When asked to comment on the probable trend of the race relations, Mr. Gandhi said:

My faith burns brighter today, even brighter than it has in the past; we are fast approaching a solution to roublesome race problems.

¹ According to the source, the interviewer, a Negro journalist, was Far Eastern correspondent of Chicago Defender, in which the interview appeared on June 10, 1945. Brooks reported: “... in the exclusive interview given to me last week... at... Morarjee Castle, Mahabaleshwar... Gandhiji was observing silence, with the exception of an hour after evening prayers... I asked questions and he hurriedly jotted down his answers.”

² Brooks reported that “later in the evening” he had attended the “prayers”. Gandhiji reached Panchgani on May 31, 1945, in the evening.

This he feels will be accomplished in spite of present-day discouraging symptoms. And he still feels that the best weapon for use by underprivileged peoples is non-violence.

Pointing to his recent statement 1 made at the beginning of the San Francisco Conference, he indicated that India’s freedom was closely identified with the welfare of all other under-privileged peoples. At that time he had said:

The freedom of India will demonstrate to all exploited races of the earth that their freedom is very near and that in no case will they be exploited.

The Hindu, 15-6-1945

18. DRAFT FOREWORD TO “GITA ANI GITAI”

I have quite a few co-workers who are more or less exclusively engaged in doing my work and who, therefore, have a claim on me. However, such a claim should not be made in so many words; otherwise I would not be able to do the work which I ought to do. Kundarji asked me to write a Foreword for Gitai ani Gitai and GitadhyayaSangati. How could I say ‘No’ to him? I agreed and so it became my duty to read GitadhyayaSangati and Kundarji’s Preface. This took away one hour of my time. The work will suffer if I let my hours go thus and the Gita will cease to be my spiritual dictionary. 2

The beauty of Gitai is that its meaning and music are rendered 3 in Marathi in such a way that those who do not know the original Gita can enjoy reading it as they would the original.

M. K. GANDHI

MAHABALESHWAR, May 30, 1945

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

---

1 Vide “Staement to the Press”, 17-4-1945.
2 Between this and the next paragraph, in the source, appears the Foreword to GitadhyayaSangati; the following item.
3 By Vinoba Bhave
19. FOREWORD TO “GITADHYAYASANGATI”

Vinoba has been my co-worker ever since the Ashram at Kochrab was set up. He has done plenty of work that I wanted him to do or that which was dear to me. Take for instance Gitadhya-asangati. I had asked for a little, Vinoba gave me much. The readers should know that the idea of reciting the Gita in fourteen days and then in seven days first occurred to me in Yeravda Prison. I told Vinoba of what I had in mind and asked for his approval and also his suggestions. In reply he sent me Gitadhyaasangati. By having this before him the reader who wants to concentrate on the Gita and put its teaching into practice will be benefited.

MAHABALESHWAR, May 30, 1945

[From Hindi]

Gitadhyaasangati

20. TELEGRAM TO ASAFL ALI

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 30, 1945

BARRISTER ASAFL ALI
KUCHA CHELLAN
DELHI

WIRE EXACT CONDITION. SORRY YOU ARE ILL.

GANDHI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

---

1 Near Ahmedabad, in May 1915
2 The draft Foreword here adds: “I am convinced”
21. LETTER TO SUDHIR GHOSH

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 30, 1945

MY DEAR SUDHIR,

I have your interesting letter. I am in Panchgani till the end of June. Dr. John Everton will certainly be able to see me in Panchgani during June, any afternoon. Of course I am silent but that should not matter. Of course he will give me previous information.

Love to you both.

BAPU

SHRI SUDHIR GHOSH
I UPPER WOOD STREET
CALCUTTA

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

22. LETTER TO MIRABEHN

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 30, 1945

CHI. MIRA,

This is just to ask you not to worry about help. Bapa says he won’t find the man to suit you. Balvantsinha can come only after I reach Sevagram. Ramprasad won’t leave you till B. can join you. Meanwhile do as you sing “Rock of ages, cleft for me, let me hide myself in Thee”1.

Love.

BAPU

SHRI MIRABEHN
KISAN ASHRAM
BAHADARABAD P. O.
JWALAPUR
NEAR HARDWAR

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 A hymn by A. M. Toplady (1740-78) included in the Ashram Bhajanavali
23. LETTER TO VALJI G. DESAI

May 30, 1945

CHI. VALJI,

Bapa is very busy. He is not like me. If I don’t get a man, I can beg for services. His eyes are weak. He would need someone to write in Gujarati and Hindi. If you or some boys or anybody else can help him, go and meet him and tell him so. At present he is in the Servants of India Society of Poona. The help is to be given there. It would be better if someone who is known was available.

Please let me know if there is any book in Marathi or Gujarati on veterinary science.

Tomorrow [we leave for] Panchgani.

Blessings from

BAPU

PROF. VALJI G. DESAI
GANESH VADI
FERGUSSON COLLEGE ROAD
POONA

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 10227. Courtesy: Valji G. Desai

24. LETTER TO JAIISKHLAL GANDHI

May 30, 1945

CHI. JAIISKHLAL,

I saw what you wrote at the bottom of Vinodini’s letter. How did you get dysentery? The ideal diet is that which improves one’s health day by day. Do you think there is some defect in your diet somewhere? You yourself should discover it. I am glad indeed that Manu has gone there. She will continue to cause me worry till she gets completely well.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI JAIISKHLAL GANDHI
SIND MARKET NO. 35
MAHATMA GANDHI ROAD
KARACHI

From a microfilm of the Gujrati: M.M.U./24

THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
25. LETTER TO NANDLAL PATEL

May 30, 1945

CHI. NANDLAL,

Your letter of the 30th April reached me on the 5th May. I am able to reply to it only today. I get news about Hari-ichchha' practically every alternate day. She is always in my thoughts. How nice it would be if she survives. God’s will shall prevail. The remedy also will be found in the same way. Just now I can think of no one except Dr. Kelkar. He is a fine man.

I shall be reaching there only in July. Write to me again. How does Hari-ichchha herself feel?

Look after the houses there.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 9253. Also C.W. 2716. Courtesy: Nandlal Patel

26. LETTER TO CHIMANLAL N. SHAH

May 30, 1945

CHI. CHIMANLAL,

I have not been able to reply to one of your letters. You did well in sending the money to Ramaswami for his parents for the months of April and May. I think nothing is left now.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10635

1 Addressee’s daughter
27. LETTER TO BURJORJI F. BHARUCHA

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 30, 1945

BHAJ BHALUCHARA,

I have your postcard. Please understand that it is improper to drag me into such activities.

Yours,
M. K. GANDHI

BURJORJI FARAMJI BHARUCHA
BOMBAY-1

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

28. LETTER TO AMIN

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 30, 1945

CHI. AMIN,

That you make efforts is itself proof of the presence of both the virtues in you. Man’s duty is but to endeavour. Success depends on the grace of God. We should seek solitude among the multitudes—inaction in activity—but such activity should be without desire for fruits. That is what you are doing. Remember Ramakrishna Paramahansa was not inactive. After all you do not indulge in worldly behaviour.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
29. LETTER TO VASUMATI PANDIT

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 30, 1945

CHI. VASUMATI,

I could take up your letter only today. What you write is correct. Everyone works according to his ability. You and I cannot be exceptions. Take care of your health and keep on doing whatever you have to do. We should never lose faith that God looks after everyone. Ask Akbar.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI VASUMATIBEHN
C/O Daulatram Kashiram
KareIWadi
Thakurdwar Road
Bombay

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

30. LETTER TO RAMPRASAD VYAS

May 30, 1945

CHI. RAMPRASAD,

I hope you are well. Do not move from there until I send Balvantsinha or someone else. It is all right even if you have to stay there for two months. It would be a different thing if you wished to do no more than what I had asked.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Vide also “Letter to Mirabehn”, 30-5-1945.
31. LETTER TO SITARAM P. PATWARDHAN

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 30, 1945

CHI. APPA,

I could take up your letter only today. I cannot arrive at any clear decision. I know Jajuji’s difficulties. I know the value of your work there. Balasaheb and others will only do what I tell them. Knowing all this increases my responsibility. Under the circumstances, if you also are not able to decide, then draw lots and act according to the result. Doing so is not the way of ignorance. I believe it to be perfectly a way of knowledge. It certainly has its advantages.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

32. LETTER TO SARASWATI GANDHI

May 30, 1945

CHI. SURU,

I am able to answer your letter only today. You and Vali can come here any time you want. But I would not like you to incur so much expense just for the sake of meeting me. You are doing good work there. You are meeting me through letters. If you two can reform Harilal, I shall feel that you have accomplished a great thing.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 6186. Also C.W. 3460. Courtesy: Kantilal Gandhi
33. LETTER TO PRABHAKAR

May 30, 1945

CHI. PRABHAKAR.

The main reason for my not answering your letter was the meetings. I am now disposing of the letters. Ask again if something is left out in my reply.

I am not sorry that you fasted. I hope you will regain the weight you may have lost. It will increase only gradually. It will be good if Madho improves. It is difficult when it is kleptomania. The person then does not even know that he is stealing. He deserves pity. On such occasions do not show mercy by resorting to a fast. Every time he behaves like that he should be warned, gently not harshly.

Tell Balvantsinha that I am on the lookout for books on veterinary science.1 I have now gone through the whole letter. I do not see you have any particular question.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 9028. Also C.W. 5883 and 9152.

Courtesy: Prabhakar

34. LETTER TO KUNDAR DIWAN

Mahabaleshwar,
May 30, 1945

BHAJ KUNDAR,

Herewith my Foreword2. I am no longer fit for such work. If I wish to live, it is in order that I can take part in the yajna of freedom by doing something original. Writing such prefaces is not that work. You will be writing so many things. Please do not ask for anything from me.

I find the discourses on the Gita interesting. But I cannot say

1 Vide “Letter to Valji G. Desai”, 30-5-1945.
2 Vide “Draft forwarded to Gita Ani Gitai”, 30-5-1945.
what you can. Where do I have that knowledge? You may reject my Foreword if you find it of no use.

Blessings from
BAPU

KUNDAR DIWAN
M. S. MANDAL,
DATTAPUR
NALWADI, WARDHA

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

35. LETTER TO RAMESHWARI NEHRU

May 30, 1945

CHI. RAMESHWARIBEHN,

Your letter about Father is lying with me.

I will not issue an appeal about a memorial for him.¹ It should come from the Punjab and in Punjabi. If someone issues an appeal and does not take any responsibility, then he should let things follow their own course. After all Father’s services need no memorial to make them lasting. One lives on in service. Kaul’s name and address will be given below.

I have received your letter regarding the Balika Ashram. I have sent a telegram.² It is enough. Your letter explains your telegram.

Blessings from
BAPU

[PS.]

Shrimati Kaul’s address:
Lady C. Kaul
Camp, via Sangrur
(Zind State-Punjab)

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 8008. Also C.W. 3108. Courtesy: Rameshwari Nehru

¹ Vide also “Letter to Rameshwari Nehru”, 30-5-1945.
36. LETTER TO DEVPRAKASH NAYYAR
May 30, 1945

CHI. DEV,

I have not replied to all your letters. I am taking out the old ones today. There is one question in that. Singing certainly has a place in Nayee Talim. Singing implies a knowledge of notes and this one must have.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a microfilm of the Hindi original. Courtesy: National Archives of India.
Also Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

37. LETTER TO OM PRAKASH GUPTA
May 30, 1945

CHI. OM PRAKASH,

Your beautiful letter is before me. I am disposing of all the pending letters today. You must be getting on well. Let me know what I have to do after I return.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
38. LETTER TO LAKSHMINARAYAN

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 30, 1945

CHI. LAKSHMI BABU,

You wrote to me about Shashi’s marriage on the 13th May. I received the letter on the 17th. The wedding was on the 21st. You might have received the letter in time if I had written to you the same day. But I could read the letter only today. There is so much work.
However, please do not feel bad. The marriage has been solemnized.
Convey my blessings to the couple. I hope that they will lead a life of service and devotion.

Blessings from
BAPU

[PS.]
Write to Panchgani.
SHRI LAKSHMINARAYAN
KHADI BHANDAR, NAYA BAZAAR
MUZAFFARPUR (BIHAR)

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

39. LETTER TO SRIKRISHNADAS JAJU

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 30, 1945

BHAI JAJUJI,

I could reach your letter of the 15th only today.
I do not like to borrow money for Kashmir. The condition seems to me very strict. They refuse to give it for five years. I do not see any harm in having a look at the old yarn. However, it would be better if we could manage without a loan. This is my personal view.
You can take a loan if the conditions are acceptable to you, if our workers from Kashmir are also willing and if we cannot give them the money in any other way. If it becomes necessary to take the loan, I will give my signature when it is required.

Blessings from
BAPU

[PS.]
I return the papers.

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
40. LETTER TO RAMASWAMI

May 30, 1945

CHI. RAMASWAMI,

I have not replied to two of your letters. The reason is work.

The postcard does not call for any reply. You must have received money for the months of April and May. I am sorry that there was some irregularity in sending the money. I am responsible for that. When your continuing became uncertain probably I was not able to make up my mind as to what should be the duty of the Ashram towards you. I do not remember it well. I am sorry that your parents were a little hurt.

Only the poor have true and pure ambition. That certainly lifts them high and throws them into the hands of the demon. This is the translation of “between the devil and the deep sea”. What you say is not true. When you feel that you are going to fall into the hands of Satan, you should give up that work. I don’t think it proper to say more to you in this connection. You must yourself realize your duty.

Do not blame the zemindar if you want the fame which you can acquire with your money. Just as among the poor, there are also good and bad among them. All poor people are not good and all rich people are not bad. Ponder over the basic things while you are entering a new life.

I hope there won’t be any difficulty in understanding my language. You should learn to speak and write in Hindi. Keep on writing to me. Write to me at Panchgani.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
41. FOREWORD TO “VARNA VYAVASTHA”:

I do not have the time to read this book again. I do not even wish to. I have many other things to do.

In my opinion a man daily moves either forward or backward. He never stands still. The whole world is moving. There is no exception to it. I will be making a wrong statement if I say that I am today what I was yesterday and will remain the same in future. In fact I should not even have such a desire.

It is right however that my writings and utterances should not be such as to confuse others. I should not write things which can bear two interpretations. That is to say I should always have an eye to truth and non-violence while writing, speaking or doing anything. I can say that I have been doing that ever since I gave my word to my mother. In fact I became a devotee of truth ever since I reached the age of understanding.

This does not mean that I have had or even today have a full vision of truth and ahimsa. But I do believe that my vision of truth and ahimsa is becoming clearer every day. Therefore it would not be correct to say that my views on Varnashrama are the same as they were in the past. I have said that the varnas and the ashramas are the gifts of Hinduism to the world, and I still adhere to that view. But today neither the varnas nor the ashramas of my conception are in existence anywhere. They should form a part of our religion. But it can be said that these days the ashramas have disappeared altogether and varnas are found in the form of privileges. The claim of being a Brahmin, a Kshatriya, a Vaishya connotes pride. How can there be pride where there is religion? And the Shudras are not taken into consideration at all! Shudras are low and the Ati-Shudras are the lowest of the low. This is not religion but a negation of it.

Where are the four varnas of the Gita today? Varna is entirely different from caste. There are numerous castes. I know of no authority for caste in the Gita or any other scripture. The Gita has prescribed four varnas and they are based on one’s aptitudes and karma. I am saying four just to give you an example. There can be more or less varnas than that. But there prevails only one varna today, that is, of Shudras’, or, you may call it, Ati-Shudras’, or Harijans’ or untouchables. I have no doubt about the truth of what I say. If I can bring round the Hindu society to my view, all our internal quarrels will come to an end. That will also put an end to communal riots between Hindus and Muslims, and the people of India will occupy a place of honour in the world. Just as it is not dharma but adharma to believe in the distinctions of high and low, so also colour prejudice is adharma. If a scripture is found to sanction distinctions of high and low, or distinctions of colour, it does not deserve the name of scripture. One should approach the scriptures with the assumption that they would not say anything which is contrary to dharma.

1Gandhiji wrote this under the title “Key to My Writings”.

Caste distinctions have taken such deep roots that they have infected the Muslims, Christians and others. It is true that there are class destinations in more or less degree in all the religions, from which one has to conclude that that failing is inherent in every human being. We can cleanse ourselves of that failing only by pure dharma. I have not found sanction for such distinctions between high and low in any scriptures. In the eyes of religion all men are equal. An educated, intelligent and affluent man is no better than an ignorant, stupid and poor man. If he is cultured, that is to say, if he has been purified by dharma, he will utilise his education, intelligence and money in the service of his illiterate, stupid and poor brethren. And he will strive to give them, that is to say, the whole world, what he has got. If that is true of religion, then in our present condition, devoid of religion our dharma lies in becoming Ati-Shudras voluntarily. A man should consider himself not the owner of his property but its trustee or custodian. He will use it for the service of society. He will accept only that much for himself as he has earned with his labour. If that happens, no one will be poor and no one rich. In such a system all religions will naturally be held equal. Therefore all quarrels arising out of religions, caste and economic differences will be ended.

At this stage it is also necessary to ponder over one further point. It is the foremost dharma of a subject nation to free itself of the bondage at the very first opportunity. A subject is compulsorily an Ati-Shudra. It is immaterial whether he has been given titles, or whether he is made a judge or apeon of a judge or whether he is a king or a pauper. The more titles one has the more abject is one’s condition under alien rule. Thus by correlating freedom with dharma and making the latter widespread, we shall in the natural course of things arrive at the state described in the previous paragraph.

A man who wants to follow his dharma will not bother about the time when this may be realized. If many people do so, it will not only end our subjection but there will not be any anarchy or confusion in our freedom. This is the swaraj of my dreams. I yearn for that. I want to live for the attainment of it. I am devoting every breath of my life to that effort.

The reader is therefore requested to discard anything in this book which may appear to him incompatible with my views given above.

In order to save me labour, a friend who has digested my views and has done so with great effort, has sent me a brief note of my present views. Shri Kishorelal thought that I could save time if I could affix my signature to it. I was free to make any corrections I liked. But while going through it I found that Shri Kishorelal has, as is his wont, read through the whole book, has pondered over it and then has drafted a note as a testimony of my present views. Even if I cannot sign it, it should be published along with this. There is no incompatibility between his key and mine. Shri Kishorelal’s note is based on the study of this book and therefore it would be more helpful to the readers.

May Truth alone triumph.

MOHANDAS KARAMCHAND GANDHI

MAHABALESHWAR, May 31, 1945

[From Gujarati]

Varnavyavastha, pp. 5-8
42. LETTER TO MANILAL GANDHI

May 31, 1945

CHI. MANILAL,

I got your postcard. You did not say where I should address this reply. When one is constantly moving about, one should indicate the address either at the top or at the bottom.

Since Sushila has come after so many years, she is naturally very anxious to meet relations. Maybe, she does not, therefore, bother about the heat. I feel concerned about the children. I hope they are not over-strained. I leave for Panchgani this evening. There is bound to be crowding there. But I have provided for you two, together with the children. I am planning in my mind to secure one more bungalow. However, since the breeze has started in Bombay it must be cooler now. All of you can spend a month in Bombay; the place will be cool enough.

If possible call on Jairamdas once again.

I didn’t read [the article] about Rajaji carefully. You should forget it. I don’t feel hurt by anything he does. He is acting according to his own lights. Everything that appears in newspapers is not true. You know my views. After all, what matters is one’s actions.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 4952

43. LETTER TO KISHORELAL G. MASHRUWALA

MAHABALESHWAR,
May 31, 1945

CHI. KISHORELAL,

You work wonders. I have gone through your Preface\(^1\) or whatever you call it. It is all right. However, I do not intend to write in that way. I will not involve myself and my readers in the controversy. I will try to give the key for reading my writings. You have written on the basis of my writings, so it would perhaps be better if it is published as it is, under your name. I would, however, know about it only after I finish writing.

\(^1\)To Varnavyavastha

I understand about paricharya. It is like this. I have already written—haven’t I?—that words like men need growth. As knowledge grows, the meaning of a word becomes wider, which it should. Why should we stick to the meanings of the critics? Even then, what you say seems correct from the point of view of language. The pity is that I am not a linguist and therefore whatever occurred to me on the spur of the moment, I wrote down. Enough, as it is time to go for a walk.

Blessings from

BAPU

[PS.]

I venture to send the accompanying¹ as Manilal has not given his address.

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

44. LETTER TO MANGALDAS

MAHABALESHWAR,

May 31, 1945

BHAI MANGALDAS,

This is my acknowledgment. I have received your draft and it will be officially credited to the account.

Blessings from

M. K. GANDHI

SHAH MANGALDAS’S FIRM
PUBLISHER AND DISTRIBUTOR
BHAGATALAV
SURAT

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

45. LETTER TO R. V. PANDIT

MAHABALESHWAR,

May 31, 1945

BHAI PANDIT,

Your letters are not good. Why one in Hindustani and the other in English? I have never taken any interest in the allegations made against you nor have I heard much in that regard. An artist should dedicate his art to Mother India. He should not make money out of it. From the 15-point programme one should take those that are suited to the place. You should daily spin for an hour, make slivers and card cotton with the carding-bow.

¹*Vide* the preceding item.

Blessings from
BAPU

R. V. PANDIT
C/o Dr. P. J. GHARSE
MAHABALESHWAR

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarclal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

46. LETTER TO AMRITLAL T. NANAVATI

[MAHABALESHWAR],
May 31, 1945

CHI. AMRITLAL,

I received your letter just now. Tell me everything when you meet me. I have written² to Tandonji about my intention to leave the Sammelan. I have already written to Ramdas. He should get well now. I note what you say about Mr. Sen. I know he can render very good service and he is service-minded. Have as much experience as you can have there. We shall go to Panchgani today.

Blessings to all of you from
BAPU

SHRI AMRITLAL T. NANAVATI
C/o smt. YASHODHARA DASAPPA
VONTICOPPAL, MYSORE

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarclal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ The source, however, has “Panchgani”.
47. LETTER TO DR. P. SUBBAROYAN

PANCHGANI,
May 31, 1945

MY DEAR SUBBAROYAN,

I have your letter. I understand and appreciate all you say. I thought I had told you that Mohan had come and gone, again leaving a good impression about himself. I have not even attempted to convert him to my way. I simply let him perceive the affection I have for him.

Love.

BAPU

DR. SUBBAROYAN
WHILE’S GARDEN
ROYAPETTAH
MADRAS

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

48. LETTER TO RAMDEV

PANCHGANI,
May 31, 1945

BHAI RAMDEV,

I have received Pandit Vinayak Rao’s reply and other papers. I am going through them carefully. I am doing what I can.

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

SHRI RAMDEV
C/O PANDIT VINAYAK RAO, BARRISTER
JAMBAJ
HYDERABAD

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
49. LETTER TO DHARMADEV SHASTRI

PANCHGANI,
May 31, 1945

BHAJ DHARMADEV SHASTRI,

I have your letter. Something will be done as soon as possible. The address has to come from the U. P. Committee and I remember Bapa had asked a few questions. Yes, your work is difficult. May God give you success. Money is a servant to one who has dharma on his side.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI DHARMADEV SHASTRI
ASHOK ASHRAM
KALSI

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

50. NOTE FOR “GRAM UDYOG PATRIKA”

May 1945

A correspondent asks me to speak about other village industries as I do about khadi.

Khadi is the only handicraft which is widespread. Besides, I have likened it to the sun, and the other industries to the planets. The sun is only one, while the planets are many and new ones are being discovered.

For the present, it will be enough if you concentrate on hand-made paper, hand-ground flour, hand-pounded rice, ghanipressed oil, honey from live bees, hide from dead cattle and articles made from it in villages, village walking-sticks, village-buttons, palm gur, etc.

As a matter of fact agriculture is a village industry, hence grains,

1. The addressee who was working among the tribes of Jaunsar and Bawer at Nagthat, near Mussoorie, built the Ashok Ashram and started a school and dispensary in memory of Kasturba Gandhi. He opened the Ashram in July 1942, but was arrested a month after. Having been released, he was developing it into a training centre for village industries.

fruit and articles made from them can be village products. In short, when villages are self-contained, cities will be dependent on them.

As you can see, the tooth-brush belongs to the cities, while datun belongs to the villages and is better; tooth-powder is of the city while charcoal powder, chalk or salt are of the village. When you become village-minded in this way you will find numerous village articles useful to you.

51. FRAGMENT OF LETTER TO CHIMANLAL N. SHAH

May 1945

CHI. CHIMANLAL,

Your slip. I gave Sushilabehn the letter regarding Chand. I am writing this after she has left. Keep Dr. Ice. Do not be obstinate. Listen to what he says. . . .

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10630

52. TELEGRAM TO NANJI KALIDAS

Express

PANCHGANI,

June 1, 1945

SHETH NANJI KALIDAS
PORBANDAR

PLEASE DO NOT SACRIFICE HEALTH FOR COMING HERE. SHANTABEHN\(^1\) LOOKING AFTER PARTY.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

\(^1\)Gandhiji’s hostess at Dilkusha’, Panchgani
53. TELEGRAM TO N. G. RANGA

PANCHGANI,
June 1, 1945

PROFESSOR RANGA
CARE S. K. PATIL
381 SANDHURST ROAD
BOMBAY

WORK OVERPOWERING. PLACE CROWDED. BETTER WRITE OR COME AFTER FIFTEENTH.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

54. LETTER TO KANCHAN M. SHAH

June 1, 1945

CHI. KANCHAN,

I have your letter. By all means go to Sevagram. There is nothing at all wrong in it. But henceforth weigh everything you say. And having said a thing one must cling to it even at the cost of one’s life. A wire has been sent to you, to the effect that you should go to Khadi Pratishthan. If you keep good health there, stay on and learn. There is much to learn there. If you do not like the place, go to Wardha by yourself and take up some work after careful thinking and engross yourself in it.

Write to me.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 618
BAPA.

I have your long letter. It does not reveal your anger but your practical sense. However, the practical sense suggests that you should not relinquish the post you have accepted. I had often read in South Africa the letter Gokhale wrote on his return from England expressing his deep apology.\(^1\) One of the sentences in that letter was: “How can I give up the office under duress when I have not accepted it under duress?” You are in a similar situation. The only difference is that there is no pressure at all on you. So it will be sheer cowardice to give up the post and with that the freely available opportunity of rendering service. The tongue that calls you a coward only condemns itself. Moreover, to give up doing service means putting a burden on Mridula, that is, on the women. Why should you do that? Give it up when I tell you and if what I tell you appeals to you. The fact is Mridula does not want to give up anything. I feel that we should leave only when she has become competent enough to enable us to give up. In the mean time, we should retain her and encourage her. The words of mine you quote are the only true words. She should not consider anything as passed by me unless it has received your independent approval. However, if she does not do that, you should ignore it but should do what you want to. About Rs. 2,000 I clearly remember having told her that she should not consider anything passed as long as Bapa had not considered and approved it independently. If she has employed two or three women, I would certainly be in favour of retaining them. But if you disapprove of it, I will do the same.

I do not feel that you are giving me trouble. Whatever the trouble may be, it will end. I will see to it.

What remains now is the question about the office. It is in a large measure in your own hands.

---

\(^1\) In 1897, before the Welby Commission in England, Gokhale made certain statements, based on letters he received from Poona on the plague operations in that city, relating to the conduct of British soldiers who were employed to evacuate compulsorily the infected houses. But when the persons who supplied him with the information refused to substantiate the allegations, Gokhale had to withdraw and apologize for the statements which caused indignation in England and in India.
I will see what I can do about Bhavnagar and Kathiawar. It is good that Anantrai\(^1\) is here. Come here only if you want change of air and not to know my mind or to explain to me. Moreover, at the moment you want to work for Servants of India Society. You may gladly do that. I might, if I wanted, come to your help. But I do not want to do that. I have to curb many such good intentions. Enough for now.

SERVANTS OF INDIA SOCIETY
POONA

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

56. LETTER TO KANTILAL GANDHI

PANCHGANI,
June 1, 1945

CHI. KANTI,

I received your letter of April 28 today. The reason is that Kanu came today after visiting Rajkot and other places. From Saraswati’s letter I presume that you would all be in Travancore at present. Nevertheless I address this C/o Prithuraj. If Harilal improves, the credit will go to the love both of you have for him. May it so happen.

‘‘That interpretation would be most correct which is given by the writer provided that it is consistent with the grammar and syntax of the writing.’’ I have added what I have underlined. The other meaning is useless.\(^2\)

It is true that I do not encourage idol-worship but it is equally true that I am neutral in the matter.

Kanam has also arrived today. He has grown a lot.

Blessings to all of you from

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers.Courtesy: Pyarelal

---

\(^1\) Anantrai Pattani, Dewan of Bhavnagar

\(^2\) This paragraph is in English.
57. LETTER TO KISHORELAL G. MASHRUWALA

PANCHGANI,
June 1, 1945

CHI. KISHORELAL,

I have gone through your article. You will find a reference1 to it in my “Key”. If you approve of it then let your article be published under your name. I have changed pronouns and have deleted some portion of it—you will easily be able to find it.

I am sending my “Key” for your approval. I have been at it since yesterday and completed it just now. If you have changes to suggest I have to examine them. If I have to, then send it back to me. If there is no time, then I don’t see any harm if the book is published without my “Key”. I shall consider it more than enough if your summary goes. Do whatever you think proper.

Blessings from

BAPU

KISHORELAL MASHRUWALA
BHARAT BHUVAN
10TH ROAD, KHAH

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

58. LETTER TO MERCHANT

PANCHGANI,
June 1, 1945

BHAI MERCHANT,

Do come if you really must see me. I cannot even so much as lift up my head from work. Please do not tell me to go anywhere with you. One who is supposed to be ill can go even for prayer and the like only with great difficulty.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Vide “Foreword to Varnavyavastha, 31-5-1945.
59. LETTER TO MANGALDAS PAKVASA

PANCHGANI,
June 1, 1945

BHAI MANGALDAS,

I hope your health is perfectly all right. I am enclosing herewith the Trust-deed of the Nature Cure Clinic. The necessary changes are already included in it. But I am having them typed separately and enclosed herewith. Incorporate them in the Trust-deed and get it signed by the Trustees who are present. Ghanshyamdas will sign it when he comes here. The changes in the aims were not covered by the talk I had with Ghanshyamdas. So I have taken his permission. If you want to see it, I shall send it.

I would like to get this Trust-deed translated into Hindi and feel that it would be better if it is registered in Hindi. If you cannot get it translated there, then send it to me after finalizing it. I shall get it translated. I would appreciate it if you did not take so long over it as I did.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI MANGALDAS PAKVASA
DUNGARSLIH ROAD
MALABAR HILL, BOMBAY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy Pyarelal

60. LETTER TO NRISINHAPRASAD K. BHATT

PANCHGANI,
June 1, 1945

CHI. NANABHAI,

What did you write to Bapa? As a member of the committee do whatever you want to. It is about Bhavnagar that there is a difficulty, isn’t it? I expect to decide about it here. Pattani the junior is here. I am sending Narahari to him. If it is necessary, he will see me. The money collected in the State should be spent in its villages according to their share. The money will be unspent if the State does not allow us to do that. At the most the State committee will ask us to return the money. So our course is straight but the work is a little confusing. If it takes some time, we can put up with the delay. There is bound to be delay where there is democracy. I do not see any harm in it. I hope all of you are well.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI NANABHAI BHATT
GRAM DAKSHINAMURTI
AMBLA P. O., via SONGADH

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

61. LETTER TO SUSHILA GANDHI

PANCHGANI,
June 1, 1945

CHI. SUSHILA,

I have your letter. Manilal has been keeping me posted with news. Sita, too, of course. It is good that she is perfectly at home there. It is also good that the other children have so far been quite patient. Come whenever you feel like it. Let Manilal make his own arrangement about the book.

Blessings to all of you from
BAPU

SUSHILA GANDHI
NANABHAI MASHRUWALA
AKOLA, BERAR

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

62. LETTER TO TARA N. MASHRUWALA

June 1, 1945

CHI. TARI,

After writing on the reverse, I read your letter. It made me laugh to read that of the four workers you were the hardiest. I will believe it only when you show me. How cunning Sushila is—she does not write about her fever. Sita did not want to improve. Did she take pains over it?

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
63. LETTER TO AMRITLAL V. THAKKAR

PANCHGANI,
June 1, 1945

BAPA,

I have already written² to you that leaving out the Government agencies you can put the amount of more than ten lakhs that we have in any bank or firm for six months or more.

M. K. GANDHI

[PS.]

I have gone through Shyamlal’s letter about the office. I know that Bapa wants the office in Wardha, but what are we to do if we get a building in Nalwadi? Bearing all this in mind I had widened the choice to areas around Wardha. However, I do not have any objection if Bapa does not want such a wide choice.³

SHYAMLALJI
KASTURBA TRUST OFFICE
SCINDIA HOUSE, BOMBAY

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

64. SPEECH AT PRAYER MEETING

PANCHGANI,
June 1, 1945

Addressing the gathering in Hindustani after the prayer, Mahatma Gandhi appealed for contributions to the Harijan Fund.

Referring to his second visit to Panchgani, he said that his stay at Mahabaleshwar for more than a month had done him some good and he hoped to stay at Panchgani for a month. But, he added, he could do so only if he was allowed to work undisturbed. Those who wanted to see him should realize that he did not have enough time even to carry on his day-to-day work which was of all-India importance. He had been doing this work for 50 years.

¹ The letter though written to Amritlal V. Thakkar was sent at Shyamlal’s address presumably with a view to drawing his attention to the postscript.
³ Vide also “Letter to Shyamlal”, 29-5-1945.
⁴ The meeting was held in the compound of Wadilal Arogya Bhavan.
This afternoon some young boys had come to see Gandhiji when he could not oblige them. They asked what was wrong with him. His reply was that he was 76 years old and was not young like them. That did not mean that he was an invalid. He had strength and that was why he was there for prayers and for Harijan work.

The Bombay Chronicle, 2-6-1945

65. FRAGMENT OF LETTER TO MOHAN KUMARAMANGALAM

June 2, 1945

Every Congress leader who comes to me tells the same tale (in regard to the Indian communists). I won’t build judgments on what they say but the story produces on me an unconscious effect I would fain avoid. This is thinking aloud, if you please. I agree with L. in so far as he is concerned (in regard to co-operation with the communists). I disagree so far as I am concerned. For I have no difficulty in working side by side with communists. One must depend upon one’s own experiences.

Mahatma Gandhi—The Last Phase, Vol. 1, Book One, p. 110

66. LETTER TO MIRABEHN

PANCHGANI, June 2, 1945

CHI. MIRA,

Your postcard of 27th ultimo. I hope your visit to Delhi was successful. Thank God, you are keeping well again. Hope the vyayam teacher will give satisfaction.

Love.

SHRI MIRABEHN
KISAN ASHRAM
BAHADARABAD P.O.
JWALAPUR
NEAR HARDWAR, U.P.

From the original: C.W. 6507. Courtesy: Mirabehn. Also G.N. 9902

1Physical exercise
67. LETTER TO LADY ABBAS ALI BAIG

‘DILKHUSHA’,
June 2, 1945

DEAR SISTER,

Many thanks for your greetings and mangoes to which I hope to do justice. I shall see to the correction of the name of the place.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

LADY ABBAS ALI BAIG

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

68. LETTER TO AMRITLAL V. THAKKAR

PANCHGANI,
June 2, 1945

BAPA,

I have gone through the letters. At the moment I do not have anything to say. I have already written that Rameshwaribehn may make a small list of rules and regulations and send it to me.

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

69. LETTER TO AMRITLAL V. THAKKAR

PANCHGANI,
June 2, 1945

BAPA,

I followed your criticism of the expenditure on four months’ training. As far as I remember, only one person is paid a salary of Rs. 175. Let it be 110 rather than 72. If you can find a girl, you can have one. It takes into account all our departments. It seems that you have not discussed the expenditure with Mridula. I had raised an objection as regards the training instructor. It is, however, considered that one instructor will not be able to deal with such a large number.
The idea behind estimating the expenditure liberally is that if the expenses grow, we shall not have to ask for more. It will perhaps not be appropriate to compare this with your experience of twenty-five years. My experience, not being of a Government department, is different. But let us not worry about it. Whatever goes to the trustees should be final from our side. It is better if you send your note to Mridula.

BAPU

THAKKAR BAPA
SERVANTS OF INDIA SOCIETY
POONA

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

70. LETTER TO OMKARNATH THAKUR

PANCHGANI,
June 2, 1945

BHAI OMKARNATH,

I have a letter from Chi. Purushottam Gandhi. He writes that the students of the late Vishnu Digambarji have expressed a desire to set up a music college at Prayag. They want my blessings for that. I have written to them that you are also his student and I have already given my blessings to your scheme. Why then should I bless another? He writes to say that an attempt was made during the lifetime of Pandit Khare to draw you into their circle but they were unsuccessful.

Chi. Purushottam was a favourite disciple of Pandit Khare. He is a true devotee of his guru. I have known some of the persons of that group for a long time but I came in close contact with you only recently. Please throw some light on this confusion.

Blessings from

BAPU

PANDIT OMKARNATH
SANGEET MARTAND
BABULNATH ROAD
BOMBAY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
71. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA

June 2, 1945

CHI. KRISHNACHANDRA,

What Kanu says about you is true. I have told him that he should improve his handwriting. I do hope that in the matter of handwriting he will reach the ideal of Ramdas Swami.
It has started raining here today. It is raining right now.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4513

72. LETTER TO R. K. NANDKEOLYAR

PANCHGANI,
June 2, 1945

Bhai NANDKEOLYAR,

I have your letter. In my opinion, you should clearly write to the United Provinces Government that you cannot comply with their order. You have not committed any crime. You have faith only in ahimsa. You do not want to enter the State unnecessarily but if it becomes necessary, you will enter it without giving any notice. Write to this effect and be quiet. Go to U. P. when you find it necessary. When you reply to them, send a copy to the Press also.

Blessings to you both from

BAPU

SHRI RAMKISHORE NANDKEOLYAR
NANDA VILAS, GAYA (BIHAR)

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
73. LETTER TO JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM

PANCHGANI,
June 2, 1945

BHAI JAIRAMDAS,

I was just beginning to write to you when I received your letter. I started looking for a house for you yesterday itself. I have been successful. The help came from Dinshaw Mehta. Now that you will not be a burden, you may come. You will stay with me. You may stay outside also. We shall see about it when you come. Let Devibehn and Premi also come. It will not be necessary for them to run away. I understand that there is no room at Pandit's. Even if there is, it will not be needed. I heard that you were ill only after I reached here. You will recover here.

Blessings to all the three of you from
BAPU

SHRI JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM
JNANGHAR
15TH STREET, KHAR

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

74. LETTER TO SHANTABAI KALE

PANCHGANI,
June 2, 1945

CHI. SHANTABAI,

I was happy to receive your detailed letter. Gopalrao will get well. He has faith and courage and he is simple-hearted. Keep on writing to me. Convey my blessings to Gopalrao.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI SHANTABAI KALE
VICTORIA HOSPITAL
JABALPUR

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
75. LETTER TO SHRIKRISHNADAS JAJU

PANCHGANI,
June 2, 1945

BHAI JAJUJI,

I feel that till the arrival of Sardar or for the time being you should do as Lakshmidas suggests.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

76. DISCUSSION WITH SHRIMAN NARAYAN

PANCHGANI,
June 2, 1945

QUESTION: To my mind one of the greatest problems confronting us at the present moment is that of combating the systematic plan of economic exploitation by flooding the market with foreign consumer goods. This is bound to spell disaster to Indian industrialization whether small-scale or large-scale. And the pity of it is that our own businessmen and industrialists seem to be vying with one another in becoming glorified agents of foreign manufacturers. Do you not think that an urgent need of the hour is the rousing of public conscience against the matter of foreign goods? I think constructive workers should take up this programme immediately. A countrywide propaganda for the use of village-manufactured and swadeshi goods can also prove to be a very elective and economic sanction against foreign domination. What is your opinion and advice?

ANSWER: The difficulty cannot be met by carrying on propaganda, however wide and intensive. The first thing is to demonstrate its economic fallacy. Let us recognize that the industrialists are not conscious traitors. They honestly believe that their plan will bring prosperity to the masses. They are wrong. But how to show that they are wrong save by patient study and publication thereof and by working so as to show that the masses respond to the work and actually prosper?

This demands hard thinking, hard study and harder constructive work among the masses. They have to manufacture for their own use.

1 Principal, Govindram Saxeria College, Wardha
Just picture to yourself every village producing and manufacturing everything for its own use. This must mean some surplus for the cities of India going from the villages. This means also automatic stoppage of all exploitation and prosperity without having to exploit the outer world.

The Bombay Chronicle, 4-6-1945

77. MESSAGE FOR BHARATI MEMORIAL

PANCHGANI, [Before June 3, 1945]

My blessings to efforts to perpetuate Bharati’s memory.

M. K. GANDHI

The Bombay Chronicle, 13-6-1945

78. DISCUSSION WITH HAREKRUSHNA MEHTAB

PANCHGANI, June 1/3, 1945

QUESTION: Do you think there has been any change in the country to warrant any change in the Congressmen’s attitude towards the war which they adopted in 1939? If you think there is no change, then has it not come to this that, in your opinion, Congressmen should not go back to ministries in the present circumstances?

ANSWER: You ask for my personal opinion. I give it for what it is worth. Mine can in no sense be an authoritative opinion. You should examine the Congress attitude not of 1939 but of 1942. So far as I am aware the Congress offered help in 1942 provided that certain conditions were fulfilled. It is for the Congress to lay down the conditions for the present acceptance of office. These must always be in terms of independence.

---

1 The Bombay Chronicle, 4-6-1945, reported that on June 3, C. Rajagopalachari laid the foundation-stone for the memorial building to house a library of the works of the Tamil poet, Subrahmanya Bharati, at his birth-place, Ettayapuram, in Tamil Nadu. Gandhiji wrote the message in Tamil.

2 ibid

3 According to A. P. I. report, Harekrushna Mehtab released “written questions and answers” to the Press after “full discussion with Gandhiji for three days”.

44 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
There is no civil disobedience now and you have placed your manifold constructive programme before the country. Do you approve of the following definition of the constructive programme—to tackle the immediate problems of the masses and to try to solve them on non-violent lines as enunciated by you? This definition includes the work of trying to check black-marketing, profiteering and also the inflow of foreign consumer goods by insisting upon the use of swadeshi goods.

You have only a partial grasp of the constructive programme of my conception. It is comprehensive and all-pervading. Stoppage of black-marketing, profiteering and foreign consumer goods must precede construction. They are not part of the programme, but the programme to be effective and universal has to do that weeding process. The whole programme is swadeshi.

Would you ask Congressmen to seek co-operation from other parties and even from Government agencies in the prosecution of the constructive work? How can the constructive programme be prevented from being used for the purpose of consolidating the party position for elections and for other purposes?

I have been crying myself hoarse to persuade Congressmen to adopt whole-heartedly the constructive programme without party motive or any other. It is its own motive. I seek the co-operation of the whole nation and also of the Government in carrying out the programme, naturally, on our own terms.

If the latter give honest co-operation, it must mean independence without violence and without fuss. If the constructive programme is worked for electioneering purposes it will carry with it the seeds of its own disease. Men can prevent vicious people from using the best things for the worst of purposes.

What should be the attitude of Congressmen towards all those who are now building up an organization which may come in clash with Congress at some stage or other in future?

The Congress position should be of complete non-violent non-co-operation with those who will stab the country in the back.

The Bombay Chronicle, 4-6-1945
DEAR MR. KEDAR,

I have kept your letter of 12th ultimo with me for answer. Much has happened since then. I need say nothing now. I wish you every success in your great enterprise about Ashti-Chimur.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

[PS.]

This mistake is out of old habit. I should have written in Hindustani—that too in Nagari script. But what has happened has happened. Forgive.

DR. T. I. KEDAR, ADVOCATE
CIVIL STATION
NAGPUR

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

DEAR SIR,

Gandhiji has read your letter of 28th ult. received only yesterday. He would like to know before deciding, what profits you make out of the publication mentioned by you and what you pay Prof. A. D. Yates.

Yours faithfully,

NARAHARI PARIKH

THE MANAGING DIRECTOR
KAPOOR BROS. LTD.
PUBLISHERS & BOOKSELLERS
52 ANARKALI, LAHORE

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

\(^1\) The postscript is in Hindi.
DEAR NAWAB SAHEB,

I thank you for your letter of 27th ult. and the communique dated 17th ultimo. I have again heard from Pandit Vinayak Rao. He sends me a copy of his reply to the communique. I take it that you have seen that letter. I cannot help agreeing with the Pandit that mere dismissal of the “ring-leaders” does not meet the needs of the situation so far as the wanton action of the police is concerned. And why prosecution of certain volunteers instead of an inquiry suggested by him? I would like you to give this matter your earnest and independent consideration, and adopt such action as would avoid a repetition of the incident complained of and give general satisfaction.

I would thank you to send me the cuttings of the British Indian press referred to by you.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

H. H. NAWAB SAHEB OF CHHATARI
HYDERABAD (D.N.)

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar
82. LETTER TO MANU GANDHI

PANCHGANI,
June 3, 1945

Take courage in both hands and do this. You know Dr. Gilder well. Go to him and, if he permits you, go to Nagpur. Here you can come whenever you want. I would not advise you to go to Wardha.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./24

83. LETTER TO MANU GANDHI

June 3, 1945

CHI. MANUDI,

You have fallen ill again. Now at least take care. If you have patience, you will become a very good nurse. You cannot leave as soon as the fever subsides. Sushilabehn is of the view that you should stay in Dr. Dinshawji’s clinic. Most probably Vanamala also will go there. I do not at all like your getting fever every now and then. If you learn to guard your health and become as strong as steel, everything will be all right. “Impatience does not make a mango tree bear fruit.” Come over, if you wish.

Give up your desire to go to Nagpur.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./II

1 This was appended to a letter from Dr. Sushila Nayyar to the addressee.
2 For joining a training course in nursing; vide also the following item.
84. LETTER TO GHANSHYAM JETHANAND

PANCHGANI

June 3, 1945

BHAI GHANSHYAM,

I have your letter. I would not take any money while in jail and not more than Rs. 75 when out of jail. However, others will act according to their lights. No one can borrow dharma from others.

My health I should say is good.

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

SHRI GHANSHYAM JETHANAND
29 AMIL COLONY NO. 1
KARACHI

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

85. LETTER TO HEMPRABHA DAS GUPTA

PANCHGANI,

June 3, 1945

CHI. HEMPRABHA,

I have your letter. Satis Babu will have fully recovered by now. Do give khadi to the poor without yarn. Do you take money from them and, if you do, do you charge the market rate or less? After I know this, I shall write to you if I have anything to say. I have the book\(^1\) about the cow read out to me when I spin each day.

Blessings from

BAPU

HEMPRAHBADEVI
KHADI PRATISHTHAN
SODEPUR, via CALCUTTA

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

\(^1\) The Cow in India by Satis Chandra Das Gupta, addressee’s husband; for Gandhiji’s Foreword, vide “Foreword to Cow in India”, 20-5-1945.
86. LETTER TO TEJWANTI

PANCHGANI,
June 3, 1945

CHI. TEJWANTI,

I did receive a letter as from you but it has neither your language, nor your handwriting, nor your signature at the end. This makes me suspect that the letter may not be from you at all. So, besides acknowledging it, I do not want to say anything in reply.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI TEJWANTI
CHARKHA SANGH KARYALAYA
ADAMPUR DOAB
JULLUNDUR DISTRICT

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

87. LETTER TO AMRIT KAUR

PANCHGANI,
June 3, 1945

CHI. AMRIT,

It is now 5.50 p.m. I have just finished your “Appeal to the Christians of India”. It is eloquent but not substantial. I do not propose to give you detailed criticism. As soon as you are free from your engagements there and are fit enough to come to me, I know you will make a dash. Therefore when you are with me, we shall together read the Appeal and decide what to do with it.

Khurshed is here. She is with Nargis. She will migrate to ‘Dilkhusha’ as soon as N. is gone.

Mehtab and Shriman were with me. The latter went today. The former goes tomorrow. Love to all.

BAPU

From the original: C.W. 4157. Courtesy: Amrit Kaur. Also G.N. 7792

1 For Gandhiji’s discussion with Harekrushna Mehtab and Shriman Narayan; vide “Discussion with Shriman Narayan”, 2-6-1945; “Discussion with Harekrushna Mehtab”, 1/3-6-1945.
PANCHGANI, [On or after June 3, 1945]

I have purposely refrained from saying anything on the Syrian and Lebanese question, not because I have felt less than others but because I have felt more. The injustice is so obvious and glaring.

It pains me to think that our Muslim fellow-countrymen feel that they can effectively ask for justice to the Syrians and Lebanese as fellow-Muslims. Syrians and the Lebanese are a mixed population. Their liberty is at stake not as Muslims but as a separate nation. The struggle of Syria and Lebanon for independence should evoke the sympathy of the whole of India, and it must be made a national issue, instead of one of a particular section or community. Muslims should speak as Indians and should invite the cooperation of all India including members of all religions. For instance the voice of Indian Christians speaking as Christians as apart from other Indians in international affairs must fall flat. This is the lesson of history everywhere, but in India, to my mind, the Khilafat issue emphasizes the lesson which we seem to have forgotten.

The Muslims headed by the late Hakim Saheb sought the co-operation of all India and the Khilafat question became a plank in the National Congress. And it drew world attention. Had the history of victorious Turkey been written differently, India would have taken an effective part in the settlement of the Khilafat question. India divided against itself will have no effect on the council of the nations of the world.

The Bombay Chronicle, 8-6-1945; also The Hindu, 8-6-1945

1 The nationalist movement in Syria and Lebanon had come into violent conflict with France which had been ruling the area under a mandate since 1923. France had called for negotiations and at the same time despatched two contingents of troops. There were widespread clashes culminating in the French bombardment of Damascus on May 29 and 30. The statement was made in an “exclusive interview to the special representative of the Orient Press” of India.

2 From the expression “our Muslim fellow-countrymen feel”, presumably a reference to M. A. Jinnah’s statement of June 3, which assured Syrians and Lebanese of the support of “the hundred million Muslims of India”. Jinnah had also warned that “not only the Middle East and Muslim India but also the whole of the Muslim world will flare up” if freedom was not granted.

3 Being predominantly Christian

4 This paragraph is reproduced from The Hindu, 8-6-1945, in which it was reported independently under the date-line “Panchgani, June 6”.
89. LETTER TO AMRIT KAUR

June 4, 1945

CHI. AMRIT,

After the letter of yesterday was handed for the post your letter was received. I opened it and detained the letter.

It is strange that no intimation has been received by you. You are right to ignore the newspaper notice¹, unless it is confirmed. Also of course there is no joy in the removal in the manner it is being brought about. As to speech, we must see what has to be done.

Of course you are not leaving Simla so long as you are required there.

Love.

BAPU

From the original: C.W. 4158. Courtesy: Amrit Kaur. Also G.N. 7793

90. LETTER TO RAJARAM BHOLE

June 4, 1945

DEAR BHOLE,

Your P. C. Do come on 6th inst. at 4.00 p.m. I am silent during the day always. But it does not matter. You will speak and I shall answer in writing.

Yours,

BAPU

SHRI R. R. BHOLE
PALLAZZO HOTEL
PANCHGANI

From the original: R. R. Bhole Papers. Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library

¹ About lifting of the restriction imposed on the addressee; vide also “Letter to Amrit Kaur”, 26-5-1945; “Letter to Prabhavati”, 8-6-1945.
91. LETTER TO HOWARD GOLDSTEIN

DEAR FRIENDS,

Gandhiji has your cable.

He appreciates your desire to have him in America. But you have seen how he could not come. He could not force himself on the Committee. He has not much faith in the value of more verbal talks. He is trying to forge the message of non-violence through his work in India. If he shows visible success here the world will get the message it needs. Therefore the conscientious objectors who are going to meet near Glendora would do well to closely study what he has been saying and doing in India. Particularly, they should study his writings preceding and after the 8th August, 1942—Resolution of the Congress. They reflect the working of a non-violent mind in the face of the greatest crisis in the world’s history.

Yours sincerely,

PYARELAL

MESSRS. HOWARD GOLDSTEIN

JOE GOODMAN AND OTTO GRIMM

CONSCIENTIOUS OBJECTORS’ CAMP

NEAR GLENDORA

CALIFORNIA (USA)

From a copy of : Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy : Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

92. LETTER TO JAIKHLAL GANDHI

CHI. JAIKHLAL,

I got your letter yesterday. I have not yet received the one regarding your work.

Your health seems to have gone down considerably. Be careful.

1 The addressee had invited Gandhiji on behalf of the American Friends Service Committee to attend the San Francisco Conference which was to be held in Glendora in the suburbs of Los Angeles.
Chi. Manu’s mind is wavering whether to go to Nagpur directly or come here for a day on her way there. If Dr. Gilder does not permit her, there will be no question for the present of her going to Nagpur. Manu is very impatient. Now she is obsessed with the desire to become a nurse. Let me see what happens.

As regards money, it is all right for you to keep it with you as Manu’s trustee. I see no need for two names. You may insert any condition you want in the Trust. If you wish, you may show the draft to me. I have no objection to your including my name in the event of your dying earlier. If you wish to select someone else, by all means do so. If you can get six per cent locally, you need not try to make any other arrangement.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./24

93. LETTER TO MANU GANDHI

[PANCHGANI],
June 4, 1945

CHI. MANUDI,

I have not seen anyone so foolish as you. You are to come here in response to this letter. Bablo\(^2\) must accompany you, so that you may not have any difficulty on the way.

Blessings from
BAPU

[From Gujarati]

Ba Bapuni Shili Chhayaman, p. 231

\(^{1}\) The source, however, has “Mahabaleshwar”.

\(^{2}\) Narayan Desai
94. LETTER TO SHANTI KUMAR N. MORARJEE

PANCHGANI,

June 4, 1945

CHI. SHANTI KUMAR,

I got your letter yesterday. I signed the photograph. May you live long and continue to serve. Why do you say that you have “lived for many years and have few more left”? Surely, 125 years are not for me alone. That should be everybody’s life-span and it should be the ideal for all to attain it through a pure life.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: C.W. 4740. Courtesy: Shantikumar N. Morarjee

95. LETTER TO RAIHANA TYABJI AND SAROJ NANAVATI

June 4, 1945

CHI. RAIHANA AND CHI. SAROJ,

I got today the postcard written by you two. I am glad that grandmother has passed away. She has settled her accounts, but suffered much while doing so. The fact that she exacted service from you both earned you merit. But wasn’t that at her cost? One should not wish to earn such merit. I, therefore, regard grandmother’s passing away a very good thing indeed from every point of view.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: S.N. 9684
96. LETTER TO JAMNADAS DWARKADAS

PANCHGANI,
June 4, 1945

CHI. JAMNADAS,

I received your letter at 5 o’clock. You should get this tomorrow. I will be able to see Panditji if he comes at 3 o’clock on the 6th. Of course I shall be observing silence. If afterwards you want to talk to me it will be all right. Or I shall find some other time if you want. At 4 o’clock Bhole, a Harijan, is coming.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI JAMNADAS DWARKADAS
GLendale
MAHABALESHwar

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

97. LETTER TO PURUSHOTTAM PATEL

PANCHGANI,
June 4, 1945

BHAI PURUSHOTTAM PATEL,

I received your letter today. Why is it in English? You should not involve me in your candidature\. Do whatever you can on your own. After all you are staying there.

Blessings from,

M. K. GANDHI

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹Vide also “A Letter”, 9-6-1945.
98. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA

June 4, 1945

CHI. KRISHNACHANDRA.

Those who create the political system have not come from outside; it is we ourselves. The meaning of your difficulty is that the political power should pass into our hands. But a non-violent political system can come about only through non-violent means. Hence whether we are one or many we should engage ourselves only in non-violent activities. One can become many, zero cannot.

My impression about the discharge was correct. I may have written the opposite in my hurry. Anyway do not worry. It applies equally to both.

Do go to Nagpur after the bale of cotton cloth is ready. Mohan Singh should come only if he can be spared from work.

It is only from you that I have heard about the use of a pannier. I am eager to meet Vinoba.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4514

99. LETTER TO PRABHAKAR

June 4, 1945

CHI. PRABHAKAR,

Your reply to Majid was good. What else could you have said? Your body should be strong as steel. It can be made so only with effort. Let Zohra and Vina write to me. How is your health? What has Vina been doing?

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 9029. Also C.W. 9153. Courtesy: Prabhakar

100. LETTER TO ASAF ALI

PANCHGANI,
June 4, 1945

BHAI ASAF ALI,

As far as possible these days I write letters in Hindustani, either in Urdu or Devanagari script. The language is wholly mine. However, as my handwriting is difficult to decipher, I dictate the letters.

I received your telegram yesterday after 5 p. m. I do not like your being ill. But you are brave and you have still to serve the country. You will leave the sick-bed. Keep on sending me news through someone. May God make you well soon. I hope to remain here till the end of the month.

Blessings from
BAPU

ASAF ALI
WILLINGDON HOSPITAL
DELI

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

101. LETTER TO M. S. KELKAR

June 4, 1945

BHAI ICE,

I have your letter. You are taking great pains over Hari-ichchha. But I am not satisfied. She is not improving. In the end what is destined will happen.

I cannot bring myself to have faith in astrology. Millions of people who do not believe in it lose nothing.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
102. LETTER TO P. C. GHOSH

PANCHGANI,
June 4, 1945

BHAI PROFULLA,

The Working Committee of the Kasturba Memorial Trust met at Mahabaleshwar. Your objection to keeping the entire fund with the Head Office was put up to it. I had told you that I would write to you and clarify the whole thing. You know that the fund raised in Bombay is kept in the Head Office. I feel that the same should be done with the money raised in Calcutta. The committee which is formed now is to consider how the money will be spent in the villages. Why should we argue over where the money should be kept? Your duty is to submit a scheme and if it is accepted, to get it implemented. You must be knowing that the committee for collecting the money and the committee for spending it are not the same. It is true that the same three persons are on most of the committees. But that is our misfortune. There are very few workers and those who give the money claim the right to have a control over the spending of it. When they are deserving, it may become our duty to have the donors on the committees. What more can I write? I would suggest that you explainmy view to the committee and write a satisfactory letter.

Blessings from
BAPU

[PS.]

Hope you are well now.

SHRI PROFULLA CHANDRA GHOSH
14/8 GARIHA ROAD
BALLYGUNGE
CALCUTTA

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

103. LETTER TO MIR MUSHTAQ AHMED

PANCHGANI,
June 5, 1945

BHAI MUSHTAQ AHMED,

It is good that as far as possible you do not write or speak in English.
The answer to your question is covered by the opinion I have given.\(^1\) I feel that it is not proper to enrol new members as long as the Congress is an illegal organization. The Congress Assembly is a different thing. In this matter each province can act as it likes.

Yours,
M. K. GANDHI

JANAB MIR MUSHTAQ AHMED
34 PREM HOUSE
CONNAUGHT PLACE
NEW DELHI

From a copy of the Urdu: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

104. TELEGRAM TO GOVIND DAS

Express

June 6, 1945

SETH GOVIND DAS
JUBULPORE

PREFER MEETING SEVAGRAM.

GANDHI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

105. LETTER TO KANCHAN M. SHAH

June 6, 1945

CHI. KANCHAN,

I have written to you, but if the letter does not reach you what can I do? How are you? If you do not like the place\(^2\) you may certainly go to Sevagram.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 496

---

\(^1\) Vide "Letter to Mushtaq Ahmed", 9-5-1945.
\(^2\) Vide also "Letter to Kanchan M. Shah", 1-6-1945.
106. LETTER TO PREMLILA THACKERSEY

June 6, 1945

CHI. PREMLILABEHN,

I got your letter.

Is it I who should thank you for looking after me and my large family or is it you who should thank me? You have always showered love on me, but this time you surpassed yourself. You stayed all these days in Mahabaleshwar along with your own people and let us suffer no inconvenience, and on top of that gave us money when bidding us farewell. I think it would be improper for me to offer you thanks for so much love. Silence is the best course.

We are all right here. Shantabehn has put me in a prison, I have left one jail and got into another.

My blessings to Vashi and the girls, which includes Damayanti.

Blessings from BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 80. Also C.W. 4835. Courtesy: Premlila Thackersey

107. LETTER TO AMTUSSALAAM

June 6, 1945

DAUGHTER AMTUL SALAAM,

I have your postcard. You are strange. Must you complain if you do not receive the reply I have sent? I have answered your letters. In your last letter you had given news of Kanchan’s illness. Now you are saying something else. Do send Kanchan to Sevagram or take her there. If she has difficulty in going alone she can go with somebody. If she is feeling strong enough she can go alone at her leisure. Do whatever may be proper. I am all right.

Blessings from BAPU

BIBI AMTUL SALAAM
KASTURBA SEVA MANDIR
BORKAMATA
TRIPURA DISTRICT

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 496
108. LETTER TO GOPE GURUBUXANI

PANCHGANI,
June 6, 1945

CHI. GURBUXANI,

I have your postcard. You have yourself said that you do not want a reply to every letter. Even so, I have written quite a few letters. You should not have published what I have written to you and you should have had the English version passed by me. I have noted that you are working for an insurance company.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 1315

109. LETTER TO RAMNARAYAN CHOWDHARY

PANCHGANI,
June 6, 1945

CHI. RAMNARAYAN,

I have your postcard. I won’t call you here. Your idea of going to Sevagram is good. I shall try to go through the book when I get it. I did not know that Jugalkishore was your brother. Hope you are keeping well.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI RAMNARAYAN CHOWDHARY
ADARSH PRESS
AJMER

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
110. TELEGRAM TO MANAGER, SEVAGRAM ASHRAM

PANCHGANI,
June 7, 1945

MANAGER
ASHRAM SEVAGRAM
WARDHA

RECEIVED BALVANTSINHA’S LETTER. I URGE HOSHIARI’S FATHER NOT TAKE HER BEFORE MY ARRIVAL. WRITING.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

111. LETTER TO CHIMANLAL N. SHAH

PANCHGANI,
June 7, 1945

CHI. CHIMANLAL,

I have your letter. I approve in every way your decision to resign as Secretary. But my approval rests on the condition that you will have fully understood my advice and acted in strict accordance with it. Man is not a lifeless machine, though he should work like a machine; he is a conscious being and while working as a machine he should work with faith and intelligence, that is to say, with his heart and his mind. Only then will he shine and succeed in his effort. I have read your statement. Now ease your mind of the burden. Do what you can and give what help and guidance you can while resting. If you do only that much, though you have ceased to be Secretary, the management will remain in your hands, for your experience and patience are your own and cannot be transferred to anybody. Those who wish may take them from you. Even if they do there will be no diminution of your possession. This is the meaning of the verse

1 The source has 1942. Vide however “Letter to Chimanlal N. Shah”, 24-5-1945 which deals with the same subject, Gandhiji did not visit Panchgani in that year.
I learnt the reason for your fast from your letter to Kanam. I see that you fasted for 36 hours as atonement. If that was so, I do not approve of the fast. At the same time I cannot say that it was wrong to fast. Therefore my...

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G. N. 10636

112. LETTER TO LILAVATI ASAR

June 7, 1945

CHI. LILI,

Should I pity your brother and sister-in-law or be angry with them? What else can be the result when they cannot control their lust? It is up to you to consider your duty in the matter. Any religion taught by others is mere tautology. As for me, I am not a learned person in any sense. May God help you, your brother and sister-in-law. May it be well with the boy.

Blessings from
BAPU

CHI. LILAVATI UDESHI
G. S. MEDICAL COLLEGE
LADIES HOSTEL
PAREL
BOMBAY 12

From the Gujarati original: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

1 Ishopanished, Invocation
2 The text is incomplete.
113. LETTER TO ATMARAM RAMCHANDANI

PANCHGANI,
June 8, 1945

BHAJ ATMARAM,

Jairamdas has given me a cheque for Rs. 500/-. I shall use the amount for public work of some kind.

I hope that you will devote your time to constructive work as suggested by me.

Blessings from
BAPU

From the Hindi original: Atmaram Ramchandani Papers. Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library

114. LETTER TO CHOITHRAM GIDWANI

PANCHGANI,
June 7, 1945

BHAJ CHOITHRAM,

I have already written to you that I have been working on your letter. I am sending you a copy of the letter Bhulabhai has written. The argument he has given is the one supported by all the eminent lawyers the world over. I can testify to it. I can understand why Bhulabhai has accepted this case. He has plenty of money. We may be sure he has not accepted the case for the sake of the money. He has accepted the case as a lawyer and has kept politics out of it. We should be proud of it and we should pray that truth alone may triumph and if Khuhro\(^1\) is guilty he may be proved so. This does not happen in the courts of today. We often find the guilty being acquitted. But we should not give up hope on that account.\(^2\)

I hope your health is good. Write to me what new activity Kripalani is starting. Jairamdas along with Devibehn and Premi should be coming here today

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

---

\(^1\) M. A. Khuhro, Muslim League member; he was charged with murder of Allah Bux, Premier of Sind, on May 14, 1943, but was acquitted on final appeal.

\(^2\) Vide also the following item.
115. LETTER TO BHULABHAI DESAI

June 7, 1945

BHAI BHULABHAI,

I have sat down to write this letter after the morning prayer, i.e., at about 6 o’clock. I saw your letter last evening.

I am writing this with the sole desire that you should retain the eminent position you occupy. I hesitate to write because I write without any official authority. There is a very big difference between your legal style and my own old-fashioned one or rather between your legal knowledge and mine. I am saying this deliberately and not through false modesty. I learnt while studying law and practising it—and I have always acted upon the understanding—that a lawyer, having accepted the brief of an untruthful case should give it up as soon as he realizes its untruthfulness, that is, ask for a verdict against his client. I know that there is a section of the bar which holds the opposite view. They ask what the function of the judge would be if an advocate himself were to sit in judgment on his case. I have always held, and hold even today, that that section is mistaken. This is my own view. I find the whole of your argument unconvincing. It should be of no concern either to you or to me whether it is the question of League or the non-League Muslims. If the case of those who hold opposite views from ours is just, I would come forward to support it notwithstanding opposition from everybody else, but if a case is unjust I would not support it even if it were my own son’s. I also believe that Bhai Khuhro’s brief should not be rejected merely on the ground that he is believed to be inciting the Hurs. But, if after having accepted his brief and studied it, I felt that he was guilty, my moral sense would teach me that, if permitted by the client, I should plead guilty and take the punishment. But if he should not permit me, I would request him to release me and engage another lawyer. I remember having done that for two Muslim clients. In one case I asked for a verdict against the client and in another admitted the client’s guilt and got his punishment much reduced and ultimately had him released after he had undergone some years of imprisonment. I therefore do not hesitate to request you that if, after examining the papers of Khuhro’s case, you feel that he is innocent, you should fight for him, but if you feel that he is guilty, you should advise him to plead guilty or ask him to relieve you. This is but a suggestion from me. If, after weighing it carefully you do not approve of it, reject it. Do not look to the person who has given advice; only think over the advice.

As desired by you, I am sending your letter to Choithram. I feel that he should have written to you. I also believe that he should not have formed prejudiced views. But that is a characteristic not only of our life but of that of the whole world. We have observed that even the most balanced men have not been able to shed this weakness. Hence, do not pay attention to Choithram’s shortcomings. If you find any substance in his otherwise faulty reasoning, accept it. I have not explained to Choithram the argument I have put before you. I am enclosing a copy of the letter I have written to him.

I understand what you say regarding Chimur-Ashti. Please see to it that those prisoners are not hanged.

Blessings from
BAPU

From the Gujarati original: Bhulabhai Desai Papers. Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library

116. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

June 7, 1945

CHI. MUNNALAL,

It is good you sent a wire to Amtul Salaam. I hope you have sent one to Satis Babu also or written to him. Kanchan will get well there and be happy. Let her get some experience there. If, however, she is keen on returning to Sevagram, let her do so.²

You have assumed a fairly heavy burden. Learn to keep your eyes closed, while remaining awake, and efface yourself completely. If fortunate, you may even have a vision of God. In any case you will have guidance in the performance of your daily duties. Remember that a mango tree does not start bearing fruit in a day. Fix the tenure of office of the Manager, after which he can be changed. For the present let it be as brief as possible. Keep the accounts department separate and independent. The Ministers keep changing but the Bank of England has been going on for centuries. Its history is worth pondering over. Its Annual General Meeting lasts just thirteen and a half minutes and a few seconds. That institution subscribes to the ideal of few words and more action.

¹ Vide the preceding item,

Blessings from
BAPU

[PS.]
Ramnarayan Chowdhary is for all practical purposes an inmate of the Ashram. We ought to find accommodation for him, whatever the inconvenience.

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 8450. Also C.W. 5581. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

117. LETTER TO K. M. MUNSHI
June 7, 1945

BHAI MUNSHI,
I got your letter. You are suffering from fever and tonsillitis. Do you think you will get well there? In your condition I would advise Bombay. You will not get elsewhere the help you can in Bombay, and in June the climate is not bad. However, treat this as no more than advice.¹

I have noted what you say regarding Kasturba Memorial Office. It was Bapa’s suggestion. It is a good one.

What shall one say about the climate in England!

Blessings to you all from
BAPU

[PS.]
I am hoping to reach Sevagram in the beginning of July.

From a copy of the Gujarati: C.W. 7687. Courtesy: K. M. Munshi

118. LETTER TO JEHANGIR PATEL
PANCHGANI, June 7, 1945

CHI. JEHANGIR,
I have your letter. You are needlessly unhappy. Dinshaw’s duty is to stay in Poona as long as he can. He gave me a massage. He left only yesterday. He will come again either on the 15th or 16th.

There are only three experts who can massage me—Sushila-

¹ The Gujarati saying is, “One remembers the advice of the master only till one reaches the gate”.

THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
behn, Pyarelal and Kanu. These days mostly Kanu massages me. Generally I go to sleep while taking the massage.

Mother should either recover or get relief from suffering. Please tell her that I think of her often.

Blessings from
Bapu

Shri Jehangir Patel
10 Churchgate Street
Fort, Bombay

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

119. LETTER TO RASIKLAL PARIKH

June 7, 1945

Ch. Rasiklal,

I have gone through everything you have sent me. My views are radically different from yours. The small States should straightaway and openly hand over power to the people. They should willingly meet the people. This is the only path by taking which they can survive. The steps you have taken will be in vain. You yourself will not be able to swallow this draught and, even if you do, you will not be able to persuade the princely States to swallow it. So it is better if you do not involve me in this business. Seek Khersaheb’s advice and do whatever he says. I see the point of Dr. Jayakar’s advice. He has given sincere advice as a lawyer. But I do not see my place in any of this. I have drawn a line. It is enough if I do not deviate from it.

Blessings from
Bapu

Shri Rasiklal Parikh
Kathiawar Political Conference
Joravarnagar
Kathiawar

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
120. LETTER TO BALVANTSINHA

PANCHGANI,
June 7, 1945

CHI. BALVANTSINHA,

I had a telegram from Chi. Hoshiari and then, yesterday, your letter came. My advice to Hoshiari’s father is that he should not try to take her away till I come and since he has arrived in the Ashram he should await my return and share the work in the Ashram, so that he will learn something, gain some experience and at the same time not be a burden on the Ashram. Hoshiari is as dear to me as she is to her father. If Hoshiari had felt dissatisfied I would not have said anything. But she is quite happy there, is getting education and making progress. The Ashram is not perfect, but it is not a bad place. It has not done any harm to anyone. Many have risen by living in the Ashram. Those who are good have never felt inconvenienced in the Ashram. Hoshiari’s father should therefore rest assured that Hoshiari will not be harmed by living in the Ashram. The rest when I come. Today I can but request Hoshiari’s father that if he cannot stay on there for a month, he should not take away Hoshiari with him. If even in spite of my letters it is decided that Hoshiari should go she should not go with her father but you should accompany her. I hope the affairs at the Ashram are going on well. We shall talk about the servants when we meet.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 1962

121. LETTER TO HOSHIARI

PANCHGANI,
June 7, 1945

CHI. HOSHIARI,

I have your telegram. As soon as I received Balvantsinha’s letter, I sent a wire and also wrote to him. I have decided that you should stay on till I return. Convey this humbly but firmly to Father. Your humility will set everything right. True humility is filled with ahimsa. Learn everything thoroughly. You must have known from Balvantsinha's letter what advice I have given to Father.

1 Vide “Telegram to Manager, Sevagram Ashram”, 7-6-1945.

_Blessings from_
_BAPU_

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

122. LETTER TO HAREKRUSHNA MAHTAB

June 7, 1945

_BHAI MAHTAB,_

I do not like what you have told the Press. If we must criticize Rajaji, it should be done in a straightforward manner. Do you want to serve or to appear in newspapers? You cannot do both simultaneously. In any case I want you to realize that I do not like your behaviour. This is only my opinion. You will do what you think is proper. As you have some regard for me, I thought it was my duty to write this much.

_Blessings from_
_BAPU_

_SHRI HAREKRUSHNA MAHTAB_
_C/O DAHYABHAI PATEL_
_68 MARINE DRIVE_
_BOMBAY_

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

123. LETTER TO RADHA

PANCHGANI,
June 7, 1945

_CHI. RADHABEHN,_

Read this. I intend to write to you only in the national language. Dr. Mahmud gave me your English letter. It is beautiful. But we want to see beauty in the national language. Your Son will have come by now. Convey my blessings to him.

_Blessings from_
_BAPU_

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
124. LETTER TO SHYAMLAL

PANCHGANI,
June 7, 1945

BHAISHYAMLAL,

I have your letter. You have my approval for appointing Manohar Dhotre to look after the accounts, etc., for 1_ months.

If possible copy letters in ink so that the original does not have to be written in pencil.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI SHYAMALJI
KASTURBA TRUST OFFICE
SCINDIA HOUSE
BOMBAY

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

125. LETTER TO TARACHAND

PANCHGANI,
June 7, 1945

BHAITARACHAND,

I have your letter. It is very clear. It will help me. I will not be slack. I am sending the letter to Sriman Narayan. I shall take a decision after consulting him and shall write to you again.

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

DR. TARACHAND
11 CHATHAM LINES

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
126. TELEGRAM TO BALVANTSINHA

PANCHGANI,
June 8, 1945

BALVANTSINHA
ASHRAM SEVAGRAM
WARDHA

REPLIED EARLIER WIRE 1 AND LETTER 2. HOSHIARI'S FATHER SHOULD REMAIN TILL MY RETURN.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

127. LETTER TO LORD SAMUEL

PANCHGANI,
June 8, 1945

DEAR FRIEND,

I had your letter of 25th July, 1944. Perhaps you are right that after this lapse of time it would not be very profitable to enter into a detailed discussion of the various points raised by your speech in the House of Lords.

There is one point in your letter however which challenges a reply. You have adduced two passages from my writings in support of your remarks in the House of Lords that “When Mr. Gandhi called upon the British Government to quit India, he said it would be for the Congress to take delivery.” This, you have argued, connotes totalitarian spirit in the Congress.

I have seen the full text of the Harijan articles referred to in your letter. Copies of these are enclosed for easy reference.

The passages cited by you are from the Harijan of June 15, 1940, and December 3, 1938, respectively. You will not fail to observe that they have no relevancy to the point at issue. The Congress decision in connection with its “Quit India” demand in August 1942

1 Vide “Telegram to Manager, Sevagram Ashram”, 7-6-1945 and “Letter to Balvantsinha”, 7-6-1945.
2 ibid
3 Herbert Louis Samuel, Liberal leader
is embodied in the official declaration of its President, Maulana Abul Kalam Azad to which I have referred in my last letter to you. To that decision the Congress still stands committed and one fails to see what bearing my writings in Harijan have upon it.

The fact however is that the quotations given by you are incapable of bearing the totalitarian interpretation you have put upon them. The British Government have often declared that they would gladly part with power if there was a body in India ready and fit to take charge. What is wrong in the Congress trying to qualify itself for that onerous duty? That it does not want power for itself but for the whole people of India is made absolutely clear by me in the course of the same article from which you have quoted. Here is the relevant extract:

Its non-violence forbids the Congress from standing aloof and riding the high horse as the opponents say. On the contrary it has to woo all parties, disarm suspicion and create trust in its bona fides.

Is it not the normal goal of every party in a democratic State to aspire to convert the whole country to its view and to become its mouthpiece? Does not the party in power in the House of Commons take delivery of the machinery of administration from the outgoing party—its predecessor? And is not the formation of coalition cabinets under the party system of government an exception rather than the rule? Then how can the refusal of the Congress to sacrifice or water down its ideal for the sake of securing unanimity with other parties be called totalitarian?

With regard to the second passage from the article on the Princes it is only necessary to point out that it was the British Government itself that called upon the Congress to secure an agreement with the States, at the Second Round Table Conference. There could therefore be nothing wrong in its inviting the Princes to treat with it.

The essential fact to remember in this connection is that the Congress has no other sanction except that of persuasion and self-suffering, any other being precluded by its creed. On the other hand, is not violence, euphemistically called physical force, the basis and backbone of the totalitarian spirit? If it is, and if you believe in my bona fides about non-violence and also of the Congress, you cannot accuse either of the totalitarian spirit.¹

I am,

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

Enclosures: 2

RT. HON. VISCOUNT SAMUEL, G.C.B., &C.
32 PORCHESTER TERRACE
LONDON W. 2 (ENGLAND)

Enclosures: “Two Parties” (Harijan, June 15, 1940)
“States and the People” (Harijan, December 3, 1938)

Gandhiji’s Correspondence with the Government, 1942-44, pp. 84-6

128. LETTER TO BHARATAN KUMARAPPA

PANCHGANI, JUNE 8, 1945

My dear Bharatan,

Of course I am going through your book, but I am crawling like a snail, which I hope you do not mind.

I edited Harijan in English as a matter of cruel necessity. I should even repeat the performance. But I know that my imperfect Hindustani would be much better understood, and would reach a larger number of readers. There is force however in what you say. But I must not devote time to arguing.

Love.

BAPU

SIT. BHARATAN KUMARAPPA
THE A. I. V. I. A.
MAGANWADI, WARDHA

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ The addressee’s reply dated July 2, inter alia, read: “I am still not convinced . . . Congress, you said, would ‘take delivery’; and you urge that that is to be regarded as justifiable because Congress sincerely wishes to embrace all parties and is trying to do so. Yes, but while the taking of delivery is to be immediate and certain the other is still in the future and, it cannot be denied, is problematical.”
129. LETTER TO MAURICE FRYDMAN

PANCHGANI,
June 8, 1945

MY DEAR BHARATANAND,

You are under promise to behave yourself and be well. No thoughtless experiments allowed.

As to the 16 Poles, send me the draft you would like me to sign. Is my signature of any value in such a case? But I do not wish to anticipate my judgment. I shall know when the draft is before me.

Love.

BAPU

SHRI BHARATANANDJI
JASSAWALA NATURE CURE CLINIC
CUMBALLA HILL
BOMBAY

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

130. LETTER TO MOHAN KUMARAMANGALAM

PANCHGANI,
June 8, 1945

MY DEAR MOHAN,

I have your cuttings. They are interesting and ably written. I am doing what I can in the matter.

Please make no public use of this correspondence.

Love.

BAPU

SHRI MOHAN KUMARAMANGALAM
RAJ BHAWAN
SANDHURST ROAD
BOMBAY-4

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers.Courtesy: Pyarelal
131. LETTER TO MADHAVDAS G. KAPADIA

PANCHGANI,
June 8, 1945

CHI. MADHAVDAS,

I was happy to read your letter. Dr. Krishnavarma is an obliging gentleman. He has kept you there at my request. I could not send you anywhere else. So far as I know, he is there not to fleece the patients. He loves giving this kind of treatment. In any case he doesn’t wish to charge anything in your case. I have pressed him to accept the expenditure he will be incurring on your account. I am glad that Manilal showed interest in your case. I am glad also that Manilal has taken the key from you and you have given it. I have told him that he has to pay all the expenses that may be incurred whether from your account or some other account. You need not worry at all. Do what Dr. Krishnavarma says. He is competent and I have full faith in him as regards your treatment. Remember that you had tried to commit suicide. God saved you. Now make up your mind that you will stay there and get well.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati G.N. 2721

132. LETTER TO RAMASWAMI

PANCHGANI,
June 8, 1945

CHI. RAMASWAMI,

Let me at any rate reply in Hindi to your English letter. I did not even know that Lady Tata was still alive. Where does she figure in this? Where does she live? Please write to me You can come to the Ashram in July.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
133. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

PANCHGANI,
June 8, 1945

CHI. MUNNALAL,

I have read the accompanying letter. If what he writes is true, tell him this:

“Do not go to Khadi Vidyalaya for training. Stay here, do physical labour, have your daily meals and learn what you can.” If he can put in sufficient physical labour and if you feel inclined, keep him. Do not give him a separate room. He will rest wherever free space is available. If we can discontinue the practice of assigning a room to each person, we shall be able to accommodate more people. Do not keep him if he does not observe all the rules. In this way we can even test whether such persons are sincere or not.

Ramaswami’s letter is enclosed. Read it and show it to others and then file it.

I have dropped him an ordinary postcard.²

Blessings from,
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 8449. Also C.W. 5582. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

134. LETTER TO GOVIND REDDY

June 8, 1945

BHAI GOVIND REDDY,

I have forwarded your letter to the manager of the Ashram and have asked him to do what he thinks proper.³ Please see him.

Blessings from,
M. K. GANDHI

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ From Govind Reddy
² Vide the preceding item.
³ Ibid
135. LETTER TO MITHUBEHN PETIT

June 8, 1945

CHI. MITHUBEHN,

I was glad to get a letter from you after a long time. All of us will eat the mangoes as prasadi. The description you give of your work is very good. However, I do not like your keeping indifferent health. Where is one to lay the blame for your illness in spite of the means at your disposal—on the means or on you or on the doctors or on all? I understand about Kalyanji. He is also quite busy with his work. Is he all right?

Blessings to all of you from

BAPU

SHRI MITHUBEHN PETIT
KAStURBA SEVASHRAM
MAROLI

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. courtesy: Pyarelal

136. LETTER TO NIRMALA GANDHI

PANCHGANI,
June 8, 1945

CHI. NIMU,

I have your letter. I am sure you have done the wise thing in not going to Delhi [to look after Sumi]. As it is; neither you nor Usha were keen on going to Simla. Sumi is being looked after quite well. Therefore there is no meaning in your going there. Devdas’s invitation [to go to Delhi] shows his love for you. True love lies in not submitting at all to such love. This increases mutual love. From time to time keep advising [Sumi] not to keep awake at the cost of her eyes. Usha may write whenever she feels like it. It is yours and Ramdas’s duty to improve in health. Kanam is well. He does not give trouble to anyone. He talks a lot. I have shown him the [three] monkey gurus.

Blessings from

BAPU

NIRMALA GANDHI
C/O RAMDAS GANDHI
KAHALASI LANE
NAGPUR

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
137. LETTER TO SATIS CHANDRA DAS GUPTA

PANCHGANI,
June 8, 1945

CHI. SATIS BABU,

May I send a copy of your letter to the Madhukosh\(^1\) people if you have not sent one already? Please let me know. What you write has certainly startled me. I have received both the samples of honey. I hope you are well.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 1643

138. LETTER TO DEVRAJ SETHI

PANCHGANI,
June 8, 1945

BHAJ DEVRAJ,

I would certainly like to have Vidyavati\(^2\) for the Nayee Talim work. However, I am afraid that that work demands hard labour and perhaps Vidyavati will not be up to it. I would advise her to write to Ashadevi.

How can I meet the Acharya\(^3\) in Panchgani, now that I shall be getting down from here by the end of the month?

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI DEVRAJ SETHI, M.A.,LL.B.
JHANG CITY (PUNJAB)

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

\(^1\) Apiaries near Mahabaleshwar where work was done scientifically with everything swadeshi. Gandhiji had visited the apiaries on May 2.

\(^2\) Principal, Kanya Gurukul, Dehradun

\(^3\) Vidyavati
139. LETTER TO JANAKIDEVI

PANCHGANI,
June 8, 1945

DEAR SISTER,

I cannot do anything from here. I do not have that much power and authority. I have sent your letter to Purushottamdas Tandon. He will do whatever he can. See him.

Blessings from
M. K. GANDHI

SHRI JANAKIDEVI
MIRA GOVINDPUR
RAE BARELI

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

140. LETTER TO PURUSHOTTAMDAS TANDON

June 8, 1945

Bhai Purushottamdas Tandonji,

Please see the enclosed. Do what you think proper. I have written to the lady advising her to see you. I am awaiting your reply to my letter about Hindustani.

BAPU

PURUSHOTTAMDAS TANDONJI
10 CROSSWATH ROAD
ALLAHABAD

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Vide the preceding item.
141. LETTER TO KIKIBEHN LALVANI

PANCHGANI,
June 8, 1945

DEAR KIKIBEHN,

Pyarelalji has received your letter. Your English statements raise a big question in my mind. When you cannot yourself write in English, what is the point of getting them written and then signing them? At the most do as Ba did. She narrated her anguish over Harilal’s behaviour to Devdas who translated it into English and gave it to the newspapers saying that it was almost a literal translation of what Ba had narrated to him. You must have seen it. Such writings will carry greater weight and with that the mother tongue will also gain in importance. I will go to the extent of saying that whatever ideas occur to you, express them as they are either in Sindhi or Hindi. Ultimately whatever is translated into English is as useless as fruit ripened artificially.

I am all right.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI KIKIBEHN LALVANI
BHARAT KHADI BHANDAR
BURUS ROAD, KARACHI

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

142. LETTER TO DUNICHAND

PANCHGANI,
June 8, 1945

Bhai Dunichand,

I have your letter. You are doing very good work. What I wrote about ‘imperialism’ is being proved now.

Come to Sevagram whenever you want to. I will go down from here by the end of the month.

1 Sister of J. B. Kripalani
2 Gandhiji has used the English expression.
It was all to the good that my message1 did not reach your wife. This shows that whether I live for 125 years or not, you certainly are going to live long and will very soon remove the sufferings of the Harijans of Dukhaidi.

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

LALA DUNICHAND, ADVOCATE
KRIPANANDAS COTTAGE
AMBALA CITY (PUNJAB)

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

143. LETTER TO MOHANLAL

PANCHGANI,
June 8, 1945

Bhai Mohanlal,

I was glad to have your letter. You have done good work for the Harijans of Dukhaidi. You must work hard and remove all their difficulties.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI MOHANLAL
LAJPATRAJ BHAWAN
LAHORE

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

144. LETTER TO SHYAMLAL

PANCHGANI,
June 8, 1945

Bhai Shyamalal,

I have your letter of the 2nd. I would keep the girls not only at a place near the Ashram but in the Ashram itself. But there is no room there. I still believe that we should have a permanent building of our own for such purposes. However, it is good that you have written to Jajuji. The problem will be resolved some way or the other.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI SHYAMLALJI
KASTURBA TRUST OFFICE
SCINDIA HOUSE
BALLARD ESTATE, FORT, BOMBAY

From the Hindi original: Kasturba Gandhi National Memorial Trust Papers. Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library

145. LETTER TO PRABHAVATI

PANCHGANI,
June 8, 1945

CHI. PRABHA,

I have your second letter. You are needlessly unhappy over being released. You have to work out of jail and even in jail. The truth is that for one like you there is more work outside. But what of it? You are capable of doing it. Do not worry at all. Come here, if getting permission to meet Jayaprakash is going to take time. Go from here when you have the permission.

About Father, I fervently hope that he may be relieved from the present crippled state.

My health is of course good. I will go down from here by the end of the month. If the spectacles suit you, then never give them up. I keep on receiving letters saying “Prabhavati and Rajkumari must have reached there”. But neither of you is here. Rajkumari has not received the order from the Government. She saw from the newspapers that the restriction imposed on her had been lifted. Even on receiving the intimation from the Government, she will not be able to come here soon as she must stay in Simla to help her brother and sister-in-law with their work. It seems she will be able to come only in July.¹

Blessings from
BAPU

PRABHAVATI DEVI
C/O SHRI VISHWANATH PRASAD
BIHAR BANK
LAHERI SARAI P. O., DARbhANGA (BIHAR)

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Vide also “Letter to Amrit Kaur”, 4-6-1945.
146. LETTER TO SUMATIBAI RAI

PANCHGANI,
June 8, 1945

KUMARI SUMATIBAI,

I have your letter. If you have the strength, the knowledge and the will for it, do work for the Kasturba Trust.

Please tell Ramkrishna Jaju that I am not replying to him separately. May he get well soon.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI SUMATIBAI RAI
JAIN SEVIKASHRAM
SHOLAPUR

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

147. LETTER TO UMA AGRAWAL

June 8, 1945

CHI. OM,

I have your letter. If I have to take a decision about you, I can do that when I reach there in July.

I follow what you say about Hindustani. There should of course be a dictionary of the words spoken in the villages. No language can survive without a dictionary. Dr. Tarachand and Sunderlalji alone will not complete the dictionary. We shall have a little discussion when we meet. The committee formed for this purpose has to evolve a composite language.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
148. TELEGRAM TO SUKHDEV PRASAD

PANCHGANI,
June 9, 1945

SUKHDEV PRASAD
LALGANJ

ASK LOCAL LEADERS.

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library.
Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

149. LETTER TO SAROJINI NAIDU

PANCHGANI,
June 9, 1945

MY DEAR SINGER,

I have kept yours of 13th ultimo just to give you a few lines of love for your great motherly affection. Your wire was good as from a philosopher, who could put her philosophy to practice at the right moment. Your letter brings out a mother’s affection at its best. I do not know whether to love you best as a poetess, philosopher or mother? Tell me.

Love.

SHRIMATI SAROJINI NAIDU SPINNER
HYDERABAD, DECCAN

1 The addressee had lost her son; vide “Telegram to Sarojini Naidu”, 30-4-1945.

86 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
150. LETTER TO BHARATAN KUMARAPPA

PANCHGANI,
June 9, 1945

MY DEAR BHARATAN,

So far as possible, I want to give you something for every issue of the Patrika. You do well therefore to remind me in time and to give me a hint as to the subject on which you will like me to write.

Love.

[PS.]

Of course J. C. [Kumarappa] will be quite well.

SHRI BHARATAN KUMARAPPA
A. I. V. I. A.
MAGANWADI, WARDHA

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

151. LETTER TO MOHAN KUMARAMANGALAM

PANCHGANI,
June 9, 1945

MY DEAR MOHAN,

Of course I know Palme Dutt both by name and fame. I do wish him success in his campaign.

Love.

BAPU

SHRI MOHAN KUMARAMANGALAM
RAJ BHAVAN
SANDHURST ROAD, BOMBAY-4

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Khadi Gramodyog Patrika
2 Rajani Palme-Dutt, communist leader, who was a contestant for the Sparkbrook constituency of Birmingham against L. S. Amery, Secretary of State for India. The letter appeared in The Bombay Chronicle, 13-6-1945, as Gandhiji’s reply to “a request for a message” to the addressee “in his election campaign”.
152. A LETTER

[June 9, 1945]¹

I did have that in my mind. Palme-Dutt is a well-known figure. He will be able to give a fight to Amery. Patel², I do not know. Nor do I wish that too many Indians should stand for election. This is going to be an important election. It does not matter if he is defeated. If, moreover, I give in this case the same opinion that I did in Patel’s, it might be interpreted to mean that I am refusing to support him because he is a communist. I have no such thought in my mind. The distinction is worth understanding. If you do not follow it, ask me again.

If you don’t wish to post the letter today, it may be posted tomorrow. It is more important that you should understand my idea.

From a photostat of the Gujarati: S.N. 9130

153. LETTER TO MRIDULA SARABHAI

PANCHGANI,
June 9, 1945

CHI. MRIDULA,

I received your letter through Bapa. Bapa has noted on it “Mridu had not given anything in writing before. She has now. It will be discussed at the next meeting”. Let that be so. Your office at present is in Bombay. Let it be there for the time being. Write to me if Shantikumar has any difficulty. I take it that the assistants who are there will continue.

I hope your health is good. We are going to have a quarrel if it does not improve.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI MRIDULA SARABHAI
KASTURBA SMARAK NIDHI
SCINDIA HOUSE, BALLARD ESTATE
BOMBAY-1

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ From the reference to Palme-Dutt; vide the preceding item.
² Purushottam Patel; vide “Letter to Purushottam Patel”, 4-6-1945.
154. LETTER TO AMTUSSALAAM

June 9, 1945

CHI. A. S.,

I have your letter. I left Mahabaleshwar long ago. I shall leave Panchgani too by the end of this month. I may leave even earlier. I shall reach Sevagram in July. Do not think about the six months.

Think about your work. Finish it and come back.

Send Kanchan to Sodepur.

Sushilabehn has written. You do not remember and then become impatient.

What should I do about Khan Saheb?

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 497

155. LETTER TO SHRIKRISHNADAS JAJU

PANCHGANI,
June 9, 1945

BHAJ JAJUJI,

You must have seen Chi. Narandas’s appeal. If I can find a copy here I shall enclose it with this. In my view it would be a great thing. Labour is the basis of the bank here. It can be a great thing if it can be done. In my opinion we should fully take part in it. And our part will consist only in accepting contributions. We shall not give anything. That is to say that we shall take the yarn from persons offering at least one hank of it for Narandas’s sutrayajna and give a receipt for it. Then we have to send an account of it to Narandas every week or every month. This does not involve much work on our part and it can bring in quite a lot. This would enhance the importance of this yajna.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: C.W. 8624. Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi
156. LETTER TO VICHITRA NARAYAN SHARMA

PANCHGANI,
June 9, 1945

CHI. VICHITRA¹.

I have your letter. It is a difficult problem. You should fearlessly write to Gadodiaji and ask him what he wants. Let him go out if he wants. Ask Jajuji also. Find out whom Dr. Sharma wants to be appointed. I am managing with one letter to save time. Otherwise I would have had to write three.

Blessings from
BAPU

Copy to Dr. Sharma
[From Hindi]

Bapuki Chhayamen, p. 330

157. LETTER TO PRABHAKAR

June 9, 1945

CHI. PRABHAKAR,

I have your letter. Bring Babaji down to simple diet. He must get well somehow.

Money has been sent to Bhai Ramaswamy. That was meant for his parents. I do not know if he has asked for anything else.

Should I take it that your health is perfect?

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 9030. Also C.W. 9154. Courtesy: Prabhakar

¹ Manager, Gandhi Ashram, Meerut
158. LETTER TO SHANTA

PANCHGANI,
June 9, 1945

CHI. SHANTA,

Your letter is good. It is bad to use the expression “two or four”. The shifting of the latrine will cost either Rs. 2 or Rs. 4. Truly speaking, we should calculate to the last anna. Only then will your account be complete. Your description is interesting and informative.

Yes, the task is one of transformation of life. We should not lose heart or give it up even if it continues for ages. You have very aptly defined the meaning of adult education.¹

Non-attachment is the right thing. Determination to strive to achieve it is enough.

The true bank is a labour bank and its currency is yarn. This does not mean that your grain banks and money banks should not function.

Blessings from
BAPU

159. LETTER TO KASHINATH VAIDYA

PANCHGANI,
June 9, 1945

BHAI KASHINATH VAIDYA,

I have your letter of June 6. I am doing all that I can. Let us see what happens.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI KASHINATH VAIDYA
1307 SULTAN BAZAAR
HYDERABAD

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹What follows is from Pyarelal Papers.
160. LETTER TO PARVATI DINDWANIA

PANCHGANI,
June 9, 1945

CHI. PARVATIBEHN,

I have your letter. About membership do what you think proper. I myself do not know much about it. I was sorry to know about your illness. Such being the case how can I advise you to disobey the order? This, too, you must decide on your own. You will have to measure your own strength. I can say this much, that if you obey the order because of your physical condition, no one can blame you. I hope you will regain your health. I cannot advise you to come here for a talk. Write to me whatever you want to say. I encourage very few people to come and see me. Your ill-health is also a reason for my refusing to let you come.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI PARVATI DINDWANIA
[C/o] C. DINDWANIA
KASHMIRI GATE, DELHI

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

161. LETTER TO SUDHA KULKARNI

PANCHGANI,
June 9, 1945

CHI. LAMBUS1 ALIAS SUDHA,

You ride while I walk. How can I make it? You wrote a letter on the 28th of May which I received on the 1st of June. You two started your Ashram on that very day. How could my blessings reach you? If this is how you calculate your timing, you will fall off the horse and will also drag down your husband with you. With this much advice, I bless you both that you may succeed. Remember that a noble person like Balasaheb Kher is the President.

Blessings from
BAPU

A. S. SUDHA KULKARNI
ADI SEVA ASHRAM
MOHKADA P.O.
THANA DISTRICT

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Literally, tall
162. LETTER TO RAMNATH ‘SUMAN’

PANCHGANI, June 9, 1945

BHAJ RAMNATH ‘SUMAN’.

It is good that you wrote to me. I was under the impression that you were in Berar. Now you have joined the Hindi Sahitya Sammelan.
It is good. You must be knowing my views. I am trying to run away from the Sammelan. From my own point of view I have broadened the definition of the national language. I had sown the seed when I presided at the Sammelan for the first time. Under the circumstances it is best for me to keep silent because you are one of the office-bearers of the Sammelan. It will not be proper for me to write more.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

163. LETTER TO SHYAMLAL

PANCHGANI, June 9, 1945

BHAJ SHYAMLAL,

I had forgotten, if I had ever known, that you are Ramnath’s younger brother. Now when I recollect the two faces I can see that there is much resemblance between the two of you.

I enclose herewith a letter1 I have written to Ramnath. Send it to him. It is good that you had been to Wardha to look for a place for the office. It will be good if you get accommodation in the buildings of Rashtrabhasha Prachar Sabha or Bajajwadi or Maganwadi. According Bapa, Bajajwadi or Maganwadi will perhaps be the most suitable. However, see it for yourself. I am only making a suggestion.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI SHYAMLALJI
SHRI KASTURBA SMARAK NIDHI
SCINDIA HOUSE, BALLARD ESTATE
BOMBAY

SHRI SHYAMLALJI
SHRI KASTURBA SMARAK NIDHI
SCINDIA HOUSE, BALLARD ESTATE
BOMBAY

1 A Hindi poet
2 At Indore, on April 30, 1935
3 Vide the preceding item.
164. LETTER TO VINA CHATTERJEE

PANCHGANI, June 9, 1945

CHI. VINA,

I have your letter. Your handwriting is good but there is room for improvement in it. Learn both the scripts well. Of course your work always gives satisfaction. Keep yourself fit. Tell Zohra to write to me. Mridulabehn had asked for her. What reply did she give her?

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

165. NEED FOR KHADI EDUCATION

PANCHGANI, June 10, 1945

Soon after the khadi activity was started, the need began to be felt for the workers to have a scientific knowledge of all the processes of khadi production. Therefore, as early as 1927-28 a school was opened in the Sabarmati Ashram to teach spinning and weaving. As the khadi activity grew and it became necessary to pay attention to other aspects such as making khadi attractive to look at and low-priced, the lack of scientific knowledge of the subject began to be felt more and more every day. A few workers were able, through their own individual efforts and experience, to gather many useful bits of knowledge. The tools were experimented on and improved. All the lovers of khadi know that the late Shri Maganlal Gandhi worked very hard in this connection. It then became clear that it was very necessary for every khadi worker to learn the science of khadi. I have from the very beginning emphasized this. I prepared a questionnaire about the various things khadi workers ought to know. In 1937, I also wrote three articles for the Harijan. In an article dated February 13, 1937, I wrote:

In my opinion it should be made obligatory on every khadi worker engaged in any of the production centres of the A. I. S. A. to know the elements of this science.

Following this policy, khadi schools were later opened. A khadi school was opened by the Central Office [of the A. I. S. A.]. The syllabi for the “spinning workers”, “weaving workers” and “Khadi Prathama” were prepared and arrangements were made to impart instruction according to them. It was also hoped then that all the workers of the Charkha Sangh would join these schools by turns, and complete their training. In order to save workers from any kind of difficulties, it was arranged to pay them, over and above their regular salaries, travelling allowance and other allowances since it was thought that the workers would have to spend more on food in an unfamiliar place. One regrets however that the workers have not shown any increased enthusiasm for learning the khadi science.

\[1\] Vide “What Khadi workers should know”, 13-2-1937.

Now that the Charkha Sangh has taken up the new work it becomes obligatory on the part of khadi workers to train themselves in khadi science. Without that it will be impossible to carry on the new khadi programme.

According to the new programme, the sales depots too will almost be like production centres. Not only that; after some time we intend to convert all khadi production centres and sales depots into khadi education centres. It will then be unnecessary to send workers to the schools for khadi training. We have to train in the science of khadi all the workers, new as well as old.

Those in charge of the branches are therefore requested to scrutinize the list of workers to assess what training a particular worker needs and to make arrangements for such training to be given. Lists of workers should in this way be made and forwarded to the Central Office. In order to make the training obligatory, we should make the rise in salary dependent on the degree of khadi education possessed by the worker. We should also accept the principle that the khadi worker has to pass an examination. Those who fail should not be considered qualified. So long as we do not seriously take up the question of khadi education, how can we hope to succeed?

I have said that if we are true khadi workers, we should have as much awareness, as much knowledge and as much alertness as is considered necessary for a member of the I. C. S.

M. K. GANDHI

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
166. LETTER TO ANAND T. HINGORANI

June 10, 1945

CHI. ANAND,

I have your letter. Now Jairamdas is with me. I have asked him to write to you. It is only to console you. Do get well.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a microfilm of the Hindi. Courtesy: National Archives of India and Anand T. Hingorani

167. LETTER TO HAMID KHAN

PANCHGANI,
June 10, 1945

BHAI HAMID KHAN,

I have your letter. I knew Ganesh Shankar Vidyarthi well. I had great regard for him. I have already given my view on the question of a memorial. You must know it. Go through it if you have not already done so. You can’t raise a memorial by constructing a building or spending money. A man thinks that having given the money he has done his duty. Therefore, in my opinion, it will be a true memorial to Ganesh Shankar Vidyarthi if, at least in Kanpur, and as far as possible throughout India, Hindus and Muslims should unite and instead of cutting each other’s throats be prepared to lay down their lives for each other. If this comes about, let me know and then ask for my blessings. What is there in merely collecting money? Let me also know who are on the Committee? And what are the grounds for believing that what has not been achieved so far will be achieved now?

I have seen the aim of the Memorial Committee. That will not make the memory of the deceased immortal, only bring ridicule to it. Two or three rich men can jointly put up such buildings, give jobs to a few persons and thus deceive themselves and others that they have raised a memorial to Vidyarthi. But I will regard it as a mockery.

1 For Jairamdas Doulatram’s letter to the addressee, vide Appendix “Letter from Jairamdas Doulatram to Anand T. Hingorani”, 10-6-1945.

2 He was killed while pacifying rioters during Hindu-Muslim riots on March 25, 1931.
This letter is meant for you and your Committee and not for the Press. This does not mean that I do not want to give my views to the Press. If you want, you can give it. My aim in writing this is to awaken you and make you do real work.

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

JANAB HAMID KHAN
SECRETARY
GANESH SHANKAR SMARAK COMMITTEE
TIL-KAHAL, KANPUR

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

168. LETTER TO N. G. RANGA

PANCHGANI,
June 10, 1945

Bhai Ranga,

I have your letter. You will be able to follow if I write in Hindi, won’t you? I like your correspondence with Prof. Humayun Kabir. We shall talk about it when we meet. In the mean time learn a little Hindustani.

Blessings from
BAPU

PROF. N. G. RANGA
PRINCIPAL, PEASANTS’ INSTITUTE
NIDUBROLU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

169. SPEECH TO RASHTRA SEVA DAL MEMBERS, PANCHGANI¹

June 10, 1945

Gandhiji congratulated the volunteers for having walked down to Panchgani from Wai in spite of the rain. He was sorry he could not invite them all to the prayer hall. The hall belonged to a school. That they allowed him, a rebel, to hold a prayer meeting in their hall was the essence of the prayer. He knew that the volunteers did not all pray. He had been in close touch with volunteer organizations in India ever since 1919. Yet he had not been able to make them prayer-minded. He had failed to create in them an enthusiasm for prayer.

¹ According to the A. P. I. report, this is “the authorized version” of Gandhiji’s speech to about 300 volunteers at a function organized by Dr. B. D. Savant in Parsi Girls High School. Gandhiji spoke in Hindustani which was rendered into Marathi.

Again he had explained to them right from the beginning that a volunteer must always serve the people and serve them only through truth and non-violence. Yet there were very few men and women amongst them who had accepted truth and non-violence as their creed. He was convinced that real swaraj, that is, swaraj for the rich and the poor alike, could not be won except through truth and non-violence.

They had just seen the end of a terrible war. It had made people doubt if truth really counted in this world. The Allies had won, but their victory had been the result of superior arms and superior man-power. He could not enthuse over it as a victory of truth over falsehood. At the same time he wanted to make it clear to them that a victory for the Axis would have been far worse. The Axis had accepted violence as their creed. The Allies had not done so. They at least paid lip service to peace and freedom, and truth and non-violence. It was true that their actions belied their profession. A major part of humanity today consisted of oppressed and enslaved nations. It was his conviction that, if India could win swaraj through truth and non-violence, she would be able to bring deliverance to all the other oppressed nations.

Many of the volunteers were not clad in khadi. He had called the spinning-wheel the symbol of truth and non-violence and therefore also of swaraj. That was why it had found a place in the national flag. Therefore he exhorted them all to spin and produce khadi for their own clothes. Thus they would help to combat the cloth shortage in the country and help the naked poor.

Lastly he asked them all to learn Hindustani. Hindustani was the language that Hindus and Mussalmans of North India spoke and which was written in Nagari and Urdu scripts. All those who spoke Hindustani did not know both the scripts. But those who wished to serve all should make it a point of honour to learn both the scripts.

The Bombay Chronicle, 11-6-1945
170. SILENCE-DAY NOTE TO BHULABHAI DESAI

June 11, 1945

Considering all that is happening around us, I see danger in this partnership with the League.

One thing is definite, namely, that until the members of the Working Committee are freed and can express their opinion, nothing can be done in the name of the Congress.

It is also definite that if the Chimur-Ashti prisoners and other such prisoners are hanged, the situation will become impossible. Unless the League’s attitude shows a change without any expectation of gain I will have no deal with it even if the Congress Working Committee consents. This is for you yourself to think over and decide. You are in a better position to understand the truth than anybody else.

The distinction that is being made between the League Muslims and the others seems to me dangerous from every point of view. I don’t think it safe to countenance any such position. Think carefully over what you said last night regarding this.

Will the 40 per cent Congress quota include any representatives of the Hindu Mahasabha or of Harijans? What about the Sikhs, Parsis, Christians, etc.? Whether you have discussed this with the League or not is irrelevant here. When the time for final decision comes, the Congress will have to consider all these points. The Congress will not be in the same position as the League. It will have to take into account all the interests in the country, whereas the League is concerned with the interests only of the Muslims supporting it. You will have to be ready to face all these complications. You will definitely not be able to bring the ship to port by disregarding the parties other than the League.

Please understand my limitations fully before you proceed further. As I have explained, my temper is progressively becoming more uncompromising. I use the word “uncompromising”.

1 “In Mahatma Gandhi—The Last Phase, Vol. 1, Book One, p. 120, Pyarelal explains: “The rejection of the appeal for mercy on behalf of the Ashi-Chimur prisoners at this stage hardened Gandhiji’s attitude. Extremely sensitive to the slightest variation in the moral atmosphere around him, he became more and more insistent on the ‘present tense’. This was very much in evidence when Bhulabhai met him at Mahabaleshwar.”
in a good sense, so take it in that spirit. Against my indifference to the Parliamentary scheme and my increasing faith in non-violent non-co-operation, you can safely place my loyalty to you. It will not let myself go beyond the limits of what I have given you in writing. But it is difficult even for me to say where my uncompromising spirit will take me, for I am coming to put ever increasing faith in the Unseen Power and, therefore, I think very little about tomorrow.

I started writing this before 6 and it is 6.30 now. I will write more if anything occurs to me. Otherwise take this as fully representing my views.

From the Gujarati original: Bhulabhai Desai Papers. Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library

171. LETTER TO DR. DINSHAW K. MEHTA

PANCHGANI,
June 11, 1945

CHI. DINSHAW,

Can Vanamala, Manu and Abha be accommodated with you? It is not yet clear which of them will be willing to go.

Why were you burdened with Rs. 1,000? Is the position there still delicate?

Is your mind at peace? You consider experiments on living animals and taking of glands, liver and so on as part of nature cure. That seems to me going too far. This needs to be considered. It will not matter if you do not reply to this. Only you must think over it. I am all right. Mangaldas Pakvasa is doing everything. He may come here. I went and saw the land yesterday. I have not been to see the land recommended by Pandit, and I don’t intend to go. Gulbehn gives me a bath daily.

Blessings from
BAPU

DR. DINSHAW MEHTA
AROGYA BHAWAN
NEAR STATION
POONA CITY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
172. LETTER TO PRABHAVATI

PANCHGANI,
June 11, 1945

CHI. PRABHA,

I have just received your postcard of the 6th. Your coming here goes on being delayed. Towards the end of the month I shall be going down. Then on to Sevagram. Before coming find out where I am. I do not also like your falling ill. You are sensible. So I console myself that you will not delay your coming without reason. Khurshedbehn was here. She is awaiting your arrival. I do not write anything about Father¹.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

173. LETTER TO ZAFAR HASAN

PANCHGANI,
June 11, 1945

BHAJ.ZAFAR HASAN,

Benarsidas has sent me the essay which you read at the meeting of the Hindustani Prachar Sabha. He says that I must read it. I received it on May 6. I could finish reading it yesterday. I read it with interest and liked it. I can see that you can render much help to the Sabha. I also find that our work is as important as it is difficult.

Please send me if you have written anything about making both the scripts easier.

Yours,
M. K. GANDHI

DR. ZAFAR HASAN
READER, OSMANIA UNIVERSITY
HYDERABAD, DECCAN

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Brajkishore Babu
174. LETTER TO BENARSIDAS CHATURVEDI

PANCHGANI,
June 11, 1945

Bhai Benarsidas,

I could read Dr. Zafar Saheb’s essay only yesterday. I am so busy that I could write to him only today. The essay is interesting and good. Let me have a few copies if it has been published in pamphlet form. I hope you are well.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 2519

175. LETTER TO KARKHANIS

PANCHGANI,
June 11, 1945

Bhai Karkhanis,

I received your wire last evening. So Hanumantharao¹ has paid off whatever debt he owed to this world and has left. Please convey my condolences to his relatives. What family has he left behind? Who will look after his work?

Blessings from

BAPU

Kaka Karkhanis
Harijan Ashram
Bijapur (Karnataka)

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Hanumantharao Kaujalgi, Congressman of Karnataka and member of Gandhi Seva Sangh; for Gandhiji’s message of condolence, vide “Message on Hanumantharao Kaujalgi’s death”, 12-6-1945.
176. TWO POSERS

[On or before June 12, 1945]¹

Shri Sailendra Nath Chattopadhyaya of the United Press puts the following posers before me: “Why do you wish to live for 125 years, and what is Ram Rajya?”

The questions are so apt and reasonable that, contrary to my wont these days, I want to answer them. Many visitors and correspondents put the same questions. I take this opportunity therefore and once for all, I hope, of answering them to the best of my ability.

The idea of 125 years’ life flashed across my mind, while I was speaking on the 8th August, 1942, to the meeting of the A.I.C.C. in Bombay. I might have mentioned the same thing before in private conversation. If I did, I have no recollection. I am a constant student of the Ishopanishad which contains only eighteen mantras. The first half of the second mantra means: “Only doing works of service on this earth, you should wish to live 120 or 125 years.” The word in the original denoting the number is translated by the word ‘hundred’, but I had seen just then a commentary which took the number to mean 120 or 125. I purposely used the highest figure at the meeting, as signifying the intense wish to live the longest in order to fulfil my allotted work. In expressing the wish I only followed my old habit of wishing to act according to the best of my belief.

Moreover, as a naturopath, I believe in the feasibility of living the full span of life. I know that, medically speaking, the chances are against me for I have not always followed nature’s way. I began to adopt it fairly strictly in South Africa in 1903 or there about. Want of brahmacharya in early married life must also weigh against the full span.

My conception of nature cure, like everything else, has undergone progressive evolution. And for years I have believed that, if a person is filled with the presence of God and has thus attained the state of dispassion, he can surmount handicaps against long life. I have come to the conclusion, based on observation and scriptural reading, that when a man comes to that complete living faith in the Unseen Power and has become free from passion, the body undergoes internal transformation. This does not come about by mere wish. It needs constant vigilance and practice. In spite of both, unless God’s grace descends upon one, human effort comes to naught.

¹The article appeared under the date-line “Panchgani, June 12”.

VOL. 87 : 29 MAY, 1945 - 29 AUGUST, 1945
Conquest of passion—passion here does not signify animal appetite; of course, it presupposes full control over such appetite—is more difficult to attain. If it were otherwise, complete non-violence would be easy of achievement. With all my knowledge of, and effort at, non-violence, I have conquered my passion only to the stage of suppression. This involves great strain on both body and mind. Subjugation is the real need. It does not involve absence of feeling. He who identifies himself with every living creature must feel for every kind of woe and yet remain unaffected by it. Action proceeding from such equableness is far-reaching, pervasive and quickest in its effect. Naturally, it is wholly non-violent.

Difficulty of attainment need cause no worry. For, being on the right track leads one nearer to the goal.

Thus, though I wish and even hope to live up to 125 years, what does it matter, if I die tomorrow? There is no sense of regret or frustration in me. And there will be no anguish in me over an early death.

Nor does the wish imply slackness of effort, in view of the prospect of a longer life. The wish, to be capable of being fulfilled, implies readiness to leave this body without a moment’s notice. It connotes an easy fulfilment, from day to day, of the daily duty. All strain is an anticipation of death.

Death does not mean an end of all effort. The Eternal Law which we term God will be a mockery, if death were the end of such an effort. ‘Hereafter’ is a mystery into which we may not peep. We should have enough faith to know that death, after life truly lived, is but a prelude to a better and richer life.

Now for Ram Rajya. It can be religiously translated as Kingdom of God on Earth; politically translated, it is perfect democracy in which, inequalities based on possession and non-possession, colour, race or creed or sex vanish; in it, land and State belong to the people, justice is prompt, perfect and cheap and, therefore, there is freedom of worship, speech and the Press—all this because of the reign of the self-imposed law of moral restraint.

Such a State must be based on truth and non-violence and must consist of prosperous, happy and self-contained villages and village communities. It is a dream that may never be realized. I find happiness in living in that dreamland, ever trying to realize it in the quickest way.

_The Hindu, 12-6-1945_
177. MESSAGE ON HANUMANTHARAO KAUJALGI’S DEATH

PANCHGANI,
June 12, 1945

Hanumantharao Kaujalgi has gone. His debt is discharged. My condolences to the bereaved family. I hope his place will be worthily filled.

The Hindu, 15-6-1945

178. LETTER TO M. VISVESVARAYA

‘DILKHUSA’, PANCHGANI,
June 12, 1945

DEAR SIR VISVESVARAYA²,

I got your kind letter of 6th instant with enclosures yesterday. I read the summary at once. The following questions occur to me:

1. Have you or your collaborators enforced the ideas given in your brochure in a village or a group of villages? If you have, I would like full details with names, status and emoluments of workers, etc.

2. I seem to read a conflict in some clauses of the summary. Has not the present war shaken one’s confidence in the stability of the economic prosperity of the leading nations, and is not that prosperity co-existent with the deep and distressing poverty of large units of the same nations?

3. The tendency, according to the summary, should be to wean the villagers from their present practice and to teach them to displace their tools with “machine tools”, and handicrafts production with “mass production by the use of modern machinery”.

4. If I have read the summary aright and if it reflects the nature of the brochure, is it not an invitation to me to stop my “numerous activities” whose one object is to secure the maximum benefit of the villages in the minimum of time with the minimum of expense?

I have always marvelled at your zeal for and devotion to the cause you have made your own. But unfortunately our ways seem to ¹Gandhiji gave the message to R. K. Joshi of Samyukta Karnataka, a Kannada daily published from Hubli.

² Mokshagundam Visvesvaraya (1861-1962), Engineer and Statesman, ex-Dewan of Mysore be so different.

As I am dictating this letter I am glancing at the brochure itself and I see that you mention in Appendix I, “hand-made sugar”, “hand-made paper”, “hand-spinning”, etc. There is some confusion somewhere surely or am I thoughtlessly and superficially generalizing?

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

SIR M. VISVESVARAYA, K. C. I. E.
UPLANDS HIGH GROUND
BANGALORE

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

179. LETTER TO MIRABEHN

June 12, 1945

CHI. MIRA,

Your welcome letter. Tell me if it is the same thing whether I put the address in English or Hindustani, that is, for receiving the post.

I note that Ramprasad was to leave you on 11th. He must have gone.

The papers are making a lot of fuss over nothing. Let us see. You seem to have done well in Delhi. It is a hard and even bad thing that a cow should have such preferences as you describe. Is that a general rule?

Love.

BAPU

SHRI MIRABEHN
KISAN ASHRAM
MULDASPUR
BAHADARABAD P. O., via JWALAPUR
NEAR HARDWAR (U. P.)

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

106 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
180. LETTER TO J. H. COUSINS

PANCHGANI,
June 12, 1945

DEAR DR. COUSINS,

I have your letter. Though we differed so, there was not an occasion which I missed of seeing Dr. Annie Besant whenever I was nearby. But to send you something is a different matter. What is your time-limit? I am so glad Mrs. Cousins is so well.

Love to you both.

BAPU

DR. J. H. COUSINS
SEVASHRAMA
ADYAR, MADRAS

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

181. LETTER TO SAVITA

June 12, 1945

CHI. SAVITA,

I received your letter yesterday. The invitation still stands. I intend to reach Sevagram in July. Write to me then and come when you have my reply. There are some changes in the Ashram. If I did not tell you about them when we last met, I am telling you now, that at the Ashram the work is principally physical labour of every kind including the cleaning of lavatories. If you do not like such work, Sevagram will not suit you.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
182. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

June 12, 1945

CHI. NARANDAS,

I had your letter of the 6th. Since I had acted upon it, I did not reply to it assuming that Kanaiyo' would certainly write. I am also constantly thinking about him. As long as necessary, he will go on doing that work. Isn’t that my work as well?

I liked your becoming President of the Khadi Board. I am sure you will bring credit to that office. I am enclosing a letter² for Savita. Give it to her.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./II. Also C.W. 8625. Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi

183. LETTER TO PREMA KANTAK

PANCHGANI,

June 12, 1945

CHI. PREMA,

I have your long letter. I have explained the ideal to you. You yourself can, by keeping it before you, answer all the questions in the same way as every student of geometry can draw a line by keeping Euclid’s ideal line in his mind. Now try to understand.

I know the ideal, and I will, therefore, utilize the services of educated women only for the realization of the ideal. If necessary, I will pay them enough for their livelihood. But they will give more than what they take. If they do not, they will be of no use. If it becomes necessary to run a camp to train them as teachers, I will do so. Whether I give six months or twelve months or even more to the backward class women will depend on experience. Won’t it? I shall not bother about that, for, since they will be learning through the crafts, they will be paying their expenses, or will be fit to do so in the shortest possible period.

What if people believe that I have failed? My failure is not the ideal. And how can a man who is progressing towards the ideal be regarded to have failed? Does the fact that you yourself, though you have lived in the Ashram, are not able to live up to the ideal prove that the ideal is impossible to attain or that you are unworthy?

¹ Addressee’s son, Kanu Gandhi
² Vide the preceding item.

If the admission of uneducated women to the camp makes it impossible to run it, then it will be impossible to effect progress in villages. Even if it is proved that Acharya Bhagwat has failed or even if he shares your view, I will not be deterred. Our mettle will be proved by our making possible what seems impossible today.

Sushila Pai is here. I will give her this letter. She will write further.

And now the next point. I stick to what I told you concerning Bhulabhai. He is here just now. It is 6.40 in the morning. He will leave at 10. I don’t know that those who are in prison will be released. It will of course be good if they are. If people are angry with Bhulabhai, they should be angry with me, too. For he will not pursue his plan, which I know, if I disapprove of it. I do not believe what the members of the Working Committee are supposed to have said. And if they have in fact said that, they have done so without authority. What do prisoners know about conditions outside? According to my principle, they have no right even to try and know. And even if they differ from me, what does it matter? They will be free to do what they like after they are released. I have no right at all to vote. Am I not only an adviser? Don’t ever believe what the newspapers say. Of what good is it anyway? If I knew that I should die tomorrow, such knowledge of the future could only do harm. The same is true in this case. Yes, I will say this much: Bhulabhai does not know what the newspapers know. If so, how am I likely to know?

How can I or anyone else say what I would do in certain circumstances? If you can guess about the future from what I am doing today, you may do so. I cannot do even that, for I am daily coming to realize more clearly that we ruin our lives by forming views about hypothetical matters. There is meaning only in what we do concerning what is actual. All else is meaningless.¹

Don’t you still know my limitations and my approach? Didn’t Kumarappa resign only after consulting me? Wasn’t I a party to the offer of military help in the resolution of August 1942? What does it matter if, while I do one thing, the others do the opposite and I let them? And what else could I do? I would tell you only this: that after having been with me for so long, and later staying away from me, you now behave as if you were still with me. Even then I would advise you to observe my actions and the views I express, think over them and then do what seems to you best, feeling certain that you will have my support in what you do. For I do not wish to make everybody like me. My teaching is that everybody should be true to himself. Anybody who has digested my teaching will never fall into doubt but will ever go forward.

¹What follows is in Gujarati.

Manibehn also is here. I have left the rest to Sushila Pai.

Blessings from

BAPU

[PS.]

Read the letter carefully. Ask me again if you do not understand any point.

From a photostat of the Hindi and Gujarati: G.N. 10435. Also C.W. 6874. Courtesy: Premabehn Kantak

184. LETTER TO MANILAL GANDHI

June 12, 1945

CHI. MANILAL,

I have your letter. You have given fairly detailed news. I am all right. I have here Jairamdas and his family, Dr. Mahmud and his son. About the others you know. If you people come, I shall manage to accommodate you. If, however, the children are happy there and making good progress, I will not press you. A good many days have already passed. Bhulabhai left today.

Blessings to you all from

BAPU

CHI. MANILAL MOHANDAS GANDHI
C/O NATWARLAL BHUKHANDAS GANDHI
P. O. KADOD (BARDOLI TALUKA)

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 4953
185. LETTER TO DR. DINSHAW K. MEHTA

PANCHGANI,
June 12, 1945

CHI. DINSHAW,

Strictly speaking it should not be necessary to send you the enclosed. But since there is time I am sending it so that later on you or I do not have to think about it.

I have written that the third clause, which I have marked with a cross may be retained as it is because the clause about the Managing Trustee is not to be left vague.

The rest is according to the instructions. Return Pakvasa’s letter and the Trust-deed along with your letter. I have also written that Hindustani may be ignored as far as the Trust-deed is concerned if the Hindustani translation takes time.

Ardeshir\textsuperscript{2} accompanies me on my walk every evening. Gulbehn has stopped holding him in her arms while going for a walk. This is as it should be.

Blessings from

BAPU

DR. DINSHAW MEHTA
AROGYA BHAVAN
NEAR THE STATION
POONA CITY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

186. LETTER TO MANGALDAS PAKVASA

June 12, 1945

BHAI MANGALDAS PAKVASA,

You have sent the draft quite promptly and I have sent it to Dr. Dinshaw Mehta for his perusal. As regards the Managing Trustee, I think it would be better to adhere to the original draft which I have already sent. For the intention in that regard is that as long as he is alive and in a fit condition, he himself should remain the Managing Trustee. It is for this purpose that we are taking all this trouble.

\textsuperscript{1} The reference is to the Trust-deed of Nature Cure Clinic, \textit{vide} also the following item.

\textsuperscript{2} Addressee’s son
The third clause should remain as revised by you.

It would be bothersome to send it to Allahabad for having it translated into Hindustani. Supposing we had it translated into Gujarati?¹

For the present I will not put you to the trouble of coming here.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat Or the Gujarati: C.W. 4691. Courtesy: Mangaldas Pakvasa

187. LETTER TO KISHORELAL G. MASHRUWALA

PANCHGANI,
June 12, 1945

CHI. KISHORELAL,

It is good you gave all the details about Kamle. Bapa is not deceived but it seems to me that Kamle is deceived. He will be. In his condition we too would be deceived. We have arrived at only one conclusion. I believe that as long as he keeps indifferent health he can only be accommodated in the Ashram. He will be a burden if he keeps on falling ill. You were right in advising him to take meat. He can’t give up meat under compulsion. I will write to him in a day or two even if I do not hear from him.

It is good that both of you have returned to Sevagram. I shall be very happy if both of you can keep well. I was about to write “then we have overcome the world”, but it would not be fitting. Why should we put so much value on the physical body?

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI KISHORELAL MASHRUWALA
SEVAGRAM, WARDHA

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Vide also the preceding item.
188. LETTER TO PREMLATA SANGER

PANCHGANI,
June 12, 1945

CHI. PREMLATA,

I have your letter. Your path is straight. Why worry about what Father writes? Whatever happens you must patiently tell Father not to compel you to marry anyone else. And how can he compel you to do so? For the rest you have to wait.

I have not received Father’s letters.

Blessings from

BAPU

KUMARI PREMLATA SANGER
C/O SHRI OMKARSINGHJI SANGER
KAROLI, KAROLI STATE (RAJASTHAN)

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

189. LETTER TO SHYAMLAL

PANCHGANI,
June 12, 1945

BHAI SHYAMLAL,

I received your letter about Sailen. It is all right about the monthly payment. But Sailen remains ill and therefore the expenditure incurred is more; he sends money to his father also. So it will be better to give him Rs. 200. At present he does not get that much. He will have to be sent for treatment to Malad for a short time. That will not be our responsibility. He can take leave for a year and go. If this does not seem right we can relieve him also. On these terms I have no objection to taking him for the book-keeping work.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI SHYAMLALJI
KASTURBA SMARAK NIDHI
SCINDIA HOUSE, BALLARD ESTATE
BOMBAY

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
190. LETTER TO GHANSHYAM SINGH GUPTA

PANCHGANI,
June 12, 1945

BHAIGHANSHYAMSINGH,

I have your letter. I am of the opinion that now is the time to resort to pure satyagraha. You have to make a public announcement of it. But if your enthusiasm is not true and you lack the strength to sacrifice your life non-violently, you may forget it. If you want to resort to satyagraha you have to consider all this beforehand.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI GHANSHYAM SINGH GUPTA

SPEAKER

DRUG

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

191. A MESSAGE

PANCHGANI,
June 12, 1945

The students from Sind who seek my blessings should become Atishudras. Will they marry among them? Do they spin? Do they wear khadi? Do they speak the truth and practise ahimsa? If they answer ‘Yes’, my blessings are with them.

BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
192. CABLE TO FENNER BROCKWAY

PANCHGANI,
[On or before June 13, 1945]¹

INDIAN FREEDOM CAMPAIGN IS FOR THE WORLD’S ASIATIC, NEGRO AND OTHER EXPLOITED RACES’ FREEDOM.
VICTORY ON THE WEST FRONT AND IMPENDING VICTORY IN THE EAST WILL BE EMPTY WITHOUT
THE CENTRAL FACT OF INDIA’S FREEDOM.
I CAN HOPE ONLY FOR THE VICTORY OF THAT PARTY WHICH WORKS SINCERELY AND WHOLLY FOR THAT END.

M. K. GANDHI

The Hindu, 15-6-1945

193. TELEGRAM TO UMASHANKAR DIKSHIT

PANCHGANI,
June 13, 1945

UMASHANKAR DIKSHIT
232 KALBADEVI ROAD
BOMBAY

INDIAN FREEDOM CAMPAIGN ONE FOR WORLDS ASIATIC NEGRO AND OTHER
EXPLOITED RACES FREEDOM, VICTORY WEST FRONT AND IMPENDING VICTORY
EAST EMPTY WITHOUT CENTRAL FACT INDIA’S FREEDOM. I CAN HOPE ONLY FOR VICTORY FOR THAT PARTY WHICH WORKS SINCERELY AND WHOLLY FOR THAT END.

GANDHI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library.
Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

¹ The cable appeared under the date-line “Panchgani, June 13”, as from Pyarelal who reported that it was sent in response to a cabled request from the addressee, on behalf of the Indian Freedom Campaign, for a message “for a pre-election meeting in Churchill’s constituency”. Fenner Brockway was Political Secretary, Independent Labour Party, and Chairman, India Freedom Campaign Committee.

¹ ibid
194. TELEGRAM TO DEVDAS GANDHI

Express

PANCHGANI,

June 13, 1945

DEVDAS GANDHI
CARE “THE HINDUSTAN TIMES”
NEW DELHI

CONSULTATION BHULABHAI FINISHED. NONE ELSE IN VIEW. NEVERTHELESS COME FOR EVENTUALITIES IF FREE.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

195. LETTER TO AMRITLAL V. THAKKAR

PANCHGANI,

June 13 1945

BAPA,

I have received a pile of papers from Mridulabehn. One of those is of course about her office. I am writing in that connection just now in the morning. I had forwarded your remarks about the office to her. She has raised an objection. It is justified. She says that if the minutes cannot be amended, then her office should really be shifted to Wardha for the time being. I have already expressed the opinion that it is not necessary to do so. She can keep her office wherever she wants. If this attitude is correct, and according to me it is, then it should be included in the minutes. If it is not included, then her office should be shifted to Wardha till the next meeting of the Executive Committee. It is clear to me that that can’t be done. And it should also be clear to you, because I have said that Mridulabehn can keep her office wherever she likes. We must accept that her demand to get that change or addition incorporated in the minutes is justified. If she raises her objection constitutionally, I as President cannot deny what I said in the Executive Committee meeting. I want to get the work done somehow1 because the main thing is that the work should be done. For the sake of truth it is better to incorporate the change, if Shyamlal has not already done so, and amend the minutes. Otherwise we should incorporate it at my instance when the minutes come up for signing. By doing so we can wriggle out of the constitutional requirement.

1Literally, “I would have the rice boiled in any water that is available.”
Otherwise I, as President, must say that it is not obligatory on the part of Mridulabehn to take her office to Wardha along with Bapa’s. If we do so, we shall not then need any more money for the time being because as long as another resolution is not passed, the office can be retained in the Scindia House without making any payment and she should manage with as many paid workers as there are today. We shall do as you want. The first proposal accords more with truth, while the second is more in conformity with the requirements of the situation.

In order to enable you to understand the whole thing better I am sending you Mridulabehn’s letter even though it is marked personal. In this connection I have to raise yet another question. Do you in your inmost heart feel that it would be better if Mridulabehn gave up the office? If you say that she should not leave, then we should have some clear-cut decision in writing so that this confusion is cleared once and for all. Draw up a draft in accordance with what you have in mind or leave it to me and I shall make it and send it to you for modification.¹

BAPU

SHRI THAKKAR BAPA
SERVANTS OF INDIA SOCIETY
POONA

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

196. LETTER TO C. RAJAGOPALACHARI

PANCHGANI,
June 13, 1945

MY DEAR C. R.,

Your reaction to D’s wire is right. Prayer is the only and sovereign remedy. I had a very full chat with Bhulabhai and I feel I gave him satisfaction. I do not worry. I literally follow the injunction “Be careful for nothing.”² Everything will be right, if we are right. Are you still alone?

I did not like Mahtab’s indirect hit. I have written³ to him as much. Thank God, you possess the hide of a rhinoceros.

Love.

BAPU

From a photostat: G.N. 2107

¹ Vide also “Letter to Mridula Sarabhai”, 13-6-1945.
² Phillippians, iv. 6
³ Vide “Letter to Harekrushna Mahtab”, 7-6-1945.
197. LETTER TO CHIMANLAL N. SHAH

June 13, 1945

CHI. CHIMANLAL,

I got your letter. You did well in giving the land to the Sangh. In my view it is their duty to pay the Ashram for it. How much, the Sangh itself should determine. Or it should pay a nominal rent. That should be left to its own discretion. The land should be carefully measured.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10637

198. LETTER TO MRIDULA SARABHAI

PANCHGANI,

June 13, 1945

CHI. MRIDU,

I have your two letters. Give notice as you have suggested about your office. I do not see anything wrong in it. I have written clearly to Bapa. I won’t stop his office being shifted to Wardha, but there is no need to take yours there. The women you have employed or had employed when I came there will certainly remain. The office is also there. Let it be there for the present.

Remember your resolve that you would work with men as a woman and bring credit to the work. Have patience, do work with men and bring credit to yourself and to your work.

You certainly did well in going to Mahabaleshwar. One should look after one’s health. It is surprising you do not know this simple thing. There is hidden pride in such an attitude. These are the immortal words of Narasinha Mehta: “I have done this just as a dog under a cart fancies himself shouldering the weight of the cart.”

My head spins going through your programme.

You should not feel bad that you have to write to me. You have no choice since I have become the president. The source of unhappiness is in the situation in which such differences of opinion arise. I hope that too will disappear.

Advertising provision of non-vegetarian food means inviting indulgence in such food and getting involved in the controversy. It is our duty to make such provision but it is not our duty to advertise it. Even if you cannot understand this, implement it as an order. Perhaps I shall be able to explain it to you when the occasion arises. Or you will explain to me your view.

2 Vide “Ashram Bhajanavali” sub-title:213, 20-12-1930.

I fear I may miss the post if I write to you about the other things on which you want my guidance.

It will be good if you can go to Kashmir.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

199. LETTER TO KANCHAN M. SHAH

June 13, 1945

KANCHAN,

It is good that you have come. Now get well completely.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

200. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

PANCHGANI,
June 13, 1945

CHI. MUNNALAL,

I have your letter. It is good that Kanchan has arrived. Let us hope that she will soon be well.

It is a pity the trees dried up. I shall not go into that story here. We shall see when I come. I keep on writing to you regularly. I shall give you what peace of mind I can, but real peace comes from within.

So there has been an influx again. What will happen when I come? There would be no room at all!

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
201. LETTER TO BALVANTSINHA

June 13, 1945

CHI. BALVANTSINHA,

Your express telegram was unnecessary. I was not late in replying. Anyway, what has happened has happened.

I am sorry that the trees are dead.

Serve Kishorelalbhai and Gomatibehn. They must recover.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 1963

202. LETTER TO PRABHAKAR

June 13, 1945

CHI. PRABHAKAR,

Ten or twelve persons sleeping in a small room can be wrong from the point of view of brahmacharya, it can also be proper. But it is bad from the point of view of health and other things and it would be desirable to find a way out. Vina must recover.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 9031. Also C.W. 9155. Courtesy: Prabhakar

203. LETTER TO PURNUSOTTAMDAS TANDON

PANCHGANI,

June 13, 1945

BHAIPURNUSOTTAMDAS TANDONJI,

I received your letter¹ yesterday. If I understand correctly what you write, you and other lovers of Hindi should welcome my new viewpoint and help me. But this is not happening. People in Gujarat are in a dilemma and are asking me what they should do. A son of my own nephew and many others like him are doing both Hindi Prachar work and Hindustani Prachar work. This creates difficulties. You know Perinbehn. She wants to work for both. But the time has now come for one of the two to be given up. If what you say is right, then the need for this should never arise. In my view, it should be possible for a person to be the President or Secretary of both the Hindustani Prachar Sabha and the Hindi Sahitya Sammelan. That he may not be able to do so because the work would be too heavy is a different matter. And if your letter means, as it should mean what I also say, then there can be no reason for any difference of opinion and I shall be greatly delighted. I have gone through your statement that you sent me. In my view the Hindustani Prachar Sabha is doing only your work and therefore deserves your thanks. And you at least should become a member of it. I had requested you to be its member but you refused saying that you would keep out so long as Dr. Abdul Haq did not come in. Now my request is that if what I write is correct and if we both are of the same view, then this should be clarified by the Hindi Sahitya Sammelan. If this is not necessary I shall not insist on it. But at least it should be made clear that there is no difference of opinion about it between you and me. It is no light matter for me to get out of the Hindi Sahitya Sammelan. But just as I withdrew from the Congress in order to serve it the better, in the same way if I leave the Sammelan it will be to serve the Sammelan, that is, Hindi, the better.

¹ In his letter of June 8, the addressee had said that he saw no contradiction between the work of the Hindi Sahitya Sammelan and Hindustani Prachar Sabha and requested Gandhiji to reconsider his decision to withdraw from the Hindi Sahitya Sammelan. Vide also “Letter to Purushottam Das Tandon”, 25-7-1945.

What you call my new ideas are not really new. It would be more correct to say that I am now only putting into practice what I had said when I first became the President of the Sammelan and what I clarified further when I became its President for the second time. I shall decide finally after receiving your reply.

Yours,
M. K. GANDHI

[From Hindi]

Rashtraabhakshake Prashnapar Gandhiji aur Tandonjika Mahavapurna Patra Vyavahar, pp. 4-5; also Rajarshi Abhinandan Granth, p. 91
204. LETTER TO CHANDRANI

June 13, 1945

CHI. CHAND.

It is good you have come. I postpone answering your question till I arrive there. Immerse yourself in your work. Look after your health. Keep writing to me.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

205. LETTER TO LALMANSINGH

PANCHGANI,
June 13, 1945

BHAI LALMANSINGH,

Immediately on receiving Balvantsinha’s letter, I sent you a telegram¹. Hoshiari had said in her telegram that I should reply to you after going through Balvantsinha’s letter. I could not have received that letter along with the wire. Therefore I replied² to Hoshiari immediately on receiving the letter and wrote³ to Balvantsinha meaning it for you. Now I learn from your letter that you have gone home disappointed. My advice was different. It is the same today, namely, that you should stay on till I arrive there and then decide about Hoshiari. She is not a little girl; she can realize her responsibility. She is also a mother. Whatever you want to do you can do only after persuading her. She is as dear to me as a daughter. She loves the Ashram. But I do not want to make you unhappy. I want to understand your view and then tell Hoshiari what her duty is. I hope that you received my telegram and my letter while you were still at Sevagram and that you have stayed on. If that is not so this letter will be sent to you at Khurja.

¹ Presumably, the reference is to “Telegram to Manager, Sevagram Ashram”, p. 260.
² Vide “Letter to Hoshiari”, 7-6-1945.
³ Vide “Letter to Balvantsinha”, 7-6-1945.
I would advise you to remain patient and not to try to command the girls and boys when they have grown up. Our duty loudly proclaims this.

Blessings from

BAPU

[PS.]

I have your postcard.

SHRI LALMANSINGHJI
VILLAGE SAMARPUR
P. O. KHURJA, BULANDSHAHAR DISTRICT

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

206. LETTER TO HOSHIARI

June 13, 1945

CHI. HOSHIARI,

I did not at all delay replying to you. It is good that you have been firm and have stayed on. I have written to Father at the Khurja address. More you will tell me when I come.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

207. LETTER TO M. S. KELKAR

June 13, 1945

BHAI ICE,

Chi. Hari-ichchha has taken malati. Where do you get it from? I will pay the expenses if her father does not pay. Life and death are not in anyone’s hands. How can I therefore complain against you? I do realize the value of your services. I want to be sure of your knowledge. Do what you can.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Vide the preceding item.
208. TELEGRAM TO CHOUNDE MAHARAJ

Express

PANCHGANI,

June 14, 1945

CHOUNDE MAHARAJ
POONA CITY

SATURDAY FOURO’ CLOCK.

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

GANDHI

209. LETTER TO AMRIT KAUR

June 14, 1945

CHI. AMRIT.

Your letter. You must not write when you have run down to the extent you have. I can never misunderstand absence of letters from you.

The restrictions are bad. But nothing to be done till you are with me.

Hope all things will go well regarding family affairs.
I hope to go to Sevagram in the beginning of July. The weather there may be too trying for you then.
I am well.
Love.

BAPU

[PS.]
You must not allow Gope' or his wife to be a load on you.

From the original: C.W. 4159 Courtesy: Amrit Kaur. Also G.N. 7794

1 Gope Gurbuxani
210. LETTER TO AMTUSSALAAM

June 14, 1945

CHI. A. SALAAM,

I got your letter. There was a letter from Kanchan from Sevagram. You may come only when you can do so in a relaxed frame of mind. Why should you ask for a message¹ from me? You yourself are there. What more do you need? You should, on the contrary, teach others not to ask for messages from me. I am writing this reply at once. Hamid² (Amina’s) has come here.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 498

211. LETTER TO HARILAL GANDHI

June 14, 1945

CHI. HARILAL,

I got your letter. I do get news of you from time to time. I would not at all like your going away from there. Kanti and Saraswati serve you so well, keep you with them so lovingly. It is, therefore, your duty to stay with them. How can you be a burden on them? Moreover, you are able to keep yourself in control there. You should not, therefore, think just now of going away anywhere else. The climate of the place also is good. And certainly there are facilities. You may even help them while you are lounging about. Your health is not good enough to permit you to run about. The rains have started here. Do not trust any rumours that may appear in the newspapers.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 7372. Courtesy: Kantilal Gandhi

¹ For Kasturba Seva Mandir
² Hamid Qureshi
212. LETTER TO KANTILAL GANDHI

June 14, 1945

CHI. KANTI,

I got your letter. I am glad that you have settled down as a family man and while performing your family duties are also studying. Not many people can do that.

What is surprising is that Harilal has not contracted tuberculosis so far. He had an excellent constitution and so he did not break down completely. That you two could persuade him to stay on for such a long time is a wonder. If he leaves you, he will go back to his old habits, and be ruined. I kept back this reply for two days, but on second thoughts felt that I should not delay any more. Pass on to Harilal the letter1 addressed to him.

Blessings to all of you from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 7373. Courtesy: Kantilal Gandhi

213. LETTER TO AMRITLAL V. THAKKAR

PANCHGANI, June 14, 1945

BAPA,

I write this while reading other papers from Mridulabehn. I consider the question she has raised in her letter of the 9th justified. She is the organizing secretary, so she must see the letters which concern her work. If she sees them she can hold them back to discuss them with you. Because, after all, she has to implement the policies. Isn’t that so? Her argument that it will be difficult for her to function as long as there is no clarification [about the division of work] and that, if the provincial workers receive two directives, they won’t know what to do and will get nervous, also seems correct to me. We must decide after taking into consideration all these things.

BAPU

SHRI THAKKAR BAPA
SERVANTS OF INDIA SOCIETY
POONA-4

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Vide the preceding item.
214. LETTER TO DEVDAS GANDHI

PANCHGANI,
June 14, 1945

CHI. DEVDAS,

I have your telegram. You must have got my reply¹. Come whenever you can. I wish you would do some exercise.

Blessings from
BAPU

DEVDAS GANDHI
“THE HINDUSTAN TIMES”
DELHI

¹ Vide “Telegram to Devdas Gandhi”, 13-6-1945.

215. LETTER TO J. M. JUSSAWALA

PANCHGANI,
June 14, 1945

BHAI JUSSAWALA,

It is good you wrote to me about Frydman. I shall see about it. He is no doubt obstinate. So far he has sent no word about his coming here.

Now CHI. Jamnadas Gandhi has also gone there to take your treatment.

Blessings from
BAPU

DR. J. M. JUSSAWALA
NATURE THERAPY CLINIC
SUNAMA HOUSE, THIRD FLOOR
140 CUMBALA HILL, BOMBAY 26
216. LETTER TO JORAWAR SINGH

PANCHGANI,
June 14, 1945

Bhai Jorawar Singh,

I was very happy to see your handwriting after so many years. Where is the question of bargain before anything has materialized? If something does, I will have nothing to say. However, I will tell you one thing: whether you are in the assembly or outside you will be able freely to place your knowledge before the people or the ministry. I am telling you this from my personal experience. The field of service is so vast that it can never be overcrowded.

Blessings from

Bapu

Col. Shri Jorawar Singh
19 New Cantonment Road
Dehra Dun

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

217. LETTER TO RAMPRASAD B. VYAS

PANCHGANI,
June 14, 1945

Chi. Ramprasad,

The meaning of “It would be a different thing if you wished to do no more than what I had asked”¹ is this: I had asked you to go there for two months. That was what I wanted. If you stick to that I cannot very well ask you to prolong the period, can I? Who will trust me if I go on increasing my demands in this manner? I, therefore, wrote to you that you must leave after the expiry of two months if you stick to my demand. Mirabehn on her own will not detain you, so the question won’t arise. Did I suggest to you that you yourself should draw her attention about the expenses there? If you want I will do that.Your decision about the child’s tumour is correct. Show him to a doctor in Bombay. Send me the report. Ultimately an operation is the only remedy. According to Kuhne it can be cured by water treatment. In the case of a child, maybe, he will get well without any treatment.

Blessings to all of you from
BAPU

SHRI RAMPRASAD
C/O SHRI SHANTILAL PANDYA RAILWAY FARM
DAHOD

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

218. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA

PAUCHGANI,
June 14, 1945

CHI. KRISHNACHANDRA,

I have your long letter from Nagpur. As for Balkoba, all that can be said is that there has been no steady gain from parpati. Now we have to see how he can regain his strength. It will be good if he does not find it too hot to be taken back into the room.

I still abide by whatever I wrote about railways, etc., in Hind Swaraj. But that applies to an ideal state. It is possible that we may never reach that state. Let us not worry about it. It is for this reason that I have said that if we do not have railways and other such facilities, we should not feel unhappy. We should never make it our duty to multiply such facilities. At the same time we should also not make a duty of giving up these things. We should have a free and easy attitude in such matters. We must use these facilities as little as possible. There will be all types of people in our society. There certainly are today. We have to live with them. Non-attachment is the only proper dharma under these circumstances. The only thing we must be careful about is that we do not deceive ourselves. Your statement that trains, etc., should be shunned even as theft, adultery and falsehood is not correct. The important reason for this is that even society considers theft, etc., to be immoral. Trains, etc., have not been, nor need they be so considered. All that we may say is that we shouldn’t consider trains, etc., as means of enjoyment. I have repeatedly pointed out in my articles where to draw the line. Read them and if you give a little thought you will easily be able to draw the line.
Some small books have been written as an aid to the study of Das Kapital. Reading them would help.

Do not worry about the discharge. You can stop worrying by intelligently observing the rules [of brahmacharya].

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4515

219. LETTER TO RAMESHWARI NEHRU

PANCAGANI,
June 14, 1945

CHI. RAMESHWARIBEHN,

I received your letter of the 6th yesterday. Whatever you have done is right. There was no need for you to go to Delhi.

I completely agree with you that even in case of a family there have to be certain rules to be followed. I had written¹ to Bapa when I received your suggestion earlier.

Bapa has been in correspondence with Prabjudas and Amba. It would be very good if both of them could come. It would mean so much burden off your shoulders. I am very happy that your sister is out of the wood.

I am sending your letter to Bapa. He will like it.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI RAMESHWARI NEHRU
SRINAGAR, KASHMIR

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Vide “Letter to Amritlal V. Thakkar”, 2-6-1945.
220. LETTER TO PURNIMA BANERJEE

PANCHGANI,
June 14, 1945

CHI. PURNIMA,

What you say is entirely correct. But in the present circumstances, how can Aruna stay back to nurse Asaf Ali? It is very difficult to reconcile service to the country and service to an individual. Very often the two are contradictory. They have both dedicated their lives to the country. I therefore hope that they will be able to bear the present separation cheerfully. I am keeping in touch with Asaf Ali. I hope that he will get well.

Hope your work is getting on well.

Blessings from

BAPU

SMT. PURNIMA BANERJEE
41 GEORGE TOWN
ALLAHABAD

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

221. LETTER TO LAKSHMI GANDHI

June 14, 1945

CHI. LAKSHMI,

You have been to Simla. I hope both of you have benefited by the visit. It would have been better if you could have stayed there longer. This much only because I must write.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
222. LETTER TO RAMCHANDRA AND RAJMOHAN GANDHI

June 14, 1945

CHI. RAMU¹ and MOHAN²,

I shall say I have letters from you both. In fact a letter written in pencil should be considered as not having been written at all.

You have now looked at the Himalayas and seen the golden snow on the mountains. Did you get any gold out of that? Tara³ is quite grown up now. Does she not get time to write?

Have all of you become very strong?

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

223. TELEGRAM TO PRIVATE SECRETARY TO VICEROY⁴

Express

PANCHGANI, June 14, 1945

PRIVATE SECRETARY⁵ TO THE VICEROY

NEW DELHI

I HAVE READ IN VICERAL BROADCAST⁶ MY NAME MENTIONED AS AN INVITEE. I HAVE REPEATEDLY MADE CLEAR THAT I REPRESENT NO INSTITUTION. THEREFORE I MUST NOT ATTEND AS REPRESENTING CONGRESS. THAT FUNCTION BELONGS TO THE CONGRESS PRESIDENT OR WHOMSOEVER HE NOMINATES.⁷ I SEND EARLIEST INTIMATION IN ORDER AVOID MISUNDERSTANDING OR MISCONCEPTION.⁸

Gandhi’s Correspondence with the Government, 1944-47, p. 17

¹ & ² Sons of Devdas Gandhi
³ Addressee’s sister
⁴ This was sent in the night; vide the following item.
⁵ Sir Edward Jenkins
⁶ Vide Appendix “Speech Broadcast by the Viceroy”, 14-6-1945.
⁷ Vide also the following item and “Statement to the Press”.
⁸ The Viceroy’s telegram dated June 15, in reply to this read: “Thank for your telegram of the 14th. Whatever the technical position may be, I shall value your help and hope you will accept invitation which was telegraphed to you last night. As regards representation of Congress, perhaps you will kindly let me have your final

THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
224. TELEGRAM TO LORD WAVELL

Express

PANCHGANI,

June 15, 1945

H. E. VICEROY

NEW DELHI

RECEIVED KIND WIRE\(^1\) OF INVITATION. FOR REASONS GIVEN IN MY WIRE\(^2\) SENT YOU LAST NIGHT I HAVE NO PLACE IN YOUR CONFERENCE. AS AN INDIVIDUAL I CAN ONLY TENDER ADVICE. MAY I THEN SAY THAT THERE ARE NO CASTE AND CASTELESS HINDUS WHO ARE AT ALL POLITICALLY MINDED. THEREFORE THE WORD RINGS UNTRUE AND OFFENSIVE. WHO WILL REPRESENT THEM AT YOUR TABLE? NOT CONGRESS WHICH SEEKS TO REPRESENT WITHOUT DISTINCTION ALL INDIANS WHO DESIRE AND WORK FOR INDEPENDENCE. HENCE THE EXISTENCE OF HINDU MAHASABHA CLAWING TO REPRESENT HINDUS AS SUCH. I APPREHEND THAT EVEN THAT BODY WILL DISCLAIM REPRESENTING CASTE HINDUS. MOREOVER BROADCAST\(^3\) SEEMS RIGOROUSLY TO EXCLUDE USE OF WORD INDEPENDENCE. ACCORDINGLY IT SEEMS TO ME TO DEMAND REVISION TO BRING IT IN LINE WITH MODERN INDIAN THOUGHT. I SUGGEST PUBLICATION OF OUR WIRES.\(^4\)

Gandhi

Gandhiji’s Correspondence with the Government, 1944-47, p. 18

views after further consideration and any consultation you think necessary. I know you will appreciate the importance and difficulty of the task I have undertaken and do all you can to help.”

\(^1\) After the broadcast speech, the Viceroy had, in a telegram dated June 14 to Gandhi, repeated the offer for discussion and also suggested a preliminary talk between them on June 24 at 3 p. m. at Viceregal Lodge. He concluded the telegram saying, he had “arranged to make a bungalow called ‘Amsbell’ available” to Gandhi, hoping that he would accept the invitation.

\(^2\) Vide the preceding item.

\(^3\) Vide Appendix “Speech broadcast by the Viceroy”, 14-6-1945.

\(^4\) For the addressee’s reply, vide Appendix “Telegram from Lord Wavell”, 16-6-1945.
225. LETTER TO JAGANNATHDAS

PANCHGANI,
June 15, 1945

All handicraft or arts which can be worked in village homes can be and should be taught even though the products of such crafts and arts may be and can only be profitably used for city people.

Thus carpentry, joinery, drawing, painting, sculpture, brick-laying, scientific washing etc., have their proper place in the institute. These should not be taught merely mechanically. But the why and the wherefore should be explained to the pupils, so that their intellect is fully drawn out and disciplined in the act of learning and working the respective crafts and arts. Thus they should be educated morally and intellectually through these.

Secondly, if the first is carried out to the letter and in the spirit, the whole institution must be self-supporting through the sales of work turned out. For, in it there would be little or no overhead charge, the idea being to man the institution from top to bottom through its erstwhile pupils, now turned experts in their respective departments.

M. K. GANDHI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

226. NOTE TO VALLABHBHAI PATEL

PANCHGANI,
June 15, 1945

I have thought about your diet. I am of the view that you should not eat anything fibrous. Hence, among vegetables you should eat gourd and similar other things in which there would be very little of indigestible matter. The main diet should consist of milk, glucose, honey and, if you can digest it, butter. I think even vegetables with seeds such as brinjals, tomatoes, should be avoided. They have sent me from Coimbatore yeast made from bajra, which may be good. The point is that you should eat only such food as will not impose a burden on your intestines, and only a small quantity at a

1 Of Harijan Industrial School
2 In the source, Manibehn Patel explains: “Vallabhbhai was released from Yeravda Jail on June 15, 1945, in the morning. He left by car and reached Panchgani to see Gandhiji at about 11.30 a.m. Gandhiji was observing silence. time. It does not matter if you eat four times a day. You should have hip-baths, both warm and cold. Stretching your whole body in the tub may also help. This does not of course mean that the doctors should not exa-mine you or make suggestions. They give no thought to the problem of diet.

[From Gujarati]
Bapuna Patro-2: Sardar Vallabhbhaine, pp. 279-80

227. STATEMENT TO THE PRESS

PANCHGANI,
June 15, 1945

On the purely political aspect of the Viceregal statement¹ I prefer to say nothing, now that the members of the Working Committee of the Congress are free. I can only give them my advice and it is they who have to shape the policy of the Congress and speak and act with authority.

As soon as I read the broadcast I sent a wire² to His Excellency the Viceroy drawing his attention to the fact that I have no locus standi as the “recognized representative of the Congress”. That function belongs to the President of the Congress or whoever may be appointed to represent the Congress on a particular occasion.

For several years I have acted unofficially as an adviser to the Congress whenever required. The public will remember that I went with the same unrepresentative character for my talks³ with Qaid-e-Azam Jinnah; and I can take up no other position with the British Government, in this instance represented by the Viceroy.

There is one expression in the Viceregal broadcast which certainly offends my ear and, I hope, will offend that of every politically minded Hindu. I refer to the expression “caste Hindus”. I claim that there is no such person, speaking politically, as a “caste Hindu”, let alone the Congress which seeks to represent the whole of India which is yearning after political independence.⁴

Does Veer Savarkar or Dr. Shyama Prasad or Dr. Moonje of the Hindu Mahasabha represent caste Hindus?

Do they not represent all Hindus without distinction of caste?

¹ Vide Appendix “Speech broadcast by the Viceroy”, 14-6-1945.
² This was sent to Private Secretary to the Viceroy, vide “Telegram to Private Secretary to the Viceroy”, 14-6-1945.
³ In September 1944.
⁴ Vide also “Telegram to Lord Wavell”, 15-6-1945.
Do they not include the so-called untouchables? Do they themselves claim to be caste Hindus? I hope not.

Of all politically minded Hindus, I know that even the revered Pandit Malaviyaji, though he observes caste distinctions, will refuse to be called a caste Hindu, as distinguished from the other Hindus.

The modern tendency in Hinduism is to abolish all caste distinctions and this I maintain in spite of my knowledge of reactionary elements in Hindu society.

I can only hope, therefore, that H. E. the Viceroy has allowed himself to make use of the expression in utter ignorance. I want to acquit him of knowingly wounding the susceptibilities of Hindu society or dividing it.

I would not have dwelt on this matter but for the fact that it touches the political mind of Hindus in its sensitive spot and carries with it political repercussions.

The proposed conference can do much useful work if it is put in its proper political setting and is at the very outset rendered immune from any fissiparous tendency.

Undoubtedly all invitees might appear as Indians conjointly bent on achieving India’s natural goal and not as persons representing several sections of Indian society.

That is how I have viewed Bhulabhai-Liaqat Ali understanding which I suppose laid the foundation for the forthcoming Viceregal conference.

Shri Bhulabhai Desai’s proposal has no such colouring as the Viceregal broadcast would seem to have. I am not ashamed of the part I have played in advising Shri Bhulabhai Desai when he consulted me about his proposal.

Shri Bhulabhai Desai’s proposal, as I understood it, attracted me as one interested in solving the communal tangle, and I assured him that I would use my influence with the members of the Working Committee and give my reasons for acceptance of his proposal and

I have no doubt that if both parties to the proposal correctly represent their constituents and have independence of India as their common goal, things must shape well. At this point I must stop and the Working Committee has to take up the thread. It is for its members to declare the Congress mind on the impending questions.

_The Bombay Chronicle, 16-6-1945_

---

1 _Vide_ Appendix “Desai-Liaqat pact”.

2 _Vide_ “Silence-day note to Bhulabhai Desai”, 11-6-1945.
228. TELEGRAM TO LORD WAVELL

Express PANCHGANI,
H. E. VICEROY June 16, 1945
NEW DELHI
IN REPLY YOUR KIND WIRE OF YESTERDAY¹ AM POSTING LETTER².

GANDHI
Gandhiji’s Correspondence with the Government, 1944-47, p. 19

229. TELEGRAM TO J. B. KRIPALANI

Express PANCHGANI,
ACHARYA KRIPALANI June 16, 1945
CARE “HINDU” KARACHI
SARDAR³ DEO⁴ HERE. HOPE YOU WELL AND COMING.

BAPU
From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

230. TELEGRAM TO ABUL KALAM AZAD

Express PANCHGANI,
MAULANA ABUL KALAM AZAD June 16, 1945
BALLYGUNGE HOPE YOU WELL SUGGEST EARLY MEETING WORKING COMMITTEE BOMBAY. ADVERTISE DATE. SARDAR DEO AGREE.

GANDHI
From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Vide 5th footnote of “Telegram to Private Secretary to Viceroy”, 14-6-1945.
³ Vallabhbhai Patel and Shankarrao Deo, who were discharged on June 15 from Yeravda Prison
⁴ ibid
231. TELEGRAM TO JAWAHARLAL NEHRU

Express
PANCHGANI, JUNE 16, 1945

PANDIT JAWAHARLAL NEHRU
KHALI (NAINITAL)

YOUR WIRE¹. EARLY MEETING WORKING COMMITTEE
NECESSARY. SUGGEST FIX BOMBAY ANNOUNCE DATE.
SARDAR DEO AGREE. HOPE YOU MAULANA SAHEB
NARENDRADEV WELL.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

232. TELEGRAM TO RAJENDRA PRASAD

‘DILKHUSHA’, PANCHGANI, JUNE 16, 1945

BABU RAJENDRA PRASAD
SADAQAT ASHRAM
PATNA

WHEN COMING? SARDAR DEO JAIRAMDAS MEHMUD
HERE. HOPE YOU ARE WELL.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

233. TELEGRAM TO PASHABHAI PATEL

June 16, 1945

PASHABHAI PATEL
CARE POWERFARM
BARODA

CAN NOW PAY SARDAR AGREES. BLESSINGS.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

¹ Dated June 15, it read: “Going Khali. Tomorrow Nainital. Reaching Allah bad Monday evening.”

THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
DEAR FRIEND,

I thank you for your telegram\(^1\) of yesterday received at 3.45 p.m. My second telegram\(^2\), acknowledging your kind telegraphic invitation, evidently crossed yours. I am sending you this letter in reply, instead of wiring, because I am anxious that you should understand my position thoroughly. However, I am sending you a wire\(^3\) intimating the despatch of this letter. For ready reference, I am enclosing herewith a copy of my Press message\(^4\) which was issued yesterday in the morning. I would like you to go through it.

While it is true that my position is technical, the reality of it is truer. My official and legal connection with the Congress was deliberately, and with the consent of the All-India Congress Committee, severed\(^5\) in order to enable me all the better to serve the common cause. This position therefore cannot be changed at will. In the forthcoming official conference, I can have no official position. My presence in it will change the official colour, unless I become an official representative of the Congress. But if you think that my help is desirable and that without being a member of the conference I am likely to be useful, I shall make it a point to be at your service before and even during the conference proceedings, assuming, of course, that the Working Committee wishes likewise.

I want to cite an analogy. You may have known the late Deenabandhu, as C. F. Andrews was affectionately called by us. He severed his official connection with the Cambridge Mission and the Church in order to serve religion, India and humanity better. The position he occupied as a valuable link between India and England, whether official or non-official and, between all classes and parties, grew as days went. If I can, I would love to occupy such a position. It may never come to me. Man can but try.

1 Vide 5th footnote, “Telegram to Privte Secretary to Viceroy”, 14-6-1945.
2 Vide “Telegram to Lord Wavell”, 15-6-1945.
3 Vide “Telegram to Lord Wavell”, 16-6-1945.
5 In October 1934.
You have suggested further consideration and consultation, both of which I have done. I am within an easy distance of Yeravda Central prison, where Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel and Shri Shankarrao Dev were recently transferred from Ahmednagar Fort. Almost immediately after their discharge from the jail yesterday they motored to Panchgani and are still with me. I have shown them all the necessary papers and they concur with me in what I am writing.

In the task you have undertaken, of which I fully appreciate the difficulty and delicacy, you certainly need the assistance and goodwill of all the parties. The Congress help you naturally cannot have without the Congress being officially represented at your table. The first and also perhaps the main purpose of the discharge of the remaining members of the Working Committee will be frustrated unless you secure the presence at your table of the President of the Congress or whomsoever he and his Committee may appoint for the purpose. If my supposition is correct, my immediate advice is that you should invite the President of the Congress. I expect that the ban on the Congress had been or will be lifted to the extent it still exists.¹

I am,
Yours sincerely,

Enclosure: 1

M. K. GANDHI

H. E. THE VICEROY
THE VICEROY’S HOUSE
NEW DELHI

Gandhiji’s Correspondence with the Government, 1944-47, pp. 19-20

235. LETTER TO LILAMANI

PANCHGANI,
June 16, 1945

MY DEAR LILAMANI,

You remember sitting on my lap years ago when I was with you in the Golden Threshold? Now you are too big to sit on my lap. But if I was by your side, I would lift your head and put it in my lap and

¹ Acknowledging this telegraphically on June 17, the Viceroy said: “I understand your position. I am looking forward to seeing you on 24th and hope means may be found for you to take part in proceedings of the conference. I shall be never leave it till you promised that you would literally obey all medical instructions. Your pupils would want you but your recently bereaved mother wants you most. Say ‘Yes’ for her sake and live on.

Love.

BAPU

236. LETTER TO SAROJINI NAIDU

PANCHGANI,
June 16, 1945

MY DEAR SINGER,

I am not the nicest kind of or any mahatma. But I know I am a nice father and hence my heart goes out to the nice mother that you are.

Here is a note¹ for Lilamani. I hope she will live for you, if not for others. Do keep me informed of L’s progress.

I take very little interest in the passing show you refer to. Love to yourself.

SPINNER

SHRI SAROJINI DEVI NAIDU
HYDERABAD (DECCAN)

grateful if you will communicate the following message to Maulana Abul Kalam Azad from me: ‘I invite you to attend or nominate duly authorized representative to attend conference at Viceregal Lodge, Simla, at 10.30 a.m. on Monday, 25th June. Accommodation will be arranged for representative if required.’ I have not released your letter or this telegram to the Press, but have no objection to their being published."

¹Vide the preceding item.
237. NOTE TO AMRIT KAUR

PANCHGANI,
June 16, 1945

This is a good letter. But how simple Maude Royden Shaw is!
When one is under the influence of morphia, one has such dreams?
But are they worth any thought? Yet it sustains this good soul! Such is the power of imagination.

Love.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

238. LETTER TO K. M. MUNSHI

PANCHGANI,
June 16, 1945

BHAJ MUNSHI,

Your letter of the 11th was received today. I have carefully gone through everything you say. Sardar, Deo, Jairamdas and Dr. Mahmud are here. I showed your letter to them also. The letter is clear. Think over what I have done and watch what I am doing. If you wish to caution me any time, you may unhesitatingly do so. I would even go further and say that there would be no harm even if you wrote to newspapers. It would be better, of course, to observe silence if you were not definite in your views.

I am glad that all of you are taking complete rest.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: G. W. 7688. Courtesy: K. M. Munshi
239. LETTER TO ANAND T. HINGORANI

June 16, 1945

CHI. ANAND,

Why the question when you will meet Vidya? Were you attached to Vidya’s body? It had got to perish. If it was to the atman, then the atman is immortal. Shake off your sleep, wake up and you will see that Vidya is already with you.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a microfilm of the Hindi. Courtesy: National Archives of India and Anand T. Hingorani

240. LETTER TO KULSUM SAYANI

PANCHGANI,

June 16, 1945

BETI KULSUM,

To whom should I write? Where is the time? And yet how can I say ‘No’ to you? This is my message:

I like the mission of Rahbar to unite Hindi and Urdu. May it succeed. —M. K. Gandhi

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI KULSUM SAYANI
RUPA VILA
CUMBALLA HILL, BOMBAY

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
241. LETTER TO PARMANAND

PANCHGANI,
June 16, 1945

Bhai Parmanand,

I have your letter. It is good that you have developed such great faith in truth and ahimsa. Remain fit, do lots of spinning and do it well, and make slivers yourself.

Blessings from
M. K. Gandhi

Shri Parmanand
C/o Jailor, District Jail
Sultanpur, Oudh

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

242. LETTER TO SHYAMLAL

PANCHGANI,
June 16, 1945

Bhai Shyamlal,

I approve of your demand for money up to Rs. 1,000 for three months. However, you must have Bapa’s and Mridulabehn’s concurrence.

M. K. Gandhi

Shri Shyamlal
Kasturba Smarak Nidhi
Scindia House
Ballard Estate, Bombay-1

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
Telegram to Lord Wavell

Express

Panchgani, June 17, 1945

H. E. Viceroy
New Delhi

DEEPLY APPRECIATE YOUR WIRE\(^1\) RECEIVED YESTERDAY EVENING. IN ORDER TO REGULARIZE PROCEDURE AND FACILITATE DESPATCH OF WORK WITHOUT DISTURBING NUMBER OF MEMBERS CONFERENCE I SUGGEST IMMEDIATE INVITATION TO CONGRESS PRESIDENT ATTEND CONFERENCE OR DEPUTE CONGRESS NOMINEE. IF FIXITY OF PARITY BETWEEN CASTE HINDUS AND MUSLIMS UNCHANGEABLE RELIGIOUS DIVISION WILL BECOME OFFICIALLY STEREOTYPED ON EVE OF INDEPENDENCE. PERSONALLY I CAN NEVER SUBSCRIBE TO IT NOR CONGRESS IF I KNOW ITS MIND. IN SPITE OF HAVING OVERWHELMINGLY HINDU MEMBERSHIP CONGRESS HAS STRIVEN TO BE PURELY POLITICAL. I AM QUITE CAPABLE ADVISING CONGRESS TO NOMINATE ALL NON-HINDUS AND MOST DECIDEDLY NON-CASTE HINDUS. YOU WILL QUITE UNCONSCIOUSLY BUT EQUALLY SURELY DEFEND PURPOSE OF CONFERENCE IF PARITY BETWEEN CASTE HINDUS AND MUSLIMS IS UNALTERABLE. PARITY BETWEEN CONGRESS AND LEAGUE UNDERSTANDABLE. I AM EAGER TO HELP YOU AND BRITISH PEOPLE BUT NOT AT SACRIFICE OF FUNDAMENTAL AND UNIVERSAL PRINCIPLES. FOR IT WILL BE NO HELP. IF YOU DESIRE TEXT YESTERDAY’S LETTER EARLIER I CAN TELEGRAPH CONTENTS. \(^2\)

Gandhi

\(^1\) Vide 5th footnote, “Telegram to private secretary to Viceroy”, 14-6-1945.

\(^2\) Vide also the following item.
244. TELEGRAM TO LORD WAVELL

PANCHGANI,
June 17, 1945

H. E. VICEROY
NEW DELHI

MANY THANKS YOUR PROMPT REPLY\(^1\) TO MY LETTER\(^2\) OF 16TH. BUT IN ABSENCE OF REPLY TO MY WIRE\(^3\) EVEN DATE YOU WILL ADMIT CONGRESS POSITION AND MINE REMAINS UNCERTAIN. HENCE I MUST NOT EVEN ON YOUR BEHALF INVITE PRESIDENT WITHOUT ACCEPTANCE OF MY NECESSARY AMENDMENT. YOU WILL NOT AND CANNOT ACCORDING TO YOUR WIRE OF 16TH LET CONFERENCE DISCUSS THE QUESTION. THEREFORE TO MY GREAT REGRET HAVE TAKEN NO ACTION ON YOUR WIRE UNDER REPLY. WORKING COMMITTEE HAS NOT STILL BEEN CALLED. PRIVATE TELEGRAPHIC COMMUNICATION TARDY. TIME APPEARS TO BE AGAINST DATE FIXED BY YOU. WITH ALL MY WILLINGNESS TO HELP I HOPE YOU WILL APPRECIATE UNAVOIDABLE DELAY. I SUGGEST YOUR ALTERING DATE AND CLARIFYING ISSUE RAISED BY ME AND IF CLARIFICATION SATISFACTORY SENDING YOUR INVITATION DIRECTLY FOR AVOIDING DELAY. I SHOULD INFORM YOU CONGRESS PREMIERS ARE HELD UP PENDING WORKING COMMITTEE DECISION. I AM NOT RELEASING THESE COMMUNICATIONS PENDING FINAL DECISION. BUT IN THIS YOU SHALL JUDGE.\(^4\)

Gandhi

Gandhiji’s Correspondence with the Government, 1944-47, p. 23

---

\(^2\) Vide “Letter to Lord Wavell”, 16-6-1945.

\(^3\) Vide the preceding item.

\(^4\) For the Viceroy’s reply, vide Appendix “Telegram from Lord Wavell”, 18-6-1945.
245. TELEGRAM TO C. RAJAGOPALACHARI

Express
PANCHGANI,
June 17, 1945

C. RAJAGOPALACHARIAR
BAZLULLAH ROAD
TYAGARAYANAGAR
MADRAS

MY ADVICE WATCH DEVELOPMENTS BUT FOLLOW VOICE WITHIN.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

246. TELEGRAM TO ABUL KALAM AZAD

Express
PANCHGANI,
June 17, 1945

MAULANA ABUL KALAM AZAD
BALLYGUNE

WHAT IS NATURE TOOTH TROUBLE? MY PROGRAMME DEPENDS ON YOU MOSTLY AND PARTLY VICEROY. ADVISE CALLING URGENT MEETING WORKING COMMITTEE CONSIDER WHOLE SITUATION.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
247. TELEGRAM TO DR. B. PATTABHI SITARAMAYYA

Express

PANCHGANI, June 17, 1945

DOCTOR PATTABHI SITARAMAYYA¹
MASULIPATAM
HOPE YOU WELL. WIRE WHEN COMING.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

248. LETTER TO C. RAJAGOPALACHARI

June 17, 1945

MY DEAR C. R.,
This is more certain than wire. Come as soon as you can here or Bombay wherever I may be. Sardar and others associate with me. Long correspondences with the Viceroy going on.
Love.

BAPU

From a photostat: G.N. 2108

249. TELEGRAM TO C. RAJAGOPALACHARI

Express

PANCHGANI, June 17, 1945

C. RAJAGOPALACHARIAR
BAZLULLAH ROAD
TYAGARAYANAGAR
MADRAS
COME HERE I SHALL DECIDE IN TIME. SARDAR AGREES.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Congress leader of Andhra,, Member, A. I. C. C. and Congress Working Committee
² This was given to Rangaswami, representative of The Hindu, for transmission on teleprinter.

148 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
250. LETTER TO BHULABHAI DESAI

PANCHGANI,
June 17, 1945

BHAI BHULABHAI,

I hope you read my articles. Keep in mind whatever I am writing these days. If the Congress is obliged to appoint only Hindus, then we are all Hindus, but not in that sense. We should have perfect freedom to appoint anyone we like. I do not have the time to write more.

Blessings from
BAPU

BHULABHAI DESAI

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

251. TELEGRAM TO LORD WAVELL

Express
PANCHGANI,
June 18, 1945

H. E. VICEROY
New Delhi

GRATEFUL FOR YOUR PROMPT FRANK AND FULL REPLY\(^1\) ALSO FOR DIRECTLY INVITING MAULANA SAHEB. MEMBERS BEING FREE AT CONFERENCE TO ACCEPT OR REJECT PROPOSALS CLEARS GROUNDS FOR INVITEES TO ATTEND CONFERENCE. THIS LEAVES THEM FREE DISCUSS PROS AND CONS AT CONFERENCE. MY OBJECTION TO INEVITABILITY OF PARITY BETWEEN MUSLIMS AND CASTE HINDUS STANDS. IF THAT VIEW INCAPABLE OF BEING ALTERED BY BRITISH GOVERNMENT MY ADVICE CONGRESS WILL BE NOT TO PARTICIPATE IN FORMATION EXECUTIVE COUNCIL. CONGRESS HAS NEVER IDENTIFIED ITSELF WITH CASTE OR NON-CASTE HINDUS AND NEVER CAN EVEN TO GAIN INDEPENDENCE WHICH WILL BE ONE-SIDED UNTRUE AND SUICIDAL. CONGRESS TO JUSTIFY ITS EXISTENCE FOR WINNING INDEPENDENCE OF INDIA

\(^1\) Vide Appendix “Telegram from Lord Wavell”, 18-6-1945.
MUST REMAIN FOR EVER FREE TO CHOOSE BEST MEN AND WOMEN FROM ALL CLASSES AND I HOPE ALWAYS WILL. THAT IT HAS FOR SAKE OF CONCILIATING MINORITIES CHOSEN MEN TO REPRESENT THEM THOUGH THEY HAVE BEEN LESS THAN BEST REDOUNDS TO ITS CREDIT BUT THAT CAN NEVER BE PLEADED TO JUSTIFY OR PERPETUATE DISTINCTION BASED ON CASTE OR CREED. HINDU MAHASABHA IS THE BODY CLAIMING TO REPRESENT SOLELY HINDU INTERESTS. SUBJECT TO WORKING COMMITTEE'S WISHES I SHALL HOPE PRESENT MYSELF SIMLA ON 24TH INSTANT BUT OWING TO MY STRONG VIEWS YOU CAN CANCEL THE ENGAGEMENT WITHOUT LEAST OFFENCE. I EXPECT THIS WIRE AND REPLY IF ANY WILL BE PUBLISHED. LEAVING FOR POONA TUESDAY TWO P. M.¹

_Gandhiji’s Correspondence with the Government, 1944-47, pp. 24-5_

252. TELEGRAM TO HARSHADA DIWANJI

_PANCHGANI_,

June 18, 1945

HARSHADABEHN DIWANJI
FIFTEENTH ROAD
KHAR, BOMBAY

TRY REACH POONA NINETEENTH TWO AFTERNOON
DINSHAH MEHTA NATURE CURE CLINIC.

GANDHI

FROM A PHOTOSTAT: C.W. 10550. ALSO FROM A COPY: PYARELAL PAPERS. COURTESY: PYARELAL

¹ In his telegram dated June 19, the Viceroy replied that he expected to hear from Gandhiji “immediately after the meeting on June 21”.

150 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
253. LETTER TO PARIMAL SHOME

PANCHGANI,
June 18, 1945

MY DEAR PARIMAL,

I am sorry to hear from you that Sarat Babu is so ill. But as you rightly say I have not much confidence in my ability to do good in such matters. Yet you may depend upon my doing the best I am capable of in securing relief.²

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

PARIMAL SHOME, B. COM.
12-3 HINDUSTAN ROAD
BALLYGUNGE, CALCUTTA

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

254. LETTER TO USHA GANDHI

PANCHGANI,
June 18, 1945

CHI. USHA,

I have your postcard. Your demand is crazy. My going to Simla is uncertain and even if I go it will only be for work. It is therefore not proper to take children along. It is a different thing if there is some occasion. One can say that you have considerably improved your handwriting. My handwriting will improve on its own if all the children write a pearl-like hand. You should therefore stand first in that.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Sarat Chandra Bose, addressee’s maternal uncle
² Vide “Statement to the Press”, 21-6-1945.
255. LETTER TO NIRMALA GANDHI

June 18, 1945

CHI. NIMU,

Kanam will shortly be arriving there. He was happy here and made us happy. You did a wise thing in not going to Simla and Delhi.

Blessings from

BAPU

C/O RAMDAS GANDHI

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

256. LETTER TO SARASWATI GANDHI

June 18, 1945

CHI. SURU,

So you did not come. I received your letter. I do keep on writing to you. Both of you have served Harilal well. I do hope that he will stay on there. I have written to him. You should not be the least bit unhappy that you failed in the examination. Your reading will now be all the more thorough. What is really remarkable is that you are studying while looking after your house. Lakshmi and Nimu did the same. Grow very healthy and be good in studies.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 6188. Also C.W. 3462. Courtesy: Kantilal Gandhi

257. STATEMENT TO THE PRESS

PANCHGANI,
June 18, 1945

This is perhaps an opportune moment to release the text of a letter¹ I wrote to the British Prime Minister during my stay at Panchgani last year. The letter was written in the small hours of the night on July 17 at the same time that I wrote my Gujarati note² to Qaid-e-Azam Jinnah and duly posted to be sent through H. E. the Viceroy.

Unfortunately the letter miscarried. Having waited for a long time, on September 10, 1944, during my visit to Bombay for the meeting with Qaid-e-Azam, I sent a letter³ of enquiry out of curiosity, for the psychological moment had passed. To my surprise, the Private Secretary to the Viceroy wrote in return on September 13 that the letter in question was not received by him. As I attached importance to that letter, I sent⁴ him a copy of the missing letter on September 17, 1944, repeating the request that it might be sent to the Prime Minister.

My letter of July 17 to Mr. Churchill, in my estimation, was of a sacred character not meant for the public eye, but I could contemplate an occasion or time when it might call for publication without losing the sacred character.

I, therefore, requested the Viceroy on December 3, 1944,⁵ to enquire from the Prime Minister whether I had his permission to publish it in case of need. He replied through his Secretary that the Prime Minister agreed to the publication of my letter subject to the fact that it was duly acknowledged.

The following is the text of the letter:

‘DILKHUSA’, PANCHGANI,
July 17, 1944

DEAR PRIME MINISTER,

You are reported to have a desire to crush the simple “Naked Fakir” as you are said to have described me. I have been long trying to be a “Fakir”

² ibid
⁴ ibid
⁵ ibid
and that naked—a more difficult task. I, therefore, regard the expression as a compliment though unintended. I approach you then as such and ask you to trust and use me for the sake of your people and mine and through them those of the world.

Your sincere friend,
M. K. GANDHI

The Bombay Chronicle, 19-6-1948

258. INTERVIEW TO THE PRESS
PANCHGANI,
June 18, 1945

QUESTION: What did you mean when you said that the Desai Formula had no such colouring as the Viceroy’s would seem to have, and how do you think that the Desai Formula would help to solve the communal tangle?

ANSWER: Bhulabhai’s proposals have no colouring of caste. There is the 50 per cent basis as between two political bodies. If Bhulabhai’s proposals are the same as the Viceroy’s, then I am greatly mistaken. I did not read the proposals in that light. According to that Formula, if the Congress chose, it could appoint 50 per cent of any community, non-Hindus, caste Hindus and non-caste Hindus. If the Congress is obliged to choose only caste Hindus or even casteless Hindus then it ceases to be Indian National Congress.

Asked if he was satisfied with the clarification offered by the Viceroy and the Secretary of State about the question of independence, he said that it was a question for the Working Committee to answer. He had his own opinion but he did not wish to anticipate or influence the Working Committee by speaking to the public.

Q. What is your opinion about Lord Wavell’s personal efforts in solving the political deadlock?
A. No one will know unless Lord Wavell chooses to write himself as to what part he has played in this connection.

Q. What do you think about the omission of the Hindu Mahasabha?
A. I have not thought over it, but as you prompt me I begin to think. I do not know whether it is the method of putting the Congress

1 Vide Appendix “Desai-Liaqat pact”.
2 Vide Appendices “Telegram from Lord Wavell”, 16-6-1945 and “Telegram from Lord Wavell”, 18-6-1945.
3 Vide Appendix VII.
in the place of the Hindu Mahasabha and treating it as a sectional or a Hindu body and if it is that, which I hope it is not, the Congress will be one to avoid the whole show. But there is another construction also to be put upon that omission, namely, that the British Government wants to avoid the conference being based on religious distinction and, therefore, for examining the proposal they have invited political representatives only. Against this favourable assumption has undoubtedly to be put the parity between Muslims and caste Hindus. But I have publicly announced¹ that I believed that this mistake, however grave, is one of ignorance. If my assumption is right, the mistake would be corrected. Thinking along the same lines I account for the omission of the Muslim Majlis or the Jamiat-ul-Ulema and similar bodies.

I must not also omit to mention that the composition of the conference is a very great advance upon all similar bodies, for, in all previous conferences convened by the British Government, members have been nominated by the Government principally. This time the members of the conference are under no obligation to the Government for their nomination and they need not vote or speak merely to placate the Government. The Congress Premiers, for instance, are under obligation only to the Congress as those belonging to the Muslim League are answerable only to the League. So far as I can recall there has been no such conference before.

Q. Why do you think the Maulana was omitted in the first instance?

A. Because the Viceroy thought that I represented the Congress and the people had given him cause to think so. But I must say the moment I pointed² out the mistake he saw it at once and rectified it.

The Bombay Chronicle, 19-6-1945

¹ Vide “Statement to the Press”, 15-6-1945.
² Vide “Telegram to Privte Secretary to Viceroy”, 14-6-1945 and “Telegram to Lord Wavell”, 15-6-1945.
259. SPEECH AT PRAYER MEETING, PANCHGANI

June 18, 1945

Mahatma Gandhi addressing a prayer gathering on the eve of his departure from here said he had planned to stay at Panchgani till the end of the month but man proposes and God disposes.

He thanked Principal Batha of the Parsi Girls’ High School for allowing the use of the school hall for holding prayer meetings and the girl students who sweetly chanted prayers from the scriptures in the evenings.

To him the hall had become a prayer house where he found peace every evening and got over the mental fatigue of the day’s work. He had nothing to give them in return except his blessings.

They should know, he continued, that he was going away for the same purpose for which he had come up to the hills. That purpose was the winning of India’s independence. If he wanted to live for 125 years, or if he died that very moment, or if he went to the hills for recouping his health, it was the same thing to him so long as his very breath was dedicated to that aim.

His conception of swaraj was not mere political independence, He wanted to see dharmaraj—establishment of the Kingdom of Heaven on earth—the reign of truth and non-violence in every walk of life. That alone was independence to the starved masses of this vast country.

He hoped that those who attended his prayers did not come there for the sake of fun. They came to call the name of God so as to be able to do His work. To work for the independence of his hope was God’s work.

To remain in slavery was beneath the dignity of man. A slave who was conscious of his state and yet did not strive to break his chains was lower than the beast. He who prayed from his heart could never accept slavery as his lot.

Everyone said that this time at last the chance had come for bringing India’s independence nearer. He was a trusting man by temperament and he took statements at their face value. Nevertheless, they should repose their faith in prayer more than in a man’s work. Let them also know that we were all slaves of our passions. If we conquered them, we could easily overcome the slavery under foreigners or our own conquerors.

The Bombay Chronicle, 20-6-1945
QUESTION: Is there a “Gandhian Plan”, as Prof. Agrawal will have it, apart from the Gandhian programme? A plan necessarily involves a time schedule within which to attain definite objectives. You have yourself formulated no such plan?

ANSWER: For me there is neither a Gandhian plan nor Gandhian programme. But it would be too pedantic for me to object to a friend’s use of the word “Gandhian”. Your objection to the word “plan” is technically valid. But I am inclined to say there is no substance in the objection.

The basis of the Gandhian programme is decentralization. But the core of planning is centralization. Can planning and Gandhism go together?

I must dissent from the view that the core of planning is centralization. Why should not decentralization lend itself to planning as well as centralization?

Economic planning, says Prof. Agrawal, necessitates the least amount of State control. Yet the plan he unfolds by no means envisages a Government which will govern least because the emphasis throughout is on State action—“the responsibility of the State is very great”. Necessarily, communications, public health, education, trade and commerce, banking and currency, etc., must be State-controlled. And the plan clearly supports the nationalization of key and basic large-scale industries. How do these incompatible ideas fit in?

I detect no incompatibility in the idea of decentralizing, to the greatest extent possible, all industries and crafts, economically profitable in the villages of India, and centralizing or nationalizing the key and vital large industries required for India considered as a whole. Prof. Agrawal has taken illustrations from the present. When we have independence cum predominance of village industries in the place of city industries as at present, those who live to see that, as I hope you and I will, will face another and much healthier atmosphere and we shall see clearly what Prof. Agrawal and we see today only darkly. Today everything is controlled by a foreign State. Tomorrow the State will be controlled by the people (a very vital change in itself,) and if

---

1 Gandhiji left Panchgani on June 19; vide the preceding item.
2 Shriman Narayan; his “Gandhian Plan of economic Development for Free India” was published in 1944.
Prof. Agrawal’s plan (pardon the word) fructifies, then it is obvious that the State-control, though it appears to be big, will in reality be least. Just project in your mind’s eye 700,000 villages of India dominating the centre with its few towns required in the interests of the villages.

The Gandhian programme is essentially a resuscitation of village communities, ensuring the maximum utilization of human power. It is an evolutionary process. Is it not opposed to a definitive State planning, unless, of course, cottage industrialization is content to be complementary to nationalization of industries which the problems of a post-war India may make imperative?

You have correctly described the programme standing in my name. You have lifted the term nationalization from its present setting and then put a perplexing question. I suggest your correcting yourself and examining the contents of the term in its new village setting. The ideal is too comprehensive for our modernized mind. Mine may be all a day-dream never destined to be realized. But that would be merely begging the question. We see that in a single generation we have the so-called impossible of yesterday become the possible of today.

You have recently declaimed1 against the big interests who speak loud against the Government and give the lie by their support of it for the crumbs that fall to them. It is answered that Congress itself has not been averse to befriend these big interests who exploit the Congress for their ends. Can you not stop such exploitation?

The Congress has never been, and I hope never will be, averse to the big interests so long as it hopes to convert them to national use instead of being itself converted by them in the process. My very declamation referred to by you shows that the big interests have to be on the right line, if they are to subserve the interests of the masses in the end. Today they are relatively serving the foreign ruler whilst they themselves merely get the crumbs from his table. It is unfortunate. But all will never think and be alike. In non-violence, there is mutual conversion instead of coercion.

The Hindu, 23-6-1945

---

1*Vide “Statement to the Press”, 6-5-1945.*
261. LETTER TO KHWAJA

BOMBAY,
June 20, 1945

MY DEAR KHWAJA,

In the midst of work I send you a line to acknowledge yours. You will see. Hope all yours in Hyderabad are well including yourself.

Love.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

262. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

BOMBAY,
June 20, 1945

CHI. MUNNALAL,

I have an impression that I have not replied to one of your letters. I hope Kanchan is well and you are calm. I did come here earlier than I had planned, but I do not hope to arrive there also earlier. I may perhaps have to go to Simla. If that does not become necessary I may arrive there earlier. Probably I shall know tomorrow. Let me see what happens. I hope Chimanlal is keeping good health.

It is raining heavily here. It is cool. Let us hope the streets will not be flooded with water. The rain is not so heavy as yet.

A letter for Chi. A. D. is enclosed, which also contains the reply to the postcard written by Prabhakar.

I am not writing to K. today.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 8447. Also C.W. 5583. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah
263. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA

BOMBAY,
June 20, 1945

CHI. KRISHNACHANDRA,

I have your letter. Kishorelalbhai is right; you can occupy that position if your conscience permits. By so doing, your relations with me and the Ashram will not only continue, but become further strengthened.

I understand about the mill. The rest you will see by and by.
I am somewhat worried about Balkrishna.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4516

264. LETTER TO CHANDRANI

BOMBAY,
June 20, 1945

CHI. CHAND,

It is not good that you have not as yet left. If you had something to ask somebody you should have gone and asked Sushilabehn. She says everything is there on the paper you had signed. However, no one can at all compel you to go. What can anyone do if you have left the white sari at home? The right thing would be to go to Nagpur if you really want to go there, and see what can be done. In the end you yourself have to find your way. The date you were to reach there has passed. Now decide what you want to do and start working accordingly. My coming there has become somewhat uncertain.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
265. LETTER TO S. RADHAKRISHNAN

BOMBAY,

June 21, 1945

Bhai Radhakrishnan,

I have your letter. Though I have no time, I am writing you these few lines. I like your letter. Have faith that I will do whatever I can. I intend to show this letter to Jawaharlal. Hope you are well.

Yours,

M. K. Gandhi

Sir Radhakrishnan
30 Edward Eliot Road
Mylapur, Madras

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

266. LETTER TO DHARMANAND KOSAMBI

BOMBAY,

June 21, 1945

Bhai Kosambi,

I have your letter. I liked it. The thing you have at heart is the thing that I also have at heart. If there is such a power as God in this world we have no cause for worry. You have joined the Gujarat Vidyapith. Remain there and render service.

Blessings from

Bapu

Shri Dhrmanand Kosambi
Gujarat Vidyapith
Ahmedabad

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
267. LETTER TO KULKARNI AND SUDHA KULKARNI

June 21, 1945

CHI. LAMBU AND KULKARNI,

I got your second letter. I have given it to Kheraheb to read.

Blessings from

BAPU

[C/O] ADIVASI SEVA MANDAL
KANYA CHHATRALAYA
MOKHADA, THANADISTRICT

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

268. LETTER TO VILAS KATJU

BOMBAY,
June 21, 1945

CHI. VILAS,

I have your letter. I cannot congratulate you on your Devanagari writing. You do not write English in such a bad hand, do you? It is our mother tongue that is to blame, I suppose. I am returning your letter in order to teach you and show you how untidy and how clumsy it is. I have marked it at two places. Copy this letter out in a neat handwriting and send it to me. Seeing your letter how can I believe that you are Dr. Kailas Nath’s daughter?

Blessings from

BAPU

C/O KAILAS NATH KATJU
EDMINSTON ROAD
ALLAHABAD

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
269. LETTER TO S. A. BRELVI

BOMBAY,
June 21, 1945

BHAIEBRELVI1.

Your letter is good and also bad. And why again in English to me?

Your health will be good. It was not through carelessness that I used the expression to which you have drawn my attention. I had used it advisedly. It is another matter that I may change it out of consideration for somebody, but then it will not express what I feel.

In the first place, the term ‘minorities’ includes, along with the Muslims, all the accepted minorities. This has been my own preoccupation from childhood. And if you are concerned solely about Muslims, I would like to say that sometimes when a Muslim was wanted he was chosen not because he was the best Congressman among Indians but because he was the best Congressman among Muslims and represented Muslims. I should be grieved if you did not know this, because you are a highly experienced man and a journalist. If you are interested in having the names of such minorities, I can send you.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat of the Urdu: G.N. 2298

270. STATEMENT TO THE PRESS

BOMBAY,
June 21, 1945

As I was about to leave Panchgani, I received a pathetic letter2 from which I take the following:

The immediate object of my writing this letter is to inform you about the very serious condition of Sri Sarat Chandra Bose, who is my maternal uncle. He is very unwell and his condition is causing grave anxiety to us all. If he is not at least removed, if not released, immediately to a healthy place his days are numbered.

1 Editor, The Bombay Chronicle
2 From Parimal Shome; vide “Letter to Parimal Shome”, 18-6-1945.

As Sri Sarat Babu has never been tried and found guilty evidently he has been detained all these years and that too away from Bengal, on suspicion. For the sake of simple justice Sri Sarat Bahu ought to be removed to a health resort in Bengal with facilities for him to see his relatives.

The Hindu, 22-6-1945

271. TELEGRAM TO LORD WAVELL

Express
Bombay,
June 22, 1945

H. E. Viceroy
Viceroy’s Camp
India

In reply your wire1 of 19th you must have seen from papers working committee is still sitting. Am leaving today by Frontier Mail for Simla. Train permitting hope wait on your Excellency appointed time. Thanking you for reserving accommodation for me. I propose to stay with Rajkumari Amrit Kaur.

Gandhi

Gandhiji’s Correspondence with the Government, 1944-47, p. 26

272. LETTER TO LADY EMILY KINNAIRD

On the Train,
June 22, 1945

Mother dear,
It was good to hear from you after such a lapse of time. I expect to see Amrit Kaur on Sunday.

Love.

M. K. Gandhi

Dame Emily Kinnaird

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Vide 2nd footnote, “Telegram to Lord Wavell”, 18-6-1945.
273. LETTER TO MANEKLAL GANDHI

ON THE TRAIN,
June 22, 1945

CHI. MANEKLAL,

You have entered into competition with me. Anybody who devotes himself to service in a spirit of non-attachment is entitled to aspire to live up to 125. May you be so entitled.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI MANEKLAL
THANA DEVLI
KATHIWAR

From a copy of the Gujarati: C.W. 892. Courtesy: Maneklal Gandhi

274. LETTER TO MATHURADAS TRIKUMJI

June 22, 1945

It hurts me that I am going away without seeing you, but I am helpless. Your dharma is not to interest yourself in these negotiations but to be engrossed in Ramanama and get well for public service.

[From Gujarati]
Bapuni Prasadi, p. 206

275. LETTER TO HILDA PETIT

ON THE TRAIN,
June 22, 1945

DEAR SISTER,

I have your letter. I personally feel that it is good that Mother has gone. I had seen her suffering. Of course we do feel unhappy because of our selfishness. I hope all of you will be calm.

Blessings from
M. K. GANDHI

SHRI HILDA PETIT

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Gandhiji was going to Simla to meet the Viceroy.

VOL. 87: 29 MAY, 1945 - 29 AUGUST, 1945 165
276. LETTER TO SATIS CHANDRA DAS GUPTA

ON THE TRAIN,
June 22, 1945

CHIL SATIS CHANDRA,

I read your postcard of June 16 only today. I should be sorry if your heart is still weak. But if that be the case, do not insist on working. [You] have not said about the letter to the apiaries. Now you have got to write to them. I am going to Simla. God alone knows what He will make me do.

Blessings to you all from

BAPU

SATIS CHANDRA DAS GUPTA
KHADI PRATISHTHAN
SODEPUR, via CALCUTTA

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 1644

277. STATEMENT TO THE PRESS

NEW DELHI,
June 23, 1945

I have had no rest during the journey to Simla, which is still going on. A note has just been handed to me after leaving Bharatpur. I am observing silence to save myself as much as possible. I was unable to receive the deputation that wanted to see me. But a note has been handed to me which describes the woes of persons who represent the Bharatpur people’s cause. I must not go into the details, for I have not the opportunity of knowing the other side. May I hope that the Bharatpur Raj authorities will do the needful and publish their side of the case?

The Hindu, 25-6-1945

1 Vide also “Letter to Satis Chandra Das Gupta”, 8-6-1945.
DEAR FRIEND,

I am writing this whilst I am silent. This is being written on the train taking me to Simla. In answer to your affectionate letter of 23rd April I can only say I am pouring my whole soul into the attempt to express truth and non-violence in fighting the battle for the independence of India’s vast, dumb and starved masses.

This will be typed for your easy reading.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

REV. JOHN HAYNES HOLMES
10 PARR AVENUE
NEW YORK 16, N.Y.

279. NOTE TO PRESTON GROVER

ON THE TRAIN,
June 23, 1945

MY DEAR GROVER,

Many thanks for your considerate note. But let me melt myself in this natural heat. As sure as fate, this heat will be followed by

---

1 American clergyman, author of My Gandhi; Chairman, American Civil Liberties Union; Rabindranath Tagore Memorial Visiting Professor in India from October 1947 to January 1948

2 In Mahatma Gandhi—The Last Phase, Vol. I, Book One, p. 125, Pyarelal explains that the addressee, a correspondent of the United Press of America travelling with Gandhiji, said in a note: “Would not it be wise for you to go into the cooler Congress car for the afternoon, so you could stretch yourself a while? You have not had any sleep for 24 hours. It is not going to help much if you arrive at Simla tired out from the interruptions in your sleep at wayside stations. As we would say in America, ‘Give yourself a break’.”

VOL. 87: 29 MAY, 1945 - 29 AUGUST, 1945 167
refreshing coolness which I shall enjoy. Let me feel just a touch of real India.

Yours,
M. K. GANDHI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal. Also The Hindu, 1-7-1945

280. LETTER TO SHYAMLAL

ON A MOVING TRAIN,
June 23, 1945

BHAISHYAMLAL,

I have before me your letter of June 11, 1945. Your interpretation of the rules, a copy of which you have sent, seems correct to me. The office should shift to Wardha or somewhere around it.

Blessings from
M. K. GANDHI

From the Hindi original: Kasturba Gandhi National Memorial Trust Papers. Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library

281. LETTER TO SHYAMLAL

ON A MOVING TRAIN,
June 23, 1945

BHAISHYAMLAL,

Your letter of June 12, 1945 is before me. I approve of the proposal to appoint Kalyanasundaram to help Thakkar Bapa on a salary of Rs. 75 per month. It should be implemented if no other formalities are necessary for this appointment.

Blessings from
M. K. GANDHI

From the Hindi original: Kasturba Gandhi National Memorial Trust Papers. Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library
282. MEMORANDA FOR TALKS WITH THE VICEROY

[Before June 24, 1945]

1. The fact that Congress and some of its organizations are still in jail acts as a piece of coercion to compel co-operation on part of Congress.

2. Principle of Communalism being an evil cannot be extended beyond the life of the interim temporary Govt. [and] cannot be used as a precedent for the future and has no application in considering the services. Congress represents all parties and the people without distinction of class, caste or creed.

3. Number of non-Scheduled Hindus should not exceed that of Muslims drawn from all parties including Shias.

4. Implication of Provincial Coalitions

5. Recruitment of services and commitments

6. Method of appointment

7. Financial implications of defence

8. Indian army - its freedom

9. Indian States - Princes and people

10. External Affairs Department

From a copy of: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

---

1 Gandhiji met the Viceroy on June 24, 1945; for the Viceroy’s note on his interview with Gandhiji, vide Appendix “Lord Wavell’s note on his interview”, 24-6-1945.
DEAR MAULANA SAHEB,

It was by mere chance that Pyarelal happened to see you. But what you told him, if his report of the talk is accurate, is startling. The Working Committee has not given you the right or the permission to form a cabinet. You yourself told me that you could not do it without the Working Committee. That is my view too. That was why I had said that you should form a small committee with the assistance of the Working Committee, which could be given that right and then act through that committee or the Working Committee itself. Since you did not react favourably to either of the proposals, I can only conclude that I do not understand or do not know the stand of the Working Committee in the matter. I understand from what Jamnalalji says that you are going to summon the Working Committee anyhow. I consider it improper. I would not wish you to be guilty of such a grave error at this juncture.

I do not know what you have done and how you could persuade the Viceroy. Even if you have committed yourself it is, in my view, your duty to inform him that a mistake has been committed. So much for the matter between you and the Working Committee.

Another thing I would like to tell you is that in anything you do, you should take with you the Congress who are present and you should put everything in writing.

The third is a personal matter. Ever since I first heard the Viceroy’s proclamation, that is, while I was still at Panchgani, I have been shouting that the Congress cannot accept the principle of parity between Muslims and non-Harijan Hindus, an organization of Hindus alone. Even if I am the only one among crores to do so, I shall refuse to be a party to it. I do not care if the negotiations break down on this, for I know and believe that the moment you try to form a national government at the centre in this way you will be laying a wrong foundation.\textsuperscript{1} In this respect I am neither a Hindu, nor belong to any other religion. I belong to all faiths or to none. I only walk in the wayshown by God. I shall be very happy if you can lend me your co-operation in this matter. But if you cannot do it wholeheartedly then I would rather do without it. I shall keep you informed.

I trust you are well and the climate here has not disagreed with you.

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

284. LETTER TO LORD WAVELL

‘MANOR VILLE’, SIMLA,

\textit{June 25, 1945}

DEAR FRIEND,

I was too tired to acknowledge your note\textsuperscript{2} there and then. Nor was there any hurry. I shall remain in Simla during the conference.

\textit{Yours very sincerely,}

M. K. \textsc{Gandhi}

H. E. the Viceroy

\textit{Gandhiji’s Correspondence with the Government, 1944-47, p. 26}

\textsuperscript{1}Vide “Telegram to Abul Kalam Azad”, 17-6-1945.

\textsuperscript{2}Dated June 24, it read: “I have thought over what you told me about your plans when we had our talks this afternoon and I shall be grateful if you will remain in Simla during the conference.” For Lord Wavell’s note on the interview, vide Appendix “Lord Wavell’s note on his interview”, 24-6-1945.
285. NOTE TO MAURICE FRYDMAN

‘MANOR VILLE’, SIMLA W.,
June 25, 1945

Is your word of no value? You made me a definite promise, do you remember?

Love.

BAPU

[PS.]

Do as you are ad[vised] below.

BAPU

From a photostat: G.N. 43

286. LETTER TO JAISUKHLAL GANDHI

‘MANOR VILLE’, SIMLA WEST,
June 25, 1945

CHI. JAISUKHLAL,

I am sending herewith the draft I have prepared of the Trust-deed. Since Gujarati is permitted there, I have drawn it up in that language. If documents in Gujarati are not registered, get a Sindhi or Hindi translation made. There is no need at all for an English translation. You can change the terms. I have tried to embody your own ideas as I have understood them.1

I will go on worrying till Manu is cured of her illness. She must have gone now to Dinshaw’s clinic. Let us hope she will recover there.

Blessings from

BAPU

[PS.]

I do not expect to stay here for long. It will perhaps be decided today how long I shall have to stay. Recall what I told you

1 Gandhiji scribbled this on Dr. Sushila Nayyar’s letter to the addressee. Vide also “Telegram to Soundaram Ramachandran”, 30-6-1945.

2 Vide also the following item.
regarding your health.¹ Roasting groundnut will not make all that difference. I understand about the work.

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./24

287. LETTER TO MANGALDAS PAKVASA

SIMLA,
June 25, 1945

BHAI MANGALDAS PAKVASA,

I am sending herewith the Dinshah Trust-deed. After examining it, translate it only into English. I will not burden you just now with making a Hindi translation. If you approve of the contents, make other documents in the mother tongue or in the national language.² I have been giving you a good deal of trouble. I cannot help it.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 4692. Courtesy: Mangaldas Pakvasa

288. LETTER TO KANAM GANDHI

June 25, 1945

CHI. KANAM,

This is for you. Do not forget the three gurus³. Improve your Urdu and learn to use the Gujarati script correctly. Whatever you write should be like a pearl. Sumi is growing daily.

Blessings to all of you from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 9518. Courtesy: Kanam Gandhi

² Vide also “Letter to Mangaldas Pakvasa”, 12-6-1945 and the preceding item.
³ Presumably, a reference to the three proverbial monkeys
289. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

‘MANOR VILLE’, SIMLA,
June 25, 1945

CHI. MUNNALAL,

We arrived here yesterday having many difficulties on the way. There were crowds at every station, delirious and deaf with love or joy. Manilal has practically lost his voice. I met the Viceroy yesterday. I will know today or tomorrow when I shall be free. Either I or someone else will write. I hope everything is going on well there. I intend to go there after I am free from here, but I cannot say where I may have to halt on the way. I hope Kanchan is well.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 8446. Also C.W. 5584. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

290. LETTER TO JAWAHARLAL NEHRU

‘MANOR VILLE’, SIMLA,
June 25, 1945

CHI. JAWAHARLAL,

There are several names in the Kasturba Memorial Trust. When the Trust was formed, I had expressed a desire that your name and Sardar’s should be included. All the Trustees were agreeable that the names of you two should be included when you were released. I had forgotten to consult you. It occurred to me this morning. Will you agree to be on the Trust? It means working for women and children in the villages and that too in my way. If you can take interest in this, I can send you the papers for your perusal. I have said the same thing to Sardar. He is considering it. I have told him that this is no matter for honour. It is a matter for work.

The same is true about the propagation of Hindustani. I am very keen on having your name for it if you are agreeable. I shall send you the papers if you like, for your persual about this too. I am scared of placing any more burden on your head as you are already overburdened. But what can I do?

Everyone misses you here.

Blessings from
BAPU

From the Hindi original: Gandhi-Nehru Correspondence. Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library

291. DRAFT LETTER OF ATTORNEY FOR MANU GANDHI

[After June 25, 1945]¹

The sum of ten thousand rupees that I have deposited with you at 5-anna interest will be accountable to my grandfather Gandhiji while he is alive and afterwards to my father Jaisukhlal Gandhi. The interest also will be payable to Gandhiji and after him to my father. I hereby transfer all my rights in this regard to them.

From a microfilm of the Hindi: M.M.U./24

292. TELEGRAM TO PARIMAL SHOME

‘MANOR VILLE’, SIMLA WEST,
June 26, 1945

PARIMAL SHOME
12-3 HINDUSTAN ROAD
BALLYGUNGE (CALCUTTA)

YOURS WIRE. YOU CAN PUBLISH LETTER².

GANDHI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ In the source, the letter is placed after the items of June 25, 1945; vide also “Letter to Jaisukhlal Gandhi”, 4-6-1945.
293. LETTER TO AMRITLAL V. THAKKAR

SIMLA,

June 26, 1945

BAPA,

Your letter to Narahari is before me. Send the invitations for the Executive Committee meeting of the Kasturba Nidhi for any day in August convenient to you. If it becomes necessary to change it on my account, we shall do so.

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

294. LETTER TO SUDHIR GHOSH

June 26, 1945

BHAJ SUDHIR,

Only today I am able to reply your letter of June 11. You know what I am doing.

I am very keen to go to Bengal. But I wish to go to all the [nearby] places.¹

Blessings to Shanti² and to you from

BAPU

From the Hindi original: Sudhir Ghosh Papers. Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library

¹ In Gandhi’s Emissary, p. 50, the addressee explains: “With this brief letter in hand I went to see Governor Casey. He said, I could . . . assure him [Gandhiji] that the Governor would do everything in his power to secure for Mr. Gandhi the freedom to go wherever he liked and meet anybody he liked.”

² Addressee’s wife
295. LETTER TO HEMPRABHA DAS GUPTA

SIMLA,
June 26, 1945

HEMPRAHABA,

I have your letter of the 12th. Whatever you are doing, you are doing with deliberation. I shall read the circular when it comes. I hope Satis Babu is well—he should be.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

296. LETTER TO K. N. KATJU

SIMLA,
June 26, 1945

BHAI KAILASHNATH KATJU,

I have your first Hindustani letter. I liked it very much. The handwriting is good, as is of course the language. The letter from Vilas disappointed me. If you can help her to improve, do so.

I finished reading your booklet yesterday. I read it from beginning to end without leaving out anything. I liked it but I think it has shortcomings. In this connection I would advise you to read a big book Satish Babu has written on the cow. The first part of it is already published, the second is about to come out. His full address is . . . Calcutta. He is a first-class chemist. But he gave up everything long back and took up khadi work. He is very industrious. He wrote this book in jail. Those who want to work in the villages should read this book. It does not contain only Satis Babu’s views. He has taken everything from British and American reports. There is much scope for improvement and addition in what you say in your book about cattle, cattle diseases and land. If the villagers have to depend on 1 Vide also “Letter to Vilas Katju”, 21-6-1945.

2 Dehati Pragati; vide also “Letter to K.N. Katju”, 13-5-1945.
3 Cow in India; for Gandhiji’s Foreword, vide “Foreword to Cow in India”, 20-5-1945.
4 Omission as in the source

VOL. 87: 29 MAY, 1945 - 29 AUGUST, 1945 177
Government veterinary doctors for treatment of their cattle, it is not going to work. This does not mean that the villagers are not to take their help but their knowledge should be adapted to village conditions. I have plenty of material on the subject but I do not want to give it here. Perhaps you know Dhiren Mazumdar. He is working in U.P. with Vichitra Narayan. He is Acharya Kripalani’s man and is very industrious. He knows his work well. If you have not already met him, do so. If possible go and see the Khadi Pratishthan of Satis Babu and then bring out a second edition. It will not be of much use as it is. Now that people have become interested in the subject they will buy your book and probably read it, too. However, they will not be able to derive much benefit from it, for, though they will know from the book what they have to do, it will not tell them how they are to do it. This I will expect in the second edition. I have seen from your book that you are interested in the subject and so I have offered the suggestions.

One thing more. Take up at least one village, as I have taken up Sevagram. Then put into practice the things you have said in the book. In this way you will gain experience. This suggestion of mine has another consequence: You will have to do very little legal practice. You must be knowing that Brijkishore Babu, Rajendra Babu, Vallabhbhai and others had to totally give up their practice when they took up such work. I do not suggest that you go so far. You have a vast knowledge of law and have gained so much experience. So with slight modifications do as Motilal had done. While staying in a village take up two or three good cases. Take the cases of the poor free of charge. Devote the rest of your time to village reform. This is all I can say after going through your book.

