Do you find any difficulty in selling the emeralds? Or is it because of obstruction by somebody that you have not been able to sell them?

It is certainly worthy of you not to wish to withdraw the money deposited in your name by the Doctor. The daughters, however, should get the money set apart for them, but at present I see no possibility of their being able to withdraw any part of it. Hence, the time has not yet come for thinking about your share. Everything can be settled if the train gets on the rails. We will see about it provided the family does not break up and the bitterness disappears.

Please write to me regularly.

If you act as Chhaganlal advises, everything will end well.

I know that you will go on doing your duty irrespective of whether they love you or slight you and, therefore, I do not worry.

Blessings from
BAPU

From Gujarati: C.W. 9470a

3. A LETTER

September 5, 1932

You are either cunning or foolish. Do you really not know what ‘vikar’ means? The vikar resulting from eating pulses and that resulting from physical touch, are both signs of something wrong in us. Both disturb the equilibrium. The first kind of vikar results from swallowing some external substance; the second is a change of mental state resulting from the sight of some external object. A vikar that can shake one’s whole being may prove harmful. If a woman feels vikar towards a man, society does not always hold her guilty; that is, when it springs from a desire to marry that person and such marriage is not forbidden, the matter is not kept secret from one’s people and one is free to marry. According to me, you are not yet fit to marry, for you are studying and are still a minor. Your having such relations with . . . is improper, as he was your teacher and was, moreover, like a brother to you. Call your feeling what you like, whether vikar or desire for marriage, you kept it secret and, therefore, it is blameworthy.

1 Mayashankar Vrajlal Desai, business partner of Dr. Pranjivan Mehta.
2 Wife of Maganlal Mehta.

You do not understand the meaning of independence also. When you show the letters to your elders of your own free will, you do not lose your independence but seek your safety. If somebody posts himself at our door-step, he is like a Government bailiff depriving us of our freedom; but if we station a watchman at the gate, we do not lose our freedom but protect it. In the same way, if you in your adolescent state regard your elders as guardians of your interests, open your heart to them and show your letters to them. You do not lose your independence but seek protection for it. I earnestly wish that you should become independent. It was for protecting your independence that I advised you to show your letters, etc., to your parents. If, however, you cannot reconcile yourself to this and feel it an irksome restraint, you may keep your letters private. I do not want to put pressure on you in any way, as that would crush your individuality. I only wish that you should become a brave girl and a spirited servant of the people. And I shall be extremely pained if you stop writing to me.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, pp. 6-7

4. LETTER TO BEGUM MOHAMMAD ALAM

[Before September 6, 1932]

It is my conviction that your husband will come round. I have recieved the doctor’s letter which has kept me informed of his health. Your letter has given me further information regarding his health.

1 The name is omitted in the source.
2 The report in the source is dated September 6.
3 Dr. Mohammad Alam, who was a prisoner in Lahore Central Jail and had been ailing.
Please keep unbroken correspondence with me and convey Sardar Patel’s, Mahadev Desai’s and my good wishes to the doctor. Through the grace of God we are all well here, and hope you will not find any difficulty in reading this letter which is written in broken Urdu.

Advance, 7-9-1932.

5. LETTER TO MOHAN N. PARIKH

September 7, 1932

CHI. MOHAN,

May you live long. Be good and serve the country. Keep the vow which you have taken, namely, that during the year in which you are entering you will learn by heart four chapters. And also make an effort to understand their meaning.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: S.N. 9183

6. LETTER TO RATILAL SHETH

September 7, 1932

BHAISHRI RATILAL,

I have your letter. Chhaganlal and Lilavati write to me and I feel satisfied with their letters. I also receive complaints against both of them which I immediately pass on to them. Lilavati wrote about her health to me too. If Chhaganlal willingly permits her to go, I think it would be good to call her there for some time. Her health at any rate would improve. Manekbehn seems to be very much displeased with her. Lilavati says that she has done nothing but I do not believe she is so completely innocent. For one thing, her tongue is very sharp. And, moreover, Manekbehn is a simple-minded woman and anybody can easily deceive her. I had observed in Rangoon and also when Lilavati was at Sabarmati, that she could not tolerate any criticism. But how can even you change her nature? You have been exercising upon her whatever good influence you can as her father.

1 Of the Gita.
2 Addressee’s daughter, and chhaganlal’s wife.
3 Dr. Pranjivan Mehta’s widow
Maganlal wrote to me a letter with which I was quite satisfied. Manjula seems to me to be a girl who has not yet felt the evil influence of the ways of the world. If necessary, I will request you to go to Rangoon. Let us hope that the two brothers will settle everything peacefully.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 7168. Also C.W. 4662. Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi

7. LETTER TO PRABHUDAS GANDHI

September 7, 1932

CHI. PRABHUDAS,

I have your letter. What you want cannot be sent for Rentia Baras. How do you forget that we are prisoners? But you may imagine that our yarn is there. Mahadev draws yarn of about hundred counts from Keshu’s slivers. If there is a proper spindle, it would not take much to draw a thinner yarn. I spin a yarn of 40 counts on Magan spinning-wheel. It takes about three hours to spin 250 rounds of yarn. It takes much of my time. But as long as my hand gives work, I will stick to it. This time, I do not have with me the right mechanic. Otherwise, I would have got the alterations made. Whatever changes you make, do not sacrifice the simplicity of the spinning-wheel. In order to draw fine yarn, I feel the distance between the spindle and the tip should be reduced. There are more chances of fine yarn getting snapped if drawn long. The spindle should be shorter and thinner than it is. This is only my thinking.

That you have set up a limit [of work] is more than enough. Do not be impatient. Do not build castles in the air. Keep writing to me regularly.

Blessings from
BAPU

From the Gujarati original: S.N. 32940
8. LETTER TO MATHURADAS TRIKUMJI

September 8, 1932

For exercise, pranayama done slowly and standing has wonderful effect. It should be done slowly and methodically. You have to keep time in pranayama as you have to in music. The breathing must be rhythmic. Once you have learnt to do this by practice, your lungs will have to do much less work and at the same time they will be able to inhale more oxygen. As they inhale more oxygen, they exhale more carbon dioxide. You can gradually increase the time of this exercise. If it is done correctly, its beneficial effects will be felt immediately. You will feel less tired, your appetite will improve, the mind will remain calm and, if the body is cold, it will become warm.

Yes, it is true that my reason does not accept the necessity of sex-pleasure, and my view is confirmed by experience. The dangerous thing about artificial means of birth-control is that their acceptance implies the acceptance of the necessity of sex-pleasure. If the principle is universally adopted, that brahmacharya is desirable in all conditions, nobody would use artificial means of birth-control. As thefts will continue, though stealing is an anti-social activity, so also it is likely that artificial means of birth-control will continue to be used. But it is necessary to create a climate of opinion in which they are regarded as undesirable. Anybody who indulges in sex-pleasure must accept the responsibility of progeny. The hardships resulting from the birth of children must be borne. It is only thus that one can learn the lesson of complete self-control.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 12

9. LETTER TO TARAMATI MATHURADAS TRIKUMJI

YERAVDA MANDIR,

September 8, 1932

CHI. TARAMATI,

I have received a letter from Mathuradas today. He writes:

I am maintaining fairly good health. I am in a cheerful mood. My time passes quite well. The doctor has given me a warm jacket from his own house for my use. Apart from the prescribed diet, I get one lb. of milk. I also get hot water for both. Hard days of monsoon are about to be over. Hence, the weather will be less oppressive. I have stopped taking rice and dal even after coming here. Milk, wheat and vegetables are my chief food. I sleep quite well. I do not even spin at present because the Yeravda chakra is in disrepair. By way of physical exercise I take rounds.

With regard to reading, etc., he mentions some English titles. Mathuradas writes that he does not intend calling you right now. You will have received my letter with which I had enclosed the letter for Dilip’s teacher.

You must keep writing to me.

Blessings from
BAPU

From the Gujarati origin al Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courte sy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

10. A LETTER
September 8, 1932

I find in your letter here and there traces of deceit. If my impression is wrong, please correct me. If, on the contrary, my suspicion is correct, you should overcome this defect in you. This will be your shraddha to Doctor. May God grant you wisdom. If I am doing you an injustice, please save me from that sin.

[From Gujarati]
Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 12

11. LETTER TO VIMAL KISHORE MEHROTRA
September 8, 1932

CHI. VIMAL,

I have your letter. You must improve your hand. You must not run away from the prayer meeting, it is discourtesy to God.

BAPU

From Hindi: C.W. 4985. Courtesy: Parasram Mehrotra

1Vide “Statement on Untouchability—I”, 4-11-1932.
12. LETTER TO M. G. BHANDARI

September 9, 1932

DEAR MAJOR BHANDARI,

Will you please come?

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat: G.N. 5122

13. LETTER TO RAMSAY MACDONALD

September 9, 1932

DEAR FRIEND,

I have to thank you for your frank and full letter telegraphed and received this day. I am sorry, however, that you put upon the contemplated step an interpretation that never crossed my mind. I have claimed to speak on behalf of the very class to sacrifice whose interests you impute to me a desire to fast myself to death. I had hoped that extreme step itself would effectively prevent any such selfish interpretation. Without arguing I affirm that for me this matter is one of pure religion. The mere fact of “Depressed” classes having double votes does not protect them or Hindu society in general from being disrupted. In establishment of a separate electorate at all for “Depressed” classes I sense the injection of a poison that is calculated to destroy Hinduism and do no good whatsoever to “Depressed” classes. You will please permit me to say that no matter how sympathetic you may be you cannot come to a correct decision on a matter of such vital and religious importance to the parties concerned. I should not be against even over-representation of “Depressed” Classes. What I am against is their statutory separation, even in a limited form, from Hindu fold, so long as they choose to belong to it. Do you not realize that if your decision stands and constitution comes into being, you arrest the marvellous growth of work of Hindu reformers who have dedicated themselves to the uplift of their suppressed brethren in every walk of life?

1 Superintendent of the Yeravda Central Prison.
2 Gandhiji had announced his intention to begin an indefinite fast from September 20 in protest against Government’s announcement providing for separate electorates for the Depressed Classes.
I have therefore been compelled reluctantly to adhere to the decision conveyed to you.

As your letter may give rise to a misunderstanding, I wish to state that the fact of my having isolated for special treatment the “Depressed” Classes question from other parts of your decision does not in any way mean I approve of or am reconciled to other parts of decision. In my opinion many other parts are open to very grave objection. Only I do not consider them to be any warrant for calling from me such self-immolation as my conscience has prompted me to in the matter of “Deepressed” Classes.

_I remain,
Your faithful friend,
M. K. Gandhi_

Government of India, Home Department, Political, File No. 31/113/32 Pol.
Courtesy: National Archives of India

14. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

_September 9, 1932_

CHI. NARANDAS,

Please let me have the following information as soon as possible:

1. How much fuel is consumed in making _rotlis_ and how much in making bread from the same quantity of flour?

2. The method of making bread.
   (a) How is the leaven prepared?
   (b) In addition to leaven, do we mix salt, jaggery or sugar with the flour?
   (c) The various steps of the process;
   (d) How long is the dough left over?
   (e) How long is the loaf kept in the oven?

In short, the description should be so written out that, after reading it, we can try the method here. I want this information so that I may compare our method with the method followed here. How much quantity of flour do you use these days for making bread? What does the flour cost? How many persons would have to work for making _rotlis_ and for making bread from the same quantity of flour?
I hope the boy is in fine health and spirits and that Shankarbhai’s hand is now free from its prison.¹

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./I. Also C.W. 8249. Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi

15. LETTER TO BHAU PANSE

September 9, 1932

CHI. BHAU,

Do not brood over the deeper meaning of the Gita. As you try to put into practice its teaching about non-attachment, its deeper meaning will automatically reveal itself to you, and, when you understand it, you will be perfectly satisfied. Meanwhile, you should have faith in the meaning explained by Vinoba. Mostly my explanations are his. Wherever you find a difference between us, you should tentatively accept the meaning which appeals to you. There is no doubt at all that if you can spin with ease with a bamboo takli, it is most suitable for the purpose. You should also learn how to make such a takli. If you have not tried enema for constipation, you should do so. Sometimes it seems to help very much. I get a little news about Wardha, but you also should give me in your letters whatever news you get there. Do not lose hope about overcoming your constipation.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 6736. Also C.W. 4479. Courtesy: Bhau Panse

16. LETTER TO GANGABEHN VAIDYA

September 9, 1932

CHI. GANGABEHN,

This time you wrote to me a long and beautiful letter.

I know, of course, that to you Hakimji is not merely a physician but is a brother, one of your family, a friend, a counsellor and a respected elder too. It is, therefore, quite right that you take as much help from him as he can give. You did well in visiting the homes of ¹ Shankarbhai Patel had his arm in plaster; Vide “Letter to Narandas Gandhi”, 11/15-8-1932.

Muslims. Such work will bear fruit in future. If our hearts are pure and filled with love, we shall succeed in getting rid of all prejudices.

The Inspector-General gave me news about Kakasaheb. He is in good health. I had also a letter from him. Though it is true that he has lost weight, he is not suffering from any disease. There is, therefore, no cause for worry.

Lakshmi, it seems, is enjoying the benefit of good company.

It was good that you paid a visit to Noorbanu¹. Look after Qureshi as long as you are there. I am happy that Ramibehn is still with you.

If you feel comfortable staying with Shamalbhai² you may certainly do so. Do what keeps you cheerful. My mind is at rest since Nath is there always to help you.

My advice regarding Babu³ is that, for the present, he should study, that is, he should become proficient in Gujarati, Sanskrit, Hindi, arithmetic, history, geography, all the processes through which cotton passes till it is woven into khadi, and carpentry, and learn a little music. He will then know what line to take up. His intellect must blossom and his heart must expand.

Sardar and Mahadev of course read your letters. All of us often think of you.

Blessings from
BAPU

[From Gujarati]

¹ Wife of Pyare Ali.
² Shamalbhai Behcharbhai Patel, a worker from Borsad taluka. He was Kaka-saheb’s fellow-prisoner during his first internment in Sabarmati Jail in 1930.
³ Addressee’s grandson and Purushottamdas D. Saraiya’s younger brother.
17. LETTER TO JOHN HAYNES HOLMES

Y. C. P.,
September 10, 1932

DEAR FRIEND,

Just one line to thank you for your kind letter of 7th August. I have not received Bishop Fisher’s book yet. As you know Sardar Vallabhbhai and Mahadev Desai are with me. We are turning the time at our disposal to good account. We are just now concentrating upon drawing from the quality of cotton at our disposal as fine a thread as possible. The experiment is deeply interesting and even exciting if there can be excitement about such a humdrum process as hand-spinning. For us it is a demand of Indian humanity.

With kindest regards from us all.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

THE REV. J. H. HOLMES

From a photo at: C. W. 10963. Courtesy: S. P. K. Gupta

18. LETTER TO MATHURI N. KHARE

September 10, 1932

CHI. MATHURI².

This time your handwriting was bad. There were quite a few mistakes in the language too. You should try and avoid such mistakes as far as you can. And one can always improve one’s handwriting if one takes sufficient care.

BAPU

From Gujarati: C.W. 268. Courtesy: Lakshmibehn N. Khare

¹ American Methodist, author of That Strange Little Brown Man – Gandhi
² Daughter of Narayan Moreshwar Khare.
19. LETTER TO BABALBHAI MEHTA

September 10, 1932

CHI. BABAL,

I got your letter. Once you have decided that it is good to do a certain thing, you should not wait for even one second. For death may come at any time, and therefore, delay in beginning a good thing may result in our inability to do it at all. For when the soul leaves the body, it takes with it its deeds. Its intentions which are not acted upon are merely credited to its account. Suppose I decide to take five rupees with me when going on a journey by train, but through carelessness, forget to take the money. In the train, I cannot cash my intention and the fact will make me uneasy and torment me. Any person who does not join in bhajans, etc., though attending the prayer, is guilty of untruth. We may or may not be at fault if somebody deceives us into giving him what he wants.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: S.N. 944850.

20. LETTER TO VASUMATI PANDIT

September 10, 1932

CHI. VASUMATI,

Indeed! You could barely find time to write to me! What indolence! And the letter also is as good as no letter. What about your experiences during all these months?

I hope you will go and see Qureshi. Did you see Pyare Ali’s Ashram?

Did you visit Amina’s children?

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 577. Courtesy: Vasumati Pandit
21. LETTER TO NARMADABEHN RANA

September 10, 1932

CHI. NARMADA,

You may go on hoping to receive a long letter from me even at the risk of being called greedy. One day I may think of writing such a letter to you.

Your Gujarati is not good. You should get your letters corrected by someone. But do not bother if that cannot be done. In any case, you should continue to write to me whatever you wish to.

I should like you to learn in time everything that is worth learning in the Ashram.

Who teaches you Gujarati? What other languages are you learning?

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 2763. Courtesy: Ramnarayan N. Pathak

22. LETTER TO RAIHANA TYABJI

September 10, 1932

BELOVED DAUGHTER RAIHANA,

I got your letter and bhajan. The bhajan is very good. I do not have time to write much today. I hope all of you approve of my decision to fast. Father, at any rate, should have no difficulty in understanding my step. I have taken it in God’s name and for His work and He will bring me to the goal. I seek blessings from both Father and Mother. What will you send? You should indeed dance with joy that God has given me an opportunity to offer such a holy sacrifice. When is Hamida1 arriving? Is Bhaiji still there? Convey my vandemataram to him. All of us are well here.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Urdu: S.N. 9670

1 Addressee’s sister.
23. LETTER TO ASHRAM BOYS AND GIRLS

September 11, 1932

DEAR BOYS AND GIRLS,

I have your letter. As you could easily save many hours in doing the work in the store-room and cleaning, so also, with some thought, you can save time in other work as well. For that, sincerity and co-operation on the part of everybody are required. If all of you work as a team, each doing his best, a lot more work can be done.

This holds true for all living creatures. If you watch the ants and other insects, you will learn the same lesson from their activities.

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./II

24. LETTER TO GULAB

September 11, 1932

CHI. GULAB,

With practice, you can increase your speed at spinning. What is it at present? The slivers must be good and the spindle straight.

There is much scope for improvement in your handwriting. If possible, you should practise writing with a reed-pen with model letters of the alphabet in front of you.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 1724

25. LETTER TO CHHAGANLAL JOSHI

September 11, 1932

CHI. CHHAGANLAL (JOSHI),

Though I am not sure you will get this letter, I am writing it. I would have been glad if you had written to me giving me your impressions about the Ashram. If you get this letter, you may write to me even now. I must know everything, though of course there is nothing I can do.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 5508
26. LETTER TO PREMABEHN KANTAK

September 11, 1932

CHI. PREMA.

If you have patience and faith, all the pages of the “book of nature” will be open to you. It is the promise of the God of Truth that “to those who worship Me (Truth) with love, I grant the yoga of understanding”.\(^1\) Meditation on this verse opens up to me all the pages of my nature. When the book is lying before you, whose fault is it if you cannot read it or do not take the trouble to read it? But I think I have said too much. In any case, I have explained to you the method of reading that book. You will say that you knew it. If you do, would it not prove me right in describing you as omniscient?

I can have no objection at all to your sending all my letter to . . . The last letter was about her and, therefore, I particularly wished that you should send it to her. You may now write and tell me how the matter stands. . . .\(^2\) says that I could not find the correct remedy for . . . and she is right, but only partly. I have discovered the remedy, but I am not in a position to apply it. How can I help that? The remedy which he needs is a woman—either a woman whom he could love and would marry, or one who would be more than a sister to him. I had my eyes on . . . ever since I saw her and . . . ’s affection for her and hers for him. I have always believed in the innocence of their love. But how could I burden . . . with a responsibility till an opportunity arose? Your letter gave me the required opportunity. I do not know whether my diagnosis is correct and whether . . . is the remedy for him. Perhaps . . . herself does not know it. We can discover the truth only if we try the remedy which I have suggested. All that I desire is . . . ’s peace of mind. In the absence of such peace, his abilities remain unused and his health is wasting away. He does not even know whether he feels interested in the work which he does.

You seem to have collected from somewhere a good many stories about my childhood.

Do you know that Ramabehn is ill? You should at least go and talk to her. In actual fact there is often no cause for the fear which we entertain in our imagination. The saying, “A ghost is the projection

---

\(^1\) Bhagavad Gita, x, 10.
\(^2\) The names have been omitted of our fancies and a witch of our fears” is literally true. It is a hundred per cent true.

I hope you are properly looking after the new arrivals among women. You may reduce your other work, but attend to this carefully.

I read about Kisan¹ in the paper. Dhurandhar has been doing fine work. But he should take care and make his body strong. What is his weight?

What did I write about you in my letter to Anandi²? What did I tell Lilavati³? I don’t remember. I have no doubt at all about your observing brahmacharya at present. I don’t know what may happen in the future. If you can tell, you know more than Narad and Rama did. However, I have always admired your resolution. I don’t believe that anyone can easily tempt you. But I have seen women as determined as you get married. How can anyone blame them for that? Hence, at present I can only wish that you will remain faithful to your resolution, and bless you that you may. I may help you as much as I can, and give you blows as often as necessary. The result lies in God’s hands.

I want your letters to be in no way different from what they are. If you cease to be natural, I will take no interest in you. You are full of complexes. I can try to remove them only as and when I observe them. However, who am I to remove them? It does not lie in man’s power to do so. I should like to be an instrument in removing them to the extent that He permits me to be so. It is in my interest to do this, since I hope to take much work from you. If I believed that what I was trying to inculcate in you would bear no fruit, do you think I would take the trouble to write these long letters?

I do not know any instance of the cause of an individual’s or society’s fall having been discovered. Many guesses, of course, have been made. The immediate cause is sometimes discovered, but in all cases there is not one such cause only. Generally speaking, however, it may be said that a fall can be traced to lack of dharma. Political subjection can never be the root cause, for it is itself the result of other causes, other weaknesses.

¹ Daughters of Lakshmidas P. Asar
² ibid
³ Addressee’s friend, Kisan Ghumatkar
One’s duty as a neighbour is always to help a neighbour in a manner consistent with dharma.

The seed of ego is destroyed only when one feels oneself to be a cipher. If anyone looks inward and ponders deeply over the matter, he cannot but realize his total insignificance. As we count an insect insignificant relatively to the earth, so is man insignificant in relation to this universe which is millions of times vaster than the earth. That he is endowed with reason makes no difference to this fact. His greatness lies in realizing his insignificance, for simultaneously with such realization, he realizes that, insignificant in himself, he is an insignificant aspect of God and that, when he merges in Him, he becomes God, that this microscopic atom which he is contains the infinite power of God.

I believe in the theory of maya in my own way. In the cycle of Time this universe is maya, but, during the moment of time it exists, it is real enough. I believe in the theory of the many-sidedness of truth.

If there is anything in this world which faces man as a certainty, it is death. And yet we fear that inescapable certainty; that is the greatest wonder of life, that is real attachment and that is atheism. It is possible only for man to rise above it.

One’s good and evil deeds do accompany the soul after the death of the body. The soul, as soul, suffers their consequences, whether in another physical body or in a subtle body.

Isn’t this enough?

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10302. Also C.W. 5753. Courtesy: Premabehn Kantak

27. LETTER TO MANGALA S. PATEL

September 11, 1932

CHI. MANGALA,

I forgive you for not writing to me. But do not repeat it. It is good that you went to Baroda. Does Baroda suit your health better? Where is Kanu staying and with whom? Did you see Moti’s1 house at Baroda?

1 Motibehn, wife of Najuklal Choksi
Consult Premabehn about the pain in your back.

BAPU

From the Gujarati original: G. W. 111022. Courte sy: Pushpa Naik

28. LETTER TO PUSHPA S. PATEL

YERAVDA MANDIR,
September 71, 1932

CHI: PUSHPA.

Should not people living together give presents to one another? What about the presents given by parents to their children on their birthdays or on festivals? Besides, in the Ashram all live together. But no one can take something belonging to another without his permission. I do not say that presents have to be given. But the argument you advance is not valid. Supposing you had simply plucked a flower and presented it to Mangala that morning, it would have been a token of love. But your argument is: if Mangala is given a present, why not the other girls? Real love is not in giving the present. Love expresses itself spontaneously when the moment comes.

BAPU

From the Gujarati original: C. W. 11084. Courte sy: Pushpa Naik

29. A LETTER

September 11, 1932

It is our actions which count. Thoughts, however good in themselves, are like false pearls unless they are translated into action.

We should always see our neighbour’s virtues and our own defects. A man like Tulsidas described himself as a crooked man despite all his goodness.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 15
30. A LETTER

September 11, 1932

You say that you are mentally disturbed and that, therefore, you will not write to me. This too is a sign of vikar. It is necessary to understand the exact meaning of this word. Even being angry is vikar. To feel all kinds of desires is also vikar. To think of wearing this or that, eating or not eating this or that is vikar. Similarly to wish to marry, or, even without wishing to marry, to feel pleasure in the company of boys of one’s own age, in talking with a boy in private and in touching him, or in unbecoming joking with him, that also is vikar. This last is looked upon as a very serious vikar. So long as a woman is subject to any of these vikars, she will be subject to menstruation. In the case of man it is not menstruation, but something else. In this sense even Mirabehn cannot be considered to be free from vikar. So she still has menstruation. She does not sin in this. She has indeed risen very high. She is continually striving to overcome all her vikars. The vikar of desire for man has completely disappeared from within her. But she still has anger and attachment, and desires. All these too she strives to control. If a woman attains a state free from vikars, such as I have described, she will not get monthly periods. I would be happy if all of you girls were to strive to attain such a state. Even if you do not succeed in your present life, what does it matter? The first lesson for you to learn is to keep nothing secret. You should have no secret relations with anyone. You should cling to the vow of truth.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, pp. 17-8

31. LETTER TO BRIJKRISHNA CHANDIWALA

September 11, 1932

CHI. BRIJKRISHNA,

I have your letter. Your letters from Banaras and Delhi have not reached me. You have not acknowledged the letters I addressed to Deolali. It is good that you have now given me detailed news.

First of all about your health. The benefit Mira has derived from salt is largely psychological. It cannot all be attributed to salt; salt does not possess all that virtue. No article of diet or medicine can affect brahmacharya to that extent because ultimately brahmacharya is a state of mind; a disturbed mind affects the body. As long as the mind is not firm and rid of passions how can diet alone help? Admittedly, improper or excessive food can be harmful. Salt, taken in small quantities can do no harm. In the same way, it does not appear that you have lost much by giving up salt. Salt does not have enough strength to affect one either way. I have written to you earlier regarding a suitable diet for you. Ultimately you must find out by experiment what food suits you. Go to Deolali if you have found the climate there agreeable. It may also be a good thing otherwise, for you will be of help to Radha and Damodardas. True, there are only a few days left if they are to leave Deolali at the end of the month. But however short the period it will benefit you to go there. And even if they have to vacate the sanatorium there is nothing wrong in your staying on at Deolali for your health’s sake. It ought to be easy to find another place. What happened to your plan of going to Kuvalayanand? What did Dr. Talwalkar say? You must build up your health.

Now for the Ashram. It is true that the Ashram inmates are not what they ought to be, they are full of short-comings. That is why the public have the right to criticize and condemn the Ashram inmates who must not only tolerate the criticism but take a lesson from it. I am not surprised to learn that you too have been similarly affected because that is the truth. But in spite of all that the total result is not bad; that is my belief. People residing in the Ashram have certainly changed for the better. The fact is that much remains to be done while little has been accomplished, but that was to be expected. And who can be defined as Ashram inmates? If you have not discussed this matter with Narandas, open your heart to him and listen to what he has to say. I have no hope of finding a more steadfast, wise, sensible and conscientious man than Narandas and I consider it God’s grace that it was granted me to have him. It is also true that Ashram people are not free from diseases but they do not really catch illness in the Ashram; the malady is already with them. In short we try to bring about fulfilment amid deficiency. God has ordained that we go on making efforts till we die but has reserved unto Himself the fruit. Thus I shall be content if it can be said that there is no tardiness of effort in our Ashram. I shall even admit that there is scope for improvement in the effort.
Is anybody doing something for Pandit Jagatram?

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 2394

32. WORKING AND THINKING

September 11, 1932

I wrote some time ago about fully using our power of thinking when doing any work.¹ I said something towards the end in that article, which it is necessary to explain further. I suggested there that our thinking may be either conducive to or destructive of the general good, that, in other words, it may be either divine or demoniac in nature. One person, as he spins daily, may think and try to invent improvements which would benefit the millions of spinners and make their work easier. Another person may think how fine it would be if he alone could spin on his wheel as much yarn as ten million persons and get rich. The thinking of the former is divine in nature, it is conducive to the good of society. The thinking of the second person is demoniac, it is opposed to the good of society. Thus, it is not enough that we should think when doing any work. Our thinking should aim at the good of all, and not at satisfying our own selfish desires. Indeed he who tries to serve only his selfish interests not only harms the good of others but in the end does not serve even his own good.

If everybody keeps this point of view before him and thinks about the work he is doing, and so works intelligently, he would get the best education, would find his work interesting, develop his intellect, enlarge and purify his heart, acquire efficiency in his work and make inventions and improvements which would benefit the world. As the work has become more interesting it gives him joy; he feels no fatigue in doing it and the work becomes artistic—whether it is cleaning lavatories or roads, shredding vegetables, anything connected with the dairy, writing accounts or something else. A person who

¹ A Political prisoner connected with terrorist activities incarcerated then in the Multan Jail.
² This was presumably sent along with “Letter to Narandas Gandhi”, [7]/11-9-1932; vide the following item.
³ Vide Action —Thoughtful and Thoughtless”, 28-8-1932. learns to look at everything from the point of view of public good finds no work low or uninteresting. He will see God in any work which comes to his share and feel that he was serving Him through it.
His interest in work does not depend on the nature or type of the work. It springs from within, from his sense of devotion to duty. Anybody who wants to understand and practice Anasaktiyoga should do all work in this spirit.

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U/II. also C.W. 8248 Courtesy:
Narandas Gandhi

33. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

September [7]/11, 1932

CHI. NARANDAS,

It is the morning of Wednesday, and the goats are being milked, singing to us the while. I duly got your mail last evening. I send you my plentiful blessings. Why should I not? You are fulfilling all my hopes and, by your incomparable and intelligent service, fill all three of us with wonder. God seems to have gifted you with the strength to face every kind of ordeal. May you live long and realize the God of Truth through the goddess of ahimsa and help others to do the same.

I got your two postcards about Baba, but each late by a day. The reason is that they did not reach the post-office in time. The words “detained-late fee not paid” are stamped on both. And so find out from the post-office the time of the clearance. Your bigger packet of mail posted on Monday and the postcard posted on Sunday reached me on the same day.

September 10, 1932

I have had no special letter from you till today from which I infer that Kanji Sheth is out of danger. Not only that, he must also have regained strength. I hope Dahibein2 is all right. I read in the newspapers that you had very good rains there. Mahadev has been able to go up to 105 counts with Keshu’s slivers. I see that if he gets a straight and thin spindle, he will reach 105 counts without difficulty.

1 Gandhiji began writing this letter on Wednesday, which fell on September 7.
2 Wife of Raojibhai N. patel.
Though I have asked you to send a thin spindle, we are trying to make one here. We must discover the reason why the cotton grown in the Ashram is not of good quality. The fact that it is attacked by insects shows that the manure is either too little or too much, or that it is not of the right kind. You should ask somebody who knows the secret, or read the descriptions of different types of manures and soils in a book on cotton cultivation available in the market, and experiment accordingly. Agricultural experts now believe that, within certain limits, any crop can be grown in any type of soil. With the help of the new methods they grow in France crops which were formerly thought impossible, and earn profits from them. If anybody there can spare the time, he should study this problem. I think that Maganlal had collected some books on agriculture. We have a copy of the report of the Cotton Committee. You may find some information even in that. If you write to Prof. Higginbottom at Allahabad, perhaps he may help you. He has inspected the soil in the Ashram fields.

If the Gandiva spinning-wheel is placed on one side at right angles to our body, instead of in front, one can stretch one’s legs if one wishes to do so. If one wishes to spin sitting on a stool, one can do that, too, with ease. The spinning-wheel can be placed on a box or board on a level with the stool.

I did not follow your explanation about the Anantpur Report. If it was sent by registered post, the post-office must have a copy of the acknowledgement. It will serve. You can inquire in the post-office and ascertain who has signed it. If you are required to pay any fee for inspecting the record, you may do so. If you have called for a fresh copy of the report, it means that this is the third copy he will be sending. How can we put him to such trouble?

What you say about Padma is correct. Read what I have written to Panditiji in regard to the temple. I understood that the image of Ganapati would not be kept in the gymnasium permanently. I have already written to you about Manjula and cod-liver oil. Pay attention to Indu’s condition. If there is a danger of his losing his reason, the condition is likely to become extreme. But before that happens you should take steps to avert the possibility.

3 The portion of the letter from here onwards is placed in Bapuna Patro—9: Shri Narandas Gandhine, Pt. I, under September 3. This evidently is an error; Vide 4th footnote “Letter to Narandas Gandhi”, 3/4-9-1932.
The number in the Ashram is quite good. It is very good indeed that Jamna\(^1\) has stayed on in Rajkot. I hope Devbhāhi\(^2\) has fully recovered now. Where is Virmani\(^3\) kept? Amtulbehn tells me in her letter that she liked my addressing her by her full name Amtussalaam in Urdu. I am writing\(^4\) to her to ask her why, but please know from her why she likes the full name and, if that is the right thing, all of you should address her by that name. It is possible that there is no such name as "Amtul", and that "Amtussalaam" is one single word—just as we cannot say "Ibra" instead of "Ibrahim" or "Brij" instead of "Brijkrishna".

September 11, 1932

Dr. Sharma seems to want to come to the Ashram for a temporary stay. Send him the list of the Ashram rules. If he can observe them while he stays there, I see no objection to informing him that he may come. However, do what you think best.

Read my letter\(^5\) to Brijkrishna. He is a man of pure heart. Discuss the matter with him. If it is possible to remove his suspicion, try to do so.

You must have got the postcard\(^6\) which I wrote on Saturday asking you to send me information about how bread is made there. I have started taking interest in the preparation of the bread here, and I, too, eat it. The bread is excellent. Perhaps ours is not better.

Read my letter to Sharda. We have to think over the problem of the girls. I think I can now guess the reason for their bad health. We wish to train all these women who have had very little education, and it is for you to think how that can be done.

There are 52 letters in all, 37 in a bundle and 15 loose.

[PS.]

You will find my Will lying in some place there. Send me a copy of it. If it is sealed in a cover, break open the seal. If you wish to make any suggestion about it, send it to me. I suppose it will be

---

\(^1\) Addressee's wife
\(^2\) Addressee's mother
\(^3\) Wife of Madhavlal Shah
\(^4\) Vide "Letter to Amtussalaam" 11-9-1932.
necessary now to revise the names of the trustees. Imam Saheb is no more. I do not remember all the names.

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./L. Also C.W. 8250 and 8248.

Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi

34. A LETTER

September 11, 1932

God and Nature are one. The various gods are the individual manifestations of God. One can reach God worshipping Him. In depicting the importance of action Tulsidasji has extolled Divine justice. God condones the sins of the devotee. In the language of the Shastra the devotee is purified when he becomes one with God. Purification means removal of sins, like alloys from gold.

A saint living in seclusion can perform service by thought alone; there is only one such man in a million.

The very existence of body stands in the way of total ahimsa. And without complete ahimsa one is unable to see Truth. But one who has rid himself of passions comes very near to Truth. We should be content with this.

Up to now by punishment I have understood corporal punishment. Abstaining from food has not been beyond my thought. I would not call that a punishment. No one in any institution has an absolute right to food; it is a question of arriving at an arrangement. There is on the one hand the condition that rules are to be observed and on the other hand that food is to be supplied. Money is no payment for the food we receive in an institution. Rules have to be observed in exchange.

Fear and truth are mutually contradictory terms. But to conceal something which does not contain any element of fear may be not only in conformity with truth but also necessary. A physician may certainly, in the interest of the patient’s health, conceal from him the gravity of his illness. It may even be his duty.

A perfect brahmachari is one who has all the senses under his control. This state is possible even in this body. Regulating diet is necessary but it does not play an important part in the observance of brahmacharya. Lack of self-control is certainly detrimental. I feel that milk and ghee taken by way of medicine are not harmful.

[From Hindi]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, pp. 15-6

35. LETTER TO AMTUSSALAAM

September 11, 1932

DEAR DAUGHTER AMTUSSALAAM,

Explain to me why I should not call you only ‘Amtul’\(^1\). It is well if you receive the money you are expecting but you should be content even if it is not forthcoming. Your letters are quite good, only you must write more legibly. Anyway, after I have read a few of your letters I shall be able to follow everything. It is astonishing to learn that there is no arrangement in Bombay for the education of girls; I had an idea that the Anjuman had pretty good provision. Consult Narandas about Dr. Sharma I think there is no harm in his coming to the Ashram if he conforms to its rules.

I understand about Kudsia\(^2\). How nice it would be if the girl gained her health in the Ashram! As for you rest is the most important consideration.

_Blessings from_

BAPU

From a photostat of the Urdu: G.N. 257

36. LETTER TO KRISHNADAS

[Before September 13, 1932]

I was waiting for your letter and it came today. I can understand the feelings of the survivors. But you should inculcate in them the fearlessness of death and its advent as that of a friend. We, who should be most indifferent about death, somehow or other fear it more than other religious bodies. Mussalmans appear to fear it the least.

\(^1\) In some previous letters, Gandhiji had addressed her as ‘Amtul’ to which she seems to have objected; _Vide “Letter to Narandas Gandhi”, 7-11-1932_ Her full name consisted of two words ‘Amtul’, meaning ‘servant’, and ‘salaam’ meaning ‘peace’.

\(^2\) Addressee’s niece.
Next come the Christians. I believe the Chinese too regard death as a most ordinary event in life which it really is. We, on the other hand, remain in a state of collapse for a long time after an important death and never wholly cease to mourn it.

My love to all of you. Vallabhbhai’s and Mahadev’s good wishes are with you.

Yours,

BAPU

Advance, 13-9-1932

37. CABLE TO C.F. ANDREWS

[September 13, 1932]

CHARLIE ANDREWS
112 GOWER STREET
LONDON

RECEIVED. REGARD FASTING GOD’S CALL, ONLY CERTAIN PROSPECT OF WITHDRAWAL SEPARATE ELECTORATE FOR DEPRESSED CAN WARRANT POSTPONEMENT.¹ IN MY OPINION YOUR PRESENCE MORE USEFUL THERE. VALLABHBHAI MAHADEV AGREE. LOVE.

GANDHI

Government of Bombay, Home Department, I.G.P. File No. 20-IX. Also Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 20

38. LETTER TO MOHANLAL M. BHATT

September 13, 1932

I believe that that is my supreme dharma. Hence, neither Ramdas nor any of you should feel unhappy. On the contrary, you should rejoice and thank God for His kindness that one of your co-workers has been inspired to take the ultimate step in dharma and has got an opportunity to do that. I hope all of you understand that nobody should imitate me. Everybody is not fit to undertake an indefinite fast. And the tapas performed by a person who is not fit for it is not in accord with the Shasta and is therefore demoniac. His only reward for such tapas is physical suffering. Your duty, therefore, is to do your work with greater devotion, to become purer and to remain

¹ From Mahadevbhaini Diary.
² C.F. Andrews had cabled: “Please postpone fasting till I come. Starting immediately.”
more vigilant, without thinking or worrying about my fast. . .1
Nobody should get excited there. Have no doubt that, for those who live in the Ashram, there is no other duty but what I have explained.2

Rebirth means transformation of the body—not of the atman which dwells in the body. Hence belief in rebirth differs from a scientific concept. The atman does not undergo transformation, it only changes its abode. One who does not regard himself as the doer will never kill anybody. This is not a matter of intellectual conviction, it concerns the heart. It is, therefore, incorrect to speak of “without thinking of oneself as the doer” or “dedicating a thing to the Lord”.
These phrases signify intellectual attitudes whereas the advice in the Gita and other scriptures to dedicate everything to the Lord has no reference to the intellect. Our activities are in perfect accord with Vedanta as I understand it.

[From Gujarati]
Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, pp. 21-2

39. LETTER TO DEVDAS GANDHI

September 13, 1932

The country now knows about my intention to go on an indefinite fast. I assume that the news has not upset you in the slightest degree. One does not get such a unique opportunity by seeking it. It comes rarely, and only to a fortunate man. I believe that such an opportunity has come to me, and anybody who believes that he has got a unique opportunity would welcome it heartily. Hence you need not feel agitated. If you meet Ghanshyamdas in Calcutta, explain this to him. It will not be necessary to explain to Malaviyaji. I believe that he must be shedding tears of joy at the news and that every moment his heart must be blessing me. Tell him this. If other friends feel sad or depressed, you should show courage and persuade them not to give way to such thoughts. It will be the duty of those who appreciate my step to address themselves more earnestly to the task, to awaken the people to the evil of untouchability and to organize public opinion. If a strong public opinion is organized and expressed peacefully, I may 1 Omission as in the source.

2 After this the source has introduced a letter to Devdas Gandhi (the following item) and it is not clear whether any portion between this and the following paragraph has been omitted.

VOL. 57 : 5 SEPTEMBER, 1932 - 15 NOVEMBER, 1932 29
not even have to carry the fast to its logical end. So far as I know myself at present, I would experience nothing but the profoundest peace if I do have to carry the fast to its logical end. If, on the contrary, that does not happen and I remain alive to serve the country still more, I will welcome that too. Either result will be good if my resolution endures till the end.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 22

40. LETTER TO KASTURBA GANDHI

September 13, 1932

I have your letter. You have probably heard about my fast. Do not get frightened in the slightest degree by the news and also do not let the other women get frightened. Indeed, you should rejoice that God has granted me an opportunity to go through such an ordeal for the sake of dharma. I also hope that you have understood the meaning of this fast. I shall not have to start the fast if my demands regarding the Antyajas are accepted, and even if I have started it I can end it. If, however, I have to carry it on till the end, you should indeed thank God. Only one in millions meets death for which he has prayed. What a good fortune it would be if I met such a death! And if I do not die, it is clear as daylight that it would then be my moral duty to purify myself still further and to devote myself more to service. I think that after having lived with me for fifty years you will be able clearly to understand this simple thing and willingly follow me.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, pp. 22-3

41. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

September 13, 1932

CHI. NARANDAS,

You must have read in the papers the news about my indefinite fast. I assume that it has not created a panic among the inmates of the Ashram. If they see the matter in the proper light, this should be for them an occasion for rejoicing. A total fast is the ultimate and the highest ideal of the Ashram, but very few persons ever become worthy of the privilege of undertaking it. Such a fast is not an everyday occurrence. Only a rare person on a rare occasion is entitled to undertake it; I believe that I am on this occasion. If I am wrong, people will judge my step as a sign of false pride and an instance of demoniac self-mortification. I claim nearly half a century of ceaseless effort to purify my mind completely so that I may be able to hear the voice within. I believe that as a result I can now hear it with some distinctness. I have taken the present step in obedience to that voice. The 20th is still a little way away. At present the decision to fast is only a resolve. I am writing this letter to explain that resolve, and to tell all of you that nobody there should get panicky, but that the news should make everybody more devoted to his or her work, purer and more awake. I am sure you yourself do realize that nobody should follow my example and undertake a similar fast. Explain that to others, too. I hope nobody there will wonder why I kept my intention to fast to myself and did not let it become known beyond our circle of three. It is a rule for prisoners that they must not make public the fact of such correspondence. If I even wish in my heart to make it public indirectly, I would disgrace my satyagraha and there would be a blot on the purity of my vow of truth. The value of that vow lies in the perfect purity in its observance. I got your weekly packet. I believe that this time at least I shall be able to send the replies. I am slightly doubtful because during the days which remain the work is likely to be heavier. If there is any development about which I can write to you, I will do so. You can show this letter to all persons who have connections with the Ashram.

