I have your two letters. You did right in giving all the details. I will write about that later. There is no need at all to send Manu to Rajkot. She has come there only with my permission. Let her get well soon and then study. Let her not be impatient to get through the examination. She knows household chores; let her, therefore, busy herself a little in that work. She will have to do it because of the difficulty regarding servants. If she remains ill there, I will conclude that her place is at Sevagram. But if she follows my instructions, I am sure she would never fall ill. If the vaid’s medicine agrees with Yukti, and if he wishes to give some medicine to Manu also, he may do so. Her health is good and it must not be impaired. She must study with due care for her eyes.

Blessings from
BAPU

[PS.]

I intend showing your letter to Shantikumar. He should know what you have written.

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./XXIV

1 Vide also “Letter to Narandas Gandhi”, 10-6-1944.
2 Where Gandhiji reached on July 4
4 Ibid.
182. LETTER TO VIJAYA ANAND

POONA,
June 25, 1944

MY DEAR VIJAYA ANAND¹.

I have your dear letter. You did well in writing to me so frankly as you have done.
I have signed 10 albums for you.
I hope the Maharaniji is well. Love to you all.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

183. LETTER TO V. P. LIMAYE

SEVAGRAM, via WARDHA,²
June 25, 1944

DEAR ACHARYA LIMAYE,

I have seen a copy of the notice. It reads awful. It gives the occasion a public character. Have you seen it? And it advertises the time as 4 to 6. I see that I shall be unequal to it. Not more than half an hour should be given in all. If the questions are the fewest possible, I can wind up the whole thing in a few minutes. Let there be an exhaustive report of the work done sent to me and the questions well beforehand. Let me have also a list of those invited with their addresses and status in the organization. I trust that Prof. Javdekar and Bhagwat are included in the list.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat: C.W. 999. Courtesy: V. P. Limaye

¹The Maharajkumar of Vizianagaram
²Permanent address
³The reference is to Gandhiji’s proposed meeting with the representatives of the Maharashtra Congress on June 29; vide “Speech to Congressmen, Poona”, 29-6-1944.
184. LETTER TO V. P. LIMAYE

SEVAGRAM, via WARDHA, ¹
June 26, 1944

DEAR ACHARYA,

No apology needed. The fault was initially mine. I overrated my strength. And Sushila was not near me to repress my oversanguine nature. What followed was excusable. Of course, whatever happened was unconscious and with the best of intentions. What I am anxious about is that we should make the most of the forthcoming meeting and so ensure efficient previous preparation. I shall be very busy tomorrow. If, therefore, I am unable to see you, you will have full chat with Pyarelal.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat: C.W. 998. Courtesy: V. P. Limaye

185. LETTER TO DUNICHAND

POONA,
June 26, 1944

DEAR LALA DUNICHAND,

I have read your letter. My advice is that you should not submit to the conditions; it is better to go to prison.

As to the Bengal distress, my illness renders me useless.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal. Also G.N. 5594

¹ Permanent address
186. LETTER TO AMRIT KAUR¹

[June 26, 1944]²

Too busy to send you more than my love of which you have as much as you can carry.

BAPU

From the original: C.W. 4200. Courtesy: Amrit Kaur. Also G.N. 7836

187. LETTER TO DINSHAW K. MEHTA

June 26, 1944

BHAI DINSHAW,

I could have only a brief talk with you. But all the time I have been thinking about the nature cure. The result is:

This institution should remain as it is, with some modifications, because it is your creation. Do not enlarge its sphere of work.

Buy about a thousand acres of land near a village under your supervision. There should be enough space for patients and also provision for the healthy ones to remain so. The rich and the poor should stay in the same way, and food for them should be produced there itself. Almost all the things should be grown there. Treatment through earth, water, light, air and ether should be given. Manage everything in such a way that the poor can get what they require. Such new institutions should come up as you get more workers. The management should be such that the institution is able to meet its expenses. Do not take Government aid so long as power is not in the people’s hands.

Convene a meeting of naturopaths and discuss the issue. Take workers from among them.

There should be a trust for this and the new institution which will come into being. At least you, Ghanshyamdas and myself should be among the trustees. You can take any fees you think proper. But take [only] the sum fixed for your personal expense. The rest should be debited to the institution’s account. Define what items can come under nature cure, and write books of general knowledge about them.

¹ & ² The letter was written as postscript to one dated Poona, June 26, 1944, from Dr. Sushila Nayyar to Amrit Kaur, which read: “I went to Bombay yesterday . . . when I returned at night I found that a reply had been received from my ‘Dear Friend’ [M. A. Jinnah]. He has said a firm ‘No’. I must say that though we did not expect much from him, we were not quite prepared for that. Now the end is clear. It is only a matter of weeks. . . .”

There is no need to wait for some occasion to arise. So long as I am out and alive, it will be under my supervision. But it should be so planned that it will function even during my absence.

I have already started discussing it with Ghanshyamdas. He has agreed to do as I say.

Think over this and let me know what changes you would like. You are absolutely free to suggest them. This can be accomplished only if you have your heart and mind in it. I can think only of you in this matter. I wish to forget about it, if you are not convinced. I believe we can get the help we need for the institution.

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

188. TELEGRAM TO PRIVATE SECRETARY TO VICEROY

POONA,
June 27, 1944

PRIVATE SECRETARY TO VICEROY
VICEROY’S CAMP

IN VIEW PERSISTENT INQUIRY ABOUT EXCHANGE RECENT LETTERS SUGGEST RELEASE THEREOF FOR PUBLICATION.¹

GANDHI

Gandhiji’s Correspondence with the Government, p. 4

¹ The correspondence was released to the Press from New Delhi on July 1, 1944.
189. LETTER TO V. S. SRINIVASA SASTRI

POONA,
June 27, 1944

MY DEAR BROTHER,

The enclosed copies¹ speak for themselves. The Viceregal reply does not dishearten me. I had expected nothing else. The reply, however, makes it clear to me that they cannot keep me free after discharge by the doctors. For, I see no way of giving co-operation in the continuing degradation of the people. Even the food relief is only so-called. But we must discuss the whole thing when we meet. Come to Panchgani when and if your health permits. I am in no hurry to make any public declaration. I am simply storing and digesting the information I gather.

Love from
YOUR LITTLE BROTHER

From a photostat: G.N. 8824

190. LETTER TO GAJANAN N. KANITKAR

POONA,
June 28, 1944

DEAR BALUKAKA,

Apart from everything else, I plead for pity on me. I have not a moment to spare. I tell you, I have been longing to have your son² by me to teach me spinning on his improved takli. But I had to give up the attempt. So you should excuse me for old times’ sake. Write out all you have to say. The Congress can’t be compromised by you or me. It will be compromised by the collective activities of its members, if the sum total is discreditable. Do see the distinguished friends you mention. Your work need not be affected by the absence of the contemplated interview with me.

Yours,
M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat: C.W. 971. Courtesy: Gajanan N. Kanitkar

¹ Of Gandhiji’s letter to Lord Wavell and his reply; vide “Letter to Lord Wavell”, 17-6-1944.
² Dhundiraj; vide also “Letter to Dhundiraj G. Kanitkar”, 9-7-1944.
191. SPEECH TO CONGRESSMEN, POONA

June 29, 1944

BROTHERS AND SISTERS,

When some of you came to Juhu, doctors forbade me to speak a word to you. And I felt very unhappy. When I came over to Poona I thought I would be able to meet you. Even now I am unwell, but still I meet many people and am able to talk to them. Why not with you then? I had hoped to spend some more time with you, but the doctors have permitted only half an hour. I have promised not to take more than the allotted thirty minutes. Hence I omit all preliminaries.

At my request, the Secretary kindly sent me a report of the happenings in Maharashtra since August 9, 1942. Besides the names of those assembled here, he has sent some questions. I have read all these papers carefully. I do not propose to reply to all the questions. This will not be possible within half an hour. You will, therefore, excuse me for confining my remarks only to the main issues.

Today I do not meet you in any representative capacity. In terms (the language) of satyagraha, the moment I was imprisoned I ceased to wield the authority reposed in me by the Congress. And if I am now out of prison, it is not because of my strength or yours, but because of my illness. In a satyagrahi, illness is a thing to be ashamed of. This fortuitous release does not restore to me the authority that lapsed with my imprisonment.

I discussed my position with some lawyer-friends in terms of the law prevalent in the land, and they are of the opinion that what I hold to be true in terms of satyagraha happens to be true legally too. What then is my status today? You who have gathered here occupy certain positions of authority in the Congress. I do not hold any such position. I am not even a four-anna member of the Congress. I resigned from the Congress some years ago to try out the subtler laws of satyagraha. Nevertheless, I know that I hold a big place in your hearts, and you would give weight to whatever I might say. What I may say is to be regarded merely as an individual opinion, to be accepted or rejected by you at will. It could have been otherwise, if I were speaking in a representative capacity. Then I would have expected you as disciplined soldiers to carry out my instructions. I thought of many things after reading the documents sent by you. But instead of discussing past happenings, I shall speak only of our present duties. What work I have done and am still doing in India or abroad is rooted in truth and non-violence. I have been experimenting all along with the introduction of truth and non-violence in day-to-day life. Some people believe that truth and non-violence have no place in the practice of politics and public affairs. I do not agree. I have always believed that these weapons are entirely useless, if they are meant only for personal salvation. I would not like to have even beatitude for myself alone. I am no slave of any rigid school. I have no guru. If I discover a guru, I shall bow before him. My religion teaches me the need for a guru and how to honour one. But today my heart is my only guru. I do not propose to give you a religious discourse today. I must say that if you have lost faith in the efficacy of truth and non-violence, I have no remedy for your despondency. Inside the prison I used to read the newspapers and now, when I am out, I hear from people that a sense of frustration has overpowered the country. But I felt no frustration in my heart in the prison and I feel none outside. If Congressmen feel frustrated, it is because they lack faith in truth and non-violence. Examine your hearts. Has your faith dwindled? You are good for nothing, if you are still in the Congress but have no faith in truth and nonviolence. Your being in the Congress would then be a sign of your ignorance.

1 About 50 representative Congressmen of Maharashtra met Gandhiji at the Nature-cure Clinic of Dr. Dinshaw Mehta. Gandhiji spoke in Hindustani. The translation given here has been collated with that of The Hindu, 1-7-1944.

2 Vide “Letter to V. P. Limaye”, p. 333.

Who are Congressmen? Only those whose names are in its register? The Congress should be a poor organization, if it depended for its strength on the few lakhs of members whose names appeared on Congress rolls. At the Faizpur Congress, Deo and Dastane used to stress the point that the work done on behalf of the Congress was beyond description. Huge crowds gathered at Faizpur. But a very small proportion of them was on the Congress rolls. I noticed at Faizpur that not even untouchability had disappeared from the place. A cow could drink water at a well, but not an untouchable. Deo and Dastane did not notice this, but it did not escape my eyes. It has been my endeavour from childhood to identify myself with the masses. I am one of them and not separate or different. That has enabled me to enter their hearts and to understand them. At the Round Table Conference I claimed that I represented the whole of India, those who supported the Congress and also those who had nothing to do with it. Since the Congress claims to serve all, it represents them all. Congress represents to a greater extent the poor, hungry and helpless millions. I shall not discuss today why they lost the lustre in their eyes. I will merely affirm that you represent Congress, and you cannot represent it without subscribing to truth and non-violence.

---

1 In December 1936

Experience has led me to the firm conviction that our success has been mathematically proportionate to the extent to which we have adhered to truth and non-violence. The phenomenal awakening in the masses during the last 25 years has been entirely due to the purity of our means. And to the extent untruth and violence have crept in, they have hindered our progress. Whatever harm has come our way, it is due to our lack of faith in truth and non-violence. Today I do not wish to sit in judgment upon your actions. I only wish to place my convictions before you. Your faith in me overwhelms me. My fortuitous release has given rise to great expectations. I am doubtful whether I deserve all this confidence. But this much I know that whatever strength I may have is entirely due to my being a votary of truth and non-violence. If I make any suggestions, they are based on my faith in these fundamentals. You want to follow a man like me. You raise minor doubts which trouble me. If you feel frustrated, ask yourself whether your faith in truth and non-violence has ebbed away. If so, you should strengthen it. Dark clouds surround us. The Government is sitting tight. We do not see the way ahead of us. The communal tangle is, of course, there. Many people are cursing me. And yet I suffer from no sense of frustration. Frustration can spring only from one’s own weakness and loss of faith. So long as we do not lose faith in ourselves, it is well with India. My talking to you would have served its purpose, if I am able to drive away your frustration.

You will ask me, what about the political deadlock, the communal tangle, the food-scarcity and the like? I have an answer for each of these. But I may not attempt it at this meeting. I am convinced that the sufferings of the people cannot be alleviated until India has real political power. I cannot alleviate the food situation by feeding a few hungry mouths. I have friendly relations with millionaires, not for personal gain or in order to flatter them, but in order to get a portion of their wealth for the service of the poor. They too know this. But their money cannot serve the hungry millions at present.

What is the root cause of this widespread starvation? Under the cover of war, the Government is extorting huge sums. I am of the opinion that if India had been free, there would have been no war with Japan. And if Japan attacked us, we would have defeated it much earlier. I do not want to bring in Japan. I do not want a change of masters. I want to be free from all foreign control. For me the four corners of India are enough for us. If India understands my message thoroughly, freedom can come to us this moment.

You must have seen my recent correspondence with the Government. Starvation and destitution are stalking the land. Millions of rupees are being drained out of India. We may not be deceived by the wealth to be seen in the cities of India. That wealth does not come from England or America. It comes from the blood of the poorest. I claim to be an economist though not of the academic sort. I understand the roots of misery and [poverty] of India. Are you going to stamp out India’s starvation by feeding a few hungry mouths? There are said to be 7,00,000 villages in India. Some of them have been simply wiped out. Who has kept count of them? I am a villager. I can recognize at a glance the traces of a ruined village. Where has it gone? Where are the villagers? If anyone raises a doubt about my allegations, I can go round with him and show him the devastation. God will give me the strength for that. The Government reports, though an underestimate, of the thousands who have died of starvation and disease in Bengal, Karnataka and elsewhere are shocking. But this devastation is negligible compared to the wider havoc wrought over India through the centuries. Why this havoc? It is because the blood of the poorest is being sucked; whoever eats a morsel more than he really needs, is sucking the blood of the poor. The money that goes to England and America is not your money, it is the blood of the poorest. I tell you that the pressure from the top crushes those at the bottom. What then is the remedy? All that is necessary is to get off their backs. This is the meaning of non-co-operation with evil. We have the mighty weapon of ahimsa. In action, it takes the form of civil disobedience and non-violent non-co-operation. Civil disobedience is a very potent weapon. But everyone cannot wield it.
For that, one needs training and inner strength. It requires occasions for its use. But non-violent non-co-operation can be practised by everybody. I have already indicated the areas where we could non-co-operate. If we had stuck to non-co-operation, the prevailing mood of frustration would never have arisen.

I have been receiving most depressing letters and also stimulating ones. Many Congressmen write to me saying that we must do something. Should we co-operate with the Government in the famine-relief work? The present deadlock, they say, must somehow be ended. Imitating the language of the Government, I would say, where is the deadlock? If the Government does not seek our co-operation, let it be so. The country, no doubt, belongs to us. If we do not co-operate with the Government, it will come to a halt in one day. But we run after the Government. We do so for a mess of pottage, for a monthly salary. The whole country has to suffer because a few fall a prey to the temptation. But we are born to suffer. Our capacity for suffering should not weaken. Many people believe that they are serving the poor by drawing a salary of Rs. 300 a month and contributing Rs. 290 for the welfare of the poor. But this is not correct. One who non-co-operates with the Government, and gives up the remaining ten rupees and prefers to die starving with the poor, renders the greatest service to the poor.

I cannot offer you any further guidance today. If you grasp the significance of all that I have said, your way will be clear. I have no strength to get into details. The August resolution is still there. I cannot alter, nor do I wish to alter, a single comma in that resolution. You too cannot do so without sanction from the Working Committee. Remember the last few golden lines of the August resolution. On the arrest of the principal Congressmen on the 9th day of August, 1912, every Congressman became his own leader competent to act as he liked, provided that his action fell within the limits prescribed by truth and non-violence. Today you are in a position to meet and exchange notes. Even this is, in fact, not necessary. No hair-splitting discussions are called for. One step is enough. We must learn resolutely to say ‘No’ when it becomes a duty. Lord Willingdon used to say, ‘You are all yes-men.’ We must give up that tendency. If someone forcibly raises my hand to my forehead, it will not be a salute. And, in fact, despite his raising my hand, he cannot make me salute, if I have the strength to resist. My hand will involuntarily refuse. No one can force us to do anything against our will. No one can enslave us against our will.

[From Hindi]

Maharashtrake Congress Karyakartaonke sath Mahatma Gandhijiki Baatcheet

192. LETTER TO ARUNA ASAF ALI

POONA,

June 30, 1944

CHI. DAUGHTER ARUNA,¹

I have just read your letter. My whole heart goes out to you. I consider myself to be incapable of asking anybody, much less you, of doing anything that would hurt your pride.² If you surrender yourself, you would do so to raise yourself and the country with you. The surrender won’t be out of your weakness but out of your strength. This struggle has been full of romance and heroism. You are the central figure. I would love to see you since you are so near. Therefore come, if you at all can. Lest you cannot, this is my advice: I do not want you to surrender unless you feel that it is the better course. I have brought myself to regard secrecy as a sin in the application of non-violence. But it cannot be followed mechanically. I am working for and in the name of the dumb and the downtrodden millions. They are strangers to the art of secrecy as I am. You must, therefore, be the best judge of what is proper. And is that not the final message of the Congress in the closing sentence of the great resolution of 8th August, 1942? Every Congressman is the bearer, in his (or her) own person, of the Congressmessage which he (or she) is to carry out according to his (or her) own will, remaining within truth and non-violence. My being out does not entitle me to issue any instructions. Apart from the technicality I really do not know how to guide you. God be your sole guide and do as He bids you. This I promise: I will not judge you, no matter what you do.

¹ This is in Devanagari.

² In Mahatma Gandhi—The Last Phase, Vol. I, Book One, pp. 40-1, Pyarelal explains: “The upshot of Gandhiji’s discussions with underground workers [vide Appendix “Discussion with Underground Workers”, before 2-6-1944] was that most of the Congressmen who were engaged in carrying on or directing underground activities in various parts of the country came out into the open. Some surrendered themselves to the authorities while others courted imprisonment by offering civil disobedience openly. Achyut Patwardhan and Aruna Asaf Ali could not reconcile themselves to the idea of surrendering to the British authorities.... out of deference to Gandhiji’s judgment, Achyut decided to withdraw from underground activity. But Aruna preferred to continue her outlaw career till the last.... Both Achyut and Aruna came out in the open when the warrants against them were cancelled in the beginning of 1946.”

More if we meet.

_Much love from_

_BAPU_

From a facsimile: Link, 6-10-1968

193. LETTER TO MRIDULA SARABHAI

POONA,

_June 30, 1944_

CHI. MRIDU,

Why are you waiting for my letter? Why should I thus be burdened? I have already written to you that you may come. But you must not rush. Come with the readiness to stay as long as I ask. Your last letter has been received. It will be answered when we meet, don’t you think?

_Blessings from_

_BAPU_

From the Gujarati original: C. W. 11229. Courtesy: Sarabhai Foundation

194. LETTER TO PRABHASHANKAR H. PAREKH

[June 1944]¹

BHAI PRABHASHANKAR,

Maganbhai has at last decided to accept whatever judgment I give. But he has told me that I should give my judgment after considering his statement and your reply to him. I have agreed. If you also think it is proper then have a lawyer draft a reply to Maganbhai’s statement and send it to me. Engage a competent lawyer. It would be best if you could have Mavalankar. If you have any papers, send them to me. I hope you have now recovered.

¹ From the contents it appears that the letter was written in June 1944; _vide_ “Letter to Maganbhai P. Desai”, 21-6-1944 and “Letter to Prabhshanker H. Parekh”, 9-7-1944.

Vandemataram from
M. K. GANDHI

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

195. LETTER TO RAMDAS AND NIRMALA GANDHI
[Before July 1, 1944]

CHI. RAMDAS AND NIMU,

Since Ba is not here, who is there gently to rebuke you for not writing at all? Every day I hope that I will see the handwriting of either of you. Just now, I am in a clinic. I feel better. It will take time. Perhaps I may go to Panchgani after the 1st. How are you all getting along?

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI RAMDAS GANDHI
TATA’S OFFICER
NAGPUR, C.P.

From the Gujarati original: Mrs. Sumitra Kulkarni Papers. Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library

196. TELEGRAM TO BRIJLAL NEHRU

July 1, 1944

BRIJLAL NEHRU
SRINAGAR (KASHMIR)
RECEIVED TELEGRAM. HAVE NO ANXIETY. WRITING.

GANDHI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 From the reference to Gandhiji being “in a clinic” at the time and his proposed visit to Panchgani “after the 1st”; in June, 1944, Gandhiji was convalescing at Dr. Mehta’s clinic in Poona and thereafter went to Panchgani on July 2.
Gandhiji said that when he saw in the papers in the detention camp that he was appointed Chairman of the Trust he was surprised, but he reconciled himself to the position by the thought that the conception behind the proposal to make him Chairman was that he should, on his release, guide the trustees in determining the object of the Fund and regulating its application from time to time. The belief was reinforced by the fact that the chief originator of the idea was Shri Narandas Gandhi who had set up the practice of presenting him with a purse collected chiefly in Kathiawar for the purpose of helping the spread of the hand-spinning movement and allied activities in Kathiawar. Gandhiji, however, could not shoulder the burden of attending meetings of the Trust regularly and guiding its day-to-day work. The real Chairman was Sir Purushottamdas Thakurdas, the Vice-Chairman.

While the Fund was taking shape, the tragic death of Kasturba came. The idea of a National Memorial possessed the public, and the originator responded by combining the purse with the Memorial and merging the former in the latter. Thus the present Trust was formed. Kasturba was a simple woman devoted to village life, actually living and serving among villages. The object of the Fund was very properly the welfare of village women and children. It was well that the trustees and the donors should know the whole of his mind on the question of the welfare of women and children in the numerous villages of India. The welfare of his conception encompassed the whole life of the women and children in the villages. It, therefore, included maternity, hygiene and the treatment of diseases, and education. Education meant the basic education of the Hindustani Talimi Sangh. The scope of the Fund, therefore, excludes its use in towns and cities or in education abroad or even in the Universities of India. He said that it would be readily conceded that while the sum of rupees 75 lakhs appeared to be big for the purpose of a Memorial, it was ridiculously small for the scope he had indicated. Gandhiji said that he would be a useless Chairman and guide, if the trustees did not share his idea as to the scope of the Fund.

Proceeding, Gandhiji said that there was talk that he had said that the collection should be confined to capitalists and that the general public need take no part in the collection. It was a travesty of truth. The principal men who could move in the matter of organizing country-side collection were behind prison bars. He was himself disabled. He, therefore, expected his rich friends to pull their fullest weight. He could never be guilty of harbouring even the thought that the Congress and other workers should sit supine. The Memorial was a National Memorial in which everyone, no matter what his politics, was expected to put in his best effort. It would be no Memorial, if the collections were confined to capitalists. Indeed Mridulabehn, who was one of the most active of workers, had come to him for guidance in the matter of collections in Gujarat.

---

1 Gandhiji presided over a meeting of trustees of Kasturba Gandhi National Memorial Fund. He spoke in Gujarati.

An unwarranted but pardonable suspicion seems to have been created by the currency of the conversation he had with Dadasaheb Mavalankar who had come for discussion. Gandhiji had told him that so far as he was concerned his work should be confined to the exercise of his unrivalled influence among the moneyed men. “He is, like me, an ailing man,” said Gandhiji. He would not like him to risk his health in doing the taxing work of house-to-house collection. That could be easily organized by the workers that are still available.

It would be a thousand pities, if anyone who had faith in the object of the Memorial avoided paying his quota, or inducing his friends to pay theirs, under the false belief that Gandhiji wishes people other than capitalists to refrain from contributing to the Memorial. Indeed he considered it a good sign that so many millionaires of India were not deterred by any real or imaginary fear of harm from identifying themselves with the Memorial of the dead wife of a detenu condemned by the powers that be. For him, the Chairman, it was a matter of gratification.

Gandhiji said that he did count moneyed men among his friends. He knew that critics were not wanting who considered his association with moneyed men a sign of weakness unworthy of a votary of truth and non-violence. The speaker, on the other hand, considered such association as essentially a sign of his non-violence. His many friends knew well the motive for his association with them. He received money from them for many constructive activities, some of which were also supremely humanitarian. They allowed him to put his hands into their pockets for the All-India Spinners’ and Village Industries’ Associations, and for basic education as defined by the Hindustani Talimi Sangh, and other similar causes. So far as he knew, they had nothing to gain by his association with them. His contact with them took place after they had proved their success as businessmen. His mission was to convert capitalists not into mere friends and patrons of the millions of unemployed, but willing sharers of their goods with them.

Further he had observed that some had doubted whether the Funds collected would not be used for political ends. He had no hesitation whatsoever in giving the assurance that he had no such idea in view. The All-India Spinners’ Association and the other bodies just referred to by him, even though initiated by the Congress, had no political character about them.

This Memorial movement, Mr. Gandhi added, had been initiated not by the Congress or Congressmen, but by non-Congressmen and for a purely humanitarian purpose. In a higher sense, no great act done by an Indian, whether politician or no, could be without political significance. He had in mind the activities of Indians in the field of literature and science and philosophy.¹

The Bombay Chronicle, 3-7-1944

198. LETTER TO DINSHAW K. MEHTA

July 3, 1944

BHAi DINSHAW,

I saw the houses. I found them dirty. You must attend to this. How can one bear to see dirty chairs in a hospital? The patients should also be taught how to use them. Your assistant should know about it. The houses of the labourers are not good at all. They should be simple but at the same time good enough for people like us to live in. You saw the lavatory and noticed the stink. Improving this does not involve much expense. Take this up as soon as you come down. There is room for improvement in the kitchen also. Things will not improve till you yourself take it up.

I was very much impressed by your management. There is peace all over in the institution. Nobody talks loudly. You are yourself soft-spoken, and you seldom talk. Usually we shout while talking.

I hope to write more about the new scheme immediately.

I often call to mind Gulbai’s² services.

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

---

¹ The report added that during a discussion which followed “Gandhiji’s definition of the object of Memorial Fund was unanimously agreed to .... it was decided . . . to amend the previous resolution on the definition of the aims and objects of the Fund and to restrict it to the welfare and education of women and children in the villages.”

² Addresssee’s wife
CHI. GOMATI,

July 3, 1944

Wrote just this much on the 1st and the invasion of visitors began. Today is the 3rd. I feel quite well here. If the place suits me, I hope to begin again on my feet. Whether or not I recover, I hope to be there in August, assuming of course that no unexpected obstacle prevents me from going there.

I was glad that Kishorelal discovered the error. I was sure that he would do so. Nobody in the world ever had a more sincere co-worker than him. I at any rate, never had. It was distressing to me to discourage you in your desire to come here but that was the right thing to do. It therefore hurts me that my going to Sevagram is being delayed. I cannot give up the desire to get perfectly well. How can I give it up? I have nothing which I may call my own. Do not we sing every day: ten tyakten bhunjithah? I had specially invited Nathji to Poona. We met daily from [June] 20 to July 2. We have never been together for so many days. Both of us were pleased. He stayed in separate quarters. I am always surrounded by a crowd. It would have been difficult for him to observe his rules in the midst of them all. Vasumati and Amtussalaam have badly disappointed me. I placed both of them in Dinshaw’s clinic for treatment, but they did not like it. Now I see the matter with the . . . eye, and see no reason for disappointment. One is disappointed only if one hopes. Is it not so? There was no reason for . . . . My suggestion may have been for their good, but even so, is it not a delusion for me to believe that their good lies in doing what I wish? So they [may do] as they think fit. Send this to them, so that I may not have to write separately to them.

I have received Kanchan’s reply. I was glad that she exercised patience. When I arrive there, she should spend with me as much time as possible. I feel like writing separately to her but control the desire.

1 Addressee’s husband, Kishorelal Mashruwala
2 Kedarnath Kulkarni, Kishorelal’s religious guide
3 The source is blank at these places.
4 ibid
5 ibid
Though I meet fewer visitors, I have a heap of papers to attend to and the treatment I am taking for my health leaves me so little time that I cannot attend to them all. Here is my schedule for today.

There is no light here from 11 p.m. to 5.30 a.m. From 7 to 7.30 prayer. At 8, fruit juice and jaggery. Up to 8.30, work. Up to 12.15, walking, massage and bath. At 1.30 eating, reading or asking someone to read out to me. Thereafter up to 3.30 in the water-closet, followed by a siesta and writing of letters (for half an hour). At 4.30, mud-pack and reading or writing, lying in the bed. I started writing this letter thus lying in the bed and it is now 4.45. After finishing this, I wish to attend to nature’s call and so might visit the water-closet. After 5, I will spin. As far as possible, I spin for an hour. A few days ago, I started observing silence while spinning. Today, of course, is my silence day. At 6, I will have some curd and fruit. After that, there will be prayer. I will attend to it, and then go for a walk and after that, hope to work for one hour. The fact is that my capacity for work is still limited. I am using up what little strength I have gained. It does not seem proper not to use it up in that way. Thus, I act as God prompts me to. If professing to act in the name of God, I am in fact acting through ignorant attachment, it cannot but . . .

1 Show this letter to all.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of Gujarati : S.N. 33128

200. INTERVIEW TO STUART GELDER

July 4, 1944

I saw Gandhi at Panchgani on the 4th July. I told him: “My Editor is anxious to help in solving the political deadlock in India. I went to Delhi and I was disappointed. I hope you will not disappoint me.” I asked: “Supposing you saw the Viceroy, what would you say to him?” He immediately replied:

I would tell him that I sought the interview with a view to help and not to hinder the Allied war-effort. But I can do nothing without 1 Some words here are illegible in the source.

2 This appeared under the date-line “Panchgani, July 12” as “notes” prepared by Gandhiji for publication in News Chronicle which Gelder represented. The interview was “distributed over three days”; vide “Telegram to S. Sadanand”, 12-7-1944, and “Statement to the Press”, 12-7-1944.
seeing the members of the Working Committee for I believethat my authority under the August resolution ended with my imprisonment.
It was not revived by my release. You are not interested in my personal views, but you should be, if I spoke as a representative.

I interrupted and said: “The Viceroy and everybody else is interested to know your mind because of your hold on the masses of India.” He replied:

I am a democrat and I cannot exploit that hold except through the organization in the building of which I had a hand.

But again I interrupted and said: “Before the Viceroy permits you to see the Committee, he would want to know how you would influence the members.” He said:

History does not repeat itself. The conditions of 1942 do not exist today. The world has moved on during the last two years. The whole situation has to be reviewed de novo. The point, therefore, for me to discuss with the Working Committee is to know how they react to the knowledge that I gained since my release.

I have to take up the thread that was broken by the Government in 1942. I was first to negotiate and, on failure, to offer civil resistance, if I thought it necessary. I want to plead with the Viceroy. I can do so only when I know the Working Committee’s mind.

But I tell you that the common talk among us is that whatever the Viceroy may wish personally, he has no authority in the political sphere. Mr. Churchill does not want any settlement. He wants to crush me, if he has been correctly reported.¹ He has never denied the report.
The beauty of it, for me, and the pity of it, for him, is that no one can crush a satyagrahi; for, he offers his body as a willing sacrifice and this makes the spirit free.²

The Bombay Chronicle, 13-7-1944

¹ In This Was Bapu, p. 139, R. K. Prabhu explains that while referring to Gandhi-Irwin talks in his address to the Council of the West Essex Unionist Association on February 23, 1931, Churchill was reported to have said: “It is alarming and also nauseating to see Mr. Gandhi, an Inner Temple lawyer now become a seditious fakir of a type well-known in the East, striding half-naked up the steps of the Viceregal palace while he is still organizing and conducting a defiant campaign of civil disobedience, to parley on equal terms with the representative of the King Emperor. I am against these conversations. . . . The truth is that Gandhism and all it stands for will have to be grappled with and finally crushed.”

² Vide also “Letter to Winston Churchill”, 17-7-1944.
I saw Mahatma Gandhi on July 4th at Panchgani. I told him: “My Editor is anxious to help in solving the political deadlock in India. I went to Delhi and I was disappointed. I hope you will not disappoint me.” I asked him: “Supposing you saw Lord Wavell how would you begin to talk? What would you say to him?”

He promptly replied that he would tell the Viceroy that he had sought the interview with a view to help and not to hinder the Allies, and it was to this end he had asked for permission to see the members of the Congress Working Committee. He said, he had no authority to act in the name of the Congress. According to the canons of satyagraha, when a civil resister was imprisoned, the authority vested in him automatically came to an end. Hence the need for him to see the members of the Working Committee.

I said: “The Viceroy might feel, as you swear by the August resolution and by the weapon of civil disobedience, your meeting the Working Committee members may only result in their re-investing you with authority to carry on civil disobedience in the name of the Congress, and the result will be that when you come out of the interview you will hold the pistol on the Viceroy’s head and say: ‘Do this or I start civil disobedience.’ That would make things worse than they are today.” Gandhi replied:

At the back of that is total distrust of my profession that I am, and have always been, a friend of the British. Therefore I can never use the weapon of civil disobedience during the war, unless there was a very grave reason as, for instance, the thwarting of India’s natural rights to freedom.

My next question was: “Supposing the Working Committee was let out of jail tomorrow and the Government refuses to give India what they want, would you start civil disobedience?” Gandhi replied:

If the Working Committee came out, they would take stock of the situation and discuss things among themselves and with me. I can tell you this, that I have no intention of offering civil disobedience today. I cannot take the country back to 1942. History can never be repeated. Even without the authority of the Congress, if I wanted to 1 In the source, the interview appeared as “Second Statement” and followed Gandhiji’s version, vide the preceding item.

---

2 ibid
do it, I could start civil disobedience today on the strength of my supposed influence with the masses. But I would be doing so merely to embarrass the British Government. This cannot be my object.

But the Working Committee would not sit still while people are suffering. It is my conviction that we cannot meet fully the situation and alleviate the sufferings of the people, unless power and responsibility are transferred from British into Indian hands. Without such transfer, the attempts of Congressmen and others to alleviate the people’s sufferings are most likely to lead to conflict with the Government.

I interrupted and said: “When things are as they are, I cannot believe that they will transfer authority now; that is, Government will not concede the demand for independence while the war is on.”

Gandhi replied that there was a difference between what he would ask today and what was asked in 1942. Today he would be satisfied with a national government in full control of civil administration. It was not so in 1942. Such a government would be composed of persons chosen by the elected members of the Central Assembly. “This would mean declaration of independence of India, qualified as above, during the war.”

I thought it was a great improvement on the 1942 position. I asked him if the military would control railways and the ports, etc.

Gandhi replied that the national government would let the military have all the facilities that it might require. But the control would be that of the national government. Ordinance rule would give place to normal administration by the national government.

“Will the Viceroy be there?”, I asked. [Gandhiji replied:]

Yes, but he will be like the King of England guided by responsible Ministers. Popular government will be automatically restored in all the provinces so that both the provincial and the central government will be responsible to the people of India. So far as military operations are concerned, the Viceroy and the Commander-in-Chief will have complete control. But it must be possible for the national government to offer advice and criticisms even in military matters.

Thus the portfolio of Defence would be in the hands of the national government which would be genuinely interested in the defence of the country and may render great assistance in the shaping of policies.
The Allied forces would be allowed to carry on their operations on Indian soil; I realize that they cannot defeat Japan without that.

Gandhi made it clear that the expenses of the Allied operations on the Indian soil should not be borne by India. I asked: “If a national government is formed, would you advise the Congress to participate in it?”

Gandhi replied in the affirmative. I asked: “So it means that if a national government is formed, the Congress will join and help the war effort. What would be your position?” [Gandhiji replied:]

I am a lover of peace through and through. After independence was assured I would probably cease to function as adviser to the Congress and, as an all-war resister, I would have to stand aside; but I shall not offer any resistance against the national government or the Congress. My co-operation will be abstention from interfering with the even tenor of life in India. I shall work with the hope that my influence will always be felt to keep India peace-minded and brotherhood among all without the distinction of race and colour.

I next asked: “Supposing there is a conflict between the civil and military authorities, how would the dispute be settled? If, for example, civil authorities want to use the railway to carry two thousand tons of food, and the military authorities wanted it for carrying munitions, what would you advise?” Gandhi replied:

As I said before, I would not have to advise on such matters. But supposing I had, I can conceive of the necessity of allowing precedence to the military. But supposing the military wanted to blow off places or practice manoeuvres in disregard of the life of the people, I would say: ‘Hands off.’

The thing is that with mutual trust such difficulties would not arise and if they did, they would be easily adjusted. If there is no trust, I cannot work. I cannot work for Allied victory without trust. If they trusted, a settlement would be easy to achieve. Freedom for India will bring hope to Asiaties and other exploited nations. Today there is no hope for the Negroes, but Indian freedom will fill them with hope.

Finally I asked: “What about the Hindu-Muslim differences?” Gandhi replied:

If the British meant well, there would be no difficulties.

Gandhi said in conclusion:

Most of us believe that whatever the Viceroy may wish personally, he has not the authority in the political sphere. Mr. Churchill does not want a settlement. He wants to crush me, if he has been correctly reported\(^1\). He has never denied the report. The beauty of it, for me, and the pity of it, for him, is that no one can crush a satyagrahi; for, he offers his body as a willing sacrifice and thus makes the spirit free.

In the course of his explanatory statement, Mahatma Gandhi said that throughout his talks with the British journalist he had emphasized the fact that he was speaking for himself and in no sense involving the Congress in what he said. He added:

I do not know how far today I represent the views of the members of the Working Committee. And about Hindu-Muslim formula which has nothing to do with these two statements, I have not spoken as a Hindu. I have spoken as an Indian first and an Indian last.
My Hinduism is my own—I personally think it embraces all faiths.
Therefore I have no authority to speak as a representative of the Hindus. That I respond to mass mind and the masses know me instinctively is a fact which cannot be gainsaid but I have not built my case upon it.\(^2\)

The Bombay Chronicle, 13-7-1944

202. A NOTE

July 5, 1944

This is not Ramachandran’s letter. The signature is altogether different. Let the money be sent here. There are no indications that Harijan will be published.\(^3\) But if it is published, you may certainly bring out its Tamil and Telugu editions.

From a copy of the Gujarati : Pyarela Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy : Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

203. LETTER TO RAMANATHAN

PANCHGANI,

July 5, 1944

MY DEAR RAMANATHAN,

I was delighted to have your letter. If any member as such of

\(^1\) Vide 2nd footnote of “Interview to Stuart Gelder”, 4-7-1944.

\(^2\) Vide also “Statement to the Press”, 12-7-1944.

\(^3\) Publication of the journal was suspended on October 24, 1940. It was subsequently revived on February 10, 1946.
the A.I.S.A. took part in the movement, it was contrary to the constitution and my direction. The latter was that those who contemplated taking part were to resign.

As to sabotage and the like, I have expressed my opinion against them as also against secrecy.

As to the particulars you mention, I would like you to see me at Sevagram, if I reach there and am declared free from the present illness.

Yours,

BAPU

From a photostat: G.N. 9258. Also C.W. 3075

204. DRAFT LETTER TO THACKER & CO. AND OXFORD UNIVERSITY PRESS

July 5, 1944

It was after much thought that I declared a trust in connection with my writings. I had observed misuse of Tolstoy’s writings for want of a trust. By curing the defect, I preserved fully the idea lying behind dislike for copyright, i.e., for personal gain for one’s writings. The idea also was to prevent profiteering by publishers or distortion or misrepresentation, wilful or unintentional. I have requested the Navajivan Trust to permit you to publish Shri Prabhu’s compilation with the right for you to multiply editions as long as there is demand for it, provided that the price will be reduced to the minimum, leaving to you a profit of not more than five per cent—one half of which shall be paid to Shri Prabhu as honorarium for his labours. One hundred copies of each edition should be given free of cost to the Navajivan Trust. The Navajivan Trust should have the right to publish a cheaper edition (in English or in any Indian languages) for sale in India including Burma and Ceylon. If, per chance, any profit accrues, it will be equally divided among your firm, Shri Prabhu and the Navajivan Trust.

Samsmarano, pp. 164-5

1 Vide “Letter to Annada Babu Chowdhary”, 9-6-1944; also Appendices “Discussion on Underground Activities”, after 31-3-1944 and “Discussion with Underground Workers”, before 2-6-1944.

2 This was an enclosure to the following item.
205. LETTER TO G. V. MAVALKAR

PANCHGANI,
July 5, 1944

BHAJ MAVALKAR,

I had a talk\(^1\) with Bhai Prabhu. I didn’t get the impression that he had done anything through a selfish motive. I went through the papers submitted by him. I don’t find copies of our communications to him. I will go through them when they arrive. I don’t need them, however, for future use. I am, therefore, sending herewith a draft\(^2\) of the letter to be addressed to both the publishing firms. If you approve of it, I will write accordingly. If you wish to suggest changes, you may do so.

I have been discussing what to say on the blurbs. If you have any suggestions to make in regard to it, please do so. I have also been thinking about the title of the book on brahmacharya. You would not probably like to waste time in thinking over a matter like this.

If you have any suggestions or comments to make regarding the arrangements for the Kasturba Memorial Fund, you may do so. Would you like to make any suggestions regarding the names of the ten trustees?

The air here is quite humid. Its magic will be known by and by.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 1719

206. LETTER TO JOHN HAYNES HOLMES

AS AT SEVAGRAM, via WARDHA,\(^3\)
July 6, 1944

DEAR FRIEND,

I was much touched by your letter of 10th May last.

Dissolution of my wife’s body has enriched my life. For, I remember only her great merits. Her limitations were reduced to ashes

---

\(^1\) On June 28; vide “Letter to R. K. Prabhu”, 19-6-1944.

\(^2\) Vide the preceding item.

\(^3\) Permanent address
with the body.

As for me, I am making slow but steady progress. We are all passing through anxious times. Sympathy of friends like you sustains me in my struggle against forces of evil.

Mirabehn has gone to the Himalayas for health’s sake.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

DR. JOHN HAYNES HOLMES
10 PARK AVENUE
NEW YORK 16 N. Y.

207. LETTER TO DR. JOSIAH OLDFIELD

AS AT SEVAGRAM, via WARDHA;

July 6, 1944

MY DEAR OLDFIELD,

Your letter revives very old and sweet memories. Of course, you could point out many omissions in my writings. I was not writing an autobiography. I wrote about my experiments with truth. Whatever I deemed necessary for the purpose and recollected, I reduced to writing.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat: C.W. 4518. Courtesy: Dr. Josiah Oldfield

1 1879-1964; American clergyman; founder-member of American Civil Liberties Union, and the National Association for the Advancement of Coloured People; Editor of Unity; Rabindranath Tagore Memorial Visiting Professor (under the auspices of the Watumull Foundation) at Banaras Hindu University from October 1947 to January 1948; author of My Gandhi, and books on religion and social subjects

2 Permanent address
DEAR MRS. NAIDU,

Bapu was very glad to have your note of the 28th ult. His acquaintance with the late Nawab Yarjung was so slight that he does not feel any enthusiasm about sending the message you have suggested.

Bapu has a grouse against you. Sir Radhakrishnan was here yesterday. He said that you were as incorrigible about taking care of your health as ever. When are you going to turn a new leaf in this respect? How is Padmaja?

With regards,

Yours sincerely,

PYARELAL

[PS.]

Dear Ammajan, Bapu’s anaemia is better. Bhai forgot to mention it.

How are you?

Love.

SUSHILA

MRS. SAROJINI NAIDU

“SUKH NIWAS”

RAMKOTE

HYDERABAD

DECCAN

From a copy : Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library.

Courtesy : Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar:
209. LETTER TO MANU S. MASHRUWALA

PANCHGANI,
[July 6, 1944]¹

CHI. MANUDI,

Are you offended with me? How long will you remain so? And is it right for children to feel offended with their parents?

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 5062. Courtesy: Surendra Mashruwala

210. LETTER TO MANU GANDHI

PANCHGANI,
July 6, 1944

CHI. MANUDI,

Your letter is good. The work that you have undertaken is fine but it will come in the way of your study. But never mind that. It will save your eyes from harm. Study as much as you can with due care for your eyesight. God has endowed you with capacity for service and, therefore, you get such work unasked. Overcome your habit of thoughtless spending. Take care of everything and use it as a poor person would.

Blessings from
BAPU

[PS.]
To Jaisukhlal later.

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./XXIV

¹ In the source, the letter appears below the one dated July 6, 1944, from Kishorelal Mashruwala to the addressee.
211. LETTER TO GIRIRAJ KISHORE

PANCHGANI,
July 6, 1944

Just now be content with only my blessings.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 8772

212. LETTER TO R. R. KEITHAHN

PANCHGANI,
July 7, 1944

DEAR FRIEND,

I hope you will have a successful gathering. Twenty real votaries of Truth and Love are equal to or rather more than a match for a number of indifferent persons raised to Nth power.

Love.

BAPU

REV. R. R. KEITHAHN

156 BANVARGHATTI ROAD
BANGALORE CITY

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

213. LETTER TO PURUSHOTTAM K. JERAJANI

PANCHGANI,
July 7, 1944

BHAI KAKUBHAI,

Indeed we have suffered a great loss in the passing away of your father. He is relieved of the burden. Although I knew very little about him, I had heard a lot about his love of khadi. The straight and noble

1 The letter appears below the one from Pyarelal to the addressee.
2 American missionary and social worker in India; the Mysore Government served an externment order on him on August 8, 1944.
3 Kanjibhai Jerajani
Blessings from
BAPU

KHADI BHANDAR
BOMBAY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

214. LETTER TO CHHOTUBHAI

PANCHGANI,
July 7, 1944

BHAI CHHOTUBHAI,

I like your letter very much because it is so candid. But you have raised questions one would not expect from a man of your intelligence. There are other co-workers like you and I sometimes wonder if my company is stifling their intelligence. All the same, I answer the questions.

1. I have not the least doubt of Russia’s bravery. But I would not weigh it on the scales of non-violence.

2. It does not appear to me that anything that is happening today can be likened to the Dharasana episode. I can understand the hardship resulting from the refusal of the farmers to sell the stocks of grains lying with them to the Government at rates lower than they can afford. But the looting of Government grain stocks cannot be called non-violent whether it is done after serving prior notice or not. I have always considered and still consider salt public property like water and air. I cannot include acts like sabotage of railways, etc., in non-violence.

3. It is of course not easy to decide on a programme for someone who is bent upon facing bullets in a non-violent way, but it is not impossible. One is not duty-bound to give one’s name. Informing about the action contemplated would suffice. If at the time fixed one finds that no one has come to the spot because the notice, being anonymous, had been thrown away, another notice can be sent. If this is done again and again, one day the tiger is sure to come. However, do not conclude from this that I consider the programme mentioned in the second question non-violent even if carried out after giving prior information. My answer is intended only to clear the difficulty about the third question.

4. The information contained in the cutting is more or less correct. My advice to Raojibhai was not in exercise of a right. One does not advise as a matter of right. One commands. Is that not so? I lost the right to command from the moment of my incarceration.

5. Post Offices, courts, and so on, today do not belong to the people. Even when they come to belong to the people, they will not be personal property. Even personal property will be property belonging to the people. Out of that, only what the nation has given unto itself or kept for itself would belong to it. I hope this provides you all the explanations you seek.

I have not revised the above.

_Blessings from_
_BAPU_

From a copy of the Gujarati : Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy : Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

215. LETTER TO B. S. MOONJE

July 8, 1944

DEAR DR. MOONJE,

In reply to your letter of the 2nd inst. to Gandhiji, I am to say that you are at liberty to publish your letter of the 27th June to him.

_Yours sincerely,_

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

216. LETTER TO K. M. MUNSHI

PANCHGANI,
July 8, 1944

BHAI MUNSHI,

I got your opinion.¹ In the circumstances stated by you, it is not desirable to publish it. I will preserve it with me. Your labour will not go in vain; I am already using it for my own purpose. I am enclosing a note for Sarla¹.

¹_Vide_ Appendix “Opinion on Gandhiji’s Responsibility”, 6-2-1944.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: C. W. 7676. Courtesy: K. M. Munshi

217. LETTER TO GUNOTTAM HUTHEESING

July 8, 1944

CHI. RAJA,

I am simply waiting for the 20th. One need not fear the climate of this place because one can always return to one’s own place, if the climate does not suit one. Death strikes a man but once; cowardice hundreds of times. Moreover you had better pay a visit, if only to fulfil a promise. If you are still hesitant in spite of all this persuasion, you should stay put. It is surprising that Krishna² cannottake care of herself. She must stay on for the sake of Indira³, else I would have dragged along both of you. Let me have your final decision.

Blessings from
BAPU

HUTHEESING
BOMBAY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

218. LETTER TO BHARATI SARABHAI

[After July 8, 1944]¹

CHI. BHARATI,

I have forgotten the talk I had with Pyarelal. But I like your book⁵. It certainly has a beautiful theme. I like best the portrayal of your heart, as presented in the book. I cannot be a judge of the language. I have hardly read a few poems and can appreciate little. I found the language affected. Moreover I certainly wish that your poetic faculty blossoms through the medium of Gujarati. Is there any

¹ Addressee’s daughter, Sarla Seth
² Addressee’s wife
³ Indira Gandhi
⁴ In the source, the letter is placed after the letters of July 8, 1944.
⁵ The Well of the People, published in 1943 dearth of lovers of English? How many lovers can Gujarati boast of?

Blessings from
BAPU

B. SARABHAI
AHMEDABAD

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

219. LETTER TO JATINDERNATH

PANCHGANI,
July 9, 1944

DEAR JATINDERNATH,

I have gone through your letter. It makes me sad. Ill as I am, I am powerless to help much. But taking the recital as true, the question is why did not the two men who were so brutally assaulted resist unto death. Non-violent resistance is possible without inflicting injury on the injurer. I know this is more easily said than done. But if we are to learn the art of non-violence, we must refuse to be living witnesses of our own degradation. You are at liberty to show this to any friend you like. Mind, I cast no reflection on the living ones. My object is to point the moral.

Yours sincerely,

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

220. LETTER TO SECRETARY, HOME DEPARTMENT, GOVERNMENT OF BOMBAY

‘DILKHUSHA, PANCHGANI,
July 9, 1944

SECRETARY TO THE GOVERNMENT OF BOMBAY (H.D.)
POONA
SIR,

I have received your letter1 of 7th instant in connection with the ground in H.H. the Aga Khan’s Palace where Shri Mahadev Desai’s and Smt. Kasturba Gandhi’s bodies were cremated. My purpose is served by the present arrangement for which I thank the Government.

Yours, etc.,

M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat: G.N. 3939

1 In reply to Gandhiji’s letter dated May 6, 1944, vide “Letter to Secretary, Home Department, Government of India”, 6-5-1944.
221. LETTER TO PRABHASHANKAR H. PAREKH

PANCHGANI,
July 9, 1944

BHAJ PRABHASHANKAR,

I have your letter. You are in great distress but you are enduring it with courage. From Champa’s letters, I learn that you have been freed [from attending to Dr. Mehta’s finances.] For what work am I appointed an arbitrator? I am not even aware of it. My appointment and continuance as an arbitrator depend only upon the goodwill of friends. May I know what kind of guidance you expect from me? I have no idea what I should do. Without going deep into the matter I should only advise you to give Champa whatever she wants. What is there left for you now? Repeat the Lord’s name in solitude and render as much service as you can.

Vandemataram from Mohanandas

SHRI PRABHASHANKAR HARCHANDBHAI PAREKH
BERA SHERI
RAJHOT CITY
KATHIWAR

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./XX

---

1 Addressee’s daughter, wife of Ratilal, Dr. Pranjivan Mehta’s son
222. LETTER TO DHUNDIRAJ G. KANITKAR

PANCHGANI,

July 9, 1944

CHI. DHUNDIRAJ,

I have your letter. My recovery is slower than I had expected; so now I would reluctantly ask you not to come over. It keeps raining all day. Besides, I do not have sufficient accommodation for you. Please ask your father to forgive me.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI DHUNDIRAJ GAJANAN KANITKAR
HINDMATA MANDIR
341 SADASHIVPETH
POONA

From a photostat of the Hindi: C.W. 972. Courtesy: Gajanan N. Kanitkar

223. A LETTER

PANCHGANI,

July 10, 1944

As for Bapa’s reference\(^1\) of July 6, I see no discrepancy in my opinion regarding Nanjibhai’s\(^3\) proposed donation and the previous opinion quoted by Bapa. My point is that no donor should arbitrarily keep part or whole of the donation with himself. He may send recommendation about ear-marking. If it satisfies our conditions, the ear-marking may be allowed. If my opinion is held good, the fourth condition is superfluous.

Thus while I see no discrepancy in my present opinion and the past, my emphasis has changed. In my weakness, I was anxious to make up the total of 75 lacs somehow. Now I am strong enough to resist that temptation. We shall better serve the object of the Memorial by securing what we can by October 2 next, than by letting donors to \(^1\) Vide also “Letter to Gajanan N. Kanitkar”, 28-6-1944.

\(^2\) As Secretary, Kasturba Gandhi National Memorial Fund Trust
\(^3\) Nanji Kalidas; Vide also “Letter to Nanji Kalidas”, 20-9-1944.
fritter away the sum by local earmarkings and keeping the bulk with themselves. In the States, generally, we are likely to experience difficulty in spending money in the villages. I prefer the use of the word ‘villages’ to that of the expression ‘rural areas’. There may be rural area of Calcutta but it may not be composed of villages properly so-called. Santa Cruz is a suburban area but not a village. I hope the distinction I have made is capable of being easily understood.

Again our large donors will be townspeople. Their natural-wish will be to spend their donation in their own way and in their own place. This may defeat the purpose of this Memorial.

I see the prospect of such questions arising frequently. They will be largely of interpretation. I am most anxious to spare Bapa’s time and trouble. Let him unhesitatingly interpret rulings to the best of his ability and risk difference of opinion with the chairman. In matters of interpretation, Bapa’s shall be final except where he has previously referred any such question to me.

I would like Bapa, if he can, to be satisfied with my Gujarati. I know it is difficult in old age to change confirmed habits. I have strong objection to the use of English when the use of the mother tongue or the national language is possible. But here again let Bapa’s wish prevail. He is on the active list. I am on the sick list and have therefore time for indulging in preferences.

This letter should be sent to Bapa wherever he may be. It should also be shown to Sir Purushottamdas. If he differs on the question referred to me by Bapa, I should know.¹

This opinion was drafted yesterday. It was typed today. Bapa’s bombshell came later. I hope it will not explode.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹What follows is in Gujarati.
224. LETTER TO AMRIT KAUR

[July 10, 1944]

CHI. AMRIT

I better conserve my time and energy for the business before me. I have no news to give you. Play I dare not when there is work which calls me. And I have hardly enough energy to cope with the daily post.

Love to all.

BAPU

From the original: C.W. 4201. Courtesy: Amrit Kaur. Also G.N. 7837

225. LETTER TO VANAMALA N. PARikh

PANCHGANI,
July 10, 1944

CHI. VANAMALA,

So the fat on your body has proved completely deceptive, hasn’t it? More deceptive even than mine? You have got what you deserved. If you had given up salt, etc., from the beginning, don’t you think you wouldn’t have been obliged to give them up now? But never mind. Rest for four months now and make your body quite strong. Maybe, this ordeal will improve your hearing too. Show this to the doctor. He is no doctor who treats a patient only for one symptom. The root cause of all diseases is generally one. But all this is idle philosophizing intended for your amusement while lying in bed.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 5792. Also C.W. 3015. Courtesy: Vanamala M. Desai

---

1 In the source, the letter appears below the one dated July 10, 1944, from Pyarelal to the addressee. Pyarelal said: “By the time this reaches you, you will have seen in the papers the latest bombshell, i.e., Rajaji-Jinnah correspondence which was released yesterday. That ought not to surprise you. Bapu had shown his preparedness for exploring some such formula even as far back as August 4, 1942, when he wrote to C. R. about it. . . .” For the text of C. Rajagopalachari’s Formula, drafted in 1943, side Appendix “C. Rajagopalachari’s Formula”, before 5-8-1942.

2 This is in Devanagari.
226. LETTER TO ISHWARLAL G. VYAS

PANCHGANI,
July 10, 1944

BHAJ ISHWARLAL,

I have read your letter carefully. Most of the women have been provided for by you and Purbai. That is as it ought to be. If I go to Sevagram, and if you find it convenient and think it necessary, both of you may come and see me there. Workers have no time or money to waste. I, therefore, try to stop most of them. But there are some who need reassurance. And these do come. Orissa has been in my thoughts all the time, but I have deliberately refrained from speaking about it. You have an eternal famine there. Its protector is God. Appealing in my name is not going to be of any particular help.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI ISHWARLAL G. VYAS
PURBAI ASHRAM, SORO P.O.
BALASORE DISTRICT

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 5061

227. TELEGRAM TO ZIAUDDIN CHAUDHARI

PANCHGANI,
[On or after July 10, 1944]1

ZIAUDDIN CHAUDHARI2
CARE EMDESSONS
KARACHI
RAJAJI’S OFFER SUPERCEDES PREVIOUS WRITING IF CONTRARY.

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

---

1 In the source, the telegram is placed among the items of 1944; the date is inferred from the reference to “Rajaji’s offer” which was published on July 10. Vide 1st footnote of “Letter to Amrit Kaur”, 10-7-1944.
2 Sir Ziauddin Ahmed, Member, Central Legislative Assembly, Vice Chancellor, Aligarh Muslim University

166
228. LETTER TO MIR MUSHTAQ AHMED

July 11, 1944

DEAR MIR SAHIB,

I am clear that the conditions are derogatory and unacceptable. Detenus who decline to avail of facilities with humiliating restrictions do well.

But my opinion carries no authority.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

MIR MUSHTAQ AHMED SAHEB
34 PREM HOUSE
CONNAUGHT PLACE
NEW DELHI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

229. LETTER TO S. ZAHEERUL MUJAHID

PANCHGANI,
July 11, 1944

DEAR FRIEND,

I feel wholly unable to undertake the task you have entrusted me with.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

230. LETTER TO P. G. MATHEW

PANCHGANI,
July 11, 1944

MY DEAR MATHEW,

I am glad you are fixed up at last. Of course, I have not

1 The addressee had asked for an article on Jinnah from Gandhiji, as he proposed to publish a series of biographies of all prominent Muslim leaders of India.
forgotten you but I have not written to the people I have not forgotten. I write only when I must.

Love.

BAPU

PROF. P. G. MATHEW
S. H. COLLEGE
THEVARA, via ERNAKULAM

From a photostat: G.N. 1544

231. LETTER TO LILAVATI K. MUNSHI

July 11, 1944

CHI. LILAVATI,

I have your letter. I do not know what has appeared in the newspapers. I merely repeated in Ahmedabad what I had said in Bombay. I did not describe my note as a definition in Ahmedabad.
There also I described it as a working guide.

I cannot yet do my own writing.

Your discovery about Kumarappa is excellent. I will keep it in mind.

Blessings from

BAPU

From the Gujarati original : C. W. 7677. Courtesy : K. M. Munshi
232. TELEGRAM TO S. SADANAND

July 12, 1944

YOUR WIRE: THANKS. APOLOGIZE TO NATIONALIST PRESS FOR APPEARANCE ACCOUNT INTERVIEW EXCLUSIVELY ANGLO-INDIAN PRESS. THIS WAS UNAUTHORIZED. I DID GIVE FOR PUBLICATION “NEWS CHRONICLE” SHORT INTERVIEW PART WHEREOF IS PUBLISHED. MY TALK COVERING THREE HOURS DURING THREE DAYS MEANT CHIEFLY FOR GELDER’S INSTRUCTION. THOUGH HIS REPORT FAIRLY ACCURATE REQUIRES CORRECTION. HOPE THROUGH EARLY PRESS INTERVIEW CORRECT INACCURACY. MY VIEWS MERE PERSONAL, WHETHER THEY PROMOTE COUNTRY’S GOOD OR NOT MATTER OF OPINION. SIMULTANEOUS PUBLICATION RAJAJI’S FORMULA ACCIDENTAL. REGARD FORMULA CONSISTENT WITH NATIONAL INTEGRITY AND MY OPINION WITH SPIRIT CONGRESS RESOLUTION. UNDER NON-VIOLENCE NATIONAL UNITS CANNOT BE FORCIBLY HELD TOGETHER. ALL ARE FREE TO INTERPRET SATYAGRAHA. BUT I SHOULD BE ALLOWED TO BE SOLE INTERPRETER OF SATYAGRAHA OF MY CONCEPTION WHICH HAS HELD FIELD SINCE 1908.

The Bombay Chronicle, 13-7-1944

1 Managing Editor, Free Press Journal, Bombay
2 According to The Transfer of Power, Vol. IV, p. 1086, the Viceroy’s Private Secretary, E. M. Jenkins, in his letter dated July 13, 1944, to F.F. Turnbull, the Private Secretary to the Secretary of State for India, reported that Sadanand had telegraphed Gandhiji “protesting against communication of his views on important matters to Gelder, a representative of British and Anglo-Indian Press, rather than to Nationalist Press, and adding that Gandhi’s (?) Proposal to Jinnah, if correctly reported, ‘betrayed trust Congress and nation had placed in him’ ”.
3 The reference is to The Times of India, 11-7-1944, in which Stuart Gelder’s cable to News Chronicle had appeared; vide Appendix “Stuart Gelder’s Cable to News Chronicle”, 12-7-1944.
4 Vide “Interview to Stuart Gelder”, 4-7-1944.
5 Vide “Interview to Stuart Gelder”, 4-7-1944.
6 Vide the following item and “Interview to the Press”, 13-7-1944.
7 Vide Appendix “C. Rajagopalachari’s Formula”, before 5-8-1942.
233. STATEMENT TO THE PRESS

[July 12, 1944]

I had not authorized publication of the interview or even the substance. I had said that it should not be published, unless I authorized its publication, and in no case had I ever dreamt that the interview would be published, with exclusive rights to any one paper. If it was to be published, it should have been broadcast throughout India.

Therefore I had to offer that apology publicly in order to soothe myself and also to show to the Press my appreciation that they have respected my desire to be left alone, and also not to report anything which I had not authorized.

I know that some things have appeared in the Press without authority but, generally speaking, I must confess the Press has obliged me by refraining from reporting things that are not authorized. My object in seeing the Press people is purely to advance the cause for which I am living, namely, the freedom of India through truth and non-violence.

I do not seek publicity for the sake of it and just now I feel I would serve the cause better by remaining in obscurity, if such things were possible. Therefore I had warned Gelder that he was not to publish anything from me unless I authorized it. He has published what he has, I have no doubt, with the best of intentions, but somehow or other I feel he has not served the cause as well as he might have.

I passed nearly three hours with him distributed over three days in order that he might know the whole of my mind. I believed him, and still believe him, to be a well-wisher of India as he is a lover of his own country, and I accepted his word entirely when he told me that he approached me not as a journalist principally but as one desiring to see that the political deadlock was resolved.

Whilst I declared my views with absolute freedom, I told him that his first business should be to go to Delhi and, if I could reach the

1 The statement, though released by Gandhiji, on this date, along with the notes on his interview to Stuart Gelder, vide pp. 347-8 and 349-52 appeared under the date-line “Panchgani, July 13”.
2 In telegram to S. Sadanand, vide the preceding item.
3 Vide Appendix “Stuart Gelder’s Cable to News Chronicle”, 12-7-1944.
Viceregal throne, he should see the Viceroy¹ and give him what impressions he had gathered. Having myself failed to get an interview with the Viceroy, I felt that Gelder being reporter of a prominent English daily might be able to serve the cause. Even in South Africa, where I was working in a hostile atmosphere, I was fortunate enough to get journalists and editors to help me when they became impressed by my earnestness and the justice of my cause. I was handling the disabilities of Indians in South Africa.

The publication, therefore, at this stage, of an abstract [by Gelder] of two interviews seems to me to be misfired. I, therefore, propose to give you two notes prepared after discussion with Gelder one of which, namely, the shorter one, after his pilgrimage to Delhi he was free to send to his paper, and the other he could discuss privately with anybody who cared to understand me or who Gelder thought, should know how my mind was working.

You will see after you have read the two notes that he has compressed the two in the report published by him. You will notice also that there are some glaring inaccuracies in the report as published. I want to guard myself against being understood as accusing Gelder of wilful distortion.

But I have found it times without number during my public life, covering a period of over 50 years, that my statements do not admit of being easily abridged or paraphrased. In 1897, I very nearly lost my life when Reuter sent an abridged summary of a pamphlet² I had written and distributed in India in 1896. The summary was, I have no doubt, an unconscious distortion of what I had written. Fortunately my life was spared when I was lynched, and I was able to show that the case based against me on the strength of the summary was utterly wrong.

Here the abridgement has no such mischievous consequences. I recall the South African incident in order to emphasize my point. All my life I have handled what seemed to be forlorn causes. I have been also a fairly successful journalist, but I did not embark upon that calling for a living. It was a venture in order to advertise the cause I was handling, and I gave this long preface before handing the two statements to fellow-journalists in the hope that they would respond to ¹Who, however, declined to see him

²The “Green Pamphlet”.

VOL. 84 : 27 JANUARY, 1944 - 1 OCTOBER, 1944 171
my earnest wish that they would co-operate with me in dealing with the situation which, if properly handled, may yield promising results for mankind.

I was ill-prepared for this ordeal that is in front of me. I am in Panchgani trying to rebuild my broken body. The desire not to see statements published at this stage was also prompted by regard for my health. I want to get well quickly and to be in full working order. Since things are so shaping themselves that I might not be able to carry out that wish; the statement being before the public, I have to watch the reaction and deal with misunderstandings.

I have kept you, gentlemen, away from me and you have been very kind to me. You have waited in the hope that some day I would satisfy your natural inquisitiveness. I am afraid that you will be perhaps oversatisfied because, if your chiefs still keep you here, you will give me daily summary of reactions in the Press. I do not expect that I shall want to deal with them all, but in so far as there are misunderstandings I will have to remove them, if I possibly can. Throughout this I have emphasized the fact that I was speaking for myself and in no sense involving the Congress in what I said. I do not know how far today I represent the views of the members of the Working Committee.

As regards the Hindu-Muslim Formula\(^1\), which has nothing to do with these two statements, I have not spoken as a Hindu. I have spoken as an Indian first and an Indian last. My Hinduism is my own—I personally think it embraces all faiths. Therefore I have no authority to speak as a representative of the Hindus.

That I respond to mass mind and the masses know me instinctively is a fact which cannot be gainsaid, but I have not built my case upon it. As a representative of satyagraha, as I know it, I feel it my duty to pour out my heart to an Englishman who I thought, and still think, is a sympathetic listener. I claim no further authority for my views. I stand by every word that appeared in the two statements I have given to you, but I speak on behalf of no one else than myself.

\textit{The Bombay Chronicle, 14-7-1944}

\(^1\) The reference is to Rajaji Formula; \textit{vide} Appendix “C. Rajagopalachari’s Formula”, before 5-8-1942.
234. LETTER TO HORACE G. ALEXANDER

[July] 12, 1944

MY DEAR HORACE,

I have your long letter—long for the time and the way in which it had to be sent, not for the subject matter. Some of what you tell me I had known already after coming out, and some of it is startling. All of it is good as coming from you, even the part that I know to be wrong. But that which is wrong does not diminish the importance of what you have said. The defects of your narrative arise from your good nature. I would rather have the latter than have the defects removed at the sacrifice of it. I need not thus have qualified my appreciation of your letter but for the fear of misleading you into the belief that I accept the whole of your version without any deduction. To discuss the deduction is not germane to what I want to say. You know the other side of the picture. The popular fury was pardonable; the vindictive and inhuman retribution wholly indefensible. But I will not take your time over this.

Your anxiety that I should offer co-operation at least for the alleviation of hunger, I fully understand. My difficulty is that I cannot, for the very valid reason that the alleviation is only apparent. The Viceroy’s good intentions in the matter are not to be doubted. His promptness in rushing to Bengal on arrival was worthy of the soldier that he is. The agency through which he had and has to work is not designed to carry out the work of alleviation. You are entitled to put your noble work and experience against what I am saying. That only shows that evil by itself and in itself has no life. It requires the prop of good for its sustenance. Hospitals, roads, railways are probably good in themselves but when they are instruments of evil they are to be shunned. They become snares. You will now realize somewhat my meaning. Sufficient to say that at no time has India been so bound down as now. The remedy is liberty consistent with the movements of Allied troops. But there is deep mutual distrust. Authority distrusts the Congress and every public body including the Muslim League. Public opinion is flouted at almost every turn. In this state of things voluntary co-operation becomes impossible. I have tried in vain to see the Viceroy or be permitted to see the Working Committee members. Now tell me what not to do. I know what not to do. I am praying to God to tell me what to do. You can assist.

\footnote{The source, however, has “June”. The inference here is from the reference to Gandhiji’s attempts “in vain to see the Viceroy or be permitted to see the Working Committee members”; vide “Letter to Lord Wavell”, 17-6-1944. Also Dr. James Vail, Secretary, Foreign Service Section, American Friends’ Service Council, had met Gandhiji in the last week of June.}

I had a pleasant union with James Vail. Love to all who think of me.

Love.

From a photostat: G.N. 1440

235. LETTER TO MURIEL LESTER

AS AT SEVAGRAM, "VIA" WARDHA (C.P.),
CAMP PANCHGANI,
[July] 12, 1944

MY DEAR MURIEL,

I have your two dear letters. You are going through wonderful if also frightful experiences. Let us hope it is the darkness before dawn. But we must so work that the hope may be realized. We too are having our own experiences though of a different type from yours. I am working with might and maintain the direction through prayer and fasting. My energy is still very limited. Ba and Mahadev live as inspirations. More from Agatha and Horace to whom I have written at length.2

M. K. GANDHI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers, Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

---

1 The source has “June”, evidently a slip.
236. LETTER TO SHAMALDAS GANDHI

[After July 12, 1944]

CHI. SHAMALDAS,

I do not remember whether I have said anything to you about Bhai Munshi. I had a long talk with him. I have not found anything to justify the attack you made on him in Vandemataram. If there is any truth in the charge, please let me know. He is quite frank with me.

I have not been able to read the comments on my talks with Gelder in full, either in English or Gujarati. Do not defend me out of modesty if my views differ from yours. You have full right to guide people according to your understanding.

Blessings from

BAPU

From the Gujarati original: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Beldevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

237. LETTER TO AGATHA HARRISON

“DILKHUSH”, PANCHGANI,
July 13, 1944

MY DEAR AGATHA,

I have your letter of 14th June. Everything I do turns to dust. It must be so, so long as I am ‘untrustworthy’. If I could plead guilty, I would at once mend my way. On the contrary, I know, I have done nothing to forfeit the confidence I used at one time to enjoy among the official circles.

You know the attempt I made to see the members of the Working Committee and, failing that permission, to see the Viceroy. Perhaps the chief difficulty is the opinion, reported to have been held by Mr. Churchill about me. You know the oft-quoted passages attributed to him. He is said to want to “crush” me “the naked fakir”. The body can be crushed, never spirit. But if the report is true

---

1 From the contents, it appears that the letter was written after “The Statement to the Press”, 12-7-1944; vide “Statement to the Press”, 12-7-1944.
2 A Gujarati daily
3 Vide 2nd footnote of “Interview to Stuart Gelder”, 4-7-1944.
and it has never been denied—it gives the clue to all my so-called failures.

I can give you this assurance that nothing dismays or disappoints me. If I represent the truth and if I do as God bids me, I know that the wall of distortion and suspicion will topple. Only be patient with me. I feel for you and friends like you.

Recently I had sent to me a letter written by Henry to the Press whilst he was in America. Tell him, if you see him, that it distressed me deeply. I never could have thought that he could believe lies about me without verification from me.

Ere this reaches you, you will have known from the Press about the attempt I made to solve the communal tangle in collaboration with Rajaji who has been with me these few days.

My love to all the friends. I sent a letter to Muriel.

Yours,
BAPU

MISS AGATHA HARRISON
2 CRANBOURNE COURT
ALBERT BRIDGE ROAD, LONDON S.W. 11
From a photostat: G.N 1525

1 In her letter, the addressee had quoted the substance of a cable sent by C. F. Andrews to Gandhiji some ten years earlier. It read: “When two men meet without conditions, a way of peace may be found.” She had also said: “Uppermost in my mind is another meeting between the Viceroy and you, the result of which might well be ‘a way of peace’. . . . So often during these days my thoughts have turned to you who for fifty years have pioneered in finding a way of settling disputes other than by force. Persistently there comes to my mind a supreme contribution that could be made by you to this sorely tried world. It is this: that in the midst of total war, without bloodshed an honourable way of peace could be found between our two countries. What a disarming thing it would be, a tangible, living proof of the power of non-violence.”

2 H. S. L. Polak (1882-1959); joined Gandhiji at Phoenix Settlement; edited Indian Opinion; founded Indian Overseas Association in London in 1919. In Gandhiji’s Correspondence with the Government, p. 34, Pyarelal explains: “In the letter in question, Henry Polak had made certain remarks about Gandhiji’s attitude in regard to the war and his role in ‘Quit India’ struggle at a time when Britain was in distress. . . .” of the two missions which spoke against the Congress and its political demands in America, H. S. L. Polak, along with S. K. Ratcliffe and T. A. Raman, formed one in late 1943; the second being that of Sir S. Ranganathan, High Commissioner for India in England.

3 The reference is to Rajaji Formula, vide Appendix “C. Rajagopalachari’s Formula”, before 5-8-1942.

176 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
238. LETTER TO G. E. B. ABELL

‘DILKUSHA’, PANCHGANI,
July 13, 1944

DEAR MR. ABELL,

I had your undated letter enclosing Miss Agatha Harrison’s letter to me for which I thank you.

Could I have the courtesy extended to me of sending the enclosed reply through the Viceroy’s air-mail bag?

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

G. E. B. ABELL, ESQ.
THE VICE ROY’S CAMP
INDIA

Gandhiji’s Correspondence with the Government, p. 33

239. LETTER TO S. SADANAND

‘DILKUSHA’, PANCHGANI,
July 13, 1944

MY DEAR SADANAND.

Your wire. Though this reply is to you as a journalist, and for publication, the manner of my reply will be on the basis of your claim to be my son, a claim which you have often repeated. You have verbally accepted my amends but in action rejected them. Re-read the opening parts of your telegram and you will understand my meaning. If you do, you will make a public acknowledgement of the offence you have given me even in the act of accepting amends.

As a pleasing contrast to this, I may tell you that the four reporters whom I had the pleasure of meeting yesterday were

1 Deputy Private Secretary to the Viceroy
2 Vide the preceding item.
3 R. K. Prabhu explains that The Free Press Journal, 12-7-1944, in its reference to the Rajaji Formula, had reported that Gandhiji had been “misled”. When “Gandhiji privately remonstrated against this” with the addressee he “offered some sort of apology”.
4 Vide “Statement to the Press”, 12-7-1944.
graceful enough to accept my amends and to understand fully its implication.

I have a categorical reply for every one of the questions you have asked me. But I very much fear that they are not sincere but meant to advertise your bravery, and newspaper propaganda of an unworthy type.

I have read with much pain your writings in your issue of July 12, 1944. They caption a wicked attack upon Rajaji and milder one on esteemed public men. You are doing a great injustice to yourself and shaming your nationalism by attacking Rajaji who, to my knowledge, has no axe to grind, has forsaken everything for love of his country and has risked popularity in pursuing the dictates of his conscience. Let me tell you that Rajaji has not discussed his politics with me. My dissent from his politics, as I understood him in jail, continues. Now that I have been involuntarily and prematurely drawn into political controversy, I shall certainly discuss them with him as I am doing with respect in spite of wide political divergence. Courtesy towards opponents and eagerness to understand their view-points is the ABC of non-violence. But you of all persons should know that they are not likely to deflect me from the straight and narrow path I have chosen to tread. They can but strengthen me in my resolve to follow it, never weaken me.

And I should be all utterly unworthy leader or exponent of non-violence, if I could be led astray by eminent leaders or constant companions like Rajaji.

In a way the honest mistake made by Mr. Gelder, as his premature publication of an abridgement of the notes of interviews with him appears to have been, is a blessing in that the country once again has an opportunity of knowing the measure of my compromising nature. I have no reason to be ashamed of it and I have never considered it a sign of weakness in me but strength.

If you will prove a worthy son of mine, you will revise the whole of your policy and use your journalistic gifts so as to serve the country by the way of truth and non-violence.

You have had a fair portion of material goods out of your journalistic venture. Now dare to be poor, if need be, and instead of feeding the public on sensationalism, give them nothing but solid gold. And, if you do not know how to do so, accept a humbler vocation. You will then at least have the credit of ceasing to do mischief.

\footnote{Vide Appendix “Stuart Gelder’s Cable to News Chronicle”, 12-7-1944.}

I hope that you will publish this without alteration.\footnote{R. K. Prabhu explains: “Gandhiji’s letter . . . was . . . published in . . . The Free Press Journal, 19-7-1944, with the following ‘in explanation’ from . . . Sadanand: ‘Gandhiji’s letter to me dated July 13, the telegram to Gandhiji dated July 14 and Gandhiji’s reply dated July 15 are published in these columns. There could not be an earlier publication, as I returned from Delhi only this (18th) afternoon. Gandhiji has honoured me by recalling my allegiance to him, as a son. I claim to be true to that allegiance even today. It is within Gandhiji’s knowledge that, according to my concept, a son may not defend himself against parental chastisement. I see no reason to break the golden rule on this occasion.’”}

Yours sincerely,

\footnote{Vide Appendix “C. Rajagopalachari’s Formula”, before 5-8-1942.}

This Was Bapu, pp. 152-4

240. LETTER TO SHUAIB QURESHI

July 13, 1944

MY DEAR SHUAIB,

Your note and message. I have told you my head is on your lap. I do not remember the talks I had with you. Remember I am not like you. I am in the evening of life. If you see [any] conflict between the Rajaji formula\footnote{Vide Appendix “C. Rajagopalachari’s Formula”, before 5-8-1942.} and our talk tell me and I shall know. I have gone on [the] feeling that there was no conflict. Anyway the Rajaji formula is my last word unless you differ and convince me to the contrary.
Am I clear ? Let not your effort be interrupted.

Love to you and the whole family.

BAPU

From a copy : Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library.
Courtesy : Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar
241. INTERVIEW TO THE PRESS

PANCHGANI,
July 13, 1944

Some have said that I have admitted that the August resolution has lapsed. Not only have I never said it, on the contrary, at the Maharashtra Workers’ meeting, I made it clear to the friends who had gathered around me at Poona that no comma of that resolution could be altered by anybody except those who passed it, namely, the Working Committee and finally the A.I.C.C. What I have said and what I reaffirm is that my authority under the resolution had undoubtedly lapsed according to my view of the working of satyagraha.

The premature publication of the interview to Mr. Gelder has led to some confusion in the minds of Congressmen. Let me make it clear that the lapping of my authority has nothing to do with the normal activities of the Congress. What no one can do in the name of the Congress is mass civil disobedience which was never started and which, as I have said, I cannot at the present moment, even in my personal capacity, start.

The “Quit India” resolution I hold to be absolutely innocuous. The Gelder interview notes now published are in no way in conflict with the “Quit India” resolution as I have interpreted it and, as the joint author of it, I have every right to interpret it.

The question before me and before the All-India [Congress Committee] is how to implement the resolution at the present time, i.e., nearly two years after the passing of the resolution. The Gelder interview notes show the way how it can be done in a perfectly honourable manner. Those who approve of the stand I have taken up will naturally support it. People having difficulty are free to refer to me but their approval of the stand taken by me must not be interpreted to mean suspension of the normal activities of the Congress and, if the Government interfere with those activities, the inherent right of individual civil disobedience is in no way suspended.

---

1 Vide “Speech to Cngressmen, Poona”, 29-6-1944.
2 Vide Appendix “Stuart Gelder’s Cable to News Chronicle”, 12-7-1944.
3 Vide “Interview to Stuart Gelder”, 4-7-1944 and “Interview to Stuart Gelder”, 4-7-1944.
under the statement referred to by me. The statements constitute my individual personal effort to end the political deadlock. They are more addressed to the powers that be than to the people. If there is a hearty response, there will be no occasion for civil disobedience, individually or not.

Answering a question put by a reporter whether the Cripps proposals could be compared with his recent statements, Mahatma Gandhi said:

My proposal is wholly different. The Cripps proposals were unacceptable to me for the simple reason that they contemplated almost perpetual vivisection of India and would have created an effective barrier against Indian independence. I want to say this without the slightest disrespect to Sir Stafford Cripps. He still remains to me the same friend that he claimed to be when he was here. For me friendships abide in spite of political differences.

One fundamental element in my attitude is that I shall never be a party to the sale of the rights of the people of the States for the sake of freedom of the people of British India. At the same time I am no enemy of the Princes. I consider myself to be their friend and, if anybody cares to understand, I am quite prepared to suggest a solution at once honourable to them and to the people. I live for a cause and, if I perish, it is for the cause.

A reporter suggested that it might be that His Majesty’s Government do not, for the duration of the war, entertain any idea for the transference of power, and it was feared that Mr. Jinnah would not be agreeable to accept Mahatma Gandhi’s suggestion because a national government might, in his opinion, consolidate the position of the Hindus in the centre. Mahatma Gandhi explained:

If Mr. Jinnah does not accept my suggestion or if the powers that be do not, I would consider it most unfortunate. That would show that neither of them wants India to be really free at this juncture and give India a full share in winning the war for freedom and democracy.

I myself feel firmly that Mr. Jinnah does not block the way, but the British Government do not want a just settlement of the Indian claim for independence which is overdue, and they are using Mr. Jinnah as a cloak for denying freedom to India. I have uttered my warning in the talk I gave to Mr. Stuart Gelder.

Mahatma Gandhi said that it must be the duty of all fair-minded people to break what he called “the diabolical conspiracy to stifle India’s aspiration”. He declared:

---

1 Vide also “Answers to Questions”, 15-7-1944.
I have the firmest faith that they may win the war in the trial of brute strength, because brute strength when applied to limitless finances will naturally be supreme, but it will be only a physical victory and lead to another world war. This is the outpouring of a lacerated heart.

The Bombay Chronicle, 14-7-1944

242. LETTER TO STUART GELDER

PANCHGANI, July 14, 1944

GELDER,

Many thanks for your wire. Englishmen do not know how to treat dysentery. One has to be very careful about diet. When Dr. Nayyar told me about the liberty you had taken about your food, I told her you were bound to get ill. You dare not touch Indian sweets. They are too rich and concentrated. How I wish you would take a course at Dr. Mehta’s health clinic. You will be radically cured.

I know that your haste was due to your overzeal and with the best of intentions. You could not be conscious of the discrepancies. I wonder if they are now clear to you. I can forgive the premature publications¹ of the interviews, but how can I forgive your giving the exclusive right to The Times of India? You were to send the thing, when the time came, to your paper or if you wished to publish the thing here too, you should have shared it with all. You do not know what abuse² has been poured on my poor head.

Yours sincerely,

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

---

¹ Vide Appendix “Stuart Gelder’s Cable to News Chronicle”, 12-7-1944.
² Vide 2nd footnote of “Telegram to S. Sadanand”, 12-7-1944.

243. LETTER TO M. R. JAYAKAR

PANCHGANI,
July 14, 1944

DEAR DR. JAYAKAR,

Many thanks for your kind letter¹. Publication of the interview was premature as I have explained in my public statement². Having given the fullest weight to your advice³, I could not say to the Viceroy more than I did.

I am not going to put you to the trouble of coming to Panchgani. If Sir Tej comes as he had said he would, I would like you to join him. In any case now I know your mind.⁴

I have the lawyers’ opinion⁵. I am not making public use of it.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

THE RT. HON’BLE, DR. M. R. JAYAKAR
MALABAR HILL
BOMBAY 8

Gandhi-Jayakar Papers, File No. 826, p. 15. Courtesy: National Archives of India

¹ Dated July 11, 1944
² Vide “Statement to the Press”, 12-7-1944.
³ The addressee had suggested to Gandhiji to add in his letter to the Viceroy, vide “Letter to Lord Wavell”, 17-6-1944, the words: “Under altered conditions the resolution of 1942 was not capable of being revived” in order to explain what he would advise the Working Committee, if and when he met them.
⁴ Jayakar had said: “ . . . having now disclosed your view very clearly, I do not think it will be right to rely upon lawyers’ opinions in confirmation of it.... Mr. Munshi gave me a draft in Poona of a statement to be issued to the Press under the signature of a few lawyers.... you are big enough to announce to the world your own conclusions arrived at independently of any adventitious aids.... India will accept your conclusions with grace and, as an aid to a future settlement, they have a value of their own, which will not certainly be increased but may be diminished by the support of lawyers.”
⁵ Vide Appendix “Opinion on Gandhiji’s Responsibility”, 6-2-1944.
244. LETTER TO D. N. SHIKHARE

“DILKHUSHA’, PANCHGANI, July 14, 1944

DEAR FRIEND,

I am herewith sending you a corrected report of your talk with Gandhiji at Poona on the 28th ultimo.

With regard to your request in your letter of the 29th ultimo to Gandhiji that he should remove the ambiguity about his attitude towards the Hindu Mahasabha, Shri Savarkar and Qaid-e-Azam Jinnah respectively, I am to say that Gandhiji does not think the latter portion of the report of his interview that is now being sent to you leaves any room for ambiguity.

Yours sincerely,

SHRI D. N. SHIKHARE
623/26 SADASHIVPETH
DESHMUKHWADI
POONA

From a copy: C.W. 10512

1 The addressee, a journalist and Editor, Mahatma Magazine, wanted to “embody the correct version of the interview in the biography” of Gandhiji, which he published in 1945. The enclosure to this letter is not traceable. However, the addressee had requested Gandhiji “to write in your own handwriting the most inspiring sentences of yours”, which he quoted: “I believe freedom is coming to India with an incredible velocity. The present moment is the darkest hour before the dawn. To me, mere prayer, if it is sufficiently deep, can bring about the desired change.”

2 The addressee wanted to know why Gandhiji went after Jinnah, and ignored V. D. Savarkar, President, Hindu Mahasabha, when neither of them was pledged to non-violence.
245. MESSAGE TO BENGAL PROVINCIAL STUDENTS FEDERATION-I

July 14, 1944

Fight and you will win through your work even without a message.

The Bombay Chronicle, 21-7-1944

246. LETTER TO AMTUSSALAAM

SEVAGRAM,

July 14, 1944

CHI. AMTUL SALAAM,

I did not expect a wire from you, but had hoped for a letter today. I hope you reached there safely and did not lose any luggage. Did you make a list of the articles? Did you get a good seat?

I hope you have settled down there comfortably. You must have heard from Bhagirathji. Write to me about everything in detail. Devote yourself exclusively to the work for which you have gone. Have faith that it will include everything else. If you try to do more, there will be a danger of your losing everything. Write to me and tell me what you did about Nyamat’s daughter. I doubt whether by taking her you have done real service to Nyamat or to the girl. I am all right.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 479

---

1 This is extracted from a statement to the Press by Arun Das Gupta and Ajit Roy, leaders of the Bengal Provincial Students’ Federation, regarding their interview with Mahatma Gandhi. The statement read: “We, together with some other workers of the Bengal Provincial Students’ Federation, toured Assam in June to help Sjt. Bardoloi and other Congress leaders of Assam in raising the anti-Jap morale of the people. With a letter of introduction from Sjt. Bardoloi we came to see Gandhiji and tell him about conditions in Assam and our work. On the 14th July, we met Mahatmaji. He discussed with us the report of our work in Assam. We told him: ‘For the last two years we have been working for Congress-League unity. We shall work for it all the harder now. A message from you will be invaluable.’ ” Vide also “Message to Bengal Students’ Federation-II”, 17-7-1944

2 Permanent address

3 Bhagirathji Kanodia, businessman of Calcutta

4 An inmate of Sevagram
247. LETTER TO SURESH

PANCHGANI,

July 14, 1944

BHAi SURESH,

I have your blazing letter. I appreciate your feelings and you had better appreciated mine. I speak and act according to my lights. I have never done anything to appease people. Fortunately for me people are pleased by my words. If you will have patience, you will see that what I have said is quite all right. Rest assured that I am not likely to be misled by anybody’s bluff. The one and only one who leads me is God.

Yes, one thing is certain, that all the rich men are not the country’s enemies. And my non-violence draws no line between friend and foe. It makes a friend out of a foe.¹

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

248. ANSWER TO QUESTION²

PANCHGANI,

July 14, 1944

I should gladly do so if there is no restraint. I have never, so far as I can recall, been responsible for editing newspapers under restraint or security. If I commit breach of the common law of the land, I am there to be punished as I was in 1922. But I know I cannot expect any such treatment from Government so long as I am distrusted.

The Bombay Chronicle, 14-7-1944

¹ Vide also “Speech at Poona”, 1-7-1944.
² The report said that Gandhiji was “replying to a question on the publication of Harijan” which was discontinued from August 16, 1942, to February 10, 1946.
I have been receiving letters from several provinces complaining of the ill-treatment of detenus. I cannot vouch for their accuracy. I have no means of verifying the accounts. But correspondents who have written are most of them known personally to me and they are not likely to exaggerate.

One instance came to my notice only yesterday. It is from Ajmer. The prisoner was fasting. His wife wrote several letters to me asking me to advise her husband to give up the fast. As it was, the prisoner was willing. I telegraphed to the Superintendent conveying my advice to the prisoner to desist from fasting. He accepted it and gave up his fast. I now learn that the prisoner was being prosecuted under some jail regulations for having committed the crime of fasting.

I know when I was a prisoner in Yeravda that there was some such regulation and I thought that when a prisoner gave up his fast, he would not be prosecuted. I also fasted, and I could also be punished, but I escaped punishment, I suppose, because I was regarded as a celebrity. Assuming that I have been correctly informed, I would plead with the authorities that they should ignore such cases. There would be nothing wrong if they allowed prisoners to fast at will. The most reasonable thing would be to investigate the complaints for which they were fasting and promptly give redress, if the complaints were found justified. These things have been done before. There is no reason why that admirable practice should not be followed now.

I plead for humane treatment to prisoners, more especially when they are in detention on mere suspicion or found guilty of crimes created by special ordinances and not under the ordinary law.

Other cases that have come to my notice are not of fasting but of alleged ill-treatment in order to break the spirit of prisoners. I dealt with such cases when I edited the Young India and later the Harijan, and in many cases the authorities gave redress.

I happen to know that such cases sometimes do not reach the higher authorities. My purpose in bringing this to public notice is to seek redress. It is well known that in most provinces prisoners are suffering hardships which are perfectly avoidable. All those who are at all ill or are losing weight should at once be discharged. This will surely not prejudice the war-effort or endanger the peace of the country.¹

1 Vide "Telegram to Superintendent, Central Prison, Ajmer", 17-5-1944.

I have received bitter criticism of my views² expressed in the Gelder interview. Some of my correspondents say that under the influence of Moderates and moneyed men, I have betrayed the cause of the country. If for nothing else, for dealing with such criticism, I am glad of the premature publication³ of the interview. I do not want to sail under false colours. The country as well as the Government should know me exactly as I am. I have never concealed the fact that I am a friend of everybody, Moderates, moneyed men, Englishmen, Americans or any other, irrespective of caste, colour or persuasion. My belief and practice are directly derived from my non-violence. My non-co-operation is non-co-operation with evil, not with the evil-doer. Underneath my non-co-operation is my earnest desire to wean the evil-doer from the evil or harm he is doing, so that I can give him hearty co-operation. Again if I associate with the so-called Moderates or with moneyed men, I do so to seek their co-operation in the cause I am handling. But I approach them with an open mind, so that I correct myself where I find myself in the wrong. I have known of no cause that I have espoused that has suffered because of such association.

Some critics have suggested that by my present attitude I am lending moral weight to the Allied cause. They forget that my offer, such as it is, is conditioned upon the Allies, in this case the British Government, recognizing full independence, qualified during the pendency of the war. I see, therefore, no conflict between the principles enunciated in August resolution and what I have now suggested. May I suggest to critics that they should wait till the British Government have spoken? The statements made by me were meant in the first instance for the Government. Mr. Gelder sprang a surprise.

¹What follows appeared independently in The Bombay Chronicle.
²Vide “Interview to Stuart Gelder”, 4-7-1944.
³Vide Appendix “Stuart Gelder’s Cable to News Chronicle”, 12-7-1944.
He has done so with the best of motives. After all, there is a higher Power ruling all the actions of human beings.\(^1\)

The Hindu, 16-7-1944, and The Bombay Chronicle, 15-7-1944

250. LETTER TO EDITOR-IN-CHARGE, “FREE PRESS JOURNAL”

‘DILKUSHA’, PANCHGANI,

July 15, 1944

DEAR EDITOR-IN-CHARGE,

I have your wire\(^2\). My letter\(^3\) to Shri Sadanand is a public reply to a public question and is meant for publication. The proper thing was to have waited for my reply before publishing the complaint against me. Delay appears to me to be suspicious.

If Shri Sadanand is away, and if direction is considered necessary, in a matter of ordinary course, you have means of taking directions by telephone.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

This Was Bapu, pp. 154.5

251. LETTER TO LORD WAVELL

PANCHGANI,

July 15, 1944

DEAR FRIEND,

You have no doubt seen the authentic copies, now published in the Indian Press, of the statements\(^4\) given by me to Mr. Gelder of the

1. The report in The Bombay Chronicle concluded: “Criticisms to Gandhiji’s proposal still pour in here. Gandhiji as replied to them lying full length on a pallet. He was speaking in a feeble voice and those close to him say that he can regulate his voice and he often does so to conserve his energy. Rajaji was a silent listener again today when Gandhiji talked to the Press. At the conclusion of the meeting, Gandhiji humorously said, looking at Rajaji, ‘he would pass whatever his “Sub-editor” passed for publication.’

4. Vide “Interview to Stuart Gelder”, 4-7-1944 and 4/6-7-1944.
News Chronicle. As I have said to the Press, they were meant primarily to be shown to you. But Mr. Gelder, no doubt with the best of motives, gave the interview premature publicity. I am sorry. The publication will nevertheless be a blessing in disguise, if the interview enables you to grant at least one of my requests contained in my letter of 17th June, 1944.¹

I am,
Yours, etc.
M. K. GANDHI

The Hindu, 19-8-1944. Also C.W. 10506. Courtesy: India Office Library

252. LETTER TO SHANTIKUMAR N. MORARJEE

PANCHGANI,
July 15, 1944

CHI. SHANTIKUMAR,

You were not present but Sumati⁴ and Jehangirji [Patel] witnessed the beast in me. They forgot that beast and understood my love. I am tied to you all by the bonds of love. My unworthiness prevents me from sending for you. But how long can I do without you? I am sure you will wash off Sushila’s pain with love.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 844

¹ Vide Appendix “Stuart Gelder’s Cable to News Chronicle”, 12-7-1944.
² Vide “Letter to Lord Wavell”, 17-6-1944.
³ The Viceroy’s reply dated July 22, read: “. . . I do not think, I can usefully comment at present except to repeat what I said in my last letter that if you will submit to me a definite and constructive policy, I shall be glad to consider it.”
⁴ Addresssee’s wife
⁵ The addressee had been sent by Gandhiji to the dockyard to hand over the gifts and a letter to Manu Gandhi; vide “Letter to Manu Gandhi”, 8-6-1944.
253. LETTER TO ANANTRAI P. PATTANI

PANCHGANI,

July 15, 1944

Bhai Anantrai,

I have your letter. I had already learnt from Mathuradas\(^1\) that the ‘Castle’\(^2\) will have accommodation for me. But it is not my business to run after conveniences. But they pursue me and sometimes I am caught by one of them.

I don’t wish to enter into any discussion with you regarding other subjects. Moreover you can always have Nanabhai’s help now that he has been released.

I shall not let you compare yourself with Vajalbhai\(^3\) because I was indirectly acquainted with Gagabhai’s expertise. I place your father\(^5\) above Gagabhai. Besides, as far as my knowledge goes, since Vajalbhai became the divan only in his old age, there cannot be any comparison. Hence I am going to measure you with the yardstick applied in the case of your father.

Blessings from

BAPU

BHAVNAGAR

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

---

\(^1\) Mathuradas Trikumji

\(^2\) Addressee’s residence at Panchgani

\(^3\) Vajalbhai Gaurishanker Oza, and his father, Gaurishanker Udayshanker Oza, divan of Bhavnagar

\(^4\) ibid

\(^5\) Prabhashankar Pattani
PANCHGANI,
July 15, 1944

QUESTION: Will you kindly explain the exact difference between the Cripps Plan and your own as revealed in the Gelder interview?

ANSWER: My plan contemplates an immediate recognition of full independence for India as a whole, subject to limitations for the duration of the war to meet the requirements of the Allied operations. The Cripps Plan, as I understood it, dealt more with the future than with the immediate arrangements. Moreover, in my opinion, the Cripps Plan meant dismemberment of India, the Indian States being set up as an all-extensive disintegrating factor. But if my plan is considered by British statesmen to be not very different from the Cripps Plan, it should be all the easier for them to accept it.¹

What if Mr. Jinnah sticks to a plebiscite of Muslims only in the districts or provinces where the Muslims are in majority?

Neither Qaid-e-Azam Jinnah nor the Muslim League have pronounced their opinion on Rajaji’s Formula. I would deprecate anticipating them. Rajaji is with me. We have agreed for the sake of conserving my limited energy that he should deal with the questions arising from the Formula. For my part I would appeal to the questioners, foreign or Indian, not to forestall the Muslim League.

How do you propose to fix the ratio of the League and Congress in the national government?

I must not be drawn into details. If the indication of my mind affords any satisfaction to the authorities, they should open the gates of the prison, and let those who can speak with authority pronounce upon my proposal or at least let me confer with them. As it is, I do not know that I have not embarrassed them by my sharing my personal opinion with the public before first sharing it with them. The publication is premature and not of my seeking.

¹ Sent by the London office of the United Press of India
² Vide also “Interview to the Press”, 13-7-1944.
³ Vide “C. Rajagopalchari’s Formula”, before 5-8-1942
⁴ By Stuart Gelder of News Chronicle, vide Appendix “Stuart Gelder’s Cable to News Chronicle”, 12-7-1944.
Will you meet Mr. Jinnah personally?
The question arises from ignorance of facts. I am always willing to meet Qaid-e-Azam Jinnah.

What are your views on the Bombay Plan? Do you think crisis like the one which overtook Bengal could be permanently avoided by acceptance of such a plan?
The Bombay Plan is a post-war plan. Anyway, the question should be addressed to the authors.

_Gandhi-Jinnah Talks_, pp. 81-2

255. LETTER TO NANDU KANUGA

SHRI NANDUBEHN,

... The important part was about to be left out. I don’t think there was anything wrong in our people approaching the millionaires in connection with Ba’s Memorial. How can we refuse what they offer? Surely we may not hate them. More when we meet.

AHMEDABAD

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

256. LETTER TO NAVIN GANDHI

CHI. NAVIN.

Aren’t you a lazy fellow? You must be thinking that I am not at all concerned about Manju and hence you don’t write to me. However it be, I must have a postcard from you regularly. Sushilabehn talked to me about medical fees. Sushilabehn has already proceeded to Delhi; so I have to think about it. Have you had a talk with the doctors? If you have, write to me in detail so that I can write to them. I did not even dream that the question of fees would come

---

1 A fifteen-year plan for the economic development of India
2 Purushottamdas Thakurdas, J. R. D. Tata, G. D. Birla, Ardeshir Dalal, Shriram, Kasturbhai Lalbhai, A. D. Shroff and John Mathai
3 In the source, the letter is placed after the letters of July 15, 1944.
4 Omission as in the source
5 In the source, the letter is placed after the letters of July 15, 1944.
6 Son of Vrajlal A. Gandhi, brother of Jaisukhlal Gandhi
7 daughter of Vrajlal A. Gandhi, brother of Jaisukhlal Gandhi up. Anyway you need not worry on that account; it is my concern. Let me have your opinion. Who is there with you now?

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

257. LETTER TO SUSHILA GANDHI

[On or before July 16, 1944]

I have thought over the matter carefully. I think that Sita should stay on in Sevagram. She will get the good company of Aryanayakam and Ashadevi, and be educated on the lines of the Talimi Sangh. She will get Gomati’s protection. Gomati is a saintly woman. Kashi and Durga also are there. And so her Gujarati, Sanskrit, Hindi and English will be taken care of. If you do not like this, you can put her in the Parsi school here which I visit daily. Beyond this you cannot go.

About you, we shall think later.

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 4942

258. STATEMENT TO THE PRESS

PANCHGANI,
July 16, 1944

A correspondent asks me what those who, on being discharged, have been served with restriction orders confining them within certain areas or requiring them to report themselves periodically at police thanas, should do. I regard all such restrictions as degrading and could not myself submit to them. However I know men who, being unable any longer to bear the jail hardships, have preferred the restricted freedom. I must refuse to judge their conduct. Everyone suffers according to his capacity. But it is a serious question for the Government to consider whether it is a necessary part of war-effort to wound the spirit of young men and women, whose only fault is that they love their country’s independence before everything else.

The Hindu, 17-7-1944; also The Bombay Chronicle, 16-7-1944

1 From the postmark
2 In the source, the letter is placed after the letters of July 15, 1944.
3 Son and daughter of Vrajlal A. Gandhi, brother of Jaisukhlal Gandhi
259. LETTER TO TEJ BAHADUR SAPRU

PANCHGANI,
July 16, 1944

DEAR SIR TEJ,

Gandhiji has your letter of the 11th inst. as also the enclosure. Your statement had appeared only in part in the Bombay papers. He was, therefore, glad to get the full text. You must have seen in the Press the statements he has issued including the authorised texts of the two notes of his talks with Mr. Gelder.¹ For the present, having thrown a ‘bombshell’ he is being inundated with ‘shell-shocked’ letters, protests, abuse and what not. That was but to be expected. He is eager to have your considered view.

He was thankful you remembered him. He reciprocates your kind sentiment. Gandhiji felt very grateful to hear that your son was steadily improving.² He hopes that he will be fully restored soon.

Yours sincerely,
PYARELAL

From a copy : Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

260. LETTER TO MATHURADAS TRIKUMJI

PANCHGANI,
July 16, 1944

CHI. MATHURADAS,

I can understand your lamentation. But you do not listen to my advice. You are bedridden. If instead of worrying about me you prayed to God, you would recover quicker. Even if that did not happen, you would have peace.

I am not an invalid that you imagine me to be. And mentally ¹Vide “Interview to Stuart Gelder”, 4-7-1944.

²Vide “Letter to Additional, Secretary, Home Department, Government of India”, 15-7-1943.
not at all. That is why whatever I do, I do with deliberation and care'. There was a time when you could understand me from a mere hint. You could explain to others my intentions and my words. Why is it that that is no longer so? Think about it. The reason lies only in you. If I were as ill as you and did not forget the outside world, I too would be in the same situation. You do not understand Rajaji at all. His modesty and his conduct are worth emulating. I did not lose my alertness during my fast. And when I broke my fast he showed me his draft. I am astonished that you can think him so mean as to take advantage of my weakness. To say that my statement means Pakistan shows ignorance. What can one do if Gelder bruit about it? Rajaji’s draft had nothing to do with the interview. Contain your anger. Calm yourself. And be sure that there is no contradiction in what I have done. As for Paramanand, let me see what is possible. I hope Dilip is calm. Send him to me if he is disturbed. Did your cloak fit? I am fine.

Blessings from

BAPU

From the Gujarati original: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

261. LETTER TO JAIKRISHNA P. BHANSALI

PANCHGANI,

July 16, 1944

CHI. BHANSALI,

Discipline demands that you should ask me. If you do not observe it, who else will? But what guidance can I give you in this matter? If you have faith in yourself, by all means go and relieve the suffering of the people. I must admit, however, that you have excelled me and I derive comfort from the thought that my teaching has proved fruitful. Isn’t he a true teacher who is surpassed by his own pupil? May God increase your strength still further.

I keep on reminding myself daily that I must go there as early

1 The addressee did not like Stuart Gelder publishing the interview; vide Appendix “Stuart Gelder’s Cable to News Chronicle”, 12-7-1944

196 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
as possible in August. The climate here does suit me, of course.
Inform everybody. Manilal and Sita are arriving today.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 8365. Also C.W. 7175. Courtesy:
Munnalal G. Shah

262. LETTER TO WINSTON CHURCHILL

‘DILKUSHA’, PANCHGANI,
July 17, 1944

DEAR PRIME MINISTER,

You are reported to have a desire to crush the simple “naked fakir” as you are said to have described me. I have been long trying to be a fakir and that naked—a more difficult task. I, therefore, regard the expression as a compliment though unintended. I approach you then as such and ask you to trust and use me for the sake of your people and mine and through them those of the world.

Your sincere friend,
M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat: C.W. 10499. Courtesy: India Office Library. Also This Was Bapu, p. 140

263. LETTER TO LORD WAVELL

‘DILKUSHA’, PANCHGANI,
July 17, 1944

H. E. THE VICEROY
VICEROY’S CAMP
DEAR FRIEND,

I ventured to write to you yesterday repeating my previous

1 In Mahatma Gandhi—The Last Phase, Vol. I, Book I, p. 32, Pyarelal explains: “This letter to the Prime Minister miscarried. It was the first instance, in Gandhiji’s experience, of an important letter of his failing to reach its destination. A copy was, therefore, sent to Churchill two months later. The only reply it fetched was an acknowledgement with thanks through the Viceroy!” According to The Hindu, 19-7-1945, Gandhiji released this along with a statement to the Press on July 18, 1945.

2 The letter was, however, dated July 15; vide “Letter to Lord Wavell”, 15-7-1944. request. I feel that my effort would be incomplete unless I sent the accompanying\(^1\) to the Prime Minister. May I seek your help, if you agree, to send the enclosed in the quickest manner possible?

_I am,_
_Yours sincerely,_
_M. K. GANDHI_

From a photostat: C.W. 10502. Courtesy: India Office Library. Also _Gandhiji’s Correspondence with the Government_, p. 11

264. LETTER TO SAROJINI NAIDU

PANCHGANI,
_July 17, 1944_

MY DEAR AMMAJAN,

Your precious letter. You must not be angry with poor me. Bear with me for a while. Mists will roll away some time. You are my message. At the Urdu Conference\(^2\) you will be all in all. Therefore do not ask me for a formal message. That will land me in a sea of troubles. I have refused to send messages. Let me spare every ounce of energy for the task before us.

You should all behave better about the upkeep of the body. Or is that to be reserved for me only?

_Love from_
_SPINNER_

SHRIMATI SAROJINI NAIDU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

265. LETTER TO ASHFAQ HUSSAIN

July 17, 1944

MY DEAR ASHFAQ\(^3\),

I never knew that you were a careless reader. Do you not see that if the thing was to be put on the League Committee without the

---

\(^1\) _Vide_ the preceding item.
\(^2\) The All-India Urdu Congress to be held at Hyderabad on July 22
\(^3\) An associate of Mahomed Ali
President sponsoring it, it should be before the public for discussion? The League and others can now pronounce upon it.

Expect to see you at Sevagram.

Yours,

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

266. LETTER TO M. A. JINNAH

‘DILKHUSHA’, PANCHGANI,
July 17, 1944

Bhai Jinnah,

There was a time when I was able to persuade you to speak in our mother tongue. Today I venture to write in the same. I had already invited you while I was in jail. After my release I have not written to you so far. But today I am prompted to do so. Let us meet when you wish to. Please do not regard me as an enemy of Islam and the Muslims here. I have always been a friend and servant of yours and of the whole world. Do not dismiss me. I am enclosing a translation of this letter in Urdu.2

Your brother,

Gandhi

[PS.] Please write in Urdu. Kanu3 writes Gujarati in a beautiful hand. 4

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal. Also Hitavada, 1-8-1944

1 Vide “Letter to M. A. Jinnah”, 4-5-1943.
2 This sentence is reproduced from Hitavada. What follows is in Gandhiji’s hand at the bottom of the Urdu translation of the letter.
3 To whom Gandhiji, presumably, dictated
4 The addressee’s reply of July 24, inter alia, read: “I shall be glad to receive you at my house in Bombay on my return which will probably be about the middle of August. . . . I would like to say nothing more till we meet. I am very pleased to read in the Press that you are making very good progress, and I hope you will soon be all right.”
267. LETTER TO MANU GANDHI

PANCHGANI,
July 17, 1944

CHI. MANUDI,

You must overcome your dislike of milk. You should cheerfully take as much as the vaidya wants you to. After having stayed with me, how can you have likes and dislikes? What one should eat, one must like, and what one must not eat, one must not like. If Yukti gets well completely, my faith in vaidyas will be deepened. And, if your vision improves as also your malaria and other complaints are cured, then you may send medicine for me.

Your handwriting is improving but it requires a lot of further improvement still. Sushilabehn has left for Delhi. It will, therefore, be some time before you get her letters again.

I am glad that Devdas paid a visit there.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./XXIV

268. LETTER TO K. M. MUNSHI

PANCHGANI,
July 17, 1944

BHAJ MUNSHI,

I have your letter. I see no harm in starting a society. However ask Sir Purushottamdas. Consult Mangaldas¹ and Mavalankar also.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: C.W. 7678. Courtesy: K. M. Munshi

¹Mangaldas Pakvasa
269. LETTER TO SHANTIKUMAR N. MORARJEE

PANCHGANI,
July 17, 1944

CHI. SHANTIKUMAR,

Read the accompanying letter. If such a man can be accommodated in any capacity, please make use of him. I think he is trustworthy. You need not create a special job for him. The letter may be used only if you think that such a man can be of real use somewhere. Do you have in mind any shorthand writer? The Hindi speeches may be published and sold by the Maharashtra Committee.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 4802. Courtesy: Shantikumar N. Morarjee

270. LETTER TO B. G. KHER

PANCHGANI
July 17, 1944

Bhai Kher,

Why did you run away without calling on me? Do come when you are free and I will forgive you this lapse. Send me yours and other people’s opinion about what I am doing.

Blessings from
BAPU

Shri Bala Saheb Kher
Ex-Minister
Khar, Bombay

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 2769
271. LETTER TO NAGESH V. GUNAJI

PANCHGANI,
July 17, 1944

Bhai Gunaji,

If you cannot read, Indu will read out this to you. Why should we write to one another in English?

It is good that you have had a change of heart about Indu and Bhai Tendulkar. After Doctor’s release, I shall have the marriage solemnized at Sevagram, if you all wish it. Indu knows the conditions attending weddings at Sevagram.

Blessings from

BAPU

BELGAUM

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

272. MESSAGE TO BENGAL PROVINCIAL STUDENTS’ FEDERATION—II

Not for publication

PANCHGANI,
July 17, 1944

My blessings you have in abundance for all the good work you may have done. My advice to all the workers is that they should learn to regard all good service as in itself a blessing. What is the use of blessings of any man, however great he may be, if there is no real, sustained work? Blessings often deceive receivers into believing that

1 Nagesh Vasudev Gunaji
2 Indumati, addressee’s daughter, and Dr. A. G. Tendulkar who were married on August 19, 1945.
3 The message was given to Ajit Rai and Arun Das Gupta who stated: “On the 17th, Mahatmajee gave us another interview. We told him that we worked in Assam according to our understanding of the Congress programme. We had called for unity to resist the Japanese, to fight hoarders, to secure food for the people and for relief to Bengal. In response to our request for his blessings, Gandhiji wrote out a message...” Vide also “Message to Bengal Provincial Students’ Federation—I”, 14-7-1944.
their work is finished. Let these words be an incentive to greater effort. You should keep me in touch with your activities.

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal. Also The Bombay Chronicle, 21-7-1944

273. MESSAGE TO AJIT RAI AND ARVIND DAS GUPTA

PANCHGANI,
July 17, 1944

My blessings you have in abundance for all the good work you may have done. My advice to all the workers is that they should learn to regard all good service as in itself a blessing. What is the use of blessings of any man however great he may be if there is no real sustained work. Blessings often deceive receivers into believing that their work is finished. Let these words be an incentive to greater effort. You should keep me in touch with your activities.

M. K. GANDHI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

274. LETTER TO A. KALESWARA RAO

PANCHGANI,
July 18, 1944

DEAR KALESWARA RAO,

Your illuminating note I have read with eagerness. May I make use of it in my talks or correspondence with Communists?¹ Some of the things you relate are painful. You will give me your reaction to my latest exploit. Your exploitation² of selections from the ¹ Gandhiji did make use of it in his correspondence with P. C. Joshi; vide “Letter to P. C. Joshi”, 30-7-1944.

² In Reminiscences of Gandhiji, p. 141, Chandrashanker Shukla explains that the addressee, in his letter, had quoted some passages from the Upanishads corresponding to Gandhi’s teachings of truth and non-violence. The addressee also published Upanishad Pathamala during the year.
Upanishads lies in front of me to be picked when I have a few moments.

Yours,

BAPU

SHRI A. KALESWARA RAO

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

275. LETTER TO SUDHIR GHOSH

‘DILKHUSHA’, PANCHGANI,

July 18, 1944

DEAR SUDHIR,

I have seen your letter to Pyarelal and Nargisbehn¹ too. Do come whenever you have the time and wish to see me. Mr. Elmhirst² I know. I think I had the pleasure of meeting him once. He visited Sabarmati Ashram when I was not there and then he expressed the opinion that the babul plantation there was the best conceived and most useful. Apart from any other interest I would like to meet him, if he would come and is allowed to come to me.

Panchgani may be too early. I expect to be in Sevagram, Deo volente, in the early part of August. You will have the date from the Press.

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Nargis Captain

² Leonard Elmhirst, an agricultural economist and an educationist, who was a close associate of Rabindranath Tagore, and Agricultural Adviser to the Government of Bengal from 1944. He founded Sriniketain, the Rural Development Institute of Santiniketan. Elmhirst was returning to England after completing an assignment “to work out a development plan for harnessing the water resources of Bengal”. In Gandhi’s Emissary, pp. 49-50, the addressee explains: “...I thought it would be a good thing if he had a meeting with Gandhiji and conveyed to his friends in the British Government...his impression of the state of Gandhiji’s mind and the possibilities of a rapprochement between Gandhiji and the British. The two sessions he and I had with Gandhiji did not give much of an indication about the possible course of Gandhiji’s next political move...”
DEAR WALKER,

I was delighted to receive your letter. I had your booklet also. I glanced through it. Nothing jarred on me. I must confess, I did not read it critically; but I am asking Pyarelal and Khurshed Naoroji to read it carefully and to send you their reactions. I shall look forward to reading your second compilation.

As to the last paragraph—all I can say is that I am endeavouring to follow God’s guidance. I do not believe in a personal deity, but I believe in the Eternal Law of Truth and Love which I have translated as non-violence. This Law is not a dead thing like the law of a king. It is a living thing—the Law and the Law-giver are one. For those who realize this Truth, the Law-giver becomes a personal deity.

ROY WALKER, ESQ.
DICK SHEPPARD HOUSE
ENDSLEIGH STREET
LONDON W. C. I

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Dated May 10, 1944, it requested Gandhiji to comment on The Wisdom of Gandhi in His own Words, a selection of Gandhiji’s sayings, published by the addressee in 1943.

3 Which read: “It is with a feeling akin to triumph that those of us who are pacifists in a war-torn Europe hear of your return to physical liberty, for spiritual liberty cannot be limited by any action of the India Office. We pray that you may, for many years to come, continue to be one of the greatest forces for good in the world.”
DEAR DR. SHYAMA PRASAD,

It was a pleasure to receive your letter of 10th in appreciation of my correspondence with Government. This however I write not merely to acknowledge your letter, but to complain about the opinion you have expressed on Rajaji’s formula on the communal tangle. I had heard that you were in sympathy with the formula if you had not fully endorsed it. Be that as it may I should have thought that regard being had to the relations between us and also yourself and Rajaji, you would have come and discussed the pros and cons before publishing your views. I suppose it is common cause between us that the problem should be solved, the earlier the better. If you have the time and are so minded, we can still discuss the question.¹ I expect Rajaji will be with me at Sevagram which D[eo] V[olente]² I expect to reach early in August.

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

CHI. MIRA,

Your best and descriptive letter is before me. Devdas described your grief over my reverting to your original name. I have capitulated. I am having rich experiences of life. I am learning every day. I must not cause dear ones grief when it is avoidable. This was and is avoidable. I know you forgave me long ago. But it is good to ask for forgiveness.

My love never suffered any diminution. My fears about you have not left me. I know you have given me your assurances. But I

¹ Vide “Interview to Shyama Prasad Mookerjee”, 5-8-1944.
² God willing must inform you of my doubts if I have any. I like your choice of trustees. Panditji is a tower of [a] trustee. Kanaiyalal is a good soul. Devdas is a sound businessman and naturally entertains great regard for you.

Your money causes me anxiety. I am eager to transfer the sum to you. But I cannot get the proper account. You can understand the difficulty. For donations separate accounts are never kept, so at a given moment it is a difficult process to say what the Ashram’s donations are.

That is your case when account was closed. And Narandas has nothing free. I shall overtake that difficulty. I shall take some time. But when you need the money for your adventure you have but to tell me and I shall place a sum at your disposal. Khurshedbehn is here. She is writing. You are following the papers.

Love.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library.

Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

279. LETTER TO KAMALADEVI CHATTOPADHYAYA

July 18, 1944

DEAR KAMALADEVI,

I am late answering your letter of 4th. I am glad you thoroughly realize the virtue of the wheel and the importance of the village programme. Mridula is coming here. Khurshedbehn is already with me. With two such stalwarts by my side, I am not likely to go wrong. My dream is to have India’s women to lead the world of men who have led women up to now.

Yours,

BAPU

From the original: Kamaladevi Chattopadhyaya Papers. Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library

1 Kanaiyalal Butail
280. A LETTER

‘Dilkhusha’, Panchgani,
July 18, 1944

Your wire of 11th instant was received here on 14th, but due to pressure of work on the staff that is here, it was given to me only today. Pressure on my time is answerable for the absence of the promised letter. Evidently I forgot all about the letter I had promised.

I am sorry because I know your care and affection for me. This is the treatment I am having: massage for about an hour all over the body and a hot-water bath, lying in a full length tub for about 20 minutes. This is all very soothing for me. Often before entering the tub I have hot-and-cold hip baths for five minutes each. My food, you know, milk, vegetables, fruit and gur. Between three and four, I have an earth bandage—this too, I think, you know. Clean earth is mixed with water and made into a dough. I take a similar bandage before retiring. Horrible medicine I have is bhilama. Boiled in water, strained, mixed with milk, I had it for seven days. There has been an interval of more than seven days. I propose to take it from tomorrow again for seven days.

In Poona, I had what is supposed to be a specific against hook-worm. It is called Carbon Tetrachlor Ethylene.

I am on the onward march. Dr. Jivraj Mehta is in Panchgani looking after me. Sushila whom you know was with me even in jail. I have sent her to Delhi.

The medical report is that anaemia is subsiding and probably the two enemies, hook-worm and entamoeba histolytica, are lying low, not gone altogether. I expect to go to Sevagram, Deo volente, in the early part of August. I am here at least till the end of the month.

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
281. LETTER TO MRIDULA SARABHAI

PANCHGANI,
July 18, 1944

RESPECTED MRIDULABEHN,

Your letter has been received. It was read out to Bapu. Respected Bapuji wants me to say that he has no doubt made changes in the translation but such changes will not distort or modify the meaning. Even so, if there are any doubts, somebody who comes can check. As it is, it has been sent after checking.

It does not matter if the Congress Committee is not involved. We are concerned only with propaganda. Hence, it is enough if it has been delivered at Poona. It would be good if it could be translated into other languages also. It will not be bad if it is translated into Marathi and published in newspapers. There is after all nothing in it that we should regret. It was and is an open talk. Hence, Shri Audh and you should in consultation decide how best this thing can be propagated. Bapu was pleased to know that Bharatanandji\(^1\) would be looking after correspondence with the Government.

You are free to come here whenever you choose.

Bapu is recovering slowly. Bapu gave an interview to the Press after hearing from you. You will have seen in the newspapers the views that he expressed. What is your opinion?

Regards from
KANU

From the Gujarati original : C. W. 11116. Courtesy : Sarabhai Foundation

282. LETTER TO K. B. JOSHI

‘DILKHUSHA’, PANCHGANI,
July 19, 1944

DEAR JOSHI,

I was wondering why you had not written all these days. I was inquiring about you only the other day. Vaikunthbhai\(^2\) gave me all the information in his possession. I quite agree with you that something should be done and that quickly. Fortunately Vaikunthbhai is wide awake, and I am hoping that something will be done. You will please keep in touch with me but you know our ultimate goal. We have to reach a process whereby everyone can manufacture paper in his own house just as everyone can do spinning in his own house. I know that the problem is difficult; but if we are to serve 40 crores of people, we must be able to devise some such method as I have adumbrated. If I have relaxed the original restriction, it is in order to reach that goal.

---

\(^1\) Indian name given by Gandhiji to Maurice Frydman, a Polish engineer

\(^2\) Vaikunth L. Mehta, brother of G. L. Mehta

Yours,
BAPU

SJT. K. B. JOSHI
C/O TULPULE’S BUNGALOW
1195/3 SHIVAJI NAGAR
POONA 4

From a photostat: G.N. 2761

283. LETTER TO DR. K. C. GHARPURE

PANCHGANI,
July 19, 1944

DEAR DR. GHARPURE,

I have been having dismal reports about poor Manju¹. I would esteem it a favour, if you would kindly let me know her exact condition. Dr. Jivraj Mehta being with me, he will help me to understand your report even if it is technical.

Dr. Sushila Nayyar is just now not here. I have asked her to go to Poona and be there till Manju can be discharged. She described her talk with you about the surgeon’s fees. I had thought that there would [be] no fees in a case like this. Manjula has no means of her own. Her brothers are budding artists. They can pay with difficulty. But I can understand the other side. I would have written to Dr. Peet if I was at all acquainted with him. You can show this to him, if necessary. I can well understand his needs, if he is a poor army surgeon. I have friends to fall back upon. There need be no hesitation about charging the fees. You will please send me the bill in that case. I hope Manjula’s case will end well.

¹ Sister of Navin Gandhi, vide “Letter to Navin Gandhi”, after 15-7-1944.

Yours sincerely,

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

284. A LETTER

“DILKHUSHA”

PANCHGANI,

July 19, 1944

DEAR FRIEND,

I appreciate your very frank letter. I shall return the courtesy by being equally frank.

The difference between now and August, 1942 is that at that time I had no knowledge of the response the people both pro-Congress and anti-Congress would make. Now I know the kind of response they made. The heroism, the suffering and the self-sacrifice of those who took part in the struggle are beyond praise; but weighed in the scales of Truth and Non-violence there were glaring defects in the demonstration and I can only say that India failed to reach her natural goal because of those defects. Whatever may be true of other nations I have no doubt that India can come to her own fully only by truthful and non-violent means. In the face of sabotage and the like the rulers as usual lost their heads and resorted to reprisals unheard of before. I write under correction. I have asked for an impartial tribunal for investigation of the charges against the Congress and counter-charges against the Government. Unless I am convinced to the contrary, I shall continue to believe that the mole-hill of popular violence has been shown on behalf of the Government to have been a mountain and the Himalayan violence of the authorities has been generally defended as no more than necessary for the occasion. I must, therefore, refuse to judge popular action by the foot-rule of Truth and Non-violence unless I can apply the same measure for the

1 The addressee in his reply dated July 28, 1944, said: “The operation on Miss Manju has been a complete failure. The facial graft that was introduced has sloughed away and as such Miss Manju is no better or worse after the operation. This sometimes happens in grafts. They either take or don’t take. The grafting can, however be repeated after six months.”
Governmental action. This is one difference.

The second difference is the terrible and progressive starvation of the people. Whether it is due to the wrath of God or the incompetence of the rulers or the universal pressure of the War is not relevant to the elucidation of my reply.

I hold that these two causes mark a decisive difference between now and 1942. I would be unworthy of my creed if I failed to make use of all the resources of head and heart that God has vouchsafed to me for discovering a solution of the deadlock. What is that solution submitted by me? It is nothing less than the present declaration of freedom of India, limited during the War period by the exigencies of the War. This limitation you know. If that offer is accepted then I would be criminally guilty if I did not advise the Congress to accept it. If my proposal reaches full fruition, what is today a war of brute strength against brute strength would be turned into a war for the liberation of the exploited people of the world. Then it would be a war between predominantly moral strength plus minimum of brute strength matched against pure brute strength which is being used for the exploitation of China and the weaker states of Europe. I hope you will now agree with me that my move is not one of political expendiency but a necessary corollary of the creed which I cherish dearer than life. If you have further difficulty about understanding my position, please write again.

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

285. LETTER TO SWAMI ANAND

July 19, 1944

Bhai Swami,

I have your letter and also Vaikunthbhai’s. This time I am including my reply to him in your letter. I have to cope with the mail. We are not bent on securing importance, are we? On my part I would suggest that all three of you should continue,¹ which would be better than the best.² If, however, Bapa cannot accept you as you are, you should move out of his clutches. You should manage without...

¹ As trustees of Kasturba Gandhi National Memorial Trust
² Literally: “sweeter than jaggery”
tendering your resignation, if you can. What I mean is that we would have fulfilled our duty, if we earned a good name for the activity.

Please write to Nanabhai that he should carry on the work. I am corresponding with Bhai Anantrai.\footnote{Vide “Letter to Anantrai P. Pattani”, 15-7-1944.} His response has been good enough. I expect everything will get along smoothly. Please send me a copy of the decision given by Bapa so that I can guide you. You may come over whenever you are confronted with a problem.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

286. LETTER TO ANAND T. HINGORANI

PANCHGANI,
July 19, 1944

CHI. ANAND,

Got your letter only today. Vidya was a very virtuous woman. She had a golden heart and a keen urge for sacrifice. Her love was as vast as the ocean. You have to live up to her expectations.

I hope to go to Sevagram in August.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a microfilm of the Hindi. Courtesy: National Archives of India and Anand T. Hingorani

287. LETTER TO R. R. DIWAKAR

PANCHGANI,
July 19, 1944

BHAI DIWAKAR,

I have not been able to read the entire material. You already know my views:\footnote{About secret and underground activities, vide ”Discussion with a Friend”, after 6-5-1944 and “Letter to R. R. Diwakar”, 18-5-1944; also Appendix “Discussion with Underground Workers”, before 2-6-1944.} I would like all to court imprisonment on or before the 9th\footnote{Of August, the second anniversary day of “Quit India” movement} while doing something or other. But that something should be a normal activity of the Congress, not satyagraha. Do you get the difference?

_Blessings from_
_BAPU_

[PS.]
I am disgusted at our people writing in English.

From a facsimile of the Hindi: _Mahatma_, Vol. VI, between pp. 336 and 337

288. INTERVIEW TO THE PRESS

PANCHGANI,
July 19, 1944

I am glad you have put the question exactly as you have seen it in the critical Press. I confess that I am not able to go through all Press criticisms and, therefore, I find myself at a disadvantage. Your question, therefore, is doubly helpful to me. Let me remind critics at the outset that publicity of the interview¹ (to Mr. Stuart Gelder of the _News Chronicle_) was not of my seeking. As I have already remarked², it was meant for the powers that be. I ask for a dispassionate examination of my proposals on their merits. I should not mind a climb down, if it resulted in the attainment of Indian independence. I may say that the favourable war situation had nothing to do with my proposal, if only for the simple reason that in the flush of approaching victory, my proposal was not likely even to receive a hearing. But as a lover of peace, not merely in India, but peace among all mankind, I could not but make a proposal for what it is worth. After all, there is such a thing as world opinion, apart from the opinion of authorities.

A united, enlightened, powerful opinion of the world is bound to affect those who are today wielding what appears to be absolute power in waging the war, and experience has taught me that one should not be afraid of being misunderstood or of rejection of one’s

¹The report said: “A journalist suggested to Gandhiji that it had been said by a large section of the overseas Press that he (Gandhiji) had revised his attitude because of the favourable war situation and also because the Congress suffered ‘a heavy defeat’ and that his latest stand was considered as ‘a climb down’.”
²_Vide_ “Interview to Stuart Gelder”, 4-7-1944 and 4/6-7-1944.
³_Vide_ “Statement to the Press”, 12-7-1944 and “Interview to the Press”, 13-7-1944.
proposal, if it is sound in itself.

The heavy defeat of the Congress I do not feel at all. I have not a shadow of doubt that this passage through fire and suffering by thousands of Congressmen and Congress sympathizers has raised the status of India and the strength of the people. Throughout all my long public life I have not experienced a sense of defeat, heavy or otherwise. I know many Congressmen are labouring under a sense of frustration. Poor men, they do not know the value of self-suffering. But even that frustration is only momentary. Victory, that is, independence of India as a whole, is a certainty. That it may not come in my lifetime is a matter of indifference to me. I can but work for it till the end of my life. Victory will come when God wills it.

Only today I wrote to a friend who wanted to know the difference between now and August 1942. From it I quote relevant sentences. I have said the difference between now and August 1942 is that at that time I had no knowledge of the response the people, both pro-Congress and anti-Congress, would make. Now I know the kind of response they made. The heroism, suffering and self-sacrifice of those who took part in this struggle are beyond praise, but weighed in the scale of truth and non-violence there are glaring defects in the popular demonstration. And I can only say that India failed to reach her natural goal at the time because of these defects. Whatever may be true of other nations, I have no doubt that India can come to her own fully by truth and non-violent means. In the face of sabotage and the like, rulers have as usual lost their heads and resorted to reprisals unheard of before. I write this under correction. I have asked\textsuperscript{1} for an impartial tribunal for the investigation of charges against the Congress and my counter-charges against the Government. Unless I am convinced to the contrary, I shall continue to believe that the molehill of popular violence has been shown on behalf of Government to have been a mountain and the Himalayan violence of the authorities has been generally defended as no more than necessary for the occasion. I must, therefore, refuse to judge popular action by the footrule of truth and non-violence unless I can apply the same measure for Government action. This is one difference. The second difference is the terrible progressive starvation of the people. Whether it is due to wrath of God or incompetence of the rulers or universal pressure of war, is not relevant to the elucidation of my reply. I hold that these two causes mark decisive differences between now and August 1942. I would be unworthy of my creed, if I failed to make use of all the resources of head and heart that God has vouchsafed to me for discovering a solution of the deadlock. What that solution is, is submitted by me. It is nothing less than the present declaration of freedom of India, limited during the war period by the exigencies of the war. This limitation you know. If the offer is accepted, then I would be criminally guilty if I did not advise the Congress to accept it.

\textsuperscript{1}Vide “Letter to Additional Secretary, Home Department, Government of India”, 15-7-1943 and 26-10-1943.

If my proposal reaches full fruition, what is today a war of brute strength would be turned into a war for the liberation of the exploited peoples of the world. Then it would be a war between predominantly moral strength plus the minimum of brute strength matched against pure brute strength which is being used for the exploitation of China and the weaker States of Europe.

Rajaji’s offer has seen the light of day only now, but I had personally subscribed to it when I was fasting in prison camp. It is now sixteen months old. For the rest of the offer, I must carry out the contract between Rajaji and myself. He is to bear the brunt of all criticism that might be made about that offer.

Finally I would say to my critics to enter with me into the sufferings not only of the people of India but of those, whether engaged in the war or not of the whole world. I cannot look at this butchery going on in the world with indifference. I have an unchangeable faith that it is beneath the dignity of men to resort to mutual slaughter. I have no doubt that there is a way out. I am vain enough to think that my malaria was a godsend, and He used Government as His instrument for discharging me.

I should be never reconciled to myself if, for fear of hostile criticism or wrath of impatient Congressmen or even possible displeasure of members of the Working Committee, I did not express personal opinion, the acceptance of which, I hold, must result in bringing peace to the world, even out of the present turmoil.

The Hindu, 22-7-1944

1 Vide “Interview to Stuart Gelder”, 4/6-7-2944 and “Interview to the Press”, 14-7-1944.

2 Vide Appendix “C. Rajagopalachari’s Formula”, before 5-8-1942.

3 The Bombay Chronicle, 20-7-1944, reported: “Gandhiji made it clear that those who attributed motives to him did not touch him—it was like water on duck’s back. He started the conference by saying: ‘I am empty-headed’ and ended by saying: ‘I hope I have given enough food’, and the Press agreed, ‘he had’.”
289. TELEGRAM TO STUART GELDER

Express
July 20, 1944

GELDER
CARE FRANK MORAES
GREENFIELDS, CHURCHGATE RECLAMATION
BOMBAY

RECEIVED BOTH WIRES. READ YESTERDAY’S PRESS INTERVIEW.¹
WIRE IF FURTHER CLARIFICATION NECESSARY. WILL IMMEDIATELY
ATTEND CLIFF’S² QUESTION WHEN RECEIVED. HOPE YOU WILL SOON BE WELL.

GANDHI

² From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

290. LETTER TO AMIYA CHAKRAVARTY

PANCHGANI,
July 20, 1944

DEAR AMIYA,

I was delighted to receive your letter. Death leaves no family without His toll. Why should we not treat His messengers as friends and pay the toll with a willing heart? I had to make His acquaintance when I was quite a youth and I learnt to regard Death as a welcome deliverance whether it is a suckling baby or one in prime of life like your brother or an elderly person. I long ago ceased to regard as affliction or punishment the so-called misfortunes. On my return to India I think it was Kakasaheb who recited a verse and reminded me that I was presenting no new thought when I expounded the view just mentioned. From that time onward we have recited at the morning prayer the following verse³:

foinks uSo foin % lainks u So lain%Afoin~ foLej.kKa fo".kks%

¹ Vide the preceding item.
² Norman Cliff of the News Chronicle, London; vide also “Cable to News Chronicle”, 23-7-1944.
³ Meaning: That which goes by the name of adversity is not such; nor is that prosperity which goes by that name. To forget God is adversity, ever to think of Him is prosperity, Vide “Ashram Bhajanavali” subitem 16, 20-12-1930.
Hence the puzzle that taxes the philosophers of the West and the East has no worry for me. I know this arises from my ignorance of writings on philosophy. I console myself with the thought that my ignorance is bliss if it promotes my peace of mind. This is my contribution towards assuaging your grief and my answer to the question propounded by you.

The second question is simple. Of course, there must be organized resistance to organized evil. The difficulty arises when the organizers of satyagraha try to imitate the organizers of evil. I tried and failed hopelessly. The way of organizing forces of good must be opposite to the evil way. What it exactly is I do not yet know fully. I feel that it lies through perfection, as far as may be, of individuals. It then acts as the leaven raising the whole mass. But I am still groping.

I hope I have given you sufficient food for thought for the time being. More when we meet. I hope to be in Sevagram in the beginning of August. Gurudev was an institution. We must feel the loss.

Love.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

291. LETTER TO HARIBHAU JOSHI

PANCHGANI,
July 20, 1944

DEAR JOSHI,

I am very sorry to learn about Acharya Javadekar’s indisposition. I hope he will soon recover.

I remember Shripad well. He is brave and will go through the mill cheerfully. Please give him my love when you next meet him. If you represent Rajaji correctly, the version is only true so far as it goes. But I will forbear and wait till we meet. Your questions are interesting. I have promised to meet you in Panchgani even if the others cannot join you. Therefore I shall conserve my limited energy till the time of our meeting. But, if you do not mind, I would fix the date of our meeting towards the end of the month. I am not gaining as much as I had expected. Do you mind the delay? I suggest 25th instant at 4 p.m., i.e., if I am here till then. If the place does not finally suit me, I shall have to pass the rest of the month in Poona.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. Gandhi

From a copy: C.W. 934. Courtesy: Haribhau Joshi

292. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

PANCHGANI,
July 20, 1944

CHI. MUNNALAL,

Today I read your letter and application carefully through. The work you are doing is very good. Keep it up. Regard it a sin to fall ill. Please do not minimize the seriousness of that sin because I too have committed it. Holding a belief is one thing and putting it into practice quite another. Let nobody get infected by my shortcomings. Let what is good in me infect people freely. Sadhana can infect us in this sense.

Why is Kanchan silent? Tell her to write regularly.

The time is drawing nearer for my arrival in Sevagram.

Bhai Patil is a gentleman. I intend to write a note to him.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 8471. Also C.W. 7176. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

293. LETTER TO BHANUSHANKAR

PANCHGANI,
July 20, 1944

Bhai BHANUSHANKAR,

I have both your letters. I have just been able to finish reading the second long one. You could have abridged both the letters and at the same time conveyed more. I do not say this by way of criticism. I see this defect in many writers. I have just pointed it out so that you may try and learn brevity in writing.

What you have written is all right. But it is a half truth. This does not mean that you have anywhere tried to hide the truth. I have no doubt that you have written what you believe to be the whole truth.
But I who know the other side see but half truth in your letter. Just think over this: If we give up all those whom you have criticized, who will be left to work in the Congress? You and I? As a matter of fact you alone can work because I sit with those whom you have criticized.
What then is my value? I do not write this to criticize you but to show the defect in your argument. We have to work with the best possible people available. Since we are imperfect ourselves we can make progress only by putting up with imperfect co-workers. Though there is some truth in your criticism, the world has seen the strength of the Congress. That proves that on the whole the achievement of the Congress is not bad. I shall write no more just now. Think over this and, if you still do not see your way, write to me. The world is good, if we are good. Let others do nothing or do something wrong. You go on with your own proper work. There is no time to sit idle.

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

294. LETTER TO R. R. DIWAKAR

PANCHGANI,
July 20, 1944

BHAII DIWAKAR,

I wrote to you yesterday.¹ Pundalik² is still here, hence the second letter. This shows how these things occupy my thoughts. I think those who are underground should discover themselves and then do whatever they like. It would be better if no militant step is taken as long as I am out.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a facsimile of the Hindi: Mahatma, Vol. VI, between pp. 336 and 337

¹ Vide “Letter to R. R. Diwakar”, 19-7-1944
² Pundalik Katagade.
ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

PANCHGANI,
July 20, 1944

QUESTION

1. Do you agree with inferences being drawn in London following the publication of your interview\(^1\) that you favour full entry of free Indian government into war against Japan?

ANSWER: Yes.

2. Regarding Pakistan there is a tendency here to interpret your last contact with Mr. Jinnah as indicating your acceptance of Pakistan. Is this so?

Mr. Rajagopalachari’s Formula\(^3\) indicates my way of meeting the communal difficulty. I am indifferent whether it is called Pakistan or not.

3. In the event of free Indian government taking control of finance, what policy will you advise regarding Anglo-American capital interest in India?

My advice would be to respect Anglo-American capital interest, which, in the absence of agreement, is not considered by an impartial tribunal inconsistent with Indian national interests.

4. Will you outline your conception of the role of a free India in the post-war world with special relationship to the peoples of the British Commonwealth and the United States of America?

If I have any say in post-war policy, the free national government of India will promote a Commonwealth of all world States naturally including British Commonwealth and America and also, if possible, belligerent States so as to reduce to the minimum the possibility of armed conflict between different States.

The Bombay Chronicle, 22-7-1944

\(^1\)The report said that the questions were cabled to Gandhiji from London, on July 18, by Cavalcade, a British news magazine, which claimed that it had “consistently supported the cause of Indian freedom, and added that it was advised by Mr. Pulin Seal, Chairman of the Executive Committee of Indian Congressmen in London, to ask if Gandhiji would give for publication his answers to four questions”. According to the report, Gandhiji “handed over copies of” the questions and answers to the Press on July 21 when he gave a statement; vide the following item.

\(^2\)Vide “Interview to Stuart Gelder”, 4-7-1944 and 4/6-7-1944.

\(^3\)Vide Appendix “C. Rajagopalachari’s Formula”, before 5-8-1942.
296. STATEMENT TO THE PRESS

PANCHGANI,
July 21, 1944

I have answered the question as a confirmed war resister; and if I became a party to the August resolution and I now suggest what I consider to be a perfectly honourable solution, it is because thereby I expect to promote the war-resistance effort. I dream of a world where there will be no strife between nations and nations. It is possible only if Great Britain, America and Russia contemplate such world peace. I deliberately omit China for, unfortunately China is not able like Russia, Britain or America to stand alone, though much bigger than all these three powerful nations and more ancient.

China is still menaced by Japan and needs all the assistance that she can get before she can rise to her full height.

I see no chance for the groaning world, unless the three States now demonstrate to the world that they have one mind, that they are not putting forth the effort they are doing for any selfish design, but that they are truly fighting for all democracies on the face of the earth.

My proposal is an acid test, and I have no shadow of doubt that its hearty acceptance by Britain will immediately turn the scales and ensure the defeat of the belligerent powers and fill exploited nations of the earth with hope. You see that I am, therefore, fighting for no small stake.2

The Bombay Chronicle, 22-7-1944

1 The reference is to the fourth question of the preceding item.
2 The report concluded: “Gandhiji invited questions and the Pressmen fired out a few questions and when they stumbled and seemed to get stuck up, Gandhiji smiled and said that he would lead them on. He could put even mischievous questions, he said, but thought that was not the proper time for it.”
297. LETTER TO DWARKADAS SHAH

PANCHGANI,
July 21, 1944

BHAI DWARKADAS SHAH,

I have your letter. An organization which has only Hindu members can hardly be called a national organization. Moreover, those who believe that independence can be achieved through non-violence, should from today eschew any training based on violence. I myself do not know what will happen after the attainment of independence and therefore believe that that may be true in the case of others too. I feel that this should clear your doubts.

Blessings from
BAPU

From the Gujarati original : Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy : Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

298. INTERVIEW TO THE UNITED PRESS OF INDIA

PANCHGANI,
July 22, 1944

I am not afraid of the word ‘diarchy’. The arrangement proposed seems to me to be as natural as the present is unnatural. If Allied operations have to continue with India as the base, as they must, my proposal is that they are only feasible and consistent with immediate declaration of India’s independence. But I heartily agree that there must be mutual trust. If it cannot be established, my proposal is valueless. The winter of mutual distrust among the Boers and Britons was overnight turned into a summer of mutual trust after the sanguinary Boer War. In our case, when the victory becomes a mutual interest, mutual trust follows as a matter of course.

The Bombay Chronicle, 23-7-1944

1 The report said that a special representative of the United Press of India “sought elucidation from Gandhiji on the points raised by the British Press, specially the Delhi correspondent of the London Times, on Gandhiji’s proposals that military control shall be in the hands of the Viceroy and the Commander-in-Chief”.

2 The Times correspondent had remarked: “What is proposed in fact is a kind of diarchy in the military field which would be practicable only on the assumption that there is complete identity of aims and; mutual trust, and past events have done nothing to create these.”
299. CABLE TO NORMAN CLIFF

PANCHGANI,
July 23, 1944

NORMAN CLIFF
FOREIGN EDITOR
“NEWS CHRONICLE”
LONDON

YOUR CABLE. I SHARE FULLY BRITISH SORROWS AND SUFFERINGS. MY ONLY EXCUSE FOR INTERVENING IS THAT MY PROPOSALS ARE AS MUCH IN THE INTERESTS OF BRITAIN AS OF INDIA AND I WANT THE POOREST IN INDIA SO FAR AS THEY ARE INFLUENCED BY CONGRESS TO BE ACTIVELY IDENTIFIED WITH THOSE SUFFERINGS. ANSWER FIRST QUESTION. “RAJAGOPALACHARI’S PROPOSAL ALREADY SUBMITTED PUBLICLY MUSLIM LEAGUE PRESIDENT WITH MY APPROVAL. PUBLIC BODIES ALREADY DISCUSSING FREELY EXPRESSING OPINION.” ANSWER TO TWO “NO QUESTION WHATEVER OF MASS STRUGGLE NATIONAL GOVERNMENT FORMED AFTER MANNER PROPOSED BY ME. ASSUMING GOVERNMENT AND CONGRESS ACCEPT PROPOSAL, IT PRESUPPOSES HEARTY CO-OPERATION WAR EFFORT WITHOUT INCURRING FINANCIAL LIABILITY.” ANSWER TO THREE. “YOU SHOULD KNOW I CEASED TO BE MEMBER CONGRESS IN NINETEEN-THIRTY-FOUR BUT CONGRESS CONSTITUTION DEFINITELY PLEDGES CONGRESS TO NON-VIOLENCE.” ANSWER TO FOUR. “AUGUST RESOLUTION IS NOBLE DECLARATION OF WHICH I AM PROUD. HOPE CONGRESS WILL NEVER SUPERSEDE IT. CLAUSE RELATING TO SANCTION HAS CAUSED OFFENCE. I HAVE SAID IT WAS NEVER PUT INTO OPERATION BY ME AND AT THIS STAGE I CANNOT DO SO EVEN IF MY POWER IS REVIVED AFTER MY DISCHARGE. IF GOVERNMENT DESIRE CONGRESS CO-OPERATION MY PROPOSAL HONOURABLE BOTH PARTIES AND PROVIDES FOR ALL THAT GOVERNMENT CAN POSSIBLY WANT.” END MESSAGE.

GANDHI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library.
Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

1 An extract from this has been reproduced in “Cable to News Chronicle”, 23-7-1944.
DEAR FRIEND,

In terms of your last telegram Gandhiji has asked me to send you his replies to Mr. Norman Cliff’s questions for transmission to the News Chronicle instead of writing them direct to London. I am enclosing too herewith a copy of Mr. Cliff’s wire to Gandhiji, although I now understand that you have received the same also from Mr. Cliff himself. Gandhiji desires me to say that he would like his replies to be sent without any alteration or addition. You may, however, add your comment for purposes of elucidation, if you find it necessary.

Gandhiji hopes that you are now on the road to recovery.

Yours sincerely,

PYARELAL

STUART GELDER, ESQ.
C/o FRANK MORAES, ESQ.
“GREEN FIELDS”
CHURCHGATE RECLAMATION
BOMBAY

From a copy : Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library.
Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

DEAR MOHAN¹,

Do come with your friend at 4 p.m. on 28th instant. Your friend may take two snap-shots without any notice to me.

¹ Son of Dr. P. Subbaroyan
I am glad Joshi wants my reply. I have not been idle. I hope to be able to send a reply\(^1\) at an early date.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

M. KUMARAMANGALAM SUBBAROYAN
COMMUNIST PARTY
190 B KHETWADI MAIN ROAD
BOMBAY 4

302. LETTER TO AMTUSSALAAM

PANCHGANI,
July 23, 1944

DAUGHTER AMTUL SALAAM,

I have your letters. I no longer have the strength to give orders. I would only advise you to do what you think best. Whenever you wish to come to the Ashram for treatment, you may do so. Serve wherever you like. I do not know what work to take from you. It is my nature to be content with whatever service people give. Those who are content to stay in the Ashram may do so. Those who think they can do better service elsewhere may work outside.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 480

303. LETTER TO MATHURADAS TRIKUMJI

July 23, 1944

Do not get in the least impatient. Observe with detachment whatever happens. . . . Doctors have examined me. There has been good improvement. The climate has agreed with me. But I do not wish to stay on much longer now. Nor is it necessary to do so. I am pining to return to Sevagram.

[From Gujarati]
Bapuni Prasadi, pp. 201-2

\(^1\) Vide “Letter to P. C. Joshi”. 30-7-1944.
304. INTERVIEW TO THE PRESS

PANCHGANI,
July 23, 1944

The Sind Home Minister¹, in defending the forcible prevention of a member of the Sind Legislative Assembly from exercising his right of attending the Assembly meeting, is reported to have said: “Our information is that, since the release of Mahatma Gandhi, the subversive movement had been restarted throughout India and that leading personalities behind that movement were again trying to direct it.” He referred in this connection to the escape from Karachi jail of three under-trial prisoners concerned in the Marriot Road dacoity case and said, “this is all in pursuance of the policy of reviving the movement.”

All the information that I have gathered since my discharge is absolutely contrary to the statement alleged to have been made by the Sind Home Minister. May it be that he is badly served by his informants? Is it not his duty to supply the public with details of the information in his possession? Who are the leading personalities, and what is the subversive movement?

If there is any connection between the escape from Karachi jail of the under-trial prisoners and the supposed revival of the so-called subversive movement, the least that is necessary is to mention these names and show the connection.

I would not have taken notice of the Sind Home Minister’s statement but for the fact that it is likely to be used by enemies of India’s freedom to frustrate the efforts that I am making for the cause of independence. I am sure the Sind Home Minister is as anxious as I am for India’s freedom, attained through peaceful means.

I may add, too, that throughout this anxious period my attempt has been, through the Press and in my talks with Congressmen and others, to show that I am opposed unequivocally to sabotage and the like. I have also stated in explicit terms that I never have had an opportunity of starting civil disobedience and that the authority vested in me by the A.I.C.C. expired on my imprisonment, and could not automatically be revived by my discharge on grounds of ill-health.

¹ Haji Muhammad Hashim Gazdar
Therefore assuming that civil disobedience is described as subversive movement, which I deny, even that cannot be offered by anybody on behalf of Congress.

But I have said at the same time that normal Congress activities of a purely peaceful nature must be carried on even if restrictions are imposed upon them. It is up to the authorities, therefore, if they are at all inclined to respond to my advice, not to interfere with such activities as were permissible, say, before August 1942, such as, for instance, monthly flag demonstration, public meetings and the like.

_The Bombay Chronicle, 24-7-1944_

305. INTRODUCTION TO “DRAFT INSTRUCTION FOR CIVIL RESISTERS”

PANCHGANI, July 24, 1944

The following is the literal translation of draft instructions for the guidance of civil resisters. The draft was in Hindustani and copies were prepared in both Devanagari and Persian scripts. It was prepared on 7th August, 1942, and was placed before the Working Committee and discussed on the 8th of August. The Working Committee was again to have met on the morning of the 9th August. But that was not to be.

I was to put before the Working Committee my view of the negotiations which I was to carry on with the Government. They were to cover a period of at least three weeks. The instructions were to see the light of day only on failure of the contemplated negotiations.

The object of publishing the draft at present is twofold. It shows how my mind was running at the time. The draft is an additional answer to the adverse suggestions made in the Government indictment about my non-violence. The second and more relevant object is to let Congress workers know how I would have acted at the time.

I have come to know that my name was freely used to justify acts of sabotage and the like. I would like every Congressman and for that matter every Indian to feel that on him and her lies the responsibility of freeing India from the incubus of foreign rule. Non-violent suffering is the only way. Freedom of India means

---

1 _Vide “Draft Instructions for Civil Resisters”, 4-8-1942._
everything for us but it means also much for the world. For, freedom won through non-violence will mean the inauguration of a new order in the world.

There is no hope for mankind in any other way.

M. K. GANDHI

_Gandhiji’s Correspondence with the Government_, pp. 285-6

306. TELEGRAM TO MANORANJAN CHAUDHARY

PANCHGANI,

_July 24, 1944_

MANORANJAN CARE NIRMAL BHATTACHARJI
RUSTOM MANSION
ADENWALLA ROAD, MATUNGA
BOMBAY
WELCOME TWENTY-SEVENTH FOUR AFTERNOON.²

GANDHI

From a copy: C.W. 10514

307. LETTER TO MIRABEHN

PANCHGANI,

_July 24, 1944_

CHI. MIRA,

I have your letter. Without yet having any definite statement from Narandas. I have already arranged for transfer to Devdas of Rs. 25,000/- to be placed at your disposal. You are not likely to want more at once. I hope to transfer more as soon as I hear from Rajkot.

I got rid of the cold long ago. The weather here has agreed with me. Manilal and his daughter Sita are with me. We leave here for Sevagram on 3rd or 4th.

Love.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library.
Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

¹ Of the Bengal Hindu Sabha
² Vide also “Letter to P. C. Joshi”, 30-7-1944.
308. LETTER TO AMRITLAL T. NANAVATI

PANCHGANI,
July 24, 1944

CHI. AMRITLAL,

May you live long and render plenty of service. My blessings to both the sisters.

I had read the pamphlets. I shall go through the new ones too.

I will start for Wardha on the 2nd of August.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI AMRITLAL NANAVATI
64 A/B 4TH FLOOR, PANNALAL TERRACE
GRANT ROAD
BOMBAY

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10803

309. LETTER TO PREMA KANTAK

PANCHGANI,
July 24, 1944

CHI. PREMA,

Sushila has left for Delhi. I shall start on the 2nd of August and go direct to Wardha. I do not know whether I will go via Bombay or Kalyan. You may come along with me, or come afterwards whenever you wish to. I am all right.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10431. Also C.W. 6870. Courtesy: Prema Kantak
310. TELEGRAM TO T. B. SAPRU

[July 25, 1944]

ARRANGEMENTS MADE FOR YOU HERE. LEAVING PANCHGANI FIRST AUGUST. REACHING SEVAGRAM THIRD.

Gandhi-Sapru Papers. Courtesy: National Library

311. LETTER TO C. RAJAGOPALACHARI

PANCHGANI,
July 25, 1944

MY DEAR C. R.,

It is early morning. I feel your absence. Questions regarding Pakistan crop up. Papers are being sent to you. But that is not enough. Some questions I must answer myself. It is not right that I should answer them without you. I won’t drag you to Panchgani. But I do want you to be in Sevagram when I reach there. I hope to be there on 3rd August. Try to reach there that day and come with the intention of settling down there till my fate is decided one way or the other. Every decision of my fate must necessarily be final just for the time being.

It is as wet as when you left. But I am flourishing. And I see that I can like this place if there is a refuge for poor people. It has been built for the rich or the upper middle class.

Love.

BAPU

From a photostat: G.N. 2095

---

1 The telegram is extracted from Pyarelal’s letter dated July 25 to the addressee, which, inter alia, read: “Gandhiji has decided to leave for Sevagram... The stay here had done him good and from the point of view of his health a further stay for a fortnight would have been eminently desirable. But his soul yearned for Sevagram and the doctors saw no good in thwarting his innate nature. Gandhiji has just sent you the following wire.”

2 ibid
312. LETTER TO LALA DUNICHAND

“DILKUSHA”,
PANCHGANI,
July 25, 1944

DEAR LALA DUNICHAND,

Gandhiji has your letter of the 15th inst. He desires me to thank you for the information you have conveyed to him. He was not ignorant of those facts. He is doing all he can. His statements and interviews in the Press will serve to give you a picture of his present mind.

His health is fair only in the sense that it might have been worse. He intends returning to Sevagram on the 2nd of August.

Yours sincerely,

LALA DUNICHAND, B. A.
KRIPANIVAS COTTAGE
AMBALA CITY

From a copy : Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

313. LETTER TO NATARAJAN

PANCHGANI,
July 25, 1944

DEAR MR. NATARAJAN,

It was good of you to have sent your letter through Balasaheb¹. I appreciate the kind thought that prompted it. I do not want to send an argumentative letter in reply. All I wish to say is that it is the logical corollary of the Congress resolution to which I was party.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

[PS.]

I have read your letter three times. You know how I value your opinion. It occurs to me that you should invite Rajaji for a private and friendly discussion.

M. K. G

From a copy : Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

¹ B. G. Kher
314. LETTER TO B. G. KHER

PANCHGANI,
July 25, 1944

Bhai Kher,

Herewith letter from Natarajan. Read it. If his suggestion appeals to you, persuade others to accept it. I myself would have explained but, as you know, I have neither the time nor the energy to do so. If you have fully understood Rajaji’s Formula, canvass for it earnestly.

Blessings from
Bapu

[PS.]

Pyarelal committed no mistake in that. He deliberately told you about it. The thing is not to be kept secret from persons like you. The truth is that it is to be kept secret only from newspapers. The intention is to avoid embarrassment to Churchill.

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 2771

315. LETTER TO KANAM GANDHI

July 25, 1944

Chi Kanam,

I got your letter today. I shall not be able to always fulfil your expectation of a reply by return of post. You have spoilt your handwriting so much that now it is difficult to read it. Sita’s handwriting is so beautiful that it deserves to be emulated by all of you. No doubt she writes in English but whoever writes a good hand in one script must necessarily write equally well in another.

About the injustice to the residents of Sevagram, ask me when we meet.

I have had enough of watching the cinema all by myself without my compatriots at Sevagram. When I am out and engaged in

1 Vide Appendix “C. Rajagopalachari’s Formula”, before 5-8-1942.
2 The reference is to Gandhiji’s letter dated July 17 to Winston Churchill; vide “Letter to Winston Churchill”, 17-7-1944.
3 Addressee’s cousin.
4 Gandhiji saw feature film “Ramarajya” at his residence.
some good activity I would remember all of you. There was no such thing in the present case. Hence nobody has lost anything by not witnessing the show. On the contrary, I have lost something after having seen the picture. You may ask me what it is.

I hope to reach Sevagram on the 3rd.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

316. LETTER TO MRIDULA SARABHAI

PANCHGANI,

July 25, 1944

CHI. MRIDU,

I have your letter. I have explained everything to Kher Saheb. Hence I am not writing a separate letter to you. Are you coming or not? We are waiting.

Blessings from

BAPU

From the Gujarati original: C. W. 11230. Courtesy: Sarabhai Foundation

317. LETTER TO P. G. MATHEW

PANCHGANI,

July 25, 1944

MY DEAR MATHEW,

I am grieved at your father’s passing away. I can understand your remorse. How can one be angry with one’s father even if he leaves nothing for the one? But let that be. Giving away in charity all that you have come into, will be an adequate penance.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 1543

1 B. G. Kher
318. LETTER TO C. M. DOKE

PANCHGANI,
July 26, 1944

MY DEAR CLEMENT,

    I had your sweet letter whilst I was a prisoner. From there I wrote no letters.

    Ba is ever with me though her body has been consigned to the flames. Though I see this truth through the reason and the heart, world-wide sympathy I have prized. It has made me realize the goodness of God as never before.

    I was glad to have some account of you from Manilal. He was able to tell me that you had kept up the old tradition. Do tell me all about the whole family—how and what they are doing. As I write this, all the old associations revive and make me glad.

    With love to you all,

          Yours,

          M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat: G.N. 745

319. LETTER TO SUSHILA GANDHI

PANCHGANI,
July 26, 1944

CHI. SUSHILA,

    I am glad that Manilal and Sita have come. I am still more pleased that you yourself stayed behind. I had thought that that would be beyond your capacity. You have risen higher in my estimation. May God keep you both on a high plane.

    I have had quite long talks with Manilal, though not to my heart’s content. There wasn’t sufficient time for that. We will talk still more after we reach Sevagram or on our way there.

1 Son of J. J. Doke who was a close associate of Gandhiji in South Africa; a missionary on the staff of South African Baptist Missionary Society, Lambaland, 1914-21; Head of the Department of Bantu Studies, University of the Witwatersrand, Johannesburg
Sita is a very good girl. I have not been able to make friends with her as much as I would wish. But I think, I will be able to do so. She is intelligent. The most important thing is to see that she always remains as healthy as she is today. Good health is the most important blessing of life. Do not worry about her. If you worry about Manilal, I would certainly consider you silly.

About myself Manilal will write. There is no cause for worry. I am in God’s hands. He will do what He wants.

According to the present plan, I understand that you will arrive after December. The immediate plan is that Manilal and Sita will join me in Sevagram, via Akola, provided of course there are no unforeseen developments.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 4935

320. LETTER TO MANJULA M. MEHTA

PANCHGANI,
July 26, 1944

CHI. MANJULA ¹,

I have your letter. I feel that whatever is due to Ratilal² should be paid up. He will use it as he is destined to. How long can we keep a watch over a person who has come of age? I regularly get from Champa letters which are quite sensible.

I intend to start from here on the 1st for Sevagram. Do come and see me there when you can.

I do not remember having received your letter in jail. Very few letters were delivered to me.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI MAGANLAL PRANJIVANDAS MEHTA, BARRISTER
82 GHODBUNDER ROAD
ANDHERI

From a photostat of the Gujarati; C.W, 1029. Courtesy: Manjula M. Mehta

¹ Wife of Maganlal Mehta
² Maganlal Mehta’s brother
321. LETTER TO BALKRISHNA BHAVE

PANCHGANI,
July 26, 1944

CHI. BALKRISHNA,

I got your letter and liked it. I like Dinshaw’s temperament. His wife also has a loving nature. Though there is no privacy, his place is very peaceful. It has all the facilities. He knows everything about milk diet and also other methods of treatment. If, therefore, you fully make up your mind, you may go and stay for a year in Poona. Perhaps your health may be completely restored. Even if it is not, you will lose nothing. You will in any case be doing some service there. If you are prepared to see everybody who wants to see you, you may even be able to help some. In the Arogyabhavan your presence will itself benefit the inmates. Think over all these points. As I am soon going over there, we shall reach a final decision after I arrive.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 810. Courtesy: Balkrishna Bhave

322. LETTER TO AMRITLAL V. THAKKAR

July 26, 1944

BAPA,

I have your letter. Why such a decision? May not anyone tender his resignation? But whether you undertake tours or refuse to budge from your Delhi camp, Swami\(^1\) is willing to be relieved this moment. But none from amongst Sir Purushottamdas and others is willing to let you go. Swami wants the matter to be entrusted to an arbitrator who should give his award. But should we take such a dispute to an arbitrator? It is a question of difference of opinion. Some people cannot see eye to eye. Yet both the parties or all of them might be doing good work. Under the circumstances, they work separately and preserve mutual amity. I am not issuing orders, I am simply comparing notes.

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

\(^1\) Swami Anand; vide “Letter to Swami Anand”, 19-7-1944.
323. LETTER TO MANJULA GANDHI

July 26, 1944

CHI. MANJU,

I have your letter. Capitalize on your bhajans and forget all your worries after putting your full trust in God. There is no rule that because you are young in age you cannot acquire jnana. Jnana, that is, atmajnana is not necessarily associated with age. I have seen many an old and erudite fool. On the other hand an unlettered person like Raichandbhai had come to possess atmajnana even at a tender age. I hope to see you on the 1st evening or the 2nd morning. I very much want you to pay me a visit after you are all right.¹ Even if I am arrested and taken away, you can stay at the Ashram or you may reconsider your plans.

Blessings from
BAPU

MANJU GANDHI

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

324. INTERVIEW TO THE PRESS

PANCHGANI,

July 26, 1944

I have read the debate in the Lords’ on the Indian question with attention. I confess, I am disappointed. Lord Munster has correctly summarized² my proposals. It is the most constructive suggestion that I could conceive. If it is not accepted, even as a basis for a friendly discussion and for permission to be given to see members of the Working Committee, who alone can speak with authority, I must reluctantly come to the conclusion that the British Government do not want a fair solution of what I consider is a deadlock, but what they may not consider as such.

However earnest I may be in my efforts to reach a solution, I know I can do nothing, if there is no response from the British ¹ Vide “Letter to Dr. K. C. Gharpure”, 19-7-1944.

² For excerpts from Munster’s speech, vide Appendix “Lord Munster’s Speech”, 25-7-1944.
Government. How I wish that the bogey of communal differences had not been raised in the debate. I have contended, as I contend even now, that differences there must be so long as there is a ruling third party to exploit them. I have spoken what I feel to be the truth. The occasion is too serious for me to hide it.

The Bombay Chronicle, 27-7-1944

325. LETTER TO RADHIKADEVI

[After July 26, 1944]

DEAR SISTER,

I have your letter. What else can one do but resort to a fast when one is treated as less than human? I do not dare to interfere. Have faith in God and put up with whatever happens.

Blessings from

BAPU

SMT. RADHIKADEVI
VISHWANATH PRASAD CHAUBE
GOPALPUR
BALLIA

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

326. LETTER TO LORD WAVELL

PANCHGANI,
July [26/] 27, 1944

DEAR FRIEND,

I must admit my disappointment over your letter of the 22nd instant. But I am used to work in the face of disappointment. Here is my concrete proposal.

I am prepared to advise the Working Committee to declare that in view of the changed conditions, mass civil disobedience envisaged by the resolution of August 1942 cannot be offered and that full

1 In the source, the letter is placed after the letters of July 26, 1944.
2 From the reference to “Lord Munster’s Speech”; vide Appendix “Lord Munster’s Speech”, 25-7-1944.
3 Vide last footnote of “Letter to Lord Wavell”, 15-7-1944.
co-operation in the war-effort should be given by the Congress, if a declaration of immediate Indian independence is made and a national government responsible to the Central Assembly be formed subject to the proviso that, during the pendency of the war, the military operations should continue as at present but without involving any financial burden on India. If there is a desire on the part of the British Government for a settlement, friendly talks should take the place of correspondence. But I am in your hands. I shall continue to knock so long as there is the least hope of an honourable settlement.

After the foregoing was written, I saw Lord Munster’s speech in the House of Lords. The summary given by him in the House of Lords fairly represents my proposal. This summary may serve as a basis for mutual friendly discussion.¹

I am,
Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

Gandhiji’s Correspondence with the Government, p. 6; also The Hindu, 19-8-1944

327. LETTER TO MANU GANDHI

PANCHGANI,
July 27, 1944

CHI. MANUDI,

I have your letter. That your weight should go down to 87 lb. is a matter of shame. It is sinful to read up to 2 o’clock at night. If that is the condition for passing, then I will have none of that kind of education. If you are unable to obey the rules, you will have to come to me. I would rather you remained uneducated than get educated in this way. You are irregular about taking medicine too. What does that indicate?

Blessings from
BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./XXIV

¹ Vide also “Interview to the Press”, 26-7-1944. For the Viceroy’s reply, vide Appendix “Letter from Lord Wavell”, 15-8-1944.
328. TALK TO PANCHGANI CITIZENS

PANCHGANI,
July 27, 1944

Mahatma Gandhi said that he had been greatly benefited by his stay in Panchgani and his health had considerably improved. The Nawab of Wai who introduced the citizens to Mahatma Gandhi expressed the hope that he would visit the place annually.

Mahatma Gandhi talked to the gathering quite informally, and replying to the Vice-Principal of a local European school who said, he had seen Mahatma Gandhi in Charlestown while he was a young boy nearly forty years ago in South Africa, Mahatma Gandhi said, “Oh yes. I remember Charlestown well. Don’t I know Charlestown where I got a good hiding?” and burst into laughter.

Mahatma Gandhi said that he liked Panchgani better than other hill stations he had visited in India, but referred to the lack of accommodation and said that wealthy people should construct quarters so that the poor could also take advantage of the climate for recuperating their health.

The Bombay Chronicle, 28-7-1944

329. TELEGRAM TO STUART GELDER

Express, July 28, 1944

GELDER
CARE FRANK MORAES
GREENFIELDS, CHURCHGATE RECLAMATION
BOMBAY

SORRY YOU STILL ILL. LET MORAES COME TAKE CHANCE.

GANDHI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 The report said that “heads of educational institutions, medical practitioners and businessmen” met Gandhiji in the afternoon and “spent nearly half an hour with him”.

2 Vide “An Autobiography—Part II”, Chapter IX.
330. LETTER TO AMTUSSALAAM

PANCHGANI,
July 28, 1944

DAUGHTER AMTUL SALAAM,

I was pained to read your letter. Your duty is to go to Indore. I will issue no order. I do not want any service from you. It would be a different matter if you fell ill and needed some nursing and came to Sevagram. Your duty is to stay outside and do whatever work you know. It is not a question of my being angry. It is a question of my own limitations. You may, therefore, do whatever service you like, but outside Sevagram. Now that your health is all right there is no need at all to go to Sevagram.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 481

331. LETTER TO KUSUM DESAI

PANCHGANI,
July 28, 1944

CHI. KUSUM,

I have your letter. I hope to reach Sevagram, on the 3rd. I will not go to Bombay. I shall catch the train at Kalyan. You may travel by that train. If you do, meet Shantikumar. I myself am keen, of course.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI KUSUMBEHN DESAI
MEHTA POLE
BARODA

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 1851
332. LETTER TO VIJAYA M. PANCHOLI

PANCHGANI,
July 28, 1944

CHI. VIJAYA,

I have your letter. I will reach Sevagram on the 3rd. Come over there whenever you wish to. I will wait for your letter. Please reply this letter. Tell Nanabhai that I have received his letter. Tell him that he should certainly come to Sevagram. I am not stopping at Bombay.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 7149. Also C.W. 4641. Courtesy: Vijaya M. Pancholi

333. STATEMENT TO THE PRESS

PANCHGANI,
July 28, 1944

The question most discussed with me by visitors is whether I approve of underground activities. These include sabotage, the publication of unauthorized sheets, etc. It has been suggested to me that without some workers going underground they could have done nothing. Some have contended that destruction of property, including dislocation of communication, provided that safety of human life could be ensured, should surely be counted as non-violence. Examples of other nations as having not hesitated to do all these things and much worse have been cited. My reply is that no nation has, so far as I know, deliberately used truth and non-violence as exclusive means for the attainment of freedom. Judged by that standard, I say unhesitatingly, that underground activities, even though utterly innocent in themselves, should have no place in the technique of non-violence. Sabotage and all it means, including destruction of property, is in itself violence. Though these activities may be shown to have touched the imagination and enthusiasm, I have no doubt that they have harmed the movement as a whole.

I swear by the Constructive Programme. Let me recount the items of that programme:
1. Communal unity
2. Removal of untouchability
3. Prohibition
4. Khadi
5. Other village industries
6. Village sanitation
7. New or basic education
8. Adult education
9. Uplift of women
10. Service of the so-called aboriginals
11. Education in health and hygiene
12. Propaganda of rashtra bhasha
13. Love of one’s own language

Unfortunately the workers have not developed in that programme the living faith which I have. I can but re-emphasize the importance of that programme. And, if the whole of India could be converted to take to that programme, we should reach our goal in the quickest manner possible.

To the workers who are still underground, I advise:

If you share my conviction that underground activity is not conducive to the growth of the spirit of active non-violence, you will discover yourselves and take the risk of being imprisoned, believing that imprisonment, thus undergone, itself helps the freedom movement.¹

The Bombay Chronicle, 29-7-1944

¹*Vide* also Appendices “Discussion on Underground Activities”, after 31-3-1944 and “Discussion with Underground Workers”, after 31-3-1944.
334. LETTER TO SIR EDWARD JENKINS

As At Sevagram,
Camp Panchgani,
July 29, 1944

Dear Sir Edward,

I thank you for your letter of 16th July. I am thankful for the enclosure of the letter to Miss Agatha Harrison.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. Gandhi

Sir Edward Jenkins
The Viceroy’s House
New Delhi

Gandhi’s Correspondence with the Government, p. 35

335. LETTER TO SHARDA G. CHOKHAWALA

Panchgani,
July 29, 1944

Ch. Babudi,

I got your clean letter. I hope to reach Sevagram on the 3rd. When will I see you and Anand? Though eager, I am not impatient. Come only after you are completely all right. I did try but I could not find a homoeopath who could convince me. I can put faith only if I see some cases [of successful treatment]. Just now I don’t intend to send for the book you mention. There is no time. But what can your doctor teach me?

Blessings to you all from

Bapu

From the Gujarati original: C.W. 9973. Courtesy: Sharda G. Chokhawala

1 Which read: “I am dealing with your letter [vide “Letter to G. E. B. Abell”, 13-7-1944] of 13th July to Mr. Abell who is in Simla. I am sending your letter [vide “Letter to Agatha Harrison”, 13-7-1944] to Miss Agatha Harrison through the bag as you wish.”
336. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA

July 29, 1944

CHI. KRISHNACHANDRA,

I am worried about Balkrishna. I hope he will get through the present crisis. Will he like to stay at Dr. Mehta’s nursing home in Poona? I don’t know whether or no Dr. Mehta will take up his case.¹ Though I am there, I cannot be relied upon.²

I am very busy these days. My pen has strayed into Gujarati, so I will let it go on. I haven’t read the whole of Munnalal’s letter. He seems all right; that is all I can say now. I am happy that Krishnadas’ and Jajuji have been released. I am hoping to hear from them in detail.

Mitu’ must be doing well.

What is the matter with Manojna’s³ sister? Ask her to write to me. I have sent Pyarelal to Bombay. He will be back by Saturday.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4442

337. LETTER TO GANGADHARRAO DESHPANDE

PANCHGANI,
July 29, 1944

BHAI GANGADHARRAO,

I have heard everything from Bhai Pundalik. I have read your account also. I hope that what I am doing will solve the problem. And if any doubt still remains, write to me. You must keep yourself in good health. You have yet to render a lot of service.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 5224

¹ Vide also “Letter to Balkrishna Bhave”, 26-7-1944.
² What follows is in Gujarati.
³ Krishnadas Gandhi
⁴ Aryanayakam’s daughter
⁵ Wife of Krishnadas Gandhi
Ninth August is a great day and it is the duty of all to observe it. But that part of the resolution which speaks of mass civil disobedience cannot be brought into force because the authority to put it into force was vested solely in me. Today I see no possibility of mass civil disobedience either according to that authority or according to circumstances.

Mass civil disobedience is one thing and the exercise of citizen’s right and civil disobedience in pursuance of it is different. The people have been exercising the right of defensive individual civil disobedience since 1920. People in general may not understand the difference between mass civil disobedience and civil disobedience for the defence of individual citizen’s rights. But it is necessary to know the differences.

On such occasions as 9th August, people have to understand the difference, and exercise this right of individual civil disobedience for the defence of civil rights. In such places where it is necessary to take the permission of police for meetings, processions and such common civil rights, permission from the police should be asked for. But, if such permission is not granted, people should exercise their civil right in spite of the refusal.3

Chief Commissioner’s Office, Bombay, File No. 3001/HP. Courtesy: Government of Maharashtra

---

1 According to the source, this is a summary.
2 The source has “August”, evidently a mistake.
3 In the source, this was followed by a “copy of the draft letter to be addressed to the Commissioner of Police, Bombay, by the leader of the procession on August 9”, which appeared as “approved” by Gandhiji “in pursuance of this policy”, vide Appendix “Draft Letter to the Commissioner of Police, Bombay”, 15-8-1944.
DEAR FRIEND,

I had duly received your letter\(^1\) of 14th June and also your letter of 26th of July sent with Shri Kumaramangalam.

Your answer to my first question provokes further question for your reply. I understand that although the chief actors among the Allied powers are by no means inclined towards real democracy, you think that by the time the war ends, their designs will be confounded and that the people all the world over will suddenly find self-expression and overthrow the present leaders. In the peoples, according to answer, I am entitled to include us, other Asiatics and Negroes, for that matter perhaps, also the proletariat of Japan and Germany. If such is your belief, I must confess that I do not share it but I keep myself open to conviction. Meanwhile I suggest that the title ‘people’s war’ is highly misleading. It enables the Government in India to claim that at least one popular party considers this as people’s war. I suggest, too, that Russia’s limited alliance with the Allied powers cannot by any stretch of imagination convert what was before an imperialistic war against that Nazi combine, into a people’s war.

Holding the view I do, it is superfluous for me now to answer your argument that “this war has split the world into two camps”. Between Scylla and Charybdis, if I sail in either direction, I suffer shipwreck. Therefore I have to be in the midst of the storm. I suggested a way out. Naturally it has been rejected because the powers that be do not want to relax their grip on India. As I am composing this letter to you, I have read and re-read your argument. Every paragraph offends; for, to me, it lacks reality. Please believe me that my prejudice against your party has nothing to do with my examination of your answer to the first question.

Q. 2. Your answer, as far as it goes, I hold to be completely satisfactory. I will not ask you for further proof about your finances. After I have dealt with your answers, I will put my difficulties before you. Your answers to the other questions do not admit of a categorical reply. I understand your answers and appreciate them too. If I was free from prejudices, I would have no hesitation in accepting your answers.¹ But my difficulty is real and I ask for your sympathy. When I make the admission that I have prejudices, it is an appeal to you to have patience with me and to disarm my prejudices in the best manner you can. I can only give you my assurance that I am ready to see anybody you want me to see, to read anything you want me to read and to examine every argument or fact produced by you as dispassionately as I can. I give you this further assurance that I have not acted upon my prejudice, nor shall I do so, unless the prejudices harden into a confirmed belief that your party represents a force of evil and is really an obstacle in the way of the fight for freedom. I am not likely to have that belief easily and, if I have it, you shall have ample notice so as to enable you to wean me from it. I know your worth. You have very able young men and women, as selfless as I would claim to be. You are all hard working and possess great energy and you impose strict discipline on your workers. All this I prize and admire. I would not easily lose such a force because of any preconceived notions of mine.

\(^1\) Vide Appendix “Letter from P. C. Joshi”, 14-6-1944.

If I have been inordinately long in dealing with your answers which you sent me so promptly, it was because, as you are aware, I was preoccupied and also because I was examining the evidence that was pouring in upon me unsolicited against your party.² I asked them to let me use their names and they have given me the permission. I take the latest first, i.e., Babu Manoranjan Chaudhary. I did not even know that he was coming and when he did ask for an appointment,³ it was in connection with my acceptance of the Rajaji Formula⁴. But really he took the greater part of my time to tell me that the communists had done great injury to the national cause. I am using a milder term than

¹ Referring to this, the addressee, in his reply dated September 12, said: “It hurts us more than you can imagine to read that our nation’s leader pleads prejudices as standing in the way of examining slander against a young patriotic party.”

² In his reply, the addressee said: “Mudslinging at political opponents is an old weapon of those who have lost faith in the people and given up all moral values.”

³ Manoranjan Chaudhary was asked (vide “Letter to Manoranjan Chaudhary”, 24-7-1944) by Gandhiji to meet him on July 27. Dealing with this, Joshi said in his reply that Manoranjan Chaudhary was the agent of Dr. Shyama Prasad Mukherjee who was bitterly anti-communist as he had been exposed by the communists.

⁴ Vide Appendix “C. Rajagopalachari’s Formula”, after 5-8-1942.
was really used before me. He has left papers which I have not been able to study. And he has also left with me a printed book which I have glanced through personally and it makes bad reading. The printed book can be seen by any deputy you may choose to send. Probably you have seen it yourself.

The other is Sjt. Kaleswara Rao of Bezwada. He also sent me a long letter from which I quote the salient passages (see enclosure). Add to this the numerous letters I have received from correspondents, known and unknown, all impeaching the party. I understand, too, that Shri Jayaprakash Narayan is also ‘disillusioned’.

You have referred me to Mian Iftikharuddin and Shaukat Ansari, both of whom I know well and for whom I have great regard. Unfortunately Iftikharuddin is in jail. I have never talked about Communism to Shaukat, because I know him and his wife Zohra apart from their politics. But no general assurance from them will obliterate the evidence that has forced itself upon me and of which I have given you a bird’s-eye view. I will ask you not to dismiss all this evidence as so much prejudice. I would ask you not to be angry with your critics, however ignorant they may be. You will have legitimate cause for anger, if their criticism is malicious and conceived with a hostile intent. Lastly, I ask you to believe me that I want to impress the services of every one of you for the cause of independence to be fought along the lines that I have chalked out for myself and the whole country. And if I am convinced that I am going astray and that yours is the correct method, I would like to be won over by you.

---

1 War Against the People, by Kalyani Bhattacharya. Joshi alleged that she was not the author, but Dr. Shyama Prasad Mukherjee got it written and paid for its publication.
2 Joshi said that he had not read it but glanced through it. Immediately on receiving it, he had asked the Bengal Committee of Communist Party whether he should answer it in People’s War to which they replied: “Need not bother because it had been withdrawn from circulation as all decent Bengalees who read it felt disgusted over it.”
3 Regarding Kaleswara Rao’s accusation, Joshi asked Gandhiji to call Sundarayya, the Andhra Communist leader, and Kaleswara Rao together and judge or to hold a trial in public with C. Rajagopalachari and Mrs. Sarojini Naidu as judges.
4 Not reproduced here.
5 President, Punjab Provincial Congress Committee to your side and I will sincerely and gladly serve as an apprentice wanting to be enlisted as a unit in your ranks.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

Correspondence between Mahatma Gandhi and P. C. Joshi, pp. 17-22

340. INTERVIEW TO “NEWS CHRONICLE”

[PANCHGANI,
July 30, 1944] 1

Mr. Amery knows better, but it is convenient for him to brush aside my offer 2 by saying that the formula is not even the starting point. Had it not been the starting point, there would not have been all the discussion about my formula that has taken place in the Press.

Asked if he shared the feeling that the British Government is planning to by-pass the political problem by focussing public attention on economic issues, Gandhiji said:

Imagine the economic regeneration of England if she is

1 The report said that this was in answer to the statement made by L. S. Amery, Secretary of State for India, during a debate in the House of Commons on July 28. According to The Indian Annual Register, 1944, Vol. II, p. 308, Amery had said: “ . .. So far as India’s future constitution is concerned . . . an agreed constitution could only be arrived at if the predominantly Muslim provinces were free to adhere or stand out.... Apart from that particular issue . . . one central demand upon which he does not leave any room for ambiguity . . . is the demand for the immediate recognition of India’s independence under a provisional government, in which the only powers reserved to the Viceroy are those which deal with the control of active military operations. All reserve powers indispensable to ensure that the various functions of administration are co-ordinate with war effort and also those indispensable to safeguard the constitutional position for minority elements—all those are to disappear. Well, that is, after all, just the demand upon which the negotiations with the Congress broke down two years ago and were bound to break down. I will only invite the House to read Mr. Gandhi’s statements side by side with those then issued by Congress leaders, to see that, in this respect at any rate, there has been no real advance. Indeed Mr. Gandhi now adds the further stipulation that India is to bear no part of the cost of her own defence. So long as those are the basis for his proposals, they obviously do not form even the starting point for a profitable discussion either with Lord Wavell or with the interned Congress leaders.”

2 The interview appeared as reported under this date-line.

3 Vide “Interview to Stuart Gelder”, 4/6-7-1944 and “Interview to the Press”, 14-7-1944.
politically subjected to an extraneous power. I can understand theruthless exploitation of the economic resources of India by a power that has held her in bondage for over 150 years, but that will not be economic prosperity for India. It will spell economic dejection and political degradation. I am amazed that British statesmen who happen to be ruling India today are not satisfied with the mere rejection of a plan conceived in all honesty, but that they should even suggest that the political question should be shelved during the war and that attention should be concentrated on India’s economic salvation'.

_The Hindu, 1-8-1944_

341. INTERVIEW TO THE PRESS

PANCHGANI,

July 30, 1944

I have noticed this. It has caused me pain as also amazement that the representatives of the British nation, who have a long and distinguished record of heroic fight for political freedom, should divorce the economic development of India from political subjection and give the former preference over the latter. To me it looks like putting the cart before the horse, and I have not yet seen any horse performing the trick of pushing the cart with its nose. It was, therefore, a pleasure to find two noted industrialists, Mr. J. R. D. Tata and Sir Homi Mody, summarily rejecting the idea put forth in the House of Commons and holding out, I suppose, from bitter experience, that the economic development of India was dependent upon the solution of the political deadlock, in other words a proper national government functioning at the Centre. I suppose they had in mind the gigantic concessions that have been made during recent years to British monopolists. They must have had in mind also the strangling of Indian enterprise. What can, therefore, happen without a national government is not the economic development of India, but its exploitation and degradation.

1 Vide also the following item.

2 According to the report, Gandhiji was alluding to “the House of Commons debate with particular reference to the consensus of opinion . . . that the economic development of India was of greater importance than the solution of the political deadlock”. Vide also the preceding item.
Members of the House of Commons, not knowing the realities in India, may philosophize and talk of the immediate importance of economic development. I wish they can see what is going on today in India. I have no shadow of doubt in my mind that the Bengal famine, as also famines in other parts of India, were man-made and not God-made. I need not impugn the honesty of the rulers who have been sent out to India from Britain.

I hold that in spite of all the honesty that the British rulers can summon to their assistance, it is impossible for them to get behind the Indian skin and know the real disease. The consensus of opinion in the House of Commons, therefore, is for me a terrible pointer. It confirms me in my opinion that the “Quit India” resolution was no hasty cry conceived in anger. To put the same in parliamentary language, it demands that India must be now governed by Indians chosen by her own people—not a coterie but the whole mass of the people without distinction of race, creed or colour. It is unfortunate that the House of Commons has once more missed the opportunity of making the issue between the Allied powers and the Axis powers a real issue of democracy versus autocracy, or the exploitation of classes or nations by a class or a nation armed to the teeth. My offer presented that issue in the clearest possible language that I could command. It was presented on behalf of all the exploited nations and races of the earth. It is a great pity that the Lords and the Commons have turned down my offer. The Allies will have their victory, but the exploited races will not feel the glow of it. They will know that the seeds of another and deadlier war will be sown by that very victor. I ask myself the question: ‘Must rivers of blood flow for such an empty victory?’

Asked when he expected to meet Mr. Jinnah, Mahatma Gandhi said:

I expect to meet the Qaid-e-Azam as soon as he wants me, of course, health permitting. The publication of the Formula is in pursuit of negotiations for a communal settlement. It is not an idle effort. It is conceived in all sincerity. It is unfortunate that the criticism that has been levelled against it, so far as I can see, has been conceived out of prejudice or careless study of the Formula. Nor is it an offer on the part of any party. It is a contribution from two life-servants of the nation towards the solution of the communal tangle, which has hitherto defied solution. It is in open invitation to all parties to apply their minds to the solution. The Rajaji Formula is intended as a help to all lovers of the country. It is the best we could conceive, but it is open to amendment, as it is open to rejection or acceptance.

---

1 Rajaji Formula; vide Appendix “C. Rajagopalachari’s Formula”, after 5-8-1942.

Gandhiji told that British Government’s rejection of the offer does not affect the Rajaji Formula in anyway whatsoever. As far as he remembered, Gelder did not the proposal, and, if he did, he must have got it from Rajaji and not from him.¹

In a way the rejection of my offer for the resolution of the political deadlock enables all parties to concentrate their attention on communal settlement. Whilst I had said and repeat that the presence of a third party effectively prevents a solution, it was never meant to convey that I would make no attempt at an honourable solution, even while the third party continued to dominate this land of ours. No one will be more pleased than I, if we can pull through a solution which satisfied all parties.

To a reporter who asked if Mahatma Gandhi would advocate Congressmen going back to jail in view of the British Government’s rejection of his proposals, Mahatma Gandhi said:

Have you ever known any sane person without any cause going to jail, or after discharge going back to jail? But a person who holds his self-respect or his country’s liberty dearer than life itself invites suffering even unto death in defending either and, in that process, if jail comes his way, he welcomes it. The question, therefore, should be addressed to the Government: ‘When do you propose to take back to jail those whom you have released?’ I know that Government are not going to oblige you by answering your question.

_The Hindu, 1-8-1944_

342. LETTER TO SHWAIB QURESHI

_PANCHGANI_,
_July 31, 1944_

MY DEAR SHWAIB,

Your description of the boy brings tears to the eyes. I have a vivid recollection of my struggle with the child. God’s peace on him and you, the parents.

So, you see, the Qaid-e-Azam and I are to meet. If the publication of the C. R. Formula was blameworthy, I must share the ¹This paragraph is reproduced from _The Bombay Chronicle_, 31-8-1944. blame equally with him. Anyway you will work away, I know.

Love to both.

BAPU

SHWAIB SAHEB QUreshi
BHOPAL

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

343. LETTER TO REKHDE

As at Sevagram, via Wardha,1
July 31, 1944

My dear Rekhde,

Your letter makes me sad. Yours is not the only case of its kind. And I am quite helpless. Cases such as yours are inevitable in a national struggle. Values have to be changed. We cannot live the old life and still be in the struggle.

I am extremely sorry, I cannot send an encouraging letter to your liking.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. Gandhi

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

344. LETTER TO JANAKIDEVI BAJAJ

July 31, 1944

Chii. JanakibeHn,

If God is kind, I shall arrive there on the 3rd just to see how you are doing. I said “kind” through ignorance. God is always kind. If we do not recognize that kindness, that is our stupidity. We are, however, all subject to His Will, whether willingly or unwillingly. If, therefore, it is His Will, we shall meet on the 3rd. I am glad that Madalasa2 and Om3 will be there. I will, of course, miss Savitri4. About

1 Permanent address
2 Addressee’s daughter
3 ibid
4 ibid
Kamala¹ I needn’t say anything. She is a very busy woman. Now, if I mention more names, I will have to take another slip of paper and, moreover, where is the time.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 3033

345. LETTER TO A. V. THAKKAR

July 31, 1944

BAPA,

This is just to make you laugh, if I can. When there is a clash of temperaments, father-son, husband-wife, friend-friend, do not break off their relationship but live separately. Compared to you, Swami is as meek as a woman. We have among us men who have more than one wife. You have a right to have many wives like Swami. All these days you put up with him. Pull on for a few more years. Little more of life remains. And I have explained how to carry on.

You are working with all your strength. But how many tasks can you look after? When the volcano has burst, this memorial seems a very trivial matter. I cannot bear to see people like you sacrificing their all for its sake. But I am keeping silent because I think that the women and children in the villages may gain something from it.

BAPU

[PS.]

I hope to reach Sevagram on the 3rd.

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 1193

346. LETTER TO CHIMANLAL N. SHAH

[July 31, 1944]²

CHI. CHIMANLAL,

What about Amritlal? Do bring Prahlad here if you wish to. How is the new arrangement working? If there is much work in the field,

¹ Addressee’s daughter-in-law, Kamalnayan’s wife
² From the G.N. Register

THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
some of us should give to it as many hours as we can spare. The work of weeding and so on is easy. Stock the grass, etc., in the godown.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10614

347. LETTER TO KASIBEHN GANDHI

[July 31, 1944]

CHI. KASHI,

I might say, you have now crossed the threshold of old age. You have, however, to live for many more years, not merely for the sake of living but for rendering service. One who lives merely for the sake of living does not truly live; only he who lives for the sake of service can be said to live [truly]. And he who dies in harness also lives [for ever]. Hence give up all worries, and devote yourself to such service as your mind and body permit.

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

348. LETTER TO SHRIKRISHNA SINHA

[July 31, 1944]

BHAI SHRIKRISHNA SINHA,

Read the enclosed wire. Do as you think right. I do agree that no time should be given to the collection of the Kasturba purse at the cost of any social service. Whatever can be collected without any great effort should be considered valuable [enough]. I have not replied to the wire. You should do it yourself.

Bapa writes and says that you and Anugrah Babu1 keep indifferent health. Preserve your health. You have yet to render a lot of service.

I leave Panchgani tomorrow. God willing, I shall reach Sevagram on the 3rd.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 In the source, the letters are placed among those of this date.
2 ibid.
3 Anugrah Narayan Sinha.
349. MESSAGE TO PEOPLE OF ASSAM

PANCHGANI,
July 1944

If the people feel that the present policy of the Government on settlement and immigration is oppressive and anti-national, let them fight it non-violently or violently, if necessary.

The Bombay Chronicle, 19-12-1944

350. LETTER TO ARUNA ASAF ALI

[On or before August 2, 1944]

PRIYA ARUNA.

You must not discover yourself unless you feel the wrong of secrecy. You must not be displeased if I hold an opinion which does not coincide with yours. I shall not love you the less because I cannot see eye to eye with you. You should be patient with me. Do nothing in a hurry. I have not judged anyone. I have given my opinion about certain acts. You will harm the cause by acting against your judgement. See me when you like. Don’t be in a hurry. Don’t be sad.

Love.

BAPU

From a copy: K. M. Panikkar Papers. Courtesy: National Archives of India

1 The report said that Gopinath Bardoloi, ex-Premier of Assam, had “told the United Press [of India] that in view of the seriousness of the problems as a result of the Assam Government policy on the matter vitally affecting the province, it was referred to Mahatma Gandhi in July last when two Congressmen of Assam were sent to Panchgani”. Vide also “Message to People of Assam”, before 16-8-1944.

2 The text of this letter suggests that it was written after Gandhiji’s statement to the Press dated July 28, 1944 (vide “Statement to the Press”, 28-7-1944), and before the addressee’s letter dated August 2, which appears to have been written in reply to this. It read: “If only I could honestly feel that our mode of resistance was wrong, life would become so simple. To be permitted to act under what is known as the willing suspension of disbelief or better still blind discipline would take an enormous load off my shoulders. But you are bent on testing our mettle. We will now go into voluntary inaction for a while.”

3 In her letter dated August 1 the addressee, writing on behalf of her co-workers who were still underground, had written that they were willing to submit to Gandhiji’s orders, suspend their activities and surrender themselves.
351. INTERVIEW TO “DAILY WORKER”

BOMBAY,
August 2, 1944

Q. You promise all aid to the Allied war effort. How concretely will the character and quantity of the war effort in India and other countries be changed through the establishment of a national government in India?

Mahatma Gandhi replied that the question required a detailed answer, whereas the basis of his offer was to give moral weight to the Allied cause. This the cause lacked at present.

Asked to explain what he meant by “adding moral weight to the Allied cause”, Mahatma Gandhi said:

The Allies are today making brave declarations about democracy and liberty which to me, or, to put it plainly, to the exploited nations, mean nothing. Mere declarations, pleasing to the ear, can give no satisfaction to the sufferers. By “the exploited nations” I mean the Asiatics and Africans. If the Allies are fighting for democracy, their democracy should include all the exploited races of the earth. Facts, as I see them, prove the contrary. Almost all, if not all, parties agree that India was never so much under foreign domination as it is today.

A clear acceptance of the Indian demand for independence and the consequent establishment of a national responsible government, subject to the limitations I have mentioned, would immediately change the character of the Allied cause. It will be immediately differentiated from the cause of the Axis Powers, if the latter’s fight can be described as a cause.

What material gain will accrue to the Allies from the recognition of India as an independent country, subject to the provision accepted by you?

I must refuse to descend from the platform I occupy. Surely, if the character of the Allied cause is so radically altered, as I claim it must be by the acceptance of my offer, all else must follow as a matter of course. But whether it does or not, I want the acceptance of my offer to be on the unadulterated moral basis. It should be enough for the Allies to have the guarantee that their military operations will not, in any way, be adversely affected by India being counted as an independent nation, not merely in word but in fact.

\footnote{\textit{Vide} “Interview to Stuart Gelder”, 4-7-1944.}

I hold that the effect of the declaration of India’s independence, accompanied by simultaneous sincere action, should, by itself, take the wind out of the sails of the Axis Powers. And I should be surprised if they do not capitulate almost immediately on the declaration.

Suppose England was under foreign rule today, like India, and the ruling power was engaged in a war with some other nation or nations, and involved England willy-nilly in the war. Suppose further that the foreign power suddenly declared England independent without the latter having put up an armed fight for freedom, would not every Englishman enthusiastically support the erstwhile foreign ruler, now turned a friendly power? You can now understand what will happen to India if, when Britain is in sight of victory, she were to declare the independence of India.

Having said all this to elucidate my answer, I wish to suggest that my offer furnishes a basis for honourable negotiation and release of the members of the Congress Working Committee. A discussion of details and filling in the gaps, deliberately left in my offer, must follow as a matter of course.

The correspondent then told him that the Tory Press in Britain confuses the people by stating that “Gandhi still adheres to the ‘Quit India’ resolution”\. They exploit the fact that the British people are unaware of the burning anti-Fascist and patriotic content of the resolution. The correspondent asked him to clarify his statement that the resolution was “innocuous”\(2\).

The whole of the resolution is a noble document. The ‘Quit India’ slogan is an innocuous and natural cry. The sting was in the sanction clause of the resolution authorizing me to offer mass civil disobedience in the event of the rejection of the national demand. As I have said, my authority has lapsed, and even if it has not, I cannot organize mass civil disobedience at the present moment. Therefore, the resolution should be read without the sanction clause, and I challenge anybody to take exception to a single word in that resolution. ‘Quit India’, read together with the Congress offer that the Allied operations on the Indian soil might continue, means nothing more and nothing less than that the British rule should end in its entirety, even while the war is going on—if the war is merely for the deliverance of the exploited nations of the earth.

\(^1\)\textit{Vide} Appendix “Resolution Passed by All-India Congress Committee”, 8-8-1942.

\(^2\)\textit{Vide} “Interview to the Press”, 13-7-1944.

The correspondent next reminded him of his statement that the Cripps offer contemplated almost perpetual vivisection of India and asked him what it meant. Mahatma Gandhi smiled and said:

Surely it can mean only one thing. The Cripps offer divided India into Princely India and democratic India. Is not that vivisection?

The correspondent told him that a lot of propaganda was being made in reactionary circles in England, particularly by the Tory Press, to the effect that if Gandhi’s demand was granted, the minorities would suffer. Mahatma Gandhi replied:

That is a function belonging to the Rajaji Formula. I can only say that the Formula contemplates the fullest protection to the smallest minority. If there are any gaps left in it, they will be filled in at the time of mutual discussion that must precede a final settlement.

_The Bombay Chronicle, 3-8-1944_

352. A FOOTNOTE

[After August 2, 1944]

We do not think Gandhiji would make any such admission. Has he not said that every art would be richer for the artist spinning? Gandhiji would accept the Poet’s offering for what it is worth but he would accept nothing as a substitute for hand spinning.

From a photostat: C.W. 10510. Courtesy: Valji G. Desai

1 Vide Appendix “British Government’s Proposal : Note by the Secretary of State for Dominion Affairs”, 2-3-1942.
2 Vide Appendix “C. Rajagopalachari’s Formula”, before 5-8-1942.
3 This footnote, revised by Gandhiji, appears in K. R. Kripalani’s article “Gandhi and Tagore” in Gandhiji—His Life and Work. It refers to the following passage “... and Gandhiji today would be the first to admit that the Great Sentinel had more than earned his right to his bread and did not need to spin to justify his existence...” The draft of the footnote submitted to Gandhiji read: “Gandhiji would admit nothing of the sort, Gurudev claimed exemption from spinning on the ground of his being a poet, but Gandhiji said: ‘No. Your art will be all the richer if you spin.’” For Gandhiji’s foreword to the book, vide “A Word for the Reader”, 29-8-1944.
4 Valji G. Desai had sent the draft of the footnote to Gandhiji on August 2, 1944.
353. LETTER TO ACHYUT PATWARDHAN

[After August 2, 1944]

BHAJ A.

I have your letter. I do not wish that you should come out in the open until you are convinced at heart. I have only pointed out to the contradiction between non-violence and underground activities and destruction of property. There is no question at all of the Congress control in this matter. I would like to go to the extent of saying that anything done without full understanding will harm the Congress. I shall not be hurt at all if you and other workers do not agree with me.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

354. LETTER TO MIRABEHN

SEVAGRAM, WARDHA,
August 3, 1944

CHI. MIR

All your letters were received. Came here today with a large party including S. Kumar his wife, Dr. J. Mehta and Khurshe dibhn. I am very well. Yes, you should go slow, make no haste in choosing the soil. The Ashram has grown out of all proportion.

Love.

BAPU

SHRI MIRABAI
BUNDRA TEA ESTATE
P. O. PALAMPUR
KAGRA VALLEY, PUNJAB

From the original: C.W. 6499. Courtesy: Mirabehn. Also G.N. 9894

1 This letter was in reply to the addressee’s letter of August 2, 1944
2 ibid
3 The superscription in this and the other letters of the addressee is in Devanagari script.
4 Shantikumar Morarjee
5 Sumati Morarjee
6 The addressee explains: “This was in connection with the site of a small ashram which I was planning to start on my own, in the north-west of the United Provinces.”
355. LETTER TO GOPINATH BARDOLOI

August 3, 1944

MY DEAR BARDOLOI,

I have your letter. I have read the papers and I have had long chats with the friends. I will not, because I cannot, give specific instructions. But I would lay down general principles to guide you. There should never be the slightest departure from truth and non-violence. There should be perfect fearlessness. There should be no secrecy, and there should be complete non-co-operation with evil. Thus under the lure of saving starving people I may not co-operate with evil even as I may not pour milk in a poison bowl in the hope of feeding the poor.

The Bihar example will mislead if not properly understood. I co-operated and spent the money that was collected. There were two parallel collections. Ours was the biggest and best spent. Today there is no such scope. Do not think of the past except to learn lessons from it.

Love.

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
356. LETTER TO K. SRINIVASAN

August 3, 1944

DEAR SRINIVASAN,

Khurshedbehn who is with me just tells me that you have lost your dear daughter. I am lying down, so she takes this to my dictation. It was like news to me, when she mentioned the tragedy and yet as I think of it I have a fear that I saw the news somewhere and might also have thought of writing to you, and then something intervened between the thought and the execution of it. Very often such things have happened in my life. Whether I have written to you or spoken to you about the tragedy, my writing to you now need not be superfluous. Having suffered myself in the same manner I can appreciate all the more your grief. Accept therefore the sympathy of a fellow-sufferer in life’s march.

Did you ever know that in Sevagram Mahadev was a regular reader of The Hindu and in the detention camp first Pyarelal and then I took Mahadev’s place and often found things in The Hindu which we did not find in the other papers?

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

357. LETTER TO RAMDAS GANDHI

SEVAGRAM,

August 3, 1944

CHI. RAMDAS,

I have gone through your letter. I hope Usha is all right now. In operations, our calculations do not prove true. Do not be in a hurry to come here. When everything is all right, you may pay a short visit. I am quite well. Dr. Mehta is here and looks after me. Manilal is still at Akola.

Blessings from

BAPU

From the Gujarati original: Mrs. Sumitra Kulkarni Papers. Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library

1 Editor, The Hindu

THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
Re-organization of the villages is a very intricate problem, but if we can find even half a dozen workers of the right type, we can solve it in due time. The time factor is important, but given the right start the thing will grow like a snowball. You have heard of Booker T. Washington. We have to produce better workers than even him in order to achieve our object.

As for you, your ambition will be fulfilled if, besides your ability and enthusiasm, you introduce something else in your life, i.e., a living faith in God. Then all insipidity will vanish. A cosmopolitan outlook is a necessity but it can never be a substitute for God. God is there, but our conception of God is limited by our mental horizon and by our physical environment. For instance, when you read the Bible, you find that the God of the Hebrews was quite different from the God of Jesus Christ. You are dissatisfied with the prevalent idea about God for the simple reason that those who profess belief in God do not present a living God in their own lives.

Unless you have a living faith in God to sustain you, when failure stares you in the face, there is disappointment for you. You may develop a revulsion for the work that you have taken up. You may begin to feel that after all what Dr. Ambedkar said was the right thing and you made a mistake in rejecting the high posts which you had been offered. My advice to you is that you should not leave this Ashram till you have found God. In spite of my limitless failings I am a seeker after Truth and so are my companions in this place. The Ashram, apart from its inhabitants, the sum total of energy that it represents, the principles for which it stands, may enable you to know God to the extent that you may be able to say ‘God is’, just as you can say ‘Truth is’.

RAMASWAMI: I can say that in the sense that Truth is the antithesis of 1 A young Harijan graduate who gave Gandhiji a report of his work in the villages and sought his help and guidance. Gandhiji was pleased with his report.

2 The discussion took place at Sevagram Ashram. After his release Gandhiji reached there on August 3, 1944.
3 Mahatma Gandhi—The Last Phase here has “humanitarian”.

VOL. 84 : 27 JANUARY, 1944 - 1 OCTOBER, 1944 265
falsehood.

GANDHIJI: That is good enough. The seers have described God as "Neti, neti" (‘Not this, not this’). Truth will elude you. The sum total of all that is true is Truth. But you can’t sum up all that is true. Like most of those who have had Western education, you have got an analytical mind. But there are things that can’t be analysed. God who can be analysed by my poor intellect won’t satisfy me. Therefore I do not try to analyse Him. I go behind the relative to the absolute and I get my peace of mind.

R. I have carefully gone through your writings in the Harijan and Young India. Your way of life appeals to me very much. It offers scope for the exercise of individual will. The idea of God introduces a determinism and that limits man. It interferes with his free will.

G. Is there such a thing as free will? Where is it? We are mere playthings in the hands of Providence.

R. What is the relationship between God and man, between-Truth and God?

G. I used to say ‘God is Truth’. That did not completely satisfy me. So I said ‘Truth is God’. He and His law are not different. God’s law is God Himself. To interpret it man has to resort to intense prayer and merge himself in God. Each one will interpret the same in his or her own way. As for the relationship between man and God, man does not become man by virtue of having two hands. He becomes man by becoming a tabernacle of God.

R. When my idea of God itself is not clear, your talk of man becoming a tabernacle of God makes things still more confusing. . .

G. Yet it is the true conception Unless we have the realization that the body is the house of God, we are less than men. And where is the difficulty or confusion in conceiving Truth as God? You will concede that we are not tabernacles of Untruth; we are of Truth.

Everyone who wants to live a true life has to face difficulties in life, some of which appear insurmountable. At that time it is faith in God, that is, Truth alone, that will sustain you. The fellow-feeling which makes you feel miserable because of your brother’s misery is godliness. You may call yourself an atheist, but so long as you feel akin with mankind you accept God in practice. I remember of 1 Mahatma Gandhi—The Last Phase here adds “two feet and”.

2 Gandhiji was then silent for a moment.
clergymen who came to the funeral of the great atheist Bradlaugh. They said they had come to pay their homage because he was a godly man.

If you go back with a living faith in God, in Truth, I have no doubt that your work will flourish. You should feel dissatisfied with everything till you have found Him and you will find Him.²

An Atheist with Gandhi, pp. 28-31; also Mahatma Gandhi—The Last Phase, Vol. I, Book I, pp. 57-8

359. DISCUSSION WITH A FRIEND

[On or after August 3, 1944]¹

FRIEND: If you pray to God, can He intervene and set aside the law for your sake?

GANDHIJI: God’s law remains unaltered but since that very law says that every action has a result, if a person prays, his prayer is bound to produce an unforeseeable result in terms of His law. . . .³

But do you know the God to whom you pray?
No, I don’t.

To whom shall we pray then?
To the God whom we do not know—we do not always know the person to whom we pray.

Maybe, but the person to whom we pray is knowable.

So is God; and since He is knowable, we search. It may take a billion years before we find Him. What does it matter? So, I say, even if you do not believe, you must continue to pray, i.e., search. “Help thou my unbelief” is a verse from the Bible to be remembered. But it is not right to ask such questions. You must have infinite patience, and inward longing. Inward longing obviates all such questions. “Have faith and you will be whole” is another tip from the Bible.

¹ Charles Bradlaugh
² According to Mahatma Gandhi—The Last Phase, D. Ramaswami had decided to stay at the Ashram for some time and search for God through the service of his fellow-beings.
³ According to the source “a veteran nationalist leader from South India” came to see Gandhi at Sevagram about the same time as Dr. Ramaswami; vide the preceding item.
⁴ ibid
⁵ Omission as in the source
When I look at nature around me, I say to myself, there must be one Creator, one God and to Him I should pray.

That again is reasoning. God is beyond reason. But I have nothing to say if your reason is enough to sustain you.

Mahatma Gandhi—The Last Phase, Vol. I, Book I, p. 59

360. LETTER TO USHA GANDHI

[After August 3, 1944]

CHI. USHI,

Your letter is very good. But why with a pencil? Now that your tonsils have been removed, won’t you put on some flesh?

Blessings from

BAPU

From the Gujarati original: Mrs. Sumitra Kulkarni Papers. Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library

361. MESSAGE FOR TAGORE DAY

[On or before August 4, 1944]

Organizing yourself, you will achieve success. This is the message of Gurudev. Make this message your motto.

The Hindu, 6-8-1944

362. STATEMENT TO THE PRESS

SEVAGRAM,

August 5, 1944

Many Congressmen ask me how to celebrate the forthcoming 9th of August. That date was a turning point in India’s fight for freedom. I had intended to spend 9th August, 1942 in peaceful introspection and to inaugurate negotiations for a settlement. But the Government or Fate had decided otherwise. The Government went mad, and so did some people. Sabotage and the like were resorted to

---

1. From the contents; vide the preceding item.
2. This was read out at a public meeting held in Hyderabad on August 4 under the Presidentship of Hasan Yar Jung Bahadur.
3. ibid
and many things were done in the Congress name or in my name. I am aware that I do not represent the Congress mind always. Many Congressmen repudiate my non-violence. The Working Committee is the only body which can legitimately and truly represent the Congress.

As an old servant of the country, however, I can advise, and Congressmen are at liberty to treat my advice as instructions. I have already said¹ that mass civil disobedience cannot be offered now; but mass civil disobedience is one thing and individual action in defence of self-respect and liberty is wholly another. It is a universal duty for all time, the discharge of which requires no sanction save that of one’s own conscience. In a previous note, I have pointed out when and where the duty arises. But the forthcoming 9th is a special occasion.

There has arisen much misunderstanding about the Congress purpose and mind. I must avoid all avoidable risks. Therefore, in all places except in Bombay, my advice is not to disregard special police prohibitions for that day. For Bombay, I have already given advice through the Mayor of Bombay. I need not reiterate the advice here. I have selected Bombay as the most suitable place for the simple reason that it is most easily accessible to me and is the place where the historic meeting of August 1942 was held. Whatever it is to be, it will be a symbolic act. Curiosity is natural and pardonable, but I plead for restraint. The self-imposed curb will be finished if I succeed in carrying conviction to the human family, that every man or woman, however weak in body, is the guardian of his or her self-respect and liberty. This defence avails, though the whole world may be against the individual resister.

