their commerce will greatly expand in that country. They wish to convert the whole world into a vast market for their goods. That they cannot do so is true, but the blame will not be theirs. They will leave no stone unturned to reach the goal.¹

CHAPTER VIII: THE CONDITION OF INDIA

READER: I now understand why the English hold India. I should like to know your views about the condition of our country.

EDITOR: It is a sad condition. In thinking of it my eyes water and my throat gets parched. I have grave doubts whether I shall be able sufficiently to explain what is in my heart. It is my deliberate opinion that India is being ground down, not under the English heel, but under that of modern civilization. It is groaning under the monster’s terrible weight. There is yet time to escape it, but every day makes it more and more difficult. Religion is dear to me and my first complaint is that India is becoming irreligious. Here I am not thinking of the Hindu or the Mahomedan or the Zoroastrian religion but of that religion which underlies all religions. We are turning away from God.

READER: How so?

EDITOR: There is a charge laid against us that we are a lazy people and that Europeans are industrious and enterprising. We have accepted the charge and we therefore wish to change our condition. Hinduism, Islam, Zoroastrianism, Christianity and all other religions teach that we should remain passive about worldly pursuits and active about godly pursuits, that we should set a limit to our worldly ambition and that our religious ambition should be illimitable. Our activity should be directed into the latter channel.

¹ The original has: “They will not spare any effort.”
READER: You seem to be encouraging religious charlatanism. Many a cheat has, by talking in a similar strain, led the people astray.¹

EDITOR: You are bringing an unlawful charge against religion. Humbug there undoubtedly is about all religions. Where there is light, there is also shadow. I am prepared to maintain that humbugs in worldly matters are far worse than the humbugs in religion. The humbug of civilization that I am endeavoursing to show to you is not to be found in religion.

READER: How can you say that? In the name of religion Hindus and Mahomedans fought against one another. For the same cause Christians fought Christians. Thousands of innocent men have been murdered, thousands have been burned and tortured in its name. Surely, this is much worse than any civilization.

EDITOR: I certainly submit that the above hardships are far more bearable than those of civilization. Everybody understands that the cruelties you have named are not part of religion although they have been practised in its name; therefore there is no aftermath to these cruelties.² They will always happen so long as there are to be found ignorant and credulous people.³ But there is no end to the victims destroyed in the fire of civilization. Its deadly effect is that people come under its scorching flames believing it to be all good. They become utterly irreligious and, in reality, derive little advantage from the world.⁴ Civilization is like a mouse gnawing while it is soothing us. When its full effect is realized, we shall see that religious superstition is harmless compared to that of modern civilization. I am not pleading for a continuance of religious superstitions. We shall certainly fight them tooth and nail, but we can never do so by disregarding religion. We can only do so by appreciating and conserving the latter.

READER: Then you will contend that the Pax Britannica is a useless encumbrance?

EDITOR: You may see peace if you like; I see none.

READER: You make light of the terror that the Thugs⁵, the

¹ The original adds: “and still does so”.
² The original has: “; therefore they cease when their perpetrators die”.
³ The original adds: “But their evil effects do not remain for even”
⁴ The Gujarati saying used by Gandhiji means: “They neither follow the way of religion nor that of the world.” The original also adds: “They forget the things that really matter.”
⁵ Predatory groups that used to loot, rob and kill people.
Pindaris\(^1\) and the Bhils\(^2\) were to the country.

EDITOR: If you give the matter some thought, you will see that the terror was by no means such a mighty thing. If it had been a very substantial thing, the other people would have died away before the English advent. Moreover, the present peace is only nominal, for by it we have become emasculated and cowardly. We are not to assume that the English have changed the nature of the Pindaris and the Bhils. It is, therefore, better to suffer the Pindari peril than that someone else should protect us from it and thus render us effeminate. I should prefer to be killed by the arrow of a Bhil than to seek unmanly protection. India without such protection was an India full of valour. Macaulay betrayed gross ignorance when he libelled Indians as being practically cowards. They never merited the charge. Cowards living in a country inhabited by hardy mountaineers and infested by wolves and tigers must surely find an early grave. Have you ever visited our fields? I assure you that our agriculturists sleep fearlessly on their farms even today; but the English and you and I would hesitate to sleep where they sleep. Strength\(^3\) lies in absence of fear, not in the quantity of flesh and muscle we may have on our bodies. Moreover, I must remind you who desire Home Rule that, after all, the Bhils, the Pindaris,\(^4\) and the Thugs are our own countrymen. To conquer\(^5\) them is your and my work. So long as we fear our own brethren, we are unfit to reach the goal.

CHAPTER IX: THE CONDITION OF INDIA (CONTINUED): RAILWAYS

READER: You have deprived me of the consolation I used to have regarding peace in India.\(^6\)

EDITOR: I have merely given you my opinion on the religious aspect, but when I give you my views as to the poverty of India, you will perhaps begin to dislike me because what you and I have hitherto considered beneficial for India no longer appears to me to be so.

---

\(^1\) Mounted marauders during the 17th and 18th centuries

\(^2\) Tribe in Central India and Gujarat

\(^3\) The original begins: “A little reflection will show that strength . . .”

\(^4\) The original adds: “the Assamese”. This was, however, deleted in all subsequent editions.

\(^5\) The original has “To win them over”.

\(^6\) The original has: “You have shattered my illusions about the value of peace in India.” The original adds further: “You have left me with nothing that I can think of.”
READER: What may that be?

EDITOR: Railways, lawyers and doctors have impoverished the country so much so that, if we do not wake up in time, we shall be ruined.

READER: I do now, indeed, fear that we are not likely to agree at all. You are attacking the very institutions which we have hitherto considered to be good.

EDITOR: It is necessary to exercise patience. The true inwardness of the evils of civilization you will understand with difficulty. Doctors assure us that a consumptive clings to life even when he is about to die. Consumption does not produce apparent hurt—it even produces a seductive colour about a patient's face so as to induce the belief that all is well. Civilization is such a disease and we have to be very wary.

READER: Very well, then. I shall hear you on the railways.

EDITOR: It must be manifest to you that, but for the railways, the English could not have such a hold on India as they have. The railways, too, have spread the bubonic plague. Without them, the masses could not move from place to place. They are the carriers of plague germs. Formerly, we had natural segregation. Railways have also increased the frequency of famines because, owing to facility of means of locomotion, people sell out their grain and it is sent to the dearest markets. People become careless and so the pressure of famine increases. Railways accentuate the evil nature of man. Bad men fulfil their evil designs with greater rapidity. The holy places of India have become unholy. Formerly, people went to these places with very great difficulty. Generally, therefore, only the real devotees visited such places. Nowadays rogues visit them in order to practise their roguery.

READER: You have given a one-sided account. Good men can visit these places as well as bad men. Why do they not take the fullest advantage of the railways?

EDITOR: Good travels at a snail’s pace—it can, therefore, have little to do with the railways. Those who want to do good are not selfish, they are not in a hurry, they know that to impregnate people with good requires a long time. But evil has wings. To build a house

---

1 The original has: “... about a patient’s face so that he keeps on hoping that all will be well, till he succumbs in the end”.

2 The original has: “This is also true of civilization. It is a disease that cannot be detected. Be on your guard against it.”
takes time. Its destruction takes none. So the railways can become a distributing agency for the evil one only. It may be a debatable matter whether railways spread famines, but it is beyond dispute that they propagate evil.

READER: Be that as it may, all the disadvantages of railways are more than counterbalanced by the fact that it is due to them that we see in India the new spirit of nationalism.

EDITOR: I hold this to be a mistake. The English have taught us that we were not one nation before and that it will require centuries before we become one nation. This is without foundation. We were one nation before they came to India. One thought inspired us. Our mode of life was the same. It was because we were one nation that they were able to establish one kingdom. Subsequently they divided us.

READER: This requires an explanation.

EDITOR: I do not wish to suggest that because we were one nation we had no differences, but it is submitted that our leading men travelled throughout India either on foot or in bullock-carts. They learned one another’s languages and there was no aloofness between them. What do you think could have been the intention of those farseeing ancestors of ours who established Setubandha (Rameshwar) in the South, Jagannath in the East and Hardwar in the North as places of pilgrimage? You will admit they were no fools. They knew that worship of God could have been performed just as well at home. They taught us that those whose hearts were aglow with righteousness had the Ganges in their own homes. But they saw that India was one undivided land so made by nature. They, therefore, argued that it must be one nation Arguing thus, they established holy places in various parts of India, and fired the people with an idea of nationality in a manner unknown in other parts of the world. And we Indians are one as no two Englishmen are. Only you and I and others who consider ourselves civilized and superior persons imagine that we are many nations. It was after the advent of railways that we began to believe in distinctions, and you are at liberty now to say that it is through the railways that we are beginning to abolish those distinctions. An opium-eater may argue the advantage of opium-eating from the fact that he began to understand the evil of the opium habit after having eaten it. I would ask you to consider well

---

1 The original begins: “I do not say this without due reflection.”
what I had said on the railways.\footnote{The original adds: “Doubts will still occur to you, but you will be able to resolve them yourself.”}

READER: I will gladly do so, but one question occurs to me even now. You have described to me the India of the pre-Mahomedan period, but now we have Mahomedans, Parsis and Christians. How can they be one nation? Hindus and Mahomedans are old enemies.\footnote{The original has: “. . . are believed to be inveterate enemies.”} Our very proverbs prove it.\footnote{The original adds: “A Mahomedan has no use for Mahadev.”} Mahomedans turn to the West for worship, whilst Hindus turn to the East. The former look down on the Hindus as idolaters.\footnote{The original adds: “Hindus worship images; Mahomedans are iconoclasts.”} The Hindus worship the cow, the Mahomedans kill her. The Hindus believe in the doctrine of non-killing, the Mahomedans do not. We thus meet with differences at every step. How can India be one nation?\footnote{The original has: “How can these disappear and India be one nation?”}

CHAPTER X: THE CONDITION OF INDIA (CONTINUED):
THE HINDUS AND THE MAHOMEDANS

EDITOR: Your last question is a serious one and yet, on careful consideration, it will be found to be easy of solution. The question arises because of the presence of the railways, of the lawyers and of the doctors. We shall presently examine the last two. We have already considered the railways. I should, however, like to add that man is so made by nature as to require him\footnote{The word for “maddening” is not found in the original.} to restrict his movements as far as his hands and feet will take him. If we did not rush about from place to place by means of railways and such other maddening' conveniences, much of the confusion that arises would be obviated. Our difficulties are of our own creation. God set a limit to man’s locomotive ambition in the construction of his body. Man immediately proceeded to discover means of overriding the limit. God gifted man with intellect that he might know his Maker. Man abused it so that he might forget his Maker. I am so constructed that I can only serve my immediate neighbours, but in my conceit I pretend to have discovered that I must with my body serve every individual in the Universe. In thus attempting the impossible, man comes in contact

1 The original adds: “Doubts will still occur to you, but you will be able to resolve them yourself.”
2 The original has: “. . . are believed to be inveterate enemies.”
3 The original adds: “A Mahomedan has no use for Mahadev.”
4 The original adds: “Hindus worship images; Mahomedans are iconoclasts.”
5 The original has: “How can these disappear and India be one nation?”
6 The original has: “… by nature that he should restrict. . . .”
7 The word for “maddening” is not found in the original.
with different natures, different religions, and is utterly confounded. According to this reasoning, it must be apparent to you that railways are a most dangerous institution. Owing to them, man has gone further away from his Maker.

READER: But I am impatient to hear your answer to my question. Has the introduction of Mahomedanism not unmade the nation?

EDITOR: India cannot cease to be one nation because people belonging to different religions live in it. The introduction of foreigners does not necessarily destroy the nation; they merge in it. A country is one nation only when such a condition obtains in it. That country must have a faculty for assimilation. India has ever been such a country. In reality, there are as many religions as there are individuals; but those who are conscious of the spirit of nationality do not interfere with one another’s religion. If they do, they are not fit to be considered a nation. If the Hindus believe that India should be peopled only by Hindus, they are living in dreamland. The Hindus, the Mahomedans, the Parsis and the Christians who have made India their country are fellow countrymen, and they will have to live in unity, if only for their own interest. In no part of the world are one nationality and one religion synonymous terms; nor has it ever been so in India.

READER: But what about the inborn enmity between Hindus and Mahomedans?

EDITOR: That phrase has been invented by our mutual enemy. When the Hindus and Mahomedans fought against one another, they certainly spoke in that strain. They have long since ceased to fight. How, then, can there be any inborn enmity? Pray remember this too, that we did not cease to fight only after British occupation. The Hindus flourished under Moslem sovereigns and Moslems under the Hindu. Each party recognized that mutual fighting was suicidal, and that neither party would abandon its religion by force of arms. Both parties, therefore, decided to live in peace. With the English advent quarrels re-commenced.

---

1 The original has: “and, being unable to carry the burden imposed by this, gives way to impatience.”

2 The original adds: “The Mahomedans also live in dreamland if they believe that there should be only Muslims in India.”

3 The original has: “. . . neither party could be made to abandon its religion or change its ways by force of arms.”
The proverbs you have quoted were coined when both were fighting; to quote them now is obviously harmful. Should we not remember that many Hindus and Mahomedans own the same ancestors and the same blood runs through their veins? Do people become enemies because they change their religion? Is the God of the Mahomedan different from the God of the Hindu? Religions are different roads converging to the same point. What does it matter that we take different roads so long as we reach the same goal? Wherein is the cause for quarrelling?

Moreover, there are deadly proverbs as between the followers of Shiva and those of Vishnu, yet nobody suggests that these two do not belong to the same nation. It is said that the Vedic religion is different from Jainism, but the followers of the respective faiths are not different nations. The fact is that we have become enslaved and, therefore, quarrel and like to have our quarrels decided by a third party. There are Hindu iconoclasts as there are Mahomedan. The more we advance in true knowledge, the better we shall understand that we need not be at war with those whose religion we may not follow.

READER: Now I would like to know your views about cow-protection.

EDITOR: I myself respect the cow, that is, I look upon her with affectionate reverence. The cow is the protector of India because, being an agricultural country, she is dependent on the cow. The cow is a most useful animal in hundreds of ways. Our Mahomedan brethren will admit this.

But, just as I respect the cow, so do I respect my fellow-men. A man is just as useful as a cow no matter whether he be a Mahomedan or a Hindu. Am I, then, to fight with or kill a Mahomedan in order to save a cow? In doing so, I would become an enemy of the Mahomedan as well as of the cow. Therefore, the only method I know of protecting the cow is that I should approach my Mahomedan brother and urge him for the sake of the country to join me in protecting her. If he would not listen to me I should let the cow go for the simple reason that the matter is beyond my ability. If I were

1 The original has: “What is stated above also applies to the saying, ‘A Mahomedan has no use for Mahadev.’ Some sayings live on and cause mischief. Misled by the sayings, we do not even remember that many Hindus and Muslims had the same ancestors and have the same blood.”
overfull of pity for the cow, I should sacrifice my life to save her but not take my brother’s. This, I hold, is the law of our religion.

When men become obstinate, it is a difficult thing. If I pull one way, my Moslem brother will pull another. If I put on superior airs, he will return the compliment. If I bow to him gently, he will do it much more so; and if he does not, I shall not be considered to have done wrong in having bowed. When the Hindus became insistent, the killing of cows increased. In my opinion, cow-protection societies may be considered cow-killing societies. It is a disgrace to us that we should need such societies. When we forgot how to protect cows, I suppose we needed such societies.

What am I to do when a blood-brother is on the point of killing a cow? Am I to kill him, or to fall down at his feet and implore him? If you admit that I should adopt the latter course, I must do the same to my Moslem brother.

Who protects the cow from destruction by Hindus when they cruelly ill-treat her? Whoever reasons with the Hindus when they mercilessly belabour the progeny of the cow with their sticks? But this has not prevented us from remaining one nation.

Lastly, if it be true that the Hindus believe in the doctrine of non-killing and the Mahomedans do not, what, pray, is the duty of the former? It is not written that a follower of the religion of Ahimsa (nonkilling) may kill a fellow-man. For him the way is straight. In order to save one being, he may not kill another. He can only plead—therein lies his sole duty.

But does every Hindu believe in Ahimsa? Going to the root of the matter, not one man really practises such a religion because we do destroy life. We are said to follow that religion because we want to obtain freedom from liability to kill any kind of life. Generally speaking, we may observe that many Hindus partake of meat and are not, therefore, followers of Ahimsa. It is, therefore, preposterous to suggest that the two cannot live together amicably because the Hindus believe in Ahimsa and the Mahomedans do not.

These thoughts are put into our minds by selfish and false religious teachers. The English put the finishing touch. They have a habit of writing history; they pretend to study the manners and

---

1 The original adds: “I have nothing to say if anyone is bent upon stretching the meanings of words so as to prove his point.”
customs of all peoples. God has given us a limited mental capacity, but they usurp the function of the Godhead and indulge in novel experiments. They write about their own researches in most laudatory terms and hypnotize us into believing them. We in our ignorance then fall at their feet.¹

Those who do not wish to misunderstand things may read up the Koran, and they will find therein hundreds of passages acceptable to the Hindus; and the Bhagavad-gītā contains passages to which not a Mahomedan can take exception. Am I to dislike a Mahomedan because there are passages in the Koran I do not understand or like? It takes two to make a quarrel. If I do not want to quarrel with a Mahomedan, the latter will be powerless to foist a quarrel on me; and, similarly, I should be powerless if a Mahomedan refuses his assistance to quarrel with me. An arm striking the air will become disjointed. If everyone will try to understand the core of his own religion and adhere to it, and will not allow false teachers to dictate to him, there will be no room left for quarrelling.

READER: But will the English ever allow the two bodies to join hands?

EDITOR: This question arises out of your timidity. It betrays our shallowness. If two brothers want to live in peace, is it possible for a third party to separate them? If they were to listen to evil counsels we would consider them to be foolish. Similarly, we Hindus and Mahomedans would have to blame our folly rather than the English, if we allowed them to put us asunder. A clay pot would break through impact, if not with one stone, then with another. The way to save the pot is not to keep it away from the dangerpoint but to bake it so that no stone would break it. We have then to make our hearts of perfectly baked clay. Then we shall be steeled against all danger.² This can be easily done by the Hindus.³ They are superior in numbers; they pretend that they are more educated; they are, therefore, better able to shield themselves from attack on their amicable relations with the Mahomedans.⁴

¹ The original has: “We in our simplicity believe all that they say.”
² The original has: “Should even one side be sound of heart, the third party will not succeed in its designs.”
³ The original has: “The Hindus can easily afford to be so.”
⁴ The original has: “; it should therefore be possible for them to have a heart of well-baked clay”
There is mutual distrust between the two communities. The Mahomedans, therefore, ask for certain concessions from Lord Morley. Why should the Hindus oppose this? If the Hindus desisted, the English would notice it, the Mahomedans would gradually begin to trust the Hindus, and brotherliness would be the outcome. We should be ashamed to take our quarrels to the English. Everyone can find out for himself that the Hindus can lose nothing by desisting. That man who has inspired confidence in another has never lost anything in this world.

I do not suggest that the Hindus and the Mahomedans will never fight. Two brothers living together often do so. We shall sometimes have our heads broken. Such a thing ought not to be necessary, but all men are not equitable. When people are in a rage, they do many foolish things. These we have to put up with. But when we do quarrel, we certainly do not want to engage counsel and resort to English or any law-courts. Two men fight; both have their heads broken, or one only. How shall a third party distribute justice amongst them? Those who fight may expect to be injured.

CHAPTER XI: THE CONDITION OF INDIA (CONTINUED): LAWYERS

READER: You tell me that when two men quarrel they should not go to a law-court. This is astonishing.

EDITOR: Whether you call it astonishing or not, it is the truth. And your question introduces us to the lawyers and the doctors. My firm opinion is that the lawyers have enslaved India, have accentuated Hindu-Mahomedan dissensions and have confirmed English authority.

READER: It is easy enough to bring these charges, but it will be difficult for you to prove them. But for the lawyers, who would have shown us the road to independence? Who would have protected the poor? Whowould have secured justice? For instance, the late Manomohan Ghose defended many a poor man free of charge. The Congress, which you have praised so much, is dependent for its

---

1 The original has: “equally sensible”.
2 The original adds: “When human bodies clash against one another, some marks are bound to be left on them. Where is the question of awarding justice in this matter?”
3 The word for “firm” is not found in the original
4 (1844-96), lawyer and Congressman; first Indian barrister; founder and editor of Indian Mirror existence and activity upon the work of the lawyers. To denounce such an estimable\(^1\) class of men is to spell injustice,\(^2\) and you are abusing the liberty of the Press by decrying lawyers.

EDITOR: At one time I used to think exactly like you. I have no desire to convince you that they have never done a single good thing. I honour Mr. Ghose’s memory. It is quite true that he helped the poor. That the Congress owes the lawyers something is believable. Lawyers are also men, and there is something good in every man. Whenever instances of lawyers having done good can be brought forward, it will be found that the good is due to them as men rather than as lawyers. All I am concerned with is to show you that the profession teaches immorality; it is exposed to temptation from which few are saved.

The Hindus and the Mahomedans have quarrelled. An ordinary man will ask them to forget all about it; he will tell them that both must be more or less at fault, and will advise them no longer to quarrel. But they go to lawyers. The latter’s duty is to side with their clients and to find out ways and arguments in favour of the clients, to which they (the clients) are often strangers. If they do not do so, they will be considered to have degraded their profession. The lawyers, therefore, will, as a rule, advance quarrels instead of repressing them.\(^3\) Moreover, men take up that profession, not in order to help others out of their miseries, but to enrich themselves. It is one of the avenues of becoming wealthy and their interest exists in multiplying disputes. It is within my knowledge that they are glad when men have disputes. Petty pleaders actually manufacture them. Their touts, like so many leeches, suck the blood of the poor people.\(^4\) Lawyers are men who have little to do. Lazy people, in order to indulge in luxuries, take up such professions. This is a true statement. Any other argument is a mere pretension. It is the lawyers who have discovered that theirs is an honourable profession. They frame laws as they frame their own praises. They decide what fees they will charge and they put on so much side that poor people almost consider them to be heaven-born.

\(^1\) The word for “estimable” is not found in the original.
\(^2\) The original has: “is to treat justice as injustice”.
\(^3\) The original has: “As a rule, therefore, the lawyer will be for taking further action in the dispute.”
\(^4\) The original adds: “It is a profession which cannot but result in encouragement of quarrels.”
Why do they want more fees than common labourers? Why are their requirements greater? In what way are they more profitable to the country than the labourers? Are those who do good entitled to greater payment? And, if they have done anything for the country for the sake of money, how shall it be counted as good?¹

Those who know anything of the Hindu-Mahomedan quarrels know that they have been often due to the intervention or lawyers. Some families have been ruined through them; they have made brothers enemies. Principalities, having come under the lawyers’ power, have become loaded with debt. Many have been robbed of their all.² Such instances can be multiplied.

But the greatest injury they have done to the country is that they have tightened the English grip. Do you think that it would be possible for the English to carry on their Government without law courts? It is wrong to consider that courts are established for the benefit of the people. Those who want to perpetuate their power do so through the courts. If people were to settle their own quarrels, a third party would not be able to exercise any authority over them. Truly, men were less unmanly when they settled their disputes either by fighting or by asking their relatives to decide for them. They became more unmanly and cowardly when they resorted to the courts of law. It was certainly a sign of savagery when they settled their disputes by fighting. Is it any the less so, if I ask a third party to decide between you and me? Surely, the decision of a third party is not always right. The parties alone know who is right. We, in our simplicity and ignorance, imagine that a stranger, by taking our money, gives us justice.

The chief thing, however, to be remembered is that without lawyers courts could not have been established or conducted and without the latter the English could not rule. Supposing that there were only English judges, English pleaders and English police, they could only rule over the English. The English could not do without Indian judges and Indian pleaders. How the pleaders were made in the first instance and how they were favoured³ you should understand

¹ The original adds: “What I have pointed out is the inherent tendency of the profession itself. That was, however, by the way.”

² The original has: “Many a landowner with hereditary title in State lands has found himself robbed of his all through lawyers’ machinations.”

³ The original has: “and how they struggled for favours...”
well. Then you will have the same abhorrence for the profession that I have.\(^1\) If pleaders were to abandon their profession, and consider it just as degrading as prostitution, English rule would break up in a day. They have been instrumental in having the charge laid against us that we love quarrels and courts as fish love water. What I have said with reference to the pleaders necessarily applies to the judges; they are first cousins; and the one gives strength to the other.

CHAPTER XII: THE CONDITION OF INDIA (CONTINUED): DOCTORS

READER: I now understand the lawyers; the good they may have done is accidental. I feel that profession is certainly hateful. You, however, drag in the doctors also, how is that?

EDITOR: The views I submit to you are those I have adopted. They are not original. Western writers have used stronger terms regarding both lawyers and doctors. One writer has likened the whole modern system to the Upas tree. Its branches are represented by parasitical professions, including those of law and medicine, and over the trunk has been raised the axe of true religion. Immorality is the root of the tree. So you will see that the views do not come right out of my mind but represent the combined experiences of many. I was at one time a great lover of the medical profession. It was my intention to become a doctor for the sake of the country. I no longer hold that opinion. I now understand why the medicine men (the vaids) among us have not occupied a very honourable status.

The English have certainly effectively used the medical profession for holding us. English physicians are known to have used their profession with several Asiatic potentates for political gain.\(^2\)

Doctors have almost unhinged us. Sometimes I think that quacks are better than highly qualified doctors. Let us consider: the business of a doctor is to take care of the body, or, properly speaking, not even that. Their business is really to rid the body of diseases that may afflict it. How do these diseases arise? Surely by our negligence or indulgence. I overeat, I have indigestion, I go to a doctor, he gives...

---

\(^1\) The original adds: “Among the chief features of British rule which account for its success are the courts, and these depend upon lawyers.”

\(^2\) Instead of the last sentence, the original has: “The pretensions of physicians also know no bounds. It was a British physician who played upon the credulity of the Moghul Emperor. He was successful in treating an illness in the Emperor’s family and was in consequence rewarded. It was again a physician who ingratiated himself with the Ameer.”
me medicine, I am cured. I overeat again, I take his pills again. Had I not taken the pills in the first instance, I would have suffered the punishment deserved by me and I would not have overeaten again. The doctor intervened and helped me to indulge myself. My body thereby certainly felt more at ease; but my mind became weakened. A continuance of a course of medicine must, therefore, result in loss of control over the mind.

I have indulged in vice, I contract a disease, a doctor cures me, the odds are that I shall repeat the vice. Had the doctor not intervened, nature would have done its work, and I would have acquired mastery over myself, would have been freed from vice and would have become happy.

Hospitals are institutions for propagating sin. Men take less care of their bodies and immorality increases. European doctors are the worst of all. For the sake of a mistaken care of the human body, they kill annually thousands of animals. They practise vivisection. No religion sanctions this. All say that it is not necessary to take so many lives for the sake of our bodies.

These doctors violate our religious instinct. Most of their medical preparations contain either animal fat or spirituous liquors; both of these are tabooed by Hindus and Mahomedans. We may pretend to be civilized, call religious prohibitions a superstition and want only to indulge in what we like. The fact remains that the doctors induce us to indulge, and the result is that we have become deprived of self-control and have become effeminate. In these circumstances, we are unfit to serve the country. To study European medicine is to deepen our slavery.

It is worth considering why we take up the profession of medicine. It is certainly not taken up for the purpose of serving humanity. We become doctors so that we may obtain honours and riches. I have endeavoured to show that there is no real service of humanity in the profession, and that it is injurious to mankind. Doctors make a show of their knowledge, and charge exorbitant fees. Their preparations, which are intrinsically worth a few pence, cost shillings. The populace, in its credulity and in the hope of ridding itself of some disease, allows itself to be cheated. Are not quacks then, whom we know, better than the doctors who put on an air of humaneness,
CHAPTER XIII: WHAT IS TRUE CIVILIZATION?

READER: You have denounced railways, lawyers and doctors. I can see that you will discard all machinery. What, then, is civilization?

EDITOR: The answer to that question is not difficult. I believe that the civilization India has evolved is not to be beaten in the world. Nothing can equal the seeds sown by our ancestors. Rome went, Greece shared the same fate; the might of the Pharaohs was broken; Japan has become westernized; of China nothing can be said; but India is still, somehow or other, sound at the foundation. The people of Europe learn their lessons from the writings of the men of Greece or Rome, which exist no longer in their former glory. In trying to learn from them, the Europeans imagine that they will avoid the mistakes of Greece and Rome. Such is their pitiable condition. In the midst of all this India remains immovable and that is her glory. It is a charge against India that her people are so uncivilized, ignorant and stolid, that it is not possible to induce them to adopt any changes. It is a charge really against our merit. What we have tested and found true on the anvil of experience, we dare not change. Many thrust their advice upon India, and she remains steady. This is her beauty: it is the sheet-anchor of our hope.

Civilization is that mode of conduct which points out to man the path of duty. Performance of duty and observance of morality are convertible terms. To observe morality is to attain mastery over our mind and our passions. So doing, we know ourselves. The Gujarati equivalent for civilization means “good conduct”.

If this definition be correct, then India, as so many writers have shown, has nothing to learn from anybody else, and this as it should be. We notice that the mind is a restless bird; the more it gets the more it wants, and still remains unsatisfied. The more we indulge our passions, the more unbridled they become. Our ancestors, therefore, set a limit to our indulgences. They saw that happiness was largely a mental condition. A man is not necessarily happy because he is rich, or unhappy because he is poor. The rich are often seen to be unhappy, the poor to be happy. Millions will always remain poor.

---

1 Literally, “This is the meaning of su, that is, good, dharo [way of life].” The original adds: “The opposite is Kudharo [bad way of life].”

2 The original has “British writers”.

3 Vide “Testimonies by Eminent Men”, Appendix II to Hind Swaraj, 5-12-1820
Observing all this, our ancestors dissuaded us from luxuries and pleasures. We have managed with the same kind of plough as existed thousands of years ago. We have retained the same kind of cottages that we had in former times and our indigenous education remains the same as before. We have had no system of life-corroding competition. Each followed his own occupation or trade and charged a regulation wage. It was not that we did not know how to invent machinery, but our forefathers knew that, if we set our hearts after such things, we would become slaves and lose our moral fibre. They, therefore, after due deliberation decided that we should only do what we could with our hands and feet. They saw that our real happiness and health consisted in a proper use of our hands and feet. They further reasoned that large cities were a snare and a useless encumbrance and that people would not be happy in them, that there would be gangs of thieves and robbers, prostitution and vice flourishing in them and that poor men would be robbed by rich men. They were, therefore, satisfied with small villages. They saw that kings and their swords were inferior to the sword of ethics, and they, therefore, held the sovereigns of the earth to be inferior to the Rishis and the Fakirs. A nation with a constitution like this is fitter to teach others than to learn from others. This nation had courts, lawyers and doctors, but they were all within bounds. Everybody knew that these professions were not particularly superior; moreover, these vakils and vaids did not rob people; they were considered people’s dependants, not their masters. Justice was tolerably fair. The ordinary rule was to avoid courts. There were no touts to lure people into them. This evil, too, was noticeable only in and around capitals. The common people lived independently and followed their agricultural occupation. They enjoyed true Home Rule.

And where this cursed modern civilization has not reached, India remains as it was before. The inhabitants of that part of India will very properly laugh at your new-fangled notions. The English do not rule over them, nor will you ever rule over them. Those in whose name we speak we do not know, nor do they know us. I would certainly advise you and those like you who love the motherland to go into the interior that has yet been not polluted by the railways and to live there for six months; you might then be patriotic and speak of Home Rule.

1 Sages and ascetics
2 Lawyers and doctors
Now you see what I consider to be real civilization. Those who want to change conditions such as I have described are enemies of the country and are sinners.

READER: It would be all right if India were exactly as you have described it, but it is also India where there are hundreds of child widows, where two-year-old babies are married, where twelve-year-old girls are mothers and housewives, where women practise polyandry, where the practice of Niyoga obtains, where, in the name of religion, girls dedicate themselves to prostitution, and in the name of religion sheep and goats are killed. Do you consider these also symbols of the civilization that you have described?

EDITOR: You make a mistake. The defects that you have shown are defects. Nobody mistakes them for ancient civilization. They remain in spite of it. Attempts have always been made and will be made to remove them. We may utilize the new spirit that is born in us for purging ourselves of these evils. But what I have described to you as emblems of modern civilization are accepted as such by its votaries. The Indian civilization, as described by me, has been so described by its votaries. In no part of the world, and under no civilization, have all men attained perfection. The tendency of the Indian civilization is to elevate the moral being, that of the Western civilization is to propagate immorality. The latter is godless, the former is based on a belief in God. So understanding and so believing, it behoves every lover of India to cling to the old Indian civilization even as a child clings to the mother’s breast.

CHAPTER XIV: HOW CAN INDIA BECOME FREE?

READER: I appreciate your views about civilization. I will have to think over them. I cannot take them in all at once. What, then, holding the views you do, would you suggest for freeing India?

EDITOR: I do not expect my views to be accepted all of a sudden. My duty is to place them before readers like yourself. Time can be trusted to do the rest. We have already examined the conditions for freeing India, but we have done so indirectly; we will now do so directly. It is a world-known maxim that the removal of the cause of a

1 Insemination by a person other than one’s husband
2 The original has: “he-buffaloes”.
3 The original has: “Time will show whether they find them acceptable or not.”
disease results in the removal of the disease itself. Similarly if the cause of India’s slavery be removed, India can become free.

READER: If Indian civilization is, as you say, the best of all, how do you account for India’s slavery?

EDITOR: This civilization is unquestionably the best, but it is to be observed that all civilizations have been on their trial. That civilization which is permanent outlives it. Because the sons of India were found wanting, its civilization has been placed in jeopardy. But its strength is to be seen in its ability to survive the shock. Moreover, the whole of India is not touched. Those alone who have been affected by Western civilization have become enslaved. We measure the universe by our own miserable foot-rule. When we are slaves, we think that the whole universe is enslaved. Because we are in an abject condition, we think that the whole of India is in that condition. As a matter of fact, it is not so, yet it is as well to impute our slavery to the whole of India. But if we bear in mind the above fact, we can see that if we become free, India is free. And in this thought you have a definition of Swaraj. It is Swaraj when we learn to rule ourselves. It is, therefore, in the palm of our hands. Do not consider this Swaraj to be like a dream. There is no idea of sitting still. The Swaraj that I wish to picture is such that, after we have once realized it, we shall endeavour to the end of our life-time to persuade others to do likewise. But such Swaraj has to be experienced, by each one for himself. One drowning man will never save another. Slaves ourselves, it would be a mere pretension to think of freeing others. Now you will have seen that it is not necessary for us to have as our goal the expulsion of the English. If the English become Indianized, we can accommodate them. If they wish to remain in India along with their civilization, there is no room for them. It lies with us to bring about such a state of things.

READER: It is impossible that Englishmen should ever become Indianized.

EDITOR: To say that is equivalent to saying that the English have no humanity in them. And it is really beside the point whether they become so or not. If we keep our own house in order, only those who are fit to live in it will remain. Others will leave of their own accord. Such things occur within the experience of all of us.

READER: But it has not occurred in history.

EDITOR: To believe that what has not occurred in history will not occur at all is to argue disbelief in the dignity of man. At any rate, it behoves us to try what appeals to our reason. All countries are not similarly conditioned. The condition of India is unique. Its strength is immeasurable. We need not, therefore, refer to the history of other countries. I have drawn attention to the fact that, when other civilizations have succumbed, the Indian has survived many a shock.

READER: I cannot follow this. There seems little doubt that we shall have to expel the English by force of arms. So long as they are in the country we cannot rest. One of our poets says that slaves cannot even dream of happiness. We are day by day becoming weakened owing to the presence of the English. Our greatness is gone; our people look like terrified men. The English are in the country like a blight which we must remove by every means.

EDITOR: In your excitement, you have forgotten all we have been considering. We brought the English, and we keep them. Why do you forget that our adoption of their civilization makes their presence in India at all possible? Your hatred against them ought to be transferred to their civilization. But let us assume that we have to drive away the English by fighting, how is that to be done?

READER: In the same way as Italy did it. What was possible for Mazzini¹ and Garibaldi² is possible for us. You cannot deny that they were very great men.

CHAPTER XV: ITALY AND INDIA

EDITOR: It is well that you have instanced Italy. Mazzini was a great and good man; Garibaldi was a great warrior. Both are adorable; from their lives we can learn much. But the condition of Italy was different from that of India. In the first instance, the difference between Mazzini and Garibaldi is worth noting. Mazzini’s ambition was not and has not yet been realized regarding Italy. Mazzini has shown in his writings on the duty of man that every man must learn how to rule himself. This has not happened in Italy. Garibaldi did not hold this view of Mazzini. Garibaldi gave and every Italian took arms. Italy and Austria had the same civilization; they were cousins in this respect. It was a matter of tit for tat. Garibaldi simply wanted Italy to be free from the Austrian yoke. The machinations of Minister

¹ Giuseppe Mazzini (1805-72); vide “Joseph Mazzini”, 22-7-1905.
² Giuseppe Garibaldi (1807-82). Italian soldier and patriot, one of the leaders in the struggle for unification of Italy; Vide “Important suggestions for Indians Going to the Transvaal”, 22-7-1905.
Cavour disgraced that portion of the history of Italy. And what has been the result? If you believe that because Italians rule Italy the Italian nation is happy, you are groping in darkness. Mazzini has shown conclusively that Italy did not become free. Victor Emmanuel [II] gave one meaning to the expression; Mazzini gave another. According to Emmanuel, Cavour and even Garibaldi, Italy meant the King of Italy and his henchmen. According to Mazzini, it meant the whole of the Italian people, that is, its agriculturists. Emmanuel was only its servant. The Italy of Mazzini still remains in a state of slavery. At the time of the so-called national war, it was a game of chess between two rival kings with the people of Italy as pawns. The working classes in that land are still unhappy. They, therefore, indulge in assassination, rise in revolt, and rebellion on their part is always expected. What substantial gain did Italy obtain after the withdrawal of the Austrian troops? The gain was only nominal. The reforms for the sake of which the war was supposed to have been undertaken have not yet been granted. The condition of the people in general still remains the same. I am sure you do not wish to reproduce such a condition in India. I believe that you want the millions of India to be happy, not that you want the reins of government in your hands. If that be so, we have to consider only one thing: how can the millions obtain self-rule? You will admit that people under several Indian princes are being ground down. The latter mercilessly crush them. Their tyranny is greater than that of the English, and if you want such tyranny in India, then we shall never agree. My patriotism does not teach me that I am to allow people to be crushed under the heel of Indian princes if only the English retire. If I have the power, I should resist the tyranny of Indian princes just as much as that of the English. By patriotism I mean the welfare of the whole people, and if I could secure it at the hands of the English, I should bow down my head to them. If any Englishman dedicated his life to securing the freedom of India, resisting tyranny and serving the land, I should welcome that Englishman as an Indian.

Again, India can fight like Italy only when she has arms. You have not considered this problem at all. The English are splendidly armed; that does not frighten me, but it is clear that, to pit ourselves against them in arms, thousands of Indians must be armed. If such a thing be possible, how many years will it take? Moreover, to arm India on a large scale is to Europeanize it. Then her condition will be just as pitiable as that of Europe. This means, in short, that India must accept European civilization, and if that is what we want, the best thing is that we have among us those who are so well trained in that civilization. We will then fight for a few rights, will get what we can and so pass our days. But the fact is that the Indian nation will not adopt arms, and it is well that it does not.

---

1 Count Camillo Benso Cavour (1810-61), distinguished Italian statesman, who, as Premier to Victor Emmanuel, King of Sardinia (proclaimed King of Italy in 1861), did much for the unification of Italy which was achieved in 1870.

READER: You are over-stating the facts. All need not be armed. At first, we shall assassinate a few Englishmen and strike terror; then, a few men who will have been armed will fight openly. We may have to lose a quarter of a million men, more or less, but we shall regain our land. We shall undertake guerilla warfare, and defeat the English.

EDITOR: That is to say, you want to make the holy land of India unholy. Do you not tremble to think of freeing India by assassination? What we need to do is to sacrifice ourselves. It is a cowardly thought, that of killing others. Whom do you suppose to free by assassination? The millions of India do not desire it. Those who are intoxicated by the wretched modern civilization think these things. Those who will rise to power by murder will certainly not make the nation happy. Those who believe that India has gained by Dhingra’s act and other similar acts in India make a serious mistake. Dhingra was a patriot, but his love was blind. He gave his body in a wrong way; its ultimate result can only be mischievous.

READER: But you will admit that the English have been frightened by these murders, and that Lord Morley’s reforms are due to fear.

EDITOR: The English are both a timid and a brave nation. England is, I believe, easily influenced by the use of gunpowder. It is possible that Lord Morley has granted the reforms through fear, but what is granted under fear can be retained only so long as the fear lasts.

1 The original has: “2,000,000 or 2,500,000 men”.
4 Morley was Secretary of State for India. The Morley-Minto Reforms came into force on November 15, 1909.
CHAPTER XVI: BRUTE FORCE

READER: This is a new doctrine, that what is gained through fear is retained only while the fear lasts. Surely, what is given will not be withdrawn?

EDITOR: Not so. The Proclamation of 1857\(^1\) was given at the end of a revolt, and for the purpose of preserving peace. When peace was secured and people became simple-minded, its full effect was toned down. If I cease stealing for fear of punishment, I would recommence the operation as soon as the fear is withdrawn from me. This is almost a universal experience. We have assumed that we can get men to do things by force and, therefore, we use force.

READER: Will you not admit that you are arguing against yourself? You know that what the English obtained in their own country they obtained by using brute force. I know you have argued that what they have obtained is useless, but that does not affect my argument. They wanted useless things and they got them. My point is that their desire was fulfilled. What does it matter what means they adopted? Why should we not obtain our goal, which is good, by any means whatsoever, even by using violence? Shall I think of the means when I have to deal with a thief in the house? My duty is to drive him out anyhow. You seem to admit that we have received nothing, and that we shall receive nothing, by petitioning. Why, then, may we not do so by using brute force? And, to retain what we may receive, we shall keep up the fear by using the same force to the extent that it may be necessary. You will not find fault with a continuance of force to prevent a child from thrusting its foot into fire? Somehow or other we have to gain our end.

EDITOR: Your reasoning is plausible. It has deluded many. I have used similar arguments before now. But I think I know better now, and I shall endeavour to undeceive you. Let us first take the argument that we are justified in gaining our end by using brute force because the English gained theirs by using similar means. It is perfectly true that they used brute force and that it is possible for us to do likewise, but by using similar means we can get only the same thing that they got. You will admit that we do not want that. Your belief that there is no connection between the means and the end is a great mistake. Through that mistake even men who have been considered religious have committed grievous crimes. Your reasoning is the same as saying that we can get a rose through planting a noxious weed. If I want to cross the ocean, I can do so only by means of a vessel; if I were to use a cart for that purpose, both the cart and I would soon find the bottom. “As is the God, so is the votary”, is a maxim worth considering. Its meaning has been distorted and men have gone astray. The means may be likened to a seed, the end to a tree; and there is just the same inviolable connection between the means and the end as there is between the seed and the tree. I am not likely to obtain the result flowing from the worship of God by laying myself prostrate before Satan. If, therefore, anyone were to say: “I want to worship God; it does not matter that I do so by means of Satan”, it would be set down as ignorant folly. We reap exactly as we sow. The English in 1833 obtained greater voting power by violence. Did they by using brute force better appreciate their duty? They wanted the right of voting, which they obtained by using physical force. But real rights are a result of performance of duty; these rights they have not obtained. We, therefore, have before us in England the force\(^1\) of everybody wanting and insisting on his rights, nobody thinking of his duty. And, where everybody wants rights, who shall give them to whom? I do not wish to imply that they do no duties. They don’t perform the duties corresponding to those rights; and as they do not perform that particular duty, namely, acquire fitness, their rights have proved a burden to them. In other words, what they have obtained is an exact result of the means they adopted. They used the means corresponding to the end. If I want to deprive you of your watch, I shall certainly have to fight for it; if I want to buy your watch, I shall have to pay you for it; and if I want a gift I shall have to plead for it; and, according to the means I employ, the watch is stolen property, my own property, or a donation. Thus we see three different results from three different means. Will you still say that means do not matter?

\(^1\) Queen Victoria’s Proclamation of 1858

Now we shall take the example given by you of the thief to be driven out. I do not agree with you that the thief may be driven out by any means. If it is my father who has come to steal I shall use one kind of means. If it is an acquaintance I shall use another; and in the case of a perfect stranger I shall use a third. If it is a white man, you will perhaps say you will use means different from those you will adopt with an Indian thief. If it is a weakling, the means will be different from those to be adopted for dealing with an equal in physical strength; and if the thief is armed from top to toe, I shall simply remain quiet. Thus we have a variety of means between the father and the armed man. Again, I fancy that I should pretend to be sleeping whether the thief was my father or that strong armed man. The reason for this is that my father would also be armed and I should succumb to the strength possessed by either and allow my things to be stolen. The strength of my father would make me weep with pity; the strength of the armed man would rouse in me anger and we should become enemies. Such is the curious situation. From these examples we may not be able to agree as to the means to be adopted in each case. I myself seem clearly to see what should be done in all these cases, but the remedy may frighten you. I therefore hesitate to place it before you. For the time being I will leave you to guess it, and if you cannot, it is clear you will have to adopt different means in each case. You will also have seen that any means will not avail to drive away the thief. You will have to adopt means to fit each case. Hence it follows that your duty is not to drive away the thief by any means you like.

---

\(^1\) Probably a misprint for “farce”. The original has: “The result has been that everyone is found to be running after rights, giving no thought to duties.”

Let us proceed a little further. That well-armed man has stolen your property; you have harboured the thought of his act; you are filled with anger; you argue that you want to punish that rogue, not for your own sake, but for the good of your neighbours; you have collected a number of armed men, you want to take his house by assault; he is duly informed of it, he runs away; he too is incensed. He collects his brother-robbers, and sends you a defiant message that he will commit robbery in broad daylight. You are strong, you do not fear him, you are prepared to receive him. Meanwhile, the robber pesters your neighbours. They complain before you. You reply that you are doing all for their sake, you do not mind that your own goods have been stolen. Your neighbours reply that the robber never pestered them before, and that he commenced his depredations only after you declared hostilities against him. You are between Scylla and Charybdis. You are full of pity for the poor men. What they say is true. What are you to do? You will be disgraced if you now leave the robber alone. You, therefore, tell the poor men: “Never mind. Come, my wealth is yours, I will give you arms, I will teach you how to use them; you should belabour the rogue; don’t you leave him alone.” And so the battle grows; the robbers increase in numbers; your neighbours have deliberately put themselves to inconvenience. Thus the result of wanting to take revenge upon the robber is that you have disturbed your own peace; you are in perpetual fear of being robbed and assaulted; your courage has given place to cowardice. If you will patiently examine the argument, you will see that I have not overdrawn the picture. This is one of the means. Now let us examine the other. You set this armed robber down as an ignorant brother; you intend to reason with him at a suitable opportunity; you argue that he is, after all, a fellow man; you do not know what prompted him to steal. You, therefore, decide that, when you can, you will destroy the man’s motive for stealing. Whilst you are thus reasoning with yourself the man comes again to steal. Instead of being angry with him, you .take pity on him. You think that this stealing habit must be a disease with him. Henceforth, you, therefore, keep your doors and windows open, you change your sleeping-place, and you keep your things in a manner most accessible to him. The robber comes again and is confused as all this is new to him; nevertheless, he takes away your things. But his mind is agitated. He inquires about you in the village, he comes to learn about your broad and loving heart, he repents, he begs your pardon, returns you your things, and leaves off the stealing habit. He becomes your servant, and you find for him honourable employment. This is the second method. Thus, you see, different means have brought about totally different results. I do not wish to deduce from this that robbers will act in the above manner or that all will have the same pity and love like you, but I only wish to show that fair means alone can produce fair results, and that, at least in the majority of cases, if not indeed in all, the force of love and pity is infinitely greater than the force of arms. There is harm in the exercise of brute force, never in that of pity.

Now we will take the question of petitioning. It is a fact beyond dispute that a petition, without the backing of force, is useless.
However, the late Justice Ranade\(^1\) used to say that petitions served a useful purpose because they were a means of educating people. They give the latter an idea of their condition and warn the rulers. From this point of view, they are not altogether useless. A petition of an equal is a sign of courtesy; a petition from a slave is a symbol of his slavery. A petition backed by force is a petition from an equal and, when he transmits his demand in the form of a petition, it testifies to his

\(^1\) Mahadev Govind Ranade (1842-1901), distinguished Indian judge, social reformer, author and one of the founders of the Indian National Congress.
nobility. Two kinds of force can back petitions. “We shall hurt you if you do not give this,” is one kind of force; it is the force of arms, whose evil results we have already examined. The second kind of force can thus be stated: “If you do not concede our demand, we shall be no longer your petitioners. You can govern us only so long as we remain the governed; we shall no longer have any dealings with you.” The force implied in this may be described as love-force, soul-force, or, more popularly but less accurately, passive resistance. This force is indestructible. He who uses it perfectly understands his position. We have an ancient proverb which literally means: “One negative cures thirty-six diseases.” The force of arms is powerless when matched against the force of love or the soul.

Now we shall take your last illustration, that of the child thrusting its foot into fire. It will not avail you. What do you really do to the child? Supposing that it can exert so much physical force that it renders you powerless and rushes into fire, then you cannot prevent it. There are only two remedies open to you—either you must kill it in order to prevent it from perishing in the flames, or you must give your own life because you do not wish to see it perish before your very eyes. You will not kill it. If your heart is not quite full of pity, it is possible that you will not surrender yourself by preceding the child and going into the fire yourself. You, therefore, helplessly allow it to go into the flames. Thus, at any rate, you are not using physical force. I hope you will not consider that it is still physical force, though of a low order, when you would forcibly prevent the child from rushing towards the fire if you could. That force is of a different order and we have to understand what it is.

Remember that, in thus preventing the child, you are minding entirely its own interest, you are exercising authority for its sole benefit. Your example does not apply to the English. In using brute force against the English you consult entirely your own, that is the national interest. There is no question here either of pity or of love. If you say that the actions of the English, being evil, represent fire, and that they proceed to their actions through ignorance, and that therefore they occupy the position of a child and that you want to protect such a child, then you will have to overtake every evil action of that kind by whomsoever committed and, as in the case of the evil

---

1 Instead of “more popularly but less accurately, passive resistance”, the original has the one word “satyagraha”.

290 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI child, you will have to sacrifice yourself. If you are capable of such immeasurable pity, I wish you well in its exercise.¹

CHAPTER XVII: PASSIVE RESISTANCE²

READER: Is there any historical evidence as to the success of what you have called soul-force or truth-force? No instance seems to have happened of any nation having risen through soul-force. I still think that the evil-doers will not cease doing evil without physical punishment.

EDITOR: The poet Tulsidas has said: “Of religion, pity, or love, is the root, as egotism of the body. Therefore, we should not abandon pity so long as we are alive.” This appears to me to be a scientific truth. I believe in it as much as I believe in two and two being four.
The force of love is the same as the force of the soul or truth. We have evidence of its working at every step. The universe would disappear without the existence of that force. But you ask for historical evidence. It is, therefore, necessary to know what history means. The Gujarati equivalent means: “It so happened.” If that is the meaning of history, it is possible to give copious evidence. But, if it means the doings of kings and emperors, there can be no evidence of soul-force or passive resistance in such history. You cannot expect silver ore in a tin mine. History, as we know it, is a record of the wars of the world, and so there is a proverb among Englishmen that a nation which has no history, that is, no wars, is a happy nation. How kings played, how they became enemies of one another, how they murdered one another, is found accurately recorded in history, and if this were all that had happened in the world, it would have been ended long ago. If the story of the universe had commenced with wars, not a man would have been found alive today. Those people who have been warred against have disappeared as, for instance, the natives of Australia of whom hardly a man was left alive by the intruders. Mark, please, that these natives did not use soul-force in self-defence, and it does not require much foresight to know that the Australians will share the same fate as their victims. “Those that take the sword shall perish by the sword.”
With us the proverb is that professional swimmers will find a watery grave.

¹ The original adds: “The thing is simply impossible.”
² The original has: “Satyagraha—Soul-force”.
³ Literally, “Itihas [history] means, ‘it so happened’.”
The fact that there are so many men still alive in the world shows that it is based not on the force of arms but on the force of truth or love. Therefore, the greatest and most unimpeachable evidence of the success of this force is to be found in the fact that, in spite of the wars of the world, it still lives on.

Thousands, indeed tens of thousands, depend for their existence on a very active working of this force. Little quarrels of millions of families in their daily lives disappear before the exercise of this force. Hundreds of nations live in peace. History does not and cannot take note of this fact. History is really a record of every interruption of the even working of the force of love or of the soul. Two brothers quarrel; one of them repents and re-awakens the love that was lying dormant in him; the two again begin to live in peace; nobody takes note of this. But if the two brothers, through the intervention of solicitors or some other reason take up arms or go to law—which is another form of the exhibition of brute force,—their doings would be immediately noticed in the Press, they would be the talk of their neighbours and would probably go down to history. And what is true of families and communities is true of nations. There is no reason to believe that there is one law for families and another for nations. History, then, is a record of an interruption of the course of nature. Soul-force, being natural, is not noted in history.

READER: According to what you say, it is plain that instances of this kind of passive resistance are not to be found in history. It is necessary to understand this passive resistance more fully. It will be better, therefore, if you enlarge upon it.

EDITOR: Passive resistance is a method of securing rights by personal suffering; it is the reverse of resistance by arms. When I refuse to do a thing that is repugnant to my conscience, I use soul-force. For instance, the Government of the day has passed a law which is applicable to me. I do not like it. If by using violence I force the Government to repeal the law, I am employing what may be termed bodyforce. If I do not obey the law and accept the penalty for its breach, I use soul-force. It involves sacrifice of self.

Everybody admits that sacrifice of self is infinitely superior to sacrifice of others. Moreover, if this kind of force is used in a cause

---

1 The original has: “one of them practises satyagraha against the other”.
2 The original has: “Satyagraha is referred to in English as passive resistance. The term denotes the method of . . . .”
that is unjust, only the person using it suffers. He does not make others suffer for his mistakes. Men have before now done many things which were subsequently found to have been wrong. No man can claim that he is absolutely in the right or that a particular thing is wrong because he thinks so, but it is wrong for him so long as that is his deliberate judgment. It is therefore meet that he should not do that which he knows to be wrong, and suffer the consequence whatever it may be. This is the key to the use of soul-force.

READER: You would then disregard laws—this is rank disloyalty. We have always been considered a law-abiding nation. You seem to be going even beyond the extremists. They say that we must obey the laws that have been passed, but that if the laws be bad, we must drive out the law-givers even by force.

EDITOR: Whether I go beyond them or whether I do not is a matter of no consequence to either of us. We simply want to find out what is right and to act accordingly. The real meaning of the statement that we are a law-abiding nation is that we are passive resisters. When we do not like certain laws, we do not break the heads of law-givers but we suffer and do not submit to the laws. That we should obey laws whether good or bad is a new-fangled notion. There was no such thing in former days. The people disregarded those laws they did not like and suffered the penalties for their breach. It is contrary to our manhood if we obey laws repugnant to our conscience. Such teaching is opposed to religion and means slavery. If the Government were to ask us to go about without any clothing,¹ should we do so? If I were a passive resister, I would say to them that I would have nothing to do with their law.² But we have so forgotten ourselves and become so compliant that we do not mind any degrading law.³

A man who has realized his manhood, who fears only God, will fear no one else. Man-made laws are not necessarily binding on him. Even the Government does not expect any such thing from us. They do not say: “You must do such and such a thing,” but they say: “If you do not do it, we will punish you.” We are sunk so low that we

---

¹ The original has: “to strip ourselves naked and dance...”
² The original has: “... that I would do nothing of the kind, that I had no use for their law”.
³ Literally, “But we lack the spirit of satyagraha to such an extent that when ordered by the Government, we do more degrading things than dance naked before it.”
fancy that it is our duty and our religion to do what the law lays down. If man will only realize that it is unmanly to obey laws that are unjust, no man’s tyranny will enslave him. This is the key to self-rule or home rule.

It is a superstition and ungodly thing to believe that an act of a majority binds a minority. Many examples can be given in which acts of majorities will be found to have been wrong and those of minorities to have been right. All reforms owe their origin to the initiative of minorities in opposition to majorities. If among a band of robbers a knowledge of robbing is obligatory, is a pious man to accept the obligation? So long as the superstition that men should obey unjust laws exists, so long will their slavery exist. And a passive resister alone can remove such a superstition.

To use brute-force, to use gunpowder, is contrary to passive resistance, for it means that we want our opponent to do by force that which we desire but he does not. And if such a use of force is justifiable, surely he is entitled to do likewise by us. And so we should never come to an agreement. We may simply fancy, like the blind horse moving in a circle round a mill, that we are making progress. Those who believe that they are not bound to obey laws which are repugnant to their conscience have only the remedy of passive resistance open to them. Any other must lead to disaster.

READER: From what you say I deduce that passive resistance is a splendid weapon of the weak, but that when they are strong they may take up arms.

EDITOR: This is gross ignorance. Passive resistance, that is, soulforce, is matchless. It is superior to the force of arms. How, then, can it be considered only a weapon of the weak? Physical-force men are strangers to the courage that is requisite in a passive resister. Do you believe that a coward can ever disobey a law that he dislikes? Extremists are considered to be advocates of brute force. Why do they, then, talk about obeying laws? I do not blame them. They can say nothing else. When they succeed in driving out the English and they themselves become governors, they will want you and me to obey their laws. And that is a fitting thing for their constitution. But a passive resister will say he will not obey a law that is against his conscience, even though he may be blown to pieces at the mouth of a

---

1 The original has: “bullock”.

294 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
What do you think? Wherein is courage required—in blowing others to pieces from behind a cannon, or with a smiling face to approach a cannon and be blown to pieces? Who is the true warrior—he who keeps death always as a bosom-friend, or he who controls the death of others? Believe me that a man devoid of courage and manhood can never be a passive resister.

This, however, I will admit: that even a man weak in body is capable of offering this resistance. One man can offer it just as well as millions. Both men and women can indulge in it. It does not require the training of an army; it needs no Jiu-Jitsu. Control over the mind is alone necessary, and when that is attained, man is free like the king of the forest and his very glance withers the enemy.

Passive resistance is an all-sided sword, it can be used anyhow; it blesses him who uses it and him against whom it is used. Without drawing a drop of blood it produces far-reaching results. It never rusts and cannot be stolen. Competition between passive resisters does not exhaust. The sword of passive resistance does not require a scabbard. It is strange indeed that you should consider such a weapon to be a weapon merely of the weak.

READER: You have said that passive resistance is a speciality of India. Have cannons never been used in India?

EDITOR: Evidently, in your opinion, India means its few princes. To me it means its teeming millions on whom depends the existence of its princes and our own.

Kings will always use their kingly weapons. To use force is bred in them. They want to command, but those who have to obey commands do not want guns: and these are in a majority throughout the world. They have to learn either body-force or soul-force. Where they learn the former, both the rulers and the ruled become like so many madmen; but where they learn soul-force, the commands of the rulers do not go beyond the point of their swords, for true men disregard unjust commands. Peasants have never been subdued by the sword, and never will be. They do not know the use of the sword, and they are not frightened by the use of it by others. That nation is great which rests its head upon death as its pillow. Those who defy death are free from all fear. For those who are labouring under the delusive charms of brute-force, this picture is not overdrawn. The fact is that, in India, the nation at large has generally used passive resistance in all departments of life. We cease to co-operate with our rulers when they displease us. This is passive resistance.

---

1 The original has: “A woman can offer it as well as a man.”

I remember an instance when, in a small principality, the villagers were offended by some command issued by the prince. The former immediately began vacating the village. The prince became nervous, apologized to his subjects and withdrew his command. Many such instances can be found in India. Real Home Rule is possible only where passive resistance is the guiding force of the people. Any other rule is foreign rule.

READER: Then you will say that it is not at all necessary for us to train the body?

EDITOR: I will certainly not say any such thing. It is difficult to become a passive resister unless the body is trained. As a rule, the mind, residing in a body that has become weakened by pampering, is also weak, and where there is no strength of mind there can be no strength of soul. We shall have to improve our physique by getting rid of infant marriages and luxurious living. If I were to ask a man with a shattered body to face a cannon’s mouth, I should make a laughing-stock of myself.

READER: From what you say, then, it would appear that it is not a small thing to become a passive resister, and, if that is so, I should like you to explain how a man may become one.

EDITOR: To become a passive resister is easy enough but it is also equally difficult. I have known a lad of fourteen years become a passive resister; I have known also sick people do likewise; and I have also known physically strong and otherwise happy people unable to take up passive resistance. After a great deal of experience it seems to me that those who want to become passive resisters for the service of the country have to observe perfect chastity, adopt poverty, follow truth, and cultivate fearlessness.

Chastity is one of the greatest disciplines without which the mind cannot attain requisite firmness. A man who is unchaste loses stamina, becomes emasculated and cowardly. He whose mind is given over to animal passions is not capable of any great effort. This can be proved by innumerable instances. What, then, is a married person to do is the question that arises naturally; and yet it need not. When a husband and wife gratify the passions, it is no less an animal indulgence on that account. Such an indulgence, except for perpetuating the race, is strictly prohibited. But a passive resister has to avoid even that very limited indulgence because he can have no desire for progeny. A married man, therefore, can observe perfect chastity. This subject is not capable of being treated at greater length. Several questions arise: How is one to carry one’s wife with one, what are her rights, and other similar questions. Yet those who wish to take part in a great work are bound to solve these puzzles.

1 The original adds: “True, I am exaggerating somewhat.”

Just as there is necessity for chastity, so is there for poverty. Pecuniary ambition and passive resistance cannot well go together. Those who have money are not expected to throw it away, but they are expected to be indifferent about it. They must be prepared to lose every penny rather than give up passive resistance.

Passive resistance has been described in the course of our discussion as truth-force. Truth, therefore, has necessarily to be followed and that at any cost. In this connection, academic questions such as whether a man may not lie in order to save a life, etc., arise, but these questions occur only to those who wish to justify lying. Those who want to follow truth every time are not placed in such a quandary; and if they are, they are still saved from a false position.

Passive resistance cannot proceed a step without fearlessness. Those alone can follow the path of passive resistance who are free from fear, whether as to their possessions, false honour, their relatives, the government, bodily injuries or death.

These observances are not to be abandoned in the belief that they are difficult. Nature has implanted in the human breast ability to cope with any difficulty or suffering that may come to man unprovoked. These qualities are worth having, even for those who do not wish to serve the country. Let there be no mistake, as those who want to train themselves in the use of arms are also obliged to have these qualities more or less. Everybody does not become a warrior for the wish. A would-be warrior will have to observe chastity and to be satisfied with poverty as his lot. A warrior without fearlessness cannot be conceived of. It may be thought that he would not need to be exactly truthful, but that quality follows real fearlessness. When a man abandons truth, he does so owing to fear in some shape or form. The above four attributes, then, need not frighten anyone. It may be as well here to note that a physical-force man has to have many other useless qualities which a passive resister never needs. And you will find that whatever extra effort a swordsman needs is due to lack of fearlessness. If he is an embodiment of the latter, the sword will drop from his hand that very moment. He does not need its support. One who is free from hatred requires no sword. A man with a stick suddenly came face to face with a lion and instinctively raised his weapon in self-defence. The man saw that he had only prated about fearlessness when there was none in him. That moment he dropped the stick and found himself free from all fear.

1 Instead of these two sentences, the original has: “How can anyone command the power of truth unless he dedicates himself to truth? Truth, therefore, is absolutely necessary. It cannot be abandoned, whatever the cost. Truth has nothing to hide. There is no question, therefore, of a satyagrahi maintaining a secret army.”

CHAPTER XVIII: EDUCATION

READER: In the whole of our discussion, you have not demonstrated the necessity for education; we always complain of its absence among us. We notice a movement for compulsory education in our country. The Maharaja Gaekwar has introduced it in his territories. Every eye is directed towards them. We bless the Maharaja for it. Is all this effort then of no use?

EDITOR: If we consider our civilization to be the highest, I have regretfully to say that much of the effort you have described is of no use. The motive of the Maharaja and other great leaders who have been working in this direction is perfectly pure. They, therefore, undoubtedly deserve great praise. But we cannot conceal from ourselves the result that is likely to flow from their effort.

What is the meaning of education? It simply means a knowledge of letters. It is merely an instrument, and an instrument may be well used or abused. The same instrument that may be used to cure a patient may be used to take his life, and so may a knowledge of letters. We daily observe that many men abuse it and very few make good use of it; and if this is a correct statement, we have proved that more harm has been done by it than good.

The ordinary meaning of education is a knowledge of letters. To teach boys reading, writing and arithmetic is called primary education. A peasant earns his bread honestly. He has ordinary knowledge of the world. He knows fairly well how he should behave towards his parents, his wife, his children and his fellow-villagers. He understands and observes the rules of morality. But he cannot write his own name. What do you propose to do by giving him a knowledge of letters? Will you add an inch to his happiness? Do you wish to make him discontented with his cottage or his lot? And even if you want to do that, he will not need such an education. Carried away by the flood of western thought we came to the conclusion, without weighing pros and cons, that we should give this kind of education to the people.

Now let us take higher education. I have learned Geography, Astronomy, Algebra, Geometry, etc.¹ What of that? In what way have I benefited myself or those around me? Why have I learned these things?
Professor Huxley has thus defined education:

That man I think has had a liberal education who has been so trained in youth that his body is the ready servant of his will and does with ease and pleasure all the work that as a mechanism it is capable of; whose intellect is a clear, cold, logical engine with all its parts of equal strength and in smooth working order . . .² whose mind is stored with a knowledge of the fundamental truths of nature . . . whose passions are trained to come to heel by a vigorous will, the servant of a tender conscience . . . who has learnt to hate all vileness and to respect others as himself. Such a one and no other, I conceive, has had a liberal education, for he is in harmony with nature. He will make the best of her and she of him.

If this is true education, I must emphatically say that the sciences
I have enumerated above I have never been able to use for controlling my senses. Therefore, whether you take elementary education or higher education, it is not required for the main thing. It does not make men of us. It does not enable us to do our duty.

READER: If that is so, I shall have to ask you another question.
What enables you to tell all these things to me? If you had not received higher education, how would you have been able to explain to me the things that you have?

EDITOR: You have spoken well.³ But my answer is simple: I do not for one moment believe that my life would have been wasted, had

¹ The original adds: “and dabbled in Geology”.
² The words for “with all . . . order” are not found in the original.
³ Literally, “This is a brave attack indeed.”
I not received higher or lower education. Nor do I consider that I necessarily serve because I speak. But I do desire to serve and in endeavouring to fulfil that desire, I make use of the education I have received. And, if I am making good use of it, even then it is not for the millions, but I can use it only for such as you, and this supports my contention. Both you and I have come under the bane of what is mainly false education. I claim to have become free from its ill effect, and I am trying to give you the benefit of my experience and in doing so, I am demonstrating the rottenness of this education.

Moreover, I have not run down a knowledge of letters in all circumstances. All I have now shown is that we must not make of it a fetish. It is not our Kamadhuk. In its place it can be of use and it has its place when we have brought our senses under subjection and put our ethics on a firm foundation. And then, if we feel inclined to receive that education, we may make good use of it. As an ornament it is likely to sit well on us. It now follows that it is not necessary to make this education compulsory. Our ancient school system is enough. Characterbuilding has the first place in it and that is primary education. A building erected on that foundation will last.

READER: Do I then understand that you do not consider English education necessary for obtaining Home Rule?

EDITOR: My answer is yes and no. To give millions a knowledge of English is to enslave them. The foundation that Macaulay laid of education has enslaved us. I do not suggest that he had any such intention, but that has been the result. Is it not a sad commentary that we should have to speak of Home Rule in a foreign tongue?

And it is worthy of note that the systems which the Europeans have discarded systems in vogue among us. Their learned men continually make changes. We ignorantly adhere to their cast-off systems. They are trying each division to improve its own status. Wales is a small portion of England. Great efforts are being made to revive a knowledge of Welsh among Welshmen. The English Chancellor, Mr. Lloyd George, is taking a leading part in the movement to make Welsh children speak Welsh. And what is our condition? We write to each in faulty English, and from this even our M.A’s are not free; our best thoughts are expressed in English; the proceedings of our

---

1 The original adds: “Your attack is ill-conceived, for”.
2 Mythical cow, yielding whatever is wished for 3 The original adds: “Its language is no language at all”.
Congress are conducted in English; our best newspapers are printed in English. If this state of things continues for a long time, posterity will—it is my firm opinion—condemn and curse us.

It is worth noting that, by receiving English education, we have enslaved the nation. Hypocrisy, tyranny, etc., have increased; English-knowing Indians have not hesitated to cheat and strike terror into the people. Now, if we are doing anything for the people at all, we are paying only a portion of the debt due to them.

Is it not a painful thing that, if I want to go to a court of justice, I must employ the English language as a medium, that when I become a barrister, I may not speak my mother-tongue and that someone else should have to translate to me from my own language? Is not this absolutely absurd? Is it not a sign of slavery? Am I to blame the English for it or myself? It is we, the English-knowing Indians, that have enslaved India. The curse of the nation will rest not upon the English but upon us.

I have told you that my answer to your last question is both yes and no. I have explained to you why it is yes. I shall now explain why it is no.

We are so much beset by the disease of civilization, that we cannot altogether do without English education. Those who have already received it may make good use of it wherever necessary. In our dealings with the English people, in our dealings with our own people, when we can only correspond with them through that language, and for the purpose of knowing how disgusted they (the English) have themselves become with their civilization, we may use or learn English, as the case may be. Those who have studied English will have to teach morality to their progeny through their mother-tongue and to teach them another Indian language; but when they have grown up, they may learn English, the ultimate aim being that we should not need it. The object of making money thereby should be eschewed. Even in learning English to such a limited extent we shall have to consider what we should learn through it and what we should not. It will be necessary to know what sciences we should learn. A little thought should show you that immediately we cease to care for English degrees, the rulers will prick up their ears.

READER: Then what education shall we give?

EDITOR: This has been somewhat considered above, but we will consider it a little more. I think that we have to improve all our languages. What subjects we should learn through them need not be elaborated here. Those English books which are valuable, we should translate into the various Indian languages. We should abandon the pretension of learning many sciences. Religious, that is ethical, education will occupy the first place. Every cultured Indian will know in addition to his own provincial language, if a Hindu, Sanskrit; if a Mahomedan, Arabic; if a Parsee, Persian; and all, Hindi. Some Hindus should know Arabic and Persian; some Mahomedans and Parsees, Sanskrit. Several Northerners and Westerners should learn Tamil. A universal language for India should be Hindi, with the option of writing it in Persian or Nagari characters. In order that the Hindus and the Mahomedans may have closer relations, it is necessary to know both the characters. And, if we can do this, we can drive the English language out of the field in a short time. All this is necessary for us, slaves. Through our slavery the nation has been enslaved, and it will be free with our freedom.

READER: The question of religious education is very difficult.

EDITOR: Yet we cannot do without it. India will never be godless. Rank atheism cannot flourish in this land. The task is indeed difficult. My head begins to turn as I think of religious education. Our religious teachers are hypocritical and selfish; they will have to be approached. The Mullahs, the Dasturs and the Brahmins hold the key in their hands, but if they will not have the good sense, the energy that we have derived from English education will have to be devoted to religious education. This is not very difficult. Only the fringe of the ocean has been polluted and it is those who are within the fringe who alone need cleansing. We who come under this category can even cleanse ourselves because my remarks do not apply to the millions. In order to restore India to its pristine condition, we have to return to it. In our own civilization there will naturally be progress, retrogression, reforms, and reactions; but one effort is required, and that is to drive out Western civilization. All else will follow.

CHAPTER XIX: MACHINERY

READER: When you speak of driving out Western civilization, I suppose you will also say that we want no machinery.

EDITOR: By raising this question you have opened the wound I

---

1 Muslim divines
2 Parsee priests have received.¹ When I read Mr. Dutt’s Economic History of India, I wept; and as I think of it again my heart sickens. It is machinery that has impoverished India. It is difficult to measure the harm that Manchester has done to us. It is due to Manchester that Indian handicraft has all but disappeared.

But I make a mistake. How can Manchester be blamed? We wore Manchester cloth and this is why Manchester wove it. I was delighted when I read about the bravery of Bengal.² There were no cloth-mills in that Presidency. They were, therefore, able to restore the original hand-weaving occupation. It is true Bengal encourages the mill-industry of Bombay. If Bengal had proclaimed a boycott of all machine-made goods, it would have been much better.

Machinery has begun to desolate Europe. Ruination is now knocking at the English’ gates. Machinery is the chief symbol of modern civilization; it represents a great sin.³

The workers in the mills of Bombay have become slaves. The condition of the women working in the mills is shocking. When there were no mills, these women were not starving. If the machinery craze grows in our country, it will become an unhappy land. It may be considered a heresy, but I am bound to say that it were better for us to send money to Manchester and to use flimsy Manchester cloth than to multiply mills in India. By using Manchester cloth we only waste our money; but by reproducing Manchester in India, we shall keep our money at the price of our blood, because our very moral being will be sapped, and I call in support of my statement the very mill-hands as witnesses. And those who have amassed wealth out of factories are not likely to be better than other rich men. It would be folly to assume that an Indian Rockefeller would be better than the American Rockefeller. Impoverished India can become free, but it will be hard for any India made rich through immorality to regain its freedom. I fear we shall have to admit that moneyed men support British rule; their interest is bound up with its stability. Money renders a man helpless. The other thing which is equally harmful is sexual vice. Both are poison. A snakebite is a lesser poison than these two, because the former merely destroys the body but the latter destroy body, mind

¹ The original has: “You have re-opened my wound.”
² The reference, obviously, is to the Swadeshi Movement.
³ The original has “Indian”.
⁴ The original has: “I am convinced that it . . .”
and soul. We need not, therefore, be pleased with the prospect of the growth of the mill-industry.

READER: Are the mills, then, to be closed down?

EDITOR: That is difficult. It is no easy task to do away with a thing that is established. We, therefore, say that the non-beginning of a thing is supreme wisdom. We cannot condemn millowners; we can but pity them. It would be too much to expect them to give up their mills, but we may implore them not to increase them. If they would be good they would gradually contract their business. They can establish in thousands of households the ancient and sacred handlooms and they can buy out the cloth that may be thus woven. Whether the millowners do this or not, people can cease to use machine-made goods.

READER: You have so far spoken about machine-made cloth, but there are innumerable machine-made things. We have either to import them or to introduce machinery into our country.

EDITOR: Indeed, our gods even are made in Germany. What need, then, to speak of matches, pins and glassware? My answer can be only one. What did India do before these articles were introduced? Precisely the same should be done today. As long as we cannot make pins without machinery, so long will we do without them. The tinsel splendour of glassware we will have nothing to do with, and we will make wicks, as of old, with home-grown cotton and use hand-made earthen saucers or lamps. So doing, we shall save our eyes and money and support Swadeshi and so shall we attain Home Rule.

It is not to be conceived that all men will do all these things at one time or that some men will give up all machine-made things at once. But, if the thought is sound, we shall always find out what we can give up and gradually cease to use it. What a few may do, others will copy; and the movement will grow like the coconut of the mathematical problem. What the leaders do, the populace will gladly do in turn. The matter is neither complicated nor difficult. You and I need not wait until we can carry others with us. Those will be the losers who will not do it, and those who will not do it, although they appreciate the truth, will deserve to be called cowards.

READER: What, then, of the tram-cars and electricity?

EDITOR: This question is now too late. It signifies nothing. If we are to do without the railways we shall have to do without the tramcars.

1 Literally, “hypocrites”
Machinery is like a snake-hole which may contain from one to a hundred snakes. Where there is machinery there are large cities; and where there are large cities, there are tram-cars and railways; and there only does one see electric light. English villages do not boast of any of these things. Honest physicians will tell you that where means of artificial locomotion have increased, the health of the people has suffered. I remember that when in a European town there was a scarcity of money, the receipts of the tramway company, of the lawyers and of the doctors went down and people were less unhealthy. I cannot recall a single good point in connection with machinery. Books can be written to demonstrate its evils.

READER: Is it a good point or a bad one that all you are saying will be printed through machinery?

EDITOR: This is one of those instances which demonstrate that sometimes poison is used to kill poison. This, then, will not be a good point regarding machinery. As it expires, the machinery, as it were, says to us: “Beware and avoid me. You will derive no benefits from me and the benefit that may accrue from printing will avail only those who are infected with the machinery-craze.”

Do not, therefore, forget the main thing. It is necessary to realize that machinery is bad. We shall then be able gradually to do away with it. Nature has not provided any way whereby we may reach a desired goal all of a sudden. If, instead of welcoming machinery as a boon, we should look upon it as an evil, it would ultimately go.

CHAPTER XX: CONCLUSION

READER: From your views I gather that you would form a third party. You are neither an extremist nor a moderate.

EDITOR: That is a mistake. I do not think of a third party at all. We do not all think alike. We cannot say that all the moderates hold identical views. And how can those who want only to serve have a party? I would serve both the moderates and the extremists. Where I differ from them, I would respectfully place my position before them and continue my service.

READER: What, then, would you say to both the parties?

EDITOR: I would say to the extremists: “I know that you want Home Rule for India; it is not to be had for your asking. Everyone will have to take it for himself. What others get for me is not Home Rule but foreign rule; therefore, it would not be proper for you to say that you have obtained Home Rule if you have merely expelled the English. I have already described the true nature of Home Rule. This you would never obtain by force of arms. Brute force is not natural to Indian soil. You will have, therefore, to rely wholly on soul-force. You must not consider that violence is necessary at any stage for reaching our goal”.

I would say to the moderates: “Mere petitioning is derogatory; we thereby confess inferiority. To say that British rule is indispensable is almost a denial of the Godhead. We cannot say that anybody or anything is indispensable except God. Moreover, commonsense should tell us that to state that, for the time being, the presence of the English in India is a necessity, is to make them conceited. “If the English vacated India, bag and baggage, it must not be supposed that she would be widowed. It is possible that those who are forced to observe peace under their pressure would fight after their withdrawal. There can be no advantage in suppressing an eruption; it must have its vent. If, therefore, before we can remain at peace, we must fight amongst ourselves, it is better that we do so. There is no occasion for a third party to protect the weak. It is this so-called protection which has unnerved us. Such protection can only make the weak weaker. Unless we realize this, we cannot have Home Rule. I would paraphrase the thought of an English divine and say that anarchy under Home Rule were better than orderly foreign rule. Only, the meaning that the learned divine attached to Home Rule is different from Indian Home Rule according to my conception. We have to learn, and to teach others, that we do not want the tyranny of either English rule or Indian rule.”

If this idea were carried out, both the extremists and the moderates could join hands. There is no occasion to fear or distrust one another.

READER: What, then, would you say to the English?

EDITOR: To them I would respectfully say: “I admit you are my rulers. It is not necessary to debate the question whether you hold India by the sword or by my consent. I have no objection to your remaining in my country, but although you are the rulers, you will

---

1 The original has: “will join hands, they can, they must”.

306  THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI have to remain as servants of the people. It is not we who have to do as you wish, but it is you who have to do as we wish. You may keep the riches that you have drained away from this land, but you may not drain riches henceforth. Your function will be, if you so wish, to police India; you must abandon the idea of deriving any commercial benefit from us. We hold the civilization that you support to be the reverse of civilization. We consider our civilization to be far superior to yours. If you realize this truth, it will be to your advantage and, if you do not, according to your own proverb, you should only live in our country in the same manner as we do.¹ You must not do anything that is contrary to our religions. It is your duty as rulers that for the sake of the Hindus you should eschew beef, and for the sake of Mahomedans you should avoid bacon and ham. We have hitherto said nothing because we have been cowed down, but you need not consider that you have not hurt our feelings by your conduct. We are not expressing our sentiments either through base selfishness or fear, but because it is our duty now to speak out boldly. We consider your schools and law courts to be useless. We want our own ancient schools and courts to be restored. The common language of India is not English but Hindi. You should, therefore, learn it. We can hold communication with you only in our national language.

“We cannot tolerate the idea of your spending money on railways and the military. We see no occasion for either. You may fear Russia; we do not. When she comes we shall look after her. If you are with us, we may then receive her jointly. We do not need any European cloth. We shall manage with articles produced and manufactured at home. You may not keep one eye on Manchester and the other on India. We can work together only if our interests are identical.

“This has not been said to you in arrogance. You have great military resources. Your naval power is matchless. If we wanted to fight with you on your own ground, we should be unable to do so, but if the above submissions be not acceptable to you, we cease to play the part of the ruled. You may, if you like, cut us to pieces. You may shatter us at the cannon’s mouth. If you act contrary to our will, we shall not help you; and without our help, we know that you cannot move one step forward.

¹ A reference to: “When in Rome, do as the Romans do.”
“It is likely that you will laugh at all this in the intoxication of your power. We may not be able to disillusion you at once; but if there be any manliness in us, you will see shortly that your intoxication is suicidal and that your laugh at our expense is an aberration of intellect. We believe that at heart you belong to a religious nation. We are living in a land which is the source of religions. How we came together need not be considered, but we can make mutual good use of our relations.

“You, English, who have come to India are not good specimens of the English nation, nor can we, almost half-Anglicized Indians, be considered good specimens of the real Indian nation. If the English nation were to know all you have done, it would oppose many of your actions. The mass of the Indians have had few dealings with you. If you will abandon your so-called civilization and search into your own scriptures, you will find that our demands are just. Only on condition of our demands being fully satisfied may you remain in India; and if you remain under those conditions, we shall learn several things from you and you will learn many from us. So doing we shall benefit each other and the world. But that will happen only when the root of our relationship is sunk in a religious soil.”

READER: What will you say to the nation?
EDITOR: Who is the nation?

READER: For our purposes it is the nation that you and I have been thinking of, that is, those of us who are affected by European civilization, and who are eager to have Home Rule.

EDITOR: To these I would say: “It is only those Indians who are imbued with real love who will be able to speak to the English in the above strain without being frightened, and only those can be said to be so imbued who conscientiously believe that Indian civilization is the best and that the European is a nine days’ wonder. Such ephemeral civilizations have often come and gone and will continue to do so. Those only can be considered to be so imbued who, having experienced the force of the soul within themselves, will not cower before brute-force, and will not, on any account, desire to use brute-force. Those only can be considered to have been so imbued who are intensely dissatisfied with the present pitiable condition, having already drunk the cup of poison.

“If there be only one such Indian, he will speak as above to the English and the English will have to listen to him.

308
THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
“These are not demands, but they show our mental state. We shall get nothing by asking; we shall have to take what we want, and we need the requisite strength for the effort and that strength will be available to him only who will act thus:

1. He will only on rare occasions make use of the English language.

2. If a lawyer, he will give up his profession, and take up a hand-loom.

3. If a lawyer, he will devote his knowledge to enlightening both his people and the English.

4. If a lawyer, he will not meddle with the quarrels between parties but will give up the courts, and from his experience induce the people to do likewise.

5. If a lawyer, he will refuse to be a judge, as he will give up his profession.

6. If a doctor, he will give up medicine, and understand that rather than mending bodies, he should mend souls.

7. If a doctor, he will understand that no matter to what religion he belongs, it is better that bodies remain diseased rather than that they are cured through the instrumentality of the diabolical vivisection that is practised in European schools of medicine.

8. Although a doctor, he will take up a hand-loom, and if any patients come to him, will tell them the cause of their diseases, and will advise them to remove the cause rather than pamper them by giving useless drugs; he will understand that if by not taking drugs, perchance the patient dies, the world will not come to grief and that he will have been really merciful to him.

9. Although a wealthy man, yet regardless of his wealth, he will speak out his mind and fear no one.

10. If a wealthy man, he will devote his money to establishing hand-loom, and encourage others to use hand-made goods by wearing them himself.

11. Like every other Indian, he will know that this is a time for repentance, expiation and mourning.

12. Like every other Indian, he will know that to blame the English is useless, that they came because of us, and remain also for the same reason, and that they will either go or change their nature only when we reform ourselves.
13. Like others, he will understand that at a time of mourning, there can be no indulgence, and that, whilst we are in a fallen state, to be in gaol or in banishment is much the best.

14. Like others, he will know that it is superstition to imagine it necessary that we should guard against being imprisoned in order that we may deal with the people.

15. Like others, he will know that action is much better than speech; that it is our duty to say exactly what we think and face the consequences and that it will be only then that we shall be able to impress anybody with our speech.

16. Like others, he will understand that we shall become free only through suffering.

17. Like others, he will understand that deportation for life to the Andamans is not enough expiation for the sin of encouraging European civilization.

18. Like others, he will know that no nation has risen without suffering; that, even in physical warfare, the true test is suffering and not the killing of others, much more so in the warfare of passive resistance.

19. Like others, he will understand that it is an idle excuse to say that we shall do a thing when the others also do it; that we should do what we know to be right, and that others will do it when they see the way; that when I fancy a particular delicacy, I do not wait till others taste it; that to make a national effort and to suffer are in the nature of delicacies; and that to suffer under pressure is no suffering”.

READER: This is a large order. When will all carry it out?

EDITOR: You make a mistake. You and I have nothing to do with the others. Let each do his duty.¹ If I do my duty, that is, serve myself, I shall be able to serve others.² Before I leave you, I will take the liberty of repeating:

1. Real home-rule is self-rule or self-control.

2. The way to it is passive resistance: that is soul-force or loveforce.

3. In order to exert this force, Swadeshi in every sense is necessary.

¹ The original has: “‘You mind your own business and leave me to mine’ is taken to be an expression of a selfish attitude, but in fact it tends to public good.”

² The original adds: “I shall have done enough for success in the given task if I do my duty well.”

4. What we want to do should be done, not because we object to the English or because we want to retaliate but because it is our duty to do so. Thus, supposing that the English remove the salt-tax, restore our money, give the highest posts to Indians, withdraw the English troops, we shall certainly not use their machine-made goods, nor use the English language, nor many of their industries. It is worth noting that these things are, in their nature, harmful; hence we do not want them. I bear no enmity towards the English but I do towards their civilization.

In my opinion, we have used the term “Swaraj” without understanding its real significance. I have endeavoured to explain it as I understand it, and my conscience testifies that my life henceforth is dedicated to its attainment.

APPENDICES

SOME AUTHORITIES AND TESTIMONIES BY EMINENT MEN

I. SOME AUTHORITIES

The following books are recommended for perusal to follow up the study of the foregoing:

- The Kingdom of God Is within You (Tolstoy)
- What Is Art? (Tolstoy)
- The Slavery of Our Times (Tolstoy)
- The First Step (Tolstoy)
- How Shall We Escape? (Tolstoy)
- Letter to a Hindoo (Tolstoy)
- The White Slaves of England (Sherard)
- Civilization, Its Cause and Cure (Carpenter)
- The Fallacy of Speed (Taylor)
- A New Crusade (Blount)
- On the Duty of Civil Disobedience (Thoreau)
- Life without Principle (Thoreau)
- Unto This Last (Ruskin)
- A Joy for Ever (Ruskin)
- Duties of Man (Mazzini)
Defence and Death of Socrates (from Plato)
Paradoxes of Civilization (Max Nordau)
Poverty and Un-British Rule in India (Naoroji)
Economic History of India (Dutt)
Village Communities (Maine)

II. TESTIMONIES BY EMINENT MEN

The following extracts from Mr. Alfred Webb’s valuable collection show that the ancient Indian civilization has little to learn from the modern:

J. SEYMOUR KEAY, M. P.
BANKER IN INDIA AND INDIA AGENT
(Writing in 1883)

It cannot be too well understood that our position in India has never been in any degree that of civilians bringing civilization to savage races. When we landed in India we found there a hoary civilization, which, during the progress of thousands of years, had fitted into the character and adjusted itself to the wants of highly intellectual races. The civilization was not perfunctory, but universal and all-pervading—furnishing the country not only with political systems, but with social and domestic institutions of the most ramified description. The beneficent nature of these institutions as a whole may be judged from their effects on the character of the Hindu race. Perhaps there are no other people in the world who show so much in their character the advantageous effects of their own civilization. They are shrewd in business, acute in reasoning, thrifty, religious, sober, charitable, obedient to parents, reverential to old age, amiable, law-abiding, compassionate towards the helpless and patient under suffering.

VICTOR COUSIN (1792-1867)
FOUNDER OF SYSTEMATIC ECLECTICISM IN PHILOSOPHY

On the other hand when we read with attention the poetical and philosophical movements of the East, above all, those of India, which are beginning to spread in Europe, we discover there so many truths, and truths, so profound, and which make such a contrast with the meanness of the results at which the European genius has sometimes stopped, that we are constrained to bend the knee before that of the East, and do see in this cradle of the human race the native land of the highest philosophy.
FRIEDRICH MAX MULLER

If I were to ask myself from what literature we here in Europe, we who have been nurtured almost exclusively on the thoughts of Greeks and Romans, and of one Semitic race, the Jewish, may draw that corrective which is most wanted in order to make our inner life more perfect, more comprehensive, more universal, in fact more truly human, a life, not for this life only, but a transfigured and eternal life—again I should point to India.

FREDERICK VON SCHLEGEL

It cannot be denied that the early Indians possessed a knowledge of the true God; all their writings are replete with sentiments and expressions, noble, clear, and severely grand, as deeply conceived and reverently expressed as in any human language in which men have spoken of their God. . . . Among nations possessing indigenous philosophy and metaphysics together with an innate relish for these pursuits, such as at present characterizes Germany, and, in olden times was the proud distinction of Greece, Hindustan holds the first rank in point of time.

ABBE J. A. DUBOIS

MISSIONARY IN MYSORE

Extracts from a letter dated December 15, 1820, Seringapatam: December, 1820, Seringapatam:

The authority of married women within their houses is chiefly exerted in preserving good order and peace among the persons who compose their families; and a great many among them discharge this important duty with a prudence and a discretion which have scarcely a parallel in Europe. I have known families composed of between thirty and forty persons, or more, consisting of grown-up sons and daughters, all married and all having children, living together under the superintendence of an old matron—their mother or mother-in-law. The latter, by good management, and by accommodating herself to the temper of the daughters-in-law, by using, according to circumstances, firmness or forbearance, succeeded in preserving peace and harmony during many years amongst so many females, who had all jarring tempers. I ask you whether it would be possible to attain the same end, in the same circumstances, in our countries, where it is scarcely possible to make two women

1 The original edition printed by the International Printing Press in 1910 had after Max Müller’s testimony the following:

Michael G. Mulhall, F. R. S. S.

Statistics

PRISON POPULATION PER 100,000 OF INHABITANTS

Several European States.... 100 to 230
England and Wales.... 90
India ...... 38

living under the same roof to agree together.

In fact, there is perhaps no kind of honest employment in a civilized country in which the Hindu females have not a due share. Besides the management of the household, and the care of the family which (as already noticed is under their control, the wives and daughters of husbandmen attend and assist their husbands and fathers in the labours of agriculture. Those of tradesmen assist theirs in carrying on their trade. Merchants are attended and assisted by theirs in their shops. Many females are shopkeepers on their own account; and without a knowledge of the alphabet or of the decimal scale, they keep by other means their accounts in excellent order, and are considered as still shrewder than the males themselves in their commercial dealings.

J. YOUNG

SECRETARY, MADRAS MECHANICS INSTITUTES WITHIN RECENT YEARS

Those races (the Indian viewed from a moral aspect) are perhaps the most remarkable people in the world. They breathe in an atmosphere of moral purity, which cannot but excite admiration, and this is especially the case with the poorer classes, who, notwithstanding the privations of their humble lot, appear to be happy and contented. True children of nature, they live on from day to day, taking no thought for the morrow and thankful for the simple fare which Providence has provided for them. It is curious to witness the spectacle of coolies of both sexes returning home at nightfall after a hard day’s work often lasting from sunrise to sunset. In spite of fatigue from the effects of the unremitting toil, they are, for the most part, gay and animated, conversing cheerfully together and occasionally breaking into snatches of light-hearted song. Yet what awaits them on their return to the hovels which they call home? A dish of rice for food, and the floor for a bed. Domestic felicity appears to be the rule among the Natives, and this is the more strange when the customs of marriage are taken into account, parents arranging all such matters. Many Indian households afford examples of the married state in its highest degree of perfection. This may be due to the teachings of the Shastras, and to the strict injunctions which they inculcate with regard to marital obligation; but it is no exaggeration to say that husbands are generally devotedly attached to their wives, and in many instances the latter have the most exalted conception of their duties towards their husbands.

COLONEL THOMAS MUNRO

THIRTY-TWO YEARS’ SERVICE IN INDIA

If a good system of agriculture, unrivalled manufacturing skill, a capacity to produce whatever can contribute to convenience or luxury; schools established in every village for teaching reading, writing and arithmetic; the general practice of hospitality and charity among each other; and, above all, a treatment of the female sex, full of confidence, respect and delicacy, are among the signs which denote a civilized people, then the Hindus are not inferior to the nations of Europe; and if civilization is to become an article of trade between the two countries, I am convinced that this country [England] will gain by the import cargo.

SIR WILLIAM WEDDERBURN, BART.

The Indian village has thus for centuries remained a bulwark against political disorder, and the home of the simple domestic and social virtues. No wonder, therefore, that philosophers and historians have always dwelt lovingly on this ancient institution which is the natural social unit and the best type of rural life: self-contained, industrious, peace-loving, conservative in the best sense of the word. . . . I think you will agree with me that there is much that is both picturesque and attractive in this glimpse of social and domestic life in an Indian village. It is a harmless and happy form of human existence. Moreover, it is not without good practical outcome.

161. LETTER TO MAGANLAL GANDHI

UNION CASTLE LINE,
R. M. S. KILDONAN CASTLE,
November 24, 1909

CHI. MAGANLAL,¹

I do not know when we shall meet next. Hence I reply all letters right here. There is no end to the work I have put in on the steamer this time.² You will see this from my letters to Mr. West and others and other writings. I have many things to say but that must wait till we meet. Just now, I shall write only what is necessary.

I was glad to read about Chi. Santok’s³ condition.

It seems quite appropriate that the name of Phoenix should be that and nothing else. I wish that my name is forgotten, and only my work endures. The work will endure only if the name is forgotten. It is

¹ Son of Khushalchand Gandhi, Gandhiji’s cousin, and in charge of the Gujarati section of Indian Opinion during Chhaganlal’s absence
² Gandhiji wrote the whole of Hind Swaraj, translated into Gujarati Tolstoy’s Letter to a Hindoo, wrote the English and Gujarati prefaces to the latter, and also wrote several letters.
³ Wife of Maganlal Gandhi good of a name when we are just making experiments? And even when a name is given, we shall have to find a common word over which the question of Hindu or Mussalman will not arise. The word math or ashram has a particularly Hindu connotation and therefore may not be used. “Phoenix” is a very good word which has come to us without any effort on our part. Being an English word, it serves to pay homage to the land in which we live. Moreover, it is neutral. Its significance, as the legend goes, is that the bird Phoenix comes back to life again and again from its own ashes, i.e., it never dies. The name Phoenix, for the present, serves the purpose quite well, for we believe that the aims of Phoenix will not vanish even when we are turned to dust. We shall see what we can do later on. At present our whole structure and behaviour\(^1\) are those of the bird Phoenix.

Please see my letter\(^2\) to Mr. Thakkar\(^3\).

_Blessings from_

_MOHANDAS_

From the facsimile of the original Gujarati in Gandhiji’s hand in _Jivan-nu Parodh_ by Prabhudas Gandhi

---

\(^1\) The original has “धात आने धात...”, i.e., path and form, a common Gujarati phrase.

\(^2\) This is not available.

\(^3\) Harilal Thakkar, a worker in the printing press at Phoenix
162. LETTER TO MANILAL GANDHI

UNION CASTLE LINE,
R. M. S. KILDONAN CASTLE,
November 24, 1909

CHI. MANILAL¹.

It is 9.30 p.m. now. It is five days’ voyage hence to Cape Town. As I am tired of writing with the right hand, I write this to you with the left. As I may have to go to gaol straight on landing, I write now.

I take it that you at any rate will rejoice at my going to gaol, for you have understanding. The secret of the struggle lies in going to gaol cheerfully, and being happy while there.

It was good you asked the question about Phoenix. First of all, we shall have to consider how we can realize the self and how serve our country. After we do this, we can explain what Phoenix is. For realizing the self, the first essential thing is to cultivate a strong moral sense. Morality means the acquisition of virtues such as fearlessness, truth, brahmacharya [celibacy] and so on. Service is automatically rendered to the country in this process of cultivating morality. Phoenix is of great help in this process. I believe that it is very difficult to preserve morality in cities where people live in congestion and there are many temptations. That is why the wise have recommended solitary places like Phoenix. Experience is the real school. The experience you have had in Phoenix you could not have got elsewhere. Thoughts about realizing the self, again, could only occur to you there. The very fact that you have asked me such a profound question when you are a mere child shows your merit. The credit of your having been able to nurse Mr. West² and others also goes to Phoenix. As most of the people in Phoenix are just beginners, you may find faults all round you. They may be there. Phoenix is not perfect but we wish it to become so.

The Phoenix School has nothing to do with what I have said above. The school is a means to achieve our end. If it breaks down, we shall know that we are not yet fit for that kind of work. I understand your eagerness to study. My advice to you is to have patience. Concerning you, I have been thinking in various ways. I shall explain this to you when we meet. Meanwhile have faith in Bapu. Ask me if there is anything you have not understood.

¹ Gandhiji’s second son

It is all right that Mr. West has given you a pocket book. You have not served him for the sake of a gift. He has not given you the book as a reward but as a memento.

I am anxious about Deva'. Please look after him.

Blessings from
BAPU

From the original Gujarati in Gandhiji’s hand: C. W. 92

Courtesy: Sushilabehn Gandhi

163. LAST NOTE ON DEPUTATION)

I

KILDONAN CASTLE,
November 25, 1909

This is my last note on the Deputation. I should like to request every Indian to go through it carefully. It is my hope that when this note is published in Indian Opinion, we, both the brothers', will have been lodged in gaol or will soon be.

POLAK'S WORK

It appears that the more General Smuts sets himself against us, the greater the support we get from India. But four months is too short a period in which to rouse a people. Even four years will not be enough. What then is the secret of the success of Mr. Polak's mission? The Transvaal satyagrahis, of course. Mr. Polak's effort has

1 Devdas, Gandhiji's youngest son
2 For earlier Notes on Deputation, vide Vol. IX.
3 This instalment: was published in Gujarati in Indian Opinion, 18-12-1909.
4 Gandhiji and Hajee Habib. When the deputation was on its way to England, fellow-passengers on the ship got the impression, from the friendly relations between the two, that they were brothers. Vide 'Deputation's Voyage [—II], Before 9-7-1909.
5 In India, where H. S. L. Polak had gone on a deputation to explain the case of British Indians in S. Africa been welcomed on all sides, not because he is Mr. Polak, but because he is our spokesman telling the story of our grievances, because it is for India that we have been suffering and because India has come to realize the justice of our cause.

PROTEST IN ENGLAND

What about England? I cannot explain how deep a root the movement initiated in England is likely to strike. After the Deputation of 1906, the [South Africa British Indian] Committee was formed. We have often spoken of the invaluable work done by the Committee.
Lord Ampthill¹ and Sir Muncherji² are unremitting in their efforts, in the faith that we shall hold out till the end. But the movement³ that has now started is far more important than the work of the Committee. Its object is to take our cause right to the individual Englishman and see that every Indian in England becomes fully acquainted [with the situation]. We are not making this effort because we depend on the support of the British people. Every human being can help our cause.
The object of our effort is to give world-wide publicity to the justice of our cause and the injustice of the Transvaal [Government]’s stand.
We bring the matter to the notice of the British people because of the connection that exists between them and us. On being acquainted with the facts, they tell us that what we have been doing is right. They send money in aid of our cause. This conveys the suggestion of our being their equals. They do not write to us with an air of condescension, but as our brothers and sisters. This is a new idea. They do their duty [by us]. Let us assume that about a hundred thousand signatures and as many pence will be collected. The significance of this cannot be easily grasped by everyone. A hundred thousand pence will make £416.
That is not a small amount. But it is not the amount that matters. The collection of 100,000 signatures is no child’s play. About 40 Indians and Englishmen have volunteered to go round for the purpose. It will require a great effort on the part of all these persons to collect such a large number of signatures. Besides, it is not a small thing that 100,000 persons encourage us to go ahead with our fight. Why should these men work? Only because we make sacrifices. Does anyone

¹ Chairman of the Committee; former Governor of Madras; vide"Deeds Better Than Words", 26-10-1906.
² Bhownaggree (1851-1933), Indian barrister settled in England, Member of Parliament;“Mr. Brodrick and British Indians in the Transvaal”, 2-7-1905.
³ Vide “Speech at Meeting of Indians”, 2-11-1909.
believe that we could get a single person to work so much for us merely by babbling something about wanting rights for ourselves?

Having carried on the fight so far, what will the Transvaal Indians do now? If they want to uphold the honour of the people of India, they will meet death rather than give up the fight. They will not keep looking at one another, but go on with the fight. Everyone will want to be a Nagappeni. They will not be unnerved, but happy rather that the struggle is lengthening out, for, as days pass, people realize that we are not just being theatrical, and they also grow better acquainted with the nature of our struggle. That is the miracle that suffering works. As, one after another, the brave Moor soldiers threw themselves on the French guns and fell dead, the French gunmen at last refused to fire on them and embraced the survivors. So great is the respect that courage inspires. The Moors could make the impression that they did because they were reckless of their lives. Had they known how to fire a gun, they could not have succeeded so well. But they knew how to die. Through their deeds they told the gunmen: “We are not frightened by your guns. Our country and our religion are dearer to us than our lives. Therefore, keep your guns to yourselves. You cannot bend us. You may seize our lands, if you can, after our death. Do not think, you can take them while we live.” These Moors have not in fact died, but live on. For generations their people will recall the story of their courage and the whole world, too, will cite their example. The same is true of the Transvaal Indians. Let them all speak out with one voice that they are prepared to lay down their lives to fulfil their pledge; and then be as good as their word.

During [these] four months, many Indians held out courageously and have acquitted themselves well. But there were also many who betrayed weakness. We are paying the price of that weakness. The struggle is getting prolonged. What does it matter, though: the more it is protracted, the more severely are the soldiers tested. We cannot expect everyone to display the same courage. Were it to be otherwise, there would be no need for a fight. All the same, the following things need to be done.

(1) Everyone who possibly can should keep up courage and fight till death.

---

1 A satyagrahi, who died a martyr; vide “Statement of Transvaal Indian Case”. 16-7-1909.
2 Vide “Cape Town Indians”, 31-8-1907.
(2) Those who cannot should cheer the others who continue fighting rather than attempt to dispirit them, or hold their tongue and not come in the way of anyone attempting to do something good.

(3) Those who cannot take part [in the struggle] as in (1) above should help with money. This is how all wars are fought. Everyone does not march to the front. The others [who remain behind] cheer those on the front, nurse them [when wounded] and help with their money.

(4) Everyone must bring home to General Smuts the determination of the Indian community not to rest till it had won its demands.

These are the duties of the Transvaal Indians. Indians all over South Africa [however] must know that it is because of the struggle that they have been spared. It is this fight which safeguards their interests. If it has become difficult to pass laws [against them] elsewhere, that is because the Transvaal has been fighting.

Indians must bear in mind that they will call down disgrace on the community if they do not act as suggested above. Even a child can see that we must win the fight. They offer to repeal the Act and to permit entry of six Indians, but refuse equal rights of entry [with the whites] under the law. The explanation for this hurdle has also been provided by General Smuts: it is that there are only a few Indians who carry on the fight. The rest have grown sick of it. If this is true, it is obvious that we shall get nothing.

EXPENDITURE ON DEPUTATION

The expenditure on the Deputation has amounted to about £500. Of this, £210 represents the fare for the journey both ways, which leaves £290 as the figure of expenses in England. The printing bill has not yet been paid. Two thousand copies of our statement¹ were printed. The paper for these remains to be paid for and there is still some unavoidable expenditure to be incurred. The accounts for these items will be given later. An abstract of the expenditure mentioned above will also be published in Indian Opinion.² In view of the work [of collecting signatures, etc.] that we have undertaken as stated above,

---

¹ Of 16-7-1909; vide “Statement of Transvaal Indian Case”, 16-7-1909.
² This was done in the issue of 25-12-1909; vide Appendix I.
a typist under Mr. Ritch' will have to be maintained for the present. Miss Maud Polak' has undertaken the work. She gave notice resigning her permanent job when we were about to leave. The balance of the amount received last in connection with this [signature campaign] has been deposited in the bank.

OUR DEMAND

The demand we have made through Lord Ampthill is this: the law must provide for equal rights of entry to all. We are also agreeable to the Governor being empowered under the law to regulate the number of immigrants belonging to any community. But the law must be the same for all.

GENERAL SMUTS' OFFER

General Smuts has shown himself prepared to give permits of permanent residence to Indians, and also to repeal the obnoxious Act'. But he is not prepared to grant equal rights under the immigration law. There must be [he says] a separate law making special provision for the Asiatics. Lord Crewe' has stated emphatically that General Smuts is not prepared to concede equal rights even in theory.

It all boils down to this: he is prepared to give us the very thing [we want], but only as a gift rather than as a right. He insists that in the law itself there must be a distinction between the whites and the Coloured people. We argue that we have not been fighting for numbers, but for equal rights [even if only in theory].

II

FUND IN ENGLAND

Contributions have been received to-date as follows, two items mentioned earlier' being repeated:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th></th>
<th>£  s.  d.</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Dr. Mehta</td>
<td>10. 0. 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Servant of India (per month)</td>
<td>3. 0. 0</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

1 Louis Walter Ritch, an articled clerk under Gandhiji and later Secretary, South Africa British Indian Committee, London; vide “Speech at Farewell to L.W. Ritch”, 9-3-1905.
2 Sister of H. S. L. Polak
3 The Transvaal Asiatic Registration Act 2 of 1907
4 Secretary of State for the Colonies
5 This appeared as the second instalment in Indian Opinion, 25-12-1909.
6 From Dalal and Dr. Miss Joshi; vide “London”, Before 8-11-1909.
Mr. Gokulbhai Dalal 0.10.0
Mr. J. M. Parikh 1. 1. 0
Mr. H. Bose 0. 2. 0
Miss Winterbottom 10. 0. 0
Mr. Duleepsingh 5. 0. 0
Mrs. Dubey 1. 0. 0
Dr. Miss Joshi 3. 0. 0

This is just a beginning; no one has yet gone round for collections.

MEETING IN CAMBRIDGE

Mr. Hajee Habib, Mr. Ismail Ise, Mr. Azam and I visited Cambridge in response to an invitation. We met students from the Aligarh College as also from the Punjab, Bengal and Gujarat. Mr. Khan came along with us from London. We met about 70 students. Mr. Hajee Habib and I addressed the meeting 2 which appeared to be considerably roused by our speeches. The students have agreed to help in raising contributions and collecting signatures. We also met Prof. Tejasingh 3 there.

The Polak family, Miss Smith, Sir Muncherji, Mr. Dubey, Mr. Parikh, Mr. Munsif, Mr. Bose and some other Indians and Englishmen were present at the station to see us off. Thus, on all sides, sympathy has been evoked for us. It is for us to keep it alive. Likewise, it also depends on us whether the fight will be over early or whether it will go on for a long time.

AT MEYER’S PARTY

Mr. Meyer 4 arranged a party on the 12th in the Westminster Palace Hotel to enable [friends] to meet us both and hear what we had to say. Letters were received from Lord Ampthill, Lord Curzon, Lord

1 Prince Duleep Singh
3 A Cambridge graduate, Professor of English at Khalsa College in the Punjab and leading member of the Sikh community in Canada, who organized the Guru Nanak Mining, Developing and Trust Company there to help settle the Sikhs Roberts¹ and other gentlemen expressing their inability to attend. Sir Charles Bruce² wrote as follows:

Although the cause they represent is passing through a dark hour, I am not discouraged. In the history of the human race, it has been darkest before the dawn. . . . Never did the cause of the Negro seem more hopeless than during the years that preceded the abolition of slavery. . . . The Saviour of the world deemed Himself lost in the moment that brought our redemption. And so I join you in spirit in wishing Godspeed to Messrs Gandhi and Hajee Habib.³

Sir William Markby⁴ wrote:

. . . I hear that they have not obtained the small measure of justice which they came to this country to ask. No one disputes the reasonableness of their claim. It is for political reasons only that the Government refuses to interfere. It is not pleasant to see again and again the British Government showing its inability to enforce the just claims of its subjects.

The function was attended, among others, by Princess Sophia Duleepsingh, Sir Raymond West⁵, Mr. Ameer Ali⁶, Sir Frederick Lely, Dr. Rutherford, Sir Muncherji Bhownaggree, Major Syed Hussain Bilgrami, Miss Winterbottom⁷, Mr. and Mrs. Dube, the Hon'ble Mr. Daaji Abaji Khare, Mrs. Khare, Mr. Motilal Nehru, Mr. and Mrs. Marnham, Mr. and Mrs. Ratcliffe, Mr. Ritch and Mr. Ismail Ise.

Speaking after tea, Mr. Meyer said⁸ that, when Mr. Gandhi told him what had happened, he felt that arrangements should be made for a few gentlemen to meet Mr. Hajee Habib and Mr. Gandhi and hence he had called this meeting. He had met Mr. Gandhi in South Africa and had come to know of his self-sacrifice. They had, he said, the reputation of being men who loved fair play and could not therefore ¹ Commander in-Chief in South Africa, 1899-1900 and 1901-04; vide “What should the Brave Do?”, 1-6-1907.

² Governor of Mauritius (1897-1904)
³ From the English text of the letter published in Indian Opinion, 11-12-1909
⁴ (1829-1914), Judge, Calcutta High Court, 1866-78; vide “Letter to Sir William Markby”, 20-11-1906.
⁵ (1832-1912), Jurist, Vice-Chancellor of Bombay University; vide “Deputation Notes -III, 23-11-1906.
⁶ Member, Privy Council; vide “Honour for Justice Ameer Ali”, 25-12-1909
⁷ Secretary of the Union of Ethical Societies; vide “Letter to Miss F. Winterbottom”, 13-11-1906.
⁸ The translation has been collated with the English report in Indian Opinion, 11-12-1909.
allow their friends to depart without showing them their goodwill. He thought their presence there did not endorse in every particular all Mr. Gandhi’s words and acts or suggest that he had made no mistakes. Human beings would not be human beings if they did not make mistakes. But, on the whole, their presence at that meeting was their endorsement of the Indian struggle. The question touched not only the Transvaal or India, but the British Empire as a whole. Mr. Gandhi had informed them, he said, that there was an offer from General Smuts to repeal the Act of 1907, but it was subject to a condition which was unacceptable. Mr. Gandhi did not resist legislation in general, but only legislation which cast a slur upon Indians.

Mr. Gandhi said:

I am thankful to Mr. Meyer for having called this meeting and I welcome the opportunity given to my colleague and me. We do not expect this gathering to endorse every step that we have taken. We only want you to declare that our demand is a reasonable one and request your support for it. The issue on which we have been fighting concerns not only the Transvaal but the whole of the British Empire. The offer which the Transvaal Government has made is not acceptable because it does not meet our object. There are in South Africa nearly 150,000 Indians. The immigration of Indians commenced with the system of indentured labour in Natal. This was followed by the advent of free Indians who, being traders, excited the jealousy of white traders; hence the present Indian problem in South Africa. The position we occupy in that country is a very difficult and a very delicate one. In Natal, at the Cape, in the Orange Free State and in the Transvaal, there exists legislation which hurts our feelings. In the Transvaal the position is particularly difficult. Before the war, we could not hold landed property, had no voting rights, might not walk on the foot-paths nor ride on tram-cars. All these laws are still in force. Up to the year 1906, however, we put up with these restrictions. We memorialized the Government. My friend, Mr. Hajee Habib, used to approach the British Agent for relief. He sometimes obtained a measure of redress. We did not, however, go beyond taking these steps. But the law which was passed in 1906 fell in a different category. It was conceived in an atmosphere of criminality. It was degrading to the people who were settled there. They also intended to pass another law to put a barrier upon Indian immigration. Never before had such laws been passed in a British Colony. They were an attack on us as a community. We felt therefore that petitions would not be enough. We held a meeting in a theatre, at which Mr. Hajee Habib administered an oath to everyone not to submit to any such law if it came to be passed but suffer the penalties for breaking it.¹ We had no personal interest to serve by this. So long as it was a matter of our own interests, we had kept patient. But when we saw that it constituted an attack on us as a community, that the very foundations of the British Empire were endangered, we resolved to keep quiet no longer. We had two alternatives before us. One was to meet violence with violence. We rejected that alternative. The other was to refuse submission to this legislation. We adopted this course. We acted as Daniel had done when he refused to obey the laws of men which he did not approve of.² The Imperial Government, too, were a party to this crime. They knew that this legislation would hurt our susceptibilities. They might have withheld their consent to the Transvaal measure, but they did not. What is the meaning of the British Constitution? It is supposed to confer equal rights on all subjects. I could consent to remain a subject of an Empire with such a constitution. But I have found from experience that we cannot have equal rights even in theory. I am obliged to say that I cannot consent to remain a subject in such an Empire. It does not matter to what extent I am allowed to participate in it; if, however, I am to be treated as a mere slave and not as a partner, that is a position I cannot accept. This legislation cuts at the root of the British Empire and resisting it we have been rendering a service not only to India but to the whole Empire. We have been offering passive resistance against the Imperial Government as well, and I hope that this meeting will tell us that we are right in doing so. We cannot do less and deserve to be partners in the Empire, and unless there is partnership, there cannot be Empire. That is why I have said that this struggle is one of the greatest of modern times. We are fighting with no selfish motive, and the weapon we employ is self-sacrifice. What we ask is equality in the eyes of law, which Smuts refuses to grant. As an illustration, let us suppose a master telling his slave: “You may sit at the table with me, but on this condition, that this bond of slavery will always exist between us.” Will the slave acquiesce in such an arrangement, if he wants to be free? What he must do is to tear off the bond of slavery. That is our position. We want to tear off the bond of slavery.

² Vide Old Testament, Daniel, Ch. VI.

We now appeal to you for your support. As passive resisters, we use no force. Nor do we ask anyone to use it. But we want you to know what our struggle means. If it appeals to you, you can extend encouragement to us. You can show the Imperial Government that you will be no party to its crime.

He was followed by Sir Raymond West and Sir Frederick Lely. Major Syed Hussain also made a spirited speech and said that the whole of India, Hindus, Muslims and Parsis, were at the back of the [Transvaal] campaign. The following resolution was then passed unanimously:

That this meeting desires to express its earnest sympathy with the Transvaal British Indians in their peaceful and selfless struggle for civic rights and to offer its warmest encouragement to them in this struggle.

This is an illustration of the agitation that is being carried on in England. Mr. Ritch will go round from place to place. He had already received invitations to speak at Oxford and elsewhere which he had accepted. On November 9, he spoke at Miss Smith’s. There one person offered to collect 500 signatures.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 18-12-1909 and 25-12-1909

164. LETTER TO HERMANN KALLENBACH

UNION-CASTLE LINE,
November 25, 1909

MY DEAR LOWER HOUSE,

I write this in anticipation of my going to gaol before reaching Johannesburg.

Your letters are always a study in human nature at its best. Your last one is more so than usual. I call them a study in human nature at its best because you lay bare your heart to me = a privilege I

---

1 The English text is found in Indian Opinion, 11-12-1909.
2 A contributor to the Amrita Bazar Patrika, Calcutta and the Punjabee, Lahore. assure you I appreciate very much indeed.

If I were to discuss all I have seen and pondered over, it will fill pages and yet I should not succeed in explaining my meaning thoroughly. I fully understand your moral difficulty = how to get out of the ordinary dishonesty. I should prize this healthy discontent and nurture it. You will then soon find a way out of it. In the light of my new experiences and further development I have gone through I would like to be by your side and as of old go into the life problems with you. But there need be no impatience. Meanwhile, you have many desirable things to occupy your mind, chiefest among which is this Transvaal struggle.

You ask when will you and I be free from it? I know you have been taxed sufficiently. You have got more than you bargained for. That unfortunately is the price friends pay for close association with me. But apart from feelings of consideration for you I see no necessity for the question when shall we be free. Whichever turn the struggle takes, it is the best discipline I can have. Whilst I work strenuously to bring it to close, I continue in it as if it was to last a lifetime. And so it may be with you if you can take it cheerfully and calmly. We agreed when I left for London, that you could not be better occupied. And I am now face to face with the fact that you have to be so occupied to the end of the struggle. To say you could leave it, is to insult you and to understand your ability to stand fire. No, my dear Lower House, I can only say you should be absorbed in the struggle and to that end compel yourself to be calm.

I shall be writing to you officially also, so that you will see how far the struggle has advanced in London and what effort is necessary in the Transvaal.

Cordes continues to cause trouble. He has been swearing, it appears, at Purushottamdas Desai who, so far as I know, is a very quiet and amiable man. He has felt it terribly, I do not want to write to Cordes for fear I may offend him without doing good. There seems to have been some financial trouble also. I fear that Phoenix has to be supplied with funds. What the condition there is, I do not know. I can only leave the matter in your hands to do the best you can and to ease the situation at Phoenix. Devdas, I notice, was very ill and had not recovered quite at the time they wrote to me. All this shows that I

---

1 Who was in charge of the Phoenix school should be free for a few days and yet I know that I must not ask for a postponement.

I can understand your repugnance towards Motan. And yet I feel that some day or other you [would] want to get rid of this sort of thing. Is he not a member of the same human family? Before you and I realize the identity of all life, we have to live this prejudice down. The thing is difficult but there is no escape from it.

This is a very unsatisfactory letter. Instead of relieving you of the worry and the trouble of looking after the struggle and my affairs when you are yourself not at ease, this letter invites [you] to take on more. I can only hope that I may be soon able to relieve you although the struggle may not end soon.

When I think of you and think of what awaits Mr. Doke, my head begins to turn. I pull myself up and say to myself: there is nothing of self in this. Why then worry? You and he could only do the best. And there I must leave the situation.

I expect that the house has not gone beyond what you described in your letter. I would certainly like to poke my nose into it and play the architect and give some of the newfangled notions I am bringing with me.

With every apology for this letter and with love,

Yours sincerely,

[PS.]

I have been working very hard on the steamer and have given myself no rest. It is now after 8 p.m. and there is still much before me to finish. I have translated a long letter from Tolstoy\(^1\) and written an original book in Gujarati.\(^2\)

From the original: Gandhi-Kallenbach Correspondence. Courtesy: National Archives of India

---

\(^2\) Hind Swaraj; vide 15-12-1820
165. LETTER TO A. H. WEST

UNION CASTLE LINE,
R. M. S. KILDONAN CASTLE,
November 26, 1909

MY DEAR WEST,

This is an official letter. I knew nothing about the financial difficulty with the exception of a letter Mr. Cordes\(^1\) sent me as from Mr. Kallenbach\(^2\) As my movements will be uncertain, I have written to Mr. Kallenbach. I am sorry for the position. I made all the arrangements. I was capable of making. My instructions about printing several things are to be read together with this except the order from Dr. Mehta\(^3\).

Miss Smith has of her own accord advised me that henceforth she does not want to charge for her monthly letter but that she would continue to send her contributions all the same. I have told her what she may write upon. I suggest your writing to her a letter of thanks.

You may make any other changes you may consider necessary in order to put the financial position on a satisfactory footing. I would plead, however, for Kababhai\(^4\). I suggest that he be not touched. As to the closing of the Durban Office, the matter requires very careful thinking. But if you think that it had better be closed, by all means do so. You may cut about the exchange and complimentary list as you may think fit and may reduce the size of the English columns. I suggest that all this should be done in consultation with Mr. Kallenbach. I am likely to meet him before I am gaoled. In that case, I shall discuss things fully with him.

With reference to Chhaganlal, Dr. Mehta offered to send one of my boys. I then suggested that he should not restrict me. He was

---

1. A German theosophist, in charge of the Phoenix School; came to India and joined Gandhiji at Sevagram; died there in 1960.
2. A German architect, devoted friend and co-worker of Gandhiji placed his farm at the disposal of the satyagrahis. Vide “Letter to H. Kallenbach”, 30-5-1910\(\).
3. Dr. Pranjivan Mehta, M.D., Bar-at-Law, and jeweller; his association with Gandhiji began right from the time he received Gandhiji on his arrival in England for the first time as a student. He rendered financial help to Gandhiji in his activities from the days of the Phoenix Settlement till his death in 1932.
prepared to send another also of my selection. I was disinclined to accept the double offer. So I asked him to let me send Chhaganlal or Maganlal to London in lieu of my boys. It was not a scholarship for competition. I felt that I could decide as to who should go to London in place of my boys but that I should ask for your permission to free the one I may select. I have not been able to discuss the reasons for coming to the decision I have. That, of course, I would as soon as we meet. They are too elaborate for me to reduce to writing and that now when I have not a minute to spare.

The scholarship for the school still stands. Several have been offered from India also. But I have not seen my way to accept them whilst we are in a state of uncertainty. Nor have the scholarships been rejected. The Indian scholarships have been offered through Mr. Polak. I asked him to invite these scholarships when I discussed the matter with Dr. Mehta.

I look to you all to see that Manilal is not disturbed. As a father, I have felt [it] to be in his interest that he should not yet go to England. Further progress depends entirely on what Chhaganlal can do. I suppose everybody realizes that the conditions of these donations are stiff. Acceptance of poverty and continuance of Phoenix work, no matter where, are indispensable.

Mr. Cordes asked me a question as to what should be done for payment of schemers\(^1\) who may be laid up with sickness for a long time. My answer is that we are a family and that we are bound to support them and even find what medical help as poor people we are capable of finding. I am quite willing that my guarantee should stand for such cases. I would add that the same condition should apply within reasonable limits to the non-schemers. It is in such matters that in my opinion we best realize our ideals. We are trying to live a life of perpetual self-sacrifice and find joy in it. But the latter suggestion is for you to accept or reject, as you may think best.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat of the original in Gandhiji’s hand: C.W. 4412 Courtesy: A. H. West

\(^1\) Founder-members of the scheme of the Phoenix Settlement; vide “Letter to A. H. West”, On or before 29-12-1909.
I thought of communicating to you the ideas that arose in my mind after reading Mr. McIntyre’s letter about our financial position and after writing a letter to Mr. West. Please share this letter with Parshotamdas.

Phoenix will be put to test now. Probably we may not get money from Johannesburg. Our pledge is that we shall bring out at least a one-page issue of Indian Opinion and distribute it among the people as long as there is even one person in Phoenix. Do not allow any intrigues to flourish there. You must put up with anything that the others might say. If the Durban office is closed down, let it be. Always bear in mind that the main point should be stuck to. In order to give one’s life for it, one has to give up the rest. The main point is to bring out the paper at any cost and not to leave Phoenix. If this one point is kept, the other things may go. We do not want to make a fetish of the journal and worship it. But we do want to keep our pledge. Our victory does not lie in issuing the paper, it lies in the pledge. There is nothing in getting the Transvaal Act repealed but there is everything in keeping the pledge. Our soul is moulded by our pledge and that is and should be the significance of keeping our pledge as well as of carrying on our other activities. You might suggest that the office may continue even if Mr. West has to go to Durban. Or let Manilal go [to Durban]. I would confide to you two only that I intend to sacrifice Manilal in the struggle if he is willing and if Ba agrees. That will calm his restless mind. In fact, he wanted it himself. But if this does not materialize, it is just as well that he goes to Durban, and you remain in Phoenix. This should be done only if it is necessary. Make up your mind not to be upset if money does not come from Johannesburg.

1 A Scottish theosophist, who joined Gandhiji as an articulated clerk and later became a co-worker
3 Parshottamdas Desai, who was in charge of the Phoenix School; vide “Letter to A. H. West”, On or before 29-12-1909.
4 Kasturba Gandhi, wife of Gandhiji and mother of Manilal.
You may tell them that in that case you will provide the necessary funds by earning the money in some other way. You may also declare that you will continue to live and die in Phoenix even when no one else remains there. The others will catch your spirit, provided it is born of your steadfast mind and not of arrogance. The spirit has to be genuine, not merely expressed in strong words. Be quite sure that its echo will definitely be heard. Let the other necessary changes also be made. If any changes that you consider needless are made, let them also be made. There should not be any insistence in matters of pecuniary profit and loss. It is out of our ignorance that we believe we get our bread because of our efforts. It is best if one realizes that He who has given us teeth will also give us food for chewing.

From the facsimile of the original Gujarati in Gandhiji’s hand in Jivan-nu Parodh by Prabhudas Gandhi

167. LETTER TO RAMDAS GANDHI

UNION CASTLE LINE,
R. M. S. KILDONAN CASTLE,
Wednesday [November 27, 1909]

CHI. RAMDAS

I write this letter to you as I do not know when we shall meet. Do not be angry with me if I have not brought anything for you. There was nothing I liked. What could I do if nothing European appealed to me? I like everything Indian. The people of Europe are good, but their way of life is not good. I shall explain [this] to you in detail when we meet.

Do not be upset if I go to gaol; rather you should rejoice. I should be where Harilal\(^1\) is. I must live there even for the sake of the struggle. Be cheerful. I want to see you stout and strong.

Blessings from

BAPU

From the original Gujarati in Gandhiji’s hand: C. W. 93

Courtesy: Sushilabehn Gandhi

\(^1\) Third son of Gandhiji.
\(^2\) Gandhiji’s eldest son.
168. CABLE TO G. K. GOKHALE

[November 30, 1909]

PRAY THANK MR. TATA FOR MUNIFICENT TIME-LY HELP. DISTRESS GREAT. PRISONERS’ LOT
HARD. RELIGIOUS SCRUPLES DISREGARDED. RATIONS
SHORT. PRISONERS CARRY SLOP-PAILS; FOR RE-FUSING, PUT ON SPARE DIET. SOLITARY CON-FINEMENT. PROMINENT MOSLEMS? HINDUS, PARSIS IN JAIL.

GANDHI

Gujarati, 19-12-1909

169. MESSAGE FROM DELEGATES AT CAPE TOWN

[November 30, 1909]

We request the favour of your columns to inform our countrymen of the Transvaal that the net result of the Deputation shows that the struggle is a national one. The issue is clearly defined: it is a fight for legal equality regarding immigrants. We hope passive resisters will remain firm and that our countrymen throughout South Africa will support us.

We have received a cablegram from the Hon. Prof. Gokhale informing us that Mr. Ratanji Jamshedji Tata of Bombay has given Rs.
25,000 in aid of the Transvaal struggle. This munificent aid shows that the Motherland is fully alive. It requires for passive resisters to show they are prepared to die for a cause that is righteous, godly and national.

Indian Opinion, 4-12-1909

---

1 This, the Bombay weekly Gujarati reported, was sent by Gandhiji to G. K.
Gokhale, whose cable announcing the donation was received by Gandhiji on his arrival on November 30 at Cape Town; vide “Letter to G. K. Gokhale”, 6-12-1909.
2 Ratanji Jamshedji Tata (1871-1918), leading Indian industrialist and philanthropist; started the Tata Iron and Steel Works in 1912; knighted in 1916.
3 Indian Opinion published this telegram as from Messrs Gandhiji and Hajee Habib, who had arrived at Cape Town on Tuesday.
4 A slip for “remains”?

334 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
170. INTERVIEW TO "CAPE ARGUS"

[CAPE TOWN, November 30, 1909]

Dr. Abdurahman, this morning, introduced Mr. Gandhi and [Mr.] Habib, who left South Africa in June last as a deputation to England on behalf of the Indian Passive Resisters. They arrived this morning, and continue their journey today to the Transvaal, if they are not stopped at Vereeniging.

Mr. Gandhi . . . has a youthful appearance; but he is over 40 years of age, and has a son who has four times been in prison as a Passive Resister. Mr. Gandhi himself has been in prison for the same reason. . . .

[GANDHIJI:] Passive resistance has gone on for three years, and now the issue is the clearest possible between the Transvaal Government and the British Indians. We have been fighting throughout this time for legal or theoretical equality with reference to the future emigration from India. We entirely recognise the Transvaal standpoint that there should be a very rigid test of all emigrants from India, but we have always held that the manner of bringing about this position should be not offensive to the whole of India, as now, and should not be a departure from such legislation in other colonies. The Transvaal legislation is the first of its kind.

Indians are excluded from the Transvaal as Indians—that is, on the ground of race or colour, whereas in other colonies, even in Australia, exclusion is brought about by severe education tests. This test is made severe, or it is relaxed, in accordance with the instructions issued by the administrator in charge of the Immigration Department.

Against this, we have nothing to say, but I feel that equality in theory should be preserved intact, otherwise the terms ‘British Constitution’ and ‘British subject’ become perfectly meaningless.

I have yet been able to find no one who has studied the question, who has anything to say against this attitude taken up by us. The question to be considered is the retention on the Statute-book, deliberately, of this unreasonable inequality. I say nothing with reference to the internal legislation in the Transvaal, bad as it is, but talk of the fundamental point I have drawn attention to. I could point out, too, that the struggle has been entirely idealised, in that those

---

1 This was reproduced in Indian Opinion, 11-12-1909.
2 President of the African Political Organisation and member of the Cape Town Municipality.
engaged in it have no personal interest to serve, merely fighting for a principle. The method adopted also is idealised, as we seek to bring about relief through personal suffering by disregard of the law, which we hold to be against our conscience and our self-respect.

We suffer, that is the penalty; hence over 2,500 Indians have suffered imprisonment in the Transvaal, some of them even four times. Among this number are merchants, hawkers and servants, men representative of all the different religions, and today we have received a cablegram from Professor Gokhale, who is a member of the Viceregal Council, Calcutta, stating that one of the millionaires of India, Mr. R. J. Tata, has given 25,000 rupees (£1,630) to the funds of the passive resisters. Hitherto we have not appealed for funds outside of South Africa, but since the prolongation of the struggle has reduced so many Indian families to poverty, we find it necessary to accept assistance from outside South Africa. In England many Englishmen and Indians volunteered to collect subscriptions and to sign a letter\(^1\) addressed to the passive resisters, encouraging them to continue the fight.\(^2\)

We went to England in no spirit of defiance, but in order to take advantage of the presence there of so many Colonial statesmen. I feel certain that when the people in South Africa realise the ideal nature of the struggle, though their own ideal is not to encourage the wholesale importation of Indians from India, they will be unwilling to inflict the serious suffering that has been going on. I think that the South African statesmen should welcome the method adopted by us to gain relief, because we do not inflict suffering on others. Although [the result of] our visit to England was negligible, yet I feel satisfied that the English people now realise the exact nature of this struggle and are persuaded that we are moved by a sense of duty.\(^3\)

As regards the effect in India, meetings have been held throughout the chief towns of India, in which all the different classes combined in support of the passive resisters, and I notice that one\(^4\) the retiring Indian members of Lord Morley’s Council has stated that no question has so agitated India as this concerning the Transvaal.

\(^1\) Vide “Letter to Transvaal British Indians”, 6-11-1909

\(^2\) This paragraph was not reproduced in Indian Opinion.

\(^3\) This sentence was not reproduced in Indian Opinion.

\(^4\) Syed Hussain Bilgrami treatment of the Indians.¹

Question: Will the education test be accepted?

[GANDHII:] Yes, the Emigration Officer would have a discretionary power as to the test to be applied, and it would be open to him to make a severe test as regards Indians, and so reject those who were not able to meet it. This is done in Australia and other colonies. I see no difficulty about it. There is a fear that the education test would keep the agitation alive, but I hold this to be groundless.

Mr. Gandhi, in conclusion, expressed his belief that General Smuts would give a fair hearing to their case.

Cape Argus, 30-11-1909

171. FRAGMENT OF A LETTER

December 1, 1909

I never realize any distinction between a Hindu and a Mahomedan. To my mind, both are sons of Mother India. I know that Hindus are in a numerical majority, and that they are believed to be more advanced in knowledge and education. Accordingly they should be glad to give way so much the More to their Mahomedan brethren. As a man of truth, I honestly believe that Hindus should yield to the Mahomedans what the latter desire, and that they should rejoice in so doing. We can expect unity only if such mutual large-heartedness is displayed. When the Hindus and Mahomedans act towards each other as blood-brothers, then only we can hope for the dawn of India.

Indian Opinion, 4-12-1909

172. LETTER TO MANILAL GANDHI

Johannesburg,
Kartak Vadi 5 [Samvat] 1966,
[December 2, 1909]

CHI. MANILAL,

So long as you are firm in morals and discharge your duties, I for one shall have no worry at all about your studies. If the

¹ This paragraph was not reproduced in Indian Opinion.
² Written in Gujarati to a Mahomedan correspondent injunctions and observances prescribed by the Shastras are practised, it will be enough for my purpose. I shall be helpful to you if you want to make further progress in your academic studies, either as a hobby or to be better equipped [for work]. I will not find fault with you even if you do not do it. However, if you decide upon a particular course of action, try to stick to it. Let me know what things you are doing now the press; also when you get up in the morning, what work you do in the field, etc.

Blessings from
BAPU

From Mahatma Gandhiji-na Patro (in Gujarati) edited by Dahyabhai Patel, published by Sevak Karyalaya, Ahmedabad.

173. INTERVIEW TO REUTER

[JOHANNESBURG,
December 2, 1909]

Messrs Gandhi and Hajee Habib⁠¹ arrived at Park Station this evening. Long before the arrival of the train, hundreds of Indians and Chinese [had] assembled. When the train steamed in, quite 2,000 Indians and Chinese, and several Europeans, were present. The crowd was of the orderliest. There was a tremendous ovation, and flowers were showered upon Mr. Gandhi.

Mr. Gandhi returned thanks to the Transvaal Government for their courtesy in allowing them uninterfered re-entry. He said he hoped that the Transvaal [Government] would soon see their way to remedying the legislation. He considered the Transvaal’s action was injuring, not the Indians, but the stability of the Empire.
The people of England and India were waking up to the fact that the struggle was just.
They were realising the detrimental nature of the Transvaal’s action. The people of India were particularly alive to the necessity of carrying on the struggle, as evidenced by the handsome donation by Mr. Tata⁠² during the past few days. He was pleased to know that they had a great number of European sympathisers. The English people now realised the justness of the struggle. He felt very fit, and so did all his supporters.
Many men among their ranks were ready to die for the cause.

Mr. Gandhi was then escorted to Vrededorp, where the Asiatics were holding a meeting. Prior to leaving, he was garlanded.

Indian Opinion, 4-12-1909

¹ They comprised the Deputation to England which had just returned.
² Vide “Interview to Cape Argus”, 30-11-1909.
174. LETTER TO MAGANLAL GANDHI

Thursday night [On or after December 2, 1909]¹

CHI. MAGANLAL,

Your letter to hand. I quite realise that things there are in a mess. You can certainly tell me the reasons for it as you see them. I shall consider them. I am sure you will not write with any ill will towards anybody.

I have not yet received a letter from the Bank. You may go and remind them. I again forgot to do this. The whole day passes in a ceaseless round of duties and I find no time to do it.

It is the duty of those who have devoted themselves to Phoenix to improve the life there and do their best to develop Indian Opinion; for through Indian Opinion we have been imparting education and doing public good. We need not be disheartened if some of us in Phoenix do not put in their best, waste our resources or are quarrelsome. He who knows better should put in double the effort to make good the deficiency. The study of the Gita […] the effect of the sound of its words […] in some incomprehensible way.

From a photostat of the original Gujarati in Gandhiji’s hand: S.N. 6081

175. LETTER TO H.S.L. POLAK

Monday [After December 2, 1909]²

MY DEAR HENRY,

I have not the time to give you a long letter today. Too much disturbance at the office. At the invitation of Nagdee I took the school children to Warmbaths for the Sunday. We have just returned Kallenbach and Ritch were with me and so also Pragji.³

¹ This letter, of which only the first two pages are available, is placed after Gandhiji’s return from England. The reference to the Bank in the second paragraph suggests that the addressee had taken charge of bank matters which were attended to heretofore by Chhaganlal Gandhi, who was at this time in India en route to England.

² This letter was evidently written after the one to the addressee dated September 23, 1909, in which Gandhiji mentions the essay on passive resistance and the syllabus that he was to draw up for it; vide “Letter to H.S.L. Polak”, 23-9-1909. Gandhiji was in London about this time and it would appear that this was written after he returned to Johannesburg on December 2, 1909.

³ Pragji Khandubhai Desai
You will have copy of my evidence before the Select Committee. It is not meant for publication. Dr. Mehta is there. I wish you could fix up now the essay on passive resistance on which you will remember I drew up a syllabus.

Yours sincerely,

Bhai

From the original: Gandhi-Polak Correspondence. Courtesy: National Archives of India

176. REPLY TO “THE STAR”:

[JOHANNESBURG,] December 3, 1909

SIR,

I must again, with your kind permission, worry you and your readers with the struggle in which my countrymen have now been engaged for the last three years.

I must confess that, even in London, I could see no sign of the majority of my compatriots here having been tired of the struggle, as you are. They have certainly felt the strain. Some have undoubtedly succumbed, and, before we are through, more may succumb; but the demonstration at the station last evening could not have failed to show even a superficial observer that practically the whole of the Indian community is at the back of it, and that those who have, through weakness or through other causes, accepted the law no less keenly resent it than active passive resisters.

I am, however, more anxious to engage the attention of your readers on the merits than on the question of the strength or weakness of passive resistance. In spite of your quotation from Macbeth,3 I venture to repeat what I have said—that the theory of equality may be restored in our legislation as to immigration, which may be deliberately departed from in administration, and yet I would deny the

---

1 The Star’s leading article, “Mr. Gandhi’s Return” dated 2-12-1909, was reproduced in part in Indian Opinion, 11-12-1909, along with this reply.
2 At the Park Station, vide “Interview to Reuter”, 2-12-1909.
3 “Be these juggling fiends no more believed
That palter with us in a double sense;
That keep the word of promise to our ear
And break it to our hope.”
charge of having “paltered with” anybody “in a double sense”. It will not do to dismiss a great principle of the British Constitution by loosely using the words “administrative chicanery”, “dishonesty”, etc. In theory, the Indian Civil Service is open to all British subjects; in practice, it is open to the people of India in a most restricted sense. This departure from theory is unfortunate, but it is neither dishonest nor fraudulent, because the thing is done openly, and, rightly or wrongly, as an administrative necessity. Australia, Natal, and many other Colonies have legislation such as British Indians have submitted to the Transvaal Government for acceptance; and it is not possible to charge all these Colonies with questionable practices because they use their education test very effectively to keep out British Indians. Their legislation contains no national insult, and who can deny that it is a great thing to keep the Statute Books of the Colony free from the taint of prejudice? If administration is differential, it will simply be a concession to prejudice, as also the well-defined policy of the white inhabitants of South Africa. But, in the latest amendment submitted through Lord Ampthill, there is even no room left for the charge of dishonesty. The law will clearly state that the Governor-in-Council will have the power to limit the number of immigrants belonging to any class or race, in spite of their having passed the education test.

I do believe that, if the people in South Africa, and particularly in the Transvaal, really understood the question, they would ask our Government to grant the concession my countrymen have been fighting for.

Meanwhile, the Government are making the lot of passive resisters well-nigh intolerable. One of the greatest Indians in South Africa is, in spite of his weak constitution, being deprived at Diepkloof of the special food which was issued to him by the Medical Officer at Volksrust and at Houtpoort. He has been compelled to uncover his head, although he has a religious objection to doing so, an objection that was respected during his three incarcerations. He was not only hand-cuffed but chained on his arrival from Johannesburg; but, if I know Mr. Rustomjee well, I know that nothing in the world will daunt his brave spirit. Another Indian, an ex-sergeant, has been called upon to empty slop-pails. He has scruples. Such scruples have been hitherto, within my own knowledge, very largely respected. Now he has been, for his disobedience so called, put on spare diet and confined in a solitary cell. It is well for the Colony to know what is being done in its name.

1 U. M. Shelat; vide “Indian Stretcher-Bearer Corps”, Before 19-7-1906.
2 Vide “Speech at Johannesburg Mass Meeting”, 5-12-1909

In conclusion, I would like to express the appreciation of my colleague, Mr. Hajee Habib, and myself of the Government’s courtesy in allowing us to cross the border unchallenged.

I am, etc.,

M. K. GANDHI

The Star, 4-12-1909

177. SPEECH AT TAMIL LADIES’ MEETING

[JOHANNESBURG, December 3, 1909]

Mr. Gandhi said that the community was grateful to Mrs. Vogl and Miss Schlesin for their noble work among the Indian women of the Transvaal. The speaker understood that the ladies present were all passive resisters and had sent their husbands or brothers or sons to gaol in connection with the national struggle that was going on. They had acted very bravely and their work had attracted attention in the Motherland. The speaker then explained the result of the mission in England and hoped that, no matter what the difficulties were, his hearers would continue their work and not be frightened by obstacles or owing to the struggle being prolonged.

Indian Opinion, 11-12-1909

1 Vide “Mr. Shelat’s Discharge”, 1-1-1910

2 Mrs. Vogl presided at the meeting, which was held at 175, Market Street, Johannesburg. The work among “Indian ladies” had been inaugurated by Mrs. Polak, and was continued by Mrs. Vogl and Miss Schlesin; women’s meetings were held regularly. At the conclusion of Gandhiji’s speech, the ladies assured him that they would not flinch from their duty in the struggle.
178. SPEECH AT JOHANNESBURG MASS MEETING

[December 5, 1909]

Mr. Gandhi said that it gave Mr. Hajee Habib and himself the greatest satisfaction to see his countrymen in such large numbers face to face again. Their presence and their welcome at Park Station gave the lie direct to the charge that interest in the struggle had waned. The speaker offered thanks to the Transvaal Government for their having allowed Mr. Hajee Habib and himself to cross the border unchallenged. It showed that the struggle could be carried on with dignity and without unnecessary bitterness, and yet the proceedings of the past five months showed that there was a great deal of bitterness as also irritation. He recalled the death of the gallant young Nagappan, who gave his life for the struggle. A thousand Major Dixons could not remove the impression from his mind that he had died a martyr’s death. The great philanthropist Mr. Rustomjee was in gaol, and he was shattered in health. The illustrious Imam Abdul Kadir Bawazeer was also suffering imprisonment, and so were the stout-hearted Mr. Sorabji and other brave Indians. Mr. Shelat was suffering solitary imprisonment and was put upon spare diet, because he refused to carry slop-pails. These things could not but cause great bitterness and irritation. It had been said that the community had weakened. It was perfectly true that some had fallen. It was not their fault. It was not in human nature to expect capacity for prolonged suffering on the part of many.

The state in which they were living was described by General Smuts as that of war; and, in every war, the honours of battle were reserved for the few, and every community was represented, after all, by the fewest possible. In the gaol at Diepkloof, every action of the community was represented by its best men. There

---

1 The meeting, attended by more than 1,500 Indians including representatives from Boksburg, Germiston, Krugersdorp, Heidelberg and other Rand towns and a number of Chinese friends as also Messrs Vogl and Kallenbach, was held at 4 p.m. on the grounds of the Hamidia Mosque, Johannesburg, to welcome the Delegates on their return from England. Telegrams were received from several of the country districts. A. M. Cachalia, Chairman of the British Indian Association, presided and observed: “The sending of the Delegations to England and India has resulted in giving our struggle world-wide status.”

A report also appeared in Rand Daily Mail, 6-12-1909.

was, therefore, every reason for hope, and the speaker hoped that Indians would follow the worthy example of their leaders. As a matter of fact, the deputations to England and to India were against the real spirit of passive resistance, which relied entirely upon self-suffering, but there was weakness, too. It, therefore, became necessary to supplement the effort by sending deputations. They had returned from England without any final result, and yet they had not returned disappointed. The authorities now knew the exact nature of the struggle. There was no one in England who had anything to say against it. Lord Ampthill had supported them with his whole heart. Everyone knew that they were fighting for legal and theoretical equality as to immigration. It was recognised that the struggle was not on behalf of a handful of Indian residents in the Transvaal. It was on behalf of the whole of India, indeed, on behalf of the whole Empire. Its honour was entrusted to them, and it would be well for the Colonists to understand the seriousness of the struggle. They could not question the demand of the Indian community for a restoration of that equality it had enjoyed before the War and up to 1906, when the Colonial policy of restricting immigration from India was accepted and carried out. It was the duty of Indians to resent a national wrong. When they were told that they could not enter the country because they were Indians, the implied insult became intolerable. It was a life-and-death struggle. His (the speaker’s) life and he believed that of many of his countrymen was dedicated to fighting against the policy underlying the legislation they were protesting against. The formation of a band of volunteers for doing house to house work, for collecting subscription, and for reaching the heart of democracy in the United Kingdom was a very important result of their mission. The movement might be far-reaching in its effects. Many earnest English men and women and Indians had joined it. The magnificent efforts that were being made by the self-sacrificing Mr. Polak had borne ample fruit. It had resulted in the magnificent donation of Mr. Ratanji Jamshedji Tata. A struggle such as this might well be prolonged. Prolongation meant greater discipline, if it also meant greater hardship, but the goal to be achieved was worth all the sacrifice, and the speaker hoped that Asiatics would continue the struggle to the end.

He appealed to the Transvaal Government, as also the Colonists, to consider the issue. The Colonists should, in his opinion, exercise their imagination and their Imperial instinct, and concede the demands of the Asiatic communities. He hoped that they did not wish to tell the millions of India that they were to be considered as inferior beings, no matter what their status might be. The doctrine of inequality as regards immigration was laid down for the first time in the colony of the Transvaal. It was not yet too late to retrace the step. If the desired alteration in the legislation was made, it would be a simple graceful act of justice. But he feared that if the Transvaal proceeded in its present policy, it would shake the very foundations of the Empire.

1 Vide “Speech at Meeting of Indians”, 2-11-1909.
In dwelling upon the European support received in the Transvaal, Mr. Gandhi paid a tribute to the work done by the Committee led by Mr. Hosken. Those who were members of the Committee cherished the Colonial ideal just as much as anybody else, but they did not find it incompatible with that ideal to espouse the Indian cause. He confessed that passive resistance would have been practically impossible without the encouragement, support, and sympathy that were received from the European friends and workers.

Indian Opinion, 11-12-1909

179. SPEECH AT JOHANNESBURG MASS MEETING

[December 5, 1909]

This meeting has disproved the allegation that the Indian community was weakening. It must be admitted, however, that the spirit today is not what it was in the beginning. Some Indians have indeed fallen off, but that is no reason for us to be discouraged. In every struggle, the same thing happens. Only a few continue to fight to the bitter end. A community which has in it heroes like Mr. Bawazeer, Mr. Rustomjee, Mr. Naidoo and Mr. Sorabji cannot surely be said to have accepted defeat. A community which can boast of such members is bound to win. But, while recognizing our strength, we must not fail to notice our weakness. Even a child can see that there would have been a settlement by now if those who gave in had not done so.

General Smuts deserves thanks for having allowed us to come in. This is an instance of the spirit of dignity that informs this struggle. But there is also increased bitterness. How can it be otherwise when they compel prisoners to carry slop-pails and harass them unnecessarily? How can we forget that Nagappen gave his life for the cause? If the Indian community remembers all this, it will never give up the fight. Whatever may happen, I and many other Indians have dedicated our lives to the cause for which we have been fighting. If every Indian had been a satyagrahi, there would have been no need to take a deputation to England. The strength of the satyagrahi lies entirely in self-suffering. Since, however, all of us were not satyagrahis, a deputation was sent. It has returned unsuccessful, but not dispirited. Lord Crewe has now realized

1 A pro-Indian leader of the Progressive Party in the Transvaal; vide Vols. VIII & IX.
2 Vide “Resolutions at Johannesburg Mass Meeting”, 5-12-1909.
3 This is a report from the Gujarati columns, of the same speech as the preceding item.
5 This is a reference to Shelat; vide the preceding item.
that our struggle is a pure one, that it is not dictated by self-interest and that all our methods have been above reproach. Likewise, Lord Ampthill and other British leaders too understand all these things. We did not come across a single Englishman or Indian who said that our fight was not justified. This is no mean achievement. We can go ahead now.

For a time, it also appeared likely that there would be a settlement. [General Smuts] offered to repeal the Act and to make provision for the issue of certificates of permanent residence to educated Indians, at discretion. We could not accept this. It is not a favour that we want, but [recognition of] a right. If we have an inferior status under the law, it makes no difference to us that we may be allowed to come in. The offer was an appeal to our self-interest. It was not free from the insult implied in the denial of the right of entry to us on the ground that we are Indians. So long as this stigma is not removed, our pledge will remain unfulfilled. Therefore, we have no option but to carry on this fight for the sake of our people and our religion. We demand that the law must grant equal rights of entry to Europeans and Indians. It can empower the Governor to frame regulations to provide that, even from among those who had passed the test, only a fixed number from each community would be allowed to enter. This would ensure legal equality and uphold our honour. But we failed to get this, I believe, because of our weakness here. It should also be remembered by every Indian that more than this we shall never get. It would be a great victory for us even to get this much. And get it we shall.

Everyone knows the fruit of Mr. Polak’s fine efforts in India. They have resulted in Mr. Tata’s donation of Rs. 25,000. In England, English ladies and gentlemen as also Indians have enlisted themselves as volunteers and go round from house to house.

Thus our struggle has gained world-wide publicity. We have stepped into the limelight. It would be a great shame to give up the fight now. People have come to feel confident that the Transvaal Indians will never betray weakness of purpose. To turn away from the task now will bring disgrace to the Indian community.

It must also be realized that the status of Indians in South Africa depends to a large extent on this struggle. It is because of the struggle that new laws have not been passed, the Licenses Act in Natal has been amended and legislation in Rhodesia was disallowed. If we continue, it will be difficult to make laws against us when the Union Parliament comes into being. This is as much as to say that our interests also are involved.

That the struggle is drawing out is to our advantage, rather than otherwise. India is being awakened thereby, we are being educated and are learning to do public work. It is, therefore, my earnest request to the community that those who are strong must remain strong, that those who have fallen must openly admit their weakness and help the struggle by giving money and in other ways. This is but a duty that every Indian owes to himself. The Imam Saheb\(^1\), Mr. Rustomjee and others are in gaol for our sake. It will indeed be shameful for us to leave them in gaol, confessing ourselves [too] weak [to follow them], or to refuse other help that may be needed.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 11-12-1909

180. RESOLUTIONS AT JOHANNESBURG MASS MEETING\(^2\)

December 5, 1909

1. This meeting of British Indians hereby welcomes Messrs Hajee Habib and Gandhi, and, after having heard their statements, endorses their action, and congratulates them upon having carried out their mission with courage, patience and moderation.

2. This meeting of British Indians hereby respectfully tenders its thanks to Lord Ampthill and his fellow-members of the South Africa British Indian Committee for having guided the delegates and given them the benefit of their mature experience.

3. This meeting of British Indians declares its intention to carry on the struggle by means of self-suffering in the shape of imprisonment and otherwise until the legal and theoretical equality as to immigration of British Indians of culture with the other immigrants is restored.

4. This meeting of British Indians of the Transvaal appeals to the Government and the European Colonists to consider the bearings of the struggle on the Empire as a whole, and in view of the fact that under the British Indian demand the Colonial ideal of rigorously controlling immigration from India is preserved intact, to see that the terrible sufferings of the community are ended by justice being done.

5. This meeting of British Indians of the Transvaal appeals to the Imperial and the Indian Governments to use their friendly efforts for securing a settlement of the long-standing grievance of the community, regard being especially had to the fact that the grievance is national and a further prolongation of it is calculated to injure the prestige of the British Empire.

1 Imam Abdul Kadir Bawazeer; vide the preceding item.

2 Gandhiji was present at the meeting and spoke there; vide the preceding item. These resolutions were presumably drafted by him.
6. This meeting of British Indians of the Transvaal places on record its thanks to Ratan Jamshedji Tata, Esq., for his munificent and timely donation of Rs. 25,000 in aid of the struggle.

7. This meeting of British Indians of the Transvaal authorises the Chairman to forward the resolutions to the proper quarters.

Indian Opinion, 11-12-1909

---

181. LETTER TO PRIVATE SECRETARY TO TRANSVAAL GOVERNOR

JOHANNESBURG, December 6, 1909

THE PRIVATE SECRETARY TO

HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR OF THE TRANSVAAL

JOHANNESBURG

SIR,

I have the honour to enclose herewith Resolutions that were carried unanimously at a Mass Meeting of British Indians, held yesterday and attended by nearly fifteen hundred men representing all sections of the community. I am desired by the meeting to request His Excellency to forward these Resolutions to the Right Hon’ble the Secretary of State for the Colonies and to the Right Hon’ble the Secretary of State for India.

I have, etc.,
(Signed) A. M. CACHALIA,
CHAIRMAN,
BRITISH INDIAN ASSOCIATION

[Enclosure]

From a photostat of the typewritten copy in the Colonial Office Records: C.O. 291/139

---

1 Presumably drafted by Gandhiji.
2 Vide Resolution No. 7 (preceding item), which was not enclosed.
3 He also presided over the Mass Meeting.
4 The first six resolutions of the preceding item.
DEAR PROFESSOR GOKHALE,

As soon as we arrived at Cape Town, your cablegram announcing the magnificent donation from Mr. Tata was received, and now I have your inquiry from Poona as to our requirements. I have just cabled as follows:

PRESENT REQUIREMENT THOUSAND POUNDS. EXPECT IMPRISONMENT BEFORE END MONTH. MUCH MORE REQUIRED LATER.

What I observe is that the expenses are necessarily great, and our resources in South Africa are exhausted. There are enough Indians in the Transvaal alone who could still carry on the struggle, if they would, without outside help, but they are not now inclined to help. They think that they have given enough. These are the weaker members of the community. The strongest have ruined themselves pecuniarily, and they simply go to gaol as often as the Government arrest them. Their families have also to be supported. When this struggle commenced, I bore the whole of the expenses of the office, as also the rent of offices, which were really for my practice, but, for the last two years, I have done very little legal work. I have also found the expenses for running Indian Opinion, which is by no means yet self-supporting. These are the current expenses:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Description</th>
<th>Amount</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Office here</td>
<td>£50</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Office London</td>
<td>£40</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Indian Opinion</td>
<td>£50</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Distressed families</td>
<td>£25</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

These I apprehend will be the minimum monthly expenses. Almost all connected with Indian Opinion are working practically under a vow of poverty, including the Europeans, but, as the paying subscribers are very few, it is necessary to give help. I feel that, if contributions do arrive from India, we should continue the above expenses. If they do not, it is my intention to cut down much of the expense of Indian Opinion, thus depriving the struggle of one of its greatest supports, and to close down the London office. The active passive resisters who are likely to remain staunch to the last we count as one hundred. These will force themselves on the attention of the authorities. The bulk of the community will help by attending meetings, making protests, and also by contributing something. This would enable the passive resisters to support their dependents. To reduce the struggle to this extent means an indefinite prolongation, but, as it has been undertaken very largely as a matter of discipline, those of us who understand it would not at all be disappointed, and are prepared for life-long suffering.

I cannot blame our countrymen in the Transvaal or in South Africa for not paying as liberally as they have hitherto. The struggle has cost already, I think, no less than £10,000. In this I include the expenses of all sub-committees, which are not found in the advertised accounts of the Central Association, but I exclude the enormous losses that individuals have suffered. It is no wonder then if many now lose heart and decline to give even pecuniary help.

As, however, the national importance of the struggle is now being recognised in India, I feel that we might receive pecuniary support, and that openly. I am anxious to make as much of it as possible. I have now placed practically the whole of the situation before you. Some of the bravest Indians representing all races are at present in Diepkoof Gaol. The foremost among them I count Mr. Rustomjee, who has now finished over nine months of continuous imprisonment. He is very much shattered in health. I paid him a visit yesterday; he is resolved upon dying in gaol if need be. Another is a cultured Mahomedan priest, Imam Abdul Kadir Bawazeer. The third is a Mahomedan merchant of standing, Mr. Ebrahim Aswat from the Surat District. The fourth is an undergraduate and Jain, Mr. Nanalal Shah. The fifth is a Brahmin from Ahmedabad, Mr. Umiashanker Shelat. He has refused to carry slop-pails, and is now confined in a solitary cell. But perhaps the bravest and the staunchest of all is the indomitable Thambi Naidoo. I do not know any Indian who knows the spirit of the struggle so well as he does. He was born in Mauritius, but is more Indian than most of us. He has sacrificed himself entirely, and has sent me a defiant message, saying that, even though I may yield and accept anything less than Lord Ampthill’s amendment, he alone will offer resistance and die in the Transvaal gaols. I may perhaps add to this list another young man, Mr. Sorabji. He left a lucrative post in order to lay the foundation of the second stage of the struggle and claim entry as an educated Indian. He came light-heartedly not knowing what was in store for him, but for the last eighteen months he has been practically in gaol. I could continue to multiply the names. In all, there are about thirty Indian passive resisters in the gaols at present; many more would certainly claim the honours if the Government would give them. The possibilities of a struggle such as this it is very difficult to measure. I hope that the Motherland will come to the rescue, and assist us as far as possible. The moral effect of continued pecuniary assistance from India will also be very great. I hope that my letter¹ from London has duly reached you, and that it has received your consideration.

I remain,

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

[PS.]

I propose to utilise the funds just received £1673 from you towards liquidating debts already incurred mostly for Indian Opinion. You shall have full account of disbursements.

M. K. G.

From the typewritten original signed by Gandhiji with the postscript in his hand: G. N. 4111

183. EXTRACT FROM LETTER

[JOHANNESBURG, December 6, 1909]

I paid a visit to Mr. Rustomjee yesterday. He is very much broken down; he does not receive the medical food that was prescribed for him at Volksrust. The Parsees—I mean the orthodox Parsees—never take off their caps, but Mr. Rustomjee has now been compelled to remove his cap, although he was allowed to keep it on at Volksrust and Houtpoort. He is put on stone-breaking. . . . Mr. Rustomjee is also suffering from a constitutional disease; his eye-sight is affected; he was a most pitiable and piteous sight. I am applying for permission for a doctor to see him.

Colonial Office Records: C.O. 291/141

² Quoted in a letter dated December 31, 1909 from Sir Mancherji Bhownaggree to the Under Secretary of State for the Colonies; the full text is not available.
184. TATA’S GIFT

That India has been roused is evident from the generous gift of Mr. Ratanji Jamshedji Tata. By his big donation of Rs. 25,000 he has given a powerful impetus to our movement. He will probably be followed by other Indians.

Parsis are known the world over for their generous gifts. Mr. Tata has been true to that spirit of generosity. In South Africa hardly any Indian can equal Mr. Rustomjee’s performance. We have had many generous donations from him. For us, therefore, Mr. Tata’s gift is no matter for surprise.

Mr. Tata has laid the entire community under obligation. What is the way to repay it? Our courage must increase tenfold after what has happened. The money has been given in the faith that we shall carry on the struggle to the bitter end. It is up to us to prove that we are worthy of such confidence.

It would be some satisfaction if the fight were continued for the sake at any rate of Mr. Tata’s gift, not so much because of the amount itself as for the implication which the donation carries, and the impression that it will make on the world.

If Mr. Tata’s gift is a matter for satisfaction, it also calls for a warning. In this world a gift can rarely be turned to good account. Only a few know how to put to good use money got as a gift. Such money makes people weak-willed and selfish. Our fight is based on self-help and is intended to bring about our own regeneration. Therefore, should Mr. Tata’s gift lead people to relax their efforts, it may do more harm than good. We would urge the Indian community not to slacken in its duty in South Africa, regardless of this gift.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 11-12-1909

185. NATAL LICENSING ACT

The Natal Parliament has amended the Dealers’ Licenses Act. The Indian community was keen on provision for appeal, and its desire has been partly satisfied. If an officer refuses to renew an existing licence, an appeal will now be allowed to the Supreme Court. This is a matter for some satisfaction. There used to be rank injustice sometimes, which will now cease. The amendment does not apply to new licences, but we do not think this is much of a difficulty. With some effort we may possibly secure that too.

Every Indian must note how the change came about. There are two main reasons. One, to arrest the agitation for ending the system of indenture. Two, fear of satyagraha in Natal. Thirdly, there is also reason to believe that the change came about a little earlier than it might otherwise have done because of the Natal Deputation. But we especially draw the attention of the Indian community to the first reason. The amendment is a kind of a sop. The Government will now expect the business community to abandon its agitation for stopping the import of indentured labour. We hope the community will do nothing of the kind. If it does, it will have proved remiss in its duty.

According to us, indenture is an evil thing [in itself]. But there is also the £3 poll-tax on the indentured labourers. There must be an agitation for its removal. The Natal Government wants that the terms of indenture should expire in India. The [Natal] Mercury has pointed out clearly that had it not been for the difficulty of licences the Imperial Government would certainly have agreed to the change regarding the expiry of the term of indenture in India. It is our earnest request that the Indian community should not neglect its duty in this matter.

It will be evident to every Indian that this gain is the result of satyagraha. Those who see this will realize that satyagraha can meet every situation.

The problem of Indian education is also a very serious one. It demands the utmost attention from the community.

We therefore hope that the community will not sink into lethargy in the belief that nothing further now remains to be done.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 11-12-1909
186. LETTER TO “RAND DAILY MAIL”

JOHANNESBURG,
December 11, 1909

SIR,

Every person who has the interests of the Colony, as also the Empire, at heart, must feel thankful to you for your leading article on the Transvaal Indian situation.

May I, on behalf of those whom I claim to represent, state that, so far as our assistance is required with reference to those who are resident in the Colony, and who should be identified, it will be given at all times, and whole-heartedly. I need not recall the history of 1908, which is still fresh in the memory of the colonists, and which proves that we are not an unreasonable community, and that we are just as willing to suffer in order to aid the Government as we are today suffering in order to save our national honour.

I am, etc.,

M. K. GANDHI

Rand Daily Mail, 13-12-1909

187. JOSEPH ROYEPPEN

We congratulate Mr. Joseph Royeppen, who has recently returned after being called to the Bar, on his decision to join the Transvaal campaign. The decision must be esteemed a sign of true education. Undoubtedly, Mr. Joseph Royeppen’s entry into the Transvaal will be a great encouragement to the community. His example should be followed by others.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 18-12-1909

1 A summary of this letter appeared in the Gujarati columns of Indian Opinion, 18-12-1909.

2 Dated 10-12-1909, reproduced in part in Indian Opinion, 18-12-1909; advised acceptance of the Transvaal Indian demand.
TO
THE EDITOR
INDIAN OPINION
SIR,

I hope that I shall find myself lodged in gaol before this letter appears in print. ¹

My second son (Manilal) lives with me. For some time past I had been thinking of asking him to join the struggle. He was insistent. It appeared to me, on deep reflection, that it would be right to bring him in. I believe that to go to gaol or suffer similar hardships with a pure motive for the sake of the motherland is the truest kind of education. Since I look upon gaol as a kind of palace, how can I deny the privilege of being there to those whom I hold dear? My son has attained the age (17)² when he can think for himself.³ For my part, I should like to tell all Indian parents and all Indian youths that success will attend those who have joined the struggle. It is they that do the fighting, who profit most from it.

To those who are in gaol now I make this request, that they should make up their minds to return to gaol the moment they are released, without so much as pausing for breath. An exception may be made only in the case of Mr. Rustomjee. If he is not arrested [on his release], he would do well to go to Durban for a month. But as soon as a month is over, it will be his duty, so at least it appears to me, to return [to the Transvaal], whatever the state of his health.

Those who are outside should think of possible ways of getting into gaol. Failing everything else, it will be easy enough for them to fill the gaols in January or February.

Whether or not others fill them, it is obviously the duty of those who would do so for the sake of India not to pause even a moment for breath.

¹ Gandhiji expected he would be arrested on 22nd December while entering the Transvaal from Natal with six British Indians including Manilal. Vide “Cable to H. S. L. Polak”, 22-12-1909
² 18 years, vide “Cable to H. S. L. Polak”, 22-12-1909
³ Vide the concluding lines of the following item.

Yours,

MOHANDAS KARAMCHAND GANDHI

[From Gujarati]
Indian Opinion, 25-12-1909

189. SPEECH AT DURBAN MEETING

[December 20, 1909]

The resolutions\(^1\) proposed at this meeting are a proof of your enthusiasm and your spirit. You have identified yourself with the struggle, and that is as it ought to be, for this struggle is the support on which rest the rights of all. If we lose it, we shall be uprooted from this land or, in any case, be reduced to slavery. Even as it is, the slavery is there, as can be seen from the subjects of your resolutions. If you have any trace of manliness in you, you will turn satyagrahis. For instance, all the teachers can resign\(^2\), and all parents can withdraw their children from schools. Parents who believe that their children receive any education in Government schools are only deluding themselves. There is, again, the question of indentured labourers. You should never forget that the provision for appeal\(^3\) in regard to trading licences is only a bait. It has been offered in order to induce us to give up our opposition to the repatriation of indentured labourers on the expiry of their terms of contract. Is there any Indian who will agree to this? You must oppose such repatriation. The petitions you make will avail you nothing by themselves. They must be backed by some force, by the force of satyagraha (passive resistance). As General Smuts has declared, satyagraha is a kind of war. The Natal Indians can hope for no improvement in their lot unless they resort to satyagraha. Today England is on our side. India has been stirred by Mr. Polak. I have had news today from Johannesburg of a telegraphic offer of £400

---

\(^1\) Organised by the Natal Indian Patriotic Union on 20-12-1909
\(^2\) Reproduced in Indian Opinion, 25-12-1909
\(^3\) As a protest against the Bills which, while providing for pensions for teachers in aided and Government schools in Natal, excluded Indian teachers from the pension scheme (Resolution No. 5).
\(^4\) To the supreme Court, as conceded by the amendments made in the Wholesale and Retail Dealers’ Act (Resolution No. 7) from the Hon’ble Mr. Gokhale, following on Mr. Tata’s gift. Mr. Joseph Royeppen has returned with degrees from England, and will now accompany me to gaol to receive the latest degree. Another person to come forward is Mr. V. Lawrence. He has a wife and children, whom he will be leaving behind. He will also give up his job in order to join the struggle. I am proud of him. How can we ever turn away from the example that has been set by Nagappen? Cherishing his memory, we must fight on till we win. Victory will not further anyone’s personal interest, but it will uphold India’s honour. If these friends or any other Indians are coming along in the hope that thereby they will secure for themselves domiciliary rights in the Transvaal, I would ask them not to do so. Among those who are accompanying us, there is another Colonial-born Indian, Mr. Samuel Joseph. Likewise, Mr. Ramalal Singh has crossed over from Germiston, and he too will enter [the Transvaal] with us and go to gaol. Having thus carried on the fight for three years, it will be disgraceful of us to give it up now. Nothing is ever achieved except through suffering. A mother suffers when her child is born. In the same way, India has to go through suffering at present. Gaol-life is a kind of education and strengthens the will-power. This, I believe, is a great benefit, and hence I have decided to take along with me my second son Manilal. He has himself elected to come. In gaol, we are to work as missionaries of satyagraha, i.e., good life.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 25-12-1909

190. CABLE TO H. S. L. POLAK

[JOHANNESBURG, December 22, 1909]

JOSEPH ROYEPPEN, BARRISTER, CAMBRIDGE UNIVERSITY GRADUATE; SAMUEL JOSEPH, HEADMASTER, INDIAN SCHOOL; DAVID ANDREW,
CLERK, AN INTERPRETER (ALL BORN IN SOUTH AFRICA): MANILAL, MR. GANDHI’S SECOND SON, A BOY OF 18 YEARS, WITH RAMALAL SINGH AND FAZANDAR, THE ACTING CHAIRMAN OF THE BRITISH

1 Polak read this out at the Lahore session of the Indian National Congress while seconding the resolution moved by Gokhale on the treatment of Indians in the Transvaal.
Indian Association, and myself have crossed the border unchallenged, but we expect to be arrested at any time. I think that the arrest is suspended to avoid causing a sensation at the time of the Congress. Mr. Fazandar, although voluntarily registered, was deported last week. He re-entered. The policy of the Transvaal authorities appears to be to deport to India even those voluntarily registered, that is to say, those who are admitted by the Government to be lawfully resident in the Transvaal. Hazura Singh Lal and Bahadur Singh Vaia and six others have been arrested with a view to deportation. Their cases have been adjourned. The “Rand Daily Mail” and “The Transvaal Leader” recommend the acceptance of our demands.

India, 28-1-1910

191. Substance of Letter to Colonial Secretary

[Johannesburg, December 23, 1909]

Mr. A. M. Cachalia, Chairman of the British Indian Association, has written a letter to the Colonial Secretary in which he says the regulations are uncalled for irritating and degrading. The regulations, in the humble opinion of his Committee, are contrary to the declarations so often made by the Government that there is no intention to wound the feelings or to interfere with the movements of domiciled British Indians.

Indian Opinion, 1-1-1910

1 On December 22, 1909
2 The text of this letter, presumably drafted by Gandhiji, is not available.
3 The Railway Regulations gazetted on 17-12-1909
192. LETTER TO A. H. WEST

Friday Night [December 24, 1909]

MY DEAR WEST,

Both your letter and Joseph’s¹ to the Mercury are very good. I should like to keep them for Natesan² if I may.

If there is not sufficient to pay wages, I, being the manager of the Trust³, must make provision. In any case, the whole estate is liable for wages. Such is the legal position. The moral position is this: We do not make two ends meet; I fail to find money; we close down the Press, try other means; if we do not succeed and if we do not want to die on the land in the attempt to make it pay, we disperse or those who are dissatisfied will disperse. What do owners do, when they find their enterprise not paying? Settlers are virtually owners. Yes, it is possible for the majority to sell the land. I think we ought to leave the door open.

You will remember I once remarked that Indian Opinion, only may be taken over by the settlers, or some of them. Hence the clause⁴. Throughout I have presumed that the majority of us at least may be expected to carry out the ideals. The settlers will be those who will sign the list of settlers to be appended to the Trust. The wives and children are not ‘Settlers, in the sense of the Trust. Polak and Harilal who have joined the scheme are. Miss Schlesin can be one. Mr. Doke and Miss Smith are not.

The earnings will pay for all they can. For the present we only contemplate a deficit. The scope has been changed in that the settlers are paid according to needs and not according to income or ability.

I shall still await your concrete suggestions for amendment or alteration or addition.⁵

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat of the original in Gandhiji’s hand C. W. 4411

¹ Joseph Royeppen’s letter was published in The Natal Mercury, 22-12-1909, and reproduced in Indian Opinion, 1-1-1910.
² G. A. Natesan, Editor, Indian Review, Madras
³ and ⁴ The draft of the Trust deed is not available; for Trust deed vide Vol. XI; some particulars in regard to the Phoenix Scheme are given in “Letter to A. H. West”, On or before 29-12-1909.
193. HONOUR FOR JUSTICE AMEER ALI

Last week we gave the news about Justice Ameer Ali having been honoured by the Emperor. He has been appointed a Privy Councillor. That is, he has received the right of sitting in the Emperor’s Council. No Indian has received such an honour before now and Justice Ameer Ali is the first recipient. We congratulate him. Our readers probably know that for many years he has been living in England. He is President of the All-India Muslim League in England. He is also a member of the South Africa British Indian Committee, which is all the more reason why we should rejoice [at his appointment]. Also, his being honoured will encourage us to still greater effort.