Tell Anandi that I intend to write a long letter to her. I liked hers very much. She should have no fear. You should teach all girls to be fearless. If people there are in the habit of whispering among themselves about any girl, it is a bad habit. What is fated to happen to us and the girls will happen. We should not feel suspicious about them all the time and fill them with fear. When we see cause for cautioning any of them, we may do so and then should not think about the matter further. The girls should never feel that they are being suppressed in any way. Any restraints which are put on them should be explained to them and should be imposed in such a manner that they willingly accept them.

Personally, I think you have done the right thing in permitting Hariyomal to return. I hope Baba has completely recovered now.

_Blessings from_

_BAPU_

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./I. Also C.W. 8251. Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi
42. A LETTER

[After September 13, 1932]

DEAR SISTER,

You and the other sisters may come and meet me—not that it is necessary. To do work for which the penance is being done is better than seeing this dwindling mass of flesh.

BAPU

The Epic Fast, p. 128

43. LETTER TO K. NATARAJAN

September 14, 1932

DEAR KAMAKOTI,

I have your very touching and tender letter. There need be no grief over the ordeal that ‘I have set before me at conscience’ call. It is a privilege that rarely comes to one. Having identified myself with our suppressed brethren for fifty years, I saw no escape from it. If however God wants more service from me through this body, He will make the way clear for me.

And why no faith in prayer? Faith is either derived or revealed from within. You should derive it from the testimony without exception of all the teachers and seers of all climes, countries and times. A true prayer is not a mere lip expression. It need never be. Selfless service is prayer. You must not say, ‘I have no faith in prayer’.

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 24

44. TELEGRAM TO G.D. BIRLA

Express September [15] 1932
GHANSHYAMDAS BIRLA
BIRLA PARK
BALLYGUNI, CALCUTTA

RECEIVED. NO CAUSE BEING UPSET. EVERY CAUSE FOR REJOICING THAT GOD GIVEN OPPORTUNITY HAS COME TO ME FOR OFFERING FINAL

1 According to the source this was in answer to one of the many letters that Gandhiji received following the publication on September 13 of Gandhiji’s correspondence with the Government.

2 Vide “Telegram to G. D. Birla”, 18-9-1932; in the source, however, the date is September 16, 1932.
GANDHI

Government of Bombay, Home Department, I.G.P. File No. 20-IX. Also The Hindu, 17-9-1932

45. MESSAGE TO C. RAJAGOPALACHARI
[September 15, 1932]
No cause for distress. On the contrary, I expect you to rejoice that a comrade of yours has had this God-given opportunity for a final act of satyagraha in the cause of the downtrodden. The date of the fast is not open to reconsideration. Can see you if you get permission.
Amrita Bazaar Patrika, 18-9-1932

46. LETTER TO M.G. BHANDARI
[September 15, 1932]
DEAR MAJOR BHANDARI,
Thanks for promptly sending the two important telegrams. If you have authority to pass replies I would like you to send accompanying replies by express message. You will see in my reply to Rajagopalachari that I have said that he could come whenever he chooses. This I have done in the belief that the fact of your sending me a telegram asking for interview presupposes authority for you to grant it. In case you want to see the original telegrams I enclose them herewith and you will please return them to me tomorrow morning.
Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat: G.N. 5127

---

1 The source does not mention the date. It would appear, however, that this was one of the messages sent to M. G. Bhandari for transmission. Vide the following item.
3 The message as reported, vide the preceding item, says “if you get permission” instead of “whenever you choose”.

VOL. 57 : 5 SEPTEMBER, 1932 - 15 NOVEMBER, 1932 33
47. LETTER TO MIRABEHN

September 15, 1932

CHI. MIRA,

I had been waiting for your letter. It arrived today. I am glad you have understood the reason for the fast. There was no escape from it. It is both a privilege and a duty. It comes rarely to someone in a generation or generations. In non-violence it is the crowning act, if it is saturated with that spirit and the cause has no trace of self. I ask you, therefore, to rejoice with me that such an occasion seems to have come to me. I say ‘seems’ for my faith has yet to be tried. No one can dare talk of his own strength in a matter of life and death. The question, therefore, is whether I am found worthy of the needed strength and also whether the cause is of the required purity and thirdly, whether in truth I am free of every trace of violence in undertaking the vow. When I say that I feel like all that, I merely state my belief. Judgment can be pronounced only upon the completed act. I want you to watch the progress of the event without the slightest perturbation. Nor may you at any stage fast in sympathy. Yours is to be buried in your own task which is to go through your term in full resignation, making the best use possible of every moment at your disposal.

I do not mind the drop in your weight if you are otherwise well and fit. The weight will come gradually as you become acclimatized there and the weather improves, which it will not do for yet another month.

For me, I am as fit as a fiddle. Just now my food is brown bread, milk, a vegetable, local dates (not bad) and musambis. I am glad Kisen is with you. You must be a fair size family now. I know that you had naturally the art of looking upon trees and animals as friends. I wanted you to extend the idea so as not to feel the want of friends from outside. Hence my mention of strangers in the same category. That is to say, there should be a definite realization that personal friends and relations are no greater friends than strangers of the human family and bird, beast and plant. They are all one, and they are all an expression of God if we would but realize the fact. Such definite realization assuages all craving for seeing outside friends when we are inside prison walls.

The news you have from England about the family is cheering. Send my love to them all when you write.
Our cat family, or some of them, have a fancy for the mal of the wheel. One of them destroyed it the other day. They begin musical operations at meal times and stop only after Vallabhbhai has served them. The mother has a fancy for vegetarian dishes. She enjoys dal and rice and especially vegetables. We have an addition to the family, did I tell you? There was a human touch about the mother whilst she was in pain and two or three days after delivery. She would caress us and insist on being caressed. It was a pathetic sight. The care she bestows on the ‘baby’ is very wonderful.

Love from us all to you all.

BAPU

[PS.]

Ramayana is being read regularly just now by Parasram to all.

From the original: C.W. 6237. Courtesy: Mirabehn. Also G.N. 9703

48. LETTER TO FRANCISCA STANDENATH

September 15, 1932

I think Satyavan’s\(^1\) problem is simple. No person can go beyond his or her limits. You cannot force anyone to be chaste. He or she must have the inner conviction. You can give him the fullest freedom to separate himself from you and get a divorce decree if necessary. He must be at liberty to marry some other woman of his choice. It is most dangerous to have a carnal mind constantly brooding over satisfaction of animal passion. You must surround him with all the affection you can give him and not judge him harshly. It is to his credit that he has striven all these years to control himself. Of course if you have the slightest desire to satisfy his craving, you should regard yourself at liberty to do so. For you both came to a joint conclusion about self-control. If now one party wishes to revise the agreement, the other may also, if there is the desire. Whereas if you are satisfied that you have no craving at all, you must resist every entreaty from Satyavan as lovingly as possible, but with the utmost firmness. Let him read this letter. Let him think over it and pray to God for light. And if he finds that he cannot bring his passion under subjection, he must take another wife if you have no wish to surrender. You should part as friends. If you have to part, what happens to you is a matter of little concern. If you have the strength, as I know you have, you will earn your bread by your own labour.

\(^1\) Frederic Standenath, addressee’s husband.

May God help you and bless you both.
With deep love.

Yours,
BAPU

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 26

49. LETTER TO SARALADEVI SARABHAI

September 15, 1932

THROUGH THE SUPERINTENDENT
YERAVDA CENTRAL PRISON
POONA
DEAR SISTER,

I have received your extremely loving letter. The presence of all the children is like a gift. I took the step only when I saw it as a clear duty. I took it in God’s name and for His sake. I am sitting without any care in the firm faith that He will protect my honour. All of you should rejoice that one who is like one of your family has found such a wonderful opportunity. Mridula will have received my letter in which I had told her about having lost her letter. We are all doing well. You will probably have learnt of Vallabhbhai’s doings from the letters coming from the Ashram.

Blessings from
MOHANDAS

From the Gujara ti origin al: C. W. 11136. Courte sy: Sarabh ai Founda tion

1 Gandhiji had decided to undertake a fast in protest against Ramsay MacDonald’s Award providing for separate electorates for Harijans. For his statement on the contemplated fast, Vide “Statement to the Press”, 16-9-1932.

36 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
50. TELEGRAM TO SATIS CHANDRA DAS GUPTA

September 16, 1932

SATISBABU
KHADIPRATISHTHAN
SODEPUR

WIRE RECEIVED. YOU HAVE ACCURATELY READ MY HEART. WIRE YOUR HEALTH HEMPRABHA’S ARUN’S¹. RECEIVED NO LETTER FROM HER LONG TIME. WROTE SEVERAL MYSELF. LOVE.

BAPU

Government of Bombay, Home Department, I.G.P. File No. 20-IX

51. TELEGRAM TO JAMSHED MEHTA

September 16, 1932

JAMSHED MEHTA
KARACHI

PRAY DO NOT ASK ME ALTER DECISION TAKEN GOD’S NAME AND HIS CALL. IF HE WILLS IT HE WILL KEEP ME ALIVE NOT WITHSTANDING FAST TILL SETTLEMENT REACHED. HOW IS KIKIBEHN²? LOVE.

GANDHI

Government of Bombay, Home Department, I.G.P. File No. 20-IX. Also The Hindu, 17-9-1932

52. TELEGRAM TO TEJ BAHADUR SAPRU

September 16, 1932

SIR TEJBAHADUR SAPRU
ALLAHABAD

THANKS WIRE³. YOU WILL NOT ASK OR EXPECT ME TO ALTER DECISION TAKEN GOD’S NAME. IT WAS JUST MY HELPLESSNESS THAT PROMPTED

¹ Addressee’s youngest son.
² Kikibehn Lalwani, sister of J. B. Kripalani.
³ It read: “Earnestly appeal to you to refrain from fasting until you have once again tried to settle the ‘depressed’ classes question. If you fail, no one else can succeed in this matter. You must live to remove this blot from the Hindu society.”
DECISION. IF GOD WILLS IT BODY WILL HOLD OUT AGAINST FAST LONG ENOUGH FOR SETTLEMENT WHICH YOU AND OTHER FRIENDS OUTSIDE CAN ALONE NEGOTIATE.

GANDHI

Government of Bombay, Home Department, I.G.P. File No. 20-IX. Also Amrita Bazar Patrika, 18-9-1932

53. TELEGRAM TO PRIVATE SECRETARY

TO VICEROY

September 16, 1932

P.S.V.

SIMLA

HAVE JUST READ WITH CONSIDERABLE PAIN ANNOUNCEMENT GOVERNMENT DECISION REMOVE ME ON COMMENCEMENT CONTEMPLATED FAST TO UNKNOWN PRIVATE RESIDENCE UNDER CERTAIN RESTRICTIONS. TO AVOID UNNECESSARY TROUBLE AND UNNECESSARY PUBLIC EXPENSE ALSO UNNECESSARY WORRY TO MYSELF I WOULD ASK GOVERNMENT NOT TO DISTURB ME FOR I WILL BE UNABLE TO CONFORM TO ANY CONDITIONS AS TO MOVEMENT FROM PLACE TO PLACE OR OTHERWISE THAT MAY BE ATTACHED TO FORESHADOWED RELEASE.

GANDHI

From a photostat: G.N. 3859

54. LETTER TO M.G. BHANDARI

Urgent Please September 16, 1932

DEAR MAJOR BHANDARI,

The enclosed is a message¹ which I should like very much now to go if it is at all possible, and there might be no difficulty or delay seeing that it is addressed to the Government of India.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat: G.N. 3858

¹Vide the preceding item.
55. LETTER TO DR. M. A. ANSARI

September 16, 1932

You have been sending your lovely cards. This is just to send you and Shervani our love and prayer that both of you may soon be restored to perfect health and soon return home.

You have no doubt read all about the step I have taken. It was a peremptory call from God which I could not resist. I hope you had no difficulty in appreciating the step. The future is in His hands.

The situation is moving so fast that it is difficult to say what will have happened when this reaches you.

Supposing that this proves my last letter to you, let me tell you that my faith in Hindu-Muslim unity is as green as ever and that I feel the richer for having many Muslim friends who are as blood-brothers to me.

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, pp. 28-9

56. STATEMENT TO THE PRESS

September 16, 1932

The fast which I am approaching was resolved upon in the name of God for His work and, as I believed in all humility, at His call. Friends have urged me to postpone the date for the sake of giving the public a chance to organize itself. I am sorry it is not open to me to change even the hour, except for the reason stated in my letter to the Prime Minister.¹

The impending fast is against those who have faith in me, whether Indians or foreigners, and for those who have it not. Therefore it is not against the English official world, but it is against those Englishmen and women who in spite of the contrary teaching of ¹ According to a report in The Bombay Chronicle, 22-9-1932, and The Epic Fast, the statement was sent to the Government of Bombay on September 15 for being released to the Press. However, the statement signed by Gandhiji bears the date “16-9-32” in his own handwriting. Vide also the following item.

² The reason stated was: “The fast will cease if during its progress, the British Government of its own motion or under pressure of public opinion revise their decision and withdraw their scheme of communal electorates for the ‘depressed’ classes, whose representatives should be elected by the general electorate under the common franchise no matter how wide it is.” Vide “Letter to Ramsay Macdonald”, 18-8-1932. For Gandhiji’s further views on the Communal Award and Untouchability, Vide Appendix “Discussion with Vallabhbhai Patel”, 6-9-1932.
the official world, believe in me and the justice of the cause I represent. Nor is it against those of my countrymen who have no faith in me, whether they be Hindus or others; but it is against those countless Indians (no matter to what persuasion they belong) who believe that I represent a just cause. Above all, it is intended to sting the Hindu conscience into right religious action.

The contemplated fast is no appeal to mere emotion. By the fast I want to throw the whole of my weight (such as it is) in the scales of justice pure and simple. Therefore, there need be no undue haste or feverish anxiety to save my life. I implicitly believe in the truth of the saying that not a blade of grass moves but by His will. He will save it if He needs it for further service in this body. None can save it against His will. Humanly speaking, I believe it will stand the strain for some time.

The separate electorate is merely the last straw. No patched-up agreement between caste Hindu leaders and rival “depressed” class leaders will answer the purpose. The agreement to be valid has got to be real. If the Hindu mass mind is not yet prepared to banish untouchability root and branch, it must sacrifice me without the slightest hesitation.

There should be no coercion of those who are opposed to joint electorates. I have no difficulty in understanding their bitter opposition. They have every right to distrust me. Do I not belong to that Hindu section miscalled a superior class, or caste Hindus, who have ground down to powder the so-called untouchables? The marvel is that the latter have remained nevertheless in the Hindu fold.

But whilst I can justify this opposition, I believe that they are in error. They will, if they can, separate the “depressed” class entirely from the Hindu society and form them into a separate class—a standing and living reproach to Hinduism. I should not mind if thereby their interests could be really served.

But my intimate acquaintance with every shade of untouchability convinces me that their lives, such as they are, are so intimately mixed with those of the caste Hindus in whose midst and for whom they live, that it is impossible to separate them. They are part of an indivisible family.

Their revolt against the Hindus with whom they live and their apostasy from Hinduism I should understand. But this so far as I can see they will not do. There is a subtle something—quite indefinable—in Hinduism which keeps them in it even in spite of themselves.
And this fact makes it imperative for a man like me, with a living experience of it, to resist the contemplated separation even though the effort should cost life itself.

The implications of this resistance are tremendous. No compromise which does not ensure the full freedom for the “depressed classes” inside the Hindu fold can be an adequate substitute for the contemplated separation. Any betrayal of the trust can merely postpone the day of immolation for me and henceforth for those who think with me. The problem before responsible Hindus is to consider whether in the event of social, civic or political persecution of the “depressed” classes they are prepared to face satyagraha in the shape of perpetual fast, not of one reformer like me, but an increasing army of reformers whom I believe to exist today in India and who will count their lives of no cost to achieve the liberation of these classes and therethrough Hinduism of an age-long superstition.

Let fellow-reformers who have worked with me also appreciate the implications of the fast.

It is either a hallucination of mine or an illumination. If it is the former, I must be allowed to do my penance in peace. It will be the lifting of a dead weight on Hinduism. If it is an illumination, may my agony purify Hinduism and even melt the hearts of those who are at present disposed to distrust me.

Since there appears to be a misunderstanding as to the application of my fast, I may repeat that it is aimed at a statutory separate electorate, in any shape or form, for the “depressed” classes. Immediately that threat is removed once for all, my fast will end. I hold strong views about reservation of seats, as also about the most proper method of dealing with the whole question. But I consider myself unfit as a prisoner to set forth my proposals. I should however abide by an agreement on the basis of joint electorate that may be arrived at between the responsible leaders of caste Hindus and the “depressed” classes and which has been accepted by mass meetings of all Hindus.

One thing I must make clear. The satisfactory ending to the “depressed” classes question, if it is to come, should in no way mean that I would be committed to the acceptance of His Majesty’s Government’s decision on the other parts of the communal question. I am personally opposed to many other parts of it, which to my mind make the working of any free and democratic constitution well-nigh impossible, nor would a satisfactory solution of this question in any way bind me to accept the constitution that may be framed. These are political questions for the National Congress to consider and determine. They are utterly outside my province in my individual capacity. Nor may I as a prisoner air my individual views on these questions. My fast has a narrow application. The “depressed” classes question being predominantly a religious matter, I regard it as specially my own by reason of my lifelong concentration on it. It is a sacred personal trust which I may not shirk.

The fasting for light and penance is a hoary institution. I have observed it in Christianity and Islam. Hinduism is replete with instances of fasting for purification and penance. But it is a privilege, if it is also a duty. Moreover, to the best of my light, I have reduced it to a science. As an expert, therefore, I would warn friends and sympathizers against copying me blindly or out of false or hysterical sympathy. Let all such qualify themselves by hard work and selfless service of the “untouchables” and they would have independent light if their time for fasting has come.

Lastly, in so far as I know myself this fast is being undertaken with the purest of motives and without malice or anger to any single soul. For me it is an expression of, and the last seal on, non-violence. Those, therefore, who would use violence in this controversy against those whom they may consider to be inimical to me or the cause I represent will simply hasten my end. Perfect courtesy and consideration towards opponents is an absolute essential of success in this case; at least if not in all cases.

M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat: G.N. 3857

57. LETTER TO M. G. BHANDARI

September 16, 1932

DEAR MAJOR BHANDARI,

I would like the enclosed statement* [to be sent] to the Associated Press for publication forthwith, if the Government approve of the course.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat: G.N. 3857

1 Up to this the statement is in Mahadev Desai’s handwriting. What follows is in Gandhiji’s hand.

*Vide the preceding item.
58. LETTER TO NARGIS CAPTAIN

September 16, 1932

No cause for sorrow; every cause for rejoicing that a member of the family has been given by God the opportunity of offering the supreme sacrifice for the purest cause that could be thought of. There should be no imitation of the fast even partially. For you all it is a time for greater devotion to work and self-purification. You are going to brace up everyone who is at all disposed to give way to grief.

Love to you all including the caged birds.

59. LETTER TO VERRIER ELWIN

[September 16, 1932]

MY DEAR VERRIER,

You had, I hope, no difficulty in understanding the step I am about to take. This is therefore just to tell you that all my English friends were before my mind’s eye when I penned my letters\(^1\) to the Prime Minister. May God bring good out of this.

My love to you all in which Sardar and Mahadev join.

We sing the hymn this evening (Friday).

BAPU

The Tribal World of Verrier Elwin, p. 83

60. LETTER TO AGATHA HARRISON

September 16, 1932

MY DEAR AGATHA,

I had your letter. Well, you know all about the step I am about to take. This is therefore just to send you my love.

Yours,

BAPU

From a photostat: G.N. 1455

---

\(^1\) The letter was written on a Friday. The Friday before September 20, when the fast was to begin, fell on this date.

61. LETTER TO EDMOND AND YVONNE PRIVAT

September 16, 1932

MY DEAR ANAND AND BHAKTI,

I had your letter. On the eve of the step I am about to take this is just to send you both my love.

Yours,

BAPU

From a photostat: G.N. 8793

62. LETTER TO ROMAIN ROLLAND

September 16, 1932

DEAR FRIEND AND BROTHER,

On the eve of taking the momentous step in my life I would like to tell you how I prize those days I had with you and your great, good and devoted sister. Mahadev Desai is with me. We often think of you.

I wonder how you have felt over the contemplated step. I can only say that it was decided upon in obedience to the imperative voice of conscience.

With love to you both.

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 29

63. LETTER TO H. S. L. AND MILLIE POLAK

September 16, 1932

DEAR HENRY AND MILLIE,

Well, I expect you to fully understand and appreciate the step I am about to take. It was an irresistible call from within. Pray tell Charlie. I am not writing to him as I am not sure of his movements.

With love to you all,

BHAi

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 193

1 Fast against separate electorates for Harijans; Vide “Statement to the Press”
64. LETTER TO MURIEL LESTER

September 16, 1932

On the eve of the (to me) sacred step I am about to take I want to tell you I have been thinking constantly of the whole of the Kingsley Hall family among whom I passed so many happy months.¹

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 30

65. LETTER TO SARALA DEVI CHOWDHARANI

September 16, 1932

I have your letter overflowing with love. That the children also have joined you in expressing their love made the letter as dear to me as a sacred gift. I took this step only when I was convinced that it was my duty to do so. I have taken it in God’s name and for His work. I have faith in Him that He will protect my honour and, therefore, do not worry. All of you should rejoice that one of your own family has got such a holy opportunity.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 28

66. LETTER TO ANASUYABEHN SARABHAI

September 16, 1932

I can see from here the misery on your faces—Shankerlal’s and yours—and hear it in your voices. But please regard it as the result of ignorant human attachment. You ought to feel unmixed joy. It is a holy opportunity which God has sent me unasked. The duty of you all is to cultivate greater devotion to your work and become purer.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 28

¹ During Gandhiji’s visit to England in 1931.
67. LETTER TO M.G. BHANDARI

September 17, 1932

DEAR MAJOR BHANDARI,

My wire¹ to Sjt. Ghanshyamdas Birla which appears in the Bombay papers of today omits two key-words, viz., “from here” after the words “helpful instructions”. I see also that the omission has given rise to a misinterpretation of my meaning. Could you therefore please send a message to the Associated Press asking them to circulate the necessary correction²?

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

Government of Bombay, Home Department, I.G.P. File No. 20-IX

68. LETTER TO BHIMARAO³

September 17, 1932

I have your touching wire. The fast is to be undertaken in God’s name, at His will. It would be wrong and cowardly now to desist. Let us hope that He will give me strength to go through it. After all no life can live without His permitting. If He has any further use for it He knows best how to keep it.

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 34

69. LETTER TO GOSIBEHN CAPTAIN

September 17, 1932

Do you know that the thought that many sisters are with me in this travail sustains me? I have no time to write separately to Kamala. Let her write. My love to you all. Let God’s will be done, not ours.

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 32

² Vide also “Telegram to G.D. Birla”, 18-9-1932.
³ Secretary, Bangalore Cantonment Congress Committee.
70. LETTER TO KRISHNADAS

September 17, 1932

Continue to write as if nothing is to happen. But it may be that this will be my last letter to you. In that case bear in mind that I expect you some day to gravitate to the Ashram and realize all my hopes of you. As for the coming fast, I hope you have understood that it is a rare privilege God has provided for me. It is therefore a matter for rejoicing rather than sorrow. At the same time it is not meant to be copied by anyone else. It can be taken up when there is the clearest possible call from within.

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, pp. 34-5

71. LETTER TO S. M. MATE

September 17, 1932

DEAR FRIEND,

I thank you for your wire and letter both received at the same time. I may not as a prisoner answer individual questions. But I have sent to the authorities a general statement for publication. If they allow its publication, you will see your point covered by it.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

SJT. S. M. MATE, M.A.
TILAK ROAD
POONA 2

Bombay Secret Abstracts, Home Department, Special Branch, File No. 800(40)(3), Pt. III, p. 181

72. LETTER TO SAROJINI NAIDU

September 17, 1932

DEAR MOTHER, SINGER AND GUARDIAN OF MY SOUL,

Your lovely letter was preceded by one lovelier—if possible—from Padmaja. The decision was taken after much prayer, in the name of God and at His call. I have no power therefore to postpone the hour of execution.

You have every right to call upon me to revise my decisions and actions and it is my duty to respond, if I discover the error. And I claim unquestioned ‘obedience’ if I cannot with all the prayerful effort discover any error. You have ‘manfully’ asserted the right and woman-like offered obedience.

The motherly affection has blinded the poetic vision and prompted you to appeal to my pride to retrace my steps so as to make me cling to life.

But I know you have not missed the woman in me. I have therefore chosen the way of life through suffering unto death. I must therefore find my courage in my weakness.

This is how your vision has failed you. The communal decision was the last straw. The conception of giving my life for the untouchables is not of yesterday. It is very old. There was no call from within for years. But the Cabinet’s decision came like a violent alarm waking me from my slumber and telling me this is the time. It therefore provided the psychological moment and I instinctively seized it. The necessarily restricted wording of my official letter covers in their implications the very things you would have me to die for and to live for—one and the same thing in essence. She who sees life in death and death in life is the real Poetess and Seeress. But the proof of the pudding is in the eating. You will soon test it and prove it for yourself. Meanwhile pray that God may give me strength enough to walk steadily through the vale. If Hinduism is to live, untouchability must die.

It may be that this is my last letter to you. I have always known and treasured your love. I think that I understood you when I first saw you and heard you at the Criterion in 1914. If I die I shall die in the faith that comrades like you, with whom God has blessed me, will continue the work of the country which is also fully the work of humanity in the same spirit in which it was begun. If the interests of the country are to be one with those of humanity, if the good of one faith is to be the good of all faiths, it will come only by the strictest adherence to truth and non-violence in thought, word and deed.

And now for a little lesson in recognizing one’s limitations. You may be a good confectioner, but you need not therefore presume to be a good baker or a judge of good bread. Well, my brown bread is really superior to your ‘good white bread’. And there is an interesting, instructive history behind it, which you should get Major Bhandari to relate to you, if he will. Anyway there was to be a choice between my delicious and digestible brown bread and leathery chapati. Those who were doomed to these chapatis have chosen the brown loaf. I accept your apology in anticipation.

73. LETTER TO NARAYANRAO DESAI

September 17, 1932

DEAR FRIEND,

I thank you for your wire. It is not open to me to postpone the fast without a settlement. As for your question, I have sent to the Government a statement for publication. If it is allowed, you will see your point covered in it.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

SJT. NARAYAN RAO DESAI TOPIWALA
PRESIDENT
DECCAN MERCHANTS’ ASSOCIATION
BOMBAY

Bombay Secret Abstracts, Home Department, Special Branch, File No. 800(40)(3), Pt, III, p. 181

74. LETTER TO BARJORJI F. BHARUCHA

September 17, 1932

BHAI BARJORJI,

I was not surprised to get your wire. But the truth is that no person can resolve on an indefinite fast relying on his own strength, and that if he does so he must be an ignorant man. For myself at any rate I can say that I did not take the vow, but that God inspired me to take it. The date too was fixed by Him, and so also the conditions under which the date could be changed. Your appeal is not covered by those conditions. What can I do now?

Another simple thing is this: a prisoner cannot himself communicate anything to the world outside. Hence, it would have been a sin for me, a satyagrahi, to convey indirectly to the nation even the slightest hint of what I had in my mind. A satyagrahi prisoner voluntarily obeys prison rules and, if it becomes necessary for him to disobey any of them, he can only do so openly. Thus, the notice given by me as a prisoner to the Government should be regarded as a notice given to the people also. That is, it was for the Government to decide whether it would inform the public about my intention. If the people did not know of it earlier, we should interpret the fact only to mean that God did not intend the people to know it earlier. How can I postpone the date of the fast in order to give time to the people? Why should not those who have faith in God rather think that if it is His will that I should serve more yet, He would in spite of the fast spare my life for as long as may be necessary? And you certainly have faith in God. You should, therefore, try to understand what I have said in this letter and explain it to the men and women who get agitated over my decision and give them courage. My co-workers’ duty at present is to go on vigorously with the work that now faces us. The result is in God’s hands.

\[1\] Vide “Statement to the Press”, 16-9-1932.

Remember this, that my fast cannot be, and certainly is not, intended for putting pressure on any party. Its purpose is only to see that what is in the best interests of the Antyajas themselves is done. If what seems proper to me does not appear so to others, they should indeed continue their opposition. Such pure fast for a public cause should aim at bringing about an awakening in the nation and should not, at any rate, be used ignorantly to lead the people on a wrong path. If, in my ignorance, I try through a fast to make the nation agree to an improper demand, I am sure that the nation ought not to yield to such a demand merely for sparing my life, no matter how much it is convinced of my services to it in the past. Not only the good of the nation, but my own good too, lies in its not yielding to an improper demand by me.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, pp. 33-4

75. LETTER TO BEHRAMJI KHAMBHATTA

September 17, 1932

BHAJ KHAMBHATTA,

I hope you two are not upset. There is no reason to be. On the contrary, you should be happy that God has given a golden opportunity to a co-worker to take the ultimate step in non-violence.
Everybody should pray to God only that He may give me strength to carry the step, which has been taken in His name and at His call, to its logical end. Read the enclosed letter¹ and send it to Bhai Barjorji Bharucha. I am not very sure about his address.

I apply your ointment daily to the arm. The pain in the elbow has not increased; but it has not decreased either. However, I am not at all worried on that account.

Blessings to you both from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 7552. Also C.W. 5027. Courtesy: Tehmina Kambhatta

76. LETTER TO DARBARI SADHU

September 17, 1932

I am afraid we shall not be able to meet now. Still, do write to me and ask me if you can come. I will see if I can let you. If, however, that is not possible, then think that nothing is gained by meeting an image of clay. It is the minds and the hearts that meet and they have the power to meet in a second even when the bodies dwell farthest away from each other. Even if the bodies are very close to each other, they are as distant from each other as the North Pole is from the South if the minds and the hearts do not meet. Therefore the nearness of the bodies has little meaning. It is only because there is a soul living in the body that we wish to meet each other. This, indeed, is the strongest infatuation and till we are free from it we are held in chains even stronger than steel. But it is not enough to understand this with our intellect. The knowledge should sink into the heart. If that happens, one has attained everything worth attaining. But one has to struggle during many lives to acquire this knowledge, and even then only a few succeed in acquiring it. Hence the Gita teaches, by implication, that one should wear away one’s body doing one’s duty. It is only in this way that one can learn non-attachment or become free from infatuation.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhai Diary, Vol. II, p.35

¹Vide the preceding item.
77. LETTER TO GULAM RASUL QURESHI

September 17, 1932

CHI. QURESHI,

I was kept waiting for your letter. You should write every day. The bleeding will have stopped now. Do not worry about my fast. You should be glad that God has sent me such a great opportunity without my seeking. Amina should not get upset. Tell Noorbanubehn and Bhai Pyare Ali that they should not feel unhappy in the least,

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photo that of the Gujarati: C. W. 10810. Courtesy: Gulam Rasul Qureshi

78. A LETTER

September 17, 1932

CHI.,

Your letter is absurd. On the one hand, you talk about undertaking a fast and, on the other, about marrying. You are too young, and not yet fit, to undertake a fast.

So long as you are not married you may certainly write innocent letters to the young man to whom you are betrothed, after obtaining your parents’ consent. I have deliberately used the word ‘innocent’. It is a sin to nurse a desire which is not going to be fulfilled in the present. One’s mental strength is unnecessarily wasted by doing that. It is not at all wise to waste it in such a manner. I do not know your age. If you have really come of age, and if you are a prey to passion, I would prefer that you should get married immediately. If you are not yet of marriageable age, then you should control your passion and should not be eager to write letters to your future husband. I think this will solve all your problems.

Blessings from
BAPU

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, pp. 32-3
79. LETTER TO F. MARY BARR

[On or before September 18, 1932]¹

MY DEAR MARY,

I am working against time. Hence this card only. The story in the Mysore magazine seems to me to be unbelievable. If I survive the or deal, you must remind me and I shall inquire. My introduction² to the Gita appears in an issue of Young India. I hope you are able to understand the ordeal. For me it is a matter of pure joy. You shall read Ch. IX and XII of the Gita. But the Guide to Health³ you must ask again.

Love.

BAPU

MISS F. MARY BARR

KARIMNAGAR

H.E.H. NIZAM’S DOMINIONS

From a photostat: G.N. 5983. Also C.W. 3311. Courtesy: F. Mary Barr

¹ From the postmark.
³ An English version, published in India, of Gandhiji’s Gujarati articles on general knowledge about health which appeared in Indian Opinion.
80. TELEGRAM TO G. D. BIRLA

September 18, 1932

GHANSHYAMDAS BIRLA
BIRLA HOUSE
MALABAR HILL
BOMBAY

FROM MY WIRE\(^1\) TO YOU OF FIFTEENTH REPRODUCED
BOMBAY PRESS TWO IMPORTANT WORDS “FROM HERE” WERE OMITTED AFTER “HELPFUL INSTRUCTIONS”.
PLEASE RECTIFY MISTAKE.

GANDHI

Government of Bombay, Home Department, I.G.P. File No. 20-IX

81. TELEGRAM TO CHHAGANLAL P. MEHTA

[September 18, 1932]\(^2\)

CHHAGANLAL
CARE ARYA
RANGOON

DO COME IF YOU FIND NECESSARY. HOPE MOTHER PEACEFUL.

BAPU

Government of Bombay, Home Department, I.G.P. File No. 20-IX

\(^1\) Vide “Telegram to G. D. Birla”, 15-9-1932.
\(^2\) From the placing of the item in the source.
82. LETTER TO PADMAJA NAIDU

September 18, 1932

MY DEAR PADMAJA,

I shall treasure your very beautiful letter. It has been followed by loving sermon from Mother. You must not consider me so proud as not to need the prayers of ‘friends, comrades and playmates’. Indeed God is nearer to me than the air which surrounds me and which I breathe. But I sense His invisible presence in the prayers of the innocent. They sustain me. Do therefore pray that He may give me the strength to pass through the fiery ordeal that awaits me.

Be well and serve well.

Love from your intimate friend, comrade and playmate.

THE SLAVE-DRIVER

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 42

83. LETTER TO H. KALLENBACH

September 18, 1932

MY DEAR ‘LOWER HOUSE’

If I go I shall go in the hope that you will one day fulfil the hope you and I have long cherished of you.

If God has more work to take from this body, it will survive the fiery ordeal. Then you must try some early day to come and meet. Otherwise goodbye and much love from,

UPPER HOUSE

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 43

84. LETTER TO M.G. BHANDARI

September 18, 1932

DEAR MAJOR BHANDARI,

I am sorry. I took silence at 1 p.m. so as to be free earlier tomorrow. Now the only thing possible is to see those who are coming and listen to what they say. I can reply by writing my answers.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat : G. N. 5126
85. LETTER TO DR. MUTHU

September 18, 1932

I was much touched by your and your wife’s very kind and loving letter. If the people need me in the present body and God wills it, I shall live till the people secure an honourable settlement. That will mean real freedom for our suppressed brethren. I need your and Mrs. Muthu’s prayers to sustain me through the ordeal in front of me.

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 45

86. LETTER TO C. RAJAGOPALACHARI

September 18, 1932

MY DEAR C. R.,

My heart goes out to you in your distress. I have no doubt about the truth of the Inner Voice. Nor have I any doubt that you will soon see the light out of the darkness.

Love and yet more love.

BAPU

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 44

87. LETTER TO KUSUMBEHN DESAI

September 18, 1932

CHI. KUSUM (SENIOR),

I have had no letter at all from you for some time. I hope you have not become panicky because of my indefinite fast. If I pass away, fulfil my hopes. If you can give an emphatic reply to this soon, do so.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 1847
88. LETTER TO CHHAGANLAL AND KASHI GANDHI

September 18, 1932

CHI. CHHAGANLAL AND KASHI,

It is night and the time is much too short for all the letters which I wish to write. What shall I write to you? Please look upon the days of my fast as a time of rejoicing. Prabhudas¹, I forbid you to get agitated. Use all your wisdom to cultivate the utmost devotion to service. God will surely help you.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 47

89. LETTER TO MANILAL AND SUSHILA GANDHI

September 18, 1932

CHI. MANILAL AND SUSHILA,

I have been constantly thinking about both of you. But I believe you have patience and courage and I take heart from that thought. I am sure you wish to run up here. But please control your desire. Fulfil all my hopes about you. You know what they are. Augment the legacy which I may leave you. God will surely prosper you.

I do not have time to write a separate letter and give my blessings to Pragji² and Parvati. Today is Sunday. I have commenced the silence. I wish to write yet many more letters.

As you already know, I had a cable from Kallenbach.

Blessing from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 4795

¹ Addressees’ son.

² Pragji Khandubhai Desai, Gandhiji’s co-worker in South Africa. He contributed regularly in the Gujarati Section of Indian Opinion.
90. LETTER TO CHHAGANLAL JOSHI

September 18, 1932

CHI. CHHAGANLAL (JOSHI),

I am certain that some of your letters have been held back. I hope you have fully grasped the significance of my fast unto death. Be brave and do not lose heart. You must not slacken in your labour. What do we gain by clinging to the body? We daily recite in the Ashram verses which tell us to give up attachment to the body. We have got this opportunity to demonstrate that we have assimilated the lesson of the verses which we daily recite. All of you should pray that I may have the strength to go through the test. It is easy (relatively) to jump into the water, but who can be sure that one will be able to reach the other shore? Hence, people need not get elated till the test has ended. But I have embarked on it with God’s name on my lips and I am confident, therefore, that He will help me to go through it.

Face the situation in a manner worthy of yourself and of the cause.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 5509

91. LETTER TO MADHAVDAS AND KRISHNABEHN KAPADIA

September 18, 1932

CHI. MADHAVDAS AND KRISHNA,

I got the letters from you both. Do not be perturbed in the slightest degree by my decision to fast. It is really a matter for rejoicing. Such an opportunity comes rarely to anyone. I hope that the effect of the fast on you both will be to increase your self-control and your devotion to service. Do not let yourself be made unhappy by your financial difficulties. Resign yourself to the misfortune. God will protect my body if He wants to take more work from it, otherwise He will let it perish. Either way it will be good. Fix the thought in your mind that not a blade of grass moves without God’s will.

I have written this letter after commencing the silence.

Blessings from

BAPU
92. LETTER TO NANABHAI I. MASHRUWALA

September 18, 1932

BHAI NANABHAI,

I got your letter. I have undertaken the fast as sacrifice to the Lord and, therefore, He will protect the body if He wants it to be an instrument of further service; otherwise He will let it perish. Either result will be the same to me. Please do not be unhappy but be glad that a co-worker has got such a great opportunity unsought.

Blessings to all of you from

BAPU

SHRI NANABHAI MASHRUWALA
AKOLA (C.P.)

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 6686. Also C.W. 4331. Courtesy: Kanubhai Mashruwala

93. LETTER TO TARAMATI M. TRIKUMJI

September 18, 1932

I have your letter. Do not feel unhappy because of my fast. Instead, rejoice that God has inspired me to offer such a sacrifice. Sooner or later, one has got to give up the body. But what could be more blessed than that it should be given up for the sake of the oppressed? Man, however well-fed, must die. If God desires to take more work from me, then He will create favourable circumstances and I shall be saved. If, however, my time is up, nothing can save me.

Quote the foregoing paragraph in your letter when you write to Mathuradas. Whatever happens to me, I am confident that Mahuradas will carry on my work worthily. You should help him in that.

I am not writing a separate letter to Dilip, as I have to write many other letters.

[From Gujarati]

Bapuni Prasadi, p. 116

1 Wife of Mathuradas Trikumji.
94. LETTER TO HANSA MEHTA

September 18, 1932

You or the Doctor need not be agitated by my decision to fast. On the contrary, you should rejoice that God has granted to a co-worker a holy opportunity like this. Such an opportunity comes rarely to anybody. Moreover, God will keep me alive if He wants this body to do more service still. If, on the contrary, my time is up, I shall not live even though I may be eating as usual.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, pp. 47-8

95. LETTER TO VASUMATI PANDIT

September 18, 1932

CHI. VASUMATI,

So at last I got a long letter from you. But I am sure you do not expect from me a long reply now. Look, do not let my fast make you unhappy. Cultivate great devotion to service. I have always known that you have the strength to sacrifice your life. God will grant you all strength.

Never lose heart.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: S.N. 9333. Also C.W. 579. Courtesy: Vasumati Pandit

96. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

September 18/19, 1932

CHI. NARANDAS,

It is two o’clock now. I am observing silence. I got your letter about bread. I also got your weekly mail. As you say, God’s ways are indeed inscrutable. I believe that I am dancing as a puppet in His hands. Hence I feel no burden on my mind. If only I could pass the final test in this same manner! I will live as He wills. I wish everybody there to remain cheerful to the very end, to do his daily work with greater devotion and not be agitated. None should feel anxious what news he may hear the following day. Everybody should be ready for anything that may happen. The best way of maintaining such a state of mind is to be completely absorbed in the work which one may be doing at any moment. I do not know what will happen on Tuesday.

1 Wife of Dr. Jivraj Mehta and a former Vice-Chancellor of M. S. University, Baroda.

Nirmala¹ has written to me from Rajkot. She says in her letter that, when Aunt² had got herself operated upon for cataract of the eye, the expenses were paid by you. I suppose you did that from the Ashram funds. She has again to get herself operated upon. Look into this matter and do what is necessary.

I have been looking after many things regarding Champa and Ratilal. If, however, the whole burden falls on you, I know that God has given you the strength to shoulder it. I suppose you know that a sum of Rs. 25,000 is deposited in Champa’s name with Revashankerbhai³. Most probably the receipt for that sum is with Champa. The Doctor’s last draft of his Will is unsigned. I will see that you get it. If I forget, please get it. According to it, they two should get Rs. 50,000 each, and the red bungalow is for them both. The Doctor has left a list of the names of trustees, but Chhaganlal has suggested other names and I approve of them. But no matter who are appointed, this burden will fall on the Ashram.