I have suggested the present symbolic procedure to see whether those who organize the demonstration have co-operation from the local public. Freedom of 400 million people through purely non-violent effort is not to be gained without learning the virtue of iron discipline, not imposed from without, but sprung naturally from within. Without the requisite discipline non-violence can only be a veneer.

The second thing that I should like done on the forthcoming 9th August is for those who have gone underground to discover themselves. They can do so by informing the authorities of their movements and whereabouts or by simply and naturally doing their work in the open without any attempt to evade or elude the police. To go underground is to elude the police. Therefore, real discovery is to discover oneself to the party eluded. Nothing should be done unless the conviction has gone home that a particular action is essential for the cause. In the absence of such a conviction, those who see this note may ignore it and should follow what they consider best for the country.

¹ Vide “Talk to Bombay Congress Leaders”, 29/30-7-1944.

What everyone should do on the 9th, whether they have the conviction as to nonviolence or not, or whether they are Congressmen or not, is to carry out on the 9th the whole or any part of the fourteenfold programme reiterated in my recent note. Just for example, everyone should spin. Communities should find ways of giving expression to mutual understanding and brotherhood. Hindus and Muslims may organize joint programmes of prayers—God may bless the Quaid-e-Azam and me with wisdom to reach a common understanding in the interest of India. Hindus should visit Harijans and render them the service they may need. The spirit of service and helpfulness should pervade the atmosphere everywhere.

I have experienced friendliness from Englishmen and Americans wherever I have met them, whether officials or laymen. I invite their co-operation especially on the 9th. Let them realize that the August resolution was not conceived in hatred. It was an unvarnished statement of the natural right of the people of this land.

To those who share my faith I would advise fasting and prayers on the auspicious day. This must not be a mechanical act. It must be done without ostentation, for self-purification and penance. Its uplifting power is capable of being tested by every individual for himself.

If the demonstration is carried out in the spirit in which I have conceived it, I have no doubt that it will lead to an early end of the misery of the masses.

_The Hindu, 7-8-1944_

---

1 _Vide_ “Statement to the Press”, 28-7-1944
363. LETTER TO NAGINDAS T. MASTER

SEVAGRAM,
August 5, 1944

Bhai Naginbhai,

You will see my statement today in the newspapers. First I thought of detailing my entire programme in Bombay in my statement. But I propose to make some changes in the programme. I shall however have them only with your consent. This is very important. So either you may come personally or should send one of your trusted men. Much depends upon the success of the programme. Premabehn will give you this letter. If for some reason you cannot come or you cannot send some representative then send the reply through Premabehn. Premabehn will tell you in brief the changes that I propose to make.

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

364. INTERVIEW TO SHYAMA PRASAD MOOKERJEE

SEVAGRAM,
August 5, 1944

Gandhiji says that his association with the Rajaji Formula is personal and is meant to commit nobody but himself. He is, therefore, anxious that people should express their opinion freely and fearlessly. I gathered from our conversation that he welcomed such criticism for he was open to conviction. If he discovered any flaw in the Formula he would have no hesitation in correcting the error. In his opinion the Formula is intended to be just to all. If, therefore, any community was likely to be unjustly affected by the Formula being given effect to, the flaw should be brought to his notice. He was also anxious that people should remember that if an agreement was

1 Mayor of Bombay
2 Vide the preceding item.
3 This was issued to the Press on August 6 by Dr. Shyama Prasad Mookerjee, Working President, Hindu Mahasabha, who had stated: “I had a long interview with Mahatmaji yesterday in my individual capacity and fully explained why I and those who think like me are so strongly opposing Mr. Rajagopalachari’s Formula from the point of view of India as a whole. The discussion was full and frank. . . . This is not the gist of the whole conversation. That part of it only is given which is necessary to ease the public mind of the fear that any criticism of the Formula would weaken Gandhiji’s influence or position.” This was published with Gandhiji’s approval. reached between Quaid-e-Azam Jinnah and himself it would be open to all parties to advocate their points of view before the plebiscite is held and the plan would come into effect only in case of transfer by Britain of full power and responsibility in the governance of India. There was, therefore, ample time for a calm and dispassionate discussion. He also said that the Rajaji Formula was a way of reducing to a concrete form the Congress resolution on self-determination\(^1\) and nothing could operate without the consent of all sections. . . . He assured me that he had always welcomed criticism and that he had flourished on it and that his influence could not be weakened by it.

_Gandhi-Jinnah Talks_, p. 83

---

365. LETTER TO B. R. AMBEDKAR

SEVAGRAM, August 6, 1944

Thank you for yours\(^2\) of July 31 received yesterday. The Hindu-Muslim question is for me a lifelong question. There was a time when I used to think that when that question was solved India’s political troubles would be over. Experience has taught me that it was only partly true. Untouchability I began to abhor when I was in my teens, But it was a question with me of religious and social reform. And though it has attained a great political importance its religious and social value is for me much greater. But I know to my cost that you and I hold different views on this very important question. And I know, too, that on broad politics of the country we see things from different angles. I would love to find a meeting ground between us on both the questions. I know your great ability and I would love to own you as a colleague and co-worker. But I must admit my failure to come nearer to you. If you can show me a way to a common meeting ground between us I would like to see it. Meanwhile, I must reconcile myself to the present unfortunate difference.

_The Bombay Chronicle_, 3-1-1945

---

\(^1\) Vide Appendix “A Resolution”, before 9-8-1944.

\(^2\) Which _inter alia_ read: “. . . the Hindu-Muslim problem is not the only communal problem that has to be settled. . . . there is a communal problem between the Hindus and the untouchables, which is also awaiting solution. . . . An all-round settlement between the Hindus and other minorities, I am sure, will become necessary if India’s political goal is to be achieved. . . . But, if you are anxious to solve the Hindu-untouchable problem as you are to solve the Hindu-Muslim problem, I shall be glad to formulate points on which a settlement is necessary. . . .”
366. LETTER TO M. VISVESVARAYYA

August 6, 1944

DEAR SIR VISVESVARAYYA,

It was good of you to send me such a full letter. In the political field one has to receive with as much good grace as is possible knock-out blows. I have therefore regarded it as a school for learning self-control and training in non-violence I should have thought that, having dabbled in the dewangiri of a big Indian State, you would not run away from the political field. This is not to lead you into any temptation. You have enriched the life of the country by your unrivalled engineering skill. I have been following too your writings on planned economy.

Besides your contribution as a great engineer, what has captivated me is the art you have cultivated of keeping up in old age robust physical and mental energy. I have not forgotten the way in which you used to climb up the Nandi Hill without any effort. I would like you to give the young men and women of the country the secret, as you have known it, of feeling young and vigorous even in old age. It is a rare gift in our country.

M. K. GANDHI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

367. LETTER TO S. K. BELVALKAR

August 6, 1944

DEAR DR. BELVALKAR,

I thank you for your letter. Usha has misled you if she told you that I had read through your volume on the Gita. I wish I could have found time to do so. What, however, I did tell her was that the volume was before me and from the little time I was able to give to it I found it fascinating and I expected to profit greatly by my study of it.

Though I call myself a devotee of the Gita I cannot lay claim to any scholarship. My knowledge of Sanskrit is limited and so is my knowledge of the Hindu scripture. All I can claim is an inexhaustible

1 The addressee was Dewan of Mysore State from 1912 to 1918.
2 Addressee’s daughter
love for them. However, I shall certainly give you my further reaction when I have been able to read through your book.

Of course I never thought that you wrote your book with any commercial intention.

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

368. TELEGRAM TO M. R. JAYAKAR

WARDHAGANI,
August 7, 1944

DR. JAYAKAR
WINTER ROAD
BOMBAY
SAPRU3 COMING WEDNESDAY. PLEASE COME IF CONVENIENT.

GANDHI

Gandhi-Jayakar Papers: File No. 826. Courtesy: National Archives of India

369. LETTER TO AMRIT KAUR

August 7, 1944

CHI. AMRIT,2

I have your letters. I was glad S.1 was able to go to Simla and give you some time. She is still in Poona looking after Manjula4. Did I tell you that Dr. Jivraj Mehta was with me? I must ask him to write to you. He helps in a variety of ways and looks after my body without the slightest fuss. I do not even know that he is doing it. He is supposed to have come merely to keep company.

You must not worry.

Love to all.

BAPU

From the original: C.W. 4146. Courtesy: Amrit Kaur. Also G.N. 7781

1 T. B. Sapru
2 The superscription in this and the subsequent letters to the addressee is in Devanagari script.
3 Dr. Sushila Nayyar
4 Vrajlal Gandhi’s daughter who had paralysis of the face following a mastoid operation.
370. LETTER TO ANASUYABEHN SARABHAI

SEVAGRAM,
August 7, 1944

CHI. ANASUYABEHN,

I was wondering why I had not received the customary rakhadi from you. Well, I got it today. Has Shankerlal also returned? What are your plans?

Blessings to all of you. I am all right.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI ANASUYABEHN
MARINE DRIVE
BOMBAY

From the Gujarati original: S. N. 32769

371. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA

August 7, 1944

CHI. KRISHNACHANDRA,

This is a painful story. There is only one remedy for this, viz., to act as Chimanlal¹ advises. You should yourself talk it over with him. Regard me as non-existent. If a difference still remains in your viewpoints, then please accept his. In no case, however, should there be ideological differences. If there is any let me know.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4443

¹ Chimanlal Shah
372. INTERVIEW TO UNITED PRESS OF INDIA

SEVAGRAM,
August 7, 1944

QUESTION: You said in Panchgani: “All my recent declarations are quite consistent with all my previous declarations on the communal problem.” But in the past you had said: “Partition means a patent untruth. My whole soul rebels against the idea . . . . To assent to such a doctrine is for me denial of God (Harijan, 13-4-1940).” The partition proposal has altered the face of the Hindu-Muslim problem. I have called it an untruth. There can be no compromise with it . . . . It cannot come by honourable agreement (Harijan, 4-5-1940). I consider vivisection of India to be a sin . . . . (Harijan, 24-5-1942).” Would you kindly enlighten me how they are consistent? The Mahasabhaites seem to argue in the above style and hence clarification is sought.

ANSWER: Though I would avoid answering all questions on the subject before the forthcoming meeting between Quaid-e-Azam and me, I must not postpone answering yours. I know my present attitude has puzzled and pained many people. I have not revised the opinion quoted by you. At the same time that I made the statement you refer to, I was also a party to the self-determination resolution of the A. I. C. C. I hold that the Rajaji Formula gives effect to that resolution. I would however urge critics not to mind my inconsistencies, so-called or real. Let them examine the question on merits and bless the effort if they can.

Q. What is your reaction to Mr. Jinnah’s speech? If Mr. Jinnah does not accept your proposal or your talks with him end in failure, will you withdraw your support to Rajaji’s proposals or will the proposals stand?

A. I do not believe in dying before my death. I do not approach the forthcoming visit with the expectation of failure. I always hope for the best and prepare for the worst. I would therefore ask you not to anticipate failure. Ask me when failure stares you and me in the face.

1 Vide “My Position”, 9-4-1940.
2 Vide “Hindu-Muslim Tangle”, 29-4-1940.
3 Vide “Question Box”, 18-5-1942.
4 Presiding over the half-yearly session of the All-India Muslim League Council at Lahore on July 30, M. A. Jinnah spoke at length criticizing Rajagopalachari’s Formula and Gandhiji’s association with it.
Q. What have you got to say to the Sikhs who have expressed apprehension in the All-Party Sikh Conference at [Amritsar] that you will further surrender to the Muslim League?

A. My Sikh friends are unnecessarily perturbed. I can settle nothing for anybody but myself. The Congress Resolution is a sacred trust and I have no doubt that it will be discharged fully. Brave people are never frightened by bogeys. Let the Sikh friends examine the proposal on merits. And if they find an evident flaw in it, I shall correct it and so, I am sure, will the Quaid-e-Azam if he is satisfied that there is a flaw.

Gandhi-Jinnah Talks, pp. 83-4; also The Hindu, 9-8-1944

373. LETTER TO JOACHIM ALVA

[Before August 8, 1944]

You should save every ounce of my energy. You have abundant material from my writings on the Press. . . . You should have pity on me. . . . I should make no exception. If I do, I shall be done for. Say you have excused me.

The Bombay Chronicle, 15-8-1944

374. LETTER TO TEJ BAHADUR SAPRU

[Before August 8, 1944]

DEAR SIR TEJ,

I have put P. on an important job. I presume you will reach Wardha in the evening on 8th. Though I have gained much by my stay in P[anch]gani, I must be cautious. Mornings are, therefore,

---

1 The source has “Lahore”. The Working Committee of the All-Parties Sikh Conference, which met on August 1, rejected the Rajaji Formula.
2 Editor, Forum
3 The letter was written in connection with the first anniversary of Forum which fell on August 8, 1944.
4 Omissions as in the source
5 ibid
6 Gandhiji had returned to Wardha from Panchgani on August 3, 1944 and had discussions with the addressee on August 9, 1944. From the reference to the addressee reaching Wardha on August 8, it appears that the letter was written before that date.
devoted to massage. I am at your disposal after 12 on 9th. K. B. has made all arrangements for your stay in Wardha. You will be received at the station on 8th and you decide where you will stay. If I have misunderstood your letter, you will please wire. The rest when we meet.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library.
Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

375. STATEMENT TO THE PRESS

August 8, 1944

The question asked is whether my statement contemplates civil disobedience or its avoidance. It asserts a universal right which becomes a duty when there is an attack upon its ordinary exercise. It therefore contemplates civil disobedience if Government wants it. Twenty-five citizens of Bombay sent notices on the 3rd instant to the Police Commissioner of their intention to march in batches of five and offer silent prayers and sing Jhandavandan and Vandemataram at a common gathering place and asked for permission to perform the act.1 If permission is not granted, there will certainly be disobedience. In order that the public may not know the time or place, the Police Commissioner has been fully informed, while the public has not been. If this extraordinary forbearance is not appreciated and the authorities withhold permission and interfere with the simple symbolic exercise of a public right, the fault would be that of the authorities. The Press and the public have to judge whether, under circumstances such as these, civil disobedience does not become a duty.

The Hindu, 10-8-1944

1 Vide Appendix “Draft Letter to the Commissioner of Police, Bombay”, after 19-8-1944.
DEAR RAJA SAHEB,

Gandhiji has your letter of 16th inst.

Your argument is built partly on fallacy and partly on disregard of facts. Acceptance of the C.R. formula by Gandhiji concedes nothing but the insistent demand of the minorities for self-determination. It carries no other implication. Far from absolving the seceding units from ‘moral obligation’ to give their support to [the] freedom movement, it lays down that the separation can only come after attainment of complete independence with [the] co-operation of those who claim the right to secede. Further, it stipulates the creation of a special machinery for the joint administration of matters of common concern to the two sovereign states such as defence, foreign affairs, railways, currency, economic planning, etc. The provision embodying this arrangement will be an integral part of the charter for separation.

Nationalist Muslims are not let down by the formula, since they were parties to the self-determination resolution of the Working Committee that met at Delhi in April, 1942.

The need for them to stand by their principles will be even greater under independence. That will be the real testing time for them.

Yours sincerely,

RAJA GOVINDALAL SHIVLAL
SHRI SADAN
15 NARAYAN DABHAOLKAR ROAD
MALABAR HILL
BOMBAY-6

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar
DEAR FRIEND,

I do not know whether I sent you any reply to your letter of 24th July to Bapu. This is just to say that he will thankfully accept the donation of Rs. 10,000/- which Shrimati Jasodabai Lokoomal proposes to make.

As desired by her it will be equally divided between the Harijan and the Rashtrabhasha cause.

He has also accepted your request and you therefore would be free to draw according to requirement for Rashtrabhasha work in Sind from the portion earmarked for [the] Rashtrabhasha cause.

I have sent a copy of your letter and Bapu’s directions on that to Shri Shantikumar Morarjee.

Yours sincerely,

SHRI PRATAP DIALDAS
HYDERABAD
SIND

From a copy : Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy : Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

DR. SHYAMA PRASAD MOOKERJEE
ASUTOOSH MOOKERJEE ROAD
CALCUTTA
YOU MAY PUBLISH YOUR LETTER 7TH INSTANT BUT YOUR INTERPRETATION OF MY REMARKS REQUIRES AMENDMENT. ADVISE AWAITING MEETING.

GANDHI

From a copy : Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar
DEAR SIR,

With reference to your letter of 2nd inst., since the Oxford University Press is not conducted for profit, I should think that a net profit being stipulated for, there should be no objection to a minimum profit. The only inducement to the Navajivan Trust, and for that matter also for me, to have a well-known concern like yours publishing Shri R. K. Prabhu’s compilation can be to acquire the widest publicity possible outside India for it.

The Navajivan Press exists only for printing writings like Shri Prabhu’s compilation as cheaply as possible for Indian readers. The object therefore undoubtedly is to publish an edition as cheap as possible and certainly cheaper than yours. Therefore it would be improper to hold over publication of such an Indian edition till your stock is exhausted. If you rely chiefly on Indian sales, I think the contemplated publication by you might be dropped. Labours of the authors will not go unrewarded in any case. I will ask the Navajivan Trust to cover them and publish their compilation whenever they are in a position to do so.¹

Yours sincerely,

THE GENERAL MANAGER
OXFORD UNIVERSITY PRESS
POST BOX 31
BOMBAY

From a copy : Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library.
Courtesy : Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

¹Vide also “Draft Letter to Thacker & Co. and Oxford University Press”, 5-7-1944.
380. LETTER TO KAILASH NATH KATJU

ASHRAM, SEVAGRAM,
August 9, 1944

DEAR KATJUJI,

I had your letter of 24th July which I placed before Bapuji.

By the time this reaches you you will have seen the summary of Bapu’s recent talk with Dr. Shyama Prasad Mukherji—not the United Press summary that has appeared in the Bombay Chronicle of the 7th August, but the authentic and authorised version.

Gandhiji cannot and will not be party to an arrangement which implies freedom to wage war against India and imperil her defence. “That would be sin”, and it cannot be had by ‘agreement’. That would be a contradiction in terms.

Yours sincerely,

DR. K.N.KATJU
19 EDMONDSTONE ROAD
ALLAHABAD

From a copy : Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy : Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

381. SPEECH AT SEVAGRAM

August 9, 1944

Gandhiji made enquiries from the Superintendent of Police about local restrictions and he assured him that he would abide by them.

This day is different from the other days. Today you pray that God may bless Quaid-e-Azam and me with wisdom to reach a common understanding in the interest of India. Let this be your constant prayer as you go on spinning.¹

The Hindu 11-8-1944

¹ Gandhiji was opening the 60-minute non-stop mass spinning in the afternoon.
August 15 is the second anniversary of Mahadev Desai’s death. Two or three correspondents have administered a gentle rebuke. The following is my paraphrase of the first of their remarks:

You have become President of the Kasturba Memorial Fund Trust. Mahadev renounced everything for your sake and even laid down his life for you. He died at a much younger age than Kasturba and yet how much he achieved in that relatively short space of time! Kasturba was verily a sati, but while India has produced many satis, all will admit that it has produced only one Mahadev. If he had not chosen to throw in his lot with you, he might have been living today. His talents would have enabled him to achieve front rank distinction as a savant and man of letters. He might have even been rich, brought up his family in all material comfort and provided his son with the highest education. Instead, he chose to merge himself in you. You regarded him as your son. May I ask what you have done for him?

These sentiments seem to me to be natural. The contrast between the two is too striking to be missed. The one was ready to drop off like a fully ripe fruit. The other had yet to ripen and mature. Life still lay before Mahadev as ordinary standards go. He had aimed at living up to a hundred years. The amount of material that he had piled up in his voluminous note-books called for years of patient labour to work up and he had hoped to do all that. In his trunk was found a memo of my talks taken down on the day previous to his final end. Probably, none besides myself can today make them out, and even I don’t know to what use he would have put them. He was a living example of “the wise, who live and work as if they were born to immortality and everlasting youth”.

But, if all our dreams could be realized, life would become a phantasmagoria, and there would be utter chaos on

1 The Gujarati original appeared in Gujarat Samachar, 13-8-1944. This is an “authoritative translation” by Pyarelal.

2 "The wise should devote themselves to learning and worldly welfare as if they were immortal and would never grow old, and follow the path of dharma as if Death had seized them by the hair."
earth. God in His mercy, therefore, has ordained that His will alone should prevail on earth.

Mahadev, though an idealist and a dreamer, never allowed his feet to be taken off the firm earth. He, therefore, adorned everything that he attempted. To Mahadev’s admirers, I can only offer this consolation, that he lost nothing by his association with me. His dreams rose above scholarship or learning. Riches had no attraction for him. God had blessed him with high intellect and versatile tastes but what his soul thirsted for was the devotional spirit. Even before he came to me, he had assiduously sought and cultivated the company of devotees and men of God after his heart. One may say that it was in furtherance of this quest that he came to me and, not obtaining full satisfaction even with me, (shall I say) he turned his back upon me in the fullness of youth, leaving behind him his weeping relations and friends, and set forth to seek realization of his quest in the bosom of his Maker. The only fitting service that I can render his memory is to complete the work which he has left behind him unfinished, and to make myself worthy of his devotion—obviously a more difficult task than merely raising a fund for his memorial. It can be fulfilled only through Divine grace. Mahadev’s external goal was the attainment of swaraj; the inner, to fully realize in his own person his ideal of devotion, and if possible to share the same with others.1

The raising of a material memorial to the deceased’s memory is outside my scope. That is a task for his friends and admirers to take up. Does a father initiate a memorial for his son? I was not responsible for the Kasturba Memorial. In my previous statement2 I have explained its origin. I have become the President of the Committee only in order to ensure the use of the fund in accordance with its object. If friends and admirers of Mahadev similarly set up a committee to raise a memorial fund and invite me to become its president and give guidance for its proper use, I shall gladly accept it.3

A word to litterateurs. They know or should know that he put the charkha above literature. He took delight in spinning for hours. It was a daily duty. He would encroach upon his sleeping hours to finish

1 The Gujarati here adds: Mahadev did love showing off his erudition. Let no one have any illusion about it. However, he cast it off after coming to me.
2 Vide “Speech at Poona”, 1-7-1944.
3 The Gujarati here adds: “It has been my profession for fifty years.” The paragraph which follows is not found in the Gujarati original. his daily minimum of spinning. Why this insistence? Not, I assure them, to please me. He threw in his lot with me after much deliberation. I never knew him do a thing without conviction. He thought with me that the material salvation of India’s teeming but famishing millions was bound up with the charkha. He discovered too that this daily labour with the hand enriched whatever literary work he did. It gave it a reality which it otherwise lacked. The raising of funds is good and necessary. But a sincere imitation of Mahadev’s constructive work is better. The monetary contribution to a memorial fund ought not to be a substitute for the more solid appreciation.

_The Hindu_, 12-8-1944

383. LETTER TO CHIMANLAL SETALVAD

WARDHA,

August 11, 1944

I am writing to you in my mother tongue which I believe you will tolerate.

The Congress policy has been definite and determined. With this nothing can be mixed. An independent India cannot entertain any other stranger in its midst. The consent which I have given to a particular scheme depends upon the fact that it is based on a cardinal principle of the Congress. I command an influence over the masses and therefore I cannot hide that which I consider against the good of my country. An advantage would be taken of this situation by my opponents and this was not outside the pale of my thoughts. But this fear comes out of the weakness of our forces.

To remove this fear, the way lies in freely but respectfully expressing our opinion and only in this way can we conquer and win; this is my respectful opinion. Permit me to tell you that no particular work of mine has resulted in any loss to my country. At least I have never heard that it has. All your writings, I have read with great patience and care but I have always felt that you do not examine my side with patience and care. Your time is occupied mostly in different types of work and this is not beyond my constant thought.

In the end it seems to me that the substance of your letters leads

---

1 The Gujarati original is not available.
2 The addressee was against the Rajaji Formula and Gandhiji’s acceptance of it. to the inference that India is going to be for very long time under the rule and sway of the English. From your writings this appears to be India’s destiny. But my firm belief is quite the opposite of this. Moreover you crush our spirit and make us appear blind. Our leaders also forget this fundamental difference in our views. This is the reason I believe why you are so pessimistic and we so optimistic.

It is my sincere desire that a so-called rash step which I propose to take may not result in any loss to the country.

Your younger brother,
M. K. Gandhi

Sir Chimanlal Setalvad
Malabar Hill, Bombay

From a copy: File No. 3001/H-P. 129. Commissioner of Police, Bombay

384. LETTER TO DEVDAS GANDHI

Sevagram,
August 11, 1944

CHI. DEVDAS,

I have been forgetting to write about Dinshawji. In case you have not received a copy of my letter to him, I shall have one enclosed with this. We have to make the trust deed on these lines. Ghanshyamdas, Mahavir Prasad Poddar, Dinshaw, you and I will be the trustees. Ghanshyamdas was to talk to you about this matter. If he has not spoken to you, consult him before finalizing it. Send me the draft of the document. I believe it can be drafted in Hindi. It will have to be registered.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

---

1 The reference is to Gandhiji’s proposed talks with M. A. Jinnah.
2 Dinshaw K. Mehta
3 For the proposed nature-cure clinic; vide “Letter to Mahavir Prasad Poddar”, 17-8-1944.
4 G. D. Birla
385. LETTER TO JAYANTILAL

Sevagram,
August 11, 1944

Ch. Jayantilal,

I have your letter. Your modesty has vanquished me. If what you say is the whole truth, I have nothing to say. I shall use the money. I shall not disclose your name. You come to Sevagram after I am finished with Jinnah Saheb. We shall talk further. I shall try to understand you.

Blessings from
Bapu

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

386. NOTE TO JAGDISH K. MUNSHI

[On or before August 12, 1944]

1. Division of India is like poison to my mind; because I am also of the view that it is sinful to do so.

2. The Delhi Resolution of April 2[, 1942] was concerned with

---

1 Gandhiji dictated this note in Gujarati to the addressee, eldest son of K. M. Munshi, with the remark: “I intend appointing you as my lawyer and so listen to what I am saying and argue it out with Bapaji.” The Gujarati original however is not available. For K. M. Munshi’s letter dated August 9 to which this was a reply, vide Appendix “Letter from K. M. Munshi”, 9-8-1944. Regarding this note K. M. Munshi writes: “My opposition to the proposed negotiations with Jinnah evidently annoyed Gandhiji. For, before replying to me, he adopted the rather curious method of sending me a message dictated to my son who was staying with him. This was a warning to me. In my long and intimate association with him, such a thing had never happened before, nor after.”

2 From the contents it is obvious that this note was written before the letter to K. M. Munshi dated August 12, 1944; vide the following item.

3 The source says in a footnote that the resolution was passed on April 11, 1942. According to The Indian Annual Register the resolution was communicated to Sir Stafford Cripps on April 2. It was however released to the Press on April 11 after the failure of the negotiations. For the text of the resolution, vide Appendix “A Resolution”, before 9-8-1944.
self-determination. After this on April 30\(^1\), Rajaji’s Resolution was turned down and Jagat Narayan’s Resolution\(^2\) about not partitioning India was adopted. In my view this was a highly inappropriate and hasty step and due to this alone Jinnah has been able to spread poison in the Muslim masses.

3. I had discussed this matter with Maulana\(^3\) also. According to him, in spite of Jagat Narayan’s Resolution, I still retain the authority to discuss the matter with Jinnah because the Resolution of April 2 still stands.

4. Later on when I had negotiations with Jinnah I had asked him whether he would accept help from a foreign Power if he was granted a sovereign State. To this he said: “Yes.”

   I then asked him if, after securing that help, he would invade India. To this (also) he said: “Yes.”

   Then I told him: “It would be a sin to do such a thing and I cannot be a party to it.”

5. When Dr. Latif\(^4\) mentioned Pakistan I asked him to discuss the question with Maulana; but it was in deference to Maulana’s wish that I discussed it with him.

6. Rajaji’s offer does not seem to have the virulence of his earlier talk and hence I am in agreement with it. According to this offer if there can be a separate treaty regarding Defence, Foreign Affairs and Communications, I do not see any harm in giving him the rest. And after this, Pakistan seems to have no meaning at all.

7. It is not that everybody has been in agreement with me about everything from the beginning of [my] life. There is bound to be a difference of opinion and it is good that it is there. But nobody has ever told me that I have done anything in bad faith. Thus it was that I had won over Motilal\(^5\), C. R. Das and others. In spite of difference of opinion they often came to me and shed tears when they saw my

---

1 “April 29” according to a footnote in the source.
2 Which read: “The A.I.C.C. is of opinion that any proposal to disintegrate India by giving liberty to any component State or territorial unit to secede from the Indian Union or Federation will be detrimental to the best interests of the people of the different States and provinces and the country as a whole and the Congress, therefore, cannot agree to any such proposal.”
3 Abul Kalam Azad, Congress President
4 Syed Abdul Latif
5 Motilal Nehru
determination to abide by Truth. From his death-bed C. R. Das had enjoined upon his followers: “Do as this man says. He is a true leader.” I wish to conquer even Jinnah with trust and love. I have no other weapons at all.

8. Jinnah too has complete faith in me. He knows that I have no axe to grind in these negotiations. And he seems to have somewhat softened by my last letter\(^1\), and hence, my only advice can be that at such a time nobody should create any obstacle. Jinnah has hated me since the day I asked him in a meeting to give up English and speak in Gujarati. Sir Chimanlal Setalvad also feels the same way about me from that day and it has not changed to this day.

9. Jinnah is definitely not unselfish. He is prone to be easily led by others because of his vanity. (Just) because I am going to meet him I am not led away by him. I have not accepted everything that he has said. Otherwise it would mean that he has won me round. That is why even when I meet him it will be with some misgivings.

10. Munshi has raised a new cry, and I cannot stop him. And it would not befit me even if I did it.

11. But Munshi very much loves to dominate everywhere and become a leader. I know that everybody hates him for that reason. Everybody believes that even in the Congress he wants to set up his own protagonists. But how can one prevent a person if he is capable of spreading his influence because of his own power? Only the person who has all his teeth intact can crack a betel-nut and so, there is no need to be scared of him. He seems to be much perturbed. Hence, at such a time we should do only that which we feel is correct. If he shows me the statement\(^2\), I shall certainly go through it.\(^3\)

---

\(^1\) Vide “Letter to M. A. Jinnah”, 17-7-1944.

\(^2\) Vide “Note to K. M. Munshi”, after 14-8-1944.

\(^3\) This is followed by the following note, presumably by the addressee:

Rajaji’s and Dr. Subbaroyan’s talks would imply the following:

1. Gandhiji and all others believe that the negotiations will most probably break down and maybe we shall have to court imprisonment.

2. Gandhiji feels that if these negotiations do not have the sanction of the people, it would mean that it is his last contribution to politics, and he would have to make his exit for good.

3. All will be released by September 15.
387. TELEGRAM TO ANIL CHANDRA

Express

August 12, 1944

ANIL CHANDRA
32 NANDAN ROAD
CALCUTTA
PROVISIONALLY THIRD SEPTEMBER SEVAGRAM. WRITING.

GANDHI

From a copy : Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library.
Courtesy : Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

388. LETTER TO K. M. MUNSHI

August 12, 1944

BHAJ MUNSHI,

Your letter¹. I have told a few things to Jagdish² but I am still writing this reply for your satisfaction. It does not matter if others do not understand me. You are among those who do know me. I am sure you know that, in spite of my accepting Akhand³ Hindustan on principle, I am the originator of the Congress principle of self-determination. A believer in non-violence, I can maintain the unity of India only if I accept the freedom of every part. The moment I felt that the Pakistan of Jinnah’s imagination was sinful, I started believing in the Congress principle of self-determination, for instance, during my talks with Dr. Latif.

I understand what you have written about the Punjab. I shall study whatever comes from there. If I have committed a mistake, it would not take long to put me right. All my statements imply the usual proviso that mistakes, if any, should be provided for. I would certainly find no fault at all if you fearlessly oppose Rajaji’s Formula. Where the intentions are honest, fear of public blame has no place at all. Possibly your statement will not be ready by the time I meet ¹ Vide Appendix “Letter from K. M. Munshi”, 9-8-1944.

² Vide the preceding item.
³ Undivided
Jinnah. But if you have prepared it, do send it. I shall go through it. If it needs to be improved or changed, I shall do so. Have no fear. I shall do nothing in haste. If you have time and if you think it is necessary, meet Rajaji and me. And I think it will certainly be necessary to meet after our interview.

_Blessings from_

_BAPU_

From Gujarati: C.W. 7680. Courtesy: K. M. Munshi

389. LETTER TO RAMESHWAR DAS BIRLA

_August 12, 1944_

_BHAI RAMESHWAR DAS_,

I have been wanting since long to write to you but just couldn’t find the time. However, now I must. Jinnah Saheb’s letter may arrive any time now. I have written to him to let me know three or four days in advance. I am under a great deal of pressure that in no case should I put up at Birla House.\(^1\) I have plainly said that I cannot give up staying at Birla House without any reason. The question arises only if for some reason my stay at Birla House is deemed improper. In that case you should not hesitate to tell me. This issue arose in Poona also, and at that time it was agreed that there could be no hesitation from your side. I do not remember if you were present then. I had discussed the matter with Ghanshyamdas. By way of caution and in order to safeguard your interests, it is my duty to ask you now that I will be leaving for Bombay shortly.

The other matter is more important though it is not as urgent as the question of where to stay in Bombay. If I am about to be arrested it will give me some satisfaction if I am able to accomplish all that I must before my arrest. I believe that the work of the Talimi Sangh\(^2\) is quite valuable, and I wish to arrange for half a lakh of rupees for it. I wish to return the money that was received as donation for Mirabehn. It would only be proper to return it to her. Normally the money for the Talimi Sangh must be drawn from the Satyagraha Ashram funds. There is some money there but Narandas has invested

\(^1\) Some friends had argued that it would not be in the interests of the Birla family if Gandhiji were to be again arrested while staying with them.

\(^2\) Hindustani Talimi Sangh
it in constructive work. I can draw upon it but I can only do so at the cost of that work. And as far as possible I don’t want to do that. All told, it may require half a lakh or one lakh. I do not know the exact amount that has to be paid. The amounts that have been coming over the years are registered as charities, and it takes time to trace them out. All the books of the Ashram are lying here and there. To trace out such amounts even from well-maintained ledgers is like seeking a needle in a haystack. Nevertheless I have given instructions that all such accounts should be examined.

There is some miscellaneous expenditure too. Something has to be done about that. That will require about half a lakh, though I have not figured out the exact sum.

Can you easily provide for all this? You can certainly say ‘no’ without any hesitation. All my undertakings are in the hands of God. If God does not wish that a particular work should be held up, He provides me with the means through someone or another as His agent. Hence, even if I do not get the money I will not be angry with God or with you. Till now I have never cut the tree under which I have taken shelter and with God’s grace I shall not do so in future.

I hope all of you are keeping well. I am sending this letter with Chi. Jagdish. He has come here with Bhai Munshi’s letter1. Nowadays it is difficult to decide what should and what should not be sent by post.

Blessings from
BAPU

From the Hindi original: C.W. 8060. Courtesy: G. D. Birla

390. LETTER TO DR. GOPICHAND BHARGAVA

August 12, 1944

BHAJ GOPICHAND,

I have read your letter to Pyarelal. Munshiji had been there and he has posted me with news from there.

What you write about Rajaji is not correct. I have already discussed the matter with Rajaji. Whatever be the case, I am not going to meet him2 with that in mind. To me, Rajaji’s formula is the final

1 Vide “Letter to K. M. Munshi”, 12-8-1944.
2 M. A. Jinnah
thing. If it is proved that there is any fault in it, I can amend it. You at least should not have any fear in your mind. If anybody from Puniab desires to meet me, I shall certainly meet him. For instance people from Bengal were here. Even if I have not been able to satisfy them, at least I have succeeded in removing their feeling of disappointment. In fact my impression is that I have even been able to satisfy them. Even if somebody cannot come here from Punjab, he can certainly write.

You will have recovered your health.

From a copy of the Hindi : Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy : Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

391. TELEGRAM TO M. A. JINNAH

Express August 13, 1944
QUAID-E-AZAM JINNAH
MOUNT PLEASANT ROAD
BOMBAY
THANKS WIRE JUST RECEIVED. NEXT SATURDAY FOUR AFTERNOON SUITS ME.

GANDHI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

392. LETTER TO UMASHANKAR DIXIT

ASHRAM, SEVAGRAM,
August 14, 1944

DEAR DIXIT,

Gandhiji had your letter of the 10th instant.
He would naturally like to know your views, but he has hardly any time left, every available minute being already booked up, to give an appointment before leaving for Bombay.

He expects to be in Bombay for only a day or so. In case his stay there is extended you can try to see him in Bombay.

In the meantime he would like you to send him your formula.

Yours sincerely,

SHRI UMASHANKAR DIXIT
231-234 KALBADEVI ROAD
BOMBAY
393. LETTER TO VALJI G. DESAI

SEVAGRAM,
August 14, 1944

CHI. VALJI,

I feel relieved that I am able to pay off today this measure of my debt to you. I feel that something still remains to be paid. You are not bound to accept the changes I have suggested. You may accept them if you feel that they are improvements. This will be sent by registered post.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 7499. Courtesy: Valji G. Desai

394. LETTER TO LILAVATI ASAR

SEVAGRAM,
August 14, 1944

CHI. LILI,

You are still what you were at the age of fourteen-extremely restless and scared and never satisfied in any situation whatever. Must you go on like this the whole of your life? Why can you not understand the simple thing that you are engaged in studies and it is your duty to complete them? The Ashram teaches you to do only limited work of service while carrying on the studies. Try to understand this if you can. Even if you do not understand, you will hear nothing else from me. Think of something else only when you have completed your studies.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI LILAVATIBEHN UDESHI
G. E. MEDICAL COLLEGE
LADIES STUDENTS’ HOSTEL
PAREL, G.I.P. RLY.
BOMBAY

From a copy Gujarati original: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar
395. NOTE TO K. M. MUNSHI

[After August 14, 1944]¹

My reluctance to comment on the Rajaji Formula has led to my attitude being misunderstood by many friends all over the country.

On the whole it is my advice that you should maintain peace till the conference to be held between us is over.

BAPU

I cannot approve of the Rajaji Formula. The division of a Hindu and a Muslim area is conditional in the Formula. . . . A partition, on the other hand, will enable the Hindus and Muslims in those provinces to settle down in their respective areas.

The second argument does not seem to support the first One.

My objections to the Rajaji Formula, however, go deeper. . . . The force behind disruptionism is the urge to convert Islam in India into a religio-political party and to dominate the country by overawing the Nationalists into submission. . . . Mr. Jinnah’s recent utterances are too fresh to be forgotten easily. He will accept no alliance on a conditional acceptance of Pakistan as in the Formula, and if any is made it will not last a day after the principle of Pakistan is accepted by the Nationalists.

These objections are not deeply rooted. If you have no better argument, nothing will be lost by remaining silent.³

Pilgrimage to Freedom, pp. 435-6

¹ The addressee had sent the draft of his statement to Gandhiji to “suggest changes if necessary”, along with his letter dated August 14, 1944. The draft, from which only extracts are reproduced here, was in English. Gandhiji’s comments in Gujarati were published along with the English translation.

² ibid

³ The statement was not issued to the Press.
396. LETTER TO TARA SINGH

SEVAGRAM,
August 15, 1944

DEAR MASTER TARA SINGH,

I thank you for your reasoned letter of the 5th instant. It came into my hands only today. It was received here on the 10th. The post has become very heavy. Even important letters such as yours do not come into my hands immediately they are received. I have not so recovered as to permit my working all hours of the day. This preface is merely to show you the importance I attach to your letter.

But nothing is lost by the delay. We shall come to no final terms. The smallest interest will have the same weight as the largest. That is the requirement of my creed. It is a lapse if I do not live up to it. With this assurance, I would leave you for the time being. Pray that both of us may have the strength to do what is wholly right and not to tone down the right for the sake of expediency.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

The Hindu, 8-10-1944

397. LETTER TO KONDA VENKATAPPAYYA

August 15, 1944

MY DEAR VENKATAPPAYYA,

I have your two letters and your three notes. You are truly amazing. I suppose you are much older than I. But your energy never wanes. May it be always thus. How about Savitri?

With love,

BAPU

From a photostat: G.N. 3226

1 Releasing the letter to the Press, Sarmukh Singh Jhabal, a Sikh Congressman of the Punjab, had stated: “Master Tara Singh released his own letter to Gandhiji with regard to the Rajaji Formula, but Gandhiji’s reply has not been published, although it was in Masterji’s hands at the time he released his own letter.”
398. LETTER TO M. R. JAYAKAR

August 15, 1944

DEAR DR. JAYAKAR,

I am grateful to you for your two letters. The long one is illuminating. I am aware of the dangers. I am not afraid of coming away with empty hands.¹ I am doing what I have done all my life. I know you believe in the all-pervading Deity. I ask you to pray that I may be blessed with the strength to do the right thing.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

Gandhi-Jayakar Papers: File No. 826. Courtesy: National Archives of India

399. LETTER TO DADACHANJII

August 15, 1944

DEAR DADACHANJII,

I have read your letter to Pyarelalji. You are too lawyer-like for my taste. Your goodness is marred by your lawyer-likeness. You should have mercy on me and mine. We are all overworked and I am an ailing man though in harness. I know the Indo-Burman question but the way is not clear to me. That was all that Pyarelal meant though he could not convey his meaning to you. Can you goad a willing horse? You have owned horses, motors, etc. Just recall your experience of your horses and your friends. Believe me to be more than a willing horse.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹The reference is to the proposed meeting with M. A. Jinnah.
400. LETTER TO DAHYABHAI V. PATEL

August 15, 1944

CHI. DAHYABHAI,

I was pressed hard to stay with you but I did not yield. I cannot leave Birla House just because my staying there displeases some. I should certainly like to stay with you and moreover I have never seen your home. But I must do what I think is my duty.¹

I am hoping to arrive there on Saturday. It is possible that I might return on Sunday.

Blessings to all from

BAPU

SHRI DAHYABHAI PATEL

68 MARINE DRIVE

BOMBAY

[From Gujarati]

Bapuna Patro-4: Manibehn Patelnne, p. 162

401. LETTER TO SHANTIKUMAR AND SUMATI MORARJEE

August 15, 1944

CHI. SHANTIKUMAR AND SUMATI,

We are all arriving there on Saturday. We shall be staying at Birla House. You should both call there, as you are aware what comforts I require at present.² The rest when we meet.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 848

¹ Vide also “Letter to Rameshwardas Birla”, 12-8-1944
² Gandhiji had stayed with the addressees while convalescing at Juhu from May 11 to June 15, 1944.
402. INTERVIEW TO DUTY SOCIETY DEPUTATION

SEVAGRAM,
August 15, 1944

Mahatma Gandhi was in a cheerful mood talking to the deputationists and was smiling throughout. When asked by the Mahatma, Mr. Ibadat Yar Khan explained to him about the development that has taken place during the last 20 years, specially the establishment of an engineering college and the foundation of a medical college during the term of Dr. Sir Ziauddin Ahmed, the Vice-Chancellor of the University . . .

The deputation also discussed the present political situation with the Mahatma and urged for an honourable settlement between the League and the Congress in the forthcoming meeting of the two great leaders of the Hindus and the Muslims. Mr. Gandhi showed his willingness to concede every reasonable demand of the Mussalmans and said:

I want that myself and the Quaid-e-Azam should be locked up and should not be allowed to come out till we come to some decision to remove this deadlock.

The members of the deputation again requested him to end the deadlock and see India governed by Indians themselves for which he had been trying for such a long time. Gandhiji replied:

I wish to see a free India in my lifetime, for God knows what will happen when I am no more.

The Bombay Chronicle, 20-8-1944

403. ADVICE TO ASSAM CONGRESS LEGISLATORS

[Before August 16, 1944]

The United Press learns that Gandhiji has advised the Assam Congress legislators who are outside jail to attend the Legislature to register their views on important matters such as land settlement, food, evacuation, etc.

Regarding the question of Congressmen co-operating with Government measures with regard to the food problem, Gandhiji is understood to have stated that co-operation [with] Government measures regarding the food problem in the country was impossible.

The Bombay Chronicle, 17-8-1944

1 Of the Aligarh Muslim University, led by Ibadat Yar Khan and consisting of Mohammed Ashfaq, Amiruddin Alvi and A. M. Safi
2 The report of this and the following item appeared under the dateline: “Gauhati, August 16”.

VOL. 84 : 27 JANUARY, 1944 - 1 OCTOBER, 1944

299
404. MESSAGE TO PEOPLE OF ASSAM

[Before August 16, 1944]

I have no message of hope for my Assamese brothers and sisters but I send my deep sympathy for them. May God bless you all to come out of the ordeal successfully.

The Bombay Chronicle, 17-8-1944

405. LETTER TO SATIS CHANDRA DAS GUPTA

SEVAGRAM,
August 16, 1944

BHAJ SATIS BABU,

Received your letter. Balvantsinha has well apprised me of your work. I am amazed at your tireless efforts. Isn’t it your discovery that cow’s milk is available in so much quantity in Bengal? And that the milkmen are all Muslims! Balvantsinha has become your devotee. I like it. He himself is a goseva enthusiast. He works hard. I have found his knowledge to be haphazard and his outlook is not scientific. He therefore needs guidance. He has strongly refuted this opinion and believes—or had been believing—that I have, maybe unknowingly, done him an injustice. There always has been antagonism between Parnerkar\(^1\) and Balvantsinha and it has always caused me trouble. I was not able to take from them as much work as I wanted to because of this antagonism. Now Parnerkar is also there and he has got the work of his liking. He also loves to serve the cow. I happily watch from this distance this confluence of the three and also hope that its outcome will be good.

I have a few minutes during which I am dictating this letter. You must have understood the reason for my giving a little background. I shall be satisfied if both of them remain there and you can take full work from them although both are required here. The work of the goshala here goes on but perhaps it is not satisfactory. I do not at all want either of them to leave your work to come here. Nor do I want both of them to come here. I can have no definite programme. God only knows what will happen. I am reaching Bombay on the 19th. Let

---

\(^1\) Yashwant M. Parnerkar us see what happens.

I hope Hemprabha\(^1\) is all right, and Arun\(^2\), too.

Amtul Salaam has reached there. She certainly will meet you. She will work under Bhagirathi.

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

406. LETTER TO MAHAVIR PRASAD PODDAR

August 17, 1944

MAHAVIR PRASAD,

I do not know whether Ghanshyamdas has told you about my scheme for nature cure. If my ideas can be implemented, I would have used, to the best of my ability, all my God-given talents. These ideas came to me while I was at Dinshaw’s Arogya Bhavan\(^3\). I shall not give a full account of their evolution. Here I am giving you in short the ideas in their final form.

Select a plot of a thousand acres near any village. It will be better if the land is situated in a salubrious region. It does not matter if the village is far away from a town or the railway station. Select two such plots or at least one. Get a layout of the land made right now—even before purchasing the land. Keep in view the following points while making the plan. Have the roads marked out in the plan. One road shall be broad but right now it will not be made motorable, only bullock-carts or horse-driven carriages will ply on it. The plot must be provided with fresh water. There should be a nice swimming-pool, a gymnasium or two to provide facilities for physical exercise. Arrangement should be made to grow fruits, trees, vegetables and foodgrains. There shall be facilities on this land to treat patients by nature-cure methods. Nature cure will include the various methods of mud-pack, treatment with water, such as hip-bath, friction-bath, steam-bath, etc., treatment with light, such as sun-bath, suryanamaskara\(^4\), moon-bath, watching the stars, utilizing all the lights of the rainbow through the medium of cloth, water, glass bottle, etc., treatment with air such as pranayama\(^5\), subsisting on air, etc. In the

\(^1\) Addressee’s wife
\(^2\) Addressee’s son
\(^3\) At Poona
\(^4\) Name of an exercise; literally, ‘worship of the Sun’
\(^5\) Breathing exercises initial stage, use of modern devices like electricity, etc., will be avoided. This is with a view to initially using mechanical aids to the minimum and developing such devices as the villagers can use easily as also exploring their usefulness. Not only will sick persons be treated in this institution, but even normal persons likely to benefit from nature cure will be admitted to it. We should try to give vigour and vitality to the weak. Children will be admitted to the institution with this view, and efforts will be made to build their health according to the laws of nature. Health will be our prime concern. Special emphasis will be placed on preservation and improvement of health. Thus the aim of this institution will be self-reliance in all respects and its message will be universal. It will tend to become an ideal village with facilities for basic education and village industries like khadi, etc. Initially it will certainly require a lot of money but I cannot think of a better use of money than this. A trust should be constituted for this purpose. I had thought of Dinshaw Mehta, Ghanshyamdas, and myself as trustees; Ghanshyamdas added two more—Devdas and you. I had of course thought of you but I had no idea how far you could go with this. If I accept your name you should free yourself from all other work and devote yourself to this work. Ghanshyamdas believes in nature cure and he can either attract donations or give one himself. Devdas will fulfil this function by becoming Ghanshyamdas’s representative. I will be the guide—since the whole idea is mine. It can be said that I am a devotee of nature cure for the last fifty years. This venture was conceived with the expectation that Dinshaw could be put in charge of fully implementing the ideas. And I shall like very much your joining this provided you can devote the rest of your life entirely to this work. Meet me at the earliest if you find these ideas good enough.

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
407. INTERVIEW TO PEGGY DURDIN

[After August 17, 1944]¹

Q. Does the Viceroy’s rejection of your offer in any way lessen the desirability of or urgency for a communal settlement now?

A. Not in the least. As I have already said in several interviews the simultaneous publication of my offer to the Viceroy and the Rajaji Formula established a wholly unintended connection between the two. The rejection makes the urgency doubly urgent. This I say although I believe that past experience shows that so long as there is a third party dividing communities and interests there is no adjustment possible. This has never meant for me that I should not strive for a settlement even before independence.

Q. From the point of view of non-violence, is it not preferable for a national government to take office after, rather than during, the present war?

A. Not if a national government comes into being even during the war by the spontaneous act of Great Britain or the Allies. For then the war itself will have changed its course and the peace to come will be wholly honourable and calculated to promote non-violence.

Q. Would not a strong group of nationalist ministers, Hindu and Muslim, responsible under the present constitution to the Viceroy rather than to the Legislature in point of fact, nullify the Viceregal veto? Would not a common front presented by strong nationalist leaders make acceptance of their programme and plans inevitable?

A. No such manipulation can possibly electrify the whole nation. Such an experiment is doomed to failure ab initio. It would lack trust on the part of the British Government in the people of India.

Q. I am not clear on your attitude toward mass civil disobedience. Am I right in thinking that you would consider its use justified if your appeal to the Viceroy and the talks with Mr. Jinnah fail?

A. Mass civil disobedience can only take place if other efforts to

---

¹ Correspondent of Time and Life. The source had reproduced the interview from The Free Press Journal.
² The correspondent met Gandhiji in August shortly after the Viceroy’s rejection of Gandhiji’s proposals. Gandhiji’s correspondence with the Viceroy was released to the Press on August 17, 1944.
³ Vide Appendix “Letter from Lord Wavell”, 15-8-1944.
achieve the object aimed at fail. Here the object is independence. Appeal to the Viceroy was for a settlement. The appeal having failed the case for civil disobedience is complete. Successful negotiations with the Quaid-e-Azam need not affect the case for civil disobedience. But as I have said—for reasons I need not enter into here but which I have already publicly stated—I may not offer civil disobedience at the present moment. Mass civil disobedience is conceived as an entirely effective substitute for a bloody war and is any day far superior to it. But just as wars do not take place just for the sake of war, but only for a cause just or unjust, mass civil disobedience can take place only for a cause wholly just. If I have understood your question correctly, this answer ought to set at rest all your doubts.

Q. By American management of a section of the Burma-Assam Railway and part of the port of Calcutta I think we can say that the war in Burma is being shortened. Would a national government permit such American controls?

A. I have already answered the question in my previous public statements. Permission for all such controls is clearly indicated under my offer. Of course, it is only for the purpose of the war.

Q. Would you consider courting rearrest if your proposals or those of yourself and Mr. Jinnah are not accepted?

A. I really do not know future plans. You will believe me when I say that they are in God’s hands.

Q. Non-violence may be relative, not absolute. Some participation in the already existing violence, participation for the purpose of producing real and lasting peace, may be unavoidable and even desirable. Is this a fair statement of the position?

A. It is a fair statement. I cannot challenge it merely because it is likely to lead to dangerous abuse from the non-violent standpoint. Pure unmixed non-violence is impossible as Euclid’s line.

Q. I understand your answer to mean that mass civil disobedience presents no solution of the present deadlock.

A. You are right.

Q. May I quote you as saying that the national government you conceive of would do nothing which, as far as the war in the Far East is concerned, would jeopardize one additional American life or which would lengthen the war for an American soldier—that such a government would on the contrary make every effort to hasten the conclusion of the war against Japan?

A. You will be safe in using the language as if it was mine.

The Hindu, 4-10-1944
408. TELEGRAM TO M. A. JINNAH

Express  SEVAGRAM,

QUAID-E-AZAM M. A. JINNAH
MOUNT PLEASANT ROAD
MALABAR HILL
BOMBAY

YOUR PHONE AND WIRE. DEEPLY. GRIEVED. HOPE YOU WILL SOON RECOVER. ANXIOUSLY AWAIT FURTHER NEWS.

GANDHI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

409. LETTER TO MRS. K. L. RALLIA RAM

SEVAGRAM,

DEAR SISTER,

Gandhiji had your letter of 4th August and the enclosure. He desires me to thank you for both. He is glad that you wrote. I regret that owing to heavy pressure of work he cannot write himself. Of course all genuine attempts to establish unity have his blessings.

Yours sincerely,

PYARELAL

MRS. K. L. RALLIA RAM
5 MASON ROAD
LAHORE, N.-W. RLY.

From the original: Gandhi Papers, File No, 84. Courtesy: National Archives of India
410. LETTER TO M. A. JINNAH

August 18, 1944

BHAI JINNAH,

How was it you fell ill all of a sudden? The whole world was looking forward to our meeting. I had entertained high hopes, although, I must admit, I had my own apprehensions. Hence when Fatimabehn' conveyed to me the news of your illness, I was shaken. I hope God will soon restore you to health, hasten the meeting to which the whole world is looking forward and that the meeting will lead to the welfare of India.

I hope Fatimabehn or someone else will keep me informed about your health.

Your brother,

M. K. GANDHI

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

411. LETTER TO MRIDULA SARABHAI

SEVAGRAM, WARDHA, C. P.,
August 18, 1944

CHI. MRIDULA,

I had your telegram. I have replied to it. I hope Kanjibhai will be able to come on Tuesday.

It is not right that you keep falling ill. I think you alone are to blame for it. You do not take care of your health and are stubborn. You are thereby wasting your body and you will end up by becoming unfit for work. Had you been a little patient and spent a fortnight at Panchgani, you would have greatly benefited. Had you come to Poona, I would have had you treated by Dinshaw right before my eyes. It is quite likely that you would have learnt a wonderful way to improve your health. I cannot accept your explanation that there was a lot of work to do in Gujarat. Satyagrahis of the front rank should also learn to look after their health. I have not written all this to admonish you but to warn you for the future. Keep me informed

1 Addressee’s sister

THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
about your health. If you are well enough to come here, do come. Bring your mosquito-net with you. Then you will have nothing to fear from the climate here.

I find the mosquitoes a nuisance, otherwise the air is good.

I cannot say when it will be possible for me to meet the Quaid-e-Azam.

_Blessings from_

_BAPU_

From the Gujarati original: C. W. 11117. Courtesy: Sarabhai Foundation

412. INTERVIEW TO ASSOCIATED PRESS OF INDIA

SEVAGRAM, (WARDHA),

August 18, 1944

The published correspondence\(^1\) shows that I left no stone unturned to conform to the Viceregal requirements. The final Government reply is positive proof that the British Government have no intention of winning public support. I do not confine myself to the Congress, since its main demand has been backed by almost all political parties.

So far as the technical winning of the war is concerned, they have evidently no need for such support. Moral support they seem to despise. Boiled down, the Viceroy’s proposition means that unless all the main parties agree as to the constitution of the future and there is agreement between the British Government and the main parties, there is to be no change in the constitutional position, and the Government of India as at present is to be carried on. The names of the parties given in the Government reply are illustrative only. I have no doubt that on due occasions more will be exhibited as from a conjurer’s bag and who knows how and when the British Government will agree to surrender control?

It is as clear as crystal that the British Government do not propose to give up the power they possess over four hundred millions, unless the latter develop strength enough to wrest it from them. I shall never lose hope that India will do so by purely moral means.

The problem of food, meanwhile, remains unsolved. Only a

\(^1\) Vide “Letter to Lord Wavell”, 15-7-1944 and 26/27-7-1944.
The collected works of Mahatma Gandhi

A NATIONAL GOVERNMENT envisaged by me can provide a genuine solution. Any other will be a mirage. It is most unfortunate that at this critical juncture the Quaid-e-Azam has fallen ill and under medical advice cannot see me till he is free from his illness. A proper heart-agreement between us can induce a revision of the firm refusal of the British Government as conveyed through His Excellency’s letter. Let us all pray that the Quaid-e-Azam may be soon restored enough to see me and that God may so dominate our hearts as to lead us to a right solution.

I would like to assure all parties to be affected by our solution that we will not come to any terms which will compromise or ignore a single interest. The Rajaji Formula is capable of being amended if it is found to contain flaws as many Hindu and Sikh friends have suggested it does. No solution is likely to last unless, on the face of it, it is right and is acceptable to the people of India as a whole.

The Bombay Chronicle, 19-8-1944

413. LETTER TO AMRITLAL SHETH

Sevagram,
August 19, 1944

Bhai Amritlal,

You have indeed removed my fear by taking a pledge. Even so I continue to have some fear. I have been wanting to write to you these many days, but have not had the time.

Why can’t you two warriors meet? I have not written to Shamaldas. We have a gigantic task before us. I have come to understand from our talks that you have started believing in ahimsa and truth. The strength derived from these two virtues should be organized. It seems to be going waste these days. True ahimsa needs no organization. It is always organized.

Chhaganlal has given me clippings from a Gujarati paper. I enclose the ones which concern you. Can’t newspapers be published without such advertisements?

Blessings from
Bapu

A. J. Sheth

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers, Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar
414. LETTER TO ANUGRAHA NARAYAN SINHA

SEVAGRAM,
August 19, 1944

BHAJ ANUGRAHA BABU,

In a worthy cause the effort carries its own blessing. Your work is noble, no doubt, still, if you need my blessings, you have them. I hope Shrikrishna Babu and you are in good health. Write to me about Rajendra Babu.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

415. LETTER TO M. R. JAYAKAR

SEVAGRAM, WARDHA,
August 20, 1944

DEAR DR. JAYAKAR,

Many thanks for your letter of 17th instant [and] good wishes. Do you know for the moment our meeting has been delayed owing to Quaid-e-Azam’s illness?

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI
[PS.]

Your letter which was marked for express delivery was received only today.

Gandhi-Jayakar Papers: File No. 826. Courtesy: National Archives of India

1Which, inter alia, read: “I wish you all success in your efforts, although I feel more or less certain that, between the arrogance of the Government of India and the equal arrogance of the Muslim League leader, your work is very difficult, if not impossible. . . . With all differences of view, I wish you success in your magnificent undertaking.”
416. LETTER TO POTHAN JOSEPH

August 20, 1944

DEAR POTHAN¹,

So your daughter Cookie² is to be married on 10th September. May the pair be happy and live long for the service of God and man.

Love.

Yours,

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

417. LETTER TO SAROJINI NAIDU

SEVAGRAM,
August 20, 1944

MY DEAR BULBUL-E-HIND,

Though I seem to have neglected you, you have not neglected me. Thank you for it. The reason for not sending you even love letters is that work before me has taxed all my time and energy. I have not asked you to come because I have relied only on God’s guidance. I do not know what I am going to say when I face beard the lion.³ I rely on Him giving me the word. You can fill in the details.

Love to you all.

SPINNER

[P.S.] I have your latest A.R.S.’s letter.

From a copy : Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy : Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

¹ Editor of a number of dailies which included The Voice of India, The Indian National Herald, The Indian Daily Mail, The Hindustan Times, The Indian Express and The Dawn

² Anna

³ The reference presumably is to Gandhiji’s impending meeting with Jinnah
418. LETTER TO CHIMANLAL N. SHAH

August 20, 1944

CHI. CHIMANLAL,

Shakaribehn is very unhappy because of what Sharda had to go through here. I remember Kanu telling me something about it. Please write to me and tell me all that you know about the matter. Shakaribehn says that Lilavati and Krishnachandra had displayed an altogether wrong attitude. I should know everything about this in detail. You are a very patient man, but you also have a duty towards the Ashram. It is not your absolute duty to suffer any injustice meted out to Shakaribehn or Sharda. Your duty towards the Ashram is a thing like. . . .

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10610

419. LETTER TO MATHURADAS TRIKUMJI

August 20, 1944

You have entered the forest. May you cross it and live many more years. After all your faith in me is not blind. It is unshakable and will remain so. Mustn’t I become and continue to be worthy of such faith?

[From Gujarati]

Bapuni Prasadi, p. 202

1 Addressee’s wife
2 Addressee’s daughter
3 Son of Narandas Gandhi
4 Lilavati Asar
5 Omission as in the source
6 In the 51st year of one’s life one is supposed to enter vanaprastha, the third of the four ashramas or stages of life.
420. LETTER TO V. V. NENE

August 20, 1944

BHAJ NENE,

I have your letter. I had no knowledge that I would be arrested so soon or arrested at all. I did have a plan but was arrested before it could be announced. And there were to be negotiations first. I cannot say whether or not I would have met Jinnah Saheb.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

From the Hindi original: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

421. LETTER TO HUMAYUN KABIR

SEVAGRAM,

August 21, 1944

MY DEAR HUMAYUN,

I value your frank letter received today. You deserve a long reply but I must be brief, if I am to reply at once which I am doing.

I do not endorse any Pakistan but I do endorse Rajaji’s scheme even if it be called Pakistan. It is a concrete form of the Congress resolution. The Rajaji Formula merely furnishes a basis for discussion. It opens a way to the solution of the communal tangle. Everybody who does not like it is free to oppose it. If you think that it will harm the country you are bound to oppose it. If Muslim opinion dislikes it, it must go. It will go also if Hindus and others oppose it. The Rajaji Formula furnishes a scheme for voluntary acceptance. There is no room for discussion, if it is to be imposed by force. I could be no party to a forcible imposition of a thing even if of my own coining. Here therefore there is no question of ignoring or disregarding nationalist Muslims of any other section. Quaid-e-Azam represents the League. I represent nobody but myself.

I did read your contribution to Bharat Jyoti. Your book, I am sorry, I have not been able to touch.

You should know that we (Rajaji and I) have reserved the right to oppose even the modified scheme of partition, if it ever goes to the poll. We are not enamoured of it. But if there must be sovereign states, we have said what we will voluntarily endorse. But we would be pleased if the country, i.e., in this case the majority of Muslims concerned reject it jointly with other inhabitants of the areas concerned.

So you see that you should come if you can spare the time. It is not too late.

Amtul Salaam had a lot to say about you and your wife’s kindness to her. She also told me that you had stolen a Hindu girl for wife, that she was extremely devoted to you and that she was able to remain Hindu.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

From a copy : Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy : Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

422. LETTER TO K. G. GOKHALE

SEVAGRAM,
August 21, 1944

BHAJ GOKHALE, 2

The question of parole is most difficult.
What is good for one need not be good for all. The general rule should be no acceptance of parole. It admits of many exceptions. I must not judge past cases.

Membership of Food Committees also presents difficulties. If a person like Gangadhar Rao finds that he can serve the people without compromising national interest, I must refuse to sit in judgment on him. And I have no time to examine his conduct on merits.

Post of jail visitor I hold generally to be of little advantage. But I cannot lay down hard and fast rules.

I must plead with you to absolve me from advising you personally. You must judge for yourself and act fearlessly. Principles of conduct can be, and have been laid down. Their application is no easy task. Appasaheb’s letter was not shown to me. There was no need. He was asked to deal with your letter. He did according to his light.

1 Shanti
2 The superscript and subscription are in Devanagari.

Yours,
M. K. GANDHI

K. G. GOKHALE, B. A. PLEADER, M.L.A.
C/O A.V. GHARE, ESQ.
ESTATE MANAGER OF SARDAR RASTE
P. O. TALIKOT
DISTT. BUAPUR

From a copy : Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library.
Courtesy : Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

423. LETTER TO BARI KHAN

SEVAGRAM,
August 21, 1944

MY DEAR BARI1:

You have done well in writing to me. I have advice from all quarters. But I have chosen the one Infallible Adviser. I feel secure in His bosom.

You should come after I have seen the Q. A.

Love.

BAPU

BARI KHAN SAHIB
21 ALKAPURI
BARODA

From a copy : Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library.
Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

1 Brother of Amtussalaam

314 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
424. LETTER TO KISHORELAL G. MASHRUWALA

BOMBAY,
August 21, 1944

CHI. KISHORELAL,

Your letter and the Government’s action on it have agitated everyone. I could not bring myself to pull up Gomati. When all is said and done she is a well brought up and responsible girl. Still, it is difficult to be patient at such times. So she is coming. Manilal of course will come. It might be all right if Nilkanth were not to come. As for Gomati’s poor brother, why should he be left out? Without Swami of course everything will seem dreary. But what will you do? I am hoping you will send back everyone with laughter on their faces. But even if this hope is not realized, I am ready for it. Many sacrifices will have to be made. He will do as He wills. We have to learn the mantra of living by dying.1

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

425. LETTER TO ABDUR REHMAN

August 21, 1944

BHAU ABDUR REHMAN,

The Nightingale of India has sent on to me the letter you wrote her. I have perused it carefully. As far as I am concerned I have made up my mind that Dominion Status will not be acceptable to me, even if the Congress changes its stand. So long as the Hindus and the Muslims live in fear of each other, we will always have the British as our overlords. It has been my endeavour to give up that fear myself and persuade others to do the same. It is with that very purpose that I am going to meet the Quaid-e-Azam. Let us see what God grants us.

. . .2 I have faith in democracy. In non-violence nothing else is 1 For Gandhiji’s affirmation, twenty-four years earlier, of his faith in the power of the soul which ‘lives’ by ‘dying’, Vide “Doctrine of the Sword”, 15-8-1920.

2 The letter is demaged here.
conceivable. It is another matter whether ultimately we accept it or not. For me there is no other way.

From the Hindi original: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladvi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

426. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA

Silence Day, August 21, 1944

CHI. KRISHNACHANDRA,

I do not wish to get work from you beyond your capacity. “Regard me as non-existent”: merely means that I shall be in jail or some such situation. There doesn’t seem to be any other way for me. You know yourself the high regard I have for you. So long as I am out, I am with you. I am aware of your faith in me.

Chimanlal is the principal manager. His sacrifice is great indeed. You yourself admire his sacrificing his family life and other things. Doesn’t this show that he would not be taking any decision with a view to his own self-interest? I have had a talk with him and in order to save my time he has agreed that if there is any complaint or difference of opinion Jajuji’s decision will be acceptable to all. I hope you will at least agree that when there is a difference of opinion one should not claim that one’s view is always correct. You are right in saying that the work should be divided. But even then sometimes there is a clash of views. In organizations someone’s opinion has to be accepted as final.

This should clear all your doubts. However, if there is still anything more you may ask me. You should not get upset at all. Come what may, don’t lose your peace of mind.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4444; also C.W. 5980

---

1 Vide letter to the addressee, “Letter to Krishnachandra”, 7-8-1944.
2 Shrikrishnadas Jaju
427. LETTER TO NAGINDAS T. MASTER

August 22, 1944

BHAII NAGINBHAI,

Whatever best you think you should do. I have not thought over it seriously. If you want to do Satyagraha or act against law you must give previous notice. If you do not act [up] to this, it shall not be called a non-violent satyagraha. I am not in favour of [a] mass civil disobedience movement.

From a copy: File No. 3001/H, Commissioner of Police, Bombay

428. LETTER TO ANUPAM N. KAVI

SEVAGRAM,

August 22, 1944

BHAISHRI ANUPAM,

It is good that you opened my eyes. If you continue to show me my errors in this way I shall correct them. At the moment I feel ashamed neither on account of the Rajkot episode 1 nor the present one. My nature will make me act only in the manner I do.

ANUPAM NANALAL KAVI

129 GREAT WESTERN BUILDINGS
BAKEHOUSE LANE
FORT, BOMBAY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

---

1 The Gujarati original is not traceable.
2 On March 3, 1939, Gandhiji had undertaken a fast on “the moral issue of restoring a solemn pact between the Thakore Saheb of Rajkot and its people”. The fast was broken on March 7.
429. ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

August 23, 1944

QUESTION: Mahatmaji, you have been during your whole political career a strong supporter of the integrity of India and an opponent of vivisection. How do you reconcile your present position in giving support to Rajaji’s proposals?

ANSWER: There is no change in my views. I am even today as much against vivisection of India as ever before. Rajaji’s formula concedes right of self-determination, but it does not concede Pakistan—an indefinite and undefined expression. As a believer in non-violence I cannot use force in keeping people of a particular area inside India if they want to separate. All I can do is to persuade them.

Q. Whatever be the result of your negotiations with Mr. Jinnah, don’t you think that the British statesmen taking advantage of Rajaji’s offer, which has your support, will divide India into two parts and establish two rival federations instead of one and thereby find an additional reason for the continuance of British control?

A. I do not think the British statesmen will do it, unless they want it themselves and have independently so decided. They know that forty crores of people cannot be kept under permanent bondage. The world forces are moving so fast that whether the British Government will or not India must be free at no distant date. Furthermore, Rajaji’s formula definitely lays down that the exercise of the right of self-determination can only accrue after independence.

Q. The non-Muslims of the Punjab and of Bengal feel panicky about Rajaji’s formula because they are afraid that under this formula the non-Muslims in the separated areas will be thrown into Pakistan.

A. From the reports that I receive it is evident that so far as the Punjab is concerned there is already Pakistan in action. The religious and cultural rights of the non-Muslims they say are denied to them. My informants say that undue restrictions are placed on non-Muslim leaders and their womenfolk cannot even move about freely for fear of molestation. If this is a true picture I don’t think the position will be in any way worse in “Pakistan” if ever it is established.

The people of the Punjab and Bengal need entertain no false fears, as I am not going to sell them off. I have no right to do so. No individual can barter away rights of brave people endowed with self-confidence. Today I enjoy the confidence of the people because they believe that their interests are safe in my hands and I cannot betray them. If tomorrow I act against their wishes and interests I shall be stoned by these very people who now trust me. I am rather pained at the nervousness exhibited by the Sikhs who are a brave community. Unless they have lost the chivalrous spirit and bravery which the Gurus infused in them, they need entertain no fear about my coming talks with Mr. Jinnah.

1 The questions were asked by Lala Brijlal.

I have already explained in my Press statement and I repeat again that nothing will be done by me or us to the prejudice of any section of the Indian population and whatever proposals are agreed to between Quaid-e-Azam Jinnah and myself will be open to confirmation, amendment and rejection by the representatives of various communities and interests. There is no idea of forcing anything on anybody against his will.

Q. If Pakistan ever comes into existence don’t you think, Mahatmaji, the existence of a rival independent state in the north-west will be a constant danger to the independence of India?

A. Thirty crores and over of inhabitants living in India have nothing to fear from two crores of Muslims living in the north-west. If the former are so weak as not to be able to defend themselves against two crores in the north-west, then they have no right to ask for independence.

I have no doubt in my mind that if India becomes independent, Indians will be able to defend themselves against any outside aggression with the resources at their disposal.

Q. Mahatmaji, all your attempts during the last twenty years or over for bringing about Hindu-Muslim unity have gone in vain and Hindu-Muslim relations today are as much strained as ever before. Don’t you think that India has been put on the wrong track and communal electorates are the bane of the Indian constitution? The Muslim demand for Pakistan and Mr. Jinnah’s propounding of the two-nation theory are the natural sequences of separate electorates and communal reservations and so long as the principle of separate electorates on religious basis continues to disfigure the constitution of our country, there is no chance of the Hindus and Muslims living at peace as members of the great Indian nations? If you agree with the above contention why don’t you give a right lead to the country by pressing for joint electorates as the basis of political rights?

A. I do believe that separate electorates have done more harm than good.

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar
430. LETTER TO M. A. JINNAH

SEVAGRAM
August 23, 1944

BHAJ JINNAH,

I learn from the newspapers that your fever has gone down. Thank God. But you continue to be weak and the doctors have advised visitors not to insist on appointments just yet. I had your letter yesterday. May Allah grant you early and complete recovery. I don’t want you to hurry for my sake. Only I can fix up my time for other work and for visitors if you inform me the earliest possible date for our meeting. I shall be grateful if you ask someone to intimate this to me through a letter, a telephone call or a telegram.

Your brother,
M. K. GANDHI

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

431. LETTER TO JHAVERBHAI PATEL

August 23, 1944

1. In the social order of my conception, as much production as possible would be located in the villages, and that too through the power of people’s hands and feet. But this ideal cannot always be realized. We have to accept compromise at some point. Experience alone can decide the limits of such compromise. Every worker can decide the limit for himself; but when he works as a member of some institution he has to submit to the limit accepted by the institution. He helps the institution and accelerates its progress towards its goal if he further narrows the limit accepted by it, as Vinoba has done.¹ I cannot go further than this in my reply. But you will perhaps be able, on the basis of this, to formulate in fewer words a policy befitting or supporting my conception. Try to do it and if you frame any such formula, please show it to me.

2. For me, India begins and ends in the villages; that is, what I find possible in one village I would apply to all villages in similar conditions. If I think, and can persuade the institutions concerned to think, about paper-making from this point of view, we might find it easier to reach our goal. If the people of a village can produce energy from some source in the village itself so that they can invent a device whereby, instead of every person making paper, a few hands are able to produce all the paper needed, I would welcome such an invention. If the attempt to produce everything through the power of man’s hands and feet puts such constraints on him that further development of this triple faculties would be completely arrested, I would regard such an arrangement as faulty. By triple faculties I mean those of the body, the mind and the spirit.

¹ Vinoba Bhave had restricted himself to the activities of the Paunar Ashram near Nalwadi.

3. If I have understood the third question correctly, you will see that it is implied in the second. If you do not, please put it up to me [accordingly]. I have deliberately compressed the language to enable persons like you to solve more easily the problems that arise in the course of their work.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 1357

432. LETTER TO SHAMALDAS GANDHI

SEVAGRAM,

[Before August 24, 1944]¹

CHI. SHAMALDAS².

I take it that your letter about Munshiji will yet come.

Today I shall write on another subject. Some Gujarati newspapers come here. I hardly read any but others do. One of them is Chhaganlal. He and other readers of the Gujarati newspapers are of the opinion that vulgarity in advertisements displayed in Gujarati papers is frightening. Pyarelalji says that some Urdu and Hindi newspapers surpass Gujarati papers in this respect. Some years ago I had commented on the subject in Harijan. It yielded good results for a time. Later on it became as bad as before. I therefore asked Chhaganlal to give me clippings. One of the clippings of the Gujarati papers he has given me is from Vandemataram. I send it herewith. I have now only a short while to live. God will take as much work from me as He wants. Are these the drumbeats of approaching independence? Can’t you do without this earning? Is it only on this condition that you can bring out the newspaper? Ponder over it and let me know.

¹ From the reference to advertisements in Gujarati newspapers it appears that this was written before the letter to the addressee dated August 24, 1944; vide “Letter to Shamaldas Gandhii”, 24-8-1944 and also “Letter to M. A. Jinnah”, 24-9-1944.

² Editor, Vandemataram

From a copy of the Gujarati : Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy : Baladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

433. LETTER TO SITA

SEVAGRAM,
August 24, 1944

MY DEAR SITA,

What a refreshing thing to hear from you. So you are a practising barrister. I hope with plenty of work! Are you in possession of full health now? I shall certainly read Dr. John’s effort.

Yours,

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

434. LETTER TO SHARDA G. CHOKHAWALA

August 24, 1944

CHI. SHARDA,

I have not heard from you recently. I would say that I have detained you for the sake of your health. I see now that you do not like to come over here. I do not mention here, for want of time, all that I have heard.¹ But if your health permits, come over here immediately. You would not be an additional burden wherever I go. I do not know when I shall go to Bombay. But if you wish to meet me there, and then come along with me, you may do so. I hope everyone is all right.

Blessings from

BAPU

From the Gujarati original: C.W. 10048. Courtesy: Sharda G. Chokhawala

435. LETTER TO JIVANJI D. DESAI

SEVAGRAM,
August 24, 1944

BHAJ JIVANJI,

Mridulabehn¹ has a good many complaints against Navajivan Karyalaya and the [Gujarat] Vidyapith. She says that when one seeks your help for my work, one always gets a negative reply. The result is, you do not profit from the ideas that occur to workers like her. You attach no value to the help offered by these workers. You behave with absolute confidence in yourself as if whatever you do is beyond criticism or improvement. Since you are involved in these complaints, and since you are one of the founders of these institutions, people generally believe that what the Gandhians do can hardly warrant any criticism. And the Gandhians, on their part, boastfully say to workers like her: ‘Look at our work and our skill in keeping our balance. We are supplying cheap and ennobling literature to the people; and we never sit idle. We have acquired the secret of unremitting work. Now, we do not understand what you critics want to say. You cannot find fault with the work we are doing. We do not work the way you do. It does not suit us. The field for service is very wide. You can do as you please and let us do what we like. So our plea is that we should bear with each other and carry on our work. Moreover, we are always ready to carry out Gandhiji’s wishes.’ Mridulabehn depicts this picture of Navajivan Karyalaya and the Vidyapith and allied institutions. The language is not hers but mine. I have used garish words. Without them I cannot make you see Mridulabehn’s meaning as I understand it. She is sarcastic but not virulent. I have regarded her criticism as friendly. You also should take it in the same spirit and give her whatever help she needs and you can give. She has cited two instances. The reply² which I gave to the Government’s allegations has been translated into many languages by the Aundh Press. According to Mridulabehn, a Gujarati translation in simple language and in my style can be rendered truthfully only by those who are called Gandhians. Mridulabehn is particular about this style of language. She tried to secure this translation but no one paid any heed. It is getting late and I shall therefore cut my letter short. But this is enough to explain to you what Mridulabehn wants. Please send your reply to me.

¹ Daughter of Ambalal Sarabhai
² Vide “Letter to Additional Secretary, Home Department, Government of India”, 15-7-1943.

I gave this letter to Mridulabehn to read. She wants to add two points to it. First, it was my idea to send the material to the Aundh Press. This is right. I thought that due to the scarcity of paper, etc., it would be difficult to sort out things anywhere else. Secondly, she expects mutual understanding between you and her, so that she should not be required to rush to me. This is right so far as it goes. But sometimes it may become unavoidable to come to me. There is no means in the world to bar this road in anticipation.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

436. LETTER TO SHAMALDAS GANDHI

[August 24, 1944]

CHI. SHAMALDAS.

I am pleased that you sent your reply by return of post. Congratulations and blessings. I wish you would lead the people along the right path keeping your own hands clean in spite of any number of temptations. Such workers do not starve to death. I am satisfied with the restrictions you have imposed on yourself. I had your telegram too.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

\(^1\) The source places this letter among those of August 24, 1944.
437. LETTER TO SATYAVATI

August 24, 1944

CHI. SATYAVATI1,

A question has arisen whether I have written in respect of the two points. I think I have. If I am mistaken, here I write again. I don’t believe you can gain anything by violating [the restrictions]2 imposed upon you. If you can, do come over in the cold season wherever I might be. Let us see what happens. I see your letters to Khurshedbehn.

Sushilabehn3 arrived here today. Today she told me what was written about you.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

438. LETTER TO TARADEVI NAYYAR

SEVAGRAM,
August 25, 1944

DEAR SISTER,

I know you want to have Sushila with you for a good many days. Sushila was going there direct. You may as well say that I have made her get down on the way. Her luggage too is lying at Bajajwadi. I need Sushila here. Hence I wish you would let her remain here. What I would like most is all the three of you coming here. Then I shall be able to see you, Pyarelal will be able to see you, and it will be convenient in every way. If you really cannot come, then I shall send Sushila when I conveniently can. Remember that my days are numbered. Hence I would again urge you to come.

Blessings to the three of you,

BAPU

From the Hindi original : Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy : Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

---

1 Granddaughter of Swami Shraddhanand
2 Illegible
3 Sushila Nayyar
439. LETTER TO R. K. PRABHU

SEVAGRAM,
August 26, 1944

my dear prabhu,

Yours to hand. I have offered what has appeared to me the fairest terms. If the main source of revenue is India, then there is not much in seeking publishers with a foreign fame. I am quite clear that we in India must sell at the lowest price. Will the Oxford Press be satisfied if the Navajivan Trust covers the cost hitherto incurred and let us have what they have printed. I write this subject to confirmation by the Trust. Do not be agitated. Come to see me if necessary.

Yours,

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

440. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA

August 26, 1944

CHI. KRISHNACHANDRA,

I expressed myself in my usual way. What I said\(^1\) is for everyone. When the complaints regarding utensils, etc., continue unabated the person in charge of the section takes the blame upon himself. Why should this then upset you? I have even said that if we cannot mend such matters we should either forget about running the Ashram, or accept the rule of living in utmost simplicity. We should not have guests and should be content with whatever activities we are able to carry on. You should have been thoroughly satisfied with what I had said.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4445

\(^1\) Vide letter to the addressee, “Letter to Krishnachandra”, 21-8-1944.
441. LETTER TO GANESHSASTRI JOSHI

August 27, 1944

SHRI VAIDYARAJ JOSHIJI,

Gandhiji has received your letter of the 24th. He has directed me to reply to you.

As it is time for postal clearance today I just want to inform you that since yesterday he has been having three to four loose motions a day. He has started using the commode. If you have any other suggestion, please let us know. An examination of the stools indicates that the germs of dysentery are causing the havoc.

Yours,
SUSHILA NAYYAR

From a photostat of the Hindi: C.W. 932. Courtesy: Ganeshshastri Joshi

442. LETTER TO MIRABEHN

SEVAGRAM,

August 28, 1944

CHI. MIRA1.

Yours of 22nd received yesterday. You are having a bad time. You must take care of yourself. If you feel like coming here, of course you will not hesitate. You will not fear me. I am a changed man I hope. You may look to me to find you Rs. 50,000. Narandas is over head and ears in work. I do not care to trouble him. You can either recall what was received or tell me what is the limit up to which you would spend.

Love.

From a copy : Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy : Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

---

1 In Devanagari

VOL. 84 : 27 JANUARY, 1944 - 1 OCTOBER, 1944
443. LETTER TO G. V. MAVALANKAR

SEVAGRAM,
August 28, 1944

DADA'.

Raojibhai writes to tell me that there has been a terrible calamity in Gujarat. The rains have been excessive. This means that we shall have to start a relief fund. Think over this. Write to me and give details. Let me know if I have to do anything. I read very few newspapers. A single activity takes up all my time.

Blessings from
BAPU

DADA MAVALANKAR
MAHARASHTRA SOCIETY, ELLIS BRIDGE
AHMEDABAD, B. B. & C. I. RLY.

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 1250

444. LETTER TO Raojibhai M. Patel

August 28, 1944

CHI. Raojibhai,

I have your letter. Keep me informed about the calamity. I have written to Dada and asked him to make inquiries and do what is necessary. If my help is required, he may ask for it. Kanjibhai will probably be there. If so, show him this letter. We really miss Sardar. Now all of you must become sardars'. I am utterly useless.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI Raojibhai
RAVINDRA & CO., PRARTHANA SAMAJ
CHARNI ROAD, BOMBAY 4

1 Ganesh Vasudev Mavalankar (1888-1956); Speaker, Legislative Assembly, Bombay; Speaker, Lok Sabha, 1947-56
2 Raojibhai M. Patel
3 Vide the preceding item.
4 Literally, ‘leaders’
445. LETTER TO AMRITLAL T. NANAVATI

August 28, 1944

CHI. AMRITLAL,

Sushilabehn has come and she hunts up the letters addressed to me. In one of them you have asked for a couple of lines from me. If I have not sent them earlier, here they are.

Worthy work needs no support. I am already convinced of the value of your work; why then do you need my support? All of you have a better knowledge of Hindustani than I. Go further ahead.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI AMRITLAL NANAVATI
CHUDA RANGANARNI KHADKI, KELAPITH
SURAT, B. B. & C. I. RLY.

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10804

446. LETTER TO KANAM GANDHI

[SEVAGRAM, “VIA” WARDHA, (C.P.)]

August 28, 1944

CHI. KANAM,

Your letter of August 15 is lying with me. I see that you have tried to improve your handwriting. You should pay still more careful attention to improving it. I will not discuss now the matters you have raised in your letter. I see that much of what you write, you do just for the sake of writing. What you write shows intellectual speculation but not good sense. Good sense is very necessary. Write little, but whatever you write, write after careful deliberation, courteously and with genuine curiosity for knowledge. You are no longer a mere child. I was certainly glad that all of you came here but I was not satisfied with the way you behaved and with what you said. I did not see any courtesy in your behaviour. I saw a good deal of impertinence in your

1 Propagation of Hindustani
2 As on the letterhead on which the letter is written

VOL. 84 : 27 JANUARY, 1944 - 1 OCTOBER, 1944 329
way of talking. What you said was all superficial. It can be seen even in your letter. If you can get rid of these defects, you will go far.

Blessings from

BAPU

From the Gujarati original: Mrs. Sumitra Kulkarni Papers. Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library

447. LETTER TO BALVANTSINHA

August 28, 1944

CHI. BALVANTSINHA,

I have your letter. It is worthy of a sinha. Ghanshyamdasji worked according to his capacity and so did Swami. The thing is that we should rest content with whatever anyone offers us or else there is only disappointment in store for us. Is it a small thing that Satis Babu appreciated your merits much more than others? There will never be a cause for disappointment if you work with detachment. We should not sit in judgment on others.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 1946

448. TELEGRAM TO G. V. MAVALANKAR

August 29, 1944

IF GUJARAT FLOOD SITUATION DEMANDS CESSATION KASTURBA FUND, YOU SHOULD SUSPEND AND DEVOTE YOURSELF FLOOD DISTRESS COLLECTION.

BAPU

Sansmarano, p. 156

1 ‘Sinha’ means a lion.
449. A WORD FOR THE READER

AUTHORIZED TRANSLATION

Who can accept the propriety of my writing a preface for this venture? But if by doing so, I can help fill the purse for the poor, why need I hesitate? I understand this is not meant to be a presentation volume. The profit from its sale will add to the purse to be presented to me for Daridranarayana. A few words from me by way of a foreword will, they argue, help the sale. This is enough temptation for me. If the book correctly expresses my views on truth and non-violence and kindred matters I am sure its circulation will do good. Looking at the list of contributors, I feel they must have done justice to what I stand for.

M. K. GANDHI

SEVAGRAM, August 29, 1944

From a facsimile: Mahatma, Vol. VI, facing p. 337

450. LETTER TO M. A. JINNAH

August 29, 1944

BHAI JINNAH,

I have your letter. I got neither a telegram nor a letter by the return of post. That made me impatient and I sent the telegram. Afterwards I got your reply. Thanks. I am glad to learn that you are keeping well.

I have fixed my engagements up to the 7th September. I have kept myself free after that date. Hence I can present myself on or after the 9th, whenever you call me.

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

From the Gujarati original: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Gandhiji drafted this in Gujarati for a souvenir volume Gandhiji-His Life and Work which was to be published on his 75th birthday.
2 This is in Gandhiji’s hand.
451. NOTE TO CHIMANLAL N. SHAH

August 29, 1944

The foregoing is not enough for my satisfaction. Nor should you be satisfied with this. We should not be so easily satisfied.

BAPU

[PS.]

About Munnalal’s objection, I feel that meetings of the permanent ashramites should be called from time to time and a record should be kept of the suggestions made and decisions taken. Is there anything impractical in this?

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10604

452. LETTER TO AMTUSSALAAM

SEVAGRAM,
August 29, 1944

DAUGHTER AMTUSSALAAM,

In my letter of yesterday I forgot to answer a question of yours. Bhagirathji writes to me that the work will not be held up for lack of funds.

Everything is fine. Parnerkar is all right.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 482
453. LETTER TO V. V. NENE

August 29, 1944

Bhai Nene,

I have your letter. I had no idea that I would be arrested so soon, if at all. I had planned a programme but before it could be released I was arrested.¹ But there were to be negotiations first, isn’t it? I cannot say whether I would have met Jinnah Saheb or not.

Yours,

M. K. Gandhi

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

454. LETTER TO DR. JAYADEV KULKARNI

August 29, 1944

Bhai Kulkarni,

The same question has been raised by others too. I have answered it. It is impossible for me to be acquainted with all the circumstances. Therefore it is almost impossible for me to answer questions individually. I have, of course, laid down the general rule.

Yours,

M. K. Gandhi

Dr. Jayadev Kulkarni
577 Mathgali
Belgaum

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹The reference is to the Quit India movement of 1942.
455. LETTER TO B. L. RALLIA RAM

August 29, 1944

Bhai Rallia Ramji,

Although my reply is delayed, this much I can say with certainty that neither of us will take any step to the detriment of the interests of others.

Yours,

M. K. Gandhi

REV. B. L. RALLIA RAM
OFFICE OF THE HONORARY SECRETARY
C/O Y. M. C. A., LAHORE

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

456. LETTER TO BHAGIRATH KANODIA

Sevagram,
August 29, 1944

Bhai Bhagirath,

Your letter astonishes me. Rajaji can never dupe me. Those who talk thus understand neither Rajaji nor me. Those who say such things would do better to put it in writing. I have never said anything of the kind.

Blessings from
BAPU

BHAGIRATHJI KANODIA
8 Royal Exchange Place
Calcutta

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar
457. MESSAGE FOR ALL-INDIA STUDENTS’ FEDERATION

WARDHAGANI,
August 30, 1944

Conduct your proceedings in your mother tongue, in the national language or if necessary in all the languages of India, but not in a foreign language.

And for the sake of Daridranarayana, do spin for at least half an hour every day.

If you cannot do these two things kindly return this to me.

The Bombay Chronicle, 2-9-1944, and The Hindu, 1-9-1944

458. STATEMENT TO THE PRESS

August 31, 1944

I have seen an Orient Press report to the effect that I have consented to receive the salute of Khaksars on my arrival in Bombay.
I may say that I have given no such consent. I am going to Bombay as an individual. I can, therefore, receive no salute. I invite individuals and organizations to devote themselves to silently praying that we may both be wisely guided by the Almighty. I would ask then to avoid all demonstrations. Let the leaders of all communities devise ways and means of cultivating friendly relations with one another.

The Hitavada, 1-9-1944

459. LETTER TO V. S. SRINIVASA SASTRI

SEVAGRAM, WARDHA, C.P.,
August 31, 1944

MY DEAR BELOVED BROTHER,

I had your letter. I wanted to write immediately on receiving it.
But overwhelming work delayed my reply till now. I have received all you have been saying. My whole heart goes out to you in your grief.

1Lalu Shah, Joint Secretary of the Federation, met Gandhiji to take a message from him to the Students’ Conference to be held on September 2 and 3 in Bombay and discussed with him questions regarding the constructive programme and other aspects of the students’ movement.
But I would beseech you to bear it. You will find in the end that we have not betrayed the country. A society based on non-violence cannot be built except with the free and willing consent of all its component parts. I plead for trust. You should not despair of me.

With love,

Yours,

LITTLE BROTHER

T. R. Venkatarama Sastri Papers. Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library

460. LETTER TO HOOTEN

August 31, 1944

DEAR COL. HOOTEN,

Many thanks for your kind letter. How can I forget you? I recall our many cordial chats about medical work in villages.

About the part I have played during this terrible world crisis, my conscience is absolutely clear.

With kind regards,

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

COL. HOOTEN
EUROPE HOTEL, GERARDS CROSS
BUCKS, ENGLAND

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

461. LETTER TO M. A. JINNAH

August 31, 1944

Bhai JINNAH,

I have your telegram. Thanks.

I had written a letter to you on the 29th. You must have got it. As mentioned in it I have already fixed up appointments with various people up to the 7th. I can, therefore, start from here on 8th September at the earliest and reach there on the 9th. I hope the day will suit you. If it does, kindly let me know.

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
462. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

August 31, 1944

CHI. NARANDAS,

A fund of Rs. 75 lakhs is being collected\(^1\). Let its fate be what it will. I do not know how much from it will be made available to you. You who are at the root of this collection should however carry on with your work in your own manner. This means that you should be able to collect money according to your plan. Those who have been always helping you for the Rentia Baras\(^2\) purse should understand this. And if they do, they should send you their contributions this time also as they have been doing in the past. Whenever you feel that such donors require a word from me, you may use this letter. It would certainly pain me if the purpose of the Kasturba Fund is misunderstood and in consequence further expansion of your work is obstructed. I will regard the Fund as having been put to good use only if its work, like your work, spreads throughout the country.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./II. Also C.W. 8610. Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi

463. LETTER TO AMTUSSALAAM

SEVAGRAM,

August 31, 1944

DEAR DAUGHTER AMTUL SALAAM,

Seven annas had to be paid for your unstamped letter. Why are you in such a great hurry? Such waste is not a sign of our poverty.

I do not remember that I failed to address you as ‘Daughter’. I allowed the pen free play. I do not see any difference between ‘Daughter’ and ‘Chi’. It might have made some difference if I had written ‘Behn’. But is there any cure for suspicion?

You can do any work without seeking my consent. Then the

\(^1\) For the Kasturba Gandhi National Memorial

\(^2\) Bhadrapad Vad 12, Gandhiji’s birthday according to the Vikram calendar, which was observed as spinning day question of my displeasure will not arise at all. When you had asked me earlier, I had told you what was proper work for you. The work which you are doing covers the Hindu-Muslim problem too.

I waited for the Maulvi you mention. But he never turned up. It was clear you had made a mistake. In spite of it, I had sent word to the Maulvi that he could certainly come.

You must have received the letter I sent through Bhagirathji.

You can certainly draw Rs. 75 a month for your expenses. Do not ask your brothers for it. If they send anything of their own accord, pass it on to the Ashram.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 483

464. LETTER TO LILAVATI ASAR

August 31, 1944

CHI. LILAVATI,

I have your letter. You did a good thing in passing on Ba’s diary for Sushilabehn. I have held it up with me. I want to read it and may even have to make use of it. Sushilabehn says that it has been given as a trust to her. I told her that entrusting it to me would be as good as entrusting it to her. What you write about the case there is terrible, but such things keep happening. It will be enough if you learn to be alert. More if and when we meet. Find some time, if you can, to meet Mamasheb\(^1\).

Blessings from

BAPU

SMT. LILAVATIBEHN UDESHI

G. S. MEDICAL COLLEGE, LADY STUDENTS’ HOSTEL

PAREL, G.I.P. [RLY.], BOMBAY

From a photostat of the Gujarati: (C.W. 10215. Courtesy: Lilavati Asar

\(^1\) V. L. Phadke
465. LETTER TO SUCHAN

[August 1944]¹

DEAR SUCHAN,

Not only our country but all countries can go on for ever with the help of hand-labour.

My swadeshi excludes mill-cloth. Mills can take the country downhill. You should look up the literature on this subject.

Yours,

BAPU

P. R. COLLEGE
COCANADA

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

466. NOTE TO DEVPRAKASH NAYYAR

[August 1944]²

After discussing everything with Aryanayakum³ do what you think best.

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Hindi: Documents relating to Gandhiji. Courtesy: National Archives of India

467. TELEGRAM TO M. A. JINNAH

SEVAGRAM,
September 1, 1944

QUAID-E-AZAM JINNAH
MOUNT PLEASANT ROAD
BOMBAY

YOUR WIRE⁴. THANKS. HOPING REACH YOU FOUR O’CLOCK NINTH.

GANDHI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ The letter is placed among those of August 1944.
² The note is written on a letter of August 1944.
³ E. W. Aryanayakum, Secretary, Hindustani Talimi Sangh
⁴ Dated August 30, saying that September 7 or any day thereafter would suit the addressee for meeting Gandhiji Bhai Balasaheb².

Bhai Lalubhai had brought the resolution drafted by students for the students’ conference. His sincere entreaty created a good impression on me. He pressed me hard and somehow exacted a message also. That message is not a message but an invitation to bind the students. I was not very willing to do even that much, nor did I have the time. I did not like the resolution. Pyarelal offered and tried to shorten it. His draft was fairly good but I was not satisfied. He does not get a minute to spare. After the arrival of the Bishop of Rangoon his work has increased a lot. I, therefore, took up the drafting of the resolution in my own hand. I did this on the spur of the moment, but the work was too much. Whatever I have done is enclosed herewith.³ It seems to me that I have compressed a great deal in a short space, multum in parvo. But persons with superficial knowledge of a subject sometimes suffer from such a delusion and are pleased with themselves. I would not be surprised if that is what has happened in the case of this draft, for I have finished it somehow in intervals snatched from a busy schedule. You may, therefore, add anything to or remove anything from the draft. You need not fear that I would feel offended. He is a true co-worker who finds out the shortcomings of his colleague and helps him to correct them in a friendly spirit.

The interview with the Bishop shaped very well. The result lies in the hands of God.

I hope your study of Urdu is going on. If it was discontinued owing to pressure of work, please resume it. Drop by drop fills the ocean.

I am reaching Bombay on the 9th to meet the Quaid-e-Azam.

I hope you will have no difficulty in reading and understanding this letter.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 2772

¹ Premier of Bombay, 1937 to 1939
² Vide “Message for All-India Students Federation”, 30-8-1944.
³ The draft resolution is not available.
469. LETTER TO MANGALDAS PAKVASA

September 1, 1944

BHAI MANGALDAS¹.

I got your letter and your note. Both are useful. I hope to reach there on the 9th. I shall return at the earliest on the 10th. If you can get time while I am there, please do come and see me. Otherwise write to me at Sevagram and ask for power of attorney of any kind you need. It is a matter of satisfaction that your health is improving, though slowly.

Blessings from

BAPU

MANGALDAS PAKVASA
29 DUNGARSHI ROAD
MALABAR HILL
BOMBAY

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 4687. Courtesy: Mangaldas Pakvasa

470. SPEECH AT A. I. S. A. MEETING-I

SEVAGRAM,
September 1, 1944

More than two years have passed since we last met. I have come to know a little, that is to say, not the whole of what happened outside [the jail] during these two years. It seemed as though one age had succeeded another, bringing in the process trouble for the whole of India. How could the Charkha Sangh have escaped it?

Today, we have once again come together under these circumstances but whatever little work we might yet be able to do would not be enough for us. A large amount of the Charkha Sangh property has either been destroyed or is in Government custody. Besides, many of our colleagues could not be among us today. Here, I am not talking of Congressmen but of those who were especially helpful in the Sangh work and are its trustees. But I have realized that even with these few we can carry on the Sangh work. We are sure of

¹President, Legislative Council, Bombay, 1937-47

VOL. 84 : 27 JANUARY, 1944 - 1 OCTOBER, 1944
I have thought a great deal over the subject of khadi during my detention. I shall briefly state the conclusions I have arrived at.

The most important discovery I made was that the foundation of the A.I.S.A. was so weak that the Association could be easily wiped out of existence. It had not taken root in the life of the people. The Government could destroy it by imprisoning its leaders. Though some of its activities continued, I saw clearly that the Government could exterminate it at its pleasure. That is to say, my belief that the movement for the revival of the spinning-wheel was indestructible, whatever the circumstances, had been dashed to the ground. The work had not been organized on an imperishable basis.

I am not a man to accept defeat easily but it was in the jail that I discovered that we live at Government’s mercy and it hurts me. If it were in my power I would choose to live at no one’s mercy except God’s. True, it is Divine dispensation that no man may live without the goodwill of his fellow-beings but I am not talking of such help. My activities are founded on my own thinking. The Charkha Sangh was also founded on the same principles. In South Africa, I discovered that if India was to survive and progress non-violently, it could only be through the charkha—the charkha alone can be a symbol of non-violence. We may draw strength from other symbols as well but such strength may not lead to the world’s well-being.

I realized in jail that there was something wrong in our method of khadi work, which must needs be amended. I had asked India to carry on spinning. I knew how this spinning work was to be carried on. But I did not lay the necessary stress on the requisite outlook and the spirit which was to underlie it. I looked at it from its immediate practical aspect. All my co-workers also laid stress on this practical side. So I suffered it, and also lent my helping hand to it. We have gone far in that direction. But today I cannot continue to ask people to spin in that manner.

I contemplated how to work in the future. I even thought of disbanding the Sangh on my own and distributing its property and funds among the people. I saw that our work would be incomplete, so long as we did not carry the message of the charkha to every home. That, I thought, accounted for our being far from our ideal. There are seven lakh villages in India. Thousands of them do not even know what the charkha is. This is our fault and it is because of this fault that we have failed to put khadi work on a sound basis. You must ponder over it.

All the thought and study I have been giving to this subject lately make me feel that the work would have to be decentralized if it is to spread far and wide and take permanent root. The above line of thought led to the idea of decentralization and I thought it would be very good indeed if its worth could be proved. I realize that the difficulties in my way are many but then hardly anyone has devoted as much thought and effort to the charkha as I have. This is a rather tall claim and it also smacks of pride, but not to mention it on the right occasion would be false modesty. In the jail too I had no other thought but the charkha.

The strength behind all my activities including civil disobedience is derived wholly from the charkha to which I have devoted most of my energy and funds. Most of the ten million rupees of the Tilak Swaraj Fund was also used up for the spinning activity. This brought about a spate of charges against me but I regard them as so many bouquets. For whatever I did, I did after due deliberation and with full knowledge of its consequences. I did not deceive anyone. Nothing was spent on the charkha without convincing the public about it. That is how this institution came into being.

After much reflection and study I have arrived at the definite conclusion that, however intense, my sadhana\(^1\) of the charkha has remained imperfect and I must admit that my study too has not been as thorough as it ought to have been. Today, my words have a greater force because I can see these things more clearly.

Besides the Charkha Sangh members, as well as sympathizers and those who share my feelings, today’s gathering includes some representatives of the public also. Had we only directed the strength the country displayed during the movement along the right channels, we could have shown how much public support we had. But we failed to do so. The fault is not yours but mine and when I say all this, it is not so much to blame you, as to whip up your intelligence and my own.

We plied the charkha but mechanically, not intelligently. Had you yourselves appreciated the full significance of the charkha, you would have given it the same importance as I do. It also has political significance. It has however no place in the dishonest game of politics. More than any other thing it is the charkha that stands for clean, noble politics. If there is [no] truth in this statement, how can we claim swaraj through the charkha? It certainly does not mean that as soon as the yarn snaps swaraj comes to nought.

\(^1\)Spiritual discipline

It is often alleged that workers of the A.I.S.A. and the A.I.V.I.A., if not Gandhiites in general, are unintelligent and lifeless. People repose trust in them. But they (the Gandhiites) are not able to tell the people what exactly are the problems facing the country and how our programme is calculated to resolve these problems and take us to our goal. On the other hand, Marxian literature is fast increasing in the country and Gandhiites are not able to resist the impact of these external forces.

We say that we are devoted to non-violence. If so, we must reveal in our lives the force of non-violence. Unless we can reveal its force in our own lives, we will not be true Gandhiites. In fact, there is no such thing as Gandhism. If anything, it is non-violence that deserves to be called an ideology. Every member of the Charkha Sangh should be a living witness of non-violence. If he is a devotee of non-violence or Gandhism, he must be a live wire. Today Gandhism is a word of reproach. It no more connotes something virtuous or praiseworthy. Let us admit we have failed to make non-violence a part of our being. Otherwise we would find the charkha established in every village. I confess that I have failed. Had I been an adept in this art, I would have produced a concrete pattern of reconstructed village life in Sevagram at any rate. But today even if I put the charkha in the hands of the people of Sevagram they do not accept it. We teach them how to use it, tempt them by providing them with work, pay them more wages and serve them in various ways, yet all to little purpose. But my faith in the charkha is unshakable even when I have failed as President of the Sangh.

That is why I said that we should admit that we have failed to do what we ought to have done. It is not due to want of sacrifice in us. Amongst us are men and women who have sacrificed much. My head bends low before them. When I think of each of them my heart is deeply moved. My conscience tells me that a country which abounds in persons instilled with such a spirit of sacrifice can never fail. Yet in spite of this sacrifice, we have not yet made our country free. Freedom is coming, perhaps sooner than we believe. But it does not satisfy me. I even question my own share in it and then console myself with the thought that we have at least tried our best. I do not hold anybody guilty. I am only pointing to the situation as it is. Correct assessment of a situation is also a sign of intelligence. We should not feel satisfied with what we have done. We have tried our best, no doubt. But had we been able to develop the work of the Sangh according to the standard we had set before ourselves, there will not be the despair amongst us which we see today. In that case we would have accomplished forthwith a non-violent swaraj.

I lay before you a hard prescription. If you are prepared for it, well and good. But it should not be accepted in ignorance, nor out of foolhardiness. You should examine it thoroughly. If you agree with me you would wind up the A.I.S.A. and distribute all its property and assets among its workers for carrying on the work. The Sangh need not keep even a pice for future activities. All of us should be convinced that the charkha is the symbol of non-violent economic self-sufficiency. If we and the people grasp this significance of the charkha not a pice need be spent on propaganda for the charkha. There would then be no reason to fear Government ordinances either. Nor need we look to the rich for alms. We shall without effort become the centre of hope, and the people will come to us of their own accord. They will not go elsewhere to seek work. Every village will become the nerve-centre of independent India. India will then not be known by her cities like Bombay and Calcutta, but by her 400 millions inhabiting the seven lakhs of villages. The problems of Hindu-Muslim differences, untouchability, conflicts, misunderstandings and rivalries will all melt away. This is the real function of the Sangh. We have to live and die for it.

You will argue it is a very big task requiring much intelligence. I tell you that this cannot be acquired by mere study in libraries. We have to develop it by the labour of our hands. This is the idea underlying the Nayee Talim according to which the intellect is developed by the effort put forth by the hands and feet. Books need not be burnt but their importance is only secondary. The charkha has to rank first of all. In the same manner the pursuit of the charkha must become the mainspring of manifold other activities like village industries, Nayee Talim, etc. If we are able to adopt the charkha intelligently we can revive the entire economic life of our villages once more. But we can progress only as far as the strength of our members takes us. I do not wish to create a fresh universe, like Vishwamitra, who wanted to take Trishanku to heaven but the poor fellow remained suspended half way. Therefore, we have to work within the limits of our strength with our feet on the hard earth.

If we ourselves disband the Sangh the Government will have little left to attach. They could surely not destroy us all, for our strength would have gone up to forty crores. If they want to liquidate us we shall submit to it cheerfully. And what does it matter if a few million among us are done away with? An ocean does not dry up if a few drops evaporate. Nothing can diminish its greatness. Similarly, the more we are suppressed, the more powerful we shall grow. The only condition is that we must recognize the power of non-violence.

We must carry on untiring research on the charkha. No doubt we have put in a lot of effort for the charkha and made some improvements in it. We have also manufactured scores of charkhas but now we have to produce an expert, a shastri who is well-versed in the manufacture of machines. We should like him to devise such charkhas as can yield more and better quality of yarn. But even if we fail to find such an expert, I am not going to accept defeat. I will prove my point with the help of reasoning. We should have undying faith in the charkha. When faith materializes it manifests itself through reason. It is not self-luminous. For when faith transcends its bounds and finds another medium to express itself it shines forth all the more. Faith is never lost; in fact it grows and sharpens the intellect. And then faith can challenge reason. It is no use merely making speeches or giving lectures; we must make scientific experiments and declare from the house-tops the results of our experiments. We have been suppressed and we have to work our way up. Let us therefore do away with mutual recriminations, disabuse our minds of any reservations, iron out all the differences and thus simplify our work. We should repose full confidence in our representatives and be frank. We are votaries of truth and should, therefore, not be afraid of speaking the whole truth, for the greater the fear in our hearts, the less we shall be able to speak the truth. That is why the Gita gives the pride of place to fearlessness.

I am telling you this on the strength of my inner experience. We should be fearless and not hide anything. Selfishness has already impeded our progress and unless we get rid of it, we would not be able to organize our strength and would thus prove traitors to Mother India.

[From Hindi]
Charkha Sanghka Navasamskaran, pp.
Yesterday, I was a little hasty while talking to you. Some work was indeed done but later I kept thinking over it. I had undertaken the stupendous task of preparing a draft for you. I even entered silence for the purpose. After much reflection last night and this morning I have prepared a draft which I shall now read out for your consideration.

1. The village is the centre for the charkha, and the Charkha Sangh can realize its highest ambitions only when its work is decentralized in the villages. Keeping this in view, this meeting of the A. I. S. A. resolves that the following changes be implemented in its present methods of work:

   (a) The largest number of workers whose one passion is the charkha and whom the A. I. S. A. approves should go to the villages.

   (b) The present sales-depots and production-centres should be curtailed.

   (c) Training institutions should be developed and teaching courses enlarged.

   (d) The Sangh should permit any province or district which wants to be independent and self-sufficient to become so.

2. A Standing Committee composed of the members of the A.I.S.A., A.I.V.I.A. and the Hindustani Talimi Sangh should be formed in order to issue necessary directions in the light of the new ideology. The three institutions must realize that their task is to achieve perfect non-violence. Complete swaraj will follow in its wake. The three institutions must be so equipped that the entire government machinery should depend upon them and not vice versa. This means the workers of these three bodies should attain in some measure the quality of a sthitaprajna. They must be men of secure understanding. If this is not possible we should stop making tall claims for the charkha. We shall have to lower our ideal and plan our work accordingly.

This united body composed, as suggested above, of members of the three Sanghs should so regularize the constructive work that all political activity will be dependent on it. Today our condition is most pitiable.

1 Bhagavad Gita, ii, 54-72

Some workers of the A. I. S. A. complained to me that they do not receive any help from Congressmen. The experience of the last two years is also before us. During my detention, I read a lot of newspapers and was aware of the wretchedness that was apparent in our workers.

Now after talking to them it has all become very clear to me.

In the jail, I read all the Communist literature [I could get]. It contained nothing new for me. Whenever Maulana Hasrat Mohani visited the Ashram, we used to spend the day in such discussions. Today the Socialists have a number of sincere workers holding university degrees. Those among them who are neutral come to me and ask me to put my philosophy and my faith before the world. I have placed before the world a novel idea which, although it has no long history of its own, represents my achievement based on forty years’ experience.

We must admit that we have few degree-holders among us. We have neither much money nor any comparable efficiency. I realize all these difficulties but undaunted I made my way through them cheerfully for seventy-five years. I hope you will be equally fearless.

We can make intelligent progress along our chosen path and face the challenge coming our way only if we have this courage. What indicates light is its progressive dispelling of darkness. Absence of light is darkness. It has been the law of the world that light spreads. Darkness then has nowhere to go but cease to be. That is the way of non-violence too. My deep-rooted faith in non-violence gives me the courage to fear nothing—and in spite of impediments my progress has not stopped. This manifestation of non-violence will be clear to you only after my death, not before it.

We have been looking up to the Congress because we have been crippled so far. It is true that with the Congress help, our work can be carried on, but then it was I who had introduced the Charkha Sangh Resolution’ in the Congress realizing that the Sangh was to continue

---

1 The Resolution, passed on September 22, 1925, inter alia, read: “It is resolved that the Congress do now take up and carry on all such political work as may be necessary in the interests of the country, and for this purpose do employ the whole
But it is our fault that we have not won the confidence of Congressmen sufficiently to make them come to us to help them in village work. If we were capable of doing this, which Congressmen would dare remain outside the Sangh? Nay, the Congress and the Sangh would then have felt one with each other, and the one would have acted as a supplement to the other, i.e., the Sangh would have carried out the Congress constructive programme, and the Congress would have fought the Government in the legislatures. There would then have been no antagonism between the two.

Therefore, we have to look at the whole thing from a new angle and a new order of priorities. I have put nothing new before you. It would indeed be a great achievement if you could prove the power of the charkha through your own lives. Today, we are in a strange situation. I have no doubt at all that we have failed to realize the significance of the charkha only because of the inadequate manner in which we have done our khadi work.

It cannot be denied that believers in big industry and industrialization are also the friends of India. But the difference between them and me is like that between the two poles. Citydwellers might well follow those who advocate mill production. But if you of the countryside were, even by mistake or oversight, to take to it, the picture of India would be thoroughly changed. Her face would then be altered beyond recognition. Thereby hundreds of millions of our poor people will meet their end while only a few millions will survive. I do aspire to live for 125 years. But I cannot bear the sight of a crore of people living after reducing to ashes 39 crores. What I have tried to do is to serve the most oppressed and the handicapped, and to keep pace with them. It has been our endeavour to do this work through khadi during these years. Not many years ago we began. If you feel that no changes are desirable, well and good, but I will not accept defeat. You should come to a decision after weighing all the pros and cons.

of the machinery and funds of the Congress, save and except such funds and assets as are specially earmarked and belong to the All-India Khaddar Board and Provincial Khaddar Boards, which shall be handed over with all existing financial obligations to the All-India Spinners’ Association started by Mahatma Gandhi as an integral part of the Congress organization, but with independent existence and full powers to administer these and other funds for the fulfilment of its object.” For Gandhiji’s speech introducing the Resolution, vide “Speech at A.I.C.C. Meeting, Patna”, 22-9-1925.
cons. Who knows when it will be possible for so many of us to meet again? I have laid my heart open before you.

If you believe that the charkha is the supreme symbol of our objective and that we have not been able to achieve our objective by the present methods then our mode of working must needs be changed.

I do not mean to say that all we did so far was absolutely wrong. Whatever we did, we did with devotion to truth. And that is no small matter. Even with our limited funds, we were able to distribute among our village brethren more than four and a half crores of rupees up to date. The amount we spent in organizing this work was in comparison little. Yet from the standpoint of our objective, the work is not up to the standard. We must not allow ourselves to be weighed down by the commercial aspect of our work. Jawaharlal has sent me a book describing the achievements of the co-operative movement in China. That movement, it seems to me, is nothing compared with what we are doing here. But judged by our own objective we have done little, very little. We have not yet reached the seven hundred thousand villages. We have done only one per cent of what the mills have done. Then what is there to be proud of? That is why I say that if we are not prepared to change our methods we shall be reduced to a mere philanthropic institution. I shall not be ashamed of it. If, on the other hand, we want to uphold our claim for khadi we shall have to live up to it. We should not deceive the public. We must think out ways and means of increasing our strength. If in seeking to change our mode of work you agree that it would be well to close the A.I.S.A. in its present form, rest assured that it would add to your strength.

[From Hindi]

Charkha Sanghka Navasamskaran, pp. 9-14

472. LETTER TO METROPOLITAN OF CALCUTTA

Sevagram,
September 3, 1944

DEAREST FRIEND,

It is now 3.30 a.m. I must write now or the work before me may crowd out this note.

I have your clear letter written during your tour in the villages. I know you will believe me when I tell you that in all I have written about the rulers, I have written as I have felt and never with evil intention. I have never hidden my own people’s failings or errors. I hope I shall never forfeit your friendship.

I had a rare time with the Bishop of Rangoon and his chaplain.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

THE METROPOLITAN
BISHOP HOUSE
CALCUTTA

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

473. LETTER TO AMRIT KAUR

September 3, 1944

CHI. AMRIT,¹

I have got up very early to write a few important letters. This is one of them. The A. I. S. A. meeting leaves me little leisure during the day. I read no newspapers and very little correspondence. The marvel is I am keeping well in spite of the stress. How I wish you were here. But God’s will be done and it is the best that can happen.

No extension to the hospital can be made today. Everything is uncertain and things are expensive. Let your money go to the contemplated Mahadev Memorial Fund. The use may be decided afterwards. You should make your suggestion.

Do not worry about the women’s conference. Everything is in the melting pot.

Sushila is getting on.

Mrs. Swaminathan² and Mrs. Menon, her relative, are here.

Have lovely khadi from Beryl and of course your annual shawls.

It has struck four and I must not tarry long with you.

Love from us all.

Blessings from
BAPU

[PS.]

You must keep well and not fret or be impatient.

From the original: C.W. 4147. Courtesy: Amrit Kaur. Also G.N. 7782

¹ The superscription and the subscription are in Devanagari script.
² Ammu Swaminathan
474. TELEGRAM TO G. V. MAVALANKAR

September 3, 1944

YOUR LETTER. RULE IS NON-CO-OPERATION, BUT IF YOUR ASSOCIATION WITH AUTHORITIES BRINGS REAL RELIEF TO DISTRESSED PEOPLE, YOU NEED NOT HESITATE. GOLDEN RULE IS FOLLOW FEARLESSLY YOUR OWN CONSCIENCE.

_Sansmarano_, p. 158

475. STATEMENT TO THE PRESS

September 3, 1944

Reference has been made to me from Gujarat as to the association by Congressmen with the authorities in relieving distress which has overtaken areas through devastating floods. The Congress, as an organization, is not functioning. The general rule is non-co-operation, while the Government is warring against the Congress. There should be no hesitation about individuals associating, if effective relief can thereby be given to the distressed people. Every case should be judged on its own merits. The test should be, is any initiative and responsibility left with the individuals? The golden rule is to follow fearlessly one’s own judgment even at the risk of its proving erroneous.

_The Hindu_, 5-9-1944

---

1 According to _The Bombay Chronicle_, 7-9-1944, Kanaiyalal Desai, President, Surat District Congress Committee, and President, Gujarat Central Congress Workers’ Committee, had “three hours’ discussion with Gandhiji on the present political situation and relief work in Gujarat. . . . Gandhiji had also made it clear that Congressmen in no circumstances should resort to mass civil disobedience.”
MY DEAR KHWAJA,

Or shall I call you Khwaja Saheb and be formal?

Minister Nurie has broken his journey to tell me about his talks with you and generally about your Majlis. He says you are angry with me for having neglected you. What can be the meaning of my neglecting you? When heart speaks to heart, there is no occasion for speaking. I have been following your writings. Surely you will not want me to waste my time telling you how well you were doing your work!!! All I want to assure you about is that I shall not be faithless to you or the Majlis or Islam. Now do say you are not angry. How are you keeping?

Love.

Yours,

BAPU

ABDUL MAJID KHAN SAHEB
GANDHI ASHRAM
CHARKHA SANGH KH ADDAR BHANDAR
ALLAHABAD

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

477. LETTER TO CHIMANLAL N. SHAH

September 3, 1944

CHI. CHIMANLAL,

Please give Bhai Baburam¹ the fare and food, and also Rs. 10 in addition.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10611

¹ An inmate of the Ashram who worked under Bharatanand (Maurice Frydman)
Today, I will try to explain my thoughts to you more clearly and present them to you in a different frame from what I have said during the last two days. Our work had a very humble beginning. When I started khadi I had with me, apart from Maganlalbhai\(^1\) and others who had elected to live and die with me, Vithaldasbhai\(^2\) and a few sisters. Vithaldas was, at that time, fighting for the labourers, but [at my call] he gave up his shop and joined me in this unremunerative work. We had then not the faintest idea as to what the future had in store for us. We have travelled a long way since then and today about two crores of people have come under the influence of the charkha. So far, we have maintained that the charkha has the power to bring us freedom. With its help we have been able to provide the village people with a large amount of money. But can we still hold, as we have always maintained, that swaraj is impossible without the charkha? So long as we do not substantiate this claim the charkha is really no more than a measure of relief, to which we turn because we can do nothing else about it. It would not then be the means of our salvation.

Secondly, we have failed to carry our message to the crores of our people. They have neither any knowledge of what the charkha can do for them nor even the necessary curiosity for it.

The Congress did accept the charkha. But did it do so willingly? No, it tolerates the charkha simply for my sake. The Socialists ridicule it outright. They have spoken and written much against it. We have no clear or convincing reply to offer to them. How I wish I could convince them that the charkha is the key to swaraj! I have not been able to justify the claim all these years.

Now for my third point: non-violence is not something of the other world. If it is, I have no use for it. I am of the earth and if non-violence is something really worth while I want to realize it here on this earth while I am still alive. The non-violence I want is one which the masses can follow in practice. And how else can it be

---

1. Maganlal Gandhi
2. Vithaldas Jerajani realized except in a society which has compassion and other similar virtues as its characteristics?

If you go to the house of one who has use for violence you will find his drawing-room decorated with tigers’ skins, deers’ horns, swords, guns and such like. I have been to the Viceregal Lodge, I also saw Mussolini. In the houses of both I found arms hanging on the walls. I was given a salute with arms, a symbol of violence.

Just as arms symbolize violence the charkha symbolizes non-violence, in the sense that we can most directly realize non-violence through it. But it cannot symbolize non-violence so long as we do not work in accordance with its spirit. The sword in Mussolini’s hall seemed to say ‘Touch me and I will cut you.’ It gave a vivid picture of violence. It seemed to ask you to touch it and realize its power. So also we must illustrate the power of the charkha so that a mere look at it may speak to us about non-violence. But we are bankrupt today. What is our answer to the Socialists? They complain that we have been harping on the charkha for years and yet we have achieved nothing.

The charkha was there during Muslim rule also. Dacca was famous for its muslin. The charkha then was a symbol of poverty and not of non-violence. The kings took forced labour from women and depressed classes. The same was later repeated by the East India Company. Kautilya mentions in his Arthashastra the existence of such forced labour. For ages the charkha was thus a symbol of violence and the use of force and compulsion. The spinner got but a handful of grain or two small coins, while ladies of the court went about luxuriously clad in the finest of muslins, the product of exploited labour.

As against this, I have presented the charkha to you as a symbol of non-violence. If I did not make it clear to you so far, it was my mistake. You know I am among the maimed and can move but slowly. Yet I do believe that the work done so far has not been a waste.

I shall now pass to my fourth point. We have not yet proved that there can be no swaraj without the charkha. It cannot be proved so long as you do not explain it to Congressmen. The charkha and the Congress should become synonyms.

The task of proving the superiority of non-violence is a difficult one. We have to fathom its depths if we are to realize its truth. I have

---

1 Chanakya, the celebrated writer on statecraft always supported all that I have said so far. The world is going to put me to the test. It may declare me a fool for my tall talk about the charkha. The task of making the charkha, which for centuries had been a symbol of poverty, helplessness, injustice and forced labour, the symbol now of mighty non-violent strength, of the new social order and of the new economy, has fallen on our shoulders. We have to change history. And I want to do it through you.

I hope you follow what I am saying. But if in spite of it you do not believe that the charkha has the power to achieve swaraj, I will ask you to leave me. Here you are at the crossroads. If you continue with me without faith you will be deceiving me and doing a great wrong to the country. I beg of you not to deceive me in the evening of my life.

It is I who am responsible for defects in our working so far. The fault is mine because I have remained the head even when I was conscious of its defects. But let bygones be bygones. Do we honestly believe today that the charkha is the emblem of non-violence? How many of us are there who believe so from the depths of our heart?

Now we have the tricolour flag. What is it but a piece of khadi of specific length and breadth? You can well have another piece in its place. But behind that khadi cloth lie encased your feelings. It is a symbol of swaraj, a symbol of national emancipation. We cannot forget it. We will not remove it. We are prepared to die for it. So also the charkha should be an emblem of non-violence.

What does the charkha, as an emblem of non-violence, signify in the economic sphere? Call it self-sufficiency or what you like. In the name of national reconstruction and self-sufficiency millions are being bled white in Western countries, as also in other countries for their sake. Ours is not a self-sufficiency of that pattern. The charkha is the way to get rid of exploitation and domination. I am not so much concerned with words as with the thing itself. Still, words have a miraculous power. They embody the feelings, which then acquire a definite shape with the aid of language.

We are familiar with the controversy in our religion as to whether God has a form or no. The believers in form prefer to worship God through an emblem. So if non-violence is to be pursued as an ideal, the charkha must be acknowledged as its true form and emblem, and kept ever before view. Whenever I think of non-violence... the picture of the charkha comes before me. A *nirakaravadi*¹ would not accept Krishna. He has one foot on the mountain top and the other in the clouds above. But we tread the solid ground. We cannot visualize non-violence in the abstract. So we choose an object which can symbolize for us the formless. That is what the charkha does for me and that is why I worship it. If you can realize this truth, you will understand the force of my argument. Even to Jaju I had never before spoken with so much conviction. Jerajani says I am being hasty. Unless you understand and imbibe this spirit behind my worship of the charkha you will not gain an understanding of non-violence even for a hundred years. That capacity for non-violence which I find in the charkha can also be perceived by you only if you approach it with a heart like mine. That is why I say: Follow me or leave me. If you want to come with me, I will give you a scheme and do everything possible. If you have not understood what I mean I am prepared to sit and discuss it with you the whole day. But if you say that you have grasped my meaning when you really have not, you will be deceiving both yourselves and me. Ours is not an association for making profit. We do not seek loaves and fishes. There are a thousand fields in which we can serve the country. Why then remain in charkha work and sail under false colours? Please do not therefore remain with me under an illusion. Let me go my way alone. But if it were found that I was myself suffering from an illusion and that my belief in the charkha was mere idol-worship, either you may burn me to ashes with the wood of the charkha, or I myself would set fire to the charkha with my own hands.

If the Charkha Sangh has to go, let us wind it up with our own hands. That will put an end to all our struggle like the sun clearing the mist. Then the charkha which has for the moment put us into a labyrinth of difficulties will be left in the hands of a few who believe in it, and may in their hands prove to be a mighty weapon. If you regard it as sheer folly I certainly have no ambition to run an idiots’ association and thus degrade the country. On the other hand, if you can demonstrate non-violence through the charkha, it will not merely move but sweep forward. You will not then have to worry about keeping it alive.

I repeat that you either leave me alone or digest what I say and follow me. I have brought this new idea to you after two years of penitential thinking. I do not know if I have succeeded in conveying my idea to you. If I have been able to carry conviction please do one thing. Those of you who want to remain with me give me in writing that you regard the charkha from today as the emblem of non-violence. You have to make your decision today. If you do not or cannot regard the charkha as the emblem of non-violence and yet remain with me, then you will thereby put yourself in an awkward plight and also drag me down with you.

¹ One who holds that the Supreme is formless

[From Hindi]

Charkha Sanghka Navasamskaran, pp. 14-20

479. LETTER TO CHIMANLAL N. SHAH

3.25 a.m., Silence-day

[On or before September 4, 1944]¹

CHI. CHIMANLAL,

I saw yesterday that my point had not been understood.

The matter of utensils, etc., was only an instance. It made me see the extent of our imperfections.

In my view, in moments of crisis we have not shown the qualities that the inmates of the Ashram should have. Those qualities cannot be cultivated in a day. A handful of you may maintain some order. But how does that help? What knowledge do women have? What part can they intelligently play? Can everybody sacrifice himself in a way that would befit the Ashram? Can you stand today before India as an embodiment of the Ashram? Let us realize our weakness. There is something lacking in my training. If that is the case, then we must proceed with that realization. Balkrishna cannot be of much help in this. Jajuji can. Vallabh can. If you want, do discuss it with me. If I have been able to put across my point, you can take a decision without discussing it with me. I shall accept whatever you do. I see no harm since Jajuji has been involved. His guidance would be invaluable. You should not think it shameful to wind up the Ashram. Its winding up may mean building it up. If you wind it up, give thought to my idea of a smaller one.

¹ From the reference to the winding up of the Ashram and Gandhiji’s visit to Bombay, it appears that this was written before Gandhiji left for Bombay on September 9, 1944. Silence-day, i.e., the Monday before that, was on September 4. Vide also “Letter to Chimanlal N. Shah”, 16-9-1944.

Do not feel perturbed. Have the utmost patience. All of you should read this and think it over. There is no harm if you cannot come to any decision before I go to Bombay.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati : G.N. 10664-A 480. LETTER TO R. K. PRABHU

SEVAGRAM,
September 4, 1944

MY DEAR PRABHU,

You shall certainly be present at the interview with Mr. Hawkins.

Yours,
BAPU

SHRI PRABHU

“THE BOMBAY CHRONICLE”
FORT, BOMBAY

From a photostat: G.N. 9228

481. LETTER TO R. E. HAWKINS

SEVAGRAM,
September 4, 1944

DEAR MR. HAWKINS,

Do please see me in Bombay. I hope to reach on 9th. You will arrange the time when I reach there. You won’t feel disappointed if I cannot find the time. I should be obliged if we can discover a way out.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

THE GENERAL MANAGER
THE OXFORD UNIVERSITY PRESS
B. I. BUILDING
NICOL ROAD
BOMBAY

From a copy : Pyarelal Papers, Nehru Memorial Museum and Library.
Courtesy : Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar
482. LETTER TO BIDHAN CHANDRA ROY

SEVAGRAM, WARDHA,
September 4, 1944

DEAR DR. BIDHAN,

If you do not know my mind as you presume to know my pulse, the fault is wholly yours. If you have not found me forward to initiate political discussions with you, it is due to a delicate consideration for you. I may not take an undue advantage of your kindness in coming to me in your medical capacity. People have a right to expect you to know my mind.

I have not accepted the two-nation theory. I have accepted the principle of self-determination underlying it.

The second thing has been assured in the formula.

Ask any questions you like.

Yours,

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

483. LETTER TO SHARDA G. CHOKHAWALA

September 4, 1944

CHI. BABUDI,

Please do come. I will be in Bombay on the 9th. I showed your letter to both. I thought it would please them, and it did.

Blessings to all from

BAPU

From the Gujarati original: C.W. 10049. Courtesy: Sharda G. Chokhawala
484. LETTER TO AMTUSSALAAM

September 4, 1944

DAUGHTER,

The silken mosquito-net is not required. I got the jaggery. Jiten Babu\(^1\) has come to get my signature when I am very busy. We shall think later about the rules and so on.

Sushila tells me that you have fallen sick. What is to be done now? It won’t do you any good if you insist on staying there.

_Blessings from_
_BAPU_

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 484

485. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA

Silence Day, September 4, 1944

CHI. KRISHNACHANDRA,

I have your letter. Why are you wasting so much time over such a trivial matter? You did what seemed to be proper at the time. This should be enough. Your letter is a symptom of an unhealthy mind. Get rid of it.

_Blessings from_
_BAPU_

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4446

486. NOTE TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

[On or after September 4, 1944]\(^2\)

Read the letter I have written to Chhaganlal. Think over it and then do what you consider right. It does not matter if you do not include Abha’s\(^3\) name just now. I have no objection.

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 8470. Also C.W. 7177. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

---

\(^1\)Jitendra Chakraborty, Secretary of the Bengal Charkha Sangh and Joint-Secretary of the Kasturba Seva Mandir, who had come to get Gandhiji’s approval for the Mandir’s constitution

\(^2\)The letter is written below a letter from the addressee dated September 4, 1944.

\(^3\)Daughter of Amrita Lal Chatterjee
487. TELEGRAM TO NARANDAS GANDHI

WARDHAGANI,
September 5, 1944

NARANDAS GANDHI
RAJKOT
JANAKIDEVI BAJAJ PRESIDING OUR FUNCTION1. WRITING.

BAPU

From a microfilm: M.M.U./II. Also C.W. 8611. Courtesy: Narandas dGandhi

488. LETTER TO PRABHASHANKAR H. PAREKH

September 5, 1944

BHAI PRABHASHANKAR,

I have your postcard. Please bear in mind that it is for you to win over Champa2. You alone know how to do it.

Vandemataram from
M. K. GANDHI

SHRI PRABHASHANKARBHAI
DERA SHERI
RAJKOT3

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./XX

489. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

[On or after September 5, 1944]4

Your letter is as usual frank. If I consulted my friends in carrying out my experiments, it could not be said that they were undertaken with God’s permission. Besides, whom can I expect to come with me when I plough in fresh fields? More or less all my 1 Rentia Baras Day; vide also letters to the addressee, “Letter to Narandas Gandhi”, 6-9-1944 and 10/12-9-1944.

2 Champa R. Mehta, addressee’s daughter
3 The address is in the Devanagari script.
4 The letter is written below a letter from the addressee dated September 5, 1944.
important experiments were started single-handed and co-workers came in later. I know that this experiment is a very dangerous one indeed. But it is also capable of yielding very great results. I can forget about it only when I realize that it is harmful. All of you can attack my reason. But you can strike at my heart only in One way—by repudiating me. If you are convinced that the views you have expressed are correct, it is your dharma to repudiate me and expose me. The examples you have cited from the Shastras are faulty. You form your opinions in haste and change them equally hastily. Whatever you do, do after careful thinking.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G. N. 8469. Also C.W. 7176. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

490. LETTER TO BALKRISNA BHAVE

[On or after September 5, 1944]¹

All this has been written very frankly. My experiment has not been understood fully. The fact that all my conduct seems to be contrary to the statement² you have quoted should make you think. But this discussion . . .³

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 811. Courtesy: Balkrishna Bhave

491. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

SEVAGRAM,
September 6, 1944

CHI. NARANDAS,

I sent you a wire yesterday saying that Janakibein would arrive there on the Rentia Baras Day. She will of course be accompanied by ¹ The letter is written below a letter from the addressee dated September 5, 1944.

² The reference is to a private statement issued in 1938 regarding the discontinuance of accepting from women such service as would involve bodily contact, vide “To Ashram Inmates”, 2-6-1938.
³ The letter is incomplete.

VOL. 84 : 27 JANUARY, 1944 - 1 OCTOBER, 1944 363
somebody.

About the fund, do what I have suggested in my letter.\footnote{Vide “Letter to Narandas Gandhi”, 31-8-1944.} I will, however, do whatever I can. Kanaiyo will write more.

I am likely to be in Bombay on the 9th.

\textit{Blessings from} \hfill BAPU

[PS.]

You have entered the sixtieth year of your life, haven’t you? We must all try to live up to a hundred. You have much work to do yet.

\textit{Blessings from} \hfill BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./II. Also C.W. 8612. Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi

\textbf{492. LETTER TO VIJYALAKSHMI PANDIT}

\textbf{SEVAGRAM,}

\textit{September 6, 1944}

CHI. SARUP.

I want to include your name as a trustee for the Kasturba [Memorial] Fund. But I can have your name only if you can give time for it and attend the Trust meetings and you are fully convinced of the object of the Trust, namely, that it will be utilized only for the children and women of the villages of India. Inform me telegraphically. I shall be in Bombay on the 9th and 10th.

\textit{Blessings from} \hfill BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
493. TALK WITH STUDENTS’ DELEGATION

September 6, 1944

H. P. Mishra: We won’t like your seeing Mr. Jinnah as you are likely to be duped and the Hindus are likely to be exploited by Mr. Jinnah at our cost.²

Gandhiji: I will not ignore or compromise a single interest, be sure.

Students from Bengal who requested Mahatma Gandhi not to decide on a settlement were asked by the Mahatma:

Have I not done any good for Hindus?

Hari Prasanna Mishra questioned Mahatma Gandhi whether he accepted responsibility for what was going on in Bengal resulting from the Communal Award. To this Gandhiji replied:

How can I?

The Bengal students requested Mahatma Gandhi to leave the communal question to the Sabha and the League.³

Mahatma Gandhi assured the students that he would not do anything without consulting Bengal. Despite these assurances, the students informed Gandhiji of their intention to continue picketing and Gandhiji replied:

If you thus prevent me, I will have to wire Mr. Jinnah that I am arrested and so postpone the meeting.

The Hindu, 9-9-1944, and The Hitavada, 8-9-1944

494. LETTER TO MASTERJI MAHARAJ

Sevagram, Wardha,
September 7, 1944

Masterji Maharaj⁴:

Thank you for the cheque you have sent for the Kasturba Memorial Fund. I hope to see you some day.

Yours,

M. K. Gandhi

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 2167

¹ The students, led by Hari Prasanna Mishra, General Secretary of the All-India Hindu Students’ Federation, picketed Gandhiji’s hut in Sevagram.
² These two sentences are from The Hitavada.
³ ibid
⁴ One of the gurus of the Radhaswami sect of Hindus
495. LETTER TO BAGARJI

September 7, 1944

BHAI BAGARJI,

I send herewith a letter1 for Masterji Maharaj acknowledging receipt of his cheque. I have written this with the pen you gave me.

Yours,
M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 2162

496. A CIRCULAR LETTER

SEVAGRAM,

September 8, 1944

BHAI,

Day before yesterday, that is, on the night of the 6th, Shri Deshpandeji told me that Jajuji is not fit for the post of Secretary as he does not have administrative, that is, management talent although he is a saintly man. He can hold the highest position in a society of saints. In support of his opinion he told me that the Provincial Secretaries or Agents of the A.I.S.A., who have returned from here, have all gone back disappointed and helpless. Therefore, he fears that the A.I.S.A. is going to die under its own weight. If this is true, as head of the A.I.S.A., I have to give it a second thought because my experience is completely contrary to Deshpandeji’s opinion. My experience tells me that true saintliness implies efficiency, and Jajuji is a living embodiment of this truth. I have, therefore, decided to have Jajuji’s administrative talents verified. I have already talked to Jajuji and he also agrees to this. If you have accepted Jajuji as Secretary out of despair and only to please me, you have not been truly faithful to the A.I.S.A. and if Deshpande’s prophecy comes true and the A.I.S.A. comes to nought, in my opinion, it will not be on account of Jajuji but due to your own weakness. How can any secretary, however able, attain success without the whole-hearted co-operation of his subordinates? The A.I.S.A. has no power to compel any one. Its strength lies in the whole-hearted co-operation among all its office-

1 Vide the preceding item.
bearers, i.e., their mutual love and fellow-feeling. If this is lacking nothing avails. Please, therefore, let me have your true opinion whether Jajuji is unfit for the secretaryship, whether he lacks administrative talents, whether you have reluctantly accepted his candidature. If your answer is in support of Deshpandeji’s statement, please write to me substantiating your objections with concrete instances so that I can decide the course of my duty.

Kindly send an early reply.

Yours,

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

497. LETTER TO T. B. SAPRU

ON THE WAY TO BOMBAY,
September 8, 1944

DEAR SIR TEJ,

I have your letter. I am going in hope but without expectation. So if I return empty-handed, I shall not be disappointed. I hope you will find the patient substantially on the road to full recovery.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

Gandhi-Sapru Papers. Courtesy: National Library, Calcutta. Also G.N. 7575

498. LETTER TO BISHOP OF RANGOON

ON THE TRAIN FOR BOMBAY,
September 9, 1944

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your kind letter bringing me your good wishes. I am in God’s good hands. I fancy I understand what you mean.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

RT. REVD. BISHOP OF RANGOON
HOTEL Cecil
DELHI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

VOL. 84 : 27 JANUARY, 1944 - 1 OCTOBER, 1944 367
499. LETTER TO SECRETARY, KASTURBA MEMORIAL FUND

BIRLA HOUSE,
BOMBAY,
September 9, 1944

DEAR FRIEND,

I am enclosing herewith a scheme outlining the curriculum for the education of women for your consideration.

Yours sincerely,

SECRETARY
KASTURBA NATIONAL MEMORIAL FUND COMMITTEE
SCINDIA HOUSE
BOMBAY

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library.
Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

500. LETTER TO SUDHIR GHOSH

BIRLA HOUSE,
BOMBAY,
September 9, 1944

DEAR FRIEND,

Gandhiji desires me to thank you for your letter of the 29th August enclosing a letter from Mr. Graham White.

You certainly can come to Sevagram with Mrs. Ghosh on Gandhiji's return after the meeting with Quaid-e-Azam Jinnah.

Yours sincerely,

PYARELAL

SRI SUDHIR GHOSH
TISCO HOTEL
JAMSHEDPUR

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library.
Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar
It was a test of my patience. . . . I am amazed at my own patience. However, it was a friendly talk.

His (Jinnah’s) contempt for your Formula (Rajaji Formula) and his contempt for you is staggering. You rose in my estimation that you could have talked to him for all those hours and that you should have taken the trouble to draw up that formula.

He says you have accepted his demand and so should I. I said, “I endorse Rajaji’s Formula and you can call it Pakistan if you like.” He talked of the Lahore Resolution. I said, “I have not studied it and I do not want to talk about it. Let us talk about Rajaji’s Formula and you can point out any flaws that you find there.”

In the middle of the talk he came back to the old ghost: “I thought you had come here as a Hindu, as a representative of the Hindu Congress.” I said, “No, I have come here neither as a Hindu nor as a representative of the Congress. I have come here as an individual. You can talk to me as an individual or as the President of the League, whichever way you prefer. If you had agreed with Rajaji and accepted his Formula, you and he would have gone before your respective organizations and pleaded with them to accept it. That is why Rajaji came to you. You would then have placed it before other parties, too, in the same way. Now you and I have to do it.” He said he was the President of the League. Where was the basis for a talk if I was there representing nobody except myself? Who was to deliver the goods? I was the same man as he had found me in 1939. There was no change in me. I almost felt like saying, “Yes, I am the same man and since you think it is no use talking to me, I will go away.” But I resisted the temptation. I told him, “Is it not worth your while to convert an individual? I am the same man no doubt. You can change my views if you can and I will support you whole-heartedly.” “Yes, I

---

1 The meeting lasted three and a quarter hours. Gandhiji reported the talk to C. Rajagopalachari.

2 Of March 23, 1940; vide Appendix “Resolution Passed by All-India Muslim League”, 23-3-1940.
know, if I can convert you, you will be my Ali',” he said.¹

He said I should concede Pakistan and he would go the whole length with me. He would go to jail, he would even face bullets. I said, “I will stand by your side to face them.” “You may not,” he said. “Try me,” I replied.

We came back to the Formula. He wants Pakistan now, not after independence. “We will have independence for Pakistan and Hindustan,” he said. “We should come to an agreement and then go to the Government and ask them to accept it, force them to accept our solution.” I said I could never be a party to that. I could never ask the Britishers to impose partition on India. “If you all want to separate, I can’t stop you. I have not got the power to compel you and I would not use it if I had.” He said, “The Muslims want Pakistan. The League represents the Muslims and it wants separation.” I said, “I agree the League is the most powerful Muslim organization. I might even concede that you as its President represent the Muslims of India, but that does not mean that all Muslims want Pakistan. Put it to the vote of all the inhabitants of the area and see.” He said, “Why should you ask non-Muslims?” I said, “You cannot possibly deprive a section of the population of its vote. You must carry them with you, and if you are in the majority why should you be afraid?” I told him of what Kiron Shankar Roy had said to me “If the worst comes to the worst, we in Bengal will all go in Pakistan, but for goodness sake do not partition Bengal. Do not vivisect it.”

“If you are in majority,” I said, “you will have your choice. I know it is a bad thing for you, but if you want it all the same you will have it. But that will be an adjustment between you and me. It cannot occur while the Britishers are here.”

He began to cross-examine me on the various clauses of the Formula. I said to him, “If you want clarification of those things, is it not better to have it from the author of the Formula?” “Oh, no”, he did not want that. I said, “What is the use of your cross-examining me?”

He recollected himself. “Oh, no. I am not cross-examining you”, and then added: “I have been a lawyer all my life and my ¹ A cousin and son-in-law of the Prophet. He was among the first to accept the Prophet’s message.

² According to the source, Gandhiji observed afterwards: “It was a most revealing remark. I was meeting the prophet of Pakistan looking for his Ali!”
manner may have suggested that I was cross-examining you.” I asked him to reduce to writing his objections to the Formula. He was disinclined. “Must I do so?” he asked. “Yes, I would like you to.” He agreed.

In the end he said, “I would like to come to an agreement with you.” I answered, “You remember that I have said that we should meet not to separate till we had come to an agreement. He said, yes, he agreed. I suggested, “Should we put that also in our statement?” He said, “No, better not. Nevertheless that will be the understanding between us and the cordiality and friendliness of our talk will be reflected in our public utterances, too.”

Mahatma Gandhi—The Last Phase, Vol. I, Book I, pp. 84-6

502. INTERVIEW TO THE PRESS

September 9, 1944

“We have had frank and friendly talks and we are resuming our talks on Monday at 5.30 p.m. Tomorrow is the 21st day of Ramzan and, therefore, all Mussalmans have to observe it. And I have, therefore, requested Mr. Gandhi to oblige me not to have a meeting on the 21st day of Ramzan.” Here Gandhiji interrupted and said:

No obliging; willing to surrender.

Mahatma, Vol. VI, p. 341

---

1 Vide the following item.
2 After Gandhiji gave this report to C. Rajagopalachari the following conversation took place:
   RAJAJI: Do you think he wants a settlement?
   GANDHIJI: I am not certain. He thought he probably did.
   RAJAJI: Then you will get it through.
   GANDHIJI: Yes. . . . If the right word comes to me.
3 At the end of the first day’s talks, M. A. Jinnah, on behalf of Gandhiji and himself, dictated this statement. Earlier, in reply to a question by a newsman whether he had brought anything from Jinnah, Gandhiji had said: “Only flowers.”
4 Ninth month of the Hijri year in which Muslims observe fast during daytime.
503. LETTER TO VICEROY

CAMP “BIRLA HOUSE”, BOMBAY,

September 10, 1944

DEAR FRIEND,

I wrote¹ to you on July 17, 1944, asking you kindly to send a letter of same date addressed to the Prime Minister. May I know whether that letter was sent as requested? I am asking because so far I have had no acknowledgement of my letter.

I am,

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

H. E. THE VICEROY
VICEROY’S HOUSE
NEW DELHI

504. LETTER TO WANDA DYNOWSKA

BOMBAY,

September 10, 1944

DEAR UMA²

All I can say about the affliction through which Poland is passing is that no small nation of Europe is to expect any real help from the Allied Powers in spite of their professions to the contrary. You know I proposed a solution. It was summarily rejected. Let us rely upon God, the Rock of Ages.

With love,

Yours,

BAPU

From a photostat: G.N. 1206. Also C.W. 5101. Courtesy: Wanda Dynowska

¹ Vide “Letter to Winston Churchill”, 17-7-1944.
² ibid.
505. Telegram to Narandas Gandhi

Bombay,
September 11, 1944

Narandas Gandhi
Rashtriya Shala
Raikot

Kamalnayan coming with Janakidevi’s message¹.
Keep him not longer than three days.

Bapu

From a microfilm: M.M.U./II. Also C.W. 8614. Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi

506. Letter to M. A. Jinnah

September 11, 1944

Dear Quaid-e-Azam,

I received your letter² yesterday at 3.30 p.m. I was in the midst of appointments. I hasten to reply at the earliest opportunity.

I have said in my letter to you, it is implied in the Rajaji Formula and I have stated publicly that I have approached you as an individual. My life mission has been Hindu-Muslim unity, which I want for its own sake, but which is not to be achieved without the foreign ruling power being ousted. Hence the first condition of the exercise of the right of self-determination is achieving independence by the joint action of all the parties and groups composing India. If such joint action is unfortunately impossible, then too, I must fight with the assistance of such elements as can be brought together. I am glad, therefore, that you did not break off our talks when I refused to assume or accept a representative capacity. Of course I am pledged to use all the influence I may have with the Congress to ratify my agreement with you. May I remind you that the Rajaji Formula was designed in the first instance for your acceptance, and submission thereafter to the League?

It is true that I said an ocean separated you and me in outlook.

¹ Vide also telegram and letters to the addressee, “Telegram to Narandas Gandhi”, 5-9-1944; “Letter to Narandas Gandhi”, 6-9-1944 and 10/12-9-1944.

² Dated September 10; vide Appendix “Letter from M. A. Jinnah”, 10-9-1944.
But that had no reference to the Lahore Resolution of the League. The Lahore Resolution is indefinite. Rajaji has taken from it the substance and given it a shape.

Now for the points raised by you:

1. I have already answered this in the foregoing.

2. The constitution will be framed by the Provisional Government contemplated in the Formula or an authority specially set up by it after the British power is withdrawn. The independence contemplated is of the whole of India as it stands.

The basis for the formation of Provisional Interim Government will have to be agreed to between the League and the Congress.

3. The Commission will be appointed by the Provisional Government. “Absolute majority” means a clear majority over non-Muslim elements as in Sind, Baluchistan or the Frontier Province. The form of plebiscite and the franchise must be a matter for discussion.

4. “All parties” means, the parties interested.

5. “Mutual agreement” means agreement between contracting parties. “Safeguarding defence, etc.,” means for me a central or joint board of control. Safeguarding means safeguarding against all who may put the common interests in jeopardy.

6. The power is to be transferred to the nation, that is, to the Provisional Government. The Formula contemplates peaceful transfer by the British Government. So far as I am concerned I would like the transfer to take place as early as possible.¹

Yours sincerely

M. K. GANDHI

The Hindu, 29-9-1944

507. SPEECH AT PRAYER MEETING

September 11, 1944

Speaking in Hindustani² at the end of the prayers at Bombay, on September 11, Gandhiji as usual appealed for contributions to the Harijan Fund. Referring next to the exuberant affection of the crowd on the previous evening he said that after years of training such exhibition was a reflection on the good name of Bombay. It was a bad sign. But for the precautions taken on the spur of the moment he and some of the sisters accompanying him might have been hurt and so too Mr. Shantikumar¹. And what is more, in the confusion, the latter might have easily lost the Harijan purse that he was carrying. They knew how jealous he was of every pie belonging to the Harijans. Therefore he requested the public never again to repeat the performance of the day before. Why should the volunteers have to form a cordon around him? He did not want to have any guard. God alone was his guard. He was doing God’s work and he had faith that so long as He required his services He would protect him.

¹ For the addressee’s reply, vide Appendix “Letter from M. A. Jinnah”, 11-9-1944.

² The Hindustani version is not available.

Referring to his meeting with Mr. Jinnah, he said, he knew how eager they must be to be acquainted with the progress of the talks. It was a natural eagerness on their part which he would like to satisfy as far as possible consistently with the interest of the cause which they all shared with him in common.

All that he could say at the present stage was that Jinnah Saheb and he had met as old friends on Saturday (September 9), and again that day (Monday). He added that they would be meeting again the next day from 10.30 a.m. to 1 p.m. and from 5.30 to 7 p.m. This would leave them a little time to attend to other work and to digest the substance of the talks. They fully realized what a heavy responsibility rested on their shoulders. They knew that millions were watching the talks and were anxious that a settlement should be arrived at which would subserve the interests not of any particular group or community, but of the whole of India. Gandhiji said:

Our goal is the attainment of independence for the whole of India. It is for that we pray and are pledged to lay down our lives. Jinnah Saheb and I have only God between us as witness. My constant prayer these days is that He may so guide my speech that not a word might escape my lips so as to hurt the feelings of Jinnah Saheb or damage the cause that is dear to us both. I am sure the same is the case with Jinnah Saheb. He told me today, “If we part without coming to an agreement, we shall proclaim bankruptcy of wisdom on our part.” What is more, the hopes of millions of our countrymen will be dashed to pieces. Today the eyes of all the oppressed people of the world are on us. We therefore are fully alive to our responsibility and are straining every nerve to come to a settlement. But we realize that ultimately the result lies in God’s good hands. You should therefore all pray that He may guide us and give us wisdom to serve the cause of India.

An assurance that he would not sacrifice the interests of a single individual or

¹Shantikumar N. Morarjee community was given by Mahatma Gandhi.\footnote{This paragraph is from \textit{The Hindu}.}

In conclusion, Mahatma Gandhi appealed to the Press to put a curb on their inventiveness and not to give free rein to their imagination. Since neither he nor Mr. Jinnah was opening his lips to anybody, there could be no question of leakage.

\textit{Gandhi-Jinnah Talks}, pp. 38-9, and \textit{The Hindu}, 13-9-1944

\section*{508. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI}

\textbf{BOMBAY,}

\textit{September 10/12, 1944}

\textbf{CHI. NARANDAS,}

I have your letter. I understand what you say. I like your suggestion. Give on loan to the Kathiawar Khadi Mandal the money not already invested. When a new association is formed, it may make its own arrangement. Make some suggestions regarding the new association. Consult friends there.

Janakibehn will not be able to go. Chi. Kamalnayan is going with her message. Do not detain him for more than a day or two. He is sparing time from an extremely tight schedule. I hope your programme will succeed. If the programme does not succeed so well there this time as in the previous years, console yourself with the thought that it is your own venture that has now become a country-wide movement. If, therefore, your little rivulet, which was the source, looks small in comparison, you should not feel bad about it. Whether I will live long enough to see the National Fund put to good use or whether others who follow me will manage it in a worthy manner, is entirely in God’s hands. For us one step is enough.

\textit{Blessings from}

BAPU

[PS.]

\textit{September 12, 1944}

On further reflection, I feel that our real money is neither gold nor silver nor copper, but yarn. And at present we have no rival in regard to that. How nice would it be if the quantity this time is much larger than before! I should be happy if in the end you become the... first mint of yarn. Yarn is produced at many places. But not all of them become mints. Think what makes a mint what it is.

Blessings from BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./II. Also C.W. 8613. Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi

509. TALK WITH M. A. JINNAH

September 12, 1944

GANDHIJI: He drew a very alluring picture of the Government of Pakistan. It would be a perfect democracy. I asked him if he had not told me that democracy did not suit Indian conditions. He did not remember it. He asked me to tell him what he had said. So I told him all that and said that I might have misunderstood him. In that case he should correct me. But when I repeated in detail what he had said, he could not say no. He said, yes, he had said that, but that was with regard to imposed democracy.

Then he said, “Do you think it is a question of religious minority with us?” I said, “Yes.” If not, he should tell me what it was. He harangued. I won’t repeat all that here. I asked him what would happen to the other minorities in Pakistan: Sikhs, Christians, Depressed Classes, etc. He said they would be part of Pakistan. I asked him if he meant joint electorates. He knew I was coming to it. He said, yes, he would like them to be a part of the whole. He would explain the advantages of joint electorates, but if they wanted separate electorates they would have it. Sikhs would have Gurumukhi if they wanted and the Pakistan Government would give them financial aid. I asked, “What about Jats?” At first he pooh-poohed the idea. Then he said, “If they want it, they will also have it. They will have separate existence if they want it.” I said, “What about Christians? They also want some place where they are in a majority and where they can rule, as for instance in Travancore?” He said that was a problem for the Hindus. I said supposing Travancore was in Pakistan? He said he would give it to them. He cited the instance of Newfoundland. The rest of the talk was nothing. I am to continue exploring his mind.¹

¹ Gandhiji reported the talk to C. Rajagopalachari.

² For the discussion which followed with Rajaji, vide the following item.
510. DISCUSSION WITH C. RAJAGOPALACHARI

BOMBAY, September 12, 1944

RAJAJI: Find out what he\(^1\) wants.

GANDHIJI: Yes, that is what I am doing. I am to prove from his own mouth that the whole of the Pakistan proposition is absurd. I think he does not want to break. On my part I am not going to be in a hurry. But he can’t expect me to endorse an undefined Pakistan.

RAJAJI: Do you think he will give up the claim?

GANDHIJI: He has to, if there is to be a settlement. He wants a settlement, but what he wants he does not know. I want to show him that your Formula is the only thing that he can reasonably ask for.

511. LETTER TO AHMED NAWAZ JUNG

[After September 12, 1944]\(^2\)

JANAB NAWAB BAHADUR,

I have your English letter as also a Hindi translation of the holy Koran. I have with me the Hindi translation by Hasan Nizami Saheb. I shall try to compare both the translations. If you can, please send three more copies.

From the Hindi original: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

512. TELEGRAM TO DR. SHAUKAT ANSARI

BOMBAY, September 13, 1944

DOCTOR SHAUKAT ANSARI
RAJPUR ROAD
DELHI

PLEASE CONVEY FARID MY CONDOLENCES OVER HIS LOSS.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

\(^1\) M. A. Jinnah

\(^2\) This draft letter was written in reply to the addressee’s letter dated September 12, 1944.
513. INTERVIEW TO THE PRESS

September 13, 1944

After the morning session of the talks, as Jinnah and Gandhiji emerged . . . the waiting group of reporters asked the usual question: “Anything for us?” The leaders halted and . . . Gandhiji spoke:

I have nothing, but I will go for you. Yesterday you read something in our faces. Here are we both. I would like you not to read anything in our faces except hope and nothing but hope.

At this stage Gandhiji turned to Mr. Jinnah and asked:

Am I right? Have you seen the papers this morning?

“Why bother,” answered Mr. Jinnah.

They have written so much terrible.

Gandhiji turned round to the Pressmen again and said:

You do not know what people who are bent on mischief will do. All of you know both of us. You should leave us absolutely alone or if you can read our hearts and faces you must submit what you have written to one of us. Otherwise you should be absolutely silent if you want to serve India and humanity.

The Bombay Chronicle, 14-9-1944

514. LETTER TO M. A. JINNAH

September 14, 1944

DEAR QUAIID-E-AZAM,

I have your letter of the 13th instant.1 I understood from our talks that you were in no hurry for my answer I was, therefore, taking the matter in a leisurely fashion, even hoping that as our talks proceeded and as cordiality increased, mutual clarification would come of itself and that we would only have to record our final agreement. But I understand and appreciate the other viewpoint. We should take nothing for granted. I should clarify your difficulties in understanding the Rajaji Formula and you should do likewise regarding yours, i.e., the Muslim League Lahore Resolution of 1940.

1 In his letter the addressee had complained that he had not received Gandhiji’s reply to his letter of September 11.
With reference to the Lahore Resolution, as agreed between us I shall deal with it in a separate letter.

Perhaps at the end of our discussion, we shall discover that Rajaji not only has not put the Lahore Resolution out of shape and mutilated it but has given it substance and form.

Indeed, in view of your dislike of the Rajaji Formula, I have, at any rate for the moment, put it out of my mind and I am concentrating on the Lahore Resolution in the hope of finding a ground for mutual agreement.

So much for the first paragraph of your letter.

As to the second, I do hold that unless we oust the third party we shall not be able to live at peace with one another. That does not mean that I may not make an effort to find ways and means of establishing a living peace between us.

You ask for my conception of the basis for a provisional interim government. I would have told you if I had any scheme in mind. I imagine that if we two can agree it would be for us to consult the other parties. I can say this, that any provisional government to inspire confidence at the present moment must represent all parties. When that moment arrives, I shall have been replaced by some authoritative person, though you will have me always at your beck and call when you have converted me or I you, or by mutual conversion we have become one mind functioning through two bodies.

As to the third point, the provisional government, being the appointing authority, will give effect to the findings of the Commission. This I thought was implied in my previous answer.

Rajaji tells me that ‘absolute majority’ is used in his Formula in the same sense as it is used in ordinary legal parlance wherever more than two groups are dealt with. I cling to my own answer. But you will perhaps suggest a third meaning and persuade me to accept it.

The form of the plebiscite and franchise must be left to be decided by the provisional interim government unless we decide it now. I should say it should be by adult suffrage of all the inhabitants of the Pakistan area.

As to the fourth, ‘all parties’ means you and I and everyone else holding views on the question at issue will and should seek by peaceful persuasion to influence public opinion as is done where democracy functions wholly or in part.
As to the fifth, supposing that the result of the plebiscite is in favour of partition, the provisional government will draft the treaty and agreements as regards the administration of matters of common interest, but the same has to be confirmed and ratified by the governments of the two States. The machinery required for the settlement and administration of matters of common interest will, in the first instance, be planned by the interim government, but subsequently will be matter for settlement between the two governments acting through the agencies appointed by each for that purpose.

As to the sixth, I hope the foregoing makes superfluous any further reply.¹

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

The Hindu, 29-9-1944

515. LETTER TO M. A. JINNAH

September 15, 1944

DEAR QUAID-E-AZAM,

This is in terms of our talks of Wednesday the 13th instant.

For the moment I have shunted the Rajaji Formula and with your assistance am applying my mind very seriously to the famous Lahore Resolution of the Muslim League.

You must admit that the Resolution itself makes no reference to the two nations theory. In the course of our discussions, you have passionately pleaded that India contains two nations, i.e., Hindus and Muslims, and that the latter have their homelands in India as the former have theirs. The more our argument progresses, the more alarming your picture appears to me. It would be alluring if it was true. But my fear is growing that it is wholly unreal. I find no parallel in history for a body of converts and their descendants claiming to be a nation apart from the parent stock. If India was one nation before the advent of Islam, it must remain one in spite of the change of faith of a very large body of her children.

You do not claim to be a separate nation by right of conquest, but by reason of acceptance of Islam. Will the two nations become one if the whole of India accepted Islam? Will Bengalis, Oriyas, Andhras, Tamilians, Maharashtrians, Gujaratis, etc., cease to have their special characteristics if all of them become converts to Islam? These have all become one politically because they are subject to one foreign control. They are trying today to throw off that subjection.

¹ For the addressee’s reply, vide Appendix “Letter from M. A. Jinnah”, 14-9-1944.

You seem to have introduced a new test of nationhood. If I accept it, I would have to subscribe to many more claims and face an insoluble problem. The only real, though awful, test of our nationhood arises out of our common political subjection. If you and I throw off this subjection by our combined effort, we shall be born a politically free nation out of our travail. If by then we have not learnt to prize our freedom, we may quarrel among ourselves and, for want of a common master holding us together in his iron grip, seek to split up into small groups or nationalities. There will be nothing to prevent us from descending to that level and we shall not have to go in search of a master. There are many claimants to the throne that never remains vacant.

With this background, I shall present you with my difficulty in accepting your Resolution.

1. Pakistan is not in the Resolution. Does it bear the original meaning Punjab, Afghanistan, Kashmir, Sind and Baluchistan, out of which the name was mnemonically formed? If not what is it?

2. Is the goal of Pakistan pan-Islam?

3. What is it that distinguishes an Indian Muslim from every other Indian, if not his religion? Is he different from a Turk or an Arab?

4. What is the Connotation of the word “Muslims” in the Resolution under discussion? Does it mean the Muslims of India of geography or of the Pakistan to be?

5. Is the Resolution addressed to the Muslims by way of education, or to the inhabitants of the whole of India by way of appeal, or to the foreign ruler as an ultimatum?

6. Are the constituents in the two zones to constitute “Independent States”, an undefined number in each zone?

7. Is the demarcation to take place during the pendency of British Rule?

8. If the answer to the last question is in the affirmative, the proposal must be accepted first by Britain and then imposed upon India, not evolved from within by the free will of the people of India.

9. Have you examined the position and satisfied yourself that these “Independent States” will be materially and otherwise benefited by being split up into fragments?

10. Please satisfy me that these Independent Sovereign States will not become a collection of poor States, a menace to themselves and to the rest of India.

11. Pray show me by facts and figures or otherwise how the independence and welfare of India as a whole can be brought about by the acceptance of the Resolution?

12. How are the Muslims under the Princes to be disposed of as a result of this scheme?

13. What is your definition of “minorities”?

14. Will you please define the “adequate, effective and mandatory safeguards” for minorities referred to in the second part of the Resolution?

15. Do you not see that the Lahore Resolution contains only a bare statement of the objective and does not give any idea as to the means to be adopted for the execution of the idea and the concrete corollaries thereof? For instance: (a) Are the people in the regions falling under the plan to have any voice in the matter of separation and, if so, how is it to be ascertained? (b) What is the provision for Defence and similar matters of common concern contemplated in the Lahore Resolution? (c) There are many groups of Muslims who have continuously expressed dissent from the policy of the League. While I am prepared to accept the preponderating influence and position of the League and have approached you for that very reason, is it not our joint duty to remove their doubts and carry them with us by making them feel that they and their supporters have not been practically disfranchised? (d) Does this not lead again to placing the Resolution of the League before the people of the zones concerned as a whole for acceptance?

As I write this letter and imagine the working of the Resolution in practice, I see nothing but ruin for the whole of India. Believe me, I approach you as a seeker. Though I represent nobody but myself, I aspire to represent all the inhabitants of India, for I realize in my own person their misery and degradation, which is their common lot, irrespective of class, caste or creed. I know that you have acquired a unique hold on the Muslim masses. I want you to use your influence for their total welfare, which must include the rest.

In this hastily written letter, I have only given an inkling of my difficulty.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

The Hindu, 29-9-1944

516. LETTER TO M. A. JINNAH

September 15, 1944

DEAR QUAID-E-AZAM,

I have yours of the 14th instant, received at 9.40 a.m. I woke up at 3 a.m. today to finish my promised letter on the Lahore Resolution.

There is no mistake about the date, for I wrote in answer to your reminder of the 13th instant.

Independence does mean as envisaged in the A.I.C.C. Resolution of 1942. But it cannot be on the basis of a united India. If we come to a settlement, it would be on the basis of the settlement, assuming, of course, that it accrues general acceptance in the country. The process will be somewhat like this. We reach by joint effort independence for India as it stands. India becoming free will proceed to demarcation, plebiscite and partition if the people concerned vote for partition. All this is implied in the Rajaji Formula.

As to the provisional interim government, I am afraid I cannot carry my answer any further than I have done. Though I have no scheme for the provisional government, if you have one in connection with the Lahore Resolution, which also, I presume, requires an interim government, we can discuss it.

The Formula was framed by Rajaji in good faith. I accepted it in equal good faith. The hope was that you would look at it with favour. We still think it to be the best in the circumstances. You and I have to put flesh on it, if we can. I have explained the process we have to go through. You have no objection to it. Perhaps, you want to know how I would form the provisional government if I was invited thereto. If I was in that unenviable position, I would see all the claimants and endeavour to satisfy them. My co-operation will be available in that task.

---

1 Vide Appendix “Letter from M. A. Jinnah”, 14-9-1944.
2 Vide the preceding item.

I can give you full satisfaction about your inquiry, “What I would like to know would be, what will be the powers of such a provisional interim government, how it will be formed, to whom it will be responsible.” The provisional interim government will be responsible to the elected members of the present Assembly or a newly elected one. It will have all the powers less that of the Commander-in-Chief during the war and full powers thereafter. It will be the authority to give effect to the agreement that may be arrived at between the League and the Congress and ratified by the other parties.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

_The Hindu, 29-9-1944_

517. LETTER TO P. C. JOSHI

BOMBAY, September 15, 1944

DEAR JOSHI,

Many thanks for your letter¹.

I do not mind the warmth into which you have been betrayed. I must apologize for the offence my language has caused you. You will believe me when I tell you that I wrote in all good faith. I could not come close to the party if I did not disclose even my prejudices. I had expected appreciation for my friendly approach and frankness. Nevertheless I must continue my study of the party and its leaders.

I have accepted your advice. I placed your letter in Shri Bhulabhai’s hands and asked him to instruct and guide me. I shall not worry you directly with letters. I shall try to know you through the common friends you mention. Sarojini Devi is with Shri Bhulabhai. Rajaji is with me. I shall show your letter to him when it comes back from Shri Bhulabhai.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

_Correspondence between M. K. Gandhi and P. C. Joshi, p. 36_

¹ Dated September 12, which was in reply to Gandhiji’s letter dated July 30; _Vide “Letter to P. C. Joshi”, 30-7-1944_.

VOL. 84 : 27 JANUARY, 1944 - 1 OCTOBER, 1944 385
518. TELEGRAM TO G. D. BIRLA

BOMBAY,
September 16, 1944

GHANSHYAMDAS BIRLA
BIRLAHOUSE
BENARES

MY DEFINITE WISH YOU SHOULD GO MUSSOORIE. YOU WILL SHORTEN STAY THERE IF I WANT YOU.

BAPU

From a copy: C.W. 7869. Courtesy: G. D. Birla

519. LETTER TO CHIMANLAL N. SHAH

BOMBAY,
September 16, 1944

CHI. CHIMANLAL,

I read your letter addressed to Manilal. I have some free time today and, therefore, am writing letters.

I have written to Sharda and told her that she should not put off her visit for fear of public criticism.

Your idea of disbanding the Ashram seems right. We should let ourselves be seen as we are. We are likely to make better progress as individuals after disbanding the Ashram. Even after it is disbanded, those who are one at heart may stay together and jointly take up some activity. Those who wish to stay on in Sevagram may do so. Everybody may leave in an orderly manner and after due thought. Talk and exchange views among yourselves along these lines.

I understand what you say regarding me. It should involve no burden on Chhaganlal and Kashi. Neither of them should have to join directly in the cooking.

This letter may be read by all concerned.

I hope Shakaribehn is perfectly calm. You must have thought about the problem of her training. It must not be neglected.

Blessings from

BAPU

[PS.]

If Lajjavati’s Patel arrives there, send him over here.

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10644
520. LETTER TO MUNNALAL AND KANCHAN SHAH

September 16, 1944

CHI. MUNNALAL AND KANCHAN,

My return has been delayed. If I had definitely known that I would be staying here so long, I would have brought Kanchan with me. Still, if she had come, God knows what she would have done because I hardly talk with anyone. She would not have been able to serve me either. The chief service is being done by Dinshawji, and the rest by Manilal. From that point of view, therefore, it is all to the good that Kanchan stayed there. Both of you got an opportunity for introspection.

I hope you meet Bhai Patil often. His health must have improved.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 8385. Also C.W. 7178. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

521. LETTER TO SHARDA G. CHOKHAWALA

BOMBAY,

September 16, 1944

CHI. BABUDI,

A man had gone to receive you [at the station]. It’s a pity your husband’s younger brother has passed away. May God help both of you and your family to bear [the loss]. The cycle of life and death is bound to go on. If you are refraining from coming for fear of public opinion let me tell you that both of you have passed beyond all this and need not yield to this false sense of shame. Mourning of this kind is futile. It should not come in the way of our routine. You are not going to pay me a visit for pleasure. It is your duty to come to me, especially on an occasion like this. I shall surely be here till Tuesday, if not longer.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
522. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA

September 16, 1944

CHI. KRISHNACHANDRA,

I hope you are at peace. This is a time of severe trial for all of us. Think Over what must be done now, and if possible be ready with the answers before my return.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4447

523. SPEECH AT PRAYER MEETING

September 16, 1944

Gandhi ji said that at prayer time there was usually great rush. People came to him to give money for the Harijan Fund and to take autographs. Due to this, children and weak persons experienced considerable difficulty every day. Gandhi ji, therefore, said that only those who wanted autographs or who wanted to give him money should stay behind while the rest should leave the prayer ground immediately the prayers were over.

Secondly he said that the moment he started moving, everybody rushed after him. This caused trouble. Women and children were put to inconvenience. At Juhu there was a lot of space. Though there was not as much space here, there was enough. There was no need to crowd. If nobody crowded and followed him, people would be able to go away from the prayer ground soon. They would be happy and he would be comfortable. He would also be able to collect money and give autographs at leisure. Thirdly Gandhi ji said that the prayers began with a Buddhist invocation followed by two minutes’ silence. The silence was an integral part of the prayer. He found people talking during the silence. When silence was a part of prayer they should close their eyes and contemplate. Nobody should talk. This was the proper behaviour and correct discipline. Everyone should observe this discipline.

The Bombay Chronicle, 17-9-1944
524. LETTER TO SIR EVAN M. JENKINS

BIRLA HOUSE,
MOUNT PLEASANT ROAD,
MALABAR HILL, BOMBAY,

September 17, 1944

DEAR SIR EVAN,

I thank you for your letter of 13th instant. This is the first time in my experience that an important letter has miscarried. Here are copies of the missing Communications.

Though the psychological moment has passed, I attach very great importance to my letter which was written in answer to a deep heart searching. Therefore even at this late hour I should like my letter to be sent to the Prime Minister.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

SIR EVAN M. JENKINS, K. C. S. I.
VICEROY’S CAMP
INDIA

---

1 Intimating that Gandhiji’s letter dated July 17 to the Viceroy had not been received and requesting Gandhiji to send a copy of it as well as the enclosure
3 G. E. B. Abell in his letter dated September 20 informed Gandhiji that the letter was forwarded to the Prime Minister by “Fast air-mail”.

VOL. 84 : 27 JANUARY, 1944 - 1 OCTOBER, 1944 389
525. LETTER TO VISHWAS N. NAIK

BOMBAY,
September 17, 1944

DEAR NAIK,

The matter you refer to has been fixed up. I return Shri Munshi’s letter.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

From a copy : Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy : Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

526. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

September 17, 1944

CHI. NARANDAS,

Your programme seems to have succeeded all right. Send me a report of the work there. How did Kamalnayan acquit himself. A letter from Kamalabai is enclosed. Fix a monthly allowance of Rs. 30 for her, with effect from September.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./II. Also C.W. 8615. Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi

527. LETTER PURUSHOTTAMDAS TANDON TO

September 17, 1944

BHAI PURUSHOTTAMDASJI,

Today I have some leisure, so I am going through the file of old letters. Your letter is there. You must have tried a truss for your hernia. How could a man like you get hernia? Or does anyone develop hernia without provocation?

I did not mean what you interpret from my telegram. I had

The addressee had requested Gandhiji to write a letter to K. M. Munshi permitting him to appear in the trial of his elder brother Vasant Naik, M.L.A., on September 21, 1944. written only about the matter of health. However, the opinion you have sent will prove helpful to me. Our talks are going on. I cannot say what the outcome will be.

BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

528. LETTER TO PUNDALIK KATAGDE

September 17, 1944

BHAIPUNDALIK,

I have your letter. I do believe that those who have committed mistakes should admit them only if they are convinced that it is their duty to do so, and not because I want them to. The call for observance of duty must come from within. Hence I will not issue a public statement. It would be misunderstood.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4226

529. LETTER TO CHHAGANLAL JOSHI

[Before September 18, 1944]

CHI. CHHAGANLAL,

I got your letter which I have passed on to Narandas for his information. It would have saved me trouble if you had first discussed the matter with him and written to me only in the event of an impasse. And don’t you have there veterans like Nanalal\(^1\) and Nanabhai\(^2\)?

Why be tired of collecting money? An area which has need for a certain kind of work will always provide funds for the activity. True, there are different ways of working in an area where such need is not felt. However, if a worker wants to collect funds in connection with his work and he enjoys doing it, he also learns through it. If funds were showered on us from above, we would not have known how to use them.

1 In the source this letter is placed before those of September 18, 1944.
2 Nanalal Kalidas Jasani, Secretary and partner of Dr. Pranjivan Mehta and also member of Saurashtra Harijan Sevak Sangh
3 Nrisimhaprasad Kalidas Bhatt, Principal, Lok Bharati Sanstha, Sanosara
If Bhagwanji gives us work worth Rs. 80 doesn’t it become our duty to pay him an equal amount? Are we not at present using the building of the Kelavni Mandal? Why do they want to evict us from there? If they did, where would you carry on your work? Why not in the Dhedh or Bhangi colony?

As for Bhangwanji, he is already used to working in this manner. You seem to feel embarrassed. Come over whenever you wish to. Nothing is definite about me, so you can even come over here. You can accompany me wherever I might proceed from here, in case I am unable to spare any time here.

I am returning the letter concerning Wankaner.

Blessings from
BAPU

C. Joshi
HARIDAN SEVAK SANGH,
RAJKOT

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

530. LETTER TO MIRABEHN

BOMBAY,
September 18, 1944

CHI. MIRA.

I have your letter from Rewari. Devdas has given me your messages. He adds that your body has become dilapidated. I fear I have to take the blame for it in part, if not wholly. How I wish I could also take the credit of repairing it! Why not take a course at Dinshaw’s or under Shiv Sharma? Both are here at present. S. S. has come specially. I have not begun his drugs but he is here to induce me.

I have dismissed all fear about your coming under anybody’s influence. After all we are under God’s guidance.

I am handing Devdas another Rs. 5,000 for you. You shall certainly have whatever comes for you in future. I am asking Sevagram to send you the 500.

1 Bhagwanji Purushottam Pandya of Wadhwan, Kathiawar, who was collecting money for Kasturba Gandhi National Memorial Trust
Tell me how the cows were saved from the butcher’s hand. I would plead with you to put your body in order before you take up the serious responsibility of building and running an ashram.¹ My talks are dragging on. God alone knows the end of them. There is one good thing. I am bearing the strain well. I am keeping fit in spite of the two enemies within—the hookworm and the amoebae. It is good too that we are within stone’s throw of each other. Manilal is attending on me. He is my bed-fellow. Devdas too is here, so is Rajaji. Khursheedbehn is on the office staff and so is Mridula, I expect, temporarily. They are all working full speed—not to mention Pyarelal, Sushila and Kanu. Pyarelal has a shorthand writer and typist. He is a rare man—silent and hard-working. He is from the extreme South. Abha is here for medical examination. There is nothing wrong with her. Manu has come back from Karachi with her father². Pyarelal’s mother and baby³ are too here. And they are all very happy. I have given you a full budget of news. Today is the silence day which I am devoting to clearing arrears.

Love.

BAPU

From the original: C.W. 6500. Courtesy: Mirabehn. Also G.N. 9895

531. LETTER TO F. MARY BARR

September 18, 1944

CHI. MARY,⁴

I have seen your letter to Manilal. You seem to be flourishing there⁵. I suppose you are not to be expected to be back in the near future, I do not mind; you are doing good work there as you were doing here. Kamala⁶ was with me for a few days in Sevagram. She seems to be quite happy in Khedi and loves her work.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat: G.N. 6084. Also C.W. 3414. Courtesy: F. Mary Barr

¹ Vide last footnote of “Letter to Mirabehn”, 3-8-1944.
² Jaisukhlal Gandhi
³ Nandini, Pyarelal’s brother’s daughter who had lost her mother
⁴ The subscription and the superscription are in Hindi.
⁵ South Africa
⁶ Margaret Jones, an English friend of the addressee who was carrying on the khadi work during her absence
532. LETTER TO C. RAJAGOPALACHARI

September 18, 1944

MY DEAR C.R.,

Here is my draft reply\(^1\) unrevised. You may add, amend or do what you like with it. The reply should go tomorrow as early as possible.

BAPU

From a photostat: G.N. 2096

533. LETTER TO HERMANN KALLENBACH

BOMBAY,

September 18, 1944

MY DEAR LOWER HOUSE,

You will see I am in Bombay almost daily meeting M.A. Jinnah.\(^2\) God only knows what the result will be.

I had your wires. Of course, they were withheld from me whilst I was in detention. Manilal is with me in personal attendance. He reminds me of old days. He is very restrained. Though I know he wants me to fix up the Phfnix Trust, he never mentions it. But I have it constantly in mind. Sita\(^3\) is in Sevagram. She is a most lovable girl. Devdas too is here for the time being.

And how are you faring? Is there the slightest chance of your coming here for a short stay? Manilal says you are too aged to undertake the, for you, fatiguing stay in India. Is Hannah nursing you as devotedly as ever?

Love to you all,

UPPER HOUSE

From the original: Gandhi-Kallenbach Correspondence. Courtesy: National Archives of India

\(^1\) Presumably, to M. A. Jinnah; vide “Letter to M. A. Jinnah”, 19-9-1944.

\(^3\) In the Aga Khan Palace Jail from August 9, 1942 to May 6, 1944

\(^4\) Daughter of Manilal Gandhi
534. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

September 18, 1944

CHI. NARANDAS,

I got your letter about Kamalnayan. What you say is correct. Are you still suffering from any after-effects of your fall? I would be happy if you thought of paying a visit to Sevagram some time. What is your opinion regarding the suggestion in Chhaganlal’s letter?

I am enclosing a letter from Mirabehn also. Send me your reply to her. I will forward it to her. Follow the suggestion made by her. I am tied up here. I don’t know when I shall be able to get away.

Blessings from

BAPU

Enclosures: 2

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./II. Also C.W. 8616. Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi

535. LETTER TO CHIMANLAL N. SHAH

BOMBAY,

[September 18, 1944]

CHI. CHIMANLAL,

Your letter is full of news. I have written a letter to Chokhawala advising patience.

The arrival of Gokhale is welcome. I am hoping to reach there on 27th October, when I hope to do something for him. There is no need for him to lose heart. Sushilabehn has gained a great reputation. She may succeed with Gokhale too. Where was Govind taking his meals till now?

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10612

1 From the G.N. Register
2 Gordhandas Chokhawala, addressee’s son-in-law
CHI. SUSHILA,

I got your two letters. The country’s condition is exactly as you describe it to be. But surely God’s hand must be behind this. We shall have performed our dharma if we acquitted ourselves creditably in our own field and shed lustre on it.

Manilal has devoted himself completely to my service, and is thus paying his filial debt. Do not worry about him. Sita¹ has taken her place in the Nayee Talim school at Sevagram. Sumi² is with her, as also the daughter of a Bihari gentleman named Lakshmi Babu. The fourth is Ashadevi’s own daughter. There are thus four girls in all. Ashadevi has become their mother. She is a learned woman. According to me this type of education is the best. All these four girls learn with the other children at Sevagram, and also teach them a few things. Do not get frightened at this news. Sita herself voluntarily decided to join this school. But of course it was I who was responsible for putting the idea in Manilal’s and Sita’s minds and luring them on. I would have tried to lure you too, if you had been here. God alone knows, of course, whether you would have yielded or not. Now that you have learnt to drive a car, how can I keep pace with you? By all means go ahead.

I have talks with Jinnah Saheb practically daily. Before you get this letter you will have known the result.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 4936

¹ Addressee’s daughters
² ibid
537. LETTER TO LAKSHMIDAS P. ASAR

September 18, 1944

CHI. LAKSHMIDAS,

I have your two letters, which are both transparent. Replies for the question of Jajuji¹ are coming in from others as well. I shall therefore write nothing for some time. I am thinking about a clarification regarding non-violence. It is not necessary at all to quit the Council² simply because you cannot manipulate your hand and hence cannot spin. Can we not imagine the possibility of some people who might have lost one hand and therefore cannot spin and yet be the greatest khadi workers of them all? Is there any rule that a person’s hand may not remain unoccupied?

Blessings from

BAPU

HARIJAN ASHRAM
SABARMATI

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

538. LETTER TO BHAGIRATH KANODIA

September 18, 1944

Bhai Bhagirathji,

I read your letter to Pyarelal. I never said that Rajaji had betrayed me. He can never betray me. He has never done so. My association with Rajaji is very old. Lately our opinions have come to differ but our love for each other continues to be what it has always been. What Monoranjan Babu writes has only been written in jest. What can I do if people do not appreciate my jokes? You may use this letter in any way you consider necessary.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

² Of A.I.S.A.
DEAR QUAI'D-E-AZAM,

Many thanks for yours\(^1\) of the 17th instant. I am sorry to have to say that your answers omitting 1, 2 and 6 do not give satisfaction.

It may be that all my questions do not arise from the view of mere clarification of the Lahore Resolution. But I contend that they are very relevant from the standpoint of a seeker that I am. You cannot expect anyone to agree to or shoulder the burden of the claim contained in the Lahore Resolution without, for instance, answering my questions 15 (a) and 15 (b)\(^2\) which you brush aside as not arising by way of clarification.

Dr. Ambedkar’s thesis, while it is ably written, has carried no conviction to me. The other book mentioned by you, I am sorry to say, I have not seen.

Why can you not accept my statement that I aspire to represent all the sections that compose the people of India? Do you not aspire? Should not every Indian? That the aspiration may never be realized is beside the point.

I am beholden to you, in spite of your opinion about me, for having patience with me. I hope you will never lose it, but will persevere in your effort to convert me. I ask you to take me with my strong views and even prejudices, if I am guilty of any.

As to your verdict on my policy and programme, we must agree to differ. For, I am wholly unrepentant. My purpose is as a lover of communal unity to place my services at your disposal.

I hope you do not expect me to accept the Lahore Resolution without understanding its implications. If your letter is the final word, there is little hope. Can we not agree to differ on the question of “two nation” and yet solve the problem on the basis of self-determination? It is this basis that has brought me to you. If the regions holding Muslim majorities have to be separated according to the Lahore

\(^1\) Vide Appendix “Letter from M. A. Jinnah”, 17-9-1944.
Resolution, the grave step of separation should be specifically placed before and approved by the people in that area.¹

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

The Hindu, 29-9-1944

540. SPEECH AT PRAYER MEETING

BOMBAY,
September 19, 1944

In the course of his speech at the prayer meeting, Gandhiji said that he did not know how many Muslim brothers and sisters were there in the audience but there was at least one, namely, Raihanabehn Tyabjee. That was enough for his present purpose. His earnest prayer to all present was that if they had the good of the country at heart and wanted India to be free and independent at the earliest moment they should establish the closest bonds of friendship between Hindus and Mussalmans and members of all other communities. That was the least that every one of them was expected to do and could do. Was there anyone among them who doubted that if they could become one at heart the coming of independence would be accelerated? Ever since his return to India he had been proclaiming that truth from house-tops. That did not mean that they could afford to rest in idleness and freedom would by itself drop into their lap. If that was realized many other things would follow as a matter of course.

Referring to his talks with Mr. Jinnah he said that he considered it to be their great good fortune that they—two brothers—were having their friendly talks. He was not at liberty to divulge the nature of their talks. But they could rest satisfied that they were not talking without hope. The day he felt that there was no more hope, he would not hesitate to say so. He wanted them all to fraternize with one another on the Id Day and pray that God may guide them aright.

Concluding, he warned the people against putting faith in speculations in which both the foreign and the Indian Press were indulging. Sometimes they found all kinds of prophecies. God was with them. They were not being led by prophecies, but by the spirit of God. The papers published all kinds of guesses and messages were also sent abroad. It would not benefit the people to depend on these reports. It would, in fact, be wrong to believe in them.

The Bombay Chronicle, 20-9-1944

¹ For the addressee’s reply, vide Appendix “Letter from M. A. Jinnah”, 21-9-1944
541. LETTER TO NANJI KALIDAS

BIRLA HOUSE, BOMBAY,
September 20, 1944

BHAISHRI NANJIBHAI

I read your telegram and letter to Bapa¹. It has made me unhappy. You had told me clearly that your donation would go to the central fund without any condition. Your letter says that a committee has been formed to manage your contribution and that the money would be in its possession. If it is so, your contribution will not be included in the existing Fund. Then you can use it as your committee thinks proper. But I would urge that an illiterate village woman’s name should not be associated with it.

I hope there is some improvement in your health.

Blessings from

BAPU

RAJSHRI SETHSHRI NANJI KALIDAS
PORBANDAR (KATHIAWAR)

From Gujarati: C.W. 8617. Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi

542. LETTER TO B. ORELAND

CAMP BIRLA HOUSE,
MOUNT PLEASANT ROAD,
MALABAR HILL, BOMBAY,
September 21, 1944

DEAR LIEUT. ORELAND,

I was pleased to receive your letter of 17th instant. I do not remember the pundit mentioned by you. Your question is very appropriate. My interpretation of the Mahabharata is that it is a penetrating study of man and shows that fruits of violence whether used for a good cause or bad are evil. The Pandavas won but an empty victory. Bhishma was right in accordance with the social usage in vogue in those days. He was true to the salt he ate. We would go entirely wrong in estimating the men and women of the Mahabharata

¹ Amritlal V. Thakkar

400 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
according to the modern standard, which need not be considered necessarily higher than in the times of the Mahabharata. The story of the epic has to be read in its setting. Then Bhishma would appear to be a lofty soul.

M. K. GANDHI

LIEUT. B. ORELAND
104 FIELD PARK
S.E.A.C.
B.A.P.O.

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

543. LETTER TO SITA GANDHI

BOMBAY,
September 21, 1944

CHI. SITA,

I got your letter written in a beautiful hand. We will now be meeting soon. Talk to me then.

Blessings from
BAPU

[PS.]

The correct word is not raha but *rah*¹.

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 4937

544. LETTER TO CHIMANLAL N. SHAH

September 21, 1944

CHI. CHIMANLAL,

I have your letter. Even if our talks remain inconclusive, I have decided to reach there on the 1st. I shall return after attending to the 2nd².

I hope Vallabh Swami undertook the fast after due thought. It has become difficult to fix the proper conditions for fasting.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10613

¹ Way or path
² Gandhiji’s birthday celebrations
545. A CIRCULAR LETTER

BOMBAY,

September 21, 1944

BHAISHRI,

I am writing this circular in Gujarati since all those to whom I intend to send it know the language. I send with this a list of ten additional trustees. At first I thought I would send the names merely for your information. As my duty becomes clearer to me, I realize that I must function as Chairman without insisting on having my own way. A list of members of the Executive Committee is also attached.

I have kept the following considerations in mind in drawing up both these lists. We should include those who understand my method of work best and who have had some experience of village work or who share my point of view regarding village work. I am painfully aware that I have not been able to include as many women as I should have liked to. This Memorial Fund is in memory of an uneducated woman who had been touched by the ideal of service to villages, and it would, therefore, be but fitting that the Board consists wholly of women. I would then feel that my efforts in this field have been fully rewarded. But the time for this has not yet come. Let us all hope that such mature and able women will get trained up for this work.

You may, without any hesitation whatever, reject any names in the list which you disapprove of. If you wish, we may elect the additional members at a meeting of the trustees. Kindly send me your opinion at an early date.

List of additional trustees:
1. Shri Mangaldas Pakvasa
2. Smt. Ashadevi Aryanayakum
3. Smt. Gosibehn Captain
4. Smt. Raihana Tyabji
5. Smt. Mridula Sarabhai
6. Shri Gulzarilal Nanda
7. Shri Ganesh Vasudev Mavalankar
8. Shri Shrikrishnadas Jaju
9. Shri Lakshminarayan Babu (of Bihar)
10. Smt. Janakibehn Bajaj
Members of Executive Committee
1. Shri M. K. Gandhi (Chairman)
2. Sir Purshottamdas Thakurdas (Vice-Chairman)
3. Shri Amritlal V. Thakkar
4. Smt. Ashadevi Aryanayakum
5. Smt. Mridula Sarabhai
6. Shri Ganesh Vasudev Mavalankar
7. Shri Shrikrishnadas Jaju
8. Shri Devdas Gandhi

I am,
Yours,
M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C. W. 4873. Courtesy: N. B. Khare

546. TELEGRAM TO PURUSHOTTAM M. PATEL
September 22, 1944

PURUSHOTTAM MOTIBHAI PATEL
CHAIRMAN, INDO-BRITISH FRIENDSHIP GROUP
BRAUNTON 114
MANY THANKS¹. GOD’S WILL.

GANDHI

From the original: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

547. LETTER TO M. A. JINNAH
September 22, 1944

DEAR QUAI-D-E-AZAM,

Your letter of yesterday² (21st instant) so disturbed me that I thought I would postpone my reply till after we had met at the usual time. Though I made no advance at our meeting, I think I see some what clearly what you are driving at. The more I think about the ¹The addressee had wished Gandhiji success in his efforts to achieve unity and freedom two-nation theory the more alarming it appears to be. The book recommended by you gives me no help. It contains half-truths and its conclusions or inferences are unwarranted. I am unable to accept the proposition that the Muslims of India are a nation, distinct from the rest of the inhabitants of India. Mere assertion is no proof. The consequences of accepting such a proposition are dangerous in the extreme. Once the principle is admitted there would be no limit to claims for cutting up India into numerous divisions, which would spell India’s ruin. I have, therefore, suggested a way out. Let it be a partition as between two brothers, if a division there must be.

You seem to be averse to a plebiscite. In spite of the admitted importance of the League, there must be clear proof that the people affected desire partition. In my opinion, all the people inhabiting the area ought to express their opinion specifically on this single issue of division. Adult suffrage is the best method, but I would accept any other equivalent.

You summarily reject the idea of common interest between the two arms. I can be no willing party to a division which does not provide for the simultaneous safeguarding of common interests, such as Defence, Foreign Affairs and the like. There will be no feeling of security by the people of India without a recognition of the natural and mutual obligations arising out of physical contiguity.

Your letter shows a wide divergence of opinion and outlook between us. Thus you adhere to the opinion often expressed by you that the August 1942 Resolution is “inimical to the ideals and demands of Muslim India”. There is no proof for this sweeping statement.

We seem to be moving in a circle. I have made a suggestion. If we are bent on agreeing, as I hope we are, let us call in a third party or parties to guide or even arbitrate between us.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

The Hindu, 29-9-1944

1 For the addressee’s reply, vide Appendix “Letter from M. A. Jinnah”, 23-9-1944.
548. NOTE TO SHRIMAN NARAYAN

[September 22, 1944]

I have gone through this letter. I also listened to what Bhadantji had to say. Your letter seems to have been written in a hurry. You should have waited for Nanavati’s reply. It is one’s duty to correct any lapse of memory or mistakes due to haste. I see nothing wrong in what Nanavati tells me.

I expect to arrive there on the 1st.

Blessings from

BAPU

[From Hindi]

Panchven Putrako Bapuke Ashirvad, pp. 300-1

549. LETTER TO AZIZ-UL-HAQUE

[On or after September 22, 1944]

DEAR FRIEND,

I am deeply grateful to you for your kind letter and book. I shall read it, I know, with interest.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

From the original: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

---

1 According to the source this note is written under a letter dated September 22, from Maganbhai Desai to the addressee, which he had shown to Gandhiji before posting. The letter had sought to clarify the position implied in a letter from the addressee to Bhadant Anand Kausalyayan that the Hindustani Prachar Sabha would conduct examinations only in Urdu.

2 ibid.

3 Amritlal T. Nanavati

4 The letter is written under the addressee’s letter dated September 22, 1944.

5 Man behind the Plough
550. LETTER TO M. A. JINNAH

September 23, 1944

DEAR QUAI-D-E-AZAM,

Last evening’s talk has left a bad taste in the mouth. Our talks and our correspondence seem to run in parallel lines and never touch one another. We reached the breaking point last evening but, thank God, we were unwilling to part. We resumed discussion and suspended it in order to allow me to keep my time for the evening public prayer. In order that all possibility of making any mistake in a matter of this great importance may be removed I would like you to give me in writing what precisely on your part you would want me to put my signature to.¹

I adhere to my suggestion that we may call in some outside assistance to help us at this stage.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

The Hindu, 99-9-1944

551. LETTER TO M. A. JINNAH

Id [September 23, 1944]²

Bhai Jinnah,

I was wondering what I shall send you today. It should be fair on my part to let you and your sister share equally the crisp chapatis they make for me. Here is your share. Please regard it as a token of my love and do please help yourself to it.

Id greetings from

M. K. GANDHI

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ The addressee in his reply said: “. . . I may say that it is not a case of your being asked to put your signature as representing anybody till you clothe yourself with representative capacity and are vested with authority. We stand by, as I have already said, the basic and fundamental principles embodied in the Lahore Resolution of March 1940. I appeal to you once more to revise your policy and programme, as the future of this sub-continent and the welfare of the peoples of India demand that you should face realities.”

² The letter has been placed among those for September 1944. Id fell on this date.

³ Fatima
552. STATEMENT TO THE PRESS

BOMBAY,

September 24, 1944

Whoever has given currency to the news about the Sevagram Ashram has not served the cause of truth. The only truth about the news is that the disbandment and transformation of the Sevagram Ashram is under contemplation. No decision has yet been taken. But the suggestion that it has anything to do with my supposed dissatisfaction with the conduct of the Ashram during my incarceration is altogether untrue. On the contrary I have expressed my unstinted admiration for the single-minded devotion with which they carried on the Ashram under those difficult and anxious 21 months. If it is ultimately decided to disband the Ashram it would be for the purpose of raising the activities of the members to a higher level than heretofore.

The Bombay Chronicle, 25-9-1944

553. LETTER TO M. A. JINNAH

September 24, 1944

DEAR QUAID-E-AZAM,

I have your two letters of September 23 in reply to my letters of the 22nd and 23rd.

With your assistance, I am exploring the possibilities of reaching an agreement, so that the claim embodied in the Muslim League Resolution of Lahore may be reasonably satisfied. You must, therefore, have no apprehensions that the August Resolution will stand in the way of our reaching an agreement. That Resolution dealt with the question of India as against Britain, and it cannot stand in the way of our settlement.

I proceed on the assumption that India is not to be regarded as two or more nations, but as one family consisting of many members of whom the Muslims living in the north-west zones, i.e., Baluchistan, Sind, North-West Frontier Province and that part of the Punjab where they are in absolute majority over all the other elements and in parts of Bengal and Assam where they are in absolute majority, desire to live in separation from the rest of India. Differing from you on the general basis, I can yet recommend to the Congress and the country the acceptance of the claim for separation contained in the Muslim League Resolution of Lahore, 1940, on my basis and on the following terms:

1 Gandhiji’s draft is available under G.N. 2056.

The areas should be demarcated by a commission, approved by the Congress and the League. The wishes of the inhabitants of the area demarcated should be ascertained through the votes of the adult population of the areas or through some equivalent method.

If the vote is in favour of separation, it shall be agreed that these areas shall form a separate State as soon as possible after India is free from foreign domination and can, therefore, be constituted into two sovereign independent States.

There shall be a treaty of separation, which should also provide for the efficient and satisfactory administration of Foreign Affairs, Defence, Internal Communications, Customs, Commerce and the like, which must necessarily continue to be matters of common interest between the contracting parties. The treaty shall also contain terms for safeguarding the rights of minorities in the two States. Immediately on the acceptance of this agreement by the Congress and the League, the two shall decide upon a common course of action for the attainment of the independence of India.

The League will, however, be free to remain out of any direct action, to which the Congress may resort and in which the League may not be willing to participate.

If you do not agree to these terms, could you let me know in precise terms what you would have me to accept in terms of the Lahore Resolution and bind myself to recommend to the Congress? If you could kindly do this, I shall be able to see, apart from the difference in approach, what definite terms I can agree to. In your letter of 23rd September, you refer to “the basis and fundamental principles embodied in the Lahore Resolution” and ask me to accept them. Surely, this is unnecessary when, as I feel, I have accepted the concrete consequence that should follow from such acceptance.¹

Yours sincerely,
M. K. Gandhi

The Hindu, 29-9-1944

554. LETTER TO G. V. MAVALANKAR

BOMBAY,
September 24, 1944

DADA,

I read your letter to Bapa. If you can make it possible somehow, please do come to Wardha on the 2nd.

Blessings from
Bapu

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 1251

555. TALK WITH M. A. JINNAH

September 24, 1944

Jinnah had refused even to discuss Bapu’s proposal, as he (Bapu) was not vested with authority; he represented nobody.

[JINNAH:] “If you want defence and so many things in common, that means that you visualize a centre?”

[GANDHIJI:] No, but I must say, in practice, there will have to be a body selected by both parties to regulate these things. Then he came to the August (1942) Resolution. He said it was inimical to Muslims. “But don’t you see that it is absolutely a baseless charge? With all the legal acumen that is attributed to you, why cannot you see that it deals with only India and the British rule? It has nothing to do with the Muslims. You can refer the matter to a lawyer of eminence impersonally and take his opinion whether there is anything in it

¹ For extracts from the addressee’s reply, vide Appendix “Letter from M. A. Jinnah”, 25-9-1944.
² According to the source this report is taken from Pyarelal’s diary which appears to have been based on Gandhiji’s narrative to C. Rajagopalachari, giving “the story of the final breakdown of the talks”.
which could be considered inimical to the Muslim League or the Muslims.” He said he did not need to do so. “Why should I want another’s opinion when I know it for myself?” I broached the subject that I had fixed up to be at Sevagram on the 2nd October. I would like to leave on the 30th and would be back in four or five days. He said, “Why must we take so long? We had better close up now. I will have everything ready on Tuesday. You will examine the copies and I will do so.” He had the introduction also ready and read it out. I said I had nothing to say against it, but if I had a copy I could examine it. He said I could do so on Tuesday. I said all right. He would not have a third party, nor would he produce his own scheme. He condemned the August Resolution. He suggested in so many words that amends should be made, i.e., it should be retracted.

_Mahatma Gandhi—The Last Phase, Vol. I, Book I, pp. 93-4_

556. A MESSAGE

September 25, 1944

I have omitted sending messages to a number of friends but I must associate myself with the Acharya’s cause since we are childhood friends. We have been together since the days of his father. Please let him see this.

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

557. LETTER TO C. RAJAGOPALACHARI

[September 25, 1944]¹

MY DEAR C. R.,

If you are satisfied that my letter of yesterday¹ is the last word you should do the following:

1. You should ask Jinnah to see you. He told me he had nothing against you, etc. If Bhulabhai has thoroughly understood the position he too may see Jinnah. You may both offer to see him together.

¹The reference is to their correspondence.
²The source has “August/September”.
³From the reference to the letter to M. A. Jinnah of September 24, 1944, as “letter of yesterday”; vide “Letter to M. A. Jinnah”, 24-9-1944.
⁴_ibid._
2. I attach great importance to the legal opinion on Jinnah’s interpretation of August Resolution.

3. Consider the following letter to Jinnah:

"MY DEAR QUAI-E-AZAM.

Yesterday’s talk leads me to inflict this letter on you for which please forgive me.

I see force in your argument that the para in my letter of yesterday can be interpreted to touch the League sensitiveness. Please therefore read the following instead: ‘Any member or group from among the Congress or the League members will be free to resort to direct action including C. R. in the course of the campaign of Independence.’ This is however a minor matter. In the context in which the offending paragraph appears, its friendly intention is unmistakable.

The main purpose of this letter is to ask you to think fifty times before you throw away my offer. It is an earnest effort to meet essential requirements of the Lahore Resolution. I would like you, before you reject it, to let me address the League Council, indeed even the open session of the League.

I ask you not to take responsibility on your shoulders of rejecting my offer. You are too technical when you dismiss my proposal for arbitration or guidance on the ground that I have approached you as an individual and not in any representative capacity. Is it not enough that I have approached you in the spirit of service in the cause of unity?

I repeat the suggestion I made you during our talk of yesterday that counsel’s opinion should be invited on your interpretation of the August (1942) Resolution of the A. I. C. C. Rajaji for whose integrity and legal ability you have high regard, agrees with me that the August Resolution is in no way inimical to the Muslims. You are wrong in saying that the Congress is a Hindu or communal organization. Will you be inimical to non-Muslims if the League fought single-handed for the Independence of the whole of India whether considered as one India or two or more?"

4. It may be good to call in Shiva Rao, if you have not done so already.

BAPU

From a photostat: G.N. 2057

1 Vide “Talk with M. A. Jinnah”, 24-9-1944.
DEAR QUAIĐ-E-AZAM.

Yesterday’s talk leads me to inflict this letter on you, which I trust you will not mind.

Our conversations have come about as a result of your correspondence with Rajaji in July last over his Formula and your consultations with the League Working Committee thereon, and my own letter¹ to you suggesting a meeting between you and me. My proposal of yesterday is an earnest effort to meet the essential requirements of the Lahore Resolution. I would like you, therefore, to think fifty times before throwing away an offer which had been made entirely in the spirit of service in the cause of communal harmony. Do not take, I pray, the responsibility of rejecting the offer. Throw it on your Council. Give me an opportunity of addressing them. If they feel like rejecting it, I would like you to advise the Council to put it before the open session of the League. If you will accept my advice and permit me, I would attend the open session and address it.

You are too technical when you dismiss my proposal for arbitration or outside guidance over points of difference. If I have approached you as an individual, and not in any representative capacity, it is because we believe that if I reach an agreement with you, it will be of material use in the process of securing a Congress-League settlement and acceptance of it by the country. Is it irrelevant or inadmissible to supplement our efforts to convince each other without help, guidance, advice or even arbitration?

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

The Hindu 29-9-1944

¹ Vide “Letter to M. A. Jinnah”, 17-7-1944.
DEAR QUAID-E-AZAM,

In view of my letter to you of yesterday, left to myself, I would have refrained from dealing with your letter before our meeting today. But I have deferred to Rajaji’s advice to finish the chain of correspondence.

I confess I am unable to understand your persistent refusal to appreciate the fact that the Formula presented to you by me in my letter of the 24th as well as the Formula presented to you by Rajaji give you virtually what is embodied in the Lahore Resolution, providing at the same time what is absolutely necessary to make the arrangement acceptable to the country. You keep on saying that I should accept certain theses, while I have been contending that the best way for us, who differ in our approach to the problem, is to give body to the demand as it stands in the Resolution and work it out to our mutual satisfaction. It is on this plan that I understand Rajaji’s Formula is to be conceived, and it is on the same plan that I have tried to work it out in the course of and as a result of our talks. I contend that either gives you the substance of the Lahore Resolution. Unfortunately, you reject both. And I cannot accept the Lahore Resolution as you want me to, especially when you seek to introduce into its interpretation theories and claims which I cannot accept and which I cannot ever hope to induce India to accept.

Your constant references to my not being clothed with representative authority are really irrelevant. I have approached you so that, if you and I can agree upon a common course of action, I may use what influence I possess for its acceptance by the Congress and the country. If you break, it cannot be because I have no representative capacity, or because I have been unwilling to give you satisfaction in regard to the claim embodied in the Lahore Resolution.²

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

The Hindu, 29-9-1944

² For the addressee’s reply of even date, vide Appendix “Letter from M. A. Jinnah”, 26-9-1944.
560. LETTER TO KAMALNAYAN BAJAJ

September 26, 1944

CHI. KAMALNAYAN,

I have read your letter. We shall not do it at the time announced, we shall do it in the Ashram. I shall receive the purse at 2 o’clock. We cannot ask for regular permission. No harm will come to those who join. Sometimes it benefits to be ignorant of the law. This is one such instance.

Please take things easy. It will be enough if the visiting friends are properly accommodated. All else is in God’s hands.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

561. TELEGRAM TO KISHORELAL G. MASHRUWALA

Express
BIRLA HOUSE, MALABAR HILL, BOMBAY,

September 27, 1944

KISHORELAL MASHRUWALA
SEVAGRAM
WARDHA

GOD BLESS YOU. TAKE FULL REST. REACHING SOON.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

562. LETTER TO KASHI GANDHI

Vijayadashami1, Wednesday, September 27, 1944

CHI. KASHI,

It was by chance that I learnt that today was Dussehra. My purpose in writing this letter is to inform you that Pyarelal’s mother will be reaching there. If she comes, she should be given Ba’s2 room.

1The tenth day of the bright half of Ashwin or Aso, considered to be an auspicious day
2 Kasturba Gandhi had died on February 22, 1944 in the Aga Khan Palace, Poona.
If you are there, you may live in my room, that is, occupy the room which Manilal used as his sitting room. If more accommodation is needed after my return, we will arrange for it. Upto Monday, I believe, there will be some ceremony or religious worship going on in Ba’s room. Think over what arrangement should be made for Pyarelal’s mother till then. We will all arrive there on Sunday. Accompanying me will be Sumatibehn, Patel, Shantikumar, Mridulabehn, Khurshedbehn, Jaisukhlal, Kanu, etc., Dr. Jivaraj and another Doctor friend, Mataji and Sharda (Babu).

Blessings from

BAPU

From the Gujarati original: S.N. 33078

563. SPEECH AT PRAYER MEETING

BOMBAY,

September 27, 1944

Gandhiji said he was not addressing them in Hindustani as before, because he wanted his words to go straight to the hearts of the audience, most of whom were Gujaratis. He had particularly the women in mind who were not accustomed to Hindustani speech.

Referring to the leakage of the correspondence between him and Quaide-e-Azam and its unauthorized publication in a certain section of the Press, he observed that he had warned the Press before against indulging in conjectures, because he felt that would damage the cause. But what had appeared in the Press now was more than a mere conjecture. It seemed that they had somehow managed to get actual copies of the correspondence. Perhaps it was clever on their part, but that did them little credit. Journalism, like every institution, had its own code of ethics and he was not there to pass judgment. All he could say was that he himself had, perhaps, followed a different code of ethics even in the field of journalism.

He assured them that the leakage had not occurred from his office, and he had strong reasons for his belief. He had the other day drawn the Quaid-e-Azam’s attention to the leakage, but the Quaid-e-Azam was indifferent. Public men had to cultivate that indifference, or else life would become impossible. But it was for the public not to take relish in such happenings. If the public strongly disapproved all such practices, the Press would not repeat them. It was intolerable that anyone should try to pry into and give publicity to private correspondence without authority.

---

1 This was issued as an “authorized version” of the Gujarati speech.

He told them that when the talks were over, he would let them know the result. That stage had been reached yesterday, but as copies of the correspondence were not ready, its actual release had to be postponed till today. Authorized copies of the correspondence had now been sent to the Press with a prefatory statement by the Quaid-e-Azam.

Hitherto he had told them that he was not without hope with regard to the outcome of the talks. He had to confess that the result that he was hoping for had not materialized. But he had no sense of disappointment or despondency. He was convinced that even out of that breakdown good would result.

Although Quaid-e-Azam and he had known each other fairly well in public life before, they had never come into such close personal contact. Their conversations were carried out with friendliness and cordiality. He wanted all the communities to cultivate the same spirit of friendliness and cordiality in their relations with one another. They should try to convert one another through it.

They might ask, “Why was it then that he and the Quaid-e-Azam had failed to convert each other?” His reply was that he had tried his level best to go as far as he could to meet the Quaid-e-Azam’s viewpoint. He had taken incalculable pains to understand him and to make himself understood. But he had failed.