[From Gujarati]
Indian Opinion, 25-12-1909

194. LETTER TO MILLIE GRAHAM POLAK

Sunday, December 26, 1909

MY DEAR MILLIE,

I am writing this in Mr. Kallenbach’s tent. It has been raining for the last two days. The tent is soaking wet, water dropping here and there. The wind is howling about me. Manilal is with us. He is a good boy. I notice that he is over-particular about his dress. He devoted nearly an hour to ironing his suit. He is pining to go to goal. I see you address me Brother in inverted commas and underlined thrice. We may well call ourselves brother and sister. Our conduct certainly justifies it. But will you give me a sister’s confidence? If you say ‘yes’, I shall try to be ‘brother’ to you. No real increase in my family can be cause of sorrow to me.

Henry wants me to send you £ 17 now. His previous letter said £ 16. I think I wrote to you from ‘on board’ that I should like to be able to send you more. Now it is done by Henry which is the same thing. Henry wonders how you will take his prolonged stay in India. And yet he is there in his element. After a certain stage, my presence is a hindrance to friends’ growth. Henry is doing much better independently of me. He has succeeded in captivating Dr. Mehta who wants me to print his address on industrialism and its evils for free.
distribution.

Your letter is full of epigrams in your best style. You could hardly be so sweet as you are if you never needed a friend’s help and consolation. Though a brother could never replace a husband, I tried during my stay in London to replace Henry so far as I could. It was no more a wrench to you to separate from me than it was to me to separate from you. We certainly came nearer each other in London than ever before. It was natural.

You may well envy Maud and yet you cannot. Maud is a different type. Friends can make or mar her. You can be helped by friends and never marred. A trusting nature like Maud’s is beautiful. It can under good auspices develop into a very strong nature. Her progress can be rapid but so can her retrogression. With you retrogression is impossible. And progress, shall I say, slow if not even difficult. You would be justified. I know, in saying the same of me. We are both strong natures. We may be nearest each other but never identical. I was tempted to analyse Henry. But I must not speculate any further. Your wonderful letter before me has given rise to these thoughts. That is the beauty of epigrams. You could say so much on each.

You are right in assuming that Lord Morley’s reforms may be a piece of bone thrown to a hungry dog. And yet it is open to those who will be the leaders in the new Assembly to make much out of them. Lord Morley can do little for India unless Indians themselves are prepared to do something for themselves. Just now assassination is the order of the day. Lord Morely can stop it but he is too blind to see the way. I should like to be able to throw myself into the work but I cannot, and have no desire to force the pace.

I am glad Waldo and Baby are getting on. I hope Celia and Amy are keeping well.

Of myself, you will learn from elsewhere.

With love,

Yours sincerely,

YOUR ‘BROTHER’

From the original: Gandhi-Polak Correspondence. Courtesy: National Archives of India
DEAR MR. WEST,

Without going into the argument, the following is my opinion.

Health—As to sanitation, I will say nothing. I have already given my opinion as to medical expenses. Reasonable medical expenses of all should come out of the business. What is reasonable should be decided in each case separately in consultation with the patient. The scheme is based on mutual trust and we must expect everyone not to wilfully fall ill or to wilfully ask us to incur expenses. If I do not want a doctor, I cannot impose the idea on others. In coming to this conclusion, I fancy that the ordinary law of human life is health and not sickness. If Dr. Nanji will not come to Phoenix, another doctor may be consulted.

The School—The school should vegetate and as to the material, Mr. Gora may be asked as to what he proposes to do with it. I suggest your personally seeing him. For the present, Purshotamdas alone may do what he can for the school.

Indian Opinion—The size should be changed as suggested. No apology need be offered in the paper for it. The English columns should be reduced. No leading matter of opinion [be] given for the present except explanatory notes. All matter should be severely condensed. Energy should be devoted to the art of condensing. It may be divided into Passive Resistance, Natal notes, Cape notes, etc. Reports of Bombay and other meetings may be considerably shortened. Original papers from which condensation is made should, if possible, be kept pasted in book form. The English columns then should simply give news on the disabilities throughout South Africa and about matters we are interested in. When Mr. Polak returns, he may enlarge the scope and size if funds then permit. Mr. Kallenbach should be advised as to how much will be required monthly under this

1 The letter seems to have been written after Gandhiji’s return from England and before the size of Indian Opinion was changed, which was done on January 1, 1910.
3 An Indian physician of Durban, who often treated those at Phoenix including M. Gandhi
4 Ismail Gora, Acting President, Anjuman Islam Society, Durban
heading, the ideal being not to ask for any support at all. The Gujarati columns ought not to be reduced, but if the Gujarati subscribers fall off, even that may be reduced almost to any extent, you there, in Mr. Polak’s and my absence, being the sole judge.

You may put a limit to the credit for subscribers. Mr. Dawd Mahomed and such others foreign or local may be placed on the complimentary or separate list, so that we know that we have to collect from them. You may cut about the complimentary list as you think fit.

As to libels, you need not fear or bother. All facts, you cannot vouch for, should be signed by those who give them—no law need be read on it just now. If I find a simple book, I shall send it. No legal adviser is necessary. But in emergency, Mr. Khan will advise.

Scheme—All except Kababhai and Mrs. West should be invited to join the scheme or leave. I am so firmly of this opinion that I would do away with the Kaffir labour. We would simply do what we can with the schemers and no more. All should be voters. They should appoint a sub-committee or managers—the final veto being retained to me. Personally I feel inclined to treat Mrs. West and Kababhai too as schemers with full rights except as to the drawings. All decisions to be by votes of majority, pure and simple. You may frame rules for guiding deliberations and defining the duties of the sub-committee and managers.

A wife working in the Press does not forfeit the privileges of a schemer’s wife.

I send herewith draft for £75 which please place to my credit.

Mr. Kallenbach has seen this letter.

Mr. Sam’s papers will be returned to him with the cession of the bond cancelled.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

[PS.]

There is no one now in Johannesburg who can go out collecting. I suggest Mr. Cordes coming out for collections. Periodical visits should be paid. No reliance should be placed on the 1 A leader of the Natal Indian community; one-time President, Natal Indian Congress; a passive resister.

2 An Indian barrister of Durban, vide “Speech at Calcutta Meeting”, 27-1-1902.
Johannesburg office as to collections. I shall endeavour to bring up the deficit in the capital a/c as quickly as possible.

M. K. G.

[PP.S.]

I have endorsed the draft.¹

From a photostat of the original in Gandhiji’s hand: C.W. 4410 Courtesy: A. H. West

196. JOHANNESBURG

[Wednesday, December 29, 1909]

KRUGERSDORF SATYAGRAHA

The case of Mr. Amad Vaja, Mr. Moosa Vaja and Suleman Hossen¹ came up for hearing on Tuesday last. There was a move to have them all deported under the Immigration law. Mr. Gandhi, appearing for the defence, argued that:

The Immigration law had no application [in the present case], since all of them had taken out voluntary registration certificates. True, they had refused to produce their certificates, that being the place of the campaign. There is no provision in law for deporting those who refuse to show their certificates, but such persons can be sentenced to imprisonment.

The Public Prosecutor read out the instructions which he had received from Pretoria. The case has been adjourned to Wednesday³

¹ These words have been written by Gandhiji in the margin at the top left corner of the letter.

² This is an extract from the weekly dispatch “Johannesburg”, which appeared almost regularly in Indian Opinion from 3-3-1906 onwards. (Vide “Letter to Chhaganla Gandhi”, 18-2-1906 & “Johannesburg Letter”, 26-2-1906). The dispatch was originally named “Johannesburg Letter”, but the word “Letter” was dropped from 16-10-1909 onwards. After his return from England in December 1909, Gandhiji, on the evidence available, seems to have contributed only occasional paragraphs to the dispatch.

³ Indian merchants

⁴ The case came up on Thursday, December 30; vide “Transvaal Notes”, Indian Opinion, 1-1-1910.
MY DEAR MILLIE,

Nowadays I come to the office between 7 and 8. I have a quiet half hour just now which I wish to devote to writing to you. You are dearer to me than my widowed sister Gokuldas’ mother, whom as you know I worship, though in thoughts a gulf divides us. You are dearer because there is so much in common between us and because I have entered so much into your and Henry’s lives - I hope for our common good and the good of humanity. Your brief letter haunts me. It fills me with sorrow and admiration for you. You have written it in love, grief and resignation. I wish you had sent me the other letter also that you wrote.

No, no, my dear sister, you are not going to live away from Henry for ever. Your wondrous imagination has carried you much further, I am sure, than Henry could ever intend you to go. How I wish I was close by you to comfort you and show how wrong you were. In reply to that letter of mine which you read, Henry wrote to me and told me he was writing to you. I wish you had sent his letter to me. You have cut a deep wound in my heart by telling me that your brief letter is to be the last for many weeks. You will not treat your only (am I) adopted brother in that fashion? If I am your brother, you must let me share your sorrows.

You are Henry’s better half. No path can be considered right for him along which he cannot carry you. Will you not have sufficient faith in him to know for certain that he is incapable of creating a gulf between you and himself? I ask you to trust me never to carry Henry

---

1 The court ordered, after hearing McIntyre’s arguments, this time, that the defendants be deported, the deportation to take effect after the decision in the appeal to the Supreme Court.

2 Words supplied in italics here and elsewhere in the text of a letter (other than those italicised as per editorial style) are underlined in the original, evidently for emphasis.

3 ibid.
along any route without your approval. A gift given or a sacrifice made grudgingly and not cheerfully is no gift or sacrifice. You have often given me the privilege of analysing you to yourself. You have heroically sacrificed yourself on the altar of duty. But you have done so in bitterness not always free from resentment. Your noble nature and your mad regard for truth should free you from that error. Why should not duty be pleasure? I hope you follow me in what I am writing.

Will you not, for my sake, shake yourself free from that little morbidity of your nature? It ill becomes a character like yours. I want a perfect sister and am anxious for Henry that he should have a perfect wife. It is because it is in you to be perfect that I venture to draw attention to what in my opinion is lacking in you.

‘Take no thought for the morrow’ is a sound maxim of life. You know exactly what this means. Why then worry!

Now do tell me what you will have me to do? At any rate let me know if you will be a true sister to me, what is running in your mind, what it is that Henry intends doing, what has caused you such a severe shock. I trust you, on the strength of a brother’s love, to tell me fully, frankly and freely where you are.

With love,

Yours,

‘BROTHER’

[PS.]

I return you your letter to enable you to understand this better.

M. K. G.

From the original: Gandhi-Polak Correspondence. Courtesy: National Archives of India

198. MR. SHELAT’S DISCHARGE

After having served six months, imprisonment, Mr. Shelat was discharged from Diepkloof Gaol on the 24th December, reduced in weight from 139 pounds to 110, looking weak and emaciated. The readers of this journal will remember that Mr. Shelat was confined to a solitary cell and placed on reduced diet for having refused to carry slop-pails. We consider that passive resisters should not hesitate to do the meanest work in the Transvaal prisons. But Mr. Shelat—a Brahmin—made the matter a point of conscience. We can but treat his objection, therefore, with respect. He was first punished with twenty-four hours’ solitary confinement with spare diet for disobeying the order. Mr. Shelat was immovable. The next punishment was for forty-eight hours; still with spare diet, but without effect. The third sentence was increased to six days with spare diet. Mr. Shelat was adamant. Spare diet meant rice water twice per day. This told on him, but Mr. Shelat was determined to die for his conscience. He was further sentenced to 14 days’ solitary confinement and with reduced diet. Reduced diet meant half the ordinary scale. But even the long spell in a semi-dark cell could not bend this passive resister’s spirit. The last sentence was, therefore, twenty-eight days. This meant prolonging his six months’ sentence by nine days. The authorities, however, discharged him without exacting the extra nine days. This is a feat that will always remain in the annals of Passive Resistance as one of the most brilliant. We congratulate Mr. Shelat on his pluck. He has shown the Transvaal Government that there are some Indians who, when it is a matter of conscience with them, do not fear consequences. Such punishment as was awarded to Mr. Shelat is reserved for criminals of a hardened type. To have inflicted it on Mr. Shelat and half starved him was wanton cruelty. But we boldly say to those who know what the struggle means—"Never mind what suffering you have to undergo. The more you suffer, the better it is for you and the community."

Indian Opinion, 1-1-1910

199. OURSELVES

With the present issue, this journal appears under a somewhat changed dress. The size, too, has been reduced. The Transvaal struggle has put a very severe strain on our resources. It has now become too great for us to continue the old form and size. It is within the knowledge of most of our readers that our publication is not a commercial concern, but our capacity for the service of the community to whose interests Indian Opinion is devoted is limited, and our limitation has necessitated the change the readers will notice.

\(^1\) Vide "Speech at Johannesburg Mass Meeting", 5-12-1909
in its appearance. We part very reluctantly by way of retrenchment with the cover whose colour was very specially selected. Though the size has been reduced, we hope that we shall be able by means of condensation to give the same amount of information. Our readers who are interested in the ideals we endeavour to promote can render useful service by finding subscribers for the journal which they may call their own. It is our desire to give more varied matter as our resources increase. It is, then, for the readers to say when they shall have a better service of news.

Indian Opinion, 1-1-1910

200. BALANCE-SHEET

Years follow one another. At the end of each, we take stock of the community’s position. The Transvaal satyagraha has thrown everything else into the shade. The course of the struggle has been marked by a number of notable events. A deputation also went to England. Numerous have been the benefits of the struggle. We can make the claim that the campaign has saved us from much disabling legislation in South Africa. Several instances of this will easily occur to the reader. The educative value of the discipline of satyagraha can never be overestimated. Everyone can see now that carrying on this fight is in itself a kind of achievement. The Transvaal campaign is still going on. Quite a few Indians have weakened. Had it not been for this fact, the struggle would have ended by now. But the community has lost nothing by the fact that the struggle has been prolonged. Of soul-force, it may be said, the more it is employed the greater is the benefit. Like learning, it grows through use. The campaign has now assumed an excellent form. In England, the volunteers have been doing very good work under the guidance of Mr. Ritch. If the present tempo of the work is maintained for a year, consider what it will mean. Assuming an average of £4 a week, the collection will total £208. If the signatures average 50 [a week], there will be 2,600 in all. In fact, much more than this is likely to be achieved. If, however, even 2,600 come to be properly informed about our struggle, it will be no small achievement. The wider the publicity a satyagraha campaign receives the greater the admiration it wins, making its opponents feel rather crest-fallen. Mr. Polak has roused India. As days pass, her pressure grows more vigorous. All this shows that we stand to lose nothing because the struggle is long drawn out. A campaign in which the combatants have no interests of their own to serve profits them all the more by being prolonged, for they fight for the good of others, and there can be no limit to doing good to others. From this point of view, we should not feel concerned even about those who have been suffering in gaol. They are tested through suffering and their worth shines all the brighter.

Turning to Natal, [we find that] the condition there is pitiable. The Natal Government has passed some laws which the community ought to oppose. We attach little value to the minor change that has been made in the Dealers’ Act.¹ In the matter of education, the Government has been very high-handed. Sooner or later, the Natal Indians will have no option but to take up satyagraha.

We find that the Cape Indians have been slumbering. There has not been any new legislation to speak of in the Cape, but the community is growing weaker day by day. Trade is no longer in Indian hands. The community has failed to profit by the favourable conditions there; otherwise, the Cape Indians are in a position to do fine work not only in the Cape but in the whole of South Africa.

In Delagoa Bay, Indians have been gradually losing their rights. The Portuguese authorities have been tightening the screw on them at the instance of the British. We put it to the community that they will lose nothing by resisting the tyranny of the Government. They must do so for the good name of the community. Their duty, too, requires the same thing.

[From Gujarati]
Indian Opinion, 1-1-1910

201. COLLECTOR’S ASSASSINATION

There was a cable-report in last week’s papers about a Collector named Jackson² having been assassinated near Nasik. There are some Indians who hope to terrorize the British by such acts. What they are doing is a grave matter. The assassin is quite convinced in his mind that he is acting in the interest of the country, but it is difficult to see what good assassination can do. Wherever assassinations have taken place, they have done more harm than good. President Mackinley\(^1\) of America was assassinated by someone who imagined that that was the way to eradicate corruption from America. No such result followed. Similarly, President Carnot\(^2\) of France was killed a few years ago. That certainly did not lead to any reforms in France. What followed both in America and France was increased repression by, and expenditure on, the police.

¹ Vide “Natal Licensing Act”, 11-12-1909
² A. M. T. Jackson, I.C.S., District Magistrate of Nasik, was shot dead on 21-12-1909 by a young man from Aurangabad.

Unless a particular form of tyranny is directly attacked, it can never be got rid of. If at any time it does seem to have been eradicated, other undesirable consequences will follow. If B, being oppressed by A, does not himself offer resistance but gets relief through C, that will not end his subjection. He will have C, instead of A, on top of him. If C is a good man, he may put B in shackles of gold instead of iron, but the shackles—the slavery—will remain. What is necessary is to open B’s eyes to his state of slavery and teach him to be free. It is not by murdering others that he can be taught this.

It is our particular request to readers of this journal that they give the utmost thought to this matter. We know it is becoming fashionable among the Indian people to admire assassinations. The fashion, we suppose, will not last long. Let every reader of Indian Opinion work to bring it to an early end.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 1-1-1910

202. TERRIBLE STEP

The Pretoria Town Council is dead set against the Coloured people. Every year, students are seated in the Town Hall during their examination. This time a Kaffir sat with the whites in the same hall. The Council was angered by this and served notice on the examiners that, since they had seated a Kaffir with the whites in the same hall, it would not be available to them henceforth. The examiners thereupon asked for a separate room for the Kaffir. This, too, was refused by the Council and a resolution was passed that no Kaffir or any other Coloured person should ever be allowed to use the Town Hall or any of its rooms. The whites who passed this resolution are counted very respectable and well-educated men. In a country like this, the Coloured people are placed in an extremely difficult position. We think there is no way out of this except satyagraha. Such instances of injustice are a natural consequence of the whites’ refusal to treat the Coloured people as their equals. It is in order to put an end to this state of affairs that we have been fighting in the Transvaal, and it is not surprising that the fight against a people with such deep prejudice should take a long time [to bear fruit].

---

\(^1\) William Mackinley (1843-1901), twenty-fifth President of the United States in 1896, re-elected in 1900, was shot on 6-9-1901 by a Pole, Leon Czolgosz, and died on 14-9-1901.

\(^2\) Marie Francois Sadi Carnot, (1837-1894); in 1887 became the fourth President of the Third Republic of France. His presidency was marked by the Boulanger agitation (1889) and the Panama Scandals (1892). On 24-6-1894, he was stabbed by an Italian anarchist named Caserio at Lyons, and expired almost immediately.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 1-1-1910

203. POLAK’S BOOK

To his other successful efforts in India, Mr. Polak has added one more by writing a book¹ on South Africa. Its expenses, moreover, will not be borne by us, since Mr. Natesan has published it at his own cost.

The book gives an account of conditions in the whole of South Africa. It has four sections. The first section gives detailed information about almost all the laws in South Africa, beginning with Natal. The section occupies 90 pages, 69 being taken up by Natal. The part [dealing with Natal] contains full information about the Dealers’ Act, the Immigration law and the law relating to indentured labour. In giving the account of the Dealers’ Act he has cited the cases of Mr. Hoondamal², Mr. Dada Osman³, Mr. Cassim Mahomed, Mr. Wahed, Mr. Goga, Mr. Chetty, Mr. Amad Bemat and others.

He has also cited many cases of hardships suffered by indentured labourers.

The Transvaal campaign takes up 45 pages.

In addition, statements made by a number of public men have also been included.

Under the heading “Immigration Scandal in Natal”, Mr. Polak

¹ The Indians of South Africa, published in Madras
³ Vide “Dada Osman’s Case”, 14-9-1898.
has quoted the strong letter which Mr. Anglia addressed to Lord Crewe. Information about education in Natal has also been included.

There is also information about laws in the Cape, Rhodesia and Delagoa Bay. This is a very valuable book which should be in the hands of every Indian. It is priced Re. 1.

[From Gujarati]
Indian Opinion, 1-1-1910

204. LETTER TO GENERAL MANAGER, C. S. A. R.¹

[JOHANNESBURG, January 4, 1910]

I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your letter² of the 30th ultimo, in reply to my letter addressed to the Honourable the Colonial Secretary and dated the 23rd ultimo,³ with respect to the Regulations affecting Natives and Asiatics. Whilst my Association is grateful to you for your exhaustive, courteous and conciliatory reply, I venture to point out that the spirit of my communication has been missed. My Association is aware of the existence of departmental regulations or instructions prior to the publication thereof in the Gazette⁴. If I may venture to say so, the instructions were a result of co-operation on the part of the community represented by my Association, and undoubtedly a proof of the amicable relationship that has hitherto existed between the Railway Administration and British Indians; but the legalising of these instructions gives the impression that the Administration is not satisfied with the spirit of forbearance and co-operation shown by them. My Association has never resented the separate accommodation provided in the respective classes and the affixing of the “reserved” labels. My Association has, however, never assented to the position that the Indian community should be deprived of facilities for travelling by express trains.

As you are aware, the present bitter and exhausting Asiatic struggle going on in the Colony is due to legal inequality and ¹ This letter, presumably drafted by Gandhiji, was sent over the signature of the Chairman, British Indian Association.

³ Vide “Substance of Letter to Colonial Secretary”, 23-12-1909.
⁴ Of 17-12-1909
differentiation, and not to departmental differentiation, which Asiatics have held to be justifiable, owing to the existence of colour prejudice in the Colony. The Railway Board, in legalising the Regulations, have ignored the struggle, and accentuated a situation against which my Association has been fighting.

It is difficult for my Association to give an opinion as to whether legal power is required by the Administration in order to deal with the Natives, but, so far as British Indians are concerned, perhaps it will be admitted that such power is not necessary. My Association, therefore, ventures to trust that the Regulations will be withdrawn in so far as they affect British Indians.

Indian Opinion, 8-1-1910

205. JOHANNESBURG

[Wednesday, January 5, 1910]

OF INTEREST TO TRADERS

I give below the substance of a notice published in the newspapers.

Licences of all kinds must be taken out before the end of this month. Before a licence can be had, every business must have been duly registered as required by law. Those who fail to get their businesses registered will be prosecuted and those found without licences will be required to take them out after paying a 10 per cent fine. The following are the rates of licences:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th></th>
<th>£  s. d.</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Agent of a foreign company</td>
<td>10 0 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Broker</td>
<td>1 0 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>General dealer</td>
<td>1 0 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Pedlar</td>
<td>1 0 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hawker (with a horse-drawn carriage)</td>
<td>2 0 0</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

A hawker who does not already hold a licence will not get a [new] licence straight away. Anyone who wants a new one will have to produce a certificate from a J. P.

Trading licences should be taken out between the 12th and the 15th, if the applicant’s surname begins with any of the letters A, B, C, and D; between the 17th and the 20th, if the surname begins with any letter from E to L; between the 21st and the 25th, if from M to R; and between the 26th and the 30th, if from S to Z. Licences will be issued to Indians between 2 and 3.30 p.m. except on Saturdays.

All this applies to those who have to take out licences from the Revenue Office.

There are separate rates for those who hawk within municipal limits; they have to take out licences in Johannesburg on or before January 15.

WHAT NOW?

This means that Indians who are not full-fledged satyagrahis, or any other Indians for that matter, ought not to step into the Licence Office up to January 15. Those who own stores should not take out licences before January 30.

Though many Indians have fallen, some of them can rise again. It will be but proper for storekeepers not to take out licences for the present but to do so only at the end. Moreover, it is necessary for every storekeeper to send out at least one person from his store for hawking. Any such person who goes out hawking must do so properly. Every hawker should prepare to get arrested from the 16th onwards; for once they must fill the gaols to crowding. They will not have done anything extraordinary, if they do. If it is certain that everyone will not go to gaol, a few at least from every group or from among the members of an eating-house should do so. No one should be guided by what others do. Everyone must do what he can. If, after returning from gaol, a hawker feels inclined to take out a licence, he may, but it will be better if he does not. If the people do at least this, they will have served the community and received some training themselves.

Mr. Gardi, Mr. Moosa Miya and Mr. Ahmed Miya have undertaken to explain matters to the hawkers; they will, moreover, send out one person each from their shops. Mr. Hajee Habib will court imprisonment by working as picket or in some other manner and will also send out one person from his shop. I hope other Indians will follow this example.

I think Mr. Joseph Royeppen, Mr. Samuel Joseph and Mr. David Andrew will also go out hawking if they are not arrested.
Indians from mofussil areas can do excellent work in this field.

I am writing this letter on Wednesday. Today Mr. Joseph Royeppen, his companions, Mr. Cachalia and Mr. Gandhi are to go to Boksburg in response to an invitation from there. If people regain their spirit, an early solution is quite likely. Whether or not it is so, people must do their duty.

MORE MONEY

Mr. Gandhi has received today by telegram a further sum of £200 from Mr. Petit.

ARREST

News has just been received that Mr. Ibrahim Hoosen, a satyagrahi, who had started a hair-cutting saloon, was arrested today.

HELP FROM MOZAMBIQUE

Mr. Damodar Anandji’s cheque for £50 in aid of the satyagraha campaign has been received. Indian friends at Mozambique rendered excellent help to Mr. Isaac.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 8-1-1910

206. LETTER TO J. C. GIBSON

JOHANNESBURG, January 6, 1910

DEAR MR. GIBSON,

I enclose herewith a memorandum, showing what would finally close the bitter and exhausting Asiatic struggle that is now going on in the Colony.

It has been brought to my notice that the Indian community is being charged with two things: firstly, that British Indians have continually shifted their ground as to their demands; secondly, that the movement here is entirely engineered and controlled from India.

1“Transvaal Notes”, Indian Opinion, 1-1-1910, had indicated: “Mr. Jahangir Petit has cabled Mr. Gandhi £400 from Bombay.”

2 This letter and the statement were the outcome of the interview which the Rev. Charles Phillips and J. C. Gibson had with Gandhiji on 6th January 1910, following their conversation with Lord Selborne, High Commissioner of the Transvaal. Vide their letter dated 7-1-1910 to Lord Selborne, reproduced in Indian Opinion, 10-12-1910.
As to the first, here are a few facts. About the month of September, 1907, that is to say, before imprisonments had commenced and the compromise was effected, a public document\(^1\) was addressed to the Colonial Secretary, signed by several thousand Indians, in which occurs the following sentence: “We respectfully submit that nothing short of total repeal of the Act can meet the difficult situation that has arisen.” So that repeal of the Act was the goal always aimed at. Total repeal at the time or at any time before the passing of the second Registration Act would have restored legal equality under the Immigration Act.

When the compromise was effected\(^2\), I contend that repeal against voluntary registration was definitely promised. This promise was alluded to by General Smuts in his Richmond speech\(^3\) two days after the compromise. He stated that the Asiatics had asked for repeal, and that he had told the leaders that, until every Asiatic was registered, he would not repeal the Act.

When I was assaulted, a document\(^4\) for publication was drawn as between Mr. Chamney and myself, to the effect that the Act would be repealed if voluntary registration was completed to the satisfaction of the authorities. At the meeting of the Executive Council, after the burning of the certificates, a compromise became impossible because the essential point of repeal, namely, legal equality as to immigration, was not granted; and a final settlement was not arrived at in London only because of this point remaining undecided. The following is Mr. Duncan’s\(^5\) testimony—and Mr. Duncan ought to know what he is speaking about—to the effect that we have never shifted the ground. Writing in the month of February last in the State, Mr. Duncan said:

> The position of the Indian leaders is that they will tolerate no law which does not put them on an equality with Europeans in regard to restriction on immigration. They are willing to see the number of Asiatics limited by administrative action. They insist on equality in the terms of the law itself.

In this article, Mr. Duncan has examined the charge of shifting,

---

\(^1\) Vide “Monster Petition”, before 21-9-1907.

\(^2\) On 30-1-1908; vide “Letter to Colonial Secretary”, 28-1-1908 & “Interview to the Transvaal Leader”, 30-1-1908.

\(^3\) Vide Appendix “General Smuts’ Speech in Richmond”.

\(^4\) Not published and not available; vide “Letter to the Press”, 2-7-1908.

\(^5\) Patrick Duncan, Colonial Secretary of the Transvaal before Smuts

\(^6\) Monthly organ of the Closer Union Societies and has come to the conclusion that there has been none.

As to the charge of the movement being engineered and controlled from India, I can only state that it is absolutely devoid of foundation. Indeed, it is common knowledge among those who have at all understood the agitation here that the complaint was that India was not sufficiently awakened to the national importance of the struggle going on here. Hence it was that Mr. Polak was sent. Before the deputation went to England,\(^1\) there never was any pecuniary assistance either received or required from India. Today it is a world-wide fact that the struggle is not only affecting Indian politics, but is being financially supported from there. Every penny received is being publicly advertised. We are receiving similar support now from England also.

In conclusion, I would state that, if my letter or the statement hereto attached are not considered explicit, I shall be prepared to send any other document, so long as it carries out the intention of the statement, which is to secure repeal of the Act and legal equality as to immigration. It has become necessary to mention one point as if there were two points, because of the second Registration Act being in the way, but the point is really only one.

Yours truly,

M. K. GANDHI

[Enclosure]

STATEMENT

British Indians will be satisfied if Act 2 of 1907 is repealed, and the Immigration Act is so amended as to enable any Asiatic immigrants of culture to enter the Colony on precisely the same terms as Europeans, and without the necessity for complying with any Registration Act. This Amendment will allow the Immigration Officer the fullest discretion as to the mode of setting the education test, and will give the power to the Governor-in-Council to frame regulations limiting the number of immigrants belonging to different classes or races, even though they may have passed the education test. So far as Asiaties are concerned, no amendment of the Immigration Act would be necessary, were it not for the presence of the second Asiatic Act passed in 1908. The amendment giving the Governor-in-Council the power to make the regulations in the manner above referred to meets the objection that the administration of the law would be so different from its wording. So long as a limited number of (say, up to six) British Indians of culture are admitted into the Colony per year under the education test, British Indians will be satisfied. The granting of these two concessions will finally close the struggle, and remove the question from the arena of Indian politics. The educated Indians who have entered the Transvaal will then retire, and claim to enter, if at all, under the general test.

\(^1\) It left South Africa on June 23 and reached England on July 10, 1909.

M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat of Cd. 5363; also
Indian Opinion, 10-12-1910

207. SPEECH AT DINNER TO JOSEPH ROYEPPEN AND OTHERS

[JOHANNESBURG,
January 7, 1910]

Mr. Gandhi, in proposing the toast of “The Guests”, explained their motive in coming to the Colony—one, simply, of vindicating their national honour. They were here to hearten their own people by going themselves through the mill of suffering. Many of them there knew what the ordeal was, and it had, of course, yet to be seen how far the new recruits could bear it. He would acknowledge that they could no longer boast that they numbered hundreds upon hundreds who were prepared to suffer. Some 2,500 had gone through gaol, and many of these felt unable to return. He did not blame those who broke down—such persons were to be found in every struggle. This, however, he could say that the best of his people had simply been steeped by their suffering, and that whether the struggle lasted for months or years, it could continue until either they died or it succeeded. Personally, he had no doubt about the result. Whether the ordeal was longer or shorter was, in his view, comparatively unimportant. The thing to be thankful for was that it was proved they had in their midst a considerable residue of men showing unbreakable spirit in defence of a moral principle. Mr. Gandhi proceeded to instance the Mohammedan priest1, “a man softly

1 At a private dinner at the Masonic Hall, Johannesburg, in honour of Messrs
Joseph Royeppen, David Andrew, Samuel Joseph and Manilal Gandhi. William Hosken presided and proposed the toast of “The King”. Several prominent Indians and Europeans were present. The report of Gandhiji’s speech was reproduced in Indian Opinion as from The Transvaal Leader.

2 Imam Abdul Kadir Bawazeer nurtured”, who was now serving at Diepkloof his third term; and another British Indian—a leading Parsee. The latter, he stated, had sacrificed a prosperous business, and would on the 11th of next month have served a continuous term of 12 months. He had been imprisoned originally for 6 months, but on liberation had immediately re-crossed the border and thus courted further imprisonment. Mr. Gandhi explained (being requested by the Chairman) his reason for allowing his own son of 17 to enter the Colony with the prospect of arrest. The lad had repeatedly expressed his wish to share the honourable sufferings of his people, and Mr. Gandhi had at length consented, feeling that he would go into the prison not to acquire the vices of such a place, not in any sense as a criminal—(applause)—but as a missionary among his co-sufferers of his own race and among the Native convicts with whom he would be classed. (Loud applause.) He (Mr. Gandhi) felt that the stand the passive resisters were making for righteousness’ sake had taken away from the gaol all criminal savour—so far as they were concerned—and he believed that in God’s providence right would yet be done them and their cause would triumph. (Loud applause.)

Indian Opinion, 15-1-1910

208. LIBERTY

Liberty consists in being able to obey our own will and conscience rather than the will and conscience of others.—Lord Hugh Cecil at the Edinburgh University Associated Societies.

It has often been said that the struggle at present going on in the Transvaal is a fight for liberty. Judging it according to the definition quoted above, our countrymen in the Transvaal are truly fighting for liberty and that should, therefore, command universal sympathy. Lord Hugh Cecil, in elaborating the definition he gave, said:

> The true ground for maintaining liberty is that, without it, there cannot be in any true sense virtue or righteousness. Virtue does not consist in doing right, but in choosing to do right. This is the great distinction between the animal and man.

The Transvaal Indians are exercising the power to obey their will and conscience rather than the will of the State which is in conflict with theirs. Any man who subordinates his will to that of the State surrenders his liberty and thus becomes a slave. The Asiatic Act

---

1 Parsee Rustomjee
2 Manilal Gandhi
3 Royeppen then replied to the toast, after which Cachalia detailed his gaol experiences and D. W. Drew spoke. He said: Men who stood for great moral and spiritual principles were invincible.
imposes slavery on Indians in that it deprives them of liberty, i.e., the ability to obey their conscience.

From His Lordship’s remarks, it further follows that men cannot be made virtuous by Acts of Parliament. If they are compelled to do an act which is considered good, they are no more to be credited with virtue than a donkey who is compelled to carry a load.

Passive resisters in the Transvaal are, then, fighting for the liberty of the whole of South Africa in offering battle to the most powerful South African State. A handful though they are, they have a great and clear mission before them. And they have every reason to be proud of their record.

Lord Hugh Cecil, while giving us a scientific definition of liberty, does not tell us how we are to achieve it. If liberty be ability to act according to the dictates of our conscience, we certainly cannot achieve it by force of arms, i.e., by physical violence. It is attainable only by suffering in our own persons until our opponents see the error of their ways and cease to harass us by trying to impose their will on us. Such a method of fighting, and no other, is the natural corollary of the definition. Any other method of gaining liberty is a usurpation.

Indian Opinion, 8-1-1910

209. NATAL LICENCES REGULATIONS

We give in another column an abstract of the regulations published under the Dealers’ Licences Act. There is nothing new or striking in them, save that the fee of £12.10.0 to be deposited by appellants is still retained. We have already expressed the opinion that this fee is an illegal charge, and that the appellants are not bound to deposit the amount. The regulations show clearly that the intention is to make it more and more difficult for Indian traders to get new licences. That even a hawker, if he wants a new licence, should have to go through the farce of advertising in the papers and go through an intricate ceremony before he can labour away in order to earn an honest livelihood is, to say the least, a cruel procedure, and tantamount to putting a premium on dishonesty and laziness.

Indian Opinion, 8-1-1910

1 The original has “activity”.
2 Not reproduced here
210. THE TRANSVAAL RAILWAY REGULATIONS

We publish an abstract1 of further correspondence between the General Manager of the C. S. A. R.2 and the Chairman of the British Indian Association, Johannesburg. We trust that the conciliatory tone of the letter will not deceive the Indians in the Transvaal into inaction. We welcome, therefore, Mr. Cachalia’s reply3 to the General Manager, that the fact that the same facilities for travelling will still be afforded to the Indian public means nothing so far as the Association is concerned, because its duty is rather to have the principles recognised and established than details in administration examined or challenged, important as the matter may be. The main and only point at issue is that, whereas the regulations, before they were gazetted, were simply in the nature of departmental instructions and had not the force of law, they are today part of the laws of the Colony, and, as they lay down the principle of legal inequality, it is the duty of the Indian community of the Transvaal to combat the evil with all its might. Separate accommodation on the Railways and kindred matters cannot be a subject of legislation, but can only be regulated by the good sense of the communities concerned and by voluntary co-operation. Immediately that state of things is changed, it becomes a usurpation of authority, which should be resisted by all lawful means. We use the term “lawful” in the sense well known to the readers of this journal, passive resistance, in our opinion, being a strictly lawful method of seeking redress.

Indian Opinion, 8-1-1910

211. DUTY OF HAWKERS

We address this specially to the hawkers of the Transvaal. Because of their courage, the campaign has created so fine an impression. It is because hundreds of them went to gaol that it has come to be recognized as a great movement. Questions of self-respect or honour, it was thought so far, could have little meaning for hawkers. Now, everyone admits that hawkers do care for self-respect,

1 Not reproduced here
2 Central South African Railways
3 Vide “Letter to General Manager, C.S.A.R.”, 4-1-1910
and they have risen in the esteem of others. Their presence at meetings does them credit. Having done so much, it will be unworthy of them to give in now.

The Transvaal campaign is such that everyone must rely on his own strength. We cannot depend on others to win it for us. In this struggle, we must learn to solve our own problems. If, therefore, the hawkers show themselves defeated this time, it will be impossible for them to obtain redress of any grievances in future.

It is for the hawkers to ensure an early conclusion to this struggle, and they can do so at no great cost to themselves. They should, for the present, avoid taking out hawking licences, and get themselves arrested by trading without them. This they can do quite easily. If the Government has discovered that the hawkers’ resistance has collapsed, the hawkers on their part can show to the Government that, though fallen, they can rise again. In this matter, one must not depend on what others do, but each one can put in an effort on his own.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 8-1-1910

212. INDIAN NATIONAL CONGRESS AND MUSLIMS

We gave last week translations of Reuter’s cables¹ about the Indian [National] Congress. The discussion at the Congress on Lord Morley’s Act has made us sorry. The Congress has expressed the view that the special rights which Lord Morley has granted to the Muslims have displeased the Hindus and widened the rift between the Hindus and the Muslims. It is rather risky to comment on the basis of cable reports. It would not be surprising if those who wish to divide the two communities send one-sided reports; all the same, it will not be wrong if we proceed to discuss the matter on the assumption that the Reuter reports are correct.

The first error that we notice is the assumption that Lord Morley’s legislation can embitter the relations between the two

1 According to the cable-report reproduced in Indian Opinion, 1-1-1910, the President, in the course of his address, said that the grant of excessive representation to the Mahomedans on the new Provincial Councils had caused, as it was intended to cause, an estrangement between the Hindus and the Mahomedans which could not be healed for years to come.
communities. There is no reason why their relations should be embittered because of any laws that Lord Morley may choose to pass.

Let us suppose, however, that the Muslims have received more rights than what were due to them. What does it matter, even if it is so? There is no need to protest to Lord Morley on this account. Even if the Muslims get more than their share, it is to members of our family that we are losing. The Hindus have no reason to get into a panic at this. So long as we believe that a third party can arbitrate between these two great communities, we shall always remain in subjection. The appointment of more Muslims or more Hindus on the Council is no cause for lamentation. We think, there is only one way of removing mutual suspicions, and that is for the Hindus to give in since they are numerically in a majority and educationally more advanced. If they do, it is obvious enough that there will be no cause at any time for a quarrel.

Finally, by such a discussion the Congress has given more importance than necessary to Lord Morley’s Council. There is no justification for doing so. The Council is not going to work a miracle for Indians. We shall profit by this Council or any other Councils only when we cultivate mutual trust and solve our problems ourselves instead of complaining to a third party.

Having said this, we should also like to tell our Muslim brethren that they need not be angry with the Congress. It belongs to the Muslims as well as the Hindus. It belongs to every Indian. If the Hindus take up an unreasonable stand at its sessions, the Muslims can criticize them, and vice versa. No one can say that the Congress is the exclusive organisation of a particular community.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 8-1-1910

213. APPOINTMENT OF INDIAN ON EAST AFRICA COUNCIL

We reported last week the honour conferred on Mr. A. M. Jivanji. He has been appointed a member of the Legislative Council of East Africa. We are glad to see that our East African brethren’s right in this regard has been recognized. Indians are partners in the

---

1 A well-known merchant of Karachi and Bombay British Empire; this fact is being recognized in East Africa and elsewhere. Only the whites of South Africa do not admit it. The appointment of an Indian in a part of Africa itself should serve as an example to them. It should also make the Indians of South Africa and the Transvaal more acutely conscious of their own position. Our countrymen in East Africa have excellent means of safeguarding their rights and increasing their prosperity and they are sure to take advantage of these means. We congratulate Mr. Jivanji, the Bohra community to which he belongs, and the Indians of East Africa on having received this valuable privilege.

[From Gujarati]
Indian Opinion, 8-1-1910

214. THE TRANSVAAL RAILWAY REGULATIONS

The community should not be misled by the [General] Manager’s reply\(^1\) to Mr. Cachalia on this subject. That the Regulations will not be enforced for the present is no consolation to us. What interest can a Government have in regulations which it does not intend to enforce? Mr. Cachalia has sent a reply\(^2\); we have to await the result. This is a matter which we certainly cannot afford to drop. We must put up a fight wherever new discriminatory measures are taken against Indians.

[From Gujarati]
Indian Opinion, 8-1-1910

215. DELAGOA BAY INDIANS

The Delagoa Bay journal, Guardian, reports a move to introduce immigration legislation there similar to that in Natal. If Delagoa Bay copies Natal, we can be sure that the copy will be worse than the original. In other words, the law that will be passed there will

\(^{1}\)The Regulations, the reply dated 30-12-1909 reproduced in Indian Opinion, 8-1-1910, stated, “are in no sense new nor are they different in any way to those which have been in force since 1905”, and they had to be promulgated “in order to comply with Section 4 of the Railways Regulation Act of 1908”. An assurance was given at the same time that “the spirit of the Regulations will be observed in future as in the past”.

\(^{2}\)Vide “Letter to General Manager, C.S.A.R.”, 4-1-1910
prove much worse than the Natal law. We hope the Delagoa Bay Indians will start taking steps this very day. If they mean business, they can do very effective work, for if, on the one hand, conditions there are somewhat chaotic, on the other, it is also easy to win over the Government. It bears no particular ill-will towards Indians.

[From Gujarati]
Indian Opinion, 8-1-1910

216 NATAL INDIAN CONGRESS

The Natal Government has recently passed a University Act. One of its sections⁴ empowers the College authorities to refuse admission at discretion. This will bear hard on Indians and therefore the Natal Indian Congress has addressed a petition to Lord Crewe, Secretary of State for the Colonies.

[From Gujarati]
Indian Opinion, 8-1-1910

217. LETTER TO A. H. WEST

January 12, 1910

MY DEAR WEST,

I have often wished to write a personal letter but I have not been able to.

How are you feeling now in body, mind and soul? Are you more at ease than before? How is the home atmosphere? Does the new arrangement satisfy Mrs. West? Is Devi² now at peace? How are the other people in the settlement?

For me, I am going through many a battle. Circumstances surrounding me just now are not at all congenial. But I think that my mind is at peace. My mind as you know is extremely active—never at rest. I am now trying bold experiments. Ethics of hawking³ only

---

¹Section 20, which laid down that “the Council shall have the right to refuse admittance to any applicant, should they consider it to be in the interest of the University”
²West’s sister, who had adopted this Indian name ³The reference is to the article with this heading; vide “Ethics of Hawking”, 15-1-1910.
foreshadows what is coming in my life. The more I observe, the greater is the dissatisfaction with the modern life. I see nothing good in it. Men are good. But they are poor victims making themselves miserable under the false belief that they are doing good. I am aware that there is a fallacy underneath this. I who claim to examine what is around me may be a deluded fool. This risk all of us have to take. The fact is that we are all bound to do what we feel is right. And with me I feel that the modern life is not right. The greater the conviction, the bolder my experiments.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

[PS.]

I am disturbed whilst I am writing this. The above however is enough for the time being.

From a photostat of the original in Gandhiji’s hand: C.W. 4413

Courtesy: A. W. West

218. THE ROYEPPEN BANQUET

The banquet given to Messrs Royeppen and his companions was more than of passing importance. That nearly forty responsible European men and women were present at the banquet to welcome the passive resisters is in itself an event of great significance. The speeches of Mr. Hosken and the Hon. Mr. Drew were eloquent and sincere. Both were hopeful of a settlement in the near future. Nearly one hundred Indians sat at the festive table and these represented every class and section. All this shows that passive resisters are not dead but that they are very much “alive”. Mr. Cachalia, whose speech is fully reported in our Gujarati columns, reminded Generals Botha and Smuts that if the passive resisters do not now number as many as before, it was the same thing with the Boers during the late War and that peace came when the Boer ranks were thinned to a dangerous point. The whole of Mr. Cachalia’s speech was characteristic of the man. It breathed hope, strength and invincible determination to see the fight through.

Mr. Joseph Royeppen’s speech was brief and to the point. He

---

1 On January 7, 1910
2 Editor of The Friend of Bloemfontein and M. P. in Orange River Colony; vide “Hosken’s Meeting”, “Hosken’s Meeting”, 15-1-1910. was in the Transvaal to do his duty and he hoped to be able to do it.

The function was a notable success and we congratulate the organisers on their work.

_Indian Opinion_, 15-1-1910

219. ETHICS OF HAWKING

Messrs Samuel Joseph, David Andrew and Manilal Gandhi, the new recruits who have gone to the Transvaal to join the struggle, have now for some time been going about as fruit or vegetable hawkers. We understand that Mr. Royeppen will presently follow his companions. This hawking is by no means fancy hawking. It has been undertaken in right earnest and in the spirit of _bona fide_ hawkers. These young men go from house to house and try to sell their fruit or vegetables, as the case may be, at a small profit which goes to swell the passive resistance funds.

It is necessary to examine the reasons which have induced them to take up hawking. When Mr. Essop Mia and Imam Abdul Kadir Bawazeertook to it eighteen months ago, they did so purely to court imprisonment and set an example to the other hawkers. This motive must always be with passive resisters in the Transvaal. But it is not all in the present case. The majority of free Indians throughout South Africa are either hawkers or petty traders. Now, passive resistance is not a weapon merely to defend others but it is a weapon to use for self-defence also. It is a weapon that can be used independently of anybody else and by one individual as effectively as by many. This power flows from the very nature of passive resistance. The force wielded by the soul within is the mightiest among the mighty forces of nature. Physical force is wrongly considered to be used to protect the weak. As a matter of fact, it still further weakens the weak; it makes them dependent upon their so-called defenders or protectors. Soul-force strengthens those on whose behalf it is exerted as well as those who exert it. The Transvaal struggle is intended to teach the majority of Indians the use of this magnificent force so as to make them truly independent men. If passive resistance had been initiated by the hawkers instead of the merchants, the former would today occupy a unique position. As it is, many of them, being cowed down, are no longer in the struggle. This deplorable result is due to a want of real leaders among the hawkers themselves. They would far sooner listen to and understand one from among themselves than one who may be considered above them. In order to rectify this defect in the wonderful campaign that is now going on in the Transvaal, schoolmasters and clerks are turning their attention to hawking. Moreover, the Government probably intend to starve the new recruits out of the Transvaal. They reply by hawking in order to earn their livelihood in that Colony.

Nor is this all. It is at least debatable whether the profession of a clerk or book-keeper is better or more respectable than that of a hawker. A hawker is an independent man. He has opportunity of studying human nature which a clerk slaving away for a few pounds per month can never have. A hawker is master of his own time. A clerk has practically no time he can call his own. A hawker, if he chooses, has opportunity for expansion of his intellect which a clerk cannot dream of. And what applies to the clerk applies more or less even to schoolmasters who teach for a living and not for the sake of it; and it applies certainly to the legal profession which is beset with temptations which an ordinary man would do well to avoid. These young men, then, can do a great deal to purge the profession of hawking of its grossness and raise it to a higher level. The hawkers are only waiting for one to rise among themselves who would lead the way to a better and purer life. And just as they set a noble example to the professional hawkers, so they do to the clerks and schoolmasters, and, shall we say, lawyers and doctors who are weary of their vocations and who, if they could only see the way, would leave the drudgery of the desks that grinds them body and soul.

Last but not least, it seems to us that, after all, nature has intended man to earn his bread by manual labour—“by the sweat of his brow” —and intended him to dedicate his intellect not towards multiplying his material wants and surrounding himself with enervating and soul-destroying luxuries, but towards uplifting his moral being—towards knowing the will of the Creator—towards serving humanity and thus truly serving himself. If so, the profession of hawking, or, better still, simple agriculture or such other calling, must be the highest method of earning one’s livelihood. And do not the millions do so? No doubt many follow nature unconsciously. It remains for those who are endowed with more than the ordinary measure of intellect to copy the millions consciously and use their intellect for uplifting their fellow-labourers. No longer will it then be possible for the intellectuals in their conceit to look down upon the “hewers of wood and drawers of water”. For, of such is the world made.

We, therefore, congratulate our young friends on their laudable work and hope that even after the struggle is over, they will continue to labour with their hands and feet, so far as their maintenance is concerned, and devote their talent to the service of their country both of birth and origin.

_Indian Opinion, 15-1-1910_

220. HOSKEN’S MEETING

We publish elsewhere a report of the dinner-party¹ in honour of Mr. Joseph Royeppen and others. It would have been impossible to arrange such a function if they had thought of it three years ago. About 40 Europeans were present, most of them prominent figures. The speeches of Mr. Hosken and Mr. Drew, Editor of _The Transvaal Leader_ and member of the Orange Free State Council, were noteworthy. The party was attended by prominent clergymen. Everyone’s sympathy was for satyagraha. It is a matter of great satisfaction that so many whites showed the courage to sit for dinner at the same table with Indians. We do not want to suggest that something can be done only if whites mix with us, but the fact that so many whites joined the party when a campaign is on against the Transvaal Government should certainly give us some satisfaction. This is a happy augury. We can realize from it that the struggle is about to come to an early end. But even if that does not appear likely, it is beyond question that the whites’ sympathy for us is on the increase. All that now remains for the Indian community to do is to wake up again and for the hawkers to do their duty.

[From Gujarati]

_Indian Opinion, 15-1-1910_

221. NATAL’S IMMIGRATION LAW

Lawlessness prevails in the enforcement of this law. Mr. Smith’s²

---

¹ Vide “Speech at Dinner to Joseph Royeppen and Others”, 7-1-1910
² Harry Smith, Principal Immigration Restriction Officer
ways are autocratic. Of course, his autocracy needs to be fought; but we must also examine the lawlessness that prevails among us. What tyranny do we not inflict on ourselves? Mr. Smith says¹ that boys come in dressed as women, others, sons take shelter under borrowed parents and women under borrowed husbands. We are of the view that the immigration tyranny can be fought in two ways. While the Government’s autocratic methods must be opposed on every occasion, Indians trying to bring in persons surreptitiously must also be opposed likewise. We should admit that we ourselves are evidently the cause of so many of the laws passed against us. They should not be attributed solely to colour prejudice. So long as we do not realize our own fault, we shall not find the right remedy.

It is, moreover, our advice that it is better to adopt the satyagraha way of fighting than fight in courts with lawyers’ help. The immigration law, too, can be fought that way.

[From Gujarati]
Indian Opinion, 15-1-1910

222. LETTER TO MAGANLAL GANDHI

Thursday, January 20, 1910

CHI. MAGANLAL,

Received both your letters. I am not likely to go there for the present. Manilal has been arrested²; he will be released on Friday. Let us see what happens after that. I think it is better for me not to go there so long as arrests continue here.

It will be all right if, as you suggest, you arrange for physical exercise, etc., for Rama³. I did not rebuke you in connection with Mr. Cordes; it seems there was some misunderstanding on your part. And my impression remains the same despite your letter. I had never thought of Rama staying either with him or with Willie⁴ for the whole day. During the day when he is not busy, let him go wherever he pleases. I wish he dines and sleeps with Mr. Cordes. I cannot think that ¹In reply to a statement of the Indians’ grievances which The Natal Mercury had forwarded to Smith for his observations. The statement and the reply appeared together in the same issue.

²On 14-1-1910

³Ramdas, third son of Gandhiji

⁴Cordes’s son
Mr. Cordes has no love for Ramdas. I know Mr. Cordes’ drawbacks; none of us are without any.

If you do not know the verse केषां चक्रो भगवंगोः, I shall send it to you. The sun has spots. Take it that his heart is not wicked. The rest will follow automatically.

There is still a lot of old history concerning our family. Parmanandbhai alone knows it in detail.

It is worthwhile to spare time, if possible, from the press work for the children to take exercise.

It is desirable not to give more than a month’s credit for Indian Opinion. You should only take a limited risk. Let the amount be debited to your account. It will not be deducted from your current allowance. You should never take liability for more than ten subscribers. Even that is perhaps too much. However, whatever liability you have taken upon yourself in the Cape Colony is binding on all, as you did not know the new rule. The new rule is, I believe, very good—at least for the present.

We will have to carry many [fresh] burdens; it is, therefore, better to cut down these. This [not allowing too much credit] seems to be the prevalent practice of newspapers. As people gradually get used to it, they will follow it of their own accord. We pay the licence fee in advance because of compulsion, i.e., physical force. That we shall take the subscriptions in advance will be on the strength of soul-force. That soul-force consists in making Indian Opinion interesting and for that the only course open to us is to put in maximum effort. The subscriptions will then come in automatically. I have no time now to dilate upon this.

There is a letter from Veerji in which he says that he intends to open an office in Durban and work there. It will be good to entrust work to him. I am writing a letter to Mr. West. Did you read my last letter to him?

Please consider fully before you take the new vow of brahmacharya. It will be better to get Santok’s consent. Kavi has

---

1 Hkxkadks (vide footnote 2 to “Letter to Maganlal Gandhi”, 27-1-1910
2 Parmananddas Ratanji Gandhi, Gandhiji’s cousin
3 Not available
4 The reference is perhaps to “Letter to A. H. West”, 12-1-1910 mentioned in his writings a number of conditions for the observance of brahmacharya which are worth considering. This is one of the most difficult vows. Even Lord Shiva strayed from the path; so we can succeed only if we are unremittingly mindful of it. But when I think of a married man practising abstinence in regard to his wife, when I think of my own case in particular, I am bewildered. In this connection, my fate has been [singularly favourable]. I was saved because I had to endure compulsory separation from Ba. Had we lived together all along since 1900, I can hardly say I would have been saved. I wish you to get all the benefit of my experience.

As I won’t be going down there for the present, you may ask me whatever questions you want to.

Blessings from

Mohanadas

[PS.]

Jayashankar Vyas’s wife has passed away. All of you may please write a letter of condolence to him. I had Chi. Chhaganlal’s letter to Mr. Polak in which he has raised the question of household expenditure. Let me know your requirements after the change we have made. What amount will you two brothers get out of the profit this time? According to Chi. Chhaganlal, your requirement will be Rs. 30 a month and Dr. Mehta has already agreed to pay that amount. But we want to take as little as possible from him. Please think this over and let me know. As I am not going there just now, I am dealing with this matter in a letter.

Mohanadas

From a photostat of the Gujarati original in Gandhiji’s hand: S.N. 5182

223. RECENT DISCHARGES

The release of about twelve passive resisters in the Transvaal and reported in our columns this week has excited little interest either among the Europeans or the Indians. Two years ago, such an event would have given rise to a demonstration among the Asiatics and created some interest among the Europeans. Imprisonments for conscience’ sake and discharges have become common occurrences among the Asiatics. This is a very great gain. We want virtue and courage to be such common things among our countrymen as to occasion no surprise when they are practised. Among the discharged Indians is Mr. Aswat, sometime acting Chairman of the British Indian Association. Mr. Aswat, it will be remembered, was prepared to sacrifice all his goods rather than surrender his self-respect. Most of the resisters are well-tried fighters and have been imprisoned more than once. We congratulate them all on their bravery, and we note with satisfaction that they are ready to go to gaol again as soon as the Government will send them.

1 The Photostat is not quite clear here.

Indian Opinion, 22-1-1910

224. SHORTCOMINGS OF WESTERN CIVILIZATION

We saw in Hind Swaraj that it is not so much from British rule that we have to save ourselves as from Western civilization. Clearly, if Englishmen settle down in India as Indians, they will cease to be foreigners. If they cannot bring themselves to do so, it will be our duty to create conditions in which it will be impossible for them to stay on.

The writings of Englishmen themselves often tell us how wicked Western civilization is. There was a storm of protest in England against the alleged high-handedness of the Spanish authorities when Ferrer was put to death. The letter in the Daily News of October 22 which the famous author, Mr. G. K. Chesterton, wrote, pointing out that this was sheer hypocrisy on their part, will bear summarizing even today. Mr. Chesterton says:

> We have been hysterically protesting against what Spain has done, but that is so much hypocrisy and nothing else. It is out of our pride that we take up such an attitude. In fact, we are just as bad as Spain, in certain respects much worse. We have no political executions in England because we have no political rebellions in our country and not because we are a religious people. Wherever we do have rebellions, there we do have executions, much more mean, reckless and savage than the execution of Ferrer. The hanging of the Fenians at Manchester

---

1 Vide “Hind Swaraj”
2 Vide “London”, Before 23-10-1909 he worked to spread education among the people of Spain.
3 The translation given here has been collated with the original.
has been admitted by all lawyers to have been in contempt of logic and law. The killing of Scheepers in South Africa is a thing of which even the Imperialists are now ashamed. A few harmless peasants at Denshawai¹ objected to the looting of their property; they were tortured and hanged. When our rulers react with such brutality and baseness to small and ineffectual local risings, how would they behave if confronted with a rising in London itself similar to the one in Spain? We are at peace, not because we do not exploit religion but because we have sunk silently under the domination of our rulers.² If we have no rebellions, we are guilty of crimes worse than the death of Ferrer.³ A private soldier the other day committed⁴ suicide in order to avoid a flogging. This suicide is more hideous than the execution of Ferrer under the pressure of strong emotions in a time of excitement. Yet the incident attracted no attention in England, because we are the one people in Europe who are successfully oppressed.

In view of such shortcomings in the civilization of this people which dazzles us so much, we had better consider whether we should tolerate it in India or banish it while we have still time to do so. It is a civilization which grinds down the masses and in which a few men capture power in the name of the people and abuse it. The people are deceived because it is under cover of their name that these men act.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 22-1-1910

¹ In Egypt, where four Egyptian peasants were executed for the murder of a British officer

² The original has: “not because we have thrown off the domination of the priesthood”, and “because we have sunk . . . under the domination of the plutocracy”.

³ The original has: “Things far more fundamentally horrible than the death of Ferrer go on quite quietly all the time, because we have forgotten the trick of mutiny.”

⁴ The original has: “tried to commit suicide”.

394 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
225. LETTER TO GENERAL MANAGER, C. S. A. R.¹

[JOHANNESBURG,]

January 25, 1910

SIR,

I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 21st instant, and you have given me the privilege again of being able to tender my thanks for the courteous tone of your letter and your full reply. This fact embarrasses me in having to express dissatisfaction with the result of our correspondence².

The Committee of my Association accept the situation that the Administration has been compelled to make regulations with respect to practically the whole of the conditions hiterto printed in the Joint Tariff Book. My Committee thankfully accept your assurance that there is no desire on the part of the Railway Board to embitter the feeling in regard to the Asiatic struggle, and that the facilities that have hitherto been afforded to the community represented by my Association for travelling by the fast trains will be retained.

Your sympathetic attitude emboldens me to suggest that the Resolutions may be revised by the Board, and that they may be so framed as to remove the stigma that they undoubtedly put upon the Asiatic communities. My Association will be prepared to co-operate with the Board in the framing of regulations acceptable to the Asiatic sentiment, and with the Administration in their proper carrying out. In my humble opinion, the difficulty will be met, if the Administration receives power to separate classes or races and to reserve compartments for them for reasons that to the Administration may seem sufficient. It will be admitted that a regulation of such a general nature will arm the Administration with sufficient powers to deal with any case, without giving the Asiatic and other Coloured communities to understand that the Railway Regulations are based on the theory that Coloured passengers are not entitled to travel first or second class, and that such travelling on their part is allowed only by way of

¹ Presumably drafted by Gandhiji
² Vide “Substance of Letter to Colonial Secretary”, 23-12-1909 and “Letter to General Manager, C.S.A.R.”, 4-1-1910; Indian Opinion, 8-1-1910 and 29-1-1910, for letters from the General Manager, C.S.A.R., to the British Indian Association; also “The Transvaal Railway Regulations”, 8-1-1910 sufferance. I am sure that that is not the intention of the Railway Board, and that the intention is merely to meet the unfortunate prejudice that exists in the Colony and, therefore, to provide separate accommodation. This intention is entirely carried out by the suggestion I have ventured to make.

I have, etc.,

A. M. KACHALIA¹

CHAIRMAN,

BRITISH INDIAN ASSOCIATION

Indian Opinion, 29-1-1910

226. EXTRACT FROM LETTER TO GENERAL MANAGER,
C.S.A.R.

[After January 25, 1910]

Mr. Osman Latief of Potchefstroom was travelling from that Station, together with five other British Indians, four of whom were bound for Delagoa Bay. They were given the ordinary half second class compartment on the train, which hardly accommodates four passengers. The Delagoa passengers had their luggage also with them. Mr. Osman Latief asked the guard or the conductor No. 11 for further accommodation, but the guard or the conductor failed to find any. Mr. Latief pointed out that there were several compartments, in which room could be found for them, but the conductor gave no heed and Mr. Latief had to stand. At Krugersdorp, however, the conductor pointed out another compartment. Mr. Latief declined to avail himself of it, telling him that he would bring the matter to your notice.

Indian Opinion, 29-1-1910

¹ Same as “Cachalia”
² This extract from the letter, presumably drafted by Gandhiji and sent over the signature of A. M. Cachalia, was quoted in “Transvaal Notes” in Indian Opinion, 29-1-1910.
227. LETTER TO MAGANLAL GANDHI

Thursday (January 27, 1910)

CHI. MAGANLAL,

Received your letter. I understand what you say about Mr. Cordes. I also admit that you can see his drawbacks better. But what I want to say is that he is a good man despite those drawbacks. You should think of his merits only. More of this when we meet.

I had written to you about this verse. I do not remember the fourth line. There are likely to be some spelling mistakes. I have no time to recollect it. Indra is marked with holes all over his body; Vidura is impure; Madhava is a cowherd; Vasishtha is the son of a prostitute; the bee lives in the mud; fire is omnivorous; the ocean is

1 From the contents, this appears to have been written on the Thursday following the “Letter to Maganlal Gandhi”, 20-1-1910
2 The correct and full text of the verse according to the Subhasitarainabhandagaram is as follows:

प्रकाश वाचित्वो राजामर्मितरुः: सर्वभद्रस्तु हुजातेन:
त्रीतियो भिक्षुरीश्वर: सल्लवण उद्धिणः पाण्डवाः जातात:।

Indra is known to be covered with holes all over the body; even the moon has spots; Madhava was born of a cowherd; Vasishtha was the son of a prostitute; the god of love is bodiless; fire is omnivorous; Vyasa was the son of a fisher-girl; the ocean is full of salt; the Pandavas were born of illegitimate unions; Rudra wears the bones of dead bodies—is there anyone in the three worlds who is without blemish?

3 Shakra, i.e., Indra, King of the gods, enamoured of Ahalya, wife of the seer Gautama, approached her one day in the guise of Gautama when the latter was away. Ahalya yielded. On finding this out, Gautama cursed Indra, “There shall be a thousand holes on your body.”
4 Lord Krishna
5 Vasishtha was born to Urvashi, one of the celestial nymphs who were free to accept love from whomsoever they chose.
6 The correct reading is jfrfrjruq% i.e., the God of love is bodiless. He was burnt to ashes by Lord Shiva with the fire emitted from his third eye when the former tried to distract him from his penance. Gandhiji mentions bhramro (bee) instead of kamal (lotus).
salty; the Pandavas’ belong to the caste of bastards. Thus, no one is without blemish. You have done well in letting me know your views.

Please be careful in giving instructions about allowing credit for Indian Opinion. We can find some remedy for the difficulties you mention. The best course I can see for the present is that when some subscriber has to be discontinued in view of [our new] rule, it should be done in consultation with Purshottamdas, Thaker and you. A subscriber may be placed on the ‘suspense list’ if he is found to be worth continuing after a month. You may open a separate account for the suspense list. Please place this suggestion before Mr. Cordes. It is better to put all the names sent by Chi. Chhaganlal on this list.

The introduction of the rule of allowing one month’s credit could be physical force (selfishness) as well as soul-force (altruism). To which of the two categories it belongs depends on the motive behind making the rule.

Your idea of not taking anything from charity is very good. In fact, it is not charity. It would, however, be proper for us to regard it as such. But we had better not raise the question under the present circumstances. Do see that the amount you have indicated gets credited.

It is good for you, for the present, to draw £4 [a month]. I had thought of it when I took the decision. I had also taken into consideration Chi. Chhaganlal’s prospective visit to England. I had thought about Rajkot, too.

I rejoice to read about your brahmacharya vow. Your vow for one year is also good and you have all my blessings for it. You will experience a different strength when you have passed through it.

It is better for Santok not to think of going to India now. I have already communicated to you my views about it.

I felt sad when I read Chi. Chhaganlal’s description of the Servants of India Society. It is a matter for regret that a great man like Prof. Gokhale is engrossed in it. I believe he will come out of it, for he is honest. It is simply an indifferent imitation of the West. Is it

---

1. The five sons of Pandu and heroes of the Mahabharata
2. King Pandu, unable to beget progeny himself because of the curse of a Rishi, asked his wives Kunti and Madri to have progeny by invoking the gods. Thereupon, Kunti had Yudhishthira through Yama, Bhima through Vayu and Arjuna through Indra, while Madri had Nakula and Sahadeva by the grace of the Ashvini Kumaras.
3. Founded in Poona by G. K. Gokhale in 1905 proper for the servants to have servants? And who are the servants? Why was it necessary to engage them? Why do they have others to cook for them? What do these ‘servants’ think of religion? Why should there be large buildings in India? Why should not huts be enough? It is like digging up a mountain to kill a mouse. When will the mission undertaken by Prof. Gokhale end? How much money will it cost? What a superstition that only an M.A. or B.A. could become a ‘servant’! It is like the castor-oil plant passing for a mighty tree in a barren land. I do feel that the aims of Phoenix as well as the way of life there surpass those of the Society. There are quarrels amongst us but these are found everywhere. When we begin to make syrup out of sugar, a lot of dirt is seen in it, but we do not regard dirt as syrup. We are preparing here a kind of syrup and dirt is bound to be seen till the syrup is ready. What we are doing here is the real thing, what goes on in Poona is, leaving aside the motive, unreal. The motive is good, but what is being done is bad. I have written this letter in the midst of great pressure of work. The condition of my mind at present is that of 1

^usfr usfr^1. Even Phoenix is ^usfr*. Yet, comparatively, it is better than the pomp and show of Poona. Doctor Mehta has been able to grasp this inner significance. Please do not take this to mean that either Prof. Gokhale or his associates are not worthy of our deep respect. But ours is no blind reverence. According to the standard indicated by me in Swaraj2, the work of Mr. Gokhale’s ‘servants’ cannot be regarded as proper. It is likely to add to our slavery. If I tried to turn East into West, I also would sigh like Gokhale and lose heart. My present state of mind is such that even if the whole world were against what I have written, I would not be depressed. This I say not out of pride; it is the statement of a fact. We do not aspire to improve India; we want to improve ourselves. That alone can be our aspiration, the rest is all false. He who has not realized his self has not known anything. The servants, knowledge of English has become a camouflage for them. That Chhaganlal could not answer their question about Phoenix only shows his timidity. That was but natural. With a little thought, he could have seen that the position taken by the ‘servants’ was materialistic and not spiritual. We have to rid ourselves of the fetish of literacy and mundane knowledge.

1“Not this, not this” According to Vedanta, Brahma, the Absolute, is beyond all concepts and forms.
2Vide “Hind Swaraj”
Despite these views of mine, there is nothing wrong in publishing in Indian Opinion some portion of the description given by Chhaganlal.¹ We shall learn from it. Let us emulate Ravana’s energy² and turn towards the inner spirit.

You may share this letter with whomsoever you choose in Phoenix; then send it to Chi. Chhaganlal, as I shall have no time to write to him. I wanted to leave on this Saturday but now I see that it is not possible. I do not think I shall be able to leave before the 15th of February.

Blessings from

MOHANDAS

From the Gujarati original in Gandhiji’s hand: C. W. 4926

Courtesy: Radhabehn Chowdhri

228. EXTRACT FROM LETTER³

[January 28, 1910]¹

Mr. Rustomjee still remains without the food that was medically prescribed for him at Volksrust, and continues to send messages that his complaints on the subject of his health do not receive attention. Mr. Gopal Naidoo, who was discharged today, tells us that he made a long complaint to the medical officer yesterday, whereupon he was transferred to Johannesburg. I shall be inquiring on Monday where he is being kept. Messrs Thambi Naidoo, Aswat and others, some of them heroes in the struggle, are now discharged. I have had a long interview⁵ with the editor of The Star; he was entirely sympathetic, and told me that everybody in Johannesburg was heartily sick of the struggle, and was anxious to see it closed. Manilal Gandhi was ¹This was published in the Gujarati section of Indian Opinion, 5-2-1910 and 12-2-1910, under the heading, “Servants of India Society—Examples of Self-sacrifice”.

²The demon-king who kidnapped Sita and carried her away to his kingdom in Lanka (Ceylon). He was killed by Rama. Ravana was well-versed in Vedic lore and had performed great penance to propitiate Shiva.

³This was reproduced in India under the caption, “Quotations from the Latest Letter Received in London from Mr. Gandhi”.

⁴Gopal Naidoo and Manilal Gandhi were discharged from the gaol on January 28, 1910.

⁵Report not available discharged today, after doing ten days’ hard labour. The discharged prisoners continued to complain about the absence of ghee and the insufficiency of rations, in spite of the fact that the Government have added 2 ozs. of beans. All the prisoners have lost in weight. Messrs V. S. Pillay, S. N. Naidoo and Shah' were discharged today. Mr. Shah, however, was detained for deportation. I was at the gaol, but was not allowed to see him, nor was he allowed to receive any food. The gaol experience has pulled him down considerably. He was supposed to walk from Diepkloof to Johannesburg, a distance of seven miles, with his bundle. Fortunately, the detective allowed Mr. Shah to use a conveyance which I offered, but, had he been obliged to walk, he would have fainted on the road. His deportation, I feel sure, is totally illegal, he having been voluntarily registered. The Registrar’s office has all the identification particulars, and the Registrar could certainly have assured himself whether Mr. Shah was registered or not. This is an illustration of how officials can either place difficulties in the way of the public or remove them. Mr. Joseph Royeppen, B.A., LL.B. (Cantab.), a barrister-at-law of Lincoln’s Inn, and a native of South Africa, who returned a few months ago, has just been arrested for not having registered and has been ordered for deportation.

India, 18-2-1910

229. MR. NANALAL SHAH’S SERVICES

Though passive resistance is now confined to a few Asiatics only, the dogged tenacity that the few, whether Chinese or Indians, are showing is most admirable. The struggle is producing true men. We single out Mr. Nanalal Shah from among the resisters who have been recently discharged. Only Messrs Rustomjee and Shah have been privileged to serve nearly a year each without a break. This imprisonment is not a simple matter. They are partially starved. Almost all have lost weight and become much reduced. The food given at the gaol undermines the prisoners’ constitutions, especially when they have to go through the course, like Mr. Shah, for a prolonged period.

Mr. Shah, it will be remembered, is an undergraduate of the Bombay University. He is middle-aged and completely grey-headed, 1Nanalal V. Shah, vide the following item.

having become prematurely old, owing to life’s disappointments. It was when the Chairman of the Association was twitting educated Indians about their apathy that Mr. Shah borrowed enough money for his train-fare to Natal and quietly stole away from the Transvaal, only to re-cross and be re-arrested immediately. Since then Mr. Shah has known no rest. And now he bids fair to be imprisoned again for another term of six months. Mr. Shah’s body may be broken, but his spirit never will. His service consists in having dedicated such a spirit to the struggle.

Indian Opinion, 29-1-1910

230. TO PASSIVE RESISTERS

It has been suggested that a full list of active passive resisters should be published for the sake of the Indian public, for the sake of the English friends, and for the sake of the Government. As the list cannot be a very long one, it is felt that the resisters should know one another and, as occasion arises, court arrest. They cannot remain out of gaol with any profit to themselves, to the cause or to the country of their adoption. The struggle chiefly means the raising of men who will brave any danger for the sake of principle. We shall, therefore, be pleased to receive and publish the names of those who are prepared to fight unto death.

Indian Opinion, 29-1-1910

231. EDUCATED INDIANS

Mr. Royeppen went round hawking. He is a barrister. If a few days ago anyone had mentioned the possibility of a barrister going round hawking, he would have been laughed at. But satyagraha has made this possible. Mr. Royeppen’s act is not only of benefit to himself but it is also a blessing to his family. Had he started practice, he would have earned something from the Indians. It is doubtful, though, whether he could have done it by honest means. It is not likely that he could have earned enough for a man of his professional status. In consequence, Mr. Royeppen would have sunk in debt, his relatives would have been sorely disappointed and in the end everyone would have suffered. Now, Mr. Royeppen will remain poor. If his family members follow his example, they will be able to maintain themselves and live happily through manual labour.

Will any Indian follow Mr. Royeppen’s example? It is difficult to say. Anyone who does so will also be happy. Educated Indians look upon illiterate Indians as so much prey for themselves and we find the latter helpless in this land. Wanting to save themselves from crafty, overbearing and wicked petty officers, they get into the clutches of educated Indians. The uneducated escape from the officers by paying them whatever they demand. If this is a correct picture, what is the duty of educated Indians? Our view of the matter is that they should maintain themselves by taking to the professions of the uneducated. They will by so doing, be of real help to them. Then alone will they get a vivid idea of their sufferings and be able to maintain true honesty.

Let us turn to the educated Indians in the Transvaal. If they had joined the struggle in the right spirit, there would have been a different story to tell. The fight would have been over by now. But instead of doing that, they have gone in for luxuries, money and dissipation. As a result, the uneducated hawkers are beginning to give in and the fight is being prolonged. That the fight is drawing out is not in itself a matter for anxiety, but our hope that the end of the struggle will find the hawkers possessed of a new strength may be belied. If so, their plight will remain as abject as ever. That will deprive the struggle of its real interest.

There is time still. The educated can take to hawking in the manner of Mr. Royeppen. If they do so, they will have no difficulty in getting arrested, since people are now being arrested for hawking. Only, they must show courage. Will they?

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 29-1-1910

---

232. JOHANNESBURG

WHITE TRADER’S MEANNESS

A white businessman’s firm had stopped dealing with Indians when the satyagraha campaign started. Indian traders resolved thereupon that no one should have business transactions with him till such time as he apologized and paid a fine. It was also stated in the document relating to this resolution that, if any of the Indians who were signatories to the resolution traded with the white before the others did, he would have to pay a heavy fine. The white gentleman is now feeling the pinch. The thought of trade with Indians again tempted him. So he sent a message offering a private apology and a contribution to the funds for the struggle. While the businessmen were about to decide that a private apology should not be accepted, the white went back partly on his offer and sent word that he would only give £10 in cash on condition that his name was not disclosed. The Indian businessmen have declined the offer, showing little interest in trade with him. I hope our businessmen will not budge from the stand they have taken.

PARSEER RUSTOMJEE

Mr. Rustomjee having complained against the negligence of the gaol physician and protested to the Governor that he had been having pain in the side, he has been brought over to the Johannesburg Gaol and will be examined by another physician there. He has sent a message that he certainly intends to remain in the fight till the bitter end, whatever the state of his health. I want another fresh Indian, or one who might have beaten a retreat once, to imitate Mr. Rustomjee’s spirit. Mr. Rustomjee will complete six months on February 10. He has conveyed his desire not to have too many people at the gaol-gate; he does not want any public reception. He wants to enter the town without any fuss.

ROYEPPEN’S DECISION

Before he was deported, Mr. Royeppen told me that he had decided to live always in poverty and maintain himself by physical labour. Excellent results are likely to follow from this decision if he remains firm in it.
Mr. Royeppen, Mr. David Andrew and Mr. Samuel Joseph were taken to Pretoria by the 12 o’clock train starting from Jeppe station. From there, they will very likely be sent over to Natal.

THAMBI NAIDOO

Mr. N. S. Padiachy, Mr. N. Gopal and Mr. N. S. Pillay were released on Saturday. An Indian of the worth of Mr. Naidoo was released but there was no letter or telegram of congratulations to him. No notice was taken of the release of an Indian of the status of Mr. Aswat. I regard this both as a good and a bad sign. I think we have grown used to the presence of such brave men. Courage and suffering in the service of the motherland no longer occasion surprise. It is a bad sign [however] because the community has failed in its duty of courtesy and does not even show sufficient interest in the satyagraha campaign.

[From Gujarati]
Indian Opinion, 29-1-1910

233. JOHANNESBURG

[Before Wednesday, February 2, 1910]

ATTACK ON INDIAN TRADERS

The Sunday Times1 has made a vigorous attack on Indian traders. The occasion was provided by news-reports of a movement against the Cape Indians. The article says that the Transvaal agitation is petering out, that the Indians have lost heart and that there is need for stricter legislation against them in the Union Parliament. The writer wants every Indian to be hounded out of South Africa. This move should serve as a serious warning to Indian traders. Most of them, and the hawkers after them, have capitulated and thereby brought down the axe on their own feet. They have lost interest in the struggle. The Government will conclude that they do not count and so pass whatever laws it wants to. Once again, I warn the traders and the hawkers. If they want to pursue their vocations in peace, they must put forth all their strength. It will be more than enough if each of them goes to gaol even once.

We have no honesty left among us and so we want to gain our

1 Of Johannesburg; vide “Indian Traders”, 5-2-1910.
ends in dishonest ways. But it is quite obvious that such gains are in fact losses. However, the habit dies hard; it will be good if they learn something from this great fight that is being carried on here.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 5-2-1910

234. EXTRACT FROM LETTER TO GENERAL MANAGER, C.S.A.R.¹

[Johannesburg,]

February 2, 1910

He was travelling from Vereeniging on Monday by the 5.30 a.m. train, which passes through Germiston. He was accompanied by Mr. M. Vaid, who is Manager at Messrs Suliman Ismail Mia & Co., of Avenue Road, Fordsburg. When they boarded the train, they noticed that two compartments were only partially occupied, but the guard would not let them take their seats in either of these, and they had to stand. There appeared to be no compartments labelled “reserved”. They pleaded more than once with the guard, but he took no notice. It was after the train had left Germiston that the guard told them that they might occupy one of the compartments which had become entirely empty, so that it was only after the train had passed Germiston that they were able to get any seating accommodation.

Indian Opinion, 12-2-1910

235. THE AGA KHAN AND PASSIVE RESISTANCE

His Highness the Aga Khan, who presided at the annual session of the All-India Moslem League held at Delhi, has been speaking in strong terms of the treatment of the Indians in South Africa. His Highness has truly described the state as the Indian martyrdom in South Africa.² He has declared that, if all other remedies fail, the Imperial Government should be asked to stop indentured emigration from India to Natal. We are inclined to go further than His Highness and to say that it is the duty of the Imperial and the Indian

¹ Presumably drafted by Gandhiji and signed by A. M. Cachalia ² Ismail A. Mulla of Johannesburg, on whose report the letter is based ³ Reuter’s report of his speech was reproduced in Indian Opinion, 5-2-1910.
Governments to stop such emigration in any case. Indeed, it is the duty of the Natal Government and, failing that, of the people of South Africa to wash their hands clean of this slavery-tainted labour. The importation is being kept up not for the people of Natal in general, but for the sake of a few monied men. If this polluted stream were stopped, we doubt not that the Indian question would largely solve itself. Meanwhile, we welcome the strong expression of opinion and sympathy from the All India Moslem League, whose importance not even General Smuts can safely ignore.

Indian Opinion, 5-2-1910

236. INDIAN TRADERS

There is among us a story about a lazy man. Once the house in which he lived caught fire. They tried hard to induce the indolent fellow to do something to put out the fire or flee from the house. He paid no heed and so was burnt to death.

That is the state [of mind] of the Indian trader; in fact, of every Indian in South Africa, but especially of the trader. The Cape newspapers are presently carrying on a campaign against the Indian traders. There is a clamour for measures against them through the Union Parliament which would finish them. The demand is supported by the Advertiser in Natal and the Sunday Times of Johannesburg.
One of the newspapers' has published a remarkable contribution. We give [elsewhere] a literal translation of it. It is a malicious piece of writing. Comparing the Indian trader to the plague, a correspondent of the journal says that they should be rid of him as they would of the latter. According to its editor, this language is quite justified.

If the Indian traders, like the lazy man in the story, continue in their lethargy in spite of such attacks, they will be burnt to death by the flames of the whites, envy. The white traders will not rest. Indians who are already in possession of their licences should not remain under a false sense of security. Merely sending rejoinders to newspapers will serve little purpose, if not followed up by some action.

First, we must reform ourselves in regard to all those matters on which the report we have translated is right. We must stop bringing in men surreptitiously. Stores must be maintained clean. No one should

---

1 South African News, 19-1-1910 sleep in rooms where goods are stored.

Even after these reforms are carried out, the whites’ prejudice will remain. There is no way other than that of satyagraha to fight it. For satyagraha what is necessary at present is giving support to the Transvaal. The report which we have translated refers to the Cape Indians, but it applies to all. The Transvaal traders, therefore, most of whom have left off [satyagraha], ought to take a warning from this. If, out of selfishness and intoxication of wealth, they sacrifice the interests of the community, they will feel sorry for themselves later. Putting up with small losses now will save them from big losses in future. It will be better of one’s own accord to sacrifice a little at present by joining satyagraha than to have to lose everything afterwards. Traders elsewhere may offer moral support and encouragement to those in the Transvaal. The whole of South Africa may help the Transvaal struggle. If they fail in this they will have cause for regret later. So long as there is a single Indian left to continue the fight, victory is certain. But the traders will derive no benefit therefrom, as it will be taken for granted that they are weak. The rulers of South Africa will fear the traders only when they are convinced of the latter’s strength.

We invite every Indian trader to take careful note of these observations.

[From Gujarati]
Indian Opinion, 5-2-1910

237. ARE INDIANS LIARS?

Our friend The [Natal] Advertiser will not give up its sting. While giving judgment in an Indian case, Magistrate Beans accused Indians of telling lies, and the Advertiser has commented on this in a lengthy article. It is a contemptuous attack on Indians. We give a summary of this article elsewhere. Mr. Beans has condemned us in his judgment and eulogized Mr. Smith. That is, of course, the way of the officers. They cannot but sing each other’s praises. They do not care if the subjects are ruined in the process. They are only concerned with their pockets.

1 In its issue dated 24-1-1910
All the same, we must learn our duty even from those who bear us ill-will. Mr. Beans’s charge that we tell lies is not to be dismissed out of hand. We should pay heed to it, ignoring the element of exaggeration in it. We must admit that, when we go to courts of law, some of us are only concerned how to win the case at any cost, and not how truth may prevail. In any case it never does, so we think, in courts of law. But there are some in the Indian community who just do a little play acting and make the courts swallow any story that they choose. There is no doubt that this happens. It would be a great boon to the community if this habit disappeared. Before it can disappear from the community as a whole, the leaders must make a beginning. All the efforts of the community depend [for their successful outcome] on uprightness. We, therefore, urge our readers to ponder deeply over the Advertiser’s article. All of us say that God will protect those who follow truth.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 5-2-1910

238. PARIS HAVOC

Nature works unceasingly according to her laws, but man violates them constantly. In different ways and at different times, Nature tells man that there is nothing in the world which is not subject to change. It is hardly necessary to give illustrations. As Mr. Malabari¹ says in a poem of his: “They come but to leave.” We sing in a gazal²: “How many fairy-like creatures there have been, graced with youth, how great the men who left.” And yet every extraordinary occurrence startles us and sets us thinking. There has been one such in Paris. The river at Paris rose in such a heavy flood that huge buildings were washed off. A picture gallery³ was in imminent danger. Strongly-built roads, on which millions of pounds had been spent, sagged at places. Men were drowned. Some who escaped drowning were buried alive. Rats, deprived of their food, attacked children. How did this happen? The people of Paris had built the city to last for ever. Nature has given a warning that even the whole of Paris may be destroyed. It certainly would have been, had the floods subsided a day later.

¹Behramji Malabari (1863-1912), a Parsi journalist, poet and social reformer of Bombay ²A poetic composition of Persian origin
³The Louvre
Of course, the people of Paris will not realize the futility of rebuilding the palatial structures. It will never occur to them that even these new buildings of theirs will come down again. Engineers, in their conceit, will have more grandiose plans now and pour out money like water, forgetting and making others forget the deluge; such is the obsession of present-day civilization.

Are we to behave in the same way? Shall we copy such wild, thoughtless people? Only those who forget God will engage in such ostentation. The question then arises why we should fight against the Transvaal legislation, why we do not advise everyone to take up the rosary. To anyone who may ask this question, we shall reply that that is the very advice we have given, and give again. What we do not advise is the mere ostentatious bead-telling in the manner of that pious fraud, the crane [in the fable]. We realize the meaning of the drama that Nature is enacting, and that is why we appeal to the Transvaal Indians and the Indians of South Africa, with all the strength at our command: “Understand Nature’s purposes and ponder over them; all your ostentatious ways will lead you nowhere. Telling beads on the rosary will be no answer to the Government’s attack on your manliness and its attempt to enslave you. The servant of God will never consent to be the slave of any man. Do not be afraid of the despotic laws of the Government. You will have no reason for fear if you are not unduly attached to your wealth. If you cling to truth, it will always be with you, it will never forsake you; it cannot be submerged in floods. We advise you not to trust anything that the floods may wash away. We invite you to be firm in truth, which is the sole support for one to cling to. You may enjoy whatever you can, consistently with your loyalty to truth. You will then have no cause for regret. You will not then pursue enjoyments at any cost, for you will know that enjoyments are momentary but that truth is eternal and will abide with you for ever. To live thus is to follow the path of religion. Because the Government in its despotism opposes such an attempt, we call it irreligious. This is the essence of all religions and without it no religion will be true to itself.”

[From Gujarati]
Indian Opinion, 5-2-1910

1 The crane kept standing on one foot on the bank of a river, hoping to convince the fish that he had taken to a life of devotion and austerities, and that they could safely approach him.
239. ROYEPPEN SENTENCED

Mr. Joseph Royeppen, Mr. David Andrew and Mr. Samuel Joseph have been sentenced to three months’ imprisonment each. We congratulate them. Mr. Royeppen’s imprisonment, we believe, will provoke protests throughout India. His is no ordinary case. There is no doubt that Mr. Royeppen’s entry into the struggle has given it a powerful impetus. Every white has been set thinking why Royeppen should have been sent to gaol.

The Tamil community has surpassed all expectations. It is the only one whose members we still find going to gaol. Most members of the other communities have capitulated. Are there any who will follow the example set by Mr. Royeppen and his fellow-satyagrahis?

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 5-2-1910

240. EXTRACT FROM LETTER

[February 5, 1910]¹

He is a splendid boy, and has certainly realised my expectations. He became a passive resister in the gaol. Together with other Indians, he shared the same cell with Chinese prisoners, some of whom are the worst criminals to be found in the Transvaal. There was only one bucket of water between all these prisoners, and these Chinese drank from the buckets as dogs from pools. Naturally, Manilal did not like the idea of drinking like the Chinese or even with a cup from water so polluted. So he complained to the Deputy-Governor, who thought that Manilal was cantankerous, and immediately gave him solitary confinement. Manilal took it quite cheerfully, and said to himself that it would give him quiet time for thinking. The next day, however, he wanted to make his position good, and say, too, that he complained not only for himself but for all the Indians. So he insisted on seeing the Governor, who was much more reasonable, stopped solitary confinement, and ordered that a separate bucket of water should be reserved for Indian prisoners. Manilal tells me, too, that he was of very great assistance to Parsee Rustomjee, who has been removed to the ² Manilal Gandhi’s arrest mentioned in the letter took place on 5-2-1910.

¹ Presumably addressed to L. W. Ritch, London
Fort. He used to shampoo him every evening. Mr. Rustomjee is no better treated at the Fort. Medical relief has been refused. Manilal recommenced his honourable calling (hawking) today, and challenged arrest. He approached the same constable who arrested him the first time, who, after laughing remonstrance, acceded to his request and arrested him again. When, however, he was brought to the Charge Office, Vernon ordered his discharge. He will, as before, go out hawking every day. I am hoping that this time he is arrested he will be deported like his companions, and be fixed up for six months.

India 25-2-1910

241. EXTRACT FROM LETTER

[About February 5, 1910]

There is no other remedy for calamity except courage. As to the means, there is no doubt in my mind that they are the same both in the Transvaal and in India. But [Chhaganlal]'s letter shows that we shall be able to prepare ourselves only in a place like Phoenix. It is our duty to remain undaunted even while sleeping in a cremation ground; it is, however, likely that a person would die of fear when he tries to sleep there. Thus, India is, for the present, like a cremation ground for us. We ought to—we have to—prepare ourselves here, so that we spread our bed there and sing Mirabai's bhajan, “Bola ma, Bola ma” and the like. . . I always feel that I shall be strong enough to welcome death in any form and at any time. I wish all may get this strength.

From the Gujarati in Gandhiji-na Patre edited by Dahyabhai Patel; also quoted in Gandhiji-ni Sadhna by Raojibhai Patel

1 Superintendent of Police, Johannesburg.
2 Probably addressed to Maganlal Gandhi
3 Presumably refers to Chhaganlal Gandhi’s letter describing the Servants of India Society. Some portions from the letter were published in Indian Opinion, 5-2-1910 and 12-2-1910. Vide “Letter to Maganlal Gandhi”, 27-1-1910
4 Queen of Mewar in Rajasthan and a great poet and devotee of Lord Krishna
5 Devotional song
6 First words of the song, “Do not utter anything except [the name of] Radhakrishna” SUGGESTION TO SATYAGRAHIS

Most of those still left among the ranks of satyagrahis are Tamil friends. There is little chance of these words of mine reaching them. However, some of them follow Gujarati by having [the articles] read out to them; to these, and to the Indians from Bombay Presidency and elsewhere, I should say that what remains of the battle is both difficult and easy, because only a few soldiers remain. Those who now come forward for imprisonment should not agree to be released on bail; even when they are under-trial prisoners, they should not ask for food to be brought to them from outside; and they must be ready for imprisonment the moment they are served with a warrant. Those whom the Government finds or believes to be weak will be harassed all the more; the cases against them will be adjourned again and again. Those who wish to give the best service and suffer to the utmost should bear this in mind and show their spirit in every way.

VISIT TO PRISONERS

I wanted to visit some of the satyagrahis last Sunday. On inquiry, it was found that those who themselves had been imprisoned once could not visit prisoners. It was, therefore, a problem who should go. In the end, Mr. Harilal Gandhi was visited by Mr. Kallenbach, Mr. Sorabji by Mr. Isaac, Mr. Rustomjee by Miss Schlesin and Mr. Medh by Mr. Cole. The prisoners sent a message that they were all in high spirits.

The rule referred to above is a new way of harassing us. It was not being enforced so far. The Government’s object is, of course, to stop all communications among satyagrahis. In that, however, it cannot succeed. Its designs are sure to be frustrated if, in reply to its growing harshness, we show ourselves all the more determined in spirit. What difference does it make to a prisoner whether or not he is visited by others? If our strength must be tested, the severer the test, the more should we welcome it.

AID FROM RANGOON

A cheque for £250 has been received from Rangoon and according to Dr. Mehta, Secretary of the Transvaal Satyagraha Fund Committee there, there is a possibility of our receiving something more. Going through the particulars of contributions, I find that several Chinese traders have also subscribed. According to a resolution of the Rangoon Committee, this money should be spent only towards the relief of poor satyagrahis or those in distress.

Including this sum, a total amount of £3923-3-4 has been received so far. If this sum of £250 is deducted from this total, the rest represents the amount remitted by Mr. Jehangir B. Petit on behalf of Prof. Gokhale. We have not received detailed information about how this was collected; we are yet to know in what manner, apart from the sum of Rs. 25,000 donated by Mr. Ratan Tata, the remaining amount was raised.

KRUGERSDORP LOCATION

The whites have been giving strange evidence before the Commission that is going into this subject. They say that the presence of Indians in the Location is a source of annoyance to them, that Indians are immoral, that they harass girls, making unseemly gestures at them, and that they corrupt the morals of the Kaffirs. Many such offensive things were said in the course of the evidence. It is imperative for the Indian settlers to offer evidence to counter this. The Krugersdorp Indians must get ready to meet the situation. If, moreover, there is substance in any of these charges, such habits must be corrected. Some Indians do have contacts with Kaffir women. I think such contacts are fraught with grave danger. Indians would do well to avoid them altogether.

HEART-RENDING SCENE

[In an incident which occurred] in Mr. Gandhi’s office, Mrs. Amacanoo and Mrs. Packirsamy removed all the ornaments from their persons and vowed not to wear them again till the fight was over. They took off everything, their ear-rings, nose-rings, necklaces, bangles and rings. They took off even their wedding necklaces. This was no ordinary thing to have done. Mrs. Packirsamy removed her ornaments, saying that it was impossible for her to wear them when Packirsamy’s eldest son was about to go to gaol and Mr. Packirsamy himself was likely to be arrested soon.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 12-2-1910
243. MUSLIM LEAGUE MEETING

We have commented on His Highness the Aga Khan’s speech at the meeting of the All-India Muslim League. The resolutions passed by the League also call for some comment. In our view, the League’s resolutions are very strong and should prove encouraging to us. It appears from these resolutions that Mr. Polak has stirred up storms of protest all over India. The Viceroy and Lord Morley cannot but take notice of these resolutions.

But do we? The League has described the Transvaal Indians as martyrs. How many such martyrs are there? Those among Hindus and Muslims who care for India must give serious thought to this. If they put in their best effort, not only will the fight end soon but India’s self-respect will also be saved and her honour upheld. It is no light responsibility that the Transvaal Indians bear.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 12-2-1910

244. SPEECH AT CHINESE RECEPTION TO REV. J. J. DOKE

[JOHANNESBURG, February 14, 1910]

Mr. Gandhi spoke, saying that Mr. Doke’s interest in the Asiatics was as old as his stay in South Africa. Both the communities had to deserve the support that was given by the European Committee.

Indian Opinion, 19-2-1910

2 Ibid
3 At the Cantonese Club with Quinn presiding; 150 Chinese passive resisters and several prominent Europeans and Indians were present. After Quinn had delivered a speech eulogising Doke’s work and the address to him had been read out, Gandhiji addressed the gathering.
Mr. Gandhi said that the object of making the protest was that his clients challenged the authority of the Commissioner to make any recommendation with reference to the removal of the Location. It was his contention that as his clients had certain legal rights, apart from other rights, the Commission was totally uncalled for as far as the removal of the Location was concerned. His clients had prepared a statement of the valuation of their holdings, and that statement was filed under the protest mentioned.

THE CHAIRMAN: This is not a Commission but a Committee of Inquiry.

MR. GANDHI: I have observed the distinction.

The Chairman asked, was Mr. Gandhi prepared to give a statement with regard to points on which the Committee desired information.

Mr. Gandhi said he placed himself in the hands of the Committee. He was prepared to lead evidence, or if the Committee considered a written statement more satisfactory, he would submit one. It had been his intention to lead some evidence that morning to rebut that given at the last sitting of the Committee.

Evidence on behalf of the Municipality was then taken.

Mr. James Munsie (Chief Sanitary Inspector) said the buildings in the Location were defective from a structural point of view . . . it was impossible to repair the buildings so as to make them comply with the by-laws. The residents obtained their livelihood chiefly by hawking fruits and vegetables for which there was no proper storage. In case of infectious diseases considerable trouble would be experienced. (To Mr. Seehoff:) If the Location were under Municipal control only a certain number of residents would be allowed tin houses, and overcrowding would be prevented. In reply to the Chairman Mr. Munsie said the Indians adopted certain methods in connection with their sanitary conveniences, and it was possible that the excess of water they used caused the nuisance.

[q.] Then this extreme insanitation is not known to you?

No, I do not think it is possible. I find the coolies have been very careful in keeping the surroundings of the buildings clean.

1 Which was appointed to inquire into the proposed removal of the Asiatic Location in Krugersdorp

3 The Chairman of the Enquiry Committee
MR. CHAMNEY: You have found them careful as far as possible?
Yes.
Mr. Gandhi asked permission to question the witness but the Chairman pointed out the witnesses were not subject to cross-examination. . . . Seeing that witnesses came voluntarily and the Committee had no power to summon them, he felt they should not be subject to cross-examination.
Mr. Gandhi said as a member of the public he might be able to assist the Government and the Committee. He asked through the Chairman whether the Location was not now subject to Municipal control, and whether the Municipal by-laws were not in force there.
MR. MUNSIE: As far as possible it is under Municipal control.
THE CHAIRMAN: Is it recognized as a Municipal Location?
No.
MR. GANDHI: Is it not subject to the public health by-laws of the Municipality?
Yes.
MR. SEEHOFF: The laws of the Corporation are not retrospective?
No.
MR. GANDHI: If the Asiatics say they are quite willing to abide by the reasonable requirements of the Municipality as to structural alterations would not that satisfy the objections raised by the Municipality?
The Chairman pointed out that Mr. Munsie was giving evidence as to the sanitation of the Location, and the question was more for the person who would speak on behalf of the Municipality.

The Star, 17-2-1910

246. DOKE HONOURED

[Before February 18, 1910]

Everyone will admit that Mr. Doke has done much for the Indians and the Chinese. Both the communities have expressed their appreciation of his services, and thereby maintained their own good name. The Chinese have presented an address. The Indians are giving a dinner. Mr. Doke has made a thorough study of the satyagraha

---

1. Montford Chamney, Registrar of Asiatics
2. Vide the preceding item.
campaign. He will spend some time in England. While there, he will meet Lord Crewe and others. They cannot but attach weight to his words. Mr. Doke wields no small measure of influence in Johannesburg.

Many Indians have experienced Mr. Doke’s goodness and simplicity. We can never give him too much praise for his work. During the Deputation’s absence in England, he worked very hard.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 19-2-1910

247. LETTER TO GENERAL MANAGER, C.S.A.R.¹

[JOHANNESBURG,]

February 18, 1910

SIR,

In accordance with the promise made by Mr. Gandhi and myself at the interview² between us on Saturday last, I beg to enclose herewith draft railway regulations. You will notice that the draft keeps the practice hitherto observed as to the travelling of Asiatics, without making any racial distinctions and thereby offering insult. In my humble opinion, this draft can entirely replace the regulations which have been the subject-matter of this correspondence; but, if it is considered by the Railway Board that these regulations are necessary so far as the Natives are concerned, I venture to suggest that they may be repealed so far as they are applicable to Asiatics.

If the draft herewith submitted is not considered suitable, I shall be glad to receive your objections, and will endeavour to meet any such by framing another draft. In the opinion of my Committee, the matter is rather urgent, and it is felt that the regulations should be amended without waiting for the establishment of the Union Government.

My Committee gratefully appreciates the conciliatory manner in which you have been good enough to carry on this correspondence, and for the assurance given by you that no insult is intended by the publication of the regulations. My Committee hopes that your ¹ This letter, presumably drafted by Gandhiji, was signed by A. M. Cachalia.

² Report not available assurances and the good spirit will be carried out in practice by making the necessary amendment in the regulations.

DRAFT REGULATIONS

1. It shall be lawful for the General Manager to set apart different compartments on trains for different races or classes, and the class or race for which the compartments are so reserved shall be able to travel only in such compartments and no other, and any person travelling in a compartment other than the one reserved for his class shall be deemed to have committed a breach of these regulations.

2. The pointing out by a guard or any other railway official to a passenger of a reserved compartment shall be considered sufficient reservation under the foregoing regulations.

3. It shall be competent for the guard or the conductor or any other railway official to remove passengers from one compartment to another without giving any reason therefor.

4. It shall be competent for the station-master to refuse a first-or second-class ticket to any passenger who may be, in his opinion, not dressed in a decent or cleanly condition.

Indian Opinion, 26-2-1910

248. CROSS-EXAMINATION BEFORE ENQUIRY COMMITTEE

KRUGERSDORP,

February 18, 1910

In his evidence before the Committee the Mayor said the present site of the Location was absolutely unsuitable as it adjoined a white centre in Bugershoop, and was quite close to the Government School.

MR. CHAMNEY: Does the Council desire to acquire the ground?

[THE MAYOR]: I cannot speak on behalf of the Council, but the question has never been brought before the Council, and I do not think the Council is very anxious to have the ground. Mr. Gandhi put the question as to whether if the Asiatics carried out the structural alterations the Council required, its objection would fall to the ground.

[THE MAYOR]: I am of the opinion if the requirements of the Municipality were to be carried out, the place would have to be demolished and rebuilt.

MR. GANDHI: If the Asiatics offered to rebuild, would that meet the objection of Mr. Munsie?

Naturally yes, from the sanitary point of view.
Does not the objection to the site arise from the structural conditions?

No.

The Mayor in conclusion emphasized the point made in the statement that the Council was not liable for any compensation the Indians may be declared entitled to. Several other Indians gave evidence as to the rights they had to certain stands, and the value of the building, and the sitting was adjourned.

The Star, 18-2-1910

249. SPEECH AT BANQUET TO REV. J. J. DOKE

February 18, 1910

The Masonic Hall, Jeppe Street, Johannesburg, was the scene of a brilliant mixed gathering of Europeans, Chinese and Indians on the night of the 18th instant in honour of Rev. J. J. Doke. A vegetarian banquet was given to the reverend gentleman by the British Indian community. Mr. Hosken was in the chair. Mr. Doke was on his right and Mrs. Doke on his left. Mr. Cachalia occupied a seat to the right of Mr. Doke. Mr. Quinn and his Chinese friends were also present. . . .

Mr. Gandhi, in the course of his remarks, said that he could not speak of the guest of the evening without the feelings of deepest gratitude; nor could he avoid the personal element. When Mr. Doke and he were comparative strangers, he (the speaker) was picked up by Mr. Doke as he was lying in a precarious condition in an office in Von Brandis Street. When Mr. Doke asked him whether he would go to his house, he did not take many seconds before he replied in the affirmative. In his house, he was treated with every kindness and consideration. Mr. Gandhi’s mother was dead, his widowed sister was 4,000 miles away, his wife 400 miles away. But Mrs. Doke was both mother and sister to him. How could he forget the figure (Mr. Doke) stealing into his room at midnight to see whether his patient was awake or asleep? Speaking of Mr. Doke’s Asiatic work, it was not possible to refrain from speaking in praise of the work of the European Committee of which the Chairman (Mr. Hosken) was the President. Mr. Gandhi frankly confessed that passive resistance might have broken down without the magnificent support rendered by the European Committee. Mr. Hosken never stinted himself in rendering assistance wherever and whenever he could. He was ever-obliging. Mr. Doke had made a thorough study of the question. His home was ever open to distressed Asiatics. The speaker hoped that Mr. Doke would find the opportunity of seeing Lord Crewe and Lord Morley and give them . . .

1 This paragraph is from the report in Indian Opinion, 26-2-1910. What follows is from its issue dated 5-3-1910.

2 Vide “My Reward”, 22-2-1908.
the benefit of his own experience. He joined in the prayer for every success to Mr. Doke and his family.\footnote{Gandhiji was followed by Hosken and Doke.}

\textit{Indian Opinion, 26-2-1910 and 5-3-1910}

\textbf{250 MR. DOKE}

It is well that both the Indian\footnote{Vide the preceding item.} and the Chinese\footnote{Vide “Speech at Chinese Reception to Rev. J. J. Doke”, 14-2-1910} communities have honoured Mr. Doke on his impending departure for America. Mr. Doke has rendered very great and fearless service to the cause of passive resistance. The world will perhaps never know what Mr. Doke and those Europeans who, like him, have espoused the unpopular Asiatic cause have suffered for it.

But, if we may do so, without disparagement of the other members of the European Committee, we should like to say that Mr. Doke has made an accurate study of the whole question. He has read up all the literature there is on the subject. During the absence of the deputation in England, Mr. Doke constantly conferred with leaders and encouraged them, giving them the benefit of his mature experience. Indeed, Mr. Doke had treated the work as part of his mission as a minister of Jesus and has held that he served his own congregation in serving the Asiatic cause. To him it is not a merely political battle, but it is a religious battle—a battle of and for humanity. If there were more like Mr. Doke in our midst, we would probably have no unnatural inequalities between man and man.

Mr. Doke will pass a short time in London. He holds full credentials from the two Asiatic communities. He has been urged to see the Imperial authorities and submit the case to them as it appears to him from his personal experience. If Mr. Doke gets the opportunity of seeing them, we doubt not that he will command a respectful hearing. We congratulate both the communities upon having such an able champion of the cause.

Our good wishes accompany Mr. Doke on his mission in America.

\textit{Indian Opinion, 19-2-1910}
251. MR. RUSTOMJEE

Mr. Rustomjee’s services during the unique campaign that is going on in the Transvaal are beyond praise. Only two passive resisters have had the privilege of serving imprisonment for an unbroken period of almost a year. Mr. Rustomjee finished exactly one year. The sufferings he had described in his letter, published elsewhere in this issue, throw a painfullight on the policy of the Transvaal Government. But Mr. Rustomjee assures the Government that the unnecessary hardship inflicted on him cannot break his spirit.

Mr. Rustomjee, with the concurrence and on the advice of his fellow passive resisters, is having well deserved rest and putting his business, which has naturally suffered greatly during his absence, in order. We hope that Mr. Rustomjee will soon be restored to health and once more grace the Transvaal gaols with his presence unless the struggle ends in the mean time.

Indian Opinion, 19-2-1910

252. IMAM SAHEB

Imam Saheb Abdul Kadir Bawazeer and Mr. Kunke have been the latest discharges from the Diepkloof gaol. Both are stalwarts in the cause and both have gone to gaol more than once.

Imam Saheb has returned almost a physical wreck, though a tower of strength to the cause. He is the respected Chairman of the Hamidia Islamic Society and a priest. The Mahomedan community in particular, the whole Indian community in general, suffers in Mr. Bawazeer’s sufferings. We congratulate Mr. Bawazeer on his brilliant services and pray for strength to him and his fellow passive resisters.

Indian Opinion, 19-2-1910

---

1 Vide Appendix II.
2 Mahomed Ebrahim Kunke; vide the following item.
253. PARSEE RUSTOMJEE

Mr. Rustomjee, the Imam Saheb [Abdul Kadir] Bawazeer and Mr. Mahomed Ebrahim Kunke have been released.

Earlier, we compared Mr. Shah’s services to those of Mr. Rustomjee.¹ Both these satyagrahis remained in gaol for a continuous period of one year. Mr. Rustomjee suffered imprisonment for a total period of 14 months and 19 days, of which one full year was spent in gaol at a stretch. We draw attention to his letter² describing what he suffered during this period. We congratulate Mr. Rustomjee and the community on the courage he displayed in the face of all those hardships.

As Mr. Rustomjee was not deported again but was set free in Johannesburg itself, he got an opportunity of going to Durban; this he has made use of on the advice and with the consent of the satyagrahis. The step taken is unexceptionable. We hope that Mr. Rustomjee will put his affairs in order and recoup his health. We want to see both these things done and Mr. Rustomjee lodged in gaol again.

If Mr. Rustomjee spent one full year in gaol, that was because he got an opportunity to do so. The Imam Saheb and Mr. Kunke, too, have utilized fully, and also given to the community the benefit of, the opportunities they got. The Imam Saheb’s is a record of which the Hamidia Society and the entire Indian community can well be proud. He is reduced in health and has been suffering from some ailment; ignoring all this, he has courted repeated terms of imprisonment. So long as the community has such brave men, who can say that we shall be defeated?

We congratulate the three satyagrahis and pray to God to preserve them always in the path of virtue.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 19-2-1910

¹ Vide “Mr. Nanalal Shah’s Services”, 29-1-1910
² Vide Appendix II.
A letter was received from Mr. Rustomjee while this meeting was in progress, from which it appears that he has deliberately absented himself. Of course, there is no need to read out the letter itself to the meeting; he only wants to know from those who are assembled here, where that fine spirit has evaporated which prevailed at the meetings in which he and other friends were asked to go to the Transvaal. He also wants to know where those men are who were to accompany him. He says, further, that going through these motions of honouring him is like playing a joke on him and that he is not eager for such honour. He would feel truly honoured [he says] if people went to gaol as he had done. What we are witnessing today on the stage is the action in front of the curtain, but it is the action behind it that will determine whether or not we win. If the gentlemen\(^1\) who made speeches today urging support for the Transvaal and paying compliments to the satyagrahis were sincere in what they said, the end of the struggle should be at hand. It is a very simple thing to win, if only our leaders cease their play-acting. It depends on us whether our campaign ends in four days or four years. If it is drawing out, the fault lies with us. Every time I went wrong in my conclusion as to the end of the struggle, I found [subsequently] that the error was in my estimate of the community’s strength. When I was leaving for this place, Mr. Aswat, Mr. Cachalia and Mr. Bhayat urged me hard to take Dawad Sheth back with me. Everyone is inquiring what he will do now. I have come to take along with me Dawad Sheth, Mr. Shapurji Randeria and anyone else who may come forward. Our own men have been telling the Government that seasoned fighters are falling off and that those who have gone to Natal are not likely to return. If so, the fight will receive a severe set-back. I hope, therefore, that the gentlemen will come forward [again] this time.

Moreover, much has been said here about unity in the

---

\(^1\) A meeting of the Natal Indian Congress was held on February 20, 1910 to honour Gandhiji and Rustomjee and to pass resolutions of protest against the £3 tax, the system of indenture and the Immigration Law Amendment Bill.

\(^2\) Among these was Dawad Mahomed, who, as Chairman of the meeting, had spoken before Gandhiji.
community. I wish to point out in this connection that, if there is disunity among us, the fault lies entirely with the leaders of the two communities. If they follow up their speeches about unity with determined action, it can be achieved quite easily. It is an error to suppose that a third party can bring them together. Maintaining unity is the responsibility of those who are directly affected by it.

[From Gujarati]
Indian Opinion, 26-2-1910

255. LETTER TO COLONIAL SECRETARY

[JOHANNESBURG,]
February 23, 1910

SIR,

I have the honour to enclose herewith a copy of a letter addressed by Mr. Parsee Rustomjee to the Press about the treatment he was subjected to at the Diepkloof Gaol. I beg to append copy of medical certificate issued by his family physician as to the state of his health upon discharge from prison:

First Avenue,
Durban,
February 16, 1910

This is to certify that I have examined Mr Parsee Rustomjee, and, knowing him of old, I now find him very much reduced in weight and size, and that his health has greatly suffered from his late imprisonment, and that it will be some months before he will regain his former self. I find that his heart is affected, but whether it is an organic disease or not, it is difficult to say at once on the first examination. His eyes have also suffered from constant exposure to the sun, and are now in a state of congestion. There is distension of the flanks of the abdominal wall, which appears to me to be due to the distension of the large bowel, and which is also responsible for the constipation he suffers from. He is also subject to delayed and difficult micturition.

(Sgd.) R. M. NANJI, M. R. C. S., etc.

Both the certificate and the letter speak for themselves. My Committee therefore content themselves with drawing the attention of

1 At Pretoria; presumably drafted by Gandhiji
2 Vide Appendix II.
the Government to the facts narrated by Mr. Rustomjee, who is one of the most respected members of the Indian community in South Africa, and a vice-president of the Natal Indian Congress, and venture to trust that the civilized Government of the Transvaal will not permit a repetition of sufferings such as have been undergone by Mr. Rustomjee.

Mr. Imam Abdul Kadir Bawazeer, who has been just discharged from the Diepkloof Prison, has himself suffered very severely. He states that once, when he was extremely feverish and when he was obliged to report himself sick, the medical officer suggested, without even examining him, that he was shirking work; but when Mr. Bawazeer indignantly repudiated the suggestion, his temperature was taken by the officer, and it was found to be 104 degrees. This alarmed the officer and Mr. Bawazeer was placed in the prison hospital. Mr. Bawazeer has lost 22 lbs. in weight, and is so weak that he can walk about only with difficulty.

Mr. Bawazeer reports that most of the passive resisters have lost weight owing to insufficiency of food, and specially owing to want of ghee, and this notwithstanding the allowance of two ounces of haricot beans. It is respectfully submitted that the persistent refusal to restore the use of a fat equivalent in the shape of ghee is interpreted by my community to mean that the Government intend to starve into submission the conscientious objectors to the anti-Asiatic legislation of the Colony. I beg once more to draw attention to the fact that the Native prisoners’ dietary allows one ounce of fat per day.

Mr. Bawazeer further reports to the Association that Mr. Joseph Royeppen, a barrister and a Cambridge graduate, was, when he was transferred to the Diepkloof Prison, taken, together with three other Indian prisoners, in a manure cart, and was compelled to walk barefoot and bareheaded for nearly two miles, and that he and his fellow-prisoners were given no breakfast on the day they were transferred. Mr. Royeppen reported the matter to the Governor, who enquired into it and, Mr. Bawazeer thinks, also gave the assurance that the mistakes above referred to would not be repeated. My Committee, however, cannot help remarking that a system under which such grave mistakes are possible must be badly in need of revision.

My Committee hope that the various matters hereby brought to the notice of the Government will meet with the consideration that they deserves.

\[\text{I have, etc.,}\]

A. M. CACHALIA

CHAIRMAN, BRITISH INDIAN ASSOCIATION

Indian Opinion, 5-3-1910

256. SPEECH AT KATHIAWAD ARYA MANDAL

[Durban, February 23, 1910]

A meeting of this society was held on the 23rd instant in Beatrice Street, Durban, in order to meet Messrs Parsee Rustomjee, Shah and Shelat.

Mr. Gandhi, who was present, addressed the meeting. Mr. Gandhi explained the struggle and said that he had arrived in Natal to invite those who would to join the struggle.

Indian Opinion, 26-2-1910

257. CABLE TO S.A.B.I. COMMITTEE

[Johannesburg, February 25, 1910]

IMAM BAWAZEER, PRIEST, CHAIRMAN HAMIDIA SOCIETY, DISCHARGED, MUCH REDUCED, WEAK. STATES ROYEPPEN MADE WALK BAREFOOT, BAREHEADED, ON TRANSFER DIEPKLOOF. RUSTOMJI DISCHARGED, LOOKING REDUCED; HAS WRITTEN PRESS MAKING GRAVE CHARGES, EXAMINED ON DISCHARGE, CERTIFICATE STATES HEART, EYE AFFECTED. OVER THIRTY CHINESE, NEARLY FORTY INDIANS GAOL. MANILAL DEPORTED, RE-CROSSING, SENT TO PRISON FOR THREE MONTHS WITH HARD LABOUR. ABSENCE GHEE DIET SCALE CONTINUES CAUSE IRRITATION. P. K. NAIDOO RELEASED WEDNESDAY, RE-ARRESTED IMMEDIATELY, SENT TO PRISON FOR THREE MONTHS WITH HARD LABOUR.

India, 4-3-1910; also the south African Blue-book, No. 5.119

1 Sent to the South Africa British Indian Committee, London, by the Secretary, Transvaal British Indian Association

2 Vide “Letter to Colonial Secretary”, 23-2-1910

3 ibid

4 ibid
258. STARVATION OF PASSIVE RESISTERS

We print elsewhere¹ Mr. Smuts’ minute on the complaint of the British Indian Association of the Transvaal on the insufficiency of the revised diet scale for Indian prisoners. The minute is remarkable for the facts it omits and those it almost mis-states. It is an instance of special pleading which seeks to justify the existing unjustifiable scale of rations.

The third paragraph states that the revision was designed to approximate the Indian scale to “Indian free diets by the introduction of ghee and curry powder”. There is a suggestion here that no ghee was supplied before revision. But the fact is that at Johannesburg, the Volksrust and several other gaols one ounce of ghee per day was allowed to Indian prisoners besides beans three times a week and meat once a week, and that at the other gaols one ounce of animal fat per day was allowed. In answer chiefly to the complaint that vegetarian passive resisters could not take animal fat and that, therefore, ghee should be substituted, the Government deprived the Indian prisoners throughout the Colony of fat or ghee! In the revised scale, there is no approach to “Indian free diets” because the latter consist of a liberal supply of bread, ghee, dholl, and tea. No Indian eats mealie meal by choice and yet it still remains largely the food of Indian prisoners. We are not aware of any “unbiased Indian adherents” having admitted that the revised scale is an advance on the previously obtaining scale. Indeed, they have all said that no Indian scale could be complete without ghee. From time immemorial, ghee has been considered to be the complement of rice. Its other name literally translated means the complement of rice (anna poorna), as rice is notoriously known to be deficient in fat-forming substance. How can deprivation of a material part of the diet be considered by any person to be an advance? Curry powder is purely and simply a spice and in no sense a food as ghee is. The minute makes much of twenty-five medical officers having been consulted as to the revised scale. But it makes no mention of the fact that for the past nine months, Indian prisoners have been chiefly concentrated at Diepkoof and, that, therefore, the other medical officers had not sufficient data for observation. The acting Medical Officer of Health may have failed to find justification for the allegation as to the marked “emaciation and inanition” of passive resisters. But Messrs Rustomjee, Bawazeer, Aswat and Shah testify differently in their own persons. Mr. Rustomjee is undergoing special medical treatment, Mr. Bawazeer can scarcely walk, Mr. Aswat is a cripple and Mr. Shah spits blood. They all bring the news that the absence of ghee is the greatest cause of complaint. What weight can be attached even to a whole army of medical men testifying otherwise when the victims themselves give one an ocular demonstration of the fact of insufficiency of the scale? It is undoubtedly a matter for thankfulness that beans are added to the scale when Indians do not take meat. But the minute takes no note of the fact that, whilst beans are an admirable substitute for meat, they are no substitute for ghee. We cannot, therefore, help saying that the civilized Government of the Transvaal must labour under the charge of wanton cruelty to the passive resisters so long as they callously continue to partially starve them.

Indian Opinion, 26-2-1910

259. THE NATAL INDIAN CONGRESS

The Natal Indian Congress has, at a public meeting called for the purpose, passed a series of resolutions which are important and farreaching in their results. The most notable resolutions, to our mind, were those relating to the stoppage of indenture altogether and the carrying on of the Transvaal struggle. Both these resolutions affirm great principles without in any way involving the self-interest of the movers and seconders of the resolutions. They, therefore, impart to the proceedings a high tone. The resolutions may not produce any great and tangible result in the near future, but they are bound to affect the course of events both in the Transvaal and outside it. It will certainly be admitted that both resolutions are of the highest Imperial importance.

Indian Opinion, 26-2-1910

---

260. INDIAN EDUCATION

It is reported that the age-limit for admission to the Higher-Grade Indian School has been removed. But we understand that the removal of the restriction is not to be gazetted though the restriction was. The reason for this curious phenomenon is obvious. The Government, in order to catch votes, publicly paraded the news. In order not to offend, they now want to suppress the fact of removal of restriction.

Indian parents should, however, not rest content with the proposed change. They should establish their own schools where proper education could be provided.

Indian Opinion, 26-2-1910

261. THE CAPE COLOURED PEOPLE

Dr. Abdurahman, from his seat in the Municipal Council of Capetown, has, given vent to bitter feelings on the vote for an expense of £1,500 at the time of the arrival of the Prince of Wales. The worthy Doctor will be in mourning on the day of the Prince’s arrival. He will not sing “God Save the King”. And he advises every Coloured man to refrain likewise. The reason for this outburst of anger is natural and justifiable. The partial disfranchisement of the Coloured people in the South Africa Act has gone deep down into the hearts of thousands of Coloured people. For them to take part in the approaching rejoicings would undoubtedly be a mockery and a sham. It would be hypocrisy, pure and simple.

It may be questioned whether the sentiments expressed by Dr. Abdurahman are consistent with loyalty. The word “loyalty” is a much-abused term. It would certainly be inconsistent with the loyalty of a coward or a slave. But we hold that a free man—an enlightened and independent man—which we think Dr. Abdurahman is, can consistently with his loyalty to the Crown, which is an ideal, refuse to associate himself with rejoicings which involve the degradation of a whole people who have deserved by common consent a better treatment. In courageously expressing his sentiments, we think that

---

1 At its meeting on 21-2-1910; vide “Abdurahman’s Indignation”, 26-2-1910
Dr. Abdurahman has cleared the atmosphere of cant and humbug and has served Truth, the Crown, his people and himself at the same time. Dr. Abdurahman’s declaration almost coincides in point of time with the emphatic statement of the Coloured people’s meeting at Johannesburg\(^1\) where several speakers said, that, if the authorities became unreasonable, they would take up passive resistance. We congratulate Dr. Abdurahman on his performance and hope that he will have courage to follow out his programme when the time comes.

Indian Opinion, 26-2-1910

262. DOKE HONOURED

We congratulate the Transvaal Indians on the function they organized in honour of Mr. Doke. Rarely does one come across men of Doke’s sincerity and influence and readiness to help. He has served the community well indeed. He is prepared to go to gaol if by doing so he can secure our freedom.

The Indians who were present at the function must have seen that such a gathering would have been impossible three years ago. Whites who would formerly have been ashamed to sit with us now come together to honour us and dine with us. We do not want to say that this is something extraordinary; we only want to draw attention to our previous degradation. It is the power of satyagraha which has changed all this. If people exert still greater strength, we can rise much higher. We wish the Indian community takes from this gathering the lesson that there is no help like self-help. We shall grow strong in proportion to the suffering we go through.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 26-2-1910

263. FUNCTIONS IN DURBAN

Functions are being held in Durban following the arrival of Mr. Parsee Rustomjee, Mr. Shah and Mr. Shelat.\(^2\) In those arranged by the

---

\(^2\) Gandhiji was in Durban about this time.
Congress and the Kathiawad Arya Mandal, flattering compliments were paid to the prisoners. They said [in reply] that they wanted no praise. Speeches and functions are all right as far as they go; but there is no relish in them now. Action alone matters. If the various bodies of Indians were to take a vow of silence and discharge their duties, they would soon achieve their aims. They have only one duty in connection with the fight, namely, to enlist recruits and send them to the front. To achieve this, we should say, those who seek to persuade others must themselves come forward. If the office-bearers of the bodies show themselves sincere, they will be able to persuade others. This is a time to put aside all make-believe and plunge into battle.

[From Gujarati]
Indian Opinion, 26-2-1910

264. ABDURAHMAN’S INDIGNATION

A proposal was made in the Cape Town Council on Monday to sanction an expenditure of £1,500 for decorations, etc., on the occasion of the Prince of Wales’ visit. Dr. Abdurahman opposed it. He said:

No Coloured man can feel happy, no Coloured man, I hope, will sing “God Save the King” on that day. I know I won’t. No Coloured man will see the Prince of Wales coming through the streets on that day and feel happy; for he will know it is the consummation of the robbing him of something he has had for 50 years.

Proceeding, he said that out of 35,000 of the ratepayers—half of whom were Coloured people—they were going to take something to have a day of jubilation and luncheons so that they might be happy.

I, as a Coloured man cannot associate myself with it, and I, as a Coloured man, will look upon it as a day of mourning. No Englishman or Irishman would have stood up here to-day and said it in the temperate way I have, had they been robbed—disgracefully robbed—of something they would have shed their blood for.¹

These words of Dr. Abdurahman, though bitter, are justified. The proposal was of course passed, but his words will be remembered

¹ Vide “Speech at Durban Meeting”, 20-2-1910
² Vide “Speech at Kathiawad Arya Mandal”, 23-2-1910
³ From a report of the speech in Indian Opinion, 26-2-1910 for ever. If the other Coloured people were to follow in his footsteps, they would win redress of their grievances soon enough. We see no disloyalty in the Doctor’s remarks. True loyalty may be bitter sometimes. It is not loyalty to say “yes” to everything. True loyalty consists in expressing only what is in one’s mind and acting accordingly.

We hope that Dr. Abdurahman will be true to his word and will not take part in the celebrations during the visit of the Prince of Wales.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 26-2-1910

265. EDUCATION IN NATAL

The age-limit for [admission to] the Higher-Grade [Indian] School has been abolished. This is a matter for some satisfaction. But there is no reason to believe that there has been any very great victory. The only victory is that the Natal Government has eaten its own words. But we need not for that reason believe that our boys will now grow to be learned men. The duty of Indian parents is rather to start their own schools\(^1\) as soon as possible. The education imparted in the Higher-Grade [Schools] is not of a kind to inspire any confidence. It is mere parrotlearning, and of patriotism it teaches nothing whatever.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 26-2-1910

266. SPEECH AT DURBAN INDIAN SOCIETY\(^2\)

February 26, 1910

An unusually interesting and representative gathering of Indians was held, under the aegis of the Durban Indians’ Society, at their hall, 104, Queen Street, Durban, on Saturday, the 26th ultimo. The hall was packed to its utmost capacity, and the meeting was of a very orderly nature. Deshabandhu Dawad Mahomed was voted to the chair, and amongst those present were Deshabhaktar M. K. Gandhi, Deshabandhus U. M. Shelat and Nanalal Shah, of passive resistance fame. . . . The Secretary, Desh. A. D. Pillay, welcomed the veteran passive resisters. . . .

\(^1\) Vide “Indian Education”, 26-2-1910

\(^2\) A brief report was published in Indian Opinion, 5-3-1910.
Desh. T. A. Soobramania Achary, who has decided to join the Transvaal Indian struggle, then addressed the gathering in Tamil. . . .

Deshabhaktar M. K. Gandhi and other passive resisters were then garlanded. . . .
Deshabhaktar M. K. Gandhi rose to reply amidst loud cheers.

He said that all the speeches had greatly impressed him. He suggested that Mr. Naicker should join the passive resistance struggle. He proceeded to say that the struggle was being carried on as strongly as ever, and feelings of determination were still being manifested. Passive resistance was bound to win, for it was for a noble and righteous cause, and the Indians had resolved to endure it to a finish, though they might be tormented and tortured. The Transvaal Government had resorted to a treacherous measure of attaching buildings, goods, bedsteads, and crockery to recover the fines, but that could not divert the Indians from their line of action, and the resolution of the Boksburg Indians, who preferred to lose all their property, and choose the gaol, was sufficient proof of their earnestness. He read certain letters which he had received from Desh. P. K. Naidoo, which were of public interest; and he referred to the brave stand made by him, although he was repeatedly lodged in gaol. His action, he said, was worth emulating. He further added that the struggle was not confined to the sterner sex alone, but the feebler sex also evinced a great deal of interest. Their action in allowing their husbands to participate in the national struggle, which was also a struggle for equity and justice, bore evidence of the women’s valour. These women had also endured untold privations. He then read a telegram\(^1\) received from India with reference to the stoppage of the Indian indentures to Natal, in which it was stated that if the Transvaal and the Natal Governments refrained from ill-treating the Indians, and the indentured Indians themselves received better treatment, then indenture might be resumed. Desh. M. K. Gandhi did not approve of the conditional suspension of the indenture, but he said that complete abolition of indenture to these Colonies was necessary.

Desh. U. M. Shelat then addressed the assembly. Desh. Nanalal Shah followed, and gave a vivid description of the harsh treatment which he received during his gaol experience.

The Natal Mercury, 3-3-1910

267. SPEECH AT DURBAN INDIAN SOCIETY\(^2\)

February 26, 1910

Among others, we heard two excellent speeches today, Mr.

\(^1\) Cable from G. K. Gokhale; vide the following item.

\(^2\) Vide the preceding item.
Naicker’s being the best of all. It would bring much credit to the Durban Indian Society if members with a spirit such as his were to go to gaol in the Transvaal. Mr. Naicker laid stress on education. I think true education consists in the cultivation of mental and physical faculties. The effort will profit the individual himself and, in the measure that it does so, it will profit the country as a whole. Unfailing devotion to one’s duty is the only true education.

Citing the example of Mr. Naidoo in this connection, he [Gandhiji] said:

Everyone will admit that he, more than others, has received true education. He has spared himself no sacrifice. He has acted like Socrates who cheerfully swallowed a draught of poison.

Reading out letters addressed to Mr. Royeppen’s old mother and to himself by P. K. Naidoo when going to gaol, he said:

The Colonials especially must emulate Mr. Naidoo’s example. Imprisonment in connection with satyagraha makes a man pure, truthful and brave.¹

Reading out the cable from Prof. Gokhale, he said:

This cable has been published in the newspapers here and commented upon. This shows that the issue is coming to the fore everywhere. We must now strengthen the hands of Mr. Gokhale and His Highness the Aga Khan by telling them that we have filled the gaols in the Transvaal.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 5-3-1910

268. THE INDIAN COUNCIL AND INDENTURED LABOUR

The Hon’ble Professor Gokhale and his colleagues have rendered a service to us and to India generally (as also, we are inclined to think, the Colony) by their having moved the resolution to stop indentured emigration from India to Natal. The resolution seeks to stop indenture by way of penalty for non-redress of the grievances of the free Indian population of South Africa. We wish that Professor Gokhale had or could have taken up the highest standpoint and moved for the stoppage of indenture altogether as being inherently bad and of no real benefit to the indentured men themselves. There is a weakness in the resolution which it would be useless not to acknowledge. If indenturing be good for the indentured men themselves, those who wish to indenture should not be prevented from taking advantage of the system for the sake of benefiting the free Indian population of Natal or the sister-colonies. If, on the other hand, it is bad, no redress that may be granted to that population can be allowed to continue a state of things that is immoral or otherwise hurtful.

¹ Supplied from the report of the speech in Indian Opinion

But we have to be thankful for small mercies in these days of compromise and expediency. Professor Gokhale has taken the lesser step because he knows that he may not carry the Government with him in his condemnation of the system of indenture as such. It is for us here to see to it that we accept no immoral bargains. Whilst we would and should agitate for removal of general grievances and point out that Natal cannot receive the benefit (questionable though it is) of indentured labour from India, we must make it clear that we ask for the stoppage of indentured labour for its own sake and because we consider that it is detrimental to the moral well-being of those who indenture.

Sir James Liege Hulett has been telling a reporter that in his opinion the movement in India is due to the agitation on behalf of the Indian traders. This is perfectly true. But the inference that it will die out because of the so-called relief having been granted during the last session of the local Parliament is quite baseless. We would appeal to Sir J. L. Hulett and his co-planters that they should look at the question from a truly South African standpoint. Is it impossible for them to realise that their interests are not necessarily the Colony’s and that the latter demand complete and immediate stoppage of indentured labour? We are not sure that the Colony will be ruined if the tea and sugar industries were to disappear. Indians have benefited the Colony through their cultivation of garden produce. This will be continued by the free Indian population. But the sooner the indentured labour supply is stopped, the better. We would much rather that the Colony stopped this supply of its own motion than that it was done by the Government of India. At the same time, it is necessary that no effort should be spared in India to bring about the much-desired result, whether by way of penalty or otherwise. Entire suspension of artificial emigration from India to Natal will go a long way towards solving many of the difficulties in South Africa.

Indian Opinion, 5-3-1910
269. THE JOHANNESBURG MUNICIPALITY
AND COLOURED PEOPLE

The Johannesburg Municipality wishes to have anti-colour or anti-Asiatic legislation passed in a surreptitious manner. An offensive notice appears in an obscure corner of a local newspaper, notifying the intention of the Municipality to promote a private Bill in the forthcoming session of the local Parliament. The Bill, among other things, is intended to take over the Town Regulations that were passed by the late Republican Government just before the declaration of war. These Regulations make it illegal for Coloured persons to walk on foot-paths or live in towns. It is these Regulations in accordance with which the Pretoria Municipality has served notices to quit on all Coloured residents, save Asiatics, in that town and against which the Coloured people recently made such a powerful protest. It will be remembered, too, that the Pretoria Municipality entered into a long tussle with the Government for the purpose of having these Regulations retained for its use. Now the Johannesburg Municipality wishes to copy the Pretoria sister. Mr. Cachalia has, therefore, addressed the following to the Government and lodged a formal protest with the Town Clerk:

My Association has seen the notice in the papers of a private Bill to be submitted to the forthcoming session of Parliament by the Municipal Council of Johannesburg which, among other things, contemplates the application of the Town Regulations Article No. 1256, dated the 18th September, 1899. In the humble opinion of my Association, the object of applying these Regulations to the Municipality seems to be to use the clauses of the Regulations which are restrictive of the liberty of Coloured people. If so, this is an attempt to pass; in an indirect manner, class legislation of a very objectionable type. My Association, therefore, respectfully trust that the Government will oppose the passage of this Bill so far as the application of the aforementioned Town Regulations is concerned.

The clause relating to residents reads as follows:

Coloured persons may not reside in any place abutting on the public street in any town or village but every householder or owner of an erf may keep in his backyard whatever servants he requires for domestic service.

Indian Opinion, 5-3-1910

270. THE INDIAN COUNCIL AND INDENTURED LABOUR

Every Indian should realize the importance of the resolution regarding the stoppage of the immigration of indentured labour, passed by the [Indian Legislative] Council at Calcutta at the instance of the Hon’ble Prof. Gokhale and other Indian members. It is likely to have far-reaching effects, how far-reaching will depend on our work here.

The resolution is to the effect that the emigration of indentured Indians [to Natal] should be stopped [even] if justice was not done to free Indians in the Transvaal or Natal. Sir James Hulett said that we had already been granted relief; an amendment was passed during the last session of Parliament and therefore nothing further was required by way of relief. Being of that opinion he said that the Government of India would take no further action. The Veda Dharma Sabha thanks the Government for what it has done, but we should like to make it plain to all Indians that non-indentured Indians cannot be considered to have been granted any relief till the following matters are satisfactorily settled:

1. The £3 tax to be abolished in respect of both men and women;
2. Right of appeal to the Supreme Court to be granted in respect of every kind of licence;
3. The poll tax of £1 to be abolished;
4. Adequate educational facilities to be provided;
5. Harassment [of Indians] in administering the Immigration law to stop;
6. Harassment through the permit laws to disappear.

This is the least that needs to be done in Natal. Now that there is a Union, an inquiry should be held covering the whole of South Africa. It follows from this that the hardships experienced in the Transvaal should also disappear—not only those connected with the agitation, but also those resulting from the withholding of other rights—and that hardships concerning licences and immigration in the Cape should be removed. If it comes to bargaining, all these issues can, and ought to, be raised. It is, therefore, the duty of the Indian community to tell the Government in plain terms that the amendments carried out during the last session serve no useful purpose. They have been of no benefit whatever to the Indian community.

The community has also another important duty. Do we really want to enter into a bargain? Prof. Gokhale was right in raising the issue in the manner he did. Had it been done in any other way, there would have been no effect on the Government of India. But we are in an altogether different position. We cannot purchase our rights at the cost of the indentured labourers. We, on our part, should make it plain that the Government must stop the emigration of indentured labourers forthwith, and that, out of consideration for the interests of the labourers themselves, because the system of indenture is fundamentally an evil thing. Since indenture is of no benefit to the labourers themselves, their emigration brings little profit to India. All this deserves careful consideration.

It should be observed that the Indians’ interests will be best served by doing this. So long as the immigration of indentured labourers into Natal continues, the free Indians will never be left in peace. It should also be remembered that the Union Government is not likely to permit the import of indentured labour. Mr. Merriman is quite opposed to it. From every point of view, therefore, it is best that the immigration of indentured Indians should stop.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 5-3-1910

271. OUR OPPORTUNITY

From the Calcutta proceedings and the questions put in the British Parliament, every Indian will be able to judge what the Transvaal struggle has achieved. It is striking its roots deeper every day. They will go so deep that no one will be able to pull them out. That a struggle like this should be prolonged is no reason for anyone to get panicky. Satyagrahis should welcome it. When the devout Sudhanva was asked to throw himself into a pan of boiling oil to

1 That is, prohibiting the emigration of indentured labourers forthwith
2 John Xavier Merriman, (1841-1926), Prime Minister of the Cape prove his loyalty to truth, he did so with a smile. That must be the attitude of every satyagrahi. Mr. P. K. Naidoo has provided us a striking example of it.

Our struggle is producing a profound effect on the Coloured people. Dr. Abdurahman has commented on it in his journal at great length and has held up the example of the Indian community to every Coloured person. Some of them have also passed a resolution in Johannesburg to defy the laws of the Government and take to satyagraha.

In the British Parliament, it was stated, in reply to a question, that the Government were in correspondence with the Transvaal Government.

At such a juncture, the Indian community must do a bit of hard thinking and summon up its strength. While the Chinese are again roused, Indians seem to have sunk into lethargy. The Tamil Indians are an exception. We entreat and urge the Gujarati Hindus and Muslims to consider the great significance of the struggle and throw themselves into it whole-heartedly. It is chiefly the leaders who should take up this task. If they show themselves strong, probably everything will be all right. If the community appears to be weak, it is because the leaders are so. If, in spite of the [hopeful] signs referred to above the leaders do not bestir themselves, whom should we blame?

[From Gujarati]

\textit{Indian Opinion, 5-3-1910}

\textbf{272. DISGRACEFUL}

We gather from \textit{The [Natal] Mercury} that about a hundred Indians have arrived in Durban by the \textit{Kanzler}. All of them want to go to the Transvaal. In accordance with an [official] arrangement, the [Immigration?] Department here issues passes for the Transvaal and thus Indians reach the Transvaal.

Let alone people going to gaol, they have grown so impatient to be in the Transvaal and pursue their selfish ends there that they rush thither like moths rushing into a flame.

Looking at the other side, we find some Indians and Chinese going to gaol in the Transvaal. In Natal, [too,] the Indians have come forward to join the struggle.
In these circumstances, it is quite easy for the Indians to see why the struggle is lengthening out. A satyagrahi is bound to have patience. No matter if a few Indians, lost to all sense of shame, go to the Transvaal and accept slavery, the satyagrahi will fight for their freedom. He will also thereby open their eyes.

Durban Indians can do much in this matter. They can use persuasion and stop the Indians who are impatient to go to the Transvaal. It will be a matter of rejoicing if even one Indian is saved in this way. Those who are unable to court imprisonment can attend to this task. The Congress, the Arya Mandal and other associations can do much in this matter. Will they?

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 5-3-1910

273. JOHANNESBURG

SATYAGRAHA FUND

Questions are being asked regarding the control of large sums of money received as aid from India. It is the right of every Indian to ask for and obtain an explanation. The money is Mr. Gandhi’s charge and is intended to be used only for purposes connected with the satyagraha campaign. A separate account called the passive Resistance Fund Account has been opened and is being operated by Mr. Gandhi. Part of the amount, to wit, the entire sum received from Rangoon and a portion of that received from Bombay, has been donated for the maintenance of indigent satyagrahis and their families. The rest is being used for financing the satyagraha campaign, that is, to meet the expenditure of the British Indian Association office here and in England and the expenditure incurred in India and also to pay off the debts incurred for the satyagraha campaign. Mr. Cachalia and other satyagrahis are being consulted about all this expenditure and accounts of the same are forwarded to Prof. Gokhale and to the Secretary of the Fund, Mr. Petit. Mr. Gandhi has received letters from Prof. Gokhale and Mr. Petit which leave the disbursement of the Fund to his discretion. The letters are reproduced in the English section in full.\(^1\) If it is desired to use the Fund for any other purposes, \(^1\) Only relevant portions of the letters by Gokhale dated 13-1-1910 and by Petit dated 5-1-1910 were reproduced in Indian Opinion, 5-3-1910.

---

The Government has got the Boksburg Indians into its clutches. I wish they remain strong and get out of them. They are being misled by some foolish persons. I should advise such persons to keep their mouths shut. If they can do no good, they should certainly not make matters worse. The former were called back by the Magistrate after they had been taken to prison, and he ordered confiscation of their property in default of payment of fine. As a result, Mr. Moses’ house valued at £300 and Moonasamy’s valued at £250 were confiscated in lieu of a fine of £2 [each]. I hope that, in spite of this, the Boksburg Indians will refuse to pay the fines and allow their property to be confiscated. No Indian should come forward to bid for miscellaneous articles of property, but someone should bid for the house and secure it. It has been suggested that the losses to be incurred in this process should be made good by the Committee. The suggestion, it would appear, proceeds from some misunderstanding. All satyagrahis have to bear [their own] losses. If the Committee were to pay the fine for anyone who is not awarded imprisonment in lieu of fine, the person concerned could not be considered to have offered satyagraha. If, on a person being fined, his property is confiscated and he is reduced to poverty, the Committee can provide for his maintenance. More than this, the Committee can never do. Several Indians have been reduced to poverty in the course and in consequence of the struggle. What help did they receive? Help is out of the question. Those who have been fined should be proud that, being reduced to poverty, they will now be able to fight with all their strength. There is no question here, be it noted, of putting up with the loss of a house.

Moreover, some persons suggest that the Court’s order being unreasonable, an appeal should be preferred. The days for such appeals are over. No one will now be able to hold his own by filing appeals. If, however, the individual concerned is a man of courage, he will not develop cold feet at the prospect of the auctioning of his goods or any other similar measure. This is the last occasion. Only the most courageous should come forward now. This is no time when the others, half-hearted satyagrahis, can hope to hold out. Only a strong man can bear blows from every side. Mr. Rustomjee and Mr. Cachalia have lost their all. Who will come to their aid?

I believe the Indians [concerned] have preferred an appeal this matter only with a view to gaining time. The Gazette carries a notice regarding the auction of the property the very next Saturday, but in view of the notice of appeal, the auctioning will not be proceeded with. It is my hope, however, that in the end the Indian friends will allow their property to be auctioned.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 5-3-1910

274. LETTER TO MOULVI AHMED MUKHTIAR

DURBAN,

Friday, March 11, 1910

MOULVI SAHEB AHMED MUKHTIAR,

Received your letter. The Phoenix debt was incurred by me mostly during the struggle. This debt can be paid up from the Satyagraha Fund, for Indian Opinion is conducted solely for the service of the community and for carrying on the struggle. The workers working there live in poverty for the sake of the community and Phoenix itself was bought for the community. Whatever activity is carried on there is done for its sake. Therefore regard Phoenix as a public institution. Moreover, the community had actually started a special fund in the Transvaal to pay up the debt that has been or is being paid from the Satyagraha Fund; but it did not succeed. Whatever expenditure has been or is being incurred is accounted for to Professor Gokhale in India.

Perhaps you do not know that all my earnings have been spent on Phoenix.

I am sorry to find that the report of your interview with me as published by you gives for the most part a distorted version of what I had said.²

You are at liberty to publish this letter.

Salaams from

MOHANDAS KARAMCHAND GANDHI

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 19-3-1910

¹ Not available
² Vide “Letter to M. P. Fancy”, 16-3-1910
275. MR. TATHAM ON INDENTURED INDIANS

There seems to be a remarkable unanimity in Natal, save for the interested planters, that the importation of indentured labour should cease. We reproduce this week extracts from Mr. Tatham’s speech on the question. We are not concerned with Mr. Tatham’s premises, some of which are faulty. We do not share the view that competitive industrialism promotes the greatness of a nation, and that “the civilising influence” of the white man “adds to the sum of human happiness”. His strictures on the spread of Mahomedanism betray gross ignorance. With these views, however, as we have said, we are not concerned. But we heartily agree with him that “it would be better that these industries (the sugar and tea) did not exist at all than that they should be supported by a form of labour that was going to bring ruin to the country”. We also go further with Mr. Tatham and say, with him, that “these industries will not suffer for want of Asiatic labour”. It was to be wished that Mr. Tatham had taken up the higher ground and condemned the system of indenture on merits and because of its inherent evil. Be that, however, as it may, there can be no doubt that the importation of this servile labour into South Africa is doomed. And with it must disappear the eternal Asiatic question.

There seems to be a fear lurking in the minds of some Indians that abolition of the indenture system may worsen the position of the resident Indian population. We would venture to point out to such of our readers as entertain the fear, that they will not better the position of their countrymen by supporting a system they do not like. We desire to live here not on sufferance but as a matter of right and duty.

We must not mistake the references by some of the planter-members of the Natal Legislature to the £3 tax as being unjust so far as the women are concerned for their desire to revolutionise their treatment of the Indian question as a whole. They have repeatedly declared that they want our labour but not our competition in trade or other branches of industry. They do not want to give civil or political equality. As we have often said, civil or political equality is not a matter of gift. We have to create a situation whereunder we can take it. And it must be clear to any commonsense man that such a state of things is impossible so long as servile labour pours into the Colony from India.

1 At a meeting of the Maritzburg Parliamentary Debating Society on 3-3-1910

Indian Opinion, 12-3-1910

276. INDENTURED INDIANS

The agitation in India for prohibiting the emigration of indentured Indians has occasioned much discussion here too in the newspapers. Mr. Tatham, a Maritzburg lawyer, stated in a speech the other day that under the Union the import of Indian labour must stop. He holds that the civilization of the West is superior to ours, and that it would not be quite right that the two should mingle with each other. He asserts that we are not good enough to be allowed to associate with them. He ends up with a few unworthy remarks about the Muslim faith, declaring that it would be best if there were no Indians in South Africa.

We need not pay any attention to this argument; it is [of course] necessary to know what it is. However, we must accept the suggestion for stopping the import of indentured labour. Every Indian should understand that the immigration of indentured Indians is neither in the interests of free Indians nor the labourers themselves. It is short-sighted to attach importance to the trade with indentured labourers and the moderate profits some of us make out of the import of foodgrains for them. We do not—we cannot—have much trade with them. We shall not be allowed to import goods for them and, even if all this were possible, the resulting gain should not tempt us. Certainly, no Indian can claim that the indentured labourer is happy. No free Indian will be ready to put himself in his position. The severity with which they are treated, even prisoners never experience. The amount of work they are required to do, prisoners are never made to do. When, at the end of their days of slavery, they are set free, the taint of slavery remains with them for many years. It is certainly not desirable that a single Indian should have to live in this condition.

If the immigration of indentured Indians stops, there will be an immediate improvement in the condition of the Indians now settled in South Africa. Our present plight is entirely due to [the whites’] fear of indentured Indians. Following the arrival of Chinese indentured labourers in the Transvaal, the Cape Chinese found themselves in trouble and a harsh law was passed. The whites labour under the apprehension that a population of indentured Indians in South Africa will lead to a swelling in the numbers of the community. There is only one way to remove this fear. From every point of view, therefore, the immigration of indentured Indians must stop.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 12-3-1910

277. INDIAN CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

This body has recently ventured on a very commendable undertaking. The suppliers of Nestle’s milk, Needle-point cigarettes and Lion matches refuse to trade with Indians, with the result that Indian traders have to depend on the whites for these items and pay fancy prices.

It is obvious that if we had any spirit in us, these three firms could not afford to slight Indians. Even in trade one must maintain one’s prestige and dignity. We often neglect to do this, disregarding self-respect where we expect some profit. The Durban Indian Chamber of Commerce wants now to change all this. It has decided to save itself both from the insults of the Nestle’s milk-suppliers and the financial loss. This is how it will be done: All the milk needed by Indians will be bought from another firm and a limited liability company will be formed to obtain the necessary supplies; the company will then supply the retail traders. All the retailers will bind themselves not to buy Nestle’s milk but to get their supplies only from this company.

Enthusiasm runs so high at the moment that shares to the value of about £1,500 have already been subscribed and the retailers have agreed not to buy Nestle’s milk.

This is a most significant step. If it succeeds, the Nestle’s people will realize that they cannot afford to insult Indians and the latter will discover that they can stand their ground by relying on their own strength.

Success will depend on the fulfilment of the following conditions:

1. Indians must have the necessary enthusiasm and ability for such undertakings.
2. The leaders must be honest at least in this field of business. It will not do for any of them to appropriate the profits themselves to the exclusion of others, or for the company to expect big returns [on the capital].

(3) There must be unity among Indian traders.

(4) The small trader will have to be large-hearted.

(5) And all Indians must have a keen sense of self-respect.

If this one venture succeeds, it will pave the way for many others. We congratulate the Indian Chamber of Commerce and its office-bearers on taking this step, and wish them success in their venture. Success, though, will depend on the work of the office-bearers.

[From Gujarati]
Indian Opinion, 12-3-1910

278. JOSEPH ROYEPPEN AS HAWKER

We once published a photograph of Mr. Joseph Royeppen the barrister. This time we publish a photograph of Mr. Joseph Royeppen the hawker. In view of the services which he has been rendering, we are sure that all readers will be pleased with the present photograph. India’s uplift will be brought about by those who suffer and take to manual labour; lawyers and barristers will only put her into fetters.

[From Gujarati]
Indian Opinion, 12-3-1910

279. JOHANNESBURG

Sunday [March 13, 1910]

NATAL FIGHTERS

The Natal recruits, not having been arrested [at the border], have again entered the Transvaal. At Volksrust, they were met by an officer who told them that he had no orders to arrest them. This was a disappointment to them. They were obliged to buy tickets for Johannesburg, and thus they went ahead.

Mr. Cachalia, Mr. Waja, Mr. David Ernest and Mr. David Marie had gone to Charlestown to join the recruits and get arrested. Mr. Saleh Ibrahim also joined them there. Local Indians had turned up at the Charlestown, Volksrust and Standerton stations.

On their arrival at Johannesburg, they were received by the Imam Saheb, Mr. Abdool Kadir Bawazeer, early in the morning though it was. He invited them all to lunch. They were then taken to stay with members of their respective communities. An effort is being made to lodge all the satyagrahis in one place.

So far, what has happened is that a large amount has been spent on railway fares. Let us see what comes next. It is expected that all of them will start their hawking rounds from Monday; they will earn their own expenses that way and also get arrested.

“Hind Swaraj” Proscribed

There has been a cable report from India that Mr. Gandhi’s book, Hind Swaraj, has been proscribed there. This was not altogether unexpected. Some of the arguments in the book tend against British rule. It seems the Government was afraid that they might give encouragement to the extremists and promote terrorism. Mr. Gandhi intends to publish an English translation of the book and wishes that it should be read by a large number of whites. Money will be needed for the purpose. The book will be offered at cost price. Those who wish to buy a copy should write to Mr. Gandhi or to the Manager, Phoenix. It may take some time to bring out the translation as an independent publication, since it cannot be published in Indian Opinion, but it is not likely to cost more than six pence a copy. Every well-wisher of India should help in this venture.

One should consider whether this step of the Government will have any repercussions on the Transvaal agitation. It is bound to have some effect one way or another. The Transvaal struggle betokens an awakening among the Indians. The spirit that Indians have come to develop in the Transvaal and in South Africa is not one which it will be possible to put out. The Government, in its ignorance, cannot help resorting to repression. Mr. Gandhi’s part in the agitation and his authorship of the book on swaraj cannot remain unconnected. Moreover, the man who is a satyagrahi in the Transvaal agitation will be one in other situations as well. In this way, the book on swaraj may either strengthen or weaken [the Transvaal agitation]. Those who are timid will take fright and protest that they have nothing to do with swaraj, that they do not want to invite ruin on themselves. Those who are bold, who are satyagrahis through and through, will fight with redoubled strength and determination, knowing that the Transvaal campaign holds the key to swaraj in India. This will be a test for Mr. Gandhi as also for other Indians.

\(^1\) Vide “Preface to Indian Home Rule”, 20-3-1910

Generally speaking, those who have been fighting in the Transvaal have no cause to fear anything. The utmost that can happen is that the fate of the book on swaraj may have the effect of prolonging the Transvaal campaign. Every Indian can see that there can be no other result. There may be other consequences to Mr. Gandhi personally. He cannot choose but suffer them. One cannot serve one’s motherland in any other way or on any other terms.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 19-3-1910

280. LETTER TO M. P. FANCY

Tuesday, March 16, 1910

SHETH SHRI M. P. FANCY.

You have raised a question in connection with the interview which Moulvi Saheb Ahmed Mukhtiar had with me and which he has published. You tell me that it has been a matter of controversy among some Indians and you therefore feel that I should make a statement whether the ‘interview’ has been correctly reported or not.

I had not the least intention to do this. The community knows me; and if it does not yet do so, it is not possible for me to introduce myself to it now. An Indian can immediately know the truth of statements attributed to me, whether they were made by me or not. However, in response to your request I make the following reply:

I am sorry to find that, in the ‘interview’ as published by the Moulvi Saheb, the statements made by me have been twisted. At the end of our meeting he expressed his satisfaction and told me that he had received full explanation and would render every assistance to the struggle. Yet the twist he has given to the interview is likely to harm the struggle.

I explained to him the origin of the Satyagraha Fund. I told him

---

1 Not available
about the letter¹ I had written from England to Prof. Gokhale and the one² to Mr. Polak. I informed the Moulvi Saheb that in these letters I had written about the debt I had incurred in connection with Indian Opinion on account of the struggle. I explained to him how the funds came in response to those letters. I further told him that in my letter³ to Prof. Gokhale I had intimated to him that the funds would be spent to clear off the debt incurred on account of Indian Opinion, to meet the expenditure on the office of the Association as well as the office in England and to maintain the families of poor satyagrahis. I also informed him of Prof. Gokhale’s letter approving the expenditure and told him that, though Prof. Gokhale as well as Mr. Petit had left it to me to decide how the funds were disposed of, I had no intention of spending the money solely according to my discretion. I informed him that I consulted Mr. Cachalia and other satyagrahis in the management of the funds, that a separate account had been opened for the fund and that a statement of all the disbursements would be published at the end of the struggle; and that even now Prof. Gokhale was kept posted about how the money was spent.⁴ And the Moulvi Saheb expressed complete satisfaction.

About travelling third class, I told the Moulvi Saheb that I did not for the present advise other Indians to travel third, but so far as I myself was concerned I had decided to travel third for the following reasons:

1. The Transvaal Railway Regulations had come into force.
2. Money was being spent from the Satyagraha Fund.
3. I had become poor and so had other satyagrahis.
4. My present state of mind favoured such travelling.
5. I shuddered to read the account of the hardships that the Kaffirs had to suffer in the third-class carriages in the Cape and I wanted to experience the same hardships myself.
6. When I was arrested in Natal in connection with the Poll Tax, I thought I could serve [the community] better if I lived like a poor Indian.

¹ Vide “Letter to G. K Gokhale”, 23-7-1909
² Not available
³ Vide “Letter to G. K Gokhale”, 6-12-1909
⁴ Vide “Letter to G. K. Gokhale”, 25-4-1910
In spite of this explanation of mine, the Moulvi Saheb thought that it was a mistake on my part, similar to the one I had committed in giving finger-prints, to have begun to travel third. Upon this, I told him that I did not believe that I had committed a mistake in giving finger-prints and that I had taken the right step in travelling third. I, moreover, made it clear to him that I was not always going to travel third. I also argued that it would be very expensive if the large number of Indians who came forward to be arrested travelled first or second.

As regards Swami Shri Shankeranand’s views, I told him that I approved of what the Swami said at the Kathiawad Arya Mandal, viz., that those who wanted to stay together as equals should be equally strong. I also liked Swamiji’s statement that if, of a group of four comrades, three were armed, the fourth also must arm himself. But while saying this I told him that to me ‘arms’ meant satyagraha. I said to him that I considered the sword powerless before a satyagrahi. I also said that I was opposed to any person who tried to set one community against another. The Moulvi Saheb expressed his satisfaction at these views also and we parted.

When, therefore, I saw the ‘interview’ published by him, I felt sorry for the community. What I have given above is a bare summary of the ‘interview’. I have given a reply \(^1\) to the Moulvi Saheb’s questions particularly in connection with the money spent on Indian Opinion, a copy of which is enclosed herewith.

I am,

a servant of India,

MOHANDAS KARAMCHAND GANDHI

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 19-3-1910

---

\(^1\) Vide “Swamiji’s Speech in the Mercury”, 2-7-1910

\(^2\) Vide “Letter to Moulvi Ahmed Mukhtiar”, 11-3-1910
Johannesburg,
March 17, 1910

The Government have taken steps to arrest the Indians who came into the Transvaal with Mr. Gandhi on Sunday morning. Two were arrested on Monday, six on Tuesday, and two yesterday, and all are under order of deportation and are being taken to Pretoria to-day, from where they will be deported to Natal. All these men are either educated Indians or pre-war residents, and in spite of their right of domicile or of entry by reason of education, they will, if necessary, we understand, return to Natal when the struggle ends.

Mr. Gandhi told our representative this morning that the Indians had come to Johannesburg not to assert their personal rights, but to take part in the struggle. They will return and be re-arrested at Volksrust and imprisoned. The balance will be arrested in a few days. Mr. Gandhi said:

“I do not know why the Government do not arrest me. I freely admit that I am instrumental in bringing these men and introducing them into the Colony, and it has really been suggested that in bringing them into the Colony I am supposed to commit a breach of the Immigration Law in that I aid and abet prohibited immigrants to enter the Colony. Personally I do not consider these Indians to be prohibited immigrants at all. Our struggle principally consists in suffering, and by suffering bringing the desired relief. In Diepkloof prison there are 100 passive resisters, including Chinese, and about 36 are now awaiting deportation.”

The Star, 17-3-1910

1. A report of this appeared also in The Natal Mercury, 18-3-1910, and it was reproduced in Indian Opinion, 19-3-1910.
282. LETTER TO COLONIAL SECRETARY

[JOHANNESBURG, Before March 19, 1910]

My Association is informed that four Indians who were last week taken from Pretoria to Lourenco Marques prior to deportation to India were detained at the Lourenco Marques Prison; that each of the men had to pay 5/- to the Prison Authorities; and that the Authorities provided no food whatsoever, nor could the men obtain food if they offered to pay for it. My Association respectfully requests that you will kindly make immediate inquiry into the matter.

Indian Opinion, 19-3-1910.

283. LETTER TO POLICE COMMISSIONER

[JOHANNESBURG, Before March 19, 1910]

My Association is informed that, when Indian prisoners who are awaiting trial at the Fort are brought down to the Court for the hearing of their cases, no provision is made by the Government for their midday meal while there, and the men have thus to remain without food until 6 p.m. on these days, unless friends supply it from outside. My Association is further informed that the same thing has occurred in regard to men who have been taken to Pretoria prior to deportation, no lunch being provided on the journey.

My Association requests that you will kindly inquire into the matter and have the grievance remedied.

Indian Opinion, 19-3-1910

---

1 This letter, presumably drafted by Gandhiji, was sent over the signature of the Acting Chairman, British Indian Association.

2 This letter, presumably drafted by Gandhiji, was sent to the Commissioner of Police, Pretoria, over the signature of A. M. Cachalia, Chairman, British Indian Association.
284. MORE CRUSADERS

Mr. Gandhi took with him to the Transvaal last week\(^1\) quite a respectable number of crusaders. The list we publish in our columns is thoroughly cosmopolitan and representative of most of the important provinces of India. That many colonial-born Indians are coming forward to join the struggle is a healthy sign. Apart from the strength that these recruits give to the struggle, there is no doubt that they themselves benefit very greatly in that they receive true education in the school of suffering. The experience that the young Indians who have proceeded to the Transvaal are now gaining will stand them in good stead in after life. We congratulate the brave men who have deliberately gone to the Transvaal to court trouble. It was a fitting thing that a large and representative gathering of Indians saw them off at the Station\(^2\).

The Transvaal Government again disappointed the passive resisters. The Immigration Officer would not arrest them at the border. We take it as a splendid certificate of honesty for passive resisters. These men entered that Colony without giving names or signatures or finger-impressions. Their identification, therefore, consisted in their own good faith. The Government know that these resisters have no desire to serve their own ends and remain in the Colony but that they are quite ready to quit the Colony the moment the Indian demands are granted.

Yet this non-arrest at the border means a great deal of waste of money and energy to the Indian community. This is inevitable. The Transvaal Government intend to exhaust our resources. And we must be prepared to meet them. This can be done simply by going forward undaunted without caring for consequences. A passive resister must be satisfied with the right deed.

Indian Opinion, 19-3-1910

---

\(^1\) On 11-3-1910

\(^2\) The Durban Station
285. INDIAN VOTERS AT THE CAPE

A correspondent has asked us how the Indian voters should vote at the Union Parliament elections. It is not an easy matter to lay down any rule. But it is safe to say that the Indian question will not be made a party question even if the elections take place on party lines and there is no coalition Government. There will be men belonging to both the parties who would generally sympathise with us. We would, therefore, suggest that the candidates may be asked set questions, and those who answer them favourably may receive the Indian vote, irrespective of party. The Indian voters should also realise that abstention should be practised without fail if no candidate be found in any constituency who would favour the Indian cause. The questions to be asked may be on the working of the Cape Immigration Law, the required amendment of the Dealers’ [Licenses] Act, the Transvaal struggle, and the stoppage of indentured labour in Natal. The last two are now properly South African questions and should engage the attention of all the public men of South Africa.

Finally, we would suggest to the Indian voters at the Cape that they should have their own organisation which ought to be able to control the whole of the Indian vote and which should define its policy for the guidance of its members. The candidates will not listen to individual voters, but a body with the whole Indian vote behind it cannot but command attention.

Indian Opinion, 19-3-1910
286. LETTER TO BRITISH CONSUL

[JOHANNESBURG,]
March 19, 1910

SIR,

I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. 61/10/M of the 15th instant. My letter was based on the information contained in a Tamil letter received by a member of the Association here from one of the parties. My Association is very careful as to acceptance of statements made by complainants.

Whilst thanking you for the suggestion that future allegations should be received with the utmost caution, I venture to state that the reply made to you by the Administrator of the Municipality of Lourenco Marques can by no means be accepted as conclusive. Did the Administrator himself see the prisoners? Did anyone from the Consulate see them? Unless these obvious precautions were taken, it can hardly be said that the statements passed to my Association are “wholly inaccurate and devoid of all foundation”. If the inquiry was confined by the Administrator only to the officials in charge of complainants, it is clear that they would be interested in denying the statements, which might incriminate them or at least make them liable to remonstrance from their superiors.

Indian Opinion, 26-3-1910

1 This letter, presumably drafted by Gandhiji, was addressed to the British Consul, Lourenco Marques, by A. M. Cachalia, Chairman, British Indian Association, in reply to the former’s denial of the Lourenco Marques incident; vide “Letter to Colonial Secretary”, Before 19-3-1910

2 Vide “Letter to Colonial Secretary”, Before 19-3-1910
287. PREFACE TO “INDIAN HOME RULE” ¹

JOHANNESBURG,
March 20, 1910

It is not without hesitation that the translation of Hind Swaraj is submitted to the public. A European friend, with whom I discussed the contents, wanted to see a translation of it and, during our spare moments, I hurriedly dictated and he took it down. It is not a literal translation but it is a faithful rendering of the original. Several English friends have read it, and whilst opinions were being invited as to the advisability of publishing the work, news was received that the original was seized in India.² This information hastened the decision to publish the translation without a moment’s delay. My fellow-workers at the International Printing Press shared my view and, by working overtime—a labour of love,—they have enabled me to place the translation before the public in an unexpectedly short time. The work is being given to the public at what is practically cost price. But, without the financial assistance of the many Indians who promised to buy copies for themselves and for distribution, it might never have seen the light of day.

I am quite aware of the many imperfections in the original. The English rendering, besides sharing these, must naturally exaggerate them, owing to my inability to convey the exact meaning of the original. Some of the friends who have read the translation have objected that the subject-matter has been dealt with in the form of a dialogue. I have no answer to offer to this objection except that the Gujarati language readily lends itself to such treatment and that it is considered the best method of treating difficult subjects. Had I written for English readers in the first instance, the subject would have been handled in a different manner. Moreover, the dialogue, as it has been given, actually took place between several friends, mostly readers of Indian Opinion, and myself.

Whilst the views expressed in Hind Swaraj are held by me, I ¹This appeared Indian Opinion under the captions: The Publication of “Indian Home Rule”: English Translation of the Gujarati Work: Hind Swaraj: Proscribed by the Indian Government.

² Kallenbach, vide Mahadev Desai’s Preface to Hind Swaraj, 1938.
³ Vide “Our Publications”, 7-5-1910

VOL. 10 : 5 AUGUST, 1909 - 9 APRIL, 1910 457
have but endeavoured humbly to follow Tolstoy, Ruskin, Thoreau, Emerson and other writers, besides the masters of Indian philosophy. Tolstoy has been one of my teachers for a number of years. Those who want to see a corroboration of the views submitted in the following chapters will find it in the words of the above-named masters. For ready reference, some of the books are mentioned in the Appendices.¹

I do not know why Hind Swaraj has been seized in India. To me, the seizure constitutes further condemnation of the civilization represented by the British Government. There is in the book not a trace of approval of violence in any shape or form. The methods of the British Government are, undoubtedly, severely condemned. To do otherwise would be for me to be a traitor to Truth; to India, and to the Empire to which I own allegiance. My notion of loyalty does not involve acceptance of current rule or government, irrespective of its righteousness or otherwise. Such notion is based upon the belief—not in its present justice or morality but—in a future acceptance by Government of that standard of morality in practice which it at present vaguely and hypocritically believes in, in theory. But I must frankly confess that I am not so much concerned about the stability of the Empire as I am about that of the ancient civilization of India which, in my opinion, represents the best that the world has ever seen. The British Government in India constitutes a struggle between the Modern Civilisation, which is the Kingdom of Satan, and the Ancient Civilisation, which is the Kingdom of God. The one is the God of War, the other is the God of Love. My countrymen impute the evils of modern civilisation to the English people and, therefore, believe that the English people are bad, and not the civilisation they represent. My countrymen, therefore, believe that they should adopt modern civilisation and modern methods of violence to drive out the English. Hind Swaraj has been written in order to show that they are following a suicidal policy, and that, if they would but revert to their own glorious civilisation, either the English would adopt the latter and become Indianised or find their occupation in India gone.

It was at first intended to publish the translation as a part of Indian Opinion, but the seizure of the original rendered such a course inadvisable. Indian Opinion represents the Transvaal Passive Resistance struggle and ventilates the grievances of British Indians in

¹*Vide Appendix I to Hind Swaraj*
South Africa generally. It was, therefore, thought desirable not to publish through a representative organ views which are held by me personally and which may even be considered dangerous or disloyal. I am naturally anxious not to compromise a great struggle by any action of mine which has no connection with it. Had I not known that there was a danger of methods of violence becoming popular, even in South Africa, had I not been called upon by hundreds of my countrymen, and not a few English friends, to express my opinion on the Nationalist movement in India, I would even have refrained, for the sake of the struggle, from reducing my views to writing. But, occupying the position I do, it would have been cowardice on my part to postpone publication under the circumstances just referred to.

M. K. GANDHI

Indian Opinion, 2-4-1910

288. LETTER TO DIRECTOR OF PRISONS

[JOHANNESBURG,]
March 22, 1910

SIR,

I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your letter 1 of the 19th instant in reply to my letter 2 of the 23rd ultimo addressed to the Colonial Secretary, on the subject of the treatment of Mr. Parsee Rustomjee and other matters. I beg to thank you for the exhaustive information given to my Association.

As to Mr. Rustomjee’s letter 3 to the Press, he was seen leg-ironed by many Indians, and the matter was reported to my Association on the very day that he was seen in that condition.

As to the Medical Officer’s opinion, I venture to draw attention to the fact that the Medical Officer at Volksrust did prescribe a special diet for Mr. Rustomjee. That the language ascribed to the Medical Officer at Diepkloof by Mr. Rustomjee was used by him is beyond question, if a host of passive resisters discharged from Diepkloof are

1 This letter, presumably drafted by Gandhiji, was signed by A. M. Cachalia, Chairman, British Indian Association.
2 Reproduced in Indian Opinion, 26-3-1910
3 Vide “Letter to Colonial Secretary”, 23-2-1910
4 Vide Appendix II.
to be believed. Indeed, most of them have complained of unbecoming language used by that Officer.

It was only at a later period that special instructions were issued that Mr. Rustomjee might be allowed to take exercise. A certificate from the family physician of Mr. Rustomjee has been produced because it became necessary to challenge the opinion of the Prison Medical Officer; and I may state that Mr. Rustomjee is still far from well, and is undergoing treatment.

In my humble opinion, the question of the religious necessity of wearing a cap is one which Mr. Rustomjee is best able to decide. The gravamen of the complaint is, however, not that Mr. Rustomjee’s special cap was taken away, but that he was compelled to take it off whenever the Governor and other officers appeared, instead of being allowed to retain the cap, as was done in Volksrust and Houtpoort, where a salaam was accepted as an equivalent.

The loss of weight complained of by Mr. Rustomjee is not during the period of incarceration at Diepkloof alone, but includes the Volksrust gaol also. Mr. Rustomjee was undoubtedly grateful that his obesity was reduced, but reduction took place at very great risk to his general health.

My Association is deeply grateful for the fact that passive resisters are translated to Diepkloof in order that they may be left entirely together. But, if that be so, may I ask that the special provision as to the prisoners at Diepkloof receiving a visitor and being allowed to correspond only after three months may be withdrawn, and that they may be, as in other gaols which are not penal settlements, permitted to correspond every month, and to receive visitors also likewise?

As to the sanitary services of the prison, regard being had to the special prejudices of British Indians in this matter, before passive resistance commenced, Indian prisoners were exempted from sanitary service. It was only after their removal to Diepkloof that this hardship was imposed upon them, and, if it is not the intention of the Government to subject passive resisters to special harassment, the Committee of my Association would once more venture to ask that this requirement may be waived.

In his statement to the Governor of the Gaol at Johannesburg, Mr. Rustomjee undoubtedly expressed his thanks for the better treatment that was accorded to him at the Fort and the consideration that was invariably shown to him by the Governor himself.

Regarding Mr. Bawazeer, I notice that his complaint is practically admitted by the Government. In his case, the seriousness of the complaint lies in the fact that his disease was ignored and his complaint was pooh-poohed until after the discovery that he had a high temperature.

My Association has once more to report that the passive resisters at Diepkloof continue to send messages through discharged prisoners that they are insufficiently fed, and that the want of ghee is felt as an additional punishment.

My Association is glad that your Department recognise the mistake made about Mr. Joseph Royeppen and his fellow-prisoners having been made to walk bareheaded and barefooted and sent without any breakfast.

In conclusion, I venture to trust that the outstanding points regarding the supply of ghee, the sanitary service and correspondence by and visitors to passive resisters will receive the attention they deserve.