A gift of Rs. 6,500 has been made to the Ashram in memory of the Doctor. Chhaganlal wrote some time ago requesting that the sum be paid, but had added that it might be done only after the arrangements about the property left by the Doctor had been completed. Besides Chhaganlal, Nanalal knows all this. You may consult him whenever you cannot understand something.

8.30 p.m.

I had a letter from Kasumba⁴ in which she has poured out her grief. She wants the girls to be sent back to her. The girls, too, have written to me. They say that they do not feel happy in the Ashram. Have a frank talk with them and, if you find that they really wish to go to their mother, I think they should be permitted to go. Discuss the

¹ Daughter-in-law of Raliatbehn, Gandhiji’s sister.
² Raliatbehn.
³ Dr. Pranjivan Mehta’s brother.
⁴ Jaisukhlal Gandhi’s wife. matter with Jaisukhlal and do what you think proper. Go through my letters to him.

4.15 a.m., Silence Day [September 19, 1932]

After doing the morning prayer and walking for some time, I am now writing letters to the Ashram. The more letters I write, the more I discover those that remain to be written. I will write as many as I can. Nobody should feel disappointed if he or she does not get a letter. A person with a large family is happy beyond measure but he also becomes miserable. Anybody who does not get a letter should not envy somebody who gets one; a letter received by one has been received by all of them. Only those who see no difference between themselves and others even in such small matters will succeed ultimately in forgetting it completely. Anybody who cannot count one, cannot do sums involving millions. I am trying to write as many letters as I can and thereby feel one in my heart with the inmates of the Ashram. I am drawing the soul of the Ashram into myself and pouring my soul into the people there. I will send with this almost all the letters which I shall write this time. Read all the letters. Do not let the routine of the Ashram work be broken even for a minute. Nobody should get confused in mind or feel unhappy. Everybody should strive ceaselessly to make himself worthy of complete fulfilment of the aim of the fast. My own worthiness in that regard still remains to be proved. Solon spoke the perfect truth when he said: “Call no man happy or good till he be dead.” Who can say that my self-suffering is not a demoniac mortification of the self? It must be counted so if deep in my heart I harbour ill will or anger against anybody or there is an element of selfishness in my motive. If so, my self-suffering will be a curse on the world. I am sure all of you will be ready to testify for me and say that, if my vow was prompted by ill will or any such unworthy motive, I was altogether unconscious of the fact and that I had taken the vow knowing it to be perfectly pure. All this that I am writing may even prove to be unnecessary. It is possible that the efforts of the nation may bear fruit and that my fast may not have to be continued to the logical end. If these efforts succeed, we should welcome the result. But I cannot assume while writing this letter that that will be so. I must write it assuming that this body will perish.
I got a very forceful letter from Rambhau. Read my reply\(^1\) to him. I see from his letter that, if we can remove the layers of dirt which cover his heart, he is likely to reveal himself a real jewel. It is a difficult task. But since you have taken him in hand, he may be able to reveal the worth which lies hidden in him at present.

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati M.M.U./I. Also C.W. 8252. Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi

97. TELEGRAM TO RAJA MAHENDRARANJAN

[September 19, 1932]\(^2\)

THANKS LONG WIRE. VOW TAKEN IN OBEDIENCE TO PEREMP-TORY CALL FROM WITHIN. CANNOT BE RETRACTED WITHOUT ANOTHER CALL TO CONTRARY. GOD’S WILL BE DONE.

The Hindu, 21-9-1932

98. LETTER TO RAMACHANDRA N. KHARE

Silence Day Morning, September 19, 1932

CHI. RAMBHAI,

I liked your letter very much. You have used all your ability in writing it. The handwriting is beautiful, and the language also is equally good. You seem to have an excellent gift for writing. There is plenty of humour in what you write and you can make it very biting.

I can see even from here the faults you have pointed out in Premabehn. But you cannot see your own faults or maybe you are hiding them from me. A virtuous and non-violent brahmachari who appreciates virtue instead of seeing the faults of others, admires their goodness while magnifying his own smallest short-comings. Tulsidas, Surdas, Tukaram saw their own faults and described them. Besides, whatever Premabehn is, she is your teacher. How strange it is that you could not see any virtue in her! I observe many good qualities in her. I have not told you that in one of her letters to me Premabehn had actually praised you. Look, many people know about your idle nature and your habit of telling lies. You yourself are aware of them. But you have not so much as mentioned that bad habit. I insist that you make good of your great ability and bring credit to your parents, the Ashram and me. May God protect you.

\(^1\) Vide “Telegram to Raja Mahendraranjan”, 19-9-1932.

\(^2\) This was published under the date-line “September 20”; Vide, however, “Diary, 1932”, entry under September 19.

Blessing from

BAPU

From Gujarati : C.W. 298. Courtesy : Lakshmibehn N. Khare

99. LETTER TO MEMBERS OF CHRIST SEVA SANGH

September 19, 1932

DEAR BROTHERS AND SISTERS OF CHRIST SEVA SANGH,

Without your gift of flowers I knew that I had your hearts and prayers with me. All the same I treasure this physical token.

My love.

BAPU

Mahadevdbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 52

100. LETTER TO VELANBEHN L. ASAR

September 19, 1932

You have shown admirable patience. Do not have the slightest worry about Anandi, nor about me. If this earthly frame is to perish, let it perish. If it perishes in a holy cause, what can be better? I am always there with you. For whom, then, should you weep? Be worthy of the Ashram. Take care of your health and use it for the service of others.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevdbhaini Diary, Vol. II, pp. 49-50

Wife of Lakshmidas P. Asar.
101. LETTER TO ASHRAM BOYS AND GIRLS

September 19, 1932

DEAR BOYS AND GIRLS,

What is that freedom which you got before and which you do not get now? If what you say is true, you should take a deputation to Narandas. You may take three minutes of his time in telling him what you wish and leave him two minutes to reply to you. After that you may write to me if I am alive then, lying enfeebled in bed. And if I pass away into the final sleep, dance with joy and take a pledge that you will complete my work. What great fun and joy that work will be! All of you should acquire the strength for that ordeal.

102. LETTER TO JANAKIDEVI BAJAJ

September 19, 1932

CHI. JANAKIMAIYA,

It is because women like you fear that they would starve to death if they had to live on the diet of ‘C’ class prisoners, that I have decided to embrace the way of living without eating. You will see from tomorrow how I do that. Everybody in the world eats and still dies. Let us see how long you live eating the food of ‘A’ class prisoners. Is it not a great art to survive an indefinite fast? There is one condition, of course, for this to be made possible. All women will have to come out of their homes as dedicated workers and eradicate the practice of untouchability, and so prove their claim to be incarnations of God’s powers. Do that, and go on eating the food of ‘A’ class prisoners all your life. If, however, you do not get ‘A’ class food on some occasion, you should be satisfied with ‘C’ class food.

Suppose, however, that the efforts of the women workers bear no fruit. In that case, let this earthly frame perish right now. Even then, I shall live for ever. As long as even one woman carries on my mission, can anybody say that I am dead? We may leave aside the Gita’s

1 From Mahadevbhaini Diary
2 The remaining portion of the microfilm is indecipherable. Hence what follows is from Mahadevbhaini Diary.
philosophy about the immortality of the \textit{atman}. But the immortality which I have explained can be witnessed with our ordinary eyes. You must not, therefore, fall into panic. Act in a manner which will do honour to yourself and to the cause. Surrender yourself and all that you possess to God, and be happy and ever remain so. I have no time today to write to the mischievous Om and the wise Madalasa.

Treat this letter as meant for all of you.

May you enjoy the blessed state of wifehood to the end of your life.

\textit{Blessings from BAPU}

From a photostat of the Gujarati : G.N. 2901

\textbf{103. LETTER TO VINOBA BHAVE}

\textit{September 19, 1932}

\textbf{KRITAYUGI}\textsuperscript{1} \textbf{VINOBA.}

We need not envy you for living in the \textit{Kritayuga}, for we, too, have with us the \textit{Kritayugi} Sardar and, therefore, rise at least a few inches higher than you. Do you know that the Sardar keeps walking for most of the time? He would, if he could, even eat walking and spin walking. Even though an old man, he tries to learn the \textit{Gita} by heart while walking. For improving his pronunciation he should be sent to you, and you given a cane to correct him. But you are not likely to have that good fortune in the immediate future.

You seem to have mastered the art of holding out false assurances to the poor! When a poor man like me had been pining for a letter from you, you did not write at all; and now when I am getting ready to lie down on my death-bed, you write to say, “Now that I have started writing I will write regularly.” But maybe I am destined to survive this ordeal, since the vows of \textit{Kritayugis} are not known to remain unfulfilled. If I do leave this bed I will expect to hear regularly from you.

Through this bit of jesting, I have diverted my mind for a while from the letters I have been writing on serious matters and also suggested that your activities call for no criticism. Keep me informed about them.

\textsuperscript{1} Vinoba Bhave in his letter had quoted the text saying that while \textit{Kaliyuga} slept, \textit{Kritayuga} walked, and suggested that one should be a \textit{Kritayugi}.

If I come out unscathed in body and soul through this ordeal and if there is something to write about, I will write to you. I will preserve your letter.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, pp. 51-2

104. LETTER TO NARAYAN M. DESAI

September 19, 1932

There was only one Arjuna to put questions to Krishna. No wonder, then, that he could reply to all sorts of questions. Moreover, Krishna had spiritual knowledge. My knowledge is limited; and what a great number of Arjunas who ask me questions! Try and count them. If I give a little of my knowledge to every one of them, how long would that Gita be? Arjuna put questions to Krishna on only one occasion, whereas so many Arjunas ask me questions every week.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 54

105. LETTER TO NIRMALA H. DESAI

September 19, 1932

CHI. NIRMALA\(^2\) (AUNT),

Yes, worship of a photograph also is image-worship. However, there is certainly a difference between meditating on a photograph on special days and building a temple and installing an image in it. We should not introduce image-worship in the Ashram. The Ashram should have place equally for all religions.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati : S.N. 9465

---

1 Son of Mahadev Desai
2 Stepsister of Mahadev Desai
106. LETTER TO VALJI AND DUDHIBEHN DESAI

September 19, 1932

CHI. VALJI AND DUDHIBEHN,

You know my boundless faith in you. May God grant you the strength to justify it in full. Take as much care as you can of your health so that you may be able to join in the great yajna.

Blessing from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 7437. Courtesy: Valji G. Desai

107. LETTER TO JAMNABEHN GANDHI

September 19, 1932

CHI. JAMNA,

It is indeed good that you are required to stay in Rajkot to look after the elders. Improve your health. Do not feel unhappy because of my yajna, but rejoice at it.

Blessings from

BAPU

From Gujarati: C.W. 850. Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi

108. LETTER TO KESHAV GANDHI

September 19, 1932

CHI. KESHU,

Ink blots cannot be erased. You should let them remain or should take another sheet.

We should act with humility even towards a person who is rude to us, but should not submit to him.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G. N. 3281

1 The proposed fast against separate electorate for the depressed classes
109. LETTER TO KHUSHALCHAND GANDHI

September 19, 1932

I am sure you will welcome the yajna which begins tomorrow. If you approve of it as holy, I request you both to send me your sincere blessings. If I leave this world before you, please do not grieve, but rejoice that you had a younger brother whom God had granted the strength to complete such a yajna. You have ever been more than a brother to me. I hope my sister-in-law\(^2\) is all right now.

At this hour of dawn, your younger brother bows in pranam to you both.

MOHANDAS

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, pp. 48-9

110. LETTER TO NIRMALABEHN GANDHI

September 19, 1932

Please do not get agitated in the slightest degree. I have entrusted a brave and good man like Ramdas to your charge. Why, then, should you be agitated? How long would you keep me? And if you would I am always with you all. The body is but inert matter. What will you do with it? I spent two hours with Ramdas on Friday. He did not show the slightest agitation. I felt proud of him as both his father and teacher. You also should be like him. Look after the children properly. Keep up ghee and milk in your diet.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 51

\(^1\) Gandhiji’s cousin and father of Narandas Gandhi

\(^2\) Devkunvar, addressee’s wife
111. LETTER TO GAJANAN V. KHARE

September 19, 1932

CHI. GAJANAN,

I do hear about you from time to time. It does not matter if none else turns up to receive lessons. It is all right if Dhiru prepares himself.

BAPU

From Gujarati: C.W. 308. Courtesy: Lakshmibehn N. Khare

112. LETTER TO NARAYAN M. KHARE

September 19, 1932

CHI. PANDITJI,

Rambhau’s letter was both very good and very disappointing. I have replied to him. But I will not give up hope for such an intelligent boy.

Kaka had told me Sundarbehn’s story when I left for England. From that I had concluded that Sundarbehn had never had marital relations. Her husband despised her from the beginning as he did not consider her beautiful, that is, fair-skinned. Now there is no moral reason to look upon a woman, whom her husband never accepted as wife, as a married woman. In such cases, when the legal position has no moral basis, we should ignore law and uphold morality. It would have been excellent if Sundarbehn could have remained unmarried; but when she was unable to do that, the only moral course open to her was to find a suitable husband. In doing this she ran the risk of being convicted but she accepted it. I see no religious objection against such a marriage. All laws regarding marriage have their origin in custom. They should be weighed in the scales of self-control for examining their validity. A course which on the whole promotes self-control should be preferred even if it is opposed to custom.

As regards the Ashram women, if you ask me specific questions I will explain my views further.

1 Nephew of Narayan M. Khare.
3 That is, after separation from her first husband. She married P. G. Deshpande.
Lakshmibehn’s aching tooth will certainly continue to ache if it has not been properly filled. If necessary, take her to Dhargalkar in Bombay. If you mention my name, he will give proper attention to her and will not charge any fee. His fee otherwise is exorbitant.

I am not writing anything about the fast in this letter.

BAPU

From Gujarati: C.W. 234. Courtesy: Lakshmibehn N. Khare

113. LETTER TO KUSUM

September 19, 1932

You should not be upset by my decision to fast. Your duty is to take sufficient rest and build up a strong body. I need not say anything more about this. Those who advised that girls, when they are ill, should immediately be married off are ignorant men. The number of married women who remain ill is far greater in proportion to that of sickly maidens everywhere. You are also right in contrasting people’s attitude towards girls with their attitude towards boys who fall ill. However, you should take the implied charge against girls in the right sense and take care never to fall ill. Some general knowledge about health, such as I have tried to give in my booklet, is necessary for preventing illness. The bodies of unmarried girls should be as strong as steel, and so should be the bodies of unmarried boys. But we find both sickly, and they are generally more so after marriage. Look at Umiya, Rukhi, and Hari-ichchha. It did seem for a while that marriage had done Rukhi good but before long she was ill again. From this, however, the girls should not rush to the conclusion that all who marry lose their health after marriage. It is true, however, that unmarried girls who burn with passion and desire will find their deliverance only in marriage, since their passion is secretly eating them. But this also means that such a girl feels before marriage as a married woman does and that she is, therefore, immoral. Any person, whether a woman or a man, who yields to passion even though only inwardly, is immoral.

Blessing from

BAPU

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, pp. 52-3

VOL. 57 :  5 SEPTEMBER, 1932 -  15 NOVEMBER, 1932
114. LETTER TO LAKSHMIDAS P. ASAR
September 19, 1932

You may be too old to be my son, but I have always regarded you as a wise son ever since you first met me in Amritsar. I, therefore, assume that you have fully understood the meaning of my fast, and also that, if I pass away, you will prove yourself a worthy heir. It is because I have this faith in you that I do not write to you except when necessary.

[From Gujarati]
Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 49

115. LETTER TO MOHAN N. PARIKH
September 19, 1932

CHI. MOHAN,

Why do you say that you cannot think of something to write to me every week? You should give me a report of the new things which you have learnt and the pranks you played in the course of the week.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: S.N. 9184

116. LETTER TO NARMADABEHN RANA
September 19, 1932

CHI. NARMADA,

I got your letter. If you have patience, your defects will disappear. You should not worry. Go on doing what Narandas advises you to do.

BAPU

From Gujarati: C.W. 2764. Courtesy: Ramnarayan N. Pathak
117. LETTER TO SHARDA C. SHAH

September 19, 1932

CHI. BABUDI (SHARDA),

What fine questions you have asked! One who is determined to die can always end her life by biting off her tongue, by pressing the hands tightly against her throat and, if she has been bound, by breaking her bones trying to loosen herself. And a very holy woman can end her life even by a sheer act of will. This will, no doubt, be suicide but in certain circumstances suicide becomes one’s dharma.
When a wicked man tries to rape a woman, suicide becomes necessary if there is no other way of saving her honour.¹

I expect that you will stick to the post of Secretary, for you are truthful and steadfast.

The students will cease quarrelling among themselves not out of false shame in my presence, but because they will realize their error and feel ashamed of it. Nobody should feel false shame before me.

You must make your body as strong as steel.

From the Gujarati original: C.W. 9956. Courtesy: Sharadabehn G.
Chokhawala

118. LETTER TO SULOCHANA

September 19, 1932

CHI. SULOCHNA,

Why does Gulab harass you? Tell Premabehn about it.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 1739

¹ Vide “What Women Should Do in a Difficult Situation”, 4-9-1932.
119. LETTER TO NANIBEHN JHAVERI

September 19, 1932

CHI. NANIBEHN JHAVERI,

I ought not to forgive you for keeping me without a letter for such a long time. But a yajna bears fruit only if one forgives one’s bitterest enemy before commencing it. If, therefore, I did not forgive my daughters like you, would I not perish utterly?

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 51

120. LETTER TO GANGABEHN VAIDYA

[September 19, 1932]

CHI. GANGABEHN,

Nowadays you have been writing fairly regularly. Do not at all be alarmed or upset by the yajna I have in mind. I am going to have you all undertake similar sacrifices. I will leave this body—if I have to—with the faith that you will be able to do it. This is the only way to atone for the sins accumulated through generations.

Such a vow is not to be imitated. It can be fulfilled only if there is a spontaneous urge. If the urge is felt while the mind is not yet pure, the fast is likely to be demoniacal. Hence such a yajna should be undertaken only if there has been a prior cleansing of the heart. The Ashram has come into existence to help people attain such purity.

But you say that one hears much criticism of the Ashram. You should bear with criticism. The cause for it, if found to be just, should be examined and corrected. We should be indifferent to what is not true. People have a right to say what they feel. And some may find fault simply out of spite. Is not such criticism beneath consideration?

There is some truth in what we have been hearing about . . . ². And whatever little there is deserves to be overlooked. My little experience of . . . ³ is very good. He is a simple man. . . . ⁴ has not been

---

¹ From Mahadevbhaini Diary
² The names are omitted in the source.
³ ibid
⁴ ibid
enjoying herself there. . . . needed a change of climate. Since it could be easily had she availed herself of it. . . . s relations [with her] are absolutely pure. . . . has not been living there in an unbecoming way. Her letter has given me the impression that she has continued to make such efforts as she can to purify her atman. But now . . . has fallen. I have therefore suggested to him to lead Ashram life.

Now about your loss of peace. There are two reasons for it. First, you are not satisfied with your own performance. You aspire to do much more than you can. Your desire would be commendable if it were within limits. When it crosses the limits the result is grief. A greater reason for the loss of your peace is your intolerance. You are irked when others fail to work as much as you can or do not agree with you. The remedy for it is simple. You should rest content with whatever work you can do after applying your body and mind to it and continue to make such progress as you can. You should realize that one who does scavenging has as much right to go to heaven as one who learns the Vedas. But if a scholar of the Vedas is a mere reciter of the text or a hypocrite he will go to hell however learned he may be and a scavenger who daily cleans latrines in a spirit of service and dedicating his services unto God would certainly rise high although he may not know the word Brahman. This contentment is one remedy. The other is a liberal attitude. We should not take it amiss if others do not work as much as we ourselves do or want them to do. Only in this way can we maintain peace in the community in spite of living close to one another. Read this letter over and over again and think over it with the help of Nath. Please accommodate . . . behn. What more can I wish than that you will shine out if it is God’s will?

Blessings from
BAPU

[From Gujarati]

Bapuna Patro—6 : G.S. Gangabehnne, pp. 73-5. Also Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, pp. 50-1

1 The names are omitted in the source.
2 ibid
3 ibid
4 ibid
5 ibid
121. LETTER TO PUSHPA S. PATEL

September 19, 1932

CHI. PUSHPA,

Is it because Mangala has been advised rest that she has not written me a letter?

Your handwriting is improving.

BAPU

From the Gujarati original: C. W. 11085. Courtesy: Pushpa Naik

122. A LETTER

September 19, 1932

All of us were delighted to read your extremely beautiful letter. You have attained a lofty height. Rise higher still. God will certainly give you the strength to do so. I know I should write a long reply to your letter, but cannot spare so much time just now. I will preserve your letter, however, and will write to you again if I have sufficient strength and get time to do so. But please do not mind if I cannot write. I hope none of you has got perturbed by this yajna of my fast. God has inspired me to undertake it and may He carry it successfully to its end. None knows how many such yajnas we shall have to perform in order to eradicate this evil of untouchability. Get ready to perform such a yajna yourself. Readiness means self-purification. Self-purification necessarily includes efficiency in work.

It is true that fine yarn would be costly. But we should have the ability to revive the manufacture of Dacca muslin. While trying to do so, we shall incidentally make many small inventions. In the past, the kings forced workers to spin such yarn and weave it. Now, let us spin and weave it by way of yajna. Then the question of its being costly will not arise at all and, moreover, the prestige of hand-spinning also will increase. God willing, I will explain this further in another letter.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 49
123. A LETTER

September 19, 1932

Do your work well. Sita was not Rama’s property. She was the apple of his eye. By banishing her to a forest, he banished himself, for his heart followed Sita. But an ordinary man cannot act towards his wife in this manner, for we do not see in any man such divine love that he regards himself and his wife as one.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 55

124. LETTER TO KANHAIYALAL

September 19, 1932

A poor man is one who has not a drop of true love. And a rich man is one who has enough love to encompass an insect as well as a mad elephant. The atheist does not recognize the all-pervasive spirit present beyond his own physical self. The believer sees everywhere nothing but the spirit.

[From Hindi]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 54

125. LETTER TO RAMESHWARDA S PODDAR

September 19, 1932

CHI. RAMESHWARDA S.

You must not torment Gangadevi\(^1\). She does not pester you or view all your actions with a hypercritical eye; so you must reciprocate her conduct.

Rama is happy with Vinoba. Let him remain there.

You ought to dance on hearing about my \textit{yajna} and have more faith in Ramanama. Let us see what He does. The fast is not mine but that of Rama; the responsibility is His, not mine. If it is unfruitful He will be blamed, not I, and if fruitful He not being concerned with praises, I, a beggar at his door, will accept it.

\textit{Blessings from}

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 176

\(^1\) Addressee’s wife
126. LETTER TO LAKSHMI

September 19, 1932

Who knows what God has willed. You should not be worried on account of the yajna. See what a beautiful letter Devdas has published in the newspaper. He has not given way to panic; he is full of joy and that is how it should be. It is rarely that one gets an opportunity to sacrifice one’s life for the sake of duty.

God will prosper you all and if He wills I shall rise from the death-bed.

[From Hindi]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 51

127. LETTER TO PREMABEHN KANTAK

September 19, 1932

CHI. PREMA,

I am tired out today writing letters. Moreover, it is time for the post. I can, therefore, write only a short letter. More in the next. We have got a new cat, which is a ‘smart little lady’. In memory of your college days, we have named it Prema. It will now be tested how ‘smart’ you are.

Do you think you will pass the test?

More in the next letter if I get time.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10303. Also C.W. 6742. Courtesy: Premabehn Kantak

1 Daughter of C. Rajagopalachari
128. LETTER TO VIDYA HINGORANI

YERAVDA MANDIR,
September 19, 1932

CHI. VIDYA,

Do not expect a long letter from me. Do not be distressed by my illness; instead rejoice. God will grant you happiness.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Hindi. Courtesy: National Archives of India and Anand T. Hingorani

129. LETTER TO RABINDRANATH TAGORE

September 20, 1932

DEAR GURUDEV,

This is early morning 3 o’clock of Tuesday. I enter the fiery gate at noon. If you can bless the effort, I want it. You have been to me a true friend because you have been a candid friend often speaking your thoughts aloud. I had looked forward to a firm opinion from you one way or the other. But you have refused to criticize. Though it can now only be during my fast I will yet prize your criticism, if your heart condemns my action. I am not too proud to make an open confession of my blunder, whatever the cost of the confession, if I find myself in error. If your heart approves of the action I want your blessing. It will sustain me. I hope I have made myself clear.

My love.

M. K. GANDHI

[PS.]

10.30 a.m.

Just as I was handing this to the Superintendent, I got your loving and magnificent wire. It will sustain me in the midst of the storm I am about to enter. I am sending you a wire.¹

Thank you.

M.K.G.

From a photostat: G.N. 4634

130. LETTER TO V. S. SRINIVASA SASTRI

September 20, 1932

MY DEAREST FRIEND AND BROTHER,

This is early morning of Tuesday just a little after 3 o’clock. I have just finished a brief letter to Gurudev.

You have been ever present before me during these days of anguish. I have perhaps read your thoughts. You know my regard for you. Though we are as poles asunder, or seem to be, in mental outlook at so many points, our hearts are one. Wherever therefore I have been able to agree with you, it has been a matter of pure joy. Perhaps this step of mine has been for you the last straw. Even so I want to have your laceration. For I do not want you to cease to strive with me—\footnote{Vide the preceding item.} I remained in banishment from my eldest brother for, I think, fourteen years. Year after year he sent me curses by registered post. I rejoiced in his curses. His curses were so many sparks of love—\footnote{Vide “An Autobiography—Part IV, Chapter V”} I won him. Six months before his death he saw that I was in the right.\footnote{Vide the preceding item.} One of the reasons for his wrath was this very question of untouchability. In our case, I do not know who is in error. But I do know that you are as blood-brother to me. At this (may be) last crisis, you must not cease to strive with me. Send me your curses or your blessings. You may open my eyes, where others have failed, if you think I am in error. You know me too well not to know that I have the God-given capacity of owning mistakes, if the conviction comes to me. Do write or wire to me.

I wrote to you a month ago inquiring about your health. I never got a reply. I wonder if you ever got my postcard.

Deep love.

M. K. GANDHI

\textit{Letters of Srinivasa Sastri}, p. 234
131. LETTER TO MIRABEHN

September 20, 1932

CHI. MIRA,

I got up at 2.30 today to write to Gurudev, then to Sastri and then to you. I have your tearing letter. At first I thought I would send it to the Governor. But I rejected the thought as soon as it came. You have chosen to enter the furnace. You must remain in it. My society is no easy job as you have seen all these years. Drink then the poison to the last dregs.

As I wrote that first letter conveying my vow, I thought of you and of Ba. And for a time I became giddy. How would you two bear the thing? But the voice within said, ‘If you will enter in, you must give up thought of all attachment.’ And the letter went. No anguish will be too terrible to wash out the sin of untouchability. You must therefore rejoice in this suffering and bear it bravely. I know how difficult all this is to do. Yet that is exactly what you have to try to do. Just think and realize that there is no meaning in having the last look. The spirit which you love is always with you. The body through which you learnt to love the spirit is no longer necessary for sustaining that love. It is well that it lasts whilst there is use for it. It is equally well that it perishes when there is no use for it. And since we don’t know when it will outlast its use, we conclude that death through whatever cause means that there was no longer any use for it. If it is any comfort, know that Vallabhbhai, Mahadev, Ramdas, Surendra, Devdas, whom I have met are all bearing the thing wonderfully well. Love to your companions. I am glad Kisen is with you. She is a good and brave girl. May God sustain you.

Love.

BAPU

SHRI MIRABAI (SLADE)
ARTHUR ROAD PRISON
BOMBAY

From a photostat: C.W. 9509. Courtesy: Mirabehn
132. CABLE TO HORACE G. ALEXANDER

[September 20, 1932]\(^1\)

HORACE ALEXANDER

FRIENDS’ HOUSE

EUSTON, LONDON

HOW SHALL I DISOBEY WHAT IS TO ME GOD’S COMMAND. LET HIM PREVAIL. LOVE.

BAPU

Government of Bombay, Home Department, I.G.P. File No. 20-IX

133. CABLE TO AGATHA HARRISON

[September 20, 1932]\(^2\)

AGATHA HARRISON

DARLE KALOPH LONDON

UNDERSTAND YOUR STRUGGLE. GOD WILL GUIDE YOUR STEP.

BAPU

From a photostat: G.N. 1457

134. TELEGRAM TO MEHMUDJI ALLIJI

[September 20, 1932]\(^3\)

MEHMUDJI ALLIJI

AHMEDABAD

THANKS OFFER BUT YOU SEE AM STILL PRISONER.

GANDHI

Government of Bombay, Home Department, I.G.P. File No. 20-IX

---

\(^1\) From “Diary, 1932”

\(^2\) From “Diary, 1932”. The addressee’s cable dated September 17 read: “Should value advice you care to give me at this moment.”

\(^3\) From the placing of the item in the source
135. TELEGRAM TO ASHUTOSH CHAUDHARI

September 20, 1932

ASHUTOSH CHAUDHARI
6 LYALL ROAD
ALLAHABAD

PLEASE TELL APARNA NOT TO FAST AT ALL. ALL SHOULD REJOICE AND DO UTMOSE BEST REMOVE UNTOUCHABILITY.

GANDHI

Government of Bombay, Home Department, I.G.P. File No. 20-IX

136. TELEGRAM TO BALWANTRAI DESAI

[September 20, 1932]

BALWANTRAI DESAI VAKIL
PALACE ROAD
BARODA

MY STATEMENT PERHAPS PRESS ANSWERS YOUR QUESTIONS.

GANDHI

Government of Bombay, Home Department, I.G.P. File No. 20-IX

137. TELEGRAM TO RAMNIKLAL DESAI

[September 20, 1932]

RAMNIKLAL DESAI
GOKULDAS TEJPAL COMPOUND
VILLE PARLE
BOMBAY

PRAY AWAIT EVENTS.

GANDHI

Government of Bombay, Home Department, I.G.P. File No. 20-IX

1 From the placing of the item in the source
3 From “Diary, 1932”
138. TELEGRAM TO JAMNADAS DWARKADAS

[September 20, 1932]

JAMNADAS DWARKADAS
WALKESHWAR ROAD
BOMBAY

CONDOLENCES TO YOU AND FAMILY FROM US ALL. LOVE.

GANDHI

Government of Bombay, Home Department, I.G.P. File No. 20-IX

139. TELEGRAM TO DAHYABHAI GINWALA

[September 20, 1932]

DAHYABHAI GINWALA
CARE SERVINDIA
BOMBAY

THANKS. DO NOT KNOW WHAT IS TO HAPPEN.

GANDHI

Government of Bombay, Home Department, I.G.P. File No. 20-IX

140. TELEGRAM TO HARIBUKSH SINGH

[September 20, 1932]

HARIBUKSH SINGH CARE ROSE
SIALKOT

IT WOULD BE WRONG FOR YOU FAST IN SYMPATHY BUT DO WHAT YOU CAN BLOT OUT CURSE UNTOUCHABILITY.

GANDHI

Government of Bombay, Home Department, I.G.P. File No. 20-IX

---

1 From “Diary, 1932”
2 From the placing of the item in the source
141. TELEGRAM TO A. J. DODDAMATI JAKKILI

[September 20, 1932]

A. J. DODDAMATI JAKKILI
KARNATAK BANDHU OFFICE
GADAG
YOUR WORK IS GOOD BUT BETTER IS SOME TANGIBLE SERVICE.

GANDHI

Government of Bombay, Home Department, I.G.P. File No. 20-IX

142. TELEGRAM TO KASHI KRISHNACHARYA

[September 20, 1932]

KASHI KRISHNACHARYA
ALL-INDIA SANATAN DHARMA VAIDIK MAHASABHA
GUNTOOR
AM SORRY. BEYOND MY POWER SUSPEND FAST.

GANDHI

Government of Bombay, Home Department, I.G.P. File No. 20-IX

143. TELEGRAM TO KRISHNADAS

[September 20, 1932]

KRISHNADAS
CARE MOTI
CALCUTTA
REMAIN THERE SERVE MOTHER.

BAPU

Government of Bombay, Home Department, I.G.P. File No. 20-IX

1 From “Diary, 1932”
2 ibid
144. CABLE TO INDIANS OF TAIPING, PERAK

[September 20, 1932]

INDIANS
TAIPING
PERAK
LET GOD PREVAIL.

GANDHI

Government of Bombay, Home Department, I.G.P. File No. 20-IX

145. TELEGRAM TO DR. B. C. ROY

[September 20, 1932]

DR. BIDHAN ROY
36 WELLINGTON STREET
CALCUTTA
PRAY TELL URMILADEVI YOUR HEART-RENDING WIRE NEVER RECEIVED. LETTERS YOU MENTION I WROTE SOME IN DESPAIR. COULD GET NO ANSWER. DO WRITE. I KNOW YOU WILL BRAVELY BEAR PRESENT ANGUISH. MAHADEV JOINS SENDING LOVE.

GANDHI

Government of Bombay, Home Department, I.G.P. File No. 20-IX

146. TELEGRAM TO AMBALAL SARABHAI

[September 20, 1932]

SETH AMBALAL SARABHAI
SHAHIBAG
AHMEDABAD
OF COURSE YOUR HOME MY REFUGE. DO NOT KNOW WHAT IS TO HAPPEN.

GANDHI

Government of Bombay, Home Department, I.G.P. File No. 20-IX

---

1 From the placing of the item in the source
2 Ibid
147. TELEGRAM TO AMBALAL SARABHAI

[September 20, 1932]1

AMBALAL SARABHAI
SHAHIBAG
AHMEDABAD

LEARN BHARATI HAD FALL FROM HORSE. WIRE CORRECT STATE.
YOU CAN ALL SEE ME WHEN YOU WISH. LOVE.

GANDHI

Government of Bombay, Home Department, I.G.P. File No. 20-IX

148. A TELEGRAM

[September 20, 1932]2

MEHD [sic]
CARE BHADRAJI DHRU MAHARAJ MANSIONS
SANDHURST ROAD
BOMBAY

THANKS OFFER. YOU SEE NOW THERE IS NO ANXIETY.

GANDHI

Government of Bombay, Home Department, I.G.P. File No. 20-IX

1 From the placing of the item in the source.
2 ibid

VOL. 57 :  5 SEPTEMBER, 1932 - 15 NOVEMBER, 1932  87
149. TELEGRAM TO RABINDRANATH TAGORE

September 20, 1932

GURUDEV
SANTINIKETAN

HAVE ALWAYS EXPERIENCED GOD’S MERCY. VERY EARLY THIS MORNING I WROTE\(^1\) SEEKING YOUR BLESSING IF YOU COULD APPROVE ACTION AND BEHOLD I HAVE IT IN ABUNDANCE IN YOUR MESSAGE JUST RECEIVED. THANK YOU.

GANDHI

Visvabharati News, p. 25

150. TELEGRAM TO MATHURADAS TRIKUMJI

September 20, 1932

MATHURADAS TRIKUMJI
B CLASS PRISONER
PRISON BELGAUM

YOU SHOULD BE BRAVE. DO NOT SEEK RELEASE UNDER PAROLE. WHERE HEARTS MEET WHAT USE PHYSICAL MEETING. LET GOD’S WILL BE DONE. LOVE.

BAPU

Government of Bombay, Home Department, I.G.P. File No. 20-IX

---

\(^1\) This was in reply to Tagore’s telegram of September 19, 1932, which read: “It is worth sacrificing precious life for the sake of India’s unity and her social integrity. Though we cannot anticipate what effect it may have upon our rulers who may not understand its immense importance for our people we feel certain that the supreme appeal of such self-offering to the conscience of our own countrymen will not be in vain. I fervently hope that we will not callously allow such national tragedy to reach its extreme length. Our sorrowing hearts will follow your sublime penance with reverence and love.”

151. NOTE TO M. G. BHANDARI

September 20, 1932

DEAR MAJOR BHANDARI,

Thank you for your note. I think I ought to see Reuter’s representative now, if you do not mind.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat: G.N. 5125

152. LETTER TO G. K. DEVDHAR

September 29, 1932

MY DEAR DEVDHAR,

Of course the Society’s home is my home.¹ I have lived in exile by choice. When God wills it, He will send me back home.

I have not the slightest notion where the fast will be taken. This is a wonderful ordeal. I deserve it all. For I have the Hindu heart. And have we not deserved the most terrible chastisement from God for our treatment of the untouchables? And so He is trying me through and through before admitting me to the untouchable fold. It has been an effort for the past 50 years. Please send the enclosed² to Sastri.

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, pp. 57-8

153. LETTER TO P. N. RAJBOJ

September 20, 1932

DEAR FRIEND,

I got your letter only yesterday whilst I was talking to the friends who came to see me. I am now replying to it at earliest opportunity. I thank you for your letter.

My position is this: My fast has reference only to separate electorate. As soon as that is withdrawn the letter of the vow will be satisfied and I would be bound to call off the fast. But a very heavy responsibility will then lie upon me of having a substitute that is infinitely superior to separate electorate.

¹ The addressee had invited Gandhiji to stay at the Servants of India Society’s Home at Poona during the fast.

VOL. 57 : 5 SEPTEMBER, 1932 - 15 NOVEMBER, 1932 89

If you will not resent my saying it, I would like to say that as I am a “touchable” by birth, I am an “untouchable” by choice. And it was in this dual capacity that I wrote to Sir Samuel Hoare and then the Prime Minister. It is that dual capacity that has compelled the fast. Looking at the matter in this light I must say that I am not in love with the idea of statutory reservation. Whilst it is not open to the same objection that separate electorate is, I have not a shadow of a doubt that it will prevent the natural growth of the suppressed classes and will remove the incentive to honourable amends from the suppressors. What I am aiming at is a heart understanding between the two, the greatest opportunity of repentance and reparation on the part of the suppressors. I am certain that the moment is ripe for the change of heart among them. I would therefore favour widest possible franchise for the suppressed and establish a convention between the two sections for securing proper election of representatives of the suppressed. I have drafted a rough tentative scheme which I handed to the friends and which I explained fully yesterday to my son Devdas. But to me this is not the largest but it is the least part of the reform I want.

Nothing will satisfy me till the last vestige of untouchability is gone. I would therefore insist on a statutory declaration that all public places of worship, wells, schools, etc., should be open to the suppressed precisely on the same terms as the suppressors. This is roughly my idea. If, however, the representatives of suppressed classes will not look at my idea, they are at liberty to have statutory reservation of seats. I should not fast against it but you will not expect me to bless any such scheme. Nor is my blessing essential to its acceptance by the Government. If I get the opportunity, I should certainly try to create public opinion among the suppressed against statutory reservation.

If my position is not clear or satisfactory, I would be delighted to meet you and other friends including R.B. Raja and Dr. Ambedkar by appointment. As you are aware this has become possible only now.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat: G.N. 783 Also The Epic Fast, pp. 168-9
154. LETTER TO VITHAL R. SHINDE

September 20, 1932

I have your touching letter. I have absolutely no notion as to how I am to be disposed of. Therefore it is too early to say anything. I certainly begin the fast here at 12. God alone knows where, when and how it will end. All the same, pray accept my thanks for your sympathy and offer.

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 58

155. LETTER TO D. B. KALELKER

September 20, 1932

CHI. KAKA,

I got your letter yesterday. On September 19. . . . ² There will be no harm at all if you rest a little from reading and writing just as you have been resting from spinning. Only you cannot afford to stop your daily walks, as we found from our experience in Yeravda earlier. Take long walks. Be careful first about exercise, food and rest and then read and write as much as you can get time for. I have three books by Sir. James Jeans¹ which I am sending to you. I liked them very much, though I find that there are people who disagree with his views. I think I should read those books twice or thrice. There are in them several things which are not clear to me. However, I have become very much interested in the subject. In a sense, you are not wrong in describing Galileo and others as rishis. In a sense, because the rishi relied on intuition, and the word rishi denoted one who does that. This is not to run down the work of Galileo and others. Only it seems necessary to keep in view the fact that the fields of the two types of men are different. Try to find another term if you can.

You must have heard of my ordeal⁴ and rejoiced at the news. There can be no reason at all to be unhappy about it. Fasting and ¹ The addressee had invited Gandhiji to Ahalya Ashram, a students’ hostel he had been running at Poona.

² One sentence was censored by the jail authorities.
³ English physicist and astronomer
⁴ These portions, censored by the jail authorities, are restored from Mahadevbhaini Diary, “Letter to F.S. Taleyarkhan”, 10-10-1896.
eating mean the same thing, just as birth and death mean the same thing. In any case, if a co-worker gives up his life for the sake of his dharma, it cannot be a cause for grief. Such an opportunity comes very rarely to anybody, and when it comes it should be gladly welcomed. Instead of being perturbed you should, therefore, be more vigilant and cultivate greater devotion to duty. Leave the jail with improved health. The filth of untouchability will be removed only after a great many sacrifices have been made.

We are all happy.
Shankar is doing well. I saw him.

Blessings from
BAPU

From Gujarati: C.W. 9489. Courtesy: D.B. Kalelkar

156. LETTER TO KEDARNATH KULKARNI

September 20, 1932

I was indeed waiting for your letter. I got it only last evening. I would have liked a talk with you. If, while the fast is in progress, I become convinced about its being contrary to dharma, I will immediately give it up without any false sense of shame. I am ashamed of only one thing in the world—untruth—in thought, speech and action.

My step has not been dictated by reason; it was inspired by my inner voice. My reason, however, told me: ‘Hundreds of persons like you will probably have to die in order to remove the blot of untouchability’. Fasting is a very common practice in Hinduism. I have always loved it. My decision is the cry of my heart. The Prime Minister’s decision was only the immediate cause. It provided me with an opportunity to undertake the fast. However, the aim of my fast is not merely to get the decision changed but to bring about the awakening and self-purification which are bound to result from the effort to get the decision changed. In other words this was an opportunity to strike at the very root of untouchability.

1 These portions, censored by the jail authorities, are restored from Maha-devbhaini Diary, “Letter to F.S. Taleyarkhan”, 10-10-1896.
2 Satish Kalelkar, addressee’s son
It is true that we cannot positively say that the step was right because it had brought about the desired result. Everyone should judge for himself whether or not it is right. And if one is unable to do so, one should accept the opinion of an elder. To me the step seems not only right but even imperative. Think over this and write to me again. Please do not be disappointed about me. I hope your eczema is cured.

[From Gujarati]
Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 60

157. LETTER TO JAISHANKAR P. TRIVEDI

September 20, 1932

I got your lines full of love. I know your love. God does not live somewhere in the sky. For me pure love like yours is God, and it is such love that gives me the strength to undertake yajnas like the present one.