He had placed before the Quaid-e-Azam Rajaji’s Formula, but that did not commend itself to him. He had thereupon put forth another proposal of his own in its place, but even that had failed to secure Jinnah Saheb’s approval. In the same way, Jinnah Saheb’s proposal had failed to commend itself to him. If either of them had been weak, they would have possibly come to some sort of agreement, but as responsible men they could not afford to be weak. A helmsman had to be firm and unwavering, or else the ship would founder upon the rocks. Each one of them had tried to convince the other. It was possible that both of them might be in the wrong. But so long as each felt himself to be in the right, he could not let go his hold.

The news of breakdown, he knew, would cause grief to the friends of India and might give cause for jubilation to their enemies. He drew their attention to the last sentence in his\(^1\) statement in which he had said that it was not the final end of their effort.

Although they had been unable to appreciate each other’s viewpoint, the public could help them to do so. They should not lose heart. If there was anyone who had reason to feel disappointed it was he. He had knocked at the Quaid-e-Azam’s door. But he had already observed there was no despondency in him. It was not for a votary of truth and non-violence to feel despondent if his effort at times failed to yield the result aimed at. Failure should only serve as a spur to further effort. God alone knew what was best for them. It was not for them to question God’s ways. Therefore, instead of feeling despondent, they should regard the breakdown as a challenge to their faith and as an incentive for greater effort for establishing true unity among the various communities.

---

\(^1\) The source has “their”. The reference is to M. A. Jinnah’s statement; vide Appendix “M. A. Jinnah’s Statement”, 27-9-1944.

The Hindu, 29-9-1944

564. LETTER TO SHRIMAN NARAYAN

[After] September [27,]1 1944

CHI. SHRIMAN,

I got your manuscript2. I will try to read it. Maganbhai says that what you have written about Hindi-Urdu has caused much confusion. You must have received my letter3. I will be leaving on the 30th; or may be even earlier,

Blessings from
BAPU

[From Hindi]
Panchven Putrako Bapuke Ashirvad, p. 301

565. TELEGRAM TO VIJAYALAKSHMI PANDIT

Express September 28, 1944

VIJAYALAKSHMI PANDIT
2 MUKERJEE ROAD
ALLAHABAD
SEND FORMAL NONCOMMITTAL ACKNOWLEDGMENT PROMISING FURTHER REPLY. REACH SEVAGRAM SECOND OCTOBER IF CONVENIENT.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Gandhiji’s date of departure was not decided till September 27; vide “Telegram to Kishorelal G. Mashruwala”, 27-9-1944.
2 Of The Gandhian Plan
3 Vide “Note to Shriman Narayan”, 22-9-1944.
566. LETTER TO M. S. SUBBULAKSHMI

BOMBAY,
September 28, 1944

DEAR SUBBULAKSHMI,

Rajaji has told me everything about your good work in connection with Kasturba Memorial Fund by using your musical gifts. May God bless you.

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat: C.W. 10600. Courtesy: T. Sadasivam

567. LETTER TO GIRDHARLAL T. MODI

BOMBAY,
September 28, 1944

BHAI GIRDHARLAL,

Sushilabehn told me about your illness. I wish very much to call on you, but you know how helpless I am. Pyarelalji will tell you more. Get well soon.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 10213. Courtesy: Jayabehn Modi

1 (b.1916); a renowned Carnatic musician, she received the Magsaysay Award in 1974 for public service through music.

2 The signature is in Tamil.
September 28, 1944

It is a matter of deep regret that we two could not reach an agreement. But there is no cause for disappointment. The breakdown is only so-called. It is an adjournment sine die. Each one of us must now talk to the public and put our viewpoints before them. If we do so dispassionately and if the public cooperate, we may reach a solution of the seemingly insoluble at an early date. My experience of the previous three weeks confirms me in the view that the presence of a third power hinders the solution. A mind enslaved cannot act as if it was free. I need not impute base motives to the rulers to prove what seems to me to be an axiomatic truth. Nevertheless, I am going to continue to work for the solution as I have been during these three weeks. The questions for consideration are simple. Has the Rajaji Formula or mine made a reasonable approach to the Lahore Resolution? If they or either of them is such an approach, all parties, and especially the members of the Muslim League, should ask the Quaid-e-Azam to revise his opinion. If Rajaji and I have stultified the Lahore Resolution we should be educated. The chief thing is for the Press and the public to avoid partisanship and bitterness.

To a question on his future plans, whether he proposed to concentrate on a Hindu-Muslim settlement or take up political work, seeking imprisonment if necessary, Mahatma Gandhi replied:

I shall act as my inner voice tells me.

Asked how far the offer he had made had conceded the demand made in the Lahore Resolution of the League, Mahatma Gandhi emphasized that the Rajaji Formula or the formula that he presented conceded the substance of the League demand. He said:

In my opinion, either formula gives as much as can reasonably be expected with due regard to the interests of the whole of India.

In answer to a question whether his offer was to be treated now as withdrawn, he said that so far as he was concerned the offer he had made stood. It was not made in

---

1 A Press conference of about 40 Indian and foreign journalists was held at Birla House; Sarojini Naidu, C. Rajagopalachari, Bhulabhai Desai, Nagindas Master, M. Y. Nurie, Dr. M. D. D. Gilder and S. K. Patil were among others present. Gandhiji first read out his statement.
any bargaining spirit. He said:

I think it is a just solution of the problem and it is in the spirit of the policy which the Congress has consistently adopted in connection with the communal question, namely, self-determination.

A number of questions were put on the representative character of the two leaders who conducted the negotiations and why Mahatma Gandhi prolonged the talks when he was apprised of Mr. Jinnah’s views on the first day of the talks. Mahatma Gandhi answered:

I am a man reputed to have inexhaustible patience and I had no reason to despair of either being converted by the Quaid-e-Azam or in my turn converting him. Therefore, so long as there was the slightest possibility, I clung to the hope that we shall pull through to a solution. Haste in such cases is a most dangerous thing. You should, therefore, conclude that yesterday was really the moment when the public should have been taken into confidence. As for myself, I am entirely satisfied that we have not wasted these three weeks. I have no doubt whatsoever that we know now each other better than ever before.

When you agreed to meet Mr. Jinnah, did you meet him on the basis that he was the sole representative of the Muslims?

I have never admitted that claim, but I have said throughout that the Muslim League is by far the most representative Muslim organization. It would have been folly on my part not to recognize this, but I have always been aware that there is outside the League a large body of Muslims which does not see eye to eye with the League and which does not believe in the two nations theory.

Mahatma Gandhi asserted that the fight for freedom had not been suspended when he approached the Quaid-e-Azam. He said:

My approach to the Quaid-e-Azam was itself a part of the fight for freedom.

Asked if there was any possibility of the two leaders meeting again in the near future, Mahatma Gandhi said:

I hope so. It is for the Press and the public to make it possible and hasten the date. I assure you that we have not parted as enemies, but as friends.

If the Rajaji Formula or his own formula had conceded the substance of the Lahore Resolution, then why not agree to the Resolution itself?

Although the Resolution does not say so, if you study the correspondence, it shows that it is based on the two nations theory and it has been known as the Pakistan Resolution. Further, I had to examine the Resolution in view of the interpretation put upon it by the Quaid-e-Azam in his numerous speeches and statements in elucidation of the Resolution. It is indisputable that the Resolution, while it does not enunciate that theory, is based upon that theory. The Quaid-e-Azam has insisted upon that. Therefore, I urge that apart from the two nations theory, if I could accept the principle of division of India in accordance with the demand of the League, he should accept it. But unfortunately it was just there we split.

Asked about Mr. Jinnah’s views regarding a provisional interim government, he said:

I am not sure that the Quaid-e-Azam puts great weight on the interim government. I gave all the explanation of my conception of an interim government without any reservation. It is quite clear in my letters1. If I did not go any further, it was because I could not and, even if you cross-examine me any further, I would have to say I could not go any further. But if, as you suggest, the Quaid-e-Azam attached greater weight to it, then it was open to him to put it into concrete form. I would have then taxed myself and spared no effort to accept the proposition or to make some other suggestions.

Mahatma Gandhi was told that those Muslims who did not see eye to eye with the League had no real Muslim backing. He replied:

Therefore, I have said that the League is by far the most representative of Muslim opinion, but I cannot despise the others by simply saying that they have no Muslim backing. What does it matter if they have no more Muslim backing if the opinion represented by a single Muslim, or by a body of Muslims whom you can count on your fingers, is intrinsically sound? The way of approaching a question is not to examine the numerical strength of those behind the opinion, but to examine the soundness of the opinion on merits, or else we will never reach a solution, and if we reach one, it will be a blind solution simply because it is the wish of the largest body. If the largest body goes wrong, it is up to me to say you are wrong and not to submit. The rule of majority does not mean that it should suppress the opinion of even an individual, if it is sound. An individual’s opinion should have greater weight than the opinion of many, if that opinion is sound on merits. That is my view of real democracy.

Mahatma Gandhi was asked what he thought of the idea of formation of provinces on linguistic, cultural and communal basis. He replied that since 1920 he was for provinces on a linguistic basis. As for redistribution on a cultural basis, he did not really know what it meant and he was unable to understand how provinces could be reconstituted on communal lines unless there was a suggestion that there should be inter-migration of the various communities to concentrate in particular areas. It seemed to him to be fantastic and impossible. He said:

We are not inhabiting a country full of deserts and wastelands. We are a densely populated country and I do not see the slightest chance for such redistribution. In that respect the Lahore Resolution is quite sound—where there is an obvious Muslim majority they should be allowed to constitute a separate State by themselves and that has been fully conceded in the Rajaji Formula or my formula. There is not much distinction between them. That right is conceded without the slightest reservation. But if it means utterly independent sovereignty so that there is to be nothing in common between the two, I hold it is an impossible proposition. That means war to the knife. It is not a proposition that resolves itself into a voluntary or friendly solution.

Therefore, the Rajaji Formula and my formula have presented certain things to be in common between sovereign States. Therefore, there is no question of one party overbearing the other or the Centre having an overbearing Hindu majority. I think our formula should be critically and sympathetically examined and it would be found that the formula concedes everything that could reasonably be conceded if we consider ourselves to be one family. Children of the same family, dissatisfied with one another by reason of change of religion, if they should separate, then the separation should be within ourselves and not separation in the face of the whole world. When two brothers separate, they do not become enemies of one another in the eyes of the world. The world will still recognize them as brothers.

A journalist said that some of the Nationalist Muslims felt that the Congress through Mahatma Gandhi meeting Mr. Jinnah had put them in a false position and that they might have to change their attitude towards Indian nationalism. Mahatma Gandhi replied that it was an extraordinary suggestion. Nationalist Muslims were nationalists simply because they could not be otherwise. He said:

I am a nationalist, not in order to please anybody, but because I cannot be otherwise. And If I approached the Quaid-e-Azam, I approached him in the common interests of myself and Nationalist Muslims and other Nationalists. Nationalist Muslims, so far as I know, were delighted when I approached the Quaid-e-Azam and were looking forward to a proper solution in the confidence that I would not sell the interests represented by them.

Undoubtedly, a Nationalist Muslim represents the nation, but he represents the Muslims also, who are a part of the nation. He would be guilty of disloyalty, if he sacrifices the Muslim interests. But my nationalism has taught me that I would be guilty of disloyalty if I sacrifice the interests of a single Indian.

Asked if there was any difference between his present attitude towards the Muslim League demand and the stand he took in 1942, Mahatma Gandhi said:

There is very great difference. In 1942, Rajaji had not ‘burst’ on the scene as he did at the Aga Khan Palace with a concrete proposition. It reflects very great credit on his persistence. He never takes up a standpoint without the fullest consideration and having taken it up, he follows it to the bitterest end. He had abundant faith in my loyalty and he never gave me up as I have never given him up. When he found me in the Aga Khan Palace and presented the Formula, I did not take even five minutes and I said ‘Yes’ because I saw it in a concrete shape.

My mind is narrow. I have not read much literature. I have not seen much of the world. I have concentrated upon certain things in life and beyond that I have no other interest. Therefore, I could not realize the meaning of Rajaji’s stand and I disliked it. But when he came with a concrete formula— I myself a concrete being of flesh and blood — and when he had put something in concrete shape, I felt I could hug it and touch it. Therefore, you see the vast difference between 1942 and today. However, thereby I have not departed from the Congress standpoint in general terms. Congress has accepted self-determination and the Rajaji Formula has also accepted the principle of self-determination and therefore the Formula had become common ground.

Proceeding, Mahatma Gandhi explained that he accepted the principle of sovereign States, consistent with friendliness. He said:

Friendliness suggests that before the whole world we must act as one nation, not united by extraneous circumstances, or united by force of British arms, but united by a greater force, that is, our own determined will.

_Gandhi-Jinnah Talks, pp. 42-6, and The Bombay Chronicle, 29-9-1944_
Mr. Gandhi told me today why his talks with Mr. Jinnah failed to produce a solution of the Hindu-Muslim differences.

I could not accept the two nations basis. This was Mr. Jinnah’s demand. He wants immediate recognition of the North-West Frontier Province, Sind, the whole of the Punjab, Bengal and Assam as sovereign and completely independent Pakistan.

He wants Mr. Gandhi to agree to this amputation from the rest of India without consulting the wishes of the inhabitants by plebiscite. He has rejected the Rajagopalachari Formula. I asked Mr. Gandhi what he was prepared to recognize as Pakistan and on what basis there could be any hope of agreement in future. He was frank and precise. He replied:

I want to make it clear that I believe Mr. Jinnah is sincere, but I think he is suffering from hallucination when he imagines that an unnatural division of India could bring either happiness or prosperity to the people concerned. It was my suggestion that provided there was the safeguard of a plebiscite there could be sovereignty for the predominantly Muslim areas, but it should be accompanied by bonds of alliance between Hindustan and Pakistan. There should be common policy and working arrangement on foreign affairs, defence, communications and similar matters. This is manifestly vital to the welfare of both parts of India.

This arrangement, Mr. Gandhi said, could not interfere with the internal life of Muslims who would not be subject in any way to Hindu domination. Such a division would not create an artificial split between people who whatever their religious faiths are descended from a common stock and are all Indians.

Unfortunately, Mr. Jinnah would have none of it and asked me to agree to the principle of two nations entirely separate.

I asked Mr. Gandhi if he had adopted the attitude because he thought he could not ‘sell’ such a division to the country or because he thought it wrong in principle. He replied.

\[1\] Of London, represented by Stuart Gelder
\[2\] The Hindu, 2-10-1944, however reports this interview under the dateline, September 30.
Because it is fundamentally wrong in principle. If I had thought Mr. Jinnah’s view was right, even though the whole world were against me, I would have accepted it personally and given him my unquestioned allegiance.

If Mr. Jinnah agreed to your view of division, but insisted there should be no plebiscite or a plebiscite in which only Muslims would vote, would you settle on this basis?

Never. How could I agree in a personal or any other capacity to decide the future of millions of people without their having anything to say about their destiny?

What was your impression of Mr. Jinnah’s attitude on the question of an interim national government which you outlined to me in July?

Mr. Jinnah has said that he is deeply interested in independence, but it did not seem to me that he set as great store by it as immediate recognition of the Pakistan he wants. Whereas, you see, my view has been all along that we cannot be free among ourselves until we are free from imperial domination. We have parted as friends. These days have not been wasted. I am convinced that Mr. Jinnah is a good man. I hope we shall meet again. I am a man of prayer and I shall pray for understanding. In the mean time, it is the duty of the public to digest the situation and bring the pressure of their opinion upon us.

Gandhi-Jinnah Talks, pp. 47-8

570. SPEECH AT: PRAYER MEETING

BOMBAY, Friday, September 29, 1944

Addressing them at the end of prayers, Gandhiji said that he had been seeing large number of men and women joining in prayers every evening and contributing to the Harijan Fund. He wished to tell them something about Harijans this evening since he would have no opportunity of addressing the people tomorrow in view of his decision to leave for Sevagram tomorrow afternoon. For years he had been working for the removal of untouchability. Wherever he went, he emphasized that untouchability was a curse which required to be removed, root and branch. It was a

1 Vide “Interview to Stuart Gelder”, 4/6-7-1944.
2 Since it was the eve of Gandhiji’s departure for Sevagram, the evening prayers in the Rungta House compound were attended by a crowd of three thousand—the biggest congregation of the week.
tragedy that this curse still persisted in India. Many Harijans had been coming and seeing him. He was ashamed to find that even in a place like Bombay which claimed to do so much for the downtrodden, Harijans found it difficult to find houses to live in. It was no use merely contributing to the Harijan Fund. The real duty of the people lay in working for the uplift of the Harijans. Gandhiji said:

It is not for you and me to decide who is low or who is high for we are all children of God. The Hindu religion would not survive without the eradication of the curse of untouchability.

Even in the matter of communal unity, concluded Gandhiji, if we treated all as brothers and sisters, the present dark clouds would clear and give place to bright sunshine.

_The Bombay Chronicle, 30-9-1944_

---

571. LETTER TO MOHAN KUMARAMANGALAM

BOMBAY,

September 30, 1944

MY DEAR MOHAN,

You have done this very cleverly. But I had better not Say more just now.

_BAPU_

SHRI KUMARAMANGALAM

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
DEAR DR. JAYAKAR,

Many thanks for your kind letter. I did what I thought was the best for the country. Of course, you should now express yourself freely on the question. That way only we shall arrive at the truth.

I am preparing for my departure and writing this against time. Hence this brief note.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

Gandhi-Jayakar Papers: File No. 826. Courtesy: National Archives of India

573. LETTER TO K. M. MUNSHI

September 30, 1944

BHAI MUNSHI,

See the enclosed and, if you can throw light on it, do so. Homi Taleyarkhan had asked me about this and my reply was published in the Jame [Jamshed].

I am writing this in a hurry. Take care of your health.

Blessings from

BAPU

From Gujarati: C.W. 7682. Courtesy: K. M. Munshi

1 Dated September 29, which read: “So your talks have failed. I am not surprised. There could be no meeting-ground between you two. . . . Your efforts have now ended and I suppose I am at liberty now to express my sentiments on the nature and result of your effort if I choose to do so. . . . It is frankly my opinion that the Muslim League leader has gained more from you than he has lost to you. . . . Your formula is in Mr. Jinnah’s hands and . . . he will use this formula as a bargaining counter with the British Government and also as the starting point in future negotiations with Indian leaders. If at such negotiations Mr. Jinnah revives the Formula . . . you will be powerless to resist it. Therein lies the danger in my opinion. To me . . . Jinnah would prefer a settlement with the British, rather than with his own countrymen. . . .”

2 Not available
3 ibid
4 ibid
574. LETTER TO ANAND T. HINGORANI

BOMBAY,
September 30, 1944

CHI. ANAND,

I am leaving for Wardha today. I have your letter. You may come over to Wardha when you want. Be at peace.¹

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI ANAND HINGORANI
SHARDA VILLA
FYZABAD ROAD
LUCKNOW, U. P.

From a microfilm of the Hindi. Courtesy: National Archives of India and Anand T. Hingorani

575. LETTER TO HUNDRAJ M. PARWANI

October 1, 1944

DEAR PARWANI,

I had your letter.² I am powerless. I have no authority. Moreover I do not understand Sind politics.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

SHRI HUNDRAJ MULCHAND PARWANI
BUNDER ROAD
KARACHI, SIND

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ A Gujarati daily published from Bombay
² The addressee, in his letter dated August 1, had suggested that under the extraordinary circumstances prevailing in Sind Province the Congress members of the Sind Legislative Assembly should have resigned.
576. LETTER TO DONALD G. GROOM

SEVAGRAM,
October 1, 1944

DEAR FRIEND,

I am sure you will be welcome on your terms whenever you return.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

FRIEND DONALD G. GROOM FRIENDS SETTLEMENT
HOSPEL (C. P.)

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

577. LETTER TO MOHAMMED ABDULLA

October 1, 1944

DEAR SHEIKH SAHEB¹,

I got your telegram at Bombay. I could not spare a minute. I hope your function was a success. Mridulabehn² has given me a full report. She has also given me your book on Kashmir. I shall read it when I get the time.

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Leader of the National Conference, later Chief Minister of Jammu and Kashmir State
² Mridula Sarabhai
578. LETTER TO JAUKARILAL JHANJHORIA

SEVAGRAM,
October 1, 1944

BHAI JAUKARILAL

I had sent your letter to Baijnathji1. I see that you people have to resolve the dispute yourselves. I have already said what I wanted to.

Blessings from
BAPU

JAUKARILAL JHANJHORIA
OLD TOPKHANA, MAIN ROAD
INDORE

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

---

1Baijnath Mahodaya
APPENDIX I

LETTER FROM DR. NAYYAR AND DR. GILDER TO COL. BHANDARI

DETOIN CAMP,

January 31, 1944

DEAR COL. BHANDARI,

As you know, Smt. Kasturba Gandhi has been gradually losing ground. Last night she had very little sleep, and this morning she had a bad collapse. She became very short of breath (respiration 48), the pulse was very feeble in volume and tension and 100 to the minute, and her colour was ashy grey. She recovered after about twenty minutes’ treatment. Now—at midday—she is restless, complains of pain in the left chest and back, is cyanotic and dyspnoeic. The pulse rate is 108, the B.P. is 90/50, respiration

Under these circumstances we would like to have the help in consultation of Dr. Jivraj Mehta (Yeravda Central Prison) and Dr. B. C. Roy (Calcutta) who have been here in her former illness and in whom she has faith. We might state that the patient’s condition is such that if the help of these doctors is to be of any use it should not be delayed.

We might also point out that, as she has to be watched all night and day, nursing has become difficult and the patient herself has been constantly asking for Kanu Gandhi and Dr. Dinshaw Mehta.

Yours sincerely,

S. NAYYAR
M. D. D. GILDER

PS.

Gandhiji’s blood-pressure this morning was 206/110.

Gandhi ji’s Correspondence with the Government, pp. 226-7

1 Vide “Letter to Secretary, Home Department, Government of Bombay”, 31-1-1944; “Letter to Additional Secretary, Home Department, Government of India”, 4-3-1944 and 1-4-1944.
APPENDIX II

LETTER FROM ADDITIONAL SECRETARY, HOME DEPARTMENT, GOVERNMENT OF INDIA

No. III/43-M.S.,
GOVERNMENT OF INDIA, H.D.,
NEW DELHI,
March 21, 1944

FROM
THE ADDITIONAL SECRETARY TO THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA
HOME DEPARTMENT
NEW DELHI

TO
M. K. GANDHI, ESQUIRE

SIR,

In reply to your letter of 4th March regarding Mr. Butler’s reply to a question in the House of Commons on the 2nd March, 1944, I am directed to say that the Government of India regret that you should feel that they were unreasonable or obstructive about the calling in of special medical attendants. The Government of India were always ready to allow any extra medical aid or consultation which the Government doctors considered necessary, and they do not think that there was any delay in summoning outside aid when the Government doctors decided that it was needed. It was on January 28 that they were first informed that Mrs. Gandhi had asked for the services of Dr. Dinshaw Mehta, and it was not until January 31 that they were told that Dr. Gilder had asked for consultation with certain other doctors. On February 1, the Bombay Government were explicitly informed that any extra medical aid or consultation might be allowed which the Government doctors considered necessary or useful. If Dr. Dinshaw Mehta was not called in earlier, it was due to the view originally expressed by both Col. Bhandari and Dr. Gilder that his services could not be of any use, but he was summoned as soon as the Government doctors revised that opinion. Your letter of January 27, which did not reach the Government of India until February 1, made some reference to your wife’s wish to see an Ayurvedic physician, but no name was mentioned and it was not until February 9 that a definite request for the services of Vaidyaraj Sharma was received. The request was then granted within 24 hours and as soon as the Government of India were made aware of the difficulties resulting from his not being accommodated inside the Palace, the necessary permission was given for him to reside there. In the circumstances, the Government of India feel that they did everything possible to ensure that your wife received all the treatment that you wished during her illness.

1Vide “Letter to Additional Secretary, Home Department, Government of India”, 4-3-1944; 1-4-1944 and “Letter to M. G. Bhandari”, 2-4-1944.

2. As to the question of release, the Government of India still feel that the course they adopted was the best and kindest. It was reported to them on January 25 that your son, Devadas Gandhi, had asked his mother whether she would like to be released on parole and she had replied that she would not like to leave the Palace without her husband. Government have made no use of this report, since it was the record of a private conversation; but it confirmed them in the view expressed above. The misunderstanding about the statement in America quite wrongly attributed to Sir Girjashanker Bajpai has been cleared up by answers to questions in the Legislative Assembly which you have doubtless seen.

3. The arrangements for the funeral were understood here to be in accordance with your wishes. The Government made enquiries on the point and were informed that you had no special preference between the first two alternatives mentioned in your letter.

4. In these circumstances, the Government of India do not think that Mr. Butler’s reply to the parliamentary question was incorrect in substance.

I have the honour to be,

Sir,

Your most obedient servant,

R. Tottenham

Additional Secretary to the Government of India

Gandhi ji’s Correspondence with the Government, pp. 235-7

APPENDIX III

LETTER FROM LORD WAVELL¹

March 28, 1944

DEAR MR. GANDHI,

I have your letter of March 9. You will receive a separate reply from the Home Secretary on your complaint about Mr. Butler’s answer to a question in the House of Commons. I can only say that I deeply regret, if you are left with the impression that the ¹ Vide “Letter to Lord Wavell”, 9-3-1944 and 9-4-1944.

Government of India have been unsympathetic in the matter of Mrs. Gandhi’s illness. Miss Slade’s case will be examined in the light of what you say about her.

I do not think it profitable that we should enter into lengthy argument, and do not propose to answer in detail the points you raise in your letter. But I think it best to give you a clear statement of my views on the future development of India and the reasons for your present detention.

The draft declaration of His Majesty’s Government which Sir Stafford Cripps brought to India stated in unmistakable terms the intention of His Majesty’s Government to give India self-government under a constitution of her own devising, arrived at by agreement between the principal elements. I need hardly say that I am in entire accord with that aim, and only seek the best means to implement it without delivering India to confusion and turmoil. Much wisdom and a spirit of goodwill and compromise will be required to arrive at the right solution, but with good leadership, I am sure, a solution can be found.

Meanwhile there is much work to be done, particularly in the economic field, in preparing India to take her proper place in the modern world. She must be ready to welcome change and progress in many hitherto-unfamiliar directions and to raise the standard of living of her population. Such work is primarily non-political; it may well hasten a political settlement, but cannot await it. It will give rise to many new and absorbing problems demanding the best abilities that India can bring to bear on them. India cannot be expected to tackle these problems in isolation from the rest of the world, or without the aid that Britain can give and the services of an experienced administration. But it is work in which leaders of all parties can co-operate with the certainty that they are helping the country towards the goal of freedom.

I regret that I must view the present policy of the Congress party as hindering and not forwarding Indian progress to self-government and development. During a war in which the success of the United Nations against the Axis powers is vital both to India and to the world, as you yourself have recognized, the Working Committee of Congress declined to co-operate, ordered Congress Ministries to resign, and decided to take no part in the administration of the country or in the war-effort which India was making to assist the United Nations. At the greatest crisis of all for India, at a time when Japanese invasion was possible, the Congress party decided to pass a resolution calling on the British to leave India, which could not fail to have the most serious effect on our ability to defined the frontiers of India against the Japanese. I am quite clear that India’s problems cannot be solved by an immediate and complete withdrawal of the British.

I do not accuse you or the Congress party of any wish deliberately to aid the Japanese. But you are much too intelligent a man, Mr. Gandhi, not to have realized that the effect of your resolution must be to hamper the prosecution of the war; and it is clear to me that you had lost confidence in our ability to defend India, and were prepared to take advantage of our supposed military straits to gain political advantage. I do not see how those responsible for the safety of India could have acted otherwise than they did and could have failed to arrest those who sponsored the resolution. As to general Congress responsibility for the disturbances which followed, I was, as you know, Commander-in-Chief at the time; my vital lines of communication to the Burma frontier were cut by Congress supporters, in the name of Congress, often using the Congress flag. I cannot, therefore, hold Congress guiltless of what occurred; and I cannot believe that you, with all your acumen and experience, could have been unaware of what was likely to follow from your policy. I do not believe that the Congress party’s action in this matter represented the real feeling of India, nor that the Congress attitude of non-co-operation represents the opinion of anything like a majority of India.

To sum up, I believe that with general co-operation, we can in the immediate future do much to solve India’s economic problems, and can make steady and substantial progress towards Indian self-government.

I believe that the greatest contribution that the Congress party can make towards India’s welfare is to abandon the policy of non-co-operation and to join whole-heartedly with the other Indian parties and with the British in helping India forward in economic and political progress—not by any dramatic or spectacular stroke, but by hard, steady work towards the end ahead. I think that the greatest service you could do to India would be to advise unequivocally such co-operation.

In the mean time, I regard it as my task, in the interests of India, of which I am a sincere friend, to concentrate all my efforts on bringing this war to a victorious conclusion, and to prepare for India’s advancement after the war. In this task, I feel, I can count on very considerable co-operation from the majority of Indians.

Yours sincerely,
WaVell

Correspondence with Mr. Gandhi, pp. 122-3
APPENDIX IV

LETTER FROM DR. GILDER TO ADDITIONAL SECRETARY, HOME DEPARTMENT, GOVERNMENT OF INDIA

DETENTION CAMP,
March 31, 1944

THE ADDITIONAL SECRETARY TO THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA

NEW DELHI

SIR,

Your letter of the 21st March to Mahatma Gandhi contains the statement:

It was on January 28 that they were first informed that Mrs. Gandhi had asked for the services of Dr. Dinshaw Mehta.... If Dr. Dinshaw was not called in earlier, it was due to the view originally expressed by both Col. Bhandari and Dr. Gilder that his services would not be of any use, but he was summoned as soon as the Government doctors revised that opinion.

Surely coupling of my name with that of Col. Bhandari is a mistake! The Government doctors in attendance were Col. Bhandari and Col. Shah. As far as I am concerned, some time in December last, at one of Col. Advani’s evening visits (when he was officiating for Col. Bhandari) Smt. Kasturba Gandhi asked him to allow Dr. Dinshaw Mehta to come in and Col. Advani was good enough to ask my opinion on the advisability of Dr. Dinshaw’s coming. As I had not talked over the matter with my colleague, Dr. Sushila Nayyar, nor with the patient or her husband, I told Col. Advani, I would give him a reply later. At his visit the next morning, I told him my considered opinion that Dr. Dinshaw’s presence would be a great help.

When the whole of January had passed and permission for Dr. Dinshaw had not come, Dr. Nayyar and myself sent a gentle reminder in our letter of 31st January. A copy is hereto appended.

I might state that though in that letter we had asked for a consultation with Dr. B. C. Roy, no notice seems to have been taken of it or of verbal reminders.

You will permit me to draw your attention to another inaccuracy, viz., about the employment of trained nurses. No trained nurse ever came inside the camp. Before the arrival of Smt. Jayaprakash Narayan and Shri Kanu Gandhi, when nursing was Vide “Letter to Additional Secretary, Home Department, Government of India”, 1-4-1944 and “Letter to M. G. Bhandari”, 2-4-1944.

436

THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
becoming difficult, we were given the services of a woman who had acted as a badli ayah[^1] at the mental hospital. She struck work inside of a week and asked the Superintendent for her discharge.

_I have, etc._,
M. D. D. GILDER

_Gandhi ji’s Correspondence with the Government_, pp. 240-1

APPENDIX V

DISCUSSION ON UNDERGROUND ACTIVITIES[^2]

WOMAN WORKER: You told us, we should be our own leaders after your arrest. In the absence of the Working Committee, everyone of us was to think for himself or herself. We acted according to our light. Your recent utterances make us feel that we have been let down.

_GANDHI:_ I have blamed no one. But, when a thing is wrong, I must say so.

_w._w._. Will it not cause a set-back?

_g._. No, we learn from our mistakes. By correcting them we advance.

_w._w._. Some say: ‘If this is your narrow interpretation of non-violence, we shall have none of it. Call it violence or by whatever name you like, we cannot dislodge the Government without sabotage.’

_g._. It cannot succeed though for some time it may seem to or even actually succeed. But I have said that those who do not believe in my way can say so openly, and courageously try their own method and see if they will succeed better.

_w._w._. We admit that public opinion has veered round to your view. The public has come to feel, whether through enlightenment or fear, that sabotage won’t do. But you cannot expect everyone to become a perfect being, which your method implies.

_g._. I agree. That is why I launched forth with imperfect men. But whether the people develop the required non-violence or not, I cannot play fast and loose with my principles.

_w._w._. What is the quickest way to reach our goal?

_g._. The straightest way, though it may appear to be long.

_w._w._. Then you do not visualize independence in the near future?

[^1]: Substitute nurse
18-5-1944; “Letter to Ramanathan”, 5-7-1944 and “Statement to the Press”, 28-7-1944.
g. I visualize it in the nearest future, if my way is followed.

w.w. You want us to feel indignant and yet sit quiet.

g. No, I want you to feel very indignant with yourself. It is no use feeling angry with a snake, the snake will bite. Follow any way that commends itself to you if mine does not, but do not sit still.

w.w. We have not the courage, we can’t get on if we oppose you.

g. You must develop that courage... ¹ It is because of this courage to stand alone that I am supposed to represent India’s urge for freedom....² Swaraj is not for the weak. If you say, you follow me, when you really do not, you are weak.

The women worker was nonplussed. Gandhiji noticed her dilemma. Reassuringly he proceeded:

“However, you can say, ‘We do not follow your reasoning, but we yield to your experience.’ You can tell your co-workers, ‘We went there. We were not convinced. But we could not convince him either. Therefore, we will follow him as disciplined soldiers.’ But if this course does not appeal to them, it is equally open to them to say, ‘The Mahatma has told us to follow our own reason, if we have no faith in his way.’ That will be equally honourable—perhaps more. I shall then defend them.”

Appa Pant, the Rajkumar of Aundh, had been advising and guiding underground workers. He put before Gandhiji his dilemma: “With me truth and non-violence are not a policy but my creed. I know of underground workers who would not willingly hurt a fly. They are patriots to the core. I have to shelter them when they come to me and seek my advice. I want to wean them from secret methods. But, in doing so, I have myself to resort to secrecy. I feel puzzled and perplexed.” Gandhiji replied:

“You cannot jump out of a running train, as it were. No outside agency can give you effective guidance. It must come from within. If you dive within yourself and search prayerfully for an answer, a stage will come when suddenly your eyes will be opened and you will conceive such a disgust for untruth and secrecy that you will go to the underground workers and tell them that they will find you useless as a guide if they want to go their way. They will then see it in your face and understand, and very likely it will be the beginning of a new chapter in their lives.”

¹ Omissions as in the source
² ibid
APPENDIX VI

DISCUSSION WITH UNDERGROUND WORKERS

As the onslaught of Governmental repression gathered volume and intensity, more and more workers went underground. . . . Some of these friends wanted to meet Gandhiji soon after his release. He sent them word that they could come at their risk. Several of them accordingly came and saw him at Juhu and later at Panchgani. They included R. R. Diwakar . . . Annada Chowdhury . . . Achyut Patwardhan and Aruna Asaf Ali . . .

Gandhiji’s advice to them was emphatic. He held all secrecy to be sin. “To the extent to which secrecy has crept in, it has hurt our cause. We have not to think in terms of one or two, we have to think in terms of forty crores. Today they feel lifeless. We cannot revive them by resorting to secret methods. Only by adhering to Truth and Non-violence can we bring back lustre to their lustreless eyes.”

Looking at their immediate surroundings, he said to them, they might feel that if some of them had not gone underground, the movement would have suffered. But this was only apparently so. When you come to bigger issues, “you will find that it is only by eschewing all secrecy and working openly that you can advance. . . . Today you may be two, tomorrow you will be twenty, if you come out in open, and so the struggle will go on gathering momentum from day to day.”

APPENDIX VII

LETTER FROM V. S. SRINIVASA SASTRI

SVAGATAM, MYLAPORE,
MADRAS,
June 2, 1944

MY DEAR BROTHER,

This letter I mean only for you and your trusted friends. Mr. T. R. Venkatarama Sastri, now on his way to Srinagar, will deliver it in person.

I must first thank you for your ‘sympathy in abundance’. My philosophy is not so stoical but it needs the human touch. You know, as only a very few do, how in simple words to get to a man’s heart. It takes a big heart to do so.

Don’t fear a long political screed from me. I do not see Government arresting you as soon as you are well for another term in jail. You say in your letter to Jayakar, they will do so. If you have reasons to think so, I don’t know them.

Listen to my story. It shall be brief. You can fill in the outline.

The greatest event to happen in the remaining days of your life will be the World Conference of Peace. You must attend it. If they won’t let you go as the representative of India, you must go still. To the good and true men at the Peace table your name will be sufficient credential.

Don’t waste your energy on details. Experts will handle them. Concentrate on the sovereign issues.

I. Disarmament of all nations. I would allow the International Authority to have some armed forces. But you won’t. Go ahead. You will have valiant support all over the world. What if you fail? You will have given your evangel to a stricken and listening world.

II. Equality of economic as well as political opportunities for all peoples of this principle the implications are too many and too intricate for a single human brain. The comprehending proposition is all you can safeguard.

III. Elimination of the colour bar in the British Commonwealth and in the world at large. To fail under this head is to leave a wide door for future wars. Whether India is within or without the Commonwealth, this issue is supreme. At the Peace table one is a citizen of the world.

No doubt it would be a giant’s strength to be armed with the Government of 1 Vide “Letter to V. S. Srinivasa Sastri”, 10-6-1944.

India’s authority. Whether they made you the delegation’s leader or not, you would be looked up to as leader. A necessary condition is the end of Section 93 rule and the restoration of popular government. To this end I have been for nearly two years now pleading that:

(i) political prisoners and detenus should be released;
(ii) general elections should be held, and the Central and local legislatures be put back in power; and
(iii) a national government be formed at the Centre of which the personnel should be drawn from elected leaders. I wouldn’t make a fetish of parliamentary legislation during the war or complete control of the country’s defence.

Tall order, you say. A keen eye will also see in the sketch gaping defects and crudities. There are wise and strong men among us to look after all that.

The Hindu-Muslim rift is there to puzzle, dishearten and paralyse. I despair at the very thought. You see farther and more clearly than most others. I shall, for mypart, abide by your decision—always short of Pakistan, mind you.
I am too feeble for active propaganda.

The means suggested to these mighty ends may be tested only by the standards of Truth and Non-violence. Smaller standards are utterly, utterly out of place—prestige, consistency, or party prospects.

Don’t miss the wood for the trees.
Always and at the very core,

Your loving brother,
V. S. SRINIVASAN

Letter s of the Right Honour able V. S. Sriniv asa Sastri , pp. 359-60
APPENDIX VIII

LETTER FROM MIRABEHN TO M. K. GANDHI

SUNDER BUN, JUHU,

June 12, 1944

BELOVED BAPU,

I have your letter. I had not realized the position regarding the fund kept in my name, and that my expenses were being drawn. I had the impression that the whole sum was being kept intact and that I was receiving food, clothing, travelling expenses, etc., like some others who gave their whole time to the cause according to their individual capacity. But this was a misunderstanding. So, I will gladly put the matter straight at once. I cannot bear any bargaining in such matters. I, therefore, ask that Rs. 20,000 should be deducted from the total, which should cover the expenses incurred by the Ashram for me during these 20 years. The remainder can be transferred to my name.

I had understood that when I had this money, I should be free to do constructive national work without let or hindrance, so long as I made it clear that the scheme of work was entirely my own and without your personal approval. I did not realize that you would feel called upon publicly to express disapproval of my work.

You have given me my freedom with one hand and taken it away with the other. To give me my money and freedom, and at the same time to say that as soon as I begin to use them you will publicly disapprove, is to sabotage anything I may try to do. You at the same time sabotage any chance of my being able to prove to you that you are wrong.

You have brought up a whole lot of reports and prejudices against Sardarji. I have avoided discussing these matters with you because I could see that everything I said excited you. The result is that you have not understood my position. You have made up your mind that I am completely under his influence. It is you who have tried to urge me to that position, but as you know, I have protested all along. You said I should have to join the Communist Party. I said no. You said as a true Hindu wife I should have to follow him in everything. I said my opinion was the opposite, and that my whole instinct told me that I must resist him wherever necessary and live my own life according to the ideals in which I believe, by which means, he would some day know that I was right. If I had followed his advice, I should not have undertaken my scheme but I knew that I must resist him and I did. My faith in God is my guide.

1 Vide “Letter to Additional Secretary, Home Department, Government of India”, 15-7-1943.
But now you propose to throttle, by the warning of public disapproval, any attempt on my part to put my ideals into practice. My ideals have not changed in the last few days. I am the same person that I was when we used to talk happily together.

Believing, as I did, that everything is finally settled I started the ball rolling. I have put out enquiries regarding co-workers, land, maps and other details. I have explained the scheme (as my personal idea) to many people. Must I now understand if I go on with my plans you will feel called upon to disapprove. The fact that there will be Rs. 20,000 less does not worry me at all. I can start in a smaller way and make up with donations. But the possibility that you might broadcast public or semi-public disapproval of my work, which statement I should feel obliged equally publicly to answer, means that for decency's sake I must avoid any such catastrophe, and therefore cancel all my projects of work. I would, in that case, take the balance of the money after the deduction of Rs. 20,000, invest it somewhere, and go to live in seclusion until time as you revised your ideas.

Yours ever devoted daughter,

MIRA

From the original: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library.Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar
DEAR GANDHIJI,

Your small chit came as a pleasant surprise that you were so eager to know more about us. . . .

I am answering your points in a very brief manner. . . .

1. People in people’s war means all peoples the world over without exception. It, of course, includes India’s millions and also the Negroes wherever they be. . . .

This war has split the world into two camps. On the one side . . . Fascists are fighting the war for the imperialist domination of the world. . . . On the other side are the freedom-loving peoples of the world. . . . the camp of freedom and democracy. . . .

fighting Fascism is the only path of national liberation from imperialist domination for us today. . . . The more we unite our patriotic parties, the weaker and more isolated becomes the alien Government and the more irresistible our national and other demands, the greater our capacity to save and serve our people. The more our patriotic parties engage themselves in those tasks which any war-time government should successfully lead, but an alien Government cannot, the more speedily we get the united intervention of all the peoples of the world behind our national demand for national government in the common interest of fighting the common enemy.

2. If you desire to examine the accounts personally, they will present themselves with all the registers where and when you desire. If you decide to appoint a representative, he should be such whom we also know to be an honest man and not already prejudiced against us. You will not find our accounts as well kept as by a commercial firm but I am sure you will give us a pass. . . . You will find some anonymous donors, but I believe that you also accept anonymous donors. But to dispel any suspicion that “anonymous” may be code for Government cash, I am prepared to give you (not your representative) the names. . . .

If you have yet any doubts left and in any case, I give you some references. . . . Iftikharuddin and his Begum, Shaukat Ansari and Zohra, N. M. Joshi. You can ask Dr. and Mrs. Subbaroyan as to what they think is going to happen to their property when Mohan and Parvati (their children and our comrades) get it, and in fact what they know happens to the property of the whole-time workers of the party. . . .

Vide “Letter to P. C. Joshi”, 11-6-1944 and 30-7-1944. Only excerpts are reproduced here.
3. I know it is easy enough to make such a vile charge but very difficult to prove it. . . . Firstly, I believe, if you find that we are not paid by the Government, you will easily believe that we are not likely to hand over labour leaders to the police. Secondly, our party, except in Ahmedabad and Jamshedpur, is as much the unquestioned leader of the working class as the great Congress is of the Indian people as a whole. . . . We gave up our strike policy because we considered it anti-national in the conditions of today, aiding the Jap aggressors on the one hand and intensifying the economic crisis for our own people on the other. That we successfully prevented the Indian working class from resorting to strikes even in a period of their worsening material conditions is the measure not only of our influence over it but its capacity to understand national interests as its own.

4. There is no question of our “adopting the policy of infiltrating the Congress organization”. We have been in the Congress ever since we were born as a party. . . . Whether our intent is hostile or not, it is for our fellow Congressmen to judge and for us to prove otherwise through our practice. . . . We are inside the Congress on our right, as patriotic sons and daughters of the people who join the common national organization, so that we may be able to fight our hardest and best in realization of the common goal of national emancipation and no slanders can ever provoke us to give up this stand and forgo the glorious privilege.

5. The Communist Party decides its own policy as it understands the interests of its own people and of the peoples of the world. As long as the Communist International was there, we were dubbed as ‘Moscow Agents’. It is rather surprising to come across the same insinuation even after its dissolution. . . . The Communist Party is one great revolutionary brotherhood. It exists in every country of the world. All have the same ideology and are moved by the common aims of fighting for the liberation of their own and all peoples. I can send you the journals and documents of the Communist Parties of Britain, U.S.A., South Africa, Australia, which have nailed down Amery & Co. as slanderers and provocateurs after August 9 and which have unfalteringly demanded the release of the Congress leaders and settlement with India on the basis of a real national government. . . .

P. C. JOSHI

Correspondence between Mahatma Gandhi and P. C. Joshi, pp. 3-16
APPENDIX X

PASSAGES FROM "THE QUINTESSENCE OF GANDHISM"

Thou shalt fight for the protection of good men and the destruction of wrong-doers and for the establishment of righteousness.

The side you take up and the weapons you wield are indeed important but the obligation to fight is perfectly absolute and independent of every other consideration, and the emphasis is all upon this obligation. It may be that you take the wrong side in the conflict. But if you are on the wrong side today, you may turn to the right side tomorrow. But those who sit upon the fence have already qualified for admission into Dante’s Inferno. . . .

II

Thou shalt fight for the right, for . . . ‘Truth alone prevails, not untruth.’ . . . You may not take the wrong side or employ questionable means to attain even a perfectly legitimate end, and still hope to succeed. . . .

III

When you are ready to fight for the right, Gandhiji arms you with the all-conquering and never-failing weapon, namely . . . suffering cum forgiveness. . . . . . Mankind must have recourse to love and non-violence, if they will escape from the vicious circle of hatred and violence. Two wrongs can never make one right. Violence in response to violence only provokes more violence and so on ad infinitum.

For a true theist, the Gandhian is the only position he can take up consistently with his theism. If God is there ever present—present in a more real sense than you or I—as Judge and Defender of the right, the theist, imperfect as he is in knowledge as well as in strength, will think it no business of his to judge his adversary or to punish him for what he thinks to be the adversary’s wrong-doing. . . .

Young India, 22-1-1925

---

1 Vide “Letter to Valji G. Desai”, 20-6-1944.
APPENDIX XI

OPINION GANDHIJI’S RESPONSIBILITY

February 6, 1944

We are asked to examine the question whether the authority conferred upon Mahatma Gandhi by the resolution of the A.I.C.C. dated the 8th of August, 1942, to “start a mass struggle on non-violent lines” is still subsisting, apart from the legality or otherwise of the purpose for which the authority was given.

The authority conferred by the said resolution must be construed with reference to the circumstances under which and the purposes for which it was given. It appears from the resolution as a whole that the steps to be taken under such authority were conceived by the framers of the resolution to meet the situation which had then arisen.

In our opinion, the recitals and the purpose of the said resolution and the circumstances under which the same was passed limit the authority so as to confine it to the immediate circumstances and the purpose which the A. I. C. C. had then in view. The said authority was intended to be exercised for and in the then immediate situation. Before Gandhiji could exercise such authority, he was arrested on the 9th of August, 1942, and was prevented from acting on the resolution by reason of his ceasing to be a free agent. By his being so prevented, the exercise of the authority was rendered impossible and it came to an end.

The authority conferred upon him was neither permanent nor recurring and there can be no question of its revival by the recent release of Gandhiji in the present situation.

BHULABHAI J. DESAI
V. F. TARAPOREWALA
K. M. MUNSHI

Pilgrimage to Freedom, pp. 433-4

2 This seems to be an error; according to the source (p. 91), Gandhiji consulted the lawyers after his release which was on May 6.
APPENDIX XII

STUART GELDER’S CABLE TO “NEWS CHRONICLE”¹

Mr. Gandhi is prepared to accept and to advise the Congress to participate in a war-time national government in full control of the civil administration, leaving the Viceroy and the Commander-in-Chief in full control of the British and Indian armies. It would be expected that the establishment of such a government would be accompanied now by a guarantee of Indian independence after the war.

Mr. Gandhi has also approved the proposals submitted to Mr. Jinnah by Mr. C. Rajagopalachari, which agree to a solution of the Hindu-Pakistan dispute by a plebiscite and demarcation of the districts where Muslims are in a majority, if the Muslim League will endorse the demand for independence and co-operate with the Congress in the formation of a provisional interim government for the transitional period.

Despite the fact that he is still far from well and wishes to be relieved as far as possible from being burdened by dealing with political problems in detail for the time being, I talked with Mr. Gandhi for more than three hours in Panchgani this week. If the Muslim League accepts Mr. Rajagopalachari’s proposals and the Government will now discuss the situation with Mr. Gandhi, the deadlock can be solved and a new page opened in Indian history. Mr. Gandhi pointed out that he had no authority to speak in the name of the Congress without consulting the Working Committee, but there is no doubt whatever that his views and the Hindu-Muslim proposals as endorsed by him would be accepted by them without hesitation.

I asked Mr. Gandhi whether he would start civil disobedience, if the Working Committee were released from jail and the Government felt unable to give India what they wanted. He replied:

“I have no intention of offering civil disobedience today. I cannot take the country back to 1942. History can never be repeated. Even without the authority of the Congress, if I wanted to do it, I could start civil disobedience today on the strength of my supposed influence with the masses, but I would be doing so merely to embarrass the British Government. This cannot be my object.”

448

THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
But Mr. Gandhi pointed out, the Working Committee could not sit still while the people were suffering. It is his conviction that the food situation cannot be improved and suffering ameliorated, unless power and responsibility for civil administration are transferred from British to Indian hands.

I told Mr. Gandhi that, with things as they are, I could not believe that the Government would transfer authority now or concede independence during the war. He replied that there was a difference between what he would ask today and what was asked in 1942. Today India would be satisfied with a national government in full control of the civil administration. This was not the position in 1942.

Such a government would be formed of people chosen by the elected members of the Central Assembly. This would involve a declaration now of Indian independence after the war.

Such a national government would give the military all railway, port and other communication facilities they required, although these would be under the national government’s control. The ordinance rule would give way to a normal civil administration by the government. The Viceroy would remain and have complete control with the Commander-in-Chief of the British and Indian armies. In other affairs he would be like the King of England guided by responsible Ministers. Popular government would be automatically restored in all provinces, so that both the Provincial and Central governments would be responsible to the people of India.

The national government would be in the position of offering advice and criticism on military affairs, and the portfolio of Defence would be in the hands of the national government which would be genuinely interested in the defence of the country and would be in the position of being able to give valuable help in shaping policies. Mr. Gandhi realizes that the Allies cannot defeat Japan without carrying on operations on the Indian soil and, therefore, they would continue to do so, but the expenses of these operations should not be borne by India.

When I asked Mr. Gandhi, if he would advise the Congress to participate in such a government formed under such conditions and with such stipulations, he replied “Yes”. In view of Mr. Gandhi’s uncompromising pacifism, readers will ask what his position would be under such a government. After independence had been assured by the formation of a provisional government and the declaration of Indian independence after the war, he would probably cease to function as adviser to the Congress.

As a teacher and exponent of non-violence, he would have to stand aside, but he would certainly not offer any resistance to the government or to the Congress party participating in such a government. His co-operation would take the form of abstention from interfering with the even tenor of life in India. He would continue to work in the hope that his influence would always be felt to keep India peace-minded.
and to affect world policy in the direction of real peace and brotherhood among all without distinction of race or colour.

I am not in a position at present to write an account of all the details of my conversation with Mr. Gandhi. Last week I visited Delhi to give the Viceroy a complete account of my talk with him in Poona. I am now laying before him a complete report of my recent conversation with Mr. Gandhi.

This week, after Lord Wavell had declined to see him in the immediate future, I asked Mr. Gandhi what he would say to the Viceroy if he met him. He replied:

“I would tell him that I sought the interview with a view to helping, and not to hindering, the Allied effort. But I can do nothing without seeing the members of the Working Committee, for I believe that my authority under the August resolution ended with my imprisonment. It was not revived by my release.”

I pointed out that, before the Viceroy would permit a meeting with the Working Committee, he would want to know how Mr. Gandhi would influence the members. To this, Mr. Gandhi replied that history did not repeat itself. “The whole situation has to be reviewed anew,” he said. “The point, therefore, for me to discuss with the Working Committee is to know how they react to the knowledge I have gained since my release. I have to take up the thread that was broken by the Government in 1942. I was first to negotiate and, on failure, to offer civil resistance, if I thought it necessary. I want to plead with the Viceroy. I can only do so when I know the Working Committee’s mind.

“But I tell you that the common talk among us is that, whatever the Viceroy may wish personally, he has no authority in the political sphere. Mr. Churchill does not want a settlement. He wants to crush me, if he has been correctly reported—he has never denied the report. The beauty of it for me, the pity of it for him, is that no one can crush a satyagrahi, for he offers his body as a willing sacrifice, thus making the spirit free.”

There was deep disappointment, but no bitterness, in Mr. Gandhi’s voice when he expressed this fear.

Mr. Gandhi feels that, if the British Government has good intentions, there would be no difficulty about an agreement. But there is an uneasy feeling among Indians of both extreme and moderate views that whatever the Viceroy may wish personally, Mr. Churchill does not wish a settlement now. It may be ill-founded, but it is of vital importance that Indian opinion should be officially reassured on this point.

It was expressed to me in friendly conversation with Mr. Rajagopalachari which was not intended to be an interview. His view that the Congress should have accepted the Cripps offer and co-operated in the war is well-known, and he has been a sincere and outspoken critic of the policy of the Congress and of Mr. Gandhi, while remaining a firm advocate of independence. It seemed to me, therefore, that his appeal and warning was of such importance and significance that I asked his permission to quote it for publication in the News Chronicle, and he gave his consent.

He said: “It seems that the British Government is not now interested in a settlement. They have come to feel that power is the only real thing. Ideals have been put aside and so they are content to drift. They are not planning for the future. They do not know what shape things will take after the war, and so they are not thinking of Indo-British relationship. But, if the war ends on this note, relations between India and Britain will be permanently embittered. It would be a miserable ending for the war, so far as Asia is concerned.”

It is quite possible for the British Government to make a friend of Gandhiji. Those who know him intimately would confirm this opinion of mine. It may not be necessary for the British war effort to go out of the way to befriend him; but for the future of Indo-British relationship, which is not unimportant, such befriending is necessary and the present is the psychological moment for it. A victorious Britain would lose nothing by such a gesture, but gain a great deal of permanent value. His mind today leans towards seeing a national government installed in India before the end of the war and advantage should be taken of this.

With Mr. Gandhi’s consent, I have discussed my talks with him with some people influential in Indian affairs. They have included staunch supporters of the Congress, some strong critics of its policy and a member of the Viceroy’s Council. Despite their difference in political outlook they all expressed the hope that a meeting between the Viceroy and Mr. Gandhi would be arranged. One of them said to me: “There is no doubt that he is not only ready but anxious to be friendly and they would do well to take his hand now. We are all suffering from a sense of frustration. If a national government is formed and the Muslims will come in under the proposals for a settlement of differences, it will make a tremendous difference to the Indian war effort.”

I do not wish to place myself in the position of a political commentator but only a journalist who has discussed the situation fully and intimately with Mr. Gandhi and for what it is worth. I would record my impression that the Government now has a better opportunity than at any time since Sir Stafford Cripps landed in India to put an end to the deadlock and create an India which, instead of being half-hearted or sullenly indifferent, is enthusiastically on the side of Britain. It will not depend entirely on the British Government. The Congress is faced with a great responsibility to make a provisional government work.

At least it cannot now be argued that there are no new grounds for a resumption of relations.

The Bombay Chronicle, 12-7-1944
APPENDIX VIII

TALK WITH C. RAJAGOPALACHARI

RAJAJI: I am afraid, your letter will be misunderstood; it is a naughty letter.

GANDHIJI: I don’t think so. I meant it seriously.

R. You have touched him on the raw by rubbing in a past utterance of his, of which he is probably not very proud.

G. I have taken out the sting by appropriating his remark as an unintended compliment.

R. I hope you are right.

G. I am sorry, but I think you are wrong!

Mahatma Gandhi —The Last Phase, Vol. I, Book One, pp. 31-2

APPENDIX XIV

LORD MUNSTER’S SPEECH

July 25, 1944

Mr. Gandhi had advanced the following views: Firstly, Mr. Gandhi said, he would never use the weapon of civil disobedience during the war unless for a very grave reason, such as the thwarting of India’s right to freedom. Secondly, he would be satisfied with a national government during the war with full control of the civil administration, composed of persons chosen by the elected members of the Legislative Assembly. Thirdly, the Viceroy would be, like the King of England, guided by responsible Ministers. Fourthly, popular government would be automatically restored in all provinces, that is, provinces at the moment under Section 93. Fifthly, while under national government, the Viceroy and the Commander-in-Chief would have complete control of military operations, there would be a portfolio of Defence in the hands of the national government, which would be genuinely interested in the defence of the country and may render great assistance in the shaping of policies. Sixthly, the Allied forces would be allowed to carry on operations on Indian soil, but the expense of such operations would not be borne by Indians. Seventhly, Mr. Gandhi would advise Congress participation in the national government, if formed.

The procedure followed is a little complicated and a little difficult to

1 Vide “Letter to Winston Churchill”, 17-7-1944.
2 Vide “Interview to the Press”, 26-7-1944 and “Letter to Lord Wavell”, 26/27-7-1944. Only excerpts are reproduced here.

452 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
understand. A few days after Mr. Gandhi published these seven suggestions through the intermediary of the Press, he gave further explanations to Press correspondents, in which he emphasized that his statements constituted his personal effort to end the deadlock, but that if his suggestions are not acceptable to Mr. Jinnah or the powers that be, he would consider it a most unfortunate incident. In clarification—if indeed it be clarification—of his offer to Mr. Jinnah, he stated that his proposals were wholly different from the Cripps offer which, he insisted, contemplated almost perpetual vivisection of India. Frankly, it is difficult to understand if these statements by Mr. Gandhi have, in point of fact, definitely improved the chances of an inter-communal settlement.

The main point, so far as His Majesty’s Government are concerned, is that he (Mr. Gandhi) is still clinging to precisely that claim which wrecked the Cripps Mission and put an end to negotiations in April 1942, for he is no more prepared today than he was then, to accept the formation of an interim government with the Viceroy maintaining his existing reserve powers. He demands a so-called ‘interim’ government in full control of the civil administration, with the Viceroy occupying the position of a constitutional monarch as we understand it in this country. Let it not be forgotten that, if an agreement is set up under the present existing constitution, there are still a number of very important questions, not the least of which is the protection of the minorities, to be resolved. All these matters must be settled before the final constitution can be evolved. In this, it will seem that Government have not departed one iota from the pledge they gave some time ago, and which I will repeat now, that the proposals which were taken to India by Sir Stafford Cripps still stand in their entirety.

Referring, in conclusion, to the question by Lord Strabolgi, who asked whether the Viceroy was prepared to allow Mr. Gandhi to see the members of the Working Committee, Lord Munster said: “I would refer Lord Strabolgi to the letter which the Viceroy sent to Mr. Gandhi on June 22 last. He said that another meeting between himself and Mr. Gandhi could only raise false hopes. He said that Mr. Gandhi had publicly stated that he adhered to the ‘Quit India’ resolution which he (Mr. Gandhi) regarded as innocuous. The Viceroy did see that as soon as Mr. Gandhi had any definite or constructive policy to put up, he would be very glad to consider it at that time.”

_The Indian Annual Register, 1944, Vol. II, pp. 293-4_
APPENDIX XV

LETTER FROM LORD WAVELL

NEW DELHI,
August 15, 1944

DRAR MR. GANDHI,

Thank you for your letter of 27th July. Your proposals are:

1. That you should undertake to advise the Working Committee:

(a) that, in view of changed conditions, mass civil disobedience envisaged by the resolution of August 1942 cannot be offered, and

(b) that full co-operation in the war effort should be given by Congress, provided that His Majesty’s Government (a) declare immediate Indian independence, and (b) form a ‘national government’ responsible to the Central Assembly, ‘subject to the proviso that, during the pendency of the war, the military operations should continue as at present but without involving any financial burden on India.’

2. His Majesty’s Government remain most anxious that a settlement of the Indian problem should be reached. But proposals such as those put forward by you are quite unacceptable to His Majesty’s Government as a basis for discussion, and you must realize this, if you have read Mr. Amery’s statement in the House of Commons on July 28 last. They are indeed very similar to the proposals made by Maulana AbulKalam Azad to Sir Stafford Cripps in April 1942, and His Majesty’s

---

Vide “Letter to Lord Wavell”, 26/27-7-1944. According to The Transfer of Power, Vol. IV, pp. 1138 and 1191, this reply from the Viceroy was an outcome of hectic correspondence between Delhi and London, and led almost to a direct collision between Churchill and Wavell. The draft reply proposed by the Viceroy contained, among other conciliatory sentiments, the following sentence: “You and Mr. Jinnah have my good wishes for your approaching discussion.” The War Cabinet pruned the original draft and, after considerable give and take, Wavell dispatched the final draft. At one stage, during this heated debate, Churchill telegraphed to the War Cabinet: “I hope the Cabinet will stand firm and not be disturbed by the attitude of the Viceroy. He thinks that because Gandhi wrote a letter to him, he is entitled to reply in terms which do not commend themselves to the War Cabinet. As a matter of fact, he has no right to negotiate with Gandhi at all, considering he was responsible for passing to us the medical opinion on which we were told that he would never be able to take part in politics again. The root of the matter is that, after what Wavell said about Gandhi’s state of health, he has no right to enter upon correspondence with him which cannot fail to wear the aspect of a great parley between the Viceroy and newly released invalid.” Vide also “Letter to Secretary, Home Department, Government of Bombay”, 3-5-1944.
Government’s reasons for rejecting them are the same as they were then.

3. Without recapitulating all these reasons in detail, I should remind you that His Majesty’s Government at that time made it clear:

   (a) that their offer of unqualified freedom after the cessation of hostilities was made conditional upon the framing of a constitution agreed by the main elements of India’s national life and the negotiation of the necessary treaty arrangements with His Majesty’s Government;

   (b) that it is impossible during the period of hostilities to bring about any change in the constitution, by which means alone a “national government”, such as you suggest, could be made responsible to the Central Assembly.

The object of these conditions was to ensure the fulfilment of their duty to safeguard the interests of the racial and religious minorities and of the Depressed Classes, and their treaty obligations to the Indian States.

4. It was upon the above conditions that His Majesty’s Government invited Indian leaders to take part in an interim government which would operate under the existing constitution. I must make it quite clear that until the war is over, responsibility for defence and military operations cannot be divided from the other responsibilities of Government, and that until hostilities cease and the new constitution is in operation, His Majesty’s Government and the Governor-General must retain their responsibility over the entire field. So far as the question of India’s share of the cost of the war is concerned, this is essentially a matter for settlement between His Majesty’s Government on the one hand and the Government of India on the other, and existing financial arrangements can only be re-opened at the instance of one or the other.

5. It is clear, in these circumstances, that no purpose would be served by discussion on the basis which you suggest. If, however, the leaders of the Hindus, the Muslims and the important minorities were willing to co-operate in a transitional government established and working within the present constitution, I believe good progress might be made. For such a transitional government to succeed, there must, before it is formed, be agreement in principle between Hindus and Muslims and all important elements as to the method by which the new constitution should be framed. This agreement is a matter for Indians themselves. Until Indian leaders have come closer together than they are now, I doubt if I myself can do anything to help. Let me remind you too that minority problems are not easy. They are real and can be solved only by mutual compromise and tolerance.

6. The period, after the termination of hostilities, for which the transitional government would last, would depend on the speed with which the new constitution could be framed. I see no reason why preliminary work on that constitution should not begin as soon as the Indian leaders are prepared to co-operate to that end. If they can arrive at a genuine agreement as to the method of framing the constitution, unnecessary time need be spent after the war in reaching final conclusions and in agreeing on treaty arrangements with His Majesty’s Government. There again, the primary responsibility rests on the Indian leaders.

Yours sincerely,

Wavell

The Hindu, 19-8-1944

APPENDIX XVI

DRAFT LETTER TO THE COMMISSIONER OF POLICE, BOMBAY

For many of us 9th of August, 1942, is a Red Letter Day. Of the resolution of the 8th August we are proud. It is a declaration of India’s hope. Though roughly national, it is international in outlook. Thus it has sanction clause which too the Congress has nothing to be ashamed of. It replaces for its sanction armed force by normal force of self-suffering in the shape of mass civil disobedience. If some Congressmen and others went astray during the days following the 8th of August, 1942, they did so contrary to the resolution. Mahatma Gandhi, the authority appointed by the A. I. C. C. to enforce the sanction, never got the chance of enforcing it. He says, the authority lapsed with his imprisonment and was not revived by his release. He says further that, even if it has not lapsed, he thinks that under the altered circumstances it would be improper to revive the sanction clause. I confess that none of us has a knowledge of the technique of mass civil disobedience. Therefore there is no question of enforcing the sanction. Hence any act my fellow-workers may wish to do on the 9th of August next must not be confused with the sanction clause. This letter would be unnecessary but for the extraordinary powers given to you. Under the ordinance rule, no procession or public meeting can be held without your previous permission. This is an encroachment upon an ordinary civil right. Now on the 9th, as a symbol and token, I propose to organize five parties of five persons each with tricolour flags. They will march, in order to avoid crowds gathering, without notice towards Chowpatty Sands, reach the Lokamanya statue at 5.30 a.m. and stand for five minutes in silent prayer, then recite the resolution in Hindustani and sing the jhandavandana song and disperse. I sincerely hope that you have no objection to this simple ceremony. I shall thank you to let me have your permission.

1 Vide “Talk to Bombay Congress Leaders”, 29/30-7-1944.
2 Flag salutation
NOTE: Gandhi is expected to issue a detailed circular of instructions to all Congressmen by the 5th. On the 9th, 25 persons are starting in procession, in batches of five from quarters of Bombay, and converging at 5.30 a.m. (time dictated by Gandhi) at Chowpatty Sands and carry out the day’s programme.

APPENDIX XVII

A RESOLUTION

The Working Committee have given their full and earnest consideration to the proposals made by the British War Cabinet in regard to India and the elucidation thereof by Sir Stafford Cripps. These proposals, which have been made at the very last hour because of the compulsion of events, have to be considered not only in relation to India’s demand for independence, but more especially in the present grave war crisis, with a view to meeting effectively the perils and dangers that confront India and envelop the world.

The Congress has repeatedly stated, ever since the commencement of the War in September 1939, that the people of India would line themselves with the progressive forces of the world and assume full responsibility to face the new problems and shoulder the new burdens that had arisen, and it asked for the necessary conditions to enable them to do so to be created. An essential condition was the freedom of India, for only the realization of present freedom could light the flame which would illumine millions of hearts and move them to action. At the last meeting of the All-India Congress Committee, after the commencement of the War in the Pacific, it was stated that: “Only a free and independent India can be in a position to undertake the defence of the country on a national basis and be of help in the furtherance of the larger causes that are emerging from the storm of war.”

The British War Cabinet’s new proposals relate principally to the future upon the cessation of hostilities. The Committee, while recognizing that self-determination for the people of India is accepted in principle in that uncertain future, regret that this is fettered and circumscribed and certain provisions have been introduced which gravely imperil the development of a free and united nation and the establishment of a democratic State. Even the constitution-making body is so constituted that the people’s right to self-determination is vitiated by the introduction of non-representative elements. The people of India have as a whole clearly demanded full independence and the Congress has repeatedly declared that no other status except that of independence for the whole of India could be agreed to or could meet the essential requirements of the present situation. The Committee recognize that future independence may be implicit in the proposals but the accompanying provisions and restrictions are such that real freedom may well become an illusion. The complete ignoring of the ninety millions of the people of the Indian States and their treatment as commodities at the disposal of their rulers is a negation of both democracy and self-determination. While the representation of an Indian State in the constitution-making body is fixed on a population basis, the people of the States have no voice in choosing those representatives, nor are they to be consulted at any stage, while decisions vitally affecting them are being taken. Such States may in many way become barriers to the growth of Indian freedom, enclaves where foreign authority still prevails and where the possibility of maintaining foreign armed forces has been stated to be a likely contingency, and a perpetual menace to the freedom of the people of the State as well as of the rest of India.

A copy of the resolution, passed by the Congress Working Committee, was handed over to Sir Stafford-Cripps on April 2, 1942. The Resolution however was released to the Press on April 11 after the negotiations failed. Vide “interview to Shyama Prasad Mookerjee”, 5-8-1944.

The acceptance beforehand of the novel principle of non-accession for a province is also a severe blow to the conception of Indian unity and an apple of discord likely to generate growing trouble in the provinces, and which may well lead to further difficulties in the way of the Indian States merging themselves in the Indian Union. The Congress has been wedded to Indian freedom and unity and any break in that unity, especially in the modern world when people’s minds inevitably think in terms of ever larger federations, would be injurious to all concerned and exceedingly painful to contemplate. Nevertheless the Committee cannot think in terms of compelling the people in any territorial unit to remain in an Indian Union against their declared and established will. While recognizing this principle, the Committee feel that every effort should be made to create conditions which would help the different units in developing a common and co-operative national life. The acceptance of the principle inevitably involves that no changes should be made which result in fresh problems being created and compulsion being exercised on other substantial groups within that area. Each territorial unit should have the fullest possible autonomy within the Union, consistently with a strong national State. The proposal now made on the part of the British War Cabinet encourages and will lead to attempts at separation at the very inception of a Union and thus create friction just when the utmost co-operation and goodwill are most needed. This proposal has been presumably made to meet a communal demand, but it will have other consequences also and lead politically reactionary and obscurantist groups among different communities to create trouble and divert public attention from the vital issues before the country.
Any proposal concerning the future of India must demand attention and scrutiny, but in today’s grave crisis, it is the present that counts, and even proposals for the future are important in so far as they affect the present. The Committee have necessarily attached the greatest importance to this aspect of the question, and on this ultimately depends what advice they should give to those who look to them for guidance. For the present the British War Cabinet’s proposals are vague and altogether incomplete and it would appear that no vital changes in the present structure are contemplated. It has been made clear that the Defence of India will in any event remain under British control. At any time defence is a vital subject; during war time it is all-important and covers almost every sphere of life and administration. To take away defence from the sphere of responsibility at this stage is to reduce that responsibility to a farce and a nullity, and to make it perfectly clear that India is not going to be free in any way and her Government is not going to function as a free and independent government during the pendency of the War. The Committee would repeat that an essential and fundamental prerequisite for the assumption of responsibility by the Indian people in the present is their realization as a fact that they are free and are in charge of maintaining and defending their freedom. What is most wanted is the enthusiastic response of the people which cannot be evoked without the fullest trust in them and the devolution of responsibility on them in the matter of defence. It is only thus that even at this grave eleventh hour it may be possible to galvanize the people of India to rise to the height of the occasion. It is manifest that the present Government of India, as well as its provincial agencies, are lacking in competence, and are incapable of shouldering the burden of India’s defence. It is only the people of India, through their popular representatives, who may shoulder this burden worthily. But that can only be done by present freedom, and full responsibility being cast upon them.

The Committee, therefore, are unable to accept the proposals put forward on behalf of the British War Cabinet.

APPENDIX XVIII

LETTER FROM K. M. MUNSHI

BOMBAY,
August 9, 1944

RESPECTED BAPU,

I had been to Lahore in connection with a case and returned today.

1. Khizr’s man had contacted me. He himself was out of town. He wishes that no commitments be made with Jinnah regarding the Punjab. He is not concerned with whatever else you may do. He will oppose the partition. He is not a man of daring. Glaney, Sir Zafrulla, Sultan Ahmed, are on his side. He will send a messenger to you in a few days.

2. Chhoturam and his party are greatly upset. They are preparing against the partition of the Punjab and are against Pakistan.

3. The Hindu leaders too are very much enraged. Your message was conveyed to Sir Tek Chand Bakshi by telephone at Dalhousie. He is keeping indifferent health, otherwise he would have come to see you. It is naturally difficult to comprehend from your statements how the Rajaji Formula and Akhand Hindustan can be reconciled.

4. Dr. Gopichand met me here. They will not violate discipline; but their minds are greatly perturbed. They are not satisfied with the written consolation you gave them at Juhu.

5. The Sikhs who were the protagonists of Azad Punjab have now become supporters of Akhand Hindustan, at least for the present. Master Tara Singh sent a message that he would meet me; but did not turn up. He is anxious to meet you. He is possibly nursing a grievance that he was not accorded a proper reception during one of his visits to Wardha.

6. I had talks with Sant Singh and other Nationalist Sikhs also. They do not mind if some final settlement is arrived at.

7. Jinnah had held several secret negotiations and part of their trend has come

---

1 Vide “Letter to K. M. Munshi”, 12-8-1944.
2 Sir Bertrand Glaney, Governor of the Punjab
3 Sir Muhammad Zafrulla Khan
4 Sir Sultan Ahmed, Member of the Viceroy’s Executive Council
5 Sir Chhoturam, Minister in the Punjab Cabinet
6 Ex-Chief Justice of the Punjab
7 Dr. Gopichand Bhargava, leader of the Congress Party in the Punjab Assembly to be known: (1) He would start by demanding 50% in the National Government; but would accept 42% in the end. (2) He had discussed five plans for plebiscite, though it is not known what those plans were.

8. As far as possible, I am keeping quiet about the Rajaji Formula. But (my) mind remains perturbed. Friends press me and in most cases misunderstandings arise.
My Congress friends hint that I am thus staging a come-back to the Congress. Others say that I am betraying the cause of Akhand Hindustan on your account. Should I say something explicitly or should I maintain silence?

According to my humble opinion, (1) Akhand Hindustan is a fundamental principle for me. I am unable to change anything in it. (2) Whatever the Constitution, only the areas having Muslim majority in India should constitute separate units. We cannot reconcile ourselves till the Punjab and Bengal are not partitioned. (3) It does not seem probable that the policy of Hindu-Muslim unity which has been a failure for the (past) 25 years will now succeed. (4) Today, none but the Muslims are honestly welcoming the Rajaji Formula. You are of course powerful.
There would be many who, for several reasons, would accept whatever you say. But what is rankling in their hearts would no doubt continue to do so. (5) By supporting the Rajaji Formula you have been able to prove your readiness to arrive at a communal settlement. (6) Jinnah’s ambition of 25 years to determine the future of India in partnership with you is fulfilled. He is now convinced that the British are out to hit at him in the Punjab, and so he is eager to arrive at some settlement. If the settlement arrived at is such that it could be misused or if there is a deadlock, the situation is likely to be worse than it was. I am so disturbed about this thing that I am relieving my burden by expressing myself to you. If, in your opinion, I should publish my viewpoint in the proper form, do kindly let me know. I shall prepare it and send it for your prior approval.

Yours respectfully,

KANU MUNSHI

APPENDIX XIX

LETTER FROM M. A. JINNAH

September 10, 1944

DEAR MR. GANDHI,

With reference to our talk yesterday, September 9th, I understood from you that you had come to discuss the Hindu-Muslim settlement with me in your individual capacity, and not in any representative character or capacity on behalf of the Hindus or the Congress, nor had you any authority to do so. I naturally pointed out to you that there must be someone on the other side with authority holding a representative status with whom I can negotiate and, if possible, come to a settlement of the Hindu-Muslim question, and that for the position you had adopted there was no precedent, and that this raises great difficulties in my way. As you know, I can only speak on behalf of Muslim India and the All-India Muslim League, as the President of the organization which I represent, and as such I am subject to and governed by its constitution, rules and regulations. I think you realize and will admit that the settlement of the Hindu-Muslim question is the foremost and the major hurdle, and unless the representatives of these two nations put their heads together, how is one to make any headway with it?

Nevertheless, I explained to you the Lahore Resolution of March 1940, and tried to persuade you to accept the basic and fundamental principles embodied in that resolution, but you not only refused to consider it but emphasized your opposition to the basic position indicated in the resolution, and remarked that there was “an ocean between you and me”, and when I asked you what is then the alternative you suggest, you put forward a formula of Mr. Rajagopalachari, approved of by you. We discussed it, and as the various matters were vague and nebulous, and some required clarification, I wanted to have a clear idea of what it really meant, and what were its implications, and asked you for explanation and clarification regarding the proposals embodied in that Formula. After some discussion, you requested me to formulate in writing my points that I thought required or called for explanation and clarification, and to communicate with you and that you would reply in writing before our next meeting on Monday, September 11th, at 5.30 p.m. I am, therefore, submitting to you the following points which required clarification:

1. With regard to the preamble: in what capacity will you be a consenting party if any agreement is reached between you and me?

2. Clause 1: With regard to “the constitution for free India” referred to in this clause, I would like to know first, what constitution do you refer to, who will frame it, and when will it come into being?

Next, it is stated in the Formula that “the Muslim League endorses the Indian demand for independence.” Does it mean the Congress demand for Independence as formulated in the August Resolution of 1942 by the All-India Congress Committee in Bombay or, if not, what is the significance of this term, for you know the Muslim League has made it clear not only by its resolutions but also by its creed, which is embodied in its constitution, that we stand for the freedom and independence of the whole of this subcontinent, and that applies to Pakistan and Hindustan.

Next, it is stated that the Muslim League “will co-operate with the Congress in the formulation of a Provisional Interim Government for the transitional period”. I would like to know the basis or the lines on which such a Government is to be set up or constituted. If you have a complete and definite scheme, please let me have it.

3. Clause 2: Who will appoint the Commission referred to in this clause and who will give effect to their findings? What is the meaning of “absolute majority” referred to in it? Will the contemplated plebiscite be taken district-wise, or, if not, on what basis? Who will determine and decide whether such a plebiscite should be based on adult franchise or other practicable franchise? Who will give effect to the decision or verdict of the above mentioned plebiscite? Would only the districts on the border which are taken out from the boundaries of the present provinces by delimitation be entitled to choose to join either State or also those outside the present boundaries would have the right to choose to join either State?

4. Clause 3: Who are meant by “all parties” in this clause?

5. Clause 4: I would like to know between whom and through what machinery and agency will the “mutual agreements” referred to in this clause be entered into? What is meant by “safeguarding defence and commerce, communications and for other essential purposes”? Safeguarding against whom?

6. Clause 6: “These terms shall be binding only in case of transfer by Britain of full power and responsibility for the Government of India.” I would like to know to whom is this power to be transferred, through what machinery and agency, and when?

These are some of the important points that occur to me for the moment, which require explanation and clarification, and hope that you will let me have full details with regard to the various points that I have raised, in order that I may be better able to understand and judge your proposals before I can deal with them satisfactorily.

Yours sincerely,

JINNAH

The Hindu, 29-9-1944
APPENDIX XX

LETTER FROM M. A. JINNAH

September 10, 1944

DEAR MR. GANDHI,

I received your letter of September 11 at 5 p.m. today. I note that you have approached me as an individual, and I have already expressed my views about it. Please do not take it that I acquiesce in the position that you have adopted, for which there is no precedent. Nevertheless, I proceeded to discuss matters with you naturally because I am anxious to convert you to my point of view, if possible. I urged you that the only solution of India’s problem is to accept the division of India as Pakistan and Hindustan, as briefly laid down in the Lahore Resolution of March 1940, and proceed to settle the details forthwith. You say the Lahore Resolution is indefinite. You never asked me for any clarification or explanation of the terms of the Resolution, but you really indicated your emphatic opposition to the very basis and the fundamental principles embodied in it. I would, therefore, like to know in what way or respect the Lahore Resolution is indefinite. I cannot agree that Rajaji has taken from it its substance and given it shape. On the contrary, he has not only put it out of shape but mutilated it, as I explained in my speech which I delivered at the meeting of the Council of the All-India Muslim League at Lahore on the 30th of July, 1944.

2. You say the “first condition of the exercise of the right of self-determination is achieving independence by the joint action of all the parties and groups composing India. If such joint action is unfortunately impossible, then, too, I must fight with the assistance of such elements as can be brought together”. This in my opinion is, as I have repeatedly said, putting the cart before the horse, and is generally opposed to the policy and declarations of the All-India Muslim League, and you are only holding on firmly to the August Resolution of 1942. In order to achieve the freedom and independence of the peoples of India, it is essential, in the first instance, that there should be a Hindu-Muslim settlement. Of course, I am thankful to you when you say that you are pledged to use all the influence that you have with the Congress to ratify your agreement with me, but that is not enough in my judgement, although it will be a very valuable help to me. I once more ask you, please, to let me know what is your conception of the basis for the formation of a Provisional Interim Government. No doubt it will be subject to agreement between the League and the Congress, but I think in fairness you should at least give me some rough idea of the lines of your conception, for you must have thought it out by now, and I would like to know what are your proposals or scheme for the formation of a Provisional Interim Government, which can give me some clear picture to understand it.

3. You have omitted to answer my question as to who will give effect to the findings of the Commission, and also it is not clear to me what you mean by absolute majority, when you say it means “a clear majority over non-Muslim elements as in Sind, Baluchistan or the Frontier Province”. You have not even replied to my question as to who will decide the form of the plebiscite and the franchise contemplated by the Formula.

4. The answer does not carry any clear idea when you say “all parties means parties interested”.

5. You say “mutual agreement means agreement between contracting parties”, who are the contracting parties once a Provisional Interim Government is established of your conception? Who will appoint the Central or Joint Board of Control, which will safeguard defence, etc., and on what principle, through what machinery and agency, and subject to whose control and orders will such a Central or Joint Board be?

6. You say “the power is to be transferred to the nation, that is, to the Provisional Government”. That is all the greater reason why I would like to know full details of the Provisional Government as contemplated by you and of your conception.

Yours sincerely,
JINNAH

The Hindu, 29-9-1944

APPENDIX XXI

LETTER FROM M. A. JINNAH

September 11, 1944

DEAR MR. GANDHI,

I received your letter of September 14 at 4.45 p.m. today in reply to my letter of September 11 (and not of September 13 as you state, which seems to be a mistake) and I thank you for it.

1. Please let me have as soon as you can your promised letter indicating in what way or respect the Lahore Resolution is “indefinite”.

2. With regard to the provision in the Gandhi-Rajaji Formula that “the Muslim League endorses the Indian demand for Independence”, I asked you in my letter dated September 10, “does it mean the Congress demand for independence, as formulated in the August 1942 Resolution by the All India Congress Committee in Bombay or, if not, what is the significance of this term?”, to which you replied by your letter of September 11, “The Independence contemplated is of the whole of India as it stands.” Hence I again ask, does it mean on the basis of a United India? I find that you have not clarified the point satisfactorily.

As regards the next part of the clause, the Formula proceeds to lay down that “the Muslim League will co-operate with the Congress in the formation of the Provisional Interim Government for the transitional period”. I requested you by my letter of September 10 to let me know “the basis or the lines on which such a Government is to be set up or constituted. If you have a complete and definite scheme, please let me have it” to which you replied by your letter of September 11 under reply that “the basis for the formation of the Provisional Interim Government will have to be agreed to between the League and the Congress.” But that is not meeting my request for clarification, or giving me at least the outlines of such a Government. And that is what I have been asking for. I hope that you do appreciate my point when I am requesting you to let me have rough outlines of the proposed Provisional Interim Government according to the Formula, so that I may have some idea. Of course, I can quite understand that such a Provisional Interim Government will represent all the parties and would be of a character that will inspire confidence at the present moment of all the parties. I can quite understand that when the moment arrives, certain things may follow but before we can deal with this Formula in a satisfactory manner, I repeat again that as it is your Formula, you should give me a rough idea of the Provisional Interim Government that you contemplate and of your conception. What I would like to know would be, what will be the powers of such a Provisional Interim Government, how it will be formed, to whom it will be responsible, and what will be its composition, etc. You, being the sponsor of this Gandhi-Rajaji Formula, should give me some rough idea and picture of it, so that I may understand what this part of the Formula means.

In your letter of September 14 in reply to my letter of September 11, you inform me that you would have told me if you had any scheme in mind. “I imagine that if we two can agree it would be for us to consult the other parties”, but that is just the point. Unless I have some outlines or scheme, however rough, from you, what are we to discuss in order to reach any agreement?

As regards the other matters which you have further explained, I have noted the explanation, and I do not think I need press you further, although some of them are not quite satisfactory.

Yours sincerely,

JINNAH

The Hindu, 29-9-1944

466 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
DEAR MR. GANDHI,

I have your letter of September 15, and I thank you for it. I note that you have for the moment shunted the Rajaji Formula and are applying your mind very seriously to the Lahore Resolution of the Muslim League. It is my duty to explain the Lahore Resolution to you today and persuade you to accept it, even though you are talking to me, as you have often made it clear, in your individual capacity. I have successfully converted non-Muslim Indians in no small number and also a large body of foreigners, and if I can convert you, exercising as you do tremendous influence over Hindu India, it will be no small assistance to me, although we are not proceeding on the footing that you are carrying on these talks in your representative character or capacity, and my difficulties remain until you are vested with a representative status and authority in order to negotiate and reach an agreement with you.

You have stated in your letter dated September 11 that the Lahore Resolution is “indefinite”. I, therefore, naturally asked you to please let me know in what way or respect the Lahore Resolution is indefinite, and now I have received your letter of September 15 under reply.

The third paragraph of your letter is not seeking clarification, but a disquisition and expression of your views on the point, whether the Mussalmans are a nation. This matter can hardly be discussed by means of correspondence. There is a great deal of discussion and literature on this point which is available, and it is for you to judge finally, when you have studied this question thoroughly, whether the Mussalmans and Hindus are not two major nations in this sub-continent. For the moment, I would refer you to two publications, although there are many more—Dr. Ambedkar’s book and “M. R. T.’s” Nationalism in Conflict in India. We maintain and hold that Muslims and Hindus are two major nations by any definition or test of a nation. We are a nation of hundred million, and what is more, we are a nation with our own distinctive culture and civilization, language and literature, art and architecture, names and nomenclature, sense of value and proportion, legal laws and moral codes, customs and calendar, history and traditions, aptitudes and ambitions; in short, we have our own distinctive outlook on life and of life. By all canons of international law we are a nation. Now I shall reply to your various points:

1. Yes, the word “Pakistan” is not mentioned in the Resolution and it does not bear the original meaning. The word has now become synonymous with the Lahore Resolution.

2. This point does not arise, but still I reply that the question is a mere bogey.

3. This point is covered by my answer that the Mussalmans of India are a nation. As to the last part of your query, it is hardly relevant to the matter of clarification of the Resolution.

4. Surely, you know what the word “Muslims” means.

5. This point does not arise by way of clarification of the text of the Lahore Resolution.

6. No. They will form units of Pakistan.

7. As soon as the basis and the principles embodied in the Lahore Resolution are accepted, the question of demarcation will have to be taken up immediately.

8. In view of my reply to (7), your question (8) has been answered.

9. Does not relate to clarification.

10. My answer to (9) covers this point.

11. Does not arise out of the clarification of the Resolution. Surely, this is not asking for clarification of the Resolution. I have in numerous speeches of mine and the Muslim League in its resolutions have pointed out that this is the only solution of India’s problem and the road to achieve freedom and independence of the peoples of India.

12. “Muslims under the Princes”: The Lahore Resolution is only confined to British India. This question does not arise out of clarification of the Resolution.

13. The definition of “minorities”: You yourself have often said minorities mean “accepted minorities”.

14. The adequate, effective and mandatory safeguards for minorities referred to in the Resolution are a matter for negotiation and settlement with the minorities in the respective States, viz., Pakistan and Hindustan.

15. It does give basic principles and when they are accepted, then the details will have to be worked out by the contracting parties. (a & b). Does not arise by way of clarification; (c) The Muslim League is the only authoritative and representative organization of Muslim India; (d) No. See answer (C).

As regards your final paragraph, before receiving clarifications from me you have already passed your judgment and condemned the Lahore Resolution, when you say, “As I write the letter and imagine the working of the Resolution in practice I see nothing but ruin for the whole of India.” I understand that you have made clear to me that you represent nobody but yourself, and I am trying to persuade you and to convert you that this is the road which will lead us all to the achievement of freedom and independence, not only of the two major nations, Hindus and Muslims, but of the rest of the peoples of India, but when you proceed to say that you aspire to represent all the inhabitants of India, I regret I cannot accept that statement of yours. It is quite clear that you represent nobody else but the Hindus, and as long as you do not realize your true position and the realities, it is very difficult for me to argue with you, and it becomes still more difficult to persuade you, and hope to convert you to the realities and the actual conditions prevailing in India today. I am pleading before you in the hope of converting you, as I have done with many others successfully. As I have said before, you are a great man and you exercise enormous influence over the Hindus, particularly the masses, and by accepting the road that I am pointing out to you, you are not prejudicing or harming the interests of the Hindus or of the minorities. On the contrary, Hindus will be the greater gainers. I am convinced that true welfare not only of the Muslim but the rest of India lies in the division of India as proposed by the Lahore Resolution. It is for you to consider whether it is not your policy and programme, in which you have persisted, which has been the principal factor of ‘ruin of the whole of India’ and of misery and degradation of the people to which you refer and which I deplore no less than anyone else. And it is for that very reason I am pleading before you all these days, although you insist that you are having talks with me only in your individual capacity, in the hope that you may yet revise your policy and programme.

Yours sincerely,

JINNAH

The Hindu, 29-9-1944

APPENDIX XXIII

LETTER FROM M. A. JINNAH

September 21, 1944

DEAR MR. GANDH.

I am in receipt of your letter of September 19, and I have already given you my answers to all your questions relating to clarification of the Lahore Resolution or any part of it, and I am glad that you admit when you say it may be that “all my questions do not arise from the view of mere clarification of the Lahore Resolution”, but you particularly emphasize your points 15 (a) and 15 (b).

I regret to say it has no relation to the context of the Resolution or any part thereof. You have brought so many matters into our correspondence, which are entirely outside the matter requiring clarification, so I have perforce to deal with them. Let me first deal with your letter of September 11.

1. You say, “My life mission has been Hindu-Muslim unity, which I want for its own sake but which is not to be achieved without the foreign ruling power being ousted. Hence the first condition of the exercise of the right of self-determination is achieving independence by the joint action of all the parties and groups composing India. If such joint action is unfortunately impossible, then too I must fight with the assistance of such elements as can be brought together.”

2. The gist of your letters up to date is that you are wedded to this policy and will pursue it. In your next letter of September 14, while you were good enough to furnish me with the clarification of the Gandhi-Rajaji Formula, you were pleased to observe: “I have, at any rate for the moment, put it out of my mind and I am now concentrating on the Lahore Resolution in the hope of finding a ground for mutual agreement.” In your letter of September 15, you say “Independence does mean as envisaged in the A.I.C.C. Resolution of 1942.” It is, therefore, clear that you are not prepared to revise your policy and that you adhere firmly to your policy and programme, which you have persisted in and which culminated in your demand, final policy, programme and the method and sanction for enforcing it by resorting to mass civil disobedience in terms of the August 8, 1942, Resolution, and you have made it more clear again by stating in your letter of September 19 as follows: “As to your verdict on my policy and programme, we must agree to differ. For, I am wholly unrepentant.” You know that the August 1942 Resolution is inimical to the ideals and demands of Muslim India. Then again, in the course of our discussion when I asked you for clarification of the Gandhi-Rajaji Formula, you were pleased to say, by your letter of September 15 as follows: “For the moment I have shunted the Rajaji Formula and with your assistance am applying my mind very seriously to the famous Lahore Resolution of the Muslim League.” We discussed it in its various aspects, as you told me you were open to be persuaded and converted to our point of view. I discussed the Resolution at great length with you, and explained everything you wanted to understand, even though you have emphasized more than once that you are having these talks with me in your personal capacity, and in your letter of September 15 you assured me in the following words with regard to the Lahore Resolution: “Believe me, I approach you as a seeker, though I represent nobody but myself,” and that you were open to conviction and conversion. You had informed me by your letter of September 11 as follows: “It is true that I said an ocean separated you and me in outlook. But that had no reference to the Lahore Resolution of the League. The League Resolution is indefinite.” I naturally, therefore, proceeded in reply to ask you by my letter of September 11 as follows: “You say the Lahore Resolution is indefinite. You never asked me for any clarification or explanation of the terms of the Resolution, but you really indicated your emphatic opposition to the very basis and the fundamental principles embodied in it. I would, therefore, like to know in what way or respect the Lahore Resolution is indefinite,” and I sent you a reminder on September 13, to which you replied by your letter of September 15, not confining yourself really.
to matters of clarification, but introducing other extraneous matters, with some of which I had already dealt, in reply to this letter of yours of September 15, by my letter of September 17 and furnished you with all the clarifications, informing you that you had introduced several matters which could hardly be discussed in a satisfactory manner by means of correspondence. I have already given you all the clarifications you require so far as the Lahore Resolution goes and its text is concerned. You again raise further arguments, reasons and grounds and continue to persist in a disquisition on the point, amongst others, whether Muslims of India are a nation, and then you proceed further to say: “Can we not agree to differ on the question of two nations and yet solve the problem on the basis of self-determination?” It seems to me that you are labouring under some misconception of the real meaning of the word “self-determination”. Apart from the inconsistencies and contradictions of the various positions that you have adopted in the course of our correspondence, as indicated above, can you not appreciate our point of view that we claim the right of self-determination as a nation and not as a territorial unit, and that we are entitled to exercise our inherent right as a Muslim nation, which is our birth-right? Whereas you are labouring under the wrong idea that “self-determination” means only that of “a territorial unit” which, by the way, is neither demarcated nor defined yet; and there is no Union or Federal Constitution of India in being, functioning as a sovereign Central Government. Ours is a case of division and carving out two independent sovereign States by way of settlement between two major nations, Hindus and Muslims, and not of severance or secession from any existing union, which is non-existent in India. The right of self-determination which we claim postulates that we are a nation, and as such it would be the self-determination of the Mussalmans, and they alone are entitled to exercise that right.

I hope you will now understand that your question 15(a) does not arise out of the Lahore Resolution or of any part thereof. As to 15(b), again it does not arise as a matter of clarification, for it will be a matter for the constitution-making body chosen by Pakistan to deal with and decide all matters as a sovereign body representing Pakistan vis-a-vis the constitution-making body of Hindustan or any other party concerned. There cannot be Defence and similar matters of “common concern” when it is accepted that Pakistan and Hindustan will be two separate independent sovereign States. I hope I have now given all satisfactory explanations, over and above the matter of clarification of the Lahore Resolution, in the hope of converting you as an individual “seeker”.

Yours sincerely,

JINNAH

The Hindu, 29-9-1944
DEAR MR. GANDHI,

I am in receipt of your letter of September 22 and thank you for it. I am sorry that you think I have summarily rejected the idea of common interest between two arms, and now you put it somewhat differently from 15(a), when you say there will be no feeling of security by the people of India without a recognition of the natural and mutual obligations arising out of physical contiguity. My answer, already given, is that it will be for the constitution-making body of Pakistan and that of Hindustan, or any other party concerned, to deal with such matters on the footing of their being two independent States.

I am really surprised when you say there is no proof of what you characterize as a sweeping statement of mine, that the August 1942 Resolution is inimical to the ideals and demands of Muslim India. The Resolution in its essence is as follows:

(a) Immediate grant of Complete Independence [and] setting up immediately of a Federal Central Government on the basis of a united, democratic Government of India with federated units or Provinces, which means establishing a Hindu Raj.

(b) That this National Government so set up will evolve a scheme for a Constituent Assembly, which will be chosen by adult franchise, which will prepare a constitution for the Government of India, which means that the Constituent Assembly chosen will be composed of an overwhelming majority of the Hindus, nearly 75 per cent.

(c) To enforce this demand of the Congress the August Resolution decides on and sanctions a resort to mass civil disobedience at your command and when ordered by you as the sole Dictator of the Congress.

This demand is basically and fundamentally opposed to the ideals and demands of Muslim India of Pakistan, as embodied in the Lahore Resolution, and to enforce such a demand by means of resort to mass civil disobedience is inimical to the ideals and demands of Muslim India, and if you succeed in realizing this demand it would be a death-blow to Muslim India. I see from the correspondence and talks between you and me that you are still holding fast to this fateful resolution.

From the very first day of our talks, you made it clear to me, and you have repeatedly said in the course of our correspondence and talks that you have approached me in your individual capacity, and you assured me that you were a seeker of light and knowledge and that you seriously and earnestly wanted to understand the Lahore Resolution and were open to conviction and conversion. Therefore, in deference to your wishes I made every effort all these days and in the course of our prolonged talks and correspondence to convert you, but unfortunately it seems I have failed. And now you have made new suggestions and proposals by your letter under reply.

1. You say, “I have, therefore, suggested a way out. Let it be a partition as between two brothers, if a division there must be”. I really do not know what this means, and I would like you to elaborate this proposal and give me some rough outlines of this new idea of yours, as to how and when, the division is to take place, and in what way it is different from the division envisaged by the Lahore Resolution.

2. You say, “Let us call in a third party or parties to guide or even arbitrate between us”. May I point out that you have repeatedly made clear to me that you are having these talks as an individual seeker? How can any question of a third party or parties to guide or arbitrate between us arise?

Yours sincerely,

JINNAH

The Hindu, 29-9-1944

APPENDIX XXV

LETTER FROM M. A. JINNAH

September 25, 1944

DEAR MR. GANDHI,

I am in receipt of your letter of September 24, and I thank you for it. You have already rejected the basic and fundamental principles of the Lahore Resolution.

1. You do not accept that the Mussalmans of India are a nation.

2. You do not accept that the Mussalmans have an inherent right of self-determination.

3. You do not accept that they alone are entitled to exercise this right of theirs for self-determination.

4. You do not accept that Pakistan is composed of two zones, north-west and north-east, comprising six Provinces, namely, Sind, Baluchistan, North-West Frontier Provinces, Punjab, Bengal and Assam, subject to territorial adjustments that may be agreed upon, as indicated in the Lahore Resolution. The matter of demarcating and defining the territories can be taken up after the fundamentals above mentioned are accepted, and for that purpose, machinery may be set up by agreement.

1 Vide “Letter to M. A. Jinnah”, 24-9-1944. Only extracts are reproduced here.
You do not accept the provisions embodied in the Lahore Resolution for safeguarding the minorities...

... I asked you... to give me rough outlines of this new idea of yours as to how and when the division is to take place and in what way it is different from the division envisaged in the Lahore Resolution, and now you have been good enough to give me your amplification, in your letter of September 24 under reply...

The terms clearly indicate that your basis is in vital conflict with and is opposed to the fundamental basis and principles of the Lahore Resolution. Now let me take your main terms:

(a) “I proceed on the assumption that India is not to be regarded as two or more nations, but as one family consisting of many members, of whom the Muslims living in the north-west zones, i.e., Baluchistan, Sind, North-West Frontier Province and that part of the Punjab where they are in absolute majority over all the other elements and in parts of Bengal and Assam where they are in absolute majority, desire to live in separation from the rest of India.” If this term were accepted and given effect to, the present boundaries of these Provinces would be maimed and mutilated beyond redemption and leave us only with the husk, and it is opposed to the Lahore Resolution.

(b) That even in these mutilated areas so defined, the right of self-determination will not be exercised by the Muslims but by the inhabitants of these areas so demarcated. This again is opposed to the fundamentals of the Lahore Resolution.

(c) That if the vote is in favour of separation, they shall be followed to “form a separate State as soon as possible after India is free from foreign domination”, whereas we propose that we should come to a complete settlement of our own immediately and by our united front and efforts do everything in our power to secure the freedom and independence of the peoples of India on the basis of Pakistan and Hindustan.

(d) Next you say, “There shall be a treaty of separation which should also provide for the efficient and satisfactory administration of Foreign Affairs, Defence, Internal Communications, Customs, Commerce, and the like, which must necessarily continue to be matters of common interest between the contracting parties.” If these vital matters are to be administered by some central authority, you do not indicate what sort of authority or machinery will be set up to administer these matters, and how and to whom again that authority will be responsible. According to the Lahore Resolution, as I have already explained to you, all these matters, which are the life-blood of any State, cannot be delegated to any central authority or government. The matter of security of the two States and the natural and mutual obligations that may arise out of physical contiguity will be for the constitution-making body of...
Pakistan and that of Hindustan, or [any] other party concerned, to deal with on the footing of their being two independent States. As regards the safeguarding of the rights of minorities, I have already explained that this question of safeguarding the minorities is fully stated in the Lahore Resolution.

You will, therefore, see that the entire basis of your new proposal is fundamentally opposed to the Lahore Resolution, and as I have already pointed out to you both in the correspondence and in our discussions, it is very difficult for me to entertain counter-proposals and negotiate . . . unless they come from you in your representative capacity. That was the same difficulty with regard to the Gandhi-Rajaji Formula, and I made it clear to you, at the very outset, but the Formula was discussed as you asserted that it had met the Lahore Resolution in substance. But while you were furnishing me with the clarification of this Formula, you shunted it and we confined ourselves to the Lahore Resolution, and hence the question of your representative capacity did not arise regarding this Formula. But now you have, in your letter of September 24, made a new proposal of your own on your own basis, and the same difficulties present themselves to me as before, and it is difficult to deal with it any further unless it comes from you in your representative capacity.

I cannot agree with you when you finally wind up by saying: “In your letter of 23rd September, you refer to ‘the basic and fundamental principles embodied in the Lahore Resolution’ and ask me to accept them. Surely, this is unnecessary when as I feel I have accepted the concrete consequence that should follow from such acceptance.” This is obviously far from correct. Why not then accept the fundamentals of the Lahore Resolution and proceed to settle the details?

Yours sincerely,

M. A. JINNAH

The Hindu, 29-9-1944

APPENDIX XXVI

LETTER FROM M. A. JINNAH

September 26, 1944

DEAR MR. GANDHI,

I am in receipt of your letter of September 25. It is entirely incorrect and has no foundation in fact, for you to say that our conversations have come about as a result of my correspondence with Rajaji in July last over his Formula. It is equally baseless to say “and your consultations with the League Working Committee thereon”.

It was entirely in response to your letter of July 17, 1944, which I received while I was at Srinagar, with a fervent request on your part to meet you, and you ended that letter by saying, “Do not disappoint me.” In my reply, again from Srinagar, dated July 24, 1944, I intimated to you that I would be glad to receive you at my house in Bombay on my return, which would probably be about the middle of August. This was long before the meeting of the Working Committee or that of the Council of the All-India Muslim League, and long before I reached Lahore, and when you arrived here and told me that you were approaching me in your individual capacity, I at once made it clear to you and informed you, both in our talks and by my letter, that the position you had taken up had no precedent for it, and further that it was not possible to negotiate and reach an agreement unless both the parties were fully represented. For, it is one-sided business, as it will not be binding upon any organization in any sense whatever, but you would as an individual only recommend it, if any agreement is reached, to the Congress and the country, whereas it would be binding upon me as the President of the Muslim League. I cannot accept this position. I hope you do see the unfairness and the great disadvantage to me, and it is so simple and elementary for anyone to understand.

As regards your proposal of yesterday, which you have simplified in your letter of September 24, I have already sent you my reply.

With regard to your suggestion to be allowed to address the meeting of the Council, and if they feel like rejecting your “offer” the matter should be put before the open session, let me inform you that only a member or delegate is entitled to participate in the deliberations of the meetings of the Council or in the open session respectively. Besides, it is a most extraordinary and unprecedented suggestion to make. However, I thank you for your advice.

As regards your proposal for arbitration and outside guidance, I have already replied to you, and it is not merely technical but a matter of substance. I fully reciprocate your desire for securing a Congress-League settlement.

However, I regret I have failed to convince you and convert you, as I was hopeful of doing.

Yours sincerely,

M. A. JINNAH

The Hindu, 29-9-1944
APPENDIX XXVII

LETTER FROM M. A. JINNAH

September 26, 1944

DEAR MR. GANDHI,

I have received your letter of September 26, and I note that you have written it with Rajaji's advice. Of course, it is for you to follow such advice as you may choose to do, but I am only concerned for the moment with you. I note that at the last moment you have resurrected the Gandhi Rajaji Formula, although it was shunted all this time and you proceed to say that this Formula gives me virtually what is embodied in the Lahore Resolution. You further say that on the same plan you have tried to formulate your latest proposals, as mentioned in your letter of September 24 and you maintain that either gives me the substance of the Lahore Resolution. In your previous letter you asserted that your Formula gives me the "essence" of the Lahore Resolution. I see a very close family resemblance between the two, and the substance of one or the other is practically the same, only it is put in different language, and I have already expressed my opinion, that in my judgment they neither meet the substance nor the essence of the Lahore Resolution. On the contrary, both are calculated to completely torpedo the Pakistan demand of Muslim India. I have never asked you to accept certain theses nor have I introduced any theories in the Lahore Resolution. Theses and theories are matters for scholars to indulge in.

I am very sorry I have to repeat, but I am compelled to do so, that I cannot agree with you that my references to your not being clothed with representative authority are really irrelevant. On the contrary, they have an important bearing, as I have already explained to you more than once. You again repeat that if you and I can agree upon a common course of action, you may use what influence you possess for its acceptance by the Congress and the country. I have already stated from the very beginning that that is not enough, for the reasons I have already given. Your representative capacity comes into play when you are making counter-proposals, and I cannot understand how you can say that it is irrelevant. No responsible organization can entertain any proposal from any individual, however great he may be, unless it is backed up with the authority of a recognized organization, and comes from its fully accredited representative. However, I need not labour this point any more, as I have already explained it in our previous correspondence.

If a break comes, it will be because you have not satisfied me in regard to the essence of the claim embodied in the Lahore Resolution. It is not a question of your being unwilling, but in fact, it is so. If a break comes it will be most unfortunate. If one does not agree with you or differs from you, you are always right and the other party is always wrong, and the next thing is that many are waiting prepared, in your circle, to pillory me when the word goes, but I must face all threats and consequences, and I can only act according to my judgment and conscience.

1 Vide "Letter to M. A. Jinnah", 26-9-1944.

Yours sincerely,

M. A. JINNAH

The Hindu, 29-9-1944

APPENDIX XXVIII

M. A. JINNAH’S STATEMENT

September 27, 1944

Mr. Gandhi from the very commencement of our talks made it clear that he had approached me in his individual capacity and that he represented no one but himself. However, he assured me that he was really open to conviction and conversion to the Muslim League Lahore Resolution of March 1940.

Without prejudice to my objection that in order to reach any settlement, negotiations can only be carried on properly when the other side is also fully represented and vested with authority, in deference to Mr. Gandhi’s wishes I agreed to the task of persuading and converting him to the fundamentals of the Lahore Resolution.

I have placed before him everything and every aspect of the Muslim point of view in the course of our prolonged talks and correspondence, and we discussed all the pros and cons generally, and I regret to say that I have failed in my task of converting Mr. Gandhi.

We have, therefore, decided to release to the Press the correspondence that has passed between us.

Nevertheless, we hope that the public will not feel embittered, and we trust that this is not the final end of our effort.

Gandhi -Jinnah Talks, p. 40

1 Vide “Speech at Prayer Meeting”, 27-9-1944.
1. LETTER TO BAIJNATH MAHODAYA

SEVAGRAM,
October 2, 1944

Bhai Baij Nath,

I read your long letter. Do whatever you think right in the matter. It is beyond my understanding.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI BAIJNATH MAHODAYA
179 Rambagh
Indore (C. I.)

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

2. INTERVIEW TO “THE HINDU”

October 2, 1944

When I approached him this morning and asked him whether he had any particular message to give to the country on this auspicious day, Gandhiji said:

I am not accustomed to giving messages on such occasions.

Gandhiji amidst laughter added:

I want life for 125 years. But Malaviyaji cut it down by 25 years when he wired to me in Poona at Parnakuti that I must live for a hundred years.

Bernard Shaw’s message arrived here today . . . that he would not send birthday messages to Gandhiji. Gandhiji laughed aloud and said:

There you are. I did not know until a few years ago that I have a birthday.

The Hindu, 4-10-1944
3. SPEECH AT KASTURBA MEMORIAL TRUST MEETING

SEVAGRAM,
October 2, 1944

Gandhiji reminded them that the day’s gathering was not a public meeting. There was an order prohibiting general meetings without previous Government permission throughout the Wardha district. They all knew that he was a confirmed civil resister. But this was not the occasion for civil disobedience. Disobedience to be civil implies a certain procedure. This was a meeting of the trustees and collectors of the Kasturba Gandhi National Memorial Fund for presentation of the collection.

Referring to the large number of people from Wardha and outside that had gathered there, he remarked that the reason for their presence on that occasion was that, for years, people all over India had got into the habit of celebrating his birthday according to both the Indian and the Christian calendar. The intervening period between the two dates was also included in the observance. This time, it had become known long before that he intended coming to Sevagram for receiving the purse on October 2.

The Secretary, in his report, had told them how the idea of the Fund had originated. They might like to know how he had come to be the President of the Trust. The collections were started when he was in jail. The trustees had asked for his consent to nominate him as their President. After his accidental release, owing to illness, they were able to consult him and he had become President for the purpose of guiding the trustees as to how the money collected should be spent in a manner befitting the memory of the late Smt. Kasturba. The responsibility primarily rested on the trustees, but it rested on him most of all.

The money had to be spent in villages, which were not part of the cities. The poorer and farther away from the cities, the better. The Fund had to be spent for education and welfare of women and children only. At first, the age limit for male children had been fixed at twelve years. He himself had thought of raising it to sixteen. But it was pointed out to him that in that case boys would get a disproportionate share, leaving the girls at a disadvantage and so their age limit was reduced to seven years. As he had already remarked, the money was to be spent for education of women and children. So long as he had any voice in the matter, the education would be of the basic education type. The scope of basic education included the education of the entire society, beginning with the children and going up to adults and old men and women. It had to be imparted through the practice of handicrafts, village sanitation and medical relief, preventive and curative, especially with regard to deficiency diseases.

1 Gandhiji addressed the trustees and collectors of the Kasturba Gandhi National Memorial Fund in Hindustani. On behalf of the trustees Sarojini Naidu presented him a purse of Rs. 80 lakhs. This report of the speech was issued to the Press by Pyarelal.
2 On May 6, 1944
It was a tremendous work to carry out these reforms in the seven lakhs of India’s villages. A sum of rupees seventy-five lakhs or even of rupees one crore was a trifle, compared to the vastness of the task. Seventy-five per cent of the money collected from a particular area would be spent in that area, not being towns or cities, and the remaining twenty-five per cent would go to the Central Fund. But the money collected from big cities would all go to the Central Fund and nothing out of it would be spent in the cities. In place of collection committees new committees would have to be formed to ensure proper spending of the money. These committees might include some members of the collecting committees, but new names should be added. If in any place ways and means of spending the money satisfactorily in accordance with the aims and objects of the Fund could not be found, the money would remain with the Central Fund. On the other hand, if in any place suitable workers in adequate number could be found to carry out bigger plans satisfactorily, they would be given more money.

It was his wish that, as far as possible, money should be spent through the agency of women workers. It was a matter of regret that women workers with suitable qualifications were not forthcoming in sufficient numbers. The fault lay with the men who had kept the women enslaved in domestic drudgery. They had to draw them out and push them to the fore. After all men were not born efficient as a special creation. It rested on them to produce more and efficient women workers. Men, before they became efficient workers, were prone to make mistakes. Therefore, they must not expect efficiency from women without giving them responsible work. The Fund was collected in commemoration of an old illiterate village-minded woman. It would give peace to her departed soul if women, and especially old women, took a leading part in the execution of the object of the Memorial. The collection had been made out of an overflow of enthusiasm and affection towards the memory of the departed soul. He wanted them to see that it was spent in a way commensurate with that sentiment. That was not a task merely for the twenty-six trustees; hundreds of workers would be needed for it. He had already said that to spend money properly was much more difficult than to collect it, unless they showed as much aptness in the former, as they had done in the latter. So long as he was with them in the flesh, he would, of course, argue with them and fight with them, but it was for them to see that their work was so carried on as to give to the departed soul no cause for dissatisfaction.¹

The Hindu, 4-10-1944

¹ At one of the meetings of the Trust the question of Kasturba’s outlook on life was raised during the discussion. Gandhiji was reported to have said: “Kasturba’s outlook on life means the outlook represented by Kasturba Gandhi, not Mohandas Karamchand Gandhi.”
4. LETTER TO J. SIVASHANMUGAM PILLAI

October 4, 1944

DEAR PILLAI,

Many thanks for your letter. Am sorry for the delay in replying.

My own opinion is that you should do what you think will best serve the ‘Depressed Classes’.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat: G.N. 9257. Also C.W. 5065. Courtesy: J. S. Pillai

5. LETTER TO SHUAIB QURESHI

SEVAGRAM,
October 4, 1944

MY DEAR SHWAIB,

I have done the best I could. Now you have to take up the thread, unless you think I have made a mess of the whole thing. If I have, I know you will be frank enough to tell me so.

Love to you all.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

6. A LETTER

SEVAGRAM
Octoer 4, 1944

DEAR NAWAB SAHEB,

This is to seek your intervention in this communal tangle. Show me please where I have erred if at all. I did the best I was capable of.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 In his letter dated July 27, 1944, the addressee, a Depressed Class M.L.A., had sought Gandhiji’s permission for forming a ministry in Madras at the initiative of the Depressed Class legislators and with the support of the non-Depressed Class Congress legislators and some others.

2 The reference is to the talks with M. A. Jinnah.
7. LETTER TO ZAKIR HUSAIN

Sevagram,
October 4, 1944

My dear Zakir,

The friends you sent will give you full report of the doings here. Tell me of your reactions to the talks with the Quaid-e-Azam. What do you think of my extension of the meaning of Nayee Talim?

You ought to take an active interest in the Kasturba Trust. Bapa and others were complaining that you had not attended a single meeting.

Lastly, how are you?

Love.

Bapu

Dr. Zakir Husain

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

8. NOTE TO DR. GOPICHAND BHARGAVA

October 4, 1944

I wish I had come in greater contact with Laxmidevi than I have been able to. I hope she has benefited by her stay here. You will judge. Krishna Gopal Dutt has written a biting letter against you. I have repudiated all the allegations as unworthy. But he sticks to them. If you have anything to say please do. What has made him so bitter? What is the charge about some iron having been bought? I hope you are progressing. Let me know you future plans.

Bapu

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar
9. LETTER TO H. L. SHARMA

Sevagram,
October 4, 1944

CHI. SHARMA,

I wanted to write to you. In the mean time Gadodiaji\(^1\) arrived. He is not at all satisfied with your work. He says that nothing gets done. I told him it couldn’t be so. What is the truth? Come here for a few days if you can.

Blessings from
BAPU

H. L. SHARMA
KHURJA ROAD, U. P.\(^2\)

From a facsimile of the Hindi: Bapuki Chhayamen Mere Jivanke Solah Varsh, between pp. 324 and 325

10. LETTER TO TEJWANTI DHIR

Sevagram,
October 4, 1944

CHI. TEJWANTI,

I have your letter. It is all right that you went away. Come when you feel like it. Let your elder son go his own way. He will do as God prompts him. If you want you may work among the tribals or render service by taking up residence in the Bhangi Nivas. Do what you think best. Does this answer your letter?

Nothing has yet been decided about the Ashram.

TEJWANTI DHIR
P. O. NAKODAR, DISTT. JULLUNDER
(PUNJAB)

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

---

\(^1\) Lakshminarayan Gadodia, Treasurer and Trustee of the Surya Chikitsalaya, Dadhichi Seva Sangh, an institution run by the addressee

\(^2\) The address is from Pyarelal Papers.
11. LETTER TO POTTY SRIRAMULU

SEVAGRAM,
October 5, 1944

DEAR SRIRAMULU,

Carry on propaganda by all means but [no] fast as yet.

Yours,
BAPU

From a photostat: G.N. 110

12. LETTER TO RAMESHWARI NEHRU

SEVAGRAM,
October 5, 1944

DEAR SISTER,

I am quite sure that I sent from Panchgani a reply to your letter. I do not keep copies of such letters. However I do remember one thing. Do not rush to break free of your bonds. It is your duty to look after Father.

Hope you are in good health.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 8006. Also C.W. 3103. Courtesy: Rameshwari Nehru

13. CABLE TO HORACE ALEXANDER

WARDHAGANJ,
October 6, 1944

HORACE ALEXANDER
144 OAK THULANE
BIRMINGHAM 29
YOU AGATHA MURIEL WELCOME. LOVE.

GANDHI

From a photostat: G.N. 1439

1 The source has ‘as’.
2 Gandhiji had written to the addressee from Poona on June 16; vide “Letter to C. Rajagopalachari”, 19-11-1944
3 Agatha Harrison
4 Muriel Lester
14. LETTER TO DR. SHYAMA PRASAD MUKHERJEE

SEVAGRAM,
October 6, 1944

DEAR DR. MUKHERJEE,

As desired by Gandhiji I am herewith sending you a letter from Smt. Sachi Rani Sinha Roy of village Gobindapur, District Tippera.

It seems to be a genuine case of distress calling for aid. Gandhiji feels that you ought to be able to do something for it. Kindly drop a line in reply and oblige.

Yours sincerely,

PYARELAL

DR. SHYAMA PRASAD MUKHERJEE

77 ASUTOH MUKHERJEE ROAD
CALCUTTA

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library.
Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

15. LETTER TO B. DAS

SEVAGRAM,
October 6, 1944

DEAR FRIEND,

Gandhiji desires me to thank you for your letter of the 19th September and the kind sentiments expressed in it.

It was good of you to have sent all the news about the members of Shri Gopabandhu Chaudhury’s family.

He would like you to keep him posted about the doings in Orissa.

Yours sincerely,

SHRI B. DAS, M.L.A. (CENTRAL)
CHANDNI CHOWK
CUTTACK

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library.
Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar
16. LETTER TO YUVARAJA OF PITHAPURAM

SEVAGRAM,
October 6, 1944

DEAR FRIEND,

Gandhiji has your letter of the 3rd inst. and the enclosed statement.

He does not feel like putting you to the inconvenience of coming here. Moreover, at present every moment of his is pre-mortgaged.

With regards,

Yours sincerely,

THE YUVARAJA OF PITHAPURAM
VASANTASOBHA
TEYNAMPET P. O.
MADRAS

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

17. LETTER TO J. R. D. TATA

SEVAGRAM,
October 7, 1944

DEAR JEHANGIRJI,

In order that I may be understood by you as fully as possible I write this in English, though I should love to write to you in Gujarati. For similar reason this will be typed.

Thank you for your cordial letter of greetings. I would like you to make the cordiality concrete by attending the next meeting of the Trustees¹ to be held at Wardha on Saturday the 4th November. Saturday has been specially chosen in order to enable the original Trustees to attend with minimum of inconvenience. That you have already accepted the additional names proposed by me for the Board of Trustees and for the small Executive ought not to bear the meaning that the original trustees are to be sleeping members.²

¹ Of the Kasturba Gandhi National Memorial Fund
I know I am guilty of having given currency to the thought that the administration of trust funds should in practice be left to the Trustees of my choice. I discovered my mistake before any mischief was done. The more I think about it, the more I feel the narrowness underlying such a conception. The whole board is a very happy combination and if most of the Trustees take an active interest in the administration of the Fund, we may expect even unthought of beneficial results. An active combination and co-operation of top city men and simple village-minded men and women is not an everyday experience. I trust therefore that you will make it convenient to attend the forthcoming meeting and even persuade the Trustees to do likewise, if indeed they need any persuading.

M. K. GANDHI

J. R. D. TATA
BOMBAY

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

18. DISCUSSION WITH SHRIKRISHNADAS JAJU

October 7, 1944

At the outset Jajuji read out the resolution submitted by Gandhiji before the workers of the A. I. S. A. in the September meeting. There was a suggestion in that draft that the A. I. V. I. A. and the Hindustani Talimi Sangh be also consulted while drawing the future plan of work of the A. I. S. A.

J. Should the Harijan Sevak Sangh, Goseva Sangh and Kasturba Trust be also included in this list?

G. Of course, inasmuch as they are as intimately connected with the programme of village reconstruction as the A. I. S. A., and have an economic background and outlook, not a political one. The idea behind the merging of the Sanghs is only that of co-ordinated service of the villages. But the Kasturba Trust may well be kept out.

J. Keeping the Trust out would mean paralysing an organ of the united body. Out of the six Sanghs we can easily form a united executive of one or more representatives from each Sangh.

---

1 This and the subsequent discussions in Hindi with Shrikrishnadas Jaju, Secretary, All-India Spinners’ Association, were reported by Swami Anand. This translation is reproduced with alterations to bring it into conformity with the Hindi version appearing in Charkha Sanghka Navasamskaran.

2 Vide “Speech at A.I.S.A. Meeting-II”, 2-9-1944.
G. We can get our work done through the institutions of the Kasturba Trust, for their work is not anything different from village service. Yet we should not include the Trust in it. When I placed that resolution before the Charkha Sangh the Kasturba Trust was not in my mind. I had only the A.I.V.I.A. and the Hindustani Talimi Sangh in view. My idea was that the heads of these Sanghs should meet together and co-ordinate their activities from the point of view of all-round village service, and influence one another morally without any of them disturbing any of the others in its day-to-day work.

The only work of the Central Office of the A. I. S. A. should be to watch and give moral guidance. It is quite possible that like Euclid’s point we might not be able to reach the ideal. Decentralization consists in bothering little about the practical details of the various centres but regulating the over-all work on moral lines. I know that I may not be able to get the Goseva Sangh, the Harijan Sevak Sangh and others to carry out this policy of decentralization. But as service and total uplift of villages is the basis of all their activity I hope and trust the heads and workers of these Sanghs would of their own accord meet and think jointly how best to organize their work. They would also have to consider, for example, why the work of the A. I. S.A. had to be arrested or modified. One may argue that the work had not been arrested in any way. The Sangh’s work had expanded to cover 15,000 villages; 4_ crores of rupees had been distributed among the poor. All this is no doubt true but we should not rest content with only this much. Rather it should be a matter of regret for us that we have as yet accomplished only a hundredth part of our task.

A worker of the A. I. S. A. would hereafter not confine himself to khadi work alone but regard himself as well a representative of the A.I.V.I.A., the Goseva Sangh, etc., in the larger sense of the term. And in so doing the worker should not feel that all this other work was beyond his sphere and that a new burden was being imposed upon him. If he did so, it would mean that our policy and outlook were not really based on non-violence. Our worker should be able to identify himself with all that requires to be done in the village, that is, with the entire life of the village and yet feel as light as ever.

J. Like the A. I. S. A., should institutions such as the Goseva Sangh, the A. I. V. I. A. and the Hindustani Talimi Sangh also depute such workers to the villages?
G. Exactly so. This is the real meaning of the merging of the Sanghs and of their having a united policy. It does not mean any regimentation of work but it simply connotes working with the united moral strength of all and with a wholesome integrated outlook.

J. Will the A.I.S.A. have to run commercial and welfare departments separately? I feel that to run all village activities with an all-round outlook and to give general guidance to the workers will be the special function of the joint body of all the Sanghs.

G. I do not think so. The joint body of the various Sanghs can once for all lay down administrative policies. The arrangements so made must be honoured by all the Sanghs, which would greatly facilitate their managerial work. My idea of the united body is that its work will expand like the mighty Krishna river, which starts as a tiny tickle of ten to twenty drops of water and ends as one vast Krishnasagar. So also should flow the ceaseless stream of all-sided work. Such is my conception of the joint body.

J. The real problem is to obtain suitable workers. You suggest various activities, but we cannot undertake them for want of workers. Then again you insist that we should reach the seven lakhs of villages.

G. Of course, I do. But when you fail I am there all along with you to share with you the blame.

J. So we are to take it that good workers are to be trained. For the present we cannot hope to get thoroughly capable first-grade workers. We shall have to get on with second-grade workers. From among them we shall obtain first-grade ones later.

G. Does the A.I.S.A. have about 2,000 workers?

J. About 3,000.

G. Well, then use them. Place upon them the responsibility for this new type of work. Also allow them greater freedom in their work. We shall have to decentralize even at some risk.

J. I do not quite understand what you mean by decentralization.

G. We shall have to expand the work so that it covers every village. This cannot be done by imposition from without. The workers will have to be allowed to carry on the work themselves, more or less free of regulation by a central authority. Were they to refuse to bear this much burden and wish to leave us we shall let them go ungrudgingly. But we are not going to turn anybody out.

I like your idea of giving khadi cloth in exchange for hanks in Maharashtra. This is not yet much in vogue. But it is being done through workers already on our staff. This is the way work will go on and develop. But workers who create obstructions will have to go. I will have no hesitation in removing them. If they disobey the policy of the A. I. S. A. they will have to quit. And the Sangh is authorized to change its policy from time to time. The plea of the workers that they were not aware of such changes will not be accepted. Compulsory wearing of khadi, provident fund contributions, etc., were introduced in the course of the running of the Association and they were made applicable to all. Those who could not accept them had to go. Workers may leave us in this manner. But we shall not remove them ourselves. Nay, we shall require them to work along the new lines I have indicated. On the other hand, we shall require those who would like to stay under our plan to work extensively on the new lines, others would naturally quit on their own. Not for a moment did I think that we would have to disband the existing set of workers and start on a clean slate. Suppose we have five workers at a centre and we feel that more work of various kinds can be carried out there, we shall ask them to take up manufacture of hand-made paper and other village industries also, and if possible at the same time to produce more and more khadi and sell it in the neighbouring areas. This is decentralization.

_Khadi: Why and How_, pp. 158-61

19. LETTER TO SYED MAHMUD

October 8, 1944

DEAR MAHMUD,

Bravo. I hope you are fairly fit. I shall expect you here as soon as well enough to come.

Love.

BAPU

DR. SYED MAHMUD

BOMBAY

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

---

1 The addressee, a member of the Congress Working Committee, was released on October 6, 1944. Vide also pp. “Letter to Syed Mahmud”, 14-10-1944 and “Statement to the Press”, 22-10-1944.
20. LETTER TO G. D. BIRLA

October 8, 1944

BHAIGANSHYAMDAS.

I have talked to Sohanlalji1 and to Devdas also. I think that it should be easy enough to collect one lakh rupees towards a memorial for Mahadev. So it doesn't seem proper to sell Sohanlalji's book2 at higher than its market price for that purpose. The book should be sold at its market price and on its own merit. In this way the extent of public response to such a book may be ascertained.

The subject of Mahadev's memorial should be kept separate. We shall talk about it when you come here.

Sohanlalji has agreed. Devdas and Shriman have also accepted my point. I understand, from what Devdas told me, that you feel some sort of a moral obligation [as you had agreed] that the book would be published for the Mahadev Memorial Fund. In that case too it only means that one lakh rupees will be collected for that fund, isn't that so? I fail to see any advantage in collecting it through the books when its impropriety is quite obvious to me.

A written order from you will be required for Parnerkar's3 appointment. These days you hold all the authority. The committee has been suspended. If it is to be revived it will be done when we meet. Lakshmanrao, who is the Secretary these days, needs your order; only then Parnerkar can take charge.

You must have read about my exploits in the newspapers. More when we meet.

Your health must have improved in Mussoorie.

Blessings from

BAPU

From the Hindi original: C.W. 8061. Courtesy: G. D. Birla

---

1 Sohanlal Dwivedi, a Hindi poet who edited the Gandhi Abhinandan Granth, a felicitation volume in Hindi
2 ibid
3 Yashvant Mahadev Parnerkar, a dairy expert
21. DISCUSSION WITH SHRIKRISHNADAS JAJU

October 8, 1944

J. Please explain what should be the equipment and qualifications of workers.

G. For the present I shall not deal with other institutions but answer your question keeping in view the worker of the A. I. S. A. alone. First, he should know, besides his mother tongue, the language of the province in which he is working as also the national language. I do not feel that knowledge of English is essential. He should know about the economic, social and political condition of the country and also something about the condition of the world. This is rather difficult, it is true, but essential. Unless he knows what is happening in other countries, their political set-up, etc., how can he understand the relative conditions in India and where we are bound for? He must have especially detailed knowledge of the conditions prevailing in and about his place of work.

So much in regard to his general preparation which is only a preliminary part of his equipment. In regard to khadi, he should not only have thorough knowledge of the charkha, but he must also be well acquainted with the \textit{takli}. Spinning alone will not do. He must know the entire science of khadi, i.e., evaluating the count, carding, identifying the variety of cotton, the kind of cotton required for a specific type of carding, spinning, etc. He must be in touch with the history of improvements in technique, viz., how carding reached its present stage, the various improvements effected in the charkha. He must also be able to repair and put the charkha in order. It was in Yeravda that I systematically learnt spinning, repairing of the charkha, etc., and I had no one to help me either. It means that the worker must know the elements of carpentry as well, for if he is not able to set right the damaged charkhas of the villagers, spinning will stop in the village and the cause will suffer.

I have dwelt upon the charkha so much because I regard it as the centre of village uplift. In addition, the worker will have to see what other village crafts can prosper in his village. The first in order among these crafts will be the bullock oil-press. Our worker would have to know its technique which has now been scientifically improved at Maganwadi under the supervision of Jhaverbhai Patel.
Another industry which may be introduced is hand-made paper. This has to be learnt not with the view of supplying paper to the whole country but in order to make the village self-sufficient and capable of earning a little income.

J. If the work of hand-made paper develops it will be like running a small factory.

G. I am only giving its outline.

Next to oil and hand-made paper we must revive the handchakki (grinding stone)—a vital thing in every village. Otherwise flour-mills which have been a source of anxiety to me for several years will be our fate. Similarly in regard to rice. Unless we inculcate among the villagers the habit of eating whole rice we shall not be able to solve the problem of food. We must get our people in the villages to take to hand-pounding of rice or handchakkis for husking paddy, for it is a well-established fact that the white polished rice put out by mills and white sugar are harmful to health. All the top experts are agreed upon it. We do get enough literature on these subjects from America. There brown, that is, yellow sugar has come in vogue. So much so that traders sell the white polished sugar after colouring it with harmful colours.

Next take agriculture. Our villagers depend on agriculture and cattle for ploughing. I am rather ignorant in this respect for I have no personal experience. But there is not a single village where we have no agriculture or cattle. There is the buffalo, but except in Konkan and a few other places it is not much used for agriculture. Even then it is not as if we have boycotted the buffalo. Our worker will have to keep a careful eye on the cattle wealth of his village. If we cannot use this wealth properly India is doomed to disaster and we also shall perish. For these animals will then, as in the West, become an economic burden to us and we shall have no option before us save killing them.

Our worker, therefore, would have to acquire some knowledge at any rate about these things, and discover a non-violent way of solving them. Therein lies the solution to our problem of increasing population. I do not know whether our non-violent way will succeed or fail. If it fails it will be our fault, not that of non-violence. It means that our sacrifice and efforts were insufficient. Nevertheless all of us will have to make some effort. Again, in the sphere of agriculture chaos reigns supreme. In regard to agriculture, we must do our utmost to prevent further fragmentation of land, and to encourage people to take to co-operative farming. The village worker will fully examine
In the circumstances prevailing in his village and induce the villagers to take up co-operative farming.

Next to land is the question of water, not for agriculture but for drinking. The worker will go and examine all the wells in the village. It will be his duty to clean them both inside and around. He will see how many wells of the village are fit for drinking water, whether the surroundings are clean, and whether there are any public urinals and latrines near them. If they are near the wells, he will explain to the people the dangers involved in having them so near. He will seek their co-operation in having them removed to a distance. He will thus attend to the cleanliness of the entire village. Now we know about a worker’s field of activity. He should have a thorough knowledge of village sanitation and efficient compost-making. He should convert this knowledge into practice. Of course there will be division of work but it should not be like that of the railway porter showing the green signal or like the woman-worker making soles in a leather factory. Such people are incapable of doing any other work save their own. This extreme division of work is degrading. The village worker should acquire all-round knowledge about building up the whole village. There will be some sewing work in the village, smithy, carpentry, leather work, agriculture, etc. The village worker should seek to bring about co-operation among the workers in these various occupations so as to make them serve as harmonious parts of one whole and thus organize the villages. All these activities appear to be too numerous but in fact they are not. This should not be too difficult for a worker resolved to employ his body and mind fully.

Now for my last point. If the worker going to the village has no faith in non-violence, our work must fail. If he concerns himself with economics alone and disregards ethics and morality, all our efforts are of no avail. Non-violence is the basis on which our work is to be built. It will not do to ignore it. In the initial stages people might achieve something even without it but ultimately the edifice of swaraj will not be raised without the foundation of ahimsa. Workers must demonstrate non-violence in everything they do. They must be living embodiments of non-violence. If they cannot do this, their work will be but a showy nothing. Our history is full of such instances. Merely holding classes on non-violence is of little use.

J. Would it not be better to have two workers instead of one in a village? They could then divide the work between them and one could supplement the other.
G. Many people have asked me this question. I am not going to lay down any definite rules in this regard. I would prefer a worker to go alone. He should tackle the situation single-handed and become fearless in the process. But if one is not enough you may send two. We shall consider the position if lack of finances comes in the way. But so far as I am concerned, I am prepared to go to the length of regarding one worker, if married, as two when both husband and wife serve in the village.

J. Experience often proves the contrary. The wife of a worker is more a handicap to him than a support.

G. That is why I am not going to frame any rules or regulations about it. Do you know that Rajaji insists on workers being married?

J. Some workers will be of higher calibre than others. How do you like the idea of putting under one good worker five or six ordinary workers working in adjoining villages?

G. I have had talks about it with several friends. It will not always be feasible. I asked Timappa Naik to train a large number of workers as otherwise his work was likely to suffer. He is a very capable and efficient worker of Karnataka. He maintains himself on about six rupees. He feels that only local workers could be trained at small expense. He has trained such and they are working with him.

J. How much should we spend on a worker?

G. These are days of war-made dearness. I am afraid it may last for a fairly long time. I am prepared to spend rupees fifty on a worker or even a hundred.

J. Besides food for the worker there is the burden of his family, of the education of his children, etc.

G. We shall take the middle way. We shall leave out those with many burdens. We shall confine ourselves to a family of four, husband, wife and two children, or at the most five. I think it would be better not to take a bigger unit.

J. Many workers argue that they have the responsibility of maintaining their parents, brothers and sisters or other relatives.

G. We cannot take them.

J. While fixing the allowance of a worker, which was to be considered as of greater importance, his capacity or his family responsibilities?

G. To Vallabhswami I would give only five, not hundred. But I would pay the maximum to one with a big family rather than let him go. That is to say, both should live and neither should be envious of the other. Nor should any entertain false hopes.
J. How much response should our workers expect from the villagers? Would it be proper to impose some conditions on villages at the time of selection of our place of work? The situation today is that workers who go to the villages are regarded as moneyed people and villagers think that they should extract from them as much benefit as possible. Consequently the whole work is reduced to nought when the worker leaves the village after working for two years.

G. I think we should not impose any conditions. For example, if we go and settle down for service among the aborigines, what terms can we lay down for them? If we settle down and work resolutely in places where we have already gained some experience, our work will grow and prosper.

In the end everything depends on the worker himself. If he wins the hearts of the villagers he will be able to get them to work with him.

J. How long may it take for a worker to become self-sufficient? Five years?

G. You yourself say five years. The worker will go to the village with one month’s allowance in his pocket. He will ask for a piece of land from the villagers and build his hut on it. In case he obtains a vacant house he will occupy it. Taking out the takli from his pocket he will sit under a tree and spin. If the villagers have their spinning-wheels he will repair them and spin along with them. He will also gather the children of the village, play with them, tell them stories, teach them songs and do village cleaning. Apart from his salary I am not going to give him a pie by way of capital to start an industry or anything else. He will have to set up things by dint of his resourcefulness and love. This will put to trial his passion for service and his ability.

J. It is a very hard test.

G. Yes. We don’t have to take up a sword, have we? The way of love and service shown by me is the only way. If we have to achieve swaraj by non-violent means I have no other way.

Khadi: Why and How, pp. 161-5

22. LETTER TO K. M. MUNSHI

SEVAGRAM,
October 9, 1944

BHAI MUNSHI,

I was glad you sent your reply so soon. It has served the purpose. But can that prohibitory order be defended from the point of view of the right of freedom of expression? Do you agree with the opinion I expressed to Homi?

I read your statement made in Jaipur. I did not like it. Is it not opposed to the Congress policy? Do you think the policy enunciated at Jaipur is contrary to the policy that we had jointly adopted at Nagpur? I would not think it wrong if it should be so. I want to know only for my information. Has a difference of opinion arisen between us in this matter too?

Blessings from
BAPU

From Gujarati: C.W. 7683. courtesy: K. M. Munshi

23. LETTER TO MANGALDAS PAKVASA

SEVAGRAM,
October 9, 1944

BHAI MANGALDAS,

Amritlal must declare how he got possession of the papers? I have had a discussion with Bapa. Hope you are in excellent health.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 4688. Courtesy: Mangaldas Pakvasa

24. LETTER TO AMRITLAL V. THAKKAR

SEVAGRAM,
October 9, 1944

XXX

BAPA,

I read your letter to Pyarelal. The Trustees were present and they resolved to meet at Wardha on 4th November. I think you should have issued a notice to that effect. If you don’t think it is too late now, you may still issue one. If you want, you may notify through the

1 H. P. Mody
2 At the Akhil Bharatiya Sahitya Parishad on April 24, 1936; vide “Speech at Akhil Bharatiya Sahitya Parishad”, 24-4-1936.
3 For the addressee’s reply, vide “Letter from K. M. Munshi”, 12-10-1944.
4 Omission as in the source

THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
newspapers, so that the Trustees are informed without delay. If it is necessary, you may send telegrams to individuals. Why will only one lawyer be present out of the three? I can understand Mangaldas’s inability to attend due to his illness. What about Munshi? And about Dada? I have written to Jehangirji, and Mridulabehn will show the letter to you. I admit that all the botheration will be avoided if I go to Bombay. My unwillingness to go to Bombay is not due to my health, it is due to political considerations. Hence I feel no shame in putting all of you to trouble.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

25. LETTER TO DINSHAW K. MEHTA

October 9, 1944

CHI. DINSHAW.

It took me so many days to write to you.

You have to remember this much:

1. You should not rely upon me. I may go to jail or I may die; or, I might not be able to get away from here. If you do not have courage to undertake this experiment without me you had better not start on it.

2. If you have the courage and self-confidence you should find the required land.

3. After securing the land you should prepare a blueprint indicating all the proposed arrangements. The halls for treatment and experiment should be in the centre or in one corner. They should be surrounded by decent huts for the residence of patients and children entrusted to our care. The sanatorium should grow fruit, flowers, food grains and vegetables. It should have cattle sheds and roads good enough for vehicles. It should also have a gymnasium, a tank for bathing and other facilities. All this cannot be built in a day. But the entire project should be completed within five years. Patients should be admitted right from the beginning. They should be given such treatment as does not involve the use of electricity, for example, hot and cold water, steam, earth and sun-rays.

1 G. V. Mavalankar
Think over all this. Recently a nature-cure practitioner from Andhra had been to me. He has thirty acres of land. And he treats about ninety patients. I would certainly wish to send you to see his sanatorium. You should study such institutions.

Blessings from
BAPU

From the Gujarati original: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

26. LETTER TO MRIDULA SARABHAI

[October 9, 1944]

CHI. MRIDU,

After reading Munshi’s letter put it in an envelope and return it.

Read Jehangirji’s letter to Bapa. Accept any date that is ultimately decided if you approve of the letter. Speak to Ambalalbhai about this letter. In that case, I would not be required to write to anyone else.

If Mahmud is definitely coming, inform me telegraphically and let me know in detail about his requirements. We shall put him up only at Bajajwadi. We shall not trouble him to come to Sevagram. I shall go to Bajajwadi on that day. If you have understood my argument, discuss it with Bapa and Mangaldas, or if you would rather keep quiet, then do so. In my view the question is important. Today there is no one who will hear me in the matter.

Don’t spoil your health by running about too much.

BAPU

From the Gujarati original: C.W. 11119. Courtesy: Sarabhai Foundation

---

1 From the reference to K. M. Munshi’s and J.R.D. Tata’s letters, it appears that his letter was written on the same day as the one to Amritlal V. Thakkar, dated October 9,1944; vide “Letter to K. M. Munshi”, 9-10-1944 and “Letter to Amritlal V. Thakkar”, 9-10-1944.
2 Ambalal Sarabhai
3 Syed Mahmud
4 Mangaldas Pakvasa
27. NOTE TO MANU J. GANDHI

October 9, 1944

This is for Manudi\(^1\) or Sushilabehn.
A six-week course in First-Aid.

1. General anatomy, including description of the internal sub-division in the stomach, the prominent bones, the arteries and the veins.

2. Descriptions of the ordinary wounds such as are sustained on the battlefield and the various types of bandages for them: on the skull, the abdomen, the fingers, the legs and so on.

3. Tourniquet, for arresting bleeding, as part of curriculum and also extra-curricular improvised techniques, such as with a pebble.

4. The method of treatment in the absence of medical apparatus, e.g., warm ashes in the absence of boiled water, paper and cotton ashes; newspaper, etc., that one carries for reading in the absence of dry cloth or flannel. . . .

5. ‘Primitive’ remedies in the absence of medical aid for drowning, snake-bite and scorpion sting.

6. Stretcher drill for carrying the wounded or sick persons and making an emergency stretcher with a gun or a stick and a jacket.

7. Marching by thousands in regular formations and marching drill according to the rules. Erecting tents on a battlefield within a few minutes, rules about the use of water, how and when to construct latrines, kitchens, etc.

It may be that something is being omitted. Most of it is covered by the book written by Kettle. Many things are also to be found in “St. John’s Ambulance”. We did have all these books. Had I been talking I could not have said more. So, you have not lost much.

BAPU

[From Gujarati]

Ba Bapuni Shili Chhayaman, pp. 218-9

\(^1\)Daughter of Jaisukhlal Gandhi
28. LETTER TO S. G. VAZE

SEVAGRAM,
October 10, 1944

MY DEAR VAZE,

It was good you wrote. Your letter reached me too late even for a wire. Do please congratulate the Rajasaheb\(^1\) on the liberal measure he has adopted for the people of his State. Aundh\(^2\) has no reason to regret the reforms adopted there nor will Phaltan.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

SHRI S. G. VAZE
SERVANTS OF INDIA SOCIETY
POONA

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

29. LETTER TO NAGINDAS T. MASTER

SEVAGRAM,
October 10, 1944

BHAI NAGINBHAI,

I have your letter. Doesn’t the August Resolution \([of 1942]\) mean that you should do what you think to be right?\(^3\)

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

---

1. The Raja of Phaltan, Malojirao M. Naik Nimbalkar who had introduced full responsible government in the State
2. Aundh was the first Deccan State to introduce reforms.
3. According to the Gujarat Samuchar, 10-10-1944, the addressee was entrusted with the task of carrying Gandhiji’s message to the people. The message was to the effect that “our struggle is definite and every citizen of India has to be prepared to make his contribution to the fight for independence”.
30. LETTER TO KANTILAL AND SARASWATI GANDHI

SEVAGRAM,

October 10, 1944

CHI. KANTI AND SARASWATI,

One letter from Kanti is lying before me. It is full of information. You are doing right. I will not write more. There is a good family gathering just now. It will disperse soon. I keep good health.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 7369. Courtesy: Kantilal Gandhi

31. DISCUSSION WITH SHRIKRISHNADAS JAJU

October 10, 1944

J. How will the workers become self-supporting? Villagers can either give them money or grain, or give them employment. Or they may run an industry and support the worker with a percentage of the profit.

G. Both courses may be adopted. We shall surely pay the workers. But apart from it the villagers or the worker himself can take up a craft for the sake of the village. It may be possible for a good intelligent worker to work in the village and meet his own expenses as also those of his entire activities by his own intellectual work and take nothing from friends. But earning money thus by the use of intellect alone is, as I have often said, a misuse of the intellect. All such income must go to the country.

J. If our worker were to live on khadi production alone, it would not be possible for him to become self-sufficient. He would have to produce commercial khadi; and to earn profit, he must sell it, send it outside and do various other things.

G. This is not what I had visualized in my scheme. I agree of course that if a village has to be made self-supporting through the production of khadi alone, the surplus will have to be sent outside. Once somebody explained that if we did not produce, in addition to self-sufficient khadi, some amount of other khadi also, and our villagers had no other means of subsistence like land, etc., self-sufficient khadi alone would not suffice to provide all their needs. My idea of self-sufficiency is that villages must be self-sufficient in regard to food, cloth and other basic necessities. But even this can be overdone. Therefore you must grasp my idea properly. Self-sufficiency does not mean narrowness. To be self-sufficient is not to be altogether self-contained. In no circumstances would we be able to produce all the things we need nor do we aim at doing so. So though our aim is complete self-sufficiency, we shall have to get from outside the village what we cannot produce in the village; we shall have to produce more of what we can in order thereby to obtain in exchange what we are unable to produce. Only nothing of our extra produce would be sent to Bombay or far off cities. Nor would we produce things with an eye to export to those cities. That would run counter to my conception of swadeshi. Swadeshi means serving my immediate neighbour rather than those far away.

Our outlook must be that we would serve the village first, then the neighbourhood, then the district and thereafter the province. Working on these lines the A.I.S.A. must function only as the central protector of this policy. We should not get involved in all sorts of complications. We have three thousand workers and a large number of sales depots. We shall not do away with them today. But I am simply telling you of our new line of approach.

J. What should be the extent of a worker’s field of work? Should it be an area of about five miles around his centre?

G. Yes, sometimes even less. In Bengal and Bihar an area of five miles around the centre would cover many villages.

J. Why should we not define his field of activity as the area which he can cover if he left his centre in the morning, and returned to it after having a round by the evening?

G. Yes, we can do so.

J. Would the A.I.S.A. have to take up this work first?

G. Certainly, because the charkha is the sun round which other industries revolve like planets. They would revolve rightly only when the sun’s movements are all right. Today the village industries are behaving like comets.

J. The work against untouchability sometimes involves the worker in all kinds of difficulties. How far may our worker entangle himself in them?

G. He should not involve himself in such troubles as would stop his work. But there should be no place at all for untouchability in his personal life. Our worker will draw water from the same well which the Harijans use. He will clean up their wells and take all sanitary steps possible for proper drainage.
J. Then there is the political issue. Suppose my self-respect is wounded in the course of performance of my duties or my freedom is restricted, would it then be proper for me to offer civil disobedience? It may be that I may keep aloof from other political disturbances, but in case of a general civil disobedience movement the worker cannot remain unconcerned. What should he do under such circumstances?

G. General civil disobedience means a sort of anarchy in which everybody is a leader. People start talking in terms of fighting. But ordinarily we must follow the orders of the chief or the commander in charge of that movement. Surely none can remain unconcerned in a movement of that nature. Yet the worker would have to explain his position to the President of the A. I. S. A. who would give his opinion after taking all the pros and cons into consideration. However, I am not thinking of general civil disobedience today.

_Khadi: Why and How_, pp. 166-8

32. STATEMENT TO THE PRESS

WARDHA,

_October 11, 1944_

Numerous messages of birthday greetings from all over have been received and are still being received. It is impossible for me to send individual acknowledgement. I take this opportunity through the courtesy of the Press of thanking all the senders for their kind wishes.

_The Bombay Chronicle_, 12-10-1944

33. LETTER TO AMRITLAL V. THAKKAR

SEVAGRAM,

_October 11, 1944_

DEAR BAPA,

We can do nothing about Chandvani.

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati : Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy : Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar
34. LETTER TO KUNDAR DIWAN

October 11, 1944

BHAII KUNDAR,

The spinning-wheel is the symbol of non-violence for those who project non-violence in the spinning-wheel. What I said was only to explain this. There should be no difficulty in understanding this.

BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

35. LETTER TO RAMKRISHNA DALMIA

SEVAGRAM,

October 11, 1944

BHAII DALMIA,

I have your letter. I think what I did was right. I know your letter was prompted by love. Do keep writing like this.

Blessings from

BAPU

DALMIA- JAIN NIVAS
NEW DELHI

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

36. DISCUSSION WITH SHRIKRISHNA JAJU

October 11, 1944

J. I could not quite follow your views about decentralization. Will you kindly throw more light on it?

G. My view is that we should let as many provinces as wish to be free to develop their work as they desire. I would very much like them to take the entire responsibility on their own shoulders and recognize our authority only in the moral realm. I would allow them to work with complete freedom if they follow my lines, are personally of sparkling character, and are prepared to take risk in honestly implementing our policy. My only condition will be that they should sell all the khadi they produce in the villages near about the centre of production, the tehsil, the district or at the most the province. They should not, like the people of Chicacole, produce everything for Bombay and use nothing at home.

J. Chicacole is an exception, and is the only production centre in the country for fine khadi.

G. Yes, even in that case I would ask the producers and sellers to wear what they produce or sell. They may send their articles outside but they must also wear them. In case they go on producing fine khadi for Bombay but use only mill-cloth themselves, their centre must cease to be run by the A. I. S. A. I would even insist that it be closed altogether.

J. Deducting something from the income of the craftsmen or women towards supply of khadi to them, we do make them wear some khadi. But this seems to be a sort of imposition. They do not take to it voluntarily.

G. I may put up with such a situation for a short period. I do not expect people to take to khadi immediately and to accept non-violence. We must educate them in true economics and in non-violence. If we succeed in developing a true economic outlook in them, they would ultimately understand non-violence as well. An economics which runs counter to morality cannot be called true economics. Our workers can develop an outlook of true economics in the villages only if they work under the inspiration of non-violence and morality.

Their personal conduct should be of the purest nature and they should not be a party to any exploitation of the people. If we try to cover India with khadi but ignore the miseries of the craftsmen, do not pay them living wages, do not share their weal and woe, or worry little if they are drunkards, it will not do at all. It is better to burn all khadi to ashes than to pretend to work for the good of the country in this manner. I would keep the drunkard and give him work, but I would befriend him and sweetly urge upon him daily to abstain from drink. My aim is not to do the work of khadi only but to enter into the entire life of the villager.

I know that Chicacole khadi is very popular and that it fetches a good sale in far off provinces; but this pains me very much. If we want to do khadi work successfully on the new lines in any province, district, taluk or village, we must not make one district lean on any other, or enter into competition with it. All districts must meet their requirements themselves. This would relieve us of our worries about sales. It is quite possible that implementation of this new policy may for the present reduce a centre to zero. But later on the work is bound to progress. Of course I cannot submit data and figures to prove what I say as I know nothing about them. But you can of course supply them to me. What I know, however, is that if khadi is to disseminate non-violence, we shall have to follow this new policy, come what may.

J. Do you mean to say that the work of the A. I. S. A. will hereafter be entrusted to separate boards of trustees to be newly formed in each province?

G. I cannot say immediately what exactly would have to be done. I know, however, that to promote decentralization such as I want, we would have to do away with the central control now dominating our every activity. Today our machinery is top-heavy. Our approach and method being what they have been hitherto, this was inevitable. It could have been avoided had I followed and insisted from the very beginning on our doing the right thing. It is not that I was not aware that the work was not going on the right lines. But I succumbed to the temptation of doing some work and let the work develop itself, resulting in the present centralization.

J. Yet we shall have to evolve some sort of constitution. . . If the work of the provinces is to be entrusted to some body, registered societies with at least seven trustees for each would have to be set up.

If you allow me I shall soon bring about decentralization in sales. Today khadi is such a profitable business and so full of opportunities for expansion that dealers and tradesmen are ready to take it up. I am flooded with letters asking me for the transfer of one bhandar or the other. But as a clear picture of the coming decentralization is not yet before my eyes I am not able to go ahead. And even were we to entrust khadi work to some individual, trust or institution we shall have to insist on three things: (a) Purity of khadi, (b) Living wage and (c) Non-profiteering. If we are not able to control these three things the whole business will be reduced to a farce. Whatever is to be done has to be done very carefully. For example, take the case of the A. I. S. A. Every now and then we issue circulars to our branches to raise the wages and to impress upon the workers not to put the spinners to any difficulty whatsoever. Nevertheless, our experience is that it is well-nigh impossible to keep every worker of each centre in full control regarding such matters as accurate determination of the count of the yarn, correct payment of wages without adding or subtracting a pice or two here and there, and many little things of such nature. And this happens even though our worker has no axe of his own to grind. We appealed to purchasers of khadi to pay a higher price but those engaged in the craft did not receive an adequate wage. This is as regards the conduct of workers and centres even when run under the direct supervision of the A. I. S. A. If however we introduce decentralization and the control slackens or is almost withdrawn, one cannot say what a fearful mess the certified dealers might not make of it. Whether it is an individual or an institutions indulge in a lot of profit-making. Under these circumstances if the A. I. S. A. keeps away from commercial sales, it would be a problem as to who should be entrusted with this responsibility or what sort of conditions or limitations should be imposed on them. Again, if the provinces are to be left free to look after themselves, they do not have enough workers with the proper khadi outlook to be entrusted with the work.

G. Is there no way out of this difficulty?

J. The issue of provincial freedom will not be so difficult in some of the provinces, but it is bound to lead to complications in most of them. For the present, I think, it would be wise to confine decentralization to the district, and not to extend it to the province. The change should not be effected all at once.

G. For the present we may introduce decentralization in production only. It should be binding on the producers to sell in their neighbourhood what they produce. And it must be insisted that the central office should be consulted in case of distant sales.

J. What is the harm if we limit the sales-area of a centre to its tehsil?

G. We may, but we must see that the producers or those who live in that village or in its neighbourhood wear the khadi produced. We do of course recognize that khadi may be required to be produced for other places also.

J. We would ask workers to go to the centres that are well developed and to extend the work on the new lines as far as possible. The A.I.S.A. will withdraw from those places where such workers take up work. Thus decentralization will grow. But one thing is important. We shall ask the workers to sell khadi where they produce it, or in the tehsil or at the most in the district. The A.I.S.A. will help in disposing of the surplus. There is no loss in this work at present, as we know. Today all the khadi that may be produced can easily be sold. There is no worry as regards sales but only about transport.

G. Is the khadi sold in those centres where it is produced?

J. No, not even in the neighbourhood. Today we have our bhandars in the headquarters of the district and sometimes at tehsils also. We have also agents for taking khadi from the district bhandar and distributing it in other places in the district. To those engaged in the craft we supply khadi after deducting two annas, four annas, or even eight annas in the rupee. But apart from it, most of the khadi is sold in the cities.

G. As against this, I want the worker to go to his centre and produce only as much khadi as he can make the people there wear. He must not produce for outsiders. He should not rest content with training people in khadi production alone but should impart instruction in other crafts also. The earnings from these crafts will also go to the villagers and add to their meagre resources. We shall take the unused or surplus khadi only if the villagers there tell us: ‘We are producing khadi in a larger quantity than we can ourselves consume as we want cash for our other needs. Please, therefore, buy our surplus khadi.’ It is quite possible that such villages as produce more khadi than they use will develop into centres of khadi production. But I am not thinking now of them. I have in mind only those villages where production of khadi will be carried on as a supplementary industry and so where the people will not depend for their living only on khadi but also on other industries. That is how most of the villages will have to be organized. This is decentralization in the true sense of the term.

J. Agriculture is the main occupation in the countryside. The bullock oil-press can also be run but it can provide a livelihood only to a few. It is khadi alone that can in a large measure relieve unemployment among the poor. But there is little scope for earning money through khadi produced for self-sufficiency. Should we desire to add a few pice to the coffers of the villagers, we shall have to encourage production of khadi for sale outside and we shall have to make arrangements for it. Otherwise we cannot succeed in providing relief to those underemployed villagers who have work only for part of the year.

G. The trouble is that such khadi will continue to provide occupation to a few people only without spreading everywhere.

J. Spinning, I hope, will become universal. Weaving of course will be a skilled craft carried on by a few as it is even today. The fact is that so long as there are mills khadi production cannot be carried on on a large scale. We began cloth self-sufficiency work in Surgaon. Ours was a five-year programme. Vallabhsam’s experience is that people do take to khadi but not intelligently. Once we withdraw from the centre, khadi also disappears. Unless the people grasp the place of khadi in the entire economy of the village they will not stick to it. The benefits derived from self-sufficient khadi are so little that it offers hardly any attraction.

G. That also worries me. Vallabhswami’s words resound in my ears. Party feeling developed in his village. Fasting had to be resorted to. I feel that behind it all there was a mistake in approach somewhere.
We offered inducements to the people, gave them facilities, but these do not serve our purpose. We have to discover to what length khadi, by its own inherent strength, can carry India forward. So far in our quest we have found that khadi is saleable in the cities but not in the villages. We have not yet succeeded in making it acceptable to the villagers. If we have been defeated we must confess our defeat. We should learn from our past experience and adopt new methods of work if needed. That is why I say that we should stop producing khadi for the cities. Today about a crore of rupees worth of khadi is sold in the cities. We should hereafter make it clear to the cities that we cannot any more supply them ready-made khadi but will teach them how to produce it, leaving them the option of either producing it themselves or getting it from the producer. I am not enamoured of the sales of one crore of rupees worth of khadi in the cities. We should put into khadi work not money but brain and heart. In other words we shall now have ruthlessly to investigate the value of khadi in terms of its real potentialities. In case we find it does not carry us as far as we claimed, let us give it up or lower our claim or let us take up some other basic occupation such as agriculture.

From the very beginning it has been my firm conviction that agriculture provides the only unfailing and perennial support to the people of this country. We should take it up and see how far we can go with it as basis. I would not at all mind if some of our young men serve the country by training themselves as experts in agriculture in place of khadi. I have come to realize that we have yet to overcome a lot of difficulties. The time has now come for us to pay attention to agriculture. Till now I believed that improvement in agriculture was impossible unless we had the administration of the State in our own hands. My views on this are now undergoing modification. I feel that we can bring about improvements even under the present conditions, so that the cultivator may be able to make some income for himself from the land even after paying his taxes. Jawaharlal says that any extra income to the peasant through the improvement of agriculture will be swallowed up under one pretext or the other by the alien Government. But I feel that even if it were so, it should not hinder us from acquiring and spreading as much knowledge about agriculture as possible. It may be that the Government will take away any additional income that may come to the villagers through improvements in agriculture. If they do, we can protest and teach the people to resist and make it clear to the Government that it cannot loot us in this manner. This is only by way of an illustration. I therefore hold that we must hereafter find workers who will interest themselves in agriculture.

J. From the very beginning the question of agriculture as the main problem of the peasantry was before our eyes. But we did not take it up because we thought it too difficult and also because we had to keep in view our own limitations. Besides, in agriculture the peasant is today dependent on external factors altogether beyond his control. Supposing, for instance, we taught him better methods and he succeeded in producing more, his lot would still continue to be as bad as it always was if in the mean while the prices of cotton were reduced by half, a contingency which he can do nothing to prevent. This is the terrible situation confronting him.

G. There is remedy for this also. We did not train him on the right lines. The capitalists induced him to sow commercial crops that would yield them money, so food crops became scarce.

J. This is inevitable where economics is subservient to the ruler or the capitalist.

G. The same is the condition in the field of cattle farming and dairying. The cow and the bullock are intimately tied up with agriculture. In this field also we have failed to play our part. Therefore, our workers going to the villages will hereafter have to be alert and acquire the necessary knowledge to render effective service along all such lines. God alone knows how far they would be able to accomplish all this. But I have said what I had in my mind and what I thought fit.

Khadi: Why and How, pp. 168-74

37. LETTER TO V. A. SUNDARAM

SEVAGRAM,

October 12, 1944

CHI. SUNDARAM,¹

Your letter and booklet. Come when you want to.

Love.

BAPU

From a photostat: G.N. 3179

38. LETTER TO A. N. SHARMA

SEVAGRAM,

October 12, 1944

MY DEAR SHARMA,

Are you so devoid of sense of humour? I had no evil thought about your visit to Nagpur. Indeed I thought (and rightly as it has turned out) that you had gone to render assistance to some friend. You had utilized my day of silence for that purpose. I was interested in you and so asked questions about your work. I paid you a compliment by summing up your life as of a homeless wanderer. I connected you with ‘aniketa’ of the Gita and envied you. Your home was nowhere and everywhere. How could you mistake all this for a reflection on you. It shows what a sorry thing foreign speech is. What is to be done? Must I cease to use the English idiom to my countrymen? Or are you specially touchy? Anyway I hope you understand the language of this letter.

¹The superscription is in both the Devanagari and the Tamil scripts.

Yours,
BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

39. LETTER TO HERBERT G. WOOD

SEVGRAM,

October 12, 1944

DEAR FRIEND,

I hope you remember your letter to me of 21st July, 1942. You rightly say that if your suggestion is right I would not be deterred from accepting it. As I see it, it is not right even after two years. How can a captive people help other oppressed people except by being free?

Your letter was given to me on my accidental release in the early part of this year.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

HERBERT G. WOOD, ESQ.
WOODBROOKE,
SELLY OAK, BIRMINGHAM 29

From a copy : Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy : Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

1 One without a home: XII. 19
40. LETTER TO A. V. THAKKAR

SEVAGRAM,

October 12, 1944

BAPA,

I got your letters. By all means engage one or two paid men. You will of course have to pay a handsome salary. Shatikumarbhai will take your place, and whatever services are assigned by Vaikunthbhai and Swami Anand should be accepted. This will be besides [the work of] the paid man. The latter shall not indulge in politics.

I understand about the Bank. If you wish you may deposit some more money in the Bank.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 1194

41. LETTER TO SUSHILA GANDHI

SEVAGRAM,

October 12, 1944

CHI. SUSHILA,

I have your letter. Sita did stay here, but she wants to soar high up in the sky. Most probably she will attend school in Akola. She is a fine girl. She has become quite friendly with me. I am fine. I think you can come over here only when Manilal returns there.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 4938

42. LETTER TO NIRMALA GANDHI

[SEVAGRAM, “Via” WARDHA, (C.P..)]¹

October 12, 1944

CHI. NIMU,

How did Usha fall ill? If no milk or soup is given while the fever

¹ As on the letterhead is on, it will come down sooner. That is how we here begin the treatment in all cases of fever. This applies to all, young or old.
Nobody fears fever. Sometimes, it may be necessary to give an enema.
Give as much water as she can drink. Warm water will be better. You may add salt and soda to it, also some lemon juice. If Kanam really wants to come here, send him over. Or, bring him along at Diwali time, that is, if you can come. Will not Ramdas also have holidays then?

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI RAMDAS GANDHI
TORNCO SALES DEPT.
KINGSWAY, NAGPUR, C.P.

From the Gujarati original: Mrs. Sumitra Kulkarni Papers. Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library

43. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA

October 12, 1944

CHI. KRISHNACHANDRA,

You do not want a reply to your letter, do you? Live and act as though you were just a cipher.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4448

44. DISCUSSION WITH SHRIKRISHNADAS JAJU

October 12, 1944

J. Before discussing the idea of decentralization further, I would like to place before you the present position of khadi work. It will help us in our discourse. Khadi work has been carried on along two lines:

(i) Production and sale of commercial khadi to the utmost extent.

(ii) Extending cloth self-sufficiency as much as possible. Today the A.I.S.A. is blamed for not discharging fully its responsibilities in both these respects.

G. May I interrupt? Have we carried on sufficient research in regard to the self-sufficiency programme to be able to prove that self-sufficient khadi is cheaper than mill-cloth? In case we are not able to prove it, our villagers will not take to self-sufficiency and the workers will have to face despair. Now you may proceed.
J. There will be no cause for despair if we once grasp properly the limitations under which khadi work has to be carried on, whether it is commercial khadi or self-sufficient khadi. For instance, in spite of having made great progress as regards commercial khadi, it cannot be speeded up all of a sudden, for so long as there are textile mills khadi can develop only on public goodwill. Besides, there are other difficulties. Today, for instance, we produce one crore rupees worth of khadi. Last year we discussed a scheme to increase it to five crores. This meant that ignoring all other considerations, we had to make use of whatever workers were available, irrespective of their quality in order to push through our programme. After careful calculation we reached the conclusion that even after our utmost efforts we shall not be able to produce more than one and a half times our maximum production, and that it would be quite impossible to increase production to two to four times. Besides, there are other dangers in so recklessly increasing the work. For then we shall have to recruit all sorts of workers who are neither conversant with khadi work nor observe truth and non-violence. This will not only injure the basic policy of the A.I.S.A. but also bring a bad name to it since the behaviour of the new workers may not always be becoming and clean. I am, therefore, not in favour of developing work on such lines.

So also there are limitations in regard to cloth self-sufficiency. Even if the various processes from cotton-cultivation to ginning, carding and spinning are carried out by the villagers in their own homes, weaving charges are so high that their net saving as compared with the price of mill-cloth is very little, so little that the villager is not easily inclined to put himself to all the trouble involved. Besides, mill-cloth seems more attractive to him than khadi.

Moreover the reasons underlying our self-sufficiency programme require to be explained to the villagers in a manner which will appeal to them. They must see that only through working for self-sufficiency the entire money of the village will remain in the village, that they can control the factors that make for their well-being, that idle time will be profitably utilized and that the people of the village will become industrious. In other words, self-sufficiency khadi work can begin to have permanent effect only when carried out as part and parcel of the wider programme of non-violent village uplift or village reconstruction. A programme, which aims at making a certain number of villages self-sufficient in cloth within a specific period, does not appeal to me. We can succeed only to the extent to which we learn to work intelligently and with the backing of educated public opinion. Work based on momentary sentiment or emotion does not endure.

The same is true about other village industries as well. For the present the bullock oil-press is running well in the countryside. But there are serious misgivings as to whether it will continue always to do so. The fact is that our village economic organization of which khadi, chakki and other village industries were the various main organs has collapsed. Further, on account of mill competition, village-made cloth, flour, rice, oil and everything else have become costlier. Should we desire to reinstate them in their proper place, we should have to tackle the entire village economy and build it up anew. Concentration and research on any single aspect will be of little avail. Inertia has seized our people. Progress cannot be by leaps and bounds but very gradual. The problem is very intricate indeed.

G. I would like to go even a step further. I accept all that you say. That is why for three days I opened my heart before the A.I.S.A., and raised all these issues.

Now we have to do the work anew with the objective of all-round village uplift. Let us see how far we can go. Even if our present activities have to be slackened or reduced to nought for some time on account of these changes, it does not matter. We have created some sentiment about khadi among the people. But if there is some error in what we told the people about the significance of khadi we must pause. If ours was a wrong claim we must declare our error openly and withdraw our claim.

I would ask city-dwellers to produce their own khadi. I would forgo the temptation to supply khadi to them. We shall go and settle in the villages. In case workers want to leave us on account of this change we shall let them go. Unless our head and heart are converted to this extent we cannot achieve the desired result. We of the A. I. S. A. will merely direct policy. By decentralizing our work as much as possible we shall free ourselves from day to day khadi work completely. Thereafter we shall concentrate our energy and attention on the other activities or crafts carried out in the vicinity of the village we settle in. Only then will the real substance of our work be realized. All these years I remained under the delusion that we had made good job of it in that we had put four and a half crores of rupees in the pockets of the poor. I became anxious to increase it to sixty crores, and I claimed swaraj would be in our hands if we produced sixty crores worth of khadi in a year. Had I persisted along that line, I might perhaps have succeeded. But now I realize that even if I had succeeded what was done in a year might possibly have been undone in the next. Today our main concern should be to lay the foundation for this work as deep as possible.

J. It means that the city workers should curtail their present work (which is mainly concerned with pushing up sales in the commercial way) and start selling khadi in lieu of yarn. They should also participate in the programme for the revival of other village industries.

G. Exactly. In case we do not do it we shall be betraying ourselves and the world. Today we rejoice in having sold khadi worth several thousand rupees in one day in the Kalbadevi Bhandar at Bombay.

J. If we arrange to give khadi in lieu of yarn, and the A.I.S.A. does not do it, private dealers would come forward and say that they would willingly take up the work, asking us merely to give them certificates. If we agree to it we shall have to look into their accounts, their procedure, their work, etc., and we shall get engulfed in a maze of difficulties from which it would be hard to extricate ourselves.

G. Satis Babu says that we should give them freedom in this matter.

J. He holds that the entire production and sales work should be handed over to the people, and the A.I.S.A. should keep aloof.

G. It is essential for us to consider his proposal in detail.

J. In matters of money even good men have been found to have failed in resisting the temptations of earning extra profit . . . Human nature being thus what it is, it is very dangerous to hand over khadi work to private persons.

G. I have my answer. I do not know what exactly Satis Babu’s proposal means. But in the picture before me there is no question of handing over khadi work to anybody. We shall say only this much to city-dwellers that if they want to put on khadi they cannot do so save according to the principle we have laid down. It is not merely a principle of economics but also invariably of morals and ethics. According to it everyone has to prepare his or her own khadi. If there is no weaving arrangement in the city, weavers can be domiciled in the cities, or somewhere in the neighbourhood in colonies. Weaving can be carried on there. There need be no rivalry. We shall explain to the city people that the khadi we are at present giving to them is of no use, as they are not able to know the extent of relief that the poor obtain thereby, and that therefore they should get khadi woven before their own eyes. Thus we shall change our policy. Today we ask the city people to take to khadi on the plea that it supports lakhs of people. But this compels the A. I. S. A. to resort to trade and commerce. Well, if the Sangh were to carry on commerce alone, it could easily support many people by doing so.

Hence we are not going to lend to khadi dealers the prestige of the A. I. S. A. We shall withdraw from that field of work so that the certificates will cease to have any meaning. The only limitation that we shall observe is that if there is some extra khadi left over in a village or locality after meeting the local need, and if that khadi is useful to the city people we shall permit it to be sold in the cities. But the khadi should not be produced specially for export to the cities. If this means a reduction in our work it matters little. I am sure I am not providing true work relief to the people from the way in which I am doing khadi work today. What I am doing is tempting them by the handsome wages of the A. I. S. A. This is not the way to make the work permanent. If the poor want employment we must provide it. But it must be in such a manner that they can secure earnings from their own neighbourhood instead of depending on distant cities.

J. I would like you to throw more light on this point.

G. Today we are not really able to help the villagers. By offering the spinners three, four, six or eight annas I comfort myself with the belief that I have given them a livelihood. But it amounts to nothing more than a dole, for the work that I am providing them is not of a permanent nature. In case we get control of the State in our hands and by that means close all mills, it may perhaps then be possible to provide them permanent work. But today I cannot hide from them the truth that I have been only trying to fill their idle hours. If I have to provide them with some money I shall teach them other crafts also. I shall fully acquaint them with the present economic situation and educate them in this regard. No doubt I would wish to give work to every spinner who comes seeking it. But I shall not send the khadi thus produced to Bombay. I shall ask the workers to sell it in the neighbouring villages. But this is not enough. I must investigate what work other than spinning can be provided to them in the village. Only by revising the entire economic life of the village can our work become permanent. Whether for villagers or for us, I agree, cities will always have some sort of attraction. Nevertheless we shall be free from our present day city life. We shall show how in contrast to the cities more amenities can be provided in the villages. But if we merely go on sending to Bombay the khadi produced in the village, this object can never be accomplished, however high a wage we may pay to the village spinners.

I allotted an hour every day for discussion with you because I believed that through such discussion my own thinking would be clarified. I am convinced that we shall have to introduce fundamental changes in our mode of work. If we are destined to fail we shall face it; we shall do so with full knowledge and alertness, not in our ignorance or folly. Even then If people laugh at me I shall bear it. They might say: ‘Gandhi wasted a crore of rupees. But of course no one pocketed it.’ I need your help in deciding whether what I am saying is correct. I would like to know your opinion.

J. When we send to the cities the khadi produced in the villages we provide immediate economic benefit to the villagers. But if we stop doing so what else can we give them?

G. If I had my way I would say to those whom I have been supporting through khadi so far that they should get out of this rut and take to some other work. We shall have to find other work for them, as we are doing in Sevagram where the majority of the population consists of Harijans.

J. The situation here in Sevagram is exceptional. There are so many institutions here. Guests are always coming in, new houses are under construction and various other activities are going on. All this provides work to the people.

G. Everywhere I would try to create a similar situation. We shall have to apply our mind and energy to discover new avenues of work.

J. What you say about agriculture, cattle-breeding, etc., is perfectly correct. But we should also consider how to provide permanent economic benefit to the villagers through khadi. Had mill-cloth not been there, it would have been easy. But the question is what are we to do when we have the mills.

G. I would explain to the people that they could not get khadi like mill-cloth. I would try to bring it home to them that if khadi is dearer the extra money goes to the villager, his family and to the village, and that this provides security to the economy of the village. I would explain to them the moral aspect as well. Besides, I would teach them other methods of earning in the village. I have now given up the idea that villagers can earn their living through doing khadi work alone.

J. It means that we have to set them to work by bringing home to them the moral and social value of khadi and other village industries.

G. Yes, I do not want to confine myself to khadi alone now. I am, therefore, thinking of ways and means of improving the condition of the people through a rehabilitation of agriculture, cattle-breeding and all other village industries. My problem will be solved if I succeed even in half a dozen villages, for “as is the part so is the whole”.

J. That means we shall have to develop the villages keeping their allround progress in view. We should emphasize not only the economic aspect of khadi but explain its moral and social aspect also.
G. From this point of view even Vallabhswami’s method does not appeal to me, for he emphasizes only khadi and promises to make the entire village khadi-clad within a certain period. There was a time when this idea appealed to me immensely, but now I feel that khadi alone cannot revive the villages. Village uplift is possible only when we rejuvenate village life as a whole, revive all village industries and make the entire village industrious.

Khadi: Why and How, pp. 175-81

45. NOTE TO ANAND T. HINGORANI

SEVAGRAM ASHRAM,
7 a.m., October 13, 1944

Those who will look only to God shall cease to look to persons dead or alive.

If you digest this well you will never grieve.

From a microfilm. Courtesy: National Archives of India and Anand T. Hingorani

46. LETTER TO P. T. RAJAN

SEVAGRAM,
October 13, 1944

DEAR FRIEND,

It was an act of self-denial for the students to have given out [of] their pocket money Rs. 133 to the K. B. M. Fund.

Thank you.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

SHRI P. T. RAJAN
INDIAN STUDENTS’ HOSTEL
KANDY, CEYLON

From a photostat: G.N. 797

1 As noted by the addressee
47. LETTER TO C. RAJAGOPALACHARI

October 13, 1944

MY DEAR C. R.,

Here are the insurance papers. I would like you to put them before Sir Alladi\(^1\) or whomsoever you like and secure his opinion. I think a representation should be sent to the Central Government about the fine.

Love.

BAPU

From a photostat: G.N. 2097

48. DISCUSSION WITH SHRIKRISHNADAS JAJU

October 13, 1944

J. Today I would request you to throw more light on decentralization. Narrowly viewed, there is even now decentralization in production because production centres are distributed all over the country. But of course all capital is centralized in the Head Office. I believe that the central control existing today is merely a control exercised by the A.I.S.A. in regard to policy.

Looking at the matter from the point of view of capital we must consider under whose initiative the work is to be carried on in the villages hereafter and who is to bear the profit or loss in the end. Now there are three ways of doing this.

Our worker on the spot can carry on all the work. Or, we may work through a committee of villagers interested in khadi work who may themselves raise shares, subscriptions, etc. Or as a third course the artisans of khadi can form their own societies and carry on the work as their own. If the worker remains solely in charge we shall have to hand over to him all the assets, money, property, etc. Should he then be regarded as a trustee or should some condition be imposed upon him? If the worker carries on his activities with an eye to personal profit there is every likelihood of undesirable developments. I think the best way, therefore, would be to form co-operative societies. Selfish interests may lead to some mismanagement but this fear should not deter us. We may have co-operative societies not only for khadi but also for oil-pressing, hand-paper, etc. In course of time these bodies in the various villages may, if necessary, merge into a union.

\(^{1}\) A. Krishnaswami Iyer
G. I do not have much to say on this point. Wherever we can get reliable workers work should be started. There is no harm in beginning simultaneously the three types of experiments you have enumerated. But, as we had discussed yesterday, we can get rid of many worries if we do not hold ourselves responsible for khadi sales. So long as khadi remains a saleable commodity, these worries are bound to be there. I also realize that we cannot entirely get rid of them today. But so long as we believe that khadi, like bread, must be made at home and that we should not maintain ourselves on bazar-made biscuits even if cheaper, we shall have to explain to the people that to use bazar-made goods is to court disaster. If the people grasp the idea, we shall have to devise an easy method of khadi manufacture at home. Our slogan will be ‘cloth even like bread’. All difficulties will then disappear. The co-operative bodies will then have their own shape and form which need not now be anticipated.

When you said that there was decentralization in khadi production, I was about to contradict you. Even in Lancashire some cloth is made at home, not for the use of the home but for the use of the masters. It would be outrageous to call this decentralization. So also in Japan everything is made at home; but it is not for the use of the home; it is all for the Government which has centralized the whole business. Though things are made at home, and made in a better manner than in England, yet the producers cannot keep any of it for their home consumption. The work is done at the behest of the Government which supplies ships and does everything else to carry such goods to the different markets of the world and thus draw wealth from other countries. The same is happening in Lancashire. Though millions of dhotis are made there, yet not a single one is available to any purchaser on the spot. They are exported to the country for which they are scheduled, be it India, Africa or any other. I would certainly not call this decentralization.

So also with khadi. Our artisans produce not for themselves but for the A. I. S. A. to which they give their finished material for wages paid. They were happy when we raised their wages. But this is not decentralization. What I mean by decentralization is that the artisan must produce for his own or his neighbour’s use and not for sale. When we realize that khadi is not a commodity for sale but for self-consumption only then we shall have grasped the message of khadi and understood the scope of its potentialities. We may be expected to clothe the whole country with khadi after getting political power. Should we not therefore make such an arrangement from today so that we may be able to make the country self-sufficient in clothing in case the future government of free India were to provide the requisite facilities to the A. I. S. A. and ask it, as an expert body, to do this task? But if the government of the day were to close all its mills, and to charge us with this responsibility, we are apt to fail as things are today. We should, therefore, know the extent to which khadi can take us. I myself cannot say that I know it for certain. But what I am quite clear about is that khadi should not be for sale but for self-consumption. Hence the necessity of changing the present policy of khadi work. We have before us the task of reconstructing our whole country, and in this khadi is an important item. So also there are oil-pressing and other industries. It is only if we look at the problem from the point of view of production for use rather than for sale that the country has everything to gain by Our work, and we shall be able to meet the situation squarely without withdrawing a single step when we obtain control over the reins of Government.

J. I presume what you mean is that we should direct all our efforts towards cloth self-sufficiency, i.e., towards spinning for one's own consumption.

G. Exactly so. But as I have no personal experience about it I cannot insist on it. I first introduced khadi and only later studied its implications and experimented with it. I find that I have been deceiving myself. What I gave to the people was money in the form of wages and assured them that it contained swaraj. People took me at my word and believed me, and continue to believe me. But I have now my own misgivings as to how far such khadi can lead to swaraj. I am afraid that khadi has no future if we continue it as today.

J. Do you visualize a stage in which the khadi bhandars running presently in the cities will be closed down?

G. Of course I do.

J. We shall then have to supply khadi to the people in lieu of yarn alone.

G. When we saw that we could not proceed without spinning we learnt spinning. But we did not take to weaving. However, now we feel that weavers will also have to be trained in the same manner. Whatever changes we want to introduce we must introduce intelligently and with discrimination.

I may recall what we did about living wages in spinning. We went along certain lines. Slowly it dawned upon us that khadi so produced was no philanthropy but an exploitation of spinners. We then raised the wages. I pleaded for eight annas. The rest of you insisted on three annas. I agreed to your three annas. Then you raised it to four annas. Similarly we may proceed in our new attempt. First you must accept the principle, later we shall proceed in the light of our experience. You have pointed out three possible ways of reorganizing the work on the new basis. Think over them. We have got our machinery in every province. Provincial organizers are already there. Call some of the workers and discuss the matter in detail with them. True, it will mean some curtailment of our present work. But that will not deter me. Even if nobody else spins I shall go on spinning alone. When we started khadi production I was told that khadi dhoti was impossible to produce. I replied that I would put on sack cloth or a blanket but would not wear a mill dhoti. And hardly a month passed when Maganlal produced a dhoti; Gangabehn Majmudar also sent me one and asked me to place an order for any number of them.

J. It means we shall have to stop the large-scale sale of khadi in the cities and instead ask the people to take up spinning for themselves. Consequently, at least for some time a lot of our work will come to a stop.

G. I agree that there is practical consideration behind what you say. Today people have become paupers. Therefore if you provide them with bread they will do whatever you ask them to do. But if we carry on our work thoughtlessly we shall be deceiving them as well as ourselves. The livelihood we provide them today is nothing but a sort of dole as is usually handed out during the time of famine to the people who are offered work on the roads or quarries. It does not have a lasting value.

J. Before asking khadi consumers to spin their own yarn we should consider how much we ourselves are devoted to spinning. Let me take the instance of the A.I.S.A. workers. Our rule requires every worker to spin at least 7 hanks in a month. But we have not had a satisfactory response. Further, the number of spinners among the khadi customers is quite small. Most of the spinners in the countryside spin only for wages, scarcely for their own use. This is the situation. I wonder how far the experiment you suggest can succeed under these circumstances.

G. At least this much should be clear to all that khadi is not an occupation or a craft merely for earning a livelihood. None of us should harbour this idea. For, if khadi is an industry it would have to be run purely on business lines. The difference between khadi and mill-cloth would then be that while a mill provides employment to a few thousand people in a city, khadi brings a crore of rupees to those scattered about in fifteen thousand villages. Both must then be classified as industries, and we would hardly be justified in asking anybody to put on khadi and boycott mill-cloth. Nor can such khadi claim to be the herald of swaraj. On the other hand we have claimed that the real significance of khadi is that it is a means for uplifting the villages and thereby generating in the people the spontaneous strength for swaraj. Such a claim cannot then be sustained. It will not do to continue to help the villagers by appealing to the philanthropic sentiments of city-dwellers. What is required is that the villagers should be made strong to face life’s problems and march ahead. If we encouraged mills, the nation might get sufficient cloth. And if mills are nationalized cloth prices may also come down, people may not be exploited and may earn adequate wages. But our reason for putting forward khadi is that it is the only way to redeem the people from the disease of inertia and indifference, the only way to generate in them the strength for freedom. If other crafts are also thus revitalized, our villages could be made self-sufficient and self-reliant. They would prepare their own soap from sajji clay. That soap will not have the luring fragrance of soaps turned out in the factories of Tata and Godrej. Its packing also will not be so attractive. But it will have the quality of self-sufficiency even like khadi. But this grand picture of khadi as the means of all-round uplift of the villages, which I have been putting forward for so long, is not being realized. The talks I have had with the workers have led me to believe that I must now retrace my steps. As the founder of khadi, I must not grudge doing so. That is the call of truth. I retrace my steps consciously or intelligently, and not in a mood of defeatism or of cowardice. If there was any exaggeration in my claims for khadi it is but right that I must own it publicly and rectify it.

J. Our chief claim was that khadi was a craft whereby those who were forced to remain idle for a few months in the year could have some supplementary earning.

G. No, I did not stop at that. I went further and claimed that it had the capacity to bring swaraj.

J. That is true, but you did not stress so much its life-giving capacity as you are doing today. About three lakhs of people are employed in khadi work. They cannot quickly develop the manifold virtues (other than those of self-sufficiency) that you desire. They may do so in course of time. What you want to do today is to stop khadi sales and make people spin for their own needs, do you not?

G. You are right.
J. But a closure of the sales would mean a suspension of spinning for wages.

G. Of course. But the little amount of spinning we may then have would positively be such as can yield swaraj. For basically that strength is inherent in spinning.

J. Today we are in contact with about three lakhs of people through khadi work. Requiring people to spin for self-sufficiency, we would reduce it to no more than thirty thousand.

G. These thirty thousand would later grow into three crores. Be it as it may, I at least will not be guilty of betraying the cause. Further, we shall then not have to cajole or coax the villagers and artisans to spin. What we do today is to go to the villagers with a money-bag like bankers and promise four or six annas for spinning. Instead, we would enter into the life of the villagers. The workers and the villagers would freely lay bare their hearts before each other. We would raise the wage of the (woman) spinner. I would pay her as much as to a man. But I would tell her clearly that I am not interested in her spinning merely for a wage. I would ask her to spin for herself. I would promise to get her yarn woven, her children educated and trained in one craft or another. I would enquire into her budget and promise every assistance. I would try and relieve her of her woes. Had we done this from the beginning and taken the right type of workers with us, we would have assuredly secured freedom by now. But I have no regret for the past.

J. Do you think that you can get a large number of workers of this type? If so, it is easy sailing.

G. The mistake was undoubtedly ours. We did not keep this point of view ever before us. Nor did we train workers for it. Also we were in too much hurry. Had we devoted ourselves to the task intelligently, we would have got the needed workers.

J. You have said many a time that good workers should go and settle in the villages.

G. Yes, in order that they may make khadi the emblem of non-violence. If we fail, our claim for khadi will lose all force.

J. After all we shall have to get our workers from the material that we have in our country today.

G. If that is our attitude there can be no swaraj through non-violence. In other words, people are not ready for my conception of swaraj.

I would then go my own way even if I have to work all alone. I would be happy if any of the A. I. S. A., A. I. V. I. A., Hindustani Talimi Sangh or other bodies co-operate with me. It is quite possible that people may not follow us. It would then show that we are full of violence and that the non-violence we talk about is not non-violence but cowardice.

J. That is all right. But the question is one of implementation.

G. We should then renounce the tall claim we have made. We must stick to the truth. Without hesitation, without flattering ourselves we must declare that we are weak like everybody else and that we are in no way better. It would then be clear that swaraj, if and when obtained, will not be due to any special strength of ours.

Khadi: Why and How, pp. 181-7

49. TELEGRAM TO NAGENDRA BIJOY BHATTACHARJII

SEVAGRAM,

October 14, 1944

NAGENDRABIOY BHATTACHARJII

PRESIDENT, CONGRESS

BARISAL

ASK CONGRESS OFFICIALS.

GANDHI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

50. LETTER TO SYED MAHMUD

October 14, 1944

MY DEAR MAHMUD,

I see quite clearly what you have to do. Your letter must be given to the Press with an explanation. You have to send a wire to the Government asking for permission to release the letter.

You have to make a Press statement pending publication. “I have seen Press paragraphs making baseless suggestions against me. I have asked for permission to publish my letter which was intended to be private and confidential. I ask the public to suspend judgment pending publication of my said letter. I can say this however that I have neither broken with the Congress nor Gandhi with whom I am now staying and under whose advice I am acting.’’

I suggest the following wire to the P.S.V.

“As many innuendoes have appeared in the Press about my release may I publish my letter to H. E. dated . . . I should have no objection to Government releasing same at my request.”

More when we meet. I see I cannot come to you before 4.15. I must attend to some of the work in front of me. I hope you had a restful night. Don’t worry. Everything will be well.

Love.

Yours,

BAPU

From a photostat: G.N. 5068

51. LETTER TO A. KALESWARA RAO

October 14, 1944

DEAR KALESWARA RAO,

Bapu was very glad to have your letter of the 8th inst.

He is sorry about Shri Narayanarayu’s demise. We shall have to make such sacrifices before the battle of freedom is won.

Thanks for your suggestions which have been duly taken note of by Gandhiji.

Yours sincerely,

PYARELAL

SHRI A. KALESWARA RAO
SANTIKUTIR
NANDI GRAM
KRISHNA DISTT

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library.

Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

1 Vide “Statement to the Press”, 22-10-1944.
2 Private Secretary to the Viceroy
52. LETTER TO ABDUL QAIYUM

October 14, 1944

DEAR FRIEND,

Gandhiji has your letter of the 6th instant.

In regard to your question Gandhiji desires me to say that if the party members are in favour of attending the session of the Assembly he is not going to interfere.

Yours sincerely,

PYARELAL

JANAB ABDUL QAIYUM
M. L. A. (CENTRAL)
ABIGUZAR
SRINAGAR

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

53. NOTE TO ANAND T. HINGORANI

October 14, 1944

Do you know the poem ‘Try Again’? No giving in permitted. All other trust is vain. Only trust in God. That is the lesson of Vidya’s death. Your love is on trial.

This for today.

From a microfilm. Courtesy: National Archives of India and Anand T. Hingorani

54. LETTER TO PURUSHOTTAMDAS TANDON

October 14, 1944

BHAI TANDONJI,

Is this Rashtrabhasha?1

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

From the Hindi original: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 The letter is written on a printed circular of the Hindi Sahitya Sammelan, Allahabad, issued in English.
55. DISCUSSION WITH SHRIKRISHNADAS JAJU

October 14, 1944

J. If your programme of village reconstruction as a whole is to be taken up, we must select and train efficient workers. . . .

Then there will be the question of training workers for which we would have to start vidyalayas in every province and frame syllabi for them. There is a great dearth of able teachers. Our first-grade workers have confined themselves to their particular areas—to their village, tehsil or district. . . .

I do not quite see how the new work can be accomplished unless we divert some of these workers from their field to the training centres. Who else can impart the right attitude and approach to village workers?

G. Khadi work started in the beginning from a single centre. So also now we may begin with only one training centre. We shall prepare graduates there and send them to other centres. They will produce other workers who will start yet more centres.

J. It may involve a lot of time, from five to even ten years.

G. Possibly, but I do not think so. Our first batch will consist of those who have already enough prior preparation, and so they will not take long to go out as full-fledged workers. Again, as soon as they have acquired a certain amount of efficiency we shall ask them to go out to the villages and add to their store of knowledge by dint of actual experience in the field. I do not, therefore, feel that a large amount of time will have to be spent on training. But even if it is, we should not worry. If we do not get workers of the highest quality it does not matter. We will try to obtain the finest material, but be ready to do with what we can get at present.

J. The workers we got in 1920 proved their worth. Thereafter we did not secure that high type of workers in so large a measure. Some did come indeed, and do come, but in very small numbers.

G. The fact is our method was defective and there was little in our programme to attract the better type. There seemed to be little scope for intellectual development in our work. Hence a large number of people did not feel attracted to it. Besides the remunerative attraction present in other fields was not there. But what was worse, a sort of ignorance and inertia characterized the khadi workers, which made others look down on them. People felt that khadi workers did not dress properly, looked dirty and were quite often devoid of common sense. The workers did not have adequate knowledge of the science of khadi and so did little to explain it to the people. They were often not in a position to answer the simple questions of those who wanted to know.

We did settle in the villages where we provided work to the villagers. But the intellectual among us did not, to any large extent. The few who worked did not have the attitude of an anxious and earnest devotee eager to explain his viewpoint to the people.¹ If we had we would have become such experts in our work that we would have been in a position to declare before economists, “We know all that you know. But you lack the practical knowledge that we have. This you can learn from us.”

J. True. Our knowledge is incomplete and we have very many defects. But our scale of measuring values is also different.

G. May be, but we must have the capacity to tell them that their scale is not right.

J. But how to compare moral values with material values?

G. Then you could at least place those moral values before them and prove their worth. If I come to realize today that khadi alone is not going to last I shall have to proclaim it to the world. So far as the material value of khadi goes, even Government records show that there is a place for the spinning-wheel as a means of relief, like stone-breaking, road-making, etc. You also can establish this much that khadi has an invariable place as a relief measure. But what we are required to prove above all is the need for khadi to establish a strong, non-violent village economy.

We shall see what difficulties we come across in working the programme of self-sufficiency. Commercial khadi may continue for a time, but the essential programme of the A.I.S.A. hereafter must be that of self-sufficiency, and workers should concentrate all their thought and energy on it.

Khadi: Why and How, pp. 187-9

¹ The Hindi here has; “But a sufficient number of intelligent workers did not come forward from amongst us to work in the villages and those who did so did not learn the art of explaining their viewpoint to an anxious or earnest enquirer.”
56. LETTER TO GLADYS OWEN

SEVAGRAM,
October 15, 1944

MY DEAR GLADYS,

This is just to thank you for your letter and to say you must take care of yourself.

Love.

MISS GLADYS OWEN
NUR MANZIL
LAL BAGH
LUCKNOW
U.P.

From a photostat: C. W. 11282. Courtesy: Dr. Priyamvada Mathur

57. LETTER TO AGATHA HARRISON

Sevagra me yesterday. First about Henry¹. If I had received any letter from him I would have answered immediately. But I have nothing from him. I have enquired of both Pyarelal and Kanu and no letter from him can be found. I have registered my complaint. I don’t want to ruffle him by repeating the complaint. Everybody I have met is sore at heart about his doings in U.S.A. Please give my love to Henry and Millie.²

About the developments here you know enough. I can add nothing except this that I am still trying. My trust in the God of Truth or better still in Truth which is God cannot be shaken under any conceivable circumstance. That for me is the rock of ages.

I hope Horace received my cable welcoming you, Muriel and him or any of you. I am in touch with the Metropolitan of Calcutta and now with the Bishop of Rangoon. This is only by the way to tell you of the company I keep and cultivate.

I am keeping as well as I can.

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers, Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

¹ H. S. L. Polak
² Millie Graham Polak, wife of H. S. L. Polak
58. LETTER TO MAGANLAL P. MEHTA

SEVAGRAM,
October 15, 1944

CHI. MAGAN.

All of you may come over whenever you wish. The reason for my writing is a letter from Bhai Mayashankar. He writes about his dues. I think the matter should be settled. Jyotilal writes about Champa and says that she wishes to come here. I think all these matters can soon be settled.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI MAGANLAL PRANJIVAN MEHTA, BARRISTER
82 GHODBUNDAR ROAD
ANDHERI, BOMBAY, B.B. & C.I. RLY.

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 1030. Courtesy: Manjula M. Mehta

59. LETTER TO PRABHUDAS GANDHI

SEVAGRAM,
October 15, 1944

CHI. PRABHUDAS.

I read your letter written on the Rentia Baras day and also read the one written by Chi. Amba alias Sujata. Why should we fear death when we know that wherever we are we are dancing in the jaws of death and they may close any moment to swallow us? Why should we worry about it? One day we have to leave this world, then why not today? We are also aware that death is not the end of the atman.

What Tulsiramji says is true but we should not regard it as a rigid law. In the prevailing circumstances your taking a lawyer’s help or writing yourself whatever you wish to write is certainly proper. It may also be your duty.

I was glad to read your syllabus. You should not give up [your study of] Urdu. You will progress even if you devote half an hour or 15 minutes to it every day.

Take care of your health.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Chhaganlal Gandhi Papers. Courtesy: Sabarmati Sangrahalaya

1 Wife of Ratilal P. Mehta, addressee’s eldest brother
2 Addressee’s wife
60. LETTER TO RAMDAS GANDHI

SEVAGRAM,
October 15, 1944

CHI. RAMDAS,

I have had no letter from you. I hope you are quite well and I need never be worried that I do not have a letter from you. May you be happy and remain so.

Bhai Mahmud’s reply is enclosed.

May the New Year prove happy for you!

Kanam is absorbed in his play and is bubbling over with joy.

Blessings from

BAPU

From the Gujarati original: Mrs. Sumitra Kulkarni Papers. Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library

61. NOTE TO ANAND T. HINGORANI

October 15, 1944

God’s grace descends on those who do His work. You have to do God’s work. Do you ever ply the charkha? Plying the charkha constitutes the greatest yajna. You should ply it even while weeping. Meditate over this today.

Do as Pandit Shiv Sharma has directed. He has prescribed harmless remedies.

From a microfilm of the Hindi. Courtesy: National Archives of India and Anand T. Hingorani
62. FOREWORD

SEVAGRAM,
October 16, 1944

Acharya Shriman Narayan Agrawal is one of those young men who have sacrificed a prosperous, perhaps even brilliant, career for the service of the Motherland. Moreover, he happens to be in full sympathy with the way of life for which I stand. This brochure is an attempt to interpret it in terms of modern political science. Acharya Agrawal seems to have made an earnest study of modern literature on the subject. I am sorry to have to say that I have not gone through the treatise with the attention it deserves. Nevertheless I have read enough of it to be able to say that he has not misrepresented me in any place. There is no pretence at an exhaustive presentation of the implications of the charkha economics. It claims to be a comparative study of the charkha economics based on non-violence and the industrial economics which to be paying must be based on violence, i.e., exploitation of the non-industrialized countries. Let me not anticipate the author’s argument. I commend the treatise to the careful attention of every student of the present deplorable condition of the country.

_The Gandhian Plan of Economic Development for India_

63. A FOREWORD

SEVAGRAM,
October 16, 1944

Mrs. Vijayalaxmi Pandit has asked me to pen a few words about the late Ranjit Pandit’s unfinished rendering of _Ritusanhar_. I consider myself wholly unfit to do justice to the author’s effort nor does Vijayalaxmi expect me to attempt the impossible. But the touching circumstances under which Ranjit Pandit made the effort need emphasising. It is remarkable how much India owes to political imprisonments. Lokmanya’s celebrated work on the _Gita_ would not have seen the light of day but for his imprisonment nor Jawaharlal Nehru’s world-known works. Ranjit Pandit’s _Rajtarangini_ and his labours on _Ritusanhar_ might not have been but for his imprisonments. And he was ailing in the prison. His literary labours made him forget his pain. Instead of a preface the author’s introductory notes are deeply interesting and instructive. It reveals to us Ranjit Pandit as a patriot and scholar. Having known him intimately I know what talents he had. It is a sad thought that such a son of India should have died in the prime of life. I congratulate Vijayalaxmi on giving to India and the world her husband’s last labour of love.

M. K. GANDHI

From a copy : Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

64. LETTER TO SHRIMAN NARAYAN

Silence Day, October 16, 1944

CHI. SHRIMAN,

Herewith my foreword¹ or whatever it may be called. Let me know if you want something besides this. However much I tried I could not read the whole book. It requires at least four hours; how can I spare that?

Blessings from

BAPU

[From Hindi]

Panchven Putrako Bapuke Ashirvad, p. 301

65. LETTER TO P. H. GADRE

SEVAGRAM
October 16, 1944

MY DEAR GADRE,

Incidents like what you describe will happen. You must not mind them. You have to continue to invite visitors. The Managing Committee members may be told to be careful and tactful. If you must come, you may come any Sunday. It is Divali today. For financial strain, I would like you to keep yourself in touch with Bapa.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

SHRI P. H. GADRE
NASIK

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Vide "Foreword", 16-10-1944
66. LETTER TO RAMNARAYAN PATHAK

October 16, 1944

Bhai Ramnarayan1.

I have the letter signed by you and Bhai Umashankar2. I was surprised to find that you two made a common cause. The inquiry is now on under Jajuji’s supervision. Hence I will not express any clear opinion at the moment. I will write again within three or four days.

Blessings from
BAPU

ACHARYA RAMNARAYAN PATHAK
BHARATI NIWAS
ELLISBRIDGE, AHMEDABAD

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

67. LETTER TO MANGALDAS PAKVASA

SEVAGRAM,
October 16, 1944

Bhai Mangaldas.

It was of course my fault that I misunderstood what you said. I beg your forgiveness for that. However, though my misunderstanding you two may be pardonable, whose forgiveness am I to ask for having taken interest in your story of a theft and the remarks I made on hearing the report? It has relieved me somewhat to know that Jinnah Saheb has punished me fairly well for that. But for me this punishment is not enough.

The alternating improvement and worsening in your health is not a good sign. Please do take care.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 4689. Courtesy: Mangaldas Pakvasa

1 (1887-1955); Gujarati scholar and man of letters
2 Umashankar J. Joshi, Gujarati poet and man of letters
68. LETTER TO JETHALAL G. SAMPAT

SEVAGRAM,
October 16, 1944

CHI. JETHALAL,

Jajuji has investigated the matter. He had passed on [the relevant things] for me to peruse. He also gave me the letter addressed to you which I have read. I find that no office-bearer has made any allegation against you. Bhai Dhotre never had any suspicion. And why should he? You are not asking for the return of some money that had been given away. You have only asked for the substantiation of any charges against you. There is no allegation, however. But I don’t like your rejoinder to Jajuji. It reads like a lawyer’s reply. It is not worthy of a votary of non-violence. Jajuji had asked the questions only to refresh his memory and you ought to have answered them. I want you to answer them even now.

Do you really have any khadi activity there these days? What do you do nowadays? How far have you merged yourself in the life of the people of Anantapur?

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

69. LETTER TO V. L. MEHTA

SEVAGRAM,
October 16, 1944

BHAI VAIKUNTH,

I read your letter to Pyarelal. We ought to raise a memorial to Mahadev. It is worth considering when and in what way it can be done. I for one have been thinking over it now and then. When you come here for the 4th of November please arrange things so as to have a spare day which you can spend here. We shall then talk it over.

Blessings from
BAPU

VAIKUNTH MEHTA
POST BOX 422
BOMBAY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Raghunath Shridhar Dhotre, Secretary, Gandhi Seva Sangh
70. LETTER TO VIYOGI HARI

October 16, 1944

BHAH VIYOGI HARI,

I had your telegram and today I received your letter. It is quite all right. Subsequently I came to know that this Harijan had come to you. He is a good man; sort of a labourer and a little moody. He insulted a lady and on being scolded he ran away the day before yesterday. He was given the fare and sent home. I think so long as such Harijans are willing to abide by our rules we should have a place for them. Such a situation is the consequence of the sins of Hindu society. I can however understand your difficulties. The student who arrived here must have spoken to you. I don’t recall his name.

Blessings from

BAPU

VIYOGI HARI
HARIJAN NIVAS
KINGSWAY, DELHI

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 1100

71. LETTER TO G. D. BIRLA

SEVAGRAM, October 16, 1944

BHAH GANSHYAMDAS,

I am herewith sending a booklet about Higginbottom. Professor Joshi had been here to get my signature on it. I declined to sign but agreed to write about it to some friends. You might have perhaps seen his farm. Maybe, you can help it a little if you approve of it and ask others to support it. I thought of writing to Singhania also but I shall drop the idea for the moment and be content with this one.

You must have received my letter of yesterday.

Blessings from

BAPU

Encl. Pamphlet

From the Hindi original: C.W. 8062. Courtesy: G. D. Birla

1 Sam Higginbottom, Principal, Allahabad Agricultural Institute
72. LETTER TO SOHANLAL DWIVEDI

SEVAGRAM,
October 16, 1944

Bhai Sohanlalji,

I have gone through both your letters. I had a vague impression that you liked my idea. It was this: It is a bad practice to over-price a book to secure donations. And associating a name with such a price-rise is worse. I have conveyed the same view to Ghanshyamdasji.

What shall I say about the merits and demerits of your work? I have no capacity to judge poetry. How can I speak about poems written in my own praise? Of course I can say you have put in a lot of labour and no worthy labour is ever wasted.

If you sell your work at market price we would at least know its comparative value. No special effort should be made to sponsor the sale. Many books sell on their own merit without any effort. You may realize your own expenses from the amount you have collected and, with the permission of the donors, send the balance to me for Harijan work or donate it for some altruistic work.

You can make public use of this letter.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Vide “Letter to G. D. Birla”, 8-10-1944.
2 This paragraph is from a facsimile of the Hindi in Gandhi Abhinandan Granth, p. iii.
73. NOTE TO ANAND T. HINGORANI

October 16, 1944

One can do anything when one is peaceful and happy. But the charkha is the support and solace of the unhappy and the hungry. You must not abandon it when you are in grief. I shall write to Kewalramani¹. Get me to do so in the afternoon.

From a microfilm of the Hindi. Courtesy: National Archives of India and Anand T. Hingorani

74. LETTER TO K. B. KEWALRAMANI

SEVAGRAM,
October 16, 1944

MY DEAR KEWALRAMANI,

I have your note. Vidya was a priceless girl with her thoughts always turned towards God. I miss her probably as much as you do. But Anand is simply disconsolate. I tell him, in being so he fails to be true to Vidya. Her soul is surely not at peace when she knows that her dear ones grieve over the dissolution of her perishable body, instead of copying her godliness and doing the work of God. Anand is trying to be peaceful and useful.

Yours,

From a copy. Courtesy: National Archives of India and Anand T. Hingorani

75. NOTE TO ANAND T. HINGORANI

7 a.m., October 17, 1944

You should make your time-table so as not to leave a moment free. That is the real love for the departed. Look at the Englishmen. They also love their dear ones. But they devote themselves to service all the more when they lose their dear ones.

From a microfilm. Courtesy: National Archives of India and Anand T. Hingorani

¹ Addressee’s father-in-law; vide the following item.
76. LETTER TO AMRITA LAL CHATTERJEE

SEVAGRAM,
October 17, 1944

Bhai Amritlal,

I saw your letters written to Sailen1. You should not have assumed that I would let the marriage2 take place without informing you. But you have of course given your consent for it. They wanted to marry even while I was in jail. Then I did not consent to it. But now even if I tried Abha would not agree to postpone it. They have come very close to each other. They do observe the proprieties, but their mutual affection is growing. I would like the marriage ceremony to take place in Sevagram around the 5th of November.3 I would expect your blessings for them. Do come if you can.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: C.W. 10356. Courtesy: Amrita Lal Chatterjee

77. LETTER TO AMTUSSALAAM

SEVAGRAM,
October 17, 1944

DaughterAmtul Salaam,

Received your letter. It is good. Your health is good. Well done. The more you improve your health the better will be the work you do. I can send all the money that is needed. If you send a certificate from Bhagirathji I can even send it from Ba’s fund. But in that case a certain procedure will have to be followed. Budget sanction will be required. Satis Babu may himself write about the cow, he can also advise regarding khadi. He is a trustee as well.

Blessings from
BAPU

[PS]

Akbar4 has gone to a village in Gujarat. Zohra5 will join him after having had training in nursing at the Ashram.

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 485

---

1 Addressee’s son
2 Of the addressee’s daughter Abha with Kanu Gandhi
3 The marriage took place on November 7.
4 Akbarbhai Chavda and his wife
5 ibid
78. LETTER TO ARUNCHANDRA GUPTA

October 18, 1944

DEAR FRIEND,

Your letter of October 2nd as also your letter of 27-7-1944 have been duly received by Gandhiji. Thanks for your good wishes.

What you say about Bengal is true. The matter is deeply exercising Gandhiji’s mind. But at present the scope for effective action seems to be very limited indeed. He feels the handicap and the limitation galls him. He is therefore waiting upon God to show him the way.

Yours sincerely,

PYARELAL

SHRI ARUNCHANDRA GUPTA
SECURITY PRISONER, SPECIAL RESERVE JAIL
P. O. BUNA DUAR
JALPAIGURI DIST. (BENGAL)

From a photostat: G.N. 8670

79. A LETTER

SEVAGRAM,
October 18, 1944

DEAR SISTER,

You need not transfer the money as proposed by you. Keep it with you or transfer it to the V.¹ Ashram and use it under Sastri’s guidance or his nominees.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹Vinaya
80. LETTER TO VITHTHALDAS JERAJANI

October 18, 1944

CHI. VITHTHALDAS,

I have your detailed letter. My partiality for you is well known by now. You would think carefully before starting work anywhere. You need not insist on spinning at places where it cannot be easily popularized. If people agree either to card or spin or weave or get cloth woven for their own needs, let them do so. Jajuji will send you a note explaining my views in this matter. Read it.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: S.N. 9806

81. LETTER TO INDU PAREKH

Kartak Sud 1 [October 18, 1944]1

CHI. INDU,

New Year’s blessings to you all.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

---

2 The letter has been included among those of 1944 in which year Kartak Sud 1 fell on this date.
82. LETTER TO NRIŞIHMAPRASAD K. BHATT
Kartak Sud 1, 2001 [October 18, 1944]

BHAI NANABHAI,

I am sure your son’s operation will be smooth and successful. Normally this kind of surgery does not involve any risk. You must pay me a visit before you return. Even if you have no questions to ask I have some. You may send Manubhai¹ and Vijaya² whenever you can. They may stay on as long as they like. In the mean while who will look after the work at Ambla? Blessings to Hiralal and Ponchibehn.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

83. NOTE TO ANAND T. HINGORANI

October 18, 1944

We do not know if the dead send anything to the living; but the living do. Hence we should never weep after their death.

God’s grace is gained by doing His work. This is done by serving the afflicted—in thought, word and deed.

From a microfilm of the Hindi. Courtesy: National Archives of India and Anand T. Hingorani

84. LETTER TO DAHYABHAI PATEL
Sevagram, October 19, 1944

CHI. DAHYABHAI³,

I have your letter. I feel that we cannot submit to a search. If we are permitted to go only on condition of submitting to a search, we should give up that desire. I think that you may go if they have imposed no such condition and if later they want to make a search,

¹ Manubhai and Vijaya Pancholi
² ibid
³ Son and daughter of Vallabhbhai Patel you should refuse to submit to it.
    God will protect Manibehn¹.
    I am writing this in great hurry.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI DAHYABHAI PATEL
68 MARINE DRIVE
BOMBAY

[From Gujarati]
Bapuna Patro-4: Manibehn Patelne, p. 162

85. LETTER TO B. G. KHER

SEVAGRAM,
October 19, 1944

BHAI BALASAHEB,

I wished to but could not reply to your letter by return of post. There is no need to issue a rejoinder to The Free Press [Journal]. It will be enough if you give an interview to some paper or to a Press agency. I consider your reply to the Government perfectly harmless and complete in itself. Your health will improve at the Kaivalyadham³.