Indian Opinion, 26-3-1910

289. JOHANNESBURG

Wednesday [March 23, 1910]

WRANGLE OVER KRUGERSDORP LOCATION

The Committee on this Location has had its last meeting. Mr. Burger, former [Mining] Commissioner, gave evidence before it. Speaking with contempt and arrogance, he deposed that removal of Indians had already been decided upon before the War, and would have been carried out had the War not broken out in the meantime. Referring to Indians, he always used the word “coolie” in a most offensive manner. The gentleman stated that the Location for Indians was placed where it was because of intervention by the British Government. The Government then could not have done otherwise in view of the London Convention. If it had, the British Resident would have protested. Mr. Burger pointed out that, since these two difficulties no longer existed, the “coolies” must be removed immediately. He could not understand why for removing them an inquiry such as the present one was being held.
About the mosque, too, he was offensive and said that he did not remember what promise he had made when granting the site for it. He would, of course, not care to remember anything relating to “coolies”. He said further, replying to Mr. Seehoff, that if he had made any promise about not shifting the Location, it would have been in writing. The whole of this evidence is worth reading. Its gist is what I have given above. The Location is in immediate danger. Indians must have courage if they want to save it. If they refuse to move, they cannot easily be made to. The Location will be saved if there is unity among the Indians there; otherwise it is as good as lost.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 26-3-1910

290. LETTER TO T. STREENIVAS

JOHANNESBURG,

March 24, 1910

DEAR SIR,

You will pardon my not having written to you earlier in reply to your letter of the 20th January. The fact is that I have not been in Johannesburg. The Tamil Indians here are largely Pillays, Moodleys, Naidoos, Chettys and Padiachys. There are very few Tamil Brahmins. Some of them are Christians having been converted in South Africa, or are sons of Christian parents. These latter are largely sons of indentured Indians. The Christians are a small community, but from a material standpoint somewhat progressive. They have almost entirely adopted Western habits and customs. This, however, does not appear to have affected their love for the Motherland. I do not know whether the information I have given you is what you wanted. If you will kindly write to me further, I shall be pleased to reply to your communications. When the battle is won, as it is bound to be, I have no doubt that its end will have been hastened by the unexampled bravery and self-sacrifice shown by the Tamil portion of the community. When I first landed in South Africa, there was something in them which drew me to them, but I never dreamed that they were capable of the grand pluck and capacity for suffering for the national cause that they have shown.

I am,

Yours truly,

M. K. GANDHI

T. STREENIVAS, ESQ.
BARRISTER-AT-LAW
CRITIC OFFICE
KOMALESWARANPET
MOUNT ROAD, MADRAS

From a photostat of the typewritten original signed by Gandhiji: G.N. 3779

291. DEPORTATIONS

The deportations of Transvaal Indians that are going on must furnish painful reading to any lover of justice. These deportations, when they are to Natal, are not of any very great consequence, except for their future legal effect, which we do not propose to consider at present. But when passive resisters are deported to India, the deportations become a very serious matter. They are of men who have in several cases been voluntarily registered, whose credentials are well known to the Asiatic Department, and who have even served imprisonment already as passive resisters. They savour very much of the process of “hunting out every Asiatic”. Our Johannesburg correspondent has often drawn attention to the fact that some of the persons deported are born in South Africa and some of them leave their families behind them. Thanks to the magnificent response from the Motherland, these families are being supported out of the passive resistance fund. Had the timely help not arrived, what would have been the consequence? Starvation would certainly have stared them in the face.

At the risk of repeating what has been often stated in these columns, we may remind our readers that these far-reaching orders take place without any judicial trial. The cases are administratively tried under semi-secrecy. Against these administrative acts, there is no appeal to the Supreme Court. Thus, under a totally un-British procedure, the liberty of a subject is taken away with a stroke of the pen. What is lacking in the law has been supplied by the astute subtlety of an unscrupulous Department. Legally, these deportations can take place only as far as the Transvaal boundary. The Transvaal Government have, therefore, entered into an understanding with the Portuguese authorities (the neighbouring British Colonies would not or could not enter into such a nefarious contract), whereby passive resisters deported to the boundary of the Portuguese territories are taken up by the Portuguese Government and, without any trial, put on board a steamer going to India.

The question naturally arises: Assuming that the Imperial Government cannot interfere with the course of the law of a self-governing Colony that has received His Majesty’s sanction, why do the Imperial Government look with criminal indifference upon the smuggling away of British Indians domiciled in the Transvaal to India through Delagoa Bay? There is no legal justification for it. If, instead of a British Colony, it was a foreign state that had entered into such a compact with the Portuguese Government, it would be a breach of treaty and might even justify a declaration of war. Without the concurrence, then, of the Imperial Government, the Transvaal Government could not have carried out these Indian deportations. The Imperial Government are, therefore, party to the desolation of many an Indian home. The conclusion is irresistible that the Central Government has abdicated its primary function of protecting British subjects against British subjects. It is paralysed before the might of the Transvaal Government. It is unable to shield the weak from oppression by the strong. It exists to strengthen the tyranny of tyrants. This is a tragical conclusion; but it is inevitable.

Let the Imperialists of South Africa ponder well over the facts we have given above, and ask themselves whether the conclusion we have drawn is not warranted by them.

Indian Opinion, 26-3-1910

292. KIRUGERSDORP LOCATION COMMITTEE

The evidence of Mr. Burger given before the Location Committee is remarkable for its frankness, callousness and impertinence. We are unable to endorse the congratulations offered by the Committee to Mr. Burger for his so-called valuable evidence. Mr. Burger has forfeited all right to be treated as an unbiased witness owing to the statement made by him that he did not attach sufficient importance to “the coolies”, as he contemptuously termed the respectable Indian merchants who saw him before the war in his official capacity, to remember all that passed between him and them. Mr. Burger was, however, ingenuous enough to tell the Committee that the Republican Government could do nothing, as their action was hampered by the London Convention and the British Agent. But now, adds Mr. Burger, that the Government have a free hand, they should drive away “the coolies” without any fuss. The very Government that protected the Indians during the Republican regime and that insisted on Indian Bazaars abutting public roads, is now to be utilised to drive them to an inaccessible place where they cannot do any business at all.

One thing is clear from Mr. Burger’s evidence. A site for the mosque was granted by the Government with due deliberation. Mr. Burger is unable to swear that he did not promise the Indian deputation that waited on him that the Location might be treated as permanent.

Indian Opinion, 26-3-1910

293. DEPORTATION—ITS MEANING

A large number of Indians in South Africa are developing a spirit of patriotism. If they can render some service to the Motherland without any effort, they certainly want to do so; but they find themselves helpless before the claims of self-interest. There are very few Indians who pay sufficient attention to the manner in which the Transvaal campaign is proceeding at the moment. Being engrossed in their own affairs, they are ignorant of what atrocities are committed on their own brethren, and why. There are also some who think that, since most of those who go in for self-sacrifice are Tamils, no notice need be taken of them.

We draw the attention of such Indians to the following considerations. Those who find themselves in agreement with them are requested to bring them to the notice of other Indians.

For some time past, Indian satyagrahis are being deported to India. Several brave Tamils have been so deported. Some of them were born in South Africa. The families of some are left in the Transvaal without any means of support. It is impossible to say what would have happened to them, had no aid been received from India.

The Indians who are deported are not tried in a court of law, but only in private. There is no provision for appeal to the Supreme Court against an order so made. However, there is no great difficulty so long as men are deported only to Natal, for the Indians concerned can immediately return from Natal and go to gaol.

It is the practice of deporting to India that calls for urgent attention. The Transvaal Government has legal authority only to put a person across its own border. How, then, can it carry anyone to India? Not being in a position to achieve its mean object through a British colony, the Transvaal Government has entered into an arrangement with the Portuguese Government and executes its barbarous plan with its help. It is clear, however, that the Transvaal Government is not competent to enter into such an agreement. No such step can be taken without the consent of the Imperial Government. If any other State had entered into an agreement of this kind with the Portuguese authorities that might have led to war. This means that the Imperial Government is unable to prevent its own subjects from oppressing their fellow-subjects, that it is afraid of the Transvaal. This also implies that the authority of the Imperial Government is used to perpetuate the tyranny of the tyrant, is used to help the tyrant.

What should we do in such a situation? If Indians have any spirit in them, those who have capitulated out of timidity should rouse themselves again. We shall obtain no justice by going to courts of law. We must fight on, relying on our own strength. As the Transvaal Government’s repression grows, we must display correspondingly greater strength, endurance and firmness. We desire that a large number of Indians should join the struggle.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 26-3-1910

294. PARSEE RUSTOMJEE

The Transvaal Government has sent a long reply regarding Mr. Rustomjee; Mr. Cachalia has written again. The matter has [also] been raised in the House of Commons. All this is to the good. The officials stopped at nothing in their effort to break Mr. Rustomjee’s spirit.

---

2. Vide “Letter to Director of Prisons”, 22-3-1910
They are suffering the consequence now. However brave a face they may put on it in public, they appear to have received quite a severe reprimand over this affair.

In the same letter, the Government has referred to the complaint in regard to the Imam Saheb. It had to admit the justice of the complaint. The sufferings of these two will help the prisoners who follow. Such is the mysterious law of God. We must learn to submit to that law. Any man who puts himself to suffering will diminish the value of that suffering if he himself enjoys its fruits. For his self-sacrifice to be perfect, he must go on suffering as long as his breath holds out and he must leave the fruits of his suffering to be enjoyed by those who come after. We wish such goodness and such strength to Mr. Rustomjee and the Imam Saheb.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 26-3-1910

295. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

Johannesburg,

_Phagan Vadi 4, Samvat 1966_
_[March 29, 1910]_

Chi. Narandas,

I have received your letter.

I can appreciate your inability to come here without respected Khushalbhai’s permission. It is your duty to act according to his wishes.

You can assist the objectives of our struggle here even if you remain there. Now that [Hind] Swaraj has been proscribed, I see that a strenuous fight will have to be put up there too. To do that you must build your character. Do you know the fundamental principles of our religion? You will, perhaps, say that you are able to recite the whole of the Gita and also know its meaning and wonder why I am asking you about fundamental principles. Knowing the fundamentals, as I interpret it, means putting them into practice. The first attribute of the

---

1 Gandhiji’s cousin, addressee’s father; Gandhiji had asked the addressee to go to South Africa; vide “Letter to Narandas Gandhi”, 3-10-1909 divine heritage is ‘fearlessness’. I hope you remember that verse¹.
Have you attained to the state of ‘fearlessness’ to any extent? Will you do what is right fearlessly, even at the cost of your life? Practise fearlessness and try to attain that state till you succeed. You will be able to do a lot if you achieve that. In this context you should remember the lives of Prahlad², Sudhanva³, and others. Please do not think that all these are legends. There have been many Indians in the past who have done such deeds and that is why we memorize the stories of their lives. We should not think that Prahlad and Sudhanva, Harishchandra⁴ and Shravana⁵ do not exist in India even today. We shall meet them when we deserve. They are not to be found in the chawls of Bombay. You cannot expect a wheat crop from rocky soil. I shall not write more. Do ponder over the attributes of the divine heritage again. Read this letter bearing in mind those attributes and then try to act accordingly. Do read afresh the chapters on Satyagraha in [Hind] Swaraj and ponder over them. Do ask me any questions when you feel like doing so. You may live in Bombay but be quite sure that Bombay is a veritable hell, absolutely useless.

Blessings from
Mohandas

From the Gujarati original in Gandhiji’s hand: C.W. 4925Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi

¹ The Bhagavat Gita, xvi, 1-3 ² Son of demon-King Hiranyakashipu, he was a great devotee of Vishnu and came out unscathed from many ordeals.
⁴ King of Ayodhya who suffered great hardships and, while in the service of a chandala (out-caste), he was even ready to kill his wife Taramati for the sake of truth.
⁵ A devoted son, who carried his blind parents to various places of pilgrimage in baskets put in slings attached to the two ends of a pole. While fetching water from a river, he was killed by King Dasharatha, who mistook the sound of the water filling the pitcher for an elephant drinking.
296. LETTER TO GENERAL MANAGER, C. S. A. R.

[JOHANNESBURG,]
March 31, 1910

SIR,

The following incident has been reported to my Association by Mr. Ismail Adam of Pretoria, Merchant. He holds a first-class return-ticket from Park to Pretoria, which is numbered 9271. He was travelling last evening by the 8.10 p.m. train to Pretoria. He boarded the train, his ticket was clipped, and, as there was no room in the reserved compartment, he entered the next compartment, which was occupied by four Europeans, who did not object to Mr. Ismail Adam’s presence in the compartment. The conductor, however, seeing him in that compartment, asked him why he was there, to which Mr. Ismail Adam replied that he would gladly go to any other compartment if he could find a seat. The conductor then said that he would have to change. Mr. Ismail Adam, thinking that this meant change to another train, asked why. The conductor thereupon seems to have become angry, and told him that he would have to get down at Doornfontein, and there, whilst the train was in motion but had slowed down, he pulled Mr. Ismail Adam out of the train on to the platform.

In the opinion of my Association, this seems to be one of the worst cases that have been brought to its notice. My Association will be glad to be assured that you will be pleased to take prompt action in the matter. Mr. Ismail Adam’s address in Pretoria is 63, Queen Street.

Whilst my Association draws attention to this incident as a matter of public duty and in the interests of the community represented by it, there is no knowing whether Mr. Ismail Adam will not take independent steps. That the conductor should not mind even risking the lives of passengers in taking them down from a train in motion seems to show an extraordinary state of affairs.

Indian Opinion, 9-4-1910

---

1 This letter, presumably drafted by Gandhiji, was sent over the signature of the Chairman, British Indian Association.
297. WAR AGAINST COLOUR

The Johannesburg Municipality is being goaded into removing every Indian and Native employee, no matter how faithful his services may be and no matter what their length. That the Municipality or any other Department may not take a fresh supply of Coloured or Asiatic servants is a position against which not much can be said, but a summary dismissal of those who are already in its employ can do credit neither to the Municipality nor to those who force its hands. As the South African News very properly puts it:

Replace the black man at the bottom by the white, take away as suggested the farms farmed by Natives and give them to white occupiers. Do this and what is to happen to the replaced Natives? That will be a harder problem to settle than that of the poor whites, but so long as the Natives’ opportunities are not taken away from them, there need be no problem to solve. Segregate, repress or turn the Native into permanent unemployed and the madness known as sitting on the safety-valve will have begun.

There can be no doubt that a ruthless removal of Asiatic and more especially Native servants will only end in disaster, but it behoves British Indians and other Asiatics, as also the Natives, to learn the needful lesson from the present activity against Asiatic and Coloured races. The latter must not rely upon the white Colonists finding work for them or giving it to them. They will have to find independent means of earning a livelihood, and once a few leaders set themselves towards solving the problem, it will be found exceedingly easy.

Indian Opinion, 2-4-1910
298. DUTY OF NATAL INDIAN CONGRESS

From cable-reports from India, we learn that a Bill for prohibiting indentured labour has been passed in the Viceroy’s Legislative Council. The Viceroy has said that the law will be brought into effect only after full negotiations with the Government of Natal. This suggests that the Viceroy, left to himself, will not stop indentured labour if Indians remain inactive. If they do their duty, the system is bound to end; but we observe that some Indians think that the prohibition of indenture will be a disadvantage. Disadvantage to whom? If one thinks it is a disadvantage to those who offer themselves for indenture that they should be saved from slavery, there is no more to be said. Who else will stand to lose? As for free Indians, we think the immigration of indentured labourers is a great disadvantage to them. Those free Indians who live by their labour do not get employment, or, if they do, it is on a very low wage. Both the indentured labourers and other Indians are humiliated because the continued immigration of the former leads to increased resentment against us.

If indenture is prohibited, Indians can hope for an immediate improvement in their status. Once slavery has disappeared, it will be possible to get the laws about passes, etc., repealed, and there will be fewer attacks on traders. No doubt, even afterwards the struggle will have to be continued, but it can be continued with greater determination and better hope [of success]. When only free Indians are left in South Africa, the community will be in a position to do a great many things. Thus, from every point of view, the interests of Indians will be best served by the stopping of indenture.

It must be borne in mind that even if Indians were to give up the agitation for the prohibition of indentured labour, the Union Parliament will certainly prohibit it on its own. Indians would then look small and would lose the credit which they have a chance of earning today.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 2-4-1910
299. TERRIBLE CIVILIZATION OF THE WEST

An English journal called The New Age has published a cartoon on this subject, which we reproduce in this issue. It shows an army on the march. Behind, there is a grotesque figure, that of a general. On the body of this terrible form are hanging a gun emitting smoke in every direction and swords dripping with blood, and on its head a cannon. There is the drawing of a skull on a badge hanging on one side. On the arm, moreover, there is a cross. (This cross is the emblem of a batch which looks after the wounded.) In the mouth, held in the teeth, there is a dagger dripping with blood. On the shoulder is seen a belt studded with live cartridges. The drawing is entitled “March of Civilization”. No one who reads this description of the cartoon can help becoming grave. On reflection, we cannot help feeling that Western civilization is as cruel as, perhaps more cruel than, the terrible expression on the face of the man in the cartoon. The sight which fills one with the utmost indignation is that of the cross in the midst of weapons dripping with blood. Here the hypocrisy of the new civilization reaches its climax. In former times, too, there used to be bloody wars, but they were free from the hypocrisy of modern civilization. While drawing our readers, attention to this cartoon, we want to give them at the same time a glimpse of the divine light of satyagraha. On one side, look at the picture of civilization drawn above, a civilization grown as terrible as a wolf through its hunger for wealth and its greedy pursuit of worldly pleasures. On the other, look at the figure of a satyagrahi who, out of his loyalty to truth, to his nature as a spiritual being and out of a desire to obey God’s command, submits to the suffering inflicted by wicked men, with fortitude in his breast, with a smile on his face and without a single tear in his eyes. Of the two pictures, towards which will the reader feel attracted? We are sure it is the vision of the satyagrahi which will touch the heart of mankind, and that the effect will grow deeper as his sufferings increase. Is there anyone who, looking at this cartoon alone, does not feel in his heart that satyagraha is the only way in which mankind can attain freedom and strength? We admit, of course, that to be shot dead or hanged when trying to shoot another does test one’s fortitude; but dying in the attempt to kill another does not require even a hundredth part of the fortitude and courage implicit in the suffering that a satyagrahi goes through, in the slow, prolonged torture that he calmly endures in facing a bullet without firing one in return. No one wields a sword strong enough to bear down the force of satyagraha; on the contrary, a man brandishing a sword of steel has to give ground when confronted by a sword sharper than his. That is the reason why the story of a satyagrahi is read with a feeling of reverence. One who is not strong enough to practise satyagraha is naturally tempted to resort to brute force, which is, in comparison, quite easy to employ. There are some desperate Indians who, in their mad obsession with swaraj for India, seem to imagine that satyagraha is bound to be followed by resort to brute force—that is, that satyagraha is but one step in the effort to key oneself up to the fanaticism of violence. It would not be wrong to compare persons holding such views to the frog in the well who sought to conceive the ocean [as a big, big well]. The truth of the matter is that the man who cannot cultivate to its utmost limit the capacity for endurance required in satyagraha turns in his impatience to brute force and, growing desperate, takes a blind leap in an effort to end his suffering quickly. Such a man has never been a satyagrahi. He does not want to understand what satyagraha means.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 2-4-1910

300. LETTER TO MAGANLAL GANDHI

Phagan Vadi 7 [Samvat 1966]

[April 2, 1910]

CHI. MAGANLAL,

Your letter to hand. I return it to you so that you can understand my reply to it.

I shall try to answer the questions you have raised. But even then you may not understand thoroughly. You will perhaps find the explanations you have sought from [Hind] Swaraj itself if you read it afresh once or twice.

There is no doubt that we shall have to go back to the extent to which we have imbibed [modern] civilization. This part of the task is the most difficult one, but it will have to be done. When we take a wrong path there is no alternative but to go back. We have got to free ourselves from attachment to the things we are enjoying. For this it is necessary that we begin to feel disgust for them. Whatever means and instruments appear to us to be beneficial are not going to be given up. Only he who realizes that there is more harm than the apparent benefit from a particular thing will give it up. I personally feel that no benefit has been derived from our being able to send letters quickly. When we give up railways and such other means we shall not bother ourselves about writing letters. A thing which is really free from fault may be used to a certain extent. We who are engulfed in this civilization may avail ourselves of postal and other facilities as long as we are so engulfed. If we make use of these things with knowledge and understanding we shall not go crazy over them, and instead of increasing our preoccupations we shall gradually reduce them. He who will understand this will not be tempted to take the post or the railway to the villages which do not have these. You and I should not remain passive and increase the use of steamers and other evil means for fear that these things cannot be abolished forthwith and that all the people will not give them up. Even if one man reduces or stops their use, others will learn to do so. He who believes that it is good to do so will go on doing so irrespective of others. This is the only way of spreading the truth; there is no other in the world.

It is very difficult to get rid of our fondness for Parliament. It was no doubt barbarous when people tore off the skin, burned persons alive and cut off their ears or nose; but the tyranny of Parliament is much greater than that of Chengiz Khan, Tamerlane and others. Hence it is that we are caught in its meshes. Modern tyranny is a trap of temptation and therefore does greater mischief. One can withstand the atrocities committed by one individual as such; but it is difficult to cope with the tyranny perpetrated upon a people in the name of the people. It seems to have happened in the past that some rulers were like King Foolishman while others turned out to be wise. Had Edward alone been our ruler it would not have been so objectionable; but every Englishman is ruling over you and me. Please ponder over the meaning of this statement. I do not refer here to people’s fondness for this world. The common man in India at least believes that the Parliament is a hoax. Even an extraordinarily intelligent man, caught in the meshes of this civilization, loses his sanity in Parliament.

By saying that mercy cannot have any effect on the Pindaris you have denied the very existence of the soul or its attribute. Lord Patanjali\(^1\) has emphasized the greatness of mercy, etc., in such a way that we feel delighted even while thinking of those virtues. The real fact is that fear has taken deep root in us and consequently truth, mercy and such other virtues do not develop. And then we think that mercy has no effect on cruel people. If we show mercy to the person who shows mercy to us it is no mercy; it is only the return for mercy.

We should be considered weak if someone protects us free of charge or even if we pay him for doing so. If we have to seek outside help to be free from the menace of the Pindaris, etc., we are unfit for swaraj. If we would subdue them with physical force, we shall have to develop that force in ourselves. We shall not then have to pay blackmail or tribute. A woman seeks her husband’s protection as a matter of right; but she is considered an abala (weak) after all.

Swaraj is for those who understand it. You and I can enjoy it even today. All the others will have to learn to do likewise. What is secured for us by others is not swaraj but pararaj, i.e., foreign rule, whether they be Indians or Englishmen.

In calling the cow-protection societies cow-killing societies, I have but stated the truth; for their object is to rescue the cow or protect her by bringing pressure on Mussalmans.

To rescue the cow by paying money is no protection of the cow; it is a way to teach the butcher to be deceitful. If we try to coerce the Mussalmans they will slaughter more cows. But if we persuade them or offer satyagraha against them they will protect her. No cow-protection society is necessary for doing this. That body should be for teaching Hinduism to the Hindus. It is better to kill an ox by a single blow of the sword than to kill it by starving it, by pricking it, by over-working it and thus torturing it.

It would be very confusing to take the examples of Shri Ramachandra and others literally. I have never imagined the possibility of a Ravana in the physical form of a man with ten heads and twenty arms. But to imagine that he was a huge passionate senseless animal and that he was killed by Shri Ramachandra representing the divine essence may appeal to the intellect. Tulsidasji\(^2\)

---

\(^1\) The sage who systematized the Yoga darshana (philosophy)

\(^2\) The great Hindi poet-saint, author of Ramcharitamanasa, a Hindi version of the Ramayana has described Ramachandraji as the forces of the Sun who is the destroyer of pride, infatuation, and the darkness of the night of excessive attachment. Do you think we shall have the least desire left in us to destroy anybody when we are rid of all pride, infatuation and attachment? If you say ‘no’, how could Ramachandraji who was free from pride, infatuation and attachment and who was an ocean of mercy destroy Ravana? However, let us first attain his stage, like Lakshmana\(^1\) give up sleep and observe brahmacharya for fourteen years and then see where physical force could be used.

I want to say that everything is achieved by humility\(^2\). The example you gave of the Transvaal is quite appropriate. It is not enough merely to profess orally to have the above sentiment; it should stand the test when the occasion comes. Think of the numberless adversities Harishchandra had to face before his [devotion to] truth was proved. Think of the suffering Sudhanva had to undergo before his bhakti (devotion) was proved to be genuine. We may not consider these as mere legends. It may be that the names and forms were different; but they who have composed these stories have given their own experiences through them. Even in the Transvaal the babblings of persons like me are being put to the test. Also bear in mind that many who were regarded as satyagrahis have proved to be insincere demagogues. Who, then, should be regarded as true satyagrahis? Of course, they who possess virtues like compassion, etc. Nowhere has it been said that suffering may not have to be undergone. And what does suffering after all mean? It is the mind, says the Gita, which is the cause of our bondage as well as of our freedom.\(^3\) Sudhanva was thrown into boiling oil. The person who got him thrown into it thought that he was inflicting suffering on Sudhanva; but for the latter it was a grand opportunity to show the intensity of his devotion.

It will never happen that all are equally rich or equally poor at the same time. But if we consider the good and evil aspects [of the various professions] it seems that the world is sustained by farmers. Farmers are of course poor. If a lawyer would boast of his altruism or spirituality, let him earn his livelihood through physical labour and carry on his legal practice without charging anything for it. You will not easily realize that the lawyer is lazy. Just as a sensuous man, even when exhausted by indulging in passions, remains engrossed in sensual pleasures, so a lawyer, even when he is exhausted, goes on straining his nerves to the breaking point in his practice in the hope of getting wealth and attaining to greatness and later on passing a life of luxury and comfort. This is his objective. I am conscious that there is a little exaggeration in this; but, what I have said above is true for the most part.

\(^1\) Brother of Shri Ramachandra; he accompanied him to the forest.

\(^2\) Literally, bowing at the feet

\(^3\) यदि एक मनुष्य कार्य अनूठा हो: This sentence, though generally attributed to the Gita, is from the Brahmabindu Upanished.

What service will an army of doctors render to the country? What great things are they going to achieve by dissecting dead bodies, by killing animals, and by cramming worthless dicta for five or seven years? What will the country gain by the ability to cure physical diseases? That will simply increase our attachment to the body. We can formulate a plan for preventing the growth of disease even without the knowledge of medical science. This does not mean that there should be no doctors or physicians at all. They will always be with us. The point is that many a young man who gives an undue importance to this profession and wastes hundreds of rupees and several years qualifying for it, ought not to do so. We must know that we are not, nor are we going to be, benefited in the least by allopathic doctors.

I hope I have replied to all your questions. Please do not carry unnecessarily on your head the burden of emancipating India. Emancipate your own self. Even that burden is very great. Apply everything to yourself. Nobility of soul consists in realizing that you are yourself India. In your emancipation is the emancipation of India. All else is make-believe. If you feel interested, do persevere. You and I need not worry about others. If we bother about others, we shall forget our own task and lose everything. Please ponder over this from the point of view of altruism, not of selfishness. If you want to ask anything more, please do.

Blessings from

MOHANDAS

From the Gujarati Gandhiji-ni Sadhana by Raojibhai Patel, and Mahatma Gandhiji-na Patro, edited by Dahyabhai Patel
301. FROM “TRANSVAAL NOTES”

Monday [April 4, 1910]

Messrs David Solomon, Moonsamy Chellan, Moonsamy Paul, John Edward, Dhobi Samy and Chillia have now been deported. On the 2nd instant were arrested Messrs Govindsamy N. Pillay, Kanabathe N. Pillay, Ellary Moonsamy, Maduray Muthoo, John Lazarus, Moonsamy, Chinasamy and Govindsamy. Of these, two are youngsters, and they were all engaged at a European cigar factory. These are very typical cases; Mr. David Solomon and his three companions were serving as waiters at the Trocadero. So that, literally, bread had been taken out of their mouths. Most of these men are voluntarily registered, but the fact is that the Government intend to crush the Tamil community, and so they are hunting them out from every nook and corner, and these men, instead of being immediately sentenced, are driven from pillar to post, undergo all kinds of administrative inquiry, and then, if the Government can possibly arrange it, they are deported to India.

 Whilst on this question of deportation, I have just heard that steamer after steamer refuses to take these deportees. I trust that the information is true. The remedy certainly lies with the shippers in India. If they would make it known to the different steamship companies that, if they become party to the nefarious design of the Transvaal Government, they will not receive Indian patronage, they will certainly decline to take these unlawfully deported Indians.

Indian Opinion, 9-4-1910

302. JOHANNESBURG

Monday [April 4, 1910]

OTHER ARRESTS

Dhobi Samy and Mr. Chillia were arrested along with Mr. David Solomon, Mr. Moonsamy Chellan, Mr. Moonsamy Paul and Mr. John Edward. All of them have been ordered to be deported.

Besides these, on Saturday, April 2, were arrested Messrs

\[^1\] Vide “Johannesburg”, 11-4-1910
Govindsamy Naran Pillay, Kanabathe Naran Pillay, Ellary Moonsamy, Madurai Muthoo, Moonsamy, K. Chinasamy and Govindsamy. Two of them are just youngsters. They were all employed in a cigar factory owned by a white.

From what I have heard, it appears that all these persons were arrested at the instance of an Indian. They were, of course, ready for arrest. But it is surprising how any Indian could have the courage to contrive their arrest. It would have been a different matter if, with their knowledge and consent, the arrests had been contrived in order to put life into the movement. As it is, their arrests were the result of a personal grudge. Of course, the movement has stood to gain by the action of those Indians.

These are very remarkable cases. Most of them had taken out voluntary registers, which they subsequently burned. Four of them were serving as waiters at the Trocadero. They have let go their jobs. The last seven had been long employed in a cigar factory. They, too, let go their jobs. Some of them used to earn as much as eight to ten pounds a month. Such self-sacrifice is rare to come across. It should be noted that all of them are Tamils, and that they show no sign of nervousness when they are taken away. Some of them have mothers, and some children. With such brave Indians among us, the fight can have only one issue. This sacrifice of the Tamil community will surely find a place in, history the world over.

I very much wish that other Indian communities make at least a fraction of such sacrifice.

HARASSMENT ON RAILWAYS

Mr. Ismail Adam is a Pretoria merchant. He was travelling in a first-class compartment from Park to Pretoria. He was made to get down while the train was in motion. Mr. Cachalia has addressed a letter to the Manager in connection with this incident. Below is a translation:

The General Manager has stated in reply that an immediate inquiry will be held. Railway officials have already called on Mr. Ismail Adam. I gather that the latter intends taking steps on his own also.

---

1 Vide “Letter to General Manager, C.S.A.R.”, 31-3-1910
They were discharged on Friday. Mr. Fakira is one of the few Gujaratis who have remained staunch satyagrahis. He has served six or seven terms of imprisonment, taking no thought of himself. Mr. Cachalia went [to the prison] to receive him and Mr. Naicker. Mr. Fakira reports that all satyagrahis are cheerful.

On Sunday, Mr. Kallenbach went to Diepkloof to visit [the prisoners]. He saw Mr. Sorabji, whom he found in good health. Mr. Sorabji has sent the message that the satyagrahis are maintaining an unflinching spirit. Mr. Kallenbach spent nearly an hour with him.

There was a letter from Mr. Chokalingam Pillay from Delagoa Bay, saying that eighteen Indians had not been put on ship till the moment of writing. He adds that there has been a change for the better in their diet, thanks to his agitation.

The practice of satyagraha by the Indian community has made it quite fashionable. A stringent law has been passed in the Orange River Colony, compelling British children to learn Dutch. The Director of Education there has resigned in protest against the law. The British have taken the thing very much to heart. A member of the Colony’s Parliament advises the British not to submit to that law or recognize it in any manner whatsoever. A controversy is going on over the issue, which is being fanned by the newspapers here.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 9-4-1910

\[1\] In fact, on the 2nd which was a Saturday; vide “Transvaal Notes”, Indian Opinion, 9-4-1910.
Johannesburg,
Transvaal,
South Africa,
April 4, 1910

Dear Sir,

You will recollect my having carried on correspondence with you whilst I was temporarily in London. As a humble follower of yours, I send you herewith a booklet which I have written. It is my own translation of a Gujarati writing. Curiously enough, the original writing has been confiscated by the Government of India. I, therefore, hastened the above publication of the translation. I am most anxious not to worry you, but, if your health permits it and if you can find the time to go through the booklet, needless to say I shall value very highly your criticism of the writing. I am sending also a few copies of your Letter to a Hindoo, which you authorised me to publish. It has been translated in one of the Indian languages also.

I am,
Your obedient servant,
M. K. Gandhi

Count Leo Tolstoy
Yasnaya Polyana
Russia

From a block of the typewritten original signed by Gandhiji published in Mahatma, Vol. I, by D. G. Tendulkar

---

1 For Tolstoy’s reply, vide Appendix III.
3 Hind Swaraj or Indian Home Rule
4 Gandhiji’s Gujarati rendering of the letter appeared in Indian Opinion, 25-12-1909 and 1-1-1910. It was also issued as a booklet.
304. LETTER TO DIRECTOR OF PRISONS

[JOHANNESBURG.]
April 4, 1910

I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. 1459/10 of the 1st instant regarding the treatment of passive resistance prisoners. My Association has no desire to ask for passive resisters any other treatment than that to which their classification entitles them; but the complaint of my Association is that, if the Government do not wish to impose additional hardships on these prisoners, they may not be sent to a penal settlement, where, my Association imagines, hardened criminals are sent, and where they are deprived of facilities allowed in all other prisons.

With reference to the restoration of ghee to the diet-scale, my Association does not ask for it in connection with passive resistance prisoners only, but regarding all Indian prisoners, because the deprivation places them in a position more unfortunate than that of the Natives, who are allowed one ounce of fat per day.

Indian Opinion, 9-4-1910

305. LETTER TO UMIASHANKAR MEHTA

Phagan Vad 11, 1966 [April 6, 1910]

CHI. UMIASHANKAR,

It is well that you wrote to me. But I had never meant that you should not voice any criticism of Phoenix. You have got to see and point out any real shortcoming. We do not wish to conceal faults. Now I am investigating into the matter you have mentioned.

Chi Jayashankar² has done a wise thing if he has abandoned the idea of a second marriage. I had spoken emphatically.

How is business there? Have you been able to sell some of the clothes you had taken?

---

¹ This letter, presumably drafted by Gandhiji, was signed by A. M. Cachalia, Chairman, British Indian Association.
² This was in reply to “Letter to Director of Prisons”, 22-3-1910, and was reproduced in Indian Opinion, 9-4-1910.
³ Addressee’s brother
How is your health?

Blessings from

MOHANDAS

From a copy of the Gujarati: C.W. 1630. Courtesy: Gunawant Umiashankar

306. LETTER TO THE PRESS

April 8, 1910

SIR,

I have read the report of the unfortunate Indian disturbance that took place yesterday. It is entirely an error to suppose that it has anything to do with the passive resistance struggle that is going on. The fight took place among the members of a particular clan which is known for its martial spirit. The members had mutual quarrels among themselves, into which I need not go, and they thought that they would settle their differences by duelling. It is remarkable that, although the police, according to the reports, knew that the fight was about to take place, they were unable to take sufficient precautions to prevent it.

Indian Opinion, 16-4-1910

307. NEVER MIND

The letter from the great Tolstoy which was published in this journal was reproduced in Gujarat of Nadiad. A notice under the new Press law has been served on the journal, that it is to be prosecuted for this. Our readers probably remember the letter from Tolstoy. To all who have not read it, our advice is that they read it immediately. It is not a little surprising that, though it does not contain a single sentence which can promote violence, the person who reproduced it is being prosecuted. This betrays sheer madness on the part of the officers.

1 This letter, presumably drafted by Gandhiji, was sent over the signature of A. M. Cachalia, Chairman, British Indian Association.

2 This refers to a row between two hostile camps of the Kanamias; vide “Johannesburg”, 11-4-1910

4 A town in Gujarat
They are in a panic and in that state of mind they are not able to judge what is permissible and what is not. Our only regret is that, though ours is the primary responsibility for publishing this letter, nothing is done to us and it is the editor of Gujarat who is in danger. We hope that the editor and the manager of Gujarat will do their duty fearlessly and not retrace a single step.

India is being severely tested now. For the repressive laws that have been passed and the suppression of writings, the primary responsibility lies with the terrorists but the matter does not rest there. Indiscriminate suppression of newspapers by the Government will not ensure peace. We think this kind of suppression will not lead to peace but will on the contrary increase the unrest. Those who have no bitterness in their minds will also be embittered now.

In fact, Tolstoy’s letter was intended to calm the people’s minds, to make them see their own faults instead of others. True, the letter gave a vivid account of the harm done by British rule. That thought cannot be erased by suppressing writings. The people’s eyes have opened and will not close again.

In this connection, we want to address a few words to our readers. We think they ought not to remain quiet. We certainly will not. It is not possible for us to look on helplessly when someone has come into trouble for reproducing what was published by us. But a newspaper does not mean only its editor and management; the vast majority of those connected with it are its readers. Will our readers be intimidated by these developments or will they do their duty? That is what remains to be seen. Everyone who reads an issue should try to get someone else to read it. The chief object of a newspaper is to ensure the propagation of the views expressed and to see that they are acted upon. This cannot be done without the co-operation of its readers.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 9-4-1910
APPENDIX I

LORD AMPTHILL’S INTRODUCTION TO “M. K. GANDHI: AN INDIAN PATRIOT IN SOUTH AFRICA”

The writer of this book is not known to me personally, but there is a bond of sympathy between him and me in the sentiments which we share in regard to the cause of which he is so courageous and devoted an advocate.

I commend his book to all who are willing to take my word that it is worth reading. I respectfully suggest that others who attach no value to my opinion would do well to avail themselves of the information afforded by this book in regard to the question of which few, unfortunately, in this country have any knowledge, but which is nevertheless an Imperial question of the highest importance.

Mr. Doke does not pretend to give more than a short biography and character sketch of Mr. Mohandas Karamchand Gandhi, the leader of the Indian community in the Transvaal, but the importance of the book is due to the facts that men and matters are inseparably connected in all human affairs, and that the proper comprehension of political affairs in particular ever depends on a knowledge of the character and motives of those who direct them.

Although I am not in a position to criticise I do not doubt that in these pages the facts are accurately recorded, and I have sufficient reason to believe that the appreciation is just.

The subject of the sketch, Mr. Gandhi, has been denounced in this country, even by responsible persons, as an ordinary agitator; his acts have been misrepresented as mere vulgar defiance of the law; there have not even been wanting suggestion that his motives are those of self-interest and pecuniary profit.

A perusal of these pages ought to dispel any such notions from the mind of any fair man who has been misled into entertaining them. And with a better knowledge of the man there must come a better knowledge of the matter.

The Indian community in the Transvaal are struggling for the maintenance of a right and the removal of a degradation. Can we as Englishmen find fault with them for that? The only method of protest, except that of violence and disorder, which is open to them, who have neither votes nor representation, is that of passive resistance. Can we find fault with for that? They are not selfishly resisting a tax or insidiously striving for new political privileges; they are merely trying to regain that which has been taken from them—the honour of their community. Let him who blames them say what he would do in similar circumstances. Is there one of us who, out of respect for the law, would submit meekly and without protest to deprivation of rights and social degradation?

The Colonial Government can remove both grievances without sacrificing an ounce of principle or losing a grain of dignity. Will the Colonial Government do so for the sake of the Empire at this moment of reconciliation, union, and new hope for the future? That is the question to which we are anxiously expecting an answer at the present moment—the question whether or not the Indians, who have their homes in the Transvaal and who have assisted as a community in the development of South Africa, who are British citizens and subjects of His Majesty the King, are to have any lot or share in the general rejoicing over the Union of South Africa.

The Colonial Government has but to repeal an Act, which has served its purpose, which is now useless and unworkable, and which they themselves declare to be a dead letter, and to make slight amendment of another Act, so as to remove the explicit racial distinction imposed by these laws and in practice admit a maximum of six Indians annually to the Colony, on the old principle of right, and the question would be settled. The Indians would then have no further reason for persisting in a struggle which for them means suffering and ruin while for the Colony it means a scandal and disgrace. This does not imply that they have no further grievances. They would still labour under the disabilities imposed by the late Transvaal Republic—the incapacity to acquire the franchise and to own land, and the liability to segregation in Locations.

It is not realised in this country that in the Transvaal, during the past three years, Indians have for the first time been deprived of a right which they have enjoyed, at any rate in theory, and still enjoy in every other part of the Empire, viz., the legal right of migration on the same terms as other civilized subjects of His Majesty. That is the simple but startling fact, and if this were understood, as it ought to be understood, surely there would be protest from men of all parties in both Houses of Parliament who have so solemnly expressed their disapproval and regret at the establishment of a “colour bar” under the new Constitution for South Africa. Undoubtedly this disfranchisement, under a Liberal administration, of men on account of their colour, this deprivation of an elementary right of British citizenship on racial grounds, constitutes a reactionary step in Imperial Government almost without parallel, and perhaps there never has been so great or momentous a departure from the principles on which the Empire has been built up and by which we have been wont to justify its existence; the principles of that true Liberalism which has hitherto belonged to Englishmen of all parties. But the violation of the political ethics of our race is even greater in the case of the “colour bar” which has been established in the Transvaal than in that of the new South African Constitution. If the Houses of Parliament and the Press cannot see this and do not think it worth while to take account of so momentous a reaction, it would seem that our genius for the government of an Empire has commenced its decline.

What is to be the result in India if it should finally be proved that we cannot protect British subjects under the British Flag, and that we are powerless to abide by the pledges of our Sovereign and our statesmen? Those who know about India will have no doubt as to the consequences. And what if India—irritated, mortified and humiliated—should become an unwilling and refractory partner in the great Imperial concern? Surely it would be the beginning of the end of the Empire.

These, briefly, are the reasons why this question of “the British Indians in the Transvaal” is a great Imperial question and not one of mere internal administration of a self-governing Colony in which the Mother Country has neither right nor reason to interfere.

It is a matter which touches the honour of our race and affects the unity of the Empire as a whole; it therefore concerns every part of the Empire. Moreover, it is certain that any departure from principle, which may be sanctioned or ignored at the heart of the Empire, will operate as a mischievous example to other places inside and out, and then only by some rude shock to the whole system will the arrest of moral decay be possible.

The matter therefore concerns all who would “think Imperially”, and it needs more “clear thinking” than it has hitherto received.

The question must be decided, not by methods of temporary expediency in which practice ignores theory, but on the fundamental principles of the ethics of our race. Theory can be modified in practice to suit the exigencies of time and place, but if theory is cast to the winds, there is no means of steering practice.

There is still hope that the danger may be realised and averted, for as I write I hear that negotiations for a settlement of the British Indian question in the Transvaal are still proceeding. I have no more earnest hope than that Mr. Gandhi and his fellow countrymen may see the accomplishment of that end, for which they have struggled so bravely and sacrificed so much, before this book is published.

MILTON ERNEST HALL, BEDFORD,
26th August, 1909

M. K. Gandhi : An Indian Patriot in South Africa

APPENDIX II

STATEMENT MADE ON BEHALF OF NATAL DELEGATES

August 12, 1909

I and my co-delegates have to thank Your Lordship for receiving us here today. The reason why we have come is to lay before you some of the very serious grievances we labour under in the Colony of Natal.

A statement which has been sent to you deals slightly with three of the most important cases, which have been referred to in the statement.

The British Indian population of Natal is a very large one—more than that of the other Colonies combined together; the vested rights and interests are also very large. As regards the grievance of the Licensing Act of 1897, the manner in which the Licensing Officers have been using their discretion in refusing British Indian licenses has caused great consternation amongst our mercantile community. It is therefore a matter of life and death to us, as we do not know who will be the next unfortunate trader to be deprived of his license, no matter how long he may have been established. This spells, practically, ruination, some of the most glaring instances of which have been stated in the statement.

Mr. Chamberlain, who was then the Colonial Secretary, had to enter a very strong protest against its very one-sided administration. This protest has also been slightly cited in the statement. This attitude has been followed by all his successors at the Colonial Office. The reasons given for refusal of some of the British Indian licenses by the Licensing Officers were (1) “to satisfy the popular feeling”—i.e., the European trade rivals (for whose sake our long-acquired interests are sacrificed); and (2) on account of extreme prejudice, which would not hold good in courts of equity.

Some of the European traders complain of us competing unfairly in business, which is not only incorrect, but in all civilised countries competition is considered as very healthy. Considerable misunderstanding exists upon the question of how we live and feed. Our business premises are open to inspection, and compare favourably with premises of the Europeans.

We are burdened with such restricting laws that our fate hangs practically on a balance, especially those who possess vested interests in the Colony.

The British Indian merchants buy land, erect business premises thereon, pay rates and taxes, custom dues, etc. The small shopkeepers purchase their stock from local European merchants.

The refusal to transfer British Indian licenses to other of the same standing is very unjust. Not only are Licensing Officers satisfied so far, but they go even further and refuse transfers between relatives and even sons or partners.

Natal is our adopted country, and many of us have children who have never seen India. We feel very much for their future because our own is not safeguarded, although in the past we have helped to push forward the trade of the Colony.

I may mention we are not laying great stress on the political franchise, although we have it in India in a different manner. For instance, your humble speaker was a Municipal Councillor in India, and was also a member of the local board, chairman of the school board, and was also elected to vote for the election of a member to the Legislative Council, Government of Bombay, on behalf of the Municipality.

Our interest in public concerns has been evidenced on numerous occasions. We furnished Stretcher-Bearer Corps during the Boer War and during the latest Native rebellions. Moreover, when necessary, we have been ready to help financially or otherwise with any public work. During the late Boer War a relief fund was opened by several Municipalities, advantage of which was taken by large numbers of whites, even non-British subjects. All the Indian refugees were kept by our community. In Maritzburg, Mr. Amod Bayat, one of my co-delegates, and a few others upkept them... and also helped others, while in Durban we never requested any help from the relief fund, which was publicly praised by the then Mayor of Durban, Mr. Nicol, C.M.G.

In spite of all protests made by the Colonial Office and the request for fair treatment made by us, no redress has yet been granted.

It is not our profession to agitate, as we are born traders, and what we only ask for is justice, which if denied now, it will be difficult for us what to say to the people.

We are a recognised loyal and law-abiding people, and we wish for an amendment in the Dealers’ Licenses Act, No. 18 of 1897, for which the community will be grateful to Your Lordship.

With reference to the Indentured Immigration Act, 1895, before the introduction of Indian labour Natal was in a state of bankruptcy, but after their arrival things began to prosper and the country was placed on a sound financial basis. The chief and nearly all the industries of the Colony rely on this kind of labour for their very existence. A reference thereto has been made in the statement. After the expiration of the indenture, and after having given the best part of their lives to the welfare of the Colony, they are allowed to settle there, on the annual payment of £3, irrespective of sex and age. The age limit for boys and girls is 14. The treatment meted to them is in some cases horrible, as the case which occurred of Armitage, who cut out a portion of his Indian’s ear and openly admitted doing so in the courts of law.

What we wish done in this connection has been mentioned in the statement.

The education of Indian children has been ridiculously restricted recently by the Natal Government. No child can now attend any Government School who has completed the age of 13. This is a deliberate way in which education—which is sorely needed for the benefit of both the country and the community—is hampered. It is our duty, therefore, to protest against such curtailing of education.

The Immigration Restriction Act is also one of the injustices. No father, mother, brother, or sister of Indian birth can join a person who may have established himself, and even children of over certain age limit cannot join their parents who can upkeep them, and their presence cannot but be considered as beneficial.

There are many more injustices, but we have related a few only of the most heartrending cases. I and my co-delegates again thank Your Lordship for giving us this patient interview and a patient hearing.

Your Lordship is doubtless aware of the pressing circumstances under which we are labouring in Natal, and humbly hope that you will be kind enough to give us a message to convey to our people.

After the introduction, Mr. Abdul Caadir, on behalf of the Natal delegates, thanked His Lordship for kindly consenting to grant them an interview.

A cablegram received from a mass meeting held in Natal was also read to His Lordship, which was in support of the deputation.

At the close of the interview Mr. Abdul Caadir stated that he had been a member of the Natal community for over 25 years, and that from his experiences he
DEAR GENERAL SMUTS,

I went to see Mr. Gandhi yesterday afternoon and spoke to him in accordance with your suggestions, but without saying that they came from you. I found him as clear, convincing, and unyielding from his point of view as you are from yours, and after two hours of argument, in which we discussed the question from every standpoint, practical, legal and ethical, I came away in despair of any compromise.

Mr. Gandhi is contending for a principle which he regards as essential and, so far as I can judge, he is no more likely to abandon a cause which he considers vital and just than any of us are likely to abandon our life-long principles of politics or religion. Indeed it seems to me that he is less likely to do so, for there are few of us who would sacrifice everything in order to secure a theoretical and unavailable right. It is impossible not to admire the man, for it is evident that he recognises no court of appeal except that of his own conscience.

Now, I hope you will not think it presumptuous on my part to offer you a suggestion. Why should you not do that which you are prepared to do without making any bargain with the passive resisters? Would you not “take the wind out of their sails” if you gave them, at any rate in effect, what they are asking for, namely, the repeal of Act 2 of 1907 and the admission by law of a maximum of six Indians annually as permanent residents? If it is right to do this, why not do it anyhow whether the passive resisters profess themselves contented or not? You would silence the criticism of outsiders and you would be giving the Imperial Government an effective answer to complaints in India.

May I venture a step further and suggest a means by which the limited admission of Indians could be provided for in the law without maintaining the “colour bar”.

Enclosed is a copy of the amendment of the Immigrants’ Restriction Act which was sometime back proposed to you by Mr. Gandhi. I have added a proviso at the end which seems to me to meet the case and of which I venture to beg your consideration.
You will see that it avoids making an invidious distinction between Asiatics and other immigrants and, incidentally, gives you power which might possibly be useful in future circumstances, and so far as I can judge, it would fully effect your purpose.

What distresses me and makes me anxious from the Imperial standpoint is this: thus far Indians have enjoyed the theoretical right of entry to any part of the British Empire. It is only in the Transvaal, during the past few years, that the theoretical right has been taken away as well as limited in practice. The perpetuation and possible extension of this disability seems to me to be fraught with grave peril to British influence and reputation in India and that is why I am so persistent in this cause.

Believe me,
Yours sincerely,

Colonial Office Records : 291/141

(2) LORD AMPHILL’ S LETTER TO LORD CREWE

August 11, 1909

DEAR LORD CREWE,

Please forgive me if that which I am writing seems to you an intrusion and also for sending you a typed letter. It is too hot to write with any ease.

I had long talks with General Smuts and Mr. Gandhi yesterday and found to my bitter disappointment that there is no possible compromise between the views which they respectively hold on the abstract question of “right”. You are so familiar with the views of both parties that I need not explain this any further, but in order that you may know what I am doing, I send you the enclosed copy of a letter which I have just written to General Smuts. The suggestions which I made therein are my own; that is, that they are not made by way of mediation between Mr. Gandhi and General Smuts, for such mediation only belongs to you.

I venture to hope that they may not seem unworthy of consideration now that you are bringing your negotiations to a head.

My great anxiety that there should be a settlement of the difficulty is my excuse for intruding my ideas upon you.

The final “denouement” that I should like to see is that, on the occasion of the third reading of the South Africa Bill in the House of Commons, Colonel Seely should announce on your behalf that the Transvaal Government have decided spontaneously on an act of generosity which would enable the Indians to participate in the rejoicing over the South Africa Union.

Would not this be greatly to the credit of your Government and would it not be worthwhile to avoid the reproach, that, under a Liberal Government, Indians in the Transvaal have been deprived of a right which they enjoy, at any rate, theoretically, in every other part of the British Empire?

I do not wish to say a word myself or to appear in the matter at all if you can bring this about.

Believe me,
Yours sincerely,

Ampthill

Colonial Office Records : 291/141

(3) Lord Crewe’s Letter to Lord Ampthill

Confidential

Colonial Office,
August 11, 1909

My dear Ampthill,

I also have seen General Smuts and Mr. Gandhi, and I am afraid that the divergence in principle which you mention certainly exists, though the difficulty may not be insuperable.

Assuming, as one fairly may, that the repeal of Act 2 of 1907 would form part of any settlement, the controversy narrows itself down to the form by which the admission of six just men is to be secured. Assuming, again, that to secure a settlement they must be introduced as residents, not under a licence liable to revocation, it appears that legislation would be required for this purpose. Such legislation might provide expressly for executive power to admit a limited number of persons, notwithstanding any existing law to the contrary; or it might proceed, as your suggestion does, through the education test. It strikes me, however, as I told Mr. Gandhi that it is not quite logical to stand by the principle of admission under an education test, and then to say (as your last proviso does) that Government may exclude any man in spite of his having satisfied that test; and I confess I should like to feel convinced that the Indian community would accept such a solution, and not use the wide general permission accorded under your clause as a basis for further claims.

Whether General Smuts could be got to agree to it, or something like it, I cannot say. I am expecting to hear from him.

Yours sincerely,

Crewe

Colonial Office Records : 291/141

(4) Lord Ampthill’s Letter to Lord Crewe

R. Secret

August 12, 1909

Dear Lord Crewe,

Just a line to thank you for having replied so kindly and speedily, and with your own hand, to my letter of two days ago.

I am afraid that I cannot tell you whether the Indian community would accept the solution which I propose to the extent of undertaking to refrain from further demand. I would not put that question to Mr. Gandhi as I am not in the position of an authorized mediator. My impression, however, is that the community as a whole would be [only] too glad to accept it as means of retiring without dishonour from a hopeless contest. But men like Mr. Gandhi will continue the struggle until their last breath for that which they regard as justice and right.

The failure, however, to satisfy a small band of stalwarts need not, I venture to think, deter you from giving contentment to the great majority. The Transvaal Government can put an end to the disagreeables of 'passive resistance' at any moment by refraining from prosecuting the leaders who are all well known. I think, therefore, that, if you were to impose the settlement I suggest without making a bargain with Mr. Gandhi, he would accept a situation which would enable him to cease from active [contest] without disavowing his principles. I should certainly urge him to do so and should decline to assist in the furtherance of any further demand]. Indeed, I have told him already that it is worse than useless to ask for more until time and circumstance have altered the view of South African Colonists.

Yours sincerely,

AMPTHILL

Colonial Office Records : 291/141

APPENDIX IV

NATAL DELEGATES’ LETTER TO VICEROY

WESTMINSTER PALACE HOTEL,
4, VICTORIA STREET,
LONDON, S. W.
August 27, 1909

TO

HIS EXCELLENCY THE VICEROY OF INDIA

MY LORD,

We took the liberty of sending through Your Lordship’s Private Secretary, a preliminary copy of a statement setting out some of the grievances of our fellow-country-men in Natal, by the last mail. We now beg to transmit 12 copies of the statement as submitted to the Secretaries of State for the Colonies and India and of the statement read to the Colonial Secretary.

We appeal to Your Excellency to give the same the favourable consideration of Your Excellency in Committee and to take such action as the urgently calls for.

The British Indians form a very important portion of the inhabitants of Natal; have very large interests in that Colony and are drawn from all parts of India. They number over 100,000, of whom 60,000 are indentured labourers imported by the Natal Government, and it is an acknowledged fact that the prosperity of Natal depends largely if not entirely, on this labour she receives from India.
As will appear from the statement, we are being crushed out of existence in Natal in a threefold manner. Our trade is slowly being taken from us by means of the unjust and tyrannical administration of a Licensing Law, which leaves in the hands of a Licensing Officer and his employers—who are themselves our trade rivals—unlimited powers in regard to the granting or refusal of trading licenses, old or new, without any check from the judicial tribunals of the Colony. Indian labourers are worked and treated almost as slaves for the material profit of Natal, but as soon as they have finished their services with the Natal planters or mine-owners to whom they are allotted, they and their wives and their children are subjected to a special exorbitant annual tax, with a view to preventing them from settling in the Colony as freemen and earning an honest livelihood, and our future progress is almost entirely prevented, by the deprivation of even ordinary facilities for giving a suitable education to our youths.

Unless, therefore, the Government of India as our protector and guardian, takes up our case, and insists on some measure of bare justice being meted out to us by the authorities in Natal, it is only a question of time when we will be slowly starved out of the Colony. There is a tangible remedy at the disposal of the Indian Government and that is, to stop the supply of indentured labour that annually flows into it, unless the Colony will deal justly by the Indian traders and the Indian labourers. This is no new remedy. Lord Curzon accepted the proposal that was made some years ago by us and he even sent a dispatch to the Natal Ministers intimating the taking of action unless redress was granted. We do not know what was the result of those negotiations. But instead of any redress being vouchsafed to us, our condition ever since that time has become much worse, owing to the stringency of the measures stated above and their almost remorseless enforcement. Our means of subsistence are every day curtailed and our very existence in the Colony, in the enjoyment even of the elementary rights of British citizenship, is imperilled.

We therefore pray that Your Excellency in Council would be pleased to take such action and if necessary invite the intervention of the Imperial Government to that end, as might secure to us relief from the oppressive and unjust treatment of the Natal authorities.

We remain,

Your Excellency's obedient servants,

India Office Records : 179/254
APPENDIX V

LORD AMPTHILL’S LETTERS TO GANDHIJI AND LORD CREWE

(1) LORD AMPTHILL’S LETTER TO GANDHIJI

PERSONAL & PRIVATE

August 31, 1909

DEAR MR. GANDHI,

I have received your letter of yesterday and I should anyhow have written to you this morning.

I have not seen the statement by Reuter’s agent to which you refer, but I will search the newspapers and add a line to this letter if it should be necessary. Meanwhile, I will tell you that which I should anyhow have written to you this morning.

Yesterday morning, I received a letter from General Smuts which he had written hastily on the eve of his departure. He said that he was sorry not to be able to see me again and told me very briefly that he had made certain proposals to Lord Crewe. I gather that these proposals are that Act 2 of 1907 should be repealed and that permanent certificates of residence should be granted annually to a limited number of educated Indian immigrants, but, I fear from what he says that General Smuts is not going to meet us on the question of “right”. I went to London yesterday and at once sought an interview with Lord Crewe in the House of Lords, suggesting to him that the moment had arrived when I might invite him to make a statement. Lord Crewe had not yet read the communication which had been addressed to him by General Smuts and he objected to making any statement in Parliament (and as I think quite justifiably) on the grounds that it would not do to anticipate any announcement which General Smuts might have to make on his arrival in South Africa. I admitted that this was quite fair but I pointed out that you were waiting for an answer, that your time was precious and that it would not be fair to keep you waiting in this country. Lord Crewe then said that he would ask you to come and see him or some member of his department on his behalf and I agreed that he could not do better. We then proceeded to discuss the whole question and I argued the question of “right”. Lord Crewe seemed to be impressed by my assertion that Indians have always enjoyed the right of entry, at any rate in theory, in every part of the Empire until they were deprived of it in the Transvaal. He is very anxious that you should be satisfied and his general attitude was more sympathetic than it has been before. If, therefore, you see him personally, you will have a very good opportunity of making your position clear. It will be for you to decide whether you are bound to continue passive resistance for the sake of the theoretical right, but, personally, I hope that you will not feel so bound, as I am anxious for the sake of your community that the struggle should cease and because I think you have already done enough for the sake of honour. You will be gaining something very substantial in the repeal of Act 2 of 1907 and you can make it quite clear that your opinions on the question of right remain unaltered even though you feel justified in giving up a quixotic struggle. This is all the advice I can give you at present but we must consult again after you have seen Lord Crewe or his representative.

I hope you have seen the introduction which I have written to Mr. Doke’s book, for I venture to think that it places on record that I am entirely with you on the question of “right”.

Yours very faithfully,
AMPHTHILL

From a photostat of the typewritten original : S. N. 5036

(2) LORD AMPHTHILL’S LETTER TO LORD CREWE

August 30, 1909

DEAR LORD CREWE,

I have just received a note from General Smuts, written hastily on the eve of his departure, to tell me that he has agreed upon a settlement of the British Indian question with you. He does not tell me precisely what it is but I gather that the settle[ment] falls short of that which I proposed.

Would it be convenient to you make a statement in the House of lord on Wednesday?

If so, may I put a brief question to you before 4.30 on Wednesday, that is to say, “by private notice” and without speeches?

I do not want to press you if it is still inconvenient to make a public announcement, but I think that it would be well to let Mr. Gandhi depart as soon as possible. He is only waiting to know the result of the negotiation, I believe.

Yours sincerely,
AMPHTHILL

[Lord Crewe's Note]

I have seen Lord Ampthill, and explained why no question should be put at present.

C[REWE]

Colonial Office Records : 291/141

---

1 For Lord Ampthill’s introduction amplifying his stand on this question, vide Appendix XVIII.
APPENDIX VI

LORD AMPTHILL’S LETTER TO GANDHIJI

PRIVATE

September 11, 1909

DEAR MR. GANDHI,

I am afraid that you cannot have explained sufficiently your reason for asking for a further interview with Lord Morley or you could not have received so discouraging a reply.

Apparantly, you said that you wished to “re-state your position”; if so, it was hardly a persuasive manner of asking Lord Morley to give you more of his time. I think that you ought to have explained the question of “right” in the light of the latest developments and in view of the movement in India, so that Lord Morley might have seen that you have something new to tell him and that you were able to throw fresh light on the situation. Even now I think that you would do well to write such a letter in order that your reasons for refusing to regard General Smuts’ proposals as a satisfactory settlement may be recorded in advance. Otherwise, you will again be accused of using each concession as an occasion for making fresh demands. Lord Morley does not understand the question and you ought not to neglect to let him have a clear and simple explanation in writing; something to which you will be able to point and refer later on as the definite statement of your case. Could you not draft such a letter and let me see it before you sent it off?

Lord Crewe must be away from London or you would surely have had a reply to your letter. I hope that ere this reaches you it will have arrived.

Yours very faithfully,

AMPTHILL

M. K. GANDHI, ESQ.

From a photostat of the typewritten original : S. N. 5065

APPENDIX VII

LORD CREWE’S MINUTE

[LONDON.]

Mr. Gandhi and Mr. Habib came to see me today. I informed them of the result of our conversations with Mr. Smuts, and of the two concessions which he was prepared to make, (a) the repeal of Act 2 of 1907, and (b) the admission of 6 educated Asiatics each year as permanent residents. Mr. Gandhi admitted that these changes would mark a real step in advance, and so far as their practical effect was concerned, he would be ready to accept them. But it was not possible to abandon the position which he and his friends had taken up, and for which great sufferings had been undergone, that of the necessity of being equal before the law, even though the equality were only theoretical. So that even the granting of these concessions would not make him to cease from agitating for such equality. He added that the plan suggested in Lord Ampthill’s letter and enclosure to Mr. Smuts of 10 Aug. 1909, would be accepted, though it had been reluctantly agreed to by some, such as Mr. Gokhale. I said that one reason, in addition to dislike of the fictitious character of the proposed admission, which might actuate Transvaal Ministers in rejecting this proposal, was the probability that, if the exclusion remained purely administrative, there would be perpetual agitation to increase the number. Mr. Gandhi said he did not mind how difficult an increase were made, if only theoretical equality were maintained, and that as a matter of fact if 6 were admitted, this side of the question would be regarded as closed, though Indians would work for reforms in other matters. I then asked whether, assuming that Transvaal Ministers would not go beyond what they had offered, the Indians would or would not prefer that the whole question should stand over till Union. Mr. Gandhi said that, as he read the Act, Asiatics being excluded from Transvaal under the general Immigration law, and not by differential treatment, would not for this purpose come under the Union. I pointed out that there was nothing to prevent the Union from adopting a general Immigration law, which, while in fact excluding, might establish theoretical equality, if statesmen were so minded. Mr. Gandhi said that at any rate there would be months of intervening agitation.

The conversation ended by Mr. Gandhi asking me to telegraph to the Transvaal Govt. that, though he admitted the practical advances involved in Mr. Smuts’ suggestions, yet he must still hold out for theoretical equality.

The impression left on my mind is that, in spite of this, the Transvaal Govt. would do well to make the two concessions, thus removing all practical hardship, and putting themselves right with a considerable section of public opinion.

A telegram can accordingly be drafted, giving the substance of Mr. Gandhi’s statement, and adding the substance of the last preceding paragraph.

C[REW]
16. IX

Colonial Office Records : 291/41

498 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
DEAR MR. GANDHI,

Your letter of yesterday which I have just received has cheered me up. I was beginning to be rather despondent about the whole situation, prejudiced as it is by the intense preoccupation of the Government in the critical fortunes of their party at the present moment. It is indeed satisfactory that Lord Crewe should have actually promised to telegraph to General Smuts pressing him to accept our amendment. I have been in correspondence with Sir George Farrar and have arranged to see him when I return from Scotland, so you will see that I have not lost sight of the necessity of squaring the opposition. If you can now get an interview with Lord Morley and enlist his sympathy in the same manner as you did that of Lord Crewe, I think you will have done all that is possible and that you will be able to leave this country feeling that no stone which could be of any avail has been unturned. If you are leaving shortly, I am afraid that I shall have no opportunity of seeing you again, which is a matter of great regret to me. I am obliged at last to take a short holiday while it is still possible and I go up to Scotland for a fortnight, tomorrow. I shall be somewhat out of reach so that you must not be surprised if there is delay about answering your communications.

Meanwhile, I bid you and Mr. Hajee Habib “farewell” with every good wish, and I trust that, when we next meet, it will be to rejoice over an honourable and notable success.

Yours very faithfully,

AMPTHILL

M. K. GANDHI, ESQ.

From a photostat of the typewritten original : S. N. 5081
APPENDIX IX

M. C. ANGLIA’S LETTER TO UNDER SECRETARY FOR COLONIES

Westminster Palace Hotel,
4, Victoria Street,
London, S. W.
September 20, 1909

TO
The Under Secretary of State
Colonial Office
London, S. W.

SIR,

I have the honour to acknowledge with thanks the receipt of your letter of the 13th instant, in reply to the Natal Indian deputation that recently waited on the Earl of Crewe and subsequently on Colonel Seely.

On behalf of my colleagues and myself, I venture to express our regret and disappointment over the substance of the reply. We fully appreciate and are grateful for the sympathy expressed by Lord Crewe, but we miss any assurance on the part of His Lordship that further friendly and firm representations will be made direct to the Colonial Government in connection with the existing grievances. May we point out once again that these grievances bear harshly on the community at the present moment, and that they are not such as to admit of delayed redress. The trading community approaches the ensuing year with fear and trembling, because that is the time when the Licensing Officers will be applying the pruning knife vigorously to the Indian licenses. Similar apprehension is felt by the poor Indians, who will be called upon to pay the annual £3 tax for themselves, their wives and their major children, while the education of Indian boys is now being sorely neglected.

It is perhaps not realised that the Licensing Law being of a general nature, does not fall within amendment that was secured at the instance of His Majesty’s Government in the South Africa Bill, placing the control and administration of matters specially and differentially affecting Asiatics in the Union Government. The Licensing Law is applicable to all, irrespective of race. It is, in the opinion of the deputation, capable of being amended by the present Natal Parliament, and will be when it is converted into a provincial legislature.

The deputation also regretfully notice the absence of any reply to its [sic] humble submission that the supply of indentured labour to Natal may be stopped, unless the serious grievances are redressed.

The deputation therefore respectfully venture to draw Lord Crewe’s attention to the desperate nature of the Natal Indian case and request His Lordship to urge upon the Natal Government the desirability of granting relief.

I have the honour to remain,

Sir,

Your most obedient servant,

M. C. Anglia

Colonial Office Records : 179/255

APPENDIX X

TOLSTOY’S LETTER TO GAN DH I J I

YAS NAYA POLYANA,

O c t o b e r 7, 1909

M. K. G A N D H I

T R A N S V A A L

I have just received your most interesting letter, which has given me great pleasure. God help our dear brothers and co-workers in the Transvaal.

That same struggle of the tender against the harsh, of meekness and love against pride and violence, is every year making itself more and more felt here among us also, especially in one of the very sharpest of the conflicts of the religious law with the worldly laws—in refusals of military service. Such refusals are becoming ever more and more frequent.

The letter to a Hindoo was written by me, and the translation is a very good one. The title of the book about Krishna shall be sent you from Moscow. As to the word ‘reincarnation’, I should not myself like to omit it, for, in my opinion, belief in reincarnation can never be as firm as belief in the soul’s immortality and in God’s justice and love. You may, however, do as you like about omitting it. If I can assist your publication, I shall be very glad. The translation into and circulation of my letter in the Hindoo language can only be a pleasure to me.

A competition, i.e., an offer of a monetary inducement in connection with a religious matter would, I think, be out of place.

I greet you fraternally, and am glad to have intercourse with you.

LEO TOLSTOY

From a photostat of the handwritten original signed by Tolstoy : S. N. 5152b
APPENDIX XI

LORD AMPTHILL’S LETTER TO GANDHIJI

October 4, 1909

DEAR MR. GANDHI,

I have to thank you for your two letters of the 21st and 22nd September respectively which duly reached me while I was tramping across the mountains in Scotland. In the former, you kindly sent me a copy of the reply which you have received from Lord Morley. I regard it as very satisfactory that you should have secured Lord Morley’s admission that his sympathies are with you on abstract and general grounds. That is an admission which ought to be valuable to you hereafter and of which I advise you to take careful note.

In the second letter, you refer to the question which I have on the notice paper of the House of Lords. This is nothing new; it is the question of which I gave notice very soon after your arrival in this country and which I have kept on the notice paper to be ready against any emergency and to remind the Government that the question may be raised at any moment. I have, as you know, asked Lord Crewe on several occasions whether he is yet in a position to answer it or not.

I am now anxiously waiting to hear whether you have any further news for me.

Yours very faithfully,

AMPTHILL

M. K. GANDHI, ESQ.

From a photostat of the typewritten original : S. N. 5109

APPENDIX XII

GUJARATI MEETING IN LONDON

EXTRACT FROM Indian Opinion REPORT

A letter was received by Mr. Jethalal Parikh, Bar-at-law, and other Gujaratis from the Secretary of the Gujarati Literary Parishad, Mr. Balvantrai Thakore, requesting encouragement to the third session of the Parishad to be held at Rajkot in Kathiawar. A meeting of Gujaratis was accordingly held on October 5 in Westminster Palace Hotel under the Chairmanship of Sir Muncherjee Bhownaggree. . . .

Sir Muncherjee, on being proposed to the chair, said : “. . . I took keen interest in Gujarati when I was young. I translated into Gujarati an account of Queen Victoria’s travels. . . . This is sufficient evidence that I know a little Gujarati. Hence, I agreed to take the chair.

A body named Gujarati Sahitya Parishad been in existence the past few years. It meets every year. There is no intrusion of politics into the activities of this body.
Its main object is the preservation and development of Gujarati. If anyone asks why this should be necessary, the answer is that the Indian languages are in some danger. Not that there has been an attack by an enemy; but, these days, an attitude of indifference to our languages and to other things of our country is in the air. All the men and women are taking to the study of English. That is, of course, in the fitness of things. People are naturally eager to learn a language that is the language of administration and commerce. But that does not justify one in giving up one's own language. Many of us learn French, German, etc. How, then, can we give up a language that Nature has made our own? It would not be in the least proper to ridicule that language. And yet, no one will deny such indifference is prevailing in India. I remember that, when I was a child, there were young men who would not talk Gujarati even in their homes. I can give the names of some of these. And a few of them went to such lengths in imitating the British that even the Ayahs they engaged would be from North India, so that the children might talk only Hindustani, whenever necessary, as the British did. All this happened because of half-baked education. We come across fewer such instances now. For the past many years, I have been settled here (in England), but I have not given up the use of my own language. If anyone writes to me in Gujarati, I reply in Gujarati. . . . It occurs to me, as I use the phrase ‘Reception Committee’, that we must find a Gujarati equivalent for it, but in the draft of the Parishad constitution which we have received they have used the English phrase and so I, too, use the same. We can see from this that we have lost control over our own language. . . . ”

FIRST RESOLUTION

Mr. Mohandas Karamchand Gandhi moved the following resolution:

Seconding it, Mr. Nusserwanji said:

I have pleasure in seconding this resolution. The first Gujarati newspaper was started by a Parsi. Gnanprakash was started by a Parsi. Mr. Kabraji, who started Sribodh, was a Parsi. It was a Parsi who started writing humorous pieces. Kautuksangraha was also started by a Parsi. Parsis have also translated numerous books from English. Bacon’s Essays were translated by a Parsi. Munchersha, who wrote a book on Gujarati grammar, was a Parsi. The first dictionary was also compiled by Parsi. Drama was introduced in Gujarati by a Parsi. Parsis have thus done valuable work indeed for the progress of our language; it is a matter of regret, however, that they do not take the same pains now.

SECOND RESOLUTION

Mr. Edulji Khodi next moved the following resolution:

“This meeting welcomes the efforts being made for the progress of the various languages of India and believes that the progress of entire India depends upon such work indeed for the progress of our language; it is a matter of regret, however, that they do not take the same pains now.

---

2 Here followed the resolution and Gandhiji’s speech; vide “Speech at Gujarati Meeting”, 5-10-1909.
efforts.”

Speaking on the resolution, Mr. Khodi, who has been a well-known writer since his young days, said:

Really speaking, Gujarati is the language of the Parsis... Parsis in rural areas speak much better Gujarati than those in cities. Prarsi writing is quite interesting, but not correct in expression as the Hindus... I have been able to see from this that we can contribute to the development of Gujarati. Though Manekbai is a Parsi, her paper was lucid enough...

Mr. Jorawarsinghji of Bhavnagar, Mr. Khaparde of Nagpur and Mr. Hajee Habib and Mr. Anglia of South Africa also spoke on this resolution.

Mr. Hajee Habib said:

The efforts being made to preserve our mother tongue must be welcomed. I am proud that I was born in Gujarat...

THIRD RESOLUTION

Dr. Ghadiali moved the third resolution as follows:

“If an Association which would function entirely through Gujarati is established to promote the development of Gujarati, the Gujaratis present here would be happy to join it.” Three persons opposing the resolution, it was carried by a majority vote.

Mr. Parikh then proposed a vote of thanks to the Chairman, which was carried, and the meeting terminated at 6.30 p.m.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 6-11-1909 & 13-11-1909

APPENDIX XIII

DISPATCH IN “SOUTH AFRICA”

Another Indian invention exploded! A few weeks ago, London was being dosed with cablegrams from the agitating Asiatics in this part of South Africa, alleging that a poor young Indian had died as a result of his treatment while serving a short sentence for deliberate defiance of the ordinary laws of the Colony. Whatever the effect of this yarn upon the credulous section of the British public, such statements as this could not go without an official inquiry. Major Dixon, the Magistrate appointed to report on the circumstances concerning the treatment of Nagappen, who died shortly after discharge from prison, says that Nagappen was passed as fit by a medical officer. It is not, he says, clear whether the deceased had two blankets in the camp, and there is nothing to warrant the opinion that sleeping on coir mattresses would have an injurious effect. Though no rice was supplied, there was ample supply of water. The allegation that deceased was assaulted he finds to be groundless, as also allegations regarding Nagappen’s sickness in camp, he having left camp in an apparently healthy condition. The allegations of two Indian witnesses are, he holds, entirely refuted. Deceased had a right to leave camp at any time on payment of a proportionate part of his fine. The Commissioner, having inquired into prison conditions, suggests two or three small improvements, but these have no bearing on the case. The result of all this fuss and invention on the part of the Asiatics has been to show that their compatriot was healthier when in custody and on his discharge than when he returned to his old manner of life.

Indian Opinion, 16-10-1909

APPENDIX XIV

LETTERS FROM COLONIAL OFFICE AND LORD AMPTHILL

(1) LETTER FROM COLONIAL OFFICE TO GANDHI

DOWNING STREET,
November 3, 1909

SIR,

I am directed by the Earl of Crewe to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 19th ultimo further respecting the proposals referred to in the letter from this Department of the 4th ultimo as a possible basis of legislation with regard to the British Indian controversy in the Transvaal.

I am to inform you that the proposals in question were those put before you by His Lordship on the 16th of September as having been made by Mr. Smuts, viz., the repeal of Act 2 of 1907 and the admission of six educated Asiatics each year on certificates of permanent right of residence, which would involve, in your own view, a real step in advance and would, so far as their practical effect is concerned, provide a solution of the present difficulty. They were not, nor were they connected with, those made by yourself, and involving a theoretical claim for which His Lordship is not able to hold out any hope of obtaining recognition. Indeed, at the interview on the 16th of September, His Lordship explained to you that Mr. Smuts was unable to accept the claim that Asiatics should be placed in a position of equality with Europeans in respect of right of entry of otherwise. His Lordship cannot, therefore, admit that at the interview he undertook, as stated by you, to place your proposal before Mr. Smuts for his acceptance. His Lordship understood you to desire that he should telegraph to the Transvaal Government that, though you admitted the practical advance involved in Mr. Smuts’ suggestions, yet you could not consent to abandon your claim for theoretical equality, and this has been done.

I am, Sir,

Your obedient servant,

FRANCIS G. S. HOPWOOD

From a photostat of the typewritten original : S. N. 5157
DEAR MR. GANDHI,

The contents of your letter of the 4th inst. are a rude shock to me. The letter from the Colonial Office shows either that you were entirely mistaken in the impression which you derived from your interview with Lord Crewe, or else that Lord Crewe’s recollection of what he said to you is at fault.

In the former case much time has been needlessly wasted; in the latter case there is remedy, for it is a question of Lord Crewe’s word against yours. In these circumstances, I see no objection to your proposed reply which is, at any rate, dignified and restrained. I should say more myself if I were in your position and quite sure of my ground.

We will talk the matter over if possible on Monday.

Yours very faithfully,

AMPTHILL

From a photostat of the handwritten original : S. N. 5163

APPENDIX XV

COLONIAL OFFICE MINUTE

[London, November 16, 1909]

This contains little or nothing that is new—it is substantially what Mr. Gandhi has been saying everywhere (e.g. Times 13 Nov. meeting at Westminster Palace Hotel) and is all summed up in his statement that legal equality in respect of entry though never a man enter is what the British Indians want. (c. f. 36631)

If is a strong case and well stated and when the Union Government is well launched, I think we shall have to make an effort to get an immigration law on the lines of Natal and Australia and the Governor-General should be instructed accordingly before the time comes. But, for the moment, we must take the concessions which Transvaal offers (answer to telegram on 36631 not yet in).

Lord Crewe should see this before tomorrow afternoon.

Sd. H. L.

We are still without an answer from the Transvaal Government, but hope to get it before the Debate tomorrow. I understand that Lord Ampthill only prefers to raise the question after negotiations.

Sd.

Colonial Office Records : 291/141
APPENDIX XVI

COLONIAL OFFICE MINUTE

[London,
November 9, 1909]

See today Times p. 5, headed “Failure of the Negotiations”—we must get Tr[ansvaal] to say what they mean to do. I submit draft for consideration.

This is a very strong letter indeed. If Mr. Gandhi means what he says, viz., that there is no justification for home rule in India—he does not quite, but almost, says this in so many words. We cannot dispute the rightness of his claim to equality before the law, it is indeed a fundamental principle, we only refuse to press for the recognition of the principle about which we feel no doubt, because we have no power to enforce our views on those who have the settlement of the question in their hands. When a colony is given responsible Government, the settlement of such questions necessarily passes into the hands of the Colonial Government and Parliament and though the Transvaal Government have shown readiness to meet us on points of detail, they have on the point of principle shown a tenacity (due, no doubt, to the historical abhorrence of equality of white and Coloured shown by the Dutch) quite equal to that of the Indians. If they will not accept our principle, the Empire being what it is, we cannot dragoon them.

Possibly an answer somewhat on these lines might be desirable for publication.

Sd. H. L.

In using the phrase “Colour bar”, Mr. Gandhi has an eye to the Debates in Parliament on the South Africa Bill, and the position of His Majesty’s Government is the same in both the cases, viz., that they have been obliged to accept the local view which is strongly held.

The statement in Mr. Gandhi’s telegram to Mr. Polak (in the Times summary of the position) is no doubt based upon Lord Crewe’s interview and our letter of 3rd November.

We might await an answer to the telegram before replying to the letter.

Sd. HWJ

The telegram should go at once—the reply may give us some answer to the letter. In any event, the true answer can only be found in describing in detail the sympathetic action of the Home Government, at the same time referring to the present policy of South Africa historically and not with animus.

Sd.
[TELEGRAM]

Gandhi has published statement in press stating inter alia that Transvaal Government have agreed to repeal Act of 1907 but desire to insert clause in Immigration Law limiting annual number of Asiatic immigrants. A question will be addressed to me next week in House of Lords. Please therefore ask Ministers to let me next week in House of Lords. Please therefore ask Ministers to let me have reply to my telegram of 10 October No. 1.

CREWE

Colonial Office Records : 291/142

APPENDIX XVII

ACCOUNT OF THE EXPENSES OF THE TRANSVAAL BRITISH INDIAN DEPUTATION TO ENGLAND

JUNE 21ST 1909 TO NOVEMBER 1909

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Description</th>
<th>£</th>
<th>s</th>
<th>d</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Passage to and from London</td>
<td>218</td>
<td>14</td>
<td>5</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Cables, wires, etc., S.A., India, and local</td>
<td>36</td>
<td>11</td>
<td>11</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Railway, tram, cabs, etc.</td>
<td>9</td>
<td>2</td>
<td>1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Gratuities</td>
<td>8</td>
<td>11</td>
<td>6</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Typist</td>
<td>40</td>
<td>19</td>
<td>0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Stationery</td>
<td>31</td>
<td>1</td>
<td>0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hotel bills</td>
<td>156</td>
<td>12</td>
<td>10</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Dinners and luncheons, etc.</td>
<td>38</td>
<td>2</td>
<td>8</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sundries</td>
<td>10</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>11</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Total</td>
<td>548</td>
<td>16</td>
<td>4</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Less contribution from Natal Delegation on joint expense

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Description</th>
<th>£</th>
<th>s</th>
<th>d</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Ditto Dr. Mehta</td>
<td>31</td>
<td>16</td>
<td>10</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ditto Mr. Abdul Kadir</td>
<td>11</td>
<td>17</td>
<td>8</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ditto Mr. Abdul Kadir</td>
<td>2</td>
<td>0</td>
<td>0</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

£ 45 14 6

Balance £503 1 10

Indian Opinion, 25-12-1909
APPENDIX XVIII

PARSEE RUSTOMJEE’S LETTER TO THE JOHANNESBURG PRESS

JOHANNESBURG,
February 12, 1910

SIR,

I was sentenced on the 11th day of February, 1909, at Volksrust to six months’ imprisonment with hard labour for having dared to assert my right as an old resident of the Transvaal to re-enter. I finished my sentence on the 10th August last. I was deported the same day. I recrossed the border on the same day, and was sentenced to another term of six months on the 11th August last, and was discharged yesterday. I was removed from Volksrust to Houtpoort, and from Houtpoort to Diepkloof on the 7th October last. From Houtpoort to Johannesburg I was only handcuffed, but from Johannesburg to Diepkloof not only was I handcuffed but my leg, together with that of another fellow prisoner, was heavily ironed.

At Volksrust and Houtpoort I was medically examined, and considered weak enough to receive an extra blanket and special food—that is bread and milk. I am only 48 years, though the medical officers have taken me to be 55.

At the first two gaols I was allowed, for religious reasons, to retain my sacred thread and my own cap, which I was permitted to wear, whether in the presence of the Governor and other officers, or at the time of taking meals.

At Diepkloof, the next morning, the medical officer came to examine all the prisoners. There were several fellow passive resisters. The doctor started by saying to us, “What the devil are you here for?” One of us said, “for conscience’ sake.” The medical officer retorted, “Your conscience be damned.” He then ordered that we should all be at the same time entirely undressed. This was objected to. For an Indian this is a very painful ordeal, but, as we feared violence, we all did as we were told. When my turn came to be examined, I reported that I was put upon the sick list at both Volksrust and Houtpoort, and that I had special food allowed, but the medical officer simply said, “There is nothing the matter with you. You are too fat.” I had only ordinary food allowed, but an extra blanket had been allowed to me the previous evening by the head warder. I was immediately given hard work in the shape of stone breaking. I was not allowed to rest at all, and was expected to keep the hammer going continuously. The third day the work proved too much for me, and I complained, but the warder in charge said that he could do nothing, that I had to report myself as sick, but that, until he received other instructions, he was bound to see to it that I did my work without interruption. I, therefore, continued it, and several times fit as if I were finished. Subsequently, I was examined by the doctor, who told me that there was a little soreness in my sides owing to the work, but that there was nothing in it, and that I would be all right when I had thrown off superfluous fat. I had to continue the work, which resulted in my health becoming worse. I reported again to the Governor, who ordered a re-examination, but that resulted in my being deprived even of the extra blanket that had been allowed, the doctor remarking that I had simply to work harder to become all right. This state of things continued for nearly a fortnight, I becoming worse and worse day by day, until, at last, I became restless at night and could not sleep at all. My fellow prisoners used to shampoo me and try to warm me. I, therefore, reported to the hospital orderly, and he restored the blanket that was taken away from me, and gave me some pills. Throughout all this time the work to which I was put was never interrupted. After I had been in this gaol for over a fortnight the Governor came and ordered me to leave my special cap. I told him that I had received special permission to retain it, and that the matter was decided even by the Natal Law Courts. The Governor said that the order formerly given was given in mistake, and that the Director had written to him saying that I could not retain the cap. I was, therefore, reluctantly obliged to give it up. My religious feeling was thereby hurt. The ordinary cap that I was given I was ordered to take off on the slightest pretext by most of the warders. I was subjected generally to much harassment by the medical officer, the Deputy-Governor, and most of the warders at Diepkloof. I continually complained about sickness, but my complaints were unheeded, sometimes they were jeered at. My eyesight was very much affected, and one of my eyes still remains in a bad condition. When I complained to the medical officer about my eye, he said that I should, on being discharged, spend from £10 to £20, and be operated upon. Every time I complained to the medical officer he made flippant remarks. The Deputy-Governor disregarded the complaints almost entirely. It was only the Governor who took any interest at all in me or, for that matter, in other prisoners. When I had finished all but about twenty days of my imprisonment I was obliged to again complain about absence of medical treatment to the Deputy-Governor, as a result of which I was removed to the gaol at Johannesburg, after which time I received greater attention. The work given to me there was less exacting, being light store work and tailoring. The Governor and the warders were kind, and listened to all I had to say. My health considerably improved during the time. I have lost 73 lbs. in weight throughout my imprisonment, now extending over fourteen months, with a brief interruption after my first incarceration.

It is my opinion that the passive resisters were removed to Diepkloof in order to break their spirit and resolution. Diepkloof is a penal settlement, and the prisoners there, unlike the prisoners in the other gaols of the Transvaal, are deprived of the privilege of receiving monthly visitors, and of writing and receiving monthly letters, these privileges being allowed only after the expiration of three months, and as most passive resisters can get only three months with hard labour, they never enjoy the privilege of receiving a visitor or of receiving or writing a letter. The food has been so selected as to partially starve Asiatic prisoners. Whereas native prisoners get 1 oz. of fat per day, Indian prisoners for three months have no fat allowed at all. This change was made when Indians complained that they could not take the ordinary animal fat that was given. They asked for ghee, which was allowed in the Johannesburg Gaol, and in reply there was a complete stopping of fat or its substitute. The result has been disastrous to many Indian prisoners. At Diepkloof the prisoners were compelled to carry slop-pails. This work is most repugnant to most Indians, but the majority of us consider that, as passive resisters, we should not object to doing any work no matter how offensive it may be, so long as we are physically able to perform it. One among us, however, made it a matter of conscience and for that reason suffered 33 days’ solitary confinement and half rations for the greater part of this period. I say nothing as to minor matters, such as constant insults by warders both European and Native. Most of the warders, contrary to regulations, insist upon Indian prisoners addressing them as Sir, &c.

I do not know why this time the Government have left me alone and not deported me. The almost complete ruin that has overtaken my business requires my presence in Natal for the time being. My health, too, demands attention. But I venture to assure the Government that there are some Indians at least left, including myself, who will not be broken, no matter what hardships they are subjected to, and I shall soon have the privilege of affording the Government an opportunity of sending me to Diepkoof or any other place they choose.

I am, &c.,

PARSEE RUSTOMJEE JEEVANJEE

Colonial Office Records: C.D. 5363

APPENDIX XIX

TOLSTOY’S LETTER TO GANDHIJI

YASNAYA POLYANA,
May 8, 1910

DEAR FRIEND,

I just received your letter and your book Indian Home Rule.

I read your book with great interest because I think that the question you treat in it—the passive resistance—is a question of the greatest importance not only for India but for the whole humanity.

I could not find your former letters, but came across your biography by J. Doss3 which too interested me much deeply and gave me the possibility to know and understand you better.

I am at present not quite well and therefore abstain from writing to you all what I have to say about your book and all your work which I appreciate very much, but I will do it as soon as I will feel better.

Your friend and brother.

Mahatma, Vol. I

3 In fact, by Rev. J. J. Doke; vide “Letter to Lord Ampthill”, 10-11-1909
1. JOHANNESBURG

Monday [April 11, 1910]

SENT TO DELAGOA BAY

Mr. Achary and 37 other satyagrahis were sent from Pretoria to Delagoa Bay on Saturday. Six of them were certainly not satyagrahis. I cannot say whether they have become so by now. All of them who bear Tamil names are satyagrahis. Thus, the Tamils have been keeping the flag of satyagraha flying. I have given the Tamil names in the English section\(^1\) and therefore do not give them here.

SHIPS REFUSE

I reported in the English section\(^2\) last week that some ships had refused to carry those persons who have been deported. I cannot say how far the report is true. But it appears that they have failed to get a ship so far. If India exerts sufficient pressure, no ship will dare carry the deportees. There is strong reason to believe that those who have been deported this time will rouse the whole of India to protest.

CHETTIAR\(^3\)

[He] was today ordered to be deported and was taken to gaol. Mr. Chettiar is about 55 years of age. He suffers from a chronic ailment, and yet he is facing deportation with the utmost courage. He is to be deported to Natal, from where he will return immediately.

OTHER ARRESTS

Mr. Chinan Diala\(^4\) and Selmar Pillay were arrested and they, too, have been ordered to be deported.

---

1. Vide “From ‘Transvaal Notes’ ”, 12-4-1910
2. Vide “From ‘Transvaal Notes’ ”, 4-4-1910
3. V. A. Chettiar, respected old Chairman of the Tamil Benefit Society, who had been arrested on April 5. Vide “Transvaal Notes”, Indian Opinion, 9-4-1910.
4. Vide, however, “Transvaal Notes”, Indian Opinion, 16-4-1910, where the name given is Anandi Alvar.
Karodia

The case against the two Karodias¹ has been withdrawn. One of them was charged with using a false permit and the other with making a false affidavit.

The police had spared no pains in preparing for this case. They had called the Immigration Officer at Durban, Mr. Moosa Hajee Adam and others as witnesses; however, the case was withdrawn at the last moment.

The fact is that some Indians, out of spite, had made an affidavit and also induced someone else to make another against the two brothers. Later they felt sorry for what they had done. They found it very difficult to prove, their statements, for there was ample evidence to show that Mr. Karodia had lived in Johannesburg before the War. I think the Government withdrew the cases in order to protect the persons who had given the affidavits.

Mr. Karodia does not intend to leave the matter here, but will approach the Attorney General for relief in order to make an example of the men concerned and prevent similar things from happening to other prominent persons.

Whether Coloured persons can stay

In Johannesburg, many title-deeds contain a provision to the effect that the landowners cannot permit Asiatics or Coloured persons other than servants to stay on their lands. This is so in Norwood [also]. A certain white bought a stand there. Later, he discovered that at several places there were Coloured persons staying. He filed a suit against the company to have his title-deed nullified on this ground. The magistrate decided against the company. The case was taken higher up. The Supreme Court has now ruled that, notwithstanding the provision in the title-deeds, the company cannot be held responsible. The owner of a stand can, if he chooses, file a suit against any person who permits Coloured persons to stay [on the stand]. Accordingly, the Coloureds will stay where they are, for the present at least. We must now wait till there is another suit; its outcome is anybody’s guess. The saying, “having survived a moment of danger, we may live to be a hundred years”, might come true in this case.

¹ Messrs Karodia Brothers, well-known Indian merchants of Johannesburg; vide “Letter to Attorney General”, 14-4-1910
LORD SELBORNE

The miners gave a dinner to Lord Selborne. Speaking on the occasion, he gave a warning to the whites that, if they were not careful and persisted in their unjust treatment of the Cape Coloureds, the consequences would be unhappy. Men would arise from among them who would become leaders of the Kaffirs. Lord Selborne thought that this was the biggest problem facing South Africa.

These views call for some comment. It does not appear that in saying this Lord Selborne was actuated by concern for the welfare of the Coloured people; he said it only because he feared the emergence of a leader from among them. Their sincere well-wishers, however, should welcome the rise of such leaders—the more the better—and encourage them.

RAILWAY REGULATIONS

The General Manager, the Assistant Manager, Mr. Bell, Mr. Cachalia and Mr. Gandhi met today. After a discussion lasting nearly an hour and a half, the draft which the Association had forwarded was accepted with some modifications. The General Manager stated that he would recommend to the Railway Board the withdrawal of the Regulations which had been promulgated and that [new] regulations would be framed in terms of the draft as approved by him. According to the draft-agreement, there will be no discrimination in law on the ground of colour. The existing provision that Indians can travel only in the third class will be deleted and the former position will be restored.

CAUTION TO INDIANS

This will be a welcome change, no doubt. That it has come about shows that the Indian community is not to be trifled with. But the Indian community’s responsibility will also increase. There will, of course, be no difficulty if we bear ourselves with dignity; should we, however, forget ourselves, difficulties will certainly arise and discriminatory regulations will be introduced.

SHOP HOURS REGULATIONS

These Regulations are again to be modified. The most important change will be that European hotels will be allowed to remain open up to 12 midnight, whereas Asiatic hotels will have to close at 6 p.m. I do not see that we can do much to protest against this discrimination; all the same, the Association has written to the Colonial Secretary about it.

ROW AMONG KANAMIAS

Kanamia friends had their fill of fighting. They went at one another on a public road, a large number of whites watching the scene. Three of them sustained serious injuries. The brawlers got a bad name, and the Indian community as well, to some extent. Fighting has brought no benefit to either party. Benefit there will be only for the Government and lawyers. Both the sides have engaged lawyers and it seems, from the way they talk, that money will be spent like water.

The story that has been circulated by newspapers is that this was a dispute between satyagrahis and their opponents. Mr. Cachalia has therefore addressed a letter to newspapers, pointing out that the quarrel had nothing to do whatever with satyagraha.

I wish to say a few words to the Kanamias. I know, and everyone knows, that they are strong of arms; they are making a big mistake, however, if they imagine that such brawls add to their reputation. The reason for the quarrel is of no account. I am not interested in finding out who is to blame. I only know that the fighting has helped neither side. However, those who are in love with physical strength and want occasions for its use would do well to employ it, not for purposes of revenge but in defence of others.

Moreover, those who would fight, must fight it out to the last, be the end death or victory. To start a fight and then go to a court of law is cowardice twice over. To use violence against anyone is cowardly enough, but going to a court is much worse. If a man, after having fought, goes to a court, he will prove himself fit for nothing.

Duelling survives to this day in all parts of Europe, except England. The idea behind it is that two persons actually fight with each other in order to prove himself in the right and the one who is defeated is considered to have lost his point. It is not open to these persons to go to a court of law [subsequently]. I must admit that, from the point of view of those who approve of violence, this is an excellent

1 Vide “Letter to Colonial Secretary”, 12-4-1910
2 Muslims from Kaman, in Central Gujarat
3 Vide “Letter to the Press”, 8-4-1910
practice.

But those who know that it is better to die than to kill, they know best; they have conquered all. This is the Indian way.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 16-4-1910

2. FROM “TRANSVAAL NOTES”

Tuesday [April 12, 1910]

The following were transferred to Delagoa Bay on Saturday, the 9th instant:¹ Messrs Veera Pillay, S. Manikam, N. G. Pillay, N. K. Pillay, Govinda Chetty, Joe Chinanan, Mootu Moonian, David Solomon, Moonosamy Paul, Moonosamy Chellen, Nurisumu Appen, Tommy Govindasamy, Letkey, Abbie Naidoo, John Edward, T. A. S. Achary, C. Narainsamy, R. C. Peter, L. Morgan, Chella Pathar, R. Moonosamy, John Lazarus, David Marrian, Francis Baker, Albert Baker, K. Chinasamy Pillay, H. V. Jackson, M. Jimmey, E. M. David, L. Govindasamy, D. Arumugam, Willie Lazarus, S. Moonosamy, Veerasamy Naidoo, Goolam Mahomed, Jiram Vallab, Noor Ali, and Rathanjee Ranchhod. Of these I am not sure that the last four are passive resisters, but they may have become such after coming into contact with the fine body of men in the Pretoria Police Barracks.

Indian Opinion, 16-4-1910

3. LETTER TO DIRECTOR OF PRISONS²

[JOHANNESBURG,]

April 12, 1910

SIR,

I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. 1459/10/247 of the 9th instant regarding the general treatment of Indian passive resisters in prison.

The submission of my Association is that the selection of Diepkloof Prison where alone the limitation of three months as regards visitors and letters prevails, is deemed by the Asiatic communities to show an intention to impose hardships additional to those warranted by the punishment awarded by the Magistrates to passive resisters.

¹ Vide the preceding item.
² This letter, presumably drafted by Gandhiji, was signed by E. I. Aswat, Acting Chairman, British Indian Association.
With reference to the omission of ghee from the Indian dietary, my Association is aware that the Prison Governors have chosen the present scale. The fact, however, stands that the revision of the scale has resulted in the deprivation of an article of diet which was given to Indian prisoners in most of the prisons of the Transvaal, and which is an article especially needed by British Indians. In the humble opinion of my Association, the Prison Governors have taken no note of idiosyncrasies in deciding upon the revised scale.

Indian Opinion, 16-4-1910

4. LETTER TO GENERAL MANAGER, C.S.A.R.

JOHANNESBURG,

April 12, 1910

SIR,

On behalf of Mr. Cachalia and myself, I beg to thank you for your letter of the 11th instant, containing a summary of [the] understanding arrived at yesterday between your Department and Mr. Cachalia and myself representing the British Indian Association. The summary given by you correctly sets forth the position; and, on behalf of my colleague and myself, I beg to tender our thanks to you for the conciliatory manner in which you have met the representations of my Association in the matter of the gazetted regulations which have formed the subject matter of the correspondence between your Department and my Association.

Whilst I acknowledge that the smooth working of the arrangement will depend upon the self-restraint that may be exercised by the British Indians it is no less dependent upon the tact and the goodwill of the officials in charge of the regulation of passenger traffic. In conclusion, I trust that the Transvaal and the Orange River Colony Governments and the Railway Board will accept your recommendation, and that the regulations complained of will be repealed and replaced by those set forth in your letter under reply.

I have, etc.,

M. K. GANDHI

HON. SECRETARY,

BRITISH INDIAN ASSOCIATION

From a photostat of the original: Cd 5363; also

Indian Opinion, 16-4-1910

5. LETTER TO COLONIAL SECRETARY

[JOHANNESBURG,]
April 12, 1910

SIR,

With reference to the Shop Hours Bill published in the Government Gazette, my Association respectfully protests against the distinction drawn between the closing hours of European restaurants and those of Asiatic eating-houses; and, as it cannot be of serious importance to the Government if the same privileges are allowed to the keepers of Asiatic eating-houses, my Association trusts that the differentiation will be removed.

Indian Opinion, 16-4-1910

6. LETTER TO J. X. MERRIMAN

21-24 COURT CHAMBERS,
CORNER RISSIK & ANDERSON STREET,
JOHANNESBURG,
April 13, 1910

DEAR MR. MERRIMAN,

I am taking the liberty of sending you a copy of Indian Home Rule which is a translation by me of a Gujarati booklet I wrote during the return voyage. Busy though you are, I hope that you will find time to go through it; and if you could favour me with your opinion on it, I should greatly appreciate it.

I am,
Yours truly,
M. K. GANDHI

THE RT. HON. JOHN X. MERRIMAN
CAPE TOWN

From a photostat: Gandhiji’s Letters to Merriman. Courtesy: South African Library, Cape Town

1 This letter, presumably drafted by Gandhiji, was signed by E. I. Aswat, Acting Chairman, British Indian Association.

2 Vide “Johannesburg”, 11-4-1910

3 Hind Swaraj
7. LETTER TO ATTORNEY GENERAL

[JOHANNESBURG,]
April 14, 1910

SIR,

Messrs M. A. Karodia and A. A. Karodia were some time ago arrested, the one on a charge of having obtained a registration certificate under false pretences, and the other on a charge of having made a false affidavit. After two remands, both cases were withdrawn, without any evidence having been given on behalf of the Crown. Messrs Karodia Brothers are well-known British Indian merchants in Johannesburg. To this day, they do not know upon what evidence the charge was brought against them. Their arrest caused no little surprise amongst the Indian community, and no little pain to themselves. They were fully prepared, as they are now, to meet the charges brought against them. That they are merchants of standing is a fact well known to the Asiatic Department. They feel, that, if they allow the proceedings against them to end, after the withdrawal of the charges, neither they nor their fellow-merchants could consider themselves safe from similar arrest. In the circumstances, they request that the names of the deponents on whose evidence the warrant was granted and their affidavits should be handed to them. And they respectfully desire also that the Government will be pleased in future to use judicious discretion in obtaining warrants of arrest against Indians of standing.

Indian Opinion, 23-4-1910

8. SUBSTANCE OF LETTER TO L. W. RITCH

[After April 14, 1910]¹

In connection with this matter, Mr. Ritch writes to inform us that he has received a letter from Mr. Gandhi, stating that the excuse for sending these men to India is that they refused to give finger-prints to identify themselves with their certificates, which documents were already filed with the Registrar. He explains that the excuse is invalid, because most of these men have already been to gaol as passive resisters, and are consequently known to the authorities. He adds that deportation for refusal to give finger-prints is illegal, the punishment provided for the offence being imprisonment and not deportation, and confirms the report that many of the deportees were domiciled in South Africa.

India, 13-5-1910

¹ The reference is to the fifty-nine Indians deported on 14-4-1910; vide “Johannesburg”, 18-4-1910
9. TAMIL SACRIFICE

The arrest of Mr. Chettiar, the fifty-five-year-old Chairman of the Tamil Society, puts the finishing touch to the glorious work that is being done by the Tamil community in the Transvaal on behalf not of themselves but of the whole Indian population throughout South Africa. Nearly one hundred Tamils are now under custody, either undergoing imprisonment at Diepkloof or awaiting deportation, which, for many reasons, is much worse than imprisonment. There is hardly a Tamil left in the Transvaal who has not suffered imprisonment in the course of the passive resistance struggle. Mr. Chettiar himself has been now arrested for the third time, his son, as we have already remarked, for the seventh time. These brave men have reduced themselves to poverty and have sacrificed literally their all for the sake of the national honour and their sacred oath. It has become such a common occurrence for Tamils to be arrested that it excites no curiosity and attention. Mr. Chettiar, who was at one time in flourishing circumstances, has now become a pauper. We have seen some of the receipts for the jewellery which has been sold in order to provide for the household. In view of sacrifices such as these, he must be a godless person who would for one moment doubt that a community that can boast such heroes can ever fail to attain its goal.

Indian Opinion, 16-4-1910

10. THE LATE MR. WOODHEAD

In the death of Mr. Woodhead, the Indian community of Natal has, along with the European, sustained a severe loss. The late gentleman, who met with such an untimely end the other day, had held a responsible position on the editorial staff of The Natal Mercury for a period of 28 years. During the time that he was Managing Editor, the Mercury has in all matters relating to the Coloured communities of the Colony, maintained a high standard and has on many occasions struck the note of warning against race hatred and colour prejudice. It is fitting that the various Indian associations of

---

1 Vide also “Well Done, Chettiar!”, 16-4-1910 and Letter to Director of Prisons”, 19-4-1910
2 He was run over by a motor car on April 11, 1910.
3 The Natal Indian Congress, the Durban Indian society, etc. Vide “Death of Mr. Woodhead”, Indian Opinion, 16-4-1910.
Durban have expressed their sense of sorrow and loss, and we join with them in offering our deepest sympathy with the widow and children of the departed journalist.

Indian Opinion, 16-4-1910

11. G. K. GOKHALE’S SERVICES

The Hon’ble Professor Gokhale has rendered an invaluable service. He has always helped us, but his work in the Legislative Council is a very precious achievement. The resolution that he moved for the prohibition of indentured labour and the speech he made on the occasion are worth reading. The latter gives a vivid account of the condition of Indians in all parts of South Africa. The speech has evoked appreciative comments even from English newspapers. We see that he advocated the prohibition of indenture on the ground that it was [in its very nature] an evil thing. That is as it should have been.

Prof. Gokhale was followed by other Indian members. We propose to give translations of all the speeches in the issues that will follow. They will show to all readers how profound has been the effect of the Transvaal campaign.

Prof. Gokhale certainly deserves thanks for what he has done. We hope public bodies in all the Colonies will shower resolutions of thanks on him.

We gather from the newspapers that the whole of India gives credit for this achievement to Mr. Polak. At the conclusion of the meeting, congratulations were offered to him.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 16-4-1910

---

2 Ibid
12. TRANSVAAL PARLIAMENT

Indians had hoped that the Transvaal Parliament would do something; that was our hope, too. However, it is now clear that it will do nothing to make a settlement possible. How can we expect a settlement? The weakening of the Indian community has raised further hopes in the Transvaal Government. It thought that if it waited longer, all the Indians would quietly surrender. We are sure that it is because of this calculation that nothing is being brought forward in Parliament. This does not dishearten us. We do not want to obtain anything by misrepresenting facts. We rely on our own strength. There are some strong men who in any case will fight till death, so that the ultimate victory of Indians is not in doubt. When we shall celebrate that victory depends upon how many of us put forth our strength.

[From Gujarati]
Indian Opinion, 16-4-1910

13. WELL DONE, CHETTIAR!

Even the Indians who have given in will have their hair standing on end if they read Mr. Chettiar’s case. He is an elderly man and the leader of the Tamil community. He has served two terms of imprisonment. His son has been to gaol a number of times; now he has been ordered to be deported to India. Mr. Chettiar has worked hard from outside without fear of being arrested. He has been arrested now. He has paid no attention to his ailment. He has lost all his wealth. Every hair on his body thrills with the determination to die for the sake of honour, for the sake of the motherland and the pledge, rather than surrender. He is installed in Marshal Square, a smile on his face. We hope every Indian, old or young, big or small, will be infected by Mr. Chettiar’s spirit and be proud of his name.

[From Gujarati]
Indian Opinion, 16-4-1910
14. SHOULD LORD GLADSTONE BE HONOURED?

Lord Gladstone will shortly arrive here as Governor-General of South Africa. Indians in all the Colonies must be wanting to know whether or not we should honour him.

Considering our situation from every point of view, we think it will not be proper for us to honour Lord Gladstone. Whom can we honour in a land in which we ourselves are despised? What honour can we give to the representative of a Government which refuses justice to us? This is one line of thinking.

On the other hand, there is the argument that if we are not afraid of demanding our rights, it is because the British flag flies over this land. We want to live in amity with the people of this country. We want to protect our honour. He who insists on being respected himself will always respect others. He who values self-respect will never be rude to others. In honouring the representative of the Emperor, we shall only be honouring ourselves. This is another line of thinking. According to this, we see nothing wrong in presenting an address to Lord Gladstone as a matter of courtesy. Giving an address, not by way of flattery but by way of courtesy, can be justified. Whether or not an address is justified will depend upon the attitude behind it.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 16-4-1910

15. JOHANNESBURG

Monday [April 18, 1910]

RELEASED

Perumal and Mr. Govindsamy were discharged last week after six weeks of imprisonment.

FAKIRA AND OTHERS

The brave Mr. Fakira was arrested again last Saturday. He was tried today and ordered to be deported to India. He is determined to return from India immediately.

Mr. Naransamy and Mr. Kistapa were arrested today. Besides these, Messrs Dayal Ramji, Cassim Ibrahim, Vally Adam, Isa Adam and Odav Bhikha have been ordered to be deported. These five are not satyagrahis but they could not prevent their arrest and deportation.

CHETTIAR

Messrs Chettiar, Morgan and Francis were sentenced to three months on the 15th.

SHELAT RETURNS

Mr. Shelat is already in the Transvaal. He has been arrested, and his case will come up on Tuesday.

59 DEPORTED

How sad it is that Indians, sent to India, have to be treated as having been deported. However, we cannot help so describing the 59 Indians who were sent to India by the Umhloti on the 14th instant. No ship has so far agreed to carry these brave men to India. Some of the young Indians who have been sent away were born in this country, some have lived here from their childhood and some have left their families here. Some, moreover, are residents of Natal or, being educated, are entitled to go over there. It is the extreme limit of tyranny that all these men have been sent away to India. Many of these Indians had taken out voluntary registers. I am sure that all of them will return in a very short time.

Some of these men fell ill in Delagoa Bay. Mr. Samy Krister had to be removed to hospital. It is our good fortune that, despite this, not a single Indian is dispirited.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 23-4-1910

---

16. LETTER TO DIRECTOR OF PRISONS

[JOHANNESBURG,]
April 19, 1910

SIR,

Mr. V. A. Chettiar, who is an elderly member of the Indian community and is Chairman of the Tamil Benefit Society, has been for the third time sentenced to be imprisoned as a passive resister. This time he has been sentenced at Volksrust, my Association believes, with hard labour. I venture to draw your attention to the fact that Mr. Chettiar has a constitutional disease, and that at Johannesburg the Magistrate imposed only light labour. My Association is not aware what is being done with Mr. Chettiar at Volksrust, but, as he is hardly able to walk the distance that he will probably have to cover between Johannesburg and Diepkloof on his removal ultimately to Diepkloof, I beg to draw attention to the information I have given above, and to hope that suitable precautions will be taken, so that Mr. Chettiar’s health may not suffer. According to the information received by my Association, Mr. Chettiar is still at Volksrust Gaol.

---

1 This letter, presumably drafted by Gandhiji, was signed by A. M. Cachalia, Chairman, British Indian Association.

_Indian Opinion, 23-4-1910_

17. THOSE DEPORTATIONS

Never has a steamer leaving the South African shore for the Indian carried a more precious human cargo than that carried by the _Umhloti_ last week. That ship has sailed with some sixty passive resisters unlawfully deported to India from the Transvaal under an administrative order based on the flimsiest evidence and from which there is no appeal to the usual courts of that Colony. Who are these passive resisters? They are most of them men who have been voluntarily registered, and are all domiciled in the Transvaal. Most of them have served their imprisonment as passive resisters. Some of them are lads born in South Africa. Some are domiciled also in Natal, and some have a right to enter Natal or the Cape on the ground of possessing educational qualifications. And many have left families behind them. These families, but for the timely assistance from India, would be starving.

And why have these men been deported? We were told at one time that those who were voluntarily registered would not be deported. But now the Asiatic officials have discovered that they can get rid of voluntarily registered passive resisters also. These men are called upon to produce their certificates. They say they have burnt the documents. Then they are asked to give their signatures and finger prints. These the passive resisters naturally decline to give. Now both these omissions—the omission to produce the certificates and the one to give signatures, etc.—are crimes carrying a high penalty. But the zealous officials do not wish to adopt the regular course of prosecuting the men. They assume that the men have no certificates at all and, therefore, insist on their deportation under an administrative inquiry. They contend that if they do not follow this course, any Asiatic may pretend that he has been voluntarily registered and thus “merely go to gaol”. There is a double fallacy in this argument. For the man who so pretends, still goes to gaol, and having gone to gaol, he has to give finger impressions which ensure detection of any such pretension. And if an examination of finger impressions should betray the man, he would be liable to be committed for perjury in addition to an order for deportation. Moreover, the above argument cannot hold water, seeing that such well-known stalwarts like Messrs Chettiar and Quinn have also been deported. The policy clearly is to subject passive resisters to a treatment such that they cannot bear it. We shall see what success attends the efforts of the Asiatic Department.

Indian Opinion, 23-4-1910

18. JOURNALISTS’ DUTY

We find the following report in a newspaper received from India.

The manager and the editor of the Gujarat Patra, published from Nadiad, had been served with a notice by Mr. Chakravarti, the District Magistrate of Kaira, under section 124 of the Indian Penal Code, to show cause why they should not be prosecuted. When the case came up for hearing at Anand before the District Magistrate, it was stated by the defendants’ advocate, Mr. Maganbhai Chaturbhai Patel, B.A., LL.B., that the matter in respect of which the notice had been issued was a translation of an English letter and that the respondents had no unlawful intention in publishing it. At the same time, he expressed regret for [the publication of] the matter whereupon the notice which had been issued was withdrawn.

We are sorry for the manager and the editor. What happened to them may now happen to any other newspaper. A time may come when here, too, the same condition will prevail. However, we see that just now it is not so, with the result that the full force of what we say cannot be appreciated. It may appear somewhat presumptuous for a man who is not himself caught in a fire to write anything about those who are. However, some general comments will not be considered out of place on this occasion.

---

1 Chairman of the Transvaal Chinese Association; vide “The Supreme Court Case”, 7-5-1910

We think the editors of all such newspapers, which do not run with a commercial motive but only with a view to public service, must be prepared to face extinction at any moment. It is obvious that all newspapers do not come within the scope of this rule, but only those which aim at public service by advocating reforms in the Government or among the people or in both.

What should an editor do when something he has published displeases the Government or is held to violate some law, but is none the less true? Should he apologize? We would say, certainly not. True, he is not bound to publish such matter, but once it has been published, the editor ought to accept responsibility for it.

This raises a very important issue. If the principle we have laid down is correct, it follows that, if any provocative writing has been published unintentionally and no apology is offered for the same, the newspaper will in consequence be prevented from rendering other services as well and the community will go without that benefit. We would not, therefore, apply this principle to matter published unintentionally, but it should apply to what is published after full deliberation. If a newspaper runs into difficulties for publishing any such matter, we think the closing down of the newspaper will be a better service to the public. The argument that in that case one may have to face the confiscation of all one’s property and be reduced to poverty has no force. Such a contingency may certainly arise, and it was precisely for this reason that we said that the editor of a journal devoted to public service must be ever ready for death.

Let us take one or two obvious illustrations. Suppose that in a certain region there obtains the cruel practice of *kanya-vikraya*¹. A reformer starts a newspaper there and writes strongly against this practice. Those who follow the practice are angry with him and decide to outcaste him if he does not apologize. We are sure the reformer ought to go on writing against offering girls in marriage for a price, even if he has to face total ruin or be outcast for that, and, when he is left without a single pie, he should close down the newspaper; he must not apologize, whatever happens. It is only by such conduct that he can prepare the ground for rooting out the practice.

Let us take another illustration. Suppose that the Government has committed a gross injustice and robbed the poor. A progressive newspaper is being published in such a place. It writes against the oppressive measure and advises the people to disregard the unjust law of the Government. The Government takes offence and threatens confiscation of property if no apology is forthcoming. Should the reformer apologize? We think the reply is again the same, that he should stand the confiscation of his property and close down the newspaper but certainly not offer an apology. The people would then see that, if the reformer could lose his all for their sake, they should also in their own interest oppose the law. If the reformer should apologize, the effect on the people would exactly be the reverse of this. They would know that the man would not be concerned overmuch even if their houses were on fire, that, from a safe distance, he would only indulge in meaningless declamations. When he himself ran into trouble [they would say], he meekly retired. And so they will think of doing likewise and resign themselves to the inevitable. They will thus argue themselves into greater weakness. It is, therefore, clear in this instance that the best service that the reformer can render will be to stop the newspaper.

¹ Demanding a price for a girl (offered in marriage)

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 23-4-1910

19. “AS ONE SOWS ONE REAPS”

We all know this saying, but most of us go the opposite way and desire the reverse of what we do. Stay-at-homes, we want to be wealthy. Though we eat too much, we will have no indigestion. We would not work, but hope to have all our desires fulfilled. We deserve hell for our deeds, but wish to go to heaven. In newspapers from India, we come across accounts of the miserable condition of the bhangis\(^\dagger\) and other castes. These castes are despised by some so-called civilized Indians. The Maharaja of Baroda has passed an order for the admission of members of these castes to public schools. Some Indians, claiming to belong to higher castes, have protested against this and are putting difficulties in the way of the Maharaja. This is how we behave as a nation, and yet we do not want to pay the price for this and would not submit to the treatment meted out to us in South Africa. How can we escape [retribution]? Recently, an Indian judge in Madras made some severe remarks [on our behaviour]. He does not mind, he says, our kicking up a row about South Africa, but complains that we look down upon our own people, think ourselves defiled by their touch, keep them at a distance from us and grind them under our heels; he wants to know why we do not seek to remedy this state of affairs. “Why do we not, instead of lashing out at the whites, rain lashes on our own backs?” he asks.

\(^\dagger\) Scavengers

We have no answer to this charge. True, we can say something for ourselves. But we do not think it necessary to say it here.

To be sure, Indians in South Africa must take a lesson from their present condition. They must realize that it would not do for them, on returning to India, to treat the bhangis with contempt. If those who have been putting difficulties in the way of the Maharaja Gaekwar are representative specimens of high-caste Hindus, a time will come when birth in a bhangi family will confer great honour. The contemptuous attitude of the [caste] Hindu towards the bhangis and others is a striking illustration of the length to which man is carried by pride and selfishness. We should like every wise and decent Hindu to pray, “O God! Save me from this pride and this selfishness”, and to be granted the strength to fight this tyranny.

[From Gujarati]
Indian Opinion, 23-4-1910

20. LETTER TO MILLIE GRAHAM POLAK
April 24, 1910

MY DEAR MILLIE,

Henry is a tender flower. The slightest breeze ruffles his spirits. You and I divide him. When he is in such a mood, you can make him happy and to a lesser degree I. But alas! he can just now have neither you nor me. The publication and confiscation of the little book of mine have disconcerted him a bit. There is no occasion for it. I have written to him at length. And then the wretched pecuniary business. He gives me the position of an elder brother and yet would not be content with my taking over the pecuniary burden. I wish you would not discuss money matters with him at all. You may do all that when you are together again. Let me alone have all your pecuniary needs. He has enough to occupy his attention besides worrying about money matters which he hates.

1 K. Srinivas Rao, Sub-judge, presiding at a meeting at Tuticorin; Vide “The Beam in India’s Eye”, Indian Opinion, 23-4-1910.
2 In the matter of his admitting children of the bhangis to public schools; vide “Retribution”, Indian Opinion, 23-4-1910.

The farm idea is still progressing. Hosken has offered a portion of his farm. If this thing comes off, I may shift very soon. It promises to be a mighty thing if it comes off.

I was sorry to learn about Mater’s and Celia’s trouble. It seems useless to inquire after a lapse of a month as to how they are getting on.

From what you say, it is evident that winter has not in any way affected Waldo.

With love to you all,

BROTHER

From the original: Gandhi-Polak Correspondence. Courtesy: National Archives of India

21. PETITION TO TRANSVAAL LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY

April 25, 1910

1. Your Petitioner has read a private Bill to amend certain laws relating to the Municipality of Pretoria, and to confer further powers upon the Council thereof.

2. Your Petitioner, on behalf of the Association, respectfully protests against Section 5 of the Bill, in so far as it relates to the application of certain Regulations of Towns, dated the 25th day of October, 1899, to the Pretoria Municipality, inasmuch as these Regulations constitute an attack on the rights of British Indians, among others, in respect of the use of side-walks.

3. Your Petitioner therefore prays that this Honourable House will be pleased to remove from Section 5 the portion herein before referred to, or grant such other relief as to it may seem meet. And for this act of justice and mercy, your Petitioner will, as in duty bound, for ever pray.

Indian Opinion, 30-4-1910

1 This petition, presumably drafted by Gandhiji, was sent over the signature of E. I. Aswat, Acting Chairman, British Indian Association.
JOHANNESBURG,
April 25, 1910

DEAR PROFESSOR GOKHALE,

In answer to my cable\(^1\) of the 6th December last, you cabled inquiring what funds were required, and in my replying cable I stated as follows:

Present requirements thousand pounds. Expect imprisonment before end month. Much more required later.

On the same day, I wrote to you\(^3\) how the funds are being dealt with. In that letter, I told you that the debt incurred in conducting Phoenix by me personally was paid out of the amount received from you. This covers over £1,200. I gave you also the following approximate summary of monthly expenses:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Item</th>
<th>Amount</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Office here</td>
<td>£50</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Office London</td>
<td>£40</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Indian Opinion</td>
<td>£50</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Distressed families</td>
<td>£25</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

In your letter replying to mine, you were good enough to inform me that the expenses were in order.

In view of the certainty of prolongation of the struggle yet for some considerable time, it is necessary for me to give you a resume of receipts and expenditure, and of the events to date. The monies obtained to date since December last are as follows:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Item</th>
<th>Amount</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>From Bombay</td>
<td>4,253 3 4</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>From Rangoon</td>
<td>750 0 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>From London</td>
<td>135 8 2</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>From Mozambique</td>
<td>50 0 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>From Zanzibar</td>
<td>59 3 6</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>From Lourenco Marques</td>
<td>11 12 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>From Natal</td>
<td>8 16 0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Local</td>
<td>1 7 7</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

\[ \text{Total: £5,269 10 7} \]

The Bombay fund is divided into two parts—£3,914-10-0 has

---

2. Not available
3. Vide “Letter to G. K. Gokhale”, 6-12-1909 been sent to be used for carrying on the struggle generally, and £338-13-4 has been earmarked for relief of distress among the passive resistors or their dependants. These instructions have been closely followed. The remittances from Rangoon as also from London have, like the earmarked fund from Bombay, been devoted to the relief of distress only.

Your letter, as also Mr. Petit’s, has left the expenditure to my discretion, and I have considered it best to avail myself of that latitude. The funds are banked to a separate account, called the Passive Resistance Fund Account, in the Natal Bank, Johannesburg. So far as the Bank is concerned, I alone operate upon them. No special and formal committee has been organized, nor are the funds treated as part of the British Indian Association Account. The British Indian Association covers a wider range than that of passive resistance. Disbursements are made in consultation with or subject to the approval of Mr. Cachalia, who is the President of the British Indian Association, and other passive resisters.

The Phoenix debt represented a personal debt incurred by me from European friends and clients by reason of the necessity of having to continue Indian Opinion under somewhat adverse circumstances and at a loss in the interests of the struggle. I have devoted to the continuance of Indian Opinion and the establishment of Phoenix all my earnings during my last stay in South Africa, that is, nearly £5,000. I derive no pecuniary benefit from Phoenix, the support of my family and myself being found by a European friend1. Those Europeans and Indians who are my co-workers at Phoenix receive as a rule only what they need, and are practically under a vow of poverty. Certain alterations have been made in the management of Phoenix, which I am glad to be able to say have so far enabled the continuance of the paper without the monthly assistance referred to in my letter. The Committee in London is being financed on a most economic basis. I have to make the same remark in connection with the offices here. The expenditure [up] to the 20th instant is as follows:

| | | | |
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th></th>
<th></th>
<th></th>
<th></th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Local Expenses</td>
<td>374 11 8</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>London Office</td>
<td>175 15 0</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Relief of Distress</td>
<td>449 11 11</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Relief apart from Distress Fund</td>
<td>50 0 0</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

1 Hermann Kallenbach
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Indian Opinion Debt</th>
<th>1,200</th>
<th>0</th>
<th>0</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Total</td>
<td>£2,249</td>
<td>18</td>
<td>7</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

This leaves a balance of £3,019/12/-. The monthly expenses for relieving distress have, however, as you see, gone forward, and, whereas, in the month of December only £25 was paid, on the present basis it comes to nearly £160 per month, over fifty families receiving support. Local expenses, besides the carrying on of the office here, include travelling expenses of passive resisters from Durban, etc., as also cables and such other disbursements. The above expenditure covers a period of four months and a half. Excluding relief expenditure and the item for the Indian Opinion debt, the average monthly expense is nearly £133. The expenses for supporting distressed families are bound to increase as time passes. I, therefore, put them down at £200 per month. The average monthly expense then may be put down at £333. The balance of £3,019/12/- may thus be exhausted about the month of January next.

Nearly £50 is being paid towards rent due by the families in distress. We have, therefore, been considering the advisability of removing them to a farm, where women as well as men could do something to earn a living, and where we should probably be able to save half of what is now being paid for relief. There was the difficulty about a capital outlay on a farm. Mr. Cachalia, others who were out of gaol and I were even prepared to risk that outlay in the hope of being able to sell the farm, if necessary, at the close of the struggle, but a large outlay will probably not be required, as a European friend has offered to buy a farm and place it at the disposal of the passive resisters during the continuance of the struggle, free of charge.¹ This very generous offer has been almost accepted and by the time this letter is in your hands, he may have secured a suitable farm, in which [case] all the distressed families and I should be living together on the farm.

The expenses detailed above take no note of relief that is being granted privately by individuals.

The estimate I gave you of active passive resisters I now see was an under-estimate, and many whom I did not consider would come forward are now either serving imprisonment or have been deported. The Authorities have been of late very active in effecting arrests, particularly of the brave Tamils, than whom no [other] Indians have done better in connection with the struggle. These brave men have time after time courted imprisonment. There are over thirty at present at the Diepkloof Gaol, which is a penal settlement, in which the regulations are more severe than in the other prisons of the Transvaal. Nearly sixty have been deported by the Umhloti and over thirty may be deported any day, orders for deportation having been already made. I cannot write about these deportations with sufficient restraint.

¹ Vide “Letter to H. Kallenbach”, 30-5-1910

All these men are domiciled in the Transvaal; some of them are domiciled also in Natal; some, again, have a right to enter Natal, being able to pass the education test imposed under the immigration law of that Colony. Some are mere lads born in the Transvaal or other parts of South Africa, and many have left behind them families that have been reared in this country. I come into constant touch with the brave wives, sisters or mothers of the deported men. I once asked them whether they would like to go with the deported to India, and they indignantly remarked: “How can we? We were brought to this country as children, and we do not know anybody in India. We would rather perish here than go to India, which is a foreign land to us.” However regrettable this attitude of mind may be from a national standpoint, the fact remains that these men and women are rooted to the South African soil. Many of these men before the struggle commenced earned a decent living. Some of them had stores, some were trolley-contractors, and others were hawkers, cigar-makers, waiters, etc., the employees earning a minimum wage of £6 and a maximum of £15, whereas the trolley-contractors and others who followed an independent calling earned as much as from £20 to £30 per month. All these are now reduced to poverty, and their families receive from the Passive Resistance Fund the barest sustenance money.

I may mention for your information that it was stated at one time by the Government that those who were voluntarily registered in the Transvaal as many of these deported men are, were not deported at all, and that those who were domiciled in parts of South Africa other than the Transvaal were deported to such parts and not to India. Both these declarations have been falsified, the excuse given being that these men refuse to supply identification particulars and to prove domicile. The first excuse is invalid, because the refusal to supply identification particulars is itself a criminal offence, and these men, seeing that they were voluntarily registered, could have been proceeded against under the special section that deals with refusal to supply identification particulars. There was no occasion to treat them as unregistered Indians and thus deport them. The second excuse is equally invalid, in that those who were entitled to enter Natal stated that they were domiciled there and those who had a knowledge of a European language did not need to bring forward any proof. In my opinion, the fact is that, having failed to break the proud spirit of the brave Tamils, the Asiatic Department has now embarked upon a plan of extermination, and of taxing our pecuniary resources to the uttermost.

Be that as it may, I think that I am quite correct in assuring you and, through you, the public in India, that neither these men, nor their wives, mothers nor sisters, as the case may be, are likely to succumb in any appreciable measure.

I hope that the Motherland will not rest so long as the insult offered to her in the Transvaal legislation that we are fighting has not been removed, and that we shall continue to receive the support that has been hitherto extended to us.

I remain,

Yours truly,

M. K. GANDHI

From the typewritten original signed by Gandhiji: G. N. 3799; also

Indian Opinion, 7-5-1910

23. LETTER TO DIRECTOR OF PRISONS

[JOHANNESBURG,]

April 26, 1910

SIR,

Some of the passive resisters recently discharged from Diepkloof have brought to the notice of my Association complaints and information which, in the interests of humanity, my Association feels bound to place before you.

Mr. Sorabji, who has suffered imprisonment again and again, was on the 26th October last, together with Mr. Medh\(^2\), sentenced to a

---

1 This letter, presumably drafted by Gandhiji, was signed by E. I. Aswat, Acting Chairman of the British Indian Association.

2 Leading Natal Indian satyagrahi, vid` “Notable Discharges”, 30-4-1910 further term at Volksrust. Mr. Sorabji states that during this last imprisonment at Volksrust, he was roughly treated by a warder named Nell. The previous time that he had gone to prison, he was, under medical orders, specially put on light labour, and he was called upon to carry no heavy weight. But, on the occasion in question, on the day of sentence, before medical examination had taken place, Warder Nell ordered Mr. Sorabji to water plants, in the doing of which he was called upon to fill full with water two five-gallon buckets and to carry them to some distance, a task which the Native prisoner with whom he and the other Indians were made to work could do only with some difficulty. Warder Nell knew Mr. Sorabji during his previous term of imprisonment, and knew also that, under special medical instructions, he was put upon very light labour, and his task chiefly consisted in store-work, keeping an account of clothing and distributing it. Mr.
Sorabji was working under another warder named Oberholster, who did not mind Mr. Sorabji taking his own time and only half filling the buckets. At 2 o’clock that day, Warder Nell came and insisted upon Mr. Sorabji filling the two buckets full. The latter protested and said that the warder knew him and knew also that the Medical Officer had last time put him upon light labour only. He also drew the warder’s attention to the fact that he was suffering from rupture and dislocation of one of his arms and from acceleration of the heart. The warder took no heed, and still insisted upon Mr. Sorabji carrying the buckets and watering the plants. This he was obliged to do up to the time he was able to see the Medical Officer, that is, for two days. Upon his bringing the matter to the notice of the Medical Officer, instructions were at once given to the effect that he was not to be put upon any heavy work and that he was not to be made to carry any weight.
Warder Nell, evidently wishing to be spiteful, brought a charge of breach of discipline against Mr. Sorabji, and the latter was tried before the Magistrate. The breach of discipline consisted in Mr. Sorabji’s having drawn attention to his condition, and his having, as was alleged by the warder and denied by Mr. Sorabji, said to the former “Leave me alone. You are causing trouble for nothing.” Mr. Sorabji cross examined the warder, and related the whole of the incident to the Magistrate, who, however, said that he was not trying the question of the work that was entrusted to Mr. Sorabji, but that he was simply trying the question of breach of discipline; and punished him with spare diet. It is worthy perhaps of remark that, as the Medical Officer had ordered only light labour for Mr. Sorabji, the latter was given by the same warder the dirtiest work to do, namely, the cleaning of the water closet. Mr. Sorabji desires me to state that he had no objection, as a passive resister, to doing the work, but my Association considers it to be its duty to bring the matter to your notice.

On removal from Volksrust, Mr. Sorabji was accompanied by Messrs Medh and Harilal Gandhi. The three were handcuffed together, and marched from the gaol to the station, a distance of over a mile. They were, in spite of the handcuffs, made to carry their own bundles, which were fairly heavy, as they contained, in addition to their personal clothing, books also, and they had to carry things belonging to the warder in charge and one blanket each. They were marched from Park Station to the Fort in the same manner.

With reference to the condition at Diepkloof, Messrs Sorabji and Medh, who have been just discharged, confirm the statements made by other discharged men as follows: The Medical Officer continues to be entirely callous to the avoidable sufferings of the prisoners. Once, Mr. Thambi Naidoo, who is still at Diepkloof, and who, my Association considers, is one of the bravest men and certainly incapable of lying, complained to the Medical Officer that the prisoners were suffering from partial starvation; whereupon, he called Mr. Naidoo a liar. Mr. Medh often complained that he was losing weight, and that he should have the quantity of the food increased and the quality improved, but the Medical Officer laughed at his complaint and turned a deaf ear. When Mr. Medh had lost over twenty-five pounds, he complained to the Deputy-Governor, and it was only on the 1st April, that is, during the last three weeks of his imprisonment, that the quantity was increased. Most of the prisoners complain that they lose in weight, but the change in diet is not ordered until the Medical Officer considers that they have lost more weight than they need have. The usual remark made by him is that no harm is done to the prisoners if they lose somewhat in weight and throw off what he calls superfluous fat. The Medical Officer used often to remark to the prisoners that they were getting fat on the Government rations. In the humble opinion of my Association, under treatment such as this, the lot of Indian passive resisters at Diepkloof is being made unnecessarily hard. The fact that out of 72 Asiatic prisoners, 18 had to receive an increase in diet shows that the present scale is perilously low both in quantity and quality. The approach of the cold weather makes my Association nervous as to the health of these prisoners, who, deprived of the ordinary fat in their diet to which they are accustomed, will suffer very seriously.

The discharged men also complain that, whereas, last winter, the articles of clothing included a stout shirt, this time it has not yet been allowed, and the prisoners have already begun to suffer from the absence of this article of clothing. My Association is not aware whether this change has been made throughout, but, even if it has on grounds of economy or otherwise, my Association hopes that Indian prisoners, who belong to a much warmer country, will not be deprived of the long-sleeved shirts to which they have always been used. My Association understands that this complaint has been brought to the notice of the Governor, as also of the Medical Officer, but they informed the prisoners that the change was made by the Government. The prisoners complain also of the fewness of the blankets. Diepkloof Prison, which is built with corrugated iron only and which is without any ceiling-board, being on high ground, is very cold, and three blankets, which may be sufficient in the stone-built prison at Volksrust, are undoubtedly not enough cover for the British Indian prisoners at Diepkloof. My Association ventures to draw your attention to the fact that, at Volksrust, all the Indian prisoners were allowed, even during warm weather, besides three blankets and matting, a bed-board and a pillow. The two latter articles are not given to the prisoners at Diepkloof. Messrs Sorabji and Medh, who have had experience at Houtpoort and Volksrust, mention that at both these places during winter time four blankets were supplied to British Indian prisoners; and they add that, at Houtpoort, four blankets were ordered by yourself, when you visited the gaol there and the passive resisters complained.

One very painful incident, too, is reported by Messrs Sorabji and Medh. There is an Indian prisoner at Diepkloof, who is over 60 years old. He pleaded before the Medical Officer for a shirt and an extra blanket, but that officer point-blank declined to grant relief.

My Association ventures to trust that the matters herein set forth will receive your urgent and careful attention.

Indian Opinion, 30-4-1910
24. NOTABLE DISCHARGES

Messrs Sorabji and Medh, who are among the stalwarts of passive resistance, were discharged on Saturday last. Both have served more than twelve months’ imprisonment. Both are educated and both have sacrificed their all for the honour of India. Mr. Sorabji laid the foundation of the second stage of the struggle and Mr. Medh was among the first batch of Natal Indians who entered the Transvaal in order to test their rights as British subjects. Both have suffered much during their incarceration. Mr. Medh has lost heavily in flesh. But both have gained in moral strength, in soul-power. Their material loss is the community’s gain. We congratulate these servants of India and wish them enough strength to go through what more may be in store for them.

Indian Opinion, 30-4-1910

25. THE PRETORIA MUNICIPALITY

This notorious municipality keeps up its reputation for waging war against Colour. A private Bill introduced during the last session of the Transvaal Parliament seeks to perpetuate the Town Regulations of the Boer regime which prevent the use of footpaths by Natives, Coloured people and Asiatics. The British Indian Association of the Transvaal has done well in formally protesting against the Bill. It contains, as it ought to, a clause to the effect that it will not come into force unless and until His Majesty has expressed his pleasure not to disallow it. Lord Crewe has now an opportunity of showing that he is ready to protect the unrepresented classes in South Africa from insult and molestation. But the ultimate court of appeal is and must be the people themselves who are affected by hostile legislation.

Indian Opinion, 30-4-1910

26. THE £3 TAX AGAIN

The Government have notified Indians who are liable to pay the annual poll-tax of £3 that by re-indenturing they may avoid payment of the tax, and they have notified the women who are so liable that

---

1 Vide also “Pretoria Municipality”, 30-4-1910
2 Vide “Petition to Transvaal Legislative Assembly”, 25-4-1910
they could avoid the tax by showing the Magistrate of their district sufficient cause for avoidance. On the face of it, the notice seems to be in the interests of the men and women concerned. But in reality, it is nothing of the kind. The notice as to the men is totally for the benefit of the employers of Indian labour. It was for them that the change in the law was made. For, the employers had to pay higher wages in order to enable the Indians who were liable to the tax to discharge it. A complacent Government have, therefore, met the employers by exempting from payment Indians who may be employed by them. So that the notice is in effect a warning to the unfortunate Indians to re-indenture or to pay the tax.

As for the women, the less said about the disgraceful affair the better. After the humiliating surrender to the clamorous party in the Assembly, we could expect nothing better from the Government than the insulting notice to the women. Their womanhood should either prove sufficient cause for non-payment or none other could. If their sex do not protect them, they must re-indenture in the same way as men. We hope, however, that not a single Indian woman would do anything of the kind.

Indian Opinion, 30-4-1910

27. PRETORIA MUNICIPALITY

The Pretoria Municipality has never been known to behave better than like the garbage-removing body that it is. It has earned a name for its hostility to the Coloured people. It would seem to have come into existence just to make things go hard with them. In the last session of the Transvaal Parliament, too, this Municipality dealt a blow to the Coloureds. A private Bill sponsored by it seeks to provide that Coloured persons should not use footpaths. “Coloured” will include Cape Boys and Asiatics. The British Indian Association has done well to send a petition against this. It will also be necessary to send a petition to Lord Crewe. Let us see what he and Lord Morley say [in reply]. But it must always be borne in mind that our ultimate appeal lies only to ourselves. Is it possible that the Pretoria Indians will agree to avoid footpaths and walk on the roads?

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 30-4-1910

1 Vide “Petition to Transvaal Legislative Assembly”, 25-4-1910
DEAR PROFESSOR GOKHALE,

I am sending you a public letter¹ addressed to you. After due deliberation, I thought that it was the best thing for me to do. The letter has been handed to the Press here,² and I take it that you will publish it on your side also. The letter, too, enables me to inform all the contributors. I have now heard from Mr. Petit that Mr. Tata approves of the expenses incurred by me in connection with Indian Opinion. Your letter, to which I have alluded in the accompanying, had already relieved me of anxiety on this score, but it is as well that I have received specific approval from Mr. Tata also.

I do hope that my action in publishing Hind Swaraj in Gujarati and now the translation in English does not in any way affect the struggle that is going on in the Transvaal. The opinions expressed by me in the booklet are personal to me. Though they have been matured in the course of the struggle, they have nothing to do with it at all, and I trust that you will be able, should any prejudice arise against myself personally or the pamphlet, to keep the merits of the struggle entirely separate from me. The views expressed by me in Hind Swaraj have not been formed without much thought and consideration. Mr. Polak has passed on the typed copy to you. I am not sending you the printed copy because, as the Gujarati is confiscated, I suppose the same thing applies to the translation.

If you have had the time to go through the typed copy, I shall esteem your opinion. The booklet has been widely circulated here. Much criticism has been received. There appears today in The Transvaal Leader a signed criticism, which I am asking Mr. Polak to forward to you.

I am not answering the personal part of your letter of December. I simply felt that it was my duty to lay my views before you, which I have done. It is not for me now to argue. Should I ever

¹ Vide “Letter to G. K. Gokhale”, 25-4-1910
² It was reproduced in Indian Opinion, 7-5-1910.
have the privilege of meeting you personally, I shall certainly again press upon your attention some of the views I hold so strongly, and which it appears to me are perfectly sound. Meanwhile, with the hope that you have entirely recovered from your malady, and that you will be long spared for the service of the Motherland, I can only remain,

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

THE HONOURABLE PROFESSOR GOKHALE
BOMBAY

From a photostat of the typewritten original signed by Gandhiji: G. N. 3800

29. LETTER TO GENERAL MANAGER, C. S. A. R.¹

[JOHANNESBURG,]
May 2, 1910

SIR,

Messrs F. A. Moolla and Suliman Kako, of 9 Jubilee Street, Johannesburg, were travelling on the 25th ultimo from Trichardts to Ermelo. On boarding the train, they could not secure seats. They held second-class tickets. They mentioned the matter to the conductor, who said that he would find them seats. Station after station passed by, and they met the conductor, but no seats were provided until the train reached Breyten. At Breyten, Mr. Moolla told the conductor that he would be reported, and the latter said that, in that event, Mr. Moolla would not be allowed to take a seat at all, and went away. Mr. Moolla and his companion, however, took their seats in the compartment that had been pointed out to them. My Association trusts that you will be good enough to inquire into this matter.

Indian Opinion, 14-5-1910

¹ This letter, presumably drafted by Gandhiji, was sent over the signature of A. M. Cachalia, Chairman, British Indian Association.
30. JOHANNESBURG

Monday [May 2, 1910]

JOSEPH ROYEPEN

Messrs Joseph Royeppen, David Andrew, Samuel Joseph and Dhobi Nayana were to be released on Saturday, but, even on the previous day, they were brought to the gaol here and, instead of being released, were handed over to the police for being deported. They were immediately bailed out for two days. Though this was their first experience of gaol, Mr. Royeppen and his companions spent their time very cheerfully. They are, moreover, in excellent health. All of them want to re-enter immediately.

Tuesday [May 3, 1910]

QUINN’S PETITION

Mr. Quinn, who has been ordered to be deported and has been kept in custody in Pretoria, challenged in the Supreme Court the Government’s right to hold him in detention pending his deportation and prayed to the Court to order his release. The petition was heard and the Chief Justice ruled that the period of detention could not be considered unreasonable. The Court held that since it could not pronounce judgment on the order of deportation, the only question for decision concerned the period [of detention]. The judgment is of little consequence. We are where we were. A satyagrahi should not go in for all this bother of moving the Supreme Court, but men differ in their views and inclinations and that is the reason why Mr. Quinn was obliged to make this petition. The Chinese have not been in the least disheartened by this judgment.

CHINESE MEETING

The Chinese held a meeting on Sunday. It was attended, among others, by Mr. Royeppen and his companions, the Imam Saheb, and Messrs Coovadia, Bhikhaji, Sorabji, Medh, Gandhi and others. Mr. Quinn explained the state of the struggle in all its aspects. At the end of the meeting, tea and fruits were served in honour of Mr. Royeppen. While in gaol, Mr. Royeppen was a complete vegetarian. He says he felt no need of meat. Mr. Royeppen and the others were taken to Pretoria this morning.

1 Vide also “The Supreme Court Case”, 7-5-1910
SHELAT

Indian prisoners at Diepkloof have sent a message to say that the Government should be requested not to ask Mr. Shelat to carry slop-pails and that they are ready to do the work on his behalf. The message does them credit. Mr. Cachalia has accordingly addressed a letter¹ to the Government, so that, if it feels like it, it may spare Mr. Shelat.

VISIT TO SODHA

Miss Schlesin left for Diepkloof on Sunday last in order to visit Mr. Sodha. He is to be discharged next Saturday. He has maintained good health in gaol.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 7-5-1910

---

31. LETTER TO DIRECTOR OF PRISONS²

[JOHANNESBURG,]
May 3, 1910

SIR,

Mr. Shelat was some time ago serving imprisonment as a passive resister at Diepkloof, and underwent prolonged solitary confinement for refusing to carry slop-pails. The discharged passive resisters have brought the message to my Association that the remaining British Indian prisoners at Diepkloof are quite agreeable that Mr. Shelat, who is a Brahmin and has very great conscientious scruples about removing slop-pails, should be excused from having to perform that work; and that the other British Indian prisoners will be prepared to replace him whenever his turn comes to remove the pails.³ My Association does not know whether Mr. Shelat has yet been ordered to do this work, but I consider it my duty to bring the above matter to your notice, so that such instructions as you may consider fit may be issued to the officials at Diepkloof.

Indian Opinion, 7-5-1910

¹ Vide the following item.
² This letter, presumably drafted by Gandhiji, was signed by A. M. Cachalia, Chairman, British Indian Association.
³ Vide “Letter to the Transvaal Administrator”, 7-6-1910
32. CABLE TO ROYAL FAMILY

[JOHANNESBURG, After May 6, 1910]

BRITISH INDIAN ASSOCIATION TENDERS HUMBLE CONDOLENCES ROYAL FAMILY.

Indian Opinion, 14-5-1910

33. THE SUPREME COURT CASE

The judgment given by the Supreme Court on the application of Mr. Quinn, the Chairman of the Transvaal Chinese Association, does not take us any further. The deportations still remain illegal. The Court was not called upon to decide upon the legality or otherwise of the warrant itself. The Court had no jurisdiction in the matter, the order being purely administrative. The question, therefore, of deporting Asiatics who are lawfully registered residents of the Transvaal remains where it was. The only question that the Court had to decide was whether the detention in Pretoria pending deportation was reasonable or not. The Court had no difficulty, in view of circumstances, to come to the conclusion that detention was not unreasonable.

The proceedings, however, throw a curious light on the situation. The authorities are unable to carry out their illegal policy through a British port. The deportees, if they were to pass through British territories, would have a legal remedy. They are, therefore, smuggled through a foreign port. As passive resisters, however, theirs is not to complain. Their duty is simply to go where they are forced to and at the earliest possible moment to retrace their steps as soon as they become free agents, and once more challenge the might of the Transvaal Government.

Indian Opinion, 7-5-1910

1 This cablegram, presumably drafted by Gandhiji, was sent through the Deputy Governor of the Transvaal on behalf of the British Indian Association by its Chairman, A. M. Cachalia, on the death of King Edward VII, who had passed away on 6-5-1910.

2 Vide also “Johannesburg”, 2-5-1910
34. MR. ROYEPPEN AND HIS FRIENDS

Mr. Joseph Royeppen and his companions are making history. Every passive resister who has come out of Diepkloof has spoken of Mr. Royeppen and his companions, Messrs Andrew and Joseph, in most flattering terms. They have taken their imprisonment extremely well. According to their wont, the Government, evidently to test their strength, have re-arrested them and have deported them. As Mr. Royeppen states in his letter to the Press, he and his friends have accepted the Government’s challenge. We congratulate him and his friends on the brave stand they are making.

But Mr. Royeppen’s letter reveals a most painful state of things in the gaols of the Transvaal. Much of what Mr. Royeppen has stated in his letter is generally known. But the details now given by him as to how they were kept standing barefoot on a cold stone floor, how they were kept undressed in a draughty passage, how they were handcuffed and how brutally certain warders dealt with them, revive the memories of a shocking and disgraceful incident. Such treatment, instead of unnerving them, has, we are glad to notice, strengthened them in their resolve to vindicate the national honour.

Mr. Royeppen and his companions have set to the young Indians in South Africa a brilliant and a noble example worthy to be followed. They have shown that true happiness lies not in gaining riches but in moulding character. We trust that the lead given by Mr. Royeppen will infuse a new spirit into the colonial-born and other Indians who have their work cut out before them if they wish to take part in the making of the future South African nation.

Indian Opinion, 7-5-1910

35. OUR PUBLICATIONS

The Bombay Government Gazette of the 24th March last notifies that Hind Swarajya, Universal Dawn, Mustafa Kamel Pasha’s Speech, and Defence of Socrates or The Story of a True Warrior—all

1 Vide “Johannesburg”, 2-5-1910
4 ibid
publications of the International Printing Press—have been forfeited to His Majesty for the reason that they “contain matter declared to be seditious”.

_Hind Swarajya_, in the shape of _Indian Home Rule_, is before our readers. _Universal Dawn_ is a Gujarati rendering of Ruskin’s _Unto This Last_. _Mustafa Kamel Pasha’s Speech_ is a Gujarati translation of the Egyptian patriot’s speech delivered just before his death before a vast audience at Cairo. _Defence of Socrates or The Story of a True Warrior_ is a Gujarati rendering of Plato’s immortal work printed in order to illustrate the virtue and the true nature of passive resistance. All these publications, except _Hind Swarajya_, have been before the public for a considerable time. They are intended to impart a lofty, moral tone to the reader and are, in our opinion, works capable of being put into children’s hands without any danger whatsoever.

But we have no right to complain. We consider this activity on the part of the Government of India a passing phase. They are in a state of panic and, wishing to do something, they intend to stop the circulation of literature that shows the slightest independence of spirit. This overzeal is bound to kill itself. The really dangerous publications will seek all kinds of dubious and devious methods of circulation, and we fear that they will, on that account, be read by the very class whom the Government intend that they do not reach.

In these circumstances, we, who are uncompromising advocates of passive resistance, have only one course left open to us. The repression cannot affect us. Our views can only remain the same, and they must find expression on every due occasion, regardless of personal consequences.

We sympathize with the Government of India in their desire to stop the spread of methods of violence. We would do and give much to stop it. But the only way we know to eradicate the disease is to popularize passive resistance of the right stamp. Any other way, especially repression, must inevitably fail in the long run.

_Indian Opinion, 7-5-1910_

36. ROYEPPEN

Everyone will admit that Mr. Royeppen and his companions have rendered excellent service to the community. Mr. Joseph Royeppen has put his education to the right use. His manner of living in gaol was also quite worthy of a satyagrahi. His simplicity was nothing if not admirable. His fellow-prisoners, Mr. David Andrew and Mr. Samuel Joseph, also spent their time cheerfully.

These three heroes among Indians will be soon back in gaol. The Government has moved quickly to deport them once again, counting on the fact that they are yet fresh [satyagrahis]. Its hope is that they will lose courage and return [to Natal]. It makes one happy to know that this hope will not be fulfilled.

We give elsewhere a translation of Mr. Royeppen’s letter\(^1\) to the Press; it is worth reading.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 7-5-1910

---

37. LETTER TO MILLIE GRAHAM POLAK

May 8, 1910

MY DEAR MILLIE,

I can think of nothing to write to you about. I therefore give you the following beautiful thought:

‘Therefore the means of deliverance from all those evils from which men suffer lies only in one thing, the inner work of each man upon himself.

“Martha! Martha! thou art anxious and troubled about many things, but one thing is needful” ’.

I remain with love,

Yours,

BROTHER

From the original: Gandhi-Polak Correspondence. Courtesy: National Archives of India

---

\(^1\) Vide also “Mr. Royeppen”, 28-5-1910 and “Joseph Royeppen”, 25-5-1910

\(^2\) Not reproduced here
DEAR MR. WYBERGH,

I am exceedingly obliged to you for your very full and valuable criticism of the little pamphlet on Indian Home Rule. I shall with very great pleasure send your letter to Indian Opinion for publication, and shall treat this reply likewise.

I entirely reciprocate the sentiments you express in the last paragraph of your letter. I am quite aware that my views will lead to many differences of opinion between my staunchest friends and those whom I have come to regard with respect and myself, but these differences, so far as I am concerned, can neither diminish respect nor affect friendly relations.

I am painfully conscious of the imperfections and defects you point out in your letter, and I know how unworthy I am to handle the very important problems dealt with in the booklet. But, having had the position of a publicist practically forced upon me by circumstances, I felt bound to write for those for whom Indian Opinion caters. The choice lay between allowing the readers of Indian Opinion, anxious though they were for guidance, to drift away in the matter of the insane violence that is now going on in India, or giving them, no matter how humble, a lead that they were asking for. The only way I saw of mitigating violence was the one sketched in the pamphlet.

I share your views that a superficial reader will consider the pamphlet to be a disloyal production, and I admit, too, that those who will not distinguish between men and measures, between modern civilisation and its exponents, will come to that conclusion. And I accept your proposition that I discourage violence only because I think it to be both wrong and ineffective, and not because the object sought to be attained is wrong, that is to say, if it were ever possible, which I hold it is not, to detach the object from the means adopted to attain it. I hold that Home Rule obtained by violence would be totally different in kind from that obtained by the means suggested by me.

I have ventured utterly to condemn modern civilisation because I hold that the spirit of it is evil. It is possible to show that some of its

1 Member, Legislative Assembly, Transvaal
2 Vide Appendix “W. J. Wybergh’s letter to Gandhiji”, 3-5-1910.
3 A slip for ‘and’
incidents are good, but I have examined its tendency in the scale of ethics. I distinguish between the ideals of individuals who have risen superior to their environment, as also between Christianity and modern civilisation. Its activity is by no means confined to Europe. Its blasting influence is now being exhibited in full force in Japan. And it now threatens to overwhelm India. History teaches us that men who are in the whirlpool, except in the cases of individuals, will have to work out their destiny in it but I do submit that those who are still outside its influence, and those who have a well-tried civilisation to guide them, should be helped to remain where they are, if only as a measure of prudence. I claim to have tested the life which modern civilisation has to give, as also that of the ancient civilisation, and I cannot help most strongly contesting the idea that the Indian population requires to be roused by “the lash of competition and the other material and sensuous, as well as intellectual, stimuli”; I cannot admit that these will add a single inch to its moral stature. Liberation in the sense in which I have used the term is undoubtedly the immediate aim of all humanity. It does not, therefore, follow that the whole of it can reach it in the same time. But if that liberation is the best thing attainable by mankind, then, I submit, it is wrong to lower the ideal for anyone. All the Indian Scriptures have certainly preached incessantly liberation as an immediate aim, but we know that this preaching has not resulted in “activity in the lower worlds” being abandoned.

I admit that the term “passive resistance” is a misnomer. I have used it because, generally speaking, we know what it means. Being a popular term, it easily appeals to the popular imagination. The underlying principle is totally opposed to that of violence. It cannot, therefore, be that “the battle is transferred from the physical to the mental plane”. The function of violence is to obtain reform by external means; the function of passive resistance, that is, soul-force, is to obtain it by growth from within; which, in its turn, is obtained by self-suffering, self-purification. Violence ever fails; passive resistance is ever successful. The fight of a passive resister is none the less spiritual because he fights to win. Indeed, he is obliged to fight to win, that is, to obtain the mastery of self. Passive resistance is always moral, never cruel; and any activity, mental or otherwise, which fails in this test is undoubtedly not passive resistance.

Your argument tends to show that there must be complete divorce between politics and religion or spirituality. That is what we see in everyday life under modern conditions. Passive resistance seeks to rejoin politics and religion and to test every one of our actions in the light of ethical principles. That Jesus refused to use soul-force to turn stones into bread only supports my argument. Modern civilization is at present engaged in attempting that impossible feat. The use of soul-force for turning stones into bread would have been considered, as it is still considered, as black magic. Nor can I hold with you that motives alone can always decide the question of a particular act being right or wrong. An ignorant mother may, from the purest motives, administer a dose of opium to her child. Her motives will not cure her of her ignorance, nor, in the moral world, purify her of the offence of killing her child. A passive resister, recognizing this principle and knowing that, in spite of the purity of his motives, his action may be utterly wrong, leaves judgment to the Supreme Being, and, in attempting to resist what he holds to be wrong, suffers only in his own person.

Throughout the Bhagavad Gita, I can see no warrant for holding that a man who can only control “the organs of action” but cannot help “dwelling in his mind on the objects of the senses” had better use the organs of action until the mind, too, is under control. In ordinary practices, we call such use an indulgence, and we know, too, that, if we can control the flesh even while the spirit is weak, always wishing that the spirit were equally strong, we will certainly arrive at a right correspondence. I think the text you have quoted refers to a man who, for making a show, appears to be controlling the organs of action, whilst deliberately in his mind dwelling on the objects of the senses.

I agree with you entirely that a pure passive resister cannot allow himself to be regarded as a martyr nor can he complain of the hardships of prison or any other hardships, nor may he make political capital out of what may appear to be injustice or ill-treatment, much less may he allow any matter of passive resistance to be advertised. But all action unfortunately is mixed. Purest passive resistance can exist only in theory. The anomalies you point out only emphasize the fact that the Indian passive resisters of the Transvaal are, after all, very fallible human beings and yet very weak, but I can assure you that their object is to make their practice correspond with pure passive resistance as nearly as possible, and, as the struggle progresses, pure spirits are certainly rising in our midst.

I am free to admit also that all passive resisters are not fired with the spirit of love or of truth. Some of us are undoubtedly not free from vindictiveness and the spirit of hatred; but the desire in us all is to cure ourselves of hatred and enmity. I have noticed, too, that those who simply became passive resisters under the glamour of the newness of the movement or for selfish reasons have fallen away. Pretended self-suffering cannot last long. Such men never were passive resisters. It is necessary to discuss the subject of passive resistance somewhat impersonally. If you say that physical sufferings of soldiers have vastly exceeded those of the Transvaal passive resisters, I agree with you entirely; but the sufferings of world-known passive resisters who deliberately walked into funeral pyres or into boiling cauldrons were incomparably greater than those of any soldier it is possible to name.

I cannot pretend to speak for Tolstoy, but my reading of his works has never led me to consider that, in spite of his merciless analysis of institutions organised and based upon force, that is governments, he in any way anticipates or contemplates that the whole world will be able to live in a state of philosophical anarchy. What he has preached, as, in my opinion, have all world-teachers, is that every man has to obey the voice of his own conscience, and be his own master, and seek the Kingdom of God from within. For him there is no government that can control him without his sanction. Such a man is superior to all government. And can it be ever dangerous for a lion to tell a number of other lions who in their ignorance consider themselves to be merely lambs that they, too, are not lambs but lions? Some very ignorant lions will no doubt contest the knowing lion’s proposition. There will, no doubt, on that account be confusion also, but, no matter how gross the ignorance may be, it will not be suggested that the lion who knows should sit still and not ask his fellow-lions to share his majesty and freedom.

It has indeed occurred to me that an anti-Asiatic league which from pure though entirely misguided motives wishes to deport Asiatics from the Transvaal, because it may consider them to be an evil, would be certainly justified, from its own view-point, in violently attaining its object. It is not open to passive resisters, if they are not weak, to complain of such, in their opinion, high-handed action, but for them deportation and worse must be a welcome relief from having to submit to a course of action which is repugnant to their conscience. I hope you will not fail to see the beauty of passive resistance in your own illustration. Supposing that these deportees were capable of offering physical violence against forcible deportation, and yet from pure choice elected to be deported rather than resist deportation, will it not show superior courage and superior moral fibre in them?

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

Indian Opinion, 21-5-1910

39. JOHANNESBURG

Monday [May 9, 1910]

IN GAOL

Mr. Samuel Joseph, Mr. Andrew and Mr. Dhobi Nayana, who were only recently released and deported, re-entered and went back to gaol on Friday last. They have been awarded only six weeks. This is rather surprising. To start with, it was six months, then it became three months and now it is a month and a half. I do not understand the reason for this. We need not say that the Government has grown panicky, for all its actions are dictated by panic. Maybe the Government wants to empty Diepkloof before the Union comes into being on June 1. But this is mere guess-work. “Why should it empty the gaol in this manner?” one cannot help asking. Let us wait and see. The procession is bound to reach the place of reception, drum and all.¹ To a satyagrahi, it should be the same, six months or six weeks.

SODHA

[He] was discharged on Saturday. He appeared all right. There was no sign this time of his having suffered in health as there was last time. Since he has not been [re-]arrested, he is leaving for Natal to meet his children and expects to return shortly and join his fellow-satyagrahis in gaol.² Mr. Harilal Gandhi, too, left for Phoenix last Friday for the same purpose.

KING EDWARD

On account of his death, everything is closed in the town today

¹ A Gujarati saying, meaning, “The truth of the matter is bound to be known sooner or later”
² Vide also “Mr. Sodha’s Discharge”, 14-5-1910 and black flags were unfurled over offices.

Tuesday [May 10, 1910]

PETER MOONLIGHT

Mr. Peter Moonlight, who was at one time Chairman of the Tamils [the Tamil Association], is now under police custody and will be deported.

TO ROYAL FAMILY

The British Indian Association has sent, through the Deputy Governor, a telegraphic message¹ of condolence to the Royal Family.

Yesterday, all shops were closed. Newspapers have published long accounts of the career of the late King.

CASE AGAINST CHINESE

The Chinese are preparing to take an appeal to the Privy Council in the case which they lost in the Supreme Court.² This is a complicated matter and therefore no definite decision has been taken yet.

Wednesday [May 11, 1910]

DEPORTED

Chinasamy Paul, a boy of 16 years, and Peter Moonlight have been deported.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 14-5-1910

¹ Vide “Cable to Royal Family”, After 6-5-1910
² Vide “The Supreme Court Case”, 7-5-1910
40. THE LATE KING

King Edward is dead and has left an Empire in mourning. The British Constitution keeps the King outside of politics. It is, therefore, his personal qualities that alone count in measuring the loss. But these guide only those whose lives are affected by them. Indians will best remember His late Majesty as a Sovereign who followed in the footsteps of his mother of revered memory. Like her, the late King had shown a warm corner in his bosom for the people of India. And that will always be a title to our affection for his memory.

Indian Opinion, 14-5-1910

41. LONG LIVE THE KING!

H.R.H. Prince George of Wales is now King George the Fifth of England and Emperor of India. The King is dead: Long live the King! are expressions that have to be uttered in the same breath. Individual Kings and Emperors come and go but Kingship is eternal. The attributes of that office few Sovereigns are able fully to live up to. King Edward, in the words of his son, now King George V, wished that, “so long as he drew breath, he would strive to promote the best interests of the people”. “That promise”, adds His Majesty, “was carried out to the best of his father’s ability and it would be his earnest endeavour, under God, to follow his father’s example in that respect.” His Majesty asks the prayer of his subjects “that God may grant him strength and guidance”. That prayer will go up to heaven from many countries and in many languages. We humbly Join in that prayer.

Indian Opinion, 14-5-1910

---

1 This appeared as a boxed item within thick black lines.
42. MR. V. A. CHETTIAR

Our readers will be glad to possess a portrait of Mr. V. A. Chettiar, the Chairman of the Tamil Benefit Society. We are issuing Mr. Chettiar’s portrait with this issue not only because Mr. Chettiar, old as he is, has gone to gaol for the third time and that his son is now on the waters, but also by way of compliment to the whole Tamil community that has worked wonders during the struggle.

Indian Opinion, 14-5-1910

43. MR. SODHA’S DISCHARGE

Mr. R. M. Sodha, who was discharged last Saturday, is one of the stalwarts whom we mentioned the other day.¹ He has served imprisonment almost continuously for a year. Mr. Sodha, again, being an orthodox Hindu, has been obliged to suffer doubly as, during certain months of the year, he restricts himself to only one meal per day. Outside the gaol, his one meal will naturally make up more or less for the absence of the other two. But, in the prison, he had simply to be satisfied with his portion for the particular meal he chose to take. But Mr. Sodha went through it all most cheerfully. Mr. Sodha, having been discharged in the Transvaal and not being deported, has returned to Natal to see his wife and family, and proposes to return at an early date to rejoin his fellow-prisoners at Diepkloof. The calmness with which well-tried passive resisters like Mr. Sodha face imprisonment again and again does great credit to themselves and the community to which they belong.

Indian Opinion, 14-5-1910

¹ Vide “Johannesburg”, 9-5-1910
44. LATE EMPEROR EDWARD

The whole of the British Empire mourns the death of King Edward. What is the position of the Indian people? Should the fact of their being at present unhappy under British rule prevent them from joining in the mourning? Those who refrain must be ignorant of the British Constitution, under which the King takes no active part in the administration. He cannot change the policy of his Government. Hence, in judging him, we can only take into account his personal qualities. Even these have hardly had any impact on the Indian people. Those alone will feel their effects who acquaint themselves with his life and reflect over his conduct.

It is enough for us that King Edward followed the example of his mother, Queen Victoria, and showed love for the Indian people. He seems to have cherished kindly feelings for them in his heart. Therefore, the Indian people, whatever their views on British policies, will always bear the purest affection for the King.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 14-5-1910

45. LONG LIVE THE KING!

“The King is dead. Long live the King.” These two sentences are uttered in the same breath at the time of a king’s death. Kings come and go. Many have died, and many will die in future. Dara, Alexandar and others left empty-handed. There is no knowing, thus, when this body will perish. But kingship lives on. It may be despotic or benevolent. But British monarchy is neither the one nor the other. King Edward did all that he could. It was his greatness that he never thought of interfering in the conduct of the government. He saw that not to do so was the best way of serving the people. The Prince of Wales now becomes King George V, the new monarch. It is his intention to follow in the footsteps of his father, and he prays to God for strength and guidance and wants his subjects too to pray likewise. Millions will join in this prayer and we also pray to God to give him

---

1. This appeared between two thick black lines.
2. Literally, power wisdom and strength.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 14-5-1910

46. JOHANNESBURG

Monday [May 16, 1910]

CABLES FROM POLAK

Three cables have been received from Mr. Polak, in which he reports that a big meeting was held in Madras when the satyagrahis reached Bombay. From among them, 26 have already started on the return voyage. Those who were deported also included some non-satyagrahis. Mr. Polak also reports the death of one of them. The authorities have been taken aback by Mr. Polak’s brisk work. I hope Indians in Durban will welcome and look after those who disembark there. The Durban Indians can do this at least, ought to do it, namely, arrange for their lodging, honour them [in public] and send them back to the Transvaal.

FINE IN DELAGOA BAY

A correspondent informs me that passengers bound for the Transvaal have to face much harassment in Delagoa Bay. The physician demands eight shillings. Afterwards, if the passenger holds a Transvaal pass, they collect £8 from him and then allow him to disembark. He is charged a further fee of one and a half pounds. He is made to hand over his pass, and gets a ticket after the pass has been inspected. He has then to inform the police about his departure. A person accompanies him as far as the border and there returns £7 to him after deducting £1. Thus, the Indian remains a prisoner till he reaches the Transvaal and pays a fine of as much as £3. Not only do the incoming Indians submit to all this quietly, but the Delagoa Bay Indians, who are in a position to have matters set right, are too selfish to move in the matter.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 21-5-1910
47. THE RETURNED DEPORTEES

Mr. Polak and the 26 returning deportees deserve the thanks of the Indian community in South Africa, Mr. Polak for the promptness with which he has sent these men, and the deportees for the bravery and self-sacrifice they have shown in undertaking the return voyage within four days of their arrival in Bombay. It must have been to the latter a great wrench. They went to the mother-country, some of them perfect strangers to it. They could have seen something of it, had they stayed, and no one could have taken exception if they had followed that course, but they chose to put duty before everything else, and, after a trying voyage as deck-passengers, they have undertaken an almost equally trying voyage not to find or seek rest after it, but to brave imprisonment or whatever may be in store for them. Speculation is rife as to whether these men will be able to land at any of the South African ports. If they have been domiciled either at the Cape or in Natal, they should certainly find no difficulty in that. By the time they arrive, probably the Union Government will be in full working order. It will be interesting to note how they are dealt with by that Government. All speculation with reference to their arrival in the Transvaal is needless, because, whether they are tried as prohibited immigrants or otherwise, they have but to seek imprisonment, unless the Government, after having brought them into the Colony, take them again to Delagoa Bay and deport them to India. Whatever happens, as passive resisters they have only one course left open, and that is to abide by their obligation not to submit to the Law until the grievance for which they have been suffering has been redressed, irrespective of the results that may follow such a course. The Indians of Durban, too, have a duty to perform. It will be expected of them that they receive these passive resisters and make them as comfortable as possible, and give them such an ovation as would enable them to know that their self-sacrificing work is being appreciated by their countrymen throughout South Africa, and to enable the South African Government to understand that the whole of the Indian community in South Africa is at the back of the movement.

Indian Opinion, 21-5-1910
48. HINDUS AND MUSLIMS

COLONIAL-BORN INDIANS AND OTHERS

We feel ashamed to write under this heading but, ashamed or not, our duty is to speak the truth.

In Maritzburg, some Hindus and Colonial-born Indians had applied for trading licences, and also succeeded in obtaining them. We are prepared, if they so desire, to congratulate them on that. But the means which they adopted to secure the licences will prove the truth of the saying: “The heart must pay for what the hand has done.” In support of their applications, they submitted a statement from certain whites saying that Hindus and Muslims were not united and that [therefore] Hindus and Colonial-born Indians must not be obliged to buy from Muslim shops. And so the whites, in their wisdom, suggested that the licences should be granted.

So far as we can see, such steps can only lead to unhappy results. Till now it was only the whites who used to oppose our applications. Now we see even Indians opposing one another. This augurs ill [for the community]. We see that Indians are being tempted, with the support of whites, to profit at one another’s expense. The wise among the Indians should realize at once that this will bring ruin to both the communities. A move of this kind betokens complete lack of vision. We, therefore, entreat Indian leaders to think twice before they engage in such activities. We look upon everyone, no matter whether an Indian or not, who creates differences between Hindus and Muslims or between Colonial-born Indians and other Indians, as an enemy of the community; such a person will certainly deserve to be called so. We are emphatic in our view that, if among ourselves one community gets something more than the other, the latter should acquiesce in that rather than allow anything to fall into the hands of the third party.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 21-5-1910

1 A Gujarati saying
49. JOHANNESBURG

Monday [May 23, 1910]

DEPORTEES

Mr. Achary, one of the deportees, in a letter from Zanzibar dated April 23, writes to say that the deportees were happy on board the ship. They had some difficulties with the Captain about their food, but, on the British Consul’s advice, these were satisfactorily settled in Beira.

OTHER DEPORTEES

Mr. David Ernest and 23 other Indians who were deported by the Umfuli on the 18th instant were accompanied by Mr. Quinn and 25 other Chinese. The ship is bound for Colombo. There is no definite information what will happen to the passengers thereafter. There is a report that the Chinese may be taken to China. Mr. Quinn reports that the Chinese Consul had made good arrangements for their food and accommodation. There is also a move by the Chinese to get the Chinese Minister in Lisbon, the capital of Portugal, to write to the authorities there.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 28-5-1910

50. LETTER TO T. D. PATHER

Johannesburg

May 25, 1910

Dear Mr. Pather,

I have your letter giving me a full explanation of the two cases referred to in your letter. I am glad that you are not concerned in any injustice being done to our countrymen. Indeed, interpreters should be a source of comfort and help to Indians who come in touch with them. I am glad you have been helping Mr. Royeppen1 and others.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. Gandhi

Mr. T. D. Pather
P.O. Box 1256
Durban, Natal

From a photostat: G.N. 777

1 Joseph Royeppen
51. TELEGRAM TO SECRETARY TO VISCOUNT GLADSTONE

JOHANNESBURG,
May 26, 1910

BRITISH INDIAN ASSOCIATION TENDERS RESPECTFUL WELCOME TO HIS EXCELLENCY AND LADY GLADSTONE. ASSOCIATION WILL APPRECIATE APPOINTMENT FOR RECEIVING SMALL DEPUTATION REGARDING PAINFUL ASIATIC STRUGGLE GOING ON IN COLONY.

A. M. CACHALIA
PRESIDENT

Colonial Office Records: Cd. 5363

52. CRIMINAL NEGLECT

Both the Hon. Mr. R. Jameson\(^1\) and Mr. W. C. Daugherty\(^2\) deserve the thanks not only of the Indian community but also of those who have the fair name of Durban at heart, for the outspoken manner in which they have exposed the criminal neglect of the Durban Corporation in not having attended to the sanitation of a plague-spot known as the Eastern Vlei Indian Location, containing a population of nearly 800 Indians whom Mr. Jameson describes as “these long-suffering, patient and helpless people”. Since 1901, the Indian tenants have paid the Corporation in rents and rates the sum of £8,508 and have received in return “nothing but a swamp, a water-pipe, and sanitary services”. “Had they been Europeans”, adds Mr. Jameson, “this would perforce long since have been righted.” Mr. Daugherty, who gives details, says that “they suffer in health and comfort and material prosperity through being overlooked or forgotten in the improvements which have in every other part of the Borough been progressing and this notwithstanding that their particular part called for amelioration more urgently than any other locality. There is not even a paraffin lamp in the road.” Now this is a terrible indictment.