[From Gujarati]
Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 62

158. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

4.45 p.m., September 20, 1932

CHI. NARANDAS,

I got your packet. You must have seen the orders which have been issued. It seems that we remain where we were. That is the position today. What will happen tomorrow, God alone knows. As things are, you can write daily if you wish. The post will be despatched daily from here. But do not expect many letters from me. I wish to conserve my strength as much as possible. There will be plenty of other work for me. If anybody wishes to come and see me, he may. But nobody should be eager to come at any cost. Tell this to Anasuyabehn, Shankerlal and Rama. Inform Saraladevi too. I would, however, advise that only those who cannot restrain their desire to come may come. Everybody should devote himself or herself as much as possible to the service of the Antyajas.

1 Of Poona Agriculture College.
If I can reply to any of the other letters which I get, I will do so. If someone does not get reply, he or she should understand that I could not write because of pressure of other work.

At prayer-time this morning, we sang “Vaishnava Jana”. Mahadev read the Gita from 6.30 to 8. Vallabhbhai and Mahadev are fasting today. When the fast commenced at noon, the following bhajan which Raihanabehn often sings was sung:

Awake, O traveller, it is morning now,
It is no longer night, that you still sleep;
He who sleeps will lose,
He who is awake will gain.

If you have got the complete bhajan there, Panditji should sing it to you all. If you have not got it, I will send it from here.

I feel a little worried on account of Kusum. Does she take complete rest? She may give up even spinning.

You must have got the large packet of letters I despatched yesterday. Today only this letter. No, I forget. I could not write to Punjabhai yesterday. I am enclosing a slip for him today.

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./I. Also C.W. 8253. Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi

159. INTERVIEW TO THE PRESS

September 20, 1932

For the first time in nine months journalists were permitted to see Mahatma Gandhi in Yeravda Jail this evening at 5.30 when they were treated to one of the most easily delivered and seriously thoughtful interviews to which it has ever been my fortune to listen. No journalist could see Mahatma Gandhi today and discuss the position with him five hours after he had commenced “a fast unto death” without being immensely impressed . . . .

When asked if he was hopeful about a happy ending to the affair, he said:

I am an irrepressible optimist. Unless God has forsaken me, I hope that it will not be a fast unto death.

Mahatma Gandhi said that he had many telegrams from people who had decided or wished to enter upon a fast in sympathy with him.

1 This report of the interview first appeared in The Times of India, 21-9-1932.
I urge everybody not to fast in sympathy. I have undertaken it at God’s call, and, therefore, unless there is a similar definite call to these people they have no business to fast. For one day, for the sake of purification or identification with the cause, it is a good thing; but that is all. Such a fast is both a privilege and a duty, and the privilege accrues only to those who have disciplined themselves for it.

The interview then turned to the question of the day, the representation of the Depressed Classes, or as Mahatma Gandhi calls them, the Suppressed Classes.

First of all he expressed surprise that the statement given to the Government of Bombay had not been released. That had been given five days ago. Had he to redraft it today it would be rather different in the light of happenings since then, and he said at the end of the interview that his new statement was supplementary to the other, but not dependent on it. He said:

My cards are on the table, but, so far as the present instance is concerned, I could say nothing from behind prison bars. Now that the restrictions are removed, I have answered the first call of the Press. My fast is only against separate electorates, and not against statutory reservation of seats. To say that I am damaging the cause by uncompromising opposition to statutory reservation of seats is only partly true. Opposed I was, and am even now, but there was never put before me for any acceptance or rejection a scheme for statutory reservation of seats. Therefore, there is no question of my having to decide upon that point. When I developed my own idea about that point, I certainly expressed disappointment, and in my humble opinion, such statutory reservation, short of doing service, may do harm in the sense that it will stop natural evolution. Statutory reservation is like a support to a man. Relying on such support to any extent he weakens himself.

If people won’t laugh at me, I would gently put forward a claim, which I have always asserted, that I am a ‘touchable’ by birth but an untouchable by choice; and I have endeavoured to qualify myself to represent, not the upper ten even among the untouchables, because it is said to their shame there are castes and classes among them, but my ambition is to represent and identify myself with, as far as possible, the lowest strata of untouchables, namely, the ‘invisibles’ and the ‘unapproachables’, whom I have always before my mind’s eye wherever I go; for they have indeed drunk deep of the poisoned cup. I have met them in Malabar and in Orissa, and am convinced that if they are ever to rise, it will not be by reservation of seats but will be by the strenuous work of Hindu reformers in their midst, and it is because I feel that this separation would have killed all prospect of reform that my whole soul has rebelled against it; and, let me make it plain, that the withdrawal of separate electorates will satisfy the letter of my vow but will never satisfy the spirit behind it, and in my capacity of being a self-chosen untouchable, I am not going to rest content with a patched-up pact between the ‘touchables’ and the untouchables.

\(^1\) Vide “Statement to the Press”, 16-9-1932.

What I want, what I am living for, and what I should delight in dying for, is the eradication of untouchability root and branch. I want, therefore, a living pact whose life-giving effect should be felt not in the distant tomorrow but today, and, therefore, that pact should be sealed by an all-India demonstration of ‘touchables’ and untouchables meeting together, not by way of a theatrical show, but in real brotherly embrace. It is in order to achieve this, the dream of my life for the past fifty years, that I have entered today the fiery gates. The British Government’s decision was the last straw. It was a decisive symptom, and with the unerring eye of the physician that I claim to be in such matters, I detected the symptom. Therefore, for me the abolition of separate electorates would be but the beginning of the end, and I would warn all those leaders assembled at Bombay and others against coming to any hasty decision.

My life I count of no consequence. One hundred lives given for this noble cause would, in my opinion, be poor penance done by Hindus for the atrocious wrongs they have heaped upon helpless men and women of their own faith. I, therefore, would urge them not to swerve an inch from the path of strictest justice. My fast I want to throw in the scales of justice, and if it wakes up caste Hindus from their slumber, and if they are roused to a sense of their duty, it will have served its purpose. Whereas, if out of blind affection for me, they would somehow or other come to a rough and ready agreement so as to secure the abrogation and then go off to sleep, they will commit a grievous blunder and will have made my life a misery. For, while the abrogation of separate electorates would result in my breaking the fast, it would be living death for me if the vital pact for which I am striving is not arrived at. It would simply mean that, as soon as I called off the fast, I would have to give notice of another in order to achieve the spirit of the vow to the fullest extent.
This may look childish to the onlooker but not so to me. If I had anything more to give, I would throw that in also to remove this curse, but I have nothing more than my life.

I believe that if untouchability is really rooted out, it will not only purge Hinduism of a terrible blot but its repercussions will be world-wide. My fight against untouchability is a fight against the impure in humanity, and, therefore, when I penned my letter to Sir Samuel Hoare I did so in the full faith that the very best in human family will come to my assistance if I have embarked on this thing with a heart, so far as it is possible for a human being to achieve, free of impurity, free of all malice and all anger. You will, therefore, see that my fast is based first of all in the cause of faith in the Hindu community, faith in human nature itself, and faith even in the official world.

In attacking untouchability I have gone to the very root of the matter, and, therefore, it is an issue of transcendental value, far surpassing swaraj in terms of political constitutions, and I would say that such a constitution would be a dead weight if it was not backed by a moral basis, in the shape of the present hope engendered in the breasts of the downtrodden millions that that weight is going to be lifted from their shoulders. It is only because the English officials cannot possibly see this living side of the picture that in their ignorance and self-satisfaction they dare to sit as judges upon questions that affect the fundamental being of millions of people, and here I mean both caste Hindus and untouchables, that is, the suppr- essor and the suppressed; and it was in order to wake up even officiodom from its gross ignorance, if I may make use of such an expression without being guilty of offence, that I felt impelled by a voice from within to offer resistance with the whole of my being.

He stated that he had made definite suggestions to the deputation from the Emergency Committee whom he received yesterday and he presumed that these would have been communicated to the Press today in Bombay.

Referring to a possible photograph Mahatma Gandhi made a jocular remark concerning his funeral rites whereupon I asked him he had made any preparations for such rites when visited by his son Devdas yesterday if the very worst happened, and I received a dramatic reply.

\[1\] Vide "Letter to Sir Samuel Hoare", 11-3-1932.
I have asked my son to say in my name at the Bombay Conference that he as his father’s son was prepared to forfeit his father’s life rather than see any injury being done to the Suppressed Classes in mad haste.

What did he really think about the possibilities of his fast lasting? He replied:

I am as anxious as anyone to live. Water has an infinite capacity for prolonging life, and I will take water whenever I feel I require it. You can depend upon me to make a supreme effort to hold myself together so that the Hindu conscience may be quickened as also the British conscience and this agony may end. My cry will rise to the throne of the Almighty God.

The Epic Fast, pp. 118-23

160. CABLE TO H. S. L. POLAK

[September 21, 1932]

KALOPH
ESTRAND
LONDON

PUBLIC STATEMENT EXPLAINING MY POSITION REGARDING FAST AND MATTERS THEREAFTER WAS SENT TO GOVERNMENT WITH REQUEST FOR PUBLICATION ON FIFTEENTH. AM TOLD IT WILL BE PUBLISHED NOW." LOVE.

GANDHI

From a photostat: S.N. 18534. Also Government of Bombay, Home Department, I.G.P. File No. 20-IX

---

1 This was in reply to the addressee’s telegram received on September 20, 1932, which read: “Times correspondent reports you complained Government not released document setting out terms you gave Government. Does this refer Depressed Classes question? Informed India Office no knowledge document.”

2 From “Diary, 1932”

3 Telegraphic address of H.S.L. Polak.

5 It was published in The Hindu on September 21, 1932.
161. LETTER TO JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM

September 21, 1932

I know how you must be feeling over this penance. But you are brave enough to perceive that this is no occasion for sorrow but for joy. Many of us may have to die before this monster of untouchability is finally destroyed. You should be filled with joy that a comrade has entered the fiery gate. It is well if I come out unhurt; it is equally well, if not better, if the fire consumes me. God has guided my step. This will be done to the very end.

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 67

162. LETTER TO JAMNALAL BAJAJ

September 21, 1932

CHI. JAMNALAL,

I hope you do not worry. On the contrary, you should dance with joy that the person whom you have adopted as your father is to make the supreme sacrifice for the cause which you hold dear. For you, this should be an occasion to celebrate.

I have been having a bit of good-humoured jesting with Janakimaiya. Sardar and Mahadev send you their regards.

Blessings from

BAPU

[From Gujarati]

Panchven Putrako Bapuke Ashirvad, pp. 94-5

163. LETTER TO MANILAL V. KOTHARI

September 21, 1932

Sardar says that I must write a separate letter to my chief disciple. If I say that Manilal is included in Jamnalalji, Sardar turns red eyes on me and says, Jamnalalji and all others can be included in Manilal but Manilal can never be included in anybody. I tell him I do not agree with him. Manilal, being a votary of non-violence, can be included in all, but he would never want anybody to be included in him. Now you alone can settle this dispute which has arisen in our cell. See that you do justice. Who is right, Sardar or I? And while such arguments take place, why should I worry at all about my indefinite fast, a practice which is so beloved of Jains?

1 The source has September 27. Mahadevbhaini Diary, however, has 21, which is confirmed from a letter of the addressee to Madalsa of the same date reproduced in Bapu Sansmaran, “Letter to Keshav Gandhi”, 21-10-1932.

Judge from this letter how happily Sardar and I pass the time. Weeping is strictly forbidden.

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 68

164. LETTER TO KISHORELAL G. MASHRUWALA

September 21, 1932

I am naturally eager to know whether you consider my step moral or not. Nath is a little doubtful about it. I have replied\(^1\) to his letter. If you have thought about the matter, write to me. If you feel that my step is in accord with dharma, then it must have also been clear to you that this is an occasion for rejoicing.

There is no ground for the fear which you entertain on account of Vallabhbhai’s learning Sanskrit. Nothing can make him forget his farmer’s Gujarati. On the contrary, Sanskrit will increase his fluency in his native tongue. What we should welcome is the determined effort which he is making this time. It is bound to have a good effect on the students. Sanskrit is like the river Ganga for our languages. I always feel that if it were to dry up, the regional languages also would lose their vitality and power. It seems to me that an elementary knowledge of Sanskrit is essential.

[From Gujarati]

165. LETTER TO NARAHARI D. PARIKH

September 21, 1932

You should not be perturbed about the fast. God has sent me unsought an opportunity for which I was pining. We ought not to feel unhappy when our desire is granted. All three of us are happy and, as we watch God’s sport, dance with as much delight as we can. But we have not yet learnt how to dance well. I have obtained permission for people to write to me. You may, therefore, write to me.

\(^1\) Vide “Letter to Kedarnath Kulkarni”, 20-9-1932.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhai Ni Diary, Vol. II, p. 66

166. LETTER TO MANIBEHN PATEL

September 21, 1932

CHI. MANI,

Need I try to give you courage? I forbid you to shed a single tear. It is only rarely that a man is blessed with such good fortune as has come to me. You should, therefore, rejoice and not shed tears. You and others like you should not start fasting, but should devote yourselves heart and soul to your work. I have obtained permission for everybody to write to me whenever they wish. Therefore do write to me.

I hope you will get this letter without delay.

Blessings from
BAPU

MANIBEHN PATEL
PRISONER
CENTRAL PRISON, BELGAUM

[From Gujarati]

Bapuna Patro—4: Manibehn Pateln, p. 87

167. LETTER TO FULCHAND B. SHAH

September 21, 1932

BHAU FULCHAND,

All of you should exult at the news of my fast, and not shed tears. It is only rarely that a man gets a noble opportunity like this. Nobody should copy my example and fast. Everybody may sacrifice his life when his opportunity comes. If anybody holds back then, he would not be a man. Just now, however, all of you should become more earnest and devoted to your work and strive harder to make yourselves sufficiently pure for such a sacrifice.

Blessings to all.

Blessings from

BAPU

[From Gujarati]

168. LETTER TO MATHURADAS TRIKUMJI

September 21, 1932

I can see your agitation from your wire. I hope you got mine. I have imagined you to be a wise man. I hope you will prove me right. If you doubt the rightness of my step from a moral point of view, let me know. I have seen to it that this letter is sent to you soon and that you are permitted to write back to me. You know that I look upon you as a custodian of the moral correctness of my actions. Exercise that right and do that duty of yours vigilantly. If you have approved of my step, it should also have been clear to you that this is an occasion for rejoicing. Write to me a long and frank letter. I am writing to Taramati and asking her and the children to come and see me.

[From Gujarati]

Bapuni Prasadi, pp. 115-6

169. LETTER TO E. E. DOYLE

September 21, 1932

DEAR COL. DOYLE,

As per our conversation I send you eight letters. I hope you will send them to the respective prisoners with instructions that they may be delivered at once and that the addressees are free to write to me in reply.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

Government of Bombay, Home Department, I.G.P. File No.9

170. LETTER TO HEMPRABHA DAS GUPTA

September 21, 1932

CHI. HEMPRABHA,

It is strange that you do not receive my letters as I do not receive yours. On receipt of this letter wire to me that you understand my fast, and if you do, you will sing, not weep. Your duty is to remain immersed in your work. We are all in the hands of God and He will act as He wills.

Tell Arun to write.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 1688

171. INTERVIEW TO S. M. MATE, P. N. RAJBHOJ AND LIMAYE

September 21, 1932

If I had my way I would insist on temple-entry and the like being included in any pact that may be concluded and I would invite all reformers and untouchables to do so. I am aware that temple-entry is a difficult thing to accomplish in the very limited time that my life can hold out against the fast, but all the parties to the pact should pledge themselves to realize this elementary right of human beings at the earliest opportunity. At the same time I do not want this fast to be used for coercing orthodoxy. The fast is certainly intended to sting even orthodoxy into thinking. But if they cannot get on to this elementary truth about human rights we must have patience. But temples and the like are the property not of orthodoxy but of all Hindus. Therefore this idea of excluding a section of Hindus from the use of public utilities is itself a species of violence, and, therefore, the support of legislation has got to be invoked in order to protect this fundamental right. I recognize, however, that if the majority of the Hindus are against the exercise of this right by the so-called untouchables, mere legislation will be wholly ineffective. But my opinion is that the mind of the majority is for this reform if it comes stealthily. Therefore, reformers should prepare the ground now cease-

1 According to the source, what follows is the substance of Gandhiji’s talk.
lessly and vigilantly to convert the passive attitude towards the reform into active approval thereof. This rising tide of opinion in favour of the reform will convince orthodoxy that it is inevitable. The work, therefore, must be free of all violence, even mental.

Legislation in a free State always represents the will of the majority. All legislation in advance of general opinion argues bankruptcy of missionary effort. My reliance, therefore, always has been on missionary enterprise. Therefore, for the pact to be a living pact, it is absolutely necessary that it should be a condition precedent to an acceptance of the political part of it, that the caste Hindus party to the pact will not only endorse it but actively move in the matter. My own opinion is quite clear. I would accept any pact that has not a tinge of separate electorate about it. I would, with the utmost reluctance, tolerate reservation of seats under a joint electorate scheme. But I should insist upon what is to me the vital part of the pact, the social and religious reform. And, therefore, whilst if a settlement is arrived at on the joint electorate scheme and separate electorate is withdrawn by the British Government, I will break my fast, I will immediately give notice to the millions of Hindus, who have flocked round me at the innumerable meetings from one end of India to the other, that if within, say, six months the social reform is not demonstrably achieved, the fast will be taken up again. For, if I do not do so I would be guilty of betraying God in whose name I have taken this great fast and the interest of untouchables for whose sake it has been taken.

I have not yet approved of the Nasik Satyagraha about Kalaram temple for the simple reason that I have smelt a trace of violence in that satyagraha, and satyagraha is inconsistent with the slightest violence. I understand also that with reference to temples like Parvati temple there is a difficulty about the trust. The trust-deed itself lays an obligation on the trustees to prohibit the entry of untouchables into the temple. Where such a disability exists, I would be able to understand the powerlessness of the trustees. Any satyagraha in reference to such temples would be pure violence. I would hold that at this time of the day such a condition in any trust should be considered against public morals and, therefore, of no effect. And if such a judgment can be obtained, clearly legislation must step in and rendersuch a clause invalid. Sjt. Rajbhoj fears that if Dr. Ambedkar accepts a reasonable compromise, Government may call another leader into being who will declare his opposition, and if that fear is realized there would be eternal opposition by the Government to any pact, and, therefore, my fast must end in my death, and that, therefore, I should give up the fast. Granting that Mr. Rajbhoj’s fear is justified I cannot undo a pledge taken with God as witness. We are not able to forecast all future events. We can, therefore, only control our acts, and it is well with us and our cause if we unflinchingly act on the square in spite of the heaviest odds. Our final trust must rest upon the assured victory of truth. Such correct action has without exception confounded the opponents and brought out the intended result, granting of course that the cause is as just as the action is correct. I must not, therefore, on any account, suspend the fast unless its terms are fulfilled.

_The Epic Fast_, pp. 165-7

172. LETTER TO VIDYA R. PATEL

_September 22, 1932_

CHI. VIDYA,

We can form any habit about eating and sleeping that we desire. If you rise early and do not sleep during the day time, you are bound to form the habit of going to bed early.

BAPU

173. CABLE TO WILLIAM SHIRER

[On or before September 23, 1932]

WILLIAM SHIRER
CHICAGO TRIBUNE
VIENNA (AUSTRIA)

THANK YOU. NOT SURPRISED AMERICAN BEWILDERMENT. IT HAS BEEN MY MISFORTUNE OR GOOD FORTUNE TO TAKE WORLD BY SURPRISE. NEW EXPERIMENTS OR OLD EXPERIMENTS IN NEW STYLE

1 The cable was in reply to one from the addressee, an American journalist, sent from Vienna, saying that American opinion was “profoundly befuddled” by Gandhiji’s fast and could not understand his wilfully throwing away his “undisputed political leadership of Indian nationalism by starving to death”.

2 The cable was published in _The Bombay Chronicle_ under the date-line: “Poona, September 23, 1932”.

VOL. 57 : 5 SEPTEMBER, 1932 - 15 NOVEMBER, 1932 105
MUST SOMETIMES ENGENDER MISUNDERSTANDING. LAWS OF DECORUM IMPOSE ON ME RIGOROUS RESTRAINT IN LETTERS TO GOVERNMENT.
LAWS OF JAIL ADMINISTRATION PROHIBITED CORRESPONDENCE WITH OUTSIDE WORLD. THESE I OBSERVED IN LETTER AND SPIRIT. PACT NOW IN PROCESS OF FORMATION WILL PROVIDE FAR BETTER AND LARGER REPRESENTATION THAN BRITISH DECISION. WERE I NOT SURE OF DEPRESSED MASS OPINION BEHIND ME AS DISTINGUISHED FROM THAT OF LEADERS I COULD NOT HAVE TAKEN FAST IN MANNER I HAVE DONE. AND EVEN AMONG DEPRESSED LEADERS SO FAR AS I KNOW VAST MAJORITY BEHIND ME. I WOULD COMPROMISE WITH LATTER TO FURTHERMOST EXTENT CONSISTENT WITH PARAMOUNT INTEREST DEPRESSED CLASSES. YOU MUST NOT BE STARTLED BY MY PRESUMPTION IN CLAIMING TO KNOW DEPRESSED INTERESTS MORE THAN LEADERS. THOUGH I AM TOUCHABLE BY BIRTH PAST FIFTY YEARS I HAVE BECOME UNTOUCHABLE BY CHOICE. AMERICANS SHOULD KNOW THAT MY POLITICS ARE DERIVED FROM MY RELIGION. IF GOD HAS ORDAINED DEATH BY STARVATION I KNOW THAT IT WILL SET LAST SEAL ON MY POLITICAL LEADERSHIP. NATIONALISM WILL BE THE STRONGER FOR SACRIFICIAL DEATH. VAST MAJORITY OF INDIAN COMMUNITY HAS INSTINCTIVELY REALIZED CORRECTNESS AND IMPLICATIONS OF THIS FAST. AM CONVINCED THAT REAL SELF-GOVERNMENT HAS BEEN ADVANCED BY THIS PENANCE AND IF GOD GIVES ME STRENGTH TO SEE THIS FAST THROUGH WITHOUT MIND OR BODY WAVERING ADVANCEMENT WILL BE STILL GREATER. HENCE EVERY DAY WELL PASSED IN EQUILIBRIUM BRINGS SWARAJ NEARER AS IT CAN BY NO OTHER STEPS.

THIS PREPARATION FOR DEATH FOR UNTOUCHABILITY IS VERITABLE PREPARATION FOR DEATH FOR WHOLE OF INDIA. FOR ME REMOVAL UNTOUCHABILITY IS INTEGRAL PART OF SWARAJ. I WOULD REJECT SWARAJ THAT EXCLUDED MEANEST SINFULLEST INDIANS FROM ITS HEALTH-GIVING BALM. FOR ME RELIGION IS ONE IN ESSENCE BUT IT HAS MANY BRANCHES AND IF I THE HINDU BRANCH FAIL IN MY DUTY TO THE PARENT TRUNK I AM UNWORTHY FOLLOWER OF THAT ONE INDIVISIBLE RELIGION. ACCORDING TO THIS REASONING MY SACRIFICE PROMOTES DELIVERANCE OF HUMANITY FROM UNTOUCHABILITY IN EVERY SHAPE OR FROM AND THEREFORE IT SERVED ALL RELIGIOUS GROUPS. IF THEN AMERICA WHICH HAS SENT ME THROUGH HER KNOWN AND UNKNOWN SYMPATHIZERS SO MUCH SYMPATHY IN MY DISTRESS NOW UNDERSTANDS THE INWARDNESS OF THIS SACRIFICE I EXPECT HER TO MOBILIZE WORLD OPINION IN FAVOUR OF THE SACRIFICE. THOUGH APPARENTLY CONCEIVED TO APPLY A CORNER OF THIS WORLD IT IS REALLY INTENDED TO COVER THE WHOLE WORLD. THOSE WHO HAVE AT ALL FOLLOWED MY HUMBLE CAREER EVEN SUPERFICIALLY CANNOT HAVE FAILED TO OBSERVE THAT NOT SINGLE ACT OF MY LIFE HAS BEEN DONE TO INJURY TO ANY INDIVIDUAL OR NATION. MY NATIONALISM AS MY RELIGION IS NOT EXCLUSIVE BUT INCLUSIVE AND THEY MUST BE SO CONSISTENTLY WITH WELFARE OF ALL LIFE. I CLAIM NO INFALLIBILITY. I AM CONSCIOUS OF HAVING MADE HIMALAYAN BLUNDERS BUT AM NOT CONSCIOUS OF HAVING MADE THEM INTENTIONALLY OR HAVING EVER HARBOURED ENMITY TOWARDS ANY PERSON OR NATION OR ANY LIFE HUMAN OR SUBHUMAN.

GANDHI

Government of Bombay, Home Department, I.G.P. File No. 20-IX

174. TELEGRAM TO HEMPRABHA DAS GUPTA

September 23, 1932

HEMPRABHADEVI
KHADISTHAN
CALCUTTA

HOPE YOU ARE BETTER. YOU HAD BETTER COME. FAST GOING WELL. KEEPING UP STRENGTH. LOVE.

BAPU

From a photostat: G.N. 1621
175. TELEGRAM TO NARANDAS GANDHI

September 23, 1932

NARANDAS
ASHRAM
SABARMATI

YOU MAY COME WITH ALL OTHERS WHO DESIRE CONSISTENTLY WITH WORKING ASHRAM. AM QUITE WELL. SATISBABU REACHING SABARMATI TOMORROW MORNING SEE YOU.

BAPU

From a microfilm M.M.U./I. Also C.W. 8254. Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi

176. TELEGRAM TO MAGANLAL V. MEHTA

September 23, 1932

MAGANLAL VELJI MEHTA
114 CHINCHPOKLI
BOMBAY

YOU MUST NOT TAKE FAST WITH OR WITHOUT WATER IF YOU HAVE FAITH IN ME.

GANDHI

Government of Bombay, Home Department, I.G.P. File No. 20-IX

177. TELEGRAM TO SHRI KRISHNADAS MOR

September 23, 1932

SHRI KISEN MOR
VENKATESWARA STEAM PRESS
7 KHETWADI
BOMBAY

IF YOU HAVE FAITH IN ME YOU MUST NOT FAST.

GANDHI

Government of Bombay, Home Department, I.G.P. File No. 20-IX

---

1. From the placing of the item in the source
2. From the placing of the item in the source
178. TELEGRAM TO C. KRISHNA NAIR

[September 23, 1932]

KRISHNA NAIR
SWADESHI LEAGUE
CHANDNI CHOWK
DELHI

YOU MUST NOT FAST. YOU ARE UNDER DISCIPLINE AND BOUND TAKE PREVIOUS SANCTION FOR SUCH STEP. YOUR TIME JUST NOW FOR LABORIOUS WORK. GOD WILL APPOINT HIS OWN TIME FOR YOUR FASTING.

BAPU

Government of Bombay, Home Department, I.G.P. File No. 20-IX

179. LETTER TO MIRABEHN

September 23, 1932

CHI. MIRA,

The thought of you corrodes me. I wish you could be at peace. Do write daily and wire tomorrow your condition. I am taking the fast very well. I am writing this whilst I am lying down after the enema asbefore. Be steady and strong. Have faith in God. Shall send you daily report through Mahadev. May not be able myself to write.

Love.

BAPU

From a photostat: C.W. 9510. Courtesy: Mirabehn

180. STATEMENT TO THE PRESS

September 23, 1932

Though weakness must naturally creep on from day to day, compared to my previous fasts, I am taking this much more easily. I find myself also at perfect peace and hitherto I have found no difficulty in carrying on the prolonged and sustained conversations.

1 The statement was “in response to an invitation to reply to one or two questions” and was taken down by Mahadev Desai.

2 ibid
on the untouchability question with various deputations. Though this has required tremendous concentration, I have not felt any difficulty. I know however that I cannot carry on like this much longer. I am quite optimistic with regard to this afternoon’s conference.¹ My optimism may be perfectly stupid; for, if you were to ask me to give reasons, I have none, save that I have much faith in this fast as a God-ordained thing and I have an equal faith in the cause.

My message to British and American people is that they must not mistake this for a political move. It is a deep spiritual effort, a result of fifty years’ constant application to an ideal. It is a penance, and, seeing that the ideal is nothing less than the deliverance of several million human beings from horrible religious serfdom, success cannot but have its repercussions on the whole of humanity. It is because, rightly or wrongly, I believe the British decision imposing separate electorates threatens to put huge obstacle in the way of reform, which has been for the past ten years moving on in geometrical progression, that I have staked my life to resist it.

After three days, my conviction is stronger that the step I have taken is absolutely correct and, if my presentation is true, this cause demands the mobilization of world opinion, so as to compel right conduct by the British Government.

The Times of India, 24-9-1932

¹ An entry in Mahadevbhaini Diary, under this date says: “The whole Committee along with Dr. Ambedkar was expected at 4 p.m.”
181. TELEGRAM TO HEMPRABHA DAS GUPTA

September 24, 1932

HEMPRABHADEVI
KHADISTHAN
CALCUTTA

YOUR WIRES.. GOD BLESS YOU AND KEEP YOU. UNNECESSARY COME.
DOING WELL. LOVE.

BAPU

From a photostat: G.N. 1622

182. TELEGRAM TO NARANDAS GANDHI

POONA,
[September 24, 1932]¹

NARANDAS
ASHRAM SABARMATI
AHMEDABAD

YOUR SELF-DENIAL WORTHY OF YOU BUT I WANT YOU COME IF ONLY FOR DAY. BAPU STILL MAINTAINING STRENGTH.² GOD WILLING EVERYTHING WILL SOON BE WELL.

MAHADEV

From the Original: S.N. 33382

¹ From the postmark
² Gandhiji had started a fast unto death on September 20, 1932 as protest against the British Government’s announcement granting separate electorates for Depressed Classes. The fast was, however, broken on September 26, after the terms of a settlement were accepted by the British Government.
183. CABLE TO SAFIA ZAGHLOUL PASHA

September 24, 1932

THANK YOU FOR LOVING INSPIRING MESSAGE. GOD’S WILL BE DONE.

GANDHI

Bombay Secret Abstracts, Home Department, Special Branch, File No. 800 (40) (3), Pt. III, p. 355

184. LETTER TO MIRABEHN

September 24, 1932

MY DEAREST CHILD,

You are not to break. You must be seeing God’s grace pouring in abundance as perhaps never before.

Love.

BAPU

From the original: C.W. 6238. Courtesy: Mirabehn

185. TELEGRAM TO JAWAHARLAL NEHRU

September 24, 1932

PANDIT JAWAHARLAL NEHRU
JAIL DEHRADUN

DURING ALL THESE DAYS OF AGONY YOU HAVE BEEN BEFORE MIND’S

Widow of Egyptian nationalist leader Zaghloul Pasha. On hearing of Gandhiji’s fast she had cabled on September 23 the following message: “Egyptian people, men and women, who have been following with brotherly sympathy heroic struggle India and her great chief Mahatma Gandhi for liberty are now watching with beating hearts Mahatma’s sublime act of self-sacrifice for sake of India’s unity and freedom. As one who had shared with my late husband joy of working for and obtaining sacred unity of Egyptian Christians, Mahomedans, Copts and also other communities of whatever religion or denomination, may I express my sincere hope that India’s people inspired by Gandhi’s sublime act of self-abrogation would unite in one great mass of brothers and patriots to save India’s liberation and save life of her great son whose life and work are patrimony of East and humanity at large.”

This was scribbled by Gandhiji at the top of a letter Mahadev Desai wrote to Mirabehn informing her about Gandhiji’s condition on the fifth day of his fast.
113

EYE. I AM MOST ANXIOUS TO KNOW YOUR OPINION.¹ YOU KNOW HOW I VALUE YOUR OPINION. SAW INDU;² SARUP’S³ CHILDREN.⁴ INDU LOOKED HAPPY AND IN POSSESSION OF MORE FLESH. DOING VERY WELL. WIRE REPLY. LOVE.

BAPU

Gandhi-Nehru Papers, 1932. Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library

186. LETTER TO MATHURADAS TRIKUMJI

September 24, 1932

DEAR MATHURADAS,

Though this is the fifth day of Bapu’s fast, he is quite energetic. People like you and me would lose courage and give ourselves up to distress and dejection. But Bapu’s indomitable faith is sustaining him. God willing, everything will be over in a couple of days. I am writing this letter on behalf of Bapu. Hence instructions from the Inspector-General to the authorities there to permit you to send a reply are also being sent along with it.

Yours affectionately,

MAHADEV

SHRI MATHURADAS TRIKUMJI
‘B’ CLASS PRISONER
BELGAUM PRISON

From the Gujarati original: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

¹ Jawaharlal Nehru in his telegram, received on September 26, said: “Your telegram and brief news that some settlement reached filled me relief joy. First news your decision fast caused mental agony confusion but ultimately optimism triumphed regained peace mind. No sacrifice too great for suppressed downtrodden classes. Freedom must be judged by freedom of lowest but feel danger other issues obscuring only goal. Am unable judge from religious view-point. Danger your methods being exploited by others but how can I presume advise magician. Love.”
² Indira Nehru
³ Vijayalakshmi Pandit
⁴ handralekha and Nayantara
187. INTERVIEW TO “THE TIMES OF INDIA”

September 24, 1932

Yes, I shall certainly fast again, should the necessity arise as I firmly believe that by this means one can convince the world of the sincerity of one’s view.

So said Mr. Gandhi to me in answer to one of my questions when I had the pleasure of having a long talk with him on the fifth day of his fast in Yeravda Jail. . . .

I certainly did not expect when I set off from Poona station before seven in the morning that I would be able to see Mr. Gandhi so early. . . . What a pleasant surprise it was when I received word from the jail authorities that the time was opportune. The great doors of Yeravda swung open, and I walked in. . . .

My escort led me through a courtyard, then through another little door which led on to a small compound roughly 150 feet by 40 feet wide, on one side of which were a few cells intended for State prisoners, but they all appeared to be unoccupied. At one end of the compound under the shade of a small mango tree was Mr. Gandhi lying on a cot covered with a prison blanket.

At his head was one of his faithful followers fanning him gently with a towel to keep off pestering flies. Seated round him were Mr. Vallabhbhai Patel, Mrs. Gandhi, Mr. Mahadev Desai. Introductions over, Mr. Gandhi soon fell to asking me what particular question I wanted to ask him. But to see him looking so frail and weak and obviously ill—well, it seemed too much to start interviewing.

But his eyes flashed when he answered my question. He then appeared to recede into his shell, only raising himself up on his elbows to take a drink of water from a bottle at his side.

He said:

Very nasty, you know. At times I try to change it by putting in a pinch of salt, but through it all my stomach is in an intense state of nausea.

Mr. Gandhi said that he would be delighted to go to London for the third Conference if his demands would be met, but not otherwise.

Then I asked him what I thought was a pertinent question and certainly did not expect an answer, but the ailing man had always a ready reply, and here is what he said:

You ask, ‘Suppose all Indian leaders decided to practise this method of gaining their own ends, no matter for what cause?’ Well, I admit, there is a lot of risk in the method. But it is like every great power in the world. Misuse creates mischief. Let us take the illustration of a well-known poison—arsenic. It is a most powerful medicinal drug, but should not on that account be blotted out of existence, although we know that many people make harmful use of it. Therefore, if a thing is inherently good, and it is used at the proper time and in the proper measure, it is calculated to do universal good on an extensive scale almost bordering on the miraculous. One must make use of that power irrespective of the fact that others are likely to make harmful use of it.

Further, in case of fasting of this nature, there is not much scope for it to thrive or become popular for the simple reason that it is such an agonizing process that ordinary human nature shudders at the very thought of having to undergo it.

So you see, the danger is not so very great. It is only by training the body that one can do without food for any length of time. The undisciplined and weak would soon give up the idea.

At the end of this long statement Mr. Gandhi leant back, weak from exhaustion, onto his bed. Immediately two of the jail doctor were at his side to render what help they could. But Mr. Gandhi seemed to derive most comfort from Mrs. Gandhi, who although obviously suffering, seemed delighted to have the opportunity of altering his pillow, rubbing his forehead with olive oil, and quietly talking to him.

Meanwhile, Mr. Gandhi’s disciples were receiving other political visitors and soon the compound was a scene of bustle and excitement.

From his secretary I gathered that Mr. Gandhi rose during his fast every morning at four; prayers were said from then to about half-past four or five; then a shave by his prison barber, his breakfast—a drink of water—and, perhaps, an hour’s sleep. But this was constantly interrupted by special cables from all over the world. . . .

The Epic Fast, pp. 138-41
188. TELEGRAM TO SUNDESRING AND SONS

[On or after September 24, 1932]

CONGRATULATIONS. HOPE YOUR EXAMPLE WILL BE INFECTIOUS.

From a microfilm: S.N. 18551

189. CABLE TO C. F. ANDREWS

September 25, 1932

THE WONDERFUL MANIFESTATION THROUGHOUT INDIA IS A MODERN MIRACLE. GURUDEV HAS BEEN A TOWER OF STRENGTH. DEEP LOVE ALL FRIENDS. AT PERFECT PEACE. NO CONDITONAL ACCEPTANCE OF THE SETTLEMENT WILL WARRANT MY BREAKING THE FAST.

The Epic Fast, p. 134

190. TELEGRAM TO V. S. SRINIVASA SASTRI

[September 25, 1932]

WAS DAILY HANKERING AFTER YOUR MESSAGE. IT HAS GIVEN ME FRESH COURAGE AND HOPE. I HOPE YOU ARE WELL. LOVE.

GANDHI

The Epic Fast, pp. 196-7

191. TELEGRAM TO PANDURANG M. BAPAT

September 25, 1932

YOUR REASON FOR FAST IS TOUCHING BUT I WOULD LIKE YOU RECONSIDER YOUR DECISION ON STRENGTH OF CONTRARY OPINION OF AN EXPERT LIKE ME IN SUCH MATTERS. I FEEL CONVINCED THAT YOUR FAST HAS NO RELIGIOUS SANCTION. SINCE YOU FEEL FOR ME YOU

---

1 This was in reply to the addressee’s telegram of September 24, which read: “Obedience your commands throwing open our famous sherbet-house untouchables first time last twenty years risking orthodox customers. Ramdayal M.L.C. shoemaker formally opening Tuesday. Awaiting your parental blessings.”

2 This was in answer to Sastri’s telegram which read: “Millions of homes rejoice and bless your superb service performed in your superb style. I confess I trembled in doubt but the result vindicates and establishes you as indisputably the foremost untouchable and ‘unapproachable’.”

3 From Mahadevbhaini Diary.

4 A revolutionary, popularly known as Senapati Bapat

116 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
SHOULD NOT DIE WITH ME BUT LIVE TO CARRY ON MY WORK. THINK OF CONSEQUENCE IF ALL CO-WORKERS WERE TO DIE WITH ME. WILL THAT ACT NOT BE CRIMINAL? PLEASE LISTEN. GOD BLESS YOU.

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, pp. 82-3

192. CABLE TO LAWRENCE HOUSMAN

September 25, 1932

LAWRENCE HOUSMAN
46 LANCASTER GATE
LONDON

THANKS YOUR CABLE. MY FAST IS APPEAL NOT MERELY TO HINDUS OR INDIA IN GENERAL BUT BRITISH CONSCIENCE, INDEED TO WHOLE WORLD. THIS DISTRUST MISREPRESENTATION OF MAN WHO LOVES BRITISH PEOPLE IS ENIGMA TO ME SINCE MY DEEPEST FAITH FORBIDS RESORT PHYSICAL FORCES. I AM PRAYING GOD DISCOVER TO ME SUCH FINAL WAY CORPORATE SELF-SUFFERING EXTREME KIND AND GIVE STRENGTH UNDERGO IT. WHEN IF REQUIRED SUCH TIME COMES I KNOW IT WILL PENETRATE EVERY BRITISH HOME. I HAD HOPED THAT APPEAL FROM THIS FIERY BED WOULD SOMEWHA T WAKE UP BRITISH PUBLIC AS IT SEEMS TO HAVE MARVELLOUSLY AROUSED INDIA. BUT GOD’S WILL WAS PERHAPS OTHERWISE. WANTING AS I DO BRITISH SYMPATHY AND HELP I WILL VALUE ANYTHING YOUR MEETING MAY DO. I KNOW I HAVE SILENT SYMPATHY AND PRAYER OF THOUSANDS OF BRITISH MEN AND WOMEN.

GANDHI

1 The addressee had asked for a message for a special meeting of the Friends of India to be held on September 27, 1932, to explain the significance of Gandhiji’s fast.
193. TELEGRAM TO DR. NILARANJAN RAY AND DR. B. C. ROY

September 25, 1932

YOUR ADVICE AS DOCTORS IS PERFECT. ITS HUMAN VALUE IS NEXT TO NOTHING. YOU WILL NOT HAVE A FELLOW BEING DENY HIS FAITH. THANK YOU VERY MUCH. FAST GOING WELL.

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 84

194. RESOLUTION AT THE HINDU LEADERS’ CONFERENCE, BOMBAY

September 25, 1932

This Conference resolves that henceforth, amongst Hindus, no one shall be regarded as an untouchable by reason of his birth and those who have been so regarded hitherto will have the same rights as the other Hindus as regard to the use of public wells, public roads and other public institutions. This right shall have statutory recognition at the first opportunity and shall be one of the earliest acts of the Swaraj Parliament, if it shall not have received such recognition before that time.

It is further agreed that it shall be the duty of all Hindu leaders to secure, by every legitimate and peaceful means, an early removal of all social disabilities now imposed by custom upon the so-called untouchable classes including the bar in respect of admission to temples.

Mahatma, Vol. III, p. 213

195. DRAFT RESOLUTION ON UNTOUCHABILITY

[September 25, 1932]

I am touchable by birth and an untouchable by choice. It is as an untouchable that I have conceived the following part for the acceptance of touchables and untouchables. Henceforth in Hinduism

---

1 This resolution was drafted by Gandhiji.
2 From para 2, which is reproduced as a “Resolution at the Hindu Leaders’ Conference, Bombay”, 25-9-1932; Vide “Resolution at the Hindu Leaders’ Conference, Bombay”, 25-9-1932.
no one shall be regarded as untouchable by reason of his birth or occupation. Those who have been so regarded have the same right that the other Hindus have to entry into public temples, use of public wells, public schools, public roads and all other public institutions. This right shall receive statutory recognition at the first opportunity and shall be the first act of the Swaraj Parliament if it has not already received statutory recognition. Every adult male and female belonging to the erstwhile untouchables class shall be registered as voter in the general joint register unless disqualified by reason of imprisonment or lunacy or mental deficiency within one year after first election for new provincial legislatures and the central legislature under the revised franchise. A referendum shall be taken of the voters belonging to the e.u.c. and if it is found that thirty-three per cent of the votes of a provincial legislature or the central legislature as the case may be, have signified their dissatisfaction with the number of representatives of e.u. class returned by the electorate, fresh elections of members of the general electorate shall take place for the particular provincial legislature or the central legislature as the case may be, with reservation of seat for the e.u.c. guaranteed by statute for the next ten years on the basis of population, provided however that no referendum will be necessary where representatives of that class have been elected in accordance with the proportion of their population.