_Blessings from_

BAPU

DR. KAILASNATH KUTJU
ALLAETABAD

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
297. LETTER TO SUSHILA SHARMA

Simla,
June 26, 1945

Chhi. Sushila,

How can I advise you? These are my views: These days educated men take advantage of the blind faith of women. Truthful women will give up their immoral and unfaithful husbands. Even educated women do not have self-respect and do not keep away from licentiousness. A woman indulging in lechery is certainly lecherous but the one who puts up with lechery is also lecherous. If you can take anything from this you are welcome.

Blessings from

Bapu

Shri Sushila Sharma

Benares

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

298. STATEMENT TO THE PRESS

Simla,
June 26, 1945

The following are names of the Literature Board which was proposed by the All-India Hindustani Prachar Conference held at Wardha on the 26th and 27th February last:

Maulana Syed Sulaiman Nadvi, Azamgarh.
Dr. Tarachand, Allahabad.
Dr. Abid Hussain, Jamia Millia, Delhi.
Pandit Benarsidas Chaturvedi, Tikamgarh.
Dr. Zafar Hasan, Hyderabad (subject to University’s permission).

Sjt. Jinendra Kumar, Delhi.
Dr. Akhtar Hussain, Raipur.
Pandit Sudarshan, Bombay.
Prof. Najib Ashraf Nadvi, Bombay (Subject to Government’s permission).
Sjt. Chandragupta Vidyalankar, Lahore.
Sjt. Satyanarayan, Madras
Pandit Haribhau Upadhyaya, Ajmer.
Pandit Sundarlal, Allahabad.
Acharya Shriman Narayan Agrawal, Wardha.

It is proposed to hold the first meeting of the Board as early as possible at Wardha. The date will be announced after consultation with the members by Acharya Shriman Narayan Agrawal. The names originally proposed at the Conference have undergone some change. All the persons whose names were proposed were not at the Conference and substitutes had to be found for those of the absentees who did not find it possible to serve on the Board. I had hesitated to give my name for the Board, but as a result of correspondence with Dr. Tarachand and others, I have agreed to be on the Board as its Chairman. I may also add that the list is likely to be increased by a few names.

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

299. FRAGMENT OF LETTER TO MANU GANDHI

[After June 26, 1945]¹

I am taking out the clipping bearing my note added as a postscript in Sushila’s letter to . . ² to save the postage. Take it from me when we reach there. Keep well. Give up crying either silently or openly.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ In the source, the letter is placed after the items of June 26, 1945.
² The name is illegible.
300. CABLE TO AGA KHAN

Express

‘MANOR VILLE’, SIMLA WEST,
June 27, 1945

H. H. AGA KHAN
TANGA (EAST AFRICA)
THANKS FOR KIND CABLE.

GANDHI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

301. TELEGRAM TO SHAMALDAS GANDHI

SIMLA
June 27, 1945

SHAMALDAS GANDHI
“VANDEMATARAM”
BOMBAY
CONGRATULATE AND BLESS BHOGILAL FOR FAIR SETTLEMENT. YOU DID GOOD WORK.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

302. LETTER TO MIRABEHN

SIMLA,
June 27, 1945

CHI. MIRA,

Your letter. Beware of overworking yourself or acting against the weather for which you are not made. Do come to Simla whether I am here or not. I may leave any day. I am glad you have two helpers. I wish Balvantsinha can come but I doubt.

Love.

BAPU

SHRI MIRABAI
KISAN ASHRAM
BAHADRABAD P. O., via Jwalapur
(NEAR HARDWAR)

From the original: C.W. 6508. Courtesy: Mirabehn. Also G.N. 9903
303. LETTER TO GLADYS OWEN

Simla West,
June 27, 1945

My dear Gladys,

I am glad you are there and hope you will get rid of your weakness. Expect no more from me. We are all in God’s hands whether we will or no.

Love,

Bapu

From a photostat: G.N. 6199

304. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

June 27, 1945

Chi. Munnalal,

Since the post is about to be dispatched, here are a few words. If Hoshiaribehn willingly permits Balvantsinha, he would go to Mirabehn. I am now hoping to go there in a few days.

Blessings to all from

Bapu

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 8448. Also C.W. 5585. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

305. LETTER TO NANDLAL PATEL

Simla,
June 27, 1945

Chi. Nandlal,

Prabhakar has sent a wire saying that Hari-ichchha is dying a slow death. I hope that Hari-ichha is keeping up her spirit. Of course you two will be showing great courage too. If we fear death it shows our faith in God is shaken or we lack it. Life and death are in His hands. We should live in full realization of this.

I have not taken it for granted that Hari-ichchha is going to die. The saying “As long as there is breath, there is hope” has so often 1 Quaker educationist; in 1936, she joined Theosophical School, Varanasi, to make a study of education in India.

come true.¹

I cannot say when I shall be able to come there. But I hope it will be soon.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

306. LETTER TO DEO

SIMLA WEST,
June 27, 1945

CHI. DEO,

Sushila has gone out for tea. It is possible her letter will not go in the envelope today. I hope you are better. If you regularly sit in cold water and take mud treatment, you will get well. Of course you have to be particular about the diet.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

307. LETTER TO LALCHAND

‘MANOR VILLE’, SIMLA,
June 27, 1945

Bhai Lalchand,

I have your letter and the cheque. I had received your wire also. That did not call for a reply. If sometimes I pray for someone I do not charge for it. No one should. A prayer can never be a thing for sale. A prayer has to come only from the heart. If the renewal of your licence was delayed what prayer could I have offered and how could I have offered it? Neither I nor anyone else has the power to change the laws of nature. God knows best what is good for everyone and ordains accordingly. I am therefore returning your cheque. I want to remove the misapprehension in your mind that you succeeded in your design because I prayed for you. You must know that I did not pray f or your licence nor could it have anything to do with payer. After understanding all this if you want to send the cheque for the Harijans you may.

¹ Vide also “Letter to Munnalal G. Shah”, 28-6-1945.

Blessings from
M. K. GANDHI

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

308. LETTER TO MOHAMMED YASIN

‘MANOR VILLE’, SIMLA,
June 27, 1945

BHAI MOHAMMED YASIN,

I have gone through your letter. If Pyarelal cannot give you satisfaction, then I can’t do anything more because I do not have the time. I have heard everything you have to say, so please give up the desire for a personal discussion with me. The real thing is work, and work alone, and the most important work is plying the charkha oneself and persuading others to ply it. This means that one has to learn and use in practice all the processes from growing cotton to spinning the yarn.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

309. LETTER TO MUNSHI

SIMLA WEST,
June 27, 1945

BHAI MUNSHIJI,

I am no doubt keeping in mind the name you have sent. I do not know what will be feasible. Let us see what happens. I hope the Ashram is going on well.

Yours,
M. K. GANDHI

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
Addressing the prayer meeting Mahatma Gandhi said that the object of attending prayers was to commune with God and turn the searchlight inwards so that with the help of God they could overcome their weaknesses. He believed that one imbibed pure thoughts in the company of the pure. Even if there was one pure man in that gathering, the rest would be affected by that one man’s purity. The condition was that they came with that intention. Otherwise, their coming to the prayers was meaningless.

He went further and maintained that even if all had their weaknesses but came to the meeting with the intention of removing them, their co-operative effort made day to day would quicken the progress of reform. For even as co-operation was necessary, in the economic or the political field so was co-operation much more necessary on the moral plane. That was the meaning of the prayer meetings he had been holding since his return to India.

Therefore, he appealed to them to sit absolutely quiet, with closed eyes, so as to shut themselves off from outward thoughts for a few minutes at least. This co-operative prayer needed no fuss, no advertisement. They must be free from hypocrisy.

From the original: C.W. 4208. Courtesy: Amrit Kaur. Also G.N. 7844

311. TELEGRAM TO PRABHAVATI DEVI

SIMLA, June 28, 1945

PRABHAVATI DEVI
HARIJAN ASHRAM, KINGSWAY [CAMP]
DELHI

MY STAY UNCERTAIN. FOLLOW NEWSPAPERS AND DECIDE.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

---

1 The draft which bears corrections by Gandhiji has the second paragraph written by him.
2 From The Hindustan Times, 28-6-1945
312. LETTER TO LORD WAVELL

"MANOR VILLE", SIMLA WEST,
June 28, 1945

DEAR FRIEND,

Some hangings—an aftermath of the disturbances of 1942—are impending. I have some cases given to me by Dr. Rajendra Prasad of the Working Committee. The Chimur cases you perhaps know. I do not quite know how the last stages of the conference are shaping. Be that as it may, I suggest that all such hangings be commuted to life sentences without further public appeal or agitation and whether judicial proceedings are going on or not. If you think that this is beyond you, may I suggest that these be postponed so as to be dealt with by the national government that is coming into being?

Yours very sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

H. E. THE VICE ROY
SIMLA

Gandhiji’s Correspondence with the Government, 1944-47, pp. 35-6

313. POSTSCRIPT TO “DRAFT INSTRUCTIONS FOR CIVIL RESISTERS”

SEVAGRAM1,
June 28, 1945

These would have been issued, if they had been passed by the Working Committee. Now they are a part of historical record only.

M. K. G.

Gandhiji’s Correspondence with the Government, 1942-44, p. 288

1 The Viceroy’s reply, dated June 29, inter alia, read: “I have already given instructions to the Provincial Governments not to execute the sentences in any of these cases until the Privy Council has passed orders on the petition for special leave to appeal. . . . I will bear your letter in mind when I consider the whole question after the decision of the Privy Council is known.”

2 The instructions, drafted by Gandhiji on August 4, 1942, (vide “Draft instructions for Civil Resisters”, 4-8-1945,) were discussed by the Congress Working Committee on August 8. The Committee was to meet again on August 9, but early that morning the leaders were arrested.

1 Permanent address
314. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

June 28, 1945

CHI. MUNNALAL,

I got your wire. Hari-ichchha had been a daughter to me. But why need we grieve over her death? Her soul is certainly living. Let nobody, therefore, grieve.

Blessings from
BAPU

315. LETTER TO CHANDRANI

June 28, 1945

CHI. CHAND,

You seem to be extremely sensitive. No one has accused you of telling a lie. You may understand a thing in one way, another person in another way, while the truth may be a third thing. But this matter is now over. Now the pleurisy has flared up again. How can you study in this condition? How did you come to get pleurisy? This needs to be considered. However, there should be [no] hurry. Sushilabehn will be writing to you.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: Chandrani Papers. Courtesy: Gandhi National Museum and Library

316. LETTER TO JUGAL KISHORE BIRLA

June 28, 1945

BHAI JUGAL KISHORE,

I hope you have received the telegram I sent last night in reply to yours. Just now I received Chi. Basant’s letter and also the note. I only hope and I pray to God that He may grant you long life and good health to shoulder the cares of the world.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHETH JUGAL KISHORE BIRLA
NEW DELHI

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
Bhai Govind Ballabh Pant1.

Yesterday I came to know that you had gone to Rajaji’s house and there all of a sudden felt giddy. I was given to understand that in any case you were not feeling too fit and that partly I was responsible for it. That should not be so. I am very firm in my view and I should be so. There may be occasions when you do not agree with my views. So what? All of us, if we want to serve the country, should have our own opinions. Only then can the country forge ahead and a way be shown to the people. I firmly believe that you should not work at the cost of your health. Stop worrying and do not feel unhappy that you do not agree with my views.

The more I think the more convinced I become that if the Working Committee tries to select as many Hindus as there are Muslims then the communal poison will spread throughout the country and we will never be able to win freedom. What is the harm if the Congress is reduced from a majority to a minority? Must we do a wrong thing to maintain our majority? Will not the Congress become a communal organization by selecting as many Hindus as there are Muslims?

If the Congress takes the fewest of Hindus, and as many as possible from the other communities, the communal poison will be removed and it will succeed in bringing freedom nearer. I quite see that now the first step towards freedom has to be taken through the Government. The course should be straight so far as we are concerned.

If people do not accept this, then let the reins of Government be passed to those whom the people approve. Everything will be all right even if there are only a few straightforward persons. This is my opinion and I can never give it up.

1 (1887-1961); Advocate, Allahabad High Court; in 1928, during demonstration against Simon Commission at Lucknow, suffered lathi blows from which he never fully recovered; was leader of Swaraj Party in United Provinces Legislative Council, 1923-30, and U. P. Premier, 1937-39; Chief Minister of Uttar Pradesh, 1946-55; Home Minister, Government of India, 1955-61.
You have taken for granted that the Working Committee at Bombay has accepted the principle of parity. I have rejected it.

Please get well.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

318. INTERVIEW TO PRESTON GROVER

SIMLA,
June 29, 1945

In reply to my questions, Gandhiji said he was feeling well and that the 7,000-foot altitude of Simla had not affected him so far, although he was watchful that he did not overstrain his heart.

Answering an initial request that he should give a report on the negotiations as they stood at the moment, Mahatma Gandhi said:

I wish I could, but I am here only as an adviser. I have, for many years, been advising the Congress. But now, I have constituted myself as an adviser both to the Congress and to the Viceroy, too, and through him of the British people. You see, that makes my position exceptionally delicate. The only information I have is what my colleagues bring when they come to me. Frankly speaking, I do not know in what position the conference exactly is today. It has never been my habit to cry out of curiosity.

It was suggested that the Congress representatives should keep him advised almost hourly, to which he replied:

They do, and they do not. Unless the Viceroy wants my advice, I would know nothing as to what is happening at that end. But, if things go on smoothly, he does not need my advice. On our side too, while they do come to me, it need not be from day to day or hour to hour. While, therefore, I cannot tell you what exactly the situation in the conference is, I can only share with you my hope and prayer that things will come right both for India and Great Britain. I say for both, because I do not know that, even if a settlement is pulled through, it will be on right lines.

But I give you a tip. I was not joking when I made a statement¹ some time back in answer to Sir Feroz Khan Noon at San Francisco, that Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru is my heir. He has got ability, knowledge and close touch with the public here and can interpret India’s mind. I have already, as I wrote1 to Lord Linlithgow, taken him as my guide in international affairs. He can interpret India’s mind to the outside world as no one else can.

¹ Vide “Statement to the press”, 4-5-1945.

This much I can say, that Congress can never become sectional organization. Not that there are not communal-minded people in it, but the Congress can never work communally. Therefore, normally speaking, the parity principle should be distasteful to everybody.

Turning to the composition of the current conference, Gandhiji declared it was “political in its complexion” and not communal. This was in direct contradiction to the Muslim League argument that the whole conference was chosen on communal basis.

If they wanted various groups to be represented communally, they should have invited the Hindu Mahasabha and not the Congress, which has always been, and is now, a purely political body trying to think and act in terms of the whole nation. It cannot belie its entire history at this critical moment.

Asked if an acceptance of invitation to work for an interim government was in the belief that it was a step towards independence, Gandhiji replied:

The acceptance of the invitation was a recognition of the fact that it was a step towards independence. But this was subject to explanation and clarification of what was in the Viceroy’s mind. It was like sitting on the top of a volcano which might erupt. I took that risk.

Toward the end of the interview, it was suggested that Mr. Jinnah, President of the Muslim League, was reported to be somewhat resentful that Gandhiji had withdrawn from the conference.

If Mr. Jinnah wants me there, he can take me there. We shall both go arm in arm. He can help me up the hill and save strain on my heart. Such a gesture on Mr. Jinnah’s part would mean that he wants a settlement even in the teeth of the differences and obstacles that face the conference. You can tell him that I am quite willing to be taken to the conference by him.

I suggested that not only Mr. Jinnah, but Lord Wavell, most of India and all observers at the conference looked upon Gandhiji as head of the Congress regardless of the technicality that he was not a member, and that no settlement would be reached without his consent. Gandhiji replied:

1 Vide “Letter to Lord Linlithgow”, 14-8-1942.

That is both right and wrong. That impression has been created because generally my advice is accepted. But technically and substantially it is wrong. The conference is legally representative and, therefore, I can have no place in it.

To my insistence that his was the controlling voice in the Congress, Gandhiji replied:

Not even that. They can shunt me out at any time, brush aside my advice. If I tried to override them, I might succeed for once. But the moment I try to cling to power, I fall, never to rise again. That is, not in my temperament.

The Hindu, 1-7-1945

319. LETTER TO KRISHNAVARMA

[Panbhgani] Simla West, [On or before June 19)] June 30, 1945

Bhai Krishnavarma,

I have your letter of the 3rd. It is good that you gave me the detailed information about uncle.²¹ I on my part have put uncle in your hands in the hope that he will get well. For the sake of his treatment certainly be firm with him. I wrote this letter long back in Panchgani. I did not post it as I left the place. Now I wish to inquire about uncle and Sailen.³ Give whatever treatment you think fit to Sailen. Both of them should get well. I will have to think about your expenses. Sailen should write to me. Please show this to him.

Blessings from

Bapu

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

---

¹ Inferred from the contents; Gandhiji left Panchgani on June 19.
³ ibid
320. TELEGRAM TO MIRABEHN

SIMLA,
June 30, 1945

MIRABEHN
CARE POSTMASTER BAHADRAD
JWALAPUR
COME IF YOU WISH. I SEE BALVANT SINHA WONT TILL I REACH ASHRAM.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

321. TELEGRAM TO PRABHAVATI

SIMLA,
June 30, 1945

PRABHAVATIDEVI
HARJAN ASHRAK KINGSWAY [CAMP]
DELHI
COME. HOPE SATYAVATI WELL.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

322. TELEGRAM TO DHARMADAK SHASTRI

SIMLA,
June 30, 1945

SASTRIJI
ASHRAM
KALSI (DEHRA DUN)
COME PROVIDED YOU HAVE FRIENDS TO STAY WITH. HAVE NO ROOM.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
323. TELEGRAM TO SOUNDARAM RAMACHANDRAN

Express

SIMLA,

June 30, 1945

SOUNDARAM RAMACHANDRAN
KASTURBA GANDHI MATERNITY HOME
ADYAR (MADRAS)

Frydman Bharatanand staying Adyar. His condition reported serious. Please see him. Do needful.

ENGAGE NURSE IF NECESSARY.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

324. LETTER TO NARAHARI D. PARIKH

SIMLA,

June 30, 1945

CHI. NARAHARI,

You will have to be content with whatever news from here Chi. P. or S. or M. may give you. You have given in your postcard as much as you could include in it. I am writing this after the prayer, since I do not feel like returning to bed. My work here has been prolonged. But I do hope that it will end well. I had a letter from Manu from Poona. She expresses confidence that she will be fully restored. There is [however] no letter from Vanu.

I set great store by the purification of the atmosphere there. Purification includes cultivation of knowledge and devotion, diligence, perseverance in the path of dharma, etc. Both of you should ponder over this. Write to me and ask me. I had wanted to return there in the first week of July, but that will not be possible now. That is why I am writing this letter. I am glad you could see Hari-ichchha before she passed away. It is a deliverance for her.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: S.N. 9133. Also C.W. 5884. Courtesy: Narahari D. Parikh

1 Manu Gandhi
2 Vanamala, addressee’s daughter

VOL. 87: 29 MAY, 1945 - 29 AUGUST, 1945
325. LETTER TO LORD WAVELL

‘MANOR VILLE’, SIMLA WEST,
June 30, 1945

DEAR FRIEND,

Many thanks for your two letters—one of yesterday’s date about the condemned prisoners' and the other of today about my presence in Simla till the conference finally disperses.

About the first letter I need say nothing beyond thanking you for your prompt and hopeful reply.

As to the second, I will not leave Simla without knowing that you no longer want me. Whenever you need me, you have only to send me a message.

I hope you have noticed that Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru is reaching Simla tomorrow and that you will invite him to meet you and Lady Wavell.

Yours very sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

H. E. THE VICEROY
SIMLA

Gandhiji’s Correspondence with the Government, 1944-47, p. 27

326. LETTER TO SHAMALDAS GANDHI

SIMLA,
June 30, 1945

CHI. SHAMALDAS,

I have your letter. My congratulations to Bhogilal are contained in the telegram I sent you. Now it is your responsibility to see that Mahendra does not squander money. I had the same relations with Kevalrambhai as I had with your father. Then both of them left. Now bring credit to what I have done. Convey my thanks to Bhogilal for

2 Which read: “Your friends have no doubt told you that the conference adjourned yesterday until 14th July to enable the parties to send me lists of names so that I may see whether I can, on paper, form an Executive Council acceptable to all concerned. . . . I hope you may be able to stay in Simla until the conference ends... I should like to see you again before you leave.”
3 Vide “Telegram to Shamaldas Gandhi”, 27-6-1945.
bringing credit to the late Kevalram. May he bring him more. I do not have time to write more.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

327. INTERVIEW TO ASSOCIATED PRESS OF INDIA

SIMLA,
June 30, 1945

GANDHIJI:

I have registered your claim but have nothing to say. I generally don’t speak during day but for your sake I am speaking to you as a special case. You have to prompt me.

CORRESPONDENT: What will be the composition of the interim government if you have your way?

G. (Laughing) The interim government will consist of top men, irrespective of caste, creed or colour. If I became the Viceroy of India, I would startle the world with my list and yet make it acceptable.

I asked Mahatmaji to explain what he meant by top men, and he amplified his remark by saying that he meant men and women who are fittest to do the work the country needs. . . . The Mahatma said:

Of course, nobody will take the trouble of appointing me the Viceroy of India nor of electing me as President of the Congress—for I am not even a four-anna member of the Congress to be eligible for election—with full authority to appoint the new government.

Mahatma Gandhi said that he would not hesitate to leave out anyone at present in the Congress, if he felt that better men were available outside who would work in their respective spheres so as to bring full independence at the earliest time possible.

I next asked:

In the course of your correspondence with the Viceroy on his proposals, you objected to the term “caste Hindus” in the matter of parity of representation for Hindus and Muslims, adding that if this parity between caste Hindus and Muslims was

---

1 According to the source, Gandhiji jokingly said this when A. S. Bharatan, Special Correspondent of the Associated Press of India, greeted him. “Mahatma Gandhi . . . seated on a simple mattress on a raised platform in a room overlooking the snow-capped Himalayan . . . ranges . . . was actually enjoying the magnificent scenery in front of him.”
unalterable, then the Congress would have no place in the new Government.¹

According to the reports, the Congress delegates to the Conference have accepted parity between Hindus other than Scheduled Classes and Muslims. Have you any comment to make on this?

If Congressmen have accepted parity, it cannot be in the sense you imagine. I interpret the Viceregal pronouncement² to mean that neither community can ask for more representation than the other in the national cabinet. Thus Hindus other than the Scheduled Classes can, if they wish, be less but not more than the Muslims.³

Do you approve of the procedure suggested by Lord Wavell yesterday at the leaders’ conference for the selection of the new Executive Council, namely, that all parties should submit separate panels of names to the Viceroy first and that thereafter he would consult Party leaders before making his final selection and place the personnel finally selected by him before the conference for approval?

The procedure suggested by Lord Wavell is, in my opinion, good inasmuch as the Viceroy does not seek to impose his will on the conference. The Viceroy has said in his opening remarks to the delegates that the various elements represented in the conference should regard him, the Viceroy, as their leader. It is a good and dignified expression that Lord Wavell has used. He thus acts at the conference as its leader and not as the agent of Whitehall.

_The Hindustan Times, 1-7-1945_

---

328. TELEGRAM TO KHURSHEDBEHN NAOROJI

Express

SIMLA, July 1, 1945

KHURSHEDBEHN
HARIJAN COLONY, KINGSWAY [CAMP]
DELHI

COME WITH PRABHA.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

---

¹ Vide “Statement to the press”, 15-6-1945.
² Vide Appendix “Speech broadcast by the Viceroy”, 14-6-1945.
³ The correspondent explains here that on being informed by Gandhiji’s Secretary that “time was up”, he sought permission “to ask a last question”.

196

THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
329. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

“MANOR VILLE”, SIMLA WEST,
July 1, 1945

CHI. MUNNALAL,

I got your letter. Now my return there may be delayed. Maybe, I shall not be able to leave till the 15th. Let us see what happens. I understand about Balvantsinha. I hope everything goes on well there. If Dr. Ice insists on buffalo’s milk, let him procure it for himself and drink it. I don’t think it is in any way our duty to supply him with it. He should make do with what we supply in the ordinary course. Is Kanchan able to help you in any way or does she still continue to be ill? I expect a letter from her with details of her work.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 8444. Also C.W. 5587. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

330. LETTER TO LALMANSINGH

SIMLA,
July 1, 1945

BHAI LALMANSINGH,

Balvantsinha has written to me about you. I would like to meet you if I make a halt at Delhi. However, it seems I shall not be stopping in Delhi. How, then, can we meet? I have already written1 to you to persuade Hoshiari and take her with you. Hoshiari’s children should be allowed to stay with her. One of our bad practices is that we suppress women while men have their freedom. What would you have done if she had been a boy? But I do not wish to try and convince you more fully through a letter. You can do this: come along with me when I leave Delhi. I will write to you when something is decided about my departure.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

331. LETTER TO BALVANTSINHA

SIMLA,
July 1, 1945

CHI. BALVANTSINHA,

I have your letter. I can understand Mirabehn’s impatience. She is anxious to get some help for her farming and her cow. But I shall not force you to go when Mirabehn herself will be arriving in a day or two. I shall explain to her the whole thing. You may then do whatever you think proper.

I do not know how I am going to meet Hoshiari’s father, because now I may not be required to stop in Delhi. I am writing I to him.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 1964

332. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA

SIMLA,
July 1, 1945

CHI. KRISHNACHANDRA,

I have received two postcards from you. It would be better to put all the letters in one envelope; that way you can save money. I note what you say about Balkrishna. I do not like it. There is some mistake somewhere. But my duty is not to give too much thought to it from here. I shall probably be reaching there after the 15th. But it can also be earlier.

I understand about you. My going to Sevagram has been postponed a little. Does it make any difference?

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4575

1Vide the preceding item.
333. LETTER TO MAHESH DUTT MISHRA

SIMLA,
July 1, 1945

CHI. MAHESH,

I have your letter. Now I am stuck here. Maybe, I shall not be able to leave before the 15th of July. Hope you are well. Meet me somewhere on the way if you can, otherwise at Sevagram.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI MAHESH DUTT

HARDA

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

334. DRAFT OF REVISED PHOENIX TRUST-DEED

SIMLA,
July 2, 1945

In or about the year 1902, I, Mohandas Karamchand Gandhi, then of Johannesburg, Attorney, bought a piece of property about 100 acres in two lots, popularly known as the Phoenix Settlement, for benevolent purposes. Not wishing to have anything in my name as sole owner, I converted it into a trust and had it duly registered at Pietermaritzburg, Natal.\(^1\)

All the trustees, except Lewis Walter Ritch of Johannesburg, Attorney, and I as settlers’ trustee, have died.

The settlers under the Trust have all retired from the Phoenix Settlement. My son, Manilal Gandhi, together with his wife, Sushila-behn Gandhi, and their children have lived on the Settlement and managed the property and the weekly newspaper Indian Opinion, founded by me.

Now it is my intention to broaden the Trust and appoint new trustees. Therefore the conditions of the present Trust shall be:

1. As long as possible to conduct the newspaper, Indian Opinion, in English and Gujarati and other Indian and even African languages according to felt necessity and convenience including resources but never at a loss. Any profits made from the newspaper after the deduction of running expenses shall be returned to the Settlement.

\(^1\) Vide “Letter to A.E. Chotabhai”, 4-5-1911 and “The Phoenix Trust Deed”, 14-9-1912.

2. The Press Department may undertake job work and the sale of literature approved by the Trust in the interest of and healthy instructions of the public.

3. The Trust may found a public library and school, subject to rules made by the trustees and built from donations given by the public. These shall be named after my deceased wife, Kasturba.

4. The trustees may also found nature cure establishments and undertake all activities that may educate Indians morally, socially, economically and hygienically.

5. All decisions of the trustees shall be by majority.

For the purposes aforesaid I appoint the following trustees during life or at my discretion:

(i) The said Lewis Walter Ritch,
(ii) Manilal Mohandas Gandhi,
(iii) Parsi Jalbhai Rustomji,
(iv) Surendrarai Medh, [and a]
(v) [A] Muslim.

The said Manilal Gandhi shall be the Managing Trustee and, while he is manager of the Trust and editor of Indian Opinion, shall draw not more than one hundred pounds per month with free lodging on the Settlement for himself, his wife and children. The said Manilal Gandhi shall maintain proper books of account for the management of the Trust property and the newspaper, Indian Opinion. Separate accounts shall be maintained in respect of Indian Opinion and the management of the Trust property. The said accounts shall be audited every six months.

In the event of any of the trustees being dead, resigning or being displaced by me, the remaining trustees may appoint another instead, my consent being considered necessary during my life.

WITNESS:

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
335. TELEGRAM TO N. B. PARULEKAR

Express

Simla,
July 2, 1945

Parulekar
Editor, “Sakal”
Poona

Please tell Rambhau fasting unnecessary. Time health permitting would like study case and guide.

Gandhi

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

336. LETTER TO REV. FOSS WESTCOTT

“Manor Ville”, Simla West,
July 2, 1945

Dear Friend,

Early this morning after prayer I think of you and your impending retirement and your reported determination to pass the rest of your days in India. Does it not mean an extended scope of service unconditioned by cares and limitations of office? May you live long for the sake of the higher task.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. Gandhi

[P.S.]

I hope your successor will prove worthy of you. My love to him.

M. K. Gandhi

Metropolitan
Calcutta

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Bishop of Calcutta and Metropolitan of India, Burma and Ceylon
337. LETTER TO NARENDRA DEV

‘MANOR VILLE’, SIMLA (WEST),
July 2, 1945

Bhai Narendra Dev,

I am able to write to you only today after the morning prayer while I observe silence. Is your health better now? If you need rest, Sevagram is at your disposal. When you have the leisure, write to me your views.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

338. LETTER TO KISHORELAL G. MASHRUWALA

‘MANOR VILLE’, SIMLA WEST,
July 2, 1945

Chh. Kishorelal,

I have sat down to write love letters immediately after the prayer today. The first I wrote to Bishop Westcott, the second to the ailing Narendra Dev and this third I am writing to you. Doesn’t the "ae" look like "Oe"? Can a pot have its neck reshaped after it is baked? But I wonder whether this saying can be applied to a living pot. It must of course have been first used by a wiseacre for an old man. So much for joking, though not quite without meaning.

Though I am engaged here in an important work, all the same the mind is filled with supreme peace. My window opens on the Himalayas. As soon as it was known that I would have to stay here for fifteen days, the mind turned to this spectacle. Since the house was built for men accustomed to sitting in chairs, one can see nothing if one squats on the floor. I, therefore, became shameless and seated myself on a bench. Now the eyes are stuck on the scene, so is the mind. Even while lying on the bench I can see something of the spectacle. On a clear day, the hills are covered with snow. For a spectacle better than this, one must go to Shivji’s Kailas!

My Kailas, however, is Sevagram. The life-giving waters of my Ganga flow from there. Narahari and you, therefore, should devote your spare time to removing the deficiencies of the place. I have said as much as I could in my letter to Narahari. I hope he has filled in the rest.

Are Gomati and you as you were before? Do you have faith in the Ishopanishad, and aspire to live up to 125 for the sake of service? And if you do, are you ready to fulfil the conditions for that?

As for the developments here, newspapers have given fairly detailed reports.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 5885. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

339. NOTE TO AMRIT KAUR

[July 2, 1945]

The Working Committee is to meet here tomorrow. If Shummy is disturbed, I could easily transfer it elsewhere. It is to meet here for my sake. I do not need it here. Don’t be weak and have it here. This is not your sole house and Shummy is ill. Think well and clearly before replying. The meeting means a lot as you know.

Sardar cannot eat at night. Nothing need be kept for him except hot milk and hot water. Probably Devdas will get into telephonic touch with him. He has undertaken to look after the three women and Sardar’s movement till his arrival here.

From the original: C.W. 4160. Courtesy: Amrit Kaur. Also G.N. 7795

1 From the reference to the Working Committee which met on July 3. The note is written on the reverse side of a telegram received by Gandhiji on July 1, 1945, at Simla.
340. LETTER TO SATYAVATI

‘MANOR VILLE’, SIMLA,

July 2, 1945

CHI. SATYAVATI,

Is your health improving? Or was the improvement only momentary? Now Khurshed is with you, Prabha is with you. If human love can keep you alive you are bound to live. God knows best. We are getting on. The ‘Jewel of India’1 arrived yesterday. Let us see what happens.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

341. SPEECH AT PRAYER MEETING, SIMLA

July 2, 1945

Mahatma Gandhi drew the attention of the people to the new rule of the A. I. S. A. according to which payment for khadi had to be made partly in yarn. This rule had come into force from the first of July in Simla. People had said to him that Simla Khadi Bhandar sold khadi to all sorts of people who came up for short or long visits. Most of them could not spin and the sales of the Bhandar would go down if part payment of the price of khadi in yarn was insisted upon. He did not mind such a result, untoward though it would be.

There was a time, Gandhiji said, when they aimed at promoting the sale of khadi to help the poor to supplement their income. But deep thought, especially during his recent incarceration, had convinced him that if khadi was to serve as a means of bringing swaraj, its scope and meaning had to be extended. He could not keep a mighty organization like the A. I. S. A. merely for producing and selling khadi for the sake of providing economic relief. Any other occupation could be utilized for that purpose. If khadi was to bring swaraj through non-violence, millions had to spin with the full consciousness of its implication in terms of ahimsa and independence. The A. I. S. A. had started by asking for yarn worth only two pice for every rupee worth of khadi sold. If he could carry conviction, he would insist upon the full payment being made in yarn. If they loved freedom, they should not find it burdensome to do that much—those who did not wish to be free had no business to come to the prayers. A man of prayer could never accept slavery as his lot.

---

1 The reference is to Jawaharlal Nehru; ‘jawahar’, literally, means jewel.

If all had taken to spinning in the way he wanted it, Gandhiji said, they would have had swaraj without any further effort. He would not have had to come up to Simla. But society was made of all kinds of people. Therefore he had to come in common with others for the conference to see whether it was possible through the conference [to find a] way to further the progress towards independence.

As for the yarn to be given in exchange for khadi it should be either spun by the individual concerned or by members of his family. The farthest the A. I. S. A. could go was to let them take yarn spun by their servants whom they should treat as members of the family. Yarn bought from the black market could not serve the purpose in view. Also, if Bhandars began to sell yarn to prospective purchasers of khadi, that would defeat the very purpose for which the new rule was being enforced.

The Hindu, 4-7-1945

342. LETTER TO LORD SAMUEL

[After July 2, 1945]

DEAR LORD SAMUEL,

I have your letter of 2nd July. I am sorry that you are still unconvinced. The ground of your objections seems to be that whilst the Congress may sincerely wish to embrace all parties and is trying to do so, it has not yet been able to achieve it and that its ultimate achievement is problematical, while the taking of the delivery is to be immediate and certain. This objection again overlooks the very relevant fact to which I have twice drawn your attention, namely, that the Congress through its president has invited the Government to transfer full power to the League and ask it to form a truly national government, in which it would have the loyal co-operation of the Congress. This offer was reiterated at Simla. But I am sorry to have to say it was again turned down.

I still adhere to my statement that “there cannot be Swaraj without an understanding with the Muslims.” My contention is and has been that the presence of the third party is the greatest stumbling-block in the way of this understanding. So long as one community in the country enjoys the power of vetoing all political progress there can be no reasonable settlement. In India this anomalous power is assured to the League by the British Government which supererogates to itself the right of arbitrating and holding the balance of power between the various communities. In the absence of an agreed solution, a just solution through impartial arbitration is held to be the only feasible alternative in civilized society, but in India the absence of an agreed solution is strangely held to be a justification for retention of power by an alien Government over a nation of 400 millions! ‘Quit India’ can be the only reply to such a claim. It seems strange that you should see in this cry a manifestation of totalitarian spirit instead of the anguished despair of an enslaved people to be free from totalitarian foreign rule which has in the past demonstrably sabotaged all their efforts to achieve unity in order to be free and spurned their united and unanimous demands for political advance.

---

1 This was in reply to the addressee’s letter dated July 2, 1945.
2 Herbert Louis Samuel, Liberal leader

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

343. LETTER TO AMRITLAL V. THAKKAR

SMLA
July 3, 1945

BAPA,

I have your two letters before me—that of 28th and 29th. You may call meetings of Harijan Sevak Sangh and the Executive Committee of the Kasturba Trust in August as you suggest. Leave out Mondays.

I approve the sum of Rs.975 to meet the expenses of Mridulabehn’s office for three months,

Yours,

BAPU

SECRETARY,
KASTURBA SMARAK NIDHI
BAJAJWADI, WARDHA

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
344. LETTER TO AMRITLAL V. THAKKAR

SIMLA,
July 3, 1945

BAPA,

I got up at three today. The reply in Hindi to your two Hindi letters I am sending to Wardha. I have gone through your latest about Sailen. You may gladly give him Rs. 175 per month. I had considered everything. However, I consider your calculations right. If he recovers at Malad, there will be no difficulty. I do not like two boys having been ill there. Is Sheth Jugalkishore any better now? And what about the social worker, Satyavati?

You must not fall ill.

BAPU

SHRI THAKKAR BAPA
HARIJAN NIVAS
KINGSWAY [CAMP], DELHI

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy Pyarelal

345. LETTER TO GOKULCHAND NARANG

SIMLA,
July 3, 1945

BHAI GOKULCHANDJI,

I have your letter of June 29,1945. It is so full of rage that you could have written it only in English. If Rajkumari wrote in English, she made a great mistake. But what could the poor woman do? Her education began with English. The ideas were mine.

You and I have different views regarding victory and defeat, justice and injustice. But what is the harm? A tree is known from its fruit. Let us see what happens.

Yours,
M. K. GANDHI

SHRI GOKULCHAND NARANG
SAVOY HOTEL
MUSSOORIE

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy Pyarelal

1 Vide the preceding item.
2 At the Nature Cure Clinic of Krishnavarma
3 Leading barrister of Lahore; Minister, Local Self-Government, Punjab; President, Hindu Mahasabha; pioneered industrial development in the Punjab
346. LETTER TO RAGHUVIR

SIMLA,
July 3, 1945

Bhai Raghuvir,

I have your letter. Thanks. It is not Hindi Prachar; it is Hindustani Bhasha Prachar Sangh. Are not Dr. Tarachand, Dr. Hasan and others philologists? But if you can help me, in any way, I want your help. I am taking your dictionary with me. I like it.

Please let me know in what way you will be able to help.

Blessings from
Bapu

Dr. Raghuvir
Saraswati Vihar, Lahore

From a copy of the Hindi Pyarelal Papers courtesy: Pyarelal

347. LETTER TO SHANTA

SIMLA
July 3, 1945

Chhi. Shanta,

I got the couple of words you wrote. Keep on moving forward. Let us see when we can meet.

Blessings from
Bapu

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

348. LETTER TO LILAVATI ASAR

Sevagram, 1
July 4, 1945

Chhi. Lili,

You are wicked. Why should I write to you when I am busy? Does it mean that I think of you only when I write to you?

I am glad that the boy has recovered.

It would be surprising if Lakshmidas fixed the marriage to suit your convenience. You should go to Nagpur, though it would be better if you could avoid it. See that you pass¹. Take care of your health.

1 Permanent address

_Blessings from_
_BAPU_

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 9602. Also C.W. 6574. Courtesy: Lilavati Asar

349. LETTER TO CHUNILAL V. MEHTA

_SIMLA_

_July 4, 1945_

BHAI CHUNILAL,

You have lost a brother who was a true brother. I had no idea that Sir Mangaldas was your brother. He was a great help to me as a member of the vaidyas’ advisory committee. What shall I do now? Whose loss is greater? Yours or mine? Or of neither?

_Blessings from_
_BAPU_

SIR CHUNILAL V. MEHTA
RIDGE ROAD
MALABAR HILL
BOMBAY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

350. LETTER TO KANAIYALAL N. DESAI

_SIMLA_

_July 4, 1945_

BHAI KANJIBHAI,

So you lost your long-ailing daughter-in-law. She was bound to go. In my view it is good that she herself has been freed from the suffering and has relieved those who looked after her.

_Blessings from_
_BAPU_

SHRI KANAIYALAL NANUBHAI DESAI
GOPIPURA
SURAT

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ The addressee was studying medicine.
351. NOTE TO KAMALADEVI CHATTOPADHYAYA

[After July 4, 1945]

If I went to a village as a worker I would expect the villagers to fund my expenses and I would make it worth their while to do so. I began life thus.

From the original: Kamaladevi Chattopadhyaya Papers. Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library

352. NOTE TO KAMALADEVI CHATTOPADHYAYA

[After July 4, 1945]

If the trustees are worthy of their trust that should be the basis. In fact it is. As Chairman I am conducting the trust in that fashion.

From the original: Kamaladevi Chattopadhyaya Papers. Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library

353. LETTER TO CARL HEATH

AS AT SEVAGRAM,
CAMP: “MANOR VILLE”,
SIMLA WEST,
July 5, 1945

DEAR FRIEND,

Gandhiji has your letter of 21st June.

He is too busy with the Conference work to be able to write to you himself. He desires me to thank you for your kind message. He appreciates and fully reciprocates the spirit behind it. He is bending all his energy to end the deadlock and you may rest assured that if the offer is cent per cent sincere it will be all well in the end.

Thanking you once again.

Yours sincerely,

PYARELAL

CARL HEATH, ESQ.
57 MANOR WAY
GUILDFORD, SURREY

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library.

Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

1 This note and the one following are scribbled on used envelopes postmarked July 4, 1945.
2 The addressee had, on behalf of the India Conciliation Group, expressed the hope “that you will all seek . . . a just co-operation in this new effort at Simla.”
354. A NOTE

[After July 5, 1945]\(^1\)

Though herself a vegetarian, she\(^2\) did not insist on it for others. Prayers she lived in and for. Therefore if I was a woman worker I would conduct\(^3\) prayers for all religious-minded people and for all religions. Neither Christians nor Muslims nor others would be excluded.

From the original: Kamaladevi Chattopadhyaya Papers. Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library

355. SILENCE-DAY NOTE TO KAMALADEVI CHATTOPADHYAYA

[After July 5, 1945]\(^4\)

Different values undoubtedly. The way of life which Ba stood for is the way workers would live and thus present it to village women. I have imposed silence on myself today. I hope you do not mind it. But ask questions and I would answer.

From the original: Kamaladevi Chattopadhyaya Papers. Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library

---

\(^1\) The first part of this is scribbled on a used envelope postmarked July 5, 1945.

\(^2\) Presumably, Kasturba Gandhi

\(^3\) What follows is continued on a separate bit of a used envelope.

\(^4\) Scribbled on a used envelope postmarked July 5, 1945.
356. LETTER TO VANAMALA N. PARIKH

July 6, 1945

CHI. VANU (OR VANUDI ?).

Whatever you please. As you are there I will expect you to make Manudi as cheerful and witty as you are. See that both of you return completely cured of all your complaints. You are not to be idle there. A worker learns wherever she is. And there are lots of things to be learnt at that place. You should not, therefore, feel unhappy at having to stay there. This letter is meant for both of you.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 5793. Also C.W. 3016. Courtesy: Vanamala M. Desai

357. TELEGRAM TO KRISHNAVARMA

Express

July 7, 1945

DR. KRISHNAVARMA
NATURE CURE HOSPITAL
MALAD (BOMBAY)

SAILEN SHOULD ASK FOR EXTENSION LEAVE.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 From the Nature Cure Clinic of Dinshaw Mehta
358. LETTER TO KARLIN CAPPER-JOHNSON

Camp: "Manor Ville",
Simla West,
July 7, 1945

DEAR FRIEND,

Gandhiji desires me to thank you for your letter of 18th June and the cable sent by you recently on the eve of the Wavell Conference.

Yours sincerely,

Pyarelal

Karlin Capper-Johnson, Esq.
Friends Peace Committee
Friends House
Euston Road
London, N. W. 1

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

359. LETTER TO A. R. TIJARAYE

Sevagram,
July 7, 1945

DEAR FRIEND,

Your letter of 22nd inst. to Gandhiji.

He notes what you say with regard to the Forward Bloc political prisoners in C. P. The question of the release of all the political prisoners is fully in his mind and he is tackling it in the way he knows.

Yours sincerely,

Pyarelal

Shri A. R. Tijaraye
Tilak Vidyalaya
Village Uplift Centre
Kolapardi, Post Madanendi

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar
360. LETTER TO KANTILAL GANDHI

SIMLA
July 7, 1945

CHI. KANTI,

You have my blessings for the spinning programme under the auspices of the Gandhi Seva Sangh. And why not? This is pure work for India’s independence. Let the Sangh be associated with the great programme of Chi. Narandas. It will be good if everyone who spins also prepares his own slivers.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: C.W. 7375. Courtesy: Kantilal Gandhi

361. LETTER TO KANTILAL GANDHI

‘MANOR VILLE’, SIMLA,
July 7, 1945

CHI. KANTI,

I got your letter last evening. It is extremely difficult for anybody to get a letter from me in the expected time. I could read your letter only this morning after the prayer. You should know that I have lost the strength to work day and night.

What you are doing is excellent. You are running a household while studying, and are fulfilling your social obligations. It makes me happy that both of you show so much devotion to your father and you engage yourself in pure service of the country. But see that you do not become impatient and harm your health. Do not overtax yourself. Cultivate non-attachment.

Even if you cannot write, Saraswati should.

It is a great thing that Harilal has stayed on. If he stays there, he will be saved. Does he keep good health?

The Hindi letter\(^1\) which you had asked for is enclosed.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 7374. Courtesy: Kantilal Gandhi

---

\(^1\) Vide the preceding item.
362. LETTER TO SHYAMLAL

SIMLA
July 7, 1945

BHAJ SHYAMLAL,

I have your letter of the 2nd. Dharmadev Shastri is here. If Bapa approves of his scheme, I too shall.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI SHYAMLALJI
KASTURBA SMARAK NIDHI
CENTRAL OFFICE, BAJAJWADI, WARDHA

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

363. LETTER TO LORD WAVELL

‘MANOR VILLE’, SIMLA WEST,
July 8, 1945

DEAR FRIEND,

The Congress list for the proposed Executive was sent to you yesterday by the President.

1. In spite of my earnest protest, the parity was preserved. I was sorry. This does not mean any change on my part. I am more than ever convinced that the non-Schedule Hindu members should have been less than the Muslims.

2. You will observe in the list the nomination of the President of the Hindu Mahasabha. I think this was necessary and graceful. If you accept the Congress list, may I suggest your inviting Dr. Shyamaprasad Mukerji before the meeting of the 14th instant?

3. Dr. Rajendra Prasad tells me that the hanging of Shri Mahendra Chowdhury is about to take place on or any day after 12th instant. He is an inmate of Bhagalpur Central Jail, Bihar.

I take it that you will order commutation of sentence or stay till the proposed Executive is able to deal with it.¹

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI,

H. E. THE VICEROY
SIMLA

Gandhi’s Correspondence with the Government, 1944-47 p. 28

¹ The Viceroy, replying on July 9, said that the execution had been postponed so that Mahendra Chowdhury’s appeal might be considered. The appeal was, however, rejected by the Privy Council. Vide also “Letter to Lord Wavell”, 15-7-1945.
364. LETTER TO DHARMADEV SHASTRI

SIMLA
July 8, 1945

BHAJ DHARMADEV SHASTRI

You enter your fourth year on the 10th. You are serving the hill tribes among whom very few workers work. I like that. May your work progress steadily.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI DHARMADEV SHASTRI

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

365. NOTE TO CHANDRANI

[July 8, 1945]

Blessing from
BAPU

366. NOTE TO MAURICE FRYDMAN

SIMLA WEST,
July 9, 1945

You can stay at Adyar as long as you like.
Love.

BAPU

SHRI BHARATANANDJI (MAURICE FRYDMAN)
THEOSOPHICAL SOCIETY
ADYAR
MADRAS

From a photostat: G.N. 44

1 The reference is to the Ashok Ashram founded by the addressee in July 1942; vide footnote 1, “Letter to Dharmadev Shastri”, 31-5-1945.

2 The note was appended to a letter dated July 8, 1945, from Dr. Sushila Nayyar to the addressee. Vide also “Letter to Chandrani”, 28-6-1945.

3 ibid

4 The note was appended to a letter from Dr. Sushila Nayyar to the addressee.
367. LETTER TO SURESH CHANDRA DAS

SIMLA,
July 9, 1945

DEAR SURESH,

You should not believe Press reports. There was no question of anger; it was one of necessity. But I have been angry and made myself an ass. So you see on what a broken reed you rely!

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

SURESH CHANDRA DAS

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

368. LETTER TO NARAHARI D. PARIKH

‘MANOR VILLE’, SIMLA WEST,
July 9, 1945

CHI. NARAHARI,

It is not impossible for you to be able to manage the Ashram. Only, you should feel interested in the work and have confidence in yourself. There are plenty of other things I can write about, but where is the time? Today is a silence day and the Committee¹ is not meeting where I am staying.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: S.N. 9134

369. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

July 9, 1945

CHI. MUNNALAL,

I got your letter.

It is quite all right that Kanchan has gone to Vyara. She may go wherever she likes, we only wish that she should get perfectly well.

I am writing this just by the way. Remain calm. I do hope that I will reach there soon. You and everybody else should speak only when absolutely necessary for work. Never enter into an argument.

¹ Congress Working Committee

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 8441. Also C.W. 5588. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

370. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA

‘MANOR VILLE’, SIMLA WEST,
July 9, 1945

CHL. KRISHNACHANDRA,

I have your letter. You should never give up weaving. Master all the activities relating to cotton. I note what you say about the Khadi Vidyalaya. You have to be prepared to accept whatever services you can easily get. Balkrishna must get well. Is he now anxious to go to Poona’ not because I say so, but of his own free will?

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G. N. 4517

371. LETTER TO DR. B. S. MOONJE

SIMLA WEST,
July 9, 1945

DEAR DOCTOR SAHEB,

I had your telegram. And now I have your letter. I have seen in my experience of sixty years that those who have listened to me have never committed suicide.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

DR. B. S. MOONJE,
BHONSL MIlITARY SCHOOL
NASIK

From the Hindi original: C.W. 9762. Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Also Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 The date-line is in Gujarati.
2 To the Nature Cure Clinic of Dinshaw Mehta
372. LETTER TO BALVANTSINHA AND HOSHIARI

Simla,
July 9, 1945

CHL. BALVANTSINHA,

I have your letter. I had a talk with Miraben. She is still here. If you are still in the Ashram, then do not leave before I come. We shall see after I arrive there.

CHL. HOSHIARI,

I am so much engrossed in work that I hardly get any time. Now I hope to reach the Ashram soon. Everything is in God’s hands.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

373. LETTER TO A. KALESHWARA RAO

July 9, 1945

Bhai Kaleshwara Rao,

I am of the view that the exhibition of village industries you are organizing is a work of true swaraj.

Blessings from
BAPU

Shri Kaleshwara Rao
Bezwada

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

374. LETTER TO PRABHU DUTT SHASTRI

July 9, 1945

Bhai Prabhudutt Shastri,

I have your letter. If you want to take the trouble of coming here, then do come. I shall spare a few minutes for you. I get very little time from work. I can spare no time at all till 1.30 p. m.

Yours,
M. K. Gandhi

Shri Prabhudutt Shastri
Lahore

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Member, Madras Legislative Assembly
375. LETTER TO RAMESHCHANDRA

Simla,
July 9, 1945

Bhai Rameshchandra,

I have your letter on behalf of the students. Those who take up work of service do not need other people’s blessings. However, my blessings are with you in your efforts.

Yours,

M. K. Gandhi

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

376. LETTER TO RADHAKRISHNA BAJAJ

Simla,
July 9, 1945

Chh. Radakisan¹,

am not enthused by your or anyone else’s release. How is Ramakrishna²? Write to me in detail. I know your release has made some people happy.

Blessings from

Bapu

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

377. LETTER TO OM PRAKASH GUPTA

Simla,
July 9, 1945

Chh. Om Prakash,

I hear that you are again depressed. Only he is a man who adjusts himself to changing situations and remains uninvolved and detached. I do not know when God will take me to the Ashram. I hope of course that I shall be coming soon.

Blessings from

Bapu

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Nephew and younger son of Jamnalal Bajaj
² ibid
378. TELEGRAM TO KAMALNAYAN BAJAJ

SIMLA,
July 10, 1945

KAMALNAYAN BAJAJ
CARE SHREE
BOMBAY

GLAD ABOUT RAMAKRISHNA.

BAPU

Panchven Putrako Bapuke Ashirvad, p. 294

379. LETTER TO JANAKI DEVI BAJAJ

SIMLA,
July 10, 1945

CHI. JANAKI MAIYA,

Now Ramakrishna has been released, and Radhakrishna too. Are you and grandmother happy now? I will see now how you attend to the go-seva work.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 3034

380. LETTER TO RAMAKRISHNA BAJAJ

SIMLA,
July 10, 1945

CHI. RAMAKRISHNA,

I do not rejoice when anybody is released. But I did on your release. For you it has been nothing but a gain. Jail has benefited you the most. Outside you could hardly have done the reading that you did in jail. My joy is on account of Janakibehn and your grandmother who were pining for you and Radhakrishna. Write to me and give me all details in a clear hand.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 3066

1 The addressee was learning Sanskrit from Vinoba Bhave who was also detained in Nagpur jail.
381. LETTER TO BHULABHAI DESAI

“MANOR VILLE”,
SIMLA,
July 10, 1945

BHAI BHULABHAI,

You had said you would be seeing Dr. Khan Saheb and you would then tell me how wrong he was in what he had said about your drinking. According to the Doctor you had not seen him till the day before yesterday. He himself tried to meet you but he could not find you.

A lady who heard about this said: “I am a witness to the fact that Bhulabhai drinks and associates with undesirable women. His drinking and going around in the company of undesirable women is known all over Simla.”

Even if this is true, you can still stand on the Congress ticket. I was further told that at the meeting held at Maulana Saheb’s residence you had crossed the limit of decency while presenting your case.

Even with regard to money, what you told me does not appear to be correct. Even in writing this, my intention is to do good to you and the Congress. If you cannot cleanse yourself, you must consider all your talents as of no account.

Blessing from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar
382. LETTER TO MADALSA AGRAWAL

SIMLA WEST,
July 10, 1945

CHI. MADALSA,

How are you? Why don’t you write to me? No matter how I was occupied otherwise, I would certainly read a letter from you. Has Om' gone to Mussoorie?

Blessings from
BAPU

[From Gujarati]

Panchaven Putrako Bapuke Ashirvad, p. 325

383. NOTE TO ANAND T. HINGORANI

July 10, 1945

Blessings from Bapu.
I hope you are all right. You will have gained strength.

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Hindi. Courtesy: National Archives of India and Anand T. Hingorani

384. TELEGRAM TO D. B. KALELKAR

SIMLA,
July 11, 1945

KAKA KALELKAR
‘BHARATI BHAWAN’
WARDHA

RECEIVED WIRE. HOPE BOTH WELL.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Uma Agrawal, addressee’s younger sister
2 The note was appended to a letter from Dr. Sushila Nayyar to the addressee.
385. LETTER TO D. B. KALELKAR

SIMLA,
July 11, 1945

CHI. KAKA,

It was good you sent the wire.
I hope you are keeping good health. You have with you the work about Hindustani. I attended to it as best I could, with the utmost difficulty. But you are the expert.
Take care of your health in everything you do.
Bal1 is expected now.
Sardar is with me.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10963

386. LETTER TO KISHORELAL G. MASHRUWALA

SIMLA,
July 11, 1945

CHI. KISHORELAL,

As is your habit you have made your reply long. I accept your interpretation. It seems to me you have to aspire after life rather than duty. However, I do believe that there is a limit to it. But we shall discuss it at leisure.
I believe that the two of you are not living a useless life.
I understand about your letter. I shall see what I can do. Now the time is up and I want to write a little more. Kaka must have met Vinoba.
I like your Kailas.2

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

---

1 Addressee’s son
2 Vide also “Letter to Kishorelal G. Mashruwala”, 2-7-1945.
387. LETTER TO MRIDULA SARABHAI

SIMLA,
July 11, 1945

CHI. MRIDU,

I have your letter. We shall discuss everything when we meet at Sevagram, and get things cleared. You, Bapa and I shall sit together.

A person’s originality or creative faculties should never die. However, my experience is that one who has the zeal can cultivate them in whatever situation he or she may be.

What shall we do if you get tired? But, if you really do, you must take some rest.

I wish to leave here on the 15th and go straight to Sevagram. However, you, me and everyone else are in the hands of the Almighty. We are relieved of all burdens if we surrender even our wishes to Him.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

388. LETTER TO VINoba BHAVE

SIMLA,
July 11, 1945

CHI. VINoba,

Kaka sent me a telegram about your release. Hope you are well. The work for you is ready. Baba¹ and Gokhale are also in it. Do what you feel is right.

May leave here on the 15th.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Mahadeo Moghe
389. LETTER TO RAGHUVIR

SIMLA,
July 11, 1945

BHAI RAGHUVIR,

I have your letter. It will be good if you can come to Simla right away. It is likely that I shall leave Simla on the 15th. So, if you have to come, come soon. In Case you come I take it that you will make your own arrangements for stay.

Yours,
M. K. GANDHI

SHRI RAGHUVIR
THE INTERNATIONAL ACADEMY OF INDIAN CULTURE
SARASWATI VIHAR
LAHORE

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

390. LETTER TO S. K. PATIL

SIMLA,
July 11, 1945

BHAI PATIL,

I have your letter. What message can I send about Sir Pherozeshah Mehta¹ that can be published? Where is the time? Bharucha wrote to me in this connection. I gave him a similar reply. You should forget me for such things. For the rest, I know the virtues of Sir Pherozeshah Mehta and the services he had rendered, and I am his ardent admirer.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI S. K. PATIL
HEERA HOUSE
381 SANDHURST ROAD
BOMBAY-4

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ 1845-1915; one of the founders of Indian National Congress. The message was, presumably, for his birth centenary.
391. LETTER TO SATYAVATI

SIMLA,
July 11, 1945

CHI. SATYAVATI,

I have your letter. Neither the country nor the body are saved by taking the name of the country. Uttering the name of Rama—not mechanically, but from the heart—saves both the country and the body, if indeed this kind of work has use for the body. Khurshedbehn and Prabhavati are here.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI SATYAVATIDEVI
TUBERCULOSIS HOSPITAL
KINGSWAY [CAMP], DELHI

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

392. LETTER TO SHYAMLAL

SIMLA,
July 11, 1945

BHAI SHYAMLAL,

I have your letter of the 6th. I have already sent my consent for Dharmadev Shastri’s scheme.1 I have more information about Prof. Jagadisan2 than Bapa has. Much depends on a person’s goodness, experience and skill. Therefore, if Bapa approves and if I have the power, I agree to the doctor being retained on Rs. 125 or Rs. 150, and to the selection of the members of the committee.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI SHYAMLALJI
KASTURBA SMARAK NIDHI
BAJAJWADI, WARDHA

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Vide “Letter to Dharmadev Shastri”, 8-7-1945.
2 T. N. Jagadisan, who was supervising the leprosy work of the Kasturba Gandhi National Memorial Trust
393. TELEGRAM TO MOHAMMAD HAMIDULLAH KHAN

_Express_ Simla,

_H. H. of Bhopal_

_Bhopal_

_DETAINING SHWAIB._

_GANDHI_

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

394. TELEGRAM TO T. PRAKASAM

_Express_ Simla,

_T. PRAKASAM^1_

_MADRAS_

_HOPE YOU WELL. MEET ME SEVAGRAM IF YOU MUST. HOPE LEAVE HERE SUNDAY._

_GANDHI_

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

395. LETTER TO ANANTRAI P. PATTANI

_Simla_,

_July 12, 1945_

_BHAJAN NAKRAI PATTANI_

_DIWAN SAHEB_

_BHAVNAGAR_

_I have received your letter along with that of Narahari. I am doing the needful._

_Blessings from_

_BAPU_

_Shri Anantrai Pattani_

_Diwon Saheb_

_Bhavnagar_

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

^1 Congress leader known as “Lion of Andhra”; Chief Minister of composite Madras State; first Chief Minister of Andhra State
396. LETTER TO NRISINHAPRASAD K. BHATT

SIMLA,
July 12, 1945

CHI. NANABHAL

I am sending herewith a copy of a letter addressed to Narahari. Now, if you can send me the names, I shall consider them inconsultation with Bapa and then send them on to you. Write to me at Sevagram. I hope to leave on the 15th.

More later.

Blessings to you all from

BAPU

SHRI NANABHAI BHATT
DAKSHINAMURTI
AMBLA (BHAVNAGAR STATE)

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

397. LETTER TO ANANTRAM

SIMLA,
July 12, 1945

CHI. ANANTRAM.

I have your letter. I assume that you are getting on well. If you keep your word, you will get on still better.

I hope we shall meet soon.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
398. SPEECH AT PRAYER MEETING, SIMLA

July 12, 1945

Mahatma Gandhi referred to the serious inconvenience experienced by his host due to unruly crowds. Some of them had invaded the house opposite to ‘Manor Ville’, which belonged to Rajkumari Amrit Kaur’s brother and had smashed flower-pots and damaged the railing of the verandah. When checked by the Rani Saheba they had been rude to her. All this hurt him deeply. He would have liked to run away. But after all, wherever he went the crowds would go with him. He could not run away from them. He was their servant and he lived to serve them.

Some came to the prayers, Gandhiji said, simply to have his darshan. He had told them often enough that he was not a mahatma. He was just one of them, an ordinary human being. He must, however, confess that he called the name of God with every breath of his life and in everything that he did he proceeded with God as his witness. But that should not make him a mahatma. Every human being should act as he claimed he did. That was what distinguished man from beast. Those who came to the prayers should at least have decent manners. Even the soldiers in arms observed discipline and behaved in an orderly fashion. These who came to pray should have better manners, not worse. The object of coming to prayers was to praise God and for doing that, purity of thought was a necessary pre-requisite. If they could not control their minds, they should pray to God that he should enable them to have pure thoughts at least during prayers. Gradually and with practice they would be able to control them at all times.

The Hindu, 14-7-1945

399. TELEGRAM TO BALVANTSINHA

Express

SIMLA, July 13, 1945

BALVANTSINHA
SAMARPUR
KHURJA (BULANDSHAHAR)

CHILDREN SHOULD JOIN DELHI SEVENTEENTH.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Gandhiji spoke in Hindustani.
400. TELEGRAM TO SATYAN

SIMLA,
July 14, 1945

SATYANJI
PRAKRITI ASHRAM
BHIMAVARAM

SORRY ABOUT GOKHALEJI. WRITE ME SEVAGRAM FULL PARTICULARS BY DOCTOR RAJU\(^1\).

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

401. TELEGRAM TO SHAUKATULLAH ANSARI

SIMLA,
July 14, 1945

DOCTOR SHAUKATULLAH ANSARI
RAJPUR ROAD
DELHI

GOD GIVE YOU ZOHRA\(^2\) COURAGE BEAR LOSS.\(^3\) LOVE.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

\(^1\) Krishna Raju
\(^2\) Addressee’s wife
\(^3\) The reference is to the death of the addressee’s son.
402. LETTER TO AMRITLAL V. THAKKAR

SIMLA,
July 14, 1945

CHI. BAPA,

I have your letter. I hope to meet you on the 17th. I shall be able to stay in Delhi only for a few hours. I have not met Bhulabhai about the register. I will tell you the reason when we meet. I do not have the time to write more.

BAPU

SHRI BAPA
‘HARIJAN NIVAS’
KINGSWAY [CAMP]
DELHI

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 1195

403. LETTER TO SAMPURNANAND

SIMLA,
July 14, 1945

BHAI SAMPURNANAND,

I have your letter. You have not given enough thought to the matter. If khadi workers are pure, khadi work will not become static. Today we have very little khadi. Make a thorough study of the theory and practice of khadi.

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

SHRI SAMPURNANAND
JALPADEVI
KASHI
BANARAS

From the Hindi original: Sampurnanand Collection. Courtesy: National Archives of India. Also Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
404. INTERVIEW TO SAILENDRA NATH CHATTOPADHYAYA

[On or before July 15, 1945]

Prayer is even more essential for the well-being of the soul than is food for the maintenance of the body. It becomes necessary to give up food on occasions in order to benefit the body. But prayer may never be abandoned. If we provide food for the body which is perishable, then, surely, it is our primary duty to provide food for the soul which is imperishable and such sustenance is found in prayer. The real meaning of prayer is devoted worship.

S. N. CHATTOPADHYAYA: Why do you never look at your face in a looking-glass?

GANDHIJI: Since everyone who meets me sees my face, what need is there for me to employ a mirror?

Why do you not use a thick mattress?

I do all I can to merge myself into the poor millions of India.

Why do you always travel third class on the railway?

The answer to this is embodied in the above.

Why not take salt and spices with your food?

Why should I take anything which is not essential for my bodily needs?

The Hindu, 17-7-1945

405. TELEGRAM TO BALVANTSINHA

SIMLA, July 15, 1945

BALVANTSINHA
SAMPUR
KHURJA
JOIN AT NIZAMUDDIN OUR SPECIAL STARTING TWELVE NOON SEVENTEENTH.

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Of the United Press of India who had asked Gandhiji “as to what he gained from his regular prayers and why he laid such stress on prayer”.

2 The report appeared under the date-line Simla, July 15”.

VOL. 87: 29 MAY, 1945 - 29 AUGUST, 1945 233
406. TELEGRAM TO A. G. TENDULKAR

SIMLA,
July 15, 1945

A. G. TENDULKAR
BELGAUM

GLAD FOR INDU’S SAKE YOU CAN MEET ME SEVAGRAM AFTER TWENTIETH.

GANDHI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

407. LETTER TO LORD WAVELL

‘MANOR VILLE’, SIMLA WEST,
July 15, 1945

DEAR FRIEND,

I thank you for your note of the 14th instant. It gladdens me to think that you have appreciated my effort to advance the common cause. As you perhaps know, I have arranged to leave here tomorrow. A special from Kalka will carry me to Wardha by the kind courtesy of the authorities concerned. . .

It grieves me to think that the conference which began so happily and so hopefully should have ended in apparent failure—due exactly, as it would seem, to the same cause as before. This time you have taken the blame on your own shoulders.¹ But the world will think otherwise. India certainly does.

I must not hide from you the suspicion that the deeper cause is perhaps the reluctance of the official world to part with power, which the passing of the virtual control into the hands of their erstwhile prisoners would have meant.

Be that as it may, what a pity that the moral height which the British, if not even the Allied Powers, would have occupied by the success of the conference cannot be theirs, at any rate, for the time being.

I must not close this without a reminder about the Bihar case. Your passing remark that it was one of ordinary dacoity, calling for the heavy hand of law, disturbed me. This was not such dacoity. The young man who is under sentence of death is no professional dacoit. He is a misled Congressman under twenty-five years (I think.) with a young wife of twenty years. I do hope that all such death sentences will be commuted to life sentences. It seems to be the least demand of humanity, if not also of high politics."

¹ The Viceroy had announced the failure of the conference at its final sitting on July 14.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

H. E. THE VICEROY
SIMLA

Gandhiji’s Correspondence with the Government, 1944-47 pp. 29-30

408. SPEECH READ OUT AT PRAYER MEETING

SIMLA
July 15, 1945

Today is my last day here. Tomorrow I shall be leaving Simla. If you all patiently one after another want to give something for Harijans, I am here. Those who want my autograph will have it. It will be a test, how quiet you can be. I know that you have been kind to me. Now those who want to give may do so.

From a microfilm of the Hindi: M.M.U./24

---

1 Replying on July 18, the Viceroy said: ‘‘The case is a serious one of dacoity with murder in which Mahendra Chowdhury was found guilty by the Additional Sessions Judge of Monghyr on evidence which appears to me conclusive. The sentence of death . . . was confirmed by the High Court . . . Privy Council has rejected an application for special appeal. I cannot find anything . . . to suggest that Mahendra Chowdhury is a political offender . . . I have decided that the law must take its course.”

2 Gandhiji was observing silence.
409. LETTER TO SHANTA PATEL

July 16, 1945

CHI. SHANTA,

I got your letter yesterday. I am writing this after the morning prayer. Address your reply at Sevagram.

You have remained as crazy after becoming a communist and a mother as you were as a child.

Which Ashram has boycotted you? Where is the Ashram? Who has boycotted you? Many communists have stayed with me. In the same way you also can stay. You know that Jayanti\(^1\) had stayed with me.

You should know that I have received many complaints, but I have not acted on any of them. I am in correspondence with the Secretary\(^2\). He had asked me for my permission to publish the letters and I have granted it. Whether he has published them or not I do not know.

The Working Committee\(^3\) has taken no step. There has been no time to consider the matter.

If Jawaharlalji goes against them, all the communists will have to sit up and think. For he has a soft corner for the Party but he will not tolerate anything unworthy. I myself have not been able to come to a final decision. I have received quite a few complaints. I have sent them to the Head office.

You have written your letter without thinking. If you calm down and think before writing, you can help the communist cause.

You must learn to distinguish between communism and communists. Besides, Marx stands for one thing, Lenin for another and Stalin for a third. The followers of the last are again divided into two groups. Gandhi is one thing, Gandhism is another and Gandhi-ites are a third thing. There are always, and will remain, such differences. Immature people may identify themselves with one or the other group.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 6639. Also C.W. 4287. Courtesy: Shanta Patel

---

1. Jayanti Parekh
3. The Congress Working Committee. It, however, at its meeting in September, appointed a sub-committee, consisting of Jawaharlal Nehru, G. B. Pant and Vallabhbhai Patel to go into the charges against the Congress members of the Communist Party.
410. LETTER TO KANU GANDHI

SIMLA,
July 16, 1945

CHI. KANAIYO,

After the prayer I am writing a few letters. This is one of them. I do not want to do anything at this end for the present. We are getting ready to leave.

I have read all your letters. The last was that of yesterday. I notice that you wanted to join me on my tours. That was my wish too. But I had to forbear. As my stay was to be a prolonged one I did not call you. That would not have been proper. I had engaged you for a particular work. It seems you have not been very successful at it. You will tell me about it when we meet. If you have to go to Rajkot again, do go. But finish Narandas’s work first. If there is anything you wish to say, it will be only after that and then I would like you to accompany me on my tour. Is it possible that the king\(^1\) of the monkeys is not wanted? Convey my blessings to the sage and his wife.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI KANU GANDHI
C/O SHANTI KUMAR
SCINDIA HOUSE
BOMBAY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

411. LETTER TO GOPE GURBUXANI

July 16, 1945

CHI. GURBUXANI,

I have had a talk with Rajkumari about you two. You should now speak to her. I do not like Vimala being so dumb. She neither says nor writes anything. I wonder if you are exercising any pressure on her. It should not be so. The path of truth should be followed not mechanically but with understanding. Only then can man make progress.

You must consciously try to limit your expenses.
Write to me at Sevagram.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 1317

\(^1\) The allusion is to the legendary Hanuman known for his loyalty to Rama.

VOL. 87: 29 MAY, 1945 - 29 AUGUST, 1945 237
412. “A THOUGHT THE DAY”¹

April 25, 1945

A man does not become a satyagrahi by styling himself as such. The observance of pure truth alone makes him a satyagrahi.

April 26, 1945

Is only that unclean which appears to the eye as unclean? If there is even a little dirt on what is white, we feel annoyed; but the black may have any amount of dirt on it and we care not at all!

April 27, 1945

We consider the black impure and the white pure. But black, in its natural setting, is as much a virtue; as white, out of place, is a vice.

April 28, 1945

How strange that one who claims not to fear death fears it the most, and seeks every means to avoid it!

April 29, 1945

A son’s obeisance to his parents is undoubtedly a form of prayer. What homage, then, must we pay to Him who is the Eternal Father of us all? Prayer may not be interpreted here in a narrow sense.

April 30, 1945

“A Thought for Today,’, published in today’s The Times of India, appealed to me. Its purport is: “Believe in Truth, think Truth and live Truth. Howsoever triumphant untruth may seem to be, it can never prevail against Truth.”

¹ Originally written in Hindi, these ‘thoughts, were translated and published under this title by Anand T. Hingorani, who explains in the Preface that after the death of his wife, Vidya, on July 20, 1943, during his eight week stay in Sevagram from September 30, 1944, Gandhiji would greet him “every morning, after the prayer . . . speak words of sympathy and solace, and . . . write down something . . . to meditate upon . . . . From October 13, 1944, onwards he wrote continuously for a fortnight, and then off and on. . . .” Before leaving Sevagram for nature cure treatment at Bhimavaram, Hingorani had requested Gandhiji to write something for him daily, which Gandhiji began to do from November 20, 1944, vide In June 1946, when Hingorani sought Gandhiji’s permission to publish the ‘thoughts, in a book form, Gandhiji remarked: “What is there about them that you are so keen on publishing them? If, however, you wish to publish them, do so after my death. Such writings are generally never published during the lifetime of their authors. Who knows, I may not be able to live up to what I have written! But if I live up to it till the last breath of my life, then alone will it be worthwhile to publish these thoughts.” Gandhiji, however, discontinued the practice by the end of 1946, as he put it, “for the sake of my Noakhali mission, I renounced practically everything . . . gave up the Ashram, all my companions and even writing for the Harijan . . . .”
May 1, 1945
Where there is hypocrisy, even if there is something good along with it, do not go there even for the sake of picking up that good only. If you do, it could be co-operation with evil which must not be offered:

May 2, 1945
Just as we throw away milk if there is poison in it, so must we reject any good which has got the poison of hypocrisy mixed with it.

May 3, 1945
Says Confucius: “In a well-ordered State, progress is not measured in terms of wealth. The purity of the People and their leaders alone constitutes the true wealth of the nation.”

May 4, 1945
Minds are of two kinds: one kind elevates, the other debases. Let us constantly reflect over this and learn to distinguish one from the other.

May 5, 1945
Just as only others can see a man’s back while he himself cannot, we too cannot see our own errors.

May 6, 1945
Is not death, in every case, a release from too much suffering? If so, why lament when it comes?

May 7, 1945
Life is likened to a rose; because life, too, is full of thorns.

May 8, 1945
Verily, there should be only one fear—the fear of doing something mean or untrue.

May 9, 1945
Slipshod work is like half-baked bread, fit only to be thrown away.

May 10, 1945
Why is it that man is afraid of speaking and practising truth, not untruth?

May 11, 1945
There is an English saying, which is true, that “cowards die many times before their death”. As I have often said, death really means deliverance from pain and suffering. Fear serves only to accentuate suffering and makes one’s condition pitiable.
By whatever name God be called, if there be godly attributes, we must surely bow to Him.

Then, what should God be like? Passionless and Formless, He should be a repository of all attributes and yet be wholly without attributes. Why should God then be of masculine gender? This is purely a question of grammar. The God of our conception, being formless, is neither male nor female.

The breach of one rule inevitably leads to the breach of other rules.

To rejoice in happiness is to invite misery. Real happiness springs from sorrow and suffering.

Not contrived but genuine laughter is true eloquence, and more effective than speech.

The contentment that accrues to man as a result of leading a regular life, promotes his health and longevity.

Pride devours man completely. The truth of this can be realized by everyone every moment.

On the other hand, modesty and humility nourish man and make for his growth.

Every minute that runs to waste is irrecoverable. Yet, knowing this, how much time we waste!

A needless word is also a violation of truth. That is why the practice of truth becomes easier by observing silence.

Like a ship without direction or destination, labour without an ideal is fruitless.

The power by which a railway train moves, an aeroplane flies and man lives, is Divine Power, by whatsoever name one may call it.
The train is not moved by the steam engine; the aeroplane is not flown by the motor; nor does man live by the mere mechanical functioning of his heart.

_May 24, 1945_

“Sweet are the fruits of equanimity”—the truth of this is experienced every moment.

_May 25, 1945_

There is a vast difference between obstinacy and steadfastness. To seek to foist one’s view on others is obstinacy; whereas steadfastness is that whereby we voluntarily impose something on ourselves and which results in bringing others round to the acceptance of our view of their own free will.

_May 26, 1945_

What should a man do when there is much work and little time to do it in? He should have patience, do what he believes is most useful and leave the rest to God. If God grants life, the arrear can be taken up some other day.

_May 27, 1945_

I took off my spectacles to wash my face. I had intended to pick them up later, but forgot to do so. Why? Because something else engrossed my attention and so I became negligent. This is called disorganization which is a dangerous thing.

_May 28, 1945_

A man is ashamed when he does something wrong. But when he does something good, he wishes to let it be known. Why?

_May 29, 1945_

Envy devours him who harbours it. He who is the object of envy remains unaffected, perhaps even unaware of it.

_May 30, 1945_

The opposite of envy is generosity. Generosity does not allow us to be envious of anyone. On the contrary, if we find virtue in anyone, we appreciate it and even profit by it.

_May 31, 1945_

Every moment I observe how man deceives himself.

_June 1, 1945_

He who wants to please all, will please none.

_June 2, 1945_

It is God that we have to please. If we praise, we should praise Him only. Then shall we become free of all worry and botheration.
June 3, 1945

How shall we please God, how praise Him? By serving His creature—man.

June 4, 1945

When, as a matter of habit, a man knows not what he speaks, it is high time that he got rid of that habit either by muffling his mouth or even by sealing his lips.

June 5, 1945

Desire is of various kinds—good, bad and feasible. The mind should harbour only that which is good and possible of realization.

June 6, 1945

Different people interpret the Shastras (religious scriptures) differently. The right course is to follow in practice that interpretation which appeals to us as basically sound even if it can be proved to be grammatically unsound, provided, however, that our interpretation is not opposed to morality and that it makes for self-restraint.

June 7, 1945

An untruthful person leaves many a loophole for himself. And when he escapes through one or the other, he thinks he is very clever! In fact, by doing so, he only digs pitfalls for himself.

June 8, 1945

A man of Truth, on the other hand, plugs all loopholes; or rather for him, it may be said, there is neither a wall nor any holes. He can walk even blindfold on the right path and never does he fall into a pit.

June 9, 1945

Non-attachment is difficult of attainment, as some say. So it is. But are not the things we need always difficult to obtain? It is only when we put in a sustained and determined effort that what is difficult becomes easy.

June 10, 1945

Drops make the ocean, the reason being that there is complete cohesion and co-operation among the drops. The same law applies to human beings.

June 11, 1945

To conceal ignorance is to increase it. An honest confession of it, however, gives ground for the hope that it will diminish.

June 12, 1945

What is learnt by rote is of as little value as the parrot’s recitation of Ramanama.
If the foregoing is correct and borne out by experience, it follows that knowledge that sinks deep, and becomes part of one’s being, is capable of transforming man, provided, however, that such knowledge is self-knowledge.

If a man does anything, and regrets it afterwards, it shows that he has not done it with due deliberation but under compulsion.

Non-attachment is put to real test only when there is full scope for our attachment to something.

It is man’s habit to forget his own faults and see those of others. This naturally brings him disappointment in the end.

To have faith in God should be the easiest thing in the world, yet it appears to be the most difficult.

The root cause of most of our misunderstandings lies in distrust, and the root cause of this distrust lies most in fear.

The common saying goes that there can be no love without fear. But that is wrong. The fact is that where there is fear, there can be no true love.

Experience is daily growing upon me that everything is attainable through silence.

If we stopped talking about useless things and talked of things that matter in as few words as possible, much of our time as well as that of others could be saved.

It follows from the foregoing that we would be thereby adding that much time to our span of life.

The same thing when looked at from one angle makes us lose our temper, and when viewed from another makes us laugh. Will it not be better if we neither become angry nor laugh?
June 24, 1945

Daily we have testimony of the influence exercised by one who speaks the truth and lives up to it. Even so, we never think of following his example in word and deed.

June 25, 1945

Sacrifice which causes pain is no sacrifice at all. True sacrifice is joy-giving and uplifting.

June 26, 1945

True help can come only from God. But God helps only through some agency. Let no one, therefore, knowingly seek the help of a broken reed.

June 27, 1945

Guru Teg Bahadur says: “The life which causes the least possible injury is simple life. That which causes no pain at all is pure life.” Therefore, he alone practises true religion who does nothing evil.

June 28, 1945

If someone says, “Go straight along this road”, and if a man follows the given direction, he is sure to reach his destination. Such a road is truth. Going along that road, a man reaches his goal in the shortest possible time.

June 29, 1945

Every minute of my life I am conscious of the presence of God. Why, then, need I fear anyone?

June 30, 1945

A man came to me today and said: “I lose all interest in living if I do not render true service”.

July 1, 1945

Do not lose your temper if someone calls you a liar or opposes you. If you want to say something, say it calmly. Or, perhaps, silence would be best. If you are really truthful, you do not become a liar simply because someone calls you so.

July 2, 1945

Untruth corrodes the soul, truth nourishes it.

July 3, 1945

There is greater pleasure in not eating than in eating. Who has not experienced the truth of it?

July 4, 1945

Do not listen to rumour; but, if you do, do not believe it.
July 5, 1945

We must always listen to criticism of our faults and failings, never to our praises.

July 6, 1945

When ‘I’ and when ‘God’? In determining this lies the test of wisdom.

July 7, 1945

God is one. He is ever Changeless and Formless. We are his mirrors. If we are straight and pure, God is also reflected in us as such. But if we are crooked and vile, His image suffers the same distortion. It behoves us, therefore, always to remain clean and pure in every respect.

July 8, 1945

To find fault is one thing; to prove it is another.

July 9, 1945

He alone knows the charm of solitude who has deliberately taken to it.

July 10, 1945

He who is the dust of everybody’s feet is near to God.

July 11, 1945

Do not think, speak or write without reflecting. Consider how much time could thereby be saved.

July 12, 1945

Just as the universe is contained in the self, so is India contained in the villages.

July 13, 1945

If India lives in the villages, then let there be but one ideal village and it can serve as a model for the whole country.

July 14, 1945

If we think of India from the point of view of the villages, most of the things that we do will appear to be useless.

July 15, 1945

Life is not for making merry. Rather it is for the realization of the Creator and for the service of the creation.

July 16, 1945

If life is intended only for the service of humanity and for the realization of God, then it becomes our duty to keep it pure and abstemious.

A Thought for the Day, pp. 151-239
413. MESSAGE TO STUDENTS

AGRA,
July 17, 1945

[GANDHIJI:] Study and work for the country’s freedom. This is my message to the students of India.

Gandhiji said that he realized the despondency of the student community on the failure of the Simla Conference and the danger of ill-feeling that might creep in between Hindu and Muslim students. Hopes must not be lost.

Gandhiji stressed the need of unity among students and said it was deplorable that a number of parties existed and things had reached such a stage that the police were sometimes required to intervene. He wished that students of every creed, colour and caste worked as a united body for the common cause. He advised the people [to refrain] from indulging in mutual recriminations.

Asked if the Simla Conference failed on the issue of one seat given to a non-Leaguer, Mahatma Gandhi refuted the contention. He said that he would publicize his views regarding this problem at the earliest opportunity.

The Hindustan Times, 19-7-1945

---

1 On his way to Wardha after the Simla Conference, Gandhiji addressed the crowd assembled at the Agra Cantt. station where the special carrying him arrived at 3.40 p.m. About a dozen local Communists, who had collected on the platform, were initially disallowed by the authorities but they were allowed on the assurance from them to remain peaceful.

2 The Simla Conference was convened by the Viceroy, Lord Wavell, and was attended by leaders of the various parties, prominent among whom were Abul Kalam Azad, Bhulabhai Desai, M. A. Jinnah, Dr. Khan Saheb, Liaquat Ali Khan, Sir Henry Richardson, Rao Bahadur Shiv Raj and Master Tara Singh. Gandhiji did not attend the Conference but he remained in Simla so as to be available for consultation. The Conference, started on June 25, was adjourned on June 29 to enable the parties to send the lists of the names for the proposed Executive Council. However, when it met again on July 14 Lord Wavell announced its failure.
414. INTERVIEW TO “PEOPLE’S WAR”

[July 17, 1945]

M. N. TANDON: Failure at Simla has disappointed the people who looked to a change in the regime.

GANDHIJI: They should not be disappointed. The Congress took a correct attitude and has vindicated its national character.

M. N. T. Mutual apportionment of blame has begun between the Congress and the League leaders and the papers. Would this not embitter relations and dash hopes of any future settlement, thus drifting to a position of civil war and riots?

G. Mutual recriminations should not be indulged in though truth will have to be spoken. There is a danger of the situation drifting into a civil war. The clash at Delhi station before Maulana Azad’s compartment is a pointer. But the police should not be allowed to maintain order amongst us. But if riots take place what can we do? Riots have always been taking place. Even in the reign of . . . 1 riots and disturbances took place. This country is inhabited by a very large population of various conflicting ideas.

M. N. T. Civil disturbances of the older days were no comparison to those of today with their political and economic implications. Patriots of the Congress and the League would fight instead of uniting for people’s service, with the result that the people would lose faith in the honesty and patriotism of both. Their miseries would increase tenfold and the national movement would go to pieces.

G. Yes. We should make efforts not to let such a situation develop.

M. N. T. Do you hope that the Congress and the League will be able to settle in the near future?

G. We should all hope so.

M. N. T. The belief of the common man is that the Conference broke over the question of a single seat due to dissensions among the leaders.

G. It is wrong to say that the Conference broke over the question

1 Gandhiji gave the interview to M. N. Tandon, the Agra correspondent of the Communist weekly, at the Agra Cantt. station on July

2 ibid

3 The correspondent here explains that Gandhiji had “mentioned the name of some benevolent old Indian king, which I could not catch because of the noise on the platform”.

VOL. 87: 29 MAY, 1945 - 29 AUGUST, 1945 247
of one seat. The Congress fought for a principle.

M. N. T. Even if the Congress had to nominate only Hindu Congressmen, they could very well have represented the Nationalist Muslims and safeguarded their interests. There is no difference between Congressman and Congressman.

G. But we were seeking able men of all parties and communities. We did not bother which party got what number of seats.

M. N. T. You had accepted the Bhulabhai Formula¹ of Congress-League parity and gave a public statement² to that effect. But the Congress Working Committee agreed to Hindu-Muslim parity, proposed by Wavell,³ thus raising the rock of breakdown, since Congress and League could not agree to the nomination of one by the other. Is it a fact that the Working Committee disagreed with you and rejected the Congress-League parity formula?

G. Now you are dragging me into deep water. Yes. The truth is something like this. I shall write about it in the near future.

M. N. T. You perhaps know that the Communists’ main slogan all through the Conference has been “transform Hindu-Muslim parity into Congress-League parity” and they are making efforts in the direction.

G. They should continue their efforts.

M. N. T. On what grounds did your correspondence with P. C. Joshi⁴ break?

G. Who says it has broken down?

M. N. T. Has the Working Committee taken any decision regarding the Communists?

G. No. It has not taken any decision.

M. N. T. You know the ban of the U. P. Government continues on the three Communist weeklies⁵ in U. P.

G. Have they not yet lifted the ban? It is very wrong for the Government to do so.

M. N. T. Sjt. J. C. Gupta⁶ and others met you at Simla in connection with the release of pre-reform political prisoners who have already served 14 to 20 years of

¹ Vide Appendix “Desai-Liaquat pact”.
² Vide “Statement to the press”, 15-6-1945.
³ For the Viceroy’s broadcast of June 14, vide Appendix “Speech broadcast by the Viceroy”, 14-6-1945.
⁵ Lok Yuddha, People’s War and Quomi Jung
⁶ Chairman, All Parties Political Prisoners’ Release Campaign Committee imprisonment. You have the power to get them released.

G. Efforts should certainly be made to secure their release. It is wrong to say that I alone have the power to get them out.

The Bombay Chronicle, 7-8-1945

415. STATEMENT TO THE PRESS

Sevagram,
July 18, 1945

The public will not like to know, as I have not liked, the fact that I had to travel from Kalka to Wardha like a thief. I could do so only by the courtesy of the authorities. Why should I have to escape the embarrassing affection of the public? When I travelled by the Frontier Mail from Bombay to Kalka at every stopping station it was a wild demonstration. Accidents, even fatal, were escaped by miracle. Those who were with me in the compartment had a rough time and two wakeful nights.

Singly I might not have been able to cope with the din, noise and hustle of the crowd. Of course this was not the first time that I had to face such wild demonstrations, nor am I unaware that other leaders have to go through such ordeals, but the fact is that each year makes me less fit for them. My ears cannot stand the noise. I can do no work among demonstrators and cannot make Harijan collections in such circumstances. What is most painful is the fact that this wildness is no prelude to swaraj, it is no sign of non-violence.

Crowds there should be to greet the leaders, but they should be peaceful, dignified and completely disciplined. I have seen ordinary soldiers in thousands observing perfect silence whether on the march or at rest. Our crowds, if they are non-violent soldiers of swaraj, should be more disciplined than ordinary soldiers. Will leaders of volunteers learn a lesson from my train journey from Kalka to Wardha and ensure perfectly peaceful demonstrations at stations and elsewhere in all circumstances and not only or especially for me?

The Hindu, 20-7-1945

1 For the Congress President’s letter to the Viceroy regarding this, vide Appendix “Abul Kalam Azad’s letter to Lord Wavell”, 15-7-1945.

2 On June 22 and 23
416. LETTER TO RAFI AHMED KIDWAI

July 18, 1945

BHAJ RAFI,

I learnt of your release at Kalka. I arrived in Sevagram this evening. It is good you were freed. Do you get fever? Do you have weakness? Write to me fully.

Blessings from

BAPU

RAFI AHMED KIDWAI
ANAND BHAWAN
ALLAHABAD

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

417. LETTER TO AMRIT KAUR

SEVAGRAM,
July 19, 1945

CHI. AMRIT,

We reached yesterday at 2.30 Wardha and 4 p.m. Sevagram. We walked most of the way. This I am writing before the morning prayer.

You—all—surrounded us with lavish affection. May God bless you for it. I hope there is no more grief over Tofa’s departure from you. There should be none.

Though there is rain there is no cold. I dread your having to come to this level from cool Simla. But you will see when it is time for you to come.

I shall think of your things.

Love to you all.

BAPU

From the original: C.W. 3696. Courtesy: Amrit Kaur. Also G.N. 6505

1 Rafi Ahmed Kidwai (1894-1954); chief whip of the Swaraj Party in the Central Assembly after the 1926 election; Minister for Revenue, Home and Jails in U. P. in 1937-39 and 1946-47; Central Minister for Communication and Food from 1947 till his death

2 The superscription in this and the other letters to the addressee is in the Devanagari script.

3 Addressee’s pet dog which died during Gandhiji’s stay at Simla.
418. LETTER TO MADHAVDAS G. KAPADIA

July 19, 1945

CHI. MADHAVDAS,

It is not good that you still don’t feel comfortable there. You should resolve that you are to get well and not to budge from the place. Follow Dr. Krishnavarma’s instructions scrupulously and cheerfully. I am writing this before the morning prayer, soon after rising. It is now time for prayer. I had got up at 4 o’clock. I arrived here yesterday at 4.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 2724

419. LETTER TO PREMA KANTAK

July 19, 1945

CHI. PREMA,

I read your letter of the 11th today. With it is Rajkumari’s too. The post seems to have been received at Kalka. It is 4.30 just now. I am writing this after brushing my teeth. I am sitting inside a mosquito-net and the light is outside. The prayer bell is about to ring.

Today is your birthday. You will get this after two days. You have to live many more years still. Spend them happily and in service. Serving is in our own hands, and happiness, too, if we but learn to be equiminded in happiness and sorrow. Isn’t forgetting Vishnu the only real suffering? Why should we forget Him?

I do not remember to have been annoyed with you. If I did get annoyed, there must have been a reason. But is my annoyance really annoyance? Shouldn’t you understand this?

If you start your camp independently of us and ask for no money, where would be the difficulty? Others will learn from you, including myself.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10436. Also C.W. 6875. Courtesy: Prema Kantak

1 Kasturba Gandhi’s brother
420. LETTER TO DINSHAW K. MEHTA

July 19, 1945

CHI. DINSHAW,

You have two girls' already under your care. May you completely succeed with them. I am now thinking of sending Balkrishna\(^2\) to you. If he can go he will go in August. I gave him suvarnaparpati\(^3\), he gained weight but now he has lost whatever he had gained. I am therefore inclined to send him to you. I wrote to him from Simla. His reply is enclosed.

Sardar Patel might also go there. I have of course suggested it. Maybe, if he goes I too may have to go. Do you wish him to come?

There is a third girl in addition to the two. I am thinking of sending her also. She too is learning nursing. She keeps indifferent health. She gets fever frequently. Can she come? I hope that all the three will get well and learn nursing there. I expect you to train them in that way.

Have you sent Gulbehn\(^4\) to Panchgani?

Blessings to all three of you from

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

421. LETTER TO KRISHNAVARMA

July 19, 1945

Bhai Krishnavarma,

I have your letters. You are doing everything you can for Mama\(^5\) and Sailen\(^6\) and it seems with Sailen you are getting results. But it is not so in the case of Mama. It seems it is the most difficult case you have ever taken up. Do whatever you can. If in the end he

---

2. Balkrishna Bhave, younger brother of Vinoba Bhave
3. An Ayurvedic Medicine
4. Addressee’s wife
5. Madhavdas G. Kapadia
6. Sailendra, son of Amrita Lal Chatterjee must go, what can you do? I consider this as the last effort. The journal you used to bring out will have been discontinued. Now do not bring out a new one. If you do well whatever you are doing you will have done a lot.

Blessings from
BAPU

NATURE CURE HOSPITAL
MALAD (BOMBAY)

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

422. NOTE TO PARACHURE SHASTRI

July 19, 1945

I reject taboos associated with menstruation deliberately. But that does not mean that a lustful person may touch a woman in mens- ses to gratify his desire. It is the superstition that I strongly oppose.

M. K. GANDHI

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

423. ADDRESS TO ASHRAM WORKERS

July 19, 1945

There is no cause for frustration or disappointment as a result of the failure of the Simla Conference. We should carry on more vigo- rously our constructive work and other national activities for strength- ening our position and serving the masses.

The Hindu, 21-7-1945

424. MESSAGE TO STUDENT CONGRESS WORKERS

WARDHAGANI,
July 20, 1945

Do and do as much as you can. Collect each one pice.¹

The Hindu, 22-7-1945

¹Who met Gandhiji in connection with raising Begum Azad pice fund
²Vide also “Letter to Abul Kalam Azad”, 2-8-1945.
425. LETTER TO J. C. KUMARAPPA

July 20, 1945

MY DEAR KU.,

Keep well.

Fix the date some time during the first week in September. I have Bharatan' on the brain.

I have distributed two copies of your book on Jesus to non-Indian Xians. Supply me with more copies.

Love.

BAPU

MAGANWADI, WARDHA

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

426. LETTER TO MANU GANDHI

July 20, 1945

CHI. MANUDI,

You are suffering a good deal. I have great faith in Dr. Dinshaw, and therefore I am not worrying about you. You could not be in a better place. I can see from your letters themselves that both of you girls will learn something there. You must return only after you have built up radiant health. Trust the doctor implicitly and do whatever he tells you to do. Do not feel shy to write about anything that happens. If you feel shy, I shall worry more.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./XXIV

---

1 Addressee’s brother, Assistant Secretary of the All-India Village Industries Association and Editor of its organ Gram Udyog Patrika

2 Practice and Precepts of Jesus
427. LETTER TO VANAMALA N. PARIKH

July 20, 1945

CHI. VANU,

If you become Vanu-di¹, wouldn’t that be your undoing? Are you going to remain silly all your life? Then remain Vanudi. If you have any silliness in you, leave it there. As for the extra fat, you have gone there to shed it, and also to improve the ear. Isn’t that so? You have planned the prayers, etc., fairly well there. I have built high hopes on the result of your stay there. My two notes are for both you sisters.

The rest from the other letters.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 5794. Also C.W. 3017. Courtesy: Vanamala M. Desai

428. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

July 20, 1945

CHI. NARANDAS,

I have not written to you for a long time. I felt inclined to write today after hearing the account given by Kanaiyo². I had left him in Bombay with high hopes. But they have not been fulfilled. Maybe, that also is to the good. On top of that, he got boils on the hand. How he got them one cannot tell. It is hoped they will subside in about eight days' time. After that he intends to go there. It is necessary to think now how he should be fixed up. He has considerable ability. We have to consider which of his gifts to employ and on what tasks. Personally I feel that it would be the most natural thing for him to remain with me and get trained. But I would attach more importance to your view, for at present my mind is occupied with the work lying before me and, therefore, I am not able to concentrate it on problems of individuals. If something occurs to me on the spur of the moment,

¹ ‘Di’ is suffixed to Gujarati names to form diminutives or to express endearment.
² Kanu, addressee’s son well and good. After that, the attention wanders off to the original problem. I will, therefore, do what you desire. In any case Kanaiyo himself can decide.

Blessings from
BAPU

429. LETTER TO AMRITA LAL CHATTERJEE

July 20, 1945

Bhai Amritlal,

I have your letter in Hindi. It is good that you wrote it in Hindi. It will not be proper for you to come here right now. The Ashram is very unsteady. If you have blood-pressure go to the Khadi Pratishthan1. There is work to be done there. Maybe, Ranu2 and Shanti3 can also stay there. Consult Dhiren4.

Sailen has recovered.

Blessings from
BAPU

430. LETTER TO ROMEN CHATTERJEE

July 20, 1945

Chai Romen,

I am sure you acted after careful thought.5 College education has no value for me. Almost all the boys that come out take up jobs—and jobs that bring no benefit to the country, only cause it harm. What can you do? You are a child. All the elders want you to go to college. How can you disobey them?

Be good.

Blessings from
BAPU

1 At Sodepur, run by Satis Chandra Das Gupta
2 Romen, addressee’s son
3 Addressee’s daughter
4 Dhirendra, addressee’s son
5 The addressee had joined the Intermediate course of the Calcutta University.
431. LETTER TO ABDUL HUQ

July 20, 1945

Bhai Saheb,

Zohra\(^1\) has come to me about Shaukatullah Ansari’s\(^2\) house which is in your possession and which you refuse to give up. I should like to hear what you have to say in the matter. You were a friend of the late Dr. Ansari\(^3\). How can there be any litigation with you? I shall hope to hear from you.

Yours,

M. K. Gandhi

Dr. Abdul Huq

Delhi

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

432. LETTER TO MANU GANDHI

Sevagram,

July 21, 1945

Chi. Manudi,

I have torn up your letter. It was silly. If there was any thing private in it, it was your silliness. You had promised to stay there for a year if required. And now you wish to go back on your word! Who will trust you then? There is no harm in accepting money from Bhai. He is your father. If you ask me, I would say that you should stop all other thought and get well there. If the doctor is put to any expense, it is for him and me to worry about. You may ask him for whatever money you need. Your whole letter was silly. I was pained to read it. Try and see if you can become firm in your mind. Ultimately you are your own sovereign.

Blessings from

Bapu

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./III

---

\(^1\) Zohra Ansari, wife of Shaukatullah Shah Ansari

\(^2\) Honorary General Secretary, All-India Muslim Majlis, 1944-47; Counsellor, Indian Embassy in Turkey, 1947-48

\(^3\) M. A. Ansari (1880-1936); leading physician of Delhi; President, Indian National Congress, 1927
433. LETTER TO SARALA MEHTA

July 21, 1945

CHI. SARALA¹,

I have your long letter. What can I do in the family affairs²? Time will do its own work. But bear in mind that the one who has truth on his side will not be harmed. Bhai Nanalal³ is there—all of you should see him. I am very busy these days.

Blessings from
BAPU

CHANDRAKUNI
JAGANATH PLOT, RAJKOT

434. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA

July 21, 1945

CHI. KRISHNACHANDRA,

(1) There is some confusion. What is and what is not my responsibility and to what extent is a matter of argument. In faith there is no room for argument.

(2) One can try to be dustlike. Understand the suffix ‘like’.

(3) How can a person make his full contribution if he has not become dustlike to the extent required by the Ashram?

(4) One can make oneself fit for the Ashram even while one is away from it. People have done so and are doing so. This needs to be understood. And those who have qualified themselves for the Ashram will always regard themselves as being in the Ashram, no matter where they go.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4518

¹ Daughter of Champa and Ratilal Mehta, eldest son of Dr. Pranjivandas Mehta
² Of Dr. Pranjivandas Mehta
³ Nanalal K. Jasani
435. LETTER TO M. R. JAYAKAR

SEVAGRAM,
July 22, 1945

DEAR DR. JAYAKAR,

I thank you for your letter which I am forwarding to the Maulana. I know he will appreciate it.

You may depend upon my doing whatever is possible for me to do.

I hope you are keeping well and fit.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

DR. M. R. JAYAKAR
WINTER ROAD
MALABAR HILL
BOMBAY

Gandhi-Jayakar Papers, File No. 826. Courtesy: National Archives of India

436. LETTER TO BHARATAN KUMARAPPA

July 22, 1945

MY DEAR BHARATAN,

I could not send you the enclosed earlier. If you did not want some such answer you should revise it yourself or rewrite it and let me see it. We do not want to fill the columns of the Gram Udyog Patrika. Whilst I was away, what was done was inevitable. Now that I am here we must publish something final.

You and your informants are late in the day. Have you read my writings?

Love.

BAPU

From a photostat: G.N. 10174

1 Dated July 19, it read: “. . . it does not suit Mr. Jinnah, to accept any arrangement, however shortlived, which brings Hindus and Muslims together . . . he called the Wavell arrangement a snare . . . if he accepted the interim arrangement (suggested at the Simla Conference in June ’45) Pakistan would be shelved. . . . May I congratulate you and the other Congress leaders, especially the President Maulana Abul Kalam Azad on the straight, dignified and urbane manner in which he conducted himself?”

2 The address is from Pyarelal Papers.

VOL. 87: 29 MAY, 1945 - 29 AUGUST, 1945  259
437. LETTER TO MANU GANDHI

July 22, 1945

CHI. MANUDI,

Do you believe that Jaisukhlal refused to send you money because he distrusts you? If you think so, you are doing a great injustice to your father. I have told Jaisukhlal that he should not send money directly to you, and that is why he mentioned my name. If you want money, write to me. But where is the need? I can write to Dr. Mehta. If you do not stay there in peace and keep on saying that you wish to run away, it will pain me. How do you know that Rs. 10,000 are to be set [apart] for you?

Blessings from
BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./III

438. LETTER TO VALLABHBHAI PATEL

July 22, 1945

BHAI VALLABHBHAI,

Chi. Sushila (Nayyar) is leaving today. If an operation becomes absolutely necessary, get it done. If it is decided to keep you under observation for two or three months, I am in favour of your staying at Dinshaw’s. If you decide to go, I also will be ready to go there. You may write, or dictate, whatever else you wish to.

Blessings from
BAPU

SARDAR VALLABHBHAI PATEL
68 MARINE DRIVE
BOMBAY

[From Gujarati]

Bapuna Patro-2: Sardar Vallabhbhaine, p. 280
439. LETTER TO PURUSHOTTAM K. JERAJANI

July 22, 1945

Bhai Kakubhai,

I have received all your letters. They have all been duly answered. Bear in mind that anyone who spins will have to see to all the previous processes connected with cotton. Without it the work will be incomplete. Among these the process of carding works wonders. Let them ply the takli instead of the spinning-wheel.

I have not quite understood what took place with Kanu Gandhi. Narandas’s suggestion appears to be quite acceptable.

Blessings from

Bapu

440. LETTER TO SUSHILA NAYYAR

Sevagram,

July 22, 1945

Chi. Sushila,

I did let you go but afterwards I kept thinking about your health. I have therefore asked Sardar to inform me about it by wire. Get well completely. Have yourself examined by Dr. Gilder, if you want to. Write to me in detail. Was there a crowd? If Dr. Gilder is not using Prabhavati’s spinning-wheel, bring it back. Buy him a new one if he is using it, or we can send one from here. Prabhavati’s spinning-wheel is specially meant for me and so I want it back if possible. I am sure you will see Mathuradas.

Today I span for one hour and seven minutes. Recitation of the Gita was over by that time.

Blessings from

Bapu

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 The addressee had an attack of dysentery.
2 This letter is not available.
3 Dr. M. D. D. Gilder, Minister in the first Congress Ministry of Bombay, 1937-39
4 Wife of Jayaprakash Narayan
5 Mathuradas Trikumji, ex-Mayor of Bombay, who was suffering from tuberculosis
441. TELEGRAM TO MRIDULA SARABHAI

Express

SEVAGRAM,

July 23, 1945

MRIDULA

CARE SARALA

BOMBAY

I WANT WHOEVER ENTERTAINS CAMP TO PROVIDE BUILDINGS UTENSILS FREE. ONE PLACE WAS REJECTED TRYING OTHER TWO. YOU CAN GO AND RETURN AS SUGGESTED.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

442. TELEGRAM TO RAJENDRA PRASAD

Express

SEVAGRAM,

July 23, 1945

DOCTOR RAJENDRAPRASAD

BIRLA HOUSE

NEW DELHI

SORRY MAHENDRA TO DIE.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

443. LETTER TO LORD WAVELL

SEVAGRAM,

July 23, 1945

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter of 18th instant about Mahendra Chowdhury for which I thank you.

Apart from the merits about which I should have much to say if

1 Daughter of Ambalal Sarabhai, Trustee and Joint Secretary of the Kasturba Gandhi National Memorial Trust
2 Mahendra Chowdhury; vide the following item.
3 In which the Viceroy had informed Gandhiji that the case was one of dacoity and murder, that the Privy Council had rejected the application and that the law must take its course. Vide "Letter to Lord Wavell", 15-7-1945.
there was room for argument, I question the prudence of one person, however eminent, deciding to take the life of a person even proved guilty, without having an impartial tribunal to advise him. Moreover, this case had, rightly or wrongly, assumed a political character. How I wish you had been wisely guided!

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

H. E. THE VICEROY
THE VICEROY’S HOUSE
NEW DELHI

Gandhiji’s Correspondence with the Government, 1944-47, p. 39

444. LETTER TO AMRIT KAUR

July 23, 1945

CHI. AMRIT,¹

I have your two letters received by the same post.
The cuttings you have sent are interesting. I have read them all.
I hope you no longer grieve over Tofa’s death. Don’t have another pet animal if you can restrain yourself.
Though you must miss us all, I am glad you have a little leisure now. You were overworking yourself.
I look forward to your account of the visit you have referred to in your letter.

Sushila had an attack of dysentery. She had lost 4 lb. up to yesterday. She went to Bombay yesterday for the Sardar. There was a phone that she was still suffering. I do feel strongly that medical people should [not] suffer from avoidable complaints. Something wrong in a system that tolerates such evils.

Well, I hear today from the Viceroy that the Bihar young man² is to hang. It is a bad augury. I had forebodings as you know but had hoped otherwise. Let us see.
My love to you all.

Blessings from
BAPU

From the original: C.W. 3697. Courtesy: Amrit Kaur. Also G.N. 6506

¹ The superscription and the subscription in this letter are in Hindi.
² Mahendra Chowdhury
445. LETTER TO MADALASA

July 23, 1945

CHI. MADALASA,

The name “Jivan Kutir” will be justified only if you, who were half dead when going to live there, regain sweet life there. I was very pleased to know that you were well. And now you have Vinoba’ and Ram’. What more can you wish for? See that you never sink into the slough of despair again.

Blessings from
BAPU

[From Gujarati]

Panchven Putrako Bapuke Ashirvad, p. 325

446. LETTER TO ANNAPURNA C. MEHTA

July 23, 1945

CHI. ANNAPURNA,

I got your loving gift of the loin-cloth. But if all the girls should send things like this, wouldn’t that spoil me? I would get into the habit of wearing new and nice loin-cloths. The really good and proper thing to do would be to give the best thing you make or get made to your best student. That would be truly as good as giving the thing to me.

Now you should learn hand-weaving also.
I hope your health is good and your work is going on well.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: S.N. 9438

447. LETTER TO MANCHERSHA AVARI

July 23, 1945

BHAI MANCHERSHA AVARI,

I have your letter. I am very happy to know that you are immersed in constructive work and your wife is also with you. It is

1 The name of the addressee’s house; literally, “cottage of life”
2 Vinoba Bhave
3 Ramakrishna, addressee’s younger brother difficult to attend to everyone—and then there are so many things to see to. It will be so much the better if you could carry further what has since been accomplished. Let us see what happens about the death-sentence convicts1. I am doing all that I can.

Blessings to both of you from

BAPU

GENERAL MANCHERSHA AVARI
SIRAS PETH
NAGPUR CITY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

448. LETTER TO AMTUSSALAAM

July 23, 1945

CHI. DAUGHTER,

Your letter, redirected from Simla, was received here yesterday. You deliberately spoil your health and then complain. Come whenever you can make yourself free. You went of your own accord. Was it I who sent you? Anyway come when Prafulla Babu2 permits you to do so. Shanti3 told me at Simla that she needed you for a lot of work. She does not want to let you leave Bengal. But I want to leave everything to you.

See Niamat’s letter. I argued with her a great deal, telling her it would be no use calling Islam4 just for a few days. But would she ever listen to me?

Prabhavati will write the rest.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 499

1 Several freedom fighters who had retaliated against British repression in Chimur and Ashti had been sentenced to death. Vide also “Statement to the press”, 31-3-1945.
2 Prafulla Chandra Ghosh, Chief Minister of West Bengal, 1947-48 Member, State Assembly, 1947-62, 1967-68
3 Wife of Humayun Kabir
4 A Muslim woman from Sevagram who was later accommodated in Kasturba Vidyalaya, Madhan
449. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA

July 23, 1945

CHI. KRISHNACHANDRA,

Your catching malaria is a matter of concern. Maybe, you would have been spared if you had properly used the mosquito-net. In my opinion the principle of not taking any treatment cannot hold good for everybody.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4519

450. LETTER TO A. KALESWARA RAO

July 23, 1945

BHAI KALESWARAO,

I have your telegram. I showed it to Vinoba. He is so much involved in the work here that he needs some free time. He will therefore not be able to do any work for the exhibition.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

451. LETTER TO RAJENDRA PRASAD

July 23, 1945

BHAI RAJENDRA BABU,

I have sent a telegram about Mahendra. I am enclosing here-with the Viceroy’s letter and my reply to him. Mahendra will have gone, but what now? The full details of the case should come out. I hope the fever has gone.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Village Industries Exhibition
3 ibid
4 Vide also “Telegram to Rajendra Prasad”, 30-7-1945, and “Letter to Rajendra Prasad”, 15-8-1945.
452. LETTER TO MAHESH CHARAN

July 23, 1945

Bhai Mahesh Charan,

Sjt. Jajuji has talked to me about the matter you mention in your letter. I am satisfied with what is being done.

Blessings from
Bapu

Gandhi Ashram
Khadi Bhandar
32 Latouche Road
Lucknow

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

453. LETTER TO SHYAMLAL

July 23, 1945

Bhai Shyamlal.

There are two ways of serving the Harijans. First, by raising them through education, etc., and secondly by rooting out untouchability from among the caste Hindus. The first course always bears fruit and it is desirable to pursue it however little one can. Simple ‘Eradication of Untouchability’ does not serve our purpose. Therefore, ‘Harijan Sevak Sangh’ is a more appropriate expression. It is true that so far very little work has been done among the savarnas. The reasons are obvious. We lack self-sacrifice. Everyone, to some extent, can do the work of spreading education. But everyone cannot work among the savarnas for the removal of Untouchability. Untouchability cannot be removed by delivering speeches. It will be removed only by the power of our self-sacrifice. In such self-sacrifice, fasting has an important place. The fasts should be backed by discretion. Something could be done if competent Shastris issue public statements. What Barveji says is not right. There can be no separate village for Harijans because they are an integral part of society and yet outside it.

They need wells, schools, etc., and if they are properly built and

1 Shrikrishnadas Jaju, Secretary, All-India Spinners’ Association
2 Secretary, Kasturba Gandhi National Memorial Trust
3 V. N. Barve, President, Harijan Sevak Sangh, Dhulia
if savarnas are allowed access to them, it would be one step towards eradication of untouchability. Abolition of untouchability has political implications but it must be pursued with a purely religious motive. It is a need of Hinduism. The answers to your more important questions are as follows:

1. Castes must go if we want to root out untouchability. Read my preface to *Varnavyavastha*¹.

2. I feel that if it becomes necessary we should continue special schools, wells, and so on.

3. Propaganda among the savarna Hindus is necessary. I have mentioned its limitations above.

4. If there is a conflict with the savarnas for securing the rights of Harijans, we must put up with it but secure them the rights.

5. The suggestion is good, but discretion will be necessary in [implementing] it.

6. I consider the movement for temple-entry as necessary.

7. I do not know how far it is possible to have a meeting of Hindu leaders. But there should be such a meeting.

8. The question of separate wells has already been dealt with.

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

454. LETTER TO ISHKUMAR

July 23, 1945

BHAI ISHKUMAR,

What will you do by coming to me? It is difficult to be with me. It is also uncertain where I shall be when you come. It is only physical labour the whole day. I advise you to resist the temptation of coming here for the present. The weather too is not good.

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

SHRI AUROBINDO ASHRAM
PONDICHERRY

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers.Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹*Vide “Introduction to Varnavyavastha”, 23-9-1934.*
455. LETTER TO SHYAMLAL

July 23, 1945

BHAI SHYAMLAL,

Prof. Jagadisan\(^1\) may employ a male doctor for the time being. I have no objection.

Blessings from
BAPU

SECRETARY, K. G. N. M. TRUST
BAJAJWADI
WARDHA

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

456. LETTER TO BENDRE

SEVAGRAM,
July 24, 1945

BHAI BENDRE,

I have your letter. How shall I console you? Your bond was with your Bachi’s\(^2\) soul. What does it matter whether the body is buried or cremated? You of course know that the soul does not perish. Why, then, should you grieve? But this is mere philosophy. Experience of the world tells us that no one goes mad over the death of his children. You should, therefore, feel ashamed of yourself over your excessive grieving and shower love on Nalini. Please calm yourself.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 10246

---

\(^1\) T. N. Jagadisan was supervising the leprosy relief work of the Kasturba Gandhi National Memorial Trust since May 1945.

\(^2\) Addressee’s daughter
457. LETTER TO RAMDAS GANDHI

July 24, 1945

CHI. RAMDAS,

You may consider this first for Usha\(^1\). If you are still ill, then why don’t you go to Dr. Dinshaw and get cured? Why should you be lethargic in this matter? Kanam\(^2\) had also become weak.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

458. LETTER TO S. A. BRELVI

July 24, 1945

BHAISHRI BRELVI\(^3\).

The whole of India knows that as far as politics goes I have the greatest esteem for Sir Pherozeshah\(^4\).

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

From a facsimile of the Hindi: Mahatma, Vol. VII, between pp. 16 and 17

459. LETTER TO SHRIMAN NARAYAN

July 24, 1945

CHI. SHRIMAN,

It seems you have sent the letter already. I had thought you would show me the draft. Anyway in my view you should have given only one reason for resigning\(^5\). Use of the term ‘Hindustani’ is of secondary importance. Implications of the term ‘Rashtrabhasha’

---

\(^1\) Addressee’s daughter

\(^2\) Kanu, addressee’s son

\(^3\) The letter has been reproduced in the Urdu script as well.

\(^4\) (1891-1949); Leading Congressman of Bombay; Chairman of the Bombay branch of the All-India Nationalist Muslim Party formed in 1929, Editor of The Bombay Chronicle

\(^5\) Pherozeshah Mehta (1845-1915); one of the founders of the Indian National Congress and its President in 1890 and 1909

\(^6\) From the Secretaryship of the Rashtrabhasha Prachar Samiti, Wardha

270 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
are far-reaching. It would be better also to send the resignation after revising it. If you want to do this you should show me the draft before sending it.

Blessings from

BAPU

[From Hindi]

Panchven Putrako Bapuke Ashirvad, p. 307

460. LETTER TO SHYAMLAL

July 24, 1945

BHAI SHYAMLAL,

I congratulate you on your accepting a cut of Rs. 100 voluntarily. If you can conveniently give up something more please do so. Only good can come of it but nothing should be done on my bidding. All sacrifice must be voluntary.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

461. LETTER TO AMRIT KAUR

SEVAGRAM,

July 25, 1945

CHI. AMRIT,

Don’t apologize for writing to me daily. You should continue without straining yourself and without expecting a reply daily.

You are silent about your visit.

You did well in writing to J. The criticism is unfriendly. But restraint is always good.

I hope you are well. Ask Beryl to write to me. Is Shummy¹ better?

Sushila still with Sardar.

Love to you all.

BAPU

From the original: C.W. 4161. Courtesy: Amrit Kaur. Also G.N. 7797

¹ Shumshere Singh, addressee’s brother
462. LETTER TO MIRABEHN

July 25, 1945

CHI. MIRA,

If I am to write I must be brief. If you do not feel well you must run up to a cool place. I took the journey well. Balvantsinha must be with you when this reaches you. Keep him if you want him. Tell him on his letter I sent Hoshiari\(^1\) to her father. She will return with or without her boy. It is fair here. It rains off and on. But the insects are more numerous than before. Sushila got dysentery and lost 4 lb. She is now in Bombay with Sardar.

Love.

BAPU

SHRI MIRABEHN
KISAN ASHRAM
P. O. BAHADRAD, via Jwalapur
NEAR HARDWAR, U. P.

From the original: C.W. 6509. Courtesy: Mirabehn. Also G.N. 9904

463. LETTER TO SITA GANDHI

July 25, 1945

CHI. SITA,

I read your letter. Your curriculum is good. You are working hard. Do not worry about whether you will pass or not. Don’t do anything at the cost of your health. Do not write in a small hand. Examine carefully what is written in this postcard.

Blessings from

BAPU

KUMARI SITA GANDHI
MASHRUWALA BUNGALOW
AKOLA, BERAR

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 4954

\(^1\) Niece of Balvantsinha
464. LETTER TO PUSHPA S. DESAI

July 25, 1945

CHI. PUSHPA¹.

I have your letter. If you have really realized God, you will see Him everywhere, even in your father. Still, if you must come here you may. But you will have to find solitude in multitude. You will have to do everything right from cleaning the latrines and you will have to find God in that. One cannot serve God by singing bhajans. You may therefore be escaping from one difficulty to land into another. I advise you to see Manibehn² and then arrive at a decision. Consider it a sin to write in pencil.

Blessings from

BAPU

CHI. PUSHPABEHN
C/O SHRI MANILAL POPATLAL DOSHI
SHARDA’S CHAWL
SECOND FLOOR, ROOM NO. 12
BOMBAY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

465. LETTER TO MANIBEHN PATEL

July 25, 1945

CHI. MANI,

Why need you write to me now? And I should not hope that you will.

I write this in connection with Pushpa. She is suffering very much. She has written to me that she wants to see me. But it will be better if you go and visit her. You will certainly find her at her place.
The address is C/o Manilal Popatlal Doshi, New Hanuman
Lane, Sharda’s

¹ Daughter of Kanji Jethabhai Desai of Bombay
² Daughter of Vallabhbhai Patel
Chawl, Second Floor, Room No. 12.
I hope you are well.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI MANIBEHN PATEL
C/O SHRI DAHYABHAI PATEL
68 MARINE DRIVE
BOMBAY
[From Gujarati]
Bapuna Patro-4: Manibehn Patelne, pp. 136-7

466. LETTER TO VALLABHBHAI PATEL
July 25, 1945

BHAI VALLABHBHAI,

I have your letter. If you have to take treatment now, I would strongly advise you to go to Dinshaw at Poona for it. I will be ready to go there, and so you will have the benefit of my quackery, too. In any case you cannot get worse than you are and it is likely Dinshaw will win glory.

I had a talk with Pardiwala. I will write today itself. That mail goes by the morning post. A copy cannot be sent with this. Such things will go on happening. You are not the man to worry about them.

I have no time to write more.

Blessings from
BAPU

[From Gujarati]
Bapuna Patro-2: Sardar Vallabhaine, p. 281

467. LETTER TO APTE
July 25, 1945

BHAI APTE,

He who had given you Shambhu has taken him back. We must also meet the same fate. Why should you then grieve? Why should

1 An advocate of Bombay
2 To Lord Wavell; vide “Letter to Lord Wavell”.
Sharaja lament? All the children belong to you both. All this is implied in the khadi spirit. Cultivate that spirit and go on doing your duty. Everything will be all right if you exercise self-control. Moreover, you have already rendered whatever service you could.

Blessings from

BAPU

APTE
279-2 SADASHIV PETH
POONA CITY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

468. LETTER TO JAMSHEDJI N. MEHTA

July 25, 1945

Bhai Jamshed,

I got your letter along with the typed matter. It is surprising that the Gita is full of those things and yet you could find no consolation from it. Because you were used to English that appealed to you immediately. Be that as it may, it is good that the depression has left you. For the rest take it that whatever happened at Simla was for the best.

Blessings from

BAPU

Sheth Nusservanjii
Karachi

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

469. LETTER TO KRISHNAVARMA

July 25, 1945

Bhai (Dr.) Krishnavarma,

I have your letter. Chi. Sailen has come here. He is well. More about him later. Do whatever you can for Mama. The result is in God’s hands. Please tell Mama that it will be good if he observes the rules of the place where he stays.

Blessings from

BAPU

Malad

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
470. LETTER TO PURUSHOTTAMDAS TANDON

Sevagram,
July 25, 1945

Bhai Tandonji,

I have your letter of July 11. I read it twice. I then gave it to Kishorelalbhai. You probably know that he is an independent thinker. I also send you what he has written. I would only say that I have always been as far as possible a slave of your love. The time has now come when the same love will separate me from you. I have not been able to explain myself. Kindly place this letter before the Standing Committee of the Sammelan. I feel that the Sammelan has not accepted my definition of Hindi. And now my ideas are moving further still in that direction. My definition of Rashtrabhasha includes a knowledge of Hindi and Urdu and both the Nagari and Persian scripts. Only thus can a fusion of Hindi and Urdu come about, if it will. I am afraid this suggestion of mine may not be welcome to the Sammelan. I therefore request that my resignation be accepted. By pursuing the difficult task of propagating Hindustani I shall be serving both Hindi and Urdu.

Yours,
M. K. Gandhi

[From Hindi]
Rashtra bhashak Prashnapar Gandhiji aur Tandonjika Mahattvapurna Patravayavahar, p. 10

471. LETTER TO SUKHDEV

July 25, 1945

Bhai Sukhdevji,

What is the use of my sending for you? Send me all the papers. Send also a brief statement along with them. I will do what I can after studying everything. Stay on there till you have my reply.

SIT. SUKHDEV
DAILY “Tej”
DELHI

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 (1882-1962); Speaker, U. P. Legislative Assembly, 1937-39 and 1946-50; elected President of Indian National Congress, 1950, but resigned soon after; Vice-President, Akhil Bharatiya Hindi Sahitya Sammelan
2 Akhil Bharatiya Hindi Sahitya Sammelan
472. LETTER TO LORD WAVELL

SEVAGRAM,
July 25, 1945

DEAR FRIEND,

I have just heard from Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel that several thousand Indian soldiers who had joined Subhas Babu in Burma or elsewhere and who were captured during the recent anti-Japanese operations have been locked up in the Delhi Fort and the ring leaders (so called) have been shot under the decree of a court martial. I am inclined to think that this is a bazaar rumour. Nevertheless, I suggest that the public may be taken into confidence as to the true situation and that, if there is any truth about the lock-up and trial, legal assistance of their choice may be given to those who may be tried.

This is being posted after post office hours. Hence a copy under a certificate of posting will follow when the post office opens tomorrow.²

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

H. E. THE VICEROY
VICEROY’S HOUSE
NEW DELHI

Gandhiji’s Correspondence with the Government, 1944-47, pp. 39-40

473. LETTER TO J. C. KUMARAPPA

SEVAGRAM,
July 26, 1945

MY DEAR KU.,

This is to introduce Shri Shyamlal to you. He is the Secretary of the K. G. Memorial Trust. He will plead with you for accommodating the prospective women’s camp for four months from after the rains.

1 Subhas Chandra Bose (1897-1945); General Secretary of the Congress, 1927; President of the Congress, 1938 and 1939; resigned Presidentship and founded the All-India Forward Bloc; placed under house arrest but escaped to Germany in 1941, one of the organizers of Indian Independence League in South East Asia, organized and led the Indian National Army

² Acknowledging this on July 29, the Viceroy’s Private Secretary E. M. Jenkins replied that it was receiving the Viceroy’s consideration. are over, i. e., not later than 2nd October. I support the pleading, if it is feasible. More from the bearer.

Love.

BAPU

From a photostat: G.N. 10175

474. LETTER TO PATTABHI SITARAMAYYA
July 26, 1945

DEAR PATTABHI,

Pyarelal has asked you about the accuracy of your reported speech. Now comes the enclosed from the angry worker who takes me to task about palmyra trees. Did I ever say about palmyra trees [anything] of the kind reported to have been said by me? I have much to say about the other parts. But I forbear pending your reply. Hope you are well.

Yours,

BAPU

MACHHALIPATTAM

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

475. NOTE TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH
July 26, 1945

When I fixed the amount of milk, there were no other institutions in the neighbourhood. Now that there are, it becomes our duty to sink or swim with them. We here cannot have the freedom that they enjoy. But we must apply the controls that they do. The doctors are engaged in formulating a standard. It will be published shortly. Just now you should reduce the quantity of milk as much as you conveniently can. The final decision should be postponed till after Sushila-behn’s arrival. I should like to do without ghee altogether, but that does not seem desirable for vegetarians. Experience will be a better guide in this matter. Pulses cannot replace milk, but doctors believe that they are necessary in themselves. I am the only one to assert emphatically that they are not necessary. We may, however, introduce them. The same about spices. Those who are under the Ashram vows cannot consume them for the pleasure of the palate, but if they are necessary for aiding digestion they may be used. It should be remembered that there are very few in the Ashram who have taken the vows. I see no great trouble in having two separate cuisines—one with spices, the other without. We cannot compel anybody to observe the vow of controlling the palate, or any vow.

1 (1880-1959); Member, Congress Working Committee, President, All-India States People’s Conference, 1936; President of the Congress, 1948; Governor of Madhya Pradesh, 1952-57

2 Vide “Interview to The Hindu”, 28-7-1945.

While considering this matter, we should remember that though milk, ghee and fruit are consumed in greater quantity in the Ashram, illness persists. We must investigate the cause of this.

If this does not give you the guidance that you need, ask me again. The problem of those who are ill is a different one.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 5908. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

476. LETTER TO KRISHNAVARMA

July 26, 1945

BHAI KRISHNAVARMA,

I enclose herewith Sailen’s letter. He has also given me a leaflet. It contains something shocking. I send you the relevant portion along with Sailen’s letter. If what is said in it is true we must correct it. It is our duty not to get angry with the critic but to accept the substance of what he says. In many things nature cure should be superior to the methods of ordinary doctors and ordinary men. More after I hear from you.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
477. LETTER TO GOSIBEHN CAPTAIN

July 27, 1945

CHI. GOSIBEHN

I am so glad you can upset inkstands and that in the wrong place.

You may not give up the ghost so easily. See Balasaheb Kher and put all the facts before him. We must do things correctly even if they take a little time. Time given won’t be time wasted. That would be part of teaching new work. See the others also. Take my help whenever necessary. P. can attend to her teeth. She need not wait for the meeting. I am doing all I can. You must be well.

Love.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

478. LETTER TO BALVANTSINHA

SEVAGRAM,
July 27, 1945

CHI. BALVANTSINHA,

I have your letters. It will be good if your presence can help to settle the dispute there.

Hoshiari is brave. She will succeed. It is good that you are also there.

I am keeping well. Mirabehn is anxiously awaiting you.

It will be good if you have a look at Dr. Sharma’s handi-work. See what he is doing.

Things are going on well here. By the route which you have taken you cannot go to Balkrishna.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 1965

1 Grand-daughter of Dadabhai Naoroji
2 B. G. Kher, ex-Premier of Bombay
3 Perin, addressee’s sister
4 The addressee in his book Bapuki Chhayamen explains that the reference is to the nature-cure clinic opened by H. L. Sharma at Khurja.
479. LETTER TO GHANSHYAM SINGH GUPTA

July 27, 1945

Bhai Ghanshyam Singh,

There is no discourtesy in publishing the letter from the Governor of Sind. I have made emendations in both the drafts. You will understand them.

I finished it today but it could not be registered in the post today. It will go tomorrow.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

480. LETTER TO HOSHIARI

July 27, 1945

Chh. Hoshiari,

I have your letter. You will not cease to be respectful towards your father, at the same time you will remain firm. It does not matter if it takes a few days to persuade Father. If your firmness makes Father angry, there is nothing you can do about it. Look after your health. If possible go and see Dr. Sharma.

Blessings from

BAPU

C/O Lachhman Singhji
Samaspur
Khurja, U. P.

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

481. LETTER TO RAJENDRA PRASAD

Sevagram,
July 27, 1945

Bhai Rajendra Babu,

I have already written to you about Mahendra.¹ Probably by now he will have been hanged. It seems our effort has been in vain. If there is any further news we shall get it. Write to me fully about what you think. It is surprising that you fell ill in Delhi. It will be better to go to Pilani only after you get well.

I shall see about the other Mahendra 1 after I receive the papers. It would be good if I get papers concerning the first Mahendra also.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

482. LETTER TO SUCHETA KRIPALANI

July 27, 1945

CHI. SUCHETA 2.

I have gone through your Urdu letter. I like it; you should not understand it to mean that you are to give up writing in Hindi. You should write in both according to the occasion. Why did you fall ill? It will be good if you go to Gulmarg first and get well. The only condition is that you should go while Jawaharlal is there and should see that his privacy is protected. I do not write to the Professor 3. This for him: He should write to me in Hindi or Urdu or Sindhi. Why does he write in English? Is it because he is a ‘professor’?

Blessings from

BAPU

SWARAJ BHAVAN

ALLAHABAD

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

---

1 Raja Mahendra Pratap (1886-1979); President, Provisional Government of Hind in Kabul, 1915. He was in the Yokohama prison and Government’s assistance was required for his return to India.
2 (1908-74); In-charge, Women’s Department, A.I.C.C.; member, Congress Working Committee, 1950-52; member, Lok Sabha, 1952-62; Chief Minister, U. P., October 1963 to March 1967
3 Addresssee's husband J. B. Kripalani, (b. 1888); General Secretary of the Indian National Congress, 1934-46; its President in 1946. One of the founders of the Congress Democratic Front and later of the Praja Socialist Party
483. INTERVIEW TO “THE HINDU”

WARDHAGANI,
July 28, 1945

QUESTION: According to Dr. Pattabhi, the Desai-Liaqat Formula contemplated formation of a new government first, to be followed by the release of the members of the Congress Working Committee. This aspect of the Formula had been interpreted by some people as “bypassing the Congress” and by some others as “stabbing the Congress in the back”.

You have stated in your statement issued from Panchgani that you blessed the Formula as you thought it provided a basis for communal settlement. It is generally believed that you were consulted at every stage of the agreement. Is the interpretation put on the agreement that it bypassed the Congress correct?

ANSWER: I consider the question has been addressed to a wrong person. Parties to the Formula are the best persons to say what it meant. Then what you put into Dr. Pattabhi’s mouth, he may repudiate. I, therefore, suggest to all reporters at all times, but most specially at this time, to be precise and accurate in what they say. There never was the slightest intention on the part of Advocate Bhulabhai Desai, on whose behalf alone I can speak, “of stabbing the Congress in the back” or making an attempt to “bypass” the Congress. He, himself made politically by the Congress, could never be guilty of any such intention, and, for me, I should be committing suicide if I could be a party to any such attempt. I can say this much for Advocate Bhulabhai Desai that the only intention he had was that of honourably resolving the deadlock and thereby serving the Congress. It would be wrong to say that I was consulted “at every stage” but it would be strictly correct to say that Advocate Bhulabhai Desai saw me more than once about the ‘Pact’.

Asked whether the release of the members of the Working Committee formed part of the agreement, whether it was agreed between the parties that the Muslim League alone should nominate the Muslim members of the new government and whether in view of so many statements and counter-statements on the subject it would not be desirable to release the Formula for publication, Gandhiji said:

I think, in the foregoing, I have said as much as I could, consistently with the fact that the ‘Pact’ has not seen the light of day. I wish that the parties had agreed to release it for publication.

The Hindu, 30-7-1945
484. LETTER TO SUDHIR GHOSH

July 28, 1945

MY DEAR SUDHIR,

I have your good letter.

A man is sincere in the sense that he is not knowingly dishonest. But if he makes up his mind hastily and will not deign to take the trouble to study accurately facts of each case, he is in fact untruthful without knowing that he is so. Such is the case with perhaps millions of Hindus. They sincerely believe that untouchability is a part of the divine plan. But they hug a provable untruth.

Of course I will see Mr. Casey1 first, if I succeed in coming to Bengal which I want to do as early as the rains permit. I have the pamphlets.

My blessings to you both2.

BAPU

Sudhir Ghosh Papers. Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library

485. LETTER TO B. S. MURTHY

July 28, 1945

DEAR MURTHY3,

Your letter. Can you conveniently see me on 7th August at 3.30 p. m. for half an hour?

Yours,

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

---

1 R. G. Casey, Governor of Bengal
2 The addressee and his wife Shanti
3 Member of the Madras Legislative Assembly
486. LETTER TO C. C. GANGULI

SEVAGRAM,
July 28, 1945

DEAR FRIEND,

I was much touched by your letter. My congratulations to your wife on her bravery and presence of mind. But such acts do not need advertisement. They produce their silent effect and lose by being advertised. In any case why should the news be suppressed pending the finish of the war? You and your wife have certainly my blessings. May your spiritual progress grow from day to day.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

SHRI C. C. GANGULI
ASST. SESSIONS JUDGE
KHULNA

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

487. LETTER TO DINSHAW K. MEHTA

July 28, 1945

CHI. DINSHAW,

I have your letter. We shall think about the treatment I should have after I come there. I will send Balkrishna when he is ready. I had only to see the land pertaining to the Muslim school and to Tata. As I understood it there was nothing for me to do in that connection. And what can I do? I believe that the land is not of any use to the village. The sanatorium can be built there; that is to say we can use that land instead of the one at Simhagad. But that apart, write to me your views. Preston might perhaps prove expensive. We are going ahead with the village trust. I have suggested that it should be translated into Gujarati. When is Gulbai’s confinement due? Take whatever work you can from Vanu and Manu.

Blessings from

BAPU

NATURE CURE CLINIC
TODDYWALA ROAD
OPPOSITE STATION, POONA CITY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
488. LETTER TO PYARELAL

July 28, 1945

CHI. PYARELAL,

Chi. K.’s point deserves consideration. I cannot swallow his explanation of the word विशिष्य.

All I want to say is that the 12th Chapter (of the Gita ) is not as easy to understand and to practise as you say. We can make anything simple and easy by distortion. Here it seems to say the opposite of what is said elsewhere. Here it seems to be getting increasingly simpler. Moreover, we cannot assign to words any meaning we like. However, if Vinoba accepts what you are saying, there is no harm in following it. I have accepted the gist suited to myself.

Blessings from
BAPU

From the Gujarati original: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

489. LETTER TO SAMPURNANAND

July 28, 1945

BHAI SAMPURNANAND¹,

I know Bhai Maithili Sharan² very well. But I shall not be able to participate in the jubilee celebrations.

Yours,
M. K. GANDHI

From a copy of the Hindi: C.W. 10409. Courtesy: Bharat Kala Bhavan

¹ (1889-1969); Member, A. I. C. C.; Chief Minister of U. P., 1955-60; Governor of Rajasthan, 1962-67
² Maithilisharan Gupta; Hindi poet of renown; author of Bharat-Bharati, Saket, Yashodhara, Jayadrath Vadh, Siddharaj and other works
490. LETTER TO ABDUL GHAFFAR KHAN

July 28, 1945

BHAI BADSHAH KHAN\(^1\).

I read about the drama that was enacted in your case. Write to me what really happened. I hope you are well. The Doctor will have given you my message.

BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

491. LETTER TO H. L. SHARMA

July 28, 1945

CHI. SHARMA,

I have your letter. Vichitra\(^2\) had written to me. I cannot open a clinic for you. I have explained everything to you. I know your ability. I know your shortcomings too. Do whatever you can on your own strength. I did what I could. I shall be happy if your work gets going, that is to say, if the poor are served. I do not feel like writing more.

Blessings from

BAPU

DR. HIRALAL SHARMA
NAGLA NAWABAD
KHURJA, U. P.

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

\(^1\) (b. 1890); Popularly known as Frontier Gandhi; founded the Red Shirt (Khudai Khidmatgar) organization in 1929; a close associate of Gandhiji; detained by the Pakistan Government for demanding Pakhtoonistan, 1947-55

\(^2\) Vichitra Narayan Sharma, Manager, Gandhi Ashram, Meerut, and one of the trustees of the addressee’s nature-cure clinic
492. LETTER TO SHYAMLAL

July 28, 1945

BHAISHYAMLAL,

I have your letter concerning Dharmadev Shastri. It is all right. For the eight committees of C. P. and Berar you have asked for the sanction of Rs. 200 at the rate of Rs. 25 for each committee. Earlier you had asked for Rs. 50 for each committee. For the present you may send Rs. 200. Later we shall see what to do.

M. K. GANDHI

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

493. LETTER TO SARALA DEVI

July 29, 1945

DEAR SARALA,

I was delighted to have your letter. Of course you will write whenever you like and come to me as soon as you are able to. Meanwhile, love

BAPU

(M. K. GANDHI)

SHRI SARALA DEVI
POLITICAL PRISONER
DISTRICT JAIL
ALMORA

From a photostat: G.N. 9089

---

1 Catherine Heileman; came to India in 1932; moved to Wardha in 1936; worked in Hindustani Talimi Sangh and later for the uplift of hill people in Almora; established an ashram for girls at Kausani.
494. LETTER TO NAWAB OF CHHATARI

SEVAGRAM,
July 29, 1945

DEAR NAWAB SAHEB,

Your kind letter of 24th June was received at Bombay just after I had left for Simla. It was kept back with other correspondence in order not to overload me with work at Simla. It was given to me after my return.

I have read and re-read your letter. I am sorry to say it gives me little satisfaction. I used to have long correspondence with the late Sir Akbar Hydari on similar matters. He used to struggle to give satisfaction but in my opinion failed. Though fresh in the field, I am afraid, you would do likewise, unless you deal with the situation in a detached manner. I do not wish to argue the matter. I have not sufficient material with me. But I give you, as a friend, my opinion for what it may be worth.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

H. H. NAWAB SAHEB OF CHHATARI
HYDERABAD (Dn.)

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

495. LETTER TO VALLABHBHAI PATEL

SEVAGRAM, WARDHA,
July 29, 1945

BHAI VALLABHBHAI,

If you have decided against the operation, go to Dinshaw’s clinic. I will accompany you. I have already consulted him. He is hopeful, and so am I. In any case going to his clinic cannot do you harm. If you must go to Ahmedabad, stay there as planned and only for a few days.

Blessings from
BAPU

[From Gujarati]

Bapuna Patro-2: Sardar Vallabhbhaine, p. 282

1 Capt. Mohammed Ahmed Said Khan, President of the Executive Council of the Nizam of Hyderabad from 1941
496. LETTER TO NAIDU

July 29, 1945

BHAI NAIDU,

Who can stop it if conversion takes place in the manner you describe? Read what I have written on the subject. If we want purification every Hindu will have to become an Atishudra. I hope you will be able to read my Hindustani.

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 94

497. FRAGMENT OF LETTER TO ABUL KALAM AZAD

[After July 29, 1945]

I have written to Wavell and his reply has been received. I have also raised the question of defence and have said that all should be allowed to engage defence counsel. I had read Pt. Jawaharlal’s statement and today Sardar read out yours. It is sufficient.

From a copy: Police Commissioner’s Office, Bombay: File No. 3001/ H/P. 341

498. TELEGRAM TO RAJENDRA PRASAD

Express

Sevagram,

July 30, 1945

Dr. RajendraPrasad

Birla House

New Delhi

Your wire. Better see Viceregal Secretary about Mahendra.3

Gandhi

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 From the reference to reply to the letter to Lord Wavell regarding the defence of I. N. A. prisoners; vide footnote 1, “Letter to Lord Wavell”, 25-7-1945.

2 The addressee had suggested that the Congress should undertake the defence of the I. N. A. officers.

3 Vide also “Letter to Rajendra Prasad” 15-8-1945.
499. LETTER TO RAJENDRA PRASAD

Sevagram, Wardha,
July 30, 1945

Brother Rajen Babu,

I had given a wire about Mahendra: “Your wire. Better see Viceroyal Secretary about Mahendra.” The new Government¹ cannot interfere with the Viceroy’s decision all of a sudden but there is some hope from Jenkins. Did our people not send any appeal to London? Is the person not yet hanged? If he is alive whatever you have to do in that respect do it here. To send deputation to London is futile.

You must be feeling better.

From a copy: C.W. 10591

500. LETTER TO AMRIT KAUR

July 30, 1945

Chi Amrit,

I have just got your letter.

I am glad you saw the Vicereine. I shall send you by book post what I can lay hands upon. Sardar is none too well. Probably he will have first to have nature cure and then, if necessary, operation. If he goes to Poona, I shall have to go there. This may be the first week of August.

Harijans have every right to curse us and abuse us. How can they isolate the few penitents from the die-hards? Only we must go on.

Sushila is with Sardar. She has lost all she gained there, I think.

You have to keep well. The secret is with you. No nibbling between meals. No fruit-chewing or anything else while walking. Take what you must at stated meals as so much for sustenance.

Sushila is likely to return by the middle of the week.

I am keeping well. I walk longer than usual. Today it was exactly two miles. Usually it is 1_ miles.

Love.

Bapu

From the original: C.W. 4162. Courtesy: Amrit Kaur. Also G.N. 7798

¹ The Labour Government which assumed office on July 27, 1945, with Clement Attlee as Prime Minister
501. LETTER TO NARAHARI D. PARIKH

July 30, 1945

CHI. NARAHARI,

I have your letter. Here one might say things are going on well. You have done good work in Poona. One could only wish that you would not fall ill. I understand what you say about Vanu and Manu. If both of them make further progress, they can certainly make some contribution to the Arogyabhavan. Let us see what happens.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: S.N. 9135

502. LETTER TO MRIDULA SARABHAI

SEVAGRAM,

July 30, 1945

CHI. MRIDULA,

I received your letter just now. You are so hardworking that to tell you to improve your handwriting is like telling me to do so. Only if I improve my handwriting will I have the right to tell you to do so. Isn’t that so? Even so I must say that I am writing this without reading your letter word by word as deciphering every single word will take time. About Ahmedabad it seems all right. I will write to Kanjibhai¹. The rule that people should work only in their own locality is very harsh. Does it show our poverty? We shall think about the draft when you have to resign. I believe that we shall not have to decide about Anasuyabai before your return.

It would be better if you do not ask for any official letter to be sent there. We shall see when you return. Get well. I shall see about the syllabus.

Blessings from
BAPU

MRIDULABEHN SARABHAI
HUT NO. 46
GULMARG, KASHMIR

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Kanaiyalal Desai
503. LETTER TO AMRITLAL T. NANAVATI

July 30, 1945

AMRITLAL, Nanavati

I have gone through your report. I found that the prices of books were very high. Anyone seeking admission will find it very difficult and expensive. It can be done that way if we do not have the necessary provision. Discuss this with Kakasaheb.

Blessings from
BAPU

AMRITLAL NANAVATI
From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

504. LETTER TO DHARMDEV SHASTRI

July 30, 1945

DHARMDEV SHASTRI,

I have your letter. I have told Shyamlalji\(^1\) that RS. 200 may be sent to you. That is the amount he had asked for. Your letter mentions a larger amount. The rest will depend on Bapa’s letter.

Blessings from
BAPU

DHARMDEV SHASTRI
ASHOK ASHRAM
KALSI, DEHRADUN
From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

505. LETTER TO DEVRAJ

July 30, 1945

BHAI DEVRAJ,

I can do something for your brother only after he puts in an application. To do anything before that is impossible. My stay here is uncertain. Write to me about your coming after I settle down.

Blessings from
BAPU

LAJPAT BHAVAN
LAHORE
From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

\(^{1}\) Vide “Letter to Shyamlal”, 28-7-1945.
506. LETTER TO DEVRAJ VORA

July 30, 1945

BHAI DEVRAJJI,

I have your letter. Why is it in English? I can understand Hindustani. The experience I had of you was bitter. I did not find in you devotion to truth, but I did find vanity in a large measure. You will therefore gain nothing here nor will the people here gain anything from you. I therefore feel that your coming here is not proper.

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

SHRI DEVRAJ VORA
C/O SETH N. L. SEHGAL
INDIAN TIMBER WORKS
P. O. GULZAR BAG
PATNA, BIHAR

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

507. LETTER TO GHALIB

July 30, 1945

BHAI SAHEB,

I got your letter by return post. I am obliged. Zohra will be coming in a day or two. I will then show her the letter and write to you if it is necessary.

GHALIB SAHEB

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

508. LETTER TO RAMNARAYAN CHOWDHARY

July 30, 1945

BHAI RAMNARAYAN,

Doing only writing work and neglecting the cow does not appeal to me. But whether it appeals to me or not is irrelevant.

Your staying here is a difficult problem. There are people living here who cook their food separately and so on. I do not want to increase their number. If you cannot lead an ashram life then what is the use of living in the Ashram? You may stay in the Khadi Vidyalaya if Jajuji will have you. If you want to do the work of propagating Hindustani you should speak to Kaka, or to Shyamlal if you want to work in the Kasturba Memorial Trust. You have a great deal of ability. You can earn Rs. 150 from anywhere. I can think of engaging you for only one work. Nor will Jamnalalji’s spirit allow me to think of any other. Think of what you want to do. Talk to me or write to me.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

509. LETTER TO JYOTILAL MEHTA

SEVAGRAM,
July 31, 1945

CHI. JYOTI,

I understood your letter. Champa has written a long letter but has not given her address. I do not know whether she is there or somewhere else. You yourself can convey the message that she may come here any time she likes. She should not waste my time and should not set up a separate kitchen. Everything has changed here.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

510. LETTER TO CHANDRAKALA AND KRISHNAKUMAR

July 31, 1945

CHI. CHANDRAKALA AND CHI. KRISHNAKUMAR,

It is only natural that you both, brother and sister, should grieve over the passing of Mother. When I was as young as you are, I too used to grieve when a relative died. But now I realize that it is vain to grieve over a death. Death goes with birth. Some die today, others will die tomorrow. What is there to grieve about it? You must become wise.

Blessings from

BAPU

[PS.]

Give my blessings to Father.

SHRI SITARAMJI KHEMKA
J. C. MILLS
GWALIOR

From a copy of the Hindi Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
511. WHY KHADI FOR YARN AND NOT FOR MONEY?

July 1945

Sjt. Bharatan Kumarappa writes to me from his tours:

People are asking what has Gandhiji done. He will kill khadi by insisting on yarn being given in exchange for it. What are we, who because of his teachings have vowed to put on only khadi, to do? We do not know how to spin neither do we want to learn it. Are we to go without khadi? This rule regarding yarn only shows Gandhiji’s obduracy.

Sjt. Bharatan Kumarappa’s letter is in English. I have given its substance here.

People will not find any obduracy in my demand if only they understood that non-violent swaraj depends on every drawing out of the yarn. On the contrary they will then find absorbing interest in it. Those who see only obduracy in it do not know how non-violence works. Since my return to India I have been crying myself hoarse that if we want to attain independence through non-violence spinning should be an essential part of our activity. The late Maulana Mohamed Ali used to say that the charkha was our rifle and the spindles of yarn our bullets; we shall attain swaraj only through these bullets. This is as true today as when it was said.

My experience tells me that if khadi is to become universal, both in cities and in villages, it should be made available only in exchange of yarn. Today one anna’s worth of yarn in the rupee is demanded. But this is only the beginning. When people have understood and learnt how to spin, then khadi will be given only in full exchange for yarn spun. I hope that as days go by everyone will himself insist on buying khadi only in exchange of yarn. If this does not happen and if they give yarn grudgingly swaraj through non-violence is impossible. Surely some effort has to be made for swaraj. It cannot be had by mere begging. A certain kind of freedom can of course be obtained on the strength of the rifle, but it will not be real swaraj and I for one am not interested in it.

The very idea of obtaining swaraj through the rifle makes my head reel and a mountain of difficulties appears before my eyes. This article is not meant for those who would obtain swaraj through the rifle. Why should they wear khadi at all? From their point of view khadi can be proved to be quite a useless thing. Readers of this article should realize that if khadi is to be produced by villagers, not for their own use but for sale in cities, and if crores of villagers themselves are to use only mill cloth, then khadi will be of very little avail. How can we rest content if khadi merely puts a few coppers into the pockets of the poor?

A doubt is raised that this new rule will kill the khadi which is now being produced by the poor and will make the wearing of khadi spun by themselves a matter of fashion only for a few select city-dwellers. This idea, however, displays ignorance.

The masses do not eat for fashion but in order that they may live. Similarly they do not wear clothes for fashion, but for protection. Therefore the charkha, like the oven, should find a place in every house and every able-bodied person should spin. Then all can wear khadi and obtain swaraj. Able-bodied persons should spin also for the crippled and the weak. If games clubs demanding both energy and money can be run, as they are, why cannot swaraj clubs or charkha clubs be run where people can make slivers, spin and get khadi in exchange of yarn? The truth is that where there is no will, unfavourable arguments present themselves and where there is a will, the will itself discovers favourable arguments. If the will is strong nobody will give up the charkha even as nobody leaves games. If the will can be found for games, can it not be found also for swaraj?

A powerful argument advanced against the system of exchanging khadi for yarn is that if city people produce their own yarn the khadi produced by the poor will vanish and the little relief that has till now been given to them through khadi will stop. And the hope of seeing villagers clad in khadi produced by themselves will remain only a dream. Supposing city people give up wearing khadi out of laziness or anger and villagers give up spinning and weaving for want of demand, what great loss is it to the country? The poor people will take to other occupations in the place of khadi and will somehow make their living. Such people will not be found in crores but only in lakhs as at present. Those who are engaged in bidi-making earn four times what is possible through spinning, or even more. Many of the mill labourers have become rich. This means that those who are starving today will starve still further till they die, and the few of them who can earn well will ride roughshod over the rest. If more mills are increased and the number of cities is increased it will not make India prosperous. On the other hand it will make crores die of starvation and of the many diseases produced by starvation. If city people are pleased with such a spectacle I have nothing to say. Then it will be the reign of violence, not of non-violence and truth, and I will admit that in that case khadi will have no place, it can have no place. Then military training will be compulsory whether we like it or not. But what I am talking about relates to the crores of the starving people. If they are to live, and live well, the charkha will have to be central and spinning undertaken voluntarily also by those who do not need to spin. The weapons of non-violence must not be adopted by people because they have no other alternative. Therefore to my mind the rule of yarn for khadi which has been introduced has to exist and increase in its application. Exactly for the same reason, if all the khadi bhandars have to be closed down and khadi-wearers give up khadi I will regard it as a triumph of truth, because then I shall understand that people had no belief in non-violence and that if they wore khadi they did it out of ignorance and thereby merely deceived themselves into thinking that by wearing khadi they would somehow get swaraj. Why should I thus allow people to deceive themselves when I know that such khadi will not bring swaraj and that it will be discarded after swaraj is obtained? In that case the prophecy of the late Chintamani1 will come true that on Gandhi’s death people will laugh at khadi and also at him and will burn his body with the charkhas they may have in their houses. If hand-spun yarn cannot represent non-violence, why should I not retrieve my error while I am still alive and save the wood used in the charkhas? But I do not regard that prophecy as true. People have understood that the crores of India cannot obtain freedom through violence. India occupies or will soon occupy a great place in the world. That will be possible only through non-violence. If the crores of our people want to demonstrate the workability of non-violence they can do it only by making the charkha central. As the desire for freedom is strong amongst city-folks it is their duty to understand this and to take to spinning and khadi-wearing in order to obtain non-violent swaraj.

1 C. Y. Chintamani; President of the National Liberal Federation, 1920 and 1931; Editor of The Leader, 1909-20 and Chief Editor, 1926-41; Minister of Education in U. P., 1921-23
512. LETTER TO DINSHAW K. MEHTA

SEVAGRAM,
August 1, 1945

CHI. DINSHAW,

There are still [two] other girls whom I would like to send there. Is there room for them? Neither of the two is an invalid but both need treatment. One of them is Manilal’s wife Sushila. She has two children. She would not like to leave them anywhere else. Do not hesitate to say no if there is no room or if you feel that the case is not worth taking.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

513. LETTER TO KRISHNAVARMA

August 1, 1945

BHAI KRISHNAVARMA,

I shall reply to your letter fully later. Show this to Mama. For the time being he must stay on there. Manilal is thinking over the matter. I am clear that it is Mama’s duty to do whatever you tell him to do.

Blessings from
BAPU

DR. KRISHNAVARMA
NATURE CURE HOME
MALAD, B.B. & C.I.

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Manilal Gandhi 58
514. LETTER TO PURUSHOTTAM K. JERAJANI

SEVAGRAM,
August 1, 1945

BHAI KAKUBHAI,

I have your letter. Chi. Kanu has given me the details in writing, but I shall not go into them. All this misunderstanding arose because I could not explain myself fully.

“God has tied me with a cotton thread. Whichever way he pulls me I am His. I am pierced by the dagger of love.” This is from a famous bhajan of Mirabai. Swaraj hangs by that thread; it does not snap because the weight is that of love. The languages of India are full of allegories featuring yarn. Narandas has conceived of a yarn bank. If such a bank is organized well, it will ultimately beat the money banks. Narandas is a supreme devotee of khadi. None among us can beat him in his tapascharya. He has no other work. I am a witness to the work he has done for the charkha. I am a lover of his work. He has added immensely to the importance of Rentia Baras. It is not a work of Kathiawaris alone and this time Kathiawaris alone are not to do it. In this scheme the Charkha Sangh was to play a major role and its benefit would have been also quite large. Chi. Kanu after finishing his work in Bombay was to proceed further. Collection of funds was of secondary importance. Yarn was the main thing. The Charkha Sangh had to collect only the yarn delivered at its door and send the acknowledgement to Narandas’s bank. The ownership of the yarn would have certainly remained with the Charkha Sangh. Suppose yarn worth crores of rupees was produced, the Charkha Sangh would have got it without striving. Chi. Kanu is a child, an errand boy. He is not a leader. He could not explain what he wanted to say. From what he says he did not absent himself so as to humiliate you. This thing was such that there was no need for explanation. Goddess Lakshmi was to come to your door to bless you. However, what has happened has happened. I do not think it can be rectified. Do whatever you can. I had reckoned that Kanu would go from house to house, revivespinning, repair charkhas, enrol volunteers, collect yarn, and that well-tied bales of yarn would be heaped at your place.

1 Bhadrapad Vad 12, Gandhiji’s birthday according to the Vikram calendar, was observed as spinning day.
If I have succeeded in explaining to you the scheme, then I can say that I have compensated for the long letter you wrote to me.

I understand about the processes of cotton. Dawn is when one wakes up.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 10856. Courtesy: Purushottam K. Jerajani

515. LETTER TO BRIJKRISHNA CHANDIWALA

August 1, 1945

CHI. BRIJKRISHNA,

I have your letter. It will be better if you do not come at present. You can ask me when I go to Poona. There are so many people eager to serve me that I do not think you will get a chance. I cannot write more now.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 2490

516. LETTER TO JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM

SEVAGRAM,
August 2, 1945

CHI. JAIRAMDAS,

I never write to you. Where is the time? Your having to go to Lucknow startled me and I am writing this in the morning after the prayer. May Premi1 get well. Inscrutable are the ways of God. Let us trust in Him and find happiness amidst sorrow, Let us do our duty with detachment.

Blessings to you three from
BAPU

[PS.]

Give this2 to Premi if you think it proper to do so.

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Addressee’s daughter
2 Vide the following item.

VOL. 87: 29 MAY, 1945 - 29 AUGUST, 1945 301
517. LETTER TO PREMI JAIRAMDAS

August 2, 1945

CHI. PREMI,

Get well. See God in any work of service and regard Ramanama as the panacea for all ills. Sushila has gone to Bombay for the Sardar. She may be returning now.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

518. LETTER TO GOVERNOR OF BENGAL

SEVAGRAM,

August 2, 1945

DEAR FRIEND,

Shri Sudhir Ghosh kindly gave me copies of your two speeches, one of which I finished yesterday during moments snatched from my daily work.

I write this to draw attention to two things for the moment. Cloth shortage you can deal with without delay by following the policy laid down by the All-India Spinners’ Association which is represented in Bengal too. In one sentence the scheme is to ask every home practically to spin its cotton and every village to weave its own cloth. It is the largest co-operative effort that can be conceived in the world.

The second is the cattle question. For that you should meet Shri Satis Chandra Das Gupta of Khadi Pratishthan. He is ailing and may not be available just now. He has just published a monumental work on the question.

Shri Sudhir Ghosh has given me your message about my visiting Bengal. I thank you for it. I am anxious to come as early as the rains of Bengal will permit. When I come my first business will be to give myself the privilege of meeting you.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR OF BENGAL
CALCUTTA

Gandhiji’s Correspondence with the Government, 1944-47, p. 103

1The Cow in India
519. LETTER TO SUSHILA GANDHI

August 2, 1945

CHI. SUSHILA,

I have sent you a wire. You should stay there till the child has been operated upon. Your health has been completely ruined. Would a strong drug rid you of the hook-worms? Would even that not be effective? So many questions arise in my mind. I understand about Zohra. Pyarelal has gone there. He will listen to everything. Stay there till I come. Take possession of the bungalow that Sardar suggests. We shall then do whatever has to be done. If you reach there on the 7th, you should go to Poona on the 10th. Shall I start out on the 8th?

Blessings from

BAPU

C/O DAHYABHAI PATEL
MARINE DRIVE
BOMBAY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

520. LETTER TO ABUL KALAM AZAD

August 2, 1945

I have your letter. I had asked Dr. Pattabhi.¹ I did not feel it was right to say anything when I had only seen the newspaper. Now that I have received the letter I shall be writing something. I have seen the telegram Rajaji has sent you. I agree with it. I [saw] something in the Press by way of a directive from you about providing for the relatives of those who died [during the struggle] in 1942 and afterwards. The financial help we are at present giving to such relatives for their maintenance and education is something different. In my opinion if we go by truth and non-violence we cannot give such assistance. How can we say that all of them died for the country, that they sacrificed themselves for the cause of swaraj? I feel that under no circumstances can you do that. If I may advise you, I would ask you to withdraw the statement. I do not know whether there is still time for that. I am sending you a wire today.

The other thing concerns Begum Azad. Dr. Khan Saheb mentioned the matter to me at Lahore. It pricked me. I am not aware of any public service rendered by Begum Azad. If what I believe is true, there should not be any public memorial in her name. Some persons came to me. I told them to do whatever they wanted.¹ I did not have the courage to say anything more to them. But I can speak to you. I would advise you to issue a nice Press statement saying that since Begum Azad had not rendered any public service you would not like any public memorial in her name. If my advice does not appeal to you, you will please reject it. The love we hold for each other demands no less.

¹Vide “Letter to Pattabhi Sitaramayya”, 26-7-1945.

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

521. LETTER TO ANAND T. HINGORANI

SEVAGRAM,
August 2, 1945

CHI. ANAND,

I have your letters. Since Jairamdas is out I see no need to write to you. Abha² has kept one skein of yarn for you.

Vidya³ was good but cannot take the place of God. I am an iconoclast. So I wanted you to forget Vidya. But we see God in numerous images. You have chosen to see God in the image of Vidya. So long as the delusion persists who can make you understand? If you can forget her easily do so. Then Vidya will rise and also you.

Nowadays my movements are very uncertain. So please do not come. Stay there and recover and do what service you can.

Jairamdas has gone to Lucknow taking Premi with him.

Blessings from

BAPU

[PS.]

Gokhaleji died at Bhimavaram.

From a microfilm of the Hindi: Courtesy: National Archives of India and Anand T. Hingorani

¹ Vide “Message to Student Congress Workers”, 20-7-1945.
² Wife of Kanu Gandhi
³ Addressee’s deceased wife
MAULANA (ABDUL HUQ) SAHEB,

Ghalib Saheb returned from Hyderabad yesterday. I showed him your letter. He said: “The fact is that both mentioned that Zohrabehn’s heart was not there. We now want Zohrabehn to go to Darussalaam. Ever since her son was gone she has been unhappy and she finds the house on Rajpur Road dreary. We appreciate the difficulties of Abdul Huq Saheb. He may therefore occupy the house on Rajpur Road. The rent is not much. It is a little less commodious and therefore till he can make some other arrangement he can keep the store of Urdu Anjuman on the ground floor of Darussalaam. Abdul Huq Saheb himself may fix the rent.” In my opinion the proposal is fair. You are all like a family. Everything will be all right if you can agree to this. Ghalib Saheb is leaving tomorrow. Zohra is still in Hyderabad. I shall await your reply.

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

523. LETTER TO PATTABHI SITARAMAYYA

SEVGRAM,
August 2, 1945

MY DEAR PATTABHI,

Your performance was ill thought. You are a most responsible man. Whatever the goading by Gopal Reddy you should have been silent or said just one word. And what an occasion! Gopal Reddy was out of order, though Chairman, in using Khadi Exhibition for the

---

1 Anjuman-e-Taraqqi-e-Urdu
2 The addressee was reported to have said on July 20, 1945 that “he was the sole author” of the Andhra Circular issued in 1942 and that “he got the instructions contained in the Circular from Mahatma Gandhi after full discussion with him”. However, on July 22, 1945, in the light of Gandhiji’s reply dated July 15, 1943 (vide “Letter to Additional Secretary, Home Department, Government of India”, 15-7-1943.), to the Government on the Andhra Circular, he modified his earlier statement and said that Gandhiji “had no knowledge of any such Circular. The Circular was not prepared with his knowledge or at his instance”.

VOL. 87: 29 MAY, 1945 - 29 AUGUST, 1945 305
purpose. And [about] the warning at the W. C. the Maulana has written a strong letter to me. Now I am issuing a brief statement which you will see. Now don’t grieve but do your work without speaking.

Love.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

524. STATEMENT TO THE PRESS

WARDHA,
August 3, 1945

I have now read the report of Dr. Pattabhi’s Telugu speech at Masulipatam and the correct version given by him later. I have also corresponded with him and am now able to answer the reporters who taxed me about it the other day.

I have re-read the relevant portion of my reply to the Government publication called Congress Responsibility for the Disturbances, 1942-43. I have nothing to amend or correct in my references to the Andhra Circular. Dr. Pattabhi and others as friends and fellow-workers did have conversations with me on the topic of the day. I have naturally no record of those talks nor did I authorize publication of the talks. I have however contemporaneous evidence of what I had in mind on 7th of August, 1942.

My draft instructions were circulated among Members of the Working Committee on 8th August. They were to be considered on 9th August, but before they could be considered, Members of the Working Committee and I were arrested. Hence no authorized instructions were or could be issued.

I had no opportunity to function in terms of the A. I. G. C.

---

1 Congress Working Committee
2 Vide the following item.
4 Which read: “Then comes the Andhra Circular. I must regard it as forbidden ground for me inasmuch as I knew nothing about it before my arrest. Therefore I can only comment on it with reserve. Subject to that caution I consider the document to be harmless on the whole.” Vide “Letter to Additional Secretary, Home Department, Government of India”, 15-7-1943.
5 Vide “Draft instructions for Civil Resisters”, 4-8-1942.
Resolution of 8th August¹. The Andhra Circular was therefore neither authorized by the Congress nor by me.

The Hindu, 5-8-1945

525. LETTER TO E. M. JENKINS

SEVAGRAM,
August 3, 1945

DEAR SIR EVAN,

I have to acknowledge with thanks your letter of 29th July acknowledging my letter to His Excellency of the 25th July and I shall await your further letter in the matter.

Mrs. Anasuyabai Kale of the C. P. Assembly has been to me to tell me [that] the Privy Council has dismissed the petition of the Ashti and Chimur prisoners to be heard in appeal against the judgement of the Nagpur High Court. Unless, therefore, His Excellency uses his prerogative of mercy the prisoners will be sent to the gallows. His Excellency was good enough to tell me that he would consider these cases and the like when the time came. Now is the time. May I hope that the death sentences will be commuted?²

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

SIR E. M. JENKINS
P. S. TO H. E. THE VICEROY
VICEROY’S CAMP

Gandhiji’s Correspondence with the Government, 1944-47, pp. 36-7

526. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

August 3, 1945

CHI. NARANDAS,

I could read your letter only today. What you say has a point if I adopt the prevailing view but none from the right point of view. Your argument is about khadi for the sake of the poor, mine is for khadi for the sake of swaraj. The khadi work in Kathiawar is ¹Vide “Resolution passed by All-India Congress Committee”, 8-8-1942.

²The death sentences of the Ashti and Chimur prisoners were commuted to life imprisonment on August 16.
impressive, but it is an obstacle to swaraj and will come to a stop sooner or later. Those who wear khadi do so not from the khadi spirit but from political necessity. Why need you spend your indefatigable and boundless energy for that? If you can sell khadi on the Charkha Sangh’s condition¹, you may do so. Give it to those who observe it. Do not mind if, in that case, the khadi has to be sent outside. If you do not have such implicit faith, you may go on doing khadi work from outside the Charkha Sangh. Those who are willing will learn from it. But do strive to understand my point of view. Improve your health.

I have had a talk with Kanaiyo. He will tell you everything when he arrives there. You may then guide him and me as to what we should do.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./II. Also C.W. 8627. Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi

527. MESSAGE TO BHAGWANJI P. PANDYA²
August 3, 1945

I cannot guide you about your work from here. Do whatever you think proper.

From Gujarati: C.W. 401. Courtesy: Chhaganlal Gandhi

528. LETTER TO VALLABHBHAI PATEL
August 3, 1945

BHAI VALLABHBHAI,

I have your letter. I had been thinking of leaving here on the 8th and taking you to Poona on the 10th. But I see now that I am tied up with meetings up to the 19th. I can, therefore, start on the 19th at the earliest. I am not happy about it. I had intended to start as soon as you were free. Please wait for another ten days now. You may, if you wish, stay on in Ahmedabad for some time longer. The best thing would be for you to come and stay at the Ashram for the remaining days and we could then go to Poona together. Arrange for a house in Poona. We ourselves will stay at the clinic, and put the others up in the bungalow, if necessary.

¹ In exchange for hand-spun yarn
² This was conveyed in a letter by Chhaganlal Gandhi in reply to the addressee’s letter of July 31, 1945.

And now about Mahadev. It does not seem proper for me to issue any public appeal. I could write to a few individuals. It does not matter if Bombay does not give its share. See my plan which I have outlined. More in the next letter or when we meet.

Blessings from
BAPU

[PS.]
Mani is not doing right in neglecting her health. I have sent a wire to ...'s father.

[From Gujarati]

Bapuna Patro-2: Sardar Vallabhbhaïne, pp. 282-3

529. LETTER TO SUSHILA NAYYAR

SEVAGRAM,
August 3, 1945

CHI. SUSHILA,

What sort of doctors do you have that you are so sick? What medicines do they give? And what is the result? But what should I tell you?

I made a mistake yesterday. I forgot about the two meetings of the Harijan Sevak Sangh and the Kasturba Nidhi. Hence I can leave here by the 19th at the earliest. I do not think it will be right to detain you there till then. It would be another matter if you had to remain there on account of your health. You will see the invitation to Simla along with this. Do you feel like going? Whatever it is, you must get well. I have written to Sardar at Ahmedabad.

Pushpa is here.

Pyarelal’s letter is enclosed.

Blessings from
BAPU

From the Gujarati original: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Dr. Sushila Nayyar

1 For the Mahadev Memorial Fund
2 Omission as in the source
530. LETTER TO PYARELAL

Sevagram,
August 3, 1945

Chil. Pyarelal,
I have your note.
Kishorelal and Rajaji are writing to you. What then shall I write? Not writing to you is as good as writing.

Blessings from
Bapu

From the Gujarati original: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

531. LETTER TO LORD PETHICK-LAWRENCE

Sevagram,
August 4, 1945

Dear friend,
May I send you my congratulations on your appointment? If the India Office is to receive a decent burial and a nobler monument is to rise from its ashes, who can be a fitter person than you for the work?

Yours sincerely,
M. K. Gandhi

The Rt. Hon’ble Lord Pethick-Lawrence

Gandhi’s Correspondence with the Government, 1944-47, p. 173

1 As Secretary of State for India in the new Labour Government
532. LETTER TO EVAN JENKINS

SEVAGRAM,
August 4, 1945

DEAR SIR EVAN,

I wonder if it is possible to send this\(^1\) in the Viceregal bag?

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

SIR EVAN JENKINS
P. S. TO H. E.
VICEROY’S HOUSE
NEW DELHI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

533. LETTER TO AMRIT KAUR

August 4, 1945

CHI. AMRIT,

Your letter was answered yesterday. You need not bring your bedding. Bring only such things as you consider necessary. Regard mosquito-net among them. My rubbing-stone among them please. It was left there by mistake! Where did you get the powder for cleaning the septic tank commode?

Love to you all.

BAPU

From the original: C.W. 4163. Courtesy: Amrit Kaur. Also G.N. 7799

\(^1\) Presumably the letter to Lord Pethick-Lawrence of even date congratulating him on his appointment as Secretary of State for India; vide “Letter to Lord Pethick-Lawrence”, 4-8-1945.
534. LETTER TO SHARDA G. CHOKHAWALA

August 4, 1945

CHI. BABUDI,

How naughty of you! You keep falling ill and causing worry to everybody.

Blessings from

BAPU

From the Gujarati original: C.W. 10058. Courtesy: Sharda G. Chokhawala

535. LETTER TO MADHAVDAS G. KAPADIA

August 4, 1945

CHI. MADHAVDAS,

Dr. Krishnavarma has sent all the reports about you. Kunvarji\(^1\) has also written a postcard. Dr. Krishnavarma has no interest in keeping you. He has kept you only for my sake. He kept Sailen also in the same way. Your good lies in remaining under Dr. Krishnavarma’s treatment and following his instructions. I think I know Dr. Krishnavarma’s virtues and failings. For his failings he will be answerable to God. I see and cling to his virtues. Many allegations are made against him. Who is immune to them? I do not care for such allegations. I have seen with my own eyes how he looked after Ba. I think he had seen Ba’s virtues and became a great admirer of hers. The knowledge that you are Ba’s brother prompts him to keep you and look after you. You need not worry about how much you will have to pay him. The doctor has told me that he does not want a single pie, but I have decided that, if you agree, I shall pay him what I think proper from out of your own possessions. I have discussed this with Manilal too. But if you are not willing to pay a single pie, well, a lot of money has already been spent over you and this will be some more. It will be to the good if you get well and can live a normal life. However, Ba’s last words to me about you were: “You have done what you could for Madhavdas, I did what I could as his sister, and made you do what you could for him. Now you need not do anything for

---

\(^1\) Kunvarji Parekh, son-in-law of Harilal Gandhi him.” This is what she said about you and Harilal. I know that these words proceeded from her anger, but also from her love. I have not, therefore, obeyed those words literally. Now do what you wish, with God, whom you believe you worship every day, as witness. Of one thing you may be sure, that I will not be able to keep you in the Ashram, nor can I cure you. And remember also that no relation will be able to accommodate you. Society is so constituted that even though a person may wish to do something he is not able to do it, cannot do it. Ultimately, everyone has to turn to God, and only what He does or permits is possible. If you can think, then after reading this letter stay where you are. If you cannot think, then also, do not do anything in a hurry but stay there. May God bless you.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 2727

536. LETTER TO KRISHNAVARMA

August 4, 1945

BHAI KRISHNAVARMA,

Please read the enclosed letter and then pass it on to Mama. I read your whole letter yesterday, till then I was not able fully to go through it. I agree with what you say. I have given Mama some idea of you in my letter to him. I had observed even when you were here that you had no control over your tongue. You do not observe the rules of cleanliness—maybe, you do not even know them. I had noticed that also when you were here. I presume you are doing the same there. Kanti Mashruwala is an admirer of yours. Manilal had been there. He is not an admirer of you but he is wise. He has seen something of the world. He recognizes your qualities. He believes that you are no doubt good at heart but he also believes that you do not observe the rules of cleanliness nor make others do so. I only know your goodness and therefore wish that your shortcomings may disappear. I know that I have served my own interest in sending Mama to you and I still want to keep him there. He will be in a very bad plight if he goes away from there. I cannot keep him in the Ashram, as it will be against the spirit of the Ashram. I do not think he can stay anywhere else. Whatever has to be done, you alone can do. As you have started a hospital it certainly is your duty. Follow nature-cure methods at the hospital. You must know the rules of cleanliness and observe them meticulously. There are too many mosquitoes there. Just because you are taking work from the poor women you should not put up with their indifferent performance. As a doctor and a householder it is your duty to teach them cleanliness. It should be your job to eradicate mosquitoes from the neighbourhood. You should know how to do that. How can you call yourself a nature-cure doctor if you do not do all these things? I can write much along these lines but I am sure you are one of those to whom a word is enough. For this reason and also because I do not have the time I am not prolonging the letter.

I understand about Sailen. Encash the cheque he has sent to you. I won’t think it is your fee by any means. I know you did not keep Sailen for the sake of fee. But I thought he should on his own put into the charity box whatever he could afford and therefore asked him to send the cheque. Get the cheque cashed and utilize the money for charity. I do not advise you to come here. The main reason of course is that I do not have the time. Otherwise I would be happy if I could keep you here and give you training in cleanliness. But that is not possible at the moment. I shall call you when such an occasion arises. However, if you want to come on your own, want to be reassured and if you do come, it will be a different matter.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

537. LETTER TO KUNVARJI K. PAREKH

August 4, 1945

CHI. KUNVARJI,

I have your postcard. You write that Mama should be allowed to go where he wants. I do not understand this, nor does Manilal. Where will he go? Where will he stay? Are you going to keep him? If you think he can stay in the Ashram, that is not possible. Have you considered what would happen if he were to go and stay in his own house? Mama has gone to Malad of his own free will. When he asked me to send him to Malad I was not willing to do so. I requested Dr. Krishnavarma when Manilal pleaded on his behalf. It requires but one moment to remove him from there, but I believe that it would harm him. However, I will do whatever all of you tell me. But remember that afterwards I shall not be able to do anything. I am convinced that in doing so I am acting in an objective spirit and in accordance with dharma. At present Manilal is at Akola. He writes to say that he will be coming here on Monday with his wife and children. I will discuss the matter with him, too.

I hope all of you are well.

Blessings from

Bapu

From a photostat of the Gujarati: S.N. 9753

538. STATEMENT TO THE PRESS

WARDHA,
August 4, 1945

Several Congressmen have asked me questions relating to the Congress programme. Cablegrams too have been received from London and other places. I am sorry I have not been able to acknowledge them. The reason, however, is and should be obvious. In the absence of the Maulana Saheb and other members of the Working Committee, it is true I took upon myself the responsibility to give such advice as I was capable of giving in regard to Congress matters.

Now that the Working Committee is out, I can only give advice through the Maulana Saheb and the Working Committee. My advice, independently given, may be in conflict with their opinion and it may embarrass them and even put them or me in a wrong position and, what is more, may confuse the public mind. Therefore, I should warn all here and outside India against making any reference to me on such questions as are properly for the President and the Working Committee to advise upon.

The Hindu, 6-8-1945
539. INTERVIEW TO “THE HINDU”

August 4, 1945

I said then and I repeat now that my offer to Mr. Jinnah was not in the nature of a bargain.¹ It was my settled conviction though originally derived from Rajaji². I am not in the habit of deriving anything from anybody, however great he is, unless I can appropriate and assimilate it for myself. Therefore even if Rajaji went back on that Formula, I shall stick to it so long as I retain my sanity. I hold it to be substantial and also directly derivable from the Congress Resolutions and immediately from the Resolution of August 8, 1942. Only I have given it concrete shape.

The Hindu, 6-8-1945

540. LETTER TO MAURICE FRYDMAN

August 5, 1945

MY DEAR BHARATANAND,

Your good letter. I am glad you have dropped vegetarianism. It must be natural, if it ever comes back. Do take what your system needs and be well. The assumed name may be dropped. You will be just as lovable as Frydman.

Be well.
Love.

BAPU

From a photostat: G.N. 45

¹The correspondent had asked whether Gandhiji’s offer to M. A. Jinnah made in September 1944 still stood; for details, vide “Letter to M.A. Jinnah”, 24-9-1944.
²For the Rajaji Formula, vide “C. Rajagopalachari’s Formula”.
541. LETTER TO GOSIBEHN CAPTAIN

SEVAGRAM,
August 5, 1945

VAHALA BEHN,

Your hurried note. Are you well? Peppery sister came, saw, conquered and went. I have discussed your scheme with Shyamlal. But you must do your part. Dordi\(^1\) never leaves its rigid shape even when it is burnt.

Love.

BAPU

GOSIBEHN CAPTAIN
GANDHI SEVA SANGH
CHOWPATTY

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

542. LETTER TO HASUMATI D. DESAI

August 5, 1945

CHI. HASUMATI,

I could see your collection of poems only today. I got it only two days ago. I advise you not to get it published. It will be wrong to make money out of it. Poetry cannot be appreciated by associating names of two persons with it. I have always been against such a risk. Your handwriting should be as beautiful as pearls. I know that my handwriting is bad. That I cannot improve it at this age should be a warning to people such as you.

Blessings from

M. K. GANDHI

SHRIMATI HASUMATI DHIRAJLAL DESAI
BALVAIDYA KHANCHO
SANDHADIWAD
GOPIPURA
SURAT

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

\(^1\) Gujarati word meaning rope
543. LETTER TO KANTILAL GANDHI

August 5, 1945

CHI. KANTI.

Both of you should learn non-attachment from the service of Harilal. Through non-attachment devotion to someone can be transformed into devotion to God. If such devotion is not linked with devotion to God, it becomes infatuation and assumes a dangerous form. You two have spared no effort in the service of Harilal. I had felt all along that Harilal would ultimately act as he had always done. But let not this worry you in the least. You should be thankful if even the last rites fell to your lot to perform. You have shown devotion in many ways. All that devotion will have achieved fulfilment if now you turn it into devotion to God. And true devotion to God as I see it now is devotion to *Sutranarayana*¹. The word *Daridranarayana*² was first used by Vivekananda (if my memory serves me right, for I am not quite sure whether it was he or some other holy man who used it first). The word *Satyanarayana*³ is well known. But as God of action it is Sutranarayana who reveals Himself to me. You have started worship of that God. Understand His nature properly. Rise above the intrigues there or anywhere else. If you do not show the slightest softness to Harilal, he will leave Mysore. Try to find out, if you can, how he managed to obtain Rs. 200 from the Maharaja of Mysore.

You may tell me, when we meet, the other things which you have on your mind. But do not worry if you cannot. If you wish to write about them, have no hesitation in doing so. See that Saraswati⁴ and you devote yourselves to your studies and complete them.

Blessings to both of you from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 7376. Courtesy: Kantilal Gandhi

---

¹ Son of Harilal Gandhi
² God in the form of yarn
³ God in the form of the poor
⁴ God in the form of Truth
⁵ Addressee’s wife
544. LETTER TO RAMDAS GANDHI

August 5, 1945

CHI. RAMDAS,

You have used reasoning in your letter which, however, does not appeal to me. You have a right to go to Dinshaw’s because he has made you his own. Dinshaw is imbued with the spirit of altruism, even towards the poorest. His is not an organization for the poor. Similarly it is not for the rich. However, both can go there as also those belonging to the middle class; that is possible because of Dinshaw’s good nature. Moreover, you had no right to use reasoning the way you have, for you had given me to understand that you were about to take long leave, or had taken it, and would be devoting a year to improving your health. Of course you will have yourself treated there and think of going to Dinshaw only after you have completely ruined your health. As you will yourself admit you could not perceive Dinshaw’s love for you. I therefore even now advise you to take one year’s leave and go to Dinshaw’s. As I have already told you, I shall manage to find your one year’s expenses from somewhere. I shall not pay from the Ashram funds but seek money for you from somewhere. I have forgotten what arrangement was made about the expenditure. However, explain that to me again and I will act accordingly. You have something that attracts older persons to you. I myself do not know what it is but I have firsthand knowledge of it. Dinshaw knows many of my people but he is not drawn to them. But he is attracted to you. Most probably you yourself do not know why that is so. This is one of the instances. I have many others in my mind. It would therefore be better if you did not argue over the matter and went to Dinshaw’s. If you both want to go you may. It will be enough for you to wind up the establishment from there for one year. There are numerous teaching institutions in Poona. Kanam and Usha won’t have any difficulty in learning Marathi if they have to.

Manilal and Sushila will be arriving tomorrow. Sita will stay on in Akola. She is engrossed in her studies.

I am still of the opinion that Nimu¹ did well in not going either to Delhi or to Simla. There is no point in making Sumi² dependent on

¹ Nirmala, addressee’s wife
² Sumitra, addressee’s daughter
you. I can understand parents’ attachment. However, this time I have seen that neither Nimu nor you could have done anything more for Sumi than what Devdas and Lakshmi did for her. I noticed that they looked after Sumi in the same way as they look after their own children. Sumi gave me the impression that she also held the same view. She is quite at home with the children there. Ultimately, isn’t God the Protector of all? Gopaldas’s and Nalini’s son was gone in a moment while they helplessly looked on.¹ Nalini could not save him. There are so many such instances.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI RAMDAS GANDHI
KHALASI LINES
KINGSWAY, NAGPUR

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

545. LETTER TO SUMITRA GANDHI

SEVAGRAM,
August 5, 1945

CHI. SUMI,

I notice that even now you do not worship pure truth. You do not even fulfil the promises you gave me. What is the meaning of your pining for Nimu when you have accepted Devdas and Lakshmi as your parents? They of course treat you accordingly. We should be content with the situation in which we place ourselves or are placed. For the sake of the love Devdas and Lakshmi cherish for you, you must protect your health, your eyes. Why should you put yourself through the strain of an examination? Why should you force yourself to finish a specified course within a specified time? You have to preserve your eyes, your intellect and your body in order to continue with your studies. This is such an obvious truth that it does not need any explanation. It is self-evident. Hence the Gujarati saying: the health of the body is the first happiness. So allay Ramdas’s and Nimu’s fears by studying without becoming restless and improving your health. Bring credit to the love Devdas and Lakshmí have for you and be worthy of it. I absolve you from your pledge of writing to ¹Gopalrao Kulkarni’s son had died of scorpion bite.

me. Write to me only when you feel enthused and when it is convenient. Do not write to me by straining your eyes and neglecting your studies. I only desire that you should become ever more pure in body and mind. It is for this reason alone that I expect letters from you.

Blessings from
BAPU

SUMITRA R. GANDHI
BIRLA GIRLS HIGH SCHOOL
PILANI

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

546. LETTER TO C. C. GANGULI
August 5, 1945

BHAI GANGULI,

I have your letter. My blessings to Chi. Malavika and Chi. Ruplekha. I have no zest for writing the preface.

Blessings from
M. K. GANDHI

C. C. GANGULI
ASST. SESSIONS JUDGE
KHULNA (BENGAL)

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

547. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA
August 5, 1945

CHI. KRISHNACHANDRA,

It is the same to an inmate of the Ashram whether he works as a manager or as a sweeper. Being a sweeper probably entails a greater responsibility. In being a manager there is no authority, only service. One should be prepared for both. If one finds being a sweeper pleasant and being a manager unpleasant, it is a sign of ignorance. And, if being a manager smacks of authority it means one is conceited. Keep yourself ready for managership. Do not bother about whether or not you get it. I myself do not know when you may get it.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: C.W. 5901.Courtesy: Krishnachandra

VOL. 87: 29 MAY, 1945 - 29 AUGUST, 1945 321
548. LETTER TO M. S. KELKAR

August 5, 1945

BHAI KELKAR,

I was under the impression that I had answered you. Stop taking the bicycle from here.

By all means stay in Nalwadi. Go to Dattapur from there on foot. You will have to come here only occasionally.

How much per month should I give you?! Ask for as little as possible.

I am certainly here till the 19th.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

549. LETTER TO RAMESHWARDAS BIRLA

SEVAGRAM,

August 5, 1945

BHAI RAMESHWARDAS,

I have your letter. Chi. Vasant has suffered much. I hope his fever is now completely gone. In the case of typhoid one has to be even more careful during convalescence because the disease weakens the stomach. The diet therefore has to be watched. If the doctors permit hip-bath can be of much help.

I hope Chi. Asha is perfectly well and so also is Jugal Kishore. . . .¹ Will Rajendra Babu be able to put up with the dust of Pilani? . . . ² I understand about Ghanshyamdas.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Omissions as in the source
² ibid
550. LETTER TO D. B. KALELKAR

August 6, 1945

CHI. KAKA,

What I require is this. I want the rites\(^1\) to be the simplest and in Hindustani, omitting Sanskrit slokas and mantras. For conducting it anybody will do. What we do in this case will apply to all future occasions. I think this covers all points.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10964

551. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

August 6, 1945

CHI. MUNNALAL,

1. Write in brief. Number the paragraphs on the different subjects, so that no point may be left out in the reply.

I am sure you will have realized by now that one has to reply to points which strike one’s eye.

2. Since you are the Manager, you should treat nothing as private.

3. This reply is meant for all. If you wish, you may treat your letter as private.

4. Instead of compelling the women to attend the prayer, you should explain to them their dharma and then leave the matter to them. You cannot claim greater right or control over Kanchan than over the other women. If you look upon Kanchan as your wife and wish to have children by her or gratify physical or mental craving through her, you should resign as Manager, notwithstanding your many other virtues and endowments. That is to say, you should treat Kanchan as completely independent.

5. Utilize Pushpa’s services to the full. She must learn to recite the Gita with correct pronunciation. She can sing too. In that case let her sing bhajans at prayer time. She knows cooking and can do all domestic chores. She will do whatever work she can. If you take her help, she will find salvation. She will become a devotee.

\(^1\) For the marriage of Indumati Gunaji and A. G. Tendulkar; vide Appendix “Marriage Rites”, 18-8-1945.

6. Hoshiari is illiterate, but she is firm, brave and does not shirk work.

7. Kambale may have faults, but he certainly has some virtues. He is a Harijan. It is our duty to serve him. This does not mean that we should spoil him. It will be a great thing if you are able to understand the secret that we can raise him without spoiling him.

8. Omprakash is capable of great progress. He seems to be a good man. It is necessary to understand him. I have been training him. If you do not think he may be a lustful man, you may let him teach the women, not where he would be alone with them but in a big room, or on my verandah or, if Sushila Gandhi permits, in Ba’s room. Even if a man is a perfect brahmachari, he should never be alone with a woman.

9. Ramnarayan\(^1\) will have to pay all the expenses. Since the girls are to be given modern education outside, he will not be considered an Ashram inmate. If he himself, however, wishes to stay here till he gets a house outside, he may pay nominal rent and stay. But he should not have a separate kitchen. Lanterns too should be shared as far as possible. Even if he is ready to pay for them, we cannot give any just now. It is desirable that we should make some arrangement for light on the paths. Discuss this with Kanaiyo and Mohansinh. All those who wish to read should do so silently round one or two lamps. And the same for writing. We must economize on kerosene. Issue a ticket for Ramnarayan. He should not be made to carry too heavy a financial burden. All the expenses must be managed within Rs. 150. Everyone should be given local fruit and Bombay fruit should be reserved for the sick. I intend to make some arrangements. Estimate the cost of fruit from Bombay. You should exercise discretion, moderation and gentleness in this matter.

10. In order to know a man’s nature we must learn to tolerate his weaknesses as we expect the world to tolerate ours. If the world did not tolerate our weaknesses it would kill us. This applies to all, but it applies especially to the Manager who has embraced ahimsa.

11. After you have finalized the set-up to your satisfaction, hand it over to somebody else to administer according to plan. Let the

\(^1\)Ramnarayan Chowdhary person you have in view get trained from now on, not for exercising authority but for service. I believe that such an administrator can be, ought to be, a woman. Any upright and hard-working man or woman can run a well-planned organization. Take it that those who cannot do so have some shortcomings.

12. About the trees Parnerkar says that there has been no negligence. There has been some miscalculation, of course. That is, the heat has harmed four or five trees more than was expected. The rest are coming up. Exposing the trees to heat was deliberate, so that they might bear finer and sweeter fruit. You should patiently understand this point from him. He says he has consulted someone.
Learn more about manure. If I get time, I will try to learn something.

13. I am trying to arrange about Dr. Kelkar. About the others, as time may permit.

Write if anything is left out. I have not revised the letter.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 5910. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

552. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH
August 6, 1945

CHI. MUNNALAL,

1. If proper arrangements have been made, only then effect the change. Discuss the matter with both of them and do what has to be done.

2. Ascertain Kanchan’s wishes. Does she crave for physical pleasure?

3. Discuss and decide with S.behn the arrangements about milk, jaggery, etc.

4. Do by and by what is possible about a common room.

5. Introduce weaving.

6. I am quite clear in my mind regarding English. I think it may be taught to those women who desire to learn it. But they should first have knowledge of the mother tongue and Hindi and Urdu.Menfolk should certainly not be encouraged. As regards Harijans, English may be taught to those who have learnt the other languages and then wish

1 Yashwant M. Parnerkar, a dairy expert to learn it. Of course there can be no question of persuading anybody to learn English. Is this enough?

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 5912. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

553. LETTER TO BALVANTSINHA

SEVAGRAM, WARDHA,
August 6, 1945

CHI. BALVANTSINHA,

I have your letter. It was good that you went to Dr. Sharma’s centre. My relations (financial) with him are terminated. Chi. Hoshiari arrived here last night along with the child. Both are well. Go to Mirabehn.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 1966

554. LETTER TO ALFRED FRENSCH

SEVAGRAM,
August 7, 1945

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter. I am no master. I am unable to take charge of your children. My place is designed otherwise than you seem to think. You should keep your children in France.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

MON. ALFRED FRENSCH
CRENSPRE. LIEPVRE (HANT RHIN) FRANCE
C. P. POSTAL STRASBURG 191-31
FRANCE

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
555. LETTER TO ATULANAND CHAKRAVARTY
August 7, 1945

MY DEAR ATULANAND,

R[aj] K[umari] has sent me your letter to her. You are right about me. Your way is different from mine. But I have countenanced you as you have appealed to me as an earnest man. In spite of the testimonials you have quoted often, you have not made progress not because Congressmen have not appreciated your labours but because your unity plan has made no appeal to the general mind. But this is a long story. I suggest to you to look inward for your failure and not outward. Why not do some concrete work, be it ever so little? And then there will be no failure. For concrete work is its own success. I have not written this for argument but, if possible, to enable you to see the light.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat: C.W. 1484. Courtesy: Atulanand Chakravarty

556. LETTER TO DALJIT SINGH
August 7, 1945

BHAI DALJIT SINGHJI,

I have read both your books. I thank you for sending them. Rajkumari passed them on to me.

In both you have talked of miracles. I give no importance to miracles. Our religious literature is full of miracles. I think it is necessary that you should give the Hindi or Gurmukhi original which you have translated into English. How can one study them without their originals?

M. K. GANDHI

STRAWBERRY HILLS
SIMLA¹

From a copy of the Hindi: G.N. 7905. Also C.W. 4273. Courtesy: Amrit Kaur

¹The address is from Pyarelal Papers.
557. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA

August 7, 1945

CHI. KRISHNACHANDRA,

Do go to Vinoba if you can be free from here. You must get his permission too. The letter is returned herewith.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4521

558. LETTER TO AMRIT KAUR

[On or after August 7, 1945]

CHI. A.

You must get well quick and if you can get well more quickly living with me, you should follow me to Poona. I do not know how long I shall be there. I have written to Atulanand and that at length. Probably you will have a copy of my letter to him.

Love.

BAPU

SHRIMATI RAJKUMARI

SIMLA

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

559. THE MISSING LINK

[Before August 8, 1945]

This is what the Editor of the Gram Udyog Patrika tells me:

I am afraid your last article in regard to why people should give yarn for khadi is not convincing. Your whole argument rests on the view, which is repeated several times in the course of your article, that non-violent swaraj is impossible unless everybody spins. This crucial point, however, is never explained, but taken for granted and asserted repeatedly. Unless you can show

---

1 From the reference to the letter to Atulanand Chakravarty dated August 7, 1945; vide “Letter to Atulanand Chakravarty”, 7-8-1945.
2 The article appeared in The Hindu, 11-8-1945, under the date-line “Bombay, August 8”.
3 Vide “Why Khadi for yarn and not for money?”, July 1945.
what connection there is between non-violent swaraj and the people of all kinds—even those who have more profitable occupation—taking to the charkha for their cloth requirements, your argument cannot convince those who honestly feel that your asking them to spin, if they want to use khadi, even when their time can be spent more profitably, is to expect a little too much from them. So can you perhaps provide this missing link in your argument for the next issue, and show how through spinning we can obtain non-violent swaraj?

The better course this time is to answer in English. Few, if any, readers who do not know English would ask for the “missing link”, for the very simple reason that, they know my argument showing the connection between hand-spinning and swaraj obtained through non-violence. Swaraj can only be obtained by work, either violent or non-violent. Violent work we know. It necessarily includes training in the use of the most modern weapons of destruction and all it means. By common consent this has been ruled out. Mere constitutional means, though non-violent, went out of date long ago. It is a superstition to think that liberty can be gained by such means in the teeth of armed opposition. Non-violent work is then the only means for winning freedom. What is the training or work that Indians should undertake for adapting themselves for non-violent efforts? It has been shown that Indian freedom was lost when India’s chief trade in cotton fabric, which was prepared in her cottages, was destroyed and together with it many other occupations which Indians carried on to sustain that trade. It is obvious that that trade and the allied occupations should be revived or some others consistent with non-violence should be taken up. Revival was the only thing thought of. It was being attempted by way of copying the English or, say, the modern method of replacing human labour by means of power-driven machinery. Instinctively I rejected it [as] being a way of violence and sought to replace it by human labour [as] being a way of non-violence. The struggle between the two is going on. In my opinion, the war that is ending has demonstrated the bankruptcy of violence. Solvency of non-violence remains to be proved. Revival of the central trade of India by means of power-driven machinery is possible only by a superior exhibition of the resourcefulness of the West. And, if it becomes possible, it will find the masses of India no better off than now. I advance no argument in proof of this proposition. For, it can be studied through a perusal of my writings already published in
Then the only form of non-violent work to be done by the largest number of men, women and children of the land, in order to regain the lost trade with its attendant activities, is the spinning-wheel. Thus conceived, it easily becomes the symbol par excellence of non-violence. To be an instrument of swaraj, naturally it must not flourish under Government or any other patronage. It must flourish, if need be, even in spite of the resistance from Government or the capitalist who is interested in his spinning and weaving mills. The spinning-wheel represents the millions in the villages as against the classes represented by the mill-owners and the like.

“Assuming,” the Editor asks, “that the wheel is designed to bring in swaraj non-violently, why should a person who is more usefully occupied or even disinclined spin?” The reason is more psychological than utilitarian. The villagers have become used to imitating the city-dwellers so much so that the movement is towards migration to the city slums instead of remaining in and improving their own lot in the villages. If every person sets apart, for the sake of winning swaraj non-violently, a certain time for hand-spinning, an atmosphere for spinning will be created and if khadi became an article for personal use instead of being an article of commerce, which it now largely is, the question of competition with mill-cloth or any other cloth will disappear and the poorest as well as the richest will be able to wear and use khadi without the slightest difficulty. No wonder Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru has called it “the livery of our freedom”.

---

1. Economics of Khadi, a collection of Gandhiji’s articles, published in 1942
560. TELEGRA FM TO V. S. SRINIVASA SASTRI1

WARDHAGANJI,
August 8, 1945

RIGHT HON’BLE SHASTRIAR
SWAGATAM
MADRAS

HOPE YOUR ILLNESS TEMPORARY AND YOU ARE NOT NEEDELESSLY WORRYING OVER COUNTRY’S SITUATION.2

GANDHI

From the original: V. S. Srinivasa Sastri Papers. Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library

561. TELEGRA FM TO PURUSHOTTAM DAS TANDON

WARDHA,
August 8, 1945

BABU PURUSHOTTAMDAS TANDON
CROSTHWAITEx ROAD
ALLAHABAD

I THINK OUR CORRESPONDENCE SHOULD BE RELEASED.
PLEASE WIRE CONSENT.

BAPU

From the original: P. D. Tandon Collection. Courtesy: National Archives of India

1 Expressing his misgivings about the Rajaji Formula the addressee, in his letter dated August 4, 1945, had written: “You may, by one chance out of ten, bring it off. The country may acclaim the result. I shall not. The price is too big, the purchase will be a bogus article.”

562. TRIBUTE TO ZAGHLUL PASHA

WARDHA,
August 8, 1945

I never had the pleasure of meeting Zaghlul Pasha, but I have always entertained high regard for his patriotism and bravery.

The Hindu, 9-8-1945

563. LETTER TO AMRIT KAUR

SEVAGRAM,
August 8, 1945

CHI. RAJKUMARI,

Your letter. Your illness does disturb me. But what is the use of my disturbing myself over the inevitable, whatever the reason may be? There was nothing wrong in your sending the wires and mentioning the proposed hanging\(^2\).

I am glad Shummy is better.

The cutting is no doubt vicious and untrue. But you are right. It should be ignored. It cannot be answered even by producing facts. It can only be answered by right action.

I wrote to Raja Daljit Singh yesterday.\(^3\) A copy will go with this.

Love.

BAPU

From the original: C.W. 4274. Courtesy: Amrit Kaur. Also G.N. 7906

---

\(^1\) A well-known Egyptian leader (1860-1927). This was sent on his death anniversary.

\(^2\) Of Mahendra Chowdhary, who was hanged on August 7. Vide “Statement to the press”, 11-8-1945.

\(^3\) Vide “Letter to Atulanand Chakravarty”, 7-8-1945.
564. LETTER TO RICHARD SYMONDS

[August 8, 1945]¹

DEAR SYMONDS,

You are unnecessarily agitated. I did not know that you had anything to do with the thing. I understand the whole thing from Sudhir. I think I told you that we were living in artificial and unnatural atmosphere and therefore we had to have thick skins if we were to do our duty.

I expect to see you in Bengal, if I succeed in coming there.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

RICHARD SYMONDS, ESQ.
FRIENDS AMBULANCE UNIT
1 UPPER WOOD ST.
CALCUTTA

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

565. LETTER TO V. K. KRISHNA MENON

SEVAGRAM via WARDA (C. P.),
INDIA,
August 8, 1945

DEAR MENON²,

Panditji³ has sent me your letter to him.

I am not frightened of the word ‘machine’. Therefore, if a life-giving machine can be made in India and will do the work of the spinning-wheel more quickly and better, I would have it and pay a tempting prize to the inventor.

You should be informed that a fat prize was issued to the inventor of such a machine.⁴ The terms were advertised here and in foreign countries. There was only one Indian inventor. I sat at his machine and found it wanting, but I let the board of judges who ¹This letter is placed among those of August 8, 1945.

²Secretary, India League, London
³Jawaharlal Nehru
⁴Vide “To Correspondents”, 22-6-1921. were previously appointed give their judgment which, I was sorry, was hostile to the - his humane machine. I would like to welcome another such Singer, only not for one woman but for the starving millions of India.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

SHRI V. K. KRISHNA MENON
165 THE STRAND
LONDON, W. C. 2

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

566. LETTER TO JAWAHARLAL NEHRU

SEVAGRAM,
August 8, 1945

CHI. JAWAHARLAL,

Your letter is beautiful. -Indu has done a bold thing. I have written to Menon'. I enclose a copy. That is all the time I can spare.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

567. LETTER TO D. B. KALELkar

August 8, 1945

CHI. KAKA,

I have your letter. I am in two minds about whether you should or should not go to the Tilak Vidyapith. And therefore it is best that I should express no definite opinion. -We do not wish to enter into controversy over the Vedas. The compositions that are today accepted as the Vedas are full of unresolved doubts. Not all the writings have come down to us. Even from among those which have, no one knows what is genuine and what is not. As regards their interpretation, sheerconfusion prevails. Hence the judgment about goodness or badness can come only from a purified conscience. I have, therefore, taken as my guide the sloka cited by Anandshankarbhawi2 in his book:

1 Vide the preceding item.
2 Anandshankar Bapubhai Dhrupa
I do not even know from where he has quoted the sloka. It appealed to me instantly and sank into my heart, and I, therefore, got it included in the women’s prayer. Also please remember that we got the marriage of the Harijan girl Lakshmi and Harijan Velayudhan performed according to the rite that we had accepted. I do not remember the names of other Harijans. But all this I consider irrelevant. If I am right in my statement that the regeneration of Hinduism lies in our becoming Harijans, then it is very clear that a change must be made in the marriage rite in all weddings taking place in the Ashram or the ones with my blessings. Since I have already agreed, Indu and Tendulkar should be married in the Ashram. I am not bound as regards the rite, and, therefore, the new rite should be introduced from this wedding. I am giving all this additional information here simply by way of background. You may, if you wish, discuss this matter with him. You may discuss it with Vinobaji also, and then prepare as short a text of the ceremony as possible. Remember that this must be finalized before I leave. I assume that you also will be accompanying me. I saw the other photograph of Bal, and recognized him. Now let us see where we land.

I gave your letter to Ki. to read. I am told that he is strongly opposed to it. If you wish, you may discuss the matter with him also.

Blessings from

BAPU

---

568. LETTER TO GOPE GURBUXANI

August 8, 1945

CHI. GURBUXANI,

You are mistaken. It is not right that the world has an eye only for the wealth of people. It looks more for the heart than for wealth.

You must have received the money. Your intention to give all the money is commendable.

Blessings to you both from

BAPU

---

1 Addressee’s son
569. LETTER TO KUSUM NAIR

August 8, 1945

CHI. KUSUM,

I have your letter. Asking questions also requires an art, which you do not have. Now that you have risen high, why should you care for my answers? As it is I have hardly any desire and less time. You should find my answers from my life.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI KUSUM NAIR
2 Reviera
Marine Drive, Bombay

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

570. STATEMENT ON APPEAL FOR FUNDS

August 8, 1945

I have gone through the appeal of the trustees. I like it. I hope that the entire amount they have asked for in it will be available through contributions. I feel that much has been done for the propagation of Hindustani in the southern provinces and hope that even more will be done in the future. People should contribute on the understanding that the money thus raised will be used for furthering the cause of the national language as I have defined it. The national language as explained in the appeal is a language written in the Urdu or Hindi style and in the Nagari or Urdu script. This means that the Hindi written solely in the Devanagari script cannot be called national language, nor can the language written solely in the Persian script. The true Hindustani will be evolved only when we, who know the national language, are able to write it in both the scripts and speak in both the dictions. There can be no doubt that even today millions of Hindus and Muslims in the North speak such a language, such Hindustani. However, we cannot say that educated people of the North speak such Hindustani. If it has to be our misfortune that such a state of affairs should continue, then it will continue, but it should be our

---

1 This was communicated to M. Satyanarayana, General Secretary, Dakshin Bharat Hindi Prachar Sabha.

2 Of the Dakshin Bharat Hindi Prachar Sabha, for a fund of Rs. 5 lakhs hope that it will come to an end soon. This can be the only meaning of propagating Hindustani. Therefore the work of propagating Hindustani which is going on in South India will emphasize both the styles. And that is the meaning of the resolution which the Congress passed in 1925. The resolution was:

This Congress resolves that the proceedings of the Congress, A.I.C.C. and the Congress Working Committee shall ordinarily be conducted in Hindustani. The English language or any other provincial language may be used if the speaker is unable to speak in Hindustani or whenever necessary. Proceedings of the Provincial Congress Committee shall ordinarily be conducted in the language of the province concerned. Hindustani may also be used.

M. K. GANDHI

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

571. LETTER TO M. S. KELKAR

August 8, 1945

BHAJ KELKAR,

I have your letter. Would not your having to take quinine indicate that there was something lacking in your treatment? Do take Rs. 25 per month and improve your health. My only point is that if you spend the entire sum of Rs. 25 on food and improve your health, but then have a relapse and are again obliged to take quinine, what would one have to say of your treatment? I do not doubt your goodness but I have the gravest doubts concerning your treatment. That I may be wrong is a different thing.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI KELKAR (NALWADI)

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

\[1\] In December at Kanpur
572. LETTER TO RAMNARAYAN CHOWDHARY

SEVAGRAM,
August 8, 1945

CHI. RAMNARAYAN,

I have your letter. What would be the good of my sending for all three of you here? It is unnecessary. I must admit I have not understood your point. I had understood that Anjana Devi was keen on providing modern education to Sita and Subhadra. I do not consider it improper in any way. While going in for Nayee Talim, she is free to send the girls elsewhere whenever she feels like it. If they want to be educated there at present, you must stay somewhere nearby. You will go to the Goshala when the building is ready in four to six months’ time. Since no other accommodation is available it would be better if it can be found in the Ashram as was done in the case of Prabhakar. I have written to Munnalal to that effect. Prabhakar used to cook his own food. I did not make this applicable to you because I thought that except for the education of Sita and Subhadra you and Anjana Devi had a preference for the Ashram life. Therefore I felt you would not need to cook separately. But now I understand from your letter that you do not like the system at the Ashram. If that is so the Ashram life must be something different. But I don’t think it is so. Understand that if the life and routine in the Ashram cause you discomfort you both, or at least Anjana Devi, will not be able to stay here in peace. Your cooking separately will hurt me and irritate the managers. It should not be necessary to convince you on this point. Hence, consider the matter well and do whatever you think best. It is your duty to understand the limitations of those running the Ashram.

Blessings From

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: C.W. 5902. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

---

1 Addressee’s wife and daughters
2 Ibid
573. TELEGRAM TO PRIVATE SECRETARY TO VICE ROY

Express

Sevagram,
August 9, 1945

P.S.V.
Viceroy’s Camp

Posted Letter\(^1\) about Chimur Prisoners on 4th. Receipt was due yesterday. Anxious know whether it was duly received.

Gandhi

Gandhiji’s Correspondence with the Government, 1944-47, p. 37

574. LETTER TO SHIVABHAI G. PATEL

August 9, 1945

Chh. Shivabhai,

Do you also hanker after blessings? Of what avail are they, if you do your work well? If you do not, they will never make up for the deficiency. You should know that.

Blessings to all from

Bapu

Shivabhai Patel
Vallabh Vidyalaya
Bochasan, Khetad

From a photostat of the Gujarati: S.N. 9520. Also C.W. 439. Courtesy: Shivabhai G. Patel

\(^1\) Vide “Letter to E.M. Jenkins”, 3-8-1945.
575. LETTER TO VALLABHBHAI PATEL

SEVAGRAM,
August 9, 1945

Bhai Vallabhbhai,

It is a pity that you cannot sleep while travelling. We shall be reaching Poona in time, and shall see what happens there. I leave on the 19th and arrive there on the 20th. I shall spend the day there and then we shall leave for Poona on the 21st by the first train, assuming that, as before, they will offer us a third-class compartment. Meanwhile take some rest if you can. If you rest, Mani also will get some rest. I feel that she will not be able to endure the present strain for long. Even now she is sustained only by her inexhaustible devotion to you. But even devotion proves helpless in the face of what is but natural. There was a vivid account in the newspapers of the Ahmedabad events.

Blessings from

BAPU

[From Gujarati]

Bapuna Patro-2: Sardar Vallabhbhaine, p. 283

1 At Bombay
576. LETTER TO PREMLILA THACKERSEY

August 9, 1945

DEAR SISTER,

I have your letter.

I should certainly like to stay with you. But you know I am not going there for a change. I want to take Sardar to Dinshaw’s clinic for treatment. You should, however, assume that I am staying with you. I will assume so myself. I hope to start from here on the 19th. I am waiting for Sardar’s letter.

You got a fine samadhi\(^1\) constructed. That was good. Arrangements have also been made for people to visit it.

I hope all of you are well.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 4836. Courtesy: Premlila Thackersey

577. LETTER TO SAILENDRA NATH CHATTERJEE

August 9, 1945

Bhai sailen,

I have your letter. I do not think it is any good answering your question. For the moment the less I say the better. Asking a question calls for art, for thought. So if a question is not of a kind deserving a reply I will not reply to it. I would like to give you something, but what can be done? You yourself should make the effort.

Blessings from

BAPU

UNITED PRESS
BOMBAY

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

\(^1\) Kasturba Gandhi’s samadhi in the Aga Khan Palace in Poona
578. LETTER TO VENKATAKRISHNAIYYA

SEVAGRAM,
August 9, 1945

BHAI VENKATAKRISHNAIYYA,

I have gone through your letter. The argument given in it does not appeal to me. Your thoughts are confused. Maybe, I am too old to appreciate your point. I personally feel that my mind is able to grasp new things. However, you may go ahead according to your ideas.