\(^1\) This telegram was presumably drafted by Gandhiji. On June 23, the Secretary replied that Viscount Gladstone could not receive the deputation. Vide “Johannes-burg” 27-6-1910

\(^2\) Chairman of the Sanitary Committee

\(^3\) Inspector of Nuisances
The first thought on reading it is naturally to swear at the Corporation. That it has neglected the Eastern Vlei Indians in a most shocking manner is all too true. But maturer consideration must lead to some heart-searchings among ourselves. We are not inclined to absolve even the Eastern Vlei Indians entirely from blame. It was, as it is even now, open to them to decline to live in that swamp. But the chief blame must rest upon the shoulders of the leaders of the community. It betrays a want of real communal life. It is possible to understand the helplessness of the location inmates. But it is impossible to understand or excuse the apathy of the leaders who should have led and compelled the Corporation to do its obvious duty. Why would the place have received prompt attention, had it been inhabited by Europeans? Surely not because they were Europeans but because their leaders, if not they themselves, would have moved heaven and earth to right such a terrible wrong. Europeans would have understood communal duty, whereas we have not. If, then, the neglect of the Corporation is criminal, that of our leaders is doubly so. The Corporation may shelve Mr. Jameson’s letter\(^1\) and Mr. Daugherty’s report\(^2\). Will our leaders allow it todo so? Here there is simple work for the various Indian societies. It is work that can bear fruit without much trouble. They may appoint visiting members to the location, obtain accurate information, bring the inmates themselves to a sense of their duty, tell them what they can do themselves, and, last but not least, they may and should ceaselessly worry the Corporation until it has done its duty.

Indian Opinion, 28-5-1910

---

1 Memorandum to the Durban Town Council reproduced in Indian Opinion, 21-5-1910

2 Reproduced in Indian Opinion, 21-5-1910
53. GERMAN EAST AFRICA LINE’S STEAMERS

We draw the attention of the Agents of the German East Africa Line to the allegations we print in another column made by the passengers per s.s. Kanzler during her voyage from Bombay which commenced on the 31st March last. If the allegations are true, they cast a serious reflection on the officers of the s. s. Kanzler. We hope that the Company’s Agents will fully investigate the charges made. We would, at the same time, warn them that, if they remain satisfied with categorical denials from the officers concerned, it would hardly carry conviction. Most of the passengers who have given their names are perhaps available, and it is the duty of the Company’s Agents, if only for their own interest, to carry on a thorough investigation. We cannot believe that they would countenance ill-treatment of their passengers, whether they are Indians or Europeans.

Indian Opinion, 28-5-1910

54. MR. ROYEPPEN

Mr. Joseph Royeppen, after having performed the pilgrimage to his aged mother and met his relatives whom he had left after only a short stay with them upon his return from London, has rejoined his companions and has been imprisoned with hard labour for the second time for the offence of entering a British Colony. His academic attainments are no protection to him. His Indian parentage nullifies the effect of his educational qualifications. Had he been a European, his accomplishments would have secured for him a warm welcome. The moral of the tragedy, as Mr. Polak would call this event, is obvious. For an Indian, the term “British subject” has no meaning in the Transvaal.

Indian Opinion, 28-5-1910

1 Not reproduced here; the complaints were in respect of sleeping accommodation, water supply, medical facilities and rough treatment of the Indian passengers.
55. MORE DISCHARGES

Notable passive resisters continue to be discharged from the Diepkloof prison. That staunch passive resister, Mr. P. K. Naidoo, and the quiet volunteer, Mr. Raju Naidoo, together with young Manilal Gandhi finished their terms of imprisonment on Monday last. Mr. P. K. Naidoo has served for the fourth time during the campaign of passive resistance. In order to break his spirit the authorities re-arrested Mr. Naidoo immediately on his previous discharge. But Mr. Naidoo was adamant. The gaol had lost all its terror for him. Without, therefore, asking for a remand in order to enable him to pay a hurried visit to his family, he accepted the summons to duty. Mr. Naidoo, it may be recalled, was a member of the volunteer Indian Ambulance Corps during the Boer War and holds the war medal. But neither scholastic training nor military service counts for an Indian in the Transvaal.

Indian Opinion, 28-5-1910

56. FOR COLONIAL-BORN INDIANS

We hope that every Colonial-born Indian will read the annual report of the Inspector of Education in Basutoland for the year ended June last. The Inspector, in dealing with the comparative value of English and that of the Sesuto language for the Basutos, says:

... if education is to have any real value for the Basutos, it must be based upon sound teaching in their own language. Anything which encourages the teachers to hurry over this stage in order that their pupils may be considered as belonging to the standards is fatal to education in the true sense of the word. ... Among the Natives in Basutoland, the speaking of English is an exotic. It is an accomplishment and one which, imperfectly acquired, gains for the exponent little credit with European listeners. ... Opinion in Basutoland is practically unanimous that this elementary education should be given in Sesuto. ... I would deprecate, therefore, any attempt to me a sure the value of a school by the number of pupils who are reading English in advanced reading-books, or to belittle the worth of a school because the only thing known by the majority of the pupils is Sesuto. A pupil who knows Sesuto thoroughly can read the Bible and the Pilgrim’s Progress. He can follow the news of the day in Sesuto newspapers and, in his lighter moments, can even read Sesuto novels. Many Europeans have gone far with little more book-knowledge of their own language than this.

We hope that every Indian will carefully consider these remarks of the Inspector of Education in Basutoland. If what the Inspector says be true of the Basutos, how much more must it be so of Indian youths who receive, in the ordinary schools of the Colony, no instruction at all in their mother-tongue. Moreover, fine as the Sesuto language is, we venture to think that it cannot boast the literary merit of the great Indian languages spoken in the Colony. It must be a matter of deep shame to any Indian youth to know that he cannot speak and read his own mother-tongue like an ordinary cultured Indian. The criminal neglect that is going on among Indian parents and their children as to the learning by the latter of Indian languages is calculated almost to denationalize them. Indeed, it is the duty of the Government, as of the missionaries who are in charge of Indian schools, to take to heart the very valuable suggestion made by the Inspector in Basutoland. But, whether they perform their duty or not, it is evidently the sacred obligation of Indian parents to repair the mischief while there is yet time. The majority of the Indian children taught in the ordinary schools of the Colony study neither English nor their own mother-tongue. The result is that they become useless as Indians, as citizens of the Colony and are hardly useful as decent wage-earners.

Indian Opinion, 28-5-1910

57. JOSEPH ROYEPPEN

Mr. Joseph Royeppen is once again in gaol. He has been sentenced to six weeks’ imprisonment and gone back to do hard labour for the sake of the motherland. This is fine courage indeed on Mr. Royeppen’s part. His going to gaol has been, and will be, a great gain to himself and to the community.

It is no trivial matter that an educated man like Mr. Royeppen should have to suffer imprisonment the moment he enters the Transvaal. This incident proves that we are not British subjects, but slaves.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 28-5-1910
DEAR MR. KALLENBACH,

I have shown your kind letter¹ to Mr. Cachalia and other fellow passive resisters, and I have to thank you for your generous offer on their and my own behalf. I accept your offer, and I need hardly say to what extent your offer will relieve the financial pressure.

As to the improvements and additions referred to in paragraphs 2 and 3 of your letter, I shall keep an accurate account which shall be open to your inspection, and I shall not undertake improvements or additions without your approval.

I am,

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

Indian Opinion, 11-6-1910

¹ Which read as follows:

DEAR MR. GANDHI,

In accordance with our conversation, I offer to you the use of my farm near Lawley for passive resisters and their indigent families; the families and passive resisters to live on the farm free of any rent or charge, as long as the struggle with the Transvaal Government lasts. They may also use, free of charge, all the buildings not at present used by me.

Any structural alterations, additions or improvements made by you may be removed at your pleasure on the termination of occupation, or they will be paid for by me at a valuation in the usual manner, the terms of payment to be mutually agreed upon by us.

I propose to pay, at a valuation in the usual manner, [for] all the agricultural improvements that may have been made by the settlers.

The settlers to withdraw from the farm on the termination of the struggle.

Yours sincerely,

H. KALLENBACH
59. LETTER TO THE PRESS

JOHANNESBURG,

June 2, 1910

SIR,

The Union has been ushered in among very general rejoicing among the European races of South Africa. Asiatics have been also expected to share in these rejoicings. If they have not been able to respond to these expectations, the cause, so far at least as the Transvaal is concerned, is not far to seek. On the day of the advent of Union, nearly sixty families were deprived of their supporters, and were being maintained out of public funds. On the first working day of the Union, a cultured Indian and representative Parsee, Mr. Sorabji, who has already suffered six terms of imprisonment, was re-arrested, after having been left free for over a month after his last discharge from Diepkloof; and he is now under order of deportation. Other passive resisters, too, continue to be arrested. Mr. Joseph Royeppen, the Barrister and Cambridge Graduate, and his companions are again in prison. And all this suffering is being imposed because an Act that is supposed to have become a dead letter has not been repealed, and the theoretical legal position of British Indians of high attainments to enter the Transvaal on the same terms as Europeans, British or otherwise, is not recognised.

What can a Union under which the above state of things is continued mean to Asiatics, except that it is a combination of hostile forces arrayed against them? The Empire is supposed to have become stronger for the Union. Is it to crush by its weight and importance Asiatic subjects of the Crown? It was no doubt right and proper that the birth of Union should have been signalised for the Natives of South Africa by the clemency of the Crown towards Dinizulu. Dinizulu’s discharge will naturally fire the imagination of the South African Natives. Will it not be equally proper to enable the Asiatics in South Africa to feel that there is a new and benignant spirit abroad in South Africa by conceding their demands, which are held, I make

---

1 Wednesday, June 1, 1910
2 Zulu chief; vide “Late Mr. Arathoon”, 14-12-1907. After release, he was settled on a farm in the Transvaal, where he died in October 1913.
bold to say, to be intrinsically just by nine out of every ten intelligent Europeans in this Continent?

Indian Opinion, 11-6-1910

60. BIRTHDAY MESSAGE TO HIS MAJESTY

[June 3, 1910]

TRANSVAAL BRITISH INDIANS LOYALLY CONGRATULATE KING-EMPEROR OCCASION BIRTHDAY ANNIVERSARY.

Indian Opinion, 11-6-1910

61. MR. BHAYAT

Mr. A. M. Bhayat’s discharge deserves special mention in that he not only suffered much in health but he is probably the only representative of the Kholwad section who has braved every danger and kept up its reputation by going to jail again and again. In obedience to communal duty, Mr. Bhayat remains undaunted. We hope that the other merchants will follow Mr. Bhayat’s example.

Indian Opinion, 4-6-1910

62. MR. SORABJI’S RE-ARREST

Mr. Sorabji Shapurji Adajania has been re-arrested. Mr. Sorabji’s arrest recalls painful memories. He is a devoted son of India. He is a brilliant representative of a brilliant race—the Parsee. He belongs to a well-known family in Bombay and he it was who laid the foundation of the second stage of the struggle. Mr. Sorabji has already suffered imprisonment six times. He will now be imprisoned for the seventh time. He has served in the aggregate the longest term—over sixteen months. The advent of the Union of South Africa is marked for Indians by the re-arrest of Mr. Sorabji. That the first working day of the Union should be turned for the Indians in the 1 Presumably drafted by Gandhiji and sent by the British Indian Association. The date is mentioned in the acknowledgement dated July 1, 1910, reproduced in Indian Opinion, 16-7-1910.

2 Vide also “Bhayat”, 4-6-1910
3 Vide “Letter to the Press”, 2-6-1910
Transvaal, if not in South Africa, into a day of mourning and a reminder that the Union to them is meaningless is a sad commentary on a great epoch in the evolution of the British Empire. Natal is within the Union. Mr. Sorabji has domicile rights in Natal. He will be deported to the territories of a member of the Union. What is this Union? Whom does it unite? What does it unite? Or is it a Union against the Indian and other Coloured races inhabiting South Africa? If the Union of South Africa promotes the might of the Empire, are we or are we not to rejoice over the fact as being members of that Empire? How will the event strike the new Emperor of India? What responsibility attaches to the Governor-General of South Africa in this matter? These are questions which may or may not be rightly answered. Meanwhile, the brave Mr. Sorabji does his duty and, if Indians in South Africa mourn over the further sufferings of a brother, they may rejoice, too, that of Mr. Sorabji the whole of India is proud and that India’s salvation depends not on external aid but on internal growth such as is shown by Mr. Sorabji.

Indian Opinion, 4-6-1910

63. BHAYAT

We congratulate Mr. A. M. Bhayat on his splendid courage. He has kept up the honour of the Kholvad community and brought credit to Heidelberg. He has sanctified gaol. If there had been many Indians to follow Mr. Bhayat, or if they come forward now, they would have served or they will serve, both themselves and the community in the long run. To start with, of course, they may have to suffer, as Mr. Bhayat has done, and even put up with pecuniary loss. But ultimately there will be nothing but gain. Mr. Bhayat has even sacrificed his health for the sake of the community. He has lost weight, but shows no concern on that account. We must win, no doubt. The credit for the victory will go to satyagrahis like Mr. Bhayat who have been repeatedly courting imprisonment.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 4-6-1910

---

1 Vide also “Mr. Bhayat”, 4-6-1910
64. EXTRACT FROM LETTER TO P. J. MEHTA

[TOLSTOY FARM,
   After June 4, 1910]

...I prepare the bread that is required on the farm. The general opinion about it is that it is well made. Manilal and a few others have learnt how to prepare it. We put in no yeast and no baking powder. We grind our own wheat. We have just prepared some marmalade from the oranges grown on the farm. I have also learnt how to prepare caramel coffee. It can be given as a beverage even to babies. The passive resisters on the farm have given up the use of tea and coffee, and taken to caramel coffee prepared on the farm. It is made from wheat which is first baked in a certain way and then ground. We intend to sell our surplus production of the above articles to the public later on. Just at present, we are working as labourers on the construction work that is going on, on the farm, and have no time to produce more of the articles above mentioned than we need for ourselves.

From M. K. Gandhi and the South African Indian Problem by Dr. P. J. Mehta

65. CABLE TO S. A. B. I. COMMITTEE

JOHANNESBURG,
June 6, 1910

ROYEPPE SENTENCED SIX WEEKS. SORABJEE ARRESTED FOR SEVENTH TIME FIRST OF JUNE, ORDERED TO BE DEPORTED. BHAYAT DISCHARGED EMACIATED CONDITION AND SUFFERING FROM INFLUENZA. SHELAT SENTENCED SPARE DIET

1 Gandhiji used to write to Dr. Mehta in Gujarati. The above extract quoted by Mr. Mehta in his book must be a translation of the original Gujarati, which is not available.

2 This letter appears to have been written soon after June 4, when Gandhiji went to stay on Tolstoy Farm, especially from the reference to construction work on the farm. Vide “Johannesburg”, 13-6-1910
FOR REFUSING TO CARRY SANITARY PAILS. THREATENED LASHES.¹

GANDHI

Colonial Office Records: Cd. 5363; also
India, 10-6-1910

66. JOHANNESBURG

Monday [June 6, 1910]

DISCHARGED

Major Thomas, Mr. Kuppusamy Naidoo, Mr. T. Narainsami Pillay and Mr. Papiya Moonsamy were discharged today.

CRUELTY TO SHELAT

These prisoners who have been released have brought the news that the authorities have been trying to compel Shelat to carry [slop-] pails. Last week he was sentenced to 24 hours’ solitary confinement and was put on spare diet. The Governor has now threatened him with lashes if he persists in his refusal. Mr. Shelat said that he would submit to that too rather than carry the pails. He will again be tried today in the gaol. We are not likely to know for some time what happens. A letter² has been addressed to the Government about him.

SORABJI

Mr. Sorabji has been taken to Pretoria. He writes from there to say that he is happier in the Charge Office at Pretoria than he was at Johannesburg.

THAMBI NAIDOO

[He] has been re-arrested. The officials cannot afford to let him remain free even for a minute. He has an incomparable spirit. What need is there to write in praise of him? This struggle has produced few satyagrahis who can be his equals. This is the eighth time that he has been arrested.

[From Gujarati]
Indian Opinion, 11-6-1910

¹ While publishing the cable, India, 10-6-1910, wrote: “Mr. Gandhi adds that the struggle, nevertheless, will go on until justice has been done.”
² Vide the following item.
67. LETTER TO THE TRANSVAAL ADMINISTRATOR

[Johannesburg.]
June 7, 1910

SIR,

Indian passive resisters discharged yesterday have brought the information that Mr. Shelat, a Brahmin passive resister, who is serving imprisonment at Diepkloof, has been once sentenced to solitary confinement and spare diet for refusing to carry slop-pails on the ground that such work is contrary to his conscience and religion. The discharged passive resisters state that Mr. Shelat has been threatened with the punishment of lashes, if he persists in his disobedience. My Association is inclined to the belief that the threat, if it has been at all used, is not seriously meant. In any event, my Association respectfully trusts that the Government will be pleased to spare the Indian community the shock that is bound to be caused by the carrying out of the threat.

My Association ventures to draw your attention to the fact that, during his previous incarceration for conscience' sake, Mr. Shelat underwent solitary confinement for over a month for the same cause, and that the other passive resisters at Diepkloof have stated that they have no objection to Mr. Shelat’s being excused from the duty of carrying slop-pails.¹

My Association trusts that you will be pleased to give the matter the attention it deserves.

Indian Opinion, 11-6-1910

¹ This letter, presumably drafted by Gandhiji and marked “urgent”, was sent by E. S. Coovadia, Acting Chairman, British Indian Association, to the Administrator, Pretoria.

² The Director of Prisons in his reply of 21st June reproduced in Indian Opinion, 25-6-1910, said: “No threat of lashes has been made, nor would such a punishment ever be inflicted for an offence of this nature.”

³ Vide “Letter to Director of Prisons”, 3-5-1910
68. MR. KALLENBACH’S OFFER

We do not know whom to congratulate most—Mr. Kallenbach for his highmindedness or the community for having received from Mr. Kallenbach an offer¹ which may enable passive resisters to go through the struggle without undue pecuniary strain. The best thanks that can be rendered to Mr. Kallenbach would undoubtedly be for the passive resistance families to make use of the offer and to show to South Africa at large, by exemplary behaviour on the farm, how worthy they were of such handsome treatment.

The terms of Mr. Kallenbach’s letter² are one-sided. He has given all he legitimately could and has expected no return. He does not want to develop his estate through the labour of those passive resisters who could put in their labour without paying them for it. Acts such as Mr. Kallenbach’s are calculated to bring East and West nearer in real fellowship than any amount of rhetorical writing or speaking. We shall watch this experiment with very great interest.

Indian Opinion, 11-6-1910

69. LASHES!

Our Transvaal correspondent reports news this week of the gravest character. Mr. Shelat has made it a matter of conscience not to carry slop-pails. During his last incarceration, he was under solitary confinement for over a month, during which time he had for the most part only spare diet. We had hoped that this time, with the past experience to fall back upon, the authorities would let the matter rest and not force the issue by requiring Mr. Shelat to do that particular work. On messages received from the prisoners at Diepkloof, it was represented to the Director of Prisons not to insist on Mr. Shelat doing the work,³ as the other passive resisters were quite agreeable to the indulgence being granted him. The Director, however, wrote to Mr. Cachalia saying that no such relief could be granted. And now we see the result. For the sake of the people of the Transvaal, we hope that the authorities will not take the threatened step. To order lashes in order to compel a man to do anything against his conscience would be the height of barbarity. As a passive resister, Mr. Shelat will, no doubt, suffer cheerfully even the penalty of lashes. But for the authorities to persist in their brutal course can only add to the tension that already exists among Indians.

¹ Vide “Letter to H. Kallenbach”, 30-5-1910
² Dated 30-5-1910; vide footnote of “Letter to H. Kallenbach”, 30-5-1910
³ Vide “Letter to Director of Prisons”, 3-5-1910

Indian Opinion, 11-6-1910

70. MR. THAMBI NAIDOO’S RE-ARREST

The re-arrest of Mr. Thambi Naidoo has followed close upon that of Mr. Sorabji. It is evident that General Smuts, now that he is confirmed in his control over Asiatics, wishes to show his firmness by taking up the bravest passive resisters. We wish him joy of his task. We hope that we are not doing the great General an injustice in making him responsible for this sudden activity. To passive resisters, a lodgment in the gaols of the Transvaal must be a welcome relief so long as their goal remains unreached.

The re-arrest of Mr. Thambi Naidoo is not without a dramatic touch. On Monday morning, he met his son who had just been discharged after three months’ service at Diepkloof. In the afternoon of the same day he was re-arrested. Thus the father has not been allowed to remain with the son even for a few days. This, no doubt, is merely a coincidence. But it shows vividly what the struggle means to many Indians in the Transvaal.

Mr. Naidoo is one of the most determined and persevering of passive resisters. Whether in or out of the gaol, he gives himself no rest. His one aim is to live so as to deserve the high title of passive resister as the term is understood among the strugglers in the Transvaal. Mr. Naidoo, like Mr. Sorabji, is among the brightest stars of the Indian community in South Africa.

Indian Opinion, 11-6-1910

71. LASHES!

Mr. Shelat may even be flogged for refusing to carry slop-pails. Should this really happen, will the Indians of South Africa merely look on? If Mr. Shelat is flogged, for whom will it be? And who are those who will log him? Our hair stands on end as we contemplate this. If Mr. Shelat refuses to carry pails, what is that to us?—someone may ask. Such an attitude will betray sheer want of sense. Today it is Mr. Shelat, tomorrow it may be the turn of another Indian. What matters is that Mr. Shelat has made the question of carrying pails a religious issue. On an issue like that, no one will be justified in inflicting cruelty on another. On the contrary, when a person shows himself prepared to suffer on such an issue, every sincere man of religion owes it as a duty to defend him even if he happens to have adopted a mistaken attitude. Otherwise, man will not be able to defend his freedom, and where there is no freedom of thought and action, there can be no religion. In the absence of religion, a people cannot but perish. We, therefore, hope that, if Mr. Shelat is subjected to such cruelty, Indians everywhere in South Africa will raise a strong protest and make their views known to the Government.

[From Gujarati]
Indian Opinion, 11-6-1910

72. NAIDOO

Mr. Thambi Naidoo and Mr. Sorabji—these two satyagrahis make a remarkable pair. The moment Mr. Sorabji was arrested, they pounced upon Mr. Thambi Naidoo. He was arrested on the very day on which his son was released. This is no ordinary matter.

Now that General Smuts is confirmed in his office, he is striking with greater force. Satyagrahis are not likely to be intimidated by this. It is their business to suffer and therefore they have come to feel at home in gaol like fish in water. As long as there are such staunch Indians, the ultimate victory for the community will never be in doubt. All the same, other Indians, too, must do their duty to the best of their ability. There are many ways of doing this, which we have mentioned from time to time. We hope the community will derive inspiration from the example of Mr. Thambi Naidoo and other satyagrahis.

[From Gujarati]
Indian Opinion, 11-6-1910
73. KALLENBACH’S GIFT

We place a very high value on Mr. Kallenbach’s offer of his farm for the benefit of satyagrahis. If the families of the latter use it well, we shall have no occasion for anxiety, however long the struggle lasts. There will be much saving in expenditure, and those who settle on the farm will learn to be happy. They will have, on the farm, a noble life in place of the unclean and monotonous ways of town-life. Moreover, what they will learn on the farm will prove useful for a life-time. Indeed, we have said in the past that the Indian community would be well rewarded if it were to take to agriculture and would be saved the anxieties incidental to business. We have to pay a heavy price for not recognizing the value of this best of occupations.

We hope the leaders [of the community] will address letters of thanks to Mr. Kallenbach. His gift will be appreciated at its proper worth only when Indians settle there in large numbers.

[From Gujarati]
Indian Opinion, 11-6-1910

74. JOHANNESBURG

Monday [June 13, 1910]

TOLSTOY FARM

Mr. Kallenbach has given the name “Tolstoy Farm” to the farm which he has offered for [the use of] the satyagrahi families. He has great faith in Count Tolstoy’s teaching and tries to live up to it. He himself wants to live on the farm and follow a simple mode of life. It appears Mr. Kallenbach will gradually give up his work as architect and live in complete poverty.

Mr. Kallenbach has rendered a valuable service by offering the use of his farm, but more so by deciding to live among our people. He has also agreed to look after the womenfolk in the absence of Mr. Gandhi. That any white should be moved by such a spirit must be attributed to the power of satyagraha.

The farm measures about 1100 acres, being two miles in length and three quarters of a mile in breadth. It is situated near Lawley.
Station, 22 miles from Johannesburg. It takes twenty minutes to walk down from the station to the farm. By rail, it generally takes about one and a half hours to reach it from here.

The soil appears to be fertile. The farm has about a thousand fruit-bearing trees growing on it. There are peaches, apricots, figs, almonds, walnuts, etc. In addition, there are eucalyptus and wattle trees.

The farm has two wells and a small spring. The landscape is beautiful. At the head there is a hill, with some more or less level land at the foot.

Mr. Kallenbach, Mr. Gandhi and his two sons have already settled on the farm since June 4. They are busy making arrangements for satyagrahis to go over there. Mr. Kallenbach and Mr. Gandhi come to the town every Monday and Thursday and spend the other days on the farm.

Last Sunday, some leading Tamil ladies, accompanied by Mr. Thambi Naidoo and Mr. Gopal Naidoo, went over there to have a look round. They spent the whole day on the farm. Mr. Kallenbach, Mr. Gandhi and his son cooked a meal for them. Mr. Kallenbach showed them round the farm and they all appeared satisfied. Mr. Gopal Naidoo, who had already made up his mind to live there, has stayed on. Mr. Moosa Nathi, too, who runs a shop nearby, came the same day and promised every possible help. Construction work has started now and some buildings are expected to be ready by the end of this month.

This is a very important venture. Its roots go deep: it is up to the satyagrahis who settle there to make it bear sweet fruit by the way they live.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 18-6-1910
75. LETTER TO MAGANLAL GANDHI

[About June 15, 1910]¹

CHI. MAGANLAL,

I have not forgotten about the letter regarding the steamer. I shall send you the statement when I find time.

There was a letter from Chhaganlal written before his departure. I am not worried about him now. I hope he will fully recover his health in England.

I have decided to send Chanchal² to India. Please find out some company for her and send her immediately. I am not likely to go there. Harilal wants a second-class ticket to be bought for her and we shall do so. I hear that Motilal’s³ wife is going. Chanchal may go even in the company of some good man. If she has the courage, she need not wait for me.

For sending the sandals, there is no need to search for a person coming here. The pair I am using is almost worn out. You may send Manilal’s pair too if it is there. Manilal says that his silk suit is lying there. Please send that too along with the sandals. Perhaps all this can be sent by a goods train. Please send these things by the cheapest means. It will be as well if you send them directly to the Farm.

Blessings from

M OHANDAS

[PS.]

More on the reverse side.⁴

From a handwritten copy of the Gujarati original: C.W. 4930 Courtesy: Radhabehn Choudhri

---

¹ Chhaganlal Gandhi, Gandhiji’s nephew, whose letter is referred to in the second paragraph, left India for England on June 1, 1910. It took about 17 days for the post to reach South Africa from India.
² Wife of Harilal, Gandhiji’s eldest son
³ Motilal M. Dewan, a leading Indian of Natal
⁴ Not available
76. PASSIVE RESISTERS

Of the twenty-six passive resisters who were deported and who had immediately returned from Bombay and who arrived at Durban on Sunday last, only thirteen have been allowed to land, the claims of the other nine who stated that they were domiciled in the Colony having for the time being been rejected. Efforts were made to induce the Principal Immigration Officer to allow the others to land, subject to security being given for their return should they fail to establish their claim. But the officer was adamant and refused to grant this reasonable facility. These men, therefore, have been obliged to undertake almost without a break a trying voyage for the third time. Though British subjects, they have been rejected first by one British Colony and then by another. And so misery is added to misery and discontent to discontent. But the men who have been forced to go back have that stuff in them of which heroes are made. They have gone not dispirited but invigorated by their trials, and the determination with which they have borne themselves hitherto will carry them to their goal.

The community is proud of them and so should the Empire in whose name they have been so shabbily treated by Natal. They have set a noble example in deeds worthy of imitation by Indians throughout South Africa.

The task before those who have been landed is simple. They have to challenge the Transvaal Government, now part of the Union Government, to re-arrest and re-imprison or re-deport them. A true passive resister, Wordsworth’s Warrior, has only one goal before him and that is to do his duty, cost what it may.

Indian Opinion, 18-6-1910

77. SATYAGRAHIS

The 26 satyagrahis who came back from India arrived [in Durban] but all of them did not disembark. This is partly our fault. How is it that nine of them could not disembark, though they had a right to be in Natal? But this is not a time to look for faults. We want

---

1 Vide “The Returned Deportees”, 21-5-1910
the community to realize that satyagrahis are its true servants and precious jewels, and so to look after them and encourage them. For satyagrahis, public honour and parties should have little attraction. Their duty is merely to do and to suffer. It is the duty of the community, however, to look after them. They are our army, our “Tommies”. We have learnt from experience that all satyagrahis are not full of satya [truth]. But we need not concern ourselves with this. We must, for the time being, accept as such anyone who claims to be a satyagrahi. In fact, of course, no one can be accepted as a true satyagrahi till he has met death, being faithful to his pledge right up to the end.

As for some of them having had to return, let us not mind it. They are being hardened. This will be their third voyage at a running. It is up to the community to bring them back. Their own duty is to have patience. Moreover, we are justified in saying that we should not mind their having had to return because the incident exposes the despotic attitude of the Union Government. Why were these men not given full opportunity to establish their right? Why were they not allowed to stay in Durban? The more we suffer, the stronger becomes our case. The more the people suffer, the greater will be our rise and the sooner will our freedom come. Therefore, though it is a discredit to us that the Indians had to return, the incident may yet do us good.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 18-6-1910

78. JOHANNESBURG

Monday [June 20, 1910]

SATYAGRAHI FARM

There has been feverish activity on the farm to complete the arrangement for women. Mr. Kallenbach is busy with building operations. The foundation has been laid for a chawl fifty feet long. It is a stone foundation, and Mr. Chinan, Mr. Kuppusamy Naidoo, Mr. Manilal Gandhi and Mr. Gandhi have been working at stone-rolling side by side with the Kaffirs. Stones are available on the farm itself, but they have to be carried from the hill to the building-site. Mr. Gopal Naidoo attends to cooking. In all, there are six Indians and Mr. Kallenbach living together, with a common mess. All the dishes are prepared in Indian style. In the morning, those who want a breakfast have bread and also coffee made from roasted wheat. The bread is made at home, without the use of yeast. It is prepared from boer meal and whole meal. At lunch, they have rice and curry, and bread with home-made jam prepared from oranges growing on the farm. For dinner, there is porridge, and bread and jam. Butter is not used, the ghee employed in cooking being considered sufficient. In the afternoon and at night, they have dry fruit and groundnut, if either is at hand. Modifications, if necessary, will be made in this diet after the women join. I am both surprised and glad that Mr. Kallenbach lives amidst this group like a member of the family.

DAVID ANDREW

Mr. David Andrew, Mr. Samuel Joseph and Mr. Dhobi Nayana will be free for eight days. They will be deported next Friday.

Mr. David Andrew and Mr. Samuel Joseph are staying with the Chairman of the Chinese Association at his invitation. They have been put up in the Chinese Club. It is a very well-run club. One really feels the absence of such a building for Indians.

THAMBI NAIDOO

It is not yet known where he is to be taken. There are four other satyagrahis with him.

NEW PARTIES

So far, there were the Het Volk, the Union and the Bond parties in the Transvaal, the Orange Colony and the Cape Colony, respectively. Efforts are now being made by Mr. Botha and his friends to amalgamate the three under the name of the South Africa Party. The Progressive Party has been renamed the Unionist Party.

HOSKEN

He has been trying to enter the new Parliament. There is some ground to hope that he will succeed.

MADRESSA PUPILS

These pupils were examined by Imam Saheb Bawazeer and the Moulvi Saheb here. The successful ones among them were awarded prizes.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 25-6-1910
79. INDIANS UNDER THE UNION

The placing of the Native question above party politics, and the fair and sympathetic treatment of the Coloured races in a broad and liberal spirit; the encouragement of European and the prevention of Asiatic immigration into South Africa.

—General Botha’s Manifesto.

To improve the social conditions of the people by opposing the introduction of Asians into South Africa, while securing fair treatment for those now lawfully settled in the country; a Commission to be appointed as soon as possible to investigate and report upon the special labour conditions prevailing in Natal, in order to bring them into harmony at the earliest possible date with this principle without detriment to established industries.

—Unionist Party’s Programme.

We leave placed in juxtaposition extracts from General Botha’s manifesto and the programme of Dr. Jameson’s new party. The reader will see that there is not much to choose between the two, that the statements are as vague as they possibly can be, and that the authors of the two documents consider that Asiatic immigration is inimical to improvement in the social status of Europeans residing in South Africa. Both documents desire the prevention of such immigration. The Unionist programme qualifies the desire by adding that fair treatment for those now lawfully settled in the country should be secured. That programme contemplates also an investigation into the labour conditions of Natal. British Indians throughout South Africa, then, must be prepared during the coming months for anti-Asiatic activity on a much larger scale than hitherto. The prospect, however, is by no means black or hopeless, if the different sections of the community scattered throughout South Africa will realise the significance of the statements we have above quoted and do the needful in order to combat the reactionary policy foreshadowed by them. In doing so, however, they will have to recognise well-defined limitations. Control of Asiatic immigration we are bound to put up with and recognise, but total exclusion amounting to a national insult must be considered by every Indian worth his salt to be an impossibility. It appears to us that no sacrifice that may be made by the resident community in South Africa will be too great in order to avert, such a calamity. We hold that this sort of equality is the corner-stone of the Imperial edifice, and that Indians who suffer in their attempt to make good the position will have deserved well not only of India but of the whole Empire. The two manifestos demonstrate the greatness of the struggle that is now going on in the Transvaal. We hope that our countrymen in this continent will carefully study the programme of the two parties, and do their duty at what is a critical juncture in the history of British Indians in South Africa.

Indian Opinion, 25-6-1910

80. GENERAL BOTHA’S VIEWS

The manifesto of his party, which General Botha has issued, sets out his views about us. These are worth studying. He wants European immigration into South Africa to be encouraged and Asiatic immigration to be stopped.

Dr. Jameson’s party also sets out identical views. Its manifesto states, however, that Asiatics who are already settled in South Africa should be treated well, that the question of allowing indentured labour into Natal should be carefully examined and that it should even be stopped altogether if the existing interests of the industry did not suffer thereby.

Thus, the leaders of both the parties want to stop Asiatic immigration. Their manifestos, however, are couched in such terms that they will bear any interpretation that one may choose to put upon them. For us, of course, they have only one meaning, namely, that there is imminent danger to us. We may understand the view that too many Indians should not be allowed into South Africa. That is a hardship we cannot escape. When, however, we are told that we cannot enter just because we are Asiatics, it is the whole of India that is being insulted. We believe no Indian will put up with such an insult.
Whatever the consequences of our refusal, we must bear them. For that, as we should like to show to every Indian, we must start preparing ourselves right now. Otherwise, steps will be taken under the Union to uproot Indians from South Africa altogether.

We take this opportunity to remind Indians that the Transvaal campaign is a powerful source of strength [to them]. It is in their interest to see that the campaign is kept up.

[From Gujarati]
Indian Opinion, 25-6-1910

81. SPEECH AT SOCIALIST HALL

[JOHANNESBURG,
June 26, 1910]

Mr. M. K. Gandhi delivered an interesting and well thought-out address last night at the Socialist Hall, Market Street, under the auspices of the Socialist Committee, entitled “Modern as Compared with Ancient Civilisation”. The hall was crowded.

Mr. Gandhi prefaced his remarks with an apology to those who might differ from his views, and excused himself on the ground that he was an ardent searcher after truth. Modern civilisation, he said, could be summed up by two expressions. One was that it represented ceaseless activity, and the second was that it aimed at the annihilation of space and time. Everybody nowadays appeared to be preoccupied, and to him that appeared a dangerous symptom. They were all so intent upon earning bread and butter that they had no time for anything else.

Modern civilisation made them materialistic, made them concentrate their thoughts upon their bodies and upon the means of multiplying bodily comforts. Herbert Spencer had summed up the modern man by saying that the civilized man led a complex life as opposed to the entirely simple life of the savage. The source from which the Asiatic trouble arose in the Transvaal was that the Asiatic’s wants were very simple, whereas those of the European were complex and therefore expensive. The tendency of modern methods went to make the Native’s life more complex. While the wants of the raw Native were easily satisfied, the more enlightened of them required many more embellishments. Thus, they required more money, and when they found they could not get it honestly, they resorted to dishonesty.

After 18 years of study devoted to the consideration of the question, he had come to the conclusion that instead of there being a change for the better, there had been a change for the worse. (Applause.) He found that the simple life was better than the complex, in that they found time to devote attention to higher pursuits. In ancient civilisation, there had been no rush whatsoever. They nowadays looked downwards to the earth; in those days they looked upwards to Heaven. They did not concentrate upon the body but upon the soul, which they kept quite distinct from the soul [sic].

1 Indian Opinion, 2-7-1910, published a brief summary in the following words: The speaker said that modern civilization was expressed in an attempt to annihilate time and space and in excessive care for the body. The rush of modern life left little time for higher thoughts. It looked downward to the earth, whereas ancient civilization looked upward to Heaven. It kept the body subservient to the soul. It was based on the force of love. It avoided the hateful spirit of competition. It was best expressed in village life as against modern town life.

The flesh was not the be-all and the end-all of life. Now was the service of Mammon; then was the service of God. If he did not think that the soul existed and if he did not recognise that in all of them there were identical souls, then he for one would not like to live upon this earth. He would like to die. The body was the vehicle subservient to the soul. The body was simply earth, dross and objectionable.

Ancient civilisation made them look to the higher pursuits of life, the love of God, the respect of a neighbour and the consciousness of the existence of the soul. The sooner they returned to the life, the better.

Rand Daily Mail, 27-6-1910

82. JOHANNESBURG

Monday [June 27, 1910]

MEMBERS OF NATAL BATCH

Messrs Ram Bihari, Rajkumar, Burjorsingh, Kajee Dadamia, Essop Kolia, P. K. Desai, Kara Nanji and Tulsi Jutha, members of the Natal batch who were sentenced to three months' imprisonment on March 24, have been released. All of them are in good cheer.

DEPUTATION TO LORD GLADSTONE

Mr. Cachalia had written to Lord Gladstone,¹ soon after the latter's arrival, that a deputation would wait on him. A reply² has now been received that he could not receive the deputation, for, as the Ministers point out, he has already had a number of discussions with the Association about the agitation. This means that satyagrahis have only their own strength to rely on.

THAMBI NAIDOO

[He] is still lodged in Pretoria. It has not been decided where he is to be sent.

¹ Vide “Telegram to Secretary to Viscount Gladstone”, 26-5-1910
² Dated 23-6-1910
DAVID ANDREW

[Mr. David Andrew,] Mr. Samuel Joseph and Mr. Nayana have been removed to Pretoria for being deported again.

TOLSTOY FARM

A school has now been opened on this Farm. Mr. Gandhi teaches every day between two and five, except on Mondays and Thursdays. The [only] pupils at present are Mr. Gopal, Mr. Chinan, Mr. Kuppusami and his two sons.

Construction work is in progress. Seven Indian carpenters have gone there to work gratis. They were got together by Mr. Cachalia, Mr. Aswat, Mr. Fancy and others. About sixty carpenters assembled on Sunday. It was resolved then that those carpenters who could not go to work on the Farm should pay 12 s each. Many of them paid this amount and seven went to the Farm. For some time, they will offer their services free. They deserve congratulations on their spirit of community service.

Messrs Bihari, Rajkumar, Pragji Desai, Burjorsingh and Coomarsami Padiachy went to the Farm on Monday to settle there. They will remain there till they are arrested.

The Farm is in need of a number of things. The requirements will increase when children arrive. Those who do not take active part in the struggle by going to gaol can help in other ways. The object of settling on the Farm is to save expenses; also, those who go there will undergo some training. Much saving may result if everyone of those who do not go to gaol offers a little help. Tradesmen can supply things free or at reduced prices. Fruit- and vegetable-dealers can send these things from time to time. To send small quantities will be no burden to them, and the movement will get some help. Some fruit-dealers have expressed their readiness to help in this way. The following are the chief needs of the Farm at present:

- Blankets or cotton mattresses
- Wooden planks
- Empty kerosene tins
- Clean gunny bags or gunny-bag cloth or hessian
- Any implements, such as hoes and spades, needles, sewing thread, etc.
- Coarse cloth of any kind
Books for use in school
Fruits and vegetables
Cooking utensils
Foodgrains of any kind.

This is a hastily drawn-up list. There are many useful things of a similar nature which most Indians can send with a little effort. All that is needed is interest and sympathy. Things sent to the Farm should be addressed as follows:

Mr. Gandhi, Tolstoy Farm, Lawley, Transvaal.

Mr. Maimee and Mr. B. P. Ebrahim went to see the Farm on Sunday.

MR. GANDHI’S SPEECH AT SOCIALIST SOCIETY

At the invitation of the Society, Mr. Gandhi delivered a speech in the Society’s hall on Sunday last. The move was initiated by Mr. Crawford, a Town Councillor. The speech was a comparison of ancient and modern civilizations. The hall was packed with whites. Some Indians, too, were present. A summary of the speech has appeared in the Daily Mail. Its main theme was that ancient civilization was better than modern. The latter is selfish, godless and hypocritical. In this civilization, the chief object of man’s endeavour is physical happiness. In the days of ancient civilization, men were kind, God-fearing and simple and looked upon the body as a means of spiritual uplift. It is necessary to revert to the ancient way of life and for that purpose to adopt simplicity and village life. The speech was followed by numerous questions and answers and a lengthy discussion. The audience appeared to have been well impressed.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 2-7-1910

1 Vide “Speech at Socialist Hall”, 26-5-1910
83. LETTER TO MAGANLAL GANDHI

Jeth Vadi 2 [Samvat 1966]

[June 29, 1910]

CHI. MAGANLAL,

I write nothing more about Thaker, as I have sent you his long letter.

I think I do have with me the dates of the Boer War in newspaper cuttings or somewhere else. I have no time to find them out just now. This also I write from the Farm. I shall arrange to get them for you if you particularly want them. I only remember that this Corps was formed in the November of 1899.

Blessings from

MOHANDAS

From the original Gujarati in Gandhiji’s hand: C.W. 4924 Courtesy: Radhabehn Choudhri

84. AN AGREEMENT

[June 1910]

1. K. is not to undertake any expense or improvements on the Lawley Farm without consultation with G. and without his approval.

2. During the presence at the Farm of G., K. is free to temporarily absent himself unless his presence is by both himself and G. considered necessary.

3. During the absence of G., K. to be at the Farm and supervise the settlers.

4. K. to plan and assist in the buildings and improvements not merely by supervising but working himself.

5. K. to live separately from the settlers and to board also separately with the option to join the common board if he is so inclined.

The pact was evidently drawn up during this period after the addressee’s offer of his farm near Lawley for the use of passive resisters and their families; vide “Letter to H. Kallenbach”, 30-5-1910.
6. G. to live in the same place with K. but to be free, if necessary for the settlement, to live and board with the settlers.

7. The primary object of going to the Farm, so far as K. and G. are concerned, is to make themselves into working farm hands.

8. K. is not to cherish the notion of making the Farm a commercial or speculative enterprise = this does not debar him from making it naturally a profitable concern.

9. K. is to control absolutely the settlement on the Farm of Europeans, G. of Indians or Chinese.

10. It is understood that the ideal is not to employ native labour and not to use machinery.

From the original: Gandhi-Kallenbach Correspondence. Courtesy: National Archives of India

85. CABLE TO S.A.B.I. COMMITTEE

JOHANNESBURG,
July 1, 1910

DEPORTEES REJECTED BY NATAL. RETURNED TO ZANZIBAR; PREVENTED LANDING THERE. THAMBI NAIDOO AND OTHERS DEPORTED; RETURNED, SENTENCED. ROYEPPEN DISCHARGED, BEING DEPORTED.

M. K. GANDHI

Cd. 5363

86. SATYAGRAHI FARM

We draw the attention of readers to the accounts of Satyagrahi Farm which have been published. Everyone can see that valuable work is being done on the Farm. The number of settlers is increasing. It should be noted, moreover, that support to the Farm will ensure an early end to the struggle. Even if this is prolonged, it will be seen that arrangements have been made on the Farm which will enable people

1 In April, 60 satyagrahis were deported to India. On reaching Bombay, 26 sailed back to court re-arrest. On arrival at Durban, 9 were refused permission to land and sent back. En route, they attempted landing at Zanzibar. Vide also “Passive Resisters”, 18-6-1910, “Satyagrahis”, 18-6-1910 and “Johannesburg”, 9-7-1910.
to continue the fight without anxiety.

At a time such as this, what is the duty of those who do not take active part in the movement by going to gaol? Every Indian can help reduce to the minimum the cost of maintaining the satyagrahis on the Farm and make things easier for them. Much saving can be effected if everyone follows the carpenters’ example. Every drop, as they say, helps to fill the lake: if, likewise, Indians in large numbers help a little apiece, none of them will feel the pinch. Every Indian should ponder over this matter.

[From Gujarati]

_Indian Opinion, 2-7-1910_

87. SWAMIJI’S SPEECH IN THE “MERCURY”

The K. A. Mandal\(^2\) gave a party which was a credit to the community. A summary of Swamiji’s\(^3\) speech on the occasion was sent by someone to _The [Natal] Mercury_. The latter printed it under the caption, “Wise Speech”. Judging, however, from the _Mercury_ report, the speech is certainly not satisfactory from the standpoint of Indians. Whoever sent the report to the _Mercury_ has done no service to the community or to Swamiji. The secretaries of the K. A. Mandal have issued a mild contradiction. They have sent the statement to us for publication; however, as we have not printed the _Mercury_ report, there is no need to publish the letter from the Mandal. But we ought to state that, since the Mandal has contradicted a specific portion of the report, it has admitted the correctness of the rest. If this assumption is right, the portion that is detrimental to the community stands confirmed. Those who heard the speech say that Swamiji did criticize satyagraha, as stated in the part of the report which the K. A. Mandal has not contradicted. One can understand, therefore, that the secretaries of the Mandal cannot go beyond what they have said. We are sorry that Swamiji made such comments and offered advice to the people concerning the laws. But we do not think it likely that a

---

\(^1\) Vide “Johannesburg”, 27-6-1910.
\(^2\) Kathiawad Arya Mandal, a Durban association of Arya Samajist Hindus from Saurashtra
\(^3\) Shankeranand, a Hindu missionary who was in South Africa from 1908 to 1910 satyagrahi will abandon what he considers to be truth or give up his pledge because of such criticism.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 2-7-1910

88. COLOUR PREJUDICE

America is regarded as a free country. It is claimed that everyone enjoys the fullest freedom there. A great many people, we find, are inclined to imitate America. Men are dazzled by her industry. But, on deeper reflection, we shall see that there is not much in America worthy of imitation. The people there are given over to the worship of self and of mammon. For money they will do the meanest things. Only a short while ago, we saw this exemplified in Dr. Cook’s case.

There are reports now [which suggest] that even the freedom which the Americans boast of is vanishing. Colour prejudice is on the increase. Indians have enjoyed voting rights till this day. An official has now discovered that the framers of the Constitution could never have intended the granting of the franchise to Asiatics. He believes that not only Indians but even Turks should be denied the right to vote. Though the vast majority of the Turkish people are white-skinned, the official has pointed out that they are, after all, Asiatics.

The agitation against Asiatics going on in the West is likely to have grave consequences. We are not thinking just now of what China and Turkey will do. It is the duty of every Indian to think of what India should do. Japan has shown one way, that of proving one’s strength and defending one’s land with [the power of] arms. Following that way, Japan has become like America and the imitation will soon be perfect, if it is not already so. To us it appears that, if we wish to avoid being found in America’s predicament, we had better refrain from training in the use of arms. Behind the venturesome spirit of America is her armed strength.

All that India has to do to hold her own is to preserve her ancient civilization, eliminating only its defects. The kind of racial discrimination which America practises, we have practised against our own people in India. Once there were many reformers in the West who had hoped and desired that the people there would shun such discrimination, but that is no more so. They have now begun to say that there must be no mixing with the Coloured races, that the Asiatics must be kept down. We think this movement will grow stronger rather than otherwise—it cannot but do so. Where people are concerned only with self-interest, it is not possible that they will allow others a foothold. Since their selfishness is mounting, their hostility to us will also grow. Self-interest will make them fight among themselves, too—even today they are fighting. That is a characteristic aspect of Western civilization. If we imitate the Western people, we may succeed for a time in mixing with them but subsequently we would also be blinded by selfishness and fight with them and fight among ourselves, too.

Someone may argue that even today we are fighting among ourselves. True, but our fighting is of a different kind. We must of course put an end to this. But we should be careful to see that in our attempt to mend matters we do not cause greater harm instead.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 2-7-1910

89. SPEECH AT TOLSTOY FARM

Sunday, July 3, 1910

. . . Mr. Gandhi invited all to promote the success of the scheme by sending whatever they could for the use of the settlers who were all poor. They would thereby, the speaker said, materially assist the struggle.

Indian Opinion, 9-7-1910

1 At the meeting which passed a resolution thanking Kallenbach; vide “Johannesburg”, 9-7-1910
90. LETTER TO PRIVATE SECRETARY TO GOVERNOR-GENERAL

[JOHANNESBURG,]
July 4, 1910

SIR,

The Committee of my Association has decided to approach His Excellency\(^1\) with a view to the presentation of a humble and loyal address\(^1\) of welcome, on His Excellency’s approaching visit to Johannesburg; but my Committee has hesitated by reason of a hitch that occurred at the time of the presentation of an address to Lord Selborne\(^4\). My Committee was then at first advised that the Association’s address would be received at the same time and place as the other addresses from public bodies, but, at the eleventh hour, a message was sent to the offices of the Association to the effect that the address would be received privately by His Lordship, and it was ultimately so received. My Association then understood that the decision to receive the address at the same time as the others was altered because of the prevailing prejudice against Asiatic and coloured communities in this country. My Association is most anxious to avoid a repetition of such an awkward and humiliating position, and, therefore, trusts that, if its humble address may not be received in common with the other addresses next Friday, His Excellency will be graciously pleased to accept this letter as testifying its respect for His Excellency as His Majesty’s representative. If the address of my Association cannot be received publicly, my Association can quite understand and appreciate the delicacy of the situation. But, should His Excellency consider that the humble address of my Association may be received publicly in common with the others next Friday, I am desired to state that my Association would like to make a formal presentation. May I request the favour of a telegraphic reply?

\(^{1,5}\) This letter, presumably drafted by Gandhiji, was signed by A. M. Cachalia, Chairman, British Indian Association.
\(^2\) Herbert John Gladstone (1854-1930); was the first Governor-General and High Commissioner for South Africa, 1910-4
\(^3\) Vide the following item.
\(^4\) High Commissioner and Governor of the Transvaal, 1905-10
\(^5\) A reply was received communicating Lord Gladstone’s consent to receive the address along with other public addresses.
91. ADDRESS TO LORD GLADSTONE

Friday [July 8, 1910]

TO

HIS EXCELLENCY THE RIGHT HONOURABLE VISCOUNT GLADSTONE

GOVERNOR-GENERAL OF THE UNION OF SOUTH AFRICA

JOHANNESBURG

We the undersigned, representing the British Indian Association of the Transvaal, respectfully welcome Your Excellency and Lady Gladstone to Johannesburg.

We trust that the Union of South Africa will, under Your Excellency’s regime, prove beneficial to all classes and communities residing in South Africa.

May we ask you to convey to Their Most Gracious Majesties the King-Emperor and the Queen-Empress an expression of the loyalty of the community represented by this Association?

Indian Opinion, 16-7-1910

92. ROYEPPEH

Mr. Joseph Royeppen has been released, and yet not released. He was released, but is to be deported again on the 14th. We can judge from his case where the struggle stands. The last time he was released, he was required to offer a security of £50 in order to be free for a few days and see people. This time he has been released on his personal recognizance. He did not even have to sign any document. This is a measure of the enhanced reputation which Indians enjoy. A satyagrahi’s word, thus, is trusted.

Even in gaol, they have changed their ways. Warders are afraid to hold out threats to satyagrahis. The latter do not put up with any injustice.

The reply elicited by Mr. O’Grady’s question in the House of

---

1 This address, presumably drafted by Gandhiji, was presented by Cachalia.
2 Vide the preceding item.
3 On June 29, J. O’Grady, a Labour member, raised the issue of Transvaal Indians and suggested a Gandhi-Smuts meeting to effect a compromise.
Commons is also noteworthy. The Imperial Government has said that the matter is under correspondence. Who will say, after this, that the struggle is alive no more? Not only is it alive, it has a radiant sparkle, so long as there are men with the spirit of Mr. Royeppen, and its effects are spreading wider.

Every Indian youth should take a lesson from Mr. Royeppen’s example. Though a barrister and a man of learning, he holds no manual work to be beneath him. He moves through crowded markets, carrying bundles on his head. He hews wood, washes clothes and works at [railway] stations like a common labourer. He proves in this way that he has received real education.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 9-7-1910

93. JOHANNESBURG

SATYAGRAHI FARM

For the present at least I must say that the Farm is making progress every day. The number of settlers has increased considerably and the place has taken on the appearance of a new township. There are four tents in addition to the building which I mentioned earlier for the satyagrahis and their families. One of the tents is occupied by Mr. Kallenbach and the satyagrahis, and the building has been handed over to the ladies.

The labour for putting up the building is contributed by the satyagrahis and Mr. Kallenbach. They do every kind of work such as loading and unloading, fetching water, chopping wood, transporting goods from the station, etc. Even conducting the school is at present a strenuous task and everyone is tired out by the evening.

Mr. Gopal Naidoo, who looks after the cooking, is giving an excellent account of himself. He is busy at it from a quarter past six in the morning to nine in the evening. He practises the strictest economy in the use of food-stuffs, just as if they were his own.

VISIT BY OTHER LADIES

Other ladies came on a visit of inspection to the Farm on Sunday. They were Mrs. Sebastian, Mrs. Francis, Mrs. Chellan Nagappen, Mrs. Marimuthu Padiachy, Mrs. Ellery Moonsamy and Mrs. Kathu Pillay. They went away satisfied with the arrangements on the Farm, and so it looks as though they will decide to settle there.

VISIT BY BUSINESSMEN

There was also a visit from Mr. Cachalia, Imam Saheb Abdool Kadir Bawazeer, Moulvi Saheb Mukhtiar, and Messrs Aswat, Fancy, Hajee Habib, Nagadi, Ebrahim Coovadia, Amod Mia, Suleman Mia, Moosa Esaakji, Goolam Munshi, Ahmed Waja, Moosa Bhikhaji, Ahmed Karodia, Moosa Ebrahim Patel, Ahmed Mamdoo, Mirza, Ebrahim Hajari, Parbhoo, Gosai and Anthony. They spent the whole day here and shared a meal with the satyagrahis before leaving. The gentlemen also joined in the work.

KALLENBACH HONOURED

Then, as many of them wanted to offer thanks to Mr. Kallenbach, a meeting was held after dinner was over. The Moulvi Saheb, on a motion by Mr. Hajee Habib seconded by the Imam Saheb, was elected to the chair. He said that the meeting was held to offer thanks to Mr. Kallenbach for what he had done. He certainly deserved their thanks. Messrs Polak and Kallenbach [he said] had rendered yeoman service, though they were foreigners.

Mr. Ebrahim Coovadia then proposed a vote of thanks to Mr. Kallenbach for his generous gift and the interest he had shown in the cause.

The Imam Saheb seconded the motion. Mr. Hajee Habib supported it.

Then there followed speeches by Mr. Cachalia and Mr. Royeppen, after which the motion was unanimously carried.

Mr. Kallenbach in his reply said that he had gained by the active interest he had taken in the campaign and that this was true of other whites, too. The Indians who had joined the struggle [he added] derived still greater benefit, so remarkable was this fight.

JOSEPH ROYEPPEN

[He] was released on Friday. He was to be deported immediately after. He was therefore released from Johannesburg Gaol and asked to appear at 3 o’clock. On presenting himself at three, he was ordered to appear on the 14th for deportation. Immediately, therefore, he went to live on the Farm and plunged into work the very first day. He was joined by Mr. Solomon Ernest. The Farm, thus, has had plenty of recruits; all those who arrive join in the work. By Sunday, Mr. Royeppen had had a turn at chopping and sawing wood, loading carriages with goods from the station godown, fetching water and doing laundry work. Full of good humour, he infects others with his genial spirits.

PRISONERS’ DIET

Many changes have been introduced in the regulation diet for prisoners. The quota of rice has been increased by two ounces. In the evening, they get bread, mealie pap and one ounce of ghee. Nothing remains, therefore, to complain of regarding diet.

NOT DISEMBARKED AT ZANZIBAR

A telegram has been received from Mr. Cowasji Dinsha to say that P. K. Naidoo and his companions have not been disembarked at Zanzibar, as was intended. The authorities, it seems, raised some legal difficulties. Hence all those satyagrahis have proceeded to India. We have no reliable information regarding how this new law that Indians cannot land at Zanzibar came to be passed, but, from the point of view of Indians, this is a startling development. It shows what British freedom means.

GIFTS

Three blankets and one dozen towels have been received from Mr. Hajee Habib, a dozen blankets, somewhat damaged, and 9 rolling-boards and pins from Mr. Karodia a case of bananas, nachis and pineapples from Mr. Desai of Germiston and two large wooden cases from Mr. B. P. Ebrahim. It will be a very good thing if others, too, help the Farm in some such way. It is not only residents of the Transvaal or Johannesburg who can send help to the Farm. Indians from all over South Africa can send clothing, furniture and provisions. Fruiterers and vegetable dealers in Durban can send these articles and cloth merchants can send cloth. Since there are no customs duties now, the railway freight itself does not amount to much. Second-hand coats, trousers and similar articles can also be turned to use. I hope, every Indian will read this paragraph and offer all possible help. Anyone who does so will have, to that extent, participated in the campaign.

OTHER GIFTS

Mr. C. P. Lucheram has sent a gift of 31 articles such as shirts, handkerchiefs, pillow-covers, etc. Some of them are quality goods, which satyagrahis must not use. It is intended to sell them off [and use the proceeds].

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 9-7-1910

94. LETTER TO MAGANLAL GANDHI

[TOLSTOY FARM,]

Ashadh Sud 7 [July 13, 1910]¹

CHI. MAGANLAL,

I have gone through your letter, your note and Thaker’s remarks. Thaker’s criticism is free from any ill-will and is better than yours. Your interpretation of the last sentence is wrong. By saying that Hey’s taunt² puts the Indian community to shame, the editor only tries to alert the community. I admit that the sentence in question could have been written in simpler language; but I believe most of the readers can understand it even as it is. The editor is included in the Indian community. The sentence means that what brings shame to the Indian community brings it to us too. I do not agree with your interpretation that it comes in the way of satyagraha. I return your note to you so that you may re-read it.

The parcel has arrived here. Why didn’t you send it by goods train?

The appeal to the Modh³ leaders has been forwarded by Chhaganlal. I send it for perusal by you and Purshottamdas.

If Dhanji⁴ is leaving immediately I would certainly prefer his company for Chanchal. He will take good care of her. She herself

¹ A summary of Hey’s article mentioned in para I was published in the Gujarati section of Indian Opinion, 9-7-1910.
² G. A. Hey, a member of the former Transvaal Parliament, visited India and wrote an article criticizing the slovenly habits of the Indians on board the steamer, and taunting them for asking the Transvaal Government to improve the prisons.
³ A Bania sub-caste to which Gandhiji belonged
⁴ Dhanji Ranji, an Indian merchant at Verulam desires to have the company of a woman.

Blessings from

MOHANDAS

From the original Gujarati in Gandhiji’s hand: C. W. 4931 Courtesy: Radhabehn Choudhri

95. TRANSVAAL DEPORTEES

Mr. G. A. Natesan of Madras deserves the warmest thanks of the Indians of South Africa for the very valuable assistance he has rendered to the homeless Transvaal deportees. We have received several letters showing very great appreciation of Mr. Natesan’s services. He made their lot much easier to bear. The Madras papers, too, are full of praise for him. We congratulate Mr. Natesan on his great public spirit.

Indian Opinion, 16-7-1910

96. LICENSING LAW

The Supreme Court Judgment in the matter of Mahomed Goolam and the Maritzburg Corporation (published in our last issue) is worthy of perusal. It shows what Indians have to labour under in the Colony. The Licensing Officer holds their fortune in the palm of his hand. The Supreme Court does not always get the opportunity of exposing his arbitrary decisions. Every aggrieved Indian trader cannot afford to take his case to the Supreme Court. One can, therefore, only guess what hardships Indian traders have to undergo and what must necessarily remain unnoticed by the public. We drew attention only the other day to an Estcourt case which has not yet reached the Supreme Court. The only thing Indian merchants can do is to ceaselessly agitate till their trading rights are placed on a firm footing.

Indian Opinion, 16-7-1910

1 Mahomed Goolam, a Maritzburg retailer, applied in April 1909 for renewal of his licence. The licence fee was accepted but no decision given. He continued trading till December when the City Licensing Officer rejected the application. The Town Council upheld his decision. Goolam then appealed to the Supreme Court, which allowed the appeal with costs.
97. LICENCES IN NATAL

The appeal\(^1\) to the Supreme Court in the Maritzburg licence case suggests that the [Dealers’] Licensing Act continues to be a source of hardship. Indian traders cannot afford to be complacent about it. The Act will cease to be a problem only if they pester the Government again and again and take effective measures.

[From Gujarati]
Indian Opinion, 16-7-1910

98. DEPUTATION TO ADMINISTRATOR

We can take two different attitudes to the deputation\(^2\) that was led to the Administrator. One is that it was not proper to have led an independent deputation without the consent of the Congress. In a way, this is right. But we cannot now take our stand merely on this point. The community has grown wings. Indians think for themselves. Of course, they do make mistakes sometimes. They want to act on their own. We cannot repress this spirit of enthusiasm, but can direct it along the right channel. This would require patience on the part of the leaders. If they encourage young Indians, this spirit can do nothing but good. If they remain indifferent and young people take to wrong methods it is obvious that harm will follow.

[From Gujarati]
Indian Opinion, 16-7-1910

99. LETTER TO G. A. NATESAN

JOHANNESBURG,
July 21, 1910

DEAR MR. NATESAN,

I am exceedingly obliged to you for your letter of the 2nd ultimo and the sentiments expressed by you. You call the brave

\(^1\) Vide footnote to preceding item.

\(^2\) Early in July, the Indian societies of Maritzburg and Durban sent a deputation to the Provincial Administrator seeking redress of grievances regarding the poll-tax, educational facilities, trading licences, etc.
passive resisters who have been deported there your Tamil countrymen, but I claim them to be my countrymen, just as much as they are your’s. We have derived inspiration for all the work that we have endeavoured to do here from the great leaders in India. I do not think, therefore, that there is any occasion to exaggerate the merits of the passive resisters in South Africa. The handsome donation sent by you was most welcome. I shall await particulars as promised by you. Your praise of Mr. Polak is undoubtedly well-deserved. He is a most wonderful man. His devotion to the cause is simply admirable. May I state that almost every letter that I receive from him speaks in the warmest terms about your work there.

I am,

Yours truly,

M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat of the typewritten original signed by Gandhiji: G.N. 2222

100. WHO IS UNCIVILIZED?

We published the report of a boxing match in America between a negro and a white. Millions had assembled to enjoy the spectacle. Among them were both old and young, men and women, rich and poor, government officials and common citizens. Many of them had travelled all the way from Europe. What did they see? Two men were hitting each other and displaying their brute strength. The people of America went mad over this show, and America is reckoned a very civilized country! What did the spectators gain from this show? We can offer no satisfactory answer to this question. There are some who hold that the body is strengthened through demonstrations of this kind and people learn how to defend themselves. A little reflection will show that this is altogether a mistaken notion. It is, of course, good to harden the body, but that cannot be done through boxing matches in public. There are many other means, and natural ones, of strengthening the body. This is no more than a pretext. The truth of the matter is that people enjoy seeing a fight and give their adoration to physical strength only. They think nothing else can match it. In thinking thus, they deny the soul and therefore deny God. The only

---

1 Between Jefferies and Johnson at Reno on July 4, 1910
epithet that can be applied to such a people is “barbarous”. There is very little to learn from them. We certainly do not wish to say that there were no such shows in ancient times. But everyone knew and admitted them to be barbarous. No wise men went to them. They were attended only by boys and woolly-headed young men. On the other hand, the show in America was attended by grown-up people. Lengthy telegrams were dispatched to newspapers at a huge cost. The reports were followed with interest by millions. Thus, the show was not looked upon as something uncivilized; on the contrary, it was regarded as a mark of civilization. This, in our view, is the extreme limit of barbarism. However strong the bodies of Jefferies and Johnson, they may be reduced to wrecks in an instant. They will then be of little use. It is doubtful if the millions who had assembled at the show ever thought of this even in their dreams.

[From Gujarati]
Indian Opinion, 23-7-1910

101. JOHANNESBURG

Monday [July 25, 1910]

NEW GAME OF ASIATIC OFFICE

It has been the practice so far to register Indian children on their attaining majority. Now, however, they refuse such registration, if the applicants have entered after the coming into force of the Act of 1908. The effect of this will be that hundreds of Indian children will not be allowed to register and so will have to return to India. It may not be proper for satyagrahis to take the matter to a court of law. But this being a serious issue, some Indians are determined to test their rights in court. The result is bound to be favourable.

GIFTS

Mr. Adam Ali of Roodepoort has sent a rug and Mr. Desai of Germiston a case of fruit. I should like to bring it to the notice of vegetable dealers that if they send Indian vegetables like beans, brinjals, etc., there will be some saving in expenditure from the funds donated. The demand from the ladies is for such vegetables. Print and flannel, if sent by merchants, will be useful to children. The need for these is being felt now.

[From Gujarati]
Indian Opinion, 30-7-1910
102. LETTER TO MAGANLAL GANDHI

Ashadh Vadi 3 [July 25, 1910]

CHI. MAGANLAL,

The letters you address direct to the Farm reach me sooner.

There can be no comparison between the sufferings in a gaol and those on the steamer. But Hey makes such a comparison and it is shameful on our part that we give some cause for his doing so. This, as I understand it, is what Thaker means to say and his criticism appeals to me as quite fair. Please think it over again.

I send herewith Chhanaganlal’s letter. You need not return it to me as I have already made use of it. It would be nice if Chanchi could be sent along with Dhanji. I do not think I shall be able to go there at that time.

Since Santok has given birth to a daughter, there is no worry on her account now. Karka kasadara karpavai. Please ponder over this sentence printed at the top of Pope’s [Tamil] grammar. There could hardly be a task more difficult than to conquer one’s passion in regard to one’s own wife. You will certainly succeed as your mind is inclined that way. Do persevere in your efforts and try to create a favourable atmosphere so that you will easily succeed. Even after I had made up my mind and was persevering in that effort, Ramdas and Devdas were born. You have to take courage from my initial failures. Poets have compared man to a lion. All of us have the inborn capacity to become kings of the forest of the senses; we can get that strength by giving continuous thought to it.

If there is a surplus stock of vegetables with anyone there, you may please send it here by “to pay” parcel. Pumpkins, chillies, etc., will all be of use here. Induce the vegetable dealers of Durban and Verulam, if you can [to help us]. If they send parcels of vegetables occasionally, that much money will be saved here. Some of the experiences gained here are worth telling you about, but I have no

---

1 Vide footnote 1 to “Letter to Maganlal Gandhi”, 13-7-1910
2 Vide footnote 2 to “Letter to Maganlal Gandhi”, 13-7-1910
3 Chanchalbehn Gandhi
4 The original has this in Tamil script. It means “What you learn, learn faultlessly: [Having learned it, live up to it.]” time to write.

Blessings from

MOHANDAS

[PS.]

Mr. Kallenbach says that it would not now matter if the plants are sent in gunny bags instead of in tins. If they are to be had at all, they should reach here right now. It wouldn’t matter if they didn’t come, but we should know the position.

I have sent Dr. Mehta a detailed report on the construction of septic tanks. It would be better, I think, to accept what West and Cordes say in the matter. Moreover, we shall make the necessary changes if I am there at the time of construction.

Please remember that a third-class ticket to Lawley has to be purchased for Ba when she comes here. The railway fare for Park station is the same as for Lawley.

From the Gujarati original in Gandhiji’s hand: C.W. 4932 Courtesy: Radhabehn Choudhri

103. CABLE TO S.A.B.I. COMMITTEE

JOHANNESBURG,

July 28, 1910

ROYEPEN AND OTHERS DEPORTED NATAL. RE-CROSSED.
SENTENCED THREE MONTHS’ HARD LABOUR. GOVERNMENT
NOW TRYING TO MAKE MINORS PROHIBITED IMMIGRANTS BY REFUSING REGISTRATION ON MAJORITY. CAUSED SENSATION.

TRANSVAAL BRITISH INDIAN ASSOCIATION

From a typewritten copy in the Colonial Office Records: C. O. 551/7

1 This was forwarded by Ritch to the Colonial Office on August 4, 1910.
104. LETTER TO MAGANLAL GANDHI

Ashadh Vadi 6 (July 28, 1910)\(^1\)

CHI. MAGANLAL,

Received your letter. I can imagine Chi. Chhaganlal’s condition. I am in no mood to write much; otherwise I wanted to write at length on the boxing match between Jefferies and Johnson. Only a little of it has appeared in Gujarati.\(^2\)

Mr. Kallenbach says that the order for the Verulam plants may be cancelled if these cannot reach here within a week. It would not matter if it is cancelled; you should therefore not bother about it. Even if the plants are dispatched within a week, says Mr. Kallenbach, the payment should be made only after they reach here.

Hope Santok and her daughter are quite well.

Blessings from

MOHANDAS

From the Gujarati original in Gandhiji’s hand: C.W. 4933 Courtesy: Radhabehn Choudhri

105. ANOTHER BREACH OF FAITH!

The news that our Transvaal correspondent gives regarding the latest move of the Transvaal Government is indeed astounding. It will be remembered that one of the sorest points in the Asiatic Act of 1907 was that it required direct registration of minors under sixteen years. This grievance was removed by the Act of 1908 by transferring registration of such children to their parents’ certificates. And had everything else gone well, nothing more would have been heard of registration of minor children in the Transvaal. Until recently it appears that minor children of non-resisters were, on attainment of majority, registered whether such children entered before or after the commencement of the Act of 1908. But it seems that the calmness of the Asiatic Department is simply to find out how to circumvent the

---

\(^1\) The boxing match mentioned in the letter took place at Reno in the U.S.A. on July 4, 1910, in which year Ashadh Vadi 6 corresponded to July 28.

\(^2\) Vide “Who Is Uncivilized?”, 23-7-1910
Indian community and how to harass it into leaving that Colony. Some law officer has therefore discovered that there is a flaw in the Act of 1908 which was drawn up in a day and that that flaw enables the Government to treat minors who entered the Colony lawfully after the commencement of the Act as prohibited immigrants on their attaining majority. That the legislature never contemplated any such result is obvious. Indian parents could never consent to an arrangement whereby their children should be sent out of the Transvaal on their arriving at the age of sixteen years. The Act of 1908 was largely a matter of compromise. The history of the negotiations that led up to the passing of the Act shows clearly that the Government and the Asiatics clearly understood that minor children of registered Asiatics were to enjoy the same rights as themselves. We do not know what the exact meaning of the Act may be and we care less. But this we do know, that, whatever may be the legal effect of the Act, this latest move on the part of the Transvaal Government shows a flagrant breach of faith. It emphasizes the charge of bad faith brought by the community against that Government. It strengthens and justifies passive resisters in their resolve to continue the fight. Non-resisters will test the point in the law courts. They may be worsted in the struggle. So much the worse for the Government. If there is a flaw in the Act, it is for them to rectify the error, not to take a mean advantage of it.

But this move of the Transvaal Government has, for those who will understand it, a deeper meaning. It shows that the sheet-anchor of our hope lies not in the uncertainty of law suits but in the certainty of passive resistance. We therefore trust that Indian parents who have abandoned the fight in despair and from weakness will gird up their loins and once more throw in their lot with those who are continuing passive resistance.

We shall watch with some curiosity how the Imperial Government will view this latest phase of the question.

Indian Opinion, 30-7-1910
106. PRISON TREATMENT

Mr. Churchill has announced that passive resisters and Suffragettes shall not henceforth be treated as common felons and that they are not to have degrading associations. This is a reform in the right direction. It is worthy of note that Mr. Churchill has drawn a distinction between passive resisters and Suffragettes. That is to say, even when the latter may not be classed as passive resisters, as for instance, when they assault the Prime Minister and break windows, etc., to draw attention to their cause, they are not to be treated as common criminals. This is a great victory for Mrs. Pankhurst and her followers. It is a tardy recognition of a principle to which Mr. Robertson and other well-known publicists drew the attention of the British public about a year ago.

But what about the Transvaal passive resisters? Are they less worthy of similar treatment? Must they who never use violence, who are perhaps the truest passive resisters, be classed as ordinary convicts undeserving of any consideration whatsoever? May not the Imperial Government persuade the new Union Government to copy Mr. Churchill’s reform? Or must Mr. Joseph Royeppen, a barrister, who seeks imprisonment for conscience’ sake, be placed on the same footing as a homicide or a burglar?

Indian Opinion, 30-7-1910

107. JOHANNESBURG

Monday [August 1, 1910]

SATYAGRAHI BURJORSINGH

Mr. Burjorsingh, one of the batch of satyagrahis from Durban, who was recently in gaol for three months, has had to leave the Satyagrahi Farm on account of his father’s illness. Mr. Ratipalsingh and other members of the Corporation gave him a dinner and spoke in praise of him. Mr. Burjorsingh will shortly return to the Transvaal and get arrested.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 6-8-1910

---

1 In the House of Commons
2 Tolstoy Farm
SIR,

Will you permit me to correct some statements made in your leading article on Lord Ampthill’s action in the House of Lords on the passive resistance struggle?

You say that passive resistance commenced after the Government had offered to grant permits for priests, lawyers, doctors, etc., but when they refused to grant anything further. May I remind you that passive resistance commenced in 1907 when the question of priests, doctors and lawyers had not come up for public discussion, and when it did arise, it simply arose in order to forcibly illustrate the injustice that had been done by the Government in not conceding the demands of the community, which, as Mr. Patrick Duncan has pointed out, have never varied? British Indians have always asked for equality in the eye of the law as to immigration but never for unrestricted immigration of Asiatics. I emphatically deny that British Indians who have been deported have in any large numbers declined to give in formation as to their domicile. As a matter of fact, the domicile of most of them was within the knowledge of the Asiatic department and no proof of domicile was necessary in connection with those who had educational attainments, as many had. You state, again, that in no instances have cases of harsh treatment in the gaols of the Transvaal been proved by the passive resisters. May I inform you and the public that the question of diet, which was a very serious one, was very prominently brought before the Government and the public, and that it is only now that the grievance, I am thankful to say, has been partially remedied. That passive resisters who are not criminals in the ordinary sense of the term have been sent to a penal settlement, like Diepkloof, where the ordinary privileges of prisoners are withheld in my opinion is

1 This was published in Rand Daily Mail under the title, “Indian Passive Resisters”.
2 Of 29th July; Vide Indian Opinion, 6-8-1910.
3 Vide the following item.
4 Indian Opinion here has “but they”
5 ibid
undoubtedly a glaring instance of harsh treatment. You further state that British Indians are keeping up passive resistance for other than the purpose of having their legitimate demands granted. In reply, I can only say that the world has not many men who would suffer, without reasonable cause, privation, starvation, separation from those who may be near and dear to them, etc., besides the loss of their worldly possessions. I quite agree with you that, if the demands of the community are granted, they should be granted not in response to passive resistance, but because they are intrinsically just; but I hope you will agree that passive resistance ought not to stand in the way of a strong government doing justice. You seem to think that passive resistance means coercion. In my humble opinion, the self-suffering which the community has undergone, and which has been expressed by the term “passive resistance”, has been undertaken after the methods of petitioning, etc., had been exhausted, and in order to draw public attention to a grievance that was keenly felt and resented by the community.

I am, etc.,
M. K. GANDHI

Rand Daily Mail, 6-8-1910
Indian Opinion, 6-8-1910

109. TRANSVAAL INDIANS IN THE HOUSE OF LORDS

Lord Ampthill, who has rendered signal services to the cause of the British Indians in South Africa and, thereby, we venture to think, to the Empire, has again raised the question in the House of Lords.¹ Reuter’s cable² gives only a summary of Earl Beauchamp’s reply to Lord Ampthill’s query. And, if the summary gives a correct version, it shows that the policy of the Transvaal Government of misleading the Imperial Government continues unabated. In reply to Lord Ampthill’s protest against the deportations to India, Earl Beauchamp is reported to have said that “Every opportunity would be afforded British Indians to prove domicile in South Africa, but that many absolutely refused to give information.” The fact is that, in most cases, the authorities themselves knew the domicile of the parties concerned, and that, save in one or two cases, they all emphatically declared their domicile. It was not possible for them to do more. The authorities, however, insisted on production of domicile certificates which many did not possess. It is a well-known fact that possession of such a certificate is not a legal necessity. Some Indians take them out as a measure of protection. The authorities knew the case of young Manikum Pillay. He was a student in Natal; he could enter the Colony by reason of his education; his father is well known to the Asiatic Department; yet the young man was sent away to India. Young Pillay, we understand, gave all the information but it was of no avail. The fact that young Pillay and other Indians were deported and, on their return from India, could enter Natal; and the further fact that they are now serving imprisonment at Diepkloof, eloquently demonstrates, as no argument by us could, that the Imperial Government has been hoodwinked by the Transvaal Government.

¹ On July 26, 1910
² Dated July 27, from London, reproduced in Indian Opinion, 30-7-1910.

Then, again, Earl Beauchamp is reported to have said that the Union Government could not agree to “unrestricted immigration” Indians in the Transvaal have repeatedly declared that they do not want unrestricted immigration. Passive Resistance has not been undertaken to bring about any such result. Indeed, they know that, if they fought for unrestricted immigration, they would forfeit the generous support given to them by Lord Amphil and other distinguished statesmen. They have received universal sympathy and support outside South Africa only because they have shown that their demands are reasonable, moderate and such that they cannot but be satisfied in the end. So far as immigration is concerned, all that they ask for is that there shall not be in law any distinction based on race or colour; that there shall not be an insult offered to Indians as a race, as the present legislation does.

Indian Opinion, 6-8-1910
110. AN INTERESTING GROUP

Our Supplement this week is an interesting photograph\(^1\) of Pioneer Settlers at Tolstoy Farm—the Passive Resistance settlement at Lawley in the Transvaal. Our readers will specially value the photograph as it includes that of Mr. Kallenbach, whose generosity in placing the Farm at the disposal of the passive resisters’ families, together with his wholehearted sympathy with the movement, is so well known and appreciated. What will perhaps appeal most of all to the Indian community is the way in which Mr. Kallenbach, literally as well as figuratively, “takes off his coat” to the work of helping the cause he has made his own.

Indian Opinion, 6-8-1910

111. LORD AMPTHILL’S HELP

Lord Ampthill continues to help the Indians. We have already published the cabled report\(^2\) of the proceedings in the House of Lords arising from a question asked by him.

The report shows that the Transvaal Government persists in misleading the Imperial Government. The allegation that the deportees did not furnish complete information is baseless, as also the statement that we are demanding unrestricted admission of Indians. However, the discussion in the House of Lords shows that the Imperial Government persists in its efforts. It is only a question of time. Whether or not there will be a victory depends on the satyagrahis.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 6-8-1910

\(^1\) Vide Illustration: Pioneer Settlers of Tolstoy Farm (Supplement to Indian Opinion, 6-8-1910).

SIR,

Under the heading “Asiatic Exaggeration”, you revert to the question of the ill-treatment of passive resisters as well within this Province as on board a particular steamer that carried over sixty passive resisters a few months ago. Passive resisters have kept absolutely clear at least of two things —exaggeration and violence in any shape or form —both things being considered totally foreign to the spirit of the struggle. Allegations of the ill-treatment of prisoners will continue to be made in spite of every contradiction, so long as passive resisters are treated with exceptional severity by being classed not only with criminals, but being sent to a penal settlement which is intended for hardened criminals. You seem to imagine that passive resisters have repeatedly complained about physical violence having been used against them. As a matter of fact, except in isolated cases, they have stated that there has not been physical violence used against prisoners. As to Lord Morley’s repudiation of ill-treatment on board, one is tempted to ask, in spite of the very high source from which the contradiction comes, whether His Lordship had ever ordered examination of the passengers themselves. I gather that no such course was adopted. In the circumstances, the Indian community will continue to believe the statement made by the passengers. But here again it seems to be imagined that, when an Indian complains of ill-treatment, it must imply physical violence, or it is not ill-treatment at all. That the deportees were sent as deck-passengers, and that they had to starve by way of protest for a day before they received decent food on board, are matters which call for no comment in your estimation, and yet they are matters which vitally affect the parties concerned. The only way to stop the dissemination of reports in India of the ill-treatment of passive resisters is, firstly, to accept the

1 This was published in Rand Daily Mail under the caption “The Passive Resisters”.
2 Indian Opinion here has “passive resistance prisoners”.
3 Indian Opinion has “it must simply be physical violence”.
deportees’ standards of what is good treatment, and, secondly, to close the painful struggle by granting the just demands of the Indian community.

I am, etc.,
M. K. GANDHI

Rand Daily Mail, 9-8-1910
Indian Opinion, 13-8-1910

113. MR. RITCH’S DEPARTURE POSTPONED

The newspapers announced that Mr. Ritch was coming to South Africa very soon with a message of sympathy and encouragement for passive resisters. Preparations were on foot to give Mr. Ritch a welcome to which his whole-hearted, effective and able work in England entitles him. But, as our Transvaal correspondent points out,
Mr. Ritch’s departure has been suddenly postponed owing to Mrs.
Ritch having to undergo an operation. It will be remembered that Mrs.
Ritch had only just recovered from a very dangerous illness, during which she underwent a series of operations. The sympathy of the Indian community throughout South Africa goes out to Mr. and Mrs.
Ritch in their trouble, and we hope that Mrs. Ritch will recover from her most recent illness. The friends of the family who know Mrs.
Ritch’s pluck and marvellous recuperative powers have little doubt that she will survive the operation and remain, for many a long year to come, the guardian angel of her children who adore her and whom she adores and for whom she lives.

Indian Opinion, 13-8-1910

114. INDIANS UNDER THE UNION

Those who thought that the Indian community in South Africa would fare better under the Union are being rapidly disillusioned. The Transvaal continues its persecution of passive resisters. The Orange Free State keeps her gates closed against them. Silently but surely an agitation against Indians is being fostered at the Cape and the Natal licensing laws, in spite of the recently made amendment, still remain a standing menace to Indian merchants and traders. The Estcourt case,\(^1\) to which we drew attention some time ago, now enters upon a further stage. The Provincial Court has decided that the appointment by the Government of certain members of the Board was valid. We presume, therefore, that the injured party will once more approach the Appellate Board. By the time this sickening procedure is finished, it would have cost Mr. Suleman, the party concerned, a fortune. How many Indian traders are there in the Colony who can afford the necessary expenses of such a prolonged fight?

1 Vide “Natal Licensing Act”, 11-12-1909

Then, again, take Mr. Goga’s case.\(^2\) Here is a man of twenty years’ standing, having a large and respectable European custom, who is openly backed by Europeans of standing in Ladysmith. He cannot get a licence in respect of his own premises. It is nothing to the Licensing Officer that Mr. Goga cannot let his shop to any Europeans and cannot sell it. Because he is an Indian, he must be content to suffer loss.

The question arises: How does the Union help Indians even in such glaring cases of injustice? The answer is that the position of Indians under the Union will in no way be made easier, and it is highly probable that it will be made much worse. All the reactionary forces will be combined against them. Let the community beware. The only effective way to fight such a mighty combination is for it first to combine and secondly to become self-reliant.

Indian Opinion, 13-8-1910

---

\(^1\) One Suleman, who was refused transfer of a licence by the Licensing Officer, Estcourt, appealed to the Estcourt Licensing Board, where his counsel, objecting to the constitution of the Board, refused to proceed. The Licensing Board, however, gave a decision. The review against this decision was dismissed by the Supreme Court (Natal Division) on August 2.

\(^2\) In Ladysmith, Goga, an Indian retailer, was refused a licence to trade in premises owned by him, although 37 Europeans presented a petition supporting him to the Licensing Officer.
Johannesburg,
August 15, 1910

Dear Sir,

I am much obliged to you for your encouraging and cordial letter of the 8th May last. I very much value your general approval of my booklet, Indian Home Rule. And, if you have the time, I shall look forward to your detailed criticism of the work which you have been so good as to promise in your letter.

Mr. Kallenbach has written to you about Tolstoy Farm. Mr. Kallenbach and I have been friends for many years. I may state that he has gone through most of the experiences that you have so graphically described in your work, My Confessions. No writings have so deeply touched Mr. Kallenbach as yours; and, as a spur to further effort in living up to the idealsheld before the world by you, he has taken the liberty, after consultation with me, of naming his farm after you.

Of his generous action in giving the use of the farm for passive resisters, the number of Indian Opinion. I am sending herewith will give you full information.

I should not have burdened you with these details but for the fact of your taking a personal interest in the passive resistance struggle that is going on in the Transvaal.

I remain,
Your faithful servant,
M. K. Gandhi

Count Leo Tolstoy

Yasnaya Polyana

From a block of the typewritten original signed by Gandhiji published in Mahatma, Vol. I, by D. G. Tendulkar

1 For replies by V. Chertkov and Tolstoy, vide Appendix “V. Chertkov’s letter to Gandhiji”, and (Tolstoy’s letter to Gandhiji”, 7-9-1910.

3 Of 11-6-1910
116. LETTER TO MAGANLAL GANDHI

[TOLOSTOY FARM,]
Shravana Vadi 1 [August 21, 1910]¹

CHI. MAGANLAL,

Please write to me, if possible, at least once a week.

I have already sent you Anandlal’s² letter.

For the vegetables you sent we shall arrange to pay out of the [Satyagraha] Fund here. We would have to spend the same amount if we brought here the quantity of vegetables you sent. You should be able to know a cheaper method of sending the vegetables if you went through the tariff book. It is, however, impossible to measure the value of the sentiment behind your sending the vegetables. What is important is the fact that people provide satyagrahis with whatever they need. If people send these things jointly the railway fare would not be much. Please explain to them that it would be shameful for those who make big profits to be scared by the paltry cost of freight.

I have not seen anything sent by Babu Talewant Singh. We have received groundnut and vegetables from Dhanji and blankets and flannels from Raghavji. If any of these things are from Babu Talewant Singh please make the necessary correction. I had a letter from Babuji himself saying that the articles were from the persons mentioned above.

Harilal cannot go to India to escort Chanchi. We are poor and cannot spend money like that. Moreover, a man who has joined the struggle cannot thus go away for three months. There would be nothing wrong if Chanchi goes to India in some good company.
Many poor women do so. We do not want our womenfolk to remain delicate. I for one am a farmer and I wish you all to become farmers, or to continue as such if you have already become farmers. My way of life has completely changed here. The whole day is spent in digging the land and other manual labour instead of in writing and explaining things to people. I prefer this work and consider this alone

¹ The gifts mentioned in paragraph 4 were acknowledged in Indian Opinion, 27-8-1910 in 1910; Shravana Vadi 1 corresponded to August 21.
² Son of Amritlal Tulsidas Gandhi, Gandhiji’s cousin to be my duty. Ramdas dug a pit, 3 feet broad and 3 feet deep, and half of another, working till one o’clock today. If he continues to work like this he will be a very good boy. Now I do not see him engrossed in thought as he used to be in Phoenix. This is the result of manual labour. In pampering this corpulent body that has been given to us and pretending that we earn [our living] by our intellect, we become sinners and are tempted to fall into a thousand and one evil ways. I regard the Kaffirs, with whom I constantly work these days, as superior to us. What they do in their ignorance we have to do knowingly. In outward appearance we should look just like the Kaffirs. From this you may deduce other reasons also for Harilal not going to India to escort Chanchi.

For your short temper too I think this is the cure. The body is like an ox or donkey and should therefore be made to carry a load. Then the short temper, etc., will be cured. I am constantly trying to keep away the shortcomings of Phoenix from this Farm. That is why a different standard of living has been laid down. If instead of each cultivating his own plot separately all cultivate the entire land together, we can produce a larger crop more quickly. I do not think this is possible there for the present. But I did make the suggestion that it would be good if those who could co-operate cultivated their plots together. That suggestion was made with [special] reference to Purshottamdas and you. It has many other implications. However, I have written this to let you know the current trend of my mind.

The proceeds from the sale of stock in the Press cannot by any means be considered as profit. They can be credited to the capital account and nowhere else. We need not consider whether we have gained or lost by giving up the job work; we are rid of a headache thereby.¹

¹ The letter is incomplete.
117. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

Shravan Vad 3 [August 23, 1910]

CHI. NARANDAS.

I had kept your letter for replying.

If you spend your spare time in understanding and explaining to others the significance of the struggle here, I shall take it that you have done well. We need not doubt the law that we achieve the thing to which we completely devote ourselves. The satyagraha struggle deserves such devotion. Hence this advice to you.

Blessings from

MOHANDAS

From the Gujarati original in Gandhi’s hand: C.W. 5635 Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi

118. REPORT OF PROTECTOR OF INDENTURED LABOURERS

The so-called “Protector” of indentured labourers has published his annual report. We note its main points elsewhere. The report is a matter of disgrace for every thinking Indian. How many Indians arrived, how many of them died, what were the causes of death—all this is worth knowing and will be found in the abstract of the report.

The reply by the “Protector” to Mr. Polak’s vivid account of the sufferings of indentured labourers makes interesting reading. It is in fact no reply. The “Protector” seems to have assumed the role of “Exploiter”. When we thus find that the sea has caught fire, where shall we get the water to quench it?

What we are seriously exercised over at the moment is this. Last year, 2,487 indentured labourers arrived from Madras, including 176 boys and 195 girls of all ages. Further, it is stated in the same report that more than 27,000 Indians have been born in Natal. What has been the fate of all these boys and girls? The Government has shown no interest in this matter. The Protector has not a single word to say about them. The employers of indentured labourers do nothing for them. The boys, too, are treated as indentured labourers. This is the way cattle are dealt with. Do we really treat [even] our cattle in this fashion? What this reveals is a state of slavery. The boys and girls who arrived last year are ruined both materially and morally. Any ruffian may cast his evil eye on them. From early morning when the parents go to toil like beasts, these delicate children are left to themselves and those of them who are strong enough for a little work are employed on payment of a paltry 5s. Thus, it is sugar made with the blood of indentured labourers that we use for gratifying our palate. In spite of this, some of us think that the indentured labourers gain by coming here, that they escape starvation [in India] and find happiness in Natal. We would not think of applying this argument to ourselves. We would rather prefer to starve than accept the slavery of indenture. We would not like to bring up our children in such slavery. These boys and girls are left entirely to the mercy of God. Any Indian who has faith in religion will see that we join in exploiting this slavery and as a punishment for that sin we, who claim to be free Indians, also become the victims of oppression. If only we had a pen and an intellect powerful enough, we would awaken the Indians from their deep slumber and rouse the community to take effective measures to put an immediate stop to the system of indenture. This is the right time for it. A letter signed by the leaders demanding an immediate end to the system of indenture should be sent to all those who wish to enter the Union Parliament. We have no doubt that once indenture is stopped, the hardships of Indians will not take long to disappear.

1 Vide “Letter to Narandas Gandhi”, 29-3-1910

[From Gujarati]
Indian Opinion, 27-8-1910

---

119. CABLE TO S. A. B. I. COMMITTEE

JOHANNESBURG,

August 29, 1910

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>MAGISTRATE</th>
<th>DECIDED</th>
<th>ASIATIC ACT</th>
<th>GIVES NO PROTECTION</th>
<th>TO</th>
<th>MINORS</th>
<th>NOT BORN</th>
<th>TRANSVAAL AND NOT RESIDENT</th>
<th>AT</th>
<th>COMMENCEMENT</th>
<th>OF</th>
<th>ACT</th>
<th>1908</th>
<th>MATTER GOING</th>
</tr>
</thead>
</table>

---

1 This was forwarded by Ritch to the Colonial Office on August 30, 1910.
2 In the case of Mahomed, son of Chhotabhai, Magistrate Jordan ruled that the inclusion of the son’s name in the father’s registration certificate gave him no right to apply for registration and that the father’s Peace Preservation Permit did not cover the son; hence he dismissed the appeal and ordered deportation.
BEFORE SUPREME COURT, BUT AS IT AFFECTS MANY INDIAN CHILDREN AND IS SO IMPORTANT, HOPE IMPERIAL INTERVENTION WILL COMMENCE NOW.

M. K. GANDHI

From a typewritten copy in the Colonial Office Records: C.O. 551/7

120. LETTER TO MAGANLAL GANDHI

[JOHANNESBURG,]

Wednesday [August 31, 1910]

CHI. MAGANLAL,

I have your letter. I have one from Chhaganlal too.

It was good that you observed the Janmashtami fast. I had thought of doing so, but gave up the idea. I decided it was enough for the present if I could keep the Ekadashi fast alone. There is only one simple way of winning divine grace—that of practising truth and other virtues, gradually and deliberately, and of concentrating on one attachment or devotion [to the Supreme] to the exclusion of all others.

Eat the whole body, O crow!

Peck away at my flesh;¹

But pray consume not the two eyes,
I still hope to see my beloved.

This is said of a lover and his beloved; but in truth it shows the yearning of the soul to see the beloved in the form of God. He does not care if the body is lost. If the crow of passion does not eat away the eye of knowledge, he is bound to meet the beloved.

Chhaganlal’s letters are still suggestive of his timidity. What he writes about Gokaldas makes it appear as though you and all of us are neglecting our elders. If Gokaldas does not go to India, it only betrays his ignorance. He has no duty to perform here. He has not even obtained specific permission from Parmanandbhai to come over here. Moreover, Parmanandbhai wants only to see him. Gokaldas, however, does not understand [this] and therefore does not go. All of you have to serve your parents and you do it even while staying here. That can be your sole object in earning money. Of course, they might feel happy if you were with them. But they hardly need you apart from that. I hold that children who are indifferent to their parents can hardly accomplish anything in the world. I am quite free from worry as I do not see in your and Chhaganlal’s behaviour anything that conflicts with filial duty.

¹ This letter appears to have been written during Chhaganlal Gandhi’s absence from South Africa in 1910. “Janmashtami”, Lord Krishna’s birthday (according to the Indian calendar the 8th day of the dark half of Shravana) mentioned in the second paragraph, fell on Sunday, August 28, 1910.

² The eleventh day of each dark and bright fortnight

³ The letter has अंग्रेजी मानते (and the burnt flesh too), but it should be read चूं चूं खाई मानते (peck away at my flesh).

What Chhaganlal writes about the exhibition has been the general impression. It is a great illusion¹. What are we before it, when a person like Sitaji fell a prey to the temptation? This glamorous show is the product of Western civilization. We can deem ourselves successful if we are not led away by it. I do not mean to say that Chhaganlal has succumbed to the temptation. He is, however, greatly affected by it—and anyone would be so affected at first sight.

I agree with Chhaganlal about not sending Santok. I think she will not be happy in India. Such is our plight. She will not be able to live there with that spiritual and physical freedom which she enjoys here. When, thanks to her stay in Phoenix, she becomes firm in her convictions and courageous enough to adhere even in India to her ideas and way of life which she considers right, she will be happy there. Her stay will be beneficial to India and she will render true service to the country as well as to herself. I, however, feel that she may be allowed to go if she is pressed to go as was Chanchi. Veni² writes in every letter that in India she feels as if she were in prison. This is not true of women alone.

Please do not let Chhaganlal know of any portion of this letter even indirectly. For that might prove harmful. I am constantly pondering over his letters. I shall write to him myself when I find it necessary. My criticism too might be due to a misunderstanding. Even so, there is no need at present to disturb the tenor of his thought. For I have enough faith in him to believe that whatever he does he will

---

¹ Literally, a golden deer. In the Ramayana, Ravana’s maternal uncle, Maricha, took the form of a golden deer to tempt Sita and entice Rama away so that Ravana could kidnap her.

² Wife of Gaurishanker Vyas, a leading Indian of Pretoria and a satyagrahi come round of his own accord.

I have written to you in detail so that you may not be upset or distressed in any way.

The messenger did not inform me that the watch came from Tipnis. I have not mentioned his name [in “Johannesburg”] as he told me that it was sent by you. I shall make the necessary correction next week if you have not done so already. We have not received the things sent by Talewant Singh. I shall make enquiries. I fear some demurrage will have to be paid. He has not even told me what the things sent were.

Blessings from

MOHANDAS

From the Gujarati original in Gandhiji’s hand: C.W. 4935 Courtesy: Radhabehn Choudhri

121. THE GRAND OLD MAN OF INDIA

The first Indian to become a member of the British Parliament was Mr. Dadabhai Naoroji. Born on September 4th, 1825, in the city of Bombay, he was educated at the Elphinstone School and College, and was, at the age of 29, made Professor of Mathematics and Natural Philosophy—being the first Indian to receive that honour. In 1855, Mr. Naoroji visited England as partner in the first Indian business to be established in that country. The University College, London, did him the honour of appointing him Professor of Gujarati; and one of the benefits gained for India by Mr. Naoroji was the admission of Indians to the Civil Service in 1870. He was made Prime Minister of Baroda in 1874, and a year later was elected a member of the Corporation and Municipal Council of Bombay, to which body he gave five years’ valuable service. Mr. Naoroji was a member of the Bombay Legislative Council from 1885 to 1887. The Indian National Congress honoured him by electing him President in 1886, 1893, and again in 1906. Mr. Naoroji sat in the House of Commons from 1893 to 1895 as Liberal member for Central Finsbury, London, and he did good work for his country as member of the Royal Commission on Indian Expenditure, etc., and, in 1897, gave evidence before the Welby Commission. From the very commencement of the British Committee of the Indian National Congress, he was a diligent member and hard worker. Among the publications from the pen of Mr.
Dadabhai Naoroji are: England’s Duty to India, Admission of Educated Natives into the Indian Civil Service, Financial Administration of India, and what is, perhaps, the best known of his many writings, Poverty and Un-British Rule in India. In 1906, the venerable Dadabhai journeyed to the Motherland to preside over the Indian National Congress, a task which was a tremendous strain upon even his iron constitution and indomitable spirit. Since the Calcutta Congress of 1906, Mr. Dadabhai has practically retired from public life, and in 1907 he went to reside at Varsova, a small fishing village in the Bombay Presidency where he still watches with a keen interest the progress of events in India which go to make or mar its future. Truly has he earned for himself the honoured title of THE GRAND OLD MAN OF INDIA.

Indian Opinion, 3-9-1910

122. LONG LIVE THE GRAND OLD MAN

Tomorrow is the 86th birthday of Mr. Dadabhai Naoroji, the Grand Old Man of India and the Father of Indian Nationalism. Every year brings us nearer the day when we must part with him in the flesh. The best honour that we can render him is to imitate him in his noble career and dedicate our all to the service of the Motherland. On the first page we give a brief biographical sketch with portrait of the aged patriot.

Indian Opinion, 3-9-1910

123. GREAT LONDON MEETING

The report of the great meeting held in London on the 3rd of August last has now arrived. It was fitting that Sir Mancherji Bhownaggree, who has taken such a prominent part in the struggle since its commencement, should have presided. The success of the whole gathering was due to the untiring efforts of Mr. Ritch and his helpers. A glance at the names of the speakers shows what a

---

1 The report of this meeting held at the Westminster Palace Hotel, to protest against the treatment of British Indians in the Transvaal, was published in Indian Opinion, 3-9-1910.

2 Among the speakers were Major Sayed Hoosen Belgrami, W. P. Byles, M. P., Sir R. K. Wilson, Bepin Chandra Pal and Lala Lajpat Rai.
representative gathering it was. Sir Mancherji has forwarded the resolutions\textsuperscript{1} to Lords Crewe and Morley. Reuter has informed us that the Imperial Government is still in correspondence with the Union Government. Mr. Ritch has appealed to General Botha to close the struggle before the Union Parliament meets. It now remains to be seen what the next month has in store for passive resisters. We confess that before the elections are over, General Botha, whose own fate and that of his fellow ministers hangs in the balance, could take no definite action. Meanwhile, passive resisters may take additional courage from the fact that their cause is being very vigilantly watched by Lord Ampthill and his Committee\textsuperscript{2} and that the opinion of the Metropolis of the Empire is behind them.

\textit{Indian Opinion, 3-9-1910}

\textbf{124. INDENTURED LABOUR}

The \textit{Rand Daily Mail} has made a most excellent suggestion to the effect that the voters should ask every candidate to pledge himself to the immediate stoppage of indentured labour from India. So long as that blot remains, it is very much like straining at a gnat and swallowing a camel to persecute a few Indians out of the Transvaal Province. Whatever may be the motives of the \textit{Rand Daily Mail} in urging total prohibition of indentured labour, no Indian can have any difficulty in agreeing with its conclusions.

\textit{Indian Opinion, 3-9-1910.}

\textbf{125. A REPROACH}

Mr. Haggar, who found himself appointed a member of the Commission that recently sat to examine the question of indentured

\begin{flushleft}\textsuperscript{1} The first resolution detailing disabilities of the Transvaal British Indians emphatically protested against the deportations to India through Mozambique; the second appealed to Lord Crewe for protection; the third to Lord Morley to prevent further emigration to South Africa until redress of grievances; the fourth conveyed a message of “admiration and encouragement . . . to brave brothers and sisters in the Transvaal . . . in the selfless struggle”; and the fifth directed forwarding of the resolutions to Colonial and India Offices and to the Transvaal British Indian Association.\end{flushleft}

\begin{flushleft}\textsuperscript{2} The S.A.B.I. Committee\end{flushleft} labour, thus writes in the course of a letter to the Rand Daily Mail, in reply to that paper’s leading article urging entire prohibition of indentured labour:

One fact was forced upon the attention of the Commission, namely, the Natal-born Indian is useless as a worker; he will play football, sell newspapers or do low-class office work but he will not undertake anything of the nature of labour. It was admitted by educated Indians that primary education made the Natal-born Indian useless in the labour market. Agriculture had nothing to hope from him.

Indians know Mr. Haggar too well to take him seriously. His unproved charges against the community have not yet been forgotten. But sometimes we do learn a great deal even from our avowed opponents. The statement that we have quoted above is not without a modicum of truth in it. Curiously enough, we have just received from a correspondent a letter inviting us to open our columns regularly for Indian sporting news. We have nothing against sport as such. And, if our columns were not almost solely devoted to the cause of the Indian struggle in South Africa, and if we had enough support from the sporting Indians, we would not be unprepared to set apart a portion for regular sporting news. But we ask our young friends whether sport should occupy so much of their time and attention as it does now. Indeed, those Indians who know what is going on around them, cannot afford to be in a sporting mood. Our forefathers did wonderfully well without the fashionable sport of today. Sport indulged in for the sake of developing the body is of some use. But we venture to suggest that agriculture, the inherited occupation of Indians—indeed of the human race—is better sport than football, cricket and all other games put together. And it is useful, dignified and remunerative. Football and cricket may be well for those who have the drudgery of the desk work to go through from day to day. But no Indian need undertake that task. We therefore advise our young sporting friends to take Mr. Haggar’s remarks in good part and leave the contemptible work of clerks, newspaper sellers, etc., for the independent and manly field-work. They have before them the brilliant example of Mr. Joseph Royeppen who, though a barrister, took up hawking and latterly did manual work on the Passive Resistance Farm¹.

Indian Opinion, 3-9-1910

¹ Tolstoy Farm
126. MEETING IN ENGLAND

We have now received a report of the meeting held in England concerning the Transvaal struggle, as also of the discussion raised by Lord Ampthill in the House of Lords. Both these developments should prove very encouraging to us. The meeting was presided over by Sir Mancherji Bhownaggree. He has been helping us right from the beginning. It was therefore but fitting that he should be in the chair. The messages which the meeting received from Justice Ameer Ali and Sir Charles Bruce were noteworthy. The meeting was attended by leaders of all parties and communities. Their speeches, too, were powerfully stirring. We can gather from all this that the movement is receiving good support in England. But that support is of far less consequence than our own strength. And if we have no strength in ourselves, the support [we have been receiving] in England will only argue our weakness. If Lord Ampthill has been fighting [for us], if Sir Mancherji has been striving hard and Mr. Ritch has been working indefatigably, that is due, in fact, to their belief that we submit ourselves to suffering, that we have embraced poverty in the cause of the motherland, that we have staked our all for our honour. For the success of this meeting, it is to Mr. Ritch and his army of volunteers that congratulations are due.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 3-9-1910

127. LETTER TO CHHAGANLAL GANDHI

TOLSTOY FARM,
Bhadarva Shud 1 [September 4, 1910]¹

CHI. CHHAGANLAL,

I write this with a heavy heart. I constantly think your going to India has been a mistake.

¹ This letter was written during the addressee’s absence from South Africa in 1910.
I was deeply pained to read your letter to Doctor [Mehta]. How can I bear your contracting tuberculosis? I write this under the impression that you are still there [in England]. Maud¹ will redirect this to you if you have left for India.

Please do as you think fit. Treat the following simply as a piece of advice from me. I wish to see your health improved.

Considering only your health, I feel that the best thing for you would be to go to Phoenix. You will get fresh air there. You will also be able to work on the farm, which is good for a tuberculosis patient. Moreover, I hope to be able to assist and nurse you. This will be possible only if you are at Phoenix. And, God willing, you can stay on this Farm too. The climate here is even better than that of Phoenix. Brahmacharya, which is necessary for a patient like you, can easily be observed here. I therefore think it will be better if you come over here. You can go back to India if your health does not improve here. Should you be keen on going to India, I have written to Doctor [Mehta] to send you Rs. 2 every month. Even otherwise, you may stay in Bombay and do some public work there under my guidance. Your main work will relate to the struggle here. By doing this you will be free from worry about your livelihood and you can easily pass your life in public service. Whether you are ill or well, I wish your life is spent in the service of the country.

Many things come to mind about which I should write, but I do not feel like doing so. My suggestion about your coming over here stands even if you have already reached India. In case you do not feel inclined to come here, my suggestion regarding Doctor [Mehta] is there for you to consider.

However, even if neither of these alternatives is acceptable to you and you want to live independently on your own earnings, be sure that I would not come in your way. My only desire is that you should take the course that will give you most satisfaction.

I shall be waiting for your letter during the next week like a

¹ Maud Polak, sister of H. S. L. Polak, worked as Secretary to the South Africa British Indian Committee, London, during L. W. Ritch’s absence.

² The figure is missing.
chataka longing for the rains.

Blessings from
MOHANDAS

From a handwritten copy of the Gujarati original in Gandhiji’s hand: C.W. 4936 Courtesy: Chhaganlal Gandhi

128. JOHANNESBURG

Monday [September 5, 1910]

MINORS

A case, that of Tayob Hajee Khan Mahomed’s son, very similar to that of Mr. Chhotabhais son, has come up in Pretoria. In this case, too, the magistrate decided against the boy. In all probability, both these cases will go to the Supreme Court.

STATEMENTS OF GENERAL BOTHA AND OTHERS

I have sent for the English section the statements of General Smuts, General Botha and de Villiers bearing on this question. All three have referred to the position of minors in their speeches or written about it, but none of them has stated anywhere that a child, on attaining majority, can be expelled. General Botha, in his written statement, has mentioned that the Government had accepted the Asiatics’ demand in regard to minors. General Smuts has said the same thing in his speech. The Asiatics never, even in their dreams, thought of agreeing to the expulsion of minors, and none of the three persons mentioned above has claimed that they have so agreed. It is only now that the Transvaal Government has begun to put an arbitrary construction on the law.³

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 10-9-1910

129. MR. CHHOTABHAI’S CASE

The case of Mr. Chhotabhai’s son, already reported in these columns, is a most important one. It affects the well-being of the 1 A bird which is supposed to drink only the water that falls from the sky.

3 Vide “Another Breach of Faith!”, 30-7-1910.
whole Indian community in the Transvaal. Analogous to it is also the case of the son of Mr. Tayob Hajee Khan Mahomed. If their sons, who entered the Transvaal as minors, cannot remain in that Province, hundreds of Indian parents may be obliged to leave the Transvaal. For we cannot imagine these Indian parents in the Transvaal would be inhuman enough to remain in that country if their sons, artificially declared to be majors at the age of 16, are to be deported to India without their natural protectors. Parents have taken their babies to the Transvaal but, after the passing of the Act of 1908, assuming that these babies are never sent to India until after they have reached the age of 16, and that both the parents are in the Transvaal, where is the lad now 16 years to be deported to? Assuming, further, that a child is born to Transvaal Indian parents on the high seas, where is this child, if male, to be deported after he reaches the Transvaal age of majority? One would have thought that the Transvaal Government would have stood appalled by the highly probable consequences of their interpretation of the Act.

But, apart from the purely humanitarian standpoint suggested above, we quote elsewhere General Smuts’ speech on the introduction of the then Asiatic Bill, General Botha’s minute on the Asiatic Conference and Mr. de Villiers’ (the then Attorney-General’s) report on the Asiatic Act. All these documents show that there was then not a word said about the exclusion of minor Asiatics not born in the Transvaal entering after the commencement of the Act. Indeed, they all say that the Asiatic demand in this respect has been completely met. The Asiatics never suspected that their minor children might be treated as prohibited immigrants on reaching the age of majority. Whatever may be the interpretation of the Act, there is the pledged word of three Ministers at stake.

The question is too important to be left where the Supreme Court may leave it, assuming that its decision is adverse. We have no desire to anticipate its judgment, but this we cannot help saying, that it is a matter of life and death for the Indians in the Transvaal. We wish we could say that it would be a matter of honour with the people of the Transvaal, indeed of the whole of South Africa. Will the humanity of the South Africans tolerate what is a war against infants?

Indian Opinion, 10-9-1910

---

1 Vide Appendix, "Transvaal Ministers' Declaration", 9-10-1910.
2 ibid
3 ibid
130. MESSRS RITCH AND POLAK

According to the cables published in the Press, Messrs Ritch and Polak will soon be among us. These two friends of the community in South Africa have worked, laboured and slaved for us as few of our own countrymen have. They have identified themselves entirely with our cause. They have indeed been friends in need. It is difficult, if at all possible, to compare the work of the two. Each has done his best in his own special department. Mr. Ritch is the soul of Lord Ampthill’s Committee. Mr. Polak’s magnificent work received a public recognition at Bombay when Professor Gokhale presented him with a silver tea-set. It was no exaggeration when the honourable gentleman attributed to Mr. Polak the memorable collection of over £6,000 for assisting passive resisters. We trust that both Messrs Ritch and Polak will receive from the community such receptions as no other men have received at our hands. They deserve it.

Indian Opinion, 10-9-1910

131. SUGGESTION TO INDIANS

We shall know on September 15 who is to rule in South Africa in the immediate future. Will it be General Botha or Mr. Merriman or Dr. Jameson? In all probability, it will be General Botha. Every Indian must have realized by now that General Botha is not likely to be won over by flattery.

A fire is raging all round the Indians. In some parts of America, a forest catches fire and that fire cannot be put out. Troops go out to quench it, but even they find it a most difficult task. Hundreds of men are burnt to death. Neighbouring villages are razed to the ground. A similar fire is raging round the Indians in South Africa. But we have not yet taken the warning. This shows our apathy and our selfishness.

In Cape Town, thanks to the efforts of Dr. Abdurahman and his friends, Indian trading licences were not touched so far. But that has now changed. The Town Council has refused to grant any licences in certain areas. Mr. Alexander was the only one to oppose this. Mr. Liebermann, who was once on our side, said that his eyes had opened after the report of the Chamber of Commerce. Others, too, spoke to the same effect, with the result that no licences were granted.

Though the Natal Act has been amended, a man like Mr. Goga did not get a licence [for trading] on his own premises in Ladysmith.\textsuperscript{1} We find the same kind of high-handed treatment in Estcourt, too.\textsuperscript{2}

About the Transvaal, the less said the better. There, those who have submitted to the law continue to get licences, but this will not last long. In what is described as the gold area, no licences are issued. Elsewhere, too, if they can, on some other ground, refuse a licence, they certainly do so. Indian businessmen should note that after the Union Parliament is formed, trading licences will come under heavy fire.

What are we doing, meanwhile? First, We must say with regret, we waste our time in idleness or pleasure-seeking. Secondly, once our own end is served, we show little concern for others. Thirdly, we are vindictive and fight among ourselves. Fourthly, sometimes there are quarrels between Hindus and Muslims on issues both small and big; and when they are not fighting with each other, they as well as the Muslims are busy quarrelling among themselves. Thus, everyone goes his own way, unmindful of the others.

If there were no fire raging round us, perhaps we would not have much to say against these selfish and otherwise unseemly ways—no one, in any case, would listen to what we might say. A little reflection will show to Indians that, if every person looked to his own immediate interest, all of them would be in trouble before long. We should not have to point out that the interests of the community comprehend those of every individual Indian.

We believe they will lay hands first on the traders. Some Indians may imagine that traders can escape harassment if they keep aloof from other Indians. That this is mere short-sightedness is plain enough. Right from the time that the movement against the Indians started, the whites have had their eyes on their trade. It is the traders alone whom they harass. True, some selfish whites, wishing us to chop off our feet, do advise the traders that they will be saved if they dissociate themselves from the others. Some say, again, that they will have no difficulty to face, if they do not get involved in the affairs of others. Everyone is told the same thing. Should we conclude from this \textsuperscript{1} Vide “Indians under the Union”, 13-8-1910

\textsuperscript{2} ibid
that there would be difficulties for no one? The truth of the matter is that, if they can ruin us by soft words or baits, they would prefer to do it that way. Failing that, they will adopt other means.

There is only one simple way in the face of this snare, and that is to be alert and shake off our apathy, to get rid of our selfishness and our internal quarrels, and to adopt all necessary measures.

As for the steps to be taken, making petitions, going to court, if we have the money for that, fighting out in England, to the best of our ability—all this may be good enough, but effective remedy there is only one. Without satyagraha, everything will be unavailing. Satyagraha means our own strength. In the absence of such strength of our own, no strength of any other kind will enable us to hold our ground for long.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 10-9-1910

132. LETTER TO CHHAGANLAL GANDHI

TOLSTOY FARM,

Bhadarva Shud 7 [September 11, 1910]

CHI. CHHAGANLAL,

It is now five days since a cable was sent concerning you, but there has been no reply so far. I infer from this that you are still there and have not made up your mind yet. The reasons you put forward for not coming here are all feeble and only indicate that your mind has weakened. Your body had grown weak even in India. There won’t be any difficulty about your treatment and nursing in Phoenix. Perhaps I may have to stay there, or you too may have to come here. Moreover, your health has not deteriorated so much that someone has always to be by your side and look after you. Even if it deteriorates to that extent, the facilities that are available in Phoenix are, I think, not to be found in India, at any rate just now. You might, I am afraid, cause pain to Khushalbhai by going to India. If you propose to go to the countryside in India, why, that life is already available in Phoenix. And if, after all, you feel restless in Phoenix or if it does not suit your

---

1. This letter was written during the addressee’s absence from South Africa in 1910.
2. Not available
3. In England
health, you can very easily go to India. Even from the financial standpoint, it would be more proper for you to stay at Phoenix. If you do so, we won’t have to bother Doctor [Mehta] and you won’t have to go searching for a job in India.

Blessings from
MHANANDAS

From the Gujarati original in Gandhiji’s hand: C.W. 4937 Courtesy: Chhaganlal Gandhi

133. A PRAYER TO THE KING-EMPEROR

The Indian South African League has taken a bold step in sending a cable\(^1\) to the King-Emperor praying for His Majesty’s gracious intervention on behalf of the passive resisters in the Transvaal. The cablegram as also Mr. Natesan’s spirited letter to the Madras Mail, extracts from which we reproduce elsewhere, shows that the feeling on the question runs high in that Presidency. Indeed, Mr. Bennett, the proprietor of The Times of India, said that no question stirred the people of India so much as the question of the sufferings of the Indians in South Africa. Now The Times writer confirms the statement.\(^2\) It is on rare occasions that personal appeals are made to the sovereign. We shall not have to wait long before we learn what answer has been returned to the prayer of the League. Whatever the answer, it is most satisfactory to learn that the passive resisters have the full and active sympathy of those for whose honour they are fighting.

_Indian Opinion, 17-9-1910_

134. EFFECTIVENESS OF THE STRUGGLE

We hear it being said by many that the Transvaal agitation has no force left. We have repeated, time and again, that so long as at least one person remains to continue satyagraha, we may rest confident that victory will be ours. That is the only test of satyagraha.

During this week two telegrams have been received which lend support to our view. In one of them, we note that the League\(^1\) in Madras, which has been helping us, has addressed a cable\(^2\) to the King-Emperor about the deportees arriving there and prayed for his intervention. In England, The Times has been publishing a series of articles on the current unrest in India, in which it is pointed out that the sufferings of India are a disgrace to British rule. We can see from these two developments that the Transvaal struggle remains as effective as ever. Efforts continue to be made on our behalf from every side. Even a person like Mr. Merriman, while speaking on the problem, was obliged to speak out in our favour. Commenting on his views, The Transvaal Leader, too, asks for justice.

---

\(^1\) Vide “Deported Indians Appeal to the king”, Indian Opinion, 17-9-1910.

This support that we are getting should encourage us and strengthen the weak. But at the same time we should like to point out that satyagraha does not require encouragement from others. It is like a razor’s edge. He who would walk on it does not pause to think of ways of securing help from others.

Indian Opinion, 17-9-1910

135. SORABJI RELEASED

Mr. Sorabji has been released. What, one wonders, will he do? He has spent most of his time in one and the same gaol right from the moment the second phase of the struggle began. Just as the heaviest load falls on the foundation, the weight [of the struggle] has fallen on Mr. Sorabji, and he has been bearing it. The Indian community has few gems like Mr. Sorabji, who fights on in silence and without a thought of self. He is a gem, however, which wins honour for the entire community and makes its name illustrious.

Indian Opinion, 17-9-1910

---

\(^1\) The Indian South African League

\(^2\) ibid
136. SPEECH AT DURBAN

September 20, 1910

At the outset Mr. Gandhi explained the present position regarding the Transvaal struggle. He conveyed to the audience an idea of the great strength of the struggle in spite of the fact that only a handful of satyagrahis were participating in it. He stressed how important it was for the entire Indian community at Durban to give rousing receptions and banquets to the deportees when they landed at Durban, as the latter were soldiers fighting for the sake of the entire Indian community. He pointed out that it was their duty to give a hearty welcome to Mr. Polak also in view of the important services rendered by him in India.

[From Gujarati]
Indian Opinion, 24-9-1910

137. SPEECH AT MEETING OF KATHIAWAD ARYA MANDAL

DURBAN,
September 20, 1910

Mr. Gandhi . . . explained things to the audience here as he had done at the earlier meeting1 of the Colonial-born Indians. He pointed out that, in addition to a rousing reception which should be given by the entire Indian community at Durban to the deportees and Mr. Polak, it was the duty of every association individually to give them addresses and dinners and to raise funds for their reception.

[From Gujarati]
Indian Opinion, 24-9-1910

138. A NOTABLE EVENT

The election of the Rev. Dr. Rubusana as a member of the Cape Provincial Council for Tembuland by a majority of 25 over his two opponents is an event of great importance. The election is really a challenge to the Union Parliament with reference to the colour clause. That Dr. Rubusana can sit in the Provincial Council but not in the Union Parliament is a glaring anomaly which must disappear if South Africans are to become a real nation in the near future. We congratulate Dr. Rubusana and the Coloured races on his victory and

---

1 At a meeting of Colonial-born Indians.
2 Held to consider the giving of receptions to Polak and the deportees
3 Vide the preceding item.
trust that his career in the Council will do credit to him and those he represents.

Indian Opinion, 24-9-1910

139. JUDGMENT IN BOY’S CASE

Justice Wessels’ judgment has gone against Mr. Chhotabhai’s son. If this judgment stands, the Indian community will find itself in a hopeless situation and be uprooted before long. An appeal has been filed. Its result will be known within only two or three days of the publication of this comment. Let the appeal court’s decision be what it may; we are little concerned with it. We give elsewhere a report of the case in Justice Wessels’ Court. It is worth studying. He has stated that the Government’s attitude is unjust and inhuman and that, if it is persisted in, there will be a howl against it throughout the civilized world. We are watching what the civilized world has to say. There is no doubt, however, that the Government, as pointed out by the judge, acted with great severity.

If that is so, why did he give judgment against the boy? This question will occur to everyone. It shows up the degrading position of present-day courts. They may dispense injustice instead of justice. It is considered justice on the part of a court if its judgment follows the letter of the law, when this is in conflict with the spirit of justice. In other words, an action which Justice Wessels, the man, pronounces unjust is upheld by him as just in his capacity as a judge.

We cannot submit to such justice or injustice. It is necessary to call meetings everywhere and pass resolutions about this. We cannot rest till the matter is settled satisfactorily.

A perusal of the judgment and the report will show that, even under the Act of 1907, children born outside the Transvaal are not entitled to enter it. Mr. Gregorowski fought hard on this point but Justice Wessels was emphatic that such boys were not protected under the Act of 1907.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 24-9-1910

140. LETTER TO HERMANN KALLENBACH

September 24, 1910

MY DEAR LOWER HOUSE,

If you go on as you are the tables will be turned and I shall have to be the Lower House.
What more can you do than what you are doing at Pinetown? I am doing less here than what you are at Pinetown. Such is my real opinion. Then why am I not joining you there? My answer is in the language of the Bhagavad Gita that although my work is less than yours, my duty just now lies in that direction. Pray go on, therefore, with sandal-making. And do take care what you spend.

We cannot meet today. I am taking Mr. Omar by the 2.25 train. If you come to Phoenix, as I hope you will, we can talk away tomorrow. Cordes will be with you in the train. I shall not send anyone to the station as I am not sure what you would be doing. But some dinner will be reserved for you. If, however, you think that you want perfect quiet, you need not come.

I return Monday 8.55 train in the morning.

Your remarks about Parsee’s servant do great credit to your heart. Parsee has written sending for him. If the man will come we shall take him to Phoenix on Monday. Yes, everything possible should be done for him.

I am leaving letters for you.

I did not at all like the idea of your having bought prunes. It is good neither for you nor for Mrs. Gandhi.

Manilal writes saying he has been watering as per your instructions. Poor boy, he was down with fever on Wednesday.

Harilal, Medh and Sodha\(^1\) have gone to the Farm.\(^2\)

If nothing important keeps you in town and if you are quite self-possessed, you should come to Phoenix.

Can’t say when you will be required. Parsee wants me to thank you much for your attention to his servant.

With love,

UPPER HOUSE

From the original: Gandhi-Kallenbach Correspondence. Courtesy: National Archives of India

\(^1\) R.M. Sodha

\(^2\) Tolstoy Farm offered by the addressee for the use of Satyagrahi families; vide “Johannesburg”, 13-6-1910.
141. LETTER TO G. K. GOKHALE

PHOENIX,
NATAL,
September 30, 1910

DEAR PROFESSOR GOKHALE,

I have come here to receive Mr. Polak.¹ I hope to write to you on the situation in a few days’ time.

This is to introduce Mr. Manilal Doctor, M.A., Bar-at-Law. Mr. Doctor has been practising in Mauritius for some time. In my opinion he belongs to that class of professional men who use their profession, or try to, to advance national rather than personal interest. He is going to the Congress as a Delegate and will much appreciate your advice and guidance.

I am,

Yours truly,

M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat of the original in Gandhiji’s hand: G.N. 3801

142. RITCH TO BE HONOURED

The resolution of the British Indian Association to honour Mr. Ritch is a welcome move. Mr. Ritch has been a great asset to the Committee. Thanks to his intelligence, perseverance and wholehearted devotion to work, the Committee has won wide public notice and the Imperial Government is obliged to give due consideration to its views. All praise Mr. Ritch’s energy with one voice. He will first land in Cape Town, where he will be the guest of the community. We are sure it will give him an excellent reception and so do credit to itself. We publish a photograph of Mr. Ritch as a supplement to today’s issue.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 1-10-1910

¹ Polak, who had been on deputation to India, returned by s. s. Sultan, arriving at Durban on September 28, 1910.
143. INDENTURED INDIANS’ PLIGHT

We believe that, if we had not been alert and had not raised a protest, the account which appears in The [Natal] Mercury under the title ‘Spotted Fever’ would not have come out. The facts are as follows: Some indentured Indians arrived by the Umhloti at the beginning of this month. These Indians were brought from India specially for Sir Liege Hulett. An epidemic of spotted fever broke out among them, as a result of which several Indians were reported to have died. On hearing of this, we addressed an inquiry to the “Protector” of Indians, to which we received an evasive reply. We wrote again. In reply, we were asked to refer to the Mercury. The account in the Mercury did not satisfy us. In fact, it was the duty of the “Protector” to give us full information. But we shall not say anything about this rudeness on his part. It appears from the report in the Mercury, which is, in fact, the “Protector’s” own report, that the gentleman is not concerned about the welfare of those who are placed under his protection. He is only worried lest spotted fever should break out among Europeans. He says that there is no reason to entertain such a fear. Moreover, lest the flow of indentured Indian labour should stop if it were to get known that such epidemics occurred only among indentured Indians, he has put out the report in such skilful language that it would apply to all Indians. In point of fact, however, there is seldom any such epidemic among Indians other than indentured labourers. He has given no information as to how many indentured labourers had set out, by whom they were to be employed, how many of them fell ill, and the present whereabouts of those who did not fall ill. We shall not allow this matter to rest here. It is necessary to pursue it to the end. We hope that the Congress will take it up.

Further, the “Protector” has stated that this disease makes its appearance in surroundings which are not cleaned for long periods and are shut out from sunlight and air. Well, the epidemic broke out on board a ship and there the supervision and the responsibility are those of the “Protector” or his agent. Why did he allow people to remain in filthy, dark and unventilated surroundings? It is quite plain that the blame for this lies entirely with the “Protector”. Only those held in indenture—slavery—can possibly be reduced to such a plight. Indians who would not feel happy if they were themselves to be placed in this position should strive their utmost to put an end to the system of indenture.

---

1 This and the letters and the replies referred to herein were published in Indian Opinion, 1-10-1910.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 1-10-1910

144. TELEGRAMS TO L. W. RITCH

[DURBAN,]

October 4, 1910

SEE 32 DEPORTEES.\(^1\) THEY HAVE CAPE RIGHTS UNDER IMMIGRATION ACT. ACCORDING OLD ACT PERSONS BORN OR DOMICILED ANY PART SOUTH AFRICA ENTITLED ENTER CAPE. IF THIS CONTENTION NOT ACCEPTED, ADVISE MOVING COURT ALLOW REGISTERED INDIANS PASS THROUGH UNION TO TRANSVAAL.

In a second telegram Mr. Gandhi said that some of the men had domiciled Cape rights, and some were born in South Africa, and advised Mr. Ritch to see them, and inquire whether they would apply for duplicates of the registration papers.

Indian Opinion, 15-10-1910

145. INTERVIEW TO “RAND DAILY MAIL”\(^3\)

DURBAN,

[October 4, 1910]

There are strong signs here that the Asiatic trouble in the Transvaal is about to be renewed. Mr. Gandhi and Mr. Polak, the latter of whom has just returned from Madras, are taking up between them this week 29 deportees, including three Chinese, in pursuance of the passive resistance movement. They all expect to be intercepted at Volksrust and are prepared for the consequences.

\(^1\) Both telegrams were received by Ritch on October 4, 1910 at Cape Town and were cited in the Supreme Court in the Deportees’ case on October 7.

\(^2\) They arrived at Durban on September 28 from Bombay by s. s. Sultan along with Polak but were not permitted to disembark and were sent by s. s. Pinzregent to Cape Town where, too, landing was disallowed.

\(^3\) This was published under the title “The Passive Resisters”.

130 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
Mr. Gandhi seen today denied all knowledge of the statement in a Pretoria newspaper that the Union Government had considered the Asiatic policy since the elections, and intended to make concessions to the resident Indians. He believed that the restriction measures were to be enforced in all their original vigour. He said he had had a telegram from Johannesburg saying that the staunchest passive resister there had been re-arrested for the eighth time.

Rand Daily Mail, 5-10-1910

146. SPEECH AT RECEPTION

DURBAN,
October 4, 1910

As he [Gandhiji] began to speak in English, he was interrupted by shouts of “Tamil” from the audience, whereupon he said that that too might be possible in course of time, provided General Smuts sent him to gaol. He then paid compliments to Mr. J. M. Lazarus, Mr. Rustomjee and others who had worked to make the function a success, called upon the former satyagrahis to join the struggle again and pleaded forcefully with them that they must win in the struggle. He urged them also to look after the next batch of deportees when they arrived. He pointed out how Mr. Ritch had taken on a big job in Cape Town and urged the community to extend an invitation to Mr. Ritch and give him a public reception.²

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 8-10-1910

147. SPEECH AT RECEPTION

DURBAN,
October 5, 1910

Receptions are all right as far as they go, but the important thing is that people should go to gaol. Mr. Ritch has set an example to Indians by plunging into work without enjoying any rest. Mr. Sorabji has been arrested for the eighth time, not remaining out of the struggle even for a while; this, too, is an example for you to follow. So

¹ In honour of Polak
² After this Gandhiji spoke in Gujarati; the text of this speech is not available.
³ Arranged by the Kathiawad Arya Mandal, at Mr. Parsee Rustomjee’s place, in honour of Polak and the satyagrahis back from India long as you do not learn to be true satyagrahis yourselves, you will not get the full benefit of victory in the struggle. Those who come forward to fight are assured of victory, and it is they alone who truly live.

[From Gujarati]

\emph{Indian Opinion}, 8-10-1910

148. INTERVIEW TO REUTER AND S. A. PRESS AGENCY

\textbf{VOLKSRUST,}

\textit{[Friday, October 7, 1910]}

M. K. Gandhi, leader of the Indian community in Johannesburg, who had been to Durban to meet Mr. Polak, secretary of the British Indian Association, passed through Volksrust on his return to the Rand by the up mail yesterday evening. To the surprise of all, no arrest was made.\(^2\) This is strange, because Gandhi had no permit.

I interviewed Gandhi who said he had burned his permit two years ago in company with about 2,500 Indians in Johannesburg, when, as the Indians contended, the Government failed to carry out its promise to repeal the Asiatic Act of 1907.\(^3\) Gandhi stated that he himself could not understand why he was allowed to pass unchallenged, while his son with thirty other resisters who will pass through Volksrust this (Saturday) evening will doubtless be arrested. The Indian community’s demands were so reasonable that it was difficult to understand why they were not granted. They did not want an unrestricted influx of Asiatics. All they said was that Indians should not be restricted because they were Indians. The Immigration Law could impose a stiff educational test so as to prevent the entry of all but a few highly educated Indians into the Transvaal province.

Gandhi said he had not yet heard anybody objecting to such a proposal. However, so long as this very simple point was not granted the determined passive resistance would continue. In conclusion he indignantly repudiated the suggestion that the passive resisters had anything to do with the cases of forged permits which were tried at the Circuit Court in Volksrust on September 26.

\textit{Rand Daily Mail, 10-10-1910}

\(^1\) This was published under the title, “Passive Resisters”.

\(^2\) \textit{Vide “Interview to Rand Daily Mail”, 4-10-1910}

\(^3\) \textit{Vide “Speech at Mass Meeting”, 16-8-1908.}
149. JOHANNESBURG

CHHOTABHAI CASE

We have now received the report of the hearing of the appeal in this case. The case was argued at great length. The bench consisted of Mr. de Villiers, Mr. Mason and Mr. Bristowe. Mr. Gregorowski argued hard, and the exchange of arguments between him and the judges showed that the latter’s sympathy was on the side of Mr. Chhotabhai. This time, too, the discussion related both to the Act of 1907 and that of 1909. Mr. Justice Mason went so far as to observe that the law could not indirectly deprive the boy of the rights which he enjoyed prior to 1907.

Mr. Justice Bristowe, commenting on Mr. Chamney’s affidavit, said that they could not rely on his opinion in deciding whether or not Mr. Chhotabhai should be treated as a resident of the Transvaal. What could Mr. Chamney know about the matter?

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 8-10-1910

150. LETTER TO MINISTER OF INTERIOR

[JOHANNESBURG,]

October 8, 1910

SIR,

I have just returned from Durban, where I had gone in connection with the British Indians and Chinese who were deported from this Province to India, and who had returned again to claim entry. I am aware that the Chinese produced registration certificates, but that, as they were deported under an administrative order, your Department declined to recognise the right of those Chinese to re-enter the province, and that, therefore, the Immigration Officer at

1 Against Justice Wessels’ judgment; vide “Judgment in Boy’s Case”, 24-9-1910
2 This should be “1908”.

VOL. 11 : 11 APRIL, 1910 - 12 JULY, 1911  133
Durban declined to issue visitor’s passes enabling these Chinese to proceed to the Transvaal. May I know whether the information given to me was correct, and whether it is the intention of the Government to treat these men who produce the certificates as prohibited immigrants because of an administrative order of deportation against them? May I know also whether, in the event of the Government holding that these people are prohibited immigrants, they will afford facilities to aggrieved parties to test their right before a Court of Law by granting them permission to land in South Africa? As the matter is urgent, and as cases like the above may arise in Durban very shortly, I shall be obliged if you will favour me with an early reply.

Indian Opinion, 15-10-1910

151. ADDRESS TO H. S. L. POLAK

JOHANNESBURG,

October 9, 1910

DEAR SIR,

On behalf of the Association we heartily welcome you back among us. We have closely watched your mission in India, and every Indian recognises that the magnificent work done by you in India shows that no better choice could possibly have been made. You have with unexampled energy informed the whole of India of the true position in this Province. The collection made in India for the relief of indigent passive resister families and for helping the passive resistance struggle generally is a magnificent record.

The whole of the Indian community in South Africa is interested in the stoppage of indentured labour, and your work in that connection fills us with hope that the cruel system will soon cease.

We shall never forget the sacrifices that you and Mrs. Polak have made in accepting separation from each other for the sake of the cause. We trust that both you and yours will be long spared to continue the humanitarian work that you have been doing.

---

1 Presented by the British Indian Association at a meeting to welcome Polak. Held in Fordsburg Mosque, this address was read out by Sorabji and was published in Rand Daily Mail under the title “Indians and Indentured Labour” and in Indian Opinion, 15-10-1910, under the title “Mr. Polak’s Arrival in Johannesburg”.

We are,

Yours faithfully,

A. M. CACHALIA
CHAIRMAN
M. K. GANDHI
HON. SECRETARY

Rand Daily Mail, 10-10-1910

152. JOHANNESBURG

Tuesday [October 11, 1910]

SUPPORT OF “THE TRANSVAAL LEADER”

The Transvaal Leader has written a strong article. It appears to have been written under the impression that a settlement is about to be reached. The writer points out that it is General Smuts who is responsible for the prolongation of the struggle. He has shown the Indian demand to be quite reasonable. He has passed severe comments on the Chhotabhai case and made a powerful plea for the removal, at the earliest opportunity, of any defect that may be found in the law. He has taken to task the Government prosecutor.

MR. RITCH

Mr. Ritch left Cape Town on Monday. He will reach Johannesburg on Wednesday and return to Cape Town when the cases of 11 Indians come up for hearing.

SATYAGRAHIS IN THE CAPE

Mr. Ritch’s presence in the Cape helped 11 satyagrahis to disembark. They have been provisionally allowed to disembark in order to enable them to prove their rights [in a court]. These must now be proved. Preparations for that are going on. The satyagrahis are the guests of the Indian community and both they and Mr. Ritch are being looked after by Mr. Adam Gool. Addresses have been received from the Indian Union at Kimberley for presentation to Mr. Ritch and Mr. Polak.

1 Vide “Telegrams to L. W. Ritch”, 4-10-1910
2 Vide “Letter to Minister of Interior”, 8-10-1910
COLLECTIONS FOR ADDRESSES

Three separate collections are being made for the addresses. One is on behalf of the Association: for this, Mr. Cachalia, Mr. Sorabji, Mr. Medh and Mr. Sodha have been going round. Mr. Thambi Naidoo is busy collecting funds for an address on behalf of the Tamils. The Hindu Association is also raising a fund for an address. The addresses to be presented by the Hamidia Islamic Society are ready. If Mr. Polak reaches here by Saturday\(^1\), the address and the party by the Tamils will be on Sunday.

[From Gujarati]

_Indian Opinion, 15-10-1910_

\[153. \text{EXTRACT FROM LETTER TO S. A. B. I. COMMITTEE}

[JOHANNESBURG, After October 16, 1910]\(^2\)

... You will be deeply pained to hear that one more death among passive resisters has occurred. The man who died, by name A. Narayansamy, was one of those who returned with Mr. Polak from India and who was not allowed to land in Durban. He proceeded, together with 31 others, to Port Elizabeth, and thence to Cape Town, where his landing, as also that of others, was prevented, and he was obliged to return to Durban, with the prospect of being ultimately sent back to India. Mr. Ritch says that he and the other passive resisters were left without boots, hats, and even without sufficient clothing for the body, their clothes having been stolen at Port Elizabeth. But for the charity of the local Indians at Cape Town, they might have gone back to Durban without food. These men have been continuously on board now under exceptionally severe circumstances for nearly two months. It is not at all surprising, therefore, that poor Narayansamy has succumbed. I do not consider this a death in the ordinary course. It is undoubtedly a legalised murder.

_India, 18-11-1910_

\(^1\) October 15. Polak who had arrived in Johannesburg on October 9, had evidently gone out again during the week.

\(^2\) Narayansamy, referred to in the letter, died on 16-10-1910.
154. LETTER TO THE PRESS

JOHANNESBURG,
October 17, 1910

SIR,

Most of the newspapers published a telegram from Pretoria some days ago to the effect that at last the Asiatic question that has agitated the Colony for the last four years was about to be satisfactorily settled. This news was supposed to be officially inspired, but was immediately followed by the arrest of one of the staunchest and best respected Indians in this province, namely Mr. Sorabji, and his arrest was followed by that of three of his co-passive resisters, equally brave, that is, Messrs Thambi Naidoo, Sodha and Medh.

I should, however, not have trespassed upon your courtesy and the attention of the public in order merely to give the above information. But, in my humble opinion, it is due to the public to know something of the trials of those Indians and Chinese who, although lawful residents of the Transvaal, and some of them born in South Africa, were deported to India and returned per s. s. Sultan about the end of last month.

The tragedy has culminated in the death of a most inoffensive and law-abiding Indian named Narayansamy. When he left this province for India as a deportee, he possessed a healthy constitution, but over six weeks on the decks of different steamers exposed to all sorts of weather evidently proved too severe for his constitution. Mr. Ritch has pointed out that he and his fellow-deportees were not allowed to see friends or legal advisers almost for a week while their steamer was in Table Bay, and ultimately he had to obtain an order from the Supreme Court before he could see them. He has stated in a letter to the Cape papers that he found these men bootless and hatless and in some cases even without sufficient protection for the body, shivering on the open deck of that steamer. They were refused landing first at Durban, then at Port Elizabeth, then at the Cape, and again at Durban, the last time in defiance of an order of the Supreme 1 This was published in Rand Daily Mail under the title “Death of a Deportee”, and in Indian Opinion, 22-10-1910, as a letter to the Press. It was published also in The Transvaal Leader of October 18, 1910.

---

Court restraining the Immigration Officer from removing them from the jurisdiction of the Provincial Division of Natal. The Officer, acting under instructions from the Minister of the Interior, and in his over-zeal to please his chief, gave a meaning to the order of the Court which no common sense man would give, and in indecent haste sent these men to Delagoa Bay with the result that, as above stated, Narayansamy is no more.

I have not hesitated to call the death of the late Nagappan legalized murder, and I fear that the death of Narayansamy must be classed in the same category. I have the warrant of our own Court for stating that deportation such as Narayansamy’s under an administrative order, described by Mr. Laughton, K.C., as “Star Chamber procedure”, is illegal. Narayansamy and his fellows, very properly, as I think every lover of justice and fair play would say, disregard such deportation, attempt to return to the country of their birth or adoption and, in the attempt, are driven from pillar to post. Inconceivable difficulties are placed in their way. Is such treatment necessary? Passive resisters are told that they must not complain if they find their lot to be hard whilst they are defying the laws of the land. Passive resisters appreciate the advice. They have no desire to avoid the ordinary consequences of the breach they deliberately commit of laws which they consider to be repugnant to their conscience. But I make bold to say that the public will never endorse the infliction of what amounts to a sentence of death as in the cases to which I have just drawn attention. I doubt not that the people of South Africa wish to see general rejoicing and goodwill among all the communities residing under the Union, on the approaching visit of a representative of the King, and on the eve of the opening of the first Parliament of the Union. Is the Indian community in any part of South Africa to be expected to share the rejoicings that will take place at the end of the month, and to partake of the goodwill that should permeate all classes?

_I am, etc.,_

M. K. GANDHI

_Rand Daily Mail, 18-10-1910_
155. LETTER TO HERMANN KALLENBACH

Wednesday [October 19, 1910]

MY DEAR LOWER HOUSE,

It is just 6 a.m. and this is the first letter I have taken up. I am at Mr.Omar’s house which you would like immensely. It is clean. It faces the race course. I could not go to Phoenix yesterday as there was a memorial meeting regarding Narayansamy. Slept on the verandah of the house and got up at 5.15 a.m., washed my sleeping suit and shirt there. I am now writing. Passed the whole of the afternoon yesterday seeing the men. Afterwards served notice on Chamney who happens to be here. He has sent the message asking me to see him at 9 a.m. I shall see what happens then.

Read before going to bed Harishchandra about whom I gave you the book from Natesan. If you have not read it yet, I suggest your reading it at once. On the way I read The Minds of Two Judges. It is a powerful pamphlet and alas too true both in its condemnation of the English methods and the Indian. Without the latter being bad, the former could never have secured a footing. Cordes, I observe, has taken a deck passage. He leaves on the 6th November. There is no restraining him. He is a wonderful man. We can only pray for him and help him to go through the ordeal he has set before himself. He will say that we talk and he does it. In taking deck passage he has certainly done it. Have not yet seen any of the Phoenixites.

I hope that the roof was finished or at least commenced yesterday.

With love,

UPPER HOUSE

From the original: Gandhi-Kallenbach Correspondence. Courtesy: National Archives of India

---

1 From the reference to the memorial meeting regarding Narayansamy, who died on October 16, 1910; vide “Extract from Letter to S.A.B.I. Committee”, After 16-10-1910. The Wednesday following fell on October 19.
156. LETTER TO MAGANLAL GANDHI

TOLSTOY FARM,

Asvdi I [October 19, 1910]

CHI. MAGANLAL,

I saw your letter after reaching the Farm. Nowadays I have to go to Johannesburg daily. Please continue to address your letters to the Farm. I have read Chi. Chhaganlal’s letter. We shall know more from his letter tomorrow. Chi. Narandas’s attitude of indifference to worldly pleasures is a good sign. I wish that he receives encouragement. Bombay is not the place for that. But Narandas is entirely in Khusalbhai’s hands. He will get an opportunity for public service if any of you brothers can politely cure Khushalbhai of his infatuation. If, however, he does not get an opportunity to do public service in this life, he will, if he so wishes, get it without effort in the next.

I enclose herewith Doctor [Mehta]’s letter about Chi. Chhaganlal for you to read. Please destroy it after perusal.

Ba wants me to ask you to buy two small locks for the water tank. The suggestion seems to be quite good. Her idea is that he who really wants water may certainly use it, but the tap should not be opened by all and sundry. Moreover, she wants to know whether or not you have put all the things—cots, etc.—in their proper places. If not, please do so. If the Monday meetings are held in that house, it will incidentally get cleaned every week. I think it is better for Veerjee to live in the house formerly occupied by Bihari. It is not good to have to bother about cleaning the big house every day. Please send me at your convenience a list of the books received. Ba is positive that some rice is there in a bag behind the kitchen door. Please look for it there once more. It is not good that it should get more and more late each Friday. Purshottamdas thinks that it is due to slackness on someone’s part. Please try to complete the work in time by doing it all together with more energy and enthusiasm. Now that the days have become longer, it will be better if you can go [to the press] early in

---

1 This letter appears to have been written during Chhaganlal Gandhi’s absence from South Africa in 1910, in which year Asvdi I corresponded to October 19.
2 Gandhiji’s cousin and Narandas’s father
3 The reference is to getting Indian Opinion ready for despatch.
the morning on Fridays.

Do not give up your study of Tamil. What is Chakor digging pits for? Please do not ask him to do anything which you consider unnecessary. Mr. Polak says that Muthoo had been there on Friday. Please send me the passage on tuberculosis which is with Mr. West. I want to show it to a tuberculosis patient.

I have sent a telegram to Anglia Sheth today. I had got the news from Rustomjee Sheth. Please read the article written by someone in The Transvaal Leader about Tolstoy Farm. It has appeared in the issue of today, the 19th. It is not known who the writer is.

Blessings from
MHANANDAS

From the Gujarati original in Gandhiji’s hand: C.W. 4938 Courtesy: Radhabehn Choudhri

157. NARAYANSAAMY

Narayansamy is dead, but even in death he lives. He is no more in the body, but he has left an immortal name behind him. Birth and death are the common lot of all. If we consider the matter deeply, we shall realize that death, whether it comes early or late, should be no cause for grieving or rejoicing. On the contrary, to die in the service of the community or in the pursuit of some other good aim is in reality not to die but to live. Is there any patriotic Indian who will not be prepared to die for the sake of the motherland? Of course, none. So long as we do not have this [spirit] in us, we cannot claim to be patriotic.

Narayansamy suffered much. A voyage on the deck is full of hazards, all the more so if one has insufficient clothing and is handicapped in other ways. Narayansamy undertook such a voyage for the sake of the motherland. He has left the world, facing suffering till the end. We shall count him a true satyagrahi. Terms in which we cannot speak of even the greatest satyagrahi will be quite justified when applied to Narayansamy. He has died a perfect satyagrahi. Even

---

1. On the death of his daughter as “the result of her clothing catching fire from a stove”. The telegram is not available.
a staunch satyagrahi will deserve our praise only when he has proved his worth to the full.

Nagappen achieved immortal fame in his death. And so has Narayansamy. While grieving with the members of his family on account of his death, we shall also congratulate them. All honour unto their mothers for having given birth to Nagappen and Narayansamy.

Though we think thus that Narayansamy died a hallowed death, so far as the Transvaal Government is concerned, it can be charged with legalized murder. If anyone places another person in circumstances which result in his death, the former may be charged with the latter’s murder. This is just what has happened in Narayansamy’s case. He and his companions were taken first, from Durban to Port Elizabeth, thence to Cape Town, from Cape Town again to Durban and so on. There were innumerable difficulties about accommodation, clothing and food. If the Indian community had not provided the other Indians with clothing and food, they too would have been reduced to the same plight. In acting thus, the Transvaal Government has been guilty of extreme harshness and its harshness has resulted in Narayansamy’s death. Hence we charge the Government with murder. Since no legal steps can be taken against it, though it is guilty of murder, we call this legal murder.

Nagappen and Narayansamy have thus left us. The Tamil community is laying the other Indians under an increasingly heavier debt. It is covering itself with greater glory day by day. How will it ever be possible after this to make an adequate return for the services of the Tamil community? Other Indians would do well to take a lesson from it and, copying its example, learn to suffer in silence for the sake of the motherland. The [Indian] community will disgrace itself if it fails in this.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 22-10-1910

158. INDIANS’ FUTURE

We reported last week that Parliament at its next session would pass an Immigration Bill applicable to the whole of South Africa. We have received this news through official sources. Though we may not rely upon it entirely, it is certain that the Indian community needs to be on its guard. Very likely, they will delude the community with some superficially attractive provisions in the Immigration Bill and pass it. It may perhaps contain a provision to the effect that only such Indians as are approved by the Indian residents in South Africa may be permitted to enter as fresh immigrants. If the Indians of the Cape or Natal or the Transvaal walk into this snare, that will be a dishonour to the community and will bring disgrace on the name of Indians. We should repeat it over and over again to ourselves that we must not accept any law which discriminates against Indians as Indians. When it is sought to enact a law applicable to the whole of South Africa, it is but proper for the community to call a meeting of Indians from all parts of South Africa and take whatever steps may be necessary in consultation with them. If there is any undue haste in this matter or if a body of Indians or an Indian leader, prompted by self-interest, gives any undertaking, they will have reason for regret afterwards.

[From Gujarati]
Indian Opinion, 22-10-1910

159. TRADING LICENCES IN THE TRANSVAAL

The Transvaal Government is not likely to leave the Indian traders there in peace, nor are the whites. Municipalities in the Transvaal have been passing resolutions asking for the expulsion of Indian traders from the country after payment of compensation. We have heard of some Indians approving such a move. They are certain that there will be nothing wrong in leaving this country if an adequate amount is paid in excess of the cost [by way of compensation]. This is a short-sighted view. In the first place, we believe that even one-fourth the amount of profit that we hope for will not be offered. They will pass a law which will hardly allow anything over and above the market price [of the stocks]. Indians, in that case, will be ruined. Hardly anyone from among the Indians settled in South Africa earns much after going to India. All of them come back to this country. In these circumstances, to think of accepting some payment and returning to India is obviously senseless. It should also be borne in mind that we shall prove ourselves cowards if we allow the Government to drive us out. We think we have as much right to be in this land as the whites have. From one point of view, we have a better right. The negroes alone are the original inhabitants of this land. We have not seized the land from them by force; we live here with their goodwill. The whites, on the other hand, have occupied the country forcibly and appropriated it to themselves. That, of course, does not prove their right to it. A large number even from among them believe that they will have to fight again to defend their occupation. But we shall say no more about this. One will reap as one sows. All that we wish to point out is that Indians will prove themselves selfish if, for the sake of a little money, they accept the offer of something over and above the cost price of their stocks and leave. If they leave out of fear, they will show themselves to be cowards. We hope it will not please any Indian to earn either of these epithets.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 22-10-1910

160. LETTER TO REGISTRAR OF ASIATICS

DURBAN, October 25, 1910

M. CHAMNEY, ESQ.

Registrar of Asiatics

Durban Club

SIR,

With reference to Mr. Perumal Pillay and 18 other British Indians who are at present being detained at Salisbury Island under order of Court, I have the honour to inform you that all of them claim to have been voluntarily registered in the Transvaal and that 15 of them intend to apply for duplicates of their Registration Certificates.

I interviewed Mr. Harry Smith, the Principal Immigration Restriction Officer, this afternoon, who, I understood, is the officer appointed by you under Section 10 of the Regulations passed under Act of 1908 to receive applications, etc. Mr. Smith informs me that he cannot receive the applications in respect of these men as they have been once deported. The contention of the men is that they have not been deported within the meaning of the Section and that, even if they are, you are bound under the Act of 1908 and the Regulations to receive their applications, and, if they apply in terms of the Act, to grant them.

I beg, therefore, to ask on behalf of my clients whether you are prepared to advise Mr. Smith or any other officer or person to receive their applications for duplicates of their certificates.

I am addressing this letter to you in Durban as the matter is one of great urgency and as, within the time allowed by the Supreme Court, it is my clients’ intention, in the event of your decision being unfavourable, to apply to the Transvaal Provincial Division of the Supreme Court in the matter.

I have the honour, etc.,
M. K. GANDHI

Indian Opinion, 29-10-1910

161. LETTER TO REGISTRAR OF ASIATICS

DURBAN,
October 26, 1910

SIR,

I have the honour to acknowledge your letter of even date regarding the Indians on Salisbury Island.

I am unable to say what the men will do at Volksrust in the event of their reaching there. They have been advised that they have a legal right in terms of Act 36 of 1908 to apply for duplicates of Certificates of Registration and to receive duplicates if their applications are in order. I shall be obliged if you will be good enough to reply whether you are prepared to afford them facility to make their applications in terms of Act 36 of 1908 and the Regulations.¹

I have the honour, etc.,
M. K. GANDHI

Indian Opinion, 29-10-1910

¹ To this Chamney replied in the evening that he had received instructions to receive applications and, if the same were in order, to grant duplicates.
162. DIWALI

We have taken to Western ways and manners to such an extent that we find ourselves unable to look upon the New Year of the Hindus, the Muslims and the Parsis as our New Year. If we were to adopt “New Year” as the caption of this article, it would carry no meaning. When, however, we come to write of the New Year in the [first] issue of January, everyone will understand it to mean the year 1911. There is no convincing reason to justify this state of affairs. If we have not forgotten what we are, we should observe all the three New Years and, if so inclined, the Western New Year as the fourth. When the Muslim year changes, all the Indians should observe it, and so also when the Parsi year or the Hindu year changes. This will betoken our fraternal relations and prove that we have become one nation. On the contrary, what we notice in fact is that we show no particular regard for one another’s New Year. To create among the inhabitants of India the consciousness of their being one nation, no Herculean efforts are necessary. We are of course a single nation and brothers as among ourselves. We should regain that consciousness this very instant if we could only be open-hearted and get rid of the pride that goes with hypocrisy.

Diwali falls on Tuesday next. It is an important festival for the Hindus. Every Hindu has our good wishes on the occasion. But we do not see how they can materialize. Hindus certainly cannot be happy when their neighbours are not. The New Year will prove happy only for the man who has turned the preceding year to good account. Expecting a good crop in winter when the monsoon has failed is like building castles in the air. The divine law is not that we get what we desire, but that we get what we deserve. In other words, our desires will be fulfilled only if they have behind them the force of merit earned by suitable deeds.

And so we wish a prosperous Diwali to every Hindu who has accumulated during the current year the capital of good deeds, who has borne love to every other Indian as to a brother, who has earned an honest livelihood and shared the sufferings of the unhappy, and we pray to God that the New Year may confirm him in his virtuous disposition. And likewise we pray that the Hindu who has, knowingly or unknowingly, failed in his duty and spent his time merely in the pursuit of self-interest, who has borne ill-will and not love to other Indians, may learn to repent and, be converted to better ways, wake up to a sense of duty. We request our readers’ help in working for the fulfilment of this desire of ours.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 29-10-1910

163. INDIANS’ DUTY IN NOVEMBER

Mr. Dawad Mahomed has sent a telegram to General Botha to say that he should make it possible for the agitation to be withdrawn, failing which the Indian community cannot participate in the celebrations on the occasion of the inauguration of the Union Parliament in November. This is quite correct. If the struggle does not end in November, we must observe mourning. Thoughtful Indians realize that we should be in mourning for the death of Narayansamy. If we do not join in their celebrations, do not turn out to watch their shows, if we confine ourselves to our homes at the time of the celebrations and do not put up decorations over our shops, the rulers cannot but be impressed. By doing this, we can show to them that the entire Indian community in South Africa feels sore over the prolongation of the struggle.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 29-10-1910

164. LETTER TO MAGANLAL GANDHI

Tolstoy Farm,

Kartak Shud 2 [November 4, 1910]

CHI. MAGANLAL,

सिंह राम प्रेम विद्युष पूर्न होत जनन्य न भरत को ।
मुनि मन आगम जय विषय सम दम विषय ब्रत आचरत को ॥
दुख दाह दारिदं देम दृष्ट सुझस्मिस अभयारत को ।
कलिकाल तुलसी से सहन वि हवि राम सनुष्क करत ले ॥

This appears to have been written immediately after the Gujarati New Year day (Kartak Shud 1) with special reference to the addressee’s vow of brahmacharya; vide “Letter to Maganlal Gandhi”, 27-1-1910
This is the last verse in the Ayodhyakanda¹. Please ponder over it. It is still ringing in my ears. In these hard times bhakti² has acquired the highest place. But even for the practice of that bhakti we needs must have self-discipline. That discipline is at the root of our education. I am realizing every moment that without it all our intelligence is of no avail. What other blessing shall I wish for you?

It is only when I think of it specifically that I feel some sorrow over the death of Chi. Anandlal’s son. Otherwise my feelings are dead.

Blessings from
MOHANDAS

From the Gujarati original in Gandhiji’s hand: C.W. 4939 Courtesy: Radhabehn Choudhri

165. PROPOSED NEW IMMIGRATION BILL

The Transvaal Leader of the 31st ultimo published the following telegram from its Cape Town correspondent:

I learn that the Colonial Secretary will early in the session bring in a Bill which, in addition to modifying the existing Transvaal conditions, will, in a considerable degree, aim at the consolidation of the immigration laws of the Provinces of the Union.

So far as the Transvaal is concerned, I understand it is the intention to make some fairly important concessions to British Indians, which, without weakening the attitude of South Africa, will make the law more workable and sensible than the regulations now are. Among these concessions will be the admittance of a limited number of specially qualified Indians per annum (the number suggested in the past was six per year, but it may be made even greater than this). This and other modifications are among those which have been pointed to in the past by the Leader as necessary to make the immigration restrictions more satisfactory to all concerned in respect of the consolidation of immigration laws.

This naturally does not imply uniformity of measures in all the Colonies, the position of Natal being a specially difficult problem. A great deal of anxiety is felt in

¹ The second book of the Ramayana by Tulsidas
² Devotion
Natal about the restrictions which will be imposed there, as the existence of the sugar industry is stated by the majority of representatives from that Province to depend on the ability of planters to rely on a continuous supply of indentured Indian labour. The suggestion has been made from some quarters in Natal that this form of labour should be allowed within an area bounded by a strictly limited distance from the coast, which will include the sugar and other plantations. What will actually be proposed by the Government will probably not become known till General Smuts brings in his Bill, but it will occur to everyone that, considering the difficulties the country was plunged into as the result of former immigration legislation, the details of the new measure should be laid before both members of Parliament and the public in time for them to consider it very carefully.

We do not know whether The Transvaal Leader correspondent has given a correct forecast. If he has and if the provision for the new entrants is made on the lines suggested by Lord Ampthill and if no statutory colour bar is created, passive resistance struggle will end, assuming of course that Act 2 of 1907 will be repealed at the same time.

But Indians all over South Africa are nervous regarding the proposed consolidation of the Immigration Laws of the other provinces. Indians of the Cape and Natal cannot accept the Transvaal Registration Act, as registration is totally unnecessary for provinces with a sea border. Nor can they accept the unnecessarily rigorous educational test which will be acceptable for the Transvaal under the peculiar conditions prevailing there. British Indians have accepted the policy of restriction throughout South Africa but they cannot be expected to become party to making legislation for the Cape and Natal more severe than it already is. Indeed, as recent judgments of the Supreme Court at the Cape and Natal have shown, it is severe enough in all conscience.

_Indian Opinion, 5-11-1910_

166. CONDITIONS OF CAPE INDIANS UNSATISFACTORY

This is what an Indian writes to us in English from Karreedouw. He says that no Indian is permitted to enter Kaffir districts such as the Transkei, etc., which are under the jurisdiction of the Cape. Only white traders are allowed to go there. These traders rob the Kaffirs. An Indian happened to go to the Transkei as a waiter. He was turned out by the magistrate like a dog. He was asked to produce a permit, which he did not have. He did not even know what a permit was, for he was under the impression that an Indian could move about anywhere in the Cape. The correspondent points out that the Transvaal agitation is acting as something of a check; otherwise conditions in the Cape would have deteriorated hopelessly.

The Cape Indians should reflect over this letter. It is necessary that the Association at the Cape write to the Government in this matter, asking it to state on what ground entry into Kaffir districts is prohibited.

The matter should not be left there. It will be necessary to watch developments in the Union Parliament and to act with great caution. Mr. Ritch is in the Cape, so that his help will be available to Indians. It should be utilized and necessary steps taken.

We have heard that they want to have a registration law applicable to the whole of South Africa and to limit the total number of Indians admitted into South Africa to six a year. We do not think the Cape and Natal will ever accept this.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 5-11-1910

167. WHO IS A SATYAGRAHI?

Mr. Vallibhai Peerbhai, who is always ready with his hospitality for satyagrahis, writes to say that Mr. Medh received three letters on the very day on which he was arrested. On reading them, he went to Mr. Mulla’s shop in Volksrust and performed ablutions and then presented himself for arrest. It appears that Mr. Medh received news of his sister’s death, the sister having left three children behind her. “Had I been by Mr. Medh’s side”, [says Mr. Vallibhai] “when he read those letters I would not have allowed him to go. But no matter, joy and sorrow are the same to a satyagrahi.” It does credit to Mr. Valli to say that if he had known of it, he would have stopped Mr. Medh. By going to gaol as a matter of duty without for a moment thinking of staying out because of the news of his sister’s death, Mr. Medh has offered additional proof of his being a true satyagrahi. He is a staunch and seasoned satyagrahi. The hardships of gaol life hold no terrors for him. He deserves all the congratulations we can offer him. Mr. Surendrarai Medh has covered the community with glory.
We have said earlier that he alone is a satyagrahi who gives up everything for the sake of truth—forgoes wealth and property, allows his land to be auctioned, parts from his relatives, from his parents, his children, his wife, and sacrifices dear life itself. He who thus loses for the sake of truth shall gain. By disobeying his father’s order for the sake of truth, Prahlad not only remained staunch in satyagraha but also did his duty as a son. Making himself a satyagrahi, he won his own and his father’s deliverance from this earthly life. No one lacking the determined spirit of Prahlad can ever hold on to satyagraha to the end.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 5-11-1910

168. PRAGJI DESAI’S RESOLVE

Mr. Pragji’s writes to say that this time the gaol officials behaved with greater harshness. “But the harsher they grow, the more determined I become.” Of late, they have stopped ghee altogether for prisoners serving sentences of less than three months. Hence, all of them decided to go without those meals at which ghee used to be served. Mr. Pragji alone remained steadfast in this decision till the end and continued to refuse the meals. He took no notice of the harm which this did to his health. We congratulate Mr. Pragji on this unswerving spirit of his. Mr. Pragji adds that Mr. Shelat was punished twice for refusing to carry slop-pails. At present, he is in charge of cooking.

Mr. Pragji was much grieved to hear, on his release, of his sister’s death; but he has declared his determination not to keep himself out of the fight. He writes: “So long as our struggle has not come to an end, a satyagrahi can attend to no other work.”

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 5-11-1910

---

1 Pragji Khandubhai Desai, a passive resister; often contributed to Indian Opinion in Gujarati
169. MAHARAJA OF BIKANER

News has been received that. His Highness the Maharaja of Bikaner, like the Mysore Maharaja, has offered help to the satyagraha campaign. The implications of this help are of the utmost value to us. Everyone in India, from the highest to the lowest, is beginning to see how we are being humiliated in the Transvaal. This may hasten the end of the struggle. But it also increases the responsibility of South African Indians. They should wake up en masse, appreciating the real value of the Transvaal campaign. It involves not only their honour but also their interests.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 5-11-1910

170. TELEGRAM TO CHIEF IMMIGRATION OFFICER

[DURBAN, Before November 6, 1910]

. . Mr. Gandhi had telegraphed to the Immigration Officer at Pretoria saying he would be accompanied by Mrs. Sodha and her children.¹

Indian Opinion, 12-11-1910

171. TELEGRAM TO CHIEF IMMIGRATION OFFICER

[VOLKRUST[?], November 7, 1910]²

. . . Mr. Gandhi had addressed a telegram to the Immigration Officer saying that he had no desire to further complicate a situation that was already sufficiently complicated, that Mrs. Sodha did not seek the right of permanent residence in the Transvaal, that she would be looked after at Tolstoy Farm and that she would retire on the close of the struggle.³

Indian Opinion, 12-11-1910

¹ Vide “Letter to the Press”, 11-11-1910
² This telegram was despatched immediately after Mrs. Sodha was charged at Volksrust on November 7; vide “Letter to the Press”, 14-11-1910
³ In reply, the Chief Immigration Officer refused permission for Mrs. Sodha to enter the Transvaal, saying she would be treated as a prohibited immigrant unless she returned to Natal.
172. LETTER TO MAGANLAL GANDHI

[After November 7, 1910]

CHI. MAGANLAL,

There is only one thing uppermost in my mind and that is to introduce the common kitchen. You are not to do it forcibly. If you go on pleading with Santok and Ani gradually, they will be agreeable; and if it does not come about immediately, I hope it will have done so before my next visit. During my recent visit there, you slept in the same room with me and away from your wife. I wish you make this a regular routine. Let Santok and Ani sleep together [i.e., in the same room]. It is as well if they begin to sleep together before dining together. I do not know about the danger of snakes there, but I think the practice of sleeping on a mattress [on the floor] is on the whole good.

I have imposed a great burden on you. I, however, see that you are quite able to bear it. It won’t be at all unbearable if you do your work without worrying.

Blessings from

MOHANDAS

From the Gujarati original in Gandhiji’s hand: C.W.4940 Courtesy: Radhabehn Choudhri

173. TELEGRAM TO MINISTER OF INTERIOR

[JOHANNESBURG, November 8, 1910]

R. M. SODHA, UNREGISTERED RESIDENT TRANSVAAL, IN GAOL AS PASSIVE RESISTER, AFTER DUE NOTICE IMMIGRATION OFFICER, MRS. SODHA, WITH BABY EIGHTEEN MONTHS, ANOTHER THREE YEARS AND CHILD TWELVE

1 From the reference to Mrs. Ani Desai in paragraph 1, this letter appears to have been written after her husband, Purshottamdas Desai, was sentenced to six weeks’ imprisonment on November 7, 1910.

2 This telegram, sent by the British Indian Association, was presumably drafted by Gandhiji; vide “Letter to the Press”, 14-11-1910
YEARS, CROSSED BORDER FROM NATAL ON WAY TO TOLSTOY FARM. THEY WERE STOPPED AT VOLKSRUST. MRS. SODHA CHARGED AS PROHIBITED IMMIGRANT, CASE REMANDED. HUSBAND REDUCED POVERTY AND BROKE UP NATAL HOME. MRS. SODHA WILL NOT STAY PERMANENTLY BUT ONLY PENDING CONTINUOUS IMPRISONMENT HER HUSBAND. ASSOCIATION HAS NO DESIRE FURTHER COMPLICATE ALREADY COMPLICATED SITUATION. HITHERTO INDIAN WOMEN HAVE BEEN LEFT UNMOLESTED. ASSOCIATION TRUSTS PROSECUTION WILL BE WITHDRAWN.¹

Indian Opinion, 19-11-1910

174. SPEECH AT CHINESE FUNCTION²

[November 9, 1910]

Mr. Gandhi said that without the assistance of Mr. Ritch and Mr. Polak the Indian community would have found it impossible to carry the struggle as far as it had done. He added that the Government was not content with fighting the Asiatic males, but had carried the attack to the children, and now even to the women. He urged, therefore, that they should show themselves all the more determined to pursue the struggle.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 19-11-1910

175. TELEGRAM TO MINISTER OF INTERIOR³

[JOHANNESBURG,]

November 10, 1910

REFERRING WIRE⁴ MRS. SODHA, WILL MINISTER PLEASE GRANT TEMPORARY PERMIT UNDER IMMIGRATION ACT AND WITHDRAW PROSECUTION? ASSOCIATION SINCERELY ANXIOUS

¹ The Minister replied on 9-11-1910: “Yours yesterday. As neither Sodha nor his family are entitled to enter Transvaal, the Minister regrets that he cannot interfere with the provisions of the Law, which forbid the entry of prohibited immigrants.”

² In Johannesburg, in honour of Messrs Ritch and Polak

³ This telegram, sent by the British Indian Association, was presumably drafted by Gandhiji; vide “Letter to the Press”, 14-11-1910

⁴ Vide “Telegram to Minister of Interior”, 8-11-1910.
AVOID IMPORTING WOMEN STRUGGLE.¹

Indian Opinion, 19-11-1910

176. LETTER TO MAGANLAL GANDHI

TOLSTOY FARM,

Kartak Shud 9 [November 11, 1910]²

CHI. MAGANLAL,

Today I saw the letter you mentioned.

When Narandas wrote to me to send my letters to him through you, I did not find fault with his action as a piece of cowardice. I had no such idea in my mind at all. In reply to his question as to what he should do, I wrote³ to him saying that first he should attain fearlessness as described in अभ्यास (fearlessness, purity of heart,) etc. And I wrote it with the idea that he should first acquire that virtue if he wanted to engage himself in any public activity. True public service can be rendered only if fearlessness can be achieved as regards [the loss of] prestige, money, caste, wife, family and even life. Then only will मोक्ष (liberation), the ultimate end of life, be attained.

I have no time to write a separate letter to Narandas. Please therefore send this on to him. I shall write about the press when I find time.

Please let me know how Manilal is getting on.

Blessings from

MOHANDAS

From the Gujarati original in Gandhiji’s hand: C.W. 4941 Courtesy: Radhabehn Choudhri

¹ The Minister in his telegram of November 12 replied: “Reference your telegram 10th, immigration Officer at Volksrust was instructed to give Mrs. Sodha option of returning to Natal instead of having steps taken against her under Immigration Act. Minister regrets he cannot sanction temporary permit.”

² This letter appears to have been written subsequent to “Letter to Narandas Gandhi”, 29-3-1910, in which Gandhiji dealt with the subject of अभ्यास (fearlessness), discussed here; in 1910, Kartak Shud 9 corresponded to November 11.

³ Vide “Letter to Narandas Gandhi”, 29-3-1910
SIR,

Since the well-known Poonia case, the Indian community had come to understand that Indian women crossing the border would not be interfered with, and I know of several cases in which they were permitted to cross the border unchallenged. But after the interference with Mrs. Gandhi, over a month ago, when she was travelling alone, I could see that the spell was broken. Whenever, therefore, wives or other female relatives of passive resisters wanted to enter the Province from Natal, I took the precaution of informing the Chief Immigration Officer at Pretoria, who is also the Registrar of Asiatics, of the movements of these families, informing him also of their exact relationship to the respective passive resisters, and until very recently there has been no actual difficulty. I returned from Natal yesterday week in the company of Mrs. Sodha, the wife of a passive resister who is at present serving imprisonment at Diepkloof for the offence of asserting his right of entry as a free-born British subject possessing the qualifications required by the Immigration Law of this Province, as apart from the Asiatic Act.

Before leaving Natal I had taken the usual precaution of telegraphing to the Immigration Officer that I was crossing the border with Mrs. Sodha. On reaching Volksrust I learnt that the Police had received instructions to stop Mrs. Sodha. She and I, together with other passive resisters who were in my company, got down from the train. Mrs. Sodha has a baby in arms, another under three years and a boy twelve years of age. I took her and her children to the Charge Office where I was asked to produce Mrs. Sodha the following morning, and on my undertaking to do so I was permitted to take her away. Needless to say, Mrs. Sodha had never in her life seen a Charge Office or been addressed by a constable.

An Indian store-keeper kindly provided shelter and food for

---

1 This was published in Indian Opinion, 19-11-1910, as a letter addressed to the South African Press under the title “Mrs. Sodha’s Case”.

2 Vide “Telegram to Chief Immigration Officer”, before 6-11-1910
her. and her children. The next day she was charged as a prohibited immigrant and the case was remanded to the 21st instant, she being released on her own recognizance. Thinking that Mrs. Sodha’s arrest might have been due to a misunderstanding, I telegraphed¹ again to the Chief Immigration Officer giving him the information about Mrs. Sodha’s children and telling him that she was proceeding to Tolstoy Farm, that she would retire from the Transvaal at the end of the struggle and that she was being taken to the above farm only pending her husband’s continuous incarceration. I received at Volksrust a reply to the effect that Mrs. Sodha would be tried as a prohibited immigrant unless she immediately returned to Natal. She and I, however, continued our journey as Mrs. Sodha’s case was already adjourned. In order to avoid any further complications, Mr. Cachalia, the Chairman of the British Indian Association, telegraphed² to the Minister of the Interior, recounting the circumstances of the arrest and requesting that the prosecution might be withdrawn. The Minister replied in the negative, stating that her husband was a prohibited immigrant. As the British Indian Association was desirous of avoiding importing women into the controversy, it again approached³ the Minister and requested that a temporary permit should be issued to Mrs. Sodha. He, however, declined to do so.