Untouchables shall be defined as those Hindus whose touch, sight or sound is regarded by popular local Hindu custom as pollution. This pact shall be sealed by representatives of Hindu Mahasabha, Hindu religious heads, well-known learned Hindu scholars and shall be accompanied by a pledge as under, signed by at least two persons who have been known for their service of the cause of untouchability.

I hereby solemnly pledge myself to serve by strictly non-violent and truthful means the due fulfilment by the so-called caste Hindus of the pact entered into between them and the Hindus hitherto known as ‘untouchables’ and to that end shall be prepared to undergo all the 1 Presumably the Poona Pact which was entered into between the leaders of Hindus and Depressed Classes at Poona on 24-9-1932 regarding reservation of seats for the Depressed Classes in the Legislatures; Vide “Agreement Between Depressed Classes Leaders and Caste Hindu Leaders”.

VOL. 57 : 5 SEPTEMBER, 1932 - 15 NOVEMBER, 1932
necessary suffering, even the suffering of death by sacrificial fasting, and in order to qualify myself for that purpose I shall strive my best to lead a pure, abstemious, correct and God-fearing life.

From a photostat: S.N. 18867

196. MESSAGE TO GREAT BRITAIN

September 25, 1932

Every day of the fast seems to me conclusive evidence of the hand of God in it. Even I with my boundless faith in God and His mercy was not prepared for this great wave of awakening against untouchability. That some of the great temples should have spontaneously admitted the untouchables without restriction is to me a modern miracle. They have only now admitted God. Hitherto, the images which the custodians, falsely and in their pride, thought had God within were Godless.

The Cabinet decision was to me a timely warning from God that I was asleep when He was knocking at the door and waking me up. The settlement1 arrived at is to me but the beginning of the work of purification. The agony of the soul is not going to end until every trace of untouchability is gone. I do not want the British Cabinet to come to any hasty decision. I do not want them for saving my life or for appearing to be right with the world to accept it in a niggardly spirit. If they have not realized the true inwardness of the Agreement, they must summarily reject it, but if they have, they will not alter one word or comma of it, but they will implement every condition that is implied in the great settlement which the so-called untouchables and the so-called touchables have arrived at with all their heart and with God as their witness.

I hope that they and the world will realize that this settlement is, if I may say so in all humility, far superior to the Cabinet decision. There is no pride about it. The Cabinet composed of foreigners, knowing nothing first hand of the Indian conditions or what untouchability could mean, were labouring under a heavy handicap,

---

1 The message was given in an interview to Ellen Wilkinson and V. K. Krishna Menon of the India League and was first published in The Daily Herald of London.

2 For the text of the settlement, signed on September 24, Vide “Agreement Between Depressed Classes Leaders and Caste Hindu Leaders”.

120
THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
and even though some Indians had referred this matter to them, they should have declined the responsibility to which they were wholly unequal.

I am not saying this from my penitential bed in any carping spirit or spirit of irritation.

I claim to be a true friend of the British nation and also of the Cabinet, and I would be untrue to them, to myself and to my call, if at this moment I suppressed my relevant opinion. I would like finally to assure Britain that so long as life lasts in me, I shall undergo as many fasts as are necessary in order to purify Hinduism of this unbearable taint. Thank God there is not only one man in this movement but, I believe, there are several thousands who will lay down their life in order to achieve this reform in its fulness.

_The Epic Fast_, pp. 136-7

197. STATEMENT TO THE PRESS

_Scember 25, 1932

If the Premier accepts the settlement _in toto_ I would be bound to break the fast. The settlement, as far as the political part of it is concerned, merely removes the tremendous obstacle that the Cabinet’s decision put in the way of reform. The real part of the settlement is now to come and whilst, if the Premier accepts _in toto_ the settlement cabled to him, my fast must end, the real struggle for me only begins. As a matter of fact if the Cabinet had published the correspondence in time I would have been in honour bound to insist on the due fulfilment of the duty that lies on the so-called caste Hindus.

I should be guilty of betrayal of trust if I did not ensure that, but as they had no notice worth the name of my intention to fast, I could not expect them all of a sudden to revolutionize Hindu thought. They must, therefore, have breathing time for work, and so I have told fellow-workers that if this fast is broken in virtue of the Cabinet’s satisfactory answer it would be put in suspension, but sure as fate, it will be taken up again if the part to be performed by the caste Hindus is not well played during the coming months.

The tremendous awakening that has taken place in the country during the five days fills me with hope that orthodoxy will surpass itself and rid Hinduism of the canker of untouchability which is eating into its vitals.

I suppose the future plan is in the hands of Government.

_The Epic Fast_, p. 135
198. MESSAGE TO SOUTH INDIA

September 25, 1932

It has been a matter of increasing joy, day by day, to find great ancient temples being opened to the so-called “untouchables” and thus becoming purified. This one fact, among many others, has been a great sustaining force during these days of agony of body, mind and soul. But the joy about the opening of the temples has not been unmixed with sorrow, in that the South, where my work on a larger scale amongst “untouchables” began, though in South Africa, has not been as prompt and generous in throwing open the gates of the temples to outcastes. Speaking as a Hindu, striving to find and to live up to the very essence of it, I say, without the slightest hesitation, that God will be installed in the idols of the temples only if they are thrown open unreservedly to outcastes. Today, with human outcastes, God Himself is an outcaste.

M. K. GANDHI

The Hindu, 26-9-1932

199. CABLE TO MUSTAFA NAHAS PASHA

September 26, 1932

DEEPLY TOUCHED BY YOUR MESSAGE. MAY THIS PURIFICATORY FAST TOUCH ALL FAITHS; BRING THEM AND US TOGETHER IN A LIVING BOND. EGYPTIAN BLANKET PRESENTED TO ME DURING LAST VOYAGE COVERS ME DURING THIS STRUGGLE WITH ALLAH WHO IS GREAT AND MERCIFUL.

GANDHI

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 85

1 This was in answer to Nahas Pasha’s Cable of September 24 which read: “Your resolve to sacrifice your own life, rather than tolerate any measure promoting disunion or caste prejudices amongst Indians has deeply stirred the heart of Egypt, which has, since the last decade been linked with India by the holy bond of suffering for the same ideal of national self-expression and liberty. Egyptians of all sects and religions, united in love of the Fatherland, are confident that the great Indian people will unite in preserving Mahatma’s life by redeeming their sacred unity. All struggling nations of the East look up to India for fulfilling the noble idea for which Gandhiji is giving up his life. In the name of Egypt and her people, I send you and the Indian people our brotherly love and heartfelt wishes for realization of ideals of truth, freedom and equality as embodied in the great example you are setting before the world.” The Epic Fast.
200. TELEGRAM TO MIRABEHN

September 26, 1932

MIRABEHN
ARTHUR ROAD JAIL

NO LETTER SENT TODAY. THANK GOD FAST BROKEN 5.15 PRESENCE GURUDEV OTHER LOVING FRIENDS. LOVE.

BAPU

From the original: C.W. 6239. Courtesy: Mirabehn

201. STATEMENT TO THE PRESS

September 26, 1932

The fast undertaken in the name of the God was broken in the presence of Gurudev, and Parachure Shastri, the leper prisoner and a learned pandit, seated opposite each other, and in the company of loving and loved ones who had gathered round me. The breaking was preceded by the Poet singing one of his Bengali hymns, then mantras from the Upanishads by Parachure Shastri, and then my favourite hymn “Vaishnava Jana”.

The hand of God has been visible in the glorious manifestation throughout the length and breadth of India during the past seven days. The cables received from many parts of the world blessing the fast have sustained me through the agony of body and soul that I passed through during the seven days, but the cause was worth going through that agony.

The sacrificial fire, once lit, shall not be put out as long as there is the slightest trace of untouchability still left in Hinduism. If it is God’s will that it does not end with my life, I have the confidence that there are several thousands of earnest reformers who will lay down their lives in order to purify Hinduism of this awful curse.

The settlement arrived at is, so far as I can see, a generous gesture on all sides. It is a meeting of hearts, and my Hindu gratitude is due to Dr. Ambedkar, Rao Bahadur Srinivasan and their party on the one hand and Rao Bahadur M. C. Raja on the other. They could have taken up an uncompromising and defiant attitude by way of punishment to the so-called caste Hindus for the sins of generations. If they had done so, I at least could not have resented their attitude and my death would have been but a trifling price exacted for the tortures that the outcastes of Hinduism have been going through for unknown generations. But they chose a nobler path and have thus shown that they have followed the precept of forgiveness enjoined by all religions. Let me hope that the caste Hindus will prove themselves worthy of this forgiveness and carry out to the letter and spirit every clause of the settlement with all its implications.

The settlement is but the beginning of the end. The political part of it, very important though it no doubt is, occupies but a small space in the vast field of reform that has to be tackled by caste Hindus during the coming days, namely, the complete removal of social and religious disabilities under which a large part of the Hindu population has been groaning. I should be guilty of a breach of trust if I did not warn fellow reformers and caste Hindus in general that the breaking of the fast carried with it a sure promise of a resumption of it if this reform is not relentlessly pursued and achieved within a measurable period. I had thought of laying down a period, but I feel that I may not do so without a definite call from within.

The message of freedom shall penetrate every untouchable home and that can only happen if reformers will cover every village. Yet, in the wave of enthusiasm and in an inordinate desire to spare me a repetition of the agony, there should be no coercion. We must, by patient toil and self-suffering, convert the ignorant and the superstitious but never seek to compel them by force.

I wish, too, that the almost ideal solution that has been arrived at may be followed by the other communities, and that we might see the dawn of a new era of mutual trust, mutual give and take, and a recognition of the fundamental unity of all communities. I would here single out the Hindu-Muslim-Sikh question. I am the same to the Mussalman today that I was in 1920-22. I should be just as prepared to lay down my life as I was in Delhi\(^1\) to achieve organic unity and permanent peace between them. I hope and pray that there will be, as a result of this upheaval, a spontaneous move in this direction and then, surely, the other communities can no longer stand out.

In conclusion, I would like to thank the Government and the Jail staff and the medical men appointed by the Government to look after me. Extreme care and attention was bestowed upon me. Nothing was left undone. The jail staff worked under terrible pressures, and I observed that they did not grudge this labour. I thank them all from high to low.

---

\(^1\) In September 1924.

I thank the British Cabinet for hastening the decision on settlement. The terms of the decision sent to me I have not approached without misgivings. It accepts, I suppose very naturally, only that part of the Agreement that refers to the British Cabinet’s communal decision. I expect that they had a constitutional difficulty in now announcing their acceptance of the whole Agreement. But I would like to assure my Harijan friends, as I would like henceforth to name them, that so far as I am concerned, I am wedded to the whole of that Agreement, and that they may hold my life as hostage for its due fulfilment, unless we ourselves arrive at any other and better settlement of our own free will.

The Hindu, 27-9-1932, and The Epic Fast, pp. 142-5

202. TELEGRAM TO M. KRISHNAN NAIR

[On or before September 27, 1932]

YOU KNOW THAT KELAPPAN IS ONE OF THE BEST KERALA WORKERS, MOST DEVOTED TO THE UNTOUCHABLES’ CAUSE. IF NECESSARY YOU AND OTHER INFLUENTIAL PEOPLE SHOULD PROCEED TO THE SCENE OF THE SACRIFICE AND SAVE KELAPPAN BY HAVING THE TEMPLE OPEN TO HARIJANS.

The Bombay Chronicle, 29-9-1932

---

1 The addressee was the Law Member of Madras.
2 The newspaper report is dated September 27.
3 Kelappan had been fasting since September 20; Vide “Telegram to Maharaja of Travancore”, 1-10-1932.
4 The addressee thought the temple being private property, it would not be proper either for him or the Government to interfere.
203. STATEMENT TO THE PRESS

[On or before September 27, 1932]

Thank you for your congratulations. None would be more delighted than I would be to endorse any worthy suggestion for co-operation by the Congress with the Government and the Round Table Conference. I would only emphasize and underline the adjective “worthy”. Despite my repeated declarations it is not generally recognized that by instinct I am a co-operator. My very non-co-operation is intended to purge co-operation not worth the name. Therefore, as far as I am personally concerned, when the proper time comes, I should throw the whole of my weight in favour of co-operation.

_The Hindu_, 28-9-1932

204. TELEGRAM TO M. R. JAYAKAR

_M. R. JAYAKAR_
MALABAR HILL
BOMBAY
THANKS. WIRE EXPECT YOU CONTINUE UNABATED EFFORT UNTIL UNTOUCHABILITY WHOLLY REMOVED.

GANDHI

Jayakar’s Private Papers: Correspondence File No. 421, p. 46. Courtesy: National Archives of India

205. TELEGRAM TO RAMESHWARDAS PODDAR

_RAMESHWAR SETH_
DHULIA
RAPIDLY RECOVERING. NO ANXIETY.

BAPU

From a photostat: G.N. 740.

---

1 This was in response to a message of congratulations from Press representatives who had also enquired about the chances of Congress co-operation in the work of the Round Table Conference.

2 The newspaper report is dated September 27.
206. TELEGRAM TO MAHARAJA OF TRAVANCORE

September 27, 1932

THE LIFE OF ONE OF KERALA’S GREAT SERVANTS, KELAPPAN, HANGS IN THE BALANCE FOR OPENING GURUVAYUR. SEEING THAT THE UNEXAMPLED WAVE OF AWAKENING PASSING THROUGHOUT THE LAND FAVOURS OPENING ALL Temples. WILL YOU NOT EXERT YOUR GREAT INFLUENCE SECURING OPENING GURUVAYUR AND, IF POSSIBLE, OTHER Temples? YOU KNOW PERHAPS THAT KELAPPAN HAS BEEN Fasting SINCE 20TH OPENING TEMPLE.¹

GANDHI

The Hindu, 1-10-1932

207. TELEGRAM TO ABBAS TYABJI

September 27, 1932

ABBAS SAHEB TYABJI CARE DOCTOR SHAH
WADIHAN CITY

YOUR NERVOUSNESS BETRAYS WANT OF FAITH. AM FLOURISHING ON ORANGES GRAPES. ALLAHO AKBAR.

BHRRR²

From a photostat: S.N. 9579

208. LETTER TO E. E. DOYLE

September 27, 1932

DEAR COL. DOYLE,

The substance of what I said to you yesterday before breaking my fast was this. I was breaking the fast not without misgivings in that

¹ In reply to a similar telegram from Purushottamdas, the Dewan of Travancore said: “His Highness’s Government is surprised at statement that Maharaja’s approval necessary to throwing open Guruvayur temple. Government unaware of any authority or privilege over Guruvayur . . . . Kindly communicate Mr. Gandhi.”

² The source has ‘burry’ which seems to be a slip for ‘Bhrrr’, which Gandhiji and the addressee used for each other in their correspondence.
the British Government’s acceptance of the Settlement related only to the part that was included in the British Government’s communal decision. This was perhaps natural. But I was bound to make my position clear—that I would be in honour bound to secure a due fulfilment of the whole of the settlement. The second thing that I drew your attention to was that I would expect Government to continue the facilities given to me since 20th for seeing friends and sending messages in the matter of the untouchability question. The British acceptance has reference only to the political part of the settlement, but the most vital part for the whole of the Hindu community is that relating to social and religious reform. In order to set it on a firm footing it is necessary for me to be in touch with the workers for some time to come. In order to avoid any misunderstanding therefore I mentioned this very important thing to you before breaking the fast.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat: G.N. 3860. Also Bombay Secret Abstracts, Home Department, Special Branch, File No. 800(40)(4), Pt. I, p. 141
209. LETTER TO MIRABEHN

September 27, 1932

CHI. MIRA,

God is great and compassionate. He would not try His servants beyond endurance. And so the Government reply came in time to enable me to break the fast yesterday 5 p.m. The Poet led the prayer and he was followed by the leper prisoner Parachure Shastri who was for some time at the Ashram.

This is enough for today.

Love.

BAPU

From the original: C.W. 6240. Courtesy: Mirabehn

210. LETTER TO MIRABEHN

September 28, 1932

CHI. MIRA,

I had two letters from you yesterday. I wrote a brief note¹ myself which I hope you got. Something has gone to you daily from here and the I.G. assured me that my letters would be given to you at once. So I cannot understand this absence of delivery of my letters.

However, all is over now. I am taking plenty of oranges and grapes and am gaining strength. Sleep is good. There is therefore now no cause for anxiety.

The Orissa scene you describe and two others in Malabar have haunted me during these days and made the pangs bearable. Gurudev’s coming was and still is a great solace. He has been unstinting in his support.

I hope you are cheerful now. Remember me to your companions.

Love to you and Kisen.

BAPU

From the original: C.W. 6241. Courtesy: Mirabehn

¹ Vide the preceding item.
211. NOTE TO P. N. RAJBOJ

September 28, 1932

I have already made my appeal to the caste Hindus as to their duty, but as a self-chosen Harijan I would like to say a word to them also. They have to perform their part during this period of purification. Owing to suppression they have been deprived of ways and means of observing, and the incentive to the observation of, the ordinary laws of cleanliness and the like, but let us hope that a new era has dawned upon us. I hope that Harijans will understand this and in so far as possible they will observe the laws of cleanliness, abstain from intoxicating liquors and drugs and make a mighty effort to get rid of all social evils.

M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat: G.N. 790

212. TELEGRAM TO K. KELAPPAN

September 29, 1932

THE ZAMORIN WIRES ASKING ME TO APPEAL TO YOU TO SUSPEND FAST FOR SOME MONTHS. HE SAYS PRESENT ENTRY OF UNTOUCHABLES WOULD WOUND ORTHODOX CONSCIENCE AND SUCH WOUNDING WOULD AMOUNT TO COERCION. ASK YOURSELF WHETHER THERE IS ANY ROOM FOR YOU ON THIS RELEVANT GROUND TO POSTPONE THE FAST AND WHETHER IN TERMS OF THE ZAMORIN’S TELEGRAM YOU HAD GIVEN SUFFICIENT NOTICE OF THE EXTREME STEP.¹

GANDHI

The Hindus, 30-9-1932

¹ Kelappan’s reply to this read: “The Zamorin may not complain insufficiency of notice. One or two people will always be found who will oppose any reform to the end of time, but the question of wounding the hearts and self-respect of thousands of depressed brethren is more real and important than the alleged wounding of the orthodox conscience.”
213. TELEGRAM TO K. KELAPPAN

[September 29, 1932]

YOUR LETTER WAS JUST RECEIVED. I HAD A CONFERENCE EARLY THIS MORNING WITH PT. MALAVIYA, MR. RANGASWAMI IYEYNGAR AND OTHERS ABOUT THE PROPRIETY OF MALAVIYAJI’S PROCEEDING THERE. I HAVE BEEN IN TELEGRAPHIC COMMUNICATION WITH OTHERS ALSO. THEY ALL PRESS ME TO ORDER YOU TO STOP THE FAST. I WAS HESITATING. YOUR LETTER HOWEVER MAKES MY WAY CLEAR. EMPHATICALLY I THINK YOU MADE TWO MISTAKES. THOUGH YOU WERE BOUND TO CONSULT ME YOU FAILED TO DO SO NO MATTER FOR WHAT CAUSE. SECONDLY YOU WERE BOUND TO GIVE REASONABLE NOTICE OF THE INTENTION TO FAST. MY STRONG ADVICE THEREFORE IS YOU SHOULD SUSPEND THE FAST ON THE STRENGTH OF THIS TELEGRAM AND GIVE FROM THE DATE OF SUSPENSION THREE CLEAR MONTHS’ NOTICE. IF IN THE MEANWHILE THE TEMPLE IS NOT OPENED TO HARIJANS AND SUBJECT TO MY CONSENT YOU WILL RESUME THE FAST. MEANWHILE CONCENTRATED EFFORT WILL BE MADE TO HAVE THE TEMPLE OPENED AND IF NECESSARY MALAVIYAJI WILL PROCEED THERE. YOU WILL GREATLY RELIEVE MY ANXIETY BY TELLING ME THAT YOU HAVE FOLLOWED MY ADVICE.¹

The Hindu, 3-10-1932.

214. TELEGRAM TO RAMASWAMI IYER GOPALA NAIR

[September 29, 1932]

RAMASWAMIER GOPALANAIR

CHOWGHAT

LYING SIMILAR SITUATION MYSELF I DARE NOT INTERFERE KELAPPAN’S CONSCIENCE. SHAME WILL BE YOURS AND THOSE NEAR THERE IF SUCH A SELFLESS SPLENDID WORKER IS LOST. I HAVE ASSUMED THAT KELAPPAN’S FAST HAS NO CONNECTION WITH MINE.

¹ From Mahadevbhaini Diary.
² Kelappan’s reply was: “Neither the Zamorin nor the public can plead insufficiency of notice. Ten months’ satyagraha notice was sufficient. Volunteers are standing in sun and rain—a more moving sight than my fast. . . . I believe, my fast has roused the public and if continued will shortly bring the fight to victory. In my opinion, my stopping the fast would set back the movement. . . .”
³ Vide the preceding item
HOWEVER IN ORDER TO MAKE ASSURANCE DOUBLE SURE I HAVE SENT LONG TELEGRAM JUST NOW TO KELAPPAN TO BREAK FAST IF IT IS IN IMITATION OF MINE.

GANDHI

Government of Bombay, Home Department, I.G.P. File No. 20-IX

215. LETTER TO M. G. BHANDARI

September 29, 1932 (1.45 p. m.)

DEAR MAJOR BHANDARI,

The orders you verbally conveyed to me at 12.30 this morning I interpret as follows: I am not to be allowed to see from this date any visitors regarding untouchability or any other public work, except Sjts. Ghanshyamdas Birla and Mathuradas Vasanji. Secondly Mrs. Gandhi should be forthwith removed to the Female Yard; all other visits to be regulated as before the fast, under the general instructions that were conveyed to me soon after my admission and amended thereafter. This means that I shall not have the privilege of seeing Shrimati Sarojinidevi, whose presence during my illnesses has produced a soothing effect on me, nor of my son Devdas and his intended wife, nor of the Ashram inmates who have been in attendance upon me during this crisis. I must confess that I was wholly unprepared for this very sudden and rude reminder that I was but a prisoner whose body was entirely at the mercy of the Government. I would like, however, the Government to know that I am still considered to be convalescent and under orders not even to move from my bed. I had hoped that at least during the convalescent period I would be saved all unnecessary shock to my nerves. However, this need not be a matter of moment to the Government and ought not to worry me overmuch, if at all. Indeed I am thankful for the medical attendance that the Government provided for me and the free attendance of visitors and friends during the fast. But what I cannot understand is this sudden stopping of all visits, even in connection with untouchability work, save those of Sjts. Ghanshyamdas and Mathuradas. The Government cannot be unaware of the phenomenal awakening that has taken place in the country, nor of the repercussions of the fast whose limitations have been but little understood and which is being blindly imitated by enthusiastic young men. I therefore hold it absolutely necessary that I should be left entirely free to see whomsoever I consider necessary regarding untouchability. The Government have not yet seemed to have revised their instructions regarding correspondence. Needless to say what applied to visitors regarding untouchability applies equally to correspondence. Nor need I add that I should not have the slightest objection to Government officials and interpreters attending any interviews I might have with visitors and my correspondence being scrutinized. As this is a matter of the greatest urgency, I hope that the Government will favour me with their decision at the earliest possible moment.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat: G.N. 3861. Also Bombay Secret Abstracts, Home Department, Special Branch, File No. 800(40)(4), Pt. I, p. 191

216. LETTER TO MIRABEHN

September 29, 1932

CHI. MIRA,

This is the third letter after the breaking of the fast and written just after the first fruit meal consisting of oranges and grape juice. And that has been my principal food. Yesterday I took thin soup made of turai¹. Today I propose to take milk.

Your letters have come in regularly. I cannot understand why mine have not been received by you. I am inquiring.

Strength is rapidly coming. There was yesterday already a gain of 1 1/2 lb., i.e., 95 lb.

I did write to Romain Rolland.² There was a cable from him on the break of the fast.

I read your message to Gurudev yesterday and I touched his feet for you, as Mahadev, poet-like, had forgotten to do so.

Ba, of course, forgot all her misery as soon as she came here. She seems to have borne it all very bravely indeed.

¹ Ridge gourd
² This letter is not available.
I hope you are all quite composed now. The fast was really nothing compared to the miseries that the outcastes have undergone for ages.

Love to you and Kisen.

BAPU

From the original: C.W. 6242. Courtesy: Mirabehn

217. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

September 29, 1932

CHI. NARANDAS,

I am becoming impatient to write to everybody. I hope to be strong enough to write in two or three days. This morning, after eating some fruit I wrote four or five letters which seemed urgent to me.

I suppose you have heard the news of Trivedi’s sister-in-law having died in an accident.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./I. Also C.W. 8257. Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi

218. LETTER TO C. F. ANDREWS

September 30, 1932

Your very first wire showed what my fast meant to you. For me it was the clearest call from God. Events have converted even the scoffers. I did expect a mighty response from the orthodox, but I was unprepared for the sudden manifestation that took place. But I shall not be deceived. It remains to be seen whether the temples opened remain open and the various other things done persist. This breaking of the fast is therefore but a suspension. However, I am not worrying. The fast and its breaking were God’s doing. And so will the resumption be, if it is to come.

Gurudev’s visit was a blessing. We have come nearer each other than ever before. I do not know if Mahadev had time to tell you how

---

1 J. P. Trivedi of Poona Agricultural College my letter written to him on the eve of the fast and his wire to me blessing it crossed each other. And then later on came Sastri’s most loving wire.

But this is all history now. I am daily gathering strength. No anxiety please.

[PS.]

As I have been writing the European love letters your cable also signed by Verrier comes to me. God be thanked. I know you are labouring.

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, pp. 90-1

219. LETTER TO HORACE G. ALEXANDER

September 30, 1932

MY DEAR HORACE,

I am expending my energy today in sending love letters to friends in England. I have written so much already that I am not going to say anything to you beyond sending my love to you, Olive and all the brothers and sisters of the Settlement. During the fast the English friends were ever near my heart.

Yours,

BAPU

From a photostat: G.N. 1414.

220. LETTER TO F. MARY BARR

September 30, 1932

DEAR MARY.

This is just to send you my love. I had your delicious oranges. The extract you have sent from Bunyan is very good. I am making steady progress. Every moment I mutter, God is great and merciful.

BAPU

From a photostat: G.N. 5984. Also C.W. 3312. Courtesy: F. Mary Barr

221. LETTER TO C. Y. CHINTAMANI

September 30, 1932

God was my guide and sustainer during those days of triple agony.

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 94

222. LETTER TO VERRIER ELWIN

September 30, 1932

It required my fast, among many other things also, to bring me in physical touch with members of the Sangh. I had loving chats with Father Winslow. I was glad to know these brethren. Shyamrao was also with them.

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 92

223. LETTER TO AGATHA HARRISON

September 30, 1932

MY DEAR AGATHA,

I could read your agony through your cable and your letter. But it was all well worth it. I was glad you had Charlie Andrews by your side. I had fullest faith in your doing all you could. Nothing more could be expected of anyone. As you would perhaps be reading one another’s letters, I am not saying more is this brief love note.

Love.

BAPU

From a photostat: G.N. 1458

\textsuperscript{1} Christ Seva Sangh of Poona
224. LETTER TO MURIEL LESTER

September 30, 1932

All is over and the much advertised fast is a thing of the past. It was an experience well worth having, if only for the sake of the love it evoked from all parts of the world and the wave of reform that passed from one end of India to the other.

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 92

225. LETTER TO ESTHER MENON

September 30, 1932

MY DEAR CHILD,

Even from this distance I could realize your agony. But God never comes to us except through the way of fire. There is a deep unconscious joy felt during such purifying agony. I hope that you were partaker of such joy during the trial. I saw or rather heard your name together with those of Horace Alexander and Andrews among the senders of a loving message from England. I am growing stronger day by day.

You won’t expect a long letter from me today. I am expending what energy I have in writing love notes to friends in England.

Love to you. Kisses to children.

BAPU

My Dear Child, p. 93

226. LETTER TO H. S. L. AND MILLIE POLAK

September 30, 1932

MY DEAR HENRY AND MILLIE, OR MILLIE AND HENRY, IF YOU LIKE,

Your wires and telepathic messages have told me what you must have felt, and done during all these days of joyous pangs. It was travail of new birth, which it has been undoubtedly to me, as I think it has been to superstitious ignorant Hinduism. The great manifestation was worth fasting for. Tokens of love from outside India, from England, have been also many and true. The threefold agony was much eased by the knowledge of all these things.

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 93
227. LETTER TO REGINALD REYNOLDS

September 30, 1932

MY DEAR REYNOLDS,

You need no written sign of love from me. But as I am writing to the English friends, I send this superfluous word of love to you.

BAPU

From a photostat: C.W. 4542. Courtesy: Swarthmore College, Philadelphia

228. LETTER TO ROMAIN ROLLAND AND MEDELEINE ROLLAND

September 30, 1932

MY DEAR FRIENDS,

I had your loving message. You were ever present to me during the travail. God’s mercy was bountiful and traceable during the whole of the great drama. As I was finishing this, I had Mira’s letter. Hers has been an agony without felt joy. But she has chosen the spiked bed and she is bravely lying on it.

Mahadevbhai Diary, Vol. II, p. 93

229. LETTER TO V. S. SRINIVASA SASTRI

September 30, 1932

DEAREST BROTHER AND FRIEND,

Your wire¹ and your letter are my treasure and my food. I shall not misunderstand you. Under better auspices I anticipate no difficulty in rendering a full and intelligible account of my doings in London. But that is a matter of small account. I want our love to stand the severest ordeal.

I am flourishing.

With deep love,

Mahadevbhai Diary, Vol. II, p. 94

230. LETTER TO ABBAS TYABJI

September 30, 1932

MY DEAR BHRRR,

Your faith was indeed great and events have justified it. It was so vital that you needed no effort to restrain yourselves from running to me as so many friends did. Yes, the prophecy or presentiment of Mrs. Abbas has come true. My warm congratulations to her.

I am flourishing on milk and fruit.

Love from us all.

Yours,

BHRRR

From a photostat: S.N. 9580

231. LETTER TO ADA WEST

September 30, 1932

MY DEAR DEVI,

I know what it must have meant to you to hear of my fast. But it was God’s will. Could you not trace it in everything that followed?

Love.

Bhai

From a photostat: C.W. 4434. Courtesy: A. H. West

232. LETTER TO NAUKLAL AND MOTIBEHN CHOKSHI

September 30, 1932

CHI. NAUKLAL AND MOTI,

I had got your postcard. God has given me a new life. He will now lead me where He wills.

I hope all three of you are well. I am now regaining strength.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: S.N. 12151
233. LETTER TO DR. HIRALAL SHAH

September 30, 1932

I suffered much physically during this fast. As atonement for our sins against the Antyajas, that suffering was certainly worth it. The body, however, is a shirker. It wants to avoid as much pain as it can. I do not know how many more fasts are ordained for me. But I wish to keep myself ready. Why do Jains take ambar when they fast? How much of it do they take? Does it prevent the flow of saliva in the mouth? Does it enable one to drink water? What is its source? Some take even musk. If you can get any information on these points from a reliable person, please send it on to me.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 94

234. LETTER TO SHARDA BEHN MEHTA

September 30, 1932

I feel love flowing from every line in your letter. Is it not my good fortune that I should get a daughter like you? I have readily accepted the position of father which you and others have bestowed on me. And I have done so with God as witness. May He make me worthy of it and protect my honour. I am rapidly regaining strength.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 94

235. LETTER TO SETH GOVINDDAS

September 30, 1932

I never had any doubts about the love of the untouchables. God has done everything for good. We must now hope that the newly-born zeal will be permanent and that untouchability will be totally rooted out.

[From Hindi]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 95

\[1\] Ambergris
236. CABLE TO DR. M. A. ANSARI

[October 1, 1932]¹

M. A. ANSARI
PARIS
ANTICIPATED YOU BY ISSUING APPEAL HINDU-MUSLIM-SIKH UNITY.

GANDHI

Bombay Secret Abstracts, Home Department, Special Branch, File No. 800(40)(3), Pt. III, p. 265

237. TELEGRAM TO GANESAN

October 1, 1932

FASTS LIKE SHANKAR’S PREMATURE, IF NOT IMPROPER. ASK HIM TO ABANDON HIS FAST.

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 97

238. TELEGRAM TO K. KELAPPAN

[October 1, 1932]¹

YOUR WIRE. IMMEDIATE PROSPECTIVE RESULT MUST NOT AFFECT THE DECISION ON PURE ETHICS. I MUST REITERATE THE OPINION THAT YOU SHOULD SUSPEND FAST GIVING NOTICE AS PER MY TELEGRAM.⁴ GOD HELPING I SHALL BEAR MY SHARE OF THE BURDEN.

WIRE COMPLIANCE.

The Hindu, 3-10-1932

¹ Although the source mentions this cable under October 5, it is listed in “Diary, 1932” under this date.
² This was in answer to a telegram from Ganesan saying that Shankar Parthasarathi had been fasting for getting a temple opened to Harijans.
³ The date is from Mahadevbhaini Diary.
⁵ Kelappan broke his fast at 8 a.m. on October 2.
239. TELEGRAM TO DR. MOHANLAL

_October 1, 1932_

DR. MOHANLAL
ALIGARH

SUCH CLEANING BY CASTE HINDUS SIDE BY SIDE WITH REAL SWEEPERS LIKELY TO BE GOOD IF ABSOLUTELY SINCERE AND TRUE SPIRIT UNDERSTOOD BY SWEEPER BROTHERS.

GANDHI

From a photostat: S.N. 18562. Also _Mahadevbhaini Diary_, Vol. II, p. 98

240. LETTER TO ABDUL RAHIM

_October 1, 1932_

I quite agree with you that the other communal questions should also be settled in a spirit of mutual give and take. I hope efforts will be made in that direction.

_Mahadevbhaini Diary_, Vol. II, p. 96

241. LETTER TO CRESSWELL

_October 1, 1932_

Yes; God has been good and merciful to me.

_Mahadevbhaini Diary_, Vol. II, p. 96

242. MESSAGE TO PHILIP KINGSLEY

_October 1, 1932_

I wish America could trace the Big Finger of God in all the happenings during the past few days in India. It was not man’s doing; it was without doubt God’s grace.

_Mahadevbhaini Diary_, Vol. II, p. 95

---

1 This was in reply to the addressee’s telegram saying that caste Hindus had started "demonstrative latrine-cleaning".
243. LETTER TO MIRABEHN

[October 1] 1932

CHI. MIRA,

As you were not getting my letters regularly I purposely refrained from writing to you yesterday. This I am writing early morning just after taking oranges and grape juice. I am flourishing, my weight showed 99\frac{3}{4} yesterday against 93\frac{1}{2} which was the weight on Monday. This is a wonderful improvement. In a day or two, I shall be walking a little. The bowels require the enema still but I expect them to be normal soon. Food is oranges eight, grapes, glucose powder four tea spoons, milk 1\frac{1}{2} lb., clear vegetable soup marrow and tomatoes. Of these I take something on an average every 2\frac{1}{2} hours. I spun yesterday 235 rounds without feeling much tired. The spinning was done in two periods. Wrote a number of letters for the English mail and to correspondents here. With intervals for meals and rest, etc. I worked till 8 p.m. yesterday and now feel none the worse for it. All this is very good progress. And so I continue to hum, ‘God is great and merciful.’ The fast was nothing compared to what it brought forth. It was not man’s achievement. It was God’s doing. All this must remove your sadness.

You must have seen from the papers that as to interviews, etc., the pre-fast restrictions are practically in force. Ba can see me during the day.

Love to you and Kisen.

BAPU

[PS.]

I understand you have now no other companion.

From the original: C.W. 6243. Courtesy: Mirabehn

---

1 The source has September 31, obviously a slip. Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 96, mentions the letter under this date.
244. LETTER TO ANANDSHANKAR B. DHRUVA

October 1, 1932

To me, my experiences are a realization of God. I do not know what more there can be in other experiences of realization.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 96

245. LETTER TO MANMOHANDAS P. GANDHI

[October 1], 1932

BHAI MANMOHANDAS,

I have your letter. I am now regaining strength.

Do take an Antyaja child or adult in your family and serve the cause directly.

I am glad that your book\(^1\) has been translated.

Since you have the same name as I, you are bound occasionally to get letters intended for me.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 16

246. LETTER TO JAMSHED MEHTA

October 1, 1932

Consider how much evil is done in God’s name. If He tolerates all that, then the misuse of great powers which may follow an attempt to use them rightly should also be tolerated. However, as you suggest we should make every effort to prevent such misuse. You may rest assured that I will not neglect to do so.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 96

---

\(^1\) From “Diary, 1932”. In the letter itself the date is given as “31-9-1932”, which is evidently a slip.

\(^2\) Pardeshi Kapadni same Harifai kem Karavi; under English title: How to Compete with Foreign Cloth.
247. LETTER TO K. M. MUNSHI

[October 1], 1932

BHAISHRI MUNSHI,

I had got your letter overflowing with love. I am using the strength which I am regaining to reply to such letters. The outcome of the fast was not man’s achievement. I do not even feel that ‘I’ have done something. The Gita says: “Do everything as My instrument, and offer it to Me as sacrifice.” I feel thus every moment and experience the intensest joy. When you write to Lilavati, tell her that I often think of both of you.

Sardar and Mahadev are very well. Convey our Vandemataram to all friends there.

Vandemataram from
BAPU

From Gujarati: C.W. 7517. Courtesy: K. M. Munshi

248. LETTER TO TARAMATI MATHURADAS TRIKUMJI

YERAVDA MANDIR,
October 1, 1932

CHI. TARAMATI,

I have your letter. How did Dilip fall ill? By now I hope his fever has come down. Do keep dropping me postcards. I am gaining strength gradually. I was even able to walk a little today.

Blessings from
BAPU

TARAMATI MATHURADAS
21 MINT ROAD, 2ND FLOOR
FORT, BOMBAY

From the Gujarati original: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

1 From Mahadevbhaini Diary. The source has “31-9-32”, which is evidently a slip.
249. LETTER TO RAIHANA TYABJI

October 1, 1932

BELOVED DAUGHTER RAIHANA,

This is the first Urdu letter I am writing after the fast. Your bhajans are very good. What does it matter if the bhajan which was sung when I commenced the fast was not yours? After all, it was a fine bhajan which you yourself had sent. Of course I would have felt much happier if it had been yours. But never mind. When God grants me another opportunity for undertaking a fast, I should like to have a bhajan composed by you. Compose one right now. The rest from my letter¹ to Father.

From a photostat of the Urdu: S.N. 9686

250. TELEGRAM TO A LAWYER OF JABALPUR

October 1, 1932

I CANNOT GIVE OPINION.²

[from Gujarati]
Mahadevbhaini Diary Vol. II, p. 98

251. TELEGRAM TO RAMASESHAN

[On or after October 1, 1932]³

CONCENTRATE ON REMOVAL UNTOUCHABILITY INVISIBILITY UNAPPROACHABILITY.

From a microfilm: S.N. 18568

¹ Vide “Letter to Abbas Tyabji”, 30-9-1932.
² The English original of this is not available. The addressee had asked whether inter-dining might be resorted to despite opposition from Congressmen.
³ The addressee’s telegram seeking a message for the people of Cochin on the eve of Gandhiji’s birthday is dated October 1.
252. TELEGRAM TO RALIATBEHN VRINDAVANLAL

October 2, 1932

BLOOMING LIKE FLOWER BY GOD’S GRACE, BUT HAVE YOU PUT YOURSELF RIGHT ABOUT UNTOUCHABILITY?

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vo. II, p. 102

253. TELEGRAM TO MOTILAL ROY

[October 2, 1932]

YOUR WIRE. FAST WEEK MANIFESTATION WAS SURE SIGN GOD’S HAND IN IT. LOVE.

GANDHI

From a photostat: S.N. 18566

254. LETTER TO S. M. MATE

October 2, 1932

I can understand your reasoning. Only my fast is not intended to coerce anybody. It is meant to quicken into life sluggish conscience. That it may coerce some is unfortunately true. But such coercion can neither be prolonged nor extensive. A religious reformer does not attempt to dominate the mind. He stirs up people and makes them think and act.

I must not purchase my release at the sacrifice of my principles. Removal of untouchability is a vital part of my life’s programme, but it is not the sole part of it. My life is in God’s hands. He will shape it as He wills. Do you not think I am in safe hands?

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 100

1 The addressee, Gandhiji’s elder sister, had wired her good wishes on the occasion of Gandhiji’s birthday.
2 This was in reply to a telegram dated September 30, from the addressee saying he was writing a book about Gandhiji’s life mission with special reference to the historic fast and seeking Gandhiji’s blessings.
3 In “Diary, 1932” Gandhiji, in the entry under October 3, mentions having sent a telegram to the addressee the previous day. Presumably this is the telegram.
4 The addressee had advised Gandhiji that instead of seeking to coerce through fasting he should use the method of peaceful persuasion.
5 The addressee had further said that if he were to declare that he would only work for the removal of untouchability for a year he might be released.
255. LETTER TO PURATAN BUCH

October 2, 1932

CHI. PURATAN,

You have asked a good question. Arjuna did not know what to do and he asked [Krishna] to guide him. No such doubt had arisen in my mind, but Krishna himself roused me and urged me not to miss this opportunity. An indefinite fast may be the highest expression of ahimsa and it may even be folly. I believe that my fast was the former. The outcome also seems to indicate that it was so. Fasting has a place, and an important one, in the tapascharya enjoined in Hindu dharma. Thus there is a difference between Arjuna’s case and [mine]. I don’t wish to suggest by this that I have more knowledge than Arjuna. I only wish to point out that in this instance it was not a question of ignorance in me. Is this clear? You must have read in the newspapers that visitors are no longer permitted to see me.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G. N. 9169

256. LETTER TO LAKSHMI D. DAFDA

October 2, 1932

CHI. LAKSHMI,

What did you do in Bombay? How do you spend the day now? Did I write and tell you that my fast has increased your responsibility? I hope you understand how that is so.

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./II. Also C.W. 7755. Courtesy: Maganbhai Desai

\footnote{1 From Mahadevbhaini Diary.}

\footnote{2 ibid}

THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
257. LETTER TO JAMNABEHN GANDHI

October 2, 1932

CHI. JAMNA,

I had got your letter. The fast is an old story now. We should go on doing our duty.