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

SHRI U. VENKATAKRISHNAIYYA
KHADDAR SANSTHANAM
BEZWADA

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 9244. Also Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

579. LETTER TO Y. M. PARNERKAR

August 9, 1945

CHI. PARNERKAR,

I found your letter irrelevant. I enclose Munnalal’s reply. I did not know that manure was improved by being kept for so many months. The complaint about the trees is still there. Please consider both these matters if you think they call for consideration.

I have not fully understood what Bhai Patil wants to know. If you can explain to me I will let you know.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
580. LETTER TO INDUMATI GUNAJI

August 10, 1945

CHI. INDU,

This letter is for both of you.

I propose to solemnize your wedding on the 19th. The ceremony is likely to be performed by Prabhakar. He is from a Harijan family. His parents had become Christians.

The rite is being drafted by Kakasaheb.¹

I assume that you approve of all this. I think you ought to write to your elders and seek their permission.

I assume also that this marriage will not be for indulgence but for service. I assume further that until real independence is achieved you will not consummate your marriage. And of course I take it for granted that you will not take to contraceptive methods.

I need not say that if you find all this hard you should not feel obliged to have the marriage solemnized here.

If you approve of a marriage of this type, do regular spinning, study the 12th Chapter of the Gita with interest and understanding, and think only of public good while working in the Ashram.

Remember that in drafting this rite I have not taken the law into consideration.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: C.W. 10946. Courtesy: Indumati G. Tendulkar

¹Vide Appendix “Marriage Rites”, 18-8-1945.
581. LETTER TO K. N. KATJU

SEVAGRAM,
August 10, 1945

Bhai Kailashnath.

Read this letter and write to me what it is about. Return the letter.

Blessings from

Bapu

From the Hindi original: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

582. LETTER TO MAHESH DUTTA MISHRA

August 10, 1945

Mahesh,

So you have got to go to Prayag. When will you go? It is temporary no doubt. But how long will you be required to stay there? Will it be a regular job?

Do come here for the holidays. Do not eat everything even though you may be well. Whatever you take should be taken as medicine. You have to eat to live, not live to eat.

Write to me all your experiences in brief.

I hope you are properly fixed up in regard to your food and accommodation here.

Blessings from

Bapu

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 6712. Also C.W. 4456. Courtesy: Mahesh Dutta Mishra

1 (1887-1968) Minister in U. P., 1937-39 and 1946-47; Governor of Orissa, 1947; Governor of West Bengal, 1948-51; Minister for Home Affairs and Law, Government of India; retired as Chief Minister of Madhya Pradesh

2 From Bholanath of Alwar Rajya Prajamandal
583. NOTE TO INDUMATI GUNAJI

[After August 10, 1945]¹

If both of you want to have protection of the law you may have [the marriage] registered. Devdas has done it. So has Kanu. I never wanted it, but the girls’ fathers were keen on it.

I have only expressed an opinion. I never pay any attention to the law in whatever I do. We may regard Prabhakar as more than a Brahmin, but what can we do if society and the law would not recognize him?

From a photostat of the Hindi: C.W. 10951. Courtesy: Indumati G. Tendulkar

584. STATEMENT TO THE PRESS

SEVAGRAM,
August 11, 1945

Those like me, who were interested in saving Mahendra Chowdhary from the gallows, are, I know, shocked that he was hanged at the Central Jail in Bhagalpur on August 7. Those who remain behind will have to know that many more such tragedies will take place. Only, we must learn the lesson of each. Let us, then, now dispassionately learn the lesson of this accomplished death sentence.

First, the Government. They do not call it a political dacoity. Every dacoity is not a political act. Many professionals used the political ferment for their own ends. Government, whether truly national or foreign, would not let such crimes go unpunished. The authorities, in this case, held Mahendra Chowdhary to be implicated in such a dacoity and, therefore, they allowed the sentence to take the extreme course. Now, for the popular side. They say that Mahendra Chowdhary was a young man of twenty-five. He had no idea of taking part in a dacoity whether professional or political, so-called. He was in hiding. He was tried after the event and sentenced on doubtful evidence. Acceptance of the evidence and the verdict depended on the whim of the judge or judges and at the time judges were, as often as not, biased.

¹The contents of the letter indicate that this was written after the letter to the addressee dated August 10, 1945; vide “Letter to Indumati Gunaji”, 10-8-1945.
If the popular belief is founded on fact, the death was a murder, worse, reprehensible because judicial. Who can find the truth, except a body of utterly impartial lawyers? They have to do so from the recorded evidence and the judgements of the original and appellate courts. Let us neither be carried away by sentiment nor lazily forget the incident, now that Mahendra Chowdhary is no more. If Government at all care for public opinion and would not rest on the overwhelming force they have at their disposal, they will be equally interested, and will associate themselves with the public.

_The Hindu, 13-8-1945_

585. LETTER TO AMRIT KAUR

_August 11, 1945_

CHI. AMRIT.

I expected your answer to K. and asked her to do something herself.

I wanted the name. Do not bring _Saf Karo_ with you. Yes, you can join me in Poona, if I am not here by the time you come. No grumbling about your pains. _Nanak_ is a good book but for the miracles.¹ I wish you could induce the Raja to give a better thing in Hindustani, i.e., in Nagari and Urdu characters. He has taken much pains over it.

Love.

BAPU

From the original: C.W. 4275. Courtesy: Amrit Kaur. Also G. N. 7907

586. LETTER TO J. C. KUMARAPPA

_August 11, 1945_

MY DEAR KU.,

You can come tomorrow at 11 a.m. and dine here at 12. You will talk while I am eating.

I am running away to Poona on [the] 19th. I do not know whether I shall return on the appointed date. Can the meeting take place in Poona? If not, I must return for the meeting and go back. But that tomorrow.

¹_Vide_ “Letter to Daljit Singh”, 7-8-1945.
I have not finished the manuscript yet but may by tomorrow. About the article also when we meet. Love.

BAPU

From a photostat: G.N. 10176

587. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

August 11, 1945

CHI. MUNNALAL,

Read the accompanying letter. I like it. Kanchan writes what she feels. I think it is necessary that she should be satisfied. How can she be forced against her will? But I doubt very much if you two can stay together in the Ashram. It seems to me impossible that you may stay in a house of your own in the Ashram and still refrain from sexual gratification. Kanchan at any rate will not be able to do so. And, knowing you as I do, I can say that you also will not be able to do so. Ramprasad is not an Ashram inmate. He is a paid worker and runs a separate kitchen of his own. Even so, I am not reconciled to their gratification of physical desire. But having engaged him I am helpless. His case, like Niyamat’s, should not be cited as a precedent. Think calmly over all this and write to me. I understand about Hiramani.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 8443. Also C.W. 5589. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

588. MESSAGE TO ALL-INDIA SPINNERS’ ASSOCIATION, LAHORE

[On or Before August 12, 1945]

I say ‘spin’. Swaraj lies in every thread of yarn. If all Indians spin and come to me I will give them swaraj. Forty crores of people live in India. Leaving children aside, if all the rest spin it will be a great achievement. I have been, therefore, laying stress on spinning. Spinning is not a small thing. This is my message for “Liberty

1 Of The Economy of Permanence, written by the addressee
2 The report is date-lined “Lahore, August 12”.

VOL. 87 : 29 MAY, 1945 - 29 AUGUST, 1945 347
Week”. I am not joking. Great power lies latent in spinning.

The Bombay Chronicle, 13-8-1945

589. LETTER TO ARUNA ASAF ALI

SEVAGRAM, August 12, 1945

DEAR ARUNA,

The distress is of your own imagination. I fear that the Maulana’s letter was of my doing. There was no question of isolating you from the rest or of expecting you to suppress anything. You were represented as being very ill and so there was a mention of your illness and special urgency of your release. Asaf had no hand in it. So far as I know he came to know of the letter after it was dispatched. Will you not give him and to everyone else the liberty of free thought that you claim for yourself? I hope you are well.

Love.

BAPU

From the original: Aruna Asaf Ali Papers. Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library

590. LETTER TO PRABHAVATI

August 12, 1945

CHI. PRABHA,

I do not remember whether or not I have dictated a letter to you. If I have not, then four days have gone by [since I received your letter].

You have to come to me when you are free from there. I think that if your services are urgently required just now, you should offer them. Personally I approve of your voluntarily confining your sphere of service to villages.

1 Member, All-India Congress Socialist Party; was imprisoned during the Quit India movement.
2 The addressee, in her letter dated August 8, had expressed her deep distress over the special representation made by Abul Kalam Azad to the Viceroy for her release.
3 Asaf Ali, addressee’s husband
4 The letter is in the Devanagari script.
Even while you are there, you should pick up carding and ginning. Practise them regularly. Read whatever you can get.

I am writing this without your letter in front of me. If, therefore, I have left out any point, let me know.

I will leave here on the 19th, spend a day in Bombay and then take Sardar to Poona on the 21st.

Take care of your health.
I am all right.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 3578

591. LETTER TO VALLABHBHAI PATEL

SEVAGRAM,
August 12, 1945

BHAI VALLABHBHAI,

I got your letter. If God enables us to meet, we shall discuss the matter further in Poona.

I have even written to Maulana Saheb, though not in your fashion. It is a difficult job. There can be no two opinions that before taking any particular step he should consult you all.

What I had written to Jinnah Saheb was final, and, therefore, I cannot do anything different. But you and others have a right to disagree with what I wrote. If you cannot endorse it from your heart, you should declare that openly. I did not speak on anybody’s behalf, but merely expressed my own opinion. If I see any error in what I did, I would immediately admit it. You know well enough that he likes nothing that I suggest. But don’t worry about it.

New elections must be held. But it is not certain that they will be. If they are held, we shall see. More in Poona.

I can fully understand your inability to come here. Railway travelling is no longer possible for you. Will it be less painful if you fly from Bombay to Poona?

Your last speech1 was liked by everybody. But I feel that you went too far. But don’t mind about that. You just cannot suppress 1 At Bombay on August 9. The addressee had been earlier released from the Ahmednagar Fort on June 15, 1945.

what is on your mind.
    I hope Mani will not exert herself too much and fall ill.

    Blessings from
    BAPU

[From Gujarati]

Bapuna Patro-2: Sardar Vallabhbhaine, pp. 284-5

592. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

August 12, 1945

CHI. MUNNALAL,

Plan a programme of study for Gajraj\footnote{Son of Hoshiari} and let me know. His studies should be properly attended to. If you wish to ask me anything about this matter, you may do so.

    Blessings from
    BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 8439. Also C.W. 5590. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

593. LETTER TO SHRIKRISHNADAS JAJU

August 12, 1945

BHAI JAJUJI,

Give a reply after going through this.\footnote{From Harekrushna Mahtab; vide the following item; also “Letter to Harekrushna Mahtab”, 14-8-1945.} Send me a copy of it and also the letter.

    Blessings from
    BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

\footnotetext[1]{Son of Hoshiari}
\footnotetext[2]{From Harekrushna Mahtab; vide the following item; also “Letter to Harekrushna Mahtab”, 14-8-1945.}
594. LETTER TO HAREKRUSHNA MAHTAB

August 12, 1945

BHAI MAHTAB 1.

How are you? You did not even mention in your letter where you were writing from. It is not that the khadi produced in Orissa cannot go out of the province. However, it is true that only a small quantity will be sent out. Be assured that true well-being of Orissa lies only in that. It should not be necessary to write down everything that I have written to you. Understand the new scheme and carry it out.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI H. MAHTAB, M.L.A.
CUTTACK (ORISSA)

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

595. LETTER TO NISHITH NATH

August 12, 1945

BHAI NISHITH NATH,

I have your letter. I do not know what I shall be able to do. I shall certainly keep your letter in mind.

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 8022

1President, Utkal P. C. C., 1930 and 1937; member, Congress Working Committee, 1938-46; Chief Minister of Orissa, 1946-50 and 1957-60; Minister, Central Government, 1950-52
596. LETTER TO PARACHURE SHASTRI

August 12, 1945

Bhai Prachure Shastri,

I have your letter. Give the song to Prabhakar. It is a well known fact that the word chakra is to be found in the Vedas and other texts; also that the word charkha is derived from chakra. I have understood the second point.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

597. LETTER TO RATNAMAYI DEVI

August 12, 1945

Chai Ratnamayi,

When I received your letter, a doubt arose in my mind. I had believed that you were self-sacrificing and brave and were not scared of living in villages. You should not have waited for my orders. That does not mean that I have ceased to be your well-wisher. But now that you have settled down there, of what help can I be?

Blessings from
BAPU

Shri Ratnamayi Devi
Mahila Ashram

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

598. LETTER TO SECRETARY, SUMMERFORD ORCHARD

August 12, 1945

The Manager,

I have received the apples you have sent on behalf of Shri Padampatji. They are good. Thanks.

M. K. Gandhi

Secretary, Summerford Orchard
Ramgarh P. O.
Dist. Nainital, U. P.

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
599. LETTER TO ACYUT PATWARDHAN

SEVAGRAM,
August 12, 1945

Bhai Achyut,
All your papers are being sent. If something has been left out, do ask. It will be sent.
I trust you are in good health.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

600. LETTER TO V. A. SUNDARAM

August 13, 1945

MY DEAR SUNDARAM,
You have sent me a beautiful extract. You did mention your Visit to Assisi’s place. Don’t come to me in Poona. Come to Sevagram when I am here.
Love.

BAPU

From a photostat: G.N. 3191

601. LETTER TO V. LAKSHMI

August 13, 1945

DEAR LAKSHMI,
The sample of yarn is good. I hope you will continue your good work.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

SHRI V. LAKSHMI
43 KARNESWARKOIL
SANTHOME, MYLAPORE, MADRAS

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1Secretary to Madan Mohan Malaviya. The superscription is in Tamil.
602. LETTER TO HARJIVAN KOTAK

August 13, 1945

CHI. HARJIVAN,

I have your letter. You have the zeal, so you will certainly get the work. My mind is working in a different way these days; so I shall not be able to suggest anything. It is very difficult to accommodate you in Poona. So meet me only when I return to Sevagram.

Blessings from

BAPU

HARJIVAN KOTAK
GRAMODYOG GANDHI HAT
AHMEDABAD

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

603. LETTER TO RAMPRASAD

SEVAGRAM,
August 13, 1945

CHI. RAMPRASAD,

I have not given thought to what you should do in my absence. You are not to come to Poona. I wish the child to get well. I understand about Pushpa.

Blessings from

BAPU

C/O SULOCHANA BHATT
145 A, VIGAS SHERI
KALBA DEVI ROAD

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
604. LETTER TO INDUMATI GUNAJI

August 13, 1945

CHI. INDU,

Doctor¹ says you want to say something to me. If it is something confidential you can come at 4 today, if it is not confidential then come at 11.

Blessings from

BAPU

[PS.]

You will not invite any outsiders except your brother.

From a photostat of the Hindi: C.W. 10947. Courtesy: Indumati G. Tendulkar

605. LETTER TO JASWANT SINGH

August 13, 1945

SARDARJI,

I have your letter. Your article is interesting.

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

SARDAR JASWANT SINGH
VASANT PRESS
DEHRADUN, U. P.

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

606. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA

August 13, 1945

CHI. KRISHNACHANDRA,

What is there so confidential about your letter? You have not understood my point. It is as well. I suggest that you show your letter to Munnalal. If that is the case he should withdraw himself. Anything done just for my sake is to be regarded as futile. Anything that is done has to be right. Only then can it do good.

That was my view about the management. Since I am not aware of everything, the final decision should be taken by those who know

¹A. G. Tendulkar
all the facts.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4522

607. LETTER TO Y. M. PARNERKAR
August 13, 1945

CHI. PARNERKAR,

If the manure was lying there because of paucity of labour you should have taken help from the Ashram inmates. You will remember you have asked for such help before. There was no point in shifting it from one place to another. It can be used for vegetables; but the question is whether it is more useful for the fruit trees or for the vegetables. I felt that your reply was not straight. If we have been negligent it is our duty to own it.

(2) I will myself see about the trees.

(3) I shall be pleased if Shri Patil and his sister-in-law live in the Ashram and work in the Goshala. But have a talk with Munnalalji and write to Patil what he says.

(4) I will certainly like it if Ramnarayan can stay in the Goshala. Ask him whether he wishes to stay or not. I was under the impression that at the moment it is not possible to accommodate him under any circumstances.

(5) Does the Hindustani Talimi Sangh want developed land? I thought it was otherwise. We must give the land. Put down everything in Writing and let me know. Let them have it on a nominal rent, for a specific period. Give them the right to return the land.

I think I have replied to all your questions.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI PARNERKAR
GOSHALA
SEVAGRAM

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
608. NOTE TO INDUMATI GUNAJI

[After August 13, 1945]

Now you can talk. I shall talk if I have to reply. The question is not about... at Wardha. The question is what is proper for you. I have not laid down any condition. If you say it is something new, then you may leave it.

You are not a little girl, nor are you an ordinary woman. You are a worker of some standing. Tendulkar is an experienced man. I might join you two in wedlock only to see you lost in family life. Read my letter¹ again; you will not find in it any condition, only a keen desire on my part. If you have already decided to lead family life, what is the use of going through an Ashram wedding? You do not know the amount of pains I am taking and how much I am thinking about it. In my opinion this is no small matter. Know that I had expressed the same desire in the case of every other wedding. But they were all young girls with the exception of Saundaram. You on the other hand ought to raise more important questions. How will it look if you desired progeny before the coming of independence?

I shall not forbid you from inviting those people if you wish. Will they have to be served a meal here? Tell me after thinking over it.

Show me my letter. Does my language imply a condition?

*          *          *

This is a different matter. When you say that I laid down a condition which was not there earlier, I maintain that I have stipulated no such condition. This is why I made the inquiry. I can do something only on the assumption that neither of you will be a hypocrite. In the event of hypocrisy I shall not be losing anything; only you two will stand to lose. This has been my experience to date. Those who betrayed me have ultimately fallen.

From a photostat of the Hindi: C.W. 10950.Courtesy: Indumati G. Tendulkar

¹ From the contents it is evident that this note was written after the letter to the addressee dated August 13, 1945. Vide “Letter to Indumati Gunaji”, 13-8-1945.
² One word is illegible here.
³ Dated August 10; vide “Letter to Indumati Gunaji”, 10-8-1945.
609. LETTER TO HAMIDULLAH

August 13/14, 1945

HAMIDULLAH SAHEB,

I have your letter. I do not answer every letter. I have understood what you say.

Yours,
M. K. GANDHI

HAMIDULLAH
59 NAYAGAON
LUCKNOW

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

610. DISCUSSION WITH B. S. MURTHY

[Before August 14, 1945]

I can give you advice only as from one individual to another. I am not giving any advice to the Harijan Sevak Sangh which is an institution. After all the Harijan Sevak Sangh is only as good as the best men in it and I know how few they are. The Sangh has done substantial work, though not in the estimation of the Harijans or in the estimation of the orthodox Hindus. The Harijans may want to smash the caste Hindus and the caste Hindus may want to cling to the old way. The Sangh has to face both these.

You have asked me how the Sangh can be revitalized. I know the royal way is a fast by me. I might fast again and that more readily for Harijans than for anything else. But I must wait till God asks me to do it. There is no such thing as a forced fast. It has to come and I cannot say now when it will come. I must also tell you that there are others who want to fast for the Harijans. But I have told them that they are not to fast while I am alive. I have also the idea of a chain of fasts. In such a chain I will fast first and then when my body has perished, the next fast will begin and it will go on till untouchability is no more. Such a fast is conceived, but it cannot be taken up at once as I said it has to come. But before even such a thing happens a lot of spade work has to be done. That is why Harijan Sevak Sangh workers are

---

1 Who had sought Gandhiji’s advice on the various problems of Harijans
2 From the reference to the Harijan Sevak Sangh workers’ meeting which was held on August 14, 1945. Vide also “Letter to Sudhir Ghosh”, 28-8-1945. meeting here soon. They are meeting for the very purpose of revitalizing the Sangh’s work.

The present feeling among the Harijan Sevak Sangh workers is that practically nothing has been done among caste Hindus. Education of Harijans is one thing; education of Savarnas is another and as I know more difficult. You can educate Harijans by giving them scholarships, hostels, etc., but no such way is possible among the caste Hindus. The task, therefore, is to educate the savarnas. But this can be done only by those who are fired by a living faith in the Hinduism which I understand. Only those who fully know the meaning of Hinduism as I know it can perform the miracle. Let us not forget that untouchability is a most difficult thing to remove and that our task is a heavy one. But I have no doubt that God will remove untouchability or remove Hinduism.

Now in regard to your question on the political future of Harijans, I certainly see that those Harijans who have become politically conscious should straightaway have a full opportunity to figure in politics. You have asked me what I mean by saying that I want such Harijans to be more than a match for all other political competitors. Many people weigh the Harijans in some special Harijan balance. But I want to weigh the Harijans in the same balance in which I weigh the best. You have to outweigh others because you have to cover so much lost distance. That is why I expect from the Harijans greater effort than from others.

You have asked me whether Dr. Ambedkar has in my opinion thus proved himself to be more than a match. My answer is ‘Yes’ and ‘No’. Dr. Ambedkar is a fierce and fearless man. He does not scruple to beat the Hindu dog with any stick he can get. He wants to destroy Hinduism. It is open to him to do it. If the Harijans want to do it they can do it. Then the Harijans must become the destroyers of Hinduism. I want Harijans to become as able and earnest as Dr. Ambedkar but in a different way. I want you to do even better. I want you to produce sterling men who will reshape the whole of our society. It is not enough to be educated. It is necessary to be cultured and fearless. Such men who will reshape society will have to work among the people and not cut themselves away from the people. They will have to be stern, incorruptible and self-reliant. There is nothing to prevent such people from taking any assistance from clean quarters. But my point is the more you lean on such assistance, the more difficult becomes the task of uplifting the Harijans.

The Hindu, 21-8-1945 and 31-8-1945
611. TELEGRAM TO HANUMAN PRASAD PODDAR

Sevagram,
August 14, 1945

Hanumanprasad Poddar
“Kalyan”
Gorakhpur

Indians’ prosperity bound with that of cow and her progeny.

Gandhi

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

612. LETTER TO GOVERNOR OF BENGAL

Sevagram,
August 14, 1945

Dear friend,

Many thanks for your letter of 8th instant received yesterday afternoon.

I shall gladly avail myself of your kind offer of assistance, if I need it. Of course I know Mr. Symonds very well.

I am,
Yours sincerely,

M. K. Gandhi

His Excellency the Governor of Bengal
Calcutta

Gandhiji’s Correspondence with the Government, 1944-47, p. 104

1 Of the Friends Ambulance Unit
613. LETTER TO LALLA MEGHRAJ

SEVAGRAM,
August 14, 1945

DEAR LALLA MEGHRAJ,

Your letter. You should refer the matter to the Maulana Saheb.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

LALLA MEGHRAJ, M.L.A.
ROHRI, SINDH

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

614. LETTER TO J. POPPLETON

August 14, 1945

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter. You can see me in Poona after 22nd instant.

Yours truly,
M. K. GANDHI

J. POPPLETON, ESQ.
C/O S.S. "RANCHI"
P. & O. STEAM NAVIGATION COY.
BOMBAY

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
615. LETTER TO KANU GANDHI

[August 14, 1945]

CHI. KANAM,

I have your letter. Why do you fall ill? Should not the art of not falling ill and, having fallen ill, of getting well again be a part of everybody’s study?

Blessings from
BAPU

CHI. KANU GANDHI
C/O SHRI RAMDAS GANDHI
KHALASI LINE, NAGPUR

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 9519. Courtesy: Kanu Gandhi

616. LETTER TO KRISHNAVARMA

August 14, 1945

BHAI KRISHNAVARMA,

I have your letter. You (and Mama, if you think he is fit and can be brought) should come to Bombay on Monday. I will be observing silence but do not worry about it. I shall spare a few minutes somehow.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

617. LETTER TO VASUMATI PANDIT

August 14, 1945

CHI. VASUMATI,

I have your letter. I shall be leaving on the 19th. After that my programme will be uncertain. As Sardar desires I could spend three months with him and then go to Bengal, then to the Frontier Province

1From the postal cancellation mark

THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
and then to Madras. That means I shall have to be away till December. Under these circumstances you can stay with me if you come at the end of December. But that is the time when you are required to stay there.

My blessings to Akbar. I am all right.

Blessings from BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

618. LETTER TO DEVRAJ

August 14, 1945

BHAIR DEVRAJ,

I have your letter. I am sorry you felt hurt. But I am sorrier that you cannot see what is so obvious.

Blessings from M. K. GANDHI

SHRI DEVRAJI
YOGIC PHYSICAL CULTURE INSTITUTE
PLEADER STREET
LYALLPUR, PUNJAB

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

619. LETTER TO HAREKRUSHNA MAHTAB

SEVAGRAM,
August 14, 1945

BHAIR MAHTAB,

I had sent your letter to Shri Jajuji. He has written to you. From it you will see that the new [scheme] is good from all points of view.

Blessings from BAPU

SHRI HAREKRUSHNA MAHTAB
CONGRESS HOUSE
CUTTACK, ORISSA

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Akbar Chavda
2 Illegible in the source
620. LETTER TO SHARAD KUMARI
August 14, 1945
CHI. SHARAD KUMARI,
I have your letter. Why should you feel nervous now that you have gone there? Whatever the other girls do, you must maintain simplicity. Spin and learn other crafts. Do not indulge in luxuries but at the same time do not be jealous of others. Love everyone. In the end you will make an impression.

_Blessings from_
BAPU
C/O THE HEADMISTRESS
CENTRAL HINDU GIRLS SCHOOL
KASHI, U.P.

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

621. LETTER TO V. BHASHYAM AYYANGAR
August 14, 1945
BHAISHRI,
I have your letter. I will try to lay the foundation; but no decision can be taken before I come.

_Yours sincerely,_
M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat of the Hindi: C.W. 9761. Courtesy: B. Jagannath Das

---

1 Ex-Judge of Madras High Court
2 Of the Harijan Industrial School, Kodambakkam, Madras
622. LETTER TO AMRIT KAUR

August 14, 1945

CHI. AMRIT,

Your two covers. Of course you will come to Poona when you are easily free from all work there.

Can Vaidya Nanak Chand work in Sevagram? What will he need? Has he a family? There may be very little Ayurvedic work for him unless he is really well up in his work.

Sushila is in Nagpur.

Harijan meeting\(^1\) just on. Rameshwari\(^2\) is here.

Love.

BAPU

From the original: C.W. 4164. Courtesy: Amrit Kaur. Also G.N. 7800

623. SPEECH AT CENTRAL BOARD, HARIJAN SEVAK SANGH

WARDHA,

August 14, 1945

Gandhiji said that only caste Hindus and no Harijan should be taken on the Executive of the Sangh, as it was the caste Hindus who had to atone for their sin of prolonging untouchability. Harijans could be members of the supervision committee that might be set up for carrying on the work properly.

Replying to a question, Gandhiji said that he would appreciate the principle of satyagraha for enforcing the civic rights of Harijans in public places like tanks, wells, temples, etc. He, however, emphasized that the Harijan Sevak Sangh as an organization should not be involved in such a satyagraha. Individual Harijan workers might try that remedy with the help of others.

Gandhiji explained to the members how Harijan work was to be carried on. Persistent propaganda for changing the hearts of the orthodox and caste Hindus, he said, would greatly help to solve the problem of untouchability which was a stigma on Hinduism.

To create confidence among Harijans, Mahatma Gandhi went on, Harijan workers had to live amidst Harijans, mix with them, study their local and other

---

\(^1\) Of the Central Board of Harijan Sevak Sangh; \textit{vide} the following item.

\(^2\) Rameshwari Nehru, President, Central Board of the Harijan Sevak Sangh problems and try to solve them to their satisfaction. The workers should live like the Harijans “so that they can feel that you are one of them”.

Gandhiji emphasized the need for more intensive work for the uplift of Harijans and called for more workers. It was a very vast work and needed great patience, energy, time and money, he said.

_The Hindu, 16-8-1945_

624. LETTER TO ABUL KALAM AZAD

_SEVAGRAM, WARDHA_,
_August 15, 1945_

On receipt of your letter today, I sent you the following wire: “Your letter. I think it should not be published. Writing fully.”

I do not infer from your letter that you are writing about my ‘Hindus’. Whatever you have in your heart has not come in your writing. But do not worry about it. When we meet next we will talk over it if you so desire. Whatever you want to say about the communal problem should not be said without consulting the Working Committee. I am also of the opinion that it would be better to be quiet. The party can give its opinion after consultation with you. They have a right to do so. Besides it is their duty. I differ from your opinion. I can not say if I attach importance to the words ‘Hindu’ and ‘Mussalman’. Whatever the Congress does is a different thing. At one time I do not like ‘Hindu’ and at another time I do not like ‘Mussalman’. It means there cannot be either. All this needs pondering over. I do not feel the urge for doing anything early.

From a copy: C.W. 10551. Courtesy: Government of Madhya Pradesh

---

1This appears in _The Transfer of Power_, Vol. VI, under the date August 16, 1945 with some verbal variations.

2_The Transfer of Power_ has: “I cannot say if I attach any importance to the Hindu and Muslim (convention). What the Congress may do is another matter. I don’t like the idea of a Hindu and a Muslim alternately acting as Head of the State). It means that members of other communities will be barred. All this needs careful pondering over. I do not feel the urge to do anything hastily”. The letter was intercepted by the Government.
625. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH
August 15, 1945

CHI. MUNNALAL,

I got both your letters. I had sent you Ramnarayan’s letter for your information and to know what you might have to say in the matter. What you say is perfectly correct. I certainly do not like to leave the newly arrived girls and go away, but I am helpless. You should know how to make them work. I will try to discuss the matter with Deo.

Ramnarayan will leave on the 18th. You should ponder over Krishnachandra’s letter. Why does he and others form such an impression? One should hear what one’s co-workers say. One may even sacrifice much for their sake.

It is not that you do not know this.

In hurry,

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 8438. Also C.W. 5591. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

626. LETTER TO VINOBA BHAVE
August 15, 1945

CHI. VINOBA,

I do not believe that agriculture alone will bring self-reliance. We should become self-reliant through the handicrafts we take up. I grant that in the very first year we cannot become self-reliant. However, when we complete the entire process the expenditure and the income should balance. I would not call agriculture a handicraft. But it is an occupation of crores of people. It does not encourage skill but it does give a lot of physical exercise. It has been accorded its rightful place after seven years. It is a sad thing that we have been divided into two groups but that is inevitable. We regard constructive work as a symbol of ahimsa while others look upon it as a means of furthering their work. And that only to the extent that if they can do without it they will do so. Even if the intention is good I find lack of wisdom in such an attitude.
Your health causes me worry. You must get rid of your leg trouble. Steam treatment is one of the treatments. Massage is worth trying. I believe that one who neglects the body betrays the soul. Is not the body an abode of the atman? And therefore it requires the utmost care.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Vinoba Bhave Papers. Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library

---

627. LETTER TO RAJENDRA PRASAD

WARDHA,
August 15, 1945

BHAI RAJENDRA BABU,

I have your letter. I am sending your letters to Agatha Harrison and Krishna Menon, by air mail. I see from these that all those sentenced to death are classed as political prisoners. Can this view sustain? During the upheaval a few criminals indulged in foul deeds. Can they be described as political? Then what the Huns did in Sind should similarly be described as political. All these things are weighing on my mind. Even so I do not hold back your letter, because I have not been given any choice and it is addressed to Agatha Harrison. The second letter you have forgotten to sign. However, I am forwarding it to Krishna Menon. The truth is that capital punishment is bad in itself and it should be abolished.

I have no hope of anything good coming out of it. We must understand the system. The Viceroy wields supreme power. So if we are not able to achieve anything here we might as well wash our hands of the whole thing. They cannot run the administration in any other way. We should therefore do whatever is possible only here. Our last resort is public opinion. Public opinion, in this matter, is evidently not able to do much and when it does achieve something it is not as effective as it should be. I have stated what can be done about Mahendra Chowdhary after the execution.¹ I hope you have gonethrough my statement and will have it implemented in whatever way you can. Something will come of it if competent lawyers take the matter up. Maybe, we shall not be able to save those whom we want to, but we shall have the benefit of it in time to come.

¹*Vide* “Statement to the press”, 11-8-1945.

I am very happy to know that your health is good. Do not be in a hurry to get back from there. Do whatever you can from there.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

628. LETTER TO MOHAMMED SALIM
August 15/16, 1945

MOHAMMED SALIM SAHEB,

I have your letter. I had seen what was written to you before. You must know that I have no private money of my own. Therefore please excuse me.

Yours,
M. K. GANDHI

MOHAMMED SALIM, SHOPKEEPER
BELBAGH, JABALPUR

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

629. ADVICE TO ENGINEERS\(^1\)

[On or before August 16, 1945]\(^2\)

How useful it would be if the engineers in India were to apply their ability to the perfecting of village tools and machines. This must not be beneath their dignity.

The Hindu, 25-8-1945

\(^1\) This was given during a talk with Labanya Kumar Chowdhary, an engineer from Sylhet, when he visited Sevagram. He had resigned from the Government service during the 1942 movement. Gandhiji refers to his visit in the letter to P. C. Ghosh dated August 16, 1945; vide “Letter to P. C. Ghosh”, 16-8-1945.

\(^2\) ibid
630. LETTER TO J. C. KUMARAPPA

SEVAGRAM,
August 16, 1945

MY DEAR KU.,

Your two letters.

The damage to the still is a sorry affair, but I must be held wholly responsible. The still was brought for the sake of Dr. ‘Ice’1. But it became nobody’s business, though the distilled water was produced for Dr. ‘Ice’s’ patients. I was away and the still was mishandled. The slight reparation I can make is to pay in full Rs. 100 or such sum as you may have to pay for a new still, if it is available. You have to make the choice.

For the talk you can come on Saturday at 8.30 p. m. after the prayer or tonight if you get this in time.

Love.

BAPU

PROF. J. C. KUMARAPPA
MAGANWADI
WARDHA

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

631. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

August 16, 1945

CHI. NARANDAS,

I sent you today a wire as follows: “All agree cotton condition beneficial end. Writing—Bapu.”2 If I could have written to you on the very day that I received your letter, this letter would have reached you at the same time as the wire. But I did not wish to reply to your letter without showing it to others. For, though I had written a long letter to you, you remained convinced in your mind regarding your demand. I did not, therefore, think it proper to write to you on my own. Your letter has now been read by Jajuji, Chhaganlal3, Krishnadas4 and

1 M. S. Kelkar
2 The wire is quoted in English.
3 Chhaganlal Joshi
4 Krishnadas Gandhi, son of Chhaganlal Gandhi

THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
Kan-aiyo. They all agree with me. Jajuji has even written down his view. I send it with this. He has described his own experience. I am confident that a person like you is bound to have the same experience. “Swaraj will be gained through yarn,” I said, relying on intuition. But I realize now that intuition is one thing and its confirmation by experience another. And what I have been putting forward now is something different still. Others are having more convincing experience of the same. It is not going to impress me at all even if in Kathiawar khadi worth Rs. 4 lakhs instead of Rs. 2 lakhs is produced and sold. For it could be proved that such production and sale of khadi would only promote the welfare of the poor, and an all-India institution like the Charkha Sangh need not be established merely for that purpose. A co-operative of the poor for producing khadi could be established and more khadi at still lower cost could be produced. But even then that khadi would be of value only as khadi for the poor. It would, one may say, make no contribution to the cause of swaraj. I, therefore, desire that you should have perfect self-confidence and adopt this new method—policy—for khadi and discover from experience that it is khadi for swaraj. It is quite possible that Kathiawar may not accept such khadi. If so, don’t mind if no khadi work is done there, for you must be aware that no such work is done in many Indian States. In the same way if no work is done in Kathiawar, either, the cause of khadi for swaraj would not suffer. I go even further and say that in carrying on khadi activity for swaraj, if it ceases to be khadi for the poor, the latter are not going to lose anything for they will be able to earn their bread in some other way. But if khadi supports the poor even while remaining khadi for the swaraj, it would be a credit both to the poor and the cause of swaraj. The poor thereby would have contributed to the winning of swaraj. If I have left any point unexplained, Kanaiyo will explain it when he arrives there.

I hope your health is perfect. If you can leave that place, it might be better for you to come and see me once.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./II. Also C.W. 8628. Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi
632. LETTER TO LAKSHMI NARAYAN AGRAWAL

August 16, 1945

BHAI LAKSHMI BABU,

We cannot accept even one of the three conditions. Even though we believe that it is an inflammatory speech, constructive activity has no relation at all with movements such as that of 1942. Even if we denounce the violent activities of Shri Jayaprakash Narayan, we cannot accept any of these three conditions, that is to say, we cannot compel the workers to respect them. If the independence of India is common cause between us and the Government then what is the meaning of all these differences?

The truth is that the Bihar Government has made a mistake in making the arrests but instead of acknowledging the mistake it wants to put the responsibility on us. We will not accept the responsibility even if they should wipe us out. Let them stop our peaceful activities. We shall still go forward.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

633. LETTER TO P. C. GHOSH

August 16, 1945

BHAI PROFULLA BABU,

I have your two letters: one about Labanya Kumar and the other about my going there.

I have met Labanya Kumar and have written about the engineers. He has also seen things here.

Now about my visit. I have said I will go. I have also been told by the Governor that the way is open for my visit. The question now is when I should go. I cannot go before October under any circumstances and as regards October you frighten me. I personally am not frightened but if I am not to go in October it will be very late.

1 The addressee had written that the Governor of Bihar in his talk with Anugraha Narayan Sinha had said that:

(i) The Government would not allow the constructive workers to make any inflammatory speeches. (ii) The Government would not give any opportunity to the Constructive workers to launch a mass movement as that of 1942. (iii) The Government would keep a close watch on the activities of the Congress as none of its members, including Gandhiji, denounced the violent activities of Jayaprakash Narayan.
So write to me after considering everything. As you must be aware, I have stayed in Calcutta in October and have moved about. Besides, I ask myself why I cannot stay in a place where you all can. I will advise you to see Satis Babu also in this connection. I know it is a tricky matter, but we should be able to do something.

In Calcutta I shall stay in Sodepur. I know Sarat Babu would insist that I should stay with him. You should jointly decide and let me know. I am not going there for a fixed period. I want to lose myself in the misery of Bengal. I want to go to Midnapore and also to Chittagong. I do not know how far the body will carry. Also I shall not be able to put up with undisciplined crowds and constant noise.

Do not go on saying ‘yes’ to everybody. Meet the persons whom you have to meet and let me know. Meet Sudhir Ghosh also. I have come to know him quite well and he has something to do with my going there. He works with the Tatas.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

634. LETTER TO SUSHILA GANDHI

[Before August 18, 1945]

It certainly is. But I learnt the fact only today. I did know about his marriage in Germany. But, though married, he had become as good as one not married. That he is going to marry for the third time, I learnt only now and from you. You told Abha and she told me. Nevertheless I attach great value to a promise and, therefore, for the sake of the promise, this knowledge notwithstanding, I will get them married. However, I do realize from this case that one should make no promises. But this is like inquiring about a man’s caste after drinking water at his place. But do we not have the other saying, too, that it is morning whenever one wakes up?

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G. N. 4955

1 Sarat Chandra Bose
2 From the contents it is evident that this letter was written before the letter to Dr. A. G. Tendulkar dated August 18, 1945; vide the following item.
3 The addressee had asked Gandhiji whether it was not against his ideal to contemplate giving Indumati in marriage to a person who had been married twice before.
635. LETTER TO DR. A. G. TENDULKAR
August 18, 1945

DEAR TENDULKAR,

Many are protesting to me that I am officiating at your marriage tomorrow. Among them are Manilal and now his wife. She tells me that this will be your third marriage, though I believe in one man one wife and vice versa for all time. I know about your new German wife but nothing about your previous wife. My son says none of my ideals will be realized in this union and that neither you nor Indu will carry out my wish that you may not procreate during the country’s dependence. I have told them that I cannot go back on my promise which is not in itself immoral or not for a manifestly immoral purpose. Therefore the promise shall be fulfilled (D. V..). But you will please give me such answer as you can.

Now for your preparation for tomorrow:

(1) Both should fast till the marriage tie is formed, fruits may be taken.
(2) You will both read 12th Chapter of Gita and contemplate its meaning.
(3) Each will clean up separate plots of ground with measure.
(4) Each will tend cows in the Goshala.
(5) Each will clean up the well side.
(6) Each will clean a closet well.
(7) Each will spin daily and do all these with the intention so far as possible of carrying out these yajnas daily.

BAPU

From a photostat: C.W. 10954. Courtesy: Indumati N. Tendulkar

636. YARN DONATION

We all know that Shri Narandas Gandhi is a dedicated votary of khadi. He has such great faith in khadi that he sees Daridranarayana in it. He therefore spins for many hours a day. He has also given a prominent place to spinning in the national school conducted by him at Rajkot. For the last many years he has been collecting both yarn and money for the “Charkha Dwadashi”1. This time he has carried the sutra yajna a long way and he has expressed his wish to the country that not only spinning but donating of yarn should catch on. Everyone can participate in it. It should be borne in mind that he does not insist that the yarn should be donated to him only. It can be given to All-India Spinners’ Association as well. What he wants is that people should now give yarn donations freely and that he should be supplied with figures as to the quantity of yarn spun all over India and the quantity of yarn donated. To provide information to the public it is enough if these figures are sent to the All-India Spinners’ Association office. However, the activity will gain impetus if figures are sent to the person who has conceived the idea, has struggled for it and has fostered the activity. If the figures are sent to him, he will have a clear picture of the work done and his planning and knowledge will prove very useful to all for further progress of work.

1Gandhiji’s birthday according to the Vikram calendar

Every year he seeks my consent for whatever work he does. This year I thought it proper to accept only yarn donations and suggested it to him accordingly. I have visualized yarn currency and have called Chi. Narandas its banker. I believe that he has the right ability and purity for that kind of work. It is possible that at present the yarn will not fulfil all the requirements of the currency. But our aim today is to increase the number of spinners from the standpoint of non-violent swaraj.

An experiment to make yarn a currency was made locally at Nalwadi. Another experiment is going on in Bezwada. However the ideas behind the two experiments were different. The experiment can be extended to cover the whole of India. Only one year will be required for such currency to come into force. Every home will then become a mint. But it is only an idea today. For the time being all the spinners will produce currency in the form of yarn and will give that away in donation. Every branch of the All-India Spinners’ Association will collect such donations. The yarn will belong to the All-India Spinners’ Association. Only the account will be sent to Chi. Narandas. The ownership will be that of the All-India Spinners’ Association. Narandas will be the custodian of the yarn sent to him directly or collected by himself. It will be utilized and distributed with my permission. The money and the yarn collected by Chi. Narandas every year is distributed with my permission. It will be the same this year also.

This year the idea of cash collection has been given up. However, cash will be received from those who want to give it but the
All-India Spinner’s Association will not make any arrangement for its collection. The same rule applies to Chi. Narandas. The aim will be to collect only yarn donations.

Whatever yarn the All-India Spinners’ Association collects will be its capital. From now on it will not collect cash for carrying on its activities but will manage with yarn only.

The yarn thus collected will not be sold. But the khadi made from it will be sold. Yarn will be taken but not given. Only the things made from it will be given and sold.

The rule already exists of taking a certain amount of yarn when selling khadi but at some places the practice has been started of giving khadi in exchange for the full quantity of yarn. In spite of that the effort will be to have only yarn donations on the occasion of Charkha Jayanti. However, I want that besides khadi other articles of village industries should be made available in exchange for yarn. But that can be realized only when we take the final step. At the moment I have presented the idea of yarn currency only in its initial form. It is easy for accounting and the capital of yarn increases not by interest but by the labour of the spinner. If the people understand this scheme then yarn will become an instrument for the production of goods worth crores of rupees. Physical labour will become the capital and will easily be able to compete with capitalists.

SEVAGRAM, August 18, 1945

[From Hindi]

Khadi Jagat, September 1945
637. LETTER TO VINOBA BHAVE

Sevagram,
August 18, 1945

Chh. Vinoba,

. . . I shall look into the Nayee Talim matter. Ashadevi is not here at present.

I have not a full copy of the Ramayana as abridged by me but I send you a marked copy of the Ramayana from which you will be able to know the principles on which I had worked. As far as possible I have tried to retain the historical or narrative portion unbroken. Some of the interpolations are useful by themselves, but still I have dropped them altogether. I have also dropped any matter which had been over-lengthened as also such portions as appeared to me unnecessary for the narrative. I have also generally removed portions where woman is referred to in derogatory terms. But I have kept some portions of it just to indicate the mind of Tulsidas. So far as I can remember at the moment, these are the principles I worked upon. But you are intelligent enough to discover any other principle not mentioned here from the marks in the book.

Failure has compelled me to do what I was not prepared to do by persuasion. I mean that I have commenced from yesterday therecitation of Gitai in place of the Sanskrit Gita. I realized that nobody learnt Sanskrit. The same old members are there, but even they do not or are unable to study Sanskrit even to the extent of understanding the Gita. Moreover, they were unable to recite it in chorus, and what pained me more was the fact that though the recitation of the whole of the Gita was confined to the morning prayer, still some members walked out as soon as the recitation began. On making an enquiry into the cause of this, I found that it was very trivial. I did not know it before. I found it out only the day before yesterday, and I immediately came to the conclusion that perhaps interest in the Gita might be created more quickly if it was recited in Hindi, Marathi or Gujarati since the people would understand its 1 K. G. Mashruwala, while publishing the letter in Harijan, withheld the first portion of it as not being “absolutely relevant to the present discussion”. The original letter in Gujarati is not available.

2 Metrical rendering of the Gita in Marathi by the addressee, literally, ‘Gita the Mother’.
meaning more easily. I have commenced with Gitai because Marathi holds the place of prominence in this part. So far as the members attending the morning prayer are concerned, they are so few that it would not matter much which language I chose. But the music of Gitai has been felt by me to be very sweet. Maybe, the reason for this is that I have heard it several times recited by Shivaji 1 and I have liked it. Kishorelal’s (Gujarati) translation is there but I have not yet been able to assimilate its music. I have not heard anyone reciting it in a sweet tone. I got an opportunity of hearing it at Bardoli but it was insufficient, and my ear could not adapt itself to it. Haribhau 2 has published the Hindi Gita recently. But I have not yet been able even to examine it and so did not like to touch it. Therefore, I have commenced with Gitai.

The immediate cause for writing this is that I happened to see Shivaji yesterday. If he is going to stay here for some time, it would please me if he can be induced to give at least a week to the Ashram just now during the period of the commencement of this recitation. He can train those who desire in reciting it in the same manner as he does, and pick up his music.

Blessings from
BAPU

Harijan, 16-5-1948

638. LETTER TO SHRIMAN NARAYAN
August 18, 1945

CHI. SHRIMAN,

I did take up your book 3 to read but could not complete it. You are leaving tomorrow morning. I shall not be able to send it before that. I shall send it from either Poona or Bombay. It will be good if you can come to Poona at an early date.

Blessings from
BAPU

[From Hindi]

Panchven Putrako Bapuke Ashirvad, p. 307

1Addressee’s younger brother
2Haribhau Upadhyaya
3Gandhian Constitution
639. NOTE TO KRISHNANATH SHARMA
August 19, 1945

You need not come with me or to me anywhere else. I have understood your position\(^1\). It must be placed before the Working Committee.

M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat: G.N. 8235

640. LETTER TO SARALA DEVI CHOWDHARANI
August 19, 1945

MY DEAR SARLA,

Dipak\(^2\) gives me a sorrowful account of you. Disease like birth and death is part of us. May you have the strength to suffer what comes as your lot.

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

641. LETTER TO KANJI J. DESAI
August 19, 1945

BHAI KANJI,

I liked your letter to Pushpa. She is getting on well. I have been telling her that if at all she is inclined she should go ahead and marry Vrajlal, and bring you peace. But she is firm. She certainly has respect for you. I am sure she will not tarnish your name. She will bring credit to you if she remains firm in her resolve and at the same time merges herself in God. I would advise you to encourage her to stick to her decision. I want you not to be unhappy.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

---

\(^1\) Concerning the situation in Assam about which the addressee had sought Gandhiji’s advice

\(^2\) Dipak Dutt, addressee’s son. Vide also “Letter to Dipak Dutt Chowdhary”, 19-8-1945.
CHI. MUNNALAL,

1. Kanchan does desire sexual pleasure. You also have the desire. It would not be anything strange if you lived together and satisfied your desire. Self-suppression is not going to help. Hence do what you feel is natural for you. Thwarting Kanchan’s desire will harm her. She is good and has the spirit of service. She will lose both these things in the end.

2. Let Hiramani go on as she is doing till Ashadevi arrives.

3. Read Parnerkar’s letter and have a talk with him. About the farm, too, do what is necessary. Take Kishorelal’s help.

4. About Krishnachandra you will have to think. Talk with him frankly and with love regarding his habit of eating and about other matters, too. You should think about your temperamental differences.

5. Let the yarn spun by me be handed over to the Ashram. Get that much quantity spun by me when I arrive there. If the other people spin from the Ashram cotton, the yarn should be credited to the Ashram. What we spin is of course for the Ashram.

6. Whenever you wish to ask me anything about the women, you may do so.

7. You will be able to improve your singing with effort. If you have no time for that, you need not join in the singing at all.

8. Run classes for the Gitai and nothing else.

9. About the expenses here, it is all right that you have bought the ticket. I will not be able to judge better in this matter.

10. Sankaranji may, if he wishes, cook his own meals if he cannot keep good health otherwise.

11. Ramachandran is there only for a short period.

12. The library books can be kept together. Those who want books may ask for them and afterwards return them in good condition.

13. About Ramanbhai, as Krishorelalbhai advises.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 5914. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah
643. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

August 19, 1945

CHI. MU [NNALAL],

I do not insist that you should conduct classes for the Gitai if you do not wish, but I think you are making a mistake.

[2.] I send with this . . ’s letter. The problem about manure in the garden remains.

3. If what I have been saying regarding Kanchan is not correct, do what you think is right, but don’t put off the decision.

4. About Ramanbhai as you wish.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 5916. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

644. LETTER TO DIPAK DUTT CHOWDHARY

August 19, 1945

CHI. DIPAK,

I have your letter. It is good you let me know. You will have arranged whatever treatment was possible. What else can we do? The result is in God’s hands, is it not? What are you doing?

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

645. LETTER TO JAWAHARLAL NEHRU

ON WAY TO BOMBAY,

August 19, 1945

CHI. JAWAHARLAL,

I have received your letter. I know a little bit about the Kashmir branch of the Charkha Sangh. I do not know why the dispensary has been closed down. It is just as well that you wrote to me. I have sent a copy of the letter to Jaju. I am on my way to Bombay. From there I shall go to Poona taking Sardar with me. I cannot say how long I shall be staying there. I shall write again when I hear from Jajuji.

1 Omission as in the source
The Kashmir trip was bound to do you good.
What was the attack on Maulana Saheb?

Blessings from
BAPU

From the Hindi original: Gandhi-Nehru Papers. Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library

646. HOW TO DO IT?

The A. I. V. I. A. has not shown the results it might have. I have often asked myself that question. I try now and here to think aloud and confer with the workers to see what can be done.

We lazily copy the Congress and set up committees and think that we shall thereby popularize and advance the craft of the villages.

We forget that the Congress, being a democratic body, must work democratically and through committees set up by the people from [among] themselves. On the other hand, the A.I.V.I.A. and like bodies are self-formed to work out particular purposes often requiring high technical skill. They collect money from those who appreciate the particular purpose and become trustees for the money to be used therefor. We collect and study the literature on the subject. We look about for and employ experts and if there are none become experts ourselves. The work will make progress in exact proportion to our knowledge, earnestness and industry. The work itself may be unpopular or unknown. We have then to make it popular or known. Such associations all over the world must work whether in countries democratically or autocratically governed. In either case they must work under patronage or in the teeth of opposition. The system of work will be identical under either autocracy or democracy. With us the A. I. S. A., the A. I. V. I. A., the Hindustani Talimi Sangh, etc., though autonomous, are creations of the Congress and, therefore requiring enthusiastic support of all Congressmen and, to the extent that Congressmen represent all India, of Indians throughout the land. But before this can happen we must dot India with experts of the type wanted. Therefore, the first thing is to have a central body of honest experts. There is no other royal road to success. Committees or even agents can show no results unless they are experts who know their work. Can an M.A., however brilliant he may be, introduce, say, the charkha among the villagers, or gur-making from palm trees or manure-making from village refuse including human excreta and cattle dung? We must have experts in these and such other branches. If we had our own government, however inefficient, we would have technical institutes where every one of the useful activities now going on or which were going on even yesterday in the 7,00,000 villages could be studied. Unfortunately, we have not. Hence our associations have also to be such institutes in addition to becoming propagandists. But before we can become the latter, we have to become the former. If I have drawn a correct picture, let us mend even though the mending may be difficult and even hurtful to our pride.

ON THE TRAIN TO BOMBAY, AUGUST 20, 1945

647. FOREWORD TO “THE ECONOMY OF PERMANENCE”

Like his brochure on the Practice and Precepts of Jesus, Dr. Kumarappa’s on The Economy of Permanence is a jail production. It is not as easy to understand as the first. It needs careful reading twice or thrice if it is to be fully appreciated. When I took up the manuscript I was curious to know what it could contain. The opening chapter satisfied my curiosity and led me on to the end without fatigue and yet with profit. This doctor of our village industries shows that only through them we shall arrive at the economy of permanence in the place of that of the fleeting nature we see around us at present. He tackles the question—shall the body triumph over and stifle the soul or shall the latter triumph over and express itself through a perishable body which, with its few wants healthily satisfied, will be free to subserve the end of the imperishable soul? This is “Plain living and high thinking”.

M. K. GANDHI

ON THE TRAIN TO BOMBAY, AUGUST 20, 1945

The Economy of Permanence
648. TELEGRAM TO DIPAK DUTT CAHOWDHARY

BOMBAY,
August 20, 1945

DIPAK CHOWDHARY
8/1 NEW ROAD
ALIPORE, CALCUTTA

GLAD MOTHER PASSED AWAY FROM PAIN TO PEACE LEAVING YOU FREE TO SHOULDER RESPONSIBILITY TO COUNTRY. WROTE YOU YESTERDAY.\(^1\) LOVE.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

649. LETTER TO J. C. KUMARAPPA

BIRLA HOUSE,
BOMBAY,
August 20, 1945

MY DEAR KU.,

Here is your manuscript, my foreword\(^2\) and my article\(^3\). If possible all will go by registered post. The article and the foreword have been carefully written. You may go without anything from me if you disapprove of the article. You have to master at least one craft and acquire a workable knowledge of Hindustani. You can easily make time for both; have your letter-head in Nagari and Urdu scripts adding the Roman if you like. On the existing ones have rubber stamps for Urdu and Nagari.

Love,
In haste,

BAPU

From a photostat: G.N. 10178

\(^1\) Vide “Letter to Dipak Dutt Chowdhary”, 19-8-1945.
\(^2\) Vide “Foreword to The Economy of Permanence”, 20-8-1945.
\(^3\) Vide “How to do it?”, 20-8-1945.
650. LETTER TO CHIMANLAL N. SHAH

BOMBAY,
August 20, 1945

CHI. CHIMANLAL,

You were in my thoughts on the journey. Do not force yourself to do anything. Work done willingly gives satisfaction and peace. It is enough if we perform our dharma whether Sharda's stays or leaves. Remain cheerful and look after your health.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

651. LETTER TO KISHORELAL G. MASHRUWALA
August 20, 1945

CHI. KISHORELAL,

I slept for a long time, and liked it. There were no crowds to pester us on the way. Everyone managed to have some sleep.

It is of course drizzling here. It was good you did not come. If the Poona weather is dry I will send you word to come over. For the present render what help you can there. There are so many problems, small but very delicate. There is the question of the Ashram farm. Munnalal believes that Parnerkar is not able to manage it. Please look into it.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Sharda G. Chokhawala, addressee’s daughter, married to Gordhandas Chokhawala
652. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

August 20, 1945

CHI. MUNNALAL,

We arrived here safely. You should not worry. Have a heart-to-heart talk with Krishnachandra. See Parnerkar about the Ashram farm. Have a talk with Kishorelalbhai. Who is to look after the orchard? It must be kept in good condition. Settle the question of manure. If Parnerkar is short of labour, the Ashram inmates should fill the gap as they did once before. Take care of Hoshiari’s son and also Hoshiari. Both of them should bloom there.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 8432. Also C.W. 5592. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

653. LETTER TO PUSHPA K. DESAI

August 20, 1945

CHI. PUSHPA,

Get fully engrossed in your work there. Take care of your body. If you look upon it as God’s abode, you will see Him in the true sense.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 9261

654. LETTER TO SHARDA AND GORDHANDAS CHOKHAWALA

August 20, 1945

CHI. BABUDI,

You fall ill and cause everyone anxiety. Keep on repeating Ramanama, get well and sing in praise of Ramanama. Chimanlal longs to go to you, but his duty to the Ashram prevents him. You can dictate a letter for him if you can sincerely tell him that you are calm and do not wish for his presence. Shakaribehn’s presence there should be enough for you. I hope she is well and happy.

CHI. GORDHANDAS,

Write to me at Poona.

_Blessings from_

BAPU

From the Gujarati original: C.W. 10059. Courtesy: Sharda G. Chokhawala

---

655. LETTER TO HOSHIARI

_August 20, 1945_

CHI. HOSHIARI,

You will have recovered by now. Both of you should drink plenty of pure water. Read a lot. Write neatly in ink every day. Show it to me when I come. Preserve all that you write. The boy should also write. He should also work and spin.

_Blessings from_

BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

---

656. LETTER TO Y. M. PARNERKAR

_August 20, 1945_

CHI. PARNERKAR,

Have a talk with Kishorelalbhai about the Ashram farm. I do not understand why the inmates of the Ashram now refuse to work for you. You must consider the Goshala as your own. Is there any difficulty in your looking after the Ashram farm? Is there a wolf at large? A search should be made for it. Someone should be on the watch. Now I consider it our dharma to destroy such animals. It will be a different thing if we discover an alternative.

_Blessings from_

BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

---

¹ Sharda Chokhawala’s mother
657. TELEGRAM TO CHAMPA R. MEHTA

BOMBAY,
August 21, 1945

CHAMPABEHN RATILAL
CARE KANTILAL SOLANKI PLEADER
SARANGPUR CHAKLA
AHMEDABAD

MY APPROVAL SUPERFLUOUS, DOCTOR MEHTA¹ HAD BUILT BUNGALOW FOR ASHRAM WITH RIGHT TO HIMSELF TO OCCUPY DURING HIS LIFETIME. THE INTENTION DEED WITH HIM.² IF YOU ALL AGREE I CAN PERHAPS PERSUADE PROSPECTIVE BUYER CANCEL CONTRACT FOR ASHRAM SAKE. HOPE WELL.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library.
Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

658. LETTER TO P. C. JOSHI

BIRLA HOUSE,
MOUNT PLEASANT ROAD,
BOMBAY,
August 21, 1945

DEAR JOSHI,

Advocate Bhulabhai Desai handed me the enclosed opinion yesterday. It is, as you will see, based on the papers I gave him at your instance some time ago.³

Having had the opinion, you have the right to publish it for what it may be worth. The news, almost daily poured into my ears by Congressmen to the effect that the Party is unscrupulous in its methods and that it even resorts to violence, makes it difficult for me to accept the opinion which is after all based on the papers that were in my possession on the date they were handed to the Advocate. But I cannot judge the Party on one-sided evidence. Nor have I the leisure

¹ Dr. Pranjivandas Mehta, addressee’s father-in-law.
² Vide also “Letter to Mangaldas Pakvasa”, 12-6-1945.
³ Vide footnote 4, “Interview to People’s War”, 17-7-1945.
to shoulder the burden of studying the evidence in a manner that would enable me to form an opinion.

The bitterness between the Party and Congressmen, so far as I am aware, is growing. The best course perhaps is for you to consider the position in the light of Congressmen’s opinion about the Party and then do what may appear best to you.

If you propose to publish the enclosed you will please publish this too together with it.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

ENCL. 1
SHRI P. C. JOSHI
RAJ BHUWAN
SANDHURST ROAD, BOMBAY 4

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

659. LETTER TO CHANDRANI
August 21, 1945

CHI. CHAND,

I have your letter. How can I go on writing to you? I do want to write but there is so much work.

Keep yourself fit; only then will you be able to do everything.

Only Sushilabehn or your own heart can tell whether you should do the full course of nursing. The main thing is your own inclination. Do not take the decision in a hurry, but once you take a decision you must stick to it.

We are going to Poona today.

Blessings from

BAPU

CHAND
NAGPUR

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
660. LETTER TO RAMACHANDRA RAO
August 21, 1945

BHAJ RAMACHANDRA RAO,

I have your letter. It is not proper to order a charkha from outside. You must get one made there. In the mean time use a takli. Understand the full meaning of spinning.

Blessings from
BAPU

RAMACHANDRA RAO
MADURA

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

661. LETTER TO PRAYAG DUTT SHUKLA
August 21, 1945

BHAJ PRAYAG DUTT,

Pandit Hrishikeshji did not come or see me. His wife saw me. Please write to me. I am going to Poona today. I shall be staying in Dr. Dinshaw Mehta’s Arogya Bhavan.

Yours,
M. K. GANDHI

PRAYAG DUTT SHUKLA
SITABURDI
NAGPUR

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

662. LETTER TO AMRITLAL V. THAKKAR
August 21/22, 1945

BAPA,

It seems your letter has got lost in my papers. All of a sudden I remembered what it contained, though I cannot recall the whole letter. You are not to work as a clerk at all. That is why I sent the message that I would send Valjibhai’s son. However, that is an old story. Do employ a clerk of your choice and devote the time you save to more important work. I very much like the idea of introducing Hindustani in the office and in the books. Let those who want English go on demanding it. If we cannot or do not introduce such reforms, we shall be betraying the country as well as the Harijans.

There was one thing in my mind which I forgot. Shyamlal on his own has reduced his salary by Rs. 100. I like the decision but what is surprising about it? I have thanked him for it. But I wanted to inform the general body and thank him at the meeting. However, I could not do that, but you may, as Secretary of the organization, inform the members and add that the President had thanked him as soon as he got the news; that he wanted to announce it at the meeting but forgot; and that he had therefore written to you to inform everyone. Write something on these lines.

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

663. LETTER TO AMRITLAL T. NANAVATI

MEHTA AROGYA BHAVAN, POONA,
August 22, 1945

CHI. AMRITLAL,

Chi. Abha is going to appear for the examination. If she has to go to Bombay she can appear for it there. However, if you appoint Dr. Sushila Nayyar as the examiner she can appear from here and expense can be avoided. You will have to send the question paper, as also the necessary instructions. I hope you are well.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI AMRITLAL NANAVATI
GUJARAT VIDYAPITH
AHMEDABAD

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1Vide “Letter to Shyamlal”, 24-7-1945.
664. LETTER TO NARAHARI D. PARIKH

POONA,
August 22, 1945

CHI. NARAHARI,

I read that article in Bombay itself. I did not wish to suggest any changes and so I did not write.

Vanamala is quite cheerful. Manu also, I would say, is all right. The news has reached her. Let us see how it affects her. I met Mathuradas. He was happy.

I hope you are getting good help from Manibhai.
Write to me about Vina.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: S.N. 9136

665. LETTER TO TRIBHUVANDAS SHAH

August 22, 1945

BHAI TRIBHUVANDAS1,

I have received your books. I have gone through your instructions. The big question is when I shall be able to read those books. I very much wish to but a man can never fulfill all his wishes. Isn’t it baffling?

Yours,
M. K. GANDHI

DR. TRIBHUVANDAS SHAH
BARODA

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Author of Prachin Hindustan
666. LETTER TO Y. M. PARNERKAR

August 22, 1945

CHI. PARNERKAR,

I believe that you understand Gujarati and can read it with ease. Let me know if it is not so. Have this read out to you. Do something about the wolf. The manure heap should go. The Goshala should become an ideal goshala. Keep the place perfectly clean. Our water should be drinkable. Mosquitoes and flies should easily go. The roads should be in good condition. The hill is in our possession. Those who go for walks there should bring stones from there. Do you know that in this way I had made a mountain of stones in the Mahila Ashram? All of it came in useful there.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

667. LETTER TO KISHORELAL G. MASHRUWALA

August 22, 1945

CHI. KISHORELAL,

It was really good that I did not bring you along or you did not come. It was drizzling when we arrived here. It is cold and also humid here. The weather is cloudy. The place is crowded too. Sardar has of course taken rooms for you in the mill area nearly. But of what use are they? I will write to you if the weather becomes dry. Do not worry about my work. Sushila, Manilal, Narayan and others help me. They will to some extent make up for your absence.

A letter to Ramnarayan is enclosed. Please send it to his address. He must have given it to someone in the Ashram.

Hope you and Gomati1 are well.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1Addressee’s wife
668. LETTER TO RAMNARAYAN CHOWDHARY
August 22, 1945

CHI. RAMNARAYAN,

I have gone through the English part of what you have sent. Why did you have to write in English? Hindustani would have been sufficient. The English needs improvement. You must leave that to others. I shall try to read the Hindustani also. I shall read the scheme of Goseva Sangh also before getting it published. Show it to Parnerkar and Satis Babu and, if possible, to a veterinarian. I had a few pages read out to me by Sushilabehn. She has pointed out some technical mistakes. The treatment of the subject matter is good. You have said in brief all that you could say. If I want to return it shall I send it to Ahmedabad? I understand that you have not kept a copy.

You suggest boycotting the buffalo. This you will not have got from my writings. My view is that our preference should be for the Cow. Doing this will save both. At present there is shortage of milk, so we need both. Preferring the cow saves both, preferring the buffalo destroys both.

I hope all of you are well.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI RAMNARAYANJI
AHMEDABAD

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

669. LETTER TO VINA CHATTERJEE
August 22, 1945

CHI. VINA,

I often think of you. I hope you are well there. Now it is obligatory for you to get well and remain well. I hope you are cheerful. Sailen will be well. Abha is with me.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
670. TELEGRAM TO DIPAK DUTT CHOWDHARY

August 23, 1945

DIPAK CHOWDHARY
8/1 NEW ROAD
ALIPORE, CALCUTTA

MY PRESENCE IMPOSSIBLE. DO BEST YOU CAN.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

671. LETTER TO ANNE MARIE PETERSEN

POONA,
August 23, 1945

MY DEAR MARIA.

Your half angry and half loving letter. Why are you so foolish as to take in what a third party says? Kasturba is a wholly non-sectarian organization. Who was the third party who gave you to understand that only Hindus could apply? The thing has to come before me. It has not yet. If you have applied send me a copy of the application too. You know that Aryanayakum is a Christian? Raihana Tyabji is a trustee. So much for the Trust.

When there is independence, why should you fear the majority? If you have God with you and the majority have not, should you still fear? And if both have God between them who should fear whom? Is there then any question of majority and minority?

Let us pray.

Love.

BAPU

MISS MARIA PETERSEN
SEVA MANDIR
PORTO NOVO (S. I.)

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 The addressee, a former member of the Danish Mission, had founded an ashram—a school for girls—at Porto Novo.

2 Kasturba Gandhi National Memorial Trust
672. LETTER TO SHYAMLAL
August 23, 1945

BHAJ SHYAMLAL,

Herewith the correspondence with Miss Petersen. Let me know if you have some papers of hers.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI SHYAMLAL
BAJAJWADI
WARDHA

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Gourtesy: Pyarelal

673. LETTER TO RADHA GANDHI
August 23, 1945

CHI. RADHIKA.

I have your letter. It is all right that you sent a telegram. I am sorry to know that Santok is not well. I was expecting you all.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI RADHA GANDHI
PLOT 601 E, VINCENT ROAD
MATUNGA, BOMBAY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Gourtesy: Pyarelal

674. LETTER TO ANAND T. HINGORANI
August 23, 1945

CHI. ANAND,

I have your letter. You have to go inward to the heart and find peace there. What is the use of the peace you may find with me and which may then be lost? Stay on there, doing what you can and be at peace.

Sushilabehn is in Bombay at present. She will be coming today or tomorrow.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a microfilm of the Hindi: Courtesy: National Archives of India and Anand T. Hingorani

1 Daughter of Maganlal Gandhi, who was married to Dipak Dutt Chowdhary
2 Addressee’s mother
675. LETTER TO GHANSHYAM SINGH GUPTA

August 23, 1945

Bhai Ghanshyam Singh,

I received your letter here. I have gone through it. How long can I go on pointing out the mistakes? I am of the opinion that you should do whatever you can. Now Deshbandhu and Brijlal have gone there. Let us see what they do. After that you can come to me if you want to. I would advise you to do on your own what you feel is proper.

Blessings from

BAPU

[PS.]

After writing the above I got your letter. I have made some corrections. You may make them if you think they are proper and send it.

BAPU

SRI GHANSHYAM SINGH GUPTA
SPEAKER, DRUG (C.P.)

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

676. LETTER TO DR. GOPICHAND BHARGAVA

August 23, 1945

Bhai Gopichand,

Read this and tell me what is the truth.

I have not given any reply to Lalchandji.

Blessings from

BAPU

DR. GOPICHAND BHARGAVA
LAHORE

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
677. LETTER TO MADHAVI KUTTI AMMA NAYANAR

August 23, 1945

DEAR SISTER,

Nanavati spoke to me about you. If you must come, do so after I return to Sevagram but please write to me first.

Blessings from

M. K. GANDHI

SMT. MADHAVI KUTTI AMMA NAYANAR
MEENAKSHI VILAS
OTTAPALAM, MALABAR

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

678. LETTER TO SUSHILA PURI

August 23, 1945

CHI SUSHILA PURI,

I have your letter. Study well, serve the people and do whatever Mother tells you to do.

Blessings from

M. K. GANDHI

SHRI SUSHILA PURI
DEEP IVAS
40 NISBAT ROAD
LAHORE

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

679. LETTER TO AMRIT KAUR

POONA,

August 24, 1945

CHI. AMRIT,

Your two letters at the same time.
What a tragedy you have related !!!
Subhas Bose has died well.¹ He was undoubtedly a patriot

¹ Subhas Chandra Bose had been reported dead in an air crash on August 23, 1945.
though misguided.

Your gum has caused much trouble. I blame the dentist. Do let me know the train you will come by.

P[yarelal] is in Bombay. S[ushila] will tell you all about him.

Love.

BAPU

From the original: C.W. 3698. Courtesy: Amrit Kaur. Also G.N. 6507

680. LETTER TO C. P. RAMASWAMI AIYAR

August 24, 1945

DEAR FRIEND,

I thank you for your letter. The “Selection” has not yet been received. I suppose, it will be in due course.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

SIR C. P. RAMASWAMI AIYAR
DIWAN SAHEB
SHAKHIVILAS
TRIVANDRUM

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

681. LETTER TO LAWRENCE MCKENNER

SEVAGRAM, WARDHA (INDIA),
August 24, 1945

DEAR FRIEND,

“The Kingdom of God is within you” is all-sufficient. Follow it out in action and you need nothing else. But if you will read anything of Hinduism, read Swami Vivekanand’s works to be had there.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

LAWRENCE MCKENNER JR.
2132 HIGH ST.
OAKLAND 1, CALIFORNIA

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
682. LETTER TO GROVER

August 24, 1945

DEAR GROVER,

You will pardon me for keeping your wire unanswered so long. You should blame my hesitation and preoccupation for the delay.

I know the answer but I cannot give it just now at least. The world is not in a hurry to know my views. I therefore return your prepaid slip to enable you to collect the unused deposit.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

683. LETTER TO AMRITLAL T. NANAVATI

August 24, 1945

CHI. AMRITLAL,

I received your letter yesterday. I showed it to Kaka and he will write to you. Vanamala is here and she says she is also an examiner. This time there are a good number of candidates.

My going to Bengal is uncertain. My stay here will be for about three months. I have written to the widow of Nayar that she can come to Sevagram when I go there. I shall have to go to Madras in December.

Blessings to you and Maganlal from

BAPU

SHRI AMRITLAL NANAVATI
GUJARAT VIDYAPITH
AHMEDABAD
B.B. & C.I. RLY.

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
684. LETTER TO MESSRS BACHHARAJ & CO., LTD.

NATURE CURE CLINIC,
6 TODIWALA ROAD,
POONA,
August 24, 1945

DEAR SIRS,

Please find enclosed herein the following two cheques:

1. No. KC 72666 for Rs. 500 (Rs. five hundred) on the Bank of India, Ltd., Kalkadevi Branch.
2. No HO 783627 on the Central Bank of India, Ltd., for Rs. 101 (Rs. one hundred one).

The above two cheques are to be credited to Sevagram account. Please acknowledge receipt of same.

Yours truly,

Encls. 2 cheques

MESSRS BACHHARAJ & CO., LTD.
51 MAHATMA GANDHI ROAD, BOMBAY

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

685. LETTER TO CHIMANLAL N. SHAH

August 24, 1945

CHI. CHIMANLAL,

Sharda is in the hands of God, and He will do what He pleases. It seems she has both typhoid and malaria. If she is destined to live, she will survive.

Kelkar’s¹ letter is enclosed. Provide for the expenses on account of the two patients, as he says, in excess of the amount already sanctioned for him. Can pay...² is for three months.

The doctor may go to Akola.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10640

¹ M. S. Kelkar
² Some words are illegible here.
686. LETTER TO M. S. KELKAR
August 24, 1945

Bhai Kelkar,

Yours of the 22nd arrived today. About the bicycle it is difficult. If some friend sends you one you may take it. You can charge to the Ashram the expense you have mentioned on the two patients. The decision you have taken to go to Akola now is right.

Blessings from
BAPU

Dr. Kelkar
C/o Shri Vinoba
Nalwadi, Wardha

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

687. LETTER TO KRISHNAVARMA
August 24, 1945

Bhai Krishnavarma,

I have your letter. Give Mama full liberty. Tell him: “Bapu will worry about you but will not restrain you. You may leave at your own risk. Do not expect to come back. May God help you.” You did much for Mama. Now I do not want you to carry that burden.

I have not seen the prohibitory order concerning Kamrej but if it is what you say, I would certainly not like it.

Blessings from
BAPU

Dr. Krishnavarma
Nature Cure Hospital
Malad

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
688. LETTER TO LAKSHMI

August 24, 1945

CHI. LAKSHMI¹.

Balasundarambehn writes to say that you have given birth to a son. May you both live long and serve the country. Only yesterday you were a little girl who used to cheat me. Now you have become a mother. What a miracle!

Blessings from
BAPU

MRS. SATYAMURTHI
CAMP HARI PAD MATOM
KOTTAYAM (S.I.,)

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

689. LETTER TO RANGANAYAKI DEVI

August 24, 1945

CHI. RANGANAYAKI,

I have your letter. God willing I shall be going to Madras in December. We shall meet then.

Amtul Salaam is doing work of service in Bengal. I am at present here with the Sardar.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI RANGANAYAKI DEVI
FIRST HOUSE
SHRIRANGAM (DIST. TRICHI)

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Daughter of S. Satyamurthi
690. LETTER TO NAWAB SAHEB

POONA,
August 25, 1945

DEAR NAWAB SAHEB,

I am sorry we could not meet early. How nice it would have been if we could have discussed things of common interest! Let me hope it would be still possible.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

(BY HAND) SHUAIB QUreshi
POONA

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

691. LETTER TO DR. B. N. Sardesai
August 25, 1945

Bhai Sardesai,

I thank you for the books you have sent.

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

DR. B. N. Sardesai
ORIENTAL BOOK AGENCY
POONA - 2

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

692. LETTER TO RAMNARAYAN CHOWDHARY
August 25, 1945

CHI. RAMNARAYAN,

I hope you have received my letter. I sent it to the Ashram as we did not have your address here. I am sending this with Kakasaheb’s son Chi. Bal. He is also-bringing your essay.

I have gone through everything. The scheme about Goseva Sangh did not appeal to me. Even if we do something on those lines, it will remain only on paper. We want to have a perfect Goshala. The tannery should function with it. Today we do not have a single worker. of calibre. There is a very big Goshala near Ahmedabad. At one time it was to be handed over to us. There is one in the city. It is known as Pinjrapole. Go and see it. Learn tanning also when you are well. There are lots of neem trees there. I have sent an article\(^1\) for the Gram Udyog Patrika. Read it.

_Blessings from_

_BAPU_

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

693. LETTER TO DR. SYED MAHMUD

_August 25, 1945_

_BHAI MAHMUD_,

I have received your letter. You are doing good work. Mahboob is rendering service silently. Why is Syed not improving? Habib can work only for his party. He is an honest man. Hence, wherever he is, he will always do good work.

Ramzan\(^2\) is not for you. As I understand it, fasting is forbidden during illness. I do not know what Kripalani has written. I guess it may be something about resignation. Send in the resignation, or, after seeing the letter, do what you think proper.

Begum Saheba must be well. Your Nagari handwriting is very good.

_Blessings from_

_BAPU_

DR. SYED MAHMUD

CHHAPRA (BIHAR)\(^3\)

From a photostat of the Urdu: G.N. 5094. Also Pyarelal Papers

\(^1\) _Vide_ “How to do it?”, 20-8-1945.

\(^2\) The ninth month of the Hijri year in which Muslims observe fast during daytime.

\(^3\) The address is from Pyarelal Papers.
694. LETTER TO C. RAJAGOPALACHARI

POONA,
August 26, 1945

MY DEAR C. R.,

There is no other person as well-informed and able as you are to answer Dr. Ambedkar’s indictment of the Congress on the question. Please therefore make time and send your answer to Bapa as early as you can. Love.

BAPU

From a photostat: G.N. 2109

695. LETTER TO J. C. KUMARAPPA

August 26, 1945

MY DEAR KU.,

Your letter. Of course you can have ‘D. D. V. I.’ And you have proved your title to the two degrees far more than those who receive university equivalents. Why should they have the monopoly?

You are getting on. My article should considerably lighten your administrative work which sends up b.p. The other will put it in its place.

Yours,

BAPU

DR. J. C. KUMARAPPA
“D.D.V.I”
MAGANWADI
WARDHA

From a photostat: G.N. 10179

1 In his book What Congress and Gandhi Have Done to the Untouchables, B. R. Ambedkar had refuted the Congress claim to represent the untouchables and asserted that the Harijan Sevak Sangh was a political charity which planned “to kill the untouchables by kindness”.

406 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
696. LETTER TO RAMDAS GANDHI

August 26, 1945

CHI. RAMDAS,

I have your letter. I am happy to know that you are well. Write to me in Hindustani and learn the Nagari and the Urdu scripts equally well.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

697. TELEGRAM TO AMIYANATH BOSE

August 27, 1945

I have approached Report with suspicion. If you share suspicion announce and avoid ceremony.

GANDHI

From the original: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

698. LETTER TO BHATNAGAR

Poona,

August 27, 1945

DEAR BHATNAGAR,

As you see I am in Poona and shall be for some time. You can go to Sevagram and meet Shri Ramachandran of Talimi Sangh and show him this. If the work there pleases you and if you suit him, he will take you. Show him this.

You must not hate the world.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

SHRI BHATNAGAR
C/o Post Master, Lahore

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 This was in reply to the addressee’s telegram dated August 26 which read: “Kindly advise us about uncle’s shraddha ceremony and observance of period of mourning.”

2 Presumably about the death of Sabhas Chandra Bose. Vide also “Letter to Amrit Kaur”, 24-8-1945.
699. LETTER TO BHAGWANJI A. MEHTA

August 27, 1945

Bhai Bhagwanji,

I went through your 20 points today. You have apologized thrice. But you were pardoned even without your asking. Remember the lawyer's maxim: Do not give judgment till you have examined all the evidence. Your words have no effect on me as you have formed a habit of jumping to conclusions without examining things. The same is true of your last letter. This postcard needs no reply.

I am sure, God is.

Remembrance of God from
M. K. Gandhi

Shri Bhagwanji Anupchand, Vakil
Raikot

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

700. LETTER TO ADAM ALI

August 27, 1945

Bhai Adam Ali,

I have your letter as also the pictures. Thanks. The picture of the charkha is an advertisement, but that of the Buddha is good.

Yours,
M. K. Gandhi

Hasan Ali Daubhai
21 Periya Mistri Street
Madras, G.T.

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
701. LETTER TO KANJI J. DESAI

August 27, 1945

Bhai Kanji,

I have your letter. Come on any day except Monday. I will find some time. If it is not very inconvenient you may come alone first and see me and if it is necessary bring Pushpa later.

M. K. Gandhi

Kanji Jethabhai,
Raider's Chawl, Second Floor
Old Hanuman Gali
Cross Lane Road 2
Bombay

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

702. LETTER TO KISHORELAL G. MASHRUWALA

August 27, 1945

Chhi. Kishorelal,

I have your letter. The weather is still moist. The house is near the mill and it is possible to find something there. But I do not have the courage to call you here till the weather completely clears. We do not want to fall out of the frying pan into the fire. Still I will call you when it completely stops raining here and that too in the hope that the change of air will do good to both of you. I do not want to take work from you here. Valji comes daily. His competent son is also prepared to render some service but I have not entrusted him with any work. There is no work which can be given to him.

I understand about Parnerkar.

You have done what you could. It seems that your recommendations cannot be implemented now. Everyone has land and a house, how can they be removed? Moreover, can those who are true workers stay at a distance? Why should they be servants? It is a matter of shame and sorrow that they are retained as servants. The number of those who are retained as servants will not be reduced by their staying in different places. Only the attitude of everyone should be changed. If that happens the question of staying separately or in different places should not arise. Yes, one thing is certain. It will be a long time before people’s nature changes. In the mean time there will be a scramble for servants and that will do good to no one. However, if I have understood your recommendations they may be applied in future but not to the organizations which are functioning today. There was and is a purpose in merging all the organizations, although whatever has happened was only a drifting of the current. Do let me know if there is a flaw in the argument. If the present situation cannot be changed I want to understand the whole position.

I hope both of you are keeping good health.

Blessings from

BAPU

[PS.]

Sushila has arrived. Manu has run away. She is with her sister in Bombay. Let us see what happens. There is no change in Sardar’s condition.

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

703. LETTER TO BRIJ BIHARI AVASTHI

August 27, 1945

Bhai Avasthi,

Forget me so far as giving of messages, etc., is concerned.

Yours,

M. K. Gandhi

Brijbihari Avasthi
Gandhi Seva Samiti
General Ganj
Kanpur

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

704. NOTE TO DEVPRAKASH NAYYAR

August 27, 1945

I have read the entire report1. As a report it is excellent. It is impossible to correct it as I do not know what took place. If we must give the report it ought to contain nothing but the truth. What I said during my talk does not apply to the report.

1 Of the Adult Education Committee
You should have given the report in Hindustani and in the Urdu script if not in the Nagari script. You should use English only where it is necessary. It was unnecessary to have the report in English. We have to do this if all the members are to learn Hindustani.

M. K. GANDHI

From a microfilm of the Hindi: Documents relating to Gandhiji. Courtesy: National Archives of India

705. LETTER TO HOSHIARI
August 27, 1945

CHI. HOSHIARI,
I am happy to know that you and Gajraj are keeping good health. You will certainly get rid of constipation if you drink plenty of water.

Everything is all right here.

Blessings to you both from

BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

706. LETTER TO SHRIKRISHNADAS JAJU
August 27, 1945

BHAJ JAJUJI,
What you have written about the Punjab branch is correct. Appoint Sohanlalji.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
707. LETTER TO L AVANYAPRABHA DUTT
August 27, 1945
DEAR SISTER,
I have your letter about my visit to Bengal. I am considering what I should do.

Yours,
M. K. GANDHI
SHRI LAVANYAPRABHA DUTT
B. P. C. C.
10 SUBURBAN SCHOOL ROAD
BHAWANIPUR POST
CALCUTTA

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

708. LETTER TO P. C. GHOSH
August 27, 1945
BHAI PROFULLA,
(1) Read this. Is it all right? What has to be done?
(2) Should I visit Calcutta only in November and not before?
(3) How is your health?
(4) What about Amtul Salaam?

Blessings from
BAPU

[PS.] I have your letter. I must go to Madras on December 11. So if I am to go to Calcutta only after November 15, then it can be only in January. Let us see what happens. I will not go in October.

BAPU
DR. PROFULLA CHANDRA GHOSH
14/8 GARIOHAT ROAD
BALLYGUNJE, CALCUTTA

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
709. LETTER TO PARASRAM TAHILRAMANI

August 27, 1945

BHAI PARASRAM,

I have your letter¹. I will try to do all that I can. Hope your health is good.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI PARASRAM TAHILRAMANI
S. P. C. C.
KARACHI

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

710. LETTER TO GHANSHYAM SINGH GUPTA

August 27, 1945

BHAI GHANSHYAM SINGH.

Read this.² If it is to be removed in six months, then it would be better to postpone the satyagraha.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI GHANSHYAM SINGH GUPTA
SPEAKER
DRUG

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Seeking Gandhiji’s help in getting the satyagraha in connection with the ban on Satyarth Prakash postponed during the period of elections; vide the following item.
² Vide the preceding item.
711. LETTER TO T. PRAKASAM

August 27, 1945

BHAJ PRAKASAM,

I have your letter. The students performed a good play. Let us hope that they will display in real life what they have depicted in the play. Let us see how much Sardar benefits.

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

19 RAJABAHADUR MUDALIAR STREET
T. NAGAR, MADRAS

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

712. LETTER TO VINAYAK RAO

August 27, 1945

BHAJ VINAYAK RAO,

I have your letter. Whatever I do or have done has been impelled by a feeling of dharma. There is no room for gratitude in it. Please let me know whatever may be the outcome.

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

SHRI VINAYAK RAOJI
BAR-AT-LAW
JAMBAGH, HYDERABAD (DN.)

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
713. LETTER TO CHIMANLAL N. SHAH.

August 28, 1945

CHI. CHIMANLAL,

I have given you quite a lot of work. Take care of your health in whatever you do. See that Shakaribehn also does not lose her health through overwork. See about Anna¹ and Kamala². If the two work sincerely, they can do very good work.

Tell Govinda Reddi that I had no time for talk with him. I cannot tell you definitely when I shall return.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10641

714. LETTER TO A. PARTHASARATHY

POONA,
August 28, 1945

BHAIPARTHASARATHY.

I have your letter. Now you should put all your questions before the Working Committee.

M. K. GANDHI

SHRI A. PARTHASARATHY
KODURU, (CUDAPPAH DIST.)

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Harihar Sharma and his wife
² ibid
715. LETTER TO GORDHANDAS CHOKHAWALA

August 28/29, 1945

CHI. GORDHANDAS,

I have your letter. It made me very happy. NOW Babudi has to be very careful about her diet. She will gain strength speedily if she does not make a mistake. Since the poison has passed out of the body all the other diseases should go. Shakaribehn’s joy will be limitless.

Blessings from
BAPU

GORDHANDAS CHOKHAWALA
SURAT

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

716. MESSAGE TO AMERICA¹

[On or before August 29, 1945]²

In spite of my disinclination to answer the question like the one put to me by Mr. Emanuel Celler, I feel that I shall be wanting in courtesy, if I do not meet Mr. Celler’s wishes. The best way for America to assist India’s struggle for independence is to study the question, so as not to be misled by the untruth that is being spread by British Agency at a great cost about India. Americans have to get out of the way of her struggle. For the rest, India has to fight her own battle of independence which she is trying to secure by a non-violent technique.

The Bombay Chronicle, 30-8-1945

¹ This was conveyed to Emanuel Celler, member of the United States House of Representatives, through D. F. Karaka, special correspondent of The Bombay Chronicle in New York. Emanuel Celler had asked how “we in the United States can aid in hastening the attainment of India’s independence”.

² The report appeared under the date-line “Wednesday” which was August 29.
717. LETTER TO J. C. KUMARAPPA

POONA,
August 29, 1945

DEAR KUMARAPPA,

I have signed both and passed on as suggested by you.

Love.

BAPU

DR. J. C. KUMARAPPA
MAGANWADI
WARDHA, C. P.

From a photostat: G.N. 10180

718. LETTER TO MAURICE FRYDMAN

CAMP POONA,
[August 29, 1945]\(^1\)

What is to be said to you! You are a law unto yourself, ever changing. Promises are as easily made as broken. This is all bad.

Love.

BAPU

From a photostat: G.N. 46

---

\(^1\) This is a postscript to Sushila Nayyar’s letter to the addressee dated August 29.

\(^1\) ibid
719. LETTER TO CHANDRAKANT KOTAI

August 29, 1945

Bhai Chandrakant,

I have your letter. Science is certainly necessary. The Congress is giving support to all its branches. The Charkha Sangh is making much use of it. Science is a wide term. What is one to do if scientists ignore the science of the charkha?

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI CHANDRAKANT KOTAI
TULSI BHUWAN
ROOM 43, 3RD FLOOR
CHITTARANJAN AVENUE
CALCUTTA

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

720. LETTER TO JAYANT SANGHAVI

August 29, 1945

Bhai Jayant Sanghavi,

I have the letter signed by you and others. I would suggest you all read my writings and you will easily get the reply.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI HIRALAL M. PARIKH
C/O BHARAT LIGHT HOUSE
PAYDHUNI
BOMBAY-3

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

721. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

August 29, 1945

Chi. Munnalal,

I got your letter. Yes, let Krishnachandra be the manager. Everybody, however, should know that the set-up remains unchanged. Viceroyys and other officers change but the set-up remains the same.
One can understand it. Though they have demoniacal characteristics they can still remain united. What would be our characteristics?

I hope Kanchan is well.

Think over and decide these points before the taking over of the farm.

From which place will you buy the bullocks?

Who will be the farm-supervisor?

Do we pay the labourers more than the market-rate?

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 8440. Also C.W. 5593. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

722. LETTER TO V. L. MEHTA

POONA,
August 29, 1945

Bhai Vai kunth,

Is Bharat Bank good? I am scared of a new bank. However, if you have trust in it you should obtain other signatures. I am signing this because of my faith in you.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

723. LETTER TO KANCHAN M. SHAH

August 29, 1945

Chi. Kanchan,

How are you getting along? Do not lose heart. Make your body strong.

Your work is different from that of the other women and, therefore, requires a different approach.

Do you give any time to study?

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 8264. Also C.W. 6988. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

VOL. 87 : 29 MAY, 1945 - 29 AUGUST, 1945  419
724. LETTER TO GANGARAM

August 29, 1945

BHAI GANGARAM,

I have your letter.

You have written at great length. Find out everything from my articles.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 231

725. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA

August 29, 1945

CHI. KRISHNACHANDRA,

You are going to be the manager from the 1st. It is good. Remember that whether the manager lives or dies, changes or continues, the management remains the same.

Is your manner of eating different in any way? If it is, think over it. Even the manner of eating affects one’s digestion and also culture. One man swallows food like birds, another gobbles like animals. We are neither animals nor birds. Human beings chew and eat. In fact, it looks bad if one eats in a careless manner or makes a sound while others are eating. Think about it.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4523
726. LETTER TO GHALIB

August 29, 1945

BHAI GHALIB,

I am sorry to know about Zohra. Please give her the enclosed letter. I had received Dr. Abdul Huq’s reply immediately. I had kept it with me thinking that Zohra would come here. I saw Shuaib Qureshi the day before yesterday and talked to him. He said it might be possible to persuade Dr. Huq if all of you could accommodate yourselves in the women’s wing of Dar-us-salaam. Can this be done? A copy of Dr. Huq’s letter is enclosed.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

727. LETTER TO ZOHRA ANSARI

August 29, 1945

DAUGHTER ZOHRA,

You fell ill and went away without seeing me. Did you receive my letter? You did not inform me about it. Why are you so scared? You must be brave.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
728. LETTER TO KISHANDAS BEGRAJ

August 29, 1945

BHAJ KISHANDAS,

I have your letter. You do not understand a joke. I have often said that the journalists deserve to be shot. The beauty of it is that no one was shot nor did anyone imagine he would be shot. They took my remarks in good humour. The cameraman handed [the camera] to an old man like me and then took it back. I took it from him deliberately. I did well in doing so. Both gestures were non-violent.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI KISHANDAS BEGRAJ
C/O NEW ASIATIC INSURANCE
18 HENAM MANSION
MAHATMA GANDHI ROAD
KARACHI

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

729. LETTER TO PARACHURE SHASTRI

August 29, 1945

SHASTRIJI,

I have your letter. Do not go anywhere. Stay in Dattapur and end your life there. You are rendering service there.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI PARACHURE SHASTRI
DATTAPUR

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
730. LETTER TO S. NIJALINGAPPA

August 29, 1945

BHAJ NIJALINGAPPA,

I have your letter. Now the Working Committee and the States People’s Conference are functioning. Do you think I should say something? This question deserves consideration. Write to both.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

731. LETTER TO Y. M. PARNERKAR

August 29, 1945

CHI. PARNERKAR,

I do not think that your letter is long. The subject matter required that much.

What can be done if you can’t sit together and make up your minds? What will you do if I die? Will you all be separated from each other? The Goshala, the Talimi Sangh, the Charkha Sangh and the Ashram are together because they were all conceived by one man—other two exist separately merely by chance. They could both have been located at one place. As far as the site is concerned the Ashram and the Goshala should coexist. This has to be thought over. I have liked your letter and so sent it to the Ashram. Do think over the matter if you can. But if it is not possible leave it. It can’t be solved by devoting more time to it. We must know the subject is beyond our ken if we have to devote too much time to it. We have first hand experience of this in arithmetic.

Blessings from

BAPU

SEVAGRAM ASHRAM
WARDHA

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
732. LETTER TO PUSHPA K. DESAI

August 29, 1945

CHI. PUSHPA,

I have your letter. You should definitely not write to Rajani just now. Your father and his relatives have just left me, and I am now writing to you. It is nine o’clock at night. If you wish, I will write to Rajani. If you want me to write, send me his address. I showed your letter to your father. He does not trust Rajani. He would like you to marry Vrajlal. He says the latter is ready to observe brahmacharya till you desire otherwise. He will not act against your will. Nor will he interfere with your prayers and worship. Manibehn has also seen a letter from Vrajlal to this effect. If this is true, such a marriage will not prove an obstacle to you in your striving for a vision of Krishna. Vrajlal will be happy and so will be your parents and other well-wishers. I tell you on the basis of my own experience that there will be no harm in agreeing to the proposed marriage. Only, you should have genuine bhakti. Reply to me immediately.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 9262

733. NOTE TO SHRIKRISHNA NATH SHARMA

[On or after August 29, 1945]

I know the situation in Assam. I am extremely busy these days. How can I give you any time? Discuss everything with Kakasaheb.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 8236

---

1 Devotion

2 The addressee, in order to acquaint Gandhiji with the situation in Assam, had requested him to spare fifteen to twenty minutes of his time.

3 This note is written on the addressee’s letter dated August 29, 1945.
LETTER FROM JAIRAMDAS DAULATRAM TO ANAND T. HINGORANI

PANCHGANI, June 10, 1945

DEAR BROTHER,

You must have received my letter sent from here. Your letter of the 3rd June addressed to Bapu was received by him today. There is a great pressure of work on him, so he has asked me to reply to it.

Bapu said that he had also received your earlier letter, but owing to rush of work he could not send a reply. After coming here I am better able to realize what a tremendous burden of work rests on him and how he can deal with it only bit by bit on account of his reduced capacity. There is no quick disposal of work as before. Besides, the present happenings in the country also take up much of his time.

About the “Daily Thoughts”, Bapu inquired whether they would be published in Hindi only or there would also be English rendering simultaneously. If there is to be an English translation, then he will like to see it himself and this task he will not be able to shoulder at present. I do not exactly remember what we had decided about the English translation. So please write to me by return of post. If it is only the Hindi edition, then there will be no difficulty in Bapu’s writing a preface to it. Perhaps it would be easier for him to find time for it.

As regards the questions you had sent to Bapu in respect of your book “To the Statesmen of the World”, Bapu says that he would have gladly answered them, but that at the present moment his mind is not disposed to undertake that burden either. You will, therefore, have to do without his answer to your questions.

I had spoken to Bapu regarding the Navajivan and the “Gandhi Series”. He advised me that since Naraharibhai was here, I should personally hear what he has to say. I had, therefore, a brief talk with him last evening and will have further discussion with him again today. Then we shall see where the matter stands.

Have you got enough supply of paper for bringing out your new book “To the Statesmen”? I learn that the Government is increasing the paper quota. How far is it true? Do write all the news about yourself. How about Hassa?

I am enclosing herewith a few lines from Bapu.

Many loves.

Yours,

JAIRAM

From a microfilm of the Sindhi: Courtesy: National Archives of India and Anand T. Hingorani

APPENDIX II

SPEECH BROADCAST BY THE VICEROY

June 14, 1945

I have been authorized by His Majesty’s Government to place before Indian political leaders proposals designed to ease the present political situation and to advance India towards her goal of full self-government. These proposals are at the present moment being explained to Parliament by the Secretary of State for India. My intention in this broadcast is to explain to you the proposals, the ideas underlying them, and the method by which I hope to put them into effect.

This is not an attempt to obtain or impose a constitutional settlement. His Majesty’s Government had hoped that the leaders of the Indian parties would agree amongst themselves on a settlement of the communal issue, which is the main stumbling-block; but this hope has not been fulfilled.

In the mean time, India has great opportunities to be taken and great problems to be solved, which require a common effort by the leading men of all parties. I, therefore, propose, with the full support of His Majesty’s Government, to invite Indian leaders, both of Central and Provincial politics, to take counsel with me with a view to the formation of a new Executive Council more representative of organized political opinion. The proposed new Council would represent the main communities and would include equal proportions of caste Hindus and Muslims. It would work, if formed, under the existing Constitution. But it would be an entirely Indian Council, except for the Viceroy and the Commander-in-Chief, who would retain his position as War Member. It is also proposed that the portfolio of External Affairs, which has hitherto been held by the Viceroy, should be placed in charge of an Indian Member of Council, so far as the interests of British India are concerned.

A further step proposed by His Majesty’s Government is the appointment of a \[1\] Vide “Telegram to Private Secretary to Viceroy”, 14-6-1945; “Telegram to Lord Wavell”, 15-6-1945; “Statement to the press”, 15-6-1945 and “Interview to associated Press of India”, 30-6-1945.

British High Commissioner in India, as in the Dominions, to represent Great Britain's commercial and other such interests in India.

Such a new Executive Council will, you realize, represent a definite advance on the road to self-government. It will be almost entirely Indian, and the Finance and Home Members will for the first time be Indians, while an Indian will also be charged with the management of India's Foreign Affairs. Moreover, Members will now be selected by the Governor-General after consultations with political leaders; though their appointment will of course be subject to the approval of His Majesty the King-Emperor.

The council will work within the framework of the present constitution and there can be no question of the Governor-General agreeing not to exercise his constitutional power of control; but it will of course not be exercised unreasonably. I should make it clear that the formation of this interim Government will in no way prejudice the final constitutional settlement.

The main task for this new Executive Council would be:

First, to prosecute the war against Japan with the utmost energy till Japan is utterly defeated.

Secondly, to carry on the Government of British India, with all the manifold tasks of post-war development in front of it, until a new permanent constitution can be agreed upon and come into force.

Thirdly, to consider, when the Members of the Government think it possible, the means by which such agreement can be achieved. The third task is most important. I want to make it quite clear that neither I nor His Majesty's Government have lost sight of the need for a long-term solution, and that the present proposals are intended to make a long-term solution easier.

I have considered the best means of forming such a Council; and have decided to invite the following to Viceregal Lodge to advise me:

Those now holding office as Premier in a Provincial Government; or, for provinces now under Section 93 Government, those who last held the office of the Premier.

The Leader of the Congress Party and the Deputy Leader of the Muslim League in the Central Assembly; the leader of the Congress Party and the Muslim League in the Council of State; also the leader of the Nationalist Party and the European Group in the Assembly.

Mr. Gandhi and Mr. Jinnah as the recognized leaders of the two main political parties.

Rao Bahadur N. Siva Raj to represent the Scheduled Classes.

Master Tara Singh to represent the Sikhs.
Invitations to these gentlemen are being handed to them today and it is proposed to assemble the conference on 25th June at Simla where we shall be cooler than at Delhi.

I trust that all those invited will attend the conference and give me their help. On me and on them will lie a heavy responsibility in this fresh attempt to make progress towards a final settlement of India’s future.

If the meeting is successful, I hope that we shall be able to agree on the formation of the new Executive Council at the Centre. I also hope that it will be possible for Ministries to re-assume office and again undertake the tasks of Government in the provinces now administered under Section 93 of the Constitution Act and that these Ministries will be coalitions.

If the meeting should unfortunately fail, we must carry on as at present until the parties are ready to come together. The existing Executive Council, which has done such valuable work for India will continue it if other arrangements cannot be agreed.

But I have every hope that the meeting will succeed, if the party leaders will approach the problem with the sincere intention of working with me and with each other. I can assure them that there is behind this proposal a most genuine desire on the part of all responsible leaders in the United Kingdom and of the British people as a whole to help India towards her goal. I believe that this is more than a step towards that goal, it is a considerable stride forward, and a stride on the right path.

I should make it clear that these proposals affect British India only and do not make any alteration in the relations of the Princes with the Crown Representative.

With the approval of His Majesty’s Government, and after consultation with my Council, orders have been given for the immediate release of the members of the Working Committee of Congress who are still in detention. I propose to leave the final decision about the others still under detention as the result of the 1942 disturbances to the new Central Government, if formed, and to the Provincial governments.

The appropriate time for fresh elections for the Central and Provincial legislatures will be discussed at the conference.

Finally, I would ask you all to help in creating the atmosphere of goodwill and mutual confidence that is essential if we are to make progress. The destiny of this great country and of the many millions who live in it depends on the wisdom and good understanding of the leaders, both of action and of thought, British and Indian, at this critical moment of India’s history.

India’s military reputation never stood higher in the world than it does at present; thanks to the exploits of her sons drawn from all parts of the country. Her representatives at international conference have won high regard for their statesmanlike attitude. Sympathy for India’s aspirations and progress towards prosperity was never greater or more widespread. We have thus great assets if we can use them wisely. But it will not be easy, it will not be quick; there is very much to do, there are many pitfalls and dangers. There is on all sides something to forgive and forget.

I believe in the future of India, and as far as in me lies will further her greatness. I ask you all for your co-operation and goodwill.

APPENDIX III

TELEGRAM FROM LORD WAVELL

Immediate

NEW DELHI,

June 16, 1945

M. K. GANDHI ESO,
PANCHGANI

Many thanks for your telegram of 15th June. I have also seen your statement in today’s newspapers. As regards your attendance at the conference I will await your letter referred to in your telegram of 16th June which I have just received. I assure you, term “caste Hindus” was not used with offensive intention. Meaning is that there should be equality between Muslims and Hindus other than members of scheduled castes. Subject to this, exact composition of council would of course have to be decided after discussion at conference. On question of independence I invite your attention to Secretary of State’s speech in Parliament on 14th June as published in Indian Press. Following is the relevant passage:

The offer of March 1942 stands in its entirety. That offer is based on two main principles. First, no limit is set to India’s freedom to decide her own destiny whether as a free partner in the Commonwealth or even without it. Second, that this can only be achieved under a constitution or constitutions framed by Indians to which the main elements are consenting parties.

It would not be practicable to modify the terms of my broadcast. It is only a simple statement of the proposals approved by His Majesty’s Government and my intention is to deal at the conference itself with any points requiring clarification. I do not think it advisable to enter into detailed discussions before the conference which I hope, as you do yourself, will be held in a friendly atmosphere and without party bitterness. As you suggest I am releasing our telegrams to the Press.

VICEROY

Gandhiji’s Correspondence with the Government, 1944-47, p. 21

Vide “Telegram to Lord Wavell”, 15-6-1945 and “Interview to The Press”, 18-6-1945.
APPENDIX IV

DESAI-LIAQAT PACT

The Congress and the League agree that they will join in forming an interim government in the Centre. The composition of such Government will be on the following lines:

(a) An equal number of persons nominated by the Congress and the League in the Central Executive (the persons nominated need not be members of the Central Legislature),

(b) representatives of minorities (in particular the Scheduled Castes and the Sikhs),

(c) the Commander-in-Chief.

The Government will be formed and will function within the framework of the existing Government of India Act. It is, however, understood that, if the Cabinet cannot get a particular measure passed by the Legislative Assembly, they will not enforce the same by resort to any of the reserve powers of the Governor-General or the Viceroy. This will make them sufficiently independent of the Governor-General.

It is agreed between the Congress and the League that, if such interim government is formed, their first step would be to release the Working Committee members of the Congress.

The steps by which efforts would be made to achieve this end are at present indicated to take the following course:

On the basis of the above understanding some way should he found to get the Governor-General to make a proposal or a suggestion that he desires an interim Government to be formed in the Centre on the agreement between the Congress and the League and when the Governor-General invites Mr. Jinnah and Mr. Desai either jointly or separately, the above proposal would be made declaring that they are prepared to join in forming the government.

The next step would be to get the withdrawal of Section 93 in the Provinces and to form as soon as possible Provincial Governments on the lines of a coalition.

1 Vide “Statement to the press”, 15-6-1945 and “Interview to The Press”, 18-6-1945.
APPENDIX V

TELEGRAM FROM LORD WAVELL

June 18, 1945

THANK YOU FOR YOUR TWO TELEGRAMS OF YESTERDAY. I THINK MAULANA ABUL KALAM AZAD SHOULD HAVE MY INVITATION AS SOON AS POSSIBLE, AND HAVE ACCORDINGLY TELEGRAPHED IT TO HIM AT CALCUTTA. 2. MR. AMERY’S STATEMENT IN PARLIAMENT AND MY BROADCAST CONSTITUTE TERMS OF REFERENCE TO THE CONFERENCE WHICH I STILL HOPE WILL ASSEMBLE AT SIMLA ON 25TH. I CLEARLY CANNOT CHANGE MY BROADCAST AND I HAVE ALREADY TOLD YOU I DO NOT THINK IT DESIRABLE TO DISCUSS ITS DETAILS BEFORE THE CONFERENCE. NONE OF THE PERSONS OR PARTIES CONCERNED IS EXPECTED OR REQUIRED TO ACCEPT OR REJECT THE PROPOSALS NOW. THE ONLY IMMEDIATE QUESTION IS WHETHER THE PROPOSALS ARE WORTH DISCUSSING AT THE CONFERENCE AND IT IS TO THAT QUESTION THAT AN ANSWER WILL BE MOST HELPFUL. 3. I STILL THINK THE CONFERENCE SHOULD ASSEMBLE ON THE 25TH. IT MAY LAST SOME TIME, AND DELAY BEFORE IT BEGINS WILL NOT IMPROVE ITS PROSPECTS OF SUCCESS. 4. I AM RELEASING YOUR LETTER OF 16TH JUNE, MY TELEGRAM OF 17TH JUNE, YOUR TWO TELEGRAMS OF 17TH JUNE AND THIS TELEGRAM TO THE PRESS.

The Hindu, 20-6-1945

1 Vide “Telegram to Lord Wavell”, 17-6-1945
APPENDIX VI

STATEMENT MADE IN PARLIAMENT BY SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA

June 14, 1945

During the recent visit of Field-Marshal Viscount Wavell to this country, His Majesty’s Government reviewed with him a number of problems and discussed particularly the present political situation in India.

Members will be aware that since the offer by His Majesty’s Government to India of March 1942, there has been no further progress towards the solution of the Indian constitutional problem.

As was then stated, the working out of India’s new constitutional system is a task which can only be carried through by the Indian people themselves.

While His Majesty’s Government are at all times most anxious to do their utmost to assist the Indians in the working out of a new constitutional settlement, it would be a contradiction in terms to speak of the imposition by this country of self-governing institutions upon an unwilling India. Such a thing is not possible, nor could we accept the responsibility for enforcing such institutions at the very time when we were, by its purpose, withdrawing from all control of British Indian affairs.

The main constitutional position remains therefore as it was. The offer of March 1942 stands in its entirety without change or qualification. His Majesty’s Government still hope that the political leaders in India may be able to come to an agreement as to the procedure whereby India’s permanent future form of government can be determined.

His Majesty’s Government are, however, most anxious to make any contribution that is practicable to the breaking of the political deadlock in India. While that deadlock lasts not only political but social and economic progress is being hampered.

The Indian administration, over-burdened with the great tasks laid upon it by the war against Japan and by the planning for the post-war period, is further strained by the political tension that exists.

All that is so urgently required to be done for agricultural development and for the peasants and workers of India cannot be carried through unless whole-hearted co-operation of every community and section of the Indian people is forthcoming.

His Majesty’s Government have therefore considered whether there is something which they could suggest in this interim period, under the existing constitution, pending the formulation by Indians of their future constitutional arrangements which would enable the main communities and parties to co-operate more closely together and with the British to the benefit of the people of India as a whole.

1 Vide “Interview to The Press”, 18-6-1945.

It is not the intention of His Majesty’s Government to introduce any change contrary to the wishes of the major Indian communities. But they are willing to make possible some steps forward during the interim period if the leaders of the principal Indian parties are prepared to agree to their suggestion and to co-operate in the successful conclusion of the war against Japan as well as in the reconstruction in India which must follow the final victory.

To this end they would be prepared to see an important change in the composition of the Viceroy’s Executive. This is possible without making any change in the existing statute law except for one amendment to the Ninth Schedule to the Act of 1935. That Schedule contains a provision that not less than three members of the Executive must have had at least 10 years’ service under the Crown in India. If the proposals I am about to lay before the House meet with acceptance in India, that clause would have to be amended to dispense with that requirement.

It is proposed that the Executive Council should be reconstituted and that the Viceroy should in future make his selection to the Crown for appointment to his Executive from amongst leaders of Indian political life at the Centre and in the Provinces, in proportions which would give a balanced representation of the main communities, including equal proportions of Muslims and caste Hindus.

In order to pursue this object, the Viceroy will call into conference a number of leading Indian politicians who are the heads of the most important parties or who have had recent experience as Prime Ministers of Provinces, together with a few others of special experience and authority. The Viceroy intends to put before this conference the proposal that the Executive Council should be reconstituted as above stated and to invite from the members of the conference a list of names. Out of these he would hope to be able to choose the future members whom he would recommend for appointment by his Majesty to the Viceroy’s council, although the responsibility for the recommendations must of course continue to rest with him, and his freedom of choice therefore remains unrestricted.

The members of his Council who are chosen as a result of this arrangement would of course accept the position on the basis that they would whole-heartedly co-operate in supporting and carrying through the war against Japan to its victorious conclusion.

The members of the Executive would be Indians with the exception of the Viceroy and the Commander-in-Chief, who would retain his position as War
Member. This is essential so long as the defence of India remains a British responsibility.

Nothing contained in any of these proposals will affect the relations of the Crown with the Indian States through the Viceroy as Crown Representative.

The Viceroy has been authorized by His Majesty’s Government to place this proposal before the Indian leaders. His Majesty’s Government trust that the leaders of the Indian communities will respond. For the success of such a plan must depend on its acceptance in India and the degree to which responsible Indian politicians are prepared to co-operate with the object of making it a workable interim arrangement. In the absence of such general acceptance existing arrangements must necessarily continue.

If such co-operation can be achieved at the Centre it will no doubt be reflected in the provinces and so enable responsible governments to be set up once again in those provinces where, owing to the withdrawal of the majority party from participation, it became necessary to put into force the powers of the Governors under Section 93 of the Act of 1935. It is to be hoped that in all the Provinces these governments would be based on the participation of the main parties, thus smoothing out communal differences and allowing Ministers to concentrate upon their very heavy administrative tasks.

There is one further change which, if these proposals are accepted, His Majesty’s Government suggest should follow.

That is, that External Affairs (other than those tribal and frontier matters which fall to be dealt with as part of the defence of India) should be placed in the charge of an Indian Member of the Viceroy’s Executive so far as British India is concerned, and that fully accredited representatives shall be appointed for the representation of India abroad.

By their acceptance of and co-operation in this scheme the Indian leaders will not only be able to make their immediate contribution to the direction of Indian affairs, but it is also to be hoped that their experience of co-operation in government will expedite agreement between them as to the method of working out the new constitutional arrangements.

His Majesty’s Government consider, after the most careful study of the question, that the plan now suggested gives the utmost progress practicable within the present constitution. None of the changes suggested will in any way prejudice or preclude the essential form of the future permanent constitution or constitutions for India.

His Majesty’s Government feel certain that given goodwill and a genuine desire to co-operate on all sides, both British and Indian, these proposals can mark a genuine step forward in the collaboration of the British and Indian peoples towards Indian self-government and can assert the rightful position, and strengthen the influence, of India in the counsels of the nations.

The Indian Annual Register, 1945, Vol. I, pp. 248-50

APPENDIX VII

LORD WAVELL’S NOTE ON HIS INTERVIEW

June 24, 1945

I began by making a short statement on the objects of the proposals of H. M. G., the spirit in which they were conceived and the spirit in which I hoped they would be accepted and worked. I emphasized the necessity for full support of the war, and that it was essential that the political parties should put in their very best men, determined to concentrate on the economic and other problems of India, and not merely to enter the Government in a party spirit.

Mr. Gandhi then made a long, tortuous and prolix statement, which dealt with the history of the Congress, British rule in India, British character, the qualities of a good soldier, and many other more or less relevant subjects. It lasted over half an hour, and ended with a sort of general blessing on the proposals, which he said he had recommended to the Working Committee.

He then went on, referring to some notes, to deal with certain other points. I think this was a list prepared for him as a result of the discussions by Congress Working Committee. The main points were as follows:

(a) That it would have been much better if I had ordered the release of all the political prisoners and not merely the Working Committee.

(b) That the term ‘Caste Hindus’ should not have been used, as his great aim was that there should be no question of caste inside Congress; he would have preferred the term ‘Non-Scheduled Hindus’.

(c) He then went on to the question of coalitions in Provinces, obviously with the idea of trying to establish that the minorities should be represented by members of their body belonging to Congress.

(d) He referred to the matter of parity, and said he had been under very severe pressure as regards this, but that he was prepared to accept it. He indicated that it would be open to Congress to put forward the names of Muslims or Scheduled Castes, and I agreed but said that the principle of parity between non-Scheduled Hindus and Muslims must be maintained.

(e) He then digressed into a long story about members of the Indian Army who had wished to see him but had been compelled, like Nicodemus, to come to him by night and in mufti. I said that the one thing which was disastrous for any government was if the army became political; that the Indian Army had a Commander-in-Chief in whom they had full trust; that their reputation never stood higher and that I could assure him that the Indian Army was on the whole a thoroughly contented body. He agreed to all these statements.

(f) He then started on the question of the Indian States. I said that the conference dealt entirely with British India, and that I was not prepared at this stage to enter into a discussion of the Indian States. He agreed that it had nothing to do with the conference and was not appropriate for discussion at the moment.

I asked Mr. Gandhi at the end, whether he proposed to attend the conference in person. He said that he represented nobody except himself, and that though he would be prepared to attend the conference if I wished, and sit in a corner, he strongly advised me that his presence at the conference was undesirable. He said that he would hold himself at my disposal for as long as I wished, but that if I had nothing on which I had to consult him he would propose to leave Simla tomorrow. I said that I would let him know.

The interview was mainly a discursive monologue by Mr. Gandhi, interspersed by numerous digressions, such as a most graphic description of the death of his Private Secretary and the relation of his carrying down the wounded General Woodgate from Spion Kop in 1899. My general impression of him was that he was friendly for the time being, but perfectly prepared to go back at any time on anything he had said.

Wavell: The Viceroy’s Journal, pp. 144-6
DEAR LORD WAVELL,

After announcing the failure of the Conference, you were good enough to ask for the support of all parties in ensuring a calm atmosphere. I do not propose to reiterate the Congress view about the failure. I expressed it sufficiently at the Conference. But in fairness to you and to ourselves I must point out that co-operation inevitably depends on the removal of obstacles to it. Some of these obstacles are of a psychological nature with roots in the past relations between India and England. These can only gradually disappear with a change in those relations. But there are others of a more tangible kind which serve as constant irritants to our people and which affect our day-to-day activity. They are continually before us. In spite of this preoccupation, however, we did not think it desirable to raise this matter, except perhaps rather vaguely in the course of conversations with you, as we were anxious not to place any difficulties in your path when you were dealing with a delicate situation.

2. But now that one chapter has ended and our minds, as well as yours, are turned to future possibilities of finding a way out, honourable to all concerned and leading to the objective of Indian freedom, these obstacles to co-operation cannot be ignored. I am taking the liberty, therefore, of pointing them out to you in the hope that you will have early steps taken to have them removed.

3. The steps that I consider necessary and earnestly urge upon you are:

(a) The bans on all Congress and allied organizations should be removed at once. It has not been possible to convene the A. I. C. C. because of its being an illegal organization.

(b) All detenus should be released without any condition being imposed upon them, whether the detention was imposed by the Central Government or the Provincial Governments.

(c) All restrictions on the movements of released detenus or prisoners should be removed.

(d) Cases of all prisoners convicted for political or like offences should be examined by a popular judicial tribunal, its verdict should be regarded as final by the

1 Vide The letter bears corrections in Gandhiji's hand.
Government.

(e) Extra-legal restrictions on the freedom of the Press or on the movement or association of people should be removed so as to make the people feel that they are free to follow normal activities under democratic conditions.

(f) All pending sentences of hanging arising out of the disturbances of August 1942 should be commuted to life sentences.

(g) All pending arrests of ‘absconders’ should be cancelled.

(h) All prisoners who have served full fourteen years should be unconditionally discharged.

(i) What has been said above about prisoners applies equally, and with even greater force, to properties, movable and immovable, and frozen or confiscated.

4. I have not endeavoured to argue out the justness of the foregoing requirements as I have no doubt that you will yourself appreciate the need for action along the lines indicated. If India is on the eve of having a bona-fide national representative Executive, leading to independence after the defeat of Japan, then the necessity for this approach is self-proved and inevitable.

5. There is another matter to which I should like to refer. I need hardly say on behalf of the Congress that whatever the result of your promised effort the Congress is and has always been against the Japanese aggression. Therefore, there will always be on the part of the Congress a desire for the defeat of Japan in her designs upon China or any other aggression on her part. But the thought expressed in this paragraph will be incomplete if I did not inform you that, in the Congress estimation, the effort now being made on Indian soil will continue to be looked upon as a British and Allied effort, so long as there is not at the Centre a popular government assisted by provincial popular governments.

Yours sincerely,

HIS EXCELLENCY VISCOUNT WAVELL
VICEREAL LODGE
SIMLA

APPENDIX IX

MARRIAGE RITES

The marriage between Ganapat Narayan Mahadev Tendulkar and Indumati Nagesh Vasudev Gunaji is being solemnized and I perform the ceremony with God as witness. Both of you should also do the same. Those who are witness to this ceremony should keep their minds pure and thus help in the realization of the sacred wish of the couple getting married.

Now I shall recite a bhajan thanking God. All of you should listen to it carefully. (Bhajan “Aaj milkar geet gao”)

Q. Are both of you composed?
A. (Both to say :) Yes.

Q. Have you performed the seven yajnas\(^1\) as described to you yesterday?
A. Yes.

Q. I hope that you know that this relationship is not for sexual gratification or enjoyment.
A. Yes.

Q. Are you entering the Grihastha Ashram in a spirit of duty, dedication and sacrifice?
A. Yes.

Q. And therefore you will not obstruct each other in his or her work of service, but assist each other?
A. Yes.

Q. Will you be always loyal to each other in thought, word and deed?
A. Yes.

Q. Will you try your best not to have children till India wins independence?
A. Yes.

Q. You do approve the idea of inter-dining and inter-marrying with the so-called untouchables, don’t you?
A. Yes.

Q. You do believe that men and women have equal rights?
A. Yes.

Q. Both of you are friends and neither is a slave to the other. Isn’t that correct also?

\(^1\) Vide “Letter to D.B. Kalelkar”, 6-8-1945.
\(^2\) Vide “Letter to Dr. A. G. Tendulkar”, 18-8-1945.
A. Yes.

Q. You understand, don’t you, that the seven yajnas mentioned in the second question are in place of the saptapadi?

A. Yes.

Now by this yarn spun by me I bind you in union. You should preserve the yarn-garland carefully and should resolve that you will never break this union. Bear in mind the religious ceremony and pray to omnipotent God to help you in the fulfilment of the vows you have just taken. Now we shall all together sing the Ramdhun.

August 18, 1945

[From Hindi]

Bapuki Kalamse, pp. 445-6
1. LETTER TO LILAVATI ASAR

POONA,
August 30, 1945

CHI. LILI,

I do not remember having answered your letter. Just now, after the prayer, I have taken out the old letters. This is just to tell you that I think of you. Continue your studies and pass. Do not lose courage. Do not spoil your health. There is no time to write more. Sardar’s treatment is going on. I am well.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 10206. Courtesy: Lilavati Asar

2. LETTER TO PRABHAVATI

POONA,
August 30, 1945

CHI. PRABHA,

I do not at all remember whether I have written to you. Your letter of the 1st is lying in front of me. I am writing this after the morning prayer. I hope you keep good health. You may come when you can. Just now I shall have to stay with Sardar in Poona. I may have to be here for three months. After that I shall be touring. You should stay in the Ashram. If there is suitable work for you there and you enjoy peace of mind and keep good health, settle down there. Do as you please. How is Father?

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 3579

\[1\] The letters are in the Devanagari script.
3. LETTER TO PRABHAVATI

August 30, 1945

CHI. PRABHA,

A letter from Priyamvada is enclosed. I think you should join it.

Get yourself enrolled. About the work, we shall see after you have rested in the Ashram.

I discovered after writing the postcard this morning that I had in fact dictated a letter to you. However, I write the postcard lest I should forget it.

I hope you are keeping good health.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 3580

4. LETTER TO PRIYAMVADA NANDKEOLYAR

August 30, 1945

CHI. PRIYAMVADA.

I have your letter. I have written to Prabha that she should be on your Committee but she should not work till she gets well.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI PRIYAMVADABEHN
NAND VILAS
GAYA (BIHAR,)

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

---

1 The letter are in the Devanagari script
2 Kasturba Gandhi National Memorial Committee
3 Agent in Bihar for the Kasturba Gandhi National Memorial Trust
5. LETTER TO LAKSHMI GANDHI

August 30, 1945

CHI. LAKSHMI,

Give the enclosed letters¹ to the children. Hope you and the child² are well. You are continuing your studies, aren’t you? Is the house crowded?

Blessings from

BAPU

Enclosures: 5

MRS. DEVADAS GANDHI
NEW DELHI

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

6. LETTER TO TARA GANDHI

POONA,
August 30, 1945

CHI. TARA³.

I have your letter. The letter cannot be considered good. You could have written in a beautiful hand. When will you be playing about again?

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Vide the following five letters.
² Gopalkrishna
³ Daughter of Devdas Gandhi
7. LETTER TO RAJMOHAN GANDHI

POONA,
August 30, 1945

CHI. MOHAN¹.

I have your letter. It is good. Keep writing in the same way. Grow strong and sturdy.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

8. LETTER TO RAMCHANDRA GANDHI

August 30, 1945

CHI. RAMU².

You have written in pencil. That is not good. Always write in ink. Your friend³ too has written in pencil.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

9. LETTER TO ARUN Y. PANDYA

August 30, 1945

CHI. ARUN.

Now I have two Aruns. If both of you are together, how will I know who has written? Can you solve the problem?

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Son of Devdas Gandhi
² Son of Devdas Gandhi
³ Arun Y. Pandya; vide the following item.
10. LETTER TO PRAVINA Y. PANDYA

August 30, 1945

CHI. PRAVINA,

I have your letter. Keep on spinning and wear khadi. Study well.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

11. LETTER TO P. H. GADRE

POONA,

August 31, 1945

DEAR GADRE,

Why should you feel sore if you have done your duty? Duty is its own reward! If the Committee do not want your services, you will serve where you are wanted. The field of service is as wide as the earth. The donors should not mind the removal of the [status]. The question is whether you have become yourself a Harijan? If you have, all is well.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

SHRI P. H. GADRE

PLEADER

HINDU COLONY, NASIK

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

---

1 The word is illegible.
2 The address is in Hindi.
12. LETTER TO D. PARIMALA

Poona,
August 31, 1945[1]

Dear Sister,

The Gita does answer your doubts, if you will search diligently. If you do not doubt the fleeting present, how can you doubt the future? Let the old lady suffer. We may not judge what is good for her.

Yours,
M. K. Gandhi

Smt. D. Parimala
2681 V. V. Minalla
Mysore

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

13. LETTER TO J. P. BHANSALI

August 31, 1945

Chh. Bhansali,

I have your letter. Accept the invitation and go there for three to four days if it is necessary.

Hope you remember about your diet.

Blessings from
Bapu

Sevagram Ashram

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

14. LETTER TO KANTILAL GANDHI

August 31, 1945

Chh. Kanti,

I have your letter. It is interesting. If I tried to write in reply a letter which would be interesting to read, it would be delayed.

All of you are doing fine work. May you succeed in it and may

---

1 The source has “1941”, but the letter is placed among those of the year 1945; besides, on August 31, 1941, Gandhi was in Sevagram.
the work progress. Everyone should learn the processes which precede spinning. Keep both the yarn and the money there. An account of the yarn spun should be sent to Narandas.¹

Blessings from
BAPU

[PS.] I hope both of you and the child are well. I have received two silly letters from Harilal.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati and Hindi: C.W. 7377. Courtesy: Kantilal
Gandhi

15. LETTER TO A. K. CHANDA
August 31, 1945

BHAI CHANDA,

For the time being please do not take any decision about my visit to Silchar. Let us see what God bids me do, and where He takes me.

Yours,
M. K. GANDHI

SHRI A. K. CHANDA
SILCHAR (ASSAM)

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

16. LETTER TO A. RAHIM
August 31, 1945

BHAI SAHEB,

If the true remain true, others will also do so.

Yours,
M. K. GANDHI

A. RAHIM SAHEB
C/O POST MASTER
MADRAS

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ This paragraph is in Hindi.
17. LETTER TO DHIRENDRA N. MUKHERJEE
August 31, 1945

Bhai Dhirendranathji,
I have your letter. there are some things men achieve by talking, some by observing silence and some by working.

Yours,
M. K. Gandhi

Shri Dhirendra N. Mukherjee
Senhati P. O., Khulna Dist.
Bengal

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

18. LETTER TO PRITHVI SINGH AZAD
August 31, 1945

Bhai Prithvi Singh,
I have your letter. About your quoting me I have often told you to have me put down in writing what I say. Be it as it may, I know this much that caste Hindus do not abide by their dharma. In this connection please read the discussion I had with Murthy as also about what Harijans should do.

Blessings from
Bapu

Shri Prithvi Singh Azad
Harijan Sevak Sangh
Lajpat Rai Bhavan, Lahore

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

19. LETTER TO PANNAI AL
August 31, 1945

Bhai Pannalalji,
I have gone through your letter carefully. I will see the pamphlets when they arrive. Keep up your interest in the propagation

1 Vide “Discussion with B. S. Murthy”, 14-8-1945 of Hindustani.

The pamphlets have come.

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

DR. PANNALAL
19 THORNHILL ROAD
ALLAHABAD

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

20. LETTER TO RAMBHAI MAMTANI
August 31, 1945

BHAI RAMBHAI MAMTANI,

I have your letter. Now you can see me only when I return to Sevagram. You should ask for the answer to your first question only there.

For the rest, have patience and see what happens.

Blessings from

BAPU

TALIMI SANGH

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

21. LETTER TO RAJENDRA PRASAD
POONA,
August 31, 1945

BHAI RAJENDRA BABU,

Time is running out and nothing is being done about Mahendra Chowdhary. I do not like it. There are some very good lawyers in Patna. It is easy to cite case-law. You have to base it on the papers you have. Alladi¹, Venkataraman Sastri, Motilal Setalvad and others may see it and give their opinion. How long will it take? If the record² is sent here, Sardar can do the rest. I do not feel that there is any need for you to go to Bihar.

I am happy to know that you are keeping good health.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Sir Alladi Krishnaswami Aiyar
² This is in English.
22. LETTER TO VAMAN KRISHNA PARANJPE

August 31, 1945

BHAi VAMAN KRISHNA PARANJPE,

I have your letter. I very well remember your grandfather. He was a great orator and a man of courage.

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

SHRI VAMAN KRISHNA PARANJPE
VAKIL, SHUKRavar PETH
POONA

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

23. LETTER TO VINA CHATTERJEE

August 31, 1945

CHI. VINA,

I have your letter after a long time. I think you should notify the court. I have written to Naraharibhai. It is better to get married soon. Be satisfied with the registration in the court. Show this also to Naraharibhai.

Blessings from

BAPU

[PS.]

Be very good and render plenty of service.

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

24. LETTER TO S. N. CHATTERJEE

August 31, 1945

CHI. SAILEN,

I have your letter. It is good you decided to have a separate kitchen. Naraharibhai has written to Father. That is sufficient.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: C.W. 10393. Courtesy: Amrita Lal Chatterjee

1 Shivaram Mahadev Paranjpe
25. LETTER TO DHANNO GIDWANI

POONA,
September 1, 1945

MY DEAR DHANNO,

I wonder whether you know Gujarati, Hindustani or Sindhi, seeing that you write to me in bad English? Your mother knows Hindustani and Sindhi. Your father knew all the above three well. But this I write in the language you evidently know best.

You see now is the time for every patriot to be tested. You wear khadi not for family tradition which may or may not be good, not for my sake (that would be of no use), not for the poor (there are other ways of serving them perhaps), but for swaraj to be gained non-violently. Then you have to wear and use khadi at all cost. Then to strengthen your conviction you may add all the other causes. Use of khadi is the least you should do and brave the little difficulty you mention. Supposing you slave for a showy maintenance for 10 hours, why won’t you lighten your slavery by doing recreative spinning for half an hour daily? While you are doing it, you will have the glow of spinning swaraj daily for half an hour. Very little if you were the only one. But one can multiply oneself into forty crores and then there is swaraj without perhaps more. But if you can say to yourself honestly that you have no time for non-violent swaraj, you must leave khadi alone and use the cloth you like best and forget family traditions, the poor and me.

What are you earning? Are you married?

Love.

BAPU

CHI. DHANNO GIDWANI
C/O AMBICA MILL NO. 1
AHMEDABAD

From a photostat: G.N. 6759. Also Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Son of A. T. Gidwani
26. LETTER TO UTTIMCHAND GANGARAM

September 1, 1945

DEAR UTTIMCHAND,

Yours with cheque with thanks. It will be used as you have directed, i.e., to pay for defect in interest and for a purpose in khadi that would have pleased Mahadev if he was in our midst in his body. If I do not remember rightly please correct me.

I have your magic square and puzzle. I must tax myself and friends.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

[PS.] It is yet too early to say anything definite about Sardar.

SHRI UTTIMCHAND GANGARAM
BOMBAY BAKERY
HYDERABAD (SINDH)

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

27. LETTER TO NARAHARI D. PARIKH

September 1, 1945

CHI. NARAHARI,

Khimji¹ had brought your letter. I replied at once. You must have got the reply by now.

I would not know if there was any defect in Kimji’s eye. Generally I do not observe people too closely. And if the parties choose each other despite one of them having an obvious defect, why need a third person object? What right does even a father have? I have seen the blind and the crippled also getting married. I would be very much surprised if Munnalal has raised any objection. When you all who are quite independent have made a selection, what objection can be raised?

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: S.N. 9137

¹ Khimjibhai Patel
28. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

September 1, 1945

CHI. MUNNALAL,

Naraharibhai writes to tell me that as Khimji has a defect in his eye you have raised an objection to his marrying Vina and are even ready to write to her father. This surprises me. I, therefore, used an “if” in my reply to Narahari.

When K. and N. have made the selection, what objection can we have? Besides, how can you write to Vina’s father? Vina is not marrying the man in defiance of anybody’s advice. I personally do not see what right a father can have to interfere if the two have selected each other despite an obvious defect in one of them. And do all the blind remain unmarried?

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 8437. Also C.W. 5594. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

29. LETTER TO CHIMANLAL N. SHAH

September 1, 1945

CHI. CHIMANLAL,

It is a sad matter about Shastriji. If he does go mad, there will be no option but to put him in the mental hospital as suggested by Manahar. I suggest that Vinoba should go and see him and make an attempt. I wrote a letter to him two days ago.

It is all right that you wrote to Sharma.

I know about the cholera. Our people seem to be doing very good work.

I hope you are well.

I get news about Sharda.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10642

1 Vide the preceding item.
2 Parachure Shastri
3 Manahar Diwan; vide also “Letter to Manahar Diwan”, 7-9-1945
4 Vide ”Letter to Parachure Shastri”, 29-8-1945
5 Hiralal Sharma
30. LETTER TO LILAVATI MUNSHI
September 1, 1945

CHI. LILAVATI,

I have your letter. I think that in schools and institutions where there is no objection to the teaching of religion, arrangements should be made for teaching it if the parents so wish.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI LILAVATIBEHN MUNSHI
26 RIDGE ROAD
BOMBAY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

31. LETTER TO MANGALDAS HARKISHANDAS
September 1, 1945

BHAI MANGALDAS,

As usual I have your cheque for Rs. 100.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI MANGALDAS HARKISHANDAS
MANGALDAS & SONS
PUBLISHERS AND BOOKSELLERS
BHAGATALAO
SURAT

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

32. LETTER TO KISHORELAL G. MASHRUWALA
September 1, 1945

CHI. KISHORELAL,

Manilal is impetuous and does not think twice before writing. According to me, as yet the weather is not suitable for you. It is cloudy all the time. It rains intermittently and is not yet dry. So I dare not send for you. If we go over to Bombay on the 22nd and if the weather there is good you may come over there. I understand what you say about the institutions. I have sent your letter to Chimanlal. The two of you may discuss the matter with others. I find obstacles everywhere but you have thought over this and I have not. So it is possible that I do not see certain things that you do.

You must have fully recovered by now. One cannot say the same about Sardar.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

33. LETTER TO JAWAHARLAL NEHRU

September 1, 1945

CHI. JAWAHARLAL,

I have your letter. Menon’s information is correct. Sardar has read that letter. Let us see what happens. You have done a lot of work in the Frontier and other places.

Sardar cannot leave Poona on the 12th. He cannot leave Poona for another four weeks if he is to give a fair trial to Dinshaw and his treatment. The climate here also suits him but he has not shown much improvement. His court is always full.

Blessings from
BAPU

From the Hindi original: Gandhi-Nehru Papers. Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library

34. LETTER TO SANTRAM AGRAWAL

September 1, 1945

BHAI SANTRAM,

You have mixed up the two things. In working out the marriage rite1 in Prakrit2 I have only followed Tulsidas, Surdas and others. Sanskrit has survived because Prakrit developed. What I have done has only promoted dharma. The Hindu-Muslim question does not arise here. It is a different question altogether. I do not wish to go into it.

---
1 V. K. Krishna Menon
2 Vide “Marriage Rites”
3 By this term Gandhiji means the spoken language.
You are running a divine life institution. Think a little.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

SHRI SANTRAM AGRAWAL
DIVINE LIFE SOCIETY
JARAULI, AMRITSAR

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 775

35. LETTER TO ANAND T. HINGORANI

September 1, 1945

CHI. ANAND,

You cannot get peace from my letters or my presence. If you get any it will be transient. Peace cannot come from without. Peace is that which comes from within. Neither Vidya nor I can give that peace; God alone can.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Hindi: Courtesy: National Archives of India and Anand T. Hingorani

36. LETTER TO VIDYA DEVI

September 1, 1945

CHI. VIDYA,

You are doing good work. Try to know well the women who have accepted spinning. Explain to them why they should spin. Learn well the processes preceding and following spinning and teach them these. Make your whole life worthy of swaraj;—Ramarajya. Now I have told you everything. If rakhi\(^1\) is a sign of purity, it is a proper use of yarn; otherwise it should be considered a waste.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRIMATI VIDYA DEVI
SHANTI NIVAS
SIALKOT (PUNJAB)

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

\(^1\) A thread tied on Shravana Shukla 15 by a sister to the wrist of her brother, or a person regarded as such, as a symbol of her good wishes and his promise of protection
37. LETTER TO UPENDRA CHOWDHARY

September 1, 1945

BHAI UPENDRA¹,

I have your letter. What I have suggested should be implemented. Of course your sister-in-law has my blessings. Let her render much service. That alone is real mourning and shraddha.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI UPENDRA CHOWDHARY

PIPRA

P. O. KESHAVNAGAR

MONGHYR (BIHAR)

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

38. LETTER TO MRS. GEORGE JOSEPH

September 1, 1945

DEAR SISTER²,

I saw Chi. Babu’s wedding card. May Babu and her husband live long and serve the country.

Why is the invitation card in English? Why not in Malayalam or Hindustani? Why so much infatuation for English?

Blessings from

BAPU

MRS. GEORGE JOSEPH

KALLOZHAM

CHENGANNUR

(TRAVANCORE)

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Brother of Mahendra Chowdhary; vide “Statement to the Press”, 11-8-1945
² Widow of George Joseph who took a leading part in the Vykom Satyagraha in 1924
39. LETTER TO SHRIKRISHNADAS JAJU

September 1, 1945

BHAJAJUJI,

I have your letter. Whether or no I beg for money, the question is altogether different. It is our duty to eradicate malaria around all our institutions. It is irrelevant who is able to do how much. The question is, would it or would it not be worth while to try and eradicate malaria from nearby places. I can understand that all the institutions will keep a check over the expenses incurred on it. But I feel that the contribution should be the same from all. It is the duty of all of us to convince the Goseva Sangh. What does Narahari, who is the Joint Secretary, say? I should like to understand the other viewpoint.

Blessings from

BAPU

[PS.]

I am writing' to Amritlal Batra that it is his duty to make a trust or work under us.

SHRIKRISHNADAS JAJU
SEVAGRAM

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

40. LETTER TO SANKARAN

September 1, 1945

CHI. SANKARAN,

Why did you write to Prabhakar in English? You can’t express yourself well in English and why shouldn’t Prabhakar write to Sushilabehn? They have not made you the supervisor. Your ignorance and vanity is eating you up. Remember that the only true right is what is acquired by doing one’s duty. And now that all of you are fighting against cholera, where is the question of possessing any right? Never mind if people do not want to get inoculated. Let them die, if they are prepared to. They will have to be kept isolated if they contract cholera. There are bound to be such people in the Ashram.

1 Vide “Letter to Amritlal Batra”, 2-9-1945
While expanding bhangi work, remember that the Bhangi though regarded the lowest of all, by dint of doing the noblest work (of cleaning), has the highest place in the eyes of God.

_Blessings from_
_BAPU_

_SHRI SANKARAN_
_SEVAGRAM_

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

41. LETTER TO ABDUL GHAFFAR KHAN

September 1, 1945

_BHAI SAHEB,_

You must attend the Working Committee meeting.¹

_Blessings from_
_BAPU_

_BADSHAH KHAN_
_CHARSADDA POST_
_FRONTIER PROVINCE_

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

42. DISCUSSION WITH NARENDRA DEV² AND SURAJ PRASAD AWASTHI

POONA,
_[Before September 2, 1945]³_

In the course of their interview, the two leaders asked Mahatma Gandhi as to whether the Hindustan Mazdoor Sevak Sangh like the Indian National Congress and the All-India Trade Union Congress could adopt the words “peaceful and legitimate” instead of “truth and non-violence” in its constitution. Mahatma Gandhi is understood to have replied that he disagreed with those who held that “truth and

¹ Which was to be held in Poona from September 12 to 18
² (1889-1956); President, All-India Kisan Sabha, 1939 and 1942; member, All-India Congress Socialist Party and later Praja Socialist Party; Vice Chancellor, Lucknow University and later Banaras Hindu University
³ This report appeared under the date-line “Cawnpore, September 5” with an introductory note that “Acharya Narendra Dev and Suraj Prasad Awasthi, M.L.As., met Mahatma Gandhi at Poona last week”. The discussion, therefore, must have taken place before Sunday, September 2.
non-violence” were not political terms. In the political context, the words “peaceful and legitimate” were considered to be more appropriate. Even this expression, Mahatma Gandhi said, had been introduced by him in the Congress constitution. Since they had to deal with the working class, the objection on grounds of political terminology did not matter. The workers must be told in a straight and direct way as to what they should or should not do.

On the question of trusteeship, which was absent from the constitution of the Sangh, Mahatma Gandhi is said to have pointed out that since the theory of trusteeship was stressed by him and had a permanent association with his name, it was legitimate to make it a matter of dispute. He said that he did not want to accentuate class-struggle. The owners should become trustees. They might insist that they should become trustees and yet they might choose to remain owners.

We shall then have to oppose and fight them. Satyagraha will then be our weapon. Even if we want a classless society we should not engage in a civil war. Non-violence should be depended upon to bring a classless society.

The Hindu, 7-9-1945

43. TELEGRAM TO JATINDAS M. AMIN

Express POONA,

Aminbhai
Ashram Sevagram
Wardha

Fast must be abandoned any case. Letter follows.
Fasting in the midst of cholera work is criminal.

Bapu

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Vide “Speech on New Congress Creed, Nagpur”, 28-12-1920
2 Vide “Letter to Jatindas M. Amin”, 2-9-1945
44. LETTER TO AGATHA HARRISON

NATURE CURE CLINIC,
6 TODIWALA ROAD, POONA,
September 2, 1945

DEAR AGATHA,

I have your two letters. Pyarelal is not here.

Yes, times are such as to require breadth of vision and statesmanship of the truest type, if the victory so called is not to lead to a third war worse than the last. I expect to see you in India soon.

I am not writing separately to Dorothy in reply to her long letter. Please send her my love and tell her we are on our trial. Let God be our “Rock of Ages”¹.

Love.

BAPU

From a photostat: G.N. 1526

45. LETTER TO ANASUYA SARABHAI

September 2, 1945

CHI. ANASUYA².

I like your letter and notes. Copies of the latter are being sent to the Central Office, Bapa and Lakshmi Babu³.

I appreciate your down-heartedness and devotion to Mridula⁴. No one can help being devoted to her. Such is her work, sacrifice and bravery. But you are mistaken if you feel that she will be lost to the cause. The result should be quite the contrary.

I shall hold you to your promise to write to me in good Hindustani in two months’ time. You will also tell me what you have

¹ From a hymn by A. M. Toplady
² Sister of Ambalal Sarabhai
³ Lakshminarayan Gadodia
⁴ Mridula Sarabhai had resigned from the post of Joint Secretary, Kasturba Gandhi National Memorial Trust, owing to differences with Amritlal V. Thakkar; vide ultimately decided to do.

Love.

CHI. ANASUYA DEVI
C/O SHRI MRIDULA SARABHAI
KASHMIR HOUSE, NAPEAN SEA ROAD
BOMBAY

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

46. LETTER TO JATINDAS M. AMIN

September 2, 1945

CHI. AMIN,

Today I am sending a wire regarding your fast. There is a rule that no one should go on a fast without my permission. It is possible that you are not aware of it but Prabhakar knows this.

Both of you are at fault in going on a fast. When all of you should render service in treating cholera patients, why enfeeble yourselves by fasting?

I would say that those who are not willing to be inoculated against cholera should not be persuaded to do so by fasting. Those who cannot abide by the rules of an institution should leave it. We do not have such rules [in our Ashram]. I am primarily responsible for this because I do not believe in inoculation, etc. Right from South Africa I have been holding these views. We should make arrangements for those who wish to be inoculated but we should not force those who are unwilling by resorting to a fast. If you want to know when one can go on a fast, come to me when I have some leisure.

Who were the persons involved in beating Kotwal? What happened to him? Give me the details when you have time. Show this letter to Prabhakar and others after translating it into Hindi.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Vide "Letter to Jatindas M. Amin", 2-9-1945
47. LETTER TO AMTUSSALAAM

September 2, 1945

DAUGHTER AMTUL SALAAM,

I have your letter. What should I say? I am stuck here in Poona. I have no idea when I shall be able to leave. I have no idea whether I shall have to go to Bombay or not. The date for Bengal is not fixed either. I only know that I shall not be going before October. I have written to Profulla Babu.\textsuperscript{1} Sudhir Babu says one thing, Satis Babu another, and Profulla Babu a third. I should like to go over to Borkamta.\textsuperscript{2} I do not know for how long. It cannot be for a month as you suggest. That can happen only if I settle down in Bengal. I cannot possibly settle down there.

I shall only say that you should stay on there till I arrive. Render whatever service you can. Have faith in God. He will do what pleases Him. I realize more and more every day that save God all else is naught. I like nothing but work. Why should you seek a message from me?

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 500

48. LETTER TO AMRITLAL BATRA

September 2, 1945

BHAI AMRITLAL,

I have your letter. Either make a trust, or have the approval of the Charkha Sangh or leave khadi work. Leave it if you do not wish to work even under the Punjab branch. Forget about making money out of khadi. Khadi is not meant for that. What will you gain by coming to me? You can come over only after I go to Sevagram. I do not know when that will be. I have hardly any time for talking. So if you wish to ask anything, you had better write to me. It would be better that you write about everything to Jajuji. He will consult me if he wants to.

Blessings from
BAPU

AMRITLAL BATRA
SHUDDH KHADI VIDYALAYA
JHANG MAGHIANA (PUNJAB)

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

\textsuperscript{1} Vide pp. 134 and “Letter to Parasram Tahilramani”, 27-8-1945
\textsuperscript{2} Where the addressee was doing khadi work
49. LETTER TO S. AMBUJAMMAL

September 2, 1945

CHI. AMBUJAM,

I have your letter. I am sorry to learn that you are not keeping well. Come over any time after you are all right. Let me add that my staying anywhere has become a little indefinite. It is very crowded here and I can’t say where I will be. There is some talk about my going to Bengal. Keep writing to me at Poona how you are and when you want to come.

I hope Mother is all right. It is sad about Padma. It is as God wills.

Blessings from

BAPU

S. AMBUJAMMAL
96 MOWBRAY’S ROAD
TEYNAMPET, MADRAS

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

50. LETTER TO SATYAVATI

September 2, 1945

CHI. SATYAVATI¹,

Rajkumari has given me your letter. Whether the body perishes or not, your noble resolve will forever remain. Resolve does not die even after the body perishes. I know that physical pain cannot cause you distress. Do not worry about me. All my activities are for independence and will continue to be so.

Blessings from

BAPU

SMT. SATYAVATIJI
TUBERCULOSIS HOSPITAL
KINGSWAY, DELHI

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Grand-daughter of Swami Shraddhanand; member of National Executive of All-India Congress Socialist Party. She was interned during the Quit India movement but was released on grounds of health as she had developed tuberculosis.
51. LETTER TO PREMKANT BHARGAVA

September 2, 1945

Bhai Premkant,

I have your letter. I am unable to advise you. Consult Pandit Sunderlalji. I can say this much that you should not forsake Mother; forget about the Talimi Sangh. Do whatever you can while keeping Mother with you.

Blessings from

BAPU

Shri Premkant
242 Chak
Allahabad

From a photostat of the Hindi: C.W. 10412. Courtesy: Premkant Bhargava. Also Pyarelal Papers

52. LETTER TO MITHUBEHN PETIT

Poona,
September 2/3, 1945

Chh. Mithubehn,

I was glad to have your letter. Today Kalyanji\(^2\), Kunvarji\(^3\) and others came and saw me. I have the bottle of oil that you have sent. I shall use it if I can.

I have had a talk about Mama. I shall be happy if he goes there. I very much wish that he gets well while he is with you. Keep well. You must have expanded your work a lot.

Blessings from

BAPU

Mithubehn Petit
Kasturba Sevashram
Maroli

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

\(^1\) The address is from Pyarelal Papers.
\(^2\) Kalyanji Mehta
\(^3\) Kunvarji Parekh
53. LETTER TO MIRABEHN

POONA,
September 3, 1945

CHI. MIRA,

Your letter and postcard. Since you are coming to Bombay we shall meet either there or here. My going is uncertain. Sardar will have to go. I am glad Balvantsinha is of real use and that K. is sending you a man. Cholera is raging near Sevagram. Please tell Balvantsinha I wrote to him some time ago. Hoshiari and her child seem to be doing well. She writes to me and I to her.

Love.

BAPU

From the original: C.W. 6510. Courtesy: Mirabehn. Also G.N. 9905

54. LETTER TO MOHAN KUMARAMANGALAM

September 3, 1945

DEAR MOHAN¹,

Your letter. I shall see you on the 6th at 6 p. m.

Yours,

BAPU

SHRI M. KUMARAMANGALAM
RAJ BHAWAN, SANDHURST ROAD
BOMBAY

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Son of P. Subbaroyan; Minister for Steel and Mines, Government of India
55. LETTER TO A. VARADARAJULU NAIDU

September 3, 1945

DEAR DOCTOR,

I have your letter. It is for your province to insist on Rajaji rejoining the Congress.¹

Yours,

BAPU

DR. A. VARADARAJULU
756 ATTUMANDAI STREET
KEELAVASAL
(SOUTH INDIA)

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

56. LETTER TO S. B. SARDESAI

September 3, 1945

DEAR FRIEND,

Your letter. I purposely write to you in English.

I mentioned not 14 letters in the Urdu script but 14 scripts collected on the chart shown to you.

I see that you can listen to hearsay even though it is contrary to the evidence of your senses. You should know that Kakasaheb is himself a Maharashtrian and so are my many associates.

I was referring to a well-known verse of the Gita². It asks us not to leave what may appear to be a lesser duty for what may happen to be a higher. And I paid a compliment to Maharashtrians who stick to their jobs no matter how difficult they are.

Urdu is not so difficult as your friend has made it out. I know many who have learnt the Urdu script in less than a week. My offer to teach you Urdu script within a week still stands. I shall put before you a deputy to teach you, if you care.

The connection between learning Hindustani and exhibiting

¹ C. Rajagopalachari had resigned from the Congress on July 15, 1942.
² Bhagavad Gita, III. 35
your skill in massage is obvious. I see such exhibitions against a fee, the fee in your case being that you should learn Hindustani against an exhibition of your skill.

You won’t now give me a long letter to answer?

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

SHRI S. B. SARDESAI
304 SADASHIV PETH
POONA

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

57. LETTER TO AMRITLAL V. THAKKAR

September 3, 1945

BAPA,

Can Bombay not collect 15 lakhs for a memorial for Mahadev? If it is very difficult, we should not try it. It would not matter if we failed. I would suggest that the amount raised in Bombay should be added to the collection from Gujarat. The Bombay committee should be incorporated with the Gujarat committee and the whole amount should be spent for the Memorial. This would be befitting and would bring credit to Mahadev’s name. I think the permanent place for the Memorial should be in Ahmedabad. If a branch is necessary a place can be rented in Bombay. Let me know if there is any defect in my reasoning.

BAPU

[C/O] SHANTIKUMAR MORARJEE
SCINDIA HOUSE
BOMBAY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

58. LETTER TO SHANTIKUMAR MORARJEE

September 3, 1945

CHI. SHANTIKUMAR,

The letter¹ to Bapa could not be written earlier. I wrote it this morning and enclose it herewith. You will pass it on to him, if you approve of the contents. I showed it to Sardar. He has approved of it.

¹ Vide the preceding item.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 4805. Courtesy: Shantikumar Morarjee

59. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH
September 3, 1945

CHI. MUNNALAL,

I got your letter. I am not sending Sushilabehn just now. She has a meeting\(^1\) on the 9th. I will see after that. I hope the kitchen there is running smoothly. Durgabehn\(^2\) must be helping and Pushpa must be giving her full co-operation. I think Mohansingh can make bread, etc., with great speed. Show this letter to Krishnachandra and the others, too.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 8436. Also C.W. 5595. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

60. LETTER TO PUSHPA K. DESAI
September 3, 1945

CHI. PUSHPA,

I have your letter. I see your firmness in the letter. Keep it up. I will not write to Rajanibhai just now. If you cannot please your parents in the first matter, at least do so in the other matter. I am sending your letter to your father. And if he is willing, that is, if he approves of my writing, I will do so. You need not write to your friend, either, just now. If you must write, send the letter through your father. If you write to anyone besides me, do so through your father. Who can make you change your mind? But don’t you think you would be practising \textit{bhakti} by following the path of action? Not only is disinterested action not an obstacle to \textit{bhakti} but on the contrary I think it alone is true \textit{bhakti}.

\(^1\) Of the Medical Board
\(^2\) Widow of Mahadev Desai
Nobody has paid me the Rs. 25. It will be paid to me if they let it be paid.

_Blessings from_
_BAPU_

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 9263

61. LETTER TO SITA GANDHI

_Ch I. SITA,_

I wanted to reply to you immediately but so many days have gone by.

Student life is a kind of strenuous and perhaps a difficult sannyasa. During that time one should not think of one’s parents or be unhappy or cry because of separation from anyone. At the moment concentrate solely on your studies. Taking care of yourself is included in it. You must be carrying on well. Do not get disheartened if there are difficulties in the way. To learn to overcome difficulties is an integral part of education.

_Blessings from_
_BAPU_

_MASHRUWALA’S BUNGALOW_
_AKOLA_

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

62. LETTER TO MANEKLAL GANDHI

_Ch I. MANEKLAL,_

I have your letter as well as the papers about Darbarshri¹. I have shown them to Dr. Dinshaw. His opinion is enclosed herewith. Just now how can I say what will be Dr. Dinshaw’s charges? But I am enclosing his typed rates so that you can have some idea. It is full here at present. So even if Darbarshri wants to come, no room will be vacant before October. Just now the Doctor cannot go there at all. He cannot leave his work.

¹ Darbarshri Amrabapa

Blessings from
BAPU

MANEKLAL AMRITLAL GANDHI
THANA DEVLI
KATHIWAR

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

63. LETTER TO V. L. MEHTA

September 3, 1945

BHAJ VAIKUNTH,

I have your letter. I am happy about your joining the subcommittee. You are bound to be useful in some ways.

I think it is good that you left Bharat Bank. Why should you join a new concern?

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI V. L. MEHTA
91 BACK HOUSE LANE, BOMBAY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

64. LETTER TO DR. JIVRAJ MEHTA

September 3, 1945

BHAJ JIVRAJ,

Nowadays the villages around Sevagram are in the grip of cholera. The hospital doctors are working very hard. They are giving the medicine prescribed by the Civil Hospital. Is giving enema the only remedy? How to cope with thousands of patients? Isn’t there anything in Homoeopathy or Ayurveda?

What funeral rites can be performed for thousands of villagers? How to find wood for burning so many? Who can burn a hundred or two hundred daily and how much time will it take? If they are buried,

1 Vide “Letter to V. L. Mehta”, 29-8-1945 how much space will be required? How to cope with the situation? Think over this when you all meet on September 9 and also discuss Kasturba Memorial.

Blessings from
BAPU

DR. JIVRAJ MEHTA
16 ALTAMONT ROAD
BOMBAY 26

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

65. LETTER TO HARISHCHANDRA B. BHATT
September 3, 1945

Bhai Harishchandra.
I got your letter yesterday and the book today. It is to be seen when I can find time to read it. I very much wish to but how can I spare that much time?

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI HARISHCHANDRA B. BHATT
ABOVE KIKABHAI TYPE FOUNDRY
PRINCESS STREET
BOMBAY 2

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

66. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA
September 3, 1945

Chh. Krishnachandra
You have taken charge\(^1\). Let us see what happens. Everything will be clear if you have patience. Read what I have written\(^2\) in my letter to Munnalal.
I hope Hoshiari is well and also others.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4524

\(^1\) As manager of the Ashram
\(^2\) Vide “Letter to Munnalal G. Shah”, 3-9-1945
67. LETTER TO PRABHAKAR PAREKH

September 3, 1945

CHI. PRABHAKAR,

You will read what I have written to Aminbhai.\(^1\) I can understand your refusing to be inoculated. You should not have resorted to a fast even against Aminbhai. Your duty was and is to continue doing service. You could have told Aminbhai to consult me.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 9032. Also C.W. 9156. Courtesy: Prabhakar Parekh

68. LETTER TO PRABHAVATI

September 3, 1945

CHI. PRABHA,

I have your letter. I shall decide when we meet. Come whenever you can. I shall be here after 20th of September. Even if I have to go to Bombay it will be for a couple of days for the meeting. I do not really wish to go.

I had a letter from Priyamvada. I have written to you about it.\(^2\) Give your name. You do not have to do any work right now.

As for Father\(^3\), I wish he would be freed from it. If I had my way I would stop all medicines. Don’t you even get lemons there? Mix water and honey in lime juice. It is enough to mix two tea-spoonfuls of honey in 16 ounces of water. Let him sip as much of it as he can.

Rajkumari came yesterday.\(^4\)

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 3581

\(^1\) Vide “Letter to Jatindas M. Amin”, 2-9-1945
\(^2\) Vide “Letter to Prabhavati”, 30-8-1945
\(^3\) Brajkishore Prasad
\(^4\) Amrit Kaur, however, reached Poona on September 1.
69. LETTER TO GANESHSHASTRI JOSHI

To be delivered by hand  September 3, 1945

Bhai Ganeshshastri,

There is too much of cholera around Sevagram. What does Ayurveda have to say? People are succumbing to the disease every day; how can we then promptly cremate the bodies? Where to find all the firewood? How quickly and in what manner should the body be removed? If they are to be buried, how should it be done and by whom? Please think over the problem. Send a reply or meet Dr. Sushila and discuss the matter with her. Be prompt.

Blessings from

Bapu

From a photostat of the Hindi: C.W. 933. Courtesy: Ganeshshastri Joshi

70. LETTER TO SHYAMLAL

September 3, 1945

Bhai Shyamlal,

I have your two letters. One regarding resolution No 209 and the other about Krishna District. Both suggestions are accepted.

M. K. Gandhi

Shri Shyamalji
Kasturba Smarak
Bajajwadi, Wardha

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

71. LETTER TO POONAMCHAND RANKA

September 3, 1945

Bhai Poonamchand,

Your letter is interesting. Get well. Engross yourself in constructive work. Learn and also teach all the processes of [making] yarn.

Blessings from

Bapu

Sheth Poonamchand Ranka
Ranka Kuti
Shanker Colony, Nagpur

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
72. LETTER TO ALI REZA DABEER

September 3, 1945

Bhai Saheb,

I have your letter. There are hundreds of thousands of Muslims who do not speak or write Urdu. It is wrong to say that Urdu is the language of Muslims. There are Hindus in the Punjab, Kashmir and the U. P., etc., who speak Urdu. The Muslim prayer is recited not for anybody’s sake but because of my personal wish. It is a different thing if you refuse to overlook the mistakes that may occur while writing Urdu or reciting the prayer. God does not notice slips of the tongue. He sees only the purity of heart.

Yours,

BAPU

JANAB ALI REZA DABEER
2405 EAST STREET
CAMP, POONA

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

73. LETTER TO SANKARAN

September 3, 1945

Chh. Sankaran,

I am glad that the cholera has subsided to some extent. Try to find its root. Do you cremate or bury the dead? From what I hear, it seems people are running away.

All of you should be engaged in serving the patients. Do you get any help from the Ashram? Have you asked for it or have no need for it?

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
74. LETTER TO GOKULCHAND NARANG

September 3, 1945

Bhai Gokulchand Narang,

I have read your letter. I am helpless. I reply only when I am asked. Hardly ever about elections. I have very little interest in them.

Yours,

M. K. Gandhi

Dr. Gokulchand Narang
Savoy Hotel
Mussorie

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

75. LETTER TO PRABODH RANJAN GHOSH

September 3, 1945

Bhai Prabodh Ranjan,

I feel sorry for you. If you don’t have money, ask Dr. Roy. Only he can help.

Vandemataram from

M. K. Gandhi

Shri Prabodh Ranjan Ghosh
P. O. Madanipur
District Faridpur (Bengal)

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

76. LETTER TO DEVDAS GANDHI

Poona,
September 4, 1945

Chi. Devdas,

I have your postcard. Do come over. Rajkumari had a talk with me. She wrote to you only yesterday. I hope you are all right.

Blessings from

Bapu

Shri Devdas Gandhi
Bombay

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Barrister from Lahore; Minister, Local Self-Government in the Punjab
77. LETTER TO G. N. KANITKAR

September 4, 1945

Bhai Balukaka,

How can anyone feel insulted if I do not see him? How can you feel insulted?

I know my duty with regard to Satara¹. I am following it. What I am doing is not for the satisfaction of anyone.

Vandemataram from
M. K. Gandhi

Bhai Balukaka Kanitkar
341 Sadashiv
Poona

From a photostat of the Hindi: C.W. 974. Courtesy: Gajanan Kanitkar

78. TELEGRAM TO BASANTI DEVI DAS

Poona,

September 5, 1945

Basantidevi Das²
Russaroad
Calcutta

Attending Haridas³ case. Hope you well.

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Where, as in several other places, British administration had been put out of action during the Quit India movement and a parallel administration known as Patri Sarkar had been set up. According to Bombay Secret Abstracts, instances of gangster activity by underground agitators had been reported in a Government Press note and Gandhiji had discussions with Maharashtra Congress leaders on September 1 on the situation in Satara.

² Widow of C. R. Das

³ Haridas Mitra, who was under a sentence of death; vide "Letter to Lord Wavell", 14-9-1945
79. LETTER TO BHUPENDRA NATH SENGUPTA

POONA,
September 5, 1945

MY DEAR BHUPEN,

I have your letter. I must not tax myself to give you a detailed answer. You must revert to it when we meet or remind me later, if time fails to solve the puzzles. When I go to Bengal I won’t have a large party with me. Who will be there, I do not know.

Love.

BAPU

SHRI B. N. SENGUPTA

99/2 BALLYGUNGE PLACE
CALCUTTA

From a photostat: G.N. 10066

80. LETTER TO ANNE MARIE PETERSEN

September 5, 1945

MY DEAR MARIA,

I have got all your papers now. I see that it is nobody’s fault at the Centre. Anyway I am on the track now.

Love.

SMT. MISS MARIA PETERSEN
SEVA MANDIR, PORTO NOVO
SOUTH INDIA

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

81. LETTER TO SHYAMLAL

September 5, 1945

BHAI SHYAMLAL,

I have your letter about Assam. Pass the budget for Rs. 810. As for the rest, wait till you get the Committee’s report.¹

¹ Vide “Letter to Amalprabha Das”, 10-9-1945

38
THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
See if Gopalaswami has replied about Miss Petersen.

Blessings from

M. K. GANDHI

SHRI SHYAMLALJI
SECRETARY, KASTURBA MEMORIAL
BAJAIWADI
WARDHA

From the Hindi original: Kasturba Gandhi National Memorial Trust Papers.
Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library

82. CABLE TO PULINSEAL

POONA,
September 6, 1945

PULINSEAL
93 REGENT STREET
LONDON

REFERRING YOUR CABLE NEHRU.

GANDHI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

83. LETTER TO INAYATULLAH KHAN¹

POONA,
September 6, 1945

I am exceedingly sorry that I misplaced your letter and have been the cause of troubling you to send me a copy. I have now read the same and I had your telegram also about it. My personal opinion is that there should be no distribution of seats but that elections should be on a basis of adult suffrage and only one electorate. But mine is a voice in the wilderness. Therefore, I am afraid, it will not count among divided counsellors. You claim to represent 300 million. Congress is also a representative organization; so is the Muslim League and many other organizations. You have, therefore, to secure their co-operation.

I have been much misunderstood when I have asserted that I claim no representative capacity. That I have influence over some persons does not make me a representative. I would therefore urge you to secure the co-operation, if you can, of the Congress and the Muslim League.

¹ The Khaksar leader popularly known as Allama Mashriqui. An Urdu translation of the letter was sent to the addressee.

I am sending this, as desired by you, to Dastagir Sahib and posting you a copy.

M. K. GANDHI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

84. LETTER TO AHMED DASTAGIR

September 6, 1945

AHMED DASTAGIR SAHEB,

As promised I am sending a letter to you for Allama Saheb. I had your letter. You can come over whenever you wish to. Today I have Allama Saheb’s letter and a copy of his earlier letter. As desired by him, I have written to him also.

MOHAN K. GANDHI

From a copy of the Urdu: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

85. LETTER TO HEMENDRA K. SHAH

September 6, 1945

Bhai Hemendra Shah,

I have gone through your letter. I am no longer interested in that subject. I have expressed my views in the introduction to Varnavyavastha. Only those who are well versed in the subject can give their opinion.

Vandemataram from

M. K. GANDHI

SHRI HEMENDRA KISHORENASH SHAH
ACHRATBAI SANATORIUM
OPPOSITE STATION
KANDIVALI, B.B. & C.I.RLY.

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Ahmed Dastagir; vide the following item.
2 Vide the preceding item.
3 According to the Bombay Secret Abstracts the addressee, deputed by Allama Mashriqui, discussed with Gandhiji in the week beginning September 8 the draft constitution framed by the former.
4 Vide “Introduction to “Varnavyastha” “
86. LETTER TO G. N. KANITKAR

September 6, 1945

BHAJ BALUKAKA,

I have your letter. What can I do? You possess a long pen. I have nothing.

Vandemataram from

M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat of the Hindi: C.W. 975

87. TELEGRAM TO KISHORELAL G. MASHRUWALA

Express

POONA,

September 7, 1945

MASHRUWALA
ASHRAM SEVAGRAM
WARDHA

YOUR LETTER. SORRY. TELL SANKARAN AMIN SHOULD WILLINGLY OBEY YOUR INSTRUCTIONS. THEY OUGHT TO WORK WHOLEHEARTEDLY DURING CHOLERA. SUSHILA WILL GO THERE AFTER SUNDAY MEDICAL BOARD MEETING WHICH SHE MUST ATTEND.

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

88. LETTER TO R. C. HAUFFMANN

POONA,

September 7, 1945

DEAR MR. HAUFFMANN,

Your letter. My further substantiation for my position comes from my own life and that of others, Hindus and non-Hindus who have tried to live the truth that is in us. I wholly accept your statement that just as faith without work is dead so is work without faith and you admit that you have begun to doubt yourself, i. e., your work. Doubt and you are lost. Is it possible to go further and doubt the sacrifice behind your work? My extensive experience tells me that work speaks

1 Vide also “Letter to Sankaran”, 7-9-1945

VOL.88: 30 AUGUST, 1945 - 6 DECEMBER, 1945 41
more effectively than speech which is often deceptive.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

R. C. HAUFFMANN, ESQ.
SECRETARY & TREASURER
BENGAL CHRISTIAN COUNCIL RELIEF FUND
13 WELLINGTON SQUARE
C/O LEE MEMORIAL MISSION
CALCUTTA

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

89. LETTER TO SANKARAN
September 7, 1945

CHI. SANKARAN,

I am pained as well as surprised by what I hear about you. If you have to be told at every step, there is no point in telling you anything. Scolding Prabhakar, not listening to Kishorelalbhai and lastly refusing to work when cholera is widespread, all this is unworthy of you. I have sent a telegram today. If you can quietly serve at the Ashram, do so, otherwise leave it and go wherever you wish to. Realize that everyone is our master and we are servants.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI SANKARAN
SEVAGRAM

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

90. LETTER TO MANAHAR DIWAN
September 7, 1945

BHAI MANAHAR,

I have your telegram regarding Shastriji’s [death]. I am very happy that he has been released. My faith grows stronger that it cannot be dharma to live or to keep someone alive some how or other.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Vide “Telegram to Kishorelal G. Mashruwala”, 7-9-1945
91. LETTER TO P. C. JOSHI

NATURE CURE CLINIC,
6 TODIWALA ROAD,
POONA,
September 8, 1945

DEAR JOSHI,

Your letter of 5th instant. And I had a chat with Kumaramangalam.

I do not wish to prolong our correspondence. Your letter seems to me like an invitation to say, ‘I am sorry I took as much interest as I did in your party’s doings.’ The invitation notwithstanding, I must go my way under the self-imposed limitations.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

SHRI P. C. JOSHI
COMMUNIST PARTY
BOMBAY

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

92. LETTER TO BIBHAWATI BOSE

September 8, 1945

DEAR SISTER,

I have your warm invitation. But my work this time would take me to Sodepur. Of course I shall hope to come to your house some time during my stay. Hope you are well.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

MRS. BIBHAWATI BOSE
1 WOODBURN PARK
CALCUTTA

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

93. LETTER TO KANU GANDHI

September 8, 1945

CHI. KANU,

I got a letter from you after many days. I will merely say that Ramdas must get well soon. You cannot afford to fall ill.

Blessings to you all from

BAPU

Shri Kanu Gandhi
C/o Ramdas Gandhi
Khalasi Line
Nagpur

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 9520. Courtesy: Kanu Gandhi

94. LETTER TO KAILAS D. MASTER

September 8, 1945

Chi. Kailas,

I have not been able to write to you. Since you have settled down I am no longer worried. As I have a lot of work, I write only to those to whom I must. Why are you still so restless? Do good service and earn merit. Teach others such as Hoshiaribehn. Keep writing to me

Blessings from

Bapu

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Gourtesy: Pyarelal

95. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

September 8, 1945

Chi. Munnalal,

I got your letter. There is no need for you to write anything to Ramnarayanji.

I advise you to go on serving silently, speaking only when you must.

Kanchan’s problem is a difficult one. It can be made easy if you come to a firm decision and act upon it.

I understand about Hiramani. You should write nothing to Ambegaonkar. Let him go to court. If he comes to me, I will see.

Forget about Vina.

Sushilabehn is going there and will do what is necessary about the hospital.
I am very hard pressed for time and, therefore, content myself with this short letter.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 8435. Also C.W. 5596. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

96. LETTER TO SANKARAN

September 8, 1945

CHI. SANKARAN,

I have read your letter. From the very beginning you have not been behaving well. I have also told you about it, but I have not been able to understand you. You had better do some independent work if you can[not] live there and work peacefully in a spirit of service. I shall not be satisfied simply because at present everything is going on smoothly. Now Sushilabehn is going over there. She will tell you more.

Blessings from
BAPU

[PS.]

Your duty is to do what Prabhakar tells you. You may be more knowledgeable, but he is richer in human qualities.

SHRI SANKARAN
SEVAGRAM ASHRAM

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

97. LETTER TO HOSHIARI

September 8, 1945

CHI. HOSHIARI,

You are doing a lot of work. If Krishnachandra cannot teach you, take lessons from anyone else, man or woman. May you and Gajraj make progress.

Blessings from
BAPU

HOSHIARI
ASHRAM, SEVAGRAM

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
98. LETTER TO PRABHAKAR PAREKH

September 8, 1945

CHI. PRABHAKAR,

Aminbhai may go to Karachi or do hospital work at Sevagram itself. I think it is worth giving him the necessary help for our work.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI PRABHAKAR
ASHRAM, SEVAGRAM

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

99. LETTER TO KISHORELAL G. MASHRUWALA

September 9, 1945

CHI. KISHORELAL,

I have your letter and also the telegram. Sushila left in the morning and I think she will leave for [Sevagram] today itself. I can’t stop her from going even if I want to. Moreover, I want her to go and look you up. Your letter suggests that quarrels are still going on there. Your blood-pressure is lower than it should be. I should not worry but I am not happy about it. That is why it is good that Sushila is going there. I have faith in her competence.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
100. TELEGRAM TO G. D. BIRLA

POONA,
September 10, 1945

GHANSHYAMDAS BIRLA
CARE LUCKY
CALCUTTA

WILL KNOW WHEN GHOSH\(^1\) COMES HERE. HOPE YOU WELL\(^2\).

BAPU

From the original: C.W. 7872. Courtesy: G. D. Birla

101. LETTER TO CHIEF SECRETARY, GOVERNMENT OF C. P.

NATURE CURE CLINIC,
6 TODIWALA ROAD, POONA,
September 10, 1945

THE CHIEF SECRETARY
CENTRAL PROVINCES AND BERAR GOVERNMENT
NAGPUR

DEAR SIR,

I enclose herewith a statement of the claim\(^3\) by the Gram Seva Mandal, Nalwadi, Wardha. You will notice that it has been very carefully prepared and contains only an account of what with ordinary care could have been avoided by Government men. In my opinion, such losses Cannot be covered by any extraordinary measure.

Yours truly,

Enclosure: 1

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

\(^1\) Sudhir Ghosh
\(^2\) The source has “will”, obviously a slip.
\(^3\) The reference is to the property of the Nalwadi and Paunar Ashrams which had been confiscated by the Government and presumably returned in response to Gandhiji’s letters to the addressee. Vide “Letter to Chief Secretary, Government of C. P.”, 20-11-1944
102. LETTER TO V. A. SUNDARAM

POONA,

September 10, 1945

CHI. SUNDARAM, 1

The thought for Monday is good. Love to you all.

BAPU

From a photostat: G.N. 3196

103. NOTE TO AMRIT KAUR

September 10, 1945

Did you sleep well? Have your food as well here as in Manorville 2. Therefore, if you had fruit there in the morning or whatever it was, you should have here.

From a photostat: C.W. 4207. Courtesy: Amrit Kaur. Also G.N. 7843

104. NOTE TO AMRIT KAUR

September 10, 1945

I have gone through it in a hurry. You should read it carefully, suggest corrections, and when I have seen them, dispatch.

From the original: C.W. 4206. Courtesy: Amrit Kaur. Also G.N. 7842

105. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

September 10, 1945

CHI. MUNNALAL,

Your admission of your mistake 3 is quite frank. Forget about it now. There is no point in dwelling upon it. Tell the persons concerned. That is, write to Vina and Khimji. I will show the letter to Abha. The main thing with regard to Babla 4 is that our stand should be clarified. I will not harass you about the Ashram.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 8434. Also C.W. 5597. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

1 The superscription is in Tamil.
2 Addressee’s house in Simla
3 Vide “Letter to Munnalal G. Shah”, 1-9-1945
4 Narayan Desai, son of Mahadev Desai
106. LETTER TO RAMANLAL SHAH

September 10, 1945

Bhai Ramanlal,

I have your letter. Do as Gomatibehn tells you. Stay where she decides for you to. I believe that it is for your own good. There is a lot of truth in the saying that faith can move mountains. Faith cannot be induced. It is real only if it comes from within.

Blessings from

Bapu

From the Gujarati original: Ramanlal Shah Papers. Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library

107. LETTER TO KANTA

September 10, 1945

Chi. Kanta,

I have your letter. I am very happy that the child has fully recovered. It is good that you did not come. What could you have gained by meeting me? If you are there, we shall meet when I come over. I shall be happy if you are engrossed in service but that as your dharma, not in order to please me or anyone else.

Blessings from

Bapu

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

108. LETTER TO SUSHILA NAYYAR

September 10, 1945

Chi. Sushila,

I hope you reached there comfortably. Just now there is a telegram from Kishorelal saying that you need not go. But it is good that you are there. Enclosed is a letter from Krishnavarma. It is about cholera. Go through it. He has sent some medicine. I am not forwarding the newspaper [cutting] he has sent.¹

Blessings from

Bapu

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Vide also the following item.
109. LETTER TO KRISHNAVARMA

September 10, 1945

Bhai Krishnavarma,

I am returning your cutting. It is good. You did well in sending the medicine to the Ashram. Sushila has gone to Sevagram for the same reason. I am sending your letter there. Come after the 15th after confirming it. Mama has gone to Panchgani.

Blessings from

BAPU

[PS.]

What do you suggest as regards cremating the dead in the villages?

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

110. LETTER TO MATHURADAS TRIKUMJII

September 10, 1945

This is just to tell you that I hope you are well and that you are not worrying about anything.

[From Gujarati]

Bapuni Prasadi, p. 206

111. LETTER TO SUREN德拉

September 10, 1945

Surendra,

Repeat Ramanama when faith wavers. That will show you the right path. And if you wish to understand all this go to Kishorelal. He is at Sevagram. Just now I shall not send for you. Nothing is certain. I may have to go to Bombay on the 21st. I am trying to avoid it. In October I may have to go to Calcutta. While on my way I will certainly go to the Ashram. You can come then. Nevertheless, if you must, come over here. Faith is not a question of reason. It comes from within. Reason refuses to believe that there is Shankar in every kankar.1

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 “There is God in every pebble.”
112. LETTER TO AMRITLAL V. THAKKAR
September 10, 1945

BAPA,

I have two letters before me. Do get Rajkumari’s pamphlet published in other languages. The Santiniketan people are doing it in Bengali. Most probably Sucheta will not go there. I am thinking about it. We shall get someone. More when we meet.

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

113. LETTER TO CHIMANLAL M. TRIVEDI
September 10, 1945

BHAJ CHIMANLAL,

Your letter. I will not have any time till the 22nd. After that God alone knows.

I know nothing about insurance. You can see Acharya Kumarappa at Maganwadi, Wardha [about this].

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI CHIMANLAL MANKLAL TRIVEDI
ANAND BHUVAN
AMRAVATI ROAD
NAGPUR, C. P.

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

114. LETTER TO CHHAGANLAL JOSHI
September 10, 1945

CHI. CHHAGANLAL,

There is nothing strange in what you have said. I would like to take you somewhere if I have to travel any time. It will be only a question of convenience. Write to me when the time comes.

Blessings to you all from

BAPU

CHI. CHHAGANLAL JOSHI
HARIJAN SEVAK SANGH
RAJEKOT
KATHIWAR

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 To Women
115. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA

September 10, 1945

CHI. KRISHNACHANDRA,

I have your letter. I do not wish to write anything now that Sushilabehn is going there.

If you can trust Parnerkar and he is willing, let him take care of the work on the farm. I can say nothing definite from such a distance. Do as Kishorelalbhai says.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4525

116. LETTER TO AMALPRABHA DAS

September 10, 1945

CHI. AMALPRABHA¹,

I have your letter. I have passed the budget for Rs. 810. I shall pass the other one also but I have had a committee set up for the camp². I want to pass it after making any changes that may be necessary after the committee submits its report. The committee has given me the authority about Assam, so if there is any delay I shall be to blame. But I shall not let that happen.

The purchase of muga³ should be taken in hand. With regard to the method it will be enough if the following things are kept in mind:

1. Let the work of the camp be based on the principle of self-sufficiency. This means that the camp should become self sufficient by the time it is wound up. There would thus be no harm if the camp is kept going for a longer period. Maybe, prolonging it will lead to knowledge becoming richer and deeper.

2. Spinning and the entire processing of cotton should be done with full knowledge.

3. Some good craft should also be taught. That too should be done with full knowledge. There should be perfect cleanliness in the camp as also among individuals.

¹ Daughter of Dr. Das of Gauhati
² Which was subsequently set up at Saraina near Gauhati for Gandhiji’s proposed visit in January 1946
³ A variety of silk yarn
4. The basis of self-sufficiency should be silk.
5. The work of the camp should be done so far as possible by the inmates. Let there be as few servants as possible.
6. The workers, as far as possible, should be women.
7. The camp should be located in or near a village and the life in the camp should resemble the life of the villagers.

I have written this much by way of giving guidelines. The rules that may be received from the central authority must be followed.

What I have written should be sufficient. If not, let me know.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI AMALPRABHA
TALIMI SANGH, SEVAGRAM

From a photostat of the Hindi: C.W. 10389

117. LETTER TO INDUMATI TENDULKAR

September 10, 1945

CHI. INDU,

I got your letter. It is good. I saw the reports of your marriage in the newspapers. I also get some letters. You are right when you say that you and your husband do not wish to answer them. That responsibility lies with me and when the opportunity comes I shall even reply publicly.

You will recover. Don’t take too many drugs. Gunaji is acquainted with nature cure and also believes in it.

I understand about Doctor. It will be good if he devotes himself to work of service. You will both prove that marriage can also further the cause of service.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI INDUMATI TENDULKAR
THALAKWADI, BELGAUM1

From a photostat of the Hindi: C.W. 10948. Courtesy: Indumati Tendulkar. Also Pyarelal Papers

1 The address is from a copy in Pyarelal Papers:
118. LETTER TO MANAHAR DIWAN

September 10, 1945

Bhai Manahar,

I have your second letter. All has ended well with Shastriji. I sent a telegram and also a letter.¹ God alone can reward you for your services. But you don’t Want any, do you?

Blessings from

Bapu

Shri Manahar Diwan
Duttapur

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

119. LETTER TO YASHODHARA DASAPPA

September 10, 1945

Chiti. Yashodhara,

I have your letter. Of course you have my blessings for your work. Let us see if your work draws me to Mysore or not. Now Ramdas moves around with Nanavati. I hope you are all right. Are both of you learning the Nagari and the Urdu scripts?

Blessings to you both from

Bapu

Shri Yashodhara Dasappa
Kasturba Trust
V. V. Mohalla, Mysore

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

120. LETTER TO JATINDAS M. AMIN

September 10/11, 1945

Chiti. Amin,

Only today I got your letter.

Sushila has been in the Ashram for a day already because she had left Bombay [for Sevagram] yesterday. She did not stop even for a minute after the meeting.

I have no doubt that you are doing solid work. You have

¹ Vide”Letter to Manahar Diwan”, 7-9-1945
yourself admitted that you get excited too soon. Those who get excited in this way cannot render much service. You had better get rid of anger. Of course Bhansali appreciates your work but your work should be its own reward. Don’t let there be any shortcoming for want of appreciation from others. I know that you have a great capacity for work. Rest assured that it will increase a lot if you give up your vanity. You belong to the Ashram and I wish that you should not leave it. The Ashram should be like a mother to you. How long, therefore, can you stay away from it?

Keep writing to me. Show this letter to Sushilabehn, for I am not writing at length to her.

Tell Sankaran that I have his letter. It does not call for a reply.

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

121. LETTER TO M. VISVESVARAYYA

NATURE CURE CLINIC,
6 TODIWALA ROAD, POONA,
September 11, 1945

DEAR SIR VISVESVARAYYA.

I have your letter of the 7th July. I know I am very late in replying to it but it was inevitable. As it is I am sending even this late line under pressure. I appreciate your zeal in the cause you have at heart and marvel at the fact that at your time of life you throw into your work so much energy and thought. There, however, my appreciation, I fear, stands.

Of course, verbally our objectives appear the same but when I look at our means, the difference seems to me to be unbridgeable. It may be that both of us being old and hardened are unable to see eye to eye. If you regard South Africa as an elongated part of the West, I have passed the best part of my life in the West. I have seen people, high and low, working with amazing speed and with the most modern machinery, the income of the commonest European labourer being higher than that of the American. Yet it was there that I learnt to recoil from their method and manner. They preyed upon the misery of the

1 Mokshagundam Visveswaraya (1861-1962); engineer and statesman; ex-Dewan of Mysore

VOL.88: 30 AUGUST, 1945 - 6 DECEMBER, 1945 55
Negro, holding him and his wife as beasts of burden. Things, therefore, that attract you do not attract me but rather repel me. Much as I would love to work as a humble co-worker side by side with you, I cannot.

Your detailed, patient replies carefully prepared, fail to convince me. What is the use of taxing you further with my questions? Let me tell you that I claim to have been working schemes fairly successfully among the village population with well-knit organizations. Nearly four crores (as I can recall) have been distributed among the villagers, not as doles, but for solid work done—and this in the face of heavy odds. Had it not been for the opposition of the Government and their unreasoned wrath after the August of 1942, the said organizations would have shown greater results. But I cannot expect you with your Krishnasagar marvels to your credit even to look at my scheme. I can, therefore, only conclude by expressing my eagerness to follow not your scheme but your solid work and learn from it, if I see anything to learn.

I hope you are keeping perfectly well and fit.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

SIR M. VISVESVARAYYA, K.C.I.E.
UPLANDS, HIGH GROUND
BANGALORE

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

122. LETTER TO CHIMANLAL N. SHAH

September 11, 1945

CHI. CHIMANLAL,

I got your letter. Sushila must have arrived there. If Jajuji engages Ramprasad in place of Motilal Rathi and Ramprasad takes up the work, I will welcome it. I do not understand Ramprasad asking for still higher pay, but if Jajuji decides to increase it I will not object. I myself will not be able to decide in the matter. If Ramprasad undertakes to look after the construction of the building, will the couple stay there or continue to stay in the Ashram? This also will have to be decided by you.

1 For Gandhiji’s questions, vide “Letter to M. Visvesvaraya”, 12-6-1945
I don’t need further particulars about the sum of Rs. 5,000 received through Rasiklal. Permit it to be used for the Harijan work planned by Bapa. I have an impression that he suggested its being used in Kathiawar.

Now about Sharma. I have gone through the correspondence sent by you. Continue the correspondence and let me know the result. Chi. Kanaiyo has arrived. He broke his journey at Surat to see Sharda. He says that again she is having low temperature.

I think I have answered all the Points.

Blessings from
BAPU

---

123. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA

POONA,
September 11, 1945

CHI. KRISHNACHANDRA,

I have your letter. Now that Sushilabehn is there, nothing is left for me to write.

Blessings from
BAPU

---

124. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

POONA,
September 12, 1945

CHI. NARANDAS,

I got your letter and the statement. You will see that I have made many changes in the statement. I do hope that you will understand the reasons behind them. They do not violate the existing rules of the Charkha Sangh. Just now my advice to you is that you may follow the practice of offering 1 per cent discount to any member buying khadi worth Rs. 100 from the store which you are running or the stores which are being run under your supervision in Kathiawar. If the Charkha Sangh accepts this rule, it should decide to buy khadi only from the stores under the control of the respective branches. If, instead, a member from Kanyakumari wants to buy khadi from a store under the Punjab branch, there will be a danger of extensive malpractices.

Your scheme does have my blessings, of course. I will, moreover, definitely send something with anybody from here going there.

Balasaheb Kher is engaged on the 2nd and the 3rd. He, therefore, cannot come. He has suggested the following names in his place. Narahari Parikh, Morarji Desai, Kaka Kalelkar, Dada Mavalankar. From among them Kaka Kalelkar is here. I met him. I think he will be able to give the maximum work. Narahari cannot be spared at all just now. He has taken upon himself a lot of work. Kaka can arrive there on the 1st and must return on the 4th. He will not, therefore, be able to undertake a long tour there. He has agreed to attend an important meeting in Bombay on the 6th.

You are entering your 60th year today, but according to me you should aspire to live for another 60 years still. You may, therefore, be said to have completed half the journey. Only today I read in a book that a man should aspire to live 150 years. Even if the millions could entertain such an aspiration, it would be meaningless, for the condition affixed is that the person concerned should spend all these years in service in the spirit of yajna, that is, without attachment. It is an extremely difficult job to practise non-attachment. But anybody who can cultivate it is sure to live up to 125, and you have the ability to cultivate it.¹

Blessings from
BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./II. Also C.W. 8629. Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi

125. LETTER TO SHRIKRISHNADAS JAJU
September 12, 1945

Bhai Jajuji,

I am sending Narandas’s statement and his letter along with this. Go through it and if you think that what he has stated is right, we should try to have such members from all over the country. I think it is almost impossible to implement what he has suggested regarding the Congress as we do not have the required atmosphere. If we succeed in getting [enough] members we may be able to create the atmosphere. That is to say the Charkha Sangh has to impress the Congress by its own work. We have to devise the ways of gaining the strength to do so.

¹ Vide also the following item.

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

126. LETTER TO LORD WAVELL

NATURE CURE CLINIC,
6 TODIWALA ROAD, POONA,
September 14, 1945

DEAR FRIEND,

I am sorry that I have to worry you almost immediately on your return from London. My only excuse is that my mission is purely humanitarian.

Shri Haridas Mitra, an M.A. of the Calcutta University and the husband of Shri Subhas Chandra Bose’s young niece¹, aged 22 years, is under sentence of death over what appears to be an untenable ground. I have perused the petition for mercy by the uncle of the condemned as also of Advocate Carden Noad. I suggest that they furnish cogent grounds for the exercise of mercy. In any event the case for mercy becomes irresistible in that the war with Japan is over. It will be a political error of the first magnitude if this sentence of death is carried into effect. I rejoiced to learn that you had ordered postponement of execution till after consideration of the case by you on your return.

My attention was drawn to the case by the prisoner’s wife as she has often sung at my prayer meetings when I had the honour of being a guest of Advocate Sarat Chandra Bose whom I am happy to learn the Government of India has ordered to be released.²

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

H. E. THE VICEROY
THE VICEROY’S HOUSE
NEW DELHI

Gandhiji’s Correspondence with the Government, 1944-47, pp. 46-7

¹ Bela Mitra
² Replying to this on September 18, E. M. Jenkins, Private Secretary to the Viceroy, said that the case was “still being considered” by the Governor of Bengal and would “shortly” be submitted to the Viceroy.
127. LETTER TO RANJITSINH HARBHAMJI

POONA, September 14, 1945

BHAI RANJITSINHJI,

I have your letter. It is rather strange that often one cannot distinguish between a friend and a foe. Another strange thing is that you make yourself a foreigner by not writing in your mother tongue.
Why are you deliberately ruining yourself?

Vandemataram from
M. K. GANDHI

SHRI RANJITSINHJI HARBHAMJI
RAVA VILAS
RAIKOT
KATHIAWAR

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

128. LETTER TO SARASWATI GADODIA

POONA, September 14, 1945

CHI. SARASWATI,

I have your long letter. Bhai Hiralal has written to me fully and so I know what he has to say. But he is extremely hot-tempered and I run away from hot-tempered people. That is why I do not interfere in his affairs. Lakshminarayanji¹ has sent the copies of the letters he has written to him. Why should I get involved? And so I shall only say that if you two follow what seems to you pure truth I shall be satisfied.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 5629

¹ Lakshminarayan Gadodia, addressee’s husband, was the Trustee and Treasurer of the nature-cure clinic run by Hiralal Sharma at Khurja.
129. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA

Poona,
September 14, 1945

Chhi. Krishnachandra,

I have your letter. It is well that Munnalal and Prabhakar have gone 12 miles away. I hope they have not gone walking!

It is good that you are giving lessons to Hoshiaribehn. Babaji must be well. It is too bad about Mahars. If the condition worsens let me know.

Blessings from
Bapu

[PS.]

We have to meet Pushpa’s expenses. Whatever money is spent by her on that account should be paid back into her account.

We shall see about Kamle. Balkrishna had fever. He is better now.

Blessings from
Bapu

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4527

130. LETTER TO LAKSHMAN SINGH GELAKOTI

Poona,
September 14, 1945

Bhai Lakshman Singhji,

The cloth you sent has reached Sevagram. It will come here later. It is good you have started spinning and weaving activity. You have my blessings.

Blessings from
Bapu

Lakshman Singh Gelakoti
Teacher, Middle School
Wadeedina
Almora

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
131. LETTER TO DR. B. S. MOONJE

POONA,

September 14, 1945

BHAIMOONJE,

I have your long letter. What is the point of my replying to it? Your views and mine are oceans apart. It is well that we can continue to be friends in spite of the differences. Why is your letter in English? Why not in Marathi or Hindustani?

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

DR. MOONJE
BHONSLIE MILITARY SCHOOL
NASIK
G. I. P. RAILWAY

From the Hindi original: C.W. 9763. Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library

132. SPEECH AT PRAYER MEETING

POONA,

September 14, 1945

This is a place for prayers and not for public meetings. By their foolish and improper behaviour, those who disturbed me and other occupants in the clinic have demonstrated that they did not come for prayer.¹ I know there are people who do not believe in the existence of God. I met them in England and there may be some here. They ask, ‘Where is God?’ and ‘If there is God, why is there so much distress in this world?’ But those who believe in God and prayers cannot show God. We expect that these prayers will have some effect on the minds of those who join us in the prayers.

I know you love your leaders and want to see and hear them. But it is wrong to force them to come out here after the hard work they have been doing or when they have left this place. You will have opportunity to see and hear them at other public meetings. I, therefore, request you to observe discipline during and after prayers. How could we train ourselves for swaraj if we do not keep peace and behave in a disciplined manner?

¹ Some people had created a scene the previous night for seeing Jawaharlal Nehru.

_The Hindu, 16-9-1945_

133. LETTER TO NAWAB OF BHOPAL

(By hand through Chandu Shah)

POONA,

September 16, 1945

DEAR NAWAB SAHEB,

Chandu has just given me your kind note. My sympathies with you in your loss.

I shall expect to hear from you whenever you think the time is opportune.

_I am,_

_Yours sincerely,_

M. K. GANDHI

H. H. NAWAB OF BHOPAL

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

134. LETTER TO JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM

September 16, 1945

MY DEAR JAIRAMDBHAI,

Bapu got your letter today. The telegram of course reached here the day before yesterday. He understands your inability to come here. Bapu says things will go well in regard to the marriage. About the election you may write to Sardar and decide.

You must have received my letter requesting you to compile a selection of Bapu’s articles on the Hindu-Muslim [question]. It would please Bapu too if you could undertake this task. He says that Anand Hingorani will surely be willing to give you every possible help in this work.

_Yours,_

AMRIT KAUR

From the Hindi original: C.W. 11059. Courtesy: Arjun Jairamdas
135. LETTER TO HARSHADA DIWANJI

September 16, 1945

CHI. HARSHADA,

You have not mentioned how many years you have completed. Whatever the number don’t you have now so many years less to live? From this point of view, we should mourn on our birthday. And if one gives blessings, one should do so to express the hope that, if the person has not fully known God in the years that have passed, he will spend the rest of his life in an endeavour to know Him.

Have you started learning the Urdu script? If not, why? I do not remember at all to have ever suffered, let alone suffered much.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI HARSHADABEHN DIWANJI
15TH ROAD
KHAR, BOMBAY

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 10225. Courtesy: Harshada Diwanji

136. LETTER TO MATHURADAS TRIKUMJI

September 16, 1945

I got your note. I remember the bhajan about ‘Jadabharat’ because I used to hum it to myself in South Africa. But I cannot say whether it means the same thing to me as it does to you. Please, therefore, write and let me know.

According to the theory of nature cure, all diseases have one single original cause. If that is true, the statement that “my health is good in other ways” is meaningless. This letter is just to amuse you and myself and also to show you that I think of you every day.

[From Gujarati]

Bapuni Prasadi, p. 207

1 A yogi, described in the Bhagavata, feigning stupidity so as to escape involvement in mundane matters
137. LETTER TO CHAMPA R. MEHTA

September 16, 1945

CHI. CHAMPA,

I have your letter. I understand what you say about the Red Bungalow. It does not create a good impression on me. Doctor had it built at his own expense, but since he has not left a deed, all of you are entitled to claim it as your property. What shall I say about Maganlalbhai? I hope Sarala will fully recover.

CHANDRAKUNJ
JAGNATH PLOT
RAJKOT

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

138. LETTER TO KRISHNAVARMA

September 16, 1945

BHAJ KRISHNAVARMA,

I am sending your letter to Sushilabehn. You have rightly understood the problem of cremating the dead but yours is an old method. Somebody has to devise a new method. This should not be beyond the sphere of nature cure. How to dispose of dead bodies at a place where water comes up after a little digging and wood is not available? We have to go deep into the matter. Come after the A.I.C.C. meeting.

KRISHNAVARMA
NATURE CURE HOSPITAL MALAD

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

139. LETTER TO JAMSHEDJI N. MEHTA

September 16, 1945

BHAJ JAMSHEDJI,

I have your wire. What you say is right but the question is not so easy as you think.

JAMSHEDJI NASSERWANJI MEHTA
KARACHI

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Near Sabarmati Ashram
2 Dr. Pranjivandas Mehta and his youngest son
3 ibid
4 This was presumably in reply to Gandhiji’s letter dated September 10 to the addressee; vide “Letter to Krishnavarma”, 10-9-1945
140. LETTER TO KANU GANDHI

September 16, 1945

CHI. KANAM,

I have your letter. I am glad to know that you are going to Vinoba. Learn Sanskrit well and of course Urdu also. Don’t spoil your health by trying to go too fast.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI KANU GANDHI
C/O SHRI RAMDAS GANDHI
KHALASI LINES
NAGPUR

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

141. LETTER TO BENARSIDAS CHATURVEDI

September 16, 1945

BHAI BENARSIDAS,

Your letter has pained me. But it is not proper to resign on that account. Merely giving up sugar, etc., will not do. Acquiring control over the mind is quite another matter.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 2517

142. LETTER TO KHWAJA SAHEB

POONA,
September 16, 1945

JANAB KHWAJA SAHEB,

I have your letter of the 7th instant. Maulana Saheb told me that you had written a similar one to him also. Maulana Saheb will do the needful in the matter but all the same I am thankful to you for writing to me in such detail.

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

From the Urdu original: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Editor of Vishal Bharat and writer; worked with Totaram Sanadhya and C. F. Andrews for the welfare of Indians settled abroad

2 The subscription is from a copy in Hindi available in Pyarelal Papers.
143. NOTE TO AMRIT KAUR

September 17, 1945

How are you today? Your obstinacy is harmful. This is the place where it is likely that your throat trouble might go. Any way Dinshaw should be tried. He won’t do any injury. No medicine will have to be swallowed. “Pride goeth before destruction and haughtiness before a fall”, whatever that may mean.

From the original: C.W. 4165. Courtesy: Amrit Kaur. Also G.N. 7801

144. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

POONA,
September 17, 1945

CHI. MUNNALAL,

I got your letter. You raise ridiculous objections. You yourself have admitted that you write long letters. I drew your attention to it merely to correct you.

There is no question of my being offended. I had read the portion regarding Parnerkar, I had no comment to make on it. Something can be done only after I return there. I have in any case written to Parnerkar.¹ I myself feel confused.

You yourself told me that you speak too much. You lose patience and get angry. If you forget this fact, how will you be able to reform yourself? You work hard enough, but spoil everything by speaking too much. Won’t you admit this? What matters in the prayer is the tune. It is a matter of common sense as to what should be done when your voice is not in tune with that of others or the voices of others are not in tune with yours. Praying therefore is not the remedy. The question is of knowing the tune.

Go on serving. I learnt much from the cholera. Let others also do the same.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 8433. Also C.W. 5598. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

¹ Vide “Letter to Y. M. Parnerkar”, 29-8-1945
145. LETTER TO RAMNARAYAN CHOWDHARY

September 17, 1945

CHI. RAMNARAYAN,

I have your letter and also the one to Rajkumari. I see that from all quarters and in every way you got only injustice. Have you ever paused to think that when we seem to suffer injustice from all quarters, the weakness may really be our own, viz., of seeing wrong in others? Did you take up goseva only because of Jamnalalji or me and not for your own sake? Your faith seems superficial. May you all stay well. It is good that you are yourself teaching the girls.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI RAMNARAYAN CHOWDHARY
SHRI ANAND COTTON MILL
NEAR SARASPUR DARWAJA
AHMEDABAD

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

146. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA

September 17, 1945

CHI. KRISHNACHANDRA,

I have your letter. Rajkumari and Shantabehn have come.

Let the committee decide about chillies. It seems right to give chillies to those who stay in the Ashram without being its members or to those for whom the doctor may recommend it. Chi. Kailas has come to observe all the rules of the Ashram. She should not desire to break them. It is another matter if the doctor recommends it on grounds of health.

There should be no compulsion at all.
There is no letter from Parnerkarji so far.
Balkrishna cannot be said to be out of the wood yet.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4528

1 Kailas D. Master
147. LETTER TO PRITHVI SINGH AZAD
September 17, 1945

BHAI PRITHVI SINGH,

I have read your letter\(^1\) from beginning to end. Even though the signature is yours the language is not yours. Nor is the handwriting yours. I have already written to Joshiji\(^2\). I cannot go into the facts. I shall do as God prompts me.

Yours,
M. K. GANDHI

[PS.]

You say you have showed the letter to Nathji\(^3\). Let him write to Kishorelalbhai if he can testify to the facts. He would probably investigate and if Nathji wants it, I feel he would certainly do it.

M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 5655. Also C.W. 2966. Courtesy: Prithvi Singh Azad

148. LETTER TO VINA CHATTERJEE
September 17, 1945

CHI. VINA,

I have your letter. You will have to wait for your mother’s sake. I remember to have already written to you. If not, it may be due to oversight. I feel your going to Calcutta is a waste but your heart is there and, if Sailen bears the expense, you can go. Maybe, it would be better if you went after your marriage. I won’t be able to help you in this. I hope you are all right.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

\(^1\) Defending the policy of the Communist Party of India
\(^2\) P. C. Joshi; vide “Letter to P. C. Joshi”. 8-9-1945
\(^3\) Kedarnath Kulkarni
149. LETTER TO HOSHIARI

September 17, 1945

Chh. Hoshiari,

I hope you and Gajraj are well. I am glad you are doing good work. Does Gajraj know how to write? He should do every day some writing, reading and spinning. And whatever he does, he should do well.

Blessings from

Bapu

Ashram Sevagram

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

150. LETTER TO ANUGRAH NARAYAN SINGH

September 17, 1945

Bhai Anugrahbabu,

I have your letter. I will use the medicine when it comes. If the medicine is so effective you must say how it is made. It is dharma not to make a business out of it.

Blessings from

Bapu

Anugrah Narayan Singh
Kadam Kuan
Patna, Bihar

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

151. LETTER TO BALVANTSINHA

September 17, 1945

Chh. Balvantsinha,

I have your letter. I have time only to acknowledge it. I continue to get letters from Hoshiari. She is fine. You must be well.

Blessings from

Bapu

Shri Balvantsinha
Kisan Ashram
P. O. Bahadarabad, via Jwalapur
U. P.

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 1967
152. LETTER TO MIRABEHN

September 17, 1945

CHI. MIRA,

Just to say I have your letter,

Love.

BAPU

From a photostat: G.N. 1967. Also Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

153. LETTER TO P. RAMAMOORTHY

September 19, 1945

DEAR RAMAMOOURTHY,

I have your letter. I must not argue with you. If the Congress exploits Harijans instead of serving them, the Congress will have to pay dearly for it. I believe in the universal law that the exploiter digs his own grave.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

SHRI PAMU RAMAMOORTHY
CHEDILAPORE
RAMARAOPETA, COCANADA

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

154. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

September 19, 1945

CHI. NARANDAS,

I like the above statement. I feel that swaraj lies in its complete observance.

This is in reply to your postcard, for publication with the statement or below it.

I will of course send something with Kakasaheb.

Blessings from
BAPU

[PS.]

Kanaiyo is in Bombay. I hope you have recovered.

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./II. Also C.W. 8630. Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi

1 This is a postscript to the letter to Balvantsinha, vide the preceding item.
2 For the Charkha Jayanti
155. LETTER TO GAJANAN NAiK

September 19, 1945

CHI. GAJANAN,

I have your letter.
I cannot take Kamath with me. I will not be able to help him.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI GAJANAN
MAGANWADI
WARDHA, C. P.

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

156. LETTER TO PRABHAvATI

September 19, 1945

CHI. PRABHA,

You are silly. What was so private in your letter? My plans are a little uncertain. For the present stay on there and read what you can. Let me know what you read. I intend to go to Bengal in October. Meet me then. In the mean time I am sure you will continue to write to me. See that you keep in good health. You must serve on the Kasturba Committee.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 3582

157. A NOTE

September 19, 1945

Following the saying that “Where there are no trees the castor-oil-plant is held supreme”, I welcome this scheme.

M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 4089

1 The letter is in the Devanagari script.
158. A NOTE

September 19, 1945

I hope people will respond to this appeal.

M. K. GANDHI

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

159. LETTER TO SHYAMLAL

POONA,

September 19, 1945

BHAII SHYAMLAL,

I got your letter of the 7th instant a few days ago. In one of the circulars I see that people have been asked to send their replies by the 21st or 22nd September at the time of the Committee’s meeting. If the pamphlet was to be sent only after you got my reply, then the time is over. Till today I have not been able to read the pamphlet. And ever if I had sent my reply, I think it would have been impossible to send the circulars to all the Provinces and get their replies in time. How can we work in such haste? And it is almost impossible for me to send my reply by return of post. At times I could reply to brief letters but not always. What shall we do in such a situation? It would be better not to wait for my permission for what is to be done urgently and in case it is imperative to have my permission I should be informed telegraphically. Then perhaps it would be possible for me to keep the reply ready.

I have gone through all the circulars. I think there is no need for any amendment. If the circulars are not sent as yet, change the dates and send them out and they should be placed before the Committee’s next meeting or a copy should be sent to all after getting the reply.

Yesterday I got Suchetabehn’s letter. I am enclosing it. It should be kept in the office and a copy should be sent to Bapa. It would be better that she gives us a trial and we give her a trial for three months. And later on she can stay permanently if she is prepared to. She can keep travelling between Allahabad and Wardha. I don’t find any objection to that. Just now there is no need to fix any salary for her.

1 Gandhiji wrote this under an appeal for the Harijan Industrial School fund after revising it.
She has gone to Bombay today. She will meet Bapa there.

I am sending back all the circulars. They may be of some use there.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI SHYAMLAL
KASTURBA SMARAK
WARDHA

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal1 Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

160. LETTER TO SUSHILA NAYYAR
September 19, 1945

CHI. SUSHILA,

It is 9 p.m. just now. But let me write a few lines. I am busy the whole day, except for massage and so on. I am going to Bombay tomorrow night. Shall be back here after staying there for three days.

Your letter is good. The description is vivid. Never mind if we get no help from the Government. Hire a car if it is necessary. We shall see later about buying a car or a lorry.

Pyarelal is the same. What can I add to what you already know?

Blessings from
BAPU

DR. SUSHILA NAYYAR
WARDHA

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

161. CABLE TO “THE TIMES”1
September 21, 1945

NEVER MADE ANY PUBLIC STATEMENT ABOUT ATOMIC BOMB.

GANDHI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 In a cable dated September 19, 1945, from London The Times had sought confirmation of the following report: “Mahatma Gandhi gave message endorsing use of atomic bomb in view fiendish attitude Japanese towards helpless Chinese, Indian prisoners.”
162. LETTER TO AMRABAPA

BIRLA HOUSE BOMBAY,
September 21, 1945

DARBARSHRI,

I got your letter. I also received the sum of Rs. 51 (Rupees fifty-one only). I will give it to Dr. Dinshaw to use it for a charitable purpose.

I have a faint recollection of having met yours father. I wish you complete recovery.

Blessings from
M. K. GANDHI

From the Gujarati original: C.W. 10228. Courtesy: Gajanan Joshi

163. LETTER TO KAILAS D. MASTER

BIRLA HOUSE,
MOUNT PLEASANT ROAD
BOMBAY,
September 21, 1945

CHI. KAILAS,

I got your letter just as I reached Bombay. Your handwriting is good but not clear enough to be read easily. If you write slightly bigger letters and do not mix them up, it will be easier to decipher.

You cannot ride on two horses. A family cannot run properly if all the children stay with the parents all the time. When children grow older, they have to go out for earning, studying or serving. And when they go out, they have to forget their old and ailing parents. So why do you feel unhappy for what is inevitable? When your parents sent you out, they and you yourself must have thought not only that your duty was to serve your parents, but that it was time that you started earning and lessened their burden. That is exactly what you are doing. It is good that you are doing all your work and slowly learning everything. You will bring credit to yourself, your parents and the Ashram if you settle down there, stop worrying and take care of your health.

I am very happy to know that you wanted to have chillies but gave them up on your own. I know that some people are so much

1 Ruler of Thana Devli, a State in Kathiawar used to chillies that they would rather die than give them up. This shows that taking chillies is not a good habit. In India it so happens that the poor cannot afford anything else and they add a few chillies and salt to the *rotla*1 to somehow make it digestible. To conclude from this that all must take chillies is sheer ignorance. When a person takes all kinds of food including rotlas as well, the latter cannot be regarded as part of his diet. On the contrary they may be superfluous and might even prove to be harmful.

_Blessings from_
_BAPU_

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

164. _LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA_
_Sep 21, 1945_

CHI. KRISHNACHANDRA,
I arrived here at 4 o’clock today. I have your letter.

When a person takes beer with two per cent alcohol content and is forbidden to take whisky with 75 per cent alcohol content, can I ask why beer and why not whisky? You must see also that when we drink lemonade or eat things with some alcohol content in them nobody says that we are taking alcohol. Equate chillies with whisky and then consider if chillies can go with turmeric or coriander. Taking spices does not mean consuming all kinds of spices. There is said to be a lot of difference between green chillies and red chillies. It is surprising that all these simple things have escaped your attention. Whatever spices we give, like turmeric, black pepper, coriander, etc., are given on doctor’s recommendation and on grounds of health. Even so, who can prevent anyone from eating for taste, and how can it be done? Have you not heard that a Vaghari2 woman used to relish greatly a two-day stale _bajra_ chapati without _ghee_, but when she was given _kheer_3 and _wheat halwa_4 to eat every day she started shrinking and fell ill in the end. Shall we then say that this Vaghari woman had conquered her palate and subsisted on dry bread, chillies and salt? What else should I write?

---

1 Chapati made from _baejra_ or _jowar_ flour
2 Name of a backward community
3 Sweet preparations
4 _ibid_
Why did you not ask me till today about taking chillies on grounds of health? Of course we do let Shakaribehn have chillies willingly. But how can we give it to others? The reason is not that chillies have no good qualities at all. They certainly have some medicinal value. But chillies have no place in a hospital except as a “pain-killer” which is an extract of chillies. In the Ashram we neither take nor give anything merely for taste. But we do not ask everybody whether they relish what they eat and if they do so they should leave the Ashram. If we take this view, none but animals and birds will be left in the Ashram.

Kamle should somehow calm down and improve his health.

I have already written about Purnachandraji. While living in the Ashram everyone has to observe brahmacharya. I did not know about Ramprasadji. But I was under the impression that Ramprasad’s house was a little away from the other houses of the Ashram. Niamat’s room was also there but she was never asked whether she wanted to observe brahmacharya. But I had thought that Ramprasad had not come to live in the Ashram like Niamat. However, when I came to know that the manner in which they lived they could even produce children I was perturbed. Besides others this is the strongest reason for one to leave the Ashram. His having a separate kitchen also used to irk me. But since this had been allowed in the case of others I could not be too insistent in dissuading him.