Mrs. Sodha has entered the Transvaal temporarily as the Sodha family has been reduced to poverty and their home broken up owing to Mr. Sodha’s having been in prison almost continuously for the last eighteen months and as passive resister families are being supported at Tolstoy Farm out of public funds.

I do not propose to go into the legal merits of this case which is sub judice. Possibly Mrs. Sodha has committed a technical legal offence. If so, all the Indian women, who were allowed to enter the country and to whom I have made reference, have also committed an offence, in so far as the Government are concerned, for the latter have undoubtedly contended that all Indians who have ever been deported under the Registration Act are prohibited immigrants. The Government, however, seem to have distinguished between Mr. Sodha, who is an unregistered pre-war resident of the Transvaal, and other passive resisters who are registered residents and whose wives and families, as stated above, have entered the province unmolested.

¹ Vide “Telegram to Chief Immigration Officer”, 7-11-1910
² Vide “Telegram to Minister of Interior”, 8-11-1910
³ Vide “Telegram to Minister of Interior”, 10-11-1910

As the wife of a passive resister Mrs. Sodha has now no alternative but to face imprisonment and deportation if found technically guilty. But why this sudden persecution, for I cannot call it a prosecution, of Indian women? The Government are at war with Indian males. They are now attempting to hound out of the Province a certain class of Indian boys born of registered parents. The community was, however, unprepared for an unchivalrous attack on its womanhood. Mrs. Sodha is not a competitor in trade. Her character is admitted above reproach. A meeker woman it will be, perhaps, difficult to find throughout South Africa. She has committed no crime under the common law of the country. Every means that could be adopted was taken to placate the authorities, whose only aim now seems to be to punish Indian women, as the punishment hitherto inflicted on their husbands appears to have failed in its purpose. I cannot foresee the extent of the terrible effect that must be produced on the minds of the Indians throughout South Africa and of the people of India when the news of this war on women is spread abroad. With this aspect of the question the Minister of the Interior is, apparently, little concerned; but I cannot conceive that the high-handed, wantonly cruel and unnecessary proceedings against Mrs. Sodha will meet with the approval of the people of South Africa. Here is a question for the Loyal Women’s Guild and other similar organisations to consider. Whatever may be their views on Asiatic immigration or on the question of general passive resistance, will not the Christian men and women of this Union rise in unanimous protest against this latest parody of administration on the part of the Government?

I trust that Mrs. Sodha’s act will not be construed to be one of defiance. She is as innocent of the curious laws of this country as a new-born babe. If anyone is guilty it is the writer, under whose advice and by whose assistance the lady has entered this part of the Union. In any case I wish to recall a graceful act of administration under Crown Colony Government. In 1906, Dr. Abdurahman of Cape Town entered the Transvaal without a permit. Lord Selborne came to know of this and without questioning the legality of Dr. Abdurahman’s action he instructed the then Chief Secretary for Permits, Captain Hamilton-Fowle, to send him a permit. The mighty and responsible Union Government lacks both the grace and chivalry to refrain from harassing an inoffensive Indian woman.

158

THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI

I am, etc.,
M. K. GANDHI

The Transvaal Leader, 15-11-1910

178. FRAGMENT OF LETTER TO CHHAGANLAL GANDHI

[About November 15, 1910]

Make the slices and add two ounces of pine kernel. Squeeze a lime in it and add two ounces of olive oil. Even tomatoes can be used. This should be eaten with a Wallace roll. It is a very beneficial and wholesome diet. Medh knows all these things. You can take olive oil even up to four ounces. There is no harm. In the Indian diet, it is best to take puri and kheer.

There is no need to go to India to fetch Kashi. She can come on her own with an escort. I too can see that she cannot be treated properly there. If you find it inconvenient to stay there because of your health, you may come here. Kashi can be called here right now and she can live here even in your absence. I wish you to regain your equanimity.

Blessings from

MOHANDAS

From the Gujarati original: C.W. 5073. Courtesy: Chhaganlal Gandhi

179. FRAGMENT OF LETTER TO CHHAGANLAL GANDHI

[About November 15, 1910]

I can see that . . . if you do not find the place suited to your health you had better come here. Kashi could be called here even 1 Part of this letter has appeared in “Fragment of Letter to Chhaganlal Gandhi”, 15-11-1910.

2 Address’s wife
3 The addressee who was in England, had been suffering from tuberculosis.
4 From the reference to Kashi, this letter appears to have been written about the same period as the following item.
5 Wife of Chhaganlal Gandhi, who was in India at the time now and she could stay here even in your absence. I only wish you to be at ease.

Blessings from

MOHANDAS

From a copy of the Gujarati original in Gandhiji’s hand: C.W. 5073 Courtesy:
Chhaganlal Gandhi

180. LETTER TO MAGANLAL GANDHI

TOLSTOY FARM,

Kartak Shud 13 [November 15, 1910]¹

CHI. MAGANLAL,

India has come to a very bad pass. I have given much thought to the plague and I think there is nothing surprising in its occurrence. It may be eradicated from all other countries, but not from India. The plague does not leave India because we have made this sacred land profane, either by a misreading of religion or by giving up religion altogether. People have learnt to run hither and thither, but they do not change any of their tendencies. They go on practising irreligion and do not care to know even the rules of sanitation, etc. It is only the magic remedies known to them that they are prepared to adopt. No one bothers, while running away, about what happens to the poor who are left behind. How can we prosper in these circumstances? Our own family, too, is open to this charge. What wonder then if we receive news of fever, etc., from India?

In these circumstances, I can well understand the hesitation and the sense of discourtesy you feel in sending for Kashi here. However, this idea is worth considering. Chhaganlal, having taken away Kashi with him, is now penitent and is trying to excuse himself by saying that such was the will of God. We can talk of God’s will only after first admitting our mistake. It is sheer ignorance to speak of His will otherwise. And what, after all, is God’s will?

You need not have any hesitation in sending for Kashi here, for the others will not come without her. And even if they wanted to, there

¹ This letter appears to have been written during Chhaganlal Gandhi’s absence from South Africa in 1910, in which year Kartak Shud 13 corresponded to
November 15.

160 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
would be difficulties in their way. You should try to find out if any real help can be had from Kashi.

I have a constant feeling that you alone and none else will be able to master Tamil; hence keep at it under any circumstances.

The number of children that are come together here is rather large, some of them are without their mothers. It is a difficult experiment and somewhat risky too. I am not sure what will happen to Rama' and Deva'.

I hope you will have some relief now that Thaker has joined duty. Let him also read Tolstoy’s book.

Blessings from
MOHANDAS

From the Gujarati original in Gandhiji’s hand: C.W. 4942 Courtesy: Radhabehn Choudhri

181. LETTER TO MAGANLAL GANDHI

TOLSTOY FARM,
[After November 16, 1910]¹

CHI. MAGANLAL,

The enclosed notation is for Bande mataram¹. You may set the song accordingly if you can.

To write about the Swami on the basis of what has appeared in the [Natal] Advertiser, is like kicking a dead animal. The proper time for writing was when his letter was published in the [Natal] Witness. But that occasion has fortunately passed. We should certainly write if by doing so we could do good either to him or to anyone else. But I do not see any occasion for it now; it came, but slipped away. That man will ruin himself with his own hand, if only people are patient. His very ways and doings seem crooked. And why did we not write against the Moulvi? There are many such examples. Please talk patiently with those who find fault with you. Keep pursuing Ismail

¹ Ramdas
² Devdas
³ This letter, it appears from the reference to Shelat, was written after his release from jail on November 16, 1910.
⁴ Composed by Bankimchandra Chattopadhyaya and adopted as the national anthem during India’s struggle for freedom
Gora and, if even then, he does not pay, please let me know. I shall write to him and, if he does not pay even after that, his advertisement must be discontinued. I shall write to him after I hear from you. We know that he is very unmethodical and far from dependable.

I send herewith an invaluable book, The Relation of the Sexes. To one who is conversant with the Hindu scriptures not a single idea mentioned in it is new. Please read it immediately and explain it to Manilal. Then give it to Mr. West.

It seems, from what Shelat says, that this time Harilal faced gaol life exceedingly well. It was he who first started fasting; he was joined by others later. [Supply of] ghee was secured and he was transferred to another gaol. Shelat is loud in his praises and so is Pragji Desai. He (Harilal) seems to have surpassed me. This is as it should be.

Coomaraswami’s book is among Mr. Polak’s books that are lying at Rustomjee Sheth’s. Please read it when you find the time. It is worth reading. What the author has written about music and the harmonium seems to be right. The other things, too, are worth perusal.

Purshottamdas also joined the strike. It was nice that he got into a tussle during his very first imprisonment.

Blessings from

MHANANDAS

From the Gujarati original in Gandhiji’s hand: C.W. 4943 Courtesy: Radhabehn Choudhri

---

182. FRAGMENT OF LETTER TO MAGANLAL GANDHI

TOLSTOY FARM,

[After November 16, 1910]¹

... is for the library. You may show it to Mr. West. Please copy

---

¹ By Leo Tolstoy
² Dr. Anand K. Coomaraswami (1877-1947); an eminent Indologist and art critic; historian of Indian Art; author of several books on Indian nationalism, education, Hinduism, Buddhism, etc. The book referred to here seems to be his Essays in National Idealism.
³ The first two pages and what follows page 4 are missing. It is dear from the contents that the letter was addressed to Maganlal Gandhi at Phoenix.
⁴ This letter, it appears from the reference to Tolstoy’s book, was written after the preceding item.
out the poem on prisoners printed on the first page and see to it that it is published in Indian Opinion when space permits. The other one is a pamphlet on civilization. Please go through it and ask Mr. West to takesomething from it, too. It is from Gulliver’s Travels. Chhaganlal has sent it. I sent you yesterday Tolstoy’s book on the relation of the sexes.

The example you cite of Virjee Mehta as regards cholera is quite apt. It cannot be said definitely that such diseases will never occur where external cleanliness is maintained. Only this we know: that such an epidemic occurs less frequently and with less virulence where personal cleanliness as well as public sanitation is well looked after. This, however, is certain: neither cholera nor any other epidemic will occur where there is complete purity of mind. Even with tremendous effort rarely does one attain that purity. To attain that one should . . .

From the Gujarati original in Gandhiji’s hand: C.W. 4944 Courtesy: Radhabehn Choudhri

183. JOHANNESBURG

[Before November 17, 1910]

MRS. RAMBHBABI SODHA

This case will probably be heard on the 22nd. Mr. Sodha has been summoned to give evidence in the case. In order to forestall the charge that Mrs. Sodha had entered the Colony with the intention of defyng the law and to leave General Smuts with no argument whatever, Mr. Cachalia sent a telegram¹ to inform him that she would leave the Colony when the struggle was over. In reply, it was stated that being the wife of a prohibited immigrant, she was not entitled to enter. Mr. Cachalia thereupon sent another telegram² to say that being anxious to avoid bringing women into the struggle, they were even prepared to take out a temporary permit for her under the immigration law. To this, too, General Smuts has given a negative reply. Rambhabai has made up her mind to go to gaol and a number of Tamil women have come forward to follow her. It remains to be seen what will happen now. Mr. Gandhi has addressed a letter to the Press regarding this.

¹ Vide “Telegram to Minister of Interior”, 8-11-1910
² Vide “Telegram to Minister of Interior”, 10-11-1910

MOVE FOR SETTLEMENT

There are persistent rumours that a settlement is imminent. On Monday The Star had a lengthy article, which too said that the time was ripe for a settlement. There is little possibility of Indian leaders being consulted in the matter. It appears, therefore, that whatever happens will happen as a result of direct negotiations with the Imperial Government.

WHAT WILL SETTLEMENT BE LIKE?

It is necessary to give some thought to this question. It appears the demand of the Indians here will be conceded. In other words, Indians and whites will have the same rights of entry so far as the law is concerned, that is, both will have to pass a test in a European language in order to qualify for entry. At the same time, the Governor-General will be given the discretion to fix the maximum number of persons to be admitted from each community, irrespective of the number of persons passing the education test. The obnoxious Act of 1907 will be repealed. This much, if it comes about, will be enough to save the Indians’ pledge and uphold their honour.

This is not the end of the matter. There appears to be a snag in it. It seems the Government wants to bring the position in the Cape and Natal in line with that in the Transvaal, that is, to make the education test in Natal and the Cape very stiff and to provide for the registration of all Indians. I am of the view that the Indians in Natal and the Cape should not acquiesce in either of these two things. There should be no question of introducing registration in Natal and the Cape similar to that in the Transvaal—for there can be no justification for it in either province—and to make the education test stiffer would obviously be wrong.

WHAT ABOUT CHILDREN?

The Transvaal needs to be watchful about the new threat to the position of children there. The matter has a bearing on satyagraha but the problem of children is such that if no justice is done, satyagraha can be and must be offered.

There are, thus, difficulties in the way of a settlement. The

---

1 Vide “Letter to the Press”, 14-11-1910
community’s pledge may be fulfilled, but we may have to face losses in other ways. It is necessary to take note of this from the first.

MEASURES AGAINST THIS

Some effective measures against this are possible. In the first place, Indians in the Cape, Natal and the Transvaal should present a united front. Secondly, the leaders in the different provinces must not in their haste take steps independently of one another. Thirdly, meetings should be held in every town to pass resolutions and these should be forwarded to the Government. A petition should be addressed to Parliament as also to the Imperial Government and the Indian Government. If nothing comes out of all this, the fourth step is resort to satyagraha.

POLAK’S LETTER

Mr. Polak has addressed a letter to the Press which is worth reading.

HOW TO STOP IMMIGRATION

The Duke of Marlborough is a prominent English nobleman. He has suggested in the course of a speech in England that for the purpose of restricting immigration into the Colonies, it will be more appropriate to inquire about the character of the men concerned than about their financial position. He seems to be opposed to any discrimination on the basis of race or colour.

CHHOTABHAI CASE

The judges have at long last given their decision in this case. There were three judges, and each one of them has expressed his own opinion. Two of them having given a decision against Mr. Chhotabhai, the appeal has been dismissed. Mr. Justice Mason expressed himself in favour of Mr. Chhotabhai. The latter has filed an appeal against this decision, so that his son cannot [yet] be deported. This appeal will be heard in the Supreme Court of South Africa. The bench will consist of five judges, and three of these will probably be Sir Henry de Villiers, Sir James Ross-Innes and Mr. Justice Solomon. Perhaps Mr. Chhotabhai will win the appeal. The divergence of views among the judges leads one to believe that the higher court may decide in favour of Mr. Chhotabhai.

JUDGE PRESIDENT

[He] thinks that Chhotabhai’s son is not protected under Act
No. 36 and that even if the Act of 1907 had conferred any right on him, it stands cancelled under Act No. 36. He is of the view that the Acts cannot run concurrently.

JUSTICE BRISTOWE

[He] thinks that there was some chance of his being eligible [for entry] under the Act of 1907, but that under the Act of 1908 that chance disappeared. He also believes that both the Acts are bad. It is difficult to interpret them. The expulsion of children is a manifest injustice; such a law [he says] should never have been enacted. Though he has given his decision, he is not quite sure whether it is correct. It is a decision which he has given with some regret.

JUSTICE MASON

Mr. Justice Mason believes that under the Act of 1907, the Registrar has the discretion to issue a certificate to Chhotabhai’s son. His rights are not protected in the Act of 1908 but the relevant provisions of the Act of 1907 do not stand repealed [by the Act of 1908]. The boy’s case, therefore, should be reconsidered by the Registrar. The judge has also stated that one feels baffled in interpreting the two Acts, and that the position that such children can be deported on their reaching the age of 16 is an intolerable one.

SETTLEMENT IN SIGHT?

Referring to Mr. Polak’s speech in India, General Smuts had told Lord Crewe that Mr. Polak had made gross mis-statements of facts. Mr. Polak therefore asked General Smuts to provide him with specific instances of such mis-statements. The latter has now sent a reply. He says that he could do so, but no useful purpose would be served by entering into correspondence on the subject. He does not want [he says] to add to the existing bitterness between the Asiatics and the Government, and believes that there will be a settlement quite soon.

A telegram has appeared in the newspapers here which lends support to this. The report states that Sir Francis Hopwood has had consultations with the Union Government and that everything will be

---

1 In his letter of October 24, 1910, reproduced along with Smuts’ reply dated 12-11-1910 in Indian Opinion, 19-11-1910.
2 The reference is to a Reuter report dated 14-11-1910, reproduced in Indian Opinion, 19-11-1910.
settled quite soon. The Act of 1907 will be repealed and there will be an immigration law based on education. Discrimination on the basis of colour and race will disappear.

[From Gujarati]

_Indian Opinion, 19-11-1910_

184. LETTER TO MEMBERS OF ASIATIC CONFERENCE

_JOHANNESBURG_,

[Before November 18, 1910]

DEAR SIR,

I take the liberty of addressing you as one of the members of the Asiatic Conference that took place in August, 1908, and at which you were present.

You may have noticed from the papers that the Asiatic Department have interpreted the Asiatic Act of 1908, which was partly a result of that Conference, that Asiatic minors, sons of registered Asians, not born in the Transvaal or resident in the Province at the commencement of the Act, are liable of necessity on reaching the age of 16 years to expulsion, notwithstanding their willingness to apply for registration under the Act, and notwithstanding the fact that the names of these minors appear on the registration certificates of the fathers.

An actual case has arisen in respect of the son of Mr. A. E. Chhotabhai, a prominent Indian merchant of Krugersdorp. The boy, whose name is inscribed upon his father’s registration certificate, on attaining the age of 16 years, applied for registration under the Act; he entered the Colony as a minor with his father, and with the knowledge and consent of the authorities, as he had a legal right to do under the Immigrants’ Restriction Act. His application was rejected by the Registrar. He appealed to the Magistrate, who upheld the Registrar’s decision, and ordered his immediate removal from the Province, which was suspended, pending proceedings in the Supreme Court. The matter went before Mr. Justice Wessels in Chambers, who characterized the action of the Government as “inhuman” and said

---

1 This, along with the following item, was published in _The Star_, 19-11-1910, under the title, “The Chhotabhai Case”.
“that when known it would create a howl throughout the civilized world”, but the learned judge decided that the Act did not provide for the registration of such boys, and he therefore reluctantly dismissed the application. The motion went in appeal before the full bench, which by a majority upheld Mr. Justice Wessels’ decision. Notice of further appeal to the Appellate Court has therefore been lodged; the matter is accordingly still sub judice.

But I wish, however, to draw your attention to the following remarkable results of the proceedings. The judges have decided that the Act of 1907 is virtually repealed by the later Act, and that whilst Asiatic minors, in the position of Mr. Chhotabhai’s son, might be protected under the Act of 1907, that protection has been withdrawn by the Act of 1908. Mr. Justice Mason, who delivered a dissentient judgment in favour of the applicant, has also held that the boy cannot be protected under the Act of 1908, but that provisions regarding minors under the Act of 1907 are not repealed. Besides this, Mr. Justice Mason and Mr. Justice Bristowe have condemned the Government’s action, as also the Acts themselves, in somewhat scathing terms.

I have no doubt you will recollect the very lively discussion that took place between several members of the Conference and Mr. Quinn and myself, regarding the proposed repeal of Act 2 of 1907, but General Smuts declined to consider the question of repeal. You will recollect too the discussion that took place with reference to minors, who were to be protected, no matter where born, by their names being inscribed upon their father’s registration certificate. There never was a question of giving up any substantial rights already possessed under Act 2 of 1907.

I may be permitted further to add that: (1) General Smuts, at the time of introducing the new measure into the Assembly, never stated that it was calculated to deprive any class of minors of the right of residence in the Colony; (2) Mr. de Villiers as Attorney-General, in his minute to the Governor, stated that, among others, the Asiatic demand regarding the registration of minors was conceded, and that both the Acts were to run concurrently; (3) in no part of the British Dominions are the children of lawfully resident Asiatics torn from parents at any age, much less on reaching the tender age of 16 years. I venture to submit that you, as a member of the Conference, are

1 Vide the preceding item.
I am, etc.,
M. K. GANDHI

The Star, 19-11-1910

185. LETTER TO “THE STAR”

JOHANNESBURG,

November 18 [1910]

SIR,

I beg to request that you will be so good as to publish the following letter which I have addressed to those gentlemen who were members of the Asiatic Conference, that was held in August, 1908.

I am, etc.,
M. K. GANDHI

The Star, 19-11-1910

1 Replies to this were received by Gandhiji from Albert Cartwright, Drummond Chaplin, Opposition M. P. in the South African Union Parliament, and others, who agreed that if the names of the minors “had previously been inscribed on their father’s certificate”, their rights were automatically protected and that they were entitled to register on attaining the age of 16. The replies were forwarded by Ritch to the Colonial Office on January 9, 1911.

2 Vide the preceding item.
186. LETTER TO PRIVATE SECRETARY TO DUKE OF CONNAUGHT

JOHANNESBURG,
[After November 18, 1910]

SIR,

I beg to send the following resolution unanimously passed at a special meeting of the Committee of the British Indian Association held on the 18th instant in the hall of the Hamidia Islamic Society:

That this meeting of the Committee of the British Indian Association, with profound regret, comes to the conclusion that, in view of the death of the deportee, Narayansamy, the tyrannical proceedings against minor children of a certain class, the impending prosecution of Mrs. Sodha, and the continued sufferings of the passive resisters, by reason of the refusal by the Union Government to grant the demands of the Indian community, universally acknowledged to be just and reasonable, it is not possible for the community to be associated in a public presentation of an address of welcome to His Royal Highness, the Duke of Connaught, and thus identify itself with public rejoicings over the inauguration of the Union, which, for Asiatic British subjects, has meant greater bitterness and increased anxiety for its future; and the meeting hereby authorises the Chairman to address a respectful letter to His Royal Highness, expressing the community’s loyalty to the Throne, and tendering a personal welcome to him as representative of the Sovereign.

It is the misfortune of the community represented by my Association that, for the reasons stated above, its representatives are debarred from personally tendering to His Royal Highness a respectful welcome to the Transvaal, and the expression of the community’s loyalty to the Throne.

1 This letter, presumably drafted by Gandhiji, was signed by A. M. Cachalia. The first paragraph has been retranslated from the Gujarati translation of the full text of the letter published in Indian Opinion, 3-12-1910; the resolution itself is from Indian Opinion, 26-11-1910; and the last two paragraphs from Indian Opinion, 3-12-1910.
In the absence, therefore, of the presentation of a public address on behalf of my Association, I beg to tender hereby a respectful welcome to His Royal Highness, and to request him to convey to Their Majesties an expression of the loyalty of the community represented by my Association.

Indian Opinion, 26-11-1910 and 3-12-1910

187. LETTER TO PRIVATE SECRETARY TO DUKE OF CONNAUGHT

[After November 18, 1910]

On behalf of the [Executive] Committee of the Hamidia Islamic Society, I beg to request you to communicate our respectful welcome to His Royal Highness on the occasion of his visit to the Transvaal, and request him on our behalf to convey to His Majesty an expression of the loyalty of the members of my Society.

My Society associates itself entirely with the reasons¹ expressed by the British Indian Association and therefore we are very sorry we are unable publicly to take part in this week’s celebrations.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 3-12-1910

188. SETTLEMENT?

There is now hardly any doubt that the Transvaal Indians’ demand will be accepted. The Times report³ which we publish elsewhere in this issue and a letter⁴ which Mr. Polak has received from General Smuts point to one and the same conclusion. It also appears that no laws which humiliate Asiatics will henceforth be passed. If we are proved right in our conjecture, satyagrahis will have achieved a complete victory. It is the duty of every Indian to understand the meaning of this victory. It will not in any way advance the personal

¹ This letter, presumably drafted by Gandhiji, was sent over the signature of Imam Abdul Kadir Bawazeer, Chairman, Hamidia Islamic Society. The English text is not available.

² Vide the preceding item.

³ Vide “Johannesburg”, before 17-11-1910

⁴ Ibid
interests of those who are engaged in the fight; only those who can think will be able to grasp the real issue in this struggle. There will be no legal bar against Asiatics as Asiatics. But our position will remain what it is. Indians will not be able to enter in their hundreds. The difficulties about permits and certificates will continue. It is up to us to have them removed. If we are not greedy, if we remain truthful, and act with moderation and in keeping with the people’s honour and our own, we shall succeed in having these difficulties removed. We shall have the tree in the form of a uniform law. It will be for us to choose whether or not to enjoy its shade.

Notwithstanding this good news, Indians need not entertain any [strong] hopes. Though the signs are favourable, things may yet go wrong. Even after the publication of an authoritative cable-report, the Bill may turn out to be quite different. We only speak of things as they appear and make an effort to ensure that the settlement, when it comes, is properly understood.

Further, we have already asked' [readers] to consider what the position of the Cape and Natal will be in the Bill that is likely to be introduced.

[From Gujarati]

_Indian Opinion, 19-11-1910_

189. RAMBHABAI’S CASE

Angad pleaded hard with Ravana on behalf of Shri Ramchandra but Ravana, in his pride, paid no heed. He did not release Sita and called down death at last. General Smuts is in a similar position. Mr. Cachalia pleaded' with him on behalf of Rambhabai and urged him to withdraw the prosecution pending against her, but to this General Smuts has given, in his pride, a rude and unbecoming reply. Shri Ramchandra paid Ravana his due and freed Sita. Mr. Cachalia’s plea was rejected by Mr. Smuts. What will the Indian community do now? It has only one effective way of bringing General Smuts to book. It may let him see that it will not take his attempt to persecute Rambhabai lying down. There is only one way of refusing to tolerate it. Other Indian women should copy Rambhabai’s example and court imprisonment. What men will do if women go to gaol, needs no answer. If they have any manhood in them, they will not show the slightest hesitation in filling the Transvaal gaols. We refuse to believe that men with look on passively if the Government lays its hands on women. All the wealth of men is of little account. They may lose it any day. If, on the other hand, they do not put forth all their strength when Rambhabai has gone to gaol, they will be disgraced and India will stand dishonoured through us. It is our earnest hope that, when Mrs. Sodha is imprisoned, meetings will be held in all the provinces, resolutions will be passed and forwarded to the Government, and that educated Indians from every province, or those who have been in the Transvaal formerly, will soon fill the gaols.

---

2 _ibid_

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 19-11-1910

190. MESSAGE TO MEETING OF BRITISH INDIAN ASSOCIATION

Johannesburg,
November 19, 1910

It will not be possible for us to participate in the celebrations the whites are going to hold in honour of H. R. H. the Duke of Connaught on the occasion of his visit to Johannesburg, nor will it be possible to honour him in view of the troubles we are having, such as failure [on the part of the Government] to bring about a reasonable solution of the satyagraha struggle; harassment of satyagrahis in gaols through extremely unjust treatment; satyagrahi prisoners having to undertake complete fasts to secure the grant of reasonable demands even for things like ghee; depriving minors of the right to register on reaching the age of 16; and the war on women like Mrs. Rambhabai Sodha, whose case is going to be taken up next week. We can give up our struggle only after our demands are satisfied. We would give up our fight if the new immigration law was going to put an end to our grievances. But if under the Union Government that has come into 1 This meeting was held on November 19, 1910 to consider the presentation of an address to the Duke of Connaught then visiting the Transvaal. Being prevented by illness from attending, Gandhiji sent this message to be read out to the meeting.

---

being the new Act applies to all the colonies, and consequently our brethren there are adversely affected and have to take recourse to satyagraha, we shall have to contribute our utmost to it. But we cannot continue the present struggle on account of these grievances. The Cape Indians did not intend to present an address to H. R. H. the Duke, but, as one was ready, it was sent by post; and, as far as I know, the Natal Indians are presenting none. Under these circumstances, we cannot participate even in the celebrations. And, how can we present an address? We can write a letter to express our loyalty and have done with it. If Mrs. Rambhabai Sodha is sent to jail, we should come forward to fill the jails, and if possible, close our shops, hold meetings and pass resolutions to protest against the injustice.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 26-11-1910

191. LETTER TO DIRECTOR OF PRISONS, PRETORIA

[JOHANNESBURG,]

November 19, 1910

My Association learns with deep anxiety that, owing to continual improper treatment of Indian passive resisters who are at present confined in the Diepkloof Convict Prison, several Indian prisoners have thought it necessary to undertake a fast, by way of protest and in order to secure their removal to the Johannesburg Gaol where, they have reason to believe that, under the more immediate supervision of the Governor, they will be given better treatment. I understand that already Messrs. Harilal Gandhi and R. M. Sodha have been transferred to Johannesburg Gaol. I also learn that Mr. S. B. Medh has also applied for a transfer, and that he has been fasting for the last six days. As the matter is one of extreme urgency, I shall be greatly obliged if you will give it your immediate attention. I need hardly remind you of the serious consequences to the health of the prisoners and the effect upon the members of the Indian community of the continuance of what is alleged to be the present condition of affairs.\(^2\)

Indian Opinion, 3-12-1910

---

1. This letter, presumably drafted by Gandhiji, was sent over the signature of the Chairman, British Indian Association.

2. Replying on 21-11-1910, the Director of Prisons asked to be furnished “with some information as to the ‘improper treatment’ of Indian passive resisters confined in Diepkloof Prison, referred to in your letter”.

174  THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
192. LETTER TO DIRECTOR OF PRISONS, PRETORIA

[JOHANNESBURG,]

November 22, 1910

In reply to your letter herein of the 21st inst., my Association is advised that strong complaint is made against the insulting attitude of some of the warders who appear to regard Indian prisoners as suitable butts upon whom to exercise their mistaken sense of humour, as for example, calling them “Coolie”, “Sammy”, “Bananas”, and so forth. Complaints regarding this matter and other pinpricks have constantly been made to the chief warder who either ignores it, or replies in an offensive manner. Complaint is also specially made against the conduct of head warder McLoud, who is in charge of the spans. This officer, my Association understands, systematically subjects prisoners to every possible form of harassment, requiring them to perform impossible tasks, and seizing every opportunity to report against them to secure their punishment. Frequent complaint has been made to the Governor of this officer’s conduct and my Association learns that he has been more than once reported, and on at least two occasions his charges against the Indian prisoners have fallen to the ground upon examination. Apparently, the complaints have not resulted in any improvement in Mr. McLoud’s attitude towards the Indian prisoners, who have, it now appears, been exasperated on account of the treatment that has been meted out to them, both by him and the chief warder.

My Association is quite prepared to learn that these charges are denied by the officers concerned, but, in anticipation of such denial, which has not been infrequent in the past, I would like to point out that no prisoner is likely to refuse to eat for a whole week, as has Mr. Medh, who does not, in his opinion, labour under serious grievances.

My Association will, accordingly, be grateful if you will be so good as to institute urgent inquiries into this matter.

Indian Opinion, 3-12-1910

1 This letter, presumably drafted by Gandhiji, was sent over the signature of the Chairman, British Indian Association.
THE LATE LAMENTED TOLSTOY THE GREAT

The great Tolstoy has quit this corporeal frame at the ripe old age of 83.¹ It is truer to say that “he has quit this corporeal frame” than that “he has died”. There can be no death for Tolstoy’s soul. His name will ever remain immortal. Only his body, which was of dust, has returned to dust.

Tolstoy is known to the entire world; but not as a soldier, though once he was reputed to be an expert soldier; not as a great writer, though indeed he enjoys a great reputation as a writer; nor as a nobleman, though he owned immense wealth. It was as a good man that the world knew him. In India, we would have described him as a maharshi or fakir. He renounced his wealth, gave up a life of comfort to embrace that of a simple peasant. It was Tolstoy’s great virtue that he himself put into practice what he preached. Hence thousands of men clung loyally to his words—his teaching.

We believe Tolstoy’s teaching will win increasing appreciation with the passage of time. Its foundation was religion. Being a Christian, he believed that Christianity was the best religion. He did not, however, denounce any [other] religion. He said, on the contrary, that truth was undoubtedly present in all the religions. At the same time, he also pointed out that selfish priests, Brahmins and Mullahs had distorted the teaching of Christianity and other religions and misled the people.

What Tolstoy believed with especial conviction was that in essence all religions hold soul-force to be superior to brute force and taught that evil should be requited with good, not evil. Evil is the negation of religion. Irreligion cannot be cured by irreligion, but only by religion. There is no room in religion for anything other than compassion. A man of religion will not wish ill even to his enemy. Therefore, if people always want to follow the path of religion, they must do nothing but good.

In his last days, this great man wrote a letter to Mr. Gandhi to acknowledge copies of Indian Opinion in which he expressed these same ideas. The letter is in Russian. We give in this issue a Gujarati

¹ Tolstoy died on November 20, 1910.
² Great seer
translation of it, based on an English translation. The translation is worth reading. What he has said there about satyagraha deserves to be pondered over by all. According to him, the Transvaal struggle will leave its mark on the world. Everyone [he says] has much to learn from it. He extends encouragement to the satyagrahis and assures them of justice from God, if not from the rulers. The latter, being enamoured of their strength, will certainly not be pleased with satyagraha. Despite that, satyagrahis must have patience and continue to fight. Citing, further, the example of Russia, Tolstoy states that there, too, soldiers everyday turn their back upon their profession. He is convinced that, though this movement has had no tangible results in the present, it will assume a big form in the end and Russia will be free.

It is no small encouragement to us that we have the blessings of a great man like Tolstoy in our task. We publish his photograph in today’s issue.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 26-11-1910

194. CHHOTABHAI CASE

Though [the decision in] this appeal has gone against Mr. Chhotabhai, we count it as a triumph for him and for the Indian community. Mr. Justice de Villiers’ judgment is one-sided. He holds that the Act of 1907 for the most part stands repealed by the Act of 1908. He is, moreover, doubtful whether, even under the former Act, Mr. Chhotabhai’s son was protected. This same gentleman, when he was Attorney-General, had told Lord Crewe that Asiatic minors were protected under the Act of 1908 and the Act of 1907 could be availed of. If the Act of 1907 stood repealed for the most part by the Act of 1908, why has General Smuts so far refused to repeal it altogether? The opinion of the other two judges is very good. Mr. Justice Bristowe is also of the view that the Act of 1907 for the most part stands repealed by the Act of 1908 and feels that Mr. Chhotabhai’s son would have been protected under the Act of 1907. He shows, moreover, that both the Acts are anomalous and points out that a law which does not protect the interests of minors is tyrannical. He then goes on to say that he has given his decision with profound misgivings.

---

1 This translation by Pauline Padlashuk from the original Russian was also published on the first page of Indian Opinion, 26-11-1910.

Mr. Justice Mason, on the other hand, has held that the appeal should be decided in favour of Mr. Chhotabhai. He has even argued that rights which were protected under the Act of 1907 could not be treated as abrogated by the Act of 1908. Under the latter, the position of children born outside the Transvaal is not clear, but under the Act of 1907 the Registrar has been empowered to issue certificates in such cases and in the present case he would have been justified in granting the certificate. According to Mr. Justice Mason, the Registrar had wrongly assumed that he had no discretion under the Act of 1907. He has roundly condemned a state of affairs in which a minor could be expelled.

From all this, it appears certain to us that the Supreme Court will decide in favour of Mr. Chhotabhai.

The strictures passed by the judges show that both the Acts are extremely complicated and must therefore be repealed. It will not be enough to have an amendment giving effect to Mr. Justice Mason’s decision. Since it is within the Registrar’s discretion whether or not to grant a certificate to a minor in the position of Mr. Chhotabhai’s son, it would be a favour on his part to grant one. Indians cannot leave it to be decided by anyone as a matter of favour whether or not a minor should receive a certificate. Whenever parents enjoy a right, the same right for the minors should be protected as a matter of course. It will certainly be protected if the Indian community has spirit enough, let the courts give what judgments they will.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 26-11-1910

195. HAMID GOOL

News has been received that Mr. Hamid Gool, son of Mr. Yusuf Gool of Cape Town, has passed his final medical examination in England. We congratulate both Mr. Hamid Gool and Mr. Yusuf Gool on this. His success at this advanced examination is evidence of Mr. Hamid’s hard work and intelligence. We should like him to give the benefit of his knowledge and his fine qualities of character to the community. It has been reported that he will shortly leave England for South Africa.

[From Gujarati]
Indian Opinion, 26-11-1910

196. UNHAPPY INDENTURED LABOURERS OF MAURITIUS

The account of the sufferings of these miserable Indians which we publish elsewhere deserves attention. Those who read about these sufferings will be convinced of the need to put a stop to the system of indenture. The all-too-numerous incidents of this kind prove again and again that this system is indistinguishable from slavery. Is there any Indian who will remain unmoved after reading about these sufferings of his countrymen? Indians ought not to rest in peace till they have put an end to them.

[From Gujarati]
Indian Opinion, 26-11-1910

197. LETTER TO V. G. CHERTKOV

TOLSTOY FARM,
LAWLEY STATION,
TRANSVAAL,
November 26, 1910

DEAR SIR,

I have your letter of the 29th September last for which I thank you. I have also received your translation of Tolstoy’s letter to me on Passive Resistance. It is a most pathetic thing that your letter should have been received after his death.

You will see from a few copies of Indian Opinion I am sending you, that I had the letter already translated by a friend here. Mr. Kallenbach got the translation made.

I thank you for introducing Mrs. Mayo’s name to me. The

1 Not reproduced here
3 Mrs. Fyvie Mayo of Glasgow, a journalist and translator of Tolstoy lady has already written to Mr. Kallenbach. I am now sending her all the particulars needed by her.

I shall appreciate a few copies of the magazine in which Tolstoy’s letter may be published.

I am,
Yours truly,
M. K. GANDHI

V. G. CHERTKOV

From a photostat: C.W. 11073. Courtesy: L. N. Tolstoy

198. LETTER TO MAGANLAL GANDHI

Kartak Vad 10 [November 26, 1910]

CHI. MAGANLAL,

I am not surprised at Kanaiyalal’s disappointment. But there is no reason to believe that associations among the English people are run better, though it is true that they appear to be doing well. The reason is that these associations are the product of modern civilization. The English are more adept in that civilization and can therefore conduct these associations better. Our Arya Samaj is not for the general public. It is meant only for the educated. The English institutions can be said to be for the masses to some extent, because even the masses there have come within the purview of that civilization. Therefore their institutions are governed by some discipline. Moreover, the people there consider honesty as the best policy and are honest as a matter of policy. We, on the other hand, are honest for honesty’s sake; we do not know how to be honest for the sake of policy. The general tendency amongst our educated is that if one holds a position where one can serve one’s selfish ends quickly, one is at once led to do so. Moreover, those who are born and bred in diplomatic surroundings take to dishonest ways even if they are not educated. If we think of our own family, we shall be able to see that the people of whom Kanaiyalal has lost all hopes are a mere drop in the ocean of Indian humanity. Please think of the hypocrisy, the corruption and the immorality of the members of our family who are occupying posts of executive officers.

1 The Bill for the new Act mentioned in the last paragraph was introduced in Parliament in February, 1911. The Kartak Vad 10 prior to this was November 26, 1910.

You have rightly pointed out the discrepancy about mentioning the names of some persons who have gone to gaol and not mentioning those of others under the different dates. You may therefore delete them all as I am not in a position to supply the dates of the others from here. Please retain the names of Mrs. Sodha, Narayansamy and Nagappen.

I have a wire from Hosken saying that Smuts has told him that the new Act will be such as to satisfy the Indian community.

Blessings from

MOHANDAS

From the Gujarati original in Gandhiji’s hand. Courtesy: Radhabehn Choudhri

199. LETTER TO MAGANLAL GANDHI

Kartak Vadi [14, November 30, 1910]

CHI. MAGANLAL,

For providing meals to Karamat you should, I think, take money from Rustomjee Sheth. That is reasonable and I do not think Rustomjee Sheth will raise any objection. You did right to ask Karamat to cook for himself. I see nothing wrong in it. I too feel that you cannot take up that responsibility in view of your many preoccupations. I suspect Karamat must have eaten something somewhere. He needs bath [treatment]. It is also necessary to try earth-bandages. I do not, however, think that even the earth-bandages will cure him, for there is too much of suppuration. I think what he needs is complete fasting. But will he stand it? He may take bananas and lemons only if it becomes absolutely necessary. I am writing a letter1 to him. I think he can read Gujarati; if he cannot, please read it out to him. Even when his wound healed up very quickly, I was afraid that the improvement was rather alarming.

---

1 The original reads “Kartak Vadi 4” which corresponds to November 20, 1910, but it appears to be a slip for “Kartak Vadi 14”, for Polak left for Cape Town either on December 1 or 2 and Doke arrived in South Africa on November 22.

2 Not available
Mr. Polak will leave for the Cape tomorrow. He will go from there to Phoenix. He will also go out for collection. Regarding Purshottamdas, I think nothing should be drawn for him from the [Passive Resistance] Fund. Let Ani draw whatever she wants and debit the amount to my account for the present. You may ask Ani what she requires. She will require less when a good half of her children are at Tongaat. You may, however, give her whatever she asks for. Let me know how Veerjée is faring. I do not write about him here as I have already written\(^1\) to Mr. West. Please write to Ismail Dawji Mian and tell him that the arrangement regarding the school has been completely upset just now. Purshottamdas, who was looking after it, has gone to gaol. However, if he sends his son, we are prepared to take him. He will have to pay £2 a month for him. That will cover his lodging, boarding and tuition. The curriculum will include farming, press work, English and Gujarati methods of accountancy, etc. If he sends his son even after this clarification, you should keep him with you.

Mr. Doke has returned. Please ask Mr. West to write to him a letter welcoming him. I forgot to mention this in my letter to him [West].

Blessings from

MOHANDAS

---

1. Letter not available
2. The first six pages of this letter are missing. It appears from the contents to have been addressed to Maganlal Gandhi.
3. From the reference to Karamat in the postscript this appears to have been written after the preceding item.
to control one’s palate.

How is Nayak doing? What about Manilal?

I hope your study of Tamil is progressing.

There seems to be every likelihood of a settlement now. You will see this from the newspapers, too.

Blessings from

MHOHANDAS

[PS.]

Karamat should have no salt. He should take a Kuhne bath every day and should have nothing but coarsely ground wheat and fruits. Please clean his leg well and fill the wound with iodoform.

From the Gujarati original in Gandhiji’s hand: C.W. 4946. Courtesy: Radhabehn Choudhri

201. THE ROYAL VISIT

In the dignified letter\(^1\) sent by Mr. Cachalia to H. R. H. the Duke of Connaught, the Transvaal Indians have but followed the example set by the Cape Indian and Coloured communities, who, as a sign of mourning, refrained from attending the ceremony of presentation. Our countrymen in this Province have done likewise. We believe that this is for the first time that Indians throughout South Africa have felt called upon to avoid identifying themselves completely in a public welcome to a Royal representative. We will remember what our countrymen did when the present King visited South Africa. Magnificent arches, costing hundreds of pounds, were erected, addresses engraved on gold plates were presented, and Indian places of business were profusely decorated. Indians were in no way behind the other communities in rendering homage to the Royal visitors. The step taken on this occasion, therefore, is a momentous one. But there was no other way of marking the community’s sense of the deep grief caused by the protracted struggle in the Transvaal, and the uncertainty of its future, engendered by the Union. It is well, however, that Mr. Cachalia and Imam Bawazeer\(^2\) should have emphasised the fact that the community’s loyalty to the Throne had not suffered by reason of \(^1\) Vide “letters to Private Secretary to Duke of Connaught”, after 18-11-1910.

\(^2\) ibid
its afflictions, and that its personal welcome to the Royal visitors was none the less warm on that account.

_Indian Opinion, 3-12-1910_

202. SUPREME VIRTUE OF AGRICULTURE

O tiller of the soil,
   Rightly they call you father of the world;
You, and you alone, provide
   For all mankind;—
Cotton, fruits, flowers and grass,
   And foodgrains too,
The food that sustains all creatures,
   And clothing that is welcome to all.
Braving heat and rain,
   Unremitting in toil,
Robust of health,
   Ever you move in contentment.
Of worth supreme is the tiller’s work,
   Work that tends to others’ good;
Tireless in your labour,
   You teach a good lesson to the world.

We have reproduced this poem from the second standard reader which most of us studied at school. But how many of us have profited from what we learnt? Of course the farmer is the father of the world. But it is his greatness that he is not aware of the fact. Those who devote themselves to good works of any worth are not aware of their own goodness. Just as we breathe every moment but are not aware of the fact, so are good people by their very nature impelled to give expression to their goodness. They are not conscious that they deserve any credit. They do not care to be honoured. If we recite the poem given above before a farmer, he will simply be amused. He will not even understand what we mean. So true a father is he, and so sincere a benefactor.

But we who recite the poem, what do we do? If the farmer is indeed a father and if his profession is indeed the highest, why are we busy padding ourselves with heaps of clothes? Why do we grind the poor under our heels to extort the last farthing from them? Why do we think it manly to be mere clerks, attired in respectable clothes?

Such is our benighted state. We only talk of agriculture. It has got stuck in our throats and does not go further than that.

Those Indians who wish to be happy in this country or wish to render any real service to India should ponder over the poem given above and try to act upon it. Even if there is a single reader who is convinced that he must take to agriculture, he need not wait for others [to join him].

[From Gujarati]
Indian Opinion, 3-12-1910

203. INDIANS AND H. R. H. THE DUKE

An unprecedented thing has happened in South Africa. Indians have always presented addresses to Royal guests and participated in public celebrations.

The Cape made a beginning in connection with [the visit of] H. R. H. the Duke this time. It sent an address, but did not attend the public function.

The Transvaal went a step further. It explained the reasons for not sending an address, thus bringing to the Duke’s notice the disabilities under which it labours, and conveyed its loyalty in a letter. That there was no impropriety in such a step, is made evident by the Duke’s courteous reply. How can the Indian community, seething with discontent and in mourning, join public celebrations? Its participation can never be sincere. However, everyone must acknowledge that the letters addressed by Mr. Cachalia and the Imam Saheb were but proper. The Natal Congress, too, has taken a similar step, and rightly.

The effect of this step will be known in the future. People will be all the more convinced of our integrity and attach greater weight to whatever we do. They will know that we are no hypocrites, that we do not hesitate to place our views, in proper language, even before an emperor.

[From Gujarati]
Indian Opinion, 3-12-1910

¹ Vide “Letters to Private Secretary to Duke of Connaught, after 18-11-1910.
Indians are unwelcome, wherever they go. As soon as, having settled in a foreign land for some time, they join in its commerce and industry and prosper, they find themselves under attack. The island of Cecil has a fairly large Indian population, and the numbers grow every year. The majority of the immigrants come from Malabar. Most of the shops in this island are owned by Indians. A few Chinese traders are also to be found. Much of the immovable property in the port has been raised with Indian investment. Agriculture there, as in Natal, owes its development to Indians. Indians have thus sought their own prosperity while advancing that of the Colony. And yet it is interesting to note what kind of attitude the whites adopt to all this. In his report for the previous year, the Governor of the island has called attention, by way of warning, to the acquisition of land by Indian traders, saying that Indians are usually bad farmers, for their aim is to get rich quick by exploiting the land for all it is worth and then run back to India. Land in this country costs on an average Rs. 100 per acre, though it is quite difficult to get any with fertile soil. One wonders, after reading this report, what reason there can be for anything in the nature of a warning if Indians, by their labour on land of ordinary quality, toil for the prosperity of the country and in the process grow prosperous themselves. An English poet, Goldsmith, has said that industrious farmers are a far greater and truer treasure for any country than kings and nobles. It is in the interest of the country and the people that this “treasure” should receive encouragement, instead of being regarded with distrust.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 3-12-1910

---

1 Princes and lords may flourish, or may fade;
A breath can make them, as a breath has made;
But a bold peasantry, their country’s pride,
When once destroyed, can never be supplied.

— The Deserted Village
205. LETTER TO MAGANLAL GANDHI

[Before Friday, December 9, 1910]¹

CHI. MAGANLAL,

I send this much today. The rest you will get on Friday. If you find it too much, you may hold it over. Do not delay [the paper] in order to print it. I shall not send much.

Please translate Fallacy of Speed if you can. The book is commonplace, but it will serve our purpose. I intend to give a summary of Coomaraswami’s book. Let us see what happens.

Blessings from

MOHANDAS

From the Gujarati original in Gandhiji's hand: C.W. 4947. Courtesy: Radhabehn Choudhri

206. LETTER TO G. A. NATESAN

TOLSTOY FARM,

December 9, 1910

DEAR MR. NATESAN,

I owe you a long reply. But being obliged to move about and being otherwise busy over the struggle, I have been unable to save a quiet hour for writing to you.

Many thanks for the cable remitting £400. The help is most timely. The unexpected difficulties about the landing of the returned deportees have cost over £500 leaving nothing for current expenses. I was therefore obliged to cable you for funds. A similar cable was sent to Mr. Petit also. The same day that brought your cable brought also a letter from Mr. Ratan Tata enclosing a cheque for Rs. 25,000. There is therefore no anxiety now regarding money. I enclose copy of Mr. Tata’s letter.

¹ The Gujarati translation of Thomas Taylor’s article “Fallacy of Speed”, mentioned in the letter, was published in Indian Opinion, 10-12-1910; this letter was written before the Friday of that week, which fell on 9-12-1910.
² Not available
³ ibid
Everyone of the returned deportees speaks most highly of your kindness. They tell me that you were most unremitting in your attention to them. May I thank you for all you have done in their behalf?

You will have noticed that not a single Indian deportee has had to go back to India—I mean of the 2nd batch. It was unfortunate that the 19 Chinese had to go back. But partly it was the fault of the Chinese Association. That body was not ready for the emergency that faced it.

You will have noticed too that everyone of the returned men has now already passed through the gaols of the Transvaal or is at present serving his term. This does not include the five men who are still at the Cape. But I expect them to cross the border shortly.

Your fear about the payment to the indigent families was natural though groundless. It did very great credit to your heart. I had suspended payment as I was, as you know, in cable communication with the men. I was in hopes that the men would willingly cable consent to their families going to the Farm, as most of them knew that negotiations were going on for securing one and as they were told that the families could only be supported on the Farm. But as soon as I saw that the men would not consent, all the families who had not consented to go to the Farm were paid up to the 7th of October. That was the last date fixed because I had conferences with the men at Durban. Every fact was placed before them and they were told that the families must either go to the Farm or support themselves. I told them too that the funds in hand would not allow of the families being indefinitely supported outside the Farm. The men, however, elected to go to gaol. Some families have come to the Farm but the vast majority are supporting themselves in Johannesburg. The Farm serves a double purpose. It enables us to support families at a much cheaper rate thus providing for an indefinite prolongation of the struggle and it prevents fraud and deception. For it must be confessed that the fighters—some of them—are not above taking an undue advantage of one’s ignorance. The Farm puts a stop to this sort of thing. Those who cannot really support themselves must perforce come to the Farm. Those who do not are some way or other capable of supporting themselves. Moreover this struggle is pre-eminently educative. It is intended therethrough to raise men. This cannot be done unless we purge the community of dross. On the Farm we are also able to give some kind of education to the families.

1 Not available

In spite of every care taken to satisfy the men, no doubt there is grumbling. It is inevitable, considering the material one has to work with and work upon. The wonder is that there has been so little real grumbling. The credit is all due to the men who are fighting so nobly, so bravely and so uncomplainingly. Our half-educated countrymen certainly could not do what these good men have done. It now remains to be seen how many will stand what might be the final test, should the struggle be further prolonged.

But there is every indication that it may be closed during the early part of the next year. This time it appears there will be no consultation with the leaders of the community. Anyhow, the issue is clear and the struggle can end only on our demands being granted.

Mr. Ritch, after a brief stay here, has returned to London. Mr.
Polak has gone to the Cape to look after the concluding stages of the Cape appeal.\footnote{In connection with the deportees’ cases}

It was a most fortunate stroke for you to have secured donations from Mysore, Bikaner and [the] Nizam.\footnote{Natesan had secured donations of Rs. 1,000 from the Maharaja of Bikaner, Rs. 2,000 from the Maharaja of Mysore and Rs. 2,500 from the Nizam of Hyderabad.}

Mrs. Sodha’s case of which you must have learnt from \textit{Indian Opinion} has not yet been set down. It is just likely that the case may never come off. If it does, she will certainly go to gaol and probably many of her sisters will follow her.

The matter of minor children is still hanging fire.

And now I think I shall cease to weary you with our tale.

As I write this, Messrs Thambi Naidoo and Gopal Naidoo are sitting by me. They join me in sending you regards and in once more thanking you for the noble help you rendered the poor deportees.

\textit{I remain,}

\textit{Yours sincerely,}

M. K. \textit{GANDHI}

\textit{[PS.]}

I must not omit to mention how thankful the passive resisters were to receive the beautiful photographs you sent and the copies of Harishchandra both of which were publicly presented, as you may be aware, at Mr. Rustomjee’s house. Many thanks too for your portrait for me and the group photograph as also a copy of Harishchandra. What an appropriate present the latter was!

M. K. G.

From a photostat of the original in Gandhiji’s hand: G.N. 2223

207. SWEET ARE THE FRUITS OF PATIENCE

Indians have been showing impatience ever since people began to talk about a settlement. “Why has no bill been published yet? When will one be published? Has the matter been put off till January? Will it be as late as February? Perhaps there will be no bill, after all.” Such impatience is a sign of timidity and cowardice. What we are entitled to, we are bound to get in due time. But we grow impatient for something that we do not deserve and thereby prove that we are not worthy of it. We shall not show impatience about anything which we know or believe we are entitled to.

What does it matter whether a bill is published now or later, or never published at all? Really speaking, continuing delay is of double advantage to us. One, Indians who have remained staunch are being tested. Two, those who are not taking part in the struggle will realize that our demands are bound to be met so long as even one person is left to continue the fight. Indians who understand this, whether they are satyagrahis or not, will not show impatience. We should realize that impatience may delay the result indefinitely. Even in simple matters, we lose our presence of mind if we are in too great a hurry and so find ourselves completely bewildered. That is why it is said that a man in haste is a man at sea, and a man unruffled is one in full command of his wits.¹ We therefore urge all Indians to remain patient.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 10-12-1910

---

¹ A Gujarati saying
208. LETTER TO MAGANLAL GANDHI

TOLSTOY FARM,
Magshar Shud 11 [December 12, 1910]¹

CHI. MAGANLAL,

I have your letter.

I do not think it proper to comment on the addresses given at Maritzburg. Both deserve to be condemned. Fearing that my criticism might be misunderstood, I gave up the idea of writing about them. It anybody refers to this omission, you may say that I am responsible for it and that I did not deem it proper to comment on them.

The book of bazaar medicine has been found here.

I am positive I saw Coomaraswami’s volume among Mr. Polak’s books. It has a white cover.

I do not think we can do anything about it if Dada Sheth discontinues all his advertisements. Let him do so if he chooses. I should prefer it if we could do away with advertisements altogether. I think it proper not to write to him at all. I shall talk to Omar Sheth when I meet him. It is better to forgo the advertisements if Dada Sheth is not agreeable.

I shall write to Gora Sheth only after you let me know for certain. His advertisements, too, may be dropped if he so desires.

What you write about the effect of the Rs. 25,000 is quite true. People are still miserably ill-educated in this matter. Constant purity of mind is our only remedy for this. Meanwhile we have to be patient. Personally I hate to take anything from the Al Islam property. But Mr. West wanted to. Considering that in these matters my attitude differed from that of you all and to avoid making any major changes so long as the struggle lasted, I was silent and allowed some necessary articles ¹ It appears from the reference to Coomaraswami’s book that this letter was written after “Letter to Maganlal Gandhi”, 15-11-1910; in 1910, Magshar Shud 11 corresponded to December 12.

² Dada Osman, Joint Honorary Secretary, Natal Indian Congress

³ Omar Haji Amod Zaveri, a leading Indian of Natal; vide “Omar Haji Amod Zaveri”, 11-5-1907.

⁴ Ismail Gora

⁵ The donation received from Ratan Tata in aid of the satyagraha struggle. Vide “Tata and Satyagrahis”, 17-12-1910 to be taken from it. I shall, however, be glad if we fail to get anything out of it.

I think I have written to you saying that, if you have not got your daughter vaccinated for small-pox, you may postpone it for the present. We shall think over it.

_Blessings from_

_MOHANDAS_

From the Gujarati original in Gandhiji’s hand: C.W. 4948. Courtesy: Radhabehn Choudhri

---

209. LETTER TO OLIVE DOKE

TOLSTOY FARM,

December 15, 1910

MY DEAR OLIVE,

You need not apologize for not being able to give Ramdas his singing lessons. I could quite understand the difficulty whilst painting operations were going on. And I would not dream of disturbing you during the first few weeks of father’s arrival.¹

Many thanks for offering to give Ramdas a lesson on Monday. But I do not think he could go to Johannesburg next Monday. I come to Johannesburg only three days in the week and then I have hardly time to stir out of the office. I fear therefore that I shall not be able to look you up before X’mas. I wish you and Clement² a very happy time at Graaff Reinet³.

Please remember me to father and mother.

Comber⁴ is evidently not going with you. Poor boy! He will feel quite lonely. Please give him my regards as also to Willie⁵ when you

---

¹ The addressee’s father, the Rev. J. J. Doke, had returned to South Africa after a long tour of Europe and America; _vide_ “Letter to Maganlal Gandhi”, after 30-11-1910
² Addressee’s brothers
³ A town at an altitude of 2,500 ft. in the Cape province, 185 miles from Port Elizabeth
⁴ _ibid_
⁵ _ibid_
write to him.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

MISS OLIVE DOKE
SUTHERLAND AVENUE
HOSPITAL HILL
JOHANNESBURG

From a photo copy of the original in Gandhiji’s hand: C.W. 4927 Courtesy: C. M. Doke

210. LETTER TO MAGANLAL GANDHI

TOLSTOY FARM,
Magsar Shud 15 [December 16, 1910]

CHI. MAGANLAL,

The matter you have sent for the diary is all right. I shall not make any changes in it. Say only that Rambhabai has been arrested and that the result will be known on Wednesday. Please say that after her arrest other women have decided to court arrest.

In the note regarding the boy’s case, please give the decision as reported.

I have already written to you about another acre.2 Take it after consulting Mr. West.

Blessings from

MOHANDAS

From the Gujarati original in Gandhiji’s hand: C.W. 4949 Courtesy: Radhabehn Choudhri

211. TATA AND SATYAGRAHIS

By donating another sum of Rs. 25,000 for the satyagraha campaign, Mr. Ratan Tata has demonstrated that he has the utmost

1 Rambhabai Sodha’s case referred to in the letter was to be heard on Wednesday, December 21, 1910; it is thus clear that this letter was written in 1910, in which year Magsar Shud 15 corresponded to December 16.

2 Each member of the Phoenix settlement could take two acres of land for cultivation. The addressee, it appears, wanted one acre more between himself and his brother, Chhaganlal. The letter mentioned is not available.
sympathy for us and that he fully appreciates its value. Including his earlier donation, a total of Rs. 1,25,000 has been offered in India. Two-fifths of this large sum was donated by Mr. Tata alone. Surely, this is no small gift.

His letter is as inspiring as his gift is generous. Mr. Tata knows very well that this is not a struggle to secure our own narrow ends, but that it is for the honour of India. He has said, in so many words, that the effects of this struggle will be felt in all parts of the world under British rule, and that is exactly what will happen. Even a man like General Smuts has stopped talking of racial discrimination. His two Acts show that in law at least all citizens must have the same status. Fortunate indeed are those Indians who are taking part in a campaign of such remarkable power. What does it matter if they have lost their money and have been separated from their families, if they are starving and have been wasting away in gaols? By sacrificing their all for the sake of the nation’s honour, they will but gain what they [seem to] lose. Dying in such a cause, one does not really die, but lives on. What wonder, then, if a wealthy Indian like Mr. Tata contributes money for such a struggle? He feels sorry, and one cannot help feeling sorry, that other Indians do not show the same spirit. All the same, there is no need to feel sorry. As days pass—and the struggle lengthens—its greatness will come to be recognized all the more clearly.

Mr. Tata hopes that before long the Union Parliament will find a solution which will be in keeping with our honour. We join in that hope. It is also likely that such a settlement may shortly come about.

However, the Indian community need not entertain any high hopes. We are dealing with General Smuts. The gentleman is capable of backing out without a moment’s hesitation. As time passes, he grows more confident that the satyagraha will collapse; if everyone capitulates, why should he go in for a settlement? But this unholy expectation of his is not likely to come true. We are convinced that so long as there is even a single satyagrahi left, the Act is bound at last to be amended. The great Thoreau has said that a worthy cause should never be deemed lost, that it is bound to triumph, so long as there is at least one sincere man to fight for it. In fact, though a few more satyagrahis may yet fall, there will certainly remain some who will fight on till death. As Dhira has sung, “Only those who are ready for death can bring out pearls.” It is so here, too. This is no ordinary fight. Let us lay down our lives in it, and so live. The sesame seed yields oil when crushed; it does not thereby lose, but gains in value. If a man voluntarily allows himself to be crushed, he yields the oil of moral energy which sustains the world. A man so crushed comes to be highly valued, even like the sesame seed. Otherwise, pining away in pursuit of wealth or sense pleasures is to meet death in the manner of a glow-worm. No one pays attention to such a one.

Mr. Tata’s letter and the help he has given have doubled the burden of our responsibility. Satyagrahis ought to remain staunch; even those who cannot afford to go so far [as to offer satyagraha] ought to give, as a matter of duty, whatever they can.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 17-12-1910

212. CALCUTTA RIOT

The riot that occurred in Calcutta must have given rise, naturally, to all sorts of reflections among Indians. We do not think that this was a “religious” riot; rather, it was “irreligious”. Plenty of irreligious things are done in the world in the name of religion. Little reflection is needed to show that the Marwari had no reason to kill Muslims because the latter kill cows. Surely, the cows will not be saved as a result. By killing Muslims, who are his brethren, the Marwari will make himself doubly a sinner. Why do the Hindus not feel for the cows which the English kill every day? It is known very well that killing anyone is not the way to stop this. Why, again, should the Muslims kill only cows? But where people are out to spite one another, this is bound to be the result. We have been reduced to such a wretched plight and have got so much into the clutches of courts and lawyers, that we cannot use our common sense. If we did, we would immediately see that the Marwari had no reason to fight with the Muslim. What he should do is to plead with the latter once, twice, and if he does not respond, even a thousand times. Such entreaty, however,

---

1 A Gujarati poet (1753-1825)
2 Marwaris are Hindus of Marwar in Rajasthan, engaged in business in Calcutta and other cities.
will be sincere only if we have sworn not to fight or go to court, should the Muslim fail to respond. If, failing to understand this simple thing, we start riots, we shall only be exploiting religion for selfish ends.

If this is the simple duty of religious-minded Hindus, there is a corresponding duty for religious-minded Muslims. They too are not justified in fighting. Besides, they should abstain from killing cows except on occasions when that is enjoined as a religious duty.

The two sides, however, should not keep watching each other’s actions. Either of them may take the right step without thinking of what the other might do.

There may also be some who hold back because of the fear that so long as we go on fighting in this manner, we shall always remain a subject people, if not under the British, under some other great power. If we go a little deeper into this, we shall see that this is quite a wrong notion. In fact, it is because of our subjection that the riots occur. So long as we believe that there is a government to shield us when we get the worse of the fighting, the one course that is truly religious will not occur to us. We shall thus go on moving round in a circle, like the bullock in the oil-mill, his vision blocked, fondly believing that we are progressing. There is one royal Toad even out of this difficult situation, and only one. Though dependent, we should behave as though we were independent. If, in consequence, one has to lay down one’s life, one must do so. That alone is the final test. He who takes too much thought of this life can gain nothing either in this world or in the other. It is a matter of shame for us that we look to the police for protection. What protection can the police provide? They will only make cowards of us. Such behaviour is unworthy of men.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 17-12-1910
213. LETTER TO OLIVE DOKE

[JOHANNESBURG.]
Monday [On or after December 19, 1910]

MY DEAR OLIVE,

Ramdas and Devdas just now tell me that father is ill. I was sorry to hear this. I dare not leave the office just now. I am going back to the Farm. Please let me know there how father is getting on and what the illness is. You know the address: Tolstoy Farm, Lawley Station.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

From a photo copy of the original in Gandhiji’s hand: C.W. 4928. Courtesy: C. M. Doke

214. EXTRACT FROM LETTER TO THE PRESS

[Before December 24, 1910]

It is unfortunate that General Smuts has, on the eve (according to his statement) of a settlement being arrived at of the Asiatic question, given utterance in the statement made by him in Parliament to what is incorrect.²

Indian Opinion, 24-12-1910

215. EXTRACTS FROM LETTER TO S.A.B.I. COMMITTEE

[Before December 30, 1910]

Ministers beg to assure His Excellency that the so-called Indian Passive Resisters are not differentiated against in the Transvaal prisons.

This Mr. Gandhi denies. He states:

¹ This appears to have been written on the Monday after “Letter to Olive Doke”, 15-12-1910.
² This text is obviously incomplete.
³ Gandhiji, citing from the Blue-book Cd. 5363, wrote a letter to the South Africa British Indian Committee, London, dealing with a number of inaccurate and misleading statements made by the Transvaal Government in its communication to the Transvaal Governor. Pertinent extracts from the letter along with the inaccurate statements dealt with were forwarded to the Under-Secretary of State, Colonial Office, by Ritch on December 30, 1910.
Bona-fide Indian prisoners, before passive resistance commenced, were, because of their known objection to carrying slop-pails, as a rule, exempted from that duty. That was so when I had the honour to be one of 151 prisoners in Johannesburg and equally so at Volksrust when there were over 75 prisoners. The severity of prison treatment has progressed with the progress of passive resistance and it reached its culminating point when all passive resisters were removed to Diepkloof, where, it being a penal settlement, the regulations are far more strict. For instance, an Indian, and for that matter a Native, undergoing sentence for, say, attempted murder at Volksrust or Johannesburg is able to receive visitors and also to write letters. At Diepkloof, prisoners, whether they are convicted of heinous offences or are passive resisters, cannot by regulation receive visitors for three months. Most of the passive resisters are imprisoned for three months.

Every opportunity was afforded to the individual of proving domicile in any other part of South Africa, but all these persons failed to do so. . . . Wherever it appeared that a person had been resident or born in any other part of South Africa, he was returned thither and not deported to India. . . It was ruled by Supreme Court of Transvaal in case of Leung Quinn and another Versus Attorney General in May last and subsequently in the question of Naidoo v. Rex, that when an Asiatic failed on demand to produce certificate of registration, he could be arrested and brought before Magistrate under Section VII of Act 36 of 1908 and if he does not satisfy Magistrate that he was registered Asiatic, Magistrate had no option but was bound to make an order directing Asiatic to be removed from the Colony.

Mr. Gandhi denies that every opportunity was afforded of proving domicile or South African birth. He says:

I take the very first case that is quoted by the Government on page 130; it is that of Manikum Pillay. I make bold to say that Manikum Pillay was well known to the Registrar and so was his father. What is more, Manikum Pillay speaks English fluently. He declared himself to have been a student and certainly claimed that he was South African born and that he was entitled to go to Natal by reason of his educational qualifications. The other case is that of R.S.C. Pillay. He too claimed educational qualifications. Similarly T.A.S. Acharya. The despatch in his case makes the admission that he claimed the right to reside in any South African Colony and so he did because of his educational qualifications. I have in my possession letters from him whilst he was being detained in Pretoria, telling me that he had stated everything he had to with reference to his qualifications. But all the prisoners named were deported to India. I know two brothers Pillay who before they went to the Magistrate asked me whether they too would be deported although they were born in Kimberley. I told them that they should not be, and that they should state to the Magistrate that they were born in the Old Colony. I saw them after the order of deportation was made against them. They told me that they had protested that they were born in Kimberley but that it had been of no avail. I well recollect the two brothers having felt offended with me because they thought that I had misled them. I could multiply such instances.

In regard to the Supreme Court cases above cited, Mr. Gandhi writes:

The Government have, I do not know whether consciously or unconsciously, undoubtedly misled Lord Crewe by stating that the cases of Leung Quinn and another v. the Attorney General and Naidoo v. Rex show that an Asiatic failing to produce a certificate of registration can be arrested and brought before a magistrate under Section 7 for his removal from the Colony. In Mr. Quinn’s case, the only question at issue was whether the period of Mr. Quinn’s detention after deportation was reasonable. In Mr. Naidoo’s case, the question was that of legal objections as to whether the regulations under which he was charged were applicable to his case and whether the Registrar was duly appointed. Ordinarily, the misleading statement now referred to would not matter much, but in the dispatch in which it occurs, it is pertinent in order to justify the extraordinary conduct of the Government in trying to bring passive resisters before an administrative board and to procure their deportation rather than allow them to be tried judicially and to suffer imprisonment to which they had become inured. It will not be denied that many of these deportees were during the initial stages of the struggle tried judicially and simply imprisoned. They were also known to the police as being registered residents of the Transvaal. Why were they subsequently tried administratively and ordered to be deported?
As regards future deportations, instructions have been given to the police to exercise every care that Asiatics who have been registered are not dealt with under the clause of the Act which entails deportation.

Mr. Gandhi remarks:

Why this precaution only now? Is it not a fact that the proceedings under the deportation section of the Act were taken at the instance of the Law Department and that it was not the police who were responsible for the deportation proceedings? I read a Minute from the then Attorney General before the Union was proclaimed addressed to Crown Prosecutors to the effect that passive resisters were to be charged under deportation sections and not under sections for non-production of registration certificates as of old. I submit therefore that it is highly misleading, if not dishonest, now to state that the police have been instructed to exercise very great care, etc. Let me however give a few instances. There is case 46, R.S.N. Moodaley. He is supposed to have refused to give any means of identification. Now I know that the Magistrate who ordered deportation himself hesitated, as he knew Moodaley to be a resident of some twenty years and as he recognised him also to be an old offender (Passive Resister) and a duly registered Indian. Why was he ordered for deportation? There is the other old offender, Thambi Naidoo. He was not only known to the police, the Magistrate, the Registrar and everybody concerned to have been a registered resident but he was one of those who, when voluntary registration was going on (in 1907), helped the Registrar’s Department, and was thanked by the Registrar for his work. Short of producing his registration certificate, Mr. Quinn, the leader of the Chinese Association, produced proof before the Magistrate that he was registered. He tried hard to avoid deportation. He was known to General Smuts, as also to the Registrar. Why was he deported?

Mr. Gandhi adds:

There are other statements made by the Transvaal Government which are also capable of refutation.

From a photostat of the typewritten copy in the Colonial Office Records: C.O. 551/7
216. TRIAL OF RAMBHAVAI R. SODHA

[JOHANNESBURG.]
December 30, 1910

The much-adjourned case\(^1\) of Mrs. Rambhabai R. Sodha came up before Mr. D J. Schuurman, in “B” Court, Johannesburg, on Friday, the 30th ultimo. She was charged with contravening Section 5, read together with Section 2 of Sub-Section 1 of Act 15 of 1907 (the Immigrants’ Restriction Act) in that, being a prohibited immigrant, she entered into or was found within the Transvaal—that is to say, that when asked at Johannesburg by a duly authorised officer, she was unable, through deficient education, to write out and sign in the characters of a European language an application for permission to enter the Transvaal Colony.

Mr. Cramer prosecuted for the Crown and Mr. M. K. Gandhi appeared for the defence.

As soon as the case was called, Mr. Cramer (the Public Prosecutor) allowed Mr. Gandhi to go into an adjoining room with the Immigration Officer (Mr. Emphietze) for the purpose of putting the accused through an education test.

Some difficulty arose in connection with the interpretation of the evidence. Mr. Cramer explained that Mr. Gandhi would act as interpreter. His worship objected to this course.

MR. CRAMER: It is not a matter of evidence. There is a difficulty about the matter, for there are several dialects.

HIS WORSHIP: I have no objection personally, but is it quite regular?

MR. GANDHI: I have no objection.

MR. CRAMER: I have less.

Mr. Gandhi was eventually asked to interpret the charge to the accused.

In reply the accused said that she did not know any European language, but said that she was not guilty.

For further interpretation Mr. Pragji K. Desai was sworn to perform the duty.

Mr. Cramer said this case had been a matter of correspondence between Mr. Gandhi and the Attorney-General’s office, and he (the speaker) had been instructed to carry on with the case. He then called Mr. Empietze, an immigration officer of the Transvaal and a member of the C.I.D., who said that he had asked the accused through \(^1\) She was arrested on November 6, and on November 7 her case was remanded for 14 days; it was then transferred to Johannesburg.

Mr. Gandhi as to whether she could read or write a European language. She replied through Mr. Gandhi that she could not. She also said she did not know whether her husband was registered under the Act.

Mr. Gandhi corroborated this evidence, and said he also knew that accused could not speak or write any European language.

This closed the case for the prosecution.

Mr. Sodha, the husband of the accused, a passive resistance prisoner at present at the Fort, was called by Mr. Gandhi and said he was serving three months’ imprisonment under the Registration Act. He had a wife and three children, had been in South Africa nearly 14 years, and came to the Transvaal in 1897. He did business in Pretoria, but during the War went to Natal as a refugee. After the War he came to the Transvaal again, passing the necessary test at Volksrust on the 7th October, 1908. Since then he had been off and on in jail for non-compliance with the Registration Act. While in jail his store was broken into and he had lost all his property.

[Questioned] by the Magistrate: His registration pass, before the war, was issued at Komatipoort. He had not taken out a registration pass under subsequent legislation because of his conscience.

Mr. Gandhi again gave evidence and said that, about two months ago, when he was in Natal, the previous witness was there also. After consultation, and solely upon witness’s responsibility, the accused came to the Transvaal. He telegraphed\(^1\) to the Immigration Officer that the accused with her minor children was entering the Province upon a particular date. He received no reply, and the accused and her children left with witness for Johannesburg. At the border she was arrested as a prohibited immigrant.

Cross-examined: Witness considered the accused’s real home was in the Transvaal. When he came to the Transvaal he left his wife behind in Natal. The accused came to the Transvaal after her husband was convicted. He left a furnished home for his wife in Natal, but, unfortunately, it was not long furnished.

MR. CRAMER: I put it to you fairly and squarely. Was she not brought up here for the purpose of agitating against the Asiatic law?

[GANDHII]: That is entirely wrong.

Why was she brought here?

For the simple reason that the passive resisters’ families had to be supported out of public funds, and it was convenient to support Mrs. Sodha in the Transvaal as also to look after her family.

For whom to support her?

\(^1\) Vide “Telegram to Chief Immigration Officer”, before 6-11-1910
For those engaged in looking after the families of the passive resisters.

In the Transvaal?

Yes, in the Transvaal.

Sodha came up here as a passive resister?

Yes, he entered as a passive resister. He came here undoubtedly in order to test his rights.

And afterwards, in order that the passive resisters might better support his wife, you had her brought up?

Yes.

It was not impossible to keep the accused in Natal, said Mr. Gandhi, but it was highly inconvenient in the interests of the health of herself and the youngest child who was sickly. Mrs. Sodha was living in a lonely place. And she could be best protected at Tolstoy Farm.

In reply to questions from the Bench, Mr. Gandhi wished to make it quite clear that Mrs. Sodha had not been brought up in order in any manner whatsoever to support what had been called the Asiatic agitation. There had been no desire whatsoever to defy the laws of the country in connection with the entrance of Mrs. Sodha. On the contrary, every possible attempt had been made to conciliate the authorities, even where he thought they were erring on the wrong side so far as the legal point was concerned.

In further reply to the Magistrate, Mr. Gandhi said not a single passive resister got a single farthing as wage or pay for going to jail, unless the support given to dependants could be so termed.

THE MAGISTRATE: No, I do not mean that at all. What do the passive resisters do when they are discharged?

MR. GANDHI: Those who so wish are taken to Tolstoy Farm and there supported.

THE MAGISTRATE: Are they not paid anything?

MR. GANDHI: Not a farthing.

Mr. Gandhi then returned to his chair at the “horseshoe” and said that that was his case.

Mr. Cramer, in addressing the Court, said that the only question was whether the accused had a knowledge of a European language. This it was proved she did not possess. It might be unfortunate that the lady was before the Court; but her Asiatic birth had nothing to do with the case.
Mr. Gandhi, addressing the Court, gracefully acknowledged the courtesy extended by the Magistrate and the Public Prosecutor. He said that if the case ended with the education test, the Crown was bound to secure a conviction. But the speaker submitted that Mrs. Sodha was protected under the other sections of the Act. She was not guilty because she was the wife of a person who was not a prohibited immigrant. Mr. Sodha was not a prohibited immigrant because, according to the evidence, he had passed the education test at Volksrust on his entry. Again, Mr. Sodha, being a pre-war resident of the Transvaal, was an eligible Asiatic under the Registration Act, and, therefore, not a prohibited immigrant. Mr. Sodha’s conviction did not affect his (Mr. Gandhi’s) contention, as he was convicted only for not producing his registration certificate. This did not make Mr. Sodha a prohibited immigrant in any way whatsoever.

Mr. Gandhi further urged that Mrs. Sodha, being a married woman, could not, under the Common Law of South Africa, be declared guilty of a statutory crime. By the common Law she had a right to follow her husband. And while her husband was in the Transvaal she had a right to be also. In the circumstances, Mr. Gandhi asked for Mrs. Sodha’s discharge.

The Court reserved judgement up to the 6th January.¹

The proceedings were keenly watched by the Indian community. Many Indian ladies were present. Mrs. Vogl, Miss Schlesin, the Rev. Mr. Doke, and Mr. Kallenbach also attended. The Indian ladies remained with Mrs. Sodha the whole day and showed her marked attention. It was a pathetic scene to see her in the Court house with her baby in her arms and three-year-old child by her side.

_Indian Opinion, 7-1-1911_

217. LETTER TO L. W RITCH

[On or after January 1, 1911]²

Mr. L. W. Ritch, the Secretary of the British Indians’ Defence Committee³, since his return from South Africa three weeks ago, has had a letter from Mr. Gandhi, who says that a conversation with General Smuts leads him to believe that the promised new Bill will satisfy the Indians. The Bill is likely to be issued about the middle of this month. To satisfy the Indians it must, of course, provide not only for the repeal of the Registration Law, but for the elimination of racial discrimination in the Immigration Law. An interesting indication of the intentions of the South African Ministers is given in General Smuts’ speech in the Cape Parliament a fortnight ago.

¹ The judgement was actually delivered on January 11, 1911. Rambhabai Sodha was sentenced to a fine of £10 and one month’s simple imprisonment but, notice of appeal having been given, was released on a personal bail of £25.

² General Smuts’ speech in the Cape Parliament mentioned in the letter was made on December 13, 1910; the New Bill was “likely to be issued about the middle of this month”; and this summary of the letter was published in _India_, 20-1-1911. It must therefore have been written early in January 1911.

³ This should be South Africa British Indian Committee, London.
He made it clear that “it will continue to be the policy of South Africa not to let Asiatics into the country”. The educated British Indians will not oppose reasonable measures to restrict a flood of Asiatic immigration. Their case is simply that they must cease to be stigmatised under the law as undesirable. General Smuts went on to say that “he hoped the question was near a solution”, and that “he agreed that those who were domiciled in the country should be treated fairly”.

\textit{India, 20-1-1911}

\textbf{218. A MOMENTOUS DECISION}

Reuter’s correspondent at Calcutta cables the gladsome news that the Government of India has decided to issue a notice in April prohibiting the further emigration of indentured Indians to Natal from July 1st. The Hon. Prof. Gokhale, the representative of the non-official members of the Imperial Legislative Council, expressed the deep gratitude of Indians for the decision. Reuter adds that the decision has given the utmost satisfaction in India. There is no reason why, in South Africa, too, it ought not to give similar satisfaction, except among those whose material interests will be somewhat adversely affected by the stoppage of the labour supply. South Africa can never be the birth-place of a free and enlightened nation if it harbours slave-labour, which indentured labour certainly is. However that may be, the Indians of South Africa have achieved a notable victory. Mr. Polak had concentrated his efforts whilst in India upon the work of stopping the emigration of indentured Indians. And the credit belongs to Mr. Polak for the very satisfactory result of his labours.

Of the Hon. Prof. Gokhale, we cannot but write with the highest respect. In spite of his many most exacting self-imposed duties, and notwithstanding his indifferent health, he has found time to study our question as no other Indian has done. By his great work on our behalf, he has laid us under deep obligation to him. We hope that, without regard to what may be done to ameliorate the condition of the free Indian population, the Government of India will not swerve from their [sic] resolve. We oppose the system of indentured labour on merits—not because indentured Indians are specially badly treated in Natal, but because it is bad in itself and is devoid of merit even when the employers of such labour are the most humane of men. This stoppage will automatically solve the Indian question in this sub-continent. After the removal of the incubus, only time and patience are necessary for a steady improvement in our position under the Union.

_Indian Opinion, 7-1-1911_

219. INDIANS IN CANADA

In a previous issue we reproduced from a British newspaper a letter from one Mr. Sundersingh in Canada. We have now received a copy of the same from Mr. Sundersingh, in which he gives the particulars of the cases of Messrs Harnamsingh and Rahim. Mr. Harnamsingh had already been served with an order of deportation, and Mr. Rahim was about to be. A protest was lodged against this by the Hindustani Association there.

Our correspondent also says that Indians in Canada cannot migrate even to the U.S.A., while Japanese and Chinese traders, students and others are allowed to do so.

Once, we were talking to a Jew, who was a British subject. When, in the course of the conversation, we mentioned the fact of his being a British subject, he vehemently protested: “No; I am a British worm.” The reason for his exasperation was that he himself had suffered. One should not be surprised if Indians settled in British colonies also describe themselves as British worms. Kind-hearted persons take care not to trample upon worms. But many whites not only take no care not to trample upon us, they rather go out of their way to do so.

What is this due to? It is the same story in South Africa, and also in British Africa. There is turmoil in Mauritius. Only a few days ago, we printed a letter from Fiji. And now [we find] the Sikhs in Canada are also not allowed to live in peace.

Shall we blame the whites alone for these things? We, at any rate, cannot. If we live like worms, we are bound to be trampled upon. If

---

1 _Indian Opinion_, 24-12-1910. The letter was also published in _India_, London.

2 _Vide Indian Opinion_, 10-12-1910. There is no letter from Fiji; but there is a letter bearing the title “Indentured Slavery in Mauritius”.
we cease to be worms, no one will trample upon us.

It is quite easy to see that our circumstances are of our own making. This law also holds good in the case of slaves. In every country, the remedy is the same and a simple one at that. All else is as the mirage.

[From Gujarati]

_Indian Opinion, 7-1-1911_

220. LETTER TO CHANCHALBEHN GANDHI

TOLSTOY FARM,

_Sunday, Posh Sud 7 [January 8, 1911]_

_CHI. CHANCHAL._

I was very glad to read your long and interesting letter. Ba also read it with interest. Harilal will read it on his release tomorrow. I hasten to write this today as I have no time at the office. I am at the Farm just now. It is 9 p.m.

You must be getting _Indian Opinion_ regularly. Do you ever go out for a walk? It is good that you have kept up the habit of reading.

I wish you not to wear jewellery for fear of being criticized if you don’t. There is no beauty in jewellery. The first and real ornament for both man and woman is purity of character. That you possess such character is in itself a precious ornament. Our custom of wearing ornaments on the nose and the ears seems to me barbarous. I mean barbarous, not in comparison with the whites, but according to our own ideas [of civilized life]. That the poets have described Ramachandraji, Sitaji, and others as wearing jewels seems to me to be suggestive of the custom prevailing at the time [they wrote]. Otherwise I cannot imagine the benevolent Ramachandraji or the deeply devout Sitajicarrying even a particle of gold on their bodies. Whatever that may be, we can easily understand that there is no beauty in perforating the nose and the ears and inserting something there or in wearing ornaments round the neck or the arms. However, I say nothing about putting on bangles round the wrists, as their absence would suggest something inauspicious.¹

¹ Harilal Gandhi’s release referred to in para one of this letter took place on January 9, 1911.

² According to Hindu practice, only widows go without bangles.
It would be enough if we put on these things to prevent talk. These are my views. Think over them and do as you deem proper. You need not be embarrassed and do anything because of me.

Ramdas and Devdas are quite, cheerful. There are twenty boys here, so they feel quite at home. I find Ba also happy as she has the company of other women. She has given up tea at least for the present and is now habituated to bathing in cold water.

There is talk that the struggle might come to an end within this month or in February. Let us see what happens. Harilal will remain free, as the Government do not make arrests nowadays. I know his health was excellent in the Johannesburg Gaol.

Purshottamdas is also here after his release from gaol. A kiss to Ramibai. My regards to Chhabalbhabhi. I shall await Bali’s letter. What can I expect from Kumi when she does not write at all?

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati original in Gandhiji’s hand: S.N. 9528

221. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

TOLSTOY FARM,

Posh Sud 10 [January 10, 1911]¹

CHI. NARANDAS,

Received your letter. Remember this as an axiomatic truth that even if a single satyagrahi remains, he will win. During this struggle many successes have already been achieved. Being idol-worshippers, we shall recognize our victory only when the Act has been repealed and the colour bar removed. But for this, the battle is already won.

I read your views about weaving in your letter to Chi. Maganlal. They are quite right. What is required for the present is that every

¹ Addressee’s daughter
² Addressee’s mother
³ Addressee’s sister
⁴ ibid
⁵ Leung Quinn returned to South Africa from his visit to India in the first week of January 1911.
intelligent person should learn the craft. I see no benefit in getting the work done through hired labour. So that you are right in saying that we should not adopt that course. This is all that needs to be done: The person who weaves cloth after learning that craft must secure a rich buyer, who should make no profit from it, but should, on the contrary, be prepared to sustain a loss. If this comes about, thousands, I believe, will take to weaving.

Your views about Phoenix are, on the whole, correct. But you should not think that the impression you have gathered from a distance would remain the same when you view things at close quarters. This much is certain: under the prevailing conditions, Phoenix is the best place.

What Mr. Quinn told you about me is an exaggeration. It does not mean that I have attained any particularly high stage of development. It only means that Mr. Quinn, not having come in contact with an ordinary person of good character, was enamoured of me on seeing me. The adage, “Where there are no trees, the castor-oil plant passes for one”, fits the case.

Blessings from
M. HANDAS

From the Gujarati original in Gandhiji’s hand: C.W. 5074 Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi

222. DR. GOOL

We congratulate Mr. Yusuf Gool or his son’s entry into the medical profession. Mr. Yusuf Gool has received congratulatory telegrams from many places. Dr. Gool created a fine impression about himself in England. He was always busy with his studies. An examination in a medical course is not a simple affair. But Dr. Gool got through all the examinations at the very first attempt.

To what use will Dr. Gool now put his attainments? His father is a well-known public worker. Dr. Gool can do as much as his father, but the Indian community will expect more from him.

Dr. Gool has two alternatives before him. He may use his qualifications only for amassing wealth. We would consider this to be an abuse of education. The second course is to serve the community, even while engaged in making money. That will be the right use of education.

From the experience we have had of him, we know for certain that Dr. Gool will make the right use of his position.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 14-1-1911

223. FROM “TRANSVAAL NOTES”

Wednesday, January 18, 1911

I give the following rumour for what it may be worth, but I warn your readers against placing much reliance on this information, which I send not without much hesitation. It is stated that General Smuts made it a condition precedent to any settlement of the Transvaal trouble, that the repatriation of time-expired indentured Indians should be made compulsory. It, thus, appears that, as against repeal of Acts 2 of 1907 and 36 of 1908, and the restoration of legal equality in point of immigration, he wished to impose other conditions and restrictions, which the Imperial Government considered unacceptable. It is, accordingly, suggested that practically a deadlock exists, and that a general Immigration Bill may not, after all, be introduced during the present session of Parliament. Whether, however, there is or is not any truth in this rumour, I am in a position positively to affirm that passive resisters are thoroughly prepared for an indefinite prolongation of the struggle.

In view of possibilities, it is as well that there is a movement, amongst Indian merchants, towards supplying settlers at Tolstoy Farm with food-stuffs, the supply of which has always been a burden upon passive resistance funds.

Messrs Hansji Morar Patel and Dulabh Veera Bhaga have sent a bag of bhimri rice and half a case of ghee to the Farm.

Indian Opinion, 21-1-1911

---

1 Vide the following item.
224. JOHANNESBURG

[Wednesday, January 18, 1911]

GIFTS

Mr. Hansji Morar Patel and Mr. Dulabh Bhula Bhagat of Germiston have sent a bag of bhimri rice and a tin of ghee (41 lb). If a number of Indians keep sending gifts, that may mean so much less to spend from the Satyagraha Fund.

SETTLEMENT MAY NOT COME OFF

I find it necessary to say this. From some reports¹ which I have received, it appears that the negotiations for a settlement which were in progress have been abandoned. The Imperial Government has not accepted some of the proposals of General Smuts. It is believed that he wanted the period of contract of the indentured labourers to expire in India, that, in other words, the Government of India should enact legislation for their compulsory repatriation, as a condition for his agreeing to a settlement of the Transvaal agitation. It also appears that General Smuts wished, as in return for repeal of the obnoxious Act and granting of legal equality, to impose other harsh conditions which the Imperial Government did not accept. The new Immigration Bill seems to have been held up for this reason. This report is just a rumour and is based only on inference; it need not therefore be taken as very reliable. All the same, I should like to caution those who support the satyagraha movement and attach the highest value to it, that, should a settlement fail to materialize this time, the movement may perhaps be drawn out over many long years. In that case, the available funds will be exhausted and satyagrahis will be reduced to a pitiable plight; they will then have to depend entirely upon the well-to-do members of the community. That is why I said above that much saving can be effected if Indians take a turn in sending foodstuffs.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 21-1-1911

¹ Vide the preceding item.
CHI. CHHAGANLAL,

Your letter to hand. I think you have been there for over six months now. Chi. Maganlal has asked me how long you would be required to stay there. Hence I intend to discuss the question of your return. Please let me know what you yourself think, leaving aside whatever Doctor [Mehta] might say. I take it that your health has been restored. I also take it that you will now return to Phoenix. At the same time I hold that you are still free in this matter. Both Doctor [Mehta] and I think that you should do as you please. My own idea was that you should live in London for a year and gather whatever experience and knowledge you could. As for study, you will have it for the whole of your life. But if you imbibe the particular kind of atmosphere that obtains there, the voyage to England will have, to my mind, fulfilled its purpose. You may, however, let me know your views without any reservation,

The boys—Harilal and others—walked to Johannesburg (a distance of 20 miles) and back. I suggested their going on foot to save money; they agreed and were tested. Devo\(^2\) too joined in and so did Purshottamdas. The health of the boys has improved a lot here; whether or not their moral character too has developed, it is difficult to judge.

A motley crowd has assembled here.

Blessings from

MOHANDAS

[PS.]

I do not now think that there will be a settlement. You will see in Indian Opinion what I have written in this regard.\(^3\)

From a handwritten copy of the Gujarati original: C.W. 5075. Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi

---

1. This letter was written towards the end of Chhaganlal Gandhi’s stay in England between June, 1910 and January, 1911. In 1911, Posh Vad 6 corresponded to January 20.

2. Devdas

226. CHHOTABHAI CASE

We congratulate Mr. Chhotabhai on his great victory. In fighting for his son, he indirectly fought for the community as a whole. If he had wanted merely to protect his son’s interest, he would have probably succeeded in safeguarding his right by servile entreaties to the Government. But he courageously decided that he would fight.

It is, of course, a matter of regret that Mr. Chhotabhai has submitted to the law and that, even in regard to his son, all that was at issue was merely his right to submit to the law. The problem of his son, however, involved a major issue. It had to be solved, sooner or later. Hence, by obtaining an interpretation of the law, he has to that extent served the cause of satyagraha. We hope parents will not now make a rush for their children’s certificates. The verdict that has been obtained will not lapse and when a settlement takes place the rights of all children will be protected.¹

We shall know later the nature of the Court’s orders. One thing is certain, namely, that the Government made an all-out attack on minors, but it has failed.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 28-1-1911

227. JOHANNESBURG

Wednesday [February 1, 1911]

IMMIGRATION BILL

It is reported by The Star’s correspondent that this Bill is being drafted by the Government. He says it will be quite an important Bill, which will reveal the Asiatic policy of the Government. The discussion on Mr. Stallard’s resolution³ in the Transvaal Council suggests that the

¹ Given by the Supreme Court on January 25, 1911
² This was done in the provisional settlement of May 1911.
³ It recommended “to the Parliament of the Union . . . the enactment of legislation for preventing all further immigration of Asiatics and the repatriation of all Asiatics now in South Africa who have not been born within the Union”
Asiatic question is going to be a serious one. He said that the intermingling of Europeans and Asiatics was impossible. He has not raised issues of trade, etc. He has raised only one issue—opposition to Asiatics because they are Asiatics. His resolution was supported by 16 members. Most of them were Englishmen. Indians [born in South Africa] were excluded from the scope of the resolution.

Most of the Dutch members opposed this resolution. There seems to be some mystery behind this. There is no reason whatever to believe that they are well disposed towards us.

We shall know everything when the Immigration Bill is published.

SUCCESS OF SATYAGRAHA

Even His Royal Highness the Duke has been impressed by the satyagraha campaign. He has seen what a great movement it is. It is reported by Reuter that he referred to it at a party held in his honour, and said that he expected that there would be an early settlement of the question of the position of Indians.

CHHOTABHAI CASE

Mr. Chhotabhai has received a number of letters and telegrams congratulating him, including a cable from the Mahfil-i-Saif-ul-Islam of Kholwad.

Mr. Chhotabhai offers his thanks to all those who sent such messages, saying that he did no more than his duty in taking the risk that he had done in fighting the case. He is very happy that the community has appreciated his action so highly.

The [Transvaal] Leader, The Star and other newspapers have condemned the Government’s action. They say it is inconceivable that children, whose parents have the right of residence in the Transvaal, should be deported on attaining majority.

I have not yet received the judges’ comments. I shall send them as soon as I do. It will be some time, I think, before I get them from Cape Town.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 4-2-1911

---

1 At the Guildhall banquet on 30-1-1911
2 In Surat district, Gujarat
228. LETTER TO MAGANLAL GANDHI

Maha Shud 2 [February 1, 1911]¹

CHI. MAGANLAL,

Received your letters. It would be premature, I think, to buy land in India. Narandas has no experience in this matter. In buying land an element of selfishness is likely to creep in. There is no hurry about it. Something worthwhile can, I think, be done only if some experienced person goes from here. I feel that land will be easily available in India whenever we need it. If, however, Narandas is very enthusiastic about it, we should not discourage him. That Kashi will not come, is bad news. You have done what you could; we have to forget about her return for the present.

Is the article written by Balvantray² there? It is not found in the material you sent me.

Blessings from

MOHANDAS

From the Gujarati original in Gandhiji’s hand: C.W. 5076. Courtesy: Radhabehn Choudhri

229. CHHOTABHAI CASE

As time passes, further reflections occur on this case. The Chief Justice made some remarks which clearly expose General Smuts’ design. He had deliberately intended the law to be vague, so that the door might remain open for the deportation of minors. But the door has now been closed. “If the Legislature desires to place restrictions upon the liberty of subjects, it should do so in language which admits of no doubt as to its intention. Otherwise, we will refuse to give effect to the law.” These are the words of the Chief Justice. Not only is there no clear intention in the law to deprive the minors of their rights but ¹ This letter appears, from the reference to Kashi, Chhaganlal Gandhi’s wife, to have been written after “Letter to Maganlal Gandhi”, 15-11-1910. In 1911, Maha Shud 2 corresponded to February 1.

² Balvantray Kalyanray Thakore (1869-1951), Gujarati poet, essayist and critic.
³ Vide “Chhotabhai Case”, 28-1-1911
General Smuts also did not, while introducing the Bill, indicate that minors were not to be treated as residents. This is breach of faith, plain and simple. “He who digs a pit will fall into it himself”; accordingly, the Transvaal Government has fallen into a pit of its own making.

The community is therefore justified in attaching great importance to the Court’s judgement. Those who have sent telegrams and messages to Mr. Chhotabhai speak of his having braved a great risk. He certainly deserves the praise that has been showered on him.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 4-2-1911

230. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

TOLSTOY FARM,
Maha Shud 10 [February 8, 1911]

CHI. NARANDAS,

Received your letter of Magsar Vad 7. You have asked me good questions about the plague. When rats began to die in Rajkot I advised all to leave the house or the town. These were my ideas then. I now feel that it was a mistake on my part. Many of my ideas have undergone a similar change. Every time the objective was the same—the search for truth. Now I see that it is ignorance of the soul’s virtue to run away from houses. This does not mean that one’s house cannot be changed whatever may happen. We must leave the house if it is on fire. If snakes and scorpions are so rife as to cause instantaneous death, then also we may leave the house. I, however, do not mean to say that there is nothing wrong in doing so. For him who has completely known and realized the self the sky above is the only roof; he would live in a jungle and look upon snakes and scorpions as his friends. We who have not attained such a state live in houses for fear of cold, heat, etc., and we are ready to leave the house when dangers creep in there. Despite all this, we should aspire to realize the self as soon as may be. At any rate this is what I think.

1 From the reference to Chhaganlal Gandhi’s arrival in India, this letter appears to have been written after his departure from England for India on January 30, 1911.

2 December 24, 1910

3 In Rajkot in 1902 when Gandhiji stayed in India for about a year

216	THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
At the time of the plague Motilal Odhavji left [Rajkot] and posted his steward to look after his house. It is improper for one to do so. Had the house caught fire, the steward too would have run away. From this example you will be able to make out the distinction. The danger from plague, etc., I consider an ordinary one. The Mussalmans do not leave their houses, but stay on there with faith in God. If, however, they took the necessary measures [to fight the plague], they would be doing better. There is hardly any likelihood of the plague disappearing so long as we get panicky and run hither and thither. It is sheer cowardice if, instead of trying to find out the cause of the plague, we run away from the place where it breaks out. But when I myself am not satisfied with this answer, how could you be?

You will be able to know what passes in my mind only when we meet personally and questions come up incidentally. There are two reasons why I cannot explain things fully to your satisfaction. One is that I am so engrossed in other activities that I have no time to think over the matter and put my ideas on paper; the other is that there is no accord between my preaching and practice. If there were that accord which I would like to achieve, I would get the right words to make the thing instantly clear to you.

When respected Khushalbhai asks you to leave the house or the town for fear of the plague, it is but proper for you to do so. It is our duty to obey our elders so long as their orders do not conflict with our moral life. Therein lies our ultimate good. If you leave the plague-infested house not from fear of death but to please your parents, your behaviour will be quite blameless. However, the conditions are so difficult in some places and for some people that we have to think before obeying the orders of elders. I personally feel that the love of parents is so mysterious that one should not offend them without very strong reason. But my mind is not prepared to go to the same extent in respect of the other elders. When we have any doubt concerning problems of morality, we may disregard the orders of other elders; nay, it would be our duty to disobey them. But when there is no doubt about the morality of a question, even parents orders can be disregarded; nay, it will be our duty to do so. If my father asks me to steal, I must not. If I want to observe brahmacharya and my parents’ orders are to the contrary, I must politely disobey them. I consider it to be a duty not to betrothe Ramdas and Devdas till they come to their own. Were my parents alive and held a contrary opinion, I would have very politely opposed them. At the same time I believe that my mind is so free from prejudice in these matters that they would have accepted my views.

---

1 Motichand Odhavji Sharaf of Rajkot

This is enough. You may question me, if further doubts arise. I have written the foregoing, knowing that you, being virtuous, will not misinterpret my words. A hypocrite, on the other hand, would, because of what I have written, either consider me to be arrogant or, putting blind faith in my words, misinterpret me and disobey elders for the wrong reasons and would interpret what I have written about the plague to mean that as a proper remedy for plague even liquor, meat, etc., could be taken.

I see from Chi. Chhaganlal’s letter that he will reach there in a few days. Please tell Kalyandas¹ that I shall feel satisfied if he writes even a post card to me. Also tell him that he has not kept any of the promises he gave me.

Blessings from
MOHANDAS

From the Gujarati original in Gandhiji’s hand: C.W. 5077. Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi

231. LETTER TO MAGANLAL GANDHI

TOLSTOY FARM,
Maha Vad I [February 14, 1911]²

CHI. MAGANLAL,

Chi. Chhaganlal intends to come here. It was therefore wise of him to have gone to India. It would have been considered improper had he not done so. We were pressing him to go to India via South Africa, if he so desired, when he did not intend coming here. If he comes here I shall be free from worry about his health. His health will never be all right in India.

Let Karamat go to Durban. We have done whatever we could.

¹ Kalyandas Jagmohandas Mehta, who had worked with Gandhiji in South Africa; vide “Letter to Chief Secretary for Permits”, 15-8-1905 and “Kalyandas Jagmohandas [Mehta]”, 11-5-1907.
² This appears to have been written after Chhaganlal Gandhi left England for India on 30-1-1911.
Now he knows full well what treatment he should take. It is up to him now to take it or not.

Blessings from
MHOANDAS

[PS.]
I am mostly busy making sandals these days. I like the work and it is essential too. I have already made about fifteen pairs. When you need new ones now, please send me the measurements. And when you do so, mark the places where the strap is to be fixed—that is, on the outer side of the big toe and the little toe.¹

From the Gujarati original in Gandhiji’s hand: C.W. 5078 Courtesy: Radhabehn Choudhri

232. LETTER TO ACTING GENERAL MANAGER, SOUTH AFRICAN RAILWAYS

[JOHANNESBURG,]
February 20, 1911

The attention of my Association has been drawn to what purport to be railway regulations printed in the S.A.R. Official Tariff Book, No. 1³, dated the 1st instant. The book appears to reproduce the regulations regarding Asiatic passengers which, as a result of the conference between yourself, the then General Manager, Mr. Bell, and representatives of my Association, were repealed so far as this Province is concerned.¹¹ I shall therefore be obliged if you will be good enough to let me know whether the replacing regulations referred to by me have been repealed and the old ones re-instated.

Indian Opinion, 25-2-1911

233. DUTY OF NATAL INDIANS

It seems to us that the future of Indians in South Africa will be determined by what Natal Indians do. There are two main reasons for ¹ This is followed by a figure of the foot with marks made on it for the strap.

² This letter, presumably drafted by Gandhiji, was sent by the Chairman, British Indian Association.
³ Relevant extracts from which were published in Indian Opinion, 18-2-1911
⁴ Vide “Letter to General Manager, C.S.A.R.”, 12-4-1910
this. First, the number of Indians in Natal is large, and they have struck deep roots. Secondly, being rather small, Natal allows itself to be led by the Transvaal and the Orange Free State where people are comparatively more hostile to Indians. The new Railway regulations which have been notified will not be brought into force in the Cape, but will be in Natal. They are being followed in the Transvaal though, as we have seen, legally they stand repealed. More will be known from the reply to the letter\(^1\) which Mr. Cachalia has written. In the Orange Free State, these regulations have been in force for some time past. Natal, therefore, has a new case, and a strong one at that. The regulations cannot survive there for a single moment if we protest against them. We think they are only in the nature of a feeler. If we do not protest against them vigorously, by and by severer measures will follow. It is our view that, since these regulations do not yet have the force of law, we can go further than making a petition and challenge them in a court of law. We trust the Congress\(^2\) will immediately take up the matter.

These regulations should set us thinking. As time passes the Union Parliament will harden, rather than relent, in its attitude to us. Our strength, our enthusiasm, our unity and our spirit of patriotism should grow likewise. In the present circumstances, we have every chance of succeeding if we exert ourselves sufficiently. This is a matter to which Natal Indians would do well to pay some attention.

\[\text{[From Gujarati]}\]
\[\text{Indian Opinion, 25-2-1911}\]

234. NEW IMMIGRATION BILL\(^3\)

\[\text{JOHANNESBURG,}\]
\[\text{Wednesday, March 1, 1911}\]

The long-expected Immigration Bill\(^4\) has now been received. It is very complicated and comprehensive. I simply give what suggests itself to me as the meaning:

\[1 \text{ Vide the preceding item.}\]
\[2 \text{ The Natal Indian Congress}\]
\[3 \text{ Vide the following item.}\]
\[4 \text{ Vide Appendix, "Immigrants’ Restriction Bill", 4-3-1911.}\]

220 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
(1) The Asiatic Act 2 of 1907 is to be repealed, save in so far as it protects the rights of minors.

(2) Act 36 of 1908 is not to be repealed.

(3) It seems, but it is not clear, that those who pass the language test can enter the Transvaal and not be liable to registration. (If this is so, it will stop passive resistance.)

(4) The wives and minor children of domiciled Asiatics do not seem to be protected.

(5) The granting of certificates of domicile to Asiatics in Natal and the Cape is at the discretion of the authorities.

(6) The education test is of so drastic a character that not a single Indian may be allowed to enter the Union.

(7) No facilities seem to exist for the protection of those who may be wrongly prohibited by an officer.

Indian Opinion, 4-3-1911

235. JOHANNESBURG

Wednesday [March 1, 1911]

NEW BILL

At last the new Bill¹ has been published. There is no time to give a translation. It is not even possible just yet to comment on it at length. But I see that it will have the following consequences:

(1) Act No. 2 [of 1907] will be repealed, save in so far as it protects the rights of Asiatic minors.

(2) The other registration Act [No. 36 of 1908] will not be repealed.

(3) Anyone who can write fifty words in a language selected by an [immigration] officer will be allowed to enter. Indian languages are included in this, but that does not mean that Indians will be able to enter in large numbers.

(4) The wives and minor children of domiciled Indians do not seem to be protected.

(5) The rights of old residents of the Cape and Natal are seriously endangered.

(6) The granting of domicile certificates to Indians mentioned in (5)

¹ Vide Appendix, “Immigrants’ Restriction Bill”, 4-3-1911.
above will be at the discretion of the authorities.

(7) There seems to be no provision for a right of appeal to a court by anyone who may be wrongly prohibited.

This seems to be the position. It appears from General Smuts’ speech that Indians will enjoy only the rights which they possess at present in their respective provinces, and that only a limited number of fresh immigrants will be permitted every year.

If the Bill permits educated Indians to come in as fresh immigrants without requiring them to register, it will enable the satyagraha campaign to be withdrawn. Whether or not the Bill bears any such meaning, it is not possible as yet to say with certainty. But what will be the position of Natal and the Cape? It is serious enough to call for a bit of thinking. If the Bill passes into law, educated persons will not be able to come in as freely as they have been doing, and the rights of those who are already there will not be protected. Natal and the Cape need to take immediate steps. I think they should first correspond with General Smuts and then petition the Assembly.

This is a critical time. The Bill does not yet appear to have received publicity. The summary given above, however, is based on the published text of the Bill.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 4-3-1911

236. INTERVIEW TO “THE TRANSVAAL LEADER”

Johannesburg, March 1, 1911

Mr. Gandhi was asked last evening by a press representative for his views on the [Immigrants’ Restriction] Bill. He said:

The Bill is so comprehensive and complicated that I have not

---

1 Made on February 28, 1911 in the Union Assembly
2 Vide “Natal Petition to Union Assembly”, 9-3-1911
3 It was published in full as a Supplement to Indian Opinion, 4-3-1911.
4 Vide the preceding item.
5 This appeared in Indian Opinion, 11-3-1911, under the caption: “Mr. Gandhi’s Views”.
6 Vide Appendix, “Immigrants’ Restriction Bill”, 4-3-1911.
been able to get to the bottom of it. Passive resistance has been continued simply to secure the repeal of Act 2 of 1907, and the theoretical legal equality of Asiatics as to immigration into the Transvaal. The repeal of Asiatic Act 2 of 1907 save as to the rights of the Asiatic minors meets the first point. I do not quite understand the operation of the education test. If the Bill is intended to mean that those who pass the education test imposed by the officer appointed under the Bill are free to enter the Province of the Transvaal, as I take it they are to enter the other Provinces, without liability to registration under Act 36 of 1908—which I see is not to be repealed—passive resistance will end. And if such is the meaning of the first section, whilst the position is satisfactory with that meaning, in my humble opinion such a position should be clearly defined in the Bill. I do not see any protection for the wives and minor children of those who may enter the Union under the education test. From the speech of General Smuts, reported in today’s papers, I gather that any Asiatics allowed to enter the Union will be free to move about the Union like all other immigrants so far as their mere residence is concerned, notwithstanding the existence of Ordinances such as for instance the Orange Free State Ordinance regarding Asiatics. I shall be asked by British Indians at the Cape, as also in Natal, many questions with reference to the meaning of the Bill; and whilst, whatever restrictions may be placed with reference to Asiatics in these Provinces, the present passive resistance struggle cannot be prolonged by reason thereof. I trust the Government will not resent my bringing to their notice the difficulties that arise in interpreting the Bill. In what manner are the rights of the present Asiatic residents of these Provinces secured? Both the Cape and the Natal statutes exempt from their respective prohibitive clauses domiciled Asiatics. This clause, as well as the clause of exemption regarding the wives and minor children of such Asiatics has been omitted from the Bill, and I cannot help feeling that sub-clause 2 of clause 25 of the Bill renders precarious the position of Asiatics who may wish to absent themselves from their respective Provinces. In view of the remark made by General Smuts that it is not his intention to harry the Asiatics residing in South Africa, I trust that the Bill will be so amended as to leave their position as secure as it is to-day. I miss, too, the usual clause in such Bills affording facilities to immigrants treated as prohibited by an immigration officer to prove their claim of entry or re-entry, as the case may be.

1 Vide the following item.

The Transvaal Leader, 2-3-1911

237. LETTER TO E. F. C. LANE

[JOHANNESBURG,]
March 2, 1911

ERNEST C. LANE, ESQ.
PRIVATE SECRETARY TO GENERAL SMUTS
CAPE TOWN

DEAR MR. LANE,

I have just read the Immigrants’ Restriction Bill published in the Government Gazette Extraordinary dated the 25th ultimo. As it appears to me to be highly complicated, I am not certain of the meaning to be attached to it; and, as I am most desirous of helping, to the best of my ability, to end the prolonged Asiatic struggle in the Transvaal, I venture to submit the following to General Smuts.

Passive resistance has been continued in order to secure repeal of Act 2 of 1907 and the theoretical legal equality of Asiatics as to immigration into the Transvaal, in practice reduced to the admission of a certain number, say six, of highly educated British Indians per year.

I observe that Act 2 of 1907, save as to the rights of Asiatic minors, is to be repealed. This, therefore, practically meets the first point. I do not, however, quite understand the clause as to the education test, and its effect. As Section 1, besides repealing the laws referred to in the first schedule, also repeals other laws to the extent to which they may be repugnant to the provisions of the Bill, it seems to me that educated Asiatics who pass the test prescribed by the immigration officers will be able to enter and remain in the Transvaal, without being liable to take out registration under Act 36 of 1908. And, if such be the meaning of the first section of the Bill, the Transvaal struggle can happily end. But I venture to submit that such meaning should be clearly and unequivocally brought out in the Bill

---

1 This letter was drafted before the preceding item; vide “Letter to L. W. Ritch”, 2-3-1911 itself. May I also know under what clause of the Bill the wives of registered Asiatics are protected?

224 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI

_I am,_

_Yours faithfully,_

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S.N. 5222; also

_Indian Opinion_, 18-3-1911

238. LETTER TO R. GREGOROWSKI

JOHANNESBURG,

March 2, 1911

DEAR MR. GREGOROWSKI

The enclosed Bill, of a copy of which I seem to be the only possessor, I must confess baffles me, the more so as I am suspicious of the intentions of General Smuts. I, therefore, do not trust myself to give a correct interpretation of it. May I, therefore, fall back upon you?

The following are my deductions:

1. Inasmuch as all laws to the extent that they are repugnant to the provisions of the Bill are to be repealed, an educated Asiatic passing the education test prescribed by an officer is a competent immigrant to the Transvaal, without the necessity of having to submit to the Registration Act No. 36 of 1908 (vide Sections 1 and 4)

2. It is not competent for the aggrieved party to have the decision of the officer imposing the education test brought in review before a Court of Law, no matter how ridiculously harsh the test imposed may be (vide Section 4).

3. An Asiatic immigrant admitted under the education test will be a lawful immigrant even for the Orange Free State, in spite of its exclusive Asiatic Ordinance (vide Section 1).

4. A Transvaal Asiatic will not be able to move to Natal or the

---

1 A lawyer of Johannesburg whose opinion Gandhiji frequently sought on matters legal and constitutional

2 Immigrants’ Restriction Bill (1911); vide Appendix, “Immigrants’ Restriction Bill”, 4-3-1911.
Cape, because he will be excluded under Section 4 by means of a rigid education test, unless such Asiatic happened to have residential rights in either of those Provinces.

(5) An Asiatic who has once passed the education test under the Act cannot be challenged in the different Provinces, as soon as he shows that he has been once examined.

(6) The present residents in the respective Provinces do not appear to be in any way protected or exempted from the operation of the education clause. What is their legal position?

(7) The wives and minor children of resident Asiatics or such Asiatics as may enter under the education test are also not protected specifically by the Bill. What is their status? And, if they are protected under the common law, does it mean that the son under the age of twenty-one of a resident Asiatic can claim entry?

(8) Under the reservation clause in the first schedule following the repeal of Act 2 of 1907, minor sons of Asiatics registered in the Transvaal will always be able, if under the age of 16, to enter the Transvaal, and, on attaining the age of 16, to demand registration as a matter of right in virtue of the Chhotabhai judgement.

(9) In virtue of Section 25 Sub-section 2, it seems that every Asiatic leaving South Africa or the respective Provinces in which he may be resident can be made a prohibited immigrant by the Minister declining to give him a certificate of domicile.

Will you kindly treat this letter as a Brief. I do not think I need send you the Immigration Statutes of Natal, because, being repealed, they have no bearing on the question.

Yours faithfully,
M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat of the typewritten original signed by Gandhiji: S.N. 5223
MY DEAR RITCH,

You have arrived on the scene none too soon,¹ and, in the words of the Times writer, you are immediately “to co-operate with those advocating on the spot the claims of the British Indians”. You will see the new Bill there. I enclose herewith my analysis of it in the letter to Mr. Gregorowski. I enclose also my letter² to Smuts, and the interview with the *Leader.*³ I, at first, wanted to send a letter to Smuts in accordance with [the] interview, which is really taken from the letter that was to be sent to Smuts. Cartwright⁴ thought that I ought to publish the letter and make the position clear, but I told him it would be wise not to do that. He, therefore, published the main contents in the form of an interview. Subsequently, I changed my mind, and I thought that to Smuts I should simply write on the struggle, so that, in the event of future disputes, the issues might not be clouded. While, from the theoretical standpoint, the Bill is admirable, seeing that it recognises the equality of Indian languages also with the languages of Europe, the practical effect of the Bill, so far as the Cape and Natal Asiatics are concerned, is, in my opinion, disastrous, as you will see from my analysis. You may just compare the Cape Immigration Act with the Bill, and you will see the glaring difference. Smuts stated definitely, as you will see from the Leader report of his speech on Neser’s⁵ amendment, enclosed herewith,⁶ that the way he wishes to meet Asiatic trading is by stopping Asiatic immigration entirely, except for a certain number to be agreed upon between the Imperial Government and the Union Government. This doctrine may be all very well for the Transvaal, but how can the Cape and Natal Asiatics agree to a material curtailment of their rights? It will hinder them

¹ The addressee actually arrived at Cape Town on March 7, 1911.
² Vide “Letter to E.F.C. Lane”, 2-3-1911
³ Vide “Interview to The Transvaal Leader”, 1-3-1911
⁴ Editor, The Transvaal Leader, a friend of Gandhiji and Smuts; sympathetic to Indians and interested in a reasonable settlement
⁵ Member of the Union Parliament
⁶ Not reproduced here from getting clerical and other assistance, because semi-educated young Indians, I think, will hardly be admitted under the education test. I suggest, therefore, first a deputation to the Minister of the Interior, from the Cape, with a written submission; his answer being unsatisfactory, a petition\(^1\) to Parliament, and an interview with the Cape Members who have hitherto been sympathetic, and who have also been receiving the Indian vote. I think that the Cape Members will be largely sympathetic. It is highly unlikely that, with reference to the education test, you will succeed in getting a substantial amendment of the Bill, but you may get a declaration that the test will be so applied as to enable Indians to get the necessary number of educated assistants. But the most important section, on which I think you are almost bound to succeed, is Section 25. The latter ought to define, as the present Immigration Laws both of the Cape and Natal do, the residential rights. The Cape Statute states that domiciled Asiatics and their wives and minor children are exempt from the prohibitive clauses, and the Natal Statute, besides containing the general clause as to domicile, states that, for the purposes of the Act, three years’ residence in Natal will be accepted as a title to domicile; and it ought not to be at the discretion of the Minister, but obligatory on him, to issue a certificate of domicile to any Asiatic applicant. I think that in this respect you will find the Cape Members very sympathetic. When I was on board, I discussed the Cape Asiatic Act with Sauer, and he told me that the issue of temporary permits only to Asiatics absenting themselves from the Cape, instead of permanent certificates of domicile, was a crying injustice, and he assured me that he knew nothing about it.\(^2\) If these amendments can be secured, I think that the Immigrants’ Act will be admirable. I think, too, that, in order to put the community right in so far as it can do so in the eyes of the European inhabitants, it would be a tactful move to make the admission that, in view of the unfortunate prejudice that exists, we cannot claim the right of inter-communication between the Provinces; but this submission should be modified by the declaration that the education test to be imposed upon people wanting to pass to and fro within the Union ought not to be severe.

I have asked West to send you copies of Indian Opinion from

---

\(^1\) Vide Appendix, “Cape Petition to Parliament”, 15-3-1911.

\(^2\) Vide “Letter to the Press”, 27-3-1918.
and after the 18th ultimo.¹ I hope that you have them. From your letter, I presume that you have not brought Mr. Cohen² with you. The publication of the Bill will now keep you there, I take it, for some time. More later on.

Yours sincerely,

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S.N. 5219

240. TELEGRAM TO ADAM GOOL

JOHANNESBURG,
March 2, 1911

TO ADAM GOOL³
8, KLOOF STREET
CAPE TOWN

MR. RITCH EXPECTED NEXT TUESDAY. PLEASE RECEIVE WITH DUE HONOUR. IMMIGRATION BILL PUBLISHED. SEE “GAZETTE EXTRAORDINARY” LAST SATURDAY. BILL BAD FOR CAPE, NATAL. STRENUOUS OPPOSITION NECESSARY. AWAIT LETTER. WIRE WHETHER YOU GOT COPY.

GANDHI

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S.N. 5220

241. LETTER TO ABDUL HAMID GOOL

[JOHANNESBURG,] March 2, 1911

DEAR DR. GOOL⁴.

Here is something for you which is not merely writing out prescriptions or probing other people’s physical wounds. Mr. Ritch arrives on Tuesday. I hope that you will do your best to ensure a hearty welcome. This, however, is the least part of what I expect from ¹ This letter to West is not available.

² Addressee’s father-in-law
³ Adam Hajee Gool Mahomed, President, Cape British Indian Union
⁴ One of the Joint Honorary Secretaries of the Cape British Indian Union you. You will have, I hope, by the time this reaches you studied the new Immigration Bill. Whilst it is likely to satisfy the demands of passive resistors in the Transvaal, it deprives the Cape and the Natal Indians of a very great deal. I think that, if a proper and sustained agitation is taken up, we can at least secure a certain measure of success. The education test is very stiff without any justification. So far as Natal and the Cape are concerned, no good reason can be shown for altering the existing conditions. Then, again, the rights of domiciled Asiatics will be made very insecure, and one does not know the meaning of the Bill as to the status of the wives and minor children of lawfully resident Asiatics. All these things are capable of relief and adjustment. Will you please actively co-operate with Mr. Ritch and do whatever is possible and necessary? How are you getting on?

Yours sincerely,

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S.N. 5221

242. LETTER TO H. S. L. POLAK

JOHANNESBURG,

March 2, 1911

MY DEAR POLAK,

You will see from the enclosed my analysis of the Bill. The more I consider the Bill, the more certain I feel that the Transvaal struggle will end. The meaning I give to the first section is, I feel, the meaning Smuts has intended to give it; but what a terrible thing for the Cape and Natal. You will see from my letter to Ritch what I suggest should be done for the Cape. I think the same steps might be taken, with the necessary change, regarding Natal. I think that the Natal people should immediately send a representation inquiring about the meaning of the Bill as to the wives and minor children, as also as to the rights of domicile. This should be done by wire, draft of which herewith. After the reply is received, a representation should be sent to the Minister of the Interior, and, failing a satisfactory reply, a petition to Parliament, which will be presented through Sir David

1 Vide “Letter to R. Gregorowski”, 2-3-1911
2 Vide “Letter to L. W. Ritch”, 2-3-1911
3 Vide “Natal Petition to Union Assembly”, 9-3-1911.
Hunter’. Haggar’s calumnies and other misrepresentations made at the time of the debate opened by Neser should be answered by a public letter to the Prime Minister, a copy of which should be posted to every Member of the Union Parliament. I hope to draft the letter for your guidance, and send it to you.

Yours sincerely,

[Enclosure]

DRAFT

Committee Congress seen Immigration Restriction Bill. Before submitting its views to Government, Committee respectfully desire information following points: In absence special protective clause as in present Act, what are statute rights domicile or residence this Province for British Indians, and under what section or how are rights of minor children and wives lawfully resident Asiatics protected?

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S.N. 5218

243. TELEGRAM TO PARSEE RUSTOMJEE

[JOHANNESBURG.]
March 2, 1911

TO RUSTOMJEE
DURBAN

POLAK LEFT INGOGO MAIL TRAIN FOR DURBAN. INFORM HIM LONG LETTER SENT YOUR CARE REGARDING

1 Members of Parliament of the Union of South Africa
2 No such letter appears to have been sent. In his speech, as chairman of a mass meeting of Natal Indians, Dawad Mahomed said that the slanderous statement by Haggar, that most of them were not Indians at all, but alien Asiatics, had been ‘adequately’ answered by The Natal Mercury.
3 ibid
4 This telegram was sent to General Smuts by the Natal Indian Congress on March 4. As no reply was received, a further telegram was dispatched on March 6. On March 7, the Private Secretary to Smuts sent a telegraphic reply: . . . Immigration Bill does not deal with people, whether white or coloured, domiciled or lawfully resident in South Africa, but is, as is outlined in the preamble, a Bill to regulate immigration pure and simple. Asiatic laws regulating rights of those resident lawfully in the Provinces remain unaltered and are not repealed, except Act 2 of 1907 in the Transvaal.
5 A town in Natal, 297 miles from Durban
6 Vide the preceding item.
Bil will reach Saturday. He should be tomorrow Phoenix Saturday Durban. will be town tomorrow.

Gandhi

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S.N. 5217

244. Telegram to Private Secretary
To General Smuts

Johannesburg,
March 3, 1911

May I know whether Section One Immigrants Restriction Bill, just introduced, contemplates Asians who may pass education test will be able enter Transvaal without being liable to take out registration under Act thirty-six 1908. Wrote letter yesterday more fully but in view bill having been read first time request telegraphic information.

Gandhi

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S.N. 5224; also

Indi Opinion, 18-3-1911

245. Letter to Director of Prisons

[Johannesburg,]
March 3, 1911

Sir,

Mr. Daniel Armugam, who was discharged from Diepkloof Gaol as a passive resister on the 1st instant, informs my Association that in the cell occupied by him and his fellow-prisoners, about a fortnight before his discharge, at one o’clock, when he was half asleep, he found a snake just crawling on his neck. He naturally got up

---

1 Vide “Letter to E.F.C. Lane”, 2-3-1911
2 On 2-3-1911
3 This letter, presumably drafted by Gandhiji, was sent over the signature of A. M. Cachalia.
somewhat terrified, and succeeded in shaking it off. Fortunately, there was a light in the cell, and he awakened his neighbour, towards whom the snake was going. In an instant, all the occupants of the cell were awake. It appears that one of the prisoners was allowed to enter the cell with his sandals, and these were used for killing the snake. Mr. Armugam, as also the other Indian prisoners who were discharged with him, inform my Association that the cells at Diepkloof are ill-constructed, and are not proof against reptiles. Some of the passive resisters further inform my Association that the discovery of a snake at night-time is not an entirely unusual occurrence in that cell. Within their experience, a snake was found there some time before also. I, therefore, respectfully draw your attention to the matter, so that the cells may be so constructed as to avoid danger of the kind herein mentioned.¹

Indian Opinion, 11-3-1911

246. LETTER TO A. H. WEST

[JOHANNESBURG,]

March 3, 1911

MY DEAR WEST,

This will be in your hands on Monday. I think that Polak will perhaps be in Durban. I have just condensed what I thought was necessary regarding Ritch². All the other correspondence from London I am sending you. When Polak comes there you may show it to him. He may make what use he likes of it beyond what I have prepared. For the time being, I shall be almost every day in town, and, in the event of an unfavourable construction of the first section of the Bill, I may even have to go to Cape Town. Everything will depend upon how matters progress. If there is too much pressure on your space in connection with the Bill, I think it will be better to postpone publication of the judgments in the Chhotabhai case.³ The Bill places

¹ The Director replied, saying that he was inquiring.
² A report of the meeting held in London to present a testimonial to Ritch appeared in Indian Opinion of the 11th, 18th and 25th March.
³ Accordingly the judgment was published later serially in Indian Opinion, 22-4-1911 and 29-4-1911. The Gujarati translation was, however, published in March in four instalments.
the judgments in the background. I send you also leading article\(^1\) from The Star of yesterday, which should be condensed and reproduced; and, of course, you will get the Press Notices of the Bill from your exchanges. In the event of the Bill not going through the Assembly or being materially altered for the worse, we shall want to make use of the newspaper notices.

_Yours sincerely,_

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S.N. 5225

---

247. LETTER TO OLIVE DOKE

JOHANNESBURG,

_March 3, 1911_

MY DEAR OLIVE,

I hope you enjoyed your holiday. Father\(^2\) told me you had arrived and I mentioned the fact to Ramdas also. I shall now see whether I can send both the boys\(^3\) on Thursday. The journey from Lawley is an expensive item and the other boys on the Farm too naturally want an opportunity of learning simple singing. In view of the publication of the Bill I propose to wait for a week or so. Thank you all the same for your kind offer.

Pray remember me to mother.

_Yours sincerely,_

M. K. GANDHI

MISS OLIVE DOKE

11, SUTHERLAND AVENUE
HOSPITAL HILL
JOHANNESBURG

From a photocopy of the original in Gandhiji’s hand: C.W. 4929. Courtesy: C. M. Doke

---

\(^1\) Reproduced in Indian Opinion, 11-3-1911

\(^2\) Rev. J. J. Doke

\(^3\) Ramdas and Devdas, for taking lessons in music
248. HELP FROM THREE WOMEN

In the Transvaal struggle we have received help not only from prominent men but in equal measure from notable women also. Readers of Indian Opinion are aware of the help received by Mr. Polak in India under the leadership of Mrs. Ramabai Ranade and Mrs. Petit.

And now we have had a Reuter message about a forceful article of Mrs. Mayo [published] in England. We have also received an advance copy of the article itself and have a clearer idea of its contents. She writes about the whole of South Africa. As we intend to publish a translation, we do not wish to say more about the article here. We shall merely give some particulars of Mrs. Mayo. She is an old lady of about 60. She is a novelist and journalist, and one of those selected by the late Tolstoy to translate his works. We can therefore see why it was that her article caused the stir it did.

Besides Mrs. Mayo, there is Miss Hilda Howsin. The report of her lecture at the East India Association is worth reading. In this she discussed the issues involved in matters relating to the Transvaal problem. Everyone who commented on her lecture admired the satyagraha struggle and expressed sympathy for the satyagrahis. About the same time that these two ladies were thus engaged in writing or speaking, Miss Polak was appointed Secretary of the Committee.

What need is there, then, to feel dispirited, when we have been thus getting help, whether or no we ask for it, when the struggle has become well known, and when South African Indians are attracting world-wide attention and India’s prestige is rising correspondingly? Seeing that this is the fruit of our struggle having been prolonged, we should fight on with still greater zeal.

We intend to publish Mrs. Mayo’s article and the report of Miss

---

1 Mrs. John R. Mayo occasionally wrote under the assumed name of Edward Garrett. The article appeared in the Millgate Monthly.

249. RAMBHABAI SODHA

The wrangling over Rambhabai’s case still continues. The Transvaal High Court having confirmed the decision of the Magistrate, an appeal has been filed to a higher court. This being the first case involving a woman, it will be wise, from a practical point of view, to take all possible steps to prevent her being lodged in gaol. That will be no special reflection on our idealism and the appeal may therefore be welcomed. By filing the appeal, moreover, we secure ourselves against all blame. We give proof to the world of our determination not to send women to gaol except as a last resort. General Smuts can no longer allege that we are intent on sending them to gaol.

The clay is on the potter’s wheel. We shall see what kind of a pot it turns out. Meanwhile, we urge Indians, both men and women, to emulate the example of Rambhabai.

[From Gujarati]
Indian Opinion, 4-3-1911

250. TELEGRAM TO TOLSTOY FARM AND H. KALLENBACH

JOHANNESBURG, March 4, 1911

TO
(1) GANDHI
LAWLEY
(2) H. KALLENBACH
INFORM ALL EXTREMELY SATISFACTORY WIRE FROM

1 Vide Indian Opinion, April 29, May 6, 13, 27, June 3 and 10, 1911.
2 The Magistrate had sentenced her, on January 10, 1911 to a fine of £10 and one month’s imprisonment. The High Court revised the sentence to one of fine or imprisonment.
251. TELEGRAM TO PRIVATE SECRETARY TO MINISTER OF INTERIOR

JOHANNESBURG,
March 4, 1911

BEG THANK GENERAL SMUTS FOR WIRE FOURTH INSTANT AND FOR ASSURANCES CONTAINED THEREIN. COUNSEL HOWEVER ADVISES UNLESS SPECIAL MENTION MADE BILL EDUCATED ASIATICS ENTERING UNDER EDUCATION TEST FREE LIABILITY TRANSVAAL REGISTRATION ACT FREE STATE ASIATIC ORDINANCE THEY WILL BE PROHIBITED UNDER THOSE SPECIAL LAWS. COUNSEL ALSO ADVISES MINOR CHILDREN OUTSIDE TRANSVAAL AND WIVES OF LAWFUL RESIDENTS NOT PROTECTED UNDER COMMON LAW. IF GENERAL SMUTS WILL BE PLEASED GIVE ASSURANCE BILL WILL BE ALTERED REMOVING UNCERTAINTY WILL GLADLY ADVISE COMMUNITY CEASE PASSIVE RESISTANCE AND GRATEFULLY ACCEPT BILL.

GANDHI

252. LETTER TO E.F.C. LANE

JOHANNESBURG,
March 4, 1911

DEAR MR. LANE,

Will you please convey my thanks to General Smuts for the

1 Vide 1st footnote of “Letter to E.F.C.Lane”. 4-3-1911.
2 Presumably, Sorabji Adajania and Sorabjee Rustomjee
3 The photostat has the date 6th. Indian Opinion, however, gives the correct date, the 4th.
4 Vide the following item.
encouraging wire¹ just received? I need hardly repeat what I have said in my letter of the 2nd instant, that it is my sincere desire to help to bring the struggle to a close. I, therefore, welcome the assurance that those Asiatics who pass the education test will not be subject to the Registration Act No. 36 of 1908 of the Transvaal, which is not to be repealed.

I have naturally not relied, in this very important matter, on my own unaided interpretation of the Bill. I have now received Counsel’s² opinion, which advises that my interpretation is totally wrong, and that Section 1 of the Bill does not protect educated Asiatics from being subject to Act 36. The opinion before me states emphatically that Section 7, if nothing else, militates against any such interpretation. I, therefore, venture to submit that the Bill should be so amended in Committee as to make the point absolutely clear. I am sure that General Smuts will agree with me that this time nothing should be left understood or uncertain so far as the meaning of the Bill and the intention of the Government are concerned.

The opinion in question also raises a difficulty which I had not anticipated, namely, that the minor children of registered Asiatics who are not at present in the Transvaal are not at all protected, in spite of the judgment in the Chhotabhai case,³ and that neither the wives nor the minor children will have common law protection in this Bill. I trust, therefore, that these two points will also be made perfectly clear during the Committee stage.

On receipt of a satisfactory assurance on the points I have taken the opportunity of raising in this letter, I shall be prepared to advise the community in the Transvaal to send a formal acquiescence,⁴ and passive resistance will then naturally end. May I also express the hope that, if the assurance requested is given, those who are now in gaol will be discharged, and those who have been suffering rightly or wrongly

¹ This said: “. . . Asiatics admitted as immigrants under new Immigration Bill would not fall under registration laws and would not be restricted to provincial limits. In order to prevent confusing them with those legally resident in the Provinces and liable to registration it would be necessary to keep the lists of them, but as they will belong to the educated class, their signatures taken on admission ought to be sufficient . . .” Reproduced in Indian Opinion, 18-3-1911.
² Gregorowski; vide letters to H. S. L. Polak, 4-3-1911 and “Letter to J.J. Doke”, 8-3-1911.
³ Vide “Chhotabhai Case”, 28-1-1911
⁴ Vide “Letter to Private Secretary to Minister of Interior”, 10-3-1911 for conscience sake will not be penalised, but that the rights which every passive resister would have under Act 36 of 1908 will be respected.

I am,

Yours faithfully,

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S.N. 5227; also

Indian Opinion, 18-3-1911

---

253. LETTER TO L. W. RITCH

JOHANNESBURG,

March 4, 1911

MR. DEAR RITCH,

I hope you will receive with this my letter¹ of Thursday last, under separate cover. After that letter was closed, I saw in The Star that the Bill had already been read a first time. On Friday, I, therefore, sent the following wire to General Smuts:

May I know whether section one Immigrants’ Restriction Bill just introduced contemplates Asiatics who may pass education test will be able enter Transvaal without being liable to take out registration under Act 36, 1908. Wrote letter yesterday more fully but in view Bill having been read first time request telegraphic information.²

To this his reply³ as per copy enclosed was received today. The reply seems to be satisfactory in more ways than one. It shows clearly how your work in London and Polak’s in India have told on the Imperial and Indian Governments, and the latter’s pressure on the Union Government. We ought not, however, to be satisfied with the assurance. We want no loophole left. It will, therefore, be necessary still to watch the progress of the Bill, so far as the points affecting passive resisters are concerned. Polak strongly urges that you should confer with Schreiner⁴ regarding the points raised by me in my

---

¹ Vide “Letter to L. W. Ritch”, 2-3-1911
² Vide “Telegram to Private Secretary to General Smuts”, 3-3-1911
³ Vide 1st footnote of “Letter to E.F.C. Lane”, 4-3-1911.
⁴ William Philip Schreiner (1857-1919); politician and barrister; High Commissioner for Union of South Africa in England, 1914; Member of Rhodes’ second Ministry, 1898; twice Attorney-General; Prime Minister of Cape Colony, 1898-1900
letter¹ to Gregorowski. I agree with him entirely, and it will be ever so much better if we collect opinions from all sides. I am suggesting to Polak that he should confer with Laughton² also. You will have noticed that the Bill has been set down for the second reading on Monday³ week. All our principal representations, therefore, should be placed either before the Government or before Parliament before that time. As it seems that the Transvaal question will not cause any difficulty, I propose, subject to your approval, to remain here. Polak, of course, attends to Durban, and you remain there until the Bill is through. Professor Gokhale cabled yesterday⁴ as follows:

to which the following reply was sent:

Thanks assurance Natal. Regarding new Bill cable later.

I think we would wait yet awhile before cabling views on the new Bill. There would naturally be expenses on your side. I hope that the Cape Indians will provide a fund for conducting the campaign. They must not expect passive resistance funds to be used for ameliorating the condition in the Cape Peninsula, nor can we afford to rely upon promises they may make. If they do not want you to take Schreiner’s opinion, then, I am afraid, we should drop it. But, if they do, they have to pay for it.

Yours sincerely,

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S.N. 5231

254. LETTER TO H. S. L. POLAK

JOHANNESBURG,
March 4, 1911

MY DEAR POLAK,

Copy of my letter to Ritch⁵ will give you most of the information I want to give you also. I yesterday sent a packet containing a lot of Indian Opinion matter to West directly," as I

¹ Of 2-3-1911, “Letter to R. Gregorowski”, 2-3-1911
² A lawyer of Durban
³ March 13, 1911
⁴ Actually the cable was received on March 2, 1911.
⁵ Vide the preceding item.
⁶ Vide “Letter to A. H. West”, 3-3-1911 assumed that you would be in Durban on Monday. I purposely refrained from sending the packet to you because it has no connection with the new Bill campaign, and I do not want to interfere with the concentration of your thought upon that. Further newspaper cuttings on the Bill I am sending you. The Pretoria News cutting should be condensed, as also that from the Daily Mail. What I have said to Ritch about expenses is equally applicable to expenses on your side. Let that particular business be absolutely clear. If they do not want to spend anything, we will still fight on in so far as they will take the advice, but it is impossible to use passive resistance funds for the purpose.

Yours sincerely,

[PS.]

After I had finished dictating, I received Gregorowski’s opinion. It is dead against the Bill, as you will see. Some points of his opinion I do not share, but we must accept the opinion as if it were wholly correct, because the matter is too important to be in any respect left in a state of uncertainty.

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S.N. 5228

255. LETTER TO HARILAL GANDHI

Fagan Sud 5 [March 5, 1911]

CHI. HARILAL,

I had your letter when it was least expected. We are all surprised whenever a letter comes from you. The general expectation is to have no letter from you.

What you write about Ba is not true. Had she intended to go she would hardly have been scared by my stipulation. And my condition also was meaningless. If she had wanted to return she could have borrowed money from anybody and done so. The fact is that Ba does

---

1. These were reproduced in Indian Opinion, 11-3-1911.
2. ibid
3. ibid
4. Gregorowski’s opinion not available in full; see however “Letter to E.F.C. Lane”, 4-3-1911, and “Letter to J. J. Doke”, 7-3-1911.
5. This letter was written before the second reading of Immigrants’ Restriction, Bill, which took place on March 13, 1911. The Fagan Shud 5 prior to it was March 5, 1911.
not know her own mind. However I have nothing to say against your pleading for her.

There is nothing to be ashamed of in your being weak in mathematics and general literary education. You could have learnt them had I given you the necessary opportunity. The practical knowledge boys in India possess is not due to the education they receive in schools, but is due to the unique Indian way of life. It is due to the meritorious deeds of our ancestors that we find healthy standards of behaviour, thrift, etc., around us, in spite of the repeated inroads of modern education, the immorality that we see among the people and their growing selfishness. This I am writing to you to give you courage and ask you to go deeper into the matter and observe things for yourself. It is not right to attribute the relation of cause and effect between things after just a superficial glance.

I will not stand in the way of your studies or other ambitions that you may have, provided there is nothing positively immoral about them. You may therefore cast off all fear and pursue your studies as long as you like. I may not like some of your views, but having no suspicion about your character I do not have any anxiety on your account.

Sorabjee is sitting by me as I am writing this letter. Shelat also has come to the Farm.

The Bill has not yet had its second reading.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati original in the possession of the Navajivan Trust:
C.W. 663

256. LETTER TO H. S. L. POLAK

[JOHANNESBURG,]

March 6, 1911

MY DEAR POLAK,

I have your two letters. I am glad that you rated our friends in Durban so soundly, as I knew you would. They appreciate it, at least from you.

A suspected person may, in my opinion, be challenged by an immigration officer anywhere, even within the border of the Union.

242 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
That being so, why could an educated Indian not be challenged on entering Natal from the Transvaal? If you say that he could not be challenged, such an Indian then could not be prohibited from crossing the Natal border from the Transvaal side, and the provincial check would break down, in spite of Clause 7 of the Bill. Any such legislation at present in existence does not prevent the entry of such persons into Natal. Your argument about Joseph entering from Natal seems to be sound. It seems difficult to believe that the omission of wives and minor children is deliberate, and, if it is, we ought to be able to wreck the Bill. I think that we are bound to protest strongly as from Natal and the Cape against the education test, and we must in this connection raise the question of inter-communication. If Smuts gives a public assurance that the education test will be for purposes of inter-communication, assuming that challenge within the border is possible, we may waive the objection. Otherwise, it should be persisted in. The question Anglia raises about domicile is not a bad one. In law, I think that it is not possible for a man to claim a double domicile. Hitherto, domicile certificates produced by Transvaal residents have passed muster. I have, however, always feared a legal difficulty in the matter, and it may well be that those who are registered in the Transvaal may, in future, be taken to have forfeited their Natal domicile. Production of a certificate of Natal domicile is proof, at most, only of domicile to the day of leaving that place but is not proof that domicile subsists at the time of re-entry. I would suggest that those of the Transvaal Indians who are registered, but who are anxious to retain their Natal domicile, and who are in possession of certificates, should, for the time being, remain in Natal, or, not being there, return to Natal rather than remain in the Transvaal, because in the Transvaal the question of domicile cannot be raised, and a man who is found in Natal at the time of the taking effect of the new Bill cannot be sued. The same remarks apply to the Indians at the Cape.

I hope to send a leading article on the Bill tomorrow. It will be sent to Phoenix, but a copy will be sent to you in Durban. For further information I refer you to my letter to Ritch herewith.

Yours sincerely,

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S. N. 5235

1 Royeppen; vide “Johannesburg Letter”, before 30-5-1908.
2 M. C. Anglia, Joint Honorary Secretary, Natal Indian Congress
3 But he did not. Vide “Letter to H. S. L. Polak”, 13-3-1911
4 Vide “Letter to L. W. Ritch”, 6-3-1911
257. LETTER TO MAUD POLAK

[JOHANNESBURG,]
March 6, 1911

MY DEAR MAUD,

The enclosures will tell their own tale. You will have the full text of the Bill in Indian Opinion. I do not envy your having to study the Bill. However, I suggest your not writing anything at all about the Bill, unless you hear anything from me by cable. I am not at all certain of the meaning of the Bill; nobody seems to be; and in the absence of a certainty all presumption must be against the Bill. When agitation there becomes necessary, you will have the views emphatically one way or the other, and you will have objections from me in concrete form. Till then, you can only give the information to inquirers. I have refrained from cabling anything to you, because we do not want any agitation there at the time of writing. I have anxious cable inquiries from India, but have simply replied that they are to await further cables. All that we for the time being should say is that no Bill will satisfy passive resisters, unless two things are unconditionally granted—repeal of Act 2 of 1907, and the entry of educated Indians who may pass the education test without liability to any registration laws. If the Bill clearly means the latter, as it clearly repeals Asiatic [Act] 2 of 1907, we shall lay down our arms, however bad in other respects the Bill may be. This does not mean that we cease to worry the Government here or the Government there with our other troubles, but we do not take up passive resistance regarding them. For the time being, we still endeavour to carry on a less active agitation. I do not call the petitioning agitation constitutional to distinguish it from passive resistance, because passive resistance is just as constitutional as simple petitioning. What a happy coincidence it is that Mr. Ritch should be here just in the nick of time. I think that he himself will agree that his presence is far more necessary here just now than there. You may unreservedly express your opinion that with reference to the Cape and Natal, the Bill is as bad as it possibly can be. There theoretical equality does not weigh so, because we have it already. The deprivation of practical rights under this Bill, therefore, is a very serious and tangible grievance requiring redress, and, as you will see, the Cape and Natal are moving. I only hope that they will move sufficiently to be able to make an impression on the Government. I am perfectly at ease, seeing that Messrs Ritch and Polak are on the respective spots. When I receive the address for Mr. Ritch, I shall gladly buy an oak frame in accordance with your instructions, send you a memo of charges, and present the thing to him. This time, instead of sending £15 for the Committee, I am sending £18. That ought to enable you to get on without a handicap, and there should be no difficulty in paying the quarterly charges.

1 Dated 4-3-1911
2 Vide cable to G. K. Gokhale quoted in “Letter to L. W. Ritch”, 4-3-1911.

Yours sincerely,

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S.N. 5236

258. TELEGRAM TO “INDIAN OPINION”

JOHANNESBURG,
March 6, 1911

TO OPINION
PHOENIX

TRANSLATE BILL² THERE NO TIME.

GANDHI

From a handwritten office copy: S.N. 5238

¹ Presented in London by Indian and British sympathisers. The address was reproduced in Indian Opinion, 18-3-1911.
² The Gujarati translation of the Bill was published in Indian Opinion, 11-3-1911.
259. LETTER TO L. W. RITCH

[JOHANNESBURG.]
March 6, 1911

MY DEAR RITCH,

I enclose herewith copy of wire sent to General Smuts today¹. No reply has been received to the time of writing. I have received the following cable from Natesan, Cable immediately advantages disadvantages new Act. Also advise nature future agitation here.

And I have simply cabled the reply² that the Bill is being considered, and that they will have a reply later.

I have sent Maud this week £25 for Mrs. Ritch, £17 for Mrs. Polak, and £18 for the Committee. The last amount ought to prove sufficient. I telegraphed you today as per copy enclosed.³ Mr. Doke, I may mention, is in correspondence with Mr. Merriman⁴. In the event of Smuts not yielding as to the amendment of the Bill in order to make good the meaning he attaches to it, do you consider that my presence is at all necessary in Cape Town? If you do, please wire. I do not wish to undertake the journey, unless it is absolutely necessary. There should be representations⁵ from Port Elizabeth and Kimberley, or authority from them to you or to the League⁶ to represent in their behalf.

Did you Leave Mr. Cohen with Mrs. Ritch? I hope you will write from there to Maud whatever you may consider necessary. Enclosed is copy⁷ of my letter to her.

Yours sincerely,

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S.N. 5239

¹ The source has the date 6th but the wire was sent to Smuts on the 4th; vide “Telegram to Private Secretary to Minister of Interior”, 4-3-1911.
² Not available
³ Not available
⁴ John Xavier Merriman; vide “Deputation’s Voyage [-1]”, after 23-6-1909.
⁵ No representations seem to have been sent by the Indians of these towns. However, the British Indian Association of Port Elizabeth and the Indian Political Association of Kimberley had sent messages of sympathy and support to the British Indian mass meeting held at Cape Town on March 12, 1911.
⁶ British India League. There were two rival organisations of Indians in Cape Town at this time: the British India League and the South African British Indian Association. Gandhiji and Ritch brought about their amalgamation under the name of “Cape British Indian Union”.
⁷ Vide “Letter to Maud Polak”, 6-3-1911
260. TELEGRAM TO ABDUL CAADIR

JOHANNESBURG,
March 7, 1911

TO ABDUL CAADIR
GREY STREET
DURBAN

HAVE ACCEPTED NOTHING. NOT MY POWER ACCEPT ANYTHING. HAVE ALREADY ADVISED CAPE, NATAL OFFER STUBBORN OPPOSITION. KNOW NOTHING ABOUT WHAT "MERCURY" SAYS. IF LEGAL EQUALITY GRANTED AND ACT 1907 REPEALED PASSIVE RESISTANCE TRANSVAAL MUST CEASE. IF YOU OTHER INDIANS NATAL AND CAPE WILL KINDLY DO YOUR DUTY BILL CAN BE TURNED TO GOOD ADVANTAGE. FURTHER INFORMATION SEE MR. POLAK.

GANDHI

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S.N. 5241

261. LETTER TO J. J. DOKE

[JOHANNESBURG,]
March 7, 1911

DEAR MR. DOKE,

In accordance with my promise, I reduce to writing the conditions that appear to me to be essential to stopping passive resistance. The demands, as you know, are the repeal of Asiatic Act No. 2 of 1907 and the legal equality of educated Asians as to immigration, reduced in practice to the entry into the Transvaal of at least six highly educated Asians per annum.

The first demand is granted by the Bill, in that the schedule...

1 In reply to Abdul Caadir’s telegram of the same date: “Immigration Bill exterminating act. Surprise[d] you accept today’s Mercury. If you do you ruin whole community. You run after shadow giving away rights of Natal Cape. Be warned in time. Don’t blunder again at concluding stage. Reply.” (S.N. 5240) substantially repeals Act 2 of 1907. The second demand also appears to have been granted. But [it] is the opinion of a well-known barrister that the Bill does not make it possible for educated Asiatics to enter the Transvaal under the education clause of the Bill. In his opinion, as in my own, the existence of the second Registration Act, passed in 1908, blocks the way. It is, therefore, necessary to so amend the Bill as to exempt educated Asiatics who may enter under the education test from the operation of the Registration Act.

2 Dr. Abdul Caadir, vide “Circular Regarding Kheda Situation”, 27-3-1918

A new disability seems also to be contemplated by the Bill. The wives and minor children of non-prohibited immigrants are not protected as they have been hitherto. I can only hope that this is an oversight.

There should be no difficulty in securing the necessary amendment, at least so far as the status of educated Asiatics is concerned, because General Smuts, in a telegram received on Saturday last, in reply to my query says that educated Asiatics are not to be subjected to the registration laws of either the Transvaal or the Orange Free State.

If, therefore, the Bill is amended in Committee as to the points I have raised above, passive resistance can immediately end and the sufferings of conscientious objectors can be avoided.

I am,
Yours truly,

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S.N. 5244

262. LETTER TO H. S. L. POLAK

[JOHANNESBURG,]
March 7, 1911

MY DEAR POLAK,

The following is the wire received from Smuts, as I telephoned to you:

1 R. Gregorowski
2 Vide “Letter to E. F. C. Lane”, 4-3-1911
3 Vide “Telegram to Private Secretary to General Smuts”, 3-3-1911
4 Ibid
5 Ibid
7 March. Your letters of 2nd¹ and 4th² March and telegram 4th³ March all duly received. The legal questions raised by your Counsel are being gone into by Minister with legal advisers.

Enclosed are copies⁴ of what I have sent to West directly. If you have any changes to suggest, you will either send special messenger, or go over to Phoenix, or do whatever you choose, and if you want to stop anything from being published you will also advise West. The petition to the Legislative Assembly herewith with copy.⁵ A copy thereof has also gone to Ritch and to West. Your copy, after it is duly signed, should be sent to Ritch with a covering letter from the officers of the Congress authorising him to send it to Sir David Hunter or any member he wishes to, that the petition will be presented only if Ritch considers it necessary.⁶ I am not sending anything for the Senate just yet, because it will be at least a week, if not more, before the Bill goes to the. . . . A petition to the Senate, therefore, may have to be altered.
Herewith copies of telegrams exchanged between Mr. Abdul Caadir and myself.⁷

Yours sincerely,

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S.N. 5246

263. LETTER TO L. W. RITCH

[Johannesburg,]

March 7, 1911

MY DEAR RITCH,

My letter⁸ to Polak will give you such information as I have. I am just now telegraphing⁹ you authority from the British Indian

¹ Vide “Letter to E.F.C. Lane”, 2-3-1911
² Vide “Letter to E.F.C. Lane”, 4-3-1911.
³ The source has the date 6th; see, however, “Telegram to Private Secretary to Minister of Interior”, 4-3-1911.
⁴ Not available
⁵ Vide “Natal Petition to Union Assembly”, 9-3-1911.
⁶ The petition dated 9-3-1911 was presented to the Legislative Assembly on 15-3-1911.
⁷ One word is cut off here.
⁸ Vide “Telegram to Abdul Caadir”, 7-3-1911.
⁹ Vide the preceding item.
¹⁰ Vide the following item.
Association, and a telegram is being sent to Smuts also, telling him that you are acting in connection with the Transvaal matter. Polak has just telephoned, and you will have a telegram from him also. You will see what I think is the proper course to adopt regarding the petition from Natal. We do not want to send the petition, if the points raised are covered in some shape or form by General Smuts. If he promises in writing during the Committee stage, no petition need be presented to Parliament. If I were you, I would even ask General Smuts whether he considers it advisable or otherwise to present the petition, that is to say, if he is in a reasonable frame of mind, as he seems to be. His reply to the Natal wire is that the Bill does not affect the rights of those who are domiciled, and that the Asiatic laws referring to the rights of those domiciled remain intact. The telegram is satisfactory in so far as General Smuts appears to be in a receptive mood; but he is probably labouring under a misapprehension and believes that there are some Asiatic laws in Natal also regarding their residential rights. This, of course, is wrong both as to Natal and the Cape. I, therefore, suggest that, even if Smuts is entirely reasonable, [you] should see the friends or those whom you consider to be friends in [the] Assembly and the Senate, and tell them the substance of what is going on, so that they may be ready, I hope that you will use the wire freely, and let me know what happens daily. Please send me any cuttings you may see, and send directly to Polak or to West at Phoenix anything you may desire for publication.

Yours sincerely,

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S.N. 5248

---

1 Vide “Telegram to Private Secretary to Minister of Interior”, 8-3-1911.
2 Vide enclosure to “Letter to H. S. L. Polak”, and footnote 1, 2-3-1911.
264. TELEGRAM TO L. W. RITCH

JOHANNESBURG,
March 7, 1911

TO RITCH
CARE ADAM GOOL
8, KLOOF STREET
CAPE TOWN

ASSOCIATION REQUESTS AUTHORISES YOU ACT REGARDING IMMIGRATION BILL BEFORE THE UNION PARLIAMENT SO FAR AS THE TRANSVAAL IS CONCERNED. THIS WIRE SHALL BE YOUR AUTHORITY FOR INTERVIEWING MINISTERS, OFFICIALS AND MEMBERS OF PARLIAMENT.

CACHALIA
CHAIRMAN,
BRITISH INDIAN ASSOCIATION

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S.N. 5242

265. TELEGRAM TO PRIVATE SECRETARY TO MINISTER OF INTERIOR

JOHANNESBURG,
March 8, 1911

ASSOCIATION HAS APPOINTED MR. L. W. RITCH, BARRISTER-AT-LAW, SECRETARY, SOUTH AFRICA BRITISH INDIAN COMMITTEE, LONDON, JUST RETURNED INTERVIEW GENERAL SMUTS AND REPRESENT TRANSVAAL INDIAN COMMUNITY REGARDING IMMIGRATION BILL.¹

CACHALIA
CHAIRMAN,
BRITISH INDIAN ASSOCIATION

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S.N. 5257

¹ General Smuts declined to recognize Ritch as representative of the British Indian Association. Vide “Telegram to L. W. Ritch”, 9-3-1911
266. TELEGRAM TO L. W. RITCH

JOHANNESBURG, March 8, 1911

DO NOT ASK YOUR OWN EXPENSES. THEY WILL BE FOUND HERE. LET ME KNOW WANTS. CAPE, NATAL SHOULD PAY EXPENSES COUNSEL’S OPINION SUCH OTHER REGARDING THEMSELVES. HOPE YOU WILL SEE SCHREINER WITHOUT DELAY. SEEK INTERVIEW SMUTS REGARDING TRANSVAAL NATAL. YOU SHOULD OFFER PERSONALLY ASSIST CAPE WITHOUT FUNDS. IF THEY DO NOT FIND LATTER YOU CANNOT OBTAIN SCHREINER’S OR OTHER LEGAL OPINION. NO TIME SHOULD BE LOST PLACING YOURSELF IN TOUCH AUTHORITIES. SMUTS TELEGRAPHED YESTERDAY¹ HE WAS CONFERRING WITH HIS LEGAL ADVISERS REGARDING LEGAL POINTS RAISED BY ME. CACHALIA HAS WIRED SMUTS ABOUT YOUR AUTHORITY.²

GANDHI

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S.N. 5249

267. TELEGRAM TO EDITOR, “INDIAN OPINION”

JOHANNESBURG, March 8, 1911

DO NOT PUBLISH CORRESPONDENCE WITH SMUTS.³

GANDHI

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S.N. 5252

¹ Vide “Letter to J. J. Doke”, 8-3-1911.
² Vide the preceding item.
³ Publication of this correspondence was accordingly withheld from the issue of Indian Opinion, 11-3-1911; the correspondence was later published in the issue of 18-3-1911
268. TELEGRAM TO EDITOR, “INDIAN OPINION”

JOHANNESBURG,
March 8, 1911

THINK SECTION DOES NOT CANCEL COLONIAL-BORN INDIAN RIGHT CAPE NOR DOES IT PROTECT. I IMAGINE SUCH PERSON ENTERING CAPE BY SEA WILL BE SUBJECT TO EDUCATION TEST. ASK RITCH ASCERTAIN FROM SMUTS THEIR LEGAL POSITION.

GANDHI

From a photostat of the handwritten office copy: S.N. 5253

269. LETTER TO L. W. RITCH

[JOHANNESBURG,]
March 8, 1911

MY DEAR RITCH,

The enclosures will speak for themselves. I hope my telegram1 was quite clear to you. We have got to work for the Cape and the Natal Indians whether they find funds or not, so far as the personal exertions of the three of us are concerned. The expenses of your stay in Cape Town will be found from the funds here, so that the only funds that the Cape people and the people in Natal have to find are for legal opinion and such other matters. If they do not wish to pay the cost of the wires that you may be sending them, we need not worry about this cost. If they will not find the funds, we shall have to work without Schreiner’s opinion, which might be valuable. Anyhow, we know how the land lies and, after all, we have to secure if possible the necessary amendments in order to make the position certain and remove ambiguity. There is no further information to give you today. I am waiting anxiously to know what action you have already taken.

1 In reply to Polak’s telegram dated March 7: “Does section 7 take away right Natal-born Indians going to Cape. . . .” Vide “Letter to H.S.L. Polak”, 8-3-1911.
2 Vide “Telegram to L.W. Ritch”, 8-3-1911.
From Adam’s telegram, I gather that you are staying with him.

Yours sincerely

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy. S.N. 5254

270. LETTER TO J. J. DOKE

[JOHANNESBURG,]
March 8, 1911

DEAR MR. DOKE,

The following telegram received from General Smuts throws perhaps a little more light on his mental attitude:

7 March. Your letters of 2nd and 4th March and telegram 4th March all duly received. The legal questions raised by your Counsel are being gone into by Minister with legal advisers.

Yours sincerely,

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S. N. 5255

271. LETTER TO H. S. L. POLAK

[JOHANNESBURG,]
March 8, 1911

MY DEAR POLAK,

I have no progress to report today. I have telegraphed to you my opinion regarding your question. The seventh section of the Bill I considered very carefully last evening as also this morning. I was therefore, ready to answer your wire. If it is true that there is to be no education test under the new Bill within the Union—a contention which I do not accept in spite of Gregorowski’s opinion—under Section 7 Indians going from the Transvaal to the Cape or Natal will be debarred under the education test of the Immigration Laws now to be repealed, and, if these laws have no potency after the passing of the 1 Adam Gool; vide “Telegram to Adam Gool”, 2-3-1911.

---

2 Vide “Letter to E. F. C. Lane”, 2-3-1911 & 4-3-1911.
3 The source has the date 6th; see, however, “Telegram to Private Secretary to Minister of Interior”, 4-3-1911.
4 Vide “Telegram to Editor, Indian Opinion”, 8-3-1911.
5 Ibid
present Bill, and if Gregorowski’s contention is correct, the Transvaal Indians will be free to enter the Cape or Natal without let or hindrance, because there is no Asiatic legislation there except for the Chinese. I do not think that the rights of Colonial-born Indians in Natal are protected under the seventh section. If the Immigration Law of the Cape is repealed, Colonial-born Indians who had not already entered the Cape will certainly find themselves debarred from the Cape except under the education test, because they will not have acquired any rights under the Cape Immigration Law; and the right of domicile which is left therefore under the Immigration Bill is not a potential right but a right actually being enjoyed. I do not know whether I have clearly explained the legal position. I am not sending anything at all to West today.

Yours sincerely,

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S.N. 5256

272. NATAL PETITION TO UNION ASSEMBLY

DURBAN,
March 9, 1911

TO
THE HON’BLE THE SPEAKER AND THE MEMBERS OF THE HON’BLE
THE LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY OF THE UNION OF SOUTH AFRICA IN PARLIAMENT ASSEMBLED
CAPE TOWN
THE PETITION OF DAWAD MAHOMED, DADA OSMAN AND MAHOMED CASSIM
ANGLIA, IN THEIR CAPACITIES AS CHAIRMAN AND JOINT HONORARY SECRETARIES, RESPECTIVELY, OF THE NATAL INDIAN CONGRESS

HUMBLY SHEWETH THAT

1. At a public meeting of British Indians, held on the 9th day of March, 1911, under the auspices of the Natal Indian Congress, your Petitioners were authorised to petition this Honourable House with respect to the Bill to consolidate and amend the Laws in force in the various Provinces of the Union relating to Restrictions upon

1 Drafted by Gandhiji. Vide “Letter to H. S. L. Polak”, 7-3-1911, from which it is clear that the petition was ready on 7-3-1911.
Immigration thereto, to provide for the establishment of an Union Immigration Department and to regulate Immigration into the Union or any Province thereof, now before it.

2. Your Petitioners consider it unfortunate that the blessings of Union are not to be enjoyed by His Majesty’s Indian subjects of South Africa, in that their movements are to remain as heretofore under Provincial restriction; but your Petitioners have been authorised by the public meeting aforementioned to state that, in view of the anti-Asiatic prejudice existing in many parts of the Union, those represented by your Petitioners do not desire to raise, for the time being, any objection to the restriction.

3. Your Petitioners have, however, been asked to bring to the notice of this Honourable House the following objections to the said Bill:

(a) Under the existing immigration laws in force in this Province, the clause dealing with the education test enables an intending immigrant to submit to the test in a European language known to him. The present Bill leaves the selection of the language for purposes of examination in the hands of the immigration officer, thus making it possible for that officer to completely prevent the entry of any person or persons of any class, race, or religion, whether such person or persons be British subjects or not. In the humble opinion of your Petitioners, such a prohibition is unwarranted by previous experience.

(b) Unlike as in the immigration laws of the Province now under repeal in virtue of Schedule I to the said Bill, the wives and minor children, absent from the Province, of those who are now resident or domiciled in the Province of Natal are not protected.

(c) The rights of those who are at present residing in the Province of Natal, and those who are temporarily absent but are domiciled in the Province, do not appear to be protected as they are in the Provincial Laws already referred to herein.

(d) Sub-section (b) of Section 25 of the Bill gives absolute discretion to the Minister as to the granting of permits to lawful residents who may wish to absent themselves temporarily. Hitherto the right to such permits or certificates of domicile, as they have been called, has remained unquestioned; and, in the humble opinion of your Petitioners, it will be a great injustice to the resident Indian population of the Province of Natal if this right is now taken away.

(e) The said Bill does not appear to give the party who may be declared a prohibited immigrant by an immigration officer, or who may be prevented from re-entering the Union or this particular Province by such officer, any recourse, as under existing legislation, to the Courts of Law established under the Union.

4. In conclusion, your Petitioners humbly pray that this Honourable House will take into consideration the objections urged herein, and amend the Bill so as to remove those objections, or grant such other relief as to this Honourable House may seem meet. And for this act of justice and mercy, your Petitioners shall, as in duty bound, for ever pray, etc.

(Sd.) DAWAD MAHOMED,

PRESIDENT, NATAL INDIAN CONGRESS

(Sd.) DADA OSMAN,

(Sd.) M. C. ANGLIA,

JOINT HONORARY SECRETARIES,

NATAL INDIAN CONGRESS

Indian Opinion, 18-3-1911

273. TELEGRAM TO L. W. RITCH

Johannesburg,
March 9, 1911

GENERAL SMUTS TELEGRAPH DECLINING RECOGNISE YOU AS REPRESENTATIVE SAYING HE HAS ALWAYS FREELY RECEIVED AND COMMUNICATED WITH INDIAN COMMUNITY. REPEATING COPY WIRE GENERAL SMUTS TO YOU.¹

Gandhi

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S.N. 5260

¹ Vide the following item.
THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI

274. TELEGRAM TO PRIVATE SECRETARY
TO MINISTER OF INTERIOR AND L. W. RITCH

JOHANNESBURG,
March 9, 1911

TO (1) PRIVATE SECRETARY
MINISTER INTERIOR
(2) RITCH
8, KLOOF STREET
CAPE TOWN

REGARDING YOUR TELEGRAM ASSOCIATION AWARE THAT GENERAL SMUTS HAS FREELY RECEIVED COMMUNICATED WITH INDIAN COMMUNITY SOUTH AFRICA AND IS DEEPLY GRATEFUL FOR IT. REASON FOR APPOINTING MR. RITCH AS DEPUTY IS ONLY BECAUSE HE IS AT CAPE TOWN AND REPRESENTATIVES TRANSVAAL INDIANS AT PRESENT SITUATED FAR AWAY. MR. RITCH IS HIMSELF SOUTH AFRICAN OF OVER TWENTY YEARS STANDING ENJOYS CONFIDENCE INDIAN COMMUNITY AND HAS BEEN REQUESTED IN ORDER SAVE TIME PERSONALLY TO RE-PRESENT ASSOCIATION NOT WITH A VIEW TO HINDER PROGRESS BILL BUT SO FAR AS ASSOCIATION CAN HELP GOVERNMENT. WOULD FURTHER ADD THAT MR. RITCH HAS NOT BEEN SPECIALLY SENT FOR FROM LONDON BUT AS HIS RETURN TO SOUTH AFRICA
SYNCHRONISES WITH APPEARANCE OF BILL HE HAS BEEN REQUESTED STOP CAPETOWN DURING ITS PROGRESS.
ASSOCIATION THEREFORE RESPECTFULLY TRUSTS GENERAL
SMUTS WILL RECONSIDER HIS DECISION AND RECEIVE
MR. RITCH

BRITISH INDIAN ASSOCIATION

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S.N. 5261
275. LETTER TO L. W. RITCH

[JOHANNESBURG.]

March 9, 1911

MY DEAR RITCH,

I have your telegram which fills me with hope. Hajee Suliman Shah Mahomed, the father of the young man whom, you will remember, we met in London, and who belongs to Taunto School, writes to me saying that he will render all the help he can. I hope that you have been receiving all my wires and letters regularly. I am redirecting three letters received for you today from England.

Yours sincerely,

[PS.]

Herewith copies of telegrams just dispatched.

Evidently Oom [Smuts] fears Bogeyman Ritch.

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S.N. 5263

276. LETTER TO H. S. L. POLAK

March 9, 1911

MY DEAR POLAK,

I have just received a telegram from Ritch saying that the Cape community are united at last. God be thanked for it. It is a surprise to me that they are united at last, and that those who have been hitherto simply in the habit of using butter will now be using harder substances.

Will you please remind Mr. Omar that I want the Church Street property lease? I have used Kallenbach’s lease for getting the loan from Pretoria. At that time there was a great deal of hurry about it. Mr. Dada Osman continued to send telegrams after telegrams, and I did not wait to hear where the original lease that Mr. Omar possesses

1 Which read: “Cape community united at last moving”
2 Vide the two preceding items.
3 Uncle
4 The paper here is damaged.
5 Vide footnote 1 to the preceding item.
was. Now the bond-holders are keeping Kallenbach’s lease. We must, therefore, give his bond-holders our original. Please, therefore, find out who has it, whether Mr. Omar or anybody else. I had a chat with the Solicitors for the Norwich Union Co., who hold the bond over the lease. I will be in town on Saturday also, though I shall attempt to get away by the 1.15 train, but it will all depend upon what I hear from you and Ritch.

Your letters have been redirected to Phoenix. I enclose herewith letter\(^1\) from Buenos Aires. I do not know the writer at all. We do not want to publish the whole of the letter, and, as far as I am concerned, I do not mind if you keep it out entirely, but if you think that there is anything in it, you may give an extract. I am not at all enamoured with the idea of Indians [mi]grating to the Argentine.

\[\textit{Yours sincerely,}\]

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S.N. 5264

\section*{277. LETTER TO MAGANLAL GANDHI}

\textit{Phagan Shud 9 [March 9, 1911]}\(^2\)

CHI. MAGANLAL,

From the serious attention you are giving to the study of Tamil, I feel certain that you will some day master it.

I send one issue of \textit{Saraswati}\(^3\) and Thoreau’s biography today. I have gone through the biographical sketch of Ramdasji\(^4\) in the first issue today. It is very well written. Are you sure that you have sent me the second issue? Please look up there and send it to me if it is there. I do not find it here with me. Ask Purshottamdas if he has seen it. Thoreau’s biography is worth going through. Read it when you have the time. Mr. West will see it when it is entered in the library. You may, however, draw his attention to it.

It appears that the struggle will definitely come to an end. There is, however, little likelihood of my staying there. No one is likely to

---

\(^1\) Not reproduced in \textit{Indian Opinion}\(^3\)
\(^2\) This letter must have been written before Chhaganlal Gandhi’s arrival in South Africa in July 1911.
\(^3\) A Hindi magazine published from Allahabad
\(^4\) Saint Ramdas of Maharashtra was a source of inspiration and strength for the rise of the Maratha power in the seventeenth century.
stay [here at the Tolstoy Farm] after the struggle ends. Mr. Kallenbach has perhaps spent £600 on buildings alone. I see that the whole burden will fall on him. To prevent this, I propose to stay on at the Farm and make good as much of the loss as possible by means of physical labour. How can I leave Mr. Kallenbach immediately after the struggle is over? At the same time it is necessary for me to go there (Phoenix) but I do not see how it will be possible. My struggle will not be over even when our satyagraha struggle ends. It is as it should be. That I shall have to stay on at Mr. Kallenbach’s Farm is something not expected. I shall get plenty of experience even from that; and who knows, it may be for my good.

As soon as the struggle is over, Mr. Polak will have to be sent to England. He will take about six months to return. I want him to return via India. It will be very good if Chhaganlal returns before Mr. Polak leaves. I think in all probability he will.

I wish you to win over Harilal Thaker.

Please watch Manilal. Does he or can he put in any study?

How is Santok’s health?

I give you a piece of information now which I have withheld so far. Ba became nervous when she had a sudden attack of acute pain. I was busy and could not go to see her a second time. She must have got angry and when I went to her she burst into tears and made it appear as if she would die. I felt somewhat awkward, but immediately recovered myself and said to her with a smile, “Nothing to worry about if you die. There is plenty of wood. We shall cremate you on this Farm itself.” At this she also laughed. Half the pain disappeared with the laugh. Then I decided that very strong remedies were called for. Earth alone would not do. So I suggested to her that she should give up vegetables and salt altogether. She should live on wheat and fruits only. She might take, if she wanted, saltless rice with ghee. She said, “Even you cannot do it.” I said, “From today I give up salt, vegetables, etc.” How could she take these things then? The result is that for the last one month both of us have been taking food without salt, vegetables and pulses. As for myself, I have no desire for other food. Ba has it sometimes. Once when she could not restrain herself, she took a little gavar. Otherwise it appears she has lived on this diet. There was a miraculous change for the better. The bleeding stopped immediately. I got the incidental benefit of extra self-control. This is my argument [as regards the eschewing of salt]: Salt is a powerful chemical. Even a little when added to something changes its quality and taste. Its effect must be to thin the blood. So far as I can think, salt is bound to have an instant effect on the sick—and mostly adverse at that. When I first read the writings of Mrs. Wallace and others [on the subject], they had little effect on me. On this occasion I felt all the time that it would be fine if the doctor could be kept away. Thereupon, it occurred to me to note the effect of saltless diet. Even though Ba may continue her [saltless diet] throughout this month, she won’t keep it up beyond that. I think of carrying on the experiment as long as possible.

Blessings from

MOHANDAS

[PS.]

Please share this with Purushottamdas.