Blessings from
BAPU

[PS.]
Kishorelal is keeping well.

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 2773

¹ A yoga institute of Bombay
86. LETTER TO DADUBHAI DESAI

SEVAGRAM,
October 19, 1944

BHAIDADUBHAI,

I have your letter. We should have only women workers for women’s institutions. Let them make mistakes, if they will, and learn in the process. Does not the Government tell us that we shall have swaraj when we have gained experience? Let us learn from them that women who have all along been oppressed by us must have a right to make mistakes if we want to help them become independent.

Blessings from

BAPU

DADUBHAI DESAI
NADIAD

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

87. LETTER TO DINSHAW K. MEHTA

October 19, 1944

CHI. DINSHAW,

I have your letter. I am dictating this to Kanu for fear that my handwriting may not be legible.

I enclose the name and address of the nature-cure specialist in Andhra. I shall have a list prepared of other names and addresses for you.

With regard to Kamubehn my advice is that if she says she is not able to pay, we should leave it to her. I understand that she depends on the income of her husband. It seems her father too is in reduced circumstances. I cannot say for certain. Ardeshir's must be growing up. He should become an embodiment of nature in every way.

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

1 Addressee’s son
88. NOTE TO ANAND T. HINGORANI

October 19, 1944

Consider what a poor man would do in your situation. He would labour twice as much if he lost his wife. He too is a devotee of God. The inner joy comes from doing God’s work. We should place ourselves in the position of the poor. You should look upon your deafness as a gift from God. Even a moment’s idleness should be looked upon as theft of God’s treasure. I know no other way to inner or outer happiness.

Do you follow all this? Or would you like me to write in English?

*   *   *

The best way to celebrate the date is for you to devote yourself wholly to spinning or some ashram labour of your choice and connect Ramanama with it.

*   *   *

Wholly unnecessary. You may give something for those who are in real need.

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Hindi. Courtesy: National Archives of India and Anand T. Hingorani

89. LETTER TO ANASUYA AND SHANKERLAL BANKER

SEVAGRAM,

October 20, 1944

CHI. ANASUYABEHN AND SHANKERLAL,

I have letters from both of you. May you both enjoy good health—mental and physical.

Blessings from

BAPU

From the Gujarati original: G.N. 11565

1 The following two paragraphs and the subscription are in English.

2 The addressee had asked whether he could continue the practice of distributing fruits and sweets on the 20th of every month.
90. LETTER TO S. P. PATWARDHAN

Sevagram,
October 20, 1944

Chi. Appa,

I have your letter. Let us not gloat over the pleasant nor brood over the unpleasant. It is therefore well and good that you experienced pleasure and pain simultaneously. There is no need to quit the Congress, or to give up the office that might come your way as a result of the election. Maybe, it is your dharma to cling to the office. Dharma to quit can arise if there is risk of being left behind. We must not frantically pursue an elective office so as to lose our senses. You have to decide for yourself which of the two above-mentioned dharmas holds in your case.

Blessings from

Bapu

Appa Patwardhan

Ratnapuri

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

91. NOTE TO ANAND T. HINGORANI

October 20, 1944

Today is an auspicious day for you. I had often made Vidya cry. She would weep like you and implore me to give her God’s vision. I chided her and told her to see God in the charkha and not expect to see Him merely by sitting near me. She understood it in the end.

We are machines as well as mechanics. The body is the machine and the soul the mechanic. Today you have to take machine-like work from your body and render an account to me.

Bapu

From a microfilm of the Hindi. Courtesy: National Archives of India and Anand T. Hingorani
92. LETTER TO G. C. SONDHI

SEVAGRAM,
October 21, 1944

DEAR SONDHI,

This is in reply to yours of 6th.
My blessings you have. Have they any value apart from your own effort?

Yours,

BAPU

SHRI G. C. SONDHI
LAHORE

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

93. LETTER TO SHUAIB QURESHI

SEVAGRAM,
October 21, 1944

MY DEAR SHWAIB,

Your letter in your usual style. I must await your arrival in patience. The Nawab Saheb’s telegram quite becomes him. Let us see what happens.
I hope all is well on your side.
Love.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

94. LETTER TO V. VENKATAKRISHNAIHAH

SEVAGRAM,
October 21, 1944

DEAR FRIEND,

I would like you to make your experiment in Sevagram but I lack the faith you want to inspire in me. Your intention is wholly good, your execution is defective. Nevertheless you shall come to see me, if I feel settled down. You will know when I am.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

SHRI V. VENKATAKRISHNAIAH

KHADDAR SAMSTHANAM

BEZWADA

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

95. LETTER TO GOVINDLAL

SEVAGRAM,
October 21, 1944

DEAR GOVINDLALJI,

This is in reply to your kind letter of 13th.

I never had any faith in the parliamentary programme. I have tolerated it as I tolerate many things. You know where my faith lies.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

SHRI GOVINDLALJI

15 LANDS END ROAD, MALABAR HILL

BOMBAY

From a copy: File No. 3001/H/P 297. Commissioner of Police, Bombay

96. LETTER TO ATMARAM BHATT

SEVAGRAM,
October 21, 1944

BHAI ATMARAM,

I have just heard that in the name of non-violence you have given up milk and milk-products as also medicines. I do not at all approve of this. After all am I not the sole source of these beliefs? You know that I do take milk although not cow’s or buffalo’s. Hence there is now no point in my having given up milk. We shall all give up milk when there is someone among us who will guide us towards intelligently giving up all milk as such. Understand that the same applies to medicines. You can be said to have truly given up medicines if you ate all your food regarding it as medicine. Know it to be your dharma to preserve your body which is to be utilized for public good.

Blessings from

BAPU

ATMARAM BHATT

BHAVNAGAR

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

97. LETTER TO BALVANTSINHA

October 21, 1944

By all means study Sanskrit. The effort made for learning correct pronunciation will not be wasted. Chaste pronunciation is a requisite for [learning] any language. But perhaps for Sanskrit accuracy of pronunciation is imperative. It is not at all necessary for you to study English. Assimilate the knowledge you already have and add to it.

My blessings of course are with you.

[From Hindi]

Bapuki Chhayamen, p. 358

98. NOTE TO ANAND T. HINGORANI

October 21, 1944

A man can positively see God through the object of his meditation. The charkha is the best symbol and it produces tangible results too.

Institutions like the Ashram, etc., thrive because one needs the support of others. Physical nearness is not always necessary for such support. Some find it through correspondence, some through meditation and still others through the noble words of the dead, just as we meet Tulsidas every day.

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Hindi. Courtesy: National Archives of India and Anand T. Hingorani

1 The letter was dispatched through Sarvashri Jadavji, Rasiklal and Jethalal Joshi.
99. STATEMENT TO THE PRESS

SEVAGRAM,
October 22, 1944

Congressmen should read without passion Dr. Mahmud’s letters to the Viceroy and his statement to the Press releasing those letters. The motive in writing the letters was undoubtedly pure. He did not want his release before that of his colleagues of the Working Committee and yet the Government could not, consistently with their declaration, detain Dr. Mahmud after his unequivocal dissociation from the very start with the civil resistance clause of the A. I. C. C. Resolution1 of 8th August 1942.

Where Dr. Mahmud erred was in not informing his fellow detenus of the letters. If he suppressed himself for so long he could not, without consultation and without authority from them, write to the Government what his mind was at the time the Resolution was passed. The practical question for Congressmen is whether they are to make use of Dr. Mahmud’s services or ostracize him for the ‘impropriety’ he admits having committed. I have no doubt whatsoever that they should make the best use possible of the services for which his long and unbroken connection with the Congress makes him eminently fit.

For me, in spite of his indiscretion, he remains the same dear friend he has been since the Khilafat and before. The public know my connection with the father-in-law, the late Maulana Mazharul Haque2.

The Hindu, 24-10-1944

---

1 Vide Appendix “Resolution passed by All-India Congress Committee”, 8-8-1942.
2 A nationalist leader from Bihar; one of the founders and, later, President of the Muslim League. He supported Gandhiji during the Champaran and Civil Disobedience movements.
100. HINTS FOR CONSTRUCTIVE WORKERS

Workers should definitely realize that the constructive programme is the non-violent and truthful way of winning purna swaraj. Its wholesale fulfilment is complete independence. Imagine all the forty crores of people engaged in the constructive programme which is designed to build up the nation from the very bottom upward. Can anybody dispute the proposition that it must mean complete independence in every sense of the expression, including the ousting of foreign domination? When the critics laugh at the proposition, what they mean is that forty crores of people will never co-operate in the effort to fulfil the programme. No doubt there is considerable truth in the scoff. My answer is, it is worth the attempt. Given an indomitable will on the part of a band of earnest workers, the programme is as workable as any other and more so than most. Anyway, I have no substitute for it, if it is to be based on non-violence.

Civil disobedience, mass or individual, is an aid to constructive effort and is a full substitute for armed revolt. Just as military training is necessary for armed revolt, training in constructive effort is equally necessary for civil resistance. And just as the use of arms becomes necessary only when an occasion demands it, even so is the use of civil resistance only occasional. Therefore workers will never be on the look-out for civil resistance. They will hold themselves in readiness, if the constructive effort is sought to be defeated. To take one or two illustrations, effort for communal friendship cannot be defeated, political pacts can.

But political pacts are required because of the previous lack of friendship. Similarly khadi manufacture and its use cannot be defeated if both become fairly universal. The manufacture and use are not to be brought about by imposing them upon the people, but they have to be intelligently accepted by them as some of the necessary items of the freedom movement, when it is worked from the villages as units. Pioneers even in such programmes are likely to be obstructed. They have had to go through the fire of suffering throughout the

---

1 This was sent to the Workers' Conference held in Bombay on October 28 and 29 under the presidency of N. V. Gadgil. Congressmen from Maharashtra, Gujarat and Karnataka also participated in the Conference. world. There is no swaraj without suffering. In violence truth is the greatest sufferer; in non-violence truth is ever triumphant.

If this preliminary observation has gone home to the reader he will find the constructive programme to be full of deep interest. It should prove as absorbing as politics so-called and platform oratory.

The detailed constructive programme is to be found in my pamphlet on it, and Dr. Rajendra Prasad’s which is a running commentary on it. It should be remembered that it is illustrative, not exhaustive. Local circumstances may suggest many more items not touched in the printed programme. These are beyond the scope of a treatise on an all-India programme. They are necessarily for local workers to find out and do the needful.

In these hints I have singled out some items for fuller emphasis in the light of experience gained since the publication of the programme.

The kisan or the peasant, whether as a landless labourer or a labouring proprietor, comes first. He is the son of the soil which rightly belongs or should belong to him, not to the absentee landlord or zamindar. But in the non-violent way the labourer cannot forcibly eject the absentee landlord. He has so to work as to make it impossible for the landlord to exploit him. Closest co-operation amongst the peasants is absolutely necessary. To this end, special organizing bodies or committees should be formed where there are none and those already in existence should be reformed where necessary. The kisans are for the most part illiterate. Both adults and young persons of school-going age should be educated. This applies to men as well as women. Where they are landless labourers their wages should be brought to a level that would ensure a decent living which should mean balanced food, dwelling-houses and clothing, which should satisfy health requirements.

Land laws should be examined. The peasant indebtedness offers a limitless field for research. The problem of cattle too is an integral part of agriculture in India and therefore requires the attention of workers skilled in this very intricate and somewhat baffling problem.

Closely allied to the kisan work is labour. Here labour means industrial labour and, therefore, concentrated and centralized and

1 Vide “Constructive Programme: Its Meaning and Place;” 13-12-1941.
2 ibid
much more limited in scope. Moreover, it lends itself readily to political handling: being necessarily confined to the cities it attracts workers more easily than kisan work. As part of constructive programme its primary aim is elevation of labour to its deserved status. Therefore a labour worker’s aim should be to raise the moral and intellectual height of labour and thus by sheer merit to make him or her capable not merely of bettering his or her material condition but making labour master of the means of production instead of being the slave that it is. Capital should be labour’s servant, not its master.

Labour should be able to support itself during strikes. (Labour should be taught the science of conducting a successful non-violent Labour should be made conscious of its duty from whose performance rights follow as a matter of course.

In a concrete form:
(a) Labour should have its own unions.
(b) Education, both general and scientific, of both men and women should be regularly undertaken through night-schools.
(c) Children of labourers should be educated after the Basic Education style.
(d) There should be a hospital, a creche and a maternity home attached to every centre.
(e) Labour strike.)

All the work I have mentioned could be only done through unions mentioned in (a). To my knowledge the Ahmedabad Union is the best managed union. This does not mean that it has reached my ideal. It is trying to. If all the unions worked in the same direction, the lot of labour would be infinitely better than it is today. Labour united and morally and intellectually trained would any day be superior to capital.¹

Next in importance is the student class above the age of 12. Indeed if we had enough workers of the right type, I would go so far as to say that we should work among them as soon as they begin learning as infants. For they have to be taken in hand from the school-going age. Indeed, I need not say that I have not in mind their political use. For the present the schools are largely under Government control or are influenced by them. Hence the students’ education is defective in a vital matter. They are untouched by the political condition of the country save what they learn from the newspapers or platform orators. They should have in a systematic manner their present education supplemented by Congress workers. How this can be fitted into the present system of education is a serious question. But it has to be tackled. Up to the matriculation standard cooperation of parents is necessary.

¹This sentence is from The Bombay Chronicle, 28-10-1944.

I adhere to the view often expressed by me that the student world should be aloof from the political turmoil. It would be different if there was mass civil disobedience. But at any rate for the time being that is out of the question. But they should have education in national consciousness. It is the duty of an independent State to teach its citizens to be patriotic. The education is imparted by a foreign agency. It runs contrary to the national aspirations. There should, therefore, be a body of workers whose duty it would be to undertake the big task of taking in hand the work mentioned above. In this sense it is a new field and it is of vital importance to us. We must recognize the fact that the students are not to be weaned from schools and colleges. The rapidly increasing number of entrants is proof positive of it. The best course, therefore, is to supplement their studies in an orderly manner. Deliverance lies through national effort in this direction showing marked superiority over the foreign method.

M. K. GANDHI

SEVAGRAM, October 22, 1944

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

101. LETTER TO UMIA AGRAWAL

SEVAGRAM, October 22, 1944

CHI. UMIA,

Why do you reprimand me? I wanted to give you a good husband. Have I not given you one? I can arrange for divorce if you do not like him. There are always ups and downs in life. They temper us. You will make me feel ashamed by feeling defeated like that. You will hurt the spirit of Jamnalalji and also make Jaya feel ashamed. Why are you becoming a coward? I have imagined you to be brave. May the New Year be fruitful to both of you.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar
102. LETTER TO HIRALAL SHASTRI

October 22, 1944

Bhai Hiralal Shastri,

Why should you need anyone’s blessings for your function? Even then you have mine. For people like you, however, your work itself ought to be the blessing. I have heard a lot in praise of your work. It would have been fine if you could have come. But why should anyone, immersed in his own work, waste his time going places?

Blessings from

Bapu

Banasthali (Jaipur)

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

103. NOTE TO ANAND T. HINGORANI

October 22, 1944

Hope is eternal. Devotion to it never goes in vain.

Bapu

[From Hindi]

Bapuke Ashirvad, p. VI

104. TALK WITH FRIENDS

[On or after October 22, 1944]

Friends and co-workers tried to argue with him. He had just presented to them his enlarged and revitalized programme of constructive work. Would not the great wave of emotion, which his fast would set up, disturb the “peace and tranquillity” in which many of them were settling down to work? Gandhi replied:

But that is just what I want. I do not want you or anybody else “to settle down” to anything. In the midst of this frightful triple do so because I know the joy of dying. Because I know that joy and amazing thing is that I still survive and can feel the joy of living. I can grief are the obverse and reverse of the same coin, I remain unaffected

1 According to the addressee this “was written on a picture entitled ‘Hopes’ which Vidya used to cherish so much”.

2 From the reference to the “Hints for Constructive Workers”, 22-10-1944.
by either and act as God bids me.

Must you speak through the pangs of hunger? Is there no other method?

There are many. They are for you to adopt. I must use mine, which I hold as a special gift from God to appeal to the heart and soul of the people.

a result, it would not let loose a storm with none left to control it?

That may happen. I do not want it. But I would face that risk if the upshot of living a conscious life of truth and non-violence for over half a century is that India, too, has to go through a blood-bath.

“Why should you not in that case invite the risk of chaos in pursuit of non-violence The slaughter of soldiers, civilians and truth, it is impossible to settle down to anything. One has ceaselessly to be on the march body and soul. My business is to stir up myself and my surroundings and shake us out of our complacency.

What reason had he to think that his fast would compel the people to think instead of paralysing their thinking?

While it might be presumptuous on the part of a puny individual like himself to think, he replied, that his fast would galvanize the people, it was his faith that he had not striven all those years in vain to live a life of truth and non-violence, that gave him the right to speak through his fast.

Today millions are experiencing the pangs of hunger in passive helplessness. Even a small fraction of this suffering undergone willingly and with knowledge could change the face of the situation. How can I speak to these millions, or identify myself with them, without [under]taking this fast and knowing myself what pangs of hunger mean?

He could not point to any single thing in explanation of his urge to fast, he said, but the whole situation in its totality overwhelmed him.

The friends were not satisfied. What guarantee was there that if anything happened to him as while you are there in the flesh to control it?” the friends returned to the charge.

Because I do not want anarchy or chaos. I must work for orderliness, not anarchy. But if in that attempt anarchy comes in my way, I would not be deterred by it. The world is thrilled by the reckless bravery of the Japanese. Far greater courage and bravery are expected of non-violence at this juncture if the law of the Jungle is to be replaced by the law of love.

105. STATEMENT TO THE PRESS

WARDHA,
October 23, 1944

Mr. Horniman1 thoughtfully sent the following wire to Mr. Pyarelal on the 19th:

Can you confirm or deny the Allahabad report that Gandhiji is contemplating a fast to achieve communal unity?

Pyarelal sent the following reply:

Thanks. Report without foundation.

The reply is accurate, in that I do not contemplate any fast to achieve communal unity or any particular end. Yet the reply is not complete.

Ever since my premature discharge, I have been saying to myself and some friends that yet another fast is in store for me. Of late what was vaguely felt has been taking a concrete shape, and so I have been sharing the feeling with a larger circle of friends. The report has now crept into the Press. It is as well for the public, therefore, to have a correct version of the talks I have been having with friends.

Fasting has a definite place in the scheme of satyagraha. It is the last weapon in the armoury of non-violence. It is taken by way of penance, purification, protest. If I am at fault, I must do penance. My non-violence rebels against the organized violence that surrounds me. It takes many shapes. Lying is as much violence as doing physical harm to a person. I do not here refer only to the violence of the rulers. I know this, that non-violence has to be most active in the face of what may seem to be invincible violence.

But nothing is clear, nothing is certain. What seems to me to be a call may be no call at all. I am, therefore, testing myself, discussing the pros and cons with friends, and allowing myself to be acted upon. I have never made fasting a fad.

I have never looked forward to it and yet it has often brought solace to the agonized soul, for real fasting puts the soul in tune with the Maker. It puts life into one’s prayer. All the while, I am discussing the feeling with friends. I am praying for light and guidance, without which there will be no fast. I ask for the co-operation of friends throughout the world in my search for light.

1 B. G. Horniman of The Bombay Chronicle

_The Hindu,_ 25-10-1944

106. LETTER TO MRS. HIGGINBOTTOM

October 23, 1944

DEAR SISTER,

I have your very kind letter. I have very few English-knowing girls. I would like you to be able to give me a fairly full course to village-minded Hindi-knowing girls for village maternity work. Must it take four years? I confess I am in the dark and so are my medical friends, not having worked in the villages. You won’t think in terms of America. How can the village midwife be trained in the first principles?

My loving regards to both of you.

_Yours sincerely,_

M. K. GANDHI

MRS. SAM HIGGINBOTTOM
HOME-MAKING DEPT.
ALLAHABAD AGRICULTURE INSTITUTE
ALLAHABAD

From a photostat: C.W. 10498. Courtesy: Mrs. Sam Higginbottom

107. LETTER TO MANGALDAS PAKVASA

*23 Sevagram,
October, 1944*

BHAI MANGALDAS,

I have your letter. You are needlessly alarmed. There is no question of my doing anything. However, Bapa and you may try to convince me that I have done nothing wrong. For my part, I see my error clearly enough. But I will be glad if it can be proved an illusion. May not your sensitive heart be the cause of the repeated set-backs in your health? Harden your heart.

_Blessings from_
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 4690. Courtesy: Mangaldas Pakvasa
108. LETTER TO DINSHAW K. MEHTA

SEVAGRAM,
October 23, 1944

CHI. DINSHAW,

I have your detailed letter. I expect you are going ahead with the trust-deed. Devdas is rather slow but I won’t let him forget about it.

I don’t worry about the difficulties you mention because God is there to take care of both of us. We don’t want to do anything for ourselves, do we? I am writing to Rameshwardas regarding the land and travelling facilities.

I hope you had my previous letter¹.

I am sure Ardeshirs² is making some progress day by day.

Blessings from

BAPU

[PS.]

Do you want anything to be added to the medicines for our treatment? We shall get it if it is necessary. Your Gujarati is all right.

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

109. LETTER TO MATHURADAS TRIKUMJI

SEVAGRAM,
October 23, 1944

CHI. MATHURADAS,

I gather from Dilip’s letter to Swami that your health has deteriorated once again. It says you have had influenza and so forth. What is this? Why has it happened? I want detailed information. If you cannot write, let Dilip do so. I am deeply immersed in work.

Dilip must be quiet.

Blessings from

BAPU

From the Gujarati original : Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy : Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

¹ Vide “Letter to Dinshaw Mehta”, 9-10-1944.
² Addressee’s son
110. LETTER TO PARIKSHITLAL MAJMUDAR

SEVAGRAM,
October 23, 1944

CHI. PARIKSHITLAL,

As usual with me I am not well informed about the parents and families of my co-workers. I learnt that your father was alive only on hearing that he had [recently] passed away. If I had known about it I have forgotten it. Do I have to condole with you? Some day or other we are sure to lose our near and dear ones and we too are bound to go the same way. There can be no exception to this rule. I expect, therefore, that you have resumed your work after performing the last rites.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

111. LETTER TO GANGA PATEL

SEVAGRAM,
October 23, 1944

DEAR GANGABEHN,

I came to know only through Gokulbhai’s letter that your public spirited son has passed away. I don’t think you are distraught. Are you? You have as many sons as you like. All the men and women workers are for you sons and daughters. I would therefore ask you not to go on grieving only to frighten everybody else. Life and death are and will ever be inseparable twins.

Blessings from
BAPU

GANGABEHN PATEL

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
112. LETTER TO RAMESHWARDAS BIRLA

SEVAGRAM,
October 23, 1944

BHAIRAMESHWARDAS,

Is the land belonging to the Godrej Farm available? How does Jivanlalji help? Dinshaw’s search is going on. These days it is difficult to obtain a vehicle for travelling. Can you do anything about it?

It has been proposed that the Birla House at Sevagram be used for the Maternity Home. Is there any difficulty about it?

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

113. NOTE TO ANAND T. HINGORANI

October 23, 1944

There is no harm in sitting near me but on such occasions do ply the takli as Mahadev and Kripalani used to do. Then you will not be stealing from God’s time. The takli is our silent companion. Without making any noise it keeps turning out yarn which the world needs. While plying the takli we can see and hear everything. I would go so far as to believe that with God’s grace, being absorbed in this sacrificial activity even your hearing may be restored to you. But if you become such a karmayogi, you would hardly care for your ears. The guru in the form of a monkey shuts his ears deliberately since the surrounding noise comes in his way.

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Hindi. Courtesy: National Archives of India and Anand T. Hingorani

1 One who performs action without attachment
2 The reference is to the Chinese figurine of three monkeys.
114. LETTER TO C. RAJAGOPALACHARI

SEVAGRAM, “VIA” WARDHA,
October 24, 1944

DEAR RAJAJI,

Herewith is a letter from Shri Joseph Victoria, a leper. Can you do anything for this unfortunate?

Yours sincerely,

SHRI C. RAJAGOPALACHARIAR
48 BAZLUllAH ROAD
MADRAS

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

115. LETTER TO JAMILUDDIN AHMED

SEVAGRAM,
October 24, 1944

BROTHER JAMIL SAHEB,

Your letter dated October 7, 1944. The book which Quaid-e-Azam gave me contains better arguments than your writings. It produced no effect on me. What to do? How will you be able to do what Quaid-e-Azam could not do? Who does not know his influence over the Mussalmans?

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

The Hindu, 13-11-1944

116. NOTE TO ANAND T. HINGORANI

October 24, 1944

The secret of my peace and sense of humour lies in my unflinching faith in God, that is, Truth. I know that by myself I can do

1 The Urdu original is not available.
2 Convener of the Committee of Writers of the All-India Muslim League nothing. How can I be unhappy when God dwelling within me impels my every act? I know too that whatever He makes me do, is ultimately for my own good. I should be happy in this awareness. If God has taken away Ba, it is for her good as well as mine. Hence Ba’s loss should not cause me grief.

And so also you should consider it a sin to grieve over Vidya’s death.

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Hindi. Courtesy: National Archives of India and Anand T. Hingorani

117. LETTER TO T. B. SAPRU

October 25, 1944

DEAR SIR TEJ,

The Press cuttings on the breakdown of the talks between Quaid-e-Azam Jinnah and me show that for the most part the criticism is unhelpful and in some cases even regrettable. In the circumstances if a representative conference is held it might prove profitable. Anyway it can do no harm. No one is better able than your good self to take the lead in this matter. This conference should confine itself to an examination of the Pakistan issue in the light of the 1 This was sent through Dr. Beni Prasad.

2 Which were held from September 9 to September 27, 1944
3 In his letter dated October 14,1944, the addressee had written: “Mrs. Pandit conveyed to me your message about the possibility of my calling a conference. I have for a long time been thinking over it and I have come to the conclusion that not only have I no locus standi to call such a conference but that such a conference will not do any good. In the first place I doubt very much whether Mr. Jinnah or the Hindu Sabha men will make any response as they can very easily dispose of me by saying that I have got no goods to deliver and I have got no party behind me. Secondly—and this is more important—I fear that in a conference like this where people will be actuated by party feeling and will be afraid of criticism from their own following if they take an independent line, no solid results can be achieved and indeed what I fear is that our differences will come to the surface. It is for this reason that I think that if you and Mr. Jinnah can appoint such a committee and that committee can submit a report, it may pave the way for a larger conference at that stage. I am, therefore, definitely of the opinion that a conference should not be called at this stage.
correspondence mentioned above.\textsuperscript{1}

\textit{Yours sincerely,}

M. K. \textsc{Gandhi}

\textsc{Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru}
19 \textit{Albert Road}
\textsc{Allahabad}

\textit{Gandhi-Sapru Papers. Courtesy: National Library, Calcutta. Also G.N. 7574}

\textbf{118. Letter to Raojibhai M. Patel}

\textit{Sevagram,}
\textit{October 25, 1944}

\textsc{Chi. Raojibhai,}

I have your letter. About sadhana do as I have suggested. Valjibhai\textsuperscript{2} is here and he also says that he has checked up everything with \textit{Indian Opinion}. My information therefore must be correct. You will however not be able to render me any personal service. Besides the sword of a fast is hanging over my head. I cannot say when the Ashram will go to pieces. Hence, I think it is best for you to continue to work among the Baraiyas\textsuperscript{3}. I am convinced about what you say regarding education. They should therefore have the training that is offered at present.

\textit{Blessings from}

\textsc{Bapu}

\textsc{Raojibhai M. Patel}
\textsc{Nadiad}

\textit{From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal}

\textbf{119. Note to Anand T. Hingorani}

\textit{October 25, 1944}

Be engaged in more physical work. By all means carry on your studies and teaching but work a lot on the takli and charkha. Clean the vegetables. Participate in the work of the Ashram and see God in whatever you do, since God is omnipresent.

\textit{Bapu}

\textit{From a microfilm of the Hindi. Courtesy: National Archives of India and Anand T. Hingorani}

\textsuperscript{1} In his reply dated October 29, 1944, the addressee assured Gandhiji that he would try his utmost to promote the latter’s desire in this matter.

\textsuperscript{2} Valjibhai G. Desai

\textsuperscript{3} A community in Gujarat
120. NOTE TO ANAND T. HINGORANI

October 26, 1944

From yesterday’s experience learn the lesson that you are not to go anywhere alone. Take someone along with you—maybe a boy or, say, a girl. And keep yourself absorbed in a lot of physical work. Weeping is no good. Be cheerful like Nandini².

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Hindi. Courtesy: National Archives of India and Anand T. Hingorani

121. TALK WITH MRIDULA SARABHAI

SEVAGRAM,
October 26, 1944

The unbearable forces of injustice, exploitation and falsehood prevailing in this country and the world stifle me. Government subsists on falsehood, but amongst us the number of people, who subsist on this falsehood and who have made injustice and exploitation the principles of their lives, is not small. In the presence of this, good elements of life are entirely suppressed and appear helpless. There is nothing left like moral public opinion.

On the one hand, there is a combination of violence effected on an unprecedented scale while, on the other, I have laid a claim that non-violence has strength enough to oppose any amount of well-organized and banded violence, and how to achieve it is the question. There are too good elements in India and the world, but how to awaken them? How can it be done? Fast is the last resort of satyagraha. When people cannot be made to do anything it is the right of a lone satyagrahi to resort to this final measure. If my fast comes about it is possible that it will be the complaining voice of the exploited humanity before the world.

¹ The addressee had broken down while taking a walk alone.
² Daughter of Mohanlal Nayyar
³ The report in Gujarati was released to the Press by Mridula Sarabhai but subsequently she withdrew it on being informed that Gandhiji intended to issue a statement on the subject, which however is not available. While sending this translation to the Home Department, the Deputy Director of the Intelligence Bureau inter alia wrote: “These notes are of interest as they furnish some indications of the working of Gandhi’s mind.”
Those who can foresee the possibility of mass movement, against the prevailing falsehood, they are at liberty to do it. But the individual or the individuals who do it must shoulder its complete responsibility. I cannot give my blessings to it. Today, the circumstances are not favourable for it. Besides, the public is full of resentment, and therefore the mass satyagraha would result in violence. Our little violence will be met by hundredfold violence by Government. We should not expect merciful treatment from them.

This does not mean that we should be a mute spectator of it, or that we should continue to suffer it. Those who consider the present condition as oppressive, and find the laws encouraging injustice and exploitation and depriving of one’s liberty, they can definitely resort to satyagraha. Only that it should be done individually and it should not be devoid of politeness. It can only be done with absolute non-violence. There are good many forces contained in it. If a crore of people were to do individual satyagraha it would baffle Government. Then Government would either be helpless or resort to use of guns. You cannot sit silent after saying that individual satyagraha can be offered. It is one’s duty to do it. If the public has any stamina, it can oppose thus the looting going on under its nose. Leaving aside the question of a crore of people, if all (local) people do so at one place, it is enough.

If individual satyagraha is not approved, the prevailing falsehood of the present day should be opposed in any other way. Today our own people are depriving the public of their food grains. If they do not do it, people will not starve. The cultivator, who produces food, does not get it to eat in spite of its being there. We have no political power, otherwise its remedy would have been found. This condition is terrible. I cannot tolerate our people behaving thus, and collecting vast fortunes at the cost of people’s starvation. If we can rid our people of falsehood and roguery, Government’s falsehood cannot work. Let us remove the corruption prevailing everywhere. It is already there in the Government, but it has increased to a very great extent among those middlemen who live on brokerage. If these people improve by themselves, others would do so. Today the chain of violence is made up thus. Against this we have to work non-violently. Fast is the last weapon of non-violence.

Corruption—It is both in the Government and other quarters. If non-Governmental corruption stops, the Government corruption cannot go on. Non-violence has to bring about the union of good elements. Violence brings about unity among wicked elements. This is the first exhibition of violence.

The second is untouchability. Hindu religion must understand that it is a sin. If untouchability endures, Hindu religion will not survive. If the former is removed, the latter is safe. In the removal of untouchability and in trying to live as brethren Government cannot interfere.

The third exhibition is communal bitterness. Political settlement may be effected or not. As long as the present Government remains, it will not be possible; it would not be allowed. But we can develop good relations between us. We should not give any cause of complaint with regard to matters which are in our hands. The conduct of Congressmen in Allahabad Municipality has grieved me much. In short, we should develop good relations amongst us in the removal of untouchability and securing communal unity. Government cannot interfere in such attempts.

Refer to the supplementary note to the previous suggestions on the constructive programme and ponder over them. The meaning of your turning to me every moment for small things is that you do not want to use your intelligence. Everyone should be his leader. No harm if you commit a mistake. I shall point it out. You mend it and it should be considered as atonement. By making mistakes we shall find the real path. This does not mean that I would not guide you. As long as I can do so, I shall continue to do it.

When Gandhiji was requested to take the public into confidence with regard to all that is troubling his mind and to postpone his fast until then, he said:

I am neither in a hurry for the fast nor have a desire for it, but I think I will have to undertake it. I neither know the time nor the duration of the fast. I am trying to check that idea. How could I be a mute witness of the terrible looting and falsehood going on in India and the world? Then, what should I do? Should I start mass satyagraha? Or a revolution? That is possible. I can bring it about. But I do not want to do it. Non-violence cannot remain in it. I will not take that risk. There is no atmosphere for it. I can foresee it. Therefore the satyagrahi has only one weapon left and it is the fast. If I can move my forces thereby, I would do so. But nothing is certain yet. No decision has been taken on this fast question. Every time the public knew it after the decision was taken. This time I have been putting it before my companions for discussion and consideration, and now this has been declared to the whole country. If they and the public desire, they might contribute towards its prevention by lessening its causes.

From File No. 51/4/44. Courtesy: National Archives of India

122. DISCUSSION WITH REPRESENTATIVES OF HINDUSTANI TALIMI SANGH

SEVAGRAM, [Before October 27, 1944]¹

The first question that arose was one bearing on the suggestion that the word ‘basic education’ might be incorporated in the Trust-Deed, so as to make it clear to all concerned that the education contemplated under the Fund² would be only of the basic type. Gandhiji did not approve of it. He did not wish to put any restraint upon the trustees. If any unit did not want to adopt basic education, he would leave it free to follow any other system approved by the Board.

But the Talimi Sangh should have the confidence that no one will be able to find a better system than theirs.

Basic education would forge ahead through its intrinsic merit. He knew that the reform would not come by mere argumentation. It would come by ocular demonstration. If they could carry their experiment to a successful end even in one village, the battle would be half won. He was, therefore, content to go slow. It was enough that the trustees had agreed to the money being spent for the education and welfare of women and children in the villages exclusively.

Your work is going chiefly to be among women. I have always had a passion to serve womankind. Ever since my arrival in India, the women have recognized in me their friend and servant. They have come to look upon me as one of themselves. I hold radical views about the emancipation of women from their fetters which they mistake for adornment. If God wills it, I hope one day to place some of my conclusions before the public when my researches are completed. My experience has confirmed me in the view that real advancement of women can come only by and through their own efforts. I am, therefore, anxious that as many women workers as possible should be inspired to carry out the Talimi Sangh activities under the Trust.

The second suggestion put forth by the Talimi Sangh was that the age of the ¹ The report, date-lined “Wardha, October 27, 1944”, mentions this discussion as having taken place “recently”.

² Kasturba Gandhi National Memorial Fund
boys to be covered by the scheme should be raised from 7 to 12.

Mahatma Gandhi explained why he had agreed to the reduction of the age limit for boys from 12 to 7 years. It had been brought to his notice that, if there were equal facilities for the education of boys and girls, the mothers would send the boys to school but not the girls, as they would be loath to spare them from domestic work. The result would be that the boys would get a disproportionate share of the benefit and keep out the girls. But if in any place a sufficient number of girls was not forthcoming, they could take in boys above the age of seven, on condition that they would have to make room for the girls as soon as the latter came up and that their education was paid for. The object was not to shut out boys above seven, but to prevent them from being a burden upon the Memorial Fund. The Talimi Sangh should not fall back upon the Fund designed for women. All that he was concerned about was that the money of the Kasturba Fund should not be diverted to the use of boys over seven at the expense of girls.

“Is it desirable that there should be basic schools for girls exclusively if there was not enough room for both?” somebody asked. Mahatma Gandhi said he had no objection.

Supposing crores of boys come to us for education, are we to refuse them for lack of accommodation? I tell you I won’t. I will let them sit under the shade of a tree, if necessary, put bamboo taklis into their hands and begin to educate them straightway through these.

As to adult education, Gandhiji observed that it had become clear to him that the scope of basic education had to be extended. It should include the education of everybody at every stage of life.¹

A basic school teacher must consider himself a universal teacher. As soon as he comes in contact with anybody, man or woman, young or old, he should say to himself: ‘Now, what can I give to this person?’

Won’t that be supererogation on his part?

No. Supposing I come across an old man who is dirty and ignorant. His village is his universe. It would be my job to teach him cleanliness, to remove his ignorance and widen his mental horizon. I need not tell him that I am to be his teacher. I will try to establish a living contact with his mind and win his confidence. He may reject my advances. I won’t accept defeat, but continue my effort till I succeed in making friends with him. Once that is achieved, the rest must follow.

¹ Earlier, talking to a friend, Gandhiji had said he had been thinking hard during his detention over the possibilities of the new education. His mind had become restive. He said: “We must not rest content with our present achievements, we must penetrate the homes of the children, we must educate their parents; basic education must become literally education for life.”

Again, I must have my eye on the children right from their birth. I will go a step further and say that the work of the educationist begins even before that. For instance, if a woman becomes pregnant, Ashadevi will go to her and tell her: ‘I am a mother as you will be. I can tell you from my experience what you should do to ensure the health of your unborn baby and your own.’ She will tell the husband what his duty towards his wife is and about his share in the care of their expected baby. Thus the basic school teacher will cover the entire span of life. Naturally, his activity will cover adult education.

Some work for adult education is being done in many places. It is mostly concentrated among mill-hands and the like in big cities. No one has really touched the village. Mere three Rs and lectures on politics won’t satisfy me. Adult education of my conception must make men and women better citizens all round. To work out the syllabus and to organize the work of adult education is a more difficult task than preparation of the seven years’ course for children. The common central feature of both will be the imparting of education through village crafts. Agriculture will play an important part in adult education under the basic scheme. Literary instruction must be there. Much information will be given orally. There will be books more for the teachers than the taught. We must teach the majority how to behave towards the minority and vice versa. The right type of adult education should teach good neighbourliness and cut at the very root of untouchability and communal problem.

The particular industry which is to serve as the medium of instruction will be determined by local conditions in each place. For instance, people in a village might tell you that they are interested in agriculture, but they are not interested in the spinning-wheel. In that case, you will choose the former as the medium of instruction. You could make a beginning by taking a census of its cattle. For instance, I find that almost everyone in Sevagram has a bullock and a bullock-cart. It seems wasteful. The villagers should be taught co-operation. Again, we must inculcate in them the right principles of relationship between men and women. Men get almost double the women’s wages for identical work. Sometimes men sit lazily at home and smoke while the women toil the whole day. People should be made to realize that this is doubly wrong and ought to go. If you agree with me that the scope of basic education should be extended, you might have to change your constitution.

_The Hindu, 29-10-1944_

123. NOTE TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

October 27, 1944

I don’t consider anybody to be worthless. Everybody has done his best and I am satisfied. However, my yardstick is rather long and neither you nor I have come up to it. I am firm in what I said yesterday. You should make the kitchen an ideal one. Kanchan¹ may be asked to join in that work only if she is sincerely willing to co-operate, otherwise she will be dispirited. If you get her co-operation, you two, otherwise you alone with the help of anybody whom you select, should go on working silently. Consult me whenever necessary. Everybody must be assigned his or her share of the work, and I should be informed about the arrangement. Only those who can become one with the life in this village may stay here, others should leave and go where they like. I will help them in that. Let us be truthful and non-violent inwardly as well as outwardly.

_BAPU_

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 5806. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

124. LETTER TO SHANTIKUMAR N. MORARJEE

October 27, 1944

_CHI. SHANTIKUMAR._

I see several difficulties in the way of putting off Abha’s wedding till December.² If a fast is ordained for me, it is best that the wedding should be over before that time. I can understand the love of you both and of Grandmother. But I am sure all of you will be able to understand the difficulty I have explained. If Abha’s father does not attend or if, even though present, he does not insist on giving away the bride, Sumati and you may certainly do so. But since you have become so intimate [as to wish to do that], please remember that you will have to follow the simplicity of Abha and Kanu, otherwise they also will lose it. Is it not our wish that this inter-caste and inter-provincial marriage should prove to be ideal in every respect?

¹ Addressee’s wife

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 4803. Courtesy: Shantikumar N. Morarjee

125. LETTER TO AMRITLAL V. THAKKAR

SEVAGRAM,

October 27, 1944

BAPA,

I have your letter regarding big cities. The question is not how many will stay at the main centre. The question is about utilizing them within and for the sake of the villages. We shall therefore thrash it out at the meeting on the 4th. Please have patience till then.

BAPU

THAKKAR BAPA

DELHI

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

126. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA

SEVAGRAM,

October 27, 1944

CHI. KRISHNACHANDRA,

You must have understood what I said about sadhana. Think deeply over what I said yesterday. This is what I say: unsteadiness of mind implies impurity of thought, it cannot be regarded as brahmacarya. This is quite usual in youth, but he who aspires to be a brahmachari will grow steadier day by day. Discuss this matter with Balkoba’ or reach a conclusion by looking within yourself. According to Munnalal’s list for yesterday perhaps both of you would like to go to the rural areas of the U. P. You will have my blessings if you take 1 Finally, the ceremony of giving away the bride was performed by the addressee and his wife, while Ravishankar Maharaj officiated as priest.

2 Balkrishna Bhave

THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
such a decision. If you decide to stay here then this decision as to the sort of service you prefer should be made after thoughtful consideration. Take a decision, whatever it may be.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4449

127. LETTER TO BALVANTSINHA

October 27, 1944

CHL. BALVANTSINHA,

I have your letter. It shows your inadequate understanding. I have spoiled nothing by setting up here the Khadi Vidyalaya, etc. The organizations initially started by me had to work in close association with me. If the people engaged in them could not live together as a family, then whose fault is it? Mine? Maybe, the fault is his who sees it. The Sabarmati S[atyagraha] A[shram] was remodelled after thoughtful consideration. It is my belief that we have lost nothing by being truthful. Again, after today’s heart-searching we have lost nothing. We were in a slumber but now we are awake.

It is clear from what happened yesterday that it would not be right for us to continue as we have been doing. Those who can be of greater service outside should certainly go. What benefit can one derive from being near to me if one fails to understand my actions and the changes I make? No doubt a fire bucket is a very useful thing but how can one become like a fire bucket just by using it as an illustration? If you wish to be like a fire bucket then be quiet, be humble and be a sort of comfort for all, and do it after proper deliberation. Continue the study of Sanskrit. Your first task is to correct the wrong notions you have expressed in your letter. Consult Kishorelal. Ask for time if you wish to have a discussion with me.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 1947
128. LETTER TO D. D. SATHYE

SEVAGRAM,

October 27, 1944

Bhai Sathye,

I have carefully gone through your articles on village reconstruction. I find that they show lack of experience. I don’t find in this work the attention to detail that is evident in the book on eyes. Yet the work of rural uplift calls for much greater perseverance and thoroughness than is required for the care of the eyes.

Yours,

M. K. Gandhi

D. D. Sathye
39 Peddar Road
Cumballa Hill
Bombay

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

129. NOTE TO ANAND T. HINGORANI

October 27, 1944

I have come to the conclusion that in your present state you had better stay here and try to come out of your shell. You will do justice to Vidya when you forget her and in so doing your true love for her will reveal itself. Your ears are connected with your mind. Maybe, if you devote all your time to service your ears will open up. Take interest in all the activities of the Ashram and mix with everybody.

Bapu

[PS.]

Get acquainted with Amin.

From a microfilm of the Hindi. Courtesy: National Archives of India and Anand T. Hingorani
130. LETTER TO SHANTIKUMAR N. MORARJEE

SEVAGRAM,
October 28, 1944

CHI. SHANTIKUMAR,

You must have received my wire¹. Bhai Amrita Lal, his daughter and his younger son have arrived. The whole family is pleased. Amrita Lal is perfectly willing that you should give away the bride. This simplifies everything. I will accommodate you, Jehangirji² and any other people whom you may bring along in this very place. Grandmother should not be put to any trouble. Get her operated upon. Her blessings will be enough.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 4804. Courtesy: Shantikumar N. Morarjee

131. LETTER TO GOKULBHAI BHATT

SEVAGRAM,
October 28, 1944

I read your letter to Kishorelal. I don’t remember having invited you in my letter. I might have asked you to come whenever you chose. I might have also written that you should yourself decide matters concerning your State. How can I make categorical statements about things which I have not seen with my own eyes? However, you may come now if you choose and if your coming is necessary.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹This is not available.
²Jehangir Patel
132. LETTER TO MRIDULA SARABHAI

October 28, 1944

CHI. MIRDU,

I am not sending those letters to you. I see that they cannot be published. More when you come.

Blessings from

BAPU

[MRIDULA] SARABHAI
BOMBAY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

133. LETTER TO VIJAYALAKSHMI PANDIT

October 28, 1944

CHI. SARUP,

I got your letter. I again went through my article. Personally I was satisfied with it. But if you send me a sample I shall know what you want. This is what I had asked Jawaharlal to do. You might have heard about it.

Blessings from

BAPU

2 MUKHERJI ROAD
ALLAHABAD

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

134. NOTE TO SWAMI ANANDANAND

[Before October 29, 1944]

The tussle you had with Thakkar Bapa concerning the official work of the Kasturba Smarak Nidhi involved a matter of principle. There was nothing personal about it.

As a public worker and colleague, your attitude cannot be called

1 Presumably written before the item that follows.
2 Amritlal V. Thakkar
objectionable. Your protest was within the limits of discipline and was expressed in private.

Bapa levelled charges against you out of desperation. You had and still have a right to ask from him a fair deal. If you do ask for it, I shall grant it to you.

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

135. LETTER TO SWAMI ANANDANAND

Sunday, 9.15 p.m. [On or before October 29, 1944]

BHA I SWA MI,

I have not forgotten my promise to you. I have been able to draft the letter only today. I have not talked to Bapa, because my letter as usual, should have your approval. If you do not like this draft, you may make one yourself which I can then place before Bapa. If he refuses to sign it, I am willing to look into your complaint.

Blessings from
BAPU

[Draft]

Bapu tells me that you insist on an open enquiry concerning my attitude towards you, or a letter of apology from me. I know that I am quick-tempered. I have no complaints about your work. but I hold that even though you are my co-secretary, you are still under my control. Such being my position, whenever you have opposed me, I have become impatient and lost my temper. I know I ought not to lose my temper. But I am an ordinary human being. You should forgive me. I hope you will. You are free to publish this letter of apology whenever you wish.

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

1 From the contents it appears that the letter was written before the addressee resigned from the Joint-Secretaryship of the Kasturba Memorial Trust on November 3, 1944; vide “A Resolution”, 3-11-1944.
136. STATEMENT ON PROPOSED FAST

October 29, 1944

My heart is heavily grieved by the injustice, exploitation and falsehood prevailing and increasing, day by day, in the world. The best remedy for it is to awaken the good elements in the whole world. Collective civil disobedience is the way for it, but it is not possible today. It is very likely that such collective activity will result in violence. If we are able to avoid unofficial falsehood and injustice, Government falsehood and injustice will be no more. I feel I must do penance by fasting.

I am asked not to go on fast. I do not know when and for what duration it will come but let me say that the way to avoid the fast is in the people’s hands. I desire destruction of exploitation, injustice and falsehood. If they are destroyed my fast will be unnecessary.

As a satyagrahi I cannot be a silent spectator of all these things. Revolution or collective civil disobedience is not possible and hence I must move on my wheels of non-violence through the fast.

I have expressed my views to someone today. I express them to the whole country. People can give their contribution in the work which I intend to do.

I cannot see people starve. Their rights are snatch by others. Nobody must do this. We must avoid falsehood and badmashi. We can improve those working as middlemen and thus lessen the burden upon the people. Activities of exploitation are in full swing and have become unbearable. Government stands firm and is maintaining its position on falsehood. But injustice and the policy of exploitation among the people too cannot be ignored.

The Bombay Chronicle, 30-10-1944

---

¹ According to the source this is the purport of what Gandhiji said during his discussions with different individuals.

² For a statement issued from Sevagram regarding Gandhiji’s contemplated fast, vide Appendix “A Statement”, 29-10-1944.
137. LETTER TO RAMLAL VARMA

SEVAGRAM, “VIA” WARDHA,
October 29, 1944

DEAR FRIEND,

Your letter of the 25th July has been lying in Gandhiji’s file all this time. He is very sorry he could not reply to it earlier. He wanted to send you a helpful reply. I am now to say that he is very sorry he does not know what help he can render in the matter.

Yours sincerely,

SHRI RAMLAL VARMA
DAILY “TEJ”
SHRADHANAND BAZAR
DELHI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

138. LETTER TO BALKRISHNA BHAVE

October 29, 1944

CHI. BALKRISHNA,

It is raining today. Detain [him]. Shriram1 may come any day after the 10th, excepting Monday.

Rameshwandas may accept the agency for ghee, on condition that there will not be the slightest adulteration and that the ghee is not sold as ghee from cow and buffalos’ milk and is not used for adulteration of such ghee.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 213

1 Son of Rameshwandas Poddar.
139. NOTE TO ANAND T. HINGORANI

October 29, 1944

I have read your letter. Yes, you can take out what you want from my writings. This work is good but you must do a lot of physical work. It is very harmful to keep thinking of Vidya and go on weeping. That remembrance is good which elevates the atman and awakens it. The nature of atman is sat (truth) chit (awareness from heart, duly experienced) and ananda (bliss). The test of both lies in bliss—the inner bliss which finds outward expression. If you do not get peace here it would be better to go to Andhradesha early. I believe there you will get satsanga and treatment as well. If you do not, leave the place.

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Hindi. Courtesy: National Archives of India and Anand T. Hingorani

140. INTERVIEW TO N. G. RANGA

October 29, 1944

PROF. RANGA, You say that the earth rightly belongs or should belong to the peasant. By this, do you mean only that the peasant ought to gain control over the land he cultivates or that he should also gain effective voice and power in the society and over the State in which he is obliged to live? If the kisans are to have only land and not effective political power, their position will be just as bad as in Soviet Russia where political power has been monopolized by the proletarian dictatorship while peasants were first allowed to gain some holdings and later were deprived of those

1 The report of this and the other interview with N. G. Ranga on November 28, 1944, was released to the Press by Pyarelal with the following note: “Soon after his release from prison Prof. Ranga saw Gandhiji at Sevagram. He had two interviews with him on 29th October, 1944 and 28th November, 1944. It was understood on both sides that the interviews were not for publication. As, however, parts of those interviews have already appeared in the Press, I am, under Gandhiji’s instructions, releasing to the Press my full notes of the talks.” At the first interview Prof. Ranga presented Gandhiji with a lengthy written questionnaire.

2 For Gandhiji’s statements quoted by N. G. Ranga, vide “Hints for Constructive Workers”, 22-10-1944.
holdings in the name of collectivization of land.

GANDHJI: I do not know what has happened in Soviet Russia. But I have no doubt that if we have democratic swaraj, as it must be if freedom is won through non-violence, the kisan must hold power in all its phases including political power.

Am I right in interpreting your statement that land should not belong “to the absentee landlord or zamindar” and that ultimately the zamindari system has to be abolished, of course through non-violent means?

Yes. But you should remember that I visualize a system of trusteeship regulated by the State. In other words I do not want to antagonize the zamindars (and for that matter any class) without cause.

When you say that a peasant “has so to work as to make it impossible for the landlord to exploit him” does it include, apart from the satyagrahic campaigns and the legislative and administrative reforms, that the peasants may oblige the State through the exercise of their franchise and political influence to improve their individual and collective conditions and minimize the powers of the landlords?

Civil disobedience and non-co-operation are designed for use when people, i.e., the tillers of the soil, have no political power. But immediately they have political power, naturally their grievances, whatever their character, will be ameliorated through legislative channels.

‘But he might not have all that political power’, you will perhaps say. My reply is that if swaraj is attained by the effort of the whole people, as it must be under non-violence, the kisans must come into their own and have the uppermost voice. But if it is not so and there is a sort of a workable compromise between the people and the Government on the basis of a limited franchise, the interests of the tiller of the soil will need close watching. If the legislature proves itself to be incapable of safeguarding kisans’ interests they will of course always have the sovereign remedy of civil disobedience and non-co-operation. But as I said as early as in 1921 in connection with Chirala Perala, ultimately, it is not paper legislation nor brave words or fiery speeches, but the power of non-violent organization, discipline and sacrifice that constitutes the real bulwark of the people against injustice or oppression.

1 The source has 1932. Vide “Chirala-Perala”, 25-8-1921.

You suggest that the existing kisan organizations should be reformed where necessary. I quite recognize the need for Congressmen who have been working among kisans to re-orientate the general political attitude of the kisan class organizations so that they will recognize the need for a united political leadership for winning our national freedom. I am also convinced that the National Congress provides for us all—especially for peasants—the most effective weapon and leadership to win freedom. But is there any harm if we organize peasants into a ‘Kisan Congress’ which accepts the political leadership of the Congress?

There may be gross self-deception in this presentation. When I said that the Kisan Sabhas should be reformed, I meant that up till now Kisan Sabhas have been formed not to wrest power from the Government, but to capture the Congress. That applies to the student and labour organizations too.

You are partially right. That was so in the past. But we have now completely abandoned that idea. Since you made your statement on the subject in 1938\(^1\) the thing was completely given up. We have adopted the word Congress not in a spirit of rivalry but because we want to be identified with the Congress. We will have double membership. Every member of the Kisan Congress will also be enrolled as a member of the National Congress.

Then why not run the Congress? Why set up an independent and parallel organization? Don’t you see when Kisan Sabhas are bona-fide organizations they are the Congress? Today only a fraction of India’s population is represented on the Congress register. The Congress aspires to represent the whole nation. It claims by right of service to speak even for those who are not on its register. When it becomes a fully national organization, de jure as it is today by moral right, the bulk of its membership will naturally consist of the kisans and they will be in a position to dictate its policy.

The trouble is that some of our Congress colleagues think we are ousting them from their legitimate position of power and privilege. They may not be prepared to welcome our existence or trust our bona fides. We want to avoid conflicts within the Congress by willingly accepting the political leadership of the Congress. For executing our economic programme we want to have a separate class-conscious organization which will derive power both for itself and the Congress from its contact with the masses. Unless we do that, others will come and confuse the kisans.

\(^{1}\) The source has 1929. Vide “Discussion with Bengal Congressmen”, 13-4-1938.

Here you have involved yourself in a fallacy. You should work to make the Congress fully representative of the kisans. Unless we get down to this fundamental thing and work from bottom upward, there will be no swaraj. Every Congressman must make up his mind to make the Congress an honest organization, and therefore a kisan organization. As for rights they should follow as a natural corollary from the performance of service. Otherwise, there is only usurpation.

You have tried for the last twenty-five years to rebuild the Congress organization and you know the result. I along with others must plead guilty for my share in the responsibility for failure. I must confess we have not got the confidence that we shall be able to so behave and act that the Congress will in the end become a kisan organization. Our fear is that by following your line of action in spite of ourselves, we shall allow ourselves to be exploited by vested interests. The very fact that the Birlas and their like are today prepared to give you shelter and you accept it from them prevents radical reform. Therefore, though I shall feel the wrench, I shall feel unable to work on your lines.

Then you admit that whilst you will work under the aegis of the Congress, you will at the same time run a parallel, independent organization. My mind runs in a straight line. I do not understand this zigzag. This can only lead to trouble when the Congress becomes an effective organization. I am thinking of the millions of our downtrodden countrymen who do not know what to hope and what not to hope. A parallel organization will only further confuse their minds. It would be more logical to keep out of the Congress altogether.

We enter the Congress, but we do not fight for position and power. Can you not treat us on the same footing as the Ahmedabad Labour Union?

Well, the proof of the pudding is in the eating. It will all depend on the spirit in which it is done. I have already expressed my apprehension. It is for you to remove it. You can model your organization after the Ahmedabad Labour Union. All the Labour Union members are on the Congress register. They are under the discipline of the Congress. Yet they are a power in the Congress and in the Municipality. You should confine yourself to Andhra alone. All kisans should be automatically on your register. But the purpose of enrolment should be educative, to make the kisans Congress-minded and politically conscious.
I am glad you are laying special stress on adequate wages which will assure a minimum and decent standard of living for the landless peasants. Do you not also recognize the need for achieving minimum prices for agricultural produce which will assure labouring proprietors a decent and minimum standard of living?

Of course I do.

The Bombay A. I. C. C. Resolution assures the masses that the power in the national Government and swaraj India ought to belong to the toilers on the fields, in the factories and elsewhere.\textsuperscript{1} Can we say that the spirit of the Resolution means that the Congress therefore stands for the achievement of democratic-kisan-mazdoor-praja raj after the attainment of swaraj?

Not only after but before also. The Congress stands for democratic-kisan-mazdoor-praja raj.

Do not your new instructions envisage the development of \textit{kisan} organizations from the village upwards, to provide for peasant leadership and co-operative action, but working in harmony with the local National Congress Committee and their leadership? I may say that the Haripura session\textsuperscript{2} of the Congress has recognized the right of \textit{kisans} to have their own class organizations. But we are anxious, in the light of these four years’ experience, that Congressmen shall take the lead in organizing \textit{kisans} into their own unions so that there can be real unity and co-operation between \textit{kisan} organizations and Congress Committees.

\textit{Kisan} organization and Congress organization are to me convertible terms. National Congress organizations to be true have either to be \textit{kisan} organizations or nothing else.

Can we organize landless agricultural labour into their separate unions wherever there are workers to undertake such responsibilities in order to win for them the barest economic and social justice? I do not envisage such unions in rivalry with the local peasant unions but as a supplement to them.

Yes, but as part of Congress reorganization work.

Your instructions do not specifically mention the need for awakening and organizing the Hill Tribes and people of backward areas known as the Excluded or Partially Excluded Areas. These people number easily thirty million all over India and they are subject to many disabilities and they need our help very badly. May we take it that Congressmen have to spare their energies to organize these people into their unions?

Certainly. The aboriginal is as backward as the Harijan and more neglected. He calls for all the humanitarian service that \textsuperscript{1} Vide “Resolution Passed at All-India Congress Committee”, 8-8-1942.

\textsuperscript{2} In February 1938
Congressmen are capable of. Unfortunately very few Congressmen have taken to it.

Can our peasants and their organizations undertake satyagraha campaigns against any oppressive measures or policies of a landlord or a revenue authority, i.e., after all possibilities for settlement by negotiations through the good offices of the local Congress Committees have failed? We are aware of the 1939 Bombay A. I. C. C. instructions ¹ regarding such campaigns and we accept that when there is a National Government with which the Congress co-operates, peasants’ unions as well as local committees have to seek the guidance of the Provincial Congress Committees as to when and how to start and conduct such satyagraha campaigns.

They would be fools if they did not do that.

What flag do you recommend for peasant unions and handloom weavers’ unions and such other unions which agree to accept the National Congress leadership? I may inform you that we have decided to drop the Red Flag and adopt the National Flag, with the typical class or professional emblem such as the plough or the loom placed in one corner in addition to the charkha which occupies already the central place.

I don’t mind. To differentiate you can have your class emblem by the side of the national emblem.

Do you not recognize the need for all the colonial peoples to try to come nearer to each other, learn from each other’s experience in their fight for freedom and help each other?

“Colonial people” is a badly chosen expression, “oppressed races of the earth” expresses the idea better. “Colonial” in the English language means whites who have migrated to the Colonies.

Are we right in thinking that your stand against world imperialism is intended to benefit as much the African, Chinese, Red Indians and other non-white masses as the 400 millions of India?

My correspondence with the Government while under detention shows that most clearly.

May we have your blessings for our attempt to build up the “Colonial Peoples’ Freedom Front” and thus develop a research, propaganda and ideological platform with merely advisory and informative functions? I may inform you that several of our friends and your admirers in England, Africa and the West Indies, such as Mr. Reginald Reynolds, Miss Stock Kenyatta, Mr. George Padmore, have already been working on your lines for the emancipation of the colonial and coloured peoples.

¹ Vide “A. I. C. C. Resolutions”, 23-6-1939.
I want to say ‘Yes’. But I want to understand its implications.

The greatest social problem of the modern world is the exploitation of the vast masses of agricultural people by the industrial peoples and countries through the unequal exchanges imposed upon the former by the latter through their control over the world markets and finance and imperialist machinery. Are we right in thinking that you stand for the abolition of this process of exploitation of the producers of primary commodities and the agricultural masses of the world?

Root and branch.

Are we right in thinking that ours is only a part of the general struggle of colonial peoples against world capitalism and imperialism and that India is the vanguard in the world movement of colonial and agricultural masses for freedom, economic and political?

I hope so.

Is it not our duty to allow Congressmen to join and work in local food councils and such other quasi-official organizations now that every detail of a person’s life has come within the price-controls, grain procurement and requisition and acquisition and rationing activities of Government, provided we feel satisfied that we can render some effective help to our masses or prevent mischief?

Yes. They ought to be allowed if they can do without loss of initiative and independence and can really render effective help.

What shall those peasants do whose Gandhi-Irwin salt privileges have been unjustly withdrawn or curtailed?

They should take the salt if it comes within the clause.

Do you not recognize the need for students and their Students Congress to understand, popularize and act upon the ideology of the I.N.C. consistently with their responsibilities as students?

Of course they should study and understand all that. I have set forth the limitations in my “Hints”.

_The Hindu,_ 23-1-1945
141. NOTE TO SAILENDRA NATH CHATTERJEE

Silence Day [On or before October 30, 1944]¹

Take the juice of as many oranges or mosambis as possible. You take dextrose with fruit juice if you feel hungry, not otherwise. It will be better to live on fruit juice only for two or three days and you will be all right. You can go to Bombay without any fear.

From a photostat: C.W. 10496. Courtesy: Amrita Lal Chatterjee

142. NOTE TO SAILENDRA NATH CHATTERJEE

Silence Day [On or before October 30, 1944]

Tell him² I gave the name³. Madalasa knows it. I forget now but she won’t. Sushila too may remember.

From a photostat: C.W. 10497. Courtesy: Amrita Lal Chatterjee

143. LETTER TO V. A. SUNDARAM

SEVAGRAM,

October 30, 1944

CHI. SUNDARAM,⁴

Your note. I thought you were definitely coming. From what fund do you expect me to send you Rs. 1001? You who can command lacs wanting me to send the University [money] for building a lowly hut? Does not the incongruity strike you?

As to printing one lac copies of the little booklet, let those who are interested see to the publication. You have better work to attend to.

Love to you all.

BAPU

From a photostat: G.N. 3204

¹ According to Amrita Lal Chatterjee, this and the following note were written at Sevagram in October 1944, on a silence day. October 30 was the last Monday of the month.
² Gordhandas Chokhawala
³ Gandhiji had suggested the name ‘Ashok’ for Gordhandas Chokhawala’s son.
⁴ The superscription is in Devanagari and Tamil scripts.
144. LETTER TO KONDA VENKATAPPAYYA

SEVAGRAM,
October 30, 1944

DEAR DESHBHAKTA,

Bapa says you are ailing. You cannot afford to do so when all about you are starving and ailing. Let someone drop me a line about you. Who is nursing you?

Love.

Deshbhakta Konda Venkatappayya
Guntur

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

145. A LETTER

October 30, 1944

DEAR BABY,

You are a baby—as careless as you ever were. You give no address, the date unfinished, spelling defective. And your letter received yesterday, the day of the wedding. Well, better late than never. So you have blessings for X and his wife. Who shall prove worthy of whom?

Love.

1 This was addressed to a friend’s daughter.
146. LETTER TO KULSUM SAYANI

October 30, 1944

CHI. KULSUM,

What a girl you are! You have written to me neither in Gujarati nor in Urdu, nor even in Hindi, but in English! How queer is our feeling for our national languages! What help can I offer you? If the people care, a thousand copies should sell in no time. If the people don’t care, hold your patience till they feel that strongly.

Blessings from

BAPU

SMT. KULSUMBEHN SAYANI

From the Gujarati original: Begum Kulsum Sayani Papers. Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library

147. LETTER TO DHIRENDRANATH CHATTERJEE

SEVAGRAM,

October 30, 1944

CHI. DHIREN,

I like your letter very much. You have got a fine job to do. Serve all and devote yourself to your work. Write to me from time to time. Improve your health, use a mosquito-net.

DHIREN CHATTERJEE

SODEPUR

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
148. LETTER TO ZAINABEHN RAJABALI

[Before October 31, 1944]

DEAR SISTER,

Indeed, you have given me happy news. Congratulations to you and to Chi. Latif. Let us hope Dr. Latif will carry forward the legacy of his father and earn the blessings of millions.

Blessings from

BAPU

ZAINABEHN RAJABALI
57 C WARDEN ROAD
BOMBAY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

149. LETTER TO PURUSHOTTAM K. JERAJANI

SEVAGRAM,
October 31, 1944

Bhai Kukabhai,

I carefully read your letter of the 23rd, Jajuji also read it.

He has asked for a clarification, as is his wont, and says that we five should put our heads together. And I should let you all know the conclusion that I should draw from our consultations. But at the moment Jajuji does not propose to trouble any one of you. Hence, if you three come three days before the meeting of the the A.I.S.A., we could discuss things at length and also formulate our policy. We can also bring about a change in the Secretaryship, if it is found necessary. You will of course press Jajuji to accept the Secretaryship. After all it was I who had insisted upon it, wasn’t it? By three I mean Vithaldas, Lakshmidas and you. You will yourself write to the two friends.

Blessings from

BAPU

1 In the source this letter is placed before those of October 31, 1944.
150. LETTER TO MAHADEV A. HINGORANI

Sevagram,

October 31, 1944

Chh. Mahadev,

You do not write yourself but keep asking Anand, “Does Bapu ever remember me?” I do remember you. Now write to me regularly. What do you read? Do you take exercise? What do you eat? When do you go to bed? Write all this.

Blessings from

Bapu

From a microfilm of the Hindi. Courtesy: National Archives of India and Anand T. Hingorani

151. LETTER TO DR. GOPICHAND BHARGAVA

[Before November 1, 1944]

Bhai Gopichand,

Do I ever add my signature to an appeal, if I have myself not worked for the cause? My blessings are certainly there. You will get the money, but do not ask for my signature to be published. Consider my plight.

Dr. Gopichand Bhargava

Lahore

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

152. LETTER TO T. B. SAPRU

November 1, 1944

Dear Sir Tej Bahadur,

I appreciate your very affectionate letter of 25th October. I want all the assistance I can get from friends like you for my guidance. I have never found myself in the condition I am in today. My ultimate guide is Truth the name by which I know God best. So far as I know there will be no haste. I am going through the daily routine as if the fast is not coming at all. Please therefore do not

---

1 Son of Anand T. Hingorani
2 In the source this letter is placed before those of November 1, 1944.
3 Vide Appendix “Letter from T. B. Sapru”, 25, 10, 1944.
hesitate to warn me as often as you like. I hope you had my letter through Dr. Beni Prasad.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

Gandhi-Sapru Papers. Courtesy: National Library, Calcutta. Also G.N. 7573

153. LETTER TO N. R. JOSHI

SEVAGRAM,
November 1, 1944

DEAR JOSHI,

It is disgraceful that I should reach only today yours of 2nd ultimo. You know the reason why. As you contemplate coming to me, I defer action on your appeal pending your arrival. Do please come whenever you can barring Mondays. If I am away or anything happens to me you will learn from the papers and act accordingly.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

SHRI N. R. JOSHI
SECRETARY, HIGGINBOTTOM RECOGNITION FUND
ALLAHABAD AGRICULTURAL INSTITUTE
ALLAHABAD

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Vide “Letter to T. B. Sapru”, 25-10-1944.
2 Professor of Political Science, Allahabad University
3 The addressee had sought Gandhiji’s help and guidance for raising the Higginbottom Recognition Fund which was to be used for the development of the Allahabad Agricultural Institute. Dr. Sam Higginbottom, who had completed 70 in October, was retiring from the Institute.
154. LETTER TO A. K. CHANDA

November 1, 1944

DEAR ARUN KUMAR CHANDA,

I hope you are better. I note your advice about fasting. I am in God’s hands. Why do you think that I have not the Eastern Provinces in mind?

BAPU

SHRI ARUN KUMAR CHANDA
CALCUTTA

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

155. LETTER TO HARIBHAU PHATAK

SEVAGRAM, ”via” WARDHA,
November 1, 1944

DEAR SHRI PHATAK,

Shri A. V. Thakkar in a letter dated 16.10.1944 writes to me as follows:

Bapu had transferred Rs. 2,000/- to Shri Haribhau Phatak for Harijan work. But no work seems to have been done so far. A lot of correspondence has been passing between Shri Phatak and Shri Barve of Dhulia, the President of the Maharashtra Sangh. The main point of contention seems to be that Shri Phatak would not agree to realize Rs. 3/- or Re. 1/- from the Members of the Committee as required by the Constitution of the Sangh.”

Gandhiji has desired me to draw your attention to it. A line in reply will oblige.

Yours sincerely,

SHRI HARIBHAU PHATAK
POONA

From a copy : Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy : Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

1 The addressee, Deputy Leader of the Assam Congress Parliamentary Party, had invited Gandhiji to pay a visit to Bengal, Bihar and Assam and contact the suffering humanity there before undertaking another fast “as his life was no less the nation’s than his own”.

VOL.85 : 2 OCTOBER, 1944 - 3 MARCH, 1945 119
156. LETTER TO NATINDRA NATH DAS

SEVAGRAM, “VIA” WARDHA,
November 1, 1944

DEAR FRIEND,

Gandhiji has your letter of the 25th ult. for which he desires me to thank you.
You should seek guidance from Congress leaders. He is unable to advise.

Yours sincerely,

SHRI NATINDRA NATH DAS
CONTAI P.O.
MIDNAPORE

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library.
Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

157. LETTER TO KODI NARASIMHAN

SEVAGRAM, “VIA” WARDHA,
November 1, 1944

DEAR FRIEND,

Gandhiji has your letter of 24th ult. for which he desires me to thank you.
He has never said to anyone that Communists as such should not be admitted to the Congress. So far as he knows no one who signs the Congress creed and pays 4 as. can be prevented from becoming a member.

Yours sincerely,

SHRI KODI NARASIMHAN
NANDYAL

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library.
Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

158. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

SEVAGRAM,
November 1, 1944

CHI. NARANDAS.

If you had used the wedding at least as an excuse for coming, I could have met you both. We could have talked about important matters. But I can understand your not coming. I am not happy that all of you keep indifferent health. But, knowing that you are a thoughtful man, I trust that you must be using your discretion in all that you do, and so do not worry.

Whether I will fast or not rests with God. He will prompt me to do what is ordained and nothing else.

Whatever I do about the Kasturba Fund I will do after giving careful thought. You on your part should go on sending me whatever ideas occur to you.

Blessings from
BAPU

[PS]
You will get Rs. 3,500.

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./II. Also C.W. 8618. Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi

159. LETTER TO T. R. DEVGIRIKAR

November 1, 1944

BHAI DEVGIRIKAR,

What do you want me to write regarding Vasukaka? We were alike in many things. How am I to write any more?

Yours,
M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 7914

160. DISCUSSION WITH H. J. KHANDEKAR

[On or before November 2, 1944]

Send me your scheme immediately and I shall give my thought to it.

When Mr. Khandekar wanted Gandhiji to attend the next session of the Depressed Classes League, the Mahatma replied:

If possible.

1 Vasukaka Joshi
2 The report appeared under the date-line “Nagpur, November 2”.
3 Hemchandra J. Khandekar, M.L.A., Working President of the All-India Depressed Classes League, had demanded separate Harijan University, schools and hostels for boys and girls and wanted these institutions to be financed by caste Hindus.
In reply to another question whether sufficient number of Harijan members could be co-opted to the Harijan Sevak Sangh so as to form a Harijan majority, Gandhiji said:

No. It is a body of those who want to undergo prayashchitta and this must be done by the caste Hindus only. The touchables should serve the untouchables and the latter should accept the services of the former.

To the question when untouchability would be removed, Gandhiji said:

Perhaps both of us may not live to see it. But it is my firm conviction that untouchability will have to go if the Hindu religion is to live.

The Hindu, 7-11-1944

161. LETTER TO EMILY KINNAIRD

SEVAGRAM,

November 2, 1944

DEAR MOTHER,

What is a Christian luncheon table? What distinguishes it from say a Hindu or a Muslim luncheon table?

You won’t fret about my fast, if it comes. For if it does, it will come from God and He will be responsible for the result that may follow.

How can I pay even a pie towards the expenses of a room named after my wife? You may pay an anna yourself.

Your loving son,

BAPU

MRS. EMILY KINNAIRD

Y. W. C. A.

57 CANTONMENT ROAD

LUCKNOW

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Atonement
162. LETTER TO K. P. CHAKRAVARTY

SEVAGRAM,
November 2, 1944

DEAR CHAKRAVARTY,

Your touching letter. Treasure your wife’s memory and devote yourself to the service of afflicted humanity round you. No one really dies. Bodies are destined to perish; some today, some tomorrow.

BAPU

SHRI K. P. CHAKRAVARTY
TOLLYGUNGE
CALCUTTA

From a copy Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

163. LETTER TO MATHURADAS TRIKUMJI

November 2, 1944

I have carefully read your two letters. I will take the last sentence. I will assuredly not undertake a fast unless it is as clear to me as daylight [that it is my duty to do so]. Secondly, at whose call?—of the God of Truth or of the ego? If on the earlier occasion it was that of the God of Truth, so will it be this time, too. I have answers to all the other arguments. After declaring my intention to fast, I am examining myself. If any argument against the fast convinces me beyond the shadow of a doubt, I would give up my intention, but if ultimately I get a clear call from the God of Truth, nobody will be able to dissuade me. You may go on arguing, but please do not worry. I should certainly be pleased to meet you, but it is not essential for us to meet over this problem. Leave me to the mercy of God. Get well completely. . . ¹

[From Gujarati]

Bapuni Prasadi, p. 204

¹ Omission as in the source
164. LETTER TO BHAGWANJI P. PANDYA

November 2, 1944

CHI. BHAGWANJI,

Your suggestions regarding the Kasturba Memorial [Fund] are excellent. We shall succeed only in the measure that they are implemented. I hope you are doing well.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI BHAGWANJI PURUSHOTTAM
HARIJAN ASHRAM
WADHWAN CITY
KATHIWAR

From the Gujarati original: C.W. 399. Courtesy: Navajivan Trust

165. LETTER TO SATIS CHANDRA DAS GUPTA

SEVAGRAM,
November 2, 1944

BHAJ SATIS BABU,

I shall of course send Balvantsinha but, so long as a local worker does not come forward to take up this work on a permanent basis the difficulty in maintaining the cows is bound to be there, is it not? I do not like that Dhiren should leave his work and attend to the cows. However it will be good if he can learn to do that in addition to his present work. It is quite possible though, that I am mistaken in this because goseva should be a full-time job.

Blessings from

BAPU

[P.S.]

Why does Arun¹ fall ill? Hasn’t he completely recovered yet?

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 1639

¹ Addressee’s son
166. NOTE TO ANAND T. HINGORANI

November 2, 1944

Nandini is living, having been brought up by her grandmother. Her mother had died after giving birth to her. Therefore it was my duty to distribute bananas. The memory of Vidya makes you cry and therefore it will be mere attachment if you distribute bananas. If you want to do something for Vidya, I should advise you not to buy bananas but save the amount for those who are really famished. One has to act keeping in mind the individuals concerned. This is the test of good behaviour. Give each one according to his deserts.

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Hindi. Courtesy: National Archives of India and Anand T. Hingorani

167. LETTER TO AMTUSSALAAM

SEVAGRAM,
November 2, 1944

DAUGHTER A.S.,

I have your two letters. You may have been angry but this I know that I do what is for your good and what I consider my dharma. You may work hard all your life, but you don’t know how to keep accounts. Hence I want someone else to certify [the accounts]. You will have no difficulty if you understand this. The expenses on your food are met from here. Chimanlal has just confirmed that he sends money regularly. Do you want it in a lump sum? If you spoil your health and that too by cutting on your food I shall have to quarrel with you.

If at all I must undertake a fast it will be at God’s command. You will stick to your work.

Dr. Mahmud and his two sons are with me. They are nice boys.

There is no difference between shabash¹ and dhanyavad. One is derived from Persian and the other from Sanskrit. The latter I have already sent.² Now I send you the former. This is Hindu-Muslim Unity!

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 486

¹ Literally, both mean ‘well done’ but dhanyavad means ‘thanks’ also.
168. LETTER TO GOKHALE

SEVAGRAM,
November 2, 1944

BHAII GOKHALE,

I read your letter to Pyarelal. Your questions are good. But I do not wish to be involved in answering them. Please excuse me. If my fast does not come about, I would like to meet you. Even if it does materialize and, provided I survive it, you may come over and we shall have a talk. In the mean time do whatever service you can. Learn Hindi. Have this letter read out to you. I shall be pleased to have a reply either in Marathi or Hindi.

Blessings from
M. K. GANDHI

From a copy of the Hindi Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

169. LETTER TO LAKSHMAN PRASAD TIWARI

SEVAGRAM,
November 2, 1944

SHRI PANDIT LAKSHMANSINGHIJI TIWARI,

I have before me your daughter’s heart-rending letter. She wants that either you should bless her marriage to the boy of her choice, or, if that is not possible, you should never force her to marry anybody else. I think you can have no objection to this. How can we now coerce our daughters?

Yours,
M. K. GANDHI

LAKSHMAN PRASAD TIWARI
Narasanghpur
Hoshangabad

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
170. LETTER TO AMTUSSALAAM

[After November 2,] 1944

CHI. A. S.,

You are right in saying that I have lost faith in your word; how can I have it? I am not at all angry, my only consideration is my duty towards you. I cannot share the financial responsibility. Submit your budget to Jajuji. You are sure to get the amount he sanctions. It is not proper to trouble Bari Khan for your expenses. It would be better if you can get them from another brother, otherwise take them from the Ashram. There is always a place for you in the Ashram, and positively so in my absence. You should give up building castles in the air. Stick to any job you may take up.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 691

171. LETTER TO BIPINBIHARI CHATPAT

[Before November 3, 1944]

BHAI BIPINBIHARI CHATPAT,

Shardabehn has given me a copy of your original letter, which I have perused.

I like your ideas. It would be better to carry on the work under a single authority. I had once (before August 1942) made an unsuccessful attempt. I am going to try again.

What was wrong in Bhai Amritlal writing a reply to you? It was his effort at saving me the trouble. The work that he is doing is for putting into practice Kakasaheb’s ideas. Like you he does his work regarding it as his dharma. The only difference is that I do not know you, whereas I know him well. Why can’t you all work in unison although you work independently? From your letter I see that there is some difference between your way of thinking and mine. I shall not discuss the point here as I don’t have the time. Tandonji is likely to come here. Kausalyayanji will surely come. I shall have a discussion.

1 From the contents it appears that this letter was written after the letter to the addressee dated November 2. Vide “Letter to Amtussalaam”, 2-11-1944.
2 Addressee’s brother
3 In the source this letter is placed before those of November 3, 1944.
4 Purushottamdas Tandon
5 Bhadant Anand Kausalyayan
I shall also try to satisfy you if you happen to come some time.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

172. A NOTE

November 3, 1944

It is very good but it does not touch me because I have not been able fully to devote my mind to it. The entire constructive programme is the end. Negative non-co-operation is meant to achieve that end. The example of Christian missionaries would not help because the way to realizing God as Truth is different. I cannot describe that way. If someone can see it in my life, let him do so. Here fasting is very important. Natural death comes even to animals and birds as it comes to us. If you feel like writing something after reading this, do so. Send this back to me.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

173. LETTER TO BAL D. KALELKER

SEVAGRAM,

November 3, 1944

CHI. BAL1.

I have your very beautiful letter. I can understand that Western music has claimed you. Does it not mean that you have such a sensitive ear as to appreciate this music? All I wish is that you should have all that is to be gained there and come here when your time is up, and be worthy of your country. I don’t know whether I shall survive to see you. And what does it avail to know about it beforehand? Aren’t we all in God’s keeping? I like your letter so much that I would love to reply to it at length but it cannot be. This too I have written out soon after the morning prayer.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Sons of D. B. Kalelkar
174. LETTER TO SATISH D. KALELKAR

SEVAGRAM,
November 3, 1944

CHI. SHANKAR¹.

I send you the enclosed letter rather late because I wanted to send through you the letter to Bal also. Please send Bal’s letter on to Kaka. Either you or Chandan² should make a copy from the aerogramme and send it. I could read it only after I had a copy made.

I hope you are all fine.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

175. TELEGRAM TO C. RAJAGOPALACHARI

Express
SEVAGRAM, WARDHA,
November 3, 1944

RAIJI
THYAGARAYANAGAR
MADRAS
SORRY. TELEGRAPH NATURE UNSATISFACTORY HEALTH.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

176. TELEGRAM TO JUGAL KISHORE BIRLA³

November 3, 1944

SHETH JUGALKISHORE
CARE LUCKY
BENARES
DEPEND UPON IT I AM IN GOD’S HANDS.

BAPU

From the original: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Sons of D. B. Kalelkar
² Addressee’s wife
³ The addressee had wired Gandhiji requesting him not to risk his life by undertaking a fast.
177. LETTER TO T. B. SAPRU

November 3, 1944

DEAR SIR TEJ BAHADUR

This is written in a hurry.¹

I suggest not a tentative public statement but a personal letter to a few representatives asking whether they favour the idea of calling a conference.

I have in mind not a centre but a board composed of representatives of the two States regulating matters of common concern and enforcing the treaty obligations.

The conference will meet to consider the causes of the failure of the talks, to find whose fault it was and to suggest an independent solution, if any. It will inform and educate public opinion. Thus there is no fear of failure unless the conference does not come to a unanimous decision or one tantamount to it.²

You must keep well.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

Gandhi-Sapru Papers. Courtesy: National Library, Calcutta. Also G.N. 7572

178. LETTER TO SUSHILA GANDHI

SEVAGRAM,

November 3, 1944

CHI. SUSHILA,

Do not get agitated on reading about my fast. What is ordained will happen. I will do only what God prompts me to do. But this time everything seems unusual. I don’t worry, though. I am not happy that you are alone there, but in a way I am happy, too. I am happy because ¹ This and the other letter dated November 1 were handed over to the addressee by Devdas Gandhi at the Wardha station on November 3.

² For the addressee’s reply, vide Appendix “Letter from T. B. Sapru”, (a). The Standing Committee of the Non-Party Conference met at Delhi on November 18 and 19 under the chairmanship of the addressee. For the text of the resolution adopted at the meeting, incorporating certain changes suggested by Gandhiji, vide “Letter from T. B. Sapru”, (b). For a list of names suggested for the Conciliation Committee, vide “Letter from T. B. Sapru”, (c).
you are passing through a severe test. I am impatient to send back Manilal, but his going has become uncertain because of his fear regarding my fast. How can I send him away against his will? He will surely leave if he is able to muster courage.

I too would have been happy if Sita had stayed with me. But I see that her interest lies in going through the modern style of education. She is a nice girl. She will earn a good name and bring credit to us.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 4939

179. A RESOLUTION

[After November 3, 1944]¹

While accepting the resignation of Swami Anand from Joint Secretaryship, this meeting of Trustees thanks him for his industry and devoted service.

[From Hindi]

Kasturba Gandhi National Memorial Trust Papers. Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library

180. LETTER TO METROPOLITAN OF CALCUTTA

November 5, 1944

DEAR FRIEND,

Utmost frankness is a sure test of friendship. I therefore appreciate all your criticism, being that of a true friend.

Gould you tell your audience in Dacca that religious strife should be impossible especially in a place which is a seat of learning? The influence of a university should travel beyond its four walls. Religion should be a binding, not a disruptive force. I need not elaborate this thought. It came to me as I was reading your letter.

The late Charlie Andrews used to tell me of the good that some missionaries had done among the Frontier tribes. This was corroborated by Khan Saheb Abdul Ghaffar Khan. Your testimony therefore does not come upon me as a surprise.

¹ This was drafted by Gandhiji and passed at the Kasturba Gandhi National Memorial Trust meeting on November 5. Swami Anand’s letter of resignation was dated November 3, 1944.

¹ ibid

I am,

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

THE LORD BISHOP OF CALCUTTA
BISHOP’S HOUSE
CALCUTTA

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

181. A NOTE

November 6, 1944

The attempt is good. I can understand the argument. But how far can reason take you? Hence even though I give due weight to reasoning, I depend on prayer. I act in the light of the answer I get through prayer. I shall be guided by God. It is a difficult task. I am not worried. There is no hurry at all. I continue working. I do not stop work fearing imminent death. Take my fast also in the same way. Do write to me if you can think of something more.

You have written in English. Could you not have conveyed it in Hindi or Gujarati? You did well to have written to Shankerlal.

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

182. LETTER TO S. RADHAKRISHNAN

SEVAGRAM, November 6, 1944

DEAR SIR RADHAKRISHNAN,

I have your two kind letters.

As to the suggestions about the use of the K. G. M. funds I read your letter to the Trustees.¹ I shall bear your suggestion in mind. I wish you could have attended the meeting.

¹ This is written on a communication in English from Gulzarilal Nanda.

² The addressee had suggested that funds should not be spent on purposes which it was the duty of the Government to carry out; they should be utilized for the establishment of orphanages and pilgrim centers and for the selection of women to be sent to Russia and Japan to study rural uplift.
As to the contemplated fast, the ultimate decision will be His, not mine. I would have been untrue to friends, if I had not shared with them the struggle through which I am passing.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

SIR S. RADHAKRISHNAN
VICE-CHANCELLOR
HINDU UNIVERSITY
BENARES

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

183. LETTER TO PADMAJA NAIDU

SEVAGRAM,
November 6, 1944

MY DEAR LOTUS-BORN. 1

So you will presently complete another year of the allotted span of your life. Who knows what is your span? So it is forgivable to hope that you will have many years of service of the mother land. Hope you are taking care of yourself.

Love.

SMT. PADMAJA
HYDERABAD

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

184. LETTER TO PRINCESS OF BERAR

SEVAGRAM,
November 6, 1944

DEAR PRINCESS. 2

Sarojini Devi 3 has just given me the sad news that your illustrious father is no more. All my sympathies are with you. This death reminds me of the glorious Khilafat days when for the brief period Hindus and Muslims seemed to be united so as never to be parted by any person or thing. Alas! it was not to be. Sarojini Devi

1 Literal translation of the addressee’s name
2 Durdana Begum, née Durr-e-Shahvar
3 Sarojini Naidu

VOL.85 : 2 OCTOBER, 1944 - 3 MARCH, 1945 133
also tells me how you are serving the poor in your part of India. May God bless you.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

THE PRINCESS OF BERAR
HYDERABAD

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

185. LETTER TO DR. LAXMIPATHI

SEVAGRAM
November 6, 1944

DEAR LAXMIPATHI,

Mine is a most unenviable position. You remember how helpless you were when Ashadevi’s son died. I do not want allopathic medicine and yet I do not get out of its coil. You are very good but you refuse to see things as they are. I am now trying Pandit Shiv Sharma. I do not know how I shall fare.

Yours,

BAPU

DR. LAXMIPATHI
BEZWADA

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

186. LETTER TO DR. M. E. NAIDOO

SEVAGRAM,
November 6, 1944

DEAR DR. NAIDOO,

I was glad to see your familiar handwriting. I am all with you. Only you are too impatient. Time is on our side.1

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

DR. M. E. NAIDOO
KOTTAR

From a photostat: G.N. 95. Also C.W. 9197

1 The addressee felt that the Brahmins of Mylapore and Tanjore were not really for social equality of Harijans. He wanted Gandhiji to introduce inter-caste dinners.
187. LETTER TO P. G. MAVALANKAR

SEVAGRAM,
November 6, 1944

CHI. PURUSHOTTAM,

You have set for yourself a splendid and difficult ideal. God will help you. Come and see me some time.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 1717

188. LETTER TO PREMA KANTAK

SEVAGRAM,
November 6, 1944

CHI. PREMA,

You are quite silly. You are dying before your death! Is not the fast but a threat as yet? It is not at all certain. Is it likely to come unless God wills? Anybody who understands its profound meaning would welcome it, and look upon the day [it starts] as a blessed day. If it comes, I alone will have to undertake it. Nobody else will be permitted to join me. After my passing away, others may be called upon to fast one after another. But why think about that just now? Remain absorbed in your work and keep others absorbed in theirs.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10432. Also C.W. 6871. Courtesy: Prema Kantak

1 The addressee had sought Gandhiji’s opinion on two of his articles, one on his ideal and the other a Gujarati translation of a tribute by the addressee’s father to A. B. Dhruva. Gandhiji had handed this letter to G. V. Mavalankar saying he would send his opinion on the tribute later. Vide “Letter to G. V. Mavalankar”, 28-1-1945.
189. LETTER TO AKBARBHAI CHAVDA

SEVAGRAM,
November 6, 1944

CHI. AKBAR,

I have your beautiful letter. May God bless you with excellent health. Your work is fine.

Zohra will write to you and tell you how she is doing. Sushilabehn will certainly write to you about guinea-worm. The best way is to foment the spot with hot water and bandage it. As and when the worm shows, you should tie it up and not let it snap. BY and by it will come out.

I suppose you know the simple remedy of an enema. Vallabham Vaidya’s pills are available at the Majoor Mahajan. They may also be available with somebody in Palanpur. About this matter, too, Sushilabehn alone can write to you in detail.

Do not worry about my fast. Nothing is certain yet. Write to me regularly.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 3235

190. LETTER TO MATHURADAS TRIKUMJI

SEVAGRAM,
November 6, 1944

CHI. MATHURADAS,

What shall I write to you? Give up all worrying, whether on my account or Dilip’s or any other. You will then get well sooner. You must not write to me yourself but content yourself by dictating to Dilip. I am tied up with so much work. MY health, however, is co-operating with me.

Blessings from
BAPU

MATHURADAS, BOMBAY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Addressee’s son
191. LETTER TO DILIP M. TRIKUMJI

SEVAGRAM,
November 6, 1944

CHI. DILIP,

I have your letter. Your duty is now to serve your father. Reassure him on your side. His blessings which will be evoked by the service you render will spiritually benefit you in all ways.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

192. LETTER TO JYOTILAL A. MEHTA

SEVAGRAM,
November 6, 1944

BHAJ JYOTI,

I had your wire and also your letter. I have had a talk with Parikshitbhai who is here. You must see to it that no one does physical violence to Ratilal. After all he is Chi. Champa’s husband. All we have to see to is that he does not annoy Champa. In all other respects we should be considerate to him.

Doctor had the Bungalow constructed specially for the benefit of the Ashram; only he used to stay there whenever he wished. I was expected to accommodate my guests in the Bungalow. Now Doctor is no more. I never asked him to commit anything to writing. And then Ratilal turned out to be a mental case. How can I convince Prabhashankar? Champa used to be under Prabhashankar’s control,

---

1 Parikshitlal Majmudar
2 Eldest son of Dr. Pranjivan Mehta
3 Dr. Pranjivan Mehta: a Gold Medallist of the Grant Medical College, Bombay, Bar-at-Law; was Gandhiji’s “oldest friend”. From the time he received Gandhiji in London in October 1888 he acted as his “guide and counsellor”. A philanthropist, from whom “no deserving poor ever returned empty-handed”, he rendered financial help to Gandhiji in his activities from the days of the Phoenix Settlement till his death in August 1932. Author of M. S. Gandhi and South African Problem. For Gandhiji’s tribute to him, vide “Dr. Pranjivandas Mehta”, 7-8-1932.
4 The Lal Bungalow near Sabarmati Ashram, Ahmedabad
5 Prabhashankar Harchandbhai Parekh, father of Champa R. Mehta now you have become her adviser. All I wish is that you should not sell the Bungalow. You should either have a separate trust for the Bungalow or entrust its management to the Ashram. I would not in the least think it right to evict any Harijans who might be living there. But the final decision rests with Champa and you. I can say nothing definitely about Maganlal¹.

_Blessings from_
_BAPU_

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

193. LETTER TO SARALA

_SEVAGRAM_,
_November 6, 1944_

CHI. SARALA,

Got the yarn. I hope Sheth is all right now. Come when you want. In terrible hurry.

_Blessings from_
_BAPU_

SARALABEHN
_[C/o] SHETH GATUBHAI JAMIATRAM_
_BOMBAY_

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

194. LETTER TO TOTARAM SANADHYA

_SEVAGRAM_,
_November 6, 1944_

Bhai. Totaramji,

Parikshittal has given me all the information. Your body has of course grown old, it will go when it has to. You have been dedicated to service all your life, so it is your dharma to accept it from those who wish to offer it sincerely. Of course Ramanama is always there to sustain us.

_Blessings from_
_BAPU_

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 2530

¹ Youngest son of Dr. Pranjivan Mehta
195. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA

Silence Day, November 6, 1944

CHI. KRISHNACHANDRA,

If you work in the Talimi Sangh then too you will be near me, won’t you? In the alternative, let me know what you would like [to do].

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4450

196. NOTE TO ANAND T. HINGORANI

[November 6, 1944]

I do want to write something for you but do not have a moment to spare.

From a microfilm of the Hindi. Courtesy: National Archives of India and Anand T. Hingorani

197. DRAFT RESOLUTION FOR HINDUSTANI PRACHAR SABHA

[On or before November 7, 1944]

The objective of the Hindustani Prachar Sabha is to popularize Hindustani rapidly. For this it is essential that those who are learning Hindustani acquire familiarity with the Devanagari and Persian scripts. It is therefore the duty of this Sabha to get the right textbooks published and arrange examinations in order to be able to certify that one knows both the scripts and can read and write Hindustani. The Working Committee should lay down details regarding the curriculum and the examinations.

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 18

---

1 As supplied by the addressee
2 According to Mangal Prabhat, July 1952, this Resolution was drafted for the meeting held on November 7, 1944.
198. LETTER TO RISHABHDAS RANKA

SEVAGRAM,
November 7, 1944

CHI. RISHABHDAS,

I have heard Guneji’s reputation. He should send me the names of the medicines and their properties. I shall make use of the information. It would be best if he prepares a booklet for me. I shall have it printed if I like it.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

199. A LETTER

[Before November 8, 1944]

I don’t know when I shall fast, but, if I do fast, it will be for the welfare of the oppressed classes of the world.

Congressmen all over India have been anxious over my intention of fasting. But there is no necessity for becoming anxious.

When people have become inactive and when the day-to-day activities of the Congress are at a standstill, the last and the only effective weapon for a satyagrahi is the fast.

The Hindu, 10-11-1944

200. A LETTER

[Before November 8, 1944]

When the tongue and the pen fail, the Shastras say, man should resort to fast. Why should there be any objection to fasting?

The soul does not die. It is the body that goes away. Why should one worry? Moreover fasting will be resorted to only when God so wills it.

The Hindu, 10-11-1944

1 This was addressed to “a prominent Congressman of Gujarat”. The Gujarati original, however, is not traceable.

2 The report appeared under the date-line “Ahmedabad, November 8”.

3 This was addressed to a Congress member of the Central Legislative Assembly. The Hindi original, however, is not traceable.

4 The report appeared under the date-line “New Delhi, November 8”.

140
201. LETTER TO AMRIT KAUR

SEVAGRAM,

November 8, 1944

CHI. AMRIT,

I have been neglecting you. You know why. I am writing this before the morning walk which commences just after 7 a.m. Dr. J. Mehta is standing by me. He has come for a day on his way to Madras where he is going to deliver an address to physicians.

Rajaji is unwell and so did not come for the various meetings.

Amtul Salaam is in Calcutta doing good work.

Kanu’s wedding came off very well. Nearly 300 people dined. Harijans and caste men of Sevagram were in it. Sevagram inmates and guests accounted for over 150.

You are right in not worrying about the fast. It will come if God wants it.

Love.

BAPU

From the original: C.W. 4148. Courtesy: Amrit Kaur. Also G.N. 7783

202. LETTER TO C. RAJAGOPALACHARI

SEVAGRAM,

November 8, 1944

MY DEAR C.R.,

It won’t do for you to get ill. I am not going to worry you to come early. You must not strain yourself even to come to Nagpur¹. You may even send your address or depute someone to read it for you. If however you do come to Nagpur you will give yourself a few days for Sevagram, or Wardha whichever suits you best.

Did I tell you I had carefully read your pamphlet about the Cripps offer? It carried no conviction to me. But you will try again if you wish. Munshi² had a chat with me on it. I have invited him to discuss it further. He is likely to come again.

As to the fast I have ceased to think much about it. I am simply ¹ For the Convocation of the Nagpur University, which was to be held on November 25.

² K. M. Munshi watching myself and waiting on Truth to guide me. A double process is going on within me. Let us see what happens.

Love.

BAPU

From a photostat: G.N. 2098

203. LETTER TO MATHURADAS TRIKUMJI

November 8, 1944

CHI. MATHURADAS,

I heard from Dr. Mehta about the set-back in your health. There is nothing particularly wrong with your health. You have spoiled your health by over-exertion and worry. You ought to utilize your knowledge for the benefit of your own health. Englishmen are not philosophers, but they keep themselves free from worry so as to preserve their health and for the sake of their health they never let any external trouble overcome them. You have such capacity. Stop worrying about me and about other matters. You are giving your services even from the sick-bed. Nothing at all is definite about the fast.

Blessings from
BAPU

MATHURADAS TRIKUMJI
BOMBAY

[From Gujarati]
Bapuni Prasadi, p. 204. Also from a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

204. TALK WITH GULZARILAL NANDA

[Before November 9, 1944]

If everyone stuck to his dharma and did his duty why should I have to fast? And how would God permit it? But if people become unsettled and remain inactive the fast will not be stopped.

So long as I can work otherwise, there is no possibility of my resorting to a fast. When there is no work for me or no work which can be taken from me, then alone will God ask me to go on a fast. I can hear a voice echoing that I should fast. Not that I should start a fast right away. But when God bids me no one can prevent me from undertaking the fast. Pray to God that I may not have to fast. Prayer is the only thing that matters. To do sincere work in the name of God is itself prayer. I say what I feel. There is not only one thing that disturbs me today, there are several. I have only mentioned the thing that most perturbs me. If something else comes up, I shall not hesitate to say it. These have little to do with Congressmen. People today are engaged in fraud, black-marketing and amassing of wealth somehow.

1 Gulzarilal Nanda, Secretary of the Ahmedabad Textile Labour Association, had conveyed Gandhiji’s words to the Association’s organ, Majoor Sandesh, in his letter from Wardha dated November 9, 1944.
There is no end to the lies they mouth. Who can change their hearts? I do not know whether my fast will do so. I can only pray. God’s will be done. Nobody knows today what is going to happen. If everyone does his duty it is possible that the fast will not come off. One man cannot assume the whole burden, but the concerted effort of many people may bear fruit. Let everyone calmly do his work without being despondent or becoming agitated. This is all I ask for. God too will want no more. I am at peace.

[From Gujarati]

Gujarat Samachar, 14-11-1944

205. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

[On or before November 9, 1944]

It would be advisable to let Kanchan be examined by the vaid on Friday morning. Her health is none too good. If you can get cloth for a mosquito-net cut, have one stitched so that we may use it when required. Khurshedbehn has agreed to stitch one. Share the work in this manner.

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 6973. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

206. TELEGRAM TO K. N. KATJU

Sevagram,
November 9, 1944

DR. KATJU
19 Edmonstone Road
Allahabad

GLAD HER\(^2\) AGONY HAS ENDED. YOU ARE WISE

\(^1\) From the postmark
\(^2\) Addressee’s wife
ENOUGH TO BEAR SEPARATION WITHOUT GRIEVING. MAY GOD BLESS YOU.

GANDHI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

207. LETTER TO K. VENKATARAMANI

SEVAGRAM,
November 9, 1944

DEAR FRIEND,

Gandhiji had your letter of 31st October.

Gandhiji says you can come here whenever you like for your week’s stay here. You will, of course, send previous intimation of your arrival.

Yours sincerely,

PYARELAL

SHRI K. VENKATARAMANI
34 ALAMELUMANGAPURAM
MYLAPORE
MADRAS

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

208. NOTE TO ANAND KAUSALYAYAN

November 9, 1944

1. Obviously it is obligatory for a member of the Sabha to fulfil at any rate the condition laid down by you. The objective of the Sabha is clearly stated in its constitution. I do wish, however, that all Indians learn both the scripts and speak a language which could be understood by both Hindus and Muslims.

2. The Hindi style and the Urdu style are like the Ganga and the Yamuna. Hindustani is like the Saraswati. It is concealed and yet not concealed. The Sabha should endeavour to make it clearly discernible.

1 Secretary, Hindustani Prachar Sabha, Wardha. This note was in reply to the following questions:

(1) It appears that, in 1942, when the Hindustani Prachar Sabha was formed, you intended and directed your efforts that persons enrolling themselves as members
3. Hindustani Prachar Sabha will be complementary of both and will seek help from both. But its work will be distinct from theirs, which could also be regarded as the same. If the Sabha tried to undo the work of these two organizations, its own objective would be defeated. How can you have Saraswati without the confluence [of the three]?

4. The work of the Sabha will be, and should be, uniform all over the country. The procedure may be modified here and there to suit the differing needs of the provinces.

5. The new movement of the Hindustani Prachar Sabha should not create difficulties in the work of Rashtrabhasha Prachar Samiti, if the two co-ordinate their activities.

M. K. GANDHI

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

of the Hindustani Prachar Sabha must learn both the scripts of the Rashtrabhasha. Do you, even today, expect that thing only from the members, or do you want that everybody, both old and young in the country, must learn both the scripts?

(2) Regarding the plan of work of Hindustani Prachar Sabha, some people understand that the Sabha aims at propagating both Hindi and Urdu but there are others who say that it aims at propagating neither Hindi nor Urdu but Hindustani. In 1942, you were of opinion that the Saraswati in the shape of Hindustani had not yet made its appearance. Is the situation different at present? What is it that the Sabha will propagate if Hindustani has not yet made its appearance?

(3) Under the auspices of the Hindi Sahitya Sammelan a number of institutions are working for the propagation of Hindi and the Devanagari script, and the Anjuman Taraqqi-e-Urdu for that of Urdu and the Persian script. Will the Hindustani Prachar Sabha be merely co-ordinating the activities of these two institutions or will it be complementary of the two? Or will it be a third body pursuing its own programme undoing the work of these two?

(4) Will the policy and programme of the Hindustani Prachar Sabha with respect to South India and the non-Hindi provinces be the same as in the other provinces—that is, will the propagation of both the scripts be obligatory?

(5) Will the new policy of the Hindustani Prachar Sabha create difficulties in continuing the propagation of Rashtrabhasha as it is being carried on in South India and the other non-Hindi provinces for the last so many years?
209. LETTER TO ABDUL GHANI

SEVAGRAM,
November 10, 1944

DEAR ABDUL GHANI,

I was delighted to hear from you. I do hope your wife will be fully restored and that you too will have your trouble attended to. As to the restrictions you will do as your instinct guides you. Do please keep me informed of your movements and the progress of your wife and yourself.

Yours,

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

210. LETTER TO DIWANCHAND OBHERAI

SEVAGRAM, "VIA" WARDHA, C. P.
November 10, 1944

DEAR OBHERAIJI,

I read out your letter of the 28th to Gandhiji.

He has decided nothing about the fast yet but has simply put himself in God’s hands. He won’t undertake the fast unless he has a clear call. He cannot rule out fasting altogether as he holds it to be the ultimate and most potent weapon in the armoury of non-violence.

Yours sincerely,

PYARELAL

SHRI DIWANCHAND OBHERAI
SENIOR ADVOCATE
PESHAWAR

From a copy : Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library.Courtesy : Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

1 Son of Abdul Ghaffar Khan
1 Vide “Statement to the Press”, 23-10-1944.
211. LETTER TO DUNICHAND

SEVAGRAM,
November 10, 1944

DEAR FRIEND,

Gandhiji has your letter of 31st ult. and desires me to thank you for the same.

He has decided nothing about the fast. He has only taken the public into confidence as to the working of his mind.

Could you kindly send the address of Maulvi Abdul Ghani though I doubt whether anything effective can be done from this end?

Yours sincerely,
PYARELAL

SHRI DUNICHAND
7-A BEGUM ROAD
LAHORE

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

212. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

SEVAGRAM,
November 10, 1944

CHI. MUNNALAL,

At last your father has passed away. It was for the best. He was released from suffering and was delivered from the necessity of being obliged to others for their services. You and the other members of the family have no reason for grief. Life, when it attaches itself to a body, is invariably accompanied by death. Only, it does not know the appointed hour of death. Why, then, grieve over death? We should learn this lesson from the death of a dear one. Let us follow his virtues.

Both of you may remain there as long as necessary. Here everything is going on as usual.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 8468. Also C.W. 7179. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah
213. LETTER TO CHAMPA R. MEHTA

November 10, 1944

CHI. CHAMPA,

I have your letter. I was sorry to hear that Chi. Sarala had fallen ill again. I should be very happy if she comes here after she has recovered. However, the fast is hanging over me. How can I therefore assume responsibility for Sarala? We will think over this when you and Jyoti arrive here. I have gone through your letter addressed to Chimanlal. I did not fully understand it. I will ask Chimanlal to explain it. You must have read what I wrote to Jyoti about the Red Bungalow.¹

Blessings from
BAPU

CHAMPABEHN MEHTA
[C/O] M/S SHASHIKANT RATILAL
SIR LAKHAI ROAD, RAJKOT PARA

214. LETTER TO COWASJI JEHANGIR

SEVAGRAM,
November 10, 1944

DEAR SIR COWASJI,

Somebody had conveyed to me the news of your dear son’s passing away. I had thought I would write to you a letter of condolence but being burdened with work it slipped from my memory. Last night I remembered it when I happened to read the news again in Vallabhbhai’s letter to Dahyabhai. And now I write this. Please know that I share your grief. There must be hundreds like me sharing your grief. May they all lighten your burden and may God grant you peace.

Yours,
M. K. GANDHI

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
215. LETTER TO RAMESHWAR DAS BIRLA

SEVAGRAM

November 10, 1944

Bhai Rameshwardas,

I am sending Chi. Sankaran for six months to learn the science of village sanitation and Chi. Sharda for some homoeopathic treatment. Can I put up these two in the dharmsala in your charge? If Sharda is accommodated her husband will also stay with her. Write to me without hesitation what the position is. Ghanshyamdas left today. It was good he came. A lot of work could be done.

Blessings from

Bapu

[PS.]

Sankaran is leaving today. He will stay with Raihanabehn1. But he can do so only for a few days as there is not enough room.

R. Birla

Bombay

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

216. SPEECH AT HINDUSTANI TALIMI SANGH MEETING

November 10, 1944

Speaking to members of the Hindustani Talimi Sangh who are meeting here, Mahatma Gandhi said that the Sangh should now take up the entire span of national education as its field and work out a programme of national education for life in all its stages through manual activity and handicrafts. He pointed out that the future programme of national education thus became only an extension of the present programme of basic education upwards and downwards.

The Hindu, 12-11-1944

---

1 Raihana Tyabji
217. A NOTE

November 11, 1944

(1) I have read Shri Wadia’s letter of 31-10-’44. I have no recollection whatsoever of having made the remark attributed to me about Shri Agnibhoj. Indeed I had nothing to do with such appointments. I was not then nor am I now a member of the Working Committee.

(2) There was no question of my refusal to have a Harijan on the executive of the Harijan Sevak Sangh. As a matter of fact there are Harijans on the Central Board as well as its branches. But I am opposed on principle to such appointments for the Sangh is formed of a body of caste-Hindu penitents who are vowed to eradicate untouchability. It is therefore a debtors’ association. Harijans are creditors. I expressed this opinion to a body of Harijans who recently interviewed me.¹

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

218. LETTER TO K. R. R. SASTRY

November 11, 1944

Dear Prof. Sastry²,

I thank you for your kind letter.

(A) My experience does not bear out the truth of your proposition. I do not claim to be a saint. But I do not regard politics as inconsistent with the strictest moral code. Politics I hold to be a noble art which every good citizen must cultivate …³ not in⁴ the game that professional politicians play.

(B) is answered in (A)

(C) Only posterity can judge. Obviously I can’t.

(D) I am sorry I cannot subscribe to your opinion. Mine is a new experiment. I plead for patience in coming to a judgement.

As to your constructive suggestions, you will perhaps forgive me if I do not argue about them.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. Gandhi

From a photostat: G.N. 8810

¹ Vide “Discussion with H. J. Khandekar”, on or before 2-11-1944.
² Of the Department of Law, Allahabad University
³ Illegible
⁴ ibid
219. LETTER TO S. RADHAKRISHNAN

November 11, 1944

DEAR SIR RADHAKRISHNAN,

I have your kind letter of 4th instant. Your amendment is too late for revision of the draft deed. It has been passed by the Board. But there will be no difficulty if a village girl is ripe for being sent to foreign lands for gaining further knowledge of use in the villages.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

[PS]

When may I write to you in Hindi?

SIR S. RADHAKRISHNAN
HINDU UNIVERSITY
BENARES

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library.
Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

220. LETTER TO SATIS CHANDRA AND HEMPRABHA
DAS GUPTA

November 11, 1944

CHI. SATISBABU AND CHI. HEMPRABHA,

I have letters from both of you before me. To worry about the fast betrays a lack of faith in God. Do you not believe that I will do what God wills? Why should you worry then? Do your duty, that will be enough.

Now about khadi. The ideas contained in the circular sent by Jajuji are mine. I see that you hold a different view. You must point out the fallacy in my ideas. I take it that you will attend the meeting of the Charkha Sangh.

What has to be done about Balvantsinha?

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 1640

1 The addressee, Vice-Chancellor of the Benares Hindu University had suggested that funds of the Kasturba Gandhi National Memorial Trust should not be spent on purposes which it was the duty of the Government to carry out; they should be utilized for the establishment of orphanages and pilgrim centres and for the selection of women to be sent to Russia and Japan to study rural uplift; vide also “Discussions with Representatives of Hindustani Talimi Sangh”, 27-10-1944.

2 The circular contained the gist of the discussions carried on from October 7 to 14 between Gandhiji and Shrikrishnadhas Jaju.
221. LETTER TO SOHANLAL DWIVEDI

SEVAGRAM,
November 11, 1944

BHAJ SOHANLAL,

I have had a talk with Ghanshyamdasji. I hope you have calmed down. The incident has shown me a new way. May I hope the same has happened to you? A few friends, if not many, have understood my point.¹

Blessings from
BAPU

SOHANLAL DWIVEDI

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

222. LETTER TO SATYAVATI DEVI

SEVAGRAM,
November 11, 1944

CHI. SATYAVATI,

I got your letter. Send over Chandrani. If you do not get permission to go to Lahore even for reasons of health, write to me before taking any step.

Only this much today. Do not worry about my fast. I am in God’s hands.

Blessings from
BAPU

SATYAVATI DEVI
JUHAR, via SIMLA HILLS

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Vide “Letter to Sohanlal Dwivedi”, 16-10-1944.
223. CABLE TO V. K. KRISHNA MENON

November 12, 1944

JAWAHARLAL, IS A JEWEL AMONG MEN. HAPPY IS THE LAND THAT OWNS HIM. SOMETHING IS RADICALLY WRONG WITH THE SYSTEM THAT HAS NO BETTER USE OF PERSONS LIKE HIM THAN AS PRISONERS.

The Hindu, 14-11-1944

224. LETTER TO P. G. MATHEW

November 13, 1944

MY DEAR MATHEW,

Yours. Pray that God may guide me aright.

Love.

BAPU

PROF. P. G. MATHEW
S. H. COLLEGE
THEVARA, via ERNAKULAM
COCHIN STATE

From a photostat: G.N. 1545

225. LETTER TO CARL HEATH

November 13, 1944

DEAR FRIEND,

Your welcome letter came into my hands today. I am in the midst of a raging storm and often hum to myself:

Rock of Ages cleft for me, let me hide myself in Thee.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

CARL HEATH
WHITEWINGS, 57 MANOR WAY
GUILDFORD, SURREY (ENGLAND)

From a photostat: G.N. 1051. Also C.W. 4441. Courtesy: F. H. Chopping

1 This was sent in connection with Jawaharlal Nehru’s birthday, November 14

VOL.85 : 2 OCTOBER, 1944 - 3 MARCH, 1945 153
226. LETTER TO K. T. GHANASHAM

SEVAGRAM,
November 13, 1944

DEAR FRIEND,

I assure you I am giving due weight to every argument advanced against the contemplated fast. I wonder if this will reach you, as you have given me no address.

Yours sincerely,

K. T. GHANASHAM
KARACHI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

227. LETTER TO ERNEST F. PATON

SEVAGRAM,
November 13, 1944

MY DEAR ERNEST,

I have your heartening letter. You will not mind if I find it helpful to publish your letter. I take it you are also a doctor. Have we ever met?

Yours,

BAPU

ERNEST F. PATON
CHRISTU KULA ASHRAM
TIRUPATTUR

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
228. LETTER TO ATULANAND CHAKRAVARTY

SEVAGRAM,
November 13, 1944

MY DEAR ATULANAND,

Your letter. Thanks.

Many come whom I must not turn away. I don’t want to encourage you just now. Let me settle down one way or another.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

SADHU ATULANAND
C/o Post Master
New Delhi

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

229. LETTER TO CHARLES A. ISAAC

SEVAGRAM, via Wardha, C.P.,
November 13, 1944

DEAR ISAAC,

Yours is one of the typical letters I am receiving daily. Pray with me that God may guide me aright.

Yours,
BAPU

BRO. CHARLES A. ISAAC
Kochumuri
Kayankulam, Travancore State
South India

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

230. LETTER TO P. SUBBAROYAN

SEVAGRAM,
November 13, 1944

DEAR SUBBAROYAN,

I am listening to every argument advanced by friends like you but the final arbiter will be the inner voice.

VOL.85 : 2 OCTOBER, 1944 - 3 MARCH, 1945 155
I do hope Rajaji won’t stir out unless he is completely restored.
I shall be glad if Radhabai breaks her journey.
Please warn her however that I am reaching the end of my bodily resources.

Yours,
BAPU

DR. SUBBAROYAN
MADRAS

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

231. LETTER TO SYED MUSTAFA

SEVAGRAM,
November 13, 1944

DEAR SYED SAHEB,
I thank you for your kind note. You have my assurance that I shall do nothing without a call from God.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

SYED MUSTAFA, BAR-AT-LAW
LUCKNOW

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Addressee’s wife
232. LETTER TO H. J. KHANDEKAR

SEVAGRAM, via WARDHA, C., P.,
November 13, 1944

DEAR KHANDEKAR,

I have your letter. I have become afraid of you after your unauthorized misleading report of our conversation\(^1\). I express no opinion on your contemplated meeting\(^2\) or its programme.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

SHRI H. J. KHANDEKAR, M.L.A.
ITWARI, NAGPUR

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

233. LETTER TO G. LAKSHMI AMMA

SEVAGRAM,
November 13, 1944

DEAR FRIEND,

The condition you mention is truly deplorable. You and I have to do the best we can. Nothing like patience and perseverance.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

G. LAKSHMI AMMA
DEPRESSED CLASSES MISSION
MANGALORE

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

\(^1\) Vide “Discussion with H. J. Khandekar”, on or before 2-11-1944.
\(^2\) Of Harijan workers and provincial leaders of Nagpur to organize Harijans under the banner of the All-India Depressed Classes League, which was to be held in the last week of December 1944
234. LETTER TO DEVIBEHN PANDIT

SEVAGRAM,
November 13, 1944

CHI. DEVI,

I have your letter. Also the money. The yarn is to be handed over to Kakubhai1 who should use the amount realized from its sale for the service of Harijans. Vasumati2 tells me you fall ill now and then. How is it?

Blessings from
BAPU

DEVIBEHN PANDIT
BOMBAY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

235. LETTER TO SHIVABHAI G. PATEL

SEVAGRAM,
November 13, 1944

CHI. SHIVABHAI,

What guidance can I offer? See if you can deduce something from what I am writing. I have had a talk with Ravishankar Maharaj3, who will offer some [advice]. All of you should do as much [work] as you can.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHIVABHAI PATEL
BOCHASAN

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

---

1 Purushottam K. Jerajani
2 Vasumati D. Pandit
3 Ravishankar Vyas who worked among the Baraiyas, a backward community of Kheda district in Gujarat
236. LETTER TO NRISIMHAPRASAD K. BHATT

SEVAGRAM,
November 13, 1944

BHAI NANABHAI,

I have your letter. I cannot come to such a quick decision; I can say something only after we meet. Let us hope Bachu’s affairs are settled without any hitch.

Blessings from
BAPU

NANABHAI BHATT
HINDUSTAN STORES
CHOWPATTY
BOMBAY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

237. LETTER TO ADWAIT KUMAR GOSWAMI

SEVAGRAM,
November 13, 1944

BHAI ADWAIT KUMAR,

In my opinion a Congressman may, as an individual, do anything that is not opposed to the publicly stated policy of the Congress. However, you should remember that I am not a registered member of the Congress.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 804

1The addressee, a Congress worker of Brindaban, had asked if a Congressman could take part in satyagraha to be offered in Sind against the Sind Government’s ban on the fourteenth chapter of Satyartha Prakash.

VOL.85 : 2 OCTOBER, 1944 - 3 MARCH, 1945 159
238. LETTER TO BALVANTSINHA

November 13, 1944

CHI. BALVANTSINHA,

You should go on the 18th. Things will be managed somehow here. The kitchen here must not come in the way of other work.

I have seen Satis Babu’s letter and I have written to him.¹

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 1948

239. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA

November 13, 1944

CHI. KRISHNACHANDRA,

May you be firm in your resolve. I like vigilance. Of course you will always remain an inmate of the Ashram and you will be living here in the Ashram. It is another thing that you may have to be associated with the Talimi Sangh in the interest of your work. For the present your personal expenses will be met by the Ashram. Whether or not you can devote some time to the work at the Ashram is something to be looked into. Experience alone will tell us that. Don’t be agitated over such matters, but have faith in God. “One step enough for me.”

Blessings from

BAPU

[PS]

Give a copy of this to Chimanlal.

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4441

¹ Vide “Letter to Satis Chandra and Hemprabha Das Gupta”, 11-11-1944.
240. LETTER TO SARASWATI K. GANDHI

November 13, 1944

CHI. SURU,

Received your letter. Kanti¹ has written me a nice and long letter. May you both study well, continue making progress and rendering service. Of course I do hope to see Shanti². I will some day. How do I know that you are not as silly as you used to be?

Blessings to the three of you from

BAPU

SHRI KANTI GANDHI
2994/1 VANI VILIA MOHOLLA
MYSORE

From a photostat of the Hindi: C.W. 3456. Courtesy: Kanti Gandhi. Also G.N. 6182

241. LETTER TO ANIL K. MISHRA

SEVAGRAM,
November 13, 1944

BHAI ANIL,

If you want to draw up your programme after consulting me you will never be able to do anything. Chart your own course from what I have written for the general public.

Blessings from

BAPU

From the Hindi original: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

242. NOTE TO ANAND T. HINGORANI

SEVAGRAM,
November 13, 1944

Your duty is obvious. Father is of course being looked after. You must try to get well. You will stay here or go to Andhra only to persist in this effort. Mother though alone is not helpless. Your son is being looked after. Separation has to be endured. God willing you will get well and all those who are separated today will be united. Having realized this, give up worry and be cheerful with the conviction that God does everything and what He does is for our good.

¹ Addressee’s husband, Harilal Gandhi’s son
² Addressee’s son

From a microfilm of the Hindi. Courtesy: National Archives of India and Anand T. Hingorani

243. LETTER TO SHRIPAD D. SATAVLEKAR

SEVAGRAM,
November 13, 1944

PANDITJI,
I have your letter. Herewith the reply from Appasaheb. Please spare me of such responsibilities. I am no longer capable of taking up such work. My strength is limited and my burden heavy.

Yours,
M. K. GANDHI

PANDIT SATAVLEKAR
AUNDH

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

244. LETTER TO DURLAB SINGH

SEVAGRAM,
November 14, 1944

DEAR SARDAR DURLAB SINGH,

This is my answer to your questions:

(1) My association with Rajaji in his formula could not affect the Sikh position in the slightest degree, even if Quaid-e-Azam Jinnah accepted it. The Lahore Resolution of the Congress referred to by you stands. The result of Quaid-e-Azam Jinnah’s acceptance would have been that both of us would have gone to the Sikhs and others

---

1 Pant, Ruler of Aundh
2 General Secretary, Central Sikh Youth League
3 For extracts from the addressee’s letter, vide Appendix “Letter from Durlabh Singh”, 12-11-1944.
4 Vide Appendix “C. Rajagopalachari’s Formula”, before 5-8-1942.
5 Vide “Speech at Subjects Committee”, 1-1-1930.
interested to secure their acceptance. I had made this clear in my letter to Masterjee.

(2) I cannot understand the Akali indignation. My meeting a deputation was unnecessary in view of my absolute assurance. If Masterjee had wanted to bring his friends to me, in spite of my assurance, I would have gladly seen them as I did other friends who sought clarification from me.

(3) Maulana Saheb explained the implications of the Jagat Narain Lal’s Resolution which please see. But supposing that it is inconsistent with the Rajaji Formula and the Congress accepts the latter, there is nothing to prevent the Congress from rescinding the Resolution.

(4) How could I favour a contrary opinion when I have always given the closest collaboration to Sikh friends? Those Sikhs, who do not accept the Congress creed, naturally refrain, like many others, from joining the Congress.

(5) I know nothing about the Sikandar-Baldev Singh Pact, much less about the Congress High Command’s association with it. Nor do I know the details of the Azad Punjab scheme.

I could never be guilty of blessing anything which is contrary to the national interest. You can certainly have the assurance that the interests of the nationalist Sikhs, as also of all nationalists, are safe in my hands, also, I presume, in the Congress hands, though as you know I have no authority to speak on behalf of the Congress.

There are many inventions about me going the round. I would warn friends against giving credence to any of them without reference to me.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

The Indian Annual Register, 1944, Vol. II . p. 222

---

1 Vide “Letter to Tara Singh”, 15-8-1944.

2 Vide 5th footnote of “Note to Jagdish K. Munshi”, on or before 12-8-1944.

3 Sir Sikander Hayat Khan
245. LETTER TO METROPOLITAN OF CALCUTTA

SEVAGRAM,
November 14, 1944

DEAR FRIEND,

Many thanks for your letter just received. I wonder if you saw my statement\(^1\). If the fast comes, it will have nothing to do with the Government. For ready reference I send you a copy of my statement.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

METROPOLITAN
BISHOP’S HOUSE
CALCUTTA

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

246. LETTER TO MOHAMMED ANSARI

SEVAGRAM,
November 14, 1944

DEAR SARDAR SAHEB,

I have your letter. There was no question of ignoring you. Yours is a nationalist organization not needing any wooing by me. Neither you nor I can afford to ignore the League. We have to win it and other like forces round to our side. I tried Quaid-e-Azam. And though I may be said to have failed, we have lost nothing. You and I have to work in the best manner we can, the objective being to reduce antagonism without sacrificing fundamentals.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

SARDAR MOHD. ANSARI
BIHAR MOMIN CONFERENCE
DEHRI-ON-SONE, E.I.R.

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

\(^1\) Vide “Statement to the Press”, 23-10-1944.
247. LETTER TO AMTUSSALAAM

SEVAGRAM,
November 14, 1944

DEAR DAUGHTER,

I have received your two letters which I find very long. The fast will come only when God sends it. He will not send it if we ask for it. How will you carry on your work in such fear? Taking care of your health, carry on your work. If all of you do your work, certainly the fast will not come off. But those who are scared at the mention of a fast do not know even the first lesson of satyagraha.

Zohra is well.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 487

248. LETTER TO V. L. MEHTA

SEVAGRAM,
November 15, 1944

BHAII VAIKUNTH,

I like your note. You will see that I have made a few deletions. May I make a suggestion? Your writing is very close making it difficult to add anything in between the lines. You will find this in the present case. Paper, no doubt, has to be used sparingly. But should not there be a limit to it?

Blessings from
BAPU

[PS.]

The note is enclosed.

From the Gujarati original: V. L. Mehta Papers. Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library

249. LETTER TO DINSHAW K. MEHTA

SEVAGRAM,
November 15, 1944

CHI. DINSHAW,

Your letter. Let us not be in a hurry about the land. Things are being delayed, but there is God’s hand in it. I understand what you say regarding my fast. Nothing about it is yet certain, nor even whether it will be for forty days or less. I continue to pray. I should like to be with you when I undertake the fast but nothing about this fast is going to be left to my choice. After all am I to seek my convenience? Is the fast to be undertaken for the sake of my health? It will be for God’s work and He will take me where He wants. Please make no preparations for me. Be engrossed in your own work which will be your greatest contribution. Neither of you should worry. Let Ardeshir make progress; he has still farther to go. Teach him non-violence.

_Blessings from_
BAPU

DR. DINSHAW MEHTA
POONA

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

250. LETTER TO RAOJIBhai M. PATEL
SEVAGRAM,
November 15, 1944

CHI. RAOJIBhai
I have your letter. I suggest no one should rush down here at the moment. All of you should immerse yourselves in your own work. Maybe it will avert the fast.

_Blessings from_
BAPU

RAOJIBhai MANIBhai PATEL
VITHAL KANYA VIDYALAYA
NADIAD

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

251. LETTER TO HARIBhai DAHYA
SEVAGRAM,
November 15, 1944

BHAI HARIBhai
I have your letter. Let us not commit another wrong to undo the first. That cannot be the way of truth or of non-violence. Hence the straightforward way is to offer all that we legitimately can. If it fails to mend matters we should bear with the suffering whatever it be. If we act in this way, we need never repent.

Blessings from
BAPU

HARIBHAI DAHYA
P.O.B. 89
WELLINGTON
NEW ZEALAND

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

252. LETTER TO TEJWANTI DHIR

SEVAGRAM,
November 15, 1944

CHI. TEJWANTI,

I have your letter. If you want you may stay in Lalaji’s house. If you are not perfectly all right within three months, take more time. Go to the village only when you are fully recovered.

Blessings from
BAPU

TEJWANTIBEHN
ADAMPUR

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

253. LETTER TO SECRETARY, MYSORE ASSEMBLY CONGRESS PARTY

[Before November 16, 1944]

Mr. Pyarelal . . . has sent a letter to the Secretary to the Mysore Assembly Congress Party, conveying Gandhiji’s thanks for the invitation to the Party’s conference (held yesterday), adding that anything that helped constructive activities and advanced the cause of popular freedom had his blessings. He also congratulated the Party on its good work in the Legislature during the first term of its existence under the new constitution.

The Hindu, 19-11-1944

1 The conference was held on November 16, 1944, at Mysore.
254. LETTER TO J. J. SINGH

November 16, 1944

DEAR FRIEND,

I thank you and other friends for your kind message.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

SARDAR J. J. SINGH
INDIA LEAGUE OF AMERICA
40 EAST, 49TH ST.
NEW YORK 17, N.Y.

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

255. LETTER TO GENERAL SECRETARY, KURNOOL DISTRICT CONGRESS COMMITTEE

SEVAGRAM,
November 16, 1944

DEAR FRIEND,

Gandhiji has your letter of 24th ult.
You should be guided by Shri A. Kaleswara Rao who is at present here and will be returning to Andhra Pradesh after his talks with Gandhiji.

Yours sincerely,

PYARELAL

THE GENERAL SECRETARY
KURNOOL DISTRICT CONGRESS COMMITTEE
NANDYAL.

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

256. LETTER TO R. S. DESHPANDE

SEVAGRAM,
November 16, 1944

DEAR PROF. DESHPANDE,

Apart from the fact that I have no time, the books have been transferred to the late Jamnalalji’s daughter for whom Prof. Kalelkar had meant them.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

SHRI R. S. DESHPANDE
POONA

From a copy : Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library.
Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

257. LETTER TO JAISUKHLAL GANDHI

SEVAGRAM,
November 16, 1944

CHI. JAISUKHLAL,

You have not acted properly in resuming the experiment of ground-nuts and dates. It is wrong to make such an experiment. To persist in living on uncooked food is a kind of obstinacy. One must know how to carry out such experiments. There is no difficulty in cooking ordinary food, and that is what you should do. Or I may send back Manu there. She herself will not like to remain here after hearing about your experiment.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./XXIV

258. LETTER TO LILAVATI ASAR

SEVAGRAM,
November 16, 1944

CHI. LILI,

I have your two letters. People die all over the world and they will go on dying. For your part you have to excel in your studies.
Everything else will follow. Try to build up the atmosphere of Sevagram as far as possible.

Blessings from
BAPU

LILAVATI UDESHI
BOMBAY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
259. LETTER TO DR. SANGANI

SEVAGRAM,
November 16, 1944

Bhai Sangani,

I got your letter. You have given Sanyuktaben\(^1\) excellent treatment and nursing. She was in great agony. May God repay you. Tell Chi. Sanyukta that I had her letter. She can come over when you allow her to leave.

Blessings from

Bapu

Dr. Sangani
Harkissondas Hospital
Bombay

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

260. LETTER TO JAYENDRA\(^2\)

November 16, 1944

Bhai Jayendra,

I have read your letter carefully. I have no time to set out my arguments in reply. I shall do as God bids me. Just now there is no call from Him.

Yours,

M. K. Gandhi

Shri Jayendra, Sahityaratna
Hindi Pracharak
Amadal Pallee

From the Hindi original: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

261. LETTER TO BALVANTSIONHA

November 16, 1944

Chi. B. S.,

I am sending all the papers. I have nothing to say about others.

\(^1\) Daughter of Jaisukhlal Gandhi
\(^2\) This was not posted for want of complete address.
All I wish to say about the letter received today is that it may be your duty to stay on for the sake of Kishorelal. It is for you to decide that. You are not obliged to stay on for the kitchen work. You should leave it to me. What I would ultimately like you to do, I cannot decide that just yet. Yes! I shall be very happy indeed if you acquire a scientific outlook. I have not heard anything about A. S. I have no misgivings about you. Why should I waste my time?

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 1949

262. NOTE TO ANAND T. HINGORANI

November 16, 1944

Weeping and laughing come from the heart. When grieved one weeps. One must turn that grief into joy and laugh. Hence the need for Ramanama. Surrender all to Him and there is only joy. Why grieve over the loss of hearing? You are saved from hearing a lot of drivel. What is relevant you get through the written word. Moreover I believe that if there is joy within, the ears will of themselves regain the power of hearing.

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Hindi. Courtesy: National Archives of India and Anand T. Hingorani

263. LETTER TO V. G. SAHASRABUDDHE

SEVAGRAM,
November 16, 1944

BHAJ SAHASRABUDDHE,

I have your letter. What authority do I have to ask Jajuji to give the yarn to you? And why should the amount be in Jajuji’s name? It means you cannot get yarn because the amount did not belong to you. I do not remember all the facts. I am writing this just from conjecture. You should ask for a raise if you cannot make both ends meet. Otherwise choose some other vocation. If the money belongs to you, you should get an injunction from a court of law. In case I have forgotten something do remind me.

Blessings from

BAPU

V. G. SAHASRABUDDHE
KHADI VASTRALAYA, MAHAL
NAGPUR

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

264. LETTER TO H. J. KHANDEKAR

SEVAGRAM,
November 16, 1944

BHAI KHANDEKAR,

I got your letter. I was grieved to learn about the death of your child. May God give you peace and patience. I have the notes of the talks I had with you but I do not wish to send them. Not words but your conduct alone can inspire confidence. May God bless you.

M. K. GANDHI

HEMCHANDRARAO JAGoba KHANDEKAR
ITWARI
NAGPUR

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

265. LETTER TO DR. BALDEV

SEVAGRAM,
November 16, 1944

BHAI BALDEV,

What have you done? Why is Subhadra unhappy? Will you please write to me?

Blessings from

BAPU

DR. BALDEVJI
AMRITDHARA [PHARMACY]
LAHORE

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
266. LETTER TO T. B. SAPRU

SEVAGRAM,

November 17, 1944

DEAR SIR TEJ,

Gandhiji has your letter of 13th instant. He is of opinion that it will be better not to use his name in public in connection with the forthcoming conference, but if you feel you must he would not mind.

Yours sincerely,

PYARELAL

RT. HON’BLE SIR TEJ BAHADUR SAPRU

19 ALBERT ROAD

ALLAHABAD

Gandhi-Sapru Papers. Courtesy: National Library, Calcutta

267. LETTER TO THE NETHERLANDS TRADING SOCIETY

November 17, 1944

DEAR SIRS,

With reference to your draft No. nil, dated 14-11-1944 for £1,000 in my favour, I have to inform you that I have authorized the Bank of Nagpur Ltd., Wardha, to collect the amount from you.

Yours truly,

M. K. GANDHI

MESSRS THE NETHERLANDS TRADING SOCIETY

BOMBAY

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

268. LETTER TO L. RAJAGOPALA RAO

SEVAGRAM,

November 17, 1944

DEAR RAJAGOPALA RAO,

1. I have not excluded any stage of education. The question is purely one of finding the right type of workers.

2. This is answered. Of course the parents should be contented.

3. Your suggestion is sound. Co-ordination is being attempted.
4. This also, if worthy of consideration.
5. Do try. Don’t expect me to do executive work. That is for young people like you to do.
6. I have doubts about the soundness of your suggestion. Your note is being circulated among the Heads of the Associations concerned. I had a talk about you with Shri Kaleshwara Rao.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

SHRI L. RAJAGOPALA RAO
P. O. RAZOLE
EAST GODVARI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library.
Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

269. LETTER TO P. SUBBARAYAN

SEVAGRAM,
November 16, 1944

DEAR DR. SUBBARAYAN,

I read out your letter of 14th inst. to Bapu.

You must have seen his reply to Rajaji’s wire. He does not propose to make any public statement with regard to the Congress reorganization work as suggested by you. He has favoured the formation of ad hoc unions of Congress workers for carrying out normal Congress work. Don’t you think that in these matters ad hoc committees should be free to frame their own rules and shape their policy according to local circumstances in the best possible manner they can? This does not involve any constitutional point. All those who accept the policy and plan of work laid down by these bodies and abide by their discipline would of course be entitled to join these bodies.

Yours sincerely,
PYARELAL

DR. P. SUBBARAYAN
WHITE’S GARDEN
ROYAPETTAH
MADRAS

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library.
Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar
270. LETTER TO KHANDUBHAI DESAI
November 17, 1944

Bhai Khandubhai,

May the Labour Day function\(^1\) bear fruit. Labour has made great strides in Ahmedabad. But much remains yet to be done. I cannot be satisfied till the respect for labour rises higher than that for capital, nor should labour be satisfied. We will not attain that position till it has attained unity, 100 per cent honesty and education with knowledge. There is no place for caste, creed or communalism in the ranks of labour. There should be equality of rights between men and women.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a facsimile of the Gujarati: Gujarat Samachar, 3-12-1944

271. LETTER TO BRAHMAKUMAR BHATT
Sevagram,
November 17, 1944

Bhai Brahmakumar Bhatt,

I read your full long letter today. I see your Union has made good progress. Do make further progress.

Why do you use your letter-heads as your working papers? About one-third of each page is thus wasted besides the useless expenses of printing. This is an additional loss.

Among your activities I do not find service of Harijans given its proper place.

Do you all learn Hindustani (Hindi+Urdu)?

I don’t see any Muslim names among your office-bearers. Do you have any in your Union?

Have you seen my hints to constructive workers?\(^2\) I wish your

\(^1\) 26th anniversary of the foundation of the Textile Labour Association of Ahmedabad
\(^2\) Vide “Hints for Constructive Workers”, 22-10-1944.
Union thinks over what I have written in it regarding students.

Blessings from
M. K. GANDHI

BRAHMAKUMAR BHATT
NATIONAL STUDENTS’ UNION
RAIPUR
AHMEDABAD

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

272. LETTER TO DR. JIVRAJ MEHTA

SEVAGRAM,
November 17, 1944

BHAJ JIVRAJ,

Chi. Sushila¹ is arriving there to see Mathuradas² and his ailing friend. I am not very keen just now to start a maternity hospital here. Since Sushila will not devote all her time to this work I am thinking what her position in this project should be. Again I fail to see how the Committee can work efficiently if she were not on it. Sushila believes that with the time she will give, she can do justice both to the local maternity home and the Committee. She should have a doctor under her to attend to the needs of the maternity home. If you wish you may discuss the matter with her. I have told Abid Ali that he should obtain an estimate of expenditure but should not incur any expenditure just now.

I hope you are fine.

Blessings from
BAPU

DR. JIVRAJ MEHTA
BOMBAY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Dr. Sushila Nayyar
² Mathuradas Trikumji
273. LETTER TO MATHURADAS TRIKUMJI

SEVAGRAM,
November 17, 1944

CHL. MATHURADAS,

I got the impression from your letter today that your work has got on the rails somewhat. S. is leaving today to see you and his friend Pyarelal who is also sick. He will give you further news. There is every chance of your full recovery if you withdraw your mind from all other worries.

Blessings from
BAPU

From the Gujarati original : Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy : Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

274. LETTER TO VALLATHOL NARAYANA MENON

SEVAGRAM,
November 18, 1944

DEAR VALLATHOL¹,

May Mallika and her husband live long in harmony and serve the country to the best of their ability.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

SHRI VALLATHOL
CHERUTHURUTHI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

275. LETTER TO OMKARNATH THAKUR

SEVAGRAM,
November 18, 1944

BHAI OMKARNATH²,

Your letter reached me today. May your pious wishes bear fruit.
Your statement is very long. I shall go through it when I have the

¹ An eminent Malayalam poet
² An exponent of Hindustani music leisure and write to you if I have anything to say.¹

Blessings from

BAPU

PANDIT OMKARNATH
BOMBAY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

276. LETTER TO ASHABHAI

SEVAGRAM,
November 18, 1944

BHAI ASHABHAI,

Since I had passed on your original letter to Bapa I did not reply to it. Ravishankar Maharaj gave me a copy of it and we also had a talk. You certainly have my blessings. Your work is fine. And it was good that all of you participated in [raising] the contributions. I suggest you should utilize the fresh amount you might have for whatever work you wish to do and not add it to the Memorial [Fund]. This will not create any difficulty and you will be able to utilize the entire sum locally. I am sure you have a local committee.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

277. LETTER TO MADAN MOHAN MALAVIYA

SEVAGRAM,
November 18, 1944

BHAI SAHEB,

Sundaram showed me your letter about the Mahadeva temple. It is my request to you that the temple should be very simple. Should Mahadeva’s abode be in a grand mansion or in a simple place? In my humble opinion the noblest of ideas dwell in a simple temple. The courtyard is quite good as it is. Thousands of devotees will be able to worship Mahadeva under a simple roof. There is no urgency to build the temple just now. All that is needed is there. You should be happy

¹ Vide “Letter to Omkarnath Thakur”, 18-11-1944.
if a firm resolve is made and a vow taken to fulfil it.

Your younger brother,

M. K. GANDHI

Bharat Bhushan Pandit Malaviyaji
C/o Shri Sundaram

From a photostat of the Hindi: C.W. 10359. Courtesy: Bharat Kala Bhawan

278. LETTER TO OMKARNATH THAKUR

SEVAGRAM,
November 18, 1944

Bhai Omkarnath,

I read your statement fully. Till this point I wrote in Hindi either inadvertently or because I was possessed by Hindi. Why is your statement in English? Your language too does not follow the English usage and hence sounds out of tune. Very few among us have a perfect command over English. And why must we? When we cannot do without it we may scribble some kind of English to express our thoughts. You want to place your thoughts before the Indian people. They should therefore be either in Gujarati (your mother tongue) or Hindi (the national language).

This was only a point to note.

What have you to do with a charter? Your own merit deserves to be your writ. Certainly, you don’t need State patronage. I think the [institutions at] Santiniketan are run without a licence and yet command global reputation. Did Vishnu Digambar1 ever obtain a licence?

And now the third point.

Your statement is contrary to your new resolve. It smacks of Pakistan. Music till now is untouched [by it]. Please don’t let it be defiled by bringing in Pakistan.

What more can you expect from a man on his death-bed except an exchange of notes?

Blessings from

BAPU

Pandit Omkarnath, Sangitmartand
Bombay

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 V. D. Paluskar, an exponent of Hindustani music and the addressee’s guru
279. LETTER TO C. RAJAGOPALACHARI

SEVAGRAM,
November 19, 1944

MY DEAR C. R.,

This is merely a love-letter. I hope when you come here, you will be fit. Winter has set in here.

Pray that I may look at your pamphlet with your eyes.

Love.

BAPU

From a photostat: G.N. 2099

280. LETTER TO DR. HARIPRASAD DESAI

SEVAGRAM,
November 19, 1944

BHAII HARIPRASAD,

I was very pleased to meet you after so many years and that too in Sevagram.

I was glad to listen to the detailed news from Ahmedabad that you gave me. But you know how greedy I am. I shall be satisfied only if Ahmedabad helps me realize my dream, that is, if untouchability goes root and branch, men and women practise abstention as a matter of dharma and attain equality, the inequality between the rich and the labourers is removed, drink and gambling are stopped, all wear nothing but pure khadi whether at home or outdoors, ideal cleanliness of the heart as well as in outer life is observed and no one suffers hunger. Do whatever you can out of this and persuade others to do so. What more shall I say? Come again.

Blessings from

BAPU

DR. HARIPRASAD DESAI

AHMEDABAD

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 About the Cripps offer; vide letter to the addressee, “Letter to C. Rajagopalachari”, 8-11-1944.
2 Ex-President of the Ahmedabad Municipality
3 This message was sent for the ‘Labour Day’.
281. LETTER TO JIVANLAL DIWAN

SEVAGRAM,
November 19, 1944

BHAISHRI DIWAN,

I was pleased to read your letter. You have not yet regained your full strength. I don’t like it. Do the doctors and the vaids have no remedy? Or is it that you are lax in your observance of the rules of hygiene? True, my asking you this question may sound like the pot calling the kettle black, but it is not quite that.

No doubt, you must miss Babubhai at every step. I had regarded you two as inseparable. But he has left us all behind and gone ahead.

Herewith the reply to your student.¹ Read it and tell him what you think right.

The rest you may learn from Dr. Hariprasad.²

Blessings from

BAPU

JIVANLAL DIWAN
AHMEDABAD

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Vide the following item.
² Vide the preceding item.
282. LETTER TO SURYAKANT PARIKH

SEVAGRAM,
November 19, 1944

CHL. SURYAKANT PARIKH,

The sincerity of your letter is unmistakable. The leaders who are in jail are doing their duty by being there. A satyagrahi in prison never rots. He serves his cause by his imprisonment, nor can anyone say with certainty that he could have served the cause better if he had remained outside. But it is the duty of those who are outside not to forget those who are in prison. They must labour to get them out. If we had the requisite strength, many of our leaders should not be today in jail. In its absence, we must strive with whatever measure of strength we may possess. I, therefore, like the idea of students abstaining from going to school on 9th, provided they devote the whole day to self-purification and service. There should be strictest adherence to truth and ahimsa in whatever they do. Mass civil disobedience is today in abeyance; rather, it was never started but the fight for independence shall go on so long as independence is not attained.

Whatever your decision let the bounds of propriety be not transgressed and let the decision be taken after due consultation with your teachers and school management. Do not forget that yours is not a Government school.

You must also remember what I have said in another place about the duties of students.

Blessings from
BAPU

SURYAKANT
C/o JIVANLAL DIWAN
AHMEDABAD

The Hitavada, 21-1-1945

1 The addressee, a student of the Proprietary High School, Ahmedabad, had written to Gandhiji on behalf of the School Committee asking how the 9th of each month was to be observed. Since Gandhiji was receiving a large number of similar enquiries especially from students and incomplete extracts from this letter had appeared in the Press, this authorized translation was released to the Press on January 19, 1945.

2 The date, superscription, subscription and the address are from the Gujarati in Pyarelal Papers.
283. SPEECH AT ALL-INDIA TEACHERS’ TRAINING CAMP

SEVAGRAM,
November 19, 1944

At the request of Shrimati Ashadevi, Gandhiji delivered a short address to them on the 19th instant, to explain the meaning of New Education. He described in a few words how the Basic Education scheme was born. In 1937 when the Congress took up power for a short term, as it afterwards turned out, in seven out of the eleven Provinces they were confronted with the question of popular education. His advice was sought. Like many others, he had been dissatisfied with the present system of education. He felt that if education was to be linked with the living needs of the masses inhabiting the villages of India, it ought to be imparted through a basic craft. He had no practical experience of agriculture. But he was saturated with the idea of the charkha which he had identified with village life. He, therefore, suggested that it should be used as a medium for the children’s education. The idea appealed to Shri Aryanayakum, Shrimati Ashadevi and Dr. Zakir Husain and through their effort the Hindustani Talimi Sangh was founded.

Originally this New Education was intended to cover only the first seven years of a child’s education, viz., from the seventh to the fourteenth year. The experiment had already completed six years and was now entering upon the seventh. As a result of further thought, he had come to the conclusion that this education should cover the whole of life from the moment of conception to the moment of death.

Referring to the prayer which had been recited at the beginning of the proceedings, he observed:

There are several things in this prayer which are worthy of your note but I want to draw your attention to that particular portion of it which pledged the reciter to adherence to Truth in speech and action under all circumstances and at all times. One mantra means: “Lead me from untruth to Truth, from darkness to Light, from death to Immortality.” Similarly the Islamic prayer, which has just been recited is an outpouring of the soul for Light and for being guided on to the straight path of Truth and Righteousness. This quest for Truth is the Alpha and Omega of all education.

After finishing your training here you will go back to your respective Provinces to propagate this New Education. You will keep this ideal of devotion to Truth before you. Your work will be that of pioneers. There will be no one to help or guide you with his previous experience. You shall have to grope your way all by yourselves. It is, therefore, not an easy task that you have before you. Then this New Organized by the Hindustani Talimi Sangh and attended by about 50 students, the camp was inaugurated by Gandhiji in the afternoon. This is the authorized version of Gandhiji’s speech, presumedly in Hindi.

Education will not help you to get big jobs carrying high salaries and emoluments. But yours will be the privilege to go among and serve the villagers in their villages. Palatial buildings and costly equipment can, therefore, have no place in your scheme of work. The school of my conception is one where classes are held in the open under the shade of a tree. I know that it cannot be realized at present. Some shelter will be necessary, perhaps always for protection against the sun, wind and rain. True education can only be given under conditions of utmost simplicity.

Pointing to the building in which they were assembled, he continued:

All the buildings here in the Talimi Sangh are built of local material and with the help of local artisans. We have thereby established a living link between ourselves and the people. That by itself is an education for the people and constitutes the foundation of our future educational work.

If you thoroughly assimilate this ideal of simplicity and its importance in the New Education, you will have justified your training here. You will then appreciate your work.

That work consists of cleaning up. Cleanliness of the mind and body is the first step in education. Prayer does for the purification of the mind what the bucket and the broom do for the cleaning up of your physical surroundings. That is why we always commence our proceedings with prayer. No matter whether the prayer we recite is the Hindu prayer or the Muslim or the Parsi, its function is essentially the same, namely, purification of the heart. God has innumerable names but the most beautiful and suitable in my opinion is Truth. Let Truth, therefore, rule every action of our life, be it ever so insignificant. Let every morsel of food that we eat be sanctified with His name and consecrated to His service. If we eat only to sustain the body as an instrument of His service not only will it make our bodies and minds healthy and clean, the inner cleanliness will be reflected in our surroundings also. We must learn to make our latrines as clean as our kitchens.

As with the individual so with society. A village is but a group of individuals and the world, as I see it, is one vast village and mankind one family. The various functions in the human body have their parallel in the corporate life of society. What I have said about the inner and outer cleanliness of the individual, therefore, applies to the whole society. In the mighty world, man, considered as an animal, occupies but an insignificant place. Physically, he is a contemptible worm. But God has endowed him with intellect and the faculty of discrimination between good and evil. If we use this faculty to know God we become a power for good. Abuse of that talent converts us into an instrument of evil, so that we become like a scourge and a plague and fill this earth with strife and bloodshed and unhappiness and misery.

The struggle between the forces of good and evil is ceaseless and eternal. The former have truth and ahimsa as weapons against the latter’s falsehood, violence and brute force. There is nothing more potent in the universe than God’s name. If we enthrone Him in our hearts and keep Him there always, we shall know no fear and lay for ourselves rich treasure in life.

The Hindu, 5-12-1944

284. LETTER TO GOPINATH BARDOLOI

Sevagram,

November 20, 1944

DEAR BARDOLOI,

I have your letter with enclosures. Concentrate on producing a solid scheme for villages and the names and qualifications of those who would work it. If you can do that there might be no difficulty about funds even if you exceed your allotment. But you must be prepared for a stiff test. Don’t take a full bite at once and face disaster.

_Yours,

BAPU_

SHRI GOPINATH BARDOLOI

GAUHATI

ASSAM

From a photostat: C.W. 10493. Courtesy: Omeyo Kumar Das

---

1 Ex-Premier of Assam
285. LETTER TO F. J. CURTERI

SEVAGRAM, INDIA,
November 20, 1944

DEAR FRIEND,

I thank you for your letter and the interesting enclosures.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

F. J. CURTERI, ESQ.
425, 112 WEST DORAN
GRENADA 3
CALIFORNIA, U. S. A.

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

286. LETTER TO A. KALESHWARA RAO

SEVAGRAM,
November 20, 1944

DEAR KALESHWARA RAO,

I see that I cannot bear the burden you want me to shoulder about Rajagopalarao. You should have no difficulty in bearing it.

Yours,
BAPU

SHRI KALESHWARA RAO
NANDIGRAM

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

287. LETTER TO CHIEF SECRETARY, GOVERNMENT OF C. P.

November 20, 1944

SIR,

Perhaps the Government are aware that I am intimately connected with the institutions\(^1\) described in the enclosed\(^2\) which has been prepared at my request. The figures are necessarily approximate.

\(^1\) Nalawadi and Paunar Ashrams; vide, letter to the addressee, 7-1-1945.
\(^2\) This is not available.
Apart from the question of the legality of the confiscations and without prejudice to the rights of parties interested to claim damages for losses sustained, I venture to suggest that the properties described in the enclosed may be returned to the trustees, so that the constructive and creative activities providing means of livelihood to those for whom they were designed may be resumed as before and further deterioration may be prevented.

I am,
Yours faithfully,
M. K. GANDHI

Encl. 1
THE CHIEF SECRETARY TO THE C. P. GOVERNMENT
NAGPUR

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

288. LETTER TO HIRABHAI S. AMIN

SEVAGRAM,
November 20, 1944

BHAI HARIBHAI [sic].

I have seen Chi. Jeram’s letter to you. Everyone here is pleased with the service he has rendered. I approve of his desire to learn painting. However I cannot use for this purpose the money that lies with me. But I think it would not be wrong if you encouraged him in his endeavour. The present generation will certainly want to have freedom in the choice of education, etc., when it comes of age. Whatever elders do—except the restraint they exercise upon those going astray—can hardly be anything but coercion.

Vandemataram from
M. K. GANDHI

HIRABHAI S. AMIN
TARAPORE

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Jeram Patel

VOL. 85 : 2 OCTOBER, 1944 - 3 MARCH, 1945 187
289. LETTER TO BALVANTSINHA

November 20, 1944

CHI. BALVANTSINHA,

You have rightly cautioned me.¹ I shall do what I can. The result will be what we all deserve.

Who knows what will happen tomorrow? Ramji hadn’t known what was to happen the next morning. You may return after straightening out things there and setting your mind at rest.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 1950

290. LETTER TO SATYAVATI

SEVAGRAM,

November 20, 1944

CHI. SATYAVATI,

Received your letter.

Chi. Chandrani has arrived here. But since I am observing silence I cannot speak to her today.

You may go to Lahore if there is no answer from the Government and if they impose humiliating restrictions you may break them. It will be best if they allow you to come here, then we shall see what happens. Go to jail if they imprison you and there even if you meet your death it doesn’t matter. In death too the victory will be yours; it is yours even as it is. I do not see any point now in complying with the restrictions imposed by the Government. Write to them plainly that your primary duty is to recover your health. I have assumed responsibility for Chandrani.

Blessings from

BAPU

From the Hindi original: C.W. 10234. Courtesy: Brijkrishna Chandiwala

¹ The addressee had offered some suggestions about the Ashram administration.
291. LETTER TO KALAVATI

Sevagram,
November 20, 1944

Chi. Kalavati¹,

Chi. Anand has given me Rs. 10 on your behalf and has also told me all about you. Remember, we are after all made up of this country’s soil. We belong to the starving millions. And so you should lead a simple life and be one with God.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: C.W. 10584. Courtesy: Anand T. Hingorani

292. LETTER TO A. C. PATWARDHAN

Sevagram,
November 20, 1944

Bhai Patwardhan,

How can I write to Bhaiya? I have no preferences. I have agreed to take up the responsibility only out of love—provided both the parties are willing.²

I treasure many sweet memories of the late Abhyankar. Reduced to words they will lose much of their worth.

Blessings from
BAPU

A. C. Patwardhan
“TARUN BHARAT”
NAGPUR

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

293. LETTER TO V. G. SAHASRABUDDHE

Sevagram,
November 20, 1944

Bhai Sahasrabuddhe,

I have your frank letter. I am helpless. Only today I received Patwardhan’s letter. He says that I should arbitrate in this dispute also.

¹ Anand T. Hingorani’s sister
² Vide the following item.
I shall do so provided you are also willing. Patwardhan writes that you will agree only if I write to you. I have written to him that it is not my job. I have no wish to undertake this responsibility but I shall agree to arbitrate out of love provided both the parties are willing. And that too on the condition that I should have written statements from both the parties. I cannot accept oral statements. And you must allow me six months’ time for the verdict. If you agree please inform him and send me the statements and the letter of authority.

Blessings from
BAPU

V. G. SAHASRABUDDHE
KHADI VASTRALAYA
NAGPUR

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

294. NOTE TO ANAND T. HINGORANI

November 20, 1944

I saw Vidya’s mobile samadhi. It is good but I am inclined towards the simple and subtle. Let it be if you get peace and solace from it. It is also transient and if you can free yourself of attachment for it your love for Vidya will become further purified. You will better understand Vidya’s true nature and your oneness will become clearer. A photograph shows difference. By identifying yourself with the unmanifest Vidya, that is with her spirit, non-difference can be attained. If you can keep the ashes in a little box which can be put in a pocket you may do so. You do not have to do this because I am saying so, but only if you yourself fully understand its meaning and its importance. Only then can it profit you. What I mean is your peace and your joy should increase more with this sacrifice. If this does not happen then let things be as they are.

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Hindi. Courtesy: National Archives of India and Anand T. Hingorani

1 Memorial

THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
295. LETTER TO AMRIT KAUR

November 21, 1944

CHI. AMRIT,

Your letter came in today.

You have to submit to the relief in instalments for the sake of your brothers. Amid conflict of duties, the choice is often a very delicate affair. In every case you will be cheerful and keep your body in a fit condition. The climate there must be most bracing. I hope you had a good time with Kamalnayan¹.

I am well. Sushila has gone to Bombay to see Mathuradas. She is due any day now.

Love.

BAPU

From the original: C.W. 4149. Courtesy: Amrit Kaur. Also G.N. 7784

296. LETTER TO C. V. RAJAGOPALACHARI

SEVAGRAM,

November 21, 1944

DEAR SHRI RAJAGOPALACHARI,

I have your letter of the 18th inst. and also your pamphlet.

I hold the concluding paragraph of your last letter to be offensive. However, let me say briefly that when I wrote the article referred to by you, so far as I recall past events, I had not Rajaji’s opinion in mind. My correction was a correlated reflection of my mind.

I have no place in the Congress for several years past. I never court publicity. A sense of duty compels me sometimes to write. I have no desire to enter into a public discussion about the matters raised by you.

Yours truly,

SHRI C. V. RAJAGOPALACHARI
BUCKINGHAMPET
BEZWADA

From a copy : Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

¹ Jamnalal Bajaj’s eldest son
297. LETTER TO KUSUM GANDHI

SEVAGRAM,
November 21, 1944

CHI. KUSUM.

Your letter after many days. It was well you spared me. Naturally I remember you very often. It is precisely for your sake that Narandas refrains from coming to me. If he himself comes whom should he bring along and whom should he leave behind? Besides, what is the point in our meeting? All of you there are busy rendering service which is more valuable than our meeting each other. I have Narandas’s letter as also Jamna’s. I am not writing to either. Kanu and Abha are fine. For my part I have given them permission to go there but they will not for some time.

Blessings from

BAPU

[C/o] NARANDAS GANDHI
RAJKOT

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

298. LETTER TO BALKRISHNA P. PATHAK

SEVAGRAM,
November 21, 1944

BHAII BALKRISHNA PATHAK.

True, I had close contact with the late Anandshankarbai. My greetings for the unveiling of his portrait. But will the University be content with unveiling his portrait by way of commemorating him or will every teacher and student endeavour to follow his noble qualities?

---

1 Daughter of Vrajlal Gandhi
2 Wife of Narandas Gandhi
3 A. B. Dhruta (1869-1942); Sanskrit scholar and Gujarati man of letters; Pro-Vice-Chancellor, Benares Hindu University
This came off my pen in Gujarati. If a Hindi rendering is necessary do it yourself.

Vandemataram from
M. K. Gandhi

DR. B. P. PATHAK
AYURVEDIC COLLEGE
BENARES HINDU UNIVERSITY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

299. LETTER TO SHARDA G. CHOKHAWALA

SEVAGRAM,
November 21, 1944

CHI. BABUDI,

I have your letter. You went away too soon after you arrived. I could not listen to your little confidences. I am reduced to a difficult and awkward position. The days when I could give individual satisfaction can be said to be almost over. For the present I see no possibility of getting anything better than the dharmashala where you have been accommodated. I hope Anand’s does not make a nuisance of himself. I trust you are keeping well.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHARDABEHN CHOKHAWALA
BIRLA’S DHARMASHALA
BOMBAY

From a photostat of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

300. LETTER TO SUJATA

SEVAGRAM,
November 22, 1944

DEAR SUJATA,

Amrit Babu is leaving tomorrow. From the account he gives me of your activity I see you are doing good work. May God bless you for it.

Love to you all.

BAPU

From a photostat: C.W. 10511

1 Addressee’s son

VOL. 85 : 2 OCTOBER, 1944 - 3 MARCH, 1945  193
301. LETTER TO J. C. GUPTA

SEVAGRAM,
November 22, 1944

DEAR GUPTA,

When I saw in the papers months ago a reference to a lawyer brilliantly arguing his case before the Federal Court, I never knew that you had the honour to own that lawyer as your son. May his marriage be a blessing to him and his future wife. I congratulate her on her choice.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

SHRI J. C. GUPTA
23 CIRCUS AVENUE
CALCUTTA

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

302. LETTER TO JYOTILAL A. MEHTA

SEVAGRAM,
November 22, 1944

BHAI JYOTI,

Your letter is fine. Obviously what you say is correct. I also know that the Bungalow has changed hands. I have raised only a question of dharma.¹ If you sell the property I shall have to bear it without a word.

Who is Keshubhai? I cannot understand why Qureshi should turn inimical. I am writing to him.

I consider it intolerable that anyone should disfigure the Bungalow. I should also consider it wrong on the part of anyone who appropriates the Bungalow. Arrange, if you can, for the property to cease to be negotiable. But you may sell it if it will safeguard Champa’s interests and if you think that it will not tarnish Doctor’s name. I have a letter from Maganbhai of which I am sending you a copy. Just now I am not in a position to arbitrate.

\(Blessings\ from\ BAPU\)

J. A. MEHTA
Jyoti & Co.
Morvi

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

303. LETTER TO MAGANLAL P. MEHTA

November 22, 1944

CHI. MAGAN,

I had your letter. I have written to Champa’s adviser.\(^1\) I will forward the reply to you. I am not in a condition just now to take up a long inquiry. I am buried under public work. Hope you are all happy.

\(Blessings\ from\ BAPU\)

SHRI MAGANLAL PRANJIVAN MEHTA, BARRISTER
82 GHODBUNDAR ROAD
ANDHERI, B.B. & C.I. RLY.

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 1031. Courtesy: Manjula M. Mehta

304. LETTER TO KUSUM M. KOTHARI

Sevagram,

November 22, 1944

CHI. KUSUM,

I got you letter. How do you meet your expenses? Where you are? You and your sisters should not give up your studies.

\(Blessings\ from\ BAPU\)

KUSUM MANILAL KOTHARI
TAKHTESHWAR PLOT
BHAVNAGAR

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

\(^1\) Vide the preceding item.
305. LETTER TO LIMAYE

SEVAGRAM,
November 22, 1944

Bhai Limaye,

It is disturbing that both of you keep indifferent health. The only consolation is that you have two doctors with you. Please come when you are free.

I feel that we cannot let those who sell uncertified khadi also have Congress agency. It is not a matter of rules but of morals. You however have to work as the local committee directs.

It is good that you have taken up the work of Nayee Talim. About this when you come.

Chi. Balmohan must be progressing well.

Blessings from

Bapu

Acharya Limaye
925 Sadashivpeth
Poona 2

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

306. LETTER TO SUBHADRADEVI

SEVAGRAM,
November 22, 1944

Chi. Subhadra,

I have your sorrowful letter. I have written to Dr. Baldev.¹ I shall write to you if I hear anything from him. What else can I do? What could I do for you if I called you here? Nothing is definite about me. God alone is our true help. He will protect you.

Blessings from

Bapu

Subhadra Devi
C/o Amritdhara [Pharmacy]
Lahore

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹Vide “Letter to Dr. Baldev”, 16-11-1944.
307. NOTE TO ANAND T. HINGORANI

November 22, 1944

Do not take to heart what Mother says. All mothers say things like this. Laugh over it.

To worship God in His invisible form, watch the stars every night and look at the sun early in the morning. Mingle Vidya with the vision. Has not Vidya too gone up? The Saptarshi is there and so is the Arundhati. Though it is an imagination it helps.

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Hindi. Courtesy: National Archives of India and Anand T. Hingorani

308. LETTER TO TOTARAM HINGORANI

SEVAGRAM,
November 23, 1944

MY DEAR TOTARAMJI,

Anand is somewhat reconciled to Vidya’s death. He sees that a soul does not die with the dissolution of the body. His one and real unhappiness is that you are not reconciled to your wife. As a dutiful son the grief is natural to him. Is there no possibility of reconciliation? Pardon me for this intrusion. I feel for Anand.

Yours sincerely,

From a microfilm. Courtesy: National Archives of India and Anand T. Hingorani

309. LETTER TO T. R. NARSIMHACHAR

SEVAGRAM,
November 23, 1944

DEAR FRIENDS

I thank you for your cautions. Everyone is useful. I shall not enter upon the fast unless I have the clearest possible call from the

1 Ursa Major
2 A star near Ursa Major
3 Anand T. Hingorani’s father inner voice which is God.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

SHRI T. R. NARSHIMHACHARJI OF TIRUPATI
SRIRANGAM

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

310. LETTER TO JETHALAL G. SAMPAT

SEVAGRAM, WARDHA,
November 23, 1944

CHI. JETHALAL,

I am not at all in a condition to write to anybody, but how can I remain without sending you an acknowledgement? I got your detailed letter. I hope you will be able to make your way through the difficulties. You must have written to Jajuji.

Blessings from
BAPU

From the Gujarati original: C.W. 9872. Courtesy: Narayan J. Sampat

311. LETTER TO MANILAL GANDHI

[November 23, 1944]

CHI. MANILAL,

This cable [from Sushila] has been just received on the telephone. I suppose it means that you should not go. But we need not act on that. Nothing is definite about the fast. If it comes, Sushila may be with me at the time instead of you.

From Gujarati: C.W. 1354. Courtesy: Sushila Gandhi

1From the C.W. Register
312. LETTER TO MARUTI SHARMA

SEVAGRAM,
November 23, 1944

CHI. MARUTI,

I was happy to have your letter. It was wise of you to have cancelled your plans of coming here. Who but Bapa would accommodate you? I have not seen many people whose generosity can match Dada’s [and] Bapa’s. Do as he bids. It is certainly a fine idea to build yourself a house. It is right that you and Lakshmi practise abstention. In the present circumstances it is better not to go about meeting people. It is our duty to save every single pie. I hope the children are fine.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

313. LETTER TO SUMITRA GANDHI

SEVAGRAM,
November 23, 1944

CHI. SUMI,

I reach your fine letter, which I have preserved since October 21, right up to this day. For a long time I had intended to do you justice. But now I don’t have the time, so I shall make do with this little note. See that you get yourself the right food. Keep writing to me regularly. I hope you are fine. Keep the promises you have made me. Have you made friends with any of the girls? Take care of your eyes.

Blessings from
BAPU

[P.S]
I just got your letter. How did Mathuri² happen to fall ill? I hope she is all right now.

KUM. SUMITRA RAMDAS GANDHI
BIRLA SCHOOL
PILANI

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ An inmate of the Satyagraha Ashram at Sabarmati, married to Gandhiji’s adopted daughter, Lakshmi, a Harijan
² Mathuri Narayan Khare
314. LETTER TO NATHTHUBHAI PAREKH

Sevagram
November 23, 1944

Bhai Naththubhai,

I have your letter full of affection. This is only to acknowledge receipt of it. I just don’t have the time to write more. Writing even this little thing is burdensome, but how can I forget you?

Blessings from
Bapu

Naththubhai Parekh
C/o Kishore Brothers
Bangalore

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

315. LETTER TO SUNDERLAL

Sevagram,
November 23, 1944

Bhai Sunderlal,

Received your letter. I had read about your case in the newspapers.¹ I felt sorry. Is there no scope for an appeal? What does Dr. Sapru say?

I understand what you say regarding the Hindustani Prachar [Sabha]. Dr. Tara Chand² could not join it, but do invite Dr. Abdul Haq Saheb³ to come. Even though there are Muslim members in the Sabha, Abdul Haq Saheb ought to be there.

I have occasionally noticed the activities of the Hindustani Culture Society. We should welcome whatever people are able to do. I note that your lectures are going on. They must be having a good...

¹ After the ban on the addressee’s book Bharatmen Angrezi Raj was lifted, it was reprinted by another publisher. This led to litigation in which the addressee lost the case. Later an appeal was filed leading to a compromise. T. B. Sapru had pleaded the addressee’s case.
² Head of the Department of History and Politics, Allahabad University
³ President, Anjuman Taraqui-e-Urdu impact.
Come whenever you can.

Blessings from
BAPU

PANDIT SUNDERLALJI
8 TUKOGANJ MAIN ROAD
INDORE

From the Hindi original: C.W. 10264. Courtesy: Purushottam Prasad

316. LETTER TO KHWAJA A. HAMID

SEVAGRAM,
November 23, 1944

BHAJ HAMID,

Why in English? I can read Urdu written in a clear hand. I can also write it but with some difficulty. I am writing to you in Hindi hoping that you can read the language. I have gone through your letter thoroughly. What have I to discuss with the nationalist [Muslims]? I can meet the nationalists only if I can bring something from Jinnah Saheb. I did not go to him to surrender the rights of the nationalists. Our duty is to reach, if possible, an agreement with the League, is it not?

Yours,
M. K. GANDHI

KHWAJA A. HAMID
BYCULLA
BOMBAY

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

317. LETTER TO AKBARALI I. LOKHANDWALA

SEVAGRAM,
November 24, 1944

BHAJ AKBARALI,

I have your letter. What advice, much less help, can I offer you? I don’t even fully understand this kind of work. I am sorry that you are in trouble and that things are getting worse. May God soon relieve you from your troubles.

Blessings from
M. K. GANDHI

AKBARALI ISMAILJI LOKHANDWALA
GODHRA

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

318. LETTER TO GOPE GURBUXANI

November 25, 1944

DEAR DR. GURBUX.
Please wait till I am free. Send me a reminder at the end of December.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat: G.N. 1319

319. LETTER TO K. RENGARAJAN

November 25, 1944

DEAR FRIEND,
You should have mercy on me. I am one and senders of papers are many. How can I cope with the work except by excluding much unsolicited matter?

Yours truly,
M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat: C.W. 10232. Courtesy: Gandhi Seva Sangh, Sevagram

320. LETTER TO KAILAS HAKOOR

SEVAGRAM,
November 25, 1944

DEAR SIR KAILAS,
I am late in acknowledging your kind letter of 28th ultimo. I am so much pressed for time. I send these lines to thank you for your letter.

Pray don’t be anxious about the contemplated fast. It won’t come except in answer to a call from God.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

SIR KAILAS HAKOOR
SIMLA

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

321. LETTER TO KRISHNABAI NIMBKAR

SEVAGRAM,
November 25, 1944

DEAR KRISHNABAI,

I am late in answering your letter. I see you are incorrigible. Obstinacy is both a virtue and a vice. Which it is depends on circumstances. In your case I would fain believe that it is a virtue. You ask for permission to do certain things. Who am I to give or withhold permission? I can only advise where advice is sought. I have given you my answers.

Your attack on Rajaji is ill-founded.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

SMT. KRISHNABAI NIMBKAR
192 POONAMALLEE HIGH ROAD
VEPERY, MADRAS

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

322. LETTER TO JETHALAL JOSHI

November 25, 1944

Bhai Jethalal Joshi,

I could not reply to your letter immediately. I have received other letters similar to yours and I am drafting a statement with reference to them. Please read it.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 1353

1 Vide “Statement to the Press”, 27-11-1944.
323. LETTER TO MANILAL GANDHI

November 25, 1944

CHI. MANILAL,

I have your letter. I was glad to hear that all of you reached there safely. I am better now. Now in place of Kanu Sushilabehn sleeps here. The massage and bath are given by Kanaiyo. Krishna’s teeth caused some anxiety, He had some relief after Sushila arrived. He had sound sleep last night. I have accommodated him in Rustom Bhavan. Your decision to go is perfectly correct. I am in God’s hands. I have started sleeping in the verandah since last night. Do not worry about me in the least. I sent you Sushila’s cable. I wrote a couple of words below it.¹ You must have received it by now. My blessings to Kishorelal and Gomati and the rest. Let no one worry about me.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI MANILAL GANDHI
C/O SHRI NIRMALABEHN SHROFF
ISHVARDAS MANSION
BLOCK-A, 5TH FLOOR
NANA CHOWK, GAMDEVI
BOMBAY

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 4940

324. LETTER TO PURUSHOTTAM GANDHI

SEVAGRAM,
November 25, 1944

CHI. PURUSHOTTAM,

I like your letter very much. You can take both the examinations. You will see a statement that I am issuing.

I have correctly understood what you write about music. You should not take anything from the Harijan Sevak Sangh. You should cease to be a burden. Service of Harijans is the warp and woof of our lives. Music is your life’s mission. It is the legacy left by Panditji². Merge yourself into music. I should regard it not at all improper if you earned your maintenance through it. But I am prepared to write to Jivanlal if right now you are shrinking from doing it. He is a sound and dependable person and your relationship with him is not confined to that of a father-in-law and son-in-law. Hence you need not be embarrassed if he pays your expenses for the sake of your music. I shall not write without your consent. You may also consult Narandas and let me know if both of you think of something else. I know that Vijaya is fully co-operating with you. I had also learnt that Aruna is progressing. You are lucky. Acquire full control over your body. Charge only those who are rich and not the poor.

¹ Vide letter to the addressee, 23-11-1944.
² Narayan Moreshwar Khare

Blessings from
BAPU

PURUSHOTTAM N. GANDHI
RAIKOT

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

325. LETTER TO SATYACHARAN

SEVAGRAM,
November 25, 1944

BHAI SATYACHARANJi
I have your letter. I am considering what I ought to do. I am also having a talk with Ghanshyam Singji.

Yours,
M. K. GANDHI

SATYACHARANJi
D. A. V. HIGH SCHOOL
ALLAHABAD

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

326. LETTER TO V. N. BARVE

SEVAGRAM,
November 25, 1944

BHAI BARVEJI,
I had your letter. With such a rush of work I forget whether or not I have replied to the letters. I value your Harijan service highly. I

1 Addressee’s wife and daughter admit that our work is proceeding very slowly. I do not know how to quicken its pace.

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

V. N. BARVE
PRESIDENT, HARIJAN SEVAK SANGH
DHULIA

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

327. LETTER TO KONDA VENKATAPPAYYA

SEVAGRAM,
November 26, 1944

DEAR KONDA VENKATAPPAYYA GARU,

Bapu was delighted to see your letter of 4th instant. He was sorry to learn that you are not keeping well. You have got to keep well.

He is not anxious to undertake a fast. He is praying for light.

Yours sincerely,

PYARELAL

DESHABHAKTA KONDA VENKATAPPAYYA
GUNTUR

From a photostat: G.N. 3227

328. LETTER TO T. N. AVINASHILINGAM

SEVAGRAM,
November 26, 1944

DEAR FRIEND,

Gandhiji had your letter of 3rd November.

With regard to the Kulasekharapattanam rioting case he is of opinion that the appeal ought to be filed in the Privy Council. He wants to know what the probable costs would be and the extent of assistance that would be required.

Yours sincerely,

PYARELAL

SHRI T. N. AVINASHILINGAM
13-A FEROZESHAH ROAD
NEW DELHI

THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
[P.S.]
I have just finished Ranga’s thing. I am taking up yours next without any further delay.

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library.
Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

329. LETTER TO ANNE MARIE PETERSEN
Sevagram, “via” Wardha,
November 26, 1944

DEAR SISTER,

Bapu was very glad to have your letter of 3rd inst. He is sorry he cannot write to you himself as he has been forced to further curtail his work owing to overstrain. In fact he has almost reached the limit of his capacity and has had nature’s warning signals which he cannot ignore.

He does not want to undertake a fast, but he is faced with a moral dilemma and he is praying to God for light. He will not undertake the fast unless he has the clearest indication that it is the will of God.

I hope you had a favourable response from the trustees of the Kasturba Memorial Fund with regard to your proposal about your school.

What you write about Ba is but too true.

You will certainly come whenever you feel like coming.

Yours sincerely,

PYARELAL

SISTER MARIA
SEVA MANDIR
PROTO NOVO

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library.
Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

1 Vide footnote of “Interview to N. G. Ranga”, 29-10-1944.
2 The addressee, a former member of the Danish Mission, had founded an ashram—a school for girls—at Porto Novo.
330. STATEMENT TO THE PRESS

SEVAGRAM,
November 27, 1944

At present, the Hindustani prachar work is being carried on in Gujarat by Shri Amritlal Nanavati. This work is in accordance with the scheme prepared by Kakasaheb in consultation with me. Hindi prachar work is being conducted by the Rashtrabhasha Prachar Samiti, Wardha, appointed by the Hindi Sahitya Sammelan. Both these activities are supposed to be undertaken for spreading the national language. I regard myself as the founder of the Hindustani Prachar Sabha. In 1925, the resolution about Hindustani was passed at the Cawnpore session of the Indian National Congress. But no attempt was made to act upon the resolution. The Hindustani Prachar Sabha was, therefore, established in Wardha on the 2nd May, 1942. The Sabha has defined Hindustani as follows:

Hindustani is that language which the Hindus, Muslims and all other people of villages and towns in Northern India speak, understand and use for mutual intercourse, which is written and read in both the Nagari and the Persian scripts, and the literary forms of which are recognized today as Hindi and Urdu.¹

But before the work of the Sabha could be started properly, many people of the country, including the founders of the Sabha, were thrust into jails on account of the August Resolution¹ of the Congress. Shri Nanavati was not in jail, and he felt that he should start the Hindustani prachar work. In my opinion he has served the country by doing this work.

Hindi and Urdu are the two literary styles of the same national language. These two styles are, at present, diverging from each other. From the point of view of Rashtrabhasha—Hindustani—it is necessary to bring these two styles nearer to each other. Without the knowledge of both these styles and the scripts this is impossible to achieve.

¹ This was issued on January 10, 1945, by Shriman Narayan, Honorary General Secretary, All-India Hindustani Prachar Sabha, in order to remove misunderstandings about the object and work of the Sabha. The Gujarati original appeared in Gujarati Samachar, 2-12-1944.
² Gujarati Samachar has this paragraph in Hindi.
³ Vide Appendix “Resolution Passed by All-India Congress Committee”, 8-8-1942.
The venom of Hindu-Muslim differences has entered the sphere of language as well. I have been possessed with the idea of Hindu-Muslim unity ever since my childhood. In order to eliminate this poison of disunity in the domain of language, it is necessary to learn both the styles and the scripts. If the Congress desires to conduct its work without English—and this must be done—it is the duty of each Congressman to learn both the styles and the scripts. This will result in the happy fusion of Hindi and Urdu, and the language that will thus evolve will be the natural Hindustani.

A question is asked whether the enthusiasm for learning both the styles and the scripts should be among both the Hindus and Muslims or only in one of them. A misunderstanding lurks behind this question. Those who make progress in the knowledge of languages will stand to gain: those who do not will be the losers. Moreover, he who cherishes unity will take special pains to know both the styles and the scripts. It should also be remembered that, in provinces like the Punjab, the Hindus, Muslims and all others know only Urdu. To know at least this much is the duty of every patriot. In a vast country like India, the more languages we strive to learn the better equipped shall we become for national service.

Should both the scripts and the styles be learnt by national workers and Congressmen only or by all?

My answer to this question is that all Indians should become Congressmen, and thus everybody should learn both the styles and the scripts. In fact, the very question is irrelevant, because only a very limited number of men and women have so far developed this hobby of learning the national language. We cannot go into raptures over the fact that a few thousands or a few lakhs of people appear at the Rashtrabhasha examinations. Even the number of persons in the non-Hindi and non-Urdu areas who desire to learn only Hindi or Urdu is not sufficient to satisfy our ambition.

Is it not enough that those who desire to learn Urdu should do so through the Anjuman¹ and those who desire to learn Hindi should do so through the Hindi Sahitya Sammelan?

Not at all. It was precisely because of this that the Congress passed the resolution on Hindustani and the need of establishing the Hindustani Prachar Sabha was felt. The scopes of both the institutions (Sammelan and Anjuman) are restricted, and from my point of view, narrow as well. It is my cherished desire that both these sister institutions should co-operate with each other. When that auspicious

¹ Anjuman Taraqui-e-Urdu day will really dawn, the work of the Hindustani Prachar Sabha will be deemed to be over. So long as this situation does not arise, the Hindustani Prachar Sabha should continue to perform its duty. I do hope that these two sister associations will not only tolerate but also welcome this third sister institution which seeks to establish unity between them.

In Gujarat many workers who are at present engaged in Hindi and Hindustani prachar work are my colleagues. Some of them have sought my guidance. This statement is my guidance to them. If those who are working for the Wardha Samiti of the Hindi Sahitya Sammelan agree with my views on Hindustani prachar, they should take up this work as well. They can certainly teach and coach for the Sammelan examinations those students who desire to learn only the Hindi style and the Devanagari script. But they themselves should popularize both the styles and the scripts and should also try to persuade as many persons as they can to do the same. So far as language is connected with the welfare of the nation, I regard Hindustani prachar work to be most essential. There should never develop any conflict between the two activities (of Hindi and Hindustani).

Now a question arises as to what should be done by those who have so far learnt or may learn in future only Hindi or only Urdu. Such persons should learn the other style or script and sit for the Hindustani examinations which are to be conducted in both the scripts. Those who have already learnt one style and script will find it very easy to answer the question papers.

The Hindu, 15-1-1945

331. LETTER TO MALIK WAHID

SEVAGRAM,

November 27, 1944

DEAR FRIEND,

You will please forgive me for being late in replying to your letter of 1st ultimo.

Munshiji¹ cannot be disqualified for holding certain political views. He has rendered assistance to the trust in a variety of ways.

¹ K. M. Munshi
I thank you for your good wishes.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

MALIK WAHID SAHEB
JOGESHWARI
B. S. D.

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

332. LETTER TO ATULANAND CHAKRAVARTY

SEVAGRAM,
November 27, 1944

DEAR ATULANAND,

Do be merciful to me. Don’t ask me to read anything and don’t seek my opinion. Of course you must pursue your mission, come what will.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

333. LETTER TO BHAGWANDAS

SEVAGRAM,
November 27, 1944

BABOOJI,

I have treasured your letter of 28-9-44 all these days in the hope of answering it. I came across it today while overtaking arrears. You lay upon my shoulders a burden they are ill able to carry. I am ill-equipped for the task you call me to. I hope you are keeping quite well.

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

DR. BHAGWANDAS
BENARES CANT.

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
334. LETTER TO S. M. PINTO

SEVAGRAM,
November 27, 1944

DEAR PINTO,

As to my fast do your duty and leave me in the strong hands of God. Trust Him to guide me aright. I shall do nothing without His guidance. As to the Trust do you not see that the trustees were self-constituted? Their business was to collect from whomsoever gave. Then I came on the scene. I was permitted to add names of those who I thought would carry out the object of the Trust. The whole of India now comes in to see that the money is spent on and for the women and children excluding males beyond an age in the 700,000 villages of India. Here there is no religious or other distinction.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

S. M. PINTO
NATIONALIST CHRISTIAN PARTY
FORT, BOMBAY

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

335. LETTER TO SITA GANDHI

SEVAGRAM,
November 27, 1944

CHI. SITA,

I have your letter. The handwriting is beautiful. You should make your letters slightly bigger. It has now grown pretty cold here. Build up your body with the same devotion with which you are pursuing your studies. Do not be lax about anything.

Blessings to you all from

BAPU

SITA
C/O NANABHAI MASHRUWALA
AKOLA

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Kasturba Gandhi National Memorial Trust
336. LETTER TO BALUBHAI P. MEHTA

SEVAGRAM,
November 27, 1944

BHAI BALUBHAI,

I have your letter. I am no more useful for personal work. My strength is limited. I can hardly cope with public work either. There are hundreds who are afflicted like you. Would I have the time if I set out to meet all of them? One should find out one’s own way out of one’s troubles.

Blessings from

BAPU

B. P. MEHTA
GANJIKHET
NAGPUR

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

337. LETTER TO VIKRAM A. SARABHAI

SEVAGRAM,
November 27, 1944

CHI. VIKRAM,

I have your letter of the 16th. You have taken a lot of pains but the job can be done only if we have power in our hands. A ‘Gallup poll’ is conducted by newspapers and it means nothing. Besides, the number of newspaper readers in our country is so small that a research of this kind will not give any worth-while result. Let us see what the Sapru Committee\(^1\) does.

Blessings from

BAPU

VIKRAM SARABHAI
BANGALORE

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

\(^1\) The Conciliation Committee appointed by the Standing Committee of the Non-party Conference under the Chairmanship of T. B. Sapru, vide Appendix “Letter From T. B. Sapru”(b) and (c) “Names Suggested for Conciliation Committee”.
338. LETTER TO AMRITLAL V. THAKKAR

SEVAGRAM,
November 27, 1944

BAPA,

I have gone through your letter. Some people are capable of sitting idle enjoying their leisure. You are certainly not one of them. Your enjoyment lies in doing work. Well, enjoy yourself Narahari is coming tomorrow and he will examine your statement. Sushilabehn is examining it. It seems it will be delayed to some extent. I hope you are getting some peace of mind. Yesterday Pakvasa' came and took my signature.

BAPU

THAKKAR BAPA
S[ERVANTS OF ] I[NDIA] SOCIETY
POONA

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

339. LETTER TO LILAVATI ASAR

SEVAGRAM,
November 27, 1944

CHI. LILI.

By all means have a mosquito-net. For this you don’t have to go up to the Dean. Whatever the rules, one should observe them ungrudgingly. Of course it is a different matter if they are morally wrong.

It is good that you reported your talk with the Dean, which shows that you must clear all the examinations with perseverance. That is your dharma. Forget Sevagram and devote yourself to your studies. About my fast we shall see when one actually comes up. You have to be guided by the straight line that has been chalked out for you. You are not so much as to glance aside this way or that.

You already sign your letters as ‘obediently’. Well, you have got

1 Mangaldas Pakvasa
my command.

Blessings from

BAPU

LILAVATIBEHN UDESHI
MEDICAL HOSTEL
PAREL, BOMBAY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

340. LETTER TO DR. JIVRAJ MEHTA

November 27, 1944

BHAJ JIVRAJ,

I have your letter. Your worrying about my health is misplaced. It is quite unnecessary to give any importance to the reeling sensations. Nothing would have happened if I were not observing silence. It am exhausted, no doubt. I have therefore increased the amount of rest and I shall go on increasing it if I feel the need. Yes, the stomach is slightly better. But it is an old story, don’t worry about it. I have no desire to move out. The cold does not bother me. There is still the month of December to go. Besides, the echoes from Bengal are resounding in my ears. If the need arises Sushila will send for all three of you.

It is good news that Mathuradas is better.

True, I am no more as keen as I was about the medical section of the Memorial. For the present we are not going to have anything on a large scale here as decided earlier. Let us see what finally comes off. Sushila is trying to do something herself. She is training a few girls, and she will carry on as she thinks right.

Thinking about a board of trustees I see that any scheme coming from outside will necessarily have to be examined. So there will have to be a board. I am considering its final form. You too should think over it and write to me. The onslaught of Ayurveda, homoeopathy, etc., is crushing. All this confuses me. But a way has to be found. I shall watch where we land.

The Charkha Sangh meetings start tomorrow.

I hope you are up on your two feet. I hope Hansabehn¹ and the children are fine.

Blessings from

BAPU

DR. JIVRAJ MEHTA, BOMBAY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Addressee’s wife

VOL.85 : 2 OCTOBER, 1944 - 3 MARCH, 1945

215
341. LETTER TO KAMAL NARAYAN MALAVIYA

November 27, 1944

CHI. KAMAL NARAYAN,

Received your letter. Your suggestion is very good but it is beyond my capacity to carry it out. To establish a school and a library in every village is a Herculean task. I am glad to know that Babuji\(^1\) is well.

Blessings from

M. K. GANDHI

SHRI KAMAL NARAYAN MALAVIYA
BHARTI BHAVAN
ALLAHABAD (U. P.)

From the Hindi original: C.W. 10556. Courtesy: Municipal Museum, Allahabad

342. LETTER TO SHIVLAL GUPTA

Sevagram,
November 27, 1944

BHAI SHIVLAL GUPTAJI,

It is from the Provincial Congress Committee that you should ask for help for Bhai Sant Ram. I am helpless.

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

SHIVLAL GUPTA
JAIPUR

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

\(^1\) Madan Mohan Malaviya
343. LETTER TO TEJRAM BHATT

SEVAGRAM,
November 27, 1944

BHAI TEJRAMJI,

You spend money needlessly. I can no longer attend to personal problems. I cannot look into your case. I have no time at all. Please have mercy on me.

Yours,
M. K. GANDHI

TEJRAM BHATT
DEHRA DUN

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

344. LETTER TO RADHAKANT MALAVIYA

SEVAGRAM,
November 27, 1944

BHAI RADHAKANT1,

What you say is correct. No doubt I promised but now I plead helplessness. I feel exhausted and the burden of work is quite heavy. I know what you want to tell me. Spare me, if you can. Come if you must but after December 5.

M. K. GANDHI

RADHAKANT MALAVIYA
ALLAHABAD

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

345. NOTE TO ANAND T. HINGORANI

November 27, 1944

Inspect everything in Andhra and meet the patients. If you find anything lacking in the matter of sanitation report it to the doctor, undergo the treatment he advises and if you do not find it good come back.

1 Son of Madan Mohan Malaviya

VOL.85 : 2 OCTOBER, 1944 - 3 MARCH, 1945 217
Get to know Babaji\textsuperscript{1} and Gokhaleji who accompanies him and extend whatever help they need. Write to me fully. See what the treatment is. Do not become disheartened if you do not recover your hearing. There is no harm in not hearing. There is harm only in forgetting God.

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Hindi. Courtesy: National Archives of India and Anand T. Hingorani

346. LETTER TO LLOYDS BANK LTD.
November 28, 1944

DEAR SIRS,

Ref: Your letter marked Exchange dated 24-11-1944

With reference to your letter above enclosing your receipt in duplicate dated 24-11-1944, for £539-12-6 in my favour, I have to inform you that I have authorized the Bank of Nagpur Ltd., Wardha, to collect the amount from you.

Yours truly,

M. K. GANDHI

MESSRS LLOYDS BANK LTD.
HORNBY ROAD
BOMBAY

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

347. LETTER TO IFTIKHAR-UD-DIN
SEVAGRAM,
November 28, 1944

DEAR MIAN SAHIB,

Bapu was glad to have yours and Mrs. Iftikhar’s letters. He is too tired to write to all those whom he would like to write. He desires me to thank you both for your kind sentiments.

So far as the fast is concerned, he says he won’t undertake it unless there is a clear call.

\textsuperscript{1}Babaji Moghe
How is your health now? I hope this will find you fully restored.

Yours sincerely,
PYARELAL

MIAN IFTIKHAR-UD-DIN
21 AIKMAN ROAD
LAHORE

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

348. LETTER TO R. K. KARANJIA

November 28, 1944

BHAI KARANJIA,

I have your letter. I read the journal. Is not offering satyagraha also subject to some rules? No satyagraha violating its own rules can be offered even if it were to bring in millions of rupees. One invariable rule is that it is to be offered by one who suffers tyranny. The country should be able to stand by him. I or anybody else who might lead the band of satyagrahis must drift with the current. As things stand now it seems to be impossible.

Blessings from
BAPU

R. K. KARANJIA
BOMBAY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

349. LETTER TO MAHADEV A. HINGORANI

Sevagram,
November 28, 1944

CHI. MAHADEV,

Anand says that you get quite scared at night. Why should you be afraid in the night? God does not sleep at night. He keeps watch for us even while we are asleep, why should we be afraid then? Sleep after reciting Ramanama and have no fear at all.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a microfilm of the Hind. Courtesy: National Archives of India and Anand T. Hingorani

1 Editor of Blitz, a Bombay weekly
350. NOTE TO ANAND T. HINGORANI

SEVAGRAM,
November 28, 1944

You are going not only to have your ears treated but for nature cure in a wider sense. My opinion is that your deafness is closely connected with the state of your mind. Nature cure includes mental activity. In this sense uttering Ramanama, reading the Gita, and so on, are part of nature cure. Perhaps Rajuji’s centre will provide this. I have a feeling that Raju looks at nature cure in a spiritual way. You too should make such an effort. Give up all other thoughts. Go there determined that you will be cured and you will get back your hearing. Take the treatment that Raju advises and eat what he says you should. Do some reading and writing. Leave all thoughts of Vidya, Father, Mother, myself and Mahadev (son). You will be doing good to them all by giving up their thought. Detachment will help cure your ears. Do not think about the ears. Think about work. Try and remove the shortcomings you notice in Raju’s centre. Get to know the patients there. Speak to Gokhale or Babaji. Learn the Gita from them. Learn Telugu. We from the North neglect the four Southern languages. It is a great mistake. In short you are going to Andhra for a new life. You must give there what you have taken from here and you have to bring here what you find there. Do spinning and other allied work regularly. What more? God is with you.

Blessings from
BAPU

[PS]
It will be good if you show this to Gokhale and Babaji. But do as you please.

From a microfilm of the Hindi. Courtesy: National Archives of India and Anand T. Hingorani

Krishnaraju

1
INTERVIEW TO N. G. RANGA

November 28, 1944

At the second interview Prof. Ranga placed before Gandhiji two alternative proposals for the re-organization of the Kisan Sabhas and their co-ordination with the Congress organization. They were:

(1) To include in the kisan councils that may be formed one-third representation from corresponding Congress Committees. This would secure for them the co-operation and the advice of the Congress.

(2) (a) To adopt Congress membership as a basic membership for the kisan organization.

(b) To constitute kisan councils out of rural delegates to the Congress Committees elected as per the present constitution. Such kisan councils would be part of the Congress Committees while retaining their separate Corporate existence for dealing with the problems relating to the kisans.

(c) In addition to Congress members some non-Congress but not anti-Congress members also might be taken on the kisan councils to provide a suitable representation.

He felt that the first formula would be more acceptable than the second to most Kisan Sabhaites. The final clause in the second formula too had the same object in view, namely, to make it acceptable to them.

GANDHIJI: But this is a variation upon what you suggested last time. Then you suggested that the Kisan Sabha will have no member who is not a member of the Congress also.

PROF. RANGA: We want to have in our organization some non Congress kisans also who are not anti-Congress but for various reasons could not afford to join the Congress.

GANDHIJI: Why do you want that? You said that you did not want anything in opposition to the Congress. So, if you have for your members only Congressmen, the kisan organization will deal with matters relating to the rights of kisans as against landlords and employers. It won’t deal with political questions. I thought that I could reconcile myself to it. I said I approached it with hesitation while it was for you to dispel my doubts. So you better stick to your original proposal.

PROF. RANGA: It has been forcibly brought home to us that the Congress people feel nervous about this double membership. So I thought the Kisan Sabha had better remain as a distinct body. Our workers are used to that idea. I have been able to persuade them that so far as politics is concerned we must accept Congress leadership. The idea is that after the Congress elections are over the rural delegates will form themselves into a kisan council. This kisan council will deal with matters relating to the kisans and in politics accept the lead of the Congress.

1 For the earlier interview, vide “Interview to N.G. Ranga”, 29-10-1944.

GANDHIJI: My suggestion is this. You have your own organization where you register all the kisans. As soon as the kisan becomes your member, he becomes also a Congress member. Matters particularly bearing on the kisans and their relationship with the landlords, etc., are then tackled by your organization while political matters will be tackled by the Congress.

PROF. RANGA: In that case may we retain one anna for the kisan council out of the Congress membership fee of four annas?

GANDHIJI: You can do that subject to Congress approval. This would mean that the Congress allows a gratuity of one anna to you for doing this special work. If I were at the head of Congress affairs I would certainly allow it.

PROF. RANGA: In the mean time may we start with one-anna membership from now on the clear understanding that those who are now enrolled are to become members of the Congress as soon as the Congress organization again begins to function? Or we can take five annas from each member now and out of it keep four annas in trust for the Congress.

GANDHIJI: I am afraid you cannot do it today. You must do it openly or not at all. Do not collect the four annas Congress membership fee in advance. I will suggest a better plan which I recommended to Shrimati Rama Devi. Have a register of workers only. Don’t have Congress members just now.

PROF. RANGA: Can’t we have something like a Congress Seva Sangh, an ad hoc body of Congress workers but not Congress members, to carry out Congress work?

GANDHIJI: Yes, you may do that. But seeing that ours is a non-violent body their work will only be to carry on the fifteen-fold constructive programme. That will avoid tussle with the Communists also. Today you are not working for power but as Congress servants. If you carry on your work silently and unostentatiously you become irresistible. No one will come in unless he wants to work with you. There will be no eloquence or Press publicity to attract power seekers.

PROF. RANGA: Eloquence by itself, I admit, is no good but has it not its use when coupled with solid public work?

GANDHIJI: Work by itself is eloquence. Here there are workers in Khadi Vidyalaya, Hindustani Talimi Sangh and the Gram Seva Sangh, working themselves to death. They make no speeches. They speak to the villagers through their activity.
PROF. RANGA: As regards the Communists they have done a lot of harm so far as kisan work is concerned and as a result have become very unpopular. There are two kisan organizations in Andhra, one Congress-minded, the other Communist. So far as we are concerned we keep the Communists out of our organization.

GANDHIJI: You won’t be able to keep anybody out of primary membership by merely making rules. But you can keep out trouble if you work on the lines I have indicated.

The Hindu, 23-1-1945

352. MESSAGE TO STUDENTS’ CONFERENCE

[Before November 29, 1944]

The fourteen-point programme is dear to Gandhiji and if you can implement it and give it a dynamic drive you will advance the country towards freedom, peace and progress. The blessings always go to workers in the cause of freedom.

The Bombay Chronicle, 1-12-1944

353. LETTER TO AMRIT KAUR

SEVAGRAM,

November 29, 1944

My heart goes out to you all. Give my love to Maud. She is brave. I hope that the impending examination will show nothing worse. How has Beryl taken the thing? Shummy must be soldier-like and face all this bravely. Of you what shall I say? Do send me a cheerful wire, if you can.

Love.

BAPU

From the original: C.W. 4203. Courtesy: Amrit Kaur. Also G.N. 7839

---

1 This was sent by Pyarelal. The Conference was scheduled to be held at Allahabad on December 2 and 3.
2 The report appeared under the date-line “Allahabad, November 29, 1944”.
3 This is a postscript to Sushila Nayyar’s letter to the addressee dated November 29, 1944.
4 Consort of Maharaja of Kapurthala
5 The addressee’s sister-in-law, Raniji, had undergone an operation and was to be treated at the Tata Memorial Cancer Hospital, Bombay.
6 Maud’s daughter
7 Shamshere Singh, addressee’s brother
354. LETTER TO RAMNARAYAN PATHAK

SEVAGRAM,
November 29, 1944

Bhai Ramnarayan,

I had asked you to write again regarding the Hindustani Prachar Sabha. There were other letters too, on the basis of which I have issued a statement which both of you should see, and write to me if you have anything to say. You ought to get some guidance.

Blessings from

Bapu

Ramnarayan Pathak
Ellisbridge
Ahmedabad

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

355. LETTER TO KALANGI

SEVAGRAM,
November 29, 1944

Bhai Kalangi,

I have your letter as well as the money order. I hope you will get this letter. One cannot put an end to the misery of the masses by ending one’s life in the way you describe. A number of things happen in the world to which we are helpless witnesses. We should do our utmost and leave the rest to God. He also bears with whatever His creation does, doesn’t He? You have no idea at all about what I do and what I refrain from doing. Therefore I would advise you to give up your idea of suicide. If you want I shall return the money.

M. K. Gandhi

Sit. Kalanj [sic]
Fire Service 2
Uttarpada
Dist. Hoogly

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Vide “Statement to the Press”, 27-11-1944.
356. LETTER TO H. L. SHARMA

SEVAGRAM,
November 29, 1944

CHI. SHARMA,

There is a letter from Bhai Vichitra\(^1\) from which I gather that you have raised a grand structure. But you have no one to help you. The question is what and how much you will be able to do by yourself. Who can bear your expenses? How and from where can I draw money for what does not look promising? I am convinced that you should do what you can with your own efforts. At times I feel that I have entered your life only to disorganize it. You belong neither here nor there which means you have lost your moorings. Now forget me and make your own decision. I shall make the final decision regarding the trust after hearing from you.

Blessings from

BAPU

HIRALAL SHARMA
SURYA CHIKITSALAYA
KHURJA

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

357. LETTER TO VANAMALA N. PARIKH

7.15 a.m., November 30, 1944

These chapters\(^2\) are not bad, but they do not come up to my expectations. Perhaps I should not have entertained those expectations. I have not permitted you to have enough experience or education for that. You could certainly have worked harder. Since you are not lethargic, I assume that you did not get the necessary time for putting in more work. Now revise the Writing at the places I have indicated and hand over the manuscript to Jivanji\(^3\) to deal with it as he likes. You need not at all feel discouraged.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 5845. Also C.W. 3068. Courtesy: Vanamala M. Desai

\(^1\) Vichitra Narayan Singh
\(^2\) Of Amaran Ba
\(^3\) Jivanji D. Desai, Manager, Navajivan Press
358. LETTER TO K. M. MUNSHI

SEVAGRAM,
November 30, 1944

BHAI MUNSHI,

I have had a talk with Rajaji. The position is as I have explained, namely, that the Princes can preserve their independence and Pakistan can exist only if British power remains. How can I tolerate this? It means that a part of India can be independent, and the British rule will continue in the States ruled by the Princes and in the Muslim majority Provinces. I can never be a willing witness to this. I cannot understand how you can be. You may, if you wish, meet Rajaji and seek clarification. I have stated here the position as I have understood it. See that in trying to secure something you do not lose everything. Go thoroughly into the details.

Sarala¹ must be doing fine.

Blessings from

BAPU²

From Gujarati: C.W. 7684. Courtesy: K. M. Munshi

359. LETTER TO DEVDAS GANDHI

SEVAGRAM,
November 30, 1944

CHI. DEVDAS,

I have your letter. Rajaji does not feel inclined to go there. His health is impaired. He would not be able to stand the Delhi cold. There is nothing specifically wrong with his health, only he is not keeping robust health. He has made changes in his diet. You and whoever else wants to see him should come over here.

I am also preparing to take a little rest. I think I will stick to this place but stop doing any work. Rajaji strongly insists on it. He has well spread his fragrance in Nagpur. Dr. Mahmud is fairly well although he has grown weak. He is taking Pandit Shiv Sharma’s

¹ Addressee’s eldest daughter
² The letter bears the following instruction: “Send this with anyone going to Bombay.”
prescriptions. Krishnadas had to bear a lot of pain in having some of his teeth extracted. He is better now.

Blessings from
BAPU

DEVDAS GANDHI
DELHI

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

360. LETTER TO SHRIMAN NARAYAN

SEVAGRAM,
November 30, 1944

CHI. SHRIMAN,

Your letter. There is no need to write to Tandonji¹. I have received the resolution.

Kedar Babu’s note is good. I am herewith sending a copy of it. I want you to guide Madalasa in this respect. Talk to Shantabehn if you wish to. I appreciate the letter; something must be done. I am even prepared to meet all the teachers. But I should not be burdened with this responsibility. Owing to fatigue I wish to stop all work from the 3rd until the 31st.

Blessings from
BAPU

[From Hindi]

Panchven Putrako Bapuke Ashirvad, p. 302

361. LETTER TO SHIV SHARMA

SEVAGRAM,
November 30, 1944

Bhai Shiv Sharma,

Hope you are in perfect health. Ramesh is a very nice person but he failed to reveal the wonders of Ayurveda to me. He is hard-working. He tries to compete with Allopathy. A great deal of diligence and experience is required to compete with Allopathy.

I have grown very weak. My intake of food is somewhat reduced. Two to three hours’ work exhausts me. Now I am thinking of disengaging myself to some extent from public work. Ganeshshastri Joshi had prescribed some pills. I did not take them. I am unable to decide what to do. Sushilabehn, of course, recommends her line of treatment. I am still keen on getting well with the help of Ayurveda or my own methods of treatment. Let us see what I decide to do. Instead of sending another vaidya it would be better if you yourself come over whenever you can.

¹ Purushottamdas Tandon

VOL.85 : 2 OCTOBER, 1944 - 3 MARCH, 1945 227

Blessings from

BAPU

PANDIT SHIV SHARMA

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

362. LETTER TO AMRITA LAL CHATTERJEE

December 1, 1944

DEAR AMRITLAL,

I have revised the draft sent by you. There should be no reference to fast. You should confine yourself only to the marriage. You will see the addition about the reform.

I hope Sailabala Devi is better and will soon be completely restored. How is Ronu? Love to you all.

BAPU

[PS.]

Sailen’s meals and residence are properly fixed up now. I do not think that Sailen can be appointed auditor for the K. B. Trust Fund. They will have well-known chartered accountants for the purpose, I expect.

BAPU

From a photostat: C.W. 10509. Courtesy: Amrita Lal Chatterjee

---

1 Of a Press statement
2 Addressee’s wife and son
3 ibid
363. LETTER TO K. R. AGHARWAL

SEVAGRAM,
December 1, 1944

DEAR FRIEND,

Please believe that the fast will not come except for a definite call from within.

Yours,
M. K. GANDHI

SHRI K. R. AGHARWAL
DIBRUGARH

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

364. LETTER TO JAYA

SEVAGRAM,
December 1, 1944

CHI. JAYA.

Didn’t my sending the yarn by itself mean my blessings? Since, however, you are not satisfied with that, tell Chi. Bindu and Chi. Chandrakant that I bless them and wish that both of them should understand the significance of marriage which I have explained, act accordingly, lead their lives in a spirit of service and be happy.

If you can persuade Manu to go with you, she may certainly do so. I have not held her back. You should, however, understand that on an occasion like this one should entertain no expectation from anybody who may have been entrusted to me.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./XXIII

¹ Jaisukhlal Gandhi’s sister
² Addressee’s daughter
³ The letter bears the following instruction: “Show this to Manubehn.”
365. LETTER TO KISHORELAL G. MASHRUWALA

SEVAGRAM,

December 1, 1944

CHI. KISHORELAL,

You understand the matter correctly. Maybe, I should proceed in the same direction. In support of my action I quote the fasts in the past that were universally praised. But I should not waver if they were found to be wrongly undertaken or not fully justifiable. It is my firm conviction that even from a purely modern point of view fasting has an important place. It is as much necessary for the atman that takes on a body as for the body itself. If in the process the body drops that should be no reason at all for grieving. Nevertheless I should like to read whatever Nathji\(^1\) may write.

Improve your health.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

366. LETTER TO GOMATI K. MASHRUWALA

[December 1, 1944]\(^2\)

CHI. GOMATI,

I have your letter. If you have the faith that I am—in fact all of us are—in the hands of God, what is the point in worrying? I am taking all the care I can. I hope to come through. I have decided to retire immediately for rest, mainly urged by Rajaji.\(^3\) It will start on the fourth. The weather here does not disagree with me. Manilal has given me all the news. Both of you seem to be doing well on the whole.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

---

\(^1\) Kedarnath Kulkarni, addressee’s guru

\(^2\) The letter was enclosed along with the preceding item.

\(^3\) According to Sushila Nayyar’s letter to Amrit Kaur dated November 29, Rajaji “put the suggestion of rest to Bapu in a very original fashion. He said that just as when he fasted he abstained from food, he should take up a fast from work and religiously Abstain from work for one month.”
367. LETTER TO V. L. MEHTA

[December 1, 1944]

Bhai Vaikunth,

I saw your letter to Pyarelal. I think you should bring along the Maharaja’s money. Maybe, we will not be able to take up the responsibility. He should entrust the amount either to the Talimi Sangh or to someone in Bihar who might take up the burden. It would be all right if he could accomplish the job through Badrinarayan who is in Bihar.

Blessings from

BAPU

PS.

Show this to Bapa if you can. Don’t hesitate to write to me if you differ from me.

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

368. LETTER TO SHRIMAN NARAYAN

Sevagram,

December 1, 1944

Chi. Shriman,

Your letter is very frank and good. We will all discuss it after my [work] fast is over. I quite understand the importance of your college work. Organization of the students and the responsibility of the Mahila Ashram work will take up all your time. Hence I shall try to relieve you, as much as possible, from the work of the Hindustani Prachar [Sabha]. I will see what can be done.

You must keep yourself in good health. I hope you will not neglect your duty to preserve your health for the sake of service.

Blessings from

BAPU

[From Hindi]

Panchven Putrako Bapuke Ashirvad, p. 302

1 In the source this letter is placed at the end of the letters dated December 1, 1944 and before those of December 2, 1944.
369. LETTER TO INDUBHUSHAN BHINGARE

SEVAGRAM,
December 1, 1944

BHAI BHINGARE,

I showed your bhajans to Diwanji who is a poet and who has made a study of the abhangas, Jnaneshwari, etc. I enclose herewith his opinion. In this condition how can I write a preface for them? I would advise you to see Diwanji and with his help revise [the manuscript] where necessary.

Yours,
M. K. GANDHI

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

370. LETTER TO G. D. BIRLA

SEVAGRAM,
December 1, 1944

BHAI GHANSHYAMDAS,

I am dissociating myself from all public activity, discussions, etc., from the 4th to the 31st. There is no cause for panic. It is only by way of precaution. I hope I shall be completely all right.

You have sent a telegram to Rajaji but he is reluctant to go. Nor is it necessary. Besides, he cannot be said to be too well. There is no mental exhaustion but his physical energy is at a low ebb. He won’t brave the Delhi cold. He wants to leave for Madras soon after I start my [work] fast.

Blessings from
BAPU

GHANSHYAMDAS BIRLA
DELHI

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Compositions of Tukaram
2 The first Marathi commentary on the Bhagavad Gita by Jnaneshwar advocating the path of knowledge
I am sorry to say that I am physically not so fit and fresh as I had expected to be and that I have decided to take complete rest for four weeks commencing from the 4th December in order that I may be able therafter to take up the work more energetically. However, I warn the members not to take pity on me and spare me in the deliberations.

Shri Jajuji, the General Secretary of the Sangh, has discussed with me the future policy of the Sangh in all its aspects for seven days devoting one hour daily to it The gist of those discussions has been sent to the members of the Board and other prominent khadi workers in the form of a circular letter. Replies thereto have been received from a number of members and they are all before the Board for their consideration.