It is not enough to assume that Purnachandraji must be observing brahmacharya while staying in the Ashram. It is necessary to ask him clearly.

I hope to go to Poona from here on the 24th.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4529

165. SPEECH AT PRAYER MEETING

BOMBAY,
September 21, 1945

Addressing a few words to the gathering which had waited patiently for prayer time, Gandhiji said that he had taken permission from his doctors to offer prayer under a shelter.¹

¹ Gandhiji had been advised complete rest on account of a mild attack of influenza. He had not been able to attend the A.I.C.C. meeting.
Asking for contributions to the Harijan Fund, Gandhiji said that it would please him more if people came forward with hand-spun yarn instead of cash. He would prepare cloth out of this yarn and sell it to them as that would bring more money. He said Bombay was the first city to contribute yarn. He hoped the citizens would continue this practice.

The Bombay Chronicle, 22-9-1945

166. LETTER TO AMRIT KAUR

BIRLA HOUSE, BOMBAY,

September 23, 1945

CHI. AMRIT,

I have been worrying myself the whole day long over your illness, all the more because I cannot come to you. And now I see that you cannot come to Poona tomorrow. Tell me unreservedly what you will have me to do.

Your obstinacy is remarkable and it is responsible for your suffering. But of that nothing just now. I dare mention this just now so that you might remember this when you are well enough and shed it without ado as you have done in everything else. If you cannot write just pass your answer.

Love,

BAPU

From the original: C.W. 4166. Courtesy: Amrit Kaur. Also G.N. 7802

167. LETTER TO SANATKUMAR K. JOSHI

[Before September 24, 1945]

BHAI SANATKUMAR,

I have your letter. What you say is like a bad workman quarrelling with his tools. If it is true that we can attain swaraj through khadi you should, by taking some trouble, prepare fine slivers. But if you find it difficult to do even that much, we cannot achieve swaraj through ahimsa. It would be no loss either to the country or to the cause of khadi if those who lacked this zeal left khadi alone. As regards your education, you should do what your elder brother says.

---

1 According to the source this was written after September 19 and before September 24.

SANATKUMAR K. JOSHI
JAMIATRAMLNI KHADKI
BROACH

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

168. FOREWORD

Dr. Bharatan Kumarappa has, in his pages on “Villagism”, a new word coined by him, furnished the lay reader and the village worker, not conversant with books on economics, a comparative and historical study of the modern movements known as Capitalism and Socialism, not excluding Marxism and Communism, and has earnestly, and I think convincingly, shown, amongst other reasons advanced by him, that the past two wars of our generation have proved the utter bankruptcy of such economic orders. Incidentally, the wars seem to me to have proved the bankruptcy of war, meaning in forcible and naked language violence, which is not less because it is organized by States reputed to be civilized. Whether non-violence will effectively replace violence for keeping the peace of the world remains to be seen. Certain it is that mankind, if it continues along its mad career of exploitation of the weak by the strong, must rush to annihilation foretold in all religions. Dr. Bharatan Kumarappa shows that “Villagism” as it is being attempted in India, based as it is on truth and non-violence, is well calculated to avert the doom. If the reader is interested in the life-saving process, he must turn to the instructive pages written by Dr. Bharatan Kumarappa during his recent imprisonment.²

M. K. GANDHI

POONA, September 24, 1945

Capitalism, Socialism or Villagism?

¹ To Capitalism, Socialism or Villagism?
² He Was arrested in 1942 and released in January 1945.
169. LETTER TO E. M. JENKINS

BIRLA HOUSE,
MOUNT PLEASANT ROAD, BOMBAY,
September 24, 1945

DEAR SIR EVAN,

I have to thank you for your letter of 18th instant in reply to my letter* about the prisoner Shri Haridas Mitra. I shall await further reply about the case.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

SIR EVAN M. JENKINS, K.C.S.I.
The Viceroy’s House
New Delhi

Gandhiji’s Correspondence with the Government, 1944-47, p. 48

170. LETTER TO KANCHAN M. SHAH

September 24, 1945

CHI. KANCHAN,

You seem to have again fallen seriously ill. Get well fully. It is good that Dr. Lilavati is there.

If you feel better, write to me. Get well soon.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 8263. Also C.W. 6987. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

171. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

September 24, 1945

CHI. MUNNALAL,

What you have reported is a very serious matter. We cannot steal an idol, nor can we hide the fact. Chi. Barin must understand this. We should humbly admit the fact before the village people. This is my [opinion. . . . Do]¹ as Chi. Kishorelal advises. From here I can only express my opinion.

1 Vide “Letter to Lord Wavell”, 14-9-1945

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 8429. Also C.W. 5599. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

172. LETTER TO MATHURADAS TRIKUMJI

September 24, 1945

It hurts me that I shall be leaving this time without seeing you. But in my present weak condition it is best not to go anywhere. I was very happy to learn that your health is better now. I think I will soon regain strength.

[From Gujarati]
Bapuni Prasadi, p. 207

173. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA

BOMBAY,
September 24, 1945

CHI. KRISHNACHANDRA,

I have your letter. You should act in the case of Shastriji along the lines you have indicated regarding Vinoba.

It is sad about Kanchanbehn. Also about Dr. Mahodaya. I am getting ready to catch the train.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4530

174. LETTER TO AMTUSSALAAM²

ON WAY TO POONA,
September 24, 1945

CHI. A. SALAAM,

I got your letter, as also the khadi. What will it matter if you are not with me on the 2nd October. All those who do my work are with me even though they are physically away. Aren’t you doing my work there? You will, moreover, be awaiting my return. Isn’t that enough? Get well soon.

¹ A portion is illegible in the source.
² The letter is in the Devanagari script.

I am fully recovered now. Do not worry about me. Rajkumari has fallen ill. Just now she is better. She is with me in the train. Zohra is in Poona.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 501

175. LETTER TO SATIS CHANDRA DAS GUPTA

ON WAY TO POONA,
September 24, 1945

CHI. SATIS BABU.

I hope you are all right. I have had talks with Prafulla. I may reach there on 2nd November. I shall be having a talk with Sarat Babu. He is coming to Poona. I hope all of you are well.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

176. LETTER TO DHIRENDRRA N. CHATTERJEE

ON WAY TO POONA,
September 24, 1945

CHI. DHIREN,

Yesterday I got your letter. I only wish that everything is all right with you. Give up your forgetfulness. Sodepur¹ is a big educational centre for you. I hope to reach there around November 2. Abha, Kanu and others will be with me.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Khadi Pratishtan at Sodepur, founded by Satis Chandra Das Gupta

82 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
177. LETTER TO SHARDA G. CHOKHAWALA

POONA,
September 25, 1945

CHI. BABUDI,

On reading about the rains there, my thoughts flew to you as if I did not care for the others. Despite every effort to cultivate non-attachment, such things do happen sometimes. I hope you are well. You need not write. It will suffice if Chi. Gordhandas drops a postcard. The poor must have been rendered homeless.

Blessings from
BAPU

From the Gujarati original: 10060. Courtesy: Sharda G. Chokhawala

178. LETTER TO SITARAM PURUSHOTTAM PATWARDHAN

September 25, 1945

BHAI APPA,

I have your letter. I read the description of the Ganga flowing near Rajapur. Keep me informed about what is going on. If the pandas\(^1\) can be influenced by public opinion the case would not go to the court. But if public opinion is of no avail, you must put up a proper defence. If our case is weak, we should not defend it just for the sake of defence. It often happens that morally we are right and if by defending our case our position becomes clearer, in spite of realizing that we will lose in the end, it becomes our dharma to defend it. I have done this quite often and succeeded also. That is why I am putting this before you. I hope Dadasaheb\(^2\) will reach there in time. I do agree with you about the defects you have pointed out, but it is possible that the leaders don’t. At least not all of them. But you have every right to include all those things as defects. I would do so. Now first of all, send all the questions in brief, in Urdu script to Maulana. I think he will send a reply. Let him know your position. After waiting

\(^1\) Priests who officiate at religious ceremonies
\(^2\) G. V. Mavalankar (1888-1956); Speaker, Legislative Assembly, Bombay (1937-45); Speaker, Lok Sabha (1947-56) for sufficient time for a reply, place the questions in public. Do ask Deo’s’ opinion. The whole thing has to be clarified.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

179. LETTER TO MRS. SHUKLA
September 25, 1945

DEAR SISTER,

Chi. Nirmala had come to see me. She told me that you had had a fall and were bed-ridden. I was sorry to learn this. You must be older than I. Get someone to write to me about your health.

Pranams from MOMANDAS

MRS. SHUKLA
BARRISTER SHUKLA’S BUNGALOW
RAJGOT
KATHIWAR

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

180. LETTER TO SUSHILA NAYYAR
September 25, 1945

CHI. SUSHILA,

As I feel stronger after dinner, I am writing this. I hope you will return soon after completing your work there. Except for weakness, there is nothing.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

181. LETTER TO RANI RAJWADE
September 25, 1945

DEAR SISTER,

I just cannot imagine you in widowhood. Raja Saheb passed

1 Shankarrao Deo; member, A.I.C.C. and Congress Working Committee away so suddenly. I have faith in your composure. God will give you forbearance. You should emulate Ramabai Ranade.

Blessings from
BAPU

RANI RAJWADE
POONA

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

182. LETTER TO ANAND SUNDARAM

POONA,
September 26, 1945

CHI. ANAND,

I have your letter. It would not be right to argue that just because I went to England all others should. Should others repeat all mistakes that I have committed? I don’t believe that you can serve India better by studying abroad. To think this is sheer ignorance. To feel that education abroad is the best betrays ignorance.

I do not give my blessings to those who wish to study abroad.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI ANAND SUNDARAM
KRISHNAKUTIR
BENARES HINDU UNIVERSITY

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

(1862-1924), wife of Mahadev Govind Ranade; President of Seva Sadan at Bombay and Poona; worked in Central Relief Committee in 1921; led the movement demanding women’s franchise
183. LETTER TO V. A. SUNDARAM

POONA,
September 27, 1945

CHI. SUNDARAM,¹

What a good thing your sister has passed away painlessly! We must all join her, some soon, some late.

Love.

BAPU

SHRI SUNDARAM
KRISHNAKUTIR
P. O. BENARES HINDU UNIVERSITY

From the original: C.W. 10523. Courtesy: S. R. Venkataraman

184. LETTER TO S. RAMANATHAN

September 27, 1945

DEAR RAMANATHAN,

I have read your letter. You do not want me to argue with you.

Yours sincerely,

BAPU

SHRI S. RAMANATHAN
9 BROADWAY,
MADRAS

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

185. LETTER TO V. S. SRINIVASA SASTRI

September 27, 1945

MY DEAR BIG BROTHER,

I shall treasure your gift. I have read the Preface². What is there to offend me? Jagadisan is right in what he writes. But why could he

¹ The superscription is in Tamil.
² To My Master Gokhale, a collection of the addressee’s writings and speeches on Gopal Krishna Gokhale, compiled by T. N. Jagadisan not avoid errata even in a book of 147 pages?
   Hoping you are well and with love,
            Little Brother

THE RT. HON. V. S. SRINIVASA SATRI
SWAGATAM
MYPALORE, MADRAS

   From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

186. LETTER TO SITA GANDHI
   September 27, 1945

CHI. SITA,
   You write in bold and distinct characters and therefore they look beautiful. Never mind if writing thus takes more time. Ultimately that won’t take much time.

   You must not fail. Do come to me after your examination is over. You must not let the examination weigh on your mind. Why should it when you have worked hard?

   Arun¹ and Ila² are quite cheerful. Arun is still quiet but Ila makes up for it.

   Blessings from
            BAPU

   From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 4956

187. LETTER TO DAHYABHAI M. PATEL
   September 27, 1945

BHAJ DAHYABHAI,
   I have your letter. My advice to you is that you should save the money you would spend on coming here and use it for service.

   Blessings from
            BAPU

SHRI DAHYABHAI PATEL
C/O SHEETH JAMNADAS ADKIA
211-13 KALBADEVI
BOMBAY-2

   From the Gujarati original: C.W. 2714. Courtesy: Dahyabhai H. Patel

¹ Brother and sister of the addressee
² ibid
188. LETTER TO KRISHNAVARMA

September 27, 1945

SHRI KRISHNAVARMA,

We waited a long time for you in Bombay. Now come over whenever you can.

Blessings from

BAPU

DR. KRISHNAVARMA
NATURE CURE HOSPITAL
P. O. MALAD
BOMBAY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

189. LETTER TO MAGANBHAI P. DESAI

September 27, 1945

CHI. MAGANBHAI,

Your letter. As I feared it might rain, I had told Chi. Amritlal what to do. So I am doing nothing more. Go even now if you can.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI MAGANBHAI DESAI
GUJARAT VIDYAPITH
AHMEDABAD
B. B. & C. I. RLY.

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

190. LETTER TO N. VYASTIRTH

September 27, 1945

BHAI VYASTIRTH,

I have your letter. Your spinning activity is laudable. Go on increasing it, learn all the processes preceding spinning.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI N. VYASTIRTH
840 SULTAN BAZAAR
HYDERABAD, DECCAN

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
191. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

September 28, 1945

CHI. NARANDAS,

As Kakasaheb is going there, he himself may be regarded as my message. Still I shall say this: The yajna this time is of a different character. Yarn is taking the place of gold and silver coins. In other words, labour takes the place of currency and claims equality with it. If this new practice is kept up and spreads, it will have effects too far-reaching to be estimated. In this there should be no place for fraud or untruth. Even the best of plans are ruined if they are mixed with fraud or untruth.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./II. Also C.W. 8631. Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi

192. LETTER TO CHIMANLAL N. SHAH

September 28, 1945

CHI. CHIMANLAL,

I enclose herewith Chi. Parnerkar’s letter and also that of Chi. Kishorelal. Both are worth thinking over. The subject matter in each is different and yet the same. Everyone, that is to say, all the institutions there should ponder over K’s letter. How did a saintly person like Kishorelal, working under Parnerkar, accept defeat? Do not get muddled. Leave the letter aside if you are unable to make head or tail of it. Everyone will not benefit by reading it. Only you three should read it. Write to me if you can think of something after some consultations; otherwise forget about it. Give it up if too much time is consumed in discussion. Naraharibhai is the secretary of the Committee, so he should think over both the letters: 1. Should the institutions be kept separate? Will that be possible now? (The subject matter of K.’s letter.) 2. Can’t two neighbours live in amity? They may cultivate the land separately and have their cattle, fruit trees, and water supply separate. (The subject matter of Parnerkar’s letter.)

Yesterday there was a letter from Gordhandas. It seems Sharda is cured of the fever. She had both typhoid and malaria. I have written about the need for being careful in the matter of diet.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10645
193. LETTER TO KANJI J. DESAI

September 28, 1945

BHAJAN KANJI,

I have your letter. I am doing what I can from here. I can very well understand your feelings as a father. But God alone is the true Protector of you, me and Pushpa, so let us take refuge in Him. There is no doubt that you will be able to find a suitable husband for your younger daughter.

KANJI JETHABHAI DESAI
OLD HANUMAN LANE, SECOND CROSS LANE
ROOM 4, SECOND FLOOR
RAIDAS CHAWL
BOMBAY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

194. LETTER TO SHASHIKANT R. MEHTA

September 28, 1945

CHI. SHASHI1,

I have your letter. I read Doctor’s unsigned will also. There is no need for my permission at all. Under the law neither myself nor the Ashram has any right.2 So you are free to do what you like.

I have already told Maganbhai enough. Now the ball is in your court. I am glad to know that these days Chi. Ratilal is at home. I hope he is all right.

SHASHIKANT MEHTA
CHANDRAKUNJ
JAGNATH PLOT
RAJKOT

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Son of Ratilal Mehta
2 Presumably the reference is to the Red Bungalow; vide “Letter to Champa R. Mehta”, 16-9-1945
195. LETTER TO DUNCAN GREENLEES

POONA,
September 29, 1945

MY DEAR DUNCAN,

I was delighted to have your letter through Dr. Raju. Of course I will see him. There is a ring of despair running through your note. I do not like it. After all, you are a man of God and there can be no such thing as a note of despair for such.

Do come to me as soon as you find me finally settled down. Just now I am in a sanatorium, as you see. Then, if all goes well, I go to Madras in December and from there probably to the Frontier province. After that I shall settle down in Sevagram.

Send me your manuscript. I shall see it and if it appeals to me, I shall get it published.

Love.

BAPU

PROF. DUNCAN GREENLEES
BHIMLIPATAM, VIZAG DISTRICT

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

196. LETTER TO BASSIC

[September 29, 1945]

DEAR BASSIC,

Many thanks for your letter and draft. You have correctly guessed my age. I did not know your good father-in-law was dead. So shall we all one day. I hope you are all keeping well. Amtul Salaam is working for khadi in Bengal. What work of service are you doing? You have not given me your full name. Nevertheless I hope this will reach you.

P. O. DEHENU via KHANNA
LUDHIANA DISTRICT

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 The letter is found among those of September 29, 1945.
197. LETTER TO PUSHPA K. DESAI

POONA,
September 29, 1945

CHL. PUSHPA,

I have had no letter from you recently. I am sending with this a letter from your father. Just now he is not likely to trust you. But that should not hurt you. When you have proved your freedom from worldly desires his present unhappiness will turn into happiness and you will be a credit to everyone.

I like your going for a couple of days to Vinobaji. Please remember that that alone is a true vision of Lord Krishna which is attained through pure service. Take care of your health. Take every step calmly and after careful thought. Use your intelligence in whatever public work you undertake. Write to your father from time to time. If you write to anybody else, do so either through him or through me.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 9265

198. LETTER TO SUMITRA GANDHI

September 29, 1945

CHL. SUMI,

I have your letter. I am not happy at your falling ill so often. Is it not an essential part of education to learn not to fall ill?

SUMITRA GANDHI
BIRLA HIGH SCHOOL
PILANI, RAJPUTANA

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

199. LETTER TO RAMDAS GANDHI

September 29, 1945

CHL. RAMDAS,

I am sending this—Sumitra’s letter\(^1\)—because you must see it. I would say that you should let Sumi gain experience by staying at Pilani and Delhi. I am all right.

\(^1\) Vide the preceding item.

RAMDAS GANDHI
KHALASI LINES
NAGPUR

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

200. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA

September 29, 1945

CHI. KRISHNACHANDRA,

I have your letter. Whatever you do, do after proper thought. Do talk to Kanchanbehn. There must be sweetness in your speech. I am glad to hear about Anantram. When faced with frightful disease our task lies in humbly doing the work of service.

Kanchanbehn must have recovered.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4531

201. LETTER TO SUNDARI

September 29, 1945

CHI. SUNDARI,

I have your money. You should write in Devanagari or Urdu. Why do you write in English?
C/O SHETH PRATAP DAYALDAS
CHOWPATI BUILDING
FIRST FLOOR
BABULNATH, BOMBAY

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

202. LETTER TO HOSHIARI

September 29, 1945

CHI. HOSHIARI

Krishnachandra writes and says that you have become somewhat weak. I hope you are better now and that you and Gajraj are carrying on well. I am all right. There is a little weakness which will go.

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

VOL.88: 30 AUGUST, 1945 - 6 DECEMBER, 1945 93
203. LETTER TO LALCHAND

September 29, 1945

Bhai Lalchand,

I had your letter and I had made inquiries. I am sorry to learn about Pandit Ramarakhamal. Console his family members on my behalf. I feel that the respect that was shown to the late Atma Singh was misplaced.

Yours,

M. K. Gandhi

Shri Lalchand, Clerk
Loco Wheelshop, N. W. R., Moghulpura
Lahore

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

204. FOREWORD TO “NEHRU YOUR NEIGHBOUR”

Poona,
[September 30, 1945]¹

This is an effective collection made by Shri P. D. Tandon² out of numerous writings of numerous admirers of Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru. It gives at a glance a good picture of the patriot as seen by various eyes. He shines easily as father, brother, writer, traveller, patriot or internationalist. Nevertheless it is as an ardent devotee of his country and its freedom on whose altar he would sacrifice all his other loves that the leader will specially single him out from the essays. Be it said to his credit, however, that he will consider it beneath his dignity to purchase that freedom at the price of any other country. His nationalism is equal to internationalism.

M. K. Gandhi

Nehru Your Neighbour. Also C.W. 10541. Courtesy: P. D. Tandon

¹ This was enclosed with the letter dated September 30 to P. D. Tandon; vide the following item.
² A journalist from Allahabad
205. LETTER TO P. D. TANDON

POONA,
September 30, 1945

BHAJ TANDON,

I am sorry that I could not send anything for your book earlier. For one thing I was too busy, for another I just did not feel like writing anything. But how could I refuse to write anything on Jawaharlal? Now I only hope that my foreword¹ will not reach you too late.

Yours,
M. K. GANDHI

From the Hindi original: C.W. 10542. Courtesy: P. D. Tandon

206. LETTER TO UTTIMCHAND GANGARAM

September 30, 1945

DEAR UTTIMCHAND,

Thanks for your cheque of Rs. 500. It will be utilized like the previous ones².

Your puzzle remains a puzzle³. I submitted it here to a learned man as I did in Sevagram. Nothing could be done by either. I suppose a puzzle will cease to be one if it yields to an easy solution.

The Hindi translation though in defective Hindi is quite good and instructive. I have no difficulty in following it.

BOMBAY BAKERY
HYDERABAD SIND

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

207. LETTER TO J. P. BHANSALI

September 30, 1945

CHI. BHANSALI,

How much money will be required for the boys you refer to?

¹ Vide the preceding item.
² Vide also “Letter to Uttimchand Gangaram”, 1-9-1945
³ Ibid
Will the Talimi Sangh admit them? How old are they? I do not think there will be any difficulty in meeting their expenses.

You must have inquired at the Mahila Ashram about the girl.

I hope you eat regularly.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 8358. Also C.W. 7190. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

---

208. LETTER TO SUSHILA GANDHI

September 30, 1945

CHI. SUSHILA,

It cannot be said that your treatment is over. It will be over only when you believe that it is so.

Your wish to serve me is equivalent to your serving me. You may act on it when your help is really required. Just now there are many who are serving me or are eager to do so. If a time comes when no one is willing to serve then a person like you [should be prepared to serve. At the moment]¹ be happy to let those who are already here serve me. This is what I [feel]².

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati; G.N. 4957

---

209. LETTER TO PREMA KANTAK

September 30, 1945

CHI. PREMA,

I read your letter. I will tear it up after I finish this reply.

You are indeed sentimental. Where was the need for offering prayer just because I got a slight fever? And why need you feel miserable at my absence from the pandal³? If at such a large gathering

¹ Illegible
² ibid
³ The reference is to Gandhiji’s absence in the A. I. C. C. meeting held at Bombay on September 21, 22 and 23. Vide also footnote on “Speech at Prayer Meeting”, 21-9-1945
somebody is not present, what effect can his absence have, and why need it have any? All this seems improper to me. If you have sent anything to Nava Kal\textsuperscript{1} similar to what you wrote to me, you have made a mistake.

I have written to Bapa regarding your camp. It is quite a few days since I did that. You must get the permission row. It would of course be excellent if a hospital could be run at the same time.

Why do you even have the suspicion that I am displeased with Shankarraoji these days? I don’t think about that matter at all. I have not read his article regarding Satara. I chance to read very few of such writings.

The members of the Committee ought not to be concerned whether I remain silent or rot.

It is probable that Narandas may come here after Rentia Baras. What does it matter if you do not come to see me though you are so near? So long as you are going on with the work, where is the need for you to come and see me? When you have no work, you are of course free to come.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10437. Also C.W. 6876. Courtesy: Prema Kantak

210. LETTER TO KISHORELAL G. MASHRUWALA

September 30, 1945

CHI. KISHORELAL,

In your postcard you say that your illness is negligible. But the letters from the Ashram say that you have lost quite a bit.

Whatever you decide about Ramanlal\textsuperscript{2} is right. It will be good if somehow he settles down.

It is surprising that there was no excitement on account of the idols. Also it is surprising that the caste Hindus listen to Kamle’s bhajans even after knowing about him.

I have shown to Zohra the portion about her.

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

\textsuperscript{1} A Marathi daily published from Bombay

\textsuperscript{2} \textit{Vide} also “Letter to Ramanlal Shah”, 10-9-1945
211. LETTER TO GAJANAN NAIK

September 30, 1945

CHI. GAJANAN,

I have read your letter. If what you say is true, it is worth considering. You must show your letter to Kumarappa. If you permit me, I shall do so. You cannot suppress the complaint you have mentioned. I also wonder how you can stay in such an institution? Isn’t there exaggeration in what you say? Meanwhile, I am preserving your letter.

MAGANWADI
WARDHA

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

212. YARN QUOTA FOR KHADI PURCHASE:

[September 1945]

It is true that the Congress adopted khadi, the Spinners’ Association imposed the condition of the yarn quota and khadi which is not certified by the Association is taboo for Congressmen. A certain quantity of yarn has to be given as part of the price of khadi. All this is true. But I do not find anything wrong in this. That action alone can be compulsion where there is penalty for refusing to do a particular thing. What the form of punishment should be is a different matter. There is no compulsion if I demand the price of khadi and refuse to give it free. Similarly there is some condition or other attached to membership in any institution. It is also no compulsion if subsequently any change is made in such conditions. The case of uncertified khadi is also similar. If we go in for uncertified khadi, where is the guarantee of its purity and that a proper wage has been paid to the spinner?

With the advance of time and experience, changes have to be made in the rules and regulations. The only questions to be considered are whether the change fulfils the object, is in keeping with the principle of truth and non-violence, and is actuated by selfish or

---

1 This was in reply to a correspondent who had asked: “You persuaded the Congress to adopt khadi-wear for its members and introduced the rule of yarn quota for the A. I. S. A. khadi. Congressmen are prohibited from using khadi other than that certified by the A. I. S. A., and now khadi cannot be had from the Association without paying the yarn quota. Is this not compulsion?”
benevolent motives. The answer to all these questions will show that the change was to fulfil the original object and the question of compulsion does not arise.

I should be thanked if, against my goods, I ask for yarn or some other commodity in place of money.

Let us go a little deeper. We believe that khadi is only for those who believe that non-violent swaraj can be established by making khadi universal. Spinning, even for a little time, by the greatest number of people will be helpful in obtaining swaraj. We do not therefore spin under compulsion but of our own accord. An additional gain is that through spinning we come in direct contact with the poor.

Therefore, I am quite clear that there is absolutely no compulsion in demanding part of the price of khadi in the form of yarn.

[From Hindi]
Khadi Jagat, October 1945

213. TELEGRAM TO BINA DAS

Express

POONA, October 1, 1945

BINADAS
CARE COMILA BANK
BOMBAY
THURSDAY FOUR CLOCK EVENING.

GANDHI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

214. LETTER TO C. RAJAGOPALACHARI

POONA, October 1, 1945

MY DEAR C. R.,

I have read your letter\(^1\) to the Sardar. I detect in it your worry.

\(^1\) Dated September 28, 1945, which \textit{inter alia} read: “The enclosed is a milder version of the central story in the \textit{Andhra Patrika} for which Dr. P. [Subbaroyan]’s friends are responsible. The impression sought to be created is that Dr. P. has been pitched upon by you as a leader, and that it is an integral part of the big plan!”
But why worry? The Sardar has said nothing to anybody. He, however, does feel that among Congress circles you have lost your popularity. That, however, should be matter of no moment to you. You will serve if your services are required. My own opinion is that you will be wanted in due time. But I do not want you to feel over the thing.

You do not imagine that the Sardar has a magic ward. He can go only to a certain extent and no farther. If he overstepped his limits he would lose what influence he has. What I suggest is that you should come here whilst we are both here and let us amuse ourselves. Let the elections take care of themselves. I would like your name among the candidates but that too without an effort. But all these things can be discussed here. You should give yourself ample time with me. You will come to a friend, not as a Congressman to another, not on business. The weather is quite good. You will not stay at Parnakuti this time. You will come to the clinic. I shall see to your being suited. Hope you are not too weak or too bad. Well or ill, you should be here.

Love.

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

215. LETTER TO KHURSHEDBEHN NAOROJI

October 1, 1945

VAHALAN BEHN,

I understand your letter. Of course you must go where your inner voice takes you. You will give a good account of yourself wherever you are. But I would like you to settle down some day to some definite work. That is a characteristic of dordi.

Nargisbehn saw your letter. She comes often.

Love.

SHRI KHURSHEDBEHN NAOROJI
ORIENT CLUB, CHOWPATI
BOMBAY

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 The addressee had been excluded from the Madras Provincial Congress Committee.
2 To the Central Legislative Assembly, scheduled to take place in November
3 Residence of Premlila Thackersey at Poona
4 The superscription is in Gujarati, meaning “dear sister”.
5 Rope
216. LETTER TO RAIHANA TYABJI

October 1, 1945

CHI. RAIHANA,

Today I got your letter. I also read Salehbhai’s article. Some of the things he says are true but neither Burma nor India has any power. Nobody would listen to a true Indian or Burmese and he cannot do much. The true dharma of India is to achieve independence and help Burma and other countries to attain it. All this enmity would disappear after both are free. At present no one will pay heed to what Salehbhai says. He would be regarded as merely an official. My advice is that he should silently serve [the cause] as much as he can. An official’s dharma is not to speak but act.

Pass this on to Salehbhai.

Blessings to you both from

BAPU

RAIHANA TYABJI
40 A RIDGE ROAD
MALABAR HILL
BOMBAY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

217. TELEGRAM TO TAN YUN-SHAN

Express

POONA, October 2, 1945

PROFESSOR TAN YUN-SHAN

MY GOOD WISHES TO ALL CHINA. LOVE.

GANDHI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 The addressee had come to India at the invitation of Rabindranath Tagore and organized the Department of Sino-Indian Studies in the Visvabharati University and later the Sino-Indian Cultural Society.
218. LETTER TO KONDA VENKATAPPAYYA

Poona,

October 2, 1945

MY DEAR DESHABHAKTA.

Is it not time I wrote to you in Hindustani? We are both old. If the younger ones will not spare us, let us spare each other. Do not drag me here, there and everywhere. Hope you are well.

Love.

BAPU

From a photostat: G.N. 3229

219. LETTER TO ANNE MARIE PETERSEN

October 2, 1945

MY DEAR MARIA,

Your letter.

You are foolish, so are we all, some more, some less. Therefore why worry? You must be well and live long enough to see your work flourish.

Your application is under way. The Board meets some time this month when I hope the application will be finally considered. The ideal will be to find your expenses from the surroundings. We must strive to reach it.

Of course you will see me in Madras when I come there. Have you fixed your date for the departure overseas?

Send my love to Esther\(^1\) when you write to her and accept it for yourself.

BAPU

MISS MARIE PETERSEN
SEVA MANDIR
PORTO NOVO (S. INDIA)

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

---

\(^1\) Konda Venkatappayya, Member of the Congress Working Committee and A. I. C. C. and later of the Madras Legislative Assembly

\(^2\) Vide "Letter to Anne Marie Petersen", 23-8-1945

\(^3\) Esther Menon
220. LETTER TO K. RAMA RAO,

October 2, 1945

DEAR RAMA RAO,

I am glad you have been called to your original post\(^1\). You have my blessings in your work.

"NATIONAL HERALD
LUCKNOW"

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

221. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

October 2, 1945

CHI. MUNNALAL,

I hope Kanchan and Hiramani are well now.

After you are free from the cholera work, you should take up whatever work nobody else is doing. When you have no other work to do, you should spin.

I am of the opinion that chillies should not be served except when advised by a doctor. You may state your opinion and then remain unconcerned.

I advised\(^2\) you not to join in singing the prayer, but did not forbid you. Whenever you find my advice painful, you certainly need not follow it. When you feel that you can join in, you may do so. You should then go and stand at a distance and sing alone, constantly changing the tune. You will thus learn the right tunes. There is a music teacher in the Nayee Talim. Learn the sa-re-ga-ma\(^3\) from him. Hiramani seems to have settled down in the Mahila Ashram. She probably knows music; learn from her.

As regards the plants, Kishorelal’s decision may be carried out. Explain to me further when I return.

I think I have now replied to all the questions.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 8431. Also C.W. 5600. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

\(^1\) As Editor, National Herald, which had been banned in August 1942

\(^2\) Vide “Letter to Munnalal G. Shah”, 17-9-1945

\(^3\) Notes in Indian music, sa, re, ga, ma, pa, dha, ni
222. LETTER TO PRABHAVATI

October 2, 1945

CHI. PRABHA,

I got your letter. I am well. I intend to reach Calcutta on November 2. I shall be staying in Sodepur with Satis Babu. Reach there a little earlier or on the same day. We shall think about what you should read.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 3583

223. LETTER TO ANAND G. CHOKHAWALA

October 2, 1945

CHI. ANAND¹.

It is good that you wrote.

You are doing well in joining the Prabhatpheri². Don’t be too mischievous. You don’t harass Sharda, do you? Now you should help her.

Blessings from
SARDAR AND BAPU

From the Gujarati original: C.W. 10088. Courtesy: Sharda G. Chokhawala

224. LETTER TO SHARDA G. CHOKHAWALA

October 2, 1945

CHI. BABUDI,

I was very pleased to see your letter. I had received one from Gordhandas earlier. All of you seem to have stood the heavy rains well enough. Keep Shakaribehn there till you have fully recovered.

Come to Sevagram after I return and settle down there for some time.

Blessings from
BAPU

From the Gujarati original: C.W. 10061. Courtesy: Sharda G. Chokhawala

¹ Son of Gordhandas and Sharda Chokhawala
² Morning procession
225. LETTER TO T. P. JOSHI

October 2, 1945

DEAR SISTER,

I have your letter as well as the cheque. I would like to come over to Mahabaleshwar just to hear your poems. But it will be, won’t it, as God wills.

T. P. JOSHI
40A RIDGE ROAD
BOMBAY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

226. LETTER TO LILAVATI ASAR

October 2, 1945

CHI. LILI,

I have your letter. Don’t worry about me. The swelling has subsided and I am all right.

I am sorry to learn that you were down with fever. I hope you are all right now. Work as much as you can. You have to appear for the examination in time. You will get through, but let us remember that it is just the same whether you get through or not. This much you must learn from the Gita. Your effort will not go waste. The knowledge you have assimilated will fully pay. Think over what you study. Memorize little. Try to remember by carefully thinking over what you have studied.

G. S. MEDICAL COLLEGE
LADIES HOSTEL
PAREL
BOMBAY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

227. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA

October 2, 1945

CHI. KRISHNACHANDRA,

I have your letter. The letter to Ramprasad is enclosed.¹ I wonder why he refused to talk about brahmacharya.

¹ The enclosure is not available.
I hope Manojna\textsuperscript{1} and Durgabehn have recovered.

Does not Niamat stay in the Ashram?

I expect to reach there on the 22nd and leave for Calcutta on the 1st of November. Perhaps reaching there will take all of one day. The date for leaving Sevagram may be considered fixed. The rest depends on God.

\textit{Blessings from}

\textit{BAPU}

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4533

\textbf{228. LETTER TO RAMANLAL AGRAWAL}

\textit{October 2, 1945}

BHAI RAMANLAL,

Why do you write in English? You are fickle-minded; so what will you do if you once again get fed up with khadi? What do you do for a living? Your services will certainly be accepted if you are a good worker. Write about yourself in detail.

RAMANLAL AGRAWAL
33D NATH TERRACE
LADY JAMSHEDJI ROAD
BOMBAY 16

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

\textbf{229. LETTER TO CHANDRANI}

\textit{October 2, 1945}

CHI. CHAND,

I have your letter after a long interval. I don’t like your not being well. You don’t have to study at the cost of your health. Satyavati is just the same.

DAGA MEMORIAL HOSPITAL
NAGPUR

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

\textsuperscript{1} Wife of Krishnadas Gandhi
230. LETTER TO GOPI BIRLA

October 2, 1945

CHI. GOPI,

I have your letter. You have borne your illness quite well. I hope you will quickly regain strength. I am all right.

GOPIBEHN
BIRLA HOUSE
MALABAR HILL
BOMBAY

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

231. TELEGRAM TO K. SRINIVASAN

POONA,

October 3, 1945

KASTURI SRINIVASAN
“HINDU” INDUSTRIAL ASSURANCE BUILDING
CHURCHGATE
BOMBAY

SUNDAY SEVENTH² FOUR EVENING,

GANDHI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Editor, The Hindu
² The meeting however took place on October 6; vide “Letter to C. Rajagopalachari”, “Letter to Prema Kantak”, 30-9-1945
232. CABLE TO CHAIRMAN, INDO-BRITISH FRIENDSHIP GROUP

POONA,

October 3, 1945

CHAIRMAN
INDO-BRITISH FRIENDSHIP GROUP
BRAUNTON

THANKS. MY BLESSINGS ALWAYS IN EVERY NON-VIOLENT ACTIVITY. REAL TEST OF NON-VIOLENCE AND TRUTH FOR BRITAIN CONSISTS IN RECOGNITION FULL INDEPENDENCE INDIA.

GANDHI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

233. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

POONA

October 3, 1945

CHI. NARANDAS,

I got your letter. The yarn figures this time must be interesting. Let me also know how much the yarn would fetch if sold.

You must have finished the work there. Come as soon as you have done so.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./II. Also C.W. 8632. Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi

234. LETTER TO PREMA KANTAK

October 3, 1945

CHI. PREMA,

I have given a long reply\(^1\) to your letter. You must have received it by now. You have acted up to what you wrote. Send me a copy of

\(^1\) Vide “Letter to Prema Kantak”, 30-9-1945
the article¹ you have written in Nava Kal.

Blessings from BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10438. Also C.W. 6877. Courtesy: Prema Kantak

235. LETTER TO CHIMANLAL SETALVAD

October 3, 1945

SIR CHIMANLAL,

Thanks for your good wishes.

For years I have not been taking any part in elections. Hence I am entrusting your letter to Sardar. I seldom talk with him about this.

BOMBAY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

236. LETTER TO YUSUF MEHERALLY

October 3, 1945

BHAI MEHERALLY²,

Acknowledgement of your good wishes is just an excuse for writing to you. I hope you are all right. I have found an occasion for expressing my wish.

YUSUF MEHERALLY

WADIA LODGE

IGATPURE

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

237. LETTER TO KARSANDAS CHITALIA

October 3, 1945

BHAI KARSANDAS,

I am inquiring after Gokhale’s legacy. Sushilabehn is at Sevagram for treating cholera patients.

¹ Entitled Amhi Kothen Ahont? meaning “Where are me?” The addressee had severely, criticized the proceedings of the A.I.C.C. meeting which failed to provide any guidelines for the workers and for making no reference to Gandhiji’s absence.

² (1903-1950); member, A. I. C. C.; Joint Secretary, All-India Congress Socialist Party; Ex-Mayor of Bombay Bapa is asking everyone about Kasturba Nidhi [work].
He will be looking after the affairs of Bhagini Seva Mandir also, won’t he?

Why have you slackened? And if you have, why grieve over the inevitable?

KARSANDAS CHITALIA
BHARAT SEVAK SAMAJ
SANDHURST ROAD
BOMBAY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

238. LETTER TO JAMNABEHN GANDHI

October 3, 1945

CHI. JAMNA,

Why have you gone so weak? If you try a change of air here, it may help.

Kanaiyo has come back after finishing his work in Bombay. At present Santok, Radha, Keshu¹ and his wife have come. I am not writing a separate letter to Purushottam.²

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

239. NOTE TO DINSHAW K. MEHTA

October 3, 1945

CHI. DINshaw,

1. The dirt which is there in the clinic all the time should be completely removed. There should not be any leakage. Cleanliness should have the first place in nature-cure. If the expenses go up on that account, let them.

2. I have taken deep thought about the clinic and am daily thinking about it. I am convinced that you should run it. It is better that we have a trust but that is a small thing. If a university is to come up it will be only from the clinic. There won’t be any university if this is entrusted to someone else. To leave this will mean giving up your vocation. In order to raise a university, you must go and see all naturopaths, befriend them and try to get their co-operation. So long as this is not achieved, all is in vain. All things have come up in the world in this way. Money does not make universities.

¹ Son of Maganlal Gandhi
² Addressee’s son

3. Working for villages is altogether a different thing. I can see that at present you cannot work only in villages. You can’t handle both the things single-handed. I don’t mind if village work is postponed for the time being. It is good that a trust has been made. I feel this should be well-founded and thoughtfully done. It will not be desirable to back out after once starting it.

We shall sit together at 8.30 p.m. tomorrow and discuss all the three issues. If we are unable to finish the discussion, we shall have another session.

Sardar wants a Rumanian doctor to give him a check-up. I have told him that he can consult anyone he likes but the line of treatment should be yours.

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

240. LETTER TO JAMSHEDJI N. MEHTA
October 3, 1945

Bhai Jamshedji,

I have your letter. My blessings are always there for any useful activity. No one should ask for anything more from me. But neither have you asked for more.

SHEETH JAMSHEDJI NASSERWANJI MEHTA
SHRI SHARDA MANDIR
KARACHI

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

241. LETTER TO G. D. BIRLA
October 3, 1945

CHI. GHANSHYAMDAS,

I have your letter. I shall look forward to your coming on the 11th.

Blessings from
BAPU

SEETH GHANSHYAMDAS BIRLA
BIRLA PARK, BANARAS

From the Hindi original: C.W. 8072. Courtesy: G.D. Birla
242. LETTER TO RADHAKANT MALAVIYA

October 3, 1945

BHAI RADHAKANT,

Do I ever take part in elections? I wish Babuji also would give up his interest in them.

RADHAKANT MALAVIYA
18 HAMILTON ROAD
ALLAHABAD

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

243. LETTER TO GOKULBHAI BHATT

POONA,
October 4, 1945

BHAI GOKULBHAI,

Is it possible that I would drive you out just in a few minutes? But such is my plight if I wish to preserve my health.

Why are you making the mistake of writing in pencil? Can’t you see violence in doing that?

What will Manibehn gain by making me a trustee? Will you respect me more than at present for calling me a trustee?

I approve of all other suggestions. Have you sent a Copy of the letter to everyone?

GOKULBHAI BHATT
BHAGINI SEVA MANDIR TRUST
VILE PARLE

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

244. LETTER TO MRIDULA SARABHAI

October 4, 1945

CHI. MRIDULA,

This time you are not coming for nothing. I shall be as I am at present when you come over. Strength goes away at a horse’s pace

1 Son of Madan Mohan Malaviya and comes back at an ant’s.¹ Come on Tuesday the 9th. I am keeping 3 p.m. free. I hope you are all right.

MRIDULABEHN SARABHAI
KASHMIR HOUSE
NAPEAN SEA ROAD
BOMBAY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

245. LETTER TO MANILAL SHUKLA

October 4, 1945

CHI. MANILAL,

I am glad to have your letter. I am happy to know that you have improved considerably though I did not know that you were still not all right.

Thank God for Mother being somewhat better.² It is remarkable if a bone joins at the age of 80.

Normally it does not happen that I am not shown a letter which has something important to say. But your letter seems to have come when no letter was to be passed on to me.

It is a new thing for me that you are interested in horoscopes and know something about them. I am sorry I cannot satisfy your curiosity. I know that my horoscope was always kept perfect and up to date but that practice died away with my father. He used to take interest in it and got the yearly forecast from it. My elder brother’s³ eldest son Shamaldas has kept all the records, so he is likely to have mine. I am writing to him. Perhaps you yourself know him. So write to him. He is running Vandemataram, a daily.

One may say that these days I am quite all right. Get well and write to me from time to time.

MANILAL SHUKLA
BARRISTER
RAIKOT

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ A Gujarati saying
² Vide also “Letter to Mrs. Shukla”, 25-9-1945
³ Lakshmidas Gandhi
246. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

October 4, 1945

CHI. MUNNALAL,

I have your letter, also Kanchan’s. One way for you is to become completely passionless, like Shiva—and win over Kanchan to your view but not with an effort. But this is beyond your capacity. You have, therefore, no other option but to start a separate establishment. You must satisfy Kanchan. This is your dharma. I regard it as your first duty. Doing it will answer all your questions. You must have read the letter that Kanchan wrote to me. If not, ask her. I tore it up.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 8362 and 8430

247. LETTER TO KANCHAN M. SHAH

October 4, 1945

CHI. KANCHAN,

I like your letter. My sympathy also is with you. Munnalal has not conquered passion. If he had, yours also would have disappeared. No more today, for it is time to go to bed.

Get well.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 8262. Also C.W. 6984. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

248. LETTER TO SARAT CHANDRA BOSE

POONA,

October 5, 1945

MY DEAR SARAT BABU,

Your letter. My instinct is to wait for the final reply. But do as yours tells. After all the stake is very great.

The purpose of this, however, is to know from you why you have launched a public attack on Jawaharlal.' Did you not first discuss the pros and cons with him? A public discussion seems ugly. Do please enlighten me if you can.

I hope you are well and will give yourself some rest.

Love.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

249. LETTER TO KHURSHEDBEHN NAOROJI

October 5, 1945

VAHALAN BEHN:2

Your letter requires no argument. It needs prayer. You must go your own way. Your sisters are all chips of the old block. It is therefore well with you. Just as there is acceptance so is there rejection of a thing. Similarly there can be neither rejection nor acceptance. Truth-seeker must have that position also. I neither accept nor reject the statement that there is life on the planet Mars.

Love.

BAPU

SHRI KHURSHEDBEHN NAOROJI
ORIENT CLUB, BOMBAY 7

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

---

1 In his letter dated October 1, 1945, to Vallabhbhai Patel, Jawaharlal Nehru said: “. . . You would have noticed in the Press a totally unnecessary controversy between Sarat Chandra Bose and me . . . . He is making a dead set against Chiang Kai-Shek, which seems to me bad and harmful and likely to create unnecessary trouble all round. None of us admires all that Chiang Kai-Shek has done. But it does seem to be wrong for us to attack him in this way. He happens to be the head of the Chinese State and so far as India is concerned his attitude has always been friendly. For my part I have kept up friendly relations not only with Chiang Kai-Shek and the Chinese Government but with many of his critics in China. I do not want this controversy with Sarat, but to remain silent became impossible for me. . . .”

2 The superscription is in Gujarati.
250. LETTER TO N. K. BOSE

October 5, 1945

Khurshedbehn has sent your letter to her to Gandhiji. He wishes me to write and tell you that you must certainly come and see him on his arrival in Calcutta which will be, D. V., in the first week in November.

[AMRIT KAUR]

My Days with Gandhi, p. 20

251. LETTER TO KUNVARJI K. PAREKH

October 5, 1945

CHI. KUNVARJI,

I have your letter. In order to make my reply brief, I am only writing a postcard. I am not writing separately to Madhavdas. Since you have all accepted him as one of you, I do not worry about him. Now do whatever seems proper to you. Madhavdas must learn to be brave and firm in mind. Let him give up his love for home. If possible, Manilal will go there. I am hoping that Chi. Vasantlal’s problem will be resolved without any difficulty.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./22

252. LETTER TO PRABHAVATI

October 5, 1945

CHI. PRABHA,

I got your letter. I have written a long letter to you, Which contains answers to all your questions. I intend to reach Calcutta on November 2. I want you to meet me there, so that you may not have to wander about. I will write again only if I hear from you. I will inform you, however, if there is any change in my programme.

Pyarelal has given me your Arabian Nights. I am not sending it to you. I will bring it with me. If you desire, however, I will send it earlier.

You must procure milk from somewhere. In any case we are going to meet in a few days now. I am sure you are reading something or other, and also writing. Do master Urdu. Learn all the processes which precede spinning. Father seems to be better these days.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 3584

253. LETTER TO GUNOTTAM HUTHEESING

October 5, 1945

CHI. RAJA,

Why do you write in English? In any case I am of no use so far as elections are concerned. I just do not know anything about them. Why should I be angry? Of course, I do expect that “one may give up one’s life, not one’s word”¹. Effort will help to make this a habit.

RAJA HUTHEESING
20 CARMICHAEL ROAD, BOMBAY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

254. LETTER TO NIRMALA GANDHI

POONA,

October 5, 1945

CHI. NIMU,

I received your letter. Manilal and Sushila also read it. Delhi will begin to have fine weather from this month. At such a time, I do not like it that she should be brought to Nagpur. Of course, ultimately, she will have to go there. Ramdas also does not wish to bring her over to Nagpur. Manilal and Sushila, too, are of the same view. My suggestion, with which Manilal and Sushila agree, is that you should go to Delhi. In your absence, Sushila will look after your home and take care of Ramdas and Kanam. And so, you will be able to remain in Delhi without worrying about anything. Usha, too, may remain in Nagpur. Both of you may think over the matter and then write or wire to me so that Sushila can start from here. Neither of you should entertain the doubt that Sushila will not be willing to go there. I hope

¹ This quotation from Ramcharitmanas is in Hindi.

VOL.88: 30 AUGUST, 1945 - 6 DECEMBER, 1945  117
Ramdas is all right. I am also well enough. There will be no need for Sushila to give up her treatment to go there. The treatment is such that she can give it up whenever she wishes.

Blessings from
BAPU

From the Gujarati original: Mrs. Sumitra Kulkarni Papers Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library

255. LETTER TO JAWAHARLAL NEHRU

October 5, 1945

CHI. JAWAHARLAL,

I have long been intending to write to you but can do so only today. I have also been wondering whether I should write in English or Hindustani. In the end I have decided to write in Hindustani.

I take first the sharp difference of opinion that has arisen between us. If such a difference really exists people should also know about it, for the work of swaraj will suffer if they are kept in the dark. I have said that I fully stand by the kind of governance which I have described in Hind Swaraj. It is not just a way of speaking. My experience has confirmed the truth of what I wrote in 1909. If I were the only one left who believed in it, I would not be sorry. For I can only testify to the truth as I see it. I have not Hind Swaraj in front of me. It is better that I redraw the picture today in my own language. Then it would not matter to me whether or no the picture tallies with that of 1909, nor should it to you. I do not have to establish what I had said before. What is worth knowing is only what I have to say today. I believe that if India, and through India the world, is to achieve real freedom, then sooner or later we shall have to go and live in the villages—in huts, not in palaces. Millions of people can never live in cities and palaces in comfort and peace. Nor can they do so by killing one another, that is, by resorting to violence and untruth. I have not the slightest doubt that, but for the pair, truth and non-violence, mankind will be doomed. We can have the vision of that truth and non-violence only in the simplicity of the villages. That simplicity

1 Vide “Hind Swaraj”
2 The source however has “1908”.
3 ibid
resides in the spinning-wheel and what is implied by the spinning-wheel. It does not frighten me at all that the world seems to be going in the opposite direction. For the matter of that, when the moth approaches its doom it whirls round faster and faster till it is burnt up. It is possible that India will not be able to escape this moth-like circling. It is my duty to try, till my last breath, to save India and through it the world from such a fate. The sum and substance of what I want to say is that the individual person should have control over the things that are necessary for the sustenance of life. If he cannot have such control the individual cannot survive. Ultimately, the world is made up only of individuals. If there were no drops there would be no ocean. This is only a rough and ready statement. There is nothing new in this.

But even in Hind Swaraj I have not said all this. While I appreciate modern thought, I find that an ancient thing, considered in the light of this thought looks so sweet. You will not be able to understand me if you think that I am talking about the villages of today. My ideal village still exists only in my imagination. After all every human being lives in the world of his own imagination. In this village of my dreams the villager will not be dull—he will be all awareness. He will not live like an animal in filth and darkness. Men and women will live in freedom, prepared to face the whole world. There will be no plague, no cholera and no smallpox. Nobody will be allowed to be idle or to wallow in luxury. Everyone will have to do body labour. Granting all this, I can still envisage a number of things that will have to be organized on a large scale. Perhaps there will even be railways and also post and telegraph offices. I do not know what things there will be or will not be. Nor am I bothered about it. If I can make sure of the essential thing, other things will follow in due course. But if I give up the essential thing, I give up everything.

The other day, at the final day’s meeting of the Working Committee, we had taken a decision to the effect that the Working Committee would meet for two or three days to work out this very thing. I shall be happy if it meets. But even if it does not meet, I want that we two should understand each other fully. And this for two reasons. Our bond is not merely political. It is much deeper. I have no measure to fathom that depth. This bond can never be broken. I therefore want that we should understand each other thoroughly in politics as well. The second reason is that neither of us considers himself as worthless. We both live only for India’s freedom, and will be happy to die too for that freedom. We do not care for praise from any quarter. Praise or abuse are the same to us. They have no place in the mission of service. Though I aspire to live up to 125 years rendering service, I am nevertheless an old man, while you are comparatively young. That is why I have said that you are my heir. ¹ It is only proper that I should at least understand my heir and my heir in turn should understand me. I shall then be at peace.

One thing more. I had written to you² about Kasturba Trust and Hindustani. You had said you would write after thinking things over. I find that your name is already figuring in the Hindustani Sabha. Nanavati reminded me that he had approached you and Maulana Saheb and that you had appended your signature. That was in 1942. That was long ago. You know where Hindustani stands today. If you still stand by that signature, I wish to get some work out of you in this regard. It will not involve much running about, but some work will be called for.

The work of Kasturba Memorial Trust is rather complicated. I realize that if what I have said above is going to irk you or is irking you, you will not feel comfortable even in the Kasturba Trust.

The last point concerns the sparks that are flying about in the conflict with Sarat Babu.³ I have been pained by the episode. I have been unable to trace it to its root. If what you have told me is all there is to it and nothing more remains to be said, then I do not have to inquire further. But if an explanation seems necessary, I very much want to hear it.

If we have to meet to thrash out all these matters, then we should find time for a meeting.

You are working very hard. I trust you are in good health and Indu⁴ is well.

Blessings from

BAPU

From the Hindi original: Gandhi-Nehru Papers.Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library

¹ Vide also “Speech at A. I. I. C. Meeting”, 15-1-1942
² Vide “Letter to Jawaharlal Nehru”, 25-6-1945
³ Vide footnote 1, “Letter to Sarat Chandra Bose”, 5-10-1945
⁴ Indira, addressee’s daughter
256. LETTER TO AMTUSSALAAM

October 5th, 1945

CHI. A.S.,

I have your letter. Despair has become the refrain of your letters. But there is hope behind your despair. You could work a lot if you gave up this refrain. What would you gain by staying with me? You have had the maximum advantage of staying with me. That is what I feel. You alone can do the work that you have to do. No one else can do that for you. So stay on there till I come. I shall see after coming there whether it would be better for you to go round with me or stay in your place. Leave everything till my coming there. I have got to go to Borkamta. Improve your health in the mean time.

I have replied to all your points in this.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 537

257. LETTER TO ANAND T. HINGORANI

October 5, 1945

CHI. ANAND,

I have your letter. My blessings are always with you. You will do much work after you recover. Think only of God. You will then have found Vidya and served her.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Hindi. Courtesy: National Archives of India and Anand T. Hingorani

258. LETTER TO IFTIKHAR-UD-DIN AND ISMAT

October 5, 1945

BHAI IFTIKHAR\textsuperscript{2} AND ISMAT.

I have your wire. May you both fare well and serve the \textsuperscript{1} This could also be read as 2.

\textsuperscript{2} Ex-President, Punjab Provincial Congress Committee community. It is all right that you have joined the League. There too work as a friend. Never have enmity against anyone.

21 ROOK MAIN ROAD
LAHORE

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

259. LETTER TO SATIS CHANDRA DAS GUPTA

October 5, 1945

CHI. SATIS BABU,

I am sorry about Prafulla Babu. Anyway I shall be staying at Sodepur. Sudhir Ghosh will have a major share in my tour. I will not be happy if all the parties do not unite. Only this much today.

SATIS BABU
KHADI PRATISHTHAN
SODEPUR (24 PARAGANAS)

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

260. SPEECH AT GOVARDHAN SANSTHA

POONA,

October 5, 1945

Mahatma Gandhi said that the cow was a great wealth both when living and also after death. A large part of the population in India is rural and it has to depend much on this animal for its living. He appreciated the efforts of Chaunde Maharaj and the Govardhan Society in preserving and developing this great wealth, and added that more concerted efforts would have to be made all over the country to achieve the desired object of giving the cow her proper place in the national economy of rural India.

The Bombay Chronicle, 6-10-1945

1 Gandhiji was laying the foundation-stone of the Kasturba Goshala.
261. LETTER TO C. RAJAGOPALACHARI

POONA,

October 6, 1945

MY DEAR C. R.,

Our friend Srinivasan was with me for some time about you. It distressed me to find that you were ill and morose. Why should you be ill? And I could not believe that you with your fund of humour at your disposal could ever be morose even if the world went down.
 They must need you, if they would have your services. I must repeat what I have said already.¹ Come here and be with me as long as you can.

Love.

BAPU

SHRI C. RAJAGOPALACHARIAR

MADRAS

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

262. LETTER TO ANNE MARIE PETERSEN

POONA,

October 6, 1945

DEAR MISS PETERSEN,

The enclosed ² is self-explanatory. Bapu wishes me to send it to you and would like a reply by return of post as the matter of giving your institution help is coming up for consideration when the Trust Committee meets here on 16th, 17th and 18th inst.

I imagine there will be no difficulty in your giving an undertaking that if the K. M. Fund helps you with money you will consent to have at least one or two of its representatives on your governing body and that there will be nothing done in the

¹ Vide”Letter to C. Rajagopalachari”, 1-10-1945
² Letter from L. N. Gopalaswamy, Secretary, Tamil Nadu Provincial Committee of the Kasturba Trust, in which he had expressed the inability of the Trust to give financial help to Anne Marie Petersen’s ashram at Porto Novo. way of conversions in the institution.

Yours sincerely,

AMRIT KAUR

MISS MARIE PETERSEN
SEVA MANDIR
PORTO NOVO

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library.
Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

263. LETTER TO PREMA KANTAK

October 6, 1945

CHI. PREMA,

I read your letter and tore it up. I am returning with Sushila1 the cutting2 sent by you.

I asked Sushila to read out your article, so that I might not make any mistake in understanding it. It will be no good getting it published in English. Its publication in Marathi is more than enough. Your language is not faulty. But everything is not to be said on every occasion. We shall discuss the matter when we meet some time. If you wish to come specially to discuss it, take an appointment and come. Bapa has sent the statement about your camp to the Trustees3. We have fixed a meeting of the Committee here on the 16th. I will see then.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10439. Also C.W. 6878. Courtesy: Prema Kantak

264. LETTER TO POONAMCHAND RANKA

October 6, 1945

BHAi POONAMCHAND,

I have your letter. Do come to Sevagram after I settle down. Whether anyone co-operates or not you have to go on with your

1 Sushila Pai
2 Of the addressee’s article published in Nava Kal; vide footnote 2, “Letter to Prema Kantak”, 3-10-1945
3 Of Kasturba Gandhi National Memorial Trust

124 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
work. Dhanvatiji\(^1\) had come to see me.

SHANKER KUTIR
RANKA COLONY
NAGPUR

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

265. LETTER TO M. S. ANEY

October 6, 1945

BHAI BAPUJI ANEY,

I have your gift. I also got the wire. I have read the sloka with interest. I like the Hindi translation.

I trust you are well.

BAPU

HON’BLE SHRI ANEY
AGENT TO THE GOVT. OF INDIA
11 STANMORE, COLOMBO (CEYLON)

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

266. LETTER TO RAIHANA TYABJI

October 6, 1945

CHI. RAIHANA,

I have your letter. You are mad. There was no need to write so much. I had heard the news about Ratnamayibehn. I did not pay much attention to it. Now you have reminded me of it. She was to go to a village but somehow could not go. Truly speaking, what is there to complain about? It is my attachment that has been reduced.

RAIHANA TYABJI
40A RIDGE ROAD
MALABAR HILL
BOMBAY

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

\(^1\) Addressee’s wife
267. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

POONA,

October 7, 1945

CHI. MUNNALAL,

I got your letter. You will never find any suggestion for self-suppression in my letters. I would approve of only such non-attachment as involves no self-suppression.

I am putting off the other questions for my next letter.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 8630

268. LETTER TO SURENDRAG

October 7, 1945

CHI. SURENDRAG

I have already written to you.

I shall be in Sevagram on or about the 21st. Do come then. Most probably I shall go to Bengal from there.

SADHU SURENDRAG}
BORIVLI

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

269. LETTER TO JATINDAS M. AMIN

October 7, 1945

CHI. AMIN,

I have already written to you. It is everyone’s duty to destroy sin. But that is for one’s own sin. With regard to another’s sin our attitude should be one of non-interference, i.e., in that case nothing but non-violence is our duty. My mother used to go to temples. I did not. I did not take away or destroy the idols she used to worship. Let us not sit in judgment on others. Of course I admire your spirit of

1 Vide “Letter to Jatindas M. Amin”, 10/11-9-1945

126 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
service. But you are rash and hot-tempered. Get rid of these two shortcomings and you will double your capacity for service.

AMINBHA
ANTI-CHELERA CAMP
SINDI KHANDALA
WARDHA

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

270. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA

October 7, 1945

CHI. KRISHNACHANDRA,

I have your letter.
I am happy that you keep consulting Vinoba.
Follow Vinoba’s instructions regarding Gitai. It is undoubtedly not right that while living in a Marathi-speaking region we do not understand Marathi. We should have the zest.
I am happy that you have accommodated the wife of a leprosy patient.
With regard to Munnalal I shall merely say that both of you have to win over each other. It will test your non-violence the least. But it will be an auspicious beginning.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4534

271. LETTER TO ABUL KALAM AZAD

October 7, 1945

I am not happy to read in the newspapers about your ill health. It is not good that you should get temperature so often. Now the weather in the Punjab should be good. Perhaps the weather in the Frontier Province would be better than in Lahore. I think you need some rest.
You seem to have done good work in the Punjab.

MAULANA SAHEB ABUL KALAM AZAD
FALETTI’S HOTEL
LAHORE

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

VOL.88: 30 AUGUST, 1945 - 6 DECEMBER, 1945 127
272. STATEMENT TO THE PRESS

POONA,
October 8, 1945

I have received birthday greetings from all parts of the world, from individuals and associations. They will excuse me for my not sending them personal acknowledgements. Instead I hope they will accept this message of gratefulness.

The Bombay Chronicle, 9-10-1945

273. LETTER TO MERCANTILE BANK OF INDIA, LTD.

NATURE CURE CLINIC,
6 TODIWALA ROAD,
POONA,
October 8, 1945

MESSRS, THE MERCANTILE BANK OF INDIA, LTD.
P. O. BOX 128, BOMBAY

Ref: Your letter No. Acctt, Mis. M/158 dt. 13-10-45

DEAR SIRS,

With reference to your above-mentioned letter enclosing a receipt in duplicate for Rs. 5305-11-2, I have to inform you that I have authorised Messrs. Bachhraj & Co. Ltd., Bombay, to collect the amount from you.

Yours truly,
M. K. GANDHI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

274. LETTER TO MADALASA

October 8, 1945

CHI. MADALASA,

How can I do without writing to you? Banish despair from your mind. Despair is only a product of our imagination.
I had fever only for two days. I am better now. Rasgulla\(^1\) can be relished only when I come there. He must have grown very big now.

Blessings to all three of you from

BAPU

[PS.]
I hope to arrive there in the last week of this month.

[From Gujarati]

Panchven Putrako Bapuke Ashirvad, p. 326

275. LETTER TO G. V. MAVALANKAR

October 8, 1945

BHAJ MAVALANKAR,

I approve of your draft\(^2\). On page 5 (e), I feel you should add “or its equivalent”\(^3\) after “Vernacular IV Standard”\(^4\). But do what seems best to you. The Committee is not meeting here, but in Sevagram on the 25th, 26th and 27th.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 1254

276. LETTER TO GAJANAN NAIK

October 8, 1945

CHI. GAJANAN (NAIK),

I have your letter. Just think what my loyalty demands. Either I should pay no attention to your complaints or place them before Kumarappa and hear his side also and then ask for an explanation from you and then give the decision. Your own loyalty also demands the same.

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

---

1 Addressee’s son Bharat, whose pet-name was “Rasgulla” which is the name of a Bengali sweet

2 These words are in English.

3 ibid

4 ibid
277. LETTER TO CHAMPA R. MEHTA

October 8, 1945

CHI. CHAMPA,

I had sent a reply to Shashi.¹ If Keshavlal does not pay the rent, you can certainly take the necessary steps. Do I have to tell you that you are not a simple woman? Chi. Sarala should get well soon.

CHAMPABEHN MEHTA
CHANDRAKUNI
JAGNATH PLOT
RAJKOT

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

278. LETTER TO VIRBHANU

October 8, 1945

BHAI VIRBHANU,

I have your letter. Congratulations to those who have taken a vow of making cotton hanks. It is good indeed that hanks are not sent by post. Spinners should learn to save every pie because it is not theirs but belongs to the poor. It is only proper that the hanks are handed over to the bhandar. And it will be all the better if khadi also is sold when it is woven.

DEPUTY SADAN
ATHAVA LINES
SURAT

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

279. LETTER TO PURUSHOTTAMDAS TANDON

October 8, 1945

BHAI TANDONJI,

I have your letter dated October 1, 1945. How can I ride two horses? Who will understand me when I say rashtrabhasha=Hindi and rashtrabhasha=Hindi+Urdu=Hindustani? I shall certainly serve the cause of Hindi, but by remaining out'. The Standing Committee should excuse me.

¹ Vide ""Letter to Kanji J. Desai"", 28-9-1945

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

PURUSHOTTAM DAS TANDON
HINDI SAHITYA SAMMELAN
ALLAHABAD

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

280. LETTER TO SHYAMLAL

October 8, 1945

BHAJ SHYAMLAL,

I approve of Dada Mavalankar’s draft. On page 5 (e.), I feel it is necessary to add “or its equivalent”; after “Vernacular Standard IV”

I have written to Dada also.¹

KASTURBA NIDHI
BAJAWADI
WARDHA

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

281. TELEGRAM TO P. C. GHOSH

NATURE CURE CLINIC,
6 TODIWALA ROAD, POONA,

October 9, 1945

DR. P. C. GHOSH
14/8 GARIAHAT ROAD
BALLYGUNGE
CALCUTTA

NO PROGRAMME TO BE PUBLISHED BEFORE MY ARRIVAL CALCUTTA.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

¹ Of the Hindi Sahitya Sammelan
² These words are in English.
³ ibid
⁴ Vide “Letter to G. V. Mavalankar”, 8-10-1945
282. LETTER TO E. M. JENKINS

POONA,
October 9, 1945

DEAR SIR EVAN,

May I remind H. E. that the decision in the matter of Shri Haridas Mitra is now overdue. I may mention that I have prevented all public appeals and demonstrations in favour of the prisoner in the hope that the death sentence will be commuted. His young wife was with me the other day and was anxious that a move should be made publicly here and also in Great Britain. But she listened to me and has waited.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

SIR EVAN JENKINS
PRIVATE SECRETARY TO H. E. THE VICE ROY
VICE ROY’S HOUSE
NEW DELHI

Gandhiji’s Correspondence with the Government, 1944-47, p. 48

283. LETTER TO MIRABEHN

October 9, 1945

CHI. MIRA,

Your letter. I am not going to omit you when I come to that side which as at present arranged I do not do before January. But nothing is fixed unless I move from Sevagram. I hope you are keeping well. Tell Balvantsinha I am not writing to him for want of time.

Love.

BAPU

From the original: C.W. 6511. Courtesy: Mirabehn. Also G.N. 9906

1 Vide “Letter to E. M. Jenkins”, 24-9-1945
284. LETTER TO KANTILAL GANDHI

October 9, 1945

CHI. KANTI,

I have your letter. I think it is a good thing that both the Desais\(^1\) have gone there.

Valjibhai has told me all that you omitted from your letter. He gave me a description, too, of all the people he had met.

I did not tell you, but now I do, that Valjibhai readily agreed when I suggested it to him that he should go there. He did not even ask for any time.

If Sardar permits, I hope to reach Sevagram on the 21st.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 7378. Courtesy: Kantilal Gandhi

---

285. LETTER TO D. B. KALELKAR

October 9, 1945

CHI. KAKA,

I got your very carefully written letter full of news. I intend to show it to others.

This is all for the present.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI KAKASAHEB KALELKAR
SWARAJYA ASHRAM
BARDOLI, T. V. RAILWAY

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10966

\(^1\) Valji G. Desai and Maganbhai P. Desai
286. LETTER TO CHAMPA R. MEHTA

October 9, 1945

CHI. CHAMPA,

I have your pathetic letter. What advice can I give you? And how may I guide you? I cling to your remark in yesterday’s letter and derive confidence from it and hope that you will be able to face your difficulties.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRIMATI CHAMPABEHN R. MEHTA
CHINDRAKUNJ
JAGNATH PLOT
RAJKOT

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 8758. Also C.W. 1044. Courtesy: Champa R. Mehta

287. LETTER TO PUSHPA K. DESAI

October 9, 1945

CHI. PUSHPA,

I have your letter. Remain in contact with Vinoba and learn what you can from him.

I am not sending to Rajani your letter to him. If at all, I can send it only through Father. He will certainly not like it. I, therefore, suggest that you should not write to Rajani for the present. If you permit me, I will write to Rajani and tell him that you do not wish to write to him or any other old friends for the sake of your father. In order to prove that it is proper for you not to yield to his original wish and also in order to give him peace, you must observe this self-restraint.

You made a mistake in writing to your friend. A mistake is all right once. But don’t repeat it. If you write, you should do so either to me or to Father. That is in your own interest.

Blessings from

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 9266

1 About her husband Ratilal Mehta who had lost his balance; vide “Letter to Maganlal P. Mehta”, “Letter to Maganlal P. Mehta”, 18-10-1945

THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
288. LETTER TO KISHORELAL G. MASHRUWALA

POONA,
October 9, 1945

CHI. KISHORELAL,
I have your letter.
Just now I do not know what I can do about Tryambaklal’s letter. I cannot break my journey and, even if I do I don’t think I can do much.
I understand about Kailas. If the Ashram has to bear her expenses to this extent, we would be going beyond our limits. Because I think we shall have to give a little in Nagpur, if not more. And I doubt very much whether she will learn anything there. But I don’t worry because you are there.

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

289. LETTER TO GOKULBHAI BHATT

October 9, 1945

BHAI GOKULBHAI,
I have your letter. I have preserved your letter written in pencil. I shall read it at leisure in order to satisfy my curiosity whether I interpreted it that way because I read it in a hurry or whether it does warrant the interpretation.¹

Even a co-worker like you, I could meet only for a few minutes. Of course I did not like it, but one has to swallow such [bitter] pills.
I think the draft you have sent is quite right. Obtain the approval of others and begin the work. I think the names mentioned by you will be useful. They will both be quite helpful to you in your work.

GOKULBHAI BHATT
BHAGINI SEVA MANDIR TRUST
VILE PARLE

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Vide “Letter to Gokulabhai Bhatt”, 4-10-1945
290. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA

October 9, 1945

CHI. KRISHNACHANDRA

I have your letter. I am returning Gulati’s letter. It is good. What he says is correct. But we cannot sit back till we can find an expert. Work progresses by doing it, provided we do not do it mechanically. Inform Jajuji about Gulati.

I have not quite understood about Kailas.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4532

291. A LETTER

[On or before October 10, 1945]

DEAR,

I had read Field Marshal Smuts’s speech of which you have sent me a copy.

You write glowingly about the prospects of Phoenix. But can Manilal do what you expect of him?

Yes, we have all to wish to live 125 years on condition that our lives are dedicated wholly to service without expectation of result or reward.

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

292. LETTER TO E. M. JENKINS

NATURE CURE CLINIC,
6 TODIWALA ROAD, POONA,
October 10, 1945

DEAR SIR EVAN,

I enclose herewith an account of a case which the correspondent

1 Ramdas Gulati, an architect
2 In the source the letter is placed between those of October 9 and 10, 1945.
3 Prime Minister of South Africa
4 Sheelbhadra Yajee, a Forward Bloc member, who was arrested during Quit India movement, had narrated the ill-treatment and torture suffered in jail.
has described with some wealth of detail. Can it be true? If it is, I wonder if His Excellency proposes to take any action by way of mending matters. I am told that this is not a solitary case but is typical.¹

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

SIR EVAN JENKINS
PRIVATE SECRETARY TO H. E. THE VICE ROY
THE VICE ROY’S HOUSE
NEW DELHI

Candhiji’s Correspondence with the Government, 1944-47, PP. 58-9

293. LETTER TO E. M. JENKINS

October 10, 1945

DEAR SIR EVAN,

I am the Chairman of the All-India Spinners’ Association, a wholly philanthropic body of about 25 years’ standing, run solely in the interest of the millions of the poorest unemployed or partly unemployed women of India. In order further to popularize hand-spinning a rule was recently introduced at my instance to demand from the buyers of khadi a certain quantity of yarn in lieu of money. Since the inception of the Association, some time known as Khadi Board, over four crores have been distributed among spinners all over India. These include all Communities from among the poor village women. Now, I understand, licensing rules are being issued by Provincial Administrations requiring khadi shops to take out licences as if they were dealers in millmade cloth. Objection has also been taken to the price being partly demanded in hand-spun yarn. I am sure the Government do not intend to penalize khadi and thus the poor people. As this is an all-India matter, I venture to approach His Excellency in the hope of the impending wrong being redressed. I may add that the matter has been taken up by the Honorary Secretary of the Association with the Provincial Administrations concerned.¹

¹ The addressee on October 13 replied that he was forwarding the letter and enclosure to the Viceroy who was “away on tour”. Vide also “Letter to Sir E. M. Jenkins”, 7-11-1945.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

Gandhiji’s Correspondence with the Government, 1944-47, pp. 67-8

294. LETTER TO JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM

POONA,
October 10, 1945

MY DEAR JAIRAMDASBHAI,

... I read out the whole of your letter to Bapu. He says that the ban on sending yarn in large quantities to him was imposed because of the new rules preventing posting of yarn or cloth from one province to another and also in order to save postage. He says if you can get over the rules and expense and send the yarn— if everyone insists on this—to him through someone who happens to be coming his way you may do so. But he would prefer you to have the yarn woven into cloth and your proposals which are sound should be adopted. You may send the dhotis, etc., to him for his personal use when anyone can bring them. In regard to the signatures they cannot be had for less than Rs. 5 each. Signature money can only go to the Harijan cause. Khadi auctioned or yarn or cloth donated at the Jayanti, all goes to the A. I. S. A. I hope I have made Bapu’s wishes clear....

I am not keen on going² but Bapu feels I should go and take advantage of doing work by the way so to speak. Bapu is all right again, I am glad to say. Of course he gets tired easily. But this place admits of good massage and treatment for him as also more protection from visitors than most others and the climate is better than [that of] Sevagram in August, September and October. According to present plans he leaves for Sevagram on the 19th and after 9 days there leaves for Bengal, arriving in Calcutta on November 2nd. But this depends on what progress Sardar makes this week. Up till now there is no real improvement in his case but Bapu is hopeful that he will improve if he stays on....

Yours,

AMRIT KAUR

From the original: C.W. 11060. Courtesy: Arjun Jairamdas

¹ The addressee wrote on October 19 to say that the Industries and Civil Supplies Department, which had not “undertaken or suggested control over the price or distribution of khadi”, was “asking the Provincial Governments to look into the matter”.

² Amrit Kaur was going along with Zakir Husain to attend the preliminary session of the United Nations Cultural and Educational Conference as Member of the Indian Delegation.
295. LETTER TO G. V. MAVALANKAR

October 10, 1945

BHAI MAVALANKAR,

I have your letter. There was no need to take the trouble to write it. I would not misunderstand your not coming. I know you quite well. But now you must have noted that the Committee is meeting in Sevagram itself on the 25th, 26th and 27th. If you can come at that time, do so. But if the direct railway service has not been resumed, it is not necessary to take all that trouble for coming. Please do nothing at the cost of your health.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 1255

296. LETTER TO K. T. SHAH

October 10, 1945

BHAI SHAH,

Only today I read a copy of the article Chi. Kishorelal had sent to [The Bombay] Chronicle around June 15. It is a short one which I am enclosing herewith. It will not take you long to glance through it.

If you find his suggestions worth while, you yourself can do further research. If what he says is right and if decimal coinage is going to be forced on the people, you can play an important part in opposing it.

K. T. SHAH
8 LABURNUM ROAD
GAMDEVI, BOMBAY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

297. LETTER TO V. L. MEHTA

October 10, 1945

BHAI VAIKUNTH

Only today I read a copy of the article Chi. Kishorelal had sent to [The Bombay] Chronicle around June 15. It is a short one which I am enclosing herewith. It will not take you long to glance through it.

Write to me if you find his suggestions useful and take further steps if you can. I am writing a letter to Gaganvahari and Shah. Perhaps the cloud (if it is a cloud) that is hovering over the people will easily be averted if something is done in time.

VAIKUNTH MEHTA
BOMBAY PROV. CO-OPERATIVE BANE
BACK HOUSE LANE, BOMBAY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

298. LETTER TO KISHORELAL G. MASHRUWALA

October 10, 1945

CHI. KISHORELAL,

Today just after the prayers I read with care your article on decimal coinage. I liked it. Why did you take so long in sending it? Or did you send it and did I miss it by oversight? I was in Panchgani then and hardly looked at newspapers. At present also the situation is just the same. To say that I have carefully gone through the article does not mean that I have also checked up the calculations or that they are clear to me. Since you are so good at calculations I take it that the figures are correct. Suppose your figures are correct and your suggestions are very useful to the public, you cannot sit quiet after merely writing an article. If your health permits, pursue the matter yourself or discuss it with Narahari, Jajuji and Kumarappa. Vinoba also is an expert at figures. If he agrees, Jajuji or Narahari can go deep into the matter and correspond with Kodanda Rao. I am myself writing to him. I have written to K. T. Shah, Vaikunth and Gaganvahari and sent them copies of the article.

Now about Jajuji. I don’t think we shall gain anything by sending him to the Assembly. He would become weak. Ours is a queer way of working and the people working there are even more queer. People ask for Jajuju and others but will not listen to them after placing them on the throne. Jajuji will be much more useful by remaining out of the Assembly.

Dada’s name is worth considering and perhaps he will be

1 Gaganvihari L. Mehta, addressee’s younger brother
2 From May 31 to June 19, 1945
3 Vide the preceding two items.
4 Ibid
relieved of his family responsibilities when the time comes.

Sardar told me that you had written to him.

I am not convinced by what you say about your health. And I am helpless because you are insisting exclusively on one thing. I cannot understand your insistence. But since it is backed by your peculiar line of thinking how can I counter it? If you were temperamentally like Sardar I would have sent for you for treatment here or done some such thing. I just do not believe that your constitution is collapsing from within and that it cannot be helped. I believe it can be set right by nature cure. I have said all this as I could not help it. If any of this appeals to you, please let me know so that I may think about the next step.

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

299. LETTER TO SATYADEVI

October 10, 1945

CHI, SATYADEVI¹.

I am glad to have your letter. The letters are quite well formed. I am glad to learn that none of you have given up the spinning-wheel. Ply it and also master all the attendant processes.

I hope Durga² and Maitreyi³ are all right. So also Krishna-maiya⁴. What is Mahavir⁵ doing these days? You have not given any news of Dharmakumar⁶. Do you all stay together⁷?

SATYADEVI

BORIVLI

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Daughters of Dalbahadur Giri of Nepal
² ibid
³ ibid
⁴ Addressee’s brothers
⁵ Vide “Letter to G. V. Mavalankar”, 8-10-1945
⁶ ibid
⁷ Vide “Speech at Govardhan Sanstha”, 5-10-1945
300. LETTER TO NIRMALA GANDHI

POONA,
October 10, 1945

CHI. NIMU,

I got your letter. Now Ramdas also believes that Sumi should go there. I did fear that both of you are of such a temperament that you may not like the idea of Dr. Sushila going there. Sushila had very willingly agreed to go. Now send for Sumi and get her there. May be her good lies in that and it is possible she will study with greater interest there. I hope Ramdas is really well.

Blessings from

BAPU

From the Gujarati original: Mrs. Sumitra Kulkarni Papers. Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library

301. LETTER TO CHAUNDE MAHARAJ

October 10, 1945

CHAUNDE MAHARAJ,

I have your letter. I have expressed my opinion but that does not mean that a new institution is to be formed for the whole country. The Goseva Sangh is already there and the work is going on. But the task is a difficult one. There should be a considerable number of people who know the science of goseva and can put it into practice.

Your ideas are noble but the work will not progress on mere ideas. I did not like the scene I witnessed the day I went there. Everyone was sentimental but they had no knowledge and no will for work. Try to expand the scope of the goshala. Till now there is no tannery there. I do not know if there is a good bull.

Do you have a dairy expert? If there is one and if the existing institution itself becomes an ideal dairy, I shall be too glad and hope to have great results from it. A similar experiment is going on in Wardha under my supervision. I cannot of course cite any significant results. I realize that it is very difficult to attain perfection. I know of no easy way of overcoming difficulties and perhaps I may never come across one. I hope you have understood the meaning of what I say.

---

1 Dr. Sushila Nayyar

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

GOVARDHAN SANSTHA
POONA

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

302. A LETTER

October 10, 1945

Bhai...¹,

Your letter makes sad reading. Your sin is grave. You cannot expiate it by fasting. Fasting has its own limits. The real penance is a change of heart on your part. You will have to confess your fall to the bride. And if she still wishes to marry you, you may do so. You must give up the bride’s mother. Is she of loose character? I have seen such mothers. The whole thing is very delicate. I can’t understand it fully nor do I have the time to do so.

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

303. LETTER TO MAHAJANI

October 10, 1945

Bhai MAHAJANI,

Only today I got your letter dated September 18.

I am just repeating the message I sent to you in 1935, wishing that both the institutions may live long.

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Omission as in the source
304. A LETTER

[On or before October 11, 1945]¹

DEAR . . .².

Yours is a simple case. If your wife has gone astray, you owe no obligation to her. She should leave you and marry or live with the person of her choice.

If you are firm in your vow, you should carry it out. If you are not, there should be no pretension.

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

305. LETTERS TO RAMPRASAD

POONA,
October 11, 1945

CHI. RAMPRASAD,

I have your letter. I don’t understand why you feel hesitant about writing to me. But now I am about to come there. Speak to me then.

I have suggested Jivanram as the boy’s name. Jivanram was a great scholar. At present I am reading his translation of Bhartriharishatakam³. Meanwhile, Chi. Kanta asked a name for the child and this occurred to me. Moreover, he has just come out of the jaws of death. That is another reason for suggesting this name.

SEVAGRAM
WARDHA

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ In the source the letter is placed between those of October 10 and 11, 1945.
² The name has been omitted.
³ A compendium of three sets of 100 verses each, on erotic love, moral wisdom and turning away from worldly pleasures, written by Bhartrihari
306. LETTER TO DINESH SINGH

October 11, 1945

CHI. DINESH,

I was happy to receive your letter. It is good that all are together. Complete your studies and render public service to your heart’s content.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI DINESH KUMAR
KALAKANKAR KOTHI
LUCKNOW (U.P.)

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 8676

307. LETTER TO SHRIKRISHNADAS JAJU

October 11, 1945

BHAJ JAJUJI,

I am sending a copy of my letter* to the Viceroy’s Secretary. I wanted to make it as brief as possible. Tell me if you think that some important point has been left out so that I may write again.

I am thinking over the legal aspect. I wish to take Dr. Kedar’s help for that. And if you think that this cannot be arranged through you I am prepared to write to him myself. If you send a brief† I shall send the same or shall draw up one. If you are still not satisfied, I shall write to a lawyer in Bombay.

After going through all [the papers] I feel there is no need for us to decide in a hurry. Isn’t it mentioned in the new rule that the date for implementing it will be announced later? I understand that we have no difficulty with the old rule. Is this correct?

I am planning to reach Sevagram on the 21st. If I do I shall be there till the 31st.

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

---

1 Dated October 10, 1945; vide “Letter to E. M. Jenkins”, 10-10-1945
2 This word is in English.
308. LETTER TO DEVDAS GANDHI

October 11/12, 1945

CHI. DEVDAS,

I have read your committee’s amended report. If I have not told you earlier, let me tell you that as long as we do not get a woman to head the organization¹, it will be like building on sand. Our effort will bear fruit only if we can find a responsible woman organizer. She would also keep some kind of record, like your report. Now for taking any further step, for example choosing the site, I feel the same thing as I have already indicated should apply. I hope you are all right.

“THE HINDUSTAN TIMES”
NEW DELHI

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

309. LETTER TO UMA AGRAWAL

POONA, October 12, 1945

CHI. OM²,

I have your letter. After writing such a slovenly hand, how can you ask for pardon? One must never write a bad hand.

I received the baby’s silent message. Whom do you mean by “his”? Is it not the limit of helplessness that you feel embarrassed in taking your [husband’s] name? If you send me some names, I would select one.

Sushilabehn has returned. She did excellent work.

Blessings from
BAPU

[From Gujarati]
Panchven Putrako Bapuke Ashirvad, p. 345

¹ For Kasturba Gandhi National Memorial Trust work
² Daughter of Jarnalal Bajaj, married to Rajnarayan Agrawal
310. LETTER TO PREMA KANTAK

October 12, 1945

CHI. PREMA,

Join me in my walk on the 17th at 7.30. I have no other time to give.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10440. Also C.W. 6879. Courtesy: Prema Kantak

311. LETTER TO RAMDAS GANDHI

October 12, 1945

CHI. RAMDAS,

Sumi’s letter is at the back of this. So now there is no question whether she should go or not. Yesterday Manilal and Sushila left for Akola. Arun has stayed back. Valjibhai teaches him.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

312. FRAGMENT OF LETTER TO CHIMANLAL N. SHAH

October 12, 1945

... does not want the money back. Jajuji has decided that since the land which you did not wish to part with has not been given, Ghanshyamdas may, if he wishes, deduct something. But as he does not wish to do so, that is the end of the matter.

A letter from Dr. Ice is enclosed. We should put up for him the kind of structure he wants. Also think over the changes which he might consider desirable for us. I think if we can ensure coolness in the building by suitable means we should do so.

From a photostat of Gujarati: G. N. 10646

The first two sheets of the letter are not traceable.
313. LETTER TO PYARELAL

October 12, 1945

CHI. PYARELAL,

I must have a letter from Manu. When I see the situation you are in, I hate myself. And yet, who am I to interfere? Do as your heart prompts you. Take a decision.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

314. LETTER TO LILAVATI ASAR

October 12/13, 1945

CHI. LILI,

One may say you have done well. Now stick to it and get through and start working.

The date for going to Sevagram is not yet fixed. If I remember I shall write to you; in any case you will come to know of it. Don’t spoil your health.

Blessings from

BAPU

SMT. LILAVATI UDESHI
G. S. MEDICAL COLLEGE, PAREL

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

315. LETTER TO F. M. PINTO

NATURE CURE CLINIC,
6 TODIWALA ROAD,
POONA,
October 13, 1945

MY DEAR PINTO,

I have your letter. I take little or no interest in the elections. Sometimes, however, I have to tender advice. Your letter I like and also dislike. I like its frankness but the argument is bad.¹ I want every minority to be robust and independent in the full sense of the term. A Christian remains a full Indian because he cannot be otherwise and expects or wants no reward for remaining an Indian. Then the word ‘minority’ loses all its significance. I have put myself in the minorities’ position. I can, therefore, speak with frankness and even some authority. What does it matter, if older Christians cling to the Government and look up to it for crumbs? That will be the testing time for the younger ones. For time runs against the former and in favour of the latter.

If you have understood and appreciated my argument, in your private talks too you will bear down the opposition of the older ones by being and remaining true to yourselves and the nation to which you belong.

Blessings from
M. K. GANDHI

SHRI F. M. PINTO
NATIONALIST CHRISTIAN PARTY
C/O ANGLO LUSITANO
15 BANK STREET
FORT, BOMBAY

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

316. LETTER TO K. ISWARA DUTT

October 13, 1945

MY DEAR ISWARA DUTT²,

Having been the victim of such a volume myself I wonder whether you will appreciate my objection to any such volume. Does it do any good? Does the victim stand in need of encomium even from the tallest? If he does, it should be withheld. If he does not, it is superfluous. Holding such views and holding them strongly, I must ¹ The addressee had argued that since Christians, whose number was very small on the electoral roll, had little chance of getting elected independently to the Central Assembly they should be “put up on the Congress ticket”.

² A journalist who had proposed to bring out a felicitation volume for Tej Bahadur Sapru

VOL.88: 30 AUGUST, 1945 - 6 DECEMBER, 1945 149
pour cold water on your suggestion. Sir Tej Bahadur is much too good a man to require any outside prop.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

SHRI K. ISWARA DUTT
28 STATION ROAD
JAIPUR (RAJPUTANA)

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

317. LETTER TO P. C. GHOSH

October 13, 1945

BHAI PRAFULLO,

Why did you send a special messenger? Why did you write such a lengthy note? Rajkumari had shown me what she had written [to you]. I still find nothing wrong in it. Mahadev would have written a similar letter. The estrangement between you and Satis Babu hurts me very much. Perhaps I may not reach there on November 2 because it might be difficult to leave [ailing] Sardar. In that case I will be delayed. The second reason is the election excitement over there. In view of this I will fix the date after I hear from you. It will be better to draw up the programme there itself. Of course it will mean some inconvenience but it would be better to put up with it.

I hope you are keeping well.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

318. LETTER TO CHIMANLAL N. SHAH

POONA,
October 14, 1945

CHI. CHIMANLAL,

I [had written]\(^1\) to Chi. Babu about my reaching [Sevagram]. She will not, however, go there in my absence, and it is only proper that she should not. She is eager indeed to come when I am there. But my own programme is uncertain. I cannot say definitely when I shall be able to settle down in the Ashram. I might be able to do so after I

---

\(^1\) This was sent through Kantilal of Calcutta.

\(^2\) A word is illegible here; vide “Letter to Sharda G. Chokhawala”, 2-10-1945 have finished Bengal, Madras and the Frontier Province. And now I am planning something new. Let us see what happens.

Blessings from
BAPU

[PS.]
I will certainly not be able to reach there on the 21st. I will give the exact date later.

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10647

319. LETTER TO AMRITLAL V. THAKKAR

October 14, 1945

BAPA,

I am enclosing Mridula’s letters. The draft of what I wish to say is also there.¹ If you approve of it, I intend sending it to Mridula. And if she too approves of it, we can send it to the Press.

Also see the letter about Lila Jog. I think it is better to send Rs. 250. But as you know the facts, please guide me in this also. I understand that it will be inconvenient for you to come here and I do not want you to run around in your present condition. So let us do as much as we can by correspondence.

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

320. LETTER TO RATILAL B. MEHTA

POONA,

October 14, 1945

BHAI RATILAL BECHARDAS,

I have your cheque for Rs. 1635-6-0. I should like to use it for constructive work.

Blessings from
BAPU

RATILAL BECHARDAS MEHTA
GHATKOPAR CONGRESS COMMITTEE
NAOROJI LANE
GHATKOPAR, BOMBAY
From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ For the letter to Mridula Sarabhai, vide”Letter to Mridula Sarabhai”
321. LETTER TO DHARMAKUMAR GIRI

October 14, 1945

CHI. DHARMAKUMAR,

I am glad to have your letter. Let me know as soon as Satyadevi is operated upon. Appear for the examinations again since you have failed. It is always better to complete what one has undertaken. I have got the yarn.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI DHARMAKUMAR GIRI
BHIMJI KARA’S BUNGALOW
BORIVLI

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

322. LETTER TO K. T. SHAH

October 14, 1945

BHAJ SHAH,

I have your letter. You have replied promptly. I approve of all your arguments. If you start an agitation on those lines, perhaps the changes recently introduced can be withdrawn.

Blessings from
BAPU

PROF. K. T. SHAH
GAMDEVI
BOMBAY-7

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
323. LETTER TO KISHORELAL G. MASHRUWALA

October 14, 1945

CHI. KISHORELAL,

Are you determined to die? Convince me if there is any logic in your thinking so that I too may follow you. Now it is high time [you listened to me]. Whoever writes, writes only about your getting weaker and weaker. How can I make you understand? What can I do if my going there is getting postponed?

Blessings to you both from

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

324. LETTER TO MRIDULA SARABHAI

POONA,

October 14, 1945

CHI. MRIDU,

I have your letter. It is not as if I have known you from today. You must act with the assumption that you are working under me and with me. It is a different matter that your other pre-occupations keep you in infrequent touch with me. You will of course be knowing everything as the supervisor. You will no doubt remain in touch with women. If you find any shortcoming anywhere, you will draw my attention to them. Then you will be able to tell me what needs to be told without any conflict and without the feeling that you are taking my time. And yet, you will not feel burdened.

I have prepared the draft regarding your resignation¹ and sent it to Bapa. I shall send it to you when it is returned and will release it to the press only after you pass it. I shall prepare and send the English version also from here. That, of course, you will not be able to see (before it is sent).

¹ From the post of Joint Secretary, Kasturba Gandhi National Memorial Trust, owing to differences with Amritlal Thakkar; vide “Letter to Mridula Sarabhai”, 15-10-1945. Vide also the following item.
I have written to Bapa about the salary of that lady too. I shall settle it soon.

I have understood about Tendulkar. It is your duty to look after your health.

Blessings from

BAPU

From the Gujarati original: C. W. 11246. Courtesy: Sarabhai Foundation

325. LETTER TO ABHYANKAR

October 14, 1945

BHAI ABHYANKAR,

I have your letter. I am sorry to say that I do not read newspapers and heard about Chimur Ashti only from you. If what you state is all true, it is a matter of great sorrow and all the more so for me that such an incident should take place over my name. Moreover, I am totally ignorant about what is going on there at present. I cannot personally go anywhere but I am enquiring about both the matters. If the second incident also was as you describe, it is really sad.

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

326. LETTER TO GOPE GURBUXANI

October 14, 1945

BHAI GURBUXANI,

I have your letter written in English. There was no need for you to write in English. It is good that you are earning something on your own. I am glad you sent money to your father and repaid the loan to the Ashram also. Do silent service while remaining out of the Congress. When I become a four-anna member, ask me whether you also should become one.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI GOPE GURBUXANI
17 HASAN BUILDING
NICHOLSON ROAD, DELHI

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Lila Jog

154 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
327. LETTER TO VIMLARANI GURBUXANI

October 14, 1945

CHI. VIMLA,

Gurbuxani writes to say that you have gone to your parents and your confinement is drawing near. I hope you will have an easy delivery. Let me know when it is over.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI VIMLARANI GURBUXANI, M.A.
2A CONVENT ROAD
DEHRA DUN

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

328. LETTER TO AMRIT KAUR

October 15, 1945

CHI. AMRIT,

I hope you reached Manorville safely and found all well. I hope you will have no difficulty on your way to London and back. You must keep well during your absence which I hope will be as short as possible.

Pyarelal is still in bed. Though fever was below normal for some time during last night, it went up to over 103° during the day. But he looks better otherwise.

Sardar must go to Bombay for a week. I shall stay here. This means I do not go to Sevagram before 2nd November.

Love to you all.

BAPU

From the original: C.W. 4167. Courtesy: Amrit Kaur. Also G.N. 7803

329. LETTER TO MANILAL AND SUSHILA GANDHI

POONA,
October 15, 1945

CHI. MANILAL AND SUSHILA,

I had your letter. Somebody told me only yesterday that you could not get the tickets immediately. Arun is happy. He wears

1 Wife of Gope Gurbuxani nothing but underwear and is always in high spirits. He studies a little and plays a lot. He does spin, of course. He does not show, at any rate, that he misses you. Valjibhai teaches him. Kanaiyo went with my permission. I was in a position to let him go. Pyarelal has come, but with high fever. The fever has not been diagnosed. Do not worry about me.

Blessings to all of you from

BAPU

SHRI MANILAL GANDHI
MASHRUWALA BUNGALOW
AKOLA (C. P. BERAR.)

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 4958

330. LETTER TO D. B. KALELKAR

October 15, 1945

CHI. KAKA,

I got your letters. I have already sent a brief message through Bal. As regards his exploits, he himself will tell you. I, therefore, don’t write about them here.

I had a discussion with Deo regarding Hindustani. His views are firm. He adheres to every word of the Poddar-Deo statement. I showed him the whole of your letter. He finds some factual errors in it, the chief being that he has never opposed your propagation of Hindustani. He is not opposed to it even in thought. He has, in fact, restrained others who were opposed to you. He says that you or others may offer whatever opposition you wish and in whatever manner you wish. My path, therefore, is clear. You, I and others who regard knowledge of the two languages as essential should vigorously, but in our own manner, carry on our work.

Atulanand’s leaflet and other literature have been passed on to you. Probably his letter also was there. I should like you to read them and return them to Sevagram with your opinion. My reason for writing this is that Atulanand has written a letter cautioning me.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10967

1 Atulanand Chakravarty

156 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
331. LETTER TO MATHURADAS TRIKUMJI

October 15, 1945

CHI. MATHURADAS,

Why did you fall ill? You must not exert yourself to do anything. It is one’s duty to keep the body radiant as copper. Eat only what suits you. Do only what you are able to. A sevak\(^1\) who falls ill requires others’ services and is not able to do his work. It should not be difficult to see that others taking up his work cannot fill the gap.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 3764

332. LETTER TO MRIDULA SARABHAI

October 15, 1945

CHI. MRIDULA,

I have your resignation. I think you have acted wisely in tendering it. I know and I believe that in accepting the post of Joint Secretary your intention was to render wider service to the cause of women. Equally good is your motive in resigning because you realized and I also saw that by continuing in that post you would not be able to realize your ideal. There is temperamental incompatibility between Bapa and you. You tried to adjust but who can remove inherent differences? You saw that your method of working did not satisfy Bapa. He, on his part, also tried to adjust but with little success. I could see that the difference was enormous. In my opinion neither of you is at fault. Very often such differences are unbridgeable. In these circumstances, the best thing is to work apart. Bapa was, and is still, ready to quit. But this is Bapa’s creation and Bapa is a seasoned hand in this kind of work. It would be difficult for me, I think, to carry this burden without him. It is Bapa’s wish and mine that all men should ultimately withdraw from the Samiti and the entire administration should be handed over to the sisters. That will bring it real credit. This effort will continue and none of us will rest on our oars till it succeeds. Success will not come early by Bapa’s leaving it or allowing us to quit. Hence I am allowing you to quit the Joint Secretaryship and am accepting your resignation. I know that I am not losing your services thereby. You are and will continue to be a trustee. I am sure you will continue to work for the local Kasturba Nidhi committee of Gujarat; and you will also assist the Central Committee whenever it needs your help. Thus I am confident that you will not lag behind in serving the Committee even when you relinquish its Joint Secretaryship. Moreover, you should not forget that you have resigned from Secretaryship, not from trusteeship.

\(^1\) One who serves

Blessings from

BAPU

[PS.]

Your decision to publish the resignation letter is well conceived. That will scotch all rumours and speculation either in private or in public. You are already on leave. Does it [resignation] take effect from now itself?

From the Gujarati original: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

333. LETTER TO VAJUBHAI SHUKLA

October 15, 1945

Bhai Vajubhai,

Just now I heard about your wife’s demise. What can I say by way of consolation? Everyone born has to die. Some die sooner, some later.

Blessings from

BAPU

Vajubhai Shukla

Rajkot

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

334. LETTER TO KISHORELAL G. MASHRUWALA

October 15, 1945

Chh. Kishorelal,

Just now Prabhakar rang up Sushila to say that you have fever. I am not at all happy about it. I shall be satisfied only when the fever completely subsides.

Rameshwardas has asked me to suggest a name out of the four for the Mahadev Memorial at Dhulia. I have selected Gomati’s. It will be good if she agrees.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
335. LETTER TO R. ACHUTHAN

October 15, 1945

BHAI ACHUTHAN,

I have written a great deal about constructive work. Read it all, over and over again. Do not listen to criticism by others. If you hear criticism, you must have the strength to answer it. How long can I go on replying to people? Students should develop the ability to understand and reply to such things.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 10853

336. LETTER TO V. A. SUNDARAM

October 15, 1945

DEAR SUNDARAM,

I have your gift for Monday. You have done well to revive old memories.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 3187

337. LETTER TO CHANDRANI

October 15, 1945

CHI. CHAND,

I have no difficulty in giving a decision. You cannot leave Nagpur on any account; not even if your parents are ill. Student life is a kind of sannyasa. I do not think that Satyavati would like you to give up your studies, And what will you gain even if you go there? Sushila will write the rest.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: Chandrani Papers. Courtesy: Gandhi National Museum and Library

1 Secretary, Benares Hindu University Rachanatmak Mandal for students
2 The superscription and the subscription are in Tamil.
3 To the Tuberculosis Hospital, Delhi, where Satyavati had been admitted
338. LETTER TO ABUL KALAM AZAD

October 15, 1945

BHAI SAHEB,

Maulana . . .¹ writes to say that you need prolonged rest.
I also agree with him. You must take rest for the sake of the country.

Yours,
M. K. GANDHI

MAULANA ABUL KALAM AZAD SAHEB
CALCUTTA

From a copy of the Hindi. Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

339. LETTER TO ABDUL GHAFFAR KHAN

October 15, 1945

BHAI BADSHAH KHAN,

There must be plenty of bustle because of the elections. Will it be proper for me to go there at that time? Or shall I come later? I don’t know when I will be able to make it.

Yours,
M. K. GANDHI

BADSHAH KHAN
CHARSADDA
FRONTIER PROVINCE

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

340. LETTER TO VAMANRAO JOSHI

October 15, 1945

BHAI VAMANRAO,

Sardar informed me that you survived the accident but the injuries were quite serious. I hope they are not too serious and your life of service will go on for a long time.

Blessings from
BAPU

VEER VAMANRAO
AMRAVATI, BERAR

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Omission as in the source

160  THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
341. LETTER TO RAMESHWARI NEHRU

October 15, 1945

CHI. RAMESHWARI.

I have your letter. Your sister has passed away leaving behind a large family. Your mother must be feeling it the most. These days I read Bhartri Harishatak for a few minutes daily. What it says on moral wisdom and detachment are worth pondering over at such times. Why grieve over the inevitable? It is good indeed that the fast over the Garhwal [issue] was withdrawn.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI RAMESHWARIBEHN NEHRU
SRINAGAR
KASHMIR

From a copy of the Harijan Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

342. LETTER TO J. B. KRIPALANI

October 15, 1945

BHAI KRIPALANI,

I got your letter and the wire later. My wire was already drafted in accordance with your decision, so I withheld it. I hope your fever has completely subsided. Sucheta too must have recovered. Sardar’s decision was also the same [as yours].

Blessings from
BAPU

ACHARYA KRIPALANI
SWARAJYA BHAVAN, ALLAHABAD

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

343. LETTER TO ANNE MARIE PETERSEN

POONA,
October 16, 1945

DEAR MARIA,

I have read your letter to Rajkumari. I must say your letter is unsatisfactory. That you are going to Denmark and that during your absence the institution will remain closed should have been sufficient for the withdrawal of the application. Was it good or necessary to bring in the matter of conversion? When you and Esther came to me, it was, I think, common between us that conversion from one faith to another was needless and created heart-burning. One’s faith expands by removing the bad in it and absorbing the good and new from the others. You have every right to hold the opposite view. My point is simple. You had a decisive cause for withdrawing your application without raising an irrelevant issue.

1 Vice-President, Harijan Sevak Sangh

I hope you will have a good time in Denmark and will return hale and hearty.

Love.

BAPU

MISS A. M. PETERSEN
SEVA MANDIR, PORTO NOVO

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

344. LETTER TO CHHOTUBHAI K. MEHTA

October 16, 1945

CHHI. NAPOLEON¹.

I got your letter written in a beautiful hand. I was glad to read about Mama. Why do you want blessings for your Association? You should assume that you have everybody’s blessings for good work and go on with it silently.

Blessings from

BAPU

CHHI. NAPOLEON
ADARSH DUGDHALAYA
MALAD, via BOMBAY

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./XXII

345. LETTER TO TARABEHN MODAK

October 16, 1945

DEAR SISTER,

If you had written your article in ink, I myself would have read it earlier. But as it was in pencil, I could not read the whole article

¹ Son of Kunverji Mehta, a Congressman of Bardoli taluk
though there is plenty of light in my room. Ultimately I made someone read it out. I know from personal experience that there is a lot of difference between reading something and hearing it read. Daily I make someone read out cuttings from newspapers and if and when I have time, I read them myself. Sometimes when a thing is re-read there is a striking change in my understanding. I feel this must be a common experience. Of course you have to realize yourself. I have mentioned this important, though irrelevant, thing because I thought it worth mentioning. I would be pleased if you accept that there is violence in writing in pencil things sent by post. The letters written in pencil fade away in course of time.

I am sending back your article. Please note the changes I have made in what I could read myself. The changes are just from the point of view of language. The rest I find is quite all right. I am giving a gist of my experiences so as to make what I have said more clear.

I saw the work done by teachers trained under Madame Montessori, and carefully observed the working of the Nursery School. Of course the things were foreign and the poor teacher had not digested what she had been taught. What to speak of the children? They could not even observe normal discipline. I am not criticising anyone. I have given the gist of my experience just for your information. Imbibe whatever you find useful and discard the rest. The conclusion I have drawn from this experience is that we shall be able to propagate scientific knowledge of child education only when our teachers are competent. They should have the will to become one with children. I am afraid I am not saying anything new in this. These things are certainly not beyond your range of experience but since I have come to know you and also love you I hope you will not find fault with me for saying the things you already know.

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

346. LETTER TO HARIKISANDAS CHAWDA
October 16, 1945

BHAI HARIKISANDAS,
I have 77 paise coins from your institution.\(^1\) I am putting them into the Harijan Sevak Sangh account. I hope everyone is spinning

\(^1\) To symbolize Gandhiji’s entering 77th year on October 2, 1945 regularly.

HARIJAN VYAYAM MANDAL
20 COCHIN STREET
BOMBAY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

347. LETTER TO MRIDULA SARABHAI

POONA,
October 16, 1945

CHI. MRIDU,

I showed it to Bapa. He returned my draft unchanged. He said: “I cannot think of making any changes in this. Do what you think proper. I have learnt about the resignation only today. But do what you think is correct.” So I am sending my draft as it is with my signature. But if you wish to make any changes, send it back to me with the changes. I shall look into the changes and incorporate them if I find them in order and then send it to the press.

Now about Jog. Bapa says: “I stick to what I said. No one had sanctioned it. But if you can give the sanction for two months, you may as well make it for three months so that the matter is settled.” I would do as you wish. I shall make the sanction for three months if you so desire. It appears to me that Jog has written under your persuasion. So I take that what will fully satisfy you will also satisfy her. I understand that what you suggest is two months’ wages. So I shall arrange for sanction for only two months. I shall do about the matter as you want.

Blessings from
BAPU

From the Gujarati original: C. W. 11247. Courtesy: Sarabhai Foundation
348. LETTER TO ANAND T. HINGORANI

October 16, 1945

CHI. ANAND.

It is very good that your faith has increased and also your peace. I am writing the daily thought. I hope to complete what is left. After that I want to be quiet.

Chi. Mahadev will be well.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Hindi. Courtesy: National Archives of India and Anand T. Hingorani

349. LETTER TO KHURSHEDBEHN NAOROJI

[October 17, 1945]

VAHALAN BEHN.

Your letter. I note what you say. We serve according to our lights.

The Bengal tour will be postponed by a few days. The date is not yet fixed.

What you say about Satyavati is disquieting. But nothing better was to be expected. Let us hope she will witness the wedding.

Rajkumari may go to London for a month... I shall do my best about Nirmal Kumar whom I know and whose work I value.

My love to Satyavati.

KHURSHEDBEHN NAOROJI
THE I. N. A. DEFENCE COMMITTEE
82 DARYAGANJI, DELHI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 For the thoughts written during the period covered by this volume, vide “A Thought for the Day” at the end of this volume.
2 The letter is found among those of this date.
4 Omission as in the source.
5 The addressee had asked Gandhiji to utilize the services of Nirmal Kumar Bose.
350. LETTER TO CHHAGANLAL JOSHI

POONA,
October 17, 1945

CHI. CHHAGANLAL,

I have your letter. I remember to have written to you that I would let you accompany me during some part of my tour.¹ My view is that it would be convenient if you accompanied me in the Madras Presidency, for I am familiar with the work there. The work in Bengal and Assam is rather difficult. I don’t have a clear picture of it in my mind. I, therefore, don’t wish to take with me there anybody who is not specially needed. The date of my tour also has not been fixed. Perhaps I may go to Bengal only after November 21. Everything depends on Sardar’s health.

I think your accepting money from the Rulers requires some consideration. It was your letter which made me think about this. Shouldn’t we ponder whether or not we can accept money from Rulers who pay no attention at all to the welfare of their subjects? When the amount of Rs. 1,000 is received, I will credit it to the account of the Harijan Sevak Sangh.

So far I have no knowledge of its being received this time. I do not know if it has been received at the Sevagram Ashram.

Do you think the States would give any protection to the Harijans wherever they are oppressed? Concerning joint fruitparties for Harijans and caste Hindus, do you mean any caste Hindus or only reformers like you and me?

Remind me again when you read about the date of my tour. Rajkumari has gone to Simla. From there she may perhaps have to go to England for a month. Sushilabehn and Manilal have gone to Akola.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 5549

¹Vide “Letter to Chhaganlal Joshi”, 10-9-1945
351. LETTER TO SHANTILAL J. MEHTA

October 17, 1945

CHI. SHANTI,

I have no message to give to Natal.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./XXII

352. LETTER TO PRABHAVATI

October 17, 1945

CHI. PRABHA,

Why do you mark your letters “private”? What is there private for a public worker? And what was private in your letter? I have not kept a copy of my letter. What can I, therefore, write? Probably it was about your study, Jayaprakash and your coming. There may have been something concerning what you wrote regarding Banaras. For more details ask me when I arrive there. Learn to keep patience till then. I am enquiring from Rajkumari and Sushilabehn about the letter to you.

My departure for Bengal will be delayed by a few days. You will read about it in the newspapers. Most probably I will write.

We shall call your friend later.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 3585

353. LETTER TO GAJANAN NAIK

October 17, 1945

CHI. GAJANAN,

I have your letter. I regret that I cannot make you understand such a simple thing. If the person who writes is himself not frank, what can be done about what he writes? I tell you it is your dharma to be frank; only then can an inquiry be held. If you wish to write to me secretly I don’t want to listen to anything and don’t want to be influenced.¹

AKHIL BHARATIYA UDYOG SANGH
WARDHA

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

354. LETTER TO MAYASHANKER
October 17, 1945

BHAI MAYASHANKER,

I have your letter. I am helpless. Do write whatever you wish to say.

MAYASHANKER
C/O MAHENDRA BHOGILAL & CO.
DIVANCHAND BUILDING
75 JHAVERI BAZAAR, BOMBAY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

355. LETTER TO L. KRISHNASWAMI BHARATI
October 17, 1945

BHAI KRISHNASWAMI,

At the moment I don’t feel like writing to Nadar². Virtue is its own reward. So where is the need for appreciation?

I feel happy to hear about your family.

L. KRISHNASWAMI BHARATI
165 WEST MASI STREET
MADURA

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Vide also “Letter to Gajanan Naik”, 8-10-1945
² Kamaraj Nadar; President of Tamil Nadu Provincial Congress Committee, 1940-54; Member, Constituent Assembly; Chief Minister of Madras, 1954-63; President of Indian National Congress, 1964-67
356. LETTER TO RATNADEVI

October 17, 1945

DEAR SISTER,

Now don't ask for a message from me. As far as possible I want to do silent service. If you want to see me, come over when I have settled down.

RATNADEVI
VANASTHALI VIDYAPITH
JAIPUR STATE

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

357. LETTER TO BHARATAN KUMARAPPA

[On or before October 18, 1945]¹

MY DEAR BHARATAN,

I have time only to say I accept all your amendments.

L. KOTWAL, GORDON HALL HOUSE
NEW NAGPADA ROAD, BYCULLA
BOMBAY

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

358. TELEGRAM TO P. C. GHOSH²

[October 18, 1945]³

SORRY I HAVE BEEN OBLIGED TO POSTPONE VISIT TO BENGALE BY A FEW DAYS. AM UNABLE GIVE EXACT DATE COMING. AM ANXIOUS VISIT AS MANY PLACES AS POSSIBLE BUT REGARD BEING HAD TO MY HEALTH IT MAY TURN OUT TO BE AS FEW AS POSSIBLE. MAIN THING IS TO STUDY CONDITION AND SHARE DISTRESS BEST OF MY ABILITY. WOULD LIKE FINAL FIXING PROGRAMME AFTER REACHING CALCUTTA.

Gandhi’s Emissary, p. 55. Also Sudhir Ghosh Papers. Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library

¹ The letter is placed between those of October 17 and 18, 1945.
² A similar telegram was sent to Satis Chandra Das Gupta.
³ In the source Sudhir Ghosh explains that Gandhiji drafted this telegram before he dictated the letter to P. C. Ghosh; vide the following item.
POONA,
October 18, 1945

BHAI PROFULLA,

I have your letter and telegram about Jawaharlalji.\(^1\) I have understood the matter.

Sudhir came yesterday. I have had long talks with Sudhir yesterday and today. I could not send a telegram about my decision. It would have been too long. So I am sending this letter. Sudhir must have sent you a brief telegram.'\(^3\)

Taking everything into consideration I feel that at this stage you may announce this much: ‘Owing to unavoidable circumstances Gandhiji cannot come to Calcutta on the 2nd November. As soon as the date is decided it will be announced. It is likely that he will come in the last week of November or thereabouts. His tour programme which has been published in the newspapers is also cancelled. But wherever he is likely to go, the organizers will be informed so that they can make some arrangements. No expenditure of any kind should be incurred at this stage. Wherever he goes, his transport will have to be paid for, but that can be seen at that time only. Gandhiji has made it clear that, health permitting, he will try his best to go to all the places he wanted to visit. But considering his age and health, it is obvious that in spite of his desire to visit as many places as possible he will be able to visit only a few of them.’

You may publish this much. Now I shall tell you what I want to do. If possible I want to visit Midnapore, Chittagong, Dacca, Borkamta, Santiniketan and Assam. If any other place is left out, like Feni, I would like to visit that also. You can inform the local organizers about my programme which all of you there may decide for me. Transport also would have to be arranged. Do not give anything to the Press yet. That can be done on my arrival. It takes a little time to make the preliminary arrangements. That is why I have suggested this. It is for you to work out what places I can easily visit.

I don’t feel that it is necessary for me to let you know just now

---

\(^1\) This was sent through Sudhir Ghosh.

\(^2\) The addressee wanted Jawaharlal Nehru to postpone his visit to Calcutta for a longer visit later.

\(^3\) Vide the preceding item.
who will be with me. If you want to suggest anything about this, you may do so.

I would certainly like to meet the people who have already been to see me. If you want any more persons to meet me you may send for them. Maulana Saheb is there in Calcutta at present. You should not trouble him; but if he wants to suggest anything you should go to him and ask him about it.

I do not want to get involved in addresses of welcome. Gift of any amount of self-spun yarn, or yarn spun by friends, will not be too much. My aim will be to convert it into khadi and distribute it there at the cheapest possible price. Any gift of money will be welcome, but no special effort should be made for it. It should be voluntary. The money will be used for some constructive work in Bengal. But please remember that this tour is not for the collection of either yarn or money.

I would of course like to meet Mr. Casey and try to secure from him whatever assistance can be had for the people. It has been my experience so far that wherever I go and settle down, my presence gives the poor and destitute a sense of comfort. If I can do even this much, I shall be satisfied.

I do not want to get involved in the politics of Bengal. I have neither the desire nor the knowledge.

Whatever you decide in this matter should be decided unanimously by all of you, rather than by majority opinion. This is not the kind of thing which should be settled by the majority. If anyone interested in my proposed visit does not like a particular thing, I do not want to do that. There must be no quarrel over my visit. My dharma is to settle quarrels. Please give this letter or a copy of it to Satis Babu. My earnest wish is that even though you are two separate bodies, you should become of one mind before my arrival. You are both eminent disciples of the same guru, a great guru like P. C. Ray. What I want is to see you both truly united in heart. Both of you are doing my work. Then why should there be any difference between the two of you? But in all this God’s grace is the main thing.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Sudhir Ghosh Papers. Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library

---

1 Eminent chemist and patriot who died on June 16, 1944
360. TELEGRAM TO ZAKIR HUSAIN

Express

POONA,

October 18, 1945

ZAKIR HUSAIN

CARE JAMIA

DELHI

“DAWN” OF THIRTEENTH CONTAINS REPORTED CONVERSATION WITH YOU.¹ I HAVE DENIED TRUTH STATEMENT BEFORE FRIENDS. I WOULD LIKE YOU TO GIVE YOUR VERSION BEFORE YOU LEAVE². HOPE YOU ARE WELL.

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

361. LETTER TO ZAKIR HUSAIN

October 18, 1945

BHAI ZAKIR,

I have sent a wire³ today. I can’t believe you could have said such a thing. Whatever it is, you had better make a statement about what you had said.

I hope you are all right.

Blessings from

BAPU

DR. ZAKIR HUSAIN

JAMIA MILLIA

DELHI

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ The report read: “Dr. Zakir Husain . . . expressed the view that though . . . the demand for Pakistan was first made as ‘bargaining counter’ it has now become a real demand. The only course for Congress is to agree to Pakistan and forge a united front with the Mussalmans to fight for the freedom of India. Dr. Zakir Husain said that the only man who could deliver the goods on behalf of the Hindus was Mr. Gandhi, but if he accepts the demand . . . the majority of Hindus will not approve it . . . .” The addressee however contradicted the report.

² For London to attend the preliminary session of the United Nations Cultural and Educational Conference as a member of the Indian Delegation

³ Vide the preceding item.
362. LETTER TO AMRIT KAUR

October 18, 1945

CHI. AMRIT,

I had your wire from Simla and I was glad. I hope you have found everything as we had hoped.

Here is a cutting from Dawn. I have wired to Zakir about it and written, too. I cannot believe that he has said anything like what the report says. Anyway we should know authoritatively what Dr. Z. said. If you feel any delicacy about mentioning the subject to him, you need not.

I am well.

Love.

BAPU

From the original: C.W. 4168. Courtesy: Amrit Kaur. Also G.N. 7804

363. LETTER TO K. SANTHANAM

October 18, 1945

DEAR SANTHANAM,

You know Dr. Ambedkar’s indictment of the Congress during the short period of the Congress ministries. Bapa thinks and I agree that there should be an impartial statement in reply exposing the many mis-statements in the book. Bapa has prepared a reply on behalf of the Harijan Sevak Sangh which you should and will see. Rajaji was to prepare the Congress reply but he cannot under the altered circumstances. You are the next best man and I would like you to take up the matter. Bapa will write to you more fully.

Yours,

BAPU

SJT. K. SANTHANAM
“HINDUSTAN TIMES”
NEW DELHI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers.Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Editor, Indian Express, 1933-40; Joint Editor, The Hindustan Times, 1943-48; Member, Legislative Assembly, 1937-42; Member, Constituent Assembly; Minister of State for Railways and Transport, 1948-52; Lt.-Governor, Vindhya Pradesh, 1952-56

2 C. Rajagopalachari however did prepare the Congress reply which was published under the title Ambedkar Refuted; vide also “Letter to C. Rajagopalchari”, 26-8-1945
364. LETTER TO AMRITLAL V. THAKKAR

October 18, 1945

BAPA,

I see that you have left for Wardha. I can’t as yet decide the date of my journey. It seems I shall be able to do so immediately after November 2.

I write this letter just to let you have a copy of my letter to Santhanam1 and to ask you to write more about it to him. Send a draft of the answer you have prepared so that he can make the necessary changes and make a case for the Congress on the basis of it. I think he will have Dr. Ambedkar’s book. If not, write to him that you will send a copy to him. Look after your health.

Jehangir Patel told me that he would be taking Elwin2 to meet you. After that I have not heard from him. Write if there is anything.

KASTURBA GANDHI SMARAK NIDHI
WARDHA

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

365. LETTER TO MAGANLAL P. MEHTA

October 18, 1945

CHI. MAGAN,

I was pained to read your letter. I am still in correspondence with Champa. She tells a different tale altogether. Consider what your dharma in the present situation is. You should go and take charge. The case is a very difficult one. Champa reports that Shashi took him3 to his place, where he behaved sensibly for some time but lost his balance again. You yourself should ascertain the facts and do what is necessary. Narandas did all he could. But matters have gone beyond anybody’s control. There are only two who can exercise some restraint on him—you or I. I do not belong to any single human being now. You alone, therefore, can do something.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 1034. Courtesy: Manjula Mehta

1 Vide the preceding item,
2 Verrier Elwin, an English missionary who had been working in tribal areas
3 Ratilal Mehta, addressee’s eldest brother
366. LETTER TO MANGALDAS PAKVASA

October 18, 1945

BHAJ MANGALDAS PAKVASA,

Many Provincial governments permit the sale of cloth under licences. They have now amended the terms. A copy of the amendment introduced by the C. P. Government is enclosed. In my view a product like khadi cannot be, ought not to be, licensed. A leading counsel in South Africa with a flourishing practice had told me that one must proceed on the assumption that every tangible wrong had a remedy in law and search for it, assured that it would be found. This had appealed to me very much, and I had always relied on it in my work in South Africa and succeeded in finding the remedies. I believe the principle is true in India, too. I have not read all the laws, but I feel that a law which applies to a mill-owner worth millions cannot apply to khadi.

If you see the definition of a ‘dealer’, you will observe that it must include ‘business’. There is no trace of ‘business’ in khadi, for all processes relating to it merely ensure a livelihood to those who make a living through khadi.

I have alluded to this argument merely as a suggestion to you. You will also see that the Government is empowered to grant exemption to anybody. This is not a matter of law, as yet. I draw your attention to it. You may write to Jajuji for any further information which you cannot get locally. What I want you to do is this. Consult anybody whom you wish to and then write to the Government yourself, or request the counsel whom you consult to do so. If, however, you feel that whatever representation is to be made should be addressed by Jajuji as Secretary, we shall do that. Send copies to Jajuji and me of any correspondence that you have. And if you decide to write to the Government directly from there, send the letter after showing the draft to me. I still cherish the belief that I may be able to suggest some improvements.

We should write immediately to the Provincial Government or to the Central Government, whichever you decide. I have already addressed a communication to the Central Government as President of the Charkha Sangh. A copy is enclosed. I have even received an acknowledgement of the letter. The copy is only for your information for the present. We do not wish to give publicity to this matter in newspapers just now or let everybody know about it. Probably you know that by adopting such a procedure I had been able to save the Charkha Sangh during Linlithgow’s tenure. Let us see what happens this time.

1 Vide “Letter to E. M. Jenkins”, 10-10-1945

I am entrusting this important task to you relying on the assurance you have given to me, that you intend to use your ability and prestige as a lawyer, not for money but entirely for public service. And that is what you have been doing for some time. Isn’t that the best way for everybody to use their talents? If you want any further information, please write to me. The matter is urgent, since they have already started issuing licences.

I forgot about one thing. Khadi is facing a special danger, namely, the U. P. Government’s objection to our practice of demanding yarn worth some pice from the buyers for khadi worth every rupee. The objection seems to me ridiculous and harmful from every point of view. However, please consider along with the other issue whether such an objection can be sustained in law. In my view this is a secondary matter and can be easily dealt with. The chief thing is that khadi must not be considered as falling within the scope of the licensing law. We have even stores which sell less than 1,000 rupees worth of khadi every month. To require a licence for sale of khadi is to put a restraint over the production of khadi, i.e., over the poor.

Blessings from

BAPU

Enclosures:
1. Letter to P. S.
2. Jajuji’s letters

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 4783. Courtesy: Mangaldas Pakvasa

367. LETTER TO VALLABHDAS JOSHI

October 18, 1945

BHAI VALLABHDAS,

I have your letter. Real punishment or penance is not to repeat the same mistake even mentally.

VALLABHDAS JOSHI
NELSON MOTOR MARTS
27 QUEEN’S ROAD
BOMBAY-4

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

176 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
368. LETTER TO GULZAR SINGH

October 18, 1945

SARDAR GULZAR SINGH,

I have your letter. I don’t know which places I shall be able to visit during my Bengal tour. My request is that all sevaks should spare me. Only then shall I be able to do what I want to.

SARDAR GULZAR SINGHJI
SHRI GURU SINGH SABHA
31 RASBEHARI AVENUE, KALIGHAT
CALCUTTA

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

369. LETTER TO MOHANLAL VERMA

October 18, 1945

BHAJ MOHANLAL VERMA.

Just now I came to know about Kumar Chintaman Vinayak’s death. If it is true that Congressmen were responsible for it and that too for unworthy reasons, it is a matter of shame, more so for Congressmen. Ever since I heard about this death, I have been trying to find out the truth.

K. MOHANLAL VERMA
GENERAL SECRETARY
ANTI-Pakistan FRONT
GIRGAUM, OPP. MANGALWADI
BOMBAY

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

370. LETTER TO AGRAWAL

October 18, 1945

BHAJ AGRAWAL,

If your intention is to run the clinic just for philanthropy and to use only such medicines as anyone can prepare with some effort, I believe it is bound to succeed.

ASSISTANT SECRETARY
THE HINDUSTAN MERCANTILE ASSOCIATION
641 CHANDNI CHOWK
DELHI

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
371. LETTER TO S. K. GUPTA

October 18, 1945

Bhai Gupta,

I am glad you have a high opinion of the Sevagram [Ashram]. Holding that opinion, make as much headway as you can. Otherwise there is nothing in Sevagram and you may give up the idea of going there.

S. K. Gupta
Excise Inspector
6 Rly. Road
Farukhabad

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

372. LETTER TO A. S. SAHAJANANDA

[On or before October 19, 1945]

Dear Swamiji,

I have your letter. Of course during my visit to Madras, I would like to visit many places. But I am afraid I shall have to deny myself that pleasure. At the present time, the idea is to confine the visit to Madras, stay there for some time, and do the work that I can. Therefore, for the sake of the cause itself, all friends must spare me as far as possible. The forthcoming Bengal visit will tell me what my body is now capable of standing.

A. S. Sahajananda
Nandanar Mutt
Ghidambaram

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

373. LETTER TO E. M. JENKINS

Nature Cure Clinic,
6 Todiwala Road, Poona,
October 19, 1945

Dear Sir Evan,

Shri Jyotish Bose is a condemned prisoner with Shri Haridas Mitra and others. The condemned prisoner’s father came to me two days ago and showed me his petition for mercy. If Shri Haridas Mitra’s sentence is commuted, as I hope it will, this one deserves commutation ipso facto. Shri Jyotish Bose is the son of an uninfluential poor father. But I am sure that poverty will be considered no bar to commutation.

1 The letter is placed between those of October 18 and 19, 1945.

I see from the legal papers that there are others of the batch awaiting execution. The times when the sentences were pronounced were those of war when calmness was at a discount. Now they are changed. The war is over. The condemned men have, no matter what the cause of delay was, survived the war. Will it be too much if I suggest a reconsideration of all such cases in the shape of commutation of death sentences? In my opinion, justice to be real justice requires extension of mercy to temper it.

May I ask you please to put this letter before His Excellency for consideration?

Yours sincerely,

M.K. GANDHI

Gandhiji’s Correspondence with the Government, 1944-47, PP. 49-50

374. LETTER TO J. C. KUMARAPPA

October 19, 1945

MY DEAR KU,

I have hurriedly gone through the cutting returned herewith. There is nothing new in it. The reference to Hitler is out of place. It does not seem to misrepresent my views.

I note what you say about Kishorelal. So your hawk-like eye has detected an error !!!

Love.

BAPU

From a photostat: G.N. 10181

---

1 In his letter dated November 1, the addressee wrote: “His Excellency has considered these petitions together with petitions from two others who were sentenced to death at the same time and has commuted all from death sentences to transportation for life.” Vide also “Letter to E. M. Jenkins”, 7-11-1945.
375. LETTER TO G. L. CROSS

[October 19, 1945]¹

DEAR FRIEND CROSS,

It gave me joy to have your letter through Sudhir who will tell you all about my movement.

Of course you and your wife must see me when I come to Bengal. About attending Friends’ meeting, you have proposed a difficult task. They will have to excuse me. But if they could come to Sodepur, I shall be delighted to meet them.

FRIEND G. L. CROSS

INDIAN RED CROSS SOCIETY

D-3 CLIVE BUILDINGS, CLIVE STREET

CALCUTTA

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

376. LETTER TO SAILES CHANDRABOSE

October 19, 1945

DEAR SAILES²,

It gave me delight to have your Vijaya letter³. I wish you all well and above all to Bela. I may tell you that I am in constant correspondence with the Government in the matter. When I go to Bengal Bela should go there. I am Sorry I am not reaching there on 2nd November. It will be after the middle of November, so far as it is possible to say today.

S. C. BOSE

59 FORBES STREET

BOMBAY

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ The letter is placed among those of this date.
² Brother of Subhas Chandra Bose
³ Apparently a letter conveying Vijayadashami greetings
377. A LETTER

October 19, 1945

DEAR FRIEND,

Your letter. If you have firmness of mind, nothing is difficult.

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

P O. THENKURISSI via PALGHAT

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

378. LETTER TO BHAGWANJI P. PANDYA

October 19, 1945

CHI. BHAGWANJI,

I had your postcard. I agree with you regarding khadi. I have already expressed my views. I am considering what more I should do.

I was happy to know that your work was going on well.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI BHAGWANJI
HARIJAN ASHRAM
WADHWAN

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 402. Courtesy: Navajivan Trust

379. LETTER TO KANJI J. DESAI

October 19, 1945

BHAI KANJI,

I have your letter and Chi. Bhanu’s. Chi. Pushpa is not going to change her mind even if you go to Sevagram. My going there has been postponed. When I can go, I shall know on November 2. Come then if you wish to.

KANJI JETHABHAI
OLD HANUMAN GALI
SECOND CROSS LANE
RAIDA’S CHAWL
SECOND FLOOR, ROOM NO. 4, BOMBAY-2

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 The name has been omitted.
380. LETTER TO PUSHPA K. DESAI

October 19, 1945

CHI. PUSHPA,

Read the accompanying letters. Reply to both of them. If possible, try to dispel their doubts. I have only dropped a postcard to acknowledge the letters and have suggested that, if they wish, they might come to Sevagram when I return there.

I hope you are all right. Never forget that you will have to become an ideal woman.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 9275

381. LETTER TO AMTUSSALAAM

October 19, 1945

DAUGHTER AMTUSSALAAM,

I have your letter. My going there has been put off by a few days. It will now be in the middle of November or towards the end. It depends on Sardar’s health.¹

What shall I say regarding you? It is true that you have learnt nothing from me, and also true that nobody has learnt more than you have. But that is neither here nor there. Talk things over with me when I arrive there. Pyarelal is ill. He will recover.

Blessings from
BAPU

[PS.]

It has not been decided who will accompany me. It was fortunate that you survived. This is how your life will pass. You will have fully recovered by now.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Urdu and Gujarati: G.N. 490

¹ This paragraph is in Urdu.
382. LETTER TO KISHORELAL G. MASHRUWALA

POONA,
October 19, 1945

CHI. KISHORELAL,

I have your letter. We cannot have Premabehn on the Dhulia Trust. Nor can we have Sushila. I would like to suggest Tara’s name. Have you written to Rameshwardas? If not, do so. I do not see the need to suggest a woman’s name just for the sake of having one. Is what Kumarappa says true? He points out an error and then raises an issue.

I hope you are all right.

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

383. LETTER TO KISHORELAL G. MASHRUWALA

October 19, 1945

CHI. KISHORELAL,

Despite your illness, you are following up my suggestions regarding decimal coinage. You will see from Vaikunth’s letter that though the Government is collecting all literature about it, it will not start implementing it and meanwhile if suggestions are accepted, it will at any rate stop for the time being. Of course I am pursuing it.

I have sent to Dr. Zakir a cutting from Dawn. Just like you I also believe that he would not have said what has appeared in the report. However, we shall await his reply. Sardar also received a cutting. I have taken that and passed it on to Rajkumari.

The argument about your health will take us nowhere. I think my heart-ache is also useless but one’s nature does not readily obey reason. So I stick to my suggestion. It is good you took enema. My going there has been postponed. I shall be here till November 2. The date will be fixed after that.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 For the Mahadev Memorial
2 Tara Mashruwala
3 Vide “Letter to Kishorelal G. Mashruwala”, 10-10-1945
4 Vide “Letter to Zakir Husain”, 18-10-1945
5 To try nature-cure treatment at Poona, vide p. 342.
6 Omissions as in the source
7 Ibid
384. LETTER TO AMRITLAL V. THAKKAR

October 19, 1945

BAPA,

I hope the climate of Wardha suits you. See the enclosed letter. Do what you think proper after reading it. She had come to me earlier about it and I remember having given some opinion.

KASTURBA SMARAK NIDHI
BAJAJWADI
WARDHA

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

385. LETTER TO SHRIKRISHNADAS JAJU

October 19, 1945

BHAJ JAJUJI,

I agree with what (Bhagwanjibhai) has said in the enclosed postcard. So far as I recollect, I have said something about it. If you and other co-workers also agree with it, we can do something more. I have only ideas to give, you have the experience. Only if it agrees with my ideas we should go ahead.

KHADI VIDYALAYA
SEVAGRAM

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

386. LETTER TO DR. S. M. KULKARNI

October 19, 1945

BHAJ KULKARNI,

I have your letter. Come on the 27th at 5.30 p. m.

DR. S. M. KULKARNI
BHADKAMKAR HOSPITAL
KARAD
DIST. SATARA

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 From Satyabhama devi of tungi, who had aseded for some work
387. LETTER TO BHAVANIDAYAL SANNYASI

October 19, 1945

BHAI BHAVANIDAYAL,

I have your letter. I am sorry to learn that you are not well. Get well soon. This is my hope as well as my wish.

It is surprising that you who know me from childhood should still fail to understand fully or to make others understand what I am doing. Truly speaking, good work does not need anyone’s blessings because it is in itself a blessing. That is to say, its success lies in the work itself. Secondly, for what shall I send my blessings? There is no reason to doubt that your aunt may be greater than all the mahatmas in her field and perhaps she is. Moreover, she is certainly of an advanced age but it is my misfortune that I don’t know her. In such a situation how can a man like me send blessings to her? And where do I count among so many titled men and other bigwigs, and, pray, why should I? When the rich take my blessings on some occasions you should take it that I know them and take service from them. Otherwise none of the rich come to me or can get anything from me. And what to say of the poor? They are mine and I am theirs. I am myself poor but if they get my blessings it is not going to appear in the newspapers. So looking from all points of view, I cannot be a participant in your aunt’s memorial. Those who are in it do not know me; so they can only criticize me. What else can they do? If people like you can convince them with love, you may do so.

What will you gain by writing to me except that I should waste my time in writing such long letters and give you the trouble of reading them even when you are not well? I shall have done my job if I have been able to make you see the point and if I have not, I am helpless.

BHAVANIDAYAL SANNYASI
PRAVASI BHAVAN
ADARSH NAGAR, AJMER

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
388. LETTER TO RAM MANOHAR LOHIA

October 19, 1945

BHAI RAMMANOHAR.

It is good that you got the wire regarding Mauritius. I am glad that I could get your letter under that excuse. Let me know about your health if you can, else let the jailor do so.

RAM MANOHAR LOHIA
CENTRAL JAIL, AGRA

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

389. LETTER TO DEVPRAKASH NAYYAR

October 19, 1945

CHI. DEV,

I have your frank letter. I understand what you say. If you don’t need a change of air, I have nothing to say. But I consider it necessary for a person who is either bodily or mentally sick. It is necessary to have a fine sense of perception to understand everything.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a microfilm of the Hindi: Documents relating to Gandhiji. Courtesy: National Archives of India

390. LETTER TO HUMAYUN KABIR

October 19, 1945

BHAI HUMAYUN.

I had your book Men and Rivers with me. Khurshedbehn took it for reading. She especially recommended it to me. I read it with great interest. I recognize your ability to write novels.

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

---

1 (1910-67); one of the founders of the All-India Congress Socialist Party; Secretary of the Foreign Department, A. I. C. C., 1936-38; resigned from Congress in 1948; General Secretary, Praja Socialist Party, 1953-54; Member, Lok Sabha, 1963-67

2 (1906-1969); Minister of Education in the Central Government, 1957-65; Chairman, University Grants Commission. Later resigned from the Congress and founded the Bangla Congress.
391. LETTER TO VAMANRAO JOSHI
October 19, 1945

BHAJ VAMANRAO,

I was very happy to have your letter and learn that you were not at all injured.

Do write a long letter.

VEER VAMANRAO JOSHI
AMRAVATI (BERAR)

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

392. LETTER TO SATYABHAMA DEVI
October 19, 1945

DEAR SISTER,

I am sending your letter to the Secretary.¹ We shall do all we can.

SATYABHAMA DEVI
VILLAGE MALVA, P. O. TUNGI
DIST. GAYA (BHUJAR)

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

393. LETTER TO H. L. SHARMA
[On or after October 19, 1945]²

. . .³ But let my time be divided between the nursing home and Sevagram.

I am surprised at your wanting to stand for the Assembly on the Congress ticket. I am also pained a little. You cannot have my blessings in this matter. Only the person who is sociable and can easily adjust with everyone, who possesses other abilities and is not fit for anything except legislative work can go to the Assembly. There is no question of high or low. It is a question only of fitness. A khadi

¹ Vide “Letter to Amritlal V. Thakkar”, p. 386.
² According to the source this was written before the letter to the addressee dated October 27, 1945. However, Gandhiji’s decision to stay on in Poona till November 2 was taken around October 19. This letter, therefore, appears to have been written some time after that.
³ The first three sheets of the letter are damaged.
worker is fit for khadi work. One cannot say that therefore he is also fit for the Assembly work.

Sardar cannot be said to have recovered yet. He has constipation. He used to spend one and a half to two hours in the toilet. It may be due to spasm in the intestines, or the trouble may be due to some adhesions inside. The pelvic loop (of the colon) is much enlarged. He also feels cramps in the stomach. Dinshawji believes that the greater part of the complaint he has today will disappear after three months’ treatment here. He will complete three months on November 22. He is not accompanying me to Sevagram. According to the present programme I shall myself go to Sevagram only for three or four days and then proceed to Bengal. The programme may be modified. Do write if you have any suggestions about Sardar’s treatment. I am here at least till November 2nd. I shall stay on till the 21st, if necessary.

_Blessings from_
_BAPU_

From a facsimile of the Hindi: _Bapuki Chhayamen Mere Jivanke Solah Varsh_, between pp. 340 and 341

394. LETTER TO S. A. WAIZ
October 20, 1945

DEAR WAIZ,

I was glad to have your letter no matter what the excuse was. I hope you are doing well.

S. A. WAIZ, I.I.C.A.
SOHRAB HOUSE, 235 HORNBY ROAD
FORT, BOMBAY

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

---

1 These expressions are in English.
2 _ibid_
3 _ibid_
395. LETTER TO T. S. ABDUR RAHMAN

[October 20, 1945]

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter of 15th September last.

Two wrongs do not make one right. I do not remember the circumstances of the first ban mentioned by you. The second, I do know. In my opinion it is bad.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

JANAB T. S. ABDUR RAHMAN
C/O C. A. ABDUL WAHAB & CO.
NEAR IRON BRIDGE, ALLEPEY

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

396. LETTER TO SUSHILA GANDHI

POONA,
October 20, 1945

CHI. SUSHILA,

I have your and Manilal’s letter.

Arun is very playful. He does not like to study. I see that neither Abha nor Zohra has any influence on him. Kanu looks after him a little. Valjibhai teaches him. He has also engaged a man to teach him tables. I feel now that it would have been better if I had insisted on your taking him with you. I am no good now for this kind of work. It might be better to make some arrangement for Arun there.

My plan is hanging fire. It seems that I shall be able to go to Sevagram after the 15th. I think it will be difficult to leave while Sardar’s treatment is going on.

It seems Pyarelal has typhoid. He will recover. I am all right. My visit to Bengal is likely to materialize towards the end of November.

I hope all of you there are well.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 4959

1 The letter is placed among those of this date.
397. LETTER TO NARENDRA A. TRIVEDI

October 20, 1945

BHAI NARENDRA,

There is room for disappointment in expectation. Moreover, it is a sin to entertain false hopes. What Manibehn says is clear. If you think that she is a sevika, that too of her ailing father, his secretary and aide, you may perhaps make changes in your article. If you find fault with her way of answering or her voice, one can only point out that you are much older. I don’t remember anything.

NARENDRA A. TRIVEDI
SINDHI GAI
SETWALA BUILDING, 1ST FLOOR
BOMBAY 14

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

398. LETTER TO KISHORELAL G. MASHRUWALA

October 20, 1945

CHI. KISHORELAL,

The argument that you have put forward has also been shared by Shah and Kumarappa. It is clear that only independent India can make such changes. The best of reforms can be implemented only if approved by the people. I am also sending Gagan Mehta’s letter to you. Why should you do typing work? I believe the Talimi Sangh should do it.

Regarding your health I would like you to come here for treatment while I am here. But that requires enthusiasm on your part or detachment like Sardar’s. He has no faith in this system but still he is giving it a trial.

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

399. LETTER TO LILAVATI ASAR

October 20, 1945

CHI. LILI,

I have your letter. You are very vain. Dr. Mehta would not have asked for anything. You must take what one says in the right spirit. If that is not possible, forgive him, viewing it as a shortcoming. That is why I advise you to come here. I will have to stay here for quite some time. You will feel relieved and will gain some experience since Sushilabehn is here. Still if you don’t feel like coming, go and spend some time with Durga and serve her as she needs looking after. I think your going to Nagpur is futile. Perhaps you will not get peace of mind there, even if you study there and are with your brother and sister-in-law. Think over all this and do what you like. What is there to order you in this? This is a trifling matter.

Perhaps I may go to the Ashram about the 15th, and then to Bengal, after staying there for 7 days.

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

400. LETTER TO NAVNIT SHAH

October 20, 1945

BHAI NAVNIT,

I have your letter. You do not need a message from me. It has become a mania to ask for messages. Where is the need for messages while one does good work? Good work itself is the message. If young people understand this much they would be free of many worldly problems.

I have read your description. The money collected by you will be used for Harijan work.

NAVNIT SHAH
SHREE YUVAK SANGH
P. B. 726 KAMPALA (UGANDA)

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

401. LETTER TO P. N. MATHEW

October 20, 1945

BHAI MATHEW,

I have your postcard. The date for my going to Sevagram has not been fixed. I will stay there for a short time. Come over when I have settled down there. Do write and inquire.

P. N. MATHEW
DEVASKAR BUNGALOW
DHANTOLI, NAGPUR

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
402. LETTER TO VINA CHATTERJEE

October 20, 1945

CHI. VINA,

I have your letter and also Sailen’s. My views are firm. I don’t believe in this sort of family attachments. Do what both of you deem fit. You won’t gain anything by coming with me. My going has also been postponed. Go if you think it is your dharma to do so. Isn’t your marriage fixed for November?... I hope both of you are all right.

VINABEHN
BAJAJWADI, WARDHA

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

403. LETTER TO PRINCIPAL, KANYA GURUKUL

October 20, 1945

PRINCIPAL,

I have your letter of 4th September.

I cannot involve myself in the activities you have mentioned because I don’t have the time.

PRINCIPAL
RAMDEV SMARAK NIDHI KANYA GURUKUL
60 RAJPUR ROAD
DEHRA DUN

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

404. LETTER TO DR. KRISHNABAI NIMBKAR

October 20, 1945

DEAR SISTER,

I have your letter of the 10th instant. I have read all your papers. Jajuji also must have gone through them.

I have already formed my opinion that everyone should spin as a part of yajna. Its real impact will be known only when people are convinced that yajna is much more than money. Why should we

1 Omission as in the source worry whether the work is difficult or easy? Now you also are coming to Poona leaving Madras. Let us see what happens now.

DR. (MRS.) KRISHNABAI NIMBKar
192 POONAMALLE HIGH ROAD
VEPERY P. O.

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

405. LETTER TO SATIS CHANDRA DAS GUPTA

October 20, 1945

CHI. SATIS BABU,

I have your letter dated 10th October.

Sudhir Ghosh has come here. I have had long talks with him. He will tell you all about it. You should get the long letter I have written to Prafulla Babu’ as I have told him to show it to you. You will come to know everything from it.

Let me repeat this much. I shall be deeply hurt if any ill feeling is created because of my going there. The reason why I wish to come is that I can personally see the condition of Bengal and give whatever help I can.

You are doing a lot of work. You should not fall ill. If you happen to fall ill I shall feel very bad.

The date of my arrival there cannot be fixed yet. The last date for leaving this place is 21st November. So I hope to reach there by the end of November.

I hope everyone is all right.

Today Rajkumari will return to Delhi from Simla and she may have to go to London for a month.

KHADI PRATISHTHAN
SODEPUR (24 PARAGANAS)

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Vide”Leter to P. C. Ghosh”, 18-10-1945
406. LETTER TO SATIS CHANDRA DAS GUPTA

October 20, 1945

CHI. SATIS BABU,

I have the copy of the letter you have written to Rajkumari. Today she must have reached Delhi from Simla and will fly to London tomorrow or the day after. You did well in writing to her. Why keep it in your heart? Since you have written so frankly, I also have an opportunity of saying something. Your sense of detachment should be sufficiently strong. Explain your doubts to Prafulla Babu and listen to what he says and if he disagrees, accept his advice. Haven’t I made it clear in the letter that I have sent through Sudhir that so long as you all do not decide unanimously and not by majority, it should not be considered as finally decided? Still, I shall go there and decide which places I shall visit and which I may not. I have stopped anything being sent to the newspapers. I think this solves all the problems. How many people can be accommodated in Sodepur?

KHADI PRATISHTHAN
SODEPUR

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

407. NOTE TO CHANDRANI

[Before October 21, 1945]

The meaning of the middle path is this. If you suddenly take a liking for someone, you will not act on an impulse. If you are used to male company you will not be affected by the sight of a young man. All men are like a brother or a father to you. If yours is an ideal mother she will also be a preceptor and guru. She will care for you and will find a husband for you. If your mother is not an ideal one any other person whom you have accepted as your mentor will take full care of you. It is possible you may yourself come across a person of your liking but that will be due to your previous birth and not because of a sudden infatuation. Even then you would like to consult your mother or your mentor and in that case it will not be a secret matter at all. By “you” here I do not mean “Chand” but . . . .

1 Satyavati Devi referred to in this letter died on October 21, 1945.
2 Illegible is the middle path. What Satyavati writes about is a latterday notion and hardly acceptable.

Blessings from

BAPU

[PS.]

You did well in coming.

From a photostat of the Hindi: Chandrani Papers. Courtesy: Gandhi National Museum and Library

---

408. DRAFT TELEGRAM TO SATYAVATI DEVI

October 21, 1945

SATYAVATI

TUBERCULOSIS HOSPITAL

KINGSWAY, DELHI

KNOW YOU ARE AT PEACE. LET THIS BE ITS WITNESS.

BAPU

From a copy: Brijkrishna Chandiwala Papers. Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Also C.W. 10543. Courtesy: Brijkrishna Chandiwala

---

409. LETTER TO AMRIT KAUR

By air to Delhi

*POONA,

October 21, 1945*

CHI. AMRIT,

Your letter of 18th by air mail came in only today (9 a. m.). Your letter will be destroyed after Sushila has read it. She is just now (9.10) away at Talegaon to see a hospital. She will be back at 11.

Your time will pass quickly and you will be with me. Only keep well. “Be careful for nothing.”

You will see Zakir’s contradiction.

I am attending to all the matters referred to by you.

---

1 Though drafted in the morning, this was not dispatched because the news of the addressee’s death had reached Gandhiji. A copy of the draft was, however, sent to Brijkrishna Chandiwala by Sushila Nayyar on October 25.

2 Of the report in Dawn, 13-10-1945; vide footnote 1, “Letter to Zakir Husain”, 18-10-1945
Pyarelal is slowly recovering I hope. He is deathly pale. But this illness may be a blessing in disguise. Let us hope.

God keep you.

Love.

BAPU

From the original: C.W. 4169. Courtesy: Amrit Kaur. Also G.N. 7805

410. LETTER TO KHURSHEDBEHNNAOROJI

POONA,
October 21, 1945

VAHALAN BEHN.

Your letter in front of me.

I have sent a wire¹ to Satyavati. Please tell her that she is constantly in my mind. Her great courage and devotion to the country are an inspiration to all who know her or have known of her.

Your account of the I. N. A. pleases me but does not enthuse me.² It is most natural you wish I had such material. Do you know that it is not possible even if I wish it?

What material could I send you to assist you in your work there?

Love.

BAPU

SHRI KHURSHEDBEHN NAOROJI
82 DARYAGANJ, DELHI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

411. LETTER TO FRANK W. MOFFETT

AS AT SEVAGRAM,
CAMP: NATURE CURE CLINIC,
POONA,
October 21, 1945

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter. I have no title such as ‘Honourable’ or any other. I thank you for the peanut formulae.

¹ Vide “Draft Telegram to Satyavati Devi”, 21-10-1945
² The addressee was on the Indian National Army Defence Committee appointed by the All-India Congress Committee.
Regarding the publication of My Experiments with Truth you can charge more than 5% rising up to 10% if it becomes necessary. I hope, however, that the proposed publication will not cause any loss.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

FRANK W. MOFFETT, ESQ.
707, BROWDER STREET
DALLAS
(TEXAS, U.S.A.)

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library.
Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

412. LETTER TO BHULABHAI J. DESAI

POONA,

October 21, 1945

BHAI BHULABHAI 1.

As it is difficult to decipher my handwriting, I am dictating this letter so that it can be written in a clear hand.

Sardar and I keep receiving telegrams suggesting that you should be put up as a candidate for the Central Legislative Assembly. I myself have no interest in the elections. A durbar daily assembles round the Sardar, but I know nothing about it. Ordinarily he does not talk to me not do I ask him anything. I attend to my work and he attends to his. The only reason for our being together this time is his nature-care treatment. He does not have much faith in nature care while I have. An operation would be a very risky affair. No doctor except Dr. Deshmukh advises it. That is why he has put faith in me and is undergoing nature-cure treatment. I have, accordingly, brought him to Dr. Mehta for I have faith in him. My own knowledge of nature cure is superficial. I have given this introduction because I thought it necessary.

If Sardar receives any suggestion regarding you, he puts it before me. Since you have accepted my advice, I assume that you yourself are not at all keen o getting into the Central Assembly, and that, therefore, those who send the telegrams do not do so at your instance. Some big people naturally desire your presence in the Assembly. If I were not there, perhaps Sardar would have yielded to the pressure. But I am firm, for I am acting as your well-wisher. I want a big service from you, if you can give it. I wish to see you as a people’s man. I don’t consider you an old man. Why shouldn’t you also live up to 125? If you do not aspire to live that long, as I do, please remember that I try to persuade everybody to have such aspiration for the sake of service. And it is not that there is no strength or effort behind my aspiration. If there is none and my aspiration proves fruitless, I will accept that. I am not, therefore, afraid of death if it should come today. But I will cherish my aspiration till my last breath, for I have to serve—I have not yet finished with service. There is a spirit of competition to serve which all of us should share.

1 (1877-1946); Leader of the Congress Party in the Central Assembly; President, Bombay Provincial Congress Committee; member of Congress Working Committee

From this standpoint I suggest to you that you yourself should issue a graceful statement, thanking all those who are trying on your behalf, explaining that you do not wish to be a member of the Assembly at the moment and that you have been doing, and will continue to do, whatever service you can from outside, that if you live long enough and feel later that you should also enter the Legislature, you yourself will come forward and seek people’s votes.

I like the work you are doing just now of defending the prisoners. It will bring you credit. I also wish that like Jawaharlal and Sardar, and to a great extent Maulana Azad, you too should come into contact with the masses. Perhaps I should cite Rajendra Babu’s case as offering the best example. Rajendra Babu is sought after by Bihar, he himself does not go seeking the support of Bihar. I can cite other similar instances, too. But where is the need to do so for you? Even what I have written above seems to me too long, but I cannot restrain my Moha. If desire also could be described as sattvika, I am sure this desire of mine is that and, therefore, I need not hide it. I trust you are well and succeeding in your efforts.

Blessings from
BAPU

From the Gujarati original: Bhulabhai Desai Papers. Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library

1 In accordance with the A. I. C. C. resolution of September 1945, a committee consisting of T. B. Sapru and the addressee had been formed to defend Shah Nawaz Khan, Sehgal and G. S. Dhillon of the Indian National Army, who were to be tried for treason in November 1945. Later Jawaharlal Nehru, Asaf Ali and K. N. Katju were also included in the committee.

2 Infatuation

3 Pure
413. A NOTE

Poona,

October 21, 1945

I have gone through this. I liked it. I would like to go a little further. Khadi is a symbol of truth and ahimsa. It should not subsist on the mercy of the Government. It will be a different thing altogether if khadi is adopted deliberately after its real strength is realized. The shortage of cloth will then be easily removed. We can even have swaraj by non-violent means and thereby bring credit to ourselves and to our Government. Sooner or later that will come but how soon it will come, depends on the public acceptance of the new plan. I do know that a time may come when we may even have to suspend the sale of khadi in our shops. Self-reliance is the only remedy.

From that point of view Jajuji’s article is a preliminary and an essential move.

M. K. Gandhi

[From Hindi]
Sarvodaya, 1945

414. LETTER TO SHRIRIKRISHNAJAS JAJO

October 21, 1945

Bhai Jajuji,

I am enclosing your article after making corrections and adding a note¹. If you do not approve of my note, you may get the article published without it.

Chi. Narandas is coming tomorrow. I have kept a copy of the article. I shall discuss it with him.

I hope you are all right.

Akhil Bhartiya Charkha Sangh
Sevagram
Wardha

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Vide the preceding item.
415. LETTER TO ANANT RAM
October 21, 1945

CHI. ANANT RAM,

Only today I could finish reading your letter of September 2. It is good.

Ramanama includes everything. The order is: dharma, artha, kama and moksha. Artha cannot be opposed to kama, dharma and moksha. Hence, artha is food, clothing and other necessities of life; kama is noble desire. Ramanama transcends time and circumstance—it has to. And it must issue from the heart, not from the mouth. It requires persistent effort. Get Asha Devi to write down the Gitanjali songs in Bengali and send them to me.

Become good and do lot of service.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: S.G. 133

416. LETTER TO SHRIMAN NARAYAN
October 21, 1945

CHI. SHRIMAN,

I completed your article yesterday. I am sending it by registered post. Read what I have written at different places. Make the changes that appeal to you. We can merely throw hints regarding Pakistan. I don’t find any depth in the last few chapters. Nor is there any supporting evidence. There is according to me need for more hard work and careful thinking. If you think it fit and if Kishorelal and Vinoba can spare time, discuss this with them. I am postponing writing the foreword. Come here if you want to. If you can put it off wait till I come over. Do what you think proper.

I hope Madalasa is all right.

SHRIMAN NARAYAN AGRAWAL
COMMERCE COLLEGE
WARDHA

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 The four ends of human endeavour
2 By Rabindranath Tagore
3 Gandhian Constitution for Free India. For Gandhiji’s foreword to it dated November 30, 1945
4 ibid
417. LETTER TO MANILAL GANDHI

October 21, 1945

CHI. MANILAL,

I got your joint letter.

Everyone is concentrating on Arun. Let me see what happens. I am writing this at night. I have asked him also to write. We have had rains here recently.

I have told you that my work would always go on. Sushila is a very good worker. She has taken over all Rajkumari’s work. Kanaiyo is still here. He quickly disposes of all the lengthy Gujarati letters and the other special work which I entrust to him. No work here, therefore, has stopped or presents any difficulty. I take proper sleep and rest. Do not, therefore, worry about me.

Pyarelal’s fever has come down today. Perhaps it will touch normal now. Sushila looks after him, but he is being given nature-cure treatment.

Arun is giving no trouble to anyone. He remains happy. Sumi has reached Nagpur.

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 4961

Blessings to you all from

BAPU

418. TELEGRAM TO BRIJKRISHNA CHANDIWALA

POONA,

October 22, 1945

BRIJKRISHNA CHANDIWALA
1 NARENDRA PLACE
DELHI

HOPE RELATIVES AND FRIENDS WILL NOT MOURN OVER THE DEATH OF ONE OF THE BRAVEST SERVANTS OF INDIA. LET HER LIVE BY OUR DEDICATING OURSELVES SOLELY FOR THE FREEDOM OF INDIA.

BAPU

From a copy: C.W. 10544. Courtesy: Brijkrishna Chandiwal. Also Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 The C.W. source, however, has “23”
2 Satyavati Devi
419. LETTER TO CHIMANLAL N. SHAH

October 22, 1945

CHI. CHIMANLAL,

How is it that Babudi has again fallen ill there? Does she take hip-baths? Does she exert herself? What does she eat? Does she use a mosquito-net? The money was to be given according to the usual rule. My impression is that it has been given to Jajuji.

From a photostat of the Gujarati: S.G. 128

Blessings from BAPU

420. LETTER TO SHARDA G. CHOKHAWALA

[October 22, 1945]

CHI. BABUDI,

Why do you fall ill? If your food habits and ventilation are taken care of nothing should happen to you. Do you drink boiled water? Do you know how to repeat Ramanama?

Blessings from BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: S.G. 128

421. LETTER TO JATINDAS M. AMIN

POONA,
October 22, 1945

CHI. AMIN,

I have your letter. Now have you declared me not guilty? A man cannot become an inmate of the Ashram just because he appreciates the elevenfold vow\(^1\) or knows all the Shastras and is acquainted with the constructive programme. But one certainly becomes such by observing the vows. It seems you have not been able to see that constructive programme is included in the observance of the vows.

\(^1\) This was written on the same sheet as the preceding item.

\(^2\) Viz., non-violence, truth, non-stealing, brahmacharya, non-possession, body-labour, control of the palate, fearlessness on all occasions, equal respect for all religions, swadeshi and sparshabhavana, that is, refusal to treat anybody as untouchable
Now go through it again. A person who finds fault with most people, or with some of them, cannot see his own shortcomings. Don’t make this mistake.

One becomes a leader not by making mistakes but by getting rid of one’s shortcomings and imbibing a leader’s qualities.

SEVAGRAM ASHRAM

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

422. LETTER TO CHANDRANI.

October 22, 1945

CHI. CHAND,

Satyavati has departed. She has been released from suffering. She is of course immortal. Our duty is not to grieve over it but to do our duty to the utmost, dedicating ourselves to the cause of India’s freedom.

Blessings from

BAPU

DAGA MEMORIAL HOSPITAL
NAGPUR

From a photostat of the Hindi: Chandrani Papers. Courtesy: Gandhi National Museum and Library

423. LETTER TO KASHI GANDHI

October 23, 1945

CHI. KASHI,

I am writing this letter for the sake of writing. Just to tell you that I have not forgotten any one of you while I am away.

Krishnachandra writes and says that you do not keep well and intend going to Nagpur for a change of air. I have my doubts if going there will be beneficial. Would not Madalasa’s house be better than that? Madalasa would like it, too. This is merely a suggestion. Do as you think fit.

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
424. LETTER TO DURGA M. DESAI

October 23, 1945

CHI. DURGA,

From the letters that I get I find that you are both far from well. Why is it so? Bablo must be fine.

After the operation Sushi must have got rid of her ailment. Sushilabehn is at work here as I am dictating this letter. She informs me that Sushi has completely recovered.

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

425. LETTER TO AMRITLAL V. THAKKAR

POONA,

October 23, 1945

BAPA,

I have your letter.

I have not felt that we have been needlessly lax. I do not therefore believe that our laxity causes confusion or indiscipline. There should indeed be no indiscipline. And from where can they get money, etc., if they want to have a maternity centre and other things without permission? We cannot say anything if they themselves collect the amount for it. Moreover, haven’t I said that wherever people are willing to work, we allow them to do so by issuing a circular to that effect?

THAKKAR BAPA
BAJAJWADI
WARDHA

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

426. LETTER TO JETHALAL GANDHI

October 23, 1945

CHI. KAKU,

I am glad that Auntie went and stayed with you. But I don’t approve of her giving speeches and going round in Travancore. That is not her field. She is older than I. How then can she do justice to this

1 The management of the Kasturba Gandhi National Memorial Trust
2 Gandhiji’s sister, Raliatbehn Vrindavandas

204  THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
new activity in her old age? It is a sad thing if she is after fame. I have no doubt that this sort of work is not at all proper for her, whatever the temptation. I don’t know who is with her or who encouraged her in this. Find out about this and give my message to her if possible. Let me know what you have been able to do.

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

427. LETTER TO KAMAAL KHAN

October 23, 1945

Bhai saheb,

I have your letter,

If you have anything to ask me on the occasion of your restoration to the rulership, do write.

I hope you are all right.

Thakoresaheb Kamaalkhanji
Marks Farm
Pardi
District Surat

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

428. LETTER TO BENARSIDAS CHATURVEDI

October 23, 1945

Bhai Benarsidas,

I have your postcard. I am sending it on to Shrimanjii.

Who are we to stop the spread of pure Hindi or pure Urdu? Even if we try, the attempt is bound to fail. Our duty is to bring together the two styles of Hindi and Urdu. And this can only happen when there is a large class of people knowing both the scripts and both the styles.

It is not very clear what you mean by rashtrabhasha. My definition is clear enough: only that person who knows both the scripts and can write in both the styles can be said to be proficient in rashtrabhasha.

Blessings from

Bapu

Shri Benarsidas Chaturvedi
Tikamgarh
Bundelkhand

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 2518
429. LETTER TO SHRIMAN NARAYAN

October 23, 1945

CHI. SHRIMAN,

The registered letter¹ will be sent only today. I forgot to write one thing. My suggestion is that you should write in Hindustani whatever you wish to say and then repeat it in English if you think it is necessary to do so. Your present article is in English but I suggest that simultaneously there should be a Hindustani rendering also. It would be good indeed if it is both in Devanagari and Urdu scripts and is published simultaneously. Sooner or later we have to give up our fascination and attachment for English. And if you and I do not make the beginning who else will?

I am enclosing Benarsidas’s postcard. I am also enclosing a copy of my reply².

SHRIMAN NARAYAN AGRAWAL
JIVAN KUTIR
WARDHA

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

430. LETTER TO NAYARBUL BHOWALI

October 23, 1945

BHAI BHOWALI,

I have the book Bandhustan sent by you. My knowledge of Bengali is too poor for me to read and understand your book.

NAYARBUL BHOWALI
85F WELLESLEY STREET
CALCUTTA

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

431. LETTER TO DR. H. K. LAL

October 23, 1945

BHAI LALJI,

I had received your letter of 8th September and also the earlier ones. Your letter shows that though you are a doctor you get excited

¹ Vide “Letter to Shriman Narayan”, 21-10-1945
² Vide the preceding item.
very soon. I can only say that I started making inquiries as soon as I got your letter even though I was very busy. Now after making inquiries my son has written to me on 18th October.

Let me tell you that leprosy work is being done through Kasturba Smarak Nidhi; some other institutions are also doing it. If need be your help will be sought. At the moment I don’t require any. I must also admit that your letter of 8th September has made me feel alarmed.

You seem to belong to the Punjab; so you must know Hindustani well. English is not your mother tongue. Then why do you write to me in English which you cannot write as well as your mother tongue?

DR. H. K. LAL, M.B.B.S.
1 PUSA ROAD
NEW DELHI

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

432. LETTER TO MAHADEVSHASTRI DIVEKAR

October 23, 1945

PANDITJI,

I have your letter and three copies of your book on Hindu-Muslim [relations]. When you know Gujarati and Hindi, why did you write to me in English?

I was glad to know that you visited Porbandar and gave lectures in Gujarati.

I cannot say when I shall get time to read your book.

PANDIT MAHADEVSHASTRI DIVEKAR

MIRAJ

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

433. LETTER TO V. V. DASTANE

October 23, 1945

BHAI DASTANE,

I have your postcard. It is not that I have not replied to your letter owing to lack of time, but since I have something new to say, there is no need to reply to your other questions. The new thing is that till today you have considered public service as primary and have devoted to the family only whatever time was available after that. Now having heard everything from Akka¹, I feel that you are no longer in a position to do so. Naturally you have to take care of Akka and also look after your other daughters and manage their affairs. You have to support your wife. If you do not, who else will? So it is the duty of people like you to give primary importance to the family responsibilities and devote to public service only as much time as you can after that. One who shoulders the burden of the family as dharma also renders service. One must clearly distinguish between family responsibility and family enjoyment. You have long since given up indulgence. Why should I discuss these things at length? You should be able to understand them from what I have already said. It should be clear enough that if you do not abide by what I have said the result will be quite to the contrary of what it should be.

I cannot say what I had in mind when I wrote “I cannot give”
[answers to your other questions]. And what will you gain by thinking over it again and again? If I was short of time, I should have said that I would reply to the other questions some other time. At any rate, I was quite clear in my mind when I sent a letter² through Akka that I should tell you what according to me your dharma was without bothering you about other things. Now the question arises only if you are not able to understand and approve of my stand. You can discuss this letter with Vinoba and Kishorelal. Of course also with Dhotre³ and other relatives there.

VASUDEV DASTANE
BHUSAWAL

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

434. LETTER TO AMRITLAL V. THAKKAR⁴

October 23, 1945

BAPA,

I have no objection to the Gujarat training scheme being conducted in Sabarmati provided the sisters who come for training are

¹ Addressee’s daughter, Sarayu Dhotre
² Not available
³ Raghunath Shridhar Dhotre, addressee’s son-in-law
⁴ This is written in the Gujarati script.
qualified, whether they come from villages or not. In any case they should be working in villages or at least should be interested in village work.

BAPU

From the Hindi original: Kasturba Gandhi National Memorial Trust Papers. Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library

435. LETTER TO ABUL KALAM AZAD

October 23, 1945

MAULANA SAHEB,

I have your letter. I really wish I had enough time to write Urdu in a beautiful hand.

It will be good indeed if you can go somewhere for rest in the beginning of November. Of course work is always there but sometimes rest is essential for work and for doing more of it.

Rajkumari will be reaching there today on her way to London with Dr. Sargent¹ and Dr. Zakir Husain Saheb. Educationists from all over the world will be meeting in London. Dr. Sargent has convened this conference, and Rajkumari and Dr. Zakir Husain were invited by him. She was not at all keen on giving her name for the conference². She had discussed the matter with me. She will be able to meet others also in London.

Sardar’s treatment is going on. I shall have to go to Bombay for five days.

From the Urdu original: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

436. TELEGRAM TO RADHABAI SUBBAROYAN

October 24, 1945

RADHABAI SUBBAROYAN³
TIRUCHENGODU

NEVER DISCUSSED WITH DELEGATES FROM SOUTH ANY ELECTION MATTER. HAVE TAKEN NO INTEREST. SARDAR RARELY TALKS

¹ John Sargent
² The source has ‘Assembly’.
³ Wife of Dr. P. Subbaroyan
ABOUT ELECTIONS. BUT WHY FRET ABOUT ELECTIONS? FOR PATRIOTS SERVICE ONLY AMBITION.

Gandhi

From the original: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

437. LETTER TO K. SANTHANAM
October 24, 1945

DEAR SANTHANAM,

Many thanks for your letter. I have read your article. That is no bar to your proceeding with your work.

K. SANTHANAM
“HINDUSTAN TIMES”
P. B. 40, NEW DELHI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

438. LETTER TO NILKANTH MASHRUWALA
October 24, 1945

CHI. NILKANTH 2.

I have your postcard. Everyone asked Chi. Arun and so did I. But he wants to leave this place only along with me. I don’t want to send him away forcibly. Please go yourself on the date fixed.

MASHRUWALA
SOUTH AVENUE ROAD
SANTACRUZ

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

439. LETTER TO DR. M. D. D. GILDER
October 24, 1945

BHAI GILDER.

Do go and examine Sardar whether he sends for you or not. And let me know how much he has improved in your view or if he has

1 The addressee’s candidature for the Central Assembly had been rejected.
2 Son of Nanabhai Mashruwala, brother of Sushila Gandhi changed for the worse, or if you are not able to say anything.

DR. M. D. D. GILDER
ZENITH BUILDING
SIR PHIROZESHHAH MEHTA ROAD
BOMBAY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

440. LETTER TO JEHANGIR PATEL

October 24, 1945

Bhai Jehangir,

I have your letter. Gradually form the habit of speaking and writing in Gujarati. Read and write a little of Gujarati every day.

Your letter is clear and I have understood it. I feel that just now we should go to the sanatorium and shift to Tryambak Road after we get electricity and water. But I don’t want to do this if Dinshaw does not like it.

I understand about Verrier. More when you come over.

I hope Mother is all right and you did not get fever again.

Jehangir Patel
Patel Brothers
10 Churchgate Street
Bombay 1

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

441. LETTER TO VENUBAI GODBOLE

October 24, 1945

Sister Venubai,

Bhai Haribhau informed me that Prof. Godbole passed away today. I knew him very well. He had taken part in the non-co-operation movement for the sake of the country. True mourning is for you too to have the same capacity for sacrifice that he had.

Venubai Godbole
‘Vinayak Ghar’
Prabhat Road
Deccan Gymkhana
Poona-4

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Hari Ganesh Phatak
442. LETTER TO SUSHILA GANDHI

October 25, 1945

CHI. SUSHILA,

I had a postcard from Chi. Nilkanth yesterday saying that you wanted Arun to come to you with him. I told Arun about it. Kanu has the greatest influence over him. He and others also told him. But he remained stubborn. He says he will come with me. That means all of you will have to spend the Diwali without him. Put up with his absence. I am sure you do not wish that I should send him against his will. With great difficulty he wrote the letter on the back of this last night. He has no interest at all in study, but has plenty in playing and cycling. Whatever is possible will have to be done only here. Arun himself is quite happy. He studies a little, but very little. For all this backwardness I hold you, his mother, most responsible, since I have always believed you to be wise. If Arun remains a dullard, I will surely regard you as stupid.

May you all spend a happy Diwali. Reserve a share for us all in your happiness. “Us all” includes all of us here and the dumb, poor millions of India. Those who do not remember them even on the Diwali day, their Diwali, according to me, is worse than Holi.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 4962

443. LETTER TO MANILAL GANDHI

October 25, 1945

CHI. MANILAL,

I got your postcard. Please do not be eager to come here for my sake. Stay there as long as the relatives want. Join me when I start from here. Pyarelal’s fever has come down. Arun has read what you had written on the back.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 4962

1 This letter is written on the back of the letter to Sushila Gandhi dated October 25, 1945.
444. LETTER TO D. B. KALELKAR

October 25, 1945

CHI. KAKA,

I got your letter today. You have given a good deal of information. Take care of your health. It will of course be very good if you go to Wardha. Shriman has gone to Mainpuri for a few days. I think you should go to Kashi. I am afraid our dates will clash. I intend to reach Wardha on November 21, and then proceed to Bengal from there on the 30th. This is the intention just now. I will leave this place on November 19. I shall spend a day in Bombay.

I understand about Amritlal. About the examination, I suppose you will decide in consultation with Shriman. I am agreeable. My blessings to both the sisters. You may come here whenever you wish to.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10968

445. LETTER TO BRIJKRISHNA CHANDIWALA

October 25, 1945

CHI. BRIJKRISHNA,

I have your letter. You have given a very moving account. Satyavati was exactly as you have described. I do not recall the name of anyone, but convey to all the members of the family the message I had sent you in my telegram1. How nice that Satyavati’s desire in regard to marriage2 was fulfilled!

If I think of any rites in connection with the death I shall write to you.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 2489

1 Vide “Telegram to Brijkrishna Chandiwala”, 22-10-1945
2 Of her son
446. LETTER TO VITHALDAS V. JERAJANI

October 25, 1945

Bhai Vithaldas,

I have read all your papers. I believe the A. I. S. A. Committee will meet immediately after the 21st. We shall discuss this then. So I am saving your time and mine by not discussing it here.

Vithaldas Jerajani
Khadi Bhandar
393 Kalbadevi
Bombay

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

447. LETTER TO ICHCHHANAND

October 25, 1945

Swami Ji,

I have your letter in English. If you did not know the national language Hindustani, you could have written to me in the language of your province. Why this infatuation for English?

I don’t know when I shall be able to reach your book and make time to read it.

Ichchhanand
South Govindpur
P. O. Katrasgarh

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

448. LETTER TO ABHYANKAR

October 25, 1945

Bhai Abhyankar,

I have your letter dated the 22nd instant. Your Hindi is not bad but it may be inadequate to express your thoughts. Mine is also imperfect but the very idea of writing to Indians in English pains me. Moreover, I will not agree that you can truly express your thoughts or feelings in English. Maybe, you think otherwise. But I know that I would have understood your thoughts better if you had written in Marathi.
I shall not enter into an argument with you. What I have written to you is right. The inquiry is still going on. And I have all the papers as far as the matter has progressed. The day before yesterday I got the copy of the statement by the father of the child who met with an untimely death. Now I shall write to you after the inquiry is over. Only this much today.

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

---

449. LETTER TO AMRITLAL V. THAKKAR

October 25, 1945

BAPA,

I had the circular you wanted to issue about the women village workers I don’t remember now why I did not give then the approval asked for. I am sorry there has been this delay. I have carefully gone through it. Do circulate it.

Satyabhama Devi’s donation should be accepted if the Provincial Committee can make use of it and no burden falls on us. I take it that the correspondence, etc., will be put in order.

The idea of training midwives through the Kamala Nehru Hospital is good. It is commendable that facilities are made available by the Hospital. But I have my doubts about the utility of such midwives as they will not be able to serve in villages. Since our committee is going to meet now the matter will be decided without any delay. It had, therefore, better be postponed till then. I hope to reach Wardha on the 21st. Fix a date between that and the 30th, after consulting Jajuji, and issue a notice.

BAPU

From the Hindi original: Kasturba Gandhi National Memorial Trust Papers. Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library

---

1 Vide “Letter to Abhyankar”, 14-10-1945
2 At Allahabad
3 This word is in English.
450. LETTER TO PESTON GROVER

NATURE CURE CLINIC,
6 TODIWALA ROAD, POONA,
October 26, 1945

MY DEAR GROVER,

I kept your letter with me thinking what I should do. The more I think the more I feel that I must not speak on the atomic bomb.¹ I must act if I can. Therefore, if you are a journalist of the right type, you will help me to observe silence on such matters.

Thank you for your enquiry about my health which is as good as it can be.

Yours sincerely,

PESTON GROVER, ESQ.
ASSOCIATED PRESS OF AMERICA
BOMBAY

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

451. LETTER TO FLORENCE WEDGWOOD

POONA,
October 26, 1945

DEAR SISTER,

Your letter of 27th February last year was received in the jail. It was given to me some time after my release². I came to read it only a few days ago and I kept it for answering when I got a moment for such writing.

Many thanks for your sympathy. Your late husband³ and I were good friends. I miss him.

I have written on life after death. But sorry I cannot lay hands on it at the moment. It is buried among my writings on a variety of subjects. But there is much on the subject in the English literature.

¹ Vide also “Letter to Kailas D. Master”, 21-9-1945
² On May 6, 1944
³ Josiah Clement Wedgwood (1872-1943); British Labour leader and Member of Parliament, 1919-42. He had attended the Nagpur session of the Congress in 1920.
And why peep into the life beyond? It should be enough if you have faith that the future is as certain as the present.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

MRS. FLORENCE WEDGWOOD
902 HOWARD HOUSE
DOLPHIN SQUARE
LONDON, S.W. 1

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

452. LETTER TO E. SOMAN APPASAMY

NATURE CURE CLINIC,
6 TODIWALA ROAD
POONA,
October 26, 1945

DEAR FRIEND,

Gandhiji has received your letter of 24th inst. He is surprised to hear from you that Shri Kamaraj and Shri Bhaktavatsalam used his name to persuade you to stand for election. He had said nothing of the kind to them. In the company of others they came to see him and enquire about his health as he was under the same roof as Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel. Dr. Pattabhi who led them pointedly remarked that they had only come on a friendly visit as they knew he took no interest in elections, and as a matter of fact during the few minutes that they were with him there was no talk about the elections.

Yours sincerely,

S. N.

SHRI E. SOMAN APPASAMY
“PRITHI SADAN”
25 TIRUMALAIPILLAI RD.
THYAGARAJANAGAR, MADRAS

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar
453. LETTER TO MAHENDRA G. DESAI

October 26, 1945

CHI. MAHENDRA,

I have a letter from you after a long interval. I really can’t make out what you wish to do. It is good you have consulted Maganbhai. But my advice is that instead of attempting a new venture, do what you can in the normal course.

MAHENDRA GOPALDAS DESAI
P. B. 32, GIRIDIH
DIST. HAZARIBAG

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

454. LETTER TO P. N. KAUL

October 26, 1945

BHAI KAUL,

Do barristers forget their mother tongue?

Maulana Saheb is doing something about Caveeshar’. I shall certainly take necessary action when required. There is no question of forgetting. He will certainly be released.

P. N. KAUL, ADVOCATE
83 EXPRESS ROAD
LAHORE

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

---

1 Sardul Singh Caveeshar (b. 1886); President, Punjab Congress Committee, 1920; Member, Congress Working Committee, 1928; joined All-India Forward Bloc and became its Acting President in 1940. He was arrested under the Defence of India Rules.
455. LETTER TO DR. SURESH BANNERJI

October 26, 1945

BHAI SURESH,

I feel happy whenever I get a letter from you. The news that you are fine is enough for me. I shall hear the rest from you when you are released. Keep well.

DR. SURESH BANNERJI
C/O SUPERINTENDENT, CENTRAL JAIL
RAISHAHU, BENGAL

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

456. LETTER TO G. D. BIRLA

October 26, 1945

CHI. GHANSHYAMDAS,

I have had Jehangir Patel’s letter. He also writes that only the school building would be suitable. There should be some more facilities there. There should also be provision for electricity and water. Dinshaw suggests going straight into the school building when everything is ready. In that case it will take nine months. I favour moving at once into the sanatorium building and starting work there, and later shifting to the school building when it is ready. Whether this is possible or not has to be decided by you people. In the sanatorium building also more pipes will be required for water. Maybe, something will have to be done about electricity too. Water treatment requires plenty of water. I see some difficulty in taking the school building. If the school is to be housed there, it will be difficult to run two institutions in the same building. If my idea takes shape, even the present building may not be enough. For, my idea is that the poor also have to be admitted and I shall be interested in running nature-cure clinics for them, too. It seems to me that from the school building it would also be possible to serve the village people as I have planned to do. Think over all this and let me know what you feel would be best to do.

Let me also give you Sardar’s view. He believes that I should not

1 A Trustee of the Nature Cure Clinic
interest myself in this work to this extent. If Dinshaw requires financial help I should have it provided to him and then stop at it. In going further at the moment there is a risk of Dinshaw breaking down or my being disappointed and the great affection which Dinshaw is showing for me today coming to an end. I have no such fear. In my opinion Dinshaw can break down, but his affection for me cannot wane. I know that he had the same affection for me even when no question of money was involved and when I did not even know him. But Sardar understands human nature and he has too much consideration for me; so I think it is as well to place his view before you so that you may decide the question objectively.

Please do not think that just because I have been given assurance about Nasik no other alternative should be considered. Nature-cure work is of great importance. If carried on well it can have far-reaching results the scope of which can hardly be envisaged today. It must also be considered to what extent Dinshaw can fit into this set-up. If you think it necessary to see me before taking any decision in the matter and if you can find some time, come and talk it over. But if the matter can be settled through correspondence, you need not come. In spite of my great interest in this work you should take it that I am acting in a detached way. If I am to live for 125 years, there is also this condition that my sense of objectivity, that is, non-attachment should increase day by day and approximate as much to perfection as is humanly possible. I do not know how this can happen or whether it will happen at all. Why should I even wish to know? Let me keep that ideal in view and do what I consider to be my duty. I know this much that it is difficult to reach that ideal. But my life has been spent in tackling difficult tasks.

Blessings from
BAPU

From the Hindi original: C.W. 8073. Courtesy: G. D. Birla

457. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA

October 26, 1945

CHL. KRISHNACHANDRA,

Do what you think proper with regard to Gitai. After all, it is just for the morning, is it not? Consult the people who come every day and do what seems proper to all.
I note what you say about Kailas. It is good about Baburamji and Reddy.

My heart is there. I shall go there as soon as I can leave this place. I have decided on the 21st as the last day. Then Godwilling, I shall be there. I am not happy about Gomatibehan illness.

How did Kantabehn fall ill?

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4535

458. LETTER TO L. N. GOPALASWAMI

POONA,
October 27, 1945

MY DEAR GOPALASWAMI,

Yours about Rajaji. In so far as the people caused any disturbance neither the Congress nor I had anything to do with them. There is no doubt that the people resented and rose against the hasty and wholesale arrests. The civil disobedience movement could only be started by me. I never started it. In some cases people lost self-control. But the Government’s senseless violence eclipsed all popular violence.

To accuse Rajaji of betrayal is not to know him. He is too good to do anything mean. Of course I have accepted his Formula because I believe in it.

Yours,
BAPU

SHRI L. N. GOPALASWAMI
C/O SHRI A. VAI DY ANATH IYER
SANTHAIPET
MADURA, SOUTH INDIA

From a photostat: C.W. 10552. Courtesy: Government of Tamil Nadu

1 A photostat of the letter was displayed at the Tamil Nadu Pavilion at the Gandhi-Darshan held in New Delhi in 1969-70.
2 Secretary, Tamil Nadu Harijan Sevak Sangh. The addressee had accused Rajagopalachari on two counts, viz., non-participation in the Quit India movement and his stand regarding Pakistan.
3 In August, 1942
MY DEAR RAMACHANDRA RAO,

Yours of the 13th to hand.

1. Booklet' on health is still undergoing revision. It was suspended after my premature discharge from jail and I never had the time for finishing it. When it is finished you will know of this new publication. You can certainly publish a translation. It will not be called a new edition. It will be, if it is ever published, a new thing altogether.

2. There are many claimants for service of labour. Unfortunately, Congress monopoly tacitly recognized by all is broken. But if the Congress is challenged I suppose the Congress will say we are the only real servants of labour. Who will establish the claim finally is in the womb of time. My participation in the affairs of the Working Committee is very slight and, I fancy, growing slighter. Therefore, don’t expect me to do anything in the matter of the flag designed by you.

3. SWEEPERS. You and a few others may recognize my claim to be the first sweeper, but I will cut a sorry figure in a sweepers’ conference. The so-called sweepers will themselves repudiate my claim as many do. My sympathy will be with them in such repudiation. The fortunate position of a self-styled man, however, is that he does not require any outside recognition of a style adopted by himself. Therefore, I must not bear the burden of having the conference even when the choice of the venue is left to me. What is more, I have neither the time nor the wish to carry more burdens than I have. You should therefore go on without counting on my service even in the way of a message. Cultivate the belief that every bonafide service carries with it its own recognition.

1 Gandhiji had started writing the Key to Health on August 27, 1942, during his incarceration in the Aga Khan Palace and completed it on December 18, 1942. The Gujarati original was translated into Hindustani and English by Sushila Nayyar under Gandhiji’s guidance. For Key to Health, vide For Gandhiji’s earlier writings on the subject written in South Africa. These were later published in the form of a booklet under the title A Guide to Health.
4. MATERNITY HOME. Are you not principally dependent upon Government grant and recognition? The record you mention is certainly very good but it loses in public dignity and value. No Government or Government-aided institution suffers for want of funds. All are crowded, some even to suffocation. Whether they really serve the needy poor is a separate question. This criticism is independent of the fact that I have to ask you to be merciful and excuse me from the obligation you seek to impose on me. If I do succeed in visiting Madras for the Hindustani Prachar Sabha, I must ask friends who know me to extend to me their co-operation by imposing upon themselves restraint in the way of saving me from further burdens.

5. “Up from Slavery”: I would love to write a line on this. But seeing that you have waited all these years I would ask you to wait a little longer and remind me when I have settled down after the tours I have in mind.

Yours,

BAPU

SHRI G. RAMACHANDRA RAO
SEVAGRAM
GUDIVADA (KISTNA DISTRICT)

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

460 LETTER TO MANILAL GANDHI

October 27, 1945

CHI. MANILAL,

Read the accompanying cable and reply to Nagin. Send him a cable, saying, ‘Bapu unable send message.’ The pre-paid form also is enclosed, so that you may use it. Send the reply immediately.

Arun is quite happy. The rest is going on well. Sardar has left on business, accompanied by Dinshaw. Both will return on the 1st. My work is going on very well. Do not worry at all.

Blessings to you all from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 4963

1 From Nagin P. Desai of Durban seeking a message from Gandhiji for the foundation-stone-laying ceremony of the Gujarati school and hall of Kathiawari Hindu Seva Samaj which was to be held on October 31
461. LETTER TO KISHORELAL G. MASHRUWALA

October 27, 1945

CHI. KISHORELAL,

It would be very good indeed if Gomati completely recovers. She is as strong as you. She has the strength to bear any amount [of pain]. But [“those who are in it enjoy rare happiness] the spectators are scorched“.

Whenever I am consulted about an abhinandan granth; I always oppose the suggestion. So I will oppose it regarding Kakasaheb also. You too should do the same.

I am going to say the same thing about Nathuram Premi. I think this is a sort of mania.

I don’t feel like writing to Ranka. From your suggestion I take it that Sardar will write to him.

Don’t trust what the newspapers say. I am not going to stay in Poona. It will be a different thing if I have to come here to help Dinshaw. More later.

KISHORELAL MASHRUWALA

SEVAGRAM

WARDHA

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

---

462. LETTER TO JATINDAS M. AMIN

October 27, 1945

CHI. AMIN,

You don’t know how much anxiety you are causing to all of us. Your dharma is to admit that you yourself are suffering from illusion instead of saying that others have turned against you. You should not go to any shop or ask for money and spend it. If you lose your temper all the time, you had better leave the Ashram. Come here if you feel like it. You are not in a position to go to the Himalayas. Your place is either near your father or near me. Do what you think fit after thinking over all this. At any rate, leave the Ashram.

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

---

1 Vide “Ashram Bhajanavali”
2 Felicitation volume
3 Poonamchand Ranka
463. LETTER TO HARJIVAN KOTAK

October 27, 1945

CHI. HARJIVAN KOTAK,

I have your letter. I understand about the expenses. I don’t remember the decision I had taken but I think if they agree to give you more, a way can be found.

I can say more if I know who is the hakim and what his opinion is. I want you to settle down.

HARIJAN ASHRAM
SABARMATI

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

464. LETTER TO H. L. SHARMA

October 27, 1945

CHI. SHARMA,

I have your letter written at 12 o’clock at night. Your brother is gone. From the empirical view it is only natural that you should grieve, but if you take the transcendental view, the integral view, what is there to grieve over in death? What is there to rejoice over in birth? These two go together, one must follow the other and the two are inseparably linked. Hence at least to you death should cause no sorrow. You have an added reason for devoting yourself to your duty.

It is all the more regrettable that you thought of going into the Assembly at the suggestion of your deceased brother.

About Gadodiaji, if you stick to everything [you have said] write to me point by point as 1, 2, 3. I am willing to send them to him. I shall also suggest that they should be placed before an arbitrator.

These should cover all the complaints you had made to me. The decision about other things may well depend on it, though now I must confess I have my suspicions.

I cannot write anything about Sardar because he and Dinshawji are in Bombay. They will return on the 1st. With the elder brother gone, who is shouldering the responsibility of the household? How many brothers are you?

Blessings from
BAPU

From a facsimile of the Hindi: Bapuki Chhayamen Mere Jivanke Solah Varsh, between pp. 342 and 343
465. LETTER TO ABID ALI

October 27, 1945

BHAJ ABID ALI,

I have your postcard. Come whenever you wish to. I hope everyone is all right.

JANAB ABID ALI SAHEB

GREEN HOTEL

MATHERAN

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy Pyarelal

466. LETTER TO AMRIT KAUR

POONA,

October 28, 1945

CHI. AMRIT,

Your Karachi letter just received. Thank God you were all right up to Karachi and hope you will continue so till you return to me. Pyarelal is out of fever, has been for the past four days, and is slowly gaining strength. Sardar is in Bombay and will return on 1st. Dinshaw is with him. Our party will leave Poona, Deo volente, on 19th reaching Sevagram on 21st, necessary persons leaving for Calcutta on 30th November. Narandas, his wife and Kusum are here, will leave on Tuesday. My sister is here with her daughter'. I hope I shall get some news about Beryl during your absence. Remember me to all the friends who may think of me and whom you may meet.

Love.

BAPU

From the original: C.W. 4170. Courtesy: Amrit Kaur. Also G.N. 7806

467. LETTER TO J. C. KUMARAPPA

October 28, 1945

MY DEAR KU.,

You have a good certificate about the sculpture'. As soon as it is on view in Maganwadi I shall set about collecting. I am glad Mrs.

1 Phoolkunvar
2 A statue of Jesus Christ measuring 6 ft. by 4 ft., made by Mrs. Clara Hopman, a Dutch artist, and priced Rs. 10,000, was to be donated to the All-India Village Industries Association at Maganwadi.
Hopman is herself coming to pay your commission.

The b. p. is good.

You must not gloat over your brother’s exploits. Wait and watch.

Love.

BAPU

DR. KUMARAPPA
A.I.V.I.A.
MAGANWADI, WARDHA

From a photostat: G.N. 10182

468. LETTER TO DILIP KUMAR ROY

October 28, 1945

MY DEAR DILIP,

Your letter is tempting. The recollection of your voice tempts me and so do several other things. But I must resist all temptation and keep on to the straight and narrow path as conceived by me. Therefore excuse me. If I can go further, I would say drop the project. If not, you may approach the others you mention.

I would have written to you in Hindi as I do generally but I forbore for obvious reasons.

BAPU

[PS.]

I hope to leave Poona on 19th November on my way to Bengal, stopping at Sevagram for a few days.

SHRI DILIPKUMAR ROY
AUROBINDO ASHRAM
PONDICHERRY

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Bharatan Kumarappa’s
DEAR MADAM,

I have just received your letter of 20th September, and I have devoured almost every line of the enclosure to your letter. Miss Slade whom we know here as Mirabai only, as she desires to be known, is in a basin of the Himalayas which she adores and loves. It is near Hardwar, a celebrated place of pilgrimage, through which the mighty Ganges flows down.

Your Green Cross scheme appeals to me forcibly, not that there is anything new in it for me. Your resolution is also brief and to the point, and therefore is a temptation and invitation for me to sign. But I must resist the temptation. The Green Cross Society will, I hope, forgive me for the resistance. It will do so readily if it appreciates the fact that some, among whom I count myself, render greater help by refraining from signing anything like your resolution but working silently and probably effectively.

Though I refrain from sending you my signature I will ask you, if you at all can, to keep me in touch with your activities from time to time. It may interest and even please you to know that I have enforced in my own life now for years your ‘ten don’ts’ and invited my neighbours to do likewise for I have long believed that there is a ‘spirit in the wood’, using the word ‘wood’ in a double sense.

Yours sincerely,

MRS. M. H. MORRISON
HON. SECRETARY
THE GREEN CROSS SOCIETY
41 ASMUNS PLACE, LONDON N.W. 11

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 An extract from this appeared in The Hindu, 31-10-1945, which reported that the addressee had requested Gandhiji to sign a resolution which was “a non-controversial, conciliatory plea to protect helpless wild life and unspoilt nature everywhere”.

2 The Hindu reported: “The Society has put forward ten “don’ts” to prevent desecration of wild life and nature. It requests the people not to disfigure landscapes or the general appearance of the village, country road or approach to town by throwing litter or by displaying advertisements in wrong places or cutting trees and plucking wild flowers or in any other way. Nor should they disturb the peace of nature which others are enjoying by shouting, loud singing or playing gramophone records or by tuning wireless sets.”
DEAR MASCARENE,

In continuation of the receipt of your resolution, you will not expect me to express any opinion because just now I have, so far as it is possible, steeled my heart against any expression of opinion. I have not studied the question of primary education in Travancore so as to satisfy myself, and I observe that many persons of note have expressed emphatic views one way or the other. I do not feel called upon to say anything.

Why did you drag my sister and her daughter? My sister is wholly illiterate. Her daughter can with difficulty read or write something. But neither takes any interest in public matters. It is fraud upon the public to put such ignorant persons on the platform and make them repeat things parrot-like, leading the public to believe that some good work has been done.

I felt sorry when I first heard that my sister had been dragged out of her merited obscurity in which she was happy and contented. She has now come to me being on her way back to Rajkot. She tells me that she had not the slightest intention of going to a meeting or sending her daughter. She allowed herself to be tempted to go to Rameshwaram as a point of pilgrimage. She had intended also to remain obscure and not let the people know that she was my sister. If she had asked me I would have dissuaded her even from going to Rameshwaram, for I have no faith in these pilgrimages except under certain conditions. But what is done cannot be undone. I would however like you to give me your version of the story, so that I can have full facts enabling me to come to a right judgment, for I do not want to do you any injustice by making up my mind on insufficient data. Please therefore enlighten me. And who was the party who wrote out the speech that my sister’s daughter read without understanding it?

Yours,

BAPU

MISS A. MASCARENE
STATE CONGRESS OFFICE
TRIVANDRUM

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar
471. LETTER TO DAHYALAL H. JANI.

October 28, 1945

BHAI DAHYALAL,

Don’t be angry with me but have a hearty laugh. I don’t know who told me or where I read it or what happened but somehow I had the illusion that you had died. Later one day when I saw Kishorelal revising your translation of the Gita, I came to know that you were alive and I was happy about it. But I forgot about this and thought you were dead. Meanwhile yesterday your letter came and now this won’t leave my mind. So now you have to live long. But I know that you may live beyond me, that is, you may live for more than 125 years, and yet will remain what you are now. Isn’t that as good as being dead even when alive? This is the impression I have got after reading your letter.

There is nothing new in what you have said about the five things. Of course, there is some truth in it but according to me it is so full of ignorance that I have not found any one of them useful. Your last sentence is: “If there is any service that I can do, do order me.” How incorrect this sentence is! I did order you to do a lot of service and what did I get from it? What could the country achieve or what benefit did you get? Think over the other four things in the same way. There is no need for a reply and this should not be published on any account. I have written this just to humour you in the hope that it may open your eyes one day. If any time you are able to understand the hidden meaning behind it I would think it is better than getting your reply and would consider your living meaningful.

SHRI DAHYABHAI H. JANI
939 WILSON GARDENS
BANGALORE CITY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

472. LETTER TO AMRITLAL V. THAKKAR

October 28, 1945

BAPA,

I am enclosing Sushila Pai’s letter. Go through it. I wonder if I have told you about her. If she goes and stays there, most of our problems can be solved. As I write these lines I recollect that I had introduced her to you.

THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
I think she can be accommodated in Bajajwadi, where your office is situated. I do not know what facilities are available there. Of course, we don’t want any overcrowding.

The question of her salary does not arise at the moment. The thing is we have to see whether we can have her as Joint Secretary with Sucheta, and whether she can stay in Bajajwadi. We have also to find out whether Sucheta will agree to have a Joint Secretary. If you approve of these suggestions, then we shall have to consult Sucheta. If you concur, I shall refer the matter to her. Please let me have your reply.

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

473. LETTER TO GIRIRAJKISHORE

October 28, 1945

CHI. GIRIRAJ,

I have your letter. Both the sisters were happy. Your work is progressing well. Take care of your health. I have received part of the dictionary\(^1\). I just glanced at it for two minutes. I hope to go through it a little more.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 8775

474. LETTER TO SWAMI SATYADEV

October 28, 1945

SWAMIJI,

I was glad to have your letter and I noticed that you have signed it with some effort. You talk of settling down in Delhi but it is hot there too. For you the places are Almora, Abu or Girnar. Perhaps you don’t require a library but wish to write on what you already know. If that is so I shall try. It is quite pleasant near the sea coast but considering your health I would not advise the sea coast. I understand you want my advice regarding only the place and you have the means to manage other things yourself.

SWAMI SATYADEV
SATYAJNANA NIKETAN
JWALAPUR

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

\(^1\) The Hindi-Gujarati dictionary which the addressee was preparing

VOL.88: 30 AUGUST, 1945 -6 DECEMBER, 1945 231
475. LETTER TO CHANDRANI

October 28, 1945

CHI. CHAND,

I have your postcard. Rest assured about your welfare. Your spirit of service will ever grow. Make your body as strong as steel and complete your studies. I hope to reach Sevagram on 21st November.

Blessings from

BAPU

KUMARI CHANDBEHN
DAGA MEMORIAL HOSPITAL
NAGPUR

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

476. LETTER TO VICHITRANARAYAN SHARMA

October 28, 1945

CHI. VICHITRA,

I have gone through all your papers carefully. I wrote to the Central Government1 as soon as I heard from Jajuji. I am making some alternative arrangement also.2 Let us wait and watch. Keep me informed of the developments there. I hope to reach Wardha on the 21st.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI VICHITRANARAYAN
GANDHI ASHRAM
MEERUT

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

477. LETTER TO M. DUTT

October 28, 1945

SECRETARY SAHEB,

Meet me when I am in Calcutta. Meet Prafulla Babu and fix an appointment.

M. DUTT
617 CLIVE STREET
CALCUTTA

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Vide “Letter to E. M. Jenkins”, 10-10-1945
2 Vide also “Letter to Shrikrishnadas Jaju”, 11-10-1945
478. PREFACE TO “GITA PRAVESHIKA”

Let me add this much to the above. The verses originally included in this primer were those I had selected for Ramdas. Friends have added so much to it that it would be a departure from truth to call it “Rama-Gita” or to attribute its compilation to me.

In this edition the meanings have been omitted. For this the reader may refer to the original book Anasaktiyoga.

M. K. GANDHI

October 29, 1945

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 9955. Also C.W. 6929. Courtesy: Jivanji D. Desai

479. LETTER TO E. M. JENKINS

NATURE CURE CLINIC,
6 TODIWALA ROAD, POONA,
October 29, 1945

DEAR SIR EVAN,

This I write in fear and trembling, lest I may be overstepping my limit.

I am watching the progress of the trial of the members of the corps raised by or under Shri Subhas Babu. Though I can have nothing in common with any defence by force of arms, I am never blind to the valour and patriotism often displayed by persons in arms, as seems to be the case here. And can the Government afford to ignore the almost, if not the wholly, unanimous opinion of Indians of all shades of opinion? India adores these men who are on their trial. No doubt the Government have overwhelming might on their side. But it will be misuse of that power if it is used in the teeth of universal Indian opposition. It is not for me to say what should be done except that what is being done is not the way. Let His Excellency decide what is best in the circumstances.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

Gandhiji’s Correspondence with the Government, 1944-47, PP. 40-1

1 Second edition
2 The reference is to the preface to the first edition; vide Vol. LVI, p. 73.
4 Replying to this on November 6, G. E. B. Abell, Deputy Private Secretary to the Viceroy, said: “His Excellency ... asks me to say that he notes your views and presumes that they are based on articles appearing in the newspapers, in, which the facts are not always correctly stated. His Excellency naturally cannot express an opinion on the merits of cases which are sub judice.”
480. LETTER TO E. M. JENKINS

NATURE CURE CLINIC,
6 TODIWALA ROAD, POONA,
October 29, 1945

DEAR SIR EVAN,

In continuation of my letter\(^1\) of October 10, 1945, about khadi being licensed, may I add that the Privy Council had to consider the question of exempting the A.I.S.A. from the income tax. The case is reported in A. I. R. 1944 Privy Council at p. 88. His Excellency’s predecessor had at my request ordered that the collection of the tax be suspended, pending decision of the Privy Council.\(^2\) It reversed the decision of the Bombay High Court and expressed the opinion that the primary object of the Association is the relief of the poor, that its objects include the advancement of other purposes of general public utility and that the making of a commercial or private profit is not the purpose of the Association. On these grounds they came to the conclusion that the Association is a charitable and philanthropic body and entitled to exemption from tax. Can khadi manufactured and sold on behalf of the manufacturers—the profits, if any, going to the hand-spinners and handloom-weavers—be classed with mill-cloth under the Anti-Profiteering and Hoarding Regulations? In my humble opinion, it should be wholly exempt from such control, if the meagre earnings of the poor concerned are not to be taxed.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

\(^{1}\) Vide “Letter to E. M. Jenkins”, 10-10-1945
\(^{2}\) Vide “Ashram Note”, 8-2-1942 and “Letter from Lord Linlithgow”, 20-2-1942

Gandhiji’s Correspondence with the Government, 1944-47 p. 69

481. LETTER TO MIRA BEHN

POONA,
October 29, 1945

CHI. MIRA,

I have your letter just now and I reply before going for massage.

I am not leaving Sevagram, must not, having founded home for so many institutions. I must now contradict and correct the report. I could not desert Sardar. I must come to you after doing the Frontier or [before] going there. Everything is postponed by a month.

Let us trust to God guiding us. He may so compass that ultimately I may have to live with you. Wish nothing except to do His will.

Sorry about Balvantsinha. No more time.

Love.

BAPU

From the original: C.W. 6512. Courtesy: Mirabehn. Also G.N. 9907

482. LETTER TO C. RAJAGOPALACHARI

[October 29, 1945]

MY DEAR C. R.,

I have just received your letter. I do not attach any importance to unscrupulous propaganda. However, what statement do you think I should issue? Today trees can only be tapped for gur not for making intoxicants.

How are you? What is the atmosphere there?

As I cannot yet leave Sardar, my tour has been put off by one month.

Love.

[PS.]

Madhavan’s letter returned.

SHRI C. RAJAGOPALACHARI

MADRAS

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 In Bapu’s Letters to Mira, the addressee explains: “A rumour had been started that Bapu was leaving Sevagram.”

2 In the source this letter is placed among those of this date.

3 Jaggery
483. LETTER TO JIVANJI D. DESAI

POONA,

October 29, 1945

CHI. JIVANJI,

I am sending a new preface1 also for the Gita Praveshika. As I have suggested, omit the meanings. I have suggested in the new preface that those who wish to know the meanings should consult the Anasaktiyan. Those who are not ready to take that much trouble need not buy this. I have not, therefore, made any correction on page 6. Nor need we give all that just now for one pice. The verses which I had originally selected will be found somewhere. If they can be given, the “Rama-Gita” will be complete. I have them somewhere. Ramdas also will have them. I cannot permit you to fall ill. Remember how much depends on you and see that you do not fall ill. The remedy is given in Arogyani Chavi2.

If I can manage about the Constructive Programme3, I will send that too.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati:G.N. 9956. Also C.W. 6930. Courtesy: Jivanji D. Desai

484. LETTER TO K. M. MUNSHI

October 29, 1945

BHAI MUNSI,

I got your letter and a copy of the speech just now. I had read somewhere about your having written Gujarati-Hindi. I was very pleased. It is good, moreover, that everything went off well. I hope you are in good health. I have always written samun sutharun4 without

---

1 Vide “Letter to E. M. Jenkins”, 29-10-1945
2 Key to Health; vide
3 Gandhiji was revising Constructive Programme: Its Meaning and Place, written earlier in December 1941. Vide “Constructive Programme: Its Meaning and Place”, 13-12-1941.
4 Literally, ‘neat and tidy’ knowing the origin of the phrase. You have now taught me that it is *same sutare*¹. Why need this origin displease me?

Blessings from

BAPU

From the Gujarati original: C.W. 7689. Courtesy: K. M. Munshi

485. LETTER TO GOMATI K. MASHRUWALA

October 29, 1945

CHI. GOMATI,

Ramprasad told me everything about you. Sitting here, I can only wish that you get well soon. Medicine does little, rest works wonders. So you should not insist on getting up, doing things yourself and going out for toilet.

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

486. LETTER TO KISHORELAL G. MASHRUWALA

October 29, 1945

CHI. KISHORELAL,

Ramprasad and Amin have arrived. Amin seems to have behaved himself.

I am writing about the constitution of the Congress. I intend sending a copy to you after I complete it. It is entirely different from your conception. Let me know what you have to say about it after you have seen it. I feel that the Congress will ultimately be the loser if it fails to do something of this sort.

Lakshmishanker Vaid, who is devoted to you, says that if you take one tablespoon of caster oil and two tablespoons of honey, you will get rid of your asthma.

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

487. LETTER TO S. K. GUPTA

October 29, 1945

BHAI SHRIKANT,

I have your two postcards. I shall start touring after finishing the work here. I shall probably reach the Ashram by February. Write to

¹ Literally, ‘when the yarn is even’ me then. In the mean time carry on the constructive work as I have suggested.

Do not trust the newspaper reports. I am not going to leave Sevagram.

Blessings from
M. K. GANDHI

SHRI S. K. GUPTA
EXCISE INSPECTOR
6 RAILWAY ROAD
FARUKHABAD, U. P.

From a photostat of the Hindi: C.W. 9696. Also Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

488. LETTER TO J. BARUA

October 29, 1945

SIR,

What you say is quite right. The word “easily” was used by me through ignorance. It was not deleted from the later edition through oversight. I have now written to the Press. Forgive me for this lapse. You can publish this letter.

J. BARUA
C/O G. N. TAGORE
BAJAJ BHAVAN
TILAK NAGAR, KANPUR

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

489. LETTER TO DEVPRAKASH NAYYAR

October 29, 1945

CHI. DEV.

I have your letter. You will be able to render a lot of service if you remain healthy. I know that though the Ashram is far from perfect there is something in it which is not found elsewhere. We have deliberately given up certain things which are seen at other places.

SEVAGRAM ASHRAM
SEVAGRAM

From a microfilm of the Hindi: Documents relating to Gandhiji. Courtesy: National Archives of India
490. DRAFT FOR CONGRESS CONSTITUTION

[On or after October 29, 1945]

1. Constructive programme is the chief plank for winning Swaraj by truthful and non-violent means. Its full execution means complete independence. But so long as the millions of India do not take to it, Parliamentary programme will remain as a supplement.

2. The method of enrolment of Congress membership has been useful and Congress has been able to do a lot of good work. But many defects have crept in. Therefore, in future the Congress will consist of workers or servants of the nation only. Any man or woman above the age of sixteen can become a Congress worker, provided he or she is a habitual wearer of khadi certified by the A.I.S.A. and pays a monthly fee of 1,920 rounds of handspun yarn to the Congress. The spinners should be conversant with all the processes from picking cotton pods from the field to the point of making slivers and producing yarn. They should also know how to put a spinning-wheel in order.

3. The Congress shall make it a point of duty to penetrate the 7,00,000 villages of India. At least one Congress worker shall stay in each village and do the following:

(a) He shall come in personal contact with every villager and keep a list of their names along with those of the other members of their families.

(b) He will enrol and train Congress workers from amongst the villagers themselves and keep a register of all those who come on the roll. These shall form the Village Congress Committee.

(c) He shall keep a record of his work from day to day.

(d) It is possible that obstacles might be placed in his way by the Government or by the villagers themselves. He shall fight all difficulties by truthful and non-violent action even though he might perish in the attempt.

(e) He shall organize the villages so as to make them self-contained and self-supporting through their agriculture and handicrafts, treating the manufacture of Khadi as the centre, in accordance with the lines laid down by the A.I.S.A., A.I.V.I.A. and the Goseva Sangh.

1 From the reference to Gandhiji’s drafting the Constitution of the Congress; vide “Letter to Kishorelal G. Mashruwala”, 29-10-1945
(f) He shall organize sanitation and hygiene among the villagers and take all measures for prevention of disease among them.

(g) He shall organize the education of the villagers from birth to death along the lines of Nayee Talim, in accordance with the policy laid down by the Hindustani Talimi Sangh.

(h) For the above purposes and others to be added from time to time by the Congress, he shall train and fit himself for the due performance of duty, in accordance with the rules laid down by the Congress for time to time.

4. The Congress shall take part in the elections in all Government managed or controlled institutions, beginning with the Village Panchayat to the Central Legislative Assembly and Council.

5. The Congress shall contact all those who are on the Government’s voters’ list, and
   (a) will give them an idea of their duties and their rights,
   (b) shall produce the necessary literature for their education,
   (c) shall make arrangements to impart literacy to the illiterate amongst them.
   (d) shall see that those whose names are missing on the Government registers are duly entered therein.
   (e) shall encourage those who are legally unqualified for the franchise to acquire the necessary qualifications for getting the right.
   (f) shall carry on agitation for adult franchise for all inhabitants of India who are not proved lunatics or otherwise unfit workers.

6. Out of the existing workers the Congress shall maintain a Central Board of volunteers whose sole and special duty will be to reach help to and protect, in accordance with Truth and Non-violence, the people in cases of rioting, stealing, robbery and like emergencies. To this end the Congress shall conduct a teaching institution.

7. The Congress shall run a Languages School so as to enable Congressmen and women to learn the national language (i.e., Hindustani spoken by the villagers–Hindus, Muslims and others–in the villages of the North and written in the Nagari or Urdu script) and other Indian languages. This work is to be done along the lines of the Hindustani Prachar Sabha and Bharatiya Bhawan.

8. Representative Village Congress Sabhas being one per not less than 1000 voters and of workers being one per 1000 workers shall form the A.I.C.C.