BAPU

From Gujarati: C.W. 860. Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi

258. LETTER TO RAMDAS GANDHI

October 2, 1932

There is no doubt that the vow which you contemplate is excellent. If you have arrived at the decision independently on your own, there is no need to discuss the matter with Nimu for the present. Your peace of mind is bound to have its effect on her. That is the beauty of brahmacharya. The need for mutual discussion arises when both are equally weak in mind, but equally eager to practise self-control also; for, then, the resolution of one partner helps the other. When one partner has made up his or her mind, he or she will not discuss the matter with the other, as his or her self-control will of itself work on the other. This is only to tell you my own experience in the matter, and you are free to act as you think best. In such matters other people’s wisdom does not avail one much. In such a holy resolution you can of course take my blessings for granted, but take the vow only after you are released from prison. Many have given up the vows they made while in prison. The two environments are different. They are two entirely different worlds.

[From Gujarati]

259. LETTER TO CHHAGANLAL JOSHI

October 2, 1932

CHI. CHHAGANLAL (JOSHI),

Do not expect a long letter for some time yet. I have started writing letters to the Ashram and intend to write to as many persons as I can. You exercised good self-control in not coming to see me. If you had come, I would have certainly welcomed you and not found... fault with you. But I admire you the better for not coming. The get-up of Ashramvasi Pratye is beautiful indeed. As for the contents, I have yet to look into them.

I know that anti-untouchability work in villages is very difficult. Only workers like you can judge how far the awakening witnessed during the week of the fast has spread among the villages. I think the fast should have been longer for that to have happened. But this is merely how the matter appears to human reason. I fasted as long as it was God's will that I should. Who knows how many more fasts He will make me undertake in future? We should thus be content to live as He wills, and be ready to dance with joy even if He throws us into a pan of boiling oil. Has He not given His word that He will give us the strength to do so?

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 5510

260. LETTER TO HARI-ICHCHHA P. KAMDAR

October 2, 1932

CHI. HARI-ICHCHHA.

You have paid good attention to handwriting, but in the end spoilt the letter with blots of ink on the sheet. The lesson to be drawn from this is that neatness cannot be learnt in a short time. One should make a long and systematic effort to learn it. Remember that you have taken a vow to shed your lethargy. Keep your vow. Write your address in every letter; I cannot keep a complete list of addresses here. I hope the children are better now.

Do you see Raihanabehn sometimes?

I have written letters to the girls and enclosed them in the Ashram packet.

I don't say anything about my fast, since it is an old story now. I am regaining my strength. I had lost it considerably. Convey my blessings to Rasik when you write to him. I do of course get news of him.

Sardar and Mahadev bhai are happy here.

Blessings from

BAPU

1 Addressee's brother
261. LETTER TO PREMABEHN KANTAK

October 2, 1932

CHI. PREMA,

I cannot write you a long letter today. Who is afraid of your biting? Our cat often bites its kittens, but the more she does that the more they cling to her. When she lifts Soma\(^1\) with her teeth, he does not cry but, on the contrary, feels more secure. Your biting must be like the cat’s.

You have quoted fine verses indeed. I admire your self-control, too. But neither you nor the other inmates of the Ashram need feel elated. Old man Abbas, Raihana and others danced with joy when they knew the cause of my fast. They did not even express a wish to come and see me. They trusted that I was under God’s care and went on with their tasks. Others, too, acted in the same manner. Tell me, now, how much weight did you gain during my fast?

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10304. Also C.W. 6743. Courtesy: Premabehn Kantak

262. LETTER TO NARAYAN M. KHARE

October 2, 1932

CHI. PANDITJI,

You should not expect a long letter from me today. I feel that I have had a new life. God’s will be done. Lakshmibehn should take care of her teeth and have them fully attended to.

BAPU

From Gujarati: C.W. 235. Courtesy: Lakshmibehn N. Khare

\(^1\) One of the kittens
263. LETTER TO MOHAN N. PARIKH

October 2, 1932

CHI. MOHAN,

Yours was a novel fast—eating bananas and drinking milk! I would not call that even a semi-fast with a fruit diet. Who said that milk was fruit?

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: S.N. 9185

264. LETTER TO PADMA

October 2, 1932

CHI. PADMA,

I got your letter. Father came and saw me. You should learn how to keep accounts. It is very easy. Every time you spend something, you should note down the particulars immediately. It is not necessary to make a fair copy of the notes. You can send the same sheet to Narandas. If there is a swelling on your arm, you should stop even spinning. You must take care and see that you never get tired. The fast was a wonderful experience.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 6138. Also C.W. 3490. Courtesy: Prabhudas Gandhi

265. LETTER TO SHARDA C. SHAH

October 2, 1932

CHI. SHARDA,

My fast has become a thing of the past. Similarly, cannot your fever become a matter of the past?

BAPU

From the Gujarati original:C.W. 9918. Courtesy: Shardabehn G. Chokhawala
266. LETTER TO MAHALAKSHMI M. THAKKAR

October 2, 1932

CHI. MAHALAKSHMI,

I got your letter. You have done no wrong in starting wearing bangles. The mistake lay in your resolution not to wear them, and so I think that you have now made amends for the mistake by wearing them to please the elders in the family. Let this be a lesson to you that all resolutions should be made after careful thinking, and that once you have made a resolution you should not give it up for anybody’s sake. Do not brood over what has happened.

Live on milk, vegetables and fruit if roli does not agree. Milk of course includes curds and buttermilk. Aren’t the children still in a condition to live in the Ashram? Pay a visit to the Ashram and see how things are there at present. If you cannot do that, don’t shift them from Calcutta but be satisfied with what you can do for them there. Ultimately their place is in the Ashram, and, to accustom them to the Ashram you should live there for a short time, if necessary.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 6821

267. LETTER TO KASTURBHAI

YERAVDA MANDIR,

October 2, 1932

BHAI KASTURBHAI,

It was good of you to think of me. I am slowly regaining my strength. I hope your revered mother is better.

Vandemataram from

MOHANDAS

From the Gujarati original: S.N. 33151

1 On Gandhiji’s birthday
268. LETTER TO CHHAGANLAL GANDHI

October 2, 1932

CHI. CHHAGANLAL (VIJAPUR).

I had your letter. I am gaining strength and therefore today I am writing letters to the Ashram. I no doubt have faith in you. By the grace of God, you have got independent work of your choice. Since you have patience, you are bound to make progress.

Blessings to you both from BAPU

[PS.]

Ba comes daily and spends the day with me. God knows how long this will continue.

From the Gujarati original : S.N. 32864

269. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

8 p.m. [October 2, 1932]¹

CHI. NARANDAS,

The accompanying letters will give you an indication of my strength. I have now regained a good deal of it. I became weaker than I had thought, but I am recovering rapidly. On the Sunday during my fast, my weight was 93\(\frac{1}{2}\) pounds. Today, which is again a Sunday, it stands at 100 pounds. This is good improvement. My diet at present is a pound and a half of milk, eight to ten oranges, pomegranate or grape juice, soup of gourd and tomatoes, honey and lemon juice. I hope that I shall be able to increase the quantity of milk by a little. I don’t expect I shall make any other change for some time. I walked a little yesterday and today. The quantity of stool has increased today in the natural course. I sleep fairly well. Ba spends the whole day with me. In the evening, she goes to Lady Vithaldas’s place.

I suffered much during the fast but enjoyed boundless peace. God tested me fairly severely. Yet on the whole the test was light. A seven days’ fast means nothing to me. But the physical and mental suffering during this short period was considerable. I cannot say how the experience of God-realization must be different from the experience which I have had. I don’t mean that experience is a state of perfect knowledge. It is an experience which cannot be explained in words. Even perfect knowledge is not an experience of perfect realization.

¹ Although in Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, this letter is mentioned under October 3, from the contents it appears to have been written on October 2, which was a Sunday.

I was happy that you and the others who came and saw me did so. Those who did not come must be said to have exercised great self-control. I think both those who came and those who did not, did right. May this yajna inspire us to strive for greater self-purification and lead us to greater awakening.

Resume the former practice of despatching the mail on a fixed day. If necessary, you may for the present write more than once during a week.

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./I. Also C.W. 8258. Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi

270. LETTER TO NANIBEHN JHAVERI

YERAVDA MANDIR,

October 2, 1932

CHI. NANIBEHN JHAVERI,

I am resuming writing letters to the inmates of the Ashram and your name comes first. Do not misinterpret my forgiveness. Has your brother fully recovered? Make your health perfect.

Blessings from

BAPU

[From Gujarati]

Manavtana Prahari—Pannalal Jhaveri, p. 27
271. LETTER TO HEMPRABHA DAS GUPTA

October 2, 1932

CHI. HEMPRABHA,

I have your letter. Now I have regained proper strength. I am taking milk, fruit and one vegetable. My weight has risen to 100 lb. There is, therefore, no cause for worry. Your health must improve. How is Kshitishbabu? Give me news of Arun.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI HEMPRABHA DEVI
KHADI PRATISTHAN
SODEPUR
VIA CALCUTTA

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 1689.

272. LETTER TO MAITHILISHARAN GUPTA

October 2, 1932

BHAi MAITHILISHARANJI,

Your messages¹ keep pouring in. God is most kind.

Yours,

MOHANDAS

From Hindi: C.W. 9461. Courtesy: Bharat Kala Bhavan.

¹ The addressee had sent poems of appreciation during and after Gandhiji’s fast.
273. LETTER TO SOHYALAL SHARMA

October 2, 1932

BHAI MOHANLAL,

You can not undertake a fast in such haste. Your job now is to start a peaceful agitation.

MOHANDAS GANDHI

SHRI MOHANLAL SHARMA
HINDU SABHA KARYALAYA
PUSHKAR
NEAR AJMER
RAJPUTANA

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 2825

274. LETTER TO VIDYA HINGORANI

October 2, 1932

CHI. VIDYA,

I shall not write a long letter now. I hope you are well. I am regaining strength. It is God’s mercy. Convey my blessings to Anand.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Hindi. Courtesy: National Archives of India and Anand T. Hingorani

275. A LETTER

October 2, 1932

Physical contact, temple-entry, etc., are in my opinion an integral part of eradication of untouchability. Inter-dining is optional.

[From Hindi]

Mahadevabhai Diary, Vol. II, p. 100

1 Mahadev Desai gives the correct name in his letter to him dated October 3, 1932 (G.N. 2826); also Vide “Letter to Sohanlal Sharma”, 19-12-1932.
276. TELEGRAM TO A. RANGASWAMI IYENGAR
October 3, 1932

ON STRENGTH MY ADVICE AND ASSURANCE KELAPPAN HAS BROKEN FAST ONLY TO BE RESUMED IF DURING NEXT THREE MONTHS TEMPLE NOT OPENED EXPECT YOU AND FRIENDS CONCENTRATE ON OPENING TEMPLE.

GANDHI

Bombay Secret Abstracts, Home Department, Special Branch, File No. 800 (40)(3), pt. III, p. 265

277. TELEGRAM TO THE ZAMORIN OF CALICUT
October 3, 1932

I RECOGNIZED THAT KELAPPAN BEING UNDER DISCIPLINE WAS BOUND RECEIVE MY CONSENT PREVIOUS TO FAST AND WAS BOUND ANY CASE GIVE FAIR NOTICE OF INTENTION FAST THESE DEFECTS BEING POINTED OUT HE HAS BRAVELY RESPONDED AND BROKEN FAST WHICH WILL BE RESUMED IF DURING NEXT THREE MONTHS AFTER SECOND INSTANT TEMPLE NOT OPENED. KELAPPAN’S ACCEPTANCE MY ADVICE THROWS HEAVY RESPONSIBILITY MY SHOULDER PERHAPS EVEN EXTENT OF SHARING HIS FAST IF TEMPLE NOT OPENED TO AVARNA HINDUS DURING PERIOD OF SUSPENSION. MAY I EXPECT YOU CARRY OUT YOUR ASSURANCE AND OVERCOME ALL DIFFICULTIES LEGAL OR OTHERWISE IN WAY OF LONG DEFERRED REFORM.

GANDHI

Bombay Secret Abstracts, Home Department, Special Branch, File No. 800 (40)(3) Pt. III, p. 265
278. LETTER TO PERCY W. BARTLETT

October 3, 1932

DEAR MR. BARTLETT,

I thank you for your letter enclosing copies of your letter to the Poet and the response from the Fellowship. I am quite sure that the Fellowship is exerting itself in the cause of peace.

Yours sincerely,

PERCY W. BARTLETT, ESQ.
17 RED LION SQUARE
LONDON, W. C. 1

Bombay Secret Abstracts, Home Department, Special Branch, File No. 800(40)(3), pt. III, p. 201

279. LETTER TO VERRIER ELWIN

October 3, 1932

MY DEAR VERRIER,

I have your touching letter. I can enter into your heart. We can but do the best that is possible for us to do. The result is in His hands. Therefore “be careful for nothing”. Did I tell you that I was able to see Father Winslow and other members of the Sangh? It was a joy to see them.

I have been writing so many letters that I do not remember them or their contents.

Love to you all.

BAPU

[PS.]

Sardar and Mahadev send their love to you, Mother and Eldyth.

From a copy: C.W. 9698. Courtesy: Eldyth Elwin

---

1 A Quaker and General Secretary of the Fellowship of Reconciliation
280. LETTER TO SAMUEL FRANCIS

October 3, 1932

MY DEAR SAMUEL,

I was glad to hear from you. I do not know what I, a prisoner, can do for you. But if your children will take to the Indian life, it is possible that they may be admitted to the Ashram at Sabarmati.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

SAMUEL FRANCIS, ESQ.
C/O J. T. CHRISTIAN, ESQ.
8 MART LANE, EAST LONDON
SOUTH AFRICA

Bombay Secret Abstracts, Home Department, Special Branch, File No. 800 (40)(3), Pt. III, p. 201

281. LETTER TO S. K. GEORGE

October 3, 1932

MY DEAR GEORGE,

I was glad you were in the Ashram. I hope your fever has left you. For the time being only this note. Yes, Ramrajya is possible even with this mixture, if the workers are true. This does not exclude me. If I am true, there must be true co-workers; if false, co-workers also false. Do write whenever you feel like it.

Love.

BAPU

Gandhi’s Challenge to Christianity, p. 89

1 Teacher in charge of Deenbandhu Bhavan, Santiniketan
282. LETTER TO J. S. HOYLAND

October 3, 1932

MY DEAR HOYLAND,

I am glad you have given me a brief description of your visits to Tolstoy’s home. I wish you had also told me something of your impressions of modern Russia.

I am quickly regaining lost strength of body. I need say nothing more about the fast as it is now past history. This I may say. God was most merciful to me during those days.

Love from us all.

BAPU

From a photostat of the original: C.W. 4506. Courtesy: Woodbrooke College, Birmingham, and Mrs. Jessie Hoyland

283. LETTER TO NANDINI BALA

October 3, 1932

DEAR LITTLE NANDINI,

It was a perfect delight to receive your letter and garland. I hope you did not feel your fast overmuch. I enjoyed mine, did you? God bless you.

Love.

M. K. GANDHI

LITTLE NANDINI
UTTARAYAN
SANTINIKETAN
BOLPUR (E. I. R.)
BENGAL

From a photostat: C. W. 11017. Courtesy: Nandini Bala

---

1 Girl adopted by Rabindranath Tagore’s daughter-in-law; vide also “In Bengal”, 7-6-1925.
284. LETTER TO JAIKRISHNA P. BHANSALI

October 3, 1932

I was delighted to read your letter. Your sannyasa will shine only when you return to the Ashram with true understanding and devote yourself to service in a spirit of non-attachment. A stone cave or a cremation ground are not the real cave or the cremation ground. These are to be found in the heart. One may be truly said to have embraced sannyasa only when one lives in that cave and reduces to ashes all impure thoughts and feelings in oneself. It is this sannyasa which the Gita has extolled. This is still what my inner self tells me.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 103

285. LETTER TO DUDHIBEHN V. DESAI

October 3, 1932

CHI. DUDHIBEHN,

You asked me about rotlo. But my rotlo has dried up. God has snatched it away from me. I am now regaining strength with milk and fruit.

I hope all of you are all right. Ask Valji to write to me. How was his health [in jail]?

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 7438. Courtesy: Valji G. Desai

286. LETTER TO MAHENDRA V. DESAI

October 3, 1932

CHI. MANU,

Try and improve your handwriting. It is bad to smile during prayers because that is not the time for playing. It is a time for praying to God.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 7439. Courtesy: Valji G. Desai
287. LETTER TO MAITRI GIRI

October 3, 1932

CHI. MAITRI,

I got your letter after a long interval. Write to me and describe what you learnt there.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 6237

288. LETTER TO GULAB

October 3, 1932

CHI. GULAB,

Carding is very easy. With a little more effort, you will pick it up well.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 1725

289. LETTER TO PUNJABHAI H SHAH

October 3, 1932

I tried to race with you, but for the present I have lost. I don’t mind, however. “Life or death, I value neither more than the other.” This is a new life for me. God’s will be done. He has preserved my honour. He has let me off with a light test. I feel His grace every moment of my life.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 102
290. LETTER TO RAMACHANDRA N. KHARE

October 3, 1932

CHI. RAMBHAU,

The continuing dialogue between us also is interesting. But this time your handwriting was bad. I have already explained to you what is wrong in all this. Why should we laugh at or despise elders even inwardly? And I have explained, too, how the indifference towards our own weaknesses implied in such contempt is harmful.

BAPU

From Gujarati: C. W. 299. Courtesy: Lakshmibehn N. Khare

291. LETTER TO NIRMALA B. MASHRUWALA

October 3, 1932

CHI. NIRMALABHAI,

I had got your letter of the 13th. I am slowly regaining strength. I had got the proofs of Gitamanthan. ¹ I had also received Babukaka’s² letter.

The pain in the elbow seems to have disappeared since I undertook the fast. But I don’t know if it will come back when there is more flesh on the body. Ask Surendra to write to me.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI NIRMALABHAI
C/O SHRI BALUBHAI MASHRUWALA
TOPIWALA’S BUNGALOW
SANDHURST ROAD
BOMBAY

From a photostate of the Gujarati: C. W. 2887. Courtesy: Nirmalabehn Shroff

¹ By Kishorelal G. Mashruwala
² Kishorelal G. Mashruwala
292. LETTER TO BHAU PANSE

October 3, 1932

CHI. BHAU,

I cannot today write a long letter to you.

If you persevere, you will certainly succeed in time in cultivating non-attachment. There is no harm if you remain attached to truth, etc. The world is both real and not real. Hence the sense of its reality will not disappear completely. For relief from constipation, you may consult Gangabehn. Let me know the effect on you of the latest changes in food.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 6737. Also C.W. 4480. Courtesy: Bhau Panse

293. LETTER TO SHANTA S. PATEL

October 3, 1932

CHI. SHANTA¹,

You are becoming careless about your handwriting. The letter also is as bad as the handwriting. I hope now you are all right. Don’t mind Sardar’s jokes. You may write what you wish to.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 4066. Also C.W. 17. Courtesy: Shantabehn Patel

294. LETTER TO SHARDA C. SHAH

October 3, 1932

CHI. SHARDA,

I must write a long reply to your letter, but I do not have that much time or energy. You should take hip-bath in cold water.

But it should be taken before menstruation, not during it. Then there is friction bath, about which Premabehn will probably know. Santok is likely to know about it too. You must take complete rest during the period. It is bad to have white discharge. This too can be cured by hip-bath and friction-bath. If you are after it and take the treatment I am suggesting, you are sure to get well.

¹ Daughter of Shankarbai Patel

There are natural differences between males and females. Hence, their functions too are somewhat different. This being the case, if a man tries to perform the functions of a woman or a woman that of a man, there is bound to be trouble. But they can overcome most of the difficulties. Such a situation can be reached only when an atmosphere of physical and psychological purity is created. You may find this point difficult to grasp. Read the letter twice or thrice. If you still do not catch the point, consult Chimanlal' or Narandas or Premabehn and then let me know what you have understood.

We feel shy to talk about these things and feel less shy writing about them because we do not have to face and hear the other person. It is easy to write sitting far away but we feel shy when two pairs of eyes meet. But this shyness decreases as we become increasingly pure.

Trying to be your mother.

BAPU

From the Gujarati original: C.W. 9957. Courtesy: Shardabehn G. Chokhawala

295. A LETTER ¹

October 3, 1932

I cannot express my opinion without knowing your relations with that shopkeeper. You should seek the advice of Nanabhai there. Again, you have written to me for advice after having already taken the step. This is not correct. An indefinite fast is not likely to change the opponent’s nature immediately.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol II, p.104

¹ Addressee's father
² The correspondent, a young man, had started an indefinite fast in protest against the shopkeeper having broken his promise to let “untouchables” buy from his shop.
³ Nrisinhaprasad Kalidas Bhatt

166 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
296. LETTER TO ZOHRA BANU ANSARI

October 3, 1932

DEAR DAUGHTER ZOHRA,

I have both your letters. By the grace of God my health is improving. God ordained my fast and now He has vouchsafed me food. Let us all now pray to God also to bring about unity between Hindus and Muslims. I can never rest in peace until that is accomplished.

I too receive letters from Father.

Now you must become my teacher. Your letters take the place of lessons for me. Quite a few people send me letters in Urdu but no one has as beautiful a hand as you. I am inclined to read your letters over and over again on account of your handwriting. Yes, at present Ba is with me for the whole day. Sardar and Mahadev are of course with me. Please convey salaams from us all to Father. Heaps of blessings for you.

GANDHI

From a facsimile of the Urdu in Mahatma, Vol. II, facing p. 304

297. LETTER TO HORACE G. ALEXANDER

October 4, 1932

MY DEAR HORACE,

I have your letter. I have written so much to so many friends about the fast that I do not feel like saying anything in this letter. No doubt you will see some of the letters that are going by this week’s mail. This however I will say. God was never nearer to me than during the fast, and I felt the love of you all although I had not then any letter from England. My love to you and Olive.

BAPU

From a photostat: G.N. 1415

1 Daughter of Dr. M. A. Ansari
298. LETTER TO SCOTT HENDERSON

October 4, 1932

If I say God inspired my fast and you say He did not, who will be the judge? Can you show me why I should prefer your opinion to the Inner Voice in me? Do you not think that I am safer in God's hands than men's?

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 106

299. LETTER TO ESSOP

October 4, 1932

I thank you for your touching appeal. The matter is over for the time being. But I suggest to you that such matters are too deep for argument. They must be left to God and His creature.

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 105

300. LETTER TO ESTHER MENON

October 4, 1932

MY DEAR CHILD,

I have your long letter on 4th September. That is a bygone age.

After the fast is like a new birth to me. I am rapidly gathering strength. The lost weight has almost come back. The lost strength will take a little time. The days of agony were also days of inner joy. It was a little penance for the great sin of untouchability committed by millions against their fellow beings. But you know all about it by now.

You must try to get rid of your rheumatism by steam baths and a diet free of much starch and proteids and full of fresh fruit.

I wish you could persuade Nan and Tangai to go to a public school and live down the prejudice, i.e., if the teachers welcome the idea of their going there.

---

1 A Christian missionary
2 The addressee had written to say that fast unto death was tantamount to suicide.
I had a birthday greeting cable from Denmark. The name of the sender was not given.

No more today.

Love from us and kisses to the children

BAPU

From a photostat: No. 114, Courtesy: National Archives of India. Also My Dear child, p. 94

301. MESSAGE WITH AN AUTOGRAPH

October 4, 1932

May you recover soon.

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p.105

302. A LETTER

October 4, 1932

I thank you for your letter. Misunderstanding about the life and motive of a public man will always arise. Your confession does you credit.

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 105

303. A STATEMENT

October 4, 1932

Removal of untouchability does not include inter-dining unless untouchables are excluded on the ground of their being born so, when others are not.

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 106

1 The addressee, not identified in the source, was an American youth suffering from tuberculosis whose mother had written to Gandhiji explaining her helplessness and saying that her son was paying for his treatment by selling autographs of important people.

2 The addressee, not identified in the source, had been hostile to Hindu religion and Gandhiji. After Gandhiji’s fast he was convinced of Gandhiji’s sincerity and as a penance had decided to observe silence and eat only one meal a day for forty days.

3 It is not clear to whom the statement was made.
304. LETTER TO ASHRAM CHILDREN

October 4, 1932

If you little children start calling yourselves “bhais” and “behns”, what shall I call myself? Who started calling Upendra “Upendrabhai” and Bhadrika “Bhadrikabehn”? If I visit your Bal Mandir, I will not address any of you as “bhai”or “behn”. Would you accept this condition? I will mention the other conditions afterwards.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 105

305. LETTER TO PREMABEHN KANTAK

October 4, 1932

CHI. PREMA,

I got your letter. Anyone who wishes to get some publicity for himself by writing a foreword, should be qualified to write it. Ask Narandas how one may become so qualified.

I am certainly getting rest. Six days of fast are nothing un-usual in my life. I have almost regained my normal strength. I experience no difficulty in attending to my correspondence.

I do not at all like that people in the Ashram should fall ill. There is some carelessness behind these illnesses. During this month when people generally fall ill, you should be very careful about food. The root cause of most illnesses is impaired digestion.

Vali was thought to be among the strong and healthy girls in the Ashram. Even she has fallen ill! I see that some of the girls are a problem on your hands. I cannot guide you from here about Shanta without knowing more about her. Discuss the matter with Narandas and do what you think best. . . . 's case also requires careful thinking. Menstruation in a girl of ten years is quite a serious matter. Get more facts about her from . . . 1. She is likely to have picked up some bad practice when she used to go to school.

1 A student of the Ashram school who later married Prithuraj, son of Lakshmidas Asar
2 The names have been omitted.
3 ibid
We have been separated from our Premi\textsuperscript{1} for we have been shifted to another cell. We do feel the separation, but can do nothing about it. Isn’t life a series of separations?

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10305. Also C.W. 6744. Courtesy: Premabehn Kantak

306. LETTER TO CHANDRASHANKAR N. PANDYA

October 4, 1932

The whole world may change, but you will not. Some persons are wedded to their disease. You don’t care if, in doing so, you are violating your dharma as a husband. And there is no possibility of your wife getting a divorce.

I am fast regaining my strength. Sardar does not stop ordering people about like a sardar\textsuperscript{2} even here. If we suggest that to him, he replies by saying that he would do so when the Kathi\textsuperscript{3} gives up his opium. To whom may I complain about this?

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p.106

307. LETTER TO JAISHANKAR P. TRIVEDI

October 4, 1932

You did right in giving me in your letter the heart-rending description of Taragouri’s\textsuperscript{4} death. Does anybody know when death, who ever stalks us like a shadow, will catch us by the throat? I know that Manu will be shocked, but he is a brave boy and will bear the blow. If, by way of shraddha for Taragouri, you banish the primus stove from your family, that will not be too great a sacrifice, and probably it will save other women from this monster.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 106

\textsuperscript{1} Gandhiji’s cat
\textsuperscript{2} Leader
\textsuperscript{3} Member of community of that name in Saurashtra
\textsuperscript{4} Addressee’s brother’s wife
308. LETTER TO RAMESHWARLAL BAZAJ

October 4, 1932

Bhai Rameshwardas,

Chi. Purnachandra has sent envelopes with your address. My fast is an old story now. My strength is returning, you need have no anxiety.

Have you got any returns from the new enterprise? Do write to me all details.

My earlier letter must have reached you.

Blessings from

Bapu

From Hindi: C.W. 9448. Courtesy: Benarsilal Bazaj

309. LETTER TO C.F. ANDREWS

[October 5, 1932]¹

I hope your nerves are somewhat at rest. Anyway you must have been sustained by the fact of Gurudev’s closest association in this matter. Mahadev has translated and read to me one of his sermons on the very first day of the fast. It is a stirring thing. But the tokens of God’s love were many in those days. I never had any doubt about God’s guidance throughout.

But of course the largest part of the work still remains. And your place I have no doubt is still there.

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 111

¹ The source gives this letter under the date October 6, but it appears to have been written on October 5, vide the following item.
310. LETTER TO AGATHA HARRISON

October 5, 1932

MY DEAR AGATHA,

I have your letter. I know I gave you all a most anxious time. It was inevitable. It was all God’s doing. I could trace His hand in everything that happened during those days.

Love in which Mahadev joins.

BAPU

[PS.]

Herewith a letter for Charlie.

From a photostat: G.N. 1459

311. LETTER PREMI JAIRAMDAS

October 5, 1932

MY DEAR PREMI,

Yes, I had all you sent me. You will now tell Father I had his love letter and that I am getting on well.

You must be quick and begin to write in Hindi.

Love to you all from us all.

BAPU

KUMARI SHRI PREMI JAIRAMDAS
PREM BHAVAN
HYDERABAD, SINDH

From a photostat: C.W. 9242. Courtesy: Jairamdas Doulatram

312. LETTER TO THE LARKS OF ST. FRANCIS

October 5, 1932

Your loving letter of the 2nd September has duly reached me. I had also that beautiful cable during my holy fast. Tokens such as yours were food for me sent by God.

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 108

From “Diary, 1932”. The source merely states that this was written to the nuns of an Italian convent named after St. Francis.
313. LETTER TO DR. SYED MAH Mud

October 5, 1932

DEAR DR. MAH MUD,

Many thanks for the basket of fruit. I have no letter for you. I hope you are better and that your domestic troubles are eased if not over. How I wish that the untouchables solution could lead to further unity! May your efforts fructify. My salaams to Maulana Saheb.

Love.

M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat: G.N. 5073

314. LETTER TO MIRA BEHN

October [5], 1932

CHI. MIRA,

Your letter came in today (Wednesday). My writing was with the right hand. You found it clear because owing to the weakness of the body I had to trace my letters slowly. The left elbow was at fault. Up to yesterday there was no pain at all. But today I have a feeling that it would return with the filling in of the flesh. If it does return, it need not cause any anxiety. Of course I am spinning the full quota, i.e. 200 rounds at least. Keshu brought a new Gandiva. It works extremely well. I do not think I take more than one and a half hours. My weight stands at 99 lb. Now that I take some exercise, the weight cannot and must not increase by leaps. I have taken two pounds of milk today and for the first time, 20 dates. Ba is with me during the day, feeding and nursing me. I have to give much time to correspondence as the volume has increased enormously.

I wrote a note to Kisen. I wonder if she received it.

Narandas has got the permission to see you, if you would care to see him. Do you get all the letters collected during the week or only one per week?

So you see that you cannot build a theory on a few days’ or even months’ observation. Do not now try to fix the quantity of salt mechanically. The quantity will adjust itself. An occasional drop will always help. If you are melting and can stand cold water, you should take two or three quick cold baths. And you should try deep breathing. It cools the body at once. This is done through the mouth as when you are whistling. Try in the open air to breathe in the air and you will instantaneously find the cooling effect. And do not stint yourself for fresh fruit. Take as many oranges as you like, and raw tomatoes (ripe of course).

1 The source has “6”, but Wednesday, on which Gandhiji wrote the letter, was October 5.

Mahadev had forgotten to give your message to Gurudev and touch his feet on your behalf. So, having your letter by me, I read the portion to him and, much to his embarrassment, touched his feet on your behalf. He sat speechless, expressing gratefulness through his expression.

I am glad you and Kisen are working at making perfect slivers. They are the key to fine spinning. I am just now spinning 45 counts quite easily. Probably the count is finer. It will be tested tomorrow.

Horace, Esther, Muriel and many other friends who write to me always mention you and want me to send you their love. I am so very bad at conveying these messages. I must not omit the Italian sisters who have been sending beautiful letters.

Love to both of you

BAPU

From the original: C.W. 6244. Courtesy: Mirabehn. Also G.N. 9710

315. LETTER TO VIRENDRA PRAKASH ¹

October 5, 1932

DEAR FRIEND,

I cannot imagine a more effective method of honouring the memory of the great Swami Dayanand than by every Arya Samajist devoting his best energies to the cause of the Harijans during this wave of reform.

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat: G.N. 145. Also Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 109

¹ Full name is from “Diary, 1932”. The G.N. source merely says “Virendra”.

VOL. 57 : 5 SEPTEMBER, 1932 - 15 NOVEMBER, 1932 175
316. LETTER TO FRANCISCA STANDEATH

October 5, 1932

My saying that in Europe people could not live without some compromise was surely not meant to apply to a man like Satyavan. But you and I must not judge him. After all even the strongest have to compromise to an extent. No one can lay down the law for the other.

Mahadevibhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 107

317. LETTER ADA WEST

October 5, 1932

MY DEAR DEVI,

So you fasted! Just like you. I am regaining my lost strength rapidly. It was all a rich experience. I have gone through many and more prolonged fasts. But none was so joy-giving.

It seems that the work there is too trying for you. Of course you must not work beyond your strength.

Ba and Devdas I see frequently nowadays. Manilal must be reaching Bombay in a day or two. Poor boy! He is coming to see me dying. He will have the disappointment of his life. Ba has aged.

Love.

BAPU

From a photostat: C.W. 4435. Courtesy: A. H. West

318. A LETTER

October 5, 1932

I prize the weather from Mr. Lloyd George’s garden charged as it is with his love.

Mahadevibhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 107

1 The source does not mention the addressee, but in “Diary, 1932”, under the date October 5 Standenath is listed among those to whom Gandhiji wrote letters. Satyavan, mentioned in the letter was addressee’s husband, Frederic Standenath.
319. A LETTER

October 5, 1932

Now that the fast is a thing of the past and has perhaps justified itself, George Lancaster would not want me to argue all its ethics. After all things that come from God are hardly capable of being fully reasoned out.

Mahadebhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 107

320. A LETTER

October 5, 1932

Yes, these have been days of marvel. I only hope that the enthusiasm will not wane.

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 109

321. LETTER TO BADRIDUTT PANDE

October 5, 1932

Your grief is beyond words. But joy and sorrow are alike gifts of God. So we must accept both with tranquillity and in the same spirit. And why the fear of death? That is in store for all. Those who are gone are not truly gone, those living are not truly with us. Both exist but at different places. So much for philosophy. May God grant both of you peace and fortitude.

[From Hindi]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 109

1 The addressee had suffered a double bereavement: a son had died of drowning and then a daughter had died from the shock of her brother’s death.
322. LETTER TO KHAGENDRA PRIYA BARUANI

October 6, 1932

DEAR SISTER,

I have your letter and khadi piece and socks. I thank you for them. I shall use them as may be required. The fine piece you sent in April was also received. It still covers me daily. I did acknowledge it on 15th April. I am surprised you did not get my postcard.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

SMT. KHAGENDRA PRIYA BARUA
NOWGONG
ASSAM

From a photostat: C.W. 9552

323. LETTER TO E. E. DOYLE

October 6, 1932

DEAR COL. DOYLE,

I am still anxiously waiting for Government’s reply to my letter of the 29th ult. addressed to Major Bhandari and forwarded by you, I understand, to the Government. Meanwhile arising out of Sjt. Kelappan’s fast in South India I had to send a long telegram to the Zamorin, Calicut, which was referred to the Government and which so far as I am aware, has not still gone to the Zamorin. Now that matter is one of life and death and though Sjt. Kelappan’s fast has been suspended at my instance, he is by no means yet out of the wood. And now I am necessarily dragged into it because of my successful intervention. The Zamorin of Calicut is the central figure in this controversy. Sjt. Kelappan’s fast is suspended only for three months. There is not therefore much time to be wasted. I should therefore like to know when this telegram will be sent to the Zamorin and whether I am free to carry on correspondence in connection with untouchability. Delay is a matter of great danger and vexation.

1 Vide “Harijan Boards”, 9-11-1934.
3 Vide “Telegram to A. Rangaswami Iyengar”, 3-10-1932.
It is also highly necessary for me to see some co-workers in this connection. I would therefore like you please to secure early decision from Government in this matter.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

Bombay Secret Abstracts, Home Department, Special Branch, File No. 800(40)(3), Pt. III, p. 257. Also G.N. 3862

324. LETTER TO MRS. LINDSAY

October 6, 1932

Thanks for your sweet letter. Yes, it would be tragic if God was accessible only to the learned. My feeling coincides with your washer woman’s. There was once a scientific expedition in search of God. The scientists are reported to have come to India and to have found God not in the homes of Brahmans, nor in the palaces of kings, but they found Him in a hut of an untouchable. Hence my cry to God to admit me to the untouchable fold. After fifty years of trial they found me worthy to be so admitted. And I rejoice over the event.

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 112

325. LETTER TO PADMAJA NAIDU

October 6, 1932

I miss your presence. The flower-pots are a constant reminder. But then it is a prisoner’s privilege to miss the presence of dear ones.

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 113

326. LETTER TO PATANKAR

October 6, 1932

I thank you for your letter and the prasadam. Please thank all the merchants for the Akhand Saptah. I have no doubt that all such spiritual effort helped the great manifestation of the fast week.

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 112

The addressee is not identified in the source. But “Diary, 1932” gives his name as Patankar of Belgaum.
Let this suffice as a brief answer to your questions.
Inter-dining and intermarriage are not an essential part of removal of untouchability root and branch. These two form a separate reform and must come one day for all sections of Hinduism.
Nothing can be or should be done by compulsion. Fasting and the like are not designed to compel people to act against their wills, they are designed to make people think and act. If untouchables are no longer untouchable what are they in Hindu society? My own opinion is that the varna system has just now broken down. There is no true Brahmin or true Kshatriya or Vaishya. We are all Shudras, i.e., one varna. If this position is accepted, then the thing becomes easy. If this does not satisfy our vanity, then we are all Brahmins. Removal of untouchability does mean root-and-branch destruction of the idea of superiority and inferiority. He who says, ‘I am more than my fellow’ debases himself; he who says, ‘I am the least among my fellows’ raises himself. My fast was intended not to deal with the question superficially but to make us true.
I wish I could mechanically fix the time limit. Who am I to do so? But this I can say from my past, there will be no fast in this matter if the reform is progressing steadily and there is no humbug or make-believe behind it. Real progress is self-demonstrated. The Harijans will feel its glow in unmistakable terms. I would beseech you therefore not to worry about the time limit.

We all believe in idols and images of some sort. I do. The ordinary temple has no attraction for me personally. But it has a tremendous spiritual value. Therefore it must be open to Harijans. Reform of temples, not their destruction, is necessary.

328. LETTER TO V. RAMJEE RAO

October 6, 1932

DEAR FRIEND,

I thank you for your letter. I do hope that Andhradesh will not lag behind the rest of the country in the matter of removal of untouchability.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

SHRI V. RAMJEE RAO
“DEENABANDHU” OFFICE
MASULIPATAM

From a photostat: G.N. 4578

329. A LETTER

October 6, 1932

A thief does not steal in accordance with God’s wish but even his stealing cannot be but by His permission.

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 113

330. A LETTER

October 6, 1932

It is certainly wrong to exclude cobblers, etc., from the scope of the Association for the poor. But it would not be proper for you at once to start a fast in protest against this injustice. You should plead with the elders. You should win their good opinion by serving them. Nobody ought to be compelled to do a particular thing.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 113
331. LETTER TO RANI VIDYAVATI

October 6, 1932

CHI. VIDYAVATI,

Wonderful! you rebuke me! I had one letter from you. I did send a reply but you did not receive it. What can I do about it? The same has been the case with many other letters of mine. True, I would not have written to you had there been no letter from you. You must understand that I am a prisoner. You see, I have not been able to write even to Swarup' and Krishna'. Now the reply to your letter. My health is perfect. I shall regain strength in a few days. You have not written anything about your health.

Blessings to all from

BAPU

[PS.]

Who are with you?

RANI VIDYAVATI
C/O DR. RAGHUNATH SINGHJI
KAROKALA, P. O. BENIGANJ
DIST. HARDOI, U. P.

From the Hindi original: Rani Vidyavati Papers. Courtesy: Gandhi National Museum and Library

332 TELEGRAM TO SHAUKAT ALI

October 7, 1932

MAULANA SHAUKAT ALI
KHILAFAT OFFICE
BOMBAY.

I AM DELIGHTED YOU HAVE POSTPONED YOUR AMERICAN VISIT. IT WILL BE GLORIOUS DAY WHEN SOLID HINDU-MUSLIM-SIKH UNITY

1 Vijayalakshmi Pandit
2 Krishna Nehru
3 The telegram was withheld by the Government; vide “Letter to Home Secretary, Government of India”, 7-11-1932.
4 From Mahadevbhai Diary

THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
IS ACHIEVED. REST WILL FOLLOW AS DAY FOLLOWS NIGHT. IF YOU WILL SEARCH DILIGENTLY YOU WILL STILL FIND ME IN YOUR POCKET. LOVE.

GANNDHI

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 115. Also Government of India, Home Department, Political File No. 31/95/32. Courtesy: National Archives of India

333. A LETTER

October 7, 1932

In my opinion all selfless service leads to self-purification. Economic and moral development should go hand in hand. Atman is that which animates the body. Realization comes through purification. Prayer is necessary for all, if food is.

Liberty should be taken away in lunacy.

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 114

334. A LETTER

October 7, 1932

DEAR SISTER,

My inner being tells me that spiritual untiy can only be attained by resisting with our whole soul the modern false life.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

From the original: C. W. 9684. Courtesy: Vishvabharati Museum and Library, Santiniketan. Also Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 117

335. LETTER TO KAHAN C. GANDHI

October 7, 1932

I got your loving letter. But your love is accompanied with the demand that I should give up my conviction and labour of 50 years. How can I yield even to your love and do that?

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 114

1 The addressee, not indentified by name in the source, was from Dharwar and had written to Gandhiji a long letter.
336. LETTER TO MANISHANKAR GANPATRAM

October 7, 1932

Inter-dining and intermarrying with Antyajas are not a necessary part of the movement for the eradication of untouchability. There can be no coercion in these matters. Nor should anybody be prevented from having such relations with untouchables if he wishes, just as nobody is prevented from having them with members of other communities. Eradication of untouchability has nothing to do with inter-dining and intermarrying.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 114

337. LETTER TO NIRMALA B. MASHRUWALA

October 7, 1932

CHI. NIRMALA,

You must have got my postcards ¹. All who go to Nasik or write to a prisoner there should remember what I have explained. Anybody who goes to Thana or writes to someone there may also make use of it.

I got two letters from Kishorelal and one from Gomati.

I need not say anything about the propriety or otherwise of the fast. There was certainly some defect in it, but the fast was absolutely necessary. It may be regarded as the ultimate step in non-violence. I am now gradually regaining my strength. In fact I have regained most of it. The weight, which had gone down to 93.5 lb has now risen to 99. Before the fast it was 101. I am sure that on the whole the fast will benefit my health. My daily food consists of 2 lb of milk, nine oranges or mosambis juice of pomegranates or grapes, and gourd or tomato soup once a day. I walk in the morning and in the evening for a total of an hour and a half without getting tired, write quite a large number of letters, and spin at least 200 rounds, going up to as far as 40 counts. Ba is allowed to stay with me during the day. Devdas is permitted to come and see me.