From the Gujarati original in Gandhiji’s hand: C.W. 5079 Courtesy: Radhabehn Choudhri

278. TRANSVAAL PETITION TO UNION ASSEMBLY

JOHANNESBURG,
March 10, 1911

TO
THE HON’BLE THE SPEAKER AND THE MEMBERS OF
THE LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY OF THE UNION OF SOUTH AFRICA
CAPE TOWN

THE PETITION OF AHMED MAHOMED CACHALIA, IN HIS CAPACITY AS CHAIRMAN OF THE BRITISH INDIAN ASSOCIATION OF THE TRANSVAAL

HUMBLY SHEWETH THAT

1. The Members of the Association have read the Bill published in Government Gazette Extraordinary dated the 25th February, to consolidate and amend the Laws in force in the various Provinces of the Union relating to restrictions upon immigration thereto, to provide for the establishment of an Union Immigration Department and to regulate Immigration into the Union of any Province thereof.

1 A copy of this was sent to Ritch; vide “Letter to L. W. Ritch”, 10-3-1911.
2. In the humble opinion of the Petitioning Association the restriction of the residential rights of British Indians at present residing in the various Provinces of South Africa to the provincial limits laid down in the Bill is inconsistent with the Union of the Provinces and unjust to the British Indians of South Africa. But, in view of the prejudice that exists in South Africa against the community represented by the Petitioning Association, it has been decided for the time being to acquiesce in the restriction above referred to. But the Petitioning Association ventures to submit to this Honourable House that the said Bill is ambiguous in several essential particulars which very materially affect the interests of British Indians residing in the Transvaal, which particulars are as under:

(a) The Bill, according to its present wording, does not permit of the residence in the Transvaal of educated Indians who might pass the education test required under Section 4 of the said Bill, by reason of the existence of the Asiatic Registration Act No. 36 of 1908. The Association has been legally advised that, in the absence of any special mention in the Bill, such Asiatics will be subject to the provisions of the said Asiatic Registration Act, and will, therefore, be unable to enter the Transvaal, or, if they are allowed to do so, they will be obliged to be registered thereunder. The Petitioning Association respectfully submits that British Indians who may pass the education test will be sufficiently identified by reason of such examination, and that, therefore, the Bill may be so amended as to leave no uncertainty as to the right of educated Asiatics passing the education test of entering and remaining in the Transvaal and other Provinces of the Union without being subject to the Registration Laws or such other Laws of the different Provinces.

(b) The Petitioning Association respectfully draws the attention of this Honourable House to the fact that there seems to be no provision in the said Bill protecting the wives and minor children of registered Asiatics, which protection has been hitherto enjoyed by them owing to the existence of Act 15 of 1907, Transvaal, together with the Registration Act. Act 15 of 1907 of the Transvaal is to be repealed by the said Bill.
3. In conclusion, the Petitioning Association prays that this Honourable House will take into consideration the submission made herein, and amend the Bill in the desired direction, or grant such other relief as to this Honourable House may seem meet. And for this act of justice and mercy, your Petitioner shall, as in duty bound, for ever pray.

CHAIRMAN,
BRITISH INDIAN ASSOCIATION

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S.N. 5273, also reproduced in part in Indian Opinion, 18-3-1911

279. LETTER TO BUDREA

March 10, 1911

MY DEAR BUDREA¹,

I have done nothing about Shankersing. The number will be found in the Union Gazette. You will get all the information from Mr. Polak or anybody connected with Indian Opinion. I think that you will be able soon to return to Johannesburg, but for the present you ought not to think of it. The struggle is not yet closed.

Yours sincerely,

From the typewritten office copy: S.N. 5266

280. LETTER TO PRIVATE SECRETARY TO MINISTER OF INTERIOR²

[JOHANNESBURG,]
March 10, 1911

SIR,

I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your telegram in reply to mine of the 9th instant¹, informing my Association that

¹ A client who had given a general power of attorney to Gandhiji
² This letter, presumably drafted by Gandhiji, was sent by the Chairman, British Indian Association, and reproduced in Indian Opinion, 18-3-1911, as a part of the Gandhi-Smuts correspondence.
³ Vide “Telegram to Private Secretary to Minister of Interior and L. W. Ritch”, 9-3-1911

THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
General Smuts is not prepared to depart from his decision not to recognize Mr. Ritch, as he feels that there is no necessity to bring into the matter at this stage one who is an entire stranger to him, and that the leaders of the Indian community may rely that their representations already received from Mr. Gandhi and any further suggestions that they may put forward will receive the fullest consideration of the Government, and that it is entirely unnecessary for anybody to come to Cape Town to emphasise the points put forward. My Association is grateful for the assurance contained in the telegram, and, in accordance with General Smuts' desire, no representative will be sent from Johannesburg.

It is but right for my Association to state that Mr. Ritch having been intimately connected with the controversy for a long time, having made an exhaustive study of the subject, and having lived in Johannesburg for many years, is a gentleman pre-eminently qualified to make representations to the Government. He enjoys the fullest confidence of the community, and it was felt that much might be done towards ending the struggle by personal interviews. Hence it was that Mr. Ritch was deputed to wait upon General Smuts if necessary. My Association trusts that the Bill will be so amended that it will be found in the end that the deputing of Mr. Ritch was unnecessary.

My Association has read the correspondence between General Smuts and Mr. Gandhi; and I am desired to endorse Mr. Gandhi's submission to General Smuts, namely, that passive resistance will end on the Bill being amended during the Committee stage so as to exempt educated Asiatics who may be admitted under the immigration test from the operation of the registration laws in the different provinces, especially Act 36 of 1908 of the Transvaal, and unequivocally to provide for the protection of the wives and minor children of Asiatics registered or entitled to be registered in the Transvaal or to remain in this Province by reason of the education test, whether such wives and minors are within the Transvaal or without.

My Association trusts that, if the struggle, which has been so prolonged, happily ends, those who are now undergoing imprisonment as passive resisters will be discharged, and that those who have suffered for conscience sake will not be penalised, but that the rights which they would have under Act 36 of 1908 will be respected.

1 Vide "Letter to E. F. C. Lane", 4-3-1911.

I have the honour to be,

Sir,

Your obedient servant,

CHAIRMAN,

BRITISH INDIAN ASSOCIATION

From a photostat of the type written office copy: S.N. 5267

281. LETTER TO H. S. L. POLAK

[JOHANNESBURG,]

Match 10, 1911

MY DEAR POLAK,

I do not think that there need be any worry about police officer. If the Regulations provide for Kaffir Police, we can fight the Regulations. Even in attacking the details of the Bill, I think we should be very careful not to trouble ourselves with what may be remedied by Regulation. Yes, your reading of the second Section is, in my opinion, correct, but Gregorowski thinks that the seventh Section overrides that construction, and he may be right. You are quite right, the Transvaal right cannot be taken away because of registration, but the Natal right of domicile—a highly legal term—may be annulled by transference. But I quite agree with you that it is not a question to be raised just now. Your letter to the Natal Witness I consider magnificent. I do not think the Government of India ever gave thought to the many things you mention in your letter, but it is intrinsically so good and convincing that it should be reproduced in the columns of Indian Opinion. I, therefore, return it to you, in case you have not a copy.

Sincerely yours,

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S.N. 5271

1 The letter was reproduced in Indian Opinion, 18-3-1911.
282. LETTER TO L. W. RITCH

[JOHANNESBURG.]

March 10, 1911

MY DEAR RITCH,

I enclose herewith petition\(^1\) to be presented to Parliament and copy of the letter\(^2\) addressed to General Smuts. The petition, if you think that it should be presented—and I think it should be unless there is any special reason to the contrary—might be presented by Sir Percy Fitzpatrick, Farrar, Drummond Chaplin or Emile Nathan, and, if none of these Transvaal Members will accept it for representation, which I can hardly conceive, it might be handed through Theo. Schreiner or Alexander or whoever else you may think proper.\(^3\) I hope that you will send full telegrams as to what happens at the second reading as also during the Committee stage. I assume that you will attend the House at the time of the second reading of the Bill. There is nothing else.

Yours sincerely,

[Enclosure]\(^4\)

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S.N. 5272

283. TELEGRAM TO L. W. RITCH

[JOHANNESBURG.]

March 10, 1911

SMUTS TELEGRAPHS\(^5\) HE DOES NOT WISH AT THIS STAGE SEE YOU ENTIRE STRANGER BUT REPRESENTATIONS ARE RECEIVING CAREFUL CONSIDERATION. FURTHER REPRESENTATIONS WILL BE TREATED LIKewise AND ADDS NOBODY SHOULD COME FROM HERE EITHER. THEREFORE NO USE MY COMING. SUGGEST YOUR SEEING EVERY MEMBER YOU CAN. MAKE REPRESENTATIONS ON BEHALF PEOPLE THERE THEIR

\(^1\) Vide “Transvaal Petition to Union Assembly”, 10-3-1911.
\(^2\) Vide “Letter to Private Secretary to Minister of Interior”, 10-3-1911.
\(^3\) The petition was presented on March 15 by Patrick Duncan.
\(^4\) ibid
\(^5\) Ibid
284. RITCH’S ARRIVAL

Mr. Ritch has returned from England, and has immediately plunged into work. His arrival at this juncture is quite timely. Such a man is needed at present not so much in England as here. His work in England can be attended to by Miss Polak.

The community owes it to Mr. Ritch to give him all help and encouragement. He will start practice shortly. If the community helps him, he will earn enough for a living. Everybody should remember that Mr. Ritch is a poor man.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 11-3-1911

285. TELEGRAM TO MEMBERS OF PARLIAMENT

[JOHANNESBURG,]
March 11, 1911

MY ASSOCIATION VENTURES DRAW YOUR ATTENTION IMMIGRATION BILL TO BE READ SECOND TIME MONDAY. ACCORDING LEGAL ADVICE RECEIVED BY ASSOCIATION BILL DOES NOT EXEMPT EDUCATED ASIATICS WHO MAY PASS EDUCATION TEST FROM OPERATION ASIATIC REGISTRATION ACTS AND IT DOES NOT PROTECT MINOR CHILDREN WIVES REGISTERED ASIATICS OR ASIATICS WHO MAY ENTER UNDER EDUCATION TEST. TRUST BILL WILL BE SO AMENDED AS TO COVER OBJECTIONS WHEN IT WILL HAPPILY END PAINFUL STRUGGLE WHICH HAS MEANT OVER THREE THOUSAND IMPRISONMENTS AND CAUSED RUIN MANY ASIATIC HOMES. ASSOCIATION OFFERS NO COMMENT ON BEARING BILL

1 This telegram was sent to Members of Parliament at Cape Town and also to Ritch. Vide the following item.
2 March 13, 1911
NATAL CAPE POSITION.

CACHALIA
CHAIRMAN
BRITISH INDIAN ASSOCIATION

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S.N. 5276; also

Indian Opinion, 18-3-1911

286. TELEGRAM TO L. W. RITCH

[JOHANNESBURG,]
March 11, 1911

HAVE SENT WIRES1 FOLLOWING QUINN, WYNDHAM, T. SCHREINER, JAGGER, W. SCHREINER, CHAPLIN, DUNCAN, FITZPATRICK, FARRAR, NATHAN, ALEXANDER.

GANDHI

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S.N. 5275

287. TELEGRAM TO NAIDOO

[JOHANNESBURG,]
March 11, 1911

FOLLOW MR. RITCH’S ADVICE MEETING. YOU SHOULD PROTEST AGAINST IMMIGRATION BILL REGARDING SEVERITY EDUCATION TEST, UNCERTAINTY RIGHTS OF DOMICILE AND RIGHT OF WIVES AND CHILDREN, DISCRETIONARY POWER BEING GIVEN AS TO ISSUE OF CERTIFICATES DOMICILE. AUTHORISE MR. RITCH REPRESENT YOU. LOSE NO TIME.

BIAS

From a photostat of the handwritten office copy: S.N. 5278

1 Vide the preceding item.
288. CABLE TO NATESAN, GOKHALE AND S.A.B.I. COMMITTEE

[JOHANNESBURG,]
March 11, 1911

1. NATESAN, MADRAS
2. GOKHALE, CALCUTTA
3. DEPURATION1, LONDON

PRINCIPLE NEW BILL SATISFACTORY BECAUSE IT RECOGNISES LEGAL EQUALITY. IT WILL END PASSIVE RESISTANCE IF IS AMENDED TO EXEMPT EDUCATED INDIANS FROM OPERATION REGISTRATION ACT AND TO PROTECT MINOR CHILDREN WIVES OF LAWFUL RESIDENTS WHETHER FORMER AT PRESENT OUTSIDE TRANSVAAL OR INSIDE. ITS EFFECT NATAL AND CAPE ADVERSE, CURTAILS RIGHTS OF LAWFUL RESIDENTS, DEPRIVES THEM RIGHT BRING WIVES MINOR CHILDREN. WHILE NO OBJECTION TO SEVERE EDUCATION TEST FOR TRANSVAAL, CAPE NATAL INDIANS LEGITIMATELY OBJECT SEVERE TEST BEING APPLIED THERE. ITS EFFECT IS SECURE VIRTUAL EXCLUSION ASIATICS. CAPE NATAL MUCH AGGRIEVED. SUCH EXCLUSION PREVENTS MERCHANTS BRINGING CLERKS ASSISTANTS WHO HITHERTO CAME UNDER EDUCATION TEST. REPRESENTATIONS HAVE BEEN MADE GOVERNMENT UNION PARLIAMENT ABOUT EVERYTHING. PROBABLE NECESSARY AMENDMENTS WILL BE MADE. GENERAL SMUTS STATES IMPERIAL GOVERNMENT ALREADY ACCEPTED BILL PRESENT FORM. IF PRINCIPLE OF BILL ONLY ACCEPTED NO HARM DONE. IMPERIAL INDIAN GOVERNMENTS CANNOT ACCEPT BILL IN DETAIL AND NOT DO INJUSTICE IF THEY DO NOT FIRST SEE INDIAN OBJECTIONS SECOND READING MONDAY. SUGGEST FOR PRESENT MAKING REPRESENTATIONS AUTHORITIES URGING CONSIDERATION OUR OBJECTIONS BEFORE BILL BECOMES LAW.

From a photostat of the typewritten draft with corrections in Gandhiji’s hand:
S.N. 5279

1 This was the telegraphic address of the Transvaal Indian Deputation consisting of Gandhiji and H. O. Ally during their stay in London in 1906. It is presumed that this address continued to be used by the South Africa British Indian Committee, London. Vide “A Retrospect”, 29-12-1906 and “Letter to Maud Polak”, 13-3-1911.
289. LETTER TO L. W. RITCH

[JOHANNESBURG,]
March 11, 1911

MY DEAR RITCH,

I have your telegram, as also your letter. You will have received copy of the telegram sent to certain Members. I could not quite understand your meaning, but I interpreted your wire to mean that wires should be sent on behalf of the Association, giving the views on the Bill to the Transvaal Members who have at all interested themselves in the matter. You will see among the names three which are not Transvaal. I thought that these three Members were specially entitled to the wire. The views are also represented in the Petition, which I hope you will circulate to the Press also. There is a wire from Cape Town in the Daily Mail to the effect that General Smuts has placed on the Table printed correspondence between the Imperial Government and the Union Government regarding the Bill. I hope you will be able to get a copy of it and send it.

Yours sincerely,

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S.N. 5280

290. LETTER TO MAUD POLAK

[JOHANNESBURG,]
March 13, 1911

MY DEAR MAUD,

A long cable was sent to you on Saturday. I hope that you thoroughly understood it. The cable was not sent without a great deal of hesitation. The Bill having been published, I am rather sanguine of the necessary amendments being made. Yet, in order that it might not become law immediately after it is read a third time in Parliament, I sent the cable, so that you could consult Lord Ampthill and Sir Muncherjee, and at least warn the Imperial Government. Similar

1 Vide “Telegram to Members of Parliament”, 11-3-1911.
2 Alexander, T. L. Schreiner, and W. P. Schreiner
3 Vide “Transvaal Petition to Union Assembly”, 10-3-1911.
4 Vide “Cable to Natesan, Gokhale and S.A.B.I. Committee”, 11-3-1911.
cables have been sent to Bombay and Madras.

I suppose you know the procedure with reference to a Bill. It is formally read a first time; a full debate takes place on the second reading, and, unless there is opposition to the principle of the Bill, the second reading is carried. Then it is read in Committee, at which stage amendments are made. Then comes the third reading. After that it goes to the Senate, and, if the Senate approves of it, it is submitted to the Governor-General for the Royal Assent. If the Bill does not contain a reservatory clause, it becomes the law of the land immediately. The reservatory clause is inserted when there is any racial differentiation. As there is none in this Bill, there is no reservatory clause at all. It may, therefore, come into force immediately, unless the Governor-General is advised by the Imperial Government not to give his sanction without first submitting the Bill to them. The last recourse left open to objectors is to secure a veto, even though the Bill may come into operation, because a clause in the Royal instructions provides that any Bill, although it may have the force of law, may be vetoed within two years of its promulgation by the King-in-Council.

I expect that the Bill will have been passed through the Lower House by the time this letter reaches you, but it may not have gone to the Senate, or at least it may not have received the Governor-General’s sanction. You will have further cables as to the progress of the Bill. I am anxious to make the following position quite clear to you. Passive Resistance has been continued for securing repeal of Act 2 of 1907, and to secure legal equality as to the immigration of highly-educated Asiatics. In the cablegram, however, you have been told that, if the Bill does not protect minors and the wives of lawful residents, it may not end passive resistance. It might be said that this is a new point raised by us. I hope, however, that any such misconception you will be able to remove. Wives and minor children are under the existing legislation fully protected—you will notice that from Mr. Gregorowski’s opinion—but the new Bill seeks to deprive us of that right, and passive resisters can hardly be expected to bargain away the rights of parents, specially such inherent rights as those of taking their wives

1 Vide “Cable to Natesan, Gokhale and S.A.B.I. Committee”, 11-3-1911.
2 Available in part; vide “Letter to E. F. C. Lane”, 4-3-1911.
and children with them, against a grant of legal equality. I do not think that there will be any difficulty about getting the necessary amendment carried here, but, supposing that the difficulty does arise and General Smuts again talks of new points being raised by me, you will know how to deal with it. It is General Smuts who is raising a new point, if he is raising it at all. I give him the credit of not raising any contentious issues, by supposing that the matter has only been overlooked by his draughtsmen, and that he will rectify the difficulty at the Committee stage. As to the Cape and Natal, whether the position there is ameliorated or not, the present passive resistance will stop, if the Bill is amended, so far as the Transvaal is concerned, in the manner suggested by me. You will carefully go through the Petition1 to the House of Parliament here, and all the other documents. I am asking2 Mr. Ritch to write to you from Cape Town, so that the information I am giving you will be brought up to date by Mr. Ritch.

Yours sincerely.

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S.N. 5281

291. LETTER TO L. W. RITCH

[JOHANNESBURG,]

March 13, 1911

MY DEAR RITCH,

I have your letter. I suppose the handwriting is Harold’s3. I congratulate him and you also. He is copying your style. Are you at the Hotel whose paper you have used? I hope that you have been receiving my letters daily and regularly. I quite agree with you that we should not accept dictation from Smuts as to who should be the representative, and I am glad that he has sent the telegram saying no one should proceed from here either.4 Your letter to the Cape Argus is none too strong. I hope that Schreiner will assist materially in this matter. I expect much from the Cape Press. They should put up a strong fight on behalf of the Cape Indians. From the Cape Argus

1 Vide “Transvaal Petition to Union Assembly” 10-3-1911.
3 Rich’s son
4 Vide “Letter to Private Secretary to Minister of Interior”, 10-3-1911.
leader, it would appear that the Bill will undergo considerable modifications, as it ought to, in the shape of curtailing the discretionary powers of the Administration. I am sending you cheque for £10, which you should have no difficulty in getting cashed by Silberbauer, if nowhere else. I enclose herewith copy of Laughton’s opinion. You have got my deductions.¹

Yours sincerely,

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S.N. 5282

292. LETTER TO H. S. L. POLAK

[JOHANNESBURG,]
March 13, 1911

MY DEAR POLAK,

Whether you send money from your side to Ritch or not, I have sent £10 from here. I enclose herewith cuttings received from Ritch, thinking you may not have seen them or some of them. The Colonial-born Indians’ attitude I can understand. It is largely due to their ignorance which in its turn owes its existence to their indifference and laziness. They have not followed the struggle, and they will not study the laws affecting Indians. You can see the grossest ignorance betrayed in the African Chronicle leading article, which I undertook to read after your warning. It is not only ignorant, but it is mischievous. The writer has not even taken the trouble of reading the Law, and quotes words as belonging to a Section which do not occur in it. However, we can only disabuse their minds of misunderstandings to the best of our ability. What I think you may safely promise, and what I think we may have to do, is that, immediately the matter is settled and the Bill is on the Statute Book, we will have to present our Bill of Rights throughout the Union, and work away for it, leaving me out of account,² of which a little later.

You will not forget the reminder for Mr. Omar.³ It is necessary to have the lease as early as possible. I have not written any leading matter yet in connection with the Bill. I do not want to write anything

¹ Not available
² Vide “Letter to R. Gregorowski”, 2-3-1911.
³ Perhaps because Gandhiji was thinking of leaving South Africa to settle in India immediately after the Bill became law.
until I have seen the Debate on the Second Reading.

Yours sincerely,

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S.N. 5283

293. LETTER TO L. W. RITCH

[JOHANNESBURG,]
March 14, 1911

MY DEAR RITCH,

The Debate\(^1\) seems to have gone not badly. Your coaching of Alexander\(^2\) proved very effective. Let us hope that we shall have the necessary amendments. I thought I would have a telegram giving your own impression of the Debate. The report received here is by no means exhaustive. I hope that the petitions\(^3\) were presented yesterday\(^4\). Have I asked you to get from Silberbauer Team’s certificate and all the other certificates that were sent to him in connection with the cases of the deportees? If not, please get them. I am publishing the correspondence\(^5\), as also a leader regarding yourself.\(^6\) If you think that this is inadvisable, please telegraph Phoenix directly. This will be in your hands early on Friday morning, and if your telegram goes before 10 o’clock to Phoenix, the matter can be kept out. But I think that it should go in. We will have, in the event of the amendments not being made, to go further, and use the incident against General Smuts.

Yours sincerely,

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S.N. 5285

---

\(^1\) On the second reading of the Bill, which began on 13-3-1911
\(^2\) After Smuts’ speech on the second reading of the Bill, Advocate Alexander fervently spoke in favour of the Asiatic demands. Gandhiji himself had sent a telegram to Alexander; vide “Telegram to Members of Parliament”, 11-3-1911.
\(^3\) Vide “Natal Petition to Union Assembly”, 9-3-1911 and “Transvaal Petition to Union Assembly”, 10-3-1911.
\(^4\) According to a Reuter telegram published in the Gujarati Section of Indian Opinion, 18-3-1911, the petitions of the Cape, Natal and Transvaal Indians were presented to Parliament on 15-3-1911.
\(^5\) Between Gandhiji and the Minister of Interior; vide Indian Opinion, 18-3-1911.
\(^6\) Vide “Little-mindedness”, Indian Opinion, 18-3-1911.
294. LETTER TO “RAND DAILY MAIL”¹

JOHANNESBURG,
March 15, 1911²

SIR,

There is only one thing in your leading article of today’s date on which you will, perhaps, permit me to say a few words. So far as I can voice my countrymen’s aspirations, there is no question now, and there was none before, of quietly accepting the existing position governing British Indians in the different Provinces. All that the present Bill can do, so far as the Transvaal is concerned, is to stop passive resistance, and that, too, if it is amended so as to make it clear that the rights at present enjoyed by the minor children and wives of domiciled Asiatics, whether they be at present inside the Transvaal or outside the Province, are not to be taken away by it, and that those few highly educated Asiatics who will enter under the education test will be able to reside in any part of the Union without being subject to Provincial registration laws. Apart from passive resistance, Indians have never ceased, nor have, for that matter, the Imperial and Indian Governments, to press for repeal of legislation which prohibits their holding landed property, interferes with their freedom of movement, etc. I am quite sure that the Cape and the Natal Indians will certainly never submit to legislation restrictive of the rights at present enjoyed by them, without making a desperate effort to avoid such a calamity. In an age which we fondly believe is an age of progress, there can be no such thing as finality, and my countrymen would be less than human, if they did not make a serious endeavour to deserve, at the hands of the European residents in the Union, better treatment than they have hitherto received. The education test in the present Bill is not a fraud, unless you are prepared to give that name to the whole of the British Constitution. The adoption by General Smuts of the policy enunciated by Lord Crewe is a recognition by him of the idea of equality. The administration of the measure will be undoubtedly ¹ This was reproduced in Indian Opinion, 25-3-1911, along with an extract from the leading article.

² The source bears the date March 16. But vide “Letter to L W. Ritch”, 15-3-1911 unequal. There is no secret about it. Administrative inequality will be a concession to the prevalent prejudice in South Africa and to human weakness. Self-respecting Asiatics are bound to make an honest attempt to remove the prejudice, first, by removing the causes that have led to the rise of any such prejudice and, secondly, by showing that largely it is based on ignorance.

I am, etc.,

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S. N. 5303

295. TELEGRAM TO L. W. RITCH

JOHANNESBURG, March 15, 1911

WIRE YOUR IMPRESSION DEBATE WHEN COMMITTEE STAGE.

M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat of the handwritten office copy: S.N. 5292

296. LETTER TO L. W. RITCH

[JOHANNESBURG,] March 15, 1911

MY DEAR RITCH,

There has been no letter from you since Monday, and no telegram. I take it that you have been too busy lobbying. I enclose herewith my reply¹ to a leading article appearing in today’s issue of the Mail. The article itself I shall send you tomorrow. I thought it was necessary to deal with it. I felt like doing it when the Mail first wrote in the same strain, but Sorabjee was very nervous about it, and so I thought I would yield. I trust that you will send me, from time to time, wires as to any amendments that may be moved, and their progress. We cannot tolerate any uncertainty regarding the wives and minor children. If you have not already sent me copy of the correspondence between the Imperial and the Union Governments, please do so now. I had expected a copy today from you.

Yours sincerely,

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S. N. 5290

¹ Vide “Letter to Rand Daily Mail”, 15-3-1911

VOL. 11: 11 APRIL, 1910- 12 JULY, 1911 277
297. LETTER TO H. S. L. POLAK

[JOHANNESBURG,]
March 15, 1911

MY DEAR POLAK,

The Rand Daily Mail article referred to in the letter to Ritch’ has been sent to West, and also the cartoon’. Up to the time of writing there is no wire from Cape Town. I hope our friends there will have collected a fair sum by the time this reaches you. The first thing necessary even for passive resistance in its initial stages will be funds.

Yours sincerely,

From a photostat of the handwritten office copy: S.N. 5292b

298. LETTER TO “PRETORIA NEWS”

JOHANNESBURG,
March 16, 1911

SIR,

Certain inaccuracies in the interview with me which you have published have led, I see, to a great deal of misunderstanding in Natal, and the interview is being used much to the detriment of the cause I have at heart. Inaccuracies are inevitable in an interview, unless it is revised by the interviewed, especially when such an interview takes place, as this one did, over the telephone. I hope, therefore, that you will permit me to remove through your columns the misunderstanding created by the interview in question.

This is my position: If the new Bill admits Asiatics who pass the education test into the Union without their being subject to Asiatic Registration Laws, and if it does not take away, as it is apprehended its present wording does, the rights of wives and minor children of those registered or entitled to be registered to enter the Transvaal, passive resistance must cease; and to that extent I consider the Bill to be satisfactory. However intensely I may dislike the provisions of the Bill regarding the Asiatics at the Cape and in Natal, passive resistance

1 Vide the preceding item.
2 Not available
cannot be continued by the Transvaal Asiatics in respect of the disabilities proposed to be imposed upon my countrymen in these two Provinces. So that my satisfaction with the Bill can only relate to the Transvaal and to the passive resistance campaign.

The number of Indians at present serving indentures is not 15,000 but nearly 23,000.

I am, etc.,

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S.N. 5301

299. TELEGRAM TO H. S. L. POLAK

[JOHANNESBURG,]
March 16, 1911

TO POLAK
CARE RUSTOMJEE
DURBAN

RITCH WIRES PETITIONS PRESENTED BY DUNCAN\(^1\) HUNTER\(^2\) JAGGER\(^3\) RESPECTIVE PROVINCES. ALL CONSIDER PRAYER JUST. OUTLOOK MOST ENCOURAGING. NOT KNOWN WHEN REACHING COMMITTEE. SITUATION HAS BEEN CABLED FROM CAPE.

GANDHI

From a photostat of the handwritten office copy: S.N. 5296

300. LETTER TO L. W. RITCH

March 16, 1911

MY DEAR RITCH,

I have your letter, as also your telegram. You have certainly done all that was possible. If the present amalgamation\(^4\) of the various Indian Associations continues after your withdrawal, it will be a very

\(^1\) Patrick Duncan, Member of Parliament from the Transvaal
\(^2\) Sir David Hunter, Member of Parliament from Natal
\(^3\) J. W. Jagger, Member of Parliament from the Cape Colony
\(^4\) Vide 4th footnote of “Letter to L. W. Ritch”, 6-3-1911.
great gain. If young Gool, the doctor, works well and self-sacrificingly, he can do a great deal. I am re-directing seven letters to you. There is nothing new from Maud. I hope that you will carefully scan every amendment that may be moved in Committee, and see to it that General Smuts does not surreptitiously create a colour bar by moving the amendment to the effect that those who may enter under the education test shall not be subject to the Registration Act of the Transvaal. The amendment should be that such men should not be subject to the registration laws of any Province, because, if that is not done, the Orange Free State will be barred, and the theory of equality as to immigration will be violated. In an immigration law of the Transvaal, exemption from the Transvaal Registration Act would have been quite enough, but, in a Union Immigration Law, exemption from all registration laws is absolutely necessary. Please note, too, that the minor children of Asiatics registered or entitled to be registered, or entering under the immigration test, have to be protected whether they are without the Union or within. General Smuts is quite capable of bringing in an amendment which would read to mean that Asiatic minors outside the Transvaal but within the Union shall alone be able to enter the Transvaal. India has published[1] the full report of your presentation. It reads admirably. Lord Ampthill seems to have acted perfectly, and I was glad to notice Dube[2] speaking out so nicely. The whole affair was evidently a very great success. I should like the names of all who were present; Maud has not supplied me with them. The writer in the South African News is a disappointing man. He leads one to think that all one’s courtesy is lost upon him. However, your letter made him think.

Yours sincerely,

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S.N. 5299

---

1. In its issue dated 24-2-1911
2. An Indian barrister practising in England
301. LETTER TO H. S. L. POLAK

[JOHANNESBURG,]
March 16, 1911

MY DEAR POLAK,

I pass on the cutting received from Ritch. I hope that the report of the Ritch presentation will go in full at an early date. Just at this time it is very seasonable. I send you the enclosed from the All-India Moslem League. I do not like the advertising idea underlying it, but I fear that we have to publish it. Naidoo has sent me for correction a petition drafted either by himself or by Aiyar regarding the £3 tax. In spite of your remarks in one of your letters, I still very much distrust Aiyar's good faith. He is a man of the moment. He will write one thing today, and just the opposite tomorrow. He is thoroughly unscrupulous, and I am nervous about his handling any matters of public importance, and I am much more so when he is disposed to patronise me. I like him best when he swears at me and publicly goes for me. I know that then he would not ask me to assist in any of his public activities. I fear that he is now hoodwinking P. K. Naidoo on the strength of his being a Brahmin, and possessing a better knowledge of the English language than Naidoo. Now you will more fully understand my advice to P. K. Naidoo. I send you copy of my letter to him. I feel for him, because I consider him to be infinitely superior to Aiyar in character. All the children and most of the passive resisters on the Farm are in Johannesburg today. I brought them out by special car. The Traffic Manager quoted specially favourable terms. For 26 men and children the return journey costs £1/12/2. I propose to go back with them on Saturday by the one o'clock train, unless you or Ritch retain me in Johannesburg. Of course, I return to the Farm every evening. I was glad to notice through the telephone today that your voice was much stronger and better. I hope there is no trace of cold now left. I enclose herewith copy of my letter to the Pretoria News. I am writing the letter because I promised I would, but,

---

1 The Address to L. W. Ritch, Secretary, South Africa British Indian Committee, London, was presented at Criterion Restaurant, London, on 16-2-1911. A report of the proceedings was published in Indian Opinion, 25-3-1911.
2 Enclosure not available
3 P. S. Aiyar, Editor. African Chronicle, Durban
4 Not available
5 Vide "Letter to Pretoria News", 16-3-1911.
on re-reading the interview, I see that I need not have written the letter. Stent has sufficiently explained my view about Natal and the Cape. The little inaccuracy about the figures and the concluding paragraph as to my satisfaction do not matter. However, my letter I hope you will consider sufficient.

Sincerely yours,

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S.N. 5302

302. LETTER TO J. J. DOKE

[JOHANNESBURG,]
March 17, 1911

DEAR MR. DOKE,

I fear that for a little thing, little, that is, from the European standpoint, the struggle will have to be prolonged. Mr. Ritch telegraphs, saying that General Smuts will introduce an amendment exempting future immigrants from the operation of the Asiatic Act of the Transvaal, that is to say, they will still be liable to the Asiatic Ordinance of the Orange Free State, and, therefore, the colour bar will still remain in the Immigration Law. I feel that we cannot possibly accept such a concession. The removal of the colour bar throughout the Union so far as the new immigrants are concerned means nothing for the Orange Free State, because the local disabilities may and will still remain, but, unless the exempting clause is put in, an educated Indian immigrant will have no foothold at all in the Free State. In practice, no educated Indian can exist in the Free State, because there are very few Indians for whom he could cater. I am sending you copies of the correspondence\(^1\) bearing on this point, and am anxious to know how the whole thing strikes you. I feel that, if it is wrong to accept the colour bar in the Transvaal Immigration Law, it is wrong to accept it in the Union Immigration Law which replaces it. I do not want to leave the office just now. Otherwise, I would have come down.

Yours sincerely,

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S.N. 5304

\(^1\) Between Gandhiji and Smuts
303. TELEGRAM TO L. W. RITCH

JOHANNESBURG,
March 17, 1911

CONSTITUTION ACT CHAPTER THIRTY-THREE

GANDHI

From a photostat of the handwritten office copy: S.N. 5306

304. TELEGRAM TO PRIVATE SECRETARY TO GENERAL SMUTS

JOHANNESBURG,
March 17, 1911

JUST LEARN GENERAL SMUTS PROPOSES MOVING AMENDMENT IMMIGRATION BILL EXEMPT FUTURE ASIATIC IMMIGRANTS FROM OPERATION ACT THIRTY-SIX 1908 THUS IMPLYING APPLICATION FREE STATE ASIATIC ACT SUCH IMMIGRATIONS. IF SO IT WILL CREATE A COLOUR BAR IN UNION IMMIGRATION LAW POINTEDLY INSULTING INDIANS HIGHEST CULTURE. HOPE THEREFORE THAT ASIATIC IMMIGRANTS WILL BE EXEMPTED FROM ALL REGISTRATION LAW AS WAS GENERAL SMUTS’ INTENTION EXPRESSED IN TELEGRAM TO ME. WISH RESPECTFULLY POINT OUT THAT CONCILIATION PASSIVE RESISTERS REQUIRES ENTIRE ABSENCE COLOUR BAR UNION BILL AND FULL PROTECTION WIVES MINOR CHILDREN AS HITHERTO IT IS THEREFORE URGED THAT IF FREE STATE MEMBERS WILL NOT EVEN TOLERATE A SOLITARY EDUCATED ASIATIC WITHIN FREE STATE BOUNDARY AND IF WIVES MINORS COULD NOT BE PROTECTED IT WOULD BE MUCH BETTER BILL WAS NOT PASSED AND TRANSVAAL SITUATION DEALT WITH

1 This was sent in reply to Ritch’s telegram which read: Schlesin’s wire required immunity educated Registration Law Orangia now understand you mean educated immigrants not to be barred Free State despite unrepealed exclusion Law. Wire reference Law in question. . . .(S.N. 5305)

2 Dated March 4; vide 1st footnote of “Letter to E.F.C.Lane”, 4-3-1911.
BY AMENDING LOCAL LEGISLATION.

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S.N. 5309; also

Indian Opinion, 25-3-1911

305. TELEGRAM TO L. W. RITCH

JOHANNESBURG,
March 17, 1911

You will get copy my wire¹ Smuts. Just seen Cartwright. He sees point clearly. Approves. There can be no question hairsplitting where clear principle at stake.²

Gandhi

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S.N. 5308

306. LETTER TO L. W. RITCH

March 17, 1911

My dear Ritch,

I have your letters and telegrams. Today has been an eventful day. I am much shaken by the news¹ you have given me. As soon as I mentioned the information to Cartwright, he said:

That is Smuts. If one white man raises any objection to your people getting any rights, he will try to please that white man, no matter even though his doing so may cost an Empire.

Your second telegram² about the supporters deprecating what appeared to be hair-splitting perturbed me very much. I thought that we would have to go through the laborious process of explaining to our supporters the fact that we were asking for nothing new, and that opposition to the colour bar as to the Free State was inevitable by

¹ Vide the preceding item.
² This was in reply to Ritch’s telegram: Supporters deprecate what will be reported hairsplitting and evidence unwillingness settle. Think inadvisable press point. (S.N. 5307)
³ Vide “Letter to J. J. Doke”, 17-3-1911.
⁴ Vide the preceding item.
reason of the Bill being a Union Bill. But I now see that your telegram was based on a mis-reading of Miss Schlesin’s telegram. She thought that you would never consider that we would ask for free entry into the Free State for educated Indians who are at present resident in South Africa. If we did so as part of the passive resistance campaign, it would be a distinct breach of faith. But, if we did not resist the attempt to prohibit educated immigrants from entering the Free State, passive resisters would be set down as cowards. We are fighting a colour bar and we must continue to fight it, whether it is in a Transvaal law or in a Union law. I hope that you will be able to persuade the supporters to take the same view. I have not yet ascertained the feeling of all the passive resisters. Mr. Cachalia and others are just now in the office and they seem to hold the same view as I do. Personally, I would like an indefinite postponement of the Bill and the desired alteration in the Transvaal Immigration Law. ¹ Then, we need raise no question as to the Free State, there would arise no question as to the Cape and Natal, and the whole thing would be quite satisfactory. If General Smuts does not yield, I hope that the Cape friends will also take up passive resistance, because the question then will be no longer provincial. They are as much interested in resisting a colour bar in a Union law as the Transvaal Indians, and, if they would take up passive resistance, the whole thing could be finished in practically no time. I am writing² to Gool and others about funds. The dispatches³ of Lords Crewe and Morley do credit to them, and they show that great and useful work was done by the South Africa British Indian Committee. The dispatches escape not a single argument or point. Your epitome of what should be done by the Government to placate Asiatics all over is admirable, and I hope that it was read by all the Members of Parliament. Do you suggest a letter from here and Natal to Alexander? He will be, I see, a most valuable helper.

Yours sincerely,

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S.N. 5312

¹ Vide “Telegram to Private Secretary to General Smuts”, 17-3-1911.
² The letter is not available
³ Included in the Blue-book laid on the table of the House by Smuts while introducing the Bill. Vide also “Letter to L. W. Ritch”, 23-3-1911.
⁴ Advocate Alexander; vide “The Immigration Bill”, 18-3-1911.
307. LETTER TO H. S. L. POLAK

March 17, 1911

MY DEAR MR. POLAK,

I hope you have succeeded in rousing our friends there to a sense of their duty. Though I still hope that there will be a favourable reply to our telegram\(^1\) to Smuts, we, at this end, are making every preparation for a renewal of the struggle. Cartwright is simply disgusted, with his own party as well as with Smuts. I understand that he will be leaving the Leader within a week or so, unless something he expects turns up.

Sincerely yours,

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S.N. 5313

308. THE IMMIGRATION BILL

The debate on the second reading of this Bill shows how fortunate we have been in having Mr. Ritch at Cape Town just at this juncture. The words of The Times to the effect that Mr. Ritch was coming to South Africa in order to co-operate with those who were trying to settle the vexed Asiatic question may be said, in the light of what is happening, to have been prophetic. We can see Mr. Ritch’s hand in the weighty contribution to the debate by Mr. Advocate Alexander. He allowed not a single point raised by the Indians throughout the three Provinces to escape him, and he has shown clearly that, if the Bill goes through unaltered, passive resisters will have paid too dear a price for peace; and it is certain that, if passive resisters were not bound morally to cease struggling immediately on their demands being granted, they would be very properly justified in rejecting the Bill as an honourable compromise, if the position of the Natal and the Cape Indians were not altered by making the amendments necessary to meet the Indian objections from these two Provinces. But we hope that General Smuts will accept the advice given to him by Sir Percy Fitzpatrick, and grant the very reasonable requests made by the Indians at the Cape and in Natal. They ask for nothing new. They merely wish to stipulate that existing rights shall not be disturbed. It is said that General Smuts wants to admit only twelve Asiatics per year under the education test. In our opinion, this is absurd. The Transvaal Indians suggested that six per year should be allowed for the Transvaal. Surely six for Natal and the Cape is a very small number. The smooth working of the Act will depend very largely upon the spirit that actuates General Smuts in framing his regulations, and the spirit in which the Act and the regulations are administered. The fate of passive resisters will be decided in the course of the next few days. General Smuts has stated that the Bill is intended to exempt those who may enter under the education test from the operation of registration laws. He has, therefore only to make a verbal amendment in order to bring that meaning out clearly in the Bill; and we refuse to believe that he wishes to go behind the judgment of the Supreme Court and deprive minor Asiatics of the rights which that Court has recognised, or that he does not wish to clothe with absolute protection the wives of lawful residents.

\(^1\) Vide, “Telegram to Private Secretary to General Smuts”, 17-3-1911.

Indian Opinion, 18-3-1911

309. NEW BILL IN PARLIAMENT

Every Indian should go through the debate on the second reading of this Bill. One will find it very instructive. Irrespective of whether or not the new Bill is suitably amended, what was said about it and the emphasis that was laid on its bearing only on the Asiatic problem are worth noting. Everyone can see that this is entirely the result of the power of satyagraha. Lord Crewe revised the view which he had expressed in 1909 and requested General Botha to grant the Indians’ demands. As satyagraha became protracted, the views of the Imperial Government and the Local Government underwent changes. The Act 2 of 1907 would never be repealed [it was said], and they agreed [subsequently] to repeal it. They accepted voluntary registration, which [they earlier said] they would never do. They were not prepared to permit the admission of educated Indians, but agreed to do so later under a separate law. They declared then that further than this they would never go, that it would be immoral to grant the Asiatics’ demands; the bogey of immorality has vanished now and the demands of the Asiatics have been conceded. It may be asked: what does it profit us if such a demand has been accepted? We shall consider an answer after the Bill has gone through in a form that satisfies us.
For the present, the important point to note is that our demands have been met, more or less. Sir Percy Fitzpatrick, who at one time used to hold out threats against us, now says that General Smuts would do well to satisfy the Asiatics. The gentleman is afraid lest satyagraha should spread to the whole of South Africa. Mr. Duncan, the man who designed the obnoxious Act, now advocates its repeal, and says he will be happy if the proposed law sees the end of the satyagraha campaign. We do not find a single member who has spoken against satyagraha. Can there be a triumph greater than this?

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 18-3-1911

310. TELEGRAM TO L. W. RITCH

JOHANNESBURG,

March 18, 1911

CONFIRMING YESTERDAY’S TELEGRAM OUR FIGHT AGAINST COLOUR BAR CANNOT CLOSE IF EDUCATED ASIATICS NOT EXEMPTED FREE STATE LAW. EXISTENCE COLOUR BAR IN THIS MOST INSULTING SHAPE WILL WIDEN AREA PASSIVE RESISTANCE. AS SIR PERCY CLEARLY POINTED OUT THERE CAN BE NO COMPROMISE THIS POINT. HOPE CAPE NATAL ASIATICS WILL SEE THAT NOW THEY MUST JOIN HANDS BUT WHETHER THEY DO OR NOT MY ADVICE FELLOW PASSIVE RESISTERS WILL BE STRONGLY CONTINUE STRUGGLE. AM NOW CONFERRING WITH THEM. WILL GIVE YOU THEIR DECISION LATER: DO PRESS CAPE INDIANS COLLECT FUNDS. MAY I WRITE THEM.

GANDHI

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S.N. 5311

---

1 Member from Pretoria East, Transvaal
2 The Source has the date 17th, vide, however, ‘yesterday’s telegram’, viz., “Telegram to L. W. Ritch”, 17-3-1911.
311. LETTER TO L. W. RITCH

March 18, 1911

MY DEAR RITCH,

What is the meaning of “anticipating trouble from all quarters”? I take it to mean that the Bill will be assailed not only by us, but by the Members on behalf of the community in general. I must confess that I should feel delighted if the Bill were withdrawn, and the Immigration Act of the Transvaal amended. But, if the Bill does go through, you will have to answer all kinds of questions in connection with the Free State, as, for instance, [the] right of the future Asiatic immigrants to be free from restrictions, are they to hold landed property, etc. We ask for no such thing. All we say is that, as to immigration and as to residence, because residence is part of immigration, they should be on the same footing as Europeans. As to all civil rights, they would share the same disabilities as the Asiatics. To illustrate my point, an educated Indian entering the Transvaal would not be subject to the Registration Law, but he would still be subject to Law 3 of 1885. Now, Chapter 33 of the Orange Free State Constitution Act not only deals with the manner in which an Asiatic may reside, but it also takes away other common law rights. Sections 7 and 8 affect such rights. The amendment, therefore, may exempt Asiatics from Clauses 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 9, 10 and 11 so far as they may be applicable. If you take hold of the Chapter, you will understand my meaning still more fully. We want to appear before the public with absolutely clear hands, as I profess we actually are. The present passive resistance has absolutely nothing whatsoever to do with the personal gain of a single individual; and if we make this clear and still our approach is rejected, we place our opponent in the wrong in every respect. It is just at a time like this that General Smuts, whom Cartwright considers to be either absolutely disloyal or intensely stupid, betrays either the one or the other of these qualities in refusing to see you. One good interview could settle the whole question, and could also appease the wrath of the Free Staters by showing that their

---

1 The reference is to Ritch’s telegram of March 18: Committee stage remote. Budget takes precedence. Advise me Smuts reply your wire. I anticipate trouble all around. (S.N. 5310) fear is totally groundless. I take it that you will again instruct Maud from your side. I shall send you on Monday a copy of my letter¹ to her, but that can be no guide to you in writing to her as it will be too late for the time when you must post your letter.

Yours sincerely,

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S.N. 5317

312. LETTER TO H. S. L. POLAK

March 18, 1911

MY DEAR POLAK,

I have no telephone message to send you because I have no telegram from Ritch and none from Smuts. Natesan’s letters herewith.
I opened his letter to you, as also Dr. Mehta’s. I am sending you Natesan’s letter to me also. A parcel containing copies of his speech² is being sent to Phoenix. Please return Natesan’s letter to me, as I have not yet replied to it. Ritch’s solution of the Transvaal difficulty given in the Cape Argus, which I sent you yesterday, should be reproduced in Indian Opinion.³

Yours sincerely,

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S.N. 5320

313. TELEGRAM TO SECRETARY TO MINISTER OF INTERIOR⁴

1, FOX STREET,
JOHANNESBURG,
March 18, 1911

ON BEHALF CHINESE COMMITTEE I BEG TO ASSOCIATE THE COMMITTEE IN THE PRAYER OF BRITISH INDIAN ASSO-

¹ Vide “Letter to Maud Polak”, 13-3-1911
² On the South African question delivered at the Indian National Congress held at Allahabad; reproduced in Indian Opinion, 8-4-1911
³ This was reproduced under the caption, “Mr. Ritch’s suggestions”, in Indian Opinion, 25-3-1911.
⁴ Presumably drafted by Gandhiji; the Post Box number mentioned at the end of the telegram was Gandhiji’s.

290
CITATION AS TO IMMIGRANTS’ RESTRICTION BILL NOW BEFORE PARLIAMENT AND TRUST THAT THE BILL WILL BE SO AMENDED AS TO REMOVE ALL POSSIBILITY AS TO COLOUR OR RACIAL BAR APPEARING IN IT AND TO AFFORD FULL PROTECTION TO WIVES AND MINOR CHILDREN OF LEGAL RESIDENTS. THE COMMITTEE FURTHER TRUSTS THAT THE GOVERNMENT WILL PROVIDE IN ADMINISTRATION OF THE BILL, SHOULD IT BECOME LAW, FOR ENTRY OF LIMITED NUMBER OF CULTURED CHINESE WITHIN UNION AND THAT SUCH CHINESE WILL NOT BE LIABLE TO CHINESE EXCLUSION ACT CAPE.

MARTIN EASTON,
ACTING CHAIRMAN,
CHINESE ASSOCIATION,
POST BOX 6522

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S.N. 5321

314. LIST OF CHINESE SATYAGRAHIS

[On or after March 18, 1911]

Chinese Satyagrahis arrested and sentenced [to] hard labour:

C. F. J. Frank  (3 mon. H.L.)
Lee Kong  (3 M.H.L.)
Luk Nan Dickson  (3 M.H.L.)
Ho Low  (10 days H.L.)
Sam You  (3 M.H.L.)
Chong Ah Kie  (3 M.H.L.)
Wo Kim  (3 M.H.L.)
Ah Wy  (3 M.H.L.)
Ismail Essach
Louis Benjamin

1 The document bears no date but it has been placed immediately after S.N. 5321 which is dated March 18, 1911 and which deals with the problem of the Chinese.
They are either at the Fort or Diepkloof.

From a photostat of the handwritten original, the last three lines being in Gandhiji’s hand: S.N. 5322

315. LETTER TO MAGANLAL GANDHI

TOLSTOY FARM,

Phagan Vad 4 [March 19, 1911]

CHI. MAGANLAL,

Please dispose of the enclosed papers.

Chhaganlal’s health, I am sure, will be restored as soon as he comes here. I wish he comes immediately.

I have no expectations from Anandlal. He can, if he makes up his mind, please respected Amritlalbhai. The charge that he has levelled against Mr. Cordes only shows that he is suspicious and rash. That is why I send you the cutting of Mr. Cordes’ speech received by the same mail. The moral is that we should keep our hearts pure and put a favourable construction on other people’s doings. If we do this, misdeeds will come to be known without our effort.

The more defects you discover in Harilal, the more love you should have for him. One requires a great deal of water to put out a big fire. To overcome the baser element in Harilal’s nature, you have to develop in yourself and pit against it a more powerful force of goodness. Give him the coat too when he asks for a shirt.

I note you are making good progress in Tamil. It would be good if you adopt the practice of speaking with some Tamilian.

Blessings from

MOHANDAS

From the Gujarati original in Gandhiji’s hand: C. W. 5080. Courtesy: Radhabeihn Choudhri

---

1 This letter was apparently written before Chhaganlal Gandhi’s arrival in South Africa in July 1911.
316. TELEGRAM TO PRIVATE SECRETARY TO GENERAL SMUTS

JOHANNESBURG,
March 20, 1911

FEAR VERY MUCH IF GENERAL SMUTS CANNOT SEE HIS WAY ADVANCE UPON WHAT IS STATED YOUR LETTER 16TH INSTANT. THE PAINFUL STRUGGLE WILL CONTINUE. NO SUBMISSION MADE FOR REPEAL CHAPTER THIRTY-THREE BUT FOR SO MUCH OF IT AS REQUIRES APPLICATION GOVERNOR FOR RESIDENCE SHOULD NOT APPLY EDUCATED ASIATIC IMMIGRANTS. NO EXCEPTION TAKEN TO EDUCATED ASIATIC IMMIGRANTS BEING LIABLE TO OTHER DISABILITIES COMMON TO ASIATIC RESIDENTS. EXEMPTION FROM REGISTRATION ACT TRANSVAAL SHOULD BE COMPLETE. RIGHTS EDUCATED INDIAN IMMIGRANTS TRANSVAAL SHOULD NOT BE LESS THAN THOSE OF RESIDENT ASIATICS. TWO COUNSEL ONE IN TRANSVAAL, ANOTHER IN NATAL HAVE GIVEN WRITTEN OPINION SAYING WIVES AND MINOR CHILDREN OF RESIDENT ASIATICS NOT PROTECTED UNDER BILL AS DRAWN UNLESS THEY ARE AT PRESENT IN THEIR RESPECTIVE PROVINCES. HOPE SMALL RELIEF REQUIRED FOR CLOSING STRUGGLE WILL BE GRANTED.

GANDHI

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S.N. 5326; also

Indian Opinion, 25-3-1911

1 This appears to have been referred to as the telegram of the 19th in Lane’s telegram of the 21st (footnote to “Telegram to Private Secretary to General Smuts”, 22-3-1911) and Report of the European Committee meeting (23-3-1911).
2 Vide Appendix, “Lane’s letter to Gandhiji”, 16-3-1911.
3 R. Gregorowski and Laughton; vide “Letter to L. W. Ritch”, 20-3-1911.

VOL. 11: 11 APRIL, 1910- 12 JULY, 1911 293
DEAR MR. LANE,

I telegraphed today in reply to your letter of the 16th instant regarding the correspondence between you and me over the Immigrants, Restriction Bill. I now venture to amplify my telegram.

There is no occasion, neither has it been asked on behalf of British Indians, to repeal Chapter 33 of the Orange Free State Constitution; but I respectfully submit for General Smuts’ consideration that, just as educated Indian immigrants will, under the amendment he proposes to move, be free from registration under the Transvaal Act No. 36 of 1908, so may such immigrants be free from the Sections of Chapter 33 of the Orange Free State Constitution regarding what amounts to registration. Such seems to have been the intention of General Smuts at the time the telegram of the 4th instant, referred to in your letter of the 16th instant, was sent. It is therein stated that Asiatics admitted as immigrants under new Immigration Bill would not fall under registration laws and would not be restricted to provincial limits.

A similar statement appears in the dispatch to Lord Crewe, published in the Blue Book U/7/11. All that Asiatics ask for is full immigration rights in law under the Bill without a colour bar. If an educated Indian has to apply under Chapter 33 for permission to reside in the Orange Free State, it means a colour bar in the Immigration Bill, and an amendment exempting such immigrants from the operation of Sections 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 9, 10 and 11 would meet the point, and would still make the immigrants liable to the disabilities as to holding fixed property, etc., common to the other Asiatics.

I venture to suggest that paragraph 2 of your letter is not clear. You say that the amendment to be moved will, in effect, exempt the educated Indian immigrants from registration under the Transvaal Act No. 36 of 1908. This may mean that an educated Indian immigrant will not be free from the operation of Act No. 36 of 1908 entirely, but that he will simply not be required to register. It may be that, in that

---

1 Vide the preceding item.

2 Vide Appendix, “Lane’s letter to Gandhiji”, 16-3-1911.
case, an educated immigrant will be in a worse position than a resident Asiatic, a state of things which will hardly be acceptable to the Indian community.

As to the third paragraph, I may state that two advocates of long standing and wide experience, of the Transvaal and Natal respectively, have given their opinion to the effect that the wives and minor children of Asiatic residents will not be able to join them as heretofore, because they will be treated as prohibited immigrants, unless they can satisfy the education test; and, if it is the intention of the Bill not to debar the wives and minor children of such Asiatics, I submit that an exemption clause of a general nature should be added to the Bill.

The matters I have herein submitted are all of no intrinsic importance from the European standpoint, and I venture to think, not at all contentious, but they are of the greatest importance for the Asiatics. I hope, therefore, that General Smuts will be pleased to give them the consideration they deserve, and grant relief.

I am,
Yours faithfully,

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S.N. 5327; also
Indian Opinion, 25-3-1911

318. LETTER TO MAUD POLAK

March 20, 1911

MY DEAR MAUD,

It seems to me that, after all, there will be no settlement, in spite of the Bill. Only, this time, the Imperial Government will have the clearest proof of what General Smuts is and can be. He has stated, in his letter to the Imperial Government, that educated immigrants, if Asiatics, will be free to settle in any part of the Union, and yet you will see from his latest letter\(^1\) that such will not be the case. From the enclosures you will see what, in my opinion, is our demand\(^2\) exactly regarding the Orange Free State and the Transvaal. Mr. Ritch will write to you on Wednesday from Cape Town as to what you should do.

Yours sincerely,

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S.N. 5328

\(^1\) Vide Appendix, “Lane’s letter to Gandhiji”, 16-3-1911.
\(^2\) Vide the preceding item.
319. TELEGRAM TO L. W. RITCH

JOHANNESBURG,
[March 20, 1911]

TO RITCH
8, KLOOF STREET
CAPE TOWN

LETTER SMUTS\(^2\) SAYS HIS TELEGRAM WHICH\(^3\) DID NOT MEAN CONVEY [ID]EA\(^4\) THAT CHAPTER THIRTY-THREE ORANGE FREE STATE LAWS WOULD BE CANCELLED. LETTER ALSO NOT CLEAR THAT EDUCATED IMMIGRANTS ENTIRELY FREE FROM REGISTRATION ACT. SUGGEST YOUR [MEETING]\(^5\) SUPPORTERS IMMEDIATELY SHOWING COMPLETE EXEMPTION FROM REGISTRATION LAWS UNION NECESSARY STOP RESISTANCE. FOR WIVES MINORS LETTER ALSO HOPELESSLY EVASIVE. HE SAYS DIFFICULTY NOT APPRECIATED BY DEPARTMENT.

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S.N. 5300a

320. LETTER TO L. W. RITCH

March 20, 1911

MY DEAR RITCH,

Herewith copy of letter\(^6\) from General Smuts, and my reply\(^7\). I think that we are in for a big battle. He does not want to forfeit the support of the Free Staters and, therefore, evidently wants to recant. The whole letter is quite worthy of him. He is writing entirely in order to conceal his meaning. The first paragraph credits me with a desire I never had. The second paragraph is intended to veil his meaning, namely, that educated immigrants will not be able to, if they wish to

---

1 This appears to have been sent on the same day as “Telegram to Private Secretary to General Smuts”, 20-3-1911 and “Letter to E. F. C. Lane”, 20-3-1911.
2 These words are not clear in the photostat.
3 ibid
4 ibid
5 This was Gandhiji’s Post Box number.
6 Vide Appendix, “Lane’s letter to Gandhiji”, 16-3-1911.
7 Vide “Letter to E. F. C. Lane”, 20-3-1911.
do so, take out licences to trade. Now they, if they are self-respecting men, would never want trading licences. That is one thing; but to have a statutory disability is totally another. We are asking for a better status for them than the residents possess. How can we now have for them a legal status inferior to that enjoyed by the residents? The third paragraph betrayed an intention not to specifically exempt wives and minor children so that he may put in our way all sorts of difficulties. If need be, you will not hesitate to use Gregorowski’s and Laughton’s opinions to drive our points home, because, in view of what is happening, we must insist on an unequivocal meaning of the Bill so far as the points raised by us are concerned. Unless the Progressive Party solidly wishes to do its duty, and unless some of the Nationalists like Merriman and a few others favour us, the Bill will not be satisfactory. In that event, it seems to me that it will not receive the Royal sanction.

Yours sincerely,

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S.N. 5329

321. LETTER TO H. S. L. POLAK

March 20, 1911

MY DEAR POLAK,

I have not much to add to what I have stated in Ritch’s letter. I have sent to West directly a copy of the Cape petition. Further correspondence which I am sending to you should also go in. I hope to write a leading article on it tomorrow. I take it that the speeches of Lord Ampthill and others at the Ritch reception will go in. A cablegram was received today to the effect that Ritch’s father-in-law is dead. Whilst it is a matter for sorrow, it is equally one for congratulation, for Mr. Cohen is free from a living death.

Yours sincerely,

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S.N. 5325

1 Vide “Letter to L. W. Ritch”, 20-3-1911.
2 This was published in Indian Opinion, 25-3-1911. Vide Appendix “Cape Petition to Parliament”, 15-3-1911.
3 These were published in Indian Opinion, 25-3-1911.
322. TELEGRAM TO JOHANNESBURG OFFICE

Lawley Station,
March 21, 1911

To
Gandhi
Johannesburg

Gandhi

From the original as delivered: S.N. 5330

323. TELEGRAM TO PRIVATE SECRETARY

To General Smuts
Johannesburg,
March 22, 1911

Your wire4. 21st March, yours 17th and 19th. Minister desires me to say he is taking into favourable consideration the question of providing for the women and children of persons lawfully resident, but he considers your attitude on the Free State matter quite unfair. The Asiatics have never claimed to enter that Province, and any such claim now will make it impossible for him to arrive at a satisfactory solution of the Indian question. All the other points in dispute seem now on a fair way to being satisfactorily solved.

1 Presumably, Sorabjee Shapurjee Adajania
2 Of the Orange Free State Constitution, reproduced in Indian Opinion, 25-3-1911
3 Presumably, Sorabjee, son of Parsee Rustomjee
4 Which read: 21st March, Yours 17th and 19th.
RIGHTS IN ANY PROVINCE OF THE UNION STOP BUT APART THEREFROM INVITE GENERAL SMUTS’ ATTENTION TO FACT THAT WHOLE STRUGGLE FOR PRINCIPLE AND AGAINST COLOUR BAR STOP IF PASSIVE RESISTERS OBJECT COLOUR BAR TRANSVAAL IMMIGRATION LAW HOW CAN THEY ACCEPT IT IN UNION IMMIGRATION LAW IN WHICH TRANS- VAAL LAW WILL MERGE STOP IT IS TRUE THEY HAVE NOT ASKED BEFORE AND THEY DO NOT NOW ASK FOR ENTRY EDUCATED OR OTHER ASIATICS FREE STATE STOP IT IS SUBMITTED QUESTION OF SUBSTANTIAL ENTRY DOES NOT ARISE STOP OTHER CONDITIONS THERE AND ABSENCE OF ANY SUBSTANTIAL INDIAN POPULATION THERE WILL EFFECTIVELY BAR ENTRANCE OF EDUCATED INDEPENDENT ASIATICS SUCH AS WILL BE ADMITTED UNDER PRESENT BILL STOP INDIANS ONLY PROTEST AGAINST UNION PARLIAMENT RATIFYING IN BILL FREE STATE POLICY AND THUS SAYING TO THE WORLD NO INDIAN EVEN THOUGH A POTENTATE CAN LEGALLY ENTER AND RESIDE IN A PROVINCE OF THE UNION STOP AS AGAINST DRASTIC CHANGES CAPE AND NATAL ASIATIC STATUS FREE STATE MEMBERS CANNOT REASONABLY OBJECT UNION PARLIAMENT DECLINING OFFER INSULT TO HIGHEST OF INDIA’S SONS BUT IF UNFORTUNATELY THEY DO AND GOVERNMENT CANNOT WELL DISPLEASE THEM IT IS RESPECTFULLY SUBMITTED THAT BILL BE WITHDRAWN AND TRANSVAAL IMMIGRATION LAW SUITABLY AMENDED SO AS TO DO JUSTICE TO ASIATIC SENTIMENT AND CLOSE PAINFUL STRUGGLE.

GANDHI

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S.N. 5340; also

Indian Opinion, 8-4-1911

324. TELEGRAM TO L. W. RITCH

Johannesburg,

March 22, 1911

GENERAL SMUTS TELEGRAPHSH HE WILL FAVOURABLY CONSIDER QUESTION WOMEN CHILDREN BUT HE CONSIDERS ATTI-

---

1 Vide footnote to the preceding item.
TUDE FREE STATE QUITE UNFAIR AND SAYS ASIATICS NEVER CLAIMED ENTER THAT PROVINCE AND ANY SUCH CLAIM NOW WILL MAKE IT IMPOSSIBLE FOR HIM TO ARRIVE AT SATISFACTORY SOLUTION. AM REPEATING MY REPLY. SLEPT OVER YOUR CRITICISM.¹ IT IS GOOD FOR CAUTIOUS PEOPLE AND IT WAS YOUR DUTY ISSUE WARNING NOTE. UNACCEPTABLE FOR PASSIVE RESISTERS. SUGGEST YOUR ADVISING CAPE INDIANS TAKE UP FREE STATE MATTER. DO YOU THINK I SHOULD JOIN YOU.

GANDHI

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S.N. 5339

325. TELEGRAM TO L. W. RITCH²

JOHANNESBURG,
March 22, 1911

THINK INCONSISTENT WITH DIGNITY TO ASK SMUTS NOW TO RECEIVE YOU. RESPONSIBILITY FOR THE INSULT IS HIS. BUT IF YOU STILL THINK THAT WIRE SHOULD BE SENT IT WILL BE IMMEDIATELY.

GANDHI

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S.N. 5341

¹ Vide 2nd footnote of “Telegram to L. W. Ritch”, 17-3-1911.
² This was in reply to Ritch’s telegram of March 20 which read: Suggest wiring Smuts again request see me. Bill delayed at least today tomorrow. (S.N. 5324)
MY DEAR POLAK,

I now enclose copies of the resolutions¹ I suggest you may pass at the meeting. What a great achievement it will be if the second resolution is passed intact. I send you also my reply² to General Smuts. Mr. Phillips³ is very hostile to the Bill, because he considers that the Orange Free State disability constitutes a racial bar, and amounts to, in his own words, “the banning of a nation”. At his instance, a meeting of the European Committee is being called at Mr. Hosken’s office tomorrow. I think that the Committee will address General Smuts strongly in the matter. I have little doubt that all the members will support us.⁴ I send you Ritch’s letter⁵ for perusal. His argument about the Bill is worthy of every consideration. I have myself been unable to see eye to eye with him. We are raising no new issue, and I feel that we would surrender our conscience, if we gave up the struggle. Even non-resisting Indians saw the point when I mentioned it, and they had no difficulty in meeting arguments which I advanced against continuing the struggle. Most of the resisters, though they are most anxious that the struggle should close, have no hesitation in saying that, if the Free State bar remains, the struggle should continue.

Yours sincerely,

[Enclosure]⁶

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S.N. 5344

¹ Vide “Resolutions at Natal Indian Congress Meeting”, 26-3-1911.
² Vide “Telegram to Private Secretary to General Smuts”, 22-3-1911
³ Charles Phillips, a congregational Minister in the Transvaal
⁴ Vide the following item.
⁵ Not available
⁶ Not available. Vide, however, “Resolutions at Natal Indian Congress Meeting”, 26-3-1911
A meeting of the European Committee of sympathisers, in Johannesburg, met at Mr. Hosken’s office, on the 23rd ultimo, to discuss the situation. Mr. Hosken presided, and amongst those present were Rev. J. J. Doke, Rev. Chas. Phillips, Rev. J. Howard, Rev. T. Perry, and Messrs A. Cartwright, T. R. Haddon, D. Pollock, E. Dallow and M. K. Gandhi. The following resolution was unanimously passed:

This meeting of the European British Indian Committee, having considered the correspondence between the Minister of the Interior and Mr. Gandhi (especially telegrams dated 17th and 19th March from Mr. Gandhi and the Minister’s reply thereto dated 22nd March), desires to record its entire approval of Mr. Gandhi’s communications, and is of opinion that the telegram of 22nd March from Mr. Gandhi clearly and equitably sets out the case, and urges the Government to accept the solution proposed therein. The Committee regrets to learn that the Minister of the Interior has thought fit to raise a new point regarding the Free State, in conflict with the Prime Minister’s despatch dated 20th December, 1910, which stated, ‘It is, however, proposed notwithstanding this test, to instruct these officers to allow the entry of a limited number of educated Indians who will after such entry possess permanent residential rights in any Province of the Union,’ and the telegram from the Minister of the Interior to Mr. Gandhi, dated 4th March, which stated, ‘Asiatics admitted as immigrants under the Immigration Bill would not fall under registration laws and would not be restricted to provincial limits.’

From a photostat of the original draft, partly in Gandhiji’s hand: S.N. 5396 b; also

Indian Opinion, 8-4-1911

1 The draft of the report contains the resolution passed on March 23 with correction in Gandhiji’s hand.
328. TELEGRAM TO L. W. RITCH

[JOHANNESBURG,
March 23, 1911]

HOSKEN CARTWRIGHT DOKE PHILLIPS HOWARD PERRY HAD-DON POLLOCK DALLOW PRESENT EUROPEAN COMMITTEE PASSED COMPREHENSIVE RESOLUTION ENTIRELY APPROVING
OUR CONTENTION REGARDING FREE STATE URGING GOVERNMENT TO ACCEPT SOLUTION PROPOSED BY ME. HOSKEN HAS WIRED RESOLUTION SMUTS MERRIMAN JAMESON HUNTER.

From a photostat of the draft in Gandhiji’s hand: S.N. 5396c

329. LETTER TO L. W. RITCH

March 23, 1911

MY DEAR RITCH,

I have your letters. I wish I had the time to write to you more fully than I can. I am just going to the station to catch my train. How I wish I could chat with you, and persuade you that we cannot possibly abandon the Free State point. The Members of the European Committee—whose names you are having—saw the whole point without the slightest difficulty. Mr. Doke is now as strong as any of them, although he cross-examined me severely yesterday, and although, as I have told you, I read the whole of your objections to him. We are not asking for repeal of Chapter 33. We are simply asking for exemption for educated Indians in a Union Bill, because the colour bar of the Transvaal is being transferred to the Union Bill.
General Smuts it is who is raising a new point, because he is committed in his speech and in his telegrams to the principle of such educated Asiatics being able to enter and reside in any Province of the Union. You will note, too, that Lord Crewe has anticipated our objection to any colour bar in the Union Bill. Hence his very serious anxiety on that score, and hence, too, General Botha’s emphatic declaration that educated Asiatics who may enter under the Bill can

1 This appears to be the draft of a telegram sent to Ritch after the European Committee’s meeting; vide the preceding item.
2 For Lawley, probably after the meeting of the European Committee
3 Vide “Report of European Committee Meeting”, 23-3-1911.
4 ibid
reside in any part of the Union. I do not share your fear that we would have difficulty in persuading Lord Ampthill. My only difficulty now is to persuade you. Unless you share my enthusiasm and conviction, how can you impart it to Alexander and others? More when I have the time.

Yours sincerely,

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S.N. 5346

330. TELEGRAM TO H. S. L. POLAK

[JOHANNESBURG,]
March 23, 1911

RITCH TELEGRAPHS SAYING MINISTER IS MOVING AMENDMENTS EXEMPTING PERSONS BORN WITHIN UNION DOMICILED PERSONS WIVES CHILDREN FROM SECTION SEVEN. GOVERNOR GENERAL WILL HAVE POWER PRESCRIBE NATURE PROOF OFFICER MAY DEMAND.

M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat of the handwritten office copy: S.N. 5348

331. TELEGRAM TO PRIVATE SECRETARY
   TO MINISTER OF INTERIOR

JOHANNESBURG,
March 24, 1911

YOURS TWENTY-FOURTH INSTANT.\(^1\) AT TIME MY LETTER FOURTH MARCH QUESTION FREE STATE WAS NOT RAISED BY GENERAL SMUTS STOP RACIAL BAR WILL CERTAINLY BE CREATED IF EDUCATED ASIATIC IMMIGRANTS BE CONFRONTED SUCCESSFULLY WITH FREE STATE ASIATIC REGISTRATION LAW UPON ENTERING STOP IN TRANSVAAL ACT FIFTEEN 1907 NO DIRECT RACIAL BAR APPEARS BUT AS GENERAL SMUTS WELL KNOWS SUCH IS ITS LEGAL EFFECT REGARDING ASIATICS AND SUCH ACCORDING TO INTERPRETATION GIVEN BY COUNSEL AND APPARENTLY ACCEPTED BY GENERAL SMUTS WILL BE EFFECT OF NEW BILL STOP

\(^1\) Vide Appendix, “Telegram to Gandhiji from Private Secretary to Minister of Interior”, 24-3-1911.

THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
IT IS FOR THAT REASON THAT AMENDMENT REGARDING TRANSVAAL ACT WILL BECOME NECESSARY STOP IT IS THEREFORE NOT POSSIBLE TO REGARD SUCH AMENDMENT AS A FURTHER CONCESSION AS EVIDENTLY GENERAL SMUTS SEEMS TO CONSIDER PROPOSED AMENDMENT BUT JUST AS AMENDMENT REGARDING TRANSVAAL IS NECESSARY TO PURGE BILL RACIAL TAINT SO IS AMENDMENT REQUIRED TO COVER FREE STATE LAW STOP PASSIVE RESISTERS I VENTURE TO SUBMIT HAVE BEEN ABSOLUTELY CONSISTENT FROM THE FIRST: THEY OBJECT TO RACIAL BAR IN PRESENT TRANSVAAL LEGISLATION AND THEY WILL RELUCTANTLY BE OBLIGED OBJECT SUCH BAR IN ANY REPEALING LEGISLATION STOP THEY WOULD BE OPEN TO CHARGE OF RAISING NEW POINT IF THEY OBJECTED ON SCORE OF FREE STATE IN A PROVINCIAL LAW STOP I CANNOT LAY TOO MUCH EMPHASIS ON FACT THAT PASSIVE RESISTERS ARE NOT AT ALL CONCERNED WITH INDIVIDUAL MATERIAL GAIN THEY ARE NOT CONCERNED WHETHER A SINGLE ASIATIC ACTUALLY ENTERS FREE STATE BUT EVEN THOUGH THEIR SUFFERINGS MAY BE INDEFINITELY PROLONGED SO FAR AS I CAN SEE THEY WILL NOT CEASE SUFFERING SO LONG AS RACIAL BAR BE ALLOWED TO APPEAR IN ANY LEGISLATION WHICH IS TO REPLACE TRANSVAAL LAWS AND WHICH IS TO BE PASSED LARGELY TO SATISFY THEM STOP IF HONOURABLE ATTEMPT ON PART PASSIVE RESISTERS TO SECURE EQUITABLE TREATMENT IN ACCORDANCE WITH BRITISH TRADITIONS WITHOUT IN ANY MANNER ADVERSELY AFFECTING MATERIAL POSITION OF EUROPEAN COMMUNITY SHOULD EXASPHERE THAT COMMUNITY WITH ALL RESPECT I MUST STATE THAT WE HAVE TO TAKE THAT RISK BUT I SUGGEST TO GENERAL SMUTS THAT HE IS RAISING A NEW POINT IN CONFLICT WITH HIS TELEGRAM OF FOURTH INSTANT GENERAL BOTHA’S DISPATCH\(^1\) OF TWENTIETH DECEMBER AND HIS OWN SPEECH SECOND READING AND I APPEAL TO HIS DESIRE TO CONCILIATE ASIATIC SENTIMENT AND ASK HIM TO GRANT WHAT MEANS SO MUCH TO ASIATICS AND VERY LITTLE INDEED TO EUROPEANS IN GENERAL AND FREE

\(^{1}\) Vide “Report of European Committee Meeting”, 23-3-1911.
STATE EUROPEANS IN PARTICULAR STOP I PROPOSE LEAVING FOR CAPE TOWN BY THE DIAMOND EXPRESS TOMORROW AND IF GENERAL SMUTS WILL BE PLEASED TO GRANT ME AN INTERVIEW PERHAPS I MAY BE ABLE TO MAKE MY SUBMISSION CLEARER.

GANDHI

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S.N. 5351; also Indian Opinion, 8-4-1911

332. TELEGRAM TO L. W. RITCH

JOHANNESBURG,
March 24, 1911

RECEIVED LONG REPLY FROM SMUTS. IT IS TEMPORISING AND THREATENING. SENT YOU COPY MY REPLY. AM LEAVING DIAMOND EXPRESS TOMORROW.

GANDHI

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S.N. 5354

333. TELEGRAM TO H. S. L. POLAK

[JOHANNESBURG,]
March 24, 1911

SMUTS HAS SENT HOSKEN DANGEROUS TELEGRAM. I SHALL THEREFORE NEED AT CAPE TOWN ALL BLUE BOOKS REGARDING QUESTION. PLEASE FORWARD THEM CAPE TOWN.

GANDHI

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S.N. 5355

1 Vide Appendix, “Telegram to Gandhiji from Private Secretary to Minister of Interior”, 24-3-1911.

2 Vide the preceding item.

3 Vide Appendix, “General Smuts Telegram to Hosken”, 24-3-1911.
GOVERNMENT SEEMED DISPOSED GRANT PROTECTION TO WIVES, MINORS AND LAWFUL RESIDENTS, BUT, DESPITE GENERAL BOTHA’S DESPATCH TO LORD CREWE ON THE 20TH DECEMBER, GENERAL SMUTS’ WIRE TO GANDHI OF THE 4TH MARCH AND HIS DECLARATION ON THE SECOND READING THAT EDUCATED ASIATIC IMMIGRANTS WILL BE ABLE TO SETTLE IN ANY PROVINCE OF THE UNION, GENERAL SMUTS NOW SAYS THEY WILL HAVE TO SUBMIT TO HUMILIATING REGISTRATION LAW OF THE FREE STATE, THUS DEBARRING THEIR ENTRY AND CREATING RACIAL BAR UNION IMMIGRATION LAW. AS PASSIVE RESISTERS HAVE ALL ALONG Fought AGAINST RACIAL BAR, STRUGGLE MUST CONTINUE IF GOVERNMENT GO BACK UPON ABOVE-MENTIONED THRICE REPEATED ASSURANCE AND NOW INTRODUCE RACIAL BAR. RESISTERS FIGHTING PURELY NATIONAL HONOUR AND DEFENDING BRITISH CONSTITUTION. EUROPEAN COMMITTEE PRESIDED BY HOSKEN MET YESTERDAY, ENDORSED INDIAN ATTITUDE, AND URGENTLY TELEGRAPHED ASKING SMUTS NOT NOW REVERSE POLICY FORESHADOWED IN BOTHA’S DESPATCH AND SMUTS’ TELEGRAM. TRUST IMPERIAL AND INDIAN GOVERNMENTS WILL TAKE ACTION BEFORE IT IS TOO LATE.

M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy in the Colonial Office Records: C.O. 551/21; also from the original draft in Gandhiji’s hand: S.N. 5375

1 The same cable was also sent to Gokhale. It was reproduced in The Times of India, 28-3-1911.
2 Vide “Report of European Committee Meeting”, 23-3-1911.
335. CABLE TO G. A. NATESAN

[JOHANNESBURG, March 24, 1911]

SEE CABLES SENT GOKHALE ACT

From the original draft in pencil in Gandhiji’s hand: S.N. 5375

336. LETTER TO H. S. L. POLAK

March 24, 1911

MY DEAR POLAK,

I have your letter. I am glad that your tooth is out. I certainly congratulate you upon getting such a splendid dentist. All I can say is that he is an exception. Karamat’s case is shocking. He is undoubtedly a great liar. He will not obey instructions. It is, therefore, difficult to treat him. Otherwise, I consider that his is not a hopeless case. Until he can be sent to India, and supported somewhere, all I can suggest is that, if the people at Phoenix are reconciled to the idea, Mr. Rustomjee should build him a hut, and he should live in that hut by himself and cook for himself, the settlers to have strict instructions not to supply him with any other food at all. The cost will be trifling. He could pass his time in a fairly easy manner, and he will have some sympathetic company also. He can take a small plot, which he may do anything he likes with, so long as he keeps his hut and the plot in a sweet condition. He can only be allowed to come to Phoenix, subject, as I say, to the consent of the settlers, if Mr. Rustomjee will undertake to see him personally at least once per month. To send him to a lazaretto is, in my opinion, to ask him to commit suicide. I would far rather place in his hands a revolver than be party to sending him to any place of compulsory segregation. I dare say you know something of the scandals about Robben Island.

Unless some telegram is received from Smuts, I shall be leaving

1 The draft of this cable is found under the text of the cable sent to Gokhale without the addressee’s name. It is presumed to have been addressed to Natesan from a reference to it in the following item.

3 Formerly a leper colony, at the entrance of Table Bay, Cape Province for Cape Town tomorrow, and we shall exchange telegrams very frequently. Nothing need, therefore, be discussed by me in this letter. Miss Schlesin will write to you daily with reference to the situation here, and send you what there may be for Indian Opinion. I enclose cables sent today to London¹ and Calcutta². I have sent a short cablegram¹ to Natesan asking him to see the cables to Gokhale and act.

Yours sincerely,

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S.N. 5356

337. LETTER TO J. J. DOKE

March 25, 1911

DEAR MR. DOKE,

You will have received copies of the telegrams exchanged between General Smuts and myself,⁴ as also between Mr. Hosken and General Smuts.¹ They portend evil. I am, therefore, going to Cape Town by the Diamond Express. I had intended to call on you before I went away, but there has not been a moment to spare. Mr. Kallenbach is now back from Potchefstroom, and he will keep himself in touch with you. I think that vigorous action on the part of the Committee⁶ will be necessary to counteract the effect of, if I may use the proper term, General Smuts’ lies in his telegram to Mr. Hosken. If he dared to mislead a friend of the cause in this manner, how much more must he not have done with reference to the others who have not even taken the trouble of informing themselves on the question. I have suggested a public letter signed by the members of the Committee, giving their opinion as to what has been the demand from the start. His threat about exasperating the European community reminds me of what the demonstrators did in Durban to inflame the crowd in the December of

¹ To the S.A.B.I. Committee
² To Gokhale, Calcutta. The Times of India printed it is received from Calcutta, 27-3-1911.
³ Vide the preceding item.
⁴ Vide “Telegram to Private Secretary to Minister of Interior”, 24-3-1911; also Appendix, “Telegram to Gandhiji from Private Secretary to Minister of Interior”, 24-3-1911.
⁵ Vide Appendix, “General Smuts Telegram to Hosken”, 24-3-1911.
⁶ European British Indian Committee
1896 and the January of 1897. The European community is certainly not exasperated, but General Smuts is, and he wants to impart his own exasperation to the community.

Yours sincerely,

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S.N. 5358

338. RESOLUTIONS AT NATAL INDIAN CONGRESS MEETING

[ Durban, March 26, 1911 ]

The Natal Indian Congress meeting passed the following resolutions:

(1) Proposed by Mr. Abdul Caadir:
This mass meeting of British Indian residents of Natal hereby places on record its emphatic protest against the Immigrants’ Restriction Bill now before the Union Parliament, in that:

(1) It inaugurates a policy of most total exclusion of British Indians from this Province, and is thus calculated to curtail the facilities which the resident Indian population has hitherto enjoyed of importing from India clerical and other assistance;

(2) No definite provision has been made for recognising the residential rights of the present Indian population, especially those of Indians born in this Province;

(3) Unlike as heretofore, the issue of certificates of residence has been left by the Bill to the discretion of the Administration;

(4) No provision seems to have been made for assisting persons declared to be prohibited by an Immigration Officer to assert their rights before a Court of Law;

(5) The wives and minor children of the resident Indian population do not appear to be protected as heretofore;

(6) The Bill seeks to introduce a racial or colour bar, by rendering British Indians, who may enter the Union under the education test, liable to the Asiatic Laws as to residential rights in one Province of the Union;

1 Vide “Memorial to Secretary of State for the Colonies”, 15-3-1897
2 Vide “Letter to H. S. L. Polak”, 22-3-1911 and respectfully trusts that the Union Government will introduce the necessary amendments granting relief.

Seconded by Mr. G. P. Gandhi; supported by Mr. J. R. Solomon (Tongaat).

(2) Proposed by Mr. Ismail Gora:

This meeting of British Indian residents of Natal declares that, in the event of the clauses imposing the disabilities described in Resolution No. I, not being removed from the Bill, or otherwise satisfactorily amended, those present at the meeting shall respectfully oppose the Bill with all their strength.

Seconded by Mr. R. N. Moodley (Maritzburg); supported by Mr. S. Emam-mally.

(3) Proposed by Mr. Abdulla Haji Adam:

This meeting of British Indian residents of Natal hereby authorises the collection of a fund to effectively carry out the objects of the foregoing resolutions.

Seconded by Mr. R. B. Chetty; supported by Mr. M. M. Suliman (Umzinto).

(4) Proposed by Mr. Parsee Rustomjee:

This meeting of British Indian residents of Natal hereby congratulates the Transvaal Indian community upon, and cordially endorses their determination to continue, the “passive resistance” struggle until the racial or colour bar referred to in Resolution No. 1 is removed.

Seconded by Mr. Lutchman Panday; supported by Mr. Mahomed Cassim Coovadia.

(5) Proposed by Mr. Suliman Karwa:

This meeting of British Indian residents of Natal hereby authorises the Chairman to forward copies of the foregoing resolutions to the Union, Imperial and Indian Governments.

Seconded by Mr. P. K. Naidoo; supported by Mr. Rooknoodeen.

Indian Opinion, 1-4-1911
339. TELEGRAM TO JOHANNESBURG OFFICE

CAPE TOWN,

March 27, 1911

11-30 [A.M.]

Saw Minister short while interview four o'clock.

Gandhi

From a photostat of the original as delivered: S. N. 5367

340. TELEGRAM TO JOHANNESBURG OFFICE

CAPE TOWN,

March 27, 1911

5-15 [P. M.]

Fair interview. Hopeful. Further interview probable.

Gandhi

From a photostat of the original as delivered: S.N. 5372

341. LETTER TO SONJA SCHLESIN

[CAPE TOWN, March 27, 1911]

Here is roughly the purport of the conversation between J.C.S. and me:

SMUTS: You see, Gandhi, I am giving you everything. I could have done so by regulation but now I am protecting wives and children in the Bill. I do not know why, but I know that everybody suspects me. I am also recognising domicile. But you are very unreasonable. Your point is absolutely new.

GANDHIJI: How can you say so, General Smuts? Are you not creating a racial bar?

---

1 The addressee’s name is not available, as the first two pages of the letter are missing; but from the instructions given in the last four paragraphs, it appears to have been written to Miss Sonja Schlesin, who looked after Gandhiji’s Johannesburg office.
S.: No, I am not. Can you show it to me?
G.: Certainly. Will you admit that throughout the four years we have been simply fighting against the racial or colour bar?
S.: Started and said after some hesitation. ‘Yes’.
G.: You know that in the Transvaal Immigration Law there is no colour bar, but you read sub-section 4 and the Asiatic Act, and you have the bar.
S.: You are not stating it fairly.
G.: Then you shall state it in your own words.
S.: In the Transvaal we wanted total exclusion and that is brought about by the combined effect of the two laws.
G.: And now you want the same thing for the Free State. The combined effect of the Free State Law and the new Bill will be to shut out the Nizam of Hyderabad, and I assure you that the passive resisters will fight against it.
S.: There you are unreasonable.
G.: I must deny the charge. I am not at all anxious that a single Indian should actually enter the Free State. I am sincerely anxious to help you.
S.: You do not know my difficulties.
G.: I do. And because I do, I suggest that only so much of the Free State Law should be a basis for exemption as will enable a highly educated Indian to enter the Free State. If you send for the Law, I will show you what I mean.
S.: (Sends for the law): But the Free Staters will never consent.
G.: Then why did General Botha write to Lord Crewe that educated immigrants will be able to enter any province?
S.: You do not know all the dispatches. We have not printed everything, you know. Lord Crewe knows that we never wanted to give the rights as to the Free State.
G.: But you repeated the same thing at the second reading.
S.: Yes. I was simply sounding the Free Staters, and I noticed that they were very much opposed.
G.: If they are, it is your duty to persuade them, and if they cannot be, you may simply amend the Transvaal Legislation.
S.: But I am bound to the Imperial Government to pass this Bill. (Reads the Law and asks G. to go over to his side. G. points out the section from which the exemption is to be granted.) Yes, I now see what you mean.

G.: Yes, the educated Asiatics will be still prohibited from owning fixed property and from trading. I am not raising that issue at all. We have still to fight you on the question of Law 3 of 1885. But this has nothing to do with passive resistance. I for one do not wish to offer passive resistance for material gains, but the racial bar we can never accept.

S.: But you have no idea of my difficulties.

G.: I know that you are quite able to overcome greater difficulties.

S.: All right, I shall now talk to the Free State members. You should leave your address with Lane. I hope you will keep the Cape and the Natal Indians silent.

G.: They will certainly not remain silent. I have just got a wire from Natal. It is absolutely necessary to protect existing rights. The question of domicile is ticklish and section 25 requires amending. Certificates should be issued for the asking.

S.: But discretion is always reserved.

G.: Not in the existing statutes. But of this I shall talk later if you will let me.

S.: What are you doing in Jo’burg, etc.?

G.: Looking after the families of passive resisters, etc.

S.: It has hurt me more than you to imprison these people. It has been the unpleasantest episode of my life to imprison men who suffer for their conscience. I should do the same thing for conscience’ sake.

G.: And yet you are persecuting Mrs. Sodha.

* * *

Please let Sorabjee and those on the Farm read the interview. I have written it more for their sakes, and then you may send it to Mr. Polak.

The notes of the interview are not for publication. But they are not to be destroyed.

I hope you received Mr. Hosken’s permission to publish the correspondence.¹

Do please get Sorabjee to write daily to the people at the Farm.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat of the original in Gandhiji’s hand: S.N. 5376

342. TELEGRAM TO JOHANNESBURG OFFICE

CAPE TOWN,
March 28, 1911.

SEND POLAK ALEXANDER’S MINISTER’S AMENDMENTS PUBLICATION.² AM MOVING REGARDING MINISTER’S AMENDMENTS WHICH ARE NOT QUITE SATISFACTORY. NOTHING FURTHER TODAY.

GANDHI

From a photostat of the original as delivered: S.N. 5370

343. LETTER TO E. F. C. LANE

7, BUITENCINGLE STREET,
CAPE TOWN,
March 29, 1911

DEAR MR. LANE,

I observe that amendments proposed to be moved by General Smuts to the Immigration Bill require that evidence in respect of domicile, marriage and parental relationship should be furnished to the satisfaction of the Immigration Officer. I venture to submit for General Smuts’ consideration that such requirement may open the door to favouritism, corruption and bribery. I also submit that such delicate questions as to marital and parental relationship could only be decided by Courts of Law in case of doubt but not by an administrative officer nor should the matter be left to be dealt with by regulation.

With reference to the question of domicile it is a matter of the

¹ Vide Appendix, “General Smuts Telegram to Hosken”, 24-3-1911.
² Published in Indian Opinion, 1-4-1911 utmost importance that an illustrative definition such as occurs in the Natal Statute should be given. Members of the Indian community here lay the greatest stress on this point owing to their unfortunate experience in the past.

As to section 25, the feeling is very strong that those who prove their right of residence should be entitled to receive, on their making application there for, a permanent residential certificate.

These are points which are of vital importance to the residents, and I hope that they will receive General Smuts’ favourable consideration.

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S.N. 5385; also

Indian Opinion, 8-4-1911

344. TELEGRAM TO JOHANNESBURG OFFICE

CAPE TOWN,

March 29, 1911

WIRE POLAK HOSKEN’S PERMISSION PUBLISH CORRESPONDENCE.

NO NEWS TODAY.

GANDHI

From a photostat of the original as delivered: S.N. 5382

345. INTERVIEW TO “CAPE ARGUS”:

[CAPE TOWN,

Before March 30, 1911]

A mistaken impression has got about that the British Indians of the Transvaal are perfectly satisfied with the provisions of the Immigrants’ Restriction Bill. Mr. Advocate Gandhi, spokesman of the Transvaal Indian community, who is at present in Cape Town, in conversation with an Argus representative, detailed various points of the Bill, which are not approved of by the Transvaal Indians. [Gandhiji said:]

The chief drawback, so far as the passive resisters are concerned,

---

1 For the correspondence, vide Appendix, “General Smuts Telegram to Hosken”, 24-3-1911.
2 The report was “Special to Cape Argus” and was published under the heading “Emigration Bill—Mr. Gandhi’s Grievances—Some Fresh Points”.
3 The Argus interview was published in The Star of the 30th.
is in the racial bar set up, if educated Asiatics who may enter the Union under the education test may not have residential rights in the Free State. It will be remembered that General Botha in a despatch to Lord Crewe, dated December 20, said that such Asiatics could settle in any Province of the Union, and a like statement was made by General Smuts at the second reading of the Bill. It now appears that the intention is to go back upon this, and debar such Asiatics from entering the Free State.

I may mention at once that the question is purely an academic one, because no Indian will care to enter the Free State under the present circumstances, but the removal of the racial bar in an Immigration Bill is absolutely necessary to salve Asiatic sentiment. We do not contend that the general disabilities Asiatics labour under in the Free State should be removed. That is to say, if an educated Asiatic immigrant enters the Free State, he would still be under disabilities as to the holding of fixed property and the carrying on of any trade. The objection against the entrance of such educated Asiatics is based upon ignorance of the situation. I can hardly imagine that the Free State members would object to conciliating Asiatic sentiment by a simple removal of the racial bar. There is little probability that a single British Indian of education will seek to enter the Free State, since the Indian population there is too sparse to support an Indian barrister or doctor. Unless this racial bar is removed, passive resistance, I fear, must continue, and I do not know but that its extent may be increased by the British Indians of Natal and the Cape joining it.

NATAL AND THE CAPE

I have been receiving telegrams from Natal on other points of the Bill, and on these I am conferring with my countrymen in Cape Town. They are all agreed that the existing rights should be fully protected, and they therefore reason that full protection should be given to the wives and children of those who are domiciled in South Africa, and that the rights of domicile should be fully recognised, as they have been hitherto.

THE TERM “DOMICILE”

Past experience shows that the term domicile, being a highly technical word, needs exact definition to avoid the possibilities of bribery and corruption. The Natal Act makes it possible for an Asiatic who has resided for three years to receive a certificate of domicile. It is also contended that those having rights of residence should be able to take out certificates if they choose to do so, so as to enable them to move to and fro without difficulty, without having to incur constant expense to prove their rights. It seems to me, indeed, that many of these matters are easily capable of adjustment.

Education Test

The great question for British Indians in Cape Colony and Natal is the disability imposed by the severe education test in the new Bill. Some guarantee is, I think, undoubtedly necessary in order that Indian residents may obtain clerical assistance from India, since this is not to be obtained in South Africa. Hitherto Indians having a fair education have entered under the immigration test, and such facilities will be still necessary if the existing rights are to be protected.

Some of us even go so far as to contend that now, under Union, there should be no restriction of movement from Province to Province, but the most moderate are for the time being reconciled to provincial restrictions. We recognise the difficulty of the Government in the matter but it is still a pressing grievance.

From a photostat of the cutting from Cape Argus in the Sabarmati Sangrahalaya: S.N. 5214; also

Indian Opinion, 8-4-1911

346. Telegram to Johannesburg Office

7, Buitencingle [Street],
Cape Town,
March 30, 1911

Ask Kallenbach if Ritch may live Mountain View, bill not on for some days. Seeing minister tomorrow. Will be through before end April.

Gandhi

From the original as delivered: S.N. 5391
347. SPEECH AT RECEPTION IN CAPE TOWN

[March, 30, 1911]

Brothers, I am obliged to you for the trouble you have taken for my sake. If you love me and my work, the only thing I would ask you to do is to join me in the work. I do not think I deserve the praise you have lavished on me. Whatever I have done and am doing still must be attributed to the religious ardour in me. We all know that Prahlad\(^1\) opposed his father, embraced a red-hot iron pillar and went through many other ordeals. He suffered all this, he refused to submit to his father, not because of any animosity towards his father but because of his hatred for untruth. Similarly, friends, we may say that we have resorted to satyagraha not in a spirit of hostility to the Government, but because it is a religious duty to fight untruth. Some believe that satyagraha consists only in going to gaol, but that is not true. Satyagraha means resisting untruth by truthful means. It can be offered at any place, at any time and by any person, even though he may be in a minority of one. If one remains steadfast in it in a spirit of dedication, it always brings success. Satyagraha knows neither frustration nor despair. The admiration you have expressed for the success of satyagraha in the Transvaal does show that you realize its great value.

[Referring to the Immigration Bill, Gandhiji said:]

We are nearing the end, and victory will undoubtedly be ours if we work on in the spirit of satyagraha. What is most humiliating to us in the new Bill is the provision that educated Indians cannot enter the Orange Free State, and that the Orange Free State Act, based on racial discrimination, will stand. This is humiliating to all Indians. We in the Transvaal and in Natal are firm in our opposition to it, and I am glad to know that the Cape Indians have also joined us. If we are united in offering satyagraha, our victory is assured.

Gandhiji then explained the position with regard to the correspondence between General Smuts and himself, and also described how the families of satyagrahis were maintained on the Tolstoy Farm, outlining the steps taken to give

\(^1\) Given by the Cape Town United Hindu Association on March 30, 1911 in honour of L.W. Ritch and Gandhiji

\(^2\) Gandhiji often refers to him as the ideal Satyagrahi of his conception.
them some education of practical value. Finally, he referred to the urgent need for clothes, blankets, etc., for the use of the inmates of the Farm during the winter.

[From Gujarati]

_Gandhi_ 22-4-1911

348. TELEGRAM TO JOHANNESBURG OFFICE

KLOOF STREET,

[CAPE TOWN,]

_March 31, 1911_

RAMBHABAI APPLICATION LEAVE APPEAL GRANTED. HEARING TWENTY-FOURTH. BLOEMFONTEIN. GOOD INDIAN MEETINGS YESTERDAY. MASS MEETING SUNDAY.

GANDHI

From the original as delivered: S.N. 5394

349. TELEGRAM TO JOHANNESBURG OFFICE

CAPE TOWN,

_April 1, 1911_

TO

GANDHI

JOHANNESBURG

FREESTATERS¹ NOW CONSIDERING. FINAL DECISION PROBABLY TUESDAY.

GANDHI

From a photostat of the original as delivered: S. N. 5397

¹ Members of Union Parliament from Orange Free State; they were considering the African Indians’ demand that the six educated Asiatics allowed yearly to enter the Colony under the Gandhi-Smuts compromise should have free domiciliary rights in the Free State, which were being denied to them by the proposed Union Immigrants’ Restriction Bill; vide “Telegram to Private Secretary to General Smuts”, 17-3-1911; “Letter to E. F. C. Lane”, 20-3-1911 & “Letter to Sonja Schlesin”, 27-3-1911.
350. FRAGMENT OF LETTER TO MAGANLAL GANDHI

Chaitra Sud 3 [April 2, 1911]

CHI. MAGANLAL

I had asked Dr. Mehta about his view and in reply he has given me permission to send you and another person to England immediately. We cannot avail ourselves of it just yet. I, however, write this in order that you may keep it in mind. There will be, I think, some delay if Chhaganlal⁴ goes to . . .

From the Gujarati original in Gandhiji’s hand: C.W. 5626. Courtesy: Chhaganlal Gandhi

---

¹ This is the first of a series of Gujarati letters in this volume in which the date lines bear the day and month of the Gujarati calendar but mention no year. It was in 1911 that Maganlal’s going to England was discussed seriously; vide “Letter to Maganlal Gandhi”, after 18-5-1911. In that year Chaitra Sud 3 corresponds to April 2.

² Maganlal Gandhi (1833-1928): a cousin of Gandhiji’s and Chhaganlal Gandhi’s brother; in 1908 he suggested “satyagraha” as a Gujarati equivalent for “passive resistance” which was the basis of Gandhiji’s own term “satyagraha”; manager of the Phoenix settlement after Chhaganlal’s departure for England, and later, of the Satyagraha Ashram at Sabarmati. Gandhiji dedicated his Autobiography to him.

³ Dr. Pranjivan Jagjivan Mehta, M. D., Bar-at-law, who took Gandhiji in hand soon after his arrival in England in 1888 and “taught him English etiquette”; remained a lifelong friend till his death in 1933, evincing great interest in all of Gandhiji’s enterprises including the Tolstoy Farm and the Champaran satyagraha; generally an invaluable source of funds for public activities. Through him, Gandhiji met poet Rajchandra from whom he learned to “see God in all his daily acts”. Vide An Autobiography, Part I, Ch. XIII & XIV, Part II, Ch. I and Part V, Ch. XVI.

⁴ Chhaganlal Gandhi; a cousin of Gandhiji’s and a founder member of the Phoenix settlement; Editor of Gujarati Indian Opinion after 1908; was sent to England in 1911 to study for the Bar as part of Gandhiji’s scheme to train members of Indian Opinion staff for increased responsibilities.
MY DEAR LOWER HOUSE,

I have your ‘slating’ letter. It is certainly a sign of ‘thickness’ that I should not write to please you but write only when I have something to say. The office news I purposely refrain from writing as I should expect Miss S[chlesin] to give you the information you would need. You have not become an expert in the question and I do not want to give you details which only an expert may require. You are in fact and in reality the angel of peace and mercy. These angels simply give strength wherever it is required without knowing even that they are doing [so]. With you, as I have so often said, the heart comes first. Whenever the intellect has ruled, you have shown the worst side of your nature.

Remarkable that the finger should not still be cured entirely. But you never fasted, though you intended to.

You are ‘crowing’ too early. My telegrams were not intended to convey that we had the victory. The wretched new Bill I certainly think is as good as dead. But whether the Transvaal Law will be amended or not is a different thing. I think it will be. Smuts is committed to settling the question. But he is never certain as to anything. He always waits till the last moment.

Harilal tells me you are going to England if I do. How so? Can it be arranged? Who will look after the Farm? I should be far more satisfied with your dispositions if Mountain Views could be sold. But I am inclined to blame you in the matter. You have never seriously tried to sell it. Will you now do it? It is, I am sure, wrong to think of clinging to both the Farm and Mountain View.

You will laugh when I tell you that the 2 lb. of butter is still

---

1 From the contents; vide also the following two letters to the addressee; the Monday before April 5 was April 3.
2 Vide Appendix, Immigrants’ Restriction Bill”, 4-3-1911 lying unpacked in Gopal’s bag. Yes, I think, we have lost friend Gopal.

With love,

Yours sincerely,

UPPER HOUSE

From the original: Gandhi-Kallenbach Correspondence. Courtesy: National Archives of India

352. TELEGRAM TO JOHANNESBURG OFFICE

CAPE TOWN, April 3, 1911

TO
GANDHI
JOHANNESBURG

GOOD MEETING YESTERDAY. SEVEN RESOLUTIONS PASSED
FORESHADOWING PASSIVE RESISTANCE, FAILURE REMOVAL RACIAL BAR, SUPPORTING TRANSVAAL, HONOURING RITCH.

1 Probably Gopal Naidoo, who came to stay at Tolstoy Farm around June 13, 1910 and was looking after the cooking there; vide “Letter to Maganlal Gandhi”, 15-6-1910 and “Johannesburg”, 9-7-1910.

2 This meeting held by Cape Indians demanded the following changes, among others, in the Union Immigrants Restriction Bill: (1) proof regarding domicile from wives and children of domiciled Asiatics be left to courts of law; (2) Immigration Officers’ decisions be made justiciable; (3) the less severe education test existing in the Cape be retained in the new law; and (4) educated Asiatic immigrants be allowed to enter and reside in any Province of the Union. Failing this, they demanded that the Cape and Natal laws be retained in their existing form and that the Transvaal immigration law be suitably amended. Indian Opinion, 8-4-1911.

3 ibid

4 L. W. Ritch; Theosophist and manager of a Johannesburg commercial firm before he joined Gandhiji as an articulated clerk; passed his Bar examination in London, vide “Letter to A.H. West”, 2-11-1906 & “The Deputation’s Voyage-V”, 3-11-1906; Secretary, South Africa British Indian Committee (“Letter to Lord Reay”, (Enclosure), 24-11-1906) of which he eventually became the “moving spirit”; in March, 1911, helped Cape Indians to organize against the whittling down of Asiatic rights in the Immigrants’ Restriction Bill; vide “Letter to Abdul Hamid Gool”, 2-3-1911; “Telegram to L.W. Ritch”, 8-3-1911 & “Letter to H.S.L. Polak”, 9-3-1911. In the same month British Indian Association asked him to act on its behalf at Cape Town, vide “Telegram to L.W. Ritch”, 7-3-1911, but Smuts refused to accept him, “an entire stranger”, as their representative and would not see him, vide “Telegram to L.W. Ritch”, 9-3-1911; “Letter to Private Secretary to Minister of Interior”, 10-3-1911; “Letter to L.W. Ritch”, 10-3-1911; was virtually in charge of BIA’s legal work after he took over as solicitor in Gandhiji’s office in April, 1911 (“Ritch in Johannesburg”, 15-4-1911).
WHO LEFT TODAY WITH SON. ARRANGE THEIR BREAKFAST.

GANDHI

From a photostat of the original as delivered: S. N. 5406

353. TELEGRAM TO JOHANNESBURG OFFICE

CAPE TOWN,
April 4, 1911

TO
GANDHI
JOHANNESBURG

MINISTER THINKS IT WILL BE WELL BUT SUGGESTS MY STAY UNNECESSARY. I THINK I SHOULD LEAVE THIS WEEK. BILL FAR OFF.

GANDHI

From a photostat of the original as delivered: S. N. 5407

354. LETTER TO L. W. RITCH

[CAPE TOWN,]
Tuesday [April 4, 1911]

MY DEAR RITCH,

I have now got Evir’s certificate. Saw Lane. He thinks it will be well but the Bill may not come up for two weeks. He suggests my not waiting. I am now trying to see all the members I can. Have wired today and await some instructions.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat of the original in Gandhiji’s hand: S. N. 5408

1 In reply to BIA’s telegram of April 1, 1911 which read: “Strongly advise you remain Cape Town until matter settled.“ S. N. 5399
2 Birth certificate which had been asked for by Ritch
3 E. F. C. Lane, Private Secretary to Smuts
4 Members of Union Parliament
5 Vide the preceding item.
355. TELEGRAM TO JOHANNESBURG OFFICE

CAPE TOWN,
April 5, 1911

TO
GANDHI
JOHANNESBURG

SECRETARY ASKED FOR ALTERNATIVE PROPOSALS WRITING.
SUBMITTING SAME TOMORROW. ALTERNATIVE IS AMENDMENT TRANSVAAL LAW.

GANDHI

From a photostat of the original as delivered: S. N. 5411

356. LETTER TO HERMANN KALLENBACH

8 KLOOF STREET,
Wednesday [April 5, 1911]¹

MY DEAR LOWER HOUSE,

I suppose you do not get the time to write to me regularly.

“The salvation of men from the calamities which they inflict upon themselves can be realized only in that degree in which they are guided in their lives, not by advantages, not arguments, but by religious consciousness,” so says Tolstoy. I have brought with me some of his pamphlets which I read during odd moments. There are many gems to be picked up from these pamphlets.

So now I am on the great task of seeing the members who would see me.

Sorabji has been discussing with me the problem of going to the Imperial Conference. There are some reasons why one may go to advantage. I feel however that if the struggle does not end, I must not go. But the matter cannot be decided through the post. I simply mention it so that you may discuss it with Ritch and Sorabji.

How is the finger?

I have not yet touched the butter you gave me. Still on saltless

¹ From the contents; vide also “Letter to L.W. Ritch”, 5-4-1911.
diet. There is really no difficulty about it. I should like to keep it up. If I do not, it will be my own fault.

With love,

UPPER HOUSE

From the original: Gandhi-Kallenbach Correspondence. Courtesy: National Archives of India

357. EXTRACT FROM LETTER TO MAUD POLAK

[CAPE TOWN]
April 5, 1911

... There is another matter which is likely to cause the greatest distress in the Transvaal, if not ruin to hundreds of Indians; the Gold Law of 1908 (Transvaal)\(^2\) Section 130 provides that no right under it can be held by or sub-let to an Asiatic or Coloured person. It has been discovered that many townships are affected by this law. Klerksdorp Indians have received notices to vacate premises occupied by them\(^3\). The notices have been served by the owners, who in turn have been notified by the Government that they are committing a breach of the law by allowing Asiatics to occupy Stands registered in their names. There is a Supreme Court case which says that Asiatics who have leases cannot be disturbed during the period of their leases, if their leases were entered into prior to the passing of the law. This will not protect existing rights, for very few have long leases. Monthly tenants will therefore be ruined. The legal opinion has been sent to you; it shows that, if the law is carried out, the whole Asiatic

\(^1\) This was forwarded to the Colonial Office on May 5, 1911 by Maud Polak, sister of H. S. L. Polak and Assistant Honorary Secretary of the SABI Committee in London.

\(^2\) The Transvaal Precious and Base Metals Act 35 of 1908

\(^3\) At Klerksdorp, the Public Prosecutor had issued notices to European Standholders under Section 130 of the Gold Law of 1908 against subletting Stands to Coloured persons. The European holders had accordingly asked their Indian tenants to vacate. In May, 1911, Klerksdorp Indians petitioned the Minister of the Interior appealing that the law be repealed and the Prosecutor’s notices withdrawn, but the Acting Secretary for the Interior replied in June saying that the questions raised were of a “purely legal character” and that the Minister could not move Parliament for altering the law. The issue was then taken up by the BIA. Indian Opinion, 20-5-1911 & 10-6-1911.
population of the mining districts in the Transvaal will be cleared out. Johannesburg is included in this plan, and Johannesburg contains the largest Indian population. I am sure that when the Imperial Government sanctioned this legislation they could not have contemplated such an untoward and disastrous result.

Cd. 6087; also Indian Opinion, 27-4-1911

358. LETTER TO L. W. RITCH

[CAPE TOWN,]

Wednesday [April 5, 1911]

MY DEAR RITCH,

Saw yesterday Dr. Hewart, the Opposition whip, and Sir Bisset Berry. J. W. Jagger I meet this afternoon. And so I shall continue till I have seen all I want to see and all who would see me. The members I saw yesterday were introduced to me by Alexander. They have promised to support Alexander. They themselves had not much time but agreed that the point was very simple. General Botha’s dispatch to Lord Crewe does the trick.

1 Member of the Union Assembly
2 Morris Alexander; Jewish member of Parliament from Cape Town; was sympathetic to the African Indian cause and opposed many provisions of the Union Immigrants’ Restriction Bill as affecting Indians.
3 Louis Botha (1862-1919); “an Afrikander, Natal-born and Transvaal trained . . . . a Liberal in the old republican days, bilingual, genial, boundlessly tactful” (Eric Walker, A History of South Africa, p. 535) and one of the moderate Boers “familiar with all the intricacies of agriculture . . . there was hardly anyone in Europe . . . as good a judge of sheep as he was” (Satyagraha in South Africa, Ch. II); outstanding Dutch commander during the Boer War; in 1904-5 founded the Het Volk party pledged to conciliation and self-government (Walker, op. cit., pp. 515-6); accepted proposal for self-government under the British although extreme Boers were sceptical and managed to get through “drastic anti-Asiatic Bills” (ibid., p. 519); first premier of self-governing Transvaal in 1907, and in 1910 became first Union Premier; opposed educated Asiatics’ entry in Gandhi-Smuts Conference following the compromise of January 1908; vide “Letter to Lord Amphill”, 5-8-1909
4 Of December 20, 1910; vide “Report of European Committee Meeting”, 23-3-1911.
5 Robert Ofley Ashburton Crewe-Milnes, 1st Marquess of Crewe; Liberal statesman and writer; Lord-Lieutenant for Ireland in 1892-5 cabinet; Secretary of State for Colonies, 1908; succeeded Morley at India Office in November, 1910; quitted active party politics in 1922 but became Secretary of State for War in 1931; author of Stray Verses and other literary miscellanies.
I feel sure that if the Bill comes up at all, General Smuts¹ will not dare to bring it up without the amendment² we are asking for. I think he has dropped the charge of bringing a new point.³

Sorabji⁴ has been writing to me that I should go to London for ¹ Jan Christiaan Smuts (1870-1950); Gandhiji found him “as able a general and administrator as he is a lawyer”, but mentions that he was warned that “slim Janny”, as Smuts was known, was a “trimmer”; vide Satyagraha in South Africa, Ch. XXV. After a brilliant academic career at Cambridge, Smuts was admitted to the Cape Town Bar in 1895; commander-in-chief of rebel commandoes in the Cape during Boer War; in 1902 urged compromise with the British at the Vereeniging peace negotiations; strongly opposed Milner’s policy, especially the importation of Chinese coolies for the gold mines; founded in 1904, along with Botha, the Het Volk party; after Responsible Government became Transvaal’s Colonial Secretary; an advocate of Union along with Lionel Curtis (“Johannesburg Letter”, 9-5-1908) and an author of the South Africa Act of 1911; in 1910 became Union Minister for Interior, Mines and Defence; in 1912 took over the treasury, retaining Defence; in 1916 during World War I, accepted Imperial command in East Africa; joined War Cabinet and initiated unification of the flying services; after Armistice, wrote his Memorandum, The League of Nations: A Practical Suggestion, which subsequently became the covenant of the League. Speaking of his controversy with Smuts over the 1908 compromise, Gandhiji says, “Even today, I look upon the incident as a breach of faith . . . not perhaps . . . an intentional breach of faith”; vide Satyagraha in South Africa, Ch. XXV.

² On March 10, 1911, Indians had requested that, in the Union Immigrants’ Restriction Bill, an amendment be made exempting educated Asians from provincial registration laws and protecting the rights of wives and minor children of registered Asians; vide “Transvaal Petition to Union Assembly”, 10-3-1911.

³ Smuts made this charge in his telegram of March 21, 1911 (“Telegram to Private Secretary”, of General Smuts, 22-3-1911) in response to Gandhiji’s request (“Telegram to Private Secretary to General Smuts”, 17-3-1911 and ; 20-3-1911) that educated Asiatic immigrants be exempted from Orange Free State registration laws as well. The Transvaal Leader, under its new editorship, also shared the view that the demand was a new one. Polak wrote to the editor pointing out that “the limitation of the number of educated Indian immigrants” was accepted by Gandhiji only for the Transvaal, and that “Natal Indians cannot be expected to permit themselves to be deprived of rights that they already possess”. Ritch also wrote saying that, while it was true that the immigration bill would “repeal the Transvaal immigration and registration laws of 1907, it virtually re-enacts the Free State law which is . . . specifically insulting to Indians”. He gave the assurance that “if the objections raised . . . are met by amendment to the bill . . . the ‘agitation’ to which you take exception will automatically end . . . the racial bar must . . . not apply to any part of the union.” Indian Opinion, 15-4-1911.

⁴ Sorabji Shapurji Adajania; “as much of an Indian as a Parsee”, he laid the foundation of the “second phase” of the campaign in South Africa and, entering the the Imperial Conference. I do not know. If the struggle ends, it may be worthwhile. The Gold Law business worries me. It is such a damnable business. One might be able to do something in that connection. If the struggle does not end, it seems to me that I cannot leave at all. Let Sorabji discuss the thing with you. I have instructed Maud about the Gold Law, suggesting that she should copy my remarks and forward [them] to the Colonial & India Offices.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat of the original in Gandhiji’s hand: S. N. 5419

359. LETTER TO L. W. RITCH

[CAPE TOWN,]
Wednesday [April 5, 1911]

MY DEAR RITCH,

Your wire. I shall not run away hastily. I wrote a short note to Lane saying I was staying for some time to see the other members. He sent a note in reply asking me to see him at once. On going to him he gave me the message from J.C.S. to the effect that I should reduce to writing my two proposals. He added that Smuts did not want me to go away empty-handed and said that the matter must be settled during this session. Our friends may derive what hope they can from this.

Have been lobbying the whole afternoon. More tomorrow. I have to submit my proposal tomorrow after 10-30 a.m.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat of the original in Gandhiji’s hand: S. N. 5417

Transvaal many times to test educated Indians’ rights, “suffered the longest terms of imprisonment” in 1908 and deportation in 1909; was sent by Gandhiji to England in 1912 at Dr. Mehta’s expense to qualify as barrister; while in England was invited by Gokhale to join the Servants of India Society; but returned to the Transvaal, did public work among Indians and died in Johannesburg at an early age. Vide also Satyagraha in South Africa, Ch. XXIX.

1. Originally scheduled to meet on May 22, 1911 (“Letter to L. W. Ritch”, 15-4-1911), it was held on June 19, 1911.
2. She did this; vide the preceding item.
3. Dated April 5, which read: “Strong feeling here that you should remain unless no likelihood Bill this session”. S.N. 5412.
4. Not available
CHHAGANLAL,

I have your letter from Rajkot and also the one written before that. It is a great achievement that your health is improving. That you could not go to Poona and other places is true but as you have to come back here soon, the elders will feel satisfied if you stay with them as long as you can.

I am sorry to learn that Prabhu is ill but am not surprised at all. I have no faith in our living conditions there. ‘Our’ means ‘our society’s’.

Bring a good collection of Gujarati dictionaries and other useful books with you when you come. I believe that you will bring the bills. Bring along Anandlal if he agrees to come.

Tell Raliatbehn to forget her brother. When I will be able to go to India and when I go whether I will be able to stay with her is all in the hands of God. Phuli’s health is in her own hands. She does not control her palate and therefore will go on suffering.

I do not feel that this time, too, we will be able to arrive at a settlement. Yesterday, I had a long talk with Smuts. He says that it can be done only next year. In the meantime, he does not want to arrest anyone. How can we sit quietly the way he wants us to. I wrote to him a strong letter yesterday.

I have sent a note to Revashankerbhai for your money.
Give my respect to Khushalbhai¹ and Bhabi². I trust you will return here leaving behind all the problems.

Blessings from

BAPU

From the Gujarati original: S.N. 32889

361. TELEGRAM TO JOHANNESBURG OFFICE

CAPE TOWN,

April 6, 1911

TO

GANDHI

JOHANNESBURG

SETTLED DRAFT PROPOSAL³ NOTHING NEED BE TAKEN AS CERTAIN.

GANDHI

From a photostat of the original as delivered: S. N. 5421

¹ Khushalchand Jivanji Gandhi, a cousin of Gandhiji and his wife, Devbhabhi; parents of the addressee
² ibid
³ Asked for in writing by Lane; vide the preceding item.
MY DEAR RITCH,

Have seen Farrar¹, Chaplin², Jagger, C. P. Robinson³, etc. Farrar was the most sympathetic. They all agree that the Free State contention must be granted.

Had nearly half an hour with Lane. He looked at my draft, suggested certain alterations⁴. I hope to type the thing tonight and post it to him and copy to you.

Going to the meeting of the Committee of the Union⁵.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat of the original in Gandhiji’s hand: S. N. 5423

¹ Sir George Farrar (1859-1915); Chairman, East Rand Proprietary Mines; a leader of the Progressive Party; one of the “Labour importers” who, “in the face of organized opposition” from the Boers and other interests, agitated successfully for the implementation of the majority Report of the Labour Commission of 1903, which sought to introduce Asiatic workers in the Rand mines since Native workers were unavailable; member of the Transvaal Legislative Council both before and after Responsible Government; member of Union Parliament

² Drummond Chaplin; a member of the House of Assembly and of the Progressive Party, who sympathized with the Indians in some of their grievances against the Transvaal immigration law; was the chief Opposition spokesman in the Legislative Assembly in favour of the Indians’ Relief Bill of 1914.

³ A candidate for Union Parliament

⁴ Evidently in Schedules A and B of the following item

⁵ The Cape British Indian Union; vide “Telegram to Abdul Caadir”, 7-3-1911.
DEAR MR. LANE,

In accordance with conversation\(^2\) between us, I reduce to writing my suggestions for bringing the Asiatic struggle in the Transvaal to a close.

A

The new clause tabled by General Smuts to follow clause 27 in the present Bill should be amended as follows:

Anything to the contrary notwithstanding in Act No. 36 of 1908 of the Transvaal and Chapter XXXIII of the Orange Free State Constitution, a person who, by complying with the conditions described in paragraph (a) of section four of this Act, has been permitted to enter the Union shall not be deemed to be subject to registration under the provisions of the said Act of the Transvaal and to Clauses 1 to 6 of the said Chapter XXXIII.

(The words underlined are the additions suggested by me.)

Subject to such amendment and subject to unequivocal protection of existing rights, especially of wives and children of lawful residents and immigrants, the bill will be acceptable to the passive resisters. I offer no comment on the special objections that the Cape and Natal Indians have naturally raised, and which I think ought to receive careful and favourable consideration.

B

As an alternative solution, I suggest as follows:

(1) The present bill be dropped.
(2) A bill to amend Transvaal Act 15 of 1907\(^3\) be introduced and

---

1. These words are in Gandhiji’s hand.
2. Vide “Letter to L. W. Ritch”, 5-4-1911
3. This is the Transvaal Immigrants’ Restriction Act which came into force in January, 1908, without, however, superseding the Asiatic Registration Act of 1907, and against which the satyagraha campaign of 1908 was directed; for text of the Bill, thereby
(a) The Transvaal Act 2 of 1907 be repealed “except so far as it is applicable to the registration of minors lawfully resident in the Transvaal”. (The wording is taken from the first schedule to the present bill. My reading of the reservation is that minor children of registered Asiatics, no matter where they may be, shall be free to enter the Transvaal and be liable to and entitled to registration on reaching the age of 16.)
(b) The education clause of Act 15 of 1907 may be replaced by sub-clause (a) of clause 4 of the present bill in order, if necessary, to make the test more severe.
(c) Sub-clause 4 of section 2 of Act 15 of 1907 be repealed.
(d) General Smuts’ new clause 28 be added mutatis mutandis to Act 15 of 1907, without of course the addition suggested by me and which addition is necessary for the present bill but NOT for the alternative solution.

In my opinion the alternative solution is the simplest; it raises no question as to the Free State and its acceptance by General Smuts will not only close passive resistance, but I feel sure will meet with the entire approval of the Indian community.

This, however, does not mean that the community waives its right to move for an amelioration of its position in many other matters.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

From Indian Opinion, 15-4-1911; also photostat of typewritten copy: S. N. 5434.

vide Appendix “Transvaal Immigration Restriction Bill”, 13-7-1907”. and for the text of the Act which is somewhat different, vide Appendix “Immigrants’ Restriction Act”, 4-1-1908.

1 The Transvaal Asiatic Registration Act which was passed by the self-governing Colony of the Transvaal on March 22, 1907, and received Royal assent on May 7, 1907. It was virtually a re-enactment of its precursor, the Asiatic Law Amendment Ordinance, which had been disallowed by the Imperial Government on protest made against it by the Gandhi-Ally deputation of 1906. Both the Ordinance and the Act envisaged, among other things, the compulsory registration of Asiatics and the affixture of their finger-impressions on their certificates.
LETTER TO L. W. RITCH

7, BUITENCINGLE [STREET,
CAPE TOWN,]

April 7, 1911

MY DEAR RITCH,

Please tell Miss Schlesin1 that I have had no letters from there during the last two days. I take it she did not write on Monday & Tuesday. I have just a suspicion that the letters may have miscarried.

Herewith my letter2 to Lane. I had a long chat with Lane yesterday. He suggested alterations in the draft I had taken. The copy I am sending you is the result. You will be pleased to learn that the typing has been done by me. I have borrowed Hiranand’s typewriter. I am finishing this letter in Lane’s office. He suggested the dropping of the last sentence3 which he thought meant a threat. I told him it could not be dropped and I told him plainly that I could not rest so long as women were taxed, Indians could not hold landed property in the Transvaal, &c. I told him pretty plainly that if the Gold Law prosecutions in Klerksdorp were proceeded with, I would not hesitate to advise & raise passive resistance. We have been talking to each other with the utmost freedom. You will see the revised letter signed by me. In it there is no material change. The second copy was typed in Lane’s office. He tells me quite confidentially that the alternative solution will be accepted though he adds that J.C.S. is still in treaty with the Free Staters. He was most eagerly waiting for my letter which I brought to him somewhat late as I was engaged last night with 1 Sonja Schlesin: a Jewish girl “with a character as clear as crystal and courage that would shame a warrior”; joined Gandhi as a steno-typist at the age of 16 and was his Private Secretary for many years; made herself useful to Indian Opinion; was ardently interested in the Indian cause. “When during the satyagraha days almost everyone . . . was in jail, she led the movement single handed. She had the management of thousands, a tremendous amount of correspondence, and Indian Opinion on her hands, but she never wearied”; an “ardent suffragist” and the “heart and soul” of the Transvaal Indian Women’s Association. Vide also Satyagraha in South Africa, Ch. XXIII and An Autobiography, Part IV, Ch. XII.

2 Of April 7, 1911, a copy of which Gandhi had promised to send Ritch in his letter of April 6, “Letter to L.W. Ritch”, 6-4-1911.
3 Vide the preceding item.
4 Vide also “Extract from Letter to Maud Polak”, 5-4-1911
Smartt who gave a very patient hearing. In the morning Campbell Anderson interrupted me. Up to the time of writing this, I am sanguine of the 2nd proposal becoming law in the course of a few days.

As I made mention about the approval of the whole community, I have wired you for approval, though really the thing has been approved already there and here & [in] Natal. Natal went out of its way to wire approval of the Cape resolutions.

In the circumstances I am not leaving at all for the time being. As a matter of fact I could not have, even if I had your permission, until I had finished seeing the members.

I enclose [a] cutting from The Times. You will notice Smuts already foreshadowing a new solution.

I hope I shall get the English mail tomorrow noon.

Abdurahman introduced me to Smartt. They two seemed to be rather intimate. I met Col. Crewe also though the former did not stay for the interview.

I take it you will explain the letter to the leaders there.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat of the original in Gandhiji’s hand: S. N. 5428

---

1 Sir Thomas Smartt; Minister of Agriculture in the 1920 Cabinet; member of the Unionist Party which later merged in the South Africa Party
2 Vide “Letter to E. F. C. Lane”, 7-4-1911.
3 Vide “Telegram to Johannesburg Office”, 7-4-1911.
4 Not available
5 Letters presumably received from England at Tolstoy Farm and redirected to Gandhiji at Cape Town
6 Dr. Abdurahman; of Malay descent, a well-known physician of Cape Town; President of the African Political Organization and member of the Cape Town Municipality and of the pre-Union Cape Legislative Assembly; in 1909 went with the deputation of Coloured people to England, vide “Deputation’s Voyage[—I]. After 23-6-1909 in February 1910 opposed, in the Cape Town Municipal Council, proposal to welcome the Prince of Wales, declaring he would “look upon it as a day of mourning”; vide “The Cape Coloured People”, 26-2-1910 & “Abdurahman’s Indignation”, 26-2-1910, also Satyagraha in South Africa, Ch. II.
365. TELEGRAM TO JOHANNESBURG OFFICE

CAPE TOWN,
April 7, 1911

TO
GANDHI
JOHANNESBURG

MY LETTER\textsuperscript{1} SECRETARY ACCEPTS AS SATISFACTORY AMENDMENT TRANSVAAL LAW, REPEALING ASIATIC ACT 1907, PROTECTING MINORS, EXEMPTING EDUCATED IMMIGRANTS FROM OPERATION ACT 36 OF 1908\textsuperscript{2}. SEE KACHALIA\textsuperscript{3} OTHERS. WIRE APPROVAL. NOT LEAVING BEFORE NEXT WEEK.

GANDHI

From a photostat of the original as delivered: S. N. 5431

366. TELEGRAM TO JOHANNESBURG OFFICE

CAPE TOWN,
April 7, 1911

TO
GANDHI
JOHANNESBURG

CHRIS BOTHA HAS TABLED AMENDMENT SAYING NOTHING IN BILL SHALL REPEAL ANY SECTION 33 ORANGIA. THIS SIGNIFIES ALTERNATIVE\textsuperscript{4} LIKELY ACCEPTANCE.

GANDHI

From a photostat of original as delivered: S. N. 543

\textsuperscript{1} Vide “Letter to E. F. C. Lane”, 7-4-1911.
\textsuperscript{2} The Transvaal Asiatics Registration Amendment Act born of the Gandhi-Smuts compromise of 1908. The Indians, however, continued their opposition to it since it did not incorporate the compromise proposals as understood by them.
\textsuperscript{3} Ahmad Muhammad Cachalia; originally an interpreter, hawker and trader with “a working knowledge of English”, he first addressed a public meeting of Indians, held on June 30, 1907, to protest against the Asiatic Law Amendment Act; in September, 1908, succeeded Essop Mia as Chairman of the BIA; “sacrificed his all for the community’s sake” and allowed his flourishing business to be auctioned in order to pay off his creditors who refused to deal with a satyagrahi merchant; died in 1918, “serving the community till the last”; vide “Johannesburg Letter”, 7-9-1908; 19-9-1908 & “Letter to Rand Daily Mail”, 22-1-1909, also Satyagraha in South Africa, Ch. XVI.
\textsuperscript{4} Vide “Letter to E. F. C. Lane”, 7-4-1911
MY DEAR LOWER HOUSE,

You are certainly not regular about letters this time.

This proposed London visit causes me a deal of worry. Again to leave Mrs. Gandhi and the two youngsters, again to masquerade in the wretched costume, etc. You know here I have not observed the rules of decency. I go about the House of Assembly and to Smuts in sandals and my usual jacket. I wore the shoes for two days. I saw that they were uncomfortable and really not necessary. So I discarded them. I am none the worse received for that reason. You will say perhaps it is because the men I meet are too gentlemanly, not that I am wise or right in breaking the social convention. If you did say so, you would probably be right. But that is just my position. If it were not for the passive resisters who are anxious for a settlement and for Polak, whom I want to see in London with his wife, probably I would not make even this effort and simply trust to passive resistance pure and simple to do its work. What is one to do. I am torn by confliction emotions as to this London visit. Now you have the whole thought running through my mind.

Still on saltless diet. It causes me no worry. The quantity I take now is very small. I have little exercise.

With love,

UPPER HOUSE

From the original: Gandhi-Kallenbach Correspondence. Courtesy: National Archives of India

---

1 By an error the letter appears here. The date-line and contents corroborate the year 1911. It should therefore be read in the order of chronology as item no. 38, i.e., after the one to the addressee dated [April 5, 1911].

2 Gandhiji’s “worry” crystallized in the years to follow into stout advocacy of the Indian national costume for Indians. For a defence of “his manner of dressing”, vide “Reply Regarding Dress to the Poineer”, 30-7-1917.
DEAR MR. LANE,

I have now heard in reply to my wires to Durban¹ and Johannes-burg².

The Durban wire from the Congress says:

Thanks if Bill withdrawn and Transvaal law altered. Effect settlement, Natal Indians entirely satisfied.

The Cape Indians have already suggested the alternative solution.

The Johannesburg wire from the British Indian Association says:

Your wires received and discussed. We take it that provision also made for right of entry some educated Asiatics; if so, fully acquiesce in settlement.

Don’t leave till all settled.

CACHALIA

CHAIRMAN

I have naturally assumed all along that, whichever proposal is accepted, a certain number of Asiatics not exceeding six in any one year will be allowed on account of the Transvaal to pass the education test and to enter the Union or the Transvaal, as the case may be.

I observe that Mr. Chris Botha has tabled a drastic, and from an Indian standpoint, an impossible amendment³ to the Bill.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

From Indian Opinion, 15-4-1911; also photostat of typewritten office copy:
S. N. 5440

369. LETTER TO L. W. RITCH

7, BUITENCINGLE [STREET,

CAPE TOWN,]

April 8, 1911

MY DEAR RITCH,

I have your letter. I hope you are comfortably fixed up at

¹ Not available

² Vide “Telegram to Johannesburg Office”, 7-4-1911

³ Vide the following item.
Mountain View. I hope, both you and Harold will do a bit of gardening—Harold specially.

I will try to pass a day at Kimberley on my return. I shall speak to Nooroodeen about the Konkanis.

Here is Botha’s amendment:

Nothing in this (28th) section or in any other section of this Act contained shall repeal any of the provisions of Chapter XXXIII of the Law Book of the Orange Free State Province.

Fancy this, after all his assurance to me! However, I am glad. This amendment kills the Bill and General Smuts will be bound, if he wishes to settle the question, to amend the Transvaal Act.

I have not been able to see any members today. Rev. Allmett of Lahore has taken up my morning. He is Bishop Lefroy’s man and did something when Polak was in India.

As you will see from the enclosed, I have made use of the BIA wire as also the Natal Congress wire.

Sorabji again returns to the London visit. If I go at all, I feel sure, I ought to be accompanied by a Mahomedan. It has a threefold purpose. It will be a source of satisfaction to the community here, it will give added weight to the representatives in London and it will have a far-reaching effect in India. And fourthly, if you like, it would be good training for Mr. Cachalia who is certainly one of the rarest among the Mahomedans. But if the Bill is not brought up next week, I do not see how I can go at all. I should be in London at least a week before the date of the conference. Unless I am to rush, not to go to Phoenix at all and possibly not even come to Jo’burg, I think the visit is impossible. Please consider all these practical difficulties.

Have you yet had any legal work? Have you taken your oath as solicitor? Have you notified the Law Society?

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat of the original in Gandhiji’s hand: S. N. 5437

1 Kallenbach’s Johannesburg house
2 Ritch’s son
3 At Kimberley the Konkanis, a Muslim community from the Western coast of India, did not cooperate with the Indian Political Association. Gandhiji asked Nooroodeen, apparently a Cape Town Konkani leader, to intervene.
4 Vide “Telegram to Johannesburg Office”, 7-4-1911 and the preceding item.
5 Vide the preceding item.
6 The Imperial Conference; vide “Letter to L. W. Ritch”, 5-4-1911.
370. TELEGRAM TO JOHANNESBURG OFFICE

CAPE TOWN,
April 8, 1911

TO
GANDHI
JOHANNESBURG

ONLY SLIGHT PROSPECT MATTER\(^1\) COMING NEXT WEEK.

GANDHI

From a photostat of the original as delivered: S. N. 5439

371. LETTER TO L. W. RITCH

[CAPE TOWN,]
Sunday, April 9, 1911

MY DEAR RITCH,

I had a funny experience after I posted the letters\(^2\) to you and Polak\(^3\). I thought, I would stroll down to the House just to see what was going on. After reading the order paper\(^4\), I thought, I would go away. But, on second thoughts, I decided to send my card to Duncan\(^5\).

\(^1\) The Immigrants’ Restriction Bill.
\(^2\) Vide “Letter to L. W. Ritch”, 8-4-1911. The letter to Polak, however, is not available.
\(^3\) Henry Solomon Leon Polak; assistant editor of The Transvaal Critic who joined Indian Opinion (“Our Trial”, 31-12-1904) after Gandhi had struck up a “casual” acquaintance with him in the Johannesburg vegetarian restaurant; “had a wonderful faculty of translating into practice anything that appealed to his intellect”; he took to life in Phoenix “like a duck takes to water” and “we began to live like blood brothers,” says Gandhi who was also best man at his wedding; became editor of Indian Opinion in 1906 during Gandhi’s absence in England and a full-fledged attorney in 1908 after having served an apprenticeship with Gandhi; was arrested after the Great March into the Transvaal in 1913; visited India and England to help the African Indian cause. Vide An Autobiography, Part IV, Ch. XVIII, XXI & XXII and Satyagraha in South Africa, Ch. XXIII & XLV.
\(^4\) Giving notice of Chris Botha’s amendment to retain Ch. XXXIII of the Orange Free State Constitution in the proposed immigration legislation.
\(^5\) Partick Duncan; member of the Transvaal Legislative Assembly; Colonial Secretary of the Transvaal, 1903-6, while it was still a self-governing colony; initiated in 1906 the Transvaal Asiatic Law Amendment Ordinance in the face of Indian opposition; the Golden Number of Indian Opinion (1914), however, mentions that he had since become more sensible of “the Imperial issues involved” in the Indian question and had “advocated measures of redress” for Indians.
He came and said, “Perhaps it would be better for us not to talk lest it might be thought that you were influencing me.” I said, “Not at all. I have been informing Lane about all my movements. He knows whom I see and talk to.” “But”, he said, “you need not worry. I think you will get what you want. It is high time the thing was over.” “But”, I said, “do you know anything of the latest[?]” “Yes”, he said, “General Smuts showed me your letter to him. I think, we shall drop the present Bill and adopt your alternative solution. But you will not bring in anything more. “I said, “How can you say that, Mr. Duncan? You have yourself stated our proposition very fairly.” “Yes”, he said, “I notice you have been quoting me. But you have not always brought that point forward. I thought at times you kept it in the background.” “I could not help giving that appearance at times,” I said, “we had to give prominence to one point or another as occasion required unless we were to overload every speech and letter with details. It is General Smuts who has always raised new points and each time granted less than our demands, etc.” He then wanted to know what I wanted about children, whether I wanted them to get in without giving proofs, etc. I assured him on that point. But I could not help noticing how unfortunate it was that Smuts had seen him before I, and how fortunate it was that I saw him yesterday whilst his talk with Smuts was fresh in his mind. After this experience, I have decided to stick here until the Bill is through or I am certain that nothing is to be done. One may consider it to be pretty certain that the general bill is doomed, and I am more than ever hopeful that the alternative proposal will be accepted.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat of the original in Gandhiji’s hand: S. N. 5441

1 Vide “Letter to E. F. C. Lane”, 7-4-1911
372. LETTER TO L. W. RITCH

[CAPE TOWN,]
Monday [April 10, 1911]

MY DEAR RITCH,

I have not yet been out today (2 p.m.); have been simply writing letters.¹

I have your 3 letters.

You may depend upon it that anything that the good General gives is bound to be a mock-concession. It will be for us to turn it into a reality. He will put nothing into my hands so long as he can help it.

I hope that you have arranged with Titus about fees.

If the Klerksdorp friends have not come to you, you should write and invite them to see you.

It will be a great pity if Mr. Phillips² goes away and I am unable to see him before he does. I hope there will be Mr. Cachalia and others to see him off.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat of the original in Gandhiji’s hand: S. N. 5442

373. TELEGRAM TO JOHANNESBURG OFFICE

CAPE TOWN,
April 10, 1911

TO
GANDHI
JOHANNESBURG

TAKE PRESENT BILL AS DEAD. UNCERTAIN WHEN TRANSVAAL BILL COMING.

From a photostat of the original as delivered: S. N. 5443

¹ Only this letter and the two following items written on this day are available.

² Rev. Charles Phillips; Congregational Minister for the Transvaal and “an energetic and persistent sympathizer of the Indian cause”; sometime Acting Chairman of the European Committee of Sympathizers. He was then “leaving for England on a health trip”.

VOL. 11: 11 APRIL, 1910 - 12 JULY, 1911 343
CHI. MAGANLAL,

I am a bit tired, having written many letters today with my right hand. Hence this with the left.

I wonder why my letter regarding diet reached you so late.

I am not upset by the picture you have drawn of Durban. Hindus as well as others, especially the former, do not generally go abroad so long as they stick to their religion. We rarely find persons going abroad for the good of others. We ourselves were not inspired by high ideals when we left India. If our outlook happens to be somewhat pure, we must have to our credit some good deeds done in the past. The Hindus here are in a debased state as their way of life has fallen into complete disorder. Both the communities make a distinction between the Hindu and the Mussalman and that is why persons like Anglia Sheth raise the question you mention. However, you must have seen that the work can be carried on if there are two or three good workers.

Please read Gulliver's Travels some time if you have not already done so. How is your Tamil progressing?

Blessings from

MOHANDAS

From the Gujarati original in Gandhiji’s hand: CW. 5627. Courtesy: Radhabehn Choudhri

1 Gandhiji’s preoccupation with diet, which is mentioned in para 2 of the letter, began in 1911. In that year, Chaitra Sud 12 corresponds to April 10. This assumption is borne out by a further reference to Gulliver’s Travels in his “Letter to Maganlal Gandhi”, 18-5-1911.

3 M. C. Anglia; a leading Durban Muslim and Joint Secretary of the Natal Indian Congress; suffered deportation and imprisonment in the satyagraha campaign against the Transvaal Asiatic Registration Act; in 1909, went to England as a member of the Natal Deputation; vide “Comments on Transvaal Indian Campaign”, 28-8-1908; “London”, 6-8-1909 and “statement of Natal Indian Grievances”, 10-8-1909.
375. LETTER TO L.W. RITCH

7, BUITENCINGLE STREET, CAPE TOWN.
April 11, 1911

MY DEAR RITCH,

I have nothing to report today. I have your wire about Madras. I am just now going to Lane and [will] then decide upon the answer to be given.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

[PS.]

Nothing to be known before next week. That is Smuts’ answer¹. More tomorrow.

From a photostat of the original in Gandhiji’s hand: S. N. 5450

376. TELEGRAM TO JOHANNESBURG OFFICE

CAPE TOWN,
April 11, 1911

TO
GANDHI
JOHANNESBURG

SECRETARY WRITES NOTHING WILL BE KNOWN BEFORE END WEEK. CABLE MADRAS. MATTER OCCUPYING GOVERNMENT CABLING FURTHER LATER. AM STAYING TILL THING FINISHED.

GANDHI

From a photostat of the original as delivered: S. N. 5453

¹ Vide Appendix “Lane’s Letter to Gandhiji”, 11-4-1911.
377. LETTER TO L. W. RITCH

[CAPE TOWN]

April 12, 1911

MY DEAR RITCH,

I thought that I would ask Lane whether he could give me definite information for cabling to Madras. Smuts was not then in. Lane therefore went over to the House and sent me a letter as per copy. I hope you understood my wire sent to you thereafter. So that now we must wait the whole of this week. From Friday, there will be no work till Monday. The House meets again on Tuesday. I think we are bound to get definite information next week. Smuts is in no hurry. He certainly would like to prolong the agony if he could. We can but wait. I am not now seeing any member. I think that I have seen the principal ones and that now it would be better to refrain.

I am anxiously waiting to know how you are getting on there. You do not seem to have got any work yet.

Please ask Miss Schlesin to send me Dr. Mehta's manuscript. He says he had sent a certain speech, &c. I should like to have it here. I want also Finot’s Race Prejudice. I think that book is among Polak’s books. I want it at once for Canon Allmett who is here but who is leaving for England shortly.

How is Harold keeping in health? The weather here is most oppressive. How do you manage for cooking, &c.?

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

[PS.]

Please ask Miss S. to sent the enclosed to Mr. Barrett of Pretoria, whose address she knows or ought to, telling him that the letter unfortunately went by mistake to England from where it has only now been returned. She should add that I would do my best to sent him something as soon as I was free.

M. K.G.

[PPS.]

From Friday to Saturday I am not wiring as there will be holidays during that time.

From a photostat of the original in Gandhiji’s hand: S. N. 5458

1 Vide Appendix “Lane’s Letter to Gandhiji”, 11-4-1911
2 Vide the preceding item.
378. TELEGRAAM TO JOHANNESBURG OFFICE

CAPE TOWN,
April 12, 1911

TO
GANDHI
JOHANNESBURG

NO FURTHER PROGRESS. WILL NOT WIRE TILL TUESDAY UNLESS REQUIRED. WHEN PHILLIPS LEAVING.

GANDHI

From a photostat of the original as delivered: S. N. 5459

379. LETTER TO H. S. L. POLAK

April 12, 1911

MY DEAR HENRY,

Herewith copy of Lane’s letter. Ritch telegraphed saying Madras wanted to know my views on the amendments to the Bill. I thought I would ask Lane as to what he thought about the situation before I cabled. The letter was the result. I have now asked Ritch to cable Madras that the Government is considering the situation and that another cable will be sent later. We may expect some definite news next week. If Finot’s Race Prejudice is there, please send it to me. I want it for Canon Allmett.

I have your 2nd wire. It was difficult for me to advise. But I have wired you what I thought was best in the circumstances.

Do you know anything about Max Nordeau? What kind of a man is he? I mean what is his private life? I am reading his book on Degeneration.

Yours sincerely,

Bhai

From the original: Gandhi-Polak Correspondence. Courtesy: National Archives of India

1 Phillips and Cartwright left Johannesburg on April 10 and sailed by the Carishbrook from Delagoa Bay on the 12th; vide also “Letter to L. W. Ritch”, 10-4-1911
2 E.F.C. Lane, Private Secretary to General Smuts.
MY DEAR RITCH,

Nothing new. I won’t say much, as I am off to Dr. Gool’s® dispensary whose floor I have undertaken to stain and putty. I have replied by wire® regarding the proposed meeting. A public meeting should not be convened except to pass [a] definite resolution erecting a deputation. No public meeting should be held for a mere discussion.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat of the original in Gandhiji’s hand: S. N. 5426

MY DEAR RITCH,

I hope you understood my wire®.

I think that we ought not to have a public meeting unless the matter has been informally but thoroughly decided. A public meeting discussing the matter of a deputation and then deciding against it may

---

1 This letter is undated but Ritch, writing to Gandhiji on April 17 (S. N. 5469), acknowledged two letters from him, both written on Thursday, one mentioning the staining and puttying of Dr. Gool’s dispensary floor and the other discussing the subject dealt with in the following item. Evidently, therefore, both these letters were written on Thursday, April 13, 1911.

2 Abdul Hamid Gool; a Cape Town doctor who took his medical degree in England in 1910; became, on his return, honorary Joint Secretary of the Cape British Indian Union, which was formed by the merger of the two rival Indian bodies in that Province; in 1911, became President of the Union, which office he resigned later that year; Gandhiji was constantly persuading him to take up public work and suggested to Ritch that the young doctor should be more closely associated with Cape Indian affairs; vide “Hamid Gool”, 26-11-1910; “Dr. Gool”, 14-1-1911 & “Letter to Abdul Hamid Gool”, 2-3-1911.

3 Not available

5 Not available
be misinterpreted. ¹

I am quite sure that a Mahomedan must accompany any such deputation. Remember, this time the deputation is not to go on a clear-cut issue. The special interests of merchants will be considered. And a merchant and that a Moslem must be on it if is to carry weight. That it should be Mr. Cachalia, I have not the slightest doubt. If the community chooses a mischief-maker out of weakness, it will do it harm in the long run. It should be prepared by this time to say to weak men, ‘You are weak and therefore you cannot represent the community’. It is my firm conviction that the struggle has been prolonged because the community has shown weakness and has been afraid of mischief-makers. Nor should there be any haggling regarding expenses. The community will have to subscribe liberally and that at once, if the deputation is to go. Upon my return there, I shall have precious little time left. Every time money has come at the eleventh hour. And I suggest that the whole sum is put down now. I do not want you or anybody afterwards to have to worry about collecting.

Will you please forward this to Henry² as I am not duplicating the thought in my letter³ to him.

Parliament is sitting on Saturday and Monday too!

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat of the original in Gandhiji’s hand: S. N. 5427

¹ To this, Ritch, in his letter of April 17, 1911, replied: “Your meaning as to the meeting was quite well understood; the project has been abandoned. The reasons you point out are to me sufficiently convincing.” S. N. 5469.

² H.S.L. Polak

³ Not available
MY DEAR LOWER HOUSE,

L. H. says 'I AM COMING'. U. H. says 'I AM NOT SURE WE ARE GOING.' So you had better be careful in order to avoid disappointment. When I seriously think of it my head turns. I certainly want to be with Mrs. Gandhi and the children for some little time. The idea of another deputation is absolutely repulsive.¹ I am not at all sure that it is my duty to be present at the Conference. But I am sure that it is my duty to be on the Farm and with Mrs. Gandhi and the children; it is my duty to be with the boys on the Farm; it is my duty to be with the women on the Farm; it is my duty to send Polak away at the earliest opportunity²; it is my duty to help Ritch to build up his practice; and if passive resistance is still to go on, it is my duty to seek imprisonment and if I cannot get that, at least to do what I can for the dependents of passive resisters. All the above catalogue can be gone through if I am in the Transvaal. Put all the above in one scale and the proposed visit to the Conference in the other and find out which weighs heavier. I am in a fog. I am therefore leaving the things to shape themselves.

You can talk light-heartedly about going to Germany. But what about the Farm, the fencing, the borehole, Mountain View, your office and a host of such other things? They all require careful thinking out, before you can stir from Johannesburg. It will be easier for you to go if I remained behind. The problem becomes doubly difficult if we both must go.

I hope Gordon is getting on. Pray remember me to him.

I understand that today is your fasting day. Wish you well in every respect.

You say autumn has set in there. We are being boiled here. The heat is very severe.

I had a day of manual labour yesterday. (I have marked the letter 14th but I am writing this at 9.30 p.m. 13th). I am staining and polishing the floor of Dr. Gool’s surgery. I love the work. I have to finish it tomorrow, the 14th.

¹ The British Indian Association decided on April 27, 1911 to withdraw the proposal to send a deputation to England, consisting of Cachalia and Gandhiji; vide "Transvaal Notes", 2-5-1911.

I have now to await developments here. May know something on Saturday.

You make no mention of Kennedy.

With love,

Yours sincerely,

UPPER HOUSE

From the original: Gandhi-Kallenbach Correspondence. Courtesy: National Archives of India

383. RITCH IN JOHANNESBURG

Mr. Ritch has started legal practice in Johannesburg. We have not come across a single Indian who has not acknowledged his valuable services. Felicitating him is of course a way of recompensing him for his services. Another way is to seek and follow his advice. Now that he has started practice, it is also the community’s duty to extend to him their patronage. We trust all those who need the services of a lawyer will engage Mr. Ritch and so show their readiness to encourage him.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 15-4-1911

384. TELEGRAM TO JOHANNESBURG OFFICE

CAPE TOWN, April 15, 1911

TO
GANDHI
JOHANNESBURG

TALK PASSING GENERAL BILL REVIVED. FREE STATERS MAY CONSENT. NOTHING KNOWN BEFORE WEDNESDAY.

GANDHI

From a photostat of the original as delivered: S. N. 5465

1 Ritch arrived in Johannesburg on April 5, 1911 and commenced practice at Gandhiji’s Office, 21-24, Court Chambers, Rissik Street.
385. TELEGRAM TO H. S. L. POLAK

[Cape Town, April 15, 1911]

General bill may pass. Know definitely probably Wednesday.

From a photostat of Polak’s letter to Ritch: S. N. 5464

386. LETTER TO L. W. RITCH

[Cape Town.] April 15, 1911

Unrevised

My dear Ritch,

I have your letters. I hope you will read up some S.A. cases on libel & slander & look [up] Van Zyl for your summons.

Our question is passing thro’ many ups & downs. Lane told me today that they were bound to fix up two things before the end of the session: minors’ . . . & Immigration. He added that J. C. S. was conferring with Lord Gladstone and the Free State members. He naturally wants to pass his measure. He sees much beyond the Free Staters. So that we may still have the general bill. My latest bulletin is—a close race between the two proposals. If the general bill goes thro’, the Free State bar will be removed. Lane told me he might give me some definite information on Wednesday.

As to the London visit the following was the train of my

---

1 Writing to Ritch from Durban on April 15, Polak quotes the telegram which he has just received. S. N. 5464.

2 Some words are illegible here.

3 Herbert John Gladstone (1854-1930); 1st Viscount Gladstone; English statesman; Member of Parliament, 1880-1910; successively Financial Secretary, War Office, Under-Secretary, Home Office and Secretary of State for Home Affairs; in 1910 was appointed the first Governor-General and High Commissioner for South Africa which post he held till 1914.

4 Vide “Letter to L. W. Ritch”, 5-4-1911.
thought in the morning. What is a deputation to do in London? The Imperial Conference will be concerned with general principles, not details. If passive resistance be closed, our question will largely consist of details. It is possible to do something with the Colonial Secretary. But has that time yet arrived? May it not be better to await developments here? On the other hand, may not a deputation prevent the threatened Gold Law measures, & c[?]

Thus, there are arguments for and against. It seems to me that if a deputation is to be sent, we should send the following cable:

Cable Lord Ampthill’s opinion regarding small deputation proceeding view Imperial Conference although passive resistance may end other local grievances serious specially threatened action Gold Law.

I am of opinion that such a cable should be sent only after the community is ready to send a deputation in the event of an affirmative reply.

Now for the dates. The conference meets on the 22nd May Monday. I cannot leave next Wednesday the 19th, hardly on the 26th. There then remains the last & the only date, the 3rd May. That will bring the deputation to London on the 20th May? It could hardly make any impression on the Conference. The 22nd will be merely a formal affair.

As to Cape Town, not a penny need be expected. They will support. They have neither the men nor [the] money. Of Durban, I know nothing. If they find [the] money, they would want to send their own delegate. So that the Transvaal alone will have to find the funds but the work will have to be for all.

My instinct decides against any such deputation.

Mrs. Ernest is anxious to learn from Miss Knudsen.

I shall write to MacIntyre.

---

1 Evidently to the SABI Committee, London
2 A Johannesburg masseuse who had offered to train a few young Indian women
3 W.J. McIntyre; Scottish Theosophist and solicitor’s clerk articled to Gandhiji
I am writing to Joseph¹ & Quinn² who were to be discharged on the 18th.³

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat of the original in Gandhiji’s hand: S. N. 5466

387. LETTER TO L. W. RITCH

[CAPE TOWN.]

April 17, 1911

MY DEAR RITCH,

I have your letter. I did not write to you yesterday. There was nothing to write about. I have written a leaderette⁴ in the Guj. columns of I.O. showing how the public can, if they wish to, appreciate your work. It should have been printed last Saturday.

If Lane is right, we should have the definite result known this week. Though Smuts would like to do it, I cannot imagine the thing being carried over to the Coronation time. However, it is no use speculating. If there is disappointment again on Wednesday, we should still know the worst before many more days have gone by.

¹ Joseph Royeppen; born in Natal of indentured Indian parents; barrister-at-law and graduate of Cambridge University; was one of the five student-signatories to a representation to Lord Elgin against the Asiatic Law Amendment Ordinance (vide “Representation to Lord Elgin”, 3-11-1906 & “British Indians in the Transvaal”, 8-11-1906) and generally helped the Transvaal Indian Deputation (1906) during its stay in England; later, on his return to South Africa in 1910, repeatedly suffered imprisonment and deportation; vide “Royeppen Sentenced”, 5-2-1910; “German East Africa Lines Steamers”, 28-5-1910; “Joseph Royeppen”, 28-5-1910; “Letter to The Press”, 2-6-1910 & “Cable to S.A.B.I. Committee”, 28-7-1910 and Satyagraha in South Africa, Ch XXX.

² Leung Quinn; “leader of the Chinese residents of Johannesburg” and Chairman of the Chinese Association and the Cantonese Club; a signatory to the “compromise letter” to Smuts in 1908, vide “Letter to Colonial Secretary”, 28-1-1908.; burned his registration certificate in protest against the Asiatic Registration Act (“Petition to Transvaal Legislative Assembly”, 13-8-1908) and suffered imprisonment in 1909; vide “Speech at Reception to Aswat And Quinn”, 2-6-1909 & “Speech at Tea Party”, 2-6-1909.

³ If Gandhiji wrote these letters, they are not available.

⁴ Vide “Rich in Johannesburg”, 15-4-1911
I do hope that Gregorowski\textsuperscript{1} will be able to go to Bloemfontein.\textsuperscript{2} It will be very sad if he cannot. In that event it would be better to ask Lapin to send whom he likes. If there is anything definite on Wednesday, I propose to ask for relief for Mrs. Sodha\textsuperscript{3}. This will be in your hands on Thursday. I may therefore wire\textsuperscript{4} tomorrow regarding this matter.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat of the original in Gandhiji’s hand: S. N. 5468

388. LETTER TO L. W. RITCH

[CAPE TOWN]
April 18, 1911

MY DEAR RITCH,

I am sorry I have nothing yet to report. I am somewhat impatiently looking forward to tomorrow 10.30. It seems to me that disappointment awaits me again. Lane will tell me he has nothing definite to tell me. What is likely to happen is that at the last moment Smuts will rush his measure thro’ whatever it may be. That will mean that he will give us the letter and we will have to force him to fulfil the spirit.

I have asked for information about the Sodha appeal. If Greg-\textsuperscript{1} R. Gregorowski; a Johannesburg lawyer whose opinion Gandhi frequently sought on legal and constitutional matters; later he appeared as counsel for satyagrahis in law courts; vide “Letter to R. Gregorowski”, 2-3-1911 & “Letter to E. F. C. Lane”, 4-3-1911.

\textsuperscript{2} For the appeal in Rambhabai sodha’s case. Gregorowski did go but the appeal, heard on April 22, was dismissed with costs.

\textsuperscript{3} Rambhabai Rattanshi Sodha, wife of R.M. Sodha, a passive resister. Gandhiji decided to maintain her at Tolstoy Farm with her three children for the duration of her husband’s absence in jail, but she was arrested while crossing into the Transvaal in November, 1910; vide “Telegram to Minister of Interior”, 8-11-1910 & “Letter to thee Press”, 14-11-1910. A Johannesburg magistrate sentenced her to fine of £10 and a month’s imprisonment which the High Court, on appeal, reduced to a simple fine; vide “Trial of Rambhabai R. Sodha”, 30-12-1910 & “Rambhabai Sodha”, 4-3-1911. A further appeal was then filed with the court at Bloemfontein.

\textsuperscript{4} The telegram, if sent, is not available.
orowski cannot go, I hope that you will have fixed up some decent counsel.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

[PS.]

Please tell Miss Schlesin that I have duly received Finot and Dr. Mehta’s speech.¹

From a photostat of the original in Gandhiji’s hand: S. N. 5471

389. TELEGRAM TO JOHANNESBURG OFFICE

CAPE TOWN,
April 19, 1911

TO
GANDHI
Johannesburg

[SMUTS] WISHES PASS GENERAL BILL REMOVING FREE STATE BAR BUT CONSIDERS POSSIBLE HE MAY NOT THIS SESSION MEANWHILE DOES NOT WANT AGITATION. IF SODHA APPEAL UNSUCCESSFUL DOES NOT WANT IMPRISON HER.² AM STAYING IF BILL NOT PASSED. CONSIDER ENGLISH VISIT³ ESSENTIAL SITUATION REQUIRES CAREFUL CONSIDERATION.

GANDHI

From a Photostat of the original as delivered: S. N. 5475

390. LETTER TO HERMANN KALLENBACH

CAPE TOWN,
April 19, 1911

MY DEAR LOWER HOUSE,

You will see the interview and my letter to Ritch. The interview will flatter you. Smuts was very gushing about you.⁴ He has evidently

¹ Vide “Letter to L. W. Ritch”, 12-4-1911
² Vide the following item and “Abstract of Interview with General Smuts”, 19-4-1911.
³ Vide “Letter to L. W. Ritch”, 15-4-1911
⁴ For Gandhiji’s interview earlier on in the day with General Smuts, vide “Abstract of Interview with General Smuts”, 19-4-1911.

356 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
heard a lot of you. He almost gave one the impression that he had met you.

In the circumstances I feel I ought to go to London if it is at all possible. But I can only go if perfect peace can be secured at the Farm and if Cachalia comes and funds are found by the Community.

I am even prepared to leave from here directly if necessary.

There has been nothing from you now for sometime.

If Thyagarajan and Subbiah wish to go, let them go please.

I was very sorry to learn about the quarrel between Naidoo and Medh. I thought of this when I told Smuts (without your permission) that we shall be glad to see him on the Farm.

With love,

Yours sincerely,

[Name]

From the original: Gandhi-Kallenbach Correspondence. Courtesy: National Archives of India

391 LETTER TO GENERAL SMUTS

[CAPE TOWN]
April 19, 1911

DEAR GENERAL SMUTS,

After having thought over our conversation' of this morning, I feel that I should place the position frankly before you.

If the question is not settled during the present session, the prospect of passive resisters remaining totally inactive is too appalling to contemplate. There are men on Tolstoy Farm with their families who are pecuniarily ruined. There are others outside in the same position. If they are not to court arrest or are to avoid it, their movements must be hampered. If they cannot for instance go to Natal and return without being challenged at the Border. Some who are traders cannot trade because they will not produce their registration certificate[s] so long as the struggle lasts. I should have nothing to say about all this misery if we were conducting an active campaign. But, to continue using military terms, our conversation contemplates a truce for a year or longer i.e., until the Parliament meets again. I do not know how this is to be done. As you know the campaign has cost us heavily, and our monthly expenditure for supporting families, &c., is naturally great. If we are to again start begging, we must agitate here, in India and in England. There are men from Natal. They have broken up everything. Are we to keep them for months in a state of suspense?

1 Vide the following item.

VOL. 11: 11 APRIL, 1910 - 12 JULY, 1911 357

I am sincerely anxious to help you, but I do not know how I could promise inactivity on the part of the passive resisters. What you, the Imperial Government and I want to avoid is the ferment. I fear that, in the nature of things, it is well nigh impossible to avoid it if the matter is not closed during this session.

On the other hand, it will be churlish for me not to appreciate your own difficulty, especially at the fag-end of an exhausting session. You have many difficult questions to solve. Indians know at present only one. But I confess that I do not apprehend the difficulty your legal advisers do as to the alternative solution suggested by me. Seeing that you want some day or other to pass the general bill, there is no reason why the Transvaal Province may not anticipate the education test of that bill. It will keep out not a single white man whom you may want in the Transvaal and it will keep out all the Indians save six highly educated men per year. So far as I have been able to gauge the feeling of the leaders of the opposition, they will not raise any opposition. All will understand that the solution will be tentative and intended to meet the trouble in the Transvaal. The Free Staters will have a long time to consider your general bill and at the next session all will start anew. Is it too much then, sorely tried though you are with many other troubles, to ask you to remove the serious handicap in the way of my countrymen, and enable them to take their humble share in the approaching Coronation festivities?

As this letter is of a very personal nature and arises out [of] a conversation part of which you wish shall remain confidential, I will not publish [it] without your authority.

I remain,
Yours faithfully,

[PS.] As Mrs. Sodha’s appeal comes up on Saturday at Bloemfontein, why not now instruct the Attorney General not to arrest her in the event of its being lost by her.

From a photostat of the draft in Gandhiji’s hand: S. N. 5477
ABSTRACT OF INTERVIEW WITH GENERAL SMUTS

CAPE TOWN, April 19, 1911

UNREVISED

Nothing to be published
To be kept in the safe after perusal

ABSTRACT OF AN INTERVIEW BETWEEN J. C. S. AND G.
AT 11.30 P.M. 19-IV-11

The General was extra cordial. S. [& G.] are such friends that they have left off shaking hands. But at this interview there was a hearty handshake.

“Well, Gandhi, I am sorry for you. You have been long delayed, but what can I do? You will insist on enjoying yourself in Cape Town,” commenced G. S. drawing, while speaking as above, a chair near his and asking G. to be seated.

“You, as a lawyer, will understand when I tell you that it is difficult to carry out your alternative suggestion.” G. S. turns away from G., appears to [be] looking at something in his basket and continues, “Gandhi my boy, I am sorry for you. You know I want peace.” (I suppose he is having a quiet laugh while saying all this.) “But”, looking now towards G., “my advisers consider that your suggestion cannot be carried out. How can we keep out whites from the other provinces[?] Parliament will not pass such a bill. I therefore want to pass my bill which I like and which I consider is fair. I shall try but I may fail to pass it during this session. All the members want to go away. And the Free State members are still opposed to admitting any Asiatic. I think I can beat them in the Assembly but the Senate will throw out the Bill. I therefore want to pass the measure during the next session, if I cannot carry it this session. But meanwhile I want peace. I do not want to harass your people. You know that. And I do not want you to bring people from India and elsewhere to fight. I want to help the Imperial Government & they want to help me.

1 Where the original is torn, the missing letters are suggested in square brackets.
2 This is an error for “a. m.”; vide the preceding item.
3 Vide “Letter to E. F. C. Lane”, 7-4-1911
I want to help you & you want to help me. Will you not see our point of view?"

"I emphatically do," interposed G. S. continued: "I know you have many leaders. I know you to be high-minded & honest. I have told Imp. Govt. so. You have a right to fight in your own way. But this country is the Kaffirs'. We whites are a handful. We do not want Asia to come in. Now that Natal won't have immigration, I am hopeful of solving this question. But how can we hold out against you? I have read out your pamphlet. You are a simple-living & frugal race. In many respects more intelligent than we are. You belong [to] a civilization that is thousands of years old. Ours, as you say, is but an experiment. Who knows but that the whole damned thing will perish before long. But you see why we do not want Asia here. But as I say the Natal difficulty being out of the way, I shall cope with the problem here. But I want time. I shall yet beat the Free Staters. But you should not be aggressive. The whole question as you know will be discussed before the Imperial Conference. You should therefore wait. Now just think it over and let me know." He paused and continued: "I do not know how your people spread. They go everywhere. I have now more petitions against dealers. My difficulty of the future will be regarding them. I do not want to disturb them. I want to let things remain as they are. But I do not know what will happen. You are too hard." After changing the subject, S. said: "Gandhi, what are you doing for a living?"

G. I am not practising at present.
S. But how then are you living? Have you plenty of money?
G. No. I am living liking [sic] like a pauper, the same as other passive resisters on Tolstoy Farm.
S. Whose is it?
G. It is Mr. Kallenbach’s. He is a German.

1 Hind Swaraj; vide “Hind Swaraj”, 22-11-1909.
2 Hermann Kallenbach; a prosperous German architect of Johannesburg with "a vein of other-worldliness" who, when challenged to a duel by a Volks-rust European for his Indian sympathies, declined, saying that he had “accepted the religion of peace”; himself a satyagrahi, he gave his 1100-acre Tolstoy Farm near Johannesburg for the maintenance of satyagrahis’ families; taught on the farm carpentry, gardening and sandal-making, the last of which he had learnt at a Trappist monastery; Honorary Secretary of the British Indian Association for a time during the absence of Gandhiji and Polak; associated in dietetic experiments with Gandhiji who describes him as “a man of strong feeling, wide sympathies and childlike simplicity”. Vide also Satyagraha in South Africa and An Autobiography, also "Address to H. Kallenbach", 31-7-1911 and “Reception to Mr. Kallenbach”, 5-8-1911.
S. (Laughing) Oh, old Kallenbach! He is your admirer, eh? I know.
G. I do not know that he is my admirer. We are certainly very great friends
S. I must come and see the Farm—where is it?
G. Near Lawley.
S. I know—on the Vereeniging line. What is the distance from the station?
G. About 20 minutes. We shall be pleased to see you there.
S. Yes, I must come one day.
So saying he got up to say good-bye. G. did likewise and said:
“You say you cannot amend the Transvaal Imm, Act. I must confess, I do not see any difficulty.”
S. Yes, there is. The whites won’t have it unless you adopt my suggestion.
G. And that is [?]
S. To give the Governor the power to make regulations setting a different test for different people. The regulations must only refer to Indians. And this I know you won’t like. But you think the whole thing over & let me know what you think. You know I want to help you. If there are any individual cases of hardship, you can always come to me.
G. I shall think over the whole thing, but if you want peace, do you want to persecute Mrs. Sodha[?]?
S. I do not indeed.
G. Do you want to imprison her?
S. No. I know nothing about this case as you know.
G. The appeal is on on Saturday. We may lose it. Then she must go to gaol or pay £10. She won’t pay the fine, & must therefore go to gaol.
S. No, I do not want her to go to gaol. But you have brought many into the Transvaal illegally. Now you won’t.
G. I do not admit having brought anybody illegally. I certainly did not bring Mrs. Sodha illegally. I gave due notice to the Registrar. And I brought her because her husband like many

1 Vide “Letter to L. W. Ritch”, 17-4-1911 and “Telegram to Johannesburg Office”, 19-4-1911 other passive resisters had to break up his home.

S. Alright, you let me know the result of the appeal and I shall see to it that she is not arrested. Let me know at once will you?

G. Thank you I will.

During the conversation, he said the Free State matter was confidential. The interview lasted nearly 40 minutes.

From a photostat of the original in Gandhiji’s hand: S. N. 5476

393. LETTER TO L. W. RITCH

[CAPE TOWN, ]
April 20, 1911

MY DEAR RITCH,

The enclosed has been sent to me by Chhaganlal with a request to give it to you. The extract is good for reproduction in Indian Opinion, but can we?

I hope you were successful in your case. When you want any cash, I assume you have been taking it from Miss Schlesin. Anyhow, the extract should go to Henry to read.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat of the original in Gandhiji’s hand: S. N. 5487

394. TELEGRAM TO BRITISH INDIAN ASSOCIATION

CAPE TOWN,
April 20, 1911

TO BIAS
JOHANNESBURG

INTEND RETURNING ON KNOWING DEFINITELY. RESULT NOT STILL HOPELESS. SUGGEST INSTEAD MEETING CACHALIA SORABJI OTHERS GOING OUTSIDE PLACES EXPLAIN POSITION AND COLLECT. NO TIME SHOULD BE LOST. NO CABLING INDIA ENGLAND TWO DAYS.

GANDHI

From a photostat of the original as delivered: S. N. 5482
395. LETTER TO L. W. RITCH

Thursday, April 20, 1911

MY DEAR RITCH,

I have your two wires to which I replied yesterday in anticipation.¹ But I have replied by wire² also today. I am not quite without hope, and propose to stay for a conclusive reply if he would deign to give one.

If you think that Maud should have a copy of my personal letter³ to Smuts, and I think she should have it, please make a copy at your side and send one to her. I have seen no one today. Last night I saw Sir David⁴ at Anderson’s house and had a long chat with him. I do not think that he can exercise the slightest influence in this matter. I am going to see Alexander tomorrow to see if a question cannot be put in the House. But I want to await S.’s reply before taking drastic measures.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat of the original in Gandhiji’s land: S. N. 5488

396. LETTER TO E. F. C. LANE

[CAPE TOWN,
April 20, 1911]⁵

DEAR MR. LANE,

I wired yesterday the gist of the conversation with General Smuts to the Congress at Durban and the Association at Johannesburg.⁶

¹ Vide “Telegram to Johannesburg Office”, 19-4-1911
² Vide the preceding item
³ Vide “Letter to General Smuts”, 19-4-1911
⁴ Sir David Hunter; member of Union Parliament from Durban, and a friend of the Indian community; sometime General Manager of the Natal Government Railways. Vide also “Sir David Hunter”, 3-2-1906.
⁵ It is evident from the reference to the telegram to the BIA, Johannesburg (“Telegram to Johannesburg Office”, 19-4-1911) that this letter was written on April 20, 1911.
⁶ The wire to the Durban Congress is not available; for the other, vide “Telegram to Johannesburg Office”, 19-4-1911
The following wire has been received from the Congress:

Congress disapprove stopping agitation Transvaal trouble. Should be settled this session. According Government promise matter should be completed before Coronation, even if prolongation session necessary.

The Association wires as follows:

Your wire 19th. Committee resolved continue agitation unless law altered this session and to cable England and India immediately.

I have been discussing the matter with the Cape Indian leaders too. They unhesitatingly state that suspension of the agitation in the manner suggested by General Smuts is impossible.

As I have now gathered from the General that he has definitely decided to drop the general bill for the present session and that he will not adopt the alternative solution suggested by me, I have dissuaded any public announcement or the sending of cablegrams to India and England.

I still hope that, if the Free State members cannot be conciliated, the alternative solution which, in my opinion, can offer no difficulty, will be acted upon during this session. In any case, may I know General Smuts’ definite decision as soon as possible?

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

From Indian Opinion, 29-4-1911; also photostat of draft in Gandhiji’s hand: S.N. 5489

397. LETTER TO L. W. RITCH

[CAPE TOWN., ]

Friday [April 21, 1911]

MY DEAR RITCH,

Got an official reply from S. at 2.30 p.m., went to Lane at 3 p.m. Left him at 4.45 p.m., went over and saw Alexander and then went to the telegraph office and it is now 5.45 p.m. Not much time to write to you at length. Lane showed me the confidential correspondence with the G[overnor-]G[eneral], showing that the bill could not possibly be brought up this session whether we stopped

1 Vide “Letter to E. F. C. Lane”, 7-4-1911
2 From Lane; vide Appendix, “Lane’s Letter to Gandhiji”, 21-4-1911.
passive resistance or not. I thought therefore that we could suspend passive resistance if certain assurances were given. I have told of what I want. I intended to leave tomorrow by the Limited Express at 9 a.m. So Lane telephoned to S. whether he could give assurances, and he said “yes” to the last two but not [to] the first. But I am staying. Anyhow, I am writing a letter to take to Lane in the morning. We have a chance of getting loaves & fishes for the passive resisters and I am trying. If the written assurance be given, I certainly think that the best thing will have happened. We are bound to get a general bill next session.