9. The Indian National Congress will comprise:
   (1) Village Congress Committee
10. The A.I.C.C. shall frame rules for smooth working of the constitution and for matter left unprovided for herein.

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

491. REFLECTIONS ON CONGRESS CONSTITUTION

[On or after October 29, 1945]

I am becoming more and more convinced that the four-anna membership should go. The membership of the Congress should be forty crores, the whole of the population, no matter to what sect, religion or province or state or the so-called independent possessions a particular individual belongs. The members have an equal right with all to service by the Congress organization. These forty crore members will exercise no privilege by reason of their recognition as such by the Congress.

The organization will be worked by those who are habitual wearers of khaddar one year before the date of commencement, who have renounced untouchability in all its forms and who are not dealers in foreign cloth or intoxicants, who have full belief in the constructive programme of the Congress and who are prepared and willing to do work referred to in Schedule A hereto and who have passed a probation period of six months in doing that work.

All Committees and sub-committees shall be formed from the workers above named.

The Schedules to be prepared by P.

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

¹ From the contents this appears to have been written about the same time as the preceding item.
492. TELEGRAM TO PRESIDENT, FYZABAD DISTRICT CONGRESS COMMITTEE

Poona, October 30, 1945

President
District Congress Committee
Fyzabad (U. P.)

Send doctor Katju’s\(^1\) opinion on Basuda Singh\(^2\) case.

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

493. TELEGRAM TO D. G. TENDULKAR

October 30, 1945

Tendulkar
Care Congress
Bombay

Regret reconsideration impossible.

Gandhi

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

494. TELEGRAM TO SHRIMAN NARAYAN

Poona, October 30, 1945

Professor Agrawal
Commerce College
Wardha

You can hold meeting\(^3\) 8th November.

Bapu

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

\(^1\) Kailash Nath Katju
\(^2\) Who was sentenced to death because of his part in the 1942 movement
\(^3\) Of the Hindustani Prachar Sabha
495. LETTER TO DR. KRISHNABAI NIMBKAR

October 30, 1945

DEAR SISTER,

I have your letter. Now that the members of the Working Committee are released write to them in detail. Meet me, if I am here, when you reach Poona.

DR. KRISHNABAI NIMBKAR
192 POONAMALLE HIGH ROAD
P. O. VEPERY

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

496. LETTER TO SARVAJITLAL VERMA

October 30, 1945

BHAI SARVAJIT SINGHJI,

I got your letter today. Your wire too had come. I have sent a wire asking for Dr. Katju’s opinion on this case. If you have any papers besides this, send them along. Send the application on behalf of the prisoner or in the lawyer’s name to the Viceroy and send a copy to me. Also do as the Vakilsaheb advises. I shall do what I can from here.

SARVAJITLAL VERMA
PRESIDENT, DISTRICT CONGRESS COMMITTEE
FYZABAD

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

497. ANSWER TO A CORRESPONDENT

[On or before October 31, 1945]

Sardar is as dear as a son to me. Our relation is as good as that of a father and a son. What message can a father give to a son? There is no scope for a message from me.

The Bombay Chronicle, 1-11-1945

1 Vide” Telegram to President, Fyzabad District Congress Committee”, 30-10-1945
2 Gandhiji was asked for a message for Vallabhbhai Patel’s birthday which fell on October 31.
3 ibid
498. LETTER TO KANCHAN SHAH

POONA
October 31, 1945

CHI. KANCHAN,

I do not like your recent letters. Ask me about Madras when I arrive there. I hope to reach there on November 21. I have written a short letter1 to Munnalal and am daily awaiting his reply. Ask him why he has not sent it till now.

When will you improve your health?

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 8261. Also C.W. 6986. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

499. LETTER TO J. P. BHANSALI

October 31, 1945

CHI. BHANSALI,

It is all the same whether you sleep in water or on the ground, sit in the sun or in the shade. My opinion is that if now you lead a normal life the people around will be much more benefited. If you have any doubt about this, ask me, as I hope to reach there at the latest on the 21st [November].

Blessings from
BAPU

ASHRAM
SEVAGRAM

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

500. LETTER TO AMRITLAL V. THAKKAR

October 31, 1945

BAPA,

Yesterday I got Mridula’s letter. What you said was right.

Send three months’ money to Lila Jog without any comment. If you wish you can send it to me. I shall handle it in my language and

1 Vide “Letter to Munnalal G. Shah”, 7-10-1945

THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
in my own way. We shall thus close the chapter.

Fix any days between November 22 and 28.

BAPU

KASTURBA GANDHI SMARAK NIDHI
WARDHA

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

501. LETTER TO VASANJI HANSJI
October 31, 1945

BHAI VASANJI HANSJI,

I have the hundi for Rs. 4,205 sent by you as well as the list of donors and the report of the agreement sent by Pranshanker Joshi. I shall use the money as desired. Convey my thanks to all the donors.

Vandemataram from
M. K. GANDHI

VASANJI HANS
GANDHI YUVAK BHAJAN MANDALI
67/B STREET, JOHANNESBURG

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

502. LETTER TO CHHAGANLAL JOSHI
October 31, 1945

CHI. CHHAGANLAL,

I have your letter. While I was talking to Narandas about the money from the States, he promptly said, “Certainly stop it if you wish to.” Now we shall think over it when we meet. I have received the money from Wankaner. I shall send it to you as I received it—in two instalments and under insured cover.

I understand about Tryambaklal Choksi’s donation. Just now I am not writing a letter of thanks. I don’t approve of the condition laid down by him. How can we have a trust for such a small amount? Why does he not have faith in an institution like the Harijan Sevak Sangh? And why all this fuss about making a trust? He can give the shares to Harijan Sevak Sangh on condition that the money received from the shares will be utilized as decided by the Sangh for the Harijans of Sorath. I also believe that if we can get more money by selling the shares, the Sangh should have the right to do so. Think over this and discuss this with Tryambaklal if you wish to. You can convey to Bapa my opinion about this. Come to Madras when I reach there.

_Blessings from_
BAPU

CHHAGANLAL JOSHI
HARIJAN SEVAK SANGH
RAIKOT
From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

503. LETTER TO SATYADEVI GIRI
_October 31, 1945_

CHI. SATYADEVI,
I have your letter. I am glad you gave news about the entire family. If the doctor so advises, get yourself operated upon. There is no risk at all in an operation. If the complaint is diagnosed as appendicitis, I do not know of any other treatment.
It is good you have not totally given up the spinning-wheel. All the same, understand the science of it also. Personally I think that Dharmakumar should complete his studies.

_Blessings to you all from_
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

504. LETTER TO JETHALAL GANDHI
_October 31, 1945_

CHI. KAKU,
I have your letter. What you say is right. Yesterday I read it out to your father’s sister also. I appreciate your writing so frankly about service-mindedness but I wish to caution you. By following tradition you will feel the burden of the family all the more and you must know that sometimes one gets entangled in it. So you will have to cultivate the spirit of service.

_Blessings from_
BAPU

SHRI JETHALAL K. GANDHI
C/o JEEVANLAL (1929) LTD.
127 MINT STREET
G. T. MADRAS
From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
505. LETTER TO K. T. SHAH

October 31, 1945

Bhai Khushal Shah,

I have your English book on the foundation of peace. As usual I turned a few pages and tried to look up the index but found none. How can one do without an index in a book on a serious subject? You must find a helper who would prepare the index. I know you have written novels, too, and may still be writing more. I can understand not having an index there. But how can one do without one in a book on a serious subject? I hope you are all right. I just saw your letter. I had written this earlier. How nice it would be if you started writing in Gujarati or Rashtrabhasha which millions can understand!

Blessings from

BAPU

Prof. K. T. Shah
8 Laburnum Road
GAMDEVI, BOMBAY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

506. LETTER TO CHHAGANLAL SHAH

October 31, 1945

Bhai Chhaganlal,

Go home from there and live where and as God ordains. I can’t say anything more than this.

Blessings from

M. K. GANDHI

Chhaganlal Shah
Devji Ladha
Daftari Road
Malad East

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

507. LETTER TO MRIDULA SARABHAI

Poona,

October 31, 1945

Chiridula,

I have your letter. You have laboured very hard. What for? With me you could have been brief because I do not any more have to try and understand you. Or do I have to understand you further? I hope I can understand from your slightest hint.

There is one thing you must do. What can there be personal with people like us? Are you any more an individual? If you continue to be an individual, it is not for writing personal things, but to preserve your individuality, which is done only when you reduce yourself to a zero and remain a zero. If you do not know this, then follow my experience if you can. Where there is 'I', there is individuality. It is only when 'I' is eliminated, that individuality ceases to exist. Take the letter 'I' of the English alphabet. So long as it is straight, it appears like a scare-crow. If it wants to efface itself and realize its individuality it must turn itself into a cipher. This is philosophy. But you will see what I mean.

I can understand your views about Bapa. Our experiences with him have been different. Only time will show whose experience is right. I am under no misconception that my experience being longer is right and your experience being shorter is wrong. I know that even a long experience can be wrong. We shall weigh our experiences on the scales of time.

Kanu agrees that what I have written to the Kasturba Nidhi about Bapa is correct, because Thakkar Bapa was instrumental in this. Had he not involved himself, the matter would not have gone any further. And Narandas is always clinging to him. He would like to continue to work through him as before and be satisfied. His idea assumed the gigantic size it did only after Thakkar Bapa joined in. Afterwards others too played a major role. That in my opinion is a remarkable thing about Bapa. He starts something and lets someone else take the credit. He has shortcomings, no doubt. Who does not have them? But in my view, his faults have become insignificant in the face of his good qualities. I wish you too would recognize this some day.

I am writing to Bapa to pay Lila Jog for three months. Now I shall be able to find some time to send my letter to the newspapers.

Blessings from

BAPU

From the Gujarati original: C. W. 11248. Courtesy: Sarabhai Foundation.
508. LETTER TO DR. PRAKASH

October 31, 1945

CHI. PRAKASH,

I hope to reach Khadi Pratishthan, Sodepur, Calcutta on 1st December. I shall be pleased if you stay with me in Calcutta.

Pyarelal’s fever has subsided.

Blessings from

BAPU

DR. PRAKASH
DUFFERIN HOSPITAL
BETTIAH, DIST. CHAMPARAN

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

509. LETTER TO C. RAJAGOPALACHARI

October 31, 1945

BHAI RAJAJI,

Have you made a study of the Christian agitation that is going on in Travancore regarding education? If so, give me your opinion. Shastriar has given a definite opinion on it. Discuss it with him if you wish to. What and where is the truth? Since I could not form a definite opinion, I am asking you.

You should not find it difficult to read this much Hindi.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

510. LETTER TO E. W. ARYANAYAKUM

October 31, 1945

CHI. ARYANAYAKUM,

If you have read about the confusion prevailing in Travancore regarding education, let me have your opinion. Many people are writing to me that I must say something about it. I had not read anything till now, nor had I any [other] material. Now Shri Cherian
Kopen has sent a letter and also a lot of literature with it. I have read it and if you have not and wish to read it, I can send it. I have sent a similar letter to Kumarappa.

Blessings from
BAPU

ASHRAM
SEVAGRAM

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

511. LETTER TO KALICHARAN GHOSH

October 31, 1945

BHAI KALICHARAN GHOSH,

I have your letter. I have the book about famine in Bengal but I have not read it. Send Economic Resources of India. Carefully go through what I have said about prayers. Go and see Satis Babu of Khadi Pratishthan and also Babu Nirmal Kumar¹. If even then you are not satisfied, write to me again.

It is good that you care for work and are not after name. If you do care for name it should be only for Ramanama, for that includes all work.

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

SHRI KALICHARAN GHOSH
6 RAJA BASANTRAI ROAD
KALIGHAT, CALCUTTA

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

512. LETTER TO CHERIAN KOPEN

[October 1945]²

BHAII CHERIAN KOPEN,

You are the only one who has sent me some literature about the agitation that is going on in Travancore over education. I have read your letter though not the whole material you have sent. But I went

¹ Nirmal Kumar Bose
² From the reference to the addressee in the letter to E. W. Aryanaykum dated October 31, 1945, it appears this letter was also written about the same time; Vide “Letter to E. W. Aryanayakum”, 31-10-1945 through what was relevant to my purpose. Still I am not in a position to give a definite opinion. In such a situation I can only say this much by way of consolation that I am asking my Christian friends and friends of other religions who take interest in such things what this is all about.

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

513. A THOUGHT FOR THE DAY

_July 17, 1945_

A man of the world can as little comprehend the universe as a fish living in the ocean can fathom its depths.

_July 18, 1945_

Not to do evil is the only true law of life, says Guru Teg

_July 19, 1945_

Life is unreal, death is real and certain. —Nanak

_July 20, 1945_

Truth can be found by searching within, never through argument or disputation. It is just the same if for ‘Truth’ one reads ‘God’.

_July 21, 1945_

Nanak says: “God dwells in every human heart, and so every heart is a temple of God.”

_July 22, 1945_

If God resides in every heart, then who dare hate whom?

_July 23, 1945_

Nanak says: “If we obey the law of God, we then need no man-made laws.”

_July 24, 1945_

Nanak says: “God has ordained that all of us in this world itself are one family and each of us has to live for others.”

_July 25, 1945_

The darkness of egoism is more impenetrable than darkness itself.

---

1 At the request of Anand T. Hingorani and to comfort him Gandhiji had started the practice of writing a thought daily from November 20, 1944
July 26, 1945

How shall we dispel this darkness of egoism? By the light of uttermost humility.

July 27, 1945

Sorrow is but another aspect of joy. Hence the one invariably follows the other.

July 28, 1945

Just as joy and sorrow are a pair that follow each other, in succession, so is the case with all things in life. Consequently, to have real peace of mind, we must rise above such pairs of opposites.

July 29, 1945

How can he who realizes not the true value of the Self, nor is able to protect it, protect anything else in life?

July 30, 1945

Even one word, if true, is enough. Untrue words, however many, are worth nothing.

July 31, 1945

The power of a true word is such that it leads one from selfishness to selflessness.

August 1, 1945

He alone lives in whose heart dwells Rama (God) and who is ever aware of such presence.

August 2, 1945

Real knowledge cannot be acquired by mere reading of the scriptures. Indeed, it is difficult of attainment without the practice of virtue.

August 3, 1945

One can never find Truth if one is not wide awake every moment of one’s life.

August 4, 1945

There can be no such thing as rights for a satyagrahi. For him there is only one right—the right to serve.

August 5, 1945

Therefore, a satyagrahi will never seek rights; these will come to him unsought.

August 6, 1945

Even one drop of the poison of untruth will poison the entire milk-ocean of Truth.
August 7, 1945

Nanak says: “Man is born of woman as woman is born of man.” Then, why is it that we find sexual immorality in the world?

August 8, 1945

Nanak lay in the open under the sky. A kind-hearted householder suggested to him, “There is a beautiful dharmsala nearby. Why not go there?” Nanak replied: “The whole earth is my dharmsala and the sky is its roof.”

August 9, 1945

Nanak says: “The craving for happiness is a veritable disease. Sorrow or suffering is its remedy.”

August 10, 1945

Says Nanak again: “Whatever you give away is yours; whatever you keep is not yours.”

August 11, 1945

Whatever we take, we are snatching from the mouths of others. Therefore, whenever we acquire anything, let us see that it is really needed and that our wants are as few as possible.

August 12, 1945

Nanak says: “He who earns his bread by the sweat of his brow and shares with others what he so earns, can be called truly honest.”

August 13, 1945

Nanak says: “The more one indulges oneself, the more unhappy one becomes.”

August 14, 1945

St. Catherine of Italy had no money with her. She had only a cloak which she was wearing. A destitute asked for it and she gave it away. Someone, thereupon, asked her: “How will you go about now?” She replied: “The raiment of love will cover me far more securely than the cloak.”

August 15, 1945

Money alone can keep memory green—how much harm this false notion has done! This thought occurs to me today on the anniversary of Mahadev [Desai].

August 16, 1945

Nanak says: “Dreams are evidence of the fact that the atma (soul) uses the senses as its instruments. But it is only when the atma keeps the senses under control that they become its instruments, and the atma then becomes ripe for union with the Paramatma."

August 17, 1945

The pangs of hunger are not relieved by filling the stomach. They can be overcome by taking a limited quantity of food, like medicine, and remaining content with it.

August 18, 1945

Fear vanishes only with the annihilation of the ego.

August 19, 1945

It is an ordeal nowadays to read the newspapers. They do not give correct news. Nothing would be lost by not reading them.

August 20, 1945

It is as difficult to make the impossible possible, as it is easy to make the possible impossible.

August 21, 1945

What seems impossible is not always really so.

August 22, 1945

One person has God on his side; millions have Satan on theirs. Must, therefore, one fear the millions?

August 23, 1945

Supposing God is on the side of both, then who should fear whom?

August 24, 1945

He who remembers God can afford to forget everything else.

August 25, 1945

He who remembers everything else but forgets God, really remembers nothing.

August 26, 1945

He who forgets God, forgets himself.

August 27, 1945

If there is a soul, then surely the Supreme Soul (God), too, exists.

August 28, 1945

Because of our physical limitations, we cannot have a conception of the existence of God.
August 29, 1945

How can one believe in Truth if one has no belief in nonviolence? If non-violence is not put into practice, Truth, too, cannot be.

August 30, 1945

Why would one who is capable of violence for gaining his ends, hesitate to resort to untruth in both speech and action?

August 31, 1945

There are some things which a man does by word of mouth, some by observing silence, and yet others by action. If all that he does is informed with knowledge, it is action indeed.

September 1, 1945

Never should we make the mistake of imagining that a wrong can be classified as ‘big’ or ‘small’.

September 2, 1945

One man commits a theft, another aids and abets it, while the third only harbours the intention to commit it. All the three are thieves.

September 3, 1945

‘What I do is a minor lapse; what others do are major lapses’— one who thinks like this lives in abysmal ignorance.

September 4, 1945

He who does something wrong out of a false sense of shame is guilty of a twofold wrong and will not be able to stand up before God.

September 5, 1945

He who thinks, speaks and acts with God as his witness, will never feel ashamed of doing the right thing.

September 6, 1945

A man who believes whole-heartedly in something, even if it be absolutely improper, for him it shall be right and proper.

September 7, 1945

He who doubts the existence of God perishes.

September 8, 1945

He who denies the existence of God denies his own.

September 9, 1945

A man who behaves like a beast is worse than the beast; bestiality is natural for the beast, not so for the man.
September 10, 1945
Woman is not helpless. She must never regard herself as weaker than man. She should not, therefore, beg for any man’s mercy, nor depend on him.

September 11, 1945
Everyone, prince or pauper, is the guardian of his own dharma. What is there to grieve or rejoice in this?

September 12, 1945
How strange that a man very often does not know who is a friend and who is a foe!

September 13, 1945
Belittling one’s mother tongue is like disparaging one’s own mother.

September 14, 1945
Who can make him take a lower seat who has chosen to sit on the ground? Likewise, who can make him a servant who has himself become the servant of all?

September 15, 1945
When a man gives way to anger, he only harms himself. The truth of this is borne out by daily experience.

September 16, 1945
Life becomes perpetually renewed every day. This knowledge should be helpful in uplifting us.

September 17, 1945
Happiness eludes us if we run after it. In fact happiness comes only from within. It is not a commodity to be bought from outside.

September 18, 1945
It is a moot point as to how far a man should go with his comrades when he knows that they really no longer walk with him in spirit.

September 19, 1945
He alone can be said to have conquered anger who is not angry even when there is a cause for anger.

September 20, 1945
Conquest of anger does not mean that anger is not outwardly manifest while the heart is full of it. Deliberately casting out anger root and branch, constitutes real conquest.
Indigestion, etc., are not the only causes of fever. Anger, too, can bring it on.

It is far easier to conquer others than to conquer oneself because the former can be attained by recourse to outside means while the latter can be achieved only with one’s own mind.

Religion is no religion if it becomes mechanical.

Only when religion becomes an integral part of one’s life can it be called religion. It is not like a garment.

‘Money is God’—it is wrong to say so, and it has been proved to be wrong.

Flout one rule and all rules are flouted, for they all have one basis—breach of any rule is a breach of self-control.

All human activity is or should be directed towards the realization of the self. And in this self-realization lies hidden God-realization.

Man cannot worship God and at the same time despise his fellow-beings. The two are irreconcilable.

Man is truly known by the humility of his spirit.

A poet has said that a man without knowledge is like an animal. What is that knowledge?

Knowledge is that alone which enables a man to know himself. In other words, knowledge means self-realization.

“Kind and generous though [the man of God] is to the sorrow-stricken, his mind is not touched with pride.” If it is God who inspires all our actions, then what place has self-pride?
In faith there is no room for despair.

How can that be religion which cannot be put to use in one’s daily life?

By donning the garb of religion, vice does not become virtue nor does a wrong cease to be wrong.

“Rather perish than break the pledged word.” —Tulsidas

“There is no sin like untruth, even as a million berries heaped together cannot equal a mountain”. —Tulsidas

A guru should be perfect. God alone is that.

It is easy to instruct an uneducated person, but who can carry understanding to a man of little learning?

He who knows no rules and follows none just cannot be a servant of the people.

One test of non-attachment is that a man, on retiring to bed with Ramanama on his lips, falls asleep in a moment.

Narasinha Mehta says: “To say ‘I do this’ and ‘I do that’ is the height of ignorance.” The key to non-attachment lies in the contemplation of this truth.

It is possible to endure a diseased body, but not a diseased mind.

What greater meanness can there be than to seek out our good points and praise them to others?

To see nothing but faults of others is even meaner than praising one’s own virtues.
October 16, 1945
The objects of the senses come and go. The point to remember is that when they leave us, we feel miserable; but when we ourselves renounce them, we feel happy and joyful.

October 17, 1945
To mistake selfishness for selflessness is like mistaking a jackal for a lion.

October 18, 1945
The saying that “distance lends enchantment to the view” is apt not only in the case of hills, but also in that of most other things in life.

October 19, 1945
Purity is tested only when it is pitted against impurity.

October 20, 1945
What is true of purity is true of all other virtues. Nonviolence is tested when it faces violence.

October 21, 1945
Vice flourishes in darkness. It vanishes in the light of day.

October 22, 1945
Non-violence, truth, etc., are self-luminous. They cannot be genuine otherwise.

October 23, 1945
Justice needs to be tempered with generosity as much as generosity needs to be tempered with justice.

October 24, 1945
Only he is worthy to mete out punishment whose judgment is infallible. Who but God can be such?

October 25, 1945
To speak or not to speak—when that is the question, silence should take the place of speech.

October 26, 1945
Religion does not consist in eating this food or eschewing that but only in the realization of God within oneself.

October 27, 1945
Religion is not religion if it expects others to follow it. For example, the religion of ahimsa (non-violence) can manifest itself only in the face of himsa (violence).
October 28, 1945

A Tamil poet says that man’s life is as transient as words inscribed on water. This needs to be pondered over repeatedly.

October 29, 1945

Alcohol maddens a man for the moment, but pride devours him completely and he is not even conscious of it!

October 30, 1945

Merit lies in fighting alone, be the opponent one or many.

October 31, 1945

How can he who does not know the art of living know the art of dying?

[From Hindi]
Bapuke Ashirvad: Rozke Vichar, pp. 240-346

514. TELEGRAM TO PRABHU DAYAL VIDYARTHI

POONA,
November 1, 1945

PRABHUDAYAL
C/O KAKA KALELKAR
OPPOSITE MAHILASHRAM
WARDHA

YOU CAN COME,

BAPU

From a photostat: G.N. 11672

515. LETTER TO MANILAL GANDHI

November 1, 1945

CHI. MANILAL,

I send you without correcting the letter that Chi. Arun' has written. I talked to him and so did Kanu' and Abha', but he refuses to budge. I showed him your letter despite your wish to the contrary, for I did not wish to stop him if he showed the slightest desire. The fact is that he likes it here very much. The discipline here is strict but it does

1 Addressee’s son
2 Kanu Gandhi, son of Narandas Gandhi
3 Wife of Kanu Gandhi
not irk him. Please, therefore, console everybody there and tell them they must celebrate the Diwali without Arun. On my part I take as much care as I can of his studies. Aminbhai teaches him drawing with great affection. He plays and eats and is in high spirits all the time. He is deeply attached to Kanu.

Manu’ gives me the massage and Sushila’ sprays me. All my requirements are looked after well and you need not therefore come here for my sake. There is nothing to worry about.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 4964

516. LETTER TO MAGANLAL P. MEHTA

November 1, 1945

CHI. MAGAN³,

Herewith a letter from Chi. Champa⁴. On reading it I feel that you ought to go to Rajkot immediately and render her whatever help you can. If you feel you must have advice from someone you trust, you may seek it in Rajkot. If you wish to take an adviser along from Bombay, you may do so. I have already written⁵ to Champa that I could give no help from here. Return Champa’s letter after reading it.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Manu Gandhi
² Sushila Nayyar
³ Son of Dr. Pranjivandas J. Mehta for long a close associate of Gandhiji
⁴ Wife of Ratilal Mehta, the addressee’s elder brother
⁵ Vide “Letter to Champa R. Mehta”, 9-10-1945
517. LETTER TO SHAMALDAS GANDHI

November 1, 1945

CHI. SHAMALDAS,

The character sketch you have given of Sardar is good but how is it that I don’t find Mahadev in it? If you can think of Sardar without Manibehn, only then can you think of him without Mahadev. Is it merely due to oversight? Or is there art in leaving out Mahadev?

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

518. LETTER TO ABUL KALAM AZAD

November 1, 1945

BHAI SAHEB,

I have your letter. What more shall I say about your health? The sooner you go somewhere for rest the better it will be for the country.

You have sent three names for the Working Committee. It will be better if in this matter you consult the present members and then announce the names. I have an impression that the Congress will have to meet some time soon. In that case will it not be better if the vacancies are filled by fresh elections? But if they have to be filled now, I think the three names that you have sent are all right. However, the members will be the best judges.

Yours,
M. K. GANDHI

MAULANA ABUL KALAM AZAD
19-A, BALLYGUNJE CIRCULAR ROAD
CALCUTTA

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
519. LETTER TO DESHPANDE

November, 1 1945

BHAI DESHPANDE,

I have been told that those who take part in prabhatpheri speak ill of Shri Bhopatkar¹. Find out about this. If they speak ill of any leader try to stop them. What is the good of doing this? I see the harm clearly. So long as they are in the Congress no one should speak ill of others.

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

520. LETTER TO MAHADEVSHASTRI DIVEKAR

November 1, 1945

PANDITJI,

I have had your book² read out to me from beginning to end. These days while I spin I have a friend read out to me some book which I think is worth reading. I am disappointed with your book. From what you had said I had expected that I would learn something new from it and at the same time some light would be thrown on the Hindu-Muslim question. Right from my childhood I have lived with Muslims and when I went to London Providence placed me in close association with Christians, Muslims and Parsis. Hindus of course were there. I came into contact with the intellectuals among them and that is how I read the holy books of all the four religions. I came to the conclusion that we could know the true facts about any religion only after reading its sacred books. I also read quite a few criticisms of them. I can say that I have also read the Muslim critics you mention in your letter. I had a talk with Muslims in South Africa about those books and also with an Englishman who had become Muslim. After coming here I read the works of Maulana Shibli. As a result I have realized that every religion contains both truth and untruth. The root of all religions is one and it is pure and all of them have sprung from the same source, hence all are equal. This equality of all religions has been included by Vinoba among the eleven vows in a Marathi sloka, which is daily recited in the prayers.

¹ L. B. Bhopatkar, General Secretary, All-India Hindu Mahasabha
² Vide also “Letter to Mahadevshastri Divekar”, 23-10-1945

Non-violence, truth, non-stealing, brahmacharya, non-possession, body-labour, control of the palate, fearlessness on all occasions, equal respect for all religions, swadeshi and sparshabhavana1 these eleven vows should be observed in a spirit of humility.2

I am trying to live in accordance with this and so are my associates.

As it is, the letter has become quite long but since you have taken so much trouble and have also sent to me extra copies of your book, I felt I should at least let you know my stand. I do not wish to argue with you. I have an answer to what you have suggested but I see no need to give it here. I therefore think that what I have said is enough.

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

521. LETTER TO INAYATULLA KHAN

November 1, 1945

ALLAMA SAHEB,3

I have your English letter. Why did you write in English?

I have received the printed constitution you have sent. I have gone through it. Though great pains have been taken in drafting it, I have doubts about its usefulness. I feel that if we all become one at heart, it will be easy to frame a constitution. In my view it is well-nigh

1 Refusal to treat anybody as untouchable
2 अहिंसा, सत्य, आत्मेय, ब्रह्मचर्य, असंसार
शरीर भर, अमाय, वर्तमान भय बर्जन
सत्यत्व समावेश, स्वदेशी स्मार्कभवना
ही एकादश सेवाओं नमस्ते ज्ञता निर्वचन
Vide also “Letter to S. Ambujammal”, 5-5-1935
3 Leader of the Khaksars, a communal para-military organization impossible to achieve unity through a constitution. This is what I think.

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

NAWAB ALLAMA MASHRIKI SAHEB
ICHHRA, LAHORE

From a copy of the Urdu: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

522. LETTER TO SHAMALDAS GANDHI

[After November 1, 1945]

CHI. SHAMALDAS,

I have your letter. I have already written that it might have been due to oversight. Now I understand. But such haste is unpardonable. Always remember rashness is madness. You did know about his birthday. If you did not, it is a grave offence.

I had thought you were a skilled journalist but you don’t seem to be one. In a well-organized office, blocks of photographs are always kept ready. And so also most of the write-ups. Have a look at the special issue of Janmabhoomi. It is very good.

“VANDEMATARAM” KARYALAYA
BOMBAY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

523. LETTER TO SIR EVAN M. JENKINS

NATURE CURE CLINIC,
6 TODIWALA ROAD, POONA,
November 2, 1945

DEAR SIR EVAN,

I wonder whether you have seen the enclosed which I saw yesterday. His Excellency should know that this garbled version of

---

1 From the reference to Gandhiji’s earlier letter to the addressee; vide “Interview to “People’s War”, 17-7-1945
2 Absence of reference to Mahadev
3 Vallabhbhai Patel’s birthday on October 31
4 Private Secretary to the Viceroy
5 Press clippings containing reports that Gandhiji had approached the Viceroy about the INA prisoners awaiting trial before a Court Martial.
my letter in question is not of my doing. I believe that the few workers in my office are too faithful to give out anything without my permission, which could not be given for the simple reason that whatever influence I exercise is purely moral, whether with the people or with the Government. And that influence loses in effect by premature publication. I know that there is nothing confidential in what I have written to His Excellency. But it is not meant for the public until the several results contemplated by the correspondence take place or His Excellency desires otherwise.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

Enclosure: 2

Gandhiji’s Correspondence with the Government, 1944-47, p. 42

---

524. LETTER TO AMRIT KAUR

POONA,

November 2, 1945

CHI. AMRIT,

Of course you can’t forget me. Your post has been coming regularly. And it gives me all the information I want.

Good Shummy gives me news about you and the family, forbidding me to write in reply. I have taken him at his word.

Pyarelal is quite well and has also commenced some work. I entertain the hope that he will settle down to work.

Sardar returns tomorrow from Bombay.

My programme, D.V., is: Leave here 19, Bombay 20, Sevagram 21 to 29, entrain for Calcutta 30 morning, reaching Calcutta 1st December.

Gomati has been suffering from fever of long duration, now Chhaganlal Gandhi is laid up. Poor Kashi!

I am well. No worry on my account.

You must keep well. Love to your party and the friends there.

Love.

BAPU

From the original: C.W. 4171. Courtesy: Amrit Kaur. Also G.N. 7807

---

1 Presumably the reference is to Gandhiji’s letter to the Viceroy dated October 19, 1945.

2 Lt.-Col. Shumshere Singh, addressee’s brother

3 Kishorelal Mashruwala’s wife

4 Chhaganlal Gandhi’s wife
525. LETTER TO BHARATAN KUMARAPPA

NATURE CURE CLINIC,
POONA,
November 2, 1945

MY DEAR BHARATAN,

I had your letter yesterday.

You have given a cautious and judicious opinion on Bhailal’s1 project. That is not what I wanted exactly from you. Did I tell you that I lent him your book2 in typescript, which you gave me to read for my foreword, and he cock-suredly told me that his scheme was exactly in conformity with your thesis? I said to him, and I repeat it now, that if I have understood your thesis correctly, his project is quite contrary to the letter and the spirit of your thesis. The rule of thumb that I applied was to know whether his scheme would succeed if it was multiplied to the extent of covering 700,000 villages. And my answer was it could not succeed within a measurable distance of time. This fundamental objection is apart from the fact that he, a tried engineer and therefore an accurate man, has dared to build his scheme largely on his calculation that people will do this and that and the other thing will come true. If what I have said is true and really flows from your book, as it does from my instinctive belief, you have to say so in black and white. If my argument is sound, the way to amend your opinion is to supplement what you have given already by adding that, according to your book as interpreted by you, the project is bound to fail in terms of the millions, and is likely to fail even within the limited compass, because he has built largely upon speculations, a thing which a tried engineer should never do. Did you also notice that his project contemplates a mill’ split up into fragments, owned by the villagers or one intelligent villager? Just think what it means. It must resolve itself into one gigantic State-owned mill or mills centrally situated. In other words, 700,000 villages must be converted into 700 or 70 cities. In still other words, a large portion of the population must die of starvation, famine and the like or be cut to pieces by the sword or

---

1 Bhailalbhai Patel, an enthusiast of rural development through application of modern technology; he later became leader of the Swatantra Party in Gujarat. Vide also “Letter to Bhailalbhai Patel”, 26-12-1945.
2 Capitalism, Socialism or Villagism?
3 Flour mill
blown up by gunpowder.

Love.

BAPU

SHRI BHARATAN KUMARAPPA
C/O SETH SHOORJI VALLABHDAS
CUTCH CASTLE, OPP. SANDHURST BRIDGE
BOMBAY

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

526. LETTER TO K. M. MUNSHI

November 2, 1945

BHAJ MUNSHI,

I think I have told you that I observe silence while spinning. I do listen, though not to what people say. Valjibhai therefore reads things to me. In this manner I heard the whole of your speech at the Hindi Sahitya Sammelan\(^1\). I liked what you said regarding my resignation.\(^2\) I was glad, too, that you had firmly expressed your views regarding the national language. But I feel that what you have said about writers is not correct. I would let the thing pass if the views expressed were not harmful. If I have not heard right, please correct me. I have understood your view to be this: that if a writer can make his art interesting he has fulfilled himself. It has always seemed to me a terrible thought that the end of art is for it to be made interesting. Leaving aside debauchery, even hypocrisy, violence and untruth can easily be made interesting. Would such writing be called art? On your recommendation I read \textit{Prithivivallabh}.\(^3\) According to me it owes its popularity not to the interest it sustains but to the meaning it contains. Besides, you have beautifully blended the beautiful languages descended from Sanskrit. But, as you have not been able to forget that history,\(^4\) can you, as a historian, forget the whole of Muslim history? Even if you can do so, can you make the whole of India forget it? Can you reverse the flow of water and make it go upward? After the British

---

\(^1\) Held at Udaipur which was presided over by the addressee

\(^2\) Gandhiji resigned from the Hindi Sahitya Sammelan on July 25, 1945, as the Sammelan could not commit itself to Gandhiji’s policy that the national language should neither be Persianized nor Sanskritized but should be harmonized under the name Hindustani and should be written in both Devanagari and Persian scripts.

\(^3\) A historical novel by the addressee

\(^4\) Of Gujarat
have left, will it be possible to wipe all the consequences of the British connection off history?

I have placed these two ideas before you with some hesitation, for I do not regard myself either as an expert on art or as a student of history. I, however, felt it was my duty to place before you the experience I have gained as, with my eyes open, I have wandered around the world. I realize, of course, that the principle which I have followed in this very letter in welcoming your views regarding the national language might equally well apply to your ideas on these two subjects.

I liked your Press statement correcting the article which appeared in The Chronicle. I had been considering asking you about it, when I read your reply. What is this confusion regarding Jawaharlal’s letter? Or is it just a concoction?

From Gujarati: C.W. 7690. Courtesy: K.M. Munshi

527. LETTER TO NARAHARI D. PARIKH

November 2, 1945

CHI. NARAHARI,

Your questions are very good. This much is clear to me: whether public institutions have members of different religious persuasions or not, members belonging to the majority communities cannot celebrate their festivals in a manner which would hurt the religious sentiments of others. The Ganapati festival, and such others, are entirely of a political character and have nothing to do with religion. We cannot, therefore, celebrate them. But celebrations which are part of religious practice must be observed. For instance, in the Ashram Imam Saheb used to give, at my instance and request, the call to the faithful and we used to pray. The call is an essential practice in Islam. It is believed to be superior to the Church bell of the Christians. I think I have now answered your question regarding public institutions. If I have left out any point, please ask again.

It is not easy to answer the question what should be done now regarding Hindu practices. It is very easy for me to describe what I myself do. And I am also quite clear in my mind about the correctness of what I do. But I am not so clear how far the Hindu community should go or which reforms to advocate even in the face of opposition from it. Probably Kishorelal remembers—as I do, if I am not imagining it—that he had once suggested the omission from our prayers of the verses referring to Ganapati, Saraswati and the Earth. I could not accept this. I know that the form of Saraswati described in the verse is purely imaginary. The Ganapati also is an imaginary figure and stands merely for “Aum”. But the popular beliefs about both take the descriptions literally; hence we have the images of Saraswati and Ganapati. If, therefore, we were to eliminate all these practices, Hinduism would be transformed into something quite different; it would, you might say, take the form of the Arya Samaj. There is much in the Arya Samaj that I love, but I just cannot accept Satyarthaprakash as scripture. Dayananda Saraswati was a great man and he believed in what he preached. He did, therefore, make an impact. Hinduism, it seems to me, is already assimilating all that is good in the Arya Samaj, and this is the distinctive feature of Hinduism. I do not wish to go, or take you, into still deeper waters just now. If I am destined to live up to 125 years or for many more years still and if my non-attachment becomes as deep as I wish it to become, my views will become clearer and firmer and I will also find a language that appeals to the heart. Till that time arrives, be content with this prosaic explanation that I have given. I have of course always expressed, and will continue to express, random views from time to time as occasion demands. And this will some day lead—if it is so destined—to perfect clearness. At present my attitude is, neti, neti.

You may derive what comfort you can from this. I am unhappy that I am not able to answer your questions as clearly as you have put them. I have stated my view regarding the Ganapati festival. I will add this:

1. Wherever there is a Ganapati temple, the arati, etc., should continue to be performed for the present. There is room for reform in the arati and the ceremonial. The arati as it is performed at present is crude. There is no music in it. It can easily be made musical and sweet to the ear. The ceremonial also can be made more solemn by employing a better priest.

2. There is no religion at all in the Dussehra celebration. Its only sanction is custom. I have always been opposed to it since my childhood. Even if we wish to equip the people with arms, the Dussehra celebration has no meaning. Instead of worship of arms, the people, including even children, should be taught the use of arms, as is done in the West.

1 “Not this, not this”.

3. Plying the charkha on the Charkha Jayanti Day amounts to ceremonial worship of it. To introduce into it a ritual is to bring the charkha into disrepute. If you ask me why, when they spin, I permit them to have a lamp with ghee during broad daylight, my answer will be that in a large measure it is due to my sense of tolerance, also to my weakness. I have always opposed the ceremonial worship of the Gita or the manner in which Gita Jayanti is celebrated at present. I have also forbidden the composing of a hymn in praise of the Gita to be recited on the Gita Jayanti Day.

4. I do not approve of any leader’s photograph being worshipped or of arati being performed in front of it, but I have not always opposed these things publicly though I did oppose them in my mind. Since such worship of human beings runs in the blood of Hindus, I have remained indifferent to them. In this matter I am the greatest culprit, as it is the worship of my image that has become most widespread. Since it cannot be prevented, do what I will, I derived a kind of false consolation when the worship of other leaders also started. This, of course, does not mitigate my guilt. It is very difficult to say where this thing will take us. There is some basis of truth in this practice, namely, that man himself being, in a sense, an image, he will always remain an image-worshipper. The forms of such worship will vary for different faiths, but in essence the thing remains image-worship.

5. You may be sure I am opposed to the practice of inviting Brahmins and breaking a coconut at a foundation-stone-laying. And yet I have tolerated this. But since the time I learnt to regard all of us as belonging to one class, namely, the Atishudras, all these rituals have taken a different form in my mind. The new form was first put to use on the occasion of the marriage of Tendulkar and Indu. It is a long time since then, but I have seen no defect in the practice. On the day itself the new form seemed very impressive indeed. Vanu is getting along very well. If the clinic continues in existence, she will complete one full year here. She will lose nothing. On the contrary, I believe she will gain something. I do feel sorry that I am not able to give her as much attention as I should like to but my preoccupations have become so serious even here and I have to husband my time so

---

1 Marriage according to the Ashram rites
2 Vanamala, addressee’s daughter
3 Nature Cure Clinic, Poona carefully that I have no leisure left for anything else.

Sardar will return tomorrow. Dinshaw is with him. He is returning today.

It is some days since Pyarelal’s fever subsided. The weakness too, is gradually going. My heart is there all the time and urges me to hurry back. But my sense of dharma keeps me here. I will know more after Sardar’s return.

How is Babla getting on? Is Mani with you or at the Ashram? Is she all right? Has Durgabehn recovered?

How will Kishorelal be able to stand the Sevagram winter? But where else can he go in Gomati’s present condition? Think over this. In any event you can keep the room warm with a brazier.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: S.N. 9138b

528. LETTER TO SURENDRÁ B. MASHRUWALA

November 2, 1945

CHI. SURENDRÁ.

I have your letter. I felt relieved reading it. Since you will be there till I come I shall be less worried about Gomatibehn. Sushilabehn expressed her readiness to go over for her sake but I did not think it necessary to relieve her from her work here till I had more information. I knew before I got your letter that medicines had been discontinued and I was happy. The final date for my arrival there is 21st.

Blessings from
BAPU

ASHRAM

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

---

1 Narayan Desai, son of Mahadev Desai
2 Addressee’s wife
3 Durga Desai, widow of Mahadev Desai
4 Kishorelal G. Mashruwala and his wife
5 ibid
6 Dr. Sushila Nayyar
529. LETTER TO RAMCHANDRA KILLAWALA

November 2, 1945

BHAI RAMCHANDRA,

I have your letter. Only those who knew the two men should engage in any agitation on their behalf. Then alone will it be seemly. Maulana Saheb and the Congress are doing their utmost for the release of all detenus. You should be satisfied with that.

If you send a brief but full statement of the facts about the two, I will not hesitate to do what I can. That either you yourself or someone who knows them should send the facts to the Press is certainly one way.

Blessings from

BAPU

RAMCHANDRA KILLAWALA
22 RAM MANDIR ROAD
VILE PARLE

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

530. LETTER TO KAILAS D. MASTER

November 2, 1945

CHI. KAILAS,

I have your letter. I must admit that I am disappointed in you. Prabhudas praised you sky-high. I literally believed him and strongly recommended to the secretary of the Ashram that you be admitted, but you did not prove worthy of that praise. You caused anxiety. It will be good if you have settled down even now. Prabhudas’s mother is almost an invalid, though she has her wits about her. His father is bed-ridden. If you had remained there as his daughter how much less I should have had to worry? As long as you do not cultivate true devotion to service, as long as you have not controlled your palate and have not learnt to treat all children as your own, I do not see how you can do justice to the kindergarten. It is more difficult to run a kindergarten than to run a school for grown-up children. Very few realize this. Kindergartens are the vogue these days. ‘What is there in teaching the children?’ There are many who nurture such ignorance. I hope you are not a victim of it. This letter is not to dissuade you from gaining some kindergarten experience but I feel it would be desirable if you served Kashibehn to supplement your experience.
Show this letter to Shantabehn. Do what you think right.

Think of the number of mistakes you have made in writing down a small sloka. Your Devanagari writing is not at all well formed. What did you expect to gain by citing a sloka like that? How nice it would have been if you had given the Gujarati meaning of the sloka provided you had understood it. Your Gujarati handwriting also invites comment. Even your own signature is not well formed. And you drag it right to the edge of the paper. The letters are so badly formed that I am returning the letter for you to see.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

531. LETTER TO ATULANAND CHAKRAVARTY

POONA,
November 2, 1945

BHAI ATULANAND,
I have your letter and also the book. I am reading it. I shall soon write to you again. Have you finished Call it Politics\(^1\)? You do follow Hindi, don’t you?

Blessings from
BAPU

532. LETTER TO SRIKRISHANDAS JAHU

November 2, 1945

BHAI JAHUJI,
I got your letter only yesterday. It could have arrived only yesterday. By the time this reaches you, you will have left for Bengal. Fix the meeting of the Charkha Sangh for the 27th or 28th.
About the letter from Sialkot I shall send an article. So I do not write separately.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

\(^1\) The title is given in English in the source.
533. LETTER TO RAMNARAYAN DUBE

November 2, 1945

BHAI RAMNARAYAN DUBE,

I have your letter. It is all right that you are sending your book but please give up the thought of dedicating it to me. If the book has power, that itself will be true dedication. I cannot say that I shall be able to read your book carefully. May be it will arouse my interest when I glance through it.

As for meeting me, you can think of it when I have settled down at Sevagram.

RAMNARAYAN DUBE
C/O PANDIT RAMNARAYAN MISHRA
KAL BHAIRON, BANARAS

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

534. LETTER TO JAISUKHLAL GANDHI

[Before November 3, 1945]

Mahuva is said to be a health resort. The harbour therefore should suit you.

I have an impression that there are facilities for education in Mahuva. At one time Dudhabhai was running a school for Harijans there and the attendance too was pretty good. Find out and tell me whether it still continues.

You have gone to a place where there is much scope for service. The people there are bigoted. Hence very few wear khadi. You may find an odd person here and there wearing it. It is as good as a virgin field. Besides, being an important part of the State, we can see its influence.

Do as much as you can and keep writing to me. I have an impression that Raichandbhai’s son also stays there. It is not that he has followed Raichandbhai’s profession. He used to write to me and

---

1 From the reference to Vallabhbhai Patel who returned from Bombay on November 3, 1945. his ideas are good. Do not go looking for him. It may be you will hear about him.

Sardar has gone to Bombay for five days. One misses him when he is away. He is so full of humour and so sociable.

Blessings from
BAPU

[From Gujarati]

_Ba Bapuni Shili Chhayaman_, p. 234

535. _THE CHARKHA SANGH AND POLITICS_

A khadi worker has sent the above letter\(^1\) to Jajuji, Secretary of the Charkha Sangh. He has forwarded it to me to discuss it in _Khadi Jagat_ and to give my opinion on it. The Charkha Sangh is not a small organization. Even today the workers or the servants—whatever you call them—of the Sangh are to be found all over India. Their number is about 3,000. I consider this a small number. Their number should increase considerably when khadi spreads in the country. Even if we have one worker for every village, the number of workers on the rolls of the Charkha Sangh should be 700,000. This requires a lot of money. But from this one should not conclude that it is impossible to have so many workers. I have never believed that. When the cause is good and there is a spirit of service among the workers the money is always found. I have founded and conducted institutions all my life. In my experience there has not been a single institution which was closed down or which could not make progress for want of money. On the contrary I have found that some institutions ceased functioning or could not make progress for want of workers. You should not ask how, if not on the strength of money, big factories function and recruitment to the Government offices is made. Those who do not understand fully what I have said above, raise such doubts. I never said that money could serve no purpose. If money served no purpose how could we have become its slaves? I would go to the extent of saying that without money we cannot go ahead. But what I want to say is that if we want to become slaves of money we should give up the idea of serving the people. And it is the lot of slaves to be suppressed. If however we consider money as our slave and use it as a means and that too for rendering service, then we are making good use of it. For the work of service, our first and indispensable need is workers and when we have such workers money will come chasing them. They will not have to go in search of money. That is why I say if we get seven lakh or even more workers we may take it as though we had the money in the safe. It may be said that we do not pay enough to tempt or attract workers. I admit it. But it is only the spirit that matters. Those who join such philanthropic institutions as the Charkha Sangh do so for the sake of service and not for salaries. They do take monthly salaries because like the rich the poor too have to feed themselves, but they do so only to keep themselves alive and fit for service. Such workers do not eat or drink or dress merely for pleasure.

\(^1\) Not reproduced here. The correspondent had suggested that workers of the Charkha Sangh might be permitted to take part in the election activities in their spare time.

If we assume that such are the workers of the Charkha Sangh then they do not have any time to take part in politics. The Charkha Sangh cannot function at all if the workers devote eight hours to office work and spend the rest of the time in pleasure or otherwise. Because they are the people who will make or mar the Sangh. Therefore they should devote their spare time to making themselves more competent for improving its activities, such as learning all the processes of khadi-making, studying its science, and doing well all that they do.

This does not mean that the workers of the Charkha Sangh have no interest in politics or other activities. They are and should be interested in such activities. However, they should keep that interest in check and give expression to it through their work in the Charkha Sangh. Then only can they understand true politics. A Charkha Sangh worker will remain a true voter and will vote for the candidate put up by the Congress but he will not bother to canvass for him. He will not deliver speeches supporting him. He will not devote his time to such work. Congress work is peoples’ work. The Congress belongs to the people. The Charkha Sangh has been created by the Congress and the Charkha Sangh also belongs to the people. Just as political work is Congress work the Sangh work is also Congress work. How can a man ride two horses at the same time? One who joins the Charkha Sangh should devote himself wholly to its activities and one who joins politics should devote his entire time to politics. In this way both supplement each other’s work. What I said above is at the back of the rule that the workers of Charkha Sangh should not take active part in politics.

POONA, November 3, 1945

[From Hindi]

Khadi Jagat, December, 1945

536. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

POONA,
November 3, 1945

CHI. MUNNALAL,

It is not right that you have not written to me at all recently. I was to reply to your other questions only after I had received your reply to my suggestion, and that is still so.

Kanchan is on fire. Who else but you can quench that fire? Even if you released her, she would not marry anybody else. And she is not one to satisfy her passion through illicit relations with somebody. And yet passion is burning her up. She does not know the value of brahmacharya. She has married to gratify her passion. You did not tell her about the condition of brahmacharya when marrying her. Is it not your dharma, now, to satisfy her? If you were completely free from passion, I would have had nothing to tell you. After giving Kanchan the gift of children you may observe brahmacharya, or you should calm her not with anger but with pure love. You should look after Kishorelal, Gomati, Chhaganlal and Borde, and so also should Kanchan. Write to me.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 8428. Also C.W. 5601. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

537. LETTER TO KANCHAN M. SHAH

November 3, 1945

CHI. KANCHAN,

I have your letter. I feel sorry for you, and equally sorry for Munnalal. I have written to him and told him in so many words that he should set up house with you and that, if the two of you cannot voluntarily observe self-control, you may have children. However, if he cannot bring himself to agree to this I cannot force him against his will. You should, therefore, remain calm. Show this to Munnalal. If he refuses to change his mind you should leave the matter to God and engross yourself in work. For the present I should like you, if your health permits, to look after Gomatibehn, as also the others who are ill. We shall discuss the question of your accompanying me when I come. You had wanted to accompany me to Madras. Now you suggest both Madras and Bengal. That will have to be thought over. We shall do so when I arrive there. Meanwhile you should remain calm, get well and serve as much as you can. You are a fine worker. Let service be your husband, your hobby, your all. But if that cannot be, it does not matter. In any case do not think one thing and speak another.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 8260. Also C.W. 6985. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

538. LETTER TO CHHAGANLAL GANDHI

November 3, 1945

CHI. CHHAGANLAL,

You too have fallen ill. What is to be done when even a warrior falls ill? Get well soon. Ask without the slightest hesitation for whatever services you need.

I hope Kashi¹ is well.

If you are not able to write, let Kashi write.

Blessings from
BAPU

From Gujarati: C.W. 9224. Courtesy: Chhaganlal Gandhi

¹ Wife of the addressee
539. TELEGRAM TO JANAKIDEVI BAJAJ

POONA,

November 4, 1945

JANAKIDEVI BAJAJ
BAJAJWADI
WARDHA

YOUR TWO WIRES ANNOUNCING BIRTH OF SON TO MADALASA. HOPE MOTHER BABY PROGRESSING WELL.

BAPU

Panchven Putrako Bapuke Ashirvad. p. 264

540. LETTER TO PRESTON GROVER

NATURE CURE CLINIC,
6 TODIWALA ROAD,
POONA,

November 4, 1945

DEAR GROVER,

The Press man in you speaks again. I entirely agree with you that my statement, whether it grips or not, has undoubtedly a world of meaning in it. You shall have it some time for yourself, even if not for the Press. I am quite clear in my mind that neither the public nor the Press are eagerly waiting for my speech or my action. Therefore, let me take my time, untrammelled by outside considerations.

Yours sincerely,

PRESTON GROVER, ESQ.
ASSOCIATED PRESS OF AMERICA
TIMES OF INDIA BLDG.
BOMBAY

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
541. LETTER TO MADALASA

POONA,
November 4, 1945

CHI. MADALASA,

You are now the mother of two sons. Janakibehn is so delighted that she sent me two telegrams. Were it not for her wire, I would not have known. I sent a wire in reply, which she must have received.

I got your letter and was pleased to read it. When I return from the tour, you may take me to your place.

It is very good indeed that your mother-in-law is with you. I hope both of you are well.

Blessings to you all from
BAPU

[From Gujarati]
Panchven Putrako Bapuke Ashirvad, p. 326

542. LETTER TO SUSHILA GANDHI

POONA,
November 4, 1945

CHI. SUSHILA,

I wonder whether you know it, but Kishorelal and Gomati-behn are getting weaker and weaker. The cold of Sevagram does not suit them. They shrink from asking for anybody’s services. Gomatibehn is actually ill. She is suffering from some kind of typhoid. The constant fever has now come down a little. We trust and hope that it will come down to normal. But it will take some time for her to leave the sick-bed, and it will be quite a while before she is able to look after herself. She would not accept the services of anyone who may offer them, and if they can help it, neither of them would accept anybody’s services. I would like it if someone were to stay with them now and look after them. There is no question as to whether they will like it, for I have not heard of their having ever complained to anyone about not getting any service. But wouldn’t my heart complain? If, therefore, you can get away from there and go to Sevagram, and if your health permits you to look after them, I think it would be the best

1Vide “Telegram to Jankidevi Bajaj”, 4-11-1945
arrangement. In that case you will also have to cancel your plan of accompanying me to Calcutta. I believe it will be February by the time I finish touring and return to the Ashram. By that time, winter will be over and we may hope that both of them will have got well. I hope to reach Sevagram on the 21st. I should like both of you to go to Sevagram before then. I think it necessary for Manilal to accompany me on my tour, not to look after me but to gain experience which might help him in his work and to get to know people. He, therefore, will not be there all the time. Arun will certainly accompany me to Sevagram. One cannot say what progress he will make in studies, but I think he is showing himself to be a good servant. He has taken to Kanu and, therefore, he is bound to learn to serve. Hence he also will help. Besides, if both of you agree of your own accord, not for my sake, to let Arun stay and grow up in the Ashram, as he now says he would like to do, he will study and also acquire practical wisdom. Moreover, he has now become friends with Aminbhai, who is a learned man, and stays in the Ashram. Probably you do not know him. Manilal is certain to know him. He is an artist like you, but a much better one. Arun has already started learning from him. And Aminbhai says that if he were given two years' time Arun would learn much more here than he would by joining even the best of schools. This may perhaps be too optimistic a view. But what difference does it make to us? It is a fact that his company is beneficial. My purpose in writing all this about Arun is to tell you that he has the spirit of service in him and that, since he will be with you in the Ashram, you will not get bored there. Kishorelal and Gomati-behn will thus have the benefit of your service without any hardship to you. If they feel that you are likely to suffer in any way by staying there to look after them, they are not the type who will put up with it. Let me add too that Kashi also is tired out. She cannot work much now. And Chhaganlal is on sickbed. He has continuous fever. If it turns out to be as prolonged as Gomatibehn’s, he also will require to be looked after. I believe, therefore, that it will be good if you are in the Ashram for his sake at any rate. I have thus put before you what I believe to be your duty. Both of you may think over this and do what you consider right. If your presence there is not essential, both of you should at once leave for the Ashram. You may write to me from there and tell me what you intend to do. Ila’ will be with you, of course. But my impression about

1 Addressee’s youngest daughter her is that she is not likely to be burden on anybody. And, moreover, she cannot stay without you.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 4965

543. LETTER TO ANASUYA SARABHAI

POONA,
November 4, 1945

CHI. ANASUYABEHN,

I have your letter. Is there any Divali? Who will celebrate it? Are you all right? How is Shankerlal1? I am well. There is so far no visible improvement in Sardar’s health.

Blessings from
BAPU

From the Gujarati original: G.N. 11564

544. LETTER TO GAJANAN NAIK

POONA,
November 4, 1945

CHI. GAJANAN,

I have your letter. I am glad to read it. You will be able to do real service only if you assimilate the lesson I imparted to you.

Blessings from
BAPU

GAJANAN NAIK
AKHIL BHARATIYA GRAMODYOG SANGH
MAGANWADI, WARDHA

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Shankerlal Banker
545. LETTER TO JANAKIDAEVI BAJAJ

POONA,
November 4, 1945

CHI. JANAKI MAIYA,

Your joy must have added a cubit to your stature. You will have had my telegram1. Now you must give up all attachments and look after Jamnalal’s work of cow-protection. You must become an expert in that.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 5852

546. LETTER TO G. D. BIRLA

POONA,
November 4, 1945

CHI. GHANSHYAMDAS,

Dinshaw has had a talk with your brothers. As a result he is not keen any more about going to Nasik.2 So you may proceed on the assumption that the Nasik idea has been given up. About the building we may continue along the present lines. If I find that Dinshaw still wishes to go to Nasik, I shall have a talk with him. We shall see if any building or land is available then.

We shall all reach Bombay on the 19th. I shall leave Bombay for Wardha on the 20th.

Blessings from
BAPU

From the Hindi original: C.W. 8074. Courtesy: G. D. Birla

547. LETTER TO MANRANJAN CHOWDHARY

November 4, 1945

CHI. MANRANJAN CHOWDHARY,

I have your telegram. I am not taking any interest in the elections.3 As I know very little about the matter, I have not sent a

1 Vide “Telegram to Jankidevi Bajaj”, 4-11-1945
2 Vide also “Statement to the Press”, 21-11-1945.
3 Elections to the Provincial Assemblies were scheduled to be held in the winter of 1945-46 and to the Central Assembly before the new budget.
telegram. But why are you standing against a Congress candidate? In a way you also belong to the Congress. Congress is not an enemy of the Hindus. It is a different thing if the Congress candidate is bad. In that case I should like you to tell me. From the newspapers I find that the Hindu Mahasabha has made it their dharma to oppose Congress candidates everywhere. If that is so, this action of yours too will be dharma and not the opposite of it. Sir Radhakrishnan in his speech at Karachi has given an account of what the members of the Hindu Mahasabha are doing in Sind. Everyone, and especially you, should see it. If all that he has said and all that I have been hearing is true, it will save neither the Hindu dharma nor India. For persons like you it is very necessary to think over all this. I showed your telegram to Sardar also. He returned from Bombay last night. He was also pained to see the telegram.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI MANRANJAN CHOWDHARY
143/3 NO. UPPER CIRCULAR ROAD
CALCUTTA

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

548. LETTER TO SIR EVAN M. JENKINS

NATURE CURE CLINIC,
6 TODIWALA ROAD, POONA,
November 5, 1945

DEAR SIR EVAN,

I thank you for your letter of 1st instant informing me of the action taken on my letter of 29th ultimo on khadi.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

Gandhiji’s Correspondence with the Government, 1944-47, p. 70

1 It read: “I have shown His Excellency your letter of 29th October about the exemption of khadi shops from the Provincial controls against hoarding and profiteering. The letter is being passed on to the Industries and Civil Supplies Department, who will inform the Provincial Authorities of your views.”
549. LETTER TO SHIVABHAI G. PATEL

POONA,
November 5, 1945

CHI. SHIVABHAI,

I have your postcard. My congratulations to the spinners. If you have not sent the figures of yarn to Narandas, at Rajkot, please do so. Instead of incurring expense in sending the money, use it there itself for Harijan work.

Blessings to all.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: S.N. 9521. Also C.W. 440. Courtesy: Shivabhai G. Patel

550. LETTER TO SIR EVAN M. JENKINS

NATURE CURE CLINIC,
6 TODIWALA ROAD, POONA,
November 6, 1945

DEAR SIR EVAN,

A copy of the petition sent to His Excellency on behalf of Shri Basuda Singh of Fyzabad District has been sent to me for seeking Government sympathy. From the petition, I gather that it is a case of political hue, belonging to the 1942 disturbances period. It easily falls under the principle that guided His Excellency’s decision in the Ashti-Chimur cases. May I therefore ask for the usual commutation of the death sentence?

May I also ask for an early consideration of the case by reason of the fact that the period for execution has been fixed for 19th instant?

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

Gandhiji’s Correspondence with the Government, 1944-47, p. 56

1 Thirty persons were sentenced to death for violence during the Quit India Movement at Chimur and Ashti in C. P. Later on the sentences were commuted to life imprisonment. Vide also “Statement to the Press”, 31-3-1945

2 The sentence was commuted to life imprisonment: vide “Letter to Sir Evan M. Jenkins, 25-11-1945."
551. LETTER TO SHARDA G. CHOKHAWALA

POONA,
November 6, 1945

CHI. BABUDI,

I have your letter. Why do you lose heart? I will reach Sevagram on the 21st. If you come then it will be fine. I shall make whatever arrangements I find necessary. Do not run away even if it gets too cold. As for illness, it is the lot of the human body. We have to learn to bear it cheerfully. That itself brings half the relief. You are a sensible and wise woman. You must not yield to despair.

I hope Anand\(^1\) is in good health.
And so also Shakaribehn\(^2\).

Blessings to you both from

BAPU

From the Gujarati original: C.W. 10062. Courtesy: Sharda G. Chokhawala

552. LETTER TO CHAMPA R. MEHTA

POONA,
November 6, 1945

CHI. CHAMPA,

Your arrival there was unexpected. But never mind. It will be enough if Ratilal\(^3\) does not follow you. Become one with the Ashram people as sugar does with milk. It is impossible to live in the Ashram at present in any other way. Be satisfied with whatever comforts are available. Live carefully so that you or the children may not fall ill. I hope to return there on the 21st.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 1095. Courtesy: Champa R. Mehta

\(^1\) Addressee’s son
\(^2\) Addressee’s mother
\(^3\) Addressee’s husband
553. LETTER TO TARA MODAK

November 6, 1945

DEAR SISTER,

I have your letter. Keep on sending Shikshan Patrika. If you have anything to ask, by all means do so.

Blessings from

BAPU

TARABEHN MODAK
996 HINDU COLONY
DADAR, BOMBAY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

554. LETTER TO LILAVATI PARIKH

November 6, 1945

CHI. LILAVATI,

I have your letter. You must tell your father everything and then take his advice. If you do not have that much courage, I am afraid you will not be able to do anything.

Blessings from

BAPU

LILAVATI PARIKH
[C/O] OCHCHHAVLAL NATHABHAI SHETH
KALYAN MOTT'S CHAWL
ROOM NO. 30/31
BOMBAY 4

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

555. LETTER TO VASUMATI D. PANDIT

November 6, 1945

CHI. VASUMATI,

I have your letter of October 31. I see from it that you have not received my previous letter. There is nothing wrong with my health. I am quite well.

I shall leave here for Bombay on the 19th, reaching Sevagram on the 21st. I shall leave for Calcutta on December 30 and be there for a month and three weeks. Then maybe 15 days in Madras. Then again back to Sevagram for 5 or 7 days and thence perhaps to the Frontier Province. Only on returning from there can I settle down in Sevagram. This means that right now my stay in Sevagram cannot be permanent. If therefore you want to spend a little time in the Ashram you can do so only in my absence. But do as you feel inclined.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

556. LETTER TO AMRITLAL V. THAKKAR

November 6, 1945

BAPA,

I have your letter as also the cheque for Lila Jog. I shall of course forward your letter to Mridulabehn. Still it is certainly right to send the cheque.¹

What you say about Sushila Pai is right. It was never my intention to make one of the two permanent. But as long as Sucheta stays there, whether as a candidate or for examinations, she will be considered a candidate for the post of organizing secretary. Won’t she? So the same should hold good in the case of Sushila Pai also. She also wanted it that way. But I saw that Sucheta did not like it. So if Sushila Pai goes there it will be just to observe the work and to see if she can adjust herself in the office. Sucheta is going to let me know her decision only after seeing you.

BAPU

THAKKAR

BAPA

BAJAJ

WARDHA

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

557. LETTER TO DINSHAW K. MEHTA

POONA,

November 6, 1945

CHI. DINSHAW,

I could not write to you yesterday but I kept mulling over things. You can have anything you like under the Trust, but I would say that we cannot start anything at Singhgadh right now. It is another matter if I think of something to start there. The Bombay centre will have to be closed down. I would advise you to keep it for your own diversion and as a source of income. I cannot afford to have it under the Trust. I have still not received the figures about your personal expenses. If you are provided board and lodging and Rs. 500/- per month from here, in my view, you should not think of making extra money from nature cure. But here you must ask your own conscience. If this is a bitter pill, then you must live in Bombay and carry on your practice. If you put it in the Trust, it may be closed down soon after. You do not have to worry at all about the expense here. I shall manage. I am anticipating that there will not be a single rich patient left here by the end of December. The facilities here will solely be for those whom I send.

¹ Vide "Letter to Mridula Sarabhai", 7-1-1945

The person I send to manage things here will stay here. Meat will be cooked in the kitchen for only Maji and any members of your family who may be visiting but not for any patient. My dharma tells me that non-vegetarian food, such as mutton, liver, etc., have no place in nature cure. I do not suggest that those things have not benefited or cannot benefit anyone. All I say is that in my view they cannot be included in nature cure. The entire portion I am occupying at present will be reserved for you and Gulbai and it should not be necessary at any time to vacate it even for me. Whenever I come, I can live anywhere on the upper floor. It will not be difficult for me even to stay in the room which Saralabehn is at present occupying. If it rains I can settle in the bathroom. But it is not the least bit fair for me to occupy the portion especially built for Gulbai.

A ‘stock list’ should be prepared for the Trust. Perhaps it cannot be done till Bhimnag comes, though of course I have with me so many people here that I can easily get the stock list and such other things prepared. But your method of getting work done is altogether different. I do not like it. That way there are many things that I do not like, but I put up with them. If you take up the responsibility, most of the things here can be settled while I am here. I consider it wrong that you do not get patients to work. Vanamala is capable of doing a lot of work. All the patients would not be bed-ridden. From now on, only the poor must be admitted. If there is any rich patient, he will be brought only by me and he will serve some purpose. I may even take money from him and he will stay at my pleasure. It irks me that you have not trained even Gulbai properly. No one here seems to be getting any training. I do not even see the three-year training being given here which you thought was necessary. That is not correct. But in this matter, I have got to be content with whatever you can easily provide. If you think that thereby the whole thing would completely change and if it is not proper for me to interfere to such an extent, you can remove me. If I were to involve myself in the matter, I would let things continue as they are. I receive letters from people from all over. They are willing to help in this or even join in. Some of them I must admit are very good. But till such time as I see you as a votary of nature cure and know who will be the right people to work with you, I would not like to admit any nature cure expert. If I run this workshop
I would like to pass on its benefits to the thousands of people outside.
For that, I would naturally need to have a large number of workers.
Only when that happens, can we at last have something like a university.

Give some thought to this. I have not kept a copy of this letter.
Return it to me after reading. I shall have it copied and then give it back to you. I have written down my thoughts as they came while I was still in bed in the morning.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

558. LETTER TO JOSH

November 6, 1945

Bhai Josh,

I have your letter. I knew that your josh\(^1\) would come down.
Now I see that you wish to have a heart-to-heart talk with me. Please come on the 13th. I will keep myself free at 3 in the afternoon.

Yours,
M. K. Gandhi

JOSH SAHEB
TAHIR PLACE
SHANKER SETH ROAD, POONA

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

\(^1\) Anger
559. LETTER TO BRIJKRISHNA CHANDIWALA

POONA,
November 6, 1945

CHI. BRIJKRISHNA,

I have your postcard. Sushilabehn has explained my view in her long letter. You must have received it by now. A short note has been written to Khurshedbehn today. See that too. I shall be in Bombay on the 19th and 20th, in Sevagram on the 21st and on the 1st December in Calcutta.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 2488

560. LETTER TO M. S. KELKAR

November 6, 1945

BHAI KELKAR,

I have your letter. To say nothing of deciding to open a nature-cure clinic, I have not even considered it. I have been wishing to open one for years but it has merely been a wish. Your views are such that you cannot work in any institution. It is a different thing that a man like me may get work from you. There should be a separate institution for you. But I know that it is never going to come. So let things go on as they are and let us all do what work of service we can. I see no other way.

Blessings from

M. K. GANDHI

M. S. KELKAR
C/O G. B. SAHASRABUDDHE
WEAVING MASTER, MOHATA MILLS
AKOLA

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
561. LETTER TO SAILEN BOSE

POONA,
November 6, 1945

CHI. SAILEN,
I have your letter. God is merciful. Blessings to Bela.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI S. C. BOSE
59 FORBES STREET
FORT, BOMBAY

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

562. LETTER TO NORALMAL PHULOMAL

November 6, 1945

BHAJ NORALMAL,
I have your letter. I was distressed to hear about your health.
May God keep you. Get well soon. Write to me either in Urdu or Devanagari. Sindhi and Urdu scripts are almost the same. Only the languages are a little different. Learn Hindustani after you get well. I have the Rs. 20 sent by you.

Blessings from
M. K. GANDHI

SHRI NORALMAL PHULOMAL
SUB-DIVISIONAL CLERK, P. W. D.
NARA SICHAL, SUKKUR
SINDH

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

563. LETTER TO M. R. BONDRE

November 6, 1945

BHAJ BONDRE,
Come whenever you wish before the 11th. I will spare a few minutes for you at 5·30 p.m. when you come. I hope Nalini is all right.

Blessings from

M. K. GANDHI

M. R. BONDRE, B.A., B.T.
11-C HARI NIVAS, SHIVAJI PARK
LADY JAMSHEDJI ROAD
BOMBAY 28

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

564. LETTER TO VICHITRA NARAYAN SHARMA

November 6, 1945

CHI. VICHITRA,

I have your letter. It is good you were saved from the calamity this time.

I have talked fully with Saralabehn. I still talk to her whenever I have time and I shall continue doing so. I hope to reach Sevagram on the 21st.

Blessings from

BAPU

VICHITRA NARAYAN
GANDHI ASHRAM
MEERUT
UNITED PROVINCES

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

565. LETTER TO R. R. DIWAKAR

November 6, 1945

BHAI DIWAKAR,

You did come but you did not ask for time to see me. I had thought you would come and have a talk with me. That is why I did not write anything on what you had sent.

What you say about income tax will not work. The rest seems to be all right. I am sending a copy of what I have drafted.¹ It will give you some idea of what I think. If you wish to say something about it, do so. I shall leave here on the 19th morning.

¹ This is not traceable.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

566. LETTER TO SIR EVAN M. JENKINS

NATURE CURE CLINIC,
6 TODIWALA ROAD, POONA,
November 7, 1945

DEAR SIR EVAN,

I have to thank you for your letter of 1st instant regarding Shri Sheel Bhadra Yajee.¹ I anxiously await the result of further examination ordered by His Excellency of certain points arising out of the statement.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

Gandhiji’s Correspondence with the Government, 1944-47, p. 60

567. LETTER TO SIR EVAN M. JENKINS

NATURE CURE CLINIC,
6 TODIWALA ROAD, POONA,
November 7, 1945

DEAR SIR EVAN,

I have to thank you for your letter of 1st instant regarding the mercy petition of Shri Haridas Mitra and three others.² Will you please convey my thanks to His Excellency for the commutation of the death sentences?

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

Gandhiji’s Correspondence with the Government, 1944-47, p. 51

¹ Sheel Bhadra Yajee had complained that he and some others had been ill-treated while in detention; vide, “Letter to E. M. Jenkins”, 10-10-1945. Jenkins on behalf of the Viceroy denied the allegation but promised further examination.

² Mitra and Jyotish Chandra Bose were sentenced to death under the Enemy Agents Ordinance for aiding Indian spies landed by a Japanese submarine. One of the spies committed suicide. The other two were tried and sentenced to death along with their helpers. All the four of them had petitioned the Viceroy for mercy who commuted all the four death sentences to transportation for life.
568. LETTER TO PRAVIN GANDHI

November 7, 1945

CHI. PRAVIN,

It is good that you wrote and introduced yourself. I do remember you but if you had not written I would not have remembered the details.

I am glad that you wish to be forgiven for writing the letter. That shows also that you should have procured a postcard beforehand. You have messed up your signature. Correct it.

Show this letter to Tara1, Mohan2, Ramu3, Gopalkrishna4 and others and give them my blessings.

Blessings from
BAPU

PRAVIN
[C/O] DEVDAS GANDHI
NEW DELHI

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

569. LETTER TO MRIDULA SARABHAI

November 7, 1945

CHI. MRIDULA,

I am enclosing a cheque for Rs. 375—Lila Jog’s three months’ salary. I am also enclosing the letter Bapa has sent along with the cheque. This is just for your information. Deliver the cheque to Lila Jog and send me a receipt. Your work is then over. The purpose of sending you a copy of Bapa’s letter is that you may know that Bapa is firm in his views. My reading is that there is some mutual misunderstanding. It is not that anyone is deliberately lying. What it means is that there is some purpose in what in English is called “red-tape”; that is, to get everything in writing so that there can be no scope for saying something different. Red tape has and does not have a place among family members. It means that none of them are bound to one another and that everything is going on smoothly.

1 Daughter of Devdas Gandhi
2 Sons of Devdas Gandhi
3 ibid
4 ibid
without friction. Writing down everything begins as soon as friction begins.

Our correspondence in Gujarati must have been published. At the end I inadvertently wrote that you were not resigning as a trustee [of the Kasturba Trust]. I have deleted it in the English translation. It was there in the copy sent to you. Lest any reader should misunderstand, I had written out the sentence at the beginning. But having forgotten about it, finally, I made the thing clear.

_Blessings from_
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

570. LETTER TO KISHORELAL G. MASHRUWALA

_November 7, 1945_

CHI. KISHORELAL,

I understand about Kailas. I do not have your magnanimity. From where shall I get it? Or you may say there is a difference between yours and mine. Whichever way we look at it the result is the same. Let things take their own course. If Kailas is really so timid, then I feel she should stay with her parents. Let her learn what she can while serving them. This is just my opinion. Of course I shall be happy if she studies at the Talimi Sangh and becomes proficient. I would not like her to serve at the cost of her education. I on my part believe that pure service is in itself education. This is the basic idea behind Nayee Talim.²

I hope Gomati is recovering.

_Blessings from_
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

---

¹ Gandhiji’s letter to the addressee dated October 15, 1945, was published in _The Hindu_ and _The Bombay Chronicle_ dated November 8, 1945, along with the addressee’s letter of resignation.

² Vide also “Letter to Kailas D. Master”, 2-11-1945
571. LETTER TO K. RAMARAO

November 7, 1945

BHAI RAMARAO.

Even if Panditji has suggested it, why should you ask for a message? Even after having been so close to me, don’t you know that asking for messages really brings harm? I know it is difficult to understand this, but it should not be difficult for a person like you. Do men and institutions advance because of praise by others or because of their own qualities and strength and by adding to these day by day? Will you not admit that those who depend on others’ praise progressively become enfeebled?

The sacrifice made by the Herald is genuine, but does sacrifice need anybody’s praise? And what sacrifice can be made by one who expects praise?

I hope you will be able to follow my rashtrabhasha. At least your daughter will be able to explain.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

572. LETTER TO NARENDRA DEV

November 7, 1945

BHAI NARENDRA DEV.

I have your letter. There are occasions when one has to write about those with whom one is very close. The rule to follow is that people closely associated should not eulogize each other. I can write much in support of this but what shall I write to a person like you? Better to spare me from all such things. I am sorry I have not even seen the daily called Samsar. Even if it comes here, it is not shown to me because so many editors are kind enough to send me their dailies. I can say that these days I do not read newspapers at all. Clippings from newspapers believed to be useful to me are placed before me. If I send a message to one, why not to the others? Others also do write and ask for messages.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 For The National Herald
573. LETTER TO VAMANRAO JOSHI

November 7, 1945

BHAI VAMANRAO,

    I have your beautiful letter. It is interesting too.
    I write the truth as I personally see it. Absolute truth alone is God. It is beyond reach. At the most we can say it is  neti, neti' . The truth that we see is relative, many-sided, plural and is the whole truth for a given time. There is no scope for vanity in it and the only way of reaching it is through ahimsa. Pure and absolute truth should be our ideal. We can reach the ideal only by constantly meditating on it, and reaching it is attaining  moksha. For the last sixty years I have been experiencing what I have said above. I am still experiencing it.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

574. LETTER TO HOSHIARI

November 7, 1945

CHI. HOSHIARI,

    Nowadays you are so calm and so absorbed in various activities that there should be no need for a letter from me. Hence I have not worried.

    Why do you not make Gajaraj' write for you? It is good that Uncle' will be coming in a few days. If God wills it, we shall all reach there on the 21st.

    It is good indeed that you went and saw Vinobaji.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Not this, not this
2 Addressee’s son
3 Balvantsinha
575. LETTER TO KHURSHED NAOROJI

POONA,
November 8, 1945

DEAR SISTER,

The same post that brought your letter brings a card from him saying I should do nothing till he says I should. In any case I must not be involved in an appeal for memorial subscriptions. Let Satyavati live in us by each one of us weaving in our lives the virtue we prize most. Let the rich pay money for some such work as appealed to S. and appeals to them.

I am not shifting to Poona. It was a canard. To leave Sevagram would be desertion of which I must not be guilty.

Jagannath must not take up any Government job. What he should do I cannot say.

I am asking Pyarelal to let you have the list you want.

So you have at last got the work that attracts you and the atmosphere you can like.

Love.

BAPU

SMT. KHURSHEDBEHN NAOROJI
82 DARYAGANJ
DELHI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

576. LETTER TO BACHU

November 8, 1945

CHI. BACHU,

Your handwriting is particularly bad. It is not worthy of you. In my view each character of the alphabet is a drawing, and no drawing is made by scrawling. Whether it is of a mere learner or that of a great painter the broad outline must look the same to the eye. The drawings of a parrot made by a learner and an expert artist will look alike in their general form, but the quality of art in each will reveal who is the learner and who the expert. Similarly, the shape of “च” drawn by a learner and that of one drawn by an expert artist must appear alike. The difference would be seen only in the quality of art in each. But in the drawings of your letters there is no resemblance at all. I would blame your teacher more than you for this. If you have understood what I have said above and still continue to draw shapeless lines instead of fine letters, I will blame you. Your body must have now become as strong as an athlete’s.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 5904

577. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

POONA,
November 8, 1945

CHI. MUNNALAL,

I have your letter. It is difficult to reply to it. But one thing is clear, namely, that you should tell Kanchan in plain words that you do not look upon her as your wife and that she also should not look upon you as her husband. You should accept no service from her. Indeed, you two should not live in the same place. I am prepared to arrange for your stay in different places. This would be a painful duty. But your letter makes it incumbent upon me to take such a step.

As for serving people, you can only tend those of the sick who require tending.

Since I hope that we shall now be meeting on the 21st, I do not write more.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 8427. Also C.W. 5602. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah
578. LETTER TO MADHAVDAS G. KAPADIA

POONA,
November 8, 1945

CHI. MADHAVDAS¹,

I have your long letter. I cannot say I have read the whole of it, but Chi. Kanu has told me in substance all that I should know. If indeed you have settled down as you say you have, I am happy and Ba’s soul will rejoice wherever it is. I see nothing but her holy merit in all this love which Kunvarjibhai and others shower on you. They have become closer to you than your relations by blood. It would, therefore, be excellent if you so lived as to be of help to one another, and I would believe that you had had a new birth.

I will write to Kunvarji and Manilal. Please do not feel bad on account of Manilal and other relations. All of them would be ready to do their utmost to look after you. If Manilal feels any hesitation in sending you your keys, please believe me to be the cause behind his hesitation. I do not possess a pie which I can call my own, and I do not feel that I have the right to spend any money on your account. I hold that the brothers should reimburse me whatever expense I have incurred on you. Manilal is a poor man. I should be a sinner if I let him earn more from Phoenix than would enable him to live decently. He, therefore, cannot give you or spend on you much from his earnings. He probably does not know how close a bond has come to be formed between Kunvarjibhai and you. Be that as it may, I am writing to him about the keys.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 2725

579. LETTER TO KUNVARJI V. MEHTA

POONA,
November 8, 1945

CHI. KUNVARJI,

Chi. Kanu has given me a complete summary of your letter. I see your generosity and Ba’s holy merit in the great care you are taking of Uncle and in the fact that you are treating him as a respected elder. If Uncle recovers fully, all the credit will go to you, though personally I would give part of it to Bhai Krishnavarma. He has, so far, not asked me even for the expense he has incurred on Uncle and has nursed him as well as he could for the sake of Ba. Had he not come forward to help, I would have been at a loss to know where to put Uncle.

¹ Brother of Kasturba Gandhi

Your idea of helping Uncle run a small store in your neighbourhood is no doubt good, but please do not put it into effect immediately. After his establishment has been wound up, as you have suggested, and he has completely forgotten about it and become perfectly composed, I see no harm in your letting him start a store in partnership with any member of your family. Let not greed make him or anyone of you go in for speculation.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 2723

580. LETTER TO MANILAL GANDHI

POONA,
November 8, 1945

CHI. MANILAL,

I got your letter and postcard. Arun has taken away your letter and has not returned it. He is always in high spirits these days. He soon makes friends with everybody who comes here. So I do not now worry about him. Though he makes no effort, he does learn a little. There is, therefore, no need for any of you to worry about him just now.

Please go to Bombay for the books. Maybe you have already gone there. If you wish, you may certainly pay a flying visit here before returning. But do not come here for my sake at all, for all my needs are being properly looked after. So far as I can judge, you need not come even for the sake of Arun. If, therefore, you come it must be only for the pleasure of the trip. We will leave for Bombay on the morning of the 19th. I should advise you to wait for me in Bombay or, as I have already written, at Sevagram. It is the duty of you two to serve Kishorelalbhai, Gomatibehn, Chhaganlalbhai and Kashibehn as much as you can.
Tell Ila I have no reason to remember her. She does not keep a single promise. She had said she would not leave me, but she went away. And she does not make haste to learn to write so that she can at least write to me. I hope she will now lose no time to learn to write letters to me in a beautiful hand.

I think that it would now be better to send Uncle’s keys\(^1\) to Kunvarji Mehta, at Adarsh Dugdhalaya, Malad. He has asked for them. He has written a long letter. He wishes to sell off his things. He seems to be well composed in mind at present.

I forgot to ask you to send Uncle’s keys to Kunvarjibhai. Kanu says I have already written about it above. I have not read it over.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 4966

581. LETTER TO LILAVATI ASAR

POONA,

November 8, 1945

CHI. LILAVATI,

I have your postcard. It is certainly a pity that though you went there early you did not gain the benefit you expected from going early. But one must not hope for any reward for acting upon one’s resolutions. If one cherished such a desire, one would have to go on changing one’s decisions. A man without firm resolution would be unsteady like a pitcher without a support. Actually the word is दिख्ला and not दिख्ला.

I do have a slightly high blood-pressure, but it is under control.

I hope your study is progressing. Do not forget to do the asanas and other things I suggested for exercise.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 10207. Courtesy: Lilavati Asar

\(^1\) Vide “Letter to Madhavdas G. Kapadia”, 8-11-1945

\(^2\) Dissection
582. LETTER TO KANAM AND NIRMALA GANDHI

November 8, 1945

CHI. KANAM,

I have your postcard. You have not yet improved your handwriting as much as one would wish. It is very good that you spent a part of your holidays with Vinobaji. And you took Sanskrit instruction from him which no doubt was also religious.

I hope Usha is all right. Why do you use Arabic numerals while writing in Devanagari?

CHI. NIMU,

Today I have Sumi’s letter. She writes to say that a sum of Rs. 125 was stolen from her. This is a case of feeble cattle having too many ticks. The lesson we have to learn is that children should be given as little money as possible. You could have written to Devdas to give her that amount or could have sent it through money order.

Blessings from

BAPU

KANAM RAMDAS GANDHI
KHALASILINES
NAGPUR

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

583. LETTER TO K. M. MUNshi

November 8, 1945

Bhai Munshi,

In the letter I wrote to you I am afraid I was not able to express myself fully. In the meantime Ramnarayan has sent me the following, which is worth considering. I agree with what he has to say. I am a widely travelled person and I find an echo of my own experience in the paragraph that follows. If you do not find anything in it you may discuss it.

1 Addressee’s younger sister
2 Sumitra, addressee’s daughter
3 Vide “Letter to K. M. Munshi”, 2-11-1945
4 Ramnarayan Chaudhary
5 What follows is in Hindi
Tell Bapu that I have always held the view, which has become all the clearer to me while translating some books, that if we wish to make Hindustani the language of the common people, its vocabulary should mostly consist, except for words which have religious associations, of Arabic and Persian words or their derivatives instead of Sanskrit. The seven or eight hundred years of Hindu-Muslim contact has made Urdu a more common language than Hindi. This must be the view of everyone who is not biased and is honest and straightforward. The good of the country lies in our acknowledging this truth.

RAMNARAYAN

Blessings from

BAPU

KANAIYALAL MUNSHI

26 RIDGE ROAD

BOMBAY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

584. LETTER TO KASHI GANDHI

POONA,

November 8, 1945

CHI. KASHI,

I was glad to read your few words. I keep thinking of you all and Kishorelalbhai and Gomatibehn. The latest news is that what Chhaganlal is suffering from is malaria; so I expect the fever will have come down and he will have regained his strength.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

585. LETTER TO RAMANLAL SHAH

POONA,

November 8, 1945

CHI. RAMANLAL,

I am glad to have the few lines you wrote to me. You are full of the spirit of service. Devote that to the service of Kishorelalbhai and Gomatibehn. If you remain engrossed in service, you will be saved from the thoughts that assail you. And your service will spread like scent.

Blessings from
BAPU

From the Gujarati original: Ramanlal Shah Papers. Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library

586. LETTER TO RAMPRASAD

November 8, 1945

CHI. RAMPRASAD,

I have already written to Rameshwardasji about the bicycle. I shall get the reply in a day or two. You did well in sending the newspaper cutting.

Why is digging being done around where you are building the house? The Government’s method of digging for gravel on both sides while making roads is wrong. I have no doubt about it. In my travels in South Africa and England and other parts of Europe I have seen roads but no-where have I seen pits where rain water can collect and breed mosquitoes.

I hope you, Kanta and the baby are keeping well.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

587. LETTER TO RAMNARAYAN CHAUDHARY

November 8, 1945

CHI. RAMNARAYAN,

I have your postcard. I liked it. Keep on sending your views even if unsolicited. In the course of my tours I found confirmation of what you wrote1.

Blessings from
BAPU

[From Hindi]

_Bapu—Maine Kya Dekha, Kya Samaja?,_ p. 164

1 About the demoralizing effect of war on the people
588. LETTER TO KUSUM

November 8, 1945

CHI. KUSUM,

Kusum is written in quotes: that means it is not your real name. Why are you so distressed over your widowhood? A true widow does not believe that because the body of her husband has perished, the soul has also perished. A woman is married not to a human frame but to the soul which resides in it. That is precisely the reason why widow remarriage is taboo. That is why your lamenting, thinking of committing suicide and so on are contrary to dharma and justice. Your duty is to serve, giving the first place to spinning. Learn the processes preceding and following spinning. Also study the science of the charkha so that you can understand properly the significance of spinning. You have not stated your age and your education.

Blessings from
BAPU

KUSUMBEHN
C/O SHRI RAJENDRA KUMAR AGRAWAL
PANNALAL ROAD
ALLAHABAD

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

589. LETTER TO K. N. KATJU

November 8, 1945

BHAI KATJU,

I have your letter. I liked it very much. But I had written to the Viceroy as soon as I got your telegram. In your letter I have all that I wanted. I will use it and also your name if necessary. But I hope the thing will be done without this being necessary. These days you are under great pressure of work. I hope you are well. How long do you have to stay there?

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
590. LETTER TO C. RAJAGOPALACHARI

POONA,

November 9, 1945

MY DEAR C. R.

Your descriptive letter written in detached manner soothes me and removes whatever anxiety I felt.

Of course I never thought you were in any way responsible for the Maulana’s statement or Gopalaswamy’s publication of my personal letter. I do not resent its publication in the manner it was done. He could not help it. Whether it produced good effect or bad is not of much moment.

You are silent about your health.

Let us hope things will pass off well. . . . ² has seen your letter.

Love.

BAPU

From a photostat: G.N. 2111

591. LETTER TO DAHYABHAI M. PATEL

POONA,

November 9, 1945

BHAI DAHYABHAI,

I have your letter. It was, and is indeed good that you did not come. To cling to service is more important than seeing me. You must not start talking about having already grown old. Service when done for the love of God is not burdensome.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI DAHYABHAI MANORDAS PATEL
DHOLKA
PRANTI RAILWAY

From Gujarati: C.W. 2715. Courtesy: Dahyabhai M. Patel

¹ The letter, dated October 27, 1945, was published in The Hindu, 31-10-1945; vide “Letter to L. N. Gopalaswami”, 27-10-1945
² A word is illegible in the source.
592. LETTER TO MRIDULA SARABHAI

November 9, 1945

CHI. MRIDULA,

I have your letter. The correspondence has been published.¹ It is rather interesting how this came about. On the one hand Bapa writes to say that I was hasty in getting it published because I had agreed that we should publish it only after the meeting of the Managing Committee. How nice it would have been if he had had me put it down in writing. I myself have no such recollection. Kanu says that he was present at the time and that I had told Bapa that if something had happened and if the matter was to be published, the sooner this was done the better. Well, that is as it may be. Your own recollection is that I was to give a short statement of my own in the end. I remember having said something like that but I had not decided on it. Having considered the whole thing I felt that since my letter² to you gave the entire background it was better published. Now if this step was mistaken how can it be rectified? I don’t see anything wrong in publishing the facts. I have not seen what has come out in the newspapers. If you are talking about the English translation, I had certainly approved it but I do not know if the same has appeared in the newspapers. Anyway, for the present I am treating this chapter as closed. It is good you are coming on the 12th. This of course will be posted.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

593. LETTER TO AMRITLAL V. THAKKAR

November 9, 1945

BAPA,

I have your letter of November 6. By all means have a separate kitchen. We should not put too much burden on Shamlal, that is to say on his wife.

Nothing has been decided about Sushila Pai. She wishes to come as a joint organizer. It is possible Sucheta will not like it. She will have a talk with you and then write to me. Sushila Pai is a very good worker. She is a learned woman. She was for many years the Head Mistress of Vanita Vishram, Rajkot. She gave up the job on her own. She is a woman of great promise. It is possible that she will not like to join as a clerk. In whatever capacity she comes, it will be only provisionally. I have not written to her again as I am waiting for Sucheta’s letter. Please see how the work is to be divided. Spend on the building only as much as is necessary for providing the conveniences. I take it that you will not have to get permission for this from the Managing Committee. I am not going through the rules and regulations. I have passed on that responsibility to Shamlal. In fact we should know it by heart. There was a time when I could do that but of late I have forgotten all about it. I have had to.

¹ Vide also “Letter to Mridula Sarabhai”, 7-11-1945
² ibid

I got your letter of today after writing this. Sushila will answer it.

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

594. LETTER TO SUMITRA GANDHI

November 9, 1945

CHI. SUMI,

I like your letter. You have improved your handwriting a lot. But your vowel strokes are not always that same. That is a defect. You make your strokes look like pearl pendants. Nowadays girls have made this a fashion, but it is a mistake. Strokes should always be slanting. At the most you can put a dot on top.

I am not at all happy that Rs. 125 was stolen from your pocket and I am very angry with Nimu. She could have sent the money by money order. You can always have such dealings with Devdas and you should.¹

Just because I have appreciated your handwriting, don’t think that there is no room for improvement. You should yourself see and try to improve it. Take care of your health, physical and mental. Let me know what you have gained from Nagpur.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Vide also “Letter to Kanam and Nirmala Gandhi”, 8-11-1945
595. LETTER TO KRISHNALAL T. MANIAR

November 9, 1945

CHI. BACHU,

I am glad you wrote a postcard to me. I saw Kanu’s handwriting also. May the New Year bring happiness to all of you and may all of you start rendering some service to the country. At the present day that is the dharma for all in India. I am glad you have settled down at the Bank of Jaipur. Become an expert at your job and stick to the bank so that in the field of your work you can earn a name for yourself. I know of two persons who, just like you, began even lower than clerks and yet reached the top and became famous. Both of them are no more. They were Gujaratis but it is immaterial whether they were Gujaratis or not. One is bound to make progress if one sincerely sticks to something and wishes to acquire mastery in it. May you make progress in your work and serve the country through it.

Blessings from

BAPU

KRISHNALAL TULSIDAS MANIAR
C/O BANK OF JAIPUR LTD.
RITCHIE ROAD
AHMEDABAD

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

596. LETTER TO MAHADEVSHASTRI DIVEKAR

November 9, 1945

SHRIMAN PANDITJI,

I have your letter. Thanks. I understand your point but I do not want to enter into discussion with you.

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

MAHADEVSHASTRI DIVEKAR
MIRAJ

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 According to the Gujarati calendar
597. LETTER TO V. S. MODAK

November 9, 1945

Bhai Modak,

I have your letter. I have given up going to the theatre for the last fifty years and I take no interest in it. Please excuse me.

Yours,

M. K. Gandhi

V. S. Modak
Natyasammelan
Rajurkar Building, Maidan Road
Ahmednagar

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

598. LETTER TO N. G. ABHYANKAR

November 9, 1945

Bhai Abhyankar,

I have your Marathi letter written in a beautiful hand. I had no difficulty in understanding it. About Ashtekar I am doing what I consider it my dharma to do. What more shall I say? I have expressed my grief. I try to understand as much as I can. I have the lines that have appeared in Lokshakti.1

Yours,

M. K. Gandhi

N. G. Abhyankar
130 Budhwar
Opposite Jogeshwar
Poona 2

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 The official Congress daily published from Poona under the editorship of N. V. Limaye
599. LETTER TO SUBROTO ROY CHOWDHARY

November 10, 1945

BAHI SUBRATA ROY,

I received your letter of October 24 yesterday. I hope you will forgive me for replying in the national language. Yours is a big programme. It is good. What can be added to it if I say something? May you succeed and may all of you serve India in the right way.

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

600. LETTER TO S. A. BRELVI

November 10/11, 1945

Bhai BRELVI,

Your journal carried the report of Hindi Sahitya Sammelan held at Udaipur. It contains things that Bhai Munshi refutes. The report says that Pandit Jawaharlal had sent a nice message but that it was suppressed and was not read out. Bhai Munshi says that he never received any such message, let alone suppress it. If this is true and someone gave a false report, he should have signed it. Jawaharlal is there. You could have had a talk with him. I want that there should be at least one newspaper in India which has only truth from beginning to end, has no malice and is respected by one and all. Why should not the Chronicle which has for its editor, Brelvi, the President of the Editor’s Conference be such a newspaper?

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

---

1 President, Cambridge University Majlis, an organization of Indian students
2 Vide also “Letter to K. M. Munshi”, 2-11-1945
601. TELEGRAM TO RAJENDRA PRASAD

Express

POONA,

November 11, 1945

DOCTOR RAJENDRA PRASAD

BETTIAH

YOUR WIRE. PAPERS SAY GOPE HANGED YESTERDAY.¹ WHY SO LATE²?

GANDHI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

602. LETTER TO JAISUKHLAL GANDHI

POONA,

November 11, 1945

CHI. JAISUKHLAL,

I have your letter of the 5th instant. May I make use of the information you have given me when I write to the Diwan Saheb? The situation, it is feared, is very grave. Something should be done about it. Meet the people there and do what you can. The volunteers can get together and do a lot of sanitation work. I had mentioned Raychandbhai’s name by mistake.

I am glad you corrected me. Do you have your living quarters and your office in the same premises or are they separate? How does Manu pass her time?

Blessings from

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./XXIV

¹ Mahendra Gope was sentenced to death in connection with the 1942 disturbances and hanged in the Bhagalpur Central Jail on November 10.

² The addressee had made a last minute appeal to the Viceroy and the Governor of Bihar on November 9, for commutation of the death sentence.

³ Addressee’s daughter
603. LETTER TO KANCHAN M. SHAH

POONA,

November 11, 1945

CHI. KANCHAN,

I got your letter. I wrote to you on the basis of what you had told me. Nobody has been able to achieve what you aspire for. If you can, I would consider that you have made great progress.

My blessings to Raihana and Sarojbehn. More when we meet.

Blessings from

BAPU

CHI. KANCHANBEHN
C/O RAIHANABEHN
RASTRABHASHA PRACHAR SAMITI
WARDHA

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 8259. Also C.W. 6983. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

604. LETTER TO MRIDULA SARABHAI

November 11, 1945

CHI. MRIDULA,

I am replying to three of your letters together. I liked your personal letter but one sentence in it pained me. Why do you think I did not approve of what you call your “stand”?—you will yourself explain the meaning. If I seem to be changing, it is only an impression. Those who know me will not say this. I consider you as one of them, but why should I discuss all this with you? You are just a child to me while I am an old man. You will leave me if and when you are fed up with me.

Come whenever you wish and have me clarify whatever you want clarified.

What you say about Surveyor is right. Ask me about Ratnaprabhabehn when we meet. I am sending your letter about the President to Shyamblal and tearing up your personal letter.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
605. LETTER TO AMRITLAL V. THAKKAR

November 11, 1945

BAPA,

I have your letter. I had no recollection at all of what you say in your letter. Now that I think of it I seem to remember we did have a talk about the matter. There does not seem to be even a hint of it in our letters. Chi. Kanu says he was present at our talk and that as far as he can remember you had made the suggestion but I had not accepted it because postponing publication of the resignation would have served no purpose. If however the President has no right at all to accept a resignation, then the thing assumes an entirely different aspect. But the case only supports what I have been saying all along, namely, that word of mouth should be considered as having no weight. Only what is written down is true, more so for a person like me whose memory is dim. So if things are put down in writing it will be a safeguard for both. You close your letter with “khair”\(^2\). Do not go by it. Take to heart the lesson you learn from this episode. I consider the episode in itself trivial but it carries significance. It was I who sent a copy of the resignation to the Press.

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

606. LETTER TO AMRITLAL V. THAKKAR

POONA,

November 11, 1945

BAPA,

I got the copy of your letter to Dharmdevji.\(^3\) I was pained and also surprised. We shall discuss this further when we meet. If I said anything about the money for his ashram I do not recollect it. This again shows that mere word of mouth has no value.\(^4\)

I can’t trace Suchetabehn’s letter. Let us see what happens. We shall discuss that matter\(^5\) also.

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

---

\(^1\) Vide also “Letter to Mridula Sarabhai”, 9-11-1945

\(^2\) The English equivalent of the expression would be “anyway” or “however”.

\(^3\) Vide also “Letter to Dharmadev Shastri”, 14-11-1945

\(^4\) Vide also the preceding item.

607. LETTER TO RATILAL TANNA

November 11, 1945

BHAI RATILAL,

I have your letter. My messages have dried up. And even if they have not, you should not ask for a message regarding Dhebarbhai. If you cannot understand what this means, ask Dhebarbhai himself.

Blessings from
BAPU

RATILAL TANNA
JANI BUILDING
RAJKOT

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

608. LETTER TO MOHANLAL GADHADAWALA

November 11, 1945

BHAI MOHANLAL,

I read your letter to Kanu and we also met after that.

I remember Jaisangbhai well; the pleasant memory of my meetings which him is still fresh in my mind. We met quite often when late Punjabhai was alive. I shall gladly accept whatever money he has intended to give for my public welfare activities. He can allocate it for any work of my liking. He can keep it with himself for the time and I shall ask for it when I need it. The activities include Arogya Bhavan and the Dharmsala at Panchgani which is being built for the poor without any distinction of caste or creed.

Blessings from
BAPU

MOHANLAL GADHADAWALA
C/O DURLABHDAS MOTICHAND SHAH
269 MASJID BUNDER ROAD
NEAR IMPERIAL BANK, MANDAVI BRANCH
BOMBAY 3

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 U. N. Dhebar
609. LETTER TO N. V. BAVDEKAR

POONA,

November 11, 1945

BHAJ BAVDEKARIJI,

I have your long letter. I can do nothing in this matter. Now the members of the State [Praja] Mandals has been released. Consult them.

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

SHRI N. V. BAVDEKAR
PHALTON SANSTHAN PRAJA PARIHAD
PHALTON STATE

610. LETTER TO LALITA BOSE

POONA,

November 11, 1945

CHI. LALITA,

If you can’t read Hindi, someone will read this out to you. Why should I write in English?

Did you type the letter? What are you doing?

I am glad you sent the Netaji photographs. They are beautiful.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI LALITA BOSE
38-2 ELGIN ROAD
CALCUTTA

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

611. LETTER TO SHRIPATICHARAN SAHU

POONA,

November 11, 1945

BHAJ SHRIPATI BABU,

I have your letter. I don’t know how much I shall be able to do

VOL.88 : 30 AUGUST, 1945 - 6 DECEMBER, 1945  319
in Bengal. Please keep all the literature ready. I don’t believe that there is any grief that cannot be overcome.

Yours,
M. K. GANDHI

SHRI SHRAPATICHARAN SAHU
C/O CALCUTTA INS. LTD.
15 CLIVE STREET
CALCUTTA

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

612. LETTER TO BHAGWATICHARAN SHUKLA

POONA,
November 11, 1945

CHI. BHAGWATI,

Now marriages cannot be performed in the Ashram. I can arrange at some other place in Wardha outside the Ashram. I shall not be able to attend the function. The ceremony will be performed by a Harijan, as was done in the case of Tendulkarji. It will be better if it is done according to the Civil Marriage Act.

Blessings from
BAPU

BHAGWATICHARAN SHUKLA
“NAGPUR TIMES” OFFICE
NAGPUR

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

613. LETTER TO RAJENDRA PRASAD

November 112, 1945

BHAI RAJEN BABU,

I have your telegram. But how long it took! Mahendra Gope was hanged yesterday and your telegram has come today. How did

1 Vide also “Letter to Narahari D. Parikh”, 2-11-1945. Tendulkar and Indu were married on August 18, 1945.

2 The source has “10” obviously a slip since Mahendra Gope was hanged on November10, 1945; vide “Telegram to Rajendra Prasad”, 11-11-1945 this happen? Did I not give my opinion in the case? It will be good if in this case also you find out the facts as I had asked you to do in the case of Mahendra Chowdhary\footnote{A political prisoner who was sentenced to death on the charge of dacoity with murder and was hanged in Bhagalpur Jail on August 7, 1945; see “Letter to Lord Wavell”, 15-7-1945 and “Letter to Lord Wavell”, 23-7-1945.}. Was the case really political?

I want proof.

I hope you are well.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

\section*{614. LETTER TO G. E. B. ABEll}

\begin{flushright}
NATURE CURE CLINIC,
6 TODIWALA ROAD, POONA,
November 12, 1945
\end{flushright}

DEAR MR. ABEll,

I have to acknowledge with thanks your letter\footnote{It read: “His Excellency has seen your letter to Sir Evan Jenkins of 29th October about the trial of certain members of the I. N. A. He asks me to say that he notes your views, and presumes that they are based on articles appearing in the newspapers, in which the facts are not always correctly stated. His Excellency naturally cannot express an opinion on the merits of cases which are sub judice.”} of 6th instant in reply to mine\footnote{Vide “Letter to E. M. Jenkins”, 29-10-1945} about certain I. N. A. prisoners. My business was to bring to His Excellency’s notice the feeling of the country in the matter, not merely as I read in the public Press.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHII

G.E.B. ABEll, ESQ.
DEPUTY PRIVATE SECRETARY TO THE VICEROY
NEW DELHI

\textit{Gandhiji’s Correspondence with the Government, 1944-47, pp. 41-2}
615. LETTER TO G. E. B. ABELL

NATURE CURE CLINIC,
6 TODIWALA ROAD, POONA,
November 12, 1945

DEAR MR. ABELL,

I have to thank you for your letter of 6th instant in reply to mine¹ of 2nd instant regarding certain Press cuttings to which I had drawn His Excellency’s attention.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

¹ Vide “Letter to Sir Evan M. Jenkins”, 2-11-1945

Gandhiji’s Correspondence with the Government, 1944-47, p. 43

616. LETTER TO LORD PETHICK-LAWRENCE

POONA,
November 12, 1945

DEAR LORD LAWRENCE²,

How nice that your wedding day should coincide with my birthday? Thanks for your congratulations.³ May I reciprocate them? Is not wedding a new birth?

Did I not know you first through Lady Lawrence during those suffragette days?⁴ I was then a novice in the art of civil resistance and had friendly differences with the late Mrs. Pankhurst and her daughter but not with your wife and the late Mrs. Despard.⁵

With kind regards to both of you.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

² Secretary of State for India

³ In his letter dated October 4, the addressee had said: “I have only just learnt that your birthday coincides with my wedding day! I hasten to send, rather belatedly, the best wishes of my wife and myself and the hope that in this troubled world we may all contribute to a happier future.”

⁴ Gandhiji had met Lady Pethick-Lawrence at a suffragette meeting during his visit to England in 1906.

⁵ Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst and her daughter had shown resentment when Gandhiji criticized some of the militant suffragettes. Mrs. Pethick-Lawrence had stood by Gandhiji on that occasion.
617. LETTER TO KISHORELAL G. MASHRUWALA

POONA,
November 12, 1945

CHI. KISHORELAL,

You are incapable of hurting me. That is the difference between you and me. I seem to have made it my occupation to hurt others. Even that does not pain me. I have placed before you the facts. I am glad that you do not find any disparity in your suggestion and mine. I have had a talk with the Professor also. Do help and remain on the committee on your own condition.

It is not proper that Gomati wants to look after everything even though she has not yet fully recovered.

Blessings from
BAPU
ASHRAM
SEVAGRAM

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

618. LETTER TO CHHAGANLAL GANDHI

POONA,
November 12, 1945

CHI. CHHAGANLAL,

Manilal complains that you keep on working even though you are weak. Why are you doing this?

Blessings from
BAPU
SEVAGRAM

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
619. LETTER TO HARI GANESH PHATAK

POONA,
November 12, 1945

BHAI HARI BABU,

Come today after the prayers at 7.30 if you can. Suggest some other time if this does not suit you.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 6104

620. LETTER TO AMRITLAL V. THAKKAR

POONA,
November 12, 1945

BAPA,

I have asked Haribhau to come today. I shall settle the matter here. Do not worry. I shall return both the letters after they have been dealt with.

BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

621. FOREWORD TO “CONSTRUCTIVE PROGRAMME—ITS MEANING AND PLACE”

This is a thoroughly revised edition of the Constructive Programme which I first wrote in 1941.1 The items included in it have not been arranged in any order, certainly not in the order of their importance. When the reader discovers that a particular subject though important in itself in terms of independence does not find place in the programme, he should know that the omission is not intentional. He should unhesitatingly add to my list and let me know. My list does not pretend to be exhaustive; it is merely illustrative. The reader will see several new and important additions.

1 Vide “Constructive Programe” Its Meaning and Place”,13-12-1941

THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
Readers, whether workers and volunteers or not, should definitely realize that the constructive programme is the truthful and non-violent way of winning poorna swaraj. Its wholesale fulfilment is complete independence. Imagine all the forty crores of people busying themselves with the whole of the constructive programme which is designed to build up the nation from the very bottom upward. Can anybody dispute the proposition that it must mean complete independence in every sense of the expression, including the ousting of foreign domination? When the critics laugh at the proposition, what they mean is that forty crores of people will never co-operate in the effort to fulfil the programme. No doubt, there is considerable truth in the scoff. My answer is, it is still worth the attempt. Given an indomitable will on the part of a band of earnest workers, the programme is as workable as any other and more so than most. Anyway, I have no substitute for it, if it is to be based on non-violence.

Civil disobedience, mass or individual, is an aid to constructive effort and is a full substitute for armed revolt. Training is necessary as well for civil disobedience as for armed revolt. Only the ways are different. Action in either case takes place only when occasion demands. Training for military revolt means learning the use of arms ending perhaps in the atomic bomb. For civil disobedience it means the constructive programme.

Therefore, workers will never be on the look-out for civil resistance. They will hold themselves in readiness, if the constructive effort is sought to be defeated. From one or two illustrations it will be seen where it can be and where it cannot be offered. Political pacts we know have been and can be, but personal friendship with individuals cannot be, prevented. Such friendships, selfless and genuine, must be the basis for political pacts. Similarly, centralized khadi can be defeated by the Government, but no power can defeat individual manufacture and use of khadi. The manufacture and use of khadi must not be imposed upon the people, but it must be intelligently and willingly accepted by them as one of the items of the freedom movement. This can be done only from the villages as units. Pioneers even in such programmes can be obstructed. They have had to go through the fire of suffering throughout the world. There is no swaraj without suffering. In violence, truth is the first and greatest sufferer; in non-violence it is ever triumphant. Moreover, men composing the Government are not to be regarded as enemies. To regard them as such will be contrary to the non-violent spirit. Part we must, but as friends.

If this preliminary observation has gone home to the reader, he will find the constructive programme to be full of deep interest. It should prove as absorbing as politics so called and platform oratory, and certainly more important and useful.

POONA, November 13, 1945

_Constructive Programme: Its Meaning and Place_

622. LETTER TO SIR EVAN M. JENKINS

NATURE CURE CLINIC,
6 TODIWALA ROAD, POONA,
November 13, 1945

DEAR SIR EVAN,

I have just seen Reuter’s message from London about the threatened arrest of Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru.¹

I admit that Pandit Nehru’s speeches are hot, if the British rulers do not want to part with power and hand over to the people what is theirs. They are not, if the British professions are real. It will be wrong to attribute hatred or malice to him. He undoubtedly speaks strongly against the I. C. S. men. But there he speaks the people’s mind. And he is right. The fine doctrine propounded by His Excellency of “Forget and Forgive” can only apply to the excesses of a soldiery in action but surely not to inexcusable butchery, inhumanity, bribery, corruption and the like. If his statements are wrong, they should be tested through an open and impartial tribunal. If the Government’s hands are clean they have nothing to fear from publicity.

I will not waste His Excellency’s time by arguing about the obvious.²

_Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI_

_Gandhiji’s Correspondence with the Government, 1944-47, p. 57_

¹ According to a report Sir Maurice Hallett, Governor of U. P., had sought the Viceroy’s permission to arrest Jawaharlal Nehru. The Viceroy declining, he had approached the Secretary of State. The Viceroy’s House on April 12 issued a Press Note saying the report was a fabrication. _The Transfer of Power, Vol. VI, p. 481_. It is now known, however, that Wavell considered the speeches being made by Nehru, Patel, Pant and other Congress leaders as incitement to violence and was contemplating “before long ……another violent suppression of Congress”. Wavell—_The Viceroy’s Journal, passim_.

² Writing to Secretary of State Wavell said considering Gandhiji’s “present state of health…… it is possible that the letter was written by Patel or Nehru and .merely signed by Gandhi”! _The Transfer of Power, Vol. VI, p. 48_. In his _Journal, p. 185_, he describes the letter as malevolent.
623. LETTER TO SHARDA G. CHOKHAWALA

POONA,

November 13, 1945

CHI. BABU,

I have your letter. You have not said what your “one last” attempt was. See that it does not become too late for improvement.

I know that Chokhawala is busy. I do not expect from him the courtesy of a letter, because it is wrong to cherish any hope at all.

Why does Shakaribehn get migraine?

Blessings to all of you from

BAPU

From the Gujarati original: C.W. 10063. Courtesy: Sharda G. Chokhawala

624. LETTER TO JIVANJI D. DESAI

POONA,

November 13, 1945

CHI. JIVANJI,

I have your letter.

I have been working since the last eight days on the booklet regarding constructive work. That is to say, I have been giving it every minute that I can spare from time to time. I finished it two days ago, but I made so many revisions that I intend to get some portions rewritten. So that has taken another two days and is likely to take two more days still. To that extent the pamphlet will become new and perfect. I could have polished it still further. But is not greed a hill that lives and grows? It is not inert. Do not believe all that has appeared in the newspapers regarding Sardar’s biography. I have not seen the report. When I heard about the plan for presenting a book of tributes to Sardar, as promised, I put an end to it and suggested that an authentic biography be written instead. There would be no question of presenting it to him. I therefore refused to give a message when they approached me and thus stopped the plan for tributes. It was Munshi\(^1\)

\(^1\) Vide “Letter to Sharda G. Chokhawala”, 6-11-1945

\(^2\) K. M. Munshi
who took the lead and I, therefore, suggested that if he took up the work he would be able to do full justice to it. I have not inquired what happened or is happening after that. I do not know whether you are writing the biography or getting it written. You may ask Munshiji direct. The work is entrusted to Patil and Tendulkar. The letter is to work as Munshi’s assistant. If, therefore, Munshi has agreed, you should put together all the material you get and send it to Munshiji. If he is not going to do the work, ask me again. I had also suggested that the date for publication of the book should be announced right now and we should adhere to it.

You may take it that as regards the journals¹ I am ready. I do not now, though, how far I shall be able to cope with the work. But I think I must do it if the publication can be resumed without difficulty. You need not flatter anybody. Mavalankar or you may meet the Magistrate officially and ask him. If he agrees, take out a licence. We should give no binding, orally or in writing. Only if the Government also wants the publication of the journals to be resumed may we bring them out. It would be intolerable if they were to demand a security as soon as an article appeared. If they are interested in the publications being resumed, they will have to give us the required paper. After all, how much would we need? There is no question of advertisements. We shall have to print a large number of copies. We must print at many as there is a demand for. I expect that we shall have to print at least as many as we used to do. Give me full details. And give me reasonable time for the first issue. You may, thus, assume that I shall be ready even if I am touring at the time.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 9957. Also C.W. 6931. Courtesy: Jivanji D. Desai

¹ Harajan and allied publications

328 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
625. LETTER TO JUGATRAM DAVE

November 13, 1945

CHI. JUGATRAM,

I have your letter. Of course you have my blessings, but blessings are creepers that can climb only on hedges and tree-trunks. This means that they are only a kind of indication. So if your trunk is strong my blessings would climb up like a creeper. Here trunk means wisdom or keenness of thought.

It is good you have sent for Vaikunthbhai.¹

Blessings from

BAPU

JUGATRAM DAVE
SWARAJ ASHRAM
VEDCHHI, P. O. VALOD
DISTRICT SURAT

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

626. LETTER TO JAWAHARLAL NEHRU

POONA,

November 13, 1945

CHI. JAWAHARLAL,

I was very happy with our talks yesterday. We would not have discussed more yesterday and it is my view that we shall not be able to finish our work at a single sitting. We must meet from time to time. I am so made that if I had the strength to travel about, I would seek you out, stay with you for a day or two, have some talk and then leave. Though I am not in a position to do that now, you may know I have done such things before. I want that people should know us as we know each other. If in the end we find that our paths are different, then so be it. Our hearts will still remain one, for they are one. The talks we had yesterday have given me the impression that there is not much difference in our outlook or the way we understand things. I went to tell you how I have understood you. If there is any difference you will let me know.

¹ Vaikunthlal L. Mehta

(1) The crucial question according to you, is how to ensure man’s mental, economic, political and moral development. That is my position too.

(2) And in doing so every individual should have equal right and opportunity.

(3) From this point of view there should be equality between villages and cities. And therefore their food and drink, their way of life, their dress and their habits should be the same. If such a condition is to be brought about people should produce their own cloth and food and build their own houses. So also they should produce their own water and electricity.

(4) Man is not born to live in the jungle; he is born to live in society. If we are to make sure that one person does not ride on another’s back, the unit should be an ideal village or a social group which will be self-sufficient, but the members of which will be interdependent. This conception will bring about a change in human relationship all over the world.

If I have understood you correctly up to here, I shall take up the second part. I have had Rajkumari translate the letter which I wrote to you earlier. I am getting this also translated and will send the translation along with this.¹ I serve two purposes by getting the letters translated. First I can explain to you more clearly in English what I want to say and secondly I shall be able to know better whether I have understood you fully or not.

Blessings to Indu.

Blessings from

BAPU

From the Hindi original: Gandhi-Nehru Papers. Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library

627. LETTER TO R. V. GOGATE

November 13, 1945

Bhai Gogate

You have frankly expressed your views. I like that. I told you I would answer your two questions. First, I am not impressed by the American system. I have regard for their enthusiasm and courage but at present we cannot proceed on those lines, nor do I wish to do so. That is why I do not like your new village scheme. My advice is that if you have the time, go and see our villages and do what you can. Go and see what my associates, the Kumarappa brothers and the other three are doing.

¹ Amrit Kaur’s translation of this is published in A Bunch of Old Letters.

I have always liked to keep good relations with America but I have never liked having an agency there, nor do I like it now. This is more or less a matter of self-satisfaction if not self-deception. If we build up strength in India itself, it is bound to have its impact. The British Government spends lakhs of rupees on spreading falsehood. Must we imitate their ways to spread truth? I know the clergy in America do such things. I also know that there is, as there should be, a lot of difference between propagating truth and propagating untruth. What more shall I say?

PROF. R. V. GOGATE
U. N. R. R. A.
IMPERIAL HOTEL, NEW DELHI

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

628. LETTER TO BHULABHAI J. DESAI

November 14, 1945

Bhai Bhulabhai,

Jawaharlal told me that he had had a talk with Bakshi Tekchand regarding Jallianwala Bagh. He thinks it would be good if the two of you could get together and complete the work of the Trust Deed. Bakshi Tekchand is prepared to look after everything in the Punjab. Discuss this with him and do what is necessary.

I had your wire but your letter has not yet come.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

Vide also “Letter to Bakshi Tekchand”, 14-11-1945
629. LETTER TO KRISHNAVARMA

November 14, 1945

BHAI KRISHNAVARMA,

Naturopathy or any other work is never stalled for lack of funds. But it certainly is stalled if it lacks purity and sincere workers. The figures you have quoted must remain on paper only. If the thing had been all that easy in practice, we would have progressed a great deal by now. We have to sweat to increase 4 to 20; increasing 20 to 100 or 100 to 500 is just a dream. But it does not matter. Man can only make an effort. There is no need for you to come here. I am fully booked. I shall be in Bombay on the 20th. You can drop in there. I shall leave for Wardha the same day.

Blessings from

BAPU

DR. KRISHNAVARMA
NATURE CURE CLINIC
MALAD
BOMBAY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

630. LETTER TO RADHA GANDHI

November 14, 1945

CHI. RADHA,

I have your postcard. You are quite modest. Can we say that now you have settled down in Rajkot?
Manilal and Sushila are at Akola. Their son Arun is with me. I shall send your postcard to Manilal.
I hope all of you are all right. You must do some work of service.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
POONA,
November 14, 1945

CHI. DINSHAW,

My cogitations go on. The institution should close down on December 31. From January 1, it should become an institution for the poor and cease to be one for the rich. You have so far insisted that the poor should be taken only after the rich have been accommodated but those who are really poor can hardly reach you and if anyone reaches you, they will have to pay the rates the rich pay, which will completely ruin them. From the 1st January let the rich come after the poor are accommodated but only if they can live as the poor. The institution should have more cleanliness than it has today. Money is not necessary for maintaining cleanliness, but it requires care, love, truth and knowledge. So it is better that cleaning work is started from today, but I am afraid it is not possible because no one listens to the others and everyone is his own master. If anyone takes interest in work, it is only to please you. Therefore there can be improvement only if someone from among the people I mentioned above starts working from today. If this thing does not appeal to you, both of us will have to repent ultimately because I believe that cleanliness is a part of God. I would amend the saying “cleanliness is next to godliness” and say “cleanliness is godliness”. But only if cleanliness is both internal and external can we call it an attribute of God.

A sign-board should be hung here from January 1. It should be written in Marathi, Devanagari, Urdu and English. I have not in my mind formed a precise idea but it would be somewhat as follows. “The poor are given nature-cure treatment here”. The name Healthotorium should be removed. There is no need for any name. It does not befit a poor institution. In fact it does not befit any. The English would consider it “vulgar”.

We should not use foreign things whether they are patent or not. The poor cannot afford a bottle of Isapgol packed in England, Robinson Barley, Quaker Oats, Sanatogen, Horlicks, malted milk or Merck’s Glucose. We, from here, cannot teach the people to take these things—it is immaterial who is here—whether Sardar, some Raja or I.
We must make Sanatogen here. Things similar to Horlicks and malted milk should be made here and also something like glucose should be available.

The kitchen can no longer function on the lines it has been doing so far. Today you have the means to feed even a king. But those means must be given up tomorrow. The liberality with which fruit and other things are used here hurts me much. It ought to be changed. Can’t we manage with jaggery and lemon?

You must develop the habit of writing. Let your Gujarati be faulty, it can be expressed in good language. Little booklets should be brought out from here. You will have to pay a lot of attention to all these things. I do not know how you will be able to do that while earning 4-5 thousand rupees a month. But bear in mind that if you cannot do it the University will remain merely a dream. I have a capacity for boundless work and also for planning. But I do not have a magic wand by waving which I can create a university. Further, I do not have the knowledge required for that. Therefore I am helpless. If I was not helpless I would have started a nature cure clinic of my own, and would have carried on all my activities from there. But God did not grant me that. Although I was, and still am, very enthusiastic, which is why I am clinging on to you, you are a big man and you have allowed your knowledge to stagnate. That is a big stumbling-block in your way. Your dream will be realized only if you can get over it. If your heart bids you that it is not possible, then leave me even now. I shall not feel bad. Sardar is worried how I am going to cope with the work. His worry is meaningless because no one compels me. God impels me to do the work. If He wants to stop the work He will do so. But you seem to have faith in me, so I must warn you about my helplessness. And I must let you know the limitations and faults I find in you. More when something strikes me.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
632. LETTER TO BAKSHI TEKCHAND

November 14, 1945

Bhai Bakshi Tekchand,

Pandit Jawaharlal was here for a day. He told me that you were prepared to make a Trust Deed about Jallianwala Bagh and also look after it. Before 1942 Bhulabhai was assigned the task of the Trust Deed but some obstacles kept delaying it. Then war broke out and the work of the Trust Deed was left in the air. I shall be glad if you discuss this with Bhulabhai and complete the work of the Trust Deed.

Mukerji, who has been the secretary of the Jallianwala Bagh committee for years, will see you. It will be some time before he reaches there.

I am happy that you have once again taken up public work.

Yours,

M. K. Gandhi

SIR BAKSHI TEKCHAND

LAHORE

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

633. LETTER TO DHARMADEV SHASTRI

November 14, 1945

Bhai Dharmadev Shastri,

I have your letter. Bapa has also written about you. Did I tell you that I would get you some monetary help from Bapa? I don’t remember anything about it. My memory has become hopeless. If I say something and it is of some use you must get it in writing from me. Moreover, Bapa further writes and says that owing to the cold weather the hospital may have to be shifted to some other place or the whole work may have to be stopped. Is it advisable to do anything in these circumstances? What is to be done if you cannot get local people

1 Vide “Letter to Bhulabhai J. Desai”, 14-11-1945
2 Vide “Letter to Amritlal V. Thakkar”, 11-11-1945 to do and continue the work? All this seems difficult. Write everything in brief.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

634. TELEGRAM TO ABDUL GHAFFAR KHAN

POONA,
November 15, 1945

BADSHA [H] KHAN
CHARSADDA

DID YOU RECEIVE LETTER SAYING LADY DOCTOR READY?
WIRE IF YOU WANT HER NOW.

GANDHI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

635. LETTER TO MANGALDAS PAKVASA

November 15, 1945

BHAI MANGALDAS,

I have your letter. I see you are working at great speed. I on my part am doing what I can from here.

I have gone through Motilal’s and your opinion. I agree with it. But there is one thing neither of you appear to have considered. The words are: “one should not refuse to sell [khadi] which is worth buying”. Now the question is which khadi should be considered “worth buying”. One might say that the khadi which had been produced according to the conditions laid down by me was “worth buying”. Isn’t that so? Why can’t I say that I will sell my khadi only to the person who pays me the highest price for it? This gives rise to many more questions but I do not wish to discuss them. They are irrelevant at the moment. But I have been forced to write this because it is not irrelevant to point out the snag which I notice and which prevents me from publishing your views. So if it can be put right, I would of course like to get it done, so that it can be published. But if there is something wrong in my way of thinking, I should not proceed with it for the moment.
I hope to reach there by the morning train on the 19th. Sardar and others will be with me. I shall leave for Wardha on the 20th evening.

Now about Munshi. I did not like the article you showed me which appeared in the Chronicle. I found malice in it. Munshi had come here on business of his own. I asked him about it. He showed me the mistakes in the article and there were other defects also. Even if Jawaharlal had sent a message, Munshi did not get it. Afterwards Jawaharlal also came and when I asked him he said that he did not have the slightest recollection of having sent a message. He might have told somebody to send one but it was of no value. The gist of this is that there is very little truth in newspapers and they are full of falsehood. If a man acts believing in their veracity he must lose. I certainly do not wish to see you lose.

Blessings from

BAPU

MANGALDAS PAKVASA
29 DOONGERSI ROAD
MALABAR HILL
BOMBAY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

636. A LETTER

November 15, 1945

Bhai,

I have carefully gone through your letter. I like it because you have taken pains to clear your mind. I have come to the conclusion that under the circumstances you should not start work in my absence. Since you have ordered goods to the value of a thousand rupees, you should first dispose of them and then wash your hands of the ointment business. Then when I come that way again I shall, if you are ready, have you start your work under my supervision. If at the time you are not prepared for it I shall not hold you responsible.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Vide also “Letter to K. M. Munshi”, 2-11-1945

2 For the Hindi Sahitya Sammelan
637. LETTER TO MADAN MOHAN MALAVIYA

November 15, 1945

BHAI SAHEB,

Mukerji will tell you what I have done here. I have noted down all that has happened. Hear him if you have the time and are well enough, otherwise just sign the cheque¹ and send him away.

What is there to write to you. You are always in my mind.

Your younger brother

M. K. GANDHI

PANDIT MALAVIYAJI

BANARAS UNIVERSITY

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

638. LETTER TO AMMU SWAMINATHAN

November 15, 1945

DEAR SISTER,

I have your letter. I take no interest and no part in elections. Please, therefore, keep me out of it.

Write to me in the national language or in your mother tongue Tamil.² Keep English for English people. At least make a beginning.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI AMMU SWAMINATHAN

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ For the Trust Deed of Jallianwala Bagh
² The addressee’s mother tongue was, however, Malayalam; her husband’s was Tamil.
November 15, 1945

BHAI DASTANE,

What can poor Akka¹ or Vatsala² tell you? All your daughters are good and wish to give you the minimum trouble. At the same time they want to take the minimum obligation from others. But I know the way they depend on you unknowingly. Of course I don’t blame anyone. Our circumstances often are such that we cannot get out of them. That is why I advise you that you should take up grihasthasrama³ and the more you purify it and remain pure yourself the better will you serve the country. Today we are all intoxicated. Intoxication is not always due to liquor, ganja or opium. I have seen that being intoxicated with vanity or the craze for swaraj is at times worse than the intoxication of liquor. To know our swadharma and to be engrossed in it is our supreme dharma. That is why, let me add, I can only discuss things with you but I cannot think as you do. Do take as much as you can digest from what I say and go ahead.

I would suggest you have a talk with the members of the Working Committee. I cannot go very far. My position is like that of a ‘tenant at will’⁴. The difference is great. I am what I am without any conscious effort on my part, and the poor tenant at will desires to stay for ever. I came across a sloka by Bhartrihari, “In fact one who is attached to sense-objects and one who is free from them are both in the same position. The latter voluntarily gives up sense-objects and enjoys bliss, while the self-indulgent one too has to give up his sensual pleasures every now and then and earns only misery.” Bhartrihari has crammed a great deal of wisdom into this. Let us all drink that nectar and attain bliss.

I have communicated to Kripalaniji some of my ideas about the

¹ Addresser’s daughters
² ibid
³ Householder’s estate
⁴ Gandhiji uses the English expression.
elections. I am discussing things with Shankarraoji. Now it is time for me to go for my walk. I shall take a stroll with him and shall tell him what I think about the elections.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI VASUDEV DASTANE
VAKIL SAHEB
BHUSAVAL

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

640. SPEECH AT KHADAKVASALA¹

November 15, 1945

In a short speech Gandhiji stated that he had nothing new to say. He was getting old and had decided to conserve his energy by observing silence. He appreciated the effort of serving villagers through the health centre and of spreading knowledge of child nursing. He remarked that there was ample scope for such work in the seven lakhs of villages of India.² Gandhiji said:

To provide facilities for a safe delivery to a few women is a poor consolation. Your success will be measured by the education you can give to the people around in maternity.

The Hindustan Times, 16-11-1945; and Mahatma, Vol. 7, p. 19

641. LETTER TO KANTILAL GANDHI

POONA,
November 16, 1945

CHI. KANTI,

I have your letter. You have well described your difficulties. You are gaining plenty of experience also. Learn to cultivate sweetness even from it. Many people get embittered by bitter experiences and feel frustrated because of repeated disappointments. If you do so, then your study of the Gita will have been in vain. We have to make our path through the Brahmin-non-Brahmin, Hindu-Muslim, and inter-provincial differences and march ahead with our work.

¹ Gandhiji, accompanied by Vallabhbhai Patel and Shankarrao Deo, visited the village at the foot of Sinhgad Fort and opened a road prepared by the villagers. He also visited the Health and Maternity Department conducted by the Poono Rotary Club.

² What follows is reproduced from Mahatma.

Shanti\(^1\) will have recovered by now. Bal\(^2\) has obtained the highest degree in engineering and has become a Ph. D. He was here for four or five days. He has gone with Kakasaheb to Kashi. He does not seem to have given up everything that he had learnt in the Ashram. He is still unaffected in his speech. He participated fully in the prayers here. He sang bhajans for our benefit with great enthusiasm. More when I have the time.

I hope Suru\(^3\) is well.

\textit{Blessings from BAPU}

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 7379. Courtesy: Kantilal Gandhi

\textbf{642. LETTER TO LILAVATI ASAR}

\textit{November 16, 1945}

CHI. LILAVATI,

I have your postcard. You must give up the craving for letters in my handwriting. I am dictating this lying down in the evening after the prayers. Sometimes two line suffice, but at times I have to write at length. You had better leave it to me when I should write myself or when and to whom I should dictate.

Now that you have started the exercise\(^4\) do not give it up. You can go up to 108 namaskars. Many asanas can be performed while doing suryanamaskar. It is largely for you to see which ones will suit you best. Consider also whether you should go up to 108 namaskars. There is no point in losing weight by starving. One has to reduce weight if one has put on any because of some disease, but that too not by starving oneself. If even with regular exercise and balanced diet

---

1. Addressee’s son
2. Bal Kalelkar
3. Addressee’s wife Saraswati you put on weight, let it be so. You need not worry about it in the least.

You have used the word ‘stunt’ in a wrong context. You can translate it as dhating in Gujarati. The changes in diet or other methods adopted for reducing weight cannot be called stunt. Those who digest what they have studied keep on pursuing the study in order to acquire more knowledge without even thinking about the examination results. While studying they build up their bodies as best they can because keeping the body healthy, strong and lustrous is also a part of learning. I give you full encouragement to study what you have undertaken not for the sake of getting a degree but for the knowledge that you will acquire while studying for it. Since you have already studied Gray¹ once, it should be a mere child’s play to go through it a second time. The oftener you read it, the more knowledge you will gain.

It will be good if you give up the habit of walking about as you read. It spoils the eyesight and sometimes the thoughts also wander. While walking one can think over and digest what one has read or think of the work one has done during the day, and so on. But the eyes have to look around and take note of the surroundings and watch out for any obstruction in one’s way. One cannot walk with eyes closed but a person like me who walks with the support of others enjoys the pleasure of doing so. But that is not for you.

Stick to your decision not to attend Lakshmidas’s wedding.

I have signed at two places. That shows how bad my memory is.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Henry Gray’s Anatomy of the Human Body
643. LETTER TO ATULANAND CHAKRAVARTY

POONA,

November 16, 1945

Bhai Atulanand,

I have your postcard. I have sent the thing on to a historian who has also made a serious study of the Hindu-Muslim question. I am awaiting his reply. A leading Congressman told me that it would not do any good to write anything like this in the name of the Congress because the atmosphere was such that people had shut their ears to objectively expressed views of others and such being the case anything said was bound to be misunderstood. Therefore, I am not keen to have this published. Seeing the atmosphere that prevails I myself hold a similar view. But lest I do injustice to your endeavour I have sent it to a historian for his opinion. This much I can say that it will not be possible to have it published as quickly as you want. Let us see what comes of it and what I finally decide.

My visit to Bengal will not be long in coming now. I hope to reach there on December 1st. Do meet me there. Let me, however, tell you that the final decision lies not with those with an English education but with the millions of people who know their mother tongue or the national language. Therefore, write the original in your mother tongue, Bengali; and for other provinces in the national language in both the scripts. If you agree with what I say, start reading and writing the national language in both the scripts. Would Rabi Babu’s writings and poetry have had any impact on Bengali if he had written in English?

Yours sincerely,

M. K. Gandhi

644. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA

POONA,
November 16, 1945

CHI. KRISHNACHANDRA,

Let us assimilate Gitai\(^1\). Only after everybody is able to sing Gitai in harmony, understanding its meaning, can we think of Auz Billa\(^2\) and other things. In that case we shall have to do the same about Zend [Avesta]. It is better to master in one thing before taking up another.

It seems proper to keep the same time for prayer everywhere.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4536

645. LETTER TO LILA JOG

November 16, 1945

DEAR SISTER,

Thanks for acknowledging receipt of the cheque for Rs. 375.

Don’t you have the slightest knowledge of the national language? If you don’t, at least you must be knowing your mother tongue. Women who volunteer to work among village women can scarcely expect to do their work through English. I am of course a villager. Why do you write to me in English?

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

SHRI LILA JOG
30 SHIVAJI PARK
DADAR, BOMBAY 28

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

---

\(^{1}\) Translation of the Bhagavad Gita in Marathi by Vinoba Bhave

\(^{2}\) The verse from the Koran included in the Ashram prayer
646. LETTER TO N. VYASATIRTH

November 16, 1945

Bhai Vyasatirth,

I have your letter. You must be aware that ordinary marriages no longer have any interest for me. I am interested, if at all, in a caste Hindu marrying a Harijan. For, if we wish to observe Varnashrama dharma, we should all belong to one caste, i.e., of Harijans. And how else can we prove that we have really become Harijans? But what if marriage between a Bhangi and a Brahmin is not for observing dharma but for indulgence? All the same you have my blessings if your marriage is for the service of the people and if both of you live a life of self-restraint.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

647. LETTER TO AVANTIKA BAI GOKHALE

November 17, 1945

Dear Sister,

I can see your love in everything you do, but you must temper your love with reason. Yesterday I could not go where I intended to go, could not do what I intended to do. I only watched the tamasha¹. Such things give me a fright. I am also past the age when they could interest me. I had intended to inspect all the living quarters and latrines in the sanatorium and to offer suggestions. I had intended to talk to the doctors and joke with the patients. I have to say none of this was done. I had especially brought along Nargisbehn. She could not see anything. I would not take her to watch a tamasha at any time. Impelled by your love I spared three hours out of a busy schedule. These days it is not an easy thing for me to spare three hours. They are not mine, they belong to the people. And you should not be instrumental in my wasting even a minute. Now do this much. I want the estimate of expense incurred on a single hut and also how much out of it was spent on the septic tank. If you can easily procure a plan of the hut and the septic tank, I would like to have it. The septic tank is a good device. There was some rank grass around and it seems valuable water, containing manure, flowing from the tank is going waste. Something had better be done about it. What things do they make at the glass factory?

¹ Traditional musical folk-play of Maharashtra

Blessings from
BAPU

AVANTI KABAI GOKHALE
TALEGAON

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

648. LETTER TO HARBAHI TRIVEDI
November 17, 1945

BHAI HARBHAI,

What are you doing these days? I have no idea at all of your mental state but Chi. Chandu has woken up. She also has written after a long time and that too about you. I am sending a copy of her letter. I want you to send the reply to me.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

649. LETTER TO SUMITRA GANDHI
November 17, 1945

CHI. SUMI,

I have your letter. The less you adorn the letters, the better they look. I realize more and more each day that handwriting can be made into an art. What sort of animal is this “study”? I hope the water shortage is over.

1 Gandhiji uses the English word.
We shall all leave here on the 19th and reach Sevagram on the 21st.

Blessings from

BAPU

SUMITRA GANDHI
PILANI

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

650. LETTER TO V. L. MEHTA

November 17, 1945

BHAI VAIKUNTH,

Your letter contains what one would expect it to contain. My advice is that you should write to Bhai Kumarappa and Satis Babu to send their views. Also mention that this is on my suggestion. I shall form my opinion after that. There is plenty of time, so there is nothing to worry about. Since you will be following my suggestion, I shall have very little to do or to remember and shall be able to give my opinion immediately.

I hope you are all right. Do drop in if you feel like it on the 20th. I, however, see no need for it.

Blessings from

BAPU

VAIKUNTH L. MEHTA
P. O. BOX 472
BOMBAY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

651. LETTER TO T. S. AVINASHLINGAM

November 17, 1945

BHAI AVINASHLINGAM,

If the chairman of a committee sends blessings for some work of his own committee, does it not amount to his blessing himself? Is it proper? At any rate you should spare me.

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

SHRI T.S. AVINASHLINGAM
KASTURBA GANDHI NATIONAL MEMORIAL FUND COMMITTEE
P. O. SHRI RAMAKRISHNA VIDYALAYAM
COIMBATORE DISTRICT

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
652. LETTERS TO INAYATULLA KHAN

November 17, 1945

ALLAMA SAHEB,

I got your letter and two Khaksar officials also came and saw me. I was very happy. I shall reach Bombay on the 19th but that will be my silence day. The silence will end at about 7.30 p.m. At that time I have a meeting with a few Hindustani teachers. On the 20th we have to catch a train for Wardha but still I have the Khaksar officials that you may come at 3 p.m. I shall wait for you then. If you want any change in the time, please send a message to me at the Birla House.

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

653. LETTER TO C. RAJAGOPALACHARI

POONA,
November 18, 1945

MY DEAR C. R.,

Your good letter. Subbaroyan talked to me for a few minutes. He is anxious about you. In a democratic organization and especially one in which violence is eschewed, things will happen as they do. But they must come right in the end. Nobody going there is likely to help. “Experience teaches.” There is much that is going astray. But I don’t worry and work away in faith.

We are off tomorrow morning. I leave Bombay on 20th, leaving Sevagram on 30th November.

Love.

BAPU

From a photostat: G.N. 2113
654. LETTER TO JIVANJI D. DESAI

POONA,
November 18, 1945

CHI. JIVANJI,

Please read the enclosed letter and return it to me with your opinion on what should be done. They have sent the money as royalty on the sales of the translation, but since we are not entitled to it I feel tempted to utilize it for the many other activities under my charge instead of crediting it to the Navajivan account. But then I also feel that I had better send it to you. I am, therefore, sending the cheque herewith. If, now, you yourself feel that the money should not be credited to the Navajivan account, then, and only then, return it to me. At present I am spending money as it comes from different accounts. I do not see any of these to be specially in need of this money. Hence both of us can consider the matter objectively.

I sent you yesterday the pamphlet on constructive programme after revising it with great labour. Inadvertently, it was posted as unregistered packet. I shall, therefore, feel worried till I get an acknowledgment from you. For I have kept no copy of it. But I derive what comfort I can from the story of Newton who, after being slightly upset when the manuscript on which he had been working for many years was destroyed in a fire by somebody, proceeded to write it all over again. And with this thought I keep patience. I hope it will not be lost on the way. But if it is, I will revise another copy. It will mean loss of some time, of course. If, therefore, you receive it safely, spend money on a wire, but if you don’t get it send another copy with your suggestions so that I may start work on it immediately.

Enclosures:
1 cheque and 1 letter

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 9958. Also C.W. 6932. Courtesy: Jivanji D. Desai
655. LETTER TO MADHAVDAS G. KAPADIA

POONA,

November 18, 1945

CHI. MADHAVDAS,

I have read the whole of your letter, I also understand what you say. Is it necessary to enter into any discussion about it? “As ye sow, so shall ye reap” is a law without exception. Nobody can alter it. So we must think only about ourselves. “All relations of a man are selfish in their love.” You have found in Kunvarji a true relation.¹ Blossom under the shade of that Kalpataru and do what you said in your letter to me. I shall then be perfectly happy.

I shall reach Bombay on the 19th noon. I shall be observing silence the whole day. Till two o’clock I shall be busy with the needs of the body. Any time after that you and Kunvarji or others may come if you wish and tell me whatever you wish to in two or three minutes. Otherwise there is no need for you or anybody else to come.

Pretend that I had not come at all.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI MADHAVDAS
C/O SHRI KUNVARJI MEHTA
GANGASADAN, MARWA ROAD
MALAD

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 2728

656. LETTER TO JATINDRA DAS

POONA,

November 18, 1945

CHI. PARAM OR JATINDRA DAS,

I wanted to write to you yesterday, but could not find the time.

¹ Vide also “Letter to Brijkrishna Chandiwala”, 6-11-1945
² Mythical tree that yields all one’s wishes
And today I have your letter. Even now I cannot write at length. You are doing good work. If you try to come over in a hurry, all your efforts will be wasted.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

657. LETTER TO PYARELAL

POONA,
November 18, 1945

CHI. PYARELAL,

I thought I did not have to give you any reply. But that is all right. I am replying now.
1. I regard Prakash as my daughter. There was no idea of pleasing anybody in allowing her to touch me. I decided that she should remain with me while I stayed in Calcutta and then should accompany me to Santiniketan, nowhere else. I still think the same today. Let her come to Calcutta. Then we shall see what happens.
2. I shall arrange Rs. 25/- a month to be sent to you if you so wish.
3. I do not see any need for Sushila to write to Manu. However, if Sushila herself feels that she should send the letter, or another letter, she is free to do so. I am firmly of opinion that it is in her interest and in the interest of everyone that among the three of us only I should correspond with her. I do not think it is necessary to send either of the books to Manu now. But I shall let her know that you have given me the books to be sent to her. I shall do as she desires. That would be best. I feel that it would be somewhat rude to send her the books just like that.

Now that I am writing, let me state that I had understood your wish that I should not use for you terms like ‘poet’ and so on. You did not know the full context. Still, I shall be as cautious as I can be. But habits die hard!

Blessings from
BAPU

From the Gujarati original: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar
CHI. GHANSHYAMDAS,

I have no doubt that you have done everything possible with regard to the land at Nasik. Dinshaw is an eccentric man but he is very good, generous and simple-hearted. In the matter of nature cure he is the only man on whom my eyes are fixed. I shall go on encouraging him in his virtues and, if I can do so, it will be of much help to the patients. Therefore, when I saw that he was himself not keen on going to Nasik, I dropped the matter. With that I also decided to begin the new term of the institution from here and run it for the poor. So far only the rich have come and the poor have remained behind. But now the rich who wish to be admitted here will have to come after the poor. The rich will get the same facilities as the poor. At the same time it is certain that an attempt will be made to observe the rules of cleanliness as meticulously as possible. No doubt it is a difficult task. I should not cultivate such an interest in my declining years. But what lay dormant for years has awakened without any effort on my part. How can I resist it? God’s will alone will prevail. For the time being the institution of which you too are a trustee has been closed. If it is to come into existence out of the activities here, it will. Whatever happens will be proper from all points of view. I shall write to you if I have to go to Nasik or need money to carry on this institution. At present I am just watching. There is some money lying with me. I shall manage with it. Since it is the condition of this trust that the management will not be left in Dinshaw’s hands, you may as well say that the responsibility will mine.

I have read Shivnath Singh’s letter you sent me. It did not make a favourable impression on me. He has written at great length1. I am writing a brief note to him.

Blessings from

BAPU

From the Hindi original: C.W. 8075. Courtesy: G. D. Birla

1The letter dealt with nature cure treatment. The addressee had suggested that Gandhiji might call the writer if he liked the letter.
659. LETTER TO VANAMALA N. PARIKH

POONA,
November 19, 1945

CHI. VANUDI,

Avarice is the roof of all evil. Why are you so stingy? Even at the cost of your life, introduce here and get others to adopt Mani’s cleanliness and neatness. But all this with love. I shall then be assured that you will make the man you marry happy, you yourself will be happy and will serve the country.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 5795. Also C.W. 3018. Courtesy: Vanamala M. Desai

660. LETTER TO G. N. KANITKAR

POONA,
November 19, 1945

BHAI BALUKAKA,

I have received your offering. Observe silence and carry on your work with a sense of detachment.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: C.W. 976. Courtesy: G. N. Kanitkar

661. LETTER TO DUNCAN GREENLEES

ON THE WAY TO SEVAGRAM,
November 19, 1945

MY DEAR DUNCAN,

Your letter. I do hope that I shall be in Madras and that we shall meet. No time for more.

Love.

BAPU

PROF. DUNCAN GREENLEES
BHIMILIPATAM
ANDHRA

From a copy: Pyarelal pepers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
662. LETTER TO KHURshed NAORoJI

ON THE WAY TO SEVAGRAM,
November 19, 1945

DEAR SISTER.

Those who make mistakes with individuals cannot make much success with causes; for the latter are never apart from individuals. What you want to say is that individuals are not to be thought of apart from the causes they may represent or may be induced to represent. But this is all nonsense. Let the God of Truth alone guide us.

BAPU

[PS.] I have no merchant princes. You are at the Conference; send details to Kasturba Fund Secretary.

SHRI KHURshedbeHEN NAORoJI
82 DARYAGANJ, DELHI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

663. LETTER TO ANNE MASCARENE

ON THE WAY TO SEVAGRAM,
November 19, 1945

DEAR SISTER.

I have your letter. What I want to say is that Marybehn should not have come out in public. Now it is done. I have to go to Bengal and Madras. I do not know when I shall settle down at Sevagram.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI MASCARENE
THE STATE CONGRESS
TRIVANDRUM
TRAVANCORE

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 The superscription is in Gujarati.
2 Amritlal V. Thakkar
664. LETTER TO N. G. RANGA

ON THE WAY TO SEVAGRAM,
November 19, 1945

BHAIRANGA,

I have your letter. Follow the dictates of your heart. No matter what I say, if you have doubts you must pause. I know that your first duty is to strengthen the peasant organization in Andhra so that it becomes a model for the whole world. It is difficult for me to go there.

Blessings from
BAPU

PROF. RANGA
NIDUBROLU
ANDHRA

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

665. LETTER TO R. ACHUTHAN

ON THE WAY TO SEVAGRAM,
November 19, 1945

BHAIRACHUTHAN,

I have your letter. But why is it in English? Why not in the national language? Your arguments are correct. Remember that only he who helps himself achieves anything.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI R. ACHUTHAN
CONSTRUCTIVE SECTION
P. O. BANARAS HINDU UNIVERSITY

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
666. LETTER TO KHANDBHAI K. DESAI

November 19, 1945

BHAJ KHANDUBHAI,

What message can a labourer give to a labour union? I have not heard of anyone sending a message to himself.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI KHANDUBHAI DESAI
MAJoor MAHAJAN SANGH
LAL DARWAJA

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

667. LETTER TO INAYATULLA KHAN

BIRLA HOUSE,
November 19, 1945

ALLAMA SAHEB,

I have your letter. I just cannot do as you desire. At 11 a.m. I have a massage. Even otherwise I am busy the whole day. I have not even a minute free. The meeting can be arranged with some difficulty for 3 p.m. It is true that I told those who had come to see me that if the meeting was to be private, I would go to any place. But no private meeting is possible at the place you suggest. The biggest problem is the condition you have laid down. I cannot speak on behalf of the Congress. I can speak for myself and I think I have already conveyed my view to you that though you have taken great pains in drafting the constitution, it is not workable and it cannot appeal to others. I still think as I have said earlier, that only if all the communities are first united at heart and wish to sit together and decide the issue will it be possible to frame a constitution. So what the Congress will do is beside the point. Personally, too, I cannot agree with you on your constitution. As I have said, though there are some good features in it and I appreciate the trouble you have taken, I am afraid we shall not

1 Vide “Letter to Inayatulla Khan”, 1-11-1945

THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
be able to agree at the forthcoming meeting. I had thought and I still think, that whatever the outcome of our meeting might be, we should meet and at least try to understand each other’s point of view.

Your letter gives me no such hope.

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

From a copy of the Urdu: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

668. DISCUSSION WITH HINDUSTANI PRACHAR SABHA WORKERS

BOMBAY,

[November 19, 1945]¹

To a questions why the Urdu script should be imposed on a person who did not like it and wished to learn the national language only through the Devanagari script, Mahatma Gandhi replied:

It is not a question of liking or disliking. If you do not like the Urdu script, then I conclude that you do not like Hindustani. The Urdu script must be learnt. Without effort and sacrifice we cannot dream of winning freedom. So far as the provinces of Bombay, Gujarat and Maharashatra are concerned, the question of learning the Nagari script does not arise at all as everybody knows it already. Then, where does Hindustani Prachar come in? In learning the other script, do not think you are conferring a favour on anyone. It should be considered as your duty. It is a national work and everyone should do it. By learning both the scripts you can better understand both the Hindi and the Urdu developments of the language. I can understand Sanskritized Hindi, but what about the masses? It is our duty to learn both the scripts. Then alone can we honestly serve the country in a humble way. According to me one who does not have a liking for the Urdu script has no liking for swaraj also. The masses do not understand pure Hindi or pure Urdu, so Hindustani should be evolved in such a way that even the illiterate masses can understand it.

Mere slogans would not help in achieving the goal of freedom. Taking as little trouble as possible and looking to your worldly advancement will leave your swaraj just a dream. Nagari and Urdu are both equally dear to me. So when I say learn the Urdu script I have no enmity towards the other script. Our swaraj cannot be given to us as a gift, but we shall have to win it through our untiring efforts.

¹ From The Bombay Chronicle, 25-11-1945

To understand our people and win swaraj for our country, do not be deterred from this small effort of learning the two important scripts of our land. To keep faith, one must be cent per cent faithful.
It is not a bit of bread which you can break up in pieces. The language of a people cannot be divided, it is one and indivisible like Truth. Therefore, whether you like it or not you will have to learn and love Urdu.

As asked whether script should be given as much importance as language,
Gandhiji replied:

Language and script are both necessary in practice. How are we, after all, to solve the question of writing to our own Muslim brethren who know only the other script? If we argue, ‘What have we to do with them?’, then I say why bother about swaraj? I want to learn all the thirteen scripts and want to know them equally well. Had you given one-seventh of the time to the learning of these scripts which you have given to English, you would have learnt all the thirteen scripts by now.
It is not difficult to learn the Urdu script. It can be done with great ease and facility.

A pracharak asked why the Urdu script should not be taught to the student after the Nagari is learnt. Mahatma said:

If I had been a teacher, I would have taught four or five scripts at the same time. I did not take even eight days to learn the Urdu script. There should at least be four or five such teachers who may know the two script perfectly and may be able to teach them. It could be left to the option of the teacher whether he taught the two scripts together or one after the other. But he should examine them in both before giving them a certificate.

Regarding the Hindi Sahitya Sammelan and Babu Purushottam Das Tandon’s attitude to the script issue, Mahatma Gandhi said:

Tandonji is my friend. I love him. We have lived together for a long time. But now, on this question, we are taking two different paths; but we do not stand in each other’s way. Personally, for myself, I want to see Saraswati after the union of Ganga and Jamuna.

_The Hindu, 26-11-1945_
669. LETTER TO INAYATULLA KHAN

BIRLA HOUSE,
November 20, 1945

ALLAMA SAHEB,

I have your letter, which has hurt me deeply. You have totally misunderstood what I said out of great love. I am helpless. What I had told you was never meant for the Press and so far as I am concerned I would like to say that whatever we have been writing to each other should not be sent to the Press. Still, you can send it if you think it fit. Excuse me for not replying in English. You think that if we write in Urdu or any other Indian language it can be misinterpreted, and if we write in English it can mean one thing only. But I hold exactly the opposite view.

From a copy of the Urdu: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

670. STATEMENT TO THE PRESS

WARDHA,
November 21, 1945

I had purposely refrained from correcting or contradicting reports about my shifting to Poona and establishing a nature cure hospital on an extensive plot of ground in Poona or even Nasik. All this was wrong, as most unauthentic reports in the Press are. These have always cost me dear, perhaps the public more than me. There was, however, a grain of truth in the ounce of rumour. Dr. Dinshaw Mehta knew me before I knew him and, ever since I have known him, I have liked him. I have been myself a nature cure man before all known to me. Of them, Dr. Dinshaw has made the greatest impression on me and he is a dreamer like me. He wants a nature cure university; so do I. He has made over to a Trust his concerns at Poona and Sinhgad. Their nominal cost, according to the schedules to the Trust, is, in round figures, Rs. 50,000. I have allowed myself to be one of the Trustees. The other two are Dr. Mehta himself and Mr. Jehangir Patel who is interested in nature cure. Hitherto Dr. Mehta’s institution has been meant for monied men and then for as many poor people as he could safely take. Patients have all been residential.

From the 1st of January next, this institution will be devoted to the service of the poor. The rich will be taken only if they can accommodate themselves to remain with the poor, and expect no more space or comforts than the poor will get at this institution. The guarantee will be that the standard of cleanliness, shorn of luxury, will be the highest attainable in any institution of the kind. Treatment will be both indoor and outdoor. Outdoor will naturally be more than indoor.

The Birlas have interested themselves in me for years. And they were prepared to give me in Nasik as much land with buildings as were required for the institution. But Dr. Dinshaw was not wholeheartedly inclined to favour the Nasik idea, unless I consented to include in the Trust the going concerns at Poona too. I could not shoulder the burden. Hence the Nasik project had to be dropped, for the time being at any rate.¹ Dr. Dinshaw will still remain the sole Director so far as the technical part is concerned. This institution, if it is to grow at all, will require the silent blessings of the poor, the financial support of the rich, active co-operation of genuine naturopaths of India and sympathy of the medical fraternity. Its present site is too small for the requirements of the poor. Moreover, it will largely depend upon the leaseholder whether the institution can in any case remain located on the present site.

The Hitavada, 22-11-1945

671. TELEGRAM TO AMTUSSALAAM

WARDHAGANI,

*November 21 [1945]*²

AMTULSALAAM CARE HUMAYUN KABIR
26 AMRALI AVENUE
CALCUTTA

YOUR LETTER. SORRY ABOUT ILLNESS. DON'T WORRY. JOIN ME CALCUTTA WHEN QUITE RESTORED.

BAPU

From a photostat: G.N. 488

¹ Vide also “Letter to G. D. Birla”, 4-11-1945 and “Letter to G. D. Birla”, 18-11-1945

² The year is illegible in the source. However it is inferred from the reference to the addressee’s illness, vide “Letter to Amtussalaam”, 23-11-1945 and Gandhiji’s visit to Calcutta where he reached on December 1, 1945.
672. TELEGRAM TO H. L. SHARMA
WARDHAGANI,
November 21, 1945

DR. SHARMA
KHURJA
RECEIVED BOTH LETTERS.
Bapuki Chhayamen Mere Jivanke Solah Varsh, p. 343

673. LETTER TO CHANDRASHANKAR SHUKLA
November 21, 1945

CH. CHANDRASHANKAR,

Just now as I start writing, your letter is placed before me. Of course I do get news of you. And when the Sardar is there what more can one want? I have secured the books you recommended. I do want to glance through them but what am I to do? Please send Joad’s book when you come across it. Also Hodge’s. I understand about your health but I am glad that you are able somehow to carry on your work. Reading your letter for a moment I wondered if it was Mahadev’s. You and a few others have been copying his handwriting but you beat all the rest.

Blessings from
BAPU

CHANDRASHANKAR SHUKLA
KRISHNA BHAVAN
BANGDI MATA’S ROAD
RAOPURA, BARODA

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

674. LETTER TO KAMALNAYAN BAJAJ
SEVAGRAM,
November 22, 1945

CHI. KAMALNAYAN,

Since you will certainly not be back before I leave Sevagram, I am writing you this letter. You should know that the Nagpur Bank was Jamanalal’s, which he had started for the service of the people. The idea was, and ought to be even now, that it should serve as a savings bank for the poor. The bank, therefore, must never crash. In other words, the Nagpur Bank should crash only when the Bank of England or the Imperial Bank do or when there is some great natural calamity. That is, it must have the reputation that it will be the last not the first to crash. That you are Jamnalal’s heir really means that you are heir to that reputation, and it was because of this belief of mine that I advised the Jallianwala Trust to let its funds remain in the Nagpur Bank and to try to transfer still more deposits to it. I have given the same advice to Kumarappa, namely, that he should deposit the Village Industries Association’s funds in that Bank. That confidence must not prove to have been misplaced. But the moment I alighted at the railway station yesterday Bharatan told me quite the opposite. He of course spoke gently and since I am the President of the Association, asked for my opinion. Kumarappa had written to me and asked me whether he should deposit the Village Industries funds in the . . . .\footnote{Addressee’s cousin, Radhakrishna Bajaj} Bank. Vaikunthbhai had advised in favour of it and, therefore, Kumarappa had assumed that I also would agree. But I expressed doubt and did not give my consent. Kumarappa, however, had already deposited the money. But now we must withdraw it. In that case we shall lose the interest. And what if, despite our readiness to lose the interest, we cannot withdraw it. So Bharatan asked my advice. Kumarappa, is not here just now. But I told Bharatan that if the Bank people objected, we must put up a fight and insist on withdrawing the money, for otherwise I felt the money was insecure and it would be like killing a buffalo for a leather thong. I do not know even today what kind of an establishment the . . . Bank is. I do have some vague idea about it, of course. But I generally dislike and distrust new banks. I would not, therefore, readily agree to deposit money in them. Then the question arose: if not in the . . . Bank, why should we keep the money in the Nagpur Bank? Is it also not a comparatively new bank? Comparatively yes. Bharatan then added that it was being rumoured that the Nagpur Bank would close down in a month or two because it had incurred losses and it was feared that the deposits were not safe. He suggested, therefore, that it would be wise to withdraw the money in time. I did not believe the rumour and remained undisturbed in my mind, but I wanted to know what was at the back of the rumour. Radhakrishna was with me at the time. I asked him. He explained the position. I felt reassured and told Bharatan that we must deposit the money in the Nagpur Bank and nowhere else. However, I felt that I must inform you. Hence this letter. Think over this and be on your guard. It is no ordinary matter to be Jamnalal’s heir. You are his heir because you are his son. I am his heir because I am his adopted father. My interest is to see that his name remains untarnished. You and I shall have proved ourselves his true heirs only if the ventures he started are not merely kept up but become models of their kind.

1 Charles Hodge

It may be that you will earn a lot of money and be reckoned a millionaire. But what is to happen to the philanthropic ventures and the Bank he started in the last years of his life? What is to happen to the cause of the poor cow, of khadi, of the Village Industries Association? Did I not settle at Wardha at his behest, ignoring Sardar’s anger born out of his love? He could have easily secured for me ten orchards against one here, but he could not find for me a Jamnalal there and, therefore, I let go the ten orchards. And now, I do not wish even to feel that I have lost Jamnalal. This rests entirely in your hands, in Radhakrishna’s and Janakidevi’s. Janakidevi, however, is uneducated and the hope of her shaping up which I had cherished has dried up after Jamnalal’s passing away. I therefore cannot explain to her the position about the Bank and have not even tried. Radhakrishna is very clever. He has practical sense but cannot be said to be educated. You have been to England and have, besides, made some mark as a business man. As for self-confidence, you have more of it than is good for you. Be that as it may, as heir to Jamnalal and head of the family it is to you that I have to look up. I, therefore, advise you to do the best you can to bring glory to your father’s name as a philanthropist. If you think it beyond your capacity, be humble and caution me in time. Not all sons can or do follow in the footsteps of their benevolent fathers. If, therefore, you also fail to do so, nobody can point a finger at you. And in any case who am I to do so? But as a grandfather I should at least advise you and caution you. Having done so, I would quietly accept what you do. I think I have said enough. Ponder over it carefully and let me know, at any rate, whether the advice I have given to Bharatan is correct or not.

_Blessings from_

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 3058
I expect much from the students who have come here for study. Not only I but also those who take interest in this work, expect much from you. There are many educated people in India who criticize and run down our programme. Some of them oppose it on principle. At present I do not want to say anything about them, though I have a ready answer for them. But we should listen to those who have some interest in this work and wish to take some part in it. Such people hope for much from khadi work, village industries, gosha and work of Harijan uplift. We should therefore make strenuous efforts to fulfil their expectations. If you have come here in order merely to earn your livelihood, then that hope will not be realized.

Many people study in Government colleges. They get degrees there. They think that with that education they will earn money and fame and at least become clerks in some Government office, or if not, they can certainly get jobs as peons. And they become peons not for the sake of work, but in the hope of getting promotions in future and making some money on the side. This means that they believe that once they enter Government service, their life is secure. This is a matter which needs careful thinking. The Government has provided several facilities in their colleges. They have provided spacious buildings, offered large scholarships and given travelling facilities. How can we compete with all this?

I have already shown several ways of solving this problem. You have not come here for comforts or for the sake of salary. If you want to succeed in your aim bear in mind that you have not come here merely to learn crafts. Of course you have to learn crafts but you should not rest content with that. Artisans are already there in villages. They have been doing the same work from generation to generation. How can you compete with them? Do learn the process, but along with that you must acquire scientific knowledge. We should think again and again why we are doing this work, how we should proceed about it, how we can link it with swaraj. Swaraj has to be attained through non-violence. There are crores of people living in the villages of 1 The institution started functioning from October 2, 1945.

---

India. We have to emancipate them, serve them and make them understand the value of this work. If you believe that the mill-owners can feed the people and if you are satisfied with it then you should not study here. But the mill-owners can provide for only a handful. Mill-owners never think at all of the crores of people. I have not come across any mill-owner so far who has told me that mills can provide work for the millions.

You have come here to accomplish a Herculean task. You have to serve crores of people. It is immaterial that you are only sixty-one in number. But you will have accomplished something if you leave after gaining scientific knowledge. All the sixty-one of you have to become guardians or trustees for the millions of people. If your example is followed, the number will increase. This Vidyalaya is like the Gangotri1. Its flow will swell like that of the Ganga. This has been my dream for the last 25 years. The hope that I have cherished has not yet been fulfilled. Still I am not disappointed at all because I never lose heart. A great enterprise does not move quickly. Non-violence marches forward slowly but steadily. Its way is straight. It will overtake those who move with the speed of an aeroplane. This is my firm belief.

The knowledge that you gain here is to be imparted to the villagers. You have to create interest in them for such knowledge. But this is not an easy task. I have been here in Sevagram for the last so many years. The headquarters of the Charkha Sangh, Gramodyog Sangh, Goseva Sangh and so on are situated here. There are very good workers also. The facilities that are not available anywhere else are available here. In spite of all this, I have not been able to do what I wanted to do. But you should not lose heart because of that. You should ask yourselves why we have not been able to do it. The teachers should have an answer for this. Those who are sitting here are neither hypocrites nor cheats. They are sitting here with a firm belief that sooner or later the key to this problem will come into their hands. We have to multiply Sevagrams. We have to think not of a single village but the whole of India. I sometimes think of the whole world as well. If we had to take care of Sevagram only or had to work without concern for non-violence and truth, then we could have accomplished the work but that would not have removed the sufferings of this world. India is a tiny spot in the world and in it Sevagram is but a speck. Whatever is possible in Sevagram can also be possible in the world. I am prepared to spend 100 years for it.

I shall teach you whatever I know if you are prepared to learn it with patience. But it will not help you to earn money. I can easily earn a thousand or two thousand rupees. I stayed for 20 years in South Africa, I can speak some broken English also. Moreover, these days I am considered a mahatma too! So anybody will give me two thousand rupees. But I don’t want all this. On the strength of it I can collect crores of rupees, but not for myself. So far as I am concerned I want nothing more than plain bread. In the same way you should also be content with plain bread. The work here is not easy. If you are not satisfied with the work here you should leave. You can earn enough money elsewhere but if you wish to stay here, you should stay with a contented mind. If you have this feeling that you are one with the millions, then you will succeed.

1 The source of the Ganga in the Himalayas

You have come here from different Provinces. You eat together and live together. Your heart should be clean and you should feel that we are all one. I have started saying that we are all Harijans—indeed Bhangis. Only when you imbibe such an attitude, will our work succeed. You will have to be alert every moment and carry on the work. You will be examined and you will be given a certificate. But that will not prove your worth. The certificate will not be for showing to others. It will enable you to know that you have reached a certain standard and that you have to proceed further. Today certificates do carry weight but we have to change our values, change our way of life and also our attitude towards these things.

[From Hindi]

Khadi Jagat, December 1945

676. LETTER TO AMTUSSALAAM

SEVAGRAM,
November 23, 1945

CHI. AMTUL SALAAM,

I am dictating this in Gujarati in order to save time. I got your letter. I had expected to see you here, instead of which I saw your letter full of real distress. It was not the lamentation usual in your letters. I felt in it, instead, your sorrow at having fallen ill at the wrong moment. I too, therefore, felt unhappy. Maganbhai¹, too, gave me a vivid description. And then I heard from Jajuji² such a beautiful account of your spirit of service and courage that my heart overflowed with joy. We shall now be meeting in a few days. Do not be carried away by your joy and run up to Sodepur. Get well first and then come.

¹ Maganbhai P. Desai
² Shrikrishnadas Jaju

I am glad that you have found shelter in Humayun’s house. I am in good health. Those who were ill here are gradually recovering.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 502

677. LETTER TO MADALASA

November 23, 1945

CHI. CRAZY MADALASA,

I have your letter. Now that Shrimanji is there, do as he advises. You have too many advisers. That is bad. You should listen only to one person whom you respect and follow his advice. Do not listen to anybody else, and if someone comes to talk to you just close your ears. You will then quickly recover. And don’t worry in any case. Since you have given birth to a child, you must bring him up well. It will be enough if, for his sake at least, you can forget your craziness and become, if not a jnani, at least a sensible woman.

Blessings from
BAPU

[From Gujarati]

Panchven Putrako Bapuke Ashirvad, pp. 326-7

678. LETTER TO LAKSHMI NARAYAN GADODIA

SEVAGRAM,
November 23, 1945

BHAJ GADODIAJI,

I got all your letters and Dr. Sharma’s and quite a number of them, I may say, but I did not think it proper to get involved in all these things. Now I see that I shall have to devote some time to the matter. You emphatically proclaim your honesty and I have as yet no reason to doubt it. You have already given me the reason for believing that your conscience is clear and I have accepted it despite opposition from others. But the attacks of Dr. Sharma and others on your attitude towards khadi have shaken my opinion. I wrote one or two strong letters to Dr. Sharma. I am sending you the letter I got in reply. He insists that it should be sent to you. You can give whatever reply you want to and send it along with his letter.

I am writing this letter with a heavy heart. Dr. Sharma’s complaint is not a new one. He had the same complaint when he had come to see me a few months after my release from jail. But I did not pay much attention to it. Let Chi. Saraswati also read this letter. She may also say what she has to.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

679. LETTER TO SHARAYU DHOTRE

November 24, 1945

CHI. SARAYU,

I am glad to have your letter. But I continue to have doubts about the propriety of what you are doing. Anyway it will be enough if you work for the well-being of the person whom you consider your husband and do not have the slightest lustful desire for anyone else. I shall be happy if you write to me sometimes.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

680. LETTER TO BABUBHAI

SEVAGRAM,
November 24, 1945

BHAI BABUBHAI,

I have your letter. I am not in the least satisfied. I may be mistaken, but how can I say I am satisfied when I am not? I can see no place for what you say in the dharma that I have known and observed. Dharma Sanghs are not formed that way. Your support for English is very lame. If you could only bring credit to Gujarat! If you could do so even now I would consider it enough. Its fragrance will spread on its own. Give the enclosed letter\(^1\) to Sharayu.

\[\text{Blessings from} \]
\[\text{BAPU} \]

AHMEDABAD
From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

681. LETTER TO NAVIN GANDHI

November 24, 1945

CHI. NAVIN,

I have your letter. It is not very clear but it will do for my purpose. I am sending it to Dr. Krishnavarma. I wish you would learn to describe things clearly as they are.

\[\text{Blessings from} \]
\[\text{BAPU} \]

NAVIN GANDHI
45 NEHRU ROAD
VILE PARLE
From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

682. TELEGRAM TO DAUD GHAZNAVI

[On or after November 24, 1945]\(^2\)

MAULANA DAUD GHAZNAVI\(^1\)

DR. GOPICHAND FREE DO HIS WILL.

GANDHI

From the original: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

\(^1\) Vide the preceding item.
\(^2\) This was in reply to the addressee’s telegram dated November 24, seeking Gandhiji’s permission for Dr. Gopichand Bhargava to contest the election to the Punjab Legislative Assembly.
\(^3\) President, Punjab Provincial Congress Committee
683. TELEGRAM TO DR. GOPICHAND BHARGAVA

WARDHA,
[On or after November 24, 1945] ¹

ACT AS YOU WISH.

BAPU

From the original: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

684. LETTER TO SIR EVAN M. JENKINS

SEVAGRAM,
November 25, 1945

DEAR SIR EVAN,

Under pressure of work and preparations for shifting from Poona to Sevagram I had overlooked acknowledging your letter² of 9th instant regarding Shri Basuda Singh. Meanwhile, I saw in the papers and from private telegrams received from Bihar that His Excellency had commuted the death sentence. Will you please therefore convey my thanks to His Excellency for the commutation?

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

Gandhiji’s Correspondence with the Government, 1944-47, pp. 56-7

685. LETTER TO SIR EVAN M. JENKINS

SEVAGRAM,
November 25, 1945

DEAR SIR EVAN,

I thank you for your letter of 16th instant acknowledging mine of 13th instant³ regarding Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

Gandhiji’s Correspondence with the Government, 1944-47, p. 58

¹ Vide the preceding item.
² It informed Gandhiji that execution of Basuda Singh had been stayed as his mercy petition was under consideration of the U. P. Governor.
³ Vide “Letter to Sir Evan M. Jenkins”, 13-11-1945
DEAR SIR EVAN,

I write this in continuation of my letter\(^1\) of 10th October. Since then I have seen other such accounts in the papers and now I have with me a young man (Shri Prabhu Dayal Vidyarthi) who came to me while he was yet in his teens, without being recommended by anybody, as a poor youngster. This was in the year 1935. Ever since then he has never been out of my observation. He was arrested in connection with the 1942 disturbances, and has lately been discharged. He came to Wardha in a dilapidated condition. I was then at Poona. He reported his arrival and I telegraphed to him to come there so that I could look after him better and, if necessary, get Dr. Mehta’s assistance at his sanatorium where I was staying. He narrates tales of terrible torture, into the details of which I do not wish to go at this stage.\(^2\)

On top of this I have received a communication from Dr. Lohia’s friends and they tell me that Dr. Lohia has gone through torture himself. He is an able, cultured man who sacrificed a position of ease and luxury for the sake of the cause of India’s independence. I know him well and, through him, also his father.

It is difficult to disbelieve all the accounts that have appeared in the Press and the two incidents mentioned above. I suggest that His Excellency goes deeper into the matter and not reject the statements as an exag-geration undeserving of any attention. I take comfort from the fact that in your letter of 1st November in reply to mine of 10th October, you tell me that though His Excellency believes the story to be exaggerated, he is making further investigations. I plead for investigation into all other such statements and, if he proposes to do so, I am prepared to send you such details as I possess about the two

---

\(^1\) Vide “Letter to E. M. Jenkins”, 10-10-1945

\(^2\) Writing to the Secretary of State on March 5, 1946, the Viceroy said: “It has now been established that Vidyarthi was never brought to Delhi and that his allegations are a complete fabrication. Devdas Gandhi has admitted this . . . .” The Transfer of Power, “Memorial to Lord Elgin”, 8-11-1906

\(^3\) Vide footnote 1, “Letter to Sir Evan M. Jenkins”, 7-11-1945 cases mentioned here and others about which I may be able to speak with some confidence.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

Gandhiji’s Correspondence with the Government, 1944-47, p. 63

687. NOTE TO G. V. MAVALANKAR

Silence Day, Monday, November 26, 1945

You should wish to live up to 125 years for the sake of service and go on doing more and more service. If I am the only one to cherish such a wish, I would dry up like a lone tree.

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 1256; also Sansmarano

688. LETTER TO RAMANAND TEERTH

SEVAGRAM,
November 26, 1945

BHAJ RAMANAND SWAMI,

I have your letter. As I have said earlier, you should not approach me for advice. Pandit Jawaharlalji is the President. You should ask him and do as he advises.

I hope you have recovered by now.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

689. LETTER TO BHARATAN KUMARAPPA

SEVAGRAM,
November 26, 1945

CHI. BHARATAN,

Read at least this much Hindi. I am not taking you for Harijan. This is just one of the possibilities. You are not bound in any way.

Blessings from

BAPU

From the copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 The addressee had gone to Sevagram to seek Gandhiji’s blessings on his birthday. As it was a silence day Gandhiji wrote this for him.
690. TALK WITH MEMBERS OF HYDERABAD STATE CONGRESS

8 p. m., November 26, 1945

I have said this after careful consideration. Earlier I said nothing as everything was in a mess. Now it is a different thing. I have read it. I am myself quite unhappy that I am not able to guide you properly. This much I can say. Do send a reply that the ban should be lifted and the State Congress should be recognized. For the rest Jawaharlalji should be consulted.

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

691. LETTER TO MANIBEHN PATEL

[SEVAGRAM] 1
November 27, 1945

CHI. MANI,

I got your two letters. I am sending you the letter meant for Kanjibhai 2. Post it along with your letter.

Ask them to consider one thing about the Yeravda Pact. It has a provision regarding ten years’ limit. But it is not there in the 1935 Act. Can it, then, be legally enforced? Let Pakvasa 3 think about it. He may, if necessary, consult counsel. My own view is clear. The law will not help. But there can be no two opinions that politically we can fight. It will have to be considered, of course, whether it would be advisable to raise the issue just now. But we shall discuss this after you arrive here.

Blessings from
BAPU

[From Gujarati]
Bapuna Patro—4: Manibehn Patelne. p. 137

1 The source however has Poona.
2 Kanaiyalal Nanabhai Desai, President, Gujarat pradesh Congress Committee, from 1946 to 1956
3 Mangaldas Pakvasa, President of the Bombay Legislative Council
692. LETTER TO SHARDA G. CHOKHAWALA

SEVAGRAM,
November 27, 1945

CHI. BABUDI,

I have your letter. I shall be very happy if you get well soon. I am leaving on the 30th. I hope to hear about you even during my tour. Chimanlal1 is accompanying me.

Blessings from
BAPU

From the Gujarati original: C.W. 10064. Courtesy: Sharda G. Chokhawala

693. LETTER TO MADHAVDAS G. KAPADIA

SEVAGRAM,
November 27, 1945

CHI. MADHAVDAS,

I have your long letter. I read your plan of work. I wish that you will go on serving according to it. Take Dr. Kesani’s treatment and get well. I understand about Dr. Krishnavarma. You should have a frank talk with him. I am of course going to do that. Others also who criticize him must write plainly. I know of no case where mincing of words has cured anyone. My impression is that it makes people worse. To make indirect suggestions and then expect good results means that for the sake of improving something, one may do wrong and speak untruth.

I received Kunvarji’s letter. I am not writing to him today. I am saving time.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 2726

1 Chimanlal N. Shah, addressee’s father
694. LETTER TO JEHANGIR P. PATEL

November 27, 1945

BHAJ JEHANGIR,

It is good you have reached there. I am considering sending someone from here for keeping the accounts and so I have been doing a lot of thinking. We would like to have all possible help from you.

I hope Mother is well.

Blessings from
BAPU

JEHANGIR PATEL
PATEL BROTHERS
10 CHURCHGATE STREET
FORT, BOMBAY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

695. LETTER TO ZOHRA CHAWDA

November 27, 1945

CHI. ZOHRA,

I have your letter. I did not know you had such a sense of humour. I was very happy to learn that you had made one of the rooms shine like a mirror. Do the same with the other rooms and all of you then use them as mirrors. This will save the expense on a mirror.

You slept a lot. If you keep sleeping like that, you will recover quickly. A sick person should sleep as much as he can.

I have Vanu’s letter but I am not writing to her today. I am very busy.

Blessings from
BAPU

ZOHRABEHN

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
696. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA

SEVAGRAM,
November 27, 1945

CHI. KRISHNACHANDRA.

Champabehn’ is going to stay here in the same way as the others do. About Sarala’s education I have made it clear to her that while she stays here, she can neither have tuition from outside nor expect any other special facilities. She can receive only the education available here and she has to do as much work for the Ashram as her body will permit. She will have to be content with the food provided here and she will have to bear all expenses. She already knows spinning and other activities.

1. Efforts should be made gently to make Kanjibhai abide by the rules or else he must be suffered with love. Only love can understand the language of love. It would be a crime to make a mechanical approach.

2. I have already had a talk with Kailasbehn. She will stay in the Ashram. This is a similar problem. Here too the key lies in love. The same applies to Om Prakash.

3. I would love to keep Govind in the Talimi Sangh but only if Sankaran is convinced.

4. I do not know anything about Mavjibhai. I have just met him and his wife. With regard to them do what Kishorelalbhai and Naraharibhai say.

5. There is nothing to be said about Govind Reddy.

6. I should be happy to make the acquaintance of Mohan Singhji but I have no time. I would like to utilize his services as a blacksmith and carpenter.

7. While looking after the management, it will be good if you can take classes in the spare time. But I too have looked after the management, haven’t I? For me management itself had become a [training] class. I was a teacher as well as a pupil. The manager keeps an eye on everyone and sees how he sits, how he eats and what he

---

1 Vide “Letter to Champa R. Mehta”, 6-11-1945
2 Mohan Singh Thakur; vide “Letter to Mohan Singh Thakur”, 30-11-1945

376 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
reads. If within this framework, you can have a class, it will be all right. For instance, at Kotharab, all education was given in the Ashram. I had made a list of all those who were qualified to teach. Probably only one or two hours were reserved for teaching. I had assigned some work to myself too, and I used to do my share.

8. Workers have got to learn all the processes concerning cotton. Let this instruction be imparted at Khadi Vidyalaya. The three R’s must be taught. I shall not be able to go into the details of how it is to be done.

9. Even if Vinoba takes selections from Al Fateha and Mazda it will have to be in Arabic and Pehlavi. They can be accompanied by Vinoba’s translation to bring out the meaning. In my view there is some value in reciting them in the original. I do not take the position that everything should be in the mother tongue or the national language.

10. You are right.

11. What you say is correct. I am used to one room only, and I have not had two separate rooms. It is the same thought with a slight difference at the Christ Seva Sangh.

12. I have written at length about clothing. Go through it.

13. Now I myself take spices. But I hope I do that only by way of medicine. I take them at the instance of Dr. Mehta, but I am not even aware of their existence in my food. The significant change is that we have now realized they have as much place in medicine as they have in taste. Wheat is cooked in so many different ways for taste and we also make roti out of it to fill the stomach.

14. The quantity of milk is all right. Maybe, even one lb. is enough.

15. Gajraj has started going to the Talimi Sangh. I think we should keep him there full time.

16. Think things over and write to me further if you wish. There are two sides to it.

17. Write to Purushottam Gandhi in this regard.

18. Consider in this matter the person concerned and the

---

1 From the Koran and the Zend Avesta for inclusion in the Ashram Prayer
2 ibid
3 Elder son of Narandas Gandhi convenience of the Ashram. I may agree to allow a deserving person [to stay in the Ashram] even for eight days.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4537

697. LETTER TO MAHESH DUTT MISHRA

November 27, 1945

CHI. MAHESH,

I have your postcard. I never thought that you were good for nothing. Do write to me when you are on leave. I can send for you if it is convenient.

My address: Khadi Pratishthan, Sodepur, 24 Parganas.

Blessings from

BAPU

MAHESH DUTT
9 HAMILTON ROAD
ALLAHABAD

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

698. LETTER TO URMILA DEVI

SEVAGRAM,

November 27, 1945

CHI. URMILA,

I hope you will understand my Hindi. I shall certainly talk to Jawaharlal.

Arrangements will be made for you here. You will get a room with a lavatory near by. You will be able to cook for yourself.

I shall be busy with my work in Sodepur but you can come whenever you wish.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
699. LETTER TO INAYATULLA KHAN

SEVAGRAM,
November 27, 1945

ALLAMA SAHEB¹,

I have your letter of the 21st instant. I am sorry and surprised that you have again misinterpreted my letter. I had not suggested that because the correspondence between us was still going on you should not have your letter published. I had only expressed my view that this correspondence should not be released to the press. However, if you think it proper, you may have it published. You are right in saying that Dastagir² can come here if he so desires. I had not said I would comment on each separate clause of the constitution you have drafted. I had only said that if broad questions are prepared in regard to it, I could try to reply to them. But from your letter I have begun to fear that you may misunderstand anything I may say. Be that as it may, if you formulate a few questions for me, I shall give you written replies to them. It is unnecessary for Dastagir to come just to collect my replies. Besides there is not even enough time for that. But whatever you send at this address will reach me wherever I may be.

I have got one more complaint, namely, why do you write to me in English?

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

¹ The Khaksar Leader popularly known as Allama Mashriqui
² Ahmed Dastagir
700. WHY THE INSISTENCE ON THE YARN CLAUSE

November 27/28, 1945

This is an old argument. One wants to do many good things but is too lazy. However, when a rule is made the work becomes easy. Then one finds that one has gained the strength to do the work one could not do before. By making the yarn clause compulsory, we do not coerce people. We only make it easy for those who want to spin. How long can they spin who have no heart in it? It will be hypocritical if they spin as a demonstration. Hyprocrites only do harm to themselves. They cannot harm khadi in any way. I would in fact go so far as to say that he who takes up spinning out of a desire for praise will gradually develop an interest in the activity and then continue to spin willingly. If even after long practice he cannot find interest in spinning, if he still finds it a tedium he will give up khadi. That will not harm us in any way.

If the khadi bhandars close down because of the yarn clause they well may. And I do not care whether anyone buys khadi or not. I do not wish to run a shop. I want people to learn spinning. In Bombay 300 or 350 charkhas are plied. But this number means nothing. What I want is that there should be as many charkhas plying there as there are homes. If the cities are to imbibe non-violence there is no other way. The Government have the force that destroys; I have the charkha. The charkha alone can save us from destructive force. All other methods are useless.

If the enforcement of the yarn clause results in reduced sales of khadi and if the consequent loss forces us to close down the khadi bhandars, we may close them down. We cannot maintain khadi bhandars to sell khadi. You will say that if khadi bhandars in the city close down we shall have to sell khadi in the villages and that khadi cannot sell in the villages as it can in the cities. I agree that khadi cannot sell in the villages and it should not. Khadi is not to be sold in the villages, it is to be worn there. It is to be spun and worn. Rather than that we should have to get licences from the Government for khadi bhandars it is better that khadi dies, it is better that the khadi

---

1 According to the source this is a summary of what Gandhiji had said at discussions with the Charkha Sangh workers on November 27 and 28.

2 It had been suggested that those who could not tender yarn for the purchase of khadi should be allowed to buy it for cash, and that making the tendering of yarn compulsory would amount to coercion.
shops close down. Khadi cannot survive if it has to depend on others for its survival. Then it will be its lot to disappear. Once you understand the idea behind khadi you will not be nervous. You will not wonder how khadi bhandars and khadi centres will carry on. Since we have taken that step, since we have dared, we must be prepared to face difficulties. If we have to suffer set-backs we must be prepared for it.

You ask about woollens and silks. Who wears them? Can the poor do so? Why should we take all the trouble for a few rich people? These things cannot become universal. We may certainly keep stocks of woollens and silks in khadi bhandars as we keep other things there but we must understand that that is no part of our work. We may not apply the yarn clause to woollens and silks. We may not ask for yarn when selling these. Do we ask for yarn when selling other village handicrafts? Woollens and silks come in that category. If we remain steadfast, the importance of khadi will not diminish. If we think of meeting the expenditure of khadi bhandars out of the proceeds from the sale of woollens and silks, it will not help khadi, it will only harm it. If we carry on the khadi activity with the help of woollens and silks we shall become crippled. We shall not be able to carry on with the khadi work. Khadi work can sustain itself. It does not require dependence on anyone.

You ask about woollens and silks. Who wears them? Can the poor do so? Why should we take all the trouble for a few rich people? These things cannot become universal. We may certainly keep stocks of woollens and silks in khadi bhandars as we keep other things there but we must understand that that is no part of our work. We may not apply the yarn clause to woollens and silks. We may not ask for yarn when selling these. Do we ask for yarn when selling other village handicrafts? Woollens and silks come in that category. If we remain steadfast, the importance of khadi will not diminish. If we think of meeting the expenditure of khadi bhandars out of the proceeds from the sale of woollens and silks, it will not help khadi, it will only harm it. If we carry on the khadi activity with the help of woollens and silks we shall become crippled. We shall not be able to carry on with the khadi work. Khadi work can sustain itself. It does not require dependence on anyone.

No one can kill khadi. How can mills do so? Mills may themselves be destroyed. We do not worry on that account. All the activities concerned with khadi, right from the picking of cotton to the weaving of khadi, should be carried on by the khadi bhandars. Selling of khadi is only a minor activity. Kakubhai is the secretary of the Bombay khadi bhandar. I want to see how skilled he is. I want to see in his hand not a pen but a charkha. He should be an expert in all the processes employed in khadi. If I were in a bhandar I would spin, I would card. We have to teach people spinning and weaving through the bhandars. Today we do try to teach people how to ply the charkha. But if khadi is to reach every home we must teach people ginning, carding and all the other processes. I do not much care for buying slivers. One should make slivers oneself. Today machine-made slivers are used. The practice must stop. Everyone should card his own cotton, make his own slivers and then spin. Only then can we say that we have adopted khadi. I have become a lover of hand-carding. Even inferior cotton such as mathia, hand-carded, can yield yarn of the fineness of 20 counts. The mills cannot produce yarn of a count higher than six or seven from this cotton. I prefer hand-carding to carding with a bow. It does not expose one to the risk either of consumption or asthma. Even a queen in her palace can easily take this up. Even children and old men can card and make slivers. It is a simple and easy activity.

Today we must not think of spreading khadi by carrying it about on our backs and hawking it. We have not to give anyone ready-made khadi. We shall say, ‘take this charkha, take this cotton, card it, make slivers and spin. Get the weaver in your village to weave it and then wear it.’ I would in fact say that the khadi bhandars not only should not have khadi, they should not even have slivers and cotton. If people demand them we may give them cotton and the necessary tools and arrange for spinning to be taught. You will then see that the country will have no dearth of khadi or cloth as such. Cloth is frequently rationed and still cloth famine persists. I can remove it. If I was made responsible for it, I could provide cloth to everyone. I am going to Bengal. If they do as I desire, I shall see that there will be no cloth famine there.

You ask if you should provide khadi for hospitals. For where will the patients find yarn, how will they be able to spin? Similarly there are the Congress committees, the district boards, the banks. Then there are exhibitions, Congress meetings and so on, which require khadi worth thousands of rupees. Where can they all find the yarn? Would it not be right to give them khadi without insisting on yarn being tendered? I say that if these institutions cannot tender yarn they should give up the idea of khadi. They can borrow the yarn, they can make their members spin or they can obtain it from friends. I want to allow no exceptions to the rule. I have taken in hand the nature cure clinic of Dinshaw Mehta at Poona. Do you think I can use mill cloth there? I said to Dinshaw, ‘I shall give you my yarn and you can buy khadi in exchange.’ Everyone will have to give yarn, be he a raja or a maharaja.

The yarn clause allows for buying yarn from the neighbours, but this is against my intention. I do not want this. What I have said is that people may take yarn from their neighbour but they may not pay for it. We do not take things from our friends by paying for them. That would be commerce. If we do not have something we take it from the neighbours and later when we get it ourselves, we return it. As a good neighbour he may not take it back but in any case no payment is involved.

There is in the resolution also the provision for one’s servant doing the spinning. It is the same as the members of one’s family spinning and one tendering the yarn in one’s name. But it would not be right if someone were to employ a servant specifically for spinning because that is the same as buying the yarn. If a servant employed for household work spends a little time on spinning for his employer we can have no objection. At the Times of India office, Bombay, they wanted some khadi. They came to me and asked, ‘Where shall we find the yarn?’ I said, ‘You have so many peons and workers in your office who do nothing but paste addresses. Allow them an hour or two every day for spinning. Teach them the art. And use the yarn so produced to buy khadi.’

I suggested spinning clubs being organized in cities. But I see a different meaning has been put upon what I had said. The Club at Bombay became an agency for the sale of yarn. Workers are employed who spin for wages and then people buy the yarn to procure their khadi from the bhandars. This is to murder truth. What I had said was that since large cities are too cramped and people have to live in very small rooms where there is no space for spinning or keeping the charkha or carding, clubs should be organized in various localities and in the precincts of khadi bhandars where people could go to card, make slivers and spin.

This could remedy the lack of space for spinning. Also it would be easier to arrange for instruction in spinning. But the clubs that have been started are of a totally different kind and they should be discontinued. We should not leave hold of truth. We must not deceive ourselves. We must give up the lure of selling khadi. We should now develop an interest in teaching khadi. If this results in the sale of khadi stopping we should not mind it. But the khadi of my conception can only prosper by this means.

You ask what should be the character of the Bombay khadi bhandar now. I myself am anxious to make my idea clear. In the first place we must shift the bhandar from a central market like Kalabadevi. We should take it to a suburb such as Dadar or Vile [Parle], where we can find enough space. The work of the bhandar also should undergo change. The manager will not try and persuade people to buy khadi. He will sit in the bhandar and spin on the takli. His co-workers will do the same. He will talk to the customers and try to explain to them the new khadi policy. If someone is willing to learn spinning he will teach him. He will not use ready-made slivers. He will teach all the processes, beginning with hand-carding. He will also gather at the bhandar some artisans. He will have looms operated where the yarn spun can be woven. He will have charkhas and other implements manufactured. He will repair the implements of the customers. The surroundings of the bhandar will be clean and the air will be pure. There will be cleanliness. The charkhas will be in proper order and the atmosphere will be congenial for spinning. It will also have facilities for selling khadi. The Bombay bhandar up to now has been a clearing-house. It will still be that though in a different way. So long we only worried about what the Bombay customers wanted. If a handkerchief of a particular design was in vogue we told the production centres to make such handkerchiefs. If it was a sari with a particular border we told the Andhra people to make such saris. We even used to send representatives of the bhandars to those far away places to explain what exactly was wanted. We took up printing saris at Masulipatnam. It revived a dying craft. But if we do not now change our method of work the same thing will be the undoing of khadi. Now the centres will have to meet the needs of the areas around them. They have to produce things with that end in view. In the matter of designs they do not have to follow the directives of the Bombay bhandar. Bombay will have to accept whatever varieties and designs are left and be content with that. It is no part of our duty to provide to the cities the designs they want. Our duty is only to teach how people can produce things that they want.

That is the reason why I want the bhandars to be shifted from a central bazaar. Take some place on the outskirts of the city which is attractive. Create beauty in wilderness. It is said that the English once had their factory on the banks of the Tapti on the outskirts of Surat, from where they started running the country. They wanted to suppress the khadi and other village industries of India. Our mission will be to revive them. If some stray artisan happens to come to you, put him at a loom. Start the work of carding, spinning and such other activities. Let a model village grow up there. Make the khadi bhandar an attractive centre. Those who seek peace from the noise of Bombay will go there on Saturdays if not every day. They will buy their khadi and learn carding. If you make things you need in the village way the city folk may also find an interest in such activity.

If you talk about our responsibility to the people of Bombay I shall ask: ‘What responsibility?’ If the people of Bombay continue their old interest, what shall we do? Will you be able to interest yourselves in horse-racing, gambling, cinema, theatre, dancing? What can you do about people who want to pursue these? Yes, if they want the facility to live in the style of a village we may invite them. That will be doing our duty. You say that in a city like Bombay where people are politically conscious we can make khadi a success only if we are able to persuade them that the success of our political work depends on our pursuing this new khadi policy. I shall only answer that khadi has value to me only if it is a symbol of ahimsa. An American once said that it was not words that grew but it was the work. Your success will depend on what kind of khadi bhandars and what kind of surroundings for them you can create with your faith and tapascharya.

[From Hindi]
Khadi Jagat, January 1946

701. KASTURBA NIDHI’S POLICY REGARDING EDUCATION

November 28, 1945

Whatever work regarding education is carried on under the Kasturba Nidhi, whether it is for children or adults, should be given only through manual labour and handicrafts.

Trained teachers will be required to carry on this work properly. Arrangements should be made to give training to these teachers in registered training schools.

So long as such teachers are not ready, education can be imparted through manual labour and handicrafts but instruction in handicrafts should also be given in a proper way.

The teachers should study the literature of Nayee Talim and carry on their work on those lines as far as possible till they get properly trained.

From a copy of the Hindi: Kasturba Gandhi National Memorial Trust Papers. Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library

702. LETTER TO VANAMALA N. PARIKH

SEVAGRAM,
November 28, 1945

CHI. VANUDI,

I got your letter. I have no doubt about your purity, nor about your firmness of mind. But if you yourself have some doubt, however faint, regarding the propriety of what you do, you should carefully think over it and change your habits suitably. Suppose, for instance, you tell somebody in jest that you are married and have a few children, and add that your mother-in-law is dead. Such jokes are permissible, but the dangers in them are easy to see. That is why even in the highest circles we still hear criticism of certain things that take place in theatres. If a married man acts the part of Rama in a play and a woman married to another man that of Sita, how far is that desirable for both? It also requires to be seriously considered what kind of effect such Rama and Sita produce on the spectators. That carried away by the modern trend we may do or like improper things or see others doing that is altogether a different matter. I do not wish to dwell at length on this, nor have I the time for that. But you are a thoughtful girl and I have, therefore, put before you in a few words an important question for you to think over.

I hope you keep good health, and trust that all of you devote yourselves to keeping the Arogya Bhavan clean in every possible manner. You have with you many visitors now. Use the services of them all in cleaning up the place. I am trying to send Munnalal there. I expect he will arrive there in about a week.

_Blessings from_
_BAPU_

[PS.]
I had Zohra’s letter and I tore it up.

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 5796. Also C.W. 3019. Courtesy: Vanamala M. Desai

703. LETTER TO HARI-ICHCHHA P. KAMDAR

SEVAGRAM,
November 28, 1945

CHI. HARI-ICHCHHA,

Though you have become the mother of so many children, you are still as foolish as ever. If I cannot write to you owing to pressure of work and ask somebody else to do so, what is wrong in that? You did a good thing in giving me all the news of the family. Do come when I settle down again in the Ashram and stay there as long as you wish. Bring your son with you. Perhaps you do not know that in Poona Valji\(^1\) used to come every day to read books to me. I would quietly spin while he read to me for half an hour or three quarters of an hour.

\(^1\) Valji Govindji Desai
I hope your health is good. Now I am going on a tour of Bengal and Madras and am not likely to return before February.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI HARI-ICHCHHABEHN P. KAMDAR
KHADIA POLE
RAJMAHAL ROAD
BARODA

704. LETTER TO KANTILAL GANDHI

SEVAGRAM,
November 28, 1945

CHI. KANTI,

I got your postcard, as also the report sent by you. The latter seems to have been drafted by you. If so, your English is weak. Ordinarily this should not count as a deficiency in one, but in India it is; for we take pride, though we ought not to, in being able to speak and write a foreign language correctly. I am a lover of all languages and take scrupulous care to write correctly, but I am more eager to convey my meaning and am not scared of making mistakes. Were it not so, I would never have been able to speak in Hindi and other languages. Having said this, my criticism of the report is that its English is not correct. I have no time to revise it and return it. The report itself is good and, therefore, I show it to everybody who is interested in it. I am now sending it to Jajuji to read.

I shall not feel sorry that you will be breaking up an organization which you have brought into being. Your leaving it will amount to breaking it. I only hope that your action will not be an expression of the rashness and anger which I have observed in your nature. Sometimes it becomes one’s dharma to humbly cling to the organization one has set up, despite the co-workers’ coolness towards oneself. I have been doing this from a much earlier age than you are at present and it has certainly benefited me. Endurance is a virtue worth cultivating. You are a student of the Gita. Ponder the profound truths contained in it. After cautioning you thus, I unreservedly accept your decision. If you teach the students who come to you and take more intimate interest in their lives, you may perhaps be able to create another organization with their help. In future lay stress from the very beginning on all the processes relating to cotton. I have come to realize from daily experience that this is of the utmost importance.

My good wishes for the result of your examination.

The tour starts on the 30th. Manilal arrived last evening and Devdas left for Delhi yesterday morning. He had come in connection with Kasturba Fund work.

Blessings to Chi. Saru and Shanti.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 7380. Courtesy: Kantilal Gandhi

705. LETTER TO DINSHAW K. MEHTA

SEVAGRAM,

November 28, 1945

CHI. DINSHAW,

I have your letter as also Jehangir's.

I do wish to offer you some suggestions but that will be when I can spare the time. For the present I shall say only this much. Give full encouragement to those who are engaged in the cleaning activity. You must also pay as much attention to it as you can while doing your own work. You will have already decided to dispose of all the furniture. You can take it to Bombay and sell it there to recover the price or if you want me to dispose of it you will let me know, so that I may make arrangements from wherever I am. We shall not sell it at a throw-away price.

Bhai Munnalal will be going there in six or seven days. He will take part in the cleaning activity. I think he can keep the accounts and do for you whatever shopping there is to be done. He is well versed in all the three things and has done them all before. I understand that Mr. Mange is looking after the accounts and shopping. I wish to keep him entirely out of all this. I have no doubt that he should train himself for something else. He should become a naturopath. He should also educate himself. If you wish that Munnalal should not go there in my absence or if you have any other plans, you can send a wire to the Ashram. It is necessary that what we wish to start1 from January 1 should be started at home as early as possible.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

706. LETTER TO SATYADEV

SEVAGRAM,
November 28, 1945

CHI. SATYADEV.

I was glad to have your letter. I would like to have a copy of the order you have mentioned. I just cannot agree to what you say. I think there is some misunderstanding. You had better ask Jawaharlal also and write to me at Calcutta. There I shall be staying with Satis Babu at Khadi Pratishthan, Sodepur.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

707. ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Q. The object of the constructive programme is stated to be the preparation of the people for a non-violent political order. Is this definition correct? Or will it be better to define such a social and political order as one in which no one would be able to exploit the labour of another?

A. Your definition is correct but it is incomplete. In what way it is incomplete will be explained in the answer to your next question.

Q. If my definition is correct I feel such a social and political order can be achieved theoretically even by our making the largest use of machinery. In that case is it necessary to have the maximum number of village industries for the non-violent political order? If so why?

A. Non-violence cannot be divided into compartments. Non-violence is an inherent attribute of man or, at any rate, it should be an attribute of man during his waking hours. Devotion to non-violence is the highest expression of his conscious state. If we thus conceive ahimsa we should satisfy all our necessities by the labour of our hands. If we do not do this we shall have to depend upon other powers and as long as such condition persists we shall be unable to realize a state of fearless-ness. Another danger in making more and more use of machinery is that we have to make great efforts for the protection of it, that is to say, we shall have to keep an army as is being done today elsewhere in the world. The fact is that even if there is no danger of aggression from outside we shall be slaves to those who will be in control of the big machinery. Take the case of the atom bomb. Those nations who have atom bombs are feared even by their friends. If we take a wise view, we shall be saved from the working of machinery.

1 Nature Cure Clinic at Uruli Kanchan

Q. One of the reasons given in favour of hand-spinning is that it makes one self-sufficient. Can one who is self-sufficient serve society better than one who is dependent on others? Do you mean to say that there is such a connection between self-sufficiency and social service that the more one is self-sufficient the more is one’s capacity for social service?

A. In order to satisfy this doubt also we will have to keep in mind the non-violent outlook because truth and non-violence form the foundation of the order of my conception. Our first duty is that we should not be a burden on society, i.e., we should be self-sufficient. That means self-sufficiency by itself is a kind of service. After becoming self-sufficient we shall use our spare time for the service of others. If all become self-sufficient no one will have any difficulty. In that case no one will be required to undertake service of others. But we have not yet reached that stage and therefore we have to think of social service. Even if we succeed in realizing complete self-sufficiency, man being a social animal we shall have to accept service in some form or other. That is, man is as much dependent on others as he is dependent on himself. When dependence becomes necessary in order to keep society in good order it is no longer dependence but becomes co-operation. There is a fragrance in co-operation and there is no one weak or strong among the co-operators. Everyone is equal. There is a feeling of helplessness in dependency. Members of a family are as much self-dependent as interdependent, but there is no feeling of mine or thine. That is why they are called co-operators. Similarly when we take a society, a nation or the entire mankind as a family all men become co-operators. If we can conceive a picture of such co-operation we shall find that there is no need of depending upon lifeless machines. Or we shall have to use them the least, not the most, and therein lies the real security and self-protection of society.
Q. You lay more emphasis on spinning than on agriculture. Is there any political reason behind it? Or is it because people cannot take to farming as easily as they can to spinning?

A. I do not make such divisions as social, economic and political. What is political is also social and economic. One includes the others. It is true that we make and have to make such divisions for clarity of understanding. One of the reasons why I have not laid stress on agriculture is that even my knowledge of it is almost nil. How will I be able to enlighten you if I put emphasis on it? It is not so in the case of the charkha. I have acquired enough knowledge of it. Secondly under foreign rule the charkha had died out; it had been destroyed. Agriculture can never be destroyed but its form has been so changed that it has increased the slavery of the people. The third reason for putting emphasis on the charkha is that skill of hand has a very small place in agriculture. There is hardly any other industry in which the hands and the fingers are so much used as they are in the various processes that go to make khadi. The fourth reason is that foreign power first takes hold of the land and through it controls the other things. Therefore Government help is very necessary for improvement in agriculture. For these and other similar reasons I have laid more emphasis on hand-spinning.

Q. One of the features of the material development of human society appears to be that man is tending to move more and more from self-sufficiency to dependency. Don’t you think this tendency is not right and that there will be revival of the opposite tendency?

A. I take this question to mean that society is advancing towards machinery. If I have understood the question right, my answer is that society must get rid of its slavery to the machine. By being slaves to the machine our slavery to our senses and their activity also increases immensely.

Q. Are you confident that the constructive programme will be able to achieve its object during your lifetime by mere propaganda? Don’t you think taking into consideration human frailties (lust, anger, greed, infatuation, pride and jealousy) that there will be need for “legislative aid” to make the people take to the constructive programme on any wide scale especially in this machine age? Will there be any violation of the principle of non-violence in taking such help from the elected representatives of the people? If so how?

A. I have said many a time that we will have to take help from the Government on our own terms. Not only that, we will have to take help from the whole world. There was a time when I felt that we could have only the barest minimum of help from the legislators in the matter of constructive programme. But now I have come to realize that if the representatives of the people go into the legislatures we can secure their help. Along with this we must bear in mind that we cannot appreciate the value of the constructive programme properly if we cannot carry it on in adverse circumstances. Other people of course can’t. I can say dispassionately but from experience that the strength of the people has increased in proportion to the progress of the constructive programme. If we can make the constructive programme universal and get it implemented through the people, then swaraj is in our hands.

SEVAGRAM, November 29, 1945

[From Hindi]

Khadi Jagat, December 1945

708. LETTER TO J. S. HOYLAND

SEVAGRAM, WARDHA,

November 29, 1945

MY DEAR HOYLAND,

It gladdened me to see your letter after such a long time and made me happy to find that Prof. Privat and his wife were with you. Of course I remember the communion we had at Woodbrooke, now as you remind me, fourteen years ago. I suppose Woodbrooke has grown during this what may be called fairly long lapse of time, and I wonder how the ‘School for the Imbeciles’ we all visited is faring.

My love to all. I am looking forward to the visit of Horace and Agatha.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

JOHN S. HOYLAND, ESQ.
WOODBROOKE SETTLEMENT
BIRMINGHAM 29

From a photostat: C.W. 4512. Courtesy: Woodbrooke College and Mrs. Jessie Hoyland

1 A Quaker and member of the India Conciliation Group along with Horace Alexander and Agatha Harrison; was in India for sixteen years teaching at Hislop College, Nagpur; afterwards taught at Quaker College Woodbrooke.
2 Edmond and Yvonne Privat
3 ibid
4 At Woodbrooke on October 18, 1931; vide “Speech at Birmingham Meeting”, 18-10-1931
709. LETTER TO UTTAMCHAND SHAH

November 29, 1945

CHI. UTTAMCHAND,

I have such deep faith in you that I am sure that you will succeed in your new undertaking, too, and that the work of the Charkha Sangh under its new policy will progress in Gujarat at least. Remember that it is your duty to take care of your health.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: S.N. 9443

710. LETTER TO MANILAL AND SUSHILA GANDHI

[Before November 30, 1945]

Arun is a good boy but he is not up to the mark. He does not even know additions, though he talks of additions, subtractions, multiplications and divisions. It was only when I tested him yesterday that I could understand the report given to me by Valji. But it is not his fault. It is the parents’ fault and now that of us all who are here. I am the first among them. Am I not?

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 4960

711. FOREWORD TO “GANDHIAN CONSTITUTION FOR FREE INDIA”

Perhaps the expression “Gandhian Constitution” is not a fitting title for Principal Agrawal’s pages. It may be acceptable as a convenient and compact title. The framework is really Principal Agrawal’s, based on his study of my writings. He has been interpreting them for a number of years. And as he is anxious not to

---

1. This was written at the back of Arun’s letter to his parents, i.e., the addressees.
2. From the reference to Arun, who was with Gandhiji in Sevagram till he left for Sodepur on November 30, 1945
3. Shriman Narayan Agrawal
misinterpret them in any way he would publish nothing without my seeing it. This is both an advantage and a disadvantage. The advantage is obvious. The disadvantage lies in the reader mistaking the particular writing being my view in every detail. Let me then warn him against making any such mistake. If I were to commit myself to every word appearing in these pages, I might as well write the thing myself. Though I have endeavoured to read the constitution twice, with as much attention as I was able to bestow on it during my other engagements, I could not undertake to check every thought and every word of it. Nor would my sense of propriety and individual freedom permit me to commit any such atrocity. All, therefore, I am able to say is that the brochure contains ample evidence of the care bestowed upon it by the author to make it as accurate as he could. There is nothing in it which has jarred on me as inconsistent with what I would like to stand for.

The author was good enough to make such alterations as I thought were necessary.

The word “constitution” must not mislead the reader into thinking that the author has made any profession to give him a complete constitution. He has made it perfectly clear in the beginning pages that he has only laid down broad lines to indicate what a constitution of my conception would be. I regard Principal Agrawal’s to be a thoughtful contribution to the many attempts at presenting India with constitutions. The merit of his attempt consists in the fact that he has done what for want of time I have failed to do.

M. K. GANDHI

ON THE TRAIN TO CALCUTTA, November 30, 1945

Gandhian Constitution for Free India
712. LETTER TO MANAGING COMMITTEE OF THE TALIMI
SANGH

November 30, 1945

Yesterday I went to see the Talimi Sangh hostel. You know Hoshiaribehn\(^1\) who stays in the Ashram. I have sent her son Gajraj to your school. He insisted that I should see his school. Even yesterday morning he came and said: “You will come, won’t you?” I said: “What shall I do at your school? I would rather see the place where you sleep.” I had intended to send his mother too. Anyway, I went there after my morning walk to keep my promise. I was pained by what I saw there. I noticed filth and mismanagement which should not have been there. I had not wanted to spend much time there, but I could not bear what I saw there and spent half an hour or threequarters of an hour explaining things to Pandey.

I found there were puddles of water in front of the verandah of the children’s hospital. It offended the eye. The children wash themselves right there. This breeds mosquitoes and so much of water is wasted. We should collect the water in a tub. Or we may wash beside the trees near by. If there were a thousand boys it would be a disaster. Going through the room I found the same thing in front of the verandah on the other side.

Then I went to the children’s dormitory. Even at the entrance there was a lot of dirt. I went in. Mats were not properly kept. I had the bedding of a boy unrolled. It was very dirty. The bed-sheet was torn. It was stitched in a couple of places, but very crudely. The other tears had not been attended to. They should have been patched. If the sheet was too badly torn it could have been doubled and stitched. Many times in jail I had got mattresses made that way. They are warm and strong. The cotton of the mattress had collected into big lumps. It was not warm. That cotton should have been taken out and carded again. Several pieces of cloth were discovered from under the mattress. They were very dirty. I would have kept those pieces clean and used them for patching. The mat was very dirty. It should have been washed.