It is necessary that we should spin as fine yarn as we can. I also admit the moral blemish in wearing clothes of fine yarn, but fine cloth has also some benefits. It is very necessary from an artistic point of view. In the attempt to spin fine yarn, one makes many discoveries. It makes for deftness of the hand. In the past the people were forced to spin fine yarn. Even as atonement for that, some of us ought to spin fine yarn as part of the yajna of spinning, so that the yarn spun by them might be available whenever fine cloth is found to be absolutely necessary. If we have to pay the full labour charges for fine yarn, the cost of such cloth would be exceedingly high.

¹ For one of these Vide “Letter to Nirmala B. Mashruwala”, 3-10-1932.

It was not proper for Kishorelal to have insisted on spinning a thousand rounds during the week of the fast. He should have recognized his limitations in this matter. One learns real humility by doing so. One may, if one wishes, do labour which is easier even than spinning. But those who cannot do any manual work can also serve through their thoughts and writings. He is a thief who has hands but does not use them to do any work.

I like the verse as amended: “I wish I could always employ my all in relieving some creatures’ pain.”

Kishorelal knows that Nath had some doubt about the moral propriety of my fast. At my request, Nath came and discussed the matter a little with me during the fast. I do not know whether he was finally convinced.

Rabindranath went the furthest he could this time. We have come very close to each other. I don’t think I have left out anything.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 2888. Courtesy: Nirmalabehn Shroff

338. LETTER TO LILY H. SHAH

October 7, 1932

Do you realize what you are suggesting when you ask that you should be permitted to offer me the first meal to end my fast? Should I fast again in order that you may do that?

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 114

1 The original Sanskrit verse means: “I desire the end of the suffering of all creatures that suffer”.

2 Hiralal Shah’s daughter, now Lily Anand Pandya
339. LETTER TO NANIBEHN JHAVERI

YERAVDA MANDIR,
October 7, 1932

CHI. NANIBEHN,

Of course I have written you a letter. You should get it. Ba had mentioned your arrival and that of Gangabehn. We shall be able to meet only when God wills. Gangabehn must write to me in detail about the meals. How is your health? Godse met me separately also. But is Bapalal Vaidya with him? I have written a letter. It is all right that you have called somebody from the Ashram. Keep writing to me whenever you have any news. I am steadily regaining strength.

I saw Gangabehn’s letter after writing this. She must put on weight fast.

Blessings from
BAPU

[From Gujarati]

Manavtana Prahari—Pannalal Jhaveri, p. 26

340. LETTER TO SARUPRANI NEHRU

October 7, 1932

DEAR SISTER,

Your letter. You should not hesitate to send for a doctor when your health warrants it. You are taking sufficient fruit, I hope. May God make you well soon.

I am delighted with your decision to remain here till I have given a final answer. The children will, of course, be pleased at it. Give my blessings to them.

Your gift has been received but do we need this kind of courtesy between us? Premlilabehn and Ramanarayan’s wife anyway send me fruits in plenty.

Write to Sarup² and Krishna³ and tell them that I know their

¹ Motilal Nehru’s widow
² Addressee’s daughters
³ ibid
feelings even without a wire from them.

I can see what services you are rendering to the Harijans here.
Ba narrates everything to me.

Yours,
MOHANDAS

From the Hindi original: Gandhiji-Indira Gandhi Correspondence File. Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library.

341. LETTER TO C.Y. CHINTAMANI

October 8, 1932

DEAR FRIEND,

No need whatsoever for apology. I hope you received my previous letter in reply to your earlier letter.

There are insurmountable difficulties about adopting the way you suggest.¹ As a prisoner I am not free to discuss them. But if it was open to me to discuss them, I think you would be convinced of the soundness of my reason. But this I may say that no one can be more eager than I am to see peace established between the Government and the people or the Congress.

I hope you are keeping well.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

SJT. C. Y. CHINTAMANI
“THE LEADER” OFFICE
ALLAHABAD

¹ The addressee had suggested withdrawal or suspension of civil disobedience.
342. LETTER TO MOHANLAL

October 8, 1932

BHAISHRI MOHANLAL,

You are right in your view that inter-dining and inter-marrying with Antyajas are not a necessary part of the movement for the eradication of untouchability. Hence there can be no coercion brought to bear on anybody in regard to these. If, however, anybody wishes of his own free will to have such relations with Antyajas, he should not be prevented from doing so, just as members of “touchable” communities are not prevented from having such relations among themselves. Eradication of untouchability means permitting Harijans, and persuading others to permit them, to enjoy the rights which as a human being every Hindu enjoys.

MOHANDAS GANDHI

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 232

343. LETTER TO MOHANLAL M. BHATT

October, 8, 1932

There was some merit in Mohamad Kaji’s decision to observe the roza. Islam enjoins keeping of the roza during a time of misfortune. One other Muslim friend also had kept the roza at that time. The roza is not a fast. In this matter Muslim friends should earnestly wish that, just as the problem of the Antyajas has been solved, that of the Hindus, Muslims and Sikhs also may be solved, and should do their duty towards that end.

A solution of the problem from the religious point of view was certainly one of the aims of my fast. The Hindu public realized this without any propaganda for that purpose, and the great awakening that has come about is indeed of a religious nature.

From the religious standpoint the Government award would have destroyed the Antyajas. As compared with that aspect of the problem, the political aspect was insignificant. Politics is included in religion and is not an independent activity. The solution of the Antyajas problem from a religious point of view includes the solution of the problem of all oppressed races in the world. The Christians and Muslims also seem to have grasped this point.

I see no violation of principle in a teetotaller present at a feast... passing a glass of wine. If one attends such a feast, it is one’s duty, according to me, to pass the glass and there is no hypocrisy in doing so. That is one way of quietly winning the love of the people who drink. This argument applies only to a strict teetotaller, and the question also was put with reference to such a person. If my reply is not properly understood, it is likely to be misapplied, but I have no fear in giving you this reply.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhai Diary, Vol. II, pp. 116-7

344. LETTER TO CHHAGANLAL JOSHI

October 8, 1932

CHI. CHHAGANLAL (JOSHI),

I have your letter. Do what you think best. I cannot guide you from here. Think over the pledge which was taken. It should not be violated in the slightest degree. This does not mean that I know anything in the matter. I don’t remember everything now. This is why I have always insisted that whenever a person takes a vow, he should immediately write it down. If he does not do that, afterwards his resolution weakens and he interprets the vow to make it much milder. I have often been guilty of such behaviour myself and my conscience has pricked me afterwards.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 5511

345. LETTER TO RAMABEHN JOSHI

October 8, 1932

CHI. RAMA (JOSHI)\(^1\),

Have you requested me not to take the trouble of writing to you, so that you also may not have to write to me? But how can I, when I am well enough and eat and work as usual, and get time to write, refrain from writing? I don’t mind Vimu’s having had a trip to Yeravda, but has she started working as a scavenger-girl? The brave

\(^1\) Wife of Chhaganlal Joshi
Dhiru seems to have become a little wiser
Has his health improved?

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 5336

346. LETTER TO BABALBHAI MEHTA

October 8, 1932

CHI. BABAL,

I got your letter. I have now regained sufficient strength. Make proper use of every moment of your time.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: S.N. 9447

347. LETTER TO NARAYAN M. KHARE

October 8, 1932

CHI. PANDITJI,

I got your letters.

Mixed dinner parties with Harijans are not a necessary part of the movement against untouchability, but they are consequence of it. I am glad, too, that they take place. Though opposition to them is only to be expected, no one will be able to stop them if such dinners have become a popular movement. There is no argument whatever based on dharma in support of ideas of pollution through food, etc.

While we do not encourage image-worship in the Ashram, we do not forbid it either. Temples in one form or another will always remain as long as Hinduism flourishes. Antyajas should have the right to enter all temples recognized as such by the Hindus. It cannot be otherwise if we wish to root out the very idea of a certain class of people being Antyajas. Hence, not only is there no contradiction of Ashram principles in an Ashram inmate encouraging temple-entry, but on the contrary it is his duty to encourage it. From a religious standpoint, this issue is very important for the Antyajas. It is going to be a test for the Hindus.

I think it necessary that Ashram inmates should be permitted to go, or should go, to work outside for anti-untouchability work. All Ashram inmates are intended and trained ultimately to go out to work among the people. No inmate of the Ashram who wishes to worship Ganesh or any other deity should be stopped from doing so. However, as an institution we should, in my opinion, remain equal towards all religions and, therefore, should not permit a public temple with an idol in the Ashram. Our public temple is the open prayer ground with the horizons in the different directions as its walls, the sky as its roof and formless God as the idol in the temple. If we followed any other course, we would be required to provide for a mosque, a fire temple, a church, a synagogue and so on. At present the number of Hindus is indeed greater, but we do wish that followers of other faiths also should join us in course of time. An attitude of equality towards all religions requires us to keep in view from now the necessity for all such places of worship. If we do that, however, we might not be able to keep up our attitude of equality, and therefore, the golden rule for us to follow in this as in other matters is to exercise self-control. Think over all this carefully and understand it fully, and ask me again and again till you have done so. I shall not get tired of answering your questions. I have now regained sufficient strength to attend to such duties.

I have forgotten how Sundarabai and Deshpande came to know each other. The religious issue arose because of the previous marriage that was believed to have taken place. I only suggested it as an ideal that there should be no marriage between a teacher and his pupil or between one teacher and another working in the same institution. There is certainly no religious objection to such marriages. If any two persons wish to marry, we may not encourage them but we certainly cannot prevent them. I am writing this as a general rule only; I have forgotten what actually happened in this particular case. The ideal which I have explained has also not been sufficiently explained to people. Nor is any warning given to persons joining the Vidyapith. How can we, then, apply the principle in this case? In such instances, though sticking to our ideal, we should adopt a liberal attitude.

Blessings from
BAPU

From Gujarati: C. W. 236. Courtesy: Lakshmibehn N. Khare

---

1 Some words in this sentence, illegible in the source, are supplied from Mahadevbhaini Diary.
CHI. MANI,

I did get your long letter though it was not long enough for me. The fast is now a thing of the past. It was inspired by God and so it was crowned with success. I am rapidly getting back my normal health. I have almost regained my strength. Everyday I take two pounds of milk and lots of juice of oranges, pomegranates or grapes, and gourd of tomato soup. . . . I can take a fairly good walk, and spin at least 200 rounds of fine yarn, of 45 counts. I also write a great many letters. So you see there is no cause now for anxiety. Ba is permitted to stay with me during the day. Davdas also is allowed to come and see me. He is all right now.

Your dreaming about food could be a sign of indigestion, if nothing more. Such dreams are common when one is very hungry or suffers from indigestion. You should find out the real cause and take the necessary measures, and then stop worrying about the matter. If one’s life is regulated by rules of self discipline, such dreams are bound to stop in the course of time. We must not expect the veils of ignorance of many lives to vanish all at once; they will take their own time. But we need not, for that reason, lose heart or give way to despair or slacken our efforts, and we must entertain no doubt nor worry about the ultimate victory. This is the meaning of non attachment taught by the Gita.

Fasting produces different effects on different persons, and this is not surprising. They depend on one’s physical constitution and psychological attitude towards the fast. One who is not accustomed to fasting will be upset by the thought of fasting even for one day. But fasting is child’s play for one who is in the habit of fasting from time to time. Similarly, a person who has not much fat in his system cannot hold out for many days. But a fat person, if he is patient, can prolong the fast for a long time and physically benefit by it.

Father and Mahadev are all right. We never enjoyed such solitude before, and it has done us much good.

I hope you are in good health and so also are Lilavati and Kamaladevi. My blessings to the other women there. Tell Lilavati that 1 Some words here are censored by the jail authorities.

I had a fine letter from Munshi. Ask her to write to me if she can and feels inclined. I enclose Nandubehn’s letter which was received here.

Blessings from
BAPU

[From Gujarati]
Bapuna Patro—4: Manibehn Patelne, pp. 87-9

349. LETTER TO PRABHAVATI

October 8, 1932

I have your long letter. I was very pleased. Though you did not get all my letters, it would seem that my blessings sent through others were conveyed to you all right. My fast is an old story now. I am gradually recovering my strength. I take two pounds of milk and the juice of oranges, mosambis, grapes and pomegranates and the soup of tomatoes and gourd. I spin daily not less that 200 rounds of 45 counts and write letters too. Ba spends the day with me and so I don’t have to worry about anything. I am happy that you keep good health. Tell Sarup and Krishna that Mother is here. She came and saw me during the fast. Chand¹, Tara², Indu, etc., also came and saw me. Indu seems to be growing well. You have given no news about Kanta in your letter. If Rani Vidyavati is with you, tell her that I wrote several letters to her. Your enthusiasm for study is commendable. Read and learn as much as you can while you are there. After you are released, we shall make better arrangements. Do not be impatient however. Your purity, fortitude and devotion to duty represent your real education. It is true, of course, that education in letters will add to their lustre, and, therefore, God willing, your desire for it will be fulfilled. May God preserve your health.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G. N. 3430

¹ Chandralekha and Nayantara
² ibid
350. LETTER TO MAHALAKSHMI M. THAKKAR

October 8, 1932

CHI. MAHALAKSHMI,

I hope you got the letter which I wrote to you last week.

You have done right in giving up cereals and pulses for some time. If you restrict your food to milk and curds, raisins, juice of sour lemon with soda bicarb, oranges, mosambis, cucumber, tomatoes, radishes and salad, your weight will certainly go down. Do not eat almonds or other nuts. If you wish to chew something, you may eat one ounce of coconut. You may eat less but not more than one ounce. If it does not agree with you, you can stop it.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G. N. 6822

351. LETTER TO MATHURADAS TRIKUMJI

[October 8, 1932]

I got both your letters. There is nobody now among the prominent leaders who has not blessed my fast. There is no doubt that a fast is the ultimate weapon in non-violence. It is being misused and will probably be misused still more. But there is a saving grace even in its misuse. It can harm only the person who misuses it. And, if we consider the matter deeply, even the harm to him is very small. If his motive is pure, his soul will not be sullied, and only the body will be harmed. However, not many would come forward even to misuse it. How many, after all, would be ready to endure the physical suffering involved in a fast?

I am regaining strength quite rapidly. I take two pounds of milk and plenty of juice of oranges, mosambis, grapes and pomegranates. I also take soup of gourd or tomato. The weight, which had gone down to 93 1/2 lb., has now risen to 99 lb. I can walk for a total of an hour and a half daily, and can write a large number of letters. I have thus practically regained my original strength. I spin at least 200 rounds of nearly 45 counts. Nor do I feel much tired afterwards. There is, therefore, no cause for the slightest anxiety.

Taramati came and saw me, accompanied by her children. This time she seems to have made good progress. Both the children are in excellent condition. Dilip writes to me occasionally. Taramati writes regularly.

1 From Mahadevbhaini Diary.

Ba is permitted to stay with me during the day, and Devdas is permitted to come and see me. He has now recovered his health. He still seems to be a little weak, though.

Though I suffered much physically during the fast, I also enjoyed immense peace of mind.

I hope you are keeping good health.

[From Gujarati]

Bapuni Prasadi, pp. 116-7

352. LETTER TO PRABHUDAS GANDHI

October 8, 1932

CHI. PRABHUDAS,

You will get all news about me.¹ I had a letter from Badridutt even before I got yours. I have wired and even written a letter. The news about Devakinandan is also painful.

I hope all of you are getting along quite well. These days, I use the Gandiva spinning-wheel. It is less strenuous to work with. It permits great speed.

BAPU

[PS.]

Ask Hemi to write to me.

From the Gujarati original: S.N. 32985

353. LETTER TO AMTUSSALAAM

October 8, 1932

DEAR DAUGHTER AMTUSSALAAM,

Your letter has come. Kudsia’s brother has sent a letter. He too will come to the Ashram this month. Kudsia must be all right now. I am getting back my strength. I was glad to have seen you.²

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Urdu: G.N. 258

¹ From the papers or other sources
² The addressee had been permitted to see Gandhiji during his fast.
354. LETTER TO SECRETARIES, FRIENDS OF INDIA

October 9, 1932

JOINT HON. SECRETARIES
FRIENDS OF INDIA
46 LANCASTER GATE
LONDON, W. 2

DEAR FRIEND [S],

I thank you for your letter of sympathy. The funds can be sent to the anti-untouchability association formed under the chairmanship of Sjt. G. D. Birla for the furtherance of its objects.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

Bombay Secret Abstracts, Home Department, Special Branch, File No. 800(40)(3) Pt. III, p. 224

355. LETTER TO DR. SYED MAHMUD

October 9, 1932

DEAR DR. MAHMUD,

I have your two letters—the only ones to be received by me. I hope you had my note sent through Kamala. Tell the 4-year old dame that she was forgiven for not completing her fast. Prayers of little ones are better than their fasts. Who knows but that it was such prayers that were answered. Well, the whole time the fast was on, I was thinking too of the Hindu-Muslim question and asking God to give me light. How I wish your, Maulana Abul Kalam’s and Malviyaji’s efforts fructified. It would be a grand day if we could achieve not a paper but a heart unity.

I am glad your wife and sisters are better. You too must be well now or you must have a compulsory fast for regaining health.

My salaams to both the Maulanas.

Love from us all.

BAPU

Bombay Secret Abstracts, Home Department, Special Branch, File No. 800(40)(3), Pt. III, p. 223. Also G.N. 5076
356. LETTER TO VITHAL R. SHINDE

October 9, 1932

I am not going to be party to any quarter being granted to untouchability—this enemy of all truth, righteousness and progress.

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 122

357. LETTER TO RABINDRANATH TAGORE

October 9, 1932

DEAR GURUDEV,

I have your beautiful letter. I am daily seeking light. This unity between Hindus and Muslims is also my life’s mission. The restrictions do hamper me. But I know that when I have the light, it will pierce through the restrictions. Meanwhile I pray though I do not yet fast.

I hope you were none the worse for the strenuous work in Poona and equally fatiguing long journey.

Mahadev has translated for us your beautiful sermon to the villagers on 20th ultimo.

With love,

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat: G.N. 4633

358. LETTER TO URMILA DEVI

October 9, 1932

MY DEAR URMILA¹,

What a tragedy! As you were going out that day, I was about to shout out, when Sarojini said you were all coming back soon. And I subsided. But so it was to be. It was to me a sharp reminder that I was a prisoner and therefore not to have all my way. It is a good thing to have these shocks. They keep me humble.

¹ The addressee had asked Gandhiji if in the matter of eradication of untouchability he would agree to a workable compromise.

² Sister of C.R. Das
The lesson is, never put off till tomorrow what you can do today and never put off till the next moment what you can do this moment. I wanted to know all about you and your children. Now you must write fully about your joys such as you may have and sorrows that you do have. But sorrows of God’s servants are their joys. They are the fires through which God tries and purifies them. Unmixed joys of this earth will stink in our nostrils and we should die of want of the oxygen of sorrows. I have read your letter to Mahadev. Let your boy go through the hard mill of difficulties instead of getting a soft job.

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 120

359. LETTER TO BASANTI DEVI DAS

October 9, 1932

It was fearful not to have met you again. As you were going, I do not know whether you noticed that I was casting hungry eyes on you, when Sarojini said you were soon coming back. But you were not to.

What is the meaning of my being a prisoner, if things could happen in the natural course. Let us therefore be thankful for the mercies we had. I was glad that my fast drew you to Poona. I was hungering to see you, since you will not write.

And now do throw yourself in this glorious work of untouchability.

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 119

360. LETTER TO BHAU PANSE

October 9, 1932

CHI. BHAU,

Vinoba’s advice is correct, but it does not mean that one should not try physical remedies. One should strive for self-purification, whatever the condition of one’s health. But your constipation ought to be cured by ordinary remedies. I am writing to Narandas and suggesting to him that he should let you go to Rajkot or Vijapur.

Vinoba’s advice is correct, but it does not mean that one should not try physical remedies. One should strive for self-purification, whatever the condition of one’s health. But your constipation ought to be cured by ordinary remedies. I am writing to Narandas and suggesting to him that he should let you go to Rajkot or Vijapur.

1 Wife of C.R. Das
Change of water often helps. Moreover, you will benefit from good company at either place.

_Blessings from_

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 6738. Also C.W. 4481. Courtesy: Bhau Panse

361. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

At Night, October 9, 1932

CHI. NARANDAS,

I duly got your mail. We must help Bhau to overcome his constipation. I feel that, if you send him to Rajkot, the water there may perhaps agree with him. If it is impossible to send him to Rajkot, you may send him to Vijapur. But I am eager that he should go to Rajkot, as we know that the water of that place agreed with Purushottam. Moreover, he will benefit from the company of Purushottam and Jamnadas. Do what you think best.

I feel worried about Kusum. The thought that her health does not improve is a painful one. Does she take proper rest now? Prema told me in her letter that you abstained from many things during my fast. I hope that has not affected your health. I am regaining my strength with wonderful speed. You see how many letters I write. I must have written about 30 letters today, important and unimportant. As for spinning, I spin at least 200 rounds a day, of more than 45 counts. The elbow is in excellent condition, so far. I have gone up to two pounds of milk. Fruit continues. The weight also has gone up to 99. I can walk for a sufficiently long time. You need not, therefore, worry about me at all.

In which jail is the elder Kusum to be kept? Where is she at present? After the death at Trivedi’s place, I felt that we should either banish the primus stove from the Ashram or the women should resolve never to light it. I enforced this rule today in the case of Ba. We have got a primus here at present. Ba went to light it. I stopped her and Mahadev went instead. The dress of our women is such that there is every danger of its catching fire. If the women must use a primus stove, they should ask a man every time to light it. Really speaking, it is not at all necessary.

1 Kusumbhn Desai
2 Of Taragouri, his sister-in-law; _vide_ “Letter to Chandrashankar N. Pandya”, 4-10-1932.

I hope that Qureshi’s piles have completely disappeared now. How is Amina? Ask her to write to me. Anyone who wishes may write. Nobody need refrain out of pity for me now. Ba is still permitted to stay with me for the whole day. But the permission may now be withdrawn any time. Devdas is free to come and see me every day. Read my letter to Panditji.

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./I. Also C.W. 8259. Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi

362. LETTER TO MULCHAND PAREKH

October 9, 1932

Send a report and accounts to Thakkar Bapa and request him for help. While the movement for self-purification is in full swing, take a pledge that you will sell yourself and your belongings but will not let any school or Ashram be closed for want of funds. Do not reconcile yourself to the inability of Kathiawar to collect such a small amount. You have dedicated yourself to this work. You ought not to give up the task in despair so soon.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhai Diari, Vol II, p. 118

2 Amritlal V. Thakkar, member of Servants of India Society and social worker who dedicated himself to the cause of Harijans and Adivasis
363. LETTER TO TARAMATI MATHURADAS TRIKUMJI

October 9, 1932

CHI. TARAMATI,

I have your letter. I have now regained sufficient strength. I am writing and going for walks properly. I am also spinning as before. Hence there is no reason to worry at all. I had received a long letter from Mathuradas. He is keeping good health. The letter was about the fast.

Blessings to all of you from

BAPU

From the Gujarati original: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

364. A LETTER

October 9, 1932

No son is entitled to sit in judgment over his father. Your work is that of a reformer. A soldier in the cause of reform works so as to influence the criminal-minded and does not publicize their weaknesses or drag them to courts of law. Your duty is to reform your father’s conduct through love, but it would be a sin for you to make his weaknesses public. You actually mention several virtues of your father. It would of course be better if he were free from greed, but you will be able to overcome that weakness in time through loving persuasion. You should tolerate it till then. Reason with your brothers and sisters. Make your own life purer and more self-controlled. If even after all these efforts you cannot persuade your father to change his ways, you may leave your home. I would see nothing improper in that. But even that you should do after giving him sufficient time to improve. We ought not to be self-righteous and expect, as soon as we have changed, that the world will change too. We may have changed in one respect, but probably we do not see the many other weaknesses which remain in us. We ought to bear this in mind and adopt a liberal attitude towards the weaknesses of other people. I think you now have the answers to all your questions.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, pp. 118-9
365. LETTER TO DR. SURESH CHANDRA BANERJI

October 10, 1932

MY DEAR SURESH,

Why have you kept me in suspense about your health? I know your views of old on caste and untouchability. I quite agree with you that caste has got to go. But whether it would do so in my generation I do not know. Only let us not mix up the two and spoil both causes. Untouchability is a soul-destroying sin. Caste is a social evil. Anyway you get thoroughly well and work away against caste well and work away against caste with your usual vigour. You will find in me a good supporter.

With love and all good wishes,

BAPU

Advance, 15-10-1932. Also Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 124

366. LETTER TO HARDYAL NAG

October 10, 1932

You are always punctual in sending me the right message at the right moment. You put to shame the youth of the country by your enthusiasm at your time of life. May God enable you to finish the century in the same state of vigour.

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 125

367. LETTER TO SOMASUNDARAM

October 10, 1932

You do not seem to have studied my very first statement given to the Press. You will find from it that although technically I could express my purpose in the manner I did, the fast was in truth addressed to the Hindus and others who had faith in me. You will observe too that the vast mass of Hindus instinctively understood the purpose of the fast. I hope this is quite clear. The reason why

---

1 The addressee, writing from Ceylon, had asked why Gandhiji was not satisfied by the Pact itself and had made the Government’s acceptance of it a condition for breaking his fast.
Government acceptance was necessary was because the Pact would be useless in the teeth of the adverse decision. This was the natural corollary to the Pact and the fast.

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 123

368. LETTER TO JAMNALAL BAJAJ

October 10, 1932

CHI JAMNALAL,

I had got your letter. You may have thought it too long, but I did not feel so, especially as it gave me the news that the ‘beggar’ had started on his begging mission. Tell him that I had got his letter. Since he has relieved me of my worry, I intend this letter for him too. My body has almost recovered its normal strength. My diet includes milk, oranges, mosambis, grapes or pomegranates, and gourd and tomatoes among vegetables. Sometimes I drop milk for a day or two. I walk twice a day, for a total of an hour and a half. I write a great many letters. I spin, as I used to do before the fast, not less than 200 rounds daily, of more than 45 counts. This should reassure everyone. I suffered much physically during the fast but the mind was completely at peace. If the fast had had to be prolonged, I would not have felt any strain on the mind. But it was for God, at whose prompting I had undertaken the fast, to prolong it or make it short. Ba is still permitted to stay with me for the whole day. But that will probably stop now. Devdas can come and see me for some time. However he does not come every day. Sardar and Mahadev continue to be with me. Your health can be considered all right. If you have lost some weight, that is to the good. But you should not lose any more now. Vinoba’s company has undoubtedly benefited you in that it has strengthened your faith in God. He has a beautiful way with him indeed. It is also good that you have had Gulzarilal’s company. It is good, too, that you have come to have faith in nature-cure methods and simple food. These two save us from many diseases. Your daily programme is excellent. You should be happy that you are a ‘C’ class prisoner. Personally, I have always disliked being in ‘A’ or ‘B’ class. Even in ‘C’ class one can secure the facilities necessary to preserve one’s health. Has Gulzarilal become sufficiently strong now? Is Madhavji all right? Sardar had acquired great speed in his study of Sanskrit, but owing to the fast it has slowed down a little. He is now preparing to resume the former speed. So far our daily routine has been quite satisfactory. We eat and sleep, read newspapers, pace up and down for a walk, read and study what we wish to and spin. Carding is Mahadev’s monopoly. But he has suspended that work for some time, for a fairly good stock of slivers has accumulated. Moreover, Chhakkaddas also has been sending fine slivers. I get letters from Wardha regularly. Give regards from us all to everyone there.

Blessings from

BAPU

[From Gujarati]

Panchama Putrane Bapuna Ashirvad, pp. 74-5

369. LETTER TO DADACHANJII

October 10, 1932

Bhai Dadachanji,

This is in reply to your letter of the 23rd. I wish to clarify my position in regard to Baba¹. I find it very difficult to believe that one person can help another to see God. My heart refuses to accept this idea. When Baba, however, makes such a claim, I can only tell him that I would welcome his help if he could make me see God. We need not believe that a person has necessarily seen God just because he says that he has seen Him. Many persons who make such a claim are found to be suffering from a delusion. In many cases the claim is merely an echo of one’s own wishes. I certainly do not believe that seeing God means seeing some Power outside of us, for I believe that He dwells in the hearts of us all. But only one in thousands knows Him through the heart. It is not enough to know God with one’s intellect. I do feel that no person can help another to see God in this sense.

One cannot fast at the instance of somebody else in order to be able to see God. I would do so only when I feel an urge from within me. And when there is such an urge, I will not let myself be dissuaded from the step by anybody. There is absolutely no reason for assuming that fasting would help me to see God. I cannot believe that, if I agree to fast for forty days, Baba can help me to see God. That would be an easy bargain. If one can see God as easily as that, the experience has no value for me.

¹ Meher Baba
I thought that Baba did not divide life into separate fields. To a person whose life is dedicated to dharma, politics, economics, etc., are all aspects of dharma, and he cannot leave out any of them. According to me, a person who regards dharma as one of the many activities of life does not know what dharma is. It is, therefore, inconceivable to me that I might some day give up politics, social reform and other similar activities. I have entered the fields of politics, social service, etc., for the sake of dharma.

I did not promise to translate Baba’s writings into Gujarati. On the contrary, I suggested to Baba that he should come out of the spell of English and not write or get somebody to write for him in English, but write and explain his ideas in Gujarati, his mother tongue, or in Persian which as he says, he knows very well. Yes, I would certainly translate into Gujarati any of his writings which deeply appeal to me.

In short, I am a student of Baba’s ideas. I saw Baba, having received a wire from Jamshed Mehta whom I regard as a pure soul. I am always in search of bhaktas of God and, thinking that Baba was one, I met him.

Vandemataram from
MOHANDAS GANDHI

[From Gujarati]
Mahadevbhai Diary, Vol II, p. 125-6

370. LETTER TO JHAVERCHAND MEGHANI

October 10, 1932

I had very much liked the loving gift which you had sent to me when I sailed for England. I cannot put this on the same level... I am not a good judge of poetry.

[From Gujarati]
Mahadevbhai Diary, Vol. II, p. 124

1 (1897-1947); Gujarati poet and writer
2 The addressee had sent to Gandhiji a poem “Chhelli Salaam”.
371. LETTER TO RAMANLAL SONI

October 10, 1932

On the whole I liked the poems. But I did find the language of some of them bitter. . . . I am no good judge of poetry.

[From Gujarati]
Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 125

372. LETTER TO JAISHANKAR P. TRIVEDI

October 10, 1932

After the tragic death of Taragouri, would not all of you do this by way of shraddha to her? You should either banish the primus stove from your home or, if that is not possible, the women members should take a vow never to light it themselves. They should always ask a man to light it for them. The dress of our women is not designed to enable them to light a primus stove.²

[From Gujarati]
Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 127

373. A LETTER

October 10, 1932

Caste reform is necessary and anybody who can do that work should undertake it. The movement for the eradication of untouchability is bound to have an indirect effect in that field. I commend the efforts to help child-widows to marry again. These tasks can be undertaken by men of self-control and pure character.

[From Gujarati]
Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 123

¹ A Gujarati writer and translator
² Vide also”Letter to Jaishankar P. Trivedi”, 4-10-1932.
374. LETTER TO RAIHANA TYABJI

October 10, 1932

BELOVED DAUGHTER RAIHANA,

You are a very clever girl. You want me to fast again in order that you may send me bhajans composed by you. No, I will not fast. And the bhajan will please me only when you sing it to me. If I had not heard you sing the bhajan “Arise and Awake, O Traveller”, it would not have touched me so deeply. Even if you sing this bhajan from outside the jail walls, your voice will reach me. I do hear, for instance, the sound of all of you dancing. Greetings to Father and Mother from us all. And a slap for you. Blessings to Dahyabhai. Is Pashabhai all right now? Ba spends the whole day with me. I am now regaining strength fairly rapidly, and, therefore, Ba’s visits may stop now.

Many blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Urdu: S.N. 9669

375. LETTER TO RAIHANA TYABJI

October 10, 1932

CHI. RAIHANA,

I got your letter containing the Bhajan. I suppose you must have got my letter today. I am writing this letter to tell you about Hari-ichchha. I forgot to write about her earlier today. She is Valjibhai’s niece. She lived in the Ashram for some years and has now married Engineer Kamdar of Baroda. I had been writing to her and asking her to go and see you. But since I had not written to you about her, you could not recognize her when she called on you. The fault was mine and not yours. Hari-ichchha informs me that you did not make her feel in any way that she was a stranger, and that both Mother and you showed her great love. The other one was Shanta, who still lives in the Ashram.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI RAIHANABEHN
C/O ABBAS SAHEB
CAMP
BARODA

From a photostat of the Gujarati: S.N. 9668
376. LETTER TO HARI-ICHCHHA P. KAMDAR

October 10, 1932

CHI. HARI-ICHCHHA.

I got your letter. Yes, it is true that I completely forgot to write to Raihanbehn. It would have been better if I had prepared her. I have now written' to her today. But the truth is that she does not require anybody to be introduced to her. Visit her now and then and keep up the acquaintance.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI HARI-ICHCHHABEHN
C/O SHRI P.V. KAMDAR
SHIA BAGH
BARODA

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 7472. Courtesy: Hari-ichchha P. Kamdar

377. LETTER TO BALDEVDAS BIJORIA

October 10, 1932

I have your kind letter. For people like me removal of untouchability is solely a matter of faith. I would never attempt to give up my life on a political issue. Yes, I agree that no coercion should be used whether in a religious or any other matter. As far as I can judge from here there is no coercion in the current activities and God is behind them. I firmly hold that there is no religion in observing untouchability. What more shall I write? I hope I shall continue to enjoy your love.

[From Hindi]

Mahadev bhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 124

1 Vide the preceding item.
378. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA

October 10, 1932

Bhai Krishnachandra,

Your letter reached me only today. Destiny is certainly there but so is effort too. Destiny simply means that in the absence of effort we have only the fruits of the actions of our past lives. Effort can change destiny. Therefore brahmacharya is necessary for those who wish to realize the Brahman. See the fifteenth chapter of the Gita. Anyway brahmacharya is the essence of the Gita. One who wants to lose himself in the Brahman, one who wants to be ever immersed in service has no time for sensual pleasures. This answers all your doubts.

Yours,

Mohandas

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4262

379. LETTER TO CHAUNDE MAHARAJ

October 10, 1932

I have your letter. Here is my message:

I am growing stronger in my belief that cow-protection is an impossibility until we carefully study its economics, take into our fold the untouchables who can do immense service in this work until all the dairies are run on scientific lines and we take a vow to use the hide of dead animals only. Thus the duty now of workers for cow-protection is to understand well these significant points, act accordingly as far as possible and induce others to do so.

[From Hindi]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, pp. 123-4

1 This was a slip; vide “Letter to Krishnachandra”, 31-10-1932.
380. A LETTER

October 11, 1932

I thank you for your letter. I quite agree with you that milk of cows and buffaloes should be avoided for the reasons given by you. I do not take this milk. But I do take goat’s milk, though I consider that too objectionable on more general grounds. I have been trying to find an effective substitute for it, but have so far failed. I did not break my fast on honey, but on orange juice. But I do take honey and I do not consider it objectionable. If honey is obtained in a scientific manner not a bee need be destroyed or starved. But I confess to you that I do not always get such innocent honey.

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 130

381. LETTER TO RUKMINIDEVI BAZAJ

[October 11, 1932]

CHI. RUKMINI,

I now understand your previous letter.

You got a silver medal for singing, and now you want compliments for having made a speech. Am I right? But how can you get compliments if, in your joy for having won a medal, you fall ill? Get well if you wish to have my compliments. Who presented the medal to you? I hope you have kept up the practice on sitar.

Blessings from
BAPU

[PS.]

At present either you or Benarsi should write to me regularly.

SHRI RUKMINIDEVI
C/O SHRI BENARSIDAS BAZAJ
THATHERI BAZAAR, BANARAS CITY

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 9141

---

1 The addressee, a Muslim Municipal Councillor from Gujarat, had said that Gandhiji ought to give up milk and honey.
2 From the Postmark
382. LETTER TO SUSHILABEHN GANDHI

October 11, 1932

CHI. SUSHILA,

What a strange person you are! You fell ill as soon as you landed at Bombay. May I take this to mean that I should send you back to South Africa immediately? Earlier, Manilal came in hot haste and took you away. This time, too, you two seem to have come with some such conspiracy. That is why, I suppose, Sita refused to come here without you. She was afraid that you might go away without her. I hope you are improving now. Ba will come to see you. Do not be in any hurry to come and see me. There is nothing to worry about in regard to my health. Take complete rest and get well. Ask Tara to write to me.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI SUSHILABEHN
C/O SHRI BALUBHAI MASHRUWALA
TOPIWALA’S BANGALOW
SANDHURST ROAD
BOMBAY

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 4796

383. LETTER TO TRIBHUVDANAS TRIKAMLAL

October 11, 1932

BHAII TRIBHUVDANAS,

I am grateful to you for sending me the works of Harikrishna Maharaj. I hope to go through them when I get some time. After that if I feel the need I will certainly call for the larger volume.

MOHANDAS GANDHI

SJT. TRIBHUVDANAS TRIKAMLAL
AMRITBHAVAN
RAILWAYPURA
MANINAGAR
AHMEDABAD, B. B. & C. I. RLY.

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G. N. 10501
384. A LETTER

October 11, 1932

Eradication of untouchability means that we should treat Antyajas as we treat members of the other communities. That is, we should not object to their physical touch or to drinking water served by them, and they may enter our homes or public temples and attend schools like other Hindus. This much is necessarily implied in it. Whether one should eat food cooked by them or eat in their company or intermarry with them is a matter of one’s own choice. Religion does not forbid that, nor does it enjoin it. The mixed dinner parties which are often arranged these days are not a necessary part of the movement. But I have no doubt that they deserve to be commended.

[From Gujarati]
Mahadevbhai Diary, Vol. II, p. 129

385. A LETTER

October 11, 1932

I have your letter. The Congress workers who left the meeting because drinking water was fetched by untouchables acted most improperly.

Drinking of water offered by untouchables is an integral part of the eradication of untouchability. Our dharma is to treat the untouchables the same way we treat other communities. Those who have done “expiation” have committed a sin and acted against the Congress. Your being boycotted is immoral and you must on no account undergo expiation. I am distressed that some of our brothers at Bilaspur by their immoral conduct have created a misunderstanding in the minds of the untouchables. I want them to make a public acknowledgement of their mistake.

I am in favour of inter-dining and intermarriage but I do not

---

1 The source says the addressee was a Marwari gentleman of Nagpur.
2 The addressee, not identified by name in the source, had given a distressing account of a meeting held at Bilaspur in connection with Gandhi’s fast. On some people accepting water from Chamars, it seemed, protests were raised. Some were forced to go through purificatory rites and others who had refused to do so were being threatened with excommunication. The correspondent had asked whether this was right.
consider them a necessary feature of removal of untouchability. I feel that those who consider it a dharma to practise these deserve to be applauded. The mixed public dinners that are arranged these days are in my opinion a good thing. I have not noticed any injunction against inter-dining and intermarriage in the scriptures.

This answers all your questions. Please write to me about further developments in the matter.

[From Hindi]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, pp. 129-30

386. LETTER TO AMTUSALAAM

October 12, 1932

DEAR DAUGHTER AMTUSALAAM,

Today I will not write in Urdu.¹

You do deserve shabash² for curing yourself quickly. You will get well quicker if you won’t worry about meeting me. When God wills it, we shall meet. Meanwhile let us be thankful that we can write to each other.

Yes, I will write to the other girls about the baths.

Let us hope Kudsia will find her peace during her walks with Narandas. She will, if she keeps good health.

As for your womb it must not be removed unless it is diseased. For that you should consult Mrs. Lazarus and do as she advises. There should be no hurry about this operation. Operations are not always a sure cure. Natural treatment is the most efficacious in the long run and never harmful. Operations have often been harmful and at times even proved fatal.

Love.

BAPU

From a photostat: G.N. 259

¹ Up to this the text is in Urdu.
² Compliments
387. LETTER TO MIRABEHN

October 12, 1932

CHI. MIRA,

Your weekly letter was received today. I am glad the weather there has improved and that you are feeling better. You do not tell me whether you have commenced your studies in earnest. If your health does not permit, I do not want to goad you to them. My question is, therefore, merely out of curiosity. It has been your won’t to report your progress in your studies.

Though my weight shows no increase my general condition is decidedly better. I was walking with the aid of a stick. I gave it up two days ago. The feel is better in every way. Yes, Ba has been attending to my feed. It is still largely fruit. But that means much time and labour as you know to your cost and joy. The proportion is about the same. Manilal and Sushila have arrived. On hearing of the fast they could not restrain themselves. Sushila is ill and is laid up in Bombay. Manilal is not much better. I think I did tell you that he had that deadly fever through which Natal passed a few months ago. But he has seen me. He has brought many good apples from South Africa and oranges from Zanzibar. I wish you could share them. It is no use my attempting to send them there.

I understand what you say about visits. You remember Princess Aristarchi. She has kept up regular correspondence and sends very beautiful postcards containing scared representations and adorned with suitable texts of her own choice.

Love to you both from us all including Ba.

BAPU

From the original: C.W. 6245. Courtesy: Mirabehn. Also G.N. 9711

388. LETTER TO H. S. L. POLAK

October 12, 1932

What could be more auspicious than that I should execute God’s will on Millie’s birthday? She must have many many more birthdays and more opportunity of service.

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 132

1 Polak in a letter had drawn Gandhiji’s attention to the fact that the latter had begun his fast on Millie Polak’s birthday.
389. LETTER TO A. TURTON

October 12, 1932

Thank God it was not I that embraced on the fast. It was all God’s doing. And how shall the whole world’s ‘no’ prevail against God’s ‘yes’?

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 132

390. LETTER TO CHAMAN KAVI

October 12, 1932

It does not seem likely that I shall get the permission to write what you suggest. If anybody suspects my motives, God alone can remove his suspicion. Personally I feel that I have served all religions. Many friends have even realized this. If my claim is true, the fact will not remain hidden for ever. God, who inspired me to undertake the fast, will also make all people realize its significance.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 132

391. LETTER TO NARAYAN M. DESAI

October 12, 1932

CHI. NARAYANRAO ALIAS BABLO,

I did receive a complaint against you. All children play, but they should play when it is time for play and should work when it is time for work. In any case, they should not give trouble to others. I am told that these days you play all the time and also harass people. Is this true? If it is, you should not behave in that manner.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: S.N. 9480

---

1 Turton had disapproved of Gandhiji going on a fast since, in his opinion, it amounted to suicide.

2 A Khoja gentleman from Kutch
392. LETTER TO GULAB

October 12, 1932

CHI. GULAB,

I have your letter. You have to improve your handwriting a great deal. You should write with great care. You do right in standing up when you feel sleepy.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 1726

393. LETTER TO REGINALD REYNOLDS

October 13, 1932

MY DEAR ANGADA¹.