I have not the time to give you copy of General Smuts’ letter. I have much work before me for the evening. Will pass a day at Kimberley so that I should be there on Wednesday morning.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat of the original in Gandhiji’s hand: S. N. 5492

398. LETTER TO E.F.C. LANE

7, BUITENCINGLE [STREET,]
CAPE TOWN,
April 22, 1911

DEAR MR. LANE,

I beg to acknowledge your letter of the 21st instant.

I regret that General Smuts finds it impossible to settle the Transvaal Asiatic trouble during this session. I am, however, grateful for the statement contained in your letter that the matter will engage General Smuts’ attention during the recess with a view to bringing about a settlement during the next session.

I share General Smuts’ anxiety that passive resistance may now be brought to a close.

1 For the Union Government’s reasons for dropping the bill, vide Appendix, “Union Government’s Reasons for Dropping Immigrants Restriction Bill (1911), 12-4-1911.

2 Vide the following item.

3 Vide Appendix, “Lane’s Letter to Gandhiji”, 21-4-1911

4 Vide Appendix, “Lane’s Letter to Gandhiji”, 21-4-1911.
May I then suggest the following for his consideration so that the suspicion that is sure to be roused among my countrymen owing to a postponement of the solution may be allayed?

An assurance should be given that:

(a) legislation will be passed next session repealing Act 2 of 1907 subject to the reservation of the rights of minor children in terms of the Chotabhai judgment and restoring legal equality as to the immigration of Asiatics into the Transvaal and maintaining existing rights. If the racial bar in the present Immigration Act of the Transvaal is removed by a general bill, such bill should naturally be free from a racial bar throughout the Union;

(b) passive resisters who but for their resistance would have been entitled to registration should now be so entitled notwithstanding anything to the contrary in Act 36 of 1908;

(c) educated passive resisters who are now in the Transvaal but who are not registrable under the Asiatic Act should be allowed to remain in the Transvaal as educated immigrants in anticipation of the forthcoming legislation, their number not to exceed six. They may have special certificates in order to enable them to

---

1 A.E. Chotabhai, domiciled in the Transvaal since 1899 and registered lawfully under Act 36 of 1908, brought his minor son aged 15, whose name appeared in his father’s registration certificate, in January, 1910. On the boy’s attaining majority, his application for separate registration under Act 36 of 1908 was rejected by the Registrar of Asiatics. Chotabhai appealed to Magistrate Jordan who dismissed the appeal and ordered deportation. Chotabhai then moved the Provincial Court where Justice Wessels in Chambers dismissed the application but restrained the order of deportation pending appeal to the higher Court. The Full Bench of the Transvaal Division of the Supreme Court dismissed the appeal with a dissenting judgment by Justice Mason. Finally on January 25, the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court of South Africa ruled that, although Act 36 of 1908 provided only for registration of minors resident in the Transvaal at the commencement of the Act or born within its boundaries, it did not follow that minors entering lawfully after that date were to be excluded from the registration provided for under the earlier Act 2 of 1907, and that it appeared improbable that the Legislature would allow Asiatic minors free entry into the Transvaal but allow the Registrar no discretion to permit them to remain in the country on their attaining majority. The appeal was upheld. The case, in its various stages, was reported in several issues of Indian Opinion between August 1910 and April, 1911; vide also “Cable to S.A.B.I. Committee”, 29-8-1910; “Speech at Meeting of Kathiawad Arya Mandal”, 20-9-1910; “Johannesburg”, before 17-11-1910 & “Chhotabhai Case”, 28-1-1911.
move to and fro without hindrance.

If the above assurance be given,¹ I do not anticipate any difficulty in persuading my countrymen to suspend passive resistance. I trust General Smuts will recognize that, in asking for the above assurance, I am simply requesting ratification of what he has so often publicly stated.

I am sure that the Indian community will be deeply grateful to General Smuts for consenting not to imprison Mrs. Sodha in the event of her appeal failing.²

I am thankful, too, for the verbal assurance given by General Smuts that he will be pleased to grant relief in cases of individual hardship.

I need hardly reiterate the statement that, whatever befalls the present passive resistance movement, the Indian community will continue to worry him about the many matters in the different Provinces which have from time to time formed the subject-matter of memorials, etc.

Lastly, I venture to repeat what I have so often that those who have the privilege of guiding the Indian community in South Africa have always been anxious, and will continue, to help the authorities and to study and appreciate the European standpoint consistently with that community’s self-respect and interests.

_I am,_

_Yours sincerely,_

M. K. GANDHI

From _Indian Opinion_, 29-4-1911; also Cd. 6283 and photostat of type-written office copy: S. N. 5496

¹ It was; _vide_ “Lane’s Letter to Gandhiji”, 22-4-1911.

A largely attended meeting of members of the Indian community, amongst which was a fair sprinkling of Europeans, took place last evening in the Supper Room of the Town Hall, for the purpose of hearing an address from Mr. M. K. Gandhi who had just arrived from Cape Town, and was on his way up to Johannesburg.

... The Mayor briefly introduced Mr. Gandhi to the meeting and Mr. Dawson then read the following address to Mr. Gandhi ...

Mr. Gandhi, who had an enthusiastic reception, thanked the meeting for the great welcome that had been accorded him, and the beautiful address presented. He thanked His Worship the Mayor for presiding on the occasion and said that it suggested the harmony of humanity in Kimberley. He could not take the reception as a personal tribute, but he considered it a mark of approbation of the great work which had been done by the passive resisters of the Transvaal. He was glad to be able to inform the meeting that they were nearing a solution of the difficult question that had cost the community over 3,500 imprisonments and untold suffering. He had in his possession a letter from General Smuts which stated that the legitimate demands of the Indian community would be granted during the next session of Parliament. In that letter, the speaker contended, was official recognition of passive resistance as a legitimate form of agitation for the redress of grievances. Addressing meetings in London, he had not hesitated to call the Transvaal passive resistance one of the greatest movements of modern times. He knew of no instance in modern history in which a body of people had undertaken self-suffering by way of redress, and that was what the Transvaal movement amounted to.

Mr. Gandhi likened the Transvaal passive resistance to the conscientious opposition offered by the Prophet Daniel to the Laws of the Medes and the Persians, which the Prophet considered to be contrary to the demands of reason and holiness.
He exhorted his countrymen to be always reasonable in their demands. He contended that the Indian community throughout South Africa had, as a rule, endeavoured to see the European standpoint. Whilst they fought for legal equality, they admitted that there should be differential treatment by reason of the prevalent prejudice, which the Indians would have to wear down by honourable conduct. He asked his hearers not to consider the forthcoming settlement as a victory to gloat over, but merely as a natural

1 Councillor W. Gasson, who presided
2 Not reproduced here
3 Vide "Lane’s Letter to Gandhiji", 22-4-1911.
4 Vide, for example, "Speech at Farewell Meeting", 12-11-1909 consequence of the heroic fight that so many Indians in the Transvaal had put up. He paid a glowing tribute to Mr. Thambi Naidoo, whom he considered to be one of the greatest of passive resisters in the arduous campaign. (Loud applause.)

Mr. Dawson, Chairman of the Indian Association, moved a vote of thanks to Mr. Gandhi which was seconded by Mr. Joshua, the ex-Secretary of the African Political Association. Mr. Gandhi briefly returned thanks and in turn proposed a vote of thanks to the Mayor, which was carried by the whole audience standing.

Diamond Fields Advertiser, 25-4-1911

400. TELEGRAM TO H. KALLENBACH

[JOHANNESBURG, April 26, 1911]

TO KALLENBACH,
LAWLEY

MEETING TOMORROW TWO O'CLOCK HAMIDIA HALL
DEPUTATION. PRESENCE NAIDOO, SODHA\(^1\), MEDH\(^4\).

---

\(^1\) Thambi Naidoo; a Tamil cartage contractor from Mauritius whom Gandhiji described as “lion-like” and as one of the two most eminent satyagrahis; who but for his rashness of temper “could easily have assumed the leadership of the community in the Transvaal”; had a flair for languages and cooking; became Chairman of the Tamil Benefit Society in 1912. Vide also Satyagraha in South Africa, Ch. XX.

\(^2\) This meeting mentioned in the text was held on April 27, 1911; clearly therefore this telegram was sent of April 26 presumably on instructions from Gandhiji who had returned to Johannesburg that morning after a month’s absence at Cape Town.

\(^4\) Surendrarai Bapubhai Medh; a sergeant in Gandhiji’s Stretcher-bearer Corps during the Zulu “Rebellion” in 1906; a “stalwart passive resister” who “sacrificed his all” and “covered the community with glory”; among the first batch of Natal Indians to enter the Transvaal, following Sorabji, in order to test educated Indians’ right of entry into that Colony; held the record for the longest imprisonment “having been eleven times in gaol” and having “twice fasted for eight days” in protest against the ill-treatment of prisoners; *vide “Notable Discharges”, 30-4-1910; “Who is a Satyagrahi?”, 5-11-1910 & “Letter to Director of Prisons, Pretoria”, 22-11-1910, also Satyagraha in South Africa, Ch. XI.
370

THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI

DESAI¹, ABSOLUTELY NECESSARY.

GANDHI

From a photostat of the handwritten office copy signed by Sonja Schlesin “for M. K. Gandhi”: S. N. 5509

401. TELEGRAM TO H. S. L. POLAK

JOHANNESBURG, April 26, 1911

TO POLAK CARE RUSTOMJEE DURBAN

TELEPHONE INTERRUPTED. RETURN EITHER TODAY OR TOMORROW.³ REPLY. PUBLISH FULL CORRESPONDENCE² EXCEPT PERSONAL LETTER⁴ SMUTS’ 20TH.

GANDHI

From a photostat of the handwritten draft with correction in Gandhiji’s hand: S. N. 5513

¹ Pragji Khandubhai Desai; “a well-tried passive resister” who fasted in jail in protest against the warders’ ill-treatment of prisoners; among the earliest to arrive in Tolstoy Farm, he worked “harder than in jail” to build wood-and-iron structures for the settlers; Gandhiji “requisitioned his services” to teach youngsters on the Farm “who were on bad terms with their books”; wrote regularly for the Gujarati section of Indian Opinion; vide “Pragji Desai’s Resolve”, 5-11-1910, also Satyagraha in South Africa, Ch. XXXIV.

² Polak left for Johannesburg on April 27, 1911.

³ This was accordingly published in Indian Opinion, 29-4-1911.

⁴ Vide “Letter to General Smuts”, 19-4-1911; the letter was actually dated the 19th.
402. LETTER TO APPASAMY NAIKER

[JOHANNESBURG, April 28, 1911]

DEAR MR. APPASAMY NAIKER,

I understand that the few remarks that Mr. Solomon made at the combined meeting yesterday have offended you and some other friends very much. Mr. Naidoo and I are indeed very sorry. We admit that the remarks should not have been made by Mr. Solomon, but we trust that this letter will be sufficient to soothe your feelings and those of others who have felt hurt. Whatever has happened in the past, it must undoubtedly be the wish of every lover of India to forget it, and for us to work together for bettering our condition.

Yours truly,

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S. N. 5517

403. INTERVIEW TO "THE STAR"

[JOHANNESBURG, April 28, 1911]

The correspondence with appeared in The Star of yesterday gave every promise of a settlement being reached, but did not indicate any exactness in the form of compromise. As a result of a meeting extending to four hours last evening, Mr. Gandhi has been given authority by his countrymen to conclude a temporary arrangement, which will permit of General Smuts advising the Governor-General to extend clemency to passive resisters at present confined. Efforts can also be made by those who have sacrificed their business to re-establish themselves, and the women and children who are living on Tolstoy Farm and [have] become a charge on the Indian community can gradually be restored to their homes. When the final stage has

1 The letter is followed by a statement, presumably by Solomon, which reads: "I have read the above, and I entirely associate myself with the sentiments expressed. I am indeed very that my remarks should have caused offence to any Indian at all."

2 The office copy, which is the source of this item, is dated April 27, 1911. This is evidently a slip for the meeting referred to in the text was held on April 27 and the letter itself was therefore written on April 28, 1911.

3 This was republished in Indian Opinion, 6-5-1911, under the title “The Close of Bitter Struggle".
been reached, Mr. Gandhi is passing from public life. He has already arranged for his legal practice to be taken over by Mr. Ritch, who up to now has represented the Indian cause in London. His immediate intention is to provide for the care and education of the children whose parents are now in necessitous circumstances, and then he intends to retire to his farm in Natal, and in the spells of leisure no doubt to come in closer touch with the philosophic musings of Tolstoy and to reap inspiration from the savants of his beloved India.

A representative of The Star called on Mr. Gandhi today to obtain an appreciation of the stage to which the Asiatic problem has been advanced. It would appear that the Immigration Bill is finished with and that two alternatives are before the Government. The first is the introduction of a new Immigration Bill from which the colour bar will be entirely eliminated, and to carry which General Smuts will have to bear down the opposition of the Free State. The second course is to practically preserve the status quo and to simply amend the immigration laws of the Transvaal. The first course while meeting objections raised by the Transvaal Indians, will involve the right of educated immigrants to travel throughout the Union, and will place limitations on the privileges which Indians in other Provinces at present enjoy. The adoption of such measure would not bring that finality which is desirable. On this point, Mr. Gandhi states the country is not yet ripe for general immigration legislation, because the policies throughout the Provinces have been distinct, and it would be purely a makeshift to have general legislation in name with actual statutory distinctions for the different Provinces, because it is common cause that the Provincial Asiatic legislation is to remain intact and that movements of Asiatics are to be restricted to the respective Provinces.

[GANDHIJI:] Such being the case, I cannot help saying that it will be sane statesmanship for the present to recognize the situation as it is; and yet it will be possible to administer the Provincial laws by the Central Government. Generally speaking, that the laws are so framed as to ensure practical equality of administration of European immigration.

NO HITCH ANTICIPATED

[INTERVIEWER:] You have no doubt now doubt a solution being reached?

So far as I can see, there ought to be no hitch, because each party has taken all the precautions humanly possible to avoid misunderstanding or ambiguity. Undoubtedly a great deal will depend on how General Smuts carries out his declarations. At last night’s

\footnote{The reference is to the proposal contained in Gandhiji’s letter to Lane of April 7, “Letter to E. F. C. Lane”, 7-4-1911.}
meeting, the greatest difficulty that the Indian leaders had to face was the almost ineradicable suspicion the rank and file entertain regarding the Government’s motives. They read everything that is hostile to themselves in all that is said or written on behalf of the Union Government. At one time the position was tense, and there was a very heated controversy, but calmness ultimately prevailed, and the meeting decided, with a few dissentients, to accept the provisional settlement. ¹

What was your experience in Cape Town?

I must confess that General Smuts was extremely obliging and conciliatory in his attitude, and throughout the negotiations, he evinced a sincere desire to come to a settlement. He more than once declared that he did not wish to prolong the distress which he knew the passive resisters were suffering.

In reply to a further question, Mr. Gandhi said that the present Indian population in the Transvaal was at the outside 8,000, and was about 7,000 below the number of pre-war residents. In conclusion, he requested that his gratitude and that of his countrymen should be acknowledged through The Star to the members of the European committees in Johannesburg and London, to Lord Ampthill² and Professor Gokhale³, without whose support “we could not have reached the stage we have”.

The Star, 28-4-1911

404. LETTER TO E. F. C. LANE

[JOHANNESBURG, ]
April 29, 1911

DEAR MR. LANE,

Referring to the conversation between us of this morning, we had an overcrowded meeting at the Hamidia Hall on Thursday last Mr. Cachalia presided, and the meeting lasted four hours. After some ¹ For Gandhiji’s report of the meeting, vide “Transvaal Notes”, 2-5-1911.

² Arthur Oliver Villiers Russell, second Baron of Ampthill (1869-1936); Governor of Madras, 1899-1906; acted as Viceroy and Governor-General of India in 1904; took active interest in the Indian struggle in South Africa and was President of the South Africa British Indian Committee, London. He wrote the introduction to Doke’s biography of Gandhiji.
³ Gopal Krishna Gokhale (1866-1915); Indian statesman; President, Indian National Congress, 1905; founded the Servants of India Society, 1905; member Bombay Legislature and Viceroy’s Legislative Council, 1902-15; member Indian Public Services Commission, 1912-5.
heated discussion, a resolution was carried, approving, as hereafter explained, of the provisional settlement set forth in the letters of the 22nd instant exchanged between us. ²

There were several questions which were asked at this meeting, and are still being asked. I think that it is right that I should draw General Smuts’ attention to the most important of them. The acceptance by the meeting is based upon the interpretation of the letters indicated by the following questions put by the meeting:

(1) Will the legislation proposed and designed to meet the objection of passive resisters take away existing rights either in the Transvaal or in other parts of South Africa?

ANSWER: It will not, whether the proposed legislation affects only the Transvaal or the whole of the Union.

(2) Will the passive resisters who are pre-war residents, but who are at present outside the Transvaal, such as Mr. Dawad Mahomed or Mr. Rustomjee, be entitled to registration in spite of their having failed to apply for their registration during the statutory period?

ANSWER: Yes.

(3) Will the passive resisters who, although registered, have been deported, be prohibited from entering the Transvaal?

ANSWER: No.

¹ Vide “Letter to E. F. C. Lane”, 22-4-1911 also Appendix, “Lane’s Letter to Gandhiji”, 22-4-1911.

² Here the draft has the sentence: “The smooth working will depend now entirely upon a liberal policy being followed by General Smuts” which appears to have been subsequently deleted.

³ One of the earliest traders in South Africa, he spoke English and Dutch well although without any literary education. “Skilful”, “intelligent and resourceful”, he was the principal contributor to public funds raised in South Africa for Indian causes; Chairman, Natal Indian Congress; erstwhile resident of the Transvaal, he crossed over into the Colony in August, 1908 and refused to give his thumb-impressions at the border under Act 2 of 1907. He thus courted arrest to establish the right of entry of old Transvaal Indian residents and as released on grounds of ill-health after serving five months of his six months’ sentence; vide “Letter to General Smuts”, 14-8-1908; “Comments on Transvaal Indian Campaign”, 28-8-1908 & “Speech at Meeting in Hamidia Mosque”, 30-8-1908 and “Duncan’s Views”, 13-2-1909; “Statement of Transvaal Indian Case”, 16-7-1909; also Satyagraha in South Africa, Ch. XXX.

⁴ Parsi Rustomjee; philanthropic and public-spirited Indian merchant of Natal and the “Grand Old passive Resister”, affectionately known as Kakaji, he was first co-worker and staunch friend and later client of Gandhiji’s; strong supporter of the Natal Indian Congress.
(4) Will the passive resisters who hold Peace Preservation Ordinance Permits but have been deported be similarly protected?

ANSWER: Yes.

(5) Will the educated passive resisters who are to be allowed to remain in the Transvaal under temporary certificates be treated as immigrants for this year, and be free from liability to registration under Act 36 of 1908?

ANSWER: Yes.

(6) Will the standard of education possessed by the persons referred to be set for future Asiatic immigrants?

ANSWER: No. It was explained that only those who are highly educated will be allowed to pass the education test, and that probably all but Mr. Joseph Royeppen out of the six would be rejected if they were to seek admission as new immigrants on merits.

(7) Will educated Asiatics who are registered residents be compelled to give finger-prints or thumb-prints?

ANSWER: No.

(8) Will conscientious objectors or well-known Asiatics be similarly exempt?

ANSWER: Yes, from finger-prints and also from thumb-prints, if they can give a well-formed signature.

The last two answers were given on the strength of previous correspondence in 1908 and the dispatches recently published. The matter was not mentioned in the discussion between us because it was

---

1 In thus formulating Question No. 7 Gandhiji may have had the procedure for taking out licences in mind rather than that of registration for he refers to these persons as having already registered. Smuts' telegraphic reply of May 20, 1911 (Appendix VI) makes the point explicit, but in Question No. 8 the reference is clearly to the procedure for registration. Smuts' reply, however, limits the concession to licensing procedure only. Presumably all that the telegram did was to safeguard the right of the Transvaal Government to take thumb-impressions from resident Asiatic traders seeking licences if they were not educated or even from conscientious objectors seeking registration. The procedure for registration of uneducated persons could not have been at issue because the bulk of these save perhaps for the thirty mentioned in Gandhiji's letter of May 4, 1911 (pp. 59-60) had registered voluntarily, and it was agreed between the satyagrahis and the Government that immigration of uneducated persons must cease.

quite plain to me.

I am sure General Smuts will not mind my troubling him with the above, as I know he as well as I is most anxious to avoid any misunderstanding.

I find that Mr. Sodha is not a pre-war resident of three years’ standing. He resided continuously for two years before the war in the Transvaal, and actually left as a refugee. There is, of course, no doubt as to the two facts. But a strict reading of Act 36 of 1908 requires three years’ pre-war residence. May not the strict letter of the law be waived and Mr. Sodha be allowed to register? If he is not, he falls under the category of educated immigrants, as he possesses educational qualifications. He will then, with Messrs Royeppen, Sorabjee, Medh, Desai and Shelat¹ be the sixth educated man. That leaves out a very desirable and highly educated man, Mr. Samuel Joseph, a nephew of Mr. Royeppen and a school master. He was born in South Africa, and is even now the organist in a Native Protestant Christian Church, and is giving some private tuition. May I ask for his protection, by waiving the strict interpretation in regard to Mr. Sodha? We might have thrown out one of the six before named in favour of Mr. Samuel Joseph, but the merits in point of suffering of the others are far greater than Mr. Samuel Joseph’s.

I have been asked to mention another case of extreme hardship. That is Mr. Camay’s. He was an Indian postmaster in Johannesburg. He is well educated. I believe he had served for nearly ten years in the above capacity when he had to leave because he declined to register.² Mr. Camay is a Parsee. He has his family in Johannesburg. He has suffered a great deal during the struggle. I believe that he was very popular as postmaster, and enjoyed the complete confidence of his superiors. In my opinion, he ought to be reinstated.

I have not yet before me a list of Indian passive resisters who being pre-war residents are entitled to registration, but I am getting the ¹ Umashankar Manchharam Shelat; a sergeant in the Stretcher-bearer Corps formed by Gandhiji in the Zulu “rebellion” of 1906; later, as a satyagrahi, suffered imprisonment and deportation in 1908 and 1909; was one of the “stokers” at the Mass Meeting in August 1908 when Indian burned their registration certificates; vide “Speech at Mass Meeting”, 23-8-1908 and “Trial of Naidoo and Others”, 16-6-1909 & “Johannesburg Letter”, before 21-6-1909; also Satyagraha in South Africa, Ch. XI.

² Vide “Johannesburg Letter”, 26-8-1908 and 31-8-1908.
names together. I take it that their registration will proceed immediately we agree on the points mentioned by me herein.

You were somewhat surprised when I mentioned the Chinese passive resisters. But they have continued to suffer to the end and their Chairman, Mr. Quinn, was only recently discharged from gaol. There are now, I think, more Chinese than Indian passive resisters in gaol. I am quite sure that General Smuts will not expect Indian passive resisters to desert their Chinese fellow sufferers. They naturally ask for the same protection for the Chinese passive resisters as for themselves. There are, I understand, only about twenty pre-war Chinese passive resisters who were not registered when the struggle was revived in 1908. But I introduced the question of the Chinese in order to mention the somewhat delicate matter of four who are undergoing terms of imprisonment for public violence among themselves. When the struggle was revived, the Chinese became two factions and fought with each other. As a result, some were convicted. Now the two factions are united. They are even preparing a petition to the Governor-General for the exercise of the clemency of the Crown. Will not General Smuts recommend them for favourable consideration?

I have written at great length. But I thought that I could not be too precise or too frank.

If you will kindly place this letter before General Smuts, and if he considers it necessary, appoint a day for an interview, I shall come down, and the matter may be finally closed.¹

I am,
Yours truly,
M. K. GANDHI

From Indian Opinion, 27-5-1911; also photostat of draft in Gandhiji’s hand:
S. N. 5521

¹ Acknowledging this letter on May 1, 1911, Lane said: “The various points raised by you are now under consideration of the Committee, and further communication will be sent to you in due course.” S. N. 5525. Smuts actually discussed the points mentioned in this letter in his letter of May 19 and telegram of May 20, 1911: vide Appendices, Resolutions at Mass Meeting”, 24-6-1908 & Chamney’s Affidavit”, 25-6-1908.
405. PETITION TO SECRETARY OF STATE FOR COLONIES

Johannesburg,
May 1, 1911

[TO]
The Right Hon’ble The Secretary of State for the Colonies
London

The Petition of A. M. Cachalia, Chairman of
The British Indian Association

Humbly sheweth that

The painful struggle over the legal status of Asiatics, that has gone on in the Transvaal for the last four years, now gives promise of a happy ending. In view, however, of the approaching meeting of the Imperial Conference, the British Indian Association ventures to draw the attention of His Majesty’s Government to the present actual position of British Indians residing in the Transvaal.

The struggle arising out of the passing of the Asiatic Registration Act (No. 2 of 1907) has caused such intense suffering among the Asiatic communities residing in the Transvaal, and has so much occupied the attention of both Asiatics and Europeans, that it has not been possible for the Association to devote much energy to securing a redress of the disabilities which were in existence at the commencement of the struggle and of others which have since been imposed, but to which passive resistance did not extend.

The Present Position in Regard to the Registration and Immigration Laws

In terms of a letter addressed by the Private Secretary of General Smuts to Mr. Gandhi, and dated the 22nd April, the proposals in which were submitted to a meeting of British Indians on the 27th April, and accepted by a Resolution carried with but six dissentients:

1 This was presumably drafted by Gandhiji; it was published in Indian Opinion, 13-5-1911, under the heading “The Present Position”.
2 Vide Appendix “Lane’s Letter to Gandhiji”, 22-4-1911.
3 For Gandhiji’s accounts of the meeting, vide “Transvaal Notes”, 2-5-1911.
4 Cf., however, “Transvaal Notes”, 2-5-1911
(a) Law 2 of 1907 is to be repealed during the forthcoming session of the Parliament of South Africa, subject to the reservation of the rights of minor children in terms of what is known as the Chotabhai judgment;

(b) Legal equality in respect of immigration of Asiatic immigrants with Europeans immigrants will be restored, subject, however, to differential administrative treatment as distinguished from statutory differentiation;

(c) In the legislation to be passed, the existing rights of British Indians will be maintained, that is, if it is Provincial legislation, the existing rights of Asiatics in the Transvaal shall not be interfered with; if it is legislation applicable to all the Provinces, the existing rights in the Provinces as well as in the Transvaal shall be preserved;

(d) If the legislation should be Provincial, not more than six highly educated Asiatics will be allowed in any one year to pass the education test, and be admitted as immigrants to the Transvaal;

(e) Passive resisters who, but for passive resistance, would have been entitled to registration if they had applied within the proper time will be now allowed to register;

(f) Educated passive resisters not registrable under the Registration Act will be allowed to remain in the Transvaal in anticipation of the forthcoming legislation, and will be deemed to be Asiatic immigrants for the current year;

(g) Passive resisters who are suffering imprisonment as such will be recommended to His Excellency the Governor-General for discharge, upon an assurance being given that the community will suspend passive resistance for the time being.

My Association takes this opportunity of tendering thanks to the Union Government for the obviously conciliatory and generous manner in which they have met it, and also to His Majesty’s Government for their friendly and effective intervention to bring to a happy ending the unfortunate situation.

But the suspension of passive resistance now agreed upon does

1 Vide 2nd footnote of “Letter to E.F.C. Lane”, 22-4-1911 not mean that the British Indian community in the Transvaal has obtained redress of all its most serious grievances. The British Indian Association, therefore, craves leave to mention the most prominent of these that the community is still labouring under.

LAW 3 OF 1885

Law 3 of 1885, which was the subject-matter of correspondence up to the time of the outbreak of hostilities between His Majesty’s Government and the late South African Republic, still remains on the Statute-Book of the Union, save for the removal of the £3 fee for the registration of those Asiatics who settled in the Transvaal for the purposes of trade; and it excludes British Indians and other Asiatics from:

(a) burgher’s rights;
(b) ownership of landed property except in Bazaars and Locations;
(c) residence in towns, except in Bazaars or Locations set apart for their residence.

Owing to the unfortunate prejudice against Asiatics prevalent in South Africa, the Association regards as outside practical politics any demand at present for burgher’s rights, i.e., rights for political franchise.¹

The deprivation, however, of the right to own landed property except in Bazaars or Locations is a very serious disability, and it naturally interferes with the progress of the community, and, strange as it may appear, the absence of building enterprise on the part of the community owing to this disability is used as an argument against the community, and so fosters prejudice. Though residence of Asiatics is restricted under this law to Locations or Bazaars, there being no penalty prescribed for non-residence therein, the Courts have held that Asiatics cannot be compulsorily segregated. The presence, direct and indirect, of rival European traders has, however, virtually driven a number of the poorer Asiatics into the Locations already established under the law. It is worthy of note, as an indication of the hostile spirit actuating the Government for the time being of the Province, that these Locations have been so far situated as to make general trade therein practically impossible, and to put Asiatic hawkers, who must every morning go to the public market for buying produce, to very great inconvenience. Moreover, whereas under this law Asians are permitted to own landed property in such Locations, the Government permit them only to hold leases of no longer than 21 years of Stands into which such Locations are divided. Indeed, in Johannesburg, they are only allowed a monthly tenure. Here it may be added that, up to the time of the outbreak of the late war, there was a Location in Johannesburg, in which ninety Stands were held under 99 years’ lease. This Location, among other areas, was expropriated under a special Ordinance, and since then Asians have not been able to hold any landed property in their own names save as above mentioned.

¹ Transvaal Indians had consistently adhered to this position; vide “Deputation to Morley”, 22-11-1906 and “Interview to the Press”, 1-2-1908 & “Speech at Closer Union Society”, 20-8-1908.

In order, however, to enable British Indians to become virtual owners of landed property, equitable trusts under legal advice were created, whereby Asians have been able hitherto to acquire a permanent interest in land, their European friends taking transfer of land for which the Asiatic beneficiaries pay, and the ostensible owner passing a bond over such land in favour of the equitable owner. These trusts have been recognized by the Courts, and the method has been in vogue almost since the time of the promulgation of this law.

GOLD LAW AND TOWNSHIPS ACT (1908)

In order, as it would appear, to defeat such trusts and to bring about effectual compulsory segregation, the Legislature has included in the Gold Law and the Townships Amendment Act of 1908 certain

---

1 The case of Aboobaker Amod’s Church Street property in Pretoria was the subject of much controversy. The Boer law of 1885 denied Asians the right to hold land outside Locations except for religious purposes but it was amended in 1886 to exempt Aboobaker Amod; vide “Blue Bok”, 29-2-1908. A Supreme Court judgment in 1906 reluctantly acquiesced in this but ruled that the property could not be transmitted to the heirs; vide “Deputation to Lord Elgin”, 8-11-1906. Special provision authorizing the inheritance was made in the Asiatic Law Amendment Ordinance of 1906 (“Letter to Dr. J. Oldfield, 6-11-1906) as well as in the draft legislation repealing portions of Law 3 of 1885 suggested by Gandhiji; vide “Blue Book”, 29-2-1908. Since the ordinance and its variations remained inoperative owing to the Indians’ opposition to them, this property was meanwhile held in trust by Polak; vide “Legalized Robbery”, 17-3-1906 & “The Land Act in the Transvaal”, 7-4-1906. This is the solitary instance of land held by an Indian individual in the Transvaal; vide “Fair and Just Treatment”, 11-8-1906.
subtle provisions, which, on the face of them, appear to be comparatively innocuous (though still highly offensive), yet which are obviously designed to accomplish the object above indicated. The Association has made this discovery only lately, by accident. In the town of Klerksdorp, European owners of Stands occupied by, and in some cases equitably owned by, British Indians have been notified by the Government that they are committing a breach of Section 130 of the said Gold Law, and that if the British Indian occupants be not removed by the 30th April (last), proceedings will be taken against them. The penalty for non-compliance is a fine of £50 and an additional fine of £5 per diem so long as the breach continues. These notices have created consternation among British Indians. The community has received legal opinion to the effect that the combined reading of the two laws above referred to means that every Indian residing within mining areas in this Province runs the risk of being dispossessed of his occupation of Stands therein and having his equitable ownership completely destroyed. The latter object is attained by a section in the Townships Act aforementioned which provides for forfeiture to the State, without compensation, of land occupied by British Indians and other Asiatics, although, as before explained, they may be virtual owners of such Stands. The only protection of existing rights granted under these drastic laws is in respect of leases directly held by Asiatics and entered into before promulgation of the Gold Law. Many important towns, including Johannesburg (which accommodates nearly one-half of the total Indian population of the Transvaal), are affected by these laws. If, therefore, they are to be strictly enforced, virtual ruin of the Transvaal Indian community must almost certainly follow and that oft-declared policy of prominent members of the present Ministry of the Union, viz., the starvation of British Indians out of the Province, will be effected at a stroke of the pen.

1 Gandhiji must have had in mind Sections 104, 113, 114, 122, 127 and 128; vide “Letter to Colonial Secretary”, Before 25-4-1908, “Petition to Transvaal Legislative Assembly”, 15-6-1908 & Appendix, “The Draft Gold Law in the Transvaal”, 4-4-1908.

2 Section 130 (Sec. 127 in the Draft Gold Law, Appendix “The Draft Gold Law in the Transvaal”, 4-4-1908) prohibits European owners of Stands in “proclaimed areas” from subletting any rights to Coloured persons and the acquisition of any rights whatsoever by the latter in such areas.

3 Vide 3rd footnote of “Extract from Letter to Maud Polak”, 5-4-1911
Had such an attempt been made by an open and plain amendment of Law 3 of 1885, instead of by an obscure interpolation in statutes covering hundreds of sections and ostensibly dealing with matters of quite a different nature, the Association feels certain that such a measure would never have received His Majesty’s sanction. The Association naturally lays the greatest emphasis upon this part of the petition, and hopes that His Majesty’s Government will not fail to grant relief.

FOOT-PATHS BY-LAWS, ETC.

The Association is loth to bring before His Majesty’s Government by-laws and regulations needlessly interfering with the personal liberty of the community represented by the Association, in view of the fact that material interests of the community are, as shown above, hardly recognized or respected; but there can be no rest for Transvaal Indians so long as the Statute-Book of the Province remains disfigured by legislation preventing the use by them of foot-paths and tram-cars. These pinpricks will not be stopped so long as British Indians continue generally to be bracketed with the natives of South Africa.

THREATENED LEGISLATION

The Association further begs to draw the attention of His Majesty’s Government to the promise of the Union Government to deal with the question of trading licences granted to British Indians. The Association is aware the various Chambers of Commerce of this Province, largely composed of rival European traders, have promoted and sent petitions to the Union Parliament, containing highly coloured and inflammatory statements prejudicial to Indian interests, and praying for the restriction and even extinction, of Indian trade licences. The Association fervently hopes that, as the Indian population in the Transvaal is comparatively small, and is not to be in future at all materially added to, no restraint of Indian trade will be countenanced by His Majesty’s Government. The Association humbly

1 The British Indian Association had time and again taken up the question of these disabilities with the local authorities, and the Colonial and Imperial Governments; vide, for example, “Foot-Paths Again”, 17-3-1904 and “Lord Selborne and Indians in the Transvaal”, 14-10-1905. “Statement Presented to Constitution Committee”, 29-5-1906.
suggests that the objections, mostly exaggerated, made in the petitions above referred to, to the habits of the Indian community as to insanitation, etc., in so far as they are based on facts, can be, and are, easily met by general municipal health regulations.

In conclusion, the Association trusts that His Majesty’s Government will take such steps as may be necessary and expedient to safeguard the existing rights of British Indian subjects of the Crown, resident in the Transvaal, to ameliorate their position in respect of the matters hereinafter referred to. And for this act of justice and mercy your Petitioner shall, as in duty bound, for ever pray.

A. M. CACHALIA
CHAIRMAN,
BRITISH INDIAN ASSOCIATION

Colonial Office Records: 551/22

406. SPEECH AT JOHANNESBURG FAREWELL

[May 1, 1911]

A large gathering of local Indian sportsmen met at the Hamidia Islamic Hall, Vrededorp, to wish good-bye to Mr. Joseph Royeppen on the eve of his departure for his home in Durban, after the conclusion of his part in the Transvaal Passive Resistance movement. Mr. Gandhi was in the chair. . . . The chairman opened the proceedings and naturally touched on his own pet game of passive resistance. He said there were many games. In some they won, and in others they lost, but there was a game in which they must always win, and that was passive resistance. He referred to the long and dreary game that had been played by them for the last four and a half years, and trusted that the winning point was now scored. A community which could play the game of passive resistance so honourably as they had done could play any other game equally well . . .

The Star, 4-5-1911

---

1 A report appearing in the Gujarati section of Indian Opinion, 13-5-1911, states that this function was held on May 1, 1911 under the auspices of the Bande Mataram League. Vide also the following item.
An overflow meeting was held at the Hamidia Hall on Thursday, the 27th ultimo. Mr. Cachalia presided. Probably 200 men had to stand outside the Hall. The proceedings lasted over four hours. Messrs Kallenbach and Ritch were also present. The discussion was at times heated, if not actually stormy, and throughout there was intense as to the intentions of the Government. Mr. Gandhi explained the whole of the correspondence, and advised acceptance of the proposals made therein. After Mr. Coovadia and Messrs Royeppen, Solomon Ernest, Thambi Naidoo, Imam Abdul Kadir Bawazeer, Sorabjee, Sodha and others had spoken in favour of acceptance, Mr. Abdul Rahman of Potchefstroom moved that the proposal as to suspension of passive resistance be accepted conditional upon fulfilment of the pledges given by General Smuts. The proposition was somewhat crudely worded, but it sufficiently expressed the sense of the meeting. Mr. Shelat seconded. There was a counter-proposition to the effect that the proposal might not be accepted until the intentions of the Government were carried into practice. The original proposition was carried with but five dissentients.

It was also decided at this meeting that the proposal to send a public deputation to England consisting of Messrs Cachalia and Gandhi should be withdrawn, and that the funds collected be devoted to sending Mr. Polak to England, in order to enable him to rejoin Mrs. Polak, as also to take up such public work as may be found necessary during the Conference and after. According to the programme at present arranged, about the middle of October, Mr. Polak will leave with Mrs. Polak for India, and there attend the meeting of National Congress in December, and remain there up to the time of passing of the Bill that is to be introduced during the forthcoming session of the Union Parliament, in terms of General Smuts’ letter of the 22nd ultimo. Telegrams in support of the meeting were received from Klerksdorp and Peitersburg, and delegates attended from Germiston, Boksburg, Heidelberg, etc.

*      *      *

The Chinese have also held meetings, and have passed resolutions accepting the proposed settlement, asking Mr. Gandhi to attend to certain difficulties of their own. The one very satisfactory result, so far as the Chinese are concerned, that has been achieved is that the two parties into which they were unhappily divided after the renewal of the struggle in the middle of 1908 have now reunited.

* * *

Mr. Gandhi is now in further correspondence with General Smuts, and final letters may be exchanged during the week.

* * *

Mr. Polak arrived last Saturday evening, and was received by Mr. Cachalia and other members of the community and he left for London last Monday by the Imperial Mail. He was seen off by nearly one hundred Indians and Chinese, including Messrs Kallenbach, Ritch, Issac, Van Weenen and Miss Schlesin. He was garlanded by Mr. Cachalia, and was the recipient of several bouquets. Flowers were showered upon him, and as the train was about to steam out, Mr. Camay, in a few well-chosen words, thanked Mr. Polak for his great services, wished him a happy time with Mrs. Polak and his family, and hoped that whatever public work he might do would be crowned with the same brilliant success that had attended his efforts in India.

* * *

A reception was held by the Bande Mataram League in honour of Mr. Joseph Royeppen, on Monday night. Refreshments were served, and the tables were laid for nearly 50 guests, among whom were Messrs Cachalia, Quinn, Fancy, Thambi Naidoo, David Ernest, Bawazeer, Sorabjee, Medh and others. Messrs Kallenbach and Issac were also present, Mr. Gandhi was in the Chair. Several speeches were made, all more or less dealing with the passive resistance struggle.

* * *

The British Indian Association is sending a petition addressed to the Secretary of State for the Colonies, dealing with grievances arising out of the operation of Law 3 of 1885, the Gold Law, and the Townships Amendment Act, and several other matters.

Mr. Ritch has already appeared in the Courts in several cases with success.

* * *

1 For a report of Gandhiji’s speech vide the preceding item.
2 Vide “Petition to Secretary of State for Colonies”, 1-5-1911.
Mr. G. Ramasmy has sent a box of vegetables to the Farm.

Indian Opinion, 6-5-1911.

408. LETTER TO E. F. C. LANE

May 4, 1911

DEAR MR. LANE,

With reference to the interview\(^1\) with General Smuts, I have conferred with Mr. Cachalia and other leaders. It seems to be no easy matter to give you a complete list of the names of those who as passive resisters would be competent to apply, and, in any case, the preparation of the list will take some time. But I think I can easily describe the classes who may be permitted to apply, I do not deal with those who are in South Africa, for General Smuts, I understand, does not anticipate any difficulty about them.

There are no Chinese passive resisters outside South Africa.

Those Indians who may be in India should fall under one or [the] other of the following sub-heads:

(a) Those who, after the 1st of January, 1908, were deported under the Registration Act 2 of 1907 or Act 36 of 1908, and have not yet applied under either of the Acts;\(^3\)

(b) Those who, though not deported, left South Africa owing to the struggle some time after the 1st day of March, 1907.\(^4\)

---

1 On May 5, 1911, Lane acknowledged this letter saying that it was being forwarded to the Minister for considerations (S.N. 5529) and on May 19 the Acting Secretary of the Interior wrote to Gandhiji recording the Government’s final acceptance of the satyagrahis’ demands. The Minister trusted that this acceptance would be regarded by the Asiatic community as “a final settlement of the questions involved”; vide Appendix, “E.M. Gorges’ Letter to Gandhiji”, 19-5-1911.

2 This does not appear to be the interview of April 19, 1911 (“Abstract of Interview with General Smuts”, 19-4-1911) for none of the issues discussed in this letter figured in that meeting. Gandhiji, however, mentions in his letter of May 8, 1911, to Polak that he went to Pretoria to see Smuts and met people on Thursday and Friday. It would be natural to suppose that these days were May 4 or 5. If this meeting did take place as is strongly suggested by the letter to Polak, no record of it is available.

3 A batch of 16 Indians was deported for the first time on April 14, 1909 and by June 5, 1909, about 29 had been deported.

4 In August 1907, H.O. Ally left the Transvaal since he wished neither to join the satyagraha campaign nor to register under Act 2 of 1907. Several others left about the same time for the same reasons.
The onus of proof of deportation under (a) and of leaving under (b) should fall on the applicant.

By adopting the above method, General Smuts' fear that the door may be opened to applicants who may have left South Africa for India years ago and may now set up a fictitious claim is set at rest.

I understand that not more than thirty Indians are likely to fall under (a) or (b), and that not more than 150 are likely to apply from South Africa.

It follows from the correspondence between us that those who have applied to the Registrar for registration under either the Act of 1907 or that of 1908, and have been rejected, cannot now reapply. But there are some in South Africa who applied for voluntary certificates before the Act of 1908 was passed, but who, having been rejected by the Registrar, did not apply after the Act of 1908. These men will now apply under the Act so as to be able to avail themselves, if necessary, of the right of appeal reserved under the Act of 1908.

Of the Chinese in South Africa, there are not more than 30, of whom all but two are in the Transvaal, these two being in Delagoa Bay.

I take it that registration will proceed at once. I venture to suggest that applications be not received after, say, the 31st December next.

May I point out the desirability of finally closing this matter, as some passive resistance prisoners are still in gaol who are to be recommended for discharge, and as I am most anxious, if I can, to close among ourselves further discussion of the interminable points that crop up pending a final announcement.

Yours etc.

[M.K. GANDHI]

From Indian Opinion, 27-5-1911, also photostat of draft in Gandhiji’s hand, in which the last paragraph is missing: S. N. 5529a

---

1 In his reply dated May 19, 1911, the Acting Secretary of the Interior estimated their number at 180, including Chinese and Indians; vide Appendix, “E.M. Gorges’ Letter to Gandhiji”, 19-5-1911.
DEAR MR. CHOTABHAI,

I am much obliged to you for your note of the 3rd instant enclosing a cheque for £300 in connection with your son’s case. As I have already informed you, I do not desire to make any personal use of your generous gift. It is my intention shortly to make over the Phoenix Farm, together with the machinery and the Press Buildings, which have been valued at £5,000, to trustees in trust for public purposes; and I propose, if I can induce our wealthy men to follow up your gift, to devote the money towards building a substantial school at Phoenix. Should, however, such support not be forthcoming, I propose to retain the sum to use, if required, for the objects of passive resistance, should its revival next year unfortunately become necessary.

Thanking you for your promise of co-operation in public work,

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

Indian Opinion, 13-5-1911

410. LETTER TO H.S.L. POLAK

Sunday night [May 7, 1911]

MY DEAR HENRY,

I have written a great deal. My right hand is tired. It is intensely cold. I am therefore trying the left hand. I had intended to give you a long letter but just as I commenced your letter, there was an interruption. I shall, therefore, be brief. Why feel grateful to me when I was bound to [do] what I could to contribute to your joint happiness. After all on that memorable boxing day (was it not), I gave Millie to you or you to Millie, so far as the outside world is

1 For details of the Chotabhai case, vide 2nd footnote of “Letter to E.F.C. Lane”, 22-4-1911
2 From the contents; vide also “Letter to Dr. Pranjivan Mehta”, 8-5-1911 concerned. It was at my instigation that you separated. It was nothing but my duty to bring you together as soon as the opportunity offered itself. No more therefore of thanksgiving. You do your duty and if I succeed in doing mine as well, we shall be fairly quits.

Now that you are there, I shall not write to Millie except when some special occasion demands it.

I have your promise that you will neither worry Sally nor Maud. They are both grown-up women and will not take even advice if not offered in a most tactful manner. I shall need their certificates before I say that you have at the end of your visit there, discharged your duty just as well as you did in India. I feel sure that you will not be impatient with the young Indians whom you will meet there.

Herewith a copy of translation of Harilal’s letter. What a fine boy and yet how mad! He had left details of his movements with Joseph with instructions to inform of them if he found me inquiring. He is in Delagoa Bay. I have wired to him asking him to wait there and to confer with me before leaving for anywhere else. I understand his desire is to bury himself somewhere in the Punjab and study there. He has wired saying he is writing to me. I shall therefore hear from him tomorrow.

Have not yet received final letter from Smuts.

With love to you all,

Yours,
Bhai

[PS.]

Monday

I have your radio message which I suppose you sent just to tease me. No news yet from Harilal but Joseph had a letter from him describing his journey to D’Bay.

From the original: Gandhi-Polak Correspondence. Courtesy : National Archives of India

---

1 Vide “Abstract of Interview with General Smuts”, 19-4-1911
May 8, 1911

MY DEAR POLAK,

Herewith your plate, also Mr. Cachalia’s authority\(^1\), draft for £116/9/-, and copy of a translation of Harilal’s letter. Pater’s letter will be, I take it, sent you by West\(^2\). You will have noticed that he did not understand your telegram. Cordes’ address is John H. Cordes Junior, 68 gr. Bleichen, Hamburg. I see that your passage to London will come to over £45, including what was paid on the luggage at Park. This does not include the expenses during the voyage, including gratuities. I, therefore, put down your passage at £55 as far as Waterloo. Here then is my estimate:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Description</th>
<th>Amount</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Passage to London</td>
<td>£ 55</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>May 20-Oct.15 at £50 per month</td>
<td>£ 250</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Passage to Bombay for you, Milly, Celie and the boys</td>
<td>£ 100</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Stay in India Nov.-March at £25</td>
<td>£ 125</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Cable expenses, etc.</td>
<td>£ 100</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Passage from India to South Africa</td>
<td>£ 60</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

£ 690

I, therefore, estimate £700 as the expenses. There may be a

---

\(^1\) The reference is to Cachalia’s letter to Polak authorizing him to represent African Indians in England, following the decision of the BIA meeting of April 27 to send him on deputation instead of Gandhiji and Cachalia.

\(^2\) Albert H. West. It was in Isaac’s vegetarian restaurant in Johannesburg, where Gandhiji met so many European colleagues of his, that he met West also. The latter in fact sought him out offering to nurse plague patients. Instead Gandhiji asked him to take charge of the printing press at Phoenix offering him only £10 a month for the task. From then on, this “God-fearing humane Englishman . . . remained a partner of my joys and sorrows” until Gandhiji left South Africa in 1914. He put the press at Phoenix, of which he became joint manager, on a secure foundation. Though not detailed for satyagraha work, he was arrested in 1913 for sheltering striking indentured Indians at Phoenix.

\(^3\) A German Theosophist who gave up a lucrative post to become a member of the Phoenix Settlement; was in charge of the school at Phoenix and also looked after the nursing work in the Colony; was at this time doing a year’s course at the Theosophical Society in Adyar under Mrs. Besant whom he greatly admired; later went to India to join Gandhiji at Sevagram where he died in 1960.
saving if you return earlier. Of the above amount, £44 has been spent here roughly for your passage, and £200 has been now sent to you on account of the deputation. I have deliberately calculated £50 for the expenses there, because during your stay the activity of the Committee will be greater, and so I have put down £25 instead of £18 per month, and that may enable Maud not to worry; and I have put down a larger amount for your private expenses also because of your being there, and that will be, I should say, £25. I think that you should be able to manage without unnecessary stinting. At the same time, if you find that the amounts are not enough, you can fall back upon the £100 for cables, etc., because my estimate is only rough, and you are by no means bound down to it. I have not got your account ready yet. It will be sent next week. The £16/9/- included in the draft represents the balance of the purses after deducting £20 sent to Milly, and £5/1/- your subscription to the Theosophical Society, to the Law Society, and £2 taken in Durban. But, if I have misunderstood your instructions, please let me know. I think that you told me that from the amount of the purses I should deduct the amount of the draft sent to Milly and the expenses incurred thereafter.

The Gold Law business will tax your energy and ability. I sent you under separate cover the Statutes of 1908 and the amendment to the Townships Act, 1909. The Klerkdorp people have put down, among only three of them, £150 towards your expenses. You will, therefore, realize their anxiety, as also the need for prompt work. Please give me details of all you do regarding the Gold Law for publication. You will be somewhat angry with me that I have not yet got the Natal petition ready. I could not manage it. I had to go to Pretoria all of a sudden to see the General, and, as you may imagine, Thursday and Friday were spent in interviewing people here. Smuts told me that he was going to give a favourable reply on all the points as soon as he was satisfied with reference to the number of passive resisters falling under question 2, that is, pre-war residents. He thought that my answer permitted of 300,000,000 applications from India, and his apprehension was not ill-founded. I have, therefore, defined more accurately whom I consider to be passive resisters outside South Africa. You will see my definition from the copy enclosed.\(^1\) The interview was long and apparently cordial. He was eager to meet us on every point. He certainly mentioned that there would be an unperceived diminution of the rights hitherto enjoyed by the Cape, that there would be a stringent education test for the Cape and Natal also. He is greatly desirous of passing a general Bill, and asked me to help him to solve the Free State difficulty. I can see no way out of it without first passing the provincial legislation. I hope to be able to tackle the Natal petition today. You have, I take it, Gregorowski’s opinion on the Gold Law. Khota’s case you will find reported in I.O on page 148, Vol. 1909. What we want is an amendment of the Gold Law, and suspension of operation of Section 130 thereof meanwhile.

\(^1\) Vide “Memorial to Secretary of State for Colonies”, 15-5-1911
\(^2\) Vide “Letter to E.F.C.Lane”, 4-5-1911

Yours sincerely,

[M. K. GANDHI]

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S. N. 5531

412. LETTER TO DR. PRANJIVAN MEHTA

TOLSTOY FARM,

Vaisakh Sud 10 [May 8, 1911]

DEAR SHRI PRANJIVAN,

Your two letters reached me this week.

I have held since 1899 the same views that you do about Theosophy. They pressed me hard that year to join the Society but I refused in no uncertain terms, saying that, though the Society’s rule respecting brotherhood appealed to me, I had no sympathy for its search for occult powers. I do not think that Mrs. Besant is a 1 Messrs Khotas & Co. had since 1898 been trading on a stand sublet to them by a white in Nigel, a mining area. In 1909, the Receiver of Revenues refused to renew their trading licence by virtue of Sections 92 and 130 of the Gold Law which forbade Asiaties from residing or trading in proclaimed area. On appeal, the transvaal Supreme Court disallowed the Government’s interpretation and ordered the Receiver to issue the licence.

2 The gift of £300 mentioned later in this letter was received by Gandhiji on May 4, 1911 (“Letter to A. E. Chotabhai”, 4-5-1911). In that year Vaisakh Sud 10 corresponds to May 8.

3 Annie Besant (1847-1933); an associate of Charles Bradlaugh; free thinker and a radical socialist, became president of Theosophical Society in 1907; founded Indian Home Rule League of which she became President in 1916; President of Indian National Congress, 1917, and interned for a time by Lord Pentland; advocated the cause of extreme nationalists in India after the Montagu Reforms; her works include: Autobiography, Religious Problem in India, and a translation of the Gita, etc. In a letter to Lord Chelmsford, Gandhiji ranked her “among the most powerful leaders of public opinion” in India.
hypocrite; she is credulous and is duped by Leadbeater. When an Englishman suggested to me to read Leadbeater’s The Life after Death, I flatly refused to do so as I had grown suspicious of him after reading his other writings. As to his humbug, I came to know of it later. All the same, I have drawn from Theosophy the lessons which seemed to me worth drawing. Blavatsky’s Key had made a good impression on me. Theosophy sent many Hindus inquiring into their own religion. It has performed the same service as Christianity has. Moreover, Theosophists believe in the same basic principles as we do, and therefore it is easy enough to come across good persons among them. Though there is no dearth of crooks at all levels from the highest to the lowest among the Vaishnav and other sects, we do find gems like Narasinh Mehta² and Bhojo Bhagat³ amongst them.

Ritch was a Theosophist. He urged me to become a member. Not only did I not become one, I helped him to be free from that humbug. Polak is a Theosophist, but he stays miles away from the practices and writings of Theosophists. The same is true of Kallenbach. When I was in India, I sent Gokaldas to the College⁴ at Benares. Then also I was disappointed. Even after wards, as long as I had not come to see the light, which I have now, that is, as long as I had not outgrown the fascination for modern education, I used to inquire about institutions like the Benares College and even wished to send the boys there, thinking that something was better than nothing.⁵ All that is over now.

Cordes, at Phoenix, is a staunch Theosophist. I have not yet been able to get him out of the hold of Theosophy. In himself, he appears to be a sincere man. He has gone to Adyar at present, against all persuasion. Being honest, he will see the the fraud that is there and turn his back on it, unless he is taken in. It is worth ascertaining what humbug prevails there safe under the cover of Mrs. Besant’s goodness. Her

---

1. Helena Petrovna Blavatsky (1831-91); born of aristocratic Russian parents, founded the Theosophical Society in 1875. The Society’s headquarters, set up at Adyar in 1879, addressed itself to the task of promoting a universal brotherhood and to studying comparative religion. She was controversial figure and many questioned “the spiritual phenomena she exhibited”. May 8, the day of her death is, however, commemorated by her many followers the world over as “white lotus day”.
2. A saint and poet of Gujarat
3. A medieval Gujarati poet
4. Central Hindu College at Benares founded by Annie Besant
5. Here Gandhiji uses a Gujarati saying, “It is better to have somebody one can call uncle than to have none at all.”
desire to pass off as the “Master” is understandable. One who runs after occult powers cannot but become so intoxicated. It is for these reasons that all our shastras have looked upon occult powers and Yogic attainments as unworthy pursuits. And that is the reason, I think, why *bhaktiyoga*¹ is regarded as superior to *hathayoga*².

Please read the accompanying letter³ from Harilal⁴. He had told Joseph Royeppen everything and asked him to inform me as well, if necessary. That is how I came to know more about his movements. He is at present in Delagoa Bay, and has replied to my telegram from there. He did not like going to England with your money and under any binding. As Joseph tells, me, he wants to go to the Punjab and study there in peace. His letter is all ignorance. Even the idea of going to the Punjab, in the absence of more details, seems no better. But I shall know more in a couple of days. He did a lot of thinking in gaol. Moreover, he witnessed a great transformation in my life and saw my as well. All these things have, it appears, influenced his mind unconsciously. I think his morals are sound. I have, therefore, no his account. I have told him that he ought not to have taken the step he has,⁵ without my knowledge. I shall give more information next week.

Six educated satyagrahis from Natal have been given permission to settle here. I think we might send them for studies in England for a year expense if they would [agree to] spend the remaining part of their life, or at least ten years, in such public work as we suggest.
There are two or three of them who would [agree]. Even more might come forward. I want your consent for sending them [abroad]. If the idea appeals to you, cable just “Gandhi-Johannesburg Yes” and I shall understand. Not that they will leave immediately. I am discussing the matter with them. I am inclined to send them if they agree and if I am satisfied. My idea is that, for the present, such persons should be trained at Phoenix in agriculture and weaving; they should learn press

¹ The way of devotion
² The way of psycho-physical control
³ Not available
⁴ Gandhiji’s eldest son. While still 20, he went to jail as a satyagrahi in the Transvaal campaign of 1908 at his father’s instance; vide “Trial of Harilal Gandhi and Others”, 28-7-1908; “Johannesburg Letter”, 1-8-1908 & “Trial of Harilal Gandhi
—II”, 10-8-1908. Gandhiji regarded it as a part of Harilal’s education; ibid.
⁵ That is, his leaving home without informing Gandhiji work also. When they have been so trained it may be possible to send then to India. I feel that a similar programme should be taken up in India, too. It will be, I think, easier to manage it here, though it might prove a little more expensive.

Young Indians are able to exert greater force of character here. The control which Purshottamdas does, and can, exercise over his senses here would certainly be impossible in India. Likewise, the freedom his wife enjoys and her unconstrained manner of living will not, I think, be possible at present among our class in India. I keep thinking that it would be well if a few persons were trained here thoroughly. Those who bind themselves to work for ten years will have to be maintained by us. Please go through the enclosed letter from Purshottamdas. The ideas mentioned in it are being implemented independent of me. West and others have followed their own judgment in putting these into practice. I worked very hard on Chotabhai’s case. He wanted to give me something in return. I refused to take anything for myself. He has now given me £300 to be spent as I think best. Having had his amount to start with, I intend to go begging for more and, if I get some, to have a building put up for the school at Phoenix. Failing in this, I feel inclined to use the amount for promoting the cause of satyagraha in some manner.

Polak has gone to England. We have started a subscription for him locally and decided to collect as much as £700. With this, he may stay in England up to October, leave for India in the middle of that month, accompanied by Mrs. Polak, attend the Congress, stay on there till the Bill to be enacted here next year is passed and return soon after. By that time, it should be March next year. The expenditure on all this, including the passage, is put at £725. If, while in India, he stays with friends, something will be saved from this. I expect you will invite them to Rangoon for some time. You must have noticed that Mrs. Polak’s habits are not as simple as her husband’s.

If I can get some time during the next six or eight months, I propose to give my attention to farming or weaving. Purshottamdas has been to a factory to see a handloom. I have given him permission

1 Purshottandas Desai; for some time in charge of the school at Phoenix
2 Not available
4 Ibid.
to buy one of the same type. If he does I will ask you to meet the cost. It will be necessary for some time to spend money on all these ventures. I wish to have a free hand, so far as you are concerned.

I see that I can make at least £200 if I forget all else and only practice. But I am resolved not to have anything to do with that. Most of the work will go to Ritch. I have given him a seat in my own office and he has already started work. He is anxious to earn money for the sake of his family. His desire will be satisfied by this arrangement and the community will save £25 which it gives as a monthly allowance to his family.

The final letter from Smuts has not yet been received. But it will come. So I believe.

_Bande Mataram from,

MOHANDAS_

From the Gujarati original in Gandhiji’s hand: C.W. 5084. Courtesy: C. K. Bhatt

413. FRAGMENT OF LETTER TO MAGANLAL GANDHI

[About May 8, 1911]¹

. . . But I also see that . . . was . . . that is why . . . I hardly ever interfere. I propose to visit Phoenix next month. We shall then discuss things further. Please do nothing about the cow for the present. Sam¹ has made a request [to that effect]. The idea of saving an hour from press work is excellent. This is what will have to be done. Everyone should have his working hours in the press cut down, the remaining hours being devoted exclusively to farming. That is to say, if everyone has to devote nine hours to the common tasks, eight of these ¹ The first few pages of this letter are missing and the only one available is damaged at places. From the contents, however, it would appear that it was addressed to Maganlal Gandhi.

² It is his “Letter to Dr. Pranjivan Mehta”, May 8, 1911, the preceding item, that Gandhiji first mentions that Harilal has left home without informing him. This letter was, therefore, presumably written about the same date.

³ “Sam” was Govindsami, a machine foreman in the International Printing Press at Phoenix and a _shikari_.

VOL. 11 : 11 APRIL, 1910 - 12 JULY, 1911  397
hours or at the least . . . the rest . . . similarly in other . . . since we have founded...shall become shoemakers, blacksmiths, etc., and order its affairs as in a village.

Please ask Purshottamdas to take the money spent on painting and debit the amount to the building account. I shall write more later.

Harilal has taken a most extraordinary step. The fault lies with me. Perhaps one may blame the circumstances. In any case, Harilal is not to blame.

Blessings from

MOHANDAS

From the Gujarati original in Gandhiji’s hand: C.W. 5086. Courtesy: Radhabehn Choudhri

414. CABLE TO PRANTIKA PARISHAD

May 9, 1911

THANKS. YOU SHALL SEE STRUGGLE CARRIED ON ANY COST MOTHERLAND’S ASSISTANCE.

[M. K. GANDHI]

From the Gujarati translation reproduced in Gujarati, 14-5-1911

415. MR. CHOTABHAI’S GIFT

Mr. Chotabhai, of Krugersdorp, whose name has become famous throughout South Africa for the plucky stand he made against the Union Government when they unsuccessfully attempted to drive away his son from the Transvaal, has generously presented Mr. Gandhi with a cheque for £300 for his work in connection with the case. As is his wont nowadays, Mr. Gandhi has declined to make any personal use of the gift. Of his intention to convert the whole of his Phoenix property into a trust, we will say nothing for the time being.

1 This was sent to acknowledge the congratulations addressed to Gandhiji by the Madras Provincial Conference (presumably the Madras Mahajan Sabha) on the success of his passive resistance campaign.

2 Vide “Letter to A. E. Chotabhai”, 4-5-1911 and “Letter to Dr. Pranjivan Mehta”, 8-5-1911
But we wish to draw the attention of our readers to Mr. Gandhi’s request for donations to supplement Mr. Chotabhai’s gift, in order to enable him to build a school on the Phoenix ground. It is well known that in South Africa we have no scholastic institution worthy of the name. We, therefore, trust that our wealthy and liberal-minded countrymen will respond to Mr. Gandhi’s call.

Indian Opinion, 13-5-1911.

416. LETTER TO H.S.L. POLAK

May 15, 1911

MY DEAR HENRY,

You will this week have the Natal petition.¹ The Cape petition you have taken with you, I imagine.

Smutts has not yet replied to my last letter and we cannot call it a final settlement unless we have his final letter.

Harilal returned on Saturday. He is too unsettled to be able to [do] anything here. He is now going back. He will go to India and there search for knowledge.

My mind is a perfect blank just now. I can think of nothing to write to you upon.

Yours sincerely

BHAI

From the original : Gandhi-Polak Correspondence. Courtesy : National Archives of India

¹ Vide “Memorial to Secretary of State for Colonies”, 15-5-1911. Referring to it in his letter to the addressee dated May 8, 1911 (ibid), Gandhiji says that he hopes “to tackle the Natal petition today”.

VOL. 11 : 11 APRIL, 1910 - 12 JULY, 1911 399
417. MEMORIAL TO SECRETARY OF STATE FOR COLONIES

[Durban,]
May 15, 1911

The Memorial of Dawad Mahomed, Dada Osman and Mahomad Cassim Anglia, in their capacity of President and Joint Honorary Secretaries respectively of the Natal, Indian Congress

humbly sheweth that

1. Your Memorialists, at a meeting of the Committee of the Natal Indian Congress, representing the Indian population of the Province of Natal, in the Union of South Africa, held on the 28th day of April, 1911, were authorized and instructed respectfully to submit the following humble representation regarding the grievances of the Indian Colonists residing in this Province.

Immigration Restriction

2. Your Memorialists have read with satisfaction the correspondence issued recently in the Transvaal, announcing the temporary arrangement that has been arrived at between the Indian residents of the Transvaal and the Union Government. Your Memorialists venture respectfully to remind you that the painful struggle that has been carried on during the last four years by the Transvaal Indians has been watched with the closest interest and the utmost sympathy by the Indians of this Province, who have given it moral and material support. The Indians of Natal have cordially shared the determination of their Transvaal brethren to offer the utmost resistance to legislation differentiating against Indians as a race.
and they will await the fulfilment of the official undertaking of the Union Government to substitute for the present racial immigration law of the Transvaal a measure applying legally to all races alike, and the repeal of the Transvaal Act No. 2 of 1907, except for the preservation of the rights of minors, in the next session of the Union Parliament.

3. Your Memorialists desire respectfully to express grave apprehension, however, regarding the general Immigration Bill that they understand is to be introduced in the Union Parliament next session, as they have reason to believe that an attempt will be made to curtail the existing rights of the Natal Indian community. Your Memorialists respectfully venture to urge that His Majesty’s Government will most carefully watch the progress of immigration legislation in South Africa with a view to preservation of existing Indian rights, especially the rights of entry into this Province of the wives and minor children of domiciled Indians, and to receive certificates of domicile as a matter of right, where claimants can prove statutory domicile to the satisfaction of the Minister. Your Memorialists respectfully remind you that the present Natal immigration laws define the duration of residence within the Province constituting domicile, but that the Union Immigration Bill that has just been withdrawn contains no definitive provision. In order, therefore, to avoid arbitrary administrative action, resulting in the unnecessary arousing of ill-feeling between the Administration and the Indian community, your Memorialists respectfully submit that the new Union Immigration Bill should define domicile, the period of residence in the Provinces of Natal and the Cape Colony, constituting statutory domicile, being, say, three years, as it is at present in this Province.

4. Your Memorialists respectfully submit further that the new education test proposed, being of an arbitrary nature, will result in the virtual exclusion of Indian immigration into this Province. This, in the humble opinion of your Memorialists, will result in great hardship to the resident Indian community, many members of which conduct important commercial transactions with business firms in India, in which special knowledge is often required. The new education test, however, designed to exclude all except a limited number of highly educated Indians of professional attainments, will prevent the resident Indian community from being able to avail itself of

---

1 Vide “Natal Petition to Union Assembly”, 9-3-1911
2 This was eventually conceded in the Indians’ Relief Act of 1914.
facilities hitherto enjoyed, and your Memorialists, therefore, respectfully request that, before the new Union Immigration Bill comes before the Union Parliament, His Majesty’s Government will ask for guarantees that temporary permits, extensible from time to time, should be issued to confidential clerks and managers, in order to avoid great injury that would otherwise result to Indian commercial interests.¹ The number of such temporary permits issued may not exceed annually the number of Indian immigrants who last year passed the education test of the present Natal Acts, and your Memorialists venture respectfully to remind you that the extension of such facilities, whilst being much appreciated by the Natal Indian community, will not result in any permanent addition to the resident Indian population. Your Memorialists further note that, as stated in the Parliamentary paper issued during the last session of the Union Parliament, under the education test proposed in the defunct Bill, the number of Indians who were allowed to pass was to be about twelve.² As six was the number approximately conceded for the Transvaal, which carries a possible Indian population of 15,000 and a resident Indian population of not more than 8,000, twelve for the whole Union was altogether too small, regard being had to the fact that the Indian population of the Cape is not less than 15,000 and that of Natal not less than 150,000, including indentured Indians, in proportion to the numbers, there should be for the whole of the Union 72 new Indian immigrants of culture, but your Memorialists would be satisfied if it were understood that 50 British Indians of culture in any one year would be allowed to enter under any education test that might be proposed.

DEALERS’ LICENSES ACT

5. This Act has proved most mischievous in its operation against British Indian merchants and traders of Natal³ and, notwithstanding the slight amendment made partially restoring the inherent right of appeal against the decision of Licensing Officers or Boards to the Supreme Court, ¹ before any sense of security is given to them the Act will require fundamental alterations. Difficulty is constantly experienced in having trade licences transferred from place to place. The Licensing Officers take up very often an uncompromising attitude and only recently a resolution was moved by a member of the Natal Provincial Council-designed to deprive British Indian merchants even of exiting licences.²

NATAL TOWNSHIPS

6. Your Memorialists invite your attention to the petition submitted to His Excellency the Governor-in-Council in this matter. Your Memorialist are not yet aware of the decision of His Excellency, but they respectfully trust that a right hitherto enjoyed by the British Indians of Natal will not be now taken away.

INDENTURED LABOUR

7. Your Memorialists take this opportunity of tendering respectful thanks of the British Indian community of Natal for the decision to stop the supply of indentured labour to Natal from India.³ Your Memorialists welcome this decision not only because the attitude of the Europeans generally in South Africa is hostile towards legitimate Indian aspirations, but also because, in your Memorialists’ humble opinion, the system of indenture is in itself inherently bad, and savours of a state bordering on slavery. Your Memorialists feel sure that most of the troubles that British Indians throughout South Africa have had to undergo have been largely due to an artificial increase in the Indian population of South Africa, brought about by the introduction of this class of labour. Your Memorialists respectfully

¹ Vide “Natal Licensing Act”, 11-12-1909
² On April 4, Hulett introduced a resolution in the Natal Provincial Council requiring the Union Parliament to delegate to the Council “the power of granting or withholding all trading licences in the Province”. In his own words, Natal ought to have “the right to say who should trade or who should not trade”, and his object was to rearm the Natal Government with powers sought to be conferred on it by the new Natal Licensing Bill (“Natal Bills”, 9-5-1908 & “New Natal Bills”, 16-5-1908) which had been disallowed by the Imperial Government; vide “London”, before 18-9-1909.
³ Vide “The Indian Council and Indentured Labour”, 5-3-1910 & “A Momentous Decision”, 7-1-1911 submit that the tax of £3 per year which is exacted from those who have finished their indentures, whether they be males or females, and even their children, is a cruel and tyrannical imposition; and now that the supply of indentured labour from India is to be stopped, there would appear to be no justification whatsoever for the existence of this imposition. Under it men have been persecuted, women’s chastity has been at stake, and Indian youths have had their lives blasted. This is a tax which, in the humble opinion of your Memorialists, requires total abolition in the interests alike of humanity and the British Empire. Your Memorialists here desire to remark that the relief that was supposed to be granted by a slight amendment of the Act imposing the tax, in connection with women, has almost entirely failed in its purpose.

CONCLUSION

8. In conclusion, your Memorialists respectfully pray that His Majesty’s Government will give that consideration to the matters hereinbefore referred to that they deserve, and that the status of British Indians under the Union will be placed on a just, equitable and satisfactory footing, consistently with the declarations made from time to time by His Majesty’s Ministers regarding equality of treatment irrespective of race, colour or creed.

DAWAD MAHOMED
DADA OSMAN
MAHOMED CASSIM ANGLIA

Indian Opinion, 20-5-1911

418. LETTER TO MAGANLAL GANDHI

Vaisakh Vad 2 [May 15, 1911]

CHI. MAGAN LAL,

Herewith Chhaganlal’s letters. Many persons have been agitated in their minds by the Harilal episode. I can well understand the varied feelings surging within you. Please consider this: If 1 It was in 1911 that Harilal left his father’s home, returned after a trip to Delagoa Bay, and left again after discussing the matter with his father—this time for India. In that year, Vaisakh Vad 2 corresponds to May 15.

Harilal’s or Manilal’s or Ba’s being unhappy with you, or their bitter words, make you think of leaving, you will be behaving as one separate from us and I shall find it difficult to do my duty to them and to you. Suppose you feel that Khushalbhai is better disposed towards Chhaganlal, or suppose he is so in fact, should you leave for that reason? Alternatively, if appears that he is better disposed towards you, must leave then and injure Chhaganlal?

If you decide on leaving, Harilal’s and Manilal’s best interests cannot but suffer. We are engaged in a mighty task. We are seeking the ultimate Truth. I do not claim that we aim at discovering something entirely new. We are only experimenting in the manner of living appropriate for one who aspires to realize such knowledge in his own being. We wish to clear away the layers of earth deposited by the white ants over the years. In the process, we are bound to come up against difficulties. God will assuredly remove them all, our intentions being good. Your duty, at this juncture, is to observe what happens, unconcerned. The responsibility is entirely mine. I alone will be to blame for any false step of mine. It is possible that it may put you in danger for a time. But the fruits of my error will be for me alone to taste. It can do you no harm if you go on doing your duty, placing your faith in me.

Harilal returned this morning. I have always believed that he will never take a step which he knows to be wrong. Now I believe that all the more. I am waiting to see what he does next.

Blessings from

MOHANDAS

From the Gujarati original in Gandhiji’s hand: C.W.5085. Courtesy: Radhabehn Choudhri

1 Gandhiji’s second son.
2 Kasturbai Gandhi (1869-1944); taught as a volunteer in a primary school in Indian plantations around Champaran; went to jail several times as a satyagrahi, once in South Africa and, later, twice in India. In his reference to her, Gandhiji speaks of her as a spirited and courageous person; for touching incidents in their married life as narrated by Gandhiji, vide An Autobiography, Part I, Ch. IV & Part IV Ch. X.
3 Gandhiji’s cousin and father of Chhaganlal and Maganlal Gandhi. Gandhiji wrote to him occasionally; vide, for example, “Letter to Meghjibhai Gandhi and Khushalchand Gandhi”, 14-5-1908
419. LETTER TO ACTING PRIVATE SECRETARY TO MINISTER OF INTERIOR

[JOHANNESBURG, ]
May 18, 1911

THE ACTING PRIVATE SECRETARY TO THE MINISTER OF THE INTERIOR

DEAR SIR,

With reference to the provisional settlement of the Asiatic difficulty, will you please place the following before General Smuts?

Pending General Smuts’ reply to my letter of the 29th ultimo, passive resisters have to remain in a state of suspense. They have not resumed their ordinary occupations [s]. Mr. Joseph Royeppen is still in Johannesburg awaiting General Smuts’ reply, and other passive resisters are similarly vegetating. Those who have purposely remained out of work still continue in the same state. As General Smuts is aware, passive resistance prisoners still remain in gaol although virtually the settlement has gone through.

Moreover, friends in London and India have not yet been informed of the settlement being actually completed. And, in view of the approaching Imperial Conference, we here are anxious to give definite information to the friends in England. May I, therefore, request an early reply to my letter? Could you please telephone tomorrow some definite information?

I remain,
Yours faithfully,
M. K. GANDHI

From Indian Opinion, 27-5-1911; also photostat of draft in Gandhiji’s hand:
S.N. 5532.

1 As is evident from the last sentence of the letter, Gandhiji was in Johannesburg at the time.

2 Vide “Letter to E. F. C. Lane”, 29-4-1911. The Acting Secretary of the Interior sent two replies to this letter of Gandhiji’s as well as to a subsequent communication dated May 4 (“Letter to E. F. C. Lane”, 4-5-1911) first a long letter dated May 19, followed by a telegram on May 20; vide Appendices “E. M. Gorges’ Letter to Gandhiji”, 19-5-1911 & “Telegram to Gandhiji from Secretary for interior”, 20-5-1911.
407

420. LETTER TO MAGANLAL GANDHI

Vaisakh Vad 5 [May 18, 1911]¹

CHI. MAGAN LAL,

I have sent Thakar² your letter about him. This happens because your minds are estranged. We know that Thakar is by nature suspicious.

_Gulliver’s Travels_ contains so effective a condemnation, in an ironic vein, of modern civilization that the book deserves to be read again and again. It is a very well-known book in the English language. Children can read it with enjoyment, so simple it is; and the wise ones get dizzy trying to comprehend its hidden significance. In Brobdingnag, Gulliver tumbled as low as he had risen high in Lilliput. Even in Lilliput, he has represented the tiny people as possessing a few powers which were superior to his own, that is to say, to those of normal people.

You should now read Carpenter’s _Civilization: Its Cause and Cure_; I shall send it tomorrow. Admittedly, Chhaganlal experienced, some difficulty owing to his inadequate knowledge of English. Even so, if we know the subject on which we wish to write or speak, we usually find the words. The deficiency in your knowledge of English will never be made good without a visit to England. I see that even the short stay in England has done Chhaganlal a lot of good. He was, moreover, troubled by an illness, so that he had to face further difficulties. The experience he gained will be very useful. I expect to be there now in no more than a few days. I am planning to leave in the beginning of June. I shall be able to let you know more positively if I get Smuts’ reply. It is expected any day.

It is just as well that Harilal has left. He was much unsettled in mind. He has assured me that he does not in the least resent the arrangements I had made regarding Phoenix.³ He bears no ill will towards any of you. He was angry with me, really. He gave vent to all his pent-up feelings on Monday evening. He feels that I have kept all the four boys very much suppressed, that I did not

¹ It was in 1911 that Harilal, referred to in this letter, left his father’s home in the Transvaal and sailed for India. In that year _Vaisakh Vad 5_ corresponds to May 18.
² A worker in the press at Phoenix.
³ Vide “Letter to A. E. Chotabhai”, 4-5-1911 respect their wishes at any time, that I have treated them as of no account, and that I have often been hard-hearted. He made this charge against me with the utmost courtesy and seemed very hesitant as he did so. In this, he had no thought of money at all in his mind. It was all about my general behaviour. Unlike other fathers, I have not admired my sons or done anything specially for them, but always put them and Ba last; such was the charge. He seemed to me to have calmed down after this outburst. I pointed out his error in believing what he did. He saw it partly. What remains, he will correct only when he thinks further. He has now left with a calm mind. He is resolved to lean more about those things on account of which I was displeased [with him]. He is strongly inclined to study Sanskrit. Thinking that, since Gujarati is our language, his education should for the most part be in Gujarat, I have advised Harilal to stay in Ahmedabad. I believe that is what he will do. However, I have left him free. I feel it will all turn out well.

Blessings from

MOHANDAS

From the Gujarati original in Gandhiji’s hand: C.W. 5087. Courtesy: Radhabehn Choudhri

421. LETTER TO MAGANLAL GANDHI

Monday [After May 18, 1911]

CHI. MAGANLAL,

I send you Chi, Chhaganlal’s letter, etc. Dr. Mehta also sent me a copy of what he (Chhaganlal) had written. You need not be sorry because you do not have a good knowledge of English. It is not our 1 Mrs. Vogl’s Indian Bazaar mentioned in the postscript was held once in 1910 and again in 1911, but from the reference to Harilal Gandhi, who finally left his father’s home for India between May 15 and May 18, 1911, (letters to Maganlal Gandhi, 15-5-1911; 18-5-1911) it is clear that the letter was written in 1911. The Thakar incident and Maganlal’s projected visit to England are both discussed in this letter as well as in the preceding item. The sequence of events would suggest that this letter was written later. In the May 18 letter Maganlal Gandhi’s knowledge of the English language is discussed in the context of some remark which Chhaganlal Gandhi appears to have made, and Maganlal Gandhi had evidently brought up the subject. In this letter, Gandhiji has heard more of this from Dr. Pranjivan Mehta to whom Chhaganal Gandhi evidently addressed this remark.

language. We may try to express our ideas in that language as best as we can. This is just for your consolation, not to suggest that one should not try to be proficient in it, It is to get that proficiency and the experience of the life there that you have to go to England. Apart from this there is nothing else to be gained [by a visit to England]. We shall fix up your going as soon as you are ready.

I do not write more about Harilal as you will know everything from my letter to Manilal. What does Harilal Thakar say in the enclosed letter?

Blessings from

MOHANDAS

[PS.]

Please remember that Santok\\textsuperscript{2} and Ani\\textsuperscript{3} have to sew something and send it for Mrs.Vogl’s\\textsuperscript{4} Bazaar\\textsuperscript{5}.

From the Gujarati original in Gandhiji’s hand: C.W. 5090. Courtesy: Radhabehn Choudhri

422. LETTER TO MINISTER OF INTERIOR

Johannesburg,

May 19, 1911

SIR,

I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of even date.

With reference to paragraph “C” thereof if you will re-read my letter of the 4th instant, you will see that the qualifications of the 180 Asiatic passive resisters therein mentioned are not restricted

---

1 Not available
2 Wife of Maganlal Gandhi
3 Wife of Purshottamdas Desai
4 Wife of Vogl, a draper. The Vogis sympathized with the Indian cause and Mrs. Vogl took a keen interest in Indian women, conducting classes for them; vide “Letter to the Vogls”, 1-2-1908.
5 Opened on November 15, 1911, by William Hosken
6 The reply to this letter was sent by telegram as requested by Gandhiji; vide Appendix “Telegram to Gandhiji from Secretary for interior”, 20-5-1911
7 Vide Appendix, “E. M. Gorges’ Letter to Gandhiji”, 19-5-1911
8 Vide “Letter to E. F. C. Lane”, 4-5-1911
as you have restricted them in said paragraph. The number (180) included in addition to the class you mention those who never were able to apply under the voluntary system or any of the Asiatic laws. The community will feel grateful for the concession regarding 3 educated Mahomedans.

The absence of any disclaimer in your letter of the interpretation of the provisional settlement as set forth in my letter of the 29th ultimo, I construe to be an endorsement thereof by the Hon. the Minister.

There never has been any request for the release of those who may have been convicted of having, or of having used, forged certificates. Such people have never been claimed as passive resisters.

As the Association has to advise, by cable, friends in England and India as to the situation, may I request a telegraphic reply on receipt hereof?

I have, etc.,
M. K. GANDHI

From Indian Opinion, 27-5-1911; also photostat of draft in Ritch’s hand with emendations by Gandhiji: S.N.5534.

423. LETTER TO G.K. GOKHALE

JOHANNESBURG,
May 19, 1911

DEAR PROFESSOR GOKHALE,

I do not know indeed whether, after your cablegram inquiring about the now defunct Immigration Bill, you expected me to write to you regularly. I have always refrained from inflicting letters

1 This, as is clear from the reply (Appendix, “Telegram to Gandhiji from Secretary Interior”, 20-5-1911) to the letters, refers to those who had acquired domiciliary rights in the Transvaal by virtue of three years’ residence before the Boer War. These rights constituted an important issue in the 1908 campaign. These were fervently insisted on by Indians and eventually conceded by Smuts; vide “Letter to General Smuts”, 13-6-1908; “Letter to the Press”, 22-6-1908; “Letter to Colonial Secretary”, 6-6-1908; “Letter to A. Cartwright”, 14-7-1908 & “Letter to A. Cartwright”, 27-7-1908.

2 The draft (S.N.5534) from Gandhiji’s file, our other source for this letter, has “4th instant”. This date, as a note in the margin indicates, was subsequently corrected over the telephone to “29th ultimo”; vide Appendix, “Telegram to Gandhiji from Secretary for Interior”, 20-5-1911.

THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
on you, being personally aware of the many other calls upon your time. Mr. Polak brought my knowledge up to date by telling me that, when he last saw you, you were, if possible, much busier than you used to be when I had the privilege of staying with you in Calcutta. But I feel that it is necessary for me to give you a review of the situation here, at periodic intervals. Whilst I naturally consider that without passive resistance during the four years nothing whatsoever could have been done, I am quite certain that the efforts made by the public in India under your guidance and Mr. Polak’s wonderful work there and Mr. Ritch’s in England have very materially hastened the end of our troubles; but we have to fight such a stubborn enemy, that ceaseless watchfulness is absolutely necessary. I am not unaware of the fact that the gaining of theoretical equality in the immigration legislation will not have visibly altered for the better our material condition here; but the struggle has knit us together in a wonderful manner, and it has undoubtedly secured for us an honourable hearing. The community has gained confidence in itself. We are, therefore, only now free to devote our attention to the existing local legal disabilities affecting not so much our honour as a nation but the material position of the settlers themselves. For instance, the prohibition to own landed property in the Transvaal must be removed;
the disability as to using tram-cars is too galling to be tolerated for any length of time; the diabolical attempt being made through the operation of the obscure section\(^2\) in the recently passed Gold Law of the Transvaal must be frustrated at any cost if the Indian traders are to be left undisturbed in possession of their premises and their business.
So much for the Transvaal. In Natal, the inhuman annual tax exacted from freed indentured Indians, their wives, and their little children, male and female, is a burden that cannot but oppress the conscience of every Indian who has any knowledge of the tax. The Dealers’ Licenses Act of Natal, in spite of the slight amendment made in it recently, is like a cloud threatening to burst upon the community at any moment. And, at the Cape, similar statute threatens the existence

\(^1\) Gandhiji stayed with Gokhale in 1901 in Calcutta.

\(^2\) Section 130 under which Europeans were forbidden to sublet Stands to Coloured persons in proclaimed areas. In his representation to the Transvaal Government in 1908 (“Letter to Colonial Secretary”, Before 25-4-1908 & “Petition to Transvaal Legislative Assembly”, 15-6-1908) against the draft Bill, Gandhiji had not foreseen any difficulties under this clause and was concerned with provisions affecting Asiatics more directly.

VOL. 11 : 11 APRIL, 1910 - 12 JULY, 1911 411
of Indian traders; and a clause in its immigration law makes the right of domicile possessed by Indian settlers a mockery by compelling them, in the event of their absence from the Cape, to carry a permit which is really a document giving leave of absence whose breach would cancel the right of domicile. It will be too much to expect you to read thememorials submitted or being submitted to the Secretary of State for the Colonies in these matters, but perhaps you will ask one of your workers to study them, and then take what steps you may consider necessary. These will be found in Indian Opinion.

About the beginning of November, Mr. and Mrs. Polak will be in India, when, of course, Mr. Polak will be able to give you all the assistance you will need. Whilst there is little doubt that the Provisional Settlement will go through, we are yet awaiting a final reply from General Smuts. All the passive resisters are being warned to keep themselves in readiness, in the event of General Smuts’ promise not being fulfilled next year. Tolstoy Farm is, therefore, still being continued, but every effort is being made to use the passive resistance funds most sparingly. I am preparing an account to the end of April of disbursements, which I shall embody in a public letter to Mr. Ratan Tata, reviewing the position. The expenses of Mr Polak’s tour are being raised locally.

Hoping that you are keeping well,

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat of the typewritten original: G.N. 3802

424. LETTER TO KNOX

[JOHANNESBURG,]
May 19, 1911

DEAR MR. KNOX,

I must apologize to you for not sending you the article in Indian Opinion you wanted. The same week that you telephoned, I had the file of Indian Opinion searched, but the article could not be

1 Vide “Petition to Secretary of State for Colonies”, 1-5-1911 and “Memorial to Secretary of State for Colonies”, 15-5-1911.

2 Gandhiji did this on April 1, 1912.

3 A European sympathizer of the Indian cause in South Africa traced. As I do not possess an up-to-date index, it is somewhat difficult to trace it. I endeavoured to get you on the telephone but without success. Since then the matter has escaped me. I have now your reminder. During the two days that Mr. Polak was here on his way to London, I asked him whether he remembered the date on which the appreciation was published. He gave me an approximate date which, however, did not prove correct, but he also told me that perhaps the enclosed might suit your purpose. It belongs to Mr.
Kallenbach. After use, will you kindly return it to me?

Yours sincerely,

[M. K. GANDHI]

From a photostat of the typewritten office copy: S.N. 5535

425. A WORTHY OBJECT

We draw the attention of our readers to the brief report in our Transvaal Notes of a meeting\(^1\) of the Hamidia Islamic Society with reference to the proposal to raise funds for supporting the project for erecting a mosque in London and for a Mahomedan University at Aligarh. We need hardly state that both the projects are laudable. The erection of a mosque in London would be but a tardy performance of a sacred duty, and the establishment of a University at Aligarh, if properly conducted, can only advance the cause of unity between the two great sections of the population of India.

Indian Opinion, 20-5-1911

426. A LICENSING SCANDAL

We reproduced in our issue of the 6th instant the report of the licensing appeal heard before the Durban Town Council on behalf of the Natal Indian Traders, Ltd.\(^2\) Our readers are aware

\(^1\) Held on May 14, 1911

\(^2\) Messers Natal Indian Traders, Ltd., had appealed to the Durban Town Council against the Licensing Officer’s refusal to transfer D. K. Patel’s trading licence in their favour. The Licensing Officer justified his decision on grounds of expediency and Whites’ right of self-preservation in the face of Asiatic competition in trade. He argued that while, in consequence, a partnership concern would have perpetual right of succession, a licence issued to an individual terminated at his demise or retirement. The Council upheld the Licensing Officer’s decision. Indian Opinion, 6-5-1911.
that this Company is a joint-stock business, and is composed very largely of Colonial-born Indians. It is an attempt for the first time made by this body of specially deserving men, to whom Natal is the only home and India exists in the imagination as a place from which their parents came. This Company has a nominal capital of £6,000, and has over 480 registered shareholders. We do not know what future awaits this new corporation, though, if we may state a truism, its future will largely depend upon the corporate ability, energy and above all, interest shown by the members. Anyhow, its effort to make of itself a success has been checked in so far as it can be by the Licensing Officer for the Borough of Durban. He has declined to transfer an existing licence in favour of the Company. There is here no question of adding to the number of already existing licences held by British Indians. The reasons given for his refusal are so preposterous, arbitrary, unjust and heartless that they will bear repetition in this column, although they also appeared in the report we have referred to. The Licensing Officer states:

In my opinion it would be unwise to transfer an existing licence to a large partnership concern which will not determine, as any privately owned business does with the death or retirial of the principal—this Traders Company will apparently have perpetual right of succession—as members can come and go—most of them appear to have a very small holding in the concern.

What a Licensing Officer could have to say against a perpetual right of succession we fail to see, but, of course, Mr. Molyneux, the Officer in question, is here referring to Indian businesses only, which he has assumed it to be his duty to curtail as much as and whenever he can. He has enunciated also the principle that all Indian businesses must end with the death or retirial of the present owners, thus contemplating a forced sale of such businesses and a consequent heavy loss. In his speech before the Council—by the way, an extraordinary procedure to be adopted by Licensing Officers, to take up a partisan standpoint and to be allowed to speak in defence thereof—Mr. Molyneux sought to justify his despotic action as fair on the ground of self-preservation, that is, of the Europeans residing in the Borough of Durban. Whatever that much misunderstood doctrine may mean, the Licensing Officer has in this instance entirely ignored the fact that, after all, this Company’s business is largely connected with Indian custom. I can only hope that the 480 members of this Company will not take lying down this attempt to throttle it on the threshold of its career, and that every member of it will resent it not only as a cowardly assault upon his personal rights, but also upon his honour as a British citizen within the Union.

Indian Opinion, 20-5-1911

427. LETTER TO MINISTER OF INTERIOR

May 20, 1911

SIR,

I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your telegram of even date in reply to my letter of the 19th instant. I beg to express my thanks for the promptness with which my request for a telegraphic reply was met and for the evident frankness thereof . . .

I am authorized by the Association to signify acceptance of the provisional settlement and, in doing so, to add that the correspondence subsequent to the letters exchanged between Mr. Lane and myself of the 22nd April last is to be taken as not in any way abating the proposals set forth in my said letter.

The list of those who will be intitled to relief under the settlement is being prepared and will be sent at an early date.

The following are the names of the passive resisters still undergoing imprisonment: C.F.J. Frank, Lee Kong, Luk Nan Dickson, Ho Loaw, Sam You, Chong Ah Kie, Wo Kim Ah Wy, Ismail Essack and Louis Benjamin. They are either at the Fort or at Diepkloof. I shall thank you to let me know the dates when they will be discharged so that arrangements may be made for their conveyance.

I venture to submit herewith a form of authorization for the educated passive resisters. You will notice that each applicant has written his own application. An official endorsement at the foot thereof

---

1. In his reply (S.N. 5539) dated May 22, 1911, the Acting Secretary for the Interior said that the Minister “was in communication with the Minister of Justice with the object of procuring the immediate release of Asiatics named on the list furnished in your letter as corrected by your telephone message in respect of Wo Kim and Ah Wy”. He added, “It is understood of course that all Asiatics who have destroyed their registration certificates will not apply for the required duplicates.”
3. Ibid
4. Not available
will be sufficient cover for the holder. If necessary, duplicate of the application in the applicant’s handwriting may be filed with the Department.

In conclusion, I am to convey to the Hon’ble the Minister the thanks of the Association for the conciliatory manner in which he has met the question, and to express the hope that there never will be any cause for a revival of the struggle which has cost the Asiatic communities so much.

I have, etc.,

[ M. K. GANDHI ]

From Indian Opinion, 27-5-1911; also photostat of handwritten draft: S. N. 5538

428. STATEMENT FOR PROPOSED DEPUTATION

[After May 20, 1911]¹

THE STATEMENT OF THE BRITISH INDIAN DEPUTATION TO GENERAL SMUTS

The Deputation welcome the Provisional Settlement of the vexed British Indian question as set forth in correspondence² between General Smuts and Mr. Gandhi, and tender their thanks to General Smuts for his generous and conciliatory attitude.

¹ This statement deals with those Indians whose pre-war residence in the Transvaal amounted to less than three years. Their case had not been taken up during the negotiations of April, 1911, and does not figure in the demands conceded by the Minister of the Interior in his communications to Gandhiji of May 19, 1911 and May 20, 1911; vide Appendices V & VI. Special pleading was conceivably necessary in their case, and any deputation for this purpose must have been proposed after May 20. We have, however, no evidence that Gandhiji or any official of the BIA sought an interview with Smuts or that an Indian deputation met him. As this document was found among Gandhiji’s papers and as he himself personally conducted the negotiations on behalf of the Indians, it is reasonable to suppose that he drafted this.

² For letters by Gandhiji to the Minister of the Interior, vide “Letter to E.F.C. Lane”, 7-4-1911; “Telegram to Johannesburg Office”, 7-4-1911; “Letter to General Smuts”, 19-4-1911; “Letter to E.F.C. Lane”, 20-4-1911; 22-4-1911; 29-4-1911; 4-5-1911; “Letter to Acting Private Secretary to Minister of Interior”, 18-5-1911; “Letter to Minister of Interior”, 19-5-1911 and the preceding item and for communications from the latter, vide Appendices, “Lane’s Letter to Gandhiji”, 11-4-1911; 21-4-1911; 22-4-1911; “E.M. Gorges’ Letter to Gandhiji”, 19-5-1911; “Telegram to Gandhiji from Secretary for Interior”, 20-5-1911.
The Deputation would, however, respectfully draw General Smuts’ attention to the following:

(1) Whilst the Deputation are glad that educated passive resisters at present in the Transvaal but not registrable under the Act to the number of six or seven are to be allowed to remain in this Province as permanent residents,¹ it is felt that similar facility should be given to certain educated Indians who may be required as confidential clerks or assistants. In the opinion of the Deputation, this is a crying necessity. Only the other day, a respectable merchant, Mr. Ameer Saheb, was refused permission, pending his absence owing to sickness, to bring in an assistant who was needed for his business.

(2) The Asiatic Act of 1908 enables only those who prove three years’ pre-war residence to re-enter the Transvaal. Now that the Government have been pleased to enable pre-war resident passive resisters who can prove three years’ pre-war residence to exercise their rights under Act 36, in spite of their having failed to apply within the statutory period,² the Deputation request that the claims of those who have lived in the Transvaal before the war for less than three years but who left owing to the outbreak of hostilities may be recognized. This will be an act of justice which will be much appreciated.

From a photostat of the typewritten draft: S. N. 5557

¹ Vide Gandhiji’s letters to Lane, dated 22nd and 29th April, 1911, “Letter to Minister of Interior”, 19-5-1911 and Appendices “Lane’s letter to Gandhiji”, 22-4-1911; E.M. Gorges’ Letter to Gandhiji”, 19-5-1911.

429. NOTICE TO PASSIVE RESISTERS¹

JOHANNESBURG,
May 22, 1911

The following passive resisters are earnestly requested to send in their names immediately to the Honorary Secretary, Box 6522, Johannesburg:

(a) Those who are pre-war Transvaal residents of 3 years’ standing but who have been unable to obtain their registration certificates owing to passive resistance;

(b) Those who are otherwise entitled to registration but have not been registered owing to passive resistance;

Under the Provisional Settlement arrived at with the Government, such persons will be permitted by the Government notwithstanding the lapse of the statutory period of their deportation, to apply to the Registrar of Asiatics for registration, if the application is sent before the 31st December next.²

Those who have at all applied for registration under the Act 36 of 1908 or Act 2 of 1907 during the struggle, and whose applications have been rejected, are requested not to send their names.

Those who know passive resisters of the classes above named in India should at once write to their friends advising them to take steps to secure registration before the 31st December next.

Persons sending in their names should send (a) their full names;
(b) period of pre-war residence or such other claim; (c) proof of their passive resistance, such as discharge certificates or other proof that they have been passive resisters; (d) all documentary or other evidence in support of their claims; (e) those who applied voluntarily in 1908 should send particulars.

These applications will be framed whenever possible and

¹ This was presumably drafted by Gandhiji.
² The settlement as accepted by the Government is set forth in Appindices, “E. M. Gorges’ Letter to Gandhiji”, 19-5-1911 & “Telegram to Gandhiji from Secretary for interior”, 20-5-1911. Gandhiji’s demands on behalf of the Indians are contained in his letters to Lane, “Letter to E.F.C. Lane”, 22-4-1911; 22-4-1911 and 4-5-1911.
forwarded to the Registrar free of charge by the Association. Each applicant will have himself to prosecute his application at his own expense during the subsequent stages if such become necessary. Applicants will have the ordinary right of appeal against the Registrar’s decisions.

A. M. CACHALIA
CHAIRMAN,
BRITISH INDIAN ASSOCIATION

Indian Opinion, 27-5-1911

430. LETTER TO H.S.L. POLAK

May 22, 1911

MY DEAR HENRY,

I cannot write to you at length as there is no time. Final letters have been exchanged and now we must trust to the future to take care of itself. I sent you a cable on Friday night as General Smuts’ reply was not quite satisfactory. I did not want you to commit yourself to Reuter. I am presently sending a cable now. I have just heard that Natal has sent you its authority.

I take it that you will show Maud all the papers I send you.

More next week.

With love,

Yours sincerely,

Bhai

From the original: Gandhi-Polak Correspondence. Courtesy: National Archives of India

431. INTERVIEW TO REUTER

JOHANNESBURG,
May 23, 1911

Mr. Gandhi, interviewed by Reuter’s representative, stated that the settlement contemplated the introduction next session of legislation repealing the Asiatic Act of 1907 and restoring legal equality as regards immigration. As a set-off to the suspension of the passive resistance the Government recognizes the right of the passive resisters, numbering ten, to enter the Transvaal by virtue of their education,\(^1\) and reinstates the passive resisters\(^2\) who formerly had rights of residence, the Government also releasing the imprisoned passive resisters immediately and pardoning Mrs. Sodha.

_The Times of India, 25-5-1911_

432. LETTER TO REGISTRAR OF ASIATICS\(^3\)

May 26, 1911

THE REGISTRAR OF ASIATICS

PRETORIA

SIR,

I have the honour to enclose herewith list\(^4\) of 38 Chinese who, in terms of the settlement or otherwise legally, are entitled to make applications for registration. It will be observed that there are only 26 names that fall under class C in the letter\(^5\) of the 19th instant of the Department of the Interior.

There are 11 who are holders of Peace Preservation Permits, and one is a lad who has only just reached the age of 16, and who is here with his father.
Of the 26 referred to in the list, 2 are in Delagoa Bay.

As for the 3 Mahomedans\(^1\) who are to receive certificates, I am authorized to submit the following names: Mr. Kajee Kalumia Dadamia, Mr. Ismail Essop and Mr. Rasool Sarfudeen. With the exception of the last named, the other two have not received English education. The first named is an Urdu scholar and both the first and the second named are passive resisters, but probably are not strictly per-war residents of three years’ standing, though they are both pre-war residents of the Transvaal. Mr. Sarfudeen will hold a certificate the same as Mr. Royeppen and others.

I shall thank you to let me know when the persons herein described will be able to make their applications. I take it that you will be good enough to afford facility for making application at Johannesburg. Will you please give me two days’ notice, so that the men may be got ready in time.

May I ask you to facilitate the discharge of passive resistance prisoners, two of whom were released today by eff[ect] to time. I need hardly assure you that there is no desire to hold a demonstration of any sort on their discharge.

I have, etc.,

From a photostat of the typewritten draft: S. N. 5541

433. FOR PASSIVE RESISTERS

We draw the attention of our readers to Mr. Cachalia’s notice\(^2\) regarding those passive resisters whose right of residence in the Transvaal may have been forfeited by reason only of their passive resistance. Time is of the essence in this matter. We trust, therefore, that those who are affected by the notice will lose no time in complying with its request. We hope, too, that those who have applied under the Asiatic Acts, but have been rejected, will not send in their names.

_Indian Opinion, 27-5-1911_

---

2 Vide “Notice to Passive Resisters”, 22-5-1911.
A provisional settlement of the Asiatic trouble in the Transvaal has at last been reached, and the Indians and Chinese of the Transvaal are free to resume their ordinary occupations, at least for eight months. The correspondence 1 between the Minister of the Interior and Mr. Gandhi shows that every precaution has been taken to see that the parties understand each other and to leave no room for a misunderstanding. And yet a lay reader will understand from it very little of the settlement. To fairly grasp the many points discussed in it a knowledge of the Asiatic laws is indispensable, though, happily, no such detailed knowledge is necessary in order to know what the settlement really consists in. It is necessary to recall that, in the statement made by the Indian deputation that went to London in 1909, but two things were stated to be essential for satisfying passive resisters, namely: (1) Repeal of Asiatic Act 2 of 1907 and (2) legal equality for immigrants to the Transvaal, it being understood that there might be differential administrative treatment in the operation of such immigration law, subject, however, to the guarantee that at least six educated Asiatics in any one year should be able to immigrate to the Transvaal under any test that might be provided in the law. 2

It was stated on behalf of the community that those who were actually fighting would, if required, forgo their individual rights and cease passive resistance if only the above demands were granted. Messrs Sorabji and others who entered the Transvaal as educated Indians 3 would have retired without claiming any rights for themselves. Those who, owing to the revival of the struggle, could not be registered, would have quietly forfeited their rights and, of course,

---

2 Vide “Statement of Transvaal Indian Case”, 16-7-1909

3 Sorabji entered the Transvaal to test educated Indians’ right of entry and was tried three times; vide “Trial of Sorabji Shapurji—I”, 8-7-1908; Trial of Sorabji Shapurji—II”, 10-7-1908 & Trial of Sorabji Shapurji—I”, 20-7-1908.
their means of livelihood. This declaration was made in order to show to the world how entirely impersonal the struggle was and how it was being maintained solely for an ideal—to wit, national honour. In the result, the teaching of Jesus of Nazareth: “Seek ye first the Kingdom of God and His righteousness and all else will be added unto you” has perhaps never been better verified than in this settlement. General Smuts was at one time reputed to desire to fling the demands of the community contemptuously back in their faces. In that event, the sacrifice above referred to would have been needed. But God willed otherwise. General Smuts reconsidered his position and eventually accepted the co-operation of the passive resisters. He could not carry his legislation during the last Parliament and yet, owing evidently to the Imperial Conference and the approaching Coronation, desired cessation of passive resistance. The passive resisters then offered to suspend their operations if General Smuts undertook to grant their cardinal demands and to pass them into law next session of Parliament and further promised not to penalize passive resisters for their passive resistance. The correspondence we publish is, as will be seen, largely taken up with what may be termed the non-essential and ephemeral part of the settlement. Whatever intricacy there may be regarding this

1 On February 10, 1908, voluntary registration of Indians commenced after Smuts and the Indians had arrived at a compromise; vide “Letter to Colonial Secretary”, 28-1-1908 & “Interview to “The Transvaal Leader”, 30-1-1908. The Indians later claimed that Smuts had failed to implement the compromise and decided on May 30 to resume satyagraha; vide “Letter to “Indian Opinion”, 30-5-1908. Out of the total Indian population in the Transvaal estimated variously at 13,000, reckoning by the number of permits issued (“Interview to the Tribune”, 20-10-1906), and “Letter to The Star”, 4-7-1908), at 10,000 by the census (“Interview to the Tribune”, 20-10-1906), at 9,000 by Gandhiji (“Letter to The Star”, 4-7-1908), 8,700 had applied for voluntary registration by May 9, 1908. The reference here is to those who could not, for one reason or another, register before May 9, the last date set for voluntary registration.

2 “But seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you.” St. Matthew, Ch. VI, v. 33.

3 Vide “Letter to L.W. Rich”, 21-4-1911 and Appendix “Lane’s Letter to Gandhiji”, 21-4-1911

4 Vide “Gandhiji’s letters to Lane”, 22-4-1911 & “Letter to E. F. C. Lane”, 29-4-1911 and Appendix, “Lane’s Letter to Gandhiji”, 22-4-1911

5 This was published in Indian Opinion, 27-5-1911, under the heading, “The Settlement Completed: Final Correspondence between the Minister and Mr. Gandhi”.
part of the settlement, there is none as to its main part, viz, the repeal of Law 2 of 1907 and amendment of the present Transvaal immigration law.

But will the promise be redeemed? This question has been asked from many quarters. Ordinarily there can be no doubt about it. General Smuts as a responsible Minister with a Parliamentary majority behind him has bound his Government to introduce the necessary legislation. If the Parliament does not accept it, it will amount to a vote of no-confidence entailing the resignation of the Ministry of which he is perhaps the most important member. But we are free to admit that General Smuts will not take any such heroic steps over an Asiatic question. Nevertheless the remote contingency of the Parliament rejecting his measure could not be allowed to stand in the way of our accepting the olive branch. Our quarrel hitherto was with General Smuts. He was the stumbling-block in the way of our reaching the goal. He has now softened his heart and is pledged to concede what only a few months ago he declared he would on no account give. Such being the case passive resisters properly decided upon a cessation of their activity. This puts General Smuts upon his honour. The same stubborn, calm and dignified resistance that was offered to General Smuts could next year with equal certainty of success be offered, if need be, to the mighty Union Parliament. Passive resistance is a force which is effective against the mightiest opposition even as light is against the deepest darkness. Those, therefore, who express misgivings for the future either do not understand passive resistance or donot believe in the sincerity or the strength of the Transvaal passive resisters.

But if the legislature ratifies General Smuts’ promise, will passive resistance end for ever? The Union Government in general and Smuts in particular, as being the Minister in charge of the Asiatic department, can alone answer the question. General Smuts’ pledge being redeemed, passive resistance will undoubtedly cease on the question that gave rise to it. If, however, some new anti-Asiatic legislation equally offensive is introduced striking at the honour or the existence of the community, it may be affirmed with reasonable certainty that South Africa will witness fresh passive resistance. The

---

1 Vide Appendix, "Lane’s Letter to Gandhiji", 22-4-1911
2 At the British Indian Association meeting of April 27, 1977; vide "Letter to E. F. C. Lane ", 29-4-1911 and “Transvaal Notes”, 2-5-1911.
British Indian Association has rightly acknowledged and appreciated the conciliatory manner in which General Smuts has at last approached the question. If, then, he has reconsidered his attitude towards Asiatics and the statement alleged to have been made by him that he will not rest until he has driven out the last Asiatic from South Africa, and wishes to apply the same spirit of conciliation that he has applied (though somewhat late in the day) to the demands of the passive resisters, there need never be any fear of a recrudescence of Asiatic passive resistance in South Africa.

Indian Opinion, 27-5-1911

435. FOR SATYAGRAHIS

We draw the attention of every satyagrahi to the notice\(^1\) issued over Mr. Cachalia’s signature. It is essential that satyagrahis whose rights were earlier forfeited, but have been secured under the settlement, should send the required information to the Association immediately. If any of them are in India, they should also be informed. We advise those who applied under, and submitted to, the Obnoxious Act\(^2\) or Act 36\(^3\) while the struggle was in progress, not to send in their names. If any Indian conceals the fact of his having so applied and sends in his name regardless, he will only invite contempt both on the community and himself. If the Registrar has already received an application from a person who is applying now, the fact will soon be discovered and the applicant will not be registered.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 25-5-1911

436. LETTER TO HARILAL GANDHI

TOLSTOY FARM,

Vaisakh Vad 14 [May 27, 1911]\(^4\)

CHI. HARILAL,

I have the letter you wrote before leaving Delagoa Bay. It is

---

2. Act 2 of 1907, the Asiatic Registration Act
3. Of 1908, the Asiatics’ Registration Amendment Act
4. This letter, it appears, was written just after Harilal Gandhi left South Africa, and that was in the middle of May, 1911. In that year, Vaisakh Vad 14 corresponds to May 27.
desirable that Rami¹ grows up under the influence of strictly Indian ideas. Accordingly, I think you have done right in deciding not to send her chocolates. However, I should caution you against taking the line that ‘this must be done because Bapu wants it so, From among the ideas I suggest, you should put only those into practice that appeal to you. I should like you to grow up in freedom. I know your motives are good. Whenever your ideas are mistaken, they will therefore get corrected automatically.

The prisoners have not been released so far but they will soon be.²

It appears that the cable³ I sent you about [the need for] your applying for registration has not reached you. I sent it care of Nanji Dulabhdas.

Keep reading Indian Opinion carefully while you are there.

The following Gujarati books are eminently worth reading: Kavyadahan, Panchikaran, Maniratnamala, Dasbodh, Chapter VI of Yogavasishtha—Hindi translation available—Poet Narmadashanker’s⁴ Dharma vishe Vichar⁵, two volumes of Raychandbhai’s⁶ writings.

And, of course, there are Karanghelo and other books. Karanghelo evidences the maturity of the Gujarati language. Taylor’s grammar and his introduction to it are both vary good. I have forgotten whether it is a preface or a separate essay on the Gujarati language.

I should advise you to make it a regular practice to read Tulsidas’a’s Ramayana. Most of the books I have listed at the end of

¹ Harilal’s daughter
³ Not available
⁴ Narmadashanker Lalshanker Dave (1833-1889); poet and a pioneer of modern Gujararti literature whom Gandhiji often quoted
⁵ The correct title is Dharmavichar.
⁶ Raychandbhai Rayjibhai Mehta; poet and connoisseur of pearls and diamonds with a “passion to see God face to face”; renowned for his feats of memory as shatavadhan; a relation by marriage of Dr. Pranjivan Mehta who introduced him to Gandhiji. This first meeting convinced Gandhiji that Raychandbhai “was a man of great character and learning” whose “burning passion for self-realization” “cast a spell” over him, and “in moments of spiritual crisis, therefore, he was my refuge” and “the predominant factor” that led to Gandhiji’s vow of brahmacharya. Gandhiji kept up a correspondence with him till the poet’s death; vide An Autobiography, Part II, Ch. I, XV, XXII & Part III, Ch. VII.
Indian Home Rule are worth going through.\footnote{Vide “Appendices to “Hind Swaraj” “Some Authorities and Testimonials By Eminent Men”, 22-11-1909} In order to learn Sanskrit well, I would advise you always to start your reading with it. Only then will you remember and understand it all. You won’t find it difficult after the first book is properly done. Do not take up the second book before you have mastered the first. Whenever you come across a Sanskrit verse, you should immediately try to understand its meaning in Gujarati.

Please write to me in detail and regularly.

Blessings from

MOHANDAS

From a photostat of the Gujarati original in Gandhiji’s hand: S. N. 9532

437. LETTER TO H. S. L. POLAK

May 28, 1911

MY DEAR HENRY,

So you have already granted an interview. I am sending you cuttings. The whole thing seems to have been fixed up nicely. You have called it a compromise. Is not settlement a better term? Ritch points out that compromise may presuppose give and take whereas we have yielded nothing. Please criticize I.O. freely. I am trying to get Ritch to write for it every week. I dare say you will not fail to notice what is his.

The collections for your mission continue. We have now reached over £500 the whole of it is not yet banked. Cachalia and Sorabji are travelling in the Klerksdorp District.

We are trying to organize a dinner at the Masonic Hall for the European Committee.

I propose to go to Phoenix for a fortnight at an early date. I wanted to during the first week of June but I may not be able to do so. I want to start the work of registration before I go.

I do not propose any longer to write the weekly official letter. I want to leave it to Ritch and I do not want Maud\footnote{Assistant Honorary Secretary of the South Africa British Indian Committee in London} to duplicate her letters either. A packet addressed to Ritch should be enough. Ritch should come before the public as much as possible. Moreover, I wish to slip out of the public gaze as much as possible. I should like to bury myself in the Farm and devote my attention to farming and educating.

With love all round,

Bhai

From the original : Gandhi-Polak Correspondence. Courtesy : National Archives of India

438. LETTER TO G. A. NATESAN

TOLSTOY FARM,
LAWLEY STATION,
TRANSVAAL,
May 31, 1911

DEAR MR. NATESAN.

In my cable advising of the provisional settlement, I asked Prof.
Gokhale to inform you of the contents of the cable. I hope he repeated the cable to you. The settlement has gone beyond our expectations. We did not expect to be able to save individual rights.
These have now been fully protected. But we are by no means yet out of the wood. General Smuts has to translate his promises into legislation. This, however, there is little doubt, will be done unless General Smuts has no regard whatsoever for his reputation. The danger therefore lies not in the likelihood of his breaking his promise but in his passing other legislation affecting adversely the position of domiciled Indians. His actions, therefore, will have to be closely scrutinized. I need hardly say how much we owe to your wonderful work there. I hope that you will persist in your agitation for securing an amelioration of the condition of those who are residing in S.A. I have no doubt that you are keeping yourself in touch with the

1 G.A. Natesan; of G. A. Netesan & Co., Madras, published lives of Indian leaders, and edited, Indian Review; Gandhiji maintained a “regular correspondence” with him. Vide “Letter to A.H. West”, 24-12-1909; “Collector’s Assassination”, 1-1-1910 & “Letter to Maganlal Gandhi”, before 9-12-1910 and Satyagraha in South Africa, Ch. XXXI.

2 Not available.
columns of Indian Opinion in which are reproduced all the petitions\(^1\) recently sent to the Imperial Government.

You have earned the gratitude of every Indian in S.A. by your work on the indenture question also.\(^2\) Having observed the system for nearly 18 years, I have come to hold very strong views on the question of indentured emigration from India. Even if it were possible to secure fair treatment from the masters (which it is not) the system is inherently bad. Indentured men lose terribly in moral fibre. In many cases they improve as animals, they lose in almost every case as men. As a solution of the problem of poverty such emigration has in no way proved helpful. As a nation we lose in prestige by sending our poorest brethren as practically slaves. No nation of free men will tolerate such a system for a moment. I hope therefore that you will with all your might agitate for putting an end to the system, first outside India and then within our own borders. If I could help it, I would certainly not send a single Indian under indenture, say, to Assam.

As the struggle has only been suspended, Tolstoy Farm will be continued though under considerably modified conditions.

Mr. and Mrs. Polak will be in Indian about the month of November and they will remain there pending the introduction of General Smuts’ Bill next year.

With renewed thanks for all you have in our behalf,

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat of the original in Gandhiji’s hand: G.N. 2224

\(^1\) Vide “Petition to Secretary of State for Colonies”, 1-5-1911 and “Memorial to Secretary of State for Colonies”, 15-5-1911

\(^2\) On March 1, 1911, a public meeting, held under the auspices of the Indian South African League of Madras, unanimously passed a resolution urging the Government of India to restrain the sirdars, who were on their way to India to recruit, on behalf of the Natal planters, indentured labourers on five-year contracts before the Indian Government’s embargo on indentured emigration came into effect on July 1, 1991. Supporting the resolution, G.A. Natesan spoke of “the moral evil” of emigration and emphasized “the need to dog the sirdars wherever they went and to prevent them from recruiting coolies under false information”. These sirdars lured illiterate villagers with money and fanciful accounts of Natal as a land of gold, and the credulous villagers were made to sign the bond of indenture at their recruiting depot at Madras. Natesan sent round a circular warning all the villages around Madras against the sirdars; this circular was published in Indian Opinion, 5-8-1911.
439. LETTER TO G. A. NATESAN

21-24, COURT CHAMBERS,
CORNERRISSIK & ANDERSON STREETS,
JOHANNESBURG,
June 2, 1911

DEAR MR. NATESAN,

This is to introduce to you Mr. R. M. Sodha. As you know Mr. Sodha is one of the staunchest passive resisters. If he travels towards your side, may I ask you please to introduce Mr. Sodha to our leaders there? Mr. Sodha is the husband of the celebrated Mrs. Sodha who was persecuted by the Transvaal Government.

I am,
Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

From the original in Gandhiji’s hand: C.W. 3422. Courtesy: Revashanker Sodha

440. KRUGERSDORP AGITATORS

From a recent number of the Krugersdorp paper we reproduce, elsewhere in this issue, the report of a meeting held in that town, addressed by Mr. Van Veyerens, member of the Provincial Council. Amongst other questions discussed was the “coolie” question, and it was unanimously decided to form an association, the members of which undertake not to support “coolie” traders. The committee of this association, we learn has drafted a petition asking the Government not to allow hawkers and peddlars to travel in the districts, districts, “because these itinerant traders are more detrimental to the welfare of the country than beneficial”. This is not the first time that Krugersdorp has broken out in this way. The famous but now evidently defunct “White League” originated at this dorp. Its efforts

1 Ratanshi M. Sodha left for India on June 2, 1911, following the provisional Settlement of April 20. Indian Opinion, 10-6-1911.
2 Not reproduced here
3 Vide “Johannesburg Letter”, 28-3-1908.
have not been quite successful, so it would appear. Why do these anti-Asian leagues and associations never succeed? Because their foundations are rotten; because the motive is greed and selfishness; and because the members are each seeking their own personal gain. There is not a man amongst them who would not grasp an advantage for himself at the expense of a fellow-member. But when it is the Asiatic who competes, all join together in order to ruin him. These rival traders have the impudence to say that even hawkers and pedlars should not be allowed to travel in the districts. One may be quite sure that the people who live in the outlying places and depend upon these useful traders for many of their wants do not say that they are more detrimental than beneficial. No, the whole thing is too transparently self-seeking on the part of these leagues and associations. They represent none but themselves, and all they are anxious about is that the field of competition should be cleared so that their profits may be larger.

Whilst there may not be much to fear from these agitators, the British Indian Association will no doubt keep a watchful eye upon their movements so that the rights and means of livelihood of respectable small traders shall not be filched away.

Indian Opinion, 3-6-1911

441. WHAT HAS SATYAGRAHA ACHIEVED?

A number of Indians sometimes question if satyagraha has achieved anything. All that they can see is that people were tortured in gaol and put up with the suffering, and the utmost that was achieved in the end was theoretical equality of rights in the matter if new immigrants which is unintelligible to most and unavailing in practice. The only outcome of any value is that (a few) highly educated men will enter the Transvaal every year whose services we may have no occasion to use. For the benefit of those who believe this, we enumerate below, point by point, the several gains resulting from the campaign.

---

1. The Indian community’s pledge has been redeemed. There is a saying among us that if one’s honour is saved all else is safe.

2. The Obnoxious Act will be repealed.

3. Public opinion has been roused all over India about our disabilities.

4. The entire world has learnt of our struggle and has admired the Indians’ courage.

5. A law has been passed (in India) to prohibit the emigration of indentured labour to Natal.

6. Satyagraha helped bring about whatever improvement there has been in Natal’s licensing legislation.

---

1 Taken at a mammoth meeting of Indians in the Empire Theatre, Johannesburg, on September 11, 1906, to the effect that they would not submit to the Asiatic law Amendment Ordinance, the foreunner of the Asiatic Registration Act; vide “The Mass Meeting”, 11-9-1906

2 The Asiatic Registration Act (Act 2 of 1907).

3 Vide Appendices “Lane’s Letter to Gandhiji”, 22-4-1911 and “E.M. Gorgges’ Letter to Gandhiji”, 19-5-1911.

4 The Transvaal campaign had wide repercussions in India. For protest meeting held in that country in 1908 and 1909, vide “Chronology” and “Interview to the Natal Mercury”, 30-11-1908; “Letter to Private Secretary to Lord Crewe”, 29-11-1909; “Letter to Lord Amptill”, 5-10-1909 & “Letter to Private Secretary to Lord Crewe”, 26-10-1909.

5 On December 29, 1909 the Indian Narional Congress passed a resolution urging the prohibition of recruitment of indentured labour. On February 25, 1910, Gokhale tabled a resolution in the Indian Legislative Council to that effect, and it was unanimously passed. The Indian Emigration Act of 1908 was amended to admit of Gokhale’s resolution, and on April 1, 1911, the Government of India issued a notification prohibiting the emigration of labour to Natal from July 1, 1911; vide also “The Indian Council and Indentured Labour”, 5-3-1910; 5-3-1910; “Duty of Natal Indian Congress”, 2-4-1910; “G.K. Gokhale’s Services”; 16-4-1910 & “A Momentous Decision”, 7-1-1911. Gandhiji had asked for stoppage of indentured Indian immigration as far back as 1895; vide “A Band of Vegetarian Missionaries”, 18-5-1895.

6 The Natal Dealers’ Licenses Act (Act 18 of 1897 enacted by the Boer Government) did not allow appeals to courts of law against the decisions of licensing officers regarding renewal of old trading licences. After the Boer War, following representations by Natal Indians to the Imperial authorities that this section of the law was being unfavourably interpreted to their detriment, (“Petition to Chamberlain”, 27-12-1902, in fact, Gandhiji returned to South Africa early in December, 1902 especially to discuss the licences problem with Chamberlain, Secretary of State for the Colonies in the Imperial Government, who was then
7. A law similar to the one in the Transvaal, which was passed in Rhodesia, was disallowed.¹

8. The sinister licensing Act which was passed in Natal was disallowed.² Anyone who doubts that this was due to the satyagraha campaign may peruse the reasons which the Imperial Governmental gave for disallowing the law [in its despatch].

9. Enactment of legislation for the whole of South Africa along the lines of the Transvaal law has been rendered impossible.³

Visiting South Africa, the Colonial Government in Natal issued a circular to the Town Councils instructing them to interpret the law “in a judicious and reasonable manner” so as to respect vested rights and warning them that, otherwise, “the law might have to be reconsidered”; vide “The Dealers’ Licenses Act Redivivus: II”, 17-9-1903. Thanks to protracted agitation by the Natal Congress, the Government, on November 24, 1909, embodied this concession in a law and enacted an amendment (Act 22 of 1909) to the licence law of 1897, permitting appeals to the Supreme Court on decisions of Town Councils regarding licences; vide “Natal Licensing Act”, 11-12-1909.

¹ Vide “Rhodesia Indians”, 30-5-1908; “Sarvodaya[—VII]”, 27-6-1908; 4-7-1908 and “Some Suggestions”, 12-6-1909

² Two bills had been announced in 1908 which sought to discontinue the issue of new licences to Asiatic traders and to dispossess old licence-holders within a period of ten years; vide “Natal Bills”, 9-5-1908; 16-5-1908 & “New Natal Bills”, 16-5-1908 & Imperial assent to this legislation was, however, withheld; vide “London”, before 18-9-1909

³ The Union Immigrants’ Restriction Bill (Appendix, “Immigrants’ Restriction Bill”, 4-3-1911), ready by the beginning of March, 1911, sought to end Asiatic immigration except for an agreed annual quota of educated Asians—an outcome of the Transvaal campaign—and repealed the more liberal Cape and Natal Immigration Laws, the education tests under which were less severe than in the Transvaal; vide “Letter to Colonial Secretary”, 6-7-1908 and “Interview to the Transvaal Leader”, 1-3-1911; “Letter to L.W. Ritch”, 2-3-1911; “Letter to Maud Polak”, 6-3-1911; “Natal Petition to Union Assembly”, 9-3-1911 & Appendix, “Cape Petition to Parliament”, 15-3-1911. In the case of the Transvaal, the Bill repealed all the earlier “obnoxious” immigration and registration laws except Act 36 of 1908 (Appendix, “Immigrants’ Restriction Bill”, 4-3-1911), while, in the case of the Orange Free State, Chapter 33 of the Constitution, which Gandhi contended was racial in character and therefore repugnant to the spirit of the Immigrants’ Restriction Bill (vide “Letter to E. F. C. Lane”, 20-3-1911 & “Letter to Private Secretary to Minister of Interior”, 24-3-1911), was neverthe less retained. The Bill, besides, left unprotected the immigration rights of wives and minor children of domiciled Natal and Transvaal Asians, and others domiciled but temporarily absent from Natal; vide “Natal Petition to Union Assembly”, 9-3-1911. Polak was sent to Durban to help Natal Indians (vide “Letter to H. S. L. Polak”, 2-3-1911) to organize against the whittling down of what were, by comparison, almost unlimited rights of immigration.
10. Enactment of further thoughtless legislation in the Transvaal has been prevented.

11. The Railway regulations which were promulgated in the Transvaal, making distinctions between whites and Coloureds, were which Asiatics possessed under previous laws; Ritch was similarly sent to the Cape to help the divided Indian community in that province (vide “Letter to Abdul Hamid Gool”, 2-3-1911), which, in his estimate, lacked the will to defend itself against the projected diminution of its rights. It was at this stage that Gandhi ji argued that the satyagraha campaign had been waged for, and on behalf of, the Transvaal alone and that, while he was willing to help with advice, Natal and the Cape should raise the funds and conduct their own campaigns when their rights were threatened; vide “Letter to L.W. Ritch”, 8-3-1911; “Letter to Maud Polak”, 13-3-1911 & “Letter to L.W. Ritch”, 17-3-1911. He was, therefore, content to handle the Transvaal problem from Johannesburg and to try and secure the exemption of educated Asiatics from the purview of Act 36 of 1908. He left for the Cape to conduct the negotiations in person only when Smuts refused to receive Ritch as a representative of the Indians; vide “Telegram to L. W. Ritch”, 9-3-1911. On March 4, 1911, Smuts informed Gandhi ji that educated immigrants were free to enter the Union and reside in any Province and were exempt from registration laws; vide “Letter to E. F. C. Lane”, 4-3-1911. When Gandhi ji replied that he had had legal advice saying that these private assurances were not contained in the Union Bill (ibid), Smuts recanted and moved an amendment which accorded Asiatic immigrants into the Transvaal legal equality with other races and exempted them only from registration under Act 36 of 1908; vide, “Letter to J. J. Doke”, 17-3-1911 & appendix, “Lane’s letter to Gandhi ji”, 16-3-1911. Gandhi ji, who had anticipated this clever move (“Letter to L. W. Ritch”, 16-3-1911), now demanded that the principle of legal equality of races which was conceded to the 1909 deputation in London (Appendix, “Lord Crew’s Minute”, before 17-9-1909) and in Botha’s despatch of December 20, 1910, to the Imperial Government (“Report of European Committee Meeting”, 23-3-1911) should extend to the Orange Free State also (vide “Telegram to Private Secretary to General Smuts”, 17-3-1911); that is to say, the Immigrants’ Restriction Bill should nullify relevant provincial legislation in the Free State to the extent necessary for securing this objective; vide “Telegram to Private Secretary to General Smuts”, 10-3-1911. Hosken’s Committee, coming out in support of the Indian cause, denied Smuts’ allegation that this demand was a new one; vide, “Letter to H. S. I. Polak”, 22-3-1911. Gandhi ji then said he would be content if the Union immigration bill was dropped and the Transvaal legislation alone amended suitably; vide, “Letter to Sonja Schlesin”, 27-3-1911. Smuts thereupon decided, for reasons of his own, that this could not be done during the current session of the Union Parliament. Gandhi ji’s claim that satyagraha had prevented the extension of the unfavourable Transvaal immigration laws to the rest of the Union should be viewed against this background of facts. In fact, the Secretary of State for India had himself admitted that the Union immigration legislation extended “the Transvaal policy of practical exclusion” to the entire Union; vide India, 31-3-1911.
12. Everyone knows that the Obnoxious Act of 1907 was the first step in legislation aimed against the Indians. They took up arms even at this stage and thus thwarted the designs of the local Government.\(^1\)

13. It is impossible that the Committee of European Sympathizers with Hosken as Chairman would have been called into being otherwise.\(^3\) The Committee is now likely to be useful to us in other matters as well.

14. Apart from these, we have also won the sympathy of many

\(^1\) The Railway Regulations, passed by decree and gazetted on December 17, 1909, under the Railway Regulations Act of 1908 (“Substance of Letter to Colonial Secretary”, 23-12-1909 & “Indian National Congress and Muslims”, 8-1-1910), sought to discriminate between whites and Asiatics denying the latter, among other things, the right to ‘travel by express trains; vide “Letter to General Manager, C.S.A.R.”, 4-1-1910. After a meeting between the railway authorities and Gandhiji and Cachalia, the General Manager accepted the draft regulations submitted by the British Indian Association on April 11, 1910 (ibid, but the Central South African Railways’ Tariff Book No. I, published in February, 1911, retained the old Regulations in complete disregard of the earlier agreement, and only the Cape was exempted from the discriminatory provisions. Following further protests by the BIA and the Natal Indian Congress, the General Manager Wrote to Cachalia in June, 1911, assuring him that the regulations which were to come into force in June, 1911, would meet the Indian objections.

\(^2\) The first registration legislation against which the Indians protested massively and unanimously (“Letter to Colonial Secretary”, 25-8-1906 & “The mass Meeting”, 11-9-1906 to “Johannesburg Letter”, 11-9-1906) was the Asiatic Law Amendment Ordinance of 1906 gazetted on August 22, 1906, before the Transvaal was granted Responsible Government. Gandhiji himself describes the Gandhi-Alliy deputation of 1906 as “the first battle” in satyagraha “waged in the arena of British politics”; vide “Satyagraha Again”, 27-6-1908

\(^3\) The Committee of European Sympathizers was founded in 1908 by Albert Cartwright, then editor to The Transvaal Leader. He was the first member of the Progressive Party actively to espouse the Indian cause, and he played a decisive role in bringing about the famous compromise of January, 1908; vide “Johannesburg Letter”, 30-1-1908. The Chairman, William Hosken, was a rich and prominent member to the pre-Union Transvaal legislature and at one time a leading member of the Progressive Party. His mediatory efforts in the later stages of the 1908 campaign were not inconsiderable. By 1910, his sympathies had become more active, and he wrote a letter to Smuts supporting Gandhiji and the Indians in their demands; vide “Report of European Committee meeting”, 23-3-1911. The letter appears to have angered Smuts who sent a “dangerous telegram” in reply; “Telegram to L. W. Ritch”, 24-3-1911.
whites.

15. The prestige of the Indian community has risen and those who were wont zx of hundreds of pre-War Transvaal Indians came to be protected.

23. The charge of fraud against the Indian community has been disproved.¹

24. Considering the latest instance, we find that the proposed poll-tax bill in Natal, which was discriminatory, was abandoned in fear of satyagraha.

25. General Smuts and the Imperial Government were obliged to rescind their decisions, the former on three occasions and the latter on two.²

² Gandhiji possibly had in mind the following occasions when Smuts was obliged to go back on his decisions: (a) when, at the instance of the Gandhi-Ally deputation of 1906, the Imperial Government refused assent to the Asiatic Law Amendment Ordinance; vide “Cable to S.A.B.I. Committee”, 29-12-1906 (b) when, in the 1908 compromise proposals sent through Albert Cartwright to Gandhiji in jail, Smuts undertook to repeal Act 2 of 1907; vide “Letter to Colonial Secretary”, 28-1-1908 & “Johannesburg Letter”, 30-1-1908 and “Speech at Reception”, 5-10-1910; and (c) when he went back on the issue of a limited annual quota of educated Asiatic immigrants who, he had contended, could not enter the Transvaal under the Immigrants’ Restriction Act; vide “Statement of Transvaal Indian Case”, 16-7-1909. The Imperial Government went back on its position in the cases of (a) the Asiatic Law Amendment Ordinance of 1906, and (b) the immigration of educated Asiatics, an issue in which Lord Crewe, in conformity with his earlier position that the autonomy of self-governing colonies should not be lightly interfered with, was
26. Whereas formerly the Government did not pause to think before passing laws directed against us, now it not only gives careful thought to such laws but is also obliged to consider our probable reactions to them.

27. Indians command more respect as men of their word. “Better to lose millions than to lose one’s reputation as a man of one’s word.”

28. The community has demonstrated the power of truth.

29. By placing its trust in God, the community has demonstrated to the world the supreme value of religion.

Theirs alone is victory who follow truth and religion. On further reflection, we shall probably discover many other benefits, but the last mentioned is the foremost among them. A great campaign such as this could not have been waged without faith in God. He has been our only true support. If, through this struggle, we have learnt better to depend on Him alone, that is a sufficient gain in itself, and all else will follow as a matter of course.

[From Gujarati]

_Indian Opinion_, 3-6-1911

---

reluctant to receive the 1909 deputation. Later however, he sent a telegram to Smuts endorsing at least two of Gandhiji’s demands; _vide_ “Deputation Notes[-XIII]”, after 16-11-1909 & Appendix “Lord Crew’s Minute”, before 17-9-1909.

A Gujarati saying
442. ABBREVIATIONS

[After June 5, 1911]

N.N.  not noted
N.   noted
R.   rejected
P.   pending

From the original in Gandhiji’s hand: S.N. 5526 a

443. LETTER TO MAGANLAL GANDHI

[Before June 9, 1911]

CHI. MAGANLAL,

Please see the enclosed letter from Anandlal¹. Show it to Purshottamdas also. I have written to Revashankerbhai⁵ asking him to give Anandlal the passage money.

I shall not be able to start till June 9 at any rate. On that day a banquet is to be given to the Hosken Committee. I may leave on the 10th perhaps. Please send the enclosed letter to Nayak; I do not know his address.

Blessings from

MOHANDAS

From the Gujarati original in Gandhiji’s hand: C.W. 5089. Courtesy: Radhabehn Choudhri

¹ Devised by Gandhiji for classifying applications that started coming in, following the Provisional Settlement, from persons seeking entry into the Transvaal. Found among his personal papers, this list of abbreviations was evidently meant for his personal use in his dealings with the Registrar of Asians.

² The first application received from Bhagu Bhikha of Durban was dated June 5, 1911.

³ The banquet to the Hosken Committee mentioned in the letter was given on June 9, 1911. and this letter was clearly written before that date. Addressed to Maganlal Gandhi in Phoenix, it speaks of an impending visit by Gandhiji after the 10th. The hypothesized date is further supported by the fact that Gandhiji addressed a meeting held to bid farewell to Sorabji Shapurji at Durban on June 16.

⁴ Son of Amritlal Gandhi, a cousin of Gandhiji

⁵ Revashanker Jagjivan Jhaveri: a friend of Gandhiji and brother of Dr. Pranjivan Mehta

438 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATAMA GANDHI
444. ADDRESS TO W. HOSKEN

JOHANNESBURG,
June 9, 1911

WILLIAM HOSKEN, ESQ.

DEAR SIR,

We, the undersigned, on behalf of the British Indian Reception Committee, hereby wish to place on record our gratitude to you and the members of the Committee over whose deliberations you have presided during the past three years that the Committee has been in existence.

We are aware that it is due to the efforts of your Committee that the provisional settlement of the Asiatic question that has so agitated the country for the past four years has been hastened. Though the question that gave rise to passive resistance is not yet finally settled, it is a matter for satisfaction that we have a declaration from the chief opponent of the demands of the Asiatic communities that they should be satisfied. It was no small thing for you and your Committee to espouse what was undoubtedly an unpopular cause.

It is not in our power to reward you for your labours. We can but pray to the Almighty to reward you, and the other Members of the Committee, for your advocacy of a cause which you believed to be just. We shall pray that you may have long life and health, so as to enable you to continue to serve high ideals as you have done in the past.

[A. M. CACHALIA
V. CHETTIAR
ABDUL KADIR BAWAZEER
SORABJI SHAPURJI ADAJANIA
M. K. GANDHI]²

Indian Opinion, 17-6-1911

¹ This was presented to Hosken at a banquet given to the Committee of European Sympathizers by the British Indian Association; vide also “The Banquet”, 17-6-1911
² The names of the signatories, who constituted the British Indian Reception Committee, are taken from the Gujarati version of the address.
The draft Municipal Councils Ordinance to be introduced in the Provincial Council of the Transvaal is a very drastic measure. The British Indian Association of the Transvaal has entered a timely protest against its provisions that bear upon Indians. The most injurious section is no doubt that which gives the Municipal Councils absolute control over hawkers and other licences.

The effect of the Gold Law, read together with the Townships Act, is to ruin Asiatic store-keepers. The effect of the draft Ordinance, if it be allowed to pass in its present shape, will be to crush Asiatic hawkers. It is a well-known fact that the majority of the Indians of the Transvaal depend upon hawking for their bread and butter. And it is evident that the framers of the Ordinance had Indian hawkers in view. Thus a circle is being drawn—it does not much matter whether with or without the knowledge of General Smuts—round the Transvaal Asiatics, although the General intends next year to bring in legislation to give effect to his promise to the passive resisters, and although he has stated that it is his intention to treat the resident Indians with fairness and justice. We fear very much that, if the draft Ordinance is an indication of what is meant by fairness and justice, the Indian idea of these two words is totally different from General Smuts’. We hope, however, that better counsels will prevail among the Provincial Councillors and that the Ordinance will be amended in the direction pointed our by Mr. Cachalia.

Indian Opinion, 10-06-1911

1 This Ordinance in effect consolidated municipal regulations and decrees, most of which Transvaal Indians had objected to at one time or another and which empowered Town Councils to enforce these with the authority of provincial law. For instance, it empowered the Government, in the main, to: (a) shift Asiatic Locations and demarcate new ones; (b) withhold a variety of licences without judicial review; (c) exclude Asiatics from the Municipal Voters’ List. The purpose of all these had earlier been served by separate laws and decrees. For the provisions of the Ordinance as affecting Asians and the British Indian Association’s petition against it, vide Appendices VII-A & B.

2 Vide Appendix, “S.A.B.I. Committee’s Letter to Colonial Office”, 17-7-1911
446. LETTER TO HARMANN KALLENBACH

ON THE TRAIN,

[Before June 11, 1911]¹

MY DEAR LOWER HOUSE,

Nothing has pained me so much in my leaving Johannesburg, at the present juncture, as your physical and mental condition. If I could have avoided going to Natal, I would certainly have done so, if only so that I could be with you and exercise the privilege and the duty of a friend to nurse you and encourage you. But, I think, to leave for Phoenix was a higher duty. The struggle demands it.

Had I known [of] the comfort (physical) under which I am writing this I would certainly have pressed for your coming with me and that 3rd-class. The coach I am in is a corridor, 3rd-class, for well-dressed 3rd-class passengers. It is truly more comfortable than the 1st-class on these trains. It is cleaner. It is cushioned, has a lavatory and sleeping accommodation and I am the only passenger. Our miserable false pride often keeps us from so many good things of the world. You know how necessary lavatory accommodation is for me. Here I have everything added to the pleasure of travelling 3rd-class. And I suppose no European or other passenger would want me to leave this. However we shall see. When you come I strongly advice you to take a 3rd-class ticket. I assure you that a few of us doing this will be able to do a great deal for 3rd-class passengers. The moral effect will be great. It will be good discipline for you. You must have noticed too that it attracted no attention at the station. It is only our own false pride and self-consciousness which make so many worries and troubles.

The physical health requires very great attention just now. What I have suggested is, I am sure, the best remedy. The seat of the trouble is undoubtedly the stomach. But it has been accentuated by your mental condition. You are a true man. Any false chord, therefore, shakes your whole system. Your attention is almost divine. You have quite unjustly transferred it all to me. And now you find your idol not satisfying you. This hurts you as if a dagger had gone through you. But why? Who am I? If your affection for me weakens, why suffer agony? It is a passing phase. Let the idol be broken. The residue will be a purer thing. Nor need there be any worry about the practice. Take what work you can with calmness. You will give up the profession automatically when the time is ripe. As Tolstoy says it is a great thing to create the proper mental condition. The rest comes as a matter of course. The result does not follow when a man deceives himself or others. If I always hanker after doing a thing, I can only end by doing it. This is the law of nature. But if I only pretend that I want to do something which I really do not, then I end by not doing it. I am a false coin and no change can be had from such a coin.

¹ From the contents it appears that the letter was written before the item following.

Whatever Call is, do not worry about him or my affection for him- I cannot do otherwise than love him. He has really some very good points in him. I am sure that you too would like him one day. But what can it matter either way?

I shall certainly expect a letter from you every day. You will really do me a favour by writing. I shall be always otherwise.

Yours sincerely

[PS.]

I hope the room will be given up early. All surplus clothing should be sold and sent to Phoenix.

From the original: Gandhi-Kallenbach Correspondence. Courtesy: National Archives of India
MY DEAR HENRY,

On my way to Natal. The train jolting Mrs.G. and the two Sorabjis with me. The older one leaving for India. The Hosken banquet a great success. Silver casket address to Hosken and gold watch and chain to Sorabji. We are all travelling 3rd-class a rougher experience this time with Mrs.G. and no lavatory accommodation but it is certain that only a 3rd-class traveller can bring about reform in 3rd-class carriages. Natives are herded together like cattle!

There is nothing new in the Townships Act Regulations. Ritch will send you an extract.

I propose to stay at Phoenix for a fortnight and then return with Mrs.G.

Tables were laid for 300 men and women over 60 Europeans were present including Mrs. Hosken.

I take it that you will have met the distinguished Indians who may have attended the Coronation.

Ritch is having very good practice Desai has been fixed up as clerk for him. I am now trying to get a Tamil lad.

At the Farm we shall have very few. T.Naidoo is settling in Towns.

With love to all,

Yours,

BHAI

From the original: Gandhi-Polak Correspondence. Courtesy: National Archives of India

1 Which took place on June 9; vide “Letter to Maganlal Gandhi, before 9-6-1911 & “The Banquet”, 17-6-1911
MY DEAR LOWER HOUSE,

I have your two letters together. I am sorry for Hilt and glad for you. Both Hilt and Albert will prove a blessing to you for they put you on your mettle. I do not know that we have need to be sorry for Hilt’s illness. There should be sorrow for the cause of it. You must have produced a different and pleasurable sensation in Hilt when you laid him by your side. Yes, indeed, the real individual life is only to be lived in the open and in close touch with our neighbours. Living the other so called individual life in our rooms, fearing the touch of a fellow-being, we must feel like thieves having no light to the property we may be holding.

Call is indeed a fine letter-writer. The coming union may make him. He is idealizing it and for that reason it may be very good for him.

I am not going to congratulate you on getting new work. I shall wait and see what it makes of you. Sorabji receives his address tonight from the Congress.

With love,

Yours sincerely,

UPPER HOUSE

From the original: Gandhi-Kallenbach Correspondence. Courtesy: National Archives of India

1 From the reference to the address given by the Natal Indian Congress to Sorabji; vide “Speech at Durban Farewell to Sorabji”, 16-6-1911
449. SPEECH AT DURBAN FAREWELL TO SORABJI

[June 16, 1911]

As a satyagrahi Mr. Sorabji has displayed many fine qualities. He has rightly been described as the greatest of the satyagrahis. From one point of view I place Mr. Thambi Naidoo on par with him. (Applause.) Another person who can match Mr. Naidoo in self sacrifice is unlikely to be found even in India. To be sure, Mr. Sorabji stands out from the rest because we volunteered for suffering. He came from Natal and was the first from that Colony to join the campaign. Complaints were frequently made against the satyagrahis in gaol, but never against Mr. Sorabji. He is by nature, a mild and amiable person. That cannot be said even of Mr. Thambi Naidoo. No improper word was ever heard to escape his mouth. He has none of the Parsis’ faults but I have found in him all their finer qualities. Though so well endowed he is without a trace of pride. Though a Parsi, he is an Indian first. Hindus, Muslims and Christians alike admire him. That he continues firm on his course, having once set it, and that he tries to understand every issue, is his fourth virtue. Mr. Sorabji is without compeer. The best way of honouring such a man is to emulate him. India will prosper only when it produces many more Sorabjis.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 24-6-1911

450. THE CORONATION

South Africa will be celebrating, on the 22nd instant, the Coronation of King George V. What part are we going to play in the celebrations? The provisional settlement removes the cause of mourning.

1 The function was arranged on June 16, 1911, by the Natal Indian Congress to bid farewell to Sorabji Shapurji Adajania, who was returning to India on the conclusion of the Transvaal satyagraha campaign.

2 Sorabji first entered the Transvaal as a satyagrahi to test educated Indians’ rights on June 24, 1908; vide “Johannesburg Letter”, 23-6-1908
But the letter1 addressed to the Town Clerk by Mr. Dawad Mahomed and other leaders, we understand, still remains unanswered. If the Town Council cannot see their way to accord the same treatment to all the subject of the Crown, on a unique occasion like the Coronation of our Sovereign, if Europeans cannot forget their prejudice at such a time, we consider that it is the duty of the Indian community to refrain from taking any part in the local official celebrations, to refuse to accept any grant that may made for a separate celebration by us. The community will express its loyalty to the Throne by sending an appropriate message.

We have been informed that the Town Council officials, instead of returning a definite reply to Mr. Dawad Mahomed, are trying to hoodwink the unwary and ignorant or poor Indians to submit to degradation by accepting a miserable grant for a hole and corner celebration among themselves. The market master has, we are told, been approaching the stall-holders and asking them whether they would agree to take part in some tamasha he may arrange for them. We hope that these designs will be frustrated and that the leaders will see to it that not a single Indian in the Borough of Durban has anything to do with the official celebrations.

We would appeal to the Town Council to rise to the occasion. If it boldly decided for the time being to refuse to recognize any racial distinctions, it would perform a service to the model Borough, to South Africa and to the Empire. That brief but happy interruption need not prevent us from resuming our prejudices the day after and setting about quarrelling again. But let the 22nd of June be held as a sacred day on which, at any rate, we may practise Imperial ideals. We are sure that such conduct on the part of the Town Council will be a tangible proof of its loyalty and will please King George much more than any lip-loyalty.

At the time of the late war, on the battle field, all distinctions disappeared as if by magic. Tommy drank from the same cup—or

1 In this letter dated April 18, 1911, Dawad Mahomed and other Natal leaders had expressed the Indians’ inability to join in the Durban Corporation’s Coronation celebrations so long as the Transvaal passive resistance continued. Should, however, a settlement be reached and the Indian community decide to participate, they would join in “the general festivities” provided they were enabled to take an equal part there in with any other section of the population”. But if the corporation made distinctions on racial grounds, they would celebrate the occasion independently of it. Indian Opinion, 22.4.1911.
rather tin—of water as the Indian stretcher-bearer. Tommy shared the same tent with the Indian, and was often glad to have the same food as his Indian brother. There was perfect fellowship between them. We know that incidents like the above gladdened the hearts of the thousand Indians who were on the battle field. Punch was so delighted that it sang, in connection with the incident: “We are sons of the Empire after all.” After the close of the war, we know that the fellowship gave place to bitter jealousy, and consequent discord. But the lesson of the war remained and was repeated at the time of the Zulu revolt. The small band of Indian ambulance-bearers met the Colonial soldier citizen on terms of equality. Captain Sparks and other officers appreciated the corps’s services, and the Indians were enabled again to realize that they were “Sons of the Empire after all”. Is it impossible to repeat the two experiences on the Coronation Day? We appeal to South Africa for an answer.

Indian Opinion, 17-06-1911

451. THE BANQUET

We congratulate the organizers of the Banquet to Mr. Hosken’s Committee on the splendid success that attended their efforts. From all accounts received, this banquet was quite worthy of its predecessors. The response from the Europeans to the invitation of the Reception Committee was liberal. The banquet was the least that the community owed to its European friends and supporters. In the beginning states of the struggle, when everybody poured ridicule on the heads of passive resisters, it required a great deal of nerve, courage and sacrifice on the part of the European sympathizers to stand by us. We know how Mr. Hosken became the butt of the cartoonist. We can have no notion of that these friends of the cause must have been obliged to put up with in their clubs and their churches. Indeed, theirs must have been at times a lot as hard as, if not harder, than that of our

---

1 For the formation of the Indian Ambulance Corps during the Boer War and the work done by it, vide “Indian Ambulance Corps”, 13-12-1899 & “Indian Ambulance Corps in Natal”, 14-3-1900 and “The Natal Volunteer Indian Ambulance Corps”, 12-11-1904.

2 Vide also Satyagraha in South Africa, Ch. IX.

imprisoned countrymen. And yet they never swerved during the four years that the struggle lasted. We echo the sentiments expressed by Mr. Doke, that the European Committee and the passive resisters were true Imperialists, who fought in the teeth of tremendous opposition to uphold Imperial ideals. Let us hope that the happy link established between Europeans and Indians in South Africa will continue to bind the two communities and result in an increase of mutual respect and forbearance. Then will South Africa have set an example worthy to be followed in the other parts of the Empire.

Indian Opinion, 17-6-1911

452. HOSKEN’S PORTRAIT

We publish Mr. Hosken’s portrait as a supplement to this issue and we are sure our readers will welcome it. It was first published in The Star. We have secured it though the courtesy of the paper’s proprietors. We should like our readers to have the portrait glazed and to hang it up in their rooms. We have noticed that Indians have on the walls of their rooms pictorial advertisements set in frames, which are issued by wine and tobacco merchants. At other times, we see meaningless pictures stuck on walls, and we are often judged by the things with which we surround ourselves. We earnestly hope that every Indian will have in his living-room only the portraits of those who have us in their debt or whose memory we wish to cherish, and that they will be careful about the other things with which they choose to surround themselves.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 17-6-1911

453. LETTER TO G. K. GOKHALE

June 17, 1911

DEAR PROFESSOR GOKHALE,

This will be presented to your by Mr. Sorabji Shapurji Adajania, one of the greatest of passive resisters. Of all the rich experiences I have gained during the memorable struggle none has been so great as the discovery of men like Mr. Sorabji. I am sure that you will be glad to meet Mr. Sorabji. He proposes to return in time for the legislation that General Smuts had promised to introduce next year.

I am,

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat of the original in Gandhiji’s hand: G. N. 2247.

454. LETTER TO HERMANN KALLENBACH

Monday [June 19, 1911]¹

MY DEAR LOWER HOUSE,

Yes, I knew about the disturbance at the Farm. None of us is fit to live on a Tolstoy Farm. We can but qualify by making continuous endeavour.

I am having no rest here this time.

It will be a fine thing if the picnic comes off on Thursday. You will have a tough job to tackle.

With love,

Yours,

UPPER HOUSE

From the original: Gandhi-Kallenbach Correspondence. Courtesy: National Archives of India

455. LETTER TO HERMANN KALLENBACH

[Before June 22, 1911]²

MY DEAR LOWER HOUSE,

Well, I was the first to have sent a letter. The Rabbi was all the better for having neglected the forage bag. Mrs. Gandhi was very much upset to think that Manilal should not get the biscuits, etc.

I hope that Big eyes is better as also Devdas.

Have suggested a Coronation picnic at the Farm for the 22nd. Please see my letter to Ritch. Something ought to be done at the time

¹ From the reference to the picnic; vide the following item, and also ”The Coroonation”, 17-6-1911. The Monday before June 22, 1911 was on June 19.

² From the reference to the picnic, evidently in connection with the Coronation of King George V on June 22, 1911; vide ”The Coronation”, 17-6-1911.
of the Coronation.

So long as work is allowed to act upon us by way of intoxication, so long must depression continue. The best deeds if used as intoxicants are practically worthless for the satisfaction of the Inner Man. If I feed a hungry man for show or for satisfying my pride or giving me a false happiness I gain nothing. The hungry man is certainly fed as he might be from a mechanical contrivance, say, by pressing a button.

Manilal is splendid.

With love,

UPPER HOUSE

From the original: Gandhi-Kallenbach Correspondence. Courtesy: National Archives of India

456. LETTER TO H.S.L. POLAK

Friday [June 23, 1911]

MY DEAR HENRY.

I had your letters last week. This week’s I receive tomorrow (Saturday). I leave for J’HB on Monday.

You would have enjoyed yesterday’s scenes in Town. I remained at Phoenix = West went there to report. The whole affair was spontaneous. I merely guided. And yet Ramsay Collins thought the Indians would have accepted anything if I had not been in D[urban]. Anyhow they certainly surpassed themselves. Well, they have had their first lesson in passive resistance. I have told them that they might have to raise passive resistance over the £ 3 tax. West tells me Rustomjee was grand. Abdulla Hajee Adam was superb and defiant. The Mayor of Durban is a cad and a disgrace to Judaism. He showed not a single virtue of a Jew and showed every weakness which the Jew is reported to possess. I was ashamed of him for your sake. In the report, I have laid him down very gently. He was really much worse than he appears in the report. Collins was mad with him. However, he deserves our thanks for waking us up. Hollander may yet be our salvation in Natal.

1 From the contents
2 Parsee Rustomjee
3 F.C. Hollander, Mayor of Durban in 1912 or Durban as Smuts has been in the Transvaal.

I want your comment on the recent numbers of I.O. and more especially on the Coronation Leader.¹

You will see what line to take on the Gold Law from the editorial note this week. Harcourt² has given us a grand opening. Smuts has again overreached himself. He certainly never intended to protect leases up to the period stipulated therein. This is no protection. The Roodepoort case is, I think, accidental.

Another change at Phoenix! As soon as we can we propose giving part of press time to communal agriculture.³ To this end we shall take in more men of a suitable type. Please do not be alarmed. I.O. will not be allowed to suffer. It can only gain by the men coming to their work fresh from the fields. We are performing the opening ceremony of the library and school building tomorrow.

Manilal is more settled now. He does not want to go to London before the struggle is quite over. If satisfactory legislation is passed next year, he intends to leave in March for London.

The account you give me of family affairs is cheering. I am delighted that Pater is doing better than before. You were bound to be satisfied with the boys. They are naturally clever, beautiful and healthy. And I never doubted Millie’s ability to make the most of them.

With love,

Yours sincerely,

Bhai

From the original: Gandhi-Polak Correspondence. Courtesy: National Archives of India

457. THE CORONATION

Our countrymen throughout South Africa sent their loyal greeting to their Majesties on the Coronation Day. It may seem some what anomalous to a stranger why and how British Indians of South Africa should tender their loyalty to the Throne or rejoice over the crowning of Sovereigns in whose dominions they do not even enjoy the ordinary civil rights of orderly men. The anomaly would however,

¹ Vide “The coronation”, 24-6-1911
² Lewis Harcourt, Secretary of State for the Colonies
³ Vide also “Letter to Harilal Gandhi”, 3-7-1911 disappear, if the stranger were to understand the British constitution. British Sovereigns represent, in theory, purity and equality of justice. The ideal of King George is to treat his subjects with equality. His happiness depends upon that of his subjects. British statesmen make an honest attempt to realize the ideals. That they often fail miserably in doing so is too true but irrelevant to the issue before us. The British monarchy is limited and rightly so under the existing circumstances. Those then who are content to remain under the British flag may, ought to, without doing may violence to their conscience, tender their loyalty to the Sovereign for the time being of these mighty dominions, although, like us, they may be labouring under severe disabilities. In tendering our loyalty, we but show our devotion to the ideals just referred to; our loyalty is an earnest of our desire to realize them.

The genius of the British constitution requires that every subject of the Crown should be as free as any other, and, if he is not, it is his duty to demand and fight for his freedom so long as he does so without injuring anyone else. There is no room for helotry and slavery in this constitution, though both exist abundantly. Largely it is the fault of the helots and the slaves themselves. The British constitution provides a happy means of freedom but it must be confessed that it is not easy of adoption. There is no royal road to freedom. British people themselves have reached what they mistake for freedom through much travail and suffering. Yet they are strangers to real freedom—the freedom of self. They cannot and do not blame the constitution for the disability. Nor can we because we have ours. And we have not even bled for our freedom, real or so called. If, however, we understand the spirit of the British constitution, though we suffer from disabilities in this sub-continent and though we are far from happy in the sacred land of our birth, we are bound heartily to shout.

LONG LIVE THE KING!

Indian Opinion, 24-6-1911

458. CORONATION

The Coronation of King George V was celebrated all over the Empire. The Indian residents of this country sent congratulatory cables on the occasion thus declaring their loyalty. We, however, find some Indian asking questions: “Why, and to whom shall we show our loyalty? With what face can we take part in the celebrations? We are submerged in a sea of troubles. Conditions in our dear country give us no cause for rejoicing. That the King is to go to India for his Coronation gives us no reason to be happy. That will only result in the draining of (Indian) money. Indian will only be ruined further.” Such thoughts are but natural. Indeed it is harmful to suppress them. It is necessary, therefore, to put them to the test of logic.

Our view of the matter is that, if those who argue in this manner feel that they cannot be loyal, they should declare their want of loyalty and outlaw themselves. Otherwise they will lay themselves open to the charge of insincerity and cowardice.

We believe, however, that we can remain loyal to His Majesty despite our untold sufferings. Our sufferings here are to be blamed on the local authorities, and more so on ourselves. If we become truthful [that is] if we rebel against ourselves (against the Satanic within us), thus exorcizing the devil, and ourselves manage our affairs instead, we will not have to put up with any hardship whatever and shall be able to declare, ‘Oh, how happy we are under the reign of King George!’ To the extent that we are unable to exorcize the Satan in us, we shall have to take to entreating the local authorities, and we might there by slake our burning woes. If we do not do either, how is King George to blame? Someone may answer saying that everything is done in the name of King George, and therefore the credit for the good things and blame for the wrong things should both be his. What we have said above disposes of that argument. The British monarchy is not free, but is confined within limits. These checks are implicit in that British system of monarchy. If the King oversteps the limits, he will be dethroned.

Moreover, the British Constitution aims at securing equality of rights and equality before the law for every subject. Those who do not enjoy such equality are free to fight for it, the only restriction being that the mode of agitation shall not harm others. Not only is every British subject free to fight in this way, but it is his duty to do so. It is a duty to express one’s loyalty to such a constitution and to its head, the King Emperor, for that will only be an expression of loyalty to one’s own manhood. The loyalty of a slave is no loyalty. He only serves. If a slave can be loyal, that must be due to coercion. The loyalty of a free man is willed.
It may be urged against this reasoning that it would justify submission even to a wicked king or a vicious constitution; the argument then is not quite proper. For instance, we could not, as free men, be loyal to the pre-War Boer constitution and to its head, President Kruger, for the constitution itself laid down that there shall be no equality between Europeans and Coloureds in the governance of the country or in ecclesiastical affairs. We cannot fight such a constitution and be loyal to it at the same time. In a situation like that we would have to defy not only the head but the basis of his authority as well. If we refused to fight, we would cease to be men and be thought brutes. If the British Constitution were to change and lay down that there would be no equality, not even in theory, as between whites and Coloureds, we could no longer owe allegiance to such a constitution and would have to oppose it. Even in such a contingency, however, we could remain loyal to the King within limits; such is the virtue of the British system. It is not here necessary to explore these limits for the question does not arise.

It must be remembered that the British people won what they consider their freedom after they had let rivers of blood flow. Real freedom, however, even they have yet to win. We, on the other hand, have shed no blood, endured nothing, for the sake of freedom, real or imaginary. The Transvaal satyagrahis alone gave evidence of having suffered in some measure in the course of their great campaign. But their suffering was a drop in the ocean. Only when we come forward to suffer as much—and infinitely more—shall we succeed in winning freedom for ourselves. The British Constitution permits one to seek this freedom. The British Emperor must wish that all his subjects get such freedom; such is the British way. And there are Englishmen who sincerely strive to act on these principles according to their own lights. We can, therefore, and ought to, remain loyal to the British Emperor, our grievances notwithstanding.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 24-6-1911
459. HONOUR TO A SATYAGRAHI

When Mr. Harilal Gandhi arrived at Zanzibar on his way to India, he was recognized and given a welcome by the Zanzibar Indians. He demurred but to no avail. He was taken to Mr. Wali Mohammed Nazar Ali’s house where he was entertained lavishly. Replying to a reception [given in his honour,] Mr. Harilal Gandhi pointed out that the Transvaal campaign had shown what an unfailing remedy satyagraha was. Should there be foul play yet again, satyagrahis, whichever part of the world they might happen to be in, would return to join the struggle, and so on.

[From Gujarati]

Indian Opinion, 24-6-1911

460. POLAK’S WORK

Though Mr. Polak has not been in England for long,² he has set to work in right earnest. He has met a number of persons. He spoke at a meeting of the League of Honour¹ and again at a function organized by the All-India Muslim League. It was Mr. Polak who drafted the statement¹ addressed by the [SABI] Committee to the Secretary of State for the Colonies and he has set out all the issues in that document. The problem of stands in Vrededorp has been suitably dealt with, and pointed attention has been drawn to the consequences of the Gold Law. Mr. Polak is thus always immersed in the selfsame task, wherever he may be. He has no other interests apart from the problem of South African Indians. Surely, this is no small matter. For only when a person loses himself in duty will he be capable of dedication. Mr. Polak has a profound understanding of this maxim and remains imbued with it. If the Indian community produced a number of persons like him, India would be free soon. In doing his

¹ This article was based evidently on an account of the event given by Harilal in a letter to Gandhiji; vide “Letter to Harilal Gandhi”; 3-7-1911
² Polak left Johannesburg on May 1, 1911 and arrived in London in the third week of May, 1911.
³ On the conditions of Indians in South Africa
⁴ Vide Appendix “S.A.B.I. Committee’s Letter to Colonial Office”, 17-6-1911 own duty. Mr. Polak has served to remind us of ours.

[From Gujarati]
Indian Opinion, 1-7-1911

461. JOHANNESBURG

POLAK’S LETTER

We have had two letters from Mr. Polak after his arrival in England. He writes that he has had an interview with Mr. Justice Ameer Ali\(^1\) and that he has met Mr. Gupta of the Indian Office. He has had talks with Lord Lamington\(^2\). He also called on other gentlemen and ladies.

Mr. Polak’s address was considered the best among all those delivered at the League of Honour. He attended and addressed two meetings of the All India Muslim League.

[From Gujarati]
Indian Opinion, 1-7-1911

---

\(^1\) A weekly despatch, “Johannesburg Letter”, appeared almost regularly in Indian Opinion from March 3, 1906, onwards (Vol. V. “Letter to Chhaganlal Gandhi”, 17-2-1906 & “Johannesburg Letter”, 26-2-1906), but from October 16, 1909, the word “Letter” was dropped from its title and Gandhiji seems to have contributed only occasional paragraphs.

\(^2\) Justice Syed Ammeer Ali (1849-1928) C.I.E; Bar-at-law; Judge of the Calcutta High Court, 1890-1904; in November, 1909, became the first Indian member of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council; a member also of the SABI committee and President of the London branch of the All-India Muslim League; author of Islam and books on Mohammedan law.

\(^3\) Sometime Governor of Bombay and a sympathizer of the Indian cause who became a member of the SABI committee in January, 1909; in November that year, asked a question in the House of Lords regarding the hardships suffered, during the Ramzan fast, by Muslim satyagrahis in Transvaal jails. Indian Opinion, 27-2-1909 and India, 19-11-1909.
FRAGMENT OF LETTER TO DR. PRANJIVAN MEHTA

[After July 1, 1911]

. . . I feel it would be a mistake if you imagined that we would get the young men we wanted the moment I get to India, As I understand it, we shall have the same difficulties we had to face in this country. It will do us credit if we leave for India only after the work we have begun here has been put on a firm footing. I have not yet had a quiet stay at phoenix. It would be good in a way, I think, if I could free myself from the cares of legal practice and devote myself to teaching for a year or so. I am not taking on any new responsibilities here. I am only trying to put the existing ones in order.

Arrangements are being made to keep the men occupied in the press for half the time and on the land during the other half. I intend to engage a larger number of suitable persons for the purpose. Only thus can men be released from the press. As a result of [men] being engaged in farming, the land will improve but there will be no profit in the immediate future. By this arrangement [on the contrary], I feel it will become difficult for me to meet the monthly expenses. I feel inclined to ask you to bear the expenses for the additional men. If we extend our activities, it is likely that the expenditure will in all amount to about £1,000. If you can possibly allow this expenditure, please do. The land is very likely to appreciate in value as a result of the expenditure that will be incurred.

This is over and above the help have already asked for. At any cost we must start a school on a larger scale at phoenix. I am thinking of leaving here to go round for funds for this purpose.

I often feel it will be better still if you come over here once, while on your way to India, and see phoenix. Chhaganlal must have

1 The earlier pages of this letter are missing. Judging from the contents, however, it would appear to be addressed to Dr. Mehta. The first sentence, in particular seems to be a further discussion of Gandhiji’s scheme for educating satyagrahis which Dr. Mehta was to finance; vide “letter to Dr. Pranjivan Mehta” 8-5-1911.

2 Chhaganlal Gandhi, whose departure is mentioned in the letter, left India in the first week of July, 1911, reaching South Africa on July 20.
left this week.

Bande Mataram from
MOHANDAS
From the Gujarati original in Gandhiji’s hand: C.W. 5088 Courtesy: C. K. Bhatt

463. LETTER TO H.S.L. POLAK

Unrevised

Sunday night [On or after July 2, 1911]¹

MY DEAR HENRY,

I have your letter describing your achievements, for such they are. Pleases me all the more to notice that you can now combine honeymoon, pilgrimage to your people and work and all this in a manner agreeable to you and Millie. Your and Millie’s desires have been mostly fulfilled without your having to worry about them. You have sought first the Kingdom of God (what you thought was your duty) and everything else (the trip to London, meeting your people, etc.) has been added up to you. May your work and your joint life flourish in the best manner possible. I am giving fair notices² of your work in the Gujarati columns of I.O. I am rather cautious about London. Where for public good you think that a longer notice is necessary, please warn me in time. I may neglect these things as my attention is now chiefly devoted to the education of the boys on the Farm. I allow nothing to disturb me during school hours at present.³ I only hope that nothing will happen to disturb me. Pray for me. I go to Town only twice a week. I propose to draw up the Trust Deed⁴ and when it is fixed up I shall make collections in S. A. for a large school at Phoenix. The staff will be you, West, Chh., Maganlal⁵, Purushottamandas and myself. Miss West⁶ will be the boarding superintendent. If your procreating ambitions and your animal passions are satisfied, I

¹ From the contents it is evident that the letter was written on or after July 2, 1911, which was a Sunday.
² Vide “Polak’s Work”, 1-7-1911 and “Johannesburg “, 1-7-1911
³ Vide “Fragment of Letter to Manilal Gandhi”, about 25-7-1911
⁴ Vide “Letter to Maganlal Gandhi”, 17-7-1911. For its final version vide “The phoenix Trust deed”, 14-9-1912
⁵ Son of Khushalchand Gandhi, Gandhiji’s cousin
⁶ Ada West, sister of A.H. West, who had adopted the Indian name ‘Devi’ would certainly like Millie to take her share in the school work. Harilal may come in later. Thakar may expand sufficiently to come in also.

Medh is at present doing I.O. collections. I shall know tomorrow what success he is having. Did I tell you that Medh had given to our ideals 10 years under a double vow of truth and brahmacharya. That reminds me to tell you that Pragji is a possible candidate for Phoenix, subject to the above vows.

I had your cable. You must by this time have received Gregg’s opinion and Townships Act, etc.

With love to you all and kisses to the angels,

Yours,

Bhai

From the original: Gandhi-Polak Correspondence. Courtesy: National Archives of India

464. LETTER TO HARILAL GANDHI

July 3, 1911
7.30 p.m.

CHI. HARILAL,

I got your letter from Zanzibar at Phoenix. There could not have been any subsequent to that, I am expecting one again in a few days. As regards the reception you were given at Zanzibar, I was happy that most of those who took part were Khojas and Secondly, that they were not put off by the mention of satyagraha. Your reply was good. I thought it proper to insert a short paragraph about it in Indian Opinion and you must have seen it. The Star publishes every week a biographical sketch of some well known person and they have published mine, too. I send you a cutting [herewith]. Please pass it on to Sorabji after reading it. He must have reached there by now.

Our people in Durban put up a fine show indeed. On Coronation Day I had been to Phoenix. The credit for the

1 Vide also “Letter to Harilal Gandhi”, 3-7-1911
2 Vide also the following item.
3 A Muslim sect
4 Vide “Honour to a Satyagrahi”, 24-6-1911
5 The reference is too the Durban Indians’ boycott of the Coronation celebrations; vide also “The Coronation”, 17-6-1911 demonstrations on that day should, therefore, go to the local fighters.

Here, registration has not yet begun. I expect to send the first list to Mr. Chamney tomorrow.

I had a talk about a good many things with Manilal. He is thinking of going to England next year if the campaign is not resumed. His work in the press is good.

I have probably written to you about the vow Medh has taken. I have now taken up school work on the Farm. I wonder how long I can keep it up. Pillay’s children have all left and he himself is not here either.

Thambi Naidoo now lives in Johannesburg all the time. P.K. Naidoo is here.

Be went to Phoenix with me. It was found necessary to take her.

I have had no letter from Chanchi for a long time now.

Your brothers are all happy. They are sitting beside me reading while I write this. It is 7.30 p.m.

Messrs Ritch and Pragji arrived at the Farm today (Sunday). I propose to spend five days [in the week] at the Farm and the remaining two at Johannesburg,

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati original in Gandhiji’s hand S.N. 9531

1 Montford Chamney, whom Gandhiji ironically described as “His Lord ship” (vide “Johannesburg letter”, before 10-1-1908) occupied high administrative positions in the Transvaal for the duration of the satyagraha campaigns, holding successively the offices of Protector of Immigrants, Registrar of Asiatics and Principal Immigration Officer. During the 1908 campaign, he filed affidavits saying that Smuts had made no promise to repeal the Asiatic Registration Act. Gandhiji later accused him of “hopeless incompetence” and demanded his dismissal. Vide “Speech at Mass Meeting”, 16-8-1908 & Appendix, “Chamney’s Affidavit”, 25-6-1908 and “Johannesburg Letter”, 3-10-1908.

2 Medh had taken a vow to observe brahmacharya for ten years.

3 P.K. Naidoo; born in South Africa, was one of the “valiant fighters” who repeatedly suffered imprisonment throughout the satyagraha campaign in South Africa; rendered particular service during the Great March of 1913; was an office-bearer of the Tamil Benefit Society. Gandhiji, in his account of his imprisonment of January, 1908, describes him also as “a master of the tonsorial art” vide “My Experience in Gaol[-II]”, 14-3-1908, also Satyagraha in South Africa Ch. XXXI & XLIV.

4 Chanchalbehn Gandhi, addressee’s wife

5 Sunday was July 2, whereas the letter is dated July 3.
465. KRUGERSDORP BAZAAR

The action of the Municipality of Krugersdorp in trying persistently to abolish the Asiatic Bazaar or Location at Krugersdorp is quite on a par with the zeal that the European residents of that dorp have generally shown in their anti-Asiatic crusade. The School Committee has been a willing tool in the hands of the interested agitators. But we hope that the Krugersdorp Indians will not fail to place before the authorities the other side of the question. We have little to say regarding compensation. For that question cannot arise unless Indian consent to vacate the Stands they occupy or unless they are by law compelled to do so. We wish merely to point out that the state of things the School Committee blame has been deliberately brought about by those who have control of the Location. The threat of removal has hung over the heads of the Indian residents of that Location for several years. We are sorry if the school children have to overlook the closets of that Location. Give the residents fixity of tenure, and we promise that in a month’s time they will carry out all desirable alterations. We know that our harassed countrymen have pleaded, times without number, that they should be placed in a position to construct substantial and up-to-date buildings on their Stands. Not only has no encouragement have given to them in that direction but they have been actually thwarted in any such effort they have made. To say the least, it is dishonest to blame them for a state of things for which their very detractors are largely if not entirely responsible.