The chief thing that I want the members to consider is that so far the Sangh work was directed from the Central Office, but henceforth the work is to be decentralized and any province or district which wants to be autonomous is to be allowed to do so. Workers must be prepared to go to organize such autonomous centres with the prestige and moral support of the Sangh. The worker will be paid a maintenance for five years on an annually diminishing scale. He should work there according to the fundamental principles and policy laid down by the Sangh. It is not possible otherwise to decentralize the work in seven lakhs of villages.

There are two schools of thought current in the world. One wants to divide the world into cities and the other into villages. The village civilization and the city civilization are totally different things. One depends on machinery and industrialization, the other rests on handicraft. We have given preference to the latter. After all, this industrialization and large-scale production are only of comparatively recent growth. We do not know how far it has contributed to our development and happiness, but we know this much that it has brought in its wake the recent world wars. This second world war is not still over and even before it comes to an end we are hearing of a third world war.

---

1 From Charkha Sanghka Navasamskaran
2 Between October 7 and 14
Our country was never so unhappy and miserable as it is at present. In the cities people may be getting big profits and good wages, but all that has become possible by sucking the blood of villagers.

We do not want to collect lakhs and crores. We do not always want to depend on money for our work. If we are prepared to sacrifice our lives for the cause, money is nothing. We must have faith and we must be true to ourselves. If we have these, we shall be able to decentralize our capital of thirty lakhs in the villages to create national wealth amounting to three hundred crores. To do that, the main thing that is necessary is to make the village self-sufficient and self-reliant. But mind you, my idea of self-sufficiency is not a narrow one. There is no scope for selfishness or arrogance in my self-sufficiency. I am not preaching isolation. We have to be humble as dust for a cause. We have to mix with people even as sugar mixes itself with milk. Though the villagers will be self-sufficient so far as it is possible, they will devote their time also to their intellectual development for the creation of the consciousness for the contemplated non-violent society of the future.

Cloth stands second to food as necessity. If every village begins to produce its own cloth, its strength will greatly be enhanced. But to achieve that we do not want to close down the textile factories by legislation. We want to achieve our purpose by revolutionizing the psychology of the people. By decentralization we want to produce cloth wherever cotton is grown.

But what of the city people who have taken to khadi now? I would ask them to spin their own yarn and to find out for themselves weavers to weave that yarn into cloth.

It is absurd that the cloth should come from Manchester for the poor, who produce cloth for Bombay people. It is also not proper to compel the poor to accept part of their wages in the form of khadi. They should be so educated that they may Spin voluntarily and intelligently and may use with love and pride the cloth produced by them. If the people of Bombay want to wear khadi they should spin for themselves or get their children and other dependents to spin. If people pledged to khadi, spin for themselves, the practice will be contagious. Even if we are able to produce khadi worth ten crores instead of one crore as at present our object of reaching the whole of India will not be achieved.
Gandhiji then read out the resolution which he wanted the Board to consider and adopt. Whilst explaining its implications he said:

The workers of all our five constructive programme institutions (Charkha Sangh, Gram Udyog Sangh, Hindustani Talimi Sangh, Harijan Sevak Sangh, Goseva Sangh) should possess such knowledge that the politics of the whole country may be guided by them.

Today we are all the while thinking that our work will be able to make headway only when Rajaji becomes the Prime Minister of Madras. But that is not proper. In our present politics we are looking with longing eyes to the Viceroy’s Secretariat but if we do our work properly the Viceroy will have to come to us. He will see our work and realize that it is not possible to keep such people in subjection or to rule over them. When seven lakhs of villages will take up this work in the new spirit we shall not remain a subject nation. Each one of our villages will be independent and self-reliant. That is true swaraj and that is true democracy. I do not worry when we shall be able to attain our goal, but if we are sure of our path and if we have faith that it is the only true one, we should go on striving for it incessantly and uninterruptedly.

The Bombay Chronicle, 7-12-1944

372. STATEMENT TO THE PRESS

SEVAGRAM, December 1, 1944

That ‘man proposes and God disposes’ constantly proves true in my case, as I expect it does in every case whether we realize it or not. I was contemplating a food fast for reasons I hold to be entirely spiritual. But for the time being, it is being replaced by a day-to-day-work fast. I had hoped that I had recovered sufficiently to be able to go through the routine work without interruption. But nature’s warning has been sounding in my ears during the last ten days. I was feeling fatigued. Even after the noonday siesta, the brain seemed tired. There was a complete disinclination to speak or write. But I continued hoping that I would be all right without having to discontinue mental activity.

But nature would have her way. Rajaji who saw me after a month detected a marked change in my face, and he said, ‘You must stop all this ceaseless mental activity if you want to avoid a disaster.’ I seized the suggestion. He even went so far as to say that I should not mind disappointing invited workers of the Charkha Sangh, although I was looking forward eagerly to meeting them and discussing with them my plan for a new orientation of khadi work. But I would not listen. So I am going through these meetings in the best manner I can in the hope that no crisis will overtake me during the remaining two days of these meetings.

1 For the draft resolution, vide “Speech at A.I.S.A. Meeting-II”, 2-9-1944 and for the resolution passed, vide Appendix “Resolution Passed by A.I.S.A.”, on or before 3-12-1944.

From the 4th to the 31st of this month, I have decided rigidly to discontinue all public activities, all interviews for public or private purposes and all correspondence of any nature whatsoever. I shall read no newspapers during the period. This abstention will be subject to exception for unforeseen circumstances of a grave nature.

I shall not deny myself the pleasure of reading non-political literature in which I am interested. This also I shall read without in any way unduly taxing the brain. I have asked friends who were expecting to see me during the month to indulgently postpone their visits for the time being.

Let readers not be alarmed at what is only a precautionary measure. Dr. Sushila Nayyar assures me that there is nothing physically wrong with me except that my old friends, the hookworms and the amoebae, have not left me. I am able to take daily walks without the slightest strain and they will be continued. I had hoped to make one or two public statements in connection with a lot of misrepresentations of my views and doings about the communal question and some other public questions. I must forbear for the time being. But I must repeat the warning I have given before, that nothing that is not authoritatively stated by me should be accepted by the public. There are things which I have seen in the Press which I can only say I am incapable of having countenanced directly or indirectly.

There are some vital questions addressed to me by correspondents. They will forgive me for my inability to deal with them for the moment. If, after a month, they still feel the necessity, they will please repeat their letters and if all goes well, I shall gladly reply. Starvation of millions, black markets, and what I cannot but describe as gambling, will continue to worry me as they do now. I can but entreat my numerous co-workers to do what they can to ease the situation, which can be done, I am perfectly sure, if those concerned will make up their minds that the claims of the famishing millions are the first charge on their care and attention.

_The Hindu, 3-12-1944_
373. NOTE TO AMINA G. QUreshi

[After December 1, 1944]

Stay over if you can. No message would be sent up to the 31st; nor a letter.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 10776. Courtesy: Ghulam Rasool Qureshi

374. TELEGRAM TO RASHID KHAN

December 2, 1944

Rashid Khan
Muslim League
Kumbakonam

Your Telegram. Best wishes.

From a copy: Pyarela Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library.
Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

375. LETTER TO ANIL CHANDRA CHANDA

Sevagram,
December 2, 1944

Dear Anil,

Satis Babu has handed me your note. I have not forgotten Santiniketan. As you know Kamalnayan had taken over the whole burden himself. Unfortunately he had to go to Mussourie to look after his wife. He has not returned. I shall attend to the matter as soon as he returns but not before my rest-cure is over.

Yours,
M. K. Gandhi

From C.W. 10515. Courtesy: Visvabharati

---

1 This is written on a letter dated December 1, 1944, to the addressee from her Son requesting her to get from Gandhiji a message for the students who had planned to observe the 9th of every month by engaging in patriotic activities.

2 The signature is in the Urdu script.
376. LETTER TO AKBARBHAI CHAVDA

SEVAGRAM,
December 2, 1944

CHI. AKBAR,

I have made arrangements for a watch for you. You will get it soon. I have read all your letters. You have been doing fine work. God will bless you with success.

You will soon get lots of drugs, but they will not be very helpful. So long as water, fire and earth are available, drugs are not necessary.

Give the people boiled water to drink. This will cure most of the complaints. Use soda [bicarb] if you have it. Water containing soda will stop diarrhoea. Food should be stopped. Persuade the people patiently to stop eating. You may even let them die who do not listen to you. Search for village medicinal herbs. You must have neem trees there. If you persuade the people to chew its leaves and see that they fast, the fever will probably disappear. Boil neem leaves in water and wash the blisters with that. The water should be bearably hot. Cover the blisters with a mud-pack of clean earth. Get clean cloth for bandaging the blisters. If you can get tamarind you can give a solution of it in place of water mixed with lemon juice. Revive people’s knowledge of nature-cure remedies. Local medicinal drugs should be made available. Give rice water instead of milk. If you mix jaggery with it, it will provide more energy. Teach people the rules of hygiene. If food is stopped to people suffering from fever or diarrhoea and they are put on boiled water, more than fifty per cent of the cases will recover. I have no doubt in my mind about this at all. Fifty per cent is a conservative guess. For guinea worm, try fomentation with hot water and tie up the thing as it comes out. Try also a poultice of onions. You must have received the suggestions sent by Kishorelalbhai and Sushilabehn. I have suggested only the simplest remedies. Let Devibehn send whatever she wishes. If cows, buffaloes or goats are offered, accept them. To meat-eaters you may unhesitatingly give meat-soup. Soup means water in which meat has been boiled. These things should be served hot after boiling them. This is not the time for doing our religious duty of propagating vegetarianism. Soup is bound to be useful where milk is not available.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 3236
377. LETTER TO AMRITLAL T. NANAVATI

December 2, 1944

CHI. AMRITLAL,

Where do you want to keep Chakrayya? Do you want to keep him in Adhyapan Mandir or in Harijan Ashram or with you?

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10805

378. LETTER TO ABDUL MAJEED

December 2, 1944

BHAJ KHWAJA,

I had known it even earlier that my Muslim friends who are not with the League were a little angry with me because I went to Bombay to talk with Jinnah Saheb and did not talk with them. As I have already written to you earlier, I can never be unfaithful to the Muslims or Islam. I had never thought that I would have any settlement with Jinnah Saheb which would be against the interests of my Muslim friends who have joined me in making sacrifices or which would harm the genuine interests of any community in India. Had any such situation arisen, I would have certainly consulted some of you.

I was distressed to learn that some of my Muslim friends think that in my friendliness with Jinnah Saheb I have ignored them. That certainly is not the case. It must be accepted that the majority of the Muslim community belongs to the Muslim League whose Quaid-e-Azam is Jinnah Saheb. It must also be accepted that he is opposed to our line of action. That is why I wished that either he should convert me to his course or I should convert him to mine, and if this could be done, the Hindus and Muslims would march together to freedom. I failed in my attempt. I wish that Maulana Sabeb and certain other friends, particularly Maulvi Hafizur Rehman Saheb, Mufti Kifayatullah Saheb and Maulana Syed Ahmed Saheb would take the trouble of meeting me here. I would try to clear their doubts. We can all work together and pray to God to show us the straight path to freedom. If all of you cannot come, it would be enough if only

1 An inmate of the Sevagram Ashram
2 Training school
Maulana Saheb comes. Or, Maulvi Hafizur Rehman Saheb who is the secretary of the Jamiat may come. Please convey my regards to all the friends.

Blessings from

BAPU

From the Urdu original: A. M. Khwaja Papers. Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library

379. LETTER TO VICEROY

SEVAGRAM, December 3, 1944

DEAR FRIEND¹,

This is with reference to your letter of 2nd November last.

My letter² of 17th July to Mr. Churchill was, in my estimation, of a sacred character, not meant for the public eye. I now contemplate an occasion or time when it might need publication without losing the sacred character. Even so I do not wish to publish it without the Prime Minister’s permission. May I have it, in case I need to publish it?

I should tell you that I have shown the contents to a few friends.

I am,

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

H. E. THE VICEROY
VICEROY’S CAMP

Gandhiji’s Correspondence with the Government, p. 15

380. LETTER TO MIRABEHN

SEVAGRAM, December 3, 1944

CHI. MIRA,

So you have the land of your choice³. May all your dreams be fulfilled. If I go to Delhi and get the time of course I should love to

¹ Lord Wavell
² Vide “A Thought for the Day”, November and December, 1944.
³ In his letter dated December 21, 1944, E. M. Jenkins conveyed the Prime Minister’s consent.
⁴ For the Kisan Ashram near Roorkee drive to your place.

Do not be anxious about me. All I need is rest from the routine work, even love-letters. So till the end of the year this is my last letter. This is the final day of writing letters.

Love.

BAPU

From the original: C.W. 6501. Courtesy: Mirabehn. Also G.N. 9896

381. LETTER TO METROPOLITAN OF CALCUTTA

SEVAGRAM,
December 3, 1944

DEAR FRIEND,

I thank you for your kind letter of 25th November and for responding to Sir Tej Bahadur’s invitation¹.

You must have seen from the papers that from tomorrow, I am imposing on myself abstention from day-to-day routine—work-fast. I see clearly that I must take rest, if I am to avoid a breakdown. The fast is to end with the month.

I am,
Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

THE METROPOLITAN
CALCUTTA

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

382. LETTER TO H. KALLENBACH

SEVAGRAM,
December 3, 1944

MY DEAR KALLENBACH²,

Manilal will give you all the news about me. I hope you are doing well. I send you these lines to tell you that the Phoenix Trust³

¹ To be on the Conciliation Committee of the Non-Party Conference
² A German architect, devoted friend and co-worker of Gandhiji during his South African days. He placed his “Tolstoy Farm” at the disposal of the satyagrahis during the satyagraha struggle which lasted for 8 years.
³ For the original Phoenix Trust-Deed, vide “The Phoenix Trust Deed”, 14-9-1912. The addressee was one of the Trustees. requires complete overhauling.

There are now no settlers. Therefore the clause about them should go. There is no formal resignation or withdrawal by them. If the law requires it, a formal resignation should be secured from each one of them. Perhaps their physical withdrawal amounts to resignation.

The following new trustees may be added:
Manilal, Jalbhai¹, Medh²

Manilal should be the managing trustee and the manager of the Settlement, including Indian Opinion. He should draw from the Trust £100 per month for the maintenance of his family and children and live on the land free of rent with the right to use for his household the fruits, vegetables and cereals grown on the Settlement. He should maintain proper books of account in connection with the Settlement and Indian Opinion. He should be free, subject to its being no additional burden on the Settlement, to remove Indian Opinion partly or wholly to Durban.

Such changes as may be necessary may be made in the Trust-Deed. In the event of my death before the Deed is prepared and signed by me, this letter may be treated by the present trustees as authority for the changes herein suggested.

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

383. LETTER TO HERMANN KALLENBACH

[December 3, 1944]

MY DEAR LOWER HOUSE,

I hope you are keeping well and fit even as I am. Don’t worry over the threatened fast.⁴ If it comes, it will come from God. And where is the cause for worry when a thing is from God?

I had a discussion with Manilal and Jalbhai when he was here. This is the result.

Three new trustees should be added. Jalbhai, Medh and Manilal. Manilal should be the manager of the settlement in my place. He is managing Indian Opinion and everything at present and drawing his expenses. I think and he agrees that he should draw for himself and his family a fixed sum per month, say £100. The budget of expenses for the settlement should be prepared annually and passed by the Board.

¹ Son of Parsee Rustomji
² Surendra Medh
³ Vide “Letter to Herman Kallenbach”, 3-12-1944.

There should be a clause added giving the trustees authority to sell the proceeds to be utilized for the objects of the trust.

If a Kasturba memorial is to be founded, on the Phoenix ground, it should be properly secured.

If you, the remaining trustees, approve of my suggestions, an amended deed may be prepared and sent to me for my signature. Should I die before my signature is taken, this letter should be used by the trustees as my wish in the matter. I hope that they will give effect to it and free Manilal from the uncertainty that hangs over him.

I feel too that those settlers who are not working on the settlement, although they may be deemed to have resigned, should formally do so, to avoid future complications.

From the original: Gandhi-Kallenbach Correspondence. Courtesy: National Archives of India

384. LETTER TO DR. PANDIT

Sevagram,

December 3, 1944

Dear Dr. Pandit,

Shri Parnerkar is a valued co-worker. His mother is in Indore. She is ailing. If you can give her the treatment she needs, I shall feel obliged. You will please pardon me for giving you this trouble, even though I do not happen to know you.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. Gandhi

Dr. Pandit

Indore

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
385. LETTER TO SULTANA QUreshI

Sevagram,

December 3, 1944

Daughter Sultana 1.

Now you are married. It is good that you found a partner within the family itself. May you both be happy and bring credit to Imam Saheb 2 by your selfless service.

Blessings from
Bapu

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 10764. Courtesy: Ghulam Rasool Qureshi

386. LETTER TO HAMID AND WAHID QUreshI

Sevagram,

December 3, 1944

Sons Hamid and Wahid 3.

Amina 4 has talked to me about both of you. You should make very good progress. Wahid has become a cowherd. If he is a true cowherd he will produce pure milk and ghee for the country and will breed such bullocks as would attract universal attention.

Blessings from
Bapu

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 10775. Courtesy: Ghulam Rasool Qureshi

1 Daughter of Ghulam Rasool Qureshi
2 Abdul Kadir Bawazeer, addressee’s grandfather and Gandhiji’s associate since the South African days
3 Sons of Ghulam Rasool Qureshi
4 Addressees’ mother; daughter of Abdul Kadir Bawazeer
387. LETTER TO MOHANLAL

SEVAGRAM,
December 3, 1944

BHAI MOHANLAL,

I don’t at all approve of your action. In fact you are no more worthy of anybody’s alliance. But that will be difficult. You should therefore form a fresh alliance.

Vandemataram from
M. K. GANDHI

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

388. LETTER TO KANAIYALAL DESAI

SEVAGRAM,
December 3, 1944

BHAI KANJIBHAI,

I am deeply pained that I had to stop you from coming. But what could I do? I am helpless. The month will pass quickly and God will have me restored.

I have already spoken at length to Mangaldas, who will explain things to you. The main point is that if Congressmen and Congresswomen feel sore about it, I shall carry on correspondence with none but you as the president or with anybody who happens to be the president. I did not consider Mavalankar an outsider. You may appoint whatever committee you wish for the running of the Kasturba Trust. The rules are formulated with a view to safeguarding the Trust, the purpose being that the money should be spent according to its objectives. It may be said that all parties are, or rather no party is, represented on the Trust. Individuals have contributed on their own behalf whatever they wanted. We should, in view of this, appoint a committee comprising men of all shades of opinion. Indeed, whoever is appointed on the committee should be in his or her own right a representative of India’s village women. It will be proper only when all work done in this spirit. Then alone shall we be able to utilize the one crore rupees for our village sisters. There is no place for distinction between rich and poor, Congressmen and non-

1 Sansmarano however has “December 2, 1944”.
Congressmen. I indeed desire that a Congressman should harbour no hatred in this heart. All our actions should be based upon love and truth.

You may read out this letter to all the men and women. Please understand it is my earnest wish that there should be no bitterness whatsoever.

Blessings from
BAPU

KANJIBHAI
SURAT

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

---

389. LETTER TO BALVANTSINHA

December 3, 1944

CHI. BALVANTSINHA,

Your letter. I showed it to Satis Babu. He says that you have to stay in the village itself and do what is required. The problem of water, etc., can be met; he has told you something about it and will talk to you more. You should take it that until the 31st you will not hear from me.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 1951

---

390. LETTER TO SHRIMAN NARAYAN

December 3, 1944

CHI. SHRIMAN,

I just now received your letter. It is full of the affection that you both have for me. However, it does not seem necessary to have a change of place right now. Let me see what happens during the [work] fast. I would enjoy spending even a little time with you, though. Hope you are well.

Blessings from
BAPU

[From Hindi]

Panchven Putrako Bapuke Ashirvad. p. 303
391. LETTER TO GANESH SHAHTRI JOSHI

Sevagram,
December 3, 1944

I have been taking the little pills, which you gave me, for the last three days. I must say that they have done me some good. What is this pill?

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: C.W. 10358

392. LETTER TO ANAND T. HINGORANI

Sevagram,
December 3, 1944

CHI. ANAND,

I have your letter. May God cure you all. Give me all the news. You would have noticed that from tomorrow I am going to stop writing letters, etc. I shall resume in January.

Blessings to you all

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Hindi. Courtesy: National Archives of India and Anand T. Hingorani

393. LETTER TO AMTUSSALAAM

Sevagram,
December 3, 1944

BETI,

You have done well in not coming. Today is the last day for writing letters. I am taking a reprieve from such activities from tomorrow until the 31st. I have undergone a lot of mental strain and have to get rid of it. You must be keeping well. Akbar is working hard. I shall try and send one of his letters on to you.1

Don’t worry about me.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 541

1 This is a postscript to Abha Gandhi’s letter to the addressee.
2 The letter bears the following instruction in Gujarati, obviously for the secretary: “Please enclose a letter from Akbar.”
394. LETTER TO KRISHNARAJU

SEVAGRAM,

December 3, 1944

Bhai Krishnaraaju,

My letter-writing activity ceases from tomorrow until the end of this month. Hence I am sending this letter to convey my good wishes for your success in your treatment of the three friends¹.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: C.W. 10357

395. LETTER TO DHIRENDRA CHATTERJEE

SEVAGRAM,

December 3, 1944

Chh. Dhiren,

I have your letter. From tomorrow my silence starts. I shall not be writing letters till the 31st. I am happy to learn that you are doing well. By any means get rid of your constipation. Sailen has improved a lot.

Blessings from

BAPU

Dhiren Chatterjee
Khadi Pratishtan

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Anand T. Hingorani, Gokhale and Babaji Moghe
396. A STATEMENT

[Before December 4, 1944]

I have never put any ban on individual satyagraha, where self-respect is in danger.

The Bombay Chronicle, 10-12-1944

397. TELEGRAM TO ANUGRAHA NARAYAN SINHA

Anugrahannarayan Sinha
Kadam Kuan
Patna

Best way celebrate Rajenbabu diamond jubilee is for Bihar at least to do all he stands for. Need I say what he stands for?

Gandhi

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

398. NOTE TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

December 4, 1944

I will not meddle with this during this month. All of you may do what you think best. Everybody has truth and ahimsa in him. This need not have been mentioned in the last meeting of the Charkha Sangh, for the circular was drafted on that assumption. What you are doing about the kitchen must be all right. See that the men whom you engage are clean in body and mind. Their clothes, etc., should be decent. You should look after their all-round education. This should include their children. You should also go and inspect their homes. If they are well trained, we can influence the villages sooner through them. We must go deep into whatever work we do.

Bapu

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 5808. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

1 & 2 Gandhiji said this in reply to an ‘enquiry’ from some prominent Congress workers. The statement was obviously made before Gandhiji disengaged himself from all public activities on December 4; vide “Statement to the Press”, 1-12-1944.

3 This was in response to the request of the Bihar Students' Federation.

4 Sent by Shrikrishnadas Jaju. It contained the gist of his discussions with Gandhiji carried on from October 7 to 14.
399. LETTER TO G. V. GOKAL

December 6, 1944

DEAR FRIEND,

Gandhiji desires me to thank you for your letter of the 13th ult. and the remittance of £1,000/- which you have sent.

You must have seen from the papers that owing to health reasons he has taken four weeks’ complete holiday from all work. I regret, therefore, that he cannot write to you himself.

Yours sincerely,

PYARELAL

SHRI G. V. GOKAL
MESSRS. V. GOKAL & CO.
47 MARKET STREET
JOHANNESBURG
SOUTH AFRICA

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library.
Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

400. LETTER TO SHYAMLAL

SEVAGRAM,

December 11, 1944

DEAR SHYAMLALJI,

I have your letter of 2nd inst. and the enclosures.

As desired by Bapu I have written to Dr. Dharam Prakash to send his accounts as he had offered to. His reply is being awaited. Bapu would get the accounts scrutinized when they arrive.

Yours sincerely,

PYARELAL

SHRI SHYAMLALJI
HARIJAN SEVAK SANGH
[CAMP] KINGSWAY
DELHI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library.
Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar
401. NOTE TO KRISHNACHANDRA

SEVAGRAM,
December 11, 1944

CHI. KRISHNACHANDRA,

My idea was that the khadi work should be learnt as part of the Talimi Sangh training while working for the Talimi Sangh itself, in accordance with the sincere wishes of the couple\(^1\). The work going on in the Khadi Vidyalaya these days is very good. The work of the Talimi Sangh depends on khadi. Whether or not it depends as much or more on agriculture remains to be seen. What I mean to say is that I had very high expectations from you. And I still believe that they will be fulfilled. If there is anything else, you may join me tomorrow during my walk. I shall be taking a walk towards Sevagram [village].

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4452

402. TALK WITH NARAHARI D. PARIKH

[Before December 12, 1944]

I see khadi dying. Hence if khadi, which is the main plank of the constructive programme, is to be saved, it ought to become self-supporting. Those who do not spin have no right to wear khadi. All those who wear khadi must spin so that khadi may survive.

[From Gujarati]
Sandesh, 12-12-1944

403. REMARK IN VISITORS’ BOOK\(^2\)

December 12, 1944

For me this is a place of pilgrimage. I wanted to visit the institution ever since it was started, but there was no opportunity. May God help the afflicted through this institution. Only He can reward Bhai Manhar Diwan for his pioneering work in this field. But the fact

\(^1\) E. W. Aryanayakum and his wife Ashadevi
\(^2\) This is recorded in the Visitors’ Book of a leprosy relief society in Dattapur Colony near Wardha. is that for him service is its own reward.

M. K. GANDHI

From the Hindi original: Maharogi Seva Samiti Papers. Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library

404. NOTE TO KRISHNACHANDRA

December 16, 1944

CHI. KRISHNACHANDRA,

I understand what you say. Obviously I expect you to become an ideal teacher in Nayee Talim. That sums up everything. Wherever you go it will be at my instance only. But you must develop the ability to get along with Aryanayakum and Ashadevi. I am in no hurry. You will yourself understand that the experience of comradeship with them is in itself a part of your training in Nayee Talim. After all you have started your own Nayee Talim, haven’t you?

Yes, I consider it very essential that you acquire complete mastery of carding. Start [learning] it in the Khadi Vidyalaya after taking permission from both of them. You have already been given one responsibility, haven’t you? Do you want another person besides Anantramji?

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4453

405. NOTE TO CHANDRANI

December 21, 1944

I hope you will prove to be a very good sevika.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: Chandrani Papers. Courtesy: Gandhi National Museum and Library
406. A NOTE

December 22, 1944

You have done the sums very well. There is room for improvement in the handwriting.

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./XXIV

407. NOTE TO MANU GANDHI

December 23, 1944

This is good enough, but there is plenty of room for neatness. Whatever you do must be neat.

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./III

408. NOTE TO MANU GANDHI

December 25, 1944

It is indeed an achievement that most of the sums are correct. Take your own time to improve the handwriting. See that henceforth not a single [sum] is incorrect.

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./III

409. A CHRISTMAS MESSAGE

Sevagram,

December 25, 1944

I had hoped that I would be able to speak a few words today. But God willed otherwise. Today is Christmas Day. We hold all religions in equal respect and all such festivals deserve respect. But our respect is different from the common kind. For us such festivals are for meditation and introspection. On such occasions we should search our hearts and cleanse it of all impurity. We should know that 1 Presumably this was meant for Manu Gandhi; vide the following two items.

2 This and the following note to the addressee appear in the form of remarks on the lessons done by her.
God is one, whether we call Him Ishwara or Khuda, and that His commands are the same for all. We should not harm others for what we regard as Truth or right. We should be prepared to die for Truth and when the call comes give our life for it and sanctify it with our blood. This in my view is the essence of all religions. On this day we should ponder upon this and remember that Jesus mounted the Cross for what he considered to be the Truth.

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 7903. Also C.W. 4271. Courtesy: Amrit Kaur

410. LETTER TO BENARSIDAS CHATURVEDI

SEVAGRAM,
December 27, 1944

BHAI BENARSIDAS,

It is natural to feel sad at Father’s passing away but if we reflect for a moment we shall realize that it is futile to grieve over the inevitable. Why then should one grieve? And who is it that dies? Surely not the jiva which was always associated with us, which is with us now and will remain with us hereafter.

Father’s last words are very precious to me. I shall regard them as a blessing.

Blessings from
BAPU

PANDIT BENARSIDAS CHATURVEDI
FEROZABAD
DISTRICT AGRA (U. P.)

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 2575

1 Soul
411. A THOUGHT FOR THE DAY

November 20, 1944

Innumerable are the names of God; but if a choice were to be made of one, it would be Sat or Satya, that is, Truth. Hence verily Truth is God.

November 21, 1944

Realization of Truth is not at all possible without ahimsa. That is why it has been said that ahimsa is the supreme dharma.

November 22, 1944

The quest of truth and the observance of non-violence are impossible without brahmacharya, non-stealing, non-possession, fearlessness, equal respect for all religions, removal of untouchability and the like.

November 23, 1944

Brahmacharya here mean control over the sense-organs—in thought, word and deed. One who, while remaining bodily chaste, is impure at heart shall not be deemed a true brahmachari.

November 24, 1944

Non-stealing does not mean mere abstention from theft. To keep or take what one does not need is also stealing. And of course stealing is fraught with violence.

November 25, 1944

Non-possession means that we should not hoard anything that we do not need today.

November 26, 1944

Fearlessness should connote absence of all kinds of fear—fear of death, fear of bodily injury, fear of hunger, fear of insult, fear of public disapprobation, fear of ghosts and evil spirits, fear of anyone’s anger. Freedom from all these and such other fears constitutes fearlessness.

November 27, 1944

Let us respect other religions even as we respect our own. Mere

---

1 At the request of Anand T. Hingorani Gandhiji on November 20, 1944, started the practice of writing ‘a thought’ for each day and continued it for about two years. Those written during the period covered by this volume are given here as a single item under the last date, namely, December 31, 1944. The thoughts were originally written in Hindi. tolerance thereof is not enough.

November 28, 1944

Removal of untouchability means not merely touching the Harijans, but also looking upon them as our own kith and kin; in other words, treating them in the same way as we would our own brothers and sisters. None is high, none low.

November 29, 1944

Yogah Chittavrittiniruddah—This is the first aphorism of Patanjali’s Yoga Darshan. Yoga is controlling the activities of the mind. Restraining the surging passions, suppressing them, that is yoga.

November 30, 1944

How can one is whose mind passions keep surging ever realize truth? The upsurge of passions in the mind is like a tempest in the ocean. The helmsman who holds fast to the helm in a storm remains safe. Likewise, he triumphs who relies upon Ramanama when the mind is restless.

December 1, 1944

The bhajan “Take Thou a Lesson from the Tree” is worth laying to one’s heart. The tree bears the heat of the sun, yet provides cool shade to us. What do we do?

December 2, 1944

Let us always beware of false knowledge. That which keeps or turns us away from Truth is false knowledge.

December 3, 1944

For the realization of Truth it is necessary to read the lives of the saints and reflect upon them.

December 4, 1944

Against whom shall we harbour enmity when God Himself says that He dwells in all living beings? (Translation of today’s bhajan.)

December 5, 1944

The great lesson that we learn from the life of Mirabai is that she renounced her all—even her husband—for the sake of God.

December 6, 1944

What can a person not accomplish by faith? He can do everything.

December 7, 1944

Man can overcome mountains by faith.

1 Philosophy of Yoga
2 By Surdas
December 8, 1944

He who concentrates on any one thing with singleness of purpose, will ultimately acquire the capacity to do everything.

December 9, 1944

True happiness does not come from without; it comes from within.

December 10, 1944

He who loses his individuality loses all.

December 11, 1944

The straight path is as difficult as it is simple. Were it not so, all would follow the straight path.

December 12, 1944

“Compassion is the essence of religion,” so Tulsidas has said. And he adds: “Abandon not compassion as long as you live.” Suppliants for compassion ourselves, all of us, how shall we take compassion, and on whom?

December 13, 1944

A sister said: “I used to pray, but have now given it up.” I asked: “Why?” She replied: “Because I used to deceive myself.” The reply is of course correct. But let her give up deceiving. Why give up praying?

December 14, 1944

Yesterday’s bhajan was very melodious and worth pondering over. It says in essence: God dwells neither in the temple, nor in the mosque. Neither within, nor without. If at all He is anywhere, it is in the hunger and the thirst of the humble folk. Let us spin daily in order to sate their hunger and quench their thirst, or, with Ramanama on our lips, engage ourselves in some such labour for their sake.

December 15, 1944

Why is it that even ordinarily we do not escape untruth be it out of fear or even shame? Would it not be better to adopt silence instead, or, shedding fear of one another, speak frankly what is in our mind?

December 16, 1944

Even a little untruth ruins a man, as a drop of poison ruins milk.

December 17, 1944

We are loath to devote time to things that matter, but hanker after worthless things and find pleasure in them!!!

December 18, 1944

“Man is not God; call him not that. But of Divine refulgence he is part.”

December 19, 1944

Listen to the discourses of the sages, study the scriptures, become learned. But if you have not enthroned God in your heart, you have achieved nothing.

December 20, 1944

We all desire mukti but, perhaps, we do not know precisely what it means. Deliverance from the cycle of birth and death is one of its several meanings.

December 21, 1944

The poet-saint Narsinh says: “A man of God seeks not deliverance from birth and death; he asks to be born again and again.” Viewed from this angle, mukti takes on a somewhat different form.

December 22, 1944

Extreme non-attachment is salvation, according to the Gita, and we find the same meaning given in the first verse of the Ishopanishad.

December 23, 1944

How to develop non-attachment? This can be done by regarding joy and sorrow, friend and foe, mine and thine, as all alike. Thus another name for non-attachment is equanimity.

December 24, 1944

As drops add up to make the ocean, we can be friendly and become an ocean of friendliness. The world would be transformed if everyone in the world lived in a spirit of mutual amity.

December 25, 1944

Today is Christmas Day. For us who believe in the equality of all religions, the birth of Jesus Christ is as worthy of veneration as that of Rama, Krishna, etc.

December 26, 1944

Illness itself should be a matter of shame for man. Illness betokens some lapse. Illness should not beset one whose body and mind are wholly sound.

December 27, 1944

Evil thoughts are also a sign of illness. Let us, therefore, avoid evil thoughts.

December 28, 1944

One infallible means for escaping evil thoughts is Ramanama.

\[1\] Salvation
The Name should come not merely from the lips but from the heart.

December 29, 1944

Numerous are our ailments; numerous, too, are physicians and their treatments. But we would be spared much bother if we regarded all diseases as one and Rama as the one and only Physician who can eradicate them.

December 30, 1944

How strange that we run after physicians who are mortals themselves but forget Rama, the immortal, eternal and never-failing Physician!

December 31, 1944

Stranger still it is that, knowing that we, too, are mortal and that a doctor’s treatment can at best but prolong our life for a few more days, we still run from pillar to post to seek it.

A Thought for the Day, pp. 1-42

412. TELEGRAM TO ANUGRAHA NARAYAN SINHA

Express

ANUGRAHANARAYAN SINHA
KADAM KUAN, PATNA
HOPE SOMEBODY DEFENDING MAHOMMED YASIN’S CASE.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

413. LETTER TO PRANLAL D. NANJI

1944

If you have to go to Deolali, you can have exemption from having to come to Wardha. Coming here is chiefly a matter of sentiment, whereas going to Deolali may be your duty.

From a facsimile of the Gujarati in Pranlal Devakaran Nanji Abhinandan Granth, between pp. 14 and 15

1 This is found in the file of documents belonging to the year 1944. The exact date of this and the following item is not ascertainable.
414. LETTER TO C. RAJAGOPALACHARI

Sevagram,
January 1, 1945

My dear C. R.,
This is the first letter to you on 1st January in the place of speaking to you. I shall speak only at the time of opening the prayer at 7.30. My sin in playing with Ayurveda has laid me low. Now I am weak because according to the law of natural science I am throwing off the poison. Don’t you be anxious for me.

Love.

BAPU

Shri C. Rajagopalachari
Bazullah Road, Thyagaraya Nagar
MADRAS

From a photostat: G.N. 2100

---

415. LETTER TO DEVDAS GANDHI

Sevagram,
January 1, 1945

Chh. Devdas,
Having written my first letter to Rajaji I now write this to you. Do not at all worry on my account. I am paying for my sins. I had too much of Ayurveda and I suffered. And now I am slowly throwing off the poison. I have therefore grown very weak but I am watching the developments. Hook-worm and amoeba, my old enemies, won’t leave me.

All this is but flushing out the poison that I had taken. I do not know what other suffering is in store for me. I shall go on doing as God dictates. You should not worry. Ramdas¹ has come. And now Nimu² too.

Blessings from
BAPU

Devdas Gandhi
New Delhi

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Ramdas Gandhi, addressee’s elder brother
² Nirmala, wife of Ramdas Gandhi
416. LETTER TO AMRIT KAUR

Sevagram,
January 1, 1945

Chi. Rajkumari,

This is merely in answer to yours received at 4 p.m. after my 3 postcards had gone. This therefore though written today will be posted probably tomorrow.

Yes, a happy New Year to you, such happiness as you can derive from within. Happiness without there is none so far as I can see.

I have your two dhotis. I am wearing them, too. They are fine. But the real fineness comes from the knowledge that the handiwork is yours so far as yarn is concerned.

Yours with love
Bapu

From the original: C.W. 3694. Courtesy: Amrit Kaur. Also G.N. 6503

417. LETTER TO MATHURADAS TRIKUMJI

January 1, 1945

You should not worry. I have fallen ill through my own sins. I indulged a little too much in Ayurveda and am paying the price. Now I am bed-ridden because according to the law of nature I am throwing off the poison. I am all right. Get well soon.

[From Gujarati]
Bapuni Prasadi, p. 205

418. LETTER TO E. W. ARYANAYAKUM

Sevagram,
January 3, 1945

Dear A. N.,

I have heard that you want to take in someone sent by Akbar but want the Ashram to pay for his upkeep. This is wrong and after I am gone the whole thing will close down. It must not be so. The first 14 years may pay in the end, but altogether in the end. But the adult education and the preparation of school masters should pay from the beginning, barring of course the expense of the permanent teaching staff. I can argue this out and prove it but I must not do so now. It will tax me unnecessarily. I hope that all those whom we have taken just now have been taken on that basis.

If they have not, the matter requires re-thinking out. I have not allowed the mind to lie quite fallow all this month.

Yours,
M. K. GANDHI

ARYANAYAKUM
SEVAGRAM

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

419. LETTER TO Y. M. PARNERKAR

SEVAGRAM,
January 3, 1945

BHAI PARNERKAR,

The new gentleman who has been sent over to look after the A,[I.] Goseva Sangh must give us full service if he is strong and useful and if we need him. In that case he should draw as much as he needs for his maintenance and it should be borne by the goshala. If he is not useful he will be a burden to the Goseva Sangh and will not learn anything. If we do not adopt such a policy the G. S. S. will become just another mushroom institution which we should not allow to happen. For after my death all such ventures are sure to close down. We must never let it happen. I am not in a position to talk, hence it is better that I write out what I think.

Blessings from
BAPU

PARNERKAR
GOSHALA
SEVAGRAM

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
420. LETTER TO SATYAVATI

SEVAGRAM,
January 3, 1945

CHI. SATYAVATI

I am sorry that your disease is getting worse. But that might be God’s will. What does it matter? The body is transient. It has to perish one day. We must do as much as we can.

By all means defy all orders. Tell them plainly that you wish to go home, and if it is possible take some treatment there. Do come here if you so wish. I am to some extent an invalid; but that makes no difference. Dr. Sushila is here and there are other friends too. Now the air also is good.

I shall be content if you die in my arms. But if you live, well, what more can one ask! Chand will write the rest.

Blessings from

BAPU

From the Hindi original: C.W. 10235. Courtesy: Brijkrishna Chandiwala

421. LETTER TO MOHAN PARikh AND ANASUYA PAREKH

SEVAGRAM,
January 4, 1945

CHI. MOHAN² AND ANASUYA³.

Unfortunately for me I did not even see the letter to which I am replying though it was read out to me. It was torn up. It was good news that you two were engaged to be married. For me, marriage is not a means of enjoyment but a field for practising dharma. It is an important ashrama dharma among the four ashrama dharmas. Hardly anybody looks upon it as such. Everybody looks upon it as a means of enjoyment. I hope that you two will bind yourselves with it regarding it as a dharma and will inspire each other to follow the path of service.

Blessings to you both from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: S.N. 9190

¹ Granddaughter of Swami Shraddhanand
² Narahari D. Parikh’s son
³ Kunvarji Parekh’s daughter
⁴ Narahari Parikh however says that the letter was later found and was read by Gandhiji.
422. LETTER TO KUNVARJI S. PAREKH

SEVAGRAM,
January 4, 1945

CHI. KUNVARJI,

I had just got up from bed when I received your letter. Pyarelal read it out to me and threw it into the waste-paper basket. Then Narahari came and I was reminded of it. I also felt a little strong and sat down to write this. You have all my good wishes for this alliance. I could not imagine a better choice than this for Anasuya. The marriage has my sincere blessings. I have written\(^1\) to Mohan and Anasuya. BhaiNarahari will send you a copy of that letter too. He will also do whatever else is necessary.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: S.N. 9752. Also C.W. 731. Courtesy: Navajivan Trust

423. LETTER TO SITA GANDHI

SEVAGRAM,
January 4, 1945

CHI. SITA\(^2\),

I have your few letters. Now that my month\(^3\) is over I am writing these few lines. Now a month of physical weakness has begun. I am reaping what I sowed. I went on taking Ayurvedic medicines without thinking and had to suffer the consequences. I am now getting rid of the poison. I am daily improving and getting stronger. There is very little cough. The pain in the ribs has also practically disappeared. After reading and showing this letter to the people there, post it to Natal so that I do not have to write a separate letter.

Chi. Manilal served me with great devotion. Let us see now when Sushila comes to take his place.

I am glad that you are studying hard. Taking care of your health you may work as hard as you can. It will not matter if it takes a

\(^{1}\) Vide the preceding item.
\(^{2}\) Daughter of Manilal Gandhi
\(^{3}\) Of work-fast little longer.
   Blessings to everybody there.

   Blessings from
   BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 4943

424. LETTER TO SUMITRA GANDHI

SEVAGRAM,

January 4, 1945

CHI. SUMI¹.

Though there is no letter from you Ramdas wrote to me about you.

   First, about your eyes. You should not be in a hurry to pass the examination. You may do as much work as you can, while taking care of your health and your eyes. It should be enough for you that you are not idling away.

   Then, about gold bangles. What will you do with them? There can be bangles made of yarn, sea shells, glass, copper, silver, gold, pearls, diamonds, and so on. But what use are they to you? Your bangles should be in your heart. That alone is the real lasting adornment. All else is false. If nevertheless you cannot do without them you may put on any kind of bangles that you want and your parents can get for you. Consider how it will affect the poor. Do what your heart prompts you to do. Only hear what I say. Write to me.

   Blessings from
   BAPU

SUMITRA RAMDAS GANDHI
PILANI

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Daughter of Ramdas Gandhi
425. LETTER TO THE HEAD MISTRESS, BALIKA VIDYALAYA, PILANI

SEVAGRAM,
January 4, 1945

HEAD MISTRESS
PILANI SCHOOL

THE HEAD MISTRESS,

Please find enclosed a letter¹ for Sumitra Gandhi. Please see its contents and pass it on to her. Since her eyes are weak her diet needs some attention.

Please tell Lakshmibehn² and Chi. Mathuri³ to write to me.

Yours,
M. K. GANDHI

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

426. LETTER TO J. C. KUMARAPPA

SEVAGRAM,
January 5, 1945

MY DEAR K.,

It has cost me much trouble to see you free.⁴ You are naughty to have been so ill. Poor S.⁵ is going after you. She tried to establish connection from here. Now she and Munnalal will try from Nagpur to establish connection with you or Zaverbhai before going further.
Meanwhile love.

BAPU

From a photostat: G.N. 10167

¹ Vide the preceding item.
² Widow of N. M. Khare, an inmate of Sabarmati Ashram
³ Daughter of N. M. Khare
⁴ The addressee had been imprisoned in the Jabalpur jail.
⁵ Sushila Nayyar
427. LETTER TO THOMAS COOK & SON

January 5, 1945

Ref. Your letter No. TT/CB2708 (Foreign Exchange Dept.), dated 11-12-1944

DEAR SIRS,

With reference to your above-mentioned letter enclosing a receipt in duplicate of even date for Rs. 3,000 in my favour, I have to inform you that I have authorized Messrs Bachhraj & Co., Ltd., Bombay, to collect the amount from you.

Yours truly,

M. K. GANDHI

MESSRS THOS. COOK & SON, LTD.
P. O. BOX NO. 46
BOMBAY

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

428. LETTER TO DINSHAW K. MEHTA

SEVAGRAM,
January 5, 1945

CHI. DINSHAW,

I have read your telegrams. I like them. I fell ill owing to my own folly. Now I am taking only the nature-cure treatment which I know. I am throwing off the poison of Ayurveda. I am improving daily. If I called you now I would take your full treatment. But I cannot bring myself to have faith in the experiment of milk and I have lost faith in daily or frequent enema. I have come to believe that diet and mud-packs are more beneficial. I shall not take up your time merely for the sake of the massage. I shall consult you through letters if I feel the need. Please go on doing your own work. I am of course giving it thought. I hope Ardeshir is well.

Blessings from

BAPU

DR. DINSHAW ME HTA
POONA

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Addressee’s son
429. LETTER TO DEVDAS GANDHI

SEVAGRAM,
January 5, 1945

CHI. DEVDAS,

I have your telegrams, etc. I like the forbearance you have shown. You would laugh if you were here. I am paying for my folly. Ayurveda is not for me, just as doctors are not. I am getting rid of the poison with my own treatment. I shall see what is to be done about the hook-worm and the amoeba after I recover. I am improving daily.

It seems Dr. Dinshaw’s trust has not yet come into being. It will be good if it takes shape soon. It has taken too long. I hope Lakshmi and the children are all well.

I have written to Chi. Sumi. ¹

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

430. NOTE TO BHULABhai J. DESAI²

January 5, 1945³

I understand all that you say. I have trust in you. You know the parliamentary mind. You also know the minds of our people. You may, therefore, do what you think best. My own thinking runs in the opposite direction to the parliamentary one. But I know that there is, and will remain, room for both points of view in the Congress. You may, therefore, go ahead without fear. Let nobody take cover behind this note. Everybody should form an opinion independently and act accordingly. But tell them that I am not against the scheme. This note may be used.

As regards the Hindu-Muslim question, you may do what you can. I would welcome a Congress-League Ministry along the lines I ¹ Vide “Letter to Sumitra Gandhi”, 4-1-1945.

² Bhulabhai Desai, leader of the Congress Party in the Central Assembly, had been carrying on negotiations with Liaquat Ali Khan, Deputy Leader of the Muslim League in the Central Assembly, with a view to forming a Congress-League coalition at the centre and had sought Gandhiji’s advice. Gandhiji communicated his views in writing.
³ From Gandhijini Dinwari have suggested. I would also welcome co-operation between them in the parliamentary programme. But you should obtain authorization for it from the Working Committee. Without that I think it will be risky to come to a final agreement. The League should join in the efforts to get the Working Committee released. In my view it will be a test of its sincerity. I should not like you to let yourself be persuaded on just any terms.

This draft is for your perusal. You may suggest any emendations or additions that occur to you. I will make the changes if I like them.

I now wish to rest for a while. Meanwhile think things over and let me know.¹

From the Gujarati original: Bhulabhai Desai Papers. Courtesy. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library

431. LETTER TO RAGHAVDAS

SEVAGRAM, January 5, 1945

BHAIRAGHAVDAS²,

What is this? The golden remedy is Ramanama. Recite it from the heart. Let me know what medicine the local vaidya prescribes. I also have some good vaidyas. Get well.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

432. LETTER TO BALVANT SINHA

SEVAGRAM, January 5, 1945

BHAIB. S.,

I have your letter. I am quite well. Your work was sure to proceed well. I have never found you wanting in diligence. Don’t leave Satis Babu’s work incomplete.

By all means go to Khurja or a few days from there and then come here. There is work here too and there is not. Get well.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ For the steps proposed for the formation of an Interim Government, side Appendix I.

² Baba Raghavdas, a Gandhian worker from Maharashtra settled in Gorakhpur district of U. P.
433. LETTER TO MIRABEHN

Sevagram,
January 7, 1945

Chi. Mira,

I have gone through your letter. Pray do not disturb yourself on my behalf believing that I am consciously in God’s good hands. I have suffered for my sins in over-believing Ayurveda physicians. Now I am treating myself and have shed poison. I am really much better.

But you are yourself unwell. I do not mind. The same law applies to you as to me. You will be well again.

I do not mind the suggested changes. Experience will teach you and you will be right in the end. Do come when you can and you will do well and see many new things and possibly pick up workers.

Love.

Bapu

From the original: C.W. 6502. Courtesy: Mirabehn. Also G.N. 9897

434. LETTER TO CHIEF SECRETARY, C. P. GOVERNMENT

January 7, 1945

The Chief Secretary to the C. P. Government
Nagpur
Re: Nalwadi and Paunar Ashrams

Sir,

As my work-fast is now over I write this to remind you of my letter1 of 20-11-1944, and ask for a reply thereto. The property in question is not only going to increasing waste but so much useful and creative labour is being lost for what may be termed want of human consideration.

I am,

Yours faithfully,

M. K. Gandhi

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy.: Pyarelal

1 Requesting that Nalwadi and Paunar Ashrams, which had been confiscated by the C. P. Government, be returned to their trustees; vide “Letter to Chief Secretary, Government of C. P.”, 20-11-1944.
435. LETTER TO PARAMANAND K. KAPADIA

[January 7, 1945]

This is just to give you my blessings. I shall not condole with you. Father has cast off the body and become one with the elements. What is there in it to grieve over?

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI PARAMANAND KUNVARJI KAPADIA
T. BHAVNAGAR

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 11589

436. NOTE TO TARA N. MASHRUWALA

SEVAGRAM,
January 7, 1945

What improvement can I suggest in a scheme to which Bhai Kishorelal has put his seal? The scheme, of course, has my blessings, especially because it is for women’s uplift.

Blessings from
BAPU

TARABEHN MASHRUWALA
AKOLA

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

437. LETTER TO A. N. SHARMA

SEVAGRAM,
January 8, 1945

MY DEAR SHARMA,

Acted upon by you I have banked high on the spiritual and nature-cure attainments of our friend.1 I now understand that the patients fasted well but are now unable to pick up strength. As you know the patients are from the picked ones. Of course I do not know,

---

1 This is a postscript to Narahari D. Parikh’s letter of this date to the addressee.
2 Krishnaraju, who was giving nature-cure treatment to Anand T. Hingorani, Gokhale and Babaji Moghe. Vide “Letter to Krishnaraju”, 3-12-1944.
but you should know the reactions here and do the needful.

You know that Chakrayya is being suited, according to his letters.

For me I am apparently flourishing on my own nature cure.

Love.

Yours,

BAPU

DR. A. N. SHARMA
PRAKRITI ASHRAM
BHIMAVARAM (ANDHRA)

From a microfilm. Courtesy: National Archives of India. Also Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

438. LETTER TO H. L. SHARMA

SEVAGRAM,
January 8, 1945

CHI. SHARMA,

I have your letter. I shall hear what you have to say but my faith in your ability is diminishing. I find that you do not meet any naturopaths. You now fight shy of coming here. I have been of the opinion that a naturopath should be so endowed that he can mix well with others and be completely free from pride and anger. I feel you have both in good measure.

Still, you should go on doing your work. Produce results and remove my doubts and fears. The money you have been paid, you have been paid. From now on I am not going to beg for donations for you. You are quite capable of raising funds. So collect the funds and carry on your work. Win the trustee’s confidence. I am observing silence.

Blessings from

BAPU

HIRALAL SHARMA
KHURJA, U. P.

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
439. LETTER TO AMRIT KAUR

Sevagram,
January 9, 1945

Chh. Amrit,

I should be no cause of worry. I am in God’s hands and that should be more than enough. I am daily gaining ground.

So Beryl is fixed up. She has sent me a hand-written book “Khalil Gibran” and handspun.

I have not written hitherto. If you think I now can, you may hand her the enclosed.

Love.

Bapu

[PS.]

Don’t worry about yourself either, come what will. I envy you your snow.

This is supposed to be the best part in Simla. So said Valji Desai.

Rajkumari Amrit Kaur
Simla

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

440. LETTER TO BERYL

Sevagram,
January 9, 1945

My dear Beryl,

So you are at last fixed up. I hope the choice is good. Do write everything to me.

I prize your khadi and more so your hand-written “Khalil Gibran”. I have commenced reading it.

Do write to me all about Mother. She has suffered. R. K. has told me all about her.

Love and kisses.

Bapu

Beryl
C/o Rajkumari Amrit Kaur
Simla

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
441. LETTER TO G. D. BIRLA

SEVAGRAM,
January 9, 1945

CHI. GHANSHYAMDAS,

I read all your letters or have them read out to me.

I have not got myself involved in Ayurveda in an unscientific way. Such as it is all we have. It would therefore be well if we could take Ayurveda to the villages. I had faith in Pandit Shiv Sharma and I took this treatment. There was no other way of knowing his limitations. Having realized his limitations, I felt I should retrace my steps from the point where I had erred. So I took recourse to my naturopathy. There is very little room for going wrong in naturopathy. Every day I only gain something. If you come here and see it for yourself all your fears will be dispelled. I am feeling very much better indeed. As for the hook-worm and amoeba I have told the doctors that I will take their treatment. I shall be in a better position to think about it after I get rid of whatever little weakness I still feel.

I do not need any change of place. If I do, I shall go to Bombay or Panchgani or, maybe, Poona. I would like to go to Delhi and yet I feel hesitant. I shall not insist, though. I shall go to Delhi if you take me there in connection with the Kasturba Fund. I shall go wherever you take me.

It is absolutely necessary to have a deed about Dinshaw.

Blessings from

BAPU

From the Hindi original: C.W. 8063. Courtesy: G. D. Birla

442. LETTER TO ANAND T. HINGORANI

SEVAGRAM,
January 9, 1945

CHI. ANAND,

I have your letter. What does it matter whether your ear heals or not? The more we trust in God the happier shall we be. The vaidyas, etc., are there, but they keep us away from God. That is why I preferred to send you three there. Naturecure treatment brings us nearer to God. Even if we give that up I have no objection but why should we avoid fasting? Naturecure treatment means going towards Nature, towards God. Let us see where I arrive. I shall do as I feel prompted.

Blessings to all of you from
BAPU

From a microfilm of the Hindi. Courtesy: National Archives of India and Anand T. Hingorani

443. LETTER TO S. H. PANDIT

[After January 9, 1945]

let you know if anything worthwhile strikes him to add.

Gandhiji is grateful for your assurances and your reminding him of old acquaintances. He is glad to hear of your work and he will read the report when it comes, and From the original : Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy : Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

444. NOTE TO SUSHILA NAYYAR

[After January 9, 1945]

Write to him a nice letter : “Gandhi will be only too pleased to meet you whenever you can come. His health is improving.”

From a copy of the Gujarati : Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy : Dr. Sushila Nayyar

445. LETTER TO T. S. S. RAJAN

January 10, 1945

DEAR DR. RAJAN,

On my return from Bombay on the 1st inst. I read out your letter of 15-12-44 to Bapu.

With regard to the action you have taken about the Bharadwaja Ashram, I am to say that you have Bapu’s approval.

Yours sincerely,
PYARELAL

Dr. T. S. S. RAJAN
TRICHINOPOLY

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy : Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

1 Vide also “Letter to A. N. Sharma”, 8-1-1945.
2 This reply by Pyarelal was in response to the addressee’s letter of January 9, 1945, wherein recalling his acquaintance with Gandhiji, he gave him his assurance regarding the eye-treatment of Parnerkar’s mother.
3 The note is written on a sheet bearing a letter dated January 9, 1945 from John Sargent to the addressee.
446. TRIBUTE TO ROMAIN ROLLAND

WARDHA,
January 10, 1945

Having been once bitten, I am too shy to believe in Romain Rolland’s reported death. But it seems that this report is true. And yet for me as for many millions, Romain Rolland is not dead. He truly lives through his famous writings and perhaps more so through his many and nameless deeds. He lived for truth and non-violence as he saw and believed them from time to time. He responded to all suffering. He revolted against the wanton human butchery called war.

The Hitavada, 12-1-1945

447. LETTER TO KUNDAR DIWAN

January 10, 1945

BHAI KUNDAR,

Here are a few words from me. Call them what you will and print them if you want. Your preface of course is good. Let it stay.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

448. FOREWORD TO “TUKARAM KI RASHTRAGATHA”

SEVAGRAM,
January 10, 1945

Dr. Indubhushan Bhingare had published earlier the first edition of Sant Tukaram ki Rashtragatha. The present edition is the revised one. My knowledge of Marathi is very slight. I like Tukaram very much. But I could read only a few of his abhangas without effort. I therefore passed on Dr. Bhingare’s selection to Kundarji Diwan who took great pains to go through the whole thing.

1 Romain Rolland died on December 30, 1944, in Vezelay, France.

2 Vide the following item.
The Gatha needed a fitting picture. Dr. Bhingare had selected a cheap one. It hurt me very much. I sent it to Shri Nandalal Bose, the renowned Santiniketan artist. He has been kind enough to send me four pictures of Tukaram to go with the abhangas. I sent the one that I thought the best among them to Bhingare and it will be published in this edition.

I hope this edition will command the respect of people.

M. K. GANDHI

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

449. A FOREWORD

January 10, 1945

The Ishavasya gripped me during my Harijan tour of Travancore. All my speeches invariably included the first verse of this Upanishad: “All that is pervaded by God. It all belongs to Him, therefore nothing belongs to you. But in a way it is yours too. But why get caught in the argument? Renounce all, and all is yours. Nothing will remain in your hands if you regard anything as yours.”

This was the note with which I concluded my Travancore tour and I felt that I had come by a treasure. I told Vinoba and requested him to give me a simple Hindi rendering of the Ishavasya. As is his wont he granted my request. The result is this translation.

M. K. GANDHI

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

450. LETTER TO AMTUSSALAAM

SEVAGRAM,

January 10, 1945

CHI. DAUGHTER A. S.,

I have read your letter to Sushilabehn.

If you must come here, come when you find the time.

Your falling ill is not good and is contrary to our pact. Dying is not an ideal. Indulging in such things is false attachment. You must free yourself from that.

Do preside over the meeting if you wish. But your giving a lecture on the basis of a note sent from here is pointless. You should give to the meeting what you have digested.

If the officer has sent you the money without attaching any conditions, I see no harm in your accepting it'. It is different that having gone into the matter further I may suggest something else. Your worrying about my health shows that you know neither God nor me. If you knew God, you would realize that you, I and everyone else are solely in His hands. If you knew me, you would know that I take every possible precaution. There are lapses nonetheless, but what can one do about it. However, I am maintaining good health. Under any circumstances you need not worry.

I repeat you may come any time you wish.

You have nothing to do with the 26th of January. You are all the time doing that work.

_Blessings from_

_BAPU_

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 489

_451. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA_

_January 10, 1945_

CHI. KRISHNACHANDRA,

I have your two letters before me. Enclosed please find some letters. Parnerkar’s sister’s son passed away. It is a sad thing. I understand about Anantramji. It would be good if he could grow leafy vegetables. Find out how much land Aryanayakum requires and where. In my opinion he should be given whatever he wants. I may have left something unanswered; but only this much for now.

_Blessings from_

_BAPU_

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4454

---

1 The Collector of Comilla had offered one thousand rupees to the Kasturba Seva Mandir for relief work.
452. ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

[Before January 11, 1945]

[QUESTION]: If it is possible to meet the Working Committee, will you try to persuade the Working Committee to accept this plan?

[ANSWER]: Yes.

Q. What are your arguments in favour of this plan?

A. After my talks with Jinnah, Jinnah told many people that Gandhi had not even mentioned Interim Government. Bhulabhai’s effort is a reply to this. But if the intentions of the League are not genuine, nothing will come out of it.

Q. What happens if the Viceroy uses his veto over the head of the Congress and the League?

A. In that case there will be an agreement between Bhulabhai and Liaquat Ali that the Government will resign.

453. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA

SEVAGRAM, January 11, 1945

CHI. KRISHNACHANDRA,

I have read the whole thing. It is good. There are many instances of repetition; these can be avoided. A few things have been left out, but that does not matter.

I am sending Ramjibhai’s letter on to him. It seems good.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4455

1 According to the source the conversation took place before the Bhulabhai-Liaquat Ali Pact was concluded on January 11, 1945.

2 Of a Congress-League coalition at the Centre; vide Appendix “Guidelines for Proposed Interim Government”, 5-1-1945.
454. LETTER TO RAMJIBHAI

Sevagram,
January 11, 1945

Bhai Ramji,

Owing to my illness I could not answer your letter sooner. Your resentment is not justified. You are an indefatigable worker; therefore, you will certainly go on working and that is good. Still I am sending you the frank letter from Chi. Krishnachandra. You may come if you feel like it after you have read the letter.

Blessings from
Bapu

Ramjibhai

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

455. LETTER TO INDUBHUSHAN BHINGARE

Sevagram,
January 11, 1945

Bhai Bhingare,

I send herewith the manuscript of my foreword¹ and a picture. Please send me the proofs of my foreword.

I have other pictures. If you want to publish them at appropriate places write to me. I shall send them.

Yours,
M. K. Gandhi

Dr. Bhingare
Mahal
Nagpur

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹Vide "Foreword to Tukaramki Rashtragatha", 10-1-1945.
456. SPEECH AT HINDUSTANI TALIMI SANGH CONFERENCE

SEVAGRAM,
January 11, 1945

DR. ZAKIR SAHEB, ARYANAYAKUMJI, SHRIMATI ASHADEVI AND BROTHERS AND SISTERS,

I had hoped to speak a few words while opening this Conference, but God had willed otherwise. I had to observe silence because of a cough, and other things. Therefore I have written down what I wanted to say.

Although we have been working for Nayee Talim all these years, we have so far been, as it were, sailing in an inland sea which is comparatively safer. We are now leaving the shoals and heading for the open sea. So far our course was mapped out. We have now before us uncharted waters, with the Pole Star as our only guide and protection. That Pole Star is village handicrafts.

Our sphere of work now is not confined to Nayee Talim of children from seven to fourteen years; it is to cover the whole of life from the moment of conception to the moment of death. This means that our work has increased tremendously. Yet workers remain the same. But that should not worry us. Our guide and companion is Truth which is God. He will never betray us. But Truth will be our help only if we stand by it regardless of everything. There can be in it no room for hypocrisy, camouflage, pride, attachment or anger.

We have to become teachers of villagers; that is to say, we have to become their servants in the true sense. Our reward if any, has to come from within and not from without. It should make no difference to us whether in our quest for Truth we have any human company or not. Nor does Nayee Talim depend on outside financial help. It must proceed on its own way, whatever critics might say. I know that true education must be self-supporting. There is nothing to feel ashamed of in this. It may be a novel idea if we can make good our claim and demonstrate that ours is the only method for the true development of the mind. Those who scoff at Nayee Talim today will become its ardent admirers in the end and Nayee Talim will find universal acceptance.

1 The four-day conference, attended by more than 200 educationists, was held under the presidency of Zakir Husain, who read out Gandhiji’s speech.

2 From The Hindu, 11-1-1945
Seven lakhs of our villages, which are today the symbol of our poverty in every sense, ought to become prosperous in the real sense. This prosperity will not come from outside; it will grow from within the villages as a result of the labour of every villager. Whether this is a mere dream or a practical reality, this is the goal of Nayee Talim and nothing short of it. May the God of Truth help us to realize it.

I have gone through the balance-sheet of the Talimi Sangh. It shows that whatever we have spent has been spent with due care and consideration. It is a brief document. I hope everyone will go through it carefully.

The question of language as such does not fall within the scope of Nayee Talim but the question of the medium of instruction does and that must always be the mother tongue. This point cannot be over-emphasized. Equally important is the question of a national or all-India language. It can never be English. English is undoubtedly the language of the rulers and of international commerce. But Hindi-Hindustani alone can be our national language. At present it has two forms. In order to understand both the forms of the national language, viz., Hindi and Urdu, and for their natural synthesis we must learn the Devanagari and Persian scripts. I find this lacking even in my immediate surroundings. All our sign-boards1 must be written in both the scripts and there should be none amongst us who cannot easily read and write either.

I want to draw your attention also to another thing. I consider the Sevagram centre to be an ideal centre for conducting the central experiment in Nayee Talim, as it is here that the Charkha Sangh is carrying out its main experiments. Wardha is the centre for the other village industries. Experiments for the improvement of cattle, which is service of the cow in the true sense, are also being conducted here. Sevagram does not stand alone; there are nearly 20 villages lying about it in close proximity. Therefore if experiments in Nayee Talim in its most natural form can be carried out anywhere, it is here. The various institutions mentioned above are not rival organizations; they are complementary and are calculated to supplement one another’s efforts. That is the hallmark of a revolution of love.

[From Hindi]

Samagra Nayee Talim

1 From The Hindu, 13-1-1945; the source however has ‘teaching’.
457. A LETTER

[Before January 12, 1945]

I have no partiality for any militant programme for 26th January. According to my idea, the constructive programme is the programme. Therefore, it should be prosecuted with redoubled zeal. Flag salutation with the reading of the independence pledge has become an inseparable item. It should, therefore, be retained.

But I would avoid mass gatherings and processions. My advice should be followed only if it appeals to the head and the heart. However, if the significance of the constructive programme has been properly understood, I am sure my advice will not fail to find a ready response.

The Hindu, 15-1-1954

458. LETTER TO MIRZA ISMAIL

SEVAGRAM,
January 12, 1945

DEAR FRIEND,

I appreciate your cordiality. I hope some day we shall be able to meet. Meanwhile please do not worry. I am trying to put myself under the unfailing Chief Medical Officer and to act under His guidance. If I err in interpreting His guidance, He is generous enough to correct me. Read me in that light and you will find that I have not acted unscientifically.

Love to you all.

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat: G.N. 2187

1 Addressed to a Congress worker, the letter was released to the Press by Pyarelal on January 12, 1945.
2 ibid
3 The independence pledge was first drafted by Gandhiji in January 1930; vide "Draft Declaration for January 26", 10-1-1930. In December 1939 it was amended and approved by the Congress Working Committee; vide "Letter from Dharmandrasinh", 3-3-1939. Gandhiji added a paragraph to it on January 11, 1941; vide "Instructions for Independence Day", 10-1-1941. Again in January 1943, Gandhiji, while in detention in Aga Khan Palace, prepared another pledge for "celebrating the Independence Day" vide "Independence Day Pledge", 25-1-1943.
4 Dewan of Mysore
459. LETTER TO GOPE GURBUXANI

Sevagram,

January 12, 1945

MY DEAR GURUBAX,

If you both must come, do; only know that I am not speaking during the whole day. But you will see the whole place and inhabitants and decide what part you can play.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

DR. GOPE GURBAXANI

17 HasAN Building
NICHOLSON ROAD
DELHI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

460. LETTER TO RICHARD SYMOND

Sevagram,

January 12, 1945

MY DEAR SYMOND,

Your good letter. I have met Sujata and listened to her and written out things to her. I am silent the whole day long. This for reasons of health. It suits me.

Davies has ‘stolen’. He has to prove worthy of the ‘stealth’. Never mind comments. I know you will act as the Spirit guides you and it will be well with you. You can do what others may not and must not. I have explained this to you.

Do come whenever you can.

Love to you both.

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

FRIEND RICHARD SYMOND

THROUGH SUJATA DAVIES

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Of the Friends Ambulance Unit
2 Indian wife of Glan Davies, a fellow-worker of the addressee
461. LETTER TO ABDUL MAJID KHAN

SEVAGRAM,
January 12, 1945

MY DEAR PROFESSOR,

Fortunately you have sent me a Copy of my previous message.
I cannot improve upon it. You should boldly stand and win.
They will choose you for your work as a man.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

PROF. ABDUL MAJID KHAN
Lahore

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

462. LETTER TO SUSHILA GANDHI

SEVAGRAM,
January 12, 1945

CHI. SUSHILA,

I got your letter. You must not worry about me. Trust me to God’s mercy. He will do as He wills. Come soon.

You are a strong-willed woman. Is it not God’s grace that you have the strength to look after so many children? For you look after them, feed them, and so on, while doing your other work.

Sita is getting along very well indeed. She feels perfectly at home. She is very sociable and therefore has made several friends.

The rest from other letters.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 4944
463. LETTER TO LILAVATI ASAR
SEVAGRAM,
January 12, 1945

CHI. LILI,

I have your letter. I am daily getting stronger. I was glad that this time you felt satisfied. You served me with great devotion and have gone there well in time. It does not matter if you have lost a day; you have not missed your lessons. Even where you are, it is me you are serving. Do your work in that faith. You are then bound to pass. You are violating dharma in desiring to leave before I do. What would happen if all the workers did that?

I never said that the students should observe a strike on the 9th. On the contrary they should devote themselves all the more to service on that day. That would please the teachers, too.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 9599. Also C.W. 6571. Courtesy: Lilavati Asar

464. LETTER TO SATYAVATI
SEVAGRAM,
January 12, 1945

CHI. SATYAVATI,

I have your letter. Even the little improvement in your condition is a matter of consolation to me.

Do write the story of Ba, Mahadev and others if you wish. Is your health all that good? Your writing will not be coming from your own heart if you ask for material from others. This is my opinion. Now do what you like.

My letter was for you alone. Why give a father’s letter to his daughter to the papers? But if doing so benefits you in any way give it to the Press by all means.

Others will write the rest.

Blessings from
BAPU

SATYAVATI DEVI
LAHORE

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 However, Gandhiji had written to Suryakant Parikh, a student leader, on November 19, 1944: “I . . . like the idea of students abstaining from school on the 9th provided they devote the day to self-purification and service.”
465. LETTER TO ANATH NATH BASU

SEVAGRAM,
January 14, 1945

DEAR FRIEND,

I have gone through your paper. It reads well on paper but it appears to me to be largely unpractical. I feel that the new type is made of sterner stuff and is revolutionary in the true sense of the term. I should like you to think deeper and in terms of the starving millions of the villages.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

SHRI ANATH NATH BASU
C/o SHRI ARYANAYAKUM

From a photostat: G.N. 9248

466. LETTER TO DR. NIROD MUKHERJEE

SEVAGRAM,
January 14, 1945

DEAR FRIEND,

I have gone through every bit of what you have given me. It has caused me great pain. Though your Association’s work is humanitarian on your own showing, it touches hardly the fringe. The problem is medical only in a very small measure. The deterioration will continue in spite of your medical effort. You have to act humanely and boldly as men and not as mere medical volunteers. You have to be of the masses and tell the rulers the truth. The disease is starvation appearing as malaria and what not. Outsiders will bring little relief, money will bring less. Give the people milk and other food, their dwellings and their boats and I am positive that no medicine will be needed.

Your report makes me more and more eager to rush to Bengal and make common cause with the starving dumb masses. But I know I cannot rush. I do not want a palace like jail. I want to be with the people and touch their decaying bones.
This is my reaction to your paper. That just now I am weak adds to my sorrow.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

DR. NIROD MUKHERJI
C/O SHRI ARYANAYAKUM

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

467. LETTER TO BARBARA

SEVAGRAM,
January 14, 1945

DEAR BARBARA,

Since you undertake to remain here, at least meanwhile, there should be no difficulty in the Nayakums going for a change. I am with you.

Love.

BAPU

BARBARA
C/O NAYAKUMJI
SEVAGRAM

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

468. LETTER TO E. W. ARYANAYAKUM

January 14, 1945

CHI. ARYANAYAKUM,

Read the letter from Barbara. If she herself wants to stay here, it will be good if the two of you go to Hoshangabad for a few days. I am of course here. If the two of you keep indifferent health all the activities will suffer.

Blessings from
BAPU

NAYAKUMJI
SEVAGRAM

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
469. LETTER TO VIJAYA M. PANCHOLI

January 14, 1945

We have been talking a great deal about you two. When are you coming?

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 7150. Also C.W. 4642. Courtesy: Vijaya M. Pancholi

470. LETTER TO SHRIKRISHNADAS JAJU

SEVAGRAM,

January 14, 1945

BHAI JAJUJI,

I know that if a true worker goes to any village he will become self-supporting within a short time. When we pay his personal expenses nothing else need be given him. We shall provide him no paraphernalia because the villagers themselves will supply the things. The worker will keep a takli with him one made from bamboo will be the best. He will of course carry a knife with him. If nothing else he will at least teach the children. They will make taklis from bamboo and spin. If no cotton is grown in the village he will choose another occupation. But we shall start with a village where cotton is grown. I feel I have given you enough for a beginning. Ask me more questions if you want. I realize it is a new thing but I know also that if one has faith it is no difficult task.

Blessings from

BAPU

JAJUJI
KHADI VIDYALAYA
SEVAGRAM

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

---

1 This is a postscript to Kisan Ghumatkar’s letter to the addressee.
2 The addressee and her husband Manubhai Pancholi
471. LETTER TO SITA GANDHI

SEVAGRAM,
January 15, 1945

CHI. SITA,

I like your letter. It is clear and to the point. Your presumption is correct. In that case Sushila should arrive soon.

I am glad, too, that you are making good progress in your studies. Make as much progress as you can, but see that your body is strong.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 4945

472. NOTE TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

January 15, 1945

When I go to visit the sick in the evening, I notice that the so-called servants needlessly throw away water and people leave vegetables, etc., in the dishes. You should look into this. You can tell the guests without being discourteous. You may show them the notices put up for the purpose. They can also be told when being served. I do not like Kanchan continuing to be ill. Yesterday again she had fever. You should find out the cause of the fever. There ought to be perfect cleanliness and peace all over the Ashram.

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: C.W. 5812. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

473. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA

January 15, 1945

CHI. KRISHNACHANDRA,

Dastane¹ writes that if you are willing to go you should let him know. Surely you will consult the people here before you go, won’t you?

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4456

¹ Vithal V. Dastane
474. LETTER TO SATYAVATI

SEVAGRAM, January 15, 1945

CHI. SATYAVATI,

Your letter is good. Indeed you will have won a victory if you recover. Yes, it goes without saying that you will come to me when you feel like it.

The rest from Khurshedbehn and others.

Blessings from

BAPU

SATYAVATI DEVI
T. B. HOSPITAL, LAHORE

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

475. LETTER TO KONDA VENKATAPPAYYA

January 16, 1945

DEAR DESHABHAKTA,

I have your two letters. I have given full satisfaction to Shri Sitarama Sastry. He will tell you all about it. The wonder to me is that you are showing, at your age, so much interest and energy. Of course I met your daughter.

Love.

BAPU

From a photostat: G.N. 3228

476. LETTER TO GLADYS E. SUNWANI

SEVAGRAM, January 16, 1945

DEAR SISTER,

Yours is a case in which I shall value your letter in English before I can usefully reply.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

GLADYS E. SUNWANI
C/o D. E. DEAN
RAIPUR

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

VOL.85 : 2 OCTOBER, 1944 - 3 MARCH, 1945 291
477. LETTER TO KANAM GANDHI

SEVAGRAM,
January 16, 1945

CHI. KANAM\(^1\).

I have your letter. As desired by you, I am returning it. I am glad that Father has now got dentures. Now he should not misuse them by eating indiscriminately.

Your preparation seems all right. What little was taught to you here seems to have borne fruit.

Write an essay comparing Nagpur and Sevagram and send it to me. My health is all right, but the pressure of work is fairly heavy. I shall, therefore, correct the essay when I get the time and return it to you.

I don’t believe in ghosts. I have had no such experience. It is all right if Bhansalibhai believes in them. That does not detract from his saintliness. But there is no reason to believe that everything a saint says must be true. No one is omniscient. The planchette business is pure fraud. Do not get involved in it.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 9515. Courtesy: Kanam Gandhi

478. LETTER TO SHARDA G. CHOKHAWALA

SEVAGRAM,
January 16, 1945

CHI. BABUDI,

I read your postcard addressed to Father and Mother. You have lost your common sense. It is fair neither to Vallabhaibhai nor to you that he should send you medicines by post. You have tried homoeopathy. We have an allopath here, as also a vaid. A homoeopath also may join. I am also here. If, therefore, you can summon up courage, come over. Resolve that you will return only when fully recovered or when I admit defeat. But don’t come merely because I ask you to. Come only if you are fully convinced that my advice is correct, for only then will you benefit.

Blessings to you both from
BAPU

From the Gujarati original: C.W. 10050. Courtesy: Sharda G. Chokhawala

\(^1\) Ramdas Gandhi’s son
479. LETTER TO INDU MASHRUWALA

[January 16, 1945]¹

CHI. INDU².

Are you asking my blessing? I have already refused it to Gomati. She understood. What is so novel about your marrying within your caste? Still, if you want my blessing you have it. Never mind if you both belong to the same caste; both of you should break the barriers of caste. Make your own rules. Observe them and do work of service. Be good.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

480. NOTE TO INDULAL YAJNIK³

January 16, 1945

1. I shall see about Sahajanand.
2. I understand about you. Thakkar Bapa, Kanjibhai, Mavalankar and others are at your back so nothing remains to be said. If they all have some misgiving or other you have to put up with it and remove it by your conduct. All good work has my blessing. I have had confidence in you ever since I knew you. I have been seeing you since 1915. I have worked with you and learnt from you. There have been sweet and bitter experiences. I have noticed your virtues as I have also experienced your unsteadiness. I am therefore a little wary of you. But you must not be afraid of me, a satyagrahi. For I will never interfere with your good work. It is also my experience that a noble act carries with it good wishes of the whole world. You should therefore shed all fear and go on doing your duty.
3. I like what you say about youths. I shall think over it although I see practical difficulties. I have not asked for a hundred thousand. I would consider myself fortunate even if I could get a thousand young people. I am looking for them.

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ The source has placed the letter at the end of the letters dated January 16, 1945, and before those of January 17.
² Niece of Kishorelal Mashruwala
³ This was Gandhiji’s part of the conversation the addressee had with him.
481. NOTE TO H. C. DASAPPA

Sevagram,
January 17, 1945

1. As for my coming, I would love to go to Mysore. But there has been so much tyranny everywhere that I shirk going anywhere for health. I have made an exception in favour of Panchgani for it is so near Bombay and especially Poona. But I want to avoid even Panchgani if I can. Thus if I do not go to Mysore or anywhere else you know why.

2. As to the election I am not enamoured of them. The more you avoid them the better. The more you silently follow the constructive programme the nearer you are to swaraj. But after all I have said, you must follow your own mind. You may weigh, if you like all I say. But my saying should never replace your mind.

3. As to Yashodara she should stay till cured and till she has good command over Hindi. She should not hurry. Ramdas of course is a fixture. As to Dr. M[ahmud], you have done your part; you need not worry now.

I have given you my mental state. Now let us leave it to fate. I shall not pull.

About the Maharaja you should make no overtures but of course you should lose no opportunity of seeing him, if he will see you.

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

482. LETTER TO AMRITLAL V. THAKKAR

Sevagram,
January 17, 1945

Bapa,

I have your letter. It is not certain that I shall be going to 1 Dasappa; President, Mysore Congress Committee, had met Gandhiji and invited him to spend the summer in Mysore State.

2 Addressee’s wife and son
3 ibid
Panchgani. February 22 will have passed. That dismisses the question of inauguration. I have to suit everyone’s convenience. Therefore I shall present myself wherever the meeting is held. You ought to give up considering my convenience. You should consider everyone’s convenience as my convenience. In this lies the good of the memorial, and my own too. If you do not wish to carry the responsibility you may consult others and do as the majority wishes.

BAPU

THAKKAR BAPA
POONA

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

483. LETTER TO RATILAL M. VORA

SEVAGRAM,
January 17, 1945

BHAI RATILAL,

Your letter dated 5-10-1944 has been lying around and came into my hands only today. Such things happened while I have been ill and moving about. I hope your son-in-law is there and has recovered too. I would be happy if you could give me his news. I have sent the photograph along with my blessings.

Blessings from

BAPU

RATILAL MAGANLAL VORA
2ND FLOOR, ROOM 62, 47 GOSWAMI BUILDING
PINJARAPOLE LANE
BOMBAY 4

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

484. DISCUSSION WITH PRAHLAD MEHTA

January 17, 1945

PRAHLAD MEHTA: What should the students and Congressmen do at the present juncture?

GANDHIJI: They must find out ways and means to achieve freedom as soon as possible and devote themselves to the constructive

1 Of the All-India Students’ Congress

VOL. 85 : 2 OCTOBER, 1944 - 3 MARCH, 1945  295
P. M. What should the students do to strengthen the Congress?

G. The students must identify themselves with the aims and ideals of the National Congress and, by being part and parcel of it, they must continue to struggle against the foreign rule.

P.M. Should the students’ organizations have a separate identity or should they align themselves with the different political parties?

G. Students should do in this case what they think proper and advantageous for their organization and if experience proves otherwise, they must give up party affiliations. Students should not indulge in unnecessary abuse of students belonging to a different ideology. However, they must strengthen the Indian National Congress and prepare it for the final fight for freedom by doing silent service.

The Hindu, 19-1-1945

485. INTERVIEW TO T. V. KUNHIKRISHNAN

January 17, 1945

T. V. KUNHIKRISHNAN: You know the Communists took an attitude of hostility to the political activities of students in 1942 and afterwards. The Indian Students’ Congress embodies to some extent the faith and aspirations of students who are opposed to the attitude of the Communist section. Here are some of our questions:

Have we the right to exclude Communists and oppose their attitude and tactics? Please do not tell us that this is a minor provincial question. We want your guidance in this matter.

GANDHIJI: I dislike the idea of excluding anybody because of his label. But use your independent judgment.

T. V. K. Are we right in building up a new all-India organization for students?

G. You [are]¹, if it fits in with the Congress idea.

T. V. K. What particular item of the Constructive Programme do you think can best be done by students?

G. So many items to choose from. Students must make their ¹ President, Kerala Students’ Congress. Gandhiji gave written replies to the questions put to him.

² The source has ‘have’.

³ The source has “India”.

THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
choice.

T. V. K. Can the Indian Students’ Congress have a flag of its own? Can you suggest some flag for us?

G. I cannot suggest a better flag than the Congress flag. It is all-sufficing.

T. V. K. You had said that Congress workers should take charge of students below 12. Can you amplify the statement?

G. Quote my exact words and you will know the meaning.

T. V. K. You had asked students to observe the 9th of every month\(^1\). This has been characterized as an advice for ‘back-door satyagraha’ by Communists. Would you allow students to abstain from classes on the 9th?

G. I must see my own statement. I do not think I have said any such thing. There must be something else. As a student and newspaperman you should be quite accurate. Send my own statements.

From a photostat: G.N. 5678

486. TELEGRAM TO CHANDRAPAL SINGH DATTA

January 18, 1945

CHANDRAPAL SINGH DATTA
PILLARS
SIALKOT

WIRE RECEIVED. HOPE FATHER BETTER. REPORT PROGRESS.

GANDHI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

487. LETTER TO MIRABEHN

SEVAGRAM,
January 18, 1945

CHI. MIRA,

Your letter just received. I hope you had my fairly full letter before this.

Balvant Sinha is not here. He is with Satis Babu. I have no hope of his coming to you. I should encourage him, if he at all felt inclined. I know he will be the man for you.

\(^1\) Vide footnote to “Letter to Lilavati Asar”, 12-1-1945.

Anyway you should come and see if you can pick up anyone permanently or even for a time. There are many people here. Therefore you should come whenever you can.

There seems only a small chance of my coming to Delhi towards the end of February. If you come, the sooner the better. For the weather is daily becoming hotter.

Love.

BAPU

From the original: C.W. 6503. Courtesy: Mirabehn. Also G.N. 9898

488. LETTER TO H. S. L. POLAK

January 18, 1945

MY DEAR HENRY,

I have an unfinished part of your letter of November 4, 1944. The other part cannot be had.

From your letter I gather that you are correctly reported. And that is, in my opinion, damaging.¹

I do not recall your previous letter or letters. But there was no intentional negligence. In any event I never said anything against you publicly. On the contrary, on suspicion arising, my first approach was to you. But if you think that it was unnecessary for you even to refer to me before attacking me, of course I have nothing to say.

Love to you all.

BHAI

H. S. L. POLAK, ESQ.
11 HARTFIELD ROAD
LONDON S.W. 19

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

¹ Vide “Letter to Agatha Harrison”, 15-10-1944.
489. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

January 18, 1945

I have read the whole thing. You have poured out your heart in it, which was the right thing to do. You are still unsteady. For the unsteadiness to go you must remain in the institution and give yourself wholly to it. So it should be the same to you whether it is Jajuji or Chimanlal or I. You should obey the head whoever he be. Therein lies your training. If, however, that is not possible for you, I shall not mind if you two live together away from the Ashram. I doubt, though, whether you will then be able to observe brahmacharya. But what even if you cannot? It will be no crime. You two are married and should be free to do as you like. Whatever you do, you should do together and with deliberation and determination.

Even while remaining in the institution you will continue to serve the people. In fact you will then do it better. But even here you must do as you think best. If you wish me to guide you, you will of course have my guidance whenever you ask it.

If you can be more specific about the difficulties you mention, I may perhaps be able to solve them. The irregularity you mention cannot be tolerated. Give me the details. If something is unavoidable we shall put up with it, but we will do that with our eyes open. I can understand about Nanavati. He is ill, but he is a tried worker. I believe that one should not eat for the pleasure of the palate.

Chimanlal is an old-timer. Well or ill he has stuck on. He goes on working silently. You should have regard for his services. The secret of good life is strictness with oneself and generosity to co-workers. Why need you keep anything private?

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 5814. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah
490. LETTER TO VASUMATI D. PANDIT

SEVAGRAM,
January 18, 1945

CHI. VASUMATI,

I have your letter. I had your previous letters too. I am giving this to Zohra.

I am all right. Do not at all worry about me.

It is good you went. You will get a lot of experience. Akbar will no doubt look after you. It is all the better that you have not carried with you a lot of medicines. A number of ailments disappear with very slight treatment. It is superstition to insist on drugs. Local herbs are a different matter. For stomach-ache one should fast, drink hot water and take hot water fomentation. If there are loose motions fasting is imperative. If the patient insists he may be given a pinch of soda bi-carb or powdered neem leaves. If anybody has a headache, he should have a mud-pack on the head and drink lots of water and so on. This is just to point the way. Have patience, think for yourself, repeat Ramanama and persuade others to do so.

Blessings from

BAPU

VASUMATIBEHN PANDIT
SAMAU
P. O. OLD DEESA, NORTH GUJARAT

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

491. LETTER TO SHIV SHARMA

SEVAGRAM,
January 18, 1945

BHAJ SHIV SHARMA,

I read your letter to Khurshedbehn. Let me tell you that I cannot lose faith in you or Ayurveda because of banafsha\(^1\) or the baramula preparation. Ayurveda for me has a value independently of everything. I am in search of a true practitioner of Ayurveda. You are one of those few but your field is among rich people. I have to see how far I can persuade you to go to the villages.

\(^1\) Viola cineria
Improve your health and come down here when you are free. . . .¹ is trying out his experiment an Balkrishna and Hari-chchha. He has gone to his patients for two days.

_Blessings from_
_BAPU_

From a facsimile of the Hindi: Sarika, April 1964

492. ASHRAM NOTE

_January 19, 1945_

The thing is that we should bring deliberation into our lives. If we want to work less, we may work less. But what we do should as far as possible be perfect. That is why I have said that if we could mould our lives as we sing in the _bhajan_ and make Sevagram an ideal village, we would have done everything.

_BAPU_

[From Hindi]
_Bapuki Chhayamen_ , p. 388

493. LETTER TO ABDUL MAJID KHAN

_January 19, 1945_

MY DEAR PROF. ABDUL MAJID KHAN,

You should boldly stand for the coming Panjab University Fellowship elections.² They will choose you for your worth as a nationalist. My hearty blessings to you.

Since you have the support of all the eminent Congressmen, if you are defeated it will be because the majority of graduate voters are not Congress-minded. It will also show that in your province at least the Congress hold on the educated men is not as great as it should be.

I hope you will win.

_Yours sincerely,_
M. K. _Gandhi_

PROF. ABDUL MAJID KHAN
6 B KAPURTHALA HOUSE
LAKE ROAD, LAHORE

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Illegible in the source
494. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

January 19, 1945

It was good you wrote. You could have said all that in one paragraph. Brevity is an art. If you cultivate that art you will have a means of achieving steadiness of mind. Of course, if you cannot be brief, you have to say what you must, even if you are long-winded.

I understand about privacy.\footnote{Vide “Letter tro Munnalal G. Shah”, 18-1-1945.} The reason you give does not appeal to me. Let critics say what they like. I shall, however, respect your wish so long as it remains your wish.

I do not wish that you should hide Chimanlal’s defects as long as you see any in him. I only expressed my opinion. It may perhaps be of some help. The same about Nanavati. What you say surprises me. I would ask him further if he were here. I do think he will come back.

It would be good if you addressed brief notes to those who make mistakes or shirk work. I only wish to help. But would it not make it difficult to improve things if I did not mention what you wrote, did not know the names nor what lapses had occurred?

You should have definite work. I assume you have. But if that is not so, I am willing to give you whatever help you ask for.

You should welcome any new suggestions I make. They may seem new, but in fact they are not new. They are at the very root of our way of life. If I am not to make such suggestions, my presence here is useless. How many of the suggestions I make can be implemented is of course another matter and that is for you to decide.

I was indeed very happy to read about \textit{brahmacharya}.\footnote{The addressee had written that though he was confident of observing \textit{brahmacharya} even staying outside the Ashram, with his wife; he had no intention of setting up house separately.} I believe it applies to both of you. What you say is news to me and I rejoice at it.

\textit{Blessings from}

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 5816. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah
495. LETTER TO JAISUKHLAL GANDHI

SEVAGRAM,
January 19, 1945

CHI. JAISUKHLAL,

There has been delay in writing to you.

Chi. Manu is getting along well. She is learning nursing with great diligence. There are two other girls with her. She likes the work very much. She is taught by Sushilabehn and Prabhashanker. Along with nursing, she also takes lessons in English, etc., from Bhansalibhai and others. But she is still careless. I am not fully satisfied. I had her sleep with me for three nights. I wanted to continue the practice. I would then have been able to correct her sleeping posture. But she caught cold. Now she goes and sleeps with Mataji. Let me see when she comes back to me. There is no cause for worry, though. She still suffers from constipation. I am watching how she progresses.

Do not send any dried fruit till I ask for it.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./XXIV

496. LETTER TO MANGALDAS

SEVAGRAM,
January 19, 1945

BHAII MANGALDAS,

I have your letter and the cheque. It is good that your blood-pressure is cured. How did it happen? Hereafter try to avoid it.

Blessings from

BAPU

MESSRS MANGALDAS & SONS, BOOKSELLERS
BHAGA TALAO
BOMBAY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
497. LETTER TO H. L. SHARMA

SEVAGRAM,
January 19, 1945

CHI. SHARMA,

I have your letter. I have not yet conveyed to Gadodiaji\(^1\) all that you had said. The reason was lack of time. But do you wish to place yourself under him in spite of everything? Is it not better that you should stay as you are and not let them interfere? You can continue to earn money from your wealthy patients, you can do your work there and move forward.

Do come here if you so wish. But I think it is unnecessary. We can manage everything through correspondence.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a facsimile of the Hindi: Bapuki Chhayamen Mere Jivanke Solah Varsh, between pp. 326 and 327

498. LETTER TO SONJA SCHLESIN

SEVAGRAM,
January 20, 1945

DEAR MISS SCHLESIN\(^2\),

I do not think there is any chance of my coming to S[outh] Africa or going to America. But whether I do or not, of course I expect you one day to drop in here and pass the rest of your days in India. Of course it may be that the climate here does not suit you as it did neither Kallenbach nor Hannah\(^3\).

I quite agree with you about Manilal and his wife. Sita is working hard for her examination.

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

MISS S. SCHLESIN
P. O. BOX 2234
JOHANNESBURG, SOUTH AFRICA

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

\(^1\) Lakshminarayan Gadodia
\(^2\) A Jewish woman; she worked as Gandhiji’s steno-typist and private secretary in South Africa
\(^3\) Niece of H. Kallenbach
499. LETTER TO RICHARD B. GREGG

SEVAGRAM,

January 20, 1945

MY DEAR GREGG,

Your letter makes me glad and sad. Glad because of your faith and enthusiasm and sad because of Radha’s illness which you say is beyond recall. I am hoping that in this at least you will prove wrong. Nevertheless you and I can say, “His will not ours be done.” I believe also that what passes for misfortune is not always really so. Of these things, in spite of scientific advance, we know so little.

When your revised book comes, of course if I do not read it Pyarelal or others will and I shall know.

Love to you both.

BAPU

From a photostat: G.N. 6760

500. LETTER TO JEHANGIR PATEL

January 20, 1945

DEAR JEHANGIRJI,

Bapu had your letter of 11th inst. He is glad you enjoyed the charming scenery and climate of Ooty.

Thanks for the honey and the eucalyptus which you have sent. The parcel was received yesterday.

Bapu was very sorry to hear about the demise of Zabair’s wife. He hopes Zubair will take the bereavement bravely. So-called adversities are sent to us to test our faith. Is not life itself a discipline and a probation?

Bapu is very much on the mend as you guess. The illness is all gone. The weakness is still there but he is slowly regaining lost strength and the whole day silence is serving as his strong shield. Without it one wonders how he would have fared.

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevil Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

1 Gandhiji used to call the addressee and his wife Govind and Radha.
2 Economics of Khaddar, the second edition of which came out in December, 1946
501. LETTER TO JAMSHEDJI N. MEHTA

SEVAGRAM,
January 20, 1945

BHAJ JAMSHEDJI.

Yesterday I was shown what you had written to Khurshedbehn. What you say is correct. The matter took a turn for the worse because the Government of Sind interfered. They ought to withdraw the ordinance. Only then can people like you and me work. For my part I have talked to the Arya Samajists on the subject at great length. But it was not the business of the Government. We have therefore to consider the development.

Blessings from
BAPU

JAMSHEDJI NUSSERWANJI
BONUS ROAD, KARACHI

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

502. LETTER TO RAMKUMAR BHUWALKA

SEVAGRAM,
January 20, 1945

BHAJ RAMKUMAR.

Of course my blessings are with the bride and the groom. May both be true servants of the country.

Blessings from
BAPU

R. K. BHUWALKA
CALCUTTA

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

---

1 Parsi industrialist and philanthropist
503. LETTER TO KAMALA BENKEL

SEVAGRAM,
January 21, 1945

MY DEAR KAMALA,

I see you are taking a further course. I am satisfied so long as you fit yourself for full service and settle down.
I did see Donald and he knew all about me.
Hope you will keep well. Love.

BAPU

KAMALABAI BENKEL

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

504. LETTER TO K. G. SAIYIDAIN

SEVAGRAM,
January 21, 1945

DEAR FRIEND,

I had your note. I missed you at the conference which was a good success. I know the worth of your word.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

DR. K. G. SAIYIDAIN
HEAD, ED. DEPT.
SRINAGAR
KASHMIR

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

505. LETTER TO AMRIT KAUR

SEVAGRAM,
January 21, 1945

CHI. AMRIT,

Got your letter today and I reply. A copy of letters is being made for you. Your letter has been seen by K. and S. Really it does not matter who sees it here. It is altogether worthy of you. . . .
You have gone through suffering during the snow-time. I envy. Although it was bad while it lasted, the experience was worth having. The attendants were also marvellous. That is human nature at its best. The more you suffer bravely and smilingly the stronger you will become. You will meet me in God’s good time. Meanwhile cart-loads of love.

Blessings from
BAPU

From the original: C.W. 4150. Courtesy: Amrit Kaur. Also G.N. 7785

506. LETTER TO J. SIVASHANMUGAM PILLAI

SEVAGRAM,
January 21, 1945

DEAR PILLAI,

I have your letter of 13th instant. I can only repeat what I have said. I cannot go further. I have no authority. I would therefore dissuade you from bringing a deputation. You should know too that my silence continues. Therefore I do all my work by writing which necessarily must be as little as possible.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

SHRI J. SIVASHANMUGAM PILLAI, M.A., M.L.A.
EX-MAYOR OF MADRAS
LAKSHMI VILAS, KUTTY STREET
NUNGAMBAKAM, MADRAS
S. INDIA

From a photostat: G.N. 9256. Also C.W. 5066. Courtesy: J. Sivashanmugam Pillai

1 The rest of the paragraph has been scored out.
2 The superscription and subscription are in Hindi.
3 Vide “Letter to J. Sivashanmugam Pillai”, 4-10-1944.
507. LETTER TO MURIEL LESTER

SEVAGRAM,
January 21, 1945

MY DEAR MURIEL,

I have your chatty letter filled with news. Most of those you mention are in prison and beyond me even through letters. But of course such is the lot of satyagrahis.

Of course Doris is a tower of strength to you. I can well picture her standing to her post in all weathers.

I am fairly well.

The rest from Pyarelal.

Love to you all.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

508. LETTER TO SAHAJANAND

SEVAGRAM,
January 21, 1945

DEAR SWAMIJI,

Many thanks for your letter. Indulal has seen me. He had nothing new to say beyond giving your letter. I have known Prof. Ranga for a long time. When he mentioned the kisan work in Andhra in co-operation with Congressmen I had no hesitation in approving of his project. Of your activity I know nothing except through papers. You would please put yourself in touch with the Bihar Congressmen.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

SWAMI SAHAJANAND SARASWATI
PRESIDENT, ALL-INDIA KISAN SABHA
SITARAM ASHRAM, BIHATA, PATNA

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Vide “Note to Indulal Yajnik”, 16-1-1945.
2 N. G. Ranga
509. LETTER TO L. KAMESWARARAO SARMA

SEVAGRAM,
January 21, 1945

DEAR KAMESWARA SARMA,

I have read the whole of your letter. You can come here when you like. I am silent but you will see Dr. Sushila Nayyar and the patients. You may try your remedies.

I adhere to all Dr. Nayyar has said of me. What I have said is a result of hard experience. I had the pleasure of meeting your father. I had sent for him for Sardar Vallabhbhai. He could not help. His admissions were revealing. I have met most naturopaths. They do not agree and they are obstinate and even lazy.

You will now see why I cannot preside or be at your conference even if I was able to do all that work. Nor can I send you any helpful message. It will be critical. But you may make what private use you like of this. I want naturopathy to make real progress.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

DR. L. KAMESWARA SARMA, M.A., B.SC.
THE INDIAN INSTITUTE OF NATURAL THERAPEUTICS
PUDUKOTTAI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

510. LETTER TO J. C. KUMARAPPA

SEVAGRAM,
January 21, 1945

DEAR,

Bapu had your letter of 18th inst. He has also received the typescript of the Practice and Precepts of Jesus and will certainly go through it1. For the rest, more when the prodigal returns.

Yours sincerely,
PYARELAL

PROF. J. C. KUMARAPPA
C/O SHOORJI VALLABHDAS
CUTCH CASTLE
SANDHURST BRIDGE
GIRGAON, BOMBAY

From a copy : Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

511. LETTER TO MAHENDRA B. DAVE

SEVAGRAM,
January 21, 1945

MAHENDRA BHOGIBHAI
KEVALRAM MAVJI’S BUILDING
RAJKOT

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

CHI. MAHENDRA¹.

I have your letter. Send me Bhogibhai’s full name and address so that I can write to him. What do you do? How many brothers and sisters are you? You should not rush to a court of law. I will do what I can. How far have you studied?²

Blessings from
BAPU

MAHENDRA BHOGIBHAI
KEVALRAM MAVJI’S BUILDING
RAJKOT

512. LETTER TO DINshaw K. MEHTA

SEVAGRAM,
January 21, 1945

CHI. DINSHAW.

I have your letter. I am all right. I observe silence during the day to conserve my energy.

I have not yet come to have faith in milk therapy. But if I had an opportunity to stay with you I would certainly take it, watched by you. At the moment I have no wish to leave this place. I am also attending to the work here. I shall come to you when God takes me there.

There are some differences between us. But that does not worry me. That I can take work from you is enough for me.

Your letter to Devdas is sharp but you did right in writing it. You could only have written what you did. In fact I had written³ to him before you did. The trust will be formed. But whether it is formed or not, we propose to start the work if we can have just enough land for it. Even otherwise you are not sitting idle.

¹ Grandson of Kevalram MAVji Dave
² Vide also “Letter to Shamaldas Gandhi”, 10-2-1945.

Ardeshir will be making good progress. I understand what you say about Jinnah Saheb.

Blessings from

BAPU

DR. DINSHAW MEHTA
6 TODDYWALLAH ROAD
POONA

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

513. LETTER TO SARALADEVI SARABHAI

SEVAGRAM,
January 21, 1945

DEAR SISTER,

I read both your pieces from beginning to end. I like them. They show how careful and neat you are. If you have worked on it all by yourself one can see how much time you must have devoted to it. Of course I know sister Montessori very well although I may say I have not read any of her writings.

Your writing would be more useful to Ashadevi and Nayakumji and so I have given it to them. Afterwards I shall send it to Bapa.

Get a Hindustani version made, if you can, and send it to me. Otherwise I shall get it done here.

Blessings from

M. K. GANDHI

SARALADEVI SARABHAI
[THE] RETREAT
SHAHIBAGH
AHMEDABAD

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

---

1 Wife of Ambalal Sarabhai
514. LETTER TO JOYADEVI

SEVAGRAM,
January 21, 1945

CHI. JOYADEVI,

I had promised to send you my blessings on the 1st but it slipped my mind. The girl whom I had asked to remind me did so only today. I hope you are all well.

Blessings from
BAPU

JOYADEVI

8 EXCHANGE PLACE
CALCUTTA

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

515. LETTER TO DR. SYED MAHMUD

SEVAGRAM,
January 22, 1945

DEAR MAHMUD,

I do not mind your long letter. It opens out your heart. That is good enough for you.

No Leaguer need come to me. Sir N.\(^1\) has but to write that I could enter Bengal including Midnapore and Chittagong\(^2\) and that no one would interfere with me and I would go, weak or strong. But he has sent me the message that he could not welcome me and that he had no influence with the Government.

As to the Communists, you should see the papers. I went out of my way to meet them and to befriend them. But Joshi wrote peremptorily that I should not write to him any more.\(^3\) He wanted me to speak to him thro[ugh] Bhulabhai, Mrs. Naidu or C. R. The latter declined. Bhulabhai has the case. There is a hitch. Anyway I declaredpublicly that they could not be kept out of primary

\(^1\) Khwaja Nazimuddin, Premier of Bengal since April 1943

\(^2\) Midnapore and Chittagong had been among the districts worst affected by famine and consequent breakdown of economic order.

\(^3\) For Gandhiji’s discussion and correspondence with P. C. Joshi, and “Letter to P. C. Joshi”, 5-2-1945.
membership if they signed the Congress pledge. Personally I would have here any of them as I have Habib. They can convert me. Some of them have come here and stayed. Can I do more? Must I?

As to Nariman, you do not know what I have done. I must not give you the whole story. You may get it from P. Now I can do nothing. Working Committee alone can act. I think N. has himself the remedy in his hands.

I think this is all you want to know from me. If there is anything left over please ask. Write or speak. Tonight has been given to Hiralal Sastri of Jaipur State.

Love.

BAPU

From a photostat: G.N. 5067

516. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA

SEVAGRAM,

January 22, 1945

CHI. KRISHNACHANDRA,

I have read your letter. I am not at all disappointed. You are giving me what you can. . . . You must certainly work in the Sangh. Your account is good. Do whatever you can in the Talimi Sangh. I think you must put in some reading and spare some time for it. Do spare some time for weaving for yourself. This is all that you should try to do. There is scope for improvement in the quern, but that is beyond your province for the present. What you are doing is enough. Keep writing to me. Ask me whatever you want to.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4457

1 Addressee’s son
3 A word is illegible here.
517. LETTER TO VASANTLAL MORARKA

Sevagram, January 22, 1945

Bhai Vasantlal,

Do you want my blessing for February 11? Anything done for Jamnalalji has my blessing. Do whatever you can yourself or get it done by others.

Blessings from
BAPU

Vasantlal Morarka
Navajivan Sangh
1321 Harrison Road
Calcutta

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

518. CABLE TO V. K. KRISHNA MENON

Express January 23, 1945

Krishna Menon
India League, 165 Strand
London, W. C. 2

Independence essential for world peace as also for India's. It must come but earlier if England and other powers see the obvious. Inform Mohiuddin Pulin Seal.

Gandhi

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal. Also The Hindu, 26-1-1945

---

1 Death anniversary of Jamnalal Bajaj
2 This was sent in connection with the observance of Independence Day (January 26) in London.
519. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

SEVAGRAM,
January 23, 1945

CHI. MUNNALAL,

The matter about newspapers has been brought to my notice. It seems they are being bought and sold. It is, therefore, very necessary that they should be returned according to instructions. Here, of course, I watch the time of their arrival. Explain the matter to me. I will do as you advise. Everything should be above board. This is a matter which can be quickly set right.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 8467. Also C.W. 7182. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

520. LETTER TO SHARDA G. CHOKHAWALA

SEVAGRAM,
January 23, 1945

CHI. BABUDI,

What you say is correct. Nevertheless I would certainly pay some attention. And Shakaribein is bound to look after you. I know, however, that the right place for you is where Chokhawala lives. And I can have nothing to say if you keep good health. After knowing my mind, therefore, you may do as you wish. But please bear in mind that whenever you wish to come here you can do so without hesitation. You need not feel hesitant about coming to me.

Blessings to you both from
BAPU

From the Gujarati original: C.W. 10051. Courtesy: Sharda G. Chokhawala
521. LETTER TO RAMDAS GANDHI

SEVAGRAM,
January 23, 1945

CHI. RAMDAS,

I got your letter. I am opening the Superintendent’s letter. We will now see what Sumi wishes. A letter from her is due. I have no trace of cough at all. I cannot say, either, how weak I am. I observe silence the whole day just to save time. And it agrees with me. I speak at night.

Blessings from
BAPU

From the Gujarati original: Mrs. Sumitra Kulkarni Papers. Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library

522. NOTE TO KRISHNACHANDRA

January 23, 1945

Go on giving. Keep me informed. The Talimi Sangh should go on. I mean I shall not send you away from the Sangh. Having started work in the Sangh, you cannot leave it so soon. It could not be done now but you should restrict your activities only after explaining things to them. Under all circumstances we must direct all our efforts towards Nayee Talim. This is how I view the loom too. Every activity should fit into the framework of Nayee Talim. Great... If it is available whenever required, it will be all right. I understand from your letter that it is only for eight hours...

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4458

523. LETTER TO A. N. SHARMA

SEVAGRAM,
January 24, 1945

MY DEAR SHARMA,

You are going to pick up Hindi soon I hope. I understand what you mean. I want our friend to treat all patients equally in the sense

---

1 The meaning of the sentences is not clear in the source.
2 ibid
that each should be treated according to his wants. None can have special care because of his status, therefore our friend ought not to go beyond his capacity even in the matter of assistants and attendants. I want some naturecure man to show that perfection which is humanly possible. Describe to me at your leisure the whole of his treatment. My own nature cure has proved quite efficacious for me.

Love.

Yours,

A. N. SHARMA
BHIMAVARAM

From a copy. Courtesy: National Archives of India and Anand T. Hingorani

524. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

SEVAGRAM,
January 24, 1945

CHI. MUNNALAL,

I am returning the accompanying with some lines underlined. Those portions are bad in both. One must not be in a hurry to accuse anybody. That is a sign of impatience and irritability. This I write in the few minutes I have free. Come and see me in the evening or before 8.15 in the morning. We shall discuss the matter then and clear up other things.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 8645

525. LETTER TO BHULABHAI J. DESAI

SEVAGRAM,
January 24, 1945

BHAJ BHULABHAI,

Newspaper reports startle me. Jinnah says one thing and Liaquat Ali another. About me also it is reported that bypassing the Working Committee I want a coalition government to be formed. What do these reports mean? I have complete trust in you. Please see that nothing is done without the approval of the Working Committee. I go by what I wrote to you in Gujarati.1 It contains nothing which would support the newspaper reports.

1 Vide “Note to Bhulabhai J. Desai”, 5-1-1945.

I can understand everything happening together. But please make it clear that we cannot go a single step without the consent of the Working Committee.

Blessings from

BAPU

From the Gujarati original: Bhulabhai Desai Papers. Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library

526. LETTER TO G. D. BIRLA

SEVAGRAM,
January 24, 1945

CH. GHANSHYAMDAS,

I have your letter. My cough was cured a long time ago. The weakness persists, but that too is slowly going. This time I have been taking only nature-cure treatment. I do not have much urge for a change of air. If it becomes necessary I shall go.

I do not insist on any particular place for the meeting of the Sangh. I shall go wherever it is held. I am in touch with Bapa and Mridu.

I shall hear your views about Nayee Talim when we meet. I have discussed the subject with the teachers. Education through crafts has to be self-supporting.

Why wait for the details from Dinshaw? It was evident from what you said. It would be a matter of only a thousand rupees. It will be increased to the extent necessary.

Blessings from

BAPU

527. A NOTE

January 24, 1945

Tell Kakasaheb to make himself thoroughly fit. There should be no ulcers in the mouth. Let him report the effect of the medicine sent by the vaidya from here. Bring full details of his ailment.

I like the study he is engaged in; but I want him to have a full grasp of the Urdu script and to learn the Urdu language. Amritlal is doing good work only in Kaka’s name and regarding it as Kaka’s work. So when he comes out he will have to work for Hindi and Urdu. But he should not think about it in jail. I am not in a hurry. The Government will release him when it wants. It is a different matter if it does so under the pressure of the peaceful non-violent power of the people. I see no such possibility for the present. But a satyagrahi has nothing at all to do with the question of his release. If he is released, well and good; it is the same to him if he is not. I find that Vinoba and Kaka have worked hard. I am also glad that they are both together. I do wish them both to keep well and come out refreshed when they are released. I feel sorry that I could not remain so. I am ashamed of it. Let this not be the lot of others I had expected seven years for all, in any case certainly for me. But the fever brought about my release. I do not wish this to happen in the case of Kaka and Vinoba.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 5611

528. LETTER TO VITHAL V. DASTANE

SEVAGRAM,
January 24, 1945

BHAJ DASTANE,

I have gone through your programme. I like it and it has my blessings. You must have received another letter of mine.

Blessings from
BAPU

DASTANE VAKIL
BHUSAVAL

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

529. TELEGRAM TO CHANDI PRASAD VAIKYA

SEVAGRAM,
January 25, 1945

CHANDI PRASAD VAIKYA
BIRLA MANDIR DISPENSARY
N[EAI]R BIRLA MANDIR
NEW DELHI
YOU HAVE OVERSTAYED. HARI-ICHCHHA NOT IMPROVING.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Gandhiji had an attack of Malaria.
530. LETTER TO J. C. KUMARAPPA

SEVAGRAM,
January 25, 1945

MY DEAR K.,

I have read your booklet from beginning to end. You shall have the foreword or whatever you call it. I like it very much.

Get quite well quick. How is Bharatanand?

Love.

BAPU

From a photostat: G.N. 10168

531. LETTER TO WILLIAM Q. LASH

SEVAGRAM,
January 25, 1945

MY DEAR FATHER LASH,

I am so glad you came. Please tell all our English friends that we all do our duty regardless of result. Has not an English divine said that “duty will be merit when debt becomes a donation”? Non-violence, translated ‘love’, is the supreme law for human beings. It knows no exception. I have tried all these years to live by that law and hope to die in that state.

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat: G.N. 41

532. LETTER TO CHHAGANLAL JOSHI

SEVAGRAM,
January 25, 1945

CHI. CHHAGANLAL,

You want my blessings for your success in the future, don’t you? That you will attain success implies my blessings. On the one hand you are rendering great service to the avarnas, on the other you

1 Practice and Precepts of Jesus
2 Vide “A word”, 21-3-1945. are serving the savarnas, that is, you are trying to make avarnas of them. What face have they to brag? Have they set out to bury Hinduism?

_Blessings from_
BAPU

CHHAGANLAL JOSHI
RAJKOT

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

533. _LETTER TO RAJDEV_

SEVAGRAM,
_January 25, 1945_

BHAI RAJDEV,

You have my blessings of course. Ours is to make the effort. Whether finally you are sent to the gallows or are released is something over which we have no control.

M. K. GANDHI

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

534. _LETTER TO RAM NARESH TRIPATHI_

SEVAGRAM,
_January 25, 1945_

BHAI RAMNARESH¹,

Why should I bless you on your daughter’s wedding? For you and me birth, death and marriage are just different forms of the same thing, are they not? Still, if you want my blessings you have them.

_Blessings from_
BAPU

RAM NARESH TRIPATHI
SULTANPUR

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ A Hindi poet
CHI. ANAND,

I have your letter. Let us hope that in the end you will all benefit by having gone there. I am not able to make out anything. Sharma' has written a long letter. He is very confident. But if the doctor says that you can leave him and can continue the treatment at home then by all means come in February. You may do what you think proper. I am not going anywhere in February, but it is another matter.

I am well. You three are in my thoughts.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a microfilm of the Hindi. Courtesy: National Archives of India and Anand T. Hingorani

CHI. KRISHNACHANDRA,

You are more closely connected with Talimi Sangh. You can relieve yourself to the extent they allow you to do. There in lies your good and theirs. From the spiritual point of view you must decrease not increase your commitment. But do it after consulting them.

I shall give instructions when necessary. Maintain a diary. You must stop worrying. You have to get complete mastery of Nayee Talim.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4459

---

1 A. N. Sharma
537. LETTER TO SHRIMAN NARAYAN

SEVAGRAM,
January 25, 1945

CHI. SHRIMAN,

The love of you two is indescribable. I feel like coming to you if only for the sake of that love. However I cannot leave this place while the Camp is on. Silence is welcome for I can spare myself. You can take it that I have resumed work. Nevertheless I would like to come.

Blessings from
BAPU

[From Hindi]

Panchven Putrako Bapuke Ashirvad, p. 303

538. NOTE TO SHRIMAN NARAYAN

[After January 25, 1945]

You understand the position about my coming, don’t you? The earliest I can come is on the 23rd—25th of course certainly. Then I shall see how long I can stay. There is a lot to be done here. I want to go to your place for its own sake. I like it that way.

Discuss things fully with Sunderlalji. Some names were tentatively suggested but I asked them to be referred to you and said that I would accept only those approved by you. Somebody mentioned that your book had been of help to them.

[From Hindi]

Panchven Putrako Bapuke Ashirvad, p. 303

1 The addressee and his wife Madalasa had invited Gandhiji to their house in Wardha for a change of air.
2 Samagra Gramseva Shibir organized by Kanu Gandhi
3 The source places this letter after the letter to the addressee, dated January 25, 1945, the preceding item.
4 The Hindustani Prachar Sabha Conference was scheduled to be held on February 25 and 26 at Wardha.
5 The Gandhian Plan of Economic Development for India
539. LETTER TO G. SITARAMA SASTRY

Sevagram,

Independence Day, January 26, 1945

My dear S. Sastry,

Deshabhakta Venkatappayya is older than I am. But he shows the same intellect and energy as before. May he live long and die in harness. He deserves it.

Love,

Yours,

Bapu

SITARAMA SASTRY
VINAYA ASHRAM
DIST. GUNTUR

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

540. LETTER TO RANGANAYAKI

Sevagram,

January 26, 1945

Chi. Ranganayaki,

Your good letter. I wish you could be your daughter’s first and apt pupil. Then you would write to me in Hindustani.

I am glad you have lost your gloom.

I do think that a woman has the same civic rights as a man and [may] still enjoy the leave when she is carrying. A good woman carries not for herself but for the world; hence the leave will be no privilege.

I return the photo with my blessings on it.

Amtul Salaam is in Calcutta doing great service.

When you come, you will see the place much extended. Love.

Bapu

RANGANAYAKI
SRIRANGAM

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Who was soon to be eighty
541. LETTER TO JAIL SUPERINTENDENT, GORAKHPUR

SEVAGRAM,
January 26, 1945

SUPERINTENDENT
JAIL, GORAKHPUR (U.P.)

DEAR SIR,

Persistent letters are being received that Baba Raghavdas is in your custody and is suffering from insanity. I shall be obliged if you will kindly inform me of the true situation and if I may be allowed to send a physician or a vaidya.

Yours faithfully,
M. K. GANDHI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

542. LETTER TO M. NARAYANAN

January 26, 1945

DEAR FRIEND,

Gandhi has your letter of 19th inst. You should see the two letters he has written to Shri Sivashanmugam Pillai, copies of which are enclosed herewith.¹

Yours sincerely,
PYARELAL

Encls : 2
SHRI M. NARAYANAN
NUNGAMBANKAM UNITED CLUB
15 NUNGAMBANKAM HIGH ROAD
MADRAS

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
543. LETTER TO VITHAL L. PHADKE

SEVAGRAM,
January 26, 1945

CHI. MAMA,

I got your letter. What you say about Shantikumar and his wife's correctness is correct. God alone can reward his services. Neither you nor I can.

You may come when you wish. You may do as you wish.

All watches are costly. I would be glad if you gave up the desire for one. Andrews managed without a watch.

There are other workers also like him. One can easily tell when it is morning, noon and evening. If, however, you cannot overcome your craving for a watch, write to me. I shall procure one for you. If you do want it please let me know what type.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 3846

544. LETTER TO MATHURADAS TRIKUMJI

VAGRASEM,
January 26, 1945

CHI. MATHURADAS,

I have your letter. Why do you have so much attachment? How nice it would be if you entrusted everything to Harkishan and stopped worrying! Why should you take it upon yourself to translate the Shakuntala? What will Jyotsna do with it? And how? After all it is but a play. A lot of it is very sweet. Plays are of no use for the kind of life we are living these days. This life is the real thing. At the most you should ask her to read the relevant portion from the available translations. But you have taken pains over it, so now I shall only say that it may bear fruit. And there can be no doubt that I should like Jyotsna to learn from it. And that is my blessing for her. Get well. I am all right. How can Pyarelal or Sushila attend the wedding? Both of them are immersed in work. We are having a camp.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Sumati S. Morarjee
545. LETTER TO GAJANAN NAIK

Sevagram,
January 26, 1945

Ch. Gajanan,

Are you concerned with ownership or use? What if we could have the use of the building for a certain rent? I hope you have not assumed that I can do or get done anything that I fancy.

Blessings from
Bapu

Gajanan Naik
Gulwadi
Sevagram

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

546. LETTER TO SHEELA

Sevagram,
January 26, 1945

Ch. Sheela,

I have your postcard. Your description is good. Today is Independence Day, do you remember? Do you write Urdu? If not, learn it. You will not have letters from me for some time.

Blessings from
Bapu

Sheela
C/o Nirmal Swarup
Prempuri, Railway Road
Meerut, U. P.

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

547. SPEECH AT PRAYER MEETING

Sevagram
January 26, 1945

With the independence of India is bound up freedom for the whole of exploited humanity in the world—for even exploiters i.e.,
Referring to an incident that occurred that morning in front of the Ashram, when the police attempted to interfere with the normal village cleaning programme of the workers, Gandhiji said that it had been repeatedly announced that there was to be no militant programme on the Independence Day and after that it was not possible for anyone to offer civil resistance. Members of the various institutions in Sevagram worked under his guidance.

Gandhiji said he had placed the Constructive Programme before the country years ago and it was the only way of attaining swaraj, i.e., full freedom through truth and non-violence. While he did not want a militant programme he had also said that if anyone interfered with the execution of constructive work, he expected the people to die rather than turn back. One such occasion arose that morning when a batch proceeding mutely with pickaxes, shovels, broomsticks and baskets was stopped. They were not carrying fighting weapons and yet the police would allow them to proceed only if they broke up file. In such circumstances, non-violence would be sheer cowardice if they yielded and bent before authority. Their hymn for that evening was exceptionally appropriate, Gandhiji continuing said, and its central theme was, that true happiness lay only in the womb of unhappiness. For the hearers it meant that true happiness, i.e., swaraj, came only through unhappiness, i.e., self-suffering. The volunteers did right in refusing to break up file and at the same time not breaking through the police cordon. Though the police had fire-arms they were rendered useless through the dignified and yet firm attitude of the volunteers. They were neither to invite firing nor avoid it and for them real authority was the dictate of their hearts which Gandhiji would call God or Truth.

For me, true independence is convertible with God. Tilak has given a mantra that “Swaraj is our birthright”. It is a simple one. I will only add that the way to realize the mantra is through truth and non-violence and I claim that that way is possible only if millions work the Constructive Programme.

Concluding, Gandhiji warned the volunteers not to gloat over their success, for, if they did so, that very pride would prove their destruction. Humility, he said, should be their touchstone.

The Hindu, 29-1-1945

---

1. 250 members of various institutions in Sevagram
2. After two hours the police withdrew and the cleaning programme was completed.
548. LETTER TO BHARATAN KUMARAPPA

SEVAGRAM,
January 27, 1945

MY DEAR BHARATAN,

Your doctor sister has done well in giving up her post.\(^1\) Do please stay as long as is necessary to put things in order. Yes, I seem to be improving.

Love.

BAPU

From a photostat: G.N. 3598

549. LETTER TO JAGJIVAN RAM

SEVAGRAM,
January 28, 1945

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter of 22nd inst.

Gandhiji says you can come and see him at your convenience. But you should know that he maintains silence during daytime these days. You will please send intimation of your arrival in advance.

Regarding Gandhiji’s correspondence with Shri Sivashanmugam Pillai of Madras, it will be necessary to obtain his permission first as his letters were marked personal.

Yours sincerely,

PYARELAL

SHRI JAGJIVAN RAM
KADAM KUAN
PATNA

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

\(^1\) Dr. Prema Kumarappa had given up her job at the tea plantations, Nilgiris, on account of ill health.
550. LETTER TO G. V. MAVALANKAR

Sevagram,
January 28, 1945

Bhai Dada,

I could finish your essay on Anandshankarbhai only yesterday. I also liked Chi. Purushottam’s translation. It is only on reading your tribute that I realized how greatly you admired him. I trust everything is going on well.

Blessings from
Bapu

Shri Ganesh Vasudev Mavalankar
Speaker, Assembly
Ahmedabad

From a photostat of Gujarati: G.N. 1718

551. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

January 28, 1945

Chh. Munналал,

I have gone through your letter from beginning to end. I have made some arrangement for the newspapers. You want other newspapers besides the Bombay papers. Even among the Bombay papers you do not get the Chronicle on the same day. Many persons want it, and it is not possible to refuse them. The same is true about the Patrika. You will get both of them but late. And if you get the Gujarati, Hindi and Marathi papers, you ought not to insist on the English ones.

If I could have your whole letter shown to the persons concerned it would have made my task easier. Since you have forbidden it I have not shown it to anybody.

I do understand your problem, but I cannot offer you much guidance unless I go deeper into the matter. What took place before me today was a spectacle worth watching. Both of you had lost your tempers. You were not aware of it, either of you. Each could see the other party’s error, but neither his own. This is true of everyone of us

1 Written in Marathi for the magazine Samajapatrika; it was later published as a pamphlet.
2 Anandshankar Bapubhai Dhruba, Gujarati man of letters and Sanskrit scholar
3 Vide “Letter to P. G. Mavalankar”; 6-11-1944.
and that includes me. I do not ask you to go and live in the village. The atmosphere in Sevagram having become vitiated I do not wish that you should go there. I myself am waiting and watching. I have already suggested that it would be enough if someone from the Talimi Sangh goes. He must be given the first place. He may do what he can. If he does not, then we shall see. But I see that co-workers have not been able to put up with your nature. They cannot fully appreciate your worth. I, therefore, do wish that since you both are now capable of observing brahmacharya even though living together and alone with each other, you should select a village within about four miles from here, settle down there and take up some work. I will continue to guide you in whatever matters you wish. So much for my wish. The decision will have to be made by you two on your own, even if it should go against my wish.

You can use turmeric and salt. I am not sure about pepper. If anybody wishes to add it later, he may do so. What the vaidya¹ says is for ordinary men and women. In my view, a brahmachari should shun all these things, including even salt and turmeric. If absolutely necessary, he may take them as medicine but not for the pleasure of the six flavours. But I do not insist; I do not forbid them. My observation may even be erroneous. I have lived for more than forty years without condiments, and for nearly thirty without salt. It might have been a mistake on my part.

What is the matter with Ramdas?
Let me know if I have left out anything.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 5818. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

552. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA

January 28, 1945

CHI. KRISHNACHANDRA,

Keep this pin. Take the letter. You should not spend so much time in chewing sugar-cane. As much as you can easily chew in 15 minutes should be enough.

Why do you have to evacuate the bowels three times in a day? I hope it does not take long every time.

¹ Ganesh Shastri Joshi who had advised that diet should include the six flavours” viz., sweet, salty, bitter, pungent, astringent and sour
Do learn the Malayalam script. If you feel inclined learn all the scripts. You have of course to study Urdu thoroughly.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4460

553. LETTER TO H. L. SHARMA

SEVAGRAM,
January 28, 1945

CHI. SHARMA,

I have your letter. If you want to hand over everything to Gadodiaji, you may do so. But in that case do not involve me in the matter. I can write to him only on the lines I have indicated. But I shall not write anything now. Do what pleases you. I shall certainly write if you permit me. And then he will give up the management. I shall do as you say.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a facsimile of the Hindi: Bapuki Chhayamen Mere Jivanke Solah Varsh, between pp. 326 and 327

554. LETTER TO J. SIVASHANMUGAM PILLAI

SEVAGRAM,
January 29, 1945

DEAR FRIEND,

Some Harijan M.L.A.s in Bihar have asked Gandhiji for copies of the correspondence you had with him\(^1\). Gandhiji would like to know whether you have any objection to the copies in question being supplied to them. It was necessary to ask for this formal permission because one of your letters is marked personal.

Yours sincerely,
PYARELAL

J. Sivashanmugam Pillai
Madras

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

\(^{1}\) Vide the preceding item.
555. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

January 29, 1945

CHI. MUNNALAL,

I have gone through everything. I have also made an inquiry. I understand your letters but others may not. Therefore it is as well that ordinarily they should be only for me. Remember that improvement in the behaviour of persons whom we have engaged as friends, though on wages, depends entirely on ourselves, i.e., principally on you and Chi[manlal]. This deserves to be given thought. I am not writing anything more. Nor have I the time. If you ask me anything, I shall reply.

Blessings from

BAPU

From the photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 5820. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

556. LETTER TO JAYA

SEVAGRAM,
January 29, 1945

CHI. JAYA,

There is no cause at all for fear of Vasant\(^1\) succumbing Typhoid is not a very serious matter. With proper care the patient recovers. Hate courage. Cheer up Vasant.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./XXIII

557. NOTE TO KRISHNACHANDRA

January 29, 1945

There is something wrong if you have [to go to the privy]\(^2\) three [times]\(^3\) even as a matter of habit. I too once thought as you do. The vaidyas pointed out my mistake. Let me know . . .\(^4\) the little of the book you have read. I do not believe in those who want to save time. But, about this, later.

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4461

\(^1\) Addressee’s son
\(^2\) Some words are illegible here.
\(^3\) ibid
\(^4\) ibid
558. LETTER TO KAMALA LELE

SEVAGRAM,

January 30, 1945

CHI. KAMALA,

I have your letter. Since the patient here, who was under Chandi Prasad’s treatment, had also become very ill I wired him. He was due yesterday. Let us see if he comes today. His address is: Lakshminarayan Mandir, New Delhi. Get well.

Blessings from

BAPU

KAMALA LELE
MAHILA ASHRAM
WARDHA

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

559. LETTER TO ANAND T. HINGORANI

SEVAGRAM,

January 30, 1945

CHI. ANAND,

I read your letter to Chi[manlal]. Why should you write in Hindi only to me? It is unnatural. You have time. Write in Hindi to those who know Hindi, in Sindhi to Sindhis and to others in English if you so wish.

I have written to you that you may come by all means. And in my opinion it would be better if Gokhale and Babaji also came. Since it is all the same, why should we leave those two there? They also look upon that place as a prison. I have not sent them to jail. All three of you should come. Probably Amtul will arrive tomorrow.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Hindi. Courtesy: National Archives of India and Anand T. Hingorani

560. LETTER TO SHRIPAD JOSHI

WARDHA,
[After January 30, 1945]¹

I have read what Kakasaheb wrote. I like it. I have read this letter just now. I thought that the typed matter was a copy of it. Ask me whatever doubts come to your mind. You will write to me. Won’t you? I will also reply only in writing.²

BAPU

[From Hindi]
Gandhiji: Ek Jhalak, p. 49

561. LETTER TO GAURI

SEVAGRAM,
January 31, 1945

DEAR GAURI,

I know you only through your father. He informs me of your forthcoming marriage. May you and yours be happy and jointly serve the country.

Yours,
M. K. GANDHI

GAURIBEHN
81 VIVEKANAND ROAD
CALCUTTA

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

562. LETTER TO KHURshed Naoroji

SEVAGRAM,
January 31, 1945

VAHLA BEHN³.

Your two letters. Of course you will stay as long as is necessary but no longer. I agree with you. There is and should be no question

¹ This was in reply to the addressee’s letter dated January 30, 1945.
² Vide “Note to Shripad Joshi”, 22-2-1945.
³ The superscription is in Gujarati which means ‘Dear sister’. of compromise by us. But letting others go their way is part of ahimsa. I think we agree here. I am well. Love to you and all the sisters.

BAPU

SMT. KHURSHEDBEHN
BOMBAY

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. courtesy: Pyarelal

563. LETTER TO RUKMINI BAJAJ

SEVAGRAM,
January 31, 1945

CHI. RUKMINI¹,

I got your letter only today. At last you have come. You write about Dr. Jussawala. I am glad to learn that. You have enough money for it. By all means put yourself under Jussawala’s treatment in Bombay and get well. I follow your argument. We want your health to improve, no matter whether in Bombay or Poona.

I shall be happy if you write to me regularly.

I am well.

Blessings from

BAPU

[PS]

I am also glad to learn that Radhika’s² health is improving.

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 9065

564. LETTER TO KANTILAL GANDHI

SEVAGRAM,
January 31, 1945

CHI. KANTI,

I got your letter. I understand your need. I should advise you to write to Devdas about the books, too. If you are positively disinclined to do that, you may write to Kamalnayan³. He will consult me. If I go and tell him, he will not refuse me. You should either send a list of the books to Kamalnayan or tell him the amount you need. A list of books with their prices will look more respectable. I would like you not to take any help from Amritlal Sheth. He will certainly send you whatever you ask for. Your present need shows that this is not going to be your last request. This is significant for me, for it shows how costly present-day education is. And at the end of it, you won’t earn anything more than your livelihood. I have heard of many doctors who are unable to make both ends meet. Only a few have made good on their own strength. A good many have had to resort to influence even after passing their examination. In writing this it is not at all my purpose to persuade you to give up your study. You must finish it now. I do wish to suggest, though, that the knowledge you acquire at such a great cost should be used for service of the people.

¹ Maganlal Gandhi’s daughter
² Addressee’s sister Radha Choudhri
³ Son of Jamnalal Bajaj

I am glad that you are keeping Suru from the lure of ornaments, etc. It remains to be seen how long you will succeed.

Let Bali pay a visit to you, though I cannot bring myself to approve of it. It will mean unnecessary expenditure over a long journey, with no benefit except momentary satisfaction. But she has done a great deal for you. She is a very affectionate woman. Do, therefore, welcome her. I tried to dissuade her by suggesting, instead, that she should come here. I have, however, permitted her to go to you.

You may come whenever you wish and live here as long as you like.

You have been doing excellent work as regards spinning, etc. Keep up your strictness. Sincere men, however few, are the best.

I should certainly like to go there, but somehow I do not feel the urge.

If Kanu wishes to go there, I will let him. I do not know, though, what help he will give you.

Blessings from
BAPU

[PS]

I am well. I observe silence the whole day.

Give up the idea of going to Bombay. Personally I should like you to remain where you are and learn all the four languages of the South. You will perhaps be the only one from the North to have done so. But what if there are others too?

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 7370. Courtesy: Kantilal Gandhi

1 Balibehn M. Adalaja, sister of addressee’s mother
565. LETTER TO BHULABHAI J. DESAI

SEVAGRAM,
January 31, 1945

BHAI BHULABHAI,

You must have seen the report of Liaquat Saheb’s speech at Tinnevelli. How can we reach an understanding with him? In public he speaks as he likes and then talks to you in a different tone altogether. And you are obliged to hold your tongue. This is just to inform you and caution you. Do what you think best. I may only let you know what I observe from a distance. I can see nothing else, and what I see frightens me.2

Blessings from
BAPU

From the Gujarati original: Bhulabhai Desai Papers. Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library

566. LETTER TO SURESH CHANDRA DAS GUPTA

January 31, 1945

DEAR SURESH BABU,

I received your letter in three languages. Hindi would have been sufficient. May Chi. Annapurna and her husband be happy and may they continue to render sincere service to the country.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 8019

---

1 Wherein he had denied that there had been any ‘pact’ between himself and Bhulabhai Desai
2 The addressee replied that he would again have a talk with Liaquat Ali and then see Gandhiji.
567. DISCUSSION WITH ANUGRAHA NARAYAN SINHA

WARDHA,
January 31, 1945

Mr. Sinha¹ discussed with Mahatma Gandhi the qualifications of constructive workers whether they choose to work among the labour or among the students. The following appear to be the minimum qualifications for such workers:

1. Spinning of certain quantity of yarn regularly each month.
2. Giving preference to such articles for personal consumption as are locally manufactured on the basis of cottage industries.
3. To have full and active faith in non-violence and truth as understood by Mahatmaji.

Mahatmaji, it is understood, told Mr. Sinha that the above test was good and it could easily be made stiffer.

The Bombay Chronicle, 1-2-1945

568. NOTE TO BHULABHAI DESAI

[January 1945]²

BHULABHAI DESAI,

I understand that the steps would be somewhat as follows:

The League agrees with us as to the composition of the interim Government at the Centre. (The agreed nominees will be responsible to the elected legislature.) The League agrees that if the proposal is accepted by the Governor General the first step to be taken by the new Government will be to release the Working Committee. On this being done, the G. G. will be requested to accept the composition agreed upon (with the addition of members representing the elected parties or elements). On the G.G. agreeing, an interim Government would be formed and when the Working Committee is thereafter released, you will be good enough to tell them that this step was taken with your approval.

¹ Ex-Finance Minister of Bihar
² (1877-1946); Leader of the Congress Party in the Central Assembly; President, Bombay Provincial Congress Committee; Member, Congress Working Committee.
³ Bhulabhai Desai initiated the move for a Congress-League coalition at the Centre in early January 1845; vide “Note to Bhulabhai J. Desai”, 5-1-1945 and Appendix “Guidelines for Proposed Interim Government”, 5-1-1945.
QUESTIONS: Is the agreement of the League to release the Working Committee as the first step of the new provisional Government (preliminary) proof of their bona fides?

ANSWER: Yes.

Q. If the new provisional Government is formed while the Working Committee is still in detention and if the new Government releases them, why do you see danger in the way of a permanent solution of the Hindu-Muslim question?

A: The danger lies with the Quaid-e-Azam being equivocal and two-faced.¹

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

569. LETTER TO KONDA VENKATAPPAYYA

SEVAGRAM,
February 1, 1945

MY DEAR DESHBHAKTA,

I do not appreciate your appeal. There is no hurry. It should be revised. Give the assets of the ashramam, the liabilities, yearly donations, the concrete activities, the income therefrom. Then give the prospective expenditure in detail.

Has the ashramam enough workers for the different tasks? Who is the doctor for general work, who is the veterinary surgeon, who is the matron? Are all these experts to be brought in? The thing reads visionary. It must be businesslike. If the burden cannot be borne, the appeal should wait. You will get the funds. Let them not be a curse. Money won’t produce men. The latter will produce as much as you need.

Love.

BAPU

DESHBHAKTA KONDA VENKATAPPAYYA

GUNTUR

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarela

¹ Vide also “Silence-Day Note to Bhulabhai Desai”, 11-6-1945.
570. LETTER TO JAYA

SEVAGRAM,

February 1, 1945

CHI. JAYA,

I got your telegram. Does it not seem like a dream that Vasant has passed away? However, I feel nothing. I have seen many deaths and many births. They are two sides of the same coin. If on one side there is death, on the other side there is birth. Both the sides are equal in worth. They always, therefore, go side by side. Why then rejoice at one and grieve over the other? Moreover it is certain to happen to all. Besides getting married and rejoicing is nothing but a part of the game of life. You may resume this game. Will the wedding be put off? If it were in my hands, I would not put it off. I would let the ceremony take place, but drop the celebration part completely. But you know better what is proper. Keep up your courage.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./XXIII

571. LETTER TO NRISINHPRAASAD K. BHATT

SEVAGRAM,

February 1, 1945

CHI. NANABHAI,

I have your letter. I understand what you say regarding Bachu. The sea is close to Ghogha and to Bhavnagar. Will not its cooling effect be enough?

I shall consider how much I should leave over for you after Manubhai and Vijaya arrive. I shall do my utmost to lighten your burden.

Blessings from
BAPU

NANABHAI BHATT
AMBALA, KATHIWAR

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Bindu and Chandrakant; vide “Letter to Jaya”, 1-12-1944.
2 Manubhai Pancholi and his wife
3 ibid
572. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

February 1, 1945

CHI. MUNNALAL,

You tried to be brief but failed. I am sure you have omitted something. To be brief means that you should say everything you want to in as few words as possible. I will show you how to do this when I have the time and the opportunity to do so.

It was not in anger that I wrote what I did about Burhanpur. I was not happy about you or Kanchan going there. But knowing your limitation, I agreed unreservedly. After you had gone there, I saw from your letters that your going there had been fruitful. You made your family happy and you could also improve things to some extent. Besides, there is certainly work to do in the town. Hence, in order to see you become steady and have the proper environment, I also suggested your taking up work there. My intention of course is that you should stay on here and learn through experience. But even for doing that, you must have equipoise and you must live in conformity with social norms. If you do not do that, you will not mature. I, therefore, included that also in my suggestions.

You may forgive Gopalrao and others, but you must know their mistake. I saw sarcasm in Pandurang’s letter. I did not like the letter. Their explanation for all this lies chiefly in what you two, perhaps four, namely, you and Kanchan, Chimanlal and Shakaribehn, are by nature. These two women cannot be considered different from other women. Perhaps you do not know how many of my plans came to nothing because of Ba’s limitations. I exercised as much strictness as I could. But the limitation would always show itself. You may be sure it will be the same in this case. I have explained the rule to you. If, after understanding it, you come to the conclusion that you two should run the Ashram, I would consent to your doing so. Even if you run it in a way different from the way it is run at present, I would let you do so. Or if you decide that the Ashram should be disbanded, I would consent to that too. The correct and best thing would be that all four of you should wake up now while carrying on your present work, and do the best you can. You may seek from me whatever help I can give you.

If Chimanlal also did not understand about Prahlad, ask me when I have free time and when both are present; I will tell you. Writing about it will make the letter too long.

I will see about the newspapers.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: C.W. 5890. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah
573. LETTER TO DAMAYANTI

SEVAGRAM,
February 1, 1945

CHI. DAMAYANTI,

I have your letter. It is good you wrote. I should like to invite you but I am not doing so. Why undertake hardships of a journey and spend money when you can achieve your aim through correspondence. So cancel the trip.

What does your husband do? How many children do you have?

Pass on the enclosed letter to Bhogibhai.1 I do not have his address. If the letter will not produce any result, you and your brother should act as you think proper.

Look me up when I happen to go to Bombay.

Blessings from

BAPU

DAMAYANTIBEHN
GANDHI NIWAS
GHOODBUNDER ROAD
SANTACRUZ, B. B. & C. I. RLY.

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

574. LETTER TO V. G. SAHASRABUDDHE

SEVAGRAM,
February 1, 1945

Bhai Sahasrabuddhe,

A letter of authority is one which is duly signed by both the parties. Perhaps it requires a stamp also. I shall give the verdict if I get the claim of the T. M. E., your reply and the claimant’s rejoinder either in the national language or the State language or even in Marathi. Out of the six months some time has already passed. I want everything in writing. No one need personally appear before me. I am sorry about your daughter. My silence continues. Though I have no

1 The letter is not available. time I can yet offer some suggestions if I see the girl. It is a difficult task.

Blessings from
BAPU

V. G. SAHASRABUDDHE
MAHAL
NAGPUR

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

575. LETTER TO E. S. PATWARDHAN

SEVAGRAM,
February 1, 1945

BHAI PATWARDHAN,

I have your letter. Send me the letter of authority duly signed by both the parties, as also your claim, Anna’s reply, your rejoinder and the necessary evidence. Out of the six months quite a few days have already passed. Send the documents either by post or through someone. There will be no need for you to come. I have said that I shall give the verdict in writing on the basis of the written documents, haven’t I? Why should Bhai Mahalkar take the trouble? My silence, of course, continues. Time passes somehow. Still, do come if you want to.

Blessings from
BAPU

E.S. PATWARDHAN
“TARUN BHARAT”, NAGPUR

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

576. LETTER TO SANKARAN NAIR

SEVAGRAM,
February 1, 1945

CHI. SANKARAN,

I have your letter. Tell me your views whenever you feel like it.

It is enough that you visited the samadhis of Ba and Mahadev once. Your duty is to immerse yourself in your studies.
Keep yourself fit.
The boy is happy. He lives with Shakaribehn and goes to the T[alimi] S[angh].

Blessings from
BAPU

SANKARAN NAIR
ROOM 30, THIRD FLOOR
MORARJEE GOKULDAS SANATORIUM, POONA

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

577. ADVICE TO MAHOMED BEG

SEVAGRAM,
[Before February 2, 1945]

If you really desire to serve the Muslim masses, my only advice to you is that you should totally abstain from being in touch with communal bodies.

The Hindu, 3-2-1945

578. LETTER TO BHULABHAI J. DESAI

SEVAGPBAM,
February 2, 1945

BHAI BHULABHAI,

What you say is correct. Come whenever you wish. I have no fear. It is the newspaper reports that impelled me to caution you.

Blessings from
BAPU

From the Gujarati original: Bhulabhai Desai Papers. Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library

---

1 A Congress leader from Kheda who had a prolonged discussion with Gandhiji
2 The report appeared under the date-line “Surat, February 2, 1945”.
579. LETTER TO BHOLA NATH

February 2, 1945

(1) You are free to do anything, but should do nothing at my instance. My advice is that you should make your own decision in the context of the situation prevailing there.

(2) Sarojini Devi has fallen ill. Take the help of somebody else.

(3) Launch a pure satyagraha against the landlords if there are people who can offer satyagraha. If they are not ready for it do whatever is possible.

(4) I shall certainly meet the people of Alwar if I am able to go to Delhi.

(5) There is nothing at all to prevent our meeting the rulers if they are ready to help us.

Nothing of this is meant for publication under my name. It is meant only for your understanding.

BHOLA NATH MASTER
PRAJAMANDAL
ALWAR, RAJPUTANA

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 1312

580. NOTE TO KRISHNACHANDRA

February 2, 1945

The incident of sugar-cane shows how we should be generous towards others and strict with ourselves and what should be the right qualification for handling child education.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4463

581. LETTER TO SHRIKRISHNA SINHA

SEVAGRAM,
February 2, 1945

Bhai Shrikrishna Sinha,

You ought not to need comforting. Death inevitably follows birth. Why grieve over it? Your wife is released from suffering. Now you have only service to devote yourself to. So do it.

_Blessings from_

_BAPU_

SHRIKRISHNA SINHA
PREMIER
PATNA

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

582. LETTER TO KAMALES…

SEVAGRAM,

_February 2, 1945_

BHAI KAMALES…

I have your letter. I can’t help it if my article has caused a commotion. I am not satisfied with your work. I do not wish to go into the reasons. The Rashtrabhasha Sammelan is narrow in its scope since it does not teach Urdu. Had Urdu continued to enjoy the place which it deserves and which I tried to give it, the propagation of Hindustani would have become redundant. To me this is self-evident. But why should I argue? If everyone does what he likes where is the room for contention?

_Blessings from_

_BAPU_

KAMALES…
KHADIA, AHMEDABAD

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

583. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

_SEVAGRAM,_

_February 3, 1945_

CHI. MUNNALAL,

I didn’t follow your story about Dwarkanath. Explain it to me.

I understand your difficulties. They are all unavoidable. Find your way patiently through them. You can talk to everyone politely.
Yashodhara is a very good woman. You can speak to her. She has supported many of our workers. For instance, she has been helping Narayan and Kanti. Her house is open to any of our workers who goes there. They are big people. It is very good indeed that Dr. Mahmud is there as also Ramachandran. You may request them and even if they are not able to help, you may find some other way. If you do not know how to broach the subject to them, do not embark upon the venture. It is surprising that Kanchan does not help as much as she can. Is that intentional or is there some other reason? If you tell me which members of the Ashram refuse to help, I may do something about it.

The only remedy for all the difficulties is patience. Forget about Sevagram for the time being. Assume that Shantabehn has taken over responsibility from today. You may, if you can, give her whatever help she asks for.

I intend to write separately regarding Mahadevi. I hope Vatsala helps you. If you have anything more to ask me, you may.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 8466. Also C.W. 7181. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

584. LETTER TO DINSHAW K. MEHTA

SEVAGRAM,
February 3, 1945

CHI. DINSHAW,

I have your letter, the cheque, the photograph, etc. I shall return the photograph with my next letter. No one prevents me. I just cannot bring myself to believe in the efficacy of milk therapy. For the rest I would certainly like to stay with you.

Our differences, such as they are, will disappear of their own accord.

The contribution from Ghanshyamdas at any rate ought to remain anonymous. We may not even identify it by some name. He will continue to pay us till the figure is reached. The amount will not come to us in a lump sum. The records will of course show

1 Yashodhara Dassappa
2 G. Ramachandran
a small amount. I should like to include the names of Bhiwandiwala and Fikriyar Jung. I shall write to you about it. I can’t think of anything more to write at the moment. I think I am working a bit too much.

Blessings from

BAPU

DR. DINSHAW MEHTA
POONA

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

585. LETTER TO BAJRANG SINGH

SEVAGRAM,
February 3, 1945

BHAJ BAJRANG SINGH¹,

I have your letter. May God save you. If you have to go to the gallows, face it cheerfully.

Blessings from

M. K. GANDHI

BAJRANG SINGH
CONDEMNED CELL, CENTRAL JAIL
NAINI, U. P.

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

586. LETTER TO LADY CHHOTURAM

SEVAGRAM,
February 3, 1945

DEAR SISTER,

I am grieved that Sir Chhoturam² has passed away. Only a few months back he had written to me. He had love for me. What consolation can I offer you? Let us live as God ordains.

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

LADY CHHOTURAM
C/O DR. GOPI CHAND
LAHORE

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ The addressee was involved in the Kanpur Central Station bomb case.
² A prominent Unionist leader and Revenue Minister of the Punjab
587. NOTE TO KRISHNACHANDRA

February 3, 1945

It would be best if you gave up sugar-cane altogether for two or three days.

Select some book for reading. I can choose one for you if you wish. Your acquaintance with Malayalam will be of great help in Nayee Talim. Do not resort to English under any circumstances. It is surprising you do not understand this simple thing.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4569

588. LETTER TO BHARATAN KUMARAPPA

February 4, 1945

MY DEAR BHARATAN,

I have heard from both of you simultaneously. Do stay as long as your sister needs you. You will be working for A.I.V.I.A. wherever you are.

My love to you all.

BAPU

From a photostat: G.N. 3597

589. LETTER TO Y. VENKATASUBBAIAH

February 4, 1945

DEAR FRIEND,

I got your letter only today. Please send me your detailed budget and if it commends itself to me, I shall submit it to the Trust. As to the scheme for an institute, will naturopaths agree? If you are young enough I would like you to come here by appointment and treat patients according to naturopathy. Naturopathy here works but I am sorry to confess that only allopathy flourishes.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

SHRI V. VENKATASUBBAIAH, M.L.A.
KASTURIDEVINAGAR
NELLORE (ANDHRA)

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
590. NOTE TO SUB-INSPECTOR OF POLICE, WARDHA¹

SEVAGRAM,
February 4, 1945

He (the wanted person) came and said he believed in me and my teachings and had decided to surrender himself. Hence the note he wrote. I must add that even if he had admitted his guilt to me I would be bound not to disclose it to the police. I could not be reformer and informer at the same time.

591. LETTER TO ARUN CHANDRA GUHA

February 4, 1945

DEAR FRIEND,

Yours of 26th ultimo² to Gandhiji. He was very much pleased to read that even in jail you were able to renew the pledge and the oath of allegiance. As regards his going to Bengal, though he would very much like to go there, the circumstances are such that he does not think it advisable at present to venture to go to Bengal.

Yours sincerely,
NARAHHARI PARIKH

SHRI ARUN CHANDRA GUHA, SECURITY PRISONER,
SPECIAL RESERVE JAIL,
P. O. BAKSADUAR (DT. JALPAIGURI)
From a photostat: G.N. 8671

592. LETTER TO AMRITLAL T. NANAVATI

SEVAGRAM,
February 4, 1945

CHI. AMRITLAL,

I have your letter. You are scared for nothing. Let all the people come together. I do not think it proper to change the programme after everything has been decided. On my part I have no misgivings. After all we only want to do our work. You and Maganbhai should ¹ According to the source an underground worker wanted by the police had met Gandhiji and left a note. The police learning of this wanted the note.

² The source has “inst.”.
come over. Hope you have completely recovered.

Blessings from

BAPU

AMRITLAL NANAVATI
GUJARAT VIDYAPITH
AHMEDABAD

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

593. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA

SEVAGRAM,
February 4, 1945

CHI. KRISHNACHANDRA,

It is well that you have taken a vow about sugar-cane. If you were to take it for the sake of your health, it would not be necessary to give it up for good. If it were to control the palate you would have to give it up. In this case, both health and palate are involved. That is why I suggested a time-limit.

As for the books, you can read Marx’s Das Kapital, all my articles on economics and also Shrimanji’s and two books by Sampurnanand. The rest I shall tell you later.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4464

594. LETTER TO CHANDRAPRAKASH

SEVAGRAM,
February 4, 1945

CHI. CHANDRAPRAKASH,

I have your two postcards. Although Father is still not out of danger, it is good that he has survived the crisis. May God cure him completely.

Blessings from

M. K. GANDHI

CHANDRAPRAKASH
PILLARS
SIALKOT

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
595. LETTER TO P. C. JOSHI

SEVAGRAM,
February 5, 1945

BROTHER JOSHI,

Received your letter. Shall I reply in the national language?

I did not write to you because you yourself had asked me not to do so. Yes, you are right, complaint was mine. I wanted to come near you. To clear up that I asked, I wrote. In that there was no reason for anger.

I have given everything to Bhulabhai. There was some difficulty about one thing. Rajaji refused, because he is considered a partisan. I have already expressed my view. You must have seen it. I want to come still nearer to the Communists. But complaints continue coming to me. I have told everything to brother Habib. Mohan need not come. But if he wants, he can come.

Yours,
M. K. GANDHI

Correspondence between Mahatma Gandhi and P. C. Joshi, PP. 39-40

596. LETTER TO MANU GANDHI

SEVAGRAM,
February 5, 1945

CHI. MANU,

I am very much worried about you. You are always crying and seem restless. You do tell me that you regard me both as your mother and father. Will a child be ever afraid of talking to her parents, or feel shy? You do both. I, therefore, wonder what your real feelings are. Why should you have any secrets? You should not object to others reading your letters. Therefore while I have returned them to you, I did not like doing so. You should have the courage to say whatever you wish in front of everybody. One hides one’s guilt even when it is small. He who has acted truthfully hides nothing. If there is any suspicion that truth is being kept back, it comes out.

2 The Hindi original is not available.
3 Mohan Kumaramangalam
Tell Sushila whatever you wish to say. Why should you be afraid of her? Tell her boldly whatever it is. She tells me that she has not stopped you from attending the class because you share the bed with me. She told you for your own convenience that you might take leave if you wished and get well. She will help you to make up for what you miss.

You may show this letter to Pyarelal, Sushila or anyone else you wish. Get well.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./XXIV

597. LETTER TO MANILAL GANDHI

SEVAGRAM,
February 5, 1945

CHI. MANILAL,

I have your letter written from Mombasa. You worry too much about me. Stop doing that. Leave me in God’s hands. At present I am all right. I am active as usual and take my normal food. The blood-pressure is not measured daily now. Khurshedbehn has been in Bombay for the last ten days. She will be there a few more days. Neither she nor anyone else will ever disappoint you. Just now Chi. Kishorelal also is here, and so is Narahari. Narahari’s son has got engaged to Anasuya, Rami’s daughter. It was a mutual choice. I should like it if all of you could make proper arrangements for your work there and then come here, but I do not think that will be possible. It can be done if Sita gets herself trained and goes there.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 4946

598. LETTER TO CHIMANLAL N. SHAH

SEVAGRAM,
February 5, 1945

CHI. CHIMANLAL,

I did not ask for the balance-sheet. I only wanted to know the names of those who lived in the Ashram including the servants and the others and the expense per head. This should not be difficult. What I have written about Mahadevi is one-sided. If you or the others know anything that goes against her, I should like to know that too. You need not believe as perfect truth all that I say. It may be that I know only one side of the story.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10615

599. LETTER TO L. KAMESWARARAO SARMA

SEVAGRAM,
February 5, 1945

BHAJ KAMESHWAR SARMA,

I have your letter of January 31, 1945.

My complaint remains. Your letter has, if anything, aggravated it.¹

All your office-bearers are your own men. So must be the members. This is not the way to unite people.

All your work will be carried on in English. What has this got to do with nature? You have dug up the very foundations of nature. Why inflict English on poor Tandonji who is an advocate of the Rashtrabhasha? If you did not want the Rashtrabhasha it would have been better if you had chosen one of the South Indian languages.

Father’s letter is full of wisdom. What could Dr. Sapru do? There is nothing to obstruct a nature-cure practitioner in India.

Yours,²

KAMESWARA SARMA

PUDUKKOTTAI

TRICHY

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Vide also “Letter to L. Kameswararao Sarma”, 21-1-1945.
² The letter carries the following note in Gujarati: “Sent after a Tamil translation had been made.”
600. LETTER TO G. D. BIRLA

SEVAGRAM,
February 5, 1945

CHI. GHANSHYAMDAS,

Dinshaw has sent the draft to De[vdas]. He wants Bhiwandiwala, who had helped him and who has faith in nature cure, as also Fikriyar Jung, who was Finance Minister to the Nizam and believes in these remedies, to be included among the trustees. I think there is no harm in it. About the rest I have written to Dinshaw. If you will show this to Devdas I shall make do with this one letter.

If you take me to Delhi I shall have to visit Pilani, Mira’s place and also Dharmadev’s. I shall stay at the Harijan Nivas.

Blessings from

BAPU

BIRLAJI

N. D.

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

601. LETTER TO BRIJLAL NEHRU

SEVAGRAM,
February 5, 1945

BHAI BRIJLAL,

I have your affectionate telegram. Keep me posted in this way. So far I have not taken anything. But what is to be done if the Ayurvedic as well as the nature-cure people are not able to do anything? That is the question. Allopathic doctors take no less time. Tell me, what should we do?

Blessings from

BAPU

BRIJLAL NEHRU
ACCOUNTANT GENERAL
KASHMIR

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
602. LETTER TO CHANDRANI

February 5, 1945

CHI. CHAND,

This is foreign—certainly mill-made. Why should you have it? You ought to have a notebook of hand-made paper. You can keep this. You could use it for some other purpose or give it away. Anyway, you should do only what you wish, not what I suggest.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: Chandrani Papers. Courtesy: Gandhi National Museum and Library

603. NOTE TO KRISHNACHANDRA

February 5, 1945

The very fact that Malayalam appears distant is the reason why it should be learnt. There is no difficulty after one learns the grammar of a language, Asanas\(^1\) and water are the remedies for constipation. Instead of sugar-cane, try taking sugar-cane juice.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4466

604. NOTE TO KRISHNACHANDRA

February 5, 1945

An intelligent man will not stop with just learning a script. He who stops there will be defeated. However, a script can certainly be of great help in learning a language. The opposite of it is also true. It is proper to write everything in Hindi. But we want to be practical in our approach. As we want to achieve unity we should learn as many scripts as there are languages here. By doing so we would be moving nearer the goal. Considered from even this point of view all these things fit into the scheme of Nayee Talim.

\(^{1}\) Yogic exercises

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4465

605. LETTER TO P. SRIRAMULU

February 6, 1945

DEAR RAMULU,

You are right. By mistake your letters were not shown to me. I am glad of the reformed remarriage. I hope both are happy and doing well. Do report about your progress. I know you have difficulties to contend with.

Yours,

BAPU

From a photostat: G.N. 111
606. LETTER TO SHARDA G. CHOKHAWALA

SEVAGRAM,
February 6, 1945

CHI. BABUDI,

The doctor’s advice is not correct. You can give Anand’s mosambi juice in warm water. Or you can warm it by putting the vessel containing it in hot water and give it to him. You can give him honey mixed in hot water, or pure jaggery. Honey would be better. You can give him vegetable soup. This will clear the bowels and normalize motions and then he may drink milk with relish. The cough and the cold must disappear. There was no harm in giving him Santogen. You will soon observe its effect. All children fall ill. You should not worry. You should not give him just any medicine. All children are endowed with the power of self-recovery. Watch what he eats.

Blessings from
BAPU

From the Gujarati original: C.W. 10052. Courtesy: Sharda G. Chokhawala

607. LETTER TO ZABAKBEHN

SEVAGRAM,
February 6, 1945

CHI. ZABAKBEHN,

There is a letter from Chi. Rasik. Trambaklal has passed away. I had not been in much contact with him. But Popatbhai moved a lot with me and so I remember him well. What Consolation shall I offer you? God looks after everybody and protects everyone. We are all subject to our karma. We should patiently submit to whatever happens.

Blessings from
BAPU

[PS]
I am not writing separately to Chi. Rasik. I got his letter only today.

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 10218

1 Addressee’s son
608. LETTER TO RAOJIBHAI M. PATEL

SEVAGRAM,
February 6, 1945

CHI. RAOJIBHAI,

Bhai Gokuldas is gone. Condole with the family on their loss. Truly speaking, what is there to condole about such a death? He has done a lot of work. I knew him well. He will certainly be missed. It is the duty of those whom he leaves behind to fill the void.

Blessings from

BAPU

RAOJIBHAI MANIBHAI PATEL
VITTHAL KANYA VIDYALAYA
NADIAD

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

609. LETTER TO ABHAY KUMAR

SEVAGRAM,
February 6, 1945

BHAJ ABHAY,

I have heard enough of such wise talk. I do accept its general purpose. But it does not mean that we may have no difference of opinion or see no faults in anyone. I have learnt to love people in spite of their faults. I do it and I feel satisfied.

Is it not enough that I dwell on truth? I follow truth as I see it. We do not all see truth the same way. Outlooks differ.

Blessings from

BAPU

ABHAY KUMAR
P. BOX 85
NEW DELHI

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
610. NOTE TO KRISHNACHANDRA

February 6, 1945

Where is the swelling? Change the time of working on the quern; do not give it up. There is much to be gained by doing the work methodically. You will find wonderful nuances in Malayalam. It is easy to understand. Learn Grimm’s Law if you are not already familiar with it.

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4467

611. LETTER TO CHAKRAYYA

SEVAGRAM,
February 6, 1945

CHI. CHAKRAYYA,

Your letter. Do not give in to difficulties. You are a little distance away but there are advantages in this too. It is certainly good to collect some children and train them. Acquire some knowledge about Nayee Talim. Your way will be clear if you increase your skill in weaving. Krishnadas1 has evolved an easy process of double twisting. Learn it through letters and then follow it in practice. Then hand-spun yarn can compete with mill yarn. You can overcome all your difficulties by patience, knowledge and diligence.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 9114. Also C.W. 9183

612. LETTER TO AMRIT KAUR

SEVAGRAM,2
February 7, 1945

CHI. AMRIT,

I wanted to write to you in Urdu. I was crowded out for want of time.

Now I have your question in English. I am quite of opinion that the children of mixed marriage should be taught in the male parent’s religion. This seems to me to be self-obvious for common happiness

1 Son of Chhaganlal Gandhi
2 This is in Devanagari
and interest. That the instruction should be liberal goes without saying. I am considering merely the question of the choice of religion. The children cannot profess two religions. They must respect the female parent’s religion. If the female parent has not that much discretion and regard for her husband’s religion, the marriage becomes superficial. Of course it is another thing where the husband is wholly indifferent. I know such a case. Am I clear? Tell B. she should not be silent.

Love.

Blessings from

BAPU

From the original: C.W. 3695. Courtesy: Amrit Kaur. Also G.N. 6504

613. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

SEVAGRAM,
February 7, 1945

CHI. MUNNALAL,

It seems the jowar dalia\(^2\) was not cooked well. I ate it for two days. Though it was put in the cooker again, I didn’t find it soft enough. I found it even hard. I suggest that all food should be cooked so well that even a person like me with false teeth can eat it. My second suggestion is that you should cook jowar ghensh instead of dalia. To cook ghensh the jowar should be turned into flour and the flour should then be cooked. I wish to try it. In prison they serve such ghensh and it is easy to digest.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 8465. Also C.W. 7183. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

614. LETTER TO JAYAPRAKASH NARAYAN

SEVAGRAM,
February 7, 1945

CHI. JAYAPRAKASH,

It is a pleasure to read your letters. Be happy and keep yourself in perfect health.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 2220

\(^1\) The subscription is in Devanagari script.
\(^2\) Gruel made from milk
615. LETTER TO RAMASWAMI

SEVAGRAM,
February 7, 1945

CHI. RAMASWAMI,

Why should I now write to you in English? You ought to know Hindi by this time.

So you have resolved to go. If the Government don’t send you, you will adopt other means. That too is a way. By all means go. Keep whatever links you can. Be a true servant.

Blessings from

BAPU

RAMASWAMI
TALIMI SANGH
SEVAGRAM

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

616. LETTER TO SHRIMAN NARAYAN

SEVAGRAM,
February 7, 1945

CHI. SHRIMAN,

I have gone through what you wrote about the Mahila Ashram. It is good.

You can explain the objective in two or three lines. Do so.

In doing it keep in mind the promise made by Jamnalalji. So far as possible we should consider and implement it.

Blessings from

BAPU

[From Hindi]

Panchvrit Pratap Bapuka Ashirvad, p. 304
617. A NOTE

February 7, 1945

I am surprised and sorry that such questions are being repeatedly asked and that workers spend money to come here and take up my time which is valuable. They should look up the answers to all their questions which have already been covered in some form or other.

M. K. GANDHI

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

618. NOTE TO SHRIMAN NARAYAN

[After February 7, 1945]

I like it.² It is good to divide the Mahila Ashram into sections. I do not know whether or not there will be somebody, man or woman, at the head of every section. If all sections are under you and if you remain responsible to Shantabehn, I think everything will be all right. Let the three-member committee stay, but Shantabehn should consult only you and you should take up the entire responsibility. Everything will then run smoothly.

[From Hindi]

Panchvsto Putrako Bapuke Ashirvad, p. 304

619. LETTER TO T. B. SAPRU

SEVAGRAM,

February 8, 1945

DEAR DR. SAPRU,

Though I am supposed to be resting and silent between 8.15 a.m. to 8.15 p.m. I am working intensely. Hence the delay in sending you a reply.³

If it is no great trouble I should like you to put me specific

¹ In the source this note is placed after the letter to the addressee dated February 7, 1945.
² Addressee’s scheme for the Mahila Ashram
³ For the addressee’s letter, vide Appendix “Letter from T. B. Sapru”, 13-1-1945.
questions about my talks with Q[uid-e] A[ zam]'. I would like to confine myself to that question alone.

I see you have entered upon an ambitious programme. I wish you all success and full strength for the work.

I hope the patient is quite out of the wood.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GandhI

Gandhi-Sapru Papers. Courtesy: National Library, Calcutta. Also G.N. 7571

620. LETTER TO LILAVATI ASAR

SEVAGRAM,
February 8, 1945

CHI. LILI,

I have already written to you; nevertheless, since a letter of yours is lying before me, I am writing this. Do not under any circumstances give up your studies even if you should find them tedious. I have purposely sent you there for studies. If you succeed, I shall not grudge the expense and the time spent. Having started a thing one may give it up only if it is found to be basically wrong. That is not so in the present case. We knew what it would involve. You should not have any attachment about serving me, nor any for the Ashram. If afterwards you again merge in the Ashram, what you are doing just now is for the Ashram as well as for me. Now do not give up. Stop thinking and engross yourself in your studies. I am well.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 9600. Also C.W. 6572. Courtesy: Lilavati Asar

1 In reply the addressee sent a set of questions along with his letter dated February 16, 1945. Vide “Answers to T. B. Sapru’s Questions”, 26-2-1945.

2 The reference is to the Conciliation Committee formed under the chairmanship of the addressee to examine “the whole communal and minorities question from a constitutional and political point of view, putting itself in touch of different parties and their leaders including minorities interested in the question and present a solution within two months to Standing Committee” of the Non-party Conference. The other members were Jayakar, S. Radhakrishnan, Gopalaswamy Iyengar and Maharaj Singh.

3 Addressee’s son
621. FRAGMENT OF LETTER TO CHIMANLAL N. SHAH

February 8, 1945

... then it should be available in the account-books. That is why I thought it should be possible, and easy, to get that figure.

Let me know about any inconsistencies you find in Mahadevi’s character. There is a reason why I should know them.

You are likely to lose the money which Sarojini owes you. You may let the thing go and write it off. Read the letter I am writing to her.

Credit to the hospital account the sum of Rs. 5,000 received from Anupama and sent to you from here. Only now I came to know that the money was earmarked for that purpose. I was told about it, of course, but probably I was thinking of something else at the time. It is good that the money has been credited to my account, for now it can be easily transferred to any other account.

Sharda and Anand seem to be unlucky. They always suffer from something or other.

Kanu has written [to you] about the money received from the Bajaj Company.

I have now replied to all the points raised in your letter.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10616

622. LETTER TO KANAM GANDHI

SEVAGRAM,
February 8, 1945

CHI. KANAM.

I could not reply to your letter at once. If you are convinced that ghosts do not exist, then the article in the Times should have no effect on you. There are some good things in newspapers but there is a lot of nonsense too. The readers of newspapers, therefore, should be always on their guard. Your method of doing algebra is good. This

---

1 This appears below a statement of accounts of the Charkha Sangh under Prabhu das Gandhi’s signature. The earlier part of the letter is not available.

2 From the G.N. Register
shows that your intelligence is developing. That method is actually used in arithmetic. You should develop the habit of assuming ‘x’ as a quantity. You will realize the value of this as you go on.

Improve your handwriting still further.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 9516. Courtesy: Kanam Gandhi

623. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA

February 8, 1945

CHI. KRISHNACHANDRA,

You can easily obviate disappointment among the teachers. Their main fault or handicap is that they are not hard-working craftsmen, nor do they have faith in craftsmanship.

Tell Dr. Mahmud that you have no time to spare. Why does he at all want to talk to anyone? Why does he not engage himself in some craft? He can certainly do something. He may do some carding and spinning and clean the vegetables. Along with this he may teach Urdu and acquire a good knowledge of Hindi. He may read Tulsidas.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4468

624. LETTER TO DR. SYED MAHMUD

SEVAGRAM,

February 8, 1945

BHAJ MAHMUD,

Why did you write to me in English? From now on write in Hindustani. Why do you hate to apologize? We are all members of the same family. Do not be unhappy; be cheerful. Regain your health.

Yours,

GANDHI

From a photostat of the Urdu: G.N. 5093
625. LETTER TO MADELEINE ROLLAND

SEVAGRAM,
February 9, 1945

DEAR MADELEINE,

My whole heart goes out to you now that the one for whom you seemed to be living has gone. Nevertheless the true position is that you should work ever so much more than before assuming of course that your physical condition makes work at all possible.

Love.

BAPU

Mlle. Rolland

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

626. LETTER TO JALBHAI RUSTOMJEE

SEVAGRAM,
February 9, 1945

CHI. JALBHAI,

I have your letter. I might have skipped a reply but I was shocked at the news of Sorab’s illness. This illness comes on through carelessness. It is sure to disappear if he observes the rules. My blessings are of course with him. Manilal’s work is going on well.

Blessings to you all from

BAPU

JALBHAI RUSTOMJEE
74 VICTORIA STREET
DURBAN, NATAL

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Addressee’s brother Romain Rolland
2 Sons of Parsi Rustomji
3 Ibid
627. LETTER TO RASIKLAL U. MEHTA

SEVAGRAM,
February 9, 1945

CHI. RASIKLAL,

Go to S. A. and do as much public service as you can. You should not hanker after money.

Blessings from
BAPU

RASIKLAL UMIYASHANKAR MEHTA
G/20 SIKKANAGAR
VITALBHAI PATEL ROAD
BOMBAY 4

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

628. LETTER TO HARSHADA DIWANJI

February 9, 1945

CHI. HARSHADABEHN.

I got all the yarn as well as your letter. Only today it was discovered in the bag. My blessings are always with you. Why do you make the servants spin? If they spin willingly, and with proper understanding of the meaning of spinning, then it is a different matter. It is enough for me that you yourself spin regularly and with both hands.

I spin on Diwanji’s spinning-wheel daily. I like it. It has a few defects, but I get them repaired or repair them myself. If I got more time, I should examine it more carefully.

Blessings from
BAPU

SMT. HARSHADABEHN DIWANJI
15TH ROAD, KHAR
BOMBAY

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 10222

THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
629. LETTER TO BABA MOGHE
February 10, 1945

Bhai Babaji,

Sharmaji writes,¹ that doctor Rajuji also wants that you should stay on there. There has been some improvement and there will be more. All three of you are dear to me, you are sensible. I have no doubt given you permission to come here but since Gokhaleji is there I shall be glad if you also stay on there and are cured of your complaint. You will not always get such an opportunity. Anand alone may come.

Blessings from
Bapu

From a microfilm of the Hindi. Courtesy: National Archives of India and Anand T. Hingorani

630. LETTER TO A. N. SHARMA
SEVAGRAM, February 10, 1945

Chintamani,²

I hope you have made some progress in Hindi.
In accordance with your advice, I have asked³ Babaji to stay and give himself and nature-cure a full chance.

Yours,

From a copy. Courtesy: National Archives of India and Anand T. Hingorani

631. LETTER TO SHAMALDAS GANDHI
SEVAGRAM, February 10, 1945

Chintamani,

Read the enclosed letter.⁴ If you could bring justice to the case, it will gladden the soul of Kevalrambhai, wherever it is. In his last days

¹ Vide the following item.
² The superscription is in the Devanagari script.
³ Vide the preceding item.
⁴ This was from Mahendra B. Dave; vide also “Letter to Mahendra B. Dave”.

Vol. 85 : 2 October, 1944 - 3 March, 1945
he had been in touch with me over spiritual matters, as had been your father. They were both prepared to go to [South] Africa but they passed away. I had even prepared the ground for them to reach S. A. But isn’t fate always a couple of steps ahead of us?

Blessings from

BAPU

SHAMALDAS GANDHI
C/o “VANDEMATARAM”
BOMBAY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

632. LETTER TO KAMALNAYAN BAJAJ

February 10, 1945

CHI. KAMALNAYAN,

Read the enclosed¹ and act upon it. Already there has been inordinate delay. Return the paper to me after you have acted on it. I have to send a reply.

Blessings from

BAPU

KAMALNAYAN BAJAJ
WARDHA

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

633. NOTE TO KRISHNACHANDRA

February 10, 1945

It is surprising. Those who have had Western education or those who are not craftsmen will not be inclined or eager to become craftsmen. I have seen quite a number of such cases.

2. Things will continue to happen sporadically. They will not follow any sequence. That is all right.

3. You should not in any case despair. Remember [what the Gita says] about a sthitaprajna².

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4469

¹ This was a letter written by Rathindranath Tagore from Santiniketan.
² One of steadfast understanding. Bhagavad Gita, II 55 et seq.
634. ADVICE TO LEPROSY RELIEF WORKERS

February 10, 1945

You have preached to the converted. My interest in leper work is as old as my residence in South Africa. I take it that you have seen the institution (Dattapur Colony run by Manhar Diwan) here. I would like you to send a detailed plan with expenditure to go to the Board. No thanks needed.

The Hindu, 12-2-1945

635. SPEECH AT SEVAGRAM

February 10, 1945

Mahatma Gandhi addressed a few words to the gathering. He told them he had accidentally seen the address which they had presented to Shri Kanu Gandhi, the organizer of the camp. They had said some very nice things in it, but if, as it often happened, it all began and ended with the presentation of the address, without their carrying back with them something of enduring value from the camp, theirs would be merely love’s labour lost. He expected them to develop what they had gained during their month of training a hundredfold and become true gramsevaks, servants of the villagers in deed as well as in name. They had been selected for training out of a large number of applicants. It was for them to vindicate their selection by going back as messengers and torch-bearers of samagra gramseva to their respective provinces. They should go to villages as scavengers and sweep them and clean them and serve the villagers as their humble servants. They should teach those who wished to learn spinning and other village handicrafts in the best way they could. They should never feel helpless in the absence of outside help. In their work, if they had really assimilated the spirit of the teaching that had been imparted to them, it ought to develop their intellect and heart no less than their bodies. Therefore it should develop their character. Their success would depend more on the purity of their hearts than on their skill and knowledge. If they lacked moral purity they would prove a blight instead of a blessing to the villagers among whom they might settle.

1 T. N. Jagadisan, leprosy relief worker of Madras, and Dr. M. R. G. Cochrane of Vellore met Gandhiji and presented to him a proposal for organizing under the Kasturba Memorial Fund rural leprosy work for the benefit of women and children. Since Gandhiji was observing silence he wrote out his reply.

2 Vide also “Remark in Visitor’s Book”, 12-12-1944.

3 On the death anniversary, according to the Indian calendar, of Kasturba Gandhi, a twenty-four-hour spinning yajna was organized in which Gandhiji participated. Kanu Gandhi’s Samagra Gramseva Shibir also concluded on this day.

VOL.85 : 2 OCTOBER, 1944 - 3 MARCH, 1945

373
He was glad to note, Gandhiji went on, that though they came from different provinces, they had all been able to take and flourish on the same diet. It should lead to a better realization of our oneness as a nation. Customs, dress, food and language were bound to be to a certain extent different in different provinces, but the essential unity underneath this apparent diversity had to be fully grasped and a working uniform standard evolved if they were to realize their destiny as a nation.

Lastly, Mahatma Gandhi exhorted them all to learn Hindustani and acquire proficiency in both the Urdu and the Hindi scripts. Hindustani meant not a highflown Sanskritized Hindi or Persianized Urdu, but a simple dialect which both Hindus and Muslims spoke in the villages of the North. The villagers did not understand highflown Hindi or Urdu. Their language was either simple and plain Hindustani or a provincial dialect irrespective of their caste or creed. Highflown and sophisticated style in Hindi and Urdu were the disease of cities, bred of mutual distrust. So long as that state lasted it was incumbent on them to learn both the Hindi and Urdu scripts. The third party was there no doubt to accentuate and exploit their differences, but, if they really felt that Hindus and Muslims were kith and kin, blood brethren, no one on earth could divide them or keep them divided. There was a popular saying that it needed two to start a quarrel. He was there to tell them that true ahimsa did not need to wait for a gesture from the other side. If they understood their own part of the duty and acted accordingly, success would assuredly be theirs.

_The Hindu, 14-2-1945_

636. ASHRAM NOTE

_Philosophical Development of the Vedanta_ , p. 388

February 11, 1945

I learnt yesterday that Nagu, who has been working in the Ashram for the last six years, has no knowledge of the directions or of the geography and history of India. If this is so, it calls for serious reflection on our part. . . .

BAPU

[From Hindi]

_Bapuki Chhayamen, p. 388_

637. NOTE TO KRISHNACHANDRA

_Sevagram_,

_February 11, 1945_

It is with some purpose that I have asked you to give it up. It

---

Omission as in the source
does not mean that you should give up your work. But it does mean that you are free if you find your promise burdensome. That is to say faith gives us greater strength every day, never diminishes it. This is what discipline means. The teachers have not entered the hearts of the pupils. They have not been able to give up their old ways. If there is concentration in work, discipline follows automatically. Discipline should not be regarded as something apart.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4471

638. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA

February 11, 1945

CHI. KRISHNACHANDRA,

Why this panic? I only wrote something generally acceptable. I protected your freedom. But it does not mean anything more. Go on doing what you are doing and improve upon it. Become a good scientific weaver. I think what you are doing in the Ashram is sufficient. Take my writing in its plain meaning. It can have no other. Wake up.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4470

639. LETTER TO J. C. KUMARAPPA

February 11, 1945

CHI. KUMARAPPA,

Come on the 15th at 5 p.m. Then we shall see about the rest.

Ask me about Mrs. Hoffman then. I hope you don’t mind my writing in Hindi.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 10169
640. LETTER TO MRS. DAS

SEVAGRAM,
February 11, 1945

DEAR SISTER,

Only yesterday Mahesh showed me the telegram saying Dasji had passed away. Do not grieve over it. His mission was over and he cast off the body. But though the body has perished, he lives on. We can keep him alive if we carry on his work. Take it that this responsibility rests mainly on you. You cannot bring him back into your life by grieving over his death or by donning white. You can do so only by leading a simple life by learning nature-cure treatment and vanquishing the enemies¹ in the form of anger, etc. Write to me what you are doing and how things are. What does Nimai do? I had a letter from Das recently.

Blessings from

BAPU

MRS. DAS

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

641. LETTER TO J. C. KUMARAPPA

SEVAGRAM,
February 12, 1945

MY DEAR KU.,

S[ushila] has gone to Nagpur for a patient. She is likely to return tonight. If you want to catch her at the station, you can do so.

I know the remedy. But let the doctors speak. Then if necessary, I shall put in my word.

I had your note about your book. I hope to produce something worth while.

Yours,

BAPU

From a photostat: G.N. 10170

¹ The six enemies, viz., desire, anger, greed, attachment, pride and envy
642. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA

SEVAGRAM,
February 12, 1945

CHI. KRISHNACHANDRA,

After reading the enclosed, pass it on to Krishnadas. After reading he should return it to me.

1. In regard to myself, I have taken the position that even when [a particular form of personal service] may not be necessary a person may be allowed to offer it after he has been told so—just for his satisfaction. That is why I let the girls massage my legs. I would not let any others do so. I don’t mind what Bhansali does, for I have complete faith in him. Nobody is privileged. Nobody can be privileged. This must be clear.

2. The responsibility for anything that you may permit Champa to do will be yours. I will not guide you. You are free to be as strict as you like. I have told Champa that she may secure from you whatever liberty she wants, but must not ask for my permission, since the daily supervision over her is not mine.

3. The Ashram manager should be a sthitaprajna, a gunatita 1 and a bhakta. For this see Chapter II, XII and XIV [of the Gita].

4. For learning English, why should anybody want to hear it read by someone else? One may read it for oneself. Bhansali may read from Ramakrishna and explain in Gujarati. Nobody is forbidden to read English by himself. One may learn any Indian language, and Bhansali may teach it. I would never say that those who knew English should forget their knowledge, except perhaps sarcastically. I myself know English and love the language. But the language must be used only when necessary and not otherwise.

5. Omprakash should hand over his watch to the Ashram. I think I shall be able to get Rs. 30 for it. This would be the right thing to do. But if O. prefers to pay that sum to the Ashram and keep the watch himself, he may do so.

6. Certainly, it is one’s duty to learn an Indian language, i.e., one’s mother tongue.

7. Ordinarily it is desirable that the class should be conducted at the place fixed for the purpose.

This has been written in Gujarati unconsciously. I hope you will follow it.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 4576

1 One who has transcended the three gunas, viz., sattva, rajas and tamas
643. NOTE TO KRISHNACHANDRA

February 12, 1945

Read about Grimm’s Law from the grammar book in the Library. Ask Pyarelal or Shriman.

A machine does not go wrong so soon. Learn to repair it.

is right.

It is not necessary to chew sugar-cane after seven days. If your body does not need it a twig of neem or babul should do for the teeth.

Come and sit with me. The best thing would be to come and sit when you do your spinning. Do have a talk about labour.

You must not fall ill.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4473

644. INTERVIEW TO GOVIND SAHAY

February 12, 1945

It is understood that Mahatma Gandhi was not able to give an opinion without proper investigation of allegations and without a definite proof. So he advises everyone to act according to his judgment. He said:

This may create some confusion but there is no harm.

The Hitavada, 13-2-1945

645. LETTER TO MAULANA SULEMAN NADVI

SEVAGRAM, WARDHA,
February 13, 1945

BHAI SAHEB,

A Conference of Hindustani Prachar Sabha will be held on February 26 and 27.1 I should like you to attend it and make your contribution towards finding a solution to the problem. I hope you

1 Member of A. I. C. C. who had sought Gandhiji’s advice regarding the attitude to be adopted towards the Communists

THE COLLECED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI will come. Inform me about the time and date of your arrival.

M. K. GANDHI

MAULANA SULEMAN NADAVI
SHIBLI MANZIL
AZAMGADH (U.P.)

From a photostat of the Urdu: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

646. TELEGRAM TO DINSHAW K. MEHTA

Express
February 14, 1945
DINSHAW MEHTA
CARE NATURECURE
POONA
COME ANY TIME.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

647. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

SEVAGRAM,
February 14, 1945

CHI. MUNNALAL,

A discussion was going on between Shakaribehn and you when I was in the bathroom. Both of you were talking at the top of your voices. Why? The discussion was between you two only, and was not meant for anybody else to hear. How can this be tolerated? You should try and somehow learn to exercise control over your voice. It is a matter of common sense how loudly one should talk on what occasion. Please bear in mind that others will do what you do. What you preach will be like so much writing on water.

You were to send me the dalia cooked at your place. Did you forget to do so, or was the dalia not good enough to send? Why not try to make ghensh or raab of jowar flour? Are you afraid that nobody will like it? Are all the people so fastidious?

Blessings from
BAPU

[PS]

I have still to write about one thing more. But that next time.

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 8464. Also C.W. 7184. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah
648. NOTE TO KRISHNACHANDRA

February 14, 1945

Sitting and talking with me would depend on your and other people’s convenience. Come any time you feel like it. Withdraw yourself when somebody wishes to be alone [with me].

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi; G.N. 4474

649. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

SEVAGRAM,
February 15, 1945

CHI. MUNNALAL,

I tasted the dalia. I had asked for a sample only from what was cooked in the kitchen. What was sent had been left in the cooker for two hours. It had puffed up but even then it tasted half-cooked. There were hard grains, and bran stuck in the mouth. I think we cannot cook dalia from jowar as we can from wheat. After the flour has been removed, no nutrient is left. The jowar, therefore, should be turned into fine flour and soaked in water, and then ghensh or raab should be prepared from it. Your reading of the Gita is too slow. This also is an art. You should read it faster.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 8463. Also C.W. 7185. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

650. NOTE TO KRISHNACHANDRA

February 15, 1945

You must write and tell me why the Paunar [programme] was postponed.
I think it is not auza but auz'. Find out from some Muslim friend studying there.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4475

1Presumably Gandhiji meant the expression wuzoo which means the ceremonial washing of hands and feet before offering namaz.
651. A NOTE

February 15, 1945

Celibacy is obligatory only for the inmates of the Ashram. It is not meant for others and it would not apply to servants. It should apply to Ram Prasad; he is not an inmate of the Ashram. Our Ashram is no more an ashram in the real sense. But wherever I stay becomes a kind of an ashram. I had even objected to calling it an ashram; but everybody started referring to it by that name and I acquiesced. This does not in any way mean that those who have taken the vow can break it.

BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: C.W. 5903. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

652. LETTER TO BALTHUSNA

February 15, 1945

BALTHUSNA,

I have your letter. I am sorry I cannot come. I cannot support Urdu or Hindi exclusively. I want them both to progress. Indeed I like them both. I hope you will understand.

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat of the Urdu: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

653. LETTER TO SIBTE HASAN

Sevagram,
“VIA” Wardha (C.P.),
February 15, 1945

Bhai Sibte Hasan,

I have your letter. I just cannot attend the Anjuman1. I cannot promote exclusively either Urdu or Hindi. I want both the languages to develop. But I certainly want that both should blend together. I

---

1 This was in reply to an invitation to attend a conference of Anjuman-i-Taraqqi Urdu which was to begin in Bombay on February 23. Later it was read out by Allama Kaifi at the Conference of All-India Hindustani Prachar Sabha on February 26.

2 Presumably, Anjuman Taraqqi-e-Urdu hope you have understood my viewpoint.

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat of the Urdu : Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy : Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

654. NOTE FOR ANJANA CHAUDHARY

[After February 15, 1945]

Write to her that Ram Narayan should make a confession in writing, exactly describing his role. If doing so invites greater punishment, he should accept it. That will be his atonement. But he should do it only if it is acceptable to his mind and heart.

Notwithstanding what is said above, if there is any legal loophole and he can be acquitted, he should take the opportunity. In his statement he should say that the statement is by way of atonement. If there is a legal escape, he will certainly be freed. The Government will not misinterpret his statement. Ram Narayan’s confession should not be taken to mean that because he admits his offence he should be detained or given stricter punishment. This cannot be done, at least legally.

From the Gujarati original : Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy : Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

655. SPEECH AT SEVAGRAM

February 15, 1945

Referring to the amount of one crore and twenty-four lakhs that had been collected, Gandhiji remarked that though he was impatient to speed up the work, he was not going to allow the Fund to be squandered away or loosely handled. It had been collected in the name of an illiterate and simple-hearted woman. He had his detractors, not so Ba. Therefore, the work done in her memory must be cent per cent honest. He

1 The addressee in her letter dated February 5, 1945, had mentioned that her husband, Ram Narayan Chaudhary, had in 1942 advised a student that sabotage activities would be in conformity with non-violence and had now discovered, after Gandhiji’s clarification of the matter, that he was mistaken. He was anxious to atone for the mistake.

2 Gandhiji Addressed the Secretaries of the Provincial Committees of the Kasturba Gandhi National Memorial Fund. did not care for numbers of workers. If he could find even two capable men or women in the meeting he would begin work with their help and expand it as more suitable workers came forward. So far as he was concerned he would like to exclude men altogether from the various Provincial Committees formed under the Trust and fill them with women. But he would not have them unless they were at least as capable if not better than men. Otherwise he would be exploiting them. He had never done so.
One crore and twenty-four lakhs was a mere drop in the ocean when distributed among seven lakhs of India’s villages. India was spending more than a crore a day on the war, but one crore and twenty-four lakhs for the service of women and children appeared a big sum in the eyes of everybody. That gave only a measure of the topsy turvydom to which they had got used.

Referring to the way in which the money was to be spent, Gandhiji divided it into three heads. The first in order was medical relief for women and children in the villages. From the schemes that had come everybody seemed to think in terms of maternity homes and free hospitals for women and children. He recognized the need of this kind of work but he frankly confessed that he had yet to feel his way to it. What kind of medical institutions they were to have and what system of medicine they were to adopt was a ticklish question. It was taxing his mind and he requested them all to give their serious attention to it. So far as he was concerned, “prevention is better than cure” was his motto. If he had his way he would make sanitation and hygiene work the principal activity under this head. It did not matter if in doing so they had to exclude a certain class of hard and difficult cases. Some of the patients might even die.
He could steel his heart to lose them. But it broke his heart to see even one healthyman fall sick. Our village folk must be taught to look after their health. The root causes were poverty and ignorance. In order of importance these two came first.

Education was to be along the lines of Nayee Talim. As a matter of fact, everything else was included in and was an essential part of Nayee Talim as he conceived its scope.

They had to better their economic condition through khadi and village industries. Today, the sole occupation of woman amongst us was supposed to be to bear children, cook for her husband and otherwise drudge for the household. This was a shame. Not only was woman condemned to domestic slavery, but when she went out as a labourer to earn wages, though she worked harder than the man, she was paid less.
Children were forced to go to work at an early age. Some of them worked often as much as the men but were paid even less than women. This state of affairs must be put an end to. He had received no scheme for this kind of work so far. The children in the villages began to earn at an early age. Their parents could not afford to send them to school and spend on their education like the city folk. Their education should fit them for some useful industry or other and it should help to put them on their legs.

The work outlined by him was original and difficult. There were very few men fit to carry it out. Many of them even lacked the desire to train themselves for it. Such men should not come on the Kasturba Gandhi National Memorial Fund Committees and if they were on them already they should resign and make way for others.
At the end, he invited questions but appealed to the audience to spare him as far as possible. His energy was limited. He observed silence, he told them, practically for the whole day these days from 3.15 a.m. to 8.15 p.m. He broke it for a short time during the meeting days.

A friend asked what should be considered the maximum population of a village. Gandhiji replied that for the present he would set the outside limit at 2,000. This was subject to adjustments later on. He knew an overwhelming majority of villages in India had a population between 500 and 1,000 or even less. He would like them to begin with the smallest village and then work upwards. He knew of some villages in Gujarat which were miniature towns. Rich towns folk had gone and settled there with their wealth. The money of the Fund was not to be spent on such villages.

Q. What means would you suggest for the economic-uplift of the villagers?

A. True all-round uplift of the villages cannot but result in their economic betterment. Except maternity work, all the other items outlined by me would directly result in their economic uplift as well.

Q. If you were in charge of a district how would you set about the work?

A. A district is too big a bite for me. If I can successfully organize work in one village I would be satisfied. It will serve as a model for the rest of the seven lakhs of villages to follow. We have not set about village work in right earnest so far. We have only tinkered with it here and there amateurishly. I myself was an amateur. But now we are determined to do better.

Q. Some people engage in constructive work only as a side line to their political work. The result is that they can do justice to neither. There should be proper supervision to prevent it.

A. I entirely agree that constructive work and political work should not be mixed. To me constructive work done properly is all sufficient. It leaves no necessity for any other programme. As for supervision, there is the old man who is your Secretary and the young woman, the Organizing Secretary of the Trust—I mean Thakkar Bapa and Mridulabehn.

Q. Today the Provincial Committees have an overwhelming majority of men. In how much time do you hope to be able to replace them by women?

A. I would, if I could, turn out all the men today and myself follow suit. But I would take women on their merit, not merely because they were women. If we could find suitable workers I would certainly wish to spend the money in our hands fairly fast. Anyway, I do hope and expect that by the time the present fund is expended, women would have become capable of managing their own affairs.

Q. If you do not find suitable women workers, why should not the Fund be used to train them up?

A. That is exactly our object and it is for that purpose that you are all here. But everything must be done in a way befitting the memory of her in whose name the Fund has been collected.

Q. What is to be done in a province like Sind where it is too unsafe for any woman to venture out and work in the villages?

A. So long as women do not come forward, it goes without saying that men have to work in their place. But I have no doubt that you should be able to find women to go to work in the villages. Muslim women at any rate should have nothing to fear in Sind. Anyway the worst that can happen to a woman is that she might lose her life. I am convinced that no one can molest a woman if she has the determination and will to resist and is not afraid of dying. I know of a young missionary girl who went all alone in the midst of Negroes in the wilds of Africa. Yet she was not afraid and no one ever cast an evil eye on her. We have such women amongst us also. One of them was with me only two days ago. She went to Dacca all alone when Hindus and Muslims had run amok. No one dared to touch her. To enable women to shed their cowardice and to face danger undaunted should in fact be one of the results of our activity under the Kasturba Gandhi National Memorial Fund scheme.

Q. If we take up work just in one village the pressure of the surrounding area would swamp our work. We can’t make any headway unless we tackle the whole area at once.

A. My experience is different. If we put off taking a necessary step till everyone else is ready for it we shall never make a move on. We must have the courage to take the plunge even if we are all alone. There are certain difficulties in the way but we have to overcome them. Many of the difficulties that deter us are imaginary. For instance, no one hinders my work here in Sevagram.

If I can only move the hearts of the people of Sevagram that is all that I need to do. If we cannot succeed in one village we cannot possibly do so in a hundred. Even if we can get a certain law passed by the State, who is going to enforce it in the villages unless there is awakening among the people themselves. For that we have to begin with one village and then extend our field farther and farther.

Q. Those that are already doing constructive work are being drafted for work under the Kasturba Gandhi National Memorial Fund. There are no new workers forthcoming. In order to do justice to the Kasturba Gandhi National Memorial Fund work those who take up work under the Trust should not be burdened with other preoccupations.
A. It is true that for many years we have not been able to draw sufficient fresh workers but Mridulabehn tells me that there is no dearth of women workers, if only the men folk remove the stranglehold. I have told her that I would take her side and help her to produce as many women workers as she can.

Q. Many people who have collected large amounts for the Fund or have contributed substantially to it want to be included in the Provincial Committees. Should we take them on?

A. The golden rule is that collecting money or contributing money should neither qualify nor disqualify a man from becoming a member of the Provincial Committee if he is otherwise fitted for it. But if anyone thinks that he has a right to be on the committee because of what he has contributed or collected, such a claim cannot be entertained and he should be excluded. We must not have unwieldy bodies and we must not draw men who are already engaged in one sphere of work into another. There are some men who are good at parliamentary work. I would not like them to be stigmatized for it. But if they leave it for something for which they have no aptitude merely because it is the fashion of the hour, I would take them to task for it just as I would take them to task if they sought to advance their parliamentary ambitions under cover of constructive work.

Q. The custom of slavery of women is still prevalent in some States. Can’t the Fund be used to do something for them? Anyone who tries to help these women is clapped into prison under trumped-up charges.

A. Send these women to me and I shall look after them. They can all perform an exodus from the States where their elementary rights are denied.

The Hitavada, 20-2-1945

656. LETTER TO MRIDULA SARABHAI

February 16, 1945

CHI. MRIDULA,

Since I have nothing to say now, I wish to take advantage of the freedom I have secured. Tomorrow we shall be meeting at Sevagram, shan’t we? My presence in Durgabehn’s room between 3 and 4.30 should be sufficient. But if Bapa and others wish something else, please let me know. The Mandal can meet for a longer time and carry on routine business.

Blessings from

BAPU

From the original: C.W. 11231. Courtesy: Sarabhai Foundation
657. LETTER TO LAKSHMINARAYAN

SEVAGRAM,
February 16, 1945

Bhai Lakshmi Babu,

We cannot accept even one of the three conditions even though we concede that the speech was provocative. The constructive programme of today has nothing to do with any movement such as that of 1942. Even if we are opposed to the violent activities of Shri Jayaprakash, we cannot accept any of the three conditions. In other words, we shall not get those things done by coercion. If freedom of India is common cause between us and the Government, why this discrimination? The truth of the matter is that the Bihar government has committed a mistake in arresting people\(^1\) and instead of admitting the mistake, it wants to throw the responsibility on us. We shall not accept that responsibility even if they destroy us. Even if they seek to prevent us from carrying on our peaceful work, we shall march ahead.

Blessings from

Bapu

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

658. LETTER TO BALVANT SINHA

February 16, 1945

Chh. Balvant Sinha,

I am not going to Delhi. I shall have to go to Bombay, and that too towards the end of March.

Blessings from

Bapu

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 1952

---

\(^1\) Vide “Statement to the Press”, 17-2-1945.
659. NOTE TO KRISHNACHANDRA

February 16, 1945

(1) Do not give up your work among the children. It will be a test of your understanding of Nayee Talim

(2) You are not dull but slow. The reason evidently is that you have not done much thinking or useful reading. You have to come out of yourself, and get immersed in your work. That is to say, you must put in the reading required to attain perfection in it.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4476

660. LETTER TO SHARDA G. CHOKHAWALA

SEVAGRAM,
February 17, 1945

CHI. BABUDI,

I read Gordhandas’s letter. Since Anand is very ill Shakaribehn is going there. She has been crying. Let her come. I do hope that Anand will get well. Neither you nor Gordhandas should worry.

Blessings from

BAPU

From the Gujarati original: C.W. 10053. Courtesy: Sharda G. Chokhawala

661. NOTE TO KRISHNACHANDRA

February 17, 1945

When it is closely woven, it is beautiful. And then it is straight.
The first roll is not normally straight and is close in some places and loose in other places, because the cross threads are not straight and even.

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4477
WARDHA,

February 17, 1945

I have delayed giving my opinion on the Bihar Government’s challenge to Congress workers in the hope that the storm was an isolated mistake and that it will correct itself. I find I was mistaken. On top of the happenings in Bihar comes news that Shri Purushottamdas Tandon has been rearrested. The workers in Bihar are well known, and of them one is an ex-Prime Minister and another is ex-Finance Minister. Tandonji is the Speaker of the U. P. Assembly. Now comes news that Shri Gopabandhu Chowdhury of Orissa, equally well known too, has been rearrested.

This is one picture. The other is, the Viceroy holds talks with Sjt. Bhulabhai Desai. The air is thick with rumours of big changes. The rumour hardly squares with the news I have summarized and which the public knows already.

Congressmen in Bihar were busy devising concerted measures to give effect to the fifteen-point constructive programme sketched by me and in a manner suggested by me when the principal men were arrested though the programme has no political flavour, using the term politics in its understood sense. I have not hesitated to say that the universal adoption in practice in India of the programme must lead to the attainment of complete independence without either civil non-violent disobedience or even a parliamentary programme. There would then be no necessity for either. The British would not find it worth while to stay in India to rule. They would stay, if they do, as full citizens. In the language of 1942, as rulers they would quit India; for their soldiers would be without occupation, their huge industries without use. That day may not come, but it should be the non-violent soldier’s dream which he must try daily to realize and if in its pursuit he is thwarted, he has his non-violent resistance to fall back upon, otherwise called civil disobedience and non-co-operation. Mass civil disobedience is nobody’s responsibility except, as yet, mine. It was not offered in 1942. Nobody who has not permeated the masses can shoulder it. Indeed, the masses simply will not move. That is my conviction based on the experience I have gained. Hitherto the action in Bihar is defended on the ground of an alleged speech by Shri Prajapati Mishra. The text of that speech has been suppressed.

---

1 On January 28, 1945, the Bihar Government interned Srikrishna Sinha, ex-Premier, Bihar, Anugraha Narayan Sinha, ex-Finance Minister, Prof. Abdul Bari, Dy. Speaker, Bihar Legislative Assembly, Murli Manohar Prasad, Editor, Searchlight, and Prajapati Mishra on the charge of open preparation for another struggle.

There is no question of his or any Congressman making exciting speeches in the prosecution of the constructive programme or about non-violent resistance or much less about resorting to violence or even approving of it. That there is no plan under the present conditions to offer any form of mass civil disobedience has been clearly stated by me and I know that Congressmen all over the country are acting on the advice I have offered. But abstention even from referring to the theoretical possibility of resistance and the like cannot be forced or even made a condition of prosecuting the constructive programme. It has undoubtedly independence—political, social and economic—as its aim. It is a moral non-violent revolution in all the departments of life of a big nation, at the end of which caste and untouchability and such other superstitions must vanish, differences between Hindu and Muslim must become things of the past, enmity against Englishmen or Europeans must be wholly forgotten and Princes and capitalists must live as perfect friends with the whole mass of India as the real and legal trustees of the people for all the wealth they may possess. Is there anything wrong in the attempt? What are Government protestations about Indian independence if they will not tolerate the movement I have sketched except on conditions impossible of acceptance? Are they not satisfied with the extraordinary power they possess? Must they keep without trial the best known as well as the least known Indians in their custody, lest the latter should preach independence from one end of the country to the other and non-violent acts in pursuit thereof? Must they rearrest released persons the moment they speak and act as free men, if their speech or act does not please the authority?

Another painful experience I am undergoing which I must share with the public is the number of reports of assault and torture resorted to for purposes of extorting confessions from prisoners. Some cases are already before the public, such as the notable one at Kolhapur.¹ Many other instances of comparatively recent occurrence have been brought to my notice. One particular case I have in mind related to a young lad who, on my advice, gave himself up to the police because he had been wanted. If some of the reports that one hears are not well founded, I am satisfied several others are perfectly genuine. Is it not time this practice of torture and ill-treatment of people held in captivity is firmly discountenanced and put an end to by the powers that be?

¹ It was alleged that Kashibai Hanbar was stripped and tortured by a police officer of Kolhapur State to extract information about her son who was declared a political absconder.

In August 1942, instead of needlessly precipitating a quarrel with the people, if the authority had listened to the pleading of the Congress, India would have enjoyed independence and the war would have already ended with honour for the Allies and happiness for the suppressed peoples of the earth. That is my retrospection. If things go on as they are doing in India, the victory that the Allies will have will be only so called, because they will also have India and other nations in the same plight bleeding at their feet. Such a victory can only lead in the near future to a bloodier war if possible than the one that will have closed. For, as I have said elsewhere, victory won at the expense of India will mean that, out of the ashes of Fascism, Nazism and Japanese militarism will have risen a new monster that will seek to eat all it sees and in the attempt will be eaten up, leaving I know not what.

It has given me no pleasure to pen this statement. There is much more I can say but I shall say no more for the present.

_The Hindu_, 19-2-1945

663. FOREWORD TO “AMARAN BA”

Narahari Parikh is one of those who joined the Satyagraha Ashram when it was first founded at Kochrab. Whatever, therefore, Chi. Vanamala has learnt, she has learnt at the Ashram. She is untouched by any Government school and the education imparted there. It can therefore be said that she knows how to work hard. She has however gone out to collect material for Kasturba’s biography. In this she has also secured contributions from others. Up to the time of writing I have not been able to look at these. It was Chi. Vanamala’s wish that I should go through what she has written. Poor girl, she would write about Kasturba but how could she forget me, with whom she romped around and played as a child? I see she has painstakingly collected her facts and ordered them neatly. Her language is homely and simple. I see no artificiality in it. Whether Chi. Vanamala has been successful in this her first effort is solely for the readers to judge.

Chi. Sushilabehn, sister of Chi. Pyarelal, has written about Ba’s

---

1 This is also available as a draft under C.W. 3069 and G.N. 5946 under the date December 3, 1944, and bears the following note by Gandhiji: “I have not revised the above. This should be sent only if Narahari passes it. In any case Vanamala must pass it.”
experiences in jail. Chi. Vanamala thought of taking something from this. But on reading Sushilabehn’s account she found that Sushilabehn’s writing had a natural flow which she could not disturb. The original is in Hindi and its Gujarati translation is reproduced in this collection. Sushilabehn after all holds a doctor’s degree. She has besides an interest in vocal and instrumental music, painting and literature. She takes interest in public affairs too. The late Mahadev noticed these qualities of her and took a keen interest in them. But he has departed from us. His life is ended. Readers should keep this in mind when they read Sushilabehn’s article.

So much for the authors.

But they both assert that if I myself do not say something about Ba the work will remain incomplete. Since I am writing this foreword to the book perhaps it will be appropriate if I say something about Ba. I certainly intend to write more fully about Ba when I have the time. Here I shall only answer the question, if I can, why Ba was able to attract people to her. Ba’s chief virtue was her voluntary identification of herself with me. I did not draw her forth. The quality blossomed in Ba on its own when the time came. I never knew that Ba had this thing hidden in her. My earlier experience showed her a very stubborn person. If I tried to compel her in any way she would do exactly what she herself wanted. This led to bitterness between us—short or prolonged. But as my public life gradually developed, Ba blossomed more and more and freely merged herself in me, that is, in my work. In time no distinction remained between me and my work—which was service. Ba too became one with that work. This quality perhaps most naturally arises from the Indian soil. At least that seems to me the chief reason for Ba’s sentiments.

The reason why this virtue reached its pinnacle in Ba is to be found in our brahmacharya. It came more naturally to Ba than to me. In the beginning Ba was not even aware of it. The idea came to me and Ba took it up and made it her own. In the result the relationship between us was as one between true friends. Since 1906—in fact since 1901—all the time Ba was with me, she had nothing outside of my work. She could have lived apart. There would have been no difficulty in her living apart from me. But being a friend she yet considered it her duty as a woman and a wife to merge herself in my work. Ba gave the paramount place to the service of my person and till death never ceased from the task of attending on me.

M. K. GANDHI

SEVAGRAM, February 18, 1945

[From Gujarati]

THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
664. LETTER TO ARUN CHANDRA GUHA

February 18, 1945

DEAR FRIEND,

I duly received a khadi chadar\(^1\) whose yarn was spun by you. For this many thanks.

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat: G.N. 8672

665. LETTER TO SUMITRA GANDHI

SEVAGRAM,
February 18, 1945

CHI. SUMI,

I will not say that you wrote the letter; Nimu did it because you wrote it at her instance. What is the point in writing a letter unless you are prompted by the heart? If you are happy why should I need any letters from you? When I get the urge I shall write to you without waiting for a letter from you.

Blessings from

BAPU

SUMITRA GANDHI

PILANI

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

666. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

SEVAGRAM,
February 18, 1945

CHI. MUNNALAL,

I got your note today. I tasted the wheat [dalia]. I find a great difference between wheat and jowar [dalia]. I stick to what I have said about the latter. The wheat dalia didn’t seem half cooked. You may certainly add jaggery to jowar ghensh or raab. The jaggery should be added only after the ghensh or the raab is ready and is being removed from the fire.

\(^1\) Shawl

I follow what you say about the Gita. If you do not know the rules about where the stress should fall, learn them from somebody. Pyarelal and Sushila know them. For correct pronunciation, it is absolutely necessary to learn to read fast. Without that the tongue does not move smoothly. Don’t suppose that your voice can never improve. If you don’t know the story about Demosthenes, ask Pyarelal. If you do not follow it, ask me.

About rotlis it is like this. One great disadvantage of folding them is that they do not then require to be properly chewed. Crisp rotlis are preferable. It should be made a regular practice to serve a fixed quantity to everybody.

Blessings from BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 8461. Also C.W. 5569. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

667. NOTE TO DINSHAW K. MEHTA¹

[February 18, 1945]²

We are sure to meet in April. Ask Gulbehn³ to continue to write till then. Kisses to Ardeshir.

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 8461. Also C.W. 5569. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

668. LETTER TO BABA MOGHE

SEVAGRAM,

February 18, 1945

Bhai Baba,

I have just read your letter. In my view your decision is faulty. In my view it would be wrong for you to go to Khandesh now. Your duty is to improve your body. If the body is the temple of God it is sacred. Spinning should not be taken literally; its implications should ¹ This is written in the margin to the letter to Munnalal G. Shah dated February 18; vide the preceding item. From the contents it is obvious that this must have been addressed to Dinshaw K. Mehta.

² Ibid

³ Addressee’s wife be understood. This is my view. If this does not appeal to you, you are entitled to your view.

What I said on your return was only a joke.

Blessings from

BAPU

C/o PRABHAKAR

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 9020

669. LETTER TO J. C. KUMARAPPA

SEVAGRAM,
February 19, 1945

MY DEAR KU.,

You can have the meeting on the date mentioned. I have not commenced the foreword or whatever you call it. I will return the book as soon as I am ready. It is good you have not to go to Bombay in March.

Love.

BAPU

From a photostat: G.N. 10171
670. LETTER TO GULZARILAL NANDA

Sevagram,
February 19, 1945

Shri Gultarilal,

I can say that I have carefully read your letter to Narahari and the papers enclosed with it.

The English pamphlet contains comments and suggestions. Go through it. Revise where necessary. Reject anything I say if it does not appeal to your heart or mind.

How and when did the system of arbitration come to be discontinued? However it be, if it is necessary to fight for it, you must do so. Estimate your strength. Consult Dada Mavalankar about it. Maybe you have already done that. If you want I am prepared to write about this to Kasturbhai and the other mill-owners.

I understood that the necessary figure was reached with the release of Profullu Babu.

My health is not so bad that I cannot attend to the urgent work that daily comes up. It is true that I continue to observe silence. I do most of my work through writing. It is no trouble.

I hope you are well. How are Shankerlal and Anasuyabehn?

Blessings from

Bapu

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

671. LETTER TO KANTA R. VYAS

February 19, 1945

Kanta Ramprasad Vyas

I think of you often. Only today I have come to know that you have not been keeping good health. I did not like letting you leave this place but I was helpless. May God protect you and your child. Write to me.

Blessings from

Bapu

Kanta Ramprasad Vyas
Dhodh

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Kasturbhai Lalbhai of the Lalbhai Group of Mills
672. LETTER TO BALBHADRA

Sevagram,
February 19, 1945

Bhai Balbhadra,

I have your postcard. It is good that you wrote. Of course Satyavatibehn has my blessings. Let us see what happens now. Keep me informed. Chand is well.