\(^1\) Niece of Balvantsinha. According to Balvantsinha Gajraj had complained to Gandhiji that Talimi Sangh was a very dirty place.
I examined the floor. It is used for sleeping but is in a very bad state. Pandey said cow-dung was not available. It is better if cow-dung is available. But one can do without it. Where was there cow-dung in South Africa? We managed with earth. There was a wooden shelf fixed to the wall for keeping things. When I touched it my hand was covered with dust. I wiped my hand on Pandey’s hand. It also got covered with dust. One boy had put his ink-pot on the mat. Where else was the poor boy to put it? But there was no method about it. I examined each and every pen and nib. I saw also the ink-pots. That is my way. That should also be the way of Nayee Talim. Everything was wrong from my point of view. These are small things. But small things make up big things. It does not required money. It requires a keen vision, it requires art. It is our duty to teach these. It is the purpose of Nayee Talim. It is the teacher’s fault if it is not done. It is your fault. I would say that it is my fault. After all, the responsibility lies with me. What is the point in starting a thing and then giving it up? If someone says that in this way he can look after only one boy, I would say admit only one boy. Do not admit more. An element of untruth enters if we admit more boys and cannot look after them.

As I came out, I noticed the sacking you have hung up along the verandah. For this I must quarrel with you. A verandah is designed to admit air and sunlight. By fixing sacking around it you shut out both. And the room at the rear becomes absolutely useless. If you say it can’t be helped because the boys are too many, I would say that we should take only as many boys as we can accommodate. We should not take more.

Pandey’s mother Kodamba was in very dirty clothes. She looked like a maid servant. She did not even know Hindustani. And she has been with us for two months. Even Pandey’s own clothes were not quite all right. The neck was open and so also the cuffs. We are labourers. Our shirts must have half sleeves. Brass or glass buttons are useless for us.

I had a brief discussion with Asha Devi. But I am writing in detail because these matters, though small, are very important. And failing in these points, we depart too far from our objective.

I have read this again. It seems to be all right.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: C.W. 5888. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

1 Ashadevi Aryanayakum
713. LETTER TO MOHAN SINGH THAKUR

SEVAGRAM,
November 30, 1945

CHI. MOHAN SINGH,

I wanted to have a long talk with you. But I am sorry that I could not. While I am dictating this, Sushilaben informs me that you have repaired the pump. I knew that you would do it. I knew your great ability for mechanical things. Develop it fully and if any such work comes up in the Ashram continue doing it. Go on observing the power of the spinning-wheel.

I had noticed that your help had become inevitable in the camp run by Kanubhai. I realized that you had culinary talent as well when I saw the bread and the biscuits you made with tomato juice in an ordinary oven. I wish you would develop this talent too and give its full benefit to the Ashram.

Blessings from

BAPU

From the Hindi original: C.W. 10430. Courtesy: Navajivan Trust

714. SPEECH AT MAHILA ASHRAM

WARDHA,
November 30, 1945

I am not going to Bengal to serve four or five persons, but I am going to Bengal to serve crores of persons.

Referring to garba dance which the girls executed, Gandhiji said:

No doubt garba dance is famous in the world but this is no time for such dance.

He said that he was going to Bengal to serve humanity and wished that the girls would shower blessings on him and pray for his successful programme.

Referring to the sari spun by the inmates of the Mahila Ashram from the yarn produced in non-stop spinning during last Gandhi Jayanti, Gandhiji said that he would not like to take the sari with him.

Amrita Bazar Patrika, 1-12-1945

1 Vide"Letter to Krishnachandra", 27-11-1945

2 According to the source the inmates of the Ashram entertained Gandhiji with songs and folk-dances and also presented a khadi sari, dhotis and a beautiful garland made out of khadi.
According to me what the All-India Congress Committee meant is clear. If constructive work is not carried on keeping non-violence in mind and accepting it rationally, India will not achieve swaraj as a result of it. A lot of work always went on in our villages but it was not informed by the knowledge and the vision of non-violence. So all we achieved was that we did not become as bankrupt financially as we are today. And when foreign invasion started, we abandoned the village industries one after another. Work for eradication of untouchability, uplift of Adivasis, equal rights for women, imparting training and bridging the gulf between the poor and the rich and so on had never been taken up. When we realized that to achieve real freedom the only royal way was that of non-violence and truth, our range of vision extended to the whole of India and beyond it to the whole world, and despite India being a slave country its fame spread in the world. I am firmly of opinion that if, as stated in the question, we forget all other aspects of non-violence except non-killing of human beings, non-violence will not remain non-violence, it will become bereft of truth, its universality will be lost and we shall never achieve swaraj. If ahimsa includes destruction of others’ property, boycotting Government servants, going underground and so on, then, we can neither awaken the crores of people nor give them the correct training in fearlessness. If we want to work non-violently, then it is necessary to accept the restrictions laid down by me. But if we do away with these restrictions then there will be no other alternative for us but to abandon non-violence and to train the people for violence. That this way is totally futile for us has been proved by this barbarous war. At any rate by openly accepting the way of violence we save ourselves from deceiving our own people and the world at large.

[From Hindi]
Khadi Jagat, November 1945

1 This was in reply to the question: “How far is the inference correct that in trying to make non-violence practical and progressive, people could arrest others or run away, go underground and destroy property but not kill or hurt anyone?” It was to make this point clear that the All-India Congress Committee deliberately added the words “accepting non-violence rationally”.

398 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
716. SPEECH ON NAYEE TALIM

November 1945

Nayee Talim means teaching through craft. That basic craft has to be selected in the light of the conditions and produce of the region. For instance, it would not be proper to have khadi as a means of teaching in a region where cotton does not grow, but has to be imported for the purpose.

If Nayee Talim can be proved to be self-supporting through khadi, then the same thing can be applied to other industries too. What I mean by making education self-sustaining is this. Just as the expense on food and clothing for the children studying in Government schools is borne by their parents, similarly, in Nayee Talim schools, parents will have to bear the expenses on food and clothing of their children. But the expenses incurred in the schools of today on books and fees will be saved.

There should be no place for books in Nayee Talim. Initially some expenses may have to be incurred on cotton, carding-bow, and takli and so on. Afterwards the only expenses will be on the teachers’ salaries, stationery, and the salaries of peons, etc., if they have to be engaged.

Suppose, there are thirty boys in one school. They will handle all the processes right from collecting cotton from the field to spinning and weaving the yarn into cloth. Through every process the teacher will educate them so that their intellect sharpens day by day. This will result in students’ making ever new discoveries in the methods employed in the khadi industry which will make it more productive and profitable.

The cloth produced by students will be purchased by their parents at any price. It will be the teacher’s duty to see that through his students he creates an awareness in their parents that they may not even touch foreign and mill-made cloth. We should also see that an atmosphere of self-sufficiency in cloth and khadi is created. We shall have to create an atmosphere of our own. For bringing khadi to the stage it has reached today, we had to make efforts and create the climate. As a result no one now can root out khadi. The same thing can be said of Nayee Talim also. If the teacher is unable to create the necessary atmosphere, Nayee Talim cannot become self-reliant and cannot make headway. If he succeeds in creating the atmosphere and sharpening the intellect of the students, then the entire expenditure from beginning to end on Nayee Talim can be met from the sale of

---

1 This appeared under the title: "Self-reliance in Nayee Talim".
Students will be equipped for earning when they leave our schools. We do not promise them jobs. The Government also does not promise employment to students who are trained at enormous expense in Government schools. But our students will be brighter than the students of Government schools and will easily find occupations for themselves.

We must remember that when atmosphere had to be created for Government schools, they had to put in considerable effort in spite of the way being clear. The atmosphere we have to create is for revival. That which has been destroyed has to be revived in a new way and we look upon it as a peaceful way of attaining swaraj. It should be easy to do this. We do not find it easy as we have not gone to the villages with the correct attitude and have made no real attempts at all. Now we have Nayee Talim. If it does not work a miracle and develop power, then what is it good for?

We do not realize the full significance of boys and girls being entrusted to our care from their childhood and undergoing craft-based education in our schools for seven years or more. And the modern education which is being imparted to us teaches us that schooling can never become self-supporting. This creates some confusion in our minds. It is my firm belief that if Nayee Talim cannot become self-supporting, then the teachers do not understand what it is. In my view, amongst other characteristics self-reliance is the most important characteristic of Nayee Talim.

If this is so for the education of boys and girls, then adult education must also be self-supporting. If we believe that it is difficult to convince adults about the value of education, then I have to say that this is nothing but an old illusion. And the teaching of the three R’s in adult education is no part of our Nayee Talim. The meaning of adult education is that we will give them, through their own language, all-round education of a pure and socially useful life. And if they do not easily become self-supporting, in my view there is some serious defect in that education. We should not also forget that complete co-operation should be the basis from the very beginning. Those who know the full meaning of co-operation will raise no doubts about self-reliance.

QUESTION: Today only those students go to Government schools whose parents can pay for their food and clothing. We expect that under Nayee Talim, all the children of a village will go to school. There may be many among them who do not have the necessary food and clothing in their homes. What is the responsibility of Nayee Talim in such cases?
A. I have just stated the ideal that parents will provide for food and clothes. Even now boys do eat and wear clothes. The parents will pay to school whatever they spend on their children’s food and clothing. The diet we give will have a scientific basis. The expense will be a little more because of the milk. That expense will be met by the school. But when we persuade the parents to bear the expense on food, then they will pay for milk too. Those who are very poor will be very few; but if they are really poor then we can certainly bear the entire expense.

I shall not worry about what clothes the girls and boys should wear because my ideal for them is a loin-cloth or clothes that a baby wears. It may be a brief kuchchha. We can easily make it. When girls develop breasts something will have to be done to cover them. The answer is a piece of cloth of the kind that is in vogue in the South. It is a different matter what provision is to be made in winters. You may not provide them any wraps but you must give them enough to wear. All this will be our property—the boys and girls of the same age group will wear them. One thing should be kept in mind, that these boys and girls will stay with us most of the time. We can easily bear all this expense. According to us the clothes for the poor and the rich will be the same. If the clothes are clean and of the right size, they will look as neat and tidy as naked children look.

Q. (a) Will there be an increase in the demand for cloth if an atmosphere of self-reliance in cloth is generated?

(b) Even if parents want to purchase cloth produced by their children, do they have the means to pay the price that we may ask for it?

A. Any price must of course mean reasonable price. This merely means that those who do not even touch khadi today, will certainly buy the cloth made by their children if we sell it at a reasonable price. There will be no question of making a large profit on it. The price of every item will be different but by and large the difference between the cost price and the selling price will be almost the same. Even if the price of fancy goods is higher, still comparatively it will be much cheaper. Those who buy them will pay the price willingly. When self-reliance in cloth is achieved, everyone will accept khadi and will do so willingly. Then Nayee Talim will have reached its peak. Not one will even care for me if this happens during my lifetime.

All my answers apply to the present time, the present conditions.

Q. Training of teachers is a vast field that we have before us. In what way are we to practise self-reliance in this training.
A. Your question is, how can those who have come here to be teachers become self-reliant? If young students can become self-reliant, the teachers must become self-reliant. The question is only one of bearing the expense of one’s own food, clothing and education. My point is that if teachers themselves cannot become self-reliant, how can they make the students self-reliant? In fact well-to-do persons who have come here not for salary but for service, will not need any supervision. They will learn all occupations attentively and carefully. They will not waste anything because of carelessness. Such people will be able to meet their entire expenses from whatever occupation they undertake. Your curriculum ought to be such that teachers and students can earn enough for their expenses while they learn. You too will be put to the test in preparing such a curriculum. I like this question very much because it is a good sign that you have raised this question in the very beginning. Aryanayakum has written: “I have understood and agree with it.” This means that I also should have the same thing in mind that he has.

If your syllabus is not based on the above lines, let me know. Perhaps I may be able to make it with your help. I go so far as to say that even wood should not be available free of charge. Bear in mind that we want to work in co-operation. We also want to learn true co-operation. Hence the fruits of everyone’s intelligence and skill should go into one pool. As I go on writing the subject becomes more and more interesting to me. I become more and more confirmed in my belief that self-reliance is the key to our success. This is proved by long experience.

[From Hindi]
Khadi Jagat, November 1945

717. LETTER TO KALIDAS DEV SHARMA

ON THE TRAIN TO CALCUTTA,
December 1, 1945

BHAJ KALIDAS,
The reply to your letter is given below.
The International Brotherhood League1 should be preserved in its essence. Those who sincerely believe that helping the Congress is as good as helping the Brotherhood League should help the Congress.

1 This was founded by Krishna Nath Sarma.
Look at the fate of the Communist Party. There cannot possibly be any opposition if your League works for the Congress according to the views of the Congress. That Asia is for Asians is a cardinal truth. To tell the foreigners to quit Asia is the clear cry of an anguished heart.

This is not meant for publication.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

From the photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 8232

718. LETTER TO SHRIMAN NARAYAN

ON THE TRAIN TO CALCUTTA,
December 1, 1945

BHAI SHRIMAN,

I am sending today your booklet and my Foreword. I finished everything at 9.30 last night. In between I only took time off for eating and spinning. Let me know if any changes are necessary in the Foreword.

Let me know if you do not agree with the changes I have made in your booklet.

You will see that I have left the place of the Panchayats at the taluka and district level rather vague. They are only advisory bodies. Why should they be given a place in the legal framework? Even the necessity for their existence is a matter of doubt. When the villages really come to life, the need for advisory bodies should be less. The Provincial Panchayat would attend to everything and would get things done through talukas and districts. If you think there is any snag in this line of thinking let me know. I have put in as much hurried reading as I could.

It is worth I considering if Pakistan and the Princes can have any place in my conception [of India]. Remember that the Gandhian plan can be successful only if it can be achieved through non-violent means.

Blessings from

BAPU

1 Communist members of the A. I. C. C. were at the time facing an inquiry for indiscipline.
2 Gandhian Constitution for Free India
3 Vide "Foreword to "Gandhian Constitution for Free India"
[PS.]
I have sent the booklet and the Foreword by separate registered book-post.

[From Hindi]
Panchven Putrako Bapuke Ashirvad, p. 308

719. LETTER TO SHRIKRISHNADAS JAJU

ON THE TRAIN TO CALCUTTA,
December 1, 1945

BHAJ JAJUJI,

I have gone through circular 12 and Dhwaja Babu’s letter. I am of the opinion that the fund that we have will be enough for the training in handicrafts and adult education. If both the activities go on together the expenses will be lessened. These funds should not be made to cover the other five activities. This does not mean that we are not to pursue those five activities or that they are of secondary importance. We shall conduct them with a separate fund. If we think of all the seven activities we may not be able to deal with any one. I am therefore of the opinion that this fund should be earmarked only for the two activities. Even when the fund grows later on, it should be limited to only the two activities. Of course all this requires hard work and intelligence.

If necessary you may use this letter. I am returning the circular and Dhwaja Babu’s letter.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

720. INTERVIEW TO THE PRESS

December 1, 1945

I know America and America knows me.1 People in America who want messages do not really know me. You are prompting me to say something, but why do you not pay for my Harijan Fund?

---

1 While he was on his way to Calcutta, a number of journalists had entered Gandhiji’s compartment at Kharagpur and travelled with him till the train reached Mourigram.
2 One of the Journalists had asked for “a message for America and American people”
Another journalist asked Mahatmaji: “Can we send what you said for publication?” Mahatmaji laughed and said:

Cook it, digest it and assimilate it. Use your journalistic sense and you will see what I have given you is something other than a stunt.

Questioned regarding his reactions to major questions of the day, Gandhiji said:

Great problems lie before us and as and when they arise, my views will be there.

He declined to commit himself further.

When one of the newspapermen queried him about his travel from Wardha, Gandhiji, with his proverbial fund of wit, retorted jokingly:

You have been travelling with me and if your journalistic instinct does not prompt you to answer that question, resign your post and take to something more useful in life.

Amrita Bazar Patrika, 2-12-1945

721. SPEECH AT PRAYER MEETING

SODEPUR,

December 1, 1945

He began by referring to his attempts made since 1914, when he was in England to learn Bengali. He made some progress in it, though he could not keep up his Bengali studies. It was his ambition to be able to speak to the people of Bengal in Bengali so that he might be able to penetrate into their hearts. He was sorry he could not do so on the present occasion. He was also of the opinion that no Indian could call himself a full-fledged citizen of India unless he could speak to the people of the various provinces in their own tongues. Failing this proficiency in the different languages it was the duty of every Indian to learn at least Hindustani which alone could be the rashtrabhasha1 of India.

He then proceeded to give the etiology of his present visit to Bengal. Ever since his release from prison, he had been anxious to visit Bengal but he could not do so owing to ill-health. Moreover, he did not want to visit Bengal unless he was sure that the authorities would welcome his visit and that there would be no restrictions on his movements. He was not prepared to submit to any restrictive orders on the one hand or on the other to offer civil disobedience against such orders under conditions now prevailing in the country. Even after the way for his visit to Bengal was clear it had to be postponed for several months on account of Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel who was in need of nature cure treatment and needed his (Gandhiji’s) presence by his side. He was glad, however, that after all he had been able to come to Bengal.

1 National language

Explaining next the object of his visit, Gandhiji said that it was purely to offer whatever consolation his presence in their midst could give to the victims of Bengal famine and to do whatever he could to relieve their distress. He had not come to take part in the politics of the province or in the forthcoming elections. In fact, as they all knew, he took very little interest in these things. Where his chief interest lay was too well known to need reiteration.

Mahatmaji then concluded after appealing to the people assembled to contribute their mite to the Harijan Fund as a token of their sympathy with the cause of the abolition of untouchability as also to ameliorate the condition of Harijans. Incidentally he mentioned that in this way he had collected 2 lakhs of rupees for the Harijans since his release. The proceeds of the autograph fees that he charged were earmarked for the Harijan Fund. Anyone by paying a fee of Rs. 5 could have his autograph. There could be no exemption on the ground of poverty because according to him the autograph-hunting was essentially a rich-man’s hobby. Anyway, there was none poorer than the Harijans and consequently none had a right to cheat the Harijans out of the autograph fees which had been premortgaged to them.

Amrita Bazar Patrika, 2-12-1945

722. DISCUSSION WITH IAN STEPHENS

SODEPUR,

[On or after December 1, 1945]²

GANDHIJI: Arguing on those lines, you will be able to understand the prejudice in South Africa too. The root cause—a false notion of preservation of the race and economic status—is common to both. The difference is only one of degree. If you apply concrete facts to individual cases it is half a dozen of one and six of the other. It is on a par with the racial prejudice here.

IAN STEPHENS: Oh, no. Here it is much less.

G. Yes, owing to the vast disparity in numbers. But take the case of the individual who actually suffers. His experience does not differ from that of the coloured men in South Africa or America.

¹ This report by Pyarelal appeared under the title “With an English Friend”. Ian Stephens, a correspondent of The Statesman, Calcutta, was of the opinion that colour bar and racial segregation was at its worst in South Africa, and did not agree with Gandhiji that it was equally bad in America.

² Gandhiji reached Sodepur on December 1, 1945.
I. S. We, Englishmen are apt to forget that side of the question.

G. Habit becomes second nature. There may be no deliberate intention either.

I. S. In the Punjab and Delhi races mix much more freely than elsewhere. Was that due to the fact that the disparity in numbers was comparatively less there?

Gandhiji was of opinion that the contrast presented by Bengal in this respect was perhaps due to the violent spirit having manifested itself there on a much larger scale than in Delhi or in the Punjab. The Punjab did show the violent spirit in some measure. But it was not a patch upon Bengal. The daring of the Chittagong Armoury Raid was neither attempted nor duplicated anywhere else.

I. S. I have often thought over it, and it has always baffled me how these Bengali young men, so gentle by nature, have drifted into violence.

G. I have solved it for myself. They feel they have been unjustly libelled in the past. Lord Curzon harped on their softness. It soured them. So they say, ‘We may not be wealthy, but surely we are not effeminate.’ So they adopted this devious method and surpassed every other province in daring. They defied death, defied poverty and even public opinion. I have discussed this question of violence threadbare with so many terrorists and anarchists. It is terrible whether the Arab does it or the Jew. It is a bad outlook for the world if this spirit of violence takes hold of the mass mind. Ultimately in destroying itself it destroys the race.

I. S. And it has spread all over the world for the last two or three years.

G. Look at the latest ukase of Gen. MacArthur1. He has divided the entire Japanese nation into two categories, those whom he calls war criminals and those who do not come under that label. As I read it, it struck me that this was not the best way to introduce democracy among the Japanese—a race so proud, so sensitive, so highly organized along Western lines. They will do what the Italians did in Garibaldi’s time on a much larger scale. You cannot deal with the human race on these lines. Whatever happens in one part of the world will affect the other parts. The world has so shrunk.

This evoked from the friend the observation that he did not think that the world had deteriorated so much theoretically as it might have during the last three years. Gandhiji agreed with him though his grounds, he remarked, were different.

I. S. My reason for that belief is that in spite of the fact that suffering, for instance in Indonesia and elsewhere, has been appalling during the last three years, the human mind has not been equally warped.

1 Douglas MacArthur, U. S. Army General; Commander of the occupation forces in Japan after the War.

G. My hope is based on a detached view of the situation. Whilst in detention in the Aga Khan Palace I had leisure to read and think. What struck me was that whilst practice showed deterioration, the mind of man had very much progressed. Practice has not been able to keep pace with the mind. Man has begun to say, ‘This is wrong, that is wrong.’ Whereas previously he justified his conduct, he now no longer justifies his own or his neighbour’s. He wants to set right the wrong but does not know that his own practice fails him. The contradiction between his thought and conduct fetters him. His conduct is not governed by logic. Then, of course, there is my standing prediction in favour of non-violence that it will prevail—whatever man may or may not do. That keeps my optimism alive. Extensive personal experience too confirms my belief that non-violence is self-acting. It will have its way and overcome all obstacles irrespective of the shortcomings of the instruments. It makes no difference how we arrive at our conclusion, but it keeps us fresh and green.

The conversation next turned upon Gandhiji’s pet theme of living up to 125 years. Gandhiji’s visitor wanted to know how he managed to keep physically fit. Gandhiji replied that outwardly he owed his physical fitness to strict adherence to regular habits in eating, drinking and sleeping and to his partiality for nature cure principles which he had adopted strictly in life since 1901. Reminiscently he described how up till 1901 he used the medicine bottle but had almost thrown it away and for forty-five years he had lived more or less according to nature cure principles.

G. But, in a still greater measure, it is due to the practice of detachment of mind. By detachment I mean that you must not worry whether the desired result follows from your action or not, so long as your motive is pure, your means correct. Really, it means that things will come right in the end if you take care of the means and leave the rest to Him.

He based his belief on the teachings of the Bhagavad Gita which he had called his “dictionary of action”.

The friend remarked on the close analogy between the teaching of the Bhagavad Gita and the thesis presented in Aldous Huxley’s Ends and Means. The mention of Aldous Huxley’s name revived in Gandhiji’s mind memories of old days.

---

1 British novelist and critic; in later life became increasingly drawn to Hindu philosophy.
about Aldous Huxley’s father¹ whose writings he used to read during his student days in London in 1889.

I. S. But there is a physical side all the same?

G. Yes, only I attach greater importance to the mental. What you think you become. Thought is never complete unless it finds expression in action and action limits your thought. It is only when there is a perfect accord between the two that there is full, natural life.

I. S. But what about the legacy of one’s past life? It cannot be written off the balance-sheet.

G. I have my answer for that. If my past conduct does not warrant the full span of life, no matter however correct my present life may be, I can still counteract the effect of past mistakes by attaining complete detachment between the mind and the body. Detachment enables one to overcome the effects of past faulty practice as well as handicaps of heredity and environment. Normally speaking, every deviation from the rule of nature, whether ignorant or wilful, e. g., anger, ill-temper, impatience, errors in conjugal life, exacts its toll. But there is this promise that if you have arrived at complete detachment you can rub out all these. “Except ye be born again, ye cannot have everlasting life.” Conversely, you can have everlasting life if you are “born again”. There is no hurdle placed before death. You can turn over a new leaf and begin life anew here and now; the past will not disturb its tenor provided you have completely severed yourself from it and its legacy by the axe of detachment.

On the previous occasion when this friend had visited Gandhiji, Gandhiji had done all the talking and the friend had listened. This time Gandhiji had intended that he would only speak in answer to questions and let the friend do the talking but the friend again had the better of his resolve. Gandhiji remarked, discomfited, at the end of their talk:

I admit defeat. After all you are a practised journalist.

I. S. I am only human.

Harijan, 7-4-1946

¹ Gandhiji presumably has in mind T. H. Huxley, biologist and writer, who was, however, the grandfather of Aldous.
F. A. U. MEMBER: However much we may want to be friendly the past tradition clings round your necks and drives you to desperation. It seems to me, that there is hardly any hope of giving to a young Bengali student an idea of the better side of Englishmen unless perhaps he is transferred to England. The atmosphere in India is so poisoned that I wonder if it would not be better for Englishmen not to attempt to come to work in India just now but to wait for better times.

GANDHIJI: Any friend, who is a real friend, and who comes in a spirit of service, not as a superior, is bound to be welcome. India, when she has come into her own will need all such assistance. The distrust of Englishmen, as you say, is there. It won’t disappear even by transporting Indian students to England. You have got to understand it and live it down. It has its roots in history. The late Charlie Andrews and I were bed-fellows. There were scarcely a thought in our mind which we did not share. He even adopted Indian dress though sometimes with grotesque results. But even he could not escape suspicion. He was even dubbed “a spy”. His was a very sensitive spirit. He suffered unspeakable anguish under these unmerited attacks and I was hard put to it to dispel the baseless distrust. ‘If he is a spy, I am a spy,’ I said to these critics. In the end C. F. A.’s spirit triumphed.

Pearson\(^2\) was C. F. Andrews’ disciple and friend. He too came in for his share of distrust. Then there is Stocks\(^3\). “If I am to serve India I must become an Indian,” he said to himself and married a Christian Rajput. He was boycotted by the Rajputs. The Government distrusted him too in the beginning. But he has lived down the distrust of both

---

1. Gandhiji reached Calcutta on December 1.
2. W. W. Pearson, a British missionary worker in Bengal and for some time a teacher in Santiniketan
3. Samuel Stokes, a British missionary and an associate of C. F. Andrews. He was a member of the Congress and courted arrest in 1920; became a Hindu to deliver the message of Jesus to the Hindus; changed his name to Satyanand, and took up work for the uplift of the Hill tribes at Kotgarh.
the Government and Indians.

If then, even a C. F. Andrews and a Stokes and others had to labour under distrust, for you to be distrusted may not be wondered at. So far Indians have known Englishmen only as members of the ruling race—supercilious when they were not patronizing. The man in the street makes no distinction between such an Englishman and a good, humble European, between the Empire-builder Englishman of the old type that he has known and the new type that is now coming into being, burning to make reparation for what his forefathers did. Therefore, if one has not got the fire of sacrifice in him I would say to him: ‘Do not come to India just now.’ But if you are cast in a heroic mould there will be no difficulty. You will in the end be taken at your worth if you persevere. Anyway those of you who are here have no reason for going back.

The same friend was able to elicit from Gandhiji what he considered to be the weak spots in the Indusco Plan of Chinese co-operatives. Firstly, the Indusco was a product of abnormal times. Its production was war-time and war-purposes production stimulated by the Japanese blockade. Secondly, it was organized by foreign missionary enterprise and their work was tainted by the proselytization motive.

G. If you try to merely copy the Chinese co-operatives in India you will end in miserable failure. Here you have to work among Indian Christians. The temperament is different, the character is different, and the circumstances are different. Co-operation which is rooted in the soil always works. You have therefore to find out for yourself what type of co-operative is best suited to the Indian temperament and soil. Even those who have become converts to orthodox Christianity are today veering round.

M. By “veering round” you mean going back?

G. Yes, I mean going back to real Christianity, to Christ, not Western Christianity. They are beginning to realize that Jesus was an Asiatic. Having seen this they are reading their Bible through Indian eyes. You should study the meaning of Indian Christianity through J. C. Kumarappa’s book Practice and Precepts of Jesus.

_Harijan_, 31-3-1946
724. MESSAGE ON RAJENDRA PRASAD’S BIRTHDAY¹

[December 2, 1945]

Rajendra Prasad is a true patriot. Long live Rajendra Prasad.

The Hindu, 4-12-1945

725. SPEECH AT PRAYER MEETING

SODEPUR,

December 2, 1945

Addressing the congregation after the prayer Gandhiji said he would like to thank them and congratulate them because they had maintained silence and were peaceful during the prayer. The gathering of this evening was very big indeed. On Saturday the prayer meeting was less crowded. On both the days they had shown remarkable discipline. So he would thank them and hope they would continue to behave calmly in future also.

The prayer song which was sung this evening had a special significance. Gandhiji said it was very appropriate in the conditions obtaining at present. The song was also sung in a very melodious tune.

In the song there was an appeal to God to lead humanity from darkness to light. It said the humanity was engulfed in thickening darkness and had lost vision. So they were praying to God to give them strength and lead them to light.

The import of the song was that they must be freed from all bondage and attain enlightenment. The freedom from bondage also included the winning of swaraj. India wanted release from the bondage.

We are all engulfed in darkness today. Not only India but the world also is engulfed in darkness. India wants peace. So also does the entire world. We are all travellers groping in that thickening darkness. We are all blind and cannot feel the absence of light.

The prayer we have offered is the most important thing of this evening. I was in South Africa when I used to pray privately. When I returned to India I saw the necessity of holding mass prayers. I have been holding mass prayers since then. There is of course the necessity of individual praying in his own way.

¹ The news report which carried the item was dated December 2, and was exclusively published in Advance on the occasion of Rajendra Prasad’s 61th birthday.

Our prayer today to God is to lead us from darkness to light, from untruth to truth, and let us have peace—peace not only for India but for the entire world.

Gandhiji said he did not like the shouting of slogans. The shouting of slogans disturbed the peaceful atmosphere which was the condition prerequisite to holding prayer. So he would request them not to disturb the peaceful atmosphere of the place by shouting slogans.

In conclusion, Gandhiji asked the gathering to remove untouchability from their midst. Untouchability was a slur on humanity.

Gandhiji then requested those who had assembled to contribute their mite to the Harijan Fund.

Amrita Bazar Patrika, 3-12-1945

726. SPEECH AFTER PRAYER MEETING

SODEPUR, December 2, 1945

I know your love for me. I also want to love you. I also want to win your heart. But that I want to achieve through work. Do not ask for my darshan or want to touch my feet. I am not God; I am a human being. I am an old man and my capacity to stand the strain is limited. If I am to appear before you again and again my strength will be exhausted. And I will not be able to do work.

So my request to you is that you should not ask for my darshan or request me to stand before you so that you may touch my feet. If you come at prayer time you will have my darshan. But I want to impress upon you that I like peace. I do not like shouting of slogans or claps. They irritate me. If you love me you will not do so.

Amrita Bazar Patrika, 3-12-1945

---

1 The source had reported that this was in response to requests from a large number of people who arrived at the Ashram after the prayer was over. Gandhiji returned to the lawn and spoke to them for a few minutes.
727. LETTER TO AMRIT KAUR

SODEPUR,
December 3, 1945

CHI. AMRIT,

Just got yours (at 11.45). The mail closes at noon. You may take all the time you need, whether at Delhi or Simla. Come when you can. I am in Calcutta till 10th at the least. Then is all uncertain.

Pyarelal is well and working. Sushila is in Sevagram looking after Madalasa. She is due here on 5th.

All well.

LOVE.

BAPU

From the original: C.W. 4172. Courtesy: Amrit Kaur. Also G.N. 7808

728. LETTER TO NIRMAL KUMAR BOSE

SODEPUR,
December 3, 1945

DEAR NIRMAL BABU¹,

Your sweet letter. You will do exactly as you please.

In order to interpret my writings, you should be for some time in Wardha when it is fairly cool.

Your amoebiasis may not be removed but can certainly be brought under control by nature cure methods. I suggest your coming to the clinic in Poona when I am there. From 1st January it will be for the poor.

Yours,

BAPU

From a photostat: G.N. 10511

¹ Professor of geography and anthropology, Calcutta University. He first met Gandhiji in 1934 at Wardha and thereafter devoted himself to study and propagation of his ideas.
729. SILENCE DAY NOTE TO R. G. CASEY

[December 3, 1945]

Do you want me to come tomorrow? 7.30 is better for me, but I could easily come at 7 p.m. if that is better for you.

I have brought a lot of literature for you that I promised yesterday—for this more tomorrow.

From a photostat: G.N. 809; also G.N. 810

730. LETTER TO ARUNA ASAIF ALI

SODEPUR,

December 3, 1945

CHI. ARUNA².

I have read your letter carefully. How I wish I could meet you openly and have you with me for a few days. I love you too dearly to talk to you through letter-writing. Know that I have been silent not through indifference but by design. I am trying to reach the truth. You are helping me. Go on doing it. You can help me much more by appreciating than following my advice.

For the present no more.

Hope you are well.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ The source carries the following note by Casey, then Governor of Bengal: “Notes passed to me by M.K. Gandhi during our ‘talk’ on December 3, 1945—one of his silence days—during which I talked to him for 1½ hours; he said nothing.”

² Wife of Asaf Ali, a Congress leader. She was a member of the Congress Socialist Party and had played a prominent part in the Quit India movement in 1942, ever since when she had continued to work underground.
731. LETTER TO NARGIS CAPTAIN

SODEPUR, CALCUTTA,
December 3, 1945

DEAR SISTER,¹

Just a line to thank you for your note. Of course you will point out the things you mention, when we meet. I have to work double speed. But I am so far well. I did read Jh’s words. Love to you two.

BAPU

SMT. NARGISBEHN CAPTAIN
DUNLAVIN LODGE
POONA 5

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

732. LETTER TO SARAT CHANDRA BOSE

SODEPUR,
December 3, 1945

MY DEAR SARAT,

Whilst writing this I am on my back with mud-pack on the abdomen.

Nathalal saw me too. I like your reply to him. But we must talk more when you are free.

Please don’t ask me to come to your place for Gita’s² wedding. She saw me yesterday. She has grown. You know how my views have grown about marriages. Whether I am present or not Gita and her husband (to be) have my blessings. (Here I went off to sleep.)

Of course I have to come to your house, the old house, to Mona³ and the rest of the Deshabandhu⁴ family. You must tell me how and

¹ The superscription is in Gujarati.
² Addressee’s daughter
³ Daughter of C. R. Das; vide also “Letter to Mona”, 6-12-1945
⁴ C. R. Das
when. It must be after the Working Committee meeting'.

Love.

BAPU

SHRI SARAT CHANDRA BOSE
1 WOODBURN PARK
CALCUTTA

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

733. LETTER TO AMTUSSALAAM

December 3, 1945

DAUGHTER AMTUSSALAAM,

You have fallen ill. It should not have happened. What you say is correct. Do what you think is proper. It will be all right if you go to different villages.

Do not worry about me. God will keep me fit as long as He will. You may come whenever you get an opportunity. You had better not come if there is no particular business.

There is nothing more to write. I am writing this at night.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 540

734. LETTER TO KRISHNAVARMA

SODEPUR,

December 4, 1945

BHAI KRISHNAVARMA,

I have your letter. The charge against you is that you are hypocritical and given to falsehood. My own experience with you is the opposite, but nevertheless you are thoughtless and impatient and your thinking is not consistent. That is why your work does not shine. I have already told you that if you cannot accommodate more people in a hygienic way have only one. If I send someone from here, my fear is you will not be able to put up with him. So I feel you should

1 To be held in Calcutta from 7th to 11th December do what I say. If you insist I may think of sending someone but if you do you may have to repent it later.

DR. KRISHNAVARMA
NATURE CURE HOSPITAL
MALAD, BOMBAY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

735. LETTER TO VALLABHRAM VAI DY A

SODEPUR,
December 4, 1945

Bhai Vallabhram,

I have your letter. After I return to Sevagram and settle down there you may certainly come if you wish.

May be you are not acquainted with my views as they have progressed. They were of course implicit in all my writings but of late they have become more explicit. I have no longer any interest in marriages, whether within the caste, inter-caste or even interprovincial. Therefore, so far as possible, I do not say anything anywhere on the subject of marriages. As it is I hardly ever attended any and now I have firmly stopped attending them altogether. What I believe is that if we want to preserve whatever is good in varnashrama every Hindu has to become not only a Shudra but an atishudra, and regard himself as such. And as a true indication of it marriages should really take place only between atishudras and the so-called other varnas. These marriages also should be not for the sake of indulgence but so as to observe restraint and keeping in mind the restrictions it implies.

Now I can send my blessings to Chi. Ramakant and Chi. Tara. May they be happy, live in restraint and may their alliance be doubly devoted to service. Often after a marriage instead of one sevak multiplying into two both the parties drop out of service. This is my experience. There are exceptions, and may this union be one such. To that end pure restraint on your part will prove helpful to them in every field.

The Medical Board has not been lax; it has to do work that is vast in scope. Besides, they are contemplating a co-ordination of the various systems of medicine; so the matter it seems will take some time. Let me also add that although I have a great regard for

---

1 The lowest among the shudras
Ayurveda my experience with those practising it has not been very good. But, at the moment this is beside the point. We shall discuss this further when you can find time to come over.

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

736. LETTER TO SAILEN CHATTERJEE

SODEPUR, December 4, 1945

BHAI SAILEN

It is thought, and it has been my experience, that through the power of prayer, heart-felt prayer, one can achieve what cannot be achieved by any other power. Swaraj is a very small thing. But prayer should not be recited mechanically. True prayer transforms the life of a man.

Your second question displays sheer ignorance on your part. When did I say that I would live up to 125 years? If I can be so arrogant I shall be God as the questioner says. On the contrary I do not know whether I shall be able to take the next breath. What I have said is that I want to live for 125 years while rendering service. And I have also said that all should aspire to that end. We can only wish. I am an humble devotee of God.

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

737. SPEECH AT PRAYER MEETING

SODEPUR, December 4, 1945

Gandhiji explained that the real purpose of the prayer could not be fulfilled unless the congregation became calm and quiet.

I have just seen that a crowd of people have entered the prayer ground after we have finished the prayer. I must remind you all that the prayer begins punctually at 5 p. m. (Bengal Time). Those who want to join the prayer must reach the place earlier.

Proceeding, Gandhiji said that he was happy that such a big gathering attended his prayer. He was also happy that those who had unfortunately came late had imbibed the mass feeling and stood at the edge of the congregation and listened to what he had

1 According to the source the gathering included British, American and Chinese nationals as also a large number of women students.
to say very calmly and quietly. Even though they could not take part in the prayer they were very silent. That attitude, said Gandhiji, was what the prayer intended to teach the average man. It was called self-control and was a great factor of human life. For the last sixteen years he had practised it. Whenever he was late in attending any meeting or function he decided better not to go at all as otherwise he was sure to disturb others. When placed in such a position he requested friends to excuse his inability to comply with their requests for attending the meeting. He would strongly urge upon those who came to attend the prayer to learn the virtue of self-control and develop it in their lives.

During his stay in Calcutta, concluded Gandhiji, he would try to explain the social and other important aspects of self-control and prayer.

Amrita Bazar Patrika, 15-12-1945

738. LETTER TO BHAGAWATICHRAN SHUKLA

[After December 4, 1945]

CHI. BHAGAWATI,

I have your letter. How will the marriage be performed at Gondia? Will there be some rites or will it take place before the magistrate? You have not made it clear. I, of course, wish you both well. I can never have any objection to such marriages if they are not for mindless indulgence but for exercising restraint, for expanding the field of service and enhancing the spirit of service. Actually, I can even encourage such marriages. That is why I wish to have a reply to the above question.

What is the girl’s brother doing? Why does the girl not write to me? I am certainly eager to know what she has been doing since she first visited the Ashram.

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

739. LETTER TO SHANTILAL DESAI

December 5, 1945

CHI. SHANTILAL,

I have your letter. One of your notes is kept in my files so that whenever I get the time I can go through it and return it to you. The other one I have already read but I don’t know where it is now. It is not lost. But I agree it should reach you at the earliest. I am sorry

---

1 This is in reply to the addressee’s letter dated December 4, 1945.
there has been some laxity about it but I do not know how it happened.

It is good that you gave me the information about Manibhai. I have had a talk with him. I now have my eye on him. I am very keen on engaging him in Dinshaw’s clinic. I believe that the experience he will gain there will prove very useful for village work. Moreover, since he has to spend some time with me he will certainly be under my supervision from time to time and so I shall myself get better acquainted with him.

I hope you are getting on well at your end.

SHRI SHANTILAL DESAI
ANAVIL VIDYARTHI ASHRAM
NANPURA, SURAT

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

740. LETTER TO JIVANJI D. DESAI

SODEPUR,
December 5, 1945

CHI. JIVANJI,

I got your letter and the cheque. It has to be considered whether we should go as far as you suggest regarding the copy-right. Anybody writing to us for permission and our giving it will mean that we have read the work or got it read by someone and approve. In this connection Anand Hingorani had suggested different Boards, so that the Tamil Board would decide about the Tamil translation and the Malayalam Board would advise about the translation in that language. There would, thus, be a separate Board for each language. We have to consider how far it would be advisable and becoming for us to bother ourselves to that extent.

There are several translations of Tolstoy’s books in the same language. All of them are not up to the mark, and the titles of the books also have been translated differently. All of them sell, but the translation which is most faithful to the original, most painstaking and beautiful sells more than the other translations. The same has happened in the case of the Bible. The authorized version is there but there are many others in the field and their publication is not prohibited. Every translation has its own circle of readers.

You have raised the question of the Autobiography. A translation has been brought out by one Tamil publisher and now this is the second. How would we know which of the two is really good? Or would it be advisable to stop other translations from being published? I do not see much benefit in that. Even when we decided to claim copyright, I did not go as far as that. This matter cannot be looked at from a purely legal point of view, nor from a purely financial one. We should look at it wholly from a moral and practical point of view. And looking at it thus I feel that we should permit the person who has written to us to publish the translation. I have not replied to him, however. Consult all the others and discuss the matter with them and suggest whatever reply you think should be given. I will think over it and then send a reply to the man.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 9959. Also C.W. 6933. Courtesy: Jivanji D. Desai

741. LETTER TO SONAVANE

SODEPUR,
December 5, 1945

BHAI SONAVANE,

I have your letter. It is good that you wrote. I hope that your legal practice will flourish. I very much like your idea of not going into the Assembly.

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

742. SPEECH AT PRAYER MEETING

SODEPUR,
December 5, 1945

Gandhiji spoke about the technique and purpose of prayer which was to commune with the inner self by the individual. To the extent this communion was achieved the individual man got a fresh lease of spiritual enlightenment to sustain one for the next 24 hours.

Amrita Bazar Patrika, 6-12-1945

743. LETTER TO R. G. CASEY

SODEPUR,
December 6, 1945

DEAR FRIEND,

As you were eager to have a copy of the Constructive Programme¹, I had procured a copy. But today’s post brought me a proof copy of the revised edition. I send it for your perusal. You will read what you like. The copy need not be returned to me.²

The other things I am trying to collect as fast as possible in the midst of the overwhelming work before me.

May I repeat the pleasure it gave me to meet you and Mrs.
Casey.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

H. E. THE GOVERNOR OF BENGAL
CALCUTTA

From a photostat: G.N. 811; also Gandhiji’s Correspondence with the Government 1944-47, p. 105

744. LETTER TO MONA

SODEPUR,
December 6, 1945

MY DEAR BABY,

Your sweet letter. I was pleased to see your big family. Only I was too busy to play with them to my heart’s content.

If you have not come up to your promise, try again.

You need not trouble to come, I shall not misunderstand your absence.

Love to you all.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Vide “Constructive Programme: Its Meaning and Place”, 13-12-1941
² The addressee in his letter of December 9, 1945, said that he entirely agreed with Gandhiji’s views on home-spinning and weaving but he was against each cultivator growing his own cotton as that would reduce the already very small areas for the growing of his main crop—paddy. Further, his scheme would not free cultivators from the thraldom of monsoon or other disabilities arising out of lack of irrigation.
745. LETTER TO A. K. M. ZAKARIAH

SODEPUR,
December 6, 1945

DEAR FRIEND,

I was glad to see yours of 3rd inst. to Shri Pyarelal. You can come any day just before 5.15 p.m. You will forgive me if I am called away for work at the time.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

JANAB A. K. M. ZAKARIAH
68 SYED AMEER ALI AVENUE
CALCUTTA

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

746. LETTER TO THE AGA KHAN

KHADI PRATISHTHAN,
SODEPUR (NR. CALCUTTA),
December 6, 1945

DEAR FRIEND,

I write this about the little crematorium on your ground. You know perhaps that when I was a prisoner in the Aga Khan Palace in Yeravda the ashes of Mahadev Desai first and then of my wife were buried in your compound. The remains were cremated there at the Government’s instance. They would not let me cremate them outside at the usual crematorium. Through Government’s good grace and your people’s forbearance, friends have been able to have access to the above crematorium. I have been pleading with the Government that they acquire the little plot and some right of way for devotees. Now that you are in India, may I look to you to facilitate my request in the manner you think proper?

I hope you are keeping well and that we shall meet before you leave India again.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

H. H. THE AGA KHAN

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
747. LETTER TO SHANTIKUMAR N. MORARJEE

SODEPUR,

December 6, 1945

CHI. SHANTIKUMAR,

I have just been able to reach your letter. A letter to the Aga Khan is enclosed.¹ Read it. If you approve of it, send it on to him. If you wish, you may show it to Sir Purushottamdas².

Blessings to you both from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 4806. Courtesy: Shantikumar N. Morarjee

748. LETTER TO MADALSA

SODEPUR,

December 6, 1945

CHI. MADALASA,

You want no reply, but I do wish to reply. You have had fever again. I do not like it at all. Make a practice of lying in the sun. You may, if you like, increase the duration gradually. Cover up the body to start with and, as you feel warmer, remove the covering gradually till finally you are stripped of all clothing. This will not only cure the chest complaint but I am sure make the whole body perfectly healthy.

Blessings from

BAPU

[From Gujarati]

Panchven Putrako Bapuke Ashirvad, p. 327

¹ Vide the preceding item.
² Purushottamdas Thakurdas
749. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

SODEPUR,
December 6, 1945

CHI. MUNNALAL,

I got your two letters. If other people’s advice differs from mine, follow mine. I assume that you have gone to Poona and am accordingly addressing this letter there.

Why should you feel concerned over anything that you may hear? Remain engrossed in your work and don’t speak except when absolutely necessary. You should attend to only three duties there and discharge them to the best of your ability: writing the accounts, doing the marketing and maintaining cleanliness. In doing the last you may occasionally have to express your opinion, but in doing the other two things you need speak nothing. If you keep up courage and faith, your work is bound to win appreciation. But even if it does not, what does it matter?

Kanchan seems to be keeping good health. I get very little time to talk to her. She works and remains cheerful.

I have torn up your letter.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 8615. Also C.W. 7197. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

750. LETTER TO BALBHADRA

SODEPUR,
December 6, 1945

Bhai Balbhadra,

I have your letter. Since Satyawati\(^1\) has passed away, I should certainly like to be better acquainted with you.

SHRI BALBHADRAJI
6 PYARELAL BUILDING
KASHMERE GATE, DELHI

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

\(^1\) Grand-daughter of Swami Shraddhanand

426 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
751. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA

SODEPUR,
December 6, 1945

CHI. KRISHNACHANDRA,

1. With regard to Om Prakashji I think there is no need for an M. A. degree. Of course he must improve his knowledge of Urdu and achieve proficiency in it. But how will a degree help in that? If he wishes to go home when his brother sends for him, he can certainly go.

2. I had entrusted the sadhu to Aryanayakum’s charge because I felt I should not burden you with the responsibility of a case which needs careful [medical] attention. Let him go if he wishes to. If he stays he has to abide by all the rules. Cleaning of lavatories is the first duty. He should not be a burden in any way. From what Kanu tells me he seems to be a totally useless man.

As for new Sevagram only what is deemed proper should be done. In this connection, only what Jajuji says should be done.

Read the letter to Sankaran which is enclosed herewith. That includes my reply regarding his sister and his son.

Any girl who wishes to learn only Hindi can easily learn it on her own. But we cannot provide facilities for teaching only Hindi. Provision can be made for both the scripts. This point is perfectly intelligible. Try to convince them by appealing to their reason. We may not compel anyone to learn both the scripts, but let us provide facilities for those who wish to learn both the scripts.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4835

752. LETTER TO V. A. SUNDARAM

SODEPUR,
December 6, 1945

CHI. SUNDARAM,

I have your letter. I do not take the least interest in the Assembly elections. I am forwarding your letter to Pantji. I remember Suresh very

1 Govind Ballabh Pant well. I am surprised that even a man like Suresh wants to enter the Assembly.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI V. SUNDARAM
KRISHNA KUTIR
BANARAS HINDU UNIVERSITY
BANARAS

From a photostat of the Hindi: C.W. 2895. Also Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

753. SPEECH AT PRAYER MEETING

SODEPUR,
December 6, 1945

In his introductory speech Gandhiji referred to the incident which took place at Sodepur Railway Station when one person either in attempting to board a running train which was not scheduled to stop at Sodepur or for some such reason was run over and killed.

They might think that when there were crores of Indians what did it matter if one met with death in such circumstances. But that was a totally wrong view. And if they allowed themselves to think in that way they would not be able to build up a brotherhood in India and secure her salvation. They must instead think that the person who met his death the other day was one of them and must feel sorry for his tragic end.

Perhaps, said Gandhiji, he himself was partly responsible for his death for the deceased went there either to see him or to attend the prayer. The congregation too was partly responsible because after the prayer was over they rushed to the Station, vied with each other to catch the train and thereby created a situation which caused this death. They, therefore, should henceforth take the vow with him not to create any such situation in future which might cause the death of a fellow-brother.

All this happened because they were not disciplined. The prayer was intended to confer upon man that discipline which he required so urgently. If they were mentally disciplined through the practice of prayer they would no more commit the mistake they committed the other day.

If by prayer they could be mentally disciplined, stated Gandhiji, they would

1 The subscription is in Tamil.
2 The meeting was also attended by Abdul Ghaffar Khan and Jawaharlal Nehru.
attain a state which was nobler and higher than even the salvation of India.

Perhaps, freedom of India could be maintained with the help of pistols or swords. But were those weapons of any value if their votaries were not disciplined? Therefore whether a country was wedded to violence or non-violence discipline was of paramount importance to all men.

Without discipline it was difficult to attain swaraj as he had stated two days ago.

If they practised prayer with all concentration they would find that all their difficulties would smoothen.

Concluding, Gandhiji referred to an incident in South Africa when a ship came upon a rock and was about to sink. Its Captain was a strong-willed and disciplined man. He preserved the calm of his mind and realized that he could not save all lives. He, therefore, secured the safety of as many men as he could and then went down with a hymn to God on his lips alone with the sinking ship. If he was not a disciplined man, said Gandhiji, he could not have saved the lives of the many passengers of the ship whom he brought to safety. What was, therefore, urgently required of all was discipline and this all men could acquire by actively participating in prayer.

Amrita Bazar Patrika, 7-12-1945
APPENDICES

APPENDIX I

LORD WAVELL'S VERSION OF HIS TALK WITH GANDHIJI

I deplored the recent speeches of Congress leaders and said that the preaching of violence could only lead to violence, especially with the inflammable material in India, of young students and goondas (the Indian equivalent of hooligans); and that fomentation of racial and communal hatred would not produce the atmosphere in which a solution could be produced in next year's discussions. He admitted the violence of Congress speeches and indicated that he was trying to get the tone lowered. I said that an agreement of some kind between Hindu and Muslim was necessary, even if it was an agreement to part. He said he had always tried for a settlement but was frustrated by the British policy of divide and rule. I said this was nonsense, we tried our best to bring them together; that the increase in communal feeling was mainly due to the action of Congress Ministries in 1937-39 which had made Muslims feel they would not get a square deal from Congress and had caused the rise of the Muslim League and the idea of Pakistan. He defended the Congress Ministries at some length, and said all Governors had admitted their fairness. I said there was no doubt about the psychological effect on the Muslims, whatever the facts may have been; and he admitted this. I then said that the British were accustomed to abuse and misrepresentation from Indian Nationalists, but that there was a limit, and that it seemed hardly wise to antagonize us at this moment when we were trying our best to bring about a settlement, and that India after getting her freedom would want Britain's co-operation in defence and in commercial development. I added that if any disorder resulted from the hatred now being stirred up, it would of course be my duty to suppress it, and I should do so by all means in my power. He assented to this; and then said that India needed no help from Britain in trade or defence. She would develop her trade in her own way, and her defence would be the moral force of non-violence, which would eventually conquer the world and bring about universal peace. I said I did not think either of us would live to see this desirable issue, and that the immediate point was to prevent violence in India during the next year or so. We left it at that. He was quite friendly though woolly, and seemed in good health.

The Viceroy's Journal, pp. 192-3

1 Vide footnote 1, “Speech At Calcutta”, 10-12-1945
1. TELEGRAM TO THE AGA KHAN

SODEPUR,

December 7, 1945

H. H. AGAKHAN

BOMBAY

MANY THANKS YOUR WIRE. WOULD LOVE TO MEET YOU AND LEARN FROM YOU WAY TO SOLUTION COMMUNAL PROBLEM. MAULANA IS ILL BUT AT WORK. EXPECTING TO REACH WARDHA FEBRUARY.

WRITING.

GANDHI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

2. LETTER TO JIVANJI D. DESAI

SODEPUR,

December 7, 1945

CHI. JIVANII,

I got your proof-copy of the pamphlet on constructive work yesterday. I wanted to use that copy here and did so. But I had already gone through the proof earlier. As there is no letter accompanying it, I don’t quite understand why you have sent it. You have given a heading to my preface but there is no heading on the page on which the pamphlet itself begins. I infer from this that final touches still remain to be given to the printing. I have of course asked Pyarelalji to write to you about this, but I think it is better to dictate this just now in the morning.

I have the impression that I have already written to you about the cover. My suggestion is that the eighteen headings which you have given in the pamphlet should be reproduced on the cover in their proper order, with the page number given against each. This will help the reader and we shall be able to show what topics have been covered. The topics can also be shown on the cover in the form of a circle. We can have a drawing of the spinning-wheel in the centre and the headings can be printed round it like the planets round the sun. There is one difficulty in this, of course. How can communal unity be represent as a planet? If it is so represented, my original conception would be vitiated, for the basic conception is that khadi is the chief handicraft and that the other industries take their place and revolve round khadi like planets round the sun. If now we can find a place in this scheme for Adivasis, kisans, students and communal unity, then the conception will have been worked out. It might be better, therefore, to give up the idea of the circle, or to form the circle only with khadi and cottage industries. But we need not waste any time over this, for it is essential that the pamphlet should be published as soon as possible. It is also necessary that the translations should be published simultaneously. It would, also, be good if at the end a supplementary list of other books to be read with the pamphlet are given. For example, Rajendra Babu’s book, Gulzarilal’s essay, etc. You may drop this also, if you cannot recollect the names of the books immediately. Pyarelal will most probably send you a wire today saying, “Send another copy proof.” The idea behind this is that if I have to correct the proof, the time which would be taken by an ordinary letter may be saved, for the copy which I have passed on is not likely to come back to me now.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 9960. Also C.W. 6934. Courtesy: Jivanji D. Desai

3. LETTER TO JATINDAS AMIN

SODEPUR,
December 7, 1945

CHI. AMIN,

I got your letter sent with Sushila. She arrived the day before yesterday. You do not seem to have calmed down yet. You can render great service if you calm down. Take up only a little work there. If you bring credit to it, it will be greatly appreciated.

What you write is absolutely correct. Greatness lies in becoming small and smallness in assuming greatness. We should therfore only serve by becoming as small as dust particles.

1 This was given to R. G. Casey, the Governor or Bengal, vide ”Letter to R. G. Casey”, 6-12-1945

THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
Your camera is to be sent only with somebody going there, is that not so? I am sure you are not in a hurry.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

4. LETTER TO MANORANJAN CHATTERJEE

SODEPUR,

December 7, 1945

Bhai Manoranjana,

I have your wire. I am writing to Dr. Shyamaprasadji and I shall send either Dr. Sushila Nayyar or Pyarelalji there.

Yours,

M. K. Gandhi

Shri Manoranjana Chatterjee

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

5. LETTER TO SHYAMAPRASAD MOOKHERJEE

SODEPUR,

December 7, 1945

Bhai Shyamaprasadji,

Why did you fall ill? Dr. Bidhan tells me that you do not take care of your health and that once you take up some work you never let go. This is a virtue as well as a vice. It is good when you persevere in it within a certain limit. It is bad when you go beyond the limit. I hope that, as reported in the newspapers, you will resume work after taking complete rest.

Yours,

M. K. Gandhi

Shyamaprasad Mookherjee

Calcutta

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

\[ \text{\textsuperscript{1}} \text{Vide the following item.} \]
6. LETTER TO SURENDRANATH VISHWAS

SODEPUR,

December 7, 1945

Bhai Suren Babu,

I have your informative letter. It will be useful to me.

Yours,

M. K. Gandhi

SHRI SURENDRANATH VISHWAS
1/23 Prince Gulam Mohammed Road
KALIGHAT
CALCUTTA

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

7. LETTER TO CHARUPRABHA SENGUPTA

SODEPUR,

December 7, 1945

Chi. Charuprabha,

These days I try to write to all Indians in the national language. How long shall we go on writing to each other in English?

I am occupied with many things up to the 10th. I don’t know how long I shall be here after that. Even then I am writing to Aruna.²

8. LETTER TO ARUNA SENGUPTA

SODEPUR,

December 7, 1945

Chi. Aruna,

Mother writes to me that I should write to you to come here. I am busy till the 10th. I don’t know where I shall be after that. Look up the newspapers and if I am in Sodepur come any day at 5 o’clock

¹ A copy of the letter available in Pyarelal Papers bears the date December 8.
² Addressee’s daughter; vide the following item.
for the prayer. I shall have a talk with you for two minutes after the prayer.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRIMATI ARUNA SENGUPTA
93/3/2 HARI GHOSH STREET
CALCUTTA

9. INTERVIEW TO THE PRESS

December 7, 1945

Asked whether he would like to say anything about the Congress Working Committee meeting, Gandhiji replied.

No, I am tired.

In reply to another query Gandhiji remarked:

What can I give you? The Maulana is here. You can take whatever you like from him. They have called me here, but they have not given me any food to eat, or water to drink. And after my work has been finished they are sending me back to my place. Your food is being cooked at Maulana’s hands and he will give it to you when it is ready.

While waiting for the car Gandhiji turned to Maulana Azad and remarked:

Maulana Saheb, these press reporters and photographers are having a good time and detaining our car.

A hearty laughter followed. A Press correspondent drew Gandhiji’s attention to the announcement from New Delhi that the Viceroy had agreed to see Mahatma Gandhi. The correspondent inquired whether it suggested that Gandhiji had sought the interview.

Gandhiji replied the news had appeared in the newspapers and he declined to make any further comment.

Amrita Bazar Patrika, 8-12-1945

¹ Held at the residence of Abul Kalam Azad, the Congress President. According to the source “Gandhiji spoke for over an hour and touched upon the political situation, the Indian National Army, changes in the Congress constitution, Congress prospects in the Central and Provincial elections and other matters. He also reported on his talks with R. G. Casey.”
10. SPEECH AT PRAYER MEETING

SODEPUR,

December 7, 1945

Gandhiji said that he noticed that the people became quiet only after he arrived at the place. That was not ideal. The place where a prayer was conducted, he said, should be considered as a temple and only in prayerful mind should they present themselves there. They should come silently and maintain calm and should leave the place in the same mood.

If, however, those who joined in the prayer would remain quiet and peaceful he would be only too glad to see the whole of Calcutta assembled there.

Proceeding, Gandhiji said that there were incorporated in the service Bengali songs as the majority of those present were Bengalees; but for the benefit of others he wished to get a booklet including all songs and other prayers printed in both Devanagari and Urdu scripts. This proposed booklet which might be priced two pice would be of permanent benefit to the readers who could then be acquainted with the texts whenever they so wished.

Amrita Bazar Patrika, 9-12-1945

11. LETTER TO G. E. B. ABELL

CAMP: KHADI PRATISHTHAN,
SODEPUR (NEAR CALCUTTA),

December 8, 1945

DEAR MR. ABELL,

I have your letter of 26th November about Shri Yajee.¹ I am thankful for the considered reply. I am now trying to put myself in touch with the gentleman and see what he has to say.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

G. E. B. ABELL, ESQ.
PRIVATE SECRETARY TO THE VICEROY

Gandhiji’s Correspondence with the Government, 1944-47, p. 61

¹ The addressee had written that the allegations of Sheel Bhadra Yajee about food and inhuman living conditions given to him in the jail were all exaggerated. Vide also “Letter to Sir Evan M. Jenkins”, 7-11-1945
12. LETTER TO G. E. B. ABELL

CAMP: KHADI PRATISHTHAN
SODEPUR (NEAR CALCUTTA),
December 8, 1945

DEAR MR. ABELL,

I thank you for yours of 1st instant.¹ I shall send you in due course fuller details about Dr. Ram Manohar Lohia and have written to Shri Prabhu Dayal Vidyarthi to proceed to New Dehli and report himself.²

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

Gandhiji’s Correspondence with the Government, 1944-47, pp. 63-4

13. LETTER TO R. G. CASEY

Immediate

KHADI PRATISHTHAN, SODEPUR,
December 8, 1945

DEAR FRIEND,

I write this with the greatest hesitation. The more I see and hear, the greater is the grief over the happenings in Bengal. Here is a sample demanding immediate attention.

Satish Babu brings me the story that potato-growers cannot get seed potatoes and the planting season will be over in a week’s time. Seed potatoes are there in the market under Government control. But the grower cannot get them.

There is evidently something radically wrong if the news brought by Satish Babu is true. I wonder if you can do anything. You were telling me about the clever Mr. Dey whose services you have enlisted for such matters. Can you make him over to me or some other officer who can attend to this immediate affair?

I am having this letter delivered at once. The question is small

¹ The addressee had asked Gandhiji to send directly to the Home Member the details about Vidyarthi and Lohia.
² A telegram was however sent on December 9. Vide also “Letter to Sir Even M. Jenkins”, 25-11-1945 enough on the large Bengal canvas but is all in all to the poor growers whose livelihood is at stake."

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat: G.N. 813; also Gandhi’s Correspondence with the Government, 1944-47, p. 113

14. LETTER TO R. G. CASEY

KHADI PRATISHTHAN, SODEPUR,
December 8, 1945

DEAR FRIEND,

I have just finished reading your broadcast to be delivered today. It makes interesting and informative reading. If the waters of the rivers can be captured and utilized by the people of Bengal, instead of being wasted in the Bay, it would be a great gain. But it is a long-term proposition. The millions, meanwhile, must be taught to utilize every minute of the working hours for their own benefit. If they learn this art they will make good use of the captured waters. You have well said:

The tens of millions of farmers of Bengal are idle more than half the time. They constitute the biggest problem of unemployment in the world and the biggest waste of potential human effort.

I have provided you with a complete answer which can be worked out today with a very little outlay on the part of the Government. Regard human labour more even than money and you have an untapped and inexhaustible source of income which ever increases with use. If I had been your adviser, before the speech was printed I would have suggested the insertion immediately after, “Let us examine the problem”, of a paragraph or two, showing the way of immediate utilization of human effort. You could then have followed it up with your entrancing scheme as a long-range proposition.

Is your peroration right? You say:

The answer to my mind lies not in our politics, our religion or our individual ambition, but in the abiding factors of our environment, i.e., the land and water of Bengal.

1 In Gandhi’s Emissary. Sudhir Ghosh writes that the Government, using emergency powers, seized whatever stocks there were with the profiteers and 250 mounds were distributed among the growers that same day.
This is a gross error or thought and consequent action, handed down from generation to generation by the British official element. Your gigantic project will come to nothing until the whole mass of the people of Bengal is interested in the Government of the province. Therefore, religion and even individual ambition are intermixed. They are as much abiding factors of our environment as the land and water of Bengal, and they are equally shifting.

You asked me for my reaction to your thoughtful speech and I have given it as it has come to me.

Very many thanks for your prompt action on my letter of this morning on seed potatoes.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat: G.N. 812; also Gandhi's Correspondence with the Government, 1944-47, pp. 107-8

15. LETTER TO THE AGA KHAN

DEAR FRIEND,

I had your long wire to which I have replied as follows:

Of course, I shall be glad to receive your suggestions. It does not matter to me in the least that in this matter you will be representing nobody but yourself. The only question is how we shall meet, when and where. I have a fixed programme for Bengal, Assam and Madras, which is calculated to take me up to almost the middle of February before I return to Sevagram. If, therefore, I know your movements about February, I shall try to see what I can do.

Maulana Saheb has interrupted his rest for the sake of the Working Committee. He is none too well, but I have no doubt he will be in communication with you himself.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

H. H. THE AGA KHAN
BOMBAY

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Vide footnote on “Letter to R. G. Casey”, 8-12-1945
2 Vide “Telegram to the Aga Khan”, 7-12-1945
16. LETTER TO SATYANAND

SODEPUR,
December 8, 1945

DEAR SATYANAND BABU,

It was a delight to receive your postcard. I am doing all I am capable of for the alleviation of distress. I do not know what God will do through the effort.

I hope you are keeping well.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

17. LETTER TO NOEL BARWELL

SODEPUR,
December 8, 1945

DEAR MR. BARWELL,

I thank you for your cordial note. I am so much fixed up and so embarrassingly besieged wherever I go that I dare not promise myself the pleasure of visiting the society you mention. But I shall certainly be pleased to see you for a few minutes at this place if you and Mrs. Barwell can conveniently come. There is not a moment left open till Monday, but I shall know more fully on Monday where I stand.

Could you please phone on Tuesday next or send a messenger?

Yours sincerely,

NOEL BARWELL ESQ.
6 MIDDLETON ST.
CALCUTTA

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
18. LETTER TO BALWANTBHAI D. DESAI

SODEPUR,
December 8, 1945

CHI. BALWANTBHAI,

I got your postcard. I am really very glad. Get rid of all doubts.

Blessings from
BAPU

SIT. BALWANTBHAI DADUBHAI DESAI
DAKOR

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

19. LETTER TO KISHORELAL G. MASHRUWALA

SODEPUR,
December 8, 1945

CHI. KISHORELAL,

I have your letter. I am certainly going to …¹ Tara. Her letter reflects her character. The work which she is doing now will not clash with the work of K. G. N. M. Trust. She will also have some help from Sushilabai.² If she would rather not stay at the Mahila Ashram, she can live in Akola and there can be no hitch even if she has to be paid a salary. I am passing on Chi. Tara’s letter to Bapa. I strongly feel that you two should go and stay at Bombay for a time.

How strange that I myself never knew that my car had met with an accident. Still it made a story. People might be escaping hundreds of such accidents daily. If the papers were to take note of them we would have to stop travelling by cars, etc. If Prabhu Dayal is there please ask him to stay on.

Blessings from
BAPU

SJT. KISHORELAL MASHRUWALA
SEVAGRAM

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Omission as in the source
² Sushilabai Mukundrao Joshi, a teacher at the Mahila Ashram, Wardha
20. LETTER TO NARAHARI D. PARikh

SODEPUR,
December 8, 1945

CHI. NARAHARI,

I have your letter. I think the kind of questions asked by Vishnudatta’s friend ought not to be encouraged. Had I been conducting Harijan I might occasionally answer such questions. Generally those who ask such questions are idlers.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

21. LETTER TO SHANTILAL TRIVEDI

SODEPUR,
December 8, 1945

CHI. SHANTILAL,

I have your letter. Saralabehn spoke at great length of your courage and service. I am glad.

I am pleased with what you write about wool. It may be useful if you have your experiences during the journey published. You should be concise and to the point.

SHANTILAL TRIVEDI
GOVIND NIWAS
ALMORA

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

22. LETTER TO TARA N. MASHRUWALa

SODEPUR,
December 8, 1945

CHI. TARI,

I read your letter to Kishorelal. How will you continue to be so diffident? Your name will be announced as an Agent. Thakkar Bapa will write to you the details. You will no doubt take all the help you can from Sushilabai. It would certainly be better if she could be spared from the Mahila Ashram and stay with you in Akola. I think her salary can be paid from the K. G. N. M. Trust. Write to me at length, or write to Bapa.

I take it you are all well. Sushilabehn and the children are not with me; Manilal is.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

23. LETTER TO ATMARAM

SODEPUR,
December 8, 1945

Bhai ATMARAM,

It is certainly a bad thing that during prayer undesirable thoughts come. But you should not worry. Take any sloka of the prayer and concentrate on it. If even this is not possible repeat Ramanama from the depths of your heart with such concentration that there is no room for any other thought. It is no doubt difficult but it can be done. Such has been my experience and the experience of other people as well. That is why Ramanama is said to be the panacea for all ills.

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

24. LETTER TO KHUSHIRAM

SODEPUR,
December 8, 1945

Bhai KHUSHIRAM,

Bhai Jairamdas has told me how generous you are. It is good to give whatever you want to give without laying down unnecessary conditions. And the trust is being made. All this makes me very happy.

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

25. LETTER TO MRS. S. R. DAS

SODEPUR,
December 8, 1945

DEAR SISTER,

I was happy to see you, but it also made me unhappy. I was not prepared to see you in such broken health. Urmiladevi has given me a cheque for Rs. 500. I will spend that money on the Adivasis. You know who the Adivasis are, don’t you? Thakkar Bapa and Khersaheb are working among the Adivasis.

VOL. 89: 7 DECEMBER, 1945 - 24 FEBRUARY, 1946 13

Blessings from

BAPU

MRS. S. R. DAS
1 AUCKLAND PLACE
CALCUTTA

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

26. LETTER TO UDDHAV

SODEPUR,
December 8, 1945

BHAI UDDHAV,

On the death of your brother you performed only the yarn sacrifice and no religious rites. I liked it very much. It will bring great benefit if all do so.

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

27. LETTER TO V. V. SAXENA

SODEPUR,
December 8, 1945

BHAI SAXENA,

Kishorelalji has forwarded here your letter addressed to him. I shall not be able to reach Sevagram before February in any case. It will be best if you write to me what you want to discuss with me. In this way both of us will save time—and money of course.

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

PROF. V. V. SAXENA
VANASTHALI VIDYAPITH
VANASTHALI (JAIPUR)

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
SODEPUR,
December 8, 1945

Congratulating the congregation on its maintaining an ideal condition for proceeding with the prayer straight away as soon as he reached the place, Gandhiji explained the significance and gradual development of the system of mass-prayer at Sodepur Ashram.

In 1936 about a dozen Japanese monks paid him a visit when he was staying at Maganwadi, Wardha. The leading monk suggested to him that he intended to send one or two of his disciples to the Ashram, a proposal which he approved. First came one and later on another. Of the two, one was staying with him till the war with Japan broke out and as a result he was taken into custody. This Buddhist monk used to do all the tasks he was given very punctually and methodically. In between his work he used to spend the time at his disposal in singing religious songs in the Japanese language all the time beating a little drum. This he did while taking his rounds. This was a Buddhist religious song in praise of the Infinite. Gandhiji said that he incorporated the song in his prayer. This was the first item of the prayer.

The second item of the prayer was a Sanskrit sloka and was, according to him, universal in its appeal. This was an invocation to Mother Earth, sustainer of man. If there was any objection to it on any score he would plead that he was helpless. To him all faiths were welcome. He believed in all faiths but he saw no reason to give up his own faith. Possibly, said Gandhiji, this Sanskrit sloka was symbolic, but, according to him, many noble thoughts and ideas were couched in symbolic language.

Thirdly, there was the prayer quoted from the Koran. It was incorporated at the instance of daughter of Abbas Tyabji, the well-known Congress leader. She possessed a gifted voice. When on a visit to the Ashram she expressed the desire to propagate the teachings of the Koran to the Ashramites, he readily agreed. She suggested a verse from the Koran for inclusion in the prayer and it was done.

The fourth item of the prayer was taken from the Zend-Avesta written in the Pahlavi language. When he was fasting in the Aga Khan’s Palace, Dr. Gilder was there as were also Dr. Bidhan Roy and some other medical men. Dr. Gilder was a Parsi and from him the verse from the Zend-Avesta was taken and included.

So far as bhajan songs were concerned, said Gandhiji, there was no hard and fast rule. It all depended upon the time and place of the prayer. As the prayer was for the moment being held in Bengal and Bengalees in larger numbers were present, Bengali songs had to be included in the prayer daily.

It was Gandhiji’s desire to get all the prayers included in a booklet with their meanings given in Hindustani. He wished it to be printed both in Devanagari and

1 Raihana Tyabji
Urdu scripts and, if possible, in Bengali too.

He asked the assembled people to follow the prayer in a proper spirit and to live up to the lofty ideals it inculcated.

Amrita Bazar Patrika, 9-12-1945

29. TELEGRAM TO PRABHU DAYAL VIDYARTHI

CALCUTTA,
December 9, 1945

PRABHU DAYAL
ASHRAM
SEVAGRAM, WARDHA

PROCEED NEW DELHI AND SEE DEVDAS WHO HAS INSTRUCTIONS.

BAPU

From a photostat G.N. 11673

30. LETTER TO SAMARENDRANATH ROY

SODEPUR,
December 9, 1945

DEAR SAMARENDRA

It grieved me to learn from Satis Babu that your great father was no more. You may know that your father and I were friends. We often met and exchanged views. My condolences to you all.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

SHRI SAMARENDRANATH ROY
33/2 BEADEN ST.
CALCUTTA

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Kalinath Roy, editor in charge of The Tribune, who died on 9th December, 1945
31. LETTER TO SUSHILA GANDHI

SODEPUR,
December 9, 1945

CHI. SUSHILA,

I got your letter. It is enough that your aspiration is pure. I don’t think there is anything special in staying with me. When you serve people wherever you are, I shall take it that you are with me. I do not feel that you are losing anything by not being with me. The air is humid and it is cold, too.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 4967

32. LETTER TO SITA GANDHI

SODEPUR,
December 9, 1945

CHI. SITA,

You seem to be demanding too much. How can you expect a letter from me unless you write to me? I know that you are keeping well and are working hard. Pass the examination. Come to me when you can. I am glad to know that you do rowing. It is a good exercise. Row the boat of India, too.

Take care of your health while studying.

Blessings to all.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 4968

33. LETTER TO SHRIMAN NARAYAN

SODEPUR,
December 9, 1945

CHI. SHRIMAN,

I got your letter today. I made very few changes. I am sending it back.

I am happy to hear that Madalasa is all right. Tell her that I think of her every day.
Do not give any importance to my cold. I did have a touch of it but am I not a “mahatma” after all?

Blessings from
BAPU

[From Hindi]
Panchven Putrako Bapuke Ashirvad, pp. 307-8

34. LETTER TO BHAGWATI PRASAD

SODEPUR,
December 9, 1945

CHI. BHAGWATI,

How will the marriage be performed in Gondia? You have not said whether there will be any rites or it will be a civil marriage before a magistrate. I wish both of you well. I cannot have any objection to marriages which are intended not for indulgence but for observance of self-control, for enhancing the spirit of service and widening its sphere. On the contrary I encourage such marriages. And therefore I would like to have your reply to the above question.

What is the girl’s brother doing? Why doesn’t the girl write to me? What has she been doing these years since she visited the Ashram? I am keen to know all these things.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI BHAGWATI PRASAD
C/O DEVIPRASAD DAMOHE
RANGE OFFICER, GENERAL EXCISE
GONDIA

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

35. LETTER TO LAKSHMI NARAYAN GADODIA

SODEPUR,
December 9, 1945

Bhai Lakshmi Narayan,

I have your letter. Personally I liked it very much. I intend to show it to Sharmaji. You have not asked me not to do so. Similarly, if it becomes necessary I shall also want to show it to Jajuji and Vichi-tra Narayan. The whole episode seems strange to me.
I will find out more about khadi because I have received complaints from other people also in this regard.

SHRI LAKSHMI NARAYAN GADODIA
P. O. BOX NO. 17
DELHI

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

36. LETTER TO H. L. SHARMA

SODEPUR,
December 9, 1945

CHI. SHARMA,

I had sent a copy of your letter to Gadodiaji. I have a long reply from him, saying that whatever you have said is all fabrication and where it has any truth it has never been hidden nor is it a matter of shame. I only hope that you have not done anything improper and if you have you must frankly confess it. I enclose a copy of Gadodiaji’s letter.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI H. L. SHARMA
KHURJA

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

37. LETTER TO SARASWATI GADODIA

SODEPUR,
December 9, 1945

CHI. SARASWATI,

What is there in your letter that makes it confidential? Still, since you want it, I shall treat it as such. Of course I shall not take it to mean that it is to remain confidential from those who work for me. For instance, I did not read the letter, but Kanu read it out to me while I ate.

You would want me to show it to Sharmaji, wouldn’t you? If I don’t do that, the letter, which I like and which I find clean and pure will become useless. Even then I shall wait for your reply. My advice is that not only the above-mentioned letter but anything we do or write should not be kept secret. We should do nothing which has to be kept secret or hidden. That is the main thing.

1 This is not traceable.

Blessings from
BAPU

C/O SHRI LAKSHMI NARAYAN GADODIA
P. B. NO. 17, DELHI

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

38. LETTER TO RADHAKANT MALAVIYA
SODEPUR,
December 9, 1945

BHAI RADHAKANT,

I have gone through your letter. I do not take any interest in the elections. I know that the Congress must win.

Babuji has formed a separate association. I did not like it. But who was I to prevent him from doing so? I think it is improper for you to run it. It is a different thing if Babuji does so. Have a talk with the Working Committee about the role of the Hindu Mahasabha. I personally do not like it. I am returning the two letters.

Blessings from
M. K. GANDHI

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

39. LETTER TO SHYAMLAL
SODEPUR,
December 9, 1945

CHI. SHYAMLAL.¹

You are going ahead very fast. If it is in keeping with your strength, it is good. The work of Kasturba Memorial can progress only with such self-sacrifice. We cannot always measure the strength of self-sacrifice. What does it matter? May God preserve your strength.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Secretary of the Kasturba Memorial Trust
40. LETTER TO VASUDEV

SODEPUR,
December 9, 1945

BHAISHRI,

Your letter is written in a very bad hand. And that too in English. Can’t you express your views in Hindustani?

I have gone through the printed statement. I did not like it. Its is pompous and lacking in humility. There is also exaggeration in it. Read what I have written about students. Writing will not help. Only work will. Constructive work is easy as well as difficult. Meet Rajendra Babu. Do what he says.

Yours,
M. K. GANDHI

VASUDEV
YOUTH LEAGUE
PATNA

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

41. LETTER TO MOTILAL ROY

SODEPUR,
December 9, 1945

Bhai Moti Babu,

How long should I go on writing to you in English? These days, as far as possible, I write to everybody in the national language or the mother tongue. Perhaps you may not be having anyone who can read the national language, so I am enclosing a Bengali translation of the letter also. Amtul Salaam will deliver this letter to you and also have a talk with you. She has complained a lot to me about the khadi policy of the Pravartak Sangh. Amtul Salaam has stayed with me for years as a daughter. She is very industrious and very knowledgeable. Hence, she has been doing the khadi work at Borkamta for the last few years. Now the Pravartak Sangh is also functioning there. Amtul Salaam’s work is purely altruistic and for service of the people. 1 Amtul Salaam says that the [Pravartak Sangh] 2 is not for selfless service but . . . 3

1 A few words are indistinct here in the source.
2 ibid
3 A few words are indistinct here in the source.
ends. She also says that its work is against the policy of the Charkha Sangh and may cause harm to it. I refuse to believe that you are aware of these things and allow them to continue. And so I am sending Amtul Salaam to understand the situation. She will explain things in greater detail.

It is a matter of regret that the money advanced by the Charkha Sangh has not been returned so far. They should get it back now. It belongs to the Trust. And how can the Trust write it off?

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 11058

42. LETTER TO CHIMANLAL N. SHAH

SODEPUR,

December 10, 1945

CHI. CHIMANLAL,

The newly-opened account in the United Commercial Bank, as per papers herewith, is to be operated by you or by me. I am thinking of two more signatures, though I have not decided who the persons should be. If you can think of any names, let me know. Perhaps two names may suffice for the present. The question will arise when one of us dies.

Send your specimen signature on the accompanying form. I have given mine in Hindustani and intend to sign in that language in future. You also can do the same. Think over this and do as you like. Preserve the other papers relating to the account sent with this. Send the specimen signature to me.

I shall be here for some time.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10648
43. LETTER TO SHITIKANTH JHA

SODEPUR,
December 10, 1945

Bhai Shitikanth,

I have your letter. If you want to sit by my side, come over some day. But what is so special in sitting near me? Doing the work suggested by me amounts to sitting near me.

Blessings from
Bapu

Bhakti Shyam Nath Jha
Khadi Pratishtan
Gram Seva Kendra
Thakurbandi

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 7477. Also C.W. 4923

44. SPEECH AT PRAYER MEETING

SODEPUR,
December 10, 1945

When we are making a supreme effort for the realization of our goal let nobody have any opportunity of pointing it against us that we are not disciplined and therefore not fit for swaraj. Either today or tomorrow the power must come to our hands. But how are we going to exercise that power unless we are disciplined?

The British Government, he reminded the people, was not the last hurdle to be got over. If the people were not disciplined then even if power came to their hands they would not be able to retain it and someone else would be there to snatch it away from their hands.

It was only wild animals which were not disciplined and took recourse to unreasonable and meaningless climbing. But if men also took recourse to such tactics how could drivers and guards of trains manage their affairs. It was also often found that small boats which had only limited capacity often gave way and sank because of overcrowding. They were crores and perhaps for that reason they did not notice the loss they sustained in such catastrophes. If they could not board a train they should just wait for the next to travel instead of overcrowding the first and thus make it impossible for the driver and the guard to run it.

1 The reference is to the conduct of passengers who boarded engines and guards’ compartments on the previous day to travel to and from Sodepur.
Proceeding, Gandhiji said that they must learn discipline. There were two ways of learning it. The soldiers learnt it by having drill exercises. But there was the prayer to teach them the other way. Prayer not only secures for them their salvation for the next world but also in this world. If they failed to secure their salvation in this world, could there be any possibility of securing the salvation for the next? In the circumstances, concluded Gandhiji, they should conduct themselves as thinking men.

Amrita Bazar Patrika, 11-12-1945

45. SPEECH AT CALCUTTA

December 10, 1945

Addressing the gathering outside Government House, Gandhiji said that when he entered Government House in the evening he found a crowd of people around his car. Hence he had come this time walking to them.

He asked them to be calm and peaceful. He was an old man and could not bear the strain of demonstrations. If they did not allow him to go by car, he would have to walk on foot to Sodepur.

Gandhiji added that he had come there to serve them and the country. He urged on them the need for discipline. India had attained a great position in the past because of her great message of shanti. They could attain freedom only by peace and discipline.

Referring to the prayer meeting at Sodepur Ashram, Gandhiji said that thousands and thousands of people came there to join the prayer, but perfect silence was maintained.

Gandhiji then asked the gathering whether they would allow him to go by car. The crowd respectfully replied in the affirmative and Gandhiji got into his car while a corridor was made for him to pass through. Sitting with his hands folded in salutation, Gandhiji then moved out in the car to his Ashram at Sodepur.

Amrita Bazar Patrika, 11-12-1945

---

1 At 8.40 p.m., after his talk with the Viceroy. For the Viceroy’s version of the talk vide “Lord Wavel’s Version of His Talk With Gandhiji”
46. CONGRESS WORKING COMMITTEE RESOLUTION

[On or before December 11, 1945]

After the arrest of the principal Congressmen in the August of 1942, the unguided masses took the reins in their own hands and acted almost spontaneously. If many acts of heroism and sacrifice are to their credit, there were acts done which could not be included in non-violence. It is, therefore, necessary for the Working Committee to affirm, for the guidance of all concerned, that the policy of non-violence adopted in 1920 by the Congress continues unabated, and that such non-violence does not include burning of public property, cutting of telegraph wires, derailing of trains and intimidation.

The Working Committee is of opinion that the policy of non-violence as detailed in the Congress resolution of 1920, since expanded and explained from time to time, and action in accordance with it, has raised India to a height never attained before.

The Working Committee is further of opinion that the constructive activities of the Congress, beginning with the spinning-wheel and khadi as the centre, are emblematic of the policy of non-violence and that every other Congress activity including what is known as the parliamentary programme, is subservient to and designed to promote the constructive activities as explained by Mahatma Gandhi.

The Working Committee is of opinion that civil disobedience, mass or any other, meant for the attainment of freedom, is inconceivable without the adoption of the constructive programme on the widest scale possible by the masses of India.

_The Hindu, 12-12-1945_

---

1 The resolution, drafted by Gandhiji, was passed by the Congress Working Committee on December 11, the concluding day of its five-day session held in Calcutta.

2 _ibid_
47. LETTER TO R. G. CASEY

KHADI PRATISHTHAN, SODEPUR,
December 12, 1945

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter of 10th instant, for which I thank you.

I have not discounted your irrigation scheme. I have only suggested an addition to it so as to bring almost immediate individual relief to the crores of villagers by occupying their admitted leisure hours. In your written note you seem to be in entire accord with my proposition. Where then is the difficulty in the Government of Bengal sponsoring the scheme and at once creating a hopeful situation so far as the shortage of cloth is concerned? I have never suggested that attainment of happiness is possible without the control of physical surroundings. But I have no desire to enter into any argument. If you have immediate regard for home-spinning and weaving and other village crafts, I have suggested a way out. That each cultivator should grow his own cotton is not a sine qua non of my scheme and certainly no cultivator should be compelled or even advised to grow cotton to the detriment of any staple crop. The question is one of utilizing waste labour, as under your scheme it is one of utilizing waste water.

If you favour the idea as practical and capable of immediate application, I could furnish you with a detailed scheme which, as I have told you, can be worked with the help of the various khadi organizations controlled by the All-India Spinners’ Association.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

Gandhiji’s Correspondence with the Government, 1944-47, p. 110

---

1 Vide “Letter to R. G. Casey”, 8-12-1945
48. LETTER TO R. G. CASEY

KHADI PRATISHTHAN, SODEPUR,
December 12, 1945

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your kind letter of 10th instant regarding the Gope Palace.¹ This is a matter of such a delicate nature that I do not think I can usefully interfere. And why should there be any hurry if a popular government is shortly to replace the present regime?

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

Gandhiji’s Correspondence with the Government, 1944-47, p.112

49. LETTER TO PREMA KANTAK

SODEPUR,
December 12, 1945

CHI. PREMA,

Chi. Sushila² has addressed the following letter³ to Shyamlal:

I had assumed that Sushila would readily take up this work and had, therefore, welcomed Shyamlal’s suggestion that he himself should write to her. But Sushila suggests your name and has declined to join while you are there. So I ask your advice as to what should be done. Shouldn’t we do what would help the work and bring credit to it? If you want to give your reply after consulting Sushila, do that. You may make any suggestion you like. If you address your reply as above, I shall get it wherever I am at the time.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10441. Also C.W. 6880. Courtesy: Prema Kantak

¹ The palace, which was on the outskirts of Midnapore, housed a British Military Hospital and the Health Department of the Bengal Government was anxious to acquire it permanently for a T. B. sanatorium. The addressee had suggested to Gandhiji to use his influence with the owner who was a Congressman.
² Sushila Pai
³ Not translated here. She had declined to be the Agent of Kasturba Memorial Fund Committee for Maharashtra and suggested the addressee’s name instead.
50. LETTER TO DR. N. B. KHARE

SODEPUR,
December 12, 1945

BHAJ KHARE,

I think that you are anxious to meet me. It will be all right if you can come tomorrow evening at 8 o’clock.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat of the Hindi: C.W. 4869. Courtesy: N. B. Khare

51. LETTER TO RADHAKANT MALAVIYA

SODEPUR,
December 12, 1945

BHAJ RADHAKANT,

I received your letter last night. The meeting of the Working Committee is over. Please understand my limitations and also my unwillingness concerning what you write.

SHRI RADHAKANT MALAVIYA
16 TARACHAND DUTT STREET
CALCUTTA

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

52. SPEECH AT PRAYER MEETING

SODEPUR,
December 12, 1945

Gandhiji said that an individual, even if a snake might be lying on his way, would pass by it, assuming that it was not a snake but a piece of rope. He would not be frightened then. But if his companion then drew his attention to the fact that it was not a piece of rope but a living snake that he passed by, he would at once be frightened. Was it not curious, asked Gandhiji, that although the same conditions prevailed, at one time the individual had no trace of fright in him and at another he would be awfully frightened and would thank God for his miraculous escape.

Drawing the moral from the illustration, Gandhiji concluded that the source of 2 Some of Khare’s supporters wanted him to explore possibilities of rejoining the Congress and to see Gandhiji in this connection.

happiness and woe, therefore, did not lie elsewhere but in one’s own mind. In his reply to Arjuna as to who had attained illumination, Krishna explained the nature of such a man by stating that he only was self-illumined (sthitaprajna) who was not affected either by a feeling of happiness or woe.¹ This was possible only on the part of that individual who was self-controlled. To a self-controlled man life becomes simple and salvation easy.

Amrita Bazar Patrika 13-12-1945

53. SPEECH AT PRAYER MEETING²

SODEPUR,

December 13, 1945

No knowledge conducive to the real good of the world could be attained without purification of heart, said Mahatma Gandhi. Those who attended these meetings should derive some benefits from them; otherwise, it would be useless for them to attend prayer meetings. They must concentrate their minds and only then would they realize the existence of God in their hearts. But if they kept quiet because he (Gandhiji) had asked them to do so, they would derive no benefit from the prayer. By concentration, their hearts would be purified and their inner knowledge would grow. Everybody should think that they were going to the prayer meeting for self-purification. Only then would their intellectual progress be uninterrupted and they would get real peace by controlling their passions.

The Hindu, 14-12-1945

¹ Bhagavad Gita, II, 54 and 56

² According to the source a large number of women and over a hundred Harijan boys attended the meeting.
54. LETTER TO THE AGA KHAN

KHADI PRATISHTHAN, SODEPUR,

December 14, 1945

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your kind telegram. I do not return from Madras via Poona. The probability is that I shall return via Bezwada to Wardha in February, when a date mutually convenient can be agreed upon either in Bombay or Poona, wherever it is convenient for you at the time.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

H. H. THE AGA KHAN
BOMBAY

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

55. LETTER TO BISHOP FOSS WESTCOTT

KHADI PRATISHTHAN, SODEPUR,

December 14, 1945

DEAR FRIEND,

Your kind letter (undated) from Ranchi has been received.

I thank you for the book Sudhir has given me. I shall try to make time to read it.

I entirely agree with you that the spirit of hatred can never solve India’s problem, for I believe in the general proposition that the spirit of hatred has never solved and never will solve any problem in the world. But I also believe that the causes for such hatred have to be discovered and removed. The removal of these, in India’s case, lies first in the superior, i.e., the ruling party, undoing the wrong it is doing. My method, by which I swear, is calculated to do it in the quickest manner possible.

I am glad you will bear in mind the thought of passing some time with me in the quiet of Sevagram.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

THE RT. REV. BISHOP FOSS WESTCOTT
C/O THE BISHOP’S HOUSE
RANCHI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Bishop of Calcutta and Metropolitan Bishop of India
56. LETTER TO KAMALADEVI CHATTOPADHYAYA

KHADI PRATISHTHAN, SODEPUR,
December 14, 1945

DEAR KAMALADEVI,

Your letter of 2nd instant came into my hand only this morning. When, after the conference, you find that you have to go to Mysore for Kasturba work, after due notice of your proposed entrance and that you will proceed to Mysore for that definite purpose, you should enter the State and take the consequences. If the State presumes to interfere with your activities, it might be worth while to test the legality of such action. But of that nothing need or can be said at the present moment.

About those who will be thrown out of work, is not Jawaharlal developing some central scheme or, it may be, the Congress? I have only a hazy notion. But I know this much clearly that it is a big problem not to be tackled by any single individual. The Talimi Sangh can only take in the smallest number possible, and then they are to be specialists having love for the work. The A. I. S. A. can absorb some more but such have to appreciate the dignity of village life and village simplicity. Can those whom you have in view take to it?

Of your future activity I understand what you say and I would much like to see you settle down in a village and put your hand not to the plough which may be too hard for you but to the wheel which is hard for nobody.

Love

Yours,

SHRIMATI KAMALADEVI
C/O WOMEN’S CONFERENCE OFFICE
LAMINGTON ROAD, BOMBAY?

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

---

1 All-India Women’s Conference to be held in 1946 over which the addressee was to preside
2 The reference is to the demobilization of army personnel and labour engaged in war service. The A. I. C. C. which met at Bombay from September 21 to 24 passed a resolution expressing its concern.
57. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

SODEPUR,

December 14, 1945

CHI. MUNNALAL,

I got your long letter. I was taken aback a little. I was not unaw-are that meat, and even beef, is cooked in the kitchen there. This is a problem which can be solved only with patience You need not get alarmed and run away. It should be enough that you yourself do not eat either meat or beef. But you cannot prevent others from doing so. It would be good if they thought about it and stopped on their own. I would, therefore, advise you to have patience and go on doing the work I have suggested.

I do not want to keep you too long. But I shall be satisfied if you start writing up the accounts and set them in order and bring the sanitation work within manageable limits. The other changes can be introduced only after my return. Jehangirji must have arrived there by now.

Kanchan remains engrossed in work. She has not recovered complete strength, but I am hopeful that she will. Has Durlabhbhai left for good or only temporarily? If you know anything about this, write to me.

Blessing to all.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 810. Also C.W. 7193. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah
58. LETTER TO ATUL CHANDRA GHOSH

KHADI PRATISHTHAN, SODEPUR,

December 14, 1945

BHAJ ATUL BABU,

What can I do? I cannot be young for ever. Therefore be content with whatever service I can render from one place. Please tell the people of Manbhum that we can achieve everything through ahimsa and the symbol of ahimsa is the charkha.

Blessings from

BAPU

BABU ATULCHAND GHOSH
NIVARAN ASHRAM
PURULIA (MANBHAM),

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

59. LETTER TO V. G. GAVANDE

SODEPUR,

December 14, 1945

BHAJ GAVANDE,

Ramkrishna has given me your statement. When you send something to someone, whether it is long or short, it should always be legible. What you have sent is illegible. Unless one gives it concentrated attention one can’t read it. Where do I have so much time? I am sorry to say I have not been able to read it. In writing this my intention is to tell you that anything, any statement you send, should be in a clear and legible hand.

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

SHRI V.G. GAVANDE
MAHAL, NAGPUR

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
60. TELEGRAM TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

December 15, 1945

YOUR LETTER. DO ALL WORK YOU CAN SECURING NECESSARY ASSISTANCE.

BAPU

From a photostat: G.N. 8614. Also C.W. 7194. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

61. LETTER TO G. E. B. ABELL

CAMP: KHADI PRATISHTHAN,
SODEPUR (NEAR CALCUTTA),

December 15, 1945

DEAR FRIEND,

A correspondent writes from the United Provinces to the effect that manufacture of gur is prohibited there. Gur-making is a village industry. It is manufactured on their fields by cane-growers from juice extracted by means of village kolhus and boiled in village pans. I, therefore, thought that my correspondent must be mistaken and asked him to send me a copy of the order on which his observations were made. He has sent me a copy of the enclosed startling order. Cane-growers have since passed resolutions protesting against the order and threatened to disobey it if it was not withdrawn. As a result the authorities relaxed the order. A copy of the relaxation order is also herewith enclosed. I doubt not that you realize what this means to the poor people. The original order could not have been issued for the protection of sugar mills but must have been meant to secure judicious use and distribution of sugar as gur or refined. If so, it defeats the purpose. The modified order, though less bad than the first, does not really serve the purpose, considered in the light of the villagers. There should be no licence for gur made in village.

As this is not a mere provincial matter but applies to all India

1 Jaggery
2 Cane-crushers
3 The notification was to the effect that in certain specified areas no person should “manufacture gur, introduce or set up any kolhus for crushing cane” or “move sugar-cane……to any place outside such areas except to sugar-cane factories listed”.

34 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
wherever cane is grown, I venture to approach H. E. the Viceroy for relief.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

G. E. B. ABELL, ESQ., I.C.S.
PRIVATE SECRETARY TO H. E. THE VICEROY
THE VICEROY'S HOUSE
NEW DELHI

Gandhiji’s Correspondence with the Government, 1944-47, pp. 70-1

62. LETTER TO C. K. NARAYANASWAMI

KHADI PRATISHTHAN,
SODEPUR (NR. CALCUTTA),
[December] 15, 1945

DEAR NARAYANASWAMI,

I am afraid that, owing to my movements after leaving Poona, I have not been able to be up to date with my correspondence. I hope that Menon is making good progress with his work.

As to the constructive programme I can say this much that it is doing better than before. But have you any workable suggestions to make? What you have said in your letter is good enough for city mentality. What you and I have to do is to think out suggestions in terms of village mentality unless, of course, you have reached the conclusion that the village and village mentality are to go if they have not already gone. My conclusion emphatically is that if the world is not to end, the village and village mentality alone will save it. In spite of their glamour the city and city mentality are going before our eyes. Therefore, I have left for me no other alternative but to think of ways and means for sustaining the village life.

What is your concrete suggestion about Muslim unrest?

Yours,

BAPU

SHRI C. K. NARAYANASWAMI
5 HIDAYAT HOUSE
BOMBAY 19

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 The addressee in his letter of January 4, 1946, said that gur-making was not prohibited except in a small area of the United Provinces and that too in order to plan production and distribution of sugar and gur in the Province.

2 The source has October but Gandhiji was then in Poona.
63. LETTER TO J. C. GUPTA

SODEPUR,

December 15, 1945

DEAR FRIEND,

Many thanks for your letter.¹

I am doing all I can about the prisoners.² I do not think I need trouble you to see me about them.

It was a pleasure to see your blind son and his wife.

Yours sincerely,

SHRI J. C. GUPTA

23 CIRCUS AVENUE, CALCUTTA

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

64. LETTER TO UTTIMCHAND GANGARAM

SODEPUR, CALCUTTA,

December 15, 1945

DEAR UTTIMCHAND,

Though the receipt for the 4th instalment has, I presume been sent you, I have not been able to acknowledge your p. c. of 22nd ultimo. I have been travelling.

Your puzzles baffle me and my clever friends. I must therefore give up hope of getting prizes from you for Harijans. I must rely solely on your love of Harijans and Khadi, perhaps also Adivasis.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

SHRI UTTIMCHAND GANGARAM

BOMBAY BAKERY

HYDERABAD (SIND)

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers: Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ According to The Hindu, 26-12-1945, the addressee who was chairman of the All-Parties Political Prisoners’ Release Campaign Committee had said in his letter that “43 pre-Reform political prisoners between themselves had undergone imprisonment for no less than 600 years……”

² Vide “Letter to R. G. Casey”, 16-12-1945
65. LETTER TO HARJIVAN KOTAK

KHADI PRATISHTHAN, SODEPUR,
December 15, 1945

CHI. HARJIVAN,

I got your letter of the 10th yesterday. You seem to be very impatient. You ask my blessings by wire. We are after all poor people and trustees of those much poorer than we. And how can we so much as wish for blessings? Even if we have such a desire, how can we have it met telegraphically? So thinking I refrained from sending a wire. Why should you need any blessings? Here is the secret of blessings. When we are engaged in a work which is worthy of blessings, then the work itself is a blessing; it does not wait for blessings from others. Seeking blessings from other people is, therefore, meaningless; it is nothing but self-deception. It no doubt has a meaning in that blessings act as a stimulant from which a weak person derives momentary encouragement. But this kind of encouragement is not of much help. If you understand this and still really need my blessings, you certainly have them for your work of producing the tools necessary for making khadi provided it is done intelligently. When I say intelligently I mean that we should not manufacture spinning-wheels, winding frames, taklis, etc., just to sell; we should make only as many as are needed and see that they are so perfect that no one may find fault with them. Our aim should be—and is—that all the things are produced locally. Only then will the villages prosper. What I am now saying is covered by the new line of thought on khadi that I am propounding. Whatever I have not elaborated may be deduced from the aforesaid.

Yesterday Sardar was here. He wanted to know why he was not informed about your leaving the khadi shop. I could not give him a satisfactory answer. I take it that you must have gone through all the formalities since you are so alert. However, if you have anything to say in this regard, write to Sharda. I see from your letter that Sharda is with you. Is she doing anything?

Blessings from

BAPU

HARJIVAN KOTAK

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
66. LETTER TO RAJENDRA PRASAD

KHADI PRATISHTHAN, SODEPUR,
December 15, 1945

Bhai Rajendra Prasad

I have your letter. I shall start working on Mahendra Chaudhary’s case after receiving other opinions on it.

You should be perfectly fit.

I am going to Santiniketan on the 18th. I shall return on the 20th.

Blessings from

Bapu

Dr. Rajendra Prasad
Sadaquat Ashram
Dighaghat
Patna

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

67. LETTER TO KHWAJA NAZIMUDDIN

KHADI PRATISHTHAN,
SODEPUR, CALCUTTA,
December 15, 1945

Bhai Sahab,

Amtussalaam has given me your letter inviting me to your place on the 4th. How nice it would have been if I could come to your place. But circumstances do not permit me to do so. Does it mean that we shall not be able to meet? If that happens I shall be very sorry.

Sir Nazimuddin
Calcutta

From a copy of the Urdu: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
68. LETTER TO R. G. CASEY

KHADI PRATISHTHAN, SODEPUR,
December 16, 1945

DEAR FRIEND,

I have insistent complaints about goondaism and favouritism at the elections.¹ We had a talk about these. But they seem to persist. I know you do not want these things. Can something be done in the matter?

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

Gandhiji’s Correspondence with the Government, 1944-47, pp. 113-4

69. LETTER TO R. G. CASEY

KHADI PRATISHTHAN, SODEPUR,
December 16, 1945

DEAR FRIEND,

Literature about your prisoners is pouring in on me.² According to the papers in my possession, you have over twenty-five pre-Reform prisoners, all of them having undergone sentences above ten and most of them above fifteen years.

Then you have untried detenus, detained only on one-sided secret evidence which they have not seen, and some convicts, all of them political.

Among these prisoners are two women cooped up in a small cell.

I am told that there is no terrorism to be feared. The prisoners are all likely to be public-spirited. But that can be no reason for keeping them behind prison bars.

I submit that they should all be discharged without the slightest ado.

I plead for a little grace before, as you and I hope, the transference of power comes.

I have offered, and still do, to see these prisoners, if it is thought

¹ It was Fazlul Haq, ex-Premier of Bengal, who had brought the matter to Gandhiji’s notice. The goondaism was resorted to by supporters of the Muslim League.
² Vide also “Letter to J. C. Gupta”, 15-12-1945
I leave for Santiniketan on 8th instant, returning here on the 20th evening.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

Gandhiji’s Correspondence with the Government, 1944-47, pp. 132-3

70. LETTER TO DHUNDIRAJ

KHADI PRATISHTHAN, SODEPUR,

December 16, 1945

BHAJ DHUNDIRAJ,

I have been receiving the figures sent by you. I glance through them as they arrive. According to the new policy, you are also required to indicate the number of people who go there to learn or to spin, how many of them know all the processes, whether those at the shop have learnt them and so on. All these particulars should be shown in figures.

Blessings from

BAPU

SJT. DHUNDIRAJ
KHADI BHANDAR
395 KALBADEVI
BOMBAY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

71. LETTER TO SARALADEVI A. SARABHAI

December 16, 1945

DEAR SISTER,

I came to know of your brother’s passing away from a letter of Chi. Mridula. I also learnt that you had been to Rajkot in this connection. Such things are part of life. All of us have to go—some sooner, some later. That being so expression of condolence would only be folly. Why should I then indulge in it? And why should you expect me to? So the purpose of writing this letter is only to let you know that you are not out of my thoughts.

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
SODEPUR,
December 16, 1945

CHI. MRIDULA,

Sushilabehn gave me news of the death of your maternal uncle and told me how calm and unperturbed you were in your bereavement.

Badshah Khan left yesterday. He was telling me that in the event of Akbar\(^1\) being prepared to go to him, you would take up his work at Samau or make some arrangement. If this is correct, talk it over with Akbar and finalize the arrangement. If Akbar is still not satisfied then let me know who is willing to take up the work at Samau and how it can be done, so that I can write to Akbar. If some dependable worker is not available, do tell me so frankly.

I have not yet written to Saraladevi regarding her appointment as Agent because I had a letter from Mavalankar that he would be seeing her. Write to me if you know anything more. I hope you are well. I shall go to Santiniketan on the 18th, and return on the 20th. 24th Midnapore. It is correct to regard Sodepur as my camp for the present.

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

73. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

SODEPUR,
December 16, 1945

CHI. MUNNALAL,

Your second letter written on the 12th arrived here on the 15th. You must have received the following wire which I sent you yesterday:\(^2\)

The description you have given is quite good. I am sure that as the problem about beef was solved so will the other also be solved through patience and love.\(^3\) I entrusted certain jobs to you

\(^1\) Akbarbhai Chawda
\(^2\) Vide “Letter to Munnalal G. Shah”, 15-12-1945
\(^3\) Vide “Letter to Munnalal G. Shah”, 14-12-1945
as being the most important, but since I have already accepted responsibility for all other arrangements except medical attention I should certainly like you to take up that work also. So do take up whatever work you can without coming into conflict with anybody.

Though I shall not be there on January 1, from that day the institution will be run only for the poor and on behalf of the poor. From that day the management of all departments except the medical will be considered to have become my responsibility. I trust you will take up the responsibility on my behalf. But you must assume the responsibility for only as much work as you can easily attend to. Let me know what jobs you are not able to take up.

After January 1, there will be no wealthy patients there. If there are any, they will not be treated as wealthy men.

Dr. Dinshaw had said that he would himself see about the furniture. He wanted it for his clinic in Bombay. There will be very few poor indoor patients for the present. Maybe there will be none. Hence, though we shall keep facilities ready for a large number, the hospital is not likely to get filled in the immediate future. We shall have to use our judgement in the matter of furniture. Ascertain Gulbai’s wishes. Don’t insist on ordering things which the two do not want.

From among the patients there, those who wish to leave may be permitted to do so. From January 1, really speaking, the only patients will be Balkrishna, Vanu and Zohra. You will have no difficulty in looking after them. You must have realized by now that it is no easy job to shoulder the responsibility of that institution. The task would easily test the capacity of any man.

I wish you not to worry about Kanchan.

Blessings to everybody there

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 8614. Also C.W. 7194. Courtesy:
Munnalal G. Shah

---

1 Nature Cure Clinic
2 Wife of Dinshaw Mehta
3 Balkrishna Bhave
4 Vanamala Parikh
74. LETTER TO G. RAMACHANDRAN

SODEPUR,
December 16, 1945

CHI. RAMACHANDRAN,

Why should I now write to you in English? If you have to write in English, you may do so. However, I should like you to make an attempt to write in Hindustani.

How can I explain to you how much harm we are causing to India by being unable to write except in English.

I have seen to the matter of the Rs. 100. You do not have to worry.

I hope your work is going on well. Write to me whatever you want to. I shall be going to Santiniketan on the 18th for two days. After that I shall return here.

I hope Saundram is well.

SHRI RAMACHANDRAN
GANDHI ASHRAM
SALEM DISTT.

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

75. LETTER TO JASWANTRAI CHURANI

SODEPUR,
December 16, 1945

BHAJ JASWANTRAI,

I had your letter dated the 20th. Ever since I have been touring. You have done well in sending the receipts of the deposits. If there is anything more, Mukherjee will write to you.

SHRI JASWANTRAI CHURANI
15 LAKE ROAD
LAHORE

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
76. LETTER TO KUMAR BABU

SODEPUR,
December 16, 1945

BHAI KUMAR BABU,

You have spared me from having to visit Vasudevpur. Thanks. I am indeed sorry that I cannot go there.

Yours,
M. K. GANDHI

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

77. SPEECH AT PRAYER MEETING

SODEPUR,
December 16, 1945

The tendency of learning English rather than one’s own language was deprecated by Mahatma Gandhi. “If we could stop this tendency we would be free from one of our slaveries,” said Mahatma Gandhi, adding that he could not express how this tendency of some people talking and writing in English damaged them and the country. But in England, whenever a good book was published anywhere in the world, within a few days it would be translated and would reach the hands of the English-speaking public. Mahatma Gandhi asked:

Should we not do the same thing in India? Although it would take time for all people to understand the rashtrabhasha, there were languages of the locality and any good book could be translated and presented to the public in their mother tongue.

The Hindu, 18-12-1945

78. STATEMENT TO THE PRESS

December 17, 1945

I see that I have overstayed my time in Calcutta. I found I had more work in Calcutta than I had expected. And then events compelled me to work more strenuously than I had counted upon. The result is that, much to my and my fellow-workers’ disappointment, I have been compelled to cut off the places I had originally conceived and tentatively discussed with friends who were arranging the tour. But let no one think that the curtailment will affect my study of the Bengal situation. The visit to Santiniketan is more by way of a friendly visit than study. I do not expect to see or meet visitors. They will oblige me by abstaining from wishing to see me during my very short stay there.

_Amrita Bazar Patrika, 18-12-1945_

79. LETTER TO MIRABEHN

_SODEPUR, December 17, 1945_

CHI. MIRA,

This is merely a love letter written on the silence day. I have read your descriptive letter with much interest. But I do not know when I shall reach the Kisan Ashram. Is your account to the English Press quite accurate?

Love.

BAPU

SHRI MIRABAI
KISAN ASHRAM, MULDASPUR
BAHADRAD BAD POST, _via_ JWALAPUR
SAHARANPUR DT.

From the original: C.W. 6513. Courtesy: Mirabehn. Aslo G.N. 9908

80. LETTER TO C. RAJAGOPALACHARI

_SODEPUR, December 17, 1945_

MY DEAR C. R.,

Your letter. You have not much to do for deserving what I said about you to the friends. For my observation was based on the past performance, not on the promise of the future.

Let my thought work, if it is true and well thought. The spoken word may spoil matters. Wait, watch and pray. Let us see.

You should write regularly or, if you are too busy, ask someone to write. How are you? The account given to me was none too good.

Things here are as bad as could be imagined. I am trying. I go

1 The superscription in this and other letters to Mirabehn is in Devanagari. on 18th to Santiniketan, return on 20th and go to Midnapore on 24th for a week. Your letters should be addressed to Sodepur.

Love.

BAPU

From a photostat: G.N. 2114

81. LETTERS TO MAKHANLAL ROY-CHOWDHURY

SODEPUR,

December 17, 1945

DEAR PROFESSOR,

If you can come at 5:45 p.m., i.e., just after public prayer on 22nd instant you can talk to me while I am having my walk.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

PROF. SHRI MAKHANLAL ROY-CHOWDHURY

12 SITARAM GHOSH ST.

CALCUTTA

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

82. LETTER TO JANAKIDEVI BAJAJ

SODEPUR,

December 17, 1' 1945

JANAKIMAIYA,

It was good that I got your telegram.

I was a bit worried. You must have got Sushila’s wire and letter. I hope you remember about the cow. You are coming to Madras, aren’t you?

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 5851. Also Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 In Pyarelal Papers the date is 18.
83. LETTER TO MADALASA

SODEPUR,

December 17, 1945

CHI. MADALASA,

It is good that you have undergone the second operation. I hope you are well. You are learning your lesson all right. Write to me when you are fit enough to do so. Ramakrishna\(^2\) is fine. He does some work of service. Kamalnayan\(^1\) has come today. I hope the child is well. Is he growing normally?

Blessings from
BAPU

[From Gujarati]

84. LETTER TO ARUN GANDHI

SODEPUR,

December 17, 1945

CHI. ARUN\(^5\).

I think of you every day, but especially today during silence. Do you spin carefully at least 160 rounds daily? Is the yarn even? Do you yourself fix the spinning-wheel? Do you keep a daily account? If you keep this one promise, you will learn a lot.

Are you all right? How is Ila\(^6\)? Has she become a little wiser?

Blessings to all of you from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 4969. Also Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

---

1. In Pyarelal Papers the date is 18.
2. Addressee’s brothers
3. Ibid
4. In Pyarelal Papers the date is 18.
5. Son of Manilal Gandhi
6. Addressee’s sister
85. LETTER TO J. C. KUMARAPPA

SODEPUR,
December 17, 1945

BHAJ KUMARAPPA,

Your work has come to my notice. Look after your health and do not tempt God. If you have understood what I have said, then you need not move about a lot. It is a question of your being ready. What is required is mastery over one vocation and working knowledge of the others. It is very necessary to have a good knowledge of Hindustani.

Blessings from

BAPU

KUMARAPPA

WARDHA

From a photostat of the Hindi: C.W. 10406. Also Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

86. LETTER TO RAM MANOHAR LOHIA

SODEPUR,
KHADI PRATISHTHAN,
December 17, 1945

BHAJ RAM MANOHAR,

I am sorry that your father passed away suddenly yesterday. We used to meet often. I had sent Pyarelalji and Prabhavatibehn to see his charkha activity. In my view he died in the manner he wanted. He had been engrossed in his work.

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

DR. RAM MANOHAR LOHIA

AGRA

From the Hindi original: C.W. 11065. Courtesy: Hardev Sharma. Also Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 In Pyarelal Papers the date is 18.
87. LETTER TO SHRIKRISHNADAS JAJU

SODEPUR,
December 17, 1945

Bhai Jajuji,

I have your letter about the appointment of Ramdhanbhai in Kashmir in place of Vichitrabhai. I agree.
I have sent my signatures on the authority letter for opening accounts in banks.
I have sent the letter after signing it to the Bihar Charkha Sangh.
The reply sent to Badshah Khan is all right.
Do whatever you can about……1 khadi.

Blessings from

Bapu

Jajuji

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

88. LETTER TO DR. SYED MAHMUD

SODEPUR,
December 17,2 1945

Bhai Mahmud,

How was it that you came and went away? I kept on waiting? It was much easier for you to come to Sodepur. How can any arrangement be made now?

Blessing from

Bapu

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 5092. Also Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 A word is illegible here.
2 In Pyarelal Papers the date is 18.
89. LETTER TO VEENA PATEL

SODEPUR,
December 17, 1945

CHI. VEENA,

I have your beautiful letter. Let me know to what extent you had been suppressing yourself. Khimji is no doubt a good man and you will be happy there. Keep on writing to me. I am going to Santiniketan tomorrow. Father meets me quite often. He will go to Wardha. He will take Swadhina with him. Dhiren is well.

Blessings to you and Khimji from

BAPU

VEENA

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

90. SPEECH AT PRAYER MEETING

SODEPUR,
December 17, 1945

We have come so close together and you have been observing such exemplary silence that it will give me a wrench to be away from you. God willing I shall be leaving for Santiniketan on Tuesday. I hope to return and again join you in the prayer on the 21st.

The hymn that has been sung on Monday is particularly appropriate. It says that he who gives his all gets all without asking. As against this he who grabs what he has no right to, loses all.

I have been told that some of you travel without ticket on trains and even stop trains by pulling the alarm chain at will. The report has pained me. Both these things are illegal. But I do not want to dwell upon the legal aspect. These practices are contrary to the spirit of the prayer. All I can say is those who indulge in these practices have not grasped the meaning of prayer. If they will reflect on the hymn that has just been sung they will realize that they may not travel

1 Although the date in the source is 18, it would appear from the contents that the letter was written on the 17th, for Gandhiji left for Santiniketan on the 18th.

2 The speech, written in Hindi, was read out by Kanu Gandhi, it being Gandhiji’s silence day. without ticket or pull the alarm chain without legitimate cause. I hope that such things will not occur again. If we continue to indulge in this kind of behaviour it will neither bring us independence nor enable us to retain it after it has been won. May God guide us aright.

Amrita Bazar Patrika, 18-12-1945

91. LETTER TO G. E. B. ABELL

CAMP: KHADI PRATISHTHAN,
SODEPUR (NEAR CALCUTTA),

December 18, 1945

DEAR MR. ABELL,

In continuation of the correspondence\(^1\) about the alleged ill-treatment of Dr. Rammanohar Lohia, I am now able to send as requested a copy of the statement made by Dr. Lohia to his legal adviser.\(^2\)

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

Gandhiji’s Correspondence with the Government, 1944-47, p. 66

92. LETTER TO G. L. CROSS

CAMP: KHADI PRATISHTHAN,
SODEPUR (NEAR CALCUTTA),

December 18, 1945

DEAR MR. CROSS,

I have very carefully read your letter of the 15th and the note you left with me when we last met. Dr. Sushila Nayyar added that after best thought you had come to the conclusion that it would not be proper to worry me in the matter, at least for the time being. If this last news is accurate, I need not say anything more. However, I want to say that in popular estimation anything which the Government either directly or indirectly supports is considered to be anti-Independence and there is, at some stage or other, a clash between the people and the power that keeps the former from their cherished goal. This has happened often enough within my own experience. Therefore, ‘non-

---

\(^1\)Vide “Letter to Sir Evan M. Jenkins”, 25-12-1945

\(^2\)Acknowledging this in his letter dated December 20, the addressee said that the statement had been forwarded to the Home Member.
political’ has come to mean non-Indian, i.e., anti-Independence. Hence the unpopularity of movements connected with the Government. This is the crux. Association with war has a meaning with me but not with the average man. Everything British is certainly not bad if it is not synonymous with the Government; as C.F. Andrews, from top to toe British, was not bad. There are many organizations under Democracy which are not themselves run democratically but are not anti-democratic. Thus, a bank or a hospital would require experts to run it even though they may be run by democrats in the interest of democracy.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. G.

G. L. CROSS, ESQ.
C/O FRIENDS’ AMBULANCE UNIT
1 UPPER WOOD STREET
CALCUTTA

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

93. LETTER TO PUSHPA K. DESAI

SODEPUR,
December 18, 1945

CHI. PUSHPA,

Owing to my many preoccupations, I have not been able to write to you of late. I hope you are getting on well. You must be learning Hindustani.

Enclosed is a letter from Vrajlal. Read it and preserve it. Give it to me when I return. I have replied to Vrajlal and told him that if he finds it convenient he may go to Sevagram even in my absence. If he can persuade you to marry him, he may by all means do so. As I understand you, you do not even countenance the idea of marrying. But my judgment of you may be wrong. Can any man or woman really know his or her heart? Does not God alone know it? If, therefore, you change your mind after meeting Vrajlal, believe yourself to be absolutely free to do what you like. Don’t be obdurate through a false sense of shame. Obey the promptings of a pure heart. I shall welcome your writing to Vrajlal, and if you do write, send the letter to me. I will forward it to him. If you are not very eager to write, I shall not press you to do so.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 9267

94. LETTER TO DINSHAW K. MEHTA

SODEPUR,
December 18, 1945

CHI. DINshaw,

Though I am here I keep thinking of matters there. Please train
Munnalal well. He is hard-working, honest and accomplished.

What did you do about the furniture? We will not take in any new patient from the new year. We might admit some who are poor.
I hope you are calm. I am enclosing the wire from Met Manage. Let him come when he can. Those who stay on should do so after careful consideration. Those who want to leave may go. Write to me at the address given above.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

95. LETTER TO GULBAI D. MEHTA

SODEPUR,
December 18, 1945

CHI. GULBAI,

You must now be due for confinement. How are you? You are calm, aren’t you? Write to me whatever you like. You are not going to fight shy of me. How is Mother?

How is Ardeshir\(^1\)?

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

\(^1\) Addressee’s son
96. LETTER TO ANASUYABAI KALE

SODEPUR,
December 18, 1945

DEAR SISTER,

I was happy to read your letter. Your Hindi is not in any way inferior to mine.

Everyone should do some constructive work over and above parliamentary work. And the aim of parliamentary work should also be to advance constructive work.

Yours,
M. K. GANDHI

SHRI ANASUYABAI KALE
ANAND BHAVAN
DHANTOLI
NAGPUR

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

97. LETTER TO B. P. SINHA

SODEPUR,
December 18, 1945

BHAI SINHA,

I have received the statement¹ of Dr. Rammanohar which you have sent. Thanks.

Yours,
M. K. GANDHI

SHRI B. P. SINHA
KASHI VIDYAPITH
BENARAS CANTT.

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹Vide also “Letter to G. E. B. Abell”, 18-12-1945
98. LETTER TO N. G. RANGA

SODEPUR,
December 18, 1945

Bhai Ranga,

I have gone through your letter. I will read your pamphlet. You are doing a lot of work.

Blessings to you both from

Bapu

Prof. Ranga
Nidulbrolu

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

99. LETTER TO H. C. DASAPPA

SODEPUR,
December 18, 1945

Bhai Dasappa,

I have your letter. Meet me in Madras when I go there. I doubt whether I shall be able to go to Mysore. Be in Madras, both of you. Blessings to Yashodhara.

Blessings from

Bapu

Shri H. C. Dasappa
Shri Kasturba Shibir
Paduravally
V. V. Mohalla Post
Mysore

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

100. LETTER TO SANKARAN

SODEPUR,
December 18, 1945

Chi. Shankaran,

I have your letter. I understand. I have already written for the expenses of [your] son and sister being paid.
Come here after improving your health. Write to me about everything there. Let me know how many patients there are and what treatment they are being given and so on.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI SANKARAN
BALESHWAR SINGHJI
JIVAN SAKHA, LUKERGANJ
ALLAHABAD

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

101. LETTER TO SHYAMLAL

SODEPUR,
December 18, 1945

BHAJ SHYAMLAL,

I have your letter about Durgabai. You may accept her services. I am not however fully satisfied. How will she be able to do the work of Kasturba Memorial Trust while practising law? Let us see whether she learns Hindustani. I have your letter about Shri Panajikar, but I have not received his letter.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHYAMLAL
SECRETARY, KASTURBA GANDHI SMARAK NIDHI
WARDHA

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

102. LETTER TO PURNIMA BANNERJEE

SODEPUR,
ON THE TRAIN,
December 18, 1945

CHI. PURNIMA¹.

You must be knowing that from January onwards the Kasturba Smarak Nidhi will function through its Agents instead of the commi-

¹ Purmina Bannerjee of Allahabad, sister of Aruna Asaf Ali
I am enclosing herewith a copy of the resolution passed in this connection. Will you become an Agent? It will be easy for you to fulfil the conditions laid down. I had a talk with Jawaharlalji. He says neither he nor Pantji has any objection to your taking up this work. That is to say, they will relieve you from other activities. Someone told me—I cannot remember his name—that you might try to get into the Assembly. One going into the Assembly will not be able to do the work of Kasturba Memorial Trust well because an Agent will have to give a lot of time to the work if she wants to bring credit to it.

Now write to me at the Sodepur address. I wanted to write to you a few days back but forgot about it.

Blessings from

BAPU

PURNIMA BANNERJEE

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

103. LETTER TO MANGALDAS PAKVASA

[CAMP] SODEPUR,
ON THE TRAIN [TO SANTINIKETAN],
December 18, 1945

Bhai Mangaldas Pakvasa

I have your letter and the opinions. It was good that you sent copies of the opinions to Jajuji. I shall now see what can be done.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 4784. Courtesy: Mangaldas Pakvasa

104. LETTER TO OM PRAKASH

Khadi Pratishthan, Sodepur,
ON THE TRAIN,
December 18, 1945

Chh. Om Prakash,

I have your letter. If you have to go to your brother and do the work there, you should spare some time and come back after finishing the work. Take care that you do not devote too much time to it.
It is necessary to have a good knowledge of Urdu but why should you crave for a degree?

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

105. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA

SODEPUR,
ON THE TRAIN TO SANTINIKETAN,
December 18, 1945

CHI. KRISHNACHANDRA,

I have received all your letters. The letter written on rough paper is also lying with me. Today I shall answer whatever I possible can.

I am doing quite a bit of work here.

As for hand-carding I believe that this makes the cotton very clean. It is not so well cleaned either by machine or by any other means. By all these other means the fibre does become somewhat weak. In my view land-carding is a grand process. Combing should be given a place in it. Hand-carding teaches us cleanliness and patience. Adding the time spent in hand-carding [to that of the whole process] the speed of spinning the yarn seems slow. But that does not matter. Hand-carding of course cannot provide a livelihood. But it has a very significant part in self-reliance. As the process of hand-carding has not been very much in vogue, we have not had a real estimate of its power. We shall have an idea of its power if large numbers of people take to hand-carding. Show this letter to Vinoba also Hand-carding is his discovery. He has also had a wide experience. I would like to know if I am mistaken in this.

Because the sadhu had gone away, it was quite proper that he was asked to leave the Ashram. In my view this does not mean that it was quite wrong to have kept him in the Ashram. This will enable you to understand my argument.

I have no doubt that there should be separate classes for women. As for Om Prakash I shall be content with whatever you think right. It would not be proper for me to write anything about this.

I think the proper thing would be for me not to lay down limits as to the expenses of the people who are staying in the Ashram and who come as visitors. For my experience these days should be regarded as limited. In my view you have all gone too far ahead. And when one has left a thing behind, one’s view of it becomes less acceptable. The same applies to me. A doctor, however great a specialist he may be, does not regard himself as a specialist when he has given up practice. Others, who have acquired degrees later would be considered more competent. Hence, if it is decided to limit the expenses, let me first know the amount now being spent. Then I shall provide whatever light I can.

As for quarters for workers in the Ashram, I have discussed the matter at length with Shantabehn. But I am neutral. Shantabehn must be well now.

I shall not write anything from here about the work of Kamle and Om Prakashji. It would be improper for me to write. But I shall be ready to write to them when you write to me that I can place your views before them.

I understand what you say about Kailasbehn. It would have been better if I had asked you to be present when I spoke to her. I admit that what happened was improper. But I was dealing with things under such pressure that, much as I should have wished it, I could not have kept you with me all the time. This does not imply that I should not be warned again. Even a cautious person is likely to commit mistakes. Hence, it is a good policy to give a discreet warning.

It seems to me that however much we may get to know Vinoba, there is still more to learn. Do take the girls and the boys with you. Let there be one rule in this matter, that is, there should be no undue pressure on Vinoba. We should value his time.

Do you want a wall clock or a timepiece?

As a general rule, the new entrants should bear their own expenses. If it is decided to keep anyone free of charge, it should be done after recording the reason for doing so. I hope you have kept some such book there.

What decision did you want from me with regard to Chakrayya? What do you want now?

Blessings from

BAPU

[PS.]

On the train. Have not revised.

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4536
SANTINIKETAN,
December 18, 1945

Gurudev (Rabindranath Tagore) was like a great bird, wide and swift of wings, under which he gave protection to many.¹

Under the warmth of his wings Santiniketan has been nurtured to its present size. Bengal is full of his songs. He has glorified the name of India throughout the world not by his songs only but also by his pen and brush. We all miss the warmth of his protecting wings. But we must not grieve. The remedy lies in our own hands.

True monuments to the great are not statues of marble, bronze or gold. The best monument is to adorn and enlarge their legacy. A son who buries underground his father’s legacy or wastes it will be adjudged unworthy of his inheritance.

Whilst on Rathi Babu² and his colleagues must primarily rest the sacred duty of making Santiniketan truly worthy of Gurudev’s great tradition, that duty rests no less upon all those who, though they may not be directly connected with Santiniketan, received the warmth of Gurudev’s wings.

All mortals must quit this world one day. Gurudev has gone, having achieved all that a human being can expect to in life. His soul now rests in peace. It is for you now, the workers and inmates of Santiniketan—as indeed all those who are imbued with Gurudev’s spirit—collectively to represent his ideal.

Santiniketan has been the abode of peace to me and since my family was given shelter on arrival from South Africa it is a pilgrimage to me and whenever I got the opportunity I came here to seek peace and tranquility.

It is indeed sad that we no longer have his protective wings on us. But I find solace in the fact that he has left own memorial in the form of many gifts that he has bequeathed to the nation.

It is our duty to receive those gifts with humility and gratitude and to see that they go on increasing. If we can continue his work and prove ourselves true to the task he has left us, I do not see why we should mourn his passing away. I feel in my heart that his soul is

¹ The following four paragraphs are reproduced from Visva-Bharati News.
² Rathindranath Tagore, son of Rabindranath Tagore
somewhere in this Ashram and in perfect peace.

His songs that you have sung to me, although their meanings are not accessible to me just now, were full of sweetness and inspiration. I very much wish I could prolong my stay here in your midst, but I am afraid it is not possible this time, because I have other urgent duties to attend to.

During the last few years, India has passed through a great ordeal and none has suffered so greatly as this province of Bengal. The news of Bengal’s agonies reached me when I was in jail—powerless to do anything. I all along prayed to God to send me to serve Bengal and to help the distressed people. My visit this time, therefore, was undertaken with a view to serve and to work for Bengal. That is why I am very sorry that I shall not be able to prolong my stay. I shall take my sustenance of peace and inspiration from this place and then go away. I hope you will understand and forgive me.

107. TELEGRAM TO AGA KHAN

SANTINIKETAN,
December 19, 1945

AGA KHAN

THANKS YOUR WIRE. PLEASE ADDRESS SODEPUR.

GANDHI

From the original: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library.
Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

1 In reply to the addressee’s telegram of December 17, 1945, which read: “I would like to write fully about Yeravda. Where can I address letters?”
SANTINIKETAN,
December 19, 1945

Santiniketan is no new place to me. This Mandir too is familiar to me by old association. On more than one occasion I have come here and addressed the inmates. Santiniketan is like a home of my own. The world is in need of the ideal of peace which is the ideal of Santiniketan. That is why I expect a great deal from this place.

Gurudev lives on in his own creation. He has fulfilled his mission. It is we who have certain duties which we owe to him. If we fail to fulfil them we shall be failing in our duties.

The message of Santiniketan is urgently needed for the world in travail. Gurudev travelled from one quarter of the earth to another to bring about peace and conciliation. In a way he has designed Santiniketan for bringing peace to the whole world. His father founded the Ashram and it was left to the son to bring its benediction to the whole world.

When we come to a place of worship of our minds should be calm so that our hearts can be receptive. That is why we close our eyes during prayers. But today I would rather keep my eyes open to see the vision how the students of this place are getting ready to carry the message of peace as couriers of goodwill and brotherhood of the world.

Students of Oxford, Cambridge and other well-known seats of learning carry their own hallmark. I would like to see the students of this Ashram invested with that hallmark of peace and fellowship. I would like to see, moreover, how alert they are to receive the world and how unperturbed and calm they are in the face of difficulties.\(^1\)

---

\(^1\) The meeting was one of the weekly ones held every Wednesday morning. Gandhiji spoke at the request of Kshitimohan Sen.

\(^2\) According to Pyarelal “Gandhi had noticed that during the prayer some of the boys did not sit erect. Some were fidgety, others listless. He pulled them up for this as he had done before on the previous evening.”
The world has now grown a small place. England is no longer seven seas away. It takes hardly three days to reach the heart of England. We have come so near that we can share our joys and grief with all. The War has ceased. The Allies have won, but turmoil is still there, the pain and sufferings are on a very large scale. Winter is coming. We who belong to the tropics cannot even imagine what hardships will have to be endured by the people of the West in the face of dire winter there. Thousands have died and there is death staring in the face of many other thousands. They die of the severe cold and we of famine. What further suffering is in store for humanity nobody knows.

In the midst of this world-wide turmoil this Ashram should carry out its ideal of peace. All of you should carry the message of peace and brotherhood and dedicate yourselves to the cause of removing pain and suffering of the poor. You should prepare yourselves for that task from now on. You should be resolute and at the same time unperturbed. It is for you to fulfil the hope and trust that Gurudev left upon you.

Amrita Bazar Patrika, 20-12-145
109. SPEECH AT FOUNDATION-LAYING CEREMONY

SANTINIKETAN,
December 19, 1945

Birth and death are the obverse and reverse of the same coin. They are not distinct. They are different aspects of the same thing. But out of our ignorance we welcome the one and shrink from the other. This is wrong. Mourning over the death of dear ones, especially those like Charlie Andrews and Gurudev who have done their part so nobly and well has its root in our selfishness. Deenabandhu is blessed in death as he was in life. Death of people like him cannot be an occasion for sorrow. Speaking for myself, I may say that I have almost forgotten to mourn the death of friends and dear ones and I want you to learn to do likewise.

Between Deenabandhu and me there existed love like that between two brothers. I remember how Deenabandhu came out to South Africa at the instance of Mr. Gokhale and with the blessings of Gurudev, and how he repeated from place to place with deep feeling the mantras Gurudev had given him. Today I have laid the foundation of the hospital in memory of Deenabandhu Andrews—a title which has been bestowed on him by the grateful poor who need hospitals.

Being situated midway between Sriniketan and Santiniketan, it will serve not only these two places but also the villages round about. I have been very much touched by the cordial welcome given me by the representatives of the villagers. It is symbolical of their blessings with which are joined the blessings of you all.

Gandhiji referred to the high prices of building materials and said that it might take some time before the hospital could be erected.

Amrita Bazar Patrika, 20-12-1945, and Visva-Bharati News, Vol. XIV, No. 9

---

1 Of Deenabandhu C. F. Andrews Memorial Hospital. The function which was held in the evening was attended by the staff and students of Sriniketan and Santiniketan as also a good number of local peasantry.

2 This paragraph is reproduced from Visva-Bharati News.

3 On his arrival Gandhiji was welcomed by a Santhali headman, who applied sandal paste on his forehead, while a Santhali girl garlanded him.
110. DISCUSSION WITH HEADS OF DEPARTMENT,
SANTINIKETAN

December 19, 1945

Regard me as a blank slate. So far I have had only hearsay and hearsay has very little place in my life. Solid facts are what I want. Without a full knowledge of facts I shall be able to do little to help you.

It is not that you have nothing to say. That would mean that the institution is perfect. But nothing in this world is perfect. Speak to me freely about the shortcomings. Good things speak for themselves, not the bad things, at any rate, not to me.

I have followed every word of what you have said with the keenest interest and I have learned a lot from it. I do not propose to make detailed observations on what has been said or to give expression to all that is welling up in me just now but shall confine myself to one or two remarks of a general character.

As I listened while Nanda Babu' and Kshiti mohan Babu were speaking, I said to myself: 'Here is a real difficulty; but it is a difficulty of our own making.' If a person conducts a big department he is expected to transmit what he stands for to someone who can be termed as his successor. Yet it is the dominant cry of the two stalwarts that they are unable to find a suitable successor for their respective departments. True, these are departments of a special character. I know these departments and I know too Gurudev’s views about them. Speaking generally, may I venture to suggest that there is no difficulty but can be overcome by tapascharya? It is almost an untranslatable word, the nearest approach to its true meaning being perhaps 'single-minded devotion'. But it means much more than that. When-ever, in the course of my multifarious activities, I have been con-fronted with a difficulty of this character, this single-minded devotion has solved my difficulty in a manner which I had never expected. During my twenty long years in God-forsaken South Africa, where under cir-

1 Extracted from Pyarelal’s article “The Santiniketan Pilgrimage”. The heads of the various departments had met Gandhiji in the evening informally to place before him their difficulties.

2 Nandalal Bose, who was in charge of Kala Bhawan, Santiniketan.
curnstances of the worst kind conceivable I found my God, it was my invariable experience that the right helper appeared at the right moment.

It is my conviction, which I arrived at after a long and laborious struggle, that Gurudev as a person was much superior to his works or even this institution where he soared and sang. He poured his whole soul into it and nurtured it with his life’s blood and yet I dare say that his greatness was not fully expressed by it or through it. That is perhaps true of all great and good men—they are better and greater than their works. If, then, you are to represent that goodness or greatness for which Gurudev stands but which he could not express fully even through this institution, you can do it only through tapascharya.

There is a remarkable string of verses in the Tulsi Ramayana to the effect that what is not possible through other means becomes possible through tapascharya. This is said with reference to Parvati. Narada had prophesied that she would have for her companion-in-life one who answered to the description of Siva. If instead of Siva those characteristics were met in the person of a rogue, her life would be ruined. How to avert such a calamity was the problem and it is in that context that the verses to which I have referred come. I commend these verses to you for your careful perusal. Only you will have to strip them of their orthodoxy.

Finances were mentioned by you in the course of discussion. I will plead with you to dismiss from your thoughts the word ‘finance’ altogether. I am convinced that lack of finances never represented a real difficulty to a sincere worker. Finances follow—they dog your footsteps if you represent a real cause. Here, let me utter a warning. A worker may be real and yet the cause he represents may not be real. His handicap in that case will continue. There are, of course, seeming exceptions. The world is full of fools and successful rogues. But speaking of sincere men and women, it is my faith that if their cause is as worthy as their means, the handicap of finance need never deter them or damp their ardour. It is a big thing you have undertaken and in future you may have to undertake still bigger things and the question will be raised, ‘What about the finances?’ and you will find that the difficulty lies somewhere else rather than in the lack of finances. Set it right and the finances will take care of themselves.
Yours\’ is a common difficulty. You cannot ride two horses at the same time. If you mix day-scholars with full-time students, the former will overshadow and spoil the training of the latter. Your institution was not designed for the mixture.

Then it was said by Krishna Kripalani that they did not know what they were aiming at or stood for, what the sum total of the energies of Santiniketan and Sriniketan signified. My answer is that the ideal before you is not to represent Bengal or even India; you have to represent the whole world. Gurudev’s claim was not smaller than that. He stood for humanity as a whole. He could not do that unless he represented India with its destitute, dumb millions. That should be your aspiration as well. Unless you represent that mass mind of India you will not represent Gurudev as a man. You may represent him as a singer, as a painter, or as a great poet but you won’t represent him, and history will say of Gurudev that his institution was a failure. I do not want history to give that verdict.

I agree that if my claim that I am one of you is to be fully vindicated I ought to be here in your midst for a longer time.\(^2\) I would love to do so. But my future dispositions are in the hands of God.

_Vishva-Bharati News_, Vol. XIV, No. 9

111. DISCUSSION WITH WORKERS AND STAFF MEMBERS\(^3\)
SANTINIKETAN,
December 20, 1945

I want to hear from your lips what inspires you to be here and what are the difficulties that confront you.

Q. Should Santiniketan allow itself to be drawn into political work?

A. I have no difficulty in saying that Santiniketan and Visva-Bharati ought not to be mixed up with politics. Every institution has its limitations. This institution should set limitations upon itself

---

\(^1\) Bibhutibhushan Gupta’s; he had mentioned the complication arising from the admission of day scholars.

\(^2\) This was in reply to Rathindranath Tagore’s request that Gandhiji should give more time every year to Santiniketan.

\(^3\) Extracted from Pyarelal’s “The Santiniketan Pilgrimage”. As some members did not know Hindi, Gandhiji replied in English with the warning that they would have to speak in Hindi when they met next, at least he would not speak in any other language but Hindi.

VOL. 89: 7 DECEMBER, 1945 - 24 FEBRUARY, 1946 67
unless it is to be cheap. When I say that Santiniketan should not get mixed up with politics, I do not mean that it should have no political ideal. Complete independence must be its ideal, as it is that of the country. But that very ideal would require it to keep out of the present-day political turmoil. I was asked this question when I was here thirty years ago and the reply I then gave was the same as I have given today. In fact it applies with even greater force today.

Q. In order to make Visva-Bharati really an international university, should we not try to increase the material resources of the university and provide greater facilities and ordinary comforts of life to attract scholars and research workers of outstanding merit from all over the country?

A. By material resources I suppose you mean finance. Let me then say that your question is addressed to person who does not swear by material resources. ‘Material resources’ is after all a comparative term. For instance, I do not go without food and clothing. In my own way I have tried—more than perhaps any other man—to increase the level of material resources of the average man in India. But it is my firm conviction that Visva-Bharati will fail to attract the right type of talent and scholarship if it relies on the strength of the material resources or material attractions that it can offer. Its attraction must be moral or ethical, or else it will become just one out of the many educational institutions in India. That was not what Gurudev lived and died for. I do not mean that creature comforts should not be provided to the staff and workers who work here. There are ample material comforts in evidence here already. If I stayed here longer and had my way they might be considerably reduced. As Visva-Bharati progresses and more and more gifts and donations begin to pour in, in due course it will be able to provide more attractions to scholars and research workers, if it wants to. But if I were asked for advice I would say: ‘Do not yield to this temptation.’ Visva-Bharati must take its stand on the advancement of moral worth. If it does not stand for that, it is worth nothing.

Q. What must be done so that the institution might not lose its high moral appeal? What remedy do you suggest for it?

A. Every one of you should understand the significance of moral worth. Moral worth is easily distinguished from material worth. The one leads to devotion to moral value, the other to Mammon-worship. What distinguishes man from the four-footed beast is merely the recognition of moral worth, i.e., the greater the moral worth of a person the greater his distinction. If you believe in this ideal, you should ask yourselves why you are here and what you are doing.

Every worker must have, of course, food, clothing, etc., for himself and his dependants. But you do not belong to Visva-Bharati merely because Visva-Bharati feeds, clothes and finds creature comforts for you. You belong to it because you cannot do otherwise, because your moral worth increases day by day by working for its ideals. Therefore, every defect that crops up, every difficulty that obstructs its working, will be found to be ultimately traceable to some defect in your outlook in regard to moral worth. I have been connected with many institutions for over sixty years and I have come to the conclusion that every difficulty in their working was traceable to a defect in the understanding of moral values.

Q. We are trying to serve villagers. We find that at every step our activity is blocked by the social environment in the villages. The joyless routine of life there, the stagnation and the incubus of evil social customs obstruct our efforts. Should we not work for the eradication of these before we can hope for success in our other activities, and if so how can it be done?

A. Ever since I came to India I have felt that social revolution is a much more difficult thing to achieve than the political revolution, by which I mean ending our present slavery under the British rule. There are some critics who say that India cannot attain her political and economic emancipation till we get social emancipation. I regard it as a snag and a conundrum set to puzzle us, because I have found that the absence of political emancipation retards even our efforts for bringing about social and economic emancipation. At the same time it is also true that without a social revolution we will not be able to leave India happier than when we were born. I can however indicate no royal road for bringing about a social revolution except that we should represent it in every detail of our own lives.

Force has been used to alter the structure of society in some countries. But I have purposely eliminated it from our consideration. So my advice to you is: Try again and again and never say that you are defeated. Do not get impatient and say, ‘the people are no good.’ Rather say, ‘I am no good.’ If the people do not respond within the time limit prescribed by you the failure is yours, not theirs. It is thankless and laborious work. But you do not expect thanks for your work. Work that is undertaken for love is no burden—it is pure joy.
Q. In an ashram, does the introduction of salary system raise or degrade the ideal of the institution?

A. I have no difficulty in saying that it makes no difference whether you pay a fixed salary or your expenses are paid for you. Both methods can be tried. The danger to be guarded against is this: if you pay a man his bazaar price you do not carry out the spirit of the Ashram. We should rather do without talent and ability, be it of the highest order, if it demands its bazaar value. In other words, we should wait till talent is attracted to the institution, not for money but for something else for which the institution stands. Nor should you let the principle of “according to want” take you even beyond bazaar values. The salary system in Visva-Bharati is not a thing to complain of. The difficulties to which you have referred cannot be removed by mere tinkering. You must find out and remove the causes which are at the root of the defects you have in mind.

Q. How can we make headway against cynicism or lack of faith that we find among the youngsters?

A. I heave a sigh of despair when you ask me that question. When you find that your pupils are without faith you should say to yourself: ‘I am without faith.’ I have found that again and again in my own experience. And each time the discovery has been like an invigorating bath for me. The Biblical saying ‘remove the beam from thine own eye before ye point out the mote in thy neighbour’s’ is even more appropriate in the case of pupil and teacher. The pupil comes to you to find in you something infinitely better than himself. Rather than complain, ‘Oh! he has no faith. How can I implant faith in him,’ it would be far better that you resigned from your job.

Q. The intellectual tradition of Gurudev is being fairly well maintained here but I am afraid that the idealism for which he stood does not find full scope. There must be something wrong in an organization that leads to such a result. What is the remedy? Secondly, should our institution only to make culture available to the man in the street? This is your ideal. At the same time should not there be a place where higher culture can be preserved for the initiated? This was Gurudev’s ideal. Such an institution will necessarily be exclusive and for the select only. I am a follower both of yours and Gurudev’s ideals and I am torn by the conflict between the two.

A. To take the second question first, it is a reflection both on Gurudev and myself. I have found no real conflict between us. I started with a disposition to detect a conflict between Gurudev and myself but ended with the glorious discovery that there was none.

\[1\] St. Matthew, VII. 5

Regarding your question, all I can say is that the feeling, 'I am all right but there is something wrong with the institution,' betrays self-righteousness. It is a killing thing. When you feel within yourself that you are all right but everything around is wrong, the conclusion which you should draw for yourself is that everything is all right but there is something wrong within you.'

Visva-Bharati News, Vol. XIV, No. 9

112. LETTER TO ANAND T. HINGORANI

ON THE TRAIN FROM SANTINIKETAN,

December 20, 1945

I daily write the diary. 2

Blessings from

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Hindi: Courtesy: National Archives of India

113. SPEECH TO CONGRESS WORKERS 1

RAMPURHAT,

December 20, 1945

Hindu-Muslim unity can come only by selfless service of Muslims untainted by political motives.

They (Muslims) are just like us and we must be friends with them. The same applies to Harijans. We cannot survive if we are unjust to them. By all means let all those go who want to go to the

1 When Gandhiji was about to leave, Indira Devi, Rabindranath Tagore’s niece, asked him: “Is there not too much music and dance here? Is there not the danger of the music of the voice drowning the music of life?” As Gandhiji had no time then, he replied to the above and some other questions from Culcutta; vide “Letter to Rathindranath Tagore”, 22-12-1945

2 The reference is to “A Thought for the Day”; vide the last item. This was a postscript to Sushila Nayyar’s letter to the addressee.

3 Gandhiji addressed “about 60 Congress workers of Birbhum and adjoining districts in the local town hall. . . Welcoming Gandhiji, Satyen Chatterjee, Secretary of the Birbhum District Congress Committee, said that Gandhiji’s advice would have great effect on all of them and every worker would try to work his constructive programme.”

VOL. 89: 7 DECEMBER, 1945 - 24 FEBRUARY, 1946 71
Assemblies but even there they must make it their business to work the constructive programme. In any case, the bulk of the work of Congressmen will be outside legislatures and they must devote themselves whole-heartedly to the new, enlarged programme of constructive work.

In reply to his enquiries Mahatmaji was informed that the population of the district was about eleven lakhs including two lakh Mohammedans and about 73,000 Santhals. He asked the workers to include the Santhals also in their programme of service...

In regard to the shortage of cloth the workers informed Gandhiji that there were 500 spinners in the district before 1942. But cotton yarn had always come from outside, as Bengal had never grown enough cotton for her needs. Gandhiji said that the lack of cloth in any province could not be looked upon as an insurmountable difficulty and cited the example of England, which though it grew no cotton, was the biggest exporter of cloth.

Amrita Bazar Patrika, 21-12-1945

114. SPEECH AT PUBLIC MEETING

RAMPURHAT,

December 20, 1945

Mahatma Gandhi emphasized the need for removing untouchability from the Hindu society. It was a terrible blot on Hinduism, he added. They must feel that every Indian was their brother—their own flesh. They must banish from their hearts all distinctions between Hindus and Muslims, Harijans and Bhils and Santhals. If they could learn these lessons they could banish a good many of the evils that beset society.

Mahatma Gandhi regretted that all of them could not understand Hindustani. They must, of course, know the language of their province. But, he pointed out, if they wanted to travel all over India and wanted others to come to them, they must have a common language and that language had to be Hindustani.

Explaining the language, Gandhiji said that Urdu was one form of Hindustani and the other form was Hindi. The difference was that Urdu contained more words of Arabic and Persian origin and was written in Persian script, whereas Hindi contained words of Sanskrit origin and was written in Devanagari script. It was not so always but he would not at this moment enter into the history or the causes of the present division. Gandhiji emphasized that those who wished to serve India must learn both

1*The Hindu, 22-12-1945, reported that Gandhiji spoke in Hindustani and the “speech was explained to the audience in Bengali by Dr. Profulla Chandra Ghosh”.*
the scripts and forms of the language. If they loved their country and its people they would not mind the trouble and it was not a hard task either.

Urging the people to wear khaddar, Gandhiji observed that after 30 years’ experience he could say that if they had the will to produce their own cloth they could overcome the scarcity of cloth in no time. It was strange, he remarked, that they could not or did not produce cloth in their country where cotton grew in abundance and did not spin and weave their own cloth.

Gandhiji referred to the prevalence of malaria in the district and said that one reason for this was their terrible poverty. But if they used their leisure hours rightly, Gandhiji thought, they could lessen their poverty also. They must give up their insanitary habits and it was the duty of all their workers to know how to preserve their own health and teach people the way to do so.

Amrita Bazar Patrika, 22-12-1945

115. SPEECH AT RAILWAY STATION, BURDWAN

December 20, 1945

Gandhiji asked them to be peaceful as, he said, freedom could not be achieved by shouting slogans. Peace was their only weapon for non-violence which alone could bring independence. He advised them also not to think in terms of Hindus and Muslims.

Amrita Bazar Patrika, 21-12-1945

116. LETTER TO ABANINDRANATH TAGORE

SODEPUR, December 21, 1945

DEAR ABANI BABU¹,

I hope you received my telegram sent to you yesterday from Santiniketan. How I wish it were possible for me, being in Calcutta, to come to you and meet you face to face! But I know that I must deny myself that pleasure!

I went yesterday morning to see Nand Babu’s museum and in it in a glass case he showed me some rare specimens of your producing beautiful art out of almost nothing, even straws!

You must live to give India and the world more of such things.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

SHRI ABANINDRANATH TAGORE

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Nephew of Rabindranath Tagore
117. SPEECH AT PRAYER MEETING

SODEPUR,

December 21, 1945

We are all travellers. I had been to Santiniketan for two days. I have returned and will stay here for two or three days and again I will go to Midnapore.

We are all travellers. Sooner or later we will have to undertake a long journey. This is the preparation for the long one. We must not be sorry for any travelling, short or long. But we do feel sorry for the long journey because we do not understand the significance of life and death, which are equal.

Today's song conveys the idea appropriately ("Ai Korechho Bhalo Nithur, Ai Korechho Bhalo"). This is a prayer to God to burn our passion. And only when we have succeeded in that, shall we have no sorrow for the long journey.

Amrita Bazar Patrika, 22-12-1945

118. LETTER TO RATHINDRANATH TAGORE

KHADI PRATISHTHAN, SODEPUR,

December 22, 1945

CHI. RATHI,

It was a matter of pure delight for me to be in Santiniketan and to study all I could during my very brief stay. I told you that I would put down in writing some of the things I was unable to say there either to you personally or during the conversation with the heads of departments.

1. Just as I do not like day-scholars, I do not like preparing boys and girls for university examinations. Visva-Bharati is its own university. I ought not to be in need of a charter from any Government. As it is you are giving Visva-Bharati degrees side by side with preparing students for the chartered university. You have a high ideal to live for and live up to. University degrees are a lure to which you cannot afford to fall a prey. Concessions that Gurudev made to weakness with impunity, Visva-Bharati without him cannot make. Concessions to weakness began with the introduction of the orthodox matriculation examination. I was unable even then to reconcile myself to it and I do not know that we have gained anything by it. I am not now thinking at all in terms of non-co-operation. I am just now anxious for Santiniketan to represent the highest that Gurudev stood for.

1 Vide “Discussion With Heads of Department, Santiniketan”, 19-12-1945

2. Music in Santiniketan is charming, but has the professor there come to the conclusion that Bengali music is the last word in that direction? Has Hindustani music, i.e., music before and after Muslim period, anything to give to the world of music? If it has, it should have its due place at Santiniketan. Indeed, I would go so far as to say that Western music which has made immense strides should also blend with the Indian. Visva-Bharati is conceived as a world university. This is merely a passing thought of a layman to be transmitted to the music master there.

One question about music. I have a suspicion that perhaps there is more of music than warranted by life, or I will put the thought in another way. The music of life is in danger of being lost in the music of the voice. Why not the music of the walk, of the march, of every movement of ours and of every activity? It was not an idle remark which I made at the Mandir service about the way in which boys and girls should know how to walk, how to march, how to sit, how to eat, in short how to perform every function of life. That is my idea of music. So far as I know, Gurudev stood for all this in his own person.

3. You will not have real rural reconstruction unless you begin with the basic craft, which is hand-spinning. Weaver’s art without hand-spinning is a dead art. You know that I pleaded for it with Gurudev; at first in vain, later on he had begun to see what I was driving at. If you think that I have interpreted Gurudev aright in the matter of spinning, you will not hesitate to make Santiniketan hum with the music of the wheel.

The spinning-wheel and all it means lends itself to the exhibition of all your skill. Do you know that the spinning-wheel is considered to be solace of the poor widow? And it is the Annapurna of the poor.

---

1 Vide footnote 1, “Letter to Anand T. Hingorani”, 20-12-1945
2 Vide “Speech at Prayer Meeting”, 19-12-1945
3 Goddess of plenty Teerth”, 26-11-1945 hungry. When you adopt spinning by way of a sacrificial rite you are immediately in tune with the dumb masses.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI RATHINDRANATH TAGORE
SANTINIKETAN

From a copy: C.W. 10553. Courtesy: Visva-Bharati

119. LETTER TO KANTILAL GANDHI

SODEPUR,
December 22, 1945

CHL. KANTI,

I got your letter. It is quite amusing. You are working hard to pass three examinations at a time. I wish you success in all the three. Be a good doctor. Set a fine example of success in inter-caste marriage and be an expert at spinning and constructive work. Truly speaking, all the three examinations are a test of ahimsa.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 7382. Courtesy: Kantilal Gandhi

120. LETTER TO MRIDULA SARABHAI

SODEPUR,
December 22, 1945

CHL. MRIDULA,

I hope you received my letter. The following is my itinerary: I am leaving here on the 24th for Midnapore. I expect to return on the 4th January. After staying on for four or five days I shall go to Assam. I shall be there for a week. After I return from there I shall go to Madras. The latest date for Madras is [January] 23rd.

You are moving about quite a lot and gaining experience. Sometimes I wonder whether it would not be better for you after gaining so much experience to settle down at some place and put it to good use. And I wonder whether looking after his health does not have a place among the many duties of a man.
In my case these questions do not arise any more, because I have all along assumed the answer in my practice. But is there any absolute rule that what applies to one can apply to all?

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

121. LETTER TO SHARAYU DHOTRE

SODEPUR,

December 22, 1945

CHI. SARAYU,

I have your letter. I never thought you would come to Calcutta.

I shall leave here on the 24th on a tour of Midnapore. I hope to return on January 4th, after which I shall be staying on for four or five days. I shall be pleased to see you during that time.

Blessings from

BAPU

SMT. SHARAYUBEHN
DHARMASANGHA, KISHORE BUNGALOW
25 BALRAM STREET
CALCUTTA

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

122. LETTER TO TARA N. MASHRUWALA

SODEPUR,

December 22, 1945

CHI. TARA,

I have your letter.

You will succeed in your work with the K. G. N. M. Trust. Help Sushila rid herself quickly of the gall-stone. She will be all right. Sometimes diagnosis of stone, etc., turns out to be wrong. It has been observed that doctors also commit errors.

Blessings from

BAPU

SMT. TARABEHN MASHRUWALA
AKOLA

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
123. LETTER TO RAMANAND TEERTH

SODEPUR,

December 22, 1945

SWAMIJI,

I have your letter. I have read everything. You have done well in not accepting any conditions. I had a talk with Panditji. Keep on writing to him everything. I am happy to know that your health is improving.

SWAMI RAMANAND TEERTH
HYDERABAD

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

124. LETTER TO SARASWATI GANDHI

SODEPUR,

December 22, 1945

CHI. SARU,

I have your letter. Kanti has described to me the sweet quarrel between you two. When both of you testify to each other’s conduct or when I come to know that either has won over the other, I shall withdraw the adjective ‘mad’ and substitute it with a similar, nice adjective. There are innumerable couples in the world who carry on their life smoothly through the drive of passion. But real greatness lies in creating unity and spontaneity through knowledge.

Shanti, I trust, is well.

You must learn one thing. As a rule, the wife spends most of her time in the kitchen. But if you can master the art of eating just to keep alive, you will have to give the minimum time in the kitchen. For this you must learn the rules of proper diet. If you are really keen to learn, I shall teach you some day.

You have asked my permission to come to Madras. If you want to meet me for the sake of meeting I would advise you to save both

1 Vide also “Letter to Ramanad
2 Addressee’s son
the money and the time. Saving time is also saving money. But if you feel that you must, then do come.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: C.W. 7383. Courtesy: Kantilal Gandhi

125. LETTER TO PALTU JHA

SODEPUR,
December 22, 1945

DEAR PANDITJI,

I have your letter.
I have already given you my reply with regard to Sanskrit. I have written at length about Varnashrama. A collection of my articles has also been published. I have expressed my present views in the foreword. The gist of it is that it is the duty of every Hindu to regard himself as a Harijan, that is, the lowest among the Shudras. Thus alone can Hinduism be purified and saved. This includes my reply to your questions.

I cannot say when I shall be able to read your two books. I should like to read them.

You have the name and address on your card printed in English! Why and for whom?

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 5682

126. SPEECH AT PRAYER MEETING

SODEPUR,
December 22, 1945

We do not want to live on the mercy of anybody except God. Gita teaches us to be fearless. If you could learn that, nobody would be able to keep you down. If anybody asks me to bow down my head—I am an old man and anybody can push me or knock me down—but if I say, ‘I won’t,’ the utmost he can do is to kill me. This fearlessness is swaraj. If everybody acts in the same way or feels in the same spirit, swaraj is there. It, however, does not mean that Government will go away today but it means that no power can make us bow down our head. We would not achieve independence by simply repeating the word like a parrot. Our deeds must be on the same line.

1Varnavyavastha
2Vide “Foreword to “Varnavyavastha”

Explaining the evening song, Gandhiji said that it was not an easy task to select an appropriate song out of the many composed by Gurudev. In this particular song, the Poet asked them not to be cowards. They were in a small boat and God was their helmsman. When God was their helmsman they should not be afraid of anything. His hands were not shaky and He would safely escort them to their destination.

Gandhiji asked his audience to have faith in God. They would have to swim across the ocean of life. After all, what was fear? The word itself frightened them. He, therefore, advised them that they must take the essence of the song to their heart. Gandhiji asked them not to leave him, nor would he leave them, so long as he was in Calcutta. He also advised them to take part in the prayer by singing in chorus with them.

Amrita Bazar Patrika, 23-12-1945
127. LETTER TO RANGANAYAKI DEVI

SODEPUR,
December 23, 1945

CHI. RANGANAYAKI,

I have your letter. I have shown your letter and cutting to Dr. Sushila Nayyar. She says that surgically the thing is substantial. But I would not advise you to pay for your doctor friend for going to America. If you feel like it you may go to America. But that is a matter solely for you to decide.

Personally I think that you should turn your deafness into a blessing and listen to the voice from within. What is worth hearing will be written down for you. But this can be done only if you feel like it, not otherwise.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI RANGANAYAKIDEVI
FIRST HOUSE
SRIRANGAM
S. INDIA

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

128. LETTER TO MANIBEHN

KHADI PRATISHTHAN, SODEPUR,
24 PARGANAS,
December 23, 1945

CHI. MANIBEHN,

Kakubhai\(^1\) has suggested that the post of Secretary of the Bombay branch of the A.I.S.A. should be offered to you. He informs me that you have seen the letter to that effect. I shall indeed be glad if you could honour the post. I know about your capabilities but I was not aware that you were also competent to cope with accounts. However, if that be so I shall be very pleased. Please,

\(^1\) The subscription is in Hindi.
\(^2\) Purushottam Kanji Jerajani
therefore, let me have your reply, after careful consi-deration. Once you accept the secretaryship I don’t want to be obliged to admit that you are not as good an accountant as anyone else. I don’t wish to be a champion of women’s talents nor do I want to cover up for them. I have, all along since my South African days, wished that women would acquire the ability to struggle indepen-dently and not lag behind any man, in their own field. And I believe I have fairly succeeded in my endeavour.

And is it correct for you to become an agent of the artificial silk mill instead of following in the footsteps of your husband? Or don’t you yourself experience any contradiction in becoming a director of the mill? I shall expect your reply to this before I arrive at any decision. Write to me frankly. Send your reply to the address men- tioned above. I shall be in Bengal and Assam till the 20th of January, but my headquarters will continue to be Sodepur.

I got your letter after I wrote this, which all the same covers all the points.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

129. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

SODEPUR,
December 23, 1945

CHI. MUNNALAL,

I got your letter of the 16th and postcard of the 19th.¹

No fee is to be charged from the poor who may be admitted as indoor patients, but we shall accept what they can offer. In other words, we shall follow the practice obtaining in Sevagram. At present even our expenses on food are so heavy that no person of ordinary means can meet them. We shall have to consider what diet we can devise for those people which will cure them and help them to keep fit.

2. Along with the poor we shall admit only such wealthy patients who agree to live as the poor do. I can see no place for them in this sanatorium if they have to be provided special facilities. I shall not permit even providing a special room for a rich patient simply because he is rich. The plan of constructing new rooms, etc., does not appeal to me just now. For we shall know only from experience how many poor patients will seek admission or how many of them we shall admit. We shall see what to do when we run short of accommodation. My view, therefore, is that we should incur no expenditure just now except what is absolutely essential.

¹ The addressee’s letters are not available.

3. The chairs, etc., will of course have to be removed. The Doctor himself wished to buy up some of the furniture. I do not know whether he still wishes to do so. If he does not, I am afraid I shall have to arrange for their disposal. I can only hope that I shall be able to do so. We shall have to make do with the number of beds we have at present. I see that there will be no occasion in the immediate future to admit a large number of patients.

4. The reply to this is contained in what has been stated above.

5. If the boiler for heating water has become useless, it should be replaced by a new one. I did have some talk with the Doctor about it, but I forget what decision we took. If it is necessary to seek the help of the mill-owner in the neighbourhood or of Birlaji, I shall be ready to do so. Do what the Doctor suggests in this matter.

6. There is no reason to believe that we shall start getting patients right from January 1. We shall need to make arrangements only for those who are already there. And they can even sit on the floor and eat off porcelain plates.

7. I have made arrangements to buy the required quantity of khadi. If, therefore, you let me know the requirements, I shall be able to supply it. You yourself suggested five to seven rolls for three dozen bed-sheets. Will that number suffice?

8. Please consider whether those among the workers there who have their own arrangements for meals can continue the practice. I think it is our duty willingly to have meat served to those who are used to it and whose need we ought to supply. I see no harm or pollution—no one should—in the two kinds of food being cooked in the same kitchen. The idea of pollution is a mere excrescence [on our religion]. Those who are vegetarians should follow their dharma. It is self-evident to me that utensils used for cooking meat should not be used for cooking vegetables. In this matter I think we ought to respect the wishes of the Doctor and Gulbai. There should not be even the slightest suspicion that we are indirectly trying to introduce vegetarian food. But we welcome anybody accepting vegetarianism on his own as being good for him.

I think it will be our duty to supply meat or eggs to those patients for whom the Doctor may consider them necessary.

9. The selection of medical assistants will rest with the Doctor.
10. Calls for no reply.
11. Just now I would regard Balkoba\(^1\) as representing the standard for poor patients.

12. I agree with the Doctor that ultimately we shall have to shift to some large place. I have the fullest faith that God will make our path clear.

13. There is no need just now to call anybody from Sevagram.
I have already written to you about Manibhai. He will come whenever we send for him.

14. The expenditure will have to be met by me. Is there no balance in the bank account there? I think I asked this question in a previous letter too. Probably it was in a letter addressed to the Doctor.

15. I have always held the view which you have expressed.
I think I have now replied to all your questions. If, however, there is anything you do not follow, do write to me. Address the letter to Sodepur.

I got you postcard today. The reply to the question you have asked in it is contained in what I have said above.

I have not revised the letter.

_Blessings from_

_BAPU_

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 8622. Also C.W. 7195. Courtesy:
Munnalal G. Shah

\(^1\) Balkrishna Bhave
130. LETTER TO PREMA KANTAK

SODEPUR,

December 23, 1945

CHI. PREMA,

Your letter of December 17 is strange, and so is its language. This is the first such letter I have had from you. You are very busy. How surprising and sad that, though you claim to be a public worker, you feel embarrassed to have to ask for money from time to time? Why need one feel embarrassed to ask for money for public work? You have, I am sure, seen me putting out my head through windows of railway carriages and begging a pice each from the people. You have even helped me in this. And still the letter to which I am replying seems to have been written by a millionaire. I can understand your feeling embarrassed if you were asking for money for yourself. But how can it be too much to ask for money even a hundred times for a public cause? You have asked for an additional sum, but have not sent me a copy of the letter. If you have addressed the letter to me in my capacity as Chairman, you should have addressed a formal letter to the Secretary too. I can immediately reply to a letter received through the Secretary. If you have written to me as to an elder, you should give me enough details to enable me to send the money to you without delay.

I sought your advice as from a daughter, co-worker and one who was more than a sister to Sushila. Instead of giving the advice I asked for, you have written as if we were utter strangers. I do not understand what all this is. Address your reply to Sodepur. I shall be touring in Bengal, and they will redirect the letter from here.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10442. Also C.W. 6881. Courtesy: Prema Kantak
131. LETTER TO DR. N. B. KHARE

SODEPUR,
December 23, 1945

Bhai Khare,
I have your letter.\(^1\) Thanks for the same. I have read it through. Let us see what happens now.

I am enclosing a newspaper cutting\(^1\) which seems to me quite wrong. Is not what happened quite the opposite?\(^2\)

Yours sincerely,
M. K. Gandhi

From a photostat of the Hindi: C.W. 4870. Courtesy: N. B. Khare

132. LETTER TO T. J. KEDAR

SODEPUR,
December 23, 1945

Bhai Kedar\(^3\),

Such things have appeared in the Press. I am really puzzled. I have sent the original cutting to Dr. Khare.\(^4\) I am sending you a copy. Is not the case quite the opposite of this? Who, I wonder, is getting things published in this manner? How can such a wrong thing be set right? If Dr. Khare also holds the views that have appeared in the papers, the situation cannot be remedied. Think about it and write to me. It may be taken that my address will be Sodepur till January 20. Though I shall be touring in Bengal and Assam, I am having letters addressed to Sodepur.

\(^1\) The addressee along with his letter had sent for Gandhiji’s perusal the Government of India’s scheme for helping the Indians in Malaya.

\(^2\) Which carried a report of Gandhiji having been eager to meet the addressee

\(^3\) The addressee in his letter of January 12, 1946, denied that he had given any interview to the Press and was surprised to see the report of their meeting in the newspapers.

\(^4\) A Congress worker of C. P. He acted as a mediator between Khare and Gandhiji, vide footnote 4, “Letter to Dr. N. B. Khare”, 12-12-1945

\(^4\) Vide the preceding item.
I got your letter after writing this. Nobody has ever mentioned such a thing to me. I know that you did not charge any fee in the Ashti-Chimur case.¹

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: C.W. 4874. Courtesy: N. B. Khare

133. LETTER TO HARIGANESH PHATAK

SODEPUR,
December 23, 1945

Bhai Haribhau,

I have your letter written in English. Why did you not write to me in Marathi if you could not write in Hindustani?

There was nothing wrong in sending Savitribai’s name. It was your duty to do so. It is good that you wrote to Thakkar Bapa. I have been corresponding with Premabehn. I shall keep Savitribai’s name in mind. What is her husband doing?

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 6103

134. LETTER TO CHARUCHANDRA BHANDARI

December 23, 1945

Bhai Charu Babu,

Your letter is very painful. What can I do? You should have some consideration for my capacity. I shall not be able to move about after 4 o’clock. If I had the strength, I would have gone to all the places. I can finish all your work in half an hour. Do kindly forgive me. This is my only request.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. Gandhi

¹Vide “Letter to Sharda G. Chokhawala”, 6-11-1945, also “Statement to the Press”, 31-3-1945
135. LETTER TO ANNASAHEB SAHASRABUDDHE

SODEPUR,
December 23, 1945

BHAJ SAHASRABUDDHE,

I have your letter. I have gone through everything. I feel that at the moment nothing needs to be done in this connection.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI SAHASRABUDDHE
KHADI KARYALAYA
MAHAL, NAGPUR

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

136. LETTER TO TRIPATHI

SODEPUR,
December 23, 1945

BHAJ TRIPATHI,

Why did you write to me in English? I have a feeling that you are either a Maharashtrian or a Gujarati. In which case you could have written in one of the three Indian languages. You could have written in the national language or in your mother tongue. You could have written in Bengali if you are a Bengali. What do you do?

137. DISCUSSION WITH POLITICAL WORKERS

SODEPUR,
December 23, 1945

The first [question] was from a lady who wanted to know when the remaining prisoners would be released. Gandhiji was reported to have talked with H. E. the Governor about them. Some of the prisoners were important workers without whom the great organization could not be said to be in full working order.

Gandhiji said he had naturally discussed with His excellency many questions, but he could not allow himself to be cross-examined. He could only hope with those present that if they were on the eve of liberty these prisoners must be set free sooner rather than later. But he warned the lady questioner not to worry about them if she believed with him that prisons for patriots were gateways to liberty. Was not India in bondage one vast prison?

To a student who wanted to know what part students were to play Gandhiji said that he could not understand student organizations antagonistic to one another. Students should all be lovers of freedom and therefore all Congressmen in thought. But their first work was study. They were all servants of the nation. They should have no communal taint nor could they harbour untouchability. They were bound to follow the constructive programme and, through the charkha and all it meant, ally themselves with the millions of poor villagers of India. For the rest they should hear everything and everyone respectfully, weigh everything and follow what they thought was right. But they must keep out of party politics.

To the question whether “Vandemataram” should be replaced by the new song “Qadam, Qadam”, Gandhiji said that a song that carried such glorious associations of sacrifice as “Vandemataram” could never be given up. It would be like discarding one’s mother. But they could certainly add a new song or songs like the one mentioned to their repertoire of national songs after due thought and discrimination.

Q. Was there violence by the people in 1942?

Gandhiji referred the questioner to his reply to the Tottenham pamphlet and added that had the people as a whole not remained non-violent, India would have gone back. He also thought the Government had senselessly put the principal Congress-

1 Extracted from Pyarelal’s Weekly Letter issued to the Press. Those present included members of the Bengal Provincial Congress Committee, students and trade union workers. The meeting took place in the afternoon between 3 and 5 p. m. before Gandhiji left for Santiniketan.

2 Vide “Letter to Additional Secretary, Home Department, Government of India”, 15-7-1943 men in prison and thus provoked the people who were not yet restrained enough for complete non-violence. He had seen nothing to alter his conviction that the Government excesses far outweighed what the people had done in the way of violence.

Q. What could Congressmen do to draw Muslims to the Congress?

Gandhiji said that in the presence of the prevailing distrust there should be no attempt to enlist Muslims or any other group or individuals. What however every Hindu could do was mutely to serve his Muslim or for that matter every non-Hindu neighbour as his blood brother. Such selfless service was bound to tell in the end. That was the way of non-violence, otherwise called love.

Asked as to what the position of the Congress in relation of class struggle between the capitalists and the labouring class was, Gandhiji replied that he could speak only in his individual capacity as he was not even a four-anna member of the Congress. His own relations with his capitalist friends, he remarked, typified the attitude of the Congress towards the capitalist class. He freely accepted the hospitality of capitalists like the Birlas and made use of their money to serve the cause of the poor, but the latter did not expect anything in return from him. On the contrary, they were glad to be exploited by him in the interests of the poor. His relationship with them was ethical. He could never give up his associations with the capitalists because of fear of anybody. To do so would, in his opinion, amount to a betrayal of the cause of the poor.

Similarly, whilst the Congress accepted the financial help and cooperation of the capitalists in its fight for independence, it never was and never could be a capitalist organization. The Congress was pledged to defend the rights of labour against anyone who might attempt to encroach upon them. From its very inception it had stood for the poor, and consciously or unconsciously striven to become an organization of the masses. In this connection he referred to Dadabhai Naoroji’s monumental work Poverty and Un-British Rule in India, which showed the deep concern of the Grand Old Man of the Congress for Indian masses.

They could now understand why he asked them to rally round the Congress. They should all identify themselves and serve the Congress, irrespective of whether they were on its membership register or not. The Congress tricolour symbolized truth and non-violence. It was the only flag worthy of being adopted by them. There was no power in the universe greater than truth. Bereft of truth man was no better than the four-footed beast. If they made truth their staff and ahimsa their shield they would be irresistible.

Continuing, he told them that he considered himself to be a labourer just like themselves. He did not think that there was any essential antagonism between capital and labour. In fact he held that labour alone was true capital. All the gold of the capitalists could not provide them with one morsel of bread. Collaboration of labour was necessary before capital could bear fruit. Again the gold and silver of the capitalists had only a limited currency but labour was universal currency. The capitalists could be robbed of their wealth but no one could rob the labourer of his wealth, namely, industry.

Moreover, capitalists were after all few in number. The workers were many. But capital was well organized and had learnt to combine. If labour realized its inherent strength and the secret of combination it would rule capital instead of being ruled by it.

He commended to them the Ahmedabad Labour Union as a model organization to copy. It was perhaps the best organized labour union in the world. It ran its own free hospital, schools for children and cheap grain shops out of the union funds. It had conducted several successful strikes. The essential condition of a successful strike was that the strikers should not be dependent on public charity for their sustenance during the strike. They must have an alternative occupation to fall back upon in a crisis. He recalled how during the 23 days’ strike of Ahmedabad labour workers, he had offered them work but had refused to give them doles. The latter would have demoralized them. Spinning was an occupation par excellence for their purpose. He therefore asked them to learn and practise it in their homes. Concluding, he observed that a strike should be organized not out of hostility towards the employers but for the restitution of the just rights of labour. Rights and duties were reciprocal in their nature, the former accrued only from a due performance of the latter.

Amrita Bazar Patrika, 25-12-1945

138. LETTER TO BHAGAWATICHARAN SHUKLA

[After December 23, 1945]

I was very happy to have your letter. I do not have time any more to write much to anyone. Your account is very good. I also understand the reason for choosing Gondia.

I am leaving on the 17th.

1 In 1918
2 The letter appears to have been written after the addressee’s marriage which took place on December 23, 1945. Vide also “Letter to Krishnachandra”, 18-12-1945
You did well to write. You must now be restored to health. I shall be truly happy when both of you live an ideal life.

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

139. LETTER TO R. G. CASEY

Khadi Pratishthan, Sodepur,
December 24, 1945

Dear Friend,

I promised on 22nd, when we met, that I would send you for your kind acceptance a copy of my reply\(^1\) to the Tottenham pamphlet. This I do now with great pleasure and hope that you will find time to read it and, if possible, to share it with Mrs. Casey.

I forgot, when we met, to ask you about the salt tax. I trust you have not forgotten this humanitarian matter.

The first question that was put to me yesterday at the meeting\(^2\) with some friends was about prisoners. It was addressed by a woman. I do feel that your Government will be wholly wrong if they persist now in keeping in jail these prisoners, some of whom have broken down in health.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. Gandhi

Gandhiji’s Correspondence with the Government, 1944-47, p. 133

140. LETTER TO SANTOSH KUMAR BASU

Khadi Pratishthan, Sodepur,
December 24, 1945

Dear Santosh Babu,

Many thanks for your letter and the papers. I have read your statement\(^3\) with painful interest. I propose to make full use of the facts

\(^1\) Vide “Letter to Additional Secretary, Home Department, Government of India”, 15-7-1943
\(^2\) Vide “Discussion with Political Workers”, 23-12-1945
\(^3\) This related to incidents in January 1943, within Mahishadal Thana in Tamluk Sub-division. The addressee, who was then a minister in the Government of Bengal, had visited Mahishadal and Tamluk during the disturbances. vouchsafed by you. I return the papers as suggested by you.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

SHRI SANTOSH KUMAR BASU
65 DIAMOND HARBOUR ROAD, KIDDERPORE

From a photostat: C.W. 10554

141. LETTER TO SHANTIKUMAR N. MORARJEE

KHADI PRATISHTHAN, SODEPUR,
December 24, 1945

CHI. SHANTIKUMAR,

I got your letter only today. I am leaving for Midnapore. Write to me at the address given above. I have got a telegram from the Aga Khan acknowledging [receipt of my letter]. If a letter follows, I will send you a copy of it. In the telegram he has suggested an interview. What you say in your letter is all right.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 4807. Courtesy: Shantikumar N. Morarjee

142. LETTER TO SARALADEVI SARABHAI

SODEPUR,
December 24, 1945

DEAR SISTER,

I received your letter today. I was happy. I know that you do not accept any position for the sake of honour. You will only be doing service and I shall be free from worry. Do accept the position. God will make you do only good.

Blessings from

BAPU

From the Gujarati original: C.W. 11152. Courtesy: Sarabhai Foundation

1 Vide “Speech at Prayer Meeting”, 13-12-1945
2 The addressee had been appointed agent of the Kasturba Gandhi National Memorial Trust for Gujarat.
143. LETTER TO H. L. SHARMA

SODEPUR,
December 24, 1945

CHI. SHARMA,

I got your letter today. I am merely acknowledging it as I am going to Midnapore right now. The work is becoming difficult. Let me see what can be done.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a facsimile of the Hindi: Bapuki Chhayamen Mere Jivanke Solah Varsh, facing p. 344

144. SPEECH AT PRAYER MEETING

SODEPUR,
December 24, 1945

Monday the 24th December was a great day for the Christians. The day following would be Christmas Day and that was the reason why they had heard in the bhajan a translation of one of the best English songs from the “Book of Psalms”. They should understand the meaning of the song. It depicted one who had lost his way and was penitent for going on a wrong track. Now after a period he had been able to realize his mistake and he implored God to guide and show him the right way. He appealed to God to illumine his way in order that he might not fall into numerous pits which covered all his way. Wistful as he was to realize God, he fervently appealed to Him to take to the other world. He knew that it was God alone who was able to take him from darkness to the kingdom of light.

This was the essence of the song, said Gandhiji. What they said in their daily prayer was not different from this. Gandhiji asked all to remember this and respect all religions of the world like their own.

Amrita Bazar Patrika, 25-12-1945

¹As it was Gandhiji’s silence day, the speech was read out by Kanu Gandhi.
BAPA,

I am going to accommodate all the topics in one letter. I am writing this on the steamer taking me to Midnapore.

You have written to me about Kuttimalu Amma¹ of Malabar but I am afraid she may not be able to complete our job if she becomes a member of the Assembly.

I have written to Purnima telling her that I very much doubt if she can be an Agent if she wishes to enter the Assembly.² I discussed the same point with Jawaharlal also. If, however, you think that this will not present any difficulty I might revise my opinion.

I think anyone wishing to take up work among women, especially village women, will have no time for and no interest in the Assembly. For my part, I would suggest that you write to Kuttimalu Amma to give up her longing for the Assembly; only then will she be able to work whole-heartedly for the K. G. N. M. Trust.

Now your second letter—regarding Ram Swarup Khanna. I do not remember if the words "as far as possible" were dictated by me or by some other trustee. But they were added during the meeting itself. If you are inclined to delete the words I shall not say no. But if the words are to be removed we ought to obtain a formal consent of all the trustees.

I do not yet have Shyamlal’s letter in this connection.

I have gone through Hariji’s report on Midnapore and I am proceeding there.

Sucheta has sent a very good and exhaustive account of the camp at Sahibnagar. The girls of the camp also came and saw me. We are likely to gain some worth-while experience from it. You should however write to me only at the Sodepur address. Midnapore district will take eight days. On the 3rd I shall return to Sodepur. After having spent there a few days I shall go to Assam, where I

¹ A. V. Kuttimalu Amma, wife of K. Madhava Menon, for some time minister and later President of the Kerala Congress.
² Vide “Letter to Purnima Bannerjee”, 18-12-1945 expect to spend seven days at the most. After that to Madras via Sodepur. The date fixed for Madras is 23rd January. Let us see what happens there. Will you be going to Madras?

I ask this because we had some talk about the K. G. N. M. Trust. Spending a day in Orissa does not appear possible.

THAKKAR BAPA

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

146. LETTER TO JATINDAS

December 25, 1945

CHI. JATINDAS.

If you say that I must write my own letters they are bound to be delayed, or I may not even be able to write them. Hence, for the time being you had better give up the desire to receive letters written in my own hand. That occasionally I may write myself is a different matter. This is in reply to your letter of the 18th which reached me yesterday at Sodepur. I am dictating this on board the steamer taking me to Midnapore. It is good you have gone there in time, for the silver jubilee celebration of the girls’ school. You will certainly take a leading part in the athletic events. And I hardly need say anything about the Art section. Don’t act in haste. I am not going to issue an immediate summons for you to rush to me! After all you are doing work there and I also believe it will bear fruit. Besides, it will immensely please me if you satisfy Father. A selfless worker always gets an opportunity to serve wherever he goes. Therefore, the question of searching for a field of service does not arise.

I shall write whatever is right regarding the Vithal Kanya Vidyalaya¹ affair after you write to me.

I hope you are fine. Send the reply to the Sodepur address.

It appears I shall be leaving Bengal on January 21st.

JATIN

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ A girls’ school at Nadiad in Gujarat
DEAR SISTER,

I have your letter. Did you have the purse you had brought specially for the Bengal Harijan Sevak Sangh? Anyway it does not matter whether or not you have it. For my part, I have collected a fairly large amount. How much would you require? Please let me know. If you say that no sum will be too much I am going to look upon you as a lazy person. Workers who only know how to spend and cannot produce what they spend cannot do any work. This has been my experience over the past sixty years. It began with myself. In England we formed the Vegetarian Society in the Way’s Hotel, but did not collect funds from amongst the members, with the result that we achieved nothing. I occasionally exposed myself to laughter but I don’t remember anyone having been converted to vegetarianism because of my activity. My later experience gradually proved sweeter because I then decided that funds would be collected from those amongst whom we proposed to work. That balanced the two sides. The result was I became a “Mahatma”. I am pointing out the golden way in case you want to become one. This by way of jest. I am dictating this on board the steamer taking me to Midnapore. That is how I could get some time. About meeting Harijan workers you may decide after I return.

SAUDAMINI MEHTA
CALCUTTA

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
148. LETTER TO SUCHETA KRIPALANI

ON THE STEAMER,
December 25, 1945

CHI. SUCHETA,

I have your report. It is very good. You have given all the information. I got your report the day before yesterday after the women of the camp met me. I have written to Purnima.¹ Hope Professor² is well.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI SUCHETA DEVI
SWARAJ BHAVAN
ALLAHABAD

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

149. LETTER TO DHOLKE

ON THE STEAMER: MIDNAPORE,
December 25, 1945

BHAII DHOLKE,

I have your letter and also the newspaper cutting. I personally do not like all these things. Even a well-meaning report can do harm. I had never thought that any part of the report can do harm. I had never thought that any part of the report was going to be published. In parts it is not even true. What can I say about the comment appearing in Navabharat and The Nagpur Times?

NAGPUR

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Vide “Letter to Purnima Bannerjee”, 18-12-1945
² J. B. Kripalani
150. LETTER TO H. C. DASAPPA

December 25, 1945

Bhai Dasappa,

I saw your letter addressed to Rajkumari. When will you write in Hindi? Make an effort, or is it that you cannot even make an effort in this life?

There is no need to tempt me as far as Mysore is concerned. I should at least like it for the camp of the Kasturba Memorial Trust, but I am afraid it is necessary for you and me to develop the spirit of renunciation.

SHRI H. C. DASAPPA
GURUKUL ASHRAM
KENGRI POST, via BANGALORE

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

151. LETTER TO SHRIKRISHNADAS JAJU

December 25, 1945

Bhai Jajuji,

I have your postcard. If the Congress wants us to organize an exhibition during the Congress session and is willing to pay for it, we should do it. Did the Professor write to you? Will you write to him or shall I ask him? Who will look after the work? Will you leave things in the hands of Vichitra?

I am sending a copy of what I have written about Manibehn. I have a letter from her. I send a copy of it. There is no need to write more. You will know my mind from my letter.

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
152. LETTER TO VICHITRA NARAYAN SHARMA

December 25, 1945

CHI. VICHITRA,

Are you aware of the quarrel between Gadodiaji and Dr. Sharma? What do you know about it and what is your opinion? Gadodiaji does khadi work. He says that he is doing it sincerely. Let me know how far that is so.

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

153. SPEECH AT PUBLIC MEETING

DIAMOND HARBOUR,

December 25, 1945

Gandhiji had already had one blessing from them. They had gathered there in thousands but there was no noise and they were sitting there quietly and peacefully under the scorching sun. If he left them after two hours, he would be going to serve them elsewhere. If they realized that in their heart he would be really happy.

So many of them, men and women, were spinning there. That was a sight very pleasing to him. He also desired to thank them for the purse of Rs. 25,250 which they had given him for work in this sub-division. It was still more pleasing to him that this money had been collected from 3,900 persons. He was giving it to Charu Babu ² and was sure that it would be spent wise with maximum benefit. He hoped that the work would be taken up with this sum as capital.

He had read and heard of the calamities suffered by the people of this sub-division due to flood, famine and pestilence. He also knew that unless they bore such calamities with fortitude, they would not be able to survive in this world. Calamities occurred at every moment in some place or other and humanity all over the world had to pass through such sufferings. Today humanity was suffering in one form or other all over the world. But if people thought of them as misfortunes falling on them and broke under them, they would not be able to reap good out of evil.

The songs sung at Khadi Pratishthan at prayer-time every day had one central message and that was that even those who suffer get the blessings of God hidden in those sufferings.

¹ Gandhiji’s Hindi speech was simultaneously rendered into Bengali by Satis Chandra Das Gupta.
² Charuchandra Bhandari
It pained him to find that thousands of villagers were still coming there from distant places. It had been decided that he should come there at half past three and remain with them for two hours. If he had done so his programme of work would have been disturbed and he would not have been able to serve them as he desired.

He had a faith and it was still with him after he had come there. That was about the charkha. He had been saying from the very beginning that if we did not have faith in the charkha and realized its inner meaning, we would not be able to live peacefully in Hindustan. He had been saying this for 60 years, and this was true not only for Hindustan but for the whole world, wherever humanity lived, whether it was a small or big community or country. Humanity could not live peacefully unless it accepted the creed of truth and non-violence. It needed to be said that hooliganism or rowdyism would not enable us to bring swaraj or do anything good for humanity. He was convinced that if the 40 crores of people in India were truly imbued with this spirit of truth and non-violence then swaraj would be in our hands.

He would also tell them briefly the significance of the charkha. They would see that the poorest of the poor could have a charkha and spin. He had not seen any other machine which could be as useful as the charkha. Spinning was a form of labour. If a person did not work for his bread, he would be like a thief stealing the property of others. The charkha gave them scope for honest labour.

In our country persons who knew English and who were said to be educated told us that our people, who had no work to do for six months, could have nothing in store for them but begging. He would tell them that they would have to use intelligence in spinning too. A few minutes earlier he was spinning. The charkha was good but there was something wrong in it. He had to mend it before he could spin. In this way, if there was anything wrong in the machinery used by the people of India, then we would not be able to reap the maximum benefit out of it. Here one charkha went wrong. What would be the fate of Hindustan if 40 crores of charkhas went wrong? Those who believed that swaraj could be won by the charkha, would necessarily have the blessings of God. So long as we did not believe in God we would not be able to banish fear from our mind. A person or people who was not fearless could not be free. That was a simple truth.

He desired to thank them again for they had listened to him quietly. He hoped they had listened and realized what he had said. If, however, they had not been able to follow him, he hoped what he had said would be translated into Bengali and circulated among them. When he heard that they would be glad if he held his prayer there he was greatly delighted. He would hold his prayer for a few minutes and then would take leave of them. That did not mean that his work there was finished. He would go to the launch and hold discussions with their representatives. If he could work according to his plan, he would know his duties towards them. Concluding Mahatma Gandhi said:
I would request you to be quiet at the time of prayer. You should be wholly given to meditation of God while praying. Prayer is not parrot-like repetition of words. It is meaningless without singleness of heart.

Amrita Bazar Patrika, 26-12-1945

154. DISCUSSION WITH CONGRESS WORKERS

MAHISHADAL,

[On or after December 25, 1945]

I cannot say that all that has been done has been well done or ought to have been done. On the contrary, much of it ought not to have been done. That the people did not remain inert is a matter of satisfaction, but the fact that after all these years they should not have known what the Congress stood for is a matter for sorrow. What they did was thoughtless. By its very nature it could not be sustained.

You have graphically put in your reports how you blew up a railway track, put roads out of use, burnt a kutchery, seized a thana, set up a parallel government and so on. This is not the technique of non-violent action. People committed the mistake of thinking that all that did not involve killing was non-violence. Sometimes killing is the cleanest part of violence. If you kill the mischief-maker outright, there is an end to it as far as he is concerned, but harassment is worse. It did not put out mischief. On the contrary, it brought the mischief on our own heads. The authorities became vindictive. Perhaps, you will say that they would have been vindictive anyhow, but that is not what we should desire or aim at. It does not pay us to let them go into panic.

In August 1942, the authorities became panicicky. We gave them that excuse. But they are a people who do not know what defeat is; their cowardice is not fundamental. So, they let such things as thanas, kutcheries, panchayat courts, etc., remain in your hands for a short while as toys but as soon as they had completed their dispositions they turned the full blast of their machinery of retaliation against us. It is not in this way that India will attain her independence. We cannot afford to repeat it.

---

1 Extracted from Pyarelal’s “Non-violent Technique and Parallel Government”
2 Gandhiji was in Mahishadal from December 25 to 30.
Today you have to reckon not with Britain alone but the Big Three. You cannot successfully fight them with their own weapons. After all, you cannot go beyond the atom bomb. Unless we can have a new way of fighting imperialism of all brands in the place of the outworn one of a violent rising, there is no hope for the oppressed races of the earth.

Let nobody be misled by the Russian parallel. Our tradition is wholly different from Russia’s. The historical setting too is different. In Russia the whole population was under arms; Indian masses will not take to arms even if they could be given the necessary training. But it is useless to think that our rulers will let us give them that training when they have at a stroke disarmed a first-rate military State like Japan. Today Japan lies prostrate at the conqueror’s feet. But non-violence knows no defeat. It must however be true non-violence, not a make-believe. I would not shed a single tear if I alone were left to represent such non-violence.

Q. After all that we have done and suffered, we have begun to doubt whether our energies have flowed in the right channel, whether the mass awakening was not misdirected. But is not non-violent rebellion a programme of seizure of power?

A. Therein lies the fallacy. A non-violent revolution is not a programme of ‘seizure of power’. It is a programme of transformation of relationships ending in a peaceful transfer of power. If the people had fully carried out the five steps outlined by me in my 8th of August speech' in the A.I.C.C. in Bombay, and had there been a perfect atmosphere of non-violence, the Government’s power and repression would have been sterilized and it would have been compelled to yield to the national demand.

If under the impact of foreign invasion or some such cause the ruling power abdicates and a vacuum is created, the people’s organization will naturally take over its functions but such jatiya sarkar would have no other sanction except that of non-violence and service of the people to enforce its fiats. It will never use coercion. Even those who might hold contrary views will receive a full measure of security under it.

As an instance of the infinitely greater efficacy of the non-violent technique as compared to the technique of coercion, he mentioned the case of Bardoli. In Midnapore whilst they succeeded in capturing a few symbols of power in the initial stages, they could not retain the fruits of their success. But in Bardoli the satyagrahis were able fully to retain the gains of their struggle.

\[\text{Vide “Speech at A.I.C.C Meeting”, 8-8-1942 and “Speech at A.I.C.C. Meeting”, 8-8-1942}\]

Moreover, you have seen that all your bravery could not prevent the violation of women. Now that is intolerable. No one should be able to cast an evil eye upon them. This requires inculcation of a higher form of bravery, i.e., that of non-violence which can hurl defiance at death and against which the power of the aggressor cannot prevail. This is what I am trying to do. It may take time. It takes a long time to infuse this kind of higher courage among the millions. Whether this kind of non-violence will ever come into play or not I do not know. But you who have had training in non-violence for all these years ought to realize that in your hands non-violence should show all the brilliance that is inherent in it.

They next wanted to know as to how they could start on the right lines. Gandhiji in reply prescribed to them the spinning-wheel as “the symbol and central sun of the 8-fold constructive programme”. It was the best way of achieving social solidarity and non-violent organization. The technique of non-violent action consisted in isolating and sterilizing the instruments of evil. Jatiya sarkar based on non-violence would not put Government servants under duress but would effectively isolate them so that they would either have to align themselves with the people or be reduced to the necessity of carrying out the foreign Government’s writ through undiluted barbarism of which they would soon sicken and tire. Even their relations and dear ones would desert them.

This presupposes that no section among the people is labouring under a sense of injustice and wrong at the hands of the others. Untouchability, exploitation and communal rancour can have no place under a jatiya sarkar, or it will be like a house divided against itself which must fall.

Harijan, 17-2-1946
155. LETTER TO HOMI

MAHISHADAL,

December 26, 1945

Bhai Homi,

I would advise you not to get involved in the Assembly business. How does it matter if the people ask you to? Moreover, of what use can my testimonial be? For a noble person his own noble acts or humanity are the testimonials.

Blessings from

Bapu

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

156. LETTER TO AMRITLAL V. THAKKAR

MAHISHADAL,

December 26, 1945

Bapa,

Herewith the letter from the Kanya Gurukul. I think you had better write to the Gurukul lady yourself.

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

157. LETTER TO BHAILALBHAI PATEL

MAHISHADAL,

Camp: Sodepur,

December 26, 1945

Bhaiyalbhai,

I have your long letter. As on reading it I got a clearer idea of your enthusiasm, I felt that I might not by myself be able to do justice to that enthusiasm and, therefore, showed the letter to the experienced co-workers who are in my party. I was accompanied yesterday by Shri Satis Babu and Shri Annanda Babu1 in the boat which brought me to Midnapore. Both of them are learned men and thinkers and are taking the utmost interest in constructive work. They are not men who would obstinately cling to their own ideas; they would go wherever the quest of truth leads them. Neither of them has

1 Annanda Chowdhury, a veteran constructive worker or Bengal been impressed by tractors, nor very much by electrically operated flour mills. Since I myself am temperamentally cast in a different mould, I leave out myself. I asked Satis Babu to reduce his opinion to writing and am sending his note in the original. Annanda Babu has definite proofs in support of his view and he will collect them and prepare a note after the present tour is over. I will send it to you. I think that ultimately the gulf between the two opposite views will remain unbridged, and everything will depend on experience alone. Meanwhile, you should cling to the view which you hold so firmly and act on it. I have always acted on what I believe to be true and it seems but right that I should continue to do so. Keep on writing to me if there is anything which you feel might change my views.

Blessings from
M. K. GANDHI

From a facsimile of the Gujarati: Shri Bhailalbhai Patel, Sitermi Janmagranth Abhinandangranth, 1958, p. 254

158. LETTER TO SADHU CHARANDAS

MAHISHADAL,
December 26, 1945

BHAI SADHU CHARANDAS,

I have your letter. I have written quite a lot on students. You should read it and do whatever you feel is right. What can be there in it which makes you sleepless?

SADHU CHARANDAS
HEAD MASTER
BOARD HIGH SCHOOL
SURADA (GANJAM)

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
159. LETTER TO DHARMA DEV SHASTRI

MAHISHADAL,
December 26, 1945

SHRI DHARMA DEV SHASTRI,

Is it true that you have fallen ill? Get well soon. Why did you fall ill?

SHRI DHARMA DEV SHASTRI
DARSHAN KESARI
ASHOK ASHRAM
KALSI, DISTT. DEHRA DUN

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

160. LETTER TO HARIPRASAD SHASTRI

MAHISHADAL,
December 26, 1945

BHAJI HARIPRASAD SHASTRI,

I have your letter. Why did you write in English? What I am doing is also for the sake of Truth. Who knows what consummation will serve Truth. It is better to keep on doing what we consider our duty irrespective of the result.

SHRI HARIPRASAD SHASTRI
SHANTI SADAN
30 LANSDOWN CRESCENT
LONDON–W II

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

161. LETTER TO HARIRAM

MAHISHADAL,
December 26, 1945

BHAJI HARIRAM,

I have your letter. I cannot do anything in this matter.

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
162. LETTER TO MUKHERJEE

MAHISHADAL, December 26, 1945

Bhai Mukherjee,

I have your letter dated 23rd December. I have had a talk with your son. I hope your wife is now well. I have gone through all the papers from Nepal that you have sent. I do not see what help they can be. This work perhaps can be done only by people like you who are familiar with it. It cannot be done with the help of a certificate from the Government of Nepal or anyone else.

Yours,

M. K. Gandhi

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

163. SPEECH AT PRAYER MEETING

MAHISHADAL, December 26, 1945

I have come here to know what you have done so long, and also to know about your sufferings, and after that to try to help ameliorate some of them.

I have not come here to deliver speeches. I have delivered many speeches in my life. Now I am old in age and there has been a change in my mind, and I think by delivering speeches I will not be able to do any good to you.

Referring to the sufferings of the people of Midnapore during the past years, Gandhi said that he was anxious to visit the district for some time, and he was glad that he got the opportunity today. During his stay in their midst, he would study their conditions—political and economic.

Mahatma Gandhi advised the gathering to join in singing God’s name as by doing so they would pick up the habit of doing things unitedly. Swaraj could not be given by anybody. The people must possess unity of strength for achieving it. It also meant non-violence or peace.

Amrita Bazar Patrika, 27-12-1945

1 The meeting was held in the open space adjoining Gandhi’s hut. It was attended by more than one lakh people.
164. SPEECH AT PRAYER MEETING

MAHISSADAL,
December 27, 1945

If we can conduct ourselves unitedly as we have done in maintaining the rhythm of the bhajan sung, then whatever injury is inflicted on us and however wronged we may be as the result of the visitation of Nature or policy of the State, we will be the master of the situation and keep our head unbent. History provides many such instances.

Proceeding, Gandhiji referred to the bhajan sung at the meeting and stated that it would not distort the meaning of the song if in the place of “temple” the word “liberation” was used.

But, asked Gandhiji, what was exactly that liberation which the Poet in the song and they as well wanted to attain? Was it the liberation or salvation that came to man after his death or was it the liberation from all vestiges of bondage that a human being suffered under in this world?

The congregation, Gandhiji hoped, would agree with him that they all wanted the liberation from bondage in this world. If that was the hankering then they must appreciate the significance of a unitedly given rhythm.

They were suffering under a bondage of foreign yoke and consequently they were anxious to be liberated therefrom. There might be, if not equally, strong powers or influences in their country which also were anxious to keep them down in bondage. They were anxious to get rid of all these bondages but, added Gandhiji, the worst type of bondage was that which enabled one to submit himself to any form of slavery.

Man was a slave to many things—his property, his desires. They should seek deliverance from all these things. If they could press forward their claim for liberation from all these bondages in the same way as they did in maintaining the rhythm of the chorus of the bhajan, they would, he hoped, realize his message.

When they kept rhythm by a movement of the hands, the feeling of such a movement came from within. In other words their hearts were attuned to the outside movements. That was exactly the thing prerequisite to the attainment of salvation.

Amrita Bazar Patrika, 28-12-1945

1 The meeting was attended by over one lakh people.
165. LETTER TO AMRIT KAUR

MAHISHADAL,
December 28, 1945

CHL. AMRIT,

The papers report your safe arrival. This is earlier than anything you could have sent. I hope all will go well there.

Here I am in the midst of peaceful surroundings on the canal bank. This is saved children’s home. No mosquitos. Is it not ‘es’? Fancy meetings absolutely silent though attended by perhaps one lakh of people.

No more.

Love to you all.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

166. LETTER TO T. H. BAIRD

MAHISHADAL,
December 28, 1945

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter of 18th November. I am forwarding your letter and pamphlet to Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru. Your pretension appears to me to be too great.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

T. H. BAIRD, ESQ.
33 PARK AVENUE
PORTOBELLO, EDINBURGH

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
167. LETTER TO D. B. KALELKAR

MAHISHADAL,
SODEPUR (24 PARGANAS),
December 28, 1945

CHI. KAKA,

I can only dictate the reply to your letter. Just now I have to be content with what I can dictate or write after the morning prayer. I therefore do not think it necessary to stretch out the hand from under the quilt to write to you.

I can think of only one thing regarding you, and that is, you should go on doing what I tell you—though you may make any suggestion you like. This is exactly what you say in your letter too. Even if your interpretation is the only correct one, I would say that it would be safer not to exercise the right which has been granted to you but to consult the committee. At any rate you will lose nothing thereby, nor is such procedure likely to result in any delay, especially when you can consult them by correspondence.

Let us forget the affair of the Vidyapith library, for I never think about it. And, in any case, what is the use of recalling it?

I see no need for you to resign from activities in Gujarat. The whole thing seems to be your imagination. Moreover, Amritlal takes interest in them. It was you who made him what he is. Without your support his interest would dry up. He is a straightforward and hard-working man. From among your discoveries, I consider him as the one who has proved his worth. So you can leave only after convincing him fully. You have as good as left, since Amritlal will never do anything against your wishes.

Thirdly, though you had intended Prof. Banhatti for B. B. Mandir and told him so, there will be no harm if you take him away for the Adhyapan Mandir. The latter needs his services for work which is already in progress, whereas nothing is definite yet about B. B. Mandir’s work.

I did not like your falling ill. I see no need to work at such speed and expense of energy. Do what you can without overtaxing yourself. I can understand your desire that nothing should be overlooked through lethargy, but I am not at all ready to grant the necessity of working with speed. I remember in this connection the couplet: “To be impatient is to be confused and to be patient is to be self-possessed.” It is for you to know who the author is.
I experience supreme peace here even in the midst of meetings attended by thousands. This is a new sight altogether. I even believe that this is the result of the work we have been able to do in Sodepur. Moreover, the people no longer ask for speeches from me, but want prayer meetings. On one side we have this, on the other, I read in newspapers the reports of the goondaism that is going on. Who can say what the outcome of all this will be, or what God will do? Is it not enough that we should cheerfully shoulder the burden of the small tasks that fall to our lot?

Let this suffice for today.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G. N. 10987

168. LETTER TO AMRITLAL V. THAKKAR

MAHISHADAL,
December 28, 1945

BAPA,

Herewith Mridula’s wire. You will be able to see Devdas also. What shall we do about Delhi? If these two names cannot be approved we should look for some other lady. I also hold the view that until we come across a woman worker we should carry on the work through the Wardha office as best as we can, since the main thing is for us to work in the countryside.

Have you written to them that Tai Rajwade has declined the offer? Rajkumari has agreed to find [workers] for both the places (Delhi and Central India). Yet Devdas’s scheme still remains to be considered. I am doubtful if Ramachandran and Saundaram can adjust themselves to this task. Ramachandran has adjusted himself to the Nayee Talim work, so how can we withdraw him from it? Saundaram alone surely cannot cope with the responsibility. This is what I think, so discuss this thing also with Devdas.

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
169. LETTER TO DINSHAW K. MEHTA

MAHISHADAL,
December 28, 1945

CHI. DINSHAW,

Today is the 28th. I am dictating this from a village in Midnapore. I have sent a full reply to Munnalal’s letter. He had informed me that it was written on behalf of all of you. I don’t know when this will reach you.

I only hope that everything will change from January 1st. My heart is there. When I shall be there is in God’s hands. He will take me there whenever He wills.

A sign-board in Hindustani, Urdu and Marathi was to be put up there. Have you done it? Or have you put it off till I come?

Do you still have the ‘big’ monied patients or have they left? If they have stayed on, will they agree to be in the same line with the poor?

What did you do about the hospital furniture? Did you get the pieces you wanted for your Bombay unit? Or shall I have to see to the matter myself? I know I shall have to put up with the monthly expenditure there. A number of questions have been raised in this connection; I shall remit the appropriate amount after I get a reply.

I do not expect a large number of indoor patients moving in soon. I take it that those who have already applied to you will be the rich ones. There is no question of our admitting them at the moment. It will be a different matter if we admit them after the new norms are established and the rich agree to stay with the poor.

Of course, I strongly feel that you should adapt yourself to the new pattern in full knowledge and faith.

I hope Gulbai is fine. I expect it is now nearing time for her confinement.

Write to me at the Sodepur address.

Blessings from

BAPU

DR. DINSHAW MEHTA
POONA

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal. Courtesy: Pyarelal 170. LETTER TO THE PRINCIPAL, KANYA GURUKUL, DEHRA DUN

MAHISHADAL,
December 28, 1945

DEAR SISTER,

I have your letter. I was a little surprised. I had always regarded the Gurukul as Dharma Devji’s institution.

I have forwarded your letter to Thakkar Bapa and have written to him to write to you.

THE PRINCIPAL
KANYA GURUKUL
DEHRA DUN

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

171. LETTER TO C. N. MUTURANG MUDALIAR

P.O. SODEPUR,
December 28, 1945

BHAI MUTURANG MUDALIAR,

I have your letter, I do have partiality for Rajaji. I feel that he alone is able to hold the reigns of the Government in Madras. But do whatever you people think is best. I do not involve myself at all in the affairs of the Working Committee. I give my opinion on whatever is referred to me. Therefore it will be no use coming to see me. Dr. Rajan and other friends had been here. I told them the same thing. I know nothing about what Asaf Ali did. I have read only what has appeared in the newspapers.

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

C. N. MUTURANG MUDALIAR
4 MAULVI ROAD
THYAGARAYA NAGAR
MADRAS

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
172. LETTER TO DADA DHARMADHIKARI

MAHISHADAL,
December 28, 1945

Bhai Dada,

I have gone through your letter, also that of Gopalrao. After taking into consideration everything. I have arrived at the following decision: Because all your friends want it, you may seek election to the Assembly if it can be done without any exertion on your part and on the clear understanding that it will be a bed of thorns and not of velvet. If something good comes of it the credit will go to the electorate or to God. If nothing comes of it we lose nothing because, if you remain outside it will be to serve truth and if you go in, it will be also to serve truth. I understand what Vinoba says. I am giving this opinion knowing very well his views. Refrain from all arguments and discussions, observe silence, and if even then people elect you go to the Assembly. You should not make any effort on your part to get elected.

I am not writing a separate letter to Gopalrao. This is meant for him also.

Dada Dharmadhikari
Bajajwadi
Wardha

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

173. LETTER TO GOPINATH BARDOLOI

MAHISHADAL,
December 28, 1945

Bhai Bar Doloi,

I have your letter. I have gone through it and also discussed it. I shudder at the thought of your programme. You seem to have taken it for granted that I can keep running about if I live for another 49 years. But it is not so. I can live perhaps for 125 years if I stick to one place and work within my limits. I had agreed to give seven days to Assam, inclusive of the time taken by the journey to and fro. You have arranged for seven day’s programme in Assam itself. And two days will be spent in going and coming, which makes it nine days. How can I spare so many days? You will listen to everything and then decide whether my stay at two place will serve the purpose or not. If does not then forget about it.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

174. LETTER TO HASTMAL PATWA

MAHISHDAL,
December 28, 1945

Bhai Hastmal Patwa,
I received your telegram at Mahishdal. I do not know what can be done about it. Write or teleraph to Jawaharlalji.
Shri Hastmal Patwa
13 Narmal Lohia Lane
Calcutta

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

175. LETTER TO JAWAHARLAL NEHRU

CAMP: MAHISHDAL,
POST SODEPUR,
December 28, 1945

Chhi. Jawaharlal,
I am enclosing a letter, this as desired by the writer. He might have met me in South Africa, but I do not remember. I have written to him that he has made a tall claim in his address. He seems to be a crazy man.

I could find time only now to read what you said before the students in Bihar. I liked it very much.

You need a littel rest. It would indeed be good if you could snatch it.

I had told Rajkumari to write to you about the Communists. Today I find a totally different thing in the newspapers. A clipping is attached herewith. What is this? Can you throw some light?

Blessings from
BAPU

From the Hindi original: Gandhi-Nehru Papers. Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library

THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
176. LETTER TO KAMALNAYAN BAJAJ

MAHISHADAL,

December 28, 1945

CHI. KAMALNAYAN,

I have written to the Ashram about the money.

KAMALNAYAN BAJAJ

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

177. LETTER TO SHRIKRISHNADAS JAJU

MAHISHADAL,

December 28, 1945

BHAJI JAJUUJI,

It is my firm view that we should demand yarn for the khadi required by the Congress. It calls for tact and efficiency. Those who wear a uniform must learn to spin. The question implies that those wearing uniforms did not wear khadi and did not spin. Will they do so now? The presidents of the Congress committees will have to be patiently persuaded. It is they who want to destroy khadi, and they may if they can. By efficiency I mean we may provide yarn in cases where spinning cannot be started right now. I always have quite a large stock of yarn and I am willing to spare some. The only provision is that I will give yarn only to those who are willing to give it but are not able to do so immediately as they do not know spinning. But they should accept the condition that they will spin and do as required. And they should collect yarn for the khadi required in future. If we observe these rules faithfully we shall know whether khadi will bring us swaraj or will only remain a provider to the poor. You may send this letter to Vichitra if you want.