Indian Opinion, 8-7-1911

466. INDIAN WIVES

The decision of Justice Wessels in the matter of an application on behalf of an Indian woman to enter the Transvaal, being the wife of a registered Indian. Raises points of the highest importance to the 1 Vide “Krugersdorp Agitators”, 3-6-1911.

2 Vide “Johannesburg”, 8-7-1911
Indian throughout South Africa. The lady in question is the same person who was some time ago turned away by the Immigration Officer at Durban and whose case we have already referred to. The Judge’s remarks show that Bai Rasul (for that is the applicant’s name) has been unduly hampered in her endeavour to make good her claim. The Judge said that, if the Court had the power, he would have granted a temporary permit to enable the applicant to produce the necessary proof of her marriage. Had the Immigration Officer granted such a permit, there would have been no case in the Court. We still hope that Bai Rasul will be given every facility to prove her claim. For surely, there is no question of Indian competition in trade.

But what is of greater importance is the Judge’s obiter dictum that an Indian may not bring more than one wife. Hitherto those who have more than one wife have been allowed to bring them without any let or hindrance. If the Judge’s dictum is sound law, all we can say is that it will have to be altered. In British Dominions, wherein all religions are respected, it is not possible to have laws insulting to any recognized religion flourishing under it. To hold otherwise in this country would simply create misery in many an Indian household in South Africa. We are glad, therefore, that the British Indian Association and the Hamidia Islamic Society have already moved in this matter. It ought to be possible to settle this matter without any agitation being necessary.

Indian Opinion, 8-7-1911

467. JOHANNESBURG

TALE OF KRUGERSDORP

Indians living in the Krugersdorp Location should not become complacent. We learn from a Krugersdorp newspaper that the conflict between the Government and the Municipality regarding the Location continues. It is thanks to the local School Committee that the issue has

---

1 Adamjee, an old registered resident of the Transvaal, brought over Bai Rasul, his wife, from India, at Durban, the Immigration Officer refused her permission to disembark, although normally such immigrants were allowed to land temporarily on furnishing a bail of £10. Bai Rasula then attempted to enter the Transvaal from Delagoa Bay, and her case eventually went up to the Transvaal Supreme Court. For a report of the judgment, vide the following item.

2 Vide “Krugersdorp Bazaar”, 8-7-1911.
become public knowledge. It has complained that pupils of the school which overlooks the Location have to suffer the sight of Indian closets. The municipal authorities have replied to the School Committee saying that £1,100 would have to be paid to the Indians as compensation if the Location were to be shifted. The Government contends that this sum should be paid by the Municipality. The municipality has argued that it should not be asked to pay this money, because it is the Government which has been pocketing the income (from the Location). As it was the Government that had set up the Location, it should itself pay. The editor of the newspaper has suggested that the Europeans should hold mass meetings, pass resolutions, make the Government pay this amount and have the Location shifted. It appears to have been agreed at a previous meeting of the Committee that the compensation of £1,100 would have to be paid.

My own advice to the Indians living in the Location is that they should immediately address the Government and the Municipality saying that they are willing to make the necessary improvements in the building if allowed to do so. They should also say that they had given no undertaking as to the shifting of the Location and that it is impossible to shift as there is a mosque within its precincts. I hope the Indians in the Location will not delay action in this matter.

DEPORTATION ORDER CANCELLED

There is an Indian youth named Mr. N. Dala. He was arrested in Barberton and ordered to be deported. The main reason for this order was that he was believed to be eighteen years of age. His friends sought Mr. Ritch’s advice and told him that Mr. Dala was not in fact over sixteen years of age. His case was then referred to the Supreme Court for getting the order of deportation cancelled. A medical practitioner deposed in Court that Mr. Dala’s age should be around sixteen. On the strength of his evidence the Court has cancelled the deportation order. The plea was that the law did not confer any authority [on the Court] for deporting young Indian below sixteen. Mr. Dala has not however, secured the right of residence in the Transvaal as a result of this case. He will have to submit an application for this purpose, and he will get a registration certificate only if he is legally entitled to it. Only Mr. Dala benefits from the judgement in this case; otherwise there is nothing noteworthy about it.
But the judgment given by the Supreme Court last week in the case of Bai Rasul is an important one. Bai Rasul is Mr. Adamjee’s wife. Some facts of this case have already appeared in Indian Opinion. As she could not disembark in Natal, she went to Delagoa Bay with her husband and from there tried to enter the Transvaal. The case then went up to the Supreme Court, the demand being that Mr. Chamney, the Immigration Officer, should not restrain her (from entering the Transvaal). It was an intricate case. When Mr. Adamjee got his registration certificate, his marriage with Bai Rasul had already been solemnized. Even so, he had mentioned (in his application) the name of the women from whom he was divorced as his present wife. Hence it became difficult for him to prove that Bai Rasul was his present wife. Giving its ruling, the Court said that no one could bring his concubine into the Transvaal. That the former wife [of Mr. Adamjee] had been given a divorce was not proved to the Court’s satisfaction, nor that the marriage with Bai Rasul had been duly solemnized. For these reasons the Court did not grant the prayer and dismissed the suit with costs. The Court said in the course of the judgement that if it had the power, it would have granted a temporary permit to Bai Rasul to enable her to prove her right (of entry) but that it was not so empowered.

If the Court’s verdict has stopped here, there would have been no great difficulty. But the court went on to observe that, if a person had more than one wife, he could grant right of entry only to one of them, that is, the first wife. Other wives could not be deemed lawful. If this opinion of the judge stands and the [Immigration] Officer acts on it, our Muslim brethren are likely to be greatly inconvenienced. So far there has been no difficulty in securing entry for as many wives as a person had, but now objections are likely to be raised.

Both the Hamidia Islamic Society and the [British Indian] Association will soon launch a campaign in this regard.

I hope Mr. Adamjee’s advisers will now have Bai Rasul brought to Durban and then proceed cautiously in the matter. As regards marriage and divorce, it is necessary to produce affidavits from respectable Moulvis and others. Bai Rasul’s affidavit will also have to be produced along with these. If this is done, I believe that the court

---

Vide the preceding item cannot but pass an order [in her favour]. Once an order is obtained in the case of Durban, she will clearly have no difficulty in entering the Transvaal.

[From Gujarati]
Indian Opinion, 8-7-1911

468. LETTER TO MAGANLAL GANDHI

Ashadh Vad 1 [July 12, 1911]

CHI. MAGANLAL,

Herewith Chi. Chhaganlal’s letter. He appears to be well and truly contrite. Copy out a sentence from Thoreau occasionally and give it to Mr. West for use in Indian Opinion. I must now wait for Chhaganlal’s cable. That there hasn’t been one so far suggests that again there has been some obstacle to his coming here. It is good that Jamnadas also is coming.

Today I found your letter concerning the dream you had at Phoenix about Tolstoy. I must have preserved it with the intention of writing something in reply. There is no need to attach any importance to dreams. They might merely mirror our fancies. It will be enough if we always keep our attention fixed on goodness.

Blessings from

MOHANDAS

From the Gujarati original in Gandhiji’s hand: C.W. 5636. Courtesy:
Radhabehn Choudhri

---

1 The reference to Chhaganlal Gandhi’s impending arrival in South Africa, would suggest that this letter was written before that event. That was in 1911, in which year Ashadh Vad 1 corresponds to July 12. The date is confirmed by the fact that Gandhiji had already, by July 3, shifted to Tolstoy Farm; vide “Letter to Harilal Gandhi”, 3-7-1911.
APPENDICES

APPENDIX I

LETTER FROM GENERAL MANAGER, C. S. A. R., TO GANDHIJI

Johannesburg, April 11, 1910

SIR,

With reference to the interview that Mr. Bell, Solicitor to the Railway Administration Mr. Hoy, Assistant General Manager, and the undersigned had with Mr. Cachalia and yourself this morning, I now place on record, as agreed, a summary of the understanding arrived at in the course of the discussion, namely:—

1. That Regulations 221 to 224 inclusive be replaced by the following:

   221. It shall be lawful for the General Manager where practicable to set apart different compartments on trains for passengers of different races, and the passengers for whom the compartments are so reserved shall travel only in such compartments and no other, nor will any other compartment be considered as available. Such compartments shall be marked “Reserved”.

   222. It shall be competent for the guard or the conductor or any other railway official to remove passengers from one compartment to another without giving any reason therefor.

   223. It shall be competent for the station-master or other authorised official to refuse a first or second-class ticket to any passenger who may, in his opinion, not be dressed in a decent or cleanly condition.

   224. The penalty provided in Section 42 of the Act will apply to any contravention of Regulations 221 to 223, inclusive.

2. That the foregoing alterations in the wording of the regulations have been adopted so as to meet the views and wishes of the community Mr. Cachalia and yourself represent.

3. That the manner in which the regulations and the authority entrusted to the Administration has been carried out in the past has been acceptable to the Asiatic community with the exception of such cases as have been brought specially under notice and which, when it was found that there was just cause for complaint, have been dealt with in a manner that you and the community you represent considered to be proper and just.

4. I undertook that the Administration would continue to act in this spirit, and it was agreed that, should it be represented to you at any time that any member of the staff has acted in an improper manner and you have satisfied yourself by previous enquiry that there has been good cause for complaint, you would communicate with the Assistant General Manager and the Administration would, after investigation, deal with the case as the circumstances call for, and in the spirit of requiring justice and proper treatment being extended to yourselves and to your countrymen.

5. For the purpose of giving effect to the foregoing, you approved, on my suggestion, that while the regulations to be published should be framed in the manner now provisionally agreed to, there would be no objection to the Administration renewing the instructions to the staff on the lines at present obtaining or with such modification of the existing instructions as circumstances may from time to time call for.

6. It was agreed that, in giving effect to the intention of the agreement now arrived at, toleration would have to be exercised, and that, if an instance should occur (as it is quite possible may be the case) when, say, one of your countrymen might desire to travel by a train and the officers of the Administration considered difficulty and possibly disturbance would probably result therefrom, it shall be open to the officers of the Administration, at their discretion, to require such passenger to travel by another train, and if needs be on another date.

7. It was further agreed that should difficulties arise in connection with the proposed new regulations which may seriously interfere with their practical working, a meeting would be convened with a view to altering the regulations, and you undertook to approach the question of such alteration in the spirit in which our present discussion has been conducted.

8. May I take this opportunity of reiterating the expression of satisfaction I conveyed to Mr. Cachalia and yourself at the spirit in which the discussion had been conducted by both of you and which has resulted in the arrangement now arrived at subject to confirmation by the Transvaal and Orange River Colony Governments and the Railway Board.

I have, etc.,
T. R. Price
General Manager

Colonial Office Records: C.D. 5363

APPENDIX II

W. J. WYBERGH’S LETTER TO GANDHIJI

JOHANNESBURG,
May 3, 1910

MY DEAR MR. GANDHI,

Many thanks for your letter and the pamphlet on Indian Home Rule. I have been prevented by business from giving adequate study to it until the last few days. I find it very difficult to criticise it adequately within reasonable length because I do not think that on the whole your argument is coherent or that the various statements and opinions you express have any real dependence upon one another. I am also inevitably rather ignorant of the actual conditions in India and am afraid, therefore, of being presumptuous in expressing any opinion upon the correctness or otherwise of many facts which you appear to take for granted and make the basis of argument. Meanwhile I must say that on many questions of fact you are at variance with ordinary opinion. To begin with, as to the question of “loyalty”. I must say that while, as a rule, you avoid giving any occasion for specific charges of disloyalty, yet there are so many subtle hints and ambiguous expressions, so many things left unsaid, and so many half-truths put forward, that I am not at all surprised at anyone considering the book highly dangerous. Granting that you do not intend to be disloyal, yet I am sure that the average plain ignorant man without intellectual subtlety would suppose that you were preaching against British rule in India, for you attack everything which the plain man would identify with this rule. You discourage violence, but only because you think violence is both wrong and ineffective, not because the object sought is wrong.

On the far more important general principle underlying your book I must say definitely that I think you are going wrong. European civilisation has many defects and I agree with many of your criticisms, but I do not believe that it is “the Kingdom of Satan” or that it ought to be abolished. It appears to me a necessary step in the evolution of mankind, especially manifested in and suitable for Western nations.
While I recognise that the highest ideals of India (and Europe too) are in advance of this civilisation, yet I think also, with all modesty, that the bulk of the Indian population require to be roused by the lash of competition and the other material and sensuous as well as intellectual stimuli which “civilisation” supplies. You are practically preaching “liberation” in the religious and metaphysical sense as the immediate aim of all humanity, for that is what your Swadeshi in its best sense, as explained in Chapters XVI and XVII, and as illustrated throughout the book, really means. Now you individually, and others individually, may have arrived at the stage where it is right to make this the immediate ideal, but the bulk of humanity have not;
and I agree with Mrs. Besant when she says that there is a real danger in preaching “liberation” to people who are not ready for it. She says somewhere that what the bulk of the people in India require is not to abandon desire and activity in the lower worlds but to increase them and learn from them, and that passivity for them means stagnation. That does not mean that all the forms of Western civilisation are suitable for India, and I don’t doubt that we British have erred (in all good faith) in trying to introduce British institutions indiscriminately. But Western ideals are necessary to India, not to supersede but to modify and develop her own. India ought, I think, to be governed on Indian lines, (whether by Indians or Englishmen is another question) but “civilisation” is both necessary and useful, if it grows naturally and is not forced and it cannot be avoided. To turn now to the still more general application of your ideals, apart from Indian questions:—Firstly, I think you are confusing between “passive resistance” and “non-resistance”. What you call “soul-force” and “passive resistance” have nothing to do with love or spirituality in themselves. In advocating these things instead of physical force, you are only transferring the battle and the violence from the physical to the mental plane. Your weapons are mental and psychic, not physical, but also not spiritual. You are still fighting to win, and fighting harder than ever, and, in my opinion, all fighting in modern times is tending to become more and more a matter of intellectual and psychic force and less of physical force. It is not thereby becoming more moral or less cruel, rather the reverse, but it is becoming more effective. Personally, I have grave scruples about employing “soul-force” for the attainment of physical or political objects, however strongly I may believe in the value of those objects and the justice of my cause. In political life it is often a great temptation to me to do so, for, as you know, I feel very strongly on political questions; but, while, of course, I regard all possible means of intellectual persuasion and argument as right and necessary, I think that the use of what you call “soul-force” for concrete ends as dangerous in the extreme, and I always have in mind the refusal of Christ to use “soul-force” for even the perfectly harmless and apparently legitimate purpose of making stones into bread. I think that in this story a very profound truth is conveyed. Now, while I think this is very wrong, it does not follow that those who, even while using wrong methods, are unselfishly working for a cause (however mistaken) will not reap for themselves the moral and spiritual benefit which follows upon all unselfish sacrifice, and I am sure that you will do so and are doing so, but I think this is not due to your methods but in spite of them, and that it is actually due to your motives. But there is a danger to others less single-minded. As the Bhagavad Gita says: “He who sitteth controlling the organs of action, but dwelling in his mind on the objects of the senses, that bewildered man is called a hypocrite.” It would be better to use the “organs of action” I think!

But taking the “passive resistance” movement as a whole, on the assumption that what you are really aiming at is not merely a political object but the assertion of the superiority of non-resistance, of love and of true inner freedom as against the compromises and conventions of life, it does not seem consistent that you should allow yourselves to be regarded as martyrs, or complain of the hardships of prison (not that you yourself have, I believe, ever done this) or make political capital out of what seems to you injustice or ill-treatment, or indeed allow the matter to be advertised in the Press or send deputations to England and India and generally carry on a political agitation. If it is really a matter of religion, then I think that the truest heroism is not concerned in this exceedingly active “passive resistance” but that it consists in suffering as private individuals and saying nothing about it.

Of course, if the object is political, all these things become questions of tactics and may be very proper and useful weapons according to circumstances. Personally, while I admire heroism displayed in a political cause, and the very real heroism of many “passive resisters” I must say that it seems in no way superior to the more active forms displayed by soldiers or rioters or revolutionaries. Neither does it differ from or deserve more sympathy than that which has been shown by many quite ordinary sufferers in other political causes and such as, for instance, the anti-Asiatic movement. It so happens that neither the soldiers nor the opponents of Asiatic immigration have been called upon to go to prison, but both alike in their respective spheres and according to their duty have risked and often lost that which they held most dear in a cause which, though not strictly “religious”, they regarded as most sacred. The physical sufferings of soldiers at any rate have vastly exceeded those of “passive resisters” yet, if the soldier complains that the bullets are too hard or that campaigning is uncomfortable and therefore that the enemy is treating him most unkindly, he is regarded as simply ridiculous. Of course, under certain circumstance, it is good tactics to parade your injuries, but that is a matter for you to decide.

Finally, I come to the question of “non-resistance” itself, and its proper use and place. It appears to me that for the individual saint, seeking liberation, for whom the time has come when the personality has to be killed out and the whole world order transcended, in order that the pure spiritual consciousness may unfold,—for him non-resistance may be the right course. I do not presume to speak of this with certainty because I do not know. In its very nature, however, non-resistance of this description can have no political end in view, for its object is to enable a man to escape and transcend the world altogether. But, as a practical political principle suitable for adoption by ordinary men living the ordinary life of citizens, it seems to me altogether pernicious, and utterly disastrous to the public welfare. It is mere anarchy, and I have always regarded Tolstoy, its principal apostle, as very likely a saint personally, but when he preaches his doctrines as a political propaganda and recommends them for indiscriminate adoption, as the most dangerous enemy of humanity. I have no manner of doubt that Governments and laws and police and physical force are absolutely essential to average humanity, and are as truly “natural” in their stage of development and as truly moral as eating and drinking and propagating the species. To undermine them without being ready to substitute something else a little better but still of the same character is simply to destroy the possibility of all advance. Therefore, to my mind, such preaching is far more injurious than more disloyalty, which after all only proposes to substitute another Government. It is a fatal confusion to suppose that what is right for the saint is right for everyone else. “Render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar’s and unto God the things that are God’s.” When all humanity has reached sainthood Government will become unnecessary but not till then. Meanwhile civilisation must be mended, not ended. Even if as regards India you are right and Mrs. Besant is wrong, and it is really the case that India should be deprived of the Government both of British rulers and of Indian princes, and each man should be a law unto himself, I am at any rate quite clear that for Western nations and for South Africa such ideas are fatal. It would, if true, only illustrate how fundamental are the differences between Indian and European, and would practically justify South Africa in taking extreme measures to get rid of the Indian population. Has it not occurred to you that, if your ideas about India are correct, your conclusion in Chapter XX that “deportation for life to the Andamans is not enough expiation for the sin of encouraging European civilization” would apply with great force to deportation from the Transvaal to Delagoa Bay or to India? I have written at far too great a length, but you have raised very interesting and important issues in your pamphlet and have asked me to criticise. Let me assure you that you and others like you have my most sincere respect and most affectionate regard and admiration, and that, as a matter of public duty, I shall continue to oppose both your object and your methods to the utmost of my ability.

Yours very sincerely,

W. Wybergh

PS.

As you once invited me to contribute to Indian Opinion an essay on passive resistance, which at the time I was unable to do, it occurs to me that you might like to publish this letter. If so, please do so.—W. W.

Indian Opinion, 21-5-1910

APPENDIX III

(i)

V. Chertkov’s Letter to Gandhi

My friend Leo Tolstoy has requested me to acknowledge the receipt of your letter to him of August 15 and to translate into English his letter to you of September 7th (new style 20th September) written originally in Russian.

All that you communicate about Mr. Kallenbach has greatly interested Tolstoy, who has also asked me to answer for him to Mr. Kallenbach’s letter.

Tolstoy sends you and your co-workers his heartiest greetings and warmest wishes for the success of your work, his appreciation of which you will gather from the enclosed translation of his letter to you. I must apologise for my mistakes in English in the translation, but, living in the country in Russia, I am unable to profit by the assistance of any Englishman for correcting my mistakes.

With Tolstoy’s permission, his letter to you will be published in a small periodical printed by some friends of ours in London. A copy of the magazine with the letter shall be forwarded to you, as also some English publications of Tolstoy’s writings issued by The Free Age Press.

As it seems to me most desirable that more should be known in England about your movement, I am writing to a great friend of mine and of Tolstoy—Mrs. Fyvie Mayo1 of Glasgow—proposing that she should enter into communication with you. She possesses considerable literary talent and is well known in England as an author. It should be worth your while furnishing her with all your publications which might serve her as material for an article upon your movement which, if published, in England, would attract attention to your work and position. Mrs. Mayo will probably write to you herself.

1 A journalist and translator of Tolstoy, she had written an article on the Transvaal Indians’ struggle.
With sincerest good wishes from myself. Kindly transmit to Mr. Kallenbach the enclosed letter.

V. Chertkov

(ii)

TOLSTOY’S LETTER TO GANDHIJI

“Kotchety”¹, Russia, September 7, 1910

I have received your journal Indian Opinion and I am happy to know all that is written on non-resistance. I wish to communicate to you the thoughts which are aroused in me by the reading of those articles.

The more I live—and specially now that I am approaching death—the more I feel inclined to express to others the feelings which so strongly move my being, and which, according to my opinion, are of great importance. That is, what one calls non-resistance, is in reality nothing else but the discipline of love undeformed by false interpretation. Love is the aspiration for communion and solidarity with other souls, and that aspiration always liberates the source of noble activities. That love is the supreme and unique law of human life, which everyone feels in the depth of one’s soul. We find it manifested most clearly in the soul of the infants. Man feels it so long as he is not blinded by the false doctrines of the world.

That law of love has been promulgated by all the philosophies—Indian, Chinese, Hebrew, Greek and Roman. I think that it had been most clearly expressed by Christ, who said that in that law is contained both the law and the Prophets. But he has done more; anticipating the deformation to which that law is exposed, he indicated directly the danger of such deformation which is natural to people who live only for worldly interests. The danger consists precisely in permitting one’s self to defend those interests by violence; that is to say, as he has expressed, returning blow by blows, and taking back by force things that have been taken from us, and so forth. Christ knew also, just as all reasonable human beings must know, that the employment of violence is incompatible with love, which is the fundamental law of life. He knew that, once violence is admitted, doesn’t matter in even a single case, the law of love is thereby rendered futile. That is to say that the law of love ceases to exist. The whole Christian civilisation, so brilliant in the exterior, has grown up on ¹ An English translation by Pauline Padlashuk, Johannesburg, was published in Indian Opinion, 26-11-1910, under the title “Count Tolstoy and Passive Resistance: A Message to the Transvaal Indians”. A translation by Aylmer Maude is also available in Tolstoy’s Recollections and Essays published by Oxford University Press.

² Castle of Tolstoy’s eldest daughter 472 this misunderstanding and this flagrant and strange contradiction, sometimes conscious but mostly unconscious.

In reality, as soon as resistance is admitted by the side of love, love no longer exists and cannot exist as the law of existence; and if the law of love cannot exist, therein remains no other law except that of violence, that is, the right of the mighty.
It was thus that the Christian society has lived during these nineteen centuries. It is a fact that all the time people were following only violence in the organisation of society. But the difference between the ideals of Christian peoples and that of other nations lies only in this: that, in Christianity the law of love had been expressed so clearly and definitely as has never been expressed in any other religious doctrine; that the Christian world had solemnly accepted that law, although at the same time it had permitted the employment of violence and on that violence it had constructed their whole life. Consequently, the life of the Christian peoples is an absolute contradiction between their profession and the basis of their life; contradiction between love recognised as the law of life, and violence recognised as inevitable in different departments of life: like Governments, Tribunals, Army, etc., which are recognised and praised. That contradiction developed with the inner development of the Christian world and has attained its paroxysm in recent days.

At present, the question poses itself evidently in the following manner: either it must be admitted that we do not recognise any discipline, religious or moral, and that we are guided in the organisation of life only by the law of force, or that all the taxes that we exact by force, the judicial and police organisations and, above all, the army must be abolished.

This spring, in the religious examination of a secondary school of girls in Moscow, the Professor of Catechism as well as the Bishop had questioned the young girls on the ten commandments and above all on the sixth “Thou shalt not kill”. When the examiner received a good reply, the Bishop generally paused for another question: Is killing proscribed by the sacred Law always and in all cases? And the poor young girls perverted by their teachers must reply: No, not always; killing is permitted during war, and for the execution of criminals. However, one of those unfortunate girls, (what I relate is not a fiction but a fact that has been transmitted to me by an eye-witness) having been asked the same question, “Is killing always a crime?” was moved deeply, blushed and replied with decision “Yes, always.” To all the sophisticated questions habitual to the Bishop, she replied with firm conviction: killing is always forbidden in the Old Testament as well as by Christ who not only forbids killing but all wickedness against our neighbours. In spite of all his oratorical talent and all his imposing grandeur, the Bishop was obliged to beat a retreat and the young girl came out victorious.

Yes, we can discuss in our journals the progress in aviation and such other discoveries, the complicated diplomatic relations, the different clubs and alliances, the so-called artistic creations, etc., and pass in silence what was affirmed by the young girl. But silence is futile in such cases, because every one of this Christian world is feeling the same, more or less vaguely, like that girl. Socialism, Communism, Anarchism, Salvation Army, the growing criminalities, unemployment and absurd luxuries of the rich, augmented without limit, and the awful misery of the poor, the terribly increasing number of suicides—all these are the signs of that inner contradiction which must be there and which cannot be resolved; and without doubt, can only be resolved by acceptance of the law of love and by the rejection of all sorts of violence. Consequently, your work in Transvaal, which seems to be far away from the centre of our world, is yet the most fundamental and the most important to us supplying the most weighty practical proof in which the world can now share and with which must participate not only the Christians but all the peoples of the world.

I think that it would give you pleasure to know that with us in Russia, a similar movement is also developing rapidly under the form of the refusal of military services augmenting year after year. However small may be the number of your participators in non-resistance and the number of those in Russia who refuse military service, both the one and the other may assert with audacity that “God is with us” and “God is more powerful than men”.

Between the confession of Christianity, even under the perverted form in which it appears amongst us Christian peoples, and the simultaneous recognition of the necessity of armies and of the preparation for killing on an ever-increasing scale, there exists a contradiction so flagrant and crying that sooner or later, probably very soon, it must invariably manifest itself in utter nakedness; and it will lead us either to renounce the Christian religion, and to maintain the governmental power, or to renounce the existence of the army and all the forms of violence which the state supports and which are more or less necessary to sustain its power. That contradiction is felt by all the governments, by your British Government as well as by our Russian Government; and, therefore, by the spirit of conservatism natural to these governments, the opposition is persecuted, as we find in Russia as well as in the articles of your journal, more than any other anti-governmental activity. The governments know from which direction comes the principal danger and try to defend themselves with a great zeal in that trial not merely to preserve their interests but actually to fight for their very existence.

With my perfect esteem,

LEO TOLSTOY

From Tolstoy and Gandhi by Dr. Kalidas Nag

APPENDIX IV

TRANSVAAL MINISTERS’ DECLARATION

In view of the gravity of the cases of the sons of Messrs Chhotabhai and Tayob Haji Khan Mahomed, we give the following extracts from the Blue-book dated October, 1908, containing “correspondence relating to legislation affecting Asiatics
in the Transvaal”:

Extract from Colonial Secretary’s Speech on the Second Reading of the Asiatics Registration Amendment Bill, August, 1908

The third difficulty that they felt against Act 2 of 1907 referred to children. That Act provided machinery under which it was necessary not only the adult males but also minors between the ages of 8 years and 16 years should register. There was no special reason really for that provision that minors of those ages should be registered, and, as a matter of fact, in the voluntary registration that had taken place I had adopted an alternative procedure which was just as effective, viz., where the parent had been registered, the names, ages, and description of the children up to the age of 16 were inserted on each certificate, so that if a parent at any future date said he had five children it would be quite easy from the certificate to identify these children. That was all that was thought necessary, and that I embodied in the voluntary certificates, and therefore there was no trouble in meeting the Asiatics [sic] and embodying them in the law. Hon. members will see, that is the third innovation made in the Bill—that minors below the age of 16 shall not be required to have certificates of administration, but shall be taken up in the certificates of their parents.”

Extracts from the Prime Minister’s Minute to the Governor,
Dated the 5th September, 1908

Nine points were raised by the Asiatics, and these were recorded in writing as representing their final demands; and, after a discussion lasting some hours, it was decided to meet their views as far as possible and to allow no opportunity for any reasonable men to say that such views had not been met in the widest possible spirit. The objections met were as follows:

1. Alteration of the definition of the term “Asiatic” so that Mahomedan subjects of the Turkish Dominions should not as expressed in Law 3 of 1885 be specially described as Asiatics.

2. Unregistered Asiatics domiciled in the Transvaal for three years prior to the 11th October, 1889, should be allowed to return and register themselves, provided they made their applications within one year of the coming into force of the new Act.

3. The names of male minor Asiatics to be recorded on their parents’ certificates and their registration not to be required until they reached the age of sixteen years.

4. Thumb-impressions should not be required from applicants for trading licences who could sign their names in English in formed handwriting.

5. An appeal from the decision of the Registrar of Asiatics refusing to register an applicant for registration should be allowed to a Magistrate specially appointed to hear all such appeals.

6. The provision in Act 2 of 1907 allowing Asiatics under certain circumstances to acquire liquor should be deleted on the grounds that it... was contrary to the religion of the majority of the persons concerned to consume the same.

(7) While Act 2 of 1907 was to remain on the Statute Book all Asiatics holding Certificates of Registration under the Validating Act were to be specially exempted from the provisions of the Asiatic Law Amendment Act.

(8) Transfer of certain property in Pretoria to be allowed in favour of the heirs of a deceased Indian named Aboobaker Amod who had acquired the property before the passing of Law 3 of 1885.

The ninth subject of discussion was the fresh demand made for the immigration of Asiatics not claiming previous domicile in the Transvaal but who could pass an educational test. This is a claim which Ministers had previously decided was inadmissible, and, even had it been otherwise, it is difficult to see by what means a Bill providing for the immigration of Asiatics of the class in question could be passed through either of the Houses of Parliament in view of the almost universal feeling of the white Colonists on the subject. The Asiatic leaders were informed that in this single respect, their wishes could not be met, and this was distinctly understood by them. A Select Committee representing all parties in the Legislative Assembly was then appointed to re-draft the Bill in accordance with the arrangement come to. The Committee consisted of Sir Percy Fitzpatrick, Messrs Jacobsz, Chaplin, Wybergh, and the Colonial Secretary and a copy of their report, dated the 20th ultimo, submitting a new draft Bill is attached.

EXTRACT FROM THE REPORT OF THE ATTORNEY-GENERAL, DATED 9TH SEPTEMBER, 1908

IV. The minor Asiatic (i.e., a boy under sixteen) will be included in the certificate of his parent or guardian. Under Act No. 2 of 1907, it was the duty of the parent or guardian, if the child was under eight, to furnish the necessary particulars relative to him, and when such child attained the age of eight to apply for registration on his behalf. Under the New Act the child, when he attains the age of sixteen, will have to apply for registration, and, if he attained that age while he was outside the Colony and he desires to take up his residential rights (if any) in it he will have to apply from a place outside the Colony but in South Africa.”

Indian Option, 10-9-1910
APPENDIX V

IMMIGRANTS’ RESTRICTION BILL

(1911)

Re-printed from “The Union of South Africa Government Gazette Extraordinary”, dated the 25th February, 1911

GOVERNMENT NOTICE NO. 353 OF 1911

The subjoined Bill, “To Consolidate and Amend the Laws in force in the various Provinces of the Union relating to Restrictions upon Immigration thereto, to provide for the Establishment of an Union Immigration Department and to regulate Immigration into the Union or any Province thereof”, is hereby published for general information.

W. E. Bok,
SECRETARY TO THE PRIME MINISTER

PRIME MINISTER’S OFFICE,
CAPE TOWN, 24TH FEBRUARY, 1911

BILL

TO

Consolidate and Amend the Laws in force in the various Provinces of the Union relating to Restrictions upon Immigration thereto, to provide for the Establishment of an Union Immigration Department and to regulate Immigration into the Union or any Province thereof.

To be introduced by The Minister of the Interior

Be it enacted by the King’s Most Excellent Majesty, the Senate, and the House of Assembly of the Union of South Africa as follows:

PRELIMINARY

1. The laws mentioned in the First Schedule to this Act shall be and are hereby repealed to the extent set out in the fourth column of that Schedule, together with so much of any other law as may be repugnant to or inconsistent with the provisions of this Act.

2. In this Act, and in the regulations made thereunder, unless inconsistent with the context

“department” shall mean the Immigration Department established under this Act;

“immigration officer” shall mean the chief immigration officer or any other officer of the department, or any other person, whether an officer of the department or not, on whom powers have been conferred or to whom duties have been assigned by the Minister as to the carrying out of this Act or the regulations;

VOL. 11 : 11 APRIL, 1910 - 12 JULY, 1911 477

“magistrate” shall mean a chief magistrate or a resident or assistant resident magistrate;

“master”, in relation to a ship, shall mean any person (other than a pilot) for the time being in charge or command of any ship;

“Minister” shall mean the Minister of the Interior, or any other Minister to whom the Governor-General may assign the administration of this Act;

“owner”, in relation to a ship, shall, in addition to the actual owner, include the charterer of the ship, or any agent within the Union of the owner or charterer;

“police officer” shall mean any member of a police force established in the Union under the authority of law;

“port” or “port of entry” shall mean
(a) any place on the coast of the Union; or
(b) any railway station or place within the Union at or near any border thereof, at which entry into the Union can be effected;

“regulation” shall mean a regulation made and in force under this Act;

“ship” shall include any vessel or boat of any kind whatsoever used in navigation, whether propelled by sails, steam power, or other mechanical means, or by towing or oars or in any other manner whatever.

THE IMMIGRATION DEPARTMENT

3.(1) The Governor-General may establish and, out of moneys voted by Parliament for the purpose, maintain a department to be known as the Immigration Department, which shall be under the control of the Minister.

(2) The function of the department shall be the performance of all work, whether within or outside the Union, necessary for or incidental to the prevention of the entrance of prohibited immigrants into the Union, or the entrance of persons into any Province wherein their residence is unlawful, or necessary for or incidental to their removal from the Union or any such Province. The department shall further carry out any other powers and duties specially conferred or imposed upon it by this Act or by regulation.

CHAPTER I

Prohibited Immigration

4. The entry into the Union by land or sea of any such person as is described in this section (in this Act and the regulations referred to as a “prohibited immigrant”) is forbidden, namely,

(a) any person who, when an immigration officer dictates to him not less than fifty words in the language selected by such an officer, fails to write out those words in that language to the satisfaction of that officer;
(b) any person who is likely, if he entered the Union, to become a public charge, by reason of infirmity of mind or body, or because he is not in possession for his own use of sufficient means to support himself and his dependents;

(c) any person who, from information received from any Government (whether British or foreign) through official or diplomatic channels, is deemed by the Minister to be an undesirable inhabitant of or visitor to the Union;

(d) any prostitute, or any person, male or female, who lives on or knowingly receives any part of the earnings of prostitution or who procures women for immoral purposes;

(e) any person who has been convicted in any country of any of the following offences (unless he has received a free pardon therefor), namely, murder, rape, arson, theft, receiving stolen goods knowing the same to have been stolen, fraud, forgery or uttering forged documents knowing the same to have been forged, counterfeiting coin or uttering coin knowing the same to be counterfeit, house-breaking with intent to commit an offence burglary, robbery with violence, threats by letter or otherwise with intent to extort, or of any attempt to commit any such offence, and by reason of the circumstances connected with the offence, is deemed by the Minister to be an undesirable inhabitant of or visitor to the Union;

(f) any idiot or epileptic, or any person who is insane or mentally deficient, or any person who is deaf and dumb, or deaf and blind, or dumb and blind, or otherwise physically afflicted, unless in any such case he or a person accompanying him or some other person give security to the satisfaction of the Minister for his permanent support in the Union, or for his removal therefrom whenever required by the Minister;

(g) any person who is afflicted with leprosy or with any such infectious, contagious or loathsome or other disease, as is defined by regulation, or who is of a low or degenerate type of the human species.

PERSONS NOT PROHIBITED

5. The following persons or classes of persons shall not be prohibited immigrants for the purposes of this Act, namely,

(a) any member of His Majesty’s Regular Naval or Military Forces;

(b) the officers and crew of a public ship of any foreign State;

(c) any person who is duly accredited to the Union by or under the authority of His Majesty or the Government of any foreign State, or the wife, family, staff or servants of any such person;

(d) any person who enters the Union, under such conditions as may be prescribed from time to time in accordance with any law or under any convention with the Government of a neighbouring territory or state and who is not such a person as is described in paragraph (b), (c), (d), (e), (f), or (g) of the last preceding section.

OFFENCES AND PENALTIES

6.(1) Every prohibited immigrant who, after the commencement of this Act, enters or is found within the Union, shall be guilty of an offence and liable on conviction

(a) to imprisonment with or without hard labour for a period not exceeding three months without the option of a fine; and

(b) to be removed at any time by the Minister’s warrant from the Union.

(2) Pending the removal, the prohibited immigrant may be detained in such custody as may be prescribed by regulation.

(3) The prohibited immigrant may be discharged from the imprisonment or custody aforesaid if security be given to the satisfaction of the Minister that the prohibited immigrant will within one month leave the Union, and not return thereto.

(4) Every such sentence of imprisonment shall terminate as soon as the prohibited immigrant is removed from the Union.

(5) Every officer in charge of a prison or gaol shall, if the warrant of removal be produced to him, deliver the prisoner named therein to any police officer or immigration officer, and the prisoner shall be deemed to be in lawful custody so long as he is in the custody of any such police officer or immigration officer, or of any police officer or immigration officer for the time being in possession of the warrant.

PROVINCIAL RESTRICTION

7. The provisions of the last preceding section shall apply mutatis mutandis in respect of every person who, though domiciled in any Province, enters or is found in any other Province in which, according to the provisions of any law in force at or immediately prior to the commencement of this Act, he has unlawfully entered or has been found to be residing unlawfully, and any such person shall, in respect of the said other Province, be liable to be dealt with as in the last preceding section is described and removed to the Province wherein he is domiciled. For the purposes of this Act every such person shall be a prohibited immigrant in respect of the said other Province.

TRADING LICENCES

8.(1) No prohibited immigrant shall be entitled to obtain a licence to carry on any trade or calling in the Union or (as the case may be) in any Province wherein his residence is unlawful or to acquire therein any interest in land, whether leasehold or freehold.

(2) Any such licence (if obtained by a prohibited immigrant) or any contract, deed or other document by which any such interest in land is acquired in contravention of this section, shall, on conviction of the prohibited immigrant as such, be null and void.
ARR ESTS

9.(1) Every person who is suspected on reasonable grounds of being a prohibited immigrant may be arrested without warrant by an immigration officer or police officer, and shall be brought as soon as possible before a court of resident magistrate to be dealt with according to law.

(2) Any magistrate may, if information on oath be laid before him that there is upon any premises a named or described person reasonably suspected of being a prohibited immigrant issue a warrant empowering a police officer of or above the rank of sergeant to enter those premises and search for the person named or described in that warrant, and arrest him.

PLEA OF IGNORANCE

10. No prohibited immigrant shall be exempt from the provisions of this Act or the regulations, or be allowed to remain in the Union, or in any Province wherein his residence is unlawful, by reason only that he had not been informed that he could not enter the Union or (as the case may be) that Province, or that he had been allowed to enter through oversight, misrepresentation, or owing to the fact having been undiscovered that he was such a prohibited immigrant.

CHAPTER II

Special Powers for preventing entry of and dealing with Prohibited Immigrants at Ports of Entry

11.(1) Any immigration officer may, as and when he deems fit, board any ship which is entering or has entered a port.

(2) Any immigration officer may, whenever it is necessary for the more effectual carrying out of this Act or the regulations, prohibit or regulate any communication with, or landing on the shore from, any ship on which the immigration officer is proceeding with the examination of persons or which has on board or is suspected of having on board any prohibited immigrant, and the immigration officer may take such steps to carry out any such prohibition or regulation as the Minister may approve.

(3) Any immigration officer may order the master of any ship to moor or anchor the ship at such distance from the shore or landing place or in such position as the immigration officer may consider expedient for enabling the provisions of this Act or the regulations to be carried out effectually.

DUTIES OF SHIPS’ CAPTAINS

12. It shall be the duty of the master of any ship which enters any port to deliver to an immigration officer upon demand

(a) a list of all passengers on board the ship, classified according to their respective ports of destination and specifying the class which each such passenger has voyaged and such further particulars as may be prescribed by regulation;
(b) a list of stowaways, if any have been discovered;

(e) a list of the crew and all persons (other than passengers or stowaways) employed or carried on the ship in any capacity by or on behalf of the owner;

(d) a certificate under the hand of the medical officer (if any) of the ship or, if there be no medical officer, under his own hand, stating any known cases of disease whether infectious or otherwise which have occurred upon the voyage or any known cases of physical or mental, infirmity or affliction, the names of the persons who have suffered or are suffering therefrom and the nature in each case of the disease, infirmity or affliction.

PLACE OF DETENTION

13.(1) If it appear to an immigration officer (whether upon the representation of the master or otherwise) that any person prohibited from landing ought, for the better carrying out of the objects and purposes of this Act, to be kept elsewhere than on the ship which conveyed him, the immigration officer may cause him to be removed in, custody from the ship and to be detained in any other place, whether afloat or on shore, which may be appointed by the Minister for the detention of prohibited immigrants.

(2) Every such person shall, while detained, whether on board the ship or at any such other place aforesaid, be deemed to be in the custody of the master and not of the immigration officer, and the master shall further be liable to pay the cost of the landing; removal, detention, maintenance, and control of any such person while so detained.

(3) As soon as the ship is about to sail (due notice whereof shall be given by the master to the immigration officer) any prohibited immigrant removed under this section from the ship shall, if the immigration officer so require, be placed thereon again.

(4) The immigration officer may, prior to the said person being landed, require the master or the owner of the ship to deposit a sum sufficient to cover any expense that may be incurred by the department in connection with the landing, removal, detention, maintenance and control aforesaid.

(5) If for any reason any such prohibited immigrant be not placed again on the ship, in accordance with sub-section (3), the owner shall, without payment by the Government, provide, at the request of the immigration officer, a passage with proper food and accommodation, in another ship, for the prohibited immigrant to the place at which he originally embarked.

(6) Any such person who escapes or attempts to escape from detention, while being dealt with under the powers of this section, may be arrested without warrant, and shall, in addition to any other offence which he may have committed under this Act, be deemed to have committed an offence in respect of the escape or attempt to escape.
FORFEITS

14.(1) If after a ship has arrived at any port, any prohibited immigrant lands from the ship at that port without proper authority, the master or the owner shall forfeit a sum to be fixed by the Minister but not exceeding one hundred pounds in respect of every such prohibited immigrant.

(2) Until the sum so fixed has been paid and until the owner or the master has, to the satisfaction of the immigration officer, provided for the removal from the Union of every such prohibited immigrant, no clearance papers shall be given to the master or to the owner.

(3) The ship may be declared executable by order of a Superior Court to satisfy any forfeiture incurred under this section.

MEMBERS OF THE CREW

15.(1) On or after the arrival and again before the sailing of a ship at any port, an immigration officer may require the master to muster his crew and may serve upon him a list of such of the crew as are prohibited immigrants.

(2) If any of the crew, being prohibited immigrants, do not answer to the names at the later muster, the master or the owner of the ship may be required before the ship sails to deposit with the immigration officer a sum of twenty pounds in respect of each such person so missing.

(3) Any such sum shall be forfeited to the Government unless the master or owner prove to the satisfaction of the chief immigration officer, within six months thereafter, that the person in respect of whom the sum was deposited is no longer in the Union.

(4) Until any sum required under this section is deposited no clearance papers shall be given to the master or owner.

(5) The ship may be declared executable by order of a Superior Court to satisfy any forfeiture incurred under this section.

AN AGREEMENT

16. For the purpose of facilitating the clearance of ships habitually calling at the various ports, the Minister may, in his discretion, enter into a bond or agreement with the owner whereby the owner undertakes that he or the masters of ships belonging to him and so calling at ports will carry out so much of the provisions of the last two preceding sections as relate to the owner or the master, and thereupon the provisions of the said bond or agreement shall be substituted for those sections so far as they relate to the payment or deposit of moneys by the master or the owner.

CLEARANCE PAPERS

17. A port captain or harbour master shall not permit a ship to leave port or to go to any outer harbour or anchorage unless clearance papers be produced to him.
CHAPTER III

General and Miscellaneous

18. An immigration officer may require any person entering the Union to make a declaration in the form prescribed by regulation that he, or any person accompanying him, is not a prohibited immigrant and to state in the declaration such further particulars as may be prescribed by regulation, and may require him to fill in and complete in every respect that form and to produce, in support of the declaration, documentary or other evidence.

Every such declaration shall be exempt from any stamp duty ordinarily imposed by law on affidavits and solemn declarations, anything to the contrary notwithstanding in any law in force in the Union relating to stamp duty.

Any person who fails on demand to comply with any provision of this section or who declares upon the form anything as a fact or produces or gives such evidence as aforesaid, which he knows to be false, shall be guilty of an offence.

PERSONAL EXAMINATION

19.(1) Every person entering the Union shall, if required, appear before an immigration officer and furnish such information as is prescribed by this Act or the regulations relative to his claim to enter the Union.

(2) Every person entering the Union who is on reasonable grounds suspected of being afflicted with any disease or physical or mental infirmity which would under this Act or the regulations render him a prohibited immigrant shall, if required by an immigration officer, submit himself to examination by a medical practitioner appointed by the Minister for the purpose.

AIDING AND ABETTING

20. Any person, who

(a) aids or abets any person in entering or remaining within the Union or any Province in contravention of this Act or the regulations, knowing that person to be prohibited from so entering or remaining;

(b) aids or abets a person ordered to be removed from the Union or any Province in evading the order, or harbours any such person knowing him to be the subject of any such order;

(c) for the purpose of entering the Union, or any province wherein his residence is unlawful, or of assisting the entrance of any other person, in contravention of this Act or the regulations, commits any fraudulent act or makes any false representation by conduct, statement or otherwise, shall be guilty of an offence and liable on conviction to a fine not exceeding one hundred pounds or, in default of payment, to imprisonment with or without hard labour for a period not exceeding six months, or to such imprisonment without the option of a fine.

IMMORAL AND OTHER OFFENCES

21. Any person, who

(a) has been convicted, whether before or after the commencement of this Act, of a contravention of any of the provisions enumerated in the Second Schedule thereto, or of any amendment of those provisions;

(b) having been removed at the expense, either whole or partial, of any Government from the Union or any part thereof now included in the Union, or being the subject of an orderly under any law to leave the Union or any part thereof now added in the Union, returns thereto without lawful authority, or has failed to comply with the terms of any such order;

(c) having been refused by an immigration officer permission to enter the Union or any Province, has entered the Union or that Province;

(d) admits to an immigration officer in a written document that he is a prohibited immigrant either in the Union or in any Province, may, if not already under detention, be arrested without warrant and removed from the Union or (as the case may be) from the Province, by the Minister’s warrant and, pending removal may be detained in such custody as may be prescribed by regulation.

DEPORTATION

22. Any person (not being a natural born British subject, or a person naturalized in any part of His Majesty’s dominion), who, whether before or after the commencement of this Act, if serving a sentence of imprisonment for any of the offences mentioned in paragraph (e) of section four and who by reason of the circumstances connected with the offence is deemed by the Minister to be an undesirable inhabitant of the Union, may, during or at the expiration of his sentence, be removed from the Union by the Minister’s warrant, and, pending removal, may be detained in such custody as may be prescribed by regulation. The provisions of sub-section (4) and (5) of section six shall be deemed to be incorporated mutatis mutandis in this section.

THE BURDEN OF PROVING

23.(1) The burden of proving that a person has not entered or remained in the Union or any Provinces in contravention of this Act or any regulation shall, in any prosecution for or in respect of such a contravention, lie upon the accused person.

(2) Any order, warrant, or other document, which under this Act or the regulations may be issued by the Minister, shall be good and effectual if signed by any officer in the public service authorized by the Minister by notice in the Gazette to sign such an order, warrant, or other document, and when so signed shall be evidence in all courts of law and for other purposes that it was issued in accordance with the provisions of this Act or the regulations.
MAGISTRATES’ POWERS

24. A court of resident magistrate shall have special jurisdiction to impose the maximum penalties provided for a contravention of this Act or the regulations, anything to the contrary notwithstanding in any law relating to courts of resident magistrate.

TEMPORARY PERMITS

25.(1) Anything to the contrary notwithstanding in this Act contained, the Minister may in his discretion issue a temporary permit to any prohibited immigrant to enter and reside in the Union or any particular Province upon such conditions as to period of residence or otherwise as the Minister may in the permit specify.

(2) The Minister may also in his discretion issue a permit to any person who at the commencement of this Act is lawfully resident in the Union or any Province and who, desiring to proceed thereout with the intention of returning thereto, is for any reason apprehensive that he will be unable to prove on his return that he is not a prohibited immigrant. The permit in this sub-section mentioned shall expressly authorise the person named therein to return to the Union or the particular Province (as the case may be), but before issuing the permit the Minister shall require such proof of the said person’s identity and such means of identification to be furnished as may be prescribed by regulation.

AUTHORITY TO MAKE REGULATIONS

26.(1) The Governor-General may make regulations, not inconsistent with this Act, prescribing

(a) the duties of immigration officer;
(b) the steps to be taken to prevent the entrance of prohibited immigrants into the Union or the entrance of persons into any Province in which their residence is unlawful;
(c) the times, places, and conduct of the enquiry or the examination, medical or otherwise, of persons entering or desiring to enter the Union or any Province or who, being found in the Union or any Province, are suspected of being prohibited immigrants or unlawfully resident therein;
(d) the procedure for, and the manner of, the detention of prohibited immigrants and unlawful residents pending their removal from the Union or any Province, and the procedure necessary for and the manner of any such removal;
(e) lists of infectious, contagious, loathsome or other diseases, the affliction with which will render a person a prohibited immigrant;
(f) the issue of permits described in the last preceding section, the conditions upon which any such permit may be issued, the fees which may be charged therefor, and the amount and the nature of the security to be found for the due carrying out of any such conditions;

(g) the conditions under which prohibited immigrants may be allowed to pass through the Union while journeying or being conveyed to a place outside the Union or from one Province to another within the Union;

(h) the forms of warrants, permits, certificates, declarations, books, or other documents to be used, or to be made or kept, for the purposes of this Act or the regulations, and the particulars to be inserted on or in any such document;

and generally for the better carrying out of the objects and purposes of this Act.

(2) The regulations may provide penalties for the contravention thereof or failure to comply therewith, not exceeding the penalties mentioned in the next succeeding section.

Penalties

27. Any person, who—

(a) for the purpose of entering the Union or any particular Province, or of remaining there in contravention of this Act or any other law, or assisting any other person so to enter or so to remain, fabricates or falsifies any permit or other document or utters, uses or attempts to use any permit or other document which has not been issued by lawful authority or which though issued by lawful authority, he is not entitled to use or any fabricated or falsified permit or other document knowing it to have been falsified; or

(b) fails to comply with or contravenes the conditions under which any permit or other document has been issued to him under this Act or the regulations; or

(c) obstructs, hinders, or opposes an immigration officer or police officer in the execution of his duty under this Act or the regulations; or

(d) contravenes or fails to comply with any provision of this Act or the regulations for the contravention whereof or failure to comply therewith no penalty is specially provided;

shall be liable on conviction to a fine not exceeding fifty pounds, or, in default of payment, to imprisonment with or without hard labour for a period not exceeding three months, and, in the case of a contravention of paragraph (a) or (b) of this section, to such imprisonment without the option of a fine.

Title of the Act

28. This Act may be cited for all purposes as the Immigrants’ Restriction Act, 1911, and shall commence and come into operation on the first day of 1911.
FIRST SCHEDULE

LAWS REPEALED

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Province</th>
<th>No. and Year of Law</th>
<th>Title or Subject of Law</th>
<th>Extent of Repeal</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Cape of Good Hope</td>
<td>Act No. 30 of 1906</td>
<td>The Immigration Act, 1906</td>
<td>The whole</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Natal</td>
<td>Act No. 30 of 1903</td>
<td>The Immigration Restriction Act, 1903</td>
<td>The whole</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Act No. 3 of 1906</td>
<td>To Amend the Immigration Act, 1903</td>
<td>The whole</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Transvaal</td>
<td>Act No. 2 of 1907</td>
<td>The Asiatic Law Amendment Act, 1907</td>
<td>The whole, except so far as it is applicable to the registration of minors lawfully resident in the Transvaal</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Act No. 15 of 1907</td>
<td>The Immigrants’ Restriction Act, 1907</td>
<td>The whole</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Act No. 38 of 1908</td>
<td>The Immigrants’ Restriction Amendment Act, 1908</td>
<td>The whole</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Orange Free State</td>
<td>Law No. 18 of 1899</td>
<td>The admission and expulsion of aliens to and from the Orange Free State</td>
<td>The whole</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Ordinance No. 25 of 1902</td>
<td>The Indemnity and Peace Preservation Ordinance, 1902</td>
<td>Sections nineteen to twenty-four, inclusive</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
SECOND SCHEDULE

PROVISIONS REFERRED TO IN PARAGRAPH (a) OF SECTION TWENTY-ONE

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Province</th>
<th>No. and Year of Law</th>
<th>Title or Subject of Law</th>
<th>Section Contravened</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Cape of Good Hope</td>
<td>Act No. 36 of 1902</td>
<td>The Betting Houses, Gaming and Brothels</td>
<td>Sections twenty-two, thirty-one, thirty-two and thirty-three</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Natal</td>
<td>Act No. 31 of 1903</td>
<td>The Criminal Law Amendment Act, 1903</td>
<td>Sections three, thirteen, fourteen and fifteen</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Transvaal</td>
<td>Ordinance No. 46 of 1903</td>
<td>The Immorality Ordinance, 1903</td>
<td>Sections three, thirteen, fourteen and twenty-one</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Act No. 16 of 1908</td>
<td>The Criminal Law Amendment Act, 1903</td>
<td>Section four and Section five, paragraph (a)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Orange Free State</td>
<td>Ordinance No. 11 of 1903</td>
<td>The Suppression of Brothels and Immorality Ordinance, 1903, as amended by Ordinance No. 19 of 1908</td>
<td>Sections two, eleven, twelve and thirteen</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Indian Opinion 4-3-1911
APPENDIX VI

CAPE PETITION TO PARLIAMENT

CAPE TOWN,
March 15, 1911

1. At a public meeting of British Indians held on the 12th instant under the auspicies of, the above Association, a resolution was unanimously passed directing your Petitioners to petition this Honourable House on the subject of the Immigrants' Restriction Bill, 1911, at present before it.

2. Much as your Petitioners regret that the existing restrictions upon the free movements between the Provinces of British Indians lawfully domiciled within the Union are to be maintained, they recognise that they cannot reasonably close their eyes to the popular prejudices that unhappily exist against their class and consequently they accept this decision of the Government, fervently hoping that a better understanding of them will at some future date lead to a removal of the restrictions.

3. Your Petitioners earnestly desire however to bring to the notice of the Honourable House the many respects in which their position as lawfully-domiciled residents of this Province will be altered for the worse:

(a) Instead of their education test being, as it is under the existing laws of the Province, one in an European language selected by the would-be immigrant, the choice of the language is to be absolutely with the Immigration Officer.

(b) The Immigration Officer is to be invested with other powers so absolute as your Petitioners submit may possibly lead to serious cases of hardship.

(c) The wives and minor children of lawfully-domiciled residents are not protected from the danger of exclusion as prohibited immigrants.

(d) British Indians born in the Province and others lawfully-domiciled therein who are temporarily abroad upon their return are liable to be called upon to pass the education test and to be excluded in the possible event of their failing.

(e) British Indians domiciled within the Province who desire to absent themselves temporarily may be refused permits such as are now

---

1 This petition to the Legislative Assembly was presented to Parliament, signed by Messrs Adam H. Gool Mahomed, Shamsudin Casimali and Abdul Hamid Gool, M.B., in their capacities as Chairman and Joint Honorary Secretaries, respectively, of the Cape British Indian Union.
granted them and thus either be prevented from attending to matters of importance abroad or have to face the danger of rejection upon their return. Your Petitioners humbly submit that certificates of domicile should be granted to all applicants for them who shall prove residence in the Province for a period to be specified.

(f) No right of appeal to the Courts of Law of the Union against the decision, however arbitrary, of the Immigration Officer, is provided for in the Bill under consideration.

4. Your Petitioners therefore humbly pray that this Honourable House will amend the Bill in terms of the above suggestions humbly and respectfully submitted and thereby preserve the rights hitherto enjoyed by them under the Laws of the Union and the Province, or grant such other relief as to this Honourable House may seem meet.

Indian Opinion, 25-3-1911

APPENDIX VII

LANE’S LETTER TO GANDHIJI

March 16, 1911

DEAR MR. GANDHI,

With reference to my telegram of the 4th instant, it was not meant to convey to you the idea that Chapter XXXIII of the Orange Free State Laws would be cancelled. No provision was made for this in the Schedule and it was never the intention of the Government to repeal the Chapter.

An amendment will be moved which will, in effect, exempt the educated Indian immigrants from registration under the Transvaal Act No. 36 of 1908. They will thus have full power to reside and to travel in Cape Colony, Natal and the Transvaal, but will not be able to reside in the Orange Free State without complying with the provisions of the local law.

With regard to the second point you raised, I regret to say that the difficulty is not appreciated by the department and perhaps you will be good enough to give a more detailed expression of your views, when the matter will be again considered.

Indian Opinion, 25-3-1911
YOUR LETTER OF 20TH AND TELEGRAM OF 22ND MARCH RECEIVED. IN REPLY I AM DIRECTED TO INFORM YOU THAT THERE SEEMS TO BE A WRONG IMPRESSION REGARDING MATTER MENTIONED BY YOU. THERE WILL BE NO COLOUR OR RACIAL BAR OF ANY KIND WHATSOEVER AT EATING IN IMMIGRATION BILL OR ANY AMENDMENT WHICH GOVT. INTEND TO MOVE YOU HAVE REPEATEDLY STATED THAT INDIAN COMMUNITY DESIRE AS A FINAL SETTLEMENT OF THE ASIATIC QUESTION ONE REPEAL ACT 2 OF 1907 TWO EDUCATION TEST FOR ALL UNDER A NEW IMMIGRATION ACT AND DIFFERENTIAL ADMINISTRATION. NOT ONLY DOES GENL. SMUTS CONCEDE THESE POINTS BUT HE GOES FURTHER AND PROPOSES TO EXEMPT EDUCATED INDIANS ADMITTED UNDER NEW ACT FROM REGISTRATION IN TRANSVAAL WHERE THE TROUBLE HAS ARISEN. HE WILL ALSO MOVE AMENDMENTS IN REGARD TO RIGHTS OF DOMICILED OR LAWFULLY RESIDENT PERSONS WIVES AND MINORS WHICH WILL LEAVE THE RIGHTS OF ASIATICS IN NATAL AND CAPE AS THEY ARE TODAY. YOU ARE THEREFORE WRONG IN THINKING THAT THE POSITION OF ASIATICS IS MADE WORSE UNDER THE PROPOSED BILL. THEIR EXISTING RIGHTS WILL BE MAINTAINED EVERYWHERE AND NO STATUTORY DIFFERENTIATION WILL BE MADE. IN REGARD TO YOUR CONTENTION CONCERNING THE ORANGE FREE STATE GENERAL SMUTS HAS NOTHING TO SAY AND PROPOSES LEAVING THE SITUATION AS IT EXISTS UNDER THE PRESENT LAW OF THE PROVINCE. GENL. SMUTS ASKS ME TO SAY IN CONCLUSION THAT IN ACCORDANCE WITH THE STATEMENT IN THE FIRST PARAGRAPH OF YOUR LETTER OF 4TH INST. HE HOPES YOU WILL DO YOUR BEST TO SEIZE THE OPPORTUNITY THAT NOW OFFERS OF BRINGING THE STRUGGLE TO A CLOSE AND WILL NOT RISK A CONTINUATION OF THE PRESENT UNSATISFACTORY POSITION BY THE ABSOLUTELY NEW CONTENTION REGARDING THE O. F. S. SUCH AN ATTITUDE ON YOUR PART WILL HE FEARS EXASPERATE THE EUROPEAN COMMUNITY AND COMPLICATE THE POSITION STILL FURTHER.

From a photostat of the original: S.N. 5350
APPENDIX IX

(i)

GENERAL SMUTS’ TELEGRAM TO HOSKEN

CAPE TOWN,
March 24, 1911

I HAVE RECEIVED YOUR TELEGRAM. I VERY MUCH REGRET YOUR ATTITUDE. THE INDIAN COMMUNITY HAVE NEVER SO MUCH AS EVEN ASKED THAT EDUCATED INDIAN IMMIGRANTS SHOULD BE EXEMPT FROM THE REGISTRATION LAWS OR SPECIAL LAWS OF THE PROVINCES. ALL THEY HAVE ASKED IS PERMANENT RESIDENTIAL RIGHTS AS OPPOSED TO MERELY TEMPORARY PERMITS. I NOW ENTIRELY OUT OF MY OWN MOTION PROPOSE TO EXEMPT THEM FROM REGISTRATION UNDER THE TRANSVAAL ACT AND AT ONCE IT IS DEMANDED THAT I SHOULD ALSO EXEMPT THEM FROM THE O. F. S. LAW ON PAIN OF THE PASSIVE RESISTANCE MOVEMENT BEING CONTINUED. YOU NOW INFORM ME THAT THIS NEW DEPARTURE MEETS WITH YOUR APPROVAL. I CAN ONLY EXPRESS MY REGRET AT YOUR ACTION WHICH I FEEL IS ILL CONSIDERED AND MISCHIEVOUS. IT IS NOT YOU WHO WILL SUFFER IN THE END BUT THE INDIAN COMMUNITY AGAINST WHOM THE WHITE POPULATION IS BECOMING DAILY MORE EXASPERATED AND DEMANDING EVEN MORE STRINGENT LEGISLATION. A GOLDEN CHANCE FOR A FINAL SETTLEMENT IS NOW TO BE THROWN AWAY BECAUSE OF THE ABSOLUTELY NEW CONTENTION THAT EDUCATED ASIATICS MUST ALSO BE ADMITTED NOT ONLY INTO THE TRANSVAAL BUT THE O. F. S. AS WELL.

From a photostat of the original: S.N. 5353

(ii)

HOSKEN’S TELEGRAM TO GENERAL SMUTS

INDIAN COMMUNITY HAS ALWAYS STOOD FOR THESE RIGHTS FOR PERMITTED EDUCATED INDIANS. SEE MR. GANDHI’S LETTER IN LORD CREWE’S DESPATCH. INDANS HAVE ASKED NOT SO MUCH FOR PERMANENT RESIDENTIAL RIGHTS EDUCATED ASIATICS AS FOR REMOVAL OF COLOUR BAR REGARDING FREE STATE WE ONLY CLAIM FILIPMENT POSITIVE COMMITMENT BY PRIME MINISTER IN [HIS] DESPATCH 20TH DECEMBER. IS THAT PROMISE NOT STILL BINDING? ON SECOND READING, DID YOU NOT MAKE SAME PRONOUNCEMENT? AS QUESTION PRACTICAL POLITICS, PROBABLY NOT ONE INDIAN WILL ATTEMPT TO ENTER FREE STATE, BUT INDIAN COMMUNITY CANNOT ACCEPT COLOUR DISABILITY. I AM MOST ANXIOUS PROMOTE PEACEFUL
APPENDIX X

LANE’S LETTER TO GANDHIJI

CAPE TOWN, April 11, 1911

DEAR MR. GANDHI,

With reference to your visit here this afternoon, regarding the Immigration Bill, I regret to inform you that at the present time General Smuts is not in a position to be able to give you any information as to be the bill or to any modification that may be made to it before it is again brought before Parliament. The whole matter is still under consideration and is likely to be so until towards the end of the week. Under these circumstances I am afraid that we cannot give you any outline which you could use in your cable, and I can only suggest your cabling that your are in touch with the department and that when they are able to communicate anything definite you will again cable to India.

Believe me,
Yours faithfully,

E. F. C. LANE

M. K. GANDHI, ESQ.
CAPE TOWN

From a photostat of the original: S. N. 5451

APPENDIX XI

LANE’S LETTER TO GANDHIJI

CAPE TOWN, April 21, 1911

DEAR MR. GANDHI,

I am in receipt of your letters of the 19th and 20th April, in regard to the draft Immigration Bill, and have submitted them both to the Minister.

General Smuts has asked me to say to you that he regrets that, in view of the probable prorogation of Parliament early next week, it will not be possible for the Government to proceed with Immigration legislation in any form this session.

The Government are keenly desirous of arriving at a solution of this vexed question and in the recess they will go into the matter again and see what can be done to secure a settlement.

In the meantime, General Smuts feels that the passive resistance movement, which has caused and still continues to cause considerable suffering, might now well be brought to a close. Its continuance only tends unnecessarily to complicate the situation, and when the Government are endeavouring to fix a satisfactory solution of the question of Indian immigration the Indian community should not embarrass matter by maintaining their campaign.

General Smuts notes that Mrs. Sodha’s appeal comes up at Bloemfontein on Saturday next, and requests me to say that your representations on her behalf are receiving his favourable consideration.

Yours sincerely,

ERNEST F. C. LANE

M. K. GANDHI, ESQ.

CAPE TOWN

PRIVATE SECRETARY TO

MINISTER OF THE INTERIOR

From a photostat of the original: S. N. 5491; also Indian Opinion, 29-4-1911

APPENDIX XII

UNION GOVERNMENT’S REASONS FOR DROPPING IMMIGRANTS’ RESTRICTION
BILL (1911)

A

PARAPHRASE OF GLADSTONE’S TELEGRAM TO HARcourt

PRIVATE AND PERSONAL APRIL 12, 1911

URGENT

Immigration Bill. J. C. Smuts tells me this morning that Gandhi says that passive resistance in Transvaal must continue if selected immigrants are not admitted into Orange Free State. He wants J. C. Smuts to drop the Bill and substitute another applying immigration proposals to Transvaal only. He says exclusion by Orange Free State is absolutely inadmissible and that in addition the Bill causes new and serious trouble in Cape of Good Hope and Natal.

J. C. Smuts says that he cannot shake Orange Free State members who are now backed by a resolution of the Provincial Council. He says a new Bill in the last days of the session is impossible and that in any case it is impossible to differentiate Transvaal from Union and to set up new immigration machinery along its borders.

In these circumstances J. C. Smuts thinks best course is to drop the Bill and endeavour to bring in a more acceptable measure next year. He thinks passive resistance is almost at an end and that he could arrange a truce with Gandhi till fresh Bill was introduced. At the same time he feels bound to proceed if you insist but he thinks Indian Government dislike present Bill so much that are not likely to object to the course which he proposes. But he would like to [have?] your views.
I greatly regret delay involved but I cannot see any alternative course open to less objection.

GLADSTONE

Colonial Office Records: C. O. 551/10

B

PARAPHRASE OF HARCOURT’S REPLY

Reference your private and personal telegram of April 12th Indian Government are being consulted and I am anxious to learn their opinion before expressing my views.

J. C. Smuts is, I presume, satisfied that he prevent a renewal of agitation by Gandhi and that there is no likelihood of his action in dropping the Bill in deference to Gandhi’s opposition leading to greater trouble in the future by enhancing Gandhi’s prestige and his belief that he can dictate terms to the Union Government. Is J. C. Smuts in a position to foresee that he could next year introduce a Bill which would be more acceptable to Gandhi, as regards the two matters now objected to, than the present one? Please let me know by what date you must receive an expression of my views.

HARCOURT

Colonial Office Records: C. O. 551/10

C

BOTHÀ’S MINUTE FOR IMPERIAL GOVERNMENT

...1 Ministers had framed a measure which, while subjecting all immigrants to an equal statutory test, gave large powers to the Immigration Officers similar to those existing in Australia at the present time, under which all but a few selected Asiatics—principally professional men—could be excluded from the Union. A difficulty then arose in regard to the right of such Asiatics to enter the Orange Free State after landing in the Union, and unanimous objection was made by all members of Parliament representing Orange Free State constituencies to any educated Indians being allowed to enter that Province. A strong resolution protesting against any modification of the Orange Free State laws regarding Asiatics was also passed by the Orange Free State Provincial Council.

The Indian community, on the other hand, stated that they accepted the draft law as it stood, but that they would be compelled to continue their agitation in order to secure that all educated Asiatics admitted in terms thereof should enjoy the same freedom in the Orange Free State as was contemplated that they should enjoy in all other Provinces of the Union.

Ministers felt that as an alternative a Bill which referred only to the Transvaal might be passed, but constitutional questions arose, and when it was, moreover, seen that the main object of the Bill, namely, a settlement of the Indian immigration question, would not be achieved, Ministers considered that the only course was to drop the matter for the present and to endeavour during the recess to devise some solution which would prove of a durable nature.

1 The preceding paragraphs of this minute are not available.

Ministers accordingly informed the leaders of the Indian community of the position of affairs, and have some reason for hoping that the passive resistance movement will be temporarily suspended pending the introduction of Immigration legislation during the next session of Parliament.

Ministers desire to inform His Excellency, in conclusion, that it is with great regret that they have been obliged to postpone the matter; but in view of the objections to the proposed law which reached the Government from many quarters, they felt that further consideration was essential, so that a settlement agreeable to all parties might be arrived at.

LOUIS BOTHA

Cd. 6283

D

SMUTS’ SPEECH IN UNION PARLIAMENT

General Smuts said that before the Speaker left the chair he would like to say a few words. He was sorry that this Bill, which was one of the most important and one of the most valuable that had come before the House this session, would not be put on the Statute-book; but hon. members would see that, owing to so much time having been taken up with other very important and necessary legislation, it would not be possible for them to go on with the Bill, and the matter of immigration would have to stand over to be dealt with by legislation next year. When he introduced the second reading of this Bill he stated that the Government had two objects in view. The first was to secure uniformity in regard to the immigration laws of South Africa, and the second was to effect some settlement of the Indian question, which had been one of considerable anxiety and difficulty for some years past, and he laid on the table the correspondence which had passed between the British Government and the Union Government, in reference to the possibility of an early solution of those difficulties. Although it was not possible to pass this Bill into law this session, and to carry into effect the solution which was practically agreed upon between the British Government and the Union Government, he was fairly hopeful, even apart from this legislation, of putting a stop to passive resistance for the following twelve months, and of securing some peace on this question in South Africa until Parliament had a chance of dealing with it next session. That being so, there was no immediate necessity to deal with the question, and it could very well stand over for mature consideration, and for more careful thought in South Africa generally. The subject was a very important one. It dealt not only with Indian immigration, but with all white immigration, and the delay in proceeding with the Bill would probably tend to facilitate its passage through Parliament, because more mature consideration would be given to it. He therefore moved that the order be discharged and the Bill withdrawn.

Cape Times, 26-4-1911
DEAR MR. GANDHI,

I am in receipt of your letter of the 22nd of April, which was written in reply to my letter of the 21st instant.

I have shown your letter to General Smuts and he has asked me to say that he quite appreciates the spirit in which you write, and he has every hope that by approaching this question in a conciliatory way a temporary solution may be arrived at which will leave all concerned free to devote their energies to securing a more lasting one.

I am authorized to say that the Minister intends introducing legislation during the next session of Parliament to repeal Act 2 of 1907, subject to the reservation of the rights of minor children. In devising such legislation the Minister intends to introduce provisions giving legal equality for all immigrants, with, however, differential treatment of an administrative as distinct from a statutory character.

In regard to the second point you raised, I am to say that in such proposed legislation power will be taken to register all passive resisters who, but for their present resistance, would have been entitled to register had they done so at the proper time, nothing in Act No. 36 of 1908 withstanding.

Power will also be taken to regularize the issue at the present time of temporary certificates, which the Minister is prepared to grant to the educated passive resisters who are now in the Transvaal, but who are not registrable under the existing Asiatic Acts. Their number is, I understand, not more than five or six at the outside. These certificates would entitle the holders to remain in the Transvaal in anticipation of the forthcoming legislation.

In conclusion, I am to say that if an assurance is given by you to the effect that the community will suspend their passive resistance movement, the Minister will ask His Excellency the Governor-General to consider favourably the question of releasing passive resistance prisoners who are now undergoing sentence for contravening the existing Asiatic legislation.

I hope that, after consultation with the Indian community, you will be able to inform General Smuts on his return to Pretoria of the cessation of the passive resistance, so that he may be able to assure His Majesty’s Government that the leaders of the Indian community intend to co-operate with the Government with a view to arriving at a definite solution of this question.

Believe me,
Yours sincerely,

ERNEST F. C. LANE

M. K. GANDHI, ESQ.
PRIVATE SECRETARY TO
CAPE TOWN
MINISTER OF THE INTERIOR

From a photostat of the original: S.N. 5500; also Indian Opinion, 29-4-1911

APPENDIX XIV

E. M. GORGES’ LETTER TO GANDHIJI

PRETORIA,
May 19, 1911

SIR,

With further reference to your letter of the 4th instant, I am directed by the Hon. the Minister to inform you

(a) That Asiatics who were deported subsequent to the 1st January, 1908, under Act 2/07 or 36/08, and who have valid claims to registration under such Acts, but who have not yet applied owing to the passive resistance movement will be permitted to make their applications not later than the 31st December next, subject of course to the provisions of the Acts and Regulations.

(b) That Asiatics who, although not deported, left South Africa without applying for registration owing to the passive resistance movement, and who can prove that they have valid claims to registration, will also be permitted to make their applications for registration in accordance with the provisions of Act 2/07 or Act 36/08 and the Regulations made thereunder, on or before the 31st December next, provided applications under (a) and (b) do not exceed 30 in number.

(c) With regard to the fifth paragraph of your letter, it is understood there are 180 Indians and Chinese in South Africa, who were refused registration under the voluntary system, and who have not yet made their applications under Acts 2/07 or 36/08. In their respect I am to inform you that provided a list of their names is furnished without unreasonable delay opportunity will be afforded to them of making their applications not later than the 31st December next, subject to the provisions of the Acts named

(d) That the seven educated Indians now in the Transvaal and named by you will receive temporary authorization to remain here pending alteration of the law, when permanent documents will be issued to them authorizing their residence in the Transvaal. Similar authority will also be given as a special case to three educated Mahomedans. The proposed number of six educated Indians per annum, whose immigration was previously agreed to, will be adhered to in the future, the increase of the number to ten during the current year being only due to the special circumstances of the case.

The Minister trusts that the acceptance of the requests now made will be regarded by the Asiatic community as a final settlement of the questions involved. On hearing from you to this effect the Department of Justice will be communicated with, the object of procuring the release of passive resisters at present undergoing confinement for contravention of the Asiatic Registration Acts.

Prisoners sentenced in connection with the possession of forged certificates of or the use of certificates not issued to them cannot be released.

I have, etc.,
E. M. GORGES
ACTING SECRETARY FOR THE INTERIOR

From a photostat of the original: S. N. 533; also Indian Opinion, 27-5-1911

APPENDIX XV

TELEGRAM TO GANDHIJI FROM SECRETARY FOR INTERIOR

PRETORIA,
May 20, 1911

WITH REFERENCE TO YOUR LETTER YESTERDAY AS CORRECTED BY TELEPHONE TODAY THERE IS NO OBJECTION TO INCLUSION AMONGST 180 ASIATICS DESCRIBED PARAGRAPH C OF MY LETTER OF 19TH OF THOSE NOW IN SOUTH AFRICA WHO FAILED TO APPLY WITHIN PROPER PERIOD FOR REGISTRATION ON GROUNDS THREE YEARS PRE-WAR RESIDENCE IN TRANS-VAAL. REGARDING QUESTION NUMBER ONE OF YOUR LETTER 29TH APRIL
WHILE IT IS NOT PROPOSED TO TAKE AWAY
ACTUALLY EXISTING RIGHTS OF INDIVIDUALS THE POSITIONS IN THE VARIOUS PROVINCES WILL NO DOUBT BE AFFECTED BY ANY LAW WHICH IS INTENDED TO BE GENERAL AND UNIFORM FOR THE WHOLE UNION. QUESTION TWO DEALT WITH ABOVE. QUESTIONS THREE AND FOUR WERE DEALT WITH IN A AND B OF MY LETTER YESTERDAY. QUESTION FIVE DEALT WITH PARAGRAPH D MY LETTER YESTERDAY. QUESTION SIX
NO FIXED STANDARD OF EDUCATION. QUESTION SEVEN WELL EDUCATED REGISTERED ASIATICS NEED NOT GIVE FINGER OR THUMB PrinterS WHEN TAKING OUT LICENCES. QUESTION EIGHT WELL KNOWN REGISTERED ASIATICS NEED NOT GIVE FIN- GER OR THUMB PRINTS WHEN TAKING OUT LICENCES PROVID- ED THEY CAN SIGN NAMES CLEARLY IN ENGLISH.

From a photostat of the original as delivered: S. N. 5536; also Indian Opinion, 27-5-1911

APPENDIX XVI

A

TRANSVAAL DRAFT LOCAL GOVERNMENT ORDINANCE, 1911

EXTRACTS AFFECTING ASIATICS

ASIATIC BAZAARS

66. (1) The council may set apart, maintain, and carry on Bazaars or other areas exclusively for occupation by Asiatics, and control and supervise the same in the accordance with by-laws to be made from time to time by the council, and may lease the land and any buildings or other erections thereon to Asiatics upon such terms and at such rents as may be prescribed from time to time by such regulations.

(2) The provisions of sub-sections (4) to (7) inclusive of the last preceding section shall mutatis mutandis apply for the purpose of enabling a council to close such Bazaars and areas and lay out other land suitable for the same.

(3) The council shall not set apart, nor close, such Bazaars or other areas reserved exclusively, for occupation by Asiatics without the approval and consent of the Governor-General, nor shall any by-law made under this section be of any force or effect unless and until the approval and consent of the Governor-General shall have been obtained thereto.

It was in April 1899 that the Kruger regime first decided to relegate Asiatics to Locations and the power to regulate these was vested in the Town Councils; vide “Memorial to Chamberlain”, 16-5-1899. In April 1903, the post-War British Government under Lord Milner, Lieutenant-Governor of the Transvaal, issued the Bazaar Notice; vide “British Undians in South Africa”, 12-4-1903 The power to demarcate Bazaars was transferred to Town Councils by Ordinance in 1905; vide “Asiatic Bazaars in the Transvaal”, 22-7-1905. Vide also “The British Indian Association and Lord Milner”, 11-6-1903 & “Petition to Transvaal Governor”, 8-6-1903; “Petition to the Transvaal Council”, 8-12-1903, “Legislative activity in the Transvaal”, 30-9-1905 & “Deputation to Lord Selborne”, 29-11-1905; “Representation to Lord Elgin”, 31-10-1906 and “Fine on Indians”, 25-4-1908; “Johannesburg Letter”, 16-5-1908; “Transvaal Municipal Consolidation Bill”, 23-5-1908 & “Petition to Transvaal Legislative Assembly”, 15-6-1908.
67. (1) The council may grant leases of plots in any Native Location or Asiatic Bazaar or township established by the council or under its control, for any term not exceeding thirty-three years, in such from and subject to such conditions as the Governor-General may approve.

(2) Any such lease shall be valid though not executed before a notary public, and any such lease or a cession thereof shall be valid if registered in a register to be kept by the council in accordance with regulation to be made by the Governor-General. Any transfer duty or stamp duty payable on any such lease or cession thereof under any law relating to transfer duty, or stamp duty, shall be paid in manner prescribe by such regulations and the council shall account to the Minister of Finance for such duty as is so payable.

SANITATION, ETC.

75. The council may from time to time make, alter and revoke by-laws for all or any of the following purposes, namely:

(12) for licensing and regulating tea-rooms, cafes, restaurants, hotels, eating., boarding-and lodging-houses, and all purveyors of milk, dairies, milkshops, cow-sheds, bakehouses, butchers' shops, and all factories and places where articles of food or drink are manufactured or prepared for sale or use, or sold;

(13) for licensing and regulating Kaffir eating-houses;

(14) for regulating and licensing pedlars and hawkers; provided that no person, who sells only fresh farm-produce grown on land occupied by him, shall be required to take out a pedlar’s or hawker’s license;

(15) for regulating or preventing the washing of clothes on public or private premises, and licensing persons for washing and laundry work.

ASIATIC TEA-ROOMS

88. The council may from time to time make, alter and revoke by-laws for all or any of the following purposes, namely:

(6) for regulating and licensing Asiatic tea-rooms or eating-houses.

91. The council may refuse a licence in respect of any premises as a theatre, music hall, public hall, concert room, or other place of amusement, or any premises where articles of food of drink are sold, used or prepared for human consumption, or any boarding or lodging houses or any premises for washing or laundry work, or to license hawkers or pedlars on any of the grounds mentioned in the last preceding

---

1 It was in 1905 that a law was passed requiring all Indian hotel-keepers to take out licences; vide “Indian Hotels in the Transvaal & “Legislative Activity in the Transvaal”, 30-9-1905; “Letter to Town clerk”, 6-2-1907 & “Johannesburg Letter”, 9-2-1907 and “Petition to Transvaal Legislative Assembly”, 9-7-1907 & “Johannesburg Letter”, 2-11-1907.
section, and also on one or more of the following grounds:

(a) that the applicant has failed to produce satisfactory evidence of good character;

(b) that the premises in respect of which a license is sought or any adjacent premises owned or occupied by the applicant are frequented by persons of bad character;

(c) that the granting of such a license is, in respect of the premises for which it is sought, calculated to cause nuisance or annoyance to persons residing in the neighbourhood;

(d) that the granting of such a license would be contrary to the public interest;

and no appeal shall lie against the refusal of the council to grant any such license.

92. The council may in respect of a license which it may grant under by-laws and which entitles the holders thereof to carry on any trade or business for manufacturing, preparing, selling, or using articles of food and drink for human consumption,

(a) impose conditions prohibiting or restricting the employment of Native, Asiatic, or Coloured labour in the preparation of such articles of food and drink;

(b) impose conditions prohibiting or restricting the employment on premises, where articles of food and drink are sold, or females under the age of sixteen years, or the employment on such premises of females after eight o’clock at night;

provided that the conditions imposed by the council under this section shall be clearly endorsed upon the licence and the licensee shall sign a duplicate of the form of license containing such conditions. The council shall retain the duplicate so endorsed and signed and the same shall, when produced before any court of law, be prima facie evidence of the conditions imposed.

93. Anything to the contrary in this Ordinance notwithstanding, the council may, in its discretion refuse to grant licences to the hauler of any jinricksha or to the driver of any road locomotive, tram-car, omnibus, motor-car, cab, trolley, or other vehicle playing for hire.

Voters’ Roll

114. Every white person, male or female, being a British subject of the age of twenty-one years or upwards, who occupies and resides in premises within the municipality of the gross annual value of twelve pounds and upwards, or who owns

---

1 The section, by omission, denies Indians the right to municipal franchise from which Transvaal Indians were first debarred in 1903; vide “Petition to Natal Legislature”, 10-6-1903; ”What is a Coolie”, 21-5-1904 and “Statement of Transvaal Indian Case”, 16-7-1909.
immovable property within the municipality in respect of which either erf tax or assessment rate is payable or leviable, shall be entitled to be enrolled on the voters’ list for the municipality, provided that a husband and wife shall not both be entitled to be enrolled on the voters’ list in respect of the same property.

TRAM-CARS

171. The council may, from time to time, make, alter, and revoke by-laws for all or any of the following purposes:

(a) for regulating the use of any tramways established, acquired, or worked by the council and for making charges in connection with the use of the council’s tram-cars;

(b) for regulating the use of the council’s tram-cars by Natives and Asiatics and prohibiting or restricting the use of such tram-cars by Natives, Asiatics, and all persons who are not respectably dressed or well conducted;¹

(c) for regulating the conditions of service and duties of persons employed by the council in working tramways, and for imposing fines (by means of stoppages of pay) on such persons for negligence, dereliction of duty, or other offence prejudicial to the good and proper working of the tramway system.

No such by-law shall be inconsistent with, contrary or repugnant to the provisions of this Ordinance or of any other law in force within the municipality.

Indian Opinion, 10-6-1911

B

PETITION TO TRANSVAAL PROVINCIAL COUNCIL

Johannesburg,
June 6, 1911

Hon’ble the Administrator and the Members of The Provincial Council of the Transvaal

The Petition of A. M. Cachalia in His Capacity as Chairman of
The British Indian Association

Humbly sheweth that

1. Your Petitioner has read the Draft Local Government Ordinance, 1911².

² The Transvaal Government had attempted a somewhat similar registration in

504

THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
published in the Government Gazette of the 17th May, and observes with grave misgivings that several of its clauses threaten the lawfully resident British Indians with further serious disabilities.

2. Your Petitioner remarks that Sections 66 and 67 of the Ordinance empower the Council to “set apart, maintain and carry on Bazaars or other areas exclusively for occupation by Asiatics, and control . . . same in accordance with bye-laws to be made from time to time by the council”, and that by subsection (3) of Section 66 the Council may (subject to the approval and consent of the Governor-General) close such “Bazaars” after posting up a notice of their intention to do so, in a conspicuous place. As to this, your Petitioner would observe that, apart from the general question of segregation to which, on principle, your Petitioner takes exception, the powers conferred are capable of being employed most detrimentally to British Indians, especially those of the shop-keeping class who may establish themselves in such Bazaars. The expansion of the towns has been followed almost invariably by the closing of the “Bazaar” previously established and the consequent removal of its occupants to another Bazaar located still further away from the town centres and routes. This uncertainty of tenure militates against business enterprise and prosperity, and constitutes a grave hardship to the British Indians who take up their abode and callings in such “Bazaars”.

3. Section 75(12), (13) and (14) and Section 88(6) especially touch Asiatic interests. Councils will, under these Sections continue to control eating-houses, butchers’, Asiatic and Kaffir eating-houses, pedlars’, hawkers’, laundrymen’s and laundry licenses; and your Petitioner observes that, while provision is made for appeal to a Resident Magistrate against the refusal of Councils to grant other business licences referred to in the measure, Section 91 expressly provides that “no appeal shall lie against the refusal of the Council to grant any of the above licenses.” The experience of British Indians in other Provinces of the Union where similar uncontrolled power is or was invested in licensing boards or Councils prompts your Petitioner to protest most earnestly against the express exclusion of the right of appeal against arbitrary refusals to a properly constituted judicial tribunal, apart from the fact that such a provision constitutes an infringement of the liberty of the subject.

4. Your Petitioner further draws attention of this Hon’ble House to the fact that there is now no occasion to provide for licensing Asiatic tea-rooms or eating-houses as none such have existed after the withdrawal of the Chinese indentured labourers. The wants of the small Asiatic community residing in this Province are supplied by private boarding-houses.

5. Section 92 may, by penalizing the employment of Asiatic labour, work serious hardships upon British Indians employed in useful industries, and in some... cases may result in deprivation of their means of livelihood. In the humble opinion of your Petitioner, the discrimination against Asiatics expressed in this Section should be deleted.

6. Your Petitioner further submits that the discretion vested in the Council in regard to the granting or withholding of drivers’ licences (Section 93) should be subject to a right of appeal to a judicial tribunal.

7. While your Petitioner’s community, bowing to the unhappy prejudice against Asiatics existing in this Province, have not sought the political franchise, they feel keenly the specific disability imposed upon their people by Section 114, whereby they are precluded from being placed upon the Municipal Voters’ roll, a disability shared by them with such white persons only as have been convicted of serious criminal offences.

Your Petitioner would venture to remind this Hon’ble House that the Indians are large contributors of Municipal rates, and, as statistics abundantly prove, are among the most law-abiding sections of the populations, and therefore, ventures to except to their being classed with white convicts.

8. Your Petitioner observes that Section 171(b) empowers the prohibition or restriction of the use of tram-cars by “Natives, Asiatics and all persons who are not respectably dressed or well conducted”. This restriction is at once humiliating and inconvenient for the Asiatic communities, and, in your Petitioner’s humble opinion, totally unwarranted.

9. In conclusion, your Petitioner earnestly calls the attention of this Hon’ble House to the grievances above indicated and prays that the Draft Ordinance will be amended so as to grant relief in the premises. And for this act of justice and mercy your Petitioner shall, as in duty bound, for ever pray, etc.

A. M. Cachalia
CHAIRMAN,
BRITISH INDIAN ASSOCIATION

From Indian Opinion, 10-6-1911; also Colonial Office Records: C. O. 552/22
APPENDIX XVII

S.A.B.I COMMITTEE’S LETTER TO COLONIAL OFFICE

THANET HOUSE,
231-232, STRAND, W. C.,
June 17, 1911

THE UNDER-SECRETARY OF STATE
COLONIAL OFFICE, S. W.

SIR,

I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. 18542/1911 of the 13th instant, inviting me—on behalf of the Secretary of State—to put before him, in writing, any further observations that I may have to make in addition to those already made to him formally by the Transvaal British Indian Association, of which I have received a copy. As, however, I have been deputed to speak on behalf to the Cape and Natal Indians also, copies of whose memorials have been sent to me, I propose with Mr. Secretary Harcourt’s permission, to deal generally with the situation affecting the Indian communities of South Africa.

2. If one feeling more than another predominates in those communities it is one of great unrest and insecurity. The Indians of South Africa realize that, but for the frequent intervention of His Majesty’s Government on their behalf, their existence would be scarcely tolerable, and it was with the gravest apprehension that they watched the negotiations which culminated in the passing of the Act of Union. In the Transvaal the Indians feared the extension of the operation of the principles underlying the licensing laws of the Cape and Natal; in these Provinces the Indians dreaded the adoption of the Location Registration and immigration laws of the Transvaal. The tendency, ever since the Peace of Vereeniging, has been to equalize the treatment of Indians through South Africa on the basis of its harshest aspect. The Secretary of State will no doubt remember when, in 1903, Lord Milner issued his Bazaar Notice, Natal hastened to follow suit. The drastic licensing law of Natal was taken over by the Cape, and now attempts are being made to extend its operation to the Transvaal also. It is strongly felt, therefore that if they desire to retain any civil rights and privileges whatever, the Indians of South Africa must oppose a united front to attacks that are being made with increasing frequency in all quarters of the Union upon their vested interests. This was, in fact, one of the main reasons why, in various ways, the Cape and Natal Indians so closely associated themselves with the claims of their Transvaal brethren during the passive resistance struggle that is now suspended.

3. The great fear of the Transvaal Indians has ever been that attempts would be made to render effective the provision of Law 3 of 1885 requiring residence in Locations. In 1903 the Transvaal Supreme Court held that trading licences must be issued to Indians trading outside of Locations, and the Law contains no sanction for non-residence therein, but the Vrededorp Stands Act was the first measure passed with the object of compelling Indians to reside and trade in Locations. The Townships Act and Gold Law have but fulfilled the Indians’ worst anticipation. Contracts between Europeans and Indians conferring upon the latter the equitable ownership of fixed property, although its nominal ownership is refused them by another provision of Law 3 of 1885, have been recognized in the Transvaal Courts, as in the case of Syed Ismail and Another v. S. Jacobs, N.O., but the new laws will result in the penalizing of European registered owners and of the Indian equitable owners, the former, like myself, being liable to a heavy fine for permitting Indian Coloured persons to reside on their own premises, and the latter to the confiscation of the property which is virtually theirs. The net effect of these several enactments is to shake the security of Indian investments and the compulsory segregation of Indian traders in Locations where no business can be done, and where they will be unable to hold any relations with their present clientele. Many hundreds of them will be ruined and obliged to leave the country for losses incurred through no fault of their own. Very many of those affected, though sympathizing with and materially assisting the passive resisters, have themselves taken no active part in the struggle, but if these measures become effective, as there is every reason to fear they will, I have very little doubt but that a much more embittered struggle will commence than that which is hoped is now happily over, for all sections of the community are likely to unite in lively opposition to these attempts to ruin them. The policy that is being pursued is not merely one of pinpricks, but one calculated to oblige lawfully resident Indians, who cannot be removed in any other way, to leave the country, apparently of their own accord, because conditions are no longer bearable for them.

4. Very much the same may be said in regard to the Cape and Natal Indian communities. The Cape Immigration law has been used to diminish the already diminishing numbers of resident Indians. Cases have occurred very recently where advantage has been taken of the over-staying by two or three days of the period of the permit of absence, to exclude Indians who have been long resident in the Province and who, in some cases, still have businesses there. The Cape Law, unlike that of Natal, contains no definition of domicile, and great hardship constantly results from its administration. Indeed, in both these Provinces, it is the belief of the Indian community that immigration administration is most harsh and unsympathetic and that the officials appear to act upon the assumption that it is their duty, upon any colourable pretext, to prevent the re-entry of an Indian already resident therein. The immigration officers frequently act in a most arbitrary manner, and, as Mr. Secretary Harcourt will no doubt see from cables dated the 14th instant, in contempt and defiance of orders of the Courts, but it is not every Indian sufferer who can afford to seek the protection of the Provincial Courts, and there is no doubt that great hardship has been inflicted upon many inoffensive people by the high-handed methods of the immigration officers both of the Cape and Natal. The Cape Indians suggest that provision should be made in any alteration of the Provincial immigration laws for the creation of Immigration Boards superior to the Immigration officials, and that Indians should have effective representation thereon.

5. The Licensing laws continue to bear most heavily upon Indian traders and hawkers. Licensing officers in the Coast Provinces have adopted the policy of “weeding out” Indian traders for a variety of amazing reasons, and sometimes for no reason at all. At the Cape hundreds of Indian hawkers have been ruined and may Indian firms employing them have had to close down. In Natal, the amending law of 1909, whilst it has undoubtedly been of great service to the Indian community in preventing, to some extent, the flagrant injustice of the past, has induced the licensing authorities to seek other means of depriving licensing-holders [sic] of their means of livelihood. Where the Indian trader has entered into a compromise with his creditors, though the only method by which he could satisfy them was by continuing his trade, he has been refused the re-issue of his licence. If he has desired to transfer his business to other premises, he has been refused the necessary endorsement upon his licence. If he has wished to take a partner the partnership has been prohibited by the licensing officer. If he has desired his son to take over the business this has been denied to him and attempts have been made to confine the duration of a licence to the lifetime of a holder, so that a son may not succeed his father. Transfers of licences, even to Colonial-born Indian, are almost impossible. It is difficult, indeed, to know what is to be the future of the Colonial-born Indians if they are to have one avenue of advancement after another closed to them, as is threatened. In view of the fact that the resident Indian community is not likely to be added to in the future, it is held by the Cape and Natal Indians that these restrictions upon Indian trade should be removed at an early date; but as against this, avowedly with the object of punishing the Indian trading community for the part that they are supposed to have taken in the stoppage of Indentured labour supplies by the Government of India, Mr. G. H. Hulett, recently procured the passing of the resolution, in the Natal Provincial Council, asking for the transfer of licensing matters to the cognizance of the Council instead of the Union Parliament, which can alone, at present, legislate thereon. The Natal Indians have strongly protested against any such procedure, basing their protest upon the effective provisions of Section 147 of the South Africa Act. I have the honour to enclose herewith, for Mr. Secretary Harcourt’s further information, a copy of the transactions of the Natal Indian Congress thereon.

6. A very bitter feeling has spread throughout the Indian community of South Africa by reason of the £3 annual tax imposed upon ex-indentured Indian men, women and children, the tax upon women and children being especially resented by, and offending the feelings of, the Indian community, who urge that these, at least, should be exempt from taxation, and protected from the evil results that are admitted to flow from such imposts. The amending act of 1910 has but slightly improved the situation. Whilst some magistrates occasionally grant a complete exemption to particular individuals, others grant temporary exemptions for a limited period, whilst others, again, grant no exemption at all, but give very brief periods of grace for payment, and in default thereof, sentence the unfortunate women to imprisonment. with hard labour. It is perhaps unnecessary for me to dwell upon the economic and social evils that must naturally ensue from this enforced payment.

7. The Cape and Natal Indians were much gratified to peruse the despatches addressed by Mr. Secretary Harcourt to the Governor-General of the Union of South Africa, in which the Secretary of State declared that, in a settlement of Transvaal controversy, Cape and Natal Indians’ rights and privileges should not be diminished. Unfortunately, the Bill presented to Parliament in the last session materially affected, to their disadvantage, Indian interests, and it is very gravely feared that the Bill that it is proposed to introduce next year will not contain all the safeguards that are necessary. It is urged that statutory domicile should be defined as in the present Natal law, that the existing tests should not be made more severe, and that Indian traders should retain the right that they already possess to procure necessary clerical and other confidential assistance from India. I am specially instructed and authorized to request that the Secretary of State will most carefully examine any proposed immigration legislation in order to avoid the infliction of grave injury and injustice upon Indian residents in these Provinces.

8. South African Indians have two serious general causes of complaint. The first is that attempts are being made, by legislation, virtually anti-Asiatic, but couched in language that would make it appear to be of general application, to defeat the purpose of the safeguards contained in Section 147 of the South Africa Act. The second is that, whilst the legislation itself may be acceptable, the regulations framed thereunder, and which very seldom come before Parliament for sanction, not infrequently contain provisions of a highly objectionable racial character.

9. I very much fear that I have to a great extent reiterated what has already been said on the subject of the South African Indian grievances, but I have thought it better, in view of the nearness of the debate upon the treatment of Indians resident in the self-governing dominions, at the Imperial Conference, and of the fact that I shall be unable to discuss the situation personally with the Secretary of State, to err on the side of repetition rather than that any matter referred to herein should not be sufficiently elaborated. Should there be any information that I may be able to furnish him with, in addition to whatever is already in the possession of Mr. Secretary Harcourt, I shall be most happy to place myself at his disposal.

I have, etc.,

Your most obedient servant,

H. S. L. Polak

Colonial Office Records: C. O. 551/22
1. TO THE COLONIAL-BORN INDIAN

Those of our Colonial-born friends who have not read the special contribution to this journal on the Native Industries Exhibition in Durban, and [sic] published last week, we trust, will hasten to read it and ponder over it. It is written by one who is himself an idealist and who knows thoroughly what he is writing about. He is, moreover, a friend and fellow-worker in the Indian cause. Our contributor’s remarks are therefore worthy of careful consideration by every Indian whose life-mould has not yet been cast or, if it is already cast, does not give real satisfaction. Our future in South Africa depends largely upon the conduct of those who are born in this country and to whom India is merely a geographical expression.

We associate ourselves with the remarks of our contributor that “lolling on stools in lawyers’ offices” is no “useful ambition”. A moment’s thought ought to convince our friends that a nation cannot be built out of clerks or even merchants. “Back to the land” is General Botha’s advice even to the Europeans who, after all, do follow many useful occupations. The world lives on its farmers and those who are indispensable to farmers, e.g., carpenters, shoemakers, blacksmiths, masons, bricklayers, tailors, barbers, etc. It is a sad fact that very few Colonial-born Indians are found willing enough to learn or take up these truly noble (because useful) professions. We all live upon the great industry of the Natives and Indians engaged in useful occupations in this country. In this sense they are more civilized than any of us, not excluding European non-producers, inhabiting this continent. Every speculator may leave the country; every lawyer may shut down his office, every merchant may wind up his business; and yet we should live comfortably on this land endowed by nature with a beneficent climate. But if the great Native races were to stop work for a week, we should probably be starving. It must, then, be a privilege for us to be able to copy their productive industry and their ability as matters of useful handicraft. We assure our friends that, even if all the 1 The writer had praised the Natives’ industry, manual skill and intelligence which were in the evidence at the exhibition. He felt that Colonial-born Indians had no desire to be useful, that education would merely serve to produce clerks among them and that practical training in agriculture or a useful trade was the best way to equip them for public service as well as for life. Indian Opinion, 8-7-1911.

---

galling disabilities which we labour under in South Africa were to be removed at a stroke the pen, our condition would in no wise be satisfactory until our Colonial-born friends direct their undoubted ability and energy in the channels pointed out in the contribution we have drawn attention to.

Indian Opinion, 15-7-1911

2. INDIA’S SORRY PLIGHT

The news that we have had of a complete settlement is satisfying. A campaign which called forth such sacrifices could have had only one result. [Yet] reflecting over the outcome, one is moved to sorrow at our unfortunate state here. Things are so bad that it would seem an edifice had rotted and lay about in ruins. If you still see a vestige of form[about it], it is then due to its solid foundations. People have been enfeebled in body and mind, and economically. Extreme poverty prevails all around. There is a [Gujarati] saying about the idle barber who keeps himself busy shaving wooden seats; likewise you must have also heard the one about “the weak husband who is brave with his wife”. Sin is the fruit of the tree of poverty. The economic situation has greatly deteriorated. People ask in despair how they can make a living. Here you will [of course] say that agriculture is the best of all. But that is for men who are patient and of a steady temperament. People are in an abject state because of wranglings over affairs of caste, and unhealthy rivalry in regard to communal dinners and social customs; [people’s] tendency to be satis-fied with the earnings of a few hours’ work, say four, six, eight or ten hours; and to waste the rest; such misguided contentment, the terror of the plague, etc.

Education, which is believed to be a means for promoting happiness has become instrumental in bringing about the worst state of misery. The strain of learning leaves one a physical wreck. The methods of learning are such that they wholly wear one out in body, in mind, and financially. Add to this the burden of [keeping up] status in society. By the time a man is mature and knowing and tries to hold his head high, he is weighed down with the responsibilities of family.

We find these reflections in a letter by a certain experienced and educated Indian of South Africa to another. The correspondent has given a faithful and vivid picture of conditions in India. We thought it necessary to cite these views and comment on them for the benefit of readers. A patriot’s first duty is to know the state of his country. Having done so, his next duty is to search for a remedy. This done, his third duty is to give effect to the remedy. The state of the country is as set forth above. One cannot question that description. Once the remedy is known, it is up to the readers to put it into practice. Our function is to help them to discover the remedy.

In the very process of setting forth the country’s sorry plight, the correspondent mentioned some of the reasons. Let us consider them further. Starvation is not a cause of misery. It is itself misery. The contentment men find in service is not a cause of degradation; it is degradation in itself. Wranglings over affairs of caste, hypocrisy, unhealthy rivalries, the terror of the plague—these are not causes of a fallen state; they constitute that state. [In fact] there is a single cause for all these. We have forsaken our duty. We have forgotten God and we worship Satan. A man’s duty is to worship God. Telling one’s beads is no symbol of that worship; neither is going to mosque or temple., nor saying the namaz1 or the gayatri2. These things are all right as far as they go. It is necessary to do the one or the other according to one’s religion. But by themselves they are no indication of one’s being devoted to god in worship. He alone truly adores god who finds his happiness in the happiness of others, speaks evil of none, does not waste his time in the pursuit of riches, does nothing immoral, who acquits himself with others as with a friend, does not fear the plague or any human being. Such a one will not, for fear of his caste, give communal dinners; if he is young, he will not, for fear of his men of his caste, marry before he is old enough or until he feels the need for it, and, if a father, he will not, for fear of men of his caste, ruin his son’s and daughter’s future. Such a one will not pause, in deciding on any course of action, to think of what any individual or community would think of it. He will only ask himself: ‘What will God within me say of this deed of mine?’ The upshot of all this is that all of us, whether Hindus, Muslims, Parsis or Christians, have forsaken our true religion. If this view is right, what we need is not remedies against the plague or revolt against the British rule; neither big associations with theirostentatious ways of doing things, nor societies

---

1 The Islamic prayer
2 The Rigvedic hymn to the Sun God nor meetings; neither will it be any use to keep looking at one another, waiting to act till others give us the lead. One thing alone is needful; all of us, having learnt our duty; must persevere in it till the moment of death. If this view is right, we need help from none save God. We can then do our duty in the midst of a conflagration, can still do it even if placed on the edge of a sword. The worst then that can happen is that we lose our mortal bodies. Why fear this? Fear will not keep the body alive. It will perish, when the appointed hour comes.

If we do our duty in this manner, so easy if only we will think of it, we shall know the rest as we go on. The first need of a man lost in a thick wood at night is light. He may then bide without fear till he finds the road. When he does find it, he will take it straightaway. If he finds any institutions on the way, he will use them as bridges for crossing rivers and streams. If the bridges are in disrepair, he will examine them with the aid of the light and call attention to the cracks of other defects. This light of duty is easy for anyone to acquire and once it is acquired, the way will be found forthwith; even a child will admit that.

[From Gujarati]

_Indian Opinion, 15-7-1911_

3. LETTER TO MAGANLAL GANDHI

_Monday night [July 17, 1911]_

CHI. MAGANLAL,

Your letter regarding the trust and other matters came to hand only today. It will be better if you address your letters to the Farm hereafter. I propose going to Johannesburg only once a week, that is, on Monday.

1 The Somali, by which Chhaganlal Gandhi sailed from India, was first expected to arrived at Durban on July 15, 1911, according to the German East African Line advertisement in _Indian Opinion, 15-7-1911_. A news-item appearing in the Gujarati section the same week, however, mentions that the boat would arrive on July 18, 1911, instead. Actually she arrived on July 20, 1911, _Indian Opinion 22-7-1911_. From Gandhiji’s letter of July 12, 1911 to Maganlal Gandhi (p.123), it is clear that he has heard from Chhaganlal Gandhi but is awaiting a cable from him, presumably about his arrival. It was therefore, on a Monday following July 12, 1911, that this letter was written, that is, on July 17, 1911. On this Monday, it was still believed that s.s. _Somali_ would arrive on July 18, 1911. Thus it is that Gandhiji says later in the letter that Chhaganlal and the others must have arrived by the time Maganlal got this letter.
The arrangement about the Library is all right. Do not order books for the present. It is better just to collect money.

I also think it is no longer necessary to keep a separate account of the profits from the store. If the matter cannot be settled just now, we shall dispose of it when I go there [next]. Please make a note of this.

And now to the main part of your letter. With a little reflection, you will be able to see that the question who should send out whom just does not arise. When Phoenix is really in difficulties, there will be no question of sending out or retaining anybody. He alone will stay on there who has got into the true spirit. The problem then will be whether anyone will stay at all. No salaries are paid today, but only a kind of maintenance allowance. Who will remain, prepared to have this reduced, to face extreme suffering and live on plain bread—that will be the problem. This means that the problem will not arise. We shall know then who the true mother is and who the false. The doubt that has occurred to you is pointless.

And so are your fears about the children. India, being a land of virtue, has spots of wickedness. So also, other countries, though lands of sin, have oases by way virtuous spots. We are, however, doing our work with our eyes fixed on India. Where is the room, then, for any question about the children? Phoenix will have, and has, a constitution which will enable all children who so desire to visit India. And how can anyone say that [the spirit of] Phoenix will remain confined to Phoenix alone? Wherever the aims of Phoenix are present, there you will have Phoenix. Do you forget that we are all preparing ourselves for India? Should you and your children, however, lay down their lives for India in Phoenix itself, what harm will there be?

If we live in Phoenix as we would in India, there will be only this difference between India and Phoenix: we shall have adopted the virtuous practices of India and eschewed the evils that obtain there today. Is this anything to be sorry about? I shall write more on hearing from you.

If you consider my atman\(^1\) to have great power, yours, too, has it. There is no difference between us in respect of our atmans. The moment you rid yourself of whatever in you is foreign to the nature of the atman—timidity, doubt, irresolution, etc.—we are equals, The

---

1 The individual self which neither does nor suffers anything only difference lies in the fact that I have, with great effort, got rid of many of my defects. If you make the bid with a determined mind, you, too will be able to cleanse yourself of all such defects and more.

Chhaganlal, Anandlal, Jamnadas¹ and others may possibly be there before this letter reaches you. I for one am very glad that they are all coming;

You ask to have a test; but that you cannot have from me. When the time is ripe, you will get it without asking for it. Readiness is all.

It does not seem likely that any member [of the party coming] will have difficulty in landing. All the same, I have made the necessary recommendation² to the office.

Blessings from
MOHANDAS

[PS.] I hope a copy of the Trust Deed will be in your hand next week. It is only a draft.

From the Gujarati original in Gandhiji’s hand: C.W. 5091. Courtesy: Radhabeheh Choudhri

4. LETTER TO H. S. L. POLAK

Sunday night [July 23, 1911]³

MY DEAR HENRY,

The first news I must give you now is that Foolabhai’s letter tells me that I.O. is suppressed in India. You know Foolabhai of Potchefstroom. The news lacks confirmation. But if it is true, it is nothing surprising. They could not very well suppress my translations⁴ of Ruskin’s Unto This Last and not suppress I.O. which either in the English or the Gujarati columns re-echoes those views more or less forcibly. If the paper is suppressed, my first thought is that I must accept the challenge and go to India at the earliest possible moment. This may alter our or my plans. It is evident that sooner or later the Andamans must be my home. And why not? That home should be as sweet as any other if it be purchased with duty done. But what about

¹ A brother of the addressee
² This letter to the Registrar of Asiatics is not available.
³ From the following item you? You and Millie must consider the thing. Of course, you are not at all bound to follow me in my expanded activity. Phoenix ought still to continue. But with me wandering in India or being taken to the Andamans you will have to ensure your own living. If you have sufficient faith in Truth of course your living is assured. ‘Look at the lily of the valley, etc.’ Of course it may be that I am agitating you quite uselessly. And yet it is not so. This position is bound to arise sooner or later. The sooner probably the better, if it is in its own time. This does not in any way alter your immediate programme. You will continue your honeymoon together with your work there and go to India in October. Only I thought I must pass on the news with my reflections. You will have with this copy of the draft Trust Deed. Please let me have your criticism in detail. A copy is going to Dr. Mehta too. Every settler is also having a copy for consideration. I propose to attach to the Deed a schedule containing the signatures of [the] settlers.\(^1\) Please let me have yours. It should be on foolscap-size paper so that I may be able to use the very paper for the other signatures.

I hope you have now Gregg’s opinion. There was no delay after I understood your cable.

With love to you all,

Bhai

[PS.]

Kallenbach will probably leave\(^2\) next week by s. s. Armadale Castle. I hope you will make it a point to meet him at Waterloo. He is travelling 3rd-class throughout. I am anxious that he should meet Miss Winterbottom\(^3\), Aylmer Maude and such other men and women.

Bhai

From the original: Gandhi-Polak Correspondence. Courtesy: National Archives of India

---

1 Vide also Appendix Extracts from Immigrants Restriction Bill (1912) and Orange Free State Constitution”, 3-2-1912.
2 For Europe, mainly to visit his family in Germany
3 Florence A. Winterbottom, Corresponding Secretary of the Union of Ethical Societies, London
5. LETTER TO HARILAL GANDHI

[Lawley,]
Ashadh Vad O [July 25, 1911]

CHI. HARILAL,

There should have been a letter from you from India. You met Chi. Chhaganlal there, and he is now already here. I do hope there will be one by next mail.

Chhaganlal has brought news that Revashankerbhai advised you to join some commercial class in Bombay, deprecating [the idea of your going to] Ahmedabad. Chhaganlal also told me that you, on the other hand, continued to prefer Ahmedabad, up to the time he left. I still consider Ahmedabad to be better. It serves our purpose better. Though English may be less easy to learn in Ahmedabad, Gujarati, Sanskrit, etc., can certainly be done well there. I personally do not like Bombay at all. You may, however, do what you think best.

I see from Chanchi’s letter that Manilal is suffering from a serious illness. Please try if you can to persuade him to come here. Let him and Bali both come. Open air and nutritious but simple food is the only remedy for a tuberculosis patient. Please write to Chanchi not to expect regular letter from me. The burden on me at present is especially heavy. I go to Johannesburg only on Mondays. This is how things go on: physical labour on the farm up to 10 a.m.; teaching work at the school from 1.00 to 4.30 p.m.; meal at 5.30 p.m. and office and other correspondence at night. As I do everything single-handed, I have no time left and I do writing work till late at night. It is 9.45 p.m. now as I write this and I have more letters to write yet.

Mr. & Mrs. John, Rambhabhai, Mrs. Phillips, Mr. K. Naidoo and his wife are at the Farm. There are five boys and two girls in my school. But as they all belong to different standards, even these few are too many.

I am still on saltless diet. I personally feel better for it and as for Ba, it appears her very life has been saved. So far as I can see, she is a 1 Chhaganlal Gandhi, who is referred to in this letter as having already arrived, returned to South Africa in 1911, and in that year Ashadh Vad 0 corresponds to July 25. The zero date also written as Vad 30 is peculiar to the lunar Vikram calendar and denotes the last day of the dark fortnight.

2 Manilal Lakshmichand Adalaja; husband of Balibehn, Harilal’s sister-in-law.

3 Rambhabai Sodha
new woman altogether. Even the children take saltless diet on alternate weeks. It is possible they might, by and by, adopt it for good. Mr. Kallenbach has also started the experiment of saltless diet. I have a feeling that it purifies the blood to a very high degree.

Manilal is at Phoenix. It seems to me his mind is quite at peace there.

I saw Mr. Smuts again1 as Mr. Quinn’s comrades have not yet been released. I still hope that they will be. Only two persons remain now. Smuts talked about the new Bill also. I found him quite amenable, in conversation at least. Perhaps he might even repeal the tax on women in Natal. I took occasion to raise this issue as well.

Let me know how Chanchi and Rami are doing. You may send both here whenever you feel inclined to. Take the money required from Revashankerbhai. Ba simply longs for them, I told her that as you were in India the decision regarding their coming here should be left to you.

Could you read anything while on board ship? Was your luggage inspected on your landing at Bombay? Give me all such details;

Blessings from

Mohanandas

From a photostat of the Gujarati original in Gandhiji’s hand: S.N. 9535

6. FRAGMENT OF LETTER TO MANILAL GANDHI
[About July 25, 1911]1

. . . Nowadays I am chained to the school. The school works regularly from 1 to 4.30 p.m. Only on Mondays I let it off since I go to Johannesburg on that day. It is kept working on Sundays too. We have something like school for three hours in the morning as well, but only manual labour is done—either domestic chores or work on the farm. Because of these things, I see the bodies and minds of the children improving from day to day.

1 Although there is no record of this visit, it must have been after May 20; vide “Letter to Minister of Interior”, 20-5-1911.
2 Judging from the similarity of contents between paragraph 1 of this letter and paragraph 4 of the preceding items, this was written about the same time. In any case, it was written soon after July 20 when Jamnadas Gandhi arrived in Natal with Chhaganlal Gandhi.
3 The first few pages of the letter are not available
Until you put your heart in the work, you won’t be able to study. If you cannot do this here, please do not imagine you can do it in England. My impression is that Jamnadas is also your schoolfellow. If so, the two of you, I feel, should be able to get on very well. Do look after him and see that he does not bored there.

Blessings from
MOHANDAS

From the Gujarati original in Gandhiji’s hand: C.W. 102. Courtesy: Sushilabehn Gandhi

7. LETTER TO H. S. L. POLAK

Saturday night [July 29, 1911]

MY DEAR HENRY,

There is yet no confirmation from India of the alleged proscription of I.O. So after all Foolabhai may have been misinformed. Kallenbach leaves by the same mail as this. I have nothing new to tell you and I am tired of writing. I have been writing to Aylmer Maude and others about K.’s visit to London and his desire to see them. They will insist on presenting him an address. He has refused to accept it at a public meeting. I have not interfered at all. I have simply carried out your instructions even in Publishing his portrait. The Hindus are presenting him with a set of Russian books and the Chinese with a set of Carlyle.

Chhaganlal and Anandlal have now returned. Chh. has brought your pet Jamnadas.

With love all round,

Yours,

Bhai

From the original: Gandhi-Polak Correspondence. Courtesy: National Archives of India

---

1 Inferred from Kallenbach’s departure for London; vide “Reception to Mr. Kallenbach”, 5-8-1911.
2 As a supplement to the issue of Indian Opinion dated 5-8-1911; ibid., p. 136.
3 Son of Amritlal Gandhi, a cousin of Gandhiji
4 Cousin of Gandhiji
8. AN AGREEMENT

[July 29, 1911]

Articles of Agreement between Lower House and Upper House.

Lower House is to proceed to Europe on a sacred pilgrimage to the members of his family during the month of August next. Lower House is not to spend any money beyond necessaries befitting the position of a simple-living poor farmer.

Lower House is not to contract any marriage tie during his absence. Lower House shall not look lustfully upon any woman.

Lower House is to travel 3rd-class whether by sea or land. Lower House may, if the exigencies of his business in Johannesburg permit it, visit India with Dr. Mehta. In the event of his so doing he will travel the same class as Dr. Mehta.

Lower House will not tarry long in London or any other place, save the homes of the members of the family.

The consideration for all the above tasks imposed by Lower House on himself is more love and yet more love between the two Houses ≈ such love as, they hope, the world has not seen. In witness whereof the parties hereto solemnly affix their signatures in the presence of the Maker of all this 29th day of July at Tolstoy Farm.

UPPER HOUSE
LOWER HOUSE

From the original: Gandhi-Kallenbach Correspondence. Courtesy: National Archives of India

9. ADDRESS TO H. KALLENBACH

JOHANNESBURG, July 31, 1911

TO
HERMANN KALLENBACH, ESQ.

On behalf of the Transvaal British Indian Association, we, the Chairman and Honorary Secretary, ask your acceptance of this small token of the affection and esteem your whole-hearted and brotherly

1 From the contents; vide also vide “Reception to Mr. Kallenbach”, 5-8-1911.
2 The signature is in Kallenbach’s hand.
3 This was presented to Kallenbach on July 31, 1911, when he left for Europe; vide “Reception to Mr. Kallenbach”, 5-8-1911.
co-operation has won from the British Indians of the Transvaal.

Yours help during the long struggle that was forced upon us by reason of the immigration and registration laws was the more valuable because it was spontaneous.

Your timely generosity in placing Tolstoy Farm at the disposal of the passive resisters proved an invaluable aid to us. The acts of personal service rendered by you to our people in adversity can never be repaid.

We thank you also for your work as Hon. Secretary of the Transvaal European Committee.

All these things and many more have made the Indian community your life-long debtors, and we pray that God may bless you for them.

A. M. CACHALIA
CHAIRMAN
M. K. GANDHI
HON. SECRETARY
BRITISH INDIAN ASSOCIATION

Indian Opinion, 5-8-1911

10. LETTER TO CHHAGANLAL GANDHI

JOHANNESBURG,

*Shravan Sud 7 [August 1, 1911]*¹

CHI. CHHAGANLAL.

It appears from your letter that you are upset again. I see no reason why you should be.

Chi. Jamnadas cap, if he so desires, appear for Cape Matric or the London Matric, though I do not know what he will gain thereby. The time he will spend in studying for the examination, things which are to be later forgotten, will be as good as wasted. The point to be considered is what Jamnadas ultimately wants to do. Do you intend to fix him up in Phoenix or have you brought him here just for the sake of his health? Whatever may have been your intention, you have acted wisely in bringing him over. . . .² used to find out and develop the ¹Chhaganlal Gandhi brought Jamnadas with him when he arrived in July; vide “Letter to Maganlal Gandhi”, 7-7-1911. The letter was therefore written in 1911 in which year Shravan Sud 7 corresponds to August 1. The date is confirmed by Chhaganlal Gandhi to whom we owe this letter.

²Two pages are missing here.
general abilities of their pupils. Modern education seems to me to be a thorough fraud. I sighed when I read the prospectus of Davar’s School¹; such is the state of my mind at present.

I am aware that the debt to Revashankerbhai is increasing. I am wondering how to repay it. It is for me to think about the debt you have incurred. It will benefit us both if you do not take upon yourself the burden unnecessarily. Make up your mind not to incur any debt hereafter. Please let me know how much you will need to draw every month, including the sum that you must send to Khushalbhai and leaving the debt incurred you out of account. I think the, Phoenix constitution [needs to be] amended. Please think it over and write to me frankly. Do not mind if I express my views in strong terms. In my present state of mind I can hardly express my ideas in gentle words or through hints. Just fancy how a pauper will dance for joy if he comes upon the philosophers’ stone. Such . . .² is not possible all at once.

I read Indian Idylls (Edwin Arnold’s) to the boys. It has excellent transactions of narrative poems from the Mahabharata. Amongst them I read “The Enchanted Lake” and found it to be superb. What is its sanskrit title? Please let me know if you or anyone else there knows it. I have been thinking that we should have a free translation made into Gujarati verse by Ambaram³ and publish it. All the Pandavas go to a lake in the hope of finding water. But in their impatience they drink from the lake without answering questions [put to them] by the Yaksha, the guardian spirit of the lake, and fall down unconscious. Yudhishthira goes last and drinks water after giving the answers. All his answers relate to [the nature of] obligation, but they are very ingenious. Perhaps you know the dialogue.

It will be a good thing if you start writing in English gradually. If you understand Letters of John Chairman⁴ fully, you may translate it. I shan’t have the time for it. I re-read the book recently. It is invaluable.

Blessings from

MOHANDAS

From a copy of the Gujarati original: C.W. 5092 Courtesy: Chhaganlal Gandhi.

¹ Davar’s College of Commerce.
² Four pages are missing here.
³ Ambaram Bhatt, who wrote poems about satyagraha
⁴ By Lowes Dickinson.
11. RECEPTION TO MR. KALLENBACH

Mr. Kallenbach had intended to slip away from Johannesburg quietly and without any demonstration from the Indian community. But God willed otherwise. As soon as it became known that Mr. Kallenbach was to leave for Europe, leading passive resisters began to discuss among themselves the desirability of “doing something”. They felt that the owner of Tolstoy Farm, who had done so much for them in his own inimitable way, could not be allowed to leave unhonoured by the community. It was by an accident that the day of Mr. Kallenbach’s departure became known. The time was short. But subscriptions were at once raised. It was decided to present him with an illuminated address, enclosed in a solid silver casket. The idea was incongruous enough. Mr. Kallenbach, who had given up most of his luxuries, and had taken to a simple life on Tolstoy Farm where he entirely shared the life of poor passive resisters, often drinking and eating with them, using a verandah as his chair and his lap for a dinner table, to be presented with a solid silver casket! Where was he to keep it? That was no concern of the enthusiastic admirers. So the address was illuminated and a silver casket ordered and prepared. At practically the last minute, Mr. Kallenbach was informed that he was to be presented with an address. Mr. Kallenbach laughed. “What have I done? You owe me nothing, and if you do, I do not wish to collect my debt just yet.” This happened on Saturday when he was on his way to the Farm. He was to leave on Monday. But the determined men who had done duty as pickets would not have ‘no’ for an answer. Mr. Kallenbach said; “I cannot receive any public acknowledgment.” His interviewers said; “You must.” Thus they parted. Mr. Kallenbach thinking the storm had blown over. But on Monday morning, on his way from Lawley, Mr. Kallenbach was picketed and intercepted by a zealous band, headed by Mr. Thambi Naidoo, who had all run from Vredefort to Canada, a distance of five miles, to meet him in his own compartment. Others met him at Fordsburg station. What could Mr. Kallenbach do against such determination. He had to yield. Passive resistance (love) and picketing were once more triumphant. Mr. Kallenbach hurreid to the Rev. Phillip’s Hall. Imam Abdul Kadir Bawazeer presided. He related Mr. Kallenbach’s services in a few well-chosen words. Mr. Thambi Naidoo read the address which is as follows.¹

1 July 31, 1911

Mr. Easton², on behalf of the Cantonese Club, presented him with the complete works of Carlyle in a beautiful silver-mounted case, and Mr. Morarji with the works of Ruskin in a similar case on behalf of the Hindu Association. Mr. Kallenbach then, in the course of his reply, said that he did not consider his friends, who had done him so singular an honour, owed him anything at all. It was he who was the debtor. It was a matter of privilege to him to be able to do what he did during the struggle that lasted five years. And he did it for his own sake. He sincerely believed that he had gained much through the struggle. At the end of it he found himself a better and stronger man. He assured his hearers that it was through the struggle that he had overcome many of his prejudices and his weaknesses. If ever again the struggle was revived, he was prepared to do what little he could and he knew that whatever he did in such a struggle he would be the gainer.

After giving renewed thanks for the gifts, Mr. Kallenbach resumed his seat amid applause. Mr. Cachalia, was absent, being obliged to go to Warmbaths to attend a sick friend. Mr. Ritch, Mrs. Vogl, Miss Schlesin and Mr. Isaac³ supported the Chair on the platform. At the station there was representative gathering of Indians besides his European friends to see Mr. Kallenbach off. In order to gain experience and still further to simplify his life and to discipline himself, Mr. Kallenbach travelled 3rd class by the train, much to the surprise of his many friends who had always seen him enjoy all “the good things of life”. Mr. Kallenbach is travelling 3rd class on the steamer also.

All the settlers on Tolstoy Farm were at Lawley station to see Mr. Kallenbach off.

¹ For the text, vide “Address to H. Kallenbach”, 31-7-1911.
² Martin Easton; Acting Chairman, Chinese Association and Quinn’s successor to that office; associated himself with Gandhiji’s protest against the racial discrimination implied in the Union Immigrant’ Restriction Bill; vide “Telegram to Secretary to Minister of Interior”, 18-3-1911.
³ Gabriel I. Isaac; English Jew and jeweller; a practising vegetarian associated with the Johannesburg vegetarian restaurant; sometime member of Phoenix settlements; travelled collecting subscriptions and advertisements for Indian Opinion and was ever ready to be of use to the journal and to Gandhiji; in 1908 offered to become nominal owner of satyagrahis; shops, following the Government’s policy of auctioning their goods; in June, 1909, was sent by Gandhiji to Delagoa Bay to assist satyagrahis being deported to India; vide “Johannesburg Letter”, 31-8-1908. He went to jail as a satyagrahi during the Great March of 1913.
We understand that Mr. Kallenbach does not intend to keep the address and the casket himself; but will hand them to his sister in Germany.

Indian Opinion, 5-8-1911

12. MR. KALLENBACH

Our readers will be glad to possess a portrait, which we issue this week as a supplement, of Mr. H. Kallenbach whom they best know as the owner of Tolstoy Farm, of which he gave the free use to passive resisters families and which is still being used for the purpose. Mr. Kallenbach is leaving for Europe principally for sake of meeting the many members of his family in Germany and expects to return within six months. Our readers will recollect that, when both Mr. Gandhi and Mr. Polak were absent, Mr. Kallenbach acted as the Honorary Secretary of the British Indian Association—a most critical time in the history of the struggle.

Indian Opinion, 5-8-1911

13. TUBERCULOSIS

We invite the special attention of our Natal Indian readers to Dr. Murison’s letter to Mr. Gandhi on the campaign that he, with the assistance of Dr. Adams, the specialist, is conducing in the Durban Borough against tuberculosis. This fell disease is no respecter of persons and affect all the communities residing in Durban. If its progress is not arrested in time, it is difficult to estimate the damage it may cause to precious human lives. It is then only proper that Mr. Jameson and his Committee should seek and command the co-operation of all the communities in their endeavour to root out the disease. At the desire of Mr. Jameson a small Indian Committee has been already formed to render the necessary assistance to his Committee to assist ourselves. But the establishment of the Committee is not enough.

1 Dr. Murison, Medical Officer of Health, Durban. During the 1904 plague, Gandhiji found him “sympathetic and ready to help”; vide “The Plague Peg”, 16-7-1904 & “From Pillar to Post”, 30-7-1904. On July 10, 1911 he wrote in reply to Gandhiji’s of July 4, 1911 (not available), suggesting that an Indian Committee and about twenty volunteers co-operate with Durban Health Department’s antituberculosis campaign so that the Borough bye-laws for the prevention of infectious diseases might not be invoked. Indian Opinion, 5-8-1911.
We have no doubt that Dr. Murison ought to be besieged by Indian volunteers who would place themselves at his disposal to do inspection and visiting work. They may become angels of mercy in the truest sense of the term. We feel sure that the work that Dr. Murison expects (and rightly) from us can only be performed by volunteers and not paid workers. Who can reason with our consumptives except our leaders? Dr. Adams preaches the gospel of open air, first and last, in the treatment of this disease. It will require all the ability and persuasive powers of those whom the people trust before the latter will adopt the treatment which is so incredibly simple and yet, unless it is understood, so difficult of adoption. Those who are afraid of catching cold if they breathed the fresh but cold air of the fields rather than the hot but contaminated and carbon-loaded atmosphere of a stuffy room are not to be easily persuaded that their salvation—freedom from consumption—lies in breathing pure and invigorating fresh air even as we drink pure and health giving water rather than poisoned water vomited by others. We trust that every influential Indian will have his name registered as a volunteer worker in the crusade of the Durban Corporation against tuberculosis.

Indian Opinion, 5-8-1911

---

14. LETTER TO HERMANN KALLENBACH

August 6, 1911

MY DEAR LOWER HOUSE,

I have your very good letter from Hutchinson. Hope you received my letter on board as also a joint wire from here (the Farm).

Before I received your cheque book, I had paid out, of course from your account, £ 25 to A.R.M. Roodepoort, £ 15 Partidge & 0-4-0 Shimwell Bros. There was a notice from the A.R.M. saying that you should deposit a further £ 25.

The engine is still working on the same hole. I do not know what is going to happen. I visit the works daily. They have not measured, they say, but have gone down more than 300 ft. I think. The soil varies from day to day. They got from Pretoria a new coil of rope.

Albrecht thought he would first prune the fruit trees. I did not

---

1 The original has “incredibly”.

2 This, the correct spelling of the German name, is variously spelt by Gandhiji as “Albert” and “Albret”, wherever it occurs.
interfere. He has now nearly finished pruning. There is only one native boy working. He is certainly a splendid boy. He asked that we should feed him too. I thought I would not haggle. He therefore has food from the kitchen beyond 30/- per month. John wanted me to give him some ground within the fence, as he said he had not the means of ploughing the ground outside. In spite of your expressed wish to the contrary, I thought I would use my discretion in this case. I thought I should not go wrong if I let him make use of the ground for one year only. I have therefore pegged out a small portion hardly 30 acres beyond the fruit trees. He is to pay £ 15 for the year. I have also given him permission to use the small plot in front of the trees to the right or the left as we pass out at the first gate going to the station for planting potatoes. I thought we could but do better than at least having the ground cleared out. I hope the arrangement will commend itself to you. We have the right to get potatoes for household use.

The native boy has been working at weeding. He is now clearing up the trees. Strict instructions have been given not to use him for household or any other work.

Fencing is likely to commence on Tuesday. Everything will depend upon our friend Albrecht who I may add has been keeping very well indeed.

I have not seen nor heard from Kennedy.

Quinn has been on the Farm for the last three days. I think his people are worrying him as his two men are not yet released. He is likely to be here yet for some days. He works at the garden. Govindji, the piles patient, goes tomorrow (Monday) completely cured. Miss Schlesin came here today chiefly to discuss your letter to her and to discuss her own future. We discussed over the dinner her affairs and your letter. You will be perhaps angry. If I had not done so, how could I have taken my school which in my opinion is daily progressing. No, my dear L.H., we may not use even our dinner hour for our pleasure. Every minute of ours is pre-mortgaged, seeing that we are born debtors. We are born only because we owe. We come into the world again and again until we have paid out what we have incurred on the score of Karma. Life is Duty.

Have not heard further about Call.

Mrs. John leaves us tomorrow, Mrs.Phillip will do so in 3 or 4 days. Krishnaswamy will probably stay. He is the brightest and most promising student, so far as learning goes. The boys again begin saltless diet tomorrow. They alternate. Krishnaswamy and Ramdas have remained saltless through and through. They took dholl for today. But they revert to the saltless diet tomorrow. They all tell me they are feeling extra heavy today.

L.J. Van Wyk of Van Wyk’s Rust came in on Thursday and said you owed him 7/6 for his trouble in coming to fetch coal and from Lenz. He says the coal of course was not brought. I told him I should refer to you before paying. Shall I pay?

I have not understood what you did regarding the draft of £100 or £200 you wanted to take with you. I see no entry in your cheque book as to your drawing. I only see £30 drawn. But I propose to await news from you before doing anything.

As you gave special instructions, the £25 and the £75 cheques were sent to your office for depositing in your account.

We all miss you, and Mrs. Gandhi most of all. In the rush of work, I certainly forget you but she cannot.

P.K. Naidoo and his wife too are leaving in a fortnight’s time, so that I shall only have Mrs. Sodha on hands besides Mrs. Gandhi and the children. I do not mind it a bit. I shall probably value the greater leisure I shall enjoy.

You have gone on a brave mission. May God grant you all the strength you need for resisting temptations. You are deliberately making your life one of great purposes. I feel sure that your way will be fairly smooth. If we are clay in the hands of the Potter, all we need do is to be and remain receptive. I have written much otherwise, so I shall not indulge in further reflections.

I am most eagerly looking forward to your letter from Madeira.

Nothing further has yet been heard of I.O. prohibition. I did not give you the addresses of Maud and others.

I hope you have got them from Maud Polak and even seen some of the people by the time this reaches you.

With love,

Yours,

Upper House

---

1 Rambhabhi, wife of R.M. Sodha
I am not revising this letter. It is getting late. I have forgotten to deal with two most important points out of your letter. Although therefore it is now after 10 p.m. I must deal with them. The word ‘bravo’ in my telegram had no reference to your forgetting the cheque book. It was meant to congratulate you on your having passed through the whole ordeal so very creditably. Your bearing at the station pleased all. Your having forgotten the cheque book was a most natural thing in that rush. The wonder really is that you put in so much work that morning with so much self-possession and forget only the cheque book. You know our mutual canon of interpretation: ‘not to put an unfavourable construction upon a man’s writing or action so long as a favourable one is possible’.

You were hurt at my simple remark about the charge of your not being the same whether I was with you or not. I have not in my wildest dreams suspected you of having withheld anything from me. Indeed one of the binding links between us is my invisible belief in your absolute and natural frankness with me. All I said and still say was and is that when several people bring a charge against us, we should proceed to examine ourselves upon the assumption that there is some truth in the charge. We need not jump to the conclusion that it is baseless. Our friends often know us better than we do ourselves. The reason is that all of us being not perfect do things unconsciously of which we are not witnesses but our friends are. There was no rebuke ever meant when I made the remark, much less any mistrust. Have I made myself understood! It hurts me to think that I should have even unwillingly hurt you on the day of your departure.

From the original: Gandhi-Kallenbach Correspondence. Courtesy: National Archives of India
15. LETTER TO H. L. PAUL

August 7, 1911

DEAR MR. PAUL,

I shall watch the career of your institution with anxious interest. Pray congratulate Angle for me.

Hoping you are all well.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat of the original in Gandhiji’s hand: C.W. 4901 Courtesy: Dr. Cooppan

16. LETTER TO DR. PRANJIVAN MEHTA

Shravan Sud 13 [August 7, 1911]

DEAR SHRI PRANJIVAN,

Your letter. I certainly did not conclude from what you wrote about Sorabji that you are against sending him to England.

Please do not press Harilal to live in Rangoon. It is in his best interest that he should be allowed to live in freedom. It will be a different matter, of course, if he does to Rangoon or comes over here of his own accord, having failed in his plans. Moreover, I see little chance of his Gujarati improving in Rangoon. If he can be by himself in Ahmedabad and study, his eager desire for education will be satisfied in some measure. I will let him know your views, however. Revashnkerbhai’s ideas is that he should learn shorthand, an ideas which does not appeal to me in the least. It is contrary to all my

---

1 Indian interpreter and clerk in the Magistrate’s Court, Durban.
2 Indian Educational Institute, Durban.
3 Daughter of H.L. Paul. Gandhiji was her godfather and she undertook to train in Phoenix and work in the service of the Indian community after finishing her education; vide “Letter to H. L. Paul”, 11-6-1908 & “Letter to H. L. Paul”, 1-7-1908.
4 Although the Indian date does not mention the year, two reference in the course of the letter serve to fix the Gregorian year. It was during 1911 that a Gujarati translation of The Indian Nation Builders alluded to in paragraph 6 of this letter was serialized in the Gujarati section of Indian Opinion. A copy of the book was presumably sent to Gandhiji by Natesan. It was about this time, too, that Gandhiji was much taken up with “The Enchanted Lake” from the Mahabharata; vide “Letter to Chhaganlal Gandhi”, 1-8-1911. In that year Shravan Sud 13 corresponds to August 7.
I am not surprised to your views about Amsterdam. To me at least, all those who are trapped in the net of civilization seem like cripples.

Nowadays I read story poems from the Mahabharata to the boys of my school for an hour every evening. I have no option but to read from an English book, as half the boys are Tamils. The one being read at present is Arnold’s Indian Idylls. Last night I read “The Enchanted Lake” from it. I liked its thoughts so much that I feel like reading it over and over again, if you haven’t seen the book, please get it and read this [story]. What has a nation, which has produced men capable of such grand ideas, to learn from the cowardly present day civilization?

I have not been able to take the Mauritius report in hand. Though Natesan has omitted [certain portions], I propose to start printing in Indian Opinion a translation of the article as published now.¹

It is not quite true that I take upon myself too heavy a burden. Your caution is right nevertheless. It is *moha*² to want to do too much and moha is a great fault. I know this and yet I cannot abandon what I have taken up; it must not be that is the teaching of our religion. We should of course, make sure that it is not an unworthy task we have undertaken. Please do not imagine that I am harming my health because of the heavy burden. I eat like a bull. I take exactly an hour and a half four my two meals. I see that some to those around me do not spend as much time on three meals. It is not true that I keen indifferent health. However, I am always on the alert to see that nothing is done through moha. There is nothing, of course, I wish to gain for myself. But one must keep oneself busy. I go on doing what, on reflection, seems best to me.

Bande Mataram from Mohandas

From the Gujarati original in Gandhiji’s hand: C.W. 5093. Courtesy: C. K. Bhatt.

¹ The reference is to a series of articles published between August 12 and November 4, 1911, in the Gujarati section of Indian Opinion. These were translations of the lives of Surendranath Banerjee and G. K. Gokhale, among other published in a single English volume by Ganesh & Co. of Madras.

² Infatuation.
17. THE STORM GATHERING

Thoreau went to gaol for the sake of those who did not belong to his race. So many Mr. Ritch go to gaol for the sake of us who do not wear the same skin as he does. For he has received a notice to the effect that in allowing Indians to remain on the Stands registered in his name in Krugersdorp, he is committing a criminal offence.\(^1\) We know that Mr. Ritch is not likely to give up the Stands on account of the notice. The authorities know well that Mr. Ritch is a trustee holding the Stands in question for his Indian wards. Mr. Ritch does not allow them to remain on his stands. They (the Indians) remain on their own. That is the real position, although, in the eyes of the law, Mr. Ritch is the owner and no other.

Klerksdorp Indian have been threatened.\(^2\) In Roodepoort a prosecution has already taken place and an appeal is pending.\(^3\) Now the compliment has been paid to Krugersdorp. Evidently the authorities imagine that Indians will abandon their stores and their stock immediately they take action. Mr. Neser\(^4\) (and he ought to know) has informed South Africa that the Government have stayed their hand only because of this being the Coronation year and that actual proceedings will be take next year. Mean-while, therefore, we fancy the Government are sharpening their weapons. The notice served on Mr. Ritch is a clear call to the Indians to show of what stuff they are

---

\(^1\) Ritch was the owner of certain Stands occupied by Indian in the mining area of Krugersdorp which had been declared “Proclaimed Areas” under the Gold Law, Act 35 if 1908. On August 3, 1911 the Public prosecutor, Krugersdorp, sent him a notice warning him that he was contravening section 130 of Act 35 of 1908 and was liable to criminal prosecution. He was directed to ask his Indian tenants to vacate. Indian Opinion, 12-8-1911.

\(^2\) Vide “Extract from Letter to Maud Polak” 5-4-1911.

\(^3\) At Roodepoort, one Alfred Tamblin was charged under Section 130 of the Gold Law of 1908 for subletting a mining stands to two Asiatics, Ahmed Khan and Abdulla Khan. His counsel argued that under the old Gold Law, an owner had the right to sublet his stand to coloured persons and that under section 77 of the present Gold Law, Coloured persons were entitle to acquire rights to stands, but the case was remanded. Subsequently a Krugersdorp magistrate found Tamblin guilty and sentenced him. On appeal, the Transvaal Division of the Supreme Court of South Africa acquitted Tamblin and ruled that the Asiatics in question we protected by section 77 of the new Gold Law. Indian Opinion 24-6-1911 & 2-9-1911 made. We have no doubt that if for no other reason, seeing that Mr. Ritch may himself have to go to gaol, the Indians affected by the notice will remain firm and show once more to the Government that, unless they carry with them the Asiatic communities their laws adversely affecting them must remain a dead letter.

\(^4\) Member of Union Parliament.

Indian Opinion, 12-8-1911

18. LETTER TO SECRETARY FOR INTERIOR

August 12, 1911

THE SECRETARY FOR THE INTERIOR

PRETORIA

SIR,

I have the honour to acknowledge your letter of the . . . instant, I shall endeavour to complete the list of those covered by the Settlement before the 21st instant. But I fear that it will to be possible to do so regarding those who are now in India. I had hoped to be able to complete the list much earlier, but for the reasons given in my letter to the Registrar of Asiatics, I have been unable to do so.

I have the honour, etc.,

From the typewritten office copy: S.N. 5586.

19. LETTER TO HERMANN KALLENBACH

Saturday night, August 12, 1911

MY DEAR LOWER HOUSE,

I had your cheerful note from the 3rd-class saloon of your floating palace. It is evident that you received my letter as also wires too late to acknowledge. I wrote to you on Monday so as to enable the letter to reach you on board.

Received your wire but no letter.

Have heard nothing further about Call.

I am sorry that the bore is making no progress. They now bore about 4 to 5 ft. per day. The ground is very hard. I have written to the

---

1 This was found among Gandhiji’s paper and was presumably drafted by him. If the original was sent at all, the date of the letter from the Secretary for the Interior referred to in the text was possibly supplied before dispatch.

2 Not available.
Irrigation Department in your name asking for a report on the progress of the work.

The work in connection with fencing is going forward. Assisted by Krishnaswamy, Revashankar and Devdas, I finished putting in the pegs today. Albrecht and Naidoo and Coopoo have been putting strainers and supports near the pegs. The native boy is digging holes. Ramdas is tarring the poles.

The garden work has been suspended for the time being. The natives have however ploughed the portion I described in my last letter. The ground looks very sweet on that account. Quinn has been illing. Medh is still not fit for active work. Mrs. Phillip goes away on Monday. Krishnaswamy will probably return. He does not wish to leave the Farm. I am becoming more and more absorbed in the school. The children are daily improving. They are still saltless. The work on the Farm is becoming more and more methodical. Albrecht is improving in health.

The vines you were to order have not come forward. If they are not ordered, I hope you will not order them from there.

Some letters which I think you ought to see herewith.

Miss Schlesin may leave us. She is accepting an educational appointment. She hopes still to attend to your work. In any case you need not worry.

There have been no visitors to the Farm. Ritch will probably come tomorrow.

Hope you had a good voyage and are having a nice time, i.e., a good time from a moral point of view. Gool says you have captured him.

So you see I have simply given you a diary. I must now leave off. Will write more if I have the time.

With love,

UPPER HOUSE

[PS.]

Please get the books as per list. If you have no time send it to Davis.

From the original: Gandhi-Kallenbach Correspondence. Courtesy: National Archives of India

1 Revashankar Jagjivan Jhaveri, brother of Dr. Pranjivan Mehta
20. LETTER TO H. S. L. POLAK

August 13, 1911

MY DEAR HENRY,

I have your two letters. I hope you have been writing directly to West too about the typographical and other errors you may have noticed. West is becoming quite a nice leader writer. He is the hope of Phoenix. He is the silent ‘doer’.

I shall arrange for further funds for your trip.

I like it that no more funds have been paid to Mrs. Ritch since July. The last payment to her from the funds ended June 30.

Ritch will take his time before he writes short articles.

Miss Schlesin may be leaving us next week. She wants to take up an educational appointment. She will still continue to interest herself in our affairs. She has asked for appointment in a coloured school and is likely to get the Fordsburg one.

We are having a meeting on the gold law business1. The receipt by Ritch of the notice is a very good thing. It will excite public attention far more quickly than anything else could have.

My little school is flourishing. I am absorbed in it at present. Nothing else interests me so much as the school.

I am glad you are having an altogether good time all round. For on your return, there will be no bed of roses for you and Millie in S.A. You will find that you have plenty to do.

With love to you all,

BHAI

From the original: Gandhi-Polak Correspondence. Courtesy: National Archives of India

1 Vide “Indians Support Mr. Ritch”, 19-8-1911 and also “The Storm Gathering”, 12-8-1911.
21. LETTER TO CHHAGANLAL GANDHI

Shravan Vad 3 [August 13, 1911]¹

CHI. CHHAGANLAL.

The books you have brought are good ones.² Please send me Bhartrihari Shataka³ if the meaning of the Sanskrit text is explained in Gujarati or English.

I do not propose to return the money you have spent on the land. There are difficulties in the way. If you have paid anything for the land, that I think could be returned. This is only a suggestion I make about the land, for, if all of them get just enough to live on, how would it be possible for them to pay its cost or that of the buildings? And so I have suggested that the dues on account of land should be written off. Should anyone, however, want to buy off (his share of) the land, I shall not come in his way. The question you have raised now had also arisen in connection with Anandlal’s land and yours. Instead of greeting to return you the money you have spent on the land, I should prefer paying off your debt. Returning the money spent on the land will raise many delicate problems. I am sure you will understand this I am waiting for a reply from you again about what should be paid to each of you two brothers.

Blessings from

MOHANDAS

From a photostat of the Gujarati original in Gandhiji’s hand: S.N. 4782

¹It would appear that this letter was written soon after Chhaganlal Gandhi’s return to South Africa in 1911. It is moreover in continuation of a subject discussed in the letter of August 1, 1911, (p. 133), that is Chhaganlal’s request that the debt he had incurred be set off against the money he had spent on improving his portion of the land in Phoenix. In 1911, shravan vad 3 corresponds to August 13.

²Brought by Chhaganlal Gandhi from England or India when he returned to South Africa.

³A collection of three hundred stanzas by Bhartrihari, a celebrated Sanskrit poet and king. A hundred stanzas are devoted to each of the three topics: Niti (morals) Shringar (love) and Vairagya (renunciation).
22. INDIANS SUPPORT MR. RITCH

An important meeting¹ of the British Indian Association was held at the Hamidia Society’s Hall on Sunday evening last. Mr. Cachalia was in the chair. Invitations were sent all over the province. A telegram was received from Klerksdorp regretting absence but accepting the decision of the meeting. Representatives attended from Krugersdorp, Roodepoort, etc. Messrs Ritch, Quinn, and Isaac were also present. At the invitation of Mr. Cachalia, Mr. Gandhi explained the effect of the proposed action of the authorities. The proceedings were earnest and the meeting showed determination to go through the impending storm.

Mr. Gandhi explained that he had Mr. Ritch’s authority for stating that he (Mr. Ritch) was prepared to stand by the community and incur the risk of imprisonment should it be necessary in making good the trust he had undertaken on behalf of those whose properties were registered in his name. After full discussion, the following resolutions were unanimously passed:

This meeting of British Indians thanks Mr. Ritch for his presence thereat, and for his magnanimous offer to help the community evin the extent of suffering imprisonment in connection with notices issued by the authorities under the Gold Law and in connection with landed property registered in his name, but held by him in trust for member of this community.

Proposed by Mr. Dadoo (Krugersdorp), and seconded by Mr. Ahmed Khan (Roodepoort).

This meeting resolves to resist to the utmost the attempt being made to oust Indian merchants from their possessions and businesses, and to suffer imprisonment and other trials during the threatened campaign against them in respect of the Gold Law and the Townships Amendment Act of 1908.

Proposed by Mr. Ismail Amod Moola, seconded by Mr. Amod Moosajee and supported by Mr. E. G. Coovadia.²

¹ Held to consider the notice served on Ritch by the public prosecutor, Krugersdorp; vide “The Storm Gathering”, 12-8-1911.
² Ebrahim Saleji Coovadia; well known Johannesburg merchant and some time Treasurer, Hamidia Islamic Society; acting Chairman, British Indian Association, 1909 and 1910 (Vol. IX p. 252 fn and Vol. X. p. 268 fn) repeatedly suffered imprisonment as a satyagrahi in 1908 and 1909; in June, 1909 was elected member of the proposed Transvaal Indians’ deputation to India, but was arrested immediately after; vide “Speech at Mass Meeting”, 16-6-1909.
This meeting authorizes the Chairman to send a respectful representation to the Government, enclosing copies of the foregoing resolutions, and urging them to alter the above mentioned laws, so as to reassure the Indian Community and to protect its member in their legitimate occupations.

Proposed by Mr. A.M. Vaja seconded by Mr. A. A. Karodia and supported by Mr. H. Mal and Mr. M. S. Nana.

It was also decided to start collecting subscriptions in aid of this struggle.

Indian Opinion, 19-8-1911

23. AN IMPORTANT DECISION

Mr. Ritch as well as the British Indian Association of the Transvaal are to be congratulated on their respective decisions as evidenced by the report of the meeting of the Association, published in another column. Mr. Ritch, by his generous action, has put the finishing touch to the many services he has so selflessly rendered to the community. His action has increased tenfold the responsibility of British Indians in the Transvaal. We can only deserve execration from every right-minded man if, after allowing Mr. Ritch to go to gaol we though sheer cowardice, avoid the prospect of imprisonment ourselves. It is therefore but meet that the Association passed the second resolution, committing the community to defend the interests that are in jeopardy, even to the extent of suffering imprisonment or whatever more may be in store for it. The third resolution enables Mr. Cachalia to bring the two very important resolutions to the notice of the Government. Mr. Cachalia has not allowed any time to lapse. And we must now await the decision of the Government. We hope that wise counsels will prevail among the member of the Union Cabinet, and that they will avert what promises to become a national calamity. Indians are not to be expected to allow their interests to be played “ducks and drakes” with. The result of any attempt to force matters on the part of the Government can therefore only be (a) repetition of the unseemly spectacle of a mighty Government setting all its machinery in motion to crush a small low abiding community, endeavouring to hold on to its own.

Indian Opinion, 19-8-1911

---

1 Vide the preceding item.
24. AN EDUCATION SCANDAL

Formerly, Indian girls attended the ordinary Government Schools for girls in Durban. Some years ago, Indian girls were prohibited from attending these schools and provision was made for their attendance at the Higher-Grade Indian School. Promise was made that the girls would receive separate education from the boys. Notwithstanding the promise, the Government tried the experiment of mixing boys and girls, and failed. In theory we are quite in favour of boys and girls receiving education together. But, in practice, it is impossible to ignore deep-rooted habits or prejudices. Experience has shown that Indian parents, as a rule, will not allow their daughters to mingle with boys at a school or elsewhere. And, whenever a forcible mixture takes place, the result “Let them”, shouts the unthinking reformer. “They will soon be at home if left alone” But the parents will not wait for the process. They are not reformers and they will not allow experiments to be made at their children’s expense. Nor is there any dreadful hurry for pressing forward the reform. There is already a deadlock. From an attendance of thirty girls, it fell to below ten through the stupid zeal of the reformer in the Education Department. At present, we understand, even the few parents who had held out in the hope of separate accommodation being provided have withdrawn their girls. The Government need not be surprised if they find themselves being suspected of anti-Indian prejudice in not conceding the request of the Congress and the Indian parents concerned to give facilities for the separate education of Indian girls.

Indian Opinion, 19-8-1911

25. FOR INDIAN PARENTS

We confess to a sneaking regard for many of General Hertzog’s pronouncements. His remarks on education and national conservation,1 which we have copied elsewhere from Johannesburg papers,

1 Speaking at Newlands Government school on August 12, Hertzog had criticized the present system of education which was based on cramming and examinations and benefited only those who aspired to become advocates and doctors; the remaining 97 per-cent of the population was left to suffer. He had stressed the importance of character training, technical education and the mother tongue. Indian Opinion, 19-8-1911.
are worthy of perusal and careful consideration by Indian parents and Indian youths. There is a tendency among us to Anglicize our children as if that was the best way of educating them or fitting them for real service to the Empire. We do not think that the wisest Englishmen desire that we should lose our nationality—that is our hereditary training—or that we should “ape” them. General Hertzog has, we think, shown most clearly that the Dutch will be in danger of losing their nationality if Dutch children received their education through the medium of any other language but Dutch. How true are his remarks that children, forgetting their own vernacular, are found lacking in respect for their parents. “Honour thy father and thy mother” is equally the commandment of Jesus with Mahomet, Zoroaster and the Vedas. Those, therefore, who are so indifferent to their mother tongue, no matter how humble it may be are in danger of forgetting a universal religious principle. If General Hertzog’s remarks are true of Dutch for Dutch children, how much more so they are of Indian languages for Indian children. Millions of Indians in India, although they may not be able to sign their own names, know the spirit of the great epics, Mahabharata and Ramayana, which play a part in our national life that very few other similar works do. We decline to believe that our children can be taught these epics through English translations, however accurate they may be. We consider it to be impossible for us to exist an independent, self respecting human beings if we forget the poetry of the race to which we belong. We can never learn it through a foreign tongue.

But some of us labour under the delusion that we may pick up our mother tongue in later life. All we can say is that such persons do not know what they are saying. General Hertzog has well said that the true purpose of education is not to pass examinations but to mould the character of our children. And character cannot be moulded by making a child unlearn or neglect its past, and pass year in mastering a foreign tongue. A moment’s reflection must convince anyone that the adoption of any such course is false economy; it is a criminal waste of capital inherited from our forefathers.

Indian Opinion, 19-8-1911
26. LETTER TO H. S. L. POLAK

August 20, 1911

MY DEAR HENRY,

I am without a letter from you this week. I suppose you were busy with the Congress work. Why did you send the wire to Prof. Gokhale\(^1\) regarding I.O.? If there was any truth in the information, we would have heard in the natural course. When the prohibition comes, I do not think we want any fuss about it.

You will not expect long letters from me just now. I am absorbed in the children and my mind is generally occupied with thoughts about making myself as capable as I can be as their teacher. And so when I sit down at the last moment to write the weekly mail, my mind is a blank.

I hope that you have still enough money to go on with. I do not want you to have to send me a cable. I hope to send you more if not the whole of the balance in a fortnight’s time.

With love to you all,

Bhai

From the original: Gandhi-Polak Correspondence. Courtesy: National Archives of India

27. LETTER TO HERMANN KALLENBACH

Sunday night [August 20, 1911]

MY DEAR LOWER HOUSE,

Let me give you the pleasant news that after all the boring has been successful = 80,000 gallons in 24 hours! In reply to the note I sent to the Irrigation Department, the Engineer whom you have met, came down. Only he came down simply to inspect a very successful well. He, however, discussed the whole thing fully with me. Acting upon his advice we are now boring at the other end = the spot marked by you. Boring there commenced on Friday. The dismantling and fixing was done on Thursday. At my suggestion the engine was worked night and day after water was found, in order to see the

\(^1\)Gopal Krishna Gokhale (1866-1915); Indian statesman; President, Indian National Congress, 1905; founded the Servants of India Society, 1905; member, Bombay Legislature and Viceroy’s Legislative Council, 1902-15 capacity of the well apart from the test. In your name I have given Logan 10/- as a treat for the success of their efforts. The second hole stands at 16 feet. It is very hard ground.

The holes for fencing continue. But I am obliged to use the native boy at times for work connected [with] the boring also. Naidoo is not on the Farm. He has not left altogether but will do so shortly. So I shall be the only adult member of the family apart from Albrecht.

Amies has asked for a cheque for the keys. I am therefore sending him [a] cheque without waiting for your answer.

I must not forget to tell you that the Engineer advised me to wait for the windmill till after your return. And this I shall probably do, unless for the sake of the Farm I find it necessary to fix up something.

The family continues to remain happy. Mrs. Gandhi has evidently benefited very greatly by the Sodha incident. She is very nice and tactful. The boys still continue to be saltless except on Sundays. But they are, so it appears to me, more and more finding it out for themselves that no-salt diet is better. Medh continues saltless. Pragji too is trying it.

The native inmates are behaving well. The school is flourishing. I am still absorbed in it. It has never yet been interrupted. Ramdas is getting [on] and so is Devdas and so are they all. I have not yet worried the boys to write to you.

I fear that Miss Schlesin has not kept her promise to give you a full weekly report. I hope to get out the balance tomorrow and send it to you.

Today we had a host of visitors all brought by our foreman the Indian carpenter. Isaac too graced the Farm by his presence. Gordon has not met me at all since. Lapin wrote thanking me for sending I.O. containing you. He said he was much interested in the account of “our mutual friend”. Hosken sent his regrets that he could not see you off.

Have not seen or heard of Kennedy.

I think I have told you that I have offered to take and nurse Call here if he could be brought here. The Doctor has suggested that he could not be kept very long at Pilgrims’ Rest. Douglas told me he was going there himself to see Call. I have also offered on your as also my behalf to contribute towards any expenses that might be incurred in bringing and keeping Call.
I have no time to give you translation of verses from the book1 I alluded to, and which I have now got. I may do so next week.

Please remember me to your sister and the other relations. I am looking forward to your description of their opinion of you and of your opinion of Dr. Mehta.

And now good night.

All love,

UPPER HOUSE

From the original: Gandhi-Kallenbach Correspondence. Courtesy: National Archives of India

28. LETTER TO DR. PRANJIVAN MEHTA2

Shravan Vad 11 [August 20, 1911]3

DEAR SHRI PRANJIVAN,

There has been no letter from you this week. Still I send this letter via Europe. If you are there, the week will not go by [without a letter from me]. And in case you have left Europe, you will get this in about the same time as it would take if I sent it directly to India.

I have not got Harilal’s letter yet. There has been news from [Ahmedabad], however, that [Chi.] Harilal has arrived there and has joined a school. He [has written] to me that he is determined to pass [the matriculation examination]; and so long as he has not passed [it], he will not be rid of his infatuation, nor will he acquire confidence in his own powers. Since he has gone with this intention I have no desire to stop him. If his character remains sound, he will gain much experience in Ahmedabad. We have had many discussions on what experience to seek and how. Now, therefore, we can only watch from a distance how he fares, I hope you will keep up a correspondence with him.

Bande Mataram from

MOHANDAS

From the Gujarati original in Gandhiji’s hand: C.W. 5567. Courtesy: C.K. Bhatt.

1 Presumably, Bhartrihari Shataka, a collection of three hundred stanzas by Bhartrihari, a celebrated Sanskrit poet and king; vide also “Letter to Chhaganlal Gandhi”, 13-8-1911.

2 This letter is torn at several places and the missing words are reconstructed from the context.

3 From the reference to Harilal Gandhi in paragraph 2, this appears to have been written after he had left South Africa.
29. LETTER TO REGISTRAR OF ASIATICS

August 21, 1911

THE REGISTRAR OF ASIATICS
PRETORIA

sir,

I have the honour to enclose herewith a revised list of those Indians who are covered by the Settlement. I am unable to send you a complete list of those who are in India, as the Association has not yet been able to get all the names.

The list I am sending you does not include all possible names. I am in correspondence with some of those who claim to come in under the settlement. I trust therefore, that you will not mind my sending you a few more names later on.

You will notice that there are some who have permits issued under the Peace Preservation Ordinance. These names have been listed, as the persons are at present in the Transvaal, but they do not belong to the category of the names contemplated to be included among the 180.

In compiling the list of Pre-War residents, care has been taken to accept those who have been able to show prima facie evidence of their residence before the War for three year in the Transvaal. But neither the Association nor I are in a position to vouchsafe [sic] that the claimants have substantial claims. Also, whilst care has been taken not to accept any persons who have already applied under the Acts, it is not claimed that the list is absolutely trust-worthy in this respect. It is quite possible that some of them may have already applied and have either consciously or unconsciously misled the Association.

This was found among Gandhiji papers and was presumable drafted by him. Since the request made in the last paragraph was acceded to, it can be assumed that the letter, although not published in Indian Opinion, as such letters customarily were, was actually despatched after the figures had been filled in at the blank spaces found in the penultimate paragraph. Vide also “Letter to Registrar of Asiatics”, 26-5-1911.

Not available

Categories (a) and (b) in “Letter to E.F.C. Lane”, P. 59

These were persons who had exchanged their registration certificates issued under the Dutch Law 3 of 1885 for permits issued under the British Peace Preservation Ordinance; vide “Letter to General Smuts”, 13-6-1908. They were unable to apply for re-registration under any of the Asiatic laws; vide “Letter to Minister of Interior”, 19-5-1911.
The list includes... out of the 150 Indians contemplated by the settlement and... out of the 30 Indians at present in India who are covered by the settlement and... Indians who are holders of peace Preservation Ordinance permits.

I shall be obliged if you will be good enough now to inform me when the Office will be opened in Johannesburg.¹

I have the honour, etc.,

From the typewritten draft S. N. 5587; also photostat of draft in Gandhiji’s hand: S. N. 5558

30. LETTER TO CHHAGANLAL AND MAGANLAL GANDHI

Shravan Vad 14 [August 23, 1911]²

11 P. M.

CHI. CHHAGANLAL AND CHI. MAGANLAL.

I have the letters from both of you. You may take £9 every month.

I shall not hesitate to write to you what I ought to say. I do not intend to return the money spent on the land, whether on the building or other things.³ If anyone has paid for the land, I think we should return the amount. That is, if we set up a new convention.

If I have again to break my head over law,⁴ it will not be only because of you. There may also be other factors of a similar nature to make things difficult for me. That course will be the last remedy, and the fact that I am obliged to mention it bespeaks my want of faith, my moha and immaturity. These ideas of mine suggest a false satyagrahi relying ultimately on brute strength. Personally I know, however that there is a difference between the two things. It will be best, all the same, if I do not have to practise law again—I do fervently wish I do not have to. I also wish, we in Phoenix adopt a life of total poverty while I am yet alive, I pray to God for such a time, but the portents, I ¹This was opened on September 9, 1911.

²In his “Letter to Chhaganlal Ghandhi”, August 13, 1911 (p. 142) Gandhiji was disinclined to compensate him for the improvements he had effected on his share of the land at Phoenix which Gandhiji now intends to make over to a board of trustees. He has now made up his mind in this letter, which, clearly therefore comes after the letter of August 13. In 1911, Shravan Vad 14 Corresponds to August 23.
³Vide letters to Chhaganlal Gandhi 1-8-1911 & 13-8-1911.
⁴If I have to resume legal practice.
find, are all to the contrary. It is unlikely that the time will ever come when we shall be living in real poverty. Dr. Mehta’s help stands in the way. As long as this fount flows on, I feel we shall not enjoy the rare privilege of knowing that we have not a pie left for the next day and wondering what will happen. I consider this privilege a rare one, for such is the state of the majority in the world, and such was, and will be the state of the Buddha and others [like him]. I feel positively that it is impossible to realize the great atman in any other away.

Jaikrishna Vyas‘ and others gave us philosophy indeed but I feel it was all dry philosophy. True knowledge, I am convinced, was taught by Narasinh Mehta and Sudamaji. To indulge in the pleasures of the senses and then assert that one does nothing, that the senses just go their way, that one is a mere observer; all this is vain chatter. He alone may argue thus who had achieved complete mastery over his senses and whose senses function only to keep the body going. By the same token, there is not one among us who is fit enough to speak these words and their will be none till we have achieved true poverty. There is no reason to believe that kings are kings in virtue of their punya. All that can be said is that they are kings because of their deeds. But to say that these were necessarily good deeds seems entirely wrong, considering the nature of the atman.

If all of you agree that these ideas are right and desire that we should all enjoy the exalted state which I have pictured, God may well grant us such a time.

Narandas has not even replied to my letter.

Saltless diet is in the air at the Farm these days. It remains to be seen how long the fashion will last. Parsee Jivanjee’s two sons have arrived today to join the school here. I have taken them on condition that they also do without salt. More later.

Blessings from

MHANANDAS

From the Gujarati original in Gandhiji’s hand: C.W. 5568. Courtesy: Radhabehn Choudhri.

---

2 Accumulated merit
3 A younger brother of the addressee
4 Vide also "Letter to Harilal Gandhi", 25-7-1911.
31. LETTER TO DR. PRANJIVAN MEHTA

Bhadarva Sud 1 [August 25, 1911]¹

DEAR SHRI PRANJIVAN,

Received your letter regarding Polak.

The letter I had addressed to you from Phoenix has been returned to me as, through a slip, I had left the address incomplete. It is worth reading and I still want the same thing that I had asked for in that letter. Hence I send it as it is.

I do not think Polak will become an Anglo-Indian out and out. You are right in what you say about his nature. He is hot-tempered. But he is a milch cow.² His heart is absolutely frank and he is unswerving in his duty. Praise is everyone’s enemy; how, then, can it be otherwise with him? But I do not so much as suspect that he would be corrupted by praise. He is as honest as he is frank. Maybe the words honest and frank are synonymous. How can we believe that such men can go astray? Even supposing that the thing does happen, I for one have no fear. He has done us [good] service. If, after this, he breaks away, he will sacrifice the bond [of friendship]. We, on our part, shall have nothing to lose, for the basis [of our relationship] is one-sided. We have dealings with a person so long as he seems truthful in speech and conduct. Such association cannot but be profitable to us. If he changes subsequently, the loss will be his, not ours. This has been my experience during the entire campaign. Call to mind the instances of Ally³ and others. You will not be right if you say that the money and love I spent on them have been wasted. The money could have been collected only for that purpose, and he worked sincerely enough for the money that was spent [on him]. We had nothing but gain at the time from Ally’s association with us.

¹ Polak whom Dr. Mehta appears to have met in England left for that country in May, 1911, and in that year, Bhadarva Sud 1 corresponds to August 25.
² In Indian languages, this metaphor cannotes one who gives of himself ungrudgingly.
³ Haji Ojer Ally; born in Mauritius in 1853 of Indian and Malay parents spoke Dutch, English and Hindustani fluently (Satyagraha in South Africa, Ch. XIV); came to South Africa in 1884 and devoted himself whole-heartedly to the Indian cause; took notable part in the agitation against Cape Franchise Law Amendment Act; elected Chairman, Cape Coloured People’s Organization in 1892; founder president, Hamidia Islamic Society and member, along with Gandhiji, of the Transvaal Indian Deputation to England in 1906; vide “Johannesburg Letter”, 25-9-1906. Unable to join the satyagraha campaign and unwilling, at the same time, to submit to the Asiatic Registration Act, he left the Transvaal in 1907, leaving behind large interests; vide “Johannesburg Letter”, 31-8-1907. For the incident alluded to by Gandhiji, vide “Ally’s Mistake”, 27-7-1907 and “A Brief Explanation”, 22-2-1908.

Later on in your letter you add that you have made up with Polak. The foregoing comments, however, stand, and the views you expressed were certainly worth knowing about.

I also believe that India can have no direct benefit from the Races Congress\(^1\). The only indirect benefit could be that …\(^2\)

So long as he does it with an eye on … there can be no bond of brotherhood with him. Selfishness and friendship have always frowned on each other. I do not think there is brotherhood among the English either. They too have learnt to follow the policy of self-interest. “Honesty is the best policy” sounds a wicked maxim to me. It images their conception of morality. This criticism applies to the common behaviour of men. They [, however, ] do have among themselves selfless people like Polak (according to me). Their behaviour is not influenced by self-interest.

As you have said something about Polak, he has also given me an account of the same incident. I see from that letter also that Polak spoke to you frankly.

I believe I tore up [the report of] your speech, expecting that I would get the full text from Natesan. Now it can be [published] only if you have a copy and send it to me. I am writing to ask that translations from Natesan’s [book] be stopped for the present.

I destroy all your letters after reading them. I did give a general idea of your views to Kallenbach and Polak. I hope, I did not do anything improper.

Pray do no hesitate to write to me because I happen to be busy night and day.

I have not read Mrs. Besant’s Speeches.

I did not see Gujarati’s comments on your article. If any other

---

\(^1\) A Universal Races Congress, which Indian Opinion described as a “Parliament of Man”, was held in London in July, 1911, to discuss the racial question in its various aspects. The Congress was attended by representatives of the world’s religions and philosophies, and many papers were read. Mrs. Besant and Prof. Gokhale also attended. Indian Opinion, 26-8-1911.

\(^2\) A page is missing here.
comments have appeared; they have not reached me. If more appear in future, I shall get them, and the Gujarati’s comments will also be here. There are due only now.

I read something from Kanyadohan to the children at night. I finished the story of Prahlad yesterday. The ideas so common among us, which it faithfully reflects, are rarely to be found among English books reputedly great.

I am sure you will see to it that Chhagan reads such books.

Bande Mataram from
Mohandas

From the Gujarati original in Gandhiji’s hand: C.W. 5628. Courtesy: C. K. Bhatt

32. LETTER TO H.S.L. POLAK

August 26, 1911

MY DEAR HENRY,

The same mail has brought letters from you and Dr. Mehta about the incident described by you. But like you, Dr. Mehta too mentions that the little storm blew over. I will therefore not comment beyond saying that I hope you will practise what you in your letter have desired — to enter into other people’s feelings. You will need to do that more and more as we progress.

You may spend up to £800. That I think will be enough. I am not without some anxiety as to your Indian tour from a health point of view. But by a careful dietary, you should all be able to keep good health. The cold weather season in India is certainly not bad. What I dread is your laziness and easy-going nature when there is no resistance. You brought a corporation with you as a result. Many people will invite you. You are not the person to walk to your hosts, nor could you with the children. And you would hardly resist dishes made of Kosher food. Can Millie alone then resist? With you two gone, Heaven help the poor children. If you will therefore make a promise to yourselves as to what even in the Kosher department you would avoid, you would save a lot of trouble. Don’t you say to yourself

1 A canto from the Bhagavata; Prahlad was a devotee of God persecuted by his unbelieving father. Gandhiji often spoke of him as an ideal satyagrahi.

2 Dr. Mehta’s son
‘vows for the weak’. That is a prompting of the devil. All the greatest men have adopted vows. Believe me, to be able to take a vow denotes a high degree of strength. I do not care to enter into details. But generally let the children and indeed you yourselves live principally if not entirely on fruit and farinaceous foods avoiding entirely pulses and sweets whether European or Indian. I see death in chocolates. There are few substances so heating as the abominable chocolate that cursed product of devilish slave labour. To give tea and coffee to children in India is to give them poison.

I know that all of us cannot possibly give time to schooling. It is likely that you may not be able to do so. But if we have more hands than enough for the press, some of us could easily give time. So long as I am in S.A. and free from the turmoil of passive resistance and the miserable business of law, I should be able to give the main part of my time to education as I am now doing. Purshottamdas has given certain hours steadily to the work. Chh[aganlal] is now giving I think an hour per day. Miss West could be entirely spared for the purpose not of teaching but of looking after the boarding pupils. West certainly is anxious to give a certain portion of his time. Miss Schlesin may come only for that purpose. Maganlal could qualify. And later Harilal and Manilal are possibilities. Miss Schlesin has accepted a temporary post as a teacher in the Government school at Mayfair. More when you are here and fairly settled. The Trust Deed has already been sent to you.

With love to you all,

Bhai

From the original: Gandhi-Polak Correspondence. Courtesy: National Archives of India

33. LETTER TO HERMANN KALLENBACH
August 27, 1911

MY DEAR LOWER HOUSE,

The second bore-hole is going forward. They have gone down more than 150 feet now. I have ordered another truck of coal. The Company will not take the order before getting [the] cheque which I gave. The coal is now at the station. It will be removed tomorrow.

Miss Schlesin has accepted an educational appointment temporarily. I am therefore personally attending to the African Building matter. I am having all the letters addressed at the Farm. You need not