Blessings from
Bapu

Balbhadra
6 Pyarelal Building
Kashmiri Gate
Delhi

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

673. INTERVIEW TO N.W.F.P. DEPUTATION

[February 19, 1945]

Gandhiji told the deputation that whatever might be the case with other provinces, he was firmly of opinion that in the Frontier Province Congressmen should form an alternative Ministry if the no-confidence motion was successful. They could make their full contribution to the struggle for freedom without creating a deadlock. He would have asked them—and all Congressmen—to withdraw from the Assembly and resort to total non-co-operation if they had made greater progress in non-violence than he judged they had. As things stood, such a course was fraught with grave risk. There was no atmosphere for it. They could, therefore, go ahead with the no-confidence motion and form a Congress Ministry.

---

1 A deputation from the Frontier Province, headed by Mehar Chand Khanna, came to Sevagram and told Gandhiji that a majority of the members were ready to support a no-confidence motion against the Aurangzeb Khan Ministry. The Governor had promised that he would allow the no-confidence motion to be brought in if Dr. Khan Saheb was prepared to form an alternative Ministry.

2 From The Hindu, 21-2-1945
674. TELEGRAM TO AMTUSSALAAM

Express
February 20, 1945
AMTULSAAM
KASTURBA SEVA MANDIR
BARKANTHA BLESSINGS.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

675. LETTER TO C. RAJAGOPALACHARI

SEVAGRAM,
February 20, 1945

MY DEAR C. R.,
As D.¹ is going to you I send you this love letter. With this intention I went to the bathroom and P. put yours in my hands. I know you thoroughly. I know you are not touched by what the crowd says or does not about you. We two must go on as we are till we see alike. That is what real love demands. Keep well.
Love.

BAPU

From a photostat: G.N. 2101

676. LETTER TO LAJ RALLIA RAM

SEVAGRAM,
February 20, 1945

MY DEAR LAJ,
I was pleased to have your letter. Are you the daughter of the Rallia Ram I know? You have made a fine choice or has Yunus? I know about Mehrtaj². I am glad Yunus is with Badshah Khan³. I am writing to Yunus.
Love.

BAPU

KUMARI LAJ RALLIA RAM
5 MASSON RD.
LAHORE

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Devdas Gandhi
² Daughter of Abdul Ghaffar Khan
³ Abdul Ghaffar Khan
677. LETTER TO MOHAMMAD YUNUS

SEVAGRAM,
February 20, 1945

MY DEAR YUNUS,

This is to greet you and to express my pleasure at your engagement. Laj writes to me about you and Mehrtaj. Hope you are well and so is Badshah Khan. Do come when you are married, i.e., when you are free.

Love.

BAPU

MOHAMMAD YUNUS
CENTRAL JAIL
HARIPUR
HAZARA

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

678. LETTER TO BHULABHAI J. DESAI

SEVAGRAM,
February 20, 1945

BHAI BHULABHAI,

Devdas has talked to me fully. He will report to you in detail. Liaquat Saheb’s performances and things going on in the country frighten me.¹ They should frighten you too. Do what is just and proper. It does not matter if the thing fizzles out.² Once the consent of the Working Committee is obtained, the form you want to give it shall be all right. Your English should harmonize with my Gujarati. Don’t you agree?

Blessings from

BAPU

From the Gujarati original: Bhulabhai Desai Papers. Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library

² Earlier, Gandhiji had remarked in the course of his talks with a friend: “Arrests have again started and that is a bad sign. Bhulabhai must take a firm line and tell the Viceroy that this will not do.”
679. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

SEVAGRAM,
February 20, 1945

CHI. NARANDAS.

Your statement is good. Yes, organize a camp. Everybody must pay the full amount, and that in advance. That is what was done here. Those who cannot pay may not come. Don’t mind that. If such persons have influence with anybody in their areas, the latter may send the money. If you permit outsiders to join, they will feel uncomfortable. If any such persons turn up though not invited through a notice, consider at that time what to do. You have not sent the conditions, etc., to be fulfilled by the candidates. I should like to see them. Bhai Kher1 is undoubtedly a priceless jewel. If your body cannot stand the strain do not take a leading part.

Prabhu2 still keeps indifferent health. He is going to Nagpur tomorrow to get himself examined. He should, therefore, be spared at present. Kanaiyo3 is busy trying to finish his own work. The speeches made are to be printed. I have also suggested to him that he should take charge of the kitchen here. He will be involved in that, too. It will, therefore, be difficult for him to go there in the immediate future. If a camp is started, I assume that Khersaheb will spend a month there. Show the statement to him before printing it.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./II. Also C.W. 8619. Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi

680. LETTER TO KANTILAL GANDHI

SEVAGRAM,
February 20, 1945

CHI. KANTI,

I got your letter. You should follow my advice. I had not expected that the expenses incurred on you and Lilavati would come

1 B. G. Kher, ex-Premier of Bombay
2 Addressee’s nephew Prabhudas Gandhi
3 Addressee’s son Kanu Gandhi to as much as they do.¹ But what even if I had known? I am confident that you will prove your worth. If you do I shall be happy.

There are many other instances like the two you have mentioned. There is no limit to my disappointments. But “a ray of immortal hope lies hidden among hundreds and thousands of disappointments”.² And so I am still sanguine in spite of the disappointments. There may be more in store.

Whether or not what you write about Kanu and Narayan is correct, only experience will show. I don’t cling to that hope, either. What if they too decide to go in for modern education? I am prepared for all that. It will be enough for me if I myself am not carried away. Go on doing your work without worrying. If Kanu wishes to go there, I am certainly not going to stop him. Blessings to you all.

Blessings from
BAPU

[PS]
Ramachandran’s mother has come. Sundaram too is here. Tomorrow they will all leave.

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 7371. Courtesy: Kantilal Gandhi

681. LETTER TO RAMDAS GANDHI

SEVAGRAM,
February 20, 1945

CHI. RAMDAS,

The enclosed letter is for all of you to see and then pass on to Sumi. How well written it is! Sita is making progress.

I have a letter from Sumi but I regard it as one from Nimu because although in Sumi’s hand it was written at Nimu’s instance.¹ Sumi is bound to me by a promise. But being a child she has forgotten about it. I have not a minute to spare or I should have written separately to her. I have Kanam’s letter. I don’t have the time to write to him separately. Dr. Mahmud has fever. Kanam should write to him.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ The two had taken up a university course in medicine.
² A quotation from Manibhai Nabubhai Dwivedi
682. LETTER TO DINSHAW K. MEHTA

SEVAGRAM,
February 20, 1945

CHI. DINSHAW.

Of course I could see your unhappiness. But Sushilabehn made me realize that you were even more unhappy than I had thought. There is no cause for it. Nothing has been spoilt. The matter has been talked out, which is only to the good. We have got to look for the land. All that has happened is that the matter has been somewhat delayed. We are meeting in Bombay. If our talks there are doomed to break down let it be so. We don’t want to keep anyone by force. And would a forced association bring credit? It is a stupendous task. I am not at all scared even though it is mainly my work. What you have created will of course go on. I am not so much interested in it. But I am certainly interested in what is being done in Andhra, because it is like village work. Now I learn that even that has defects. But if the finding is correct it is a great discovery. I don’t like your drawing conclusions so hastily. If you persist in it you will not be able to achieve anything great. Certainly you will not be able to serve the villages.

Please bear in mind that as from today you are in possession of the Sevagram land. It is not to be thrown away. That experiment is to be conducted directly under my supervision. You should understand the work being done and bring credit to it. Only then can you be said to have made an advance. However, for this you will have to take to simplicity.

I think the Bangalore venture is no good. We must not break up our establishment in Poona. It is impossible to build up in Bangalore without breaking up in Poona. Gulbai must write to me.

Blessings from

BAPU

DR. DINSHAW MEHTA
TODDYWALLAH ROAD
POONA

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
683. LETTER TO P. C. GHOSH

SEVAGRAM,
February 20, 1945

CHI. PROFULLA.

I have your letter. Get well. I shall not send for Bibi A[mtul] S[alaam] unless you all relieve her. It is your duty not to detain her longer than it is necessary.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

684. LETTER TO MAHADEV A. HINGORANI

February 20, 1945

CHI. MAHADEV.

I was glad to read your letter. There are some mistakes in it. Never mind. It is not प्रेम but प्रेम ¹ and not भक्त but सेहत ². It is good to read Jap Saheb ³ at night. I have seen your photograph. I wrote my blessing on it too.

Blessings from
BAPU

[PS]

Your legs have no muscles. Do some exercise. You seem to be weak.

From a microfilm of the Hindi. Courtesy: National Archives of India and Anand T. Hingorani

¹ Examination
² Health
³ The introductory chapter of Japji, a Sikh scripture, which is a condensation of the Granth Saheb
685. LETTER TO AMTUSSALAAM

SEVAGRAM,
February 20, 1945

DAUGHTER A. S.,

Your letter. I am sending the telegram. Sir Nazimuddin is quite right, isn’t he, when he says that he will carry out the orders of those above him.\(^1\) Whatever has been left out is immaterial, because there is no room for it now. It is for him to say: “Gandhi is my friend and I want to invite him. Will there be any objection from your side? If he goes to Midnapur or Chittagong, I shall let him go.” This is how he should put the matter.

You have to be there for the time being. Come here when things there are cleared up. Speak to Bhagirathji and P. Babu\(^2\). You can think of leaving Bengal only when they permit.

I cannot write to Kanchan today.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 491

686. LETTER TO CHANDI PRASAD VAIDYA

SEVAGRAM,
February 20, 1945

BHAI CHANDIPRASAD,

Chi. Balkrishna showed me your letter. He is getting a bit fed up with milk. He fasted. He will perhaps lose some weight also. Come if you have faith. B. K. is going on with it. He takes 7 lb. Of milk. Also a few dates. Chi. Hari-ichchha’s condition has deteriorated. The treatment has brought no improvement. Now I am sending her to Nagpur for artificial pneumothorax. It would have been better if I had sent her earlier.

Blessings from

BAPU

VAIKYARAJ CHANDIPRASAD
BIRLA MANDIR
NEW DELHI

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

\(^1\) Vide “Letter to Syed Mahmud”, 22-1-1945.
\(^2\) Profulla Chandra Ghosh
687. NOTE TO KRISHNACHANDRA

February 20, 1945

Shall I talk it over with Shantabehn? You did well in speaking out frankly.

I do not wish to drag you into the management of the Ashram. Carry on the work you are doing.

Do not simply glance through books. Think rather of what you can get out of them.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4478

688. LETTER TO SHRIRAM PODDAR

SEVAGRAM,
February 20, 1945

CHI. SHRIRAM¹,

Your letter is clear enough.

Should I ask a person who is fond of drinking to drink? I shall not suggest what you should do. Do what your heart prompts you to do. Do not listen to your father, or to me or to anyone else. Follow only the promptings of your heart. Perhaps in that alone lies your good.

It is not at all necessary for you to come here. I shall however say that when even the educated are resorting to artificial therapy who is going to find fault with you?

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: C.W. 812

689. TALK WITH DEVDAS GANDHI

SEVAGRAM,
February 20, 1945

I told Bapu that Sjt. Bhulabhai has received his letter regarding consultations with the Working Committee members. I drew his attention to the fact that the above was there in his Gujarati draft, but was not there in Bhulabhai’s latest English draft. Bapu said that the Gujarati draft only could be considered correct because the English version followed as an explanatory one.

¹ Son of Rameshwardas Poddar
² As reported by Devdas, Gandhiji’s fourth and youngest son
However Bapu’s independent opinion was that to meet and consult the Working Committee should be considered as an inevitable condition to act upon.

QUESTION: But if the new government releases the Working Committee immediately and at that time if the Working Committee is free to give its independent opinion, and at present as prisoners if they don’t give any opinion, will it not be more beneficial?

ANSWER: No. In that case Bhulabhai will not be able to carry public opinion with him. And also it will not be fair to the Working Committee.

Q. If it is possible to meet the Working Committee, will you accompany Bhulabhai or not?

A. If Bhulabhai wishes so, I am prepared to go with him.

Q. Will you try to persuade the Working Committee to accept this plan?

A. Yes.

Q. What are your arguments in favour of this plan?

A. If the League is prepared to work together with the Congress in any way it is desirable. After the Bombay talks, Jinnah has told many people that Gandhi did not even mention about the interim government. Bhulabhai’s efforts are in themselves a reply to him. But if the intentions of the League are not genuine, nothing will come out. I am surprised at the statement of Jinnah and Liaquat Khan. In case Liaquat Khan has not even asked Jinnah, then it is a question how far we can rely on Liaquat’s talks. Arrests have again started and that is a bad sign. Now Bhulabhai must talk in a firm tone and tell the Viceroy that this will not do.

Q. Do we keep aside the question of the Viceroy’s veto?

A. Bhulabhai says that it is a question of procedure and I have accepted it. However, it means that the Government will not act with Viceroy’s veto against the vote of the Assembly.

Q. But if the Viceroy uses his veto and function?

A. In that case there will be an understanding between Bhulabhai and Liaquat that the Government will resign. Even now this fact must be made perfectly clear between them.

Q. On the basis of 4-4-2 will you even include the nationalist Muslims amongst the four of the Congress?

A. No. But Bhulabhai should tell Liaquat that amongst his four he should take nationalist Muslims.

Q. Hindu Mahasabha?

A. Viceroy will create Hindu Mahasabha and other such parties. But we are not accepting them. There are two parties—Congress and League. Sikhs and Harijans, we have accepted as a concession.

Q. Can we include persons like Shyamaprasad Mukherji amongst the four?
A. If Bhulabhai wants to take them, then I would not raise any objection.

Q. If previous consultation with the Working Committee which is in jail is essential, then why should not the Working Committee members in jail form the Government?

A. That time has not yet come. At present the talk is only limited to Assembly members.

Q. But what about the Whites?

A. The white, black, all-only those who are appointed by the Congress and League can come, except the Commander-in-Chief. Others will be responsible to them.

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

690. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

February 21, 1945

CHI. MUNNALAL,

The programme on the 22nd must be carried out. They have already consulted me. The Gita and spinning in the morning is the right thing, also the Ramayana. I have never believed, let alone saying, any such thing about Kanchan as you attribute to me. I did explain to you what I believed, and you have also accepted its truth. Kanchan told Sushilabehn that she wants to live with you and have children. I asked her on the very day she left and my impression is that she admitted that it was so. If this is true, what you write is not correct. My own view is that after having slept in the same bed with me once it was wrong to discontinue it through ignorance. I did not know who forbade her. I spoke neither to you nor to her about this. I am mentioning this for the first time to you. This is all I wish to say. My experiment, as you know, has been suspended. If any woman comes to me now, she will do so not for the sake of my experiment but in order to receive from me the spiritual strength I possess. I think I have such strength, though I am not sure whether I am right or wrong in my belief. I have no fear at all that I may take unworthy advantage of anybody or violate my cherished vow.

You are wrong in believing that you are gaining nothing here. But if such be your belief, now or later you must leave the Ashram.

To depend on servants for anything will be the fall of you both. But we may engage for service a person whom we look upon as a brother or sister, with the object of helping him or her to advance in

1 Kasturba Gandhi’s death anniversary life. If he or she leaves us, we should do without him or her and carry on our work as best as we can. I should welcome such a situation for myself. We would then have neither money nor so-called servants, but that would be a real test for us. I have already been tested in this manner. I have been discussing this with Kanubhai and trying to tempt him. If he can give us the benefit of his recent experience and do something for us, all of you should welcome it.

I understand about the dalia. If you send some, I will examine it. I am still of the view that jowar grain should not be ground coarse and flour removed.

I think I have now said practically everything I wished to say. Nor have I the time for more. If there is anything left out remind me.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 5833. Courtesy: Munjalal G. Shah

691. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA
February 21, 1945

CHI. KRISHNACHANDRA,

I did not talk to Shantabehn. I shall do so now for your sake. It is as well that while living in the Ashram we do not get involved in troubles. Do participate in the discussions. You have to do many other things for the Ashram,

Do not buy books as long as you can manage with the books from the Library. If books have to be bought it is another matter. About the children we shall see.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4479
692. LETTER TO CHIMANLAL N. SHAH

February 22, 1945

CHI. CHIMANLAL,

From tomorrow morning I intend to stay for five days at Madalasa’s place. May I go? Ask Munnalal, B. and others.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10617

693. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

February 22, 1945

CHI. MUNNALAL,

I understand about Kanchan. My judgment approves of her opposition. For you have observed no limit in harassing her and now you yourself tell her that from the social point of view your reason does not approve of the thing. Kanchan is bound to interpret that you are opposed. You also desire children, and that is why you cannot regard either yourself or Kanchan fit for brahmacharya. You have tested yourself much. I should advise you now to set up house-separately so that both of you can be happy. If you give up the thought of brahmacharya and live as a householder no harm will follow. If you wish later to observe abstinence, you will be able to do so. It seems to me that a separate establishment for you two and brahmacharya go ill together. However, do what your heart bids. Chi. Kanaiyo tells me that you like his suggestion. I have made a few suggestions. For two days he is going to Wardha. When Sushila comes from Nagpur, he will return here. Meanwhile, all of you may think things over. In my absence you are bound to be under less pressure.

I understand about servants. In this matter also you should regard my view only as a suggestion. You should do whatever all of you like and think. About newspapers, Ramprasad tells me that these days he himself gets them at half past one. It would be better if you discussed the matter further with him. If you can take charge of the newspapers, you may do so. I would not at all advise you, though, to take it up. However, have a talk with Pyarelal.

My desire to run away from here also has at the back of it the consideration of the convenience of you all. But we need not think about this matter. If it is to happen it will happen in the natural course. And then neither I nor you nor anybody else will be able to stop it.

Are you satisfied now?

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gajaran: C.W. 5831. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

694. NOTE TO SHRIPAD JOSHI

February 22, 1945

1. There is no need to make confessions to the Government or anybody. One should certainly confess to friends. If reparation can be made to those to whom damage was done, it should be made. The institution in which they work should be informed. In specific cases this advice can be modified.

2. I must say as to this I am doubtful. The above may be taken to apply here too.

3. They can carry on constructive work on the above condition. But if I am asked I shall still say that what they did was not right. It is purely a moral question.

4. I am afraid we cannot stop them. Of course it would be good if they kept out.

5. My answer is the same as above.

6. In a way it remains the duty of the Congress to secure their release.

7. The critics have not read my statement carefully. I have condemned the deeds not the doers. Violent acts have to be

---

1 The questions answered in this note were forwarded to Gandhiji by the addressee in his letter of February 11. The questions were, briefly, as follows: (1) Some constructive workers who had indulged in sabotage in 1942 have repented and taken up constructive work. Is it the duty of such workers to volunteer confessions to the police and be ready to accept punishment? Or should they confess only to their friends and acquaintances? (2) Some say they had been carried away into doing what they did and it is enough to regret it in their own hearts and get on with work. Will this not be deceiving you? (3) Some say they had acted in the belief that what they were doing was right and though the futility of it has become clear to them they see no reason for regretting what they did. Can such workers take up constructive work? (4) There are some people who have become too fond of violent activity. They think if and when the people are ready for it, it should be taken up. Since that is not so condemned. This should not be an obstacle to help being rendered to the concerned families.

8. How can I stop ridicule? The best way to stop it is to ignore it. If this is inadequate, ask again—but only if it seems inadequate even after repeated readings.

M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 5232

695. NOTE TO ANAND T. HINGORANI

SEVAGRAM,

February 22, 1945

(1) This pen belongs to Ba.¹
(2) I like it but the question is how I can do it.²
(3) For you and Sarojini.³ She too is unhappy.

From a microfilm of the Hindi. Courtesy: National Archives of India and Anand T. Hingorani

¹ The addressee explains that Gandhiji had selected one particular pen to autograph for him a photograph of himself and Kasturba Gandhi.
² The addressee had requested Gandhiji to translate into English the “Daily Thoughts” he wrote for him.
³ The reference is to an appointment for talks.
This day marks the end of a solar year since Ba’s departure from the earth. According to the lunar calendar, the anniversary fell on Mahashivaratri Day. This is no occasion for mourning. On the contrary, it should be celebrated with the same joy as a day of birth. I do not make much distinction between birth and death. The atman has neither birth nor death. We loved Ba’s atman which is immortal.

We spend days like this outwardly in religious rites. We had 24 hours’ non-stop spinning. To me it was a religious observance. At Balvant Sinha’s suggestion, we also have had the reading of the Ramayana which lasted throughout the day. In the morning we recited the Gita. But these outward acts do not satisfy us. We should go through these rites with full consciousness and understanding and invoke God. God is not somewhere up above or down below. He is in our hearts. In fact He is everywhere. When scientists say that they can create a vacuum, what they mean is that a vessel can be emptied of air but something still remains. Physical scientists have discovered that there is something subtler than air. Those with religious leanings realize that God is everywhere and is witness to all our acts.

Yesterday, I said that we must first wipe out our sins. There was a marriage celebration yesterday. Five minutes before [the function] I went to inspect the latrine. It smelled. I found excreta uncovered. Is this not a sign of our outer sin? We are guilty of a great error in keeping the latrine thus. We might have committed other sins as well. We have, therefore, to see that our latrines and kitchens are absolutely clean. We have to see that the kitchen runs smoothly; we must ask why we hurt one another, why the flies and mosquitoes breed. All these are indicative of our sin. I have not yet succeeded in finding out the cause of their growth but that does not absolve us of our sin.

On this sacred day we plied the charkha and observed many other religious ceremonies. Now the test, whether we deserve to undertake it or not, lies in the fact whether we observe cleanliness or not. You may not call it a sin, only a shortcoming. But to me the two are the same. We are punished for these sins not in the life to come but in this very life. Viewed thus, life becomes simple and full of joy.

\[1\] Vide “Speech at Sevagram”, 10-2-1945.
I had a letter from Kanti. He has mentioned what two learned persons said to him. One of them said that he did not consider spinning to be a religious duty. If he span, it was because it had become a convention to do so. It is obvious that spinning in imitation of others cannot be termed a religious act. Such spinning will not win us swaraj. We will win it only if we understand its science and appreciate its potentiality. Spinners who spin imitatively and therefore mechanically should not be found, of all places, in the Ashram. Everyone here does not ply the charkha and I put up with it. I cannot forbid those who spin just because others do. But I may as well tell them that this is not going to help them achieve their aim.

The other learned person said that he did not believe in prayer. It is not his fault. The blame lies with us, for we, who believe in prayer, do not make our prayers manifest in our lives and actions. He has warned that those who have gathered round me are not all genuine believers and that I am doomed to despair. But I do not find any particular signs of despair in me. I do my duty and speak of it to others. But if they do not care to act on it, it does not affect me. This learned friend gives discourses on the Gita, attends the prayer but he does so only because it is a convention.

If one’s mind wanders during prayer and does not lose itself in meditation, it is clear that one does not fully participate in prayer not withstanding the physical presence. There is in that case a conflict between the body and the mind in which the mind is the winner. What I mean to say is that if we consider this to be a sacred day then we must with all our heart do all we can in the name of an old woman who, though unlettered, was an embodiment of purity. Let all our actions be sincere.

[From Hindi]
Bapuki Chhayamen, pp. 360-2

697. TELEGOM TO V. S. SRINIVASA SASTRI
February [23]1, 1945

RT. HON. SASTRIAR
SWAGATAM
MYLAPORE, MADRAS
YOUR JAGADISAN’S2 POSTCARDS. THANK GOD YOUR RECOVERY. MUST KEEP YOUR RESOLUTION. LOVE.

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 The source has “24”, obviously a slip; vide the following item.
2 T. N. Jagadisan
698. LETTER TO V. S. SRINIVASA SASTRI

SEVAGRAM,
February 23, 1945

DEAR BROTHER,

I never read newspapers. Pyarelal reads extracts. Someone did say yesterday that an accident had happened. Hardly had I time to see what it was when I got your most thoughtful p.c. and one from Jagadisan to Sushila. I have wired. This is to confirm and to beseech you to keep to your promise. You can’t afford to give your voice to the public. Your written word should satisfy them.

Love.

LITTLE BROTHER

RT. HON. V. S. SASTRIAR

SWAGATAM

MYLAPORE, MADRAS

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

699. LETTER TO RATHINDRANATH TAGORE

February 23, 1945

MY DEAR RATHI,

I hope the money matter is entirely fixed up.

Love.

BAPU

SHRI RATHINDRANATH TAGORE

SANTINIKETAN P. O.

BENGAL

From C.W. 10519. Courtesy: Visva-Bharati

700. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

WARDHA,
February 23, 1945

CHI. MUNNALAL,

I find even five days away from the Ashram too much. Gurbuxani and Vimalabehn seem to me to be real jewels. The latter has resigned her post in the school where she was teaching. She is ready to take up everything gladly. Only we should know how to deal with her gently, i.e., in the spirit of ahimsa.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 8460. Also C.W. 5570. Courtesy: Munnaalal G. Shah

701. LETTER TO KISHORELAL G. MASHRUWALA

WARDHA,
February 23, 1945

CHI. KISHORELAL,

I have been worrying ever since you fell ill. Both of you should think over the matter. I think both of you can be cured with treatment. The first thing is sufficient rest, some nature cure treatment and proper yogic exercises. Hip-bath plays a very important role in treatment. Try it.

Blessings from
BAPU

K. MASHRUWALA
ASHRAM
SEVAGRAM

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

702. LETTER TO NARAHARI D. PARIKH

WARDHA,
February 23, 1945

CHI. NARAHARI,

I understand about Anand Hingorani. I think he is a very straightforward man. He will write anything you say. He will do what we say. I have known him from his childhood. He has also worked for Young India.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar
703. LETTER TO JAGANNATH

WARDHA,
February 23, 1945

BHAJ JAGANNATH,

I have your letter. You are sure to do well. What do you get now?

Something might be possible if I see the girls, I shall consult Sushilabehn. The girls should write to me. What does the eldest boy do? He should write to me. Write to me in the Devanagari or the Persian script.

Blessings from
BAPU

JAGANNATH
CLOTH MILLS
DELHI

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

704. LETTER TO BALVANT SINHA

February 23, 1945

CHI. BALVANT SINHA,

I have started with Chi. Ki. since yesterday. Let us see what happens.

You have to do your duty by reflecting on the nine ways of bhakti\(^1\). Lavatories and kitchen are crucial to our lives. The rest follows if we look after these too.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 1953

---

\(^1\) Namely, hearing, reciting, remembering, waiting upon, worshipping, doing obeisance, serving, companionship and surrendering
705. LETTER TO SHIV SHARMA

SEVAGRAM,
February 23, 1945

Bhai Shiv Sharma,

It appears Hari-ichchha is nearing her end. Today I sent her to Dr. David. He says her lungs are no longer fit for artificial pneumothorax. Her condition was not so bad at the time she was put under your treatment. On top of your medicine Chandi Prasad made her take a lot of milk. Her condition further deteriorated. Now a rib may have to be removed. Perhaps Hari-ichchha does not have the patience required for this treatment. This is the position. Do you have any treatment to suggest? I hope you are all right now.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

706. LETTER TO MEGHADEVI

SEVAGRAM,
February 23, 1945

Chi. Meghadevi,

I heard about your illness. Shri Ishwar D. has written to me. You must not lose heart. Even incurable diseases are cured. If you are destined to live, your illness is bound to go. And even if it does not, what does it matter? Life and death are not in our hands, are they? Be cheerful. Reassure your elders too.

Blessings from

BAPU

Kumari Meghadevi
C/O Seth Ramkishore
Dehra Dun, U. P.

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
707. A NOTE

February 24, 1945

With women men should behave as they would with men. Two men would not deliberately embrace or kiss each other, or sleep together. But if there is a reason, one man would touch another, sit by his side, or sit on the same seat. We must behave with women in the same manner. We must forget the distinction of sex as far as possible. There is distinction between men and women but it should have no place in our normal dealings. The consciousness of this distinction arises either in the case of carnal desire or outside it in that of a genuine desire for progeny. Let us forget this second category. Probably one in a million may be resorting to intercourse for purposes of procreation. I have not come across any such person so far. I do not consider association with women or keeping away from them in conformity with the conventional restraints of brahmacharya as real brahmacharya. My relationships are covered by this explanation. Whatever you may hear to the contrary must be rejected offhand. Think of this instead of being curious about my relationships.

*BAPU*¹

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 5850

708. LETTER TO SITA GANDHI

SEVAGRAM,

February 24, 1945

CHI. SITA,

I have your letter. You draw your *matras*² too long, as I illustrate with js here. Draw them as I do or if you must have a knot at the end make it very small. Consult your teacher. It will be very hot by 20th April and hotter still in May. I don’t know where I shall be then. I should like you to spend the hot season in a cool place. I am very happy that you are getting along nicely.

¹ The following instruction is added to the note: “Make a copy of this and pass it on to Baba Moghe.”

² Marks over letters to indicate the vowel sounds ‘e’ or ‘o’.
I have come to Madalasabehn’s to spend five days. Blessings to all.

Blessings from
BAPU

SITA GANDHI
AKOLA

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

709. LETTER TO HARSHADA DIWANJI

February 24, 1945

DEAR SISTER,
I received yesterday the packet containing the skein of yarn and the letter. Today I have another letter and a cheque for Rs. 54. I can never remember birthdays. I have no idea how old Diwanji is. Now I send him my blessings. And he has many more years still to live. He has to serve with this very body.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI HARSHADABEHN DIWANJI
15TH STREET, KAR
BOMBAY

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 10223

710. LETTER TO K. M. MUNSHI

WARDHA,
February 24, 1945

BHAI MUNSHI,
I have just finished the book Zonal Divisions sent by you. I managed to read it piecemeal during the time for massage every day. The very basis of your argument is brute force. How can I, therefore, reason with you? According to me, the instances which you have cited may go against you. But I won’t enter into that argument. Your dharma lies in following the dictates of your conscience. We need not, therefore, argue what is right and what is wrong. For everybody what the conscience says is the truth. Real truth is known only to the God of Truth.

Haven’t I already replied to your letter? I have still not seen the rules drafted by Mavalankar. It is your right as well as your duty to say what you have said. I, therefore, told everybody the substance of it. Continue to point out fearlessly what you think to be right.

Blessings from

BAPU

From Gujarati: C.W. 7685. Courtesy: K. M. Munshi

711. LETTER TO Y. M. PARNERKAR

SEVAGRAM,
February 24, 1945

CHI. PARNERKAR,

I shall not express grief. It was time for Mother to go and she went. She had completed her work. You may go whenever you can. Look after yourself and do your duty well.

Blessings from

BAPU

Y. M. PARNERKAR
C/o B. G. KARPE
12 KRISHNAPURA, INDORE

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

712. LETTER TO CHANDIPRASAD VAIDYA

WARDHA,
February 24, 1945

BHAII CHANDIPRASAD,

I wrote to you about Chi. B. K. Chi. Hari-ichchha came back from Nagpur yesterday. Her lungs have grown extremely weak,¹ so much so that a rib has to be removed now. Three months were lost in trying the Ayurvedic treatment. What grieves me is: why must we take up a case about which we do not have full knowledge. [At the same time] we cannot forsake the poor girl. I have two questions: (1) Can you, i.e., Ayurveda, do something for Hari-chchha? (2) Why do not the vaidyas realize their limitations?

Write to me fearlessly whatever you think right. Do come if you want to, for the sake of H. I. or B. K. I have written a similar letter

¹ Up to this the letter is in Gujarati.
713. NOTE TO RISHABHADAS RANKA

SEVAGRAM,

February 25, 1945

Send the list of contents. I can read Marathi. Bring the child. I shall think of a name.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: C.W. 10390

714. LETTER TO G. RAMACHANDRA RAO

SEVAGRAM,

February 25, 1945

BHAI RAMACHANDRA RAO,

The enclosed is a rough draft of the scheme along with details as to its estimated budget. Give it shape and return it to me. It will be placed before the Committee.

Blessings from

BAPU

SEVAGRAM ASHRAM

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

---

2 The addressee had written that he had received from Ganeshshastri the list of contents of the latter’s “Gramvaidyaka” in Marathi.
715. CABLE TO VIJAYLAKSHMI PANDIT

February 26, 1945

VIJAYLAKSHMI PANDIT
CARE JOHN DAY COMPANY
40 EAST 49 STREET
NEW YORK
NOT INTERFERING. NOTHING TO DISTURB YOU. LOVE.

GANDHI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

716. LETTER TO MIRABEHN

February 26, 1945

CHI. MIRA,

You can have Kisan Ashram. But if that, why not Mazdur or its equivalent? A kisan can be a millionaire, not so a working man, a labourer. But I do not mind kisan, if you prefer it.

Love.

BAPU

SHRI MIRABEHN
ASHRAM, MULDASPUR
P. O. BAHADRADAB
Via Jwalapur, Near Hardwar

From a photostat: C.W. 10518. Courtesy: Mirabehn

---

1 This was in reply to the addressee’s cable of February 22 which read: “Friends consider my presence necessary San Francisco during April conference. . . . Friends have cabled Ghanshyamdas Birla requesting him finance. . . . work under my direction. Please endorse. . . . Recent statement disturbing. . . .”

2 The date is in Hindi numerals.

3 The addressee had suggested this name for her Ashram.
717. LETTER TO DR. NIROD MUKHERJEE

AS AT SEVAGRAM,
February 26, 1945

DEAR MUKHERJEE,

I was able to go through your tale of woe only today. I have pointed the remedy.¹ It’s not mere medical relief. Proper food including milk, houses and employment should be found and everything else will follow. The moral sense of the community has to be stirred up to do away with prostitution. If I was permitted free entry, I should love to enter Bengal ill or well. I may be able to do nothing. But that is nothing.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

DR. NIROD MUKERJI
1/5 FERN ROAD
BALLYGUNGE
CALCUTTA

From a photostat: C.W. 9298

718. LETTER TO SATYANARAYAN SINHA

WARDHA,
February 26, 1945

BHAI SATYANARAYAN SINHA,

I have all your letters. I have gone through Prajapati Mishra’s letter. There was nothing in the speech to alarm the Government.² In discussing the constructive programme such a speech should be considered irrelevant or inopportune. But what was to be done about it? It is a different matter if the Government wants to ban even constructive work.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Vide “Letter to Dr. Nirod Mukherjee”, 14-1-1945.
719. ANSWERS TO T. B. SAPRU’S QUESTIONS

AS AT SEVAGRAM,
February 26, 1945

Q. In your letter of September 14, 1944, to Mr. Jinnah, you said as follows: “You, ask for my conception of the basis for a provisional interim government. I would have told you if I had any scheme in mind.” Did you never discuss even the outlines of any scheme during the course of your conversations?

A. What I told Quaid-e-Azam was the exact truth. I had no idea of what he meant, for he never told me what he had in mind. Therefore I can answer your question by saying we never discussed the outlines of any scheme of interim government except what I have said.

Q. In answering the first question, please refer to Mr. Jinnah’s letter of September 14, in which he said, “You, being the sponsor of this Gandhiji Rajaji formula, should give me some rough idea and picture of it so that I may understand what this part of the formula means.” Did you give any reply to this? If so, what? If not, why not?

A. The foregoing answer deals with your second question.

Q. In his letter of September 17, Mr. Jinnah says that “the word (Pakistan) has now become synonymous with the Lahore Resolution.” Did you ask him whether in accordance with the Lahore Resolution of the All-India Muslim League, a scheme of Constitution, in accordance with the basic principles providing for the assumption finally by the respective regions of all powers such as Defence, External Affairs, Communications, Customs and such other matters as may be necessary, had been prepared? Was your attention drawn to any such scheme by Mr. Jinnah?

A. No. Quaid-e-Azam’s position unfortunately was that while he could come as far as seeing me and trying to convince me of his position, he, the President of the League, could not discuss details with me, a mere individual. But so far as I could gather from our conversations, he had no prepared scheme. As the correspondence shows, he had referred me to two books both of which I read, but neither of which could help me to understand Quaid-e-Azam’s exact position. One thing he insisted upon was that if I first accepted the Pakistan of his conception, he could then discuss other things with me even though I was but an individual.

1 From Gandhi-Sapru Papers
3 Vide “Resolution passed by All-India Muslim League”, 23-3-1940.
Q. Is it true that the real breakdown between you and Mr. Jinnah came about on the question of Central authority or Government? Please refer in this connection to Mr. Jinnah’s letter of September 25,\(^1\) clause (d), in which he says, “If these vital matters (suggested in the quotation from your letter with which clause ‘d’ begins) are to be administered by some central authority, you do not indicate what sort of authority or machinery will be set up to administer these matters, and how and to whom again that authority will be responsible.” Did you, at any stage, indicate to him that you wanted a Central Government or a Central Legislature to deal with a limited number of subjects, such as Foreign Affairs, Defence, Internal Communications, Customs, Commerce and the like?

A. It can be said that the breakdown took place because we could not come to an agreement of the two-nation theory of Quaid-e-Azam’s. As the correspondence will show I wanted to avoid a Central Government. I suggested an authority acceptable to both the parties, but he would insist first on complete partition as between two nations and then an agreement between them as on foreign affairs, etc. He would not agree to anything simultaneous.

Q. In that very clause (clause ‘d’), Mr. Jinnah says, “According to the Lahore Resolution, as I have already explained to you, all these matters, which are the life-blood of any State, cannot be delegated to any Central authority or Government.” Then he says that “the matter of security of the two States and the natural and mutual obligations that may arise out of physical contiguity will be for the constitution-making body of Pakistan and that of Hindustan, or [any] other party concerned, to deal with on the footing of their being two independent States.” Did you understand Mr. Jinnah’s position to be that he intended that Pakistan and Hindustan should be completely independent sovereign States with no connection between them except by a treaty? If so, did he tell you what was to happen if either party broke the treaty and what was the authority which could enforce the provisions of such a treaty?

A. Of course, he wanted two independent sovereign States with no connection between them except by a treaty. If any party broke the treaty, the consequence would be what has happened throughout the world up till now, i.e., war. Therefore I did not ask and he did not tell me as to what would happen if either party broke the treaty.

Q. As regards the C. R. Formula\(^2\), can you explain why Mr. Jinnah was opposed to clause (2) of that formula, which demanded a plebiscite of all the inhabitants on the basis of adult suffrage or other practical franchise? Did you understand him to say that in the areas demarcated for Pakistan the minorities shall be given a chance of expressing their choice of staying in Pakistan or not being separated from the rest of the country?

\(^{2}\) Vide Appendix “C. Rajagopalachari’s Formula”, before 5-8-1942.
A. Quaid-e-Azam would not have the plebiscite of the Muslims because he thought the League represented the Muslims of India and that the other communities should have no voice as to Pakistan which was Muslims’ exclusive right wherever they were in a majority.

Q. Please refer to your proposals contained in the letter of the 24th of September in which you said “there shall be a treaty of separation which should also provide for the efficient and satisfactory administration of Foreign Affairs, Defence, Internal Communications, Customs, Commerce and the like, which must necessarily continue to be the matter of common interest between the contracting parties.” Please explain how that treaty would provide for the efficient and satisfactory administration of these matters, and whether you contemplated any machinery which could give effect to the decisions embodied in that treaty. If so, what is the nature of that machinery which you had in mind?

A. I suggested a board composed of representatives of both the States. It was to be an arbitration board with administrative powers. For the due carrying out of its decisions, it would largely or solely depend upon the goodwill of the parties or States. But I should not object to a machinery jointly devised by the two States.

Q. Have you any objection to the provinces or States enjoying the fullest autonomy with residuary powers vested in them?

A. None whatsoever.

Q. How do you reconcile Mr. Jagat Narain Lal’s Resolution of the All-India Congress Committee with the line that you took in regard to the division of India in the course of your conversations and correspondence with Mr. Jinnah?

A. I depended first upon the decisive interpretation given by the President, Maulana Abul Kalam Azad, and secondly on my own, meaning that the Jagat Narain Lal Resolution should be read together with the others bearing on the question. For these latter were not cancelled by the Jagat Narain Lal Resolution.

Q. Please refer to Appendix ‘C’ of the pamphlet known as Gandhi-Jinnah Talks, and send to the Committee a short memorandum explaining any points in that summary which you may consider necessary. In this connection please refer to your Press statement dated September 28, 1944, in the course of which you stated as follows: “In that respect the Lahore Resolution is quite sound. Where there is an obvious Muslim majority, they should be allowed to constitute a separate State by themselves, and that has been fully conceded in the Rajaji Formula or my formula. . . . But if it means utterly independent sovereignty so that there is to be nothing in common between the two, I hold it is an impossible proposition. That means war to the knife.” What did you mean by saying “war to the knife”, and why did you consider that proposition to be an impossible proposition?

---

1 Vide 5th footnote of “Note to Jagdish K. Munshi”, on or before 12-8-1944.

A. “War to the knife” is a simple English idiom. I have never known it used in the literal sense. It simply means a determined quarrel between parties. I hold that if there is nothing in common between the two or nothing which does not come in conflict with each others’ culture there can be no friendly mutual agreement.

Q. In your Press statement dated September 28, 1944, you said: “I urge that apart from the two-nation theory, if I could accept the principle of division of India in accordance with the demand of the League, he should accept it. But unfortunately it was just there that we split.” Please explain this more clearly.

A. I think I am explicit enough. I meant that apart from conceding the two-nation theory, I accepted the concrete suggestion of division of India as between members of the same family and therefore reserving for partnership things of common interest. But Quaid-e-Azam would have nothing short of the two-nation theory and therefore complete dissolution amounting to full sovereignty in the first instance. It was just here that we split as I have said herein before.

Q. Are you prepared to admit that the Muslims in India are a separate nation? If so, then why do you deny the Muslims the right of having a separate independent State? If you are not prepared to admit that the Muslims are a separate nation, then on what principle do you agree to a division of India to the limited extent to which you seem to have agreed in the course of your conversation and correspondence with Mr. Jinnah? In this connection, please refer to your interview to the News Chronicle on September 29, 1944, which is printed at page 64 of the pamphlet known as Gandhi-Jinnah Talks.

A. Although I could not agree to the two-nation theory, I agreed on the basis of members of a family desiring severance of the family tie in matters of conflict but not in all matters so as to become enemies one of the other as if there was nothing common between the two except enmity.

The Hindu, 10-4-1945, and Gandhi-Sapru Papers; also G.N. 7570

---

1 Vide “Interview to the News Chronicle”. 29-9-1944
BROTHERS AND SISTERS,

I am glad to see you all assembled here at the invitation of Principal Shriman Narayan. Dr. Abdul Haq was to have arrived here today, but he is now expected tomorrow. This association and I wish to have his help. Likewise Sjt. Tandon was to come and I was feeling very happy. Shriman Narayanji had wired to him also. I am sorry that he is unable to come, being ill. Let us hope that he will recover from his illness soon.

The task confronting you is, in one way, small, in another way big. It is small because it requires only very small effort, and yet it promises great consequences. Dr. Tarachand tells us that what is known by various names today was originally one language spoken in the North by both Hindus and Muslims. It is a sad thing that those who were once one have become divided. Their language, too, has either been split or is being split, into Urdu and Hindi.

As a result of the efforts of Sjt. Tandon the Congress at Kanpur gave the name ‘Hindustani’ to the language which is spoken by both the communities and decided on two scripts, Devanagari and Urdu. But the Congress could not implement the resolution. In 1942, the Hindustani Prachar Sabha took up this work at the instance of the late Shri Jamnalal Bajaj but he passed away soon after. In 1942, Congress leaders and others were arrested; I was among them. I was released later on medical grounds. Even during my illness I followed the progress of the work that was being done by Sjt. Nanavati to propagate Hindustani. It gave me joy to find that it held out the prospect of success. I see no reason why what was at one time the common language of both Hindus and Mussalmans should not again become one. In Northern India, we are the descendants of those Hindus and Muslims who spoke and wrote the same language. It should not require even half the labour to revive that old common language than it would to create two different languages, Urdu and Hindi. Village folk in Northern India, whether Hindus or Mussalmans, even today speak the same tongue and some even write the same language. It is for you to decide what should be done to bring our labours to a successful completion. The function of the Hindustani

---

1 Gandhiji presided over the conference and since he was observing silence, his speech was read out by Shriman Narayan.

2 In December 1925
Prachar Sabha is to implement your decisions.

I am sorry that, for reasons of health, I observe silence for the whole day so far as possible. During the last three months I had to break my silence during day-time only perhaps on three occasions. Today, it being Monday, I am observing my weekly silence. I hope that it will not interfere with our work.

I now leave the conference in your hands. Shriman Narayan will conduct the rest of the proceedings.

Today’s proceedings will go on in my presence till 5.30 p. m. Tomorrow our work will commence at 3 p. m. I shall then place my thoughts before you.

You will please excuse any inconvenience which, despite Janakidevi’s best efforts, you may have experienced in the matter of arrangements for food and other amenities at Bajajwadi.

[From Hindi]
Rashtrabhasha Hindustani, pp. 160-2

721. TELEGRAM TO DR. KHAN SAHEB
[February 27, 1945]

DR. KHANSAHEB,
WHAT ABOUT HUNGER-STRIKER AMIR KHAN?

GANDHI

722. LETTER TO SITARAM SASTRI
SEVAGRAM, February 27, 1945

DEAR SITARAM SASTRI,

May I not now begin to write to you in Hindi? You may get my letters read to you if you cannot read them yourself. My blessings to your son and his bride. I hope you will have an additional servant of the country and that your son will not be lost to you because he is married. Bhansalibhai described his experiences to me.

Yours sincerely,

BAPU

1 From the postmark
2 Whose son Mohamed Aslam had wired to Gandhiji on February 26 about his critical condition
3 The Hindi version is not traceable.
723. LETTER TO MAURICE FRYDMAN

SEVAGRAM,
February 27, 1945

DEAR BHARATANAND¹,

Two lines in haste. Unless you are determined, try liver injections and hope to live to serve. But if you regard them as sinful I have nothing to say.

Love.

BAPU

BHARATANAND
BOMBAY

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

724. LETTER TO MANIBEHN PATEL

February 27, 1945

CHI. MANI,

Chi. Dahyabhai writes to say that you will be released tomorrow and that your health is none too good. Do come and see me if you can. If you cannot come, write a detailed letter. I am looking forward to seeing you. It is long time since we met last.

Blessings from

BAPU

[From Gujarati]

Bapuna Patro— 4: Manibehn Patelne, p. 132

725. LETTER TO S. D. SATAVLEKAR

SEVAGRAM,
February 27, 1945

BHAI SATAVLEKAR,

I have your letter. I have written to Bharatanand to take liver extract injections if it is not contrary to his vows.²

¹ A Polish Engineer interested in village reconstruction movement. Gandhiji gave him this name.
I do have an oil-lamp. They are made in Maganwadi. Let the friend who makes them there send me one. On seeing it I shall give my opinion.

Blessings from
BAPU

PANDIT SATAVLEKAR
SWADHYAYA MANDAL
AUNDH, DIST. SATARA

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

726. LETTER TO KESHAV DEO MALAVIYA

SEVAGRAM,
February 27, 1945

BHAI KESHAV DEO,

If in the past the A. I. C. C. looked after the repairs of the Swaraj Bhavan it should continue to do so even now. Perhaps Chi. Kamalnayan understands this thing better. If so, consult him. I have an idea that you have with you some A. I. C. C. funds. The building is in a very bad shape and it is getting worse.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

727. LETTER TO RAMESHWARADS BIRLA

SEVAGRAM,
February 27, 1945

CHI. RAMESHWARADS,

I did not speak to you regarding the “Indian sufferers” but I did to Ghanshyamdas. Today I hear that those people have approached you. Gosibehn has come to me.

My advice is:

(1) A substantial amount should be paid to the Committee. It should be paid annually, so that it is convenient in all ways.

(2) I would advise that the amount should be paid in such a way that at least the Government knows about it. I see no need for the amount to be published in the papers. The Government ought to know that it is the duty of everyone to give such assistance. I have of course fixed its. . . .

Convey the purport of this letter to Ghanshyamdas and do as he says.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

728. LETTER TO DESHPANDE

SEVAGRAM,
February 27, 1945

BHAI DESHPANDE,

Certainly all noble efforts have my blessings. In my view your primary duty is to work in such a way as to win the approval of Jajuji.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

729. SPEECH AT ALL INDIA HINDUSTANI PRACHAR SABHA CONFERENCE-II

WARDHA,
February 27, 1945

I am sorry I cannot give you as much time as I would wish. Please forgive me. My silence continues for the whole day. It is not that it cannot be broken. But I want to continue it for as long as I can and smoothly carry on my work. So I observe silence. If I squandered my energy, I might collapse in a month. My attachment to truth and non-violence would not permit this. But if necessity should arise I could spend this energy with both hands. I could also be a miser. These days I have adopted the latter course.

I want to explain to you what the Hindustani Prachar Sabha is. Its aim is to make as many people as possible learn Hindi and Urdu styles and the Devanagari and the Urdu scripts. There was a time when the people of North India spoke one common language. We are their descendants. Today we see that the gulf between Hindi and Urdu is widening. Protagonists of Hindi use difficult words from Sanskrit and the Urdu enthusiasts do the same from Arabic-Persian. I know this will not continue for long. Villagers care for their bread only. They will continue to speak the language which they have been used to speaking for years.

1 Omission as in the source

It is the task of people like me to stop Hindi and Urdu from running into separate orbits. I shall say to both sides that the way adopted by them is not proper. The villagers will not understand their bombastic words. If we learn to write both the scripts, the two languages in the long run will become one. The problem of script is not so complicated. Let both the scripts continue for ever. Or there is no objection if every province started writing the national language in its own script leaving aside these two. But the language should be one. Today we have become slothful. Today we have on our heads the burden of English. But English is also not so difficult. We can learn English in six months. But we want to learn to think in English and study the sciences. So it takes time. We waste as many as fourteen valuable years learning English and yet cannot master it. Today if we ask a teacher of English to express his ideas in Hindustani, he pleads inability. Because of his education through English, he is not able to express his ideas in Hindustani. Then how can he teach Hindustani to his students? This is our sorry plight. This also leads to lethargy.

We should not be afraid of learning two scripts. Somebody might say that there are other eight or ten good scripts. Why should we not learn them? I do suggest that we learn at least one of the scripts of the South also. There are four languages there. You should not be frightened of them.

You are living in Hindustan. If you want to serve your Hindustani brethren, why should you be afraid of the labour of learning at least two scripts? We have to learn only one language. It is our misfortune that we have to use two scripts. But I would gladly learn all the languages of India. If we have the interest, we shall not find the task too hard. Today your number is very small, but it does not matter. All of you must at any rate learn the two scripts. I do not want to speculate on what splendid consequences would follow.

It is idleness which prevents one from learning other languages. If anyone comes to me, I can arrange for teaching him not only Hindustani but ten or twelve other important languages. If anyone says ‘I can’t study Urdu (Hindustani)’, I would say ‘you are unfit for staying in India as it is the language of many.’ I invited you for co-operating in this language (national) task which can be achieved if we work properly and in right earnest.

---

1 This and the following paragraph are from The Hitavada.

Some Urdu-speaking people, while engaged in serious talks, employ words which leave me dumb-founded although I frequently talk with them. Why is it so? I have found a way out and it has been placed before you.

[From Hindi]

Rashtrabhasha Hindustani, pp. 162-4, and The Hitavada, 1-3-1945

730. SPEECH ALL-INDIA HINDUSTANI PRACHAR SABHA CONFERENCE-III

WARDHA,
February 27, 1945

Dr. Tarachand has poured out his heart while explaining the significance of the history of Hindustani words commonly used in the villages.¹ I was not able to ask Tarachandji to finish soon because I myself was gripped by what he said. He said things which he could have as well said at a gathering of pundits. I am not a pundit. However, I was listening with interest along with others. He did not repeat anything and that is why I did not stop him.² Later he narrated how he first joined the Hindi Sahitya Sammelan and left the Bharatiya Sahitya Sammelan after the Nagpur meeting, after which he took up the Hindustani work for making it the national language. I want and desire real democracy even in this field.

I followed what Anand Kausalyayan said. He spoke hesitantly. On behalf of the Hindi Sahitya Sammelan he said that the burden of two scripts should be avoided as far as possible. Even today, I happen to be in the Hindi Sahitya Sammelan. I did not go there on my own. Jamnalalji used to drag me with him into whatever work he happened to do. He took me to Indore³ where I gave a new thing to the Sammelan. They all digested it. I said “Hindi is that language which both Hindus and Muslims speak and which people write in both the scripts.” The resolution moved by me was passed. I had it included in the Sammelan’s constitution. It is a different matter that it was later amended. Hence I should not feel sorry if now I quit the Sammelan.

¹ This sentence is from The Hitavada.
² The rest of the paragraph is from The Hitavada.
³ In April 1935
There are many among us who are trying to unify Hindi and Urdu. Some wonder why it is necessary. I want real democracy. Democracy degenerates into hypocrisy if people become yes-men. That is why I asked them not to follow others blindly but express their true opinion.

I don’t want Hindi to die nor Urdu to be banished. What I wish is that both should become useful to us. The law of satyagraha says that one can clap with one hand. It may not produce sound, but what of that? If you stretch one hand, the other one will follow automatically. Haq Saheb had said something in Nagpur, which I could not then understand. I did not accept his “Hindi alias Urdu”. It would have been better if I had accepted his point. He came for friendship, but was met with opposition and turned almost an enemy. But I have no enemy. Then, how can Haq Saheb be one? That is why today we are again on the same platform. An all-India literary conference was held at Nagpur, but it was its first and last session. We had gathered to come closer, but were divided. What was the use of such a gathering? It was a literary conference of all India not only Hindustani and so my speech on the occasion was full of Sanskrit words. If I were again required to speak before such a gathering, I should speak the same language.

Anandji says that everybody will find great difficulty in learning two scripts. I say there is no difficulty; and if there is, it will have to be overcome. For, if this is not overcome, how shall we be able to face greater difficulties?

I live for Hindu-Muslim unity. I know the propagation of Hindustani will bring about this unity. But I am not holding out this temptation right now.

I say, let Hindi and Urdu both prosper. I have to take work from both. Even today, Hindustani exists but we do not utilize it. This is the age of Hindi and Urdu. These are two streams from which the third will flow. Hence it will not do if the first two dry up.

The villagers will follow my language. They will not be able to follow a language which is full of Sanskrit and Arabic-Persian words. If those in the Hindi Sahitya Sammelan should say that they are going to sponsor a Sanskritized language, then, as far as I am concerned, the Sammelan does not exist. The language of the villages is only one. They cannot have two languages. The champions of Hindi want me to blow the trumpet for Hindi only and to forget Urdu. But I am a satyagrahi believing in ahimsa. How can I do this? I cannot do this work all alone. I need everybody’s help. I am a ‘mahatma’ precisely because I am aware of my limitations and never go beyond them. That is why Moulvi Abdul Haq has come. I have no wings. The veterans are called here so that they may give me wings. If they do I shall soar high and say, “Look, it is well done, is it not?” Else I shall lie in the dust and stay there.

I am considered a big man also in the Hindi Sahitya Sammelan. Not in that capacity, but in a general way, I would like to say that nothing will be done against the interest of the Hindi Sahitya Sammelan. But people will have to take the trouble to learn both the scripts. I want to take work from Anandji also.

I am told that the Muslim boys do not learn the Devanagri script. I would say if it is so you have lost nothing but they have lost something. What do you lose by learning one more script? Such a little thing brings such a great gain. I had said the same thing to Hasrat Mohani. But it did not serve the purpose at that time, because a satyagraha had started. I did not tell all of you to court arrest but I did. It is not just foolishness on the part of those who are in jail. Jawahar, Vallabhbhai and Maulana Saheb are already in jail. They are not fools. If they come out by resorting to flattery they will be dead in my eyes, and if they die during imprisonment, I shall not shed a single tear, I shall say they died a noble death. Because while there, they serve India.

If Hindi and Urdu are unified Saraswati like the Hooghly will be bigger than the Ganga and the Yamuna. The Hooghly is a dirty river, I do not drink its water. But if this one becomes like the Hooghly it will be a grand river.

Now the question of funds. Those who would like to contribute may give either to me or to Shriman Narayan. Everybody should contribute according to his capacity. Those who contribute may do so for the cause, not to gain fame.

[From Hindi]

Rashtrabhasha Hindustani, pp. 164-7, and The Hitavada, 1-3-1945

731. LETTER TO SITA GANDHI

SEVAGRAM,
February 27, 1945

CHI. SITA,

We are poor. We want to live with the poor, hence we should learn to put up with sun and rain. But put up with only as much as you can. Don’t ruin your health. I have just returned from a meeting of the Hindustani [Prachar] Sabha; hence I happened to start the letter
732. LETTER TO MAGANBHAI PAREKH

February 28, 1945

CHI. MAGANBHAI,

You will see that I have been able to correct up to page 13. The corrections are self-explanatory.

From clause 8 onwards confusion has started. It seems as if you felt tired or wrote piecemeal and the link was broken. Clauses 8 to 12 relating to the work to be done do not seem consistent. I have taken this up in haste soon after the prayer. Maybe, therefore, I myself have got confused in my mind. But I feel that you should have a separate paragraph, with a heading, for self-purification. This can come somewhere earlier. What follows is useful but it should be said differently and arranged in a different manner. I can do all this for you. But I would have to spare more time for that, which I do not have. Nor is it right that I should do your cooking for you. It should be enough for me to tell you whether what you have done is done badly or indifferently. Please, therefore, revise the whole of that portion and, if you wish, show it to me. But it will be all right even if you don’t. Reject what does not appeal to you from among the suggestions I have made. Kishorelal is ill. I myself will not trouble him. I advise you also not to do so. Do what you yourself can. I am in better health than Kishorelal just now and so I have managed to do this much. Otherwise I should have refused and also dissuaded you from approaching Kishorelal. I have not revised this.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 9067
733. LETTER TO C. RAJAGOPALACHARI

SEVAGRAM,
February 28, 1945

MY DEAR C. R.,

Ramchandran read your p. c. to him. It makes bad reading. This night fever, whatever its cause, must go. I suggest your coming here as soon as possible. If someone should go there to fetch you that can be done. Weather is warm and dry and is likely to be so till the middle of May. Warmer it will be day by day. You do not mind the heat I hope.

Love.

BAPU

From a photostat: G.N. 2102

734. LETTER TO GAJANAN NAIK

SEVAGRAM,
February 28, 1945

CHI. GAJANAN,

I got your letter today. It does not matter if Kumarappa does not provide you the money. But should you not have his consent to whatever you do? If you carry on your activities on the strength of money when you don’t have the consent of the institution to which you belong, it is sure to cause them some embarrassment. If you cannot have Kumarappa’s consent you have only to have patience and try to persuade him. Read my reply again.

Blessings from

BAPU

[PS]

In reply to yours of February 15, 1945. It is irrelevant in whose name the jaggery complex stands. There should be no problem for you since you have the custody. You should make any arrangement you want after consulting everybody. Kumarappa ought to be informed. Obtain his consent.

Blessings from

BAPU

GAJANAN NAIK
SEVAGRAM ASHRAM

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
735. LETTER TO DR. JIVRAJ MEHTA

SEVAGRAM,
February 28, 1945

BHAJ JIVRAJ MEHTA,

Chi. Indu writes to say that the Kamala [Nehru Memorial] Hospital committee does not meet at all. The local committee too seems to care little. They have run short of funds. If you can, throw some light on all this.

Blessings from
BAPU

DR. JIVRAJ MEHTA
ALTAMAN ROAD
BOMBAY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

736. LETTER TO RAMA C. JOSHI

February 28, 1945

CHI. RAMA¹,

I got your letter after a long time. I was glad. The children have settled down well. Do come once when you can. Hot winds have already started here.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 5367

737. LETTER TO SHANTILAL B. PANDYA

SEVAGRAM,
February 28, 1945

CHI. SHANTILAL,

Your letter was read out to me from beginning to end. I am delighted. I am passing it on to Jajuji to read. I wish you success. Try everything. Don’t lend money to anyone. Knowledge, however, cannot be lent. It can only be given. Your capital consists of your knowledge. Increase it and make use of it.

¹ Wife of Chhaganlal Joshi

VOL.85 : 2 OCTOBER, 1944 - 3 MARCH, 1945 439

Make use of machinery only after careful thought. You will be happy and make others happy if you give up what the millions cannot use.

This time I shall not write to Chi. Kanta. Convey my blessings to her. May she have an easy delivery.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHANTILAL BALASHANKAR PANDYA RAILWAY FARM
DOHAD

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

738. LETTER TO INDIRA GANDHI
February 28, 1945

CHI. INDU,

Shall I write to Dr. Katju¹? I shall write about the Committee too. If you can go to Kashmir, it will be good for you and Rajiv². I am well.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: C.W. 9804. Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library

739. LETTER TO SITARAM

SEVAGRAM,
February 28, 1945

BHAI SITARAM,

I have received your money. Your sending the money in itself carries my blessings, does it not? If you still require them you have them. I had hoped that you would come and see me.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Kailash Nath Katju
² Addressee’s elder son
740. NOTE TO KRISHNACHANDRA

February 28, 1945

You must learn weaving properly. Then alone can you become a real teacher. But it is not necessary to be always at it like a professional weaver. What the professional weaver learns from practice, you have to acquire with your intelligence.

You have heard about my experiment; what do you think of it? Why have you again stopped getting up in time for the prayers?

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4491

741. LETTER TO M. C. DAVAR

SEVAGRAM,
February 28, 1945

DEAR FRIEND,

Yours of 15th inst. Gandhiji writes in reply to your questions:

1. “Quit India” resolution so called is wholly consistent with ahimsa and truth. I hope you see nothing wrong in the phrase.

2. There was no question of success partly or wholly resulting from the mere phrase or the resolution itself.

Evidently you have not studied the correspondence that led to the fast. It was wholly aimed at the misdeeds of the Government.

---

1 This was written by Narahari Parikh. The addressee was the Secretary General of the United Party of India.
2 The questions, briefly summarized, were: (i) Whether the “Quit India” resolution was consistent with ahimsa and truth. (ii) If it was, did Gandhiji realize any portion of his success from it or from his historic Linlithgow fast? What was in his mind when he told Louis Fischer that he might not call off the civil disobedience movement even if there was violence? (iii) Did it not show that he was not as firm about ahimsa as before the August 1942 movement? (iv) Did it not show that freedom of the country was dearer to Gandhiji than ahimsa? (v) Could not the counter-violence of some of his associates be attributed to a decrease in his own faith in non-violence?
3 Vide Appendix “Resolution Passed by All-India Congress Committee”, 8-8-1942.
The fast had great results. You should study the whole event. You should also know that a satyagrahi is never attached to results. His acts, great or small, have their own worth.

My reply to Louis Fischer is complete.1 As years rolled on people knew that my words carried what they meant. Therefore, I said I might not call off the movement in future even if there was violence. My trial never came. For, I was arrested before I could start the movement.

3. Certainly not.
4. You are quite wrong. I would never put freedom or anything before ahimsa and truth.
5. It is clear to me that you have only superficially studied the movement as also ahimsa.

Gandhiji observes silence, and the above is a copy of what he has written down.

The Bombay Chronicle, 27-3-1945

---

742. LETTER TO MARGARETE SPIEGEL

Sevagram,
March 1, 1945

DEAR DAUGHTER,

I have your parting letter. Of course you are brave, you are simple. There you will pave your way, wherever you are. Keep good health and write from your new place. Kh[urshedbehn] is here.

Love from all.

BAPU
(M. K. GANDHI)

Dr. M. SPIEGEL

Spiegel Papers. Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library

---

1 Vide Appendix “Interview with Louis Fischer”, 4-6-1942.
CHI. PREMA,

I am able to reach your letter only today. I am helpless.

Do not trust the newspapers. I have given no decision. I have stated two views which seem contradictory. The view that there should be no enrolment is the later one and is the result of fuller thought. But nobody is forbidden to enrol members.

I have had no talk with Patil. It is possible that Khurshedbehn or somebody showed me the resolutions. But what does my consent mean? Everybody, whether Gandhian or anti-Gandhian, should act on his own responsibility. One may say there is no such thing as Gandhism. I have met Socialists more often. Much of what they say has appealed to me. Or you may say they have come closer to me.

But nobody should speak in my name. I do not like people going underground but I do not condemn those who do. It is the act of going underground that I condemn. Understand the distinction.

There was no one with me during my talks with Jinnah Saheb.¹ There were so few of us. Rajaji was one. The others didn’t even know anything about it.

I understand all the rest. But I do not have the time to go into the details. Keep on the path you have chosen. Get as many sincere women as you can and go on with the work. Do not take upon yourself the burden of the whole country. Take upon yourself only what you can do. If there are any more questions you want to ask me you may.

Blessings from

BAPU

[PS]

There has been no such thing as despair in my life and there never will be. I would not despair even if everybody died. What I am saying is right and what Bhulabhai is doing is also right.² You should ¹ The reference presumably is to the talks Gandhiji had with Jinnah from September 9 to 27, at which no agreement was reached.

go on doing your work.

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10433. Also C.W. 6872. Courtesy: Prema Kantak

744. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

March 1, 1945

CHI. MUNNALAL,

I have read the whole thing. It seems to me I shall have to pay attention to a few things. I will not go too deeply into it. Do not expect any help from me but accept whatever help I can give. It is right that I should see my faults. It keeps me vigilant. In your view it is useless. It would be good if we could start a separate catering service. But that will not be possible. By and large we should serve to the guests the same food that we cook for ourselves. I understand about Kanchan. It will be a triumph for you if you secure her testimonial. Just now you don’t have it. Do not think that she is not fully awake. To the extent that she is not, the fault lies with you and me. I do not distrust you. If I did, you would have left. It should be for me to decide what work to assign to whom, don’t you think? “Forget Sevagram” means forget the village, not the Ashram. In telling you that you may have a separate establishment I have shown that such a step has my consent and my encouragement. If even then you do not do that, I shall take it as a matter of special credit to both of you. I cannot bear the thought of your refraining from having a separate establishment under the slightest pressure from me. Kanchan seems to wish to have one. I do want you to play a major role in stabilizing the kitchen. But you should do it my way. I think I have now replied to all your questions.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 5828. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah
745. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

SEVAGRAM, WARDHA,
March 1, 1945

CHI. NARANDAS,

If you cannot honourably take the money for Chi. Purushottam’s1 monthly expenses from there, you may obtain it from me. Let me know what it will come to per month. Take care of your health. Chi. Kanaiyo and Abha’2 may be going that way shortly. If they do, Kanaiyo will bring you another letter from me. Letters from him will continue as of now.

Blessings from
BAPU

746. LETTER TO VICHITRA NARAYAN SHARMA

March 1, 1945

CHI. VICHITRA,

I am answering in pencil. Later I shall have it copied out in ink.

The truth is that I want to make the beginning with the kind of person you mention. If with his help we can achieve expansion, well and good, but if we cannot it will not matter. Because in the long run only the new outlook can help us to expand the work. If we stick to the old way, the work will come to a standstill. Khadi will end up by being merely an occupation for the poor. This will not satisfy anyone. If workers have doubts in their hearts, we shall patiently have to remove them.

When I say that we should sincerely believe in the Charkha Sangh as the symbol of truth and non-violence and dedicate ourselves to propagating the idea, it does not at all mean that what we had so far been doing was a mistake. We have benefited from that too. But it would be foolish to imagine that we can continue to do so, for we have certainly gained in knowledge. If the new outlook destroys the fruits of our past work, then we have not understood the new outlook. It is like the elephant’s foot that covers all other things. Yes, what will

1 Addressee’s son
2 Kanu Gandhi’s wife
certainly happen is that we shall not be content any more to carry on in the old way and we shall be spared the outcry for expanding it. We have some recent instances of this which I shall not go into here.

It will be false attachment if in our desire to expand the old we forget the new which is priceless. It will be unbecoming, if obsessed with the old, we lose hold of the new. If the old activity can be competently pursued by others they may by all means pursue it.

The question you ask as regards the institution I can answer only if you show me that it is not merely hypothetical but is based on facts.

We shall let the Punjab go ahead with the work if it can, provided we do not have to invest any funds. There can of course be no question of not wearing khadi.

Women spinners may continue to spin. How far we may commit funds for this is a practical question. Each case can be dealt with on the basis of its own merits. We should not invest any capital in silk and allied activities. If, however, there are funds to spare and it is found beneficial to have stocks in khadi bhandars then we may have stocks of silks and woollens. There must be the khadi spirit behind all this and we should ensure genuineness.

In the case of Kashmir, if the State does not impose upon us restrictions which we cannot accept, I should accept money from them under two conditions. All the institutions should be prepared to lose their funds. Maybe if the Charkha Sangh stakes its all nothing will be lost. But they must do so on their own responsibility. Whether the thing has my blessings or not should make no difference. One must base oneself on the situation as it is.

It is indeed the duty of the Sangh to satisfy the public as well as the workers. If however there is a higher duty, we must pursue it, too. After all, khadi and all other work we have done has been informed only by this view.

From Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

747. LETTER TO SHRIPAD JOSHI

SEVAGRAM,
March 1, 1945

CHI. SHRIPAD,

What can be done if others become slack. I find that those who have somebody’s backing are able to carry on. By saying “in a way”
I merely mean that a Congressman will never go and beg.¹

Even though Congressmen may also have taken part in it, it was not a Congress movement. Speeches and resolutions of the 7th and 8th² are a proof of this. I alone could have launched the movement and I did not in any manner start it. A wrong impression was created, no doubt. But what of that? See what Maulana Abul Kalam has to say. Laying down one’s life was not forbidden but violence was.

I have written much about parliamentary work. Bari is here. Let everyone be his own leader, but only for himself.

_Blessings from_
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4234

748. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA

_SEVAGRAM, March 1, 1945_

CHI. KRISHNACHANDRA,

I have your letter. My experiment can succeed; it can also fail. It can fail in the sense that I may not be able wholly to be free from passion. In satyagraha there is no room for failure causing the least harm.

If my experiment is that of a satyagrahi, no harm at all can come to anyone. I am answering in brief. You may write to me again if you do not get the meaning. I did have experiments with Ba, but that was not enough. If emission took place then, it would have been less regrettable morally than any emission occurring now. Emission was a possibility then. I feel it is not a possibility now. Occasion once came in my life when I came very near to emission. But I was saved. I have mentioned this in one of my articles.

This question gives me the impression that you do not understand the problem fully. It is surprising that you asked the question without trying first to get the correct information from me. What does it mean? What kind of trust is this? I do not have much time. If you want to know, I shall acquaint you with the facts. Then if questions occur to you that will be legitimate.

_Blessings from_
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4492

¹ Vide “Note to Shripad Joshi”, 22-2-1945.
² Of August 1942.
749. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA

March 1, 1945

CHI. KRISHNACHANDRA,

Your letter. You should find your answer in my letter. The idea is this. I deliberately want to become a eunuch mentally. If I succeed in this then I become one physically also. That alone is true brahmacharya. I saw an opportunity and seized it.

If it is satyagraha it can never cause physical harm, nor even moral harm. That is to say, it can only do good. This is what experience proves. What can happen when a bad person meets a good person? If my conduct is trusted there can be no harm, whoever may be my associate. This in any case must be clear. My reference is not to 35 years but 21 years. You have either not noticed it or have forgotten it.

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 5892. Also C.W. 5892

750. LETTER TO DEVI PRASAD

SEVAGRAM,

March 1, 1945

CHI. DEVIPRASAD,

I deal with your letter today.

You cannot categorically say either that I would or would not come on a full moon day. My going there or not going there would be guided by considerations of duty.

Bread comes first and adornment afterwards. That has always been my belief. But since you are here, do whatever you conveniently can. Learn here what true art is.

The art teacher should first take up some work which would enable him to earn his livelihood. Later on he may paint and teach painting. Such artists alone will teach true art.

You will remember what I had said about the broom. Sweeping is a great art. Where to keep the broom, how to handle it, should there be one broom or different brooms for different jobs, should one stand erect or bend while sweeping, should one raise dust or sprinkle water

1 The Hindi here is not clear.
2 An art graduate of Santiniketan. He was later co-editor with Marjorie Sykes of the journal Nayee Talim.

448 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
before sweeping, does one sweep the corners, pay attention to the walls and the roof—all these questions should occur to an artist. Only then would he find beauty in sweeping.

There is therefore a place for a true artist in Nayee Talim. I have already told you who is a true artist. Nanda Babu comes very close to my ideal, though perhaps he is not the perfect ideal. However, he is so big a man that it would be highly improper for me to say anything in criticism of him. Read the article I wrote on my talks with Gurudev.¹ Write to me if you wish to ask anything more.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

751. LETTER TO K. N. KATJU

SEVAGRAM,
March 1, 1945

BHAII KATJU,

I saw your letter about Father’s illness. Your wife has gone and so will Father, some day if not today. Let us do our duty. Everything rests on that.

Blessings from
BAPU

DR. KATJU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

752. LETTER TO TEJWANTI

SEVAGRAM,
March 1, 1945

CHI. TEJWANTI,

I have your letter. You should have a certificate from there. When you have that you can come here. You will have to do Ashram work and devote only the spare time to learning. Here the heat has started. It may possibly relent in June. Bear in mind that your coming here will be meaningless if there is a risk of your health being affected. It is better that you come after due deliberation. Write to me if you decide to come and start when you have my reply. I have not ¹ It is not clear which particular article Gandhiji is referring to.

asked anyone but if you wish I will do so.

Blessings from

BAPU

TEJWANTI
CHARKHA SANGH
ADAMPUR

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

753. TELEGRAM TO URMILADEVI

March 2, 1945

URMILADEVI
211, B HINDUSTAN PARK
RASHBEHARI AVENUE POST
CALCUTTA
FIRST LET ME SEE MITRA’S SCHEME. THEN HE CAN COME WHEN I WRITE.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

754. TELEGRAM TO VACHCHHRAJBHAI DOSHI

March 2, 1945

VACHCHHRAJBHAI DOSHI
PANCHGANI
WRITING NEED NOT COME.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

755. LETTER TO ALLADI K. KRISHNASWAMY IYER

March 2, 1945

DEAR FRIEND,

I enclose copies of a communication received from the Bombay Government’s departmental officials objecting to the All India Spinners’ Association carrying on its work under the name “Akhil

1 Sister of C. R. Das
Bharat Charkha Sangh” on the ground that the English title of the Association registered under the Charitable Societies’ Act should alone be used and the translated name makes it an unauthorized body prohibited by the Companies’ Act from doing business without being registered as a company under that Act. It seems to me that this is a silly objection. Kindly go through the papers and please dictate a reply to be sent to the Government of Bombay on behalf of the Spinners’ Association.

I was very sorry to learn from Rajagopalachari about the unfortunate accident which has kept you in bed suffering for the past many weeks. I hope you will soon be quite well.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

SIR ALLADI K. KRISHNASWAMY IYER
C/O SHRI A. VAIDYANATH IYER
SANDAI PETTAI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

756. NOTE TO KISHNACHANDRA

March 2, 1945

Do not worry about inconvenience to me. You may do the weaving and look after the children side by side. Spend less time talking.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4495

757. LETTER TO BALVANT SINHA

March 2, 1945

CHI. B.,

It is good you speak about home. I did remember what I had said. If I were to be asked again I would give the same answer.

I am trying to return all your letters.

I have certainly entrusted you with work of responsibility. I value your worth. Why do you worry if it is not as you wish?

I shall give you all the time you ask for to speak about me. Which would you prefer—8 o’clock in the evening or between 7 and 8 in the morning? We shall fix the time after you let me know. Which of you will be coming? It does not matter to me who comes.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 1954

758. LETTER TO GHULAM HUSAIN HIDAYATULLAH

SEVAGRAM,
March 3, 1945

DEAR PREMIER,

I have had a copy of your letter to Lala Brij Lal. You have either misquoted me or have been misguided yourself by some garbled report. Here is my full letter¹ (translated) to a Gujarati paper in Ahmedabad. You will see that in my opinion the ban should first be removed. The question of revision can arise only then. Please make the correction yourself.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

Encl. 1

SIR GHULAM HUSAIN HIDAYATULLAH
PRIME MINISTER
GOVERNMENT OF SIND
KARACHI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

759. LETTER TO L. KAMESWARARAO SARMA

SEVAGRAM,
March 3, 1945

DEAR L. KAMESWARARAO,

I have your good letter. Stick to the resolve you have conveyed to me. Leave all India alone, you have not even all the Southern naturopaths.

Dr. Sapru’s committee is not the vehicle you need. Do not be in

¹ This is not traceable.
DEAR DR. TARACHAND,

I understand and appreciate the principle involved in No. 7 of your scheme. If full local autonomy is granted to Western Bengal and East Punjab as proposed in Nos. 1 and 2 of your scheme, it may overcome the objections of the Muslim League and obviate the necessity of dividing Bengal or Punjab.

This part of your scheme should be treated as an essential condition and not be considered as mere detail.

I do not follow the argument in No. 5. If, however, the people of the areas concerned are agreeable to dispense with a plebiscite, I would not insist on it. It is a matter for consideration what, apart from a plebiscite, would be a satisfactory proof of the people being agreeable to the proposal.

I presume that the step embodied in No. 4 will be simultaneous with and an integral part of the whole scheme.

Apart from and independent of these proposals I may add that if you can induce the League to accept the award of a board, say consisting of yourself and Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru, I would accept it.

You will mark the changes I have made in your draft, which I enclose herewith.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

760. LETTER TO TARACHAND

SEVAGRAM,
March 3, 1945

DEAR DR. TARACHAND,

I understand and appreciate the principle involved in No. 7 of your scheme. If full local autonomy is granted to Western Bengal and East Punjab as proposed in Nos. 1 and 2 of your scheme, it may overcome the objections of the Muslim League and obviate the necessity of dividing Bengal or Punjab.

This part of your scheme should be treated as an essential condition and not be considered as mere detail.

I do not follow the argument in No. 5. If, however, the people of the areas concerned are agreeable to dispense with a plebiscite, I would not insist on it. It is a matter for consideration what, apart from a plebiscite, would be a satisfactory proof of the people being agreeable to the proposal.

I presume that the step embodied in No. 4 will be simultaneous with and an integral part of the whole scheme.

Apart from and independent of these proposals I may add that if you can induce the League to accept the award of a board, say consisting of yourself and Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru, I would accept it.

You will mark the changes I have made in your draft, which I enclose herewith.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI
ENCLOSURE

(a) that Mahatma-ji’s terms are an acceptance of the claim for separation according to a reasonable interpretation of the Muslim League resolution of 1940

Suggested changes shown in margin.

My interpretation of Mahatma-ji’s letter of 24th September, 1944, to Mr. Jinnah is as follows:

(a) that Mahatma-ji accepts the Muslim claim for separation as contained in the Muslim League resolution of 1940.¹

(b) Mahatma-ji is agreeable to the appointment of a commission consisting of representatives of the Congress and the League immediately for the delimitation of the boundaries of the separate sovereign States.

(c) Mahatma-ji wants that the sovereign States will immediately enter into a treaty for the purpose of

(i) safeguarding interests of minorities,

(ii) establishing a machinery for the administration of subjects of common concern.

But Mahatma-ji desires that the wishes of the inhabitants of the areas to be demarcated into sovereign States should be ascertained by a plebiscite.

Mahatma-ji does not agree with the theory that the Hindus of the whole of India or the Muslims of the whole of India constitute two separate nations. In my (Tarachand’s) opinion Mahatma-ji has substantially accepted the Muslim demand and agreed to the establishment of two sovereign and independent States in India. The differences between Mahatma-ji and Mr. Jinnah are:

(1) Mahatma-ji wants before separation a plebiscite.

(2) He does not believe in the theory of religious or communal nationality.

¹ Vide Appendix “Resolution Passed by All-India Muslim League”, 23-3-1940.
(3) He desires that the machinery for administration of matters of common interest should be embodied in the treaty of separation.

I suggest that the differences between Mahatmaji and Mr. Jinnah can be eliminated provided an agreement is arrived at as follows:

(1) The sovereign and independent States in the North-West and East and in the rest of India should be federations. The units of these federations will be, in the North-West:

(i) Baluchistan,
(ii) North-West Frontier Province,
(iii) Western and Central Punjab,
(iv) South-Eastern Punjab (one or two units)
(v) Sind.

(2) These units will have certain subjects including culture, education, personal law, etc., under the control of the governments of the units. The federal government will have the usual federal and common subjects under its control.

(3) Similarly there may be units in Bengal, if the inhabitants of Bengal so desire and the remaining India will form one federation.

(4) These two federations will by treaty establish a confederation of independent and sovereign federations for the administration of matters of common interest, e.g., defence, customs, foreign affairs, communications.

(5) The establishment of the confederation eliminates the necessity of a plebiscite, which therefore need not be held.

(6) The subjects of each federation will be the full nationals and no discrimination will be made among them on the ground of race or creed.

(7) The establishment of federations in different regions obviates the need for any large adjustment of the present boundaries of the provinces.

(8) The provisions about the establishment of federations and confederations will be embodied in the treaty of separation.

From a photostat: G.N. 5120
761. LETTER TO SAROJINI NAIDU

SEVAGRAM,
March 3, 1945

MY DEAR SINGER,

Herewith is a line of magic or no magic for Randheer in the hope that he will pull up.
But are you well?
Love.

BAPU

SMT. SAROJINI DEVI
HYDERABAD (DN.)

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

762. LETTER TO RANDHEER NAIDU

SEVAGRAM,
March 3, 1945

MY DEAR RANDHEER,

I see you enter upon a fresh year on 7th. That means one year less to live and serve. But you must will to live your full time for service. Do.
Love.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

763. LETTER TO B. G. KHER

SEVAGRAM,
March 3, 1945

BHAI BALASAHEB,

I am sure you will at any rate read the enclosed. If you can go, please do give that much time to Kathiawar. It will bear fruit. But if you really cannot go can you suggest some other name?

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 2774

1 Vide the following item.
2 Addressee’s son who died on April 30, 1945
764. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

SEVAGRAM, WARDHA,
March 3, 1945

CHI. NARANDAS,

I have also forwarded to Balasaheb, with my recommendation, your letter addressed to me. He may not come for a month, in which case I have requested him to suggest another name. Perhaps Kanaiyo can be of help there. He is of course writing to him. Let us see what happens.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./II. Also C.W. 8621. Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi

765. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

March 3, 1945

CHI. MUNNALAL,

I have gone through all your letters. I did not feel there was anything in them which Su. should see. If I have done an injustice, haven’t I washed it off by permitting you to write without any restraint? The truth is that I have done you no injustice. Your way was clear. You should not have said anything. “We are more than even brother and sister. Why should we involve even you in this?”

I will approve of a catering service. Why should then there be any need for separate arrangements for the Ashram? Everyone can feed there. A catering service could mean that one should be served what one ordered, subject to the normal limitations of the service. The present kitchen itself may be turned into a catering service. That would solve the problem and save us all from bother.

There is no such thing as an avatar. If there is, then all of us are avatars. Aren’t we, whether we know it or not, each a part of His being? Rama was not the only avatar. Narasimha also was one, and so were the Fish and the Tortoise. Weren’t the monkeys partial avatars? The question you have raised ought not to have been raised at all. I do not see the Ashram as a hospital. But in any case this work serves a useful purpose. It can be organized as a separate department, with separate quarters and kitchen. Others would then be concerned with it only when they needed medicine. I thus see no reason for bitterness.

1 Vide the preceding item.

Today I have received letters from Kishorelabhai and some others in this connection. I should indeed like some of you to read them. If you too think like them you should leave me, or let me go. I am ready for either contingency. I am not in the least afraid of the charge against me, but I am of you all, for any step you take will depend on yourself or myself or ourselves. I had already drafted the public statement I intended to issue, before I received the above mentioned letters. I had been thinking of it for the last two days, but could find the time only today.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 5836. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

766. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH
March 3, 1945

You or Sushila should have said it—either to yourselves or aloud—and then calmed down, because you two and others like you are and should be more to each other than brother and sister. I myself should have supplied the quotation marks. But surely I cannot attend to all that. The best thing would be for you to come—either at 5.30 or after 3.30—and remove them.

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 8640

767. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA
March 3, 1945

CHI. KRISHNACHANDRA,
Shall I tell Aryanayakum or write to him on your behalf about the library?
Be firm in not indulging in idle talk.
You have interpreted “evidence” correctly.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4494

1 Vide “Letter to Munnalal G. Shah”, 3-3-1945. The quotation marks are, however, from the source.
768. LETTER TO GHANSHYAMSINGH

Sevagram,
March 3, 1945

Bhai Ghanshyamsingh,

I have your letter. I have written to the head. I send you a copy of the letter. There is nothing more that remains to be done, is there?¹

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

769. LETTER TO SHANTABEHN

Sevagram,
March 3, 1945

Chi. Shantabehn,

What Yash has sent me is I suppose a copy. It is all right, but what have I done? Write to the Government about your health. Show me the letter before you send it.

Blessings from
Bapu

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

770. LETTER TO VENKATESHWAR RAO

Sevagram,
March 3, 1945

Dear Friend,²

Your letter is certainly all right. I hope you will get it. You do much writing. Let me have your requirement with details. The doctors will scrutinize it and then place it before the committee. You will get the help on the same conditions as the others do.

Blessings from
Bapu

Venkateshwar Rao
Naturopath
Gandhi Ashram
Komarovolu, Andhra

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ The letter is unsigned.
² This is in English.
APPENDICES

APPENDIX I

LETTER FROM K. M. MUNSHI

BOMBAY VIEW,
MATHERAN,
October 12, 1944

RESPECTED BAPU,

Received your letter dated the 9th. . . .

I too believe in freedom of speech. But the question before me on the night of 1-8-39 was to quell the dreadful riot that had just begun. It was my duty to take promptly all the measures that were imperative to bring the situation under control. And I had (also) to see that some three or four papers that fanned the (communal) passion did not add fuel to the fire. I did not think I was disregarding the principle of freedom of speech in keeping a check on it when it was misused. Even today I do not think so.

My Jaipur speech was the result of my study of that problem. You will not find any contradiction in it if I put it (before you) point by point. . . .

(1) Sanskrit is our most valuable treasure. With its help alone we can make our languages as powerful as English and French. . . .

(2) The power of our language which can express thought and creative endeavour belongs in general to the Sanskrit element. And so, if we are going to evolve in India a medium for expressing our thoughts and literature there is no alternative except resorting to the use of Sanskrit words. . . . Today I have before me the problem of the technical terms for law, philosophy and psychology. Where can we have the Indian medium except from Sanskrit? . . . I do not think I have drifted away from your stand at Nagpur (and) Indore and which I had accepted.

(3) I do not also see any opposition to the Congress policy in my address. As I have understood, the Congress aims to make the colloquial Hindustani a common medium for the whole country. . . . But how can the colloquial Hindustani be the medium of thought or literature? The moment it attempts to be (any) such thing, it has got to seek the help of Sanskrit or Perso-Arabic words. . . . I cannot speak in that language unless I use Sanskrit words. There is no intentional Sanskritization; nothing else is possible.

(4) If Hindustani is to be the medium in the legislatures or the colleges, there are bound to be two forms of the language: one will be Sanskritized (and) the other Persianized. . . .

1 Only extracts are reproduced here; vide “Letter to K. M. Munshi”, 9-10-1944.
(5) One reason why you have not liked my address may be that in one paragraph the experiment of the ‘Hindustani Samiti’ (carried on) under your guidance is criticized. What the Samiti is attempting to do is not the propagation of ‘colloquial Hindustani’ but evolving a new style. Among its characteristics are: (1) abandoning the \textit{tatsama} forms of Sanskrit words, (2) incorporating the \textit{tatsama} forms of Persian words, (3) introducing an Arabic or a Persian word in the form of an Urdu word even if a \textit{tatsama} Sanskrit word has been traditionally accepted, (4) giving preference to Persian words in cases where both Sanskrit and Persian words are current. . . .

\textit{Yours respectfully,
KANU MUNSHI}

\textit{Pilgrimage to Freedom, pp. 446 9}

\textbf{APPENDIX II}

\textit{A STATEMENT\textsuperscript{1}}

\textit{SEVAGRAM, October 29, 1944}

Talks about the possibility of Gandhiji going on a fast have upset many friends and co-workers. Their love for him makes them shudder at the very thought of his undergoing the ordeal of another fast at his age and in his present state of health. Although he is keeping fairly fit and is putting in a full day’s work his reserve of energy is low. He is still slightly anaemic and the two intestinal parasites, hook-worm and amoebae, which are lying latent at present, can get the upper hand at any moment if his general condition is run down. Moreover, they feel that a fast on his part at this stage will add to the general demoralization and increase the popular bitterness against the Government.

Gandhiji is not perturbed by considerations of his age or his frailness. His stand has always been that if God wants to take work from him He will spare him. If his work is over, there is no point in prolonging his sojourn in this world. However, friends have a right to feel that it is not wise to tempt Providence too often.

As for the risk of increase of demoralization and bitterness as a result of the fast, he does not think it likely. A purely non-violent act cannot result in such a thing.

As for why he thinks he may have to fast, he said that ever since his release from prison he had an instinctive feeling that another fast lay in store for him. Of late that feeling had taken a more concrete form. The organized violence and slaughter of Truth all over has oppressed him deeply. To take a few illustrations, the cause of millions dying of starvation according to him is not altogether scarcity of food. Food is allowed to rot in godowns while people die for the want of it. It is a sad tale of mismanagement and corruption. Those who grow food have to go without it. The Government officials, instead of being their protectors, are acting as their exploiters. And it is not the Government officials alone who are to blame. Our own people, middlemen, petty traders and big merchants have not hesitated to make money at the cost of human life. It is a tragedy. Unofficial and official exploitation go on side by side. Without the former, the latter can have no locus standi. From top to bottom the whole system is corrupt. The Government connives at unofficial corruption. That is the way in which violence works. It organizes all the forces of evil. As against this non-violence must act by organizing all the forces of goodness.

\textsuperscript{1} \textit{Vide} “Statement on Proposed Fast”, 29-10-1944.

If the nation had the control of the Government, this terrible bribery and corruption, which might if at all find its parallel in the bribery and corruption of Lord Clive's days, would not take place. A national government having the confidence of the people can very largely mitigate their sufferings. But there seems to be no chance of it. He described to what lengths he had gone to woo the Viceroy. But the Government were blinded by the intoxication of power. The vision of victory, which would be no victory but merely preparation for another war, had made them indifferent. How was he to demonstrate the efficacy of non-violence under the circumstances? How could he relieve the sufferings of the dumb millions? By conducting a mass movement? He had already showed why it was not to be thought of. He could not lead or bless a mass disobedience movement today. Then what could he do? He had claimed that non-violence was always more than a match for violence however well organized. How could he make that claim good? At the beginning of the War, English friends had written to him asking how individual pacifists could fight spreading wave of violence and bloodshed. He had suggested fasting as one of the remedies. Some of them had laughed at the suggestion, but he stuck to it. A time might come for him to test that remedy in his own case. That was perhaps the only way to wake up the conscience of mankind.

Untouchability was another manifestation of violence. He had repeated it from house-tops that if untouchability lived Hinduism must perish. The two could not go on side by side. Though much progress was made why did it still persist?

Then. there was the question of communal disharmony. It was also a manifestation of violence. He had striven against it from his early youth.

Why did his non-violence appear to be impotent in the face of these various manifestations of untruth and violence? Was he an unworthy exponent of non-violence? Should he not again crucify the flesh in order to become a better instrument? Knowing the remedy, how could he evade it? That the fast might fail to bring about the desired result or might end in death should not be a deterrent.

Asked about the nature of the fast, he said he did not know it himself. He was still groping. He was not aware as to when it would come, if at all. All he could say was that the call was insistent.

If the fast did come, he hoped that the people would not become panicky or grief-stricken. He expected them to co-operate with him in clearing the air of violence in every shape or form. That was the best way of ending the fast and even of preventing it.

Gandhi-Sapru Papers. Courtesy; National Library, Calcutta

APPENDIX III

LETTER FROM T. B. SAPRU

Personal October 25, 1944

MY DEAR GANDHIJI,

I have just read in The Hindustan Times of the 24th of October your statement issued after the enquiry made by Mr. Horniman as to whether you are contemplating another fast to achieve communal unity. I know I have no place as an adviser in these matters and I am most reluctant to offer advice to anyone in regard to any matter which is based on spiritual considerations. I am approaching the whole thing from a secular point of view. I think it would be a great mistake to undertake a fast at this time of your life. The consequences might be disastrous. I do not think that your fast will be helpful in the solution of the communal problem. You may undertake a fast by way of penance, purification or protest, but the real question is as to what effect it is going to produce on the minds of those without whose agreement there can be no communal settlement. I do not think those who are taking a different view will be at all influenced by your fast. Indeed some of them may uncharitably suggest that you are putting undue pressure on them. Personally speaking I think that it is very necessary that you must continue to live. Your failure on the last occasion does not mean that you will always fail. Your motives are pure and I think your approach to the whole question is sound, if I may respectfully say so. What you have not been able to achieve so far, God willing, you may achieve it a few months later. I consider it my duty to write to you as plainly as I possibly can against the step which is said to be within your contemplation.

You will forgive me if I have encroached upon your time . . . .

With kindest regards,

Yours sincerely,

MAHATMA M. K. GANDHI
SEVAGRAM
WARDHA, C.P.

Gandhi-Sapru Papers. Courtesy: National Library, Calcutta

1 Vide Letter to T. B. Sapru”, 1-11-1944.
APPENDIX IV

(a) LETTER FROM T. B. SAPRU

Personal and Confidential

GYAN BAGH,
HYDERABAD DECCAN,
November 4, 1944

MY DEAR MAHATMAJI,

Your two letters of the 1st and the 3rd of November were handed over to me yesterday at the Wardha station by Devdas. I also received your letter through Dr. Beni Prasad.

I have not issued any statement about an All Parties Conference but have written to certain friends and am awaiting their replies. The idea seems to me to be vague and indefinite. We must decide as to who are the persons to be invited and what will be the agenda. It is quite clear that the gentlemen whom we invite will not come there in their representative capacity. Your presence at the Conference will be a source of great strength and you can certainly make a statement telling us in plain language as to what led to the breakdown of the conversations at Bombay. You say the Conference may meet to consider the causes of the failure of the talks and to find whose fault it was which led to the breakdown. I should not advise that Conference to find whose fault it was, because once we do it will lead to interminable controversy. If we call such a Conference and hear you I think we may consider what further steps it is necessary to take to solve the problem. From this point of view the proposed conference will be an exploratory one and may thus ‘inform and educate public opinion’.

I am very anxious that you should on no account undertake a fast. I know how deeply spiritual you are and I also know that in your case the call of religion means much more than in the case of 99 out of a hundred. You will pardon me if I take a matter-of-fact and practical view of the thing. I am definitely certain that although it may bring solace to your heart and you may feel that you have done the penance for what you consider to be the evils of the present day, your fast will not melt the heart of your opponents. On the contrary I feel some of them may be uncharitable enough to attribute to you unworthy motives. Never before in our history was it more necessary than now that you should live to guide the people of this country on tile true path of nationalism. My own conviction is and has been for years that irrespective of what the British Government may or may not do this monster of communalism should be killed. Whatever your critics may say I honestly believe that you are the one man in the country who does not think on communal lines and it would be a disaster for the country if it was deprived at this juncture of your guidance.

1 Vide “Letter to T. B. Sapru”, 3-11-1944.
You are the one man who can withstand opposition, ridicule and even the attribution of unworthy motives to you. Above all you have the courage to take the right line. I am saying that in absolute sincerity even though I differ from you and have differed from you in regard to civil disobedience.

I have told Devdas that according to my information some changes in high quarters may be expected, but whether that information is true or not, the existing situation cannot last very long and when the time comes for practical steps to be taken towards the settlement of national differences I believe your voice will be the determining factor. I do not want that voice to be silenced. I am, therefore, appealing to you with all the earnestness I am capable of not to undertake such a fast.

As regards my coming to Wardha if I can get away on the evening of the 7th or the 8th and arrangements can be made for reservations from Wardha to Itarsi and from Itarsi to Allahabad I should in response to your message like to break journey at Wardha for a few hours. . . .

With my profound regards,

Yours sincerely,

MAHATMA M. K. GANDHI

SEVAGRAM

WARDHA, C.P.

Gandhi-Sapru Papers. Courtesy: National Library, Calcutta

(b) A RESOLUTION

The Standing Committee of the non-party Conference, having considered the present situation in view of the breakdown of the Gandhi-Jinnah talks on the communal issue, hereby resolves to appoint a committee which will examine the whole communal and minorities question from a constitutional and political point of view, put itself in touch with different parties and their leaders including the minorities interested in the question and present a solution within two months to the Standing Committee of the Non Party Conference. The Standing Committee will take all reasonable steps to get that solution accepted by all parties concerned.

The Standing Committee authorises the Right Hon’ble Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru to appoint members of the Committee and announce their names in due course.

Gandhi-Sapru Papers. Courtesy: National Library, Calcutta

This was sent to T.B. Sapru by Devdas Gandhi under instructions from Gandhiji. Vide “Letter to T. B. Sapru”, 3-11-1944 and “Letter to Vikram A. Sarabhai”, 27-11-1944.
(c) NAMES SUGGESTED FOR CONCILIATION COMMITTEE

The Standing Committee of the non-party Conference should meet at Delhi on the 18th November 1944 and appoint the following committee for the purpose mentioned hereinafter:

1. Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru, Chairman;
2. Sir B. N. Rau;
3. The Metropolitan of Calcutta;
4. Sir Maurice Gwyer;
5. Sir N. Gopalaswami Ayyangar;
6. Mr. Syed Abdulla Brelvi;
7. Sir Mirza Ismail;
8. Mr. Kasturi Srinivasan;
9. Sir S. Radhakrishnan;
10. Mr. J. R. D. Tata (or Sir Homi Modi);
11. Raja Sir Maharaj Singh;
12. Dr. Zakir Husain;
13. Dr. Abdul Huq;
14. Mr. Muniswami Pillai; and
15. Sardar Sant Singh

The purpose of the committee will be as follows:

In view of the breakdown of the Gandhi-Jinnah talks on the communal issue the committee will examine the whole question from a constitutional and political point of view, put itself in touch with the parties and their leaders interested in the question and present a solution within two months and take all reasonable steps to get that solution accepted by all parties concerned.

WARDHA, 9-11-1944

Gandhi-Sapru Papers. Courtesy: National Library, Calcutta

---

1 Vide “Letter to T. B. Sapru”, 3-11-1944.
APPENDIX V

LETTER FROM DURLAB SINGH

Lahore,
November 12, 1944

RESPECTED BAPUJI,

... The Congress had promised in its Lahore Resolution of 1929 that no constitution would be acceptable to the Congress which does not give the fullest satisfaction to the Sikhs. You know a large number of Sikhs are perturbed over Rajaji’s proposals. Supposing Mr. Jinnah had accepted the proposals in full, or in an amended form, what would have been the position of the Sikhs in that?

Even the Akalis feel very indignant because you did not touch the question of meeting a Sikh deputation as suggested by Master Tara Singh in his letter. Can you please make it clear why it was not considered desirable to invite the Sikh leaders before proceeding to Mr. Jinnah for the talks?

Mr. Jagat Narain Lal’s Resolution clearly states that the Congress would be no party to the vivisection of the country. Is it not a fact that Rajaji’s proposals run counter to that resolution? The Sikh public is made to believe that Gandhiji does not favour the idea of the Sikhs remaining in the Congress because of their belief in the sword... . . .

Master Tara Singh and other responsible Akali leaders have often declared in the Press and on the platform that the Sikander-Baldev Singh Pact was enacted with the consent and blessings of the Congress High Command and Sardar Patel’s special representative who was present in the Punjab throughout the negotiations and that the Sardar was kept informed of all the developments. Further, it is said that the Azad Punjab scheme was introduced with your consent and blessings. The nationalist Sikhs regard both the schemes as anti-national and opposed to the interests of the country and the community. Can you kindly guide us in the matter?

In the end I will request you, Bapuji, to give a general assurance to the nationalist Sikhs that their interests are safe in your hands and that they will not be sacrificed at any cost. The heart of the Sikh masses is with the Congress and nationalism and patriotism are their proud heritage. They cannot depart from these principles, but let them have this satisfaction at least that the Congress will do no injustice to them and... that they will have their proper place in free India.

Praying for your long life,

Yours sincerely,

DURLAB SINGH

The Indian Annual Register, 1944, Vol. II, pp. 221-2

1Vide “Letter to Durlabh Singh”, 14-11-1944
APPENDIX VI

RESOLUTION PASSED BY A.I.S.A.¹

[On or before December 3, 1944]

A meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Charkha Sangh was held at Sevagram on the 1st, 2nd and 3rd December 1944, under the presidentship of Shree Gandhiji and the following decisions were taken:

The roots of the spinning-wheel lie in the villages and the consummation of the ideal of the Charkha Sangh is to be completely decentralized among the villages of India to bring about an all-round improvement of village life. This meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Charkha Sangh therefore resolves that with a view to this end the following changes should be made in the policy of the Sangh:

(i) As many qualified workers as are ready and are selected by the Board should be sent to work in the villages.

(ii) The activities of the existing sale depots and production centres of khadi should be curtailed.

(iii) Necessary changes should be made in the curricula of the existing khadi training centres and their scope broadened. New training centres should also be opened.

(iv) If in any area (not bigger than a district) the workers ask to be made self-sufficient and autonomous in order to begin work on the new lines laid down by the Charkha Sangh the Sangh should, if it approves of their plans, withdraw from that area but continue to give its recognition and moral support so long as the work is carried on according to its policy.

(v) A Joint Board of the nominees of the Charkha Sangh, Gram Udyog Sangh, Harijan Sevak Sangh and Goseva Sangh should be constituted to meet from time to time and issue instructions in terms of the new policy.

The Sangh shall be represented in the Joint Board by its President, its Secretary and Shri Dhirendra Majmudar, while the other four Sanghs shall have two nominees each besides Gandhiji.

The Bombay Chronicle, 18-1-1945

¹ Vide “Resolution Passed by A.I.S.A. Trustees”, 1-12-1944.
APPENDIX VII

GUIDELINES FOR PROPOSED INTERIM GOVERNMENT

January 5, 1945

The following were the various steps proposed to be taken in this behalf as they emerged from their discussion and the elucidations provided by Gandhiji from time to time:

1. The Congress and the League would agree that they would join in forming an Interim Government in the Centre (a) consisting of equal numbers of persons nominated by the Congress and the League in the Central Legislature, (b) representatives of minorities, and (c) the Commander-in-Chief.

2. While the Government would be formed and would function within the framework of the existing Government of India Act, it would be clearly understood between the Congress and the League that any measure not passed by the House should not be enforced or sought to be enforced by any of the powers of the Governor-General under the Constitution. This would serve to eliminate in action the veto of the Governor-General and make the nominees responsible to the elected Legislature.

3. The European member, if one had to be included, should be the choice of the Congress and the League.

4. It should be agreed between the Congress and the League in advance that if such Interim Government was formed their first step would be to release the members of the Working Committee. A firm and clear commitment of the League in regard to this would be a preliminary proof of its bona fides.

5. Bhulabhai must make sure before committing himself to anything that the agreement he had in view had the previous approval of Jinnah and the whole thing should be clarified and reduced to writing so as not to lead to any ambiguity or misunderstanding afterwards.

6. If such a Government was formed at the Centre, the next step would be to get the withdrawal of Governor’s rule in the Provinces and to form, as soon as possible, Provincial Governments on the lines of a coalition.

7. At the proper moment Gandhiji would tell the Working Committee that Bhulabhai had acted with his approval.

\(^1\)Vide “Note to Bhulabhai J. Desai”, 5-1-1945.
APPENDIX VIII

LETTER FROM P. C. JOSHI

BOMBAY,
February 1, 1945

DEAR GANDHIJI,

My last letter to you was dated 28th September, 1944. You had promised in an earlier letter that you will refer the question of our moral bona fides and your what I may call anti-Communist file to your worthy colleagues. I hope they have reached their conclusions and reported to you. But I have not heard anything from you yet.

You perhaps do not know that your name is being used against us in the recent Congressmen’s Conferences and even otherwise by persons who pretend to know your mind, etc. I know that most of what they attribute to you could never have been said by you. But my own lips are sealed till my correspondence with you is concluded over the questions you asked me and they were very serious questions, doubting our elementary patriotic and moral bona fides. I hope with the help of your Working Committee colleagues” you have reached the conclusion that we are not unworthy children of our great people.

Great things are happening in the world but our country is going to pieces. We are anxious to write to you on the big political issues but as I wrote to you before” it will be waste of your time and mine till you are convinced about our intellectual honesty and moral integrity.

I understand from Dr. Mahmud that you think that you are the aggrieved party. This is exactly the opposite of what we feel. I” of course, meant no offence but only expressed my indignation at my Party being slandered and offered to go into the dock straightaway. I do not know what else I could do. Sjt. Bhulabhai and Mrs. Naidu had promised to speed up the matter but I have not heard from them at all. Rajaji told me that he had already told you all that he had to.

May I request you for an answer as soon as you can and to get your colleagues speed up their report to you.

I could send Mohan to pick up the answer and answer any further questions he feels himself qualified to tackle. I am going to Bengal for three weeks today. Could your answer be ready by the time I am back? Mohan will be very busy in my absence and will find it very difficult to come there in February” unless you specially want him to; but any date after 7 March will be best.

With respectful salutations,

Yours sincerely,

P. C. JOSHI

Correspondence between Mahatma Gandhi and P. C. Joshi, pp. 38-9

APPENDIX IX

LETTER FROM T. B. SAPRU

January 13, 1945

MY DEAR MAHATMAJI,

I hope you are better now. I have been reading the news about your health in the newspapers.

I have now much pleasure in sending you herewith a copy of the questionnaire framed by the committee of which I am the Chairman. I dare say your attention has already been called to it. I shall be extremely grateful to you if you will favour the committee with a short memorandum stating your views generally and answering the questions or such of them as you prefer to answer.

So far there has been a good response to the committee excepting in certain quarters. Mr. Jinnah has declined to recognize the committee or to meet me as Chairman of the committee though he has no objection to meeting me in my individual capacity. Dr. Ambedkar promised support when we first met in November last at Delhi but has withdrawn it because he has objection to the personnel of the committee. The attitude of the Sikhs has been very encouraging so far. I am going on the 16th of January to Lahore to see the Sikh and Hindu leaders and shall try also to meet such Muslim leaders as have no objection to meeting me.

The work of the committee is being done at great pressure. We have already collected much material and more will be ready soon. I do not wish to trouble you with details but I shall be extremely grateful if you will favour me with a short memorandum. I am also sending you separately the two pamphlets already brought out, others are in the course of being printed.

With kindest regards and best wishes for your early recovery,

Yours sincerely,

Encl. Questionnaire

MAHATMA M. K. GANDHI
SEVAGRAM, WARDHA, C. P.

Gandhi-Sapru Papers. Courtesy: National Library, Calcutta

1. FOREWORD TO “AHAR ANE POSHAN”

When Dr. Kumarappa has given such an excellent introduction, what more is there for me to say? But Shri Jhaverbhai’s 2 love would not leave me alone. For his sake I have gone through the pamphlet from beginning to end. I was not inclined to argue over technical details. Dr. Sushila was with me. I made her read out to me the entire thing. She made a few suggestions which occurred to her. Jhaverbhai made the necessary improvements. This means that this pamphlet hears the stamp of Dr. Sushila and Dr. Manshankar. I liked the pamphlet. Its language is simple and lucid. I hope that this pamphlet will be read by thousands.

M. K. GANDHI

SEVAGRAM,
March 4, 1945

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 1358. Also Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

2. NOTE TO GOPE GURBUXANI

March 4, 1945

Conscience has to be awakened. There are rules and observances for the purpose. Not everyone can be said to have his conscience awakened.

From a photostat: G.N. 1320

---

1 “Diet and Nutrition”. This was, however, not used in the book. Another foreword which Gandhiji wrote in Gujarati was published instead; vide “Foreword to Ahar Ane Poshan”, 7-3-1945.

2 Jhaverbhai Patel. He was in charge of the oil-presses in Maganwadi.

3 Manshankar

4 The addressee who was staying at the Sevagram Ashram had asked: “Truth is God, but what is Truth? Is it a thing which appeals to our conscience?”
3. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

March 4, 1945

CHI. MU.,

See my revised [statement] and then speak to me.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 5838. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

4. LETTER TO GOPALASWAMI AYYANGAR

SEVAGRAM,
March 5, 1945

DEAR FRIEND,

I was delighted to hear from you. I entirely agree with you regarding the States. As to foreign rule, I could not open the subject with Q.A. Jinnah. He has excluded the States from his calculation. You have not expected me to give any thought to the rest of your scheme. For my opinion is that when the whole of foreign rule goes from the whole of India, then only we shall be free to think with a true sense of responsibility.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

SIT. GOPALASWAMI AYYANGAR
WINDSOR PLACE
NEW DELHI

From a copy : Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar
5. NOTE TO GOPE GURBUXANI

March 5, 1945

Why is it easier to go down or slip down than to rise up step by step? By subduing the flesh, i.e., the beast.

From a photostat: G.N. 1321

6. LETTER TO AMRITLAL V. THAKKAR

SEVAGRAM,
March 5, 1945

Herewith the statement on Orissa. Whatever changes it was possible to make have been made. Ramabehn intends to take the responsibility. We have therefore to place it before the committee. Chi. Mridula most probably knows about it. The medical part of it will have to be shown to the doctors.

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

7. LETTER TO DINSHAW K. MEHTA

SEVAGRAM,
March 5, 1945

CHI. DINSHAW,

I have your letter. You did well in writing to Kaleswara. My visit to Bangalore is not going to come about. And if it does, it will be for those people to decide where I put up. But you simply reply to them: “His going there unlikely.”

It seems I have forgotten to write about, the teacher-student relationship. I am not worthy to be anyone’s teacher. But if you consider yourself my student and conduct yourself accordingly, how can I stop you from doing so?

1 The addressee had asked: “Why is it easier to pick up vice than virtue? How should one rise from the grossness to which the flesh is prone?”

2 This is in English.
You should certainly not feel disappointed if your expectations are not fulfilled. You have had glorious success. And where I am, there cannot be disappointment. Let us see what happens in April.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

8. LETTER TO GULBEHN D. MEHTA

SEVAGRAM,

March 5, 1945

CHL. GULBEHN,

I was happy to have your letter. Had Sushila not seen Dinshaw, I would not have known about his distress. In fact there was no cause at all for him to be distressed. Nothing had been lost. Now you have to give him courage. How can you afford to lose heart?

You will bring Ardeshar with you in April. Won’t you? One may say he is now fairly grown up. It is beginning to be quite hot during the day here.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

9. LETTER TO JHAVERBHAI PATEL

SEVAGRAM,

March 5, 1945

CHL. JHAVERBHAI,

On the reverse is the Foreword.¹ I wrote it yesterday. I remember having written something like it before. Are you sure it is not in your note book?

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 1368. Also Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Vide “Foreword to Ahar Ane Poshan”, 4-3-1945.

THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
10. LETTER TO MANZAR ALI SOKHTA

SEVAGRAM,
March 5, 1945

BHAJ MANZAR ALI1,

I have gone through the whole thing. Here the question is one of principle. I am sure that an intellectual can do better than an artisan. If he does not, then he cannot become an administrator. The entire history of England bears testimony to this. But I will not interfere. If your experience tells you to do otherwise, do so. The Trust is all right.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

11. NOTE TO GOPE GURBUXANI

March 5, 1945

Brahmacharya plays an important role in subduing the brute within us. This is my definition: Brahmacharya is that path by which we realize the Brahman. This path lies in completely controlling the five sense organs, the five motor organs and the eleventh, the mind. I have deliberately replied in Hindustani.2

From the Hindi original: G.N. 1322

1 A Congress Worker of U. P.
2 The addressee had asked: “What part does brahmacharya play in the subjugation of the flesh and what is your definition of the word brahmacharya for married people?”
12. INTERVIEW TO ORIENT PRESS

March 5, 1945

When asked by the representative of the Orient Press on what he had to say about the recent warning given to local Congress workers by the District Magistrate, Nagpur, Gandhi said:

Congressmen who have associated for the fulfilment of our constructive programme need not be agitated over what local governments say or do. Whether their policy is merely local or represents the Centre, they should learn to shed fear.

The District Magistrate’s strictures if they are properly reported are undoubtedly revealing. They need not alarm us.

In reply to another question as to how without any political action and only by social and economic improvement the country could reach its destined goal as revealed by him in his statement published on 20th February, Gandhi replied:

I must refer you to my statement and you may ask yourself whether, if the programme is universally responded to, it will not lead to swaraj. Indeed the Muslim League and even the Government should join in its prosecution if they are honest about independence.

When asked what he thought about anti-Indian propaganda carried on in America by Britishers Gandhi replied:

Anti-Indian British propaganda should not matter if we are truthful.

The Hitavada, 6-3-1945
13. A LETTER

_March 6, 1945_

My guidance is of no use for you. I do not know your staying capacity or your father’s. Hence you should act as you think proper. You know my general advice as I see from your letter.

M. K. GANDHI

From a copy: C.W. 10520. Courtesy: Government of Assam

14. LETTER TO ADRIENNE

_SEVAGRAM, March 6, 1945_

DEAR ADRIENNE,

Your sweet note. You will be doing well if you will never swerve from the truth you have found with sufficient labour.

Love.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

15. LETTER TO CHIMANLAL N. SHAH

_SEVAGRAM, March 6, 1945_

CHI. CHIMANLAL,

What do you mean when you say, “Leave aside the question of sleeping together”? I do not know how to solve your difficulty. Why don’t you explain it to me more clearly? There is no need now for Balvant Sinha to go to Nathji1. But if there is, let him go with such other persons as you choose to send. Come over at 3.30

_Blessings from_

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10618

---

1 Kedarnath Kulkarni
CHI. MU.,

Why need you feel embarrassed? This problem cannot be solved in that way. Ask me any question you wish without the slightest hesitation. My statement has undergone some revision and may undergo more. I don’t wish to exclude anybody. I have mentioned four. Perhaps they will say, “We were not objects of your experiment; we slept with you as with a mother.” I would not contradict them. It is enough here to mention that such a thing has happened. I don’t consider Abha, Kanchan and Vina as part of the experiment. If we distinguish between sleeping together and the experiment, the difference between the two in my view is a big one. Abha slept with me for hardly three nights. Kanchan slept one night only. Vina’s sleeping with me might be called an accident. All that can be said is that she slept close to me. If Abha had continued, her case would have been and altogether different one. Kanchan’s case was rather tragic. I didn’t understand her at all. What Abha or Kanchan told me was this; that she had no intention whatever of observing brahmacharya, but wished to enjoy the pleasure of sex. She, therefore, stayed only reluctantly and undressed only for fear of hurting me. If I remember rightly, she was not with me even for an hour. I then stopped both the women sleeping with me, for I realized that Kanu and you were upset. I myself advised them that they should tell you both and also Bhansali. You will thus see that these three names cannot be included in the experiment. Lilavati, Amtussalaam, Rajkumari and Prabhavati are not here. I have deliberately included Pra. in the experiment. Maybe I should not. She often used to sleep with me to keep me warm even before I was conscious that I was making an experiment. I used to draw her to me when she lay on the floor, shivering, for my sake. This is an old, old story. I think I have now told you everything. If you have any more questions, you may ask me. Kanchan’s labouring under a misunderstanding pained me, but I was helpless.

I formed no judgment regarding Sushila and you. I did not get sufficient material, for doing that either. If she herself wishes and you too wish it, I would spare some time and hear you both. I will examine witnesses and try to weigh the evidence. But let me repeat that if you two feel as brother and sister to each other, you should not ask even your father to examine you and pronounce judgment. But do as you wish.

I understand about a separate kitchen. I shall try. Will the purchase of provisions for the hospital and the Ashram kitchens be under one account or two? I see that a catering service can be run only if it is managed by a third party. I think this is enough for today. About the third party and going to villages, etc., later on. I have not revised this. If you feel that anything needs correction, ask me.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 5841. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

17. LETTER TO SHRIMAN NARAYAN

SEVAGRAM,
March 6, 1945

CHI. SHRIMAN NARAYAN,

I have made a few changes.¹ There is no need to explain them. I have deleted clause eleven. If it is necessary to have it, we shall give it elsewhere. Remember we have decided that we shall strive to become one nation but the movement for swaraj cannot remain in abeyance till we have succeeded in that. The question of language should be removed from that area. It is true that greater unity will be achieved if the two forms are combined.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRIMAN NARAYAN
MAHILA ASHRAM
WARDHA
[From Hindi]

Panchaven Putrako Bapuke Ashirvad, p. 304

¹ In the scheme for propagation of Hindustani which the addressee had submitted to Gandhi
18. NOTE TO KRISHNACHANDRA

March 6, 1945

You have raised a pertinent question. I am dealing with it patiently. Asha Devi, Aryanayakum, etc., are looking after this. All the papers are with them.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4496

19. NOTE TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

March 6, 1945

This discussion is somewhat out of place because at present nothing is happening. For this too friends are responsible. I have gone as far as I could to satisfy them. It will not be proper for me to do anything until I have satisfied my co-workers. I am as much against compromise as I am for it. For this very reason my elder brother remained my enemy for 13 years. He asked my forgiveness five or six months before his death. My caste also became my enemy in the same manner. Now it does not show any feeling of animosity. But quite a few sanatanists are still opposed to me. On this account I let myself be deprived of lakhs of rupees. I used to be a friend of the Empire. Today I have become its enemy. What more need I say? I showed the door to a wife like Ba. Thus, I am what I am. There is therefore no point in talking about the welfare of society. What else may I give up? I cannot give up thinking. As far as possible I have postponed the practice of sleeping together. But it cannot be given up altogether. You can say that ever since I went to England I have been pursuing the idea of brahmacharya. It has not harmed anyone. It is true of course that I should do what others too can be permitted to do. If I can restrain myself and sleep beside a woman, others can also do so on the same condition. They can fulfil that condition if they so wish.

The same applies to non-violence. If I completely give up sleeping together, my brahmacharya will be put to shame. It is not that I would do anything for the mere pleasure of it. I have not done it for years, and I shall not do it now. It is true that people may indulge in licentiousness by imitating me. Who can stop it? Is there any place where asatyagraha\(^1\) has never been practised in the name of satyagraha? In any case, the thing has been postponed because it calls for consideration. But since there is need for a halt let it be so. You can ask any questions. I suggest that you should not ask questions individually. You may all discuss it among yourselves and then ask questions. Let it be understood that right now everything is postponed. Manu has been left alone by the others. Hence there is scope for a mature deliberation. I claim that whatever I have done I have done in the name of God. I go to bed reciting His name. I have got up with His name on my lips. So it is in my dreams, whether alone or with some woman. What God will make me do in days to come He alone knows.

1 Gandhiji wrote this for the addressee when the latter met him at 3.30 p. m.

Such restrictions should not be imposed on me. Kishorelalbhai’s business should be left to him. Do not drag him into this matter. My advice is that everybody should join hands and stand by him. There is no need to plead his case before me. I am glad that I have answered your question but I am not in a position to listen.

I have said that right now everything stands postponed, leaving aside Manu. But Kishorelal is not satisfied with this. It is your duty to understand him. He is right when he says: “I was not consulted at first. Now I shall not create any confusion.” In the present situation whoever has any doubt in his mind should follow him. I would in any case do that. I would not create difficulties for him. You should consider his delicate health when you bother him. If you do this you will be serving him, no doubt, but you will also be serving me. My love for him is certainly no less than my love for my brother. What more can I do?

From a copy of the Hindi: C.W. 5891. Courtesy: Munナルal G. Shah

20. FOREWORD TO “GANDHIJI’S CORRESPONDENCE WITH THE GOVERNMENT”

I have read the introduction as also the originals. The introduction may be good enough for the hasty reader, but the publication is not designed for the hasty reader. It is designed for the serious worker who can affect the politics of his country and even the world affairs. To such my advice is that he must read the originals. The introduction may be used as such and as an aid to memory. I want the readers I have in view to take me at my word. I have written as I felt at the moment as a seeker of long standing of Truth and Non-violence. I have written without reservation and without embellishment.

\(^1\) Opposite of satyagraha.

After my accidentally premature discharge from detention and convalescence I studied from reliable witnesses the happenings of the two years after the incarceration of principal Congressmen and myself. I have heard nothing to modify the opinion expressed in my writings under review.

I know first hand what has happened, since my discharge, in the various spheres of life. And I have found bitter confirmation of what I have said in the following pages. Indeed, the whole of India is a vast prison. The Viceroy is the irresponsible superintendent of the prison with numerous jailers and warders under him. The four hundred millions of India are not the only prisoners. There are others similarly situated in the other parts of the earth under other superintendents.

A jailer is as much a prisoner as his prisoner. There is no doubt a difference. From my point of view he is worse. If there is a Day of Judgment, i.e., if there is a Judge whom we do not see but who nevertheless is much more truly than we exist for a brief moment, the judgment will go hard against the Jailer and in favour of the prisoners.

India is the only place on earth which knowingly has chosen Truth and Non-violence as the only means for her deliverance. But deliverance to be obtained through these means must be deliverance for the whole world including the jailers otherwise described by me as tyrants and imperialists. I need not mention Fascists or Nazis or Japanese. They seem to be as good as gone.

The war will end this year or the next. It will bring victory to the Allies. The pity of it is that it will be only so-called if it is attained with India and the like lying prostrate at the feet of the Allies. That victory will be assuredly a prelude to a deadlier war, if anything could be more deadly.

I know that I do not need to plead for non-violent India. If India has the coin with Truth on one face and Non-violence on the other, the coin has its own inestimable value which will speak for itself. Truth and Non-violence must express humility at every step. They do not disdain real aid from any quarter, much less from those in whose name and for whom exploitation is practised. If the British and the Allies aid, so much the better. Deliverance will then come sooner. If they do not, deliverance is still certain. Only the agony of the victim will be greater, the time longer. But what are agony and time if they are spent in favour of liberty, especially when it is to be brought about through Truth and Non-violence!

---

1 On May 6, 1944

M. K. GANDHI

SEVAGRAM, March 7, 1945

Gandhiji’s Correspondence with the Government, 1942-44, pp. xiii-xiv

21. FOREWORD TO “AHAR ANE POSHAN”

Bhai Jhaverbhai has ever been undertaking new studies and adding to his store of useful knowledge. He easily finds use for this increased knowledge in disseminating it. He thinks in his own language or the national language, so that his ideas are understood by thousands with the utmost ease. If he carries on in this manner, the knowledge he has gained will soon become common possession.

Bhai Jhaverbhai has written a beautiful essay and given information about food, etc., in simple language. I hope that the knowledge will be widely used and the suggestions made in the essay implemented. The author’s aim is to impart knowledge so that it will be put to use and not merely add to learning.

M. K. GANDHI

March 7, 1945

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 1359

22. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

March 7, 1945

CHI. MU.,

If you read my previous letters carefully, you will see that I have answered all your questions. If there is anything remaining, wait and watch. What I mean to say is that anybody who wishes to leave is free to do so. Let nobody think that it is his duty to stay on. Nobody should remain, out of false regard for me or by suppressing his feelings. I will have a talk with Sushilabehn and find out. I should like you to present your case and then I shall ask Sushila to answer. If you wish, I will follow the opposite procedure. I may then call any witness I consider necessary. I am thinking about a separate kitchen. If I can I will arrange that.

_Blessings from_
_BAPU_

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 5843. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

23. LETTER TO MAGANLAL P. MEHTA

March 7, 1945

CHI. MAGAN\(^1\).

Jekibehn\(^2\) says that the sisters must get a share of their mother’s jewellery.\(^3\) Personally I should like that. I had a letter from Mayashankar. I should like you to meet him and satisfy him. He has served your father very faithfully. There is no news about Ratilal\(^4\). We may get some news if we announce a reward. Most probably I shall go to Bombay at the beginning of April.

_Blessings from_
_BAPU_

[PS.]

I have just heard that Ratilal is in Ahmedabad, safe and sound.

SHRI MAGANLAL PRANJIVANDAS
BARRISTOR
ANDHERI, BOMBAY

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 1032. Courtesy: Manjula M. Mehta

---

\(^1\) Dr. Pranjivan J. Mehta’s son
\(^2\) Jayakunwar M. Doctor, addressee’s sister
\(^3\) _Vide_ the following item.
\(^4\) Addressee’s brother, _vide_ also the following item.
24. LETTER TO JAYAKUNWAR M. DOCTOR

SEVAGRAM,
March 7, 1945

CHI. JEKI,

I have your letter. Where should I look for Ratubhai? Sometimes we have found him after six months. We can get a photograph of him published in the newspapers and offer a reward. However, I do not feel like doing that. What can we do if he has left? It will certainly be good if he is found.

I am making inquiries about the jewellery, I had forgotten about it. I am all right. I just heard that Ratilal has safely arrived in Ahmedabad.

Blessings from

BAPU

JEKIBEHN
35 JUHU LANE
ANDHERI

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

25. LETTER TO PURUSHOTTAMDAS THAKURDAS

SEVAGRAM,
March 7, 1945

BHAI PARSHOTTAMDAS,

Just now I heard that you have fallen ill again. How is that?

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

SHRI PARSHOTTAMDAS
NAVSARI CHAMBERS
BOMBAY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
26. LETTER TO GOSIBEHN CAPTAIN

SEVAGRAM,
March 7, 1945

DEAR SISTER,

Khurshedbehn is there. She has got disgusted with my contacts with women. And I hear so is N. behn. Is not the same true of you other two? If so, why not discuss the whole thing with me? There is quite a storm here. I am contemplating a statement. I do not know whether it will see the light of day.

Do write me fearlessly. I have no repentance of what I have done. Hope you are well.

Love.

BAPU

GOSIBEHN CAPTAIN
ANDHERI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

27. LETTER TO LILAVATI ASAR

SEVAGRAM, “VIA” WARDHA,
March 7, 1945

CHI. LILI,

I have your letter. I learnt about the sad fate of the letter. So long as the kitchen is in your charge, what can be wanting? You should definitely pass the very first examination. Little Baba must have recovered. How can you be spared from nursing him? I intend reaching there in the beginning of April. Stay with me when I am here.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI LILAVATIBEHN UDESHI
G. S. MEDICAL COLLEGE
LADIES STUDENTS’ HOSTEL
BOMBAY

From the Gujarati original: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

1 This is in Gujarati.
28. LETTER TO AMRIT KAUR

March 7, 1945

Blessings from Bapu. Pyarelal will be seeing you now. I hope it has not snowed further.

From the Hindi original: C.W. 4205. Courtesy: Amrit Kaur. Also G.N. 7841

29. LETTER TO SHIV SHARMA

SEVAGRAM,
March 7, 1945

CHI. SHIV SHARMA,

The news of your ill-health makes me unhappy. Under such circumstances I will not give you the trouble of coming here. I hope Ramsarandasji is well. You on your part must become perfectly healthy. Hari-ichchha is in mid-sea. She is a girl to be pitied. She does not want to go anywhere to have her rib taken out.

Blessings from
BAPU

PANDIT SHIV SHARMA
CURZON ROAD
NEW DELHI

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

30. NOTE TO KRISHNACHANDRA

March 7, 1945

In my view you should continue to take garlic in spite of the unpleasant odour. Throughout the world its benefits have been recognized. Try to avoid being involved in an argument.

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4497

1 This is written as a postscript to Sushila Nayyar’s letter to the addressee.
31. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA

March 7, 1945

CHI. KRISHNACHANDRA,

There is no discourtesy in your question. Your question shows how imperfect a medium language is.

If I stop sleeping together for all time it will mean that I have been mistaken. Otherwise why should I stop it? There is a limit to abstaining from it for the sake of friends. Sleeping together came with my taking up of brahmacharya or even before that. Can you understand it now?

The dangers you have pointed out are certainly there. But for that reason, a good act should not be avoided. Only we should be vigilant.

The experiment is not meant to be imitated. But if I can become a perfect brahmachari thereby, would I not be able to contribute more to the welfare of the world? Even if there is a single person who can train himself that way, he should do it. I was not out for an experiment, but when the situation presented itself before me I did what I felt was necessary.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4498

32. NOTE TO GOPE GURBUXANI

March 7, 1945

Ordinarily we can distinguish between good and evil, but on occasion we cannot. If we always seek God’s help it becomes a habit to know the distinction. Remember that God is within us. Let us keep Him awake.

Why have you both signed in English? Let Hindi-knowing persons sign in Urdu and Urdu-knowing persons in Hindi. I hope I have not left out any question.¹

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 1323

¹ The addressee had asked: “How can man find divine guidance to distinguish between good and evil?”
33. NOTE TO STUDENTS

[BAfter March 8, 1945]

BROTHERS,

I am shocked by your writing to me in English. Why do you not write in Hindustani? I have clearly expressed my opinion. Everyone must decide whether or not to act according to it. I suggest you form your own opinion.

From a copy of the Hindi : Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

34. LETTER TO JAYAKUNWAR M. DOCTOR

SEVAGRAM,
March 8, 1945

CHI. JEKI,

I have written to him about the jewellery.3 Try to find out why he gave up his job. It will not take him long to find another. He is clever.

Blessings from
BAPU

JEKIBEHN
35 JUHU LANE
ANDHERI

From a copy of the Gujarti: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Of Lucknow University
2 The letter to which this is an answer is dated March 8.
35. LETTER TO CHAKRAYYA

SEVAGRAM,
March 8, 1945

CHI. CHAKRAYYA.

It is good you wrote. I shall write to Sharma on hearing from you. But it is your duty first to have a full talk with him yourself. If he does not come, write to him and then write to me also. In the meantime do not spend anything on your house. Spend the very minimum on the arrangements. Meet the Harijans also.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

36. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA

March 8, 1945

CHI. KRISHNACHANDRA.

Do not give up the quern. You can give up talking. Keep your body and mind engaged in good deeds so that you can observe brahmacharya in the Ashram. Do not indulge in idle talk with any man or woman and do not touch anyone without reason. Consider every woman as your mother or sister.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4499
37. LETTER TO RAMDAS GULATI

SEVAGRAM,
March 8, 1945

CHI. RAMDAS\(^1\),

I feel that it is useless for you to run away from there and come here. And if the climate there also suits you, you should suppress the desire to come here.

I will certainly accept machines which can be operated by hand and can be made here. For example I accept the Singer sewing-machine even though it is of foreign make. This much I shall say: in all the Kisan Charkhas so far made there is very little of iron. They make do with a string instead of a spring and Nandlalji has invented a technique of doubling. Both the things you must see and introduce them there. Krishnachandra should send its description and the diagram.

It is good that Viyogiji is giving a lecture.

\textit{Blessings from}

BAPU

RAMDAS GULATI
HARIJAN ASHRAM
DELHI

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

38. NOTE TO GOPE GURBUXANI

March 8, 1945

Forgetting East and West we should consider everything on its own merits.\(^2\)

\textit{From a copy of the Hindi: G.N. 1324}

\(^1\) The addressee, an engineer, had given up Government service in 1934 and joined Gandhiji’s Ashram, devoting himself to the study of weaving.

\(^2\) The addressee had asked: “What should be our attitude towards Western civilization?”
39. A NOTE

[After March 8, 1945]

Write to Bapa whatever seems right to you and send a copy to Purushottam. Chhaganlal too should be appointed on the Committee. It should have on it only persons who work. No one should be there for show. If everyone refuses then Chhaganlal alone should carry on the work. But everyone will not say no. It is enough if all do not refuse. But some are going to refuse, are they? For example Parikshitlal.

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

40. LETTER TO T. B. SAPRU

SEVAGRAM,
March 9, 1945

DEAR DR. SAPRU,

P. is in Simla today, probably with Rajkumari. This letter of greetings will be presented to you by Shri Narahari Parikh, one of the oldest Ashramites. You may trust him with any message you like. I hope you are keeping fit.

Please do not forget your promise about Hindustani, though you said you could not become a member.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

Gandhi-Sapru Papers. Courtesy: National Library, Calcutta. Also G.N. 7569

---

1 This seems to be a draft reply to Purushottam Gandhi’s letter of March 8, 1945, regarding the Committee of the Kathiawar Harijan Sevak Sangh.

2 Pyarelal

3 The addressee was to pass through Wardha on March 9, 1945, on his way to Madras from Delhi.
41. LETTER TO V. VENKATSUBBAIAH

SEVAGRAM,
March 9, 1945

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your estimate. Now let me have your qualifications in detail and references. Is Rs. 60 per month meant for you? Is it to be devoted merely to women and children?

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

VENKATASUBBAIYA, M.L.A.
ASHRAM
NELLORE

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

42. LETTER TO SUMITRA GANDHI

March 9, 1945

CHI SUMI,

Here are a couple of lines for your perseverance. It is good you passed. If the bangles fit and you want to wear them you may do so.
Don’t leave anything from fear of me. Sacrifice without renunciation cannot endure. You should only give up things for which you no longer feel attachment.

Blessings from
BAPU

CHI. SUMITRA GANDHI
C/O HEAD MISTRESS
BIRLA HIGH SCHOOL
PILANI, RAJPUTANA

From the Gujarati original: Sumitra Gandhi Papers. Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library
43. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

March 9, 1945

CHI. MUNNALAL,

You seem to have written the above in haste. Try and see if you can steady your mind. Read *The Hound of Heaven*¹, think over it and understand its meaning. You will not be happy anywhere if you turn your back upon the “Hound”².

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 5845. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

44. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

March 9, 1945

I suggest only this in this connection.³ In the interest of work you may relieve anybody and accept whoever may be available as substitute. I am asking them to change the arrangement regarding milk.⁴ Please do not lose patience if I proceed slowly.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 8462. Also C.W. 5572. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

---

¹ By Francis Thompson (1859-1907), English poet and critic
² Gandhiji uses the English word.
³ Ramachandra Rao had discontinued shredding the vegetables and Prabhakar Parekh and Sushila Nayyar had offered themselves for the work.
⁴ This used to take up so many utensils that the addressee could hardly find any for cooking.
45. LETTER TO JANAKDHARI PRASAD

March 9, 1945

BHAJ JANAKDHARI BABU,

I read your letter to Pyarelal. He has gone to Simla. My health is all right. You can ask me whatever you want to. I will answer as best I can. I trust you are in good health.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 57

46. NOTE TO KRISHNACHANDRA

March 9, 1945

If you have the slightest doubt you should consult an authority and when in doubt abstain.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4500

47. NOTE TO GOPE GURBUXANI

March 9, 1945

God is not a person. He is the Law and also the Law-giver. Hence He is not like a human being. It means that man would reap as he sows. God neither does anything nor prompts one to do anything.¹

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 1325

¹ The addressee had asked: “Why should there be so much evil and unhappiness in the world in spite of God?”
48. INTERVIEW TO ANDHRA DEPUTATION

Sevagram,
March 9, 1945

(1) Q. At present there are only provincial Congress organizations functioning. Is it not essential to have an all-India Congress organization to enunciate a common policy and common programme?

A. A common all-India Congress organization is an impossibility while the President and other members of the Working Committee are in detention.

(2) Q. What is the definition of a kisan? We hope that you agree that we can have an independent Andhra Provincial Kisan Congress as a part of and under the discipline of the Andhra Province Congress Assembly [sic]?

A. For me a kisan is one who actually works on land belonging to himself or another. In every case, I have pointed the way of relief. You should read what I have written.1 Local difficulties should be solved locally. For the right answer, accurate knowledge of local conditions is necessary. I lack this. Hence my answer may even mislead. All organizations may be independent and yet a part of the Congress and subject to its discipline.

(3) Q. We think it is better to have for the Kisan Congress also a tricoloured national flag without any additional class emblem.

A. I had full discussion with Prof. Ranga.2 I agree generally about the points you have raised.

(4) Q. There are many kisans in villages who have helped in war efforts under the official influence. They are not entitled to be members of the Congress organizations at present. But they are, all the same, sympathizers of the National Congress. Shall we bring them into Kisan Congress? Both classes of members can have equal voice in the matter of redress against the landlords and the Government. But the first class of members only should decide all questions of a political nature.

A. Those who are real sympathizers will remain so even if for

---

1 The deputation consisted of Congress workers from Andhra, including Chandramouli, Kaleshwar Rao, Prof. Ranga and others.
2 Prow The Bombay Chronicle, 10-3-1945
3 Vide “Hints for Constructive Workers”, 22-10-1944.
technical reasons today they may not join you. By all means take them if you so wish.

The Deputation asked Gandhiji whether Congress could see local officials in grave and emergent cases of food and other economic difficulties of people for immediate redress and Gandhiji replied that it was not an absolute evil to see officials but there should be no seeing to flatter or please them.

Asked as to whether Congress bodies could apply to officials for permission to hold public meetings, processions or training camps, in any district where prohibitory order by the District Magistrate is in force, Gandhiji replied that no such permission should be applied for.

Winding up the discussion, Mahatmaji said that generally while he made himself available to all friends, they should try to act on their own even though they may make mistakes.

The Hitavada, 13/14-3-1945

49. LETTER TO V. A. SUNDARAM

March 10, 1945

CHI. SUNDARAM,¹

Your letter from the train. My blessings to Pushpa² and others.
May they fructify your dream.

Love.

BAPU

From a photostat: G.N. 3184

50. LETTER TO RATHINDRANATH TAGORE

March 10, 1945

MY DEAR RATHI,

I was glad to have your letter and learn that you were putting up a home for destitute women.

Love.

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

From C.W. 10521. Courtesy: Vishvabharati, Santiniketan

¹ This is in Tamil script.
² Addressee’s daughter

VOL. 86 : 4 MARCH, 1945 - 28 MAY, 1945 27
51. LETTER TO C. RAJAGOPALACHARI

March 10, 1945

MY DEAR C. R.,

Your sweet p. c. Short of denying myself I am doing all I can to prevent disruption. Even though it may take place, I feel that the end will be well.

Love.

BAPU

SHRI C. R.
CARE “HINDUSTAN TIMES” BLDGS.
NEW DELHI

From a photostat: G.N. 2103

52. LETTER TO APAJI AMIN

March 10, 1945

BHAJ APAJI AMIN.

I have the postcard bearing your signature. I wish you success. I knew Bhai Karunashanker well. He was a gem of Gujarat. His services were matchless.

Blessings from

M. K. GANDHI

[From Gujarati]

Vipravar Karunashankerne Shraddhanjali

53. LETTER TO ANnapurna C. MEHTA

SEVAGRAM,
March 10, 1945

CHI. ANnapurna.

I read your statement from beginning to end. I liked it. Learn from somebody how instruction can be given through craft. You have many persons to guide you and, therefore, you are bound to progress. Real guidance however has to come from within you. I approve of your having admitted only the local girls, and only a few of them. You two teachers are enough. The key to success lies in you two also becoming learners like the girls. If you do so, the girls will never lose interest and the work will steadily progress. You will progress in your own work also. It will be good if you can bring about some improvement in the food. One hardly sees anything besides rotli and dal. It is a difficult task. Do you grow any vegetables there? You have learnt carding, I am sure.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: S.N. 9421

54. LETTER TO AMRITLAL V. THAKKAR

SEVAGRAM,
March 10, 1945

BAPA,

I have your note. You should get the eye operated upon. Gurupadam will do it skilfully. Get well and come. Leave behind whatever suggestions you want to make. Write to me if you wish to. We will do whatever we can in your absence.

BAPU

THAKKAR BAPA
SCINDHIA HOUSE
BOMBAY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

55. LETTER TO RUPAVANTI

SEVAGRAM,
March 10, 1945

CHI. RUPAVANTI,

Why should you grieve over the death of your husband? Why should you cry? If you do so, the departed soul will be unhappy. Your duty is to imbibe your husband’s virtues and do as much good work as you can, as he did, so that he lives on in you.

Blessings from
BAPU

C|O JAYANT MULJI CHAVDA
MUTHEGANJ
ALLAHABAD, U. P.

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
56. LETTER TO B. G. KHER

March 10, 1945

BHAI BALASAHEB,

I can understand your difficulty.¹ You have done right in writing to Narandas. Let me see what he decides now.

Blessings from

BAPU

BHALASAHEB
JEHANGIR WADIA BUILDING
51 MAHATMA GANDHI ROAD
FORT, BOMBAY

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 2775

57. LETTER TO BABA MOGHE

March 10, 1945

I thought that the question related to the inmates of the Ashram and hence it would be better to restrict the answer to them. If however other people too follow it in action I see no [harm] in it.²

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 5849

¹ Vide “Letter to B. G. Kher”, 3-3-1945.
² Vide “A Note”, 24-2-1945.
58. LETTER TO CHIMANDAS ISARDAS

SEVAGRAM,
March 10, 1945

BHAJ CHIMANDAS,

I hope you will be able to read this. What is there to write in English? I heard about Jairamdas. God will guard him. Hope your mother is well.

Blessings from

BAPU

DR. CHIMANDAS ISARDAS
10 AMIL COLONY
HYDERABAD—SIND

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

59. LETTER TO P. C. GHOSH

SEVAGRAM,
March 10, 1945

CHI. PROFULLA,

I have your beautiful letter. If you can conveniently reach Bombay on April 2, then do come. It is Amtul Salaam’s duty to leave in good shape what she has begun. Retain her. Relieve her only when you can.

Blessings from

BAPU

DR. P. C. GHOSH
14/18 GARIHUT ROAD
CALCUTTA

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
60. LETTER TO BALKRISHNA SHARMA

SEVAGRAM,
March 10, 1945

BHAI BALKRISHNA,

I have your wire. Today I have received your letter too. It is good that you have been released. Kumari Sarala always has my blessings for her health. There is no reason why she should not recover after sufficient rest and proper diet.

Blessings from
BAPU

PANDIT BALKRISHNA
“PRATAP”
CAWNPORE, U. P.

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

61. LETTER TO SHANTABAI KALE

SEVAGRAM,
March 10, 1945

CHI. SHANTABEHN,

The letter is all right. Forward it and send me a copy so that I can take necessary action.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHANTABAI KALE
WARDHA

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
62. LETTER TO SUBRAMANIAM

SEVAGRAM,
March 10, 1945

CHI. SUBRAMANIAM,

I have your letter. All noble endeavours have my blessings. May your camp be a success.

Blessings from
BAPU

SUBRAMANIAM
GANDHI ASHRAM
ANDHRA

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

63. TELEGRAM TO RAMESHWARI NEHRU

[On or after March 10, 1945]

RAMESHWARI NEHRU
FAIRFIELDS
QUEENS ROAD
LAHORE

YOU HAVE LOST GREAT MAN AS FATHER NO CAUSE GRIEF. HE WROTE DR. MAHMUD LONG LETTER THREE DAYS BEFORE DEATH.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

64. STATEMENT TO THE PRESS

SEVAGRAM,
March 11, 1945

A conference of Congress workers, limited in number and by special invitation, was recently banned in Akola by the District Magistrate. The order is reported to say that “discussion will take place among other subjects on the work and programme of the Congress, particularly in villages”. Considering the influence of the invitees, he was of the opinion that this conference would “hamper the successful prosecution of the war”. It passes comprehension how a conference, where only discussion could take place, can hamper the prosecution of the war or how the constructive programme, no matter how influentially worked, can hamper the prosecution of the war. Does the Magistrate say one thing and mean something else when he says that a successful working of the constructive programme can and will make the present war with the Japanese impossible? This may need proof, but no proof is needed to show that the constructive work cannot and is not designed to hamper in any way whatsoever the prosecution of the war. What it can do is to bring work and bread to villagers in their own homes, besides making illiterates literate and happy. Or does Government, if the order is prompted by them, want to prevent influential Congressmen from serving the people in any way whatsoever? If so, why have they released Congressmen at all? Anyway Congressmen whose only calling is service of the people will serve mutely and without caring for the consequences that may befall them by reason of their service. That is the true meaning of do or die.

1 Raja Narendranath, addressee’s father, died on March 10.

The Hindu, 13-3-1945

65. LETTER TO KANAM GANDHI
March 11, 1945

CHI. KANAM,

Why should you fall ill? Do you observe rules of health? You want to learn much and rise very high. You will not do anything if you start falling ill from now. “First happiness is keeping the health of the person.” We get the full meaning if we interpret “the person” to cover the physical, mental and intellectual. Now I receive Sumi’s letters regularly. Sita is flying.

Blessings from
BAPU

CHI. KANAM GANDHI
C/O RAMDAS GANDHI
KHALASI LINE
NAGPUR, C. P.

From the Gujarati original: Kanam Gandhi Papers. Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library

34

THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
66. NOTE TO KRISHNACHANDRA

March 11, 1945

1. Of course one has to pray in solitude. It is rather disturbing that you find more interest in it.

2. What I mean is that I have done it naturally. Almost all of them would strip reluctantly. I have written—haven’t I?—that they did so at my prompting. If I wish to be a brahmuchi under all circumstances and want the women also to be such this is the one way. Now leave this matter alone and watch what happens.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4501

67. LETTER TO DR. RAMBHAU BHOGE

SEVAGRAM,
March 11, 1945

CHI. RAMBHAU,

Your application is all right. Send it. Secure bail. I met your wife once. I will do what I can if she comes again. She continues to be unwell.

Blessings from

BAPU

DR. RAMBHAU BHOGE
C/O JAILOR
JALAGAON, G. I. P.

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
68. NOTE TO GOPE GURBUXANI

_March 11, 1945_

Whatever elevates everybody in society is social service. Its nature varies according to place, time and circumstances. I have shown how it can be done in India.¹

_BAPU_

From the Hindi original: G.N. 1326

69. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

[On or after _March 11, 1945_]²

CHI. MUNNALAL,

I am a little tired now of talking about myself. I have said much, I shall say more. But not in this manner. I do not wish to publicize Kanchan’s name. Even you do not have the right to do so. You are not Kanchan’s owner, as she is not yours. But after all these years I have not been able to make you understand this. I read your letter regarding Sushilabehn. If you say that both of you lost patience and swerved from the path, then that should be enough. You need no one else’s opinion. I therefore advise you to forget the incident. If Sushila should say that she had not swerved, I should have to hear her but it would serve no useful purpose. If, nevertheless, you insist on an impartial judgment, I am ready to hand over all the papers to Narahari. Let him go through them and give his verdict.

Is not your advice to me futile? In practice there is nothing now. As for the thought, how can I change it so long as I feel that it is pure?

_Blessings from_

_BAPU_

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 5847. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

¹ The addressee had asked: “What is social service and how should it be pursued?”

² This is written on the back of the addressee’s letter dated March 11, 1945.
70. LETTER TO DURGABAI

SEVAGRAM,
March 12, 1945

DEAR SISTER³,

Prof. R. Rao says he is not to produce a detailed plan. It has to be produced by the Committee. Unless I have it, nothing can be placed before the Board. Please therefore make haste.

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

G. DURGABAI
ANDHRA P. COMMITTEE
89 VEERBHAvAN
MYLAPoRE

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

71. LETTER TO CHHAGANLAL JOSHI

SEVAGRAM,
March 12, 1945

CHI. CHHANGANLAL,

If you can keep Purushottam, please do keep him. He has written a letter to Bapa. See it. I understand about his complaint against you. What can be done? It is for you to impress people by your work. Engaging yourself in all the activities will no doubt impress but will not the work suffer? Isn’t that my lot? How have I managed so far? I am a thinker as much as I am a doer and can derive a kind of satisfaction by expressing original views. Many others are not able to do that. I shall be in Bombay in April. It will be good if Rama² meets me there then.

Blessings from
BAPU

CHHAGANLAL JOSHI
HARIJAN SEVA SANGH
RAIKOT

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Durgabai Deshmukh
² Addressee’s wife

VOL. 86 : 4 MARCH, 1945 - 28 MAY, 1945  37
72. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

March 12, 1945

CHI. MUNNALAL,

I can find the time, but it seems pointless. Since you want it I give my decision. Both of you are hasty. Both of you first say whatever occurs to you and think afterwards. If Sushila had not intervened that evening, the outcome would have been quite different. But she is unable to restrain herself. Moreover, she believes she cannot hurt you since you are more than a brother to her. There is nothing more left for me to say. What has happened has happened. Sushila could not have removed Chand to quarters reserved for other people, and she assumed that since she had come with a suggestion about the sick, you would readily offer your room. The thing is we ought to have special facilities for the sick, which we have not provided. It will be enough if we take a lesson for the future from this incident. Say to yourself again and again: “Think before you speak.” As far as possible one must cultivate silence. And even if we have to work very hard for it, we must have a separate room for the sick. Like a fire bucket, it must not be put to any other use. Sushila’s statement is attached, as also yours. I have not shown her this letter, nor your statement.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 5849. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

73. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

March 12, 1945

CHI. MUNNALAL,

We have had enough of this. You may not do anything for; Sushila but you should do everything for the hospital. If we have one, we must put up with a good many things. Shushila cannot see any other point of view, but ignore that. You should endure, what you can easily endure and leave what you cannot. It is a condition for a peaceful life. Gita which at one place says “what then will restraint avail” teaches restraint elsewhere. If you understand this, your path will be easy.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 5851. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

1 III. 33
2 II. 61, 68
74. LETTER TO MRIDULA SARABHAI

March 12, 1945

CHI. MRIDU,

You are perfectly entitled to come to me and understand my action. You need not come immediately. Come whenever you can and take my time. It is true that I am fed up. It is not any more necessary that things should be explained to the public at large in the way it can understand. But I am not applying this to you. Yashodhara is very sensible. She could have asked me. But it is amazing how hesitant women are. I shall not issue my statement right now. I have a telegram from Mathuradas. I made my decision only on that basis. Now I have your letter. So the matter is ended. The sin or merit of the postponement will be divided between you two. If it is merit, would I also not have my share? From my point of view, I have done nothing wrong. When I came to know, I shall proclaim it from the house-tops. Do not be upset. I am what I have always been.

Blessings from

BAPU

From the Gujarati original: C. W. 11236. Courtesy: Sarabhai Foundation

75. NOTE TO KRISHNACHANDRA

March 12, 1945

If we adopt a pure-minded attitude towards the experiment we shall remain calm and the mind will not become restive. The result will be good and there will be no involuntary emissions. But if there is curiosity it will give rise to desire and there will be involuntary emissions. That is why I have said that curiosity should now stop.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4502
76. LETTER TO MAURICE FRYDMAN

SEVAGRAM,
March 13, 1945

DEAR BHARATANAND,

I won’t be happy until you are out of the wood.

Love.

BAPU

78 NAPEAN SEA ROAD
BOMBAY

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

77. LETTER TO AMTUSSALAAM AND KANCHAN M. SHAH

March 13, 1945

CHI. AMTUL SALAAM AND CHI. KANCHAN,

I quite followed your letter. P. Babu again writes to say that you should be allowed to stay on for six months and then he will send you back. Isfahani1 writes nothing at all. You have done all you could. Kanchan is just as you have described her. She does everything that she can possibly do. It will be a great thing if her health improves. You should both keep on writing. Let Kanchan not be in a hurry to come here.

Blessings from

BAPU

SMT. AMTUL SALAAM BIBI
KASTURBA SEVA MANDIR
BORKAMATA
BENGAL

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 492

---

1 An office-bearer of the Calcutta Muslim League
78. LETTER TO KEDARNATH CHATTERJEE

SEVAGRAM,
March 13, 1945

Bhai Kedrababu,

Will you on my behalf place flowers on Deenabandhu’s tomb on April 5?\(^1\) Benarsidas has reminded me. Please tell him that I have acted on his suggestion.

Yours,
M. K. Gandhi

Kedarnath Chatterjee
“Vishal Bharat”
Calcutta

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

79. LETTER TO SARASWATI GANDHI

WARDHA, SEVAGRAM,
March 13, 1945

Chi. Suru,\(^2\)

My blessings are always with you. You are certain to pass. All children are unruly. Shanti\(^3\) is no exception. However much you grow, unless you stop losing your temper you will remain crazy.

To both of you, oh no, to all the three of you,

Blessings from
Bapu

Smt. Saraswati Gandhi
C/O Kantilal Gandhi
Gandhi Seva Sangh
Mysore

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 6183

\(^1\) C. F. Andrews died on this date in 1940
\(^2\) Wife of Kantilal Gandhi, Gandhiji’s grandson
\(^3\) Addressee’s son
80. NOTE TO KRISHNACHANDRA

March 13, 1945

Children should sleep longer.

If you are not going to do as I wrote to you, you should forget it.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4480

81. LETTER TO UTTAMCHAND GANGARAM

SEVAGRAM,

March 14, 1945

DEAR UTTAMCHAND,

There has been some delay in sending you a reply. Please excuse the delay. I hope you can understand the enclosed. There is no loss of capital as you suggest and no loss of interest. We are getting more than the original amount. Nevertheless the writer admits his mistake in neither referring to you nor to me. Knowing you as well as I do, I would have sought your permission. But the manager who is an old trained man used his discretion when there was no loss and much bother was saved. The money is being well used. But I shall carry out your wish, if you still so desire. Only realize how difficult it is to deal with promissory notes.

Hope you are keeping well.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

Uttamchand Gangaram
Bombay Bakery
Hyderabad—Karachi

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

---

1 This is not available.
82. LETTER TO ATULCHANDRA M. GHOSH

SEVAGRAM,
March 14, 1945

DEAR ATUL BABU,

The questions you have asked should be answered by the people on the spot, regard being had to their will and capacity for suffering. At this distance, I can say I cannot submit to any of the prohibitions, lathi or no lathi. These prohibitions are meaningless except as trials of strength. We may not stop the flag nor the purely constructive programme. But do, not as I advise or say, but as you and people really feel.

Love

BAPU

ATULCHANDRA M. GHOSH
DULMI
PURULIA

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

83. LETTER TO ALLADI K. KRISHNASWAMY IYER

SEVAGRAM,
March 14, 1945

DEAR SIR ALLADI,

I thank you for the pains you have taken. May God cure you quickly and spare you for many years to come. Yes, Vaidyanath Iyer has a heart of gold. He is a rare servant of the people.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

SIR ALLADI KRISHNASWAMY IYER
ADVOCATE
MADRAS

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 In spite of the restrictions against the hoisting of the national flag in public places in Bihar, the addressee had decided to hoist it on April 6 at Kanapasu—a constructive work centre—and had sought Gandhiji’s advice about it.

84. LETTER TO GULZARILAL NANDA

Sevagram,
March 14, 1945

Chi. Gulzarilal,

I came to know only today that you had a home. I had always thought you were a homeless person. Well.

I think the reply you have given is all right. I have read everything about the new organization. The proper reply to the objection is that it is not a new institution. Now that it has the required number of members, efforts are going on to keep it functioning as far as possible. The institution has come into being to give advice and maintain uniformity in all the activities, so it does not require any sanction. Those who will listen to its advice will benefit and those who will not will lose. The institution is not going to prevent the activities of anyone. Moreover, most of its members are Congressmen. It functions and will continue to function in order to render help to the Congress.

I hope you are well.

Blessings from

Bapu

Gulzarilal Nanda
Labour Office
Lal Darwaza
Ahmedabad

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
85. LETTER TO DR. B. B. YODH

SEVAGRAM,
March 14, 1945

Bhai Yodh,

What you wrote about Sir Purushottam made me happy. I am sure under your treatment he will be fully restored.

Blessings from
Bapu

Dr. Yodh
Raval Building
Wellington Road
Bombay

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

86. NOTE TO KRISHNACHANDRA

March 14, 1945

Three pounds will be digested in a whole day.¹

No home work should be given as far as possible. They may read what pleases them or may not read at all. They may be asked how they spend their time. They should be advised in this regard.

Asha Devi said you were taking interest in the children. In that case it is worth considering whether you should stay on with them and have your food with them or they should be put up with you.

Blessings from
Bapu

[PS.]

Did I not write about the 14th?

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4481

¹ This is in Gujarati.
87. LETTER TO JAINARAYAN VYAS

SEVAGRAM,
March 14, 1945

BHAJ JAINARAYAN VYAS,

If you must see me then let me know the date before you come. Make it before the 23rd. Do not call the conference.

Blessings from

BAPU

JAINARAYAN VYAS
ALL-INDIA STATES PEOPLES’ CONFERENCE
Jodhpur

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

88. LETTER TO RISHABHDAS RANKA

SEVAGRAM,
March 14, 1945

CHI. RISHABHDAS,

I thought that I had conveyed to Madalasa my suggestion regarding the name. I must have been mistaken. Let the name be Rohitashva\(^1\). It will be a great thing if he has the qualities associated with the name. I got your letter of the 3rd today.

Blessings from

BAPU

RISHABHDAS
BAJAJWADI, WARDHA

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

\(^1\) Rohitashva was the son of king Harishchandra of mythology who underwent great sufferings in upholding truth.
89. LETTER TO J. R. D. TATA

SEVAGRAM,
March 15, 1945

DEAR JEHANGIRJI,

I have just heard from Bapa that you are recouping your health in Ooty. I should like a line to know how you are. Of course I shall not expect you at the Trustees’ meeting in Bombay if you are at all unwell. I write this purposely in English as you might not have all your staff there.

Love.

Yours,
M. K. GANDHI

SHRI J. R. D. TATA
OOTY, SOUTH INDIA

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

90. LETTER TO M. S. KELKAR

SEVAGRAM,
March 15, 1945

DEAR DR. ICE¹,

Your usual budget of complaints.

You are a rolling-stone ever since I have known you. That I like you notwithstanding is a different thing altogether. Your milk-and-distilled-water treatment I have tried how long? But I was not cured. You have been to Aundh and you had all the facilities. You could not stick there. What will you do now by coming here? You say your treatment is expensive. How can you serve villages? I have asthma cases, others, and I have a consumptive. If you still want to try your hand come and see. It is very hot here just now. I am likely to be away in April. If you would stay here in heat and try, come and stayas soon as you like. There is a fair quantity of milk here. I shall pay you 3rd class fare on your coming here. No return fare if you feel disappointed. You might, if you prove your worth, get one or two cottages for your hospital work. But you have to carve your way for all this, i.e., prove your worth to the people round you.

¹ Gandhiji had given this name to the addressee on account of his enthusiasm for ice treatment.

I shall inquire about your manuscript.

Love.

BAPU

DR. M. S. KELKAR
C/o R. J. PATKAR
15 MANORAMAGANJ
INDORE
C.P.

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

91. LETTER TO JAYA

SEVAGRAM,
March 15, 1945

CHI. JAYA,

I have your letter. If we remember God, we have to forget good and bad, happiness and unhappiness. And all of us have to take that road sooner or later. According to an expression in English that is the path trodden by the majority. Life is only a short spell of moonlight. In the end all is dust.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./XXIII

92. LETTER TO LILAVATI ASAR

March 15, 1945

CHI. LILI,

I have already written one letter to you. The fruits of patience are sweet. I have already taken the step that you expected. Sweet are the fruits of patience. For the present those that are here will stay on. Why should you worry about me? There is
93. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

March 15, 1945

CHI. MUNNALAL,

You must not have Kanchan living separately. If it is necessary, you two may certainly have a separate establishment. Do what will make both of you happy.

It would be good if you could treat Shantabehn as a member of the Ashram and look after her. But I would not wish to foist her on you against your wish.

About the work, if you can arrange things as you want them, do so. I am myself not persuaded, but if you feel confident you may go ahead. Don’t you wish to have a separate kitchen for the hospital?

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 5854. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

94. LETTER TO CHAKRAYYA

SEVAGRAM,
March 15, 1945

CHI. CHAKRAYYA.

I understood your letter. The misunderstanding was on your part. It is good that it has been cleared up. There is no need for any other atonement.

Blessings from

BAPU

CHAKRAYYA

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 The addressee had suggested entrusting kitchen work to hired staff.
95. LETTER TO TARACHAND

SEVAGRAM,
March 15, 1945

BHAI TARACHANDJI,

I may write in Hindustani, may I not? What I say is clear. If all the leaders are agreeable, I will not insist on a plebiscite. They include independent Muslims, Sikhs and others. Everything can be done if all of them will be happy.

If there is a trace of suspicion, it is better to give a reasonable interpretation.

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

DR. TARACHAND
C/O SHRI RAJENDRANARAYAN
CHANDNI CHOWK
DELHI

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

96. LETTER TO G. D. BIRLA

March 15, 1945

CHI. GHANSHYAMDAS,

I heard from Bapa today that you had fever. Your fever worries me. Why should you get fever? If you need Rameshwandas there, keep him. Even so, I will stay only at the Birla House. I will leave here on the 30th. The programme after the meeting is indefinite. If you cannot come because of weakness I shall manage.

Blessings from

BAPU

SETH GHANSHYAMDAS BIRLA
BIRLA HOUSE
ALBUQUERQUE ROAD
NEW DELHI

From the Hindi original: C.W. 8066. Courtesy: G. D. Birla

1 These two words are in English.

2 For Bombay, to attend the Kasturba National Memorial Trust meeting
97. LETTER TO C. RAJAGOPALACHARI

March 15, 1945

MY DEAR C. R.,

I have just learnt that G¹ is unwell. I have written to him. This is just to tell you that all is well. Mridula and Bapa came here. More probably from them or later. Love to you all. Hope L.² is well.

BAPU

From a photostat: G.N. 2104

98. LETTER TO ALUBEHN MISTRI

SEVAGRAM,
March 16, 1945

DEAR SISTER,

You are taking good care of Bhai Dinshaw. God certainly gives him the help he needs. If there is any such provision in the Kasturba Memorial Fund, he will certainly get it.

Blessings from

BAPU

ALUBEHN MISTRI
JAL CHAMBERS
OPPOSITE RAILWAY HOSPITAL
CHURNEY ROAD JUNCTION
BOMBAY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ G. D. Birla; vide the preceding item.
² Lakshmi Gandhi
99. LETTER TO ANAND T. HINGORANI

March 16, 1945

CHI. ANAND,

Beware of the boy who is with you. Get some translations done so long as you do not receive something from Bhai Jivanji.

How are you?

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI ANAND HINGORANI
UPPER SIND COLONY
KARACHI, SIND

From a microfilm of the Hindi. Courtesy: National Archives of India and Anand T. Hingorani

100. LETTER TO M. S. ANEY

SEVAGRAM,
March 16, 1945

BAPUJI ANEY,

You send me a nice Sanskrit shloka for the New Year and the greetings in English... If you wanted to send them in English, then why not in Hindustani or in Sanskrit also? A Hindustani translation of the shloka was necessary. I hope you are well.

Greetings for the New Year from

BAPU

BAPUJI ANEY
COLOMBO, CEYLON

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
101. LETTER TO BRIJKRISHNA CHANDIWALA

March 16, 1945

CHI. BRAJKISAN,

Do not worry about me. Do not believe the newspapers. I have your letter. You must completely recover. Khurshedbehn is with her sisters. My blessings to all the brothers.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 2491

102. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA

March 16, 1945

CHI. KRISHNACHANDRA,

You must either take full responsibility for the children or leave this work. Leaving it now would not be proper. Do as you think best after consulting Asha Devi.

There are two causes for involuntary emissions: over-eating or eating wrong kinds of things and impure thoughts. Sometimes the two causes may combine. It was no doubt negligence. That you did not know of it till the morning, what does it show? Are you reciting Ramanama?

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4482
103. LETTER TO CHAUNDE MAHARAJ

SEVAGRAM,
March 16, 1945

CHAUNDE MAHARAJ,
I have your letter. I do advise you. What is the point then in including me in the Mandal? Take work from me. Keep my name out.

Yours,
M. K. GANDHI

CHAUNDE BUA
C/O GOVARDHAN SANSTHA
SADASHIV PETH
POONA

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

104. LETTER TO KRISHNA IYER

SEVAGRAM,
March 16, 1945

CHI. KRISHNA,
Complete your studies. Even after that if you want to come, write to me. How can you be tired of studies? You can do a great deal of my constructive work while studying.

Blessings from
BAPU

KRISHNA IYER
HANSRAJ MAHILA MAHAVIDYALAYA
LAHORE

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
105. LETTER TO P. C. GHOSH

SEVAGRAM,
March 16, 1945

CHI. PROFULLA,

Dr. Mitra’s scheme is not for the villages. Probably he does not even know the villages. This shows that merely being clever is no use to us. I will reach Bombay on the 31st. It will be good if you come there. It has become very hot here now.

Blessings from
BAPU

P. C. GHOSH
1418 GARIAHUT ROAD
CALCUTTA

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

106. LETTER TO V. G. SAHASRABUDDHE

SEVAGRAM,
March 16, 1945

Bhai Sahasrabuddhe,

Bring the girl before the 24th. What will Balasaheb be able to do? Explain to me when you come. Remember my time is 3 o’clock.

Blessings from
BAPU

V. G. SAHASRABUDDHE
MAHAL, NAGPUR

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
107. LETTER TO VIYOGI HARI

SEVAGRAM,
March 16, 1945

Bhai Viyogi Hari,

I have here with me a married Punjabi woman. She will stay in Delhi so long as it is cool there. She is a teacher. In Delhi, too, I want you to put her up in a girls’ hostel or with you. She is not to be paid anything, though of course she will have to be fed. If she can go to any place, please write to me or send me a wire. Her name is Vimalabehn Gurbuxani.

Blessings from
BAPU

Viyogi Hari
Harijan Chhatralaya
Delhi

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

108. NOTE TO GOPE GURBUXANI

March 16, 1945

Fate is the fruition of karma. Fate may be good or it may be bad. Human effort consists in overcoming adverse fate or reducing its impact. There is a continuous struggle between fate and human effort. Who can say which of the two really wins? Let us therefore continue effort and leave the result to God.¹

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 1327

¹ The addressee had asked: “What is fate and how is it related to human effort?”
109. LETTER TO SUPERINTENDENT, BHAGALPUR JAIL

SEVAGRAM,

March 17, 1945

THE SUPERINTENDENT
BHAGALPUR JAIL
BHAGALPUR

DEAR SIR,

Here is a cutting from the Aj of 14th instant. It contains disquieting news about Shrimati Prabhavati Devi, your prisoner. I shall thank you to tell me what truth there is in the news.

_Yours truly,_

M. K. GANDHI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

110. LETTER TO GOPINATH BARDOLOI

SEVAGRAM,

March 17, 1945

MY DEAR BARDOLOI,

Why have you sent a friend all the way from Assam when you have my advice in your pocket? I repeat—do what you think is best cost what it may. Kill the corruption. Adopt that alternative which is best under the circumstances. Keep all clean men and parties together. I know that difficulties will be many but to cut our way through them makes us.

_Yours,_

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

---

1 A summary of this letter appears in Vol. LXXIX, p. 289.
111. LETTER TO DR. GOPICHAND BHARGAVA

SEVAGRAM,
March 17, 1945

BHAI GOPICHAND,

I have gone through all your articles. They are good. I do not propose to make any changes in them. Do you intend to get them published? If you do, then go through them carefully. Will it be in the three Punjab scripts and not in Hindustani?

I hope you are well.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

112. LETTER TO BALVANT SINHA

March 17, 1945

CHI. BALVANT SINHA,

Knowing you as I do I can say from your remarks that at least for some time you must leave Sevagram. Write a sweet letter to Totaramji. I see no need of your going there. The same goes for Surendraji. But you may go to your own village. Or, to Mirabehn or perhaps to Manzar Ali. In any of these three places you will do at least something. Yes, Bengal is a vast field for your goseva work. But now that is out.

Now about Sevagram. It is my belief that Sevagram will never break up. It may undergo transformation, as was the case with Sabarmati. As long as I am alive and active, there will not be much change at Sevagram. I do not wish to make any. If I survive, a new order will come in course of time. Those who are attached to Sevagram will not give it up for good either now or after I am gone. Who can say that after I am dead even Vinoba may not possibly make the place his own? If he survives me, his loyalty and his non-violence will not permit him to leave Sevagram.

I am sure that even though all the organizations are independent, they are unknowingly dependent on Sevagram. This is just as well.
When you become meek like a she-goat, you will again come to like Sevagram as you did in the beginning. What does it matter if today the cow has been taken away from you? At least you have not been taken away from the cow? What does it matter if today you and Munnalal do not feel one as before?

I am not saying all this in order to make you change your mind. My advice to you stays. Go where I have suggested. After that you may come here when you feel the urge.

What more can I say?

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 1955

113. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA

March 17, 1945

CHI. KRISHNACHANDRA,

You are not going to be cured of involuntary emissions by being upset about them. Find out the cause and remove it and keep yourself fully engaged in your work.

Do what pleases Asha Devi. That alone will please me. It would not be proper to give up the work of Nayee Talim having once taken it up. Still, it is for you to consider.

What will apply in the Vend is the Gita maxim “What then will restraint avail?”

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4483
114. NOTE TO GOPE GURBUXANI

March 17, 1945

Asceticism in the English sense is not needed at the present time. But there is all the need for renunciation. Read the *Ishavasya*¹ and reflect on it. Realize the inner meaning of renunciation. It has been explained in the Gita.²

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 1328

115. LETTER TO T. B. SAPRU

SEVAGRAM,

March 18, 1945

DEAR DR. SAPRU,

I have heard about your proposed recommendations³. I do hope the report will not be weak in any place. Verb. sap.

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

Gandhi-Sapru Papers. Courtesy: National Library, Calcutta. Also G.N. 7568

---

¹ The reference is to verse I of this Upanishad.
² The addressee had asked: “How far are asceticism and renunciation beneficial in life?”
³ The Sapru Committee’s proposals about the future constitution of India were made public on April 7, 1945. The proposals envisaged, inter alia, parity between Hindus and Muslims in the constitution-making body, the central legislature and the executive, rejected the demand for Pakistan and the right of any province to secede and the transfer of paramountcy to the Indian Union, with a minister in charge of functions in relation to Indian States.
116. LETTER TO ANNIE MASCARENE

SEVAGRAM,
March 18, 1945

DEAR MASCARENE,

I remember you showed me Sir M. Ismail’s letter in which he asserted that you had never spoken ill of anyone behind his back.

As to the 2nd question I can give no opinion. I do not profess to understand Travancore politics. You should do what you think is best.

Yours,

BAPU

MISS A. MASCARENE
STATE CONGRESS OFFICE
TRIVANDRUM

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

117. LETTER TO F R A N Y T A L Y A R K H A N

SEVAGRAM,
March 18, 1945

DEAR SISTER,

I got your yearly bulletin. I hope you do not expect me to read it. I just turned the pages for a few minutes.

Blessings from

BAPU

F R A N Y T A L Y A R K H A N
S H A H A R U K H S A B A W A L A
S I R P. M. R O A D
BOMBAY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Sir Mirza Ismail, Dewan of Mysore
118. LETTER TO K. M. MUNSHI

SEVAGRAM,
March 18, 1945

Bhai Munshi,

I read the whole of your book on the deadlock too. I liked it. My basic opposition remains. But you have given the reader quite a lot of material to think about.

I hope Sarala and her daughter are well.

Blessings from

BAPU

From Gujarati: C.W. 7686. Courtesy: K. M. Munshi

119. LETTER TO RAMDAS GANDHI

SEVAGRAM,
March 18, 1945

Chi. Ramdas,

You form opinions on incomplete information and feel unhappy. This has been your old habit. You must get rid of it. What wrong notions you have formed on the basis of Su[shila]behn’s letter! I am not a person to waste myself physically and mentally. I do my work and am happy. I put my idea of education into practice in my own case. My fast—it could not really be called a fast because I took fruit juice—was purely physical. I did not find it unbearable. I did not agree to take glucose and so had the feeling of fasting. But that was only for a short time, as later on I had to take glucose. I can tell you more but this should suffice. Bear in mind that I take all possible care of myself. I hope Kanam is well. He wrote to me that he would be coming to Bombay but would be able to do so only after his examinations. I do not know whether I shall be there then. We shall see. I hope Ushi has recovered.

Blessings from

BAPU

Ramdas Gandhi
Khalasi Lines
Nagpur

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 The Indian Deadlock
2 Gandhiji has used the English word
3 Addressee’s daughter
120. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA

March 18, 1945

CHI. KRISHNACHANDRA,

Has it not been proved that in your case proximity to me does not help in observing brahmacharya? Otherwise, after so many years, your brahmacharya should have been perfect. It is necessary for the sake of brahmacharya that one should engage oneself in ennobling work. Nayee Talim is one such work and when children are there what more can you ask? If you stay with the children instead of being here, you will not lose contact with me and you will be kept away from idle talk.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4484

121. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA

SEVAGRAM,
March 18, 1945

CHI. KRISHNACHANDRA,

Your long letter betrays your state of mind. Is it not right that I should write to you taking what you say to be the complete truth? The others who are here do not feel very intensely about brahmacharya. You do and so I write about it. But in the end you must do as you feel. If you do something I say without your heart being in it, you may take it that it will be futile. It will be no good at all if you mechanically do what I say. What you have written is of course true. What does it matter? I do consult people after all. What is the harm even if the boys leave? There is a lot of work to do. After all our principle is just this: whoever is available is fit to be taught and fit also to teach. You must not become disheartened.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4486
122. LETTER TO G. D. BIRLA

March 18, 1945

CHI. GHANSHYAMDAS,

I received your telegram just now at 6 o’clock. I do not like it. Go to Mussoorie if you have to. Stay on there for a while. Give up the idea of going to Bombay. Rameshwardas too may stay there. I shall manage.

Blessings from
BAPU

From the Hindi original: C.W. 8068. Courtesy: G. D. Birla

123. LETTER TO GANESH SHASTRI JOSHI

SEVAGRAM,
March 18, 1945

BHAI GANESH SHASTRI JOSHI,

Sushilabehn showed me your letter. She is doing as much as she can. The course is not easy. The votaries of Ayurved have to cut a path for themselves. They will need courage, a spirit of sacrifice and knowledge. I have not come across a single vaidya who would sacrifice everything for this work. I am not worried that there are too many doctors on the committees. When the need arises we can have vaidyas on every committee. I shall never let a good suggestion pass. But what am I to do if I do not come across any. Do as much as you can. Give as much as you can.

I am happy that you are teaching Rambhau.

Blessings from
BAPU

GANESH SHASTRI JOSHI
28 SHUKRavar [PETH]
BEHIND TULSI BAGH, POONA

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
124. LETTER TO SHRIPAD JOSHI

SEVAGRAM,
March 18, 1945

CHI. SHRIPAD,

I think my reply is contained in my articles. But forget it. “Those” refers to the private householders. The Government’ has made good the loss caused to it a hundred times over. We can make good our loss in one way only: by winning swaraj.

In my speech of the 7th I had indicated what was to be done after my arrest. There was of course the fourteen-point programme. Success or failure is in the hands of God. It is my belief that if everybody had followed that programme we should have won freedom by now. I have written enough about the parliamentary programme.

You can show my letters to any of your friends. I am not writing for’ the Press. There is nothing secret in my letters but it is not every reader who can understand them.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 5615

125. TELEGRAM TO SHYAMLAL

POONA,
March 19, 1945

SHRI SHYAMLAL
BAJAJWADI
WARDHA

IT APPEARS I NEED NOT MOVE BEFORE FIRST APRIL. THEREFORE IT SEEMS MEETING AS ORIGINALLY FIXED POSSIBLE BUT I STILL THINK INADVISABLE. BUT YOU CAN RECONSIDER IF YOU WISH.

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Vide “Letter to Shripad Joshi”, 1-3-1945.
2 i. e., August 7, 1942.
126. LETTER TO AMRIT KAUR

SEVAGRAM,
March 19, 1945

CHI. AMRIT,

I am so glad Pyarelal was with you for two days. As soon as I get your manuscript¹ I shall look through it and advise.

If Shummy and Maude have to go to Bombay you have to swallow your pride (which would be false) and go to Bombay even under conditions. But you must feel the call from within, not from me.

You must feel happy and at peace under all circumstances. That is the meaning of the shlokas we sing daily.

Love.

BAPU

From the original: C.W. 4151. Courtesy: Amrit Kaur. Also G.N. 7786

127. LETTER TO MAUDE

SEVAGRAM,
March 19, 1945

MY DEAR MAUDE,

Of course I have had all about your operation and your bravery. Purposely I refrained from writing to you. I now learn that you will appreciate a line from me. Well, all I have heard fills me with admiration for you and joy that you have come out of the ordeal so splendidly. Let us hope you will have no more to go through.

Love.

BAPU

SMT. MAUDE

C/O RAJKUMARI AMRIT KAUR

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Of the addressee’s booklet To Women
128. LETTER TO SHUMSHERE SINGH

SEVAGRAM,
March 19, 1945

MY DEAR SHUMMY,

So you have passed through the fire in a threefold manner. You can surely shout “God is great and merciful.” Have you not had this double demonstration?

Love.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

129. LETTER TO DR. SUBODH MITRA

SEVAGRAM,
March 19, 1945

DEAR DR. MITRA,

I must confess your scheme staggered me. It is after the Chowringhee style, not the village style. You have to study your villages anew.1

Yours,

BAPU

DR. SUBODH MITRA
3 CHOWRINGHEE TERRACE
CALCUTTA

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Vide also “Letter to P. C. Ghosh”, 16-3-1945.
130. LETTER TO GOSIBEHN CAPTAIN

SEVAGRAM,
March 19, 1945

DEAR SISTER¹,

Your dear letter. I must try to give you an hour when you are here. I used the word with due cause. But I had a repudiation from both quarters. It gladdened me.

Love.

BAPU

GOSIBEHN CAPTAIN
ANDHERI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library.
Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

131. LETTER TO SHARDA G. CHOKHAWALA

March 19, 1945

CHI. BABUDI.

I was glad to learn that Anand was well again. Be careful and the cough also will disappear. Sushila and Pyarelal will of course be with me. But if you also come, you will no doubt serve in some way. I hope to reach Bombay on the 31st.

Blessings from

BAPU

From the Gujarati original: C.W. 10054. Courtesy: Sharda G. Chokhawala

¹ This is in Gujarati.
132. LETTER TO DR. JIVRAJ MEHTA

SEVAGRAM,
March 19, 1945

BHAI JIVRAJ,

As is your custom, you have given me a perfect reply and have satisfied Chi. Indu too. Listen to Hansabehn¹. Do not take upon yourself any extra work and render greater service to the country.

Blessings from

BAPU

DR. JIVRAJ MEHTA

22 CURZON ROAD

NEW DELHI

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

133. LETTER TO MRIDULA SARABHAI

SEVAGRAM,
March 19, 1945

CHI. MRIDU,

I have your letter. It is good that you met Mathuradas. I have gone through the speech for the Association. It is good. If all the three think it proper, you too may write. I have done what I had to do. Look after your health. There is a letter from Mummy also. I do not write to her separately.

Blessings from

BAPU

MRIDULA SARABHAI

KASHMIR HOUSE

94 NAPEAN SEA ROAD

BOMBAY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Addressee’s wife
134. LETTER TO NARAHARI D. PARIKH

SEVAGRAM,
March 19, 1945

CHI. NARAHARI,

This is only for you. If you can explain to me, Jajuji will be saved much trouble. If you cannot, then read this out to him. What I have marked with a Cross cannot be the responsibility of the Charkha Sangh. The Sangh may have to contribute to what is intended for women. If it is exclusively for village women then the Kasturba Fund should bear the burden. Whose sanction does Lakshmi Babu want? Any responsibility which falls on the Charkha Sangh can be borne by it only when it conforms to the new course I have suggested. There are other problems no doubt, but I will not raise them just now. The work is a little complicated but we should not use force.

May be Lakshmi Babu intends to place the whole thing before the general body which has been formed!

Blessings from
BAPU

NARAHARI PARIKH
SEVAGRAM ASHRAM

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

135. LETTER TO SHANTILAL

SEVAGRAM,
March 19, 1945

CHI. SHANTILAL,

I was happy to have your letter. I hope to reach Bombay on the 31st. To begin with I shall be at the Birla House. Probably I shall not be able to keep you with me all the twenty-four hours, but certainly you will be with me most of the time. I will try to read your new writing, so please bring it. Is it vitaraga or veetaraga?

Blessings from
BAPU

SHANTILAL
ANAVIL ASHRAM
SURAT

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
136. NOTE TO KAZI NIZAMUDDIN AHMED

[After March 19, 1945]

Write a postcard as follows:

Why should you write to me in English? The jaggery was received after I had left Sevagram. Why has Sultana not written to me so far? I hope she is in good health. Write to her that she should write to me regularly. She may write at Sevagram.

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

137. TELEGRAM TO M. S. KELKAR

SEVAGRAM,
March 20, 1945

DR. KELKAR
CARE PATAKAR
15 MANORAMAGANJ
INDORE

COME QUICK SEVAGRAM.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

---

1 This was in reply to the addressee’s letter dated March 19, 1945.
2 This is in Gujarati.
3 Addressee’s grand-daughter
138. TELEGRAM TO G. D. BIRLA

WARDHAGANI,

March 20, 1945

GHANSHYAMDASJI

BIRLA HOUSE

NEW DELHI

REPORT INCOMPLETE\(^1\). UNCLEAR IF YOU TAKE MILK.
STATE VEGETABLES. ANY CASE ADVISE HALF OUNCE BUTTER DIRECT FROM MILK WITH TOAST AND SALAD WELL CHEWED. DRINK HOT WATER HONEY SODA.
PRACTISE REGULATED DEEP BREATHING ON EMPTY STOMACH. REPORT. LOVE.

BAPU

From C.W. 7870. Courtesy: G.D. Birla

139. LETTER TO URMILADEVI

SEVAGRAM,

March 20, 1945

MY DEAR URMILA\(^2\).

I hope you got my wire in Reply [to] your first letter. Now I have your second letter. I have seen Dr. Mitra’s scheme. I have written to him and also Profulla about it.\(^3\) Dr. Mitra has to revise his scheme in terms of the villages whom he must see in their dangers [sic] before he can write anything useful.

As for yourself, you need not worry. The first thing is for you to be fit for nursing. Will you ever be? Mere wish is of little use. When

---

1 The addressee had wired: “Fever left but cough still persisting. Am taking toast, vegetable and milk no butter. Would you suggest any change in diet?”

2 Sister of C. R. Das

the wish is backed by fitness, you will be wanted by all.
Hope all is well there.
Love.

BAPU

URMILADEVI
2/1B HINDUSTAN PARK
P. O. R. B. AVENUE
CALCUTTA

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

140. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

March 20, 1945

CHI. MUNNALAL,

I have read all that you have written. Give up the notion that I have no trust in you. That you are unmethodical is shown by your writing and your behaviour. What can you do about it? First the realization, then the endeavour, then the time. That is the order.

I do wish that there should be a separate kitchen. I am considering what to do now. I will write nothing now about Sushila. There was no question of my selecting anybody for my office. I employ in it only those whom I cannot fix up anywhere else. Others who joined did so by accident. If I had to start a new office altogether, I should know very well how to do it. You do not know with what type of persons I have run an office in the most difficult circumstances. But can I not run the Ashram also in that manner? Why did I not appoint Vinoba to run the office? You should be able to draw the appropriate conclusions from this. If when I have some free time you ask me for work, I will tell you. Do you really feel like doing some work in the office?

Personally I should like to return from Bombay in about four days’ time. But I shall be in the doctors’ hands. Maybe I shall have to go to Panchgani if they insist. I don’t know. We shall see what happens.

I do not say, or wish, that you should go to Kanchan. But if she or you feel such a desire, I would encourage you. If you tell me your reasons for not going, or write them down, I might consider. I have to be away for two months. In that time there is a chance that the kitchen arrangements may improve. I am not satisfied with this letter. The circumstances themselves are unsatisfactory. Whom can we blame for that?

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 5857. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

141. LETTER TO AMTUSSALAAM

March 20, 1945

DEAR DAUGHTER,

I have your letter. What a narrow escape you have had! I hope Lavanyalata is doing well. Kanchan’s postcard to Munnalal came today. I see from it that she is very ill. Why? I am asking Munnalal to go there. Let us see what happens. I am all right. I am working regularly. I shall have to go to Bombay towards the end of this month. I am not writing separately to Kanchan.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 493

142. LETTER TO BALVANT SINHA

March 20, 1945

CHI. BALVANT SINHA,

There is no need to think about your state of mind. It seems to me that you should go to your village. Go to Mirabehn and also to Dharmadev Shastri. Staying away at this time can only do you good. No doubt the Ashram remains full because of me, but it has proved its independent existence during my absence, be it here, at Sabarmati, at Kochrab or at Phoenix. The Autobiography gives the story up to Sabarmati. It is astonishing. Ask somebody or ask me. It is good to learn veterinary science. There is no hurry.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 1956

1 Lavanyalata and the addressee had met with an accident while travelling by a cycle rickshaw.
143. LETTER TO G. D. BIRLA

SEVAGRAM,
March 20, 1945

CHI. GHANSHYAMDAS,

I have sent you an express telegram\(^1\), a copy of which is enclosed. What are you taking, how much and when? What leafy vegetables are you taking, and are you taking them raw or boiled? You do not throw away the water, do you? Will not khakhara\(^2\) be better than toast? Does the Hour include the bran? If you are taking milk, how much? Whatever happens you must take half an ounce of butter well spread over the toast or khakhara, together with the salad. If you have indigestion, reduce other things, but continue the butter. Deep breathing is essential. Close one nostril and breathe deeply through the other. You can gradually increase it to half an hour. Utter Ramanama with every breath you take. When doing breathing exercises, you should have fresh air on all sides. It would be better to do it in the open. You should do it every morning without fail and afterwards at least four times after the food has been digested. Breathe in and breathe out. This exercise should be taken slowly. Do your bowels move properly? Are you able to sleep? If you do all this carefully you will soon get rid of the cough.

Blessings from

BAPU

From the Hindi original: C.W. 8067. Courtesy: G. D. Birla

144. LETTER TO SATYAVATI

SEVAGRAM,
March 20, 1945

CHI. SATYAVATI\(^3\).

I do have news of you. Pyarelal also gave me some. It is good that you are in Harijan Nivas. You must get well. Chand is somewhat agitated. She has received so much from you. Must she not now serve \(^1\) Vide “Telegram to G. D. Birla”, 20-3-1945.

\(^2\) Thin, crisp chapatis
\(^3\) Granddaughter of Swami Shraddhanand
you? The thought is noble. If you need Chand’s services, I will send her immediately. She is learning to nurse the sick here. But nursing you will be the proper training. However, if you do not need Chand’s services, then I do not see any point in sending her merely so that you can look at each other. Let me know your mind.

Khurshedbehn left a few days ago. She is in Poona with Nargisbehn.

The heat has started here. I do not therefore have the courage to send for you.

_Blessings from_
_BAPU_

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

145. LETTER TO SHRIKRISHNADAS JAJU

_March 20, 1945_

_BHAI JAJUJI,_

Those who spin should wear khadi and those who wear khadi should spin. Spinning means picking the cotton bolls from the field, separating the seeds with a rolling-pin, ginning the cotton, making the slivers, spinning the yarn of the required count and doubling it.

It was good as it was. But since I was asked I have put down my ideas. Have a look at it and then I will write down whatever you want me to.

_BAPU_

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

---

1 This was a draft for the message to the Charkha Sangh; _vide_ “A Message”, 28-3-1945.
146. LETTER TO VIYOGI HARI

Sevagram,
March 20, 1945

Bhai Viyogi Hari,

Again the same thing has happened. Although I sent you a telegram, Vimaladevi will not be going to Delhi now. She will instead go to Simla with her husband. So forget about her now.

Blessings from

Bapu

Harijan Ashram
Delhi

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

147. NOTE TO GOPE GURBUXANI

March 20, 1945

Read my article on the subject.

Blessings from

Bapu

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 1329

148. INTERVIEW TO “THE BOMBAY CHRONICLE”

Sevagram,
March 20, 1945

[Q.] Mr. Amery\(^4\) told Karaka, Bombay Chronicle’s war correspondent, in the course of an interview, that you could give a lead. He stated that you had spoken for the Congress party before. In the context the suggestion seems to be that you candeal

\(^1\) Vide “Letter to Viyogi Hari”, 16-3-1945.

\(^2\) The addressee had asked: “Why is the cow worshipped in the Hindu religion and not in other religions?”

\(^3\) Vide “Hinduism”, 6-10-1921, and Appendix “Cow-Protection True and False”, 20-9-1928

\(^4\) L. S. Amery, Secretary of State for India, had given an interview to D. F. Karaka on March 16, 1945.
through Congress members in the legislatures. What are your views on these suggestions? In view of the statement made by Mr. Amery that “the Government Of India would no doubt need also to be satisfied that nothing would be done to impede or injure war efforts by direct opposition or by attempts to dislocate the economic situation”, will you be pleased to make things absolutely clear on the point?

[A.]\(^1\) Wish is often father to the thought. I see nothing new in Mr. Amery’s statement to Shri Karaka. All talk of resolution of the present deadlock is useless so long as the members of the Working Committee and other Congressmen are under detention. Obstruction of war effort is a mere bogey. But if it means that there will be fierce criticism of the bungling and corruption that has gone on in the name of war effort it is true—not that there is no criticism now. When the principal Congressmen are free there will be real national war effort if they are allowed to have an effective say.

The Bombay Chronicle, 21-3-1945

149. ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS\(^2\)

SEVAGRAM,

[On or before March 21, 1945]\(^3\)

QUESTION: What is soul force? How is it related to satyagraha?

ANSWER: Soul force is nothing but a manifestation of His power or strength. Satyagraha cannot be practised nor is it possible without it (soul force). Hence satyagraha is directly connected with soul force.

Q. What is the value or worth of independence?

A. The direct or straight road to independence is non-violence. We can or shall be immortal or live in death by dying non-violently (or by sacrificing ourselves for a noble cause) but not by killing others (or by perpetrating violence).

The Hitavada, 28-3-1945

---

\(^1\) Gandhiji gave this in writing.

\(^2\) The questions were asked by Gope Gurbuxani on different dates. The Hindi originals are not available.

\(^3\) The report appeared under the date-line “Sevagram, March 21, 1945”.

---

78 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
150. FOREWORD TO “PRACTICE AND PRECEPTS OF JESUS”

Hating carefully gone through these chapters, I can recommend their careful perusal to every believer in God be he a Christian or a follower of any other religion.

The booklet presents Professor J. C. Kumarappa’s views on Christian teaching in a nutshell. It is a revolutionary view of Jesus as a man of God. It is none the less revealing and interesting. The interpretation of the Lord’s prayer is novel and refreshing as are many other interpretations.

If all believe as Prof. Kumarappa does there will be no religious feuds and rivalries between sects and sects and different religions. Anyway, this reading of the Bible must bring solace to the Christians of India. If they will read the Bible as Prof. K. does, they need not be ashamed of their forefathers or their ancient faith. What is bad and superstitious in the old they are able to throw off by means of the liberal teaching presented in the following pages but it helps one to see that there is much of the old which is imperishable and worthy of being treasured.

Indeed, Prof. K. has a message beyond the confines of India. He speaks with confidence born of a living faith in the belief that the West, though nominally Christian, has not known the true Jesus of the Gospels.

As I was going through these pages, I was reminded of the late Advocate F. A. Laughton of Durban. I was then no student of Roman Or Dutch Law nor of the case law of the four States of South Africa. In difficulty, therefore, I used to go to Mr. Laughton for help. But, after I had done with my work, he would proudly bring forth from his drawer a green cover book with his father’s annotations from the Bible. It was Edwin Arnold’s Song Celestial, and had Mr. Laughton’s father’s parallel passages from the Bible showing that there was much in common between the New Testament and the Gita. I was then a novice trying to find out Truth in all its aspects without then knowing that I was so doing. Prof. Kumarappa’s interpretation with copious quotations from the Bible reminded me of what I used to believe even 1 This word is omitted in the printed source.

---

2 The printed source has “apologetic”.
as early as 1894-95. I can therefore speak from experience of the truth of the interpretation of the Gospels given in the following pages by Prof. Kumarappa.

M. K. GANDHI

SEVAGRAM, March 21, 1945

From a photostat: G.N. 10173. Also Practice and Precepts of Jesus

151. LETTER TO J. C. KUMARAPPA

SEVAGRAM,
March 21, 1945

MY DEAR KU,

See if this is what you want.¹ If not tell me what you do want.
Hope you are flourishing.

Love.

BAPU

Later

Come tomorrow night after 8 p. m. or tomorrow morning at 7 a.m.

From a photostat: G.N. 10172

152. LETTER TO M. S. KELKAR

SEVAGRAM,
March 21, 1945

MY DEAR ICE,

Your letter. Never mind Aundh. I have wired you² to come at once as I am in Bombay in April. I hope to present you with some patients. Give me satisfaction, the rest will follow as day follows night.

Yours,

BAPU

DR. M. S. KELKAR
R. J. PATKAR
MANORAMAGANJ
INDORE

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Vide the preceding item.
² Vide “Telegram to M. S. Kelkar”, 20-3-1945.
153. LETTER TO P. W. SEBASTIAN

SEVAGRAM,
March 21, 1945

DEAR SEBASTIAN,

Sorry for the death of your wife. But there should be no grief. You, I and all of us have to go where she has gone.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

P. W. SEBASTIAN
PARIS HALL
TRICHUR

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

154. LETTER TO AMRIT KAUR

SEVAGRAM,
March 21, 1945

CHI. AMRIT,

I have gone through your booklet¹. It is good so far as it goes. Do you see that you have begun with your own experiences? You could not do otherwise. The central disease of India is its deep poverty and deeper ignorance. You have dealt with both but as items. But I do not ask you to rewrite anything. If you touch up anything, you may do so. If not, as it is good enough reading.

Love.

BAPU

From the original: C.W. 4152. Courtesy: Amrit Kaur. Also G.N. 7787

¹ To Women; vide “Letter to Amrit Kaur”, 19-3-1945.
155. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

March 21, 1945

CHI. MUNNALAL,

You should never conclude from anything that I write that I must have examined every aspect. That is for you readers to do. I would of course relieve you and put up with whatever hardship follows. But the truth is that you ought not to abandon the work you have taken up. Man may not abandon his duty any more than the ant can abandon the pot of jaggery. We, however, look upon duty not as a pot of jaggery but as a burden. Otherwise how dare A. S. so much as suggest that you should leave? But that is what happened. I like what you say. By all means cling to the kitchen and make it a model one. It will bring you all the joy and you will get training along with the others. The gods will shower flowers and it may be I shall be there to watch. Make it an ideal kitchen. Run it with the help of servants, so called, but let them feel that they are not servants but masters or trustees. What more could you desire?

You now know my ideas fully. Forget Kanchan if possible. Write to her plainly that you are to get tempered here and she there. After both of you have become tempered, you will meet again. If you can do this, you will have brought down many fruits with one stone. The saying is about killing many birds with one stone. That is a wrong one, ours is the right one.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 5859. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

156. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA

March 21, 1945

CHI. KRISHNACHANDRA,

Why should you have even a piece of wood under the head? Sleep in shavasana1, as I do. If you must have something, have a stone or a brick.

1 A corpse-like posture for relaxation of the body
Do not give up carding and spinning. This one thing has become part of our life. Devote one hour regularly to this. You will acquire speed.

Why should you feel disappointed if you have to give up Nayee Talim? But some work has to be taken up.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4487

157. LETTER TO KHURSHED NAOROJI

SEVAGRAM,
March 22, 1945

VAHALAN BEHN,

I have your letter per friend. I answered all your previous letters. I do hope you had my replies. I can assure you that not a moment is wasted and taken away from the constructive programme. I am dealing with the post as it is brought to me without leaving any arrear.

Love to you all.

BAPU

SMT. KHURSHEDBEHN NAOROJI
DUNLAVIN LODGE
POONA 5

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

158. LETTER TO BISWANATH DAS

SEVAGRAM,
March 22, 1945

DEAR BISWANATH DAS,

Let the young man you mention write after the hot season, i.e., after June. I am likely to be away about 10th April. Hope you are well.

Love.

BAPU

BISWANATH DAS
BELLAGAM, P. O. PULSORA
DIST.GANJAM, ORISSA

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
159. LETTER TO J. R. BHALA

SEVAGRAM,
March 22, 1945

BHAI BHALA,

I read carefully your letter to Pyarelal and your article. I hope to reach Bombay on the 31st. Make an appointment and meet me there. I will make further inquiries so that I can guide your Association.

M. K. GANDHI

BHAI J. R. BHALA
OVERSEAS STUDENTS’ ASSOCIATION
9 FORJETT HILL, BOMBAY 26

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 2335

160. LETTER TO M. A. JINNAH

SEVAGRAM,
March 22, 1945

BHAI JINNAH,

Having read that you are ill, I am writing this. I trust the illness is a minor one and that you have recovered by now.

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

Q. A. JINNAH SAHEB
PRESIDENT, MUSLIM LEAGUE
NEW DELHI

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
161. LETTER TO SITA GANDHI

Sevagram,
March 22, 1945

Chi. Sita,

I am very happy to have your letter. May you go on making progress. Manilal and Sushila will come when God wills. You should not worry. Look after your health and engross yourself in work. Sumi writes to me every week. I will send you—all of you—her next letter.

Blessings from
Bapu

Sita Gandhi
Akola

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

162. LETTER TO KULWANT SINGH

Sevagram,
March 22, 1945

Sardarji,

Why should you write to me in English? The simple answer to the question you have put to me is that those who are in the Congress remain in it as its servants. I am not even a member of it. However I am its servant.

Yours,
M. K. Gandhi

Sardar Kulwant Singh
P. O. Moghapura
Lahore

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
163. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA

March 22, 1945

CHI, KRISHNACHANDRA,

There is a Sanskrit party and a translation party. Both equally command my allegiance. Because we are social animals we ought to find joy in collective recitation. Ultimately an individual should choose whichever way helps him to rise higher.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4488

164. LETTER TO VINAYAK D. SAVARKAR

SEVAGRAM,

March 22, 1945

BHAI SAVARKAR,

I write this after reading the news of the death of your brother. I had done a little bit for his release and ever since I had been taking an interest in him. Where is the need to condole with you? We are ourselves in the jaws of death. I hope his family are all right.

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

VIR SAVARKAR

RATNAGIRI

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 The reference is to the recitation of Ashram prayers.
165. NOTE TO BALVANT SINHA

March 22, 1945

Ba’s interpretation of the Ahalya\(^1\) episode is correct. But it is one of many. There can be as many interpretations as there are devotees and their attitudes.

BAPU

[From Hindi]

_Bapuki Chhayamen_, p. 366

166. LETTER TO HAFIZ ZAFFAR HUSSAIN

SEVAGRAM,

March 22, 1945

BHAI SAHEB,

I have your letter. Have patience. Remain quiet. You will see that the Gongres will not abandon freedom-loving Muslims.

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

MAULVI HAFIZ ZAFFAR HUSSAIN

From a copy of the Urdu: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

167. A LETTER

SEVAGRAM,

March 22, 1945

BROTHERS,

I am surprised to see your letter in English. Why don’t you write in Hindustani? I have already expressed my opinion. Whether to follow it or not is for each person to decide. I advise you to come to your own decision.

From a copy of the Urdu: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

\(^1\) Wife of Gautama in the _Ramayana_. She had been turned into stone for adulterous conduct and then regained her human state when Rama touched the stone with his feet.
168. LETTER TO K. S. GOPALASWAMY

[Before March 23, 1945]

Gandhiji, in his reply, has asked the handloom weavers of Tamil Nad to follow the instructions, issued by him to the handloom weavers and suggested that the weavers’ families should begin spinning also and adopt a process of doubling so that handloom weavers may not be idle.

The Hindu, 25-3-1945

169. LETTER TO GOPINATH BARDOLI

[Before March 23, 1945]

Do what is best, cost what it may. Kill corruption. Adopt that alternative which is best under the circumstances. I know difficulties will be many but we have to cut our way through.

The Hitavada, 24-3-1945

170. LETTER TO P. B. CHANDWANI

SEVAGRAM, March 23, 1945

MY DEAR CHANDWANI,

You can come when you like. But these are very hot months and I may be away. Come during the monsoons, or even in November. Of course work can be done in towns. But not out of K. B.’s funds. You want right teachers, but we must discuss when we meet.

Love.

BAPU

P. B. CHANDWANI
OLD SUKKUR
SIND

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

---

1 The addressee, General Secretary of the Tamil Nad Handloom Weavers’ Association, Karur, had sought Gandhiji’s help in improving the condition of the handloom weavers who were undergoing hardships because of the scarcity of yarn.

2 The report which carries the item bears the date, March 23, 1945.

3 The addressee had sought Gandhiji’s advice on the constitutional position.

4 The report which carries the item is date-lined: “Shillong, March 23, 1945”.

5 Kasturba Gandhi Memorial Fund
171. NOTE TO KRISHNACHANDRA

March 23, 1945

The cotton seeds are not separated properly. The method is wrong and slow. The hand should barely touch them. The seeds must separate with one stroke. The hands must move very fast.

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 4489

172. LETTER TO ANAND T. HINGORANI

March 23, 1945

CHI. ANAND,

I have your letter. How is the boy sent from here? Does he work? How is it about your food? How do you feel? How are Father and Mother? I am all right. How is Bharat?

Blessings from

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Hindi. Courtesy: National Archives of India and Anand T. Hingorani

173. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA

March 23, 1945

CHI. KRISHNACHANDRA,

I said what I recollected. Is it not true that at first you had wanted to be a teacher and desired a salary? It was even suggested once that you should be taken in the Wardha school. If this impression of mine is wrong I shall not repeat what I said. But I am certain that you have slowly been progressing. It is beside the point that you had not wanted the money for yourself. Have not these seven years been another journey for you?

It is all right about Nayee Talim. I am not going to let you off.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4490
174. LETTER TO MANAHAR

SEVAGRAM,
March 23, 1945

Bhai Manahar,

I discovered only today that the money for Shastriji’s maintenance was being sent from here. The expenditure in my opinion is too high. All expenditure should be channelled through you. I find even rent included in the expenses. The amount of Rs. 100 was sent to cover four months but almost the whole amount was spent in three months. I am also enclosing Shastriji’s letter. Tell me after looking into everything how much should be paid. I do not have any private money of my own. Whatever I have is from donations. Surely I cannot make donations out of donations. I can spend money only for the purpose for which the donations are meant. The money paid to your account depends on donations. Please let me know how much I should give for Shastriji. Whatever is done should be through you. Consider Shastriji to be your patient. He can see this letter.

Blessings from

BAPU

[PS.]

I am not talking about the past. I say that there should be some restriction now. Shastriji is ill. He cannot even think properly. Whatever has to be done must be done either by you or by me. I can do nothing from here and so it becomes your duty. You must tell me how much should be sent to you. Shastriji has to be placed under your control.

From a copy of the Hindi: C.W. 5894. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

---

1 Of Dattapur Lepers House
2 Parachure Shastri
175. LETTER TO RAMKRISHNA BAJAJ

SEVAGRAM,
March 23, 1945

CHI. RAMKRISHNA1.

Occasionally I read the letters you write to your mother. I keep getting news of your progress. It pleases me. Today I realized that I too could write to you. So I am writing. I learn from your letter that you have asked for underwear. I suggest you give up the use of underwear. We do not require it in our climate. But of course if you have got used to it and cannot do without it you may continue with it. You do see that it is our duty to minimize our expenses voluntarily and raise our life to the utmost. Develop yourself in every way.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 3065

176. LETTER TO VENKATESH BHATT

BHAI VENKATESH BHATT,

Why do you write letters in English? Write in Hindustani or in your mother tongue. Damodar is brave. Money should not be collected by undertaking fasts. Money can be collected through work and service. A fast can often take the form of coercion.

Yours,
M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 3628

1 Son of Jamnalal Bajaj
177. NOTE TO GOPE GURBUXANI

March 23, 1945

Fighting for peace is a contradiction in terms. How can there be peace for those who fight? There certainly is conflict between peace and restlessness. But this is welcome to the lover of peace for he finds his peace in restlessness.¹

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 1330

178. NOTE TO GOPE GURBUXANI

March 23, 1945

One meaning of education is knowledge of the Self and it is perfect in itself. But today it is wrongly interpreted. Hence I would say it is the all-round development of man and a true teacher is one who helps in such development².

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 1331

179. TELEGRAM TO HANUMANT RAI

SEVAGRAM,
March 24, 1945

HANUMANT RAI
1267 CHAITPURI
DELHI

GIVEN NO PERMISSION ANYONE UNNECESSARY COME.

GANDHI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ The addressee had asked: “Why is man fighting for peace and how can lasting peace be established?”

² The addressee had asked: “What is the aim of education and who can be described as a teacher?”
180. LETTER TO ARUNA ASAF ALI

SEVAGRAM,
March 24, 1945

MY DEAR DAUGHTER,

You cannot hurt me without hurting yourself. I laugh and invite you to share my laughter. “O ye of little faith!” You lose patience quickly because you misread me. Have I not said 1945 is not 1942. Yet I have not changed because you find that I am not covering myself with woollen shawls or even at all.¹

Wait, watch and pray.

Love.

BAPU

From the original: Aruna Asaf Ali Papers. Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library

181. LETTER TO KHURSHED NAOROJI

SEVAGRAM,
March 24, 1945

VAHALAN BEHN,

I am so glad you are going for a change to Panchgani. Work there but don’t descend till you are really well. I treasure your caution to think of nothing but the constructive programme. You have also done well to tell me that I must meet the co-ordinating committee.

BAPU

SMT. KHURSHEDBEHN

DUNLAVIN LODGE
POONA 5

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ In her letter of March 23, the addressee had expressed her grief at what she considered the changed attitude of Gandhiji towards the British.
182. LETTER TO Y. VENKATASUBBAIAH

SEVAGRAM,
March 24, 1945

DEAR FRIEND,

Your letter. I must see the naturopath face to face before I move.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

V. VENKATASUBBAIAH
KASTURIDEVI NAGAR
NELLORE
S. INDIA

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

183. LETTER TO SHARDA G. CHOKHAWALA

SEVAGRAM,
March 24, 1945

CHI. BABUDI,

With children fever comes and goes. After Anand recovers come and stay with me. Do not get nervous.

Blessings from
BAPU

From the Gujarati original: C.W. 10055. Courtesy: Sharda G. Chokhawala

184. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA

March 24, 1945

CHI. KRISHNACHANDRA,

You should not have lost the four-anna coin like that. About the Talimi Sangh I am sure I am right but I shall not force you.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4504
185. NOTE TO GOPE GURBUXANI

March 24, 1945

Personality, i.e., the quality of being oneself, can be good or bad. If it is in conformity with the Self it is good and if it disregards the Self it is bad. It becomes good and develops by meditating on the Self and understanding its attributes.¹

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 1334

186. SPEECH AT A. I. S. A. MEETING-I

SEVAGRAM,
March 24, 1945

I regret I shall not be able to be present throughout the entire proceedings. The reason is that I wish to live for 125 years, so that I can serve the country longer. I was not joking when I said so at the August meeting of A. I. C. C., for a satyagrahi never utters a word that he does not mean. I earnestly endeavour to fulfil this wish of mine and to this end I try to conserve as much of my energy as I can.

Whether I succeed in my desire to live to 125 years will not depend on doctors or medical science, though in my own way I have used the aid of both a good deal. It will depend on my ability fully to translate into practice the principles of truth and ahimsa. My experience of ahimsa has taught me that even in the work of service the pace should not be too fast. I confess that in this I have been only partially successful. I cannot regulate my pace sufficiently. Old, settled habits are not overcome all at once. I know undue haste is bad; it impedes work instead of facilitating it.

I have been asked whether it is desirable to mix politics and constructive work. At present some people are doing constructive work in order to strengthen the Congress organization. This mixing of politics and constructive work helps neither. I entirely concur with the view that for full justice to be done to constructive work it must stand on its own feet and should not be tied to political work. I fear this advice of mine will not have any effect. But as the author of the Mahabharata says, ‘You must continue to proclaim the truth irrespective of whether anybody listens to you or not.’ This comforts me.

¹ The addressee had asked: “What is meant by personality and how can we build it up?”
² The meeting, attended by the Trustees, Provincial Secretaries and workers of A. I. S. A., was held in the Khadi Vidyalaya Hall.

Since I first presented through the Congress the constructive programme to the country in 1920, my faith in its efficacy has become stronger. In the light of experience and knowledge gained, its scope has been enlarged. It is my claim, and I have proclaimed it from the house-tops, that my 15-point programme is comprehensive and if it is pursued throughout the country we shall gain swaraj without any other programme.

Mahatma Gandhi referred to the formation of the Congress Ministry in the North-West Frontier Province and the reported efforts of Mr. Bhulabhai Desai to end the political deadlock and said:

I prefer to keep silent on these points for the present. The Parliamentary programme may result in political swaraj; but non-violent swaraj is possible only by fully implementing the constructive programme.

If only the constructive programme was worked in the right spirit, there was no need either to incur the wrath of the ruling race or even to enter the Legislatures. But Gandhiji urged that even if parliamentary work was permitted, the special importance of the constructive programme would always remain and through it alone the freedom of the country could be achieved.

It may be asked whether the people will take up the constructive programme and pursue it in the way I want it pursued. My answer is that whether they do so or not does not take away from the merit of the remedy I advocate which is both good and practicable.

In this connection I have been asked whether, since carrying on of the movement against untouchability and organizing of peasants and workers in the name of the Congress provides a chance to Ambedkar and others to raise opposition and thus impede anti-untouchability work, it would not be better if these programmes were pursued independently of the Congress.