SHRI JAJUUJI
SECRETARY, A. I. S. A.
SEVAGRAM, WARDHA

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
178. LETTER TO SHYAMLAL

MAHISHADAL,
December 28, 1945

BHAJ SHYAMLAL,

I have your letter.

Haven’t I written about Lala Ramswarup that even if we want to delete a word we have to invite the opinion of the members as far as possible? Consult Pakvasa and Dada Mavalankar. They are there. We must have the opinion of the persons who have moved for the amendment of the resolution. There is no doubt that it can be secured. Only it will take some time but you have to put up with that.

The second question you have raised is good. I would not like to be bound down to any particular use of the building. I would like that Lala Ramswarup should either donate the building on the understanding that we may make what use we make of it or he should not donate it at all. The donor should make the donation on our condition and not his.

BHAJ SHYAMLAL
WARDHA

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

179. LETTER TO PRABODH CHANDRA SEN

KHADI PRATISHTHAN,
SODEPUR,
[December 28, 1945]

BHAJ PRABODH CHANDRA SEN:

I have your letter. I have written to Rathi Babu about it. All the inmates of Vishva Bharati must know Bengali and Hindustani. English should not be compulsory for everybody. Arrangements should be made for the foreigners to learn Hindustani first. It should be compulsory for those who come from provinces other than

---

1 From the postmark
2 Professor and Head of Bengali Department, Visva Bharati
3 Vide “Letter to Rathindranath Tagore”, 22-12-1945
Bengal to learn Bengali; similarly Hindustani should be made compulsory for Bengalis. Then only can Vishva Bharati be worthy of its name and also the name of Gurudev. If I had my way, I would carry on everything in Hindustani. If that is not possible now, I would do it in Bengali, but certainly not in English.

I do not wish to express any opinion regarding the fourth question as I do not have full information.

Blessings from
BAPU

From Hindi: C.W. 10408

180. SPEECH AT SHISHU SADAN

MAHISHADAL,
December 28, 1945

I have come here to study facts. I have known and studied and understood. What I have got to say to you I tell you through the prayer. Practise it in your everyday life.¹

Gandhiji smilingly asked the boys whether they would like to play with him. On being asked by a boy to give him his blessings Gandhiji said that he could not do that because the boy had dirty dress. He thereupon turned to the teacher of the boys and said that he would have a quarrel with him. He explained to the teacher that the aims of Wardha scheme of education was not merely to teach the boys arithmetic and a few other things. The Wardha scheme of education, Gandhiji emphasized, moulded the life of man to a new form. Why should they sit with their face bent down? They should be taught to sit erect.

Remember if they are properly reared up they will be the best soldiers of Hindustan. Why should the boys put on dirty dress after having undergone Wardha training for six months?

He urged that in imparting Wardha training they should be more concerned with its essence rather than the routine courses of study. Gandhiji also enquired about their progress in spinning.

Amrita Bazar Patrika, 29-12-1945

¹ Gandhiji was answering a woman worker who had complained of hardships and Government oppression.
181. ANSWER TO QUESTION

December 28, 1945

Mahatma Gandhi said that if it was necessary to use the plain red flag of the A. I. T. U. C. in order to be better able to serve the labour of all faiths and denominations he saw no harm in doing so provided the red flag was not used as a rival to the tricolour flag.

Amrita Bazar Patrika, 29-12-1945

182. SPEECH AT PRAYER MEETING

MAHISHADAL,
December 28, 1945

Gandhiji stated that he had noticed that ordinary rules of business of an assembly were not observed. If one was to attend a meeting it was expected of him, whether he liked the proceedings or not, that he should remain till the end. If this procedure was not followed and if he left abruptly while the meeting was going on he would only disturb others. He had been told by many women attending such meetings that they had only a limited time at their disposal for attending such functions because they had to attend to other household duties. Undoubtedly it was a strong argument in their favour but his reply to them would be that in such cases they should consider beforehand whether they had the time or not at their disposal to sit till the end of the meeting.

If they at all decided to attend the meeting they should be there till the meeting was dissolved. There are many who arrived at the meeting after it had commenced. In such a case the attendant should stay outside the assembly.

All these rules of conduct were applicable in respect of an ordinary assembly. But they are obligatory in case of prayer meetings. Because at the prayer they wanted to be in meditation. During such a time anything disturbing from outside was unwelcome. He would particularly draw the attention of the organizers of such meetings to the observance of these general rules of conduct. They should circulate amongst the people beforehand these rules for their observance. If they could train up people in this respect they would be rendering a public service and will be able to organize themselves better, advance the cause of public decorum and give new inspiration.

Dr. Maitreyi Bose, Secretary of the Hindustan Mazdoor Sevak Sangh, Bengal Branch, had asked Gandhiji about the advisability of Congressmen engaged in the labour movement using the Red Flag.
Referring to the charkha demonstration participated in by about 500 spinners, men and women, Gandhiji said that he noticed that there were two types of charkhas in use. The older one was the wheelied one and the latter was called the box-charkha. The latter was introduced by him and the reason for its introduction was that for the convenience of men like him who were regular spinners and had to travel, this type of box-charkha was suitable. But let them not forget, he said, the golden rule for charkha that its price should be cheap and be made from materials available in the particular locality. Crores of persons could not be expected to use one uniform type of charkha. Nor should its manufacture be limited to one central place. If they developed a central supply store of charkha how would it be possible for them to supply it to the 40 crores of people?

So far as the strength of the charkha was concerned he could assert that there was no other machine which was more powerful than it. To him the charkha was the symbol of swaraj, ahimsa and annapurna.

Referring to the bhajan sung Gandhiji said that its composer maintained that it was through sufferings that a man could realize God. What was the method prescribed for the realization of God was also true for the attainment of swaraj.

There was no instance in the world to show that swaraj could be had without undergoing sufferings. Not only swaraj, they could not acquire even knowledge without undergoing hardships. If there was anything which was available to a man without undergoing hardships he could not fully prize or appreciate the same. Therefore, if they had followed the bhajan of the day they should remember that for the sake of God they had to put up with all sufferings. As it was true that without suffering they could not realize God so was it equally true that without suffering they could not attain freedom. They should also remember that for the sake of swaraj whatever they had suffered had not been in vain. They had all paved the path towards their attaining swaraj.

Amrita Bazar Patrika, 30-12-1945

183. LETTER TO KANTILAL GANDHI

MAHISHADAL,
December 29, 1945

CHI. KANTI,

It is 6 a. m. just now. It is pitch dark all around. The prayer was over at 5. After the prayer, instead of returning to bed I read or heard letters and started writing. I thus reach your letter at 6 a. m.

Chi. Shanti will get well. Every householder passes through such experiences, bitter, sweet, sweet and bitter.
I would like your doing whatever work relating to spinning comes to you unsought at home. If you have skill, proficiency, firmness of mind, purity of character, devotion to God and humility, then the work you do at home will be like the Ganga flowing by your door-step. I will regard such work done during student life as more than enough.

If by fulfilling your family obligations and doing service to others while studying you have to take two years instead of one to complete your studies you need not feel unhappy at all. It would certainly be a matter of shame if studies were neglected from lethargy or love of pleasures. Those who believe that it is impossible to do public service during student life are mistaken. The student’s stage of life is also meant for increasing one’s capacity for service. If, therefore, the immediate opportunity for service is neglected, the student’s life becomes as it generally is today, a selfish one instead of one dedicated to service. Moreover, present day education by and large is antagonistic to the spirit of service or patriotism. Add to this the burden of learning through English. And the subjects of study also include some which are unnecessary and exclude some which are essential, such as spinning. According to me, spinning, which means both its science and craft, should be introduced as the principal subject right from the earliest stage. But that is not done anywhere. Our boys, therefore, who study in Government institutions must determinedly make good this deficiency, as you have been doing. If that is not done, one would be guilty of the vanity of claiming perfection. You should not, therefore, in any circumstances abandon spinning and its science. Show and explain the whole of this letter to Saraswati. It will help her to understand and realize how much service, and nothing but service, is contained in spinning. If she is still not able to understand, let me know. I will try again to explain the point to her. Besides, you will also have received my previous letter written from Sodepur.

I followed what you wrote about the politics there. You should remain detached and go on doing what you can.

I could perhaps have revised the English of your report and sent it to you, but the news you had given in it was so good that I felt I must convey it to Jajuji and so sent on the report to him. I do not very much care if your English is not of the highest class. I am more interested in your being in the highest class as a human being and acquiring wide knowledge of Indian languages. I would, however, like it if at the same time you could also write grammatically correct and chaste English. That is why I dropped the hint in my letter.

Here I have been enjoying the highest peace. Tomorrow I will go to Contai. The programme there, too, is for four days. I expect to return to Sodepur on January 3. From there I will leave for Assam on the 8th and return to Sodepur again on the 16th. We are a large party but we experience no difficulty on that account.

Address your reply to Sodepur. I shall probably reach Madras on the 23rd.

Blessings the to three of you from

BAPU

[PS.]

Harilal is in Bangalore with Nanjapa.

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 7381. Courtesy: Kantilal Gandhi

184. LETTER TO MADALASA

MAHISHADAL,

December 29, 1945

CHI. MADALASA,

I have your letter. Sushila will of course write to you. You may be considered to be out of danger and pain now.

The operation on the breasts is a long one but is not considered a difficult one.

It seems you are still in Bajajwadi. If, after you are able to leave the bed, you eat only what your health requires but eat it regularly and in adequate quantity, you will soon get well. I was glad that Vinobaji paid a visit. It was good that the train was late, for he could give more time to you because of that.

The baby’s weight is rather low. If you learn through all these experiences and become more careful in your habits, everything will be well.

Ramakrishna is gaining plenty of experience. The entire tour is full of happy experiences. How strange it is that people do not want speeches but want prayer-meetings!

If both you and the baby lie in sunshine for as long as you can stand, you will sleep longer. Just now I am having firsthand experience of this. And the longer you sleep the healthier you will become. If the sleep is not a sign of lethargy, it will refresh the mind, too. “Rasgulla”1 is daily becoming more of a rasgulla.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 5855

185. LETTER TO MATHURABHAI

MAHISHADAL,
December 29, 1945

BHAI MATHURABHAI,

I have your letter. What you say is absolutely right. Since you are in Bombay you should personally collect all the information. I am under the impression that pickers [sic] are made from dead animals. But now that I have your letter I shall make further enquiries.

Blessings from
M. K. GANDHI

SJT. MATHURABHAI
PICKERS FACTORY
DHARAVI ROAD
BOMBAY 17

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

186. LETTER TO SHRIPAD JOSHI

KHADI PRATISHTHAN,
SODEPUR,
December 29, 1945

CHI. SHRIPAD,

I have your letter. Congratulations on your inter-communal/inter provincial marriage. I hope that this marriage will not be for indulgence but for sacrifice and that your capacity to serve will at least be doubled.

I am not writing a separate letter to Bhai Joshi1.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 5616

1 Gandhiji’s nickname for the addressee’s son
2 S. M. Joshi, socialist leader
187. A LETTER

MAHISHADAL,
December 29, 1945

DEAR SISTER,

I have your letter. It is good that Harilal has reached there at last. Both you husband and wife should now redeem him. If he is saved I will consider him as your property.

If you are not able to understand Hindi properly, Harilal will explain to you. Does he write to Kanti and Saraswati? I had one or two letters from him. Blessings.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

188. TALK WITH PEOPLE

MAHISHADAL,
December 29, 1945

Gandhiji replied that he had been asked the same question in 1920 and 1921 and he could only repeat the reply which he gave then. The question betrayed ignorance of non-violence and also of swaraj of his conception. He did not want swaraj at the cost of women’s honour. If what passed as non-violence did not enable them to protect the honour of women or if it did not enable the women to protect their own honour, it was not non-violence.

Believe me, it is something quite different.

And he described what he had written in Hind Swaraj in 1909. Gandhiji observed that experience had added force to the argument.

After all who protected Sita from Ravana? The poet tells us that her purity was such that Ravana dared not compass his end without her consent.

1 Extracted from Sushila Nayyar’s “Non-violence and Molestation of Women”. On the night of the 29th Gandhiji met about 200 men and women of Mahishadal and neighbouring villages including local workers and victims of police and military atrocities during the 1942 movement.

2 The question was whether they were expected to remain non-violent even when their womenfolk were molested.
He warned them in the end that if anybody came to him with the plea that they could not protect the honor of their womenfolk because they had taken the vow of non-violence, he would give them no quarter. Non-violence should never be used as a shield for cowardice. It was a weapon of the brave. He would rather they died fighting violently than became helpless witnesses to such atrocities. A truly non-violent man would never live to tell the tale of such atrocities. He would have laid down his life on the spot in non-violent resistance.

_Harijan_, 10-2-1946

189. SPEECH AT PRAYER MEETING

MAHISHADAL,

_December 29, 1945_

Gandhiji paid a glowing tribute to the affection and painstaking care that the men and women volunteers who were in charge of the camp, had shown is looking after him and his party. Gandhiji congratulated the gathering on the exemplary silence and order which prevailed during the public prayers at Mahishadal. It had given him the deepest satisfaction. The peace of mind which he experienced there exceeded even what he had experienced in Sevagram or Sodepur.

Referring to the events in connection with the 1942 struggle, he said that as a result of all that he had heard and learnt during the last few days, he had come to the conclusion that whilst people had shown singular courage and endurance, they had also committed some mistakes, especially in their understanding of the principle of ahimsa. He added:

_Besides, there were some acts of high-handedness amongst ourselves. There must be some difference between a national organization and alien rule. In our national organization there should not be any differences amongst ourselves. I should go further today and say that those outsiders who lived near us should be made to realize that our organization was superior to the alien organization because we did not want violence. We wanted to carry on our work through non-violence._

1 Under a national government, even the opponents or those who held contrary views ought not to experience a feeling that the ideal had not been attained in Midnapore or, for that matter, in any part of India. It might even be said that it was a tall order. But if he did not point out their faults or place the undiluted ideal before them, they could never hope to reach their ideal. Gandhiji continued:

1 These two paragraphs are reproduced from _The Hindu_ of 30-12-1945.
If you do not do it, I won’t be able to do anything, even if I carry our claim throughout the world. I won’t succeed if I do not make these things clear to you. During my work for the last 60 years it has been the practice with me that I do not praise those who work with me. I make their mistakes known to others and I think, by doing so, our mistakes would be rectified.\(^2\)

Gandhiji reiterated his conviction that India had lost nothing, but on the contrary had gained in every way as a result of the adoption and practice of truth and non-violence during all these years. If they had not attained the goal which they had set before themselves, the fault lay not in truth and ahimsa, but in themselves.

For instance, if they had fully imbibed the principle of ahimsa, they would be completely free from the feeling of discrimination against the votaries of religions other than their own and regard them and serve them all with equal love. It had pained him to learn that, in the Mahishadal area, Harijans were still not being admitted in the temples. He hoped they would completely rid themselves of the taint of untouchability. It would be a big advance in ahimsa.

Referring to the song that had been sung, he pointed out that, in it, the devotee prays to God to purge him of the cowardice which springs from doubt, as well as the cowardice that results from fear of misfortunes. To harbour doubt is to insult God. To shrink from misfortune, is to run away from Him. He, therefore, prays for spiritual as well as physical courage, so that he might be completely rid of all fear.

The Hindu, 30-12-1945 and 31-12-1945

190. LETTER TO CHHAGANLAL GANDHI

December 30, 1945

CHI. CHHAGANLAL,

I have your letter. About me you must be getting all the news from the papers. I hope there was no dejection underlying the statement that Prabhudas had had yet another daughter. If we really see no difference between a boy and a girl and if we do not, out of a false sense of attachment, consider a girl a liability there will be no cause either for dejection or for a feeling of being burdened with responsibility. It will be sufficient, if we bring her up, train her to think independently and become self-reliant an teach her, in case she wants to marry, the art of finding herself a mate and also help her, if she wants, in her search for one. Moreover, we shall, in addition, master the art of bringing up daughters and set an example for others.
Pass this on to Prabhudas for his perusal. If possible Prabhudas and Amba should now practise continence. If they fail to practise it their capacity for service is going to be greatly limited.

I am not surprised at Kashi’s lack of strength. Her weakness will persist because she continues to be ever so restless. Otherwise I know she can partly get over the cold weather by keeping herself warm. My suggestion to her to go to Bombay for the cold season did have flaws. All the same I did make the suggestion which she rejected. I hope the cold has abated now.

Rajkumari is in Hyderabad (Sind). She will be relieved from there on the 2nd.

I hope you yourself are well.

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

191. A NOTE

December 30, 1945

Children should spin well. They must learn the processes preceding and following spinning. Children should know and observe the rules of cleanliness. It is essential to keep the posture when sitting or standing. Truth and non-violence should come to them easily and naturally.

M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 7179

192. LETTER TO NARAYAN M. DESAI

ON THE STEAMER,
December 30, 1945

CHI. BABLO,

You have now really grown big. You too must aspire to live 125 years in the service of others, and strive towards that end.

If Durga’s health is as good as you describe I shall say you have truly grown up. Sushi, I am sure, will be quite well.

As for the wedding, in my opinion the longer it is put off the better it will be.

I keep on hearing that you are grown in body as well as in mind. May you fill Mahadev’s place and excel him.

Blessings from

BAPU

NARAYAN DESAI
SEVAGRAM

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

193. LETTER TO PUSHPA K. DESAI

MAIN CAMP: SODEPUR,
ON THE STEAMER FROM MAHISHDAL TO CONTAL,
December 30, 1945

CHI. PUSHPA,

I have your letter. How can you afford to be cowardly? You should endure your fate. I can bear, even understand, your refusal to look upon Vajubhai as your husband. But he is a brother to you, is he not? And why need one fear one’s brother? How can you refuse to discuss the subject with him? He has committed no fault. If anyone is at fault, it is you. You do not want to abide by custom. I see no harm even in that. One who wishes to disregard custom must generally display great firmness of mind, purity of character and gentleness. Moreover, you aspire to rise even higher. You are resolved to have as husband no ordinary man but only God. Your stiffness does not become your noble resolve. You should, therefore welcome Vajubhai. Then alone can you uplift both him and yourself. I am glad, that you believe yourself to be still weak. You should, therefore, carefully observe the restraints which a weak person should. These restraints are only not to be alone with Vajubhai and not to touch him. It is no part of a sister’s duty to a brother to touch him freely. If she chances to touch him, she does not run away nor does the experience any passion because of it. But when a girl is weak, even touching one’s blood brother may sometimes have to be avoided. You will learn to look upon God as husband and be accepted in His large court only if you understand all these subtle distinctions. Otherwise you are bound to fall by the wayside like a mere pebble.

Go to Vinoba when you can. There you will get affection and knowledge and your determination will grow firm.

If you do not want, I will not send you the letters from Father or Vajubhai. But I would like you to remain unperturbed even after reading those letters. Yesterday we had a Bengali bhajan.
Daily in the evenings a Bengali bhajan is sung here and that is only proper. The first line of the bhajan was: “Lord, save me from weakness even when I am assailed by doubts.” That destroy is, destroy every doubt in my mind. Your vow is a hard one. You have taken it of your own free will. You will not be able to deep it without God’s grace. I am dictating this letter with great care in the early morning in a boat, hoping that it may remove your ignorance and strengthen you. There can be no peace except through absorption in service. You can show this letter to Vinoba. He will be able to explain my ideas better and if there is anything lacking he will make up for it.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 9268

194. LETTER TO SHYAMLAL

December 30, 1945

Bhai Shyamlal,

I have your letter of the 26th. I feel it is necessary to consult the scheme before sanctioning expenditure for opening a basic training (school) in the village of Tirumalai. Shall we have the ownership of the site of the building? Have you received the Rs. 500? What is the population of Tirumalai? If it is necessary to sanction the expenditure soon, then decide about the ownership, etc., and you may take my approval for granted. As I want to reply quickly I am writing this on a boat. Sodepur should be taken as my address.

Shri Shyamlal
Kasturba Smarak Nidhi, Wardha

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
195. LETTER TO SATYANARAYAN

ON THE STEAMER,
December 30, 1945

BHAI SATYANARAYAN.

Two of your letters came more or less at the same time—one of the 24th addressed to me and the other of the 26th addressed to Sushilabehn. I am planning to reach there on January 23, 1946. Whether I can do so is in God’s hands.

You should stop touring for the present and get to work in Madras. If the ground is well prepared there our work will shine.

I do not remember having talked to Sitaramji. I did have some talk with Kamalnayanji. I shall try to talk to Sitaramji when I return to Sodepur. Much depends on the success of the programme in Madras. I believe that it is easy to get money if we are perfectly honest and industrious. You will remember what I mean by honest. I think I explained to you.

Sardar told me that the meeting of the Central Parliamentary Board would be held somewhere there. He had no objection but thought Maulana Saheb might not be able to travel so far. There is no need for you to do anything in this connection. I personally do nothing and indeed I should not. Whatever has to happen will happen.

I have gone through the programme. It is for both morning and evening. It will be very difficult for me if I have to attend it at 9 in the morning. Monday is obviously a silence day and on Thursday, Saturday, Sunday and Tuesday I observe silence at 9. That is the time for massage, etc. So bearing in mind that it will be possible to take work from me only from 2 to 5, do whatever you want to.

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
I96. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA

ON THE STEAMER FROM MAHISHADAL TO CONTAI, MAIN CAMP: SODEPR,
December 30, 1945

CHI. KRISHNACHANDRA,

I have your letter.

It is good that you have started hand-carding. Vinobaji’s new attempt is actually a very old thing. It can be perfected by practice. Somebody gave a demonstration at a public meeting. He separated the cotton from the seeds and pulled the cotton on all sides with his hands, made slivers from the same and started spinning. He did the spinning on the takli. His yarn was very neat. One woman had started spinning without separating the seeds from the cotton. But I do not value all these things much. I value Vinobaji’s experiment very much because he says that he is doing it scientifically and from the point of view of social benefit. Hence, I would always be eager to know the results of the new experiment.

I understand about Gitai and other things. Just as Vinobaji has written about sleep to Balkobaji and made it into a beautiful article, he should also write about observing silence while walking and follow it in practice. I understand its significance, but even so I am not practising it in this tour. I am caught by desire and temptation. But I know that if one wants to live up to 125 years, desire, etc., should necessarily be given up. I shall not write anything more about it today.

I am glad that Kanam has gone to Paunar. But it is rather disconcerting that Vinoba should spare one hour for him.

It is good that Balvantsinha has gone to Kharangana. Let him continue the same way. It will do him good. I also infer from this that Hoshiari behn is doing well and she has completely regained her balance.

I understand about Om Prakash. He must be provided sufficient money for travel.

Vasumatibehn must be in good health.

Shantabehn will be all right. It would be nice if Hoshiari, Kailas, Shanta and others wrote to me.

1 Marathi verse rendering of Bhagavad Gita by Vinoba Bhave
2 Kanam Gandhi, son of Ramdas Gandhi
Let Chakrayya get himself trained there. Let him learn there. Everything is bound to be well if his mind and body are in good shape.

We had elaborate recitations from Gita on Ba’s death date\(^1\). And we did spinning. Some outsiders also did spinning with us for an hour.

I am not in the least interested in keeping that sadhu any more. I have realized too that my suggestion to keep him arose from unworthy attachment and temptation.

I shall see about the clock\(^2\). Remind me.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4540

197. LETTER TO MARJORIE SYKES

AS AT KHADI PRATISHTHAN,

SODEPUR (24 PARGANAS),

CAMP: CONTAI,

December 31, 1945

DEAR MARJORIE,

I must not attempt to write this myself in the boat that carries me along the canal going towards Contai. I must dictate the letter.

My best wishes for the season, if you think that a vocal effort in the direction is at all needed. Any such effort becomes formal if the heart wish is there.

About Charlie Andrews\(^3\) I fear nothing can be sent to you before I reach Sevagram, for the papers have to be searched. They have been distributed in the various subject files. Some may be in the file named after Andrews himself. This can be only searched by Pyarelal who is with me. The writing\(^4\) I shall do and it will be a pleasure.

---

1. 22nd of every month
2. Vide “Letter to Krishnachandra”, 18-12-1945
3. The addressee was preparing a biography of C. F. Andrews and during the eighteen months of its preparation she had held an “Andrews Memorial Chair” at Santiniketan.
4. The reference is to the foreword which Gandhiji actually wrote on January 12, 1947.
For this you will be in no hurry, for your own manuscript will take some time.

What I said and did in Santiniketan¹ was a duty performed. Of course, much is expected of you and I have no doubt that you will try your best to come up to the standard. More no one can do.

I have read fully Agatha’s letter. I had anticipated her. I am doing all I can to ensure helpfulness to the deputation² on behalf of the Congress. If, as the papers about report, the expenses of the deputation are to be found by India, it is a bad job. The deputation will lack the required grace. You can forward a copy of this letter or the relevant extract to Agatha. My letter may not reach her in time even if I succeed in dictating one.

Love.

Yours,

BAPU

MISS MARJORIE SYKES

SANTINIKETAN

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

198. LETTER TO BAL D. KALELKAR

CONTAI,

December 31, 1945

CHI. BAL,

I have your letter. It is worthy of you that you wish to serve Kaka or me; however, at present your dharma is to keep up what you are doing. If you do credit to what you have learnt you will have rendered service to both of us. We might have to consider what your dharma would be if there had been no one else to serve us; but all that is irrelevant in the present context. For the time being your knowledge is to be utilized for Birlaji’s work. In the end you have to let the masses utilize your knowledge without any thought of fame or fortune. I shall certainly like you to come and stay with me for some time at your own leisure.

¹ Vide “Speech at Foundation-Laying Ceremony”, 19-12-1945
² Of the members of the British Parliament; vide footnote on “Letter to Vallabhbhai Patel”, 3-1-1946

Blessings from
BAPU

SJT. BAL KALELkar

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

199. LETTER TO VAikUNTHLAL L. MEHTA

CONTAI,
December 31, 1945

Bhai Vaikunthbhai,
I got your postcard. You may gladly inform Khushal Shah1 of your disinclination to join the sub-committee, adding at the same time that, since Satis Babu has not tendered his resignation, the question of your joining does not arise.

Vaikunthbhai

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

200. LETTER TO GOPINATH BARDOLOI

CONTAI,
December 31, 1945

Bhai Bardoloi,
With great difficulty I can spare five days for Assam. You can have me freed for Assam but do not be tempted to keep me there too many days or take me to too many places. I had explained this to the man who had come from there. He too was convinced. The truth is that I am no longer fit for travelling. I had to visit Bengal, so I included Assam also. What else can I do? It does not look nice to go on refusing. I am receiving wires. Please save me.

Blessings from
BAPU

Bardoloi

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 K. T. Shah
201. SPEECH AT PRAYER MEETING

CONTAI,
December 31, 1945

Gandhiji congratulated the people of Contai on successfully rivalling other places in Bengal, where he had been of late, in maintaining exemplary discipline. He hoped that they would show the same spirit of discipline in the event of any other leader coming in their midst.

Gandhiji recalled how in 1934, when he was touring in Orissa in connection with the Harijan programme, a German Nazi, Herr Buto, had requested to be allowed to accompany him on his tour. He professed himself to be an ardent admirer of Hitler. Having heard how Gandhiji’s method was exactly contrary to Hitler’s and how in South Africa he had led a successful struggle against General Smuts with only a handful of Indians and no other weapons than that of non-violence, he was curious to meet the author of that movement and study his method at close quarters. Gandhiji had granted him his request in the hope of converting him to non-violence, but when Herr Buto saw the undisciplined behaviour of Orissa crowds, he told Gandhiji that he could now understand how a handful of Britishers in India could keep a nation of 400 millions in bondage. As a result of his experience, he had become sceptical of India ever winning freedom through non-violence. What India needed, he thought, was a Hitler. Gandhiji, however, had drawn a different moral from the same events. What India needed was discipline, no doubt, but not of the Hitlerite variety. It had to be of the non-violent type and, therefore, voluntary. His experience in Bengal during his present tour had confirmed him in his faith that the latter was infinitely superior to the former. If six and a quarter crores of Bengalis could show the same discipline which the present gathering had shown that evening, not even a thousand Hitlers would be able to deprive them of their freedom.

Commenting next on Gurudev’s song that had been sung, he observed that, in that song, a devotee pledges his soul to Truth and prays that Truth may always triumph. He prays further that Truth may give him strength so that neither misfortune nor fear of direct punishment may force him into untruth in thought, speech or action. For fulfilment of that pledge, he longs to lay down his life and all. If the song that had been sung came really from their heart and not merely from their lips, it ought to transmute their entire life and they should see the sovereignty of Truth in their lifetime.

Referring next to repression, followed by the havoc caused by cyclone and floods through which the people of Midnapore had recently passed, he told them that all that had filled his soul with anguish. The song which they had just sung was surely a message for them in their present misfortunes too.
As regards the triple problem facing them, namely, shortage of food, shortage of clothing and lack of drinking water, he told them that it would be easily solved if they could throw off their inertia. It was no use waiting idly for Government help. They must show capacity to help themselves. He was afraid that, so far, they had not done all that they might have. If all the people of Contai and the neighbouring areas took to spinning in right earnest, they could solve the problem of cloth shortage. He observed that their success in that would be followed by amelioration in other respects too.

Concluding, Gandhiji remarked that if the Government had recognized in their behaviour in 1942 the legitimate longing to be free and co-operated with them instead of trying to thwart them, the history of India would have been written differently. That was not to be. He, however, refused to shed a single tear over the past and wanted them to do likewise. The present was enough to claim their energy and attention, and that evening’s song indicated the spirit in which to approach the problem.

The Hindu, 3-1-1946

202. NOTE TO VALLABHBHAI PATEL

1945

You must flatly refuse to give any secret help. It would be altogether wrong. The fact will never remain secret. No one would or should accept such help openly. This whole thing needs to be carefully considered. Such important decisions should not be taken in haste or through hope of gain. Never mind if we are defeated. Let the British give them Pakistan if they wish.

[From Gujarati]

Bapuna Patro—2: Sardar Vallabhbahe, p. 285

203. LETTER TO AMRITLAL V. THAKKAR

MAIN CAMP: SODEPUR,

December 30, 1945/January 1, 1946

BAPA,

I got your letter addressed to Haribhau Phatak. I agree with your view. I wish to add this by way of clarification. It is desirable that non-Harijan boys may stay with Harijan boys but we cannot admit such boys as free boarders. They must pay their full expenses. If the building is ours then we must get the rent, and if the building is rented they must pay their share of the rent.

BAPU

[PS.]

CONTAI,

January 1, 1946

I shall see about Sucheta. It is in February, I believe.
I have been able to send the matter regarding Brijkrishna Chandiwala. It will depend on the reply to Mridula’s wire.

We may as well let Santhanam complete [the writing] about Ambedkar. If, after reading Rajaji’s booklet, he himself believes that he will be able to shed no new light, it will be a different story. If I get Rajaji’s booklet I shall go through it.

I understand about your tour. About mine it is what you read in the newspapers. I have been drinking cupfuls of delight.

Regarding the Harijan Fund, Kanaiyo will write to you.

The above is in reply to your letter of December 26. I have already sent one letter to you regarding Dharma Dev. I did not like the thing. I have left it to you to look into the matter. And now I have this second, alarming letter. I cannot say whether there is any substance in it. I can form no opinion on the basis of it, but all the same I must admit that I fear it may be true. Inquire into the matter and return Mirabehn’s letter.

BAPU

Enclosure: Mirabehn’s letter

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 1196

204. LETTER TO MANUEL S. FERNANDES

CONTAI,

January 1, 1946

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter.

In a case like yours no one will be able to advise you by post, and if you cannot leave your bed you must do the best you can in the

\(^1\) Ambedkar Refuted, written on Gandhiji’s advice to refute Ambedkar’s indictment of the Congress circumstances. The only general advice I can give is that you should live for some time on fruit juices such as orange, grape or pineapple, and have regular enema if your bowels do not move regularly and fully without causing any strain. This will do no harm and is likely to give you much benefit.
\(^2\) This is not traceable.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

SHRI MANUEL S. FERNANDES

ETHEL VILLA MOIRA

BARDEZ, GOA

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

205. LETTER TO S. P. MISRA

CONTAI, January 1, 1946

DEAR FRIEND,
I have your letter of 26th instant. So far as I can see, you must abide by your original promise.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

SHRI S. P. MISRA
KUTCHERY ROAD
LUCKNOW

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

206. LETTER TO M. J. SUNDARAM

CONTAI, January 1, 1946

DEAR FRIEND,
I have your letter and the pamphlet slandering Rajaji. I can only say that it is a disgraceful attempt packed with untruth and half truth which is worse than the first. He never did any harm and he

1 Reference is to the accusations of betrayal against him on two counts, viz., non-participation in the August movement and his stand regarding Pakistan; vide “Letter to L. N. Gopalswami”, 27-10-1945 remains today the same dear friend which he became in 1918, when I had the privilege of being his guest.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

SHRI M. J. SUNDARAM
43 ROYAPETTAH HIGH ROAD
MYLAPORE, MADRAS

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

207. LETTER TO PRAMILA

AS AT KHADI PRATISHTHAN,
SODEPUR (24 PARGANAS),
CAMP: CONTAI,
January 1, 1946

Your letter of 22.12.1945 is before me. I do not want any witnesses. I do not see how there can be any. I do know how I can help you. If you are pure in heart and have not responded even in thought, the man himself must be purified by your own purity. This is a universal law admitting of no exceptions. Therefore, you need no further directions from me, except that you should firmly realize that purity is its own shield against the vilest attack of the most vicious man.

If the Karnataka men are what you describe them to be, you can really become guardian of their virtues by means of your own.

You must quickly learn Hindustani. If you are industrious, you can pick up enough in one month’s time and make yourself perfect by practice.

SHRIMATI PRAMILA
GATE NO. 66
NR. POST OFFICE
FORT BELLARY

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar
208. LETTER TO MIRABEHN

SODEPUR,
January 1, 1946

I did send you a longish letter. I have asked S. to send you a copy. I have before me two letters from you. The one about Dharma-dev Shastri has been sent to Bapa. It would be a sad thing if he proves untrue. But you know what havoc rumour works. Your long letter covers many points. I do not wonder at the bitter experience about Vaidyas. Many of them are impostors. You should write to Chandiprasad about the person sent by him. I do hope you will come upon a good man. I would have none but a proved man. That that man has proved a failure is bad and that the cow he brought has proved a burden is also bad.

Then you do not get a good worker. How will you pull on? I do not know that all this does not point to retracing your steps or at least so ordering your life as to enable you to live there without anxiety or worry. I would advise you to have a servant or two to carry out your instructions and look after your pony and a cow if you must have one for giving you pure milk. I would even go without either and be content with the good milk you may buy there. You should move away to a cooler place in summer. This should be easy. Do not think of having a summer haunt for yourself. You must not use up the last penny and then feel compelled to come to Sevagram or go elsewhere as a failure which you will be if you have to give up your place after using the last pice. Do not regard this as a doleful picture. If it is unwarranted by facts as you see them, throw it away.

About P. I must not say anything. I am prejudiced. I only hope that God will be your guide in this as in everything else. Only in the latter case I might offer helpful criticism.

Of the atmosphere what you say is about right. But the things will shape themselves right. Anyway I am trying my best. Here I am daily witnessing a mighty change. I had this evening a meeting attended by probably a lac of people. I was able to have prayer in perfect silence. It would have done your soul good to witness such a scene. This commenced at Sodepur. My first meeting was somewhat boisterous. As days went on things were changed. And yet I build nothing on this. Only this experience is a balancing factor.
I do hope Punditji and his wife will come to you. My love to them.
Love.

BAPU

SHRI MIRABEHN
KISAN ASHRAM
MULDASPUR

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

209. LETTER TO VALLABHBHAI PATEL
MAIN CAMP: SODEPUR,
CONTAI,
January 1, 1946

BHAI VALLABHBHAI,

I got your letter, as also the wire. Wherever Satis Babu and Hemprabhadevi are in charge, there can be nothing wanting in perfection of arrangements. Therefore wherever I am, I regularly receive the post redirected to me from Sodepur. Just like you, Satis Babu officiates as wherever I go and so has he done here. “Here” means Contai (in Midnapore). Though we are in unfamiliar surroundings everything is so well arranged that I get the maximum possible free time. So why should my health suffer? I daily see the miracle wrought by prayer Thousands attend, the number sometimes reaching even a hundred thousand, but the prayers are peaceful. There is no noise and no jostling. This is an altogether new experience.

I have gone through the papers regarding Rajaji. I hope the matter has been settled. I say this because doubts persist in my mind. I get letters of that type. I reply to them only when I must.

What shall I say regarding your health? Dinshaw’s suggestion appeals to me. But if you use up the strength that you daily regain, believing that you are thereby doing service, what can be done?

About the samadhi the Aga Khan had sent a wire saying “Will Meet.” There has been no other communication. I understand his

1 A. P. I. report about the formation of the Madras Election Board which carried Sardar Patel’s telegram to Kamraj Nadar, a letter to P. C. Subramaniam and a statement by T. Prakasam.
2 The reference is to a proposal to acquire the land on which samadhis of Kasturba and Mahadev were built.

142 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
discussing the matter with you. The reply you gave regarding Jinnah was excellent. I am not attracted by the Aga Khan’s proposals. I am wholly opposed to such partition. More when we meet.

I am reaching Sodepur on the 3rd. On the 9th I leave for Assam, and shall be back to Sodepur most probably on the 18th. After that I shall be leaving for Madras on the 23rd. I have spared a maximum of two weeks for Madras. After spending a few days in Sevagram if you permit me I shall go to Poona. Otherwise I shall first go to Bardoli and then to Poona.

I had a letter from Bhai Vaikunth saying that Balasaheb and you and also Deo are pressing him. Do get him in as member. The rest after I return.

_Blessings from_

BAPU

[From Gujarati]

Bapuna Patro—2: Sardar Vallabh bhai ne, pp. 285-8

210. LETTER TO AMRITLAL T. NANAVATI

CONTAI,

January 1, 1946

CHI. AMRITLAL,

I have your letter. Ramdas has left. It is as well. But I now realize my mistake. Even though you yourself were willing I ought not to have put his burden on you. In the event of his not being taken care of or his not submitting to being taken care of the way he was, I should have had him taken back to Mysore or allowed him to stay in whatever position he was. Wouldn’t I have done the same to my own son? I should also have considered your unsuspecting nature. This I did not do and entrusted him to your care. Dasappa was certainly at fault but it was my responsibility to rectify the mistake. Dasappa had pledged that he would leave Ramdas to my keeping. There is no

1 Vaikunthlal L. Mehta
2 B. G. Kher
3 Shanker Rao Deo
4 Of the Bombay Legislative Assembly; vide also “Leter to Vaikunthlal L. Mehta”, 1-1-1946
5 Ramdas Dasappa
6 H. C. Dasappa
dearth of people making pledges, but those who keep them are rare. Well whatever was destined has happened; I am not going to entertain Ramdas any more.

May your tour—and Kakasaheb’s—be a success, and may he keep up his health.

I think you can manage the examination work in Wardha in addition to your work in Gujarat. Again, if Kakasaheb’s responsibility comes to be entrusted to you his blessings will give you the strength to cope with it too. All the same let me warn you that you must not do anything at the cost of your work in Gujarat, because if the work in Gujarat suffers I am certainly going to take you to task and Kakasaheb, too, will take you to task because you took up the Gujarat work in the nick of time and you have no right to let it break up.

Blessings from

BAPU

SJT. AMRITLAL NANAVATI
C/O SJT. MAGANBHAI DESAI
GUJARAT VIDYAPITH, AHMEDABAD

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

211. LETTER TO VAIKUNTHLAL L. MEHTA
MAIN CAMP: SODEPUR,
CONTAI,
December 1, 1946

BHAI VAIKUNTH,

I have your letter. I accept most of your arguments. Aren’t you a dweller of Vaikunth? Or are you its king? But whether you are a simple dweller in Vaikunth or its king or its gift, there is no doubt that you are a saviour at need. If, therefore, it is found necessary that you should go in order to help them out of their difficulties, we shall think over the matter.

My tour of Bengal and Assam will end on the 20th at the latest. After that I leave for Madras on the 23rs. There I will spend 15 days at the most. After that I will go to Sevagram. We shall have, therefore, enough time to think over the matter. Offer your name as a candidate

1 Vishnu’s abode

THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
for the Assembly, on the condition, however, that you will not have to spend a single pie and will not have to go begging for votes. It may not perhaps be possible to apply this rule in all cases, but it should be applied in yours.

Blessings from
BAPU

212. LETTER TO DINSHAW K. MEHTA

CONTAI,
January 1, 1946

CHI. DINSHAW.

I have your letter of December 28, 1945. I hope you got my letter of December 28 sent by airmail. Your letter demands immediate reply and so I am sending this right away.

It will not be becoming for you to admit some patients privately in your Poona clinic. It does not at all look right that the same person should run a charitable department and a profit-making one. You may if you wish retain the Bombay clinic; I have agreed to put up with it. The expenditure at Poona is my responsibility from January and I have made an arrangement for that. In the end the monthly expenditure at Poona ought not to be as much as Rs. 3,500 but if it is, so be it. If we render service worth that amount it will not irk me. At the moment the main question is whether you may open a separate profit-making clinic in Poona. I have expressed my opinion in this regard.

What you write about Gulbai is somewhat strange. She is at present with child, so we must patiently put up with her whims. I shall certainly write to her not to meddle with the affairs of the hospital.

DR. DINSHAW MEHTA
NATURE CURE CLINIC
6 TODDYWALA ROAD
POONA

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
213. LETTER TO PURNIMA BANNERJEE

January 1, 1946

CHI. PURNIMA,

I have your letter. It is straightforward. I do not want to dampen your interest. You have the aptitude for it. Nor would I consider your going into the Assembly a bad thing. After all someone has to go there. What I mean is that neither you nor anyone else can ride two horses at the same time. A similar case from Malabar has come to me. In that also I have given the same opinion. The lady¹ in question is competent—perhaps as much as you are. Bapa is favourably inclined. But I have advised her that if she goes into the Assembly our work will certainly suffer because working for rural women is not a small thing at all. We have to respect the feelings of those women. It is a drawback if they cannot go and live in villages but all of us suffer from that drawback. I am confident that you are rural at heart. If that is true, in my view your place is at Wardha. It is surprising that you do not have anything more to give me. I have a vague impression that it has appeared in the newspapers. Even then I enclose a copy and should like you to send in your acceptance. If you cannot, then suggest the name of some other woman.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI PURNIMA BANNERJEE
41 GEORGETOWN
ALLAHABAD

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

214. LETTER TO R. K. PATIL

CONTAI,
January 1, 1946

BHAO PATIL,

I have your letter. What you have written is correct. I can say that I had forgotten about the change of air and with that all the things associated with it.

¹ Kuttimalu Amma; vide “Speech at Prayer Meeting”, 24-12-1945
You can give your name for the Provincial election on the condition that you would neither beg for votes from the electorate nor spend any money. If you can get elected on this condition you may enter the Assembly. We shall see about the rest. We shall think over it when I come. I expect to reach there in the second week of February.

SHRI R. K. PATIL

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

215. LETTER TO SHANKERRAO DEO

CONTAI,
January 1, 1946

BHAI SHANKERRAO DEO,

I received your letter, and also Vaikunthbhai’s at the same time. I have written to him to seek nomination for the election. Accepting presidency is a different thing. I believe that that can be easily decided by February. There is a good deal of substance in Vaikunthbhai’s opposition and for that reason the decision about the presidency has been postponed. He has my approval for seeking election. Only I have written to him that he should see that he does not have to spend money or beg for votes from the electorate. If people want him it will be enough to give his name. We see quite a number of such instances in British elections. We of course have such instances here, too.

SHRI SHANKERRAO DEO
LAKSHMI NRISHINH BHAVAN
SHIVAJI NAGAR
POONA 5

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
216. LETTER TO RAMAMURTI

CONTAL,
January 1, 1946

BHAISHRI RAMAMURTI,

I have your letter. Do what Prof. Kumarappa wants you to do. I cannot address a meeting on my way to Madras.

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

SHRI RAMAMURTI

From a copy of the Hindi Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

217. LETTER TO CHINNARAM THAPAR

CONTAL,
January 1, 1946

BHAI CHINNARAM,

I have your letter. I neither take any interest in the Assembly elections nor keep track of them.

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

SHRI CHINNARAM THAPAR
VICE PRESIDENT DISTRICT CONGRESS COMMITTEE
LYALLPUR (PUNJAB)

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

218. LETTER TO GOVINDDAS

CONTAL,
January 1, 1946

BHAI GOVINDDAS,

I have your letter. These days I do not give any messages to newspapers and I have begun to believe that a noble venture needs no message. The purity of the endeavour is in itself a true message.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI GOVINDDASJI
RAJA GOKULDAS PALACE
JABALPUR

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

148 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
219. LETTER TO INAYATULLAH KHAN

CONTAI
January 1, 1946

BHAI SAHEB,

It is good you wrote in Urdu. I received the letter only today in Contai. I have written to you that I am not a member of the Congress. I cannot write anything on behalf of the Congress. Only Maulana Saheb can do so. I have already expressed my opinion that no one is going to accept your constitution. I personally do not accept it.

Write to me at the Sodepur address.

M. K. GANDHI

From a copy of the Urdu: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

220. DISCUSSION WITH CONGRESS WORKERS

January 1, 1946

Gandhiji’s advice to ladies was that they could serve the country even by doing household duties. Generally, they hankered after making their daughters fit for marriage and sons for earning. Such families could not be said to be serving the country. Married men and women could give much time for the service of the country even after looking after their children and doing household duties. Instead, they passed their days in enjoyment of life and thus ended the span of life. There were some who were so addicted to pleasure that they used contraceptives.

Asked how women whose husbands were imprisoned could serve the country, Gandhiji said that they should no doubt spin. But this might not be sufficient for their living. They should take to some means of earning money. They could still work for the country. Under no circumstances, Gandhiji emphasized, should women earn their livelihood by sacrificing their honesty and purity. Mahatmaji was faced with the problem of spending annually one crore and 25 lakhs of rupees of the Kasturba Fund. Although he was trying hard to utilize the money in the best possible way still enough women workers could not be found.

Gandhiji advised women living in towns to serve the villages. He appealed to them to search their hearts whether they were really ready and then begin work when they found response in their hearts.

Addressing the students, he said that the question which was put to him was not new. How the students could serve Harijans should not have been asked so late. If they were ready to serve the Harijan they could easily do it. They could go to villages, mix with the Harijan and educate them.

As regards inter-dining and intercaste marriage, Gandhiji said that so far as he understood the mind of the Congress he knew there was no difference of opinion about inter-dining but he thought that so long as one could not think himself one of the Harijans the poison of untouchability could not be removed. If anybody was not prepared to marry a Harijan he found no occasion of giving his blessings to that marriage. The question of marrying a Harijan was not so difficult but the difficulty was only mental.

Replying to the question whether girl students should have a separate organization, Gandhiji said although the life of men and women was not quite different so long a woman remained a woman there might be necessity for a separate organization for their work. In his Ashram men and women lived together and worked together, still there might be such necessity.

Discussing the constructive programme, Gandhiji said that besides the charkha there were several other items in his fifteenfold programme and women could take to any of them as they liked. Women could take a large share in the freedom movement of the country as they always had done specially in Midnapore and other places of India during the Salt Satyagraha. So he thought that it was needless to question what share the women could take in national movement.

As regards reorganization and rehabilitation scheme¹ Mahatmaji said that the people and workers should depend more on their own strength an endeavour than on the Government. Regarding the drainage problem he had talks with the Governor Mr. R. G. Casey and was trying to do whatever was possible in that respect.² If they could take up any item of work themselves and could fulfil it other things would follow.

Amrita Bazar Patrika, 3-1-1946

221. SPEECH AT PRAYER MEETING

CONTAI, January 1, 1946

Thousands of Hitlers would neither be able to win their hearts nor take away their freedom if six and a half crores of Bengalis lived peacefully, as they were beha-

¹A scheme for the reorganization of the Congress and the rehabilitation of cyclone victims entailing an expenditure of about Rs. 11,13,000 was placed before Gandhiji by the members of the Executive Committee of the Contai Sub-Divisional Congress Committee, members of the Keleghal Drainage Committee, women workers, students and Harijan.

²Vide Letter to R. G. Casey”, 8-12-1945
ving at the prayer meeting, and carried out all instructions given to them.

He was very happy during his present visit, because the people made no noise and remained quiet. He recalled his visit to Orissa some time ago when people gathered in large numbers and shouted and stopped his car. He was accompanied then by a Nazi who had arrived at Wardha from South Africa. This Nazi noticed the incidents and told Gandhiji that he did not like Gandhiji’s way of non-violence. Hitler’s method, he said, was the best, and if Gandhiji wanted peaceful swaraj he would not succeed.

Referring to Midnapore’s sufferings, Gandhiji said that the area was still suffering. They had no cloth to wear, no food to eat and no water to drink. There were two ways of removing these sufferings, one by Government relief and the other through their own exertion. If they were to be fit for swaraj or wanted to get swaraj, it was their duty to solve these difficulties by their own exertion.

Success in one effort brought them further strength and this strength would help them to succeed in other things. The Government of the country would come in their hands. He had no doubt about it.

If troubles like those of the flood and famine days came, they should all stand together and face the danger.

Gandhiji suggested that teachers, both in schools and colleges, should understand the real significance of mass prayer and teach it to students. There should be no compulsion in any case, and those students who wanted to join prayers willingly, might do so. There was a magnetic power in prayer. As magnet attracted iron, so would prayer attract all, especially students.

Gandhiji said that he was told that they came to hear his voice and not to join the prayer. If it was so then he would be very sorry. He wished that they understood the real significance of prayer and felt that through prayer one could get one’s desired things.

The Hindu, 3-1-1946, and Amrita Bazar Patrika, 3-1-1946

---

1 Herr Buto; vide “Speech at Prayer Meeting”, 31-12-1945

2 This paragraph is taken from The Hindu. What follows is reproduced from Amrita Bazar Patrika.
222. LETTER TO REGINALD REYNOLDS

AS AT SEVAGRAM,
January 1, [1946]¹

DEAR ANGAD²,

I have your letter received by me early morning on New Year’s day. I am penning these lines in the evening before retiring.

I fancy that I wrote to you some time ago. Your letter just represents you as I have known you. Of course it is good you have returned to your old love. We should all be glad to greet you back, even if it be for a short time, if you do succeed in coming this side.

Agatha³ is in India. I hope to see her soon.

With love and all good wishes.

BAPU⁴

From a photostat: C.W. 4546.Courtesy: Swarthmore College Peace Collection

223. LETTER TO NARAHARI D. PARISH

SODEPUR, CONTAI,
January 2, 1946

CHI. NARAHARI.

You have asked a question in the letter addressed to Sushila-behn. The original draft did contain a reference to underground activities, too. Though it was dropped, the general view was that they should have no place in non-violence. I think what you have read in Jawaharlal’s statement is different from what I have. My impression is that he had described underground activities as incompatible with non-violence. I may be mistaken, for I am a hurried reader. Whatever the likely consequences, we should cling to our view if we are convinced about its correctness beyond the shadow of a doubt.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: S.N. 9139

¹ The source has “1945”, evidently a slip.
² Character in the Ramayana who acted as Rama’s messenger to Ravana. Gandhiji had given this name to the addressee when he carried his letter to Lord Irwin in 1930; vide “Letter to Lord Irwin”, 2-3-1930
⁴ The letter bears the following postscript by Amrit Kaur: “I gave your news to Bapu and he was so glad to have it. I do hope your passport will soon be forthcoming.”
CHI. SHIVABHAI,

Your letter is good. Instead of replying ‘Yes’ or ‘No’ to your questions, I think I shall be able to explain my point of view more clearly if I state my own ideas. If any institution has not become self-supporting on the lines suggested by me, the fact can be interpreted in two ways: either that the workers were not efficient enough, or that my calculations were erroneous. If any institution has not succeeded so far, I will begin to doubt only my calculations. But Probably you will be able to see that both these inferences are irrelevant. I have advocated self-reliance in three matters: (1) for the workers in villages, (2) for basic education and (3) for institutions. In regard to the first, my view is that any individual or family who settles in a village must earn their subsistence by working in the village itself. For instance, the person may start some industry—that is, without entering into competition with anybody else engaged in a similar industry—or may join an existing industry. If the person becomes popular with the local population, the people themselves will meet his needs. In either case I will describe the worker as self-supporting. (2) As regards basic education, I am of the view that the rent of the school building, the teacher’s salary and the running expenses of the school should be met from the pupils’ labour during the seven years of their stay in school. I am doubtful about including the expense incurred on the pupils’ food in the scheme of self-reliance. Third, any institution will be considered to be self-supporting if the people for whose benefit it is run provide its expenses. For instance, if the money for Indian Christian institutions comes from America, then the Indian Christians will have proved their incapacity. Those institutions must be supported by the local Christians. I think this should answer all your doubts. But the three rules. I have suggested should not be interpreted to mean that any activities which do not conform to them should be treated as useless and be wound up. I have thought deeply and long about our institutions and formulated a code on the basis of experience. We shall be able to render better service to the extent we are able to live up to it, and will not become a burden on others. I think it would be dangerous to take the prevailing prices as the basis for any calculations. is, if you produce cotton, foodgrains, vegetables, fruits and milk on your own land and consume them, need you concern yourself with their market price? I would exclude for the pre-sent the expenditure on cows, seed and bullocks. I think on the basis of this you will yourself be able to answer the questions you have raised. If you have any more questions yet to ask, you may do so.

Can Maharaj\(^1\) be said to be completely cured? I hope Gangabehn\(^2\) is doing well.

_Blessings from_
_BAPU_

From a photostat of the Gujarati: S. N. 9522. Also C. W. 441. Courtesy: Shivabhai G. Patel

---

225. LETTER TO J. P. BHANSALI

CONTAI,
JANUARY 2, 1946

CHI. BHANSALI,

If you resort to fasting to cut down your weight or have to go on a fast for any other reason it is a matter which you and I need to consider. The ideal position, according to me, is that one taking a balanced diet should not find it necessary to resort to fasting nor make any changes in diet. This would be the ideal position. My ambition for you is that you should reach that stage. You certainly have the required strength. Your diet should be so adjusted that your body works like a machine. After all, is not our body only a machine given us?

I hope to reach there by the middle of February.

_Blessings from_
_BAPU_

SJT. BHANSALIBHAI
SEVAGRAM

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

---

\(^1\) Ravishankar Vyas
\(^2\) Gangabehn Vaidya
226. LETTER TO CHARUCHANDRA BHANDARI

SODEPUR, CONTAI,
January 2, 1946

Bhai Charubabu,

I have just been able to reach your cheque. There was some confusion also. The only satisfaction is that nobody has suffered any loss. When all the money is to be spent there, why should I keep this cheque with me? So I am returning it. You must be having some committee. And would it not be for the committee to spend the amount? Please let me know who are on the committee. Also send me the budget of the expenditure so that I may pass it after checking it. However, if you want that the money should remain with me and that I should remit it as and when required, please return the cheque to me. And as and when you write and send me the budget I shall send the money. Do as you like.

Tomorrow I will go to Sodepur and from there to Assam on 8th. Please write to me at Sodepur.

Blessings from
BAPU

Enclosure: Two cheques

From a photostat of the Hindi: G. N. 8700

227. LETTER TO SHYAMLAL

CONTAI,
January 2, 1946

Bhai Shyamlal,

I have your letter. You can belong to any category. I have nothing to say if the money is given up after due deliberation. Public criticism about such things should not be given any importance. What do they know about our condition and about our means? I enclose herewith what you have sent for my approval duly signed.

SHRI SHYAMLAL
KASTURBA GANDHI RASHTRIYA SMARAK NIDHI
BAJAJWADI, WARDHA

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
228. SPEECH AT VOLUNTEERS RALLY

January 2, 1946

Gandhiji, while taking the salute of the volunteers, asked whether they belonged to any permanent corps or were recruited temporarily. On being told that they were recruited on the occasion of his visit there, Gandhiji said that they should have a permanent volunteer corps for their own good and for the service of the people. The volunteers, he said, should be wedded to the cult of non-violence and should serve the people and not harass them.

They should spin charkha regularly and know the rules of cleanliness. That means, Gandhiji emphasized, that if they found dirt anywhere they should try themselves to clean it. They should look at every human being with an eye of love and should do their best to alleviate the sufferings of the people. Their whole life should be dedicated to prayer and they should realize that prayer would instill a power in them which would enable them to face anything.

Gandhiji put a number of questions to Sj. Sudhir Chandra Das, G.O.C. of volunteers and asked them why they did not have uniform dress. Knowing that their volunteer group was temporary and due to shortage of time they could not have uniform dress, Gandhiji told them that volunteers must get such instructions so that wherever and whenever they were required they all must be in the same uniform.

Amrita Bazar Patrika, 3-1-1946

229. DISCUSSION WITH MIDNAPORE POLITICAL WORKERS

Contai, January 2, 1946

GANDHI: How long would you take to learn it then?

A WORKER: One year.

G. Since Hindustani is one out of the 18 items included in the constructive programme and since the carrying out of all these items in their fulness is swaraj, how long at this rate would you take to attain swaraj?

In independent India, continued Gandhiji, they would need to have a lingua franca which could be understood by everybody. He was an admirer of the English

---

1 A report of this discussion, which was attended by 500 workers of Midnapore District, was sent to the Press by Pyarelal.

2 There were many among the audience who did not know Hindustani.
language, but it could never take the place of the national language. There was a saying in English to the effect that matter out of place was dirt. English had its place in international affairs. But he could not tolerate the introduction of English in our day-to-day business, in our domestic life. The lingua franca of India could only be Hindustani, i.e., the language written in Urdu and Devanagari scripts and so simple that it could be understood without any difficulty.

The workers promised that they would all learn it within six months. After that Gandhiji took up the questions which had been submitted to him before the meeting.

The first question invited suggestion as to how they could make a success of the constructive programme and how they could overcome the obstacle in their way.

Replying, Gandhiji enumerated the various items of the constructive programme. The spinning-wheel, though he gave it the central place, must not be on the brain. There were 17 other items. Communal unity was one of them. Did they regard all communities as one? Then they had to get rid of untouchability root and branch. Similarly, they must realize the importance and place of the mother tongue. Their mother tongue alone could be the language for the domestic affairs and day-to-day business. He was in his 77th year and yet he had set his heart on learning Bengali. He hoped to learn to read Bengali before he left Midnapore. Nothing would give him greater pleasure than to be able to talk to them in Bengali. He could hope to touch their hearts through Bengali, never through English.

Then there were the Adivasis (called Aboriginals). The 1935 Act had separated them from the rest of the inhabitants of India and had placed the “excluded areas” under the Governor’s direct administration. It was a shame that they had allowed them to be treated like that. It was up to them to make the Adivasis feel one with them. The other items were prohibition, village industries, basic education, adult education, women’s education in health and hygiene, economic equality, kisans, labour, students, and village sanitation. The last was most important and at the same time most difficult. He almost despaired of our people ever observing the rules of sanitation voluntarily when he saw the riverside fouled without hesitation even by those who should know better. He continued:

The execution of the constructive programme in its entirety means more than swaraj. It means Ramrajya, Khudai Sultanat or the divine kingdom. I am thirsting after such Ramrajya. My God does not reside up above. He has to be realized on earth. He is here, within you, within me. He is omnipotent and omnipresent. You need not think of the world beyond. If we can do our duty here, the ‘beyond’ will take care of itself. This necessarily includes political independence.

Such independence could only be achieved through non-violence and truth exemplified in constructive work. The Working Committee had realized the importance of constructive work. Even Subhas Babu would admit his (the speaker’s) thesis. He did not believe that Subhas Babu was dead. His feeling was that he was hiding somewhere and would appear at the right moment. He admired his courage and patriotism. But he differed from him with regard to the means. He was convinced that real freedom, freedom for the man in the street, could never be achieved through armed revolt.

For him, the parliamentary programme was only a means of promoting constructive work. The Congress had adopted it because they did not want self-seekers and enemies of India’s freedom to go to the legislatures and hinder the struggle for freedom. He would feel happy if they sent patriotic scavengers to the legislatures. Their real job would be to keep the undesirables out.

If India won its freedom through truth and non-violence she would not only point the way to all the exploited Asiatic nations, she would become a torch-bearer for the Negro races that inhabit the vast continent of Africa, and even to Europe. The smaller nationalities lived in fear of losing their freedom. In fact they had no freedom. India’s independence through any other means could never have that result.

He had heard harrowing tales of what the women of Midnapore had suffered. The shame was not theirs but the menfolk’s. God would take them to task for having been helpless witnesses to those atrocities. The only atonement they could make was whole-hearted execution of the constructive programme.

Another friend asked him what he thought of the class struggle which was inevitable in labour work.

Gandhiji’s reply was that class struggle there had been always. It could be ended if the capitalists voluntarily renounced their role and became all labourers. The other way was to realize that labour was real capital, in fact the maker of capital. What the two hands of the labourer could achieve the capitalist would never get with all his gold and silver. Could anyone live on gold? But labour had to be made conscious of its strength. It had to have in one hand truth and in the other non-violence, and it would be invincible. Labour and capital, classes and masses, are as old as the hills. The whole trouble arises from the fact that neither labour nor those who are guiding the labour movement realize the dignity and strength of labour. It is like the lame leading the blind.

Gandhiji was asked about Karl Marx. He got the opportunity and privilege of reading Capital, he told them, whilst he was in detention. He entertained high regard for his great industry and acumen. But he could not believe in his conclusions. He had no faith in violence being able to usher in non-violence. World thought was moving and was outdating Karl Marx. That, however, did not detract from the merit of the great man’s labours.

1 Subhas Chandra Bose was reported to have died in an aeroplane accident while on his way to Tokyo on August 18, 1945.

Gandhiji concluded by saying that non-co-operation and civil disobedience in terms of swaraj were not to be thought of without substantial constructive effort. Either without the latter will be body without soul, as good as dead.

Amrita Bazar Patrika 5-1-1946

230. SPEECH AT PRAYER MEETING

CONTAI,

January 2, 1946

Summing up his experience of prayer gathering in Contai and elsewhere in Bengal, Gandhiji said that he had been noticing phenomenal changes in behaviour of crowds taking place before his very eyes. He was not surprised at it. Bengal had given birth to that prince of devotees, Chaitanya, and a host of other God-intoxicated saints. He longed for the day when the example of the crowds would be taken up by the whole of India.

He had felt overwhelmed by the consideration that had been shown to him, by ensuring him as much peace and quiet as was humanly possible, and the way in which he had resolved to repay his debt of gratitude was by devoting every moment of leisure accruing therefrom to learning Bengali. He had been doing that ever since he came to Bengal most systematically. He hoped that the love for all Indian languages which that resolve symbolized, would fill them too.

Before coming to the meeting he had been told that carcasses of about 700 cattle and 300 human beings, out of many more which had perished in a cyclone, lay buried indiscriminately together where the prayer gathering was held. Dust had returned to dust, and there was no mark to tell the tale, as Gurudev had observed in one of his songs. God mercifully hides man’s tragedy on earth under a mantle of greenery. Nevertheless, it betrayed lack of human feeling on the part of those who were responsible for it. The common practice was to give to each dead body a separate burial and the ground in which the burial took place became consecrated ground. This was where cremation was not in vogue. While, therefore, he respected sentiment, he did not make a fetish of it and he even derived satisfaction from the fact that common calamity had united men and cattle in death, thereby symbolizing the essential unity of all life. Thought of it ought to humble man’s pride and bring home to him the insignificance of human existence with its illusions, which held him prisoner in their net till man had learned to break through this net of illusions and make the fulfilment of one’s dharma the pole star in life’s pilgrimage.

1 In Mahatma Gandhi—The Last Phase, “Petition to Lord Ripon”, 14-7-1894, the rest of the paragraph reads: “. . . hold him prisoner. If man learned to break through this net of illusions and made the fulfilment of his dharma the Pole Star of his life’s pilgrimage, it would considerably lessen the burden under which the world is groaning.”

Explaining the significance of prayer Gandhiji told them that it ought to result in self-purification and it ought to transmute their entire conduct. If anybody thought that it gave him licence to do as he liked during the rest of the day, he deceived himself and others. That was a travesty of the true meaning of prayer.

Commenting on the song that had been sung at prayer, Gandhiji said that in it the devotee prayed to God that he might be able to see Him face to face. Through single obeisance it betokened an indefinable strength of faith in man. With such faith nothing in the world would be impossible of attainment. Faith in God to be real, however, had to find expression in work. In his opinion the eighteenfold constructive programme which he had placed before the country was prayer through work since it was based on the principles of truth and ahimsa. If they fulfilled that programme in its fulness not only would they be free, but their example would serve as a beacon light to all the oppressed and exploited people of the earth.

Amrita Bazar Patrika, 4-1-1946

231. LETTER TO MADALASA

ON THE STEAMER TO SODEPUR,
January 3, 1946

CHI. MADALASA,

I have your letter. My previous letter seems to have gone astray.
You have no reason at all to feel depressed. I have no time today to write more. I have to deal with the rest of the mail.
Get well soon.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 5856
232. LETTER TO VALLABHBHAI PATEL

ON THE STEAMER TO SODEPUR,

January 3, 1946

BHAI VALLABHBHAI,

I got your note. I have telegraphed as follows:

“Leaving Bengal 20th and Madras about February 8. Very anxious to go Poona before Bardoli. Will middle March be suitable Bardoli?”

The Bengal programme is not exceeding the limits I had set. According to me much work has been done here. The result is in the hands of God. I am dictating this letter in a boat. I shall reach Sodepur this evening. This letter will be posted from there tomorrow morning. I have to go to Assam on the 8th after four days in Sodepur. The Assam tour, including travelling, will take eight days. I shall then go Sodepur and thence to Madras on the 23rd. I must reach Madras on that date at the latest. We must, therefore, leave Sodepur on the 21st. In the wire I have mentioned 20th.

I suppose I shall meet the people' from Britain in Bombay, Poona or Wardha. It would be unseemly to speak disparagingly of them. There would be no harm whatever if we use kind words. There are some good men among them also. I do not see much point in condemning them in advance.

You will have received my previous letter. After I take charge of the work in Poona, I must give some time there. I have therefore suggested the middle of March for my Bardoli visit. But I shall be guided by your wishes in the matter. I presume that you will definitely not keep me in Bardoli for more than 15 days. You may even release me from the promise to go there. There is also the possibility that you yourself will be engrossed in the Congress affairs. I take it that you will call me to Bardoli only if my presence there is necessary. This is just to let you know how my mind is working. The final decision must be yours. After all you are the Sardar. Are you not? That too of Bardoli. And now of India.

Blessings from

BAPU

[From Gujarati]

1 British Parliamentary delegation headed by Robert Richards. It arrived in India on January 5, 1946, ostensibly to make personal contacts with the political conditions and leaders of India but actually to “reduce” Krishna Menon’s influence. It left on February 10, 1946. (Vide Transfer of Power, Vol. VI, p. 300)
233. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

ON THE STEAMER TO SODEPUR,

January 3, 1946

CHI. MUNNALAL,

I got your letter of December 30, 1945, on January 3, 1946, at Contai. I read it in the boat and am dictating this reply, too, in the boat. I understand what you say regarding khadi. If I can know how much will be available there, I can think and decide immediately. I am going to supply as much as is needed.¹

I can understand the Doctor [Dinshaw] not being satisfied with my reply. But I am helpless.

I will try to return as early as I can. I will arrange about the Bank account. I will arrange for the transfer of the money, too, as soon as I reach Calcutta.

We should certainly admit all patients who will mix with the poor. Nobody can be given a special room merely because he is rich. Will the patients who wish to be admitted be paying ones? If there are any, apart from our own people, who can mix with the others and observe the rules, I will not object to their being admitted.

The equipment at Sinhagadh has been covered by the Trust and I, therefore, believe that we can use it for our purpose and transfer any item from there.

If the Doctor thinks otherwise, I should like to know his point of view.

We have no intention of starting any other centre outside Poona in the immediate future. I will write to Vanamala.

Kanchan is with me in this very boat. She has got a slight cold but is in fine spirits.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 8611. Also C.W. 7200. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

¹Vide also “Letter to Munnalal G. Shah”. 23-12-1945
234. LETTER TO RAGHUNATH S. DHOTRE

ON THE STEAMER TO SODEPUR,

January 3, 1946

CHI. DHOTRE,

I think I told you to resume the remittances to Ramachandran. If not, please understand from this letter that the money is to be paid from October 1945. That makes three months to date. Send a sum to cover this period and later send a hundred rupees every month. The address is: Shri G. Ramachandran, c/o Gandhi Ashram, Tiruchengodu.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

235. LETTER TO SACHINDRA NARAYAN ROY

ON THE STEAMER TO SODEPUR,

January 3, 1946

BHAI SACHINDRA NARAYAN,

I have your letter. We can achieve everything by love. Love can never be patient nor can it ever be angry. If you behave with Muslim brethren in this spirit their anger will go.

PROF. SACHINDRA NARAYAN ROY
31 SHAH SAHIB’S LANE
DACCA

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

236. LETTER TO SHRIMAN NARAYAN

ON THE STEAMER TO SODEPUR,

January 3, 1946

CHI. SHRIMAN,

I have your letter. I returned your letter on the very day I received it after making corrections.¹ Today I am replying to the letter of December 30, 1945. I am on the steamer, going to Sodepur.

It is difficult to fix the date of my return. I am considering whether I should go first to Poona or Wardha. Even so I shall try my level best to reach Wardha on February 8.

¹Vide “Letter to Shrimab Narayan”, 9-12-1945
If the 12th is not Monday, fix it for that date, otherwise fix it for the 11th at 2 o’clock. Let the venue be Sevagram.

As regards the Provincial Assembly you may take it that I am not interested. But if you are inclined that way and have the ability for it, and if all others agree, please do go.

Blessings from
BAPU

[From Hindi]

Panchven Putrako Bapuke Ashirvad, p. 309

237. LETTER TO V. S. SRINIVASA SASTRI

SODEPUR
January 4, 1946

DEAR BROTHER,

Jagadisan tells me you are again unwell, so much so that you have given yourself only two months more on this earth. Why will you not say with the millions that you are like them in the hands of God and refuse to feel that you are about to leave your friends. I do not know if I have clearly expressed myself. Slowly though surely I am going through the doubly interesting collection made by good Jagadisan.

Love.

Yours,
LITTLE BROTHER

From a photostat: C.W. 10524. Courtesy: S. R. Venkataraman. Also G.N. 8825

---

1 The meeting of Hindustani Prachar Sabha
2 He died on April 17.
3 The reference is to the collection of Sastri’s speeches and writings on Gokhale published under the title My Master Gokhale, to which Gandhiji, wrote the Foreword; vide “Foreword to My Master Gokhale”, 20-1-1946.
238. LETTER TO L. F. PHILLIPS

SODEPUR,
January 4, 1946

DEAR FRIEND,

You must rely upon your merits, not upon certificates or recommendations.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

SHRI L. F. PHILLIPS
99 STEPHEN HOUSE
DALHOUSIE SQUARE
CALCUTTA

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

239. LETTER TO THE AGA KHAN

KHADI PRATISHTHAN, SODEPUR,
24, PARGANAS,
January 4, 1946

BHAJ SAHEB,

I got your affectionate letter of December 30, 1945, yesterday at Contai. Then I took a steamer and reached Sodepur this morning from where I am dictating this. To you at least I should write in Gujarati, shouldn’t I? Indeed it should be a matter of shame for us to write in English.

I hope to reach Wardha around the 8th of February. Then ten days later I shall leave for Poona. Then I shall do as you desire. If you are in Bombay we shall meet there or I shall suit myself to your convenience in Poona. Maulana Saheb of course will not be present. We shall think over it when we meet.

I understand about the samadhi. The facilities you suggest will suffice for me. It is not my desire that people should be able to visit the palace any time of the day. Those who go there out of devotion or respect should go by the prescribed route and at the appointed hour. I shall then take it that its sanctity is respected.

I shall certainly appreciate it if you will have the samadhi built and it will become you. I have never considered marble. I shall be content if something lasting is built. Mahadev and Kasturba had become villagers; they lived in huts. Shouldn’t their samadhi be simple? I shall draw a plan but let us discuss it when we meet.

May your Diamond Jubilee be smooth and auspicious.

Yours,

M. K. Gandhi

His Highness The Aga Khan

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

240. LETTER TO K. F. NARIMAN

Sodepur,
January 4, 1946

Bhai Nariman,

I have your wire. I am very happy. But do not lay down any conditions. Remain a true soldier of the Congress.

Blessings from

M. K. Gandhi

Shri Kaikhushru Nariman

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

241. LETTER TO MRIDULA SARABHA1

Sodepur,
January 4, 1946

Chhi. Mridula,1

I have your letter. You have done well in giving me all the news. I am dictating this reply in a hurry because I have sat down to the task just now soon after arriving here by the steamer. It is morning.

The matter regarding Saraladevi has now been resolved. She will continue to be an Agent.2 You will then be able to do more work yourself as well as give all help to Saraladevi.

Devdas is what he was. Please don’t worry. I can understand

1 This is in Devanagari script.
2 Of the Kasturba Gandhi National Memorial Trust for Gujarat his feelings. After all his method of work is also different.
The rest later.

Blessings from
BAPU

SMT. MRIDULABEHN SARABHAI RETREAT
P. O. SHAHIBAG
AHMEDABAD

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

242. LETTER TO VIRENDRA KUMAR ROY

SODEPUR,
January 4, 1946

BHAI VIRENDRA KUMAR,
I have your touching letter. May God grant you peace.

M. K. GANDHI

SHRI VIRENDRA ROY
CONTAI

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

243. LETTER TO FATEHCHAND NAHATA

SODEPUR,
January 4, 1946

BHAI FATEHCHAND,
Consider what will be my fate if everyone asks me for 10 minutes of my time as you do. You are not going to gain anything by meeting me. You will unnecessarily waste your time. Read whatever I have written and devote yourself to service.

M. K. GANDHI

SHRI FATEHCHAND NAHATA
PRESIDENT KUSHTIA MAHAKMA CONGRESS COMMITTEE
KUSHTIA

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
244. LETTER TO SHYAMLAL

SODEPUR,

January 4, 1946

BHAJ SHYAMLAL,

I have your letter of the 31st. Write to Nanabhai Bhatt that he may select any woman who is competent. I should consider Manubhai’s Vijaya eligible if only she could reduce her preoccupation with the children—it ought to become less as the days pass. She can do the job. She does not have to work in the cities; it is the villages that have to be awakened, and, in my opinion, Vijayabehn is the right person for the job. But if some other woman worker of Vijayabehn’s calibre can be found, Nanabhai may become to her what Lord Melbourne\(^1\) was to Queen Victoria and thus encourage her progress.

SHRI SHYAMLALJI
K. G. [N.] M. FUND
BAJAWADI
WARDHA (C. P.)

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

245. SPEECH AT PRAYER MEETING

SODEPUR,

January 4, 1946

Gandhiji said that he had come back in their midst after some time. He would again go out to Assam on the 8th. The prayer would be held here till January 7. He did not know if he would be able to hold prayer here again on his return from Assam.

He had been on a pilgrimage to Midnapore. The tour was so peaceful, the orderliness was so impressive, that they were unique. He had been to three or four places: Diamond Harbour, Mahishadal, Kakra and Contai. In each of these places the orderliness of the people was praiseworthy. At prayer-time the gathering went up to about a lakh of people. Many people came from long distances. Every one of them was quite peaceful and none disturbed the orderliness. From Diamond Harbour he witnessed this orderliness.

Gandhiji said that Ramanama was so attractive that it could absorb man’s whole thought and self into it. That was why he had asked them to clap their hands rhythmically when taking Ramanama. As they went on clapping their hands they got absorbed in the prayer. They knew soldiers were so trained that they were disciplined and learnt to work together. Discipline being the most essential thing, there was an English saying—‘disciplined soldier’.

\(^1\) Lord Melbourne (1779-1848) was the first Prime Minister of Queen Victoria. He was responsible for many important liberal measures of her reign.

They were also soldiers of freedom. Soldiers of a State received salary and they maintained discipline. Soldiers of freedom did not get such payment; but they acquired strength by maintaining discipline. In the words of Badshah Khan\(^1\), they were all Khudai Khidmatgars or servants of God. They were to maintain discipline and that was why he had introduced the practice of clapping hands while praying.

Explaining the bhajan sung at the prayer Gandhiji said it was very sweet. The Poet—Rabindranath—said that if nobody responded to their call they must not despair but continue to work for their ideal. Even if failures met them they must not be broken. They should go on working irrespective of whether their hopes and aspirations were realized or not. One who was devoted to God did not feel despair; he went on knocking at heaven’s door for entrance to the kingdom of God.

Swaraj had not yet come, but he had not given up hope. They must keep on knocking and one day swaraj was bound to come.

Amrita Bazar Patrika, 5-1-1946

\[246. \text{LETTER TO R. G. CASEY} \]

KHALDI PRATISHTHAN, SODEPUR,
January 5, 1946

DEAR FRIEND,

I have to thank you for the arrangements made by the officials for my travel to and stay in the Midnapore District.

The Superintendent of the Presidency Jail writes to me to say that Shri S. Bakshi would like to see me. I am therefore bound to see him. This will be only after my return from Assam. I wonder whether I could see at the same time the other prisoners who are there.

Shri Sudhir Ghosh tells me you would like to see me on Monday next. I shall give myself the pleasure of doing so at 7.30 p.m. that day.

I must thank you too for the relief to the E.C. employees.\(^2\)

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

Gandhiji’s Correspondence with the Government, 1944-47, p. 134

---

\(^1\) Khan Abdul Gahaffar Khan
\(^2\) The reference is to the reinstatement of some dismissed workers of Calcutta Electric Supply Company.
247. LETTER TO M. E. C. MATHEW

CAMP, SODEPUR,
January 5, 1946

DEAR FRIEND,

I thank you for your letter. I do not know where I shall be at the time you reach India. However, I reciprocate your wish that we should meet. You will have no difficulty in finding my whereabouts at the time come to India.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

M. E. C. MATHEW, ESQ.
182 SEA BOURNE ROAD
SOUTH BOURNE WEST
BOURNEMOUTH, HANTS, ENGLAND

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

248. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

SODEPUR,
January 5, 1946

CHI. MUNNALAL,

I sent Rs. 10,000 to Dinshawji yesterday. You will be able to meet from it all expenditure from this month up to the time I return.

Kanchan had an attack of cold and fever. But there is nothing to worry about. She is being treated by Sushilabehn.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 8612. Also C.W. 7201. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah
249. LETTER TO JIVANJI D. DESAI

SODEPUR,
January 5, 1946

CHI. JIVANJI,

The booklet on the constructive programme¹ was received only yesterday. It has taken a rather long time. Why this delay? It took me some time to find the price. What was the intention in giving it on the back-page? Or is there merit in novelty as such? Generally the reader’s habit is to see the cover page and look for the price, etc. There is no signature at the end of the preface. I wonder whether you thought that, since the preface was by the author himself, there was no need for his signature. But that does not seem likely as Chi. Kanaiya also reminds me. Moreover, I had drawn your attention specifically to this point in my letter² of December 7, 1945. The copies are very few. A lot of them could have been sold here. What happened about Hindi, Gujarati, Urdu, etc.?

Blessings from
BAPU

JIVANJI DESAI
P. B. 105
AHMEDABAD

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 9961. Also C.W. 6935. Courtesy: Jivanji D. Desai

250. LETTER TO DINSHAW K. MEHTA

SODEPUE,
January 5, 1946

CHI. DINSHAW,

I have remitted Rs. 10,000 to you yesterday. With this amount open an account in the name of the Trust in any bank you like and issue the cheques yourself, because I have remitted the amount to you as Trustee and Director. I hastened with the money because I understood you had no funds left with you. I am sorry I was under the im-

¹By Gandhiji. Vide “Constrictive Programme: Its Meaning and Place”, 13-12-1941 Here the reference is to the second revised and enlarged edition recently published; vide “Foreword to “Constrictive Programme- its Meaning and Place”
²Vide “Letter to Jivanji D. Desai”. 7-12-1945
pression that you usually had a large balance lying with you and, indeed, an important account such as yours ought to have such a balance. Had I known that the account hardly ever had a balance I would have arranged for an amount before leaving Poona—but let it be.

I have a letter from Gulbai, which has alarmed me. She is unhappy. Do not cause her unhappiness. It seems she is hesitant about getting Ardeshir vaccinated whereas you seem to be insisting on it. I don’t have any faith in vaccination. I am writing to Gulbai accordingly. If I were in your place I would respect Gulbai’s wishes. After all a mother has a stronger claim over the children. Once the seed is planted the man’s job is over. It is the mother who carries the child for nine months and then suckles it while it grows. But that is not what pains Gulbai; it is your behaviour that pains her. We had already had a little talk on the subject. Please talk to her patiently and explain things to her.

You appear to be squeamish. I would still suggest that you draw a salary from the Trust. I am aware that the Deed does not provide for this, but the three Trustees can agree to make the necessary change. You may take up some other occupation if you like. A man’s first duty is to be honest with himself and to be truthful. One who does not do this is no good for anything. He turns into a hypocrite or cheat. You made up your mind to go by my advice. Understand the significance of this. Anyone who decides to defer to another either sees the point of what he is told or accepts the advice on faith. Such faith, again, proves more productive than understanding. And when it does not, the person is ill at ease. May you never come to such a pass. I don’t want you to lose your fire. I shall be satisfied only if you rise higher and higher as a result of my contact.

On further reflection I think I had better send you Gulbai’s letter so that you can understand her feelings and know what pains her. Be calm and patient with her.

I shall reach there by the evening of 21st February, or on the 23rd, because 22nd is Ba’s anniversary and I should observe it at a fixed place. This cannot be done on a train where it would be difficult to read the whole of the Gita.

It appears Chi. Sushila Gandhi has written to you. Have you not replied to her? If not, please write to her. She is now in Delhi at Devdas’s. She does not seem to have benefited [by your treatment].
What could be the trouble with her? Was she administered thyroid extract? I have forgotten all.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

251. LETTER TO GULBAI D. MEHTA

SODEPUR,
January 5, 1946

CHI. GULBAI

I have your letter. I was thinking of writing a third letter when yesterday I got your letter. I certainly have no faith in vaccination. My views have not changed. They are firm. Therefore if I had my way I would not have Chi. Ardeshir vaccinated. I would risk an attack of smallpox. But I know Dinshaw believes in vaccination. His views on nature cure differ considerably from mine. I cling to him in spite of this knowledge for I regard him as a man of truth. In the case of a man of truth either I accommodate him or he accommodates me. There is no trace of obstinacy in me. Firmness I certainly have, as I should have. A man devoid of this quality can never cling to truth. He does not worry about the risks that confront him because a satyagrahi has faith only in God. Therefore do what you think right about vaccination after mutual consultation.

I have sent your letter to Dinshaw because it is a nice letter worthy of you. Dinshaw however should know that it expresses your pain. I hope I did not do wrong in passing on the letter to him.

When is your confinement due?

Please don’t worry about the nursing-home. It is for me to think about the expenses. Only yesterday I sent a sum for the expenses. According to my reckoning, it will not be necessary for us to keep the account we maintain for the poor going for long.

I see no need for Maji to move into the house which Balkrishna used to occupy. She may continue to live where she is or wherever she wants to till my return. I would suggest that Maji should live in the quarters that I used to occupy. When I return you may put me up there if you like. Since the party accompanying me will camp in tents the arrangement will cause you no inconvenience. In this way the room that you allot to me, with attached bath-room and the adjacent room will suffice for me. Let us see when Dinshaw comes by any new income. It is desirable that he does not go in for any fresh expenditure. I would be far from pleased if he accepted defeat for one reason or another.

I hope you and Ardeshir are well.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

252. LETTER TO HIRABEHN

SODEPUR,
January 5, 1946

CHI. HIRABEHN,

I got your letter. May your wished be fulfilled.

Blessings from
M. K. GANDHI

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

253. LETTER TO HASMUKH

SODEPUR,
January 5, 1946

BHAI HASMUKHBHAII,

I have your long letter. What is there for me to bless in what you write? I have not even understood the dispute fully. Besides, if the work is noble it does not need blessings from any man, however great. The work is its own blessings.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 The letters are in Devanagari script.
2 ibid
254. LETTER TO NAGINBHAI T. MASTER

SODEPUR,
January 5, 1946

BHAI NAGINBHAI,

I have your letter. May your efforts for the sake of Vijayabehn and Valji bear fruit. I can see that you will be able to cope with the task, and I am pleased.

SJT. NAGINBHAI MASTER
BOMBAY CONGRESS COMMITTEE
CONGRESS HOUSE
VITHALBHAI PATEL ROAD, BOMBAY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

255. LETTER TO MARGARETE SPIEGEL

SODEPUR,
January 5, 1946

CHI. AMALA¹.

I was happy to read your letter. It was creditable on your part to have refused the offer of private tuition to a pupil in your own class and you deserve to be complimented. Now you will be able to teach other things. That is good. But why do you look upon Principal Seal as your enemy? How can a person who looks upon dogs and cats as her friends regard a human being as her enemy?

Ahimsa can have no enemies.

If you go on increasing the number of your feline friends, you will not be able to shoulder the burden.

I keep good health.

Blessings from
BAPU

[From Gujarati]

Spiegel Papers. Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library

¹German Jewess who joined Gandhiji’s Ashram in 1933
256. LETTER TO VANAMALA N. PARIKH

SODEPUR,
January 5, 1946

CHI. VANAMALA,

I am not going to write a long letter either to you or to Zohra. I am leaving for Assam on the 8th and shall be back here on the 14th. After that as soon as possible I wish to go to Madras. I hope that I shall reach there on January 22, at the latest, and from there I shall return to Sevagram on February 8 at the earliest. Then to Poona on the 21st or the 23rd. How is Zohra? Both of you, or Zohra, or, if she is too weak, you alone, should help Munnalalbhai. But you must do nothing beyond your strength.

I shall be pleased if you both write to me.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 5797

257. LETTER TO SAVAL L. IDLANI

SODEPUR,
January 5, 1946

BHAI IDLANI,

How is it that your letter to me is neither in Urdu nor in Hindi? You should refer to the Congress President the question you ask me.

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

SHRI SAVAL L. IDLANI, JOURNALIST
LALCHAND NANKAL BUILDING
JAMSHED ROAD
KARACHI

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
258. LETTER TO SUBODHLAL SARKAR

SODEPUR,
January 5, 1946

BHAH SUBODHLAL SARKAR,

I got your postcard. Why in English? I shall not be going to Dhanbad.

Yours,
M. K. GANDHI

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

259. SPEECH AT CONGRESS WORKERS’ CONFERENCE—I

January 5, 1946

After enumerating the various items of the 18-fold constructive programme as mentioned in the revised and enlarged edition of his brochure2 Constructive Programme, Its Meaning and Place, a copy of which had come into his hands only on the day before, he asked them to take note of the fact that the charkha and khaddar was only one—though by no means the least important—out of the 18 items in that programme.

Civil disobedience had been mentioned at the end of the 18 items. It had a place there since the theme of the brochure was the constructive programme not merely as an economic activity but as a means of the attainment of swaraj.

Civil disobedience was of two types, individual and mass. Individual civil disobedience was everybody’s inherent right like the right of self-defence in normal life. No special sanction was needed for the practice of this kind of civil disobedience. Just as a man in normal life would use his dagger, revolver or even

---
1 Extracted from Pyarelal’s “Weekly Letter”. About 750 to 800 workers from all the districts of Bengal, including several women, met Gandhiji on January 5 and 6 to seek his guidance regarding the Congress reorganization work in Bengal, particularly the constructive activity. A long list of questions were handed to Gandhiji just before he came to the meeting. Before answering the questions, Gandhiji addressed them briefly in Hindustani.

2 Amrita Bazar Patrika, 7-1-1946, had reported that, “incidentally in the course of his remarks, Gandhiji congratulated two Calcutta papers—Amrita Bazar Patrika and The Hindustan Standard for publishing the brochure in their columns and hoped that people would take up the programme and give effect to it in right earnest.”

VOL. 89: 7 DECEMBER, 1945 - 24 FEBRUARY, 1946 177
fisticuffs to foil a sudden attack, even so civil disobedience would be resorted to by the constructive worker as a non-violent equivalent to the use of fisticuffs or arms. It did not need sanction or permission from anybody. As an illustration of how civil disobedience could be used to overcome Government’s opposition to constructive work he took up the hypothetical case of a worker engaged in the service of the Adivasis. If the Government prevented him from going among them he would simply disobey the order. The Government might put him in prison, he would welcome it. It would be a most auspicious beginning for his work. The very fact that he had gone to prison in order to serve the Adivasis would enshrine him in their hearts.

Mass civil disobedience was for the attainment of independence. For if the fulfilment of the constructive programme almost in its entirety was an indispensable preliminary condition. The ‘Quit India’ resolution of August 1942 might be cited as an exception to this dictum, he remarked. His reply was that it was justified by exceptional circumstances into which, however, he did not propose to take them at present. Moreover, the movement had never been started.

Gandhiji then took up the first two items from the constructive programme and showed how they helped the struggle for independence. The first was communal unity. If they could achieve true heart unity among all the communities, not as a political expedient to be cast aside when its purpose was served or as a token of their common dislike of the third party, no power on earth would be able to sow division amongst them as at present. And even a child would understand that an India united would be an India free. The same held true in regard to the removal of untouchability.

In the course of his remarks Gandhiji referred to the report of Sarat Babu’s recent speech which was to the effect that since with Gandhiji he believed in non-violence of the strong—not of the weak, he felt that military training was necessary to inculcate the spirit of discipline, without which true non-violence could not be practised. Commenting upon it, Gandhiji said that he did not know whether Sarat Baba had been correctly reported or not. He himself had often suffered from bad reporting. But the statement as it appeared lent itself to an ambiguous interpretation.

It was only a half truth to say that military training was an aid to the practice of non-violence. The statement was true if by military training was meant inculcation of perfect discipline, but if by military training was meant training also in the use of arms and the art of killing it could have no place in his (Gandhiji’s) programme of non-violence.

---

1 The following four paragraphs have been taken from Amrita Bazar Patrika, 6-1-1946
2 In the Bengal Legislative Assembly
He Himself had been advocating the necessity of non-violent discipline in his prayer meetings and had even been trying to impart it to the people wherever he went. He considered this kind of discipline to be superior to what was known as military discipline inasmuch as the latter was enforced by penalties while the discipline of non-violence was absolutely voluntary and called for the strength to face death without killing.

If he found that his views were opposed to Sarat Babu's views and he people of Bengal asked him as to which of the two sets of views they should follow, he would unhesitatingly tell them to follow Sarat Babu’s views and discard his, since Sarat Babu was the leader of Bengal and not he. But in the present case he felt sure that there was no difference between their views as Sarat Babu had himself told him in the course of his recent talks with him that in the matter of non-violence he wanted to go the whole hog with him. Therefore, he was of opinion that Sarat Babu’s advocacy of military training held good only in the context of non-violence. In no other sense was it compatible with the Congress faith much less with non-violence as he (Gandhiji) understood it.

Gandhiji then proceeded to answer questions:

Q. You have asked the charkha workers to keep themselves detached from the political work of the Congress. From experience the questioner finds that such centres fail to make the people conscious fighters for swaraj. On the other hand, other centres, where workers have been working in double functions—both as charkha as well as Congress workers—give a better account of themselves during civil disobedience. So please make your directions in this respect clear.

GANDHIJI: It is a good question but it betrays want of clear thinking. All I have said is that a khadi worker will not be able to do full justice to his work if he has too many irons in the fire. Khadi work demands one’s undivided attention. But that does not mean that it should be done mechanically. No khadi worker can afford to be indifferent to other things with which khadi is interrelated or lose sight of its correlation to the struggle for independence. Experience has shown that wherever intensive charkha work had been done the people had shown greater grit, unity and capacity for organization in the struggle for independence.

Q. You have often repeated that charkha without its full implications means nothing. Supposing we do not associate the charkha with political work, then, how will people understand its full implications?

G. ‘Full implications’ does include political work, but it includes many more things. The charkha has an undoubted value as a means for providing economic relief to the masses but as I have so often reiterated, khadi activity, stripped of its significance in terms of India’s independence means nothing to me today. At the same time if you take up charkha work merely for gaining political ends, it will defeat its purpose and you will make a mess of it in the political as in the economic sense.

To say that unless we associate charkha work with Political work it will have no political value, betrays a thorough ignorance of the non-violent technique. Let me take ‘service of the lepers’ which is another item in the 18-fold constructive programme. Surely, it cannot be associated with any kind of political work in the accepted sense. Yet it would be absurd to say that it has no value in terms of swaraj.

Under the non-violent technique every real service rendered, every right act performed does bring the country nearer to the goal of political independence though in itself it may not have any direct political significance.

If you were to tell me that you have lost faith in non-violence as a means for the attainment of swaraj, I would agree that the charkha or constructive work have no use for you. Nor would you have any use for me in that event. But since you have discarded faith neither in ahimsa nor in me, your indifference to charkha and constructive work is a sign only of your laziness and inertia. It is my conviction that the phenomenal awakening that has taken place in India during the last 25 years is entirely due to the adoption of non-violence and the charkha as its symbol.

To the extent to which we have neglected the charkha and constructive work we have failed in the attainment of our goal.

Q. On December 23, you have advised Hindu workers to offer selfless service to the Muslim masses, for it will tell in the end. That might be termed a long-term policy. Should we then do nothing political among the Muslim masses? Apart from its effect on the Muslims, is not the policy of non-interference and political aloofness likely to engender in the non-Muslims a new attitude of exclusiveness towards the Muslims and thus serve the very purpose of those who are trying to divide the nation?

G. With due deference to the framer of the question let me say that I fail to understand it. If millions of Hindus regarded non-Hindus as their blood-brothers and sisters and treated them as such without the slightest tinge of a political motive, it must result in the complete political unity of India. Is it a ‘long-term’ effect? The

---

1 Vide “Discussion with Political Workers”, 23-12-1945
framer of the question does not seem to know how ahimsa works. What I have deprecated in the present poisoned state of our communal relations is the attempt on the part of Congressmen to draw non-Hindus into the Congress fold, as it would only accentuate the existing mistrust. But supposing I make friends with Badshah Khan how does it widen the gulf between the communities? On the contrary, it immediately eases communal tension to that extent. Multiply this picture a millionfold and it will be seen that the difficulty posed in the question is altogether chimerical.

Amrita Bazar Patrika, 6-1-1946 and 13-1-1946

260. LETTER TO ANASUYABEHN SARABHAI

SODEPUR,
January 6, 1946

CHI. ANASUYA,

I got your letter. It is not possible for me to offer any suggestions or guidance from here. Sir Radhakrishnan is going that way and it would be better for you to see him. I think no one can do from here anything that would prove useful to you.

Why do you write ‘people’? ‘Peoples’ means ‘nations’. Are we ‘nations’? And if we are, how many nations are we? And where? Great Britain had one people, but Europe has many peoples with their own different countries. Is such the case with India?

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

261. LETTER TO ANASUYABEHN SARABHAI

SODEPUR,
January 6, 1946

CHI. ANASUYABHEN,

Chi. Mridula writes to say that you are now growing old and are often bed-ridden !!! What is this? And why? If you grow old, what about me? 125 years is still far away for you as well as for me. And then 125 years is not for me alone. It is for all of us.

1 The words in single quotes are in English?

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

262. LETTER TO SORABJI P. KAPADIA

SODEPUR,

January 6, 1946

BHAI KAPADIA,

I have the letter from Joshi Behn which you sent me. I have sent her an appropriate reply.

Blessings from
BAPU

SORABJI P. KAPADIA
“MUMBAI SAMACHAR”
BOMBAY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

263. LETTER TO SARVANBEHN

January 6, 1946

DEAR SISTER,

I got the khaddar. According to me no one is an abala. A woman who does even a little can never be called an abala.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 7931

---

1 The letter is in the Devanagari script.
2 A weak woman
264. LETTER TO K. T. BHASHYAM

SODEPUR,
January 6, 1946

Bhai Bhashyam,

I have your long letter. I may not be regarded as a guide in any way any more. The days are gone when I could act as one. My advice is that you may take up whatever appeals to you from among the activities I have already indicated. Hence you should come together and do whatever you can regardless of whether the outcome is good or bad. I am now of no use whatever for such matters.

Blessings from

Bapu

Shri K. T. Bhashyam
Cottonpet
Bangalore City

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

265. SPEECH AT CONGRESS WORKERS’ CONFERENCE—II

January 6, 1946

Meeting Gandhiji on the second day of the conference the Bengal workers found in him a hard customer. Instead of waiting for them to put question he anticipated them by asking them whether they knew Hindustani. As only about half the number raised their hands in reply, he inquired as to how long they would require to learn Hindustani. Some replied: “One Year.” Gandhiji commented:

No good, Contai people did not require more than six months.

“All right then, six months,” shouted a few voices. But Gandhiji twitted them for doing no better than the countryfolk of Contai in the matter of learning the national language. Calcutta should do better. Someone from the gathering objected that they were not all Calcutta folk. But the objector’s voice was drowned in a chorus from the rest who shouted “three months”. [Gandhiji said :]

That is good, but say “six months” all in chorus and endorse the same by raising your right hand in affirmation.

1 For the previous day’s report, vide “Speech at Congress Workers Conference—I, 5-1-1946

2 Vide “Discussion with Midnapore Political Workers”, 2-1-1946
A forest of hands rose in reply. But Gandhiji’s keen eye detected a lacuna.

I notice that the women workers are hesitating. Is Azad\(^1\) Hindustan then going to be for men only and are women for ever to be in Zenanistan? If not, you should all shout out, “sub” (“all”) in one voice.

There was a deafening chorus of “sub, sub” in reply. Gandhiji was pleased . . . he told them it was up to them to see that they kept it. There were ample facilities in Calcutta for learning Hindustani and they should avail themselves of it.

Another friend asked whether by learning Hindustani was meant ability to understand Hindustani or whether it included the ability to read and write Hindustani as well. This gave Gandhiji the opportunity to emphasize the importance of learning to read and write both the Nagari and the Urdu scripts, if they wanted to maintain direct touch with all the sections of the people in the country. Even Hindus in north, let alone Muslims, did not know the Nagari script. In support of his argument he mentioned the instances of the late Lala Lajpat Rai, the Lion of the Punjab, Pandit Ajodhyanath, who was one of the founders of the Congress and Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru, none of whom knew the Nagari script. The Urdu script was not difficult to learn. Anyway he was not prepared to hear objections on the score of difficulty from intellectual Bengal.

Gandhiji’s attention was next drawn to a Press cutting purporting to give a restatement of his views on the utility of the parliamentary programme in relation to constructive work. The reference was to a recent writing of his in Hindustani in Khadi Jagat. “What attitude should a wholetime constructive worker maintain towards the parliamentary programme? Can the will of the people be really represented by a legislature under present conditions in India? If the conditions are adverse, i. e., if the Government is hostile, should Congressmen continue to function in the legislatures and what help can they advance under the circumstances to the cause of constructive work?”

Gandhiji, replying, said that he had advocated the boycott of the legislatures as a part of the fourfold non-co-operation programme. He still held the view that if that programme had been given effect to in full, India would have got swaraj. But the country as a whole was not prepared for it. There was a considerable section in the country that wanted to use parliamentary talent in the service of the country. No one should prevent them from serving the country in their own way. As a practical idealist he had therefore reconciled himself to Congressmen capturing the legislatures and other elective bodies, if only to prevent self-seekers and enemies of India’s freedom from getting there.

\(^1\) Independent
He repeated what he had said at Contai, that nothing would please him better than that ideal scavengers should be returned to legislatures to represent the Congress there. He himself claimed to be scavenger No. 1 of India. His ideal scavenger would not be an ignorant puppet but a man with sturdy common sense and capacity to think and decide upon the problems of the day. He would be an educated person though he might not know English. He could not see why such a one should not be President of the Congress. The positive function of those who went to the legislatures would be to promote constructive work. He, however, warned them that mere parliamentary work would not bring them swaraj. That would come only as a result of their work outside among the masses. A wholetime constructive worker would not be able to take up parliamentary activity without detriment to his own work. But those who were not giving all their time to constructive work might enter the legislature if people wanted it, provided however that it did not lead to rivalries among workers and they had not to enter into any expenditure in order to be elected.

Q. In many portions of Bengal, the cultivators are Muslims and the proprietors Hindus. Recently in some places the Muslim tillers have refused to till the land under Hindu owners. What should the Hindu owners do under the circumstances?

Gandhiji, replying, said that the views he was going to express were strictly his own. As they all knew, he was not even a four-anna Congress member and therefore he could not speak as a Congressman. He spoke only in his personal capacity as a satyagrahi.

Although the question had been posed in a communal setting the real cleavage as he saw it was not communal but economic. In Bengal the cultivators might be Muslim and the proprietors Hindu. But in Andhra both the cultivators and proprietors were Hindus and yet the same conflict was in evidence in some parts.

His views, continued Gandhiji, on the ownership of land were well known. The only rightful owner of the land was he who tilled it. The present proprietors were morally entitled to hold land only if they became trustees for it. If the cultivators of the fields of a proprietor, who had become a trustee, refused to till the land for him, he would not sue them or seek otherwise to coerce them. He would leave them alone and try to earn his livelihood independently by his honest industry. If he has been discharging his function as a trustee honestly, they would come to him before long in contrition and seek his guidance and help. For, he would use his privilege not to fill his pockets by the exploitation of the labourers but teach the letter co-operation and organization so as to increase their produce and generally ameliorate their conditions. This would mean that the proprietor must himself become a cultivator par excellence. A proprietor who regarded his property merely as a means of satisfying his lusts was not its owner but its slave. The proprietors of land in Bengal had therefore only to adopt his ideal of trusteeship and their troubles would end.

Q. Would the trustee's property be passed on to his children by inheritance?

G. A proprietor who holds his property as a trust will not pass it on to his children in inheritance unless the letter in their turn become trustees and make good their claim as such. If they are not prepared for it, he should create a trust of his property. It is demoralizing for an able-bodies young man to live like a parasite on unearned income. A father should inculcate in his children the appreciation of the dignity of labour and teach them to earn their bread by their honest industry. As regards the monied people all I can say from my close personal association with a large number of them, is that if a general atmosphere in favour of trusteeship, devoid of ill-will and class hatred, is created in the country they will fall in line with it.

Q. Many Congress workers who have recently come out of jail have to earn a living for themselves or their families. Under present economic conditions they have been forced to crowd into towns for this purpose with the result that the villages have begun to lose their services. Could not a paid service be established for them by the provincial or the district Congress organizations? If so, how would you advise them to find the money for the purpose?

G. The question reflects the present deplorable condition of the country. The cities are not only draining the villages of their wealth but talent also. The only way to check the process is for Congress workers to refuse to make their lives their God but to dedicate themselves to the service of their ideal only. God will then take care of them. A labourer is always worthy of his hire but I know that I have no magic wand to revolutionize people's outlook up to the ideal of voluntary poverty. Therefore I consider it desirable that a fund should be created either by the Provincial Congress Committee or by local agencies to provide maintenance for such workers as may want to dedicate themselves to the service of the villages. Do not expect me however to provide you with funds. My begging days are over. It is my firm belief that no worthy cause has ever suffered for want of finances if there are sincere workers to work for it. Calcutta has got enough 'money bags', and if a practical scheme of work in the villages is produced and there are sincere and earnest workers forthcoming to take it up, I am sure the money will come forth.
Q. You have advised spinning for swaraj. If, in trying to execute that programme in its full implications, spinning for wages has to be restricted, should we do so? That will mean hardship for the very poor who find some relief through their spinning wages. Then, again, if we keep up spinning for wages, the new rules of purchasing khadi against yarn will make it more difficult for us to dispose of the khadi produced for offering relief to the poor.

Gandhiji said that what he had recommended was that all people should spin not for self but for swaraj. Such conscious and altruistic spinning on the part of forty millions would constitute a veritable yajna or sacrifice out of which swaraj would emerge. It would knit the classes and masses, the brain workers and the manual labourers, in a living bond of unity. What had however happened was that although their efforts had resulted in providing thousands of men and women with a supplementary source of income, the spinners themselves did not wear khaddar. They did not realize the implications of khadi in terms of swaraj. He had therefore come to the conclusion that if khadi was truly to become the “livery of freedom”1, to use Pandit Jawaharlal’s expression, all those who spin should consciously adopt khadi and all those who wanted to wear khadi should spin. There was thus no conflict between spinning for wages and spinning for sacrifice. The two were supplementary, one of the other.2

Q. Violence is bad . . . . The only substitute for it is constructive activity as symbolized by the charkha. But the dynamic quality seems to have gone out of it. What should be done to bring out its revolutionary significance?

G. Dr. Radha Kumud Mukherji in one of his books has quoted Colebrooke as saying that in India, the home of chronic poverty, the spinning-wheel is the provider of butter and bread for the poor. The late R. C. Dutt has shown how the prosperity of the East India Company was founded on their trade in Indian textiles. No part of the world, neither China nor Japan could produce fabrics to equal them. In the early phase the East India Company battened on the exploitation of its monopoly in Indian textiles. Not only did it bring them immense trade profits, it also gave an impetus to British shipping. Later, Lancashire developed its own textile industry following upon a series of mechanical inventions. This brought it into competition with the Indian textile manufactures. The policy of exploitation of the Indian artisans then gave way to that of destruction of their craft.

1 Vide “Livery of Freedom”
2 What follows is extracted from Harijan, 31-3-1946. It appeared under the title “How to Make It Dynamic?” by Pyarelal, who had explained that the question was “put to Gandhiji at Calcutta by the khadi workers of Borkamata”.

VOL. 89: 7 DECEMBER, 1945 - 24 FEBRUARY, 1946 187
An English writer has observed that the history of cotton is the history of civilization. Politics is the handmaid of commerce. Indian history provides an apt illustration of it. In the heyday of our cotton manufactures we used to grow all the cotton for our needs. The cotton seed was fed to the cattle which provided health-giving milk to the people. Agriculture flourished. The lint was turned into beautiful fabrics of which the jamdanis of Dacca were a specimen. As an offshoot we had the worldfamed dyeing and printing art of Masulipatam. Connoisseurs say that our old indigenous dyes could not be matched by any in the world for their permanence as well as brightness and beauty. All that is gone now. India is today naked. We have to cover her nakedness. If anybody could suggest a better substitute than the spinning-wheel for the purpose I would discard the spinningwheel today. But none has been found so far and I dare say none is likely to be found.

The question may however be asked: ‘How can the charkha bring India freedom when it could not prevent its loss?’ The reply is that in the past charkha was not linked with the idea of freedom. Nor did it then symbolize the power of non-violence. In olden days it symbolized our slavery. We had not realized that our progress, prosperity and even freedom depended on the charkha or else we should have put up a fight and resorted to satyagraha to save it from destruction. What was lost through our ignorance and apathy has now to be won back through intelligence and knowledge. We have today ceased to think for ourselves. The Government says that Bengal is a pauper province and we mechanically accept the statement. To call a province which boasts \( \frac{1}{2} \) crores of population as pauper is only to proclaim our own intellectual bankruptcy. Did not the Governor of Bengal observe in a broadcast talk' the other day that the cultivator in Bengal remains unemployed for six months in the year? Can any population in the world subsist while remaining idle for half the year? Even if all the water that the rains bring were captured and harnessed to irrigation it would not keep the masses alive if their enforced unemployment for the better part of the year were not removed. Our real malady is not destitution but laziness, apathy and inertia. You may achieve marvels of irrigational engineering. But wellfilled granaries alone cannot and will not end our slavery. To end slavery you must over-come the mental and physical inertia of the masses and

---

1 On December 8, 1945; vide also “Letter to R. G. Casey”, 8-12-1945
quicken their intelligence and creative faculty. It is my claim that the universalization of hand-spinning with a full knowledge of all that it stands for alone can bring that about in a sub-continent so vast and varied as India. I have compared spinning to the central sun and the other village crafts to the various planets in the solar system. The former gives light and warmth to the latter and sustains them. Without it they would not be able to exist.

Q. If swaraj hangs on the thread of hand-spun yarn, as you say, why have we failed to attain it up till now after a quarter of a century of khadi work?

G. Because our labour was not quickened by knowledge. The peace of the grave makes the latter the house of death. But the peace in the soul makes it the seat of divine intelligence. Similarly, soulless labour symbolizes serfdom Labour illumined with knowledge symbolizes the will to freedom. There is a world of difference between the two. Khadi workers should understand that khadi work without the mastery of the science of khadi will be love’s labour lost in terms of swaraj.

Q. What do you mean by the science of spinning? What things are included in it?

G. I have often said that I can do without food but not without sacrificial spinning. I have also claimed that no one in India has perhaps done his spinning with such unfailing regularity and conscientious diligence as I. And yet I will say that all that by itself cannot take the place of scientific knowledge. Scientific knowledge requires constant probing into the why and wherefore of every little process that you perform. Mere affirmation that in charkha there is swaraj and peace is not enough. A scientific mind will not be satisfied with having things scientific just on faith. He will insist on finding a basis in reason. Faith becomes lame when it ventures into matters pertaining to reason Its field begins where reason’s ends. Conclusions based on faith are unshakable whereas those based on reason are liable to be unstable and vulnerable to superior logic. To state the limitation of science is not to belittle it. We cannot do without either—each in its own place.

When I first discovered the spinning-wheel it was purely through intuition. It was not backed by knowledge so much so that I confused charkha with kargha, i.e., handloom. Later on, however, I tried to work out its possibilities with the help of the late Maganlal Gandhi. For instance, the question arose: Why should the spindle be made of iron, not brass? Should it be thin or thick? What would be the proper thickness? We began with the mill spindles. Then, spindle-holders used to be bamboo and wood. Later we came to leather and gut bearings. It was found that spindles got easily bent and were difficult to straighten. So we tried to make them out of knitting needles and ultimately of umbrellawires. All this called for the exercise of the inventive faculty and scientific research.

A khadi worker with a scientific mind will not stop there. ‘Why the charkha, why not the spinning mill?’ he will ask himself. The reply will be that everybody cannot own a spinning mill. If people depend on spinning mills for their clothing, whoever controls the spinning mills will control them and thus there will be an end to individual liberty. Today anyone can reduce the whole of London and New York to submission within 24 hours by cutting off their electric and water supply. Individual liberty and interdependence are both essential for life in society. Only a Robinson Crusoe can afford to be all self-sufficient. When a man has done all he can for the satisfaction of his essential requirements he will seek the co-operation of neighbours for the rest. That will be true co-operation. Thus a scientific study of the spinning-wheel will lead on to sociology. The spinning-wheel will not become a power for the liberation of India in our hands unless we have made a deep study of the various sciences related to it. It will then not only make India free but point the way to the whole world.

Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru has very aptly remarked that at one time India was not lacking in the inventive spirit but today it has become dormant. Once one gets the scientific outlook it will be reflected in every act of his, in his eating, drinking, rest, sleep. Everything will be scientifically regulated and with a full appreciation of its why and wherefore. Finally, a scientific mind must have detachment or else it will and itself into the lunatic asylum. The Upanishad says that whatever there is in this universe is from Him. It belongs to Him and must be surrendered to Him and then enjoyed. Enjoyment and sorrow, success and failure will then be the same to you.

One thing more. Supposing the tyrant wants to destroy the spinning-wheel itself. What then? My reply is that in that event we should ourselves perish with the spinning-wheel and not live to witness its destruction. For every khadi worker who thus sacrifices himself thousands will arise to take his place. The act of his will set the final seal of victory on the cause he represents.

Amrita Bazar Patrika, 13-1-1946, and Harijan, 31-3-1946
266. SPEECH AT PRAYER MEETING

January 6, 1946

Gandhiji emphasized what he had said at Mahishadal about the observance of the general rule for attending a meeting. He said that it was the common rule that nobody should enter the meeting place after it had begun and nobody should leave the meeting place during the continuance of the meeting. Those who would violate this rule, Gandhiji emphasized, would disturb others. Even if anybody did not find any interest in the meeting he should think of others who are in the meeting and not leave the meeting before it was concluded. This was the common rule for every meeting and in the case of prayer meeting they should be more careful, because at the prayer they had to train their minds and concentrate on God.

Referring to the song that was sung at the prayer Gandhiji said that they should take the significance of the song to their hearts. In the song Poet Rabindranath said that he would not be frightened to see God coming to him in the form of misery. In this connection Gandhiji would remind them of an English poem entitled “The Hound of Heaven” in which God had been described as a huntsman pursuing the disciple continually. God, Gandhiji explained, could not leave His devotee alone because He, who had created the world, was concerned about the world going in order. So real misery came when they forgot God and happiness came when they kept God in them.

This is also a kind of misery, but you should not feel like that. At the Sabarmati Ashram which was at a short distance from the Station there was a person who took the vow of silence. One day he told Gandhiji that he was greatly disturbed by the whistling train at the time of worship. Gandhiji suggested to him to shut his ears with cotton or rubber to prevent the whistle disturbing him. After a short time the man again came to Gandhiji and told him that he was no more in need of cotton or rubber because he had been trained to such a concentration of mind that no sound or whistle could enter his ears. What Gandhiji would tell them was that they should not be perturbed when misery—in whatever shape or form—came to them.

Amrita Bazar Patrika, 7-1-1946

---

1 Vide “Speech at Prayer Meeting”, 28-12-1945
2 By Francis Thompson
3 The reference is to the whistling of a train, which interrupted Gandhiji’s speech.
267. TELEGRAM TO VALLABHBHAI PATEL

SODEPUR,

January 7, 1946

SARDAR
CARE POWERFARM
BOMBAY

GOD WILLING SHALL BE AT BARDOLI THIRD MARCH.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

268. TELEGRAM TO K. SRINIVASAN

SODEPUR,

January 7, 1946

KASTURI SRINIVASAN

“HINDU”
MADRAS

YOUR TELEGRAM. APPROVED.

GANDHI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

269. TELEGRAM TO M. SATYANARAYAN

SODEPUR,

January 7, 1946

SATYANARAYANJI
CARE DAKSHIN [BHARAT HINDI PRACHAR SABHA]
THYAGARAYANAGAR (MADRAS)

RAJKUMARI WRITTEN ZAKIRSAHEB OR SAIYIDAIN. FAILING EITHER RAJKUMARI WILL.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Secretary, Dakshin Bharat Hindi Prachar Sabha, Madras
2 Khwaja Ghulam Saiyidain, Principal, Teachers’ Training College, Aligarh; later Adviser and Secretary to the Ministry of Education, Government of India
270. LETTER TO ARUNA ASAF ALI

SODEPUR,
January 7, 1946

CHI. ARUNA1

I read your little note immediately it was received. But your joint letter to Maulana Sahib I read early morning today (silenceday) immediately after the 4.30 prayer. You will let me say that it is eloquent but not cogent. It does injustice to yourselves, the Maulana and the cause. But I must not argue whilst you are under detention of your own making and yet falsely believing yourselves to be free.

Of course you must do as your comprehension of truth bids and not as anybody else however high says. And I honour you for such action.

It is for your sake that I resort to a foreign tongue and a thing I will not do even for you, if you were free.

Blessings to both from2

BAPU

From a copy: C. W. 11339. Courtesy: Aruna Asaf Ali

271. LETTER TO SHARDA G. CHOKHAWALA

SODEPUR,
January 7, 1946

CHI. BABUDI,

Today is silence day. This is the first letter I am writing after the morning prayer. How are you? How is Anand? I am still touring on this side. I shall leave for Madras on the 19th or the 20th instant.

Blessings to you all from

BAPU

From the Gujarati original: C.W. 10065. Courtesy: Sharada G. Chokhawala

1 Wife of Asaf Ali, a Congress leader. She was a member of the Congress Socialist Party and had played a prominent part in the Quit India movement in 1942.

2 The superscription and subscription are in Devanagari.

ibid
272. LETTER TO G. E. B. ABELL

KHADI PRATISHTHAN,
SODEPUR (NEAR CALCUTTA),
January 7, 1946

DEAR MR. ABELL,

Shrimati Saroj Basini Goho, the wife of Shri S. C. Goho, ‘until a few days ago’ said to be the Agent of the Government of India in Malaya, has just seen me and asked me to approach His Excellency about her husband, who is reported to have been arrested in Singapore. She has given me a copy of her memorial submitted to His Excellency. I have taken the liberty of telling her that if what is set forth in the papers shown to me and which are in the possession of the Government are true, her husband is quite safe. Could you please enlighten me in the matter?¹

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

¹ Vide the preceding item.

Gandhiji’s Correspondence with the Government, 1944-47, pp. 75-6

273. LETTER TO SAROJ BASINI GOHO

SODEPUR,
January 7, 194(6)²

DEAR SISTER.

I have gone through the papers you gave me and have started work in that connection. Please do not worry.

Blessings from
M. K. GANDHI

SHRIMATI SAROJ BASINI GOHO
6/1 KANTAPUKUR LANE
BAGHBAZAR P. O.
CALCUTTA

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ S. C. Goho had been charged with collaborating with the enemy. He was released in March 1946.
² The source has 1945, which is obviously a slip. Vide the preceding item.
274. LETTER TO A. B. M. ENAYAT HUSSAIN

SODEPUR,
January 7, 1946

Bhai Saheb,
I got your letter last evening. Today is my silence day. Tomorrow I leave for Assam. You and your friends may come on the 16th at 2.30 p.m. I shall manage to give you half an hour.

Yours,
M. K. Gandhi

JANAB A. B. M. ENAYAT HUSSAIN
GENERAL SECRETARY
MUSLIM UNEMPLOYED RELIEF ASSOCIATION
18 MIRZAPUR STREET
CALCUTTA

From a copy of the Urdu: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

275. SPEECH AT PRAYER MEETING

SODEPUR,
January 7, 1946

Gandhiji stressed the need for observance of the rules of cleanliness by every citizen. He asked them to remember that cleanliness was next to Godliness and that if they could observe the rules of cleanliness they would be pure in their hearts also.

Gandhiji said that although he did not travel much during these days he had heard from his friends how the city streets were made dirty with the kernel of fruits, paper pieces and other useless things strewn over them. It was also said that Calcutta had been dirty. But he could tell them that if every citizen did his part and observed the rules of cleanliness then the face of Calcutta would be changed.

Gandhiji also exhorted them to apply the rules of cleanliness in other spheres of their lives as well.

Amrita Bazar Patrika, 8-1-1946
276. INTERVIEW TO STUDENTS DEPUTATION

CALCUTTA,
[On or after January 7, 1946]

The answer is already in what you have told me just now. You should get into the habit of speaking in Hindustani. Just knowing it is not enough. One should be ashamed of speaking in English.

2. Students should assemble for this particular work and hold meeting. Vinoba, Dada, Aryanayakum, Ashadevi, Ramachandran, Mahesh and others are all there to guide you. Acharya Kripalani and Sucheta are of course there. For that matter Dhiren Majumdar and Vichitra Narayan are also there. Consult them also. There are many more whom I have not named. The thing is that there should be steadfastness and truth in you. Then everything could be done. But not today. Consult all these people. Aryanayakum is here and also Kripalani and Sucheta. Do this after careful thinking. There should be no repentance afterwards. Discuss with Radhakrishna. It is quite easy [to do this] in Kashi Vidyapith. What is the use of asking me? Think yourselves and do what you think proper. Have a talk with Pyarelal. He was also a student like you when he came to me.

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 10854

277. TELEGRAM TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

CALCUTTA,
January 8, 1946

MUNNALAL
NATURECURE CLINIC
POONA

KANCHAN’S ILLNESS CAUSING ANXIETY. YOU CAN COME IF YOU FEEL YOU MUST. AM LEAVING FOR ASSAM. SUSHILABEHN REMAING WITH KANCHAN. DOCTOR BIDHAN ROY SUPERINTENDING TREATMENT. ASKING NAR HART SEND MANIBHA REPLACE YOU IF YOU LEFT

BAPU

From a photostat: G.N. 8627

1 R. Achutan, Secretary, Benares Hindu University Rachanatmak Mandal for students and spokesmen of the deputation, says: “In January 1946, a group of students from Benares Hindu University met Gandhiji at Sodepur Ashram in Calcutta and discussed with him about the question of revival of Gandhi Seva Sangh to take up the constructive task of non-violent revolution........Since Bapu was observing silence.......[he] wrote [down] his reply. . . .” (S.N. 10854)

2 Gandhiji’s first silence day was on the 7th in January 1946.

3 Vide the following item.
278. TELEGRAM TO NARAHARI D. PARIKH

SODEPUR, January 8, 1946

Express

NARHARIBHAI PARIKH

SEVARAM

WARDHA

KANCHAN’S ILLNESS SERIOUS. MUNNALAL MIGHT COME IF HE IS ANXIOUS. HENCE SEND MANIBhai POONA IF FEASIBLE. GOING ASSAM FIVE DAYS STAY. ADDRESS GAUHATI.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

279. LETTER TO VALLABHBHAI PATEL

SODEPUR, January 8, 1946

BHAI VALLABHBHAI

Yesterday I sent you a telegram as follows:

“God willing reach Bardoli 3rd March.” I very much wanted to come on the 1st but I see that that is not possible, for February has only 28 days and I must look in at Poona, for a few days at least, before going to Bardoli. I have, therefore counted two days more so that I may arrange the programme as if the month had 30 days. Having started the thing I must see it through. I cannot in any circumstances tolerate misuse of money. And if I take no interest Dinshaw cannot manage the new venture. I will, therefore, quickly finish the work at Wardha, pay a brief visit to Poona, and then come to Bardoli and after that go back to Poona again. This is what I have in mind at the moment.

I have already written something about the Parliamentary Delegation.1 We should not spurn it; on the other hand we should welcome it whole-heartedly. It is not necessary to get excited over it as people used to when such people arrived in the past. We should not insult our guests in any manner whatsoever. There is no need for Congressmen to decline the invitation if they are invited to parties that may be held to honour the members of the delegation. I myself will certainly meet them somewhere. As it, I was to see the Governor on returning from Midnapore. I saw him only last evening and he himself asked me when I could meet them. I gave him my dates. They will most probably meet me in Madras, no other dates seemed suitable. Dr. Mahmud has come over to see me. He met me the day before yesterday, and since I am soon leaving for Assam he intends to go to Patna after seeing me off. So he will go today. In the meanwhile, the Governor heard about his arrival and suggested a meeting. They were together for about an hour. Nothing important seems to have been discussed, but they were glad to have met. I have not as yet been able to sit and talk with Dr. Mahmud for even a quarter of an hour. Just as he came my silence began. It lasted throughout yesterday. Dr. Mahmud came in the evening, but I went to see the Governor. When I returned it was already a quarter to ten; and so naturally we could not sit and talk.

1Vide “Letter to Vallabhbhai Patel”, 3-1-1946

I am all right. Kanchan has been taken very ill but I hope she will recover. She has severe anaemia. She has had it for some time but she did not pay attention to it. I leave for Assam today. I do not like to leave her but you know how often I have had to go like this. Most probably Sushila will stay on for her sake. I am dictating this early in the morning after the prayers. How she fares today we shall know only in the course of the day. Just now she is sleeping. So is Sushila. She was with Kanchan for most of the night.

If I fill this letter with an account of my experience here, it would become much longer. I have not the time for it. Besides, why should you want to read all that?

Rajkumari is of course here. She had to go to Hyderabad (Sindh) for some time. She will accompany me to Assam. After that she will have to go to Mysore.

Blessing from

BAPU

SARDAR VALLABHBHAI PATEL
68 MARINE DRIVE, BOMBAY
[From Gujarati]

Bapuna Patro-2: Sardar Vallabhbhai, pp. 291-3
280. LETTER TO G. E. B. ABELL

KHADI PRATISHTHAN,
SODEPUR (NEAR CALCUTTA),
January 8, 1946

DEAR MR. ABELL,

I enclose herewith a cutting' for you to read. Can the information therein be true?2 probably you could let me know without troubling His Excellency.

Enclosure: 1

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

Gandhiji’s Correspondence with the Government, 1944-47, p. 44

281. LETTER TO G. E. B. ABELL

KHADI PRATISHTHAN,
SODEPUR (NEAR CALCUTTA),
January 8, 1946

DEAR MR. ABELL,

His Excellency knows Dr. B. C. Ray. He is one of foremost physicians of India. He is responsible for the efficient management of several hospitals in Calcutta. His services have bww been enlisted by the Government of India. He was on the Bhore Committee3 too. The Congress has organized a mission of relief for the people of Burma and Malaya. I see from the papers which Dr. Roy has handed to me that the Government of India are hesitating about giving facilities to the mission, the reason being that the Government are doing all they

1 From The Hindustan Standard, 6-1-1946, which had reported that twenty-fiveINA prisoners were bayonetted to death for singing the INA national anthem in Bahadurgarh camp and many were punished for shouting the slogan “Jai Hind”

2 The addressee in reply enclosed a Press Note which said that 42 men had received bruises on their buttocks from the tip of the bayonets as a result of their resistance. No one was killed and no one was punished for using the slogan “Jai Hind”.

3 The Health survey and Development Committee appointed by the Government of India can. But in a service of this kind all that even a powerful Government can do is not enough. Lest for want of offered help people in distress might suffer, I want to dismiss from my mind the suggestion that because it is a Congress mission there is hesitation about its acceptance. I only hope that the very able assistance offered by Dr. B.

C. Roy will not be rejected.

Yours sincerely

M. K.GANDHI

282. LETTER TO STEPHEN LEE

SODEPUR,

January 8, 1946

DEAR FRIEND,

I thank you for your prompt and clear reply. I propose to make the fullest possible use of it.

Yours sincerely,

M. K.G.

STEPHEN LEE, ESQ.

FRIENDS’ SERVICE UNIT

1 UPPER WOOD ST.

CALCUTTA

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

283. LETTER TO R. G. CASEY

KHADI PRATISHTHAN,

SODEPUR,

January 8, 1946

DEAR FRIEND,

Herewith the note I promised last night to send to you.

1. Mahishadal—Tamluk sub-division, Midnapore District.

On the application of one Shridhar Chandra Goswami on 27th

June, 1944, the presiding officer ordered the return of articles seized.

1 In his reply of January 30, the addressee said the offer “must be declined because the Government of Burma were themselves trying to provide medical relief and could not provide facilities to the mission.

These articles have not yet been returned nor compensation offered, if the articles are missing (according to my information). Original papers sent herewith. (Enclosure 1)

2. Contai sub-division.

Water that has become saline there and probably in the other sub-divisions also should be drained out and renovated so as to be drinkable.

I enclose herewith the original letter from the Friends’ Service Unit showing how urgent this work is. (Enclosure 2)

3. Abhoy Ashram, Comilla.

I attach hereto a paper marked ‘Enclosure 3’. It discloses a curious state of affairs, as I understand if. I know personally that the Ashram activities were wholly beneficial and constructive. Schools based on social reform were run, catering for mostly Muslim children of spinning families who span yarn for wages; a depot was established for the storing of yarn, cotton and khadi; a hospital was conducted under the able supervision of Shri Suresh Bannerji. (Enclosure 3)

4. Other Khadi Centres.

Other khadi centres affected are shortly referred to in enclosure No. 4.

As to Sales Tax Act, I observe that the Act was passed on 1st July 1941. Handloom cloth was excluded from the operation of the Act, but it was amended on March 30th 1944, and the tax was raised from one to two pice per rupee. On 25th June 1945, it was raised to three pice per rupee by the Governor’s Ordinance. Handloom cloth was made taxable though originally omitted, but it is not clear when.

\[1\] The addressee said in reply that the applicant had filed a claim petition after the articles were auctioned and therefore he was asked to withdraw the sales proceeds which he declined. It was not possible to return the articles but the payment of compensation would be considered if he submitted an application to the District Magistrate to that effect.

\[2\] This and the other enclosures mentioned in the letter are not traceable.

\[3\] The addressee said in reply that the question of removing the ban on these institutions would be examined and the payment of compensation for the damage done to the property would be considered.

\[4\] The addressee said in reply that in most of the khadi centres either the immovable property had been returned or compensation in lieu of it had been paid. The cases of the remaining centres were under consideration. In cases where premises were forfeited orders were being issued either to return the premises or to provide an alternative accommodation.
sari and lungi worth Rs. 10, Rs. 15, and Rs. 18 respectively are excluded from the operation of the Act.

My point is that khadi, i.e., hand-spun and hand-woven, or hand-spun yarn should be excluded from all taxes. Logically, hand-woven cloth also, though woven from mill yarn, should be excluded for the tax hits the handloom weaver. Therefore, the exclusion of dhoti, sari and lungi is of no help. The revenue derived from khadi is altogether negligible. The revenue derived from hand-woven cloth is fair because hand-woven cloth is large enough in quantity to yield some income to the treasury, but at the poor weaver’s expense. In taxing khadi, however, thousands of poor hand-spinners are so hard hit that the tax becomes so deterrent as to be punitive. I am quite certain that such was never the intention of the farmers of the Act. The oversight has only to be brought to the notice of the Government to be remedied. I may also mention that all the khadi depots of the All-India Spinners’ Association are benevolent concerns. The conductors are servants of the A. I. S. A. which according to the recent judgment of the Privy Council, has been held to be a benevolent institution, not liable to income tax.¹

Incidentally, I may mention that whilst fresh milk is excluded from the operation of the Act, all other forms of milk such as boiled milk, pasteurized milk, dahi, etc., are taxable under the Act. The clause baffles me. The original Act is called Bengal Act of 1941.

6. Feni.

Feni is within the Japanese bombed area. Therefore, 98 villages were evacuated by the Government. Assurance is said to have been given that six months after the cessation of hostilities the villages would be returned to the villagers. Nevertheless, 28 villages appear to be still in Government possession. At the time of evacuation, removal of merchandise was strictly prohibited. This is a case demanding close inquiry.

I enclose herewith an account furnished to me, marked ‘Enclosure 5’.²

¹ The addressee assured Gandhiji that he would have the sales tax examined immediately.
² The addressee said that eight villages would be permanently acquired as they had been converted into airfields. The other 14 which were requisitioned for making bricks were being released. The accusation that people in the requisitioned areas were prevented from removing their movables was wrong. On the contrary help was given to them to do so.
I have hurriedly drawn up this letter. The chief aim is to involve as little reading as possible for you. If, however, any further papers are required I shall be prepared to furnish them on my return from Assam, I hope on the 14th. As I told you last evening I cannot myself vouch for the accuracy of the facts given. They have been to me by co-workers as being accurate. But if that is not so I stand open to correction. If, however, they are found to be accurate I suggest that they call for immediate inquiry. I have taken care to refer only to those things which can be remedied without much difficulty or expense and yet they are the things which will give relief to the neediest.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANCHI

Enclosure: 5

Gandhiji’s Correspondence with the Government, 1944-47, pp. 116-8

284. LETTER TO DEVDAS GANDHI

SODEPUR,

January 8, 1946

CHI. DEVDAS,

I got your letter about Prabhu Dayal¹ on 3-1-1946. I am very busy myself. Prabhua Dyal seems to be getting along fairly well. I expect you have detained him, let me know the developments.

Kanchan has fallen ill. I have to go to Assam today.

I hope you are all well.

Blessings from

BAPU

SJT. DEVDAS GANDHI

“HINDUSTAN TIMES”

NEW DELHI

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹Prabhu Dayal Vidyarthi
285. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

SODEPUR,

January 8, 1946

CHI. MUNNALAL,

I have sent the following wire:

As it is Kanchan was ill. She was suffering from anaemia. Dr. Bidhan sent his own pathologist, who took her blood sample and examined it. She has been found to be suffering from severe anaemia. It is because of this that her cough does not leave her. I have not known even a millionaire receive better treatment than she is receiving. Dr. Bidhan calls regularly and guides Sushilabehn. The latter had treated her once through a serious illness and hence Kanchan had complete faith in her. I do not therefore believe that you will be able to do anything more by coming here. But if you feel you must, I will not dissuade you. It might not be proper also in view of the seriousness of the illness. I have, therefore, sent the above wire. If you have already left this letter will be superfluous. But I am dictating this assuming that you have not left. If you do come the question will arise as to who will take charge there. I have therefore sent a wire to Manibhai at Sevagram saying that, if he can, he should leave immediately for Poona. If you have not already left, he will help you. Take whatever help he can give. If you have already left, Manibhai will do as he thinks best.

I had got your postcard yesterday. All the questions in it had been answered in my previous letter.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 8613. Also C.W. 7202. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

286. STATEMENT TO THE PRESS

January 9, 1946

Last night (Tuesday) was a terrible night for me. The crowds at every station were unmanageable. The shouts, although well meant, could not please me in my old age, if they ever pleased me before.

1 For the text, vide “Telegram to Munnalal G. Shah”, 8-1-1946
For I know that swaraj is made of truer and sterner stuff. They serve no useful purpose. In the beginning stages, when people out of fear were afraid to hear their own voice, shouts and slogans had a place, not today when we seem likely to achieve independence, maybe within a few months. I was allowed last night no sleep except for what I could snatch in between stations. I cannot repeat this performance for many days and hope to live to the age of one hundred and twenty-five years. Friends will now appreciate why I have hardened my heart against even a brief tour through East Bengal. I would love to travel throughout Bengal but I know that for the sake of the common cause I must restrain myself and invite friends and co-workers to do likewise. Let them and people at large satisfy themselves with what service I can render without traveling as I used to before. Let the leaders in the various places try to conciliate the populace surrounding them and advise them to restrain from shouts and slogans and from jostling one another.

One vulgar and uncivilized practice must be given up. There is the chain on every train to be used strictly in times of danger or accidents. Any other use of it and the consequent stoppage of the train is not merely a punishable offence but it is a vulgar, thoughtless and even dangerous misuse of an instrument devised for great emergencies. Any such misuse is a social abuse which, if it becomes a custom, must result in a great public nuisance. It is up to every lover of his country to issue a stern warning against such wanton abuse of a humanitarian device intended for public safety.

Amrita Bazar Patrika, 10-1-1946 and 11-1-1946
287. SPEECH AT PRAYER MEETING

SAULKUCHI,
January 9, 1946

Gandhiji said that he had noticed during the bhajan that some of the people had failed to keep time with the song, but that was pardonable. He would like that this form of congregational prayer be adopted all over Hindustan. He was told that women in Assam sang sweetly during their work, for example when they were spinning or weaving. Gandhiji had noticed that women had not joined in today’s bhajan. It might be that they were ashamed to sing in chorus, but Gandhiji told them that swaraj would not come until they gave up this feeling of shyness.

He was thankful to them for maintaining peace in the prayer meeting. In a few months they might have swaraj and they wanted to have swaraj within a few months in a peaceful way. But could they achieve swaraj if they went on shouting in season and out of season? This would go to show that they did not possess the necessary discipline.

Mahatma Gandhi referred to the experience of his journey and the indisciplined behaviour of the people at some places. He said this showed that the people had not yet fully imbibed the principle of non-violence. Indiscipline, he added, was only a variety of violence. If 40 crores of people or even a major part of them had assimilated the message of truth and non-violence which the Congress had been preaching for the last 25 years, India would have been free. But that was no reason for despair or despondency. To inculcate perfect discipline and non-violence among forty crores of people was no joke. It needed time. Twenty-five years were insufficient for such a tremendous task. That was why he desired to live 125 years so that he might, with his own eyes, see the consummation of his own ideas. But he could not hope to live up to that span of life unless the conditions attaching to it were fulfilled. If these conditions were fulfilled not only he, but anybody even in a country like India where the average expectation of life was the lowest in the world could live up to that period. It was clear, however, that if he exposed himself to experiences like that of last night his candle would be burnt out within a month.

Britishers, continued Gandhiji, might realize, as they were bound to one day, that they could not hold down an awakened people for all time with force of bayonets and therefore, decide to transfer power to them. They (the people) would find themselves in a quandary in that event, if they had no discipline and organization. He hoped that they would not allow themselves to be caught

---

1 Held on the northern bank of the Brahmaputra. The first two paragraphs are reproduced here from Amrita Bazar Patrika, 11-1-1946

206 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
napping like that.

There was no greater spell-binder of peace than the name of God, said Gandhiji. He had, therefore, commenced the practice of holding mass prayers and inviting people to join in singing Ramdhun to the beating of time with the hands, to inculcate in the masses the spirit of non-violence and discipline. He would love to see that the whole of India was covered with prayer gatherings like that.

The Hindu, 11-1-1946, and Amrita Bazar Patrika, 11-1-1946

288. STATEMENT TO THE PRESS

GAUHATI,

January 10, 1946

I have seen a report¹ in the Press wholly baseless, to the effect that I propose to give two days to Orissa before reaching Madras. I would love, if I at all could, to give some days to Orissa and some days to Andhra. But I know the limitations of My body. It gives the work that it does from day to day to the utmost limit. Therefore, I cannot break my journey either for Orissa or Andhra and I invite all friends and co-workers in these two provinces to give their fullest cooperation by telling people not to expect from me what seems to me to be impossible. I do not know who is responsible for the report in question.

Amrita Bazar Patrika, 11-1-1946

---

¹ The report appeared in Amrita Bazar Patrika, 8-1-1946
289. TELEGRAM TO JAMINI BOSE

EXPRESS
GAUHATI,
January 10, 1946

JAMINI BOSE
CONGRESS OFFICE
CHITTAGONG

YOUR WIRE. DOING NEEDFUL. WIRE OR POST FULL PARTICULARS GIVING OSTENSIBLE CAUSE OUTRAGE.2

GANDHI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

290. LETTER TO R. G. CASEY

CAMP: SARANIA ASHRAM,
GAUHATI,
January 10, 1946

DEAR FRIEND,

I enclose herewith copy of a wire3 received today. The story seems to be unbelievable. I know you will inquire and take the necessary steps, if there is any foundation for the truth of the story.4

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

H. E. THE GOVERNOR OF BENGAL
CALCUTTA

Gandhiji’s Correspondence with the Government, 1944-47, p. 114

1 President, Chittagong District Congress Committee
2 Four men of Ganjam Pioneer Corps and tried to molest a village woman near Chittagong. On their attempt being foiled by the villagers they came back in great strength and set fire to houses, assaulted men, molested women and plundered property.
3 Vide the preceding item; also “Telegram to Private Secretary to the Governor of Bengal”, 12-1-1946
4 Casey informed Gandhiji that the culprits would be tried by a civil (criminal) court.
291. LETTER TO MIRABEHN

SARANIA ASHRAM,

January 10, 1946

CHI. MIRA,

This is just to tell you that I succeeded only yesterday in studying your drawings of the Himalayan scenes. They need greater study than I was able to give them. But I had little difficulty in understanding and appreciating the love you have put into your work. Your instructions at the back are most careful.

I hope you had my previous letter in answer to your long letter. I do so wish you had less trouble with men and animals. Others must write to you about the wonderful experience I am having here.

Love.

BAPU

From the original: C.W. 6514. Courtesy: Mirabehn. Aslo G.N. 9909

292. LETTER TO TAYYEBULLA

SARANIA ASHRAM,

January 10, 1946

DEAR TAYYEBULLA,

Some mutual friend had told me of your loss before your letter was given to me on my arrival here last night at about 10 p.m. Why grieve over the inevitable? And death is the common treasure of all that lives. Imagine the torture that birth would be if there was no death! Loss therefore is a conventional word. Then true friendship is tested finally by the death of the loved one. And the verse you quote from the Holy Koran puts the finishing touch on all I say. Let Him take what He has given. Let us then praise His great name. My prayer with you.

You have done well in not coming to me.

Love.

BAPU

M.TAYYEBULLAH
NOWGONG

From a photostat: G.N. 3765. Also Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1Vide “Letter to Mirabehn”, 17-12-1945
293. LETTER TO ARTHUR HENDERSON

AS AT SEVAGRAM,
“VIA” WARDHA, C.P., INDIA,
CAMP: SARANIA ASHRAM,
GAUHATI,

January 10, 1946

Thank you for your letter received some days ago. I have been busy with the annual session of the Women’s Conference and hence unable to acknowledge it earlier. I am grateful to you for enquiring about the matters mentioned to you by me when we last met. I do so wish all political prisoners could be released. It would have a good effect. What is more, it would be an act of justice though tardy.

I enclose a list of several prisoners who have done ten to fifteen years in jail. This refers to Bengal only and then too the list is probably not exhaustive. Some are in bad health. Do you not agree that these should be released without delay?

ARTHUR HENDERSON, ESQ.
UNDER SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA
WHITE HALL
LONDON

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

294. LETTER TO CHAMPA R. MEHTA

SARANIA ASHRAM,
January 10, 1946

CHI. CHAMPA,

I got your letter here last evening. You seem to have succeeded very well. Kanta of course is a very obliging lady. She knows the art of looking after children. I am, therefore, not surprised by what you say. I am only pleased. How is Sarala? How is Kanta’s own health? Ask her to write to me.

You have said nothing about Shanti. I trust the children are all right.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 8759. Also C.W. 1046. Courtesy: Champa R. Mehta
295. LETTER TO AMTUSSALAAM

GAUHATI,

January 10, 1946

CHI. AMTUSSALAAM,

Since you have been following my suggestions without arguing about them, you are bound to get well. I should be very happy if both of you sisters¹ recover enough to be able to come to Madras. But it will be as God wills. I may not write to anybody else today. Blessings to all.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 503

296. LETTER TO PUSHPA K. DESAI

SARANIA ASHRAM,

January 10, 1946

CHI. PUSHPA,

I got your letter. Keep meeting Vinobaji from time to time.

You should regard it as your dharma to write regularly courteous letters to Father. If you want to tread the path of truth, you should lovingly and in a spirit of humility do whatever work of service is entrusted to you. If you understand only this much, all your problems will be solved. To say that God may lead you to this path of truth would be tautologous. Truth itself is God. Hence dedication to truth is itself discovery of the path of truth. Reflect on all the implications of the path of bhakti from this point of view.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 9269

¹ The addressee and Kanchan M. Shah
297. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA

SARANIA ASHRAM,
January 10, 1946

CHI. KRISHNACHANDRA.

I have your two letters before me, which I am enclosing. I am sorry to learn that Parnerkar’s sister’s son has passed away. I understand what you say about Anantramji. It will be good if he grows leafy vegetables. See how much land Aryanyakumji wants and where he would like to have it. In my opinion, we should give him whatever he wants. Maybe I have left out something but today only this much.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

298. SPEECH AT PRAYER MEETING

GAUHATI,
January 10, 1946

Gandhiji congratulated the gathering on the beautiful way in which they had followed Ramdhun. Particularly he was pleased that women had whole-heartedly joined in it without any feeling of false shame. In taking the name of God, hesitation and fear as well as false shame were equally out of place. The man who had the realization of God Who dwelt in the hearts of all beings should know no fear.

“Jai Hind” should not replace “Vandemataram”.\(^1\) The words which Subhas Bose uttered were very pleasant to hear. But by this people should not forget Vandemataram which was being uttered since the inception of the Congress. First, they should say “Vandemataram” and then “Jai Hind”. He would whole-heartedly return that greeting but it should not be to the exclusion of “Vandemataram”. If they could discard “Vandemataram” which had such a tradition of sacrifice behind it, he was afraid they would one day discard “Jai Hind” also.

\(^1\) The source had reported that Gandhiji was greeted by some girl volunteers with ‘Jai Hind’ as he arrived at the prayer ground.

THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
Gandhiji reiterated his belief that Subhas Babu was not dead, but was hiding somewhere and said that if he could communicate with Subhas Babu, he was sure the latter would endorse him in his view about “Vandemataram”.

The Hindu, 12-1-1946

299. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

GAUHATI,
January 11, 1946

CHI. MUNNALAL,

I got your wire. Your decision not to come over is perfectly correct. It was my dharma to send you the wire that I did. I had explained to you what your dharma was at the time of your father’s death. You have adhered to that. May you be blessed. I daily get news about Kanchan’s progress I am dictating this in the early hours of the morning. I had a wire from Sushila yesterday, saying that Kanchan was improving. She gives the credit to penicillin. I believe that Sushila has nursed her very well indeed. She has stayed behind entirely for the sake of Kanchan. Let us see now what happens. Perhaps this serious illness may bring about a complete transformation in Kanchan. She is simple-hearted but is very much of a child also. As she grows in age, she does not correspondingly grow in understanding. Can it be that you are the cause of that? The people around us believe so, and hold me also jointly responsible with you. I do not admit the charge. But that is another matter. I have mentioned the thing in case you would like to think over it.

Manibhai must have arrived there by now. We had in any case decided to summon him there, and because of the development regarding Kanchan I felt it my dharma to send him there and asked him to proceed immediately if he was free. I have had very little experience of him. But Shantilal, who has lived at Sevagram for some time, and Ishvarlal Desai, husband of Nirmala, Mahadev’s sister, have given me the impression that he is a man of uncommon ability. Narahari has had experience of him and seen his worth. You will, therefore, find Manibhai of the greatest help. He is a capable man at any rate.

I have been insisting on the account books being kept in English entirely for the sake of Jehangirji. If he is not keen on that,

1 Vide also “Discussion with Midnapore Political Workers”, 2-1-1946
2 Jehangir Patel
you may by all means have them kept in Hindi or Marathi. Can it be so arranged that the months and the dates are entered according to the Gregorian calendar, so that Jehangirji can check them?

You can show this letter to Dinshaw. You may show him any letter of mine.

Give the accompanying letter to Manibhai. Give Doctor the letter I am writing for him.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 8618. Also C.W. 7204. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

300. LETTER TO SITA CHARAN DIKSHIT

GAUHATI,
January 11, 1946

BHAJ DIKSHITIJ,

I have your clear letter. It is good that you have written frankly. I am dictating this also at a Mahila Ashram. It is in Gauhati. A camp of the Kasturba Fund is being held here. On one side there is a village and on the other Gauhati city. It is utterly peaceful.

It gave me satisfaction to know that the cereals which were used for the camp would be cooked as kedgeree. It is quite true that I like garba and this I mentioned there. In one way I liked the scene, but from another point of view I did not like it and felt sorry.¹ I could not then express myself in words as I was deeply moved. My heart has already in Bengal. I can never say that there was anything wrong in what you did. There was nothing wrong. The whole scene was one of love and it was performed with my consent. Even so I had some talk with Shriman Narayan. But its purport was quite different. I do not remember whether I was able to convey it or not. But if I could not speak out then I am telling you now. The Mahila Ashram is an institution of the poor. It is born of a noble sentiment. It is filled with Jamnalalji’s feelings and Vinobaji’s tapascharya. It is regarded as a good means of rendering service to poor women. And its management is in the hands of Shantabehn. And yet what a difference between what does on in such an institution and the almost naked

¹Vide “Speech at Mahila Ashram”, 30-11-1945 condition of the millions of poor women of India and Bengal. And I being a witness to all this. It wrung my heart then. Even as I recall the scene, my heart weeps. Even if I could not convey my meaning, Shriman understood it and conveyed it. I dictate this early in the morning. If it calls for further explanation, or if you want to know more, ask me when I come there. You may share this letter with all.

Blessings from
BAPU

From Hindi: C.W. 10421. Courtesy: Sita Charan Dikshit

301. LETTER TO MANIBHAI

SARANIA ASHRAM, ASSAM,
January 11, 1946

CHI. MANIBHAI,

Naraharibhai replied to my wire and what I had expected has come about. Give all help to Munnalal. Do as much as you can without harming your health. I expect to see in all you do firmness, sweetness, cleanliness and skill. That is the impression Chi. Shantilal has given of you and, as far as my experience goes, you have lived up to this reputation. I had intended to take you to Poona with me but circumstances have conspired otherwise; and I think it is all for the better. Please write to me. Munnalal will give you my itinerary.

I hope your leaving Sevagram has not inconvenienced Nara-hari.

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

302. LETTER TO DINSHAW K. MEHTA

SARANIA ASHRAM,
January 11, 1946

CHI. DINSHAW,

Chi. Munnalal’s wife Kanchanbehn has been very ill, so I sent a wire saying that he should be relieved if he wanted to come away. I assumed that someone would have to replace him there and so telegraphed to Sevagram also asking them to send M[anibhai], whom I regard as very competent. He has promptly left for Poona.
I am glad I have been told that Manibhai is a very good worker. I believe it. I have hardly any personal experience of him. You will have some.
I hope you received the Rs. 10,000 I sent you, so the new account will not suffer from paucity of funds.

The patients who were already there should adapt themselves to the new pattern. They should mix with the poor. Everyone should be punctual to the minute. Over and above this, you should accommodate them only if they pay or else let them leave. This alone will be true comradeship. We cannot any more allot separate rooms to the patients according to their wishes. In fact for the present we cannot accommodate patients who need separate rooms. I have already written to you to allow as much privacy as the patients may need. I hope you remember it. If you haven’t had such instructions from me so far, please make a note now.

Munnalal suggests that the English method of book-keeping is more expensive. I believe it is true. How would it matter if we maintained accounts in the Indian style? The Indian method can also ensure accurate account-keeping. Indian firms maintain accounts in the Indian way and carry on business in millions involving dealings with English banks. And since our little affair is going to be and should be worthy of an Indian we ought to infuse into it the swadeshi atmosphere as far as possible right from the beginning. Please show this letter to Jehangirji. It was at his instance that we had agreed to maintain accounts in the English way. But I believe, if opting for the English method is likely to cause an expenditure of Rs. 40 to 50 per month, Jehangirji would be in favour of saving the amount. The money that I shall contribute must be regarded as belonging to the poor. I may be getting it from the rich, but once it comes into my hands it becomes the poor man’s pie, to be spent solely for the poor. All my dealings are carried on in the same old way and it pains me that now because of my old age I cannot fully follow that way, and I also put up with the situation because I cannot get on otherwise. But I must not burden others with my foibles.

I hope you got my earlier letters, and have replied to them.

For the present save all avoidable expenditure. I shall try my best to reach there on the 20th or the 21st of February. It is in God’s hands whether I shall succeed.

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
303. LETTER TO SUSHILA GANDHI

SARANIA ASHRAM, GAUHATI,
[January 11, 1946]

CHI. SUSHILA (GANDHI),

I saw what you wrote at the bottom of Arun’s2 letter. You will know from my letter to him how my mind is working. You should not be soft. There is a famous line in Kalidasa and, I think also in the Bhagavata. It says that love is more tender than a flower and harder than steel.3 That alone is love which can soften or harden with the occasion, all else is infatuation. Those who are worldly-wise should also note that such famous sayings are often misconstrued.

There are many occasions when I remember all of you. There are also occasions when there is a feeling of relief that you did not come. The experience which you are gaining there and what Arun and Ila are witnessing is of course worth while. Maybe, comparatively speaking that is better than anything else. Ila for one was not likely to have imbibed anything in this place. Hence, for her at least I regard this atmosphere as positively bad. You needed peace. You cannot expect to find peace in my company, especially while I am touring. Arun’s can be considered a different case, yet on the whole he is likely to be safest while he is before your eyes. He is a fine boy. I am of the view that he will have achieved all if he grows finer and finer. As for the other development everything happens in its own course. And in the absence of nobility of character even the Kingdom of Heaven is meaningless.

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

---

1 The letter is found among letters of this date.
2 The addressee’s son
3 वज्रदानि कठोराविभ मूर्तिन कुमुमादपिः, Uttararamcharita, II. 7
304. LETTER TO KAILAS D. MASTER

GAUHATI,
January 11, 1946

CHI. KAILAS,

I have your letter. I shall say you have grown very wise if you get good testimonials from everyone there. And then I shall have nothing more to say to you. I shall be glad and the expectations that Prabhudas himself has entertained and has encouraged me to entertain of you will bear fruit. Besides, you already have my blessing that you may grow to be a very fine girl. There is much scope there to learn for anyone who wants.

I have your brother’s letter to which I am enclosing a reply. Pass it on to him after you have read it. Don’t encourage him to come till you are yourself perfectly settled and don’t let him come until he grows into a very hard-working, firm and obedient boy. The question of his earning anything does not arise. See that in your zeal you do not encourage him only to repent later and cause embarrassment to others. You must watch out. You must draw your letters still bigger and you must form them well. You have learnt Urdu, haven’t you?

Blessings from
BAPU

KAILASBEHN

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

305. LETTER TO JITU MASTER

GAUHATI,
January 11, 1946

CHI. JITU'.

I have your letter. You must improve your handwriting. I am glad you want to live in the Ashram. But it is a difficult life. You can lead Ashram life in your home and pursue the crafts

---

1 The letter is in the Devanagari script.
2 Brother of Kailash D. Master; vide the preceding item. that are pursued in the Ashram. If you don’t have the strength to do it the Ashram cannot endow you with it. Wanting to live in the Ashram merely for this is, I am afraid, mere infatuation.¹

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

306. LETTER TO ARUN GANDHI

GAUHATI,
January 11, 1946

CHI. ARUN,

I have your letter. I find it better than your earlier one, although it has scope for improvement, which you must bring about. I would always advise you and it is my wish that wherever you be you will always fully observe your vow.

I can very well understand that there are difficulties while one is travelling. It is also quite understandable that sometimes one just cannot spin however much one wants to. I shouldn’t mind if you are not lazy but fail to spin owning to some unavoidable circumstances. Thorough observance of one vow straightens out all other matters. This is invariably found to be the case.

Why is Ila growing insolent. As her elder brother, you are, I think, to blame for it. She is a nice girl. You can therefore help her make good progress.²

Blessings from
BAPU

ARUN GANDHI
DELHI

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ The letters are in the Devanagari script.
² ibid
307. LETTER TO PRABHU DAYAL VIDYARThI

GAUHATI,
January 11, 1946

CHI. PRABHU DAYAL,

I was glad to have your letter. I had seen your letter to Sushilabehn and I think she had sent a reply also.

It is right for you to remain there as long as they do not relieve you.

I shall pay your expenses, including your return fare. Draw the amount from Devdas and that, too, from my account. As long as Devdas is there, there should be no need to send it from the Ashram. The Government have of course offered to pay for your journeys. All this is only for your information.

The Delhi weather is considered to be the best during this season. Normally, [good] climate and pure food are adequate for maintaining good health.

I understand about the Jamia. It would indeed be good if they let you stay there. Maybe they cannot for want of accommodation but if the reason is paucity of funds you can tell them that your expenses will be borne by the Ashram.

I am writing to Bhai Shriram. It is good that you informed me.

From here, I shall reach Sodepur on the 14th and on the 19th. I may leave there for Madras. That means that a letter written to reach me by the 19th, should be sent to the Sodepur address.

C/O DEVDAS GANDHI
“HINDUSTAN TIMES”
NEW DELHI

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 11696. Also Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
308. LETTER TO SHRIRAM SHARMA

[January 11, 1946]

BHAI SHRIRAMJI SHARMA,

Prabhu Dayal writes that you lost a son while you were in jail and another after your release. What can I write to you? How can I console you? But where is any call for consolation on a death? Why fear death? Is death painful? And is birth joyful? Why is it that great epics such as the Ramayana teach the same thing? Because, on reflection, we find that birth and death are but two sides of the same thing. What is there good or bad about it? A world without death would be a frightful thing. Maybe the world would then have perished. All this is not philosophizing but an utterance of the thoughts that come to my mind.

Prabhu Dayal also writes that after meditation in the jail, your faith in truth and non-violence has grown much stronger and that you and your whole family spin beautiful yarn. All this makes me very happy.

My Assam tour will end tomorrow. I intend to leave Calcutta for Madras on the 19th and February 8 is the date when I reach Sevagram.

My address in Madras: Dakshina Bharat Hindi Prachar Sabha, Thyagarayanagar. At Calcutta, it will of course be Khadi Pratishthan, Sodepur. I shall expect your reply at either Place.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRIRAM SHARMA
BALKA BASTI
NAGPUR

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

---

1 In the source this is placed among the letters of this date.
309. LETTER TO ADVAITKUMAR GOSWAMI

[January 11, 1946]

BHAJ ADVAITKUMAR,

I have your letter. I am trying to find out. Let us see what happens.

I have the Raja Saheb’s letter. I have not yet read it.

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

SHRI ADVAITKUMAR GOSWAMI
C/O MUNICIPAL COMMISSIONER
BRINDABAN

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

310. LETTER TO SHANTA NERULKAR

SARANIA ASHRAM,

[January 11, 1946]

CHI. SHANTA,

I have your letter. You write with too much hesitation. There is no reason for it. It does not matter that I may not reply. I must still have letters from you.

Your illness pains me. One who would serve the villages should have a body strong as steel.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRIMATI SHANTA NERULKAR

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

---

1 In the source this is placed among the letters of this date.
2 Presumably Raja Mahendra Pratap; vide “Letter to G.E.B. Abell”, 12-1-1946
3 In the source this is placed among the letters of this date.
311. SPEECH AT KASTURBA MEMORIAL COMMITTEE MEETING

GAUHATI,
January 11, 1946

Addressing the gathering, Gandhiji explained the aims and objects of Kasturba Memorial Trust which had been started during the period when he was in jail. Later on he lent a hand in framing the Trust of the Fund. The idea behind the whole scheme of Kasturba Trust had been to make women self-reliant and self-sufficient. This did not mean that men would go down, but if womenfolk improved and raised themselves up, men would automatically be raised higher. It is good that in India there were no quarrels between the menfolk and the womenfolk as existed in other countries. But that did not mean that the condition of Indian women was better than those of European countries. If the resources of Assam could be utilized, then the face of Assam could be changed. So much time was wasted in useless and idle talk. If they kept a diary of their work for the 24 hours, then they would know it. If they could utilize only a portion of the time they wasted for constructive work, there would be a wonderful improvement in their condition. In Assam muga industry was one through which people could change their conditions considerably and thus could do immense service to the cause of their country.

He knew that quite a number of ladies had come merely to see him. But he could tell them that if they could devote all their strength to the execution of his constructive programme they would be immensely benefited.

Gandhiji emphasized that beauty lay not in ornaments or fine clothes but in doing something good and in applying oneself to doing some service to others.

Replying to certain questions, Gandhiji said that the relation between the Congress and the Kasturba Memorial Trust was nothing but at the same time everything. If Congressmen took interest, the relation was there. If not, there was no relation.

Amrita Bazar Patrika, 13-1-1946, and The Hindu, 13-1-1946

1. This was held at Sarania Ashram to seek Gandhiji’s advice on uplift of women.
2. On March 18, 1944
3. In 1944
4. What follows is reproduced from The Hindu, 13-1-1946.
312. SPEECH AT PRAYER MEETING

GUAHATI,
January 11, 1946

Gandhiji said that prayer was his life. He felt that the man who did not pray was a dry person, devoid of everything. He did not know whether salvation could come in the other world. He wanted salvation in this world, and did not bother about the other world. As he was a social being he could not have salvation for himself alone. That was why he wanted to share prayer with all of them.

Gandhiji was sorry that there was some misunderstanding about his going to the women’s ashram (a centre of constructive work in a tribal area about 20 miles from here). He did not promise to go there, but a number of persons collected there and they were grieved as he did not go. He wanted to tell them through the people here and to the whole of India as well, that he had not the capacity now to go from place to place in view of his old age. He therefore wanted to work staying at one place.

Amrita Bazar Patrika, 12-1-1946

313. LETTER TO HOSHIARI

[After January 11, 1946]

CHI. HOSHIARI,

I have your letter. Why is your mind perturbed at times? If you have grown wise enough there can be no cause for disturbance. Isn’t it our duty to be completely engrossed in our own work of service? At the Ashram especially, every minute of one’s time has to be devoted to service. What more can you ask for? It is equally important that you maintain good health. For that hip-bath, friction-bath, mud-packs on the abdomen and regular walks are essential. For strength of character and concentration Ramanama.

Does Gajaraj attend school regularly? Ask him to write to me.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 In the source the letter is placed after those of January 11.
314. TELEGRAM TO PRIVATE SECRETARY TO THE GOVERNOR OF BENGAL

GAUHATI,
January 12, 1946

PRIVATE SECRETARY
H. E. GOVERNOR
CALCUTTA

PRESIDENT CONGRESS COMMITTEE CHITTAGONG SENDS WIRE ACCUSING CERTAIN PIONEER FORCE PERSONS MOLESTING FEMALES AND WHEN RESISTED RETURNING IN VENGEANCE WITH COMPANIONS ATTACKING VILLAGERS BURNING HOUSES LOOTING PROPERTY. TRUST FULL INQUIRY WILL BE MADE AND PROPER JUSTICE RENDERED.¹

GANDHI

Gandhiji’s Correspondence with the Government, 1944-47, pp. 114-5

315. TELEGRAM TO NAWAB OF BHOPAL

EXPRESS
GAUHATI,
January 12, 1946

H. H. BHOPAL
BARODA HOUSE
NEW DELHI

YOUR KIND WIRE. BHOPAL SEEMS IMPOSSIBLE. NOT SURE ABOUT DELHI. WRITING.

GANDHI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Vide “Telegram to Jamini Bose”, 10-1-1946
DEAR SIR STAFFORD,

I was delighted to receive your letter of 19th December, 1945. As I am touring in Bengal and Assam, your kind greetings were received only yesterday. The Rajkumari had described her talks with you and told me how affectionate you were towards me. I am hoping that this time there is determination to do the right thing in terms of Indian thought. I well remember what King Edward had said about right dealing. I was then in South Africa. The question was of interpreting the treaty between the British and the Boers and the King had gently insisted on the Boer interpretation being accepted in preference to the British. How I wish that the admirable canon be repeated this time.

I hope with you that this New Year will bring to the thirsting earth the much-needed shower of peace and goodwill for which the “Prince of Peace” lived and died.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

SIR R. STAFFORD CRIPPS
BOARD OF TRADE
MILLBANK
LONDON, S.W. 1

Gandhiji’s Correspondence with the Government, 1944-47. pp. 175-6

1 This said: “I most profoundly hope that in these coming months we shall be able by mutual understanding, respect and trust, to work out between us a happier and brighter future for India. I know you have laboured for this throughout your life and I pray that it may be given to you to see the climax of your hopes in the realization of your desires. I shall, as always, try and play my part towards that happy solution of the great problems which confront our two countries.”

1 The reference is to the Cabinet Mission, consisting of three members including the addressee, which was to arrive in India with a view to finding a solution for the Indian Problem.
317. LETTER TO G. E. B. ABELL

AS FROM KHADI PRATISHTHAN, SODEPUR,
CAMP: GAUHATI,
January 12, 1946

DEAR MR. ABELL,

I am writing to you on behalf of Gandhiji. A couple of days ago he received a letter from Raja Mahendra Pratap dated October 19th, 1945, from Yokohama Prison. The letter came through the American Red Cross. He has also received a letter from a friend of Raja Mahendra Pratap to say that rumour has it that he is now in prison somewhere in India. Is this true? If so, could you let Gandhiji have any particulars about him?

Yours sincerely,

AMRIT KAUR

Gandhiji's Correspondence with the Government, 1944-47, p. 78

318. LETTER TO M. R. JAYAKAR

CAMP: GAUHATI,
January 12, 1946

DEAR DR. JAYAKAR,

Your kind letter and copy of the Sapru Committee\(^1\) Report was received during my Assam tour. I was wondering why I had not received a copy and had to content myself with Press notices. I had come to the conclusion that my copy must have been sent to Seva-gram and was awaiting my return there. I was, therefore, doubly pleased to find your letter and a copy of the report during my stay in Gauhati.

I wonder if you have seen the enclosed cutting.

I propose to read the report if I can find sufficient time for it. In any case I know enough of the report from my discussions

---

\(^1\) The addressee informed Gandhiji that Raja Mahendra Pratap was in Tokyo and he no longer possessed British Indian nationality.

\(^2\) Appointed by the Standing Committee of the Non-Party Conference in November 1944. Its report, which was compiled by T. B. Sapru, M. R. Jayakar, N. Gopalaswami Iyengar and Kunwar Jagdish Prasad, was published on December 27, 1945. For a summary of the proposals, vide “The Sapru Committee Proposals”, 27-12-1945 with you and Dr. Radhakrishnan to feel that it is bound to be of value to constitution-makers.

Whilst I send this letter in English for fear of your resentment, I must inform you that nowadays to most Indian friends I have been studiedly writing in Hindustani or, when I find it is cruel to write to a countryman in the South in Hindustani, I take special care to get someone near me who knows one of the Southern languages to write in it. So I hope you will not mind receiving my letter one fine morning written in rashtrabhasha.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

Enclosure: cutting from The Statesman, 28-12-1945, entitled “Out of date”.

DR. M. R. JAYAKAR
WINTER ROAD
MALABAR HILL, BOMBAY

319. LETTER TO G. A. NATESAN

[AS AT] SODEPUR,
January 12, 1946

BHAI NATESAN,

Your two letters. Jagadisan wrote to me about the state of Sas-triar’s health. I shall certainly see him.

As for visiting your house, I am at present unable to decide. Apart from the question whether I shall have the time for the purpose, the trouble of the journey to and fro may be too much for me to bear.

What can I—who have not read many books—say about books? Again, do I have Sastriar’s power of writing? It is said that few are as well read as he and that the books he has not read are not worth reading. But I for my part have not read most of the books that ought to be read. What then could I write? And where is the time?

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat of the Tamil: G.N. 2239. Also C.W. 10525

1 V. S. Srinivasa Sastri, vide also “Letter to V. S. Srinivasa Sastri”
2 The addressee was publishing in Indian Review, of which he was the editor, a symposium on “Books that have influenced me”.
3 The letter was originally written in Hindi but the translation of it in Tamil bears Gandhiji’s signature in Tamil.
DEAR MARGARET,

You will pardon me when I tell you that I had forgotten—which I should not have done—that you were in Shillong. I am going to Dhubri today and from there tomorrow I say goodbye to Assam. Therefore, for the folly of my forgetfulness—and shall I also say your folly in not descending to Gauhati to meet me—I shall have to go away without seeing you even though you are within such a short distance of me. However, it is good that you have reminded me of your presence in Shillong and told me how well you are doing there. I am sure you have gained by following my instructions about not taking part in the political turmoil.

Yes. I have been hearing fairly regularly from Mary. I agree with you that she will return to India when your father does not need her services. So far as I gather from her letters, however, she does not expect to come back to India in the near future. It does appear as if there ever will be a time when your father will not need her services. According to my calculation if the old Mr. Barr’s life is being spent in accordance with the teaching of Ishopanishad, he must complete the full span of life i.e., 125 years. Have you read that little Upanishad? If not you should get a copy from some library there or at least in Dr. B. C. Roy’s collection. I suppose you know he has a bungalow there.

I shall be in Khadi Pratishthan, Sodepur, near Calcutta, for 4 or 5 days and then proceed to Madras.

Love.

BAPU

MISS MARGARET BARR
MALKI, SHILLONG

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 This was delivered by hand on January 12.

2 Addressee’s sister
321. LETTER TO RAJA MAHENDRA PRATAP

January 12, 1946

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter after a long lapse of time. It appears to be a manifesto and you have invited publication of it. I, however, refrain from sending it to the Press at the moment. I would like to know from you whether you are allowed to receive visitors. Goswami has enquired about you to find out your whereabouts and suddenly within two days of this enquiry I got your letter. Are you permitted to tell me whether you are to be tried or how long you are to be detained? From your letter I gather that you are keeping well and are being well treated. Are you kept in company with others or are you by yourself? Your friends and advisers would certainly like to know all about you.

Yours sincerely,

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

322. LETTER TO SECRETARY, AMERICAN RED CROSS, CALCUTTA

AS FROM KHADI PRATISHTHAN, SODEPUR,

January 12, 1946

DEAR FRIEND,

I am enclosing herewith a letter from Gandhiji addressed to Raja Mahendra Pratap, who was arrested some five months ago in Tokyo by Gen. MacArthur for trial as a war criminal by the British. Gandhiji’s letter is in reply to a letter just received from Raja Mahendra Pratap dated 19th October, 1945. The letter is written in the letter head of the American Red Cross and the address given is:

XI CORPS STOKADE NO. 1
YOKOHAMA PRISON
APO 503, JAPAN.

A long time has elapsed since this letter was written and it has even been reported that Raja Mahendra Pratap has been handed over to the British by

1 The addressee who had been imprisoned by the U. S. Occupation Authorities in Japan had requested Gandhiji to do everything humanly possible to have him freed so that he could work for world peace.

2 Advaitkumar Goswami
Gen. MacArthur and is now somewhere in India. Since the letter is written in the letterhead of the American Red Cross I presume you will be able to forward this letter to him. Gandhiji will be grateful if you can furnish him the address of Raja Mahendra Pratap.

A line in reply to the effect that Gandhiji’s letter has been forwarded to Raja Mahendra Pratap will be appreciated.\(^1\)

Yours sincerely,

AMRIT KAUR

SECRETARY
AMERICAN RED CROSS
CALCUTTA

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy. Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

323. LETTER TO SITA VIJAYARAGHAVACHARI

CAMP: GAUHATI,
January 12, 1946

CHI. SITA,

I am delighted to have your letter. I see that you do know some Hindustani. Why then should you write in English? I well remember how devotedly you looked after your father and how you meant everything to him. But why are you grieved over his passing?\(^2\)

It is difficult for me to go to Salem. I would be glad if you could come and see me some day after I reach Madras.

I very well remember the affection your father had for me. I expect to reach Madras after the 21st of this month.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRIMATI SITA VIJAYARAGHAVACHARIAR
SALEM

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

\(^1\) C. Vijayaraghavachari; he was President of the Nagpur session of the Congress in 1920.

\(^2\) He died on April 19, 1944, at Salem.
324. LETTER TO SARALABEHN

SODEPUR,
January 12, 1946

CHI. SARALA,

I have your letter. It gives all the news. Do whatever your health permits.

It is good that you informed me about the Nainital friend. When it is turned into a hospital the house, I am sure, will prove a great help to the poor.

I hope you have not forgotten your Urdu lessons. Ten minutes devoted to a thing daily produce far better results than hours spent on it irregularly; this is an unwritten law.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRIMATI SARALABEHN
LAKSHMI ASHRAM
[KAUSANI]

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

325. LETTER TO N. G. RANGA

GAUHATI, ASSAM,
January 12, 1946

BHAI RANGA,

I have your letter. Do as you like about your forthcoming book.

Your latest book has not yet been received. I shall go through it when I get it.

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

---

1 Catherine Heilman, an English Jewess. She first came to India in 1932 as a teacher in an experimental school at Udaipur.

2 Presumably Mahatma Gandhi’s Message to Oppressed Races

3 Presumably Outlines of National revolutionary Path, which was published in December 1945
326. TALK TO HARIJANS

GAUHATI,
January 12, 1946

He enquired about their wages, their accommodation and their food supply. When his attention was drawn to the next engagement, which was a meeting with sufferers of the August movement, Gandhiji was heard to say that he would also meet them now. They were martyrs and many people would feel for them, but nobody would feel for these Harijans.

Referring to the condition of the Harijans he said that he knew how they lived and what they ate. Their condition was almost similar to what it was in other parts of India. Gandhiji asked two headmen of the Harijans to wait and see Mrs. Jayaprakash Narayan and give her a detailed account of their condition. He would try to do what he could for them.

Amrita Bazar Patrika, 13-1-1946

327. TALK TO SUFFERERS OF AUGUST DISTURBANCES

GAUHATI,
January 12, 1946

Giving his blessings to these sufferers, Mahatmaji said that the victims had done what duty they had to do for the country. There was nothing for which they or the members of their families should be sorry. At yesterday’s prayer meeting he had asked people to be fearless. They (family members) also should be fearless.

Amrita Bazar Patrika, 13-1-1946

328. SPEECH AT POLITICAL WORKERS’ CONFERENCE

GAUHATI,
January 12, 1946

Explaining the scope of the constructive programme to them Gandhiji by way of an illustration described how a capital expenditure of about twenty five lakhs of rupees had been able to put into the pockets of the poor a sum amounting to not less

1 Gandhiji met about four hundred Harijans at Sarania Ashram.
2 Vide the following item.
3 About seven hundred workers were present at the meeting.
than five crores of rupees. Indian cloth consumption, he said, amounted to about one hundred crores of rupees according to the present price level. All that money can be prevented from going out of the pockets of the people by fulfilling one item of the constructive programme, namely, khadi.

With regard to parliamentary programme Gandhiji reiterated what he had previously said¹ at Sodepur. He was fully convinced that if all the people boycotted the legislatures, the country or the nation would not be losers by that. On the contrary, Gandhiji stressed that it would mean a great addition to their strength.
But he realized that was not practical politics at present and as a realist he realized the necessity of preventing self-seekers and enemies of the freedom of India from entering the legislatures. The main function of the legislatures should be the advancement of constructive work. Any programme that hindered constructive work was not worth taking up. As an illustration of constructive work Gandhiji mentioned the services to Adivasis. Today, he said, they had been divided into watertight compartments by the ruling power and that was why Adivasis had been classified as tribal races. It was a shame that they should be isolated from the nation of which they were an inalienable part. Here was a vast field of constructive work which Gandhiji exhorted all to take up. Nobody could prevent them from undertaking this kind of constructive work. And if for undertaking constructive work they were put in jail, they should not be afraid of jail-goings. In this connection Gandhiji referred to his own stand in the Champaran Satyagraha.

In the course of his long and convincing speech Gandhiji made references to the names of Abbas Tyabji, Badshah Khan and Pandit Jawaharlal in order to illustrate his points by concrete examples.

Amrita Bazar Patrika, 14-1-1946

329. MESSAGE TO ASSAM STUDENT VOLUNTEERS

SARANIA ASHRAM,

January 12, 1946

I thank all volunteers of Assam Students’ Union for the services they rendered and wish them all success. My blessings are with them.

Amrita Bazar Patrika, 14-1-1946

¹Vide “Speech at Congress Workers Conference-II”, 6-1-1946

234 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
ON THE STEAMER,
January 13, 1946

CHI. VICHITRA,

I have your letter of 26-12-1945. Come and see me by all means. Consult Dada if you want. I see that you and Jajuji do not get on well. I am unable to make up my mind whether I should try to persuade you to keep together or let you work independently in your different ways. Either course can be justified. What harm could there be if you were to work independently of the Charkha Sangh? You are both devoted to khadi. It is possible that under Jajuji’s control, the Meerut Gandhi Ashram’s progress is arrested and they cannot work to their full capacity. If it is so and if Jawaharlalji and Pantji are also of the same opinion, why not have a separate organization for khadi in the U. P.? Assuming that it is done for the love of khadi and if, as a result, khadi is more successful in the U. P., such a step would only do good instead of harm. There have been many instances in my life when I gave such encouragement and it always resulted in good. The latest instance is that of the Hindi Sahitya sammelan. I quit it. How could I oppose Tandonji? He had the main part in building up the organization. I do not approve of his present policies and feel that I would be able to serve Hindi well, perhaps even better, by keeping out of it. In case it does not turn out so, I shall admit my mistake and follow Tandonji. But if I have not made a mistake, I shall only further the cause of the Hindi Sahitya Sammelan from outside. The important point is that our actions should not be inspired by selfish motives and our ultimate aim should be one and the same. Maybe I should be able to make a definite statement if I could meet all the people.

Think well over this letter, consult the others and write to me what you think is the proper course of action. I shall reach Madras probably on the 21st and shall stay there for 15 days. You may come there if you like. Jajuji will of course be there. You need not go there immediately I arrive. We can manage even if you come in the beginning of February. My sole intention is that all khadi devotees should make all-round progress and khadi should get its rightful place. Of course, if you do not sincerely believe in non-violence, do not consider khadi its symbol and have no faith in my present policy with regard to khadi, then it is a different matter. When our views differ to such an extent, the question assumes a wholly different form. And if, while maintaining different views with regard to the above three points you still want to serve khadi, you must dissociate yourself from the Sangh. Then the question is not one of differences with Jajuji but of differences over principle, and if that be the case they ought to be cleared up.

_Blessings from_

_BAPU_

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

331. LETTER TO DR. PATTABHI SITARAMAYYA

ON TOUR IN ASSAM,
January 13, 1946

BHAI PATTABHI,

I enclose herewith a cutting\(^1\) from _The Nationalist_ of Calcutta. Is the report correct? If so, we have no right to offend anyone like this. Whatever the case we have to be civil in the face of incivility. This is the secret of non-violence. There is nothing indecorous if your association is represented by ten delegates.

Think over it and do as you think right.

_Blessings from_

_BAPU_

PATTABHI SITARAMAYYA

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

332. LETTER TO NAWAB OF BHOPAL

P. S. Persian,
January 13, 1946

NAWAB SAHEB,

I had your wire. I hope you got my reply\(^2\) sent from Gauhati. My position is not at all comfortable. The pressure of work is so

\(^1\) Not traceable
\(^2\) Vide “Telegram to Nawab of Bhopal”, 12-1-1946
heavy that if I take one hour off, one hour’s work piles up. Under the circumstances how can I go to Bhopal? I have to keep some margin of time for Delhi because in the event of my presence being indispensable I have to go there. In that case, I shall inform you accordingly.

I hope you will understand my helplessness. What more can I say?

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

BY HAND

From a copy of the Urdu. Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

333. INTERVIEW TO UNITED PRESS OF INDIA

[January 13, 1946]

Asked whether the cry of Jai Hind could be appropriately adopted in a nonviolent action since originally it was devised by Netaji Subhas Chandra Bose as a war cry, Mahatma Gandhi said:

It does not follow that because Jai Hind was devised by Subhas Babu as a war cry in armed warfare, it must be eschewed in a non-violent action. On that basis even Vandemataram may have to be given up because there are instances of people committing violence with this cry on their lips. If a thing is essentially an evil it becomes a positive duty to abjure it. In my opinion Jai Hind and Vandemataram have almost the same meaning. In one we make obeisance to Mother India and thereby wish her victory; the other merely wishes her victory. There is no question of singing the two together. As I have said before Jai Hind cannot replace Vandemataram.

Asked whether Netaji Subhas Chandra Bose enjoyed the same place in his esteem and affection and whether he heard what Netaji and written about him in his reported book Father of All Nations, as was believed in some sections of the people of Assam, Gandhiji replied:

I have not read what Subhas Babu is reported to have said about me. But I am not surprised at what you tell me. My relations with him were always of the purest and best. I always knew his capacity for 1 Gandhiji was interviewed by a special correspondent of U. P. I. aboard the steamer Persian which he boarded at Gauhati in the evening of January 12 for going to Dhubri where he arrived on January 13, 1946.

2 Vide “Speech at Prayer Meeting”, 10-1-1946
sacrifice. But a full knowledge of his resourcefulness, soldiership and organizing ability came to me only after his escape from India. The difference of outlook between him and me as to the means is too well known for comment.

Amrita Bazar Patrika, 15-1-1946

334. SPEECH AT PRAYER MEETING

GOALPARA,
January 13, 1946

Gandhiji reiterated that there could be no non-violent swaraj which was but another name for Ramrajya except through the charkha. His definition of Ramrajya was that under it even the weakest must enjoy the same freedom and same rights as the strongest. For that it was necessary that even the physically weakest person should be able to take due share in the struggle for independence. In other words, women and children should be able to play an equal part with men. It was clear that this was not possible in armed warfare.

Gandhiji’s reading of India’s history was that every time the people made use of armed forces for their protection it only resulted in tightening their bondage. The so-called protectors in their turn, Gandhiji added, became oppressors. But under non-violence as symbolized by the spinning-wheel, men and women enjoyed absolute parity in the fight for freedom. The condition was that every thread of yarn that they spun should be a conscientious sacrifice or yajna for swaraj and it should be backed by the determination to resist with their lives any assault that might be directed against charkha. By charkha, he meant not hand-spinning alone but all those things which hand-spinning symbolized. These included the revival of all other village industries, of course, but it included all the various other items of his 18-point constructive programme as well. By way of illustration Gandhiji mentioned communal harmony and total abolition of untouchability, both of which were natural corollaries of ahimsa.

Amrita Bazar Patrika, 15-1-1946

335. SPEECH AT DHUBRI

January 13, 1946

Addressing the gathering, Gandhiji said that he was sorry for keeping them waiting for such a long time. The steamer could not move due to fog. He had heard and seen the miseries of Bengal. He came to Assam because the miseries of the people of Assam were no less than that of the people of Bengal. He could not stay longer in Assam due to urgent work at Calcutta. He emphasized that swaraj would not come from the heavens and would not be given to them by anyone. Everything depended on their self-help and swaraj would be achieved through charkha.

Amrita Bazar Patrika, 15-1-1946

336. LETTER TO MUNNALAL G. SHAH

ON THE TRAIN,
January 14, 1946

CHI. MUNNALAL,

I got your letter. I do not feel happy about Dr. Dinshaw’s indifference. It is good that Jehangirji helps you. You should go on doing patiently and calmly whatever you can. Let those who wish to leave do so. I hope Manibhai is giving you all possible help. Do not admit new patients. Even the old ones who pay their own expenses must abide by the new rules. We do not want to run the show with their money. We wish to do that with the blessings of the poor. The Doctor may recommend to new patients such treatment as they can take at home. If any patients come for baths, etc., these may be given. But nobody should be allowed to stay in the clinic. I hope that we shall be able to systematize everything after I return. If necessary, you may show this to Jehangirji. The doctor of course will read it.

We shall arrange about khadi after I return there. I will get the required quantity.

I believe Kanchan is all right.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 8623. Also C.W. 7205. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

337. LETTER TO PREMA KANTAK

ON THE TRAIN,
Silence Day, January 14, 1946

CHI. PREMA,

I got your letter. What reply shall I give? If the thing you assume does not exist at all, what reply can I give? What are we to say to a person who asserts that there is a flower in the sky?“As silver is perceived in the mother-of-pearl and sunlight in water though non-existent at all times are yet perceived. So is this illusion which none can dispel.” Remember this verse of Tulsidas and laugh if you can.

I had never thought that you were so sensitive. And what epithets you use for Haribhau? When you write with a calm mind, I will write more. I have received Sushila’s letter. I have advised Bapa not to fill the place till a suitable woman Agent is available.

As desired by you, I have torn up your letter.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10448. Also C.W. 6882. Courtesy: Prema Kantak

338. LETTER TO MATHURADAS TRIKUMJI

ON THE TRAIN,
January 14, 1946

CHI. MATHURADAS.

You will never cease to be the Modh bania that you are !!! Whose fault is it, yours or Taramati’s? Now have a prompt betrothal, so all of you will have peace of mind. It seems life is a series of betrothals and marriages; am I right? I don’t see I come anywhere into it. What is there to consult me about? This does not mean that what you are going to do is wrong. Why should you follow me wherever I go? I have taken a different path. Why should anyone join me along it without understanding? If... has told nothing but the truth it will never prove false. You go your own way without any fear.

Take care of your health. Follow what others write about my health. It is also fairly adequately reported on in the newspapers.

Blessings to you all from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 The letter is in the Devanagari script.
2 A word here is not clear in the source.
339. LETTER TO AMRITLAL V. THAKKAR

ON THE TRAIN,
January 14, 1946

BAPA,

It is silence day, hence I must write myself. I got your condensed letter, precise and concise.

Jawaharlal thinks of nothing but the country’s freedom. He spends all his energy for it. Then why shouldn’t the people be mad about him?

I understand what you say about Sucheta. Deal with Sushila Pai’s case as best as you can. I am firm in my opinion. Where a woman Agent is not readily available we should wait for one. Our work will go on. I shall, however, be prepared to do anything else that you propose.

In Assam I heard about the swami and about the women’s college also. Both the cases need consideration. The swami seems to have reached the limit. I have his reply.

Amalprova is proceeding well though with great caution. Her father is on her side. The place is in the countryside, but near Gauhati. I visited the village. In fact I went there for my daily walks. I see our mangoes will not ripen in a hurry.

A good amount of money has been collected for Harijan work. A sum has also been earmarked for the tribal people. I welcome your refraining from going to Madras. I might use your presence for my own selfish ends but that would be wrong. You must take some rest somehow. You will then be able to do twice as much work as you now do. Even the man-made machine needs rest. Even a pair of shoes lasts longer if it has some rest, what then to say of man?

BAPU

SHRI THAKKAR BAPA
HARIJAN COLONY
DELHI

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 The letter is in the Devanagari script.
340. LETTER TO SUMITRA GANDHI

[SODEPUR, January 14, 1946]

CHI. SUMI,

I will not reply separately. How can I spare the time?

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI SUMITRA GANDHI
BIRLA GIRLS’ SCHOOL
PILANI, JAIPUR STATE

From the Gujarati original: Mrs. Sumitra Kulkarni Papers. Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library

341. LETTER TO SANKARAN

ON THE TRAIN, January 14, 1946

CHI. SANKARAN,

I got your letter. Today is my silence day and therefore I cannot dictate the letter.

Your reply is perfect. I am glad to know that you are improving your health and learning nature cure.

Jeevansakha might probably be in Sodepur. I could not find it in Assam. I am going to Sodepur by this very train.

It seems that like Dr. Dinshaw’s [clinic] Baleswarji’s is also not meant for the poor. We must remedy this. We shall think over the matter after your treatment is over. I expect to reach Madras on the 21st and Wardha on 8th February. I am not keen to send any message

1 The two sentences are written by Gandhiji below the reply to Sumitra by Sushila, presumably Sushila Nayyar, which bears the date December 14, 1946 which is evidently a slip, since on that date Gandhiji was in Shrirampur in Noakhali. Sushila in her reply refers to Gandhiji having returned from Assam to Calcutta just that day, that is, the 14th. Gandhiji had left Calcutta for Guwahati on January 9, 1946 and had returned to Calcutta on the 14th of the same month.
2 The address as in Sushila’s postcard
3 A journal on nature cure for the special issue of Jeevansakha. All good things carry their own blessings.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

---

342. LETTER TO H. C. DASAPPA

ON THE TRAIN,

January 14, 1946[^1]

CHI. DASAPPA[^2].

I got your letter. The news about your brother is distressing, and on top of it your father is ill. But, if we reflect, we shall realize that death and diseases of various kinds are with us from the birth. It is therefore futile to grieve.

I have grave doubts about being able to go to Mysore. Let us see how I get along in Madras.

My blessing to Yashodhara.[^3] Tell her to write to me. I hope Ramdas[^4] is well. How is he doing? It will be good if he now settles down there. He should learn Hindi as well as Urdu as also all the processes connected with spinning.

Blessings from

BAPU

---

SHRI DASAPPA

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

343. SPEECH AT PRAYER MEETING[^5]

SODEPUR,

January 14, 1946

I am sorry that today I cannot talk to you as I started silence at Dhubri at midnight. I am glad to say that on my way back people

[^1]: The source has 1945, but the letter is placed among those of 1946.
[^2]: An advocate whose name was struck off the rolls in July 1940, for political reasons.
[^3]: Addressee’s wife
[^4]: Addressee’s son
[^5]: The speech was read out by Kanu Gandhi. maintained perfect peace at the stations. I would like such peace to be maintained always. The villages of Chittagong have been reduced to such a state that it must have given you the same pain as it has given me.¹ The Government will have to do its duty. But I am thinking of ours. If true satyagraha were alive in all of us, men and women, such a happening could never have taken place. At the same time what happened in Diamond Harbour is also a tragic chapter.² Today’s prayer song is helpful in pointing to a right decision in these matters.
This I shall try to explain tomorrow.³

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 8027

344. LETTER TO BEGG, DUNLOP & CO., LTD.

SODEPUR,

January 15, 194[6]¹

GENTLEMEN,

Shrimati Profullabala Sarkar, widow of Shri Rajkumar Sarkar, writes to me about her distress. She says that her husband left a provident fund of Rs. 1,650 with you, which cannot be withdrawn on account of certain other claims submitted to you. She says that she is in a helpless condition with several children to maintain.

If her condition is as she describes it, will you please let me know if you can render her the help she needs. Her address is:
Shrimati Profullabala Sarkar, Tarapada Kumar’s House, Vill. Anthpur,
P.O. Shyamnagar, (24 Parganas).

Yours truly,
M. K. GANDHI

MESSRS BEGG, DUNLOP & CO., LTD.
(MANAGING AGENTS, JAGATLAL ALLIANCE NORTH JUTE MILLS)

2 HARE STREET, CALCUTTA

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ The reference is to the looting of villagers’ properties by Ganjam Pioneer Corps; vide “Telegram to Jamini Bose”, 10-1-1945 and “Telegram to Nawab of bhopal”, 12-1-1946

² On the occasion of the Gangasagar Mela some temporarily constructed jetties to enable pilgrims to board steamers bound for Sangam island at the mouth of the Ganga collapsed. As a result 147 people were killed and 80 injured.

³ Vide “Speech at Prayer Meeting”, 15-1-1946

⁴ The source has 1945, obviously a slip.
345. LETTER TO CHAMPA R. MEHTA

SODEPUR,

January 15, 1946

CHI. CHAMPA,

Today I have replied to Bhai Gatubhai’s letters as follows.¹ I can think of nothing else and nothing more.

SMT. CHAMPABEHN MEHTA
SEVAGRAM

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

346. LETTER TO GATULAL J. DAVE

January 15, 1946

BHAI GATUBHAI,

I got your letter yesterday.

I don’t know at all what in the first place I can do in Maganbhai’s case. I shall not be able to give him as much time as he wants. Besides, it is very difficult for me to be involved in this matter. I am therefore of the opinion that you should seek the advice of some good lawyer and act strictly as he directs.

GATULAL JATASHANKAR DAVE
KARANPARA, SHERI NO. 23
RAJKOT

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

347. LETTER TO HATIM A. ALVI

SODEPUR,

January 15, 1946

BHAI HATIM,

I had your letter but how could I give it thought being constantly on the move. Your belief that the titles Deshabandhu, Deena-bandhu, Sardar, etc., are my inventions is not correct. I cannot therefore take credit for the inventions. I accepted the names. I don’t even know if it is the invention of a single individual whom we could indentify. The name ‘Harijan’ is also said to be my invention, but the assumption is unfounded. It was an untouchable friend from Kathia-war who found the name. I don’t know if he is still alive. It is therefore not correct to attribute to me the inventive talent you do.

¹ Vide the following item.
² The letter is written in the Devanagari script.

I should like to find some nice descriptive title for Bhai Jamshed\(^1\) but I could think of one only if I were such an inventor! Think of something yourself. January 7 has passed; how does it matter? We should start using the title when we find one.

HATIM ALVI
KARACHI

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

348. LETTER TO RAMESHWARI NEHRU

SODEPUR,
January 15, 1946

DEAR SISTER,

Yesterday I got your letter of 20th ultimo. I have no objection to your going to the Assembly. Some of us should, but personally I attach very little value to it. I very much doubt whether those who can utilize their time in other work, or are already doing so, will gain by going to the Assembly; especially those women who represent Kasturba Nidhi. I am corresponding with Bapa regarding this. In my view, it will not be good for these women to go to the Assembly. Is not the work of Kasturba Nidhi a novel scheme? Only experience will teach that work. Let us not fall into an error through our attachment. Only from this point of view your going to the Assembly will not please me. Give your objective opinion regarding this.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI RAMESHWARI NEHRU
WARIS ROAD
LAHORE

From a copy of the Hindi: Kasturba Gandhi National Memorial Trust. Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library

\(^1\) Jamshed Nusserwanji Mehta, “builder of Modern Karachi” who was presented an address by the poeple of Karachi on his 61st birthday describing him as “the greatest architect of Karachi”.

THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
349. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA

SODEPUR,
January 15, 1946

CHI. KRISHNACHANDRA,

I have your letter.

The removal of Gajraj’s tonsils must have done good.

I understand about Mavjibhai.

The right place for Chakrayya seems to be with Raju. By staying with him, he too may get trained.

I think there are several copies of the Hindi Koran lying with us. Any one of them may be given to them. It is likely that all those books have been given to the Talimi Sangh. From there also it can be got for them. Do what is necessary.

People do joke about boys and girls. It can be innocent as well as harmful. There cannot be one rule for this. Life is full of risks and will continue to be so. Ours can only be the middle path. Among our prayer songs there is one by Raichandbhai: “Innocent joy may be derived from anywhere.” This song is probably there in the [Ashram] Bhajanavali. One who wants to do evil may do no evil at all by action but will do so by his thought. The golden rule is that always and in all circumstances we should remain pure. That purity does by itself influence the atmosphere. If you want to ask anything about this, ask me when I come there.

Let us be quite impersonal towards that sadhu and tell him bluntly that there cannot be any place for him in the Ashram.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4544
350. LETTER TO HARI GANESH PHATAK

SODEPUR,
January 15, 1946

Bhai Haribhaub,

I have your postcard. Write to Bapa about Savitribai. Will she do better than Premabehn?

I hope to leave here on the 19th for Madras and I shall have to spend a few days there. I expect to reach Sevagram on the 8th February.

Bhai Haribhaub Phatak
625 Sadashiv
Poona City

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

351. LETTER TO G. ANNASAMY

SODEPUR,
January 15, 1946

Bhai Annasamy,

I got your English letter. I am afraid that much as I would wish it, I shall not be able to visit Pondicherry. I hope you will all be able to understand this much Hindi.

G. Annasamy
Pondicherry

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

352. SPEECH AT PRAYER MEETING

SODEPUR,
January 15, 1946

Gandhiji said that the victims of the Diamond Harbour accident were no more but what would happen to their relatives? Many lives had not been lost in Chittagong, however.

These two incidents had overwhelmed him but it should not be so. Men should be calm and steady even if thousands, lakhs or even crores die. If we can bear it peacefully, we can hear the inner voice then.\footnote{Vide also “Telegram to Jamini Bose”, 10-1-1946 and “Telegram to Nawab of Bhopal}

Government must be alive to their duties regarding these two incidents but at the same time the people should not forget theirs. The bhajan sung at the prayer on Monday ( Antar mama vikasita karo ) indicated the way. It was a prayer to open our hearts. The world would become a vast fraternity if that was done.

Gandhiji said that if he were there at Diamond Harbour, he would have advised the men and women not to go there. He had witnessed a similar instance at Kumbha Mela at Hardwar in 1915, when in the jostle for a dip in the Ganges, 17 men were drowned. At Diamond Harbour the pilgrims had to get on the jetty and the Government should have made proper shipping arrangements. However, even if the Government did not do their duty an accusation on that score would not help us. The people on their side should follow the right course. The Government could not be blamed for the incident at Hardwar. Here of course it could be found on enquiry that proper arrangement for shipping facilities had not been made.

At Chittagong, it was worse. People had read the Government account and it was an admission of the story as sent out by Jaminibabu. But the people, Gandhiji said, did not play their part as preached in the bhajan. The bhajan wanted to make us firm, active and fearless. Gandhiji felt sure that if the people could rely on these qualities, the Chittagong incident could not have taken place. If people could sing the bhajan as they did in the prayer, why could they not act according to its message, he asked. Gurudev’s words were not meant for Bengal only. Everywhere saints had preached the same message.

An Englishman had sardonically asked Gandhiji if the Indians could get independence by harping on the theme of their slavery. Gandhiji thought that the remark was true. No good could come out of repeating the fact of dependence. Slave people lived in eternal misery and only by working for eradicating this misery could they get swaraj. Only criticism could not make foreigners quit. If people realized the message of satyagraha, if they practised it in life, they could get rid of this misery. What was satyagraha? It was only the craving for truth inherent in man and there lay its strength.

Two women were attacked at Chittagong and for that two men were counter-attacked. As a result a hundred came, attacked the villagers and burnt the hamlet. If the people could rest firm on truth such an incident could never happen. He had subsequently learnt, Gandhiji said, that the rowdy elements were his countrymen and therefore brothers. If that was so he also had some responsibility for their action and it was his duty as well to strive for the eradication of their vile instincts. On the other side many pilgrims died at Diamond Harbour. This latter accident occurred because the Indian people had not been successful in explaining the true significance of pilgrimage. Pilgrimage entails pain. It was not pilgrimage to travel by rail or steamer. Travelling from Cape Comorin to Hardwar by a train was no pilgrimage.

He had been preaching this idea for a long time, and he would be doing so in the future whatever the result. He would continue with his message even if five men only responded to the call.

Amrita Bazar Patrika, 16-1-1946

353. LETTER TO JIVANJI D. DESAI

SODEPUR, January 16, 1946

CHI. JIVANJI,

I have with me three letters of yours dated December 13, 1945, January 7, 1946, and January 11, 1946.

I will not argue at length about another Tamil translation of An Autobiography. Nor have I the time for that. I am dictating this reply in the early hours of the morning, and that also while racing against time. I have seen in English more translations than one of a good book. I don’t find anything wrong in it. Our only aim in retaining the copyright can be to guard against possible misuse of the privilege. But if we have authorized one person, and then another public-spirited person who can do a better translation comes forward, why should we not give him the permission? This is my line of reasoning. More when we meet and can talk at leisure. But meanwhile I will accept your decision as final and correct. For I may decide something in haste and you may have to bear the burden, which would not be proper.

I have decided for the present to refuse permission for a Finnish translation, for the person’s intention seems to be to make profit.

About Harijan we shall decide after I hear more from you. For, as long as the Government does not share our desire that its publication should be resumed, I think it will be a great risk to embark on the venture. I think I have discussed this matter with you earlier. The lifting of the ban will not be enough for resuming publication. Discuss the matter with Mavalankar and Sardar, if he is there, and then write to me. We wish to do nothing in haste.

\textsuperscript{1} Vide “Letter to Jivanji D. Desai”, 13-11-1945
I have received the new edition of The Constructive Programme. You are right when you say that you can afford to send, and should send, a large number of copies only if a proper account of the copies is kept and the money is regularly remitted to you. Do not send more copies just now. Two of the newspapers here published the whole text. You may publish the booklet in the other languages you intend to.

You have given a full explanation about the preface, as also about the price.

Chi. Kanu will write to you separately regarding the Bhajana-vali. Do not publish the new edition till you get all the material from him.

I should like you to publish the translation sent by Rajendra Babu. Discuss the matter with Kishorelal and Narahari also.

The Rashtrabhasha dictionary follows me wherever I go. I have not forgotten, either, about the foreword to the book on Gita According to Gandhi written by Mahadevbhai. I will be happy if I can finish it before leaving for Madras. But all that is in God’s hands. I rest content with the work I can do from day to day. I cannot, of course, attend to all the things. I see in this my inefficiency. If I cannot overcome it, I cannot hope to live up to 125 years. But be it as it may. If you think it fit, you may reprint Nation’s Voice.

Your suggestion for adding something more to the paragraphs on cow-protection in The Constructive Programme seems a good one. I would describe it as “improvement of livestock”. I agree that it should not have been left out. We will remember the point at the time of the next edition. If the current edition is exhausted soon and any suggestions for improvements occur to you, let me have them, too.

I am leaving here on the 19th and reaching Madras on the 21st. The address will be c/o Dakshina [Bharat] Hindi Prachar Sabha, Thyagarayanagar, Madras. I will be in Madras for 15 days at the most. If I can finish earlier, I will try. Then on the 8th to Seva-gram. After spending a day in Bombay, to Poona on the 21st.

Blessings from

BAPU

Not revised.

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 9962. Also C.W. 6936. Courtesy: Jivanji D. Desai
354. TELEGRAM TO M. SATYANARAYANA

Express

SODEPUR, January 16, 1946

SATYANARAYANJI
DAKSHINA BHARAT HINDI PRACHAR SABHA
THYAGARAYANAGAR (MADRAS)

SORRY MUST REACH TWENTYFIRST. MAKE NO APPOINTMENTS
BEFORE TWENTYTHIRD. CONTINUE YOUR USUAL WORK.
ASSUME NO SPECIAL TRAIN FOR ME.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

355. LETTER TO R. G. CASEY

SODEPUR, January 16, 1946

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your two kind letters¹. I shall have great pleasure in calling on you, perhaps for the last time (though I shall hope not) on the 18th at 7·30 p. m.

I am glad you have taken proper and energetic action on the two terrible tragedies.²

On the question of salt I see that I have failed to make my point clear. But I must not inflict written argument on you. According to the exigencies of the time I shall discuss the matter with you on Friday.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

_Gandhiji’s Correspondence with the Government, 1944-47_, p. 131

¹ Dated January 15 and 20
² Of Chittagong and Diamond Harbour; _vide_ “Telegram to Nawab of Bhopal and “Speech at Prayer Meeting”, 14-1-1946
356. LETTER TO C. RAJAGOPALACHARI

SODEPUR,
January 16, 1946

MY DEAR C. R.,

I leave here on 19th and reach there with a large party on 21st. I must not be in a train the 22nd day of a month, if I can at all help it. Ba died that day and we have Gita Parayan that day. I must devote 21st and 2nd to private, necessary visits. Just now I have only Sastri in mind. Natesan wants me to go to my old home—his place. You will see what should be done. The rest when we meet. Do hope there will be no boisterous demonstration. Noises and undisciplined crowds get on my nerves.

Love.

BAPU

[PS.]

I expect to meet the Parliamentary Delegation on 23rd.

From a photostat: G.N. 2115

357. LETTER TO JEHANGIR P. PATEL

SODEPUR,
January 16, 1946

BHAJ JEHANGIR,

I have your letter dictated in chaste Gujarati. I am delighted. However, since we want to work for Dinshawji I shall certainly write in English if that helps us better.

I shall try to reach Poona before 21st February.

I am sure you know that I have already sent the money. All I am worried about, if at all, is that the clinic should benefit the masses. Till now it has catered solely to the rich. But we shall further discuss

1 Recitation
2 V. S. Srinivasa Sastri who was ill; vide “Letter to V. S. Srinivasa Sastri”, 4-1-1946
3 Vide “Letter to G. A. Natesan”, 12-1-1946 all this when we meet. For the time being whatever you can do and get done is enough.

SJT. JEHANGIR P. PATEL
PATEL BROTHERS, PATEL HOUSE
10 CHURCHGATE STREET
FORT, BOMBAY

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

358. LETTER TO DR. N. B. KHARE

SODEPUR,
January 16, 1946

BHAI KHARE,

I have your letter. I was delighted to see that you wrote in Hindustani and signed in Urdu.

I am carefully watching what you are doing and what you can do in Malaya-Burma. And I wish that everything is for the good of the people there. What is the harm in Dr. Bidhan’s Medical Mission going to Malaya-Burma?¹

I understand what you have written about the congress. I do not want to write anything more about it.

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat of the Hindi: C.W. 4871. Courtesy: Dr. N. B. Khare

359. LETTER TO G. RAMACHANDRA RAO

SODEPUR,
January 16, 1946

BHAI RAMACHANDRA RAO,

I have your letter. I like it. I am also glad that you have decided to give Manorama in marriage to a Harijan. But your inference in favour of atheism is not correct; or as I believe, your nastikta² is only a form of astikta³.

I am prepared to get the marriage performed in the Sevagram Ashram and have the same rites followed as in the case of Tendulkar.

¹Vide “Letter to G. E. B. Abell”, 8-1-1946
²Atheism
³Faith

254 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
The priest, who will perform the ceremony under my supervision, will be a Harijan. You are welcome to make any suggestion in this regard. One thing more. Manorama is 17 years old; I think I remember her. My advice is that she should wait at least for two years. If your idea is that the ceremony may be performed now and the girl might go to stay with her husband on attaining the age of 19, I would suggest postponing the marriage till she can live with her husband. In the meantime they may learn whatever more they want to learn. Let them learn at least Hindustani in both the scripts and all the processes of the charkha right from beginning to end.

Blessings from

BAPU

360. LETTER TO SECRETARY, MADRAS LABOUR UNION FOR TEXTILE WORKERS

SODEPUR,
January 16, 1946

DEAR MR. SECRETARY,

I propose to address no meetings. I have neither the desire nor the strength to undertake more work than I have already accepted. You must realize that the days are gone when I could go anywhere and address any number of meetings. Therefore, please excuse me. You may consult Shri Satyanarayana about an appointment with me.

M. K. GANDHI
SECRETARY
MADRAS LABOUR UNION FOR TEXTILE WORKERS

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

361. LETTER TO AVADHNANDAN

SODEPUR,
January 16, 1946

BHAI AVADHNANDAN,

I got your letter. None of us could make out the first signature; the second and third are all right. I think when one’s signature is illegible, one should spell it out clearly beside or below. The English deliberately make their signatures illegible. Why should we imitate them? And if we do, we should also follow their signature practice of spelling out the name clearly below.

If your complaint is just it deserves to be considered. But then I should have your permission to show your letter to Satyanarayana. I will try to find some time for a talk with you.

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

362. LETTER TO T. J. KEDAR

SODEPUR,
January 16, 1946

BHAJ KEDAR,

I got your letter of January 12. I was very happy. Let us see what happens.

I hope to reach Sevagram on the 8th. I shall stay there for ten days and then proceed to Poona.

SHRI T. J. KEDAR

ADVOCATE

NAGPUR

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

363. LETTER TO SATYANARAYANA

SODEPUR,
January 16/17, 1946

BHAJ SATYANARAYANA,

A wire was sent to you yesterday. Did I tell you that I would try to reach there about the 23rd? Well, I had forgotten at the time that the 22nd was Ba’s death anniversary. Chi. Kanu reminded me of it and therefore I have now decided to reach there on the 21st. Besides, the M.P.s would be there on the 23rd and in order to meet them also, I must reach there a day earlier. I hope you will not be put to inconvenience if I come a couple of days earlier. You will have understood what Rajkumari explained on the telephone. I have no letter of yours regarding the special train. It would be wrong to incur expenditure on a special train. If it is the others who are to be brought by the special train, why bring them two days in advance? In any case if that be the intention you may do as you think best. That means that if everyone pays his own fare there will be no harm in requisitioning a special train.

I shall be accompanied by 22 persons. The number may even increase by two or three. A list of their names is enclosed. Bapa will go there. You may put him up with me. He also wants it. See to it yourself. If the number of people increases, arrangements can be made to put some of them up elsewhere although I would prefer all my companions being put up in one place.

Blessings from

BAPU

[PS.]

January 17, 1946

The letter which called for the wire has arrived today but what I have written above is sufficient.

SHRI SATYANARAYANAJI
C/O HINDI PRACHAR SABHA
THYAGARAYANAGAR, MADRAS

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

364. SPEECH AT PRAYER MEETING

SODEPUR,

January 17, 1946

Gandhiji said that Friday\(^1\) would be his last day at Sodepur on this occasion. He had always cherished a desire to stay in this place and join them in prayer. Indeed he had not been able to stay there continuously owing to his tours. His tours had produced good results. He hoped that they would stick to the system of congregational prayer.

Exhorting them to sing the name of God in chorus and to keep tune with all heart, Gandhiji said that he had told them before and wanted to tell them now that soldiers were compelled to move together and to keep step in marching. At first there was an element of compulsion in making them do so but gradually as they became habituated the element of compulsion passed and their movements became easier and smoother. In their case the soldiers were made disciplined on pain of dismissal, but in prayer although they were the devotees of God yet there was no question of compelling them to keep or sing in chorus. But it was for the sake of their own good that they joined in prayer and if they uttered the name of God in one tune their hearts

\(^1\) This, however, is not traceable.

\(^2\) January 18
would be purified and they would get new strength in their hearts. This would be their remuneration for becoming the devotees of God.

Referring to the day’s bhajan, Gandhiji said that in this song the devotee was making the submission that he would offer his salutation to God in all his worldly duties. God was their real friend. He was their father and mother and in fact everything. Their earthly friends and relations suffered death but God was immortal. He never left them at any time. The bhajan therefore very aptly taught them to remember God who was their eternal friend in every sphere of their life’s activities. The song also told them to keep their inward eye open because it was through this inward eye that they were able to perceive God.

Concluding, Gandhiji said that in the prayer song of the day they had found such things which would be of great value in their everyday life. They should take the teachings of the song to heart. After they had attended the prayer if they returned home with their hearts unchanged they would be deprived of a great thing.

Amrita Bazar Patrika, 18-1-1946

365. LETTER TO AMRITA LAL CHATTERJEE

SODEPUR,
January 18, 1946

CHI. AMRITA LAL,

Do you know that falling ill is a crime? And after falling ill taking no treatment is doubly so. Hence get well soon. Your palce is in Wardha. From that also you have been cut off. Now you can go there only after getting well.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: C.W. 10413. Courtesy: Amrita Lal Chatterjee

366. DISCUSSION WITH CHITTAGONG CONGRESSMEN

January 18, 1946

A number of Congress leaders of Chittagong met Mahatma Gandhi at Sodepur Ashram and had nearly an hour’s discussion with him about conditions in the district since 1942, with particular reference to war-time economy and the problem of resettlement of the evacuees.

The Congress leaders also discussed with Gandhiji the recent incident at Kasai-para. Gandhiji told them that the question of resettlement of the evacuees had been

1 The addressee had dysentery and had refused medical treatment.
engaging his attention for a long time. He asked them to correspond with him on this matter. The problem could be solved if the 18-point constructive programme was fulfilled.

_The Hindustan Times, 21-1-1946_

367. SPEECH AT PRAYER MEETING

SODEPUR,

January 18, 1946

Gandhiji regretted that he was addressing the congregation for the last time on the present occasion and God only knew when he would be in position to repeat his visit to Bengal. He had a mind to go to Chittagong and also to visit Munshigunj but he could not realize his wish. Mahatma Gandhi observed:

Although during my stay I could not visit the different parts of Bengal as I wished, still I will say that I am satisfied with what little I could do in Bengal. My code teaches me to be satisfied even if I succeed in one front out of ten I try.

Referring to the Chittagong incident, Gandhiji said that there was no point in finding fault with others over this issue. They had to analyse themselves. They should remember that in always finding fault with others they themselves were likely to be at fault. If the habit of fault-finding became a permanent feature with them they would never be able to serve anybody. Tulsidas in his inimitable way made it quite clear that there were no animate or inanimate objects which were either totally evil or totally good. Those two qualities more or less were to be noticed in everything and just like the proverbial swan they had to discard the evil of a thing and adopt the good of it for their own welfare. He asked the people to remember this moral sermon of the poet and conduct themselves accordingly. If they concentrated only on black spots they would themselves be spotted. Therefore, for one’s own welfare it was desirable that the habit of fault-finding be given up. In China there was a pillar on which three monkeys were carved in stone: one of them was blindfolded, the second ear-logged and the third close-mouthed. The moral of this illustration was ‘see no evil, hear no evil and speak no evil’. He urged upon the congregation to take to heart what this Chinese symbol taught them.

Dwelling upon the necessity of congregational prayer, Gandhiji hoped that people on return to their homes would conduct such prayer in the company of the members of the family and children. Theatres or cinemas they often visited, but those agencies could scarcely benefit the people to the extent the congregational prayer could do. He himself had been to a famous theatre in London and could speak from his personal experience that it hardly benefited him. Comparing the benefit of congregational prayer with what little historical knowledge a dramatic performance could offer, Gandhiji said that the former was many thousand times more beneficial. What could the stage teach, he asked. Was it of any consequence when compared with the realistic drama that the world presented? He had seen the role of a hero being played on the stage. Could Rama of his conception be played on the stage? Could the tragedy on any stage be so realistic and effective as the tragedies they witnessed on the world stage? Mothers were ministering angels of homes and they nursed children to life and to them he especially appealed to introduce God and divinity to their children and to introduce bhajan song which was full of eternal bliss.

Amrita Bazar Patrika, 19-1-1946

368. LETTER TO G. D. BIRLA

SODEPUR,

CHI. GHANSHYAMDAS,

The enclosed letter has been received from Kanya Gurukul. I think I had better send it to you. I do not know what exactly is to be done.

Blessings from

BAPU

From the Hindi original: C.W. 8076. Courtesy: G. D. Birla

369. TELEGRAM TO SUCHETA KRIPALANI

January 19, 1946

NO TELEGRAM RECEIVED. PERSONALLY AGAINST YOU ENTERING LEGISLATURE.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 The numeral is faded in the source. Gandhiji left Sodepur on this date.
370. LETTER TO SUCHETA KRPALANI

SODEPUR,
January 19, 1946

CHI. SUCHETA,

Your letter written from Allahabad is before me. I am dictating this after the morning prayer. At 2:30 p.m. today, I leave for Madras.

Your report is good. I have written to Bapa regarding the Delhi case as well as the question of representation. I am inclined to think that if we just wait till we find a suitable Agent for a place, meanwhile getting the work done through the centre, no problem should arise in the appointment of women Agents. Therefore, I am of the opinion that we may take any kind of work from Brijkrishna. We should not formally appoint him an Agent. If the idea does not appeal to either or both of you I shall be ready to do as you suggest. This has been my policy regarding any activity that I am not conducting myself and I am convinced that it is right. Therefore, send me your own opinion.

About the U.P., I am carrying on correspondence with Purnima. No decision has yet been reached. Concerning the appointments another question had now arisen, viz., whether anyone contesting election to the Assembly can continue to be an Agent. We have three or four such cases—those of Durgabai, the sister from Calicut (I forget her name), Rameshwaridevi and probably Purnima too. I feel that it would indeed be difficult, if not impossible, for those going into the Assembly, to do full justice to their work as Agents. Besides, the mere knowledge that their Agents are members of the Assembly is likely to perturb the village women. Do send me your views in the matter. Are you coming to Madras? Bapa is coming. You may also come. If you come I shall arrange for your accommodation.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRIMATI SUCHETA KRPALANI
SWARAJ BHAVAN
ALLAHABAD

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal
SODEPUR,
January 19, 1946

CHI. MUNNALAL,

These days I am kept extremely busy. I, therefore, have not been able to reply to one or two letters of yours. They contained nothing special. I am glad that things have improved somewhat. However, I have realized your difficulty. We shall be able to solve it only through patience. I cannot do more from here. It will be enough if you do not incur any new expenditure. I will see about the khadi after I return.

I read your long telegram to Kanchan. I would say that you should not have sent it. I do not understand how Balkrishna encouraged you to send it. It can be described as a wire from a vevalo¹. You will understand what I mean if you know the meaning of the word vevalo. I do not know the English equivalent for vevalo. Every language has some words which are untranslatable. Vevala is such a word. I am not reprimanding you at all. This is only a joke. I actually gave you an opportunity to come, if you wished to. Kanchan is better now. And if she gives up her obstinacy, this illness will do her much good. I am leaving today for Madras. It is not certain whether or not I shall take Kanchan with me. Dr. Bidhan has had an X-ray taken. If the report is good, Sushilabehn says I can take her. She has not yet been permitted to walk.

My reason for sending Manibhai was that if such an occasion should arise again, you should be able to leave the place immediately. Manibhai, therefore, was to get trained by you even if you had not left. But what has happened has happened.

One thing is certain, namely, that Kanchan was looked after with as much care as would be bestowed on an Emperor. And she got a doctor, too, such as only an Emperor could get.

I had a letter from Jehangirji. He says he will do his best.

Kanchan is accompanying me.

Not revised.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 8616. Also C.W. 7202. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

¹ Mawkishly sentimental
372. A NOTE

SODEPUR,
January 19, 1946

I think the construction of the bunds at Hooghly, which has benefited the people greatly is actually a part of the Constructive Programme. Such creative power should be there in all the sevaks.

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 8028. Also C.W. 10517 and 10526. Courtesy: Ratnamoni Chatterjee

373. SPEECH AT BALASORE

January 19, 1946

He said that he had already spoken enough in Bengal and Assam and they must have read the speeches in the papers. He asked them to follow those instructions. Gandhiji laid stress on the need for Harijan uplift. He wanted caste Hindus and Harijans to live as brothers. He also complimented them on the discipline they had shown and said that the people at Balrampur had also behaved in similar manner.

Amrita Bazar Patrika, 21-1-1946

374. A THOUGHT FOR THE DAY

November 1, 1945

The joy of life lies in divesting oneself of life’s cares.

November 2, 1945

The past belongs to us but we do not belong to the past. We belong to the present. We are makers of the future, but we do not belong to the future.

1 The reference is to the construction of a cross bund in Arambagh for irrigation purposes across the river Mundeswari by the villagers, the cost of which was met by voluntary cess.

2 Gandhiji was sleeping when his train arrived at Balasore. However, when he was informed that a disciplined crowd was waiting on the platform to see him, he came to the doorway and addressed them.

3 Gandhiji started writing “A Thought for the Day” for Anand Hingorani, at the latter’s request, on November 20, 1944, and continued the practice for about two years. The thoughts for the period covered by this volume are reproduced as a single item under the last date, 19-1-1946. The thought’s were originally written in Hindi. The translation by Anand T. Hingorani is reproduced here with slight alterations.
He alone who truly serves is a good householder. He goes on giving without expectation of return.

November 4, 1945

A fault as small as a mustard seed becomes as big as a mountain when sought to be concealed. It can, however, be eradicated if an open confession is made.

Pratipada, November 5, 1945

Faith transcends reason; it is not opposed to it.

November 6, 1945

It is easier to cross the ocean between countries than to span the gulf between individuals or people.

November 7, 1945

It is not man that enjoys pleasures; it is pleasures that enjoy man, which is to say they consume him.

November 8, 1945

Everyone grows old with the passage of time; desire alone remains ever youthful.

November 9, 1945

Irregularity never goes well with non-attachment.

November 10, 1945

He who is shamed into acting correctly is not acting correctly at all.

November 11, 1945

The avaricious, the lustful, the wrathful and the drunkard are among the ten types of persons reckoned by Vidura as having no regard for religion.

November 12, 1945

That which should be renounced must be declined as a matter of duty even if offered free.

November 13, 1945

None can put him to shame who, of his own free will, and even though others know nothing about it, makes a clean breast of his sin and is ashamed of it.

November 14, 1945

Innocent and dreamless sleep is samadhi (meditation), yoga (concentration of mind) and selfless action. (Adapted from Vinoba’s letter).
November 15, 1945
Nothing is impossible for a true devotee.

November 16, 1945
A devotee is ever absorbed in God.

November 17, 1945
He who is absorbed in God cannot become absorbed in anybody or anything besides Him.

November 18, 1945
It is said that a pilgrimage is not undertaken at the cost of one’s hearth and home. The truth, however, is that a pilgrimage is possible only after a complete renunciation of hearth and home.

November 19, 1945
The fear of the gun disappears when it has been fired. The bond of love grows ever tighter, yet is never felt as bondage.

November 20, 1945
Man’s real enemies are six—lust, anger, attachment, drunkenness, pride and grief. Victory over them makes it easier to conquer the rest.

November 21, 1945
Everyone agrees it is folly to do evil. But to consider evil means justified for gaining a worthy end must be regarded as even greater folly.

November 22, 1945
If a man were not to undertake work which is beyond his capacity, there would be no scope left for anxiety.

November 23, 1945
It is more than severe punishment to compel a man to do something which he does not understand.

November 24, 1945
I see a man whom I consider my brother and love him as such. Later, I find that he is not my brother. He is what he is and I give him up. Who is to blame in this?

November 25, 1945
What is it, if not futile, to argue about something which is beyond thought?

November 26, 1945
What should be done if a mad man appears before us and takes possession of our house and stores? What is the non-violent remedy? The simple answer is lovingly to let him have his way.

November 27/December 3, 1945

He who does not labour and yet eats, eats stolen food.

November 28/December 3, 1945

Who can eat with an easy mind so long as even a single person starves for want of work?

November 29/December 3, 1945

Trace the course of every pice that finds its way into your pocket and you will learn much from such reflection.

November 30/December 3, 1945

To a starving person, God will appear in the form of bread alone.

December 1/December 3, 1945

Why insult the naked by giving them clothes? Give them work so that they may earn the money for clothes by their own labour.

December 2/December 3, 1945

It is a sin to open free kitchens for those who are capable of physical labour. To provide work for them is meritorious.

December 3, 1945

Faith that does not wane but ever waxes higher and turns into realization.

December 4, 1945

Beauty lies not in the complexion but in Truth alone.

December 5, 1945

When a man lives in submission to authority, it means he is paying the price of personal freedom.

December 6, 1945

When the administration becomes so evil as to be intolerable, a man sacrifices even personal freedom to offer non-violent resistance to it.

December 7, 1945

Truly, there are as many religions as there are men. But when one goes to the root of one’s religion, one finds that in reality is one.

December 8, 1945

If we are careful about the means, the end will take care of itself. In other words there is no difference between means and ends.
December 9, 1945
Confession of error works like a broom. The broom sweeps away filth; confession does no less.

December 10, 1945
One perfect man can dispel untruth even though the untruthful be legion.

December 11, 1945
There is a limit to violent action and it can fail. Non-violence knows no limit and it never fails.

December 12, 1945
Faith is put to the test when the situation is most difficult.

December 13, 1945
Violence is the weapon of the weak; non-violence that of the strong.

December 14, 1945
He who wishes to preserve his integrity must be prepared to lose all material possessions.

December 15, 1945
A religion which takes no note of this world and only harps on the one beyond, does not deserve the name.

December 16, 1945
He who is poor by force of circumstances, cannot become poor by choice.

December 17, 1945
Chastity needs no purdah. It needs only God’s protection.

December 18, 1945
The right that accrues from the performance of duty endures.

December 19, 1945
So long as gold and diamonds lie buried in the bowels of the earth they are of no use to anyone. Man’s labour digs them out and gives them their value. Seen thus, it is the labourer who produces them.

December 20, 1945
Just as I have the right to eat and drink, so also have I the right to do my work in my own way. This is swaraj.

December 21, 1945
Do not seek to know the views of others, nor base your opinion thereon. To think independently for oneself is a sign of fearlessness.
If God be our protector and companion, why or whom shall we fear, however fierce be the storm, however deep the darkness.

In complete non-violence, there is complete absence of hatred.

Non-violence works for the good of all, not only of the greatest number. The votary of non-violence must be prepared if necessary to lay down his life in order to secure the good of all.

Prayer needs a heart, not a tongue. Without the heart, words have no meaning.

Purity asks for no external protection.

Our greatest enemy is not the foreigner, nor anyone else. We ourselves, that is, our desires, are our enemies,

He who does not want to be a slave of anyone, must become the slave of God.

Violence must be abjured, for the good that it may seem to achieve is in appearance only, while the harm that it does is everlasting.

Man is the image of his thoughts.

True religion knows no territorial limits.

Looking at a blank sheet of paper, one cannot say which is the obverse and which is the reverse side. So it is with non-violence and truth. The one cannot exist without the other.

It would be considered deplorable if a dead man’s body were to be buried in the same pit as the carcass of an animal. But on reflection it would appear that out of this action arises a happy state—the unity of all life is established.

ON WAY TO SODEPUR,
January 3, 1946

Physical weakness is not the real weakness. Weakness of the mind alone is the real weakness.

SODEPUR,
January 4, 1946

The common people are a devoted worker’s real bank, and this bank never fails.

SODEPUR,
January 5, 1946

Renunciation which does not spring from the heart cannot be abiding.

SODEPUR,
January 6, 1946

He who in his distress turns to God is not troubled by any fear.

SODEPUR,
January 7, 1946

Education which does not mould character is wholly worthless.

ON THE ASSAM MAIL,
January 8, 1946

When there is both inner and outer cleanliness, it approaches godliness.

ON THE ASSAM MAIL,
January 9, 1946

O man! If thou art really free from attachment, thou hast to put up patiently with insult, abuse and even assault.

SARANI OR GAUHATI,
January 10, 1946

What matters to you the world’s praise or censure? Do what you think is your duty.

SARANI OR GAUHATI,
January 11, 1946

Only the brave can be forgiving. The weak are unable to punish; so, in their case, the question of forgiveness does not arise.
Economics which departs from or is opposed to ethics is no good and should be renounced.

ON THE STEAMER TO DHUBRI,
January 13, 1946

Man is where his mind is, not where his body is.

SODEPUR,
January 14, 1946

That which looks for mercy from an opponent is not non-violence.

SODEPUR,
January 15, 1946

One mark of non-attachment is that the work of a person free from attachment is never in arrears at the end of the day.

SODEPUR,
January 16, 1946

A person without attachment should have an inexhaustible fund of patience.

SODEPUR,
January 17, 1946

A person without attachment should under no circumstances give way to anger.

SODEPUR,
January 18, 1946

One who thinks in terms of ‘mine’ and ‘thine’ cannot be free from attachment.

ON THE TRAIN TO MADRAS,
January 19, 1946

The non-attached person cannot own anything.

A Thought for the Day, pp. 347-426
375. FOREWORD TO “MY MASTER GOKHALE”

ON THE TRAIN TO MADRAS,¹
January 20, 1946

Whilst I appreciate Shri Jagadisan’s¹ invitation to contribute a few words by way of Preface or Foreword to his admirable collection of Rt. Hon’ble Sastriar’s³ writings and speeches on Gokhale¹ the Good, as I would call him, it embarrasses me. However strange my claim may appear to the reader, I have called Gokhale my political guru. Therefore Sastriar is a fellow-disciple. And what a disciple and yet an amiable usurper! I was to have the honour of being Gokhale’s successor but I found in Sastriar a worthy usurper to whom I made a willing surrender. I could have given no satisfaction to the few well-chosen members of the society.⁵ I had, and have, no gifts which Gokhale had and Sastriar has in luxurious abundance.

I confess that however great may be my attempt at impartiality, I must fail to satisfy the critical reader. Fellow-admirers need no passport from me. And of whom was I to write? As I began to read Jagadisan’s selection, I did not know whether Gokhale absorbed my attention or Sastriar.

Therefore I would close these hasty and rambling remarks by warning the critical reader against his or her trying the questionable task of discovering in these pages an echo of his or her own views. It should be enough to find in them the transparent sincerity and patriotism of the writer or, shall I say, the biographer and the master.

M. K. GANDHI

My Master Gokhale

¹ Gandhiji was going to Madras to inaugurate the Silver Jubilee celebrations of the Dakshina Bharat Hindu Prachar Sabha.
² T. N. Jagadisan’s
³ V. S. Srinivas Sastri’s
⁴ Gopal Krishna Gokhale
⁵ The reference, presumably, is to Gandhiji’s joining the Servants of India Society founded by Gokhale in 1905; Gokhale was keen on it. But there was difference of opinion among some members: vide “An Autobiography”, sub-title “With Gokhale in Poona” and “An Autobiography”, sub-title “Kumbha Mela”
376. FOREWORD TO “THE GOSPEL OF SELFLESS ACTION OR THE ‘GITA’ ACCORDING TO GANDHI”

The following pages by Mahadev Desai are an ambitious project. It represents his unremitting labours during his prison life in 1933-'34. Every page is evidence of his scholarship and exhaustive study of all he could lay hands upon regarding the Bhagavad Gita, poetically called The Song Celestial by the late Sir Edwin Arnold. The immediate cause of this labour of love was my translation in Gujarati of the divine book as I understood it. In trying to give a translation of my meaning of the Gita, he found himself writing an original commentary on the Gita.

The book might have been published during his lifetime, if I could have made time to go through the manuscript. I read some portions with him, but exigencies of my work had to interrupt the reading. Then followed the imprisonment of August 1942, and his sudden death within six days of our imprisonment. All of his immediate friends decided to give his reverent study of the Gita to the public. He had copies typed for his English friends who were impatient to see the commentary in print. And Pyarelal, who was collaborator with Mahadev Desai for many years, went through the whole manuscript and undertook to perform the difficult task of proof-reading. Hence this publication.

Frankly I do not pretend to any scholarship. I have, therefore, contented myself with showing the genesis of Mahadev Desai’s effort. In so far as the translation part of the volume is concerned, I can vouch for its accuracy. He has carried out the meaning of the original translation. I may add, too, that Pyarelal has interfered with the original only and in rare cases where it was considered to be essential, an interference which Mahadev Desai would, in my opinion, have gladly accepted, had he been alive.

M. K. GANDHI

ON THE TRAIN TO MADRAS, January 20, 1946

The Gospel of Selfless Action or The Gita According to Gandhi

1 Vide “Anasaktiyoga”, sub-title “The Message of the Gita”
2 Mahadev Desai passed away on August 15, 1942.
377. WHAT EXHIBITION SHOULD BE

The Congress session is likely to be held within two or three months. The question, therefore, arises as to what sort of an exhibition should be put up from the villagers’ point of view. It is only the rural viewpoint which can be valid for India, if we desire and believe that the villagers have not only to survive but also to become strong and rich. If this is true, there can be no place for city articles and pomp and show. There should be no need for the entertainments that are prevalent in cities. Under no circumstances, should the exhibition degenerate into cheap entertainment or a means for earning and never into an instrument of advertisement for business men. Nothing should be sold there, not even khadi and the products of village industries. The exhibition should be educative, and it should be interesting too. It should be so organized that a villager after returning home, would begin to feel the necessity of learning some sort of industry or craft. There should be somebody who can point out the shortcomings in all the villages of India and someone who can explain the ways and means for getting rid of them. There should be someone who can show how far we have progressed since the beginning of the movement for village uplift. There should be somebody who can explain how this exhibition helps in making village life aesthetically satisfying.

Now let us consider what should be the form of the exhibition which can fulfil these conditions:

1. There should be two models of the village—one showing the village as it is today and the other, the improved one.

The improved village will be clean. The cleanliness will be seen in the houses, the roads, the surroundings and the fields. The condition of the cattle will also be better. Maps, pictures and books should show how particular occupations can help in increasing the villagers’ income.

2. Complete details should be displayed about how the various village industries should work, where the tools for them are available and how they are manufactured. All the crafts should be demonstrated. At the same time the following items should be shown:
   (a) Ideal diet for the villagers;
   (b) the competition between machine industry and handicrafts;
   (c) a practical demonstration of animal husbandry;
(d) a model for latrines;
(e) art section;
(f) organic manure v. chemical fertilizers;
(g) use of hides and bones of animals;
(h) village music, musical instruments and village dramas;
(i) village games, gymnasium and exercises;
(j) Nayee Talim;
(k) village medicines;

Bearing in mind the policy stated at the outset, whatever additional items can be exhibited should be there.

What I have stated is only illustrative. I have deliberately omitted all those village industries which are connected with the spinning-wheel. Without these industries the exhibition should be considered worthless.

M. K. GANDHI

ON THE TRAIN TO MADRAS, January 20, 1946

[From Hindi]
Khadi Jagat, February 1946

378. SPEECH AT CUTTACK

January 20, 1946

Gandhiji said that independence was not an easy thing to win or was it a drama. Discipline was essential in the national life of the country and, if they got swaraj, he asked, how could they maintain it without discipline. He was very much impressed at the discipline of people in place like Balasore and Bhadrak and was expecting discipline of higher order in Cuttack, this being the capital of the Province. Thankkar Bapa had asked him to break journey in Orrisa. He regretted very much that he could not break journey. But he had Orrisa always in his heart.

It has cut him to the quick, he said, that Orrisa, which he had loved so fondly and through which he had made his Harijan pilgrimage on foot, should belie his expectations. Was this their non-violence or did they imagine that freedom would be

1 Vide “Speech at Balasore”, 19-1-1946
2 According to report in Amrita Bazar Patrika, when the train slowed down at Cuttack around midnight, some people climbed the footboards, and Gandhiji asked them to sit down in an orderly manner: vide also the following item.
3 What follows is extracted from Pyarelal’s “Weekly Letter” in Harijan.
4 In May 1934
won or kept through indiscipline and hooliganism? They were living in a fool’s paradise, if they did. Was it not ridiculous to pit indiscipline and hooliganism against the atom bomb which was the ultimate of brute force? It was time that they made up their mind as to their choice between the two paths. They were at liberty to scrap non-violence, if they felt that it was a played-out force. But, if they were thinking of violence while they professed non-violence, they would be guilty of deception and fraud upon themselves and the world. He remarked:

I do not want your cheers of welcome, nor money during these stoppages. But I want you to purge yourselves of the lie in the soul. That will please me more than your gifts; the noises never will, and never have.

Amrita Bazar Patrika, 21-1-1946; also Harijan, 24-2-1946

379. SPEECH AT BERHAMPUR

January 20, 1946

In these early hours I meet you, and I am glad. I am sorry, I could not stay with you even for a day in Orissa. You will excuse me. My health is not like before. After fifty years of age one’s health weakens. That is God’s will. At Bhadrak and Balasore the crowds were very disciplined. So I thought it was better that I stop at Cuttack. In the original programme, no stoppage at Cuttack of the special train was arranged. In Cuttack the mob was unruly. It was about 1.30 a.m. At such a time one should not be disturbed in his sleep and that too an old man like myself. They afterwards became orderly.

You are sitting calmly. My prayer is, not only at your place but at all places, that it should be so. Through unruliness we cannot win swaraj. You all know me and I know you. I am not new to you. You should carry on constructive work. You should take to khadi work and removal of untouchability earnestly. You have not yet completely solved the Harijan problem The problems are the same in all parts of India. I agreed to come to you so early in the morning because I hope that Orissa will show the lead in these matters. I know the British will

---

1 The report said: “At a reception organized by the Utkal Congress Committee at the Berhampur railway station . . . at 4 a. m. . . . Gandhiji was received . . . by Harekrushna Mahtab and Viswanath Das and conducted to a dais in the open ground close to the platform.” Gandhiji’s speech was rendered into Oriya by Harekrushna Mahtab.

2 Vide the preceding the item.
leave India tomorrow. If they go, not out of your strength, of what use is it to us? If you think you can make the British leave the country by empty shows, you are not correct. I have no doubt that through non-violence and truth alone we can achieve swaraj.

Mahatma Gandhi thanked the people for the purse presented for the Harijan fund and said:

If I have time enough, I would have collected from each one of you money for the fund.

Concluding, Gandhiji said, what had happened at Cuttack (the people behaving in an unruly manner) distressed him, but the orderly manner in which people behaved in Berhampur amply consoled him.¹

The Hindu, 22-1-1946

380. SPEECH AT PUBLIC MEETING, VISAKHAPATNAM²

January 20, 1946

Gandhiji asked whether (1) they had removed untouchability, (2) they had achieved communal unity, and (3) they had realized that Adivasis (hill tribes) should also share swaraj.

Mahatma Gandhi said, they were all of Hindustan, drinking the same water and breathing the same air. So swaraj must be of the Hindus, the Muslims, the Christians and others of India.

Referring to the necessity of keeping themselves disciplined and peaceful at meetings, Mahatma Gandhi said that even if one crore people congregated at one place, there should be no disturbance. Then only could they claim to be organized and disciplined; if even the few people that gathered at a public meeting, compared to the forty crores of India, could not keep themselves in order, he asked, how they could get swaraj. Even supposing they got swaraj, they would lose it, if they were not disciplined and orderly in their behaviour. Gandhiji said that without doubt swaraj would come but their preparedness must be shown by proper discipline. He had not come to collect funds but to test at first hand how far people were ready for swaraj by self-discipline.

¹ According to report in Amrita Bazar Patrika, 21-1-1946, “Gandhiji’s address was followed by Ramdhun led by Kanu Gandhi and joined in chorus by the entire audience.”

² Then called Vizagapatam. The meeting was held at the Indian Institute. The report said: “Mahatma Gandhiji’s special train arrived at Waltair at 11.05 a. m. Led by Mr. Viswanatham, Mahatmaji walked briskly the distance of two furlongs to the meeting place. Purses were presented there for the Harijan and Hindi prachar funds.”
Gandhiji next touched upon the lingua franca of India and said, everyone knew that he was at present on his way to Madras to preside over the Dakshina Bharat Hindi Prachar Sabha celebrations. Two or three Andhra ladies were travelling with him, and when he spoke in Hindustani, they could not understand. They should all know Hindustani. Gandhiji asked:

Do you want to know the language that is common to all Provinces of India or English?

Gandhiji said that he was devoting his services to all in India. When that was so, he asked, which would be preferable—whether his (Gaandhiji’s) learning all the languages of India or a small proportion still not knowing Hindustani learning the language for following his advice. Hindustani was a sweet language, easy to learn, which had been adopted as the mother tongue of 33 crores of people. So he believed that they should all take up the subject and learn Hindustani.

Continuing, Mahatma Gandhi said, swaraj cannot be retained if it came as if by magic. They all proclaimed, they would get their swaraj through non-violence and truth. That being so, they should not behave otherwise and cheat the world. Since 25 years they had been proclaiming that they would win independence by truth and non-violence. On that account, the whole world had placed India on a high place. Supposing in 1920 they had announced that they would win swaraj by violent means and later had won it, they would have lost it by now. Gandhiji wanted them to take a pledge to win swaraj by means of truth and non-violence.

Concluding, Gandhijii said that he was glad to have noticed that the crowd had remained peaceful.

The Hindu, 22-1-1946

381. ADVICE TO CONGRESSMEN

January 20, 1946

It is necessary that you should give up English and learn Hindustani. If you want to tell me anything, tell it in Hindustani or in Telugu. You may know English but it is not necessary you should use it.

Amrita Bazar Patrika, 21-1-1946

---

1 The report said that at Dusi Station, Gandhiji spoke to “Congressmen who wanted to read out an address in English”.
382. MESSAGE TO ANDHRAS

ELLORE,
January 20, 1926

I am sorry for observing silence as tomorrow is Monday. I am glad to visit Andhra. I am sorry, I could not spend longer time in Andhra. I request you to excuse me as I am old. If only you work my constructive programme, that is more than seeing me.

From a copy: C.W. 10583. Courtesy: Government of Andhra Pradesh

383. FOREWORD TO “HINDUSTANI-GUJARATI KOSHA”

ON THE TRAIN TO MADRAS,
January 21, 1926

This is the second edition of the Hindustani-Gujarati dictionary. I have not seen any other dictionary of this type in Gujarati. A dictionary giving the words both in Devanagari and Urdu scripts seems to be a new venture. If the necessity of knowing both the scripts and speaking both Hindi and Urdu is accepted, a dictionary like this is a great necessity.

This dictionary is not to be used in the same way as other dictionaries are used. If the student of Hindustani consults it frequently, his knowledge of both the scripts and of words from both the branches of the language is bound to increase. Another way of using the dictionary properly is that, if any mistakes are found in it, the reader should note them, as also words which he does not find in it, and send the lists to the Editor from time to time. The Editor may make appropriate use of the suggestions when preparing a new edition; or the addition’s if supplied as addenda, may enable the owner of the dictionary to use it at nominal cost, as if it was a revised edition. The addenda can also be sent as a supplement to everyone having the 1 According to Andhra Pradesh Government Papers, “the special train . . . arrived at Ellore Station at 10.30 p.m., and stopped for fifteen minutes. About ten thousand persons including many ladies had assembled on the platform. Gandhiji . . . did not speak . . . but gave darshan by stepping out on a table placed on the platform. His message to Andhras was transmitted through loud-speaker . . .” A similar message was given to people the next morning at Vijayawada, when Gandhiji received contributions.

2 By Maganbhai Prabhdas Desai
Gandhiji asked them to maintain silence and preserve order. He said that unless every one of them kept perfectly quiet, the vast crowd may not hear him, and he wanted every one of them to hear him.

But again the crowd shouted “Mahatma Gandhi ki Jai”. Gandhiji said:

I do not expect that you, citizens of Madras, would be so undisciplined. How can I come in your midst again, if you do not conduct yourself in a disciplined manner?

Then Gandhiji called for the singing of Ramdhun. The whole gathering took up the refrain. He followed the singing of the crowd with eyes closed... keeping tune with the song. Ramdhun terminated after five minutes. Gandhiji said:

Now you have seen me. I want every one of you to go home quietly and leave me to my work.

The crowd, however, was not satisfied... They kept shouting, “Lights, lights; we want to see him.” The electrical staff... projected a lamp... on the dais and... Gandhiji stood in the full blaze of the light... for a full minute and then pleaded with the crowd...

I have come travelling a long distance. I have not even washed or taken food. There is any amount of work waiting for me. Do you want me to stay here all night to be with you?

The crowd in a chorus shouted, “No, no; we won’t detain you.” Gandhiji said:

Then let me go. But you must first of all go home quietly. That is my request to you. Are you prepared to do so?

“Yes”, came the unanimous answer followed by a shout in Tamil “pogirom”.

---

1 The report said that Gandhiji, who had alighted at Ambattur at 4.15 p.m., was taken in a car to the bungalow adjacent to the Hindi Prachar Sabha, where several thousands of people had collected but refused to disperse without seeing Gandhiji. When he came out at about 7 p.m., they shouted “Gandhijiki Jai”. When Gandhiji raised a warning finger, they became quiet. The Hindustani speech was rendered into Tamil by Bhashyam.

2 Meaning “We shall go.”
Gandhiji said:

Good, go, all of you. Do you now give me leave to go?

The crowd shouted “Yes”, and Gandhiji then slowly descended . . . and walked back to his residence. . . .

The Hindu, 22-1-1926

385. TALK WITH INDONESIAN SAILORS

MADRAS, [After January 21, 1946]

Gandhiji told them that Indian sympathy they had already, as was shown by the resolution of the Working Committee on Indonesia and the far East. As for the use of Indian troops against them, it was as much India’s and Britain’s shame as their misfortune. It could be ended only by India gaining her independence, which would be the forerunner of the emancipation of all the suppressed and exploited races of the earth.

Harijan, 24-2-1946

386. DISCUSSION WITH NEGRO SOLDIERS

MADRAS, [After January 21, 1946]

QUESTION: There are several religions in the world. They were all originated in foreign countries. Which one of these should Africa follow? Or should she discover her own religion? If so, how?

GANDHIJI: It is wrong to say that all religions were originated in foreign countries. I had fairly extensive contact with Zulus and Bantus and I found that the Africans have a religion of their own, though they may not have reasoned it out for themselves. I am not referring

---

1 This and the following item are extracted from Pyarelal’s “Lighter Interludes”.
2 Gandhiji reached Madras on January 21; vide the preceding item.
3 Pyarelal reported that the Indonesian sailors had “refused to man their posts when their ship was ordered to proceed to Batavia with personnel and cargo ostensibly meant to be used against the nationalist struggle there, and had, in consequence, been discharged. They wanted India’s sympathy in their cause and complained about the use of Indian troops to suppress the Indonesians.”
4 Which met in Calcutta from December 7 to 11, 1945. For the resolution, vide “Lord Wavell’s Version of His Talk with Gandhiji”
5 Vide footnotes 2 and 3, p. 10. Pyarelal explains that the Negro soldiers from West Africa came “with a long list of questions indicative of the deep stirring in their consciousness”.
6 ibid
to the rites, ceremonies and fetishes that are prevalent among African tribes but the religion of one Supreme God. You pray to that God. There are many religions, but religion is only one. You should follow that one religion. Foreigners might bring you Christianity. Christianity as exemplified in Europe and America today is a travesty of the teaching of Jesus. Then there are Hinduism, Islam, Zoroastrianism and so on. You should absorb the best that is in each without fettering your choice and form your own religion.

Q. How can a continent like Africa fight down the fetters of slavery when it is so hopelessly divided?

G. I know your difficulty. If you think of the vast size of Africa, the distance and natural obstacles separating its various parts, the scattered condition of its people and the terrible divisions among them, the task might well appear to be hopeless. But there is a charm which can overcome all these handicaps. The moment the slave resolves that he will no longer be a slave, his fetters fall. He frees himself and shows the way to others. Freedom and slavery are mental states. Therefore the first thing is to say to yourself: ‘I shall no longer accept the role of a slave. I shall not obey orders as such but shall disobey them when they are in conflict with my conscience.’ The so-called master may lash you and try to force you to serve him. You will say: ‘No, I will not serve you for your money or under a threat.’ This may mean suffering. Your readiness to suffer will light the torch of freedom which can never be put out.

Q. Africa and India both drink of the cup of slavery. What necessary steps can be taken to unite the two nations so as to present a common front?

G. You are right. India is not yet free and yet Indians have begun to realize that their freedom is coming, not because the white man says so but because they have developed the power within. In as much as India’s struggle is non-violent, it is a struggle for the emancipation of all oppressed races against superior might. I do not propose mechanical joint action between them. ‘Each one has to find his own salvation’ is true of this as well as of the other world. It is enough that there is a real moral bond between Asiatics and Africans. It will grow as time passes.

Q. Everything immoral and deadly is attributed to Africa. What steps should be taken to eradicate the epidemic of foreign prejudice against us?

1 According to Pyarelal, the Negros “quoted Gandhiji’s observation that to remain in slavery is beneath the dignity of man; a slave who is conscious of his state and yet does not strive to break his chains is lower than the beast.”

G. In so far as there is a modicum of truth in this criticism, it is no special prerogative of Africa. Immorality and wrong are common in all countries. But you must not allow yourselves to take refuge in self-complacency either, by saying to yourself: ‘Well, others are no better than we.’ Many, perhaps most of the evils that are at the back of the prejudice against Negroes are the result of nominal Christianity imported from America. They have learnt to drink, dance immoral dances and so on. Then there are evil African customs. You must eradicate these and thus disarm foreign prejudice. It is a laborious task but a joyous one. The epidemic of foreign prejudice will then die a natural death.

They wanted to know as to how they could set up depots of useful Indian books, and what India could give them and how they could achieve “co-operative industrialization” in order to be saved from the terrible exploitation under which they were suffering. Gandhiji replied:

India can give you good ideas. It can give you books of universal worth. The commerce between India and Africa will be of ideas and services, not of manufactured goods against raw materials after the fashion of Western exploiters. Then India can offer you the spinning-wheel. If I had discovered it when I was in South Africa, I would have introduced it among the Africans who were my neighbours in Phoenix. You can grow cotton, you have ample leisure and plenty of manual skill. You should study and adopt the lesson of the village crafts we are trying to revive. Therein lies the key to your salvation.

_Harijan_, 24-2-1946
387. ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

[Before January 22, 1946]

QUESTION: In the Bhagavad Gita comes a sloka: . . . If everything goes according to fixed law, then if you pray to God, can He intervene and set aside the law for your sake?

ANSWER: But the meaning at the bottom is: “Thy will be done, not mine.” God’s law is never interrupted, but that very law says that every act has its result. In the prayer for the child, father surrenders his will to God. The law works as if it were a person, and since every action tells, this prayer has an unforeseeable result. You should work out what I have written. The sum total of every act is a resultant. Draw a parallelogram of forces.

Jnana, karama and bhakti—should not they all go together? Unless you know God, how can you have bhakti? You cannot even offer him your karma.

You must not reason like this. If you have no work and so-called bhakti, the result will be lop-sided. Do you know God to whom you pray? I don’t. He is unknown to you and me.

To whom shall we then pray?

To God, whom you do not know. We always do not know the person to whom we are praying.

But the Shastras say that He is knowable.

Since He is knowable we search. It may take a billion years. Even if you do not believe, you must continue to pray. “Help thou mine unbelief”” is a verse from the Bible. But it is improper for you to ask such questions. For you, there must be infinite patience and inward longing. Inward longing obviates all such questions. “Have faith and you will be whole”” is another chip from the Bible. Gita has many such parallel passages.

---

1. This was an enclosure to a letter (G.N. 3230) dated “Thyagarayanagar, Madras, January 22, 1946”, for R. P. Parasuram to Konda Venkatappayya, which read: “As instructed by Pyarelalji, I am enclosing herewith Gandhiji’s scribbled answers to your questions. I am also enclosing herewith a typed copy for your convenience.”

2. ibid

3. The verse is not given in the source.

4. The source, however, has “my”.

5. St. Mark, ix, 24

6. St. Matthew, ix, 22, and St Mark x, 52, which read: “They faith hath made Thee whole.”
Q. When I look at nature around me, I say to myself there must be one Creator, one God and to Him I should pray.

A. That is reasoning. God is beyond reason. But I have nothing to say, if your reason is enough to sustain you.

From a photostat of a copy: G.N. 3230

388. TELEGRAM TO GOVIND BALLABH PANT

MADRAS,
January 22, 1946

SUCHETA FREE DECIDE WHETHER TAKE KASTURBA OR PARLIAMENTARY WORK.

GANDHI

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

389. TALK WITH V. S. SRINIVASA SASTRI

MADRAS,
January 22, 1946

GANDHI: You must not hug me and excite yourself.

SASTRI: I have wanted to say one thing to you. Another opportunity for peace has been lost. They are sitting there at the Peace Conference Table. But who is there who can speak for humanity except you? I am afraid, India has failed to do her duty. Even if they do not ask you, you must go as the apostle of truth and non-violence and be on the spot. Your mere presence will have a tremendous effect. You must not stand on ceremony.

1 1887-1961; Leader of Congress Party in the United Provinces Legislative Assembly, and its Premier, 1937-39; Chief Minister of Uttar Pradesh, 1946-55; Home
Minister, Government of India, 1955-61

2 The addressee had sought Gandhiji’s permission to sponsor Sucheta Kripalani for membership of U. P. Legislative Assembly. She, however, joined Kasturba Gandhi National Memorial Trust.

3 This is extracted from Dr. Sushila Nayyar’s “Meeting Sastriar”. Sushila Nayyar who explains: “Gandhiji had heard that Sastriar was so ill that probably he alone would be allowed to go in for a few minutes. Shri Jagadisan had advised my brother [Pyarelal] and me to accompany him. . . . So Gandhiji took both of us and Shri Manilal Gandhi with him. . . . The doctor, however, gave us more cheerful news.
. . . Sastriar sat bolt upright . . . as Gandhiji entered . . . and moved to the edge of the bed. ‘I want to come near enough to hug you, little brother,’ he muttered. . . . Gandhiji took his hand and soothed him.”

4 According to Sushila Nayyar, “ever since Gandhiji’s release from prison,
Sastriar had been writing to him imploring him to go to the Peace Conference at San Then, referring to the Parliamentary Delegation\(^1\), he remarked, “we know nothing can come out of it. Labour or Conservative, so far as India is concerned, they are all one and the same.

\[g\] But we must trust. Burrows\(^2\), the new pitboy Governor of Bengal, has a sense of humour. When the Pressmen worried him and asked him what policy he was going to initiate, he replied, “Gentlemen, I am not going to initiate. I am going. to carry out.” That is true of all of them. The labour Government cannot afford to do otherwise.

\[s\] What next?

\[g\] Who knows? The British Government itself does not know, I think. But I did not come here to discuss politics with you.

\[s\] I see, you think I am not good for it.

\[g\] No, but you are certainly no good for it in the present state of your health.\(^3\)

Harijan, 28-4-1946

Francisco [vide “Letter From V. S. Srinivasa Sastri”, 2-6-1944] . . . Gandhiji’s view was that his non-violence should have its effect from wherever he was. His going to the Peace Conference, unless the great powers themselves want it, could serve no useful purpose.”

\(^1\) Which reached Bombay on January 5; it consisted of Prof. Richards (Leader), R. Serenson, (Mrs.) Mureiel E. Nichol A. G. Bottomley, Maj. Woodrow Wyatt, Godfrey Nicholson, Brig. A. R. W. Low, R. Hopkin Morris, the Earl of Munster and Lord Chorley of Kendal. According to The Transfer of Power, 1942-47, Vol. VI, p. 522, in a memorandum dated November 14, 1945, to the British Cabinet, the Secretary of State for India, Pethick-Lawrence, had said that the Parliamentary Delegation “would serve to demonstrate the sympathy of Parliament with Indian aspirations and the sincerity of British intentions in the matter of India’s constitutional advance. The Delegation . . . would be free in their movements and their contacts with Indians, from any control by the Viceroy or Governors.”

\(^2\) Sir Frederick Burrows

\(^3\) The report concluded: “They touched upon the topic of the communal problem. They cracked a few more jokes and then Sastriar called us near and bade good-bye saying a few kind words to each one of us. He talked a little about South Africa and Gen. Smuts with Shri Manilal Gandhi, and Gandhiji left him with a promise to visit him again if the doctor reported that the visit had had no deleterious effect upon his health.”
390. LETTER TO DR. B. PATTABHI SITARAMAYYA

MADRAS,
January 22, 1946

BHAI PATTABHI,

I got your letter just now. Bhai Venkatrao also showed me his letter. Get well soon. I have said all that I wanted to say. You may now explain things to me when the need arises. Your duty at present is to get well.

Blessings from

BAPU

DR. PATTABHI SITARAMAYYA
MASULIPATTAM

From a copy a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

391. SPEECH AT PRAYER MEETING, MADRAS

January 22, 1946

Gandhiji explained how Ramdhun was sung and how those willing to join might clap their hands in time. He explained:

This custom was started in Bengal, and, I believe, with very good results. I wish as many of you as are willing should join this dhun.

Gandhiji first enquired how many of them could understand Hindustani. About a tenth of the crowd raised their hands. To the question how many were unable to understand Hindustani, there was no answer until it was translated into Tamil and then the overwhelming majority raised their hands. Gandhiji said, they need not be shy or ashamed, but he would want them all to learn Hindustani.

At the outset, Gandhiji said that it gave him great pleasure to be in their midst once again after so many years. He then recalled how years ago it was in the city of Madras that satyagraha against the Rolatt Act was first launched. He had come to Madras on that occasion at the invitation of Mr. Kasturiranga Iyengar who had put

---

1 K. Venkatrao, Secretary, Andhra Provincial Congress Committee
2 The report said: “Precisely at 5.30 p.m., Gandhiji, accompanied by his party including Miss Agatha Harrison, proceeded to the grounds to the south of Hindi Prachar Sabha for prayer. . . . Gandhiji . . . addressed them . . . in Hindustani. Mr. A. Subramanyam, Hindi Pracharak from Trichinopoly, rendered the speech into Tamil.”
3 Bill No. 29 of 1919
4 In March 1919
him up with Mr. C. Rajagopalachari. Rajaji had then recently come over to Madras from Salem. There he was a leading practising lawyer and was doing useful work as Chairman of the Salem Municipality. Gandhiji confessed that he had at first felt a bit put out at Mr. Kasturiranga Iyengar putting him up with one who was a preactising laywer and a stranger to him at that time. But the late Mr. Mahadev Desai who was then with him told him the next day that Rajaji was a precious friend of Mr. Kasturiranga Iyengar and far from playing him a trick; therefore the latter had selected an ideal host for him. Although Rajaji had never met Gandhiji before, Mr. Desai had told Gandhiji before, Mr. Desai had told Gandhiji, he had been following his work in South Africa with close attention and admiration. Mr. Mahadev Desai had further told him that Rajaji would be prepared to throw away his practice in a trice at a word from Gandhiji.

I could hardly believe at that time that a leading lawyer could give up his practice like that. I, however, accepted Mr. Desai’s testimony of faith. The subsequent events have, however, amply borne out Mr. Mahadev Desai’s estimate. Rajaji as I see him today is just what he was on the day when we first met.

It was on that occasion, too, said Gandhiji, that he had made his first acquaintance with the late Mr. C. Vijayaraghavachariar.

Continuing, Gandhiji described how it was at Mr. Rajagopalachari’s place that the observance of the 6th of April which had become a sacred day to all of them was commenced. It was a great day for him and for them. It marked the birth of satyagraha in this country. The way in which it galvanized the whole nation into a new consciousness was nothing less than a miracle. It gave him particular pleasure, therefore, to recall those glorious associations and to re-visit the place that had given them birth.

Referring to his present visit, Gandhiji stated that he was disinclined to come to Madras on the present occasion. He was reluctant to come out of Sevagram in the first instance and later he would have liked to return straight to the Ashram from Bengal. He believed that it was providence that had brought him to Madras. Surely it would not be for nothing. He hoped that the present visit would prove as fruitful as the previous one. He added:

Yesterday I was rather disappointed with you. I tried in my broken Hindustani, to make myself understood but could not. When I spoke in Hindustani, Rajaji himself did not fully understand it. He is the defaulter No. 1 in this respect. He addresses you in Tamil but

---

1 In commemoration of the total hartal observed on April 6, 1919, in protest against the Rowlatt Act and the Jallianwala Bagh massacre which followed on April 13. The week had since been observed as “National Week” every year.
when he goes outside the Province, he talks in English. Well, if the sea water should lose its salt, wherewith shall it be flavoured? All over the country he is reputed to be one of the finest speakers in the English language, but he has not learnt to speak in Hindustani. I want a pledge from you here and now—and you should not only give the pledge but pledge yourself to implement it too—that you will all learn Hindustani. Should you not do even that little for the country’s independence? Do you expect all the two crores of people of Tamil Nadu to learn English? Or do you expect India to learn one of the four South Indian languages to be able to communicate with you? I say it is your dharma to learn Hindustani, which will link the South with the North.

I want you further to contribute to the Harijan fund. You must do so as a token of your determination to eradicate the blot of untouchability from the fair name of Hinduism. Another thing I want to tell you is that whatever your religion, prayer should form part of your daily life. It should mean more to you than food and drink. I thank you for maintaining perfect discipline during prayer. I will hold prayer here, every evening. The text of the prayer with the translation of the same in the four South Indian languages is obtainable from Satyanarayanaji1. You should learn it and its meanings. Further all those who come to the prayer should fully take part in it and join in the singing of the Ramdhun to the accompaniment of tala.2.

The Hindu, 24-1-1946

1 M. Satyanarayana, Secretary, Dakshina Bharat Hindi Prachar Sabha, Madras
2 Rhythmic beats
392. ADVICE TO INDIAN NATIONAL ARMY MEN

MADRAS,
[After January 22, 1946]

Gandhiji told them that they could only follow the lead of the Congress and commended to their attention Capt. Shah Nawaz’s statement in which he had said that, whilst they had fought with arms for their country’s freedom when they were outside India, they would now serve India through non-violence.

Lastly you should remember that it is unbecoming the dignity of a soldier to depend on anybody’s charity. As soldiers of freedom, you should earn your bread by your honest industry and disdain to look to others for support, even though you may have to suffer hardships and privations in consequence.

_Harijan_, 24-2-1946

393. FRAGMENT OF TALK WITH V. V. GIRI

MADRAS,
January 23, 1946

Gandhiji’s individual opinion was that no Trade Union which respected the National Congress could do without the tricolour flag with the _charkha_ in the middle.

He added that he saw no objection to the simple red flag with the particular Union’s name on it, provided that it went side by side with the supreme tricolour.

_The Hindu_, 26-1-1946

---

1 Extracted from “Lighter Interludes”. Pyarelal explains: “At Madras . . . there was a group of discharged L.N.A. men. Gandhiji saw them for a couple of minutes as he was going to his residence. They were returning to their respective homes. They had received their training in the Military Academy at Tokyo. They asked: ‘We worked under Netaji’s guidance. Whose lead should we now follow?’ ”

2 From the reference to Shah Nawaz Khan’s statement which was made on January 22, on the eve of Subhas Chandra Bose’s 50th birthday

3 1894-1980; twice President of All-India Trade Union Congress and its representative at I.L.O., Geneva, 1927; represented Labour at Round Table Conference, London, 1930-47; India’s High Commissioner in Sri Lanka, 1947-51; Minister of Labour in Union Cabinet, 1952-54; successively held Governorship of Uttar Pradesh, Kerala and Karnataka from 1958 to 1964; Vice-President of India, 1967-69 and President of India, 1969-74
394. SPEECH AT PRAYER MEETING, MADRAS

[January 23, 1946]

Gandhiji said that the very best of food served to a sick person who could not digest it would act as poison. Similarly freedom or swaraj would prove a questionable boon to them, if they lacked discipline.

The Hindu, 24-1-1946

395. LETTER TO JIVANJI D. DESAI

ON THE TRAIN TO MADRAS,
January 21/24, 146

CHI. JIVANJI,

I sent herewith a Foreword for Maganbhai’s dictionary. I suggest the addition of one page to explain the Urdu script. The method of forming words, too, should be explained so that the buyer, if he does not know Urdu, may learn it. Pyarelal has an impression that there are also mistakes in a few places. If you think it necessary, get the dictionary examined again from that point of view.

I am sending a Foreword for Mahadev’s Gita, too. I suppose I have nothing more to write now. Am I right?

I forced myself to find time and write all this yesterday under great pressure of other work. I put aside other reading and writing.

If Maganbhai or you wish to suggest any changes, you may do so. Never mind if that delays the publication by a few days.

Enclosure: Foreword

January 24, 1946

This is a painful thing. This is being posted on the 24th instead of on the 21st. But is it not better that it should go today at any rate rather than not at all?

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 9963. Also C.W. 6937. Courtesy: Jivanji D. Desai

1 The report said: “The meeting was very noisy. Contrary to his usual practice, Gandhiji kept standing throughout the prayer.”

2 From the reference to the noise at this meeting in “Speech at Constructive Workers’ Conference, Madras”, vide “Key to Health”, 28-8-1942

3 Vide “Key to Health”, 28-8-1942

4 Vide “Key to Health”, 28-8-1942
396. A TELEGRAM

January 24, 1946

YOU AND PROMILABEHN DECIDE ON INSCRIPTION. MUST BE IN NAGARI AND URDU RETAINING OM AND HE RAM NO GAUDINESS.

BAPU

From the original: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

397. LETTER TO JIVANJI D. DESAI

MADRAS,
January 24, 1946

CHI. JIVANJI,

I came to learn in the course of a discussion with Kakasaheb¹ that you cannot carry out the changes he has introduced in the Nagari script because you do not have such types or give up printing in Devanagari script. We cannot cling to the old forms of the letters. The improved forms have been made current by Kakasaheb and, so far as I know, our [Hindustani Prachar] Sabha has accepted them. How, then, can we ourselves admit anarchy? If I am mistaken in this, please correct me. Kaka and Nanavati² have seen this letter.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 9964. Also C. W. 6938. Courtesy: Jivanji D. Desai

398. LETTER TO MUNNANLAL G. SHAH

MADRAS,
January 24, 1946

CHI. MUNNALAL,

Two of your letters are lying with me. I am writing this during a few moments of free time. Do not worry in the least about the samadhi. Go on doing only the task in hand. Nothing is done there (in the Spinners' Association) without my permission.

¹ D. B. Kalelkar
² Amritlal T. Nanavati

Do what is possible regarding the clinic. Now I will be there in a few days.

Kanchan is with me. Her cough has not disappeared. But otherwise she is all right. She is quite cheerful. According to me she is being looked after better than a queen. I have not asked her whether she would agree.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 8609. Also C. W. 7209. Courtesy: Munnalal G. Shah

399. LETTER TO MRIDULA SARABHAI

MADRAS,
January 24, 1946

CHI. MRIDU,

I have your letter of January 11, 1946. I have been very busy and it is nearly six in the morning. What is being done for women seems to be good. Jawaharlal has done a very good job.

Blessings from
BAPU

SMT. MRIDULA SARABHAI
SHAHIBAG
AHMEDABAD

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 The reference is to the proposal to acquire the land in the Aga Khan Palace, Poona, having the samadhis of Kasturba Gandhi and Mahadev Desai. Vide also “Letter to Vallabhbhai Patel”, 1-1-1946
2 Nature Cure Clinic, Poona
3 Addressee's wife
4 The letter is in Devanagari.
5 The addressee, a trustee of the Kasturba Gandhi National Memorial Trust, had organized women's welfare activities.
400. LETTER TO JETHALAL L. GANDHI

MADRAS,
January 24, 1946

CHI. KAKU,

I have your very long letter. We should be charitable. We would go crazy looking for other people’s faults, and we would never see our own. Hence remain silent and render such service as you can.

I should consider it a matter of shame that you should rush about in the car to do my work. All the same I am trying to be vigilant.

I shall not be able to look up Hemchanbhai and the labourers. Sorry.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

401. SPEECH AT CONSTRUCTIVE WORKERS’ CONFERENCE, MADRAS

January 24, 1946

Gandhiji had hardly spoken a few sentences when the drone of planes overhead dropped his voice, and Gandhiji stopped speaking for a while till he could be heard better.

Gandhiji took the organizers to task because the printed programme that had been put into his hands was in English. It should have been, he said, in the local language or in the rashtrabhsha, Hindustani.¹

Gandhiji sharply rebuked those workers who did not understand Hindustani for not knowing that language. He told them that the time was past when he used to address them in English, if only to please them. He had now decided to reserve his English, if only to please them. He had now decided to reserve his English for Englishmen and foreigners only. So far as they (the gathering) were concerned, he would prefer to speak to them in his broken Hindustani, even if he could make himself better understood by speaking in English.

¹ The source, however, has “1945”, a slip of the pen.
² The report said, about 200 workers including a ”good number” of women had gathered at the Conference, which was presided over by SShri Krishnadas Jaju of All-India Spinners’ Association. Gandhiji, supported by Abha Gandhi and Kantilal, arrived at 8.20 a. m. He spoke in Hindustani.
³ According to the report, “Some persons in the gathering did not understand what Gandhiji was saying and one of them stood up and, speaking in Telugu, said he could not follow Gandhiji’s speech. Gandhiji asked him in Tamil to sit down. The gentleman, not understanding Tamil continued standing, and some of his friends made him sit.”

Referring to the prayer gathering of the previous evening, he said, he knew there were only a few at the far end who were creating the noise; but in an orchestra if even one instrument was out of tune, the harmony of the whole was spoilt. Discipline and its inculcation in the people was an essential part of constructive work.

If he had time, he continued, he would have gone to their latrines, their kitchen, their dining hall, etc., so that he might see for himself how they ate, sat and so on. Maintenance or proper living conditions in the camp was another illustration of fresh items that could be added to the 18-fold constructive programme.

Parliamentary programme and constructive programme were both before the country, he observed. It was not a question of one being inferior to the other, but he wanted to make it clear to them that for India to win her independence through truth and non-violence, constructive work was absolutely essential. Those who went to the legislatures should go there primarily to promote constructive work. But in any case he was of opinion that lovers of freedom should go to the legislatures, if only to prevent those who did not want freedom from getting in and posing as the country’s representatives.

Referring to the Parliamentary Delegation, he said that he had given a couple of hours to them on the previous evening and another hour to some of them this morning. He did not think he had wasted his time, but he did not depend on anybody for giving them swaraj. Gandhiji concluded:

Swaraj has to come through our own strength. We might get help from other quarters. It would be welcome. But we should understand that freedom could never come as a gift from outside. We bore no enmity towards the British. We want the British rulers to quit in a friendly spirit. If they do that, it will augur well for them, for India and the world.

Gandhiji declared the Conference open and wished them a fruitful discussion.

The Hindu, 25-1-1946

---

1 Vide “Key to Health”, 28-8-1942
2 For a discussion, vide “Key to Health”, 28-8-1942
3 At its afternoon session; vide the following item.
402. ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS AT CONSTRUCTIVE WORKERS’ CONFERENCE, MADRAS

January 24, 1946

The first question related to the place of khadi in the national economy and how far it would help to solve the poverty problem.

Gandhiji said that khadi was the very foundation of Indian swaraj and economic uplift of the poor. He had always linked khadi with swaraj from the beginning. The more khadi we produced, the nearer we would be to swaraj. Manual labour was an essential factor in his programme, and it was as necessary for the rich also to do manual work. Spinning was manual labour par excellence. It enabled even poor people to lead independent lives. Explaining the symbolism of the charkha, Gandhiji said that it stood for ahimsa. Let them not get lost in minor controversies but concentrate on the work of spinning and production of khadi, the most important part of the constructive programme.

Another question asked was how khadi production could be of help to the poor man when one considered that in the budget more than 80 per cent was spent on food and only 12 per cent on cloth.

Gandhiji answered that if through khaddar they could add to the income of the people even a few annas, it would be worth while. He was looking forward to the day when khadi would become a universal gospel, though today it was confined to India. The first step he envisaged was that khadi should touch all the 40 crores of Indian people.

A question written in English and in pencil on an odd slip of paper was next put aside by Gandhiji with the remark that it was illegible and the questioner was doing violence to an old man to send the question in that way.¹

QUESTION: What exactly do you mean by economic equality? What is statutory trusteeship as conceived by you?

Gandhiji’s reply was that economic equality of his conception did not mean that everyone would literally have the same amount. It simply meant that everybody should have enough for his or her needs. For instance, he required two shawls in winter whereas his grand-nephew Kanu Gandhi who stayed with him and was like his own son did not require any warm clothing whatsoever. Gandhiji required goat’s milk, oranges and other fruit. Kanu could do with ordinary food. He envied Kanu but there was no point in it. Kanu was a young man whereas he was an old man of 76. The monthly expense of his food was far more than that of Kanu but that did not mean that there was economic inequality between them. The elephant needs a thousand times more food than the ant, but that is not an indication of inequality. So the real meaning of economic equality was: “To each according to his need.” That was the definition of Marx. If a single man demanded as much as a man with wife and four children that would be a violation of economic equality. Gandhiji continued:

¹ What follows is extracted from “Gandhiji’s Communism” by Pyarelal in Harijan.

Let no one try to justify the glaring difference between the classes and the masses, the prince and the pauper, by saying that the former need more. That will be idle sophistry and a travesty of my argument. The contrast between the rich and the poor today is a painful sight. The poor villagers are exploited by the foreign Government and also by their own countrymen—the city-dwellers. They produce the food and go hungry. They produce milk and their children have to go without it. It is disgraceful. Everyone must have a balanced diet, a decent house to live in, facilities for the education of one’s children and adequate medical relief.

That constituted his picture of economic equality. He did not want to taboo everything above and beyond the bare necessaries but they must come after the essential needs of the poor are satisfied. First things must come first.

As for the present owners of wealth, they would have to make their choice between class-war and voluntarily converting themselves into trustees of their wealth. They would be allowed to retain the stewardship of their possessions and to use their talent to increase the wealth, not for their own sakes, but for the sake of the nation and therefore without exploitation. The State would regulate the rate of commission which they would get commensurate with the service rendered and its value to society. Their children would inherit the stewardship only if they proved their fitness for it. He concluded:

Supposing India becomes a free country tomorrow, all the capitalists will have an opportunity of becoming statutory trustees. But such a statute will not be imposed from above. It will have to come from below. When the people understand the implications of trusteeship and the atmosphere is ripe for it, the people themselves, beginning with gram panchayats, will begin to introduce such statutes. Such a thing coming from below is easy to swallow. Coming from above, it is liable to prove a dead weight.

Q. What is the difference between your technique and that of the communists or socialists for realizing the goal of economic equality?

A. The socialists and communists say, they can do nothing to bring about economic equality today. They will just carry on propaganda in its favour and to that end they believe in generating and accentuating hatred. They say, when they get control over and accentuating hatred. They say, when they get control over the State, they will enforce equality. Under my plan, the State will be there to carry out the will of the people, not to dictate to them or force them to do its will. I shall bring about economic equality through non-violence, by converting the people to my point of view by harnessing the forces of love as against hatred. I will not wait till I have converted the whole society to my view but will straightaway make a beginning with myself. It goes without saying that I cannot hope to bring about economic equality of my conception, if I am the owner of fifty motor-cars or even of ten bighas of land. For that I have to reduce myself to the level of the poorest of the poor. That is what I have been trying to do for the last fifty years or more, and so I claim to be a foremost communist although I make use of cars and other facilities offered to me by the rich. They have no hold on me and I can shed them at a moment’s notice, if the interests of the masses demand it.

9. What is the place of satyagraha in making the rich realize their duty towards the poor?

The same as against the foreign power. Satyagraha is a law of universal application. Beginning with the family, its use can be extended to every other circle. Supposing a land-owner exploits his tenants and mulcts them of the fruit of their toil by appropriating it to his own use. When they expostulate with him, he does not listen and raises objections that he requires so much for his wife, so much for his children and so on. The tenants or those who have espoused their cause and have influence, will make an appeal to his wife to expostulate with her husband. She would probably say that for herself she does not need his exploited money. The children will say likewise that they would earn for themselves what they need.

Supposing further that he listens to nobody or that his wife and children combine against the tenants, they will not submit. They will quit, if asked to do so, but they will make it clear that the land belongs to him who tills it. The owner cannot till all the land himself, and he will have to give in to their just demands. It may, however, be that the tenants are replaced by others. Agitation short of violence will then continue till the replaced tenants see their error and make common cause with the evicted tenants. Thus satyagraha is a process of educating public opinion such that it covers all the elements of society and in the end makes itself irresistible. Violence interrupts the process and prolongs the real revolution of the whole social structure.

The Hindu, 26-1-1946; also Harijan, 31-3-1946
403. FRAGMENT OF AN INTERVIEW

MADRAS,
January 24, 1946

If the report about the damage to communist persons and properties is true, I consider it disgraceful. Whatever may be the difference between communists and others, they must be respected, as others will wish theirs to be respected. Every act of popular violence is detrimental to the people’s progress.

The Hindu, 26-1-946

404. SPEECH AT PRAYER MEETING, MADRAS

January 24, 1946

Speaking of the Tyagaraja keertana that had been sung during prayer, Gandhiji said, he knew what a high place Sri Tyagaraja occupied in South India. Wherever he had been, whether in Tamil Nadu, Andhra Desha, Karnataka or Kerala, he had heard Tyagaraja’s songs sung with a sweet melody which seemed to spring from the very heart of the singer. Tyagaraja’s songs and Tyagaraja’s name comported ill with the spirit of provincialism and secularism that he had witnessed among them. There was rivalry of languages today which might grow into something worse tomorrow. Some wanted Tamil, some Telugu and so on. Then there was the feeling of separateness and rivalry between South Indians and North Indians. He was utterly unable to understand how this parochialism could be compatible with the growing desire for freedom for the whole of India. Supposing a Bengali achieved distinction in a particular field, would the glory belong to Bengal alone? No, it belonged to every Province and every one of the forty crores of India. That should be their first lesson, if they wanted to be a free nation. Tyagaraja had sung that if all the attributes of Rama are put on one side and the glory of Ramanama on the other, the latter would far outweigh the former. Thinking of the historical Rama of Valmiki or Tulsiddas, one was liable to have many doubts as, for instance, why Rama banished Sita, and so on. But when one thought of Ramanama in the abstract, forgetting who Rama was and what he did, Rama at once

---

1 This was reported as stated by Gandhiji “in the course of an interview” with reference to “reports of outbreak of violence in Bombay [on January 23] in connection with the observance of Subhas Chandra Bose Day, and the attack on the headquarters of the Communist Party of India”. According to The Transfer of Power, 1942-47, Vol. VI, pp. 86-9, although “the authorities in Bombay altered the permitted route of a Subhas Bose procession to avoid Muslim areas in the city”, the “organizers of the procession refused to follow the altered route and in ensuing disturbances 11 persons were killed and several hundreds were injured”.

298 become the omnipresent and omnipotent God, above doubt and criticism. Similarly he asked them to forget and put behind them the confusing label of Tamil Nadu v. Andhra, Gujarat v. Maharashtra or Punjab, and so on, and just remember Hindustan and its glory. There was a potency in the two letters composing the syllable Ram which nothing could match or rival. Similarly there was a magic in the syllable Hind all its own. After all, the world knew India, not its Provinces—India which had resolved to win her independence through truth and non-violence. He exhorted them to throw their parochialism and petty quarrels and rivalries into the Indian Ocean and, in Tyagraja’s name, take a pledge that they would be Indians first and Indians last, live for India and die for India.

When Tamil translation of Gandhiji’s exhortation was given, some people shouted for Telugu translation also. Gandhiji said:

All right, say it in Telugu also.

Accordingly a Telugu translation was given. Gandhiji then remarked with a laugh:

Is there no Malayalee and no Canarese here?

The Hindu, 26-1-1946

405. DISCUSSION WITH MEMBERS OF PARLIAMENTARY DELEGATION

MADRAS,

January 24, 1946

Gandhiji gave a very clear picture of what his views were on the present political situation and the future. Gandhiji’s view outlined broadly was, it is understood, that India wanted her freedom. She wanted the freedom to be given to her not as though by a superior to an inferior, but given and taken as among equals. He hoped that the British Government would soon make a declaration to that effect, for any delay would complicate the situation and harden the feelings between the different sections of opinion in India, and between India and Britain.

Once that declaration was made and Constituent Assembly was set up, an act which would prove that Britain was acting in good faith, India would begin to believe that Britain was in earnest. Of course, he realized that it would take time before the full Indian Constitution would function properly. But they would be prepared to work out these details in patience or, he is stated to have pointed out, they would have been

---

1 According to the report, Prof. Richards, Lord Chorley and Reginald Sorensen called on Gandhiji. “The talks commenced at 7.30 p. m., as on the previous day, and lasted 90 minutes. . . . Lord Munster was not present.”
satisfied about Britain’s good faith. Gandhi, it is reported, also touched on the position of political prisoners and urged the need for their release.

_The Hindu, 26-1-1946_

406. MESSAGE TO STUDENTS¹

MADRAS, January 25, 1946

Gandhiji’s advice was that the students must observe perfect discipline and non-violence. Not only there should be no coercion of any kind, but there should be no show of force either. To take a large mass of students to another College in order to bring out the students of that College, in Gandhiji’s opinion, would not be strictly non-violent. More than that he could not say. Gandhiji would like the students to act under the guidance and advice of someone in the city in whom they have faith.

_The Hindu, 26-1-1946_

407. SPEECH AT DAKSHINA BHARAT HINDI PRACHAR SABHA, MADRAS²

January 25, 1946

Congratulating the _Sabha_ on its work during the last 25 years, Gandhiji said that what had been achieved so far was certainly praiseworthy. One of the previous speakers, Mr. T. Krishnaswami, had used a type of English-mixed Hindus-tani, though he could talk good Hindustani, in order to emphasize how far they had succumbed to the influence of a foreign language. He did not want to make any invidious comparisons, but it seemed that the influence of English was so great, particularly in South India, that even Indian names assumed an English form in many places. This was a kind of slavery. Why should they continue to hug the chains, albeit golden, which enslaved them? Should they not break these asunder and try to regain their freedom? It was not difficult at all. Let them at least replace English with Hindustani. He wanted Hindustani to spread so as to unite the different parts of India and not so as to displace the local Indian languages. He was sorry to note that so many in that gathering could not understand him. He desired to serve them, enslaved as they were. It was here in Madras that he first started on his service of slaves. Many...

¹ The message was signed by Pyarelal, and it was read out to the students of Pachaiyappa’s College who were stopped by police from going in a procession.

² Gandhiji was inaugurating the Silver Jubilee celebrations.
prominent citizens of Madras, highly educated persons, welcomed him and extended to him their hospitality at that time. They all fell in with the idea of promoting Hindustani as the lingua franca of India. It was soon after that the movement was set on foot here. He was glad to read the reports presented to him of the progress of work so far, and he congratulated them on it; but taking into consideration what yet remained to achieve, one should admit that it was but a drop in the ocean. So it was that he appealed to everyone in the gathering and outside to learn Hindustani as early as he or she could. If only they devoted to the study of Hindustani a sixteenth of the time they devoted to English, they would attain a higher degree of proficiency in that language. They should learn to read and write both the scripts related to that language—Nagari and Urdu—for the sake of India’s independence.

Suggesting that the nomenclature for the work done by the Sabha should be changed from “Hindi Prachar” to “Hindustani Prachar”, Gandhiji said that he was not quite such a fanatic about the nomenclature as some were. What was meant by rashtrabhasha was that common medium which was easily understood by some 23 crores of the people of India, irrespective of religion or class. That was Hindustani. It was their dharma to learn this language and in both the scripts, too. He also would like Hindi workers to learn the language of the area in which they carried on their work so that they would be able to serve the country and the rashtrabhasha all the more.

Referring to the difficulties over translation, Gandhiji said that he had decided that there should be no translation of his speech that day. It would save time, for one thing. Further, they could read what he said in the newspapers later on or gather the substance from friends.

It was good that they had all contributed to the Silver Jubilee Fund and come there in such large numbers. But he had seen how they had also committed a serious breach of discipline in rushing pell-mell and sitting here, there and everywhere, instead of occupying the seats allotted to them. If they did not learn to observe discipline in their everyday life, how would they be able to manage the affairs of a free India, he asked. It should be their sankalpa1 that swaraj should be run on the basis of discipline. Everyone should learn to obey laws and regulations in order to promote constructive national work. Disobedience to be non-violent had to be civil; it did not mean breaking of any and every law. That would lead to chaos and mob rule. He did not wish to live to see mob rule in India. His desire to live for 125 years was in order to serve the cause of truth and non-violence. That presupposed the observance of strict discipline on their part.

1 Determination or resolve
Gandhiji said that he did not want to take more time. He thanked them for the silence they had maintained and bade them good-bye.

_The Hindu, 27-1-1946_

408. SPEECH AT PRAYER MEETING, MADRAS

_January 25, 1946_

Gandhiji said that he did not put through a comprehensive prayer programme as the meeting was not observing perfect silence. He was, however, glad that the position improved during Ramdhun.

Gandhiji declared that henceforth there would be no translation of his speech in Tamil or Telugu.1 Those who did not care to know Hindustani should afterwards gather from newspaper reports or from friends what he had said. If they did not wish to hear him in Hindustani, he was prepared to go away without saying anything. The incident had pained him greatly, he said. His appeal2 of the previous seemed to have fallen on deaf ears.

They should at least observe elementary rules of courtesy. The rule was that even if a child was entrusted with authority, everyone should implicitly obey his or her instructions. He had heard that on the previous evening one child was crushed in the crowd. It had given him much pain. Their joining in the prayer was a meaningless thing, if it did not teach them to show consideration to women and children and give them precedence. They should let women and children go first. Why should there be such unseemly hurry to depart after the meeting?

Finally Gandhiji exhorted them to observe perfect discipline in the independence Day3 meeting. He was the author of the independence Pledge4. He wanted to live and die for India’s independence. Any indiscipline on their part would hurt him deeply. It would delay the coming of _swaraj_. The Independence Pledge laid it down that independence had to be won through truth and non-violence. This required on their part adherence to strict discipline. Violence did not merely mean causing physical injury. It means also giving provocation or causing inconvenience to others. To

---

1 Gandhiji spoke in Hindustani which was translated into Tamil. After a few sentences were translated, an Ardhra gentleman among the audience asked for a Telugu translation also.

2 Vide “Key to Health”, 28-8-1942

3 January 26

4 Originally drafted by Gandhiji in January 1930, the pledge was amended in December 1939 and to which a paragraph was added in 1941; vide “Draft Declaration for January”, 10-1-1930, “Resolution on Independence Day Pledge”, and “Instructions for Independence Day”, 11-1-1941 indulge in abuse or to goad others into acts of violence was worse than direct physical violence.

_The Hindu, 27-1-194_

409. A TELEGRAM

January 26, 1946

THAT HIGHNESS HAS BUILT SHOULD BE STATED. NO FURTHER INSTRUCTIONS NECESSARY.

BAPU

From the original: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

410. ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS AT CONSTRUCTIVE WORKERS’ CONFERENCE, MADRAS

January 26, 1946

Gandhiji singled out for his first answer his favourite topic, Harijan uplift. He categorically called on the constructive workers to make Harijan uplift a major programme. While he agreed that a large majority of the people had advanced views on this question, the action taken in this regard, he regretted, was like a speck in an ocean. Their question was what step should be taken for the complete amelioration of the condition of the Harijans. He had again and again answered such questions. He would repeat that steps such as inter-dining of caste Hindus with Harijans, voluntary admission of Harijans into temples—he considered this as a vital programme—and accessibility of Harijans to roads and water sources would alone give the Harijans

---

1 The report concluded: “Gandhiji then . . . walked back quickly to his residence. . . . As he approached . . . his residence, Mr. A. Subrahmanyam . . . Tamil translator . . . expressed regret that his translation should have caused Gandhiji the disturbance. Gandhiji said, he was not at all to blame. The Andhra gentleman . . . had by now come up . . . to explain himself . . . Gandhiji rebuked him saying that he should first have made his request to him either in a note or in person instead of disturbing the prayer and trying to dictate what should be done. By so doing, he had only forced him to come to a decision not to have translations at all and thus prevented his coming into contact with the people in the manner he wanted. The offender persisted in his attempts to further press his case, while expressing his regret for what had happened. Dr. Sushila Nayyar interrupted at this stage, and asked him not to cause Gandhiji unnecessary strain. The gentleman then withdrew.”

2 In the afternoon session to the third day, V. Bhashyam Iyengar presided. After his speech, Gandhiji called for questions from the delegates in Hindustani.
equal status with the caste Hindus. To depend on the Government for throwing open the temples to Harijans was to expect too much of them. People alone could voluntarily take the Harijans into temples and give them real temple-entry based on a change of heart.

Through another answer, Gandhiji announced that non-violence was also a principal item in the constructive programme. He averred that violent acts such as arson and causing injury to others would not bring them Ramrajya, their birthright.
Non-violence alone would lead them to freedom. But what happened? They had freedom almost in their hands and, through violent acts, they were, as it were, throwing it away into the sea.

Concluding, Gandhiji stressed the importance of co-operating with the Hari-jans and helping them to keep their places and persons clean.

As a few minutes of the allotted time still remained, Gandhiji invited more questions and answered them. The answers only reinforced what he had already said.

The Hindu, 28-1-1946

411. SPEECH AT CONVENTION OF HARIJANS, MADRAS

January 26, 1946

At the outset, Mahatma Gandhi expressed his great pleasure in seeing before him such a large gathering of Harijans. He was also glad to notice the great awakening among them.

Englishmen often put the question, what the caste Hindus were going to do for the solution of the problem of untouchability, if the country achieved freedom? They further asked what had the people done for Harijans? Mahatmaji admitted that the question was pertinent; but at the same time he wished to make it clear that untouchability did not exist in such a horrible form, as their European friends wanted to make out.

In this connection, Mahatma Gandhi referred to his South African experience and said that there all Indians were regarded by the European people as untouchables. An Indian might be a merchant or a barrister. Still he was a ‘cooile’, so far as the Europeans there were concerned. Separate places were allotted for the residence of Indians. There were also other disabilities. Therefore it could not be said that Europeans did not observe untouchability. There might not be untouchability amongst themselves; but they treated Indians in South Africa as untouchables. He did all he could to remove that kind of untouchability while he was in South Africa. After

---

1 Organized as part of Silver Jubilee celebrations of Dakshina Bharat Hindi Prachar Sabha
returning to India he had devoted himself to the removal of untouchability in this country.

“Would the conditions of Harijans be the same, or would it improve when India attained freedom?” was another question asked. He visualized that there would not be any question of untouchability in free India. Their Hindu brethren would see to it that untouchability was put to an end and that all Harijans were acknowledged equals.
Crores of Congressmen would devote themselves towards that end. They would work for the removal of untouchability and die for it. In his address1 to the constructive workers, he had stated clearly the nature of work [and asked] the workers to strive sincerely for the removal of untouchability. It was not enough, if a few Harijans rose to high positions in life such as barristers or High Court judges. For the uplift of the community as a whole, all of them must strive. They must educate themselves. They must fight and win their own freedom, not by violent means, but through truth and non-violence. Untouchability should disappear by winning the hearts of the caste Hindus through peaceful means.

Mahatma Gandhi then went on to explain what was meant by real freedom. It did not mean freedom to do as they pleased. It meant freedom to do their duty, freedom to abstain from drink, and freedom to work for their own uplift. In this connection Gandhiji explained the significance of the term ‘Harijan’ by which he preferred to call them. The term signified people of God. He who nurtured hatred or ill-feeling towards another could not be a man of God. The Harijans had borne their sufferings patiently for ages without retaliating. Therefore they deserved to be called Harijans. True to that expression, they must believe in God and repeat His name. They must be true devotees of God, and history furnished them with classic examples of true devotees like Nandanar. On this occasion he did not wish to refer to the rights of Harijans, but only to say a few words on their duties or dharma. The so-called higher castes had their duties; so had Harijans. If they considered that inter-dining or inter-marriage was the purpose of their freedom, they would be mistaken. All these things would not bring about real happiness. By acquiring clean and healthy habits, by adhering to truth and non-violence, and by doing their work in life honestly and sincerely and with love of God, they would be promoting not only individual happiness but also the happiness of the community as a whole. Only through truth and non-violence could they establish swaraj or Ramarajya in this land.

The Hindu, 28-1-1946

---

1 vide the preceding item.
Gandhiji said that festivals varied in character with the times. The Independence Day was a sacred day to them all, as on that day crores of people would be repeating their pledge for the attainment of the independence of India. He hoped that everybody had taken the pledge. If not, everybody should take it. The special feature of that pledge, he reminded them, was that the means to be adopted for the attainment of independence were unadulterated truth and non-violence. Crores of people had been repeating that pledge for the last 25 years and offering prayers for the fulfilment of that pledge to the Most High, who, though far, was yet nearer to us than our hands and feet. It was the self-same Power, though known by various designations, Allah, Rama, Rahman, Rahim, God, and so on. There was no limit to His names. They were as countless as His attributes. It was to this Unseen Power which permeated and sustained the universe that their prayers were made. It would be heard only if their means were as pure and spotless as their end.

Could they expect God to crown their resolve with success, if their means included falsehood, deceit, violence and deception? Such a prayer would not ascend to heaven. It would only bring ridicule on those who offered it. True prayer must transform their conduct. How could they indulge in unseemly behaviour like yesterday’s, while they professed to be votaries of truth and ahimsa? Prayer meant nothing, if it did not result in self-purification and humility. Prayer ought to purge the soul of all impurity, pride and egotism. Whilst the incident had caused him deep pain, it was not without a redeeming feature. The redeeming feature was that although one person had run amok, those around him had refused to be thrown off their legs and had not joined him in the clamour. That was as it should be in a well-behaved gathering.

In conformity with yesterday’s announcement, he had discontinued giving any translations either in Telugu or Tamil of his remarks at the end of the prayer. Even the song was in Hindustani because he did not want to make the language of the song a bone of contention. He strongly deprecated the rivalry and recrimination between the Tamilians and the Andhras which he had noticed during his visit to the South. The Tamilians and the Andhras, the Kanarese and the Malayalees were distinct, but not antagonistic to one another. They were like branches of the same tree. They should realize the fundamental unity underlying their diversity. Then alone they would be

---

1. The report said: “The prayer was held without the recitation of the usual slokas from the Upanishads and the Gita. Ramdham was sung, and it was followed by a song in Hindustani.”
2. Vide also “Speech at Prayer Meeting, Madras”, 23-1-1946 worthy of independence.

Referring to the disturbances that continued through the prayer from the distant fringe of the gathering, he said, he realized that it was due to insufficiency of accommodation. The clamour came from those who could not find accommodation. The right thing for those who failed to get accommodation would have been to quietly sit back or wait in silence outside. Similarly, if they had assimilated the spirit of non-violence, he would not have been forced to confine himself to the precincts of his residence as he was doing at present. It was because he was afraid of the unthinking adoration of the crowds that he did not go out in the open even for his evening walk. Genuine love should be more discerning.

Concluding, Gandhiji asked them all to pray to God to either give them freedom or the strength to die for it. He said:

Let us hope we shall not have to repeat this pledge next year but shall have attained our freedom before that. It is given to man but to try. The result is in the hands of God. But, if our weapons are unadulterated truth and non-violence, our prayer will not go unheard.

_The Hindu, 28-1-1946_

413. ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS AT CONSTRUCTIVE WORKERS’ CONFERENCE, MADRAS

_January 27, 1946_

Mahatma Gandhi said that many women enquired of him about the nature of work they might do. He had been telling repeatedly, and he would say again that women should go to villages and work there. They must attend to the health and sanitation of the villages and to the education and culture of the womenfolk. All these should be done in a spirit of love and service and not as a mere formality.

Replying to a question relating to parliamentary programme, Mahatma Gandhi said that the question of entering legislatures was a small matter. Only a limited number of women could engage themselves in this work, whereas the constructive programme provided scope for all of them. Mahatma Gandhi added that he had no objection to women standing for election to legislatures; but they must enter the legislatures with the idea of serving the people, always keeping in mind the principle of truth and non-violence. But how many of them would be able to enter the legislatures in a spirit of service? They must also have a clear idea beforehand as to what they would do inside the legislatures. The parliamentary programme was like building from the top. Their aim must be to build from below so that the foundation would be strong and the structure good. If any mistake occurred while building from the bottom, it could be rectified immediately, and the harm done would not be much.
On the other hand, if a mistake was committed in the other programme, the entire structure might collapse and the whole country stood to lose thereby.

The next question related to receiving assistance from Christian Missionaries in a free India. Gandhiji declared that they could certainly accept help not only from Christian Missionaries but from others also, if such help was offered sincerely and in a spirit of service to the country. There was before them the example of the late Deenabandhu Andrews. He was a Christian. He served India and gave his life for India. India required the help of all men of goodwill who were prepared to offer that help in a spirit of love and service.

In reply to another question, Mahatma Gandhi said that the wife or dependent of a Government servant could do national work, provided she was ready to do so without fear of her property being confiscated or the education of her children suffering. If any woman thought that by doing constructive national work her children stood to lose privilege they might otherwise get from the Government, she should not undertake the work.

He said that this sphere of work was large and all were welcome. It was the constructive programme that was responsible for creating an awakening in the country. It was only through constructive programme that they would be able to retain their freedom when it was won. The important part of the constructive programme was to develop purity of body and mind and to educate their children according to the Nayee Talim or New Education. Thereby their girls and boys would grow into self-supporting and independent citizens. They wanted many workers to go out into the villages and work among the people. Educated women should make it a point to get into villages and teach the children to read and write and to lead clean lives. If these things were done, the constructive programme would have achieved its purpose.

If they had a capital of one crore of rupees, they should be able to multiply it and not allow themselves to squander away what they had. All of them were aware that he would not allow even a pie being spent unnecessarily. The constructive programme, if correctly followed, would not only pay its way but also add to the capital. Therein lay its greatness.

_The Hindu, 29-1-1946_
414. SPEECH AT DAKSHINA BHARAT HINDI
PRACHAR SABHA, MADRAS¹

January 27, 1946

The business they had all met to transact was a solemn one, and he was glad to be able to take part in that function. If the aspirations of the people of India for freedom were to be fulfilled, they should learn the lessons of true discipline and right conduct, particularly in such large congregations. No doubt there was a president on such occasions to regulate proceedings and maintain order. But the order he wanted was that which was born of a due sense of discipline in each individual. The discipline should be so strong that even where it was a child of five that sought to enforce regulations and law, people should willingly abide by it. That he thought was real vinayā². They should also concentrate on the main purpose for which they were assembled there and do nothing to mar the solemnity of that purpose and its fulfilment.

He had again and again said that he preferred the nomenclature ‘Hindustani’ to ‘Hindi’ in this connection. The language the Sabha sought to spread was really the language of the common folk of North India, understood by an overwhelming majority. He had also stated again and again that students of Hindustani should learn both Urdu and Nagari scripts. Some people deliberately mixed more Sanskrit words and some others Arabic and Persian words, with the result that today two distinctive streams were noticeable in the language which was one. His own view was that Hindustani was the one common language containing Sanskrit words as well as Arabic and Persian words and understood by the common people. He wanted them to do their bit for spreading that language.

The Hindu, 29-1-1946

415. SPEECH AT PRAYER MEETING, MADRAS

January 27, 1946

Addressing the gathering in Hindustani, Gandhiji said that in that song³ there was a prayer by the devotee that God might save his honour. He then alluded to the episode in the Mahabharata describing how, when Draupadi was sought to be shamed in the court of Duryodhana in the presence of thousands of persons, Lord Krishna came to the rescue and saved her from being dishonoured. The secret of the miracle was her undying faith in God which nothing could shake. The legend says that the Lord himself reached out his arm to protect her. The poet, of course, is here referring to the

¹ At its twenty-third convocation
² Humility
³ From Ashram Bhajanavali; vide “Ashram Bhajanavali” omnipotence of God, who, however, becomes a living force to those who have faith.

Gandhiji said that as Draupadi was depicted as being sought to be made naked, India was already naked and was praying for protection from shame—the shame of slavery and serfdom under alien exploitation—and restoration of her independence.

Yesterday they had pledged themselves that they would either win independence through truth and ahimsa or perish in the attempt, and yet today, in spite of the spacious grounds, they were behaving like an undisciplined mob in one quarter of the prayer ground. If they could not behave well even during bhajan, how would they behave when India got freedom? Theirs was by no means an extraordinarily big gathering, but for a people who aspired to be free and remain free through no other means than ahimsa, it should be possible to act and obey orders as one man even if they were 400 million. If 400 million could but shout with one voice, the effect would be overwhelming. But there was a proper time for shouting as for silence. Each must come in its proper place.

Gandhiji concluded by expressing the hope that if God again brought him in their midst, they would all be able to understand Hindustani, and there would be no clamour for Tamil and Telugu translations of his speech. He prayed to God to guide them all aright so that they might deport themselves in a manner worthy of the people who aspired to be free.

The Hindu, 29-1-1946

416. SPEECH TO WAITING PEOPLE, MADRAS

January 27, 1946

I realize you are all here gathered to see me, out of abundant love for me; therefore I have come to you, giving up my usual walk at this time.

He then advised them to return home quickly and attend the prayer meeting the next evening. Gandhiji informed them that the prayers were now taking place on an extensive site which could accommodate many thousands conveniently. [He said:] Therefore come there tomorrow and bring your friends.

Finally Gandhiji stressed the importance of maintaining perfect silence during prayer and said that even if a crore of people gathered, peace and serenity should be observed. Otherwise the object of a prayer meeting would be lost.

The Hindu, 29-1-1946

1 The meeting was being held in a new venue; vide the following item.
2 According to the report, Gandhiji spoke in Hindustani; he instructed A. Subbiah to translate the speech into Tamil.
417. A MESSAGE

January 28, 1946

I hope Kamala Nehru Basic School will bring credit to the name of the departed.

M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat of the Hindi: G. N. 1304

418. LETTER TO ANDHRA PRADESH CONGRESS COMMITTEE MEMBERS

MADRAS,

January 28, 1946

BROTHERS,

I got your letter yesterday. Bhai Venkatarao had a talk with me. I had told him that Doctor Saheb could enter [the Assembly] when it becomes imperative. What can be the urgency now?

Although Doctor Saheb takes my advice and also abides by it, I cannot order him, nor have I done so. Who am I to stop him, if he wishes to enter the Assembly? My advice, however, is against it. He can render greater service from outside.

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

SIGNATORIES [sic]

EXECUTIVE ANDHRA PRADESH CONGRESS COMMITTEE
C/O T. N. VENKATARAO
PRESIDENT, DISTRICT CONGRESS COMMITTEE
TENALI, GUNTUR

From the Hindi original: C. W. 4230. Also Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

1 Dr. Bhogaraju Pattabhi Sitaramayya (November 24, 1880 to December 17, 1959); son of village Karnam, he took M. B. & C. M. degree in 1906; gave up practice to join Indian National Congress; was member of A. I. C. C. and Working Committee; he headed Andhra Provincial Congress for many years; edited Jamma Bhoomi an English weekly, from 1919 to 1930; author of The History of The Indian National Congress
419. A LETTER

MADRAS,
January 28, 1946

BROTHERS,

I have your letter. All of you are earning. God has given you wealth. You may, therefore, make no payments to the clinic by way of fees but should donate to it as much as you can, to your heart’s content. This is just my wish. Anyhow, I will be there in a few weeks’ time.

Tell me everything then, and I shall do what I can.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

420. LETTER TO ANASUYABEHN SARABHAI

MADRAS,
January 28, 1946

CHI. ANASUYABEHN,

What a coincidence! I got your letter today, a silence-day. There is so much work here that I do not write or get letters written except on a silence-day. God sustains me.

I would have been completely ignorant about your health. This I write just to satisfy myself.

Come over to Bardoli only if you have completely recovered. There is still the whole of February.

It is as well that I had better written to both of you.

Blessings from
BAPU

From the Gujarati original: G. N. 11566

1 The letter is in Devanagari.
421. NOTE TO NAGESHWAR PRASAD VAKIL

January 28, 1946

Write to him and also to Priyamvada. Who is the person desiring to marry? What does he do? Does he have any children? How much money does he have? What is his occupation?

From the Gujarati original: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

422. LETTER TO T. PRAKASAM

MADRAS, January 28, 1946

BHAI PRAKASAM,

While passing through Andhra I heard that the purses presented to you were used by you for your own personal expense. I said that that could not have been so. I was told that that exactly was the case, but that there was nothing wrong in your spending the money given to you for personal use. Write to me or tell me the real facts in this matter. I wanted to talk it over with you but I have no free time.

Blessings from

BAPU

From the Hindi original: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

423. SPEECH READ OUT AT PRAYER MEETING, MADRAS

January 28, 1946

Today is my day of silence. Therefore I am not able to speak to you. You must please excuse me. What a good thing is silence! I have personal experience of it. The joy one derives from silence is unique. How good it will be, if everyone observed silence for some time every day! Silence is not for some great men; I know that whatever one

1 The addressee had written that a widower friend of his was eager to marry a Harijan girl of Gandhiji’s choice.
2 1872-1957); editor, Swarajya; was called “Andhra Kesari”—the lion of Andhra; Premier (Chief Minister) of composite Madras state 1946-47, and later the first Chief Minister of Andhra, 1953-54.
3 Written in Hindustani by Gandhiji was read out by Kanu Gandhi person is able to do can be done by everyone, given the effort. There is a saying amongst us that through silence everything can be achieved. There is much truth in this saying.

The Hindu, 30-1-1946

424. MESSAGE TO COMMEMORATION MEETING ON ROMAIN ROLLAND’S 80TH BIRTHDAY

[Before January 29, 1946]

The few days I passed with Romain Rolland and his sister at Villeneuve were among the happiest days of my life. He has been truly described by some of us as a Maharishi. He bore on his benign face the marks of a great sage. He lived and died for humanity, leaving it richer for having lived.

The Hindu, 31-1-1946

425. ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS AT CONSTRUCTIVE WORKERS’ CONFERENCE, MADRAS

January 29, 1946

Q. Can a worker who has taken up one item of constructive work dabble in others? Is it right for him to do so? If so, how?

A. Constructive programme as it stands today is comprised of 18 items. The spinning-wheel as the symbol of non-violence occupies the central place. So every worker must spin and know all about spinning. Supposing a worker takes paper-making as his main occupation and has to find his livelihood also through it, he won’t have

1 मैऊ मंगोल
2 The meeting was held on January 29 at Ramakrishna Mission Institute of Culture, Calcutta. The message was read out by Kalidas Nag.
3 Ibid
4 In 1931
5 He died in Switzerland on December 30, 1944.
6 The report in The Hindu, said: “Gandhiji addressed the concluding session of the Constructive Workers’ Conference for about twenty minutes in the morning and answered a few questions handed over to him. Gandhiji, at the outset, asked how many of those present knew Hindustani and a large majority signified they knew the language. “The first two questions and answers are reproduced here from Harijan which published them under the title “Constructive Workers’ Samagra Gramseva” as translated “from Harijan Sevak”, 17-3-1946.
much time left for other things. But he will be able to render some other service to the villagers besides that which he renders through the spinning-wheel and paper-making. For instance, he can work for improving the sanitation of the place and render advice about the care of the sick when he cannot take up full responsibility for nursing them.

Supposing another worker decides to concentrate on the spinning wheel only and to find his livelihood also through that, he can do so. I have no doubt in my mind that the wheel can serve as the instrument of earning one’s livelihood and at the same time enable the worker to render useful service to his neighbours. The thing is that every worker should decide for himself what will be his main activity besides the spinning-wheel, and what will be his subsidiary activities. Whatever he does, he should do intelligently and with knowledge. Thus, in order to ply the wheel intelligently, he should know all the processes that precede and succeed spinning. He should have full knowledge of the activities that he wishes to concentrate upon and have a general working knowledge about other items of the constructive programme. A student of astronomy cannot know astronomy without some knowledge of science in general. Similarly a worker cannot afford to be utterly ignorant about other items of constructive work.

Q. Please explain the meaning of samagra gramseva of your conception. How can we fit ourselves for that?

A. The 18-fold constructive programme includes samagra gramseva. A samagra gramsevak must know everybody living in the village and render them such service as he can. That does not mean that the worker will be able to do everything single-handed. He will show them the way of helping themselves and procure for them such help and materials as they require. He will train up his own helpers. He will so win over the villagers that they will seek and follow his advice. Supposing I go and settle down in a village with a ghani (village oil-press), I won’t be an ordinary ghanchi (oil-presser) earning 15-20 rupees a month. I will be a Mahatma ghanchi. I have used the word Mahatma in fun but what I mean to say is that as ghanchi I will become a model for the villagers to follow. I will be a ghanchi who knows the Gita and the Koran. I will be learned enough to teach their children. I may not be able to do so for lack of time. The villagers will come to me and ask me: ‘Please make arrangements for our children’s education.’ I will tell them: ‘I can find you a teacher but you will have to bear the expenses.’ And they will be prepared to do so most willingly. I will teach them spinning and when they come and ask me for the services of a weaver, I will find them a weaver on the same terms as I found them a teacher. And the weaver will teach them how to weave their own cloth. I will inculcate in them the importance of hygiene and sanitation, and when they come and ask me for a sweeper, I will tell them: ‘I will be your sweeper’ and I will train you all in the job.’ This is my conception of samagra gramseva. You may tell me that I will never find a ghanchi of this description in this age. Then I will say that we cannot help to improve our villages in this age. Take the example of a ghanchi in Russia. After all the man who runs an oil-mill is a ghanchi. He has money but his strength does not lie in his money. Real strength lies in knowledge. True knowledge gives a moral standing and moral standing and moral strength. Everyone seeks the advice of such a man. Take the instance of Vinoba. He is a good ghanchi. You all know what he does, and you can all follow his example according to your capacity.¹

Q. Khadi work has been carried on for the last 20 years for the purpose of solving the problem of unemployment. Now if priority is to be given for an all-round uplift of the villages, then (1) arrangements should be there for the tiller of the soil so that he gets full remuneration for his labour; (2) efforts should be made to improve agriculture; (3) if there is some spare time, spinning and such other industries should be introduced in the villages. According to my scheme, khadi and gramodyog get a third place. How far am I right in this?

A. When khadi was first introduced, we used to say that it was meant for helping the poor. But at the same time I had told the country that swaraj rested upon cotton yarn. Both the things went on simultaneously. But you paid attention only to one of them. This was our ill-luck. I had brought the idea of khadi from South Africa. From there I could visualize that till we chose an occupation in which millions of men and women of India could take part, swaraj could not be achieved even through truth and non-violence. Those who have to work for their livelihood may do so. But they can spin voluntarily for their country or they can work at some occupation for their survival. I hope you understand the difference between the two.

When I came to India, then also women were carding. I placed

¹ Harijan Sevak has: “I am myself a Bhangi . . .”
² The following three questions and their answers are translated from Khadi Jagat, April 1946, which published them under the title “Farming or Spinning-wheel”.

316 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
before them the idea of swaraj as I understood it. Whether the poor earned their livelihood through khadi or adopted it as a means of swaraj, both the things could go hand in hand. I realized that real freedom could be attained only in this way. Therefore I placed before the Congress the idea of khadi. The Congress accepted khadi in 1920. You should know that till that day the Congress had no flag. When people realized the importance of khadi, the tricolour flag came into being.

In the Aga Khan Palace I used to think constantly about the place of khadi. It is a matter of shame that I was released\(^1\) on grounds of ill-health. The Government did not want that, like Ba and Mahadev, I too should die there.\(^2\) Therefore they released me. After my release I placed before you the same idea. Was khadi only a means of economically helping the poor or was it a means of attaining swaraj also? If we wish to make khadi a means of achieving freedom, then we shall have to change our method of work. Many people were disappointed with spinning only for economic reasons. To spin for the whole day and get just an anna was not enough. We raised the status of women by raising the wages of the women spinners. But at the time we emphasized the point that the spinners should also wear khadi. This was the second step.

Now the third step is that all those who wear khadi should spin. How splendid it would be, if all the people of Madras should spin and also weave the yarn spun by them. Otherwise they can get their yarn woven at a nearby place. This is the way of the village to get all things done at minimum cost and labour. The urban way is just the opposite. When I visited Lancashire, I observed that the workers never wore the cloth that they themselves produced. For them the cloth was imported from Ireland. Some embroidered cloth from Madras was also used. Now, if the villagers or the cultivators are able to spin and produce yarn for their own use, we can save them a lot of trouble. And, if they do so with knowledge, they would be bringing swaraj nearer. This is the new policy of khadi.

If you have understood my point, then the place of khadi is not third, but it remains first. I have made khadi or the spinning-wheel the symbol of ahimsa. Ahimsa is a unique thing. You can make anything...

---

1 On May 6, 1944, having been detained from August 8, 1942
its symbol. I made the charkha its symbol and not the rosary after due thought. If we spin just one length all the time taking the name of God, then the spinning-wheel itself becomes our rosary. Spinning itself becomes sacrificial work.

One who having eyes does not see the light of the sun and having a skin does not feel its warmth is dead, though living. The spinning-wheel is the life of constructive work. If you take away that, all the other seventeen items will become a lifeless corpse. If we wish to achieve swaraj for the poorest of the poor and the weakest of the weak, for the crores of women, whose only guardian is God, and not only for some educated women, it can be done only through the spinning-wheel. And, without the spinning-wheel, the constructive programme becomes a mere cipher. It becomes ten if the zero is placed after one. Zero alone has no value.

Q. Ninety-five per cent of agriculture in India depends on rains. For the improvement of farming more than 50 per cent of it should be done through irrigation. It is the experience of the experts that in this way alone farming can be improved. Under all circumstances this sort of improvement will have a prominent place in the economic planning of India. In case such an improvement in farming is introduced, it becomes a complete industry which goes on throughout the year. In that case the spinning-wheel do not occupy the place of a supplementary industry. If we want to ply it in the villages, we will have to think of a place for it as for the handloom. Please throw light on this matter.

A. Khadi and all the activities connected with it have a direct relation with satyagraha. Whatever credit I have earned, I have earned it through satyagraha. I am not a learned man. I consider myself and feel somewhat stupid before scholars in Tamil, English, Hindustani and even Gujarati. But I have placed before you satyagraha knowingly and after careful thinking. I have not acquired it from books, but from experience. I could see that khadi industry could serve as a means of achieving [swaraj]. Farming cannot take that place. Millions of men, women and children cannot take part in it [as they can in spinning]. I live for the freedom of the country and work continuously for it. After I am worn out, I do not wish to live; not even for enjoyment. For that matter I am always happy and never sad. If I were born in free India, perhaps I would not have insisted on khadi. But, even when I was in South Africa, I knew that India was a slave country and to remove that slavery I thought of the spinning-wheel as the means.

First of all do not possess full knowledge about agriculture. But the simple thing is that we cannot progress much without the help of the Government. Canals will have to be constructed, some trees will have to be cut down. We will have to use the new engineering devices. At every step, the Government’s help will be required.

Q. An Indian villager spends about 80 per cent on foodgrains and 12 per cent on cloth. Does it not follow that agriculture holds the most important place in our village uplift scheme? Would it not be proper to give to agriculture instead of to khadi the place of the sun in the solar system [of the constructive programme]?

A. Even if all that is correct, farming cannot take the place of the spinning-wheel. It is a great thing to become industrious through the spinning-wheel and give up lethargy. The key to our swaraj lies in it. When we keep the spinning-wheel in the centre and try to remove its defects, we learn many things by the way. You must know that I talk about the charkha [only] as regards India. I would not ply charkha in the North Pole. If India understands the value of the spinning-wheel, swaraj can be certainly attained through it. To some extent there is propaganda of the spinning-wheel in the cities. It is welcome. But the villagers have to adopt the spinning-wheel. In order to link it with agriculture, the villagers had better adopt it.¹

Q. Is it possible to achieve nationalization of land in a non-violent manner?

“Yes” came the answer from Gandhiji. He made it perfectly clear that kisans, the tillers of the land, should educate kisans on their rights and duties, and tell them how they should develop self-confidence and courage to assert their just rights. Satyagraha might have to be resorted to in the process of claiming ownership of the land, and the zamindars were not rakhasas to oppress them, for it would not be to their benefit to do so.

Q. What should be done when an unsympathetic Indian State placed obstacles in the way of the constructive programme?

Gandhiji said that the result depended entirely on the workers themselves and the extent to which they were prepared to suffer for the cause. Gandhiji, replying to another question, approved of Kaka Kalekar’s suggestion to bring in words belonging to other languages to make themselves intelligible in their addresses to gatherings. If any pandit objected to this procedure, he would be only ignoring realities. He, however, pointed out the absurdity of using bombastic words like chathushpada peetham for chair and lakhini nilaya for an ink-stand.

Gandhiji was asked as to what extent students could engage themselves in political work. Mahatmaji said that there was quite enough work for students to do

¹ The following two questions and their answers are from The Hindu, 30-1-1946.
alongside of their studies. They could, for instance, do a great deal in connection with removal of illiteracy. But he was not in favour of students associating themselves with party politics or controversies as they could not do justice to such work, remaining as students. If some of them felt like leaving schools and colleges with a view to engaging themselves in national work, they were free to do so.¹

To a question whether constructive workers can go to jails, Mahatma Gandhi said:

As far as possible, constructive workers should wholly devote their time to the 18-point programme. This should be the case at almost all times. But when the situation in the country is extraordinary and the constructive worker feels impelled to go to jail, then, of course, he can go to jail. This is, however, only in extraordinary circumstances.²

Harijan, 17-3-1946, and Khadi Jagat, April 1946; also The Hindu, 30-1-1946, and The Hindustan Times, 30-1-1946

426. SPEECH AT WOMEN’S MEETING, MADRAS ³

January 29, 1946

Addressing the gathering, Gandhiji called for silence, observing that unless they kept silent, they would not be able to hear him. As there was no appreciable reduction in the noise coming from the fringes of the vast gathering, Mahatmaji called for bhajan.⁴

He said that he had received a purse containing about Rs. 10,000 from the Maharani of Vizianagaram, on behalf of the ladies of Madras, for which he was thankful. The Rani Saheba had told him that on account of the shortage of time, more could not be collected, but had promised to raise the amount to Rs. one lakh within three months. The vast gathering before him was witness to that promise. If the Maharani was not able to collect the entire balance within that period, Mahatmaji

¹ What follows is from The Hindustan Times, 30-1-1946.
² The report in The Hindustan Times concluded: “Gandhiji declined to bless the foundation-stone for a new building to be constructed for the Kasturba Free Reading-room and Library of the Andhra Young Men’s Association, Madras, as the inscription on the stone was in English. A fresh stone was thereupon prepared with the inscription in Telugu, the mother tongue of the people in that area, and Gandhiji blessed the stone and wished the institution all success.”
³ The report said: “Mahatma Gandhi and party arrived at the pandal at 4.35 p.m. He was conducted to the dais by the Maharani of Vizianagaram, Rajkumari Amrit Kaur, Mrs. Ambujammal and others. He was presented with khadi garlands by a number of children.”
⁴ According to the report, “Two women sang Raghupati Raghva Rajaram and the audience joined in the chorus, making time with hands.”
was certain she would make good the deficit form her own pocket. But that would not please him. It was his desire that his sisters residing in all the four linguistic parts of this Province should contribute and see to it that the fund reached the figure of Rs. one lakh.

Explaining what he proposed to do with the money, Gandhiji said that he was not going to devote the entire sum for work among women. He proposed to give a portion of it to the Hindi Prachar Sabha for the spread of Hindustani among women, a portion to Harijan work and balance for important work for the uplift of women.
He had seen many girls taking their degrees at the Hindustani Convocation. He was not satisfied with their number. He would like to see crores of women studying Hindustani in South India. All of them were aware what a “greedy” person he was in the matter of collecting funds for specific purposes. He was never satisfied with small purses. He wanted crores so that he could spend the money on deserving causes. The sum of Rs. one lakh was not a big thing for the women of Madras Presidency to contribute. Women liked to decorate themselves with so many unnecessary things. They could avoid so much waste and contribute to good causes.

Gandhiji remarked that the Maharani had taken pity on him as sun-light was falling severely on him.\(^1\) Resuming his speech, Mahatma Gandhi said that he saw women wearing a number of ornaments. He would prefer to see them dressed in khaddar rather than bedecked with ornaments. After all, character was the most important thing for women. It was ignorance that led them to wear ornaments. The simplicity of Sita was an example before them. In spite of carrying her away to Lanka, Ravana dared not lay his hands on her. Why was it? It was because of the character of Sita. India was a glorious country, full of such great examples. The glory of Hindustan was in the hands of Indian womanhood. Dusshasana was unable to put Draupadi to shame, though the Pandavas were unable to come to her rescue. It was her character that made the Lord come to her rescue. Swaraj or Ramarajya was after all a small thing. It was the \(tejas\)^2 of Hindustan that mattered. If the womanhood of India attained her complete \(tejas\), the foreigner would not be here. Therefore he would impress upon them that their real asset and ornament was character and not dresses and jewels.

Finally Gandhiji spoke about untouchability and said that some of them could not drink even water given by a Harijan. Not only that, they would not give water to a Harijan in a pot. They would pour water only into his hand. This attitude should go.
Other differences like Hindu, Muslim, Christian and Parsi should also go. They should strive for unity and that unity could be achieved early by all of them speaking a common language, Hindustani.

Glancing at his watch, Mahtamaji said that it was time for him to leave. He would, therefore, request them to excuse him, if he could not speak more.

\(\textit{The Hindu}, 31-1-1946\)

\(^1\) Here the speech was interrupted, while Gandhiji shifted his seat.
\(^2\) Literally, “brightness”; here it refers to brightness of purity of character.
Gandhiji addressed an exhortation to the teachers to carry on their work in their respective areas in a spirit of loyalty and earnestness to the cause. He wanted them all to remember the several items of work mentioned in their certificates and to strive their utmost to carry out their duties in that connection. It was true that there were certain very wide subjects like agriculture included there, but he was sure they would do their best to instil in those coming under their care the proper attitude in this matter. The one important matter which he wanted them to bear in mind was that they should all learn Hindustani. He added that they should in no circumstance neglect their mother tongue. In each linguistic area, the mother tongue should have the first claim. But Hindustani would not only serve as a common medium for the different language areas of their own Province but also as a means of communication between the South and the rest of India.

Another important thing he would urge them to bear in mind was that they should learn all about their immediate surroundings and gradually extend their knowledge in a widening circle to things outside. Mere memorizing would not carry them far. He remembered how as a young boy he was made to memorize “London is on the Thames” as part of his geography lesson. That kind of knowledge was not much good.

Knowledge directly derived from anything was much better than knowledge derived through a written lesson or through symbols. A child would have a much better idea of a charkha when it saw one and how it worked than by reading or hearing about it. That was an essential basis of Nayee Talim.

These were some of the ideas which he thought he might place before them, and he wanted that they should adopt whatever seemed good to them therein.

The Hindu, 31-1-1926

1 The Convocation was held in the evening in the Hindi Prachar Sabha premises; Narahari Parikh presided. The report said: “Gandhiji... distributed certificates to 26 teachers trained in Wardha Basic Education course... He first perused the certificates which were printed in Tamil, the caption alone being in Hindustani. Whenever he came upon a difficult word or a technical expression... he asked a teacher nearby to explain it to him.

2 The Certificates, signed by Gandhiji, mentioned about training in, agriculture, spinning, village sanitation, basic education, child psychology and Hindustani.
428. SPEECH AT PRAYER MEETING, MADRAS

January 29, 1946

I hear many of you did not understand the bhajan\textsuperscript{1} of Guru Nanak which was just sung. He had written the bhajan\textsuperscript{1} for men and women who are ignorant. He says, some people go to the forest to realize God. God is for the many crores of people on earth and not for those who go to the forest alone. In the forest live tigers, lions and bears. Therefore ordinary people cannot be expected to go to the forest. ‘Why do you go to the forest?’ he asked. When God is inside you, be in this world and do the work of this world. Gambling and operating on the sharemarkets are not among the works of the world. God is everywhere. He is in the scorpion. He is in the dog. The dog may bite us, God is good. God is not far away in the forest, but He is within us.\textsuperscript{2}

The Hindu, 31-1-1946

429. TALK WITH SINDHI MERCHANTS\textsuperscript{3}

MADRAS, January 29, 1946

GANDHIJI (laughingly): That is all? It is much too small! Wherever I go, I see so many of you doing good business. It should be much more.

A MERCHANT: But we have paid Rs. 50,000 already to Pandit Nehru in Sind. The more reason why you should pay me also as much.

We will do so when you come to Sind.

The Hindu, 30-1-1946

\textsuperscript{1} Vide “Ashram Bhajanavali”

\textsuperscript{2} According to the report, “at this stage Gandhiji had to stop his speech as a section of the audience continued to make noise”.

\textsuperscript{3} About 25 merchants led by Kewalram Chellaram met Gandhiji soon after the evening prayer, and presented to him a purse containing Rs. 10,000.
430. TELEGRAM TO ARUNA ASAF ALI

[After January 29, 1946]

SO YOU HAD YOUR WAY. EXPECT LETTER.

BAPU

The Bombay Chronicle, 3-2-1946

431. ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS OF HINDI PRACHAR SABHA STAFF AND WORKERS

January 30, 1946

Gandhiji, who made many kind enquiries about them, cracked many jokes and, saying that he considered them as members of his own family, urged that not only Hindi workers but the members of their families should also learn Hindustani. He compared the Hindi pracharak to the Gantotri, the place from where the Ganges flows. He said, the pracharak should be the fountain-head of learning, and through him the knowledge of Hindustani should spread throughout the country.

Gandhiji then invited questions. Pandit Sivarama Sharma of Guntur asked whether pracharaks could take up work in public educational institutions, such as schools and colleges in connection with the teaching of Hindustani to the students there.

Gandhiji replied that there was no antagonism regarding any place of work for Hindi pracharaks. It was their aim to spread Hindustani all over the country and they should deem it part of their duty to teach Hindustani to everyone who desired to learn it.

If Lord Wavell wants to learn the language, I will send him my best Hindustani pracharak or myself take up the duties of teaching that language to him.

Answering another question, Gandhiji said that the Hindustani workers should try also to contribute their bit to the assimilation in Hindustani of whatever was best in the local languages and even in other languages. Works like those of Valmiki,

1 According to the report, the telegram was sent after receipt of news of cancellation of warrant against Aruna Asaf Ali. The warrant was cancelled on January 29.

2 The report said: “The members of the staff . . . and workers of the sabha’s Press with the members of their families met Gandhiji at ‘Mangala Bhavanam’ . . . Gandhiji guessed their unexpressed desire to meet him . . . and he had fixed 7.30 a.m. . . .”

THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
Kamban and Shakespeare would enrich any language. Further they should continue their studies side by side with their work as pracharak and, if possible, organize extension lectures and postgraduate courses in this connection. Another thing pracharak should do was to try to bring about a synthesis, and exchange with other Indian languages so that the benefit would be mutual as between Hindustani and those languages.

The Hindu, 31-1-1946

432. ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS AT MEETING OF TEACHERS AND STUDENTS

January 30, 1946

Gandhiji first expressed pleasure at the very large gathering that had assembled. He said that though of late he had not participated in students’ meeting, yet his affection for them remained the same as before. He believed that one could do more service by silent work, and this was borne out by his experience not only in South Africa, where he had moved with Madrasis, but also in this city during his short stay. People here, to whom he had not spoken, had clearly understood what he stood for and what shape their service to the country should take.

The rest of the address was in the nature of replies to questions that were placed in his hands earlier. Gandhiji had walked into the meeting bringing the questions with him. First he remarked in a humorous vein that while he would answer the questions, he would not like to leave the palce before receiving their promised purse. Before he commenced his answers, he put his usual question as to how many of them could understand him in Hindustani. The response was not good. On this he remarked that it was a matter for regret that, in spite of the fact that the Sabha had been working amongst them for twenty-seven years, they had not learnt Hindustani in large numbers. He expected that students, at least all of them, would learn Hindustani and said that learning Hindustani was not as costly as college education. It was much easier also to learn the language.

Next the subject of utilization of collections made for the presentation of a purse to Gandhiji was touched upon by him. Gandhiji said that since they had made the collections with a view to giving him the amount towards the Hindi Prachar Sabha Fund, law and propriety required that they should not lay any condition on the utilization of the amount. He did not wish to say anything more on this point.

Gandhiji’s opinion was sought on the practice prevalent amongst students of conversing in English. Gandhiji condemned such a practice and said that this ought not to be. Though the English language could be compared to a gold chain, yet it bound their hands and feet in slavery. The mother tongue could be compared to their mother, and to drop it in favour of English was like letting down their mother. Every student should know two languages, his mother tongue and Hindustani.

Q. Could girl students use cosmetics and boy students ape it?

Gandhiji’s reply was that only inanimate things like stone-images required frequent polishing, and that human beings’ natural beauty required no cosmetics. He added that in this country, where poverty and starvation was rampant, it was foolish to waste money on such luxuries.

Q. Do you approve of smoking which was at present very common amongst students?

Gandhiji said that he did smoke once or twice when he was young and, reflecting on it, he was really ashamed. But, while he did it stealthily, students were doing it at present openly (laughter). Smoking was as had as drinking, whether it was indigenous stuff or foreign, and should be avoided.

Replying to another question solicited Gandhiji’s view on the poor percentage of students using khadi. Mahatmaji observed that khadi had its birth for freedom. He reiterated that if they wanted freedom quickly, students must not only wear khadi, but also make it out of their own spun yarn.

Gandhiji referred the students to his latest book on constructive work, when he was told that many students did not believe in the constructive programme. He added:

How could work amongst Harijans and aboriginal prove uninteresting? To say that constructive programme was uninteresting was a vote in favour of slavery.

When asked for his advice to students who were intolerant, Gandhiji said that tolerance was the first virtue that a student should develop. He added:

If anyone says that India can gain independence through the sword, I would patiently hear him, even though I have been preaching truth and non-violence for the last twenty years for winning swaraj.

Gandhiji, full of emotion, referred to violence such as causing destruction with the atom bomb and the victory won thereby, and said that he had applied his mind to this point. He felt that truth and non-violence were really more powerful than the atom bomb.

“I am not afraid of the atom bomb,” he remarked. While they could cause physical injury, they could not kill their soul. Once they had the determination that they could not be conquered by violence, victory was theirs; for a moral protest

1 Vide “Constructive Programme: Its Meaning and Place”, 13-12-1941 and “Foreword to “Constructive Programme its Meaning and Place” against evil was itself a victory.

Finally Gandhiji exhorted the students to think on the various problems; for students who could not think for themselves could not learn anything.

The Hindu, 1-2-1946

433. SPEECH AT PRAYER MEETING, MADRAS

January 30, 1946

Taking for his theme the text of the bhajan song—“With the grace of the Lord, everything can be achieved”—Gandhiji said, the persistence of the noise from one section of the crowd was such that it seemed that only God’s grace could bring about perfect silence in that gathering. For his part, he thought, it would be impossible for him also to speak when so many were “making speeches” at the other end of the gathering. Were a similar meeting held under the auspices of the Government, there would surely be silence enforced with a lathi. But here there was only the appeal of the volunteers, which they in their sense of freedom did not care to obey. He knew they did so because of their love for him, and in their desire to see him closer. They would not be denied. But they should learn to discipline themselves in such matters and even to deny themselves what they wanted, if it was harmful to discipline and general good. How could they do it unless they became filled with Rama for, as the bhajan song went, when they became saturated with Rama all else would be eliminated.

In Madras, he knew, thousands were addicted to liquor. The consequent evil was enough to break one’s heart. When the Congress was running the Ministry, drink was abolished in different areas. Liquor revenue fell, but the people were happy and their wives and children had a square meal and a happy home. Had the reform come from within and not as a result of something from without, then it would have been far more good. When could such a phenomenon happen? Only when people were saturated with Rama and Gurukripa—God’s grace—as the song went.

Should a rich man offer them gold or silver from his safe room, people would crowd to his gates. But of what use would gold and silver be to a man, really? Gurukripa was the greatest and most valuable help one could have. God is known by different names but God is One. When His grace filled one’s being, nothing was impossible for one to achieve.

The Hindu, 1-2-1946
434. SPEECH TO CONGRESS WORKERS, MADRAS

January 30, 1946

Gandhiji asked, how many of them could follow his speech. About fifty people raised their hands. Noticing that Mr. Kamaraj was not among the number, Gandhiji laughingly remarked: “You too?” Gandhiji said that he had hoped that Congress workers at least would all have learnt Hindustani by now, but he was disappointed. The Congress resolution about lingua franca and conducting all business in Hindustani should, he took it, be binding on them all. It was a misfortune, indeed, that after so many years of emphasis on the importance of Hindustani, Congressmen were yet unacquainted with the language. He knew the hold of English on the people of this country. He had seen sign-boards before business premises showing Indian names in Roman characters. That indicated the extent of the slavery of the people of this country to the foreign language.

Gandhiji paid a tribute to the late Mr. S. Satyamurti, and said:

He was a fine man, but I used to quarrel with him, asking him whether he would speak in English in Northern India.

Pointing to the writing on the mike before him (giving the name of the radio company concerned in Roman script) Gandhiji said that provided another illustration of his statement. But how did English or other Western people and firms go about the work? They tried to reach the people by boosting their own ware in the language of the people.

It was the duty of the people to throw off this slavery to a foreign language. A common language spoken by the bulk of the people of the country could alone be the medium linking all parts of India, and such a language was Hindustani. Local provincial affairs should be transacted in the local provincial language; for all-India

1 The report said: “Gandhiji addressed about 1,500 Congress workers for about half an hour from 7.30 p.m. in the Constructive Workers’ Conference pandaal. On his arrival, he was greeted with deafening cheers. An illuminated charkha electrically operated was revolving at one end of the hall and Gandhiji watched its movement with interest for some time.”

2 Kumarswami Kamaraja Nadar (1903-76); active Congress worker from boyhood; in 1930, joined Salt Satyagraha Movement at Vedaranyam, and was sentenced to two years’ imprisonment; was Member, Tamil Nadu State Legislative Assembly for several terms, and its Chief Minister, 1954-67; Member, Congress Working Committee, 1947-69; elected President, Indian National Congress, 1963; evolved ‘Kamaraj Plan’ to dispel lure for power from the minds of leading Congressmen, and to persuade them to prefer organizational activities to ministerial posts. purposes and inter-provincial communication Hindustani should be the medium.

Gandhiji then invited those present to ask him questions. If they had no questions to ask, he would like to talk to them about the charkha for some time.

The first questioner, speaking in English, requested Gandhiji to tell them something about the future.

GANDHIJI (humoursly): What is ‘future’? Is it a horse? Say it in Tamil, Telugu, Malayalam or Kannada. Only God can say what is in the future. I am an ordinary man. I have not read as much as some of you. If I wrote ‘B.A.’ behind my name, people will laugh at me. Much less can I write ‘M.A.’ I cannot call myself Barrister-at-Law either. I have been removed from the rolls by the Inns of Court because I went to jail.

The gentleman repeated his question in Tamil. Gandhiji, replying in Hindustani, told him that he could not foresee the future; the future rested with the Almighty.

QUESTION: What is the easy method of learning Hindustani?

GANDHIJI: Devote to it one-sixteenth of the time you have spent in learning English. That is, if you have spent sixteen years learning English, spend one year for Hindustani. . . .

Tell me beforehand when you want to take my picture. Then I will close my eyes so that they may not become blind (laughter).

Continuing, Gandhiji said that he could not tell them anything about the future. They might ask him about the present, if they chose, since talking about the past was not much good.

Gandhiji said that he would answer such questions, as he could, within the few minutes still available to him. Referring to the complaint of the Harijan sweeper, Gandhiji said that it was a matter over which they should ponder deeply. If it was true, it was a matter very much to be regretted. He wanted that all Congressmen should place God in their hearts and act as their conscience dictated. Then everything would go all right. If they should observe distinctions such as Hindu, Muslim, Parsi, untouchable and so on, the nation would go to ruin.

Answering another question, Gandhiji said that it was part of the law of his life

1 At this stage, a cameraman, took a flashlight snap. Gandhiji turned towards him as if to say something but stopped without saying anything. Just then another cameraman flashed a shot, and Gandhiji burst into laughter.

2 Here the report added: “One of those in the audience, speaking first in English and then in Telugu, said that he was a Harijan employed as a sweeper in the Khadi Nilayam, George Town, and complained that those in charge of the Nilayam treated him as worse than a dog and refused to allow him to approach them.”

3 Gandhiji received three slips.
that he should pray to God, be it Krishna, Rama, Allah or Christ. They were all one to him. All religions to him appeared to be like branches of one and the same three. In his view, there was no conflict between different religions. He did not pray in the manner he did with any ulterior motive of preaching Hinduism or any particular religion. He merely prayed to God. If people misunderstood that, he was not to blame. People were welcome to join in the prayer, if it pleased them; otherwise they might keep away and leave him alone.

Another member asked a question in regard to the elections to the legislatures, Congress committees and Congress executive bodies. Gandhiji said:

How can I answer this question? I am not even a four-anna Congressman. Much less can I give you advice in such matters. The advice I may give you, you may not find of much use. These are questions which you should ask to the President of the Congress, who is a great and good man. You should ask these questions of a man like Jawaharlal Nehru, Sardar Patel or other members of the Working Committee. And, whatever Congress decides, it is open to you to abide by it.

It is true, Gandhiji added, that he had been connected with the Congress for many years and had also fought the Government on behalf of the Congress. To some extent he had also been responsible for shaping its Constitution. But his advice was given to the Congress Working Committee, if and when it sought his advice. So far as they were concerned, such questions should be put to the Working Committee or the Congress President. His own particular department was constructive work. They were welcome to ask him questions on that subject.

Gandhiji stated that he met them because, having come all the way to Madras, he did not want to omit meeting Congress workers. But he did not want to enter into complicated political matters which were not within his province.

One member observed that constructive work was also related to politics. Gandhiji agreed that it was in a way related to politics, but to him it was pure constructive work.

One gentleman asked whether the spread of Hindustani would not prejudicially affect the local languages.

QUESTION: What place should the Congress assign to people who had carried on black-marketing activities during the last War and what punishment should be given to them?

1 Abul Kalam Azad
2 Here, according to the report, C. Rajagopalachari remarked that it was like asking about the relationship of Rama and Sita after listening to the entire Ramayana.
Gandhiji said that if he was a Congressman, he would say, they should be horse-whipped non-violently. But as a man of out-and-out non-violence, he preferred to keep mum. Gandhiji added that he had exceeded the time which had been allotted for the function, and he asked leave of them to go.

One member asked him a question as to whether the rulers should not learn the language of the people rather than the people learn the language of the rulers. Gandhiji said that this was the proper thing to do. The rulers should learn the language of the people. But as it was, the people had allowed themselves to be suppressed and their language to be dominated by the language of the ruler.

The Hindu, 31-1-1946

435. TALK WITH V. S. SRINIVASA SASTRI

MADRAS, January 30, 1946

SASTRI: You have been a blessing to me in a hundred ways.

GANDHIJI: What nonsense, Sastri.

S. Ah, don’t I know, Gandhi, you are the greatest fellow alive in the world today? Let your kataksha fall on them.¹

He who does not see Rama and whom Rama does not see is despised by everyone in this world.²

Then Sastriar told Gandhiji how, on the previous day after his mid-day meal, he had dozed off and as if in a trance written a most beautiful essay on the Ramayana in about 15 minutes. The theme was that after Ravana’s death, Hanuman goes to Sita in Ashoka Vatika and asks her:

杖. Mother, give me your permission and I shall severely punish all the rakshasis who have been torturing you.

The Divine Lady turns round and replies:

杖. No, what wrong have these poor things done? They are merely slaves of their master, and they did his bidding for the sake of their livelihood. Leave them... alone. It is forgiveness that makes life worth living. Forgiveness is divine. It is the noblest of virtues, so I pardon them. There is no one who is wholly free of error. And who does not need to be forgiven?\(^1\)

S. As soon as I go home I shall dictate it to Jagadisan, if he can come to me and send it to you. Will you let Pyarelal read it out to you?

G. You dictate it to Jagadisan tomorrow and send it to me. I shall read it before I go to Madura.

S. No, it will take me at least two or three days. I have to do it in bits. Marvellous as my doctor is, he has not made me well enough to do it tomorrow.

Sastriar was full of the Ramayana. He regretted that the great epic was not read more generally and that its ideal did not animate the people as of old. [He added] S. The Ramayana has no parallel. When Sita had repulsed the evil-intentioned Ravana with the tejas of the purity the rakshasis came to her and said:

You do not know the world. Else you would not have refused what is being offered to you.

The Divine Lady’s reply was:

Your city is beautiful, the buildings are grand, and there is every mark of civilization, but are there not two or three people who feel the wrong and can say the truth to Ravana?

That is the duty we owe to friends and that we fail to discharge. I have done that for you once or twice and, as for you, do it, and sometimes publicly, much to the consternation of everybody.\(^2\) But it is the noblest office of friendship.

Tell me, Rajagopalachari, out of hundred people that go wrong, is not there one whom a timely warning could have saved? Please do not thin that I am preaching at the Mahatma. I am making a confession. I have also failed in that duty sometimes.

S. (turning to Bapu): You are a seeker after truth. You and I are poles asunder in many things. I have differed from you, and you have said so without reserve. But I am also a follower of truth, though at a great distance from you. The eternal truths propounded by Valmiki in the Ramayana have been the greatest source of inspiration to me. I feel, I have failed to do my duty by not giving to the people what I have found for myself in that great epic.

Gandhiji reminded him of the lectures on the Ramayana that he had delivered, and suggested that they should be printed. But that was not enough for him.

\(^1\) Ibid.

\(^2\) The reference is to Gandhiji’s attitude to World War; vide “Conundrums”, 30-9-1939.

332 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
S. If I live for some time more and good Jagadisan can spare time, I might still be able to make some atonement.

G. Jagadisan is your admirer and a devoted follower. He will be always at your disposal, unless, of course, the doctor thinks that you should not be disturbed. Then he will just not be at home.

S. (with a hearty laugh): So, like Rama, you teach falsehood. When Sumantra was driving Rama, Lakshmana and Sita to the jungle, Rama asked him to drive fast: “Man, why prolong the agony? Go fast and, if my father is angry, tell him you did not hear him.”

S. (to the doctor\(^1\)): Yes, you are right. A good conversationalist hears more than he talks. But they say ‘once a schoolmaster, always a school-master.’ So I have gone on.

G. And we shall bear witness to that.

S. Well, this might be my last meeting with you. I am not in a position to say, ‘I will come to see you when you return from Madura.’ So I wanted to talk, and have talked. Now it is your turn.

G. Nonsense, this is not the last meeting. I will try to come and see you on my return from Madura.\(^2\) And I have very little to say except this, that you must get well soon and return the visit at Sevagram.

S. You are the prince of optimists.

G. Oh yes, an irrepressible one!

_Harijan, 28-4-1946_

436. LETTER TO HORACE ALEXANDER

MADRAS,

January 31, 1946

MY DEAR HORACE,

Welcome. You will meet me when and where you can. Agatha knows my movement.

Love.

BAPU

From a photostat: G.N. 1441

\(^1\) Who was getting worried as the patient was talking too much and said something in Tamil

\(^2\) Vide “Talk with V. S. Srinivasa Sastri”, pp. 87-8. V. S. Srinivasa Sastri died on April 17, 1946.
Gandhiji said that he was under the impression that the entire programme was over with the previous evening. But he was told in the night that there was this rally and that he must be present. He was glad, he was able to attend the function and he was really pleased to meet them all.

Referring to the service rendered by the several departments in making the celebration a success, Gandhiji profoundly thanked them for their help and co-operation. Without the aid of volunteers, he could not believe that they could have got through such an important celebration. He considered volunteers as those sworn to non-violence, as against the police and the military who were pledged to violence and who dominated over the people. It was only with this impression that he had appealed as early as 1920 that they should organize volunteer corps all over the country so that service rendered sincerely and non-violently could get them freedom quickly.

They must learn thoroughly how to control large gatherings with tact, politeness and calmness, without distinction of rich and poor, civilized and uncivilized. He knew that people would keep order, if a policeman appeared on the scene because he posed himself as their master and paraded his lathi. But this was not what he wanted. They must make people understand by persuasion what they should do through truth and non-violence and show that these forces of law and order were only for serving the people. He had attended many parades and rallies in foreign countries where the police took an oath that they would serve the public. In London, which was considered to be very advanced in policing, policemen took an oath that they would render service to the people through their work. Why not the Commissioner of Police here take a similar oath? If the servants of Hindustan understood this particular view-point, then freedom could easily be obtained.

Referring to the frequent noisy behaviour of the large concourse at prayer meetings in spite of the efforts of volunteers to keep silence, Maahatmaji said that the volunteers should bear in mind what he had said about their duties and make a practical demonstraton that they were following them by keeping perfect order and silence in that evening’s prayer meeting.

The Hindu, 1-2-1946

---

1 Held in the morning
Addressing the gathering, Gandhiji said that the Mess Committee had fed about 50,000 people, and he heartily thanked them for it. Proper feeding had kept people in good spirits to get through the important business at the conferences and meetings. They had done this job well and taken away a heavy burden off the shoulders of the Reception Committee. What he was particularly pleased with here was that the entire show was conducted in clean surroundings. He had toured all over the country, and he felt that they had really set an example to others in cleanliness. What should be observed on these occasions by cooks was cleanliness in body and mind. By cleanliness he did not mean that their clothes should be nicely ironed. It was enough if their simple clothes were free from dirt.

Gandhiji said that he had no time to auction the articles individually nor had he the required energy for it. He suggested that the entire lot might be purchased by a group of persons for a lakh of rupees, out of which Rs. 10,000 would go to the Harjan Fund and the balance to the Hindi Prachar Sabha. After all, they should realize that a bulk of it would be given to the Sabha as they had not reached their target.

Closely following this appeal, Gandhiji, like a true Bania, began to canvass support for his suggestion. He singled out of the several articles a silver vīgraha of Gajalakshmi and said that that had been presented by a lady who stated that it was done as Gandhiji was a worshipper of God. But the pity was a worshipper of Avinashi and Avyakta (Eternal and Unseen) God. Therefore, he said, he was not keeping it with him and wanted to part with it.

Taking out a silver idol of Muralidhara from the collection, Mahatmaji said that this was presented because he was a Krishna bhakta. But his Krishna was He ‘Who sees me but Whom I do not see’.

The Hindu, 1-2-1946

1 The report said: “Articles collected for presentation to Gandhiji were exhibited . . . Referring to three walking-sticks presented, Gandhiji remarked: ‘I have become old and these sticks are to aid me during walks. But I would rather like to give them away in auction.’ A printed list of the articles presented was then handed to Gandhiji. It was in English. Gandhiji remarked humorously: ‘I think this is in English to avoid the Tamil-Telugu controversy (laughter). But I do not approve of this. You must print it in Hindustani’.”

2 An idol

3 The report concluded: “After some consultation about Gandhiji’s suggestion, the merchants promised to let Gandhiji know their view in the evening. Mahatmaji then returned to his bungalow.”
439. SPEECH TO ANDHRA WORKERS OF KASTURBA FUND, MADRAS

January 31, 1946

Gandhiji said that on his way to Madras he passed through Andhra Desha and had opportunities to learn about the work that was being done there. He had heard the report just presented and was also aware of the efforts made by Sambamurthi for the collection of funds. On an occasion like this, the memory of the late Dr. B. Subrahmanyan of the Sitanagaram Ashram occurred to him. He was a good worker in Andhra Desha.

All of them were aware of the part played by women in the cause of India's freedom. The work connected with the Kasturba Fund was a different one. Here they received training for working in and among the villagers. He was looking forward to the day when it would be possible to say that women were working in the villages in large numbers. They must remove illiteracy and also improve the condition of village women. Then only would they have real swaraj and the ability and strength to retain political freedom when it was won.

The Hindu, 2-2-1946

440. SPEECH GIVING BLESSINGS TO ANDHRA MAHILA SABHA, MADRAS

January 31, 1946

Gandhiji said that the proper way to perform the ceremony was for him to go to the site of the buildings and lay the stone himself. That was a task physically impossible for him to do. But the women connected with the Sabha had so much regard for him that they wanted him to at least touch the stone and give his blessings. He did so with great pleasure. The Sabha should become a training-ground for workers. Mahatmaji hoped that the institution would keep up that ideal, and wished it every success.

The Hindu, 2-2-1946

1 The workers met Gandhiji, in the afternoon, in Hindi Prachar Sabha premises.
2 The ceremony was held, in the afternoon, in Hindi Prachar Sabha premises; when, according to the report, “Gandhiji blessed three inscribed tablets which were to be laid for three new buildings of the Andhra Mahila Sabha under construction in Luz Church Road”.

336 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
Gandhiji said that he had been delayed by another engagement\(^2\) and he was sorry for having come later than the scheduled time to the meeting.

The truest capital was, in his opinion, one's capacity for work. Money alone could never produce goods; only through labour could goods be created. Labourers then were possessed of real wealth, but they were not rich in worthy goods and had no property. He wanted that they should all become maliks (men of property), but not through any process of coercion. Property got through coercion would not remain with them; a stronger man might snatch it from them. If they were to become maliks, therefore, they should first learn to be non-violent, truthful and peaceful. He was a worker like them and he felt like a worker. He wanted to tell them of the joy of non-violence, truth and peacefulness. He was a servant of the poorest Harijan. He wanted them to bear in mind the example of the Ahmedabad Labour Union and take a leaf from its work. There was nothing extraordinary in a labourer becoming the President of the Congress. It was not necessary that one should know English to be the President. He said:

Maulana Azad, the present Congress President, does not speak in English with anybody, although he knows the language. When Maulana Azad goes to the Viceroy, he does not speak in English, but takes a translator with him, and he speaks through him. It is not as if he does not know English. He is a very learned man. He is so wise that there is hardly anybody who equals him. But he wants that he should speak in the language of the country.

The whole country, said Gandhiji, was one. The workers were all one entity. One of them could certainly become President of the Congress. The difference between the mazdoor and the kisan was that the kisan stayed to work on the land, while the mazdoor went wherever there was work. The workers were taken there by the proprietors. Mahatma Gandhi recalled that he had always said that the real proprietor was not the person who owned the mill, but the person who worked. He himself was speaking as a worker. He said:

I have given up my ownership of property some time back. The lakhs I have with me are not my money. It is intended for carrying out the work for which contributions have been given. If anybody gives money for the Harijans, it will be spent for the Harijans.

Ever since his return to India from South Africa he had been serving the

---

\(^1\) Gandhiji addressed them in Hindustani.

\(^2\) Vide the preceding item.
workers. The Ahmedabad Workers’ Union, which was started by himself, was a model for others. He did not suggest that even there the workers had become the owners. He felt that the workers would come to own the mills and factories in which they worked, if they became more disciplined and wiser.

Appealing to them to learn Hindustani, Gandhiji said that all India was one and they should learn the Hindustani language which would enable them to be one with the rest of India. Industrial workers and kisans were both badly off; they were suffering alike. If all of them pulled together and worked for their common good, he was sure they could achieve a great deal through non-violence and truth. He knew he was not understood by a good number of them, but he was thankful to them for the consideration they showed him and the perfect silence they were maintaining, though he spoke in a language which all of them did not understand. He wished he knew enough Tamil to address the gathering in that language.

In conclusion, he prayed for God’s blessings for them and all their kith and kin.

The Hindu, 1-2-1946

442. SPEECH AT PRAYER MEETING, MADRAS
January 31, 1946

Gandhiji asked to be pardoned for coming late to the meeting. He said that it was due entirely to the heavy programme that had been arranged.

Gandhiji then referred to the Workers’ Convention held that evening and complimented the workers on the shanti (silence) that prevailed at that meeting. That was not to be found here. That labourers who had not acquired education, and who did not understand Hindustani, had behaved so well was marvellous, he said.

“Were these workers responsible for not knowing Hindustani?” asked Gandhiji. “No,” was his answer. While the Hindi Prachar Sabha should share to some extent the responsibility for this, he felt that practically the entire responsibility for such state of affairs should be owned by the educated people of this country. The educated people had neglected the education of these poor labourers. If educated people took a decision to teach them Hindustani, he was sure that before he next visited Madras—he hoped that this would happen by God’s will—all of them would have learnt the language.

Speaking on the import of the day’s special song, Gandhiji said that right from his youth, he was impressed by it. Dr. Bharatan Kumarappa had told him a few days ago that his sister was conducting an institution here and that the girls of that school would like to learn and sing the song, *vaishnava Jana To*¹. The girls today had sung the song in the best possible manner. So impressed was he that its tune and sentiments were still ringing in his ears. While the girls who sang it did their best, he had to confess that it was not rendered in the way it ought to have been done. It should be sung with a full understanding of its meaning and import. The song was by Narasinha Mehta a bhakta kavi, and was intended entirely for the use of the villagers. It was in a tune which could be sung by the ordinary villagers and, being sweet, was full of meaning. The bhakta, a worshipper of Lord Vishnu, through this song was trying to take upon himself the miseries of others and felt a supreme pleasure in doing so. This was its secret.²

\(^{1}\)Vide the preceding item.

The Hindu, 2-2-1946

443. SPEECH AT FOUNDATION-STONE LAYING CEREMONY, MADRAS³

February 1, 1946

Gandhiji said that many of them might not perhaps be aware that the function he was taking part in that morning had been pending ever since he came out of the jail. After he was released, Mr. B. Jagannath Das and Mr. V. Bhashyam Iyengar approached him on the subject. Besides his (Gandhiji’s) being able to be present and perform the function, there were certain other obstacles in the way which had to be got over. Certain negotiations had to be carried on with the Madras Corporation and certain difficulties to be overcome in that connection. After putting forth some efforts, everything was settled satisfactorily, and they were able to secure this land for the Harijan Industrial School. It was not as if they were able to secure the land free; but they were able to secure it at the minimum price. All of them were thankful to the corporation of Madras for that.

Proceeding, Gandhiji said that at this juncture, it was up to them to think deeply over the work ahead. Dr. Alagappa Chettiar, the great philanthropist he was, had given them very great help. Gandhiji felt confident that Dr. Alagappa Chettiar considered his wealth as but a means of rendering service. But all the wealth Dr. Alagappa Chettiar possessed would not suffice for the cause of Harijan service. The Hindu community had committed a great sin by the Harijans by observing untouchability. It was the duty of every Hindu to rid himself of this sin. How else could he

¹ Vide “Ashram Bhajanavali”
² According to the source, at this stage “some persons, mostly ladies, began to leave, as it was getting late for them”, and Gandhiji concluded the speech.
³ At the newly acquired site for Harijan Industrial School; Gandhiji spoke in Hindustani.
do the purificatory ceremony than by serving the Harijan?

There was another aspect to this harsh treatment of Harijans. All men were equals and by treating a fellowman as untouchable, a person degraded himself. The real un-touchable was the person who treated a fellowman as untouchable. Such a treatment was not only a great wrong but also a great sin. Men fortunately placed in this world, who gave for the cause, were but discharging their duty by the less fortunate, because wealth after all was a thing held in trust by the rich on behalf of the poor. Gandhiji, from this point of view, regarded that there was no need for offering special thanks to Dr. Alagappa Chettiar. All the same, he was thankful to Dr. Alagappa Chettiar for the munificent offer of help and for showing the way as to how men ought to discharge their obligation towards their less fortunate brethren. On this occasion, Gandhiji emphasized, he desired to draw the attention of everyone to the urgent need for serving the cause of Harijans through a change of heart, for, he added, a change of heart was far more important than gifts of money or other similar help.

Referring to the desire expressed by Mr. Thakkar with regard to the future development of the institution, Gandhiji said that it was very good that they were making provision for training as many as 300 persons in the institution. Gandhiji desired that the course of training should be devised on proper lines so that the institution might become a model one, serving not only this Province but also enabling people from other parts of India to come here and receive training. He also hoped that the pupils trained in this institution would be among the best workers in the cause of Harijans.

Good work carried on sincerely and truthfully would never suffer for want of financial help. God in his mercy would somehow take care of all good causes. Had he not, on this occasion, sent them help through Dr. Alagappa Chettiar? Nothing would please him more than to see that his coming to Madras had been of some help to this institution.

Gandhiji next stressed the importance of imparting instruction and training in the school in the mother tongue. Hindustani should also be taught. He was glad to note that the entire proceedings of the meeting were conducted in Tamil, though it was unfortunate that the programme of the meeting should have been printed in English. How much better would it have been, if even the programme had been printed in Tamil or Hindustani? In this connection, Gandhiji referred to an incident of the previous day when he met some merchants for the purpose of raising funds for the Silver Jubilee Fund of the Hindi Prachar Sabha. Invitation to the merchants had been sent in English. He mentioned this in order to emphasize the need for getting rid of this slavery to English. Those in charge of teaching work in the Harijan Industrial School should not forget the mother tongue just as they ought not to forget their mother. He would, at the same time, appeal to them not to forget the motherland either. They should try to learn as many languages as possible; but they must all learn Hindustani which would help unify the whole of India.

Gandhiji next suggested that the new school should be named after Mr. A. V. Thakkar. He said that Thakkar Bapa had dedicated himself to the cause of Harijans and Adivasis to the exclusion of everything else. All the 24 hours of his day, he devoted to this work. It was, therefore, but fitting that the Harijan Industrial School should be named after such a good servant of the cause. They might call it the “Thakkar Bapa Vidyalaya” or for brevity’s sake, only “Bapa Vidyalaya”, for who was a greater Bapa (father) of the Harijans than Thakkar Bapa?

In conclusion, Gandhiji wished the institution a great future and useful service to Harijans. He also hoped that the institution would help to bring about a real change of heart among the people towards Harijans and enable them to live as equals with the rest of the society. Gandhiji further hoped that this Vidyalaya would maintain steady progress and that the pupils trained at this centre would, by their life and example, be real Harijans, sons of God, pledged to serve the country truthfully.

The Hindu, 2-2-1946

444. TALK TO VILLAGERS, KODAMBAKKAM

February 1, 1946

Gandhiji expressed his pleasure at meeting them and told them that on the previous day, he had addressed a gathering of workers like them. He would ask them one simple question to which they should answer without any fear by raising their hands. Gandhiji asked:

How many of you here are addicted to drink?

Finding that a good number in the crowd had lifted their hands, Gandhiji remarked that he did not understand what benefit they derived by drinking, which was a sinful act. They all earned their livelihood by labour, and they should not spend their hard-earned money in evil habits like drink and gambling. He would advise them to spend it wisely for their own good. Gandhiji then asked them to disperse peacefully and go home.

The Hindu, 3-2-1946

1 The report said: “Gandhiji visited the Harijan Industrial School in the afternoon and remained there for nearly an hour and a half. A large gathering of men and women were present on the occasion in the school premises under a pandal. While returning to his seat in the pandal, Gandhiji noticed a crowd of villagers outside the western gate clamouring to see him. At once he proceeded to the spot and after asking them to keep silent, addressed a few words in Hindustani which were translated into Tamil by L. N. Gopalaswami.”

VOL. 89: 7 DECEMBER, 1945 - 24 FEBRUARY, 1946
445. SPEECH AT HARIJAN INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL, KODAMBKKAM

February 1, 1946

Gandhiji recalled his visit to the School a few years ago, and expressed his pleasure to be present there again and see their work. He hoped that though there were practical difficulties, the trained boys would do their best to settle in villages and see that the work they had learnt was also taught to the villagers. Urging the removal of untouchability completely, he said that the workers connected with Harijan uplift should banish from their minds any notion that the people for whom they worked were un-touchables, and establish closer contact with them.

Referring to the School, Gandhiji said that at present there were 50 boys under-going training. This was not enough. They should see that hundreds of boys were benefited by the school. The public on their part should extend financial help to such institutions freely and fully. Gandhiji also made a fervent appeal to Harijans and others to learn Hindustani along with the study of their mother tongue. He reminded them of the visit of Swami Vivekananda to Madras a few years back and the advice he had given them to study Sanskrit. Gandhiji hoped that some of the Harijans would aspire to become Sanskrit pundits.

The work which the Harijans were taught in the school, Gandhiji said, was not merely intended to eke out their livelihood; it should also enable them by their conduct to make the higher castes feel that they were equal to them in all respects, and not un-touchables. If they went out doing good work, speaking good things and leading a good life, nobody would call them Harijans. Gandhiji hoped that God would guide them and the institution along the right path.

The Hindu, 3-2-1946

446. SPEECH AT PRAYER MEETING, MADRAS

February 1, 1946

Gandhiji began his speech with a reference to the orderliness of the gathering, by pointing out that the noise that usually came from his left was absent that day, and that he had hoped to thank them for the calm and peaceful manner in which they had conducted themselves. But, he added, at the end of the prayer there was a slight

1 The report said: “An address of welcome was handed over to Gandhiji on behalf of several organizations working for Harijan welfare. Pupils of various institutions were asked to stand in their places, and were introduced to Gandhiji.”

2 On January 22, 1937; vide “Letter to Gangabehn Jhaveri”, 15-11-1930
distrubance in front of him. Gandhiji, however, appreciated the patience of the gathering and remarked that the prayer meetings appeared to have had some effect on them as they had learnt how to maintain silence and order.

This big maidan was really the best temple of God. They had the fine blue sky for their roof, under which there was no difference between the rich and the poor, the master and the servant, the millionaire and the worker, or the Hindu, the Muslim, the Christian and the Parsi. With sky as canopy and with mother earth, which could accommodate thousands of them, as floor, they had before them a temple of art, kala mandir, the like of which he had not seen in any part of the world. This was a special feature of India. He had travelled in Europe and had seen many places of worship. He had been to many mosques. He had also visited a number of temples. Before he took up the question of Harijans, he used to be taken to the temples. People believed that they would be rid of their sins by making offerings and worshipping at the temples. Though such a belief would have its own effect, Gandhiji felt that the acts of worshipping and making offerings by themselves would not make one pure. Purity was a matter of the heart, and it was this indestructible quality that they should aim at.

Gandhiji then went on to say that a person who worshipped in a Siva temple would not go to a Vishnu temple because he felt that his salvation could be secured only by worshipping Siva. This sort of bigotry was wrong. It was a mere illusion. It used to be said that once Tulsidas went to a Krishna temple and fervently wished to see there his Rama with his bow and arrows. It was also said Tulsidas was able to see his Rama in the image of Krishna. This showed that faith and belief were matter of the heart and that one realized what one ardently desired and prayed for.

In this open-air temple, Gandhiji said, they had been assembling for the past few days. They had understood the need for orderliness, he was glad to note. But he also wanted that this orderliness and devotion should not be a mere outward show. There was no use if they appeared pious, but indulged in drink, gambling and deceit. The lessons of discipline and orderliness which they learnt at these gatherings should not be forgotten. The peace and calmness that prevailed at the meeting was very dear to him. He was perfectly satisfied. This was probably the last meeting he would be addressing in Madras this time. But on his return from Madura, if he found time, he might address them once again in the same maidan.

Gandhiji said that he had a special attachment to South India, and whenever he came to the South, the people demonstrated their affection for him. Whatever work he had been able to do, and that too without rest, would not have been possible but for their affection and sincerity. He was old and weak and he also got easily tired. His mind was overworked, but with God’s grace, which manifested through their affection for him, he had been able to do his work properly. Gandhiji said:

After all what is my work? I have nothing to give you except my services. If you continue to show the same love to me, I am confident, God will give me strength to serve you further in the future. It is your devotion that enables you to sit calmly for such a long time. It is your calmness that gives me more and more strength.

Referring next to his visit to the Harijan Industrial School at Kodambakkam, Gandhiji said that it was a small place where students were taught many useful handicrafts. One should not go away with the feeling that the institution after all helped only a few students. It was such kind of work that would go for the unification of India. In South India they spoke four languages. It could not be said that there was unity among them. That was a sad thing. It must be possible for him to hear that no feeling of difference existed between the four linguistic areas of South India or between South India and North India. Untouchability had not completely disappeared from their midst. All human beings are the children of God, and how could there be any difference amongst them? If educated people created a feeling of brotherhood among all communities and ceased to think that brain-worker was superior to a barber or an oil-monger or a Harijan and thereby helped their Harijan neighbour to feel that he was equal to them, the unity of India would be promoted and realized.

Referring to the theme of the song sung earlier, Gandhiji said that in order to realize Rama, the poet felt that he should become a saint. The poet said that one should give up outward show and keep one’s heart pure so that Rama might come and reside within. That showed that God would make his abode in the hearts of only who got rid of their sins and passions and became pure.

Concluding, Gandhiji wished the gathering happiness and the grace of God.

The Hindu, 3-2-1946

---

447. “HARIJAN” REVIVED

Why is Harijan revived? This question may have occurred to many as it has to me. I may tell the reader that no special effort was made for its revival. An application for the removal of the ban was made on December 3, 1945, and the ban was removed on January 10, 1946. Many readers, including English and American, had all along felt a void, and they began to feel it more after the defeat of the Fascist Powers. The reason for the feeling was obvious. They wanted my reaction, in terms of truth and non-violence, to the various events happening in India, if not in the world. I wished to satisfy this desire.

---

1 Vide the preceding item.
2 This appeared under “Notes”.
3 After suspension in August 1942:
There have been cataclysmic changes in the world. Do I still adhere to my faith in truth and non-violence? Has not the atom bomb exploded that faith? Not only has it not done so but it has clearly demonstrated to me that the twins constitute the mightiest force in the world. Before it the bomb is of no effect. The two opposing forces are wholly different in kind, the one moral and spiritual, the other physical and material. The one is infinitely superior to the other which by its very nature has an end. The force of the spirit is ever progressive and endless. Its full expression makes it unconquerable in the world. In saying this, I know that I have said nothing new. I merely bear witness to the fact. What is more, that force resides in everybody, man, woman and child, irrespective of the colour of the skin. Only in many it lies dormant, but it is capable of being awakened by judicious training.

It is further to be observed that without the recognition of this truth and due effort to realize it, there is no escape from self-destruction. The remedy lies in every individual training himself for self-expression in every walk of life, irrespective of response by the neighbours. Harijan will attempt from week to week to stand up for this truth and illustrate it.¹

ON WAY TO MADURA, February 2, 1946

_Harijan_, 10-2-1946

448. SPEECH AT ACHARAPAKKAM STATION²

_February 2, 1946_

Gandhiji said that if the same _shanti_ prevailed all along the route to the Sri Meenakshi Temple at Madura, he would be delighted. He said:

I have a pet idea, perhaps foolish, that I should always travel third, but I am actually travelling double first class. I have not the joy of having fellow-travellers in the train with me in the carriage. I know such travel is not for a pilgrim that I am now. I am a pilgrim today for an important reason. I have passed through Madura before but I have never turned to the Sri Meenakshi Temple because Harijans did not then have access to it. But God fulfills Himself in many ways. I am an opponent of untouchability and so is Rajaji. It was God’s will that Government came into the hands of Congressmen for some time. Through your support Rajaji had the legislation made, and the Sri Meenakshi Temple is now open to all Hindus including Harijans. I am no worshipper of idols. But I know the great place idol-worship has amongst Hindus. There is a place in every man’s heart for such worship in that spirit. I go as a pilgrim to Madura. You are sitting here like true pilgrims and listening to me with prayerful hearts. I know, I carry your prayers with me.

¹_Vide also “To the Reader”
²_The report said: “Leaving Kattupakkam at five in the morning, the special train halted . . . at Acharapakkam. . . . people . . . gathered in the station yard . . . maintained perfect silence as Gandhiji came out…”_

The Hindu, 3-2-1946

449. SPEECH AT ARIYALUR STATION
February 2, 1946

You know I am on my way to Madura. I am a Harijan, and this pilgrimage of mine is a Harijan yatra. I want you to follow me to Madura in your thoughts and cast aside untouchability. You must also contribute to the Harijan Fund. But mere money contributions will not do. There must be a genuine change of heart. So long as there is no change of heart towards the Harijans on the part of the savarnas, we will not get freedom, and Hinduism will be ruined. I know, you do not want Hinduism to be ruined. So you must rid yourselves and Hinduism of the sin. Good-bye, good-bye.

The Hindu, 3-2-1946

450. SPEECH AT LALGUDI STATION
February 2, 1946

Referring to his visit to Madura as a teertha yatra, Gandhiji, who spoke a few words to those gathered at Lalgudi Station, said that in olden days pilgrims from one end of the land to the other, sometimes, used to walk the whole distance. Since the Madura Temple was thrown open to Harijans, he had been longing to visit it and worship Sri Meenakshi. He was himself a Harijan who wanted to worship there. He wanted their blessings for the success of his pilgrimage.

The Hindu, 3-2-1946

1 The temple was thrown open to Harijans on July 8, 1939.
2 The report said: Seven thousand men, women and children . . . sat in the sun patiently and . . . when the special drew up at 11.15 a.m., they lifted their folded hands in silent obeisance. Gandhiji was so impressed by the orderliness of the crowd that he called for Ramdhun in which the assemblage participated. . . .
451. SPEECH AT GOLDEN ROCK

[February 2, 1946]

The workers, Gandhiji said, were possessed of real wealth, for wealth really was not money but the capacity to produce goods. Money alone could produce no goods, only labour could. He wanted the workers to realize their strength and work for progress on the lines of truth, ahimsa and unity. He was confident that he carried with him their good wishes and sympathy in his pilgrimage to Madura. Addressing the women in the gathering, Gandhiji said that during the days of the Salt Satyagraha Campaign, women gave proof of their patriotism and showed themselves as not a whit behind men. They should represent in themselves the essence of truth and ahimsa.

The Hindu, 4-2-1946

452. SPEECH AT MANAPPARAI

February 2, 1946

Gandhiji said that he was very happy to see so many charkhas plying. He saw a similar demonstration in Bengal, but there it was mostly the men who were the spinners. The women who were spinning at the present gathering seemed to be poor people. Everyone must spin and wear khadi. The charkha should be in evidence everywhere. Gandhiji asked:

Have you all rid yourselves of the observance of untouchability?

If they had not already done so, they must at once, he added. Swaraj was close at hand, but they must realize that the charkha was the basis and the means of that swaraj.

The Hindu, 4-2-1946

1 According to the report, “some ten thousand men and women mostly of the working classes sat in absolute silence and order.”

2 Form The Hindu, 3-2-1946, which reported that Gandhiji’s Special reached Trichinopoly at 1.30 p.m. on this date, “after reception at Srirangam and Golden Rock”.

3 Vide also “Some Labour Questions”

4 According to the report, “entire maidan near Manapparai railway station was filled to capacity by . . . men and women, many of whom were spinning”.

VOL. 89: 7 DECEMBER, 1945 - 24 FEBRUARY, 1946 347
453. SPEECH AT MADURAI

February 2, 1946

I am sorry there is so much noise in this vast assembly. I came here wanting to tell you many things, but I am afraid, on account of the noise, I will not be able to say anything. People in front of the dais are very quiet and if others are not equally quiet, it will be difficult for me to stay on here. My health does not permit me to stay on here and stand noise. But when I see so many of you sitting so quiet in front, I still want to tell you how I appreciate the silence of this section of the gathering. It is a matter for regret that after so many years we have not yet learnt how to behave when we gather in such large numbers. Madura is a famous city. It is a holy city. You have opened the Temple here to Harijans. Since then I wanted to visit the shrine.

I know all this noise and commotion is explained by your love and affection for me. You are all eager to see me. But I tell you such intemperate and undisciplined affection is not love. You have only made it impossible for me to tell you what I wanted to. Prayer, to me, is no mere routine. It is dear to me and is part of my life.

His only request to them would be that when he went next morning to the Meenakshi Temple for worship, only those who had been invited should come there. Others should not go there or cause inconvenience to the invitees.

The Hindu, 4-2-1946

454. SPEECH AT ODDANCHATRAM

February 3, 1946

Gandhiji said that it was one of the very few perfect gatherings he had addressed since leaving Madras. Such discipline was good for them and would be

Then called Madura; the report said that “Gandhiji walked round on the dais, appealing for shanti, but in vain”.

The report concluded: “Gandhiji then appealed to the crowd to be orderly, and was preparing to leave for his temporary residence when the crowd made a rush forward. Seeing the utter indiscipline prevailing, he quietly stretched himself on the matress and refused to budge until the crowd dispersed quietly. . . . The stalemate continued for over two hours. In the mean time the crowd, finding the hour getting late, began to melt away.” Vide also “The Lesson of Madurai” invaluable for the country especially when swaraj came, as he was hoping it would, in a few months. He wanted them to remove untouchability from their midst and use local made khadi cloth. Gandhiji then bade good-bye, and the crowd silently joined hands in pranam to him.

The Hindu, 5-2-1946

455. SPEECH AT PALNI

February 3, 1946

Addressing the crowd in Hindustani, Gandhiji said, he had been ordered by his doctor that he should not go up the hill with its 640 steps. \(^1\) His experience in Madura\(^2\) showed how, out of love for him, the crowds could become uncontrollable. He would ask them not to follow him up the hill if he went.

He would much rather not ascend the hill than that they should be disappointed at not being able to accompany him. Obeisance offered with a pure heart, from whichever spot it might be, would receive God’s blessings. When he saw the crowd’s shanti, his own soul had shanti, too.

Urging them always to conduct themselves in a disciplined manner, Gandhiji said that through discipline alone could they retain swaraj and get the best service out of their own leaders. Speaking in the presence of Palaniandava\(^3\), he would exhort them to cast off untouchability from their hearts. Removal of untouchability meant not merely willingness to suffer the touch of anyone, but readiness to treat the brother Hindu as an equal. No sense of inferiority or superiority should subsist between one section and another of the community or between Hindu, Muslim, Parsi or Christian.

Speaking of temple worship, Gandhiji said that worship of God’s image would serve no good unless people cleaned their hearts of hardness against fellow-beings. God should be enshrined not in images, but in human hearts. He had just worshipped Sri Meenakshi at the Madura Temple because that Temple was now open to Harijans. While in the Temple he had realized a new spiritual significance.
Worship in the temples must mean change of heart towards Harijans. Otherwise it was fruitless. Their silence and shanti made him feel confident that his pilgrimage had borne fruit\(^4\)

The Hindu, 5-2-1946

\(^1\) He was, however, carried in a palanquin; vide the following item.
\(^2\) Vide “Speech at Madurai”, 2-2-1946
\(^3\) The presiding deity at Palni
\(^4\) The report concluded: “Gandhiji then conducted his evening prayer at the meeting. It was a complete prayer with the usual recitals from the Upanishads, the gita and the Koran followed by Ramdhun. He then left for the Hill Temple.”
456. ENTRY IN PALNI TEMPLE VISITORS’ BOOK

February 3, 1946

I was happy to be here and be able today to have darshan in this Temple.

The Hindu, 5-1-1946

457. ARE WE GOING DOWN?

Personal likes and dislikes, ambitions and jealousies should have no place in our organization. What, therefore, distresses me greatly is that dislike, hatred and vindictiveness in private life and even in public speeches are becoming common among Congressmen; and consequently indiscipline and hooliganism are increasing.

This extract is taken from a long letter from a friend. She even quotes instances and elaborates her thesis. But I have reproduced sufficient for my purpose. I whole-heartedly endorse every word of what she says. Though I do not read newspapers diligently, I feel that there is truth in her experience. Now that it seems that we are coming into our own, the evils complained of ought to go and calmness, rigid discipline, co-operation and goodwill must take the place of passion, indiscipline and jealousies, public and private. Or else swaraj machinery will crack and go to pieces and our future state may very well become worse than the present, bad and insufferable as it is. As I said in Mahishadal, the glow of swaraj in action must be felt by the illiterate millions of India. They must feel the vital difference between the present autocratic and ordinance regime and the orderly, democratic, non-violent regime under swaraj. I hug the hope that when real responsibility comes to the people and the dead weight of a foreign army of occupation is removed, we shall be natural, dignified and restrained. We are living just now in a state that is highly artificial and unnatural. The sooner we get out of it the better for us, the ruling power and the world. I can, therefore, only suggest to my friend and

---

1 The report said: “Sitting in a special palanquin, Gandhiji reached the Temple at 9 p.m. Some 200 worshippers who were present . . . sat down in perfect order and silence leaving . . . Gandhiji . . . to offer worship in comfort . . .” Vide also “Its Implications”

2 Vide “Speech At Prayer Meeting”, 29-12-1945
those who think like her, that they should rigidly carry out in practice what they think, even though they be a handful.

ON THE TRAIN TO MADRAS, February 4, 1946
Harajan, 10-2-1946

458. ITS IMPLICATIONS

The vast meeting at Palni1 under the shadow of the Temple was perfectly silent; there were no noises. I seized the occasion to give the audience the implications of removal of untouchability. It began with touch but it would be a wooden thing, if it merely ended there. A Brahmin may be a depraved man in spite of his learning. It would be preposterous to call him one. A Brahmin is he who knows Brahma. It is character, not occupation, that determines the man. The Bhangi is, or should be, on a par with the Brahmin in all social relations. There is no reason why he should not, other things being equal, occupy the chair which Maulana Abul Kalam Azad occupies with distinction. I would be happy to see the day when a Bhangi, working as such, is in the Presidential chair.

The ulcer of untouchability has gone so deep down that it seems to pervade our life. Hence the unreal differences; Brahmin and non-Brahmin, provinces and provinces, religion and religion. Why should there be all this poison smelling of untouchability? Why should we not all be children of one Indian family and, further, of one human family? Are we not like branches of the same tree?

When untouchability is rooted out, these distinctions will vanish and no one will consider himself superior to any other. Naturally exploitation too will cease and co-operation will be the order of the day.

Having dealt with untouchability, I turned to the pilgrimage. There was fear of my being unable to negotiate the flight of over six hundred steps on a chair, if crowds of people insisted on accompanying me up the hill which was too small to accommodate them. I would be satisfied with doing darshan at the foot of the hill. Let not the people, however, think that I was guided by any belief in the potency of images of clay or precious metal. Idols became what the devotees made of or imputed to them. For me they had no potency whilst Harijans were prohibited from entering temples. I had passed by the famous Meenakshi Temple in Madura more than once before and never cared to go inside it whilst the prohibition against the Harijans lasted. How could I, who claim to be a Bhangi, care to enter such temples? Then I was sure that the God of India was God living in the plains where the millions lived. How many could reach the Himalayas? Many more have gone and more many could reach the Himalayas? Many more have gone and more could certainly go to Palni, but the crores could not. I would be, as I am, one of them.

1Vide “Speech At Palni”, 3-2-1946

I was sure, too, that my prayer at the foot of the hill would be heard more than that of some devotees in the Temple itself. God knew and cared for the hearts of men. Outward appearance was nothing to Him, if it was not an expression of the inner. It was enough for me that the Harijans of the inner. It was enough for me that the Harijans were as free as any other Hindu to enter the Palni Temple for the purpose of worship.

Nevertheless the millions who were assured that I would have darshan of the image itself would not understand this message and might feel that some calamity would descend upon the country, if I could not go up the hill. Their silence at the meeting encouraged the hope that I might be able to go through the advertised programme.

The speech was delivered at nearly 6 p.m. But at 8 p.m. I found that I was able to negotiate the hill and, though there was a large crowd at the entrance, none insisted on joining while Rajaji and I were being taken up the hill in chairs. Thus happily did the pilgrimage came to a successful end.

One swallow does not make summer. No legitimate inference can be drawn from this incident. However I cannot help cherishing the fond hope that it augurs well for India under swaraj, home rule or independence, by whatever name one may choose to call the thing.

Perhaps this article is the proper place for recording my thanks to the South Indian Railway and the staff for their considering no trouble too great for making the journey as little tiresome as it was possible for it to be under the circumstances.

ON THE TRAIN TO MADRAS FROM PALNI, February 4, 1946

_Harijan, 10-2-1946_
459. SPEECH AT ULUNDURPET STATION

[February 4, 1946]¹

Gandhiji thanked the giver² but added that he was no longer able to digest groundnut and had, therefore, given it up. He said:

Day by day, I am growing older but I am at the same time desirous of living 125 years. Not that I want to live in pleasure, but I want to do more service. I want to serve you and your freedom’s cause. True freedom is in developing freedom-consciousness. That cannot be developed in one year or two. Twenty-five years’ work among 400 millions is but a drop in the ocean. My prayer to God is that He should spare me 125 years to render more service. Harijan seva is an important item in that service. If you do not wash your-selves of the sin of observing untouchability, we cannot become free, nor can our religions survive long. From the time the Madura Temple was thrown open to the Harijans when Rajaji was Premier, I have thought of visiting it. Rajaji is a servant of you all. But even ten Rajajis could not have achieved such great work unless there was public support and public opinion behind it. I want you, therefore, to eliminate untouchability from your hearts.

The Hindu, 4-2-1946

460. SPEECH READ OUT AT PRAYER MEETING, MADRAS³

February 4, 1946

I am very glad that I have been able to make the two pilgrimages to Madura and Palni. The people of the Province behaved with great consideration to me all along the route. The vast gathering kept sitting in their places, observing complete silence. The best exhibition of such silence and such discipline was at Palni. It was entirely on account of the discipline of the people there that it was possible to carry me up the hill in a chair.

You, people of Madras, have given me your company at prayers

¹ On his return journey from Palni to Madras, Gandhiji reached Ulundurpet on this date.
² Gandhiji was given a bag full of groundnuts by one of the villagers.
³ The report said that this “message in Hindustani written on an envelope” was read out by Kanu Gandhi as Gandhiji had not broken his silence.
for the last ten days. May I expect that through you the people of this Province will imbibe the lesson of silence and orderliness? Swaraj is on the way—that is the belief of all. But swaraj will be incomplete without shanti. There cannot be shanti without the grace of God, and there cannot be grace of God without prayer, prarthana. That is why I ask you to cultivate the habit of prayer. Prayer should proceed from the heart.

The Hindu, 6-2-1946

461. TALK WITH V. S. SRINIVASA SASTRI¹

MADRAS, February 4, 1946

In reply to Sastriar’s enqiury about the tour, Gandhiji wrote that it had been very nice but very taxing. Sastriar was surprised to hear that five to six lakhs had gathered at the prayer meeting at Madura, more than half of which number had come from the surrounding villages. They had sat on the roadside without food and shelter just to have a darshan as they felt that this might be their last chance.

Gandhiji enquired about Sastriar’s health and advised him to obey the doctor. Sastriar said, he felt almost normal. He was moved beyond words. He remarked:

Brother, you have done me an exceptional honour, especially by paying this visit when you were in a great hurry. You are dearer and nearer to me than my own brothers and sons and members of the family.

His voice had become almost inaudible:

We have come together by some inner affinity. No external reason can explain this friendship. Gokhale was but the occasion of it.

And he drew nearer to Gandhiji and whispered:

I won’t waste words. You know what I want to say.

Gandhiji waved to him to be quiet as he was becoming breathless with emotion and got up to say good-bye.

As Gandhiji got up, Sastriar caught sight of his dangling watch. He said:

Ah! your constant companion. Somebody said, you had lost your watch and

¹ Extracted from Sushila Nayyar’s “Meeting Sastriar”. Sushila Nayyar explains: “On his return from Madura, Gandhiji had only three hours at his disposal during which he . . . saw several people, collected funds for Harijans and Hindustani prachar and paid hurried visit to Sastriar, on his way to the Station. It was a Monday and Sastriar was disappointed to find that Gandhiji was observing silence. . . . Sastriar talked and Gandhiji replied by writing on slips of paper.”
would use it no longer.

Shri T. R. Venkatarama¹ corrected him by saying that the remark related to his fountain pen. Sastriar said:

Oh! I see. But if someone steals your watch, will you give up using a watch also?

Gandhiji laughed and shook his head to say that he could not do without his watch.

_Harijan_, 28-4-1946

462. CURIOUS

On my return journey from Palni, someone gave me at one of the halts a letter reviling Shri Rajaji and Shri Gopalaswami², and informing me that they would not allow anyone against them to come near me. Now I know to the contrary. No one who wanted to say anything worth-while could be prevented from seeing me or writing to me. The delivery of the very letter disproves the allegation. Shri Kamaraja Nadar was with me on the same special. He was with me in the Temple on the Palni Hill. But there is no doubt that both Rajaji and Gopalaswami were closest to me during the journey. They had arranged it. Rajaji is one of my oldest friends and was known to be the best exponent in word and deed of all I stand for. That, in 1942, he differed³ from me, I know. All honour for the boldness with which he publically avowed the difference. He is a great social reformer, never afraid to act according to his belief. His political wisdom and integrity are beyond question. I was, therefore, pained to find a clique against him. It is a clique that evidently counts in the official Congress in Madras. But the masses are devoted to Rajaji. I am neither vain nor foolish enough to feel that I could have had the huge public demonstratations all along the route of the pilgrim-jage, if he had no influence with the masses in Tamil Nadu. Congressmen in the South will act as they think best. But I would be less than loyal to the organization, if I did not warn them against losing the valuable services

¹ T. R. Venkatarama Sastri, one of the students of Srinivasa Sastri, who later became his intimate friend
² N. Gopalaswami Iyengar, Chairman, Jubilee Celebration Committee of the Dakshina Bharat Hindi Prachar Sabha, Madras
³ On the issue of demand for Pakistan, Rajagopalachari, resigned from the Congress Party on July 15, 1942; _vide_ “Letter to C. Gopalachari”, 5-7-1942 which no one can shoulder as Rajaji can at the present moment.\footnote{Gandhiji continued the article after he left Vajayawada; vide “Curious”}

En route TO WARDHA, February 5, 1946

Harijan, 10-2-1946

463. SPEECH AT VIJAYAWADA \footnote{Then called ‘Bezwada’}

February 5, 1946

Addressing the audience in Hindustani, Mahatma Gandhi first referred to a letter, handed over to him by Mr. A. Subrahmanyam, a local Congressman, saying that there was a feeling among the Andhras that he (Gandhiji) had come to Madras to set up Mr. C. Rajagopalachari as the Premier. He said that he was very sorry that there was such a misunderstanding even among Congressmen about the purpose of his trip to Madras. Even the Telugu papers, he added, were writing that he had come to set up C. R. as Premier, and that he had made his journey specially for Mr. Rajagopalachari’s sake. In fact he had not even dreamt of this. Ever since his release from jail he had been thinking of visiting Madras for Hindustani propaganda. He made it clear that he had gone there as the President of the Dakshina Bharat Hindi Sabha Rajat Jayant (Silver Jubilee) celebrations and not in any other capacity or for any other purpose. He was asked to speak about Mr. C. Rajagopalachari but he refused to do so. He did not answer any letter received by him in this connection. This was because he was not even a four-anna member of the Congress.

Mr. Rajagopalachari was his old friend, and he had great respect for his conduct and convictions. Mr. C. Rajagopalachari was quite competent to wield the reins of Premier-ship, he would do it, but to make him the Premier or to become Premier himself was not in his hands. It was the business of the provincial Congress Committee and the All-India Congress Committee, which were the only bodies competent to do the job.

He was not interested in the elections and the Parliamentary programme. Until today he had not done anything secretly nor did he intend to do so in the future. He came to know of their misunderstanding only after his arrival in Bezwada. He had no occasion to think of it before. If it was his intention to interest himself in setting up Mr. C. Rajagopalachari for the post of Premier-ship, he need not have come all the way to Madras but could have done it from where he was. Therefore he wanted to keep silent over this matter and did not want to interfere.\footnote{For a gist, vide the following item.}

He wanted them not to forget what he had said about Hindustani propaganda.

---

\footnote{Vide also the preceding item.}
Although the Hindustani Pracharak Sangh had been functioning in Andhra Desha for the last many years, he was really sorry to find that a vast number of them did not know Hindustani. Today he had blessed the foundation-stone of the Hindustani Bhavan to be constructed in Bezwada. He hoped that very soon all of them would take advantage of it and learn Hindustani. He would only be satisfied when he heard that there was no one who did not understand Hindustani. By this he did not mean they should neglect their mother tongue, Telugu. But Telugu, Tamil, Malayalam, etc., could never become the all-India language and, therefore, people of all languages should learn Hindustani.

Gandhiji also referred to the controversy whether Hindi or English should be the common language in India. All Indian languages were being eclipsed by the popular use of English. It was just for this reason that he was strongly emphasizing the need for Hindustani propaganda.

In conclusion, he appealed to them not to waste their time with Tamil-Telugu or Canarese-Malayalam differences and said, “God bless you all.”

The Hindu, 6-2-1946

464. CURIOUS [CONTINUED]

The foregoing was written before Bezwada was reached at 5.30 in the morning. At Bezwada a note in Hindustani from Shri A. Subrahmanyam was delivered, the gist of which is given below:

There is a belief spread in Andhra Desha that you have come to Madras with a view to make Rajaji Premier. Several Congressmen have been carrying on such propaganda. Taking up the theme, some Telugu newspapers have been writing even against Hindustani. Pease give your opinion on this.

I felt bound, therfore, to give my reply. I said that my journey was purely for the purpose of celebrating the Silver Jubilee of the Dakshina Bharat Hindi Prachar Sabha, now Hindustani Prachar Sabha, and incidentally for Madura and Palni Temples. The visit was conceived soon after my premature discharge and before the Congress resumption of parliamentary work was even conceived. My visit has nothing to do with Rajaji being the Premier. My life had no secrecy about it. If I wanted to give an opinion, I was in the habit of giving it openly. But I had rejected the advances of friends to guide

---

1. Soon after his arrival there in the morning
2. Vide “Curious”
3. Vide the preceding item.
them, for I was not interested in elections and offices. But since I was challenged, I had no hesitation in saying that Rajaji was by far the best man for the purpose in the Southern Presidency and, if I had the disposal in my hands, I would call Rajaji to office; if I did not give it to myself. But the disposal was with the Provincial Congress Committee and finally with the Working Committee. My opinion was only that of an individual, to be taken for what it was worth.

AFTER BEZWADA, _en route_ TO WARDHA, February 5, 1946
_Harijan_, 10-2-1946

465. _HINDUSTANI_

How can any Indian really be averse to Hindustani? Lovers of Sanskritized Hindi are, however, afraid that Hindustani will hurt Hindi and likewise lovers of Persianized Urdu fear hurt to Urdu. These fears are futile. No language can spread through mere propaganda. If it had been so, Esperanto would have found a place amongst the populace in the West. They failed because in such a matter the enthusiasm of only a few cannot succeed. The language of a people who produce hard workers, literary experts, business men and enterprising persons spreads and is enriched. It is ours to make the effort in that direction.

Only that language which the people of a country will themselves adopt can become national. However virile the English language may be, it can never become the language of the masses of India. If the British regime were to be permanent, it would continue to be the official language of their Indian officials and, because education would be in their hands, provincial languages would suffer. The late Lokamanya\(^1\) once said that the British had done a service to the provincial languages. This is true to some extent. But it was not their business to encourage them nor could they in reality do so. That work belongs to the people and their leaders. If the English-educated neglect, as they have done and even now continue, as some do, to be ignorant of their mother tongue, linguistic starvation will abide.

We are today certain that the British Raj cannot remain for ever. They say, and we believe, that it will go even this year. Then there can be no national language for us other than Hindustani. Today there are two forms of this language, Hindi and Urdu, the former written in Nagari and the latter in Urdu script. One is fed by Sanskrit, the other

\(^1\) Bal Gangadhar Tilak
by Persian and Arabic. Today, therefore, both must remain. But Hindustani will be a mixture of these. What shape it will take in the future none can say nor need we know. Twenty-three crores out of thirty speak Hindustani. This number must have increased pari passu with the population. Obviously in this lies the national language.

There ought to be no quarrel between the two sisters Hindi and Urdu. The rivalry is with English. This struggle itself means much labour. The rise of Hindustani will also give an impetus to the provincial languages because it is the language of the masses, not of a handful of officials.

It was for the propaganda of the national language that I went recently to the South. The name Hindi used there up till now has been changed to Hindustani. During the last few months several persons have been learning both the scripts and have obtained certificates. In the South, too, the difficulty is not about the two scripts but in regard to English. We may not blame the official world for this. The fault lies in us. It is we who are infatuated with English. I found this disease even in Hindustani Nagar. But I hope that the illusion will now disappear. A good deal has been done in the South but much still remains, if we have to reach the desired goal.

February 5, 1946

_Harijan_, 10-2-1946

466. THE LESSON OF MADURAI

The crowd in Madura' could not have been less than five lacs and may have been even six. Human faces were to be seen as far as the horizon. It was a veritable sea of human faces. The long route to the race course was lined by people who were all to swell the crowd in the prayer ground. They must push on as much as they could. I doubt if the people on the fringe could even see me, much less hear me or anyone else, though loudspeaker arrangements were good and the rostrum high enough. The volunteers were not used to manage such vast crowds. People had come from distant villages where the Congressmen had not worked habitually, if at all. Such being the case, the din and noise and jostle were unavoidable. And then the crowd had to deal with a satyagrahi in me. But my satyagraha for the first time failed. The people’s was bound to fail. They showed

\[1\textit{Vide Speech At Madurai}, 2-21-1946\]
the greatest forbearance whilst I was passive. The vast multitude in front of me and on either side sat noiseless and motionless, in spite of the pressure from behind. But the jostling and noise from behind the rostrum continued unabated. I, therefore, cleared the dais and asked the women members of my party to go. Only Rajaji, Kanu Gandhi and Ramakrishna Bajaj remained. The latter said, the way was clear; but, as I appeared, the people became restive. I addressed the people in front and at the sides and pleaded with them to go away as I did not propose to speak. They remained silent but would not leave. So I thought I would rest where I was for the night till the crowd had either dispersed or made a way for me. Kanu Gandhi, the tempter, came again and said, the people would make a passage and let me go. The car would wait for me at a distance from the crowd. In a weak moment I yielded. I went down the few steps of the improvised strong ladder only to meet the same pressing and noisy crowd as before, though considerably thinned. It was not a safe passage through a noiseless, disciplined crowd for which I was pleading and waiting. It was neither a mischievous crowd. Making noise and pressing forward towards the idol was the only way of expressing their love towards it. Here was a living idol made of the same clay as they. And this idol could not and would not appreciate their demonstration. But I proved an impatient and inefficient teacher. Had I waited, I believe, this particular crowd would have learnt the value of silence and, knowing love, probably of discipline requisite for swaraj. I shall know much better next time, if such ever comes. Anyway it is legitimate to ask whether the exemplary behaviour at Palni was a result of the imperfect lesson of the previous night at Madura. In any case, no blame attaches to anybody in the drama and nobody has any cause for shame.

Enroute TO WARDHA, February 5, 1946

Harijan, 10-2-1946

467. NATURE CURE CLINIC

Readers are aware\(^1\) that I have become co-trustee with Shree Jehangir Patel and with Dr. Dinshaw Mehta in his clinic at Poona. A condition of the trust is that from January 1 this year the clinic should \(^1\) This appeared under “Notes”, as “translated from Hindustani” in Harijan sevak published simultaneously with the source.

\(^2\) Vide “Statement to the Press”, 21-11-1945
become a clinic for the poor instead of for the rich. The conception was mine but owing to my absence on tour the condition has not been wholly fulfilled. I am hoping to go to Poona this month, however, and trust I shall be able to do some work in this connection. My fervent hope is that rich patients will, if they came, pay to their fullest capacity and yet live in the same wards as the poor. I believe that by doing so they will derive more benefit from henceforth. Those unwilling to abide by this condition need not trouble to go to the clinic. This rule is necessary.

In addition to treatment for their ailments, poor patients will also be taught how to live healthy lives. It is a common belief today that nature cure is expensive, more so than Ayurvedic or allopathic. If this is proved to be true, I shall have to admit failure. But I believe that the opposite is true, and my experience also bears out the belief. It is the duty of a nature cure doctor not only to look after the body but also pay attention to and prescribe for the soul of a patient. The best prescription for the soul is, of course, Ramanama (God’s name). I cannot today go into the meaning of and method of applying Ramanama. I will only say that the poor do not stand in need of much medicine. They die uncared for as it is. Their ignorance makes them blind to what nature teaches us. If the Poona experiment succeeds, Dr. Dinshaw Mehta’s dream of a nature cure university will come true.

Help of India’s true nature cure doctors is needed in this great work for the country. There can be no question of making money in it. The need is for those who are filled with the spirit of service to the poor and only with a sufficient number of such doctors can the work progress. The mere title of a doctor is no criterion; a real doctor is he who is a true servant. Those who have experience and knowledge and are anxious to serve may write with a list of their qualifications. No replies will be given to those whose qualifications are not up to the standard.

Readers will please note that work has increased with the revival of Harijan. There will, therefore, be very little scope for replying to individual letters.

ON TRAIN TO WARDHA, February 5, 1946

Harijan, 10-2-1946
468. THE LURE OF LEGISLATURES

I believe that some Congressmen ought to seek election in the legislatures or other elected bodies. In the past I did not hold this view. I had hoped that the boycott of legislatures would be complete. That was not to be. Moreover times have changed. Swaraj seems to be near. Under the circumstances it is necessary that Congress should contest every seat in the legislatures. The attraction should never be the honour that a seat in a legislature is said to give. The desire and opportunity for service can be the only incentive for a Congressman. Congress should have, and has, such prestige that a Congress candidate is irresistible even where a particular seat is contested. Moreover those that are not selected by the Board should not feel hurt. On the contrary, they should feel happy that they are left there to render more useful service. But the painful fact is that those who are not selected by the Board do feel hurt.

The Congress should not have to spend money on the elections. Nominees of a popular organization should be elected without any effort in the latter’s part. Conveyance arrangements for the poor voters should be made by their well-to-do neighbours. For instance, if the voters from X have to go to Y, the railway fare from X to Y for the poor voters should be paid by the well-to-do people of X. That is the distinguishing feature of a well-organized, non-violent, popular organization. An organization which looks to money for everything can never serve the masses. If money could bring success in a popular contest, the British Government which can, and does, spend most lavishly should be the most popular body in India. The facts are that even Government servants drawing fat salaries do not, in their heart of hearts, want the British Government.

Let us examine the utility value of legislatures. The legislatures can expose the Government, but that is the least service. He who can tell the people why they become victims of the Government even of knowing its faults, and can teach them how to stand up against Government wrongs renders a real service. The members cannot do this essential service, for their business is to make people look to them

---

1. This appeared as “translated from the Gujarati” in Harijanbandhu published simultaneously with the source.
2. Vide “Resolution on Council-Entry”, 19-5-1934 for the redress of wrongs.¹

The other use of legislatures is to prevent undesirable legislation and bring in laws which are useful for the public, so that as much help as possible can be given to the constructive programme.

Legislatures are supposed to carry out the popular will. For the moment eloquence may be of some use in these bodies. Ultimately that will not be the need. Experts with practical knowledge and those who can give to these few their support will be required. In an organization which exists for the sake of service and which has boycotted titles and other such paltry things, the sentiment, that to be selected as candidates for the legislatures is a mark of honour, is harmful. If such a sentiment takes root, it will bring down the name of the Congress and finally prove its ruin.

If Congressmen are to be reduced to such degradation, who will put flesh and blood into India’s millions of skeletons? On whom will India and the world rely?

ON WAY TO SEVAGRAM, February 5, 1946

_Harijan_, 17-2-1946

469. MESSAGE TO ANDHRA DESHA²

_February 5, 1946_

I expect much from Andhra Desha, and I hope the Andhras will fulfil my expectations. This is my wish: Remove untouchability altogether, throw open the doors of all temples for Harijans, strive for communal unity, wear khadi and work for its spread; learn your mother tongue and learn your mother tongue and learn Hindustani as well both in Urdu and Devanagari scripts.

_The Hindu_, 7-2-1946

¹ Instead of this sentence, Harijanbandhu has: “Councils are, have been and will be, an obstruction in this work.”

² According to the report, this was sent through Unnava Rajagopala-krishnayya, Secretary, Andhra Hindi Prachara Sangham, Bezwada, who accompanied Gandhiji from Bezwada to Kazipet.
470. SPEECH AT BALHARSHA STATION

February 5, 1946

If people do not keep discipline, then swaraj, which is near at hand and which they are sure to get, would be swaraj only in name and will not be of any use. The British will quit India. They have to quit. Therefore you will have to change your hearts and be worthy of swaraj.

Concluding, Gandhiji urged the people to give up corrupt practices like black-marketing, etc.

The Hindu, 8-2-1946

471. SPEECH AT PRAYER MEETING, WARDHA

February 6, 1946

I had proposed to come here on the ninth instant, but I came earlier. On the 19th evening, I am leaving for Poona for staying in the Nature Cure Clinic. After staying about ten days there, I desire to be in Bardoli Ashram on March 2 or latest on March 3, for observing Ba’s death anniversary on Shivaratri Day. It may be that on February 22 the anniversary may also be observed according to the Gregorian calendar. After about a month’s stay there, I will be in Poona.

The Hindu, 8-2-1946

472. STATEMENT TO THE UNITED PRESS OF INDIA

February 7, 1946

I never made such an admission. What I did say, and what I believe, is that the Bengal famine of 1943, which is claimed in certain quarters to be man-made, was certainly due to hopeless mismanagement passed current like other things under the military necessity. It was certainly not an act of God.

The Hindustan Times, 9-2-1946

1 The report said that this was in reply to a question put by an U. P. I. representative “whether Mahatma Gandhi had admitted to the Governor of Bengal that the Bengal famine of 1943 was not ‘man-made’”.

2 The report added that “in an interview which Dr. B. C. Roy had with members of the British Parliamentary Delegation during their recent visit to Calcutta . . . one member asserted that the Governor of Bengal succeeded in convincing Mahatma Gandhi that the famine of 1943 was not man-made and that Gandhiji had accepted that position.”
DEAR MR. ABELL,

I thank you for yours of 30th ultimo received by me in Madras on the 4th instant about the proposed Medical Mission to Burma and Malaya.¹

The attitude of the Government of Burma is somewhat strange. I had the pleasure of meeting H. E. the Governor of Burma last June in Simla. I should have thought that they would welcome any medical assistance especially when it is under the very able guidance of one of the most celebrated physicians of India, who is well-known not only for his exceptional medical talent but for his equally great organizing ability.

I am glad that the part of the offer that relates to Malaya has been accepted, for which I am thankful to His Excellency.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

G. E. B. ABELL, ESQ

Gandhi’s Correspondence with the Government, 1944-47, p. 75

¹ Replying to Gandhi’s letter of January 8, vide “Letter to G. E. B. Abell”, 8-1-1946, the addressee, Private Secretary to the Viceroy, had said that while offer of medical assistance was “declined” by the Government of Burma, the British Military Administration of Malaya, however, “accepted” it.
474. LETTER TO JATINDAS M. AMIN

SEVAGRAM,
February 7, 1946

CHI. AMIN JATIN,

I would only say this much that you should stay where you are and render such service as you can. “Action alone is thy province, never the fruits thereof.”

The best way of undoing injustice is to persuade ourselves that no one can [really] do an injustice.

Blessings from

BAPU

JATINDAS M. AMIN
VITHHAL KANYA VIDYALAYA
NADIAD

From a copy of the Gujarati: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

475. LETTER TO SUCHETA KIRPALANI

SEVAGRAM,
February 7, 1946

CHI. SUCHETA,

I got your letter of January 30, 1946, written from Allahabad. As for me, I am quite certain about two things: one, that a member of the Assembly cannot be an Agent¹, and two, that no man should be appointed Agent. I think that Thakkar Bapa also agrees with this and, therefore, as long as he is unable to find a woman worker in Delhi, he will carry on the work through the Central Office. The committee has ceased to be since January 1.

Poornima has already sent name [as candidate] for the Assembly. Now wouldn’t you, therefore, agree to be the Agent? Rameshwaribehn³ writes to the effect that she will quit the Assembly.

¹ Bhagavad Gita, ii. 47
² Of Kasturba Gandhi National Memorial Trust
³ Rameshwari Nehru
What you say about Priyamvada¹ is right and so too about Devdoot².

Blessings from
BAPU

SUCHETA KRIPALANI
From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

476. LETTER TO ANAND T. HINGORANI

SEVAGRAM,
February 7, 1946

What shall I write? I have your letter. Meet Jairamdas⁴ and learn shantipath⁵.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a microfilm of the Hindi. Courtesy: National Archives of India, and Anand T. Hingorani

477. SOME LABOUR QUESTIONS

During the pilgrimage to Madras and Palni the following document signed by 259 persons was handed to me at tremendously large meeting⁶ of labourers at Golden Rock:

We the workers of the South Indian Railway beg to place before you some of our major problems with a view to get your support.

Nearly 2,64,000 workers are going to be retrenched all over the railways. In South Indian Railway alone, 10,000 will be retrenched and till now more than 2,000 have been discharged. The Government

¹ Priyamvada Nandkeolyar who was subsequently appointed Agent of Kasturba National Memorial Trust for the Province of Bihar
² Devdoot Vidyarthi, worker of Kasturba Gandhi National Memorial Trust, Madhubani
³ This was a postscript to Sushila Nayyar’s letter to the addressee which read: “Bapuji will most probably continue to write his daily thoughts. The thoughts of the last two months I am sending through a separate bookpost. Please write which dates have been left out. Till now Bapuji was not able to correct the original. Therefore I did not send them. He may be able to get them in Poona. Then I shall send them.”
⁴ Jairamdas Doulatram
⁵ Lesson of peace
⁶ Vide Speech at Manapparai”, 2-2-1946

VOL. 89: 7 DECEMBER, 1945 - 24 FEBRUARY, 1946  367
contemplate absorption of ex-service men in place of railwaymen, thus putting us against the ex-soldiers.

We have been demanding a minimum living wage of Rs. 30 per mensem. At present the lowest wage is Rs. 8 to Rs. 15, and a majority of us receive less than Rs. 18 per mensem.

Out of 42,000 railway employees, only 8,000 are provided with quarters, of which the majority are infested with insanitary conditions, and are without proper ventilation.

You may be aware of the decision of the All-India Railwaymen’s Federation demanding adjudication or a court of enquiry, if they refuse to redress our grievances and accept the suggestions. The suggestions were intended for improvements in the railway system and the condition of the employees. For your reference we are giving below the sixteen suggestions forwarded to the Railways Board and the Government by the Federation:

1. Reduction of work to 40 hours per week as a first step and further to 40 hours per week for all the staff including running staff without fall in wages.
2. Introduction of weekly calendar days off for all the railwaymen.
3. Leave reserve to be increased to 25%.
4. Reduction of rail length for engineering gangmen.
5. Extension of leave facilities to dailyrated and inferior service staff on par with subordinates.
6. All the work now done through contract labour should be taken over departmentally.
7. Reduction of mileage for overhaul of locomotives, wagons and carriages.
8. Expansion of workshop production, namely, construction of boilers, engine parts, etc.
10. Rebuilding of third-class carriages so as to provide better facilities for passengers such as bath-rooms, fans and sleeping accommodation for long distance travel, etc.
11. Reopening all the lines that were closed and the restoration of all the trains stopped during the period of war and further expansion of services to meet the needs of the public.
12. A programme of house building with a view to provide decent houses for all railwaymen.
13. Construction of new lines to suit the needs of the country.
14. Laying down of double tracks wherever necessary.

15. Introduction of rail-motor transport to the distant towns and villages where railways cannot reach.

16. R. A. F. workshops now controlled by railways to be maintained and extended to serve the need of aviation.

In the demand of ours for full work, living wages, proper housing facilities, etc., we request you to support us and give a lead in the matter to the country and force the Railway Board to accept the same and save thousands of railwaymen and others from unemployment, misery and poverty.

If the workers are to be retrenched in order to make room, as alleged in the letter, for ex-soldiers, it is, in my opinion, doubly wrong. Wrong for the ex-soldier in that they will be favoured, and a soldier who accepts favoured treatment is no soldier. The second wrong will be to the men to be retrenched who, for no fault of their own, will be thrown out of employment. It will not do to say they were temporary hands. The State has to find work for all unemployed persons. Coming to the railwaymen’s demands, items Nos. 1-9 and No. 12 fall, in my opinion, within the sphere of labour, but whether they are reasonable or not cannot be said without hearing the railway authorities’ side. They should be referred to arbitration. They cannot be made a subject of strike, before the process of arbitration has been gone through. Any lightning strike is a form of dictation which is dangerous.

Items Nos. 10, 11 and 13-16, cannot legitimately be demanded by labourers. They are passengers’ grievances and passengers, i.e., the public, can take them up.

Item No. 10 I would consider quite extravagant. By far the largest number of passengers belong to the third class, and I have no doubt they deserve progressively better treatment, not the first and second class. Railway-cars of the not distant future will have no classes. Classes society is the idea, not merely to be aimed at but to be worked for and, in such society there is no room for classes or communities. Until that time is arrived at, first and second-class comforts be standardized and lowered where necessary and all attention bestowed upon third-class passengers. But I cannot visualize a time when third-class carriages, no matter how distant of the journey may be, can carry bathing accommodation for tens of thousands of travellers. What is required is proper bathing arrangement for third-class passengers at railway stations. Third-class passengers are the most neglected in India. Railway-cars and railway stations should be utilized for proper education of the public in sanitation and cleanliness. This is not the case today. And the quicker Hindu and Mohammedan tea or water distinctions disappear the better. Why should the State recognize these unnatural and irreigious distinctions? Those who consider themselves defiled by service rendered by person not belonging to their own persuasion may well be left to their own resources.

The association for railway passengers’ relief should certainly ventilate grievances before the authorities. Their main work should be to conduct sustained education among the passengers as to their own duty toward one another and about observing laws of cleanliness and hygiene.

SEVAGRAM, February 8, 1946
_Harijan_, 17-2-1946

478. TELEGRAM TO JATINDAS M. AMIN

SEVAGRAM,
_February 8, 1946_

JATINDAS AMIN

VITHTHAL KANYA VIDYALAYA

NADIAD

NO FAST. PERFORM YOUR OWN DUTY QUIETLY.

BAPU

From a copy: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

479. LETTER TO R. G. CASEY

SEVAGRAM, _via_ WARDHA,
_February 8, 1946_

DEAR FRIEND,

I have to acknowledge receipt of your three letters of January 20, 1946, January 30, 1946, and February 1, 1946.

Now that you are about to leave your office and also India, I will not trouble you any further with reference to the several matters on which I see there are differences of view-point. I can-

1_Vide also “Hindu and Mussalman Tea, Etc.”, 7-3-1946.
2_Vide also “Its Implications” not help mentioning my regret that I have failed to carry conviction in the matter of salt and khadi.\footnote{Vide also “Letter to R. G. Casey”, 8-1-1946 and “Letter to R. G. Casey”, 16-1-1946} The position regarding milk is certainly extraordinary. There is no question here of even carrying conviction. It is typical. The answer you have been Instructed to give reveals to me the official mind in India which refuses to admit even obvious mistakes. Hence we have called the Civil Service ‘heaven-born’ and the late Mr. Montagu called it ‘wooden’. Some day, if you and Mrs. [Casey] and I meet without you being trammelled by cares of office, we shall laugh heartily over the many tragedies of Bengal which, let us hope, will have been things of the past and the ludicrous mistakes lying at the bottom of these tragedies.

I understand what you have said\footnote{In his letter dated February 1, the addressee, \textit{inter alia}, had said: “The process of release of all those that it is anyway safe to release will be continued hereafter.}} about the release of prisoners.

I hope that the Red Cross work will share itself for the benefit of the millions.

I enclose for your information the statement\footnote{Vide “Statement to the United Press of India”, 7-2-1946} I have made with reference to “man-made famine”. I hope that I have correctly recalled our conversation.

I thank you for the Australian wool you have been good enough to send to the Rajkumari\footnote{Amrit Kaur} for turning into blankets. I hope to report to you how the blankets look when they come from the weavers and tell you whether Australian wool makes better blankets than the Tibetan.

\textit{Yours sincerely,}

M. K. \textit{GANDHI}

H. E. THE GOVERNOR OF BENGAL

CALCUTTA

\textit{Gandhiji’s Correspondence with the Government, 1944-47, pp. 122-3}
480. LETTER TO VALLABHBHAI PATEL

GRAMSVA ASHRAM, SEVAGRAM,
February 8, 1946

BHAI VALLABHBHAI,

You may not know X but he is staunch Congressmen. He has suffered, too. I send you the letter which he has left with me.
You will see from it that Y has broken faith with the Congress.
The Doctor left the letter with me in order to guard against his candidature being approved through mistake. Now do what seems right to you.

I hope you keep good health. The tour was quite strenuous, but God granted me the necessary strength, and it was finished without a hitch. As arranged, I hope to reach Bardoli on the 3rd. I leave here on the 17th and reach Poona on the 19th.

From the newspaper reports, you seem to have done fairly well in the Sind elections.

Blessings from
BAPU

Bapuna Patro—2: Sardar Vallabhaie, p. 293

481. LETTER TO VEENA

SEVAGRAM,
February 8, 1946

CHI. VEENA¹,

I got your letter as also the previous one. How can I find time to write while I am constantly on the move? It is good news that you are keeping well.

Your parents arrived here yesterday. Everyone is fine. Why are your envelopes marked ‘Private’?

It would be good, if you could come to Bardoli. I shall try to leave here on the 17th and reach Poona on the 19th.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

¹ Daughter of Amrita Lal Chatterjee
482. LETTER TO SANKARAN

SEVAGRAM,
February 8, 1946

CHI. SANKARAN,

I got your letter. I reached the Ashram on the 6th morning. The issue of “Jivansakha” has not yet been found. Why are your envelopes marked ’Confidential’? Such letters are handed over to me unopened, and I can see them only when I find time. For instance, though your letter had reached us in Madras, I opened it only yesterday. There was no scope for it to be opened during the journey. You do not write to Sushilabehn at all.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Hindi: Pyarelal Papers. Courtesy: Pyarelal

483. PRESERVATION OF CATTLE

The Goseva Sangh which has its headquarters in Wardha was the late Shri Jamnalalji’s last creation. He served the public cause in a variety of ways. For years money-making had ceased to be his main occupation. If he cared for money, it was only with the object of financing public activities. Eleventh day of February was the fifth anniversary of his death, and his followers and comrades decided to celebrate this anniversary by holding a meeting of friends and workers of the Goseva Sangh.

An hour before he died, he was working for this cause. Gopuri, where the meeting took place, is his creation. His ashes rest there, and the first meeting of the Sangh was also held there. The name Goseva was chosen after careful thought. The sense of patronage contained in goraksha was eliminated by the substitution of the word seva. The Hindu believes in the cow as mother and indeed she is so. An American has described her as the “Mother of Prosperity” and the description is correct. It is another matter that they eat beef in the West. They believe, at the same time, that the cow occupies highest place amongst those animals which contribute to man’s comfort and happiness. It is difficult, if not impossible, for an Indian to think of man as being able to live without cow’s milk.

1 This appeared as “from the Hindustani” in Harijan Sevak published simultaneously with the source.

Preservation of cattle is a vital part of goseva. It is a vital question for India. And it is a tragedy that the country which worships the cow pays scant attention to her and her progeny. While we may not kill the cow, we definitely torture her. Matters have reached such a sorry pass that today cattle seem to have become a burden and people talk of killing them off in order to lighten this load. What could one Jamnalalji do to battle against such odds? And now even he is not among us.

Speeches are not going to solve the problem. There is urgent need for deep study and the spirit of sacrifice. To amass money and dole out charity does not connote real business capacity. To know how to preserve cattle, to impart this knowledge to the millions, to live up to the ideal oneself, and to spend money on this endeavour is real business. Today the opposite obtains. The rich amass wealth somehow and salve their consciences by giving a paltry sum out of it towards the upkeep of goshalas by untrained persons and fancy that they have acquired merit. Jamnalalji was well aware of these short-comings and was working out a scheme to overcome them. In the meanwhile, death claimed him. Perhaps even greater capacity is needed to solve this immensely difficult problem than to obtain swaraj.

SEVAGRAM, February 9, 1946
Harijan, 17-2-1946

484. QUESTION BOX

Q. While in conversation or doing brain work or when one is suddenly worried, can one recite Ramanama (the name of God) in one’s heart? Do people do so at such times and, if so, how?

A. Experience shows that man can do so at any time, even in sleep, provided Ramanama is enshrined in his heart. If the taking of the name has become a habit, its racitation through the ear becomes as natural as the heartbeat. Otherwise Ramanama is a mere mechanical performance or at best has touched the heart only on the surface.
When Ramanama has established its dominion over the heart, the question of vocal recitation does not arise. Because then it transcends

1 This appeared as “from the Hindustani” in Harijan Sevak published simultaneously with the source.
speech. But it may well be held that person who have attained this state are few and far between.

There is no doubt whatsoever that Ramanama contains all the power that it attributed to it. No one can, by mere wishing, enshrine Ramanama in his heart. Untiring effort is required as also patience. What an amount of labour and patience have been lavished by men to acquire the non-existent philosopher’s stone? Surely God’s name is of infinitely richer value and always existent.

Q. Is it necessary for the mind to go through different stages of progress (including collapse) before it attains absolute calm? Why is it that even when one is awake and quite calm, one’s mind is often disturbed as in a dream? Why do such things as one has neither felt or seen in real life intrude into one’s conscious or sub-conscious mind?

A. Before attaining perfect calm, it is essential for almost everyone to go through stages of progress. I use the word ‘almost’ advisedly. It exclude those who have made consistent effort in a previous existence, but without complete success, and who will not, therefore, have to pass through purgatory in this life. When the apparently calm mind is disturbed as if by dreams, it means that the calm is outward and not inward. What does not appear to have any relation to one’s life’s experience and yet disturbs shows, in my opinion, that there are many things which have associations but of which one has no recollection.

Q. Is it harmful if, owing to stress or exigencies of work, one is unable to carry out daily devotions in the prescribed manner? Which of the two should be given preference, service or the rosary?

A. Whatever the exigencies of service or adverse circumstances may be, Ramanama must not cease. The outward form will vary according to the occasion. The absence of the rosary does not interrupt Ramanama which has found an abiding place in the heart.

SEVAGRAM, February 9, 1946

Harijan, 17-2-1946
485. CRIMINAL IF TRUE

A letter from Karnataka contains the following information:

On February 1, 1946, at about 10 a.m. when the Karnataka Provincial Congress Parliamentary Board was conducting its business in its office in Hubli, 20 to 25 persons effected an entrance into the meeting hall without first obtaining permission of the President.

The Board had met to discuss some important matters. Some of the persons above mentioned asked for time to make certain representations. The President told them that sufficient time for the purpose had been given to them on the previous day. The Board was now engaged in serious deliberations but would see them again during the afternoon. In reply, they said, they had further important matter to represent and insisted on doing so then and there. The president opined that their attitude was quite inconsistent with due decorum and discipline, but they continued to insist, whereupon the President said that he would be obliged to leave the hall. As he stood up in order to go away, one member of the party tried forcibly to hold him down. Another snatched the office files from his hands and was going to take them away. Yet another hit Shri Diwaker on the head with his umbrella. Persons in the hall finally came to the rescue and restored order.

If such be the case, the Congress organization will go to pieces. Indeed no organization can successfully work under a system of terror. I do not go into the merits. That work will be done by the Congress Working Committee. What is reported to have taken place is not against decency and all the rules of the game, but is manifestly against non-violence. Moreover there seems to be an indecent longing for getting into the legislatures. This indecency shows that the deciding reason for contesting elections is being lost sight of.

SEVAGRAM, February 9, 1946

Harijan, 17-2-1946

1 This appeared under “Notes”.

THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA

SEVAGRAM,
February 9, 1946

CHI. KRISHNACHANDRA,

Today I am dictating this letter in Gujarati.

1. Those who feel themselves poor without the knowledge of English may be taught the language. The general policy should be understood that nobody should be taught English, and that, when it is found necessary to teach anybody, my permission should be obtained.

2. The reason for stressing the importance of carding is that, if we learn it, we shall be spared the necessity of all other processes. If, in addition to carding by hand, they also think it necessary, they may use the carding-bow, but I don’t regard that as essential. I see no difficulty at all in stopping the practice of procuring the gutstring of the carding-bow from outside. Good cotton can be carded with a string made of mooj or yarn. But I don’t insist on this.

3. General supervision work leaves no time for teaching things to others. It is another matter if, in order to improve one’s efficiency in supervision work or relax one’s mind, one finds it necessary to take up some other work. It is difficult to lay down any rule in this matter. The supervisor himself must decide. It is a sign of ignorant attachment to go on working till the breaking point.

4. I regard a weekly tour by Vinoba as essential. There would be no harm in his taking someone who can be spared from his work and who is eager to learn. The rule that one person should always accompany him seems laudable.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G. N. 4545

FAMINE OF GRAIN AND CLOTH

During my wanderings in Bengal, Assam and Madras, I heard tales of distress due to shortage of food and cloth. Reports come to

1 A kind of hay me from other parts of India. They support the same tale. Dr. Rajendra Prasad tells me that the Government report expressing fear of shortage of food immediately doubled the market price. This is a bad sign. Such speculation should be a thing of the past. The mercantile community should be competent to curb such greed. Let them not add to the distress caused by the Government mistakes or incompetence. There are mercantile association and chambers. If they act patriotically, they can help most to prevent panic and speculation.

It is the fashion to blame nature for famine. Scarcity of rain is by no means a monopoly of India. In other countries, though people welcome rains, they have made themselves fairly independent of rainfall during a season or two. Here Government have used themselves and the public to the idea that famines come when there is shortage of rainfall. Had the mind been framed otherwise, they would have made adequate provision for shortfalls. They only tinkered with the problem and naturally so. For the official world was taught to think no better. Originality there could be none in a close monopoly organization like the Government of India. It is the largest autocracy the world has known. Democracy has been reserved only for Great Britain. And when it rules and exploits millions belonging to other races, it becomes an unmitigated evil. It corrupts the whole island with the idea that such exploitation is the best thing for an enlightened democracy to do. It would be well to remember this fundamental fact, if I have correctly estimated it. If we recognize this while dealing with the immediate problem, we shall be patient with the present actors.
There is no call here for patience with the evil. The distinction will enable us the better to deal with the evil.

We must then first put our own house in order as far as may be,
and at the same time demand from the foreign Government that since they mean what they say, let them at once replace the irresponsible executive with elected and responsible members from the Central Legislature, however archaic and based only on a limited franchise it may be. There is nothing to prevent the Viceery from doing this today. I do not propose to answer the difficulties in anticipation.
“Where there’s will, there’s a way”. This one act will restore confidence and allay panic.

“Grow more food” was not a bad cry during the war. It is a greater necessity now. This can be best done only by a national

1 The source has “waterfall”.

378 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
executive. Even its mistakes will not loom so large as those of a nominated executive, however able the latter may be. As it is, even their ability and integrity are in question—rightly so or wrongly is beside the point in this connection. Everything possible should be done to draw water from the bowels of the earth. There is talent enough in this country for the purpose. Provincial selfishness should give place to the national want. In addition to, not in the place of, these measures, grain should be imported from wherever it can be had.

Cloth famine can and ought to be averted by telling the millions to spin and weave in their own villages, the State supplying them with cotton where it is not grown or available, and with the simple instruments of production on hire or long-term purchase. The A. I. S. A. with its seasoned workers should be summoned to render assistance and guidance. This will take a few months, if the work is taken up in earnest. Indigenous mills will be called upon to assist this national process by a wise distribution of their cloth in cities and villages while the transition process is going on. Argumentation on the capacity of mills to supply all the cloth required should cease in face of the calamity which is existent and daily growing in intensity. Mills cannot find employment for the millions of unemployed villagers. The educative value of the charkha is not be surpassed. But for the spell of hypnotism which rules our minds today, we shall all realize this obvious truth, set ourselves working out the concrete proposition and thereby restore confidence to the millions and, maybe, even to the world which has neither enough food nor cloth.

SEVAGRAM, February 10, 1946
Harijan, 17-2-1946

488. TO THE READER