It is my view that if the followers of Ambedkar oppose us we should not let ourselves be provoked or give up our work because of it. We should reach their hearts and understand their feelings. If we had gone through the experiences that the Harijans have gone through, there is no telling how embittered we might not have become and how little our ahimsa would have endured. Therefore on such occasions we should look inward and if there is the slightest vestige of untouchability left we should purge ourselves of it. It is my firm belief that if Hinduism is to survive, untouchability must go. If untouchability lives, Hinduism is bound to perish and will deserve to perish. The tragedy is that those who should have especially devoted themselves to the work of reform did not put their hearts into the thing and only played with it. What wonder that Harijan brethren feel suspicious, and show opposition and bitterness?

---

1 This and the two following paragraphs are from The Hindu.

The removal of untouchability root and branch thus becomes a religious duty for me and for other Hindus like me. If we want to achieve swaraj through non-violence then untouchability will have to be eradicated. We cannot attain swaraj without that. Not all Congressmen share this view of mine. The Congress is a democratic organization and it can have in it people representing many points of view. No one has the right to thrust his own view on others and expect them to work in pursuance of those views. It will be right if those who consider eradication of untouchability a religious duty give themselves up exclusively to this work with single-minded devotion. At the same time it will also be right if those who consider anti-untouchability work as a part of the political programme of the Congress pursue it as such.

Religious duty is a very subtle and complicated thing. It is not a commodity that can be bought and sold. Perpetual inner searching is needed in order to discover it. In essence it is the same for all times and all places but its form and its translation into practice changes from individual to individual and from time to time. If we can but grasp this secret of the many-sidedness of truth we shall be able to see any differences between principles and practice in their proper perspective. I therefore welcome both those who work for the eradication of untouchability independently and those who do so in pursuance of the Congress programme.¹

The same argument, he said, applied to the question whether Congressmen

¹ The following paragraph is from The Hindu.
could organize the kisans and workers. Congressmen could not do it and yet remain Congressmen. He said he had already informed Mr. N. G. Ranga that it would lead to conflict if there was a separate organization for peasants and workers and consequent weakening of both the organizations.

He himself had ceased to be a four-anna member of the Congress and yet he claimed that he was rendering more service to the Congress by remaining outside. Everyone could do like him but no one had the right to lay down the rule for others or expect them to fall into line with himself. To find fault with those whose angle of approach to constructive work was different would be like cutting the very tree on which they were sitting.¹

Gandhiji concluded the first set of questions by repeating what he had often said before that he was there merely to advise. No one was bound to accept his advice unless it appealed to his head and heart.

The other question asked is whether the funds of the Charkha Sangh can be used for giving training to khadi workers in other branches of constructive work, such as agriculture, animal husbandry and Nayee Talim, in order to equip them for all-round village service. My answer is no. Funds collected for one institution cannot be spent on another. According to the constitution of the Charkha Sangh its funds cannot be used for any purpose other than khadi. Therefore expenditure on training in agriculture and animal husbandry should be borne by the institution concerned. Otherwise it will lead to confusion. If money belonging to one institution has to be advanced as loan to another institution, it should be done on proper security and on a reasonable rate of interest. The job of a trustee is difficult and dedicate. I have been a trustee of various institutions for over fifty years and every institution under me has flourished. The secret of my success is not my Mahatmaship but my business sense and the meticulous care I show in maintaining accounts. The success or otherwise of a public institution ought not to depend on the brilliance of an individual or individuals but on the purity of its management and the soundness of its business policy. If you cultivate these money will come to you of itself.

A friend has suggested that khadi work instead of being carried on through the various branches of the Charkha Sangh should, within a specified time, be entrusted to workers engaged in all-round village work who understand the scheme. I agree with the suggestion, but I am not in favour of laying down a time-limit for winding up all khadi production activity. I am however very keen that all the khadi

¹ This and the following paragraph are from The Bombay Chronicle.
consumed in the villages should be produced in the villages by the villagers themselves. That will eliminate all incidental and overhead charges and put khadi beyond commercial competition. This is the work which can very effectively be done through Nayee Talim. Nayee Talim is all-embracing in its scope. That means it has to be like a magnet that attracts all, young and old.

So long as it does not develop this power it will be a body without soul.

If the Charkha Sangh is to free itself of the burden it carries, workers of the type needed will have to be produced. These are lacking at present. I therefore want that none of you should leave Sevagram till you have understood the principles of Nayee Talim.

I am as impatient as any of you to reach our goal but I realize that the task is an uphill one. India has been enslaved for so long—its slavery dates since even before British rule—that all initiative and originality in us has been killed and we are paralyzed with despair.
Constructive work cannot make headway without a resuscitation of these lost qualities in us, and the attainment of independence through truth and non-violence must remain an empty dream unless constructive work can be carried through to success. Freedom is bound to come. It is coming. But mere political freedom will not satisfy me. It will certainly not satisfy the world which expects much greater things from India. Independence of my conception means nothing less than the realization of the “Kingdom of God within you and on this earth”.¹ I would rather work for and die in the pursuit of this dream though it may never be realized. That means infinite patience and perseverance. If India is satisfied with the mere attainment of political independence and there is nothing better for me to do, you will find me retiring to the Himalayas leaving those who wish to listen to me to seek me out there.

Gandhiji then offered to answer the remaining questions the next day² and before winding up his talk for the day he said that they need not be disheartened at the present state of the country. He was happy that with infinite patience they had achieved something in spite of their slavery and other obstacles, and he was really proud of the achievement.

[From Hindi]

Charkha Sanghka Navasanskaran, pp. 104-9; The Bombay Chronicle,
8-9-1945, and The Hindu, 27-3-1945

¹ The Hindu here has: “I want real freedom, Ramrajya, for India in every respect and that can be obtained only through the constructive programme.”
² Vide “Speech at A. I. S. A. Meeting-II”, 25-3-1945.
187. MESSAGE ON DEATH OF HERMANN KALLENBACH

Sevagram,
March 25, 1945

South Africa has lost a most generous-minded citizen and the Indians of that subcontinent a very warm friend.

In Hermann Kallenbach’s death I have lost a very dear and near friend. He used to say to me often that when I was deserted by the whole world, I would find him to be a true friend going with me, if need be, to the ends of the earth in search of Truth. He used to spend at one time £75 per month on his person alone. But he so revolutionized his life that his monthly personal expenses amounted to under £8. This lasted while we lived together in a cottage seven miles from Johannesburg. When I left South Africa, he reverted in large part to his original life though mostly eschewing the things of life he had deliberately left.

He came in close touch with the late patriot Mr. G. K. Gokhale, who held him in high esteem. It may be noted that together with Henry Polak, Mr. H. Kallenbach was arrested for marching with me from Natal to Transvaal.

The Hindu, 27-3-1945

188. LETTER TO MIRABEHN

March 25, 1945

Chi. Mira,

Better a p. c. than no letter. I am glad you are making progress in the face of difficulties. Am glad too that P. came and kindled hopes in you of taking Godward path. Hope for my coming to you in October. Of course the allowance per month is meant. Nothing certain about my movement except that I go to Bombay on 31st instant. Am keeping well in spite of the heat which has begun in right earnest.

Love.

Blessings from

BAPU

From the original: C.W. 6504. Courtesy: Mirabehn. Also G.N. 9899

---

1 Hermann Kallenbach died in Johannesburg on March 25, 1945.
2 On November 10, 1913.
3 The superscription is in Hindi.
4 The subscription is in Hindi.
189. LETTER TO UTTAMCHAND GANGARAM

SEVAGRAM,
March 25, 1945

MY DEAR UTTAMCHAND,

Your letter. Many thanks for not insisting on re-conversion. The capital will be left untouched. Do please supplement the interest from time to time. The interest will not be allowed to fall below 3& p. c. If it does, you shall be consulted. Unless things go topsyturvy, it shall not go below 3_%.$^1$

I do hope you will keep better. Have you consulted any naturopath? If Mahadev were alive and you had sent him money, he would have instructed me and done according to my wish. I shall see if anybody can make anything of the puzzle.

Yours,
M. K. GANDHI

UTTAMCHAND GANGARAM
BOMBAY BAKERY
HYDERABAD, SIND

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

190. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA

March 25, 1945

CHI. KRISHNACHANDRA,

Why the despair? If you cannot find work here where there is so much work, where else will you find it? One may not succeed in finding a needle in a haystack, but does one have to search for the hay? There is work right before your eyes. It is another matter that you should ignore it.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4505

$^1$ Vide also “Letter to Uttamchand Gangaram”, 14-3-1945.
Jajuji says that the quantity of yarn tendered in partial payment for khadi should be increased from two pice to 2_ as., or a hank of yarn per rupee. This is too mild. I would go further. Some days back Bombay had become the Manchester of khadi. Khadi was brought from far and wide and sold there. The credit for this went to the salesmanship of Shri Vithaldas Jerajani. It was thanks to his efforts that first swadeshi goods and then khadi entered Bombay. But now I see that that was not the light way. Khadi, in the first place, should be consumed where it is produced. If in a particular place khadi in excess of the requirement is produced the surplus should be sent to the nearest place where it is needed. The district should be the limit or at most the province. Indeed I would not go even as far as the province. A district is a large enough area for this sort of transaction. The aim of course is that the khadi produced in a village should be sold in that village. But out of the seven lakh villages in India how many are there which can make this claim about themselves? In the villages where khadi is produced the spinners and weavers, for all the efforts of the Charkha Sangh, use very little of the khadi they produce. This is against the ideal of khadi. The condition of two pice per rupee to be tendered in yarn for the purchase of khadi does not apply to villagers. They must sell khadi only in exchange of yarn. Do you fear that if you enforce the yarn condition the sale of khadi in cities will suffer? If you do not get rid of this fear you will kill khadi. ¹

The rule of giving half an anna worth of yarn for one rupee of khadi purchased is generally meant for big cities and I would desire that all should spin and produce their khadi. Khadi is the emblem of truth and non-violence. Such exchange of yarn may result in reducing the number of khadi wearers but we should carry on our work in that direction and ultimately we shall succeed.

Khadi has won a place of honour in society. The rich feel proud of buying khadi produced by the poor. But this is not enough. If you limit the role of khadi to providing bread to the poor, it cannot be an instrument for securing swaraj through non-violence. I do not want this. Even if I were the only one left to buy khadi on condition of yarn being tendered I should not worry. You have accepted khadi as the symbol of non-violence. You have also accepted it as the means for securing swaraj. If it is the will of God that khadi should die I would rather it died a natural death than that your timidity and lack of faith should be the cause of its demise. Those who for some reason cannot themselves spin can get their wives, mothers, sisters or servants to spin. Failing that they may get yarn from their neighbours but not on payment.¹

¹ The following paragraph is from The Hitavada, 27-3-1945.

Next he produced some figures² which Shri Aryanayakum and Smt. Asha Devi had given him. He considered those figures to be most revealing. They were proof positive of how quickly khadi could be introduced in the villages through Nayee Talim. Cloth produced by the children during the period of their training would be sufficient to cloth the entire village and it would be the cheapest cloth possible.

We should increase our love for khadi and serve the villages. You should make all your dependents khadi wearers.

I have compared khadi to the sun and the other industries to the planets in the solar system. Agriculture is a planet in this solar system but it cannot be the sun, for agriculture is not free. Those who till the land do not own it. The Government controls it through petty officials. The people have lost self-confidence. Harmful customs have led to fragmentation of land. If I am alive fifty years hence and if by that time people have gained control of the land I shall reconsider its place in my solar system. I can say that agriculture by itself cannot develop the intellect as much as khadi and other village industries can. As the late Madhusudan once said, constant company of bullocks turns men into bullocks.

The gist of what I have told you during the past two days is that if you have faith in my ideal you should put your whole effort behind it. The Shastras proclaim that Truth ever triumphs. This is a universally valid principle. If sometimes in life it is seen to fail the reason is not that the principle is at fault. It shows the imperfection of the man who is applying the principle. Once you have understood the principle you will have developed that detachment and that freedom

¹ The two paragraphs that follow are from The Bombay Chronicle and The Hitavada
² Of yarn produced by students during the first five years of their training at the basic school at Sevagram from fear which is as important for the realization of an ideal as is faith in that ideal.

[From Hindi]

Charkha Sanghka Navasanskaran, pp. 109-12; The Bombay Chronicle, 8-9-1945, and The Hitavada, 27-3-1945

192. ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS¹

March 25, 1945

Q. 1. Some members of the Charkha Sangh took a leading part in sabotage activities. . . . The Government became suspicious and took repressive measures against such organizations. In such a situation, is it not a mistake to put the entire blame on the Government?

A. Just because some worker went astray, it was wrong to punish the Charkha Sangh. I blame the Government entirely for its high-handedness.

Q. 2. Some Congressmen whose faith in non-violence was not very strong ... are full of ideas regarding sabotage. . . . How can these people be weaned away from these ideas?

A. Those who have lost faith in non-violence will recover it through the work of the people who have retained their faith. They will never recover it through reprimands. They are following their own convictions. Let us be perfect as they are imperfect. Darkness is dispelled by the rising of the sun.

Q. 3. These days the committees for constructive work appointed by the Congress are full of people with the ideas mentioned in question No. 2. There are some devoted people too. Do you believe that the constructive work can make progress with the help of such committees?

A. The constructive work will proceed if the people having faith can give expression to their faith not through words but through deeds.

Q. 4. Under such circumstances, would it not be better that the people having faith in non-violence should carry on their work independently of others?

A. The answer is contained in the previous answers and also in my speech.²

¹ The questions were from Pundalik Katagde.
² Vide “Speech at A. I. S. A. Meeting-I”, 24-3-1945.
Q. 5. Those who have no faith in non-violence and, for that reason, are not able to contribute to the programme based on non-violence are in a very uncomfortable position in the constructive work committees. This has a demoralizing effect on them. In such a situation would it not be proper to let their efforts find scope in Parliamentary activities?

A. Do we restrict anyone from going into the Parliament? It is enough that we do not go ourselves.

Q. 6. Will there not be greater scope for basic education, stopping corruption, improving the food situation, removing the difficulties of the villagers and so on, if the Congress assumes power?

A. It may or may not happen. It will depend on what type of people come forward and on the state of public opinion.

Q. 7.... Can I give my opinion in favour of bringing electricity to the villages, particularly in Hudli? . . .

A. I am strongly opposed to it.

My answers are not meant for publication. You can show them to friends.

BAPU

[PS.]

I have not revised this. Correct the slips yourself or get them corrected.

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 5227

193. TELEGRAM TO HANNAH LAZAR

March 26, 1945

HANNAH
CARE MANILAL
PHOENIX (DURBAN, SOUTH AFRICA)

NO SORROW OVER UNCLE'S DEATH HE DID HIS DUTY. CONTINUE HIS SERVICE. SYMPATHY WITH ALL. LOVE.

GANDHI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Hermann Kallenbach’s niece
194. LETTER TO GOSIBEHN CAPTAIN

SEVAGRAM,
March 26, 1945

DEAR SISTER,

I was glad you stayed away for Manekji’s sake. I do hope he will pull through his illness and be up and doing. You need not worry about coming to me in Bombay if you cannot. Just write and I shall attend. I had not fainted. I was simply starved for the moment. Love to you both.

BAPU

GOSIBEHN CAPTAIN
122 MARZBAN BAD
ANDHERI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

195. LETTER TO BHUPENDRA NARAYAN SENGUPTA

March 26, 1945

MY DEAR BHUPEN,

I shall be presently off to Bombay. By all means come and pass a few days with me on my return to Sevagram.

Yours,

BAPU

SHRI BHUPENDRA NARAYAN SEN
99/2, BALLYGUNJ PLACE
P. O. BALLYGUNJ
CALCUTTA

From a photostat: G.N. 10067

1 This is in Gujarati.
196. LETTER TO N. R. JOSHI

SEVAGRAM,
March 26, 1945

MY DEAR JOSHI,

Have I not helped? I have the thing still in mind. I may fail to do more. If I do, it won’t be for want of effort. Please give my love to them.

Yours,

BAPU

SHRI N. R. JOSHI
ALLAHABAD AGRI. INSTITUTE
ALLAHABAD

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library.
Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

197. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

[March 26, 1945]

CHI. MUNNALAL,

Here is for your guidance. There must be rules, and they must be obeyed. Manage somehow during these five days. Then after my return we shall see. I am in favour of two kitchens. If I were in your place, I would attend to everything you mention and do it well. I have done that. But that does not mean that, your doing what I would have done will necessarily bear fruit. There is no such rule. You may act as you like, but on one condition, namely, that you must be absolutely sure that you are following truth and ahimsa. If the persons you have named do not observe the rules, you should talk to them one by one and find out why. If a person admits the fact, you may make an exception in his favour, and if you find that the exceptions are so many that they defeat the rule you should revise the rule. I understand from what you write that the exceptions do defeat the rule. This is indeed a hotel. But it is more than that. A hotel is a place where

1 The addressee’s letter, to which this is a reply, was delivered to Gandhiji at 5.15 a.m. on March 25, and this letter was acknowledged at 6.15 a.m. on March 26.
people pay for boarding and lodging. They order and get whatever they want, and feel no embarrassment. It should be so here also. Here, too, we must have some rules, as every hotel has. For instance, we would serve no non-vegetarian food or cater to people’s taste in regard to spices. Let Shakaribehn start a separate kitchen. Anybody else who wishes may also do that. Meet every permanent resident and know from him or her their wishes, then frame rules and get them passed in the presence of all and see that everyone observes the rule which he himself has accepted. I knew about Kamle today by chance. He is suffering from dysentery. I have asked him today to go immediately. He should have gone earlier. It was only from your note that I came to know that Gurbuxani and Vimalabehn have made separate arrangements for their meals. You ought to have complete information as to which persons do that and why. Instead, you permit anarchy to reign. Is it right? I think I have given all the guidance you need.

Now think over Sushilabehn’s advice. A plate, a cup for water, two bowls and one spoon. The plate, the cup and the bowls should be nickel-plated. About the spoon I am not convinced. Two bowls may be all right, though I am not sure. Serving ghee with the vegetable will not do. Perhaps it will not do even to put it on the chapatis. If the vegetable is served in a bowl, ghee may be added to it. But I have seen only one bowl in many places.

I am giving no ruling in this matter. Personally, I would provide only one bowl. But I give no ruling.

You had told me that you would take out from your notebook and give me the portions regarding myself. Do that before my departure.

The decision to talk to every permanent resident in private, to frame rules and discuss them in the presence of all is for immediate implementation. About the separate kitchen it should be postponed till my return. Show me the rules. Those who wish to have separate arrangements from today may be permitted to have them.

_Blessings from_
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 5861. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah
March 26, 1945

CHI. MUNNALAL,

It would be better if the thing was done before I left for Bombay. But do not sacrifice your sleep for that.

I was glad that the problem about Sushilabehn had been solved. My success holds no lesson for anybody, but it may give one hope. There may be many reasons for my success. According to me, the chief reason is my ahimsa. From your point of view it is true that your training has not fitted you for managing a kitchen. When you learn non-attachment you will not say that. We are fit enough for any duty that comes to us unsought. The secret is that we do not run after any task; the task comes to us unsought. If you look upon a servant as your own brother or sister, you will never fail. Yesterday the kedgeree was not well cooked. Manu refused to eat it and so I examined it with my fingers. Finding that it was insufficiently cooked I made her a sign that she need not eat it. If I had insisted, she would have consumed it and suffered from stomachache in consequence. If everybody had eaten it that would have been no evidence that it was well cooked.

I explained to Kalukhan himself about Magandeep. I understand about Aundh. I think nothing remains now.

Blessings from

BAPU

[PS.]

Instead of engraving people’s names on the utensils, they should be numbered. This is the practice in jails, as also in institutions. Instead of purchasing additional utensils, find some way out. In the last resort, we can always have [leaf cups]. If you can have inexpensive earthen ones you may have them. Everybody may make for himself spoons of wood. We can teach them. It is quite easy to learn. Think what the poor would do and find some way. Discuss the matter with the permanent residents. Mohan Singh will probably suggest something. Moreover, now I shall be leaving, so you will have no difficulty during that time. Think over the matter before I return. You can certainly make wooden ones. We used to do that in S. A. The wood and the knife were supplied by the jail authorities.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 5863. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

1 Vide the preceding item.
2 The source is not clear here.
199. LETTER TO KANCHAN M. SHAH

SEVAGRAM,
March 26, 1945

CHI. KANCHAN,

I do not like it at all that you have fallen ill. But I am glad that you have been showing courage. Keep on writing to me. Recover fully and do as much service as you can. It is quite warm here. At present meetings are going on. I am all right. I shall be leaving for Bombay on the 30th.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 8267. Also C.W. 7186. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

200. LETTER TO AMTUSSALAAM

SEVAGRAM,
March 26, 1945

CHI. AMTUSSALAAM,

I have regularly written to you and also to Kanchan. What can I do if you do not get the letters? It is a pity your health has deteriorated so much. You have got to get well somehow. And both of you should stay there till you get leave. Keep writing to me. Lavanyachanda is brave. I hope she has recovered.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 494

201. LETTER TO KANTILAL AND SARASWATI GANDHI

March 26, 1945

CHI. SURU AND KANTI,

I have letters from both of you. It is good that Harilal has arrived there. You have to serve him in any case. Whatever he may be he is your father. It will be good if he recovers. [Suru,] you will pass the examination.

Blessings from
BAPU

[PS.]

Kanti can stay in the Ashram, [if not] with friends. I cannot say what will happen if I go somewhere.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 6184. Also C.W. 3458. Courtesy: Kantilal Gandhi

202. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA

March 26, 1945

CHI. KRISHNACHANDRA,

Disappointment cannot come anywhere near a worshipper of non-violence. Your indecision comes from your fear of committing mistakes. We must quickly take decisions even if they should turn out to be mistaken. Mistakes can be rectified.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4506

203. LETTER TO TEJWANTI

SEVAGRAM,

March 26, 1945

CHI. TEJWANTI,

Read the two letters sent herewith. Sohanlalji is here. You get a scholarship there. There are so many women with you. It is therefore your duty to stay there and give satisfaction to your seniors. At this time it is very hot here and it will continue so for at least two months. If you do good work there, I shall have you here later on. I have to go to Bombay now. I do not even know how long I shall be there. I would advise you to work with full devotion. Also learn to read and write well.

Blessings from
BAPU

TEJWANTIBEHN
A. I. S. A. BRANCH
ADAMPUR
PUNJAB

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

204. NOTE TO GOPE GURBUXANI

March 26, 1945

Prayer is a cry of the heart. It can be fruitful if it comes from within. But those who pray for an object do not know the meaning of prayer at all.¹

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 1332

205. LETTER TO NARGISBEHN CAPTAIN

SEVAGRAM,
March 27, 1945

DEAR SISTER,²

Your letter. Whether I go to Panchgani or not will be decided in Bombay. I hope all of you are doing well.

Love to you all.

BAPU

NARGISBEHN
DANLAVIN LODGE
POONA 6

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ The addressee had asked: “What is prayer and how can it be made fruitful?”
² This is in Gujarati.
206. LETTER TO UTTAMCHAND GANGARAM

Sevagram,
March 27, 1945

MY DEAR UTTAMCHAND,

Here is the answer to your puzzle.¹ It is from one who is familiar with a billiards table.

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

SHRI UTTAMCHAND GANGARAM
HYDERABAD

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library.
Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

207. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

March 27, 1945

CHI. MUNNALAL,

One must try to get rid of whatever bad habit one recognizes in oneself. Your pen runs independently of you. Discipline it and then let it climb a hill.

I can only indicate the ideal. It is for you to reach it or not. How can I say that you can do so much and no more? I shall try to adjust myself to you as much as I can. Perhaps there is no spare pair of sandals. You will get the loin-cloth. It cannot be called a lungi. A lungi cannot be tucked up from behind. Bhansali and Balkrishna wear lungis. Give up hope of sandals. I have no spare pair at all.

About the books, after my return. Use the ones which are lying with me. Make notes from them and give me a copy. Wooden sandals are inexpensive and easy to make. You may use leather or webbing or cloth for the strips. You should train people one by one to join in the prayers. If they are not prepared to give that much time, only those who can sing in tune may join. The truth is that even after so many years people have developed no deep interest in the prayers. The attendance at morning prayers is practically nil. But don’t exert yourself about this just now. If nobody joins the [Gita] recitation, drop it. It will be enough if you keep up the other items of the programme. Since you do not know the beauty of joint recitation, you have not been able to describe it. Everybody gets breathing time and yet they all seem to be singing in unison. I am saying this from experience. Don’t write to other institutions now to make any inquiry. Will there be a shortage of rooms after I leave? I will see about Hari-ichchha. It is easy to turn steam into water. We should learn to do that. Take Mohan Singh’s help.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 5866. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

208. LETTER TO SITA GANDHI

March 27, 1945

CHI. SITA,

Only this much for today. Why are you afraid of dreams? You must not cry. We get dreams owing to indigestion. Sometimes dreams are due to our impatience. Many a time we worry unconsciously and then we get dreams. In such cases we should keep repeating Ramanama. Remember that it is an unfailing remedy.

Teach me how to row.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 4947

209. LETTER TO AMRIT KAUR

SEVAGRAM,
March 27, 1945

Too much greed is the root of sin. Keep this in mind and then expect me always to write something. True friendship or true love demands nothing and expects nothing. See the Bible which also has similar statements.²

Love.³

BAPU⁴

From the Hindi original: C.W. 4204. Courtesy: Amrit Kaur. Also G.N. 7840

¹ This is written as a postscript to Sushila Gandhi’s letter to the addressee.
² Presumably the allusion is to I Corinthians, XIII.
³ These are in English.
⁴ ibid
210. LETTER TO E. W. ARYANAYAKUM

SEVAGRAM,

March 27, 1945

CHI. ARYANAYAKUM,

This letter is for both of you. Dev’s studies will be completed in April. He asks me, since I shall be away then, what he is to do. If you let me have your opinion, I can give him definite advice.

When is the meeting of the representatives of all the institutions? There is going to be one I suppose.

I see from today’s telegram that if you do not go to Bombay the quorum will not be complete. Even so if you have work here, I shall not insist that you should leave it and go.

Blessings from

BAPU

TALIMI SANGH
SEVAGRAM

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

211. LETTER TO GOPE GURBUXANI

March 27, 1945

CHI. GURBUXANI,

Enclosed is the letter to Amrit Kaur. Why do you need a certificate? For a follower of truth, truth is certificate enough. Asking for certificates is a very bad habit. I showed interest in it for some time; but it is 55 years since I gave it up. Do not take any from me or from anyone else. Do not [ask for favours]¹ but strive hard on the strength of your truth and non-violence. Keep writing to me. Write in Hindustani. If Vimala can write, both of you should write.

You will know the rest from my letter to Rajkumari.

Blessings from

BAPU

From Hindustani: C.W. 10579

¹ This is illegible in the source.
212. LETTER TO AMRIT KAUR

SEVAGRAM,
March 27, 1945

CHI. AMRIT,

This letter will be given to you by Dr. Gurbuxani and his wife Vimalabehn. Both are educated. Both come from affluent families. They have given up Government service and also luxurious living in order to be with me. The wife cannot stand this heat. Perhaps she is pregnant too. They have lived in Simla. They are coming to Simla. Put them on to some public work if you can. They will have to be given some salary. Be frank if they cannot be useful. There is no question of favour in service. Here they had started with the cleaning of latrines.

Blessings from
BAPU

From the Hindi original: C.W. 4272. Courtesy: Amrit Kaur. Also G.N. 7904

213. LETTER TO PRABHAKAR PAREKH

March 27, 1945

CHI. PRABHAKAR,

The mind must be concentrated during these two minutes and in the second half of the prayer. This does not mean that we cannot concentrate on some spiritual thing. That is bound to happen.

What is the meaning of concentrating on Ramanama or Aum? Yes, let us not deceive the mind with regard to spiritual things. That is why I asked why you had not familiarized yourself with the Gita. About the hospital, some other time.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 9021. Also C.W. 9145. Courtesy: Prabhakar Parekh
214. NOTE TO GOPE GURBUXANI

March 27, 1945

He can serve by writing a true and original history of the people. If there is progress he will describe the progress; if he finds there is decline he will record that decline.¹

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 1333

215. DRAFT CABLE TO JALBHOY RUSTOMJEE

WARDHAGANI,
[On or after March 27, 1945]²

JALBHOY RUSTOMJEE
74 VICTORIA STREET
DURBAN

BLESSINGS NAVJOT.

BAPU

From the original: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

216. A MESSAGE

SEVAGRAM,
March 28, 1945

Spin. Spin with full understanding. Let those who spin wear khadi. Let those who wear khadi compulsorily spin. Full understanding means the realization that spinning symbolizes non-violence. Reflect on it. It will become apparent.

Spinning means picking the cotton, ginning, carding, preparing

¹ The addressee had asked: “How can a historian best serve the country and how can he write a progressive history of India?”

² This was in reply to the addressee’s cable dated 27-3-1945, seeking Gandhiji’s blessings on his brother’s daughter’s navjot ceremony. slivers, producing yarn of the desired count and doubling and twisting and winding.¹

M. K. GANDHI

From a facsimile of the Hindi: Charkha Sanghka Navasanskaran, p. iii. Also C.W. 9897. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

217. TELEGRAM TO VIYOGI HARI

SEVAGRAM,
March 28, 1945

VIYOGIJI
HARIJAN NIVAS
KINGSWAY
DELHI

WIRE SATYAVATI’S² HEALTH. DOES SHE REQUIRE CHANDRANI’S SERVICES?

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

218. LETTER TO SHAMDAS P. GIDWANI

SEVAGRAM,
March 28, 1945

DEAR SHAMDAS,

I have your wire and two letters. I cannot interfere. Congressmen must decide for themselves.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

SHAMDAS P. GIDWANI
NEW TOWN, KARACHI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ For the draft, vide “Letter to Shrikrishnasadas Jaju”, 20-3-1945.
² Wife of Brajkrishna Chandiwala
219. LETTER TO THE METROPOLITAN OF CALCUTTA

SEVAGRAM,
March 28, 1945

DEAR FRIEND,

Sudhir has given me your sweet note. I agree with you when you say that insistence should be not on rights but on duties and that we should love our neighbour as ourselves. With love,

Yours,
M. K. GANDHI

METROPOLITAN
CALCUTTA

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

220. LETTER TO D. L. BANNERJI

SEVAGRAM,
March 28, 1945

DEAR PROFESSOR,

I thank you for your two articles. I had the previous one, too.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

PROF. D. L. BANNERJI
Bakshi Bazaar
Dacca

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

221. LETTER TO AVANTIKABAI GOKHALE

SEVAGRAM,
March 28, 1945

DEAR SISTER,

Gauribai’s passing away must have grieved you more than everyone else.
But where is the need to console anyone? One can say that Gauribai went after rendering much service.

Blessings from

BAPU

AVANTIKA GOKHALE
KUTCH CASTLE
BOMBAY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

222. LETTER TO DADUBHAI

SEVAGRAM,
March 28, 1945

Bhai Dadubhai,

Why should I appoint the Durbar or anyone else as arbitrator? It was my duty to send your son’s letter to you. I have indeed no reason to disbelieve your letter.

Blessings from

M. K. GANDHI

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

223. LETTER TO BALVANT SINHA

SEVAGRAM,
March 28, 1945

Chi. Balvant Sinha,

I cannot take Omprakash with me. Nor should he wish it. His duty is to serve in the Ashram during the summer and live quietly. My true body is the Ashram. If the Ashram is nothing, then I am nothing. His test lies in living there in my absence.

Blessings from

BAPU

BALVANTSINHA
SEVAGRAM ASHRAM

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
224. LETTER TO CHAKRAYYA

SEVAGRAM,
March 28, 1945

CHI. CHAKRAYYA,

Kanubhai has told me everything. What I want is that you should leave that place and stay and work with Subramaniam and make your health perfect. If you want to stay at Bhimavaram for a brief period and gain proficiency in nature-cure treatment, do so. Return the money I have sent. I gave that money thinking that you were fully agreeable. Since no construction is to take place what is there to spend the money on? Show this letter to Sharmaji so that I do not have to write to him. The girl is all right.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 9115. Also C.W. 9184

225. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA

March 28, 1945

CHI. KRISHNACHANDRA,

Stay in the Ashram and do whatever work there is to do. I am happy with the new man. You should not be upset by my insistence. My insistence is really no insistence because I have placed the entire responsibility on your shoulders.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4507
226. LETTER TO RAMESHWARI NEHRU

March 28, 1945

CHI. RAMESHWARI,

I have your beautiful letter. So Father won ultimately. He was short of temper but he had a heart of gold. He was equally generous. I have already received a cheque for Rs. 1,000. I shall see what can be done with it.

Blessings from
BAPU

RAMESHWARI NEHRU
LAHORE

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

227. TELEGRAM TO ABDUL GHAFFAR KHAN

SEVAGRAM,
March 29, 1945

ABDUL GHAFFAR KHAN
CHARSADA
BOMBAY SATURDAY. COME THERE.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

228. TELEGRAM TO BISWANATH DAS

March 29, 1945

B. DAS²
"SAMAJ"
CUTTACK

CAN COME EARLIER THE BETTER.

GANDHI

From a copy: C.W. 10446. Courtesy: Government of Orissa

¹ Vide “Telegram to Rameshwari Nehru”, on or before 10-3-1945.
² Orissa Congress leader who was Premier of the province in the first Congress Ministry
229. LETTER TO AMRITA LAL CHATTERJEE

March 29, 1945

CHI. AMRITLAL,

I have read your statements. How can I endorse them? How many naked women did you see? Are there no naked men? How many wealthy men there are who are responsible for misguiding women! Those who are damaging the trains are not doing a good thing. But this is my view today.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: C.W. 10398. Courtesy: Amrita Lal Chatterjee

230. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA

March 29, 1945

CHI. KRISHNACHANDRA,

This will not do. If you cling only to the letter, the letter will be your undoing. You should insist and yet it should not be insistence. After all, there has to be a compromise between detachment and insistence.

The responsibility is... but at some point you would also have to assume it. A true worker would take upon himself the complete responsibility of rendering service, would he not? Keep in mind the shloka कर्मण्यकर्मः य: परेतस्। Why should you be scared of everything? And why should you have been startled? Why do renunciation and sacrifice mean the same thing? How is it that day and night are different and yet the same? A human being is a body and a soul and yet he transcends the body. Understand all these things.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4508

---

1 The addressee had written about Indian girls having been forced to satisfy the lust of military personnel in India, how some political workers had rescued some of them by damaging railway lines and coaches, and how these workers were being helped by some rich people of Bombay and Calcutta.

2 One word is illegible.

3 Addressee’s brother’s daughter
231. LETTER TO BALVANT SINHA

March 29, 1945

CHI. BALVANT SINHA,

The reply I sent you was also meant for Om Prakash. Still I am sending one. I am trying for Hoshiari\(^1\). People will stop being angry if she stays on without being afraid. Do not leave till she is quiet.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 1957

232. LETTER TO LADY KAUL

SEVAGRAM,
March 29, 1945

DEAR SISTER,

I have received your cheque. I shall of course deposit it. The acknowledgment is enclosed. But I have not been able to decide so far whether I should issue the appeal about the Fund. Will you approve if I use this money in the way the late Rajasaheb had wished even if I do not issue an appeal?

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

LADY KAUL

SANGSAR

JIND STATE

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

\(^1\) Addressee’s brother’s daughter
233. LETTER TO MADHAVENDRAPRASAD SINGH

SEVAGRAM,
March 29, 1945

CHI. KUMAR MADHAVENDRA,

My blessings are always with you in your good work. I may say I am well enough.

Blessings from

BAPU

KUNWAR SHRI MADHAVENDRAPRASAD SINGH
VARANVA, KARAGHANA
DIST. ALLAHABAD

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

234. LETTER TO RANGANAYAKI

SEVAGRAM,
March 29, 1945

CHI. RANGANAYAKI,

I have your postcard. Both of you may come. How long I have to be in Bombay I shall know only when I reach there. Keep me informed.

Blessings to both of you from

BAPU

RANGANAYAKI
SRIRANGAM

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

235. LETTER TO SATIS CHANDRA DAS GUPTA

March 29, 1945

Bhai Satisbabu,

What I told you is correct and what I told Kaviraj is also correct. It would be best if the villagers could manage with the herbs available locally. Your work is stabilized and your question is good. The rest when we meet.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 1641
236. LETTER TO CHIMANLAL N, SHAH

[On or before March 30, 1945]¹

CHI. CHIMANLAL,

Have you read my letter to Krishnachandra? One cannot observe one dharma by violating another. I have not at all given a one-sided decision. Krishnachandra should come to a decision after full consideration. I remain neutral. All of you should arrive at a joint decision. And you should do it promptly without fear of going wrong. A mistake can always be corrected.

It is all right if Prabhakar looks after the girl. It is, however, not at all desirable. Some woman ought to look after her. It is not a burden. It is a matter of duty.

I think it will not be possible for me to accommodate Ramprasad. R. P. is an absolutely independent-minded person. Besides, I must have Sushila’s consent too. We should act under the assumption that it is her responsibility.

I consider it a serious defect that you could not frame the rules.

Now this covers everything.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10664

237. LETTER TO AMRITALAL CHATTERJEE

March 30, 1945

CHI. AMRITALAL,

You must have received my reply of yesterday.

Now Vina² says she does not intend to get married. The problem about Sailen³ does not arise just now. What you wish is only proper.

Was not Romen⁴ to be kept in the Talimi Sangh?

¹ This seems to have been written in Sevagram and before Gandhiji left for Bombay on March 30.

² Addressee’s daughter

³ Addressee’s sons

⁴ ibid
Let Mother not come for the sake of living separately. It will be in her own interest if she does not come.

You must stay here till Sailen arrives. After he comes decide about Ronu, etc. Consult Chimanlalji.

From a photostat of the Hindi: C.W. 10399. Courtesy: Amrita Lal Chatterjee

238. LETTER TO Y. M. PARNERKAR

March 30, 1945

CHI. PARNERKAR,

Shantabehn wants to live in the jaggery room. Do what is proper in this regard. Gajanan will have to be consulted. . . .

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: C.W. 5871. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

239. LETTER TO M. S. KELKAR

ON THE TRAIN,

March 31, 1945

DEAR DR. ICE,

I wish you success in your handling of cases. Keep yourself well. I heard about your fever. “Physician heal thyself”.

Love.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

240. LETTER TO SHYAMLAL RAINA

March 31, 1945

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter. I have sent “New Kashmir”. But I can give no guidance. I have not even seen Kashmir. You must be your own judge.

Yours, sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

SHRI SHYAMLAL RAINA
P. O. RANBIRGANJ

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 This sentence is in Gujarati.

2 Omission as in the source
241. LETTER TO CHIMANLAL N. SHAH

ON THE WAY,
March 31, 1945

CHI. CHIMANLAL,

I do not like to leave the Ashram any time, and this time I like it the least. But why should one cling to anything?

I read your papers. I had a talk with Jajuji. I think I shall be able to cope with the matter. Let us see what happens.

You should be alert. Understand your responsibility. Give up what your body does not accept. Shakaribehn can do much, but that depends on you. If Hoshiaribehn opens up she can go far. Anasuya cannot be kept with Prabhakar. But if nobody else takes charge of her, there will be no alternative. Do what you think best. Since I shall not be there, some accommodation must be available. Have a frank talk with Ashadevi. Remember the dictum: “Speak the truth, speak gently”, and understand its meaning.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10619

242. LETTER TO KANAM GANDHI

March 31, 1945

CHI. KANAM,

I have your letter. I am writing this on the train. I shall certainly be in Bombay for about a week. I cannot say anything about the programme later. However, when it is finalized you will see it in the papers. Nanavati tells me that Ramdas is ill. It is good if he has taken leave and is going to Poona. I am all right.

Blessings to all of you from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
243. LETTER TO KISHORELAL G. MASHRUWALA

ON THE TRAIN,
March 31, 1945

CHI. KISHORELAL,

This time I did not like leaving you behind. I cannot bear to see you so frail. Go to Kelkar. He is a good man. He knows a good deal. When one has knowledge one can use that knowledge. He knows well the use of ice and steam. I am of the opinion that your health can certainly be restored. He should also examine Gomati. If Durga can be persuaded, he should treat her also. If you observe fixed hours of silence, it will do you much good. I certainly derive much benefit from it.

We have got a nice compartment in the train.

Blessings from
BAPU

244. LETTER TO NANDLAL PATEL

ON THE TRAIN,
March 31, 1945

CHI. NANDLAL,

Take care of the house as you would of jewellery. Never have others do the work which you can do yourself. I hope Chi. Hari-ichchha is well and happy. You must not lose heart.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 9252. Also C.W. 2717. Courtesy: Nandlal Patel

1 The C.W. source has “write”.
245. LETTER TO RAMPRASAD

ON THE TRAIN,
March 31, 1945

CHI. RAMPRASAD,

On the train I am only thinking of the Ashram. Stay on if you can bear the heat without discomfort. Be friendly with all and do whatever Ashram work you can do. Finish all the pending work. Write to me.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

246. LETTER TO CHANDRAPRAKASH

ON THE TRAIN,
March 31, 1945

CHI. CHANDRAPRAKASH,

Take part in all the activities of the Ashram, including the administration. Improve your knowledge of the language. If it is necessary to go to Bhimavaram for health reasons, do go.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

247. LETTER TO HOSHIARI

ON THE TRAIN,
March 31, 1945

CHI. HOSHIARI,

You may open your mouth but only when necessary. Be true to your name. Take part in all the activities of the Ashram. Keep your body fit and let Balvant Sinha go for a few days. Write to me. Practise writing every day.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
248. STATEMENT TO THE PRESS

BOMBAY,

March 31, 1945

The National Week\(^1\) will be presently on us. We began to observe the Week in 1919. We had the unexpected and spontaneous manifestation of the villagers all over India. Seven days after, Jallianwala Bagh massacre, also unthought of, took place. We have observed the Week ever since in triple expectation of achieving communal unity, full establishment of khaddar and swaraj. We seemed to be at one time within an ace of the triple achievement. But today we seem to be very far. I advisedly use the verb “seem”. The goal ever seems to recede from us but if we have honestly worked for it, it really comes nearer. Anyhow I feel so. We were never nearer the goal than now in spite of our many blunders. It is as well that we remember our blunders and fail to notice the successes lying underneath. Only our blunders must never dishearten us. We must learn to profit by them and correct them. Then every blunder will hearten us, for we shall mount a step higher by unlearning each blunder. Thus it becomes a cleansing process. Let it be noted that khaddar has attained a wider connotation than before. It has become the central sun round which other village industries revolve like so many planets. Moreover it now represents the fifteenfold constructive programme. Khaddar itself has after much experience got its proper value and thus has received a dignity never before given to it. Everyone is now able, with the introduction by Vinoba of ‘tunar’\(^2\) to make his or her ‘punis’\(^3\) and spin with ease. The wheel too has undergone radical improvement and the new process of doubling yarn has made it as strong as one could wish for weaving. Would that every lover of freedom of India will remember these things during the Week and bring freedom nearer than ever before without parliamentary programme and even civil disobedience unless the Government drive workers to it by talking of India’s freedom without meaning it.

The Bombay Chronicle, 1-4-1945

\(^1\) From April 6 to April 13
\(^2\) Carding-brush
\(^3\) Slivers
249. STATEMENT TO THE PRESS

BOMBAY,
March 31, 1945

If the news is correct that the Ashti and Chimur petition has been rejected, it is disturbing. I am opposed to State hanging in every case, but most so in cases like these. Whatever was done by the people on and after August 9, 1942, was done under excitement. If these hangings are now carried out, it will be cold-blooded, calculated murder and worse, because it will be done ceremoniously and under the name of so-called law.

It will leave behind nothing but a great increase in the already existing woeful bitterness. How I wish that the threatened hangings were given up. They can be if there is the united voice of India against the impending sentences and such other contemplated sentences.

The Hindu, 1-4-1945

250. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

BOMBAY,
March 31, 1945

CHI. MUNNALAL,

You have now an opportunity to set everything right. Use it. Take some work from Mohan Singh and Ramprasad if you can. See how he makes biscuits and bread with tomato juice in them.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 8458. Also C.W. 5573. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

---

1 Seven, out of thirty persons originally sentenced to death for violence at Chimur and Ashti on August 15/16, 1943, and whose sentences had not been commuted had petitioned the King for mercy. The petitions were rejected. Later on, however, the sentences were commuted to life imprisonment. Vide also “An Appeal”, before 3-4-1945.
251. DRAFT OF POWER-OF-ATTORNEY

April 1, 1945

To all to whom these presents shall come, we Mohandas Karamchand Gandhi, Sir Purshottammed Thakurdas, Sir Sarvapalli Radhakrishnan, Dr. Kailas Nath Katju, Kasturbhai Lalbhai, Lady Premila Vithaldas Thackersey, Kanhaiyalal Manecklal Munshi, Devdas Gandhi, Ghanshyamdas Birla, Chakravarti C. Rajagopalacharir, Jehangir R. D. Tata, Sarojini Naidu, Dr. Zakir Hussain, Amritlal Vithaldas Thakkar, Shantikumar Narottam Morarjee, Ambalal Sarabhai, Jankidevi Bajaj, Ashadevi Aryanayakum, Miss Mridula Sarabhai, Miss Raihana Tyabji, Mrs. Gosibehn Captain, Mangaldas Manchram Pakvasa, Ganesh Vasudeo Mavalankar, Shri Krishna Das Mulchand Jaju, Babu Lakshminarayan of Patna, and Gulzarilal Nanda, the present trustees of the Kasturba Gandhi National Memorial Trust hereinafter referred to as the Trustees send greeting whereas by a Deed of Settlement dated the 1st day of April 1945 made between the said Mohandas Karamchand Gandhi of the One Part and the Trustees of the Other Part, the Trustees are appointed Trustees of the Kasturba Gandhi National Memorial Trust (hereinafter for brevity’s sake called “The Trust”) AND WHEREAS in the Court of administration and management of “The Trust”, the Trustees will be required to deal with immoveable and moveable properties and for such purposes will have to execute documents some of which may also require registration and whereas it is not convenient for the Trustees to go to different places where documents are to be executed and/or registered and to present the same for registration and/or admit execution of the documents that may be executed by us as such trustees of the ‘Trust’ from time to time and attend before any Registrar or Sub-Registrar as the case may be for the purpose aforesaid, we are desirous of appointing Mangaldas Pakvasa, Shantikumar Narottam Morarjee and Shyamlalji, hereinafter called the attorneys to be the true and lawful attorneys on our behalf as also on behalf of any one or more of us, to do all or any of the following acts deeds and things: NOW KNOW YE AND THESE PRESENT WITNESS that we, the Trustees of the said Trust do hereby nominate, constitute the said Mangaldas Pakvasa, Shantikumar Narottam Morarjee and Shyamlalji jointly and severally, i.e., any one of them to be our attorneys for us and in our name to do the following acts and things.1. To execute for and/or on behalf of the Trustees such documents as they may resslove upon to execute and/or to appear before the Registrar or Sub-Registrar of Assurances and present and/or admit execution of any document or documents or writing that may be or may have been signed or executed by us for any one or more of us or to which we or anyone or more of us may be any parties or party as such Trustees of the ‘Trust’ and to do all things that may be required or found necessary for procuring the registration thereof as the attorney or attorneys shall think necessary.

2. For the better doing, performing and executing of the matters and things aforesaid we hereby further grant unto the said attorneys authority to substitute and appoint in his/their place and stead one or more attorney or attorneys to exercise for ourselves as our attorneys or attorney any or all the powers and authorities hereby conferred and to revoke any such appointment from time to time and to substitute or appoint any other or others in the place of such attorney or attorneys as they the said attorneys shall from time to time think fit.

3. We hereby undertake to ratify whatsoever the attorneys or any of them or any substitute or substitutes shall lawfully do or cause to be done in the premises and to indemnify them and each of them against all costs and expenses properly incurred by them or any of them hereunder.

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

252. LETTER TO M. R. MASANI

BOMBAY,
April 1, 1945

MY DEAR MASANI,

The step you suggest is good but it cannot be taken in the manner suggested by you. It must be deliberate and calculated. But they must associate themselves in the appeal.

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat: G.N. 4132. Also C.W. 4890. Courtesy: M. R. Masani
253. LETTER TO L. M. GOPALASWAMY

AS AT SEVAGRAM,
April 1, 1945

MY DEAR GOPALASWAMY.

The Executive sat today and among other things considered your budget. The correspondence between you and Bapa was read. Your letter was finished and I saw at the end that you had meant it to be confidential. There was no reason for it. There was nothing to be ashamed of in it. Your own part was creditable to you and so was Kamlabai’s and her husband’s. Her salary should be drawn to the extent of her needs. She must not be a burden on her husband.

Since Bapa agrees that you can have the furniture, your estimate is right. But I question the necessity of all furniture. You should squat on the ground. Then you don’t need chairs and tables at all. Mats are quite enough. You may need a ground desk for the typist. That would be cheap. You may have open racks. You have provided for a safe.

You can draw Rs. 150 and divide between the two institutions as occasion requires. Please redraw your budget in the light of what I have said and send. I shall have the power to sanction your budget if I approve of it.

Yours sincerely,

BAPU

[PS.]

You need only a Tamil typewriter. Your correspondence with the head office should be in Hindustani and handwritten. We must learn to manage cheaply.

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 A Harijan welfare worker
254. LETTER TO MANZAR ALI SOKHTA

BOMBAY,
April 1, 1945

BHAI MANZAR ALI,

What I have been told about women seems right. The thing is that they should do something or other and they should not lag behind men in doing any work for the country.

Blessings from

BAPU

BHAI MANZAR ALI SOKHTA
SEVAKUNJ
GANGAGHAT, UNNAO, (U.P.)

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

255. LETTER TO G. N. KANITKAR

BOMBAY,
April 2, 1945

BHAI BALU KAKA,1

I have gone through your letter from top to bottom. Your writing is very clear.

I would admit any error I may commit.

But I do not own the error ascribed to me by you. I have defended no malpractice. Trust of the wealth owned I have advocated. I still defend it. You evidently have not followed my writing. When did I negotiate with high Government officials for “concessions” in the Aga Khan Palace?

Satyagraha cannot come by argument or fasting.

I am employing the means I know for saving the lives of the condemned prisoners.2 Fasting in this case is no remedy.

I omit the other parts of your letter.
You won’t enter into correspondence with me.

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat: C.W. 973. Courtesy: Gajanan Kanitkar

1 This is in Devanagari.
2 Of Chimur and Ashti; vide also “An Appeal”, 3-4-1945.
256. LETTER TO KHURSHED NAOROJI

BOMBAY,
April 2, 1945

DEAR SISTER,

Your letter. I do hope you are better.

I knew all about Satyavati. She wrote to me. She wants to see me. I have stopped her unless she can’t contain herself. Chand is with me, With the others she is going to join the Borivli camp. Prabhudas and his wife are also to be with the class.

Kamaladevi met me yesterday regarding Chimur prisoners.

Badshah Khan is likely to be here in a day or two. He wired.

My movement beyond 8th is uncertain.

Love.

SHRI KHURSHEDBEHN
DUNLAVIN LODGE
POONA 5

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

257. LETTER TO RAIHANA TYABJI

BOMBAY,
April 2, 1945

DAUGHTER RAIHANA,

I hope you will be able to read this. Let Yashvantrai write out his story and give me permission to show it to Shantikumar. I will then do what is necessary.

Dr. Yodh may, if he wishes, examine me and take up my case. If, however, he wishes to take on some other patients, he may do that. Whomsoever he takes on, he should do after careful thinking and not act on the impulse of the moment, for I should not like him to fail and be ruined. If he succeeds, I would consider it a great achievement. But it is a difficult job.

Blessings from

DAUGHTER RAIHANA

From a photostat of the Gujarati: S.N. 9679

1 This is in Gujarati.
258. LETTER TO SHARDA G. CHOKHAWALA

April 2, 1945

CHI. BABUDI,

I am here till the 8th at any rate. You can hardly come during that time. Anand\(^1\) cannot be put to the strain of a journey, nor can you leave him and come. You will know about my programme after the 8th from the newspapers or I will write. I want Anand to get well soon. I hope you are well.

Blessings to both of you from
BAPU

From Gujarati: C.W. 10056. Courtesy: Sharda G. Chokhawala

259. LETTER TO K. G. GOKHALE

[After April 2, 1945]\(^2\)

I had discussed your case with Baba Saheb Kher before your letter came. He will write to you. As for khadi, can one of your relatives not spin a little for you? If no one is available, write to your branch. Khadi should be made available in a case like this.

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

260. AN APPEAL

[Before April 3, 1945]\(^3\)

In places where unanimity of public opinion can be recorded and there is no danger of dissent arising, the 3rd of April should be observed as an all-India day by suspension of business as a mark of protest and prayer.

---

\(^1\) Addressee’s son
\(^2\) This was in reply to the addressee’s letter dated April 2, 1945.
\(^3\) Gandhiji sent this round to be issued by the editors of various newspapers for mobilizing public opinion against the death sentence passed on the Chimur and Ashti prisoners.
261. LETTER TO N. C. VAKIL

BOMBAY,
April 3, 1945

DEAR FRIEND,

I thank you for your letter. I have not a moment to spare. Please, therefore, send me your concrete scheme in a nutshell and if necessary I shall make time for you during my stay in Bombay.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

DR. N. C. VAKIL
CHAIRMAN, B.H.A.
311 TARDEO ROAD
BOMBAY 7

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

262. LETTER TO RAMDAS GANDHI

BOMBAY,
April 3, 1945

CHI. RAMDAS,

I have your letter. Your faith will cure you. It seems Nimu is not with you. Dinshaw is with me. But you must be getting your treatment. I will arrange to send him. I am well. My programme is uncertain.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI RAMDAS GANDHI
DR. MEHTA’S AROGYA BHAVAN
OPP. STATION
POONA

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
263. LETTER TO KANCHAN M. SHAH

Bombay,
April 3, 1945

Ch. Kanchan,

What a woman you are! If I write something for you in a letter to Amtul Salaam, is it not as good as a letter to you? Now have this and write to your heart’s content. Hope you are keeping good health. I do not think we can pay A. S.’s doctor’s bill. Was the doctor sent for? I hope A. S. is in fine condition. Live there in peace and help A. S. For the present I am here.

Blessings from
Bapu

Shri Kanchanbehn
C/o Amtul Salaambehn
Kasturba Seva Mandir
Burkamata, District Tripura
Bengal

Also G.N. 8266

264. SPEECH AT PRAYER MEETING

Bombay,
April 3, 1945

Gandhiji said that it was a matter for shame that they had come to pray to God but failed to conduct the prayer peacefully. People shouted and did not allow the prayer to go on, as it should go on.2

Continuing, he said that he had been told by a friend that the people of Bombay would derive no benefit from his prayer. They would throw a few rupees for the Harijan Fund, but if he thought that it was going to produce any effect on them or

1 The meeting was attended by about 30,000 people. Khan Abdul Ghaffar Khan was among those present.

2 The crowd attending the prayer had become unmanageable at one stage and a number of people including Sushila Nayyar and Krishna Hatheesingh had got hurt in the rush.
that they would embrace the Harijans as their own kith and kin he was mistaken.

“If you want, you go to Bombay. You will get money but as far as prayers are concerned, it is better to stay at home and pray,” the friend had warned him.

Gandhiji said that he was not entirely convinced. They could not see God with the naked eye. They could not touch Him with their hands. He had become an untouchable. And no wonder, considering that there was so much sin abroad, such violence, drinking and gambling. Forty crores of people were in serfdom. This was because they only talked of freedom but they did not know what freedom was really worth. But he told this friend that he had always conducted prayers for a long time. He was a firm believer in prayer. Every religion had taught that man was no man if he did not pray to his Maker. Therefore he had told this friend that though there was not much chance of his advice being followed, he could not give up his principles. If he did not trust the people even that much, he would be worth nothing. If he gave up prayer the next thing for him to do would be to give up the struggle for freedom, the striving for truth and non-violence.

He told the people that they should let him come and go without rushing towards him. They should keep silent during prayers.

In conclusion, Gandhiji asked them how, if they could not control themselves, they could wield the reins of power. He would come there the next day and every day thereafter as long as he stayed in Bombay. He would watch how far his words had gone home. He would find out how far they were fit to govern themselves. The man with God in his heart would know how to control himself.

The Bombay Chronicle, 4-4-1945

265. LETTER TO PARNAM JEWANAM

BOMBAY,
April 4, 1945

DEAR FRIEND,

Your letter.

I have no doctor in view for you. You should seek Rajaji’s assistance or Shri Jagadisan’s who is deeply interested in the leper problem.

Yours sincerely,
M. R. GANDHI

SHRI PARNAM JEWANAM
MADRAS HINDU SEVAK SANGH
MADRAS, S. INDIA

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
266. LETTER TO DR. SUBODH MITRA

BOMBAY,
April 4, 1945

DEAR DR. MITRA,

Your letter. You should make a concrete proposal and present it to the Trust Board through the Bengal Committee.¹

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

DR. SUBODH MITRA, M. D. & C.
3 CHOWRINGHEE TERRACE
112 GOKHALE ROAD
ELGIN ROAD P. O., CALCUTTA

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

267. LETTER TO AMRIT KAUR

BIRLA HOUSE,
April 4, 1945

CHI. AMRIT,

You see I am in Bombay and am fixed here up to 14th. God knows the next, if He allows freedom up to 14th. I am well. What about Lahore sister-in-law? Is she getting better? Shummy must get well quickly.

Sushila hurt herself on trying to enter the prayer compound². Her arm is in a sling. There is no fracture. Krishna is also well. Badshah Khan is here as quiet as ever. He is sitting by me as I write this.

Love.

BAPU

From the original: C.W. 4153. Courtesy: Amrit Kaur. Also G.N. 7788

¹ Vide also “Letter to Dr. Subodh Mitra”, 19-3-1945.
² On April 3; vide “Speech at Prayer Meeting”, 3-4-1945.
268. LETTER TO CHIMANLAL N. SHAH

April 4, 1945

CHI. CHIMANLAL,

I have your letter. I met Pushpa¹ and I have sent her home. If Sarojinibehn² wishes to go, let her go. I think it will be harmful to allow her to cook for herself.

I am not happy about Ronu’s³ [coming]. But we have to put up with him. It is good that Durga is looking after him. It is necessary to have a plain talk with Ashadevi. Don’t attempt what you cannot do, regardless of what I may wish.

I understand about Hari-ichchha.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10620

269. LETTER TO PURUSHOTTAMDAS GANDHI

BIRLA HOUSE,

April 4, 1945

CHI. PURUSHOTTAM,

(1) Your first view is correct.

(2) My view about propagation of music is that that alone is real music which uplifts the soul. This contains everything I should like to suggest.

(3) I have already explained that music is a constructive activity, but that it is not included in the Congress programme. Swaraj can be conceived without it. It cannot, therefore, be one of the objects for which Narandas is collecting a fund. That is why I have said that, if we do not demand a salary for you, you should take the money from me.

¹ Pushpabehn Desai
² An old lady from Orissa who had come to stay for a few months in the Sevagram Ashram
³ A ten-year-old Bengali boy. The addressee wanted to know whether he should be allowed to stay in the Ashram.
It would be all right if you took it from the Satyagraha Ashram money lying with Narandas. If there is any difficulty in doing even that, I would find the money in some other way.

Blessings from

BAPU

From Gujarati: C.W. 913. Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi

270. LETTER TO KISHORELAL G. MASHRUWALA

BOMBAY,
April 4, 1945

CHI. KISHORELAL,

If Kelkar treats you even for a few days and the treatment is effective, you can continue it wherever you go, can’t you?

What I told you about silence was from my experience. You will practise it and can practise it only when it grows from within the heart.

Tell Durga that both the girls and Mahadev’s mother came to see me yesterday. Paramanand\(^1\) was with them.

Blessings to you both from

BAPU

[RS.]

Pushpa came to see me yesterday. I have sent her home.

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

271. LETTER TO LADORANI ZUTSHI

BOMBAY,
April 4, 1945

DEAR SISTER,

Haven’t I told you I have not interfered in this work? I wouldn’t know anything about it.

M. K. GANDHI

LADORANI ZUTSHI
C/O MANMOHINI SANYAL
ALCAZER, 3RD FLOOR
GAMDEVI ROAD, BOMBAY

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

\(^1\) Mahadev Desai’s brother
272. LETTER TO AMRIT KAUR

BIRLA HOUSE,
April 5, 1945

CHI. AMRIT,

Nonsense! No reason for apology. I must simply have said I might not be expected to write always. I forgot to tell you yesterday that your letter paper with the edges unsmooth is better than with edges smoothed. You must keep well. I must be here for some time for work and medical attention by way of precaution.

Love to you all.

BAPU

From the original: C.W. 4154. Courtesy: Amrit Kaur. Also G.N. 7789

273. LETTER TO KANTA

BOMBAY,
April 5, 1945

CHI. KANTA

Just now I got the news that you have given birth to a son and both of you are well. Both should keep well and you should bring up the child in a way that will make him a true servant.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

274. LETTER TO LILAVATI MUNSHI

April 6, 1945

CHI. LILAVATI,

I have gone through your letter. Why should I feel hurt? But I am not prepared to go to Chembur. Taking me there will be disastrous. I would like to go there for Munshi’s sake and for your sake. But I would not knowingly transgress the limit I have laid down for myself. Do not compel me to do so.

Blessings from
BAPU

SMT. LILAVATI MUNSHI
26 RIDGE ROAD
BOMBAY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

275. LETTER TO SHASHIBHUSHAN SINGH

BOMBAY,
April 6, 1945

THAKUR SAHEB,

I have your letter informing me of the death of your elder brother. May God give fortitude and peace of mind to the sons of your widowed sister-in-law. The late Thakursaheb has won the battle of life.

Yours,
M. K. GANDHI

THAKUR SHRI SHASHIBHUSHANJ
ZAMINDAR, MANEGAON
P. O. MEKH, TEHSIL NARASINGHPUR

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

276. LETTER TO N. R. MALKANI

BOMBAY,
April 6, 1945

CHI. MALKANI,

I had your telegram. Today I have received the letter. I have sent a telegram to Jairamdas.\(^1\) You must have seen it. I am here till the 20th. Come over. We shall talk over the whole thing. So I shall not write more. You have done good work in jail.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 944

\(^1\) The telegram is not available.
277. SPEECH AT PRAYER MEETING

BOMBAY

April 6, 1945

Gandhiji began by asking people to keep silent and listen patiently to whatever he had to say. Nobody should clap hands. He wanted their ear; he wanted their heart. If his words reached their hearts through their ears, he would be satisfied. He congratulated them on their disciplined behaviour since Tuesday. On that day two women had been hurt. They had been perhaps touched by the incident and had decided to maintain discipline and allow the prayers to go on as usual. On that day, there was a large crowd not lakhs but a few thousands. Whether it was because of the fact that there were fewer people or for any other reason, he was glad to find that they had learnt discipline. If they wanted to live together the first lesson they should learn was one of discipline.

Continuing, Gandhiji said that he was a Gujarati and should normally speak in Gujarati. But it had been decided that whenever there was a cosmopolitan gathering they should speak in the national language. He was responsible for that decision as much as others. They had also to learn both the scripts, namely, Nagari and Urdu. And they should learn to speak in such a simple way that everybody would understand it. He had now realized that Urdu, Hindi, and Hindustani were all the same language. If they learnt that language they could deal with members of any community and people from any part of India. It served him when he went to the Punjab. It would serve him if he were to go to Kashmir—he had not been there, but he had some Kashmiri friends—Jawaharlal was one of them. Gandhiji said that it was wrong to refer to a Muslim language or a Muslim script. Both Hindus and Muslims wrote that language and if they wanted to steal the hearts of these people, they should be able to speak the same language and write in that script.

Adverting to the National Week, Gandhiji said that they had been observing the Week for the last 26 years. Its observance was meant for the purification of their thoughts and their language. In the beginning, the Week commenced with a fast. He had since abandoned that. He had also abandoned hartal. The Week, however, had not become less holy on that account. The fifteen-point programme was there. It began with khadi. From that followed other items. On such a holy day the people should begin to observe the fifteen-point programme. He was not asking them to observe it only for the Week but for all time. They should not only follow it themselves but induce other people to do so. If they wanted to make India free and not wait for others to free her, if they wanted to get freedom by truthful and non-violent means, there was no other way. But if it was to be by violence and revolution, that was another thing.
He had not known that method; he had not learnt it. Freedom would not fall from the skies nor would it rise from the deep. If they wanted to get it from their own efforts, there was only one way.

Some people thought in terms of Parliament. He did not want to utter its name. He wanted to forget Parliament but to think only of the constructive programme. An important item of this programme was Hindu-Muslim unity.

Concluding, Gandhiji said:

Freedom is in our hands. When we breathe, we cannot take other people’s help. If we resort to artificial methods of respiration, it means that we are on the brink of death. Freedom is like our breath. Having lost it for a long time we do appreciate it. But I know the nature of freedom. I have fully experienced freedom. And if you regard it as holy and worthy of achievement, this is the only way.

The Bombay Chronicle, 7-4-1945

278. TELEGRAM TO G. B. PANT

BOMBAY,

[April 7, 1945]

GOVIND BALLABH PANT
CARE DOCTOR JOSHI
DELHI

HOPE YOU PROGRESSING.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

279. LETTER TO MIRABEHN

BOMBAY,

April 7, 1945

CHI. MIRA,

Your long and welcome letter. I am making a desperate effort to send you someone—either her Ramprasad or Munnalal. Do not be quite certain about me. I have expressed my wish. But ‘there is many a slip between the cup and the lip.’ Who knows but He? Your love of

1 Vide “Letter to G. B. Pant”, 8-4-1945 animals, among them of the cow, is boundless. I agree mostly that there should be personal attention if we are to get the real response. I am here till 20th, then to Mahabaleshwar.

Love.

BAPU

SHRI MIRABEHN
KISAN ASHRAI.M, MULDASPUR,
P. O. BAHADARABAD, via JUALAPUR
NEAR HARDWAR, U. P.

From the original: C.W. 6505. Courtesy: Mirabehn. Also G.N. 9900

280. LETTER TO POTI SRIRAMULU

BOMBAY,
April 7, 1945

MY DEAR RAMULU,

Your letter is informing but too long. You could have said your say in a p. c. Untouchability has to go. Truth must be repeated till it becomes universal. You go on with your propaganda whether the others do or do not do it. No fast but taking only from day to day what others give unsolicited is sound.

Yours,

BAPU

From a photostat: G.N. 109
281. LETTER TO GOPINATH BARDOLOI

BOMBAY,
April 7, 1945

BHAI BARDOLOI,

I hope you can read Hindustani. I have your letter. I am glad you were successful. Take care of your health. Write to me whether you can read or have someone to read my letters. I am in Bombay till the 20th.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI GOPINATH BARDOLOI, M.L.A.
GAUHATI, ASSAM

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

282. LETTER TO HARIBHAU JOSHI

BOMBAY,
April 7, 1945

BHAI JOSHI,

I have your letter. What can my blessings do, especially when I am somewhat against it. Even so I wish you success. Write to me and to others in Hindustani.

Yours,
M. K. GANDHI

HARIBHAU JOSHI
LOKSHAKTI
POONA

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
283. LETTER TO ARAKSHAN SINHA

BIRLA HOUSE, BOMBAY,
April 7, 1945

BHAJ SINHA,

I was distressed to read your letter. Have faith not in me but in God. How can I help a boy belonging to a big family? The boy will not need anyone’s help if he is brave, simple and village-minded. I am passing on your letter to Anugraha Babu. May God help you.

Yours,
M. K. GANDHI

SHRI ARAKSHAN SINHA, PLEADER
VILLAGE KELIRO
P. O. JAINPUR
DISTT. MUZAFFARPUR
BIHAR

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

284. LETTER TO JANAKDHARI PRASAD

BIRLA HOUSE, BOMBAY,
April 7, 1945

BHAJ JANAKDHARI BABU,

I have a feeling that I have replied to your letter. But no one seems to know, so I write this. The remedy for your difficulty is very simple. Do only what is proper. Give Nayee Talim to the boy and the girl. Nayee Talim is self-sufficient and gives an all-round training.
Why worry about what will happen after your death? Have faith in God Who is the support of all. Do not spend even a cowrie on the marriage of the girls. They will find husbands for themselves when they grow up. In Nayee Talim that worry has no place. It is a matter of changing the ways of life; but that is the sort of thing you have to expect from me.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 58
285. LETTER TO GOPE GURBUXANI

BIRLA HOUSE, BOMBAY,
April 7, 1945

CHI. GURBUXANI,

I have the letter from you two. I remember both of you at least while spinning. I am here till the 14th, maybe till the 20th. Then Mahabaleshwar. Let us see what God makes me do. It is good that you have met Mother.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 1313

286. LETTER TO KERUM NATH BHATT

April 7, 1945

You should follow in your own practice as many of the 15 points of the Constructive Programme as you can and inspire others to do the same. In business you should give first place to service. Give up profiteering. Never abandon truth and rectitude. Promote the charkha, service of the Harijans, use of items of village industries and show love, respect and generosity towards votaries of other faiths.

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

287. LETTER TO KHURSHED NAOROJI

BOMBAY,
April 8, 1945

DEAR SISTER,

Your letter. You will hear from me at once if and when Satyavati comes. I am here till 14th, probably till 20th. The latter depends upon the doctors. Narahari went last night and returns at the latest on 5th proximo. Khan Saheb will be with me for days more.

1 The superscription and subscription are in Gujarati.

Blessings to both sisters from

BAPU

SHRI KHURSHEDBEHN NAOROJI
OOMRA HALL
PANCHAGANI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

288. LETTER TO BHULABHAI J. DESAI

BOMBAY,
April 8, 1945

BHAI BHULABHAI,

If, after all that has happened, the Chimur prisoners are to be hanged, I cannot see how a national government can be formed. What can we expect from such a government? Will you consider only your own interests in what you do and give no thought to the interests of the masses? Both you and I need to ponder deeply over this. Please consider what can be done while the prisoners are still alive. If you can do something with the League’s co-operation do it, otherwise do what you yourself think proper.

Blessings from

BAPU

From Gujarati: Bhulabhai Desai Papers. Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library

289. LETTER TO SUMITRA GANDHI

BIRLA HOUSE, BOMBAY,
April 8, 1945

CHI. SUMI,

It is not good that you often get headaches and dysentery. With such health you should not exert yourself too much. You should

1 The superscription and subscription are in Gujarat study less. Everything will be ruined if your health is ruined. I am here at least till the 14th.

Blessings from

BAPU

SUMITRA GANDHI
C/o Lady Superintendent
Birla High School
Pilani

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

290. LETTER TO OMKARNATH THAKUR

BOMBAY,
April 8, 1945

Bhai Omkarnath,

My Hindustani letter is enclosed.¹ You should scrupulously follow Malaviyaji’s instructions about the Fund. Collect money from as many places as you like by engaging reliable persons but the entire collection should be credited to the special account of the University opened for the purpose. It will be well if they get receipt books printed. The work will progress and shine only if the account is maintained meticulously.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

291. LETTER TO OMKARNATH THAKUR

Birla House, Bombay,
April 8, 1945

Bhai Omkarnath,

It is good that Bharat Bhushan Malaviyaji and Sir Radhakrishnan have signed the statement. I believe that if what the statement says is put into effect, you and the University will have rendered much service to the cause of music without any discrimination. In fact that is how it should be in music. True music lifts up people. There is no place in it for communal differences and hostility. You tell me that you also hold the same opinion.

¹ Vide the following item.

I wish your endeavour success.

Yours,
M. K. GANDHI

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

292. LETTER TO G. B. PANT

BIRLA HOUSE, BOMBAY,
April 8, 1945

BHAi GOVIND PANT,

How surprising—yesterday I sent you a telegram and today I receive your letter. Undergo the operation and then come here when doctors permit you. I may be here till the 20th. Then Mahabaleshwar. Let us see where God takes me. Get well.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI GOVIND BALLABH PANT
DR. JOSHI’S HOSPITAL
KAROL BAGH
NEW DELHI

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

293. LETTER TO KUSUM NAIR

BOMBAY,
April 8, 1945

DEAR SISTER,

I hope you will be able to read my hand. I have shown you the way to true success. Work hard, be unpretentious and self-reliant. That is the secret of success in work.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI KUSUM NAIR
N. G. P. P. BUREAU
73 LAKSHMI BUILDING
SIR P. MEHTA ROAD
BOMBAY 1

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers.Courtesy: Pyarelal
294. LETTER TO LILAVATI R. BHOGE

BOMBAY,
April 8, 1945

DEAR SISTER,

I have your letter. I am doing what I can. Yes, go to Poona and get ready.

Blessings from

BAPU

SAU. LILAVATI RAMBAU BHOGE
P. O. RAVER
EAST KHANDESH

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

295. INTERVIEW TO B. E. S. T. WORKERS’ DEPUTATION

BOMBAY,
April 8, 1945

In reply to the request of the deputationists for advice Gandhiji said:

My advice in this matter may not be of much use as, with the exception of Abidally, I am not acquainted with any of you. Nor have I any direct, intimate knowledge of the conditions in Bombay. I would therefore say to you that you should consult such leaders as enjoy your confidence and are sound and you should do as they say.

Pressed by the deputationists to give a word of guidance on the strength of his own experience of strikes which he had led, Gandhiji observed:

I have conducted many strikes. I can, therefore, give you the conditions of a successful strike. The first is that the cause should be clear and just. Secondly, the strikers should be firm and not be afraid of starvation, physical assaults or even death. Thirdly, they should never deviate from the path of truth and ahimsa in whatever they

---

1 The B.E.S.T. workers had been on strike and had sought Gandhiji”s advice. As it was Gandhiji’s silence day he gave his remarks in writing. The report given here was contained in a statement issued by Pyarelal in view of the fact that the Press had earlier published an unauthorized translation.

2 From The Hindu, 10-4-1945
might do. Fourthly, the strikers should have public support behind them. If you can satisfy all these four conditions you should stand firm, but if you fall short in any of these respects you should boldly retrace your steps. I cannot give you further guidance. The details are for you to decide.

In answer to their further request that he should address an appeal to the Directors of the Company, most of whom were Indians, Gandhiji said:

It is not my practice to interfere in a matter with which I am not fully acquainted. I do not even know who are on the Board of Directors. If, as you say, the Board is composed predominantly of Indians your task ought to be easy. My function ceases with the advice. The time is perhaps past when I could lead strikes myself. If you understand this limitation of mine you will save my time as well as yours. Time in your case is the very essence. You have therefore to act promptly. If you carefully ponder over what I have said you will find that I have told you everything.

The deputationists finally asked whether Gandhiji would not appeal to the public to support them. Gandhiji replied:

It is not my word but your conduct that can win for you public support.

The Bombay Chronicle, 12-4-1945

296. LETTER TO G. D. BIRLA

April 9, 1945

CHI. GHANSHYAMDAS,

Can you read my handwriting? If you find it difficult, I shall in future dictate my letters.

Days pass and there is no time left for a heart-to-heart talk. I shall, therefore, put down in writing what I have to say. That way I should be able to have my say. You can reply in a few words. This does not, of course, mean that I am withdrawing what I have said. I will not leave here till I have given you time but I do not wish to postpone what I have to say. Profulla Babu said to me: “Krishnakumar and Madhav Prasad have now become so big that they could not even come to see me in my illness. Formerly they did visit me occasionally and also asked me questions.” It seems to be a case of negligence. There is no question here of big and small. I had asked Profulla if I could bring this matter up.

2. My work has increased. My endeavour now is to see that no one expects any money from me and the institutions I have created become self-supporting. This will, of course, take some time and meanwhile I shall have to find money for them. The institutions are All-India Spinners’ Association, Village Industries Association, Nayee Talim, Hindustani Prachar and the Ashram. The second, third, fourth and fifth need the money now. So far as the fifth, the Ashram, is concerned it will never be self-supporting. I am doing my best of course. The Ashram also includes the hospital. The monetary provision for the hospital is separate. Efforts are being made to secure funds for it from various sources. Still the annual expenses of the Ashram alone are in the neighbourhood of Rs. 100,000. I am quoting the figure from memory. The Ashram is not in need of funds at present. Rameshwardas sends the needed money. As for the second, third and fourth, they need the money. I believe Rameshwardas has sent some money. Money is needed for the propagation of Hindi and for Nayee Talim. Probably I shall want Rs. 200,000. Are you disposed to take this burden on your shoulders? As for the “Sufferers’ Fund”, Rameshwardas’s letter mentions it. I have also given my opinion.

3. Now for my relationship with women and my experiment. I have suspended the experiment for the sake of co-workers. I did not see anything improper in it. I am the same who took a vow of brahmacharya in 1906 and have been observing brahmacharya since 1901. Today I am a better brahmachari than I was in 1901. What my experiment has done is to make me more firm in my brahmacharya. The experiment was designed to make of myself a perfect brahmachari? and if God so wills it will lead to perfection. You wanted to talk to me and question me on the subject. You may do both. Please do not hesitate. It will be unbearable if there is any hesitation in one with whom I have such intimate relations and whose money I have been so freely spending.

It is good that two of your brothers are together. This letter is certainly for both but you may take it that it is indeed for all the brothers and the entire family.

Blessings from

BAPU

---

1 Addressee’s brother
2 Gandhiji uses the English words.
PS.

I had thought of writing a short letter, but it has become somewhat lengthy. After all it covers three points.

I forgot to mention one thing. You have given Rs. 50,000 for the Ashram land which has been transferred to the goshala. Now the list that Chimanlal has sent mentions the Ashram field and some land with a well in it. If that is so, then all the houses go too. This cannot be so. It must have been an oversight. Though letters were sent to Janakidevi and others there was no result. Now, if you think that the entire land with the well has been given to the goshala, then a certain amount will have to be deducted from your Rs. 50,000. Do what you think proper.

BAPU

From Hindi: C.W. 8069. Courtesy: G. D. Birla

297. LETTER TO HOMI TALEYARKHAN

“BIRLA HOUSE”,
MALABAR HILL, BOMBAY,
April 10, 1945

MY DEAR HOMI,

I am washed out and there is plenty of ‘planned’ work in front of me. Hence is it not the duty of friends like you to save every minute of mine? Really I should not have to write even this note. Karanjia has written to me too. Both of you should have patience and it may be rewarded.

Yours,

BAPU

SHRI HOMI TALEYARKHAN
AHMED MANZIL
WARDEN ROAD
BOMBAY

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
298. LETTER TO R. K. KARANJIA

BOMBAY,
April 10, 1945

Bhai Karanjia,

I am now tired of meeting people. Even now I have to meet them in the interest of work but I try to avoid it as far as possible.
Women meet me at the prayer time. I would request Mrs. Karanjia to do that. You certainly have a heart in the Kamala Nehru Hospital. Why should you need my blessings? Let me do whatever I can.

Blessings from

BAPU

Bhai Rustom Karanjia
Apollo Street
Bombay

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

299. LETTER TO ANUPAMA

BOMBAY,
April 10, 1945

Chh. Anupama,

You are true to your word. As you had said you sent the money. I have received the bank draft for Rs. 501.
I see that many girls have the deplorable habit of writing in -pencil. How is that? Keep your word.

Blessings from

BAPU

Anupamabehn
Karachi

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
300. LETTER TO PRABHAKAR SAKHALKAR

BOMBAY,
April 10, 1945

BHAIPRABHAKAR,

You cannot resort to satyagraha for everything. A thing that rests on truth will succeed on its own. In any case therefore blessings are unnecessary. Harijans should have the permission.

Yours,
M. K. GANDHI

SHRI PRABHAKAR SAKHALKAR
SAKHALKARWADI
RAJAPUR
DISTT. RATNAGIRI

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

301. INTERVIEW TO K. R. NARAYANAN

April 10, 1945

Q. Do you still hold that the Harijan problem is only religious and social and that it has no great political significance?
A. It has political significance but indirectly.

Q. The Congress as an organization has not taken up the Harijan work. Will it not be better if that work is taken up by the Congress and not by the Harijan Sevak Sangh?
A. It is wrong to say that the Congress has not taken it up.

Q. But it seems that leaders like Jawaharlal and the Rashtrapati are not keenly aware of the Harijan question?
A. Those two are immersed in that work.

Q. The Harijan Sevak Sangh after years of work had not yet produced even a dozen leaders from among the Harijans themselves.
A. That charge is only partly true.

Q. All great men have a passion for simplification. You have simplified the 1 K. R. Narayanan was on the staff of The Times of India. Gandhiji gave his answers in writing.

nature of human conflict as between violence and non-violence, truth and untruth, right and wrong. But in life, is not the conflict between one right and another right or between one truth and another truth? How can non-violence deal with such a situation?

A. That is a matter of application.

Q. In the Hindu-Muslim question where the conflict is between the rights of the Hindus and the rights of the Muslims, what technique of non-violence can be employed to solve the problem, especially when these rights seem to be irreconcilable?

A. That awful situation can only be dealt with properly through satyagraha.

Your questions show that you have not studied it. If I am right, P[yarelal] will give you a list of the books. My advice to you is that you should seriously study the literature on the subject.

Q. How can a Harijan who goes abroad⁠¹ best serve his country and community from abroad?

A. He cannot serve the one without serving the other. Abroad you will say it is a domestic question which you are determined to solve for yourselves.

From a copy: C.W. 10547. Courtesy: K. R. Narayanan

302. LETTER TO MAHMUD YASIN

[After April 10, 1945]²

BHAi MAHMUD YASIN,

When have I ever taken interest in elections? Please excuse me.

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

MAHMUD YASIN

LUDHIANA

From a copy of the Urdu: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ The interviewer later joined the Indian Foreign Service.
² This was in reply to the addressee’s letter dated 10-4-1945.
303. SPEECH AT BORIVLI CAMP

April 11, 1945

Gandhiji began his remarks by requesting them\(^1\) to give him a little respite. There was a time and place for everything in life, he told them. He had trained himself to listen to the inner voice irrespective of his surroundings. But in that he had succeeded only partially. He could not keep himself absolutely unaffected by his surroundings. Therefore he requested the photographers to spare him while he was trying to express his deepest feelings. Photography out of time and place was not art but vulgarity.

Dealing with the question of prayer\(^2\) he said that he had learnt that common prayers had been excluded from their routine lest anyone should feel that religion was being imposed upon her or him. Speaking for himself he could say that he could do and had often done without food for days on end, but he could not do without prayer even for a single day. Individual prayer was there but no one should fight shy of collective prayer. Man is a social being. If men and women could eat together, play together and work together why should they not pray together? Why should anyone feel the need to pray away from everybody’s gaze? Was there anything sinful or shameful in prayer that it should not be said in public? For close on fifty years he had been a believer in public prayer. From his earliest days in South Africa he had among his associates and co-workers men and women of every religion. Hindus, Muslims, Christians and Parsis, all used to join him in prayer. In India men and women in crowds attended his prayers wherever he went. He had been told that they did not come to attend the prayers. They came just to have his darshan. Even if it was so, they came because they wanted to join him—a man of prayer. He was aware that he had not come as near to God as he wanted to. His realization of truth and ahimsa was still far from perfect, otherwise there would be no need for him to use speech. His very being would radiate truth and ahimsa so that they would be able to see it on his face and feel its presence. He had often said that the perfect ahimsa of one individual was quite enough for the whole world. Whatever measure of success he had attained in the realization of truth and non-violence was the result of prayer.

Prayer should be a spontaneous welling up of the heart. One should not pray if one felt that prayer was a burden. God was not hungry for man’s prayer or praise. He tolerated all because He was all Love. If they felt that they owed a debt to Him who is the Giver of all things they should remember Him and pray to Him out of sheer

---

\(^1\) The camp was organized by Mridula Sarabhai under the auspices of the Kasturba Gandhi National Memorial Fund.
\(^2\) The cameramen who had been clicking continuously gratitude. The fear of incurring anybody’s ridicule or displeasure should never deter one from performing one’s elementary duty towards the Maker. To illustrate his remark he told them the story of Prophet Daniel.

Answering next Shrimati Mridulabehn’s question as to what were the good and bad points of Indians as a nation, he observed that he was convinced that in the sum the former far outweighed the latter. Indians had many defects. India was a slave country and her slavery dated much farther back than the British conquest of India. Slavery of evil customs and superstitions’ he knew, was the worst form of slavery. Yet the solace that he could find in India he could find nowhere else. He had lived in England and he had spent the best part of his life in South Africa. Yet he could not adopt those countries as his home. In reply to a friend’s query years ago” he had said that he wanted to die in the lap of his mother. His own mother, who was a frail little woman, had died years ago. But Mother India with her 80 crores of hands 80 crores of feet and 40 crores of mouths had beckoned to him from across the seas and he could not resist that call.

What did it matter if that venerable mother appeared sick and paralysed today? It was not for him to proclaim India’s virtues. As for her shortcomings he had been proclaiming them from the house-tops ever since his return to India. But if he were pressed to name only one shortcoming of Indians he would say that the worst was cowardice.

Another friend asked how women could go into the villages and work under the Kasturba Gandhi National Memorial Fund scheme handicapped as they were by so many restrictions. Gandhiji’s reply was that he had expected that their first lesson in the camp was to learn to break all social restrictions that cramped or degraded them. He, however, warned them that this did not mean throwing off of all moral restraints. There was at present a woeful deterioration of moral standards in society among men. Even those who talked loudly about enforcing monogamy through law did not practise it themselves. The same tendency was beginning to manifest itself among women. He had known educated girls who thought nothing of marrying men having a living wife. He called this degradation of womanhood. Such views could not be defended under the pretence of banishing social superstitions or vice. Did the emancipation of women mean that they should imitate men in that respect? Certainly not. India could never win swaraj, certainly not the swaraj of his conception, by following that path.

Uttermost moral purity was the first requisite for establishing social freedom. No one who lacked moral purity was qualified to lead a crusade against evil social restrictions.

The next question was how they were to deal with the question of untouchability in the villages. He agreed that the problem of untouchability in the villages was very acute. But those who went there should go with the grim determination to destroy it root and branch or perish in the attempt. They should begin with the scavengers. Unfortunately, there was untouchability even among the so-called untouchables. They should mix with them and eat and drink with them, provided they observed the rules of cleanliness and sanitation. They could inculcate these habits upon them by cooking for them and cleaning up their homes for them.

Another question expressed the fear that since capitalists had contributed the bulk of the Kasturba Gandhi National Memorial Fund and since they were taken on committees their influence would dominate the organization and vitiate it.

Gandhiji dismissed the apprehension as groundless. He maintained that in endorsing the acceptance of donations of the rich he had not in any way accepted their dictation nor did they seek or expect any such thing from him. Moneyed men were in a majority only in the Board of Trustees, but that did not mean that they dominated or wanted to dominate the organization. In fact they had offered voluntarily to retire from the Board after the fund had been collected and would have gladly done so had he expressed such a desire. But he wanted not only their donations but their talent—goodwill and services for the cause and so they continued to be on the Board.
He refused to believe that the capitalists were necessarily a bad lot or worse than members of any other class. In this world everyone was imperfect. He was too well aware of his own imperfections to presume to judge others. His ahimsa required him to be rigorous in viewing his own shortcomings but to be charitable in judging others.
It was enough if he could eradicate his own. If, therefore, instead of cavilling at the faults of others we turned the searchlight inward and concentrated on self-purification, the world would become a better place to live in and the general social purification would be reflected in the capitalist class too. He could not therefore say to the capitalists that unless they renounced all their riches he would have nothing to do with them. Complete renunciation of one’s possessions was a thing which very few even among the ordinary folk were capable of. All that one could legitimately expect of the wealthy class was to hold their riches in trust and use them for the service of society. To insist upon more would be to kill the goose that laid the golden eggs.

_The Bombay Chronicle, 13-4-1945_
Gandhiji said he was reminded by Balasaheb Kher that he had visited Borivli after twenty years. He did not think it was such a long time. He was glad to be able to renew their acquaintance after such a long period. On them rested a great responsibility owing to Shrimati Mridulabehn’s shibir in their midst. They should interest themselves in it. He then turned to Khan Saheb and said, if he was to be friends with Khan Saheb was he to expect him to learn Sanskritized Hindi or was he, the speaker, bound to speak and write to him in Urdu? But Khan Saheb was everyone’s friend. Therefore it was the duty of the audience to learn the national language in both the forms and both scripts. Thus and thus alone could the All-India language permeate the whole of India. In this at least there should be no Pakistan and he who wished to make common cause with Hindus and Muslims was bound to learn the two scripts and two forms. A time would then come when the two forms of speech would become one. If they felt it a burden to learn the scripts, he could only say swaraj was not to be had easily and without toil. Where there was love toil was no trouble but pleasure.

The speaker then alluded to the evening bhajan sung at the prayer. Its burden was that the way to God was for the valiant, not for the timid. But God was not to be reached by slaves. Therefore the bhajan was also for those who wanted to throw off their slavery.

The speaker then concluded that slavery must be the lot of those who hugged untouchability and that too in the name of religion. He wanted therefore to repeat what he had said so often, namely, that Hinduism must perish if untouchability lived.¹

The Bombay Chronicle, 13-4-1945

¹ At the end of the meeting a collection was made for the Harijan cause.
305. LETTER TO M. S. KELKAR

BOMBAY,
April 12, 1945

MY DEAR ICE,

You are right. It is perhaps shameful on my part to exile myself for three months for coolness’ sake. My consolation is that they have all driven me out. But very little temptation will hurl me back to Sevagram. You should convert the people there to your view. I did try... not for me but for Ba and others. You try his remedy and treat him and others. I won’t desert you.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

306. LETTER TO SAROJINI NAIDU

BOMBAY,
April 12, 1945

MY DEAR BULBUL,

Your letter. Here is a note for Maina’. You must sing in the midst of personal sorrow. Why should it be all joy? My love to you and the whole family.

I for one shall not trouble you while you are undergoing this purifying bath. I had many temptations to send the Singer to the frontier, to Sind, to the States, etc. My answer was an emphatic ‘no’.

Love.

SPINNER

SAROJINI NAIIDU
HYDERABAD DN.

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Omission as in the source
2 Randheer; vide the following item.
307. LETTER TO RANDHEER NAIDU

BOMBAY,
April 12, 1945

MY DEAR MAINA,

I see Mother was able to give you my message.¹ I do wish you would recover but if you must leave before us all, I know you will be brave and be full of faith in God.

Love.

BAPU

C/O SAROJINI NAIDU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

308. LETTER TO CHIMANLAL N. SHAH

BOMBAY,
April 12, 1945

CHI. CHIMANLAL,

I have your letter. I have a little leisure today. If I were you I would be considerate enough to keep Sarojini with me and strict enough to recover every pie from her and make her eat in the kitchen regularly.² If that should make her want to leave I would let her leave. But do whatever seems proper to you. From this distance I can only give you advice. It is Ramprasad’s duty to go to Mirabehn. The work there is light, the air is good and he will be there only for two months. If he does not go let him do whatever he likes.

The problem of the Ashram land has been solved. Ghanshyamdas does not want the money back. Jajuji has decided that since the land which you did not want to give would not be given, Ghanshyamdas could deduct something if he so desired. He does not want to deduct anything. So that work is over.

I enclose Dr. Ice’s letter. We should build a house for him as he asks. Consider all the changes he wants to make for us. I feel that if we can have some relief from heat by building a suitable house, we should do that.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Vide the preceding item.
² Vide “Letter to Chimanlal N. Shah”, 4-4-1945.
309. LETTER TO KISHORELAL G. MASHRUWALA

BOMBAY,
April 12, 1945

CHI. KISHORELAL,

I am always thinking about you all. Today I had a letter from Dr. Ice. He is keen on treating you. Do not run away from there if you can put up with the heat and undergo Dr. Ice’s treatment. I hope Gomati is well. She should also consult Dr. Ice about her treatment. He is a nice man.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

310. NOTE TO SARALADEVI SARABHAI

April 12, 1945

I have no difficulty in agreeing with the scientific views of Madame Montessori. However, if they are propagated in their Western garb in Indian villages they are more likely to prove useless and might even prove harmful, because in that garb they will be too expensive for Indian villages and ill-adapted to the village atmosphere. It is possible the cities may not feel the expense so much and women influenced by Western ways may be receptive to the ideas presented in Western garb; but even so it will be of no use because India lives not in cities but in its seven lakh villages. Besides, scientific education with Western trappings might prove poisonous to the city-dwellers because here education begins the moment the child is conceived and ends no one knows when. These days the cities are created by the foreigners to serve their ends and so they do not represent the villages. They do not protect the interests of the villagers but are becoming their exploiters.

SARALADEVI SARABHAI
THE RETREAT
SHAHI BAGH
AHMEDABAD

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
311. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

April 12, 1945

CHI. MUNNALAL,

Twenty-five rupees for the distilled water, and that to be paid by the hospital! We certainly can’t take that from Hari-ichchha. There appears to be some misunderstanding. Please explain. I hope you are well. Yes, Sushilabehn was injured,¹ but no bones were broken. There is no time to write more.

Blessings from

BAPU

MUNNALAL

SEVAGRAM ASHRAM

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

312. LETTER TO RAMPRASAD

BOMBAY,

April 12, 1945

CHI. RAMPRASAD,

I was surprised as well as grieved to read your letter to Mamasheb². I was even more surprised to read your letter to Pyarelalji. There is no mention in it of my suggestion. It could not be that you have not received it, because Chi. Chimanlal writes that you would not like to go to Mirabehn. How is that? It is work you like and the place is also cool. Can you get what you desire if you are notwilling to go? All this wants thinking over. Please correct me if I am wrong.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Vide 2nd footnote of “Speech at Prayer Meeting”, 3-4-1945.
² V. L. Phadke
313. LETTER TO KUSUM NAIR

BOMBAY,

April 12, 1945

DEAR SISTER,

I find your Hindi very sweet. The handwriting too is good. Read the reply I have given. I did not say I would give the article soon. However if you keep on reminding me you will get it.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

314. LETTER TO DEVPRakash NAYYAR

BOMBAY,

April 12, 1945

CHI. DEV.

I saw one of your letters. The importance of Nayee Talim is that we become teachers of all. However one who does not also become a student is not fit to be a teacher. Being a student one daily learns something new. You should not be afraid of anyone.

You will win over everyone by ahimsa. The heat there is stifling. You have to overcome that also. Everyone cannot go to a cool place. You must make that place itself as cool as you can. Take Dr. Kelkar’s help. He is a nice man and he has written to me about this. Make one house cool with his help.

Take ghee if it is necessary for your health and keep well.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
315. TELEGRAM TO DEVDAS GANDHI

Express

Bombay,

April 13, 1945

Devdas Gandhi

Care Times

New Delhi

Bapu

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

316. LETTER TO KAMUBEHN

Bombay,

April 13, 1945

Chimanlal Kamu,

I have your letter. Beyond meeting face to face what more do you desire? It is more than enough if there is a meeting of hearts. It is good that there is no customary lamentation over your sister-in-law’s death. It is wrong to grieve over a death. Everyone has to go that way—the only difference is some go early, some late. Mourning over it is futile.

I hope all of you are well.

Blessings from

Bapu

Kamubehn

Vora Hardas’s Bungalow

Behind High School

Raikot

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
317. LETTER TO KISHORELAL G. MASHRUWALA

BOMBAY,
April 13, 1945

CHI. KISHORELAL,

I have understood about 1:12. I have made the change deliberately. There is no time to write a letter. Swami will write to you. What you say about interest I have been accepting as an ideal for many years now. However it seems to me that it is not practicable.

You have done well in prolonging your stay for some more time.

You must have received my letter of yesterday.

You should let Dr. Ice examine Gomati’s tooth. I expect he will suggest something. Otherwise Dr. Manubhai is there. It is good that Durga will be leaving with you.

I am quite well.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

318. LETTER TO CHIMANLAL N. SHAH

BOMBAY,
April 13, 1945

CHI. CHIMANLAL,

I have read this letter¹. Speak to him about his habits and irregularities and warn him. If he does not listen, then it is only right that he goes. Nevertheless tell him frankly if you all feel that he is incorrigible and relieve him.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Sushila Nayyar’s letter to the addressee about Majidbhai
319. LETTER TO JANAKIBEHN SOMAN

BOMBAY,
April 13, 1945

DEAR JANAKIBEHN,

I was happy to have your letter. I have sent it on to Brajkishorebhai. Your letter reminds me of the old times. May you all keep well. Please tell Totaramji to write to me a few words occasionally.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI JANAKIBEHN SOMAN
GUJARAT VIDYAPITH
AHMEDABAD

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

320. LETTER TO VIMALA C. MEHTA

BOMBAY,
April 14, 1945

CHI. VIMALA,

I read your interesting story. My blessings to you both. Both of you are rising. I hope it is not to fall again. Falling does not mean losing your job; it means leading a life of luxury and licence. I knew the late Kikabhai. He was close to my father. But I knew him more as the author of the dictionary, which was considered very good at that time. I shall most likely be in Mahabaleshwar after the 20th. Come and see me some time after I go up there.

Blessings from

BAPU

BEHN VIMALA C. MEHTA
HARIPURA
BHAWANI VAD, SURAT

From a copy of the Gujarat: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
321. LETTER TO G. B. PANT

BOMBAY,
April 14, 1945

BHAIGOVIND BALLABHPANT,

I received your letter today. Dr. Jivraj told me only today The doctors are right. The body has to be made fit to undergo the operation. I intend to leave Bombay on the 20th. Write to me at Mahabaleshwar.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI GOVIND BALLABH PANT
EX-PRIME MINISTER
NAINITAL

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

322. LETTER TO SATYAVATI

BOMBAY,
April 14, 1945

CHISATYAVATI,

I have your letter. Serving you is serving the people because you do not live and do not wish to live for your own sake. Each breath you take is for the people. I won’t remove Chand from the Camp. I saw her on the 11th. However, I will talk to her after the Cawp is over and try to send her to you. May God keep you well in the meantime. Khurshedbehn is somewhat indisposed. She wants to see you. You should not be so foolhardy as to come here.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRISATYAVATIDEVI
J. B. HOSPITAL
KINGSWAY
DELHI

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
323. A NOTE

April 15, 1945

I am sorry to say that what appears to have been meant as a supplement to the constructive programme is its flat contradiction. And it is unworkable. If put in action, it will [not only] frustrate itself but will largely hamper the constructive programme. But this is merely a caution. Those who believe in this programme must prosecute it till they are convinced to the contrary. That is the best argument.

Hence I do not want to reason even if I had the time which I have not just now.

BAPU

From a copy: Jawaharlal Nehru Papers, Part:” Vol. IV. Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library

324. LETTER TO CHIMANLAL N. SHAH

April 15, 1945

CHI. CHI[MANLAL],

I have your letter. Pass on the accompanying letters. You give fairly detailed news. Let us see if we can use a part of Durga’s house during her absence. We have, of course, K.’s¹ house in the last resort.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10621

¹ Kishorelal Mashruwala
325. LETTER TO JIVANJI D. DESAI

April 15, 1945

CHI. JIVANJI,

I send you with this for your perusal Anand’s letter regarding the books. I am sending also the English material which he has sent. Perhaps you will have that with you. Read both and return them with your comments. I have not yet written anything to Anand.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 9954. Also C.W. 6928. Courtesy: Jivanji D. Desai

326. LETTER TO PRABHAKAR PAREKH

BIRLA HOUSE, BOMBAY,

April 15, 1945

CHI. PRABHAKAR,

I have your letter. It is good. Shripat Baba should go to Bhimavaram. It may be possible to get coconuts here but the other thing also is needed.

Shastriji¹ should not set his heart on dying in the Ashram. Manahar’s institution is the only proper place and Shastriji should have the discernment to see it.²

Set apart two minutes before न्यौऽ, I was under the impression that we recite the शान्ति prayer after न्यौऽ. Let it be halted for two minutes. But you should do only what you have suggested.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 9023. Also C.W. 9147. Courtesy: Prabhakar Parekh

¹ Parachure Shastri
² Vide also the following item.
327. LETTER TO PARACHURE SHASTRI

BIRLA HOUSE, BOMBAY,

April 15, 1945

SHASTRIJI,

You have fallen ill! It is not good if it is from worry. But if it is death calling, there is no harm. “You must go with a smile on your lips.” And that too from a Lepers’ House. Whatever it may be, remain calm and sing Tukaram’s abhangas or Vedic mantras.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 10668. Also Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

328. FRAGMENT OF LETTER TO SHARAYU DHOTRE

April 15, 1945

In my view the question is not difficult. I shall define the ideal. It is for each individual to decide how far it is proper to depart from it. Consider also that my own conduct is not in keeping with the ideal I lay down. My coming here and then going to Mahabaleshwar is a breach of the ideal. Even so, that is what I am doing. You are similarly free to act as you wish. If the heart is inclined in a certain way the ideal is secondary.

Let us do without what everyone cannot have. I have told you that in practice we do not do it. Now you have to decide without hesitation whether or not you should take help from Saroj or Raihana or Kamalnayan. Neither I nor anybody else should take that decision.

Blessings from

BAPU

From Hindi: C.W. 841. Courtesy: Sharayu Dhotre

1 The copy from Pyarelal Papers, however” has 16.
2 The addressee was in Dattapur Lepers’ House near Wardha.
3 Only the second sheet of the letter is available.
329. LETTER TO E. W. ARYANAYAKUM

April 15, 1945

CHI. ARYANAYAKUM,

What is the harm if I arrange to get another room for Ramachandran in Rustom Bhavan itself? After all he is here for six months. Isn’t he? Pyarelal needs all the rooms. He has a lot of papers and books.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

330. LETTER TO UMA AGRAWAL

BOMBAY,
April 15, 1945

CHI. OM¹.

If you keep your clothes in the room on getting up, does it mean the room is yours? The ideal thing would be that we consider it more than enough if we have a corner to keep our things in. Do you throw your clothes about anyhow or do you fold them and keep them neatly arranged? Do you wash your mouth and face before going to the morning prayer? You have described the schedule from lunch to 3:15 p.m. as cleaning and ginning of cotton, newspaper-reading and writing. You ought to mention specifically the time each activity takes. Working eight hours is compulsory. In an institution given to non-violence, taking work from others is coercion. Why should we exact work? Everything we do is work. We should not keep our diaries secret. It is our ideal not to keep anything secret. It is better to get the diary signed by the manager.

Any work given to us is our study, or should be. Prof. Shriman Narayan’s school should not have English. It will be discontinued. I do not know the price. You must find out. Do not send the diary to me. Show it to me when I come.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Jamnalal Bajaj’s daughter
331. LETTER TO P. B. CHANDWANI

BOMBAY,
April 15, 1945

CHI. CHANDWANI,

I was very happy to have your Hindi letter. Learn Hindi thoroughly. I will try to go to Mahabaleshwar on the 20th.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI P. B. CHANDWANI
OLD SUKKUR
SUKKUR
SIND

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

332. LETTER TO HIRALAL SHASTRI

BOMBAY,
April 15, 1945

BHAI HIRALAL SHASTRI,

I have your letter. Keep on doing your work unperturbed. Do not involve me. Da what your heart bids you—those are the true blessings.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI HIRALAL SHASTRI
PRAJAMANDAL
KHEJADA KA RASTA
JAIPUR CITY

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
Gandhiji wanted to refer to a conversation he had with a friend. He was asked to define who was a Gandhi-ite as there was confusion in the public mind. He could safely say there was no Gandhi-ite in India. He was himself not one. He had founded no cult. He claimed to be a satyagrahi and therefore, he was also non-violent, or was trying to be and he invited everyone in the audience to do likewise.

When the odds were heavy against them in South Africa, where they were in a hopeless minority, he had discovered satyagraha in 1906 in the place of parliamentary programme. He had never been a member of any parliament or even a local board. He saw that non-violent non-co-operation was the most powerful thing instead. The constructive part was his 15-point programme which they had seen. There was swaraj in it and much more.

Satyagraha was not a mere policy with him, it was his creed. He hoped to see God face to face through it. If that was the power of satyagraha surely political swaraj was a simple matter if all took to it.

But his satyagraha told him that he was to bear with those who did not see eye to eye with him but sought to go through the parliamentary programme. They had known him closeted with Dr. Khan Saheb and his friends as also with Advocate Bhulabhai Desai. He told them to follow their belief. He owned no enemy—certainly not Englishmen and not even English officials. But that did not mean that he should follow them. He went his own way. The official way was to rule India, his was to serve India. The official was all for power, he was all for service and that in the name of God. Therefore he could afford to face the whole world’s opposition, for God, he believed, was with him and He was a never-failing, all-sufficing companion and infallible Guide.

The Bombay Chronicle, 16-4-1945
334. ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

[April 16, 1945]

Instead of undertaking the thankless task of going through the jumble of my writings to find out what I have said or have not said about caste, you have done well in sending me the following questions.

1. Do you still adhere to the views you have expressed on the caste system in your writings?

2. Do you still believe that the caste system is the best social order and that the world should adopt it?

3. Do you still believe that the thousands of existing sub-castes will disappear and merge so that in the end only the four varnas will remain? In the last twenty-five years how many sub-castes have thus disappeared and merged into bigger castes?

4. Whatever castes we find in history are all based on birth and the inequalities arising therefrom. Do you think that the equality and brotherhood you preach is consistent with that kind of social order? If the Bhangis go on doing the work of scavenging from one generation to the next, what will be their future?

5. Isn’t Shri Sanjana’s severe criticism of the “Politics of the Cow” entirely true?

6. Will you give your consent to the bill introduced in the Central Legislature for retaining caste differences in the Hindu Law?

7. “The Congress is an orthodox Hindu organization and under the fostering care of Gandhiji it has become a missionary organization for the renewal and well-being of the orthodox Hindu religion with its caste system.” What reply would you give to such allegations of Shri Sanjana? And if what Shri Sanjana says is correct, does it not repudiate the Congress claim of being a truly national organization?

8. Is the caste system consistent with democracy and democratic organizations?

I do not need to refer to my past writings to say what I believe

1 The questions had been submitted to Gandhiji by a correspondent and included quotations from Gandhiji’s writings. Gandhiji, in answering, summarized these. Later the questions and the answers were published by Navajivan as a preface to Varnavyavastha. These were also published in The Bombay Chronicle and The Hindu.

2 From The Bombay Chronicle, 17-4-1945
today, because only what I believe today counts. I wish to say that the caste system as it exists to day in Hinduism is an anachronism. It is one of those ugly things which will certainly hinder the growth of true religion. It must go if both Hinduism and India are to live and grow from day today. The way to do it is for all Hindus to become their own scavengers and treat the so-called hereditary Bhangis as their own brothers.

I say the Bhangis because they are at the lowest rung of the ladder. This answers all the questions and I need say nothing more. It is evident that the questioner has not taken the trouble to read my writings. . . . Everybody knows that the Congress from its inception has not been and is not even now an orthodox Hindu organization. It is a democratic organization comprising people holding different views and is daily becoming more and more so under my fostering care.

Mohandas Karamchand Gandhi

[From Gujarati]

Varnavastha, pp. 13-4

335. CABLE TO ELEANOR ROOSEVELT

6 p.m., April 16, 1945

MRS. ROOSEVELT
HYDE PARK
NEW YORK (U. S. A.)

MY HUMBLE CONDOLENCE AND CONGRATULATIONS. LATTER BECAUSE YOUR ILLUSTRIOUS HUSBAND DIED IN HARNESS AND AFTER WAR HAD REACHED A POINT WHERE ALLIED VICTORY HAD BECOME CERTAIN. HE WAS SPARED HUMILIATING SPECTACLE OF BEING PARTY TO PEACE WHICH THREATENS TO BE PRELUDE TO WAR BLOODIER STILL IF POSSIBLE.

Gandhi

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal. Also The Hindu, 10-5-1945

1 Omission as in the source
2 President F. D. Roosevelt died on April 12, 1945
3 Germany surrendered to the Allies on May 7 and Japan on August 14.
336. LETTER TO BISWANATH DAS

Bombay,
April, 15/17, 1945

My dear Das,

I like your letter. I agree that those who are so inclined should follow the parliamentary activity. But the decision has to be taken by the W. C.¹

Yours sincerely,

M. K. Gandhi

Shri B. Das, M.L.A. (Central)
Chandni Chowk
Cuttack, Orissa

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

337. LETTER TO SOURINDRA NATH BASU

Bombay,
April 17, 1945

Dear Sourindra,

I hear from Bhupen that you have lost your brother. All my sympathy with you.

Yours,

Bapu

Shyt. Sourindra Nath Basu
20A Sankerpara Rd.
Bhowanipara
Calcutta

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Congress Working Committee
338. LETTER TO BHUPENDRA NARAYAN SENGUPTA

BOMBAY,
April 17, 1945

MY DEAR BHUPEN,

I have sent the condolence message.¹

Do send me details about Dhirenda’s activities. And let Dr. Indra see Profulla about medical work.

Yours,

BAPU

SJT. BHUPENDRA NARAYAN SENGUPTA
99/2 BALLYGUNJ PLACE
CALCUTTA

From a photostat: G.N. 10065

339. LETTER TO PREMA KANTAK

BOMBAY,
April 17, 1945

CHI. PREMA,

I forgot whether or not I have replied to your previous letter. I got the second letter today. I leave on the 20th for Mahabalshwar and will be spending one month there. This depends on nothing unforeseen happening in the meanwhile. We can meet only if you come there. One may go anywhere if necessary. Otherwise why should I go to Mahabaleshwar?

I have not yet received the book mentioned by you. I will get it. It will be very fine if Acharya Bhagwat joins². I seem to feel better.

I have received the book.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10434, Also C.W. 6873. Courtesy: Prema Kantak

¹ Vide the preceding item.
² The training activities organized by the Kasturba Gandhi National Memorial Fund
340. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

April 17, 1945

CHI. MUNNALAL,

I got your letter. Ramprasad is to be sent to Mirabehn. You already have work in hand. One person at a time should look after the kitchen by turns. Do not go on discussing things. The President after listening to everything should decide either through consensus or a majority vote or at his own discretion. Everything is imperfect as long as the arrangement does not function smoothly.

What you say about the sum of Rs. 25 is correct. It is not for you to see under which head it is accounted. Keeping it in the Hospital account seems all right.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 5944. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

341. LETTER TO RAMPRASAD

April 17, 1945

CHI. RAMPRASAD,

I have your letter. Let Mama also write. Please go to Mirabehn. All the information is given in the enclosed letter. Say to Mirabehn: “Give my wages to Bapu. He will pay me. I have come to assist you for two months.”

You can easily do this. Write to me when you arrive there.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

186 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
342. LETTER TO MANGANBHAI P. DESAI

BOMBAY,
April 17, 1945

CHI. MAGANBHAI,

Narahari has sent his opinion regarding your scheme. Have a look at it. Discuss it with him and write to me about it.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI MAGANBHAI DESAI
RASHTRIYA GUJARAT VIDYAPITH
AHMEDABAD

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

343. LETTER TO P. C. PADHYE

BOMBAY,
April 17, 1945

BHAII PADHYE,

I have received your letter on behalf of the Buddha Society. I am helpless. I do not go anywhere I can possibly avoid going. Even as it is I am leaving Bombay. I have not received the book you mention. Maybe it will come.

Yours,
M. K. GANDHI

ADVOCATE P. C. PADHYE
THE BUDDHA SOCIETY
NAIR BUILDING
LAMINGTON ROAD
BOMBAY

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
344. LETTER TO MOHAMMAD YUNUS

April 17, 1945

Bhai Yunus,

I have your letter. May your marriage prove good for both of you and for the country. May both live in harmony and render service to the country. You may come whenever you feel like it.

Blessings from

Bapu

Bhai Yunus
Khadi Gate
Peshawar

From a copy of the Urdu: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

345. STATEMENT TO THE PRESS

Bombay,
April 17, 1945

Though I know that silence is better than the spoken or written word, there are well-defined limitations to the application of the maxim. The San Francisco Conference is announced to meet shortly. I do not know its agenda. Probably no outsider knows it. Whatever it may be, the Conference will have much to do with the world-to-be after the so-called end of the war. I very much fear that behind the structure of world security sought to be raised lurk mistrust and fear which breed war. Therefore as a lifelong believer in peace as against war, it seems well for me to record my convictions in the matter.

I reiterate my conviction that there will be no peace for the Allies or the world unless they shed their belief in the efficacy of war and its accompanying terrible deception and fraud and are determined to hammer out real peace based on freedom and equality of all races and nations. Exploitation and domination of one nation over another can have no place in a world striving to put an end to all wars. It is only in such a world that the militarily weaker nations will be free from the fear of intimidation or exploitation.

---

1 The Conference was convened on April 25 and concluded on June 26 when the Charter of the United Nations was finally adopted.

(1) An indispensable preliminary to peace is the complete freedom of India from all foreign control, not merely because it is a classic example of imperialist domination but specially because it is a big, ancient and cultured country which has fought for its freedom since 1920 deliberately with Truth and Nonviolence as its only weapon.

Though the Indian soldier has fought not for India’s freedom, he has shown during this war as never before that he is at least an equal of the best in his fighting qualities. I cite this to answer the charge that India’s peaceful struggle is due to its lack of soldierly quality. The inevitable deduction that is drawn from this is that non-violence of the strong is infinitely braver than their violence. That India may not yet have evolved such non-violence is another matter. If it is the case, it does not detract from the statement that it has battled non-violently for freedom and that not without considerable success.

(2) Freedom of India will demonstrate to all the exploited races of the earth that their freedom is very near and that in no case will they henceforth be exploited.

(3) Peace must be just. In order to be that, it must neither be punitive nor vindictive. Germany and Japan should not be humiliated. The strong are never vindictive. Therefore, fruits of peace must be equally shared. The effort then will be to turn them into friends. The Allies can prove their democracy by no other means.

(4) It follows from the foregoing that there will be no armed peace imposed upon the forcibly disarmed. All will be disarmed. There will be an international police force to enforce the lightest terms of peace. Even this retention of an international police will be a concession to human weakness, not by any means an emblem of peace. If these foregoing essentials of peace are accepted, it follows that the camouflage of Indian representation through Indians nominated by British imperialism should be dropped.1 Such representation will be worse than no representation. Either India at SanFrancisco is represented by an elected representative or represented not at all.

1 The British Government had nominated A. Ramaswamy Mudaliar, Firoz Khan Noon and V. T. Krishnamachari to represent India at the Conference.
The following from the Congress resolution of August 8, 1942, shows clearly what free India stands for:

While the A.I.C.C. must primarily be concerned with the independence and defence of India in this hour of danger, the Committee is of opinion that the future peace, security and ordered progress of the world demand a world federation of free nations, and on no other basis can the problems of the modern world be solved. Such a world federation would ensure the freedom of its constituent nations, the prevention of aggression and exploitation by one nation over another, the protection of national minorities, the advancement of all backward areas and peoples, and the pooling of the world’s resources for the common good of all. On the establishment of such a world federation, disarmament would be practicable in all countries, national armies, navies and air forces would no longer be necessary, and a world federal defence force would keep the world peace and prevent aggression. An independent India would gladly join such a world federation and co-operate on an equal basis with other countries in the solution of international problems.

Thus the demand for Indian independence is in no way selfish. Its nationalism spells internationalism.

The Bombay Chronicle, 18-Apr-1945

346. MESSAGE TO INDIANS IN SOUTH AFRICA

Bombay, April 18, 1945

As India holds the key to the freedom of all the exploited races and nations of the earth so do Indians in South Africa hold the key to the protection and freedom of the exploited people in the overseas. For it was in South Africa that satyagraha was fairly tried and became largely successful. Will the Indians there unite and sacrifice themselves for the common cause?

M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat: G.N. 2334

1 The message was conveyed through J. R. Bhala, Joint Secretary of the Overseas Indian Students’ Association, who had met Gandhiji and acquainted him with the difficulties facing the overseas students. The message was also published in The Bombay Chronicle, 1-5-1945, and The Hindu, 2-5-1945.
347. Letter to Chimnalal N. Shah

BOMBAY,
April 18, 1945

CHI. CHIMANLAL,

Sushilaben tells me that there is an understanding with Jajuji and the others that, apart from diagnosis and general treatment, the expenses on patent medicines should be borne by the patients themselves. They should not be purchased by the Hospital but should be procured by the patients as per the prescription. According to this arrangement, the cost of the distilled water should be recovered from those patients to whom it is given or the Ashram should pay if it wants. This is a matter of keeping accounts. Sushilaben intends to make the Hospital self-reliant. It seems that the water is being distilled for Hari-ichchha, Kishorelalbhai and others. We cannot take money from them, so it seems to me that the expenses should be put in the Ashram account. Write to me if you have something different to say.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10622

348. Letter to R. K. Sidhwa

BOMBAY,
April 18, 1945

Bhai Sidhwa,

I have your letter.

I shall let you know beforehand if I write something of the kind that you fear.

Blessings from
BAPU

Shri R. K. Sidhwa, M.L.A.
Victoria Road
Karachi

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
349. LETTER TO PRANSHANKAR JOSHI

BOMBAY,
April 18, 1945

BHAI PRANSHANKAR,

I have your letter. I shall be glad even if I get a single book. I do not have time to spare for you. Still you may write to me after ten days, when I have reached Mahabaleshwar.

M. K. GANDHI

PRANSHANKAR JOSHI
PHOOLWADI
JETPUR, KATHIAWAD

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

350. LETTER TO SHEELA

BOMBAY,
April 18, 1945

CHI. SHEELA,

Your letters are prolix and thoughtless. The briefer a letter, the sweeter it is. That I would be writing to you did not mean that I would be writing to you daily. If I write once in a year it may be said I keep writing. There was no question of writing promptly.

A friend is one who never expects a letter.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHEELABEHN
SIKHSHASADAN
MEERUT

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
351. LETTER TO PRABHAKAR PAREKH

BOMBAY,
April 18, 1945

CHI. PRABHAKAR,

I forgot to answer two points. Chi. Ramdas has lost weight but it should cause no worry if he recovers and retains vitality. It is best to do your massage yourself. I used to have my own daily massage at your age. I can do it even now. Those whose limbs have gone weak must necessarily have massage. This is my view. Consider it well and do whatever seems proper to you.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 9024. Also C.W. 9148. Courtesy:
Prabhakar Parekh

352. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA

BOMBAY,
April 18, 1945

CHI. KRISHNACHANDRA,

I was able to read your letter fully only today. It is well that Balkrishna has come. If in spite of the heat he can stay in the fields let him do so. It is not difficult to have water fetched from there. You should not be having the discharge. Stop taking onions and garlic. Take hip-baths with an empty stomach. It will benefit you.
Having taken the right treatment do not worry. Keep an repeating Ramanama. Remember the monkey teacher.¹ I have it in front of me.
If you want it and can derive any benefit from it I shall send it to you.
Heat could be the cause of your ailment but the chief factor is the mind. You must drink five pounds of water to stop the burning in urination. It would be good if you took distilled water. Or at least the water should be boiled. Your bed should be of planks and hard. It isgood that you have decided about it, even if only after coming to the Ashram. Do whatever you can cope with easily. What Om Prakash says is wrong. If he cannot know the Ashram what can he know about me?

¹ The reference is to the figure of the three monkeys.

I shall send letters to others if I can manage it.

Blessings from
BAPU

[PS.]

You have taken good vows. My indulgence you have. I have another letter from you—of the 19th. If the children want to learn English, let it be along with our own language. But not Ramen under any circumstances. Discretion in everything.

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4509

353. LETTER TO AMRITLAL T. NANAVATI

April 19, 1945

I have read this. It is good. I didn’t read it as a critic. If I did, I might make some suggestions, but I will not attempt that. If you make copies, give one to Pyarelal and one each to others whom M. bhai knows. Send one to Kakasaheb. He will send his comments and make suggestions. Show it to Nadavi’s also The interval between every two examinations should be indicated. There is some reference to acquaintance with all scripts. It may mean that they also should be taught. Illiterates are in large number—they are in millions. They can be taught the Nagari script because it is a perfect one. That means that there will be one script for the languages descended from Sanskrit. Everybody would write his mother tongue also in that script. Let there be mother tongue—the mother script is unnecessary. The national language should be written in two scripts as long as the dispute is not settled. In words of non-Arabic and non-Persian origin, only one and some other letters may be used. I shall not write more. I have already written more than I intended.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10807

1 Najib Ashraf Nadavi, a professor in the Ismail Yusuf College, Andheri
354. LETTER TO KISHORELAL G. MASHRUWALA

BIRLA HOUSE,
BOMBAY,
April 19, 1945

CHI. KISHORELAL,

I am writing this about the meticulous way you do things. Your small note, the thorn pin and the daily news!!! About the snake, I have heard from many. We are surrounded by them. We are also tested at such occasions.

Please tell Dev that I am not writing to him this time.

I want this to reach you before you leave. Manilal has not gone to Akola.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

355. LETTER TO MAYASHANKAR V. DESAI

BOMBAY,
April 19, 1945

Bhai Mayashankar,

I have your letter. Now I cannot spare any time here. Write to me at Mahabaleshwar after eight days. I will give you time when my health permits. I will at least understand what you have to say. I want to do a great deal. The question is how much my health will permit me to do.

Blessings from
BAPU

Mayashankar V. Desai
Mahendra Bhogilal’s Firm
Diamond Merchant
Diwanchand Building
Zaveri Bazaar, Bombay

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
356. LETTER TO KESHAV DEVDHAR

BOMBAY,
April 19, 1945

CHI. DEVDHAR,

Your letter is very good. It is God’s grace that Chi. Devendranath has survived. Prabhakar is industrious and intelligent. Narayan has come to this world only to help others. May God give him a long life. I do not know the other brothers. Please convey my thanks to all of them. The civil surgeon is of course very kind to us. I hope Devendra has fully recovered now.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI KESHAV DEVDHAR

KHADI VIDYALAYA
SEVAGRAM

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

357. LETTER TO PURUSHOTTAMDAS TANDON

BOMBAY,
April 19, 1945

BHAI TANDONJI,

I am a little unhappy over yesterday’s discussion. I wonder if I have wasted your time. Then again I could not explain to you a very simple thing. I had made it clear at Indore that Hindi did not mean exclusion of Urdu. You yourself do not want to give up Urdu. Then it becomes your duty and mine—and of other patriots also—to know both the scripts and their styles. We include Urdu-knowing people in taking account of the supporters of the national language. Therefore the national language is=Hindi + Urdu. Hindi will be an incomplete national language if we take it in its narrow sense. Those imbued with nationalism will easily learn two more languages. Those who do not will lag behind. Such being my views, I will popularize Hindustani whether others support me or not. I am very keen to have your whole-hearted support because you are you and I have a great respect for you.
The poison cannot spread if supporters of Hindi put up with and take kindly to the popularization of Hindustani.

Yours,
M. K. GANDHI

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

358. LETTER TO CHANDRANI

BOMBAY,
April 19, 1945

CHI. CHAND,

I have received your nice letter. You have to complete your course there. In the meantime I will get some more news of Satyavati. Keep on writing to me at Mahabaleshwar. I will decide. Convey my blessings to all the girls there.

Manu¹ has again got fever with blood [in the sputum]. She feels weak but has not lost much weight.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI CHANDRANI
KASTURBA NIDHI SHIBIR
SURESH KUTIR
MANDA PESHAWAR ROAD
BORIVLI

From a photostat of the Hindi: Chandrani Papers. Courtesy: National Gandhi Museum and Library

¹ Jaisukhlal Gandhi’s daughter
359. LETTER TO HOSHIARI

BOMBAY,
April 19, 1945

CHI. HOSHIARI,

Your letter is good. You have done right in writing a strong letter about the boy. Now I will not ask you to let the children go out during my absence. It is true that you are not a child now. Your curriculum is good. I see that there is a fall in the temperature there but it will rise again. Our country is hot. Isn’t it? Your handwriting has improved a little. Improve it still further and also your language.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

360. LETTER TO SARASWATI GANDHI

BOMBAY,
April 19, 1945

CHI. SURU,

I was very happy to receive your letter. God will grant you success. The victory over Harilal, which was denied me, has come to you two. You are correct in saying that if he can get rid of the two vices he can be the best of all brothers. Let us see what you people can do. Kanti is very confident. Faith is a great thing. I am going to Mahabaleshwar tomorrow. I shall be there for a month and then one more month at Panchgani. Madhavdas¹ had taken poison but has survived. Manilal, Sushila and the children have arrived.

Blessings from;

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 6185. Also C.W. 3459. Courtesy: Kantilal Gandhi

¹ Madhavdas Gopaldas Kapadia, brother of Kasturba Gandhi
361. SPEECH AT PRAYER MEETING

BOMBAY,
April 19, 1945

Gandhiji spoke of the value of prayer and asked the audience to continue the habit even after he was gone. In particular he asked them to pray that the taint of untouchability might be removed root and branch and find no place in their hearts.

But he reminded them also that it was not enough if they prayed. While everything ultimately depended on the will of God they must do their duty. In the 15-point constructive programme which he had set out before them was hidden the key to swaraj. If a large majority of them pursued this programme sincerely he was confident that their efforts would be crowned with success.

The Bombay Chronicle, 20-4-1945

362. TELEGRAM TO JAIRMADAS DOULATRAM

BOMBAY,
[On or before] April [20]¹, 1945

JAIRMADAS DOULATRAM
HYDERABAD (SIND)

GLAD ALL RELEASED. LOVE.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Gandhi left Bombay on this date.
363. LETTER TO PURUSHOTTAMDAS TANDON

Bombay,
[On or before April 20, 1945]¹

I have read the papers you have sent me about the Jaunpur prisoners.² I feel that they should be saved from the gallows. What I have written about the Ashti and Chimur prisoners' applies very well to this case. You must have seen that I have tried to sate all such prisoners. My hope is that such prisoners will not be hanged.

The Hindustan Times, 21-4-1945

364. LETTER TO MIAN IFTIKHAR-UD-DIN

April 20, 1945

Dear Mian Saheb,

I had your letter of 14th inst. I showed it to Gandhiji.

He is of opinion that under the circumstances you describe you should behave and act as if no restriction notice had ever been served on you.

With kind regards.

Yours sincerely,

Pyarelal

Mian Iftikhar-ud-din
21 Aikman Road
Lahore

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library.
Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

¹ The report carrying the item is dated April 20.
² Seven persons had been tried and sentenced to be hanged by the Jaunpur Sessions Court. On appeal, the Allahabad High Court acquitted one of the accused, reduced the sentence of a second to three years' imprisonment, and confirmed the sentences of the remaining five. An appeal for mercy had been sent to the Governor of U. P.
³ Vide "Statement to the Press", 31-3-1945.
365. LETTER TO CHIMANLAL N. SHAH

BOMBAY,
April 20, 1945

CHI. CHIMANLAL,

I have been thinking of you ever since I came here. Do not do anything against your will. Work done whole-heartedly gives contentment and peace. Sharda may stay or leave. It will be enough if we do our duty. Take care of your health, bodily and mental.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10639

366. LETTER TO SWAMI ANAND

BOMBAY,
April 20, 1945

CHI. SWAMI,

I have your letter. I am not unaware either of Chhotubhai’s work or of his sacrifice. You write that now his twenty-three-year old daughter is getting married in a simple and austere ceremony. My blessings are of course with them. May the bride and bridegroom live long and together render great service to the country.

I could not have a talk with Bapa. Now I am writing to him.

May the change of air prove fruitful to Chi. Kishorelal and Gomati. What shall I write about Durga? Will she ever be healthy? She certainly can be.

Blessings from
BAPU

SWAMI ANAND
C/o Jugal Kishore
P. O. Karambel R.L.
B. B. & C. I. RLY.

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
367. LETTER TO BHOGILAL

BOMBAY,
April 20, 1945

CHI. BHOGILAL,
Shevate gave me your letter. Your handwriting is neat. I like your views also. I am glad that you are conscious of whose son you are.
I shall not write more as I am getting ready to leave.
I wish the well-being of the entire family.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

368. LETTER TO MRIDULA SARABHAI

BIRLA HOUSE, BOMBAY,
April 20, 1945

CHI. MRIDULA,
I did write the preface for Tandon. Later there was a complaint about his behaviour at Swaraj Bhavan, and that dampened me somewhat. But I have not abandoned the thing. Now you will throw more light on the matter.
You will certainly come to Mahabaleshwar. Look after your health. It would be good if you do not work beyond your capacity.

Blessings from
BAPU

From the Gujarati original: C. W. 11237. Courtesy: Sarabhai Foundation
369. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA

April 20, 1945

CHI. KRISHNACHANDRA,

Here is Grimm’s Law\(^1\). It is a very good guide. You can frame a law for the languages of India with its help. Ask me if you cannot. It is a very interesting study. You will see from it that learning scripts is child’s play. I have received a chart which makes it very easy. There is hardly any original script. At the moment I am very busy. I can’t write more than this. In a few hours I have to go to the station.

_Blessings from_

BAPU

SHRI KRISHNACHANDRA
ASHRAM
SEVAGRAM

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

370. LETTER TO BALVANT SINHA

BIRLA HOUSE,

April 20, 1945

CHI. BALVANT SINHA,

Learn veterinary science. There is no harm in walking, but do not walk in the sun. Go in the morning. Stay in the city and leave after 6 o’clock. Do the reading and writing in the city. Hoshiari is getting along satisfactorily. You must live in amity with all. Talk little and work a lot. Now the time for departure is drawing near.

_Blessings from_

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 1959

\(^1\) So called after Jacob Grimm (1785-1863), a German grammarian, this postulates correspondence of consonants in the Germanic and other Indo-European languages.
371. LETTER TO GANESH RAM

BOMBAY,
April 20, 1945

BHAIGANESH RAM,

I have your letter. I advise you to follow the instructions of the secretary of the Ashram. I am not sure when I shall return.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4510

372. LETTER TO CHIMANLAL N. SHAH

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 21, 1945

CHICHIMANLAL,

We arrived here today. Manu is here. The other girls are in the Camp. Manu is better today, though she is very weak. I hope she will get well here. Premililabehn and Shantikumar have made all the arrangements. One may say it is fairly cool here at present, though the sun is very hot. But that is so even in Simla.

Ramprasad must have gone to Mirabehn. Someone must go there immediately. Her need is urgent.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10623

373. LETTER TO JAISUKHLAL GANDHI

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 21, 1945

CHI. JAISUKHLAL.

I am able to write to you only after coming here. Manu suffered quite a lot. Her nose bled all day long. She had fever also. Now it seems that her nose will not bleed and she will get no fever either. I have brought Manu here. Treatment and care were provided by Sushilaben. Sometimes I took courage in both hands and tried nature-cure remedies. And for two days a homoeopath came who also tried his hand. There is no cause for worry. Let me see what improvement she shows in this cool weather. Liquid paraffin helps her bowel movement. I may stay in this part of the country for two months.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./24

374. LETTER TO AMBALAL SARABHAI

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 21, 1945

SUJNYA BHAISHREE,

This is just to acknowledge your letter. I shall write out whatever is necessary on the basis of that. I have reached here today.

Yours,
M. K. GANDHI

SHETH AMBALAL SARABHAI
THE CALICO MILLS
P. O. BOX 12, AHMEDABAD

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Gandhiji’s nephew
375. LETTER TO MIRABEHN

Mahabaleshwar,
April 21, 1945

Chi. Mira,

I have your letter of April 14. I hope Ramprasad has arrived there or will be arriving soon. He is very intelligent. Do not detain him for more than two months. Give him as much rest as you can. If he needs more I will see to it. I have arrived here today. Can you read my Hindi? I am a guest of Premilabehn and Shantikumar. I have with me Pyarelal, Sushila, Dinshaw and Pyarelal’s two assistants. Manu is ill, so I have Kanu. He will go to Rajkot for a few days.

Blessings from
Bapu

Shri Mirabehn
Kisan Ashram, Muldaspur
P. O. Bahadarabad via Jwalapur
Near Hardwar, U. P.

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers, Courtesy: Pyarelal

376. LETTER TO AMRITA LAL CHATTERJEE

Mahabaleshwar,
April 21, 1945

Bhai Amritalal,

I could not write to you before coming to Mahabaleshwar. I got your letter only yesterday. I have written to Pushpa’s father.

I shall write about the women\(^1\) if I have some satisfactory evidence.

I have talked to Profulla Babu regarding the Kasturba Memorial Trust.\(^2\) It has not been finally decided whether the representatives should be province-wise or community-wise.

Blessings from
Bapu

From a photostat of the Hindi: C.W. 10400. Courtesy: Amrita Lal Chatterjee

---

\(^1\) A Gujarati girl who wanted to join Sevagram Ashram

\(^2\) The addressee had complained to Gandhiji that members of British armed forces had been committing outrages against women.

\(^3\) The addressee had drawn Gandhiji’s attention to the criticism that there was no Bengali representative on the Kasturba Memorial Trust.
377. LETTER TO ANAND T. HINGORANI

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 21, 1945

CHI. ANAND,

I have your letter. It is good you wrote to Jivanji. About your health I still feel it would have been better if you had stayed at Bhimavaram. Gokhale is there, and keeping well. Babaji is not there. He should have also stayed at Bhimavaram. Go there if you can. If there is peace in Karachi and your health is all right, then I have nothing to say.

I came here today.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Hindi. Courtesy: National Archives of India and Anand T. Hingorani

378. SPEECH AT PRAYER MEETING

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 21, 1945

Mahatma Gandhi, addressing the gathering at the end of prayers, asked them to leave him alone to have peace. He said:

I have not come here for the sake of pleasure but to gain strength and improve my health so that I may work harder.

He wanted them to contribute towards the Harijan Fund if they wanted removal of untouchability. Announcing that henceforth prayers would be held earlier in the day for the benefit of those who came from a distance, he said that those who attended prayers should come with a desire to participate in the prayers and not merely to have a look at him.

The Bombay Chronicle, 22-4-1945
379. TELEGRAM TO DEVDAS GANDHI

Express

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 22, 1945

DEVDAS GANDHI
CARE “TIMES”
NEW DELHI

ASK KRISHNADAS ABOUT MESSAGE ATTENDING MORNING POST WHEN LAXMI\(^1\) EXPECTED.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

380. TELEGRAM TO ASSOCIATED PRESS OF INDIA\(^2\)

Express

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 22, 1945

ASSOCIATED
BOMBAY

NEVER WROTE BHULABHAI DESAI AS REPORTED BY MORNING STANDARD ACCORDING TO YOU NOR THOUGHT EXCEPT AS PER MY SPEECH OF FIFTEENTH APRIL. PLEASE ADVERTISE DENIAL.

GANDHI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

381. MESSAGE TO K. RAMKRISHNA PILLAI\(^3\)

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 22, 1945

You are the best judges of what to do under the circumstances. You know also what I have done in similar situation. Beyond this I am unable to say anything.

_The Bombay Chronicle, 24-4-1945_

\(^1\) Wife of the addressee.
\(^2\) Vide “Speech at Prayer Meeting”, 15-4-1945.
\(^3\) The addressee had apprised Gandhiji of the latest political situation in Travancore and of the arrest of the President and two Secretaries of the State Congress.
382. LETTER TO CHHOTUBHAI SUTHAR

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 22, 1945

BHAI CHHOTUBHAI,

I have gone through what you had sent. It was Kakasaheb who made me interested in Tarak Mandal. My interest continues and so I have welcomed your activity. Abide by the pledge you have published in the journal. May the activities of your Mandal go on increasing. Keep on sending me your literature. I would have sent the subscription if I were not a beggar.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI CHHOTUBHAI SUTHAR
TARAK MANDAL
THAKKAR BUILDING
ANAND

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

383. LETTER TO SUMITRA GANDHI

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 22, 1945

CHI. SUMI,

I have your letter. You say you get the griping pain only once in a day, as if it was something you had to get and that not once but many times. The thing is that you should never get gripes. That you get them suggests indigestion. You should never get gripes. Drink plenty of water during the day. Drink large quantity of water immediately an getting up. Eat slowly and masticate the food well. You must have green vegetables and fruit. Keep on writing to me regularly. Do not be obstinate about studies.

Blessings from

BAPU

KUMARI SUMITRA GANDHI
BIRLA HIGH SCHOOL
PILANI

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
384. LETTER TO CHIMANLAL N. SHAH

Mahabaleshwar,
April 22, 1945

Chir. Chimanlal,

The two things mentioned in today’s letter which I have not scratched out deserve attention. Have you done anything about them?

It shows that all of us, new members and old, men, women and children, should learn Hindustani. The necessary literature for that purpose should be collected.

There is no truth as regards the bullocks. I think it is perfectly right about the dogs. Torturing is worse than killing.

In my absence, the administration must be improved.

Blessings from
Bapu

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10625

385. LETTER TO SHAKARIBEHN C. SHAH

April 22, 1945

Chir. Shakaribehn

You have the capacity to progress. You have the time. You should learn Gujarati and Hindustani in both the scripts. Marathi can also be learnt easily.

You must have first-rate health.

I have told Chimanlal the remedy. The more I think about it the more I realize its value and necessity. The only condition is that both of you should resolve to observe brahmacharya.

Blessings from
Bapu

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10624
386. LETTER TO MANIBEHN PATEL

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 22, 1945

CHI. MANI,

It is good you wrote. I am sure Father¹ will see about getting milk and other necessaries. There is therefore no cause at all for worry.

Your health should be fully restored. I have doubts as regards the wisdom of the fasts—total or partial—that you undertake every now and then. I have not discussed this point with you but that is how I feel. My purpose in writing this letter is to remind you that you are to come here as soon as you have done your work in Ahmedabad.

My blessings to everyone there. I trust the Doctor² is all right.

Blessings from

BAPU

SMT. MANIBEHN PATEL
C/o. Dr. Kanuga
Ellis Bridge
Ahmedabad, B. B. & C. I. Rly.

[From Gujarati]

Bapuna Patro-4: Manibehn Patelne, p. 132

387. LETTER TO GOPE GURBUXANI

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 22, 1945

CHI. GURBUXANI,

I have your letter. Keep in touch with Rajkumariji and do as she says. Vimala must have fully recovered by now. Let her write to me. Let her attend to the household work but in such a way that she continues to do public service. I consider it important that both of you should be well acquainted with the science of khadi and learn all the processes. We arrived here yesterday.

¹ Vallabhbhai Patel, imprisoned in Ahmednagar Fort at the time, had not been keeping good health.
² Dr. Kanuga

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 1314

388 LETTER TO AMRITA LAL CHATTERJEE

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 22, 1945

BHAII AMRITA LAL,

I forgot to mention one thing in my letter yesterday. I am aware of most of the complaints in Manu Bhimani’s letter. There is no substance in them. There are other things too. If she can send me some convincing proof I am willing to investigate.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: C.W. 10401. Courtesy: Amrita Lal Chatterjee

389. NOTE TO SHRIKRISHNADAS JAJU

[After April 22, 1945]¹

Appasaheb is able.² Induce him to accept the post if he comes. I have suggested only a general rule. Cancel your visit to Mahabaleshwar on the 17th. Write to Bapa.

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ The note was in reply to the addressee’s letter of April 22.
² The addressee had sought Gandhiji’s opinion whether Appasaheb Patwardhan would be the right man for the post of Acharya in the Khadi Yidyalaya, Ratnagiri.
390. TELEGRAM TO C. RAJAGOPALACHARI

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 23, 1945

RAJAJI
CARE “TIMES”
NEW DELHI

THANK GOD. LAXMI AND BABY HAVE MY BLESSINGS.¹
YOU CAN NOW COME. WEATHER NICE. LOVE ALL.

BAPU

391. LETTER TO RAMANLAL ENGINEER

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 23, 1945

BHAi RAMANLAL,

I have gone through your letter. Please let me know what harm is caused by the eating of lemons and tomatoes. I have taken these in large quantities and made others do so. I have noticed no harm.

I take plenty of fruit. I have observed no ill effects from it. Let me know why one should not take fruit. I would like to take less fruit and more vegetables because the latter are cheaper.

Have you tried pumpkin seeds? If that remedy should work, I would consider it very good and it is also cheap.

What can you say from your experience?

The impression Dr. Mehta has formed of you is that you have read a great deal but seem to have no experience.

I understand that you are busy translating Lindbar’s book. It would be better if you gained some experience either under Dr. Dinshaw or, if you can put up with the heat, at Sevagram, where you can stay even in my absence. If you have an extra copy of Lindbar, lend it to me to read.

¹ Lakshmi Gandhi had given birth to her youngest son, Gopalkrishna.

Blessings from
BAPU

RAMANLAL ENGINEER
RAMNIVAS BHARADAVADI
VARSOVA ROAD
ANDHERI

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

392. LETTER TO LILAVATI ASAR

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 23, 1945

CHI. LILI,

I have your letter. What can I do when you refuse to understand? When a person is superfluous he is certainly noticed. I cannot have you along as a patient. Why then should I have you at Mahabaleshwar? There was a reason for sending you to hospital. You say I am everything to you, yet you are unable to understand me. One would surely understand the person one regarded both as mother and father. One would not argue with him. Whatever he said would go straight to one’s heart. But what can I do when you remain untouched even after persuasion? What kind of a person are you that you hesitate to go to Shantikumar’s place? How much he does for you!

Wake up from your slumber!

Blessings from
BAPU

From the Gujarati original: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

1 Shantikumar N. Morarjee
393. LETTER TO TULSI MAHER

Mahabaleshwar,
April 23, 1945

Chi. Tulsi,

How is it that you again got fever? You had my blessings, you had khakhra from me. Will all this go in vain? You will never fall ill if you follow the rules of health. The most important rule is to utter Ramanama from the heart. The other rules are comparatively easier.

Blessings from
Bapu

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

394. LETTER TO ANANTRAM

Mahabaleshwar,
April 23, 1945

Chi. Anantram,

I hear that you have recovered and render considerable service to others. I am very happy to know this. May your life remain devoted to the service of others. Learn Urdu also and make progress in it.

Blessings from
Bapu

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
395. LETTER TO BARBARA

Mahabaleshwar,
April 23, 1945

Chi. Barbara, alias Vasanti,

Everyone is afraid for you. The reason is that having been born in a cool place, you may not be able to bear the heat. You will perhaps be able to put up with the heat if you lead a life in keeping with the climate. You are getting on well with your work.

Can you read and understand Hindustani?

Blessings from
Bapu

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

396. LETTER TO DEVENDRANATH DEVDHAR

Mahabaleshwar,
April 23, 1945

Chi. Devendra,

I am very happy to know that you have escaped death.\(^1\) The truth is that God has saved you. He wanted to save you and therefore the conditions became favourable. From your letters I find that yours is a life of service. And now since God has given you a new life be more service-minded and learn more for the sake of service and lead a simple life.

Blessings from
Bapu

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

\(^1\) Vide “Letter to Keshav Devdhar”, 19-4-1945.
397. LETTER TO GOPINATH BARDOLOI

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 23, 1945

Bhai Bardoloi,

I find your Hindustani very sweet. I do not find any difficulty in reading your handwriting. You must improve your Hindustani. You handwriting should also be better than Mahavir’s. Make an effort.

Blessings from
Bapu

SHRI GOPINATH BARDOLOI
GAUHATI, ASSAM

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

398. LETTER TO TARACHAND

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 23, 1945

Bhai Tarachandji,

I received your letter yesterday. I am forwarding it to Professor Shriman Narayan. I will write to you on hearing from him.

Tandonji saw me. I cannot say what support he will give us. He will certainly not become a member.

You must have read Dr. Haq’s criticism. He does not have faith in me. Tandonji of course does not want it.

Yours,
M. K. Gandhi

DR. TARACHAND
11 CHATHAM LINES
ALLAHABAD

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
399. LETTER TO SHRIMAN NARAYAN

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 23, 1945

CHI. SHRIMAN NARAYAN,

Enclosed is a letter¹ from Dr. Tara Chand. Read it and send me your opinion.

I feel that the expenditure is too much on the Western style.

If it is to be done in Wardha we have provision for everything. The printing can be done by the Navajivan Press itself.

I have no authority to do anything on my own. Don’t we have to place the matter before our executive?

Blessings from
BAPU

[From Hindi]
Panchven Putrako Bapuke Ashirvad, p. 305

400. LETTER TO DEV PRAKASH NAYYAR

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 23, 1945

CHI. DEV,

Prabhakar writes that you are losing weight and you get headaches. You must take more ghee. Have a mud-pack on the abdomen at night and sit in a tub filled with cold water for an hour as I used to do. Fill the water yourself. It will be very good if you find a solitary place near the well. You must keep a wet cloth on the head.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a microfilm of the Hindi. National Archives of India

¹ This is not available.
401. LETTER TO RAMESHWARI NEHRU

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 23, 1945

CHI. RAMESHWARI,

I have some respite here at any rate. So I am attending to the letters lying unanswered. One of the letters is from the Kauls. They have sent Rs. 1000 for the work Raja Saheb had mentioned in his letter to Dr. Mahmud. I do not now wish to issue an appeal about it. I do approve of such memorials, but the beginning should be made with the Punjab. I do not share Raja Saheb’s view that it is possible to collect one crore for the Hindu-Muslim work. Even so, a decent amount can be collected if an appeal is issued. You say that a large number of Muslims had attended the funeral. Will they do some work? Can you give your view? You are not the one to desist because Raja Saheb was your father. You are objective enough to consider the matter and give your opinion.

I shall be here for a month. Then Panchgani.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 8007. Also C.W. 3106. Courtesy: Rameshwari Nehru

402. LETTER TO PRABHAKAR PAREKH

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 23, 1945

CHI. PRABHAKAR,

Consult Aryanayakumji or Ashabehn about the hair of the Chimur children. Lice in the hair cannot be tolerated. Cut the hair of girls and even grown-up women if they are agreeable. It will save a lot of time. It does not spoil the face at all. After a while, if one wants, hair can be grown again.

You have acted with great alertness with regard to Devendra. Your health should improve if you do your own massage.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 9025. Also C.W. 9149. Courtesy: Prabhalcar Parekh 403. LETTER TO MADALASA

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 23, 1945

CHI. MADALASA,
How are you? Do you take sufficient care of your health?

Blessings from
BAPU

[From Gujarati]
Panchven Putrako Bapuke Ashirvad, p. 325

404. A NOTE

April 24, 1945

Write to this gentleman1 that my reply was in response to a question from a Parsi gentleman.

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

405. LETTER TO DR. ANAND KUMARI BAMLE

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 24, 1945

CHI. ANAND KUMARI,
Your letter has not impressed me much. Is the handwriting yours? Shall I send the letter to Shastriji?

Blessings from
M. K. GANDHI

ANAND KUMARI BAMLE
C/O. D. D. SUD
PURANI BASTI
JAIPUR

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 D. Raghavachandrayya Sathasastri who had asked Gandhiji what had prompted him to write the article “Caste System—An Anachronism”. Vide “Answers to Questions”, 16-4-1945.
406. LETTER TO DEVENDRA SINGH

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 24, 1945

Bhai Devendra Singh,

I have your letter. Write to me who the manager of the goshala is and also other details. I shall then write to him.

Yours,

M. K. Gandhiji

Vaidraj Devendra Singh
Ayurvedic Aushadhalaya
Gajadhar Ganj
Buxer, E. I. Rly.

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

407. LETTER TO A. VIRESHWAR RAO

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 24, 1945

Bhai Vireshwar Rao,

I have your letter. What Mridulabehn has written is correct. There may be a difference of opinion about emphasizing sentences and words. Have patience. Why do you write to me in English?

Blessings from

M. K. Gandhiji

Shri A. Vireshwar Rao
C/o Metaphysician Sevasadan
Podur’s Building
Tanuku, M. & S. M. Rly.

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
408. LETTER TO GHANSHYAM MIRCHANDANI

MAHABALESWAR,

[Before April 25, 1945]

In your place I would not submit even if I were to die. But there is no one law for everyone. You should act solely according to your capacity. In any event seeing that you did not accept the notice, you should inform the authorities that you would not accept restrictions save of your own conscience and that you fully believed in non-violence and truth.

The Bombay Chronicle, 26-4-1945

409. INTERVIEW TO RALPH CONISTON

[Before April 25, 1945]

RALPH CONISTON: Why do you feel so sceptical about the possibility of a lasting peace emerging from the defeat of the Axis Powers?

GANDHIJI: The reason is patent. Violence is bound sooner or later to exhaust itself but peace cannot issue out of such exhaustion. I am uttering God’s truth when I say that unless there is a return to sanity, violent people will be swept off the face of the earth. . . . Those who have their hands dyed deep in blood cannot build a non-violent order for the world.

R. C. While the representatives of the big powers who would be meeting at San Francisco were what they were, the people at large, after the experience of the horrors of war, would force the hands of their respective Governments.

G. I know the European mind well enough to know that when it has to choose between abstract justice and self-interest, it will plump for the latter. The man in the street even in America does not think much for himself. He will put faith in what Roosevelt says. Roosevelt gives him market, credit and all that. Similarly Churchill can say to the English working class that he has kept the Empire intact and

1 The news item carrying the letter is dated Karachi, April 25.
2 The addressee had sought Gandhi’s advice in regard to the restraint order served upon him by the Sind Government.
3 Of the Colliers Weekly
4 From the contents it is obvious that this discussion took place before the San Francisco Conference which opened on April 25, 1945.
preserved for them the foreign markets. The people will, as they do, follow him.

R. C. So, you don’t think that the average man in Europe or America cares much for the high ideals for which the war is professed to be fought?

G. I am afraid, I do not. If you hold the contrary view, I shall honour you for your belief but I cannot share it.

R. C. Then, you don’t think the Big Five or the Big Three can guarantee peace?

G. I am positive. If they are so arrogant as to think that they can have lasting peace while the exploitation of the coloured and the so-called backward races goes on, they are living in a fool’s paradise.

R. C. You think they will fall out among themselves before long?

G. There you are stealing my language. The quarrel with Russia has already started. It is only a question when the other two—England and America—will start quarreling with each other. Maybe, pure self-interest will dictate a wiser course and those who will be meeting at San Francisco will say: ‘Let us not fall out over a fallen carcass.’ The man in the street will gain nothing by it. Freedom of India along non-violent lines, on the other hand, will mean the biggest thing for the exploited races of the earth. I am, therefore, trying to concentrate on it. If India acts on the square when her turn comes, it will not dictate terms at the Peace Conference but peace and freedom will descend upon it, not as a terrifying torrent, but as ‘gentle rain from heaven’. Liberty won non-violently will belong to the least. That is why I swear by non-violence. Only when the least can say, ‘I have got my liberty’ have I got mine.

The conversation then turned on the issue of the treatment of the aggressor nations after the war.

G. As a non-violent man, I do not believe in the punishment of individuals, much less can I stomach the punishment of a whole nation.

R. C. What about the war criminals?

G. What is a war criminal? Was not war itself a crime against God and humanity and, therefore, were not all those who sanctioned, engineered, and conducted wars, war criminals? War criminals are not confined to the Axis Powers alone. Roosevelt and Churchill are no less war criminals than Hitler and Mussolini.

Hitler was “Great Britain’s sin”. Hitler is only an answer to British imperialism, and this I say in spite of the fact that I hate Hitlerism and its anti-Semitism. England, America and Russia have all of them got their hands dyed more or less red—not merely Germany and Japan. The Japanese have only proved themselves to be apt pupils of the West. They have learnt at the feet of the West and beaten it at its own game.

R. c. What would you see accomplished at San Francisco?

G. Parity among all nations—the strongest and the weakest—the strong should be the servants of the weak not their masters or exploiters.

R. c. Is not this too idealistic?

Maybe. But you asked me what I would like to see accomplished. It is my belief that human nature is ever working upward. I can, therefore, never take a pessimistic view of the future of human nature. If the Big Five say, ‘We shall hold on to what we have’, the result will be a terrible catastrophe and then Heaven help the world and the Big Five. There will be another and bloodier war and another San Francisco.

R. c. Would the results of the second San Francisco be any better than that of the first?

G. I hope so. They will be saner then. They will have gained their balance somewhat after their third experience.

R. c. Would you not go to the West to teach them the art of peace?

G. In the second World War some British pacifists, including Dick Sheppard and Maude Royden had written to me asking me to point the way. My reply in substance was: Even if one of you can become true in the right sense of the word, that one man will be able to inculcate non-violence among the European folk. I cannot today save Europe, however much I may like to. I know Europe and America. If I go there I shall be like a stranger. Probably I shall be lionized but that is all. I shall not be able to present to them the science of peace in language they can understand. But they will understand if I can make good my non-violence in India. I shall then speak through India. I, therefore, declined to accept the invitations from America and Europe. My answer would be the same today.

R. c. If you were at San Francisco, what would you be advocating there?

G. If I knew I would tell you but I am made differently. When I face a situation, the solution comes to me. I am not a man who sits down and thinks out problems syllogistically. I am a man of action. I react to a situation intuitively. Logic comes afterwards, it does not precede the event. The moment I am at the Peace Conference, I know the right word will come. But not beforehand. This much, however, I can say that whatever I say there will be in terms of peace, not war.

R. c. What kind of world organization would promote an enduring peace or preserve it?

G. Only an organization based predominantly on truth and non-violence.

R. c. With the present imperfect condition of the world and human nature, what means would in your opinion promote peace?

G. Nearest approach to the condition laid down in my answer to the previous question.

R. c. Would you have a world government?

G. Yes. I claim to be a practical idealist. I believe in compromise so long as it does not involve the sacrifice of principles. I may not get a world government that I want just now but if it is a government that would just touch my ideal, I would accept it as a compromise. Therefore, although I am not enamoured of a world federation, I shall be prepared to accept it if it is built on an essentially non-violent basis.

R. c. If the nations of the world were to consider world government as a means for preserving peace and promoting the welfare of all peoples, would you advocate the abandonment of India’s aspiration for independence ill order to join in the general plan?

G. If you will carefully go through the much abused Congress resolution of August 1942, you will discover that independence is necessary for India becoming an efficient partner in any scheme for the preservation of lasting peace in the world.

410. A THOUGHT FOR THE DAY

January 1, 1945

Thus, though we find the young and the old, the rich and the poor, all passing away before our very eyes, we do not want to sit in peace; rather for the sake of living a few days more, we try everything except Rama.

January 2, 1945

How nice it would be if having realized this truth, we relied on Rama, put up with whatever ailments came our way and made our lives peaceful.

January 3, 1945

We saw the corporeal Mahadev in his physical body and in his writings—which was one and the same thing. The Mahadev, who transcends the body is, however, all-pervading. He can be recognized by his virtues which we can all share alike. No one can have a greater or smaller share.

January 4, 1945

Are not birth and death perhaps the two sides of the same coin? You find death on the one side and birth on the other. Why should this give rise to sorrow or joy?

January 5, 1945

If this be true of birth and death as it certainly is, then why should we fear death even in the slightest degree or sorrow over it and rejoice in a birth? Every man should ask himself this question.

January 6, 1945

The world is full of opposites. There is sorrow behind happiness, and happiness behind sorrow. Where there is sunshine, there is also shadow; where there is light, there is also darkness; where there is birth, there is also death. Non-attachment lies in remaining unaffected.

1 Gandhiji started writing “A Thought for the Day” for Anand T. Hingorani at the latter’s request on November 20, 1944, and continued the practice for about two years. The thoughts for the period covered by this volume are reproduced as a single item under the last date, April 24, 1945. The thoughts were originally written in Hindi. The translation by Anand T. Hingorani is reproduced here with slight alteration.

2 Mahadev Desai
by these opposites. The way to triumph over them is not to efface then, but to rise above them and be completely free from attachment.

January 7, 1945

The foregoing shows that the key to happiness lies in the worship of Truth, which is the giver of all things.

January 8, 1945

How, then, shall we worship truth? Who knows the truth? The reference here is to relative truth, that which appears to us as truth.
Experience will show that truth, even in this limited sense, is very hard indeed to observe.

January 9, 1945

Why does a person, knowing what is truth, hesitate to utter it? Is he ashamed? Ashamed of whom? Whether high or low, what matters it? The fact is that habit consumes us all. Let us reflect over this and rid ourselves of the bad habit.

January 10, 1945

Unless we are freed from this habit, we cannot tread the path of truth. Indeed, we must sacrifice all at the altar of truth. We wish to appear not as we are but as very much better. How nice it would be for us, if we are lowly, to appear lowly—but if we wish to rise, to act nobly and think nobly. If that be not possible, then let us appear lowly. Then some day we shall attain the desired height.

January 11, 1945

The more experience I gather, the more I realize that man himself is the cause of his happiness as well as his misery.

January 12, 1945

That being so, why is man happy or miserable?

January 13, 1945

The fact is that man does not like to give any thought to such things; so he persuades himself to believe that he has no time to spare for such reflection. On.

January 14, 1945

If we wish to live a true life, we must give up our mental laziness and do some basic thinking. Our life will thereby become very simple.

January 15, 1945

A seer has called us wayfarers. And it is true. We are here for only a few days. Thereafter we do not die, but only go home. What a beautiful and true thought!

January 16, 1945

Hundreds of tons of earth and stone have to be excavated by means of hard labour before even one diamond is discovered. Do we give even a fraction of this labour to the removal of the rubble of untruth and the search for the diamond of Truth?

January 17, 1945

Nothing is ever achieved without toil, that is without tapa
d. How, then, can self-purification be possible without it?

January 18, 1945

If all our time belongs to God, how can we afford to waste even a single moment? Likewise, if we belong to God, why should we devote even a part of our being to the pursuit of the vain pleasures of life?

January 19, 1945

Selfless action is a source of strength, for such action means the worship of God.

January 20, 1945

Jamshed Mehta has sent me one of the prayers of St. Francis of Assissi, a part of which reads: “O Divine Master! It is in giving that we receive, and it is in dying that we are born to eternal life.”

January 21, 1945

Verily, the land belongs to him who labours on it.

January 22, 1945

He who is truly clean within, cannot remain unclean without.

January 23, 1945

A right cause never fails; A true word never hurts in the end.

January 24, 1945

A word uttered from a pure heart goes never vain.

January 25, 1945

If idleness gives us pain, we will not remain idle. Similarly, if impurity causes us unhappiness, we will not be or stay impure.

Independence Day, January 26, 1945

Work must come first, and then, if possible, wages

1 Penance commensurate with the amount of work done. To work in this spirit is to serve God. But if the wages are demanded first, that would be service to Satan.

January 27, 1945

It is well not to yield to desire. Once we give in restraint becomes difficult if not impossible.

January 28, 1945

He who is unable to rule over himself can never really succeed in ruling over others.

January 29, 1945

In order to know himself, man must come out of his shell and view himself dispassionately.

January 30, 1945

No man is worthless who lightens anyone’s burden even the least bit.

January 31, 1945

Our happiness and peace of mind lie in our doing what we regard as right and proper, not in doing what others say or do.

February 1, 1945

Moral strength does accrue from the reading of scriptures; but real freedom cannot be attained without enlightenment.

February 2, 1945

To seek a favour is to barter away one’s freedom.

February 3, 1945

The greatness of a person lies in his heart, not in his head, that is, intellect.

February 4, 1945

Religion is that which comprehends all. In other words, religion permeates life in all its aspects and at all times.

February 5, 1945

Religion is not something apart from life. Life itself should be regarded as religion. Life divorced from religion is not human life, it is animal life.

February 6, 1945

Those who have the greatest measure of self-control or are most absorbed in work, speak the least. Speech and action go ill together.
Look at Nature. She is continuously in action, never resting for a single moment, and is yet silent.

February 7, 1945

He who thinks of the suffering humanity, will not think of himself. Where has he the time?

February 8, 1945

A man will see and hear only that which he wishes to see and hear. A gardener will see only the flowers in a garden, whilst a philosopher will be oblivious of them. Perhaps he will not even notice whether he is inside the garden or outside!

February 9, 1945

We can see and even rectify our shortcomings through those we live with. If we maintain the highest standard of purity in our everyday life, we can hope to render real service.

February 10, 1945

Those who take the vow of Truth should practise silence. Nevertheless, we find that many a seeker after Truth is given to much talking, the obvious reason being force of habit. Let us give up this habit.

February 11, 1945

How shall we remember the dear departed? It is my firm belief that they do not die; it is only their bodies that perish. Their memory has to be kept alive by imbibing their virtues as far as we can, by taking up their good work and promoting it to the best of our ability. Flowers are placed on their samadhis to strengthen such remembrance. But to remain content with mere flower-offering would be idol-worship.

February 12, 1945

How wrong it is to ask others to be clean when we ourselves remain unclean!

February 13, 1945

The only difference between man and man all the world over is one of degree, and not of kind, even as there is between trees of the same species. Why then anger, envy or discrimination?

February 14, 1945

Let a man not make a good resolution at all; but if he makes one after due deliberation, let him never abandon it.
February 15, 1945

Man’s capacity for self-deception is immeasurably greater than that for deceiving others. Every sensible person will testify to this.

February 16, 1945

Credit lies in restraining one’s anger against one’s own kith and kin. In the case of strangers, one is compelled to keep one’s temper under control. What merit can there be in that?

February 17, 1945

Life means not revelry—eating, drinking and making merry but praising God, i.e., rendering true service to humanity.

February 18, 1945

What distinguishes man from animals? Comprehensive thinking on this question will solve a lot of our problems.

February 19, 1945

When man oversteps his limits, works or even thinks beyond his capacity, he is likely to be assailed by illness and anger. Such haste is waste and can be harmful too.

February 20, 1945

In this morning’s bhajan it was said: “God never forgets us; it is we who forget Him. And that is our misery.”

February 21, 1945

When God does not wish it, neither wealth nor parents, nor the best of physicians, will save us. What, then, should we do?

February 22, 1945

Have we any right to pray so long as we have not purged ourselves of our impurities?

February 23, 1945

A man may use a rosary because it is blessed by a saint or made of sacred tulsi, sandalwood or rudraksha beads. But if the user looks upon the rosary as all, he had better throw it away. If, however, the rosary draws him nearer to God and makes him alive to the performance of his duties, he may certainly use it regularly.

February 24, 1945

We exist, because God is. This shows that man, or any living being, is part of the Divine.

1 Basil
February 25, 1945

There is a sentence in the New Testament: Let there be no care in their heart, nor fear of aught.¹ This is for those who have faith in God.

February 26, 1945

The same New Testament tells us that if God leads us into temptation, He also delivers us from evil.² This is applicable only to those who do not, of their own accord, succumb to temptation.

February 27, 1945

It is not as if Tulsidas was the only one who had sung the glory of the Lord’s name. I find the same in the Bible as well. In Romans, X. 13, it is said: “For whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved.”

February 28, 1945

Sin stays not hid. It is writ large on the face of man. We do not fully know that book but the thing is plain.

March 1, 1945

These days I have been reading verses from the Bible. Today I find the following: “And all things, whatever ye shall ask in prayer, believing, ye shall receive.”³

March 2, 1945

“God is the Help of the helpless.” The same idea is also expressed in Psalms, XXXIV. 18, which says: “The Lord is nigh unto them that are of a broken heart; and seventh such as be of a contrite spirit.”

March 3, 1945

Isaiah, XLI. 10 has: “Fear thou not; for I am with thee.”

March 4, 1945

“Trust ye in the Lord for ever: for in the Lord Jehovah is everlasting strength.” Isaiah, XXVI. 4.

March 5, 1945

Just as it is in the nature of water to flow downward, so also does vice drags man downward and is, therefore, undoubtedly the easy way. Virtue takes a man upward and so appears to be rather difficult.

¹ Philippians, iv. 6
² St. Matthew, vi. 13
³ St. Matthew, xxi. 22
March 6, 1945

“My grace is sufficient for thee: for my strength is made perfect in weakness.” II Corinthians, XII. 9.

March 7, 1945

“God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble.” Psalms, XLVI. 1.

March 8, 1945

God’s word is: “I am, was and ever shall be, I am everywhere and in everything.” Knowing this, we turn away from God, seek refuge in that which is perishable and imperfect, and thus make ourselves miserable. Can there be anything more amazing?

March 9, 1945

We must not draw distinctions between the East and the West. Everything must be judged on its merits. Thus alone can we do proper justice to things.

March 10, 1945

Why is there good and evil, happiness and misery? God is and yet He is not an individual. He is the Law as well as the Law-giver. Therefore it follows that man is what his actions make of him. He rises by good actions, and falls by evil ones.

March 11, 1945

True service of society is that whereby society, that is, all its members, are uplifted. Only by studying a particular society will it be possible to say how it can be raised.

March 12, 1945

Man knows very well that when death is near, there is no solace but God, yet hesitates to utter His name! Why?

March 13, 1945

There is only one way of achieving independence through non-violence: by dying we live, by killing never.

March 14, 1945

How shall we die? By committing suicide? Never. To hold ourselves in readiness to die, when there is occasion for it, is to die only to live for ever.

March 15, 1945

There is nothing that cannot be attained by patience and equanimity. The truth of this can be verified in one’s daily
March 16, 1945

Between destiny and human endeavour there is an incessant struggle. Let us continue to endeavour and leave the result to God.

March 17, 1945

Let us not leave everything to destiny, nor be vain about our endeavour. Destiny will take its own course. We should only see where we can intervene or where it is our duty to do so, whatever be the result.

March 18, 1945

The pity is that even while knowing what our duty is, we fail to perform it! For this, let every man answer to himself.

March 19, 1945

Every moment of my life I realize that silence is the best speech. If you must speak, speak as little as possible. Avoid using two words if one suffices.

March 20, 1945

When little things upset us, let us understand that there is attachment lurking somewhere. We should find it and banish it. It is a delusion to think that we remain upright in big things, for there we are under compulsion. Surely, that cannot pass for uprightness.

March 21, 1945

On such occasions the verse to remember is: “Contacts of the senses with their objects come and go. Endure them.”

March 22, 1945

Whatever one does, one must do well or not at all. The truth of this one observes every day. Today it was especially borne in upon me. It was Ba’s death anniversary, and so there was the usual Gita recitation. But there was no life in it.

March 23, 1945

A wrong ceases to be a wrong only when it is righted. If suppressed, it erupts like a boil and assumes a dangerous form.

March 24, 1945

Man rises by realizing the true nature of the Self, by meditating

\[1\] Bhagavad Gita, II. 14
thereon and by following its virtues. A contrary course of action leads to his downfall.

March 25, 1945

What is patience? Shankaracharya says: “Sit by the seashore and take one drop of water on a blade of grass. If you have enough patience, and there is a place near by wherein that drop can be stored, you may in time empty the ocean of all its water.” This is an illustration of almost perfect patience.

March 26, 1945

He who has not in him infinite patience cannot observe non-violence.

March 27, 1945

What is the difference between a snake and a human being? Apparently a snake crawls on its belly, while man walks erect on his feet. Things are, however, not what they seem to be. For what about the man who mentally crawls on his belly?

March 28, 1945

Every day I see the importance of silence. It is good for all, but for him who is deeply absorbed in work, silence is indeed golden.

March 29, 1945

“The hasty are ruffled; the slow and steady have composure.” One sees the truth of this every moment.

March 30, 1945

How dangerous it is to fall out of routine? Since coming to Bombay, I have failed to write daily. (Written on 3-4-1945.)

March 31, 1945

Nothing can work without rules. The entire solar system would go to pieces if there were even a momentary breach of the rules governing it. (Written on 3-4-1945.)

April 1, 1945

This lesson is for all alike, big and small. We must learn it and act accordingly, or else die a living death.

(Written on 3-4-1945.)

April 2, 1945

It is sinful to multiply wants unnecessarily.

(Written on 3-4-1945.)
April 3, 1945

_Hartal_ (general strike) is being observed today for saving the lives of those who have been condemned to the gallows. If the day’s programme is carried out with understanding, we shall have taken a big stride forward on the path of non-violence.

April 4, 1945

Man knows what his duty is, yet does not do what he knows he ought to. Why is that so?

April 5, 1945

We shall be undone if we succumb to the psychological environment around us. The situation regarding the Chimur prisoners keeps changing from day to day. Let us do our duty and remain detached.

April 6, 1945

What a high degree of non-violence is needed to bear patiently with a person who is bent on misunderstanding even the simplest thing!

April 7, 1945

I strive hard to preserve my physical body. Do I take the same pains to know my soul?

April 8, 1945

When there is misunderstanding I become angry, I weep, I laugh, I feel pity. But instead of this, is it not my duty to keep calm and try to remove the misunderstanding.

April 9, 1945

What shall we believe? Praise of us or censure of us? Both may be undeserved. Then, shall we be our own judges? Here too there is room enough for error. God alone knows what we are, but He does not tell us. It is, therefore, best neither to seek to know nor believe anything about ourselves. We are what we are. Nothing is to be gained by knowing or believing what we are. Performance of duty is the only thing that really matters.

April 10, 1945

Blind is not he who has lost his eyes, but he who hides his shortcomings.

April 11, 1945

Man’s serenity of mind can be tested only in the world of men, not on the solitary heights of the Himalayas.

April 12, 1945

An ideal is one thing; living up to it is quite another.

(Written on 15-4-1945.)

April 13, 1945

A man without an ideal is like a ship without a rudder.

(Written on 15-4-1945.)

April 14, 1945

I may be said to have an ideal only when I put forth an effort to realize it.

(Written on 15-4-1945.)

April 15, 1945

We may rest content with trying, provided we make the right effort and to the best of our ability. The result does not depend on the effort alone. There are other factors over which we have no control.

April 16, 1945

What shall be called the right effort? One test is that very often it yields the desired result. So the rightness is judged by the result. But experience shows that this is not always the case. Right effort is that in which there is deep conviction about the correctness of the means employed, so much so that, even in the face of contrary results, the means do not change, nor does the effort vary or slacken.

April 17, 1945

What shall be called “the best of our ability”? That effort in which we spend all our energy without stint. Success generally attends such pure effort.

April 18, 1945

Man reaches decisions on the strength of insignificant evidence and shapes his course of action accordingly. Where such is the case, it is better not to reach a decision as far as possible and to be indifferent as regards the results. But should it become a duty to take a decision, it should be taken with the greatest possible care and should be fearlessly implemented.

April 19, 1945

An important matter loses importance if irrelevant. A relevant thing, though small, is of the highest importance.
April 20, 1945

Man’s avarice reaches up to the highest heavens and down to the lowest regions of the earth. Hence, it should be controlled.

Mahabaleshwar,
April 21, 1945

Man’s joy knows no bounds when he obtains something beyond his hopes.

April 22, 1945

There is surely something wrong with a person who is supposed to be highly spiritual and yet is always physically ailing.

April 23, 1945

If we think how enormous is the amount of work we have to do, we shall panic and accomplish nothing. Whereas, if we coolly get to grips with it, we shall find that even a mountain of work becomes easier day by day and is ultimately completed.

April 24, 1945

We do not wish to see our own faults, but take delight in perceiving the faults of others. Much unhappiness arises from this habit.

A Thought for the Day, pp. 43-156

411. TELEGRAM TO N. G. RANGA

Mahabaleshwar,
April 25, 1945

Prof. Ranga
Ponnur
Your work best message.²

Bapu

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 An economist; President, All-India Kisan Sabha and Andhra Provincial Congress Committee; Member, Congress Parliamentary Party at the Centre; Founder-President, Swatantra Party
2 The addressee had asked for a message on the occasion of inauguration of training for rural work in peasants’ institute which was opened by Gandhiji in 1933.
412. TELEGRAM TO JAIRMADAS DOULATRAM

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 25, 1945

JAIRAMDA S DOULATRAM
HYDERABAD (SIND)

EXPECT YOU HERE. SYMPATHY CHIMANDAS. LOVE.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

413. TELEGRAM TO SINANA KRPALANI

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 25, 1945

SINANA KRPALANI
CARE INDIA CLUB
PORT OF SPAIN (TRINIDAS, WEST INDIES)

HOPE DOMICILED INDIANS PROVE WORTHY OF MOTHERLAND.

GANDHI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

414. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 25, 1945

CHI MUNN ALAL,
I got your postcard of the 14th only today. I think Ram-prasad must have left by now. You need not, therefore, go. Take charge of the kitchen yourself. Put up cheerfully with everybody’s temperament. In that lies your victory. Servants are not servants but our brothers and sisters. It is a virtue, not a sin, to run the kitchen with their help. But one should know how to do that. The servants should be treated as one’s brothers and sisters.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G. N. 8457. Also C.W. 5574. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

1To help Mirabehn; vide “Letter to Mirabehn”, 7-5-1945.
415. LETTER TO CHIMANLAL N. SHAH

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 25, 1945

CHI. CHI MANLAL,
I felt sad after reading your letter. I am returning it to you. Remind me about it when I return there. I cannot do anything by writing. You are weak, but if you have gained sufficient strength, write to Shri Ramprasad. See what reply he gives. Improve your health. I am writing to Munnalal. If he cannot have peace of mind there, let him come here.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10626

416. LETTER TO AKBAR CHAWDA

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 25, 1945

CHI. AKBAR,
I got your letter.
I entirely agree with you about liquor. Your job there is a difficult one, but you have undertaken it knowingly. How can you give it up now, especially when you are confronted with obstacles? I intend to stay here up to the end of May and after that one month in Panchgani. Whether or not I will be able to do so, rests with God. I feel better.

I should be happy if Vasumati¹ stayed on there. It will be good if she settles down somewhere.

What Badshah Khan² says is partially true. You went to Samau of your own accord, though it is true that I approved of your decision.

I would also approve of your going to the Frontier Province—probably, even more—but only on condition that you desired to go there. Now I would not even induce you. You yourself, therefore, should write to Badshah Khan and tell him that you would be betraying your dharma, if you were to leave Samau. If you had not settled down to work there, you would have gone to the Frontier Province. If you could train somebody for the Samau work, I should certainly like you to go to the Frontier Province. Just now, as you know, I am trying to persuade Zohra' to Join you.

¹ Vasumati Pandit
² Abdul Ghaffar Khan

Write another letter to Badshah Khan. One to Vasumati and one to him.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 3237

417. LETTER TO SITARAM P. PATWARDHAN

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 25, 1945

BHA I APP A.

It is good you have sent an account of the satyagraha. Harijan brethren seem to have displayed considerable forbearance and courage. I see the conditions were favourable. That the people’s support too was forthcoming is a good sign. Much remains to be done to make this success an enduring one. In order to retain public support Harijan men and women will have to go a long way in purity and cleanliness. It is not right to argue that others are not pure and clean. Harijan brethren have to go against the current and should therefore develop the necessary strength.

Make use of this in whatever way you like, so that I need not write again.

Blessings from

BAPU

SADHAKASHRAM
KANAKAVALI P. O.
RATNAGIRI DISTRICT

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Addressee’s wife
418. LETTER TO MAGANBHAI P. DESAI

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 25, 1945

CHI. MAGANBHAI,

I have your letter. You place reliance on me which, at the present moment, is not right. One does not even know whether or not I shall recover. I hope to live for 125 years but there are many obstacles in the way. Even supposing I survived, it seems to me I shall only be an adviser. It is true that if the Congress comes into power, I will suggest changes in the field of education. However, your duty is clear. Your work is to persuade your colleagues and go ahead. That is why I sent Narahari’s letter to you. You will have to be cautious, if he holds a different view. The essence of democracy is that one must move taking along one’s colleagues. My help will be limited to using my influence. I can render that help only if I am in Ahmedabad and listen to all the discussions. Sitting here I can only write letters such as this.

Do you realize my limitations? Keep on writing to me as long as you do not.

Blessings from
BAPU

MAGANBHAI DESAI
GUJARAT VIDYAPITH, AHMEDABAD

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

419. LETTER TO SAROJINI

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 25, 1945

SISTER SAROJINI,

I have your letter. I advise you to do what Chimanlalji says. It will not be proper for me to say anything from here. Keep fit, keep calm and mix with others as sugar mixes with milk.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Narahari D. Parikh’s
2 She had come from Orissa to stay for a few months in the Sevagram Ashram.
420. LETTER TO DEV

Mahabaleshwar, April 25, 1945

Chi. Dev,

It is good that you wrote the essay for Aryanayakamji. You must have received my previous letter. The couple\(\textsuperscript{1}\) want to send you to Punjab. Go, if you have confidence, but on condition that you will go there only for a shorttime and all the expenses will be borne by Punjab. I am of the opinion that it will not be proper for you to go, if the central office has to bear the expenses. You may show this letter to Aryanayakamji and Ashadevi. You must keep good health.

Blessings from
Bapu

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

421. LETTER TO HOSHIARI

Mahabaleshwar, April 25, 1945

Chi. Hoshiari\(\textsuperscript{2}\),

Why do you say that I did not write to you? I have written to you not one but two letters. I do not do so always. Your handwriting is very good. Never mind if the letters are large.

You are trying to keep Father happy. You are sending for the children. Now calm down. Do your work. The children should be arriving any day.

Balvantsinha will bring them.

Blessings from
Bapu

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

\(\textsuperscript{1}\) E. W. Aryanayakam, Secretary, Hindustani Talimi Sangh, and Ashadevi Aryanayakam

\(\textsuperscript{2}\)Balvantsinha’s niece
422. LETTER TO VAMANRAO JOSHI

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 25, 1945

BHA VAMANRAO JOSHI,

I have your very neat and cheerful letter. I am very happy that you are keeping good health.

Blessings from
BAPU

[PS.]
For the time being I am here.

VIR VAMANRAO JOSHI
AMRAOTI, BERAI

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

423. LETTER TO RAIHANA TYABJI

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 25, 1945

MY DEAR RAIHANA,

I was very happy to receive your letter. You are right. You yourself say in your letter that I cannot remove you from the position of a trustee. You know our duty, don’t you? Whatever we may have to say about anyone, we should let them know first. Hence even if you yourself do not say anything to Mridulabehn, you should let me show your letter to her. That will make your work and mine easier. Most of your grievances have been redressed. The rest, too, will be set right. You are right that we should not act in haste.

You believe in Homoeopathy and have also found a good doctor. Why do you still continue to be unwell? Give my regards to Mother. Is she well?

Blessings to you and Saroj from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: S.N. 9678

1 Of Kasturba Gandhi National Memorial Trust
2 Mridula Sarabhai, Organizing Secretary of Kasturba Gandhi National Memorial Trust; vide “Letter to Mridula Sarabhai”, 29-4-1945.
3 Amina Tyabji
4 Saroj Nanavati
424. A NOTE

[After April 25, 1945]

Write to the non-spinners that they must spin at least as much as one anna in a rupee. Only those who wear khadi to oblige others may not do so. One should wear khadi realizing that it is one’s dharma to do so.

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

425. LETTER TO M. S. KELKAR

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 26, 1945

DEAR DR. ICE².

I have your letter. Please let me know how much food and distilled water . . . would cost per leper. Why not remove the cases to be treated to Dattapur? That would be the least costly. And you and I would know what success would attend your effort. Whatever you do should be done with the Manager’s consent and approval. Shastriji³ himself will perhaps be the most willing patient if you will experiment upon him.

As to Balkrishna⁴, Dr. Sushila⁵ says, his heart is not weak and he has no T. B. now. All he needs is proper digestion and good food. The latter he has. He has gained much weight through the vaid’s treatment. Nevertheless you may talk to him and he can write to me what he would like to do.⁶ What about Chimanlal himself?

Love.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ The note is written on an envelope bearing the postmark “April 25, 1945”.
² Gandhiji gave this name on account of the addressee’s faith in ice treatment.
³ Parachure Shastri, a leprosy patient. He came to Ashram in 1939 and stayed there till his death on September 5, 1945.
⁴ Balkrishna Bhave
⁵ Dr. Sushila Nayyar
⁶ Vide also p. 9.
426. LETTER TO M. S. KELKAR

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 26, 1945

DEAR DR. ICE¹.

Why are you so stingy about your paper? I like economy but dislike stinginess. You crowd in your words. You must leave some space at the top and on the sides.

Dr. Sushila Nayyar says Hiralakshmi had no pleurisy. Her disease is simply T.B.

It is a great pity if the distilling machine has gone bad. I hope it is capable of being repaired. What about your own? What will be the cost of a new one?

Dr. S. says it can be simply done by the mechanic in the Ashram.

Why must you continue to write to me in English? If you cannot write in Hindustani, you may write in Marathi.

If you have leisure you should concentrate on the other patients. Balwant Singh has better use for his time than learning English. He can have all he needs about vet² from Marathi Literature.

Love,

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

427. LETTER TO V. I. MUNISWAMY PILLAY

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 26, 1945

DEAR MUNISWAMY,

Your letter reached me too late to overtake the wedding date. May the couple have a long and happy life of service to the

¹ Gandhiji had given this name to the addressee on account of his enthusiasm for ice-treatment.
² Sic motherland.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

SHRI V. I. MUNISWAMY PILLAY
SATH VILAS
OOTY
SOUTH INDIA

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

428. LETTER TO BALKRISHNA BHAVE

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 26, 1945

CHI. BALKRISHNA.

Now you have gone to Rustom Bhavan. How do you keep there? Dr. Kelkar writes to ask whether he may treat you? Do you want to be treated by him? If you do, you have to give up Chandiprasad’s treatment. I would like you to decide about Dr. Kelkar’s treatment.¹

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

429. LETTER TO AMRITLAL V. THAKKAR

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 26, 1945

BAPA².

I hope you have returned after successfully accomplishing the work among the Bhils, and with eyes and body uninjured. Write, if there is anything worth reporting. I am enclosing Swami’s³ latest letter to me. I wanted to talk to you about his demands but somehow always it got left out. It seems I shall have to write something for him. But how can I do so without informing you?

¹ Vide also “Letter to Balkrishna Bhave”, 26-4-1945.
² Amritlal V. Thakkar, Secretary, Kasturba Gandhi National Memorial Trust
³ Swami Anand

VOL. 86 : 4 MARCH, 1945 - 28 MAY, 1945 247
The quarrel was a domestic one, the public did not come into it. Personally you had nothing against Swami or his work; then why could not you say that his work was irreproachable or some such thing? I would say that.

BAPU

AMRITLAL THAKKAR
SERVANTS OF INDIA SOCIETY
BOMBAY 4

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

430. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 26 1945

CHI. MUN NALAL,

I got your three letters together. I have observed that when you write so many letters at once, you are agitated. It is so this time, too. Why is that? You are agitated when I am in the Ashram and also when I am not. Maybe, the nature of your agitation is different in the two cases, but the effect on your health is the same. This shows that your unhappiness springs from within, and that its supposed external causes are nothing but imagination. How can it be that your old co-workers themselves harass you? The harassment is imagined. Differences of opinion do not constitute harassment. What is the use of my ordering you? After all it is with your co-workers that you have to work and you must, therefore, work in harmony with them. This is what is meant by public opinion, “democracy”. Work of this nature can be done only by accepting the majority opinion or the decision of the person who has been selected as the leader. Why should one feel unhappy about this, or think that one’s self-respect is being offended? This is the only way of serving other people—not in the manner we like, but in the manner that they desire. Only if you do this cheerfully you will gain wisdom, rise higher and do the utmost possible service. My advice, therefore, is that you should remain there and go on working patiently and cheerfully. I should, of course, like you to deal with the so-called servants as you would with your own brothers and sisters. That will bring credit to you, and if you succeed, the results will be excellent. Servants have always been with us in their capacity as servants. The only difference is that now we wish to draw them nearer to us and give some time to them. If you do not show discretion in this, you will fail. But even if you fail, what does it matter? Success lies hidden in failure. He who fails will one day succeed. One who does nothing for fear of failing will achieve nothing. If you start re-counting from the point where you went wrong, you will get the figure right.

By losing yourself you will gain yourself. One becomes oneself only if one ceases to be oneself. Why, then, need you fear losing your individuality? Let it be lost.

I had a letter from Kanchan¹ today, which I am sending for your perusal. Let her stay where she is. She will get trained there. Amtussalaam also mentions her in her letter. I am, therefore, sending that too.

I tear up your letters. You should never preserve your letters. They contain your sarcasms on the impulse of the moment. There is no point in re-reading or recalling them.

All of you have been kept fully informed about ourselves. We shall be here up to the end of May, then June in Panchgani and then Sevagram. This is my intention. Only His will be done. Our hosts here are PremliIabehn² and Shantikumar³, and in Panchgani it will beNanji Sheth⁴. In addition, Bachchharajbhai⁵ is of course at both the places.

_Blessings from_
_BAPU_

---

¹ Addressee's wife
² Premlila Thackersey
³ Shantikumar N. Morarjee
⁴ Nanji Kalidas
⁵ Bachchharaj Sheth who had adopted Jamnalal Bajaj
431. A LETTER

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 26, 1945

I got your letter. Chi.... likes what you have done. You need not, therefore, think about it any more. I examined your doings not as those of a near relation, but as an educated woman’s. Though you were not guilty, even then I regard it as a great error on your part to have kept the knowledge of his marriage in childhood a secret. I did like, of course, your marrying outside the caste. That neither ... nor you treated the childhood marriage as marriage seems altogether improper. ... seems to be a very good man. However, according to me he has done no service to the lady. You certainly have not. How would you have felt, if you had been in that woman’s place? There are numerous cases in Hindu society like. . ’s. If everybody did what he had done, what would be the condition of the girls married to them? . . .’s duty was to live with that girl and be her teacher. You were tempted by the thought of doing social service, and he was infatuated with you. You need not accept this analysis. Both of you believe that you have followed dharma in what you did. That is enough for you. One’s dharma is what one believes to be so.

I am not writing separately to.... Treat this as meant for you both.

Blessings from

BAPU

[From Gujarati]

Ba Bapuni Shili Chhayaman, pp. 226-7

1 Omissions as in the source
432. LETTER TO SAHEB MOHAMMED

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 26, 1945

BHAJKHWAJASAHEB,

I have gone through your letter to Pyarelalji. I read your translation bit by bit. I do not get time but of what use is my opinion? It is Dr. Mahmud’s opinion that is important. I have only a working knowledge of Urdu. The only thing I can say is that according to me you have done well in doing the translation.

Yours,
M. K. GANDHI

KHWAJASAHEBMOHAMMED
RETIREDPRINCIPAL, ISLAMIA COLLEGE
OUTSIDE DELHI GATE
LAHORE

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

433. LETTER TO DIPTI DAS GUPTA

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 26, 1945

CHIDIPTIDASGUPTA,

May you live long and serve the country.

Blessings from
M. K. GANDHI

SHRIDIPTIDASGUPTA
C/O SHRIKHAGENDRANATHDASGUPTA
JALPAIGURI, BENGAL

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Syed Mahmud, Education and Development Minister in Bihar, 1937-39
434. LETTER TO SUBHADRA KUMARI CHAUHAN

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 26, 1945

DEAR SISTER,

Convey my blessings to the newly married couple. May they render great service to the country.

Blessings from
BAPU

SUBHADRA KUMARI CHAUHAN
569 Right Town
Jabalpur

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

435. LETTER TO HOSHIARI

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 26, 1945

CHI. HOSHIARI.

I have received your second letter, Written in a neat hand. It is good that you have received a letter from Uncle. Your son¹ may also come with him. In Case he does not, Balvantsinha will certainly bring him. Your pure conduct and diligence will also have an effect [on him].

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹Gajaraj

THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
436. LETTER TO TOTARAM SANADHYA

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 26, 1945

BHA I TOT ARAM,

I was very happy to have your letter. Your tapascharya is great. You have done much service. Now it is time for you to take service. Rest yourself and pray. Sincere prayer in itself is service for an invalid person.

I have been having news of you regularly.

You have given the right suggestion about Chi. Hariprasad. It is his duty to visit you. I shall be reaching Sevagram in July. It is no part of Hariprasad’s duty to visit me. It is a difficult journey and also pretty expensive. I am writing to him.¹

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 2534

437. LETTER TO HARIPRASAD

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 26, 1945

CHI. HARIPRASAD,

Panditji has given me a vivid description of you. It is better that you go to Sabarmati to meet him. You need not come to Sevagram. It is far off, and the fare is also more. I will spend two months away from Sevagram. That is my plan at the moment.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Addressee’s adopted son
² Vide the following item.
³ Totaram Sanadhya
438. LETTER TO AMTUSSALAAM

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 26, 1945

DAUGHTER,

I have your letter. Do not work if you are not paid. Money will not be coming from Maganwadi. It will have to come from P. Babu¹ or Bhagirathji². Do not strive for money. It is all right if it comes of itself. If there is any help available for the oil-press, you will be able to manage it. If not, abandon it. Your duty is to serve. If P. Babu relieves you, isn’t there plenty of service to be done in the Ashram?

I shall be spending one month in Mahabaleshwar, the next month in Panchgani and then I shall be in the Ashram.

You must improve your health. Lavanyalata³ must be well. You have done good sale of khadi.⁴

Blessings from
BAPU

[PS.]

Enclosed is the letter to Hayat’s doctor. Read it and write what you want to me or to Hayatullah or to the doctor.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 474

439. LETTER TO OM PRAKASH GUPTA

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 26, 1945

CHI. OM PRAKASH,

Unless you scrupulously follow all the Ashram rules, you will gain nothing by merely staying in the Ashram. You will have to get a certificate from the inmates of the Ashram. If you are hot-tempered,

¹ Presumably, Prafulla Chandra Ghosh
² Bhagirath Kanodia
³ Lavanyalata Chanda who was later appointed Agent, Kasturba Gandhi National Memorial Trust, Bengal
⁴ The addressee was working at Borkamta in Bengal.
cure yourself of it. The Ashram is the place to overcome temperamental shortcomings. Not everybody can do so. But you must. You have to provide an ideal. If you do not like the Ashram, it would be futile for you to stay there.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: C.W. 5896. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

440. LETTER TO BALVANTSINHA

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 26, 1945

CHI. BALVANTSINHA,

There is no reason to feel unhappy over having brought Om Prakash with you. What can one do if such persons get in? You did not bring him deliberately. I have written to him.¹ Let us hope he will understand.

Hoshiari is getting along well.

Dr. Kelkar has written about teaching you English. I have dissuaded him. We can acquire all knowledge through our own language. But if you are particular, I shall not stop you, nor shall I encourage you.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 1959

441. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 26, 1945

CHI. KRISHNACHANDRA,

I was sorry to read about Ram Narayan’s³ illness. Keep me informed. Let us hope he will recover.

Balkrishna has lost a lot of weight. Are not dates available in the Ashram? Look in my room. If there are any, give them to him; if not,

¹ Vide the preceding item.
² Ram Narayan Chaudhary’s let Chimanlal write to Rameshwar Das Birla. You will have the dates.

I understand about Om Prakash. Put up with him as long as you can.¹

Speak again to Ashadevi. You should do what you can easily do. The discharge will stop. It is not anybody’s duty to sleep on hot sand. You can use my wooden divan. If you sprinkle some water over the sand, the heat will disappear.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4511. Also C.W. 5897. Courtesy: Krishnachandra

442. LETTER TO GANGI A. HINGORANI

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 26, 1945

DAUGHTER GANGI,

Your letter is very good. It was good that Anand² wrote a letter. The doctor’s treatment should continue. This is the meaning of the letter. Keep writing to me.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a microfilm of the Hindi. Courtesy: National Archives of India, and Anand T. Hingorani

¹ Vide also the preceding item.
² Addressee’s husband
443. LETTER TO ANAND T. HINGORANI

April 26, 1945

CHI. ANAND,

How can I forget? Do I not have to write for you daily? I do not like your illness. There is danger in treating oneself. Do as I have written to Gangi. Now, when you go to Dr. Raju, take his treatment. Recover now with the doctor’s treatment. What about Mahadev?.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a microfilm of the Hindi. Courtesy: National Archives of India, and Anand T. Hingorani

444. LETTER TO D. RAMASWAMI

MAHABALESHWAR,

April 27, 1945

MY DEAR RAMASWAMI,

Your postcard. I don’t think Ch. told me anything special about you.

I am glad you are doing well and spinning regularly on the takli.

What is your speed and count? Do you make your own slivers?

BAPU

SHRI D. RAMASWAMI
C/O THE EASTERN DRUG CO.
MASULIPATAM, KISTNA DISTRICT
ANDHRA

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Vide “A Thought for the Day”, 16-7-1945.
2 Dr. Krishna Raju
3 Addressee’s son
445. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 27, 1945

CHI. NARANDAS,

I have made the corrections which occurred to me. Observe them. I don’t wish to think more. Bombay also is all right. Kaniya’s name is in connection with Bombay. It means that he will have to stay in Bombay for those months. I shall not object. Think over it, both of you. He will acquit himself well wherever he is.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./II. Also C.W. 8623. Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi

446. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 27, 1945

CHI. NARANDAS,

I like the scheme. There are two tests in it—of yarn contribution and pice contribution. In both what matters is the number of donors. Yarn is a source of strength, as is evident from the very saying: “Many threads mean strength.” One thread of yarn may snap, but a rope made up of many threads would pull much heavier weight depending on the number of threads...
Therefore yarn, from a single individual, however much it may be, is of no consequence. There will be many who will be ready to give more than seventy-six pice... It is good that you have decided not to accept more. Similarly [even less than that] cannot be accepted. Otherwise the account will not be clear. Only a little .... There are millions in this poor country who can offer no more than a pie. There are also likely to be millions who

1 Kanu Gandhi, addressee’s son
2 For celebrating Gandhi’s 76th birthday. It was that every one should present to Gandhi at least one hank of yarn and 76 pice.
3 Omissions as in the source
4 From The Hindu, 15-7-1945
do not have even one pie. Those of them who are eager to contribute may offer 76 pice in the name of one of them as their representative. Similarly a family may contribute 76 pice for each member. Even after saying all this, I would say that my preference is for the yarn.

[From Gujarati]
Bapuna Patro-9: Shri Narandas Gandhine, Part 2, p. 304

447. LETTER TO MANIBEHN PATEL

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 27, 1945

CHI. MANI,

I got your letter. Immediately after reading it, I tore it up. It had been kept aside by mistake, but it came to me as soon as it was discovered that it was personal.

But what is there so personal in what you have written? I myself opened it just to respect your wishes and to reassure you and will post this in the same way.

As for fasts, perhaps I must have undertaken more of them than anyone else in the group. In South Africa I used to fast on any pretext. I must have taken only one meal a day for more than a year. But I am of the opinion that moderation in eating is more difficult than fasting. Fasts have a place in our life but the death of a relative is certainly not an occasion for them. Why shouldn’t they be undertaken on the occasion of birth? I have done that also but gave that up on further reflection. From this you can judge your fasts.¹ The human body is the temple of God, and should be taken care of as such.

It is not that I do not know of your regular habits. Motilalji² gave you first rank in that. But you should be charitable to co-workers. You fail in your duty to your neighbours because you are not so. Moreover you admit your shortcomings. People admit their shortcomings either because they wish to stick to them or wish to cure themselves of them. Don’t you wish to get rid of your shortcomings? You should infect others with your regularity and at the same time must preserve yours. You should act as I do and keep your own surroundings clean. Didn’t you learn this much even after being so many times in jail? What have you learnt from Mahadev\(^1\)? Did you observe his generosity?

² Motilal Nehru

This should be more than enough for you. If all your questions have been answered, come over here. But do not come simply to please me. Come only if you feel that it is your dharma to do so, and with a charitable heart or with the aim of making it generous. If you are resentful, what will you gain by coming here? Let us magnify the molehills of our faults into mountains and see the mountains of others’ faults as molehills. Only then can we live in harmony.

If you decide not to keep back anything from others, make a copy of this letter and send it to me. It is worth pondering over by many.

_Blessings from_
_BAPU_

---

CHI. MANIBEHN VALLABHBHAI PATEL
_C/o DR. KANUGA_
AHMEDABAD, B. B. C. I. RLY.

[From Gujarati]
_Bapuna Patro-4: Manibehn Patelne, pp. 133-4_

448. LETTER TO SUSHILA GANDHI

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 27, 1945

CHI. SUS HILA,

I have your postcard. You will only have bitter experiences here. The reason is that the country is poor. Ba was a lifelong companion and so, of course, I feel her absence. Then again she had merged her life in mine.

I had a letter from Manilal\(^2\). He will be going to Ahmedabad tomorrow. He will think of coming here after he gets back. I believe you and the children will accompany him. Mother will have recovered. Kishorelal wrote to me she had fever. Chi. Gomati\(^2\) too will

---

\(^1\) Mahadev Desai
\(^2\) Addressee’s husband, Manilal Gandhi have recovered. I am well. Today it is pretty cold. Tell Sita¹ not to stop writing to me.

_Blessings from_

BAPU

SUSHILA GANDHI
NANABHAI'S BUNGALOW
AKOLA, BERAR

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

449. LETTER TO MOHANLAL BHATT

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 27, 1945

CHI. MOHANLAL,²

Your letter is good. It is candid. This is my opinion. Those who have not taken up Hindustani, or do not know it, learn only half the _rashtrabhasha_. That is why I am partial to Hindustani. When we speak of the national language we do include those whose script is Urdu. This definition, which I had given at the Sammelan³, has been accepted. Hindi is a language which Hindus and Muslims speak and is written in the Nagari or Urdu script. If that is so, you and I have to know both the scripts and be familiar with the vocabulary of both. That being the case, you have to revive the Urdu script and always keep in touch with it. Besides, in order to remove the feeling of hostility you should join the Hindustani Prachar Sabha. If everyone does so, the hostility will be removed.

I do not yet fully see eye to eye with Tandonji⁴. However, we keep exchanging views. Indu⁵ must have grown up beyond recognition.

_Blessings to you all from_

BAPU

MOHANLAL BHATT
25 NUTAN SOCIETY
ELLISBRIDGE, AHMEDABAD

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Addressee’s daughter
² Secretary, Hindi Prachar Samiti, Wardha; ex-Manager, Navajivan Press
⁴ Purushottamdas Tandon, proponent of Hindi language and literature; Chairman, U. P. L. gislative Assembly, 1937-46; President, Indian National Congress, 1950-51
⁵ Addressee’s daughter
450. LETTER TO KANTILAL

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 27, 1945

CHI. KANTI,

I have your letter. I remember you had come to see me in Bombay. It is true that I was very busy. This is the only message: Everyone in South Africa should live in harmony and bring credit to India. Everyone should be dedicated to service.
Manilal and Sushila have not come so far. They may come. Convey my blessings to all.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

451. LETTER TO AMRITA LAL CHATTERJEE

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 27, 1945

BHA I AMRITA LAL,

I have your letter. After the Borivli work is over, Chi. Abha' will go to Rajkot with Kanubhai'. The girls should not have lost weight. If it is necessary I shall send for Veena'. Give up worrying on account of the two girls. Do take Sailen' to Calcutta if he keeps well there. I feel that Sailen has been guilty of some lapse. He was completely cured with Sushilabehn’s treatment. Anyway do what you feel is proper.
Send the paper with Shantikumar if you got my letter from Bengal.5 I see no need for your coming.

Blessings from
BAPU

1 Addressee’s daughter and her husband Kanu Gandhi
2 ibid
3 Addressee’s elder daughter who along with Abha Gandhi was undergoing training at Borivli training camp
4 Addressee’s son
5 The reference is to a report the addressee was expecting about the military personnel who forced young girls to lead immoral lives; vide “Amrita Lal Chatterjee”, 29-3-1945.
452. LETTER TO G. RAMACHANDRA RAO

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 27, 1945

BHA I RAM ACHAN DRA RAO,

Altogether I have received three letters from you all. If all of you have benefited from your stay in Sevagram, the credit goes to you all, even though only those who have the will have benefited. I have known people who have gained nothing. Keep writing to me.

Blessings to you all from
BAPU

PROF. G. RAMACHANDRA RAO
ATHEISTIC CENTRE
MUMUNUR P. O.
KISTNA DISTRICT
MADRAS PRESIDENCY

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

453. LETTER TO RAMBH AU BHOGE

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 27, 1945

BHA I RAM BH AU,

I have your letter. Never mind whatever punishment has been given to you. I trust that your wife and child will be looked after. Keep well.

Blessings from
BAPU

DR. RAMBH AU BHOGE
DISTRICT PRISON
DHULIA, KHANDESH

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
454. MESSAGE TO PEOPLE OF CEYLON

Mahabaleshwar,
April 27, 1945

Gandhiji said that India and Lanka were one, the latter being a pendant of a long chain which was India.

He said that he had felt that people in Lanka sought to be separated from India, although the culture and problems of both were similar. He was glad, however, to learn that there were people in Lanka who realized this unity. Such people, he added, needed no message from him. They have only to understand the message of the charkha, khadi and the constructive programme, including village uplift and fostering of a national language. He referred to his tour of Ceylon 15 years ago and his embarrassment then to notice European and alien habits and customs of the people there, and wished that the Ceylonese had known more about India and the message of the charkha.

The Bombay Chronicle, 28-4-1945

455. LETTER TO DESAIBHAI PATEL

Mahabaleshwar,
April 28, 1945

Bhai Desaibhai,

May the marriage of Chi. Sumanbehn and Chi. Satyakam be fruitful. May both of them become true servants.

Blessings from
Bapu

Acharya Desaibhai
Vithal Kanya Vidyalaya
Nadiad

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 The message was given to N. A. F. Meemanage, a former President of the Ceylonese Union in Mysore.
2 In November 1927.
456. LETTER TO DAHYABHAI V. PATEL

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 28, 1945

CHI. DAHYABHA I,

I have your letter. Father¹ will continue² to be like this. If what he says is literally true, we should not worry about him. I am persuading Mani³ to come here.

My health is good. The weather here is refreshing.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI DAHYABHAI VALLABHBHAI PATEL
68 MARINE DRIVE
BOMBAY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

457. LETTER TO INDU N. PAREKH

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 28, 1945

CHI. INDU,

I was glad to have your letter. Chi. Kanti had given me the news. Now stick on and be successful. What machinery are you using? Do you only cure the hides? Do you use only the hides of dead animals or whatever you can get? Do you make anything from the leather?

Blessings from
BAPU

INDU PAREKH
DEENABANDHU ENGINEERING
ITOLA

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Vallabhbhai Patel and his daughter Manibehn Patel
² Addressee’s brother
³ ibid
458. LETTER TO V. P. LIMAYE

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 28, 1945

BHA I LIM AYE,

I have your letter. My blessings are certainly with you in your work of Nayee Talim. The success of this venture is full of significance.

Blessings from
BAPU

PROF. V. P. LIMAYE
PIPANE
SASWAD P. O.
POONA DISTRICT

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

459. LETTER TO I. H. SONAVANE

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 28, 1945

BHA I SON AVANE,

What you have written to me is correct. Give up the job if you are not satisfied with the work and if the salary is inadequate, and start some business. Seek Mathuradasji’s¹ advice before giving up the job.
Let me know the development.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI I. B. SONAVANE
ROOM NO. 78, SECOND FLOOR
197-A LADY HARDINGE ROAD
BOMBAY 28

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹Mathuradas Trikumji’s
460. LETTER TO BHAGALPUR DISTRICT CONGRESS COMMITTEE

April 28, 1945

BROTHERS,

I have your letter. I feel that you should let the strike continue. If the prisoners are dying, let them die. How can we know the internal conditions? If we do not learn how to live, we must learn how to die. Or we must learn both. If it was within my power, I would have found out what all this was about.

Blessings from

BAPU

SECRETARY
DISTRICT CONGRESS CONSTRUCTIVE DEPARTMENT
ADARSH BOJANALAYA, SUJAGANJ
BHAGALPUR, BIHAR

From a copy of the Hindi; Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

461. LETTER TO OM PARKASH GUPTA

April 28, 1945

CHI. OM PRAKASH,

I have gone through your letter and also the accompanying one. It is about the books. It seems to me all right. I have written quite a lot about how you should live in the Ashram. Be friendly with all.

It is good that Kanu has arrived.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers.Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Vide “Letter to Omprakash Gupta”, 26-4-1945.
462. LETTER TO GOVIND DAS

April 28, 1945

BHA I GOV IND DAS,

I have your letter. You must get rid of the fits of giddiness. Think over naturecure treatment. There is someone in Allahabad. Otherwise there are doctors.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHETH GOVIND DAS
JABALPUR

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

463. LETTER TO LAKSHMIDEVI

April 28, 1945

CHI. LAKSHMIDEVI,

I had kept your letter to think over. I am of the opinion that in this connection what Vichitrabhai and Dhirenbhai say should be done. Look after your health.

Blessings from

BAPU

LAKSHMIDEVI OF HARDOI
KASTURBA NIDHI CAMP
BORIVLI

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

464. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA

Mahabaleshwar,
April 28, 1945

CHI. KRISHNACHANDRA

I have read all your letters. I have written enough and so will write no more. MY work too has increased.

Blessings from

BAPU
You are right about the visitors. It will of course be a good thing if somehow or other the Ashram becomes a real Ashram and everybody follows the rules.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4512

465. LETTER TO TAN YUN-SHAN

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 29, 1945

DERA FRIEND,

I long for the real friendship between China and India based not on economics or politics but on irresistible attraction. Then will follow real brotherhood of man.

This is the message in answer to yours of 5th inst.

You must learn Hindustani. You have been long enough in India. May I write to you henceforth in Hindustani, since I can’t write in Chinese?

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

PROF. TAN YUN-SHAN

SANTINIKETAN

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

1 The addressee had come to India at the invitation of Rabindranath Tagore and organised the Department of Sino-Indian Studies in the Vishwabharati University and later the Sino-Indian Cultural Society.
466. LETTER TO CHIMANLAL N. SHAH

April 29, 1945

CHI. CHI MANLA L,

If Chi. Ramdas’ wishes to go to Mysore for a few months, let him go. I have already dictated a letter regarding a storeroom for jaggery. It should belong to the Ashram. I assume that you will incur the expenditure only if Parnerkar\(^2\) desires. You may also put up in the Ashram the building you speak of.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10627

467. LETTER TO MRIDULA SARABHAI

MAHABALESHWAR,

April 29, 1945

CHI. MRI DU,

I have already said it and I say it again that your continuously getting fever and taking medicines is not good. That way you can’t render service.

I am enclosing Raihanabehn’s letter. I am sending it to you after obtaining her permission.\(^3\) I understand that the situation has changed after the letter was written. Nevertheless the letter deserves to be read and pondered over by you. Write to Raihana if you feel like it and have the time. Do write to me whatever you want. Do not be in a hurry.

There is talk of shifting the whole office to Wardha. Bapa wants it. So do Shantikumar and Shyamlal and from what I understand, Ghanshyamdas’ too. As for me, I was of that opinion from the very beginning. Now you must let me know your view. I could not help noticing that the scheme shown to me would not create the village atmosphere. The task is both difficult and easy. It is easy if we can

---

\(^1\) Son of H. C. Dasappa
\(^2\) Yashwant Mahadev Parnerkar
\(^3\) Vide “Letter to Raihana Tyabji”, 25-4-1945.
\(^4\) G. D. Birla understand it and lay the foundation accordingly; otherwise it is difficult and will become more so. In a large measure it depends on you. I do not wish to take any work from you without your first understanding the thing. That will be making wrong use of your services. Let me know your views when you have time.

Blessings from
BAPU

Mridulabehn Sarabhai

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

468. LETTER TO CHHOTUBHAI SUTHAR

Mahabaleshwar,
April 29, 1945

BhaI Chhotubhai

I have your letter and the map. I am going through your note. It will help me [in understanding your viewpoint]. You have to write something original. In Marathi, there is a very good book by Jerajar. I have heard that there is one in Bengali too. In the United Provinces, a gentleman is doing very good work. It appears from The Hindu that there is something of the kind in the South also. Now we have to see what you will do. You need not reply.

Blessings from
BAPU

Shri Chhotubhai Suthar

Tarak Mandal, Anand

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

469. LETTER TO DAULATRAI DAVE

Mahabaleshwar,
April 29, 1945

BhaI Daulatrai

Who are my attendants? Without knowing my plight you get angry with those who look after me. It is because of them that I am able to do some work. If you want to be angry, let it be with me because I am not able to cope with the work and am not able to satisfy everyone. I have done whatever I could for you but there is no limit to your needs that I could never meet them. That is no doubt my fault; but I am helpless.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI DAULATRAI DAVE
MADHUJUNI, CHITTARANJAN ROAD
EAST VILE PARLE

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

470. LETTER TO PURUSHOTTAM GANDHI

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 29, 1945

CHL. PURUSHOTTAM,

I have gone through your letter. I agree with everything you say but I have already given my blessings to Omkarnath. He introduced himself as a pupil of Vishnu Digambar. He got the blessings of Malaviyaji and Radhakrishnanji. He made the changes I suggested. He did not even mention his differences with you. He also told me that he had met you and took from me a letter of blessings. His is an all-inclusive Vidyaipith and so is yours. How can this be possible? Think over this, leaving aside my blessings. How can you involve yourself in this quarrel?

Why should your institution be called Vishnu Digambar University of Music?’ What is wrong with Vishnu Digambar Sangeet Vidyapith? Do you find the English name more attractive? I had raised this point with Omkarnath also. I suggested to him to use Hindustani for all their work. He agreed. I do not know what has happened now.

For the birthday: Make great progress.

I had replied to the original letter of Narandas on that same day. So there is nothing to write this time.

PURUSHOTTAM NARANDAS GANDHI

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Omkarnath Thakur.
2 Vishnu Digambar Paluskar
3 Madan Mohan Malaviya
4 S. Radhakrishnan
5 Vide "Letter to Narandas Gandhi", 27-4-1945.
471. LETTER TO GAJANAN NAİK

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 29, 1945

My views on palm gur are firm. People should have permission to make palm gur or toddy wherever there are palm trees. Our requirement can be met with this gur and sugarcane gur. I am of the opinion that palm gur is better than sugar cane gur.¹

CHI. GAJANAN²,
This is for you. I did forget about palm gur. I had to write in a hurry. That was the last day. You could have added that and wired me. I had written “etc.”. That includes gur. Gur has lost nothing. When was it bitter?

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI GAJANAN
MAGANVADI
WARDHA

From a copy of the Hindi and Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

472. LETTER TO AMRITLAL T. NANAVATI

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 29, 1945

CHI. AMRITLAL,
I have your letter. Pyarelal is going through the original letter. Even if Tandonji sends a reply, it is not going to come very soon. We must go on doing our work. What has to be will be. I have sent you a copy of Dr. Tarachand’s letter. I am awaiting your reply.

Take Chi. Ramdas with you. How can I keep Yashodharabehn³ or Ramdas against their will? On my part I have looked after him as one does after a flower. I am firmly of the opinion that if he makes ¹What follows is in Gujarati.

²Of the Gur Department, A. I. V. I. A.
³Yashodhara Dasappa anything of himself, he will be able to do so only in the Ashram. But if he does not like to stay there, it will not be possible to train him. If he returns, he should do so of his own free will and not because of any coercion. You should get well and come.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI AMRITLAL T. NANAVATI
GUJARAT VIDYAPITH
AHMEDABAD

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

473. LETTER TO PRABHAKAR

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 29, 1945

CHI. PRABHAKAR,

If Chi. Ramdas wants to accompany Yashodhara Devi and Nanavati to Mysore, let him. We shall take care of him when he returns. How are you getting on with doing your own massage.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 9026. Also C.W. 9150. Courtesy: Prabhakar

474. LETTER TO YASHODHARA DASAPPA

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 29, 1945

CHI. YASHODHAR

Chi. Nanavati has written to me about Chi. Ramdas. Since Ramdas wants to go to Mysore and since he is not keeping well, let him go with you and if he feels well, he can come back later. I am writing to Sevagram. Hope you are calm.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI YASHODHARA DASAPPA
C/O SHRI N. S. GULABI
SUNNYSIDE, GYMKHANA ROAD
MATUNGA, BOMBAY

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
475. LETTER TO KAMALNAYAN BAJAJ

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 29, 1945

CHI. KAMALNAYAN.

I have your letter. I remember Mother\(^1\) had given me Varma’s letter. Now I can’t find it. Perhaps I left it behind in Sevagram. Do you remember what it was about?

Come whenever you and Satyanarayan want to. I am getting along well. The treatment has not begun yet.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI KAMALNAYAN BAJAJ
51 MAHATMA GANDHI ROAD
FORT, BOMBAY

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

476. LETTER TO M. S. KELKAR

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 29, 1945

DR. ICE,

I have your letter. One can stay for a month in the Birla Dharmashala. I can’t say anything about Wardha. In Sevagram a hut can be built. I will be more than happy, if Hari-ichchha\(^3\) is cured. Arrangements for ice can be made. The leper has to be kept somewhere in the village. It is difficult to keep him in the Ashram. My advice is that in this connection you should do whatever Manoharji\(^4\) says. He has devoted his whole life to this work and therefore we must have his permission.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

\(^1\) Son of Jamnalal Bajaj
\(^2\) Janakidevi Bajaj
\(^3\) Hari-ichchha Kamdar
\(^4\) Manohar Divan, who founded the Maharogi Seva Mandal for the service of lepers at Dittapur in 1936, while doing village work with Gram Seva Mandal under Vinoba Bhve’s scheme of rural reconstruction

VOL. 86 : 4 MARCH, 1945 - 28 MAY, 1945 275
477. LETTER TO SHANTA

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 29, 1945

CHI. SHANTA,

I have your letter.

I have written to Chimanlalbhai about the store for Jaggery. I want your path to be clear. The thing is that it will be cleared by your own work. Isn’t that true adult education? The work can be accomplished by calmness and introspection. Keep on asking yourself: ‘Why can’t I get this work done?’ You will get the reply. I am not with you all. It hurts me, and does not hurt me. In a way it is good that I am away from you. See what you can do about the grain bank. What I could suggest would not be from experience. So from your own experience try to find a way out. I have shown you the royal road; never leave it. Give education to people, not money. There is no harm if educating people takes some time. Once the work is started, it will go on.

I am returning Chimanlalbhai’s letter.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI SHANTABEHN
HINDUSTANI TALIMI SANGH
SEVAGRAM, via WARDHA

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

478. LETTER TO SATIS CHANDRA DAS GUPTA

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 29, 1945

CHI. SATIS BABU,

I have your letter. My blessings you already have. Is not everything you do done for me? Your compilation about the cow and

1 Founder-President of Bengal Khadi Pratishthan
2 Cow in India to which Gandhiji wrote the Foreword on May 20, 1945.
your original writing show the same thing. Now that you are coming here in a few days, we shall talk about the medicines then.

Blessings to you all from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 1942

479. LETTER TO ANAND T. HINGORANI

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 29, 1945

CHI. ANAND,

I have your letter. You will have received mine. Now I shall not so much as mention Bhimavaram. You got fever, the doctor came; now there is nothing to say. Do as the doctor advises and get well. I am in correspondence with Jivanji. I am not free [to do what I like]. Whatever is done will be done with deliberation.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI ANAND HINGORANI
UPPER SIND COLONY
KARACHI
SIND

From a microfilm of the Hindi. Courtesy: National Archives of India, and Anand T. Hingorani

480. MESSAGE FOR “JAWAHAR JAIN JYOTI”:

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 30, 1945

The Jain sadhus in the country should understand yuga dharma, that is, the religion of the age, and their duty towards it; otherwise their preachings and teachings would be useless.

The Bombay Chronicle, 1-5-1945

1 Jivanji D. Desai of Navajivan Press. It was about publishing Thought for the Day; vide also “Letter to Anand T. Hingorani”, 26-4-1945.

2 The report said that the message was given to Bachharaj Doshi of Panchgani for the book on the “Life and Teachings of the Late Acharya Jawaharlalji”. The Jain sadhu followed Gandhiji’s teachings.
481. TESTIMONIAL TO JAISHANKAR P. TRIVEDI

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 30, 1945

I can claim to have known Prof. Jaishankar Trivedi personally for a good many years. During all these years, I knew him to be ever ready to help people without any thought of gaining name or fame. He was a silent worker and his home had become a dharmashala.

M. K. GANDHI

482. TELEGRAM TO SAROJINI NAIDU

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 30, 1945

SAROJINI DEVI NAIDU
HYDERABAD DECCAN

TELEGRAM WORTHY OF YOU. DEATH¹ IS DELIVERANCE. LOVE.

SPINNER²

From the original: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

483. LETTER TO MUHAMMAD AHMAD SAID KHAN

Personal

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 30, 1945

DEAR NAWAB SAHEB³,

I cannot do better than send the accompanying⁴ to you. If the facts are correctly set forth, they are terrible.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

THE NAWAB SAHEB OF CHHATARI
HYDERABAD DECCAN

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ The reference is to the death of the addressee’s younger son Ranadheera.
² The addressee had given to Gandhiji the epithet ‘Spinner of Destiny’.
³ President, Executive Council of the Nizam of Hyderabad
⁴ A cutting under the caption “Police High-handedness at Gulbarga” from Bharat Jyoti, 29-4-1945

278
484. LETTER TO AMIYA NATH BOSE

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 30, 1945

DEAR AMIYO,

Have you worked out the problem of electricity for every home? What is the cost? My remark quoted by you is a poser for the time being. It will cease to be one, if it is a possibility. It has not penetrated every home in the villages even of Mysore. Since you believe in it, I want you to work it out and demonstrate the physical and economic possibility of electrifying every home of the seven hundred thousand villages of India.

It is a torture to suffer from fever for years. Has the medical profession declared bankruptcy?

Love to all.

BAPU

SHRI AMIYA NATH BOSE
1 WOODBURN PARK
CALCUTTA

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

485. LETTER TO G. V. NARAYANA MURTI

April 30, 1945

Your information is incomplete. How did you get the piles? Do you eat hot foods such as chillies and do the piles bleed? Meanwhile drink plenty of boiled water, take orange-juice and juice of raw vegetable such as carrots, palak and snake-gourd. You can drink not more than three pounds of milk and take three ounces of fresh coconut well chewed. Drink the water of the coconut. If the piles bleed, take rest, omit one meal and apply oil to the affected part.

From the original: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
486. LETTER TO GULZARILAL NANDA

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 30, 1945

CHI. GULZARILAL Al,

Read the enclosed and return it to me. If what it contains is all right, I intend to write in Gujarati. It will be proper if I write only for your journal. If there are any factual mistakes, point them out in such a way that I can explain them to Ambalalbhai.1

I hope you are well.

There is no news from Dr. Chugh. I shall have to start on a drug (allopathic) tomorrow. Dr. Chugh can also treat us, if he wants to.2

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI GULZARILAL NANDA
MAJoor MAHAJAN
MIRZAPUR ROAD
AHMEDABAD

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

487. LETTER TO CHIMANLAL N. SHAH

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 30, 1945

CHI. CHIMANLAL,

I have sent a wire to the Santiniketan friend asking him not to go there while I am away.3 It is certainly a sorry state of affairs that when I am there we cannot welcome people for fear of overcrowding and, in my absence, because of internal quarrels. Doesn’t this indicate

1 Ahmedabadi labour leader who helped to organize the labour movement on Gandhian lines; acted as Prime Minister after Jawaharlal Nehru’s death in May 1964 and also after Lalbahadur Shastri’s death in January 1966.
3 Vide also “Letter to Chugh”, 9-5-1945.
4 The telegram, however, appears to have been sent on the following day; vide “Telegram to Basudeo Narain”, 1-5-1945.
what I had initially suggested, viz., that we should close the Ashram and everyone should settle down in different departments. This is worth seriously thinking over. Those who stay separately may continue to do so and go on doing their work, and I would pass the rest of my life touring. This seems to me to be the best thing to do.
Do not discuss this with too many people. First you yourself should think, and do what seems best to you. You need not even show this letter to anybody. You are the Chairman. You should, therefore, think independently for yourself.

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G. N. 10628

488. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 30, 1945

CHI. MUNNALAL,

Chairman means Chimanlal. Inability to come to a decision immediately is no shortcoming, if he is otherwise able to come to a correct decision and express his view in time. Chimanlal is the Chairman because he is the most qualified of all. But the inmates of the Ashram have a right to appoint another person as Chairman.
Decide first on who are Ashram inmates.

If you think it beyond your capacity, the question of majority vote, or for that matter even of one vote, does not arise. If all the inmates regard themselves as incapable of running the kitchen, the joint kitchen should be closed. In that case everybody will have to run his own kitchen. I do believe, of course, that the Ashram cannot be run in that way. It would then be something different.

I had accepted the suggestion that you should be requested to leave. Now I withdraw it fully. Remain where you are and prosper.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 8455. Also C.W. 5576. Courtesy:
Munnalal G. Shah
489. LETTER TO T. N. SHARMA

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 30, 1945

BHA I SHARMA,

I have your letter. I do not like it. The circumstances keep changing. If Chakrayya wants to do nature-cure work, why does he insist on that particular place? Why not Bhimavaram? Anand Niketan should be given up. I do not like to spend money on the building. The money should be returned.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI T. N. SHARMA
C/O CHEMICALS LTD.
NIDADAVOLU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

490. LETTER TO GHANSHYAMSINH GUPTA

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 30, 1945

BHA I GHANSHYAMSINH,

I have your letter. It is sad as well as surprising. I have done what I could.

Blessings from
BAPU

GHANSHYAMSINH GUPTA
DRUG

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
491. LETTER TO LAKSHMI GANDHI

MAHABALESHWAR,
April 30, 1945

CHI. LAK SHMI,

You must have received my telegram.¹ You and the child will be well. It is quite some time now. Will Rajaji and Devdas² be coming together or will Rajaji come a little earlier? Is Papa³ also there?

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 2000

492. LETTER TO SAROJINI

April 30, 1945

CHI. SAR OJINI BEHN,

I keep receiving many complaints against you. You do not even pay for your expenses to the Secretary. Pay for your expenses and leave the Ashram. You are not likely to benefit from staying in the Ashram.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: C.W. 5870

¹ Vide “Telegram to C. Rajagopalachari”, 23-4-1945.
² Addressee’s husband
³ Addressee’s elder sister, Namagiri
493. LETTER TO SAILENDRANATH CHATTERJEE

MAHABALESHWAR,
[April-May 1945]¹

CHI. SAILEN,

It pains me to know that your health has deteriorated. I suggest that you go and stay at the Ashram to improve your health and afterwards engage yourself in work. Take Manubhai’s² treatment. You should not have any difficulty in getting sick leave.

From a photostat of the Hindi: C. W. 10335. Courtesy: Amrit Lal Chatterjee

494. FOREWORD TO “RASHTRABHASHA VISHE VICHAR”

Bhai Jivanji has brought out at the right moment a collection of my writings and speeches on the subject of our national language. I have not found it possible to go through all the writings collected here but I have read the first twenty pages. I made the first speech³ on this subject in 1917. And I hold the same views today as those expressed in the speech or thereafter from time to time. The only difference is that they are now stronger, clearer and more definite than before. Hindi and Urdu have always been inseparable to me. I have also quite freely used the word Hindustani. I am saying the same thing today that I did in the Hindi Sahitya Sammelan session at Indore in 1918. Hindustani is not Urdu but a happy amalgam of Hindi and Urdu which people in Northern India may easily understand and which may be written either in the Nagari or Urdu script. That alone is the perfect national language; all others are imperfect. For the present those who desire to learn the national language fully and not partially must learn both the scripts and know both the forms. It is a duty demanded of us by our love for the nation. Those who learn it will gain, those who do not will lose.

MAHABALESHWAR, May 1, 1945

[From Gujarati]

Rashtrabhasha Vishe Vichar. Also Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Gandhiji was at Mahabaleshwar from April 21 to May 31, 1945.
² Dr. Manshankar J. Trivedi
³ At Broach; “Speech at Second Gujarat Educational Conference”, 20-10-1917.
495. LETTER TO JIVANJI D. DESAI

May 1, 1945

CHI. JIV ANJI,

I received the collection only today and this very day I am writing the “Foreword”¹ at the back of this. This should suffice.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

496. TELEGRAM TO BASUDEO NARAIN

Mahabaleshwar, May 1, 1945

BASUDEO NARAIN

COLLEGE

SANTINIKETAN

ABSENT TILL END JUNE. USELESS YOUR GOING SEVAGRAM DURING [MY] ABSENCE.²

GANDHI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

497. LETTER TO L. N. GOPALASWAMI

Mahabaleshwar, May 1, 1945

DEAR GOPALASWAMI³,

You have been so good and so wise that I am tempted to write to you regarding your letter to Bapa of 24th ultimo. If you cannot endorse what I write below, you may carry out your proposal set forth in the above letter.

Why should you feel so poor about the Harijan fund there? You

¹ Vide the preceding item.
² Vide also “Letter to Chimanlal N. Shah”, 30-4-1945.
³ Secretary, Tamil Nadu Harijan Sevak Sangh are able, your work is sound and your Harijan treasury should always be adequate. A labourer is worthy of his hire. You are that labourer. So far as I am concerned, I would like you to draw the whole amount from the Kasturba Fund. But the objection is to the male secretary being anything but honorary so long as a woman is available as in the Tamil Nadu case. I would like you to be an example to the others in having the whole of your Kasturba staff consisting of paid women workers and males being honorary and guiding hands to the necessary extent only. Men’s merit will consist in being displaced by equally efficient women workers, if not better. God has given us a great chance when we are about to have a footing in the villages on a wide scale. Therefore do what you can, I ask no more.

Yours,
BAPU

SHRI GOPALASWAMI
KASTURBA TRUST
S. I. S. BUILDINGS, ROYAPETTAH
MADRAS

498. LETTER TO GOPAL GURUBAXANI

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 1, 1945

DEAR GOPAL GURUBAXANI,

Your letter makes strange reading. I do not suppose you or your father has ever met me. Are you in any way related to Gope Gurubaxani who with his wife was the other day in the Ashram and is now in Sind? In any case, both of you have my blessings for a happy

1 In Reminiscences of Gandhi, p. 109, Gope Gurubaxani explains that he and his wife Vimala Rani came to Sevagram on February 8, 1945, after he had relinquished his post of “Honorary War Propaganda Officer attached to the National War Front at Simla” as he was “disgusted with that work, having seen how our own people were made to suffer”. Gandhiji received him, saying: “I know that a change of ideas could take place in your case, as it did in mine, for I too helped the Government in the first World War.”
life of service to the country in the place of a life given to pleasure and self-gratification. I have your cheque of Rs. 200 for any public service of my choice.

Yours,

BAPU

[C/o] Principal N. D. Gurubaxani
Dharamdas Bhoj Raj Lane
Santiniketan
Jacob Road
Hyderabad (Sind)

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

499. LETTER TO BARBARA

Mahabaleshwar,
May 1, 1945

My Dear Barbara,

I like your cheery letter. I hope you will be better still by the change and return hale and hearty.

You know Hindustani. Try to write to me and to those who understand it in Hindustani.

Yes, the climate here seems to suit me.

Love.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

500. LETTER TO KANAM GANDHI

Mahabaleshwar,
May 1, 1945

Chir Kanam,

I was happy to read your letter. I had already got the news of your arrival. Secure the same marks there also as you did in your examination at Nagpur. In Sevagram, marks are given for goodness—

1 Ramdas Gandhi’s son
isn’t that so? One must get mixed in society as sugar does with milk.
You seem to have done very well in the examination. One day you will come first. Do you know that Valjibhai’s Nanu stood first out of thousands of students? He is as good as he is intelligent. Your handwriting cannot be said to be good.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: C.W. 5874

501. LETTER TO SHRIMAN NARAYAN

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 1, 1945

CHI. SHRIMAN NARAYAN,

The March issue of Humayun Kabir’s India carries a review of your book by Sikander Chaudhary. Read it.
I hope Madalasa is well.
The pen moved in Gujarati and I let it.

Blessings from
BAPU

[From Gujarati]
Panchven Putrako Bapuke Ashirvad, p. 305

502. LETTER TO JAYANT S. TILAK

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 1, 1945

CHI. JAY ANT,

How strange that Lokamanya’s grandson should write to me in English. If you cannot write in Hindi you can at least write in Marathi. I never go anywhere to attend weddings. However, it is good you

1. Vimalchandra V. Desai
2. Gandhian Plan of Economic Development for Free India, published in 1944
3. Addressee’s wife
4. Bal Gangadhar Tilak

THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
remembered me. May you both be happy and serve the country as Lokamanya did.

Blessings from

M. K. GANDHI

SHRI JAYANT SHRIDHAR TILAK
LOKAMANYA TILAK MANDIR
GAEKWAR WADA
528 NARAYAN PETH
POONA CITY

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

503. LETTER TO DR. B. R. CHUGH¹

May 2, 1945

G[andhi] says he started the course only yesterday. It will last at least for 10 days. After that it will be better to let the climate do its work. It seems to agree with him so far. The present course deals only with amoebic-hookworm. The tremor of the hands and general weakness will still require attention unless the climate does all these things. The best time to test your treatment will be after G.’s descent to the plains.

From the original: Pyarelal Papers, Nehru Memorial Museum and Library.
Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

¹ This was in reply to Dr. B. R. Chugh’s letter of April 30, 1945.
504. LETTER TO MAGANBHAI P. DESAI

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 2, 1945

CHI. MAGANBHAI1.

I saw the cutting sent by you. Tandonji will say the same thing. You must realize that ahimsa moves at a snail’s pace. It is ever moving but its pace is slow. We should go on doing our work. Can’t Nadvi write a book? We have to bring out new books. The examination can’t be stopped. I had written to Purushottam telling him to work for both. He did conduct examinations. However, if the Hindi [Sahitya] Sammelan claims that it is otherwise, I will have to leave it. I do not want to do it in a hurry. But at the same time I do not want to give up what is correct. Write to Purushottam. Take Kosambi2 for the work.

Blessings from
BAPU

MAGANBHAI DESAI
GUJARAT VIDYAPITH
ELLISBRIDGE, AHMEDABAD

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

505. LETTER TO TARACHAND

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 2, 1945

BHAI TARACHANDJI3.

My three colleagues here strongly object to your estimate of expenditure. The Navajivan Press is a large establishment. We can get them to do all the printing work.4 I think even the committee of the Hindustani Prachar Sabha will be startled. We shall place this issue

1 Chancellor, Gujarat Vidyapith
2 Dharmanand P. Kosambi (1876-1947); a scholar of Buddhism from Goa; taught Pali in National College, Bombay, and Fergusson College, Poona; joined civil disobedience movement in 1930 and was jailed.
3 Member, Literature Board of the All-India Hindustani Prachar Sabha.
4 The reference is to the “Hindustani Kosh” about which the addressee had been writing to Gandhiji.
before the committee after I reach Wardha. It will be good if in the mean time you can send manuscripts of a few text books. That Dr. Abdul Haq will not be able to come is also a matter of concern.

Yours,
M. K. GANDHI

DR. TARACHAND
HINDUSTANI ACADEMY
ALLAHABAD

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

506. LETTER TO MAGANBHAI P. DESAI

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 2, 1945

CHI. MAGANBHAI,

I have your letter. Mohanlal’s letter is good. I have of course written to him. As suggested by you, I am making the clarification regarding the Hindustani Sahitya Sammelan. There is bound to be some delay.

I have already written¹ to Dr. Tarachand. We certainly cannot incur such a huge expenditure. What you and Amritlal say is right.

I am enclosing Mohanlal’s letter.

Blessings from
BAPU

MAGANBHAI P. DESAI
GUJARAT VIDYAPITH
AHMEDABAD

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹Vide the preceding item.
507. LETTER TO KUSUM NAIR

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 2, 1945

CHI. KUSUM,

I like your frankness. You did well in writing to me.

I started on the medicine only yesterday. It is a new medicine for me and while I am taking it I have to take as much rest as possible. It has to be taken for ten days. During this time I will not send for you. Then there is a meeting\(^1\) of the committee of Kasturba Nidhi. After that you can come.

In the mean time you may send me questions and I will reply to them. This time the replies will be only for you. I want you to understand me. Then you will have your own answer to the day-to-day questions and you will consult me only if you want my approval for something. That is what Mahadev used to do. That is what Pyarelal does. And, you will be surprised to know, that is, what the late Saunders of Englishman used to do with me. Parameshwaran Pillay and Subrahmanyam did the same. It will not be too much for you to find time to understand my views fully. Accepting them after having understood them is a different question. You can differ, and in that case you can bravely oppose me. I like genuine opposition.

About the phone call. When you were informed that I was in the bathroom or busy otherwise it was really so. There was no thought of deceiving you. You must know that from 7.30 to 11.30 I am busy with my routine. The work I do during that time is all the work I am able to do. After that I have a nap. As a result I am ready to see visitors only at 2.30 p.m. This is my normal routine. Those who are with me while I am taking my food ask me a few things there and then. Bear in mind that the telephone in the house where I live is almost wholly for my use. You can ask me further in this connection.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI KUSUMBEHN NAIR
74 LAKSHMI BUILDING
SIR PHEROZESHAH MEHTA ROAD, BOMBAY

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

\(^1\)From May 17; vide “Letter to P. C. Joshi”, 3-5-1945.
508. LETTER TO M. S. KELKAR

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 2, 1945

DEAR ICE,

I love your Hindustani. You should go on writing like this. Leave space at the top and enough margin.

Choose the leprosy patients [for your treatment] and keep them somewhere in Sevagram. I shall manage the expense for both milk and ice needed for that. A big thing would be accomplished if Hari-ichchha gets well after some time. Try to learn the art of making ice in Sevagram. When will your [equipment] for making distilled water come? Balkrishna’s . . . to the Vaidya . . .

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: C.W. 5875

509. LETTER TO RAGHUVIR SAHAY

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 2, 1945

BHAIRAGHUVIR SAHAY,

Why do you write to me in English? Your daughter is getting married in your own community, isn’t she? Why do you seek my blessings for such a marriage? You know—don’t you?—that I am a votary of inter-caste marriages. I like this marriage but please spare me.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI RAGHUVIR SAHAY

ADVOCATE
BADAUN

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 A few words here are illegible.
2 ibid
510. LETTER TO CHAKRAYYA

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 2, 1945

CHI. CHAKRAYYA.

I have your letter. Your staying at Anand Niketan seems pointless to me. So tell Sharmaji. Return the money which has been sent to you.\(^1\) Repairs of Anand Niketan cannot be carried out with that money.

I think you should acquire a thorough knowledge of nature-cure during your stay at Bhimavaram. I hope there is no trace of untouchability in Bhimavaram. If there is, you can be of help to Dr. Raju even there. I expect you to keep spinning and weaving while you are there. Improve your health. Then we shall see what to do. Read books on nature cure also. You will have to spend at least a year in Bhimavaram.

_Blessings from_
_BAPU_

[PS.]
Chi. Chimanlal should read this and pass on.

From a photostat of the Hindi: G. N. 9116. Also C.W. 9185

511. LETTER TO ANJANA CHAUDHARY

MAHABALESEHWAR,
May 2, 1945

DEAR ANJANA,

I have your letter. I do not worry about Ram Narayan\(^2\). He is brave and will recover. It is good that you have written to me, and I am happy to know that the children are well. They must have grown up. Let me know of their progress in their studies. You have not given your address in your letter. How are you? I am well.

_Blessings from_
_BAPU_

[From Hindi]
_Bapu Maine Kya Dekha, Kya Samjha?, p. 185_

\(^1\) Vide also “Letter to T. N. Sharma”, 30-4-1945.
\(^2\) Addressee’s husband? who had heart attack in jail
512. NOTE TO RAMESHWARI NEHRU

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 2, 1945

Why should Rameshwaribehn write in English?
To the extent possible all business should be transacted in the national language. Rameshwaribehn should write about father only in the national language. The entire biography should be written in the national language—it may well be translated into English later.

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

513. TELEGRAM TO AMRITLAL

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 3, 1945

AMRITLAL
CARE M. L. UDESHI
BOMBAY

UNNECESSARY COME VISITING.

GANDHI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

514. TELEGRAM TO HAREKRUSHNA MAHTAB

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 3, 1945

HAREKRUSHNA MAHTAB¹
CUTTACK

HOPE WELL. COME ANY DAY AFTER TWENTY-FIRST.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Congress leader of Orissa
515. LETTER TO MANIBEHN PATEL

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 3, 1945

CHI. MANI,

I got your letter. It is clear.

As regards your fasts, I suggest that you should undertake them only for reasons of health. You will then come to know about yourself, profit from it spiritually too and be emancipated from superstition or insincerity. It is quite absurd to think that we should at least fast in memory of Ba or Mahadev if we cannot do anything more. They would surely be distressed at this if they could know about it. When we lose a dear one, we should do something difficult and at the same time dear to them. We might cultivate a sweetness of temper like Mahadev’s or faith like Ba’s. I have cited these as two illustrations which readily come to my mind. We can think of more. If only we realize that the body is the temple of God, or rather the instrument of God-realization, all will be well with us. Then the fraud which now passes for religion will cease. I take all this trouble to explain things to you because you are simple in habits and have resisted many temptations. I know that you would be able to achieve much more if you could rise higher in all respects.

And that is why I wish to draw you here or to the Ashram. Father too feels that way, and that makes me all the more eager to attract you. If Father was out of prison neither you nor I would desire that even for a single moment you should be anywhere else but by his side. If you are near me, you will grow in tolerance, for this is a place where one has to cultivate detachment in spite of having to adjust oneself to different temperaments. This means that we should always be ready to learn from others. We should observe people, emulate their virtues and bear with their weaknesses for that is the best way of curing them. And, therefore, come soon.

You did well to give me news of Nandubehn, Diwan Master¹ and [Dr.] Kanuga.

¹ Jiwanlal Diwan
It is nearly morning now and I am about to put out the light. I will, therefore, stop here.

Blessings to everybody there.

Blessings from

BAPU

CHI. MANIBEHN PATEL
C/O SHRI DAHYABHAI PATEL
MARINE LINES, BOMBAY

[From Gujarati]

Bapuna Patro–4: Manibehn Patelne, pp. 134-5

516. LETTER TO P. C. JOSHI

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 3, 1945

DEAR JOSHI,

I have your kind note\(^1\).

You need not await the finale of our correspondence for answering untrue reports that may appear in the papers. That, however, apart Mohan\(^2\) may come on the 24th instant, if Thursday is the only day he can spare. I am taking medical treatment at least till 10th, and on 17th I have a meeting\(^3\) which may last three days.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

Correspondence between Mahatma Gandhi and P. C. Joshi, p. 41

\(^1\) Dated May 1, it inter alia read: “As you must know, a number of untrue statements concerning our correspondence have appeared in newspapers hostile to my Party. I have not answered these as we are still exchanging letters, but . . . we should come to some understanding as soon as possible. I would therefore like to send Mohan to discuss this matter . . . on the afternoon of either Thursday May 10 or Thursday May 17.”

\(^2\) Mohan Kumaramangalam, son of Dr. P. Subbaroyan

\(^3\) Of Kasturba Memorial Trust Committee; vide also “Letter to Kusum Nair”, 2-5-1945.
517. LETTER TO RANGACHARY

Mahabaleshwar,
May 3, 1945

Dear Rangachary,

I have gone through your letter. Your wife can remain in the Ashram to do hospital work, provided you and she do not live as husband and wife [and] live at least for a fixed number of years. Otherwise your present mood would be counted as one of fleeting emotion worthless for any lasting good.

Yours,

Bapu

From a photostat: G.N. 9107

518. LETTER TO MRIDULA SARABHAI

Mahabaleshwar,
May 3, 1945

Chh. Mridu,

I am sending herewith the original as revised and a copy of it for your convenience. If it is too late, you can discard it. I hope you are well.

Blessings from

Bapu

Kasturba Gandhi National Memorial Fund
Scindia House
Ballard Estate
Fort, Bombay

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

519. LETTER TO GAJANAN NAIK

May 3, 1945

Chh. Gajananan,

Kumarappa and others will be glad if Dhiren Mazmudar goes there. But how can he go? Everyone is busy in his own work. Do bring him if you are sure that he will come. I am of the opinion that only a new person should be brought in.

What does Jhaverbhai say? He has managed to bring in two persons. Will not one of them do?

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

520. LETTER TO AMIN

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 3, 1945

CHI. AMIN,

You do have compassion and devotion in you. In fact the two words designate the same attribute. But since you lack firmness, the two virtues become mere feelings. You lack firmness because although you know the atman, you do not have paramatma standing before you. And how can there be atman where paramatma is not? And how can we exist if there is no atman? In the end, however, it is a matter of faith. Have that and everything will be all right.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

521. LETTER TO ANANT RAM

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 3, 1945

CHI. ANANT RAM,

Your Urdu writing is very good. Continue to write like this. If Ramanama can do so much how much more can you? If things will continue like this, I shall be very happy indeed. I do not desire any change in your time-table.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: S.G. 131
522. LETTER TO SARASWATI GANDHI

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 3, 1945

CHI. SURU,

Your letter is good.

I would consider it a great triumph if you can win over Harilal. Do not leave him and do not bring him this side. He is so stubborn by nature that he relapses into his old ways again and again. Maybe, the love of you two or, you may say, the innocent love of the kid Shanti¹ will hold him. I shall be happy.

I am glad to hear that, though Prithuraj² is earning so much, Vali³ continues to be as simple and innocent as she was. Has Vali improved in health? My blessings to both of them. Now even Velanbehn⁴ and Anandi⁵ will have arrived there.

What can I say about Ramachandran⁶? It would please me to have him with me but I would not like to take him from Travancore to have him here. I think his work in Travancore is over now. He is at present in the Madras Presidency. You will probably meet him. We shall know more from him.

Blessings to all of you from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 6187. Also C.W. 3461. Courtesy: Kantilal Gandhi

¹ Addressee’s son
² Prithuraj Asar and his wife
³ Ibid
⁴ Wife and daughter of Lakshmidas Asar
⁵ Ibid
⁶ G. Ramachandran, addressee’s maternal uncle
523. LETTER TO GOVIND REDDY

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 3, 1945

CHI. GOVIND,

I have heard that you have become very naughty. It is shameful, if true. You have been kept for a special purpose. You have to be an ideal child. You will become one, won’t you?

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: C.W. 5873. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

524. LETTER TO PRABHAKAR

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 3, 1945

CHI. PRABHAKAR,

You have fallen ill again. This is sin. You overworked and did not care about food and sleep. Why? The body is meant for service. How can we render service, if we do not keep it fit?

You did not exert yourself too much in giving yourself the massage, did you? Take rest and recover. Take quinine if it is necessary. Eat well. Take fruit. Sleep well. Use a mosquito-net. I have written to Govind. Read the letter.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 9027. Also C.W. 9151. Courtesy: Prabhakar

1 Vide the preceding item.
525. TALK WITH D. N. BALAVENTHARAM

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 3, 1945

Mr. D. N. Balavenkataram, former President of the Salem Taluka Congress Committee, asked Gandhiji whether the Press reports that he would not think of entering the temple of Mahabaleshwar as long as they were not open to the Harijans were correct. Mahatma Gandhi remarked:

Yes, the Press reports are true. As long as the doors of the temples are not open to the Harijans, I shall never enter them.

Replying to a question whether a visitor should go on a fast unto death to see that the temples were open to the Harijans, Gandhiji said:

No. That would be an act of violence.

Asked when a fast was violent and when it could be construed as non-violent, Gandhiji replied that it would depend on the circumstances of each case.

The Bombay Chronicle, 4-5-1945

526. LETTER TO HARJIVAN KOTAK

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 4, 1945

CHI. HARJIVAN,

You believe that I have more influence than I actually have. That is not right. Everything is done at its appointed time and depends also on one’s inner urge. Come to the Ashram in July. Write to me.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI HARJIVAN KOTAK
C/O Messrs Vraj Lal & Co.
Jewellers
66/3 Beadon Street
Calcutta

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
527. STATEMENT TO THE PRESS

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 4, 1945

These are the remarks attributed to Sir Firoz Khan Noon⁠¹ as having been made by him at San Francisco.

Sir Firoz Khan Noon claimed that while the Japanese were overrunning Burma and heading towards India, the agents of Mahatma Gandhi’s party severely damaged or destroyed 332 railway stations and 945 post offices. He also alleged that Gandhiji himself encouraged disobedience because “he was convinced that Britain had been defeated and he did not want to displease the Japanese. Gandhiji is in the hands of the reactionary and orthodox Hindus. He would be doing a great service to the country if, at this moment, he were to retire in favour of a younger man. I feel Nehru would be an excellent successor to Gandhi. He has quite a large support among the Muslims and is not so bigoted as Gandhi, who is at a dead-end. The only solution is for Nehru to come to the forefront. But Nehru respects Gandhi so much that he would not come forward.”

Assuming their authenticity, I beg to offer the following remarks:

Time was when I was considered by the British rulers as pro-Japanese, but they quietly withdrew the remark. There was not the slightest foundation for it. It comes somewhat as a surprise that Sir Firoz should make such a statement at this juncture. It may interest him to know that even when the British had suffered severe reverses, I told the masses that the British were fighters who were never dismayed by defeats, delighted in bungling and never learned except by making and even repeating mistakes.

I commend my writings before the August of 1942 to Sir Firoz. He will find in them my answer² to the Congress Responsibility for the Disturbances, 1942-43. I stood for unadulterated Indianindependence and, therefore, could not afford to be lukewarm about Japanese or any other Power’s success against the British. My purpose was to end British or any other foreign rule in India as a whole through non-violent non-co-operation and civil resistance.

¹ Defence Member in the Viceroy’s Executive Council from October 1943; he was one of the three members of the Indian delegation to the San Francisco Peace Conference; the other two were A. Ramaswami Mudaliar and V. T. Krishnamachari. Noon was answering questions in an interview to Indian journalists attending the Conference.

² Vide “Letter to Additional Secretary, Home Department, Government of India”, 15-7-1943
I had never any party of mine in the Congress. I ceased to be its member from December 1934. Whenever my services were needed by the Congress, it had every right to call me in for my special training in non-violent resistance. Neither the Congress nor I had anything to do with civil or other resistance in and after August 1942. I alone was armed with authority to start it when in my opinion the time for it came. But I was arrested before I could take any action or even issue any instructions. Therefore neither the Congress nor I could be saddled with any responsibility for the disturbances of 1942. Apart from that fact, the figures quoted by Sir Firoz are utterly unproved, the Government, though often challenged, never having taken the trouble to prove before a competent court of law the charges made by them with surprising lavishness.

Next, I come to Sir Firoz’s statement about Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru and me. He should know that I have called the Pandit my successor. He does not need to come to the front. He is in the front. The Government of India would not let him work as he would. He and I are friends. But we are no rivals. We are both servants of the people and the platform of service is as big as the world. It is never overcrowded. On it, there is always room for more, and as on the point of independence we have no differences, we are always brothers in arms. He has undoubtedly the advantage of youth over me.

Let Sir Firoz ask his Government, on pain of resignation, to release Pandit Nehru and his fellow-prisoners, and he will see his wish fulfilled. I shall give him my hearty co-operation in its fulfilment.

Let him make no capital out of my supposed bigotry or orthodoxy. He may not know that I have never been a bigot or known as such since my youth. And orthodoxy would not have me for my uncompromising and radical attitude on untouchability and general social reform. Sir Firoz is on safer ground when he accuses me of being out of date. For no one knows what or who is out of date. I confess my ignorance on the point.¹

¹ In Mahatma, Vol. 7, p. 5, D. G. Tendulkar says: “George Bernard shaw stepped in to defend Gandhi: ‘Gandhi’s politics is half a century out of date. His tactics like all tactics are subject to error and readjustment, but his strategy is sound, as it was fifty or five million years ago.’ As for Gandhi’s retiring, he added: ‘Retire from what? His position is natural, not official. The Mahatma cannot hand over anything. Leadership is not a plug of tobacco that can be passed from one man to another.’”
I notice too a remark made that “the Cripps Mission would have had a greater chance of success, if Mr. Gandhi had not interfered at the last stage”. It is astonishing how a lie, once it gets a start, persists. I left Delhi long before the Mission had commenced its talks with the Working Committee. I then ceased to interest myself in the Mission, having more important work on hand.

The Hindu, 6-5-1945

528. TELEGRAM TO GOPAL DEO

Mahabaleshwar,
May 5, 1945

Gopal Deo
Under Secretary
Aryan Conference
Gulburga

NEEDLESS COMING. WRITE FULLY.

Gandhi

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

529. NOTE TO MURIEL LESTER

Mahabaleshwar,
[May] 5, 1945

I have time only to send my love to you and our friends.

Bapu

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

---

1 This was a postscript to Pyarelal’s letter to the addressee. She was Gandhiji’s hostess during his stay in London in 1931 at Kingsley Hall, founded by her for the service of the poorer people of the East End in London.

2 The source, however, has “April”, which is obviously a slip of the pen.
530. LETTER TO APA PANT

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 5, 1945

MY DEAR APA,

I do not want to write to you in English. You must pick up enough Hindustani. Of course you will come when you like after 20th instant. Don’t bring the charkha friend with you. Let him show me the charkha when I descend to Poona.

Love.

BAPU

KUMAR SHRI APA PANT
264 NARAYAN [PETH]
POONA

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

531. LETTER TO LILAVATI ASAR

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 5, 1945

CHI. LILI,

Your letter is both good and bad. It is good, you do not wish as a point of honour to go anywhere without work. But it is bad that you are not engrossed in your studies and still feel hurt that I have not taken you with me. You should know that I know you better than you do yourself. I also know better in what lies your good. Therefore, after you have argued the matter with me, you should quietly and gladly agree to do what I say and act accordingly. You have to get through at the first attempt.

Blessings from

BAPU

LILAVATI UDESHI
S. G. S. MEDICAL COLLEGE
LADY STUDENTS’ HOSTEL
PAREL, BOMBAY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
532. LETTER TO KANAIYALAL N. DESAI

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 5, 1945

Bhai Kanjibhai,

You are drowned in a sea of miseries. After all it is Manibehn who gives me the news! A man is tempered through adversity, in adversity. So do not consider your miseries as miseries. Forgetting God is the real unhappiness. So keep Him in your heart and remain cheerful.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI MANIBEHN PATEL
C/o Dhayabhai Patel
68 Marine Drive, Bombay

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

533. LETTER TO MANIBEHN PATEL

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 5, 1945

Chhi. Mani,

You did well to write. No one could have given the news which you gave. Go and deliver the enclosed letter² to Kanjibhai. I will not say anything more as you are coming here. Narahari, Manilal, Kamalnayan and Satyanarayan³ arrived yesterday. Munshi is coming today. Kamalnayan and Munshi are here only on a flying visit.

Blessings to you all from

BAPU

SHRI MANIBEHN PATEL
C/o Shri Dahyabhai Patel
68 Marine Drive, Bombay

[From Gujarati]

Bapuna Patro-4: Manibehn Patelne, p. 136

¹This was an enclosure to “Letter to Manibehn Patel”, the following item.
²Vide the preceding item.
³M. Satyanarayana, Secretary, Dakshin Bharat Hindi Prachar Sabha
534. LETTER TO PARMANAND DESAI

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 5, 1945

CHI. PARMANAND,

I have your letter. Come whenever you want to. The place will be full when there is a meeting of the Kasturba Smarak Nidhi from the 15th. You are not concerned with that.

Blessings from
BAPU

PARMANAND DESAI
C/O RAMAN BHATIA
170 BARA IMAM ROAD
NULL BAZAAR, BOMBAY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

535. LETTER TO KRISHNAVARMA

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 5, 1945

BHAI KRISHNAVARMA,

I have your postcard. I have faith in your treatment and that is why I suggested that Madhavdas\(^1\) should be sent there. Give him whatever treatment you find necessary without any hesitation. I want him to be cured. While that will make me happy, what is more important is that Ba’s spirit will have peace. Chi. Manilal will bear all the necessary expenses. You are not to do this work free. Your agreeing to take this case is itself a great thing.

Tell Chi. Madhavdas on my behalf that he should resolve to be there and get cured and that he should do whatever you tell him to do. Let me know what the approximate expenditure will be.

Blessings from
BAPU

DR. KRISHNAVARMA
NATURE CURE HOSPITAL
MALAD

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

\(^1\)Madhavdas Kapadia, brother of Kasturba Gandhi
CHI. VALJI,

I have preserved your letter. You can’t expect anything else from Beverley Nichols'. If you feel like, you may write on it in a newspaper. Please read what has been written about village industries in the pamphlet that is published from Maganwadi. Count how many years we have been working to make Sevagram a model village and, if you can predict the future, say how many more will pass. But the attempt itself is a worthy and sincere one, and, therefore, why need we hope for any fruit? Or let us say, rather, that it is a universal law without exception that the fruit of anything good is always good and, therefore, we need neither worry nor hope. Keep on repeating Ramanama, for that is the kalpavriksha. “The two syllables will take the whole family across; all the other gods are only after cash.”

Blessings from
BAPU

PROF. VALJI G. DESAI
GANESH VADI
FERGUSSON COLLEGE ROAD
POONA 4

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 10226. Courtesy: Valji G. Desai

1 Chief contributor of The Sunday Chronicle. He was sent to India in 1942-43 to write articles on Britain’s attitude to India and to publish a book on India. According to The History of the Indian National Congress, Vol. II, Nichols was doing anti-India propaganda and made derogatory remarks about Gandhiji, Hinduism and the Indian Press in Verdict on India.

2 Mythical wish-yielding tree
537. LETTER TO PURUSHOTTAM K. JERAJANI

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 5, 1945

CHI. KAKUBHAI,
Read the enclosed postcard¹. What does it mean?

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI KAKUBHAI
ALL INDIA SPINNERS’ ASSOCIATION
KHADI BHANDAR
BOMBAY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

538. LETTER TO LAKSHMI DEVI

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 5, 1945

CHI. LAKSHMI DEVI,
I am not in my own house. Please do not come here. Be satisfied with letters. You can go over to Sevagram when I go there.

Blessings from
BAPU

LAKSHMI DEVI (OF HARDOI)
KASTURBA SHIBIR
BORIVLI

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ From S. S. Ayyar who had complained that in the Dadar Khadi Bhandar cotton was being carded by two electrically operated machines
539. LETTER TO M. SATYANARAYAN

May 5, 1945

SATYANARAYANJI,

If you understand individual self-reliance, you should understand the self-reliance of a society or an institution. If an individual believes that he will get his bread if he puts in earnest labour, then the same is true of an institution. That is to say, if it renders service, it will get bread without asking, meaning thereby that it will get the money to meet its expenses. In fact, it should get the money from its neighbours. If it does not get it, then it should realize that no one cares for its services. Such a thing can happen while dispelling ignorance in a land of blind faith. Then the expenses will be borne by the reformers. The same rule will apply here too. The reformers in the beginning will starve, a few of them will even die. We must have faith that God will sustain them in some way or other. If you don’t fully understand this, we shall discuss it. We won’t go further than that. I will discuss it only if you want it. However, I would love it.

Blessings from
BAPU

540. LETTER TO ROMEN CHATTERJEE

Mahabaleshwar,
May 5, 1945

CHI. ROMEN¹ (OF ASHRAM),

Your letter is good. You have got to appear for the examination. Attend to the Ashram work properly. Learn both the Hindi and Urdu scripts. Exercise is necessary. Do it when it is cooler. The body should be as steel. The mind should be firm and work should be done in the spirit of service. Attend prayers both morning and evening. Read the \textit{shlokas} and \textit{bhajans}, etc., with commentary.

Blessings from
BAPU

¹ Son of Amrita Lal Chatterjee

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

From a photostat of the Hindi: C.W. 10396. Courtesy: Amrita Lal Chatterjee
541. LETTER TO SAROJINI

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 5, 1945

CHI. SAROJINI DEVI,

I have your letter. Your handwriting is worse than mine. I can hardly read it. If you want to learn Hindustani and improve your handwriting, you have got all the time at your disposal.

You must meet all your expenses and follow Chimanlalbhai’s instructions or leave the Ashram. I cannot build quarters for you. Live in a rented house.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: C.W. 5878. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

542. LETTER TO SHYAMLAL

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 5, 1945

BHAJI SHYAMLAL,

The meeting is on the 17th. I have gone through the agenda. I want that at least the four of us should be of one opinion and finish the work soon. So, if possible, let me have the opinions of the three of you on all the topics or of those available.

Why is the agenda in English? When shall we arrive at Hindi?

Blessings from

BAPU

SHYAMLAL
KASTURBA NIDHI OFFICE
SCINDIA HOUSE
BALLARD ESTATE
BOMBAY

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
543. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 5, 1945

CHI. KRISHNACHANDRA,

I have your letter. Yes, health and everything else depend on the mind. The saying “If the mind is pure, the Ganga is in the house” is always true. Whatever the kind of work one gets, if it is done willingly, one shall surely succeed.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

544. LETTER TO HARIRAM

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 5, 1945

BHAI HARIRAM,

Why do you write to me in English? In Bharat Tek only Bharat’s language should be used. Write in Nagari or Urdu. On paper your work seems good. I will not call anyone here. Continue sending me your journal. If anyone goes over to Segaon after I return there, I might allow him to come. Write to me then. Meanwhile I will continue perusal of your journal.

Blessings from
M. K. GANDHI

HARIRAM ADVOCATE
“Bharat Tek” PRESS
ROHTAK (PUNJAB)

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
545. LETTER TO SITA GANDHI

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 6, 1945

CHI. SITA¹,

I suppose this time I should excuse you for writing in pencil. Don’t say cleaning duty—say cleaning work or dharma to clean up. Duty means dharma. It is not ‘bheen’ but ‘bhinna’. It is ‘sunvu’ and not ‘shunvun’. It is ‘baudhik’ and not ‘baudheek’. It is ‘farvun’ and not ‘trip’.

We are all well here. Manu is still weak. She is not completely free from fever. Kanu left on Sunday. He will take Abha to Rajkot. Manilal has arrived. The weather here is good. It is a pleasant thought that by now you are feeling quite at home there. It will help you a lot, if you preserve your health.

Convey my blessings to all.

Blessings from

BAPU

SITA GANDHI
RASHTRIYA SEVIIKA CLASS
OMARI, AKOLA (BERAR)

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

546. LETTER TO SITARAM P. PATWARDHAN

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 6, 1945

CHI. APPIA.

I have gone through your whole letter to Chi. Hemantkumar² twice. Consider my opinion as useless. When you act upon something that you honestly regard as truth, it is as good as satyagraha. It does not cease to be satyagraha because of my criticism. There will be no progress if we do not act in such a manner. I have not criticized anything. It will be all right if what I write is taken as a guide.

¹ Daughter of Manilal Gandhi
² Joint Secretary of the Gujarat Harijan Sevak Sangh

THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
for the future. I smell untruth in what your co-worker has done. The impression he had made on Gangaputra did not last. It is worse than the equivocation: “It could be a man, it could be an elephant”\(^1\) was in itself falsehood.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI APPASAHEB PATWARDHAN
KANAKVALI P. O.
RATNAGIRI DISTRICT

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

547. LETTER TO MRIDULA SARABHAI

MAHABALESHWAR,

May 6, 1945

CHI. MRIDU,

You gave me a prompt and full reply. It is well and good if you have not done it at the cost of your sleep. You must have met Raihanabehn. She should be satisfied by your reply. I will not write more as you will be seeing me in a few days.

Blessings from

BAPU

MRIDULABEHN
C/O SHEH AMBALAL SARABHAI
MALABAR HILL
BOMBAY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers.Courtesy: Pyarelal

\(^1\) The equivocation from the Mahabharata was by Yudhishtira who was asked to confirm that Ashwatthama had been killed.

VOL. 86: 4 MARCH, 1945 - 28 MAY, 1945 315
548. LETTER TO CHIMANLAL N. SHAH

May 6, 1945

CHI. CHIMANLAL,

Instead of tearing this up, I am sending it for all of you to read.

I hope you yourself are well. Prabhakar should take all the necessary, treatment and get well. If he wishes to go to Bhimavaram he may do so. But I am quite sure that he can get well there if he is regular in food and other habits.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 9108. Also C.W. 9179. Courtesy: Chimnulal N. Shah

549. LETTER TO NARAHARI D. PARIKH

Not revised

May 6, 1945

CHI. NARAHARI,

I have gone through your book Kanyane Patro. The letters seem to have been written with great care but you have not been bold enough.

Your views about mixed marriages are not expressed clearly. Since I believe that we cannot have too many of such marriages, I do not at all approve of marriages within the same caste. I do not find you advocating mixed marriages on an extensive scale even within the same province. You accept inter-provincial marriages only as exceptions. I would encourage them and they ought to be encouraged. Reformists, being indifferent to religion, may do that, but their example will have no effect. We, however, who keep religion in the forefront should make up our minds how far we are prepared to go. If Hindustani becomes the national language and castes and sub-castes as we know them disappear—as they should—we should unhesitatingly accord the highest importance to marriages between Ati-Sudras and caste-Hindus. The question of provincial boundaries will not even arise then. Where parents are wise, there should be no difficulty even about marriages between persons of different religions.
Do we not look upon all religions as equal? It is with some purpose that we have accorded a place to other faiths in our prayer. The offspring may choose either religion. The couple of our conception will give the children liberal education in that regard. In my view this should be quite easy. In ‘letters addressed to a girl’, such things should be stated firmly and clearly.

Mahadev’s article is a little out of focus. Vanamala’s doubt is correct. What do our Jain nuns do? And what about Swaminarayan nuns? It will produce indigestion in the children if we give them so much from English literature. Comparisons should be made only between equals. Our culture is free from the extremes of Western culture. We may know that culture after we have grown up and compare it with ours. Growing children should first understand and assimilate their own heritage. But I will not make this too long.

I was forgetting one point. You have written with people of our category in view, i.e., the upper three castes, and even among them Brahmins and Banias. What about Rajputs? And Sudras? Also Ati-Sudras? They permit divorce and remarriage. There are also communities among whom there is no such thing as marriage ceremony. Even then purity is observed. This thing must be mentioned.

Accept from this only what you can assimilate. This will give you a glimpse of my latest thinking. This is an important letter. Make a copy for record in the office or ask Hemantkumar to make one.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: S.N. 9131

550. LETTER TO GIRIRAJ KISHORE BHATNAGAR

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 6, 1945

CHI. GIRIRAJ,

It is good I got your postcard. It is not a matter for worry that you are not able to meet me. It is enough for me that you are doing the work which is dear to me. Advance your knowledge of Hindi and Urdu so that they become one. It does not matter if it takes time. You did well to send me news of Hari¹ and Vimala².

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 8773

551. LETTER TO G. D. BIRLA

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 6, 1945

CHI. GHANSHYAMDAS,

I hear that you have decided to go on the 12th.³

Bhai Dinshaw is here. He is agreeable to all other conditions; but wants an undertaking that the Trust village will continue to be available for nature cure for at least five years after the document is signed. Later, if the attempt fails, the movable or immovable property of the Trust may be used for educational purposes.

I feel we should agree to this.

You will be in good health.

Is it right about the 12th?

Blessings from

BAPU

[PS.]

Reply by wire.

From the Hindi original: C.W. 8070. Courtesy: G. D. Birla

¹ Addressee’s son and daughter
² ibid
³ The addressee was planning to visit England and America; vide also “Telegram to G. D. Birla”, 8-5-1945.
552. STATEMENT TO THE PRESS

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 6, 1945

What do you think of the future plans now being made by the Government to dispose of Indian industries under high-sounding phrases, through the nationalist-minded Sir Ardeshir Dalal 1 and through the visit of capitalists reported to be presently despatched unofficially to America and England, under the auspices of the Government of India?

This question has been put to me.

Nothing said by those outside the Government ring seems to matter. They have come to know that the best of us will speak loud and give it the lie by our action. Big merchants, capitalists, industrialists and others speak and write against the Government, but in action do its will and even profit—through it—though the profit may amount to, say, five per cent against the Government’s 95. Circumstances alone may be to blame for the condition in which the country has been weltering since the advent of British commerce backed by British guns.

The bright spot in the situation, however, is that all the big interests proclaim with one voice that India wants nothing less than her own elected national government to shape her own destiny free of all control, British or other. This independence will not come for the asking. It will come only when the interests, big or small, are prepared to forgo the crumbs that fall to them from partnership with the British in the loot which British rule takes from India. Verbal protests will count for nothing so long as the partnership continues unchecked.

The so-called unofficial deputation, which the protestants fear, will go to England and America, dare not proceed, whether for inspection or for entering into a shameful deal, so long as the moving spirits of the Working Committee are being detained without any trial for the sole crime of sincerely striving for India’s independence without shedding a drop of blood save their own.

The Bombay Chronicle 7-5-1945

1 Managing Director, Tata Iron and Steel Company, Bombay; Member, Planning and Development, Viceroy’s Executive Council
553. ADVICE TO BRAHMACHARI MAHAVIR

MAHABALESHWAR,
[On or before May 7, 1945]¹

My only advice to you is to go to your own neighbouring villages and serve the villagers there. My fifteen-point programme is before you. Choose any of them and work on it. Learn Hindustani, either in the Devanagari or in Urdu script and teach the same to them. Learn to clean cotton, spin and weave and teach the same to others. No speeches are required but there is the necessity for actual service through work.

The Hindu, 9-5-1945

554. TELEGRAM TO AMRITLAL

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 7, 1945

AMRITLAL
CARE M. L. UDESHI
BOMBAY

WRITING. INTERVIEW NEEDLESS.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

555. TELEGRAM TO MRIDULA SARABHAI

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 7, 1945

MRIDULABEHN SARABHAI
KASHMIR HOUSE, NEPEAN SEA ROAD
MALABAR HILL
(BOMBAY)

COME WITH TARABEHN.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ The advice was reported by United Press of India under the date-line “Mahabaleshwar, May 7” as “sought” by Brahmachari Mahavir of the Ramakrishna Ashram, Madras, who saw in Gandhiji a greater Vivekananda as Vivekananda used to say fifty years ago, “India required great Vivekanandas to serve the poor and the downtrodden and bring about their liberation, both political and spiritual.”

² Ibid
556. TELEGRAM TO “VIRBHARAT”

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 7, 1945

DAILY “VIRBHARAT”
LAHORE
THEY MUST DECIDE LOCALLY.

GANDHI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

557. LETTER TO AGATHA HARRISON

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 7, 1945

DEAR AGATHA,

This\textsuperscript{1} is a full letter. I simply add my love and say I am flourishing as well as circumstances permit.

BAPU

MISS AGATHA HARRISON
2 CRANBOURNE COURT
ALBERT BRIDGE ROAD
LONDON S. W. 11

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

558. LETTER TO MIRABEHN

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 7, 1945

CHI. MIRA,

I got yours last night. I am sorry you are or were ill again when you wrote. The weather here is superb. If Ramprasad can look after your work for some time I would like you to come here and be with me till the end of June.

Do not worry about Ramprasad’s returning quickly. He can be easily spared till I return to Wardha. Indeed if the weather there agrees \textsuperscript{1}The reference is to Pyarelal’s letter to the addressee.

with him and he likes the work, he can stay even beyond June. He is a very capable man. He has done hard work. But he had illness and has been pulled down. Teach him to take care of cattle if he will learn it. He is quite able to learn new things. The question is whether he is strong enough.

Parmeshwariprasad is the likeliest man to send you a man for animals. I shall ask Kamalnayan to write to him. He is in Gaziabad.

I wish Balvantsinha could come. But he can't leave his niece unless I am in Sevagram. She won't let him go during my absence.¹

Pyarelal has a staff of his own—shorthand typist and another assistant. Narahari is also here to assist him. Dinshaw of course attends to me. Manilal of Phoenix is also here and so is Dr. Sushila. Shanti Kumar of course.

Love.

BAPU

From the original: C.W. 6506. Courtesy: Mirabehn. Also G.N. 9901

559. NOTES FOR NARAHARI D. PARIKH

May 7, 1945

1. There can be one Inspector.
2. One kind of food.
3. Uniform pattern of moral education, e.g., teaching of non-violence and truth. Prayer according to religious persuasion.
4. Basic principles of fifteen-point programme.
5. General information about the institutions.
6. Students should spend at least Sheen days in such institutions.
7. The leading workers should have the ability (in general) to run such institutions so that they can render help in any joint institution when the need arises.
8. [The institutions] should keep with them the surplus money if they can.
9. All the workers should learn Hindustani (Hindi-Urdu).
10. Such notes should be circulated among the members asking them which points mentioned therein they like and which they do not. They should add new points. Suggest the date of meeting after June.
11. This note should be sent to others also.

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Vide also “Letter to Balvantsinha”, 12-5-1945.
560. LETTER TO VASUMATI PANDIT

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 7, 1945

CHI. VASUMATI,

What I said, did not mean what you have understood it mean. All I meant was that you should not lose balance of mind. But now I should also like to mean what you have inferred. Free yourself from outside involvements and dig yourself in at Samau whether you live or die. The hope I have cherished of you will flower if you can do so. Have a frank talk with Chandubhai. Clarify things about Surat. But if you lack the necessary strength and do it only for my sake, then it will not be becoming and it will not endure. Whatever dreams I may cherish, how are you concerned?

Do whatever you do, only after measuring your own strength.

I want to see your body glow as copper. I have sent a letter to Akbar. It will have reached him.

Blessings from
BAPU

VASUMATI PANDIT
VILLAGESAMAU, via OLD DISA
NORTH GUJARAT

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

561. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 7, 1945

CHI. MUNNALAL,

I have your two letters. It is not good that you strain yourself and write at twelve o’clock. You should go to bed by ten and get up at four. During day-time you should have one hour’s nap.

Democracy need not be dismissed wholesale. It is based on ahimsa. There is profound truth in the saying “The voice of the Panch is the voice of God”. But the Panch should be worshipper of God.

For you and me and everybody else, the way to peace is silent

1 Vide “Letter to Akbar Chawda”, 25-4-1945.
service and generosity of heart.

I understand about Kanchan. Let her move towards self-perfection in the way she wants. If she is discontented, nobody will be able to stop her, neither you nor I. How, then, can Amtussalaam?

If we wait till the hearts of all become one, we shall have to go waiting for ever. We should follow the dictum “The whole world is good if we ourselves are good” and try our utmost to live in harmony with everybody.

I know Hiramani very well. I should certainly like it if she were to come and stay in the Ashram and get experience. When she wants to marry, she will find the man. But why need she think about that at all? She is a girl who wants to be useful and can be useful in many ways. She may write to me if she wishes.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 8454. Also C.W. 5577. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

562. LETTER TO KRISHNAVARMA

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 7, 1945

BHAI KRISHNAVARMA,

I have your letter and I am answering it at once. You are perfectly right in sending a man to be with Madhavdas, to keep watch over him and make him eat regularly. Do not worry at all that he may say something or disobey you. He has lost grip over himself. That is why I have entrusted him to your care. Make him read this letter so that he knows what I think about him. Let him feel that this letter is addressed to him also. You must accept money for expenses.¹ Let me know about it.

Please keep on writing to me.

Blessings from
BAPU

DR. KRISHNAVARMA
NATURE CURE HOSPITAL
MALAD

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹Vide also “Letter to Krishnavarma”, 5-5-1945.
563. LETTER TO BHAGWANLAL R. SHAH

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 7, 1945

CHI. BHAGWANLAL,

I have received your draft for Rs. 303 from Chi. Jaisukhlal. I hope you are getting on well.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHAH BHAGWANLAL RANCHHOODAS
MEHTA MILL STORES, KARACHI
C/O JAISUKHLAL GANDHI
SIND MARKET, MAHATMA GANDHI ROAD
KARACHI

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

564. LETTER TO CHIMANLAL N. SHAH

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 7, 1945

CHI. CHIMANLAL,

I am enclosing a draft for Rs. 303 drawn on Vachhraj Co., Wardha. Please credit the money in my account. The details are at the back of Chi. Jaisukhlal’s letter. I have sent an acknowledgment to Bhagwanlal. So you need not write to him.

You must do what Dr. Ice suggests for you.

Blessings from
BAPU

[PS.]

He says that you will certainly regain your strength if you take rest and the treatment as he suggests. Do take rest. You need not walk much. Eat what he permits you to. Tell Chi. Shakaribehn\(^1\) to write to me. It is your duty to get well. I stick to my advice that you should do all this if you do not want to leave the Ashram.

\(^1\) Addressee’s wife
We shall not be able to clean the Birla well by manual efforts. We must blast it out. I had told Rameshwardas about it. I do not know what we can do for the time being.

Blessings from

BAPU

CHIMANLAL
SEVAGRAM ASHRAM
WARDHA

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

565. LETTER TO NARAHARI D. PARIKH

May 7, 1945

I remember having replied to one of these letters in Sevagram. I am familiar with the case. I am of the opinion that since Vashi has obeyed the order for so long, he should wait for some time more. However, if he is truly inspired with zeal, he should sacrifice everything, give a clear notice and resort to civil disobedience. He should not be guided by my opinion but by his own inner zeal.

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

566. LETTER TO RAMPRASAD

May 7, 1945

CHI. RAMPRASAD.

I have your letter. It will be very nice if your health remains good. Mirabehn has fallen ill. If you can look after the cattle and manage the other activities and if Mirabehn agrees to take rest, then send her here. ¹

There was a letter from Chi. Kanta. She did not look after her health and so she suffers. For a woman carrying a child it is doubly sinful to be careless about her health. Does she not know that there is neither virtue nor greatness in such carelessness—but only foolishness? How can one make her understand this?

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹This word is in English.
²Bapubhai Naranji Vashi who, after his release from jail on grounds of health, was prohibited from leaving his village
³Vide also “Letter to Mirabehn”, 7-5-1945.
567. LETTER TO NARAHARI D. PARIKH

May 7, 1945

CHI. NARAHARI,

Consult me before writing anything in this matter.

BAPU

[P.S.]

Is this Mastram’s son? I do not know him at all. Mastram is Nanabhai’s friend. He has betrayed Nanabhai. Nanabhai told me that. Now Mastram also must be involved in this. In that case it seems to me that nothing should be written to him.

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

568. LETTER TO SATYAVATI

Mahabaleshwar,

May 7, 1945

CHI. SATYAVATI¹,

I have received your postcard and that of Chimanlal also. It will be a great thing if you are cured even with penicillin. Chand’s² coming there to you, I have left to Chand herself. If she comes she will stay in Harijan Nivas. She has done good work in Borivli and she is interested in getting training as a nurse. She is a dutiful girl.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI SATYAVATI DEVI
T. B. HOSPITAL
KINGSWAY [CAMP], DELHI

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Grand-daughter of Swami Shraddhanand, she was a social worker who became Gandhiji’s close associate from 1930. She was interned during the “Quit India” movement, developed tuberculosis in jail and was released on grounds of health.

² Chandrani’s
569. LETTER TO VIYOGI HARI

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 7, 1945

CHI. VIYOGI HARI.

Chandrani might go there to help Satyavati Devi. If she does, please put her up somewhere in Harijan Nivas. She is a good and simple girl. She is learning nursing at the Ashram. She is from the Punjab. I am well. Convey my blessings to all the Harijan children.

Blessings from
BAPU

VIYOGI HARI
HARIJAN COLONY
KINGSWAY [CAMP], DELHI

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

570. LETTER TO M. S. KELKAR

May 7, 1945

Bhai Ice,

I have your letter. It is good. Everyone says, one must take leafy vegetables and fruit. You say, no. Please let me have your reasons. Don’t you take those things? Is milk alone sufficient diet?

You can certainly cook separately. I on my part want to give you two rooms for your patients. As I am away you may take those from the Secretary. If you can cure any patients I refer to you, I shall be very happy and can then fix your monthly salary.

Make use of whatever utensil is necessary for distilled water. Such water will be of use to us.

Do treat Balkrishna if he himself consults you. His condition has remained unchanged by Dr. Sushila’s treatment.

I am constantly worrying about Hari-ichchha. My faith in you will greatly increase if you can cure her.

1 Hariprasad Dwivedi
I have answered all the questions, haven’t I? Write to me if anything has been left out.

BAPU

[PS.]
Leave space at the top and enough margin.
From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

571. LETTER TO P. C. JOSHI

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 7, 1945

BHAI JOSHI,

It will be all right if Mohan comes on the 24th.¹ If he comes any time between 2 and 4, I will see him.

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

SHRI P. C. JOSHI
COMMUNIST PARTY
RAJ BHAVAN, SANDHURST ROAD
BOMBAY 4

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

572. LETTER TO VIDYA

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 7, 1945

CHI. VIDYA,

Your husband went and then your son too. But what does it matter? All of us are destined to go the same way. Everyone pays his debt and is gone. Some go early, some late. Let the rest of your life be a life of service. Then happiness or sorrow is all the same. May God prosper you.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI VIDYABEHN
RAMJAS BUILDING
4 PARK ROAD
LUCKNOW

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Vide also “Letter to P. C. Joshi”, 3-5-1945.
573. LETTER TO PARACHURE SHASTRI

Mahabaleshwar,
May 7, 1945

Bhai Parachure Shastri,

I have your beautiful letter in Sanskrit. You have risen from the death-bed. Recover fully. Achieve complete victory over the mind. I am well.

Blessings from
Bapu

Shri Parachure Shastri
Maharogi Seva Mandal
Dattapur
Nalvadi P. O., Wardha

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

574. LETTER TO SAILEN德拉 NATH CHATTERJEE

Mahabaleshwar,
May 7, 1945

Chil. Sailen,

Father asked me if he might take you to Calcutta for treatment. What could I do except to say, ‘Yes’? If you could be treated here I would send for you. But it is not possible. I would advise you to go to the Malad Nature Cure Hospital. If you are agreeable I can send you to Dr. Krishnavarma. But you will have to pay the charges there. It would be good if Rishabhdas could give his consent. The climate of Malad is good. It is a suburb of Bombay.

Blessings from
Bapu

[PS.]

Learn to write in Hindustani.

From a photostat of the Hindi: C.W. 10391. Courtesy: Amrita Lal Chatterjee

1 The addressee had been suffering from gastritis.
575. LETTER TO AMRITA LAL CHATTERJEE

May 7, 1945

CHI. AMRITA LAL,

Let them write what they want. I do not wish to send for them here. I have not the time either.

I have advised Sailen to go to the Malad Sanatorium.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: C.W. 10403. Courtesy: Amrita Lal Chatterjee

576. TELEGRAM TO G. V. GURJALE

MAHABALESHWAR

May 8, 1945

NIRMALANANDA
CARE APPLIANCE
BOMBAY
COME SEVAGRAM WHEN I REACH THERE.

GANDHI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

577. TELEGRAM TO SATIS CHANDRA DAS GUPTA

MAHABALESHWAR,

May 8, 1945

SATIS CHANDRA DAS GUPTA
15 COLLEGE SQUARE
CALCUTTA
SORRY ABOUT EYES. DO NOT STRAIN. IF YOU COME YOU WILL STAY JUHU WITH SHANTI KUMARJI1.
SOMEONE WILL MEET YOU DADAR STATION ON RECEIPT YOUR WIRE SHANTI KUMARJI CARE JALANATH BOMBAY

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Shantikumar N. Morarjee
578. TELEGRAM TO G. D. BIRLA

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 8, 1945

SHETH GHANSHYAMDAS
8 ROYAL EXCHANGE PLACE
CALCUTTA

YOUR WIRE.¹ MY STATEMENT² WAS NECESSARY. IT DEALS WITH HYPOTHETICAL CASE. NO HASTY OPINION. STATEMENT EXPRESSES VIEW WHICH I HAVE ALWAYS HELD. YOU HAVE NOTHING TO REGRET SINCE YOU TATA KASTURBHAI PROCEEDING WHOLLY UNOFFICIALLY. YOU HAVE MY BLESSINGS AND PRAYER IN TERMS OF FAMISHING AND NAKED INDIA.³ HANDING PRESS BOTH WIRES.⁴

BAPU

From a copy: C.W. 7871. Courtesy: G. D. Birla

¹ The addressee in his telegram of May 7 had, inter alia, said: “I am very much pained . . . that you could have given a public expression of distrust in the bona fides of myself, Tata and Kasturbhai whom you have so well known, and thought that we were going for entering into a deal on behalf of India, shameful or otherwise. . . . we know that we have no authority to enter even into a good deal to say nothing of shameful. The industrial delegation is going purely as a non-official body at its own expense with its own secretariat to England and America with a view to meet people and study the latest methods of production and scientific achievement. . . . Your statement is sure to be construed as a strong denunciation of our motives. . . . I am leaving Karachi on May 14 and count on your blessings and prayer. . . .”

² Vide “Statement to the Press”, 6-5-1945.

³ In Mahatma Gandhi—The Last Phase, Vol. I, Book One, p. 107, Pyarelal explains that Gandhiji defended himself, when objected to by a friend for “giving his conditional blessing to the industrialists”, saying “that is the only way in which ahimsa can act. . . . My blessings will haunt like a ghost anyone who contravenes the condition attaching to it.” According to Pyarelal, “Gandhiji explained, he had put all concerned, including the British Government, on their honour and made it easier for the industrialist friends to put up a fight against any reaction whether within their ranks or without and resist any plan detrimental to Indian interests. . . .”

⁴ In a telegraphic reply dated May 10, the addressee expressed his sense of relief and said he would go “with a happy heart”.

332 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
579. TELEGRAM TO NIRMALANANDA

MAHABALESHWAR, May 8, 1945

NIRMALANANDA
CARE APPLIANCE
BOMBAY
COME SEVAGRAM WHEN I REACH THERE.

GANDHI

From a copy of: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

580. LETTER TO AMRITLAL V. THAKKAR

May 8, 1945

BAPA,

I have your letter. My work is going on according to my ways. The Government’s reply has come today from Hyderabad. I shall see what can be done. Go through it when you come here. Take rest.

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

581. LETTER TO SHRIMAN NARAYAN

MAHABALESHWAR, May 8, 1945

CHI. SHRIMAN,

Your suggestion is good. How we can get away has to be considered. I will send for you if necessary.

Madalasa was not right in giving up hip-bath. She can fill the tub with river water and use it.

Blessings to all of you. A sweet kiss for Rasagulla.

Blessings from
BAPU

[From Hindi]
Panchven Putrako Bapuke Ashirvad, pp. 305-6

1 From the Hindi Sahitya Sammelan
2 Pet name of Bharat, the addressee’s son
582. TRIBUTE TO RABINDRANATH TAGORE

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 8, 1945

Tagore is not only unquestionably the Poet of India or of Asia, but of the whole world. It has become the custom among us to pay homage to the memory of the great dead not by observing the day of the death anniversary but by observing their birthday. The simple reason, perhaps, is that they never die with the dissolution of their bodies. Their memory becomes immortal in their works. Rama and Krishna were avatars. We celebrate their birthdays. Similarly, though Gurudev is no longer in flesh among us he will continue to live through his immortal poetry. The memory of the Poet will grow richer as years roll by.

_The Hindu, 13-5-1945_

583. LETTER TO AMRIT KAUR

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 9, 1945

CHI. AMRIT,

I have read your letter to Pyarelal. Gurbuxani’s wife has sunk herself in him. Therefore she would do what he says. But never spoil them by giving them more than their worth in our cause and according to our scale. Again no more than your public work can cope with. All I want you to do is to extend your sympathy and advice to them.

Yes, Agatha’s letter that M. brought was duly received by me. He wanted no acknowledgment and I spared myself.

You must keep yourself fit. I am glad Shummy¹ is better. Love to you all.

_Blessings from_
BAPU

From the original: C.W. 4155. Courtesy: Amrit Kaur. Also G.N. 7790.

¹ Gandhiji was speaking at the evening prayer on the occasion of the 85th birth anniversary of the Poet.
² Shumshere Singh, addressee’s brother
584. LETTER TO SYED MAHMUD

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 9, 1945

BHAI MAHMUD,

I had been awaiting your letter. It came today. I was very happy. I notice that you are having a good deal of Success.

Yes, do go to Ceylon.

Come over any time you feel like it. I hope to be here or at Panchgani (which is the same thing) till the end of June. It is cool here, but not very.

Take what treatment you can for your eyes. Do not try just any remedy suggested by anyone. But do take treatment from a person you can trust. Rajaji is with me. The rest when we meet.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Urdu: G.N. 5095

585. LETTER TO KANAM GANDHI

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 9, 1945

CHI. KANAM,

I have your letter. I will say, your handwriting is all right this time. Still there is room for improvement. You will form a good hand if, whenever you write to anyone, you do so in a neat handwriting. You are learning well there too. Show this to Krishnachandraji so that he will teach you if he has time.

Come to me whenever you want to. You will be accommodated here. Up to the 20th I shall be a little short of time. After that I hope to have some leisure.

Dr. Mahmud will have gone to Ceylon. Address his letter to Delhi, C/o Dr. Shaukat Ali Ansari.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers.Courtesy: Pyarelal
586. LETTER TO KRISHNAVARMA

May 9, 1945

BHAI KRISHNAVARMA,

I have your letter. I take it that Madhavdas is getting on well. I do wish that you should at least accept the amount you actually spend on him. You may not take anything when I send someone who really can’t pay. I did not pay for Ba’s treatment, did I? If you do not accept anything I shall have hesitation in sending you other cases.

If you cannot write yourself, you should not hesitate to ask others to write to me. The only thing is that all sections of the Nature Cure Clinic should be functioning well.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

587. LETTER TO GAJANAN NAIK

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 9, 1945

CHI. GAJANAN,

I have your letter. Even if you go to Dhiren, you can go only with their permission and with money taken from there. You are not going there on your own. After all you are working, are you not, for the Gramodyog [Sangh]?

It is your duty to write to me the things which you now hesitate to write. You should not care whether it will make me happy or unhappy. If a person dedicated to public work has not acquired the capacity to hear unhappy things it may be said he has not achieved anything. Therefore write to me without any hesitation.

Blessings from
BAPU

C/O SEVAGRAM ASHRAM

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
588. LETTER TO CHUGH

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 9, 1945

BHAI CHUGH,

I have your wire. I have written to you that you should treat me when I come down, haven’t I? The main treatment will be for shivering, blood-pressure and hook-worm. The climate here is congenial. So if there is an improvement it will be difficult to say whether it was due to the climate or the treatment. If the climate here does not do any good I shall see what your treatment does. Besides, in Sevagram you will also treat other patients.

Blessings from
BAPU

DR. CHUGH
RAVAL BUILDING
LAMINGTON ROAD (SOUTH)
BOMBAY 4

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

589. LETTER TO KAMALA LELE

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 9, 1945

CHI. KAMALA¹,

I have your postcard. I am glad that you have fully recovered. It didn’t matter that you could not meet me. So you have named him Jyotirmaya². Why this craze for such Sanskritized names? It is a futile trend. Remember this for the future. If the marriage³ is in the same community do not ask for my blessings, however deserving the girl may be. I send my blessings if she is from another community.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 6111. Also C.W. 3425. Courtesy: Kamala Lele

¹ A social worker; she was teaching in Mahila Ashram, Wardha.
² Addressee’s new-born son
³ Of the addressee’s brother-in-law
590. LETTER TO MUSHTAQ AHMED

MABABALESHWAR,
May 9, 1945

Bhai Mushtaq Ahmed,

I have your letter of the 2nd instant. The replies to your questions are given below:

1. Communal representation is in itself bad.

2. No one today has the right to enrol members for the Congress.

The committees you mention have not been formed constitutionally. They just set themselves up. Everyone can therefore refuse to recognize them.

4. So far as I am aware there are no restrictions in this regard laid down in the Congress Constitution. Even a hooligan can enter the Congress.

5. Yes, provided, they sincerely work for the Congress.

The above answers should be considered tentative. They represent my personal view. From a legal angle my view could be wrong and, even if it was not, it could be rejected for the simple reason that I do not possess any authority. You may therefore assume that it is not to be taken into account.

Yours,

M. K. Gandhi

Mushtaq Ali
34 Prem House
Connaught Place, New Delhi

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

591. LETTER TO J. R. D. TATA

MABABALESHWAR,
May 10, 1945

Bhai Jehangir,

I have your angry note, if you can ever write anything angry.

If you have all gone not to commit yourselves to anything, my note protects you. My answer is to the hypothetical question. If the hypothesis is wrong, naturally the answer is wrong and is therefore protective of you all. There was no question of my referring to any of you, as I was dealing with an assumption. I hope I am clear.

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

592. LETTER TO S. K. PATIL

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 10, 1945

BHAI PATIL,

I am not satisfied with the report you have sent to Pyarelal. I wanted the published public programme of the Party. Still it is something. I hope all the efforts being made will bear fruit and the constructive activity will progress.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI S. K. PATIL, M.L.A. (BOMBAY) HIRA HOUSE
381 SANDHURST ROAD
BOMBAY 4

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

593. LETTER TO HIRALAL SHAHSTRI

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 10, 1945

BHAI HIRALAL SHAHSTRI,

Enclosed are two letters from Ku. Bagale. You must have seen the newspaper. If you wish you may send a reply. Her letters have not made a favourable impression on me. But why was Ratandevi a party

2 Vide also “Letter to G. D. Birla”, 10-5-1945.
3 The source has this in Gujarati: “Tamaro”.
4 General Secretary of Bombay Provincial Congress Committee for 17 years, he became its President in 1946; Minister, Government of India, 1957-63 and 1964-67

VOL. 86 : 4 MARCH, 1945 - 28 MAY, 1945

339 to it? I was under the impression that she did not know English and I always respected her. I was taken aback when I read her letter in the Press. It is immaterial whether she herself wrote it or had someone else to write it. If women themselves kiss these fetters instead of breaking them, what is the good of an institution such as yours? All the girls will write in English and raise a controversy in the Press. This complaint is my own. It has nothing todo with Ku. Bagale and others. She is steeped in English.

Blessings from

BAPU

From the Hindi original: Hiralal Shastri Papers. Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library

594. LETTER TO G. D. BIRLA

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 10, 1945

CHI. GHANSHYAMDAS,

I have your letter. I have read it twice.

I like your enthusiasm. I am doubtful about the benefit. However, there is no harm if you merely observe and do not commit yourselves. You have sent a telegram. Tata writes that you are going only to have some experience and not to bind yourselves to anything. It is just as well.

It was absolutely necessary to answer¹ Noon.

I have published your telegram and also my reply.² The sharp replies provoked by my statement³ show how thoughtless we generally are. My statement is in defence of those who are going, provided they are not proceeding in order to work for the Government. The Government of course want it and are ready to help. They also know its intention. What is the point in going if you will not serve their interests? I told them clearly that so long as they do not expect any orders and till the political prisoners are released, there is no harm in going. Even if there is some gain it has to be given up so long as there is no popular authority or popular rule.

¹ Vide “Statement to the Press”, 4-5-1945.
³ Vide “Statement to the Press”, 6-5-1945.
Convince your colleagues that my statement was quite proper if they prove themselves staunch.

Preserve your health and improve it during the journey.

You must have received my letter\(^1\) regarding Dinshaw. I am enclosing a copy of the letter I had sent at Delhi. There is no harm incoming out of the Trust if there is even the slightest hesitation. Dinshaw’s mind is still set on it.

_Blessings from_

_BAPU_

[PS.]

If you find my statement harmless, pacify Tata\(^2\) and others.

[Enclosure:] Copy of the letter about Dinshaw.

From the Hindi original: C.W. 8071. Courtesy: G. D. Birla

---

595. _LETTER TO SOPHIA WADIA_

_MAHABALESHWAR, May 11, 1945_

DEAR SISTER,

I have your usual gift for the White Lotus Day to be used for any of my various constructive public activities.

Love to you both.

_BAPU_

SHRI SOPHIA WADIA

ARYA SANGHA

22 NARAYAN DABHOLKAR ROAD

MALABAR HILL, BOMBAY 6

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

---

\(^1\) Vide “Letter to G. D. Birla”, 6-5-1945.

\(^2\) Vide also “Letter to J. R. D. Tata”, 10-5-1945.
596. LETTER TO TARACHAND

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 11, 1945

Bhai Tarachand,

Pandit Sunderlal is here. It is good he came. I have had talk with him. As a consequence we all feel that there is a danger of being misled if the committee functions at Allahabad. Panditji said that those working on the Board\(^1\) will be afraid of going to Wardha and may refuse to go there. The implications of this are obnoxious. The Sabha was born in Wardha. It functioned in Wardha. The work on the dictionary should be carried on in Wardha and, if I am to do this work and supervise the dictionary, the office of the Board should be in Wardha. There will be nothing to worry about if, for the sake of convenience, some work is done in Allahabad. A building was constructed in Wardha for this work. Kakasaheb’s place is in Wardha. I am, therefore, of the firm opinion that the headquarters of the Dictionary Board should be in Wardha. If Akhtar works for us he should stay in Wardha. It will be all right if your own share of work is for the most part sent on to you in Allahabad. From this point of view, consideration of expenditure becomes secondary. We should now make public the names of the members of the Board we have decided to form, shouldn’t we? Panditji is writing to the persons concerned. We have to have someone take the final decision about the work and then get it approved by the executive committee. Isn’t that so? According to the rules it should be like that. Let me know your opinion. I am here and in Panchgani till the end of June.

Panditji is of the opinion that I should be the constitutional head of the Board. But I don’t think it is necessary.\(^2\)

Yours,

M. K. Gandhi

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

---

\(^1\) The Literature Board of the All-India Hindi Prachar Sabha; vide “Statement to the Press”, 26-6-1945.

\(^2\) Vide also the following item.
597. LETTER TO MAGANBHAI P. DESAI

May 11, 1945

CHI. MAGANBHAI,

I have your letter. What you write about Purushottam is right. A man belonging to the Urdu Anjuman can also belong to our organization, can’t he? Therefore those working for the Hindi Sammelan can also work for us. I should maintain that policy as long as I am associated with the Sammelan work. However, if that is against the policy of the Sammelan then I must leave. I am considering this. Please welcome Kosambi on my behalf.

I am in correspondence with Dr. Tarachand. We have formed a special committee at Wardha, haven’t we? We shall do everything after consulting it and the General Body, shall we not?

My views on the future activities of the Vidyapith are as follows. We must start implementing the ideas I have expressed on Nayee Talim. That covers everything. So there will be a revolutionary change in the existing schemes of the Vidyapiths. The entire structure will change. However, these changes won’t be effected artificially. Whatever you wish to take from my speeches or discussions should be acted upon. Can you understand from this what I have in mind? Come to Panchgani if you want to know more.

It is your duty to persuade Narahari and take him with you. You will have to take many in this way. That is what is called institution ethics. If that is not done only individual work will be done. Now I have replied to all your questions.

Blessings from

BAPU

MAGANBHAI DESAI
GUJARAT VIDYAPITH
AHMEDABAD

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

598. LETTER TO RAMJI GOPALJI BADHIA

May 11, 1945

BHAI RAMJI,

I have your letter. The day of the hearing is over, so we may say that the purpose has been achieved. Do not seek my advice in this thing, Parikshitlal is there. Do whatever is needful after consulting him. You should keep me free from personal affairs. I am no longer in a position to cope with such work.

1 Vide the preceding item.

Blessings from
BAPU

RAMJI GOPALJI
HARIJAN ASHRAM
SABARMATI

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

599. LETTER TO CHIMANLAL N. SHAH

May 11, 1945

CHI. CHIMANLAL,

Give Chandrani whatever amount she needs for the journey to Delhi. See that she reaches safely. Tell her, I have already written² to Viyogi Hari and that she should go straight by tonga to Kingsway [Camp]. Let her stay at the Harijan Colony. Tell her to write to me. Tell her to take care of her health.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10629

600. LETTER TO SHARDA G. CHOKHAWALA

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 11, 1945

CHI. BABUDI,

You seem to be very dear to God. Something or the other always befalls you. So a heavy weight fell on Anand³? He was lucky to survive. Was the accident caused through any of his pranks? Learn to train him. God is testing you; see that you pass.

Blessings from
BAPU

From the Gujarati original: C.W. 10057. Courtesy: Sharda G. Chokhawala

¹ Parikshitlal Majmudar
³ Addressee’s son
601. LETTER TO UMADEVI AGRAWAL

May 11, 1945

CHI. OM,

I like your Urdu very much. The handwriting is also neat. If my letter gives you peace, happiness and food for the mind, then it is something to be thought over. You should have such strength that once having understood me, you should not need a letter from me, nor should it be necessary to consult me. That is to say, you should be able to digest my views.

I am happy to know that Kanam is getting on well.

What do Chimanlal and others say about exercise? Saman is there, isn’t he?

You have the equipment, don’t you?

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

602. LETTER TO VIRBALA

MAHABALESHWAR,

May 11, 1945

CHI. VIRBALA,

You mention my old letter. But the assurance I gave you then I cannot give you today. I have a place for you because my desire is the same as before. But I do not have the strength. Write to me if you want to, after I return to Sevagram. At the moment it is almost impossible to call you.

Blessings from

BAPU

CHI. VIRBALA
C/o LALA RADHAMOHAN JI
227 WEST STAND ROAD
KEDAR KUTIR, MEERUT

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
603. LETTER TO M. S. KELKAR

May 11, 1945

BHAI ICE,

I have your letter. How nice it will be if Hari-ichchha recovers completely. The entire credit will go to you. More than that, flowers will be showered on you from above.

Blessings from

BAPU

[PS.]

Do something to make the heat there bearable.

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

604. DISCUSSION WITH C. RAJAGOPALACHARI

Mahabaleshwar,

May [11/] 12, 1945

RAJAGOPALACHARI: The people, who are now saying they are doing your constructive work, are really parliamentarians but only one branch of it and they seek power through your unofficial influence, whereas other parliamentarians are seeking it through constitutional channels. On the other hand, the only man who understands and can do your constructive work is myself.

GANDHIJI: Yes.

Are you thinking of dividing Congress work into functions?

I am not thinking of division of functions. But there is a natural division. But I have not thought (of) compartments lower and higher.

It is like varna vyavastha.

Horizontal, never vertical. But my conception certainly is that we can come to our own if all take up constructive work.

Parliamentary work will help constructive work. But (constructive) work need

1 The discussion is extracted from “Rajaji: Gandhiji’s Alter Ego” by Pyarelal, who says that the talks continued for two days. However, only the last paragraph, under the date-line May 12, 1945, is available in the G.N. source. According to Pyarelal, Gandhiji wrote out his answers on slips of paper as he was “observing silence for a greater part of the day, under medical advice”.

2 ibid

3 This and other parentheses are as in the source.
not necessarily be our whole care.

It replaces armed activity. But we can never come to our own through parliamentary activity (alone).

If, on the one hand, no one outside can act on behalf of the Congress and, on the other, the British Government will not release the Working Committee members unless a basis of reconciliation has been authoritatively agreed to, there is an insoluble tangle. Someone must some time or other act on behalf of the Congress and accept a scheme of settlement and, as a part of that scheme, the prisoners must be released. You must, therefore, act on behalf of the Congress. You know you are competent to do it. You say that every Congressman may act on his own authority as if he were president. But this is chaos. Suppose now, there are a number of president-candidates, the best man must win. That is you. The man who is in fact the best man to take up authority should take up responsibility at some time. There is no use asking others to negotiate without committing the Congress. There is no force behind Bhulabhai’s efforts because you have not given open and unreserved approval to his proposals. It is only if you take up the authority like a dictator, can reasonable scheme of settlement have success. You must take up authority on behalf of the Congress some time.

That point may be reached some time, but not now.

It may be that parliamentary activity will advance constructive work and that will help.

Then you hold my view or I yours."}

As Churchill (was it Pritt?) has said, the courts are not beyond political influence. This he said some years ago about Judge Granville over a heated political case involving judicial points. In my case (in South Africa) it was a franchise question. I lost because it was political. I had engaged Asquith.

If Colville (the Governor of Bombay) means it, he can say,

---

1 Leader of the Congress Party in the Central Assembly, he was trying to end the political deadlock in the matter of Congress-League coalition for the formation of a national government through talks with Liaquat Ali Khan, Deputy Leader of the Muslim League in the Central Assembly; the talks, however, failed.

2 Vide “Note to Bhulabhai J. Desai”, 5-1-1945.

3 Pyarelal explains, rest of the discussion took place on May 12 and it was about the Asthi-Chimur prisoners, which Gandhiji “made the acid test of British sincerity”. Vide also “Silence day Note to Bhulabhai Desai”, 11-6-1945.

4 D. N. Pritt, Q. C., a noted English lawyer

5 Then Rajaji asked him to suggest a modus vivendi.

6 Sir John Colville
‘withdraw legal proceedings and exercise clemency.’ I have done all these things in South Africa once through Hertzog. Clemancy has now a greater chance of success. Let us hope that Bhulabhai is on the qui vive. I don’t mind if the examination is started. . . . I simply feel that we shall have to go through these things, if the rulers are bent on crushing us. The difference between you and me is not great, but (it is) vital though (it seems) small. You want, if you do, power at any price. I have put a limit to the price to be paid. You think if you do that nothing will come if we don’t take power. I say, I can afford to wait till it comes at my price, for I am making progress however slight it may be. . . .

If you feel like talking about any other thing, I am prepared and will gladly set apart the time. I simply do not worry you for I have nothing to ask. Your presence gives me solace and strength. What more do I want? I understand you and you me.

Swarajya, 11-12-1971; also from a photostat: G.N. 2105

605. LETTER TO SHYAMLAL

May 12, 1945

CHI. SHYAMLAL,

Now I understand why you wrote in English. We cannot remove the ignorance of years unless we persist.

It is 6.45 in the morning, so I am working under a light. I am reading the papers sent by you. As the Hindi typing is not clear, I have difficulty in reading it. But switching over to English is not the remedy. What you want is a Hindi copyist. The copyist should do the writing in a neat hand and copies when required can be chromo- graphed or Roneoed.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHYAMLAL
KASTURBA HOUSE
SCINDIA HOUSE
BOMBAY

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 James B. M. Hertzog, Prime Minister of South Africa, 1924-39
2 Omissions as in the source
3 ibid
606. LETTER TO SITA GANDHI

May 12, 1945

CHI. SITA,

Your handwriting is good. The letters are clear but too small. Cultivate the habit of writing a bigger hand. You will then get into the habit of writing uniformly either in small or big handwriting. I am glad that you are now fully engrossed in work.

I desire the very same thing that you do. This is a very good opportunity indeed for Arun and Ila. They will not find it easy to bear the heat of that place. But they have not learned to stay without Mother’s. Her first duty is to stay with her ailing mother. If and when Tari takes Mother’s place for a while, she may come here with the children.

You should learn to preserve excellent health in any climate. It is possible to do so.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 4979

607. LETTER TO CHIMANLAL N. SHAH

May 12, 1945

CHI. CHIMANLAL,

Can you keep the accounts? This will not imply any responsibility for running the Ashram. The expenditure will be the responsibility of the Secretary. You should look after the accounts. You may take it easy the rest of the time.

“Who would practise the difficult vows of yama, niyama, shama and dama which even the minds of seers cannot grasp?” This is easy

1 Brother and sister of the addressee
2 ibid
3 The source has ‘behn’ meaning sister. In Gujarati, mother is sometimes addressed ‘behn’ by the children
4 Sushila Gandhi’s sister
5 The source has ‘behn’ meaning sister. In Gujarati, mother is sometimes addressed ‘behn’ by the children to sing but difficult to practise, as the poet says. Doesn’t agama¹ in the line stand for agamya²? Self-discipline embraces the whole life. How can a man who has achieved freedom from desire or control of desire suffer from any disease or any laxity? Think over this. The responsibility of running the Ashram should be borne by Munnalal and Krishnachandra by turns. Make a list of the jobs to be attended to by them. Other things should be looked after by Jajuji³ The Ashram should not be closed, nor should its name be changed. If you don’t want to leave the Ashram, I shall not make you do so. One can work according to one’s ability, but ability may either increase or decrease. You should see to it that yours increases.

I understand about ice [doctor].

You will find the rest in the other letter, which please read.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10631

608. LETTER TO RAMANLAL ENGINEER

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 12, 1945

BHAJ RAMANLAL,

I have your frank letter. Your handwriting is so good that I excuse you for writing in pencil. Otherwise writing in pencil is uncivilized. It is violence.

There is frankness in your letter and it should be so. It is not impolite at all. It should be like that.

I do not agree with some of your suggestions but I do not have the time to go into them. I wish I were proved wrong and what you write should turn out to be true.

I note your inclination. What you like would be best. The book arrived yesterday. It has still to reach my hands.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI RAMANLAL ENGINEER
BHARATIYA SAHITYA SANGH
SECOND FLOOR, BHIMRAJ BUILDING
KALBADEVI ROAD, BOMBAY 2

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Beyond comprehension
² Beyond comprehension
³ Srikrishnadas Jaju
609. LETTER TO GULZARILAL NANDA

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 12, 1945

CHI. GULZARILAL,

I have your letter. We should understand what Ambalal Sheth says. He says, “You do make efforts. But the labourers listen to you as long as it serves their purpose and when it comes to their doing their duty, they do not listen to you so that our scheme must fall flat.” It is beside the point whether the Sheth himself fulfils his part of the bargain. What he does is of secondary importance to us. Even so what you wrote to me about his shortcomings, you should write to him also very frankly. I am certainly with you.

I find immediate relief through allopathic medicine. I have written to Dr. Chugh that I shall watch what the climate here can do, and when I descend from here I shall see what his treatment can do. Tell me if you have to say anything in this.

Blessings from
BAPU

GULZARILAL NANDA
MAJOOR MAHAJAN
MIRZAPUR ROAD
AHMEDABAD

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

610. LETTER TO CHHAGANLAL JOSHI

May 12, 1945

SHRI CHHAGANLAL,

I have gone through your long letter to Bapa. He suggests that I should see you. I have written to you that I am always ready to see you. So come and see me whenever and wherever you want. Remember that whatever difficulties we imagine are created by us.

Convey my blessings to everyone there.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI CHHAGANLAL JOSHI
ANAND BHAYAN
RAJKOT
KATHIWAR

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

611. LETTER TO AMRITLAL V. THAKKAR

May 12, 1945

BAPA,

That we should be having such a beautiful Hindustani translation brought out by the Servants of India Society and not using it! You are a member in name (officially) and in fact. I am not one in name but am certainly one in fact. I wanted to do it just for fun. The main reason for writing this is to reply to your letter. I am certainly prepared to meet the gentleman from Dharwar. Where should I meet him? After getting down from here or somewhere here itself? I have given time to Chhaganal.¹ I know about his unhappiness. I will see him again as you advise. I am writing to him. . . .²

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI THAKKAR BAPA
SERVANTS OF INDIA SOCIETY
POONA 4

¹ Vide the preceding item.
² A sentence is unintelligible here.
613. LETTER TO SUMITRA GANDHI

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 12, 1945

CHI. SUMI,

I received your letter only today. You do not get the time I do. Your handwriting is good. Continue to write with the same care. You should consider it a crime to be hasty because you are too taken up with your examination.

Tell Lakshmi to get well soon. Tell Papa that if Lakshmi cannot write, then she should. I hope Narasimhan\(^1\) is well. Manilal is here. Sushila, Arun and Ila have not come.

Blessings from

BAPU

CHI. SUMITRA GANDHI
“HINDUSTAN TIMES” BUILDING
NEW DELHI

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

614. LETTER TO RAMDAS GANDHI

May 12, 1945

CHI. RAMDAS,

Are both of you too lazy or only showing pity on me? This is for you to read. I am well. Manilal is here. Sushila and the children have not come. How are you? How is Nimu\(^2\)? I receive letters from Kanam. He may come here.

Blessings from

BAPU

[PS.]

How is Usha\(^3\)?

SHRI RAMDAS GANDHI
TOMCO SALES DEPARTMENT
KHALASI LINES, NAGPUR

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

\(^1\) Son of C. Rajagopalachari
\(^2\) Nirmala (wife), and daughter of the addressee
\(^3\) ibid
615. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 12, 1945

CHI. KRISHNACHANDRA,

Balkrishna has done the correct thing. Does it not mean that the vaidya’s medicine did not give permanent relief? If he is inclined that way, why must he wait for my also being so inclined? Dr. Kelkar’s treatment after all will do no harm. Keep me informed about the effect of the treatment.

You have done well about Sanskrit. Learn the grammar properly. Let Balkrishna also study Grimm’s law. It will help considerably. Learning of the script will also become easy if it is kept in mind.

It is good to study the science of khadi. Do not do any reading while walking. Only think. Do not strain your eyes. Vinoba’s discourses are good. Since you have learnt the art of reading newspapers, 45 minutes is not too much. Understand where this art lies.

Do as much carding as is necessary for making slivers.

I forgot about weaving. See both the spinning and the weaving in the Nagpur Mill. Observe both these processes at Savli where too they are carried on.

It is all right to meet at night, but not for discussion. Work in silence. Or everyone may read what they like in silence. The thing is that in spite of diversity of opinions all are working on the same thing.
It is your duty to give your whole-hearted co-operation in that work.

The lines in the hand are not without significance. But do not get caught in palmistry.

Urdu diction is used by Muslims in writing. Hindi diction is used by Sanskrit pundits. Hindustani is the sweet mingling of the two.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4570. Also C.W. 5877. Courtesy:
Krishnachandra

1 Formulated by the German grammarian Jacob Grimm (1785-1863), it is on the regularity in the correspondences of consonants in the Germanic and other Indo-European languages.
616. LETTER TO BALVANTSINHA

May 12, 1945

CHI. BALVANTSINHA,

Don’t torment Hoshiari now. Wait till I come. Write to Mirabehn. I can understand Hoshiari’s sorrow. I have already written to Mirabehn about her.

The experiment which Munnalal is conducting in regard to the ‘servants’ is good. That is what should be done. If it fails, it will show that our ahimsa is as yet very incomplete. The error is one of understanding. Let us not treat servants as servants but as brothers. Even if they spoil things or steal or the expenses go up, it will not be in vain if we can consider them as members of the family. Think it over.

I have instructed Chimanlal about the question of management. Give thought to it and, if possible, appoint a new manager every month.

Blessings from
BAPU

617. LETTER TO SWAMI RAMANAND TIRTH

MAHABALESHWAR,

May 12, 1945

SWAMIJI,

I have your letter and also that of Vinayakrao. It is a sad chapter.\(^1\) I am doing what I can. The ultimate remedy is in the hands of people like you.

Blessings from
BAPU

SWAMI RAMANAND TIRTH
NANDED, HYDERABAD DISTRICT

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

\(^1\) Vide “Letter to Mirabehn”, 7-5-1945.

\(^2\) The reference is, presumably, to police atrocities in Gulburga; vide also the following two items.
618. LETTER TO VINAYAKRAO KORATKAR

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 12, 1945

Bhai Vinayakraoji,

I have your letter. I am pained to hear about all that has happened. I am proceeding after my own style. Two activities cannot be carried on at one and the same time.¹

Blessings from
M. K. Gandhi

Shri Vinayak K. Koratkar, bar-at-law
Hyderabad (Deccan)

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

619. LETTER TO DAMODARDAS MUNDRA

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 12, 1945

Chi. Damodar,

It seems you have maintained your health. I have seen your programme. I had of course immediately started work about Gulburga. Let us see what happens. It is very sad.

Blessings to both of you from
Bapu

Shri Damodar
Mahila Ashram
Wardha

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹Vide "Letter to Muhammad Ahmad Said Khan, 15-5-1945."
620. LETTER TO VINA CHATTERJEE

May 12, 1945

CHI. VINA,

have your letter. It is good you wrote to me. Keep your body and mind healthy. Write to me in Hindi, whatever its quality. Tell me all your experiences of Boriivi. How much progress have you made in Urdu?

Zohra has not written. Tell her also to write: what she has learnt, how she is, and so forth. Each one should set down her experiences separately.

Manu has gone to Bombay. Her health has not improved.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

621. LETTER TO KAMALA AND VASANTI

MAHABALESHWAR,

May 12, 1945

CHI. KAMALA\(^1\) AND VASANTI\(^2\),

I have letters from both of you. They are good. You are doing good work. There is no need to feel unhappy. Donald Greene will get well.

Keep fit and render lots of service.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI KAMALABEHN
FRIENDS’ SETTLEMENT, RASANIA
HOSHANGABAD DISTRICT

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

\(^1\) Margaret Jones, a friend of Mary Barr; she was working in Khedi during the latter’s absence in South Africa. She was also undergoing training in midwifery to help villagers.

\(^2\) Barbara
622. LETTER TO SRIKRISHNADAS JAJU

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 12, 1945

Bhai Jajuji,
I have your letter. I approve of Dr. Rajan and Gopalaswami (of Harijan Sevak Sangh). Let me know if there are any others.

Blessings from
BAPU

SRIKRISHNADAS JAJU
AKHIL BHARATIYA CHARKHA SANGH
SEVAGRAM P. O., via, WARDHA

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

623. LETTER TO VIYOGI HARI

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 12, 1945

Bhai Viyogi hari,
I received Chandrani’s letter yesterday. She is going there tomorrow for Satyavati Devi’s sake. Put her up in Harijan Nivas. Give her this.

Blessings From
BAPU

SHRI VIYOGI HARI
HARIJAN NIVAS
KINGSWAY [CAMP], DELHI

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

Vide the following item.

358 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
624. LETTER TO CHANDRANI

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 12, 1945

CHI. CHAND,

I have your letter. Your decision is good. I had written to Viyogiji before I received your letter. Do what Satyavati says. She should get well. If Satyavati agrees, you can come back earlier. Show this letter to her. I had received her postcard. Satyavati is always in my thoughts. If she is a soldier, she is a great one. Khurshedbehn¹ is in Panchgani.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

625. LETTER TO M. S. KELKAR

May 12, 1945

BHAJ ICE,

I see from your letter that you think it would be good if I took only milk. I tried that too but lost weight immediately. I consider it a crime to take fruit, or leafy vegetables or anything just for the taste. However, if one finds taste in what one ought to eat, I won’t reject it. For the present things are being discussed purely from the medical point of view. I have seen no book recommending giving up of leafy vegetables and fruit. It will be a great gain if what you say is true. It will be a great thing if Hari-ichchha is cured.

I hear that you have started Balkrishna’s treatment. May you be successful.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Khurshedbehn Naoroji, grand-daughter of Dadabhai Naoroji
DEAR IFTIKHAR,

Give up the habit of writing and speaking in English, if you want to be free.

I have read your letter. It is my view that no one has the right to speak in the name of the Congress, not even members of the All-India Working Committee who are out of jail. They can do so only when the whole Committee is out. Neither you nor anyone else has the right to work in the name of the Congress. This does not mean that you should sit idle and not exercise your influence. Nobody can deprive you of your individual position. The same applies to members of the Congress Workers’ Assembly. Everyone is his own leader. Everyone is free to lead those who follow him. This to my mind is the constitutional position. Let no one therefore use my name. I have not issued any circular. What was attributed to me must have been taken from an opinion expressed in a letter I wrote to someone in Ahmedabad. All that it meant was that no one can issue orders in the name of the Congress.

Now as regards your restrictions. So long as you do not regard yourself under control of the Government, whatever you wrote (in reply to the restriction order) was correct. We must never yield.

Blessings to you both from BAPU

The Hindu, 15-5-1945

---

1 & 2 The letter was reported under the date-line “May 13, 1945” as “sequel to a dispute between two groups of Congressmen in the Punjab who nominated two rival candidates to contest the bye-election in the Lahore City Constituency of the Punjab Assembly”

2 ibid

3 President of the Punjab Provincial Congress Committee

4 The reference is to a telegram from Raghunandan Saran of Delhi to C. Rajagopalachari seeking clarification on an alleged circular by Gandhiji which appeared in The Bombay Chronicle, 2-5-1945. Gandhiji’s denial of the circular was reported by Pyarelal in a statement published in The Bombay Chronicle, 11-5-1945; vide Appendix “Pyarelal’s Statement”, 11-5-1945.

5 The addressee and his nominee, Virendra, who, according to the source, withdrew his candidature “in view of Gandhiji’s letter”, letting Kedarnath Sehgal of the Punjab Congress Workers’ Assembly to contest against the Hindu Mahasabha candidate.
627. TELEGRAM TO MANUBHAI K. BHIMANI

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 13, 1945

Bhimani
Care Vahlovalan
Calcutta

You have misunderstood my wire² Birla. Reread.

Gandhi

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy Pyarelal

628. LETTER TO SONJA SCHLESIN

May 13, 1945

Dear Miss Schlesin³,

Your letter. I value it for its contents.

You did well to send me the ticket. There is no Khalifa family in Kathiawar requiring relief as far as I know.

Matriculation here is not simpler than yours. But for Sita it would be somewhat easier here. She is getting on well and gaining the experience she would never have got there. She wants to fit herself for service. There is no restraint upon her freedom.

Manilal will shape himself at will. Of course he has come for a year only and that to serve me. There is not much for him to choose from.

I agree about Thambi Naidoo⁴. Anything can be named after him here. It will mean nothing. Something worthy should be done

¹ This appears along with a note in Gujarati, presumably Gandhiji’s instructions to Pyarelal, which reads: “Today being Sunday we have to pay more. Therefore send it tomorrow. If tomorrow is a holiday with regard to telegrams also, send it day after tomorrow.”

² Vide “Telegram to G. D. Birla”, 8-5-1945.

³ A Jewish girl who was Gandhiji’s secretary in South Africa; she was ardently interested in the Indian cause.

⁴ A Tamil cartage contractor from Mauritius whom Gandhiji described as “lion-like”. He was one of the most eminent satyagrahis of the Transvaal.

VOL. 86 : 4 MARCH, 1945 - 28 MAY, 1945
there. You must shape things there. Thambi must have many admirers besides you and me. I am glad about Mrs. Naidoo. What is she doing? What about his children? Could you send me a photo of the family with Thambi in it?

So you see, San Fransisco was managed without you and me. But you are dropping in here one of these days. Yes, Kallenbach’s niece did give me a long letter after K’s death. A truly good man has left us.

I hope to write the story of 125 years. Hold yourself in patience till I write.

Love.

M. K. GANDHI

[PS.]

I am at a hill station. My address must be Sevagram, Wardha.

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

629. LETTER TO O. M. THOMAS

"MORARJI CASTLE",
MAHABALESHWAR,
May 13, 1945

DEAR FRIEND,

Your registered letter of the 8th inst, to Gandhiji has been received today. Your previous letter also was received. Here are answers to your questions.

1. Gandhiji has no recollection of having read the book referred to by you. Impossible to say anything at this distance of time.

1 In Mahatma Gandhi—The Last Phase, Vol. I, Book One, pp. 101-2, Pyarelal explains that the addressee had written to Gandhiji that she was expecting to meet him at San Francisco Peace Conference, and thence to accompany him to India. She had also suggested: “If you are short of secretaries to accompany you to the Peace Conference, call here on your way and I shall come along.”

2 Herman Kallenbach’s. A German Jew who was with Gandhiji in South Africa, he died on March 25, 1945, in Johannesburg. Vide also “Message on Death of Hermann Kallenbach”, 25-5-1945.

3 Alluding to the reports on Gandhiji’s illness, the addressee had said: “I was not greatly perturbed when you were ill (I regret your suffering, of course) because I felt confident that you would not depart hence until India was free . . . I have not the slightest doubt that you will live until you are 125, if only you desire it.”

4 After Mother India by Harry H. Field.
3. The reply is in the negative so far as my recollection goes, but you can look up the files of Young India.

4. Please send an authentic copy of Mrs. Annette Helen Doharty’s affidavit referred to by you. On the face of it, it seems to be a malicious invention.

Yours sincerely

PYARELAL

SHRI O. M. THOMAS
20 ELGIN ROAD
ALLAHABAD

From a copy of: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

630. LETTER TO AMRITLAL DOSHI

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 13, 1945

Bhai Amritlal,

I got your letter. Though you have given up khadi work as your means of livelihood, you still take interest in it and that is a good thing. I am taking all the measures I can think of. Meet Kakubhai¹ and give him such useful help as he asks for and you can give. As far as I know, people working in the insurance line get plenty of spare time.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI AMRITLAL DOSHI
INDIAN GLOBE INSURANCE CO.
315-321 HORNBY ROAD
FORT, BOMBAY

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 6316

631. LETTER TO SHAMALDAS GANDHI

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 13, 1945

CHI. SHAMALDAS1.

The enclosed is from your paper. I feel that an advertisement which is immoral or is against the recognized or declared policy of the management should never be accepted. No registered bhandar can sell khadi without yarn being tendered. It should not escape your notice. Therefore you should not accept this advertisement. You should outright refuse this person. For doing so you must impose restrictions on advertisements. That involves some sacrifice and some scrutiny. However, in the long run, you won’t lose anything but if you do it, it will be nothing more than the dirt on your palms2. Do lose it.

Blessings from
BAPU

[PS.]

Enclosed is a cutting of the advertisement by a shop which announced sale of khadi without yarn being tendered.

CHI. SHAMALDAS GANDHI
EDITOR “VANDEMATARAM”
BOMBAY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

632. LETTER TO PURUSHOTTAM K. JERAJANI

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 13, 1945

CHI KAKUBHAI,

I got your prompt reply to my previous letter. I am sending other things herewith. I have sent1 a cutting of the advertisement to

1 Gandhiji’s nephew
2 A Gujarati phrase meaning money
3 Vide the preceding item.
Shamaldas and have written to Amritlal Doshi to see you. That man is clever, no doubt. He has done quite a lot of khadi work. I have written to him that he should give you such occasional help as you feel he can give.

Make the bhandar an institution for learning. Some should go there to learn the work and to spin also. Others should pay for the lesson. The poor should pay in the form of labour. The entire material should be good. There is no need of telling you all this but my attachment impels me to do so.

Blessings from

BAPU

633. LETTER TO LILAVATI ASAR

MAHABALESHWAR,

May 13, 1945

CHI LILI,

I read your letter just now. They handed it to me without opening it. But I am going to give it to Narahari, Pyarelal, Munnalal and Hemantkumar to read. That letter is a mirror of your soul.

You have always been, and still are, silly. Remember the verse: “Dwelling in thought on vishayas.” Here vishaya does not mean merely what it does in Gujarati, namely, immoral sex-pleasure. All objects of desire are vishayas, as for example, desiring what appeals to the eye, hearing with the ear, smelling with the nose, and other similar objects of sense. Your object of desire is to come to the hills. If it didn’t materialize you should forget about it. But you would not be Lili if you could forget anything. And that is why you suffer. Otherwise there are few other women as fortunate as you. Though married in the prime of your youth, you have remained a virgin all these years so that all the desire in you for that momentary pleasure has been burnt away. You like service and get opportunities for it. The best service you rendered was to Bhansali, then to Ramprasad and then to Krishnachandra. I will not consider your services to Ba, Mahadev

---

2 Bhagavad Gita.
and myself as there was attachment in that.

You are educating yourself to be a doctor entirely with the aim of dedicating yourself to public service. What purer happiness than this could one have? If you are still discontented, does it not mean that you are silly?

Hoshiari wishes to come to me, and so does Vina. And there is no limit to the number of men who wish to come. If they cannot come, does it mean that they are unfortunate? You should completely burn up this desire of yours. Hence, though from one point of view your letter is good, from another point of view it is one that you should withdraw, and that too, cheerfully. You must pass, and do so with credit. Afterwards you will be serving to your heart’s content. And you do get opportunities from time to time, such as serving uncle. Sushila is there. Pyarelal is leaving tomorrow.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 9601. Also C.W. 6573. Courtesy: Lilavati Asar

---

634. LETTER TO SAVITRI

MAHABALESHWAR,

May 13, 1945

CHI. SAVITRI,

You are a coward. You let the engagement take place. Then you ran away from the house and are now staying with your paternal aunt’s son. That is not right. You have done a virtuous thing. Haven’t you? What is there to run away from?

I shall go to the Ashram only in July. Write to me, if you want, when I go there. I can’t say for certain that I shall be able to keep you even then. The management of the Ashram is not in my hands. I can do something only after consulting them.

Do you spin? Do you wear khadi? You don’t observe untouchability, do you? Are you studying?

Blessings from

BAPU

CHI. SAVITRIEBHN

C/O PURUSHOTTAM BIJLANI

MANAGER, ANJAR SPINNING-WEAVING MILLS

ANJAR, CUTCH

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

---

366 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
635. LETTER TO R. K. NANDKEOLYAR

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 13, 1945

Bhai Nandkeolyar,

I know you refrained from coming so as to save me trouble. I will lovingly use the tumblers when they arrive. You and Priyamvada have asked for my blessings for Mohandas and his bride. My fear is, theirs may not be an inter-caste marriage. Has the bride given up purdah? Will both of them give themselves up to service? Will Priyamvada keep the bride engaged in household work or give her time to do work of service? I hope the bride’s parents do not keep her like a slave. If you can give satisfactory replies to all these questions, then here are heaps of blessings for the bride and birdeggroom.

Blessings from

Bapu

Barrister Nandkeolyar
Nand Vilas
Gaya (Bihar)

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

636. LETTER TO HARIBHAU JOSHI

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 13, 1945

Bhai Joshi,

I have your letter and also the book. I shall read it and do what is necessary.

Blessings from

Bapu

Shri Haribhaau Joshi
“Lokshakti”
291 Shanivar Peth
Poona 2

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
637. LETTER TO S. V. VENKATARAMAN

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 13, 1945

Bhai Venkataraman,

I have your letter. I hope you will understand my Hindi. On paper your work seems good. I hope in fact it is so. Assuming that it is, I give you my blessings. Is ginning done differently? The spinners themselves separate the seeds, card the cotton and make the slivers, don’t they?

How is the cotton grown? In how many acres?

Blessings from
M. K. Gandhi

Shri S. V. Venkataraman
A. I. S. A. Khadi Vastralaya
Mayavaram—South India

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

638. LETTER TO DR. GOPICHAND BHARGAVA

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 13, 1945

Bhai Gopichand,

You did a good job in the matter of the Dukhaidi Harijans. They should have full relief. You must persuade the Rajputs. The courts alone cannot do the thing. A sad thing has happened. I was under the impression that the Dunichand who died was the Dunichand we know. How is the deceased related to him? I couldn’t have written to him. Please find out. If there is anything I have to do, I will do it.

Blessings from
Bapu

Dr. Gopichand Bhargava
Lajpat Bhavan
Lahore
(Punjab)

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Congress worker of the Punjab since 1919; elected to Punjab Assembly in 1937 and again in 1946; Chief Minister of Punjab, 1947-51
2 Leading Congressman of Ambala; Member, Punjab Legislative Assembly; vide also the following item.
639. LETTER TO DUNICHAND

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 13, 1945

Bhai Dunichand,

I learnt from what you did about the Harijans of Dukhaidi that you are still alive. How wonderful! I even wrote a letter of condolence to your wife. The poor woman must have laughed. What could she have written in reply? Is it my fault or yours if Dunichand continues to live? I think the fault is mine. As a punishment I must die before you. I want to live up to 125 years. Since you are older than I you must live even after 125 years. My apologies to Deviji.

Look after the Harijans.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. Gandhi

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 5587

640. LETTER TO K. N. KATJU

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 13, 1945

Bhai Katju,

I read your letter addressed to Pyarelal. About Dehati Pragati you will be happy to know that I started reading it long ago. I have kept it along with my papers. It is taking time because I have to read other things also. I will read the whole of it and then write to you.

My blessings to Prakashnarayan and the bride. Normally I do not bless marriages contracted within the caste unless there is a special reason. My fear is, this marriage will be one such. Anyway, there is a special reason for my sending blessings for this marriage. I have met Purnima. She made a good impression on me.

Blessings from

Bapu

DR. K. N. Katju
Advocate
9 EDMONSTONE
ALLAHABAD (U. P.)

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
641. LETTER TO KUSUM NAIR

Mahabaleshwar,
May 13, 1945

Ch. Kusum,

I have received your letter written in beautiful Hindustani. I shall be a little free after the 20th. You may come then. I will try to answer your questions. Do not go about shouting that you are coming to me.

Blessings from
Bapu

Shri Kusumbehn Nair
N. I. P. & I. Bureau
74 Lakshmi Building
Sir Pherozeshah Mehta Road
Bombay 1

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

642. LETTER TO JIVAJI RAO SCINDIA

Mahabaleshwar,
May 13, 1945

Maharaja Saheb,

I congratulate you on what you have done for the Harijans. I am confident that you will be taking the necessary steps to see that your decision is implemented. It is in your hands to educate the people to get rid of their superstitions. Otherwise your decision will remain confined to the Gazette only. As you may know I have said that Hinduism will perish if any kind of untouchability persists.

May God grant a long life to the son on whose birth you have done such a good deed, and keep him healthy physically and mentally.

Yours,
M. K. Gandhi

Maharaja of Gwalior
Gwalior State

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

370

The Collected Works of Mahatma Gandhi
643. LETTER TO N. G. RANGA

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 13, 1945

Bhai Ranga,

I have read what you have written about the tribes in the Nilgiris. I wanted to write to you about it but in the mean time your letter came.

The article about the Nilgiris is good. I congratulate you. There should have been a glossary of the Indian words. There should have been figures concerning their numbers. You should have said something about their language. You should have described their habits and customs in greater detail.

Do not drag me into the quarrel with the communists. It concerns you people. Before I say anything, it is necessary that I talk to them. Going as far as that will be a waste of my time. My place is to advise in more important matters.

Now I write in Hindustani even to South Indians. But this is not without exceptions. I hope you do not find it difficult to read letters such as this. Do write to me in English, if you can’t write in Hindustani. However, you should cultivate the habit of writing in Hindustani.

Blessings from
BAPU

Prof. N. G. Ranga
Nidubrolu
Andhra Desh

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

644. LETTER TO TEJ BAHADUR SAPRU

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 14, 1945

Dear Sir Tej,

I was going to write to you in Hindustani but for this letter at least I restrain myself. For the future I shall do as you will bid.

I had thought that Dr. Jayakar and Kumar Saheb had come to me on your behalf and at your instance. Rajaji told me otherwise. Hence this note, though belated.

I considered the whole of your report as sketched to me to be an able document. But I did not interest myself in the whole of it. My interest was naturally confined to the communal question and it was wholly satisfactory. I hope you do not want me to express any opinion on the rest.

You have, and that at your age, laboured at the report and laboured with your colleagues as few men would have done. Rajaji has told me much about this part of your valuable work. And in Santanam you have an able and painstaking secretary.

Hope you are keeping well and that your ailing son has recovered completely.

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

THE RT. HON. SIR TEJ BAHADUR SAPRU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

645. LETTER TO SUSHILA NAYYAR

May 14, 1945

CHI. SUSHILA,

Your expected letter has come. I abide by what I wrote about Manu in the morning. She and the sisters should do what they think fit.

It hurts me that Shyamlal’s affairs are disorganized. You would not have told him about it and I do not want to say that he should use your name. I am watching the developments. Enough if you take care of your first division. That would be the best education you could give to others.

Blessings from

BAPU

From the Gujarati original: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar
646. LETTER TO SUSHILA NAYYAR

May 14, 1945

CHI. SUSHILA,

I hope all your work is going on well and bringing you credit. It would be only proper that the sisters hear everything and do whatever they want after due consideration. Every place has advantages as well as disadvantages. It is possible that Manu will not be able to get rid of her fear just by being told to do so. It seems to be an ingrained trait. If she recovers fully it will be a great achievement for us. I take it that you will be coming back on the 16th.

Blessings from

BAPU

From the Gujarati original: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Dr. Sushila Nayyar

647. LETTER TO MANU GANDHI

May 14, 1945

CHI. MANUDI,

I can see no difference between your handwriting and Yukti’s’. Instead of myself telling you not to go to Karachi, I told Sushila-behn to tell you lest you think I was ordering you. If you wished to go either to Karachi or to Porbandar, by all means go. What I am concerned with is that you should become strong in body and mind. If you can do it there, I shall be pleased. Because of your negligent habits, I thought that, if you could overcome your fear, you would be able to benefit fully and for long from the mountain-air. However I am not enamoured of hill-stations either. Wherever you stay with a free mind, you are bound to benefit. You may, therefore, do what your sisters desire. I give my consent for it.

Why should we observe anybody’s face? We may even make a mistake in judging a person from his face. We are not God. We might even do him injustice. And moreover, when one has made up one’s mind not to fear anybody, why need one know the other person’s mind? The rest from Pyarelal.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./24

1 Addressee’s elder sister Sanyuka’s
2 Vide also the following item.
648. LETTER TO VINODINI GANDHI

May 14, 1945

CHI. VINODI.

It is good that you wrote. Take Manu off to wherever you can, whether Karachi or Porbandar. The only conditions are that you must not allow her to work; and see that she sleeps properly and teach her to masticate thoroughly.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./III

649. LETTER TO DR. DINSHAW K. MEHTA

May 14, 1945

CHI. DINSHAW.

Following is the reply to your letter sent to Ghanshyamdas at Calcutta:
Your letter about Dinshaw’s trust. I think his demand quite reasonable, but leave matter to you. Therefore, after getting the necessary changes made about the aims as suggested by you, I intend to write to Pakvasa to have the Trust Deed drawn up.

Mavalankar, who was your patient, has written to me about your administrative abilities. His complaint is quite justified.

Blessings to all the three of you from

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

---

1 Manu Gandhi’s elder sister
2 Vide also the preceding item.
3 This paragraph is in English; vide also letters to G. D. Birla, “Letter to G. D. Birla”, 6-5-1945 and “Letter to G. D. Birla”, 10-5-1945.
4 Mangaldas Pakvasa, Solicitor from Bombay, President, Bombay Legislative Council, 1937-47; was appointed Governor of Central Provinces and Berar in 1947
5 Vide also the following two items.
650. LETTER TO DR. DINSHAW K. MEHTA

May 14, 1945

CHI. DINSHAW,

Read this letter carefully. You should live most of the time in Poona. I would not like it at all if you remained out of it for my sake. Attend to dirt, carelessness, massage, etc. Patients should not find you severe. There is always an answer to every kind of charge. Our duty is to take the essence and throw away the rest which is waste matter. Send the papers back.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

651. LETTER TO BALKRISHNA MAVALANKAR

MABABALESHWAR,

May 14, 1945

CHI. BALKRISHNA,

I am glad that you wrote. I have read everything. I have sent the papers to Dr. Dinshaw. That is the only way I can bring about change, if any change is necessary. There is no discourtesy in your letter. You may write more if you wish to. I will let you know the result.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 1253

652. LETTER TO AMRITLAL V. THAKKAR

May 14, 1945

BAPA,

I have your letter. The registered post will arrive in due course. You are coming here on the 16th, but as you want me to write I am writing this.

BAPU

SHRI BAPA

SERVANTS OF INDIA SOCIETY

POONA 4

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
653. LETTER TO SAILENDRA NATH CHATTERJEE

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 14, 1945

CHI. SAILEN,

I have your letter. I hope you have a place to stay in Bombay. Go to Bombay. There is a Nature Cure Clinic ill Malad. It is owned by Dr. Krishnavarma. He will admit you. I am writing to him. Follow his instruction. You will be cured. You must also learn everything. Give whatever help you can, if your health permits. Keep me informed. Leave Wardha only with Rishabhdas’s permission. Show this postcard to Dr. Krishnavarma.

Blessings from
BAPU

CHI. SAILEN CHATTERJEE
INSURANCE COMPANY
BAJAJWADI
WARDHA

From a photostat of the Hindi: C.W. 10391a. Courtesy: Amrita Lal Chatterjee

654. LETTER TO KRISHNAVARMA

May 14, 1945

BHAI KRISHNAVARMA,

What I wrote to you has happened. Sailen Chatterjee is an employee of an insurance company. He lives on whatever he earns. I have advised him to go to your clinic. The doctors say he keeps getting well and falling ill again. He has agreed to go to you. The matter of expenses has to be considered. Madhavdas’s case is entirely different. In any case, Sailen must give something. If you run a free hospital, it will get filled up and no one will be benefited. That can be discussed when we have the time. I have written to Sailen to go to you and show my postcard. He lives in Wardha.

Blessings from
BAPU

DR. KRISHNAVARMA
NATURE CURE CLINIC
MALAD, via BOMBAY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
655. LETTER TO RAMESHWARDA BIRLA

May 14, 1945

CHI. RAMESHWARDA,

Read this and then reply if there is anything you want to say. I have replied saying that I shall pursue the matter if he sends me something to support such allegations.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI RAMESHWARDA BIRLA
BIRLA HOUSE
MOUNT PLEASANT ROAD
BOMBAY

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

656. LETTER TO OMKARSINGH SENGAR

May 14, 1945

BHAI OMKARSINGHJI,

Your daughter Premlata is distressed. She has chosen a husband belonging to a different caste and you are preventing her from marrying him. He is a deserving man. This talk about castes has become outmoded. Ability alone should count today. Premlata wants to go on a fast. Show her this postcard and stop her from undertaking the fast. Write to me if there is anything else.

Blessings from
M. K. GANDHI

THAKUR OMKARSINGH SENGAR
MADAN KHADI KUTIR
KAROLI STATE, RAJPUTANA

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
657. LETTER TO L. N. GOPALASWAMI

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 15, 1945

MY DEAR GOPALASWAMI,

I have your generous letter. You will do as Bapa bids you. I must not abuse your good nature. Push forward good women for all you are worth.

Yours,

BAPU

SHRI L. N. GOPALASWAMI
KASTURBA GANDHI NATIONAL MEMORIAL FUND
S. 13 BUILDINGS
ROYAPETTAH
MADRAS

From a photostat: C.W. 10549. Courtesy: Government of Tamil Nadu

658. LETTER TO MUHAMMAD AHMAD SAID KHAN

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 15, 1945

DEAR NAWAB SAHEB,

I thank you for your kind note of 5th instant. I have been besieged with letters and cuttings of newspapers from Hyderabad. Some of these make sad reading. I have heard from Shri Vinayak Rao too. Their fear is that justice will be defeated. Whatever may have happened in the past, I feel sure that you will allow no such thing to happen.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

H. H. NAWAB SAHEB OF CHHATARI
HYDERABAD

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 The letter was redirected to: 3 Gopapuram, Tennore, Trichinopoly.
2 The reference is to the police excesses; vide “Letter to Muhammad Ahmad Said Khan”, 30-4-1945.
659. LETTER TO K. NATARAJAN

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 15, 1945

DEAR MR. NATARAJAN,

It was good of you to have written to me on my remarks about the industrialists and to have sent me a copy of the Indian Social Reformer\(^1\) containing your note on them.

How I should love to write to you in Hindustani of which your long residence in Bombay should have made you a scholar.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

SHRI K. NATARAJAN
KAMAKSHI HOUSE
BANDRA, BOMBAY 20

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy Pyarelal

660. LETTER TO FARID ANSARI

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 15, 1945

MY DEAR FARID,

I was glad to see your beautiful handwriting after a long time. It at once reminded me of the late Dr. Ansari\(^2\).

You were bound to think of Ba and Mahadev. They have won. We have to plod. I am delighted that you are keeping well. My love to all.

Yours,

BAPU

FARID ANSARI SAHEB
PRISONER
FEROZEPUR JAIL
PUNJAB

From a copy of: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

\(^1\) The addressee was its editor from 1892 to 1940.

\(^2\) Dr. M. A. Ansari
661. LETTER TO CHIMANLAL N. SHAH

May 15, 1945

CHI. CHIMANLAL,

I have not fully answered1 one of your letters. It does not seem proper to me to send for the Santiniketan gentleman now. We have said “No” to him, and we should stick to it.2 Jajuji is a king. He may relent in response to a request. How can we take advantage of that?

Do not mind if Sarojini has gone.3 She is bound to return. We cannot control her mind.

I have already suggested one remedy for Shakaribehn. Another is to take the treatment of Dr. Ice. He can easily deal with such a complaint.

There is no harm in your having detained Saroj. You may detain anyone whom you wish to and can. Do not detain anybody just to please me and that too in my absence.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10632

662. LETTER TO KISHORELAL G. MASHRUWALA

MAHABALESHWAR,

May 15, 1945

CHI. KISHORELAL,

Your letter to Manilal was read out to me.

You stayed for a very short time at the place Swami had chosen for you. I hope the improvement in your health will continue. Gomati’s4 health may go on as it is.

Examine the views I have at various times expressed on varnayavastha. If there have been changes, do let me know. I am not taking the trouble myself because I must let people know where I stand today and be satisfied with that. If there is anything

---

3 Vide also “Letter to Sarojini”, 5-5-1945.
4 Addressee’s wife
contradictory in the views I expressed earlier, they should not be taken into consideration. Some of what has been written is meant only to malign me. Some show a lack of understanding, some ignorance. Then again some of it is written with a view to publication and largely for money. It is immaterial whether people are convinced by my reply or not. Those, with whose criticism I have dealt, have certainly been convinced. Some would like it more if I dispensed with the distinction I have laid down in my article. But how could I do that? Varnavyavastha will not cease to be beneficial by our not being aware of its benefits. That the meaning of varna needs to be properly understood is another question. The difference pointed out by you seems correct.

It would certainly be good if my articles on varna, etc., are published. No omissions and additions should be made before getting them published. Even if I had the time I would make no changes. However, I would explain my present stand in detail. Study them if you have the time and the will. I shall be ready to go through your work. But do not at all think that it is your duty to do this work. Ask me whatever you want.

Blessings from

BAPU

KISHORELAL MASHRUWALA
VASANT NIVAS
BABULNATH ROAD
BOMBAY 7

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

663. LETTER TO SHAMALDAS GANDHI
May 15, 1945

CHI. SHAMALDAS,

I have your letter. You have done well. I shall go on keeping a watch if you allow me to do so. and if I have the strength.²

Blessings from

SHRI SHAMALDAS GANDHI
“VANDEMATARAM”
FORT, BOMBAY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Vide “Foreword to Varnavyavastha”, 31-5-1945.
² Vide also “Letter to Shamaldas Gandhi”, 13-5-1945.
664. LETTER TO CHIMANLAL TRIVEDI

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 15, 1945

BHAI CHIMANLAL,

I have your letter. Sir Radhakrishnan’s letter is clear. You should arrange a suitable programme. You have already received my blessings, haven’t you?

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI CHIMANLAL TRIVEDI
Mehervilla
Opp. Super Talkies
Grant Road, Bombay

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

665. LETTER TO KEDARNATH SANDILYA

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 15, 1945

BHAI KEDARNATH,

You alone should decide the matter about which you write. I have explained the general rules. You should follow them as much as you can.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI KEDARNATH SANDILYA
C/o Sub-Post Master
Jehanabad
Gaya (Bihar)

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
666. LETTER TO AMRITA LAL CHATTERJEE

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 15, 1945

CHI. AMRITA LAL,

Dhiren has arrived today with Satis Babu. It appears from your letter of the 8th that Bhai Bhimani wanted to send information about the women. If so, let me say that I do not regard him as a reliable person to give such information. He can send me written evidence even from there. I have not forgotten what you said. But of what use can it be if it is not fully supported?

I have arranged to send Sailen to Malad.¹ I hope he will do as Romen has written.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: C.W. 10404. Courtesy: Amrita Lal Chatterjee

667. LETTER TO SITA CHAUDHARY

May 15, 1945

CHI. SITA²,

Your letter is good. Subhadra³ will now recite the Ramayana to me. You also seem to have made good progress. Pratap⁴ has done very well indeed! Where did Jugalkishoreji study? What treatment is to be given to your mother? Whether I reply or not, you should write to me. As far as I remember, Parnerkarji has not given me anything. Convey my blessings to your father. I trust he will recover⁵ and be quite fit once again.

Blessings from
BAPU

[From Hindi]

Bapu: Maine Kya Dehha Kya Samjha, p. 185

² Daughters of Ramnarayan Chaudhary
³ Ibid
⁴ Addressee’s brother
⁵ Of Kashmir Khadi Bhandar
668. TELEGRAM TO SHRIKRISHNADAS JAJU

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 17, 1945

JAJUJI
CHARKHA SANGH
SEVAGRAM, WARDHA

KRISHNADAS Wires you following: "Branches refuse sending more advance. Kashmir’s capital position below sanctioned amount. Kindly arrange remittance at least fifty thousand telegraphically. Work completely stranded." My opinion is I shall endorse yours.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

669. TELEGRAM TO KRISHNADAS

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 17, 1945

KRISHNADAS
KHADI BHANDAR
SRINAGAR (KASHMIR)

Have repeated your wire to JAJUJI WARDHA adding I shall endorse his decision.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
670. LETTER TO NARAYAN M. DESAI

MAHABALESHWAR,

May 17, 1945

CHI. BABLO¹.

I have your letter. You are learning a lot whilst teaching. That knowledge is part of Nayee Talim. It has become your profession and your mission to transform the art of spinning into a science and make it interesting. May that remain so. When spinning comes to be recognized as true knowledge, it will become the centre of many other branches of learning. Knowledge has infinite forms, but only he who knows that at the bottom all knowledge is one really knows.

According to the present programme, I shall be spending the whole of June in Panchgani at ‘Dilkhush’². Go over there. Shantabehn will arrive there on the 20th. Vanamala and Manibehn are here. Describe your experiences.

Blessings from

BAPU

CHI. NARAYAN M. DESAI
C/O DINKAR SANKARIA
KHALSA COLLEGE
MATUNGA, via BOMBAY

From a photostat of the Gujarati: S.N. 9192

671. LETTER TO CHANDRANI

MAHABALESHWAR,

May 17, 1945

CHI. CHAND.

I have your postcard. I had at once answered your letter. What can one do if there is delay in the post? You have achieved your purpose. You will have got the accommodation in Harijan Nivas. I had written to Viyogi Hari. There has been no change in my health.

¹ Son of Mahadev Desai
² Of Nanji Kalidas
However, the climate is very good. You will come here only when Satyavati relieves you. You will not be going directly to Nagpur in June, will you? . . .

You and Satyavati have to think over all this. You do not want to see your parents, do you? Convey my blessings to everyone in Harijan Nivas.

_Blessings from_
_BAPU_

SHRI CHANDRANI
HARIJAN NIVAS
KINGSWAY CAMP
DELHI

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

672. LETTER TO GOPE GURUBAXANI

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 17, 1945

CHI. GURUBAXANI,

One of two things has happened: either it was my impression that I had written to you or you had written saying that it was not necessary for me to reply. I sent your letter on to Sevagram because I thought it was good. Now it appears that I did not write at all. But now it is to be understood that you are to write, whether I write or not. Vimala must be well. It is not right that she does not write. I must know if it is because of illness. But if it is because of laziness, she is guilty.

_Blessings from_
_BAPU_

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 1316

---

1 A sentence is illegible here.
673. TELEGRAM TO B. SHIVA RAO

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 18, 1945

B. SHIVA RAO\(^1\)
ASSOCIATED PRESS
SANFRANCISCO (U. S. A.)

RAMAN\(^2\) NEVER PERSONALLY ASSOCIATED WITH ME ON STAFF OR ENTOURAGE. STATEMENTS THIS EFFECT ON JACKET RAMAN’S BOOK\(^3\) WHOLLY WRONG. YOU HAVE AUTHORITY CONTRADICT ALL HIS MANY MISSTATEMENTS.

GANDHI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

674. TELEGRAM TO KUSUM NAIR

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 18, 1945

KUSUM NAIR,
CARE “LOUDTALK”
BOMBAY

COME AS ADVISED.\(^4\) STAY CASTLE.

GANDHI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

\(^1\) Labour leader, journalist; correspondent in Delhi of The Hindu and of The Manchester Guardian since 1935
\(^2\) T. A. Raman of the Indian Information Office in Washington. He was speaking and writing in America against the Congress and its political demands.
\(^3\) Report on India
675. DRAFT AMENDMENT TO RULE 72 OF KASTURBA
GANDHI NATIONAL MEMORIAL TRUST

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 19, 1945

The travelling expenses shall be third-class fare provided that it will be open to the local chairman to sanction second class fare owing to sickness or other valid reason which he shall record in the minute-book.

This is my suggestion.¹

From a photostat: G.N. 1258

676. FOREWORD TO “COW IN INDIA”

One of the first and best pupils of the late lamented Dr. P. C.
Ray, Shri Satis Chandra Das Gupta is a fit person to bring under one cover all the available literature on the cow rightly called the ‘Mother of Prosperity’. By convincing arguments based on copious reading of which he has reproduced the relevant parts in the volume, the author has dispelled the belief held even by learned men that India’s cattle are a burden upon the land and divide its production with the people to the latter’s detriment. He shows the usefulness of the cow as the giver of milk, the producer of draught-bullocks, the manurer of our fields and after death the giver of her hide and bone. He proves the superiority of cattle over the engine for ploughing the fields of India.
He establishes the inevitable connection and interdependence between the cattle and other animal life, the earth and man. Lastly, he proves the superiority of the cow over the buffalo, not so that the latter should be killed off or starved out but so that the buffalo should not be favoured at the expense of the cow as is done at the present moment. I commend the volume to the lover of the cow as also to everyone who would learn that the slaughter of cattle for food is a pure economic waste and know how he can turn the cow into a giver of plenty instead of being the giver of scanty which, owing to criminal negligence, she has become today.

It will interest the reader to know that the author wrote the whole

¹This sentence is in Gujarati.
volume during his recent imprisonment.

M. K. GANDHI

MAHABALESHWAR, May 20, 1945

Cow in India

677. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

May 20, 1945

CHI. MUNNALAL,

I have a letter from Amtul Salaam. She has sent a message for you to the effect that you should go and bring back Kanchan. She has become very weak. In these circumstances, you must either go yourself or send someone. If A. S. herself accompanies her from Borkamata, nothing like it. But I cannot decide about all this from here. You yourself should decide. Kanchan also is tired of the place. She must, therefore, return. A. S.’s letter is enclosed. I am writing to her as above as also to Kanchan. If she has already left, you need not worry.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 8453. Also C.W. 5578. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

678. LETTER TO KANCHAN M. SHAH

May 20, 1945

CHI. KANCHAN,

I do not like it at all that you have really fallen ill. You have become restless too. So run away from there without delay. I have written to Munnalal. He should go there and fetch you or send somebody. Or ask somebody there to accompany you. Write to me after you reach the Ashram. It will be better still if you write before leaving.

Blessings from

BAPU

679. LETTER TO AMTUSSALAAM
May 20, 1945

CHI. AMT UL SAL AAM.¹

I have your letter. In the circumstances, Kanchan must go. You may accompany her or send somebody or let Munnalal come or send somebody. Is this not the only way?

How can I decide about Akbar and Zohra? Akbar is doing good work in Samau. He would go if I were to order him. But I have left it to him. Zohra is still studying. You should consider this also if possible. It is a very difficult situation.

You cannot go anywhere leaving the things in the middle there.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 495

680. LETTER TO SATIS CHANDRA DAS GUPTA
MAHABALESHWAR, May 20, 1945

CHI. SATIS BABU.

Since all your activities are devoted to furthering my policies, they always have my blessings. I very much hope that you won’t be careless about your health. Being careless about one’s health is also against my policy and there is a subtle pride in it. Write to me on reaching Calcutta.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹This is in Gujarati.
²Vide also the preceding two items.
681. HOW TO IMPROVE VILLAGE INDUSTRIES

May 21, 1945

I have distinguished other village industries from khadi and called them planets and the charkha or the spinning-wheel the sun. As a matter of fact there is no real reason for such a distinction, for khadi is also a village industry. But it has acquired a special position, and it is because of this special position which it has acquired that we can now talk about the other village industries.

Today we are not required to demonstrate the special position acquired by khadi but we are required to discover ways and means of putting it and other village industries on a firm footing.

One of the ways is to resort to centralized production of necessities through machinery worked by power and requiring the minimum of human labour. This results in increasing the number of the rich few and making it a dharma to multiply the people’s wants. Even if all such centralized industries were to be State-owned, it would make no difference to me. For the obligation to increase wants will not only not decrease, but may be strengthened where such industries are owned by the State. Only the task of increasing wants will pass from the hands of small capitalists to the bigger capitalists, or the State, whose action will secure the seal of public support. This is how things are going in England and America. I am purposely leaving out Russia; because their work is still continuing, I shall not at this stage dare to assess the result. I hope that Russia will produce something unique. But I must confess that I have my doubts whether it will truly succeed. I shall consider it a great success if, through it, all the wealth really goes into the hands of the poor, and intellectual and personal freedom is at the same time secured. In that case I will have to revise my present concept of ahimsa.

Now I come to the main point. In England and America, machinery rules supreme. On the contrary, in India we have village industries, symbolizing the resurgence of human labour. In the West, a handful of persons with the aid of mechanical power rule over others. In India, on the other hand, the great task of bringing out what is best in every individual is being attempted by the A. I. S. A., A. I. V. I. A. and other allied institutions. From this point of view the growth of Western civilization seems to be an easy thing, but to develop a organize the latent capacities of individuals through village industries appears to be a very difficult task.

Looking at it from another point of view, it may be said that, for a handful of men to rule over other men with the aid of steam and other power will be harmful in the end, as it is bound to multiply injustice. By using the human power available to us by the million, injustice is reduced. And there is no room for failure. For here, along with human power, we rely on divine Power. In the other method, no value is attached to divine Power. In short, if in the case of village industries we do not truly obtain God’s help, we are bound to fail. The Western method only appears to be successful, but in truth there is nothing but failure in it. For it destroys the will to work.

682. TELEGRAM TO JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 21, 1945

JAMIRAMDAS DOULATRAM
HYDERABAD (SIND)

HOPE REACHING PANCHGANI END MONTH. STAYING THERE JUNE.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

683. LETTER TO BHARATAN KUMARAPPA

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 21, 1945

MY DEAR BHARATAN,

I am sending you my article\(^1\) written after some thought, but in the midst of much other work.

Your letter just to hand. You should give the names of those who have accepted. Consult Jajuji for the other names. I shall think about them. You can certainly ask [A.] Vaidyanatha Iyer of Madura. If he refuses he will suggest some other name.

\(^1\) Vide “How to Improve Village Industries”, 21-5-1945.

So you have been travelling much. I am glad.
So send me the typed copy of your forthcoming book. Of course I have to give you a word for it.

Love.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

684. LETTER TO DR. P. SUBBAROYAN

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 21, 1945

MY DEAR SUBBAROYAN,

I was glad to have your letter. Regard me as partner in your joint joy on the restoration of your son to liberty. May he soon join you! Mohan ought to see me this week. I like him. The para about Rajaji was redundant as you say. He left on 19th.

Love.

BAPU

[PS.]

You will come when I return to Wardha.

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

685. NOTE ON LETTER FROM SEVAKRAM KARAMCHAND

May 21, 1945

Write a postcard congratulating him. If the reform stays, there is no need to publicize it. They are no doubt Hindus but it is necessary to use the appellation to identify them. (What about the previous letter?)

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Capitalism, Socialism or Villagism.
2 Vide also “Letter to Dr. P. Subbaroyan”, 31-5-1945 and “Fragment of Letter to Mohan Kumaramangalam”, 2-6-1945.
3 Sevakram Karamchand had informed Gandhiji of the opening of Sadhubela temples at Sakkur to Harijans, and also suggested that henceforth they should be known as Hindus only.
686. LETTER TO SANYUKTA GANDHI

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 21, 1945

CHI . YUK TI,

I have your letter.

I am sorry that though I had thought that Manu had gone there after having recovered, she still gets fever. All the same Sushilabehn is going there today—just to meet the sisters. She will stay there as long as she wishes. Is not Umiya1 also going? So all the four sisters will get together. If Manu wishes, she may go to Karachi also. And after spending her holiday as she pleases, she will return to me. See that she gets well soon. She is a brave worker but she gets frightened as soon as anything happens to her. I try to reassure her, why should she be afraid when I am with her? I have not succeeded, may you the elder sisters succeed.

Blessings to all of you from
BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./24

687. LETTER TO ANNAPOORNA C. MEHTA

May 21, 1945

CHI . ANNAPOORNA,

I got your postcard yesterday. How can I believe that you are 25? I saw you as a mere child. You have yet to live for many years and do much work.

I will wear the khadi dhoti when I get it. There is no hurry. Is the word prandai or prandayi?

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: S.N. 9437

1 Addressee’s elder sister, Umiya S. Agrawal.
688. LETTER TO KISHORELAL G. MASHRUWALA

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 21, 1945

CHI. KISHORELAL,

We cannot answer the question by merely quoting Sanjana’s name. Do so only if the questions arising call for a reply. We shall lose nothing if for the time being you leave things alone.

I have an impression that I have written to Surendraji. If he does not want to wait till I reach Wardha, he can come to Panchgani. However I should prefer Wardha. But I leave it to him to decide. Guide him. He is not going to lose anything if he spends some time in Wardha. Khadi Vidyalaya, Goshala, Village Industries and other such activities can take up considerable time.

I should like it very much if Gomati could take some treatment. It will be better to take Chugh’s advice. Raihana writes highly about him.

I would like you not to go to Sevagram before June.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

689. LETTER TO SARAYU DHOTRE

May 21, 1945

I got your letter yesterday after 5 o’clock. I could not have got the reply posted then. I have written to Rameshwardasji today. Let us see what happens. Never forget that we are poor. We have no right to behave like the rich. Our right comes from our duty. Do you understand that we must “renounce and enjoy” the things we easily get?

Blessings from
BAPU

CHI. SARAYU (DHOTRE)

KHADI VIDYALAYA

From Hindi: C.W. 839. Courtesy: Sarayu Dhotre

1 The reference is to the first verse of the Ishopanishad.
690. LETTER TO CHIMANLAL N. SHAH

May 21', 1945

CHI. CHI MANLA L,

I have no idea why in particular I should write to you today. But since there is an envelope with your address on it, I am writing this. Sarayu Tai has given her address c/o Khadi Vidyalaya. So there is a letter enclosed which has to be passed on to her.

You are always in my thoughts. You should force yourself to take rest, whether there or elsewhere. I should like you to do it there. You know that is what I have always done. Now I may be said to have risen high, or, maybe, descended lower. So I have learnt to go to hill stations like Panchgani, Mahabaleshwar, Nandi, etc. This is just for your guidance.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal. Also G.N. 10633

691. LETTER TO V. N. APTE

MAHABALESHWAR,

May 21, 1945

BHAJ APTE,

In Poona too there is Godbole. He has been to America. He gives nature cure treatment. However, what you are doing is all right. My faith was the main thing in the treatment I gave. Everyone would say that such a major case should have been taken to a doctor. May your son get well. How can I give three or four hours to your father-in-law? I do not have even a moment’s time. He can ask me if there is anything. I shall reply when I have the time.

Blessings to all of you from

BAPU

V. N. APTE
SHRI GAJANAN MILLS
SANGLI

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 The G.N. source, however, has “25”.
2 Vide the preceding item.
692. LETTER TO AMRITLAL T. NANAVATI

May 21, 1945

CHI. AMRITLAL,

I have gone through your two lines. You will certainly find work wherever you go.

Blessings from

BAPU

[C/o] SHRIMATI YASHODHARA DASAPPA

VONTICOPPAL

MYSORE

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy of Pyarelal

693. LETTER TO YASHODHARA DASAPPA

Mahabaleshwar,

May 21, 1945

CHI. YASHODHARA,

Tell Dasappa1 that the climate here is in no way inferior to that of Nandi. We are certainly being looked after.

I hope you are getting on well.

Is Dasappa calm now? If not, he should write to me or you should. The work of Kasturba Smarak Nidhi is difficult. Do it and have it done very carefully.

You will of course work for Hindustani [Prachar Sabha].

Let Ramdas stay as long as he likes.2

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy of Pyarelal

1 Address: husband H. C. Dasappa, President, Mysore Congress Committee
2 Vide also the following item.
694. LETTER TO RAMDAS DASAPPA

May 21, 1945

CHI. RAMDAS,

It is good that you wrote. Though there are slips, do not worry about it. Improve your Hindustani as well as your health. Do not hide anything. If you have the slightest pain, let me know immediately.

Come back whenever you want. You have written about your birthday. May you live long and render plenty of service.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

695. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA

May 21, 1945

CHI. KRISHNAC HANDRA,

1. You are right about Balkoba¹. Along with milk let him take vegetables and fruit. Let him regularly take hip-baths during the day. He should talk as little as possible. If he feels like it and walks a little in the morning, his weight will become stabilized. It can even increase.

I am not writing separately to him.

2. If you study Grimm’s law you can discover the laws of variations of script. The study of one science makes the study of another science easier. The same applies in this case. The chart of the scripts is being used here. Wait till I come.

3. If you have a clear idea with regard to newspapers, you will be able to read everything in a short time.

4-5. I have noted what you say about carding.

6. I have fixed periods of one month for the management of the Ashram. Make it two or three months in the light of experience or even right away. Balvantsinha’s name has been kept out because he will have to go to Mirabehn for the next two or three months. We will have to take more trouble if we regard servants as brothers.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4571. Also C.W. 5879. Courtesy: Krishnachandra

¹Balkrishna Bhave

THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
696. LETTER TO ABDUL GHANI DAR

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 21, 1945

Bhai Abdul Ghani,

If you sent me a wire about the Lahore riots, it is possible I did not reply to it. I did not want to interfere. My silence did not mean I was displeased. On the other hand, it was good that precious lives were laid down for the sake of the country.

Blessings from
BAPU

Abdul Ghani Dar
Ludhiana (Punjab)

From a copy of the Urdu: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

697. LETTER TO KANAM GANDHI

May 22, 1945

Chi. Kan Am,

I got your postcard today. Manilal and Devdas left for Bombay this morning. You may come whenever you wish to. I will leave Mahabaleshwar for Panchgani on the 31st of this month. It will, therefore, be better if you come on the 1st of June to Panchgani. Nevertheless, if you wish to come to Mahabaleshwar, do so. I hope you are keeping good health. It is cool here, but it cannot be described as chilly. One feels pleasant in the sun. The difference in altitude between this place and Panchgani is 500 ft. But here it rains so heavily that one cannot stay on after the rains start in June.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 9517. Courtesy: Kanam Gandhi
698. LETTER TO JAISUKHLAL GANDHI

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 22, 1945

CHI. JAI SUKHLAL,

So Manu has returned there at last, not restored in health but broken both in body and mind. The two react on each other. She is of course responsible for the weakening of both. The atmosphere also may be responsible, but man’s strength lies in overcoming his surroundings. I could not teach this to her fully. She is consumed by fear. She herself is the cause of that fear. It has become an occupation with her to listen to others, then get upset and jumpy and start crying, and she studies only when she gets some free time from this. She is filled with the highest spirit of service, is interested in learning and is of loving nature. Like me, she also suffers from amoebiasis and hookworm. I keep the infection under control, but she does not. Do now whatever suggests itself to you as best. She can always come back to me. I will never leave her. But she is free. I trust you are all right.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./24

699. LETTER TO MANU GANDHI

May 22, 1945

CHI. MAN UDI,

I have your letter. I had got your previous one also. I did not get the time to answer it. I am answering this at once. It is all right that you have gone to Karachi. But you must get rid of the amoeba and hook-worm. But how can you manage to do so, if you are returning on the 4th? In any case, do not take that vaid’s treatment. If you decide to stay on there, do so with a firm resolution to get rid of your illness. Do not be anxious to appear for the examination. If you can easily manage to read a little, it will be all right.

I can see from your letter that you are consumed by the fear of the surrounding atmosphere. The world will always frighten those who let themselves be frightened. You would, therefore, do well to cast all fear into the sea. The best medicine for that is Ramanama. Why need he who worships Rama, fear anything else? But this is only a suggestion from me. You did not regain peace of mind even after meeting your sisters. You may come whenever you wish. You need have no fear on that score.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./24

700. LETTER TO SUMATI S. MORARJEE

May 22, 1945

CHI. JAMNA ALIAS SUMATI,

Why should a woman be given a different name when she goes to live with her husband and why not a man? This custom irks me very much. I think I came to know only here that your real name is Jamna.

The reason for writing this letter is the accompanying letter. Give it to the two women if they are there or, if they have left, post it to them. Read it yourself. There is nothing private in it. You made the girls very happy. Were they of any help to you or did they merely treat themselves to the tasty food you offered them? Is it true that you pamper your guests’ palate?

How can you now leave Mother? I can, therefore, see you only in Bombay. I like your being so very devoted to service, but I don’t like your being delicate in body.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 846

701. LETTER TO KAILAS D. MASTER

Mahabaleshwar,
May 22, 1945

CHI. KAILAS,

I have your letter. I will go to Sevagram either by the end of June or the beginning of July. Write again to ask me. If possible I shall arrange for your stay there. In the mean time have Prabhubhai explain to you everything you must do to prepare yourself for the Ashram life. Learn all the processes of cotton right from separating the cotton from the pods. Spin the finest yarn possible. Observe cleanliness in everything you do. Learn Hindustani, that is to say both the Urdu and Nagari scripts. Learn as much Hindustani as can be understood by everyone.

_Blessings from_
_BAPU_

SHRI KAILAS DAHYABHAI
C/O DAHYABHAI V. MASTER
MANDLESHWAR ROAD
BORIVLI

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

702. LETTER TO PRABHUDAS GANDHI

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 22, 1945

CHI. PRABHUDAS,

I saw your note at the bottom of the letter from Kailas. Mridulabehn is still here. A few days back I received your letter to Bapa and also that of Chimanlal. Both the letters are good. There is a different version also. I have already received it. If I have the time, I shall find out more. I have noted your programme. You have made the right decision. Amba' will like it there and only there will she be able to look after her health. You will shine wherever you go and you will be in demand. So your place is wherever there is work. However, you should think about your family also.

Read the letter1 I have written to Kailas.

_Blessings from_
_BAPU_

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

---

1 Addressee’s wife

2 _Vide_ the preceding item.
703. LETTER TO BHULABHAI DESAI

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 22, 1945

BHAI BHULABHAI,

Keep in mind the Chimur prisoners. They must live. It will spoil everything if they are hanged.

Blessings from BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

704. SPEECH AT HINDUSTAN SCOUT ASSOCIATION TRAINING CAMP

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 22, 1945

Mahatma Gandhi said that the national song which they had sung to welcome him praised ‘Bharatmata’ and struck a victorious note but the present time was not the one in which one could indulge in joyous celebrations. India was now in the same plight as Draupadi was at one time and it was a matter to be seriously considered whether that should be an occasion to celebrate. In the song they had sung, there occurred the motto “Do or Die”. That should encourage them to carry on the fight for the liberation of the motherland without rest. It was the natural duty of the young to carry on the fight for freedom but at the same time they should not allow the old to take rest.

The Bombay Chronicle, 23-5-1945

1 In the Central Provinces, a number of persons had been sentenced to death in a case of rioting in which some policemen were killed in the villages of Ashti and Chimur during the Quit India movement. The King had rejected their mercy petition; vide “Statement to the Press”, 31-3-1945. But a lacuna in the order was discovered by the defence counsel, and the executions were stayed. Later, owing to Gandhiji’s efforts, on August 16, 1945, the Viceroy commuted the sentences to life imprisonment.

2 The camp, organized by Shivaji Troop Boy Scouts of Poona, was addressed by Gandhiji in the evening.
705. LETTER TO LAKSHMI GANDHI

May 22/23, 1945

CHI. LAKSHMI,

I have your letter. I was very glad. Let the new grandson be named Govind and also Mahadev. If you want to keep only one name, let it be the one suggested by Anna. Ba has gone, her love remains. The body has got to perish, but even if it does so the love of Him who dwells in the body cannot die.

Anna left on the 19th. Papa and Narasimhan have got to reach Madras. They are Anna’s hands and feet in Madras. Devdas left yesterday.

What will happen to your studies now? Let one of the boys at least occasionally write to me.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 2002

706. LETTER TO GULBAI D. MEHTA

MAHABALESHWAR,

May 23, 1945

CHI. GUL BEHN,

I received your letter too late yesterday to write a reply to catch yesterday’s mail. So I am writing this now in the morning after the prayer. You can come here with Ardeshar. However, it is getting quite cold here. If you don’t mind that, do come. I will have to go to Panchgani latest by May 31. Do what you think proper.

If Dinshaw has not come knowingly he has done well. I am well. I will certainly call him if there is need and he will have to come. Otherwise Dinshaw’s place is there. He should certainly come whenever he feels like it. In view of Ghanshyamdas’s telegram, we have to consider what we must do.

Blessings to all the three of you from

BAPU

SHRI GULBAI DINSHAW MEHTA
NATURE CURE CLINIC
POONA CITY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 C. Rajagopalachari
2 Wife of Dr. Dinshaw Mehta
707. LETTER TO S. SALEMNA

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 23, 1945

DEAR FRIEND,

The case you relate is very sad. You should do all you can locally. My capacity is too limited to cope with things I used to.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

SHRI S. SALEMNA
DEPRESSED CLASSES LEAGUE
VANIVILAS
MANGALORE

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

708. LETTER TO MARGARETE SPIEGEL

May 23, 1945

CHI. AMA LA¹.

What sort of a person are you? How did you manage to return so soon? You can no doubt get a teaching job.
Khurshedbehn is not with me at present. She is in Panchgani.

Blessings from

BAPU

DR. M. SPIEGEL
3 WODEHOUSE ROAD
FORT, BOMBAY

From the Gujarati original: Spiegel Papers. Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library

¹Worked in Sabarmati Ashram for two years from May 1933, after having been dismissed from Government College, Berlin, being a Jewess; teacher at Santiniketan; Lecturer in German, Elphinstone College, Bombay; Principal, Maharani High School, Baroda
709. LETTER TO SUMITRA GANDHI

May 23, 1945

CHI. SUMI.

I have your letter. One should not work too hard for examinations. One can study well only if one does not have such infatuation. A student sometimes forgets the things in which he is to be examined if he studies only for the examination. Are you studying for the examination or for knowledge? An examination is only a yardstick, but knowledge is the end [the reality]. Many sit for examinations only to make money— that is a very mean thing to do. Knowledge develops intellect. Your letters sometimes suggest that you learn things by heart only for the sake of an examination and then later on forget them. For the development of intellect you should think over what you have read.

Manilal left yesterday with Devdas. After thinking for a long time he has realized that there would be more guest less if he kept himself away when there were others to look after me while I was out of Sevagram. Many persons can’t stay with me if this argument is correct. He is coming here with Kanam. I have given him the permission...

From the Gujarati original: Sumitra Gandhi Papers. Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library

710. LETTER TO NIRMALA GANDHI

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 23, 1945

CHI. NIM U.

I have received your long letter just now. I will not say that you have been lazy and so have saved yourself from writing to me. Today you had no escape from writing. That is as it should be. I love to have letters from all of you but I will not expect them from anyone.

I have a letter from Sumi which I am sending you. I have lovingly rebuked her about the examination. Ask her to send you the

---

1 Incomplete in the source, vide also the following item.
2 Vide the preceding item.
letter. Do not send for her there. Her eyes will be harmed. Everything can be done in Delhi. If you want to go and take Usha with you, you may go. Kanam will look after himself. However, I want you not to leave Ramdas. My advice is that you should entrust Sumi to Devdas and Lakshmi. If Sumi can manage without you, let her do so. If you people go, Devdas will certainly have to bear some burden. Lakshmi is very good-natured and affectionate. But her health is delicate. She has just left childbirth. It will be a different thing if you go there and take charge of cooking, etc. You will not be able to do that; so your place is in Nagpur with Ramdas. It will be enough if you can make Sumi give up her infatuation for reading. It is not through reading that one can think. What is the advantage of mere cramming? Devdas will manage. Lakshmi can also manage. The doctors in Delhi are good. It is a consolation that Sumi likes being there.

You have to persuade Ramdas. He should continue with Mehta for a long period. That was what he decided when he was here with me. If you wish, you can win him over and make him do what you want. No one else has that power. I had it once. But not now, because I am not able to pay much attention to him. My attention has been divided these days.

Kanam will come and see me either here or at Panchgani. I have a letter from him. I have given him the permission.

Manilal and Devdas left yesterday. Most probably Sushila will not come to the hill station. She will come only to Sevagram.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI NIRMALABEHN GANDHI
[C/o] RAMDAS GANDHI
TOMCO SALES DEPOT
KHALASI LINES, NAGPUR

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
711. LETTER TO USHA GANDHI

May 23, 1945

CHI. USHA,

What you wrote to me is all right. The handwriting is also fairly good. Keep on writing to me. No more now.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

712. LETTER TO RANJIT ASHER

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 23, 1945

CHI. RANJIT,

You must know Gujarati. However, you have written good English. What you write, I did not know. My advice is the same as I have already given. You should humbly try to persuade your father. I have not the least doubt that your true happiness lies in accepting my advice. The times are to be thanked for what has happened. There is no need at all for you to lose your head over what has happened or is happening. Do what is proper and that will certainly give you peace.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI R. K. ASHER
ASHER ESTATE
NASIK ROAD

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

408 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
713. LETTER TO AMRITLAL V. THAKKAR

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 23, 1945

BAPA,

What you decided was right. I am not waiting to consult Mridula.1 How can I remember what I told her and why should I? This I know I said: “I will not give my decision without knowing Bapa’s opinion.” I certainly will not be a party to keeping a large number of persons as paid employees. Therefore I shall comply with your decision.

The doctor has left today.

I would like it if Amba and Prabhudas stayed there. Only yesterday I received a letter from him. His preference appears to be for staying at Hapur. If you can draw him into your work, do so. He is a very useful man. But he has become weak. So for the two together you may have to pay as much as Rs. 200, because Prabhudas will need plenty of milk, fruit, ghee and green vegetables. He has gone through a pretty hard time. In view of his state of health you will have to permit him to go somewhere else in extreme summer. It is possible that Prabhudas will agree to accept a little less. But I would not consider it proper. His daughters too are sensible and, in my view, quite capable. So between all of them I would not consider that salary too high. It is necessary that he should be free of anxiety about the money.

Do not neglect your eyes. Do not spoil your health. I know that you are more careless than I. You have so far got along. You may even be tempted to do more. But you will not benefit by that. “Thou shalt not tempt the Lord thy God.”2 Jesus had said this on a different occasion. I do not recollect at the moment its Hindustani or Sanskrit equivalent.

I have filled one sheet of paper.

BAPU

SHRI BAPA
SErvANTS OF INDIA SOCIETY, POONA

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

2 St. Matthew, iv. 7

VOL. 86 : 4 MARCH, 1945 - 28 MAY, 1945 409
714. NOTE TO MRIDULA SARABHAI

May 23, 1945

I had not read the last portion carefully. But I think I have grasped the purport of the whole thing. I do not propose to answer your points. This is what I advise: We must not spend so much time in preparing questions. We must take whatever work we can with ease and be patient with regard to the rest. You do not have to move only with me. I have provided you a great institution. Now it is for you to prove your worth. You must play the main part in winning over Bapa. I might be of help to you, but if you do not like what I do, or my method of doing it, it is difficult for me to say what you should do. Some words of yours have given me that impression. You do not like the Ashram and I have been constantly wondering how anyone who does not like the Ashram can like me. I blame myself for that. It is a case of my being liked but not my work. You alone must sit down at leisure and find a solution. But what is to be done when leisure is something you cannot afford? How long must I go on writing like this? A word to the wise should suffice.

BAPU

From the Gujarati original: C. W. 11234. Courtesy: Sarabhai Foundation.

715. LETTER TO K. G. GOKHALE

May 23, 1945

I had your letter. Gandhiji says that you should do what Kher says. G. would not be able to collect the money. G. would not be able also to say whether Mr. Polak should or should not be detained. The whole matter should be left to Kher.

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar
716. LETTER TO AMIYA NATH BOSE

Mahabaleshwar,
May 23, 1945

Bhai Amiya,

Your letter suggests that the power scheme according to my calculations is useless.¹ How can I therefore form a committee?

Blessings from

Bapu

Shri Amiya
1 Woodburn Park
Calcutta

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

717. LETTER TO HAREKRUSHNA MAHTAB

Mahabaleshwar,
May 23, 1945

Your letter of the 17th. Bapuji has seen it. He says that if you are not in a hurry, you may come after he has settled down in Panchgani. We have to leave Mahabaleshwar on the 31st at the latest. We shall have to leave earlier if it rains. So you may take it that your coming to Mahabaleshwar will be useless.

Yours,

Pyarelal

Shri Harekrushna Mahtab
Cuttack, Orissa

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Vide also “Letter to Amiya Nath Bose”, 30-4-1945.
718. LETTER TO GHANSHYAMSINGH GUPTA

Mahabaleshwar,
May 23, 1945

Bhai Ganshyamsinh,
What should we write to Sidhwa? We should wait a little.

Blessings from
Bapu

Shri Ganshyamsinh Gupta
Speaker
Drug

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

719. LETTER TO TEJWANTI

Mahabaleshwar,
May 23, 1945

Chi. Tejwanti,
Do not ask me hypothetical questions. You may ask me if there is something concrete.

Blessings from
Bapu

Shri Tejwanti
Charkha Sangh (Punjab Branch)
Adampur Doab
Punjab

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ R. K. Sidhwa, leader of the Congress Party in Sind Assembly
720. LETTER TO KHURSHEDBEHN NAOROJI

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 24, 1945

DEAR SISTER,

I have been looking forward to your coming. I have now your note deferring coming for I come there on 31st. So I am sending you letters I kept for you.

On getting the news you have given me I said to myself: “Beware of the Greeks especially when they bring gifts. This may be all unjustified; the relief may be genuine.” Let us hope so.

Love to you all.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

721. FRAGMENT OF LETTER TO MOHAN KUMARAMANGALAM

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 24, 1945

I was glad to meet you any time and so I said ‘Yes’ to Joshi. But these two questions could have been answered in two lines. My correspondence with Joshi was never confidential. In any event it can be published at once. I think I have said as much in one of my letters. I can’t hasten Bhulabhai. I have sent him the papers I could. He could give his opinion any day he chose.1 My fear is that it won’t be an award. It would be the opinion of a distinguished lawyer on the papers in my possession. But my own opinion is not formed. I want to pass no hasty judgment. Many honest Congressmen come to me or 1 This was in reply to a request from Mohan Kumaramangalam on P. C. Joshi’s behalf to publish the correspondence that had passed between Gandhiji and P. C. Joshi.

2 Bhulabhai Desai, who was preoccupied and also not keeping well, was one of the members of a tribunal suggested by the communists to have the charges against them examined. Giving his opinion on August 20, 1945, Desai said that P. C. Joshi had admitted that the war which has ended was a ‘people’s war’ and that since August 9, 1942, the Communist Party was propagating views contrary to that of the Congress.
write to me from the various provinces that communists have no principles save of keeping their party alive and beating their opponents with any stick that came to their hands. I am not going to base my opinion on this evidence either. I dare not condemn you, Batliwala, Joshi or Habib of Lucknow. He was with me for over a month I think. He came for his father. I like him very much, On the whole I agree with Rajaji that you should refuse to put yourself in the dock. I do not want to pass judgment against a political party. I tell friends to be guided by their own knowledge and not by my judgment which may be erring for want of complete evidence.

Correspondence between Mahatma Gandhi and P. C. Joshi, pp. 41-2

722. LETTER TO CHIMANLAL N. SHAH
May 24, 1945

CHI. CHIMANLAL,

All the letters received today suggest that you wish to continue as secretary. Well then, do so. But divide the responsibility and do only such work as you can without having to move about. Look after the accounts and such supervisory work as you can. If anyone wishes to be the Manager, let him, and help him. A day has to come when it will be necessary for someone to be the Manager, for I must some day die and so must you. After that someone will have to become the Manager. Your wisdom and, if you wish, mine, also lies in training a person for it while we are still alive. Manage things somehow during our lifetime.

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10634

723. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH
May 24, 1945

CHI. MUNNALAL,

I got your two letters together. If the position is as you describe it to be, it is your duty to cling to Chimanlal, and to go on doing your work silently without entering into argument with anybody. Silence has been described as possessing nine merits. I go further and say it

1 Syed Mahmud
2 Incomplete in the source
3 Vide the preceding item.
has nine hundred and ninetynine. You should not get angry, or if at all you want to, you should be angry with yourself. I will arrive there in July. If you need to write to me, send me a slip.

There is another letter from Amtul Salaam regarding Kanchan. Read it. I am, therefore, of the view that if Kanchan has not already arrived there and is keen on staying on where she is, she may certainly do so.¹

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 8452. Also C.W. 5579. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

724. LETTER TO AMTUSSALAAM AND KANCHAN M. SHAH

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 24, 1945

DAUGHTER,

I have your letter. How wonderful Kanchan was so ill all of a sudden, and is now recovered and does not want to leave the place. I am happy that she is well and wants to stay there. You want to know when I shall be going there. Your wish and mine are the same in this matter. But I cannot go over on my own. If God wills it, I shall certainly do so.²

CHI. KAN CHAN,

Amtussalaam’s second letter is very good. Be firm. I wish that both of you sisters should return only after finishing your work. How nice it would be if you were fully restored to health.

Blessings to both of you from
BAPU

BIBI AMTUSSALAAM
KASTURBA SEVA MANDIR
BORKAMATA, BENGAL

From a copy of the Hindi and Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Vide also the following item.
² What follows is in Gujarati.
725. LETTER TO KISHORELAL G. MASHRUWALA

MAHBALESHWAR,
May 24, 1945

CHI. KISHORELAL,

I have your letter. I understand about Surendraji. I should like it if he pays me a brief visit. But in a religious or spiritual sense, what is there in such a visit? Why should we spend even one cowrie or one minute on the journey?

How nice it would be if some treatment could do a little good to Gomati. No one has worked for twenty hours at a meeting of the trustees or elsewhere, then why should I do so? Do all the legends spread in this way? No doubt, I did plenty of work. I sat at a stretch for four hours at a meeting of the trustees. But that was enough for me. There is such a difference between four hours and twenty hours. Doctors or no doctors, I should find it impossible to sit that long. Those days are gone.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

726. LETTER TO SAROJINI NAIDU

“MORARJI CASTLE”,
MAHBALESHWAR,
May 25, 1945

DEAR AMMAJAN,

I am herewith enclosing copy of an extract from Harry H. Field’s book After Mother India which a correspondent¹ has sent to Bapu. On the face of it the whole thing seems to be a malicious invention. Bapu knows nothing about it. All the same, since you are mentioned in the extract he has asked me to refer the same to you.

Hoping you are well.

With regards,

Yours sincerely,

SMT. SAROJINI NAIDU
HYDERABAD (Dn.)

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

727. LETTER TO LILAVATI ASAR

May 25, 1945

CHI. LIL I,

Your letter lacks spirit and is worthless. It is only a timetable of your work. I am sending it after signing. You must get rid of your pride. There was nothing to feel shy about in your letter. You explained to me your condition in a simple manner and that is why I used my prerogative. Whatever I think worth keeping confidential, I keep confidential. But a person who has faith in God should never keep his personal matters confidential. Confidential means most personal. “Renounce and enjoy” includes “confidential” also. We may enjoy [a thing] only after renouncing it. If you can’t understand this, then I can say that your education has been in vain and without any thinking.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

728. LETTER TO AMRITLAL V. THAKKAR

MAHABALESHWAR,

May 25, 1945

BAPA,

I have your letter. You did not strike out “Bombay”. This escaped going to Bombay, as I saw “Poona” in the corner. There is no need to write in Hindi if you write in Gujarati. My advice is that you should get the things read out to you and dictate whatever you want to write. For the time being you should not read or write.

Now about Hariji. Your opinion is correct. Even if he has acquired complete mastery, we should let Rameshwari behn¹ come in. You can write even now. Prabhudas’s address: Dahyabhai V. Master, Mandaleshwar Road, Borivli. He had written to me from there about Dahyabhai’s daughter². His address was also the same.

THAKKAR BAPA

SERVANTS OF INDIA SOCIETY, POONA 4

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Rameshwari Nehru, Joint Secretary, Harijan Sevak Sangh
² Kailas; “Letter to Prabhudas Gandhi”, 22-5-1945.
729. LETTER TO MANILAL GANDHI

May 25, 1945

CHI, MANILAL,

It is good that you wrote a postcard. Naraharibhai will see about your luggage. Dinshaw is very gentle, sensitive and quick to take offence. In the course of time that weakness will disappear. At present, there is no need for you to remain absent for my sake. Just now Pyarelal does the massage and bathes me. When he is busy, there is Sushila¹. I am well. You need not worry about me. Go and see Sushila² and do whatever you think proper. I see no harm in your coming to Panchgani. We may assume that, by the time you come, Kanu and Abha also will have come. But you are not a person who would be a burden to anyone. Sushila and the children can certainly come. But do what you think right. Keep writing to me.

Blessings from

BAPU

CHI. MANILAL GANDHI
C/O MESSRS BACHHARAJ & CO. LTD.
5 MAHATMA GANDHI ROAD
FORT, BOMBAY

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 4950

730. LETTER TO BALVANTSINHA

May 25, 1945

CHI. BALVANTSINHA,

I have your letter. Let Hoshiari live in peace now and let her busy herself with her work and studies.

What Munnalal is doing about the servants is my idea. Though the cause is good, if we do not act accordingly, we are to blame. The purity of the cause remains unblemished. Munnalal has a number of faults, but he never spares himself. The task is difficult. I want that we should all help him. Let us show the servants by our conduct that they are but our brothers and sisters. Let us do our work. Let us not shirk work through laziness. There has been no change in this teaching. Try patiently to understand it. Write to me again and yet again if you do not understand.

¹ Dr. Sushila Nayyar
² Addressee’s wife

BAPU

731. LETTER TO HOSHIARI

May 25, 1945

CHI, HOSHIARI,

I have your letter. You will do the child good by not going to him. The duration of my absence is very short. In any case I shall reach there in July. Learn much and regard everyone as a member of your family.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

732. LETTER TO PURSHOTTAMDAS TANDON

MAHABALESHWAR,

May 25, 1945

BHAJ TANDONJI,

I keep receiving letters in Urdu, Hindi and Gujarati all asking me how I can be both in the Hindi Sahitya Sammelan and the Hindustani [Prachar] Sabha at the same time. They say that according to the Sammelan Hindi alone can be our national language and the Nagari script alone can be given national status, whereas I concede national status both to the Nagari and Urdu scripts and to a language that is neither too Persianized nor too Sanskritized. When I do not accord exclusive national status to the language propagated by the Sammelan and the Nagari script, I ought to get out of the Sammelan. It seems to me a valid argument. Does it not then become my duty to leave the Sammelan? By my doing so people will not be in a dilemma and I shall know where I stand.

Kindly reply early. It being my silence day I myself have written this letter. But since people find it difficult to read my hand I have had it copied to be sent to you.

I trust you are well.

Yours,
M. K. GANDHI

[From Hindi]
Rashtrabdhashake Prashnapar Gandhiji aur Tandonjika Mahatvpurna
Patavyavahar, p. 1

733. LETTER TO CHOITHRAM GIDWANI

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 25, 1945

BHAI CHOITHRAM,

I am doing what I can on the basis of your letter. I hope your health is good.

Blessings from
BAPU

DR. CHOITHRAM GIDWANI
P. B. 26, KARACHI

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

734. LETTER TO TULSI

MAHABALESEWAR,
May 25, 1945

CHI. TULSI,

Your Hindi is not good. The handwriting too is not good.
Improve both. Be regular in your food habits and improve your health.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
735. LETTER TO SHEIKH FARID

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 25, 1945

BHAJ FARID,

I have gone through your letters. How can I write? Dr. Patel whom you mention is dead. Now there is one Dr. Jesudasan at the hospital. He is a good man. There is no need of a letter of introduction to him. You may go there. My son Manilal is in India these days. May you get well.

Yours,
M. K. GANDHI

From a copy of the Urdu: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

736. LETTER TO DR. DINSHAW K. MEHTA

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 25, 1945

CHI . DIN SHAW,

I received your letter just now in the evening. I understand about Mavalankar. Our duty is to pick up a gem even if it is lying in garbage heap and to cherish it. I have seen with my own eyes how thousands of maunds of rubble is dug up from the bowels of the earth in order to extract a few ounces of diamond. The question of money is different. Mavalankar joined us because his father is very generous and also very particular.

You have given a correct reply to Shah. You will have kept the money from him as fees. I have of course written to him that he should send you the money. I was glad you did not come. If I fall ill, I will call you; but if I am all right I can do with any sort of massage I get. Rather than have massage from you I should prefer your staying there to look after the patients and perfect the institution. I do not want to eat up the plant to its root because it tastes sweet.

I had right away written¹ to Gulbehn that she could come. Now the weather here has also improved. It is always so at the end of May.

However, she may come either here or to Panchgani.

Would it not be better if I dealt with the matter of Ghanshyamdas after you came?

Blessings to all the three of you from

BAPU

DINSHAW MEHTA
NATURE CURE CLINIC, POONA CITY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

737. LETTER TO AMRIT KAUR

Unrevised May 26, 1945

CHI. AMRIT,

So the restrictions are removed! I am for making speeches! Nothing much and the sting is still there. However, you are free to come to me when you are disengaged from the tasks there of which I learn from your letters to Pyarelal and Sushila. Of course you could not have Manu in the circumstances you mention. Anyway she has gone to her father in Karachi. I do not know how she is faring there. You need not worry.

Why must you break the diet rule you know? Beware! ! !

Am well.

Love.

BAPU

[PS.]

Letters from Pyarelal and Sushila are enclosed herewith.¹

From the original: C.W. 4156. Courtesy: Amrit Kaur. Also G.N. 7791

738. LETTER TO MANIBEHN NANAVATI

MAHABALESHWAR, May 26, 1945

CHI. MANIBEHN,

I have your letter. It is good that Aruna came and saw you. Both of them are grown up now. You must lovingly give them your advice and then be content with whatever they do. Charity begins at home. Our generosity outside is bound to be deficient if we are miserly with our own children. This is only by way of advice. Bring both of them

¹The postscript is in Gujarati

THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
to Panchgani when you return. We shall meet. Do not worry if I am observing silence then. We shall see when you come.

I understand about Swami.

I have known Mridula ever since she was a child. She is hard-working. She is full of the spirit of service. But she has no regard at all for her health. I consider that wrong.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI MANIBEHN
NANAVATI
PAHALGAM, KASHMIR

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

739. LETTER TO MANJULA M. MEHTA

May 26, 1945

CHI. MANJULA,

You have fallen ill and... it is this that makes me unhappy. Why should you fall ill here? I don’t like it either that you are going away. But I know that I cannot keep you with me. That hurts me.

You plead Magan’s case before me. He has got education, but learnt no wisdom. He will learn by and by. Why need I be displeased? But his lack of understanding pains me. It will gradually disappear. You should help in that. He is the only one among the brothers who can bring credit to the Doctor.

All of you should soon get well and stay well.
I read your poems. The thoughts are good.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 1033. Courtesy: Manjula M. Mehta

---

1 A word is indecipherable.
2 Maganlal P. Mehta, addressee’s husband
3 Dr. Pranjivandas Jagjivandas Mehta, addressee’s father-in-law
740. LETTER TO GULBAI TATA

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 26, 1945

DEAR SISTER,

I was very sorry to learn that you had a fall. Get moving about soon. I too do not go out for walks. I take a walk in the plain stretch in the courtyard. I may go out today. I thank you for your gift. I cannot read either English or any other musical notation. You have not sent the words.

Dr. Sushilabehn will give you this letter.

Blessings from
M. K. GANDHI
SISTER GULBAI TATA
FOUNTAIN HOTEL.
MAHABALESHWAR

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

741. DISCUSSION WITH G. J. M. LONGDEN

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 26, 1945

It is understood that Maj. Longden, among other things, raised the questions of Dominion Status v. Independence, the Hindu-Muslim question, responsibility for the August 1942 disturbances and possibility of Congress co-operation in the war effort.

Mahatma Gandhi is said to have replied that the question of Dominion Status v. Independence could be decided after the principle of independence for India had been accepted by the British Government.

On the Hindu-Muslim question, Mahatma Gandhi is understood to have said that Hindus who had been converted to Islam could not claim separate nationhood by virtue of a change of religion.

1 Conservative Party candidate for the Parliamentary Division of Morpeth (Northumberland) in the British general elections. According to the A. P. I. report, Longden “was told by Gandhiji that his vow of silence prevented a discussion but that written answers could be given to written questions”.
As regards the August 1942 disturbances, Mahatma Gandhi is said to have declared that the Government themselves have absolved him of charge of “treachery” and of trying to assist the Japanese.

Mahatma Gandhi had informed Maj. Longden that though he had no objection to the publication of the questions and answers he thought it would be inadvisable to publish them at this stage and Maj. Longden agreed.

The Bombay Chronicle, 28-5-1945

742. FOREWORD TO “GITAGITMANJARI”

I have discovered no easy way of enjoying the music of songs. I cannot, therefore, easily drink in the joy that they are capable of giving. It has happened sometimes that when a song was sung in a manner I found sweet, I fully enjoyed it and also understood its meaning. Sometimes I myself have been able to hum the tune of a song, and then I have both fully enjoyed the music and understood the meaning.

Jugatram¹ has requested such a person—with much hesitation—to say a few words by way of blessings. “With much hesitation” because he knows the value of my time, as also my limitations.

If, in spite of that, he has requested my blessings, the reason is that I look upon the Gita as a lexicon of the soul. I have not been able to read the Manjari from beginning to end. But I have carefully glanced through it. I liked the work. The author’s labour is evident. Jugatram has, in his own manner, put into song what he has liked in the different chapters of the Gita. The glossary following the Preface in the Manjari, the selected passages from Gitabodh² and Anasaktiyog, which are relevant to the context, and the relevant verses from the Gita are likely to prove useful to a serious student of the work. Jugatram has not come to the end of his journey. He has come as far as Chapter 12. Let us hope that he will be able to complete the journey. He has done well also to include, after the 60th manjari, the songs written for Kakasaheb’s Be Keri³.

¹ Jugatram Dave
³ Literally, “Two Mangoes”; a Gujarati play written by D. B. Kalelkar; the following item.
The student should also know that Jugatram practises the teaching of the \textit{Gita} as he has understood it, and is one of the few who draw from the fountain of milk unceasingly flowing from it. Hence anybody who wishes to enjoy the fragrance of this \textit{Manjari} should touch it only if he wishes to practise the teaching of the \textit{Gita} and work in the spirit of non-attachment, or derive strength for such work.

\textbf{Mahabaleshwar, May 27, 1945}

\textbf{M. K. Gandhi}

From a photostat of the Gujarati: S.N. 19336. Also \textit{Gitagitmanjari}

\textbf{743. LETTER TO JUGATRAM DAVE}

\textit{May 27, 1945}

\textit{Chi. Jugatram},

You have given me a good job indeed. Here is the Foreword\footnote{\textit{Vide} the preceding item.}, or whatever you care to call it. It took more than four hours of my time to write it. For me that is too much. But I had no choice. I like such jobs, but I am no longer fit for them. The work which I have planned to do here takes most of my time, or rather all the time that I get. My purpose in writing this is not to reproach you for giving me a job like this but, through you, to stop others from doing the same. How can I reproach you? And then you have written \textit{Manjari} only to help me in my work. Isn’t that so? This is no mere rhetoric. You have called the ninth \textit{manjari} “Samata Yoga” and the 40th “Samata”. You will observe that the word ‘samata’ bears two different meanings in the two places. I would call the ninth “Samata”, dropping “Yoga”, and the 40th “Samatva” or “Samabhava”. The reason is plain. The discussion of Chapter 12 ends at the 60th \textit{manjari}. I see from the contents that you have included something from \textit{Be Keri}. There should be some mention of it, on p. 152\footnote{The first song from \textit{Be Keri} occurs on, this page of \textit{Gitagitmanjari}.}. Think over it. If something can be done about it, do so.

\textit{Blessings from}

\textit{Bapu}

From a photostat of the Gujarati: S.N. 19336
744. LETTER TO SECRETARY, HOME DEPARTMENT, GOVERNMENT OF BOMBAY

“MORARJI CASTLE”, MAHABALESHWAR,
May 27, 1945

THE SECRETARY TO THE GOVERNMENT OF BOMBAY HOME DEPARTMENT
BOMBAY

DEAR SIR,

I refer you to my letter\(^1\) of 6th May, 1944, written from the Detention Camp.

Up till recently there has been no hitch about friends and relatives going to the samadhis of the two departed ones, my wife and Shri Mahadev Desai. But a hitch occurred recently. Tactful handling made devotion fairly possible during fixed hours. Now comes the rumour that H. H. the Aga Khan’s Palace is about to be occupied by the Military and in that event, devotion may not be permitted at all. I can only hope that the fear is wholly unjustified.

In my letter of 6th May, 1944, to the Government I reduced my contention to writing to the effect that by reason of the cremation of the corpses of Shri Mahadev Desai and then my wife, the place of cremation which has been fenced off becomes consecrated ground. The party has daily visited the ground twice and offered floral tributes to the departed spirits and said prayers. I trust that the plot will be acquired by the Government with the right of way to it through H. H. the Aga Khan’s grounds so as to enable those relatives and friends who wish to visit the cremation ground whenever they like.

To this the following reply was received:

I am to inform you that it is legally impossible for Government to acquire the site compulsorily under the Land Acquisition Act. Government considers that the matter is one for private negotiations between you and His Highness the Aga Khan. I am to add, however, that your request has been communicated to His Highness the Aga Khan and is now understood to be under his consideration. Government understands that he has no objection, in the mean while, to the relatives of Mrs. Gandhi and Mr. Mahadev Desai and any other persons suggested by you going through the Palace grounds to the place of cremation on the understanding that this is by his leave and licence.

\(^1\) Vide “Letter to Secretary, Home Department, Government of Bombay”, 6-5-1944.

I do hope that, no matter who occupies or owns the palace, the consecrated ground on which the two samadhis stand will be protected and reserved for devotion by the friends and relatives of the families.

I am, etc.,

M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat: G.N. 3940

745. LETTER TO HARSHADA DIWANJI

May 27, 1945

DEAR SISTER,

I have your letter. It is a very good practice to give money for Harijan work or some such cause on occasions such as a birth or an engagement or a dear one’s death. I have received your cheque. I will go to Poona at the end of June or around that time. If you come then you will be able to keep your vow. If possible we shall go to the samadhi together.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI HARSHADABEHN DIWANJI

Khar

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 10224. Courtesy: Harshada Diwanji

746. LETTER TO PRABHAVATI

MACHABALESHWAR,
May 27, 1945

CHI. PRA BHA,

You were released and the restrictions on Rajkumari were lifted. I got news of both together. But that did not make me happy. The reason is exactly what you write. I received your wire yesterday and the letter today. How can you be blamed if you wrote in pencil because there was no other help? Even so your handwriting is very good and well-formed. It was your duty to go to Father. It was good you went there. Come here after you are able to leave the place. If you get permission to see Jayaprakash only during that time—it is your duty to go there. Your next duty is to come to me. You will stay here only as long as it is necessary. So come soon. I will reach Panchgani on the 31st. Mahabaleshwar is only a little higher up. Why do you feel shy of spectacles? Khurshedbehn is at Panchgani. More when we meet. Is Father all right? Convey my blessings to him.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI PRABHAVATIBEHN
[C/o] VISHWANATH PRASAD, BIHAR BANK
LAHERIA SARAI P. O.
DARBHANGA, BIHAR

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

747. LETTER TO GIRIRAJ KISHORE BHATNAGAR

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 27, 1945

CHI. GIRIRAJ.

I had given you a prompt reply.¹ This is the second letter. What you are doing is good. I was happy to hear about the children. I had made a few more inquiries. I hope your health is perfectly good. I shall go to Panchgani on the 31st. Nanavati has reached Mysore.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI GIRIRAJ
HINDUSTANI PRACHAR CLASS
ENGLISH SCHOOL
NAPAD, via ANAND

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

748. LETTER TO BHARATAN KUMARAPPA

May 28, 1945

MY DEAR BHARATAN,

Your letter and the book. Appasamy came, left the book and went away. I have not met him. I wonder if he will seek me out and meet me though I am silent the whole day till evening prayer!

You need not apologize for sending me the book. I must read it. I glanced at it, as it came into my hands. How does it differ from your description of socialism which you say centres round society and its needs and villagism which you say centres round the village and its wants? Do you mark any difference? Is not village and its welfare the same as society and its needs? Is not the difference this: socialism includes violence as a measure to achieve it, villagism excludes it?

My English is not perfect. It may be relatively better than Hindustani. I must try to make it equal to my English, if it is not. I reach the masses only through Hindustani however imperfect it may be, never through English, however perfect it may be. If you admit this, the Patrika would be only in Hindustani and the provinces will render it in the provincial languages, the people thereof will understand. You may have an English translation of necessary extracts for the foreign reader. This can happen only when both of you see the point and resolve to write in Hindustani however imperfect it may be. I migrate to Panchgani on 31st May.

Love.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

749. LETTER TO NARGIS CAPTAIN

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 28, 1945

DEAR SISTER,

Your letter came on yesterday.

Both Pyarelal and Narahari had been to the place. They do not think much of it. The work done is make believe. It is a poor house giving charity. And from what I understand Mahabaleshwar owing to its heavy rainfall is not the place to hold such an institution. Able-bodied poor may live in the place and even thrive. More when we meet.

There was no letter from Bul yesterday. Of course, she will be with me, if and when she likes.

Love to you all.

BAPU

[PS.]

Tell B. I have just had a letter from her. It does not require an immediate reply.

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

750. LETTER TO RAMANLAL SHAH

May 28, 1945

CHI. RAN ANLAL,

I got your letter only today. The description you have given is good. I like your taking charge of the kitchen work. Be steady. Gradually learn everything about the prayers, etc. I have known you as a silent worker. You can shine wherever you live. I am of the view, however, that for making one into a true servant in spite of one’s shortcomings there is no institution which can equal the Ashram.

Blessings from

BAPU

From the Gujarati original: Ramanlal Shah Papers. Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Also C.W. 5882
751. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

May 28, 1945

CHI. MUNNALAL,

I got your letter. You may do what you like regarding Kanchan. I have done all I could, and have written and explained everything. You seem to have given up your ‘charge’. Do what you can now. I hope the management of the ashram will not completely break up. I shall not be able to give any more guidance from here. The work has become very heavy. I must, therefore, select only what is absolutely necessary and attend to it.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 8451. Also C.W. 5580. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

752. LETTER TO MARGARETE SPIEGEL

May 28, 1945

CHI. AMA LA,

Your letter is very good. Never again be so foolish. You are quite a grown-up person. Be calm and collected. About farming and cattle, write to Satis Babu, Sodepur Khadi Pratishthan, via Calcutta. He knows much more than I do.

Blessings from
BAPU

DR. MARGARETE SPIEGEL
3 WODEHOUSE ROAD
FORT, BOMBAY

From the Gujarati original: Spiegel Papers. Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library

1 Gandhiji uses the English word.
753. LETTER TO CHIMANLAL N. SHAH

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 28, 1945

CHI. CHI MANLAL,

I have received a complaint that the wood from which cupboards and other things for the hospital were made was of inferior quality as well as costly. Is there any truth in it?

I was sorry to read about Munnalal. He is a very good worker but is not able to control his temper. Do what you can. I sometimes feel that it would be good if I returned there soon. But then I persuade myself otherwise.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

754. LETTER TO LAKSHMIDAS ASAR

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 28, 1945

CHI. LAKSHMID AS,

I was pained to read your letter dated May 19, 1945, to Jajuji. How did your health get so bad? You must never take too much work upon yourself. Get well. You can. It will be good if you suggest more than one name for the post of secretary Write to me at Panchgani. I shall be there on the 31st.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI LAKSHMIDAS ASAR
GRAMODYOG KHADI HAAT
BHADRA, AHMEDABAD

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
755. DRAFT LETTER FOR CHAMPA R. MEHTA

May 28, 1945

Write to her as follows:

Maganbhai and others went yesterday. If they are willing to have an arbitrator, it does not mean that Gandhi will be the arbitrator. It is beyond his strength. He is willing to entrust the matter to a suitable arbitrator. Gandhiji advises that a case should be prepared for arbitration. It will be be no use your coming to Panchgani.

Yours sincerely

BAPU

From the Gujarati original: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

756. LETTER TO CHANDRANI

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 28, 1945

CHANDRANI,

I have your letter. What can I say about your getting married? I can only indicate the path. I have not the right, nor has anyone else, to do anything more. This is a matter of the heart. Even you yourself cannot go against it. No woman can at one and the same time both bear children and be of service. Of course bearing children can also become a kind of service. I am returning Father’s letter, You will certainly go to him. Hear what everyone says and then obey the dictates of your heart.

It will be all right if you reach Sevagram on the 9th June. Sushilabehn will write more. You are not a small girl at all. So, in everything, you do whatever seems proper to you.¹

Blessings from

BAPU

CHANDRANI
[C/o] VYOGI HARI
HARIJAN NIVAS
KINGSWAY [CAMP], DELHI

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Vide the following item.
757. LETTER TO SATYAVATI

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 28, 1945

CHI. SATYAVATI,

I have your letter. I feel happy even if I hear that you are just a little better. Chand can stay there as long as she wishes. You can detain her. See the letter¹ I have written to Chand about her marriage. I need not repeat it.

Blessings from
BAPU

[PS.]

I am leaving for Panchgani on the 31st. In fact the two places are much the same.

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

758. LETTER TO JAIRAMDAHOULATRAM

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 28, 1945

CHI. JAIRAMDAH,

I have your letter. The house in Panchgani is too small for my large family. I am therefore happy when members of my family make their own arrangements. This does not mean that you, Devi² or Premi³ are not to come. What I mean is that if you can accommodate yourselves with someone in Panchgani, you should do so. I hope all are well.

Blessings to you all from
BAPU

JAIRAMDAHOULATRAM
JNANGHAR
15TH STREET, KHAR
BOMBAY-21

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Vide the preceding item.
² Addressee’s wife and daughter
³ ibid
759. LETTER TO M. S. KELKAR

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 28, 1945

BHAi ICE,

I have your letters. Balkrishna is not satisfied. Dev has borrowed a little from you. For the rest he is carrying on on his own. Hoshiaribehn too is not wholly satisfied. I merely caution you. A doctor who finds fault with his patient is not a doctor at all. . . . I shall be very happy if Hari-ichchha gets well.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

760. LETTER TO GHANSHYAMSINH GUPTA

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 28, 1945

BHAi GHANSHYAMSINH,

I like your letter. I am also going on with the work. The important thing is whether the local people can hold out or not.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI GHANSHYAMSINH GUPTA
SPEAKER
DRUG

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 A sentence here is obscure.
761. LETTER TO SHYAMLAL

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 28, 1945

BHAI SHYAMLAL,

I have your letter. What you have sent to Lala Ramswarup by way of donation is all right. Send it to the Trustees.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI SHYAMLALJI
KASTURBA SMARAK
SCINDIA HOUSE
BOMBAY

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

762. LETTER TO SHANTA

May 28, 1945

CHI. SHANTA,

Your beautiful letter is lying before me. It may not be so in appearance but the account it contains is indicative of your success. One can say that true adult education is being imparted if the wells are kept in good order, houses are fitted with windows and there is light in the rooms.

The new economics you have indicated is quite good. If we succeed in labour banks, then the success of grain banks, etc., is within our reach.

You must maintain your health. You will be able to do that if you do your work with detachment. It is your primary duty to act in this manner. You can never give to the people what you do not have.

May God give you strength and success.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
763. LETTER TO SAILENDRA NATH CHATTERJEE

May 28, 1945

CHI. SAI LEN,

Write to Dr. Krishnavarma intimating the date. Vina is not needed at Malad or anywhere else. She must go to Sevagram.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: C.W. 10392. Courtesy: Amrita Lal Chatterjee

764. LETTER TO SARAYU DHOTRE

May 28, 1945

CHI. SAR AYU,

I have your letter. It was proper that I should have written to Rameshwardasji.

I told you your duty. It is a matter of the heart for everyone. It did not mean that I would abandon you and not do what I can and I, though a pauper, would live like a rich man. The path of duty is a razor’s edge.

It is just as well that Vatsala\(^1\) is with you.

Keep writing to me. It will be good if Mohan\(^2\) recovers.

I suppose for the present you will be staying on there.

Blessings from
BAPU

From Hindi: C.W. 838. Courtesy: Sarayu Dhotre

---

\(^1\) Addressee’s sister and son
\(^2\) ibid
765. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA

May 28, 1945

CHI. KRISHNACHANDRA,

Do not worry about Balkoba’s discharge. It is an old disease. Do what you can to cure it. Keep writing to me.

I have suggested the use of Grimm’s Law with regard to the script.

The letter from Ramdas (May 14, 1945) is nice. He can only argue thus. He will never give up khadi. But he cannot easily forget his experience. Shriman has taken his argument to the extreme. It is impossible today. Ramdas does not know the whole of India directly or indirectly. It is not his fault. One must be acquainted with the situation in India in order to make a scientific study. The situation about which he is talking is due to the invasion from the West. There can only be violence at the root of Ramdas’s statement. If non-violence has to prevail, many things will have to be carried on without steam power, etc.

That there should be big factories run by the people for big industries is a matter of regret, not of joy. In brief, Ramdas will have to think very deeply. I know that ultimately Ramdas will be able to give up his attachment.

You have got to go to Nagpur. Go there and get lots of experience.

Send this letter or a copy of it to Ramdas.

Blessings from

BAPU

[PS.]

Send the letters of Raman and Shantabehn to them.

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4572

1 Addressee’s sister and son
Bhai Hiralal Shastri,

I have your letter.

I am not at all satisfied about Ratan Devi. She has only been exploited. You yourself should have given the reply. Ratan Devi must surely be regretting that she does not know English. What does it matter if the editor brings out an English paper?

Do not involve me in the politics there. I wish to remain aloof.

Blessings from

Bapu

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library.Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

APPENDICES

APPENDIX I

PYARELAL’S STATEMENT\(^1\)

Gandhiji, having seen it, says that he never sent any such or other circular to Congress workers or committees in any or all the Provinces. The statement that has appeared in the Press to that effect is, therefore, wrong. He holds the view, and has shared it with correspondents, that as long as the Congress President and his colleagues are in prison, Congressmen must act on their own initiative and judgment and no individual or group or assembly, whatever name they give to themselves, will have the authority to act in the name or on behalf of the Congress organization. They are entitled to and bound to act as they deem it best in the interests of the cause for which the Congress stands, but they do so on their own authority and responsibility and cannot use the name of the Congress to enforce their decision. Gandhiji adds that such is his individual opinion.

The Bombay Chronicle, 11-5-1945

\(^1\) Vide p. 123.
1. TELEGRAM TO RAMESHWARI NEHRU

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 29, 1945

RAMESHWARI NEHRU
WARRIS ROAD
LAHORE

IF THEY WENT FOR VACATION YOU NEED NOT GO BUT USE YOUR JUDGMENT.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

2. LETTER TO C. RAJAGOPALACHARI

May 29, 1945

MY DEAR C. R.,

Yours written on the train.

I am overwhelmed with work. Hence the delay, if delay it may be called.

I agree with you about the existence of the evil. My difficulty is as to the way to deal with it. I want you to depend upon me to do so as soon as I see the way. Nothing will then stop me. Nor am I unvigilant.

I am glad you liked your stay in Mahabaleshwar.

I hope Papa and Narasimhan came to you at once and that you are doing well.

I am on your latest pamphlet¹.

Love.

BAPU

From a photostat: G.N. 2106

¹ Presumably Reconciliation
3. LETTER TO POTTI SRIRAMULU

May 29, 1945

DEAR SRIRAMULU,

It is more honest to sell your yarn for the required quantity of khadi and take your food from your beggings and devote the rest to the Harijan cause. Let the people know your worth.

Yours,

BAPU

[PS.]

Temple entry is not the only way to remove untouchability; it is one of the many ways all of which have to be taken.

From a photostat: G.N. 106

4. NOTE TO AMRITLAL V. THAKKAR

May 29, 1945

BAPA,

This telegram has been received. I have given the reply\(^2\) as above.

BAPU

From the Gujarati original: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

5. LETTER TO SITA GANDHI

May 29, 1945

CHI. SITA,

Your handwriting is good. write to everybody in the same way. Equally good handwriting for everyone. Shivir agni\(^3\) seems all right.

---

1 A Congressman of Nellore who worked for the cause of untouchability; he fasted unto death for the formation of a separate Andhra State in 1953

2 Vide “Telegram to Rameshwari Nehru”, 29-5-1945; also “Letter to Amritlal V. Thakkar”.

3 Camp fire
You can say that on that day we had lighted shivir agni all over the place.

_Blessings to all from_

_BAPU_

CHI. SITA GANDHI
NANABHAI MASHRUWALA’S BUNGALOW
AKOLA, BERAR

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 4951

6. LETTER TO JAYAKUNVAR V. DESAI

May 29, 1945

CHI. JAYA¹,

I have your letter.

You may, by all means, marry away Chi. Chandu². Both seem to be worthy of each other. I cannot, however, welcome this marriage. I feel for that abandoned lady. How will she take it? Manilal is in Bombay.

_Blessings from_

_BAPU_

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./23

7. LETTER TO KRISHNAVARMA

Mahabaleshwar,

_May 29, 1945 *

BHAI KRISHNAVARMA.

I have your letter of the 20th. You can certainly let uncle read my letters. We all wish that he should get well. For that he should live under your care till he recovers completely and should do whatever you ask him to do. I hope his health is fast improving.

Sailen should come to you in a few days. He will write directly to you.

_Blessings from_

_BAPU_

DR. KRISHNAVARMA
NATURE CURE CLINIC
MALAD

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹Gandhiji’s niece, sister of Jaisukhlal A. Gandhi
²Chandrakala, addressee’s daughter
8. LETTER TO NANJI KALIDAS

May 29, 1945

Bhai Nanji,

I have your letter. Shantabehn had been here. Now she has gone to Panchgani to make preparations. Neither you nor anyone from your family need come here for my sake. Shantabehn is quite capable of managing everything all by herself. Then, too, I have a big party with me. I leave here on the 31st. Do not worry about me. Look after your health.

Blessings from

Bapu

SHETH NANJI KALIDAS
MAHARANA MILLS
PORBUNDAR, KATHIWAR

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

9. LETTER TO RANCHHODDAS

Mahabaleshwar,

May 29, 1945

Bhai Ranchhoddas,

I have gone through your English letter. I do not want to get involved with the questions raised therein. Had you met me I would have spent some time in talking to you. How can I prevent you from sending to the Press the questions you have raised? What is the significance of those questions without my replies? Hope you are well.

Yours,

M. K. Gandhi

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
10. LETTER TO AMRITLAL V. THAKKAR

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 29, 1945

BAPA,

1. I have your letter. I cannot fall in line with Sir Purushottamdas’s opinion. The office should never be in Bombay. However, I do not insist on anything. It is you who have to think over it.

2. It will be very good if some concrete work is taken up. I have welcomed Devdas’s suggestion. I have also said that he should demonstrate it in practice. I have already expressed my opinion that “impatience dose not make a mango tree bear fruit”.

3. The farther the money is kept from the shadow of the Government, the better. I have no objection if you keep it with some good firm.

4. I do not want to interfere in small things and also in the schemes. In fact I should have bothered myself only with the principles.

5. What you write about Kamle is correct.

BAPU

SHRI THAKKAR BAPA
SERVANTS OF INDIA SOCIETY POONA CITY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

11. LETTER TO SHAMALDAS GANDHI

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 29, 1945

CHI. SHAMALDAS,

I have received both of your letters. It is all right that you wrote to me a long letter. If the hopes you entertain are fulfilled, then mine also will be fulfilled. Your father\(^1\) in his last letter had entrusted all of you to me. He had especially high hopes of Ranchhod\(^1\) but he wrote

\(^1\) A Gujarati saying
\(^2\) Lakshmidas Gandhi, Gandhiji’s brother
\(^3\) Ranchhoddas, addressee’s brothers quite a lot about you and Shanti\(^1\). I never met Ranchhod. Let us see how Shanti ultimately fares. For the present I have pinned my hopes on you.

_Blessings from_
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

12. LETTER TO B. JAGANNATHDAS

May 29, 1945

BHAJ JAGANNATHDAS,

I have your letter. Come over to Panchgani any time you want. It will give me even greater pleasure if Diwan Bahadur also comes. You should understand of course that I shall be staying in somebody’s house at Panchgani. The house is not big. You will therefore have to make arrangements for your lodging somewhere else. Continue the practice of writing in Hindustani.

_Blessings from_
M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat of the Hindi: C.W. 9760. Courtesy: B. Jagannathdas

13. LETTER TO PIR ILAHIBUKSH

May 29, 1945

BHAJ PIR SAHEB,

I have your letter\(^2\). Perhaps you know that I know the Urdu script. There is very little difference between Sindhi and Urdu scripts. You must also be knowing that I call Hindustani that language which rural Hindus and Muslims of North India speak and which they write in the Nagari or Urdu scripts. So, if I may advise you, I would suggest that you teach Hindustani to Hindu and Muslim boys in all the schools in both the scripts. It is an old thing but did not make much progress. Now an association has come into being which propagates this scheme.\(^3\)

_Yours_,

From the Hindi original: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

\(^1\) Santtilal, addressee’s brother.
\(^2\) Asking what language should be taught in Sind and how
\(^3\) At the end there is the following instruction in Gujarati: “Give a reply on these lines and get my signature.”
14. LETTER TO SUSHILA

Mahabaleshwar,
May 29, 1945

Chii Sushila,

You must firmly refuse to marry the person whom your parents want you to marry.

Marry the man with whom you are so much in love after informing your parents. Do not seek my blessings. My advice and hope would be that both of you should devote yourselves to service and forget each other. I know it is difficult.

Blessings from

M. K. Gandhi

[C/o] Shri Guruprasad Srivastava
R. M. S. Office
Charbagh Junction
Lucknow

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

15. LETTER TO SHYAMLAL

Mahabaleshwar,
May 29, 1945

Bhai Shyamlal,

I have received your letter about the office. I agree. I understand Wardha to mean Wardha proper or places around it. The reason is clear.

Shyamlal
Kasturba Trust Office
Bombay

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
16. LETTER TO MOHAMMED HAMID-UD-DIN

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 29, 1945

Bhai Mohammed Hamid-Ud-Din,

I have your letter. I am very sorry to know that out of your eight children only one, Masud, now four years old, is alive. May God give him a long life. May your wish that your son Masud should render service to the country and devote his life to furthering Hindu-Muslim unity bear fruit. Why do you write to one like me in English? And why does your printed address on the letter-paper have to be in English?

Yours,

M. K. Gandhi

Shri Hamid-Ud-Din Khan
Maharaja’s College
Jaipur

From a copy of the Urdu: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

17. INTERVIEW TO DENTON J. BROOKS JR.¹

MAHABALESHWAR,
[On or before May 30, 1945]²

QUESTION: Gandhiji, is there any special message you would care to send to the Negro people of America?

ANSWER: My life is its own message. If it is not, then nothing I can now write will fulfil the purpose.