Your dear letter. It is like a soothing draught. I knew that you and others whom I have in mind would see the inwardness of the fast. God let me down gently as a mother her child. And the glorious manifestation all over the land was more than that to me. Horace Alexander told me you had accepted a job. Do tell me something about yourself. Do not think us to be uninterested in your personal life and welfare. Ba is allowed to be with me during the day. So you have love from us all four.

I have almost regained lost strength.

BAPU

From a photostat of the original: C.W. 4543. Courtesy: Swarthmore College, Philadelphia

394. LETTER TO LILAVATI ASAR

October 13, 1932

CHI. LILAVATI,

I got your letter. You have a difficult task. Do, cheerfully and with faith, as Narandas advises, or live alone independently. If you think you cannot possibly do that go to the Ashram. It would also be good if you lived under Mridulabehn’s care. If, however, you are determined to work in the city, you should stay in the city. You are not strong enough to go to the city and return on bicycle. I think it would be a risky thing to do. Give up the desire to ride two horses at the same time. You should not become an obstacle in the attempt being made in the Ashram to do without outside labour as far as possible. Do not worry about your letter being long, but you should always write with ink. You should not spend a pie in excess of your income. Write to me from wherever you are. What you write about prison life is not correct. I have not come across any instance of a person having been made dull and insensitive by prison food.

¹ Monkey prince sent as a messenger by Rama to Ravana. The addressee had carried to the Viceroy Gandhiji’s letter of March 2, 1930; Vide Vol. “Letter to Lord Irwin”, 2-3-1930.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 9323

395. LETTER TO RASIK S. DESAI

October 13, 1932

CHI. RASIK.

I was surprised to see your note. I hope you have gained peace of mind as much as you have improved in health—my health also has improved. Blessings to you all. Sardar and Mahadev are quite well.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 6619. Also C.W. 4351. Courtesy: Valji G. Desai

396. LETTER TO JAYA

October 13, 1932

CHI. JAYA.

I was surprised to see your slip. My health is now what it was before I started this fast. I am very happy that all the women of your group are together. One does not often get such experience in one’s life. I get news about Venilal from time to time. My blessings to all the women. Sardar and Mahadev are quite well.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: M.M.U./XXIII

---

1 Mridulabehn Sarabhai
2 Valji G. Desai’s nephew
397. LETTER TO AMRITLAL V. THAKKAR

October 13, 1932

BHAI THAKKAR BAPA,

I got your letter written in English, as also the printed article. But I have still not got permission to write even about untouchability. Personally, I am indeed very eager to write. I have also written to the Government for necessary permission. Let us see what happens. All of us are happy here. Please take care and see that your constant travelling does not affect your health.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 1103

398. A LETTER

October 13, 1932

All the varnas are Shudras and every Hindu has the right to recite the Vedas.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 134

399. LETTER TO HEMPRABHA DAS GUPTA

October 13, 1932

CHI. HEMPRABHA,

I have your English letter. I am not sure how far it is proper to conduct satyagraha through the untouchables. Tell Satisbabu to go slowly. Keep writing to me. Patience is imperative. Why did Satisbabu get fever? He should take rest if that is needed. You too must not work at the cost of your health. Why hasn’t Kshitishbabu recovered so far?

May God give you right discernment and strength.

Blessings from

BAPU

[PS.]

I have gained enough strength. I can take milk, fruit and such things.

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 1690
400. LETTER TO NARASINHRAO B. DIVETIA

[Before October 14, 1932]

All of us were pained to read about your daughter’s death. Mahadev told me that she was the only one left to you. I need not offer my condolences to you. Both of you possess true knowledge. May God grant you peace.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 146

401. LETTER TO KUMUD BANDHAB CHATTERJEE

October 14, 1932

I am glad to find that temples in your part of the country are being opened to Harijans. The removal of untouchability does not necessarily include inter-dining or intermarriage, but it is open to anyone to dine or marry among Harijans. In other words, Harijans should have the same status as the rest of the Hindus in all matters. Inter-dining does not mean eating out of the same plate. Hence, there can be no question of anybody’s saliva being mixed with food.

The Hindu, 3-11-1932. Also Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 134

402. LETTER TO KESHAV

October 14, 1932

Yes, the fast was God’s gift to me. Whatever personal service you render to the untouchables without proselytization at the back of your mind is to the good.

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 135
403. A LETTER

October 14, 1932

I firmly believe that the so-called caste Hindus are responsible for every evil habit that one finds among the Harijans. They can only be removed by sympathetic treatment.

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 134

404. LETTER TO VASUMATI PANDIT

October 14, 1932

CHI. VASUMATI,

I cannot be so easily persuaded to withdraw my charge of lethargy against you. Even though you help in selling khadi, you should find time to drop me a postcard. For that, however, you should learn to regard every moment as having value. You will learn that in time. Service of Antyajas is certainly a great cause, but it should not get priority over your former vow. I hope you remember the verse and its meaning:

Better one’s own duty, bereft of merit, than another’s well-performed; better is death in the discharge of one’s duty; another’s duty is fraught with danger.¹

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: S.N. 9334. Also C.W. 580. Courtesy: Vasumati Pandit

¹ Bhagavad Gita, III. 35

THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
405. LETTER TO S. K. GEORGE

October 14, 1932

MY DEAR GEORGE,

I prize your letter\(^1\) for its gentle frankness. Only I cannot give you the full reply it deserves. My position as a prisoner would not warrant my giving you a detailed reply. One thing I may say. I do not isolate politics from religion as you appear to me to do. Religion to be ture must pervade every activity of life. And that activity which cannot be pursued without sacrificing religion is an immoral activity to be shunned at all costs. Politics is not only not such an activity but it is an integral part of civic life. The rest of the discussion must be postponed to more auspicious occasion. Only do not give me up in despair. I hope you had my previous letter\(^2\).

Yours,

BAPU

Gandhiji's Challenge to Christianity, p. 93

406. LETTER TO MAHALAKSHMI M. THAKKAR

October 14, 1932

CHI. MAHALAKSHMI,

The purpose behind bangles, the vermilion mark, and the coloured sari might be adornment or conformity to custom, just as one might eat for pleasure or only to give the body its hire. One ought to give up eating for the sake of pleasure, but may give the body anything it needs, even if it be something which one enjoys eating. Milk and curds taken with dates give us no little pleasure. But you eat them, since you have not adopted that diet for the pleasure of the palate. In the same way, you should give up bangles, the vermilion mark and coloured sari despite opposition from society, if they arouse passion in you, but it is not blameworthy to retain them if you do so merely in obedience to custom or to respect the wishes of the elders.
In other words, there is no absolute duty not to retain them, as there is the absolute duty of not telling a lie. It was for such a reason that I

\(^1\) Of October 5. In it the addressee had expressed his misgivings about building up the “Kingdom of God with people who have not seen the Vision of it”— by which he meant the Congress, which had accepted non-violence only as a policy. He had also criticized Gandhiji for his fast in connection with untouchability, saying it was religious, not political and therefore was not for independence.

\(^2\) Vide "Letter to S.K. George", 3-10-1932. said in my letter that the error was in taking a vow not to wear bangles. It is not proper to take a sudden vow for something which is not an absolute duty. There is no great self-sacrifice in such a step. It would have been right for you to take that vow if you had been pining for bangles, travelling all over the world to get bangles of your choice or were in the habit of stealing them. I know women who want to have bangles of various styles, fight with their husbands to get them or steal them. It would be good for such women to take a vow not to wear bangles, but they would fight with me if I so much as made such a suggestion. A woman who thinks that all her beauty lies in her hair would get red with anger at the mere suggestion that she should cut off her hair. She might get it cut off, but it is not wrong for a woman, who dislikes long hair and thinks it to be a burden, to keep her hair long to please her parents or to avoid being cut off from society. Do you now understand this shastra of bangle-wearing?

Now about the children. The problem is similar to that of the bangles. Suppose the children do not feel at home in the Ashram without you, and suppose that there is no other place where they may be kept; then it will be your duty to stay for sometime with them in the Ashram. This cannot be described as “living” in the Ashram. Just as it is not wrong for a person who is very ill to take rest from work for a time, similarly it is not wrong to spend a fortnight or a month in the Ashram for the sake of the children, that might even be one’s dharma. Such matters require careful thinking. That is why the Gita says that it is not easy to distinguish between what is right action, what is wrong action and what is inaction. If, therefore, you are convinced that it is difficult to keep the children at Calcutta and that it is your duty to put them in the Ashram, you should spend, on my responsibility and above all for their sake, one month with them in the Ashram after their arrival and accustom them to the life there. Even during that period, if some urgent work requires you to leave you may certainly go, and Narandas will look after the children as best he can. Wouldn’t he have to look after them if you were to die and there was nobody at Calcutta? However, let the children remain where they are if this arrangement does not suit you or the children refuse to go or the elders are likely to feel very much hurt.

Blessings from
BAPU

[PS.]
Do ask me if you still have any doubts.
From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 6823
407. LETTER TO WOMEN PRISONERS

October 14, 1932

Tell Durgabai Joag that the women can get rid of the fear which they feel in going about their work through firmness of mind. They should go freely wherever necessary for work or service with a firm conviction that God is there to protect them. Whom do they fear? Why should they fear any men? Why think that all men are only waiting for an opportunity to harass women? After all, men are born of women and the latter ought to have the faith that no man would ordinarily attack a woman who is like a mother to him. Every woman should regard herself as a mother and fear a man only if she would fear her own son. If, nevertheless, a woman meets a man who is blinded by lust, she should remain firm in her conviction that the armour of her purity will protect her.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, pp. 135-6

408. A LETTER

October 14, 1932

Temple-entry is the crux of the movement for eradication of untouchability. Members of other communities should act towards Antyajas in the same way as they act towards one another. Inter-dining with them is a matter of everybody’s own free will. It is not necessarily included in removal of untouchability. I believe, however, that there is no restriction in Hinduism on inter-dining with anybody provided the food is otherwise acceptable.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol.II, p.134
409. LETTER TO A. RANGASWAMY IYENGAR

October 15, 1932

MY DEAR RANGASWAMY,

I hope you got my wire two or three days ago. It was handed in by me on 3rd instant but was delayed by the authorities pending instructions from the Government of India. I enclose copy of my wire to the Zamorin. You will see therefore that there is not much time to lose if the temple is to be opened in due time. I hope therefore that you and the friends you mentioned will quickly move in the matter.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

SHRI A. RANGASWAMY IYENGAR

“THE HINDU”

MADRAS

Bombay Secret Abstracts, Home Department, Special Branch, File No. 800(40)(3), Pt. III

410. LETTER TO K. KELAPPAN

October 15, 1932

I should have written earlier but the authorities were considering whether such correspondence should be allowed. They had held up my telegram to the Zamorin which I had handed in the same day as I had sent the one to you, i.e., 3rd instant. It has now been sent. I enclose copy herewith. You will see therefore that I began work immediately.

You will move there gently and courteously. There should be no threats and no loud claims made. The real thing is conversion even of the most orthodox. Please keep me regularly informed of the progress of the movement.

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p.137

1 Vide “Telegram to A. Rangaswami Iyengar”, 3-10-1932.
2 Ibid
411. LETTER TO THE ZAMORIN OF CALICUT

October 15, 1932

DEAR FRIEND,

The wire\(^1\) which I handed in on 3rd inst. was considered by the authorities and released for despatch only three days ago. I hope you duly received it. I trust that you will please move in the matter and ensure the opening of the temple during the period of suspension.

I do not know the proper style of addressing you. If therefore there is any want of propriety you will please instruct me knowing it to be wholly unintended.

412. LETTER TO ASHRAM BOYS AND GIRLS

October 15, 1932

DEAR BOYS AND GIRLS,

I got your letter after a long interval.

All those who were ill must have recovered now.

All I have to say for the New Year\(^2\) is that you should understand the meaning of the vows better and become more thoughtful and vigilant about them. Both the soul and the body will benefit in proportion as you observe the vows willingly.

It was very good that once the girls by themselves did the cooking. And, moreover, there were only five items for eating, so that, if I had been there, I too would have got an opportunity to eat food cooked by them. But I forgot. How can I come there in the immediate future? God willing, I shall some day eat the food cooked by the pure hands of the girls there.

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati : M.M.U./II

---

\(^1\) Vide “Telegram to A. Rangaswami Iyengar”, 3-10-1932
\(^2\) According to the Vikram era
413. LETTER TO RUKMINIDEVI BAZAJ

October 15, [1932]

CHI. RUKHI,

I got your letter, but it contains no mention of the letter I wrote to you at the Thatheri Bazaar address. If that is not your full address, you should not give only that in a letter. Always write your full address in your letters. It is good news that you are well again; I have nearly regained my strength. It is desirable that the weight should increase slowly. Till yesterday Ba used to come daily to attend on me. Now that I do not need her help, we both decided that she should stop coming. She must have gone to Bombay today. I get Radha’s letters from time to time. There has been no great improvement in her health, but it seems that the improvement which had taken place at Deolali has been kept up.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI RUKMINIBEHN
K 23/96 PANCHGANGA
BANARAS CITY

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G. N. 9142

414. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

October 15/16, 1932
At Night, October 15, 1932

CHI. NARANDAS,

I duly got your mail.

Champa seems to be seriously ill. I had a direct letter from her. She asks me in it what she should do if her expenses go up because of illness or some other reason. Read my reply to her. Please reassure her. If she spends more sometimes, let her do so. Do you draw the money for her from Bombay or from Rangoon? I guess from your letter that Champa’s illness has improved Ratilal’s temper. This is certainly good news.

1 From the postmark
3 Addressee’s sister

226 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
4.15 a.m., October 16, 1932

Panditji had asked me where the inmates of the Ashram may work to make their contribution towards removal of untouchability, and what work they should do. I had replied to him. Still, I will say something more here. One of the aims of the Ashram is that the persons trained in it should afterwards spread out in villages and start doing work in them. The work will of course be connected with khadi, removal of untouchability, etc. But they should also take advantage of the prevailing atmosphere at any time and pay more attention to that particular activity. If, therefore, we can do any work in the surrounding villages for removal of untouchability, we should certainly do it. We should, if possible, work even in cities. There is a temple on one side of the Ashram. There is one opposite to the Ashram, too. See if you can get them thrown open to Antyajas. We may acquaint ourselves with their conditions. If we can accommodate them, we should invite more Antyajas families to come and live in the Ashram. Vinoba’s scheme is certainly excellent. If we can implement it, we should try to do so. These are only a few isolated suggestions for guidance. What is essential is that each one of us should take up whatever work he can think of and do his best. We should become one with the work as sugar becomes one with milk, and still remains detached. We should never think that some work was done by the Ashram or by an inmate of the Ashram. We should feel that we do everything as instruments in God’s hands and act in that spirit. These suggestions do not—ought not to—interfere with other vows which we may have taken. They should remain undisturbed. Everybody should go on working in accordance with his vow and, in addition, participate in the present movement against untouchability as much as he can. If such work is not compatible with one’s vow, the path is clear. However noble another’s dharma may be, one’s good lies in one’s own dharma. Whether we live or die doing that dharma is the same for us, that is, we shall advance spiritually in either case. Who had placed Punjabhai in such a chair that he fell down? Anybody who gets fainting fits should have a seat which would not overturn. But this is wisdom after the event. However, don’t we all advance by learning from one’s own or other people’s mistakes to avoid similar mistakes in future? We need not be perturbed by the death of Trivedi’s brother’s wife, Taragouri. Her death was ordained. In her case the stove has been only instrumental. And, moreover, she could not get immediate help. Taragouri also got frightened and could not loosen the knot of her skirt. Her attempt to loosen it resulted in a further knot. All these were preordained. We ever live besieged by Death. Nobody knows from which side and when he will attack. We should draw only one lesson from such a death. What we can do today, we should not leave for tomorrow, and what we can do this minute we should not leave to the next. Apart from that, we should overcome our love of the primus stove, and everybody should also learn what to do when his or her clothes accidentally catch fire.

The leather for repairing sandal soles received this time seems to be excellent. If you had not sent the pair of sandals, I could have done without it, for I have already three pairs with me. Their upper sides are in quite good condition. But the soles of all three of them are worn out. I will now get them repaired, so that they will become as good as new. The pair which you have sent will then be the fourth. But never mind. Instead of your having to keep it safe there, we will keep it safe here.

Think a little more about Kusum. Can you arrange to send her to Almora? The whole family seems to be infected with the disease. Navin clearly exhibits signs of tuberculosis. Dhiru also seems to me going in the same direction. And Kusum does not improve at all. The condition of Manjula’s ear is only a symptom. The real disease seems to be the same as in the case of the others. However, all the four may possibly recover, provided strict measures are taken immediately, Change of air may perhaps be the chief among them. Navin and Dhiru are still strong enough to be able to look after themselves. Apart from their health, they have had sufficient experience to be able to manage things. If they have the requisite spirit of service in them so that they would willingly look after Kusum, if there is sufficient space in the room, if they are eager to go, and if Prabhudas is ready to have them, and if you think that they can go, only then should you go ahead with this plan. Otherwise you should forget it.

But this is for people who are passionately eager to live. The royal road was shown by Gangadevi. If they can keep alive remaining in the Ashram, they should try to do so. If they cannot, they should realize that life is always accompanied by death. I would advise them to resolve to stay in the Ashram, to live in the open air all the twenty-four hours of the day and do what work they can without exerting themselves too much, eat the plainest food, take hip-baths, etc. and thus pass their time. If they live thus with cheerful minds, they may even get all right. First you should think over all this. You may then discuss the matter with them if you think it proper to do so. If you think it inadvisable to discuss this just now, forget the suggestion. I have received a copy of Madan’s book about fasting. Most probably you have got a copy in the Ashram. If you do not have it, I will send the one which I have received. You may go through it. Bhau at any rate should reflect over it. It is not at all necessary to get Keshu’s machine patented. Nobody is likely to compete with him. And if anybody tries, we need not mind. We cannot take out a patent. This is how I feel just now. I write to Godse1 from time to time.

---

I had completely followed the method of making bread. The method used here is easier. As the fast intervened, I could not send a description of it. I will do so now. Try this method there.

BAPU

[PS.]

Test Mahadev’ and my yarn carefully and let me know the figures of the strength, evenness and count of each. When will you get cloth made from it? Do you have a rach2 and a heddle suitable for weaving such yarn?

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./I. Also C.W. 8260. Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi

415. LETTER TO PREMABEHN KANTAK

October 15, 1932

CHI. PREMA,

I got your letter. I welcome the news you have given about everyone. Lilavati’s problem is rather difficult. Since she has faith in you, it is possible that you will be able to do something about her. She is a simple-hearted woman and her motives are good. But she is very restless and has no control over her thoughts. Show her love and do the best you can.

You should discover the cause of your losing weight and

---

1 Ganesh Vasudev Godse, a graduate of Vidyapith who had joined the Dandi March in 1930.

2 Weaving implement remove it. If the quantity of milk, etc. is not adequate, you should increase it. Don’t be obstinate and ruin a good health. I can’t bear anyone describing you as too weak to work.

I am happy that . . .¹ has apologized. Take him into your confidence if you can. I have observed that he is intelligent. How nice it would be if he used his intelligence well.

The Ashram money is used for any inmate for whom it is necessary to use it, irrespective of his or her position. But it is possible to criticize any action. Perhaps we do make errors but our aim is always to use the Ashram money impartially.

The public has a right to inspect every pie of the Ashram’s accounts. The Ashram is not a private institution. Its income is the limit of its expenditure. The Ashram will run even if it does not get a single pie, and it will spend even crores if someone gives so much. People will give as long as they have trust in us. The institution is run by God. It is He who prompts people to donate.

According to me, anyone who goes out of the Ashram should first obtain the Secretary’s permission to do so.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati. G.N. 10306. Also C.W. 6745. Courtesy: Premabehn Kantak

416. LETTER TO MITHIBEHN

October 15, 1932

Eradication of untouchability does not imply inter-dining and intermarriage with Antyajas. But I don’t believe that those who inter-dine with the so-called untouchables, Harijans, violate dharma. Restrictions on inter-dining and intermarriage among communities are not an inseparable part of Hinduism. They are only a matter of custom. We cannot treat Harijans differently from other communities. Since there will be no coercion in this matter, there is no reason for anybody to feel hurt.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhai Diary, Vol. II, p. 138

¹ The name has been omitted.
417. LETTER TO SULOCHANA

October 15, 1932

CHI. SULOCHANA,

Put to Premabehn the questions which you have put to me. If she cannot reply to them to your satisfaction, then write to me again.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 1740

418. LETTER TO PADMAJA NAIDU

October 16, 1932

MY DEAR PLAYMATE,

You know all Hyderabad. Will you write to someone at the Osmania University to send me their text-books for lower standards or if you know them[send] such selection as in your opinion is likely to be useful to me? I badly need a small dictionary that will give me spelling of Urdu words and a small grammar. And will you condescend to tell me how you are faring with all the cases [sic] of keeping a separate house?

Love.

SLAVE-DRIVER

SRIMATI PADMAJA NAIDU
21 SASOON ROAD
POONA CITY

From the original: Padmaja Naidu Papers. Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library

419. LETTER TO BALKRISHNA BHAVE

October 16, 1932

I may say that during the fast I kept repeating God’s holy name with greater concentration, since I enjoyed great peace in spite of physical suffering. It is possible, in certain circumstances, that a person suffering from an incurable disease would not be committing the sin of suicide if he gave up food. But such a person, if his mind is clear, has no right to take that step, since he can serve even with his mind. By my last illness, do you mean the one I had in Kolhapur? Whichever that may be, as far as I remember every illness has proved to be a blessing to me. And so it must be to one devoted to God even though the illness may have resulted from his own folly. Whether consciously or mechanically, I go on repeating Ramanama every day, but whenever I am in difficulty and feel helpless, I do so consciously and with my whole mind. As far as I remember, the repetition on the name has always given me peace. I cannot say that I keep some fixed time of period for Ramanama.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhini Diary, Vol. II, p. 142

420. LETTER TO JAMANABEHN GANDHI

October 16, 1932

I do not consider that your total expenditure of Rs. 125 for three months is excessive. I wished to know the details because they tell me a number of things. Everyone must keep an account of every pie spent, even though the money might be one’s own. For the truth is that nothing in this world is our own but all belongs to God, as we realize from experience every day. Hence, we should not be attached to whatever we enjoy or spend. A person who does so will gladly keep an account of every pie for his own satisfaction. If you have not kept a detailed account of the expenditure of Rs. 125 in this manner, you should from now on form the habit of keeping such account. I remember that Devbhabhi used to keep a full account of her expenses mentally.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 141

421. LETTER TO CHHAGANLAL JOSHI

October 16, 1932

I welcome a test in any form. God has given no assurance to his devotees that He will test them only so far and no further. Yes, there is certainly one limit. He never tests anyone beyond his strength.

1 In March, 1927; Vide “Discussion with Dr. Wanless”, 26-3-1927.
If you learn to do all work without attachment, you may rest assured that the result will always be good. I observe that the key to good health also lies in such non-attachment.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 142

422. LETTER TO NARMADA BHUSKUTE

October 16, 1932

Service, not literature, is our mission. Literature is a means of service, therefore so long as we have some work of service on hand we must quietly devote ourselves to it. The Gita says that God will grant the means to those who have devotion. Do add to your literary education whenever you have some time. In that matter too take it that reflection is more important than reading. However little you may read, you should digest all that you read.

[From Hindi]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, pp. 141-2

423. LETTER TO ZOHRA BANU ANSARI

October 16, 1932

DEAR DAUGHTER ZOHRA,

You have explained my errors most lucidly. I am afraid that I take up too much of your time. Give me only as much time as is convenient to you. Can you tell me the proper usage of ‘म’, ‘न’, ‘व’ and also of ‘फ’ and ‘स’? If your handwriting cannot be called beautiful I do not know of any other which can be. I, at least, have not seen any letters more beautiful.

I have not received recently any letter from Father, so it is well that you gave me the news. Please convey our respects to Mother. Ba has now gone to Bombay. We decided that Ba should resume her duties now that I have regained enough strength. I write on a postcard deliberately because that takes up the right amount of time.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a facsimile of the Urdu in Mahatma, Vol. III, between pp. 304 and 305.
This is just 4.20 a.m. after morning prayer. I got your letter of the 7th instant yesterday. The value I attach to your letter you will perceive from the fact that I am devoting to the reply my most precious hour. The value lies in that it is an expression of your love and sincerity. It has little or no value as an agency designed to carry conviction. If I have erred, I should love to have the conviction even after the event since it would serve to protect me against repetition of the error. But I miss that conviction.

I see that though our mutual love remains the same, our viewpoints have become different, our way of approaching things has also become different. We have therefore to agree to differ.

In this matter, I had thought that even if everybody else would not understand my action, you and Millie would instinctively perceive it and become my shield. But that pleasure was not to be mine. I derive however the richer pleasure that our love can persist even in spite of political and spiritual differences. I was unprepared for the latter. But I see that political, social and the like are inextricably mixed up with and derived from the spiritual outlook. Therefore when we have sharp political differences, the odds are that they are traceable to the spiritual.

You seem to have missed the very core of the fast. You have to go back to my speech at the Minorities Committee. It was not a prepared speech. The end of it came irresistibly. The fast was an inevitable result of that solemn declaration. I little knew how that declaration was to find fulfilment. I say that the declaration was from God and so was the fulfilment. If it was so, all argument is useless. If it was a hallucination, friends who believe it to be such are bound to drive home the truth to me with all the love and persistence they can summon to their assistance.

Everything that happened since confirms me in the opinion that the fast was a God-given trust.

Not the Premier but Sir Samuel was the vehicle through whom the message of the fast had necessarily to go. But if you had followed all the statements I have made and even my letter to the Premier you would have seen that the fast was addressed to the millions who had faith in me, and who had surrounded me with their undying affection whenever I went in their midst. They understood the fast with all its implications without any argument. For them, the political part of it was trivial; internal reform was everything. The latter is still going on. And remember the fast is only suspended, it may have to be resumed if people go off to sleep. When a lover fasts to prevent the loved one from going astray, it is not blackmail, it is the cry of an anguished heart ascending to heaven. Of such, in your language, is the music of the spheres made. My fast was a whip administered to lethargic love.

---

1Vide “Extracts from Proceedings of Minorities Committee Meeting”, 1-10-1931.

You ask why it was not administered ten years ago. The answer is: God did not call me to it. He comes to wake you up when you least except Him. His ways are not our ways. You will of course believe me when I say that I had then the same capacity for sacrifice that I seem to have now.

Lastly, you should accept my judgment based on much ampler data than yours that the same settlement could not have been arrived at in London and that the Premier was not called upon in any way to decide on any question outside the Hindu-Muslim-Sikh tangle.

Love to you all.

Bhai

425. LETTER TO HENDERSON

October 17, 1932

Argument is useless when you talk of your God and my God. Hitherto I have thought there was only one God for the wise and the foolish, saints and sinners. Instead of arguing with me, I suggest your praying for me, so that ‘your’ God may open the eyes of my understanding and let me see what in your opinion is my error.

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 143. Also G.N. 4797

A Christian missionary

VOL. 57 : 5 SEPTEMBER, 1932 - 15 NOVEMBER, 1932 235
426. A LETTER

October 17, 1932

I can only say this that where a man pleads the promptings of the inner voice, he should be left to God’s mercy.

427. LETTER TO NARASINHRAO B. DIVATIA

October 18, 1932

SUJNA BHAISHRI,

I am writing this after the morning prayer at 4 o’clock. I got both your letters. All three of us will join you at 8.30 p.m. today in performing the shraddha on the tenth day. Instead of praying silently, we will sing your translation of “Lead Kindly Light”. Does it not give as much peace as both of you would desire? Your children of course enjoy eternal peace. But are not all the children in this world your children? You have taught plenty of such wisdom to others. May it help you in your present plight.

You will like this story about “Premal Jyoti”. When Father Elwin was leaving, he thought that it would be a good thing if my Christian friends could mentally be in communion with me once every week. For that purpose, he asked me to suggest a hymn which all of them might sing at a fixed hour one day every week. I selected Newman’s hymn. It is now sung by friends in America, Europe, India and other countries on every Friday at 7.30 p.m. We here, the inmates of the Ashram at Sabarmati and some other people, sing “Premal Jyoti” at the evening prayer on Fridays. Thus the life which you have poured into this bhajan is increasing in its power. May this gift of yours bear fruit for you too.

Yours sincerely,

MOHANDAS

[From Gujarati]

---

1“Premal Jyoti”
428. LETTER TO BEGUM MOHAMMAD ALAM

October 18, 1932

DEAR SISTER,

I am much obliged to you for your letter and telegram. I was shocked to read of Doctor Saheb’s serious illness. May God have mercy on him. Please keep me informed of Doctor Saheb’s condition weekly. Did he have these complaints when he was free? I trust he is getting proper treatment in the hospital. My salaams to Doctor Saheb and yourself. Pray to God that there may be unity between the Hindu, Sikh and Muslim communities.

GANDHI

The Hindu, 25-10-1932, and Amrita Bazar Patrika, 25-10-1932

429. LETTER TO H. F. HUDSON

October 18, 1932

DEAR MR. HUDSON,

You will, I hope pardon this presumption.

The restriction you conveyed to Dr. Ambedkar and me in connection with his interview, I had no difficulty in understanding from the Government standpoint. It was faithfully carried out, and so far as I am concerned I shall breathe not a word to the public about it. But the threat conveyed at the end of your note was, I think, gratuitously offensive. You said that if either of us did not carry out the restriction, all such future interviews would be stopped. So far as I am concerned, it is easy enough for you to verify that I have meticulously observed the prison regulations. And the threat presupposes that such interviews are a concession, whereas in my opinion they are the necessary consequence of the Yeravda Pact. Surely untouchability reform should be, if it is not, common cause between the Government and the people. Again a prison was assuredly not the place to spring upon Dr. Ambedkar, a free man, restrictions

1 The letter, according to the sources, was in Urdu.
2 Home Member in the Viceroy’s Executive Council
3 The addressee in his note had desired Gandhiji and Dr. Ambedkar to be informed that Government would not allow any report of the discussions to find their way into the Press, “or any manifesto to be issued by Mr. Gandhi”.

VOL. 57 :  5 SEPTEMBER, 1932 -  15 NOVEMBER, 1932  237 accompanied by a threat of which he was not informed in the telegram acceding to his request for an interview with Srimati Sarojini Naidu and me.

May I in this personal note ask now for a definite reply to my letter\(^1\) of the 29th ult. addressed to Major Bhandari and forwarded to the Home Department? In view of your said memorandum, a clear definition of the Government policy has become doubly necessary. I hold it to be essential that I should be permitted to see people and carry on correspondence, strictly regarding untouchability, without let or hindrance. You may know that my fast is only suspended. It has to be resumed if the Hindu public do not play the game by the Harijans. My contact with the public therefore is inevitable if the reform is to be carried out in all its thoroughness. Sjt. A. V. Thakkar, the Secretary of the newly-formed League has already asked for instructions. I have informed him that I am awaiting clear definition of Government policy before I could send any instructions. I would therefore esteem an early reply.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

---

---

430. LETTER TO MANILAL GANDHI

Monday [October 18, 1932]\(^2\)

CHI. MANILAL,

I got your letter. You may come whenever you wish. It would be good if Sushila can accompany you, but she need not come if she is weak. Bring Sita if she comes. You should take care and see that your bowels move regularly. Take only light food. It will help you if you can take more milk. Take care and safeguard your health. Tell Ba that I have asked for a prescription from Major Advani. She should

---

\(^1\) Vide “Letter to M.G. Bhandari”, 29-9-1932.

\(^2\) From the postmark consult a doctor there too. I hope that Pyarelal has received my letter. Convey my blessings to Manibhai\(^1\) and Gulab. I had expected Deva \(^2\) today.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI MANILAL GANDHI
MANI BHUVAN
LABURNAM ROAD
GAMDEVI, BOMBAY

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 4797

431. LETTER TO MIRA BEHN

October 19, 1932

CHI. MIRA,

Your letter came in today.

My progress continues. There is no change in the food. The weight has gone up to 99\(\frac{1}{2}\)\%. I have almost reached the normal strength.

I had a long letter from Kisen giving a graphic description of your activities. Naturally you miss her and she misses you. She says she profited much by your company.

You mentioned criminals as your companions now. The word criminal should be taboo from our dictionary. Or we are all criminals. ‘Those of you that are without sin cast the first stone’. And no one was found to dare cast the stone at the sinning harlot. As a jailor once said all are criminals in secret. There is profound truth in that saying half uttered in jest. Let them be therefore good companions. I know that this is easier said than done. And that is exactly what the Gita, and as a matter of fact all religions, enjoin upon us to do.

Did I not tell you that during the fast we were removed to another yard where there could be more seclusion. Our feline companions were therefore left behind us. We have now been brought back to the old yard much to the joy of these gay four-footed companions. They are all purring round about us.

I understand what you say about your studies. You will take

\(^1\) Manibhai Revashankar Jhaveri
\(^2\) Devdas Gandhi your own time and do exactly as you feel. There should be no strain either on your body or your mind.

Sushila, Manilal’s wife, had a slight operation. Ba is with her. Manilal is better.

Love from us all.

BAPU

From the original: C.W. 6246. Courtesy: Mirabehn. Also G.N. 9712

432. LETTER TO DUDHIBEHN V. DESAI

October 19, 1932

CHI. DUDHIBEHN,

I got your letter. You do not write how you are. Has Manu forgotten me because he does not live in the Ashram now? He has to send me some more descriptions, and has still to pass the examination in good handwriting. It will not do, therefore, if he stops writing to me.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 7440. Courtesy: Valji G. Desai

433. LETTER TO VALJI G. DESAI

October 19, 1932

BHAISHRI VALJI,

I got your letter and the book. Expecting that this letter will reach you, I am not sending it by registered post to save the cost. Do write to me, however, when you get it.

I may say that almost as soon as I got the book I went through it. I find your language sweet, so I did not pay attention to it. If I did I might, in my wisdom, want to suggest a few corrections, but they seem to be immaterial.

I was not favourably impressed by the book. You call it Ishucharita¹, but I do not see anything in it to justify the title.

If I remember correctly, you once told me or I told somebody that I believed you thought yourself too humble to produce anything original and that you were satisfied with translating the best that the ancestors had left to us. If I accept this argument, I would perhaps approve your book. But I do not accept the argument. If it is accepted in your case, it should be accepted for others too. And if all acted accordingly, the only result would be that we would drown ourselves in the waters of our ancestors’ well. I believe that it is our duty to augment the legacy of the ancestors and to change it into current coin and make it acceptable to the present age. Mere translation cannot achieve this. What you have given in your book is already available in Gujarati. The translations brought out after immense industry by Christians themselves are not bad. Why should we put them in people’s hands? I am sure you do not write such books so that people may read your sweet language. Even if you do, your purpose will not be served.

¹ “Life of Jesus”

In my view this book is an example of a kind of lethargy. I am sure that you would not call a man industrious merely because he reads much and writes much. As for you, I believe that you have a mania for reading and translating. You ought to get rid of it. What I should like you to do is this. Give us by all means a book on the life of Jesus. Read the New Testament as often as you please, but then put the book on a shelf and create a living picture of Jesus from what you have read.

Do not think that because the book has been printed, you must give it to the people. If you find substance in my view, cancel the printed matter and don’t mind if so much money is wasted. Try to write something original as I have suggested. If you feel that it would be too much trouble to do so, keep quiet; give up reading and engage yourself in physical activity to improve your health. I have seen many persons both in India and elsewhere who suffer from the mania of reading. You also have that disease. To get rid of it take walks, contemplate the beauty of God’s creation, read the book of nature, learn the language of trees, listen to the music of spheres in the sky, watch the drama enacted in it every night; and during the day spin, when you feel tired, do sewing or, if you can, carpentry or shoe-making. I know that your hand gets benumbed if you strain it, but with practice that will disappear.

There are in English many beautifully written books on the life of Jesus. We can get some material even from them, but I would not put that burden on you.
The portion relating to Angels, etc., in your book should be left out. Why add to the superabundance of things that we already have. Even if in fact the Angels and the wise men had not come, Jesus’s fame would not suffer. My complaint is that you have failed to raise before the reader a vivid image of Jesus. You have merely given the teaching of Jesus and that, too, through quotations. Will anyone disbelieve you if you give it in your own words?

I do not know what type of readers you had in view in writing this book. If you have the general mass in view, you should not have inflicted foreign names on them. A man like me whose reading is very limited cannot make out whether you have decked the Biblical names in clothes of your make or in borrowed clothes. I am afraid there is not much to be gained from things of this kind. If your intention was to give names that might sound well in Gujarati, you should have coined fitting Gujarati names suggesting the same meanings as the corresponding Biblical names, as the latter are always significant.

If, regardless of my criticism, you decide that the book should be published, it is not necessary to offer the book free, charging only postage. Do not mind if people do not buy it even at cost price. The book is bound to sell as it will bear your name. (But don’t take that as a test of the quality of the book.) Your work ended with the writing, it will be up to some philanthropic institution which distributes such books free among people to give copies of this one, if it so wishes, to those who cannot afford to buy it even at cost price. It is best that one person should not attempt to ride two horses at a time. Let that sum of Rs. 150 grow with compound interest.

I have written much more than I had intended. Moreover, I have let myself go in my criticism, which means that I have yielded to ignorant nature and so I have decided to spend money on registering this.

Do you like the takli because you can spin on it while walking? One can spin on it while resting. Excessive greed for anything is the root of all evil. Your present task is to make your body as strong as steel.

_Blessings from_
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 7441. Courtesy: Valji G. Desai
434. LETTER TO BEHRAMJI KHAMBHATTA

October 19, 1932

BHAISHRI KHAMBHATTA,

I have read your letter to Mahadev. I do not know at all what blue brain is. When Dr. Gilder left after examining me the blood pressure was normal. My health is quite all right, and I have nearly regained my former strength. I have my daily walks, spin as much as I used to and can also write a large number of letters. I spend all the twenty-four hours in the open. What is blue brain, and who told you that I had high blood pressure and that there was a danger of my getting blue brain?

Why should I be prejudiced against Bhai Mehta? Was it not I who sent Vidya to him? But it was not necessary to send for him daily during the fast. And that could not be done either, in jail. It would have been improper for me to call him when so many other doctors were visiting me. Moreover, he could not have helped me much. Having had experience of many fasts, I am bound to know my body. Mehta could only suggest some simple measures and I had asked him if he knew any. Even now he may send his suggestions, if he has any. Please send me his address. I will certainly write to him to please him. In any case you should write to him and tell him that he may send me any suggestions he wishes to and write to me freely.

And you also should not worry. I will let you know if there is any difficulty. I am returning today the books about massage.

As I had a slight fear that the pain in the hand might come back, I have given up spinning with the left hand and rotate the wheel with the foot.

Blessings to you both from

BAPU

PS.

I hope that you yourself are all right.

435. LETTER TO NIRMALA B. MASHRUWALA

October 19, 1932

CHI. NIRMALA,

Manilal gave me your letter. Keep me informed about the condition of everybody who is ill. I did not receive Surendra’s letter (postcard). I will certainly inquire now.

I am all right. Since Manilal will be giving you all the news, I don’t write more here.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 2886. Courtesy: Nirmalabehn Shroff

436. LETTER TO MEHER BABA’S SECRETARY

October 19, 1932

I got your letter of the 8th and the accompanying note. I have gone through the latter. I don’t think that it should be published. It leaves out a great deal, and what it includes is put in a form which can be easily misunderstood. I am, therefore, of the opinion that no part of it should be published. All that is necessary to state is that the relation between Baba and me is not that of guru and disciple but is that of two ordinary friends, and that most of the conversation related to spiritual matters. Thus, the public here or in the West need not attach any importance to our meeting or conversation.

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 153

437. LETTER TO SHAMBHUSSHANKAR

October 19, 1932

We should not insist on taking a Harijan to a hospital or temple at a place where public opinion is against such action. However, those who wish to serve Harijans may provide such facilities in their own locality or near it and also invite other Hindus, if they wish, to avail themselves of such hospitals or temples. Meanwhile we should continue to plead with the people gently. We shall not help our cause by getting angry with the people or by indulging in bitter criticism of them. We can overcome their ignorance by showing perfect love towards them. We should make Herculean efforts to provide for Harijans whatever amenities they lack. The State authorities can do a great deal. It may give them lands, improve the localities where they live, build them good houses, pay them better salaries, etc.

People should not give left-overs to Harijans. We should try to teach them rules of cleanliness, etc. In short, we should take all necessary measures, without creating any conflict, for improving their conditions of life.

[From Gujarati]

_Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, pp. 154-5_

438. LETTER TO HARIJANS OF VALVA

_Dated October 19, 1932_

I have your beautiful letter written in a beautiful hand. I can understand your hardships. I have had a long discussion with Babasaheb Ambedkar. I can do little service from here. All I can do is to advise you to acquaint the newly formed association with your tale of woes. And of course keep writing to me.

That you remain Hindu is no favour to others. Hence how can I advise you to forsake Hinduism because of the hardships? It is in tribulation that one’s dharma is put to test. But I can certainly assure you that I have staked my life for the amelioration of your lot. If other Hindus do not treat you justly, I shall atone for it by resuming my suspended fast. May God give me the strength to do this.

_I remain,_

_Your servant,_

_MOHANDAS GANDHI_

[From Hindi]

_Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 154_

---

1 Such as not being permitted to build their huts on elevated ground
2 For the service of Harijan’s; it was first named All-India Anti-Untouchability League and later renamed Harijan Sevak Sangh.
439. LETTER TO SECRETARY, JAT-PANT TODAK MANDAL

October 19, 1932

If abolition of castes means the abolition of the varna I do not approve of it. But I am with you if your aim is to end the innumerable caste distinctions. All the same eradication of untouchability and abolition of castes are separate problems. Eradication of untouchability requires that we deal with the untouchables in the way we do with other Hindus. Mixing up the two problems would jeopardize the success of both. For this reason intermarriage and inter-dining with untouchables are not an integral feature of the removal of untouchability, but their practice is not against religion either.

[From Hindi]
Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 153

440. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA

October 19, 1932

BHAI KRISHNACHANDRA,

One boy is born sick, he conquers his disease by nature-cure. The other is stupid but learns by constant effort. Both by individual effort triumph over fate.

Fasting usually does not result in permanent weakening of the system; on the contrary frequent fasts bring an ultimate improvement of health. Every man can judge by experience his limits for fasting.

Everything can be set right if the trade is carried on by setting up a loom and charkha in the home.

I have not seen the Hindi translations. But it has been my feeling for a long time that even sesame oil cannot supplant olive oil. Some people do use linseed oil but I have no knowledge in this respect.

I have heard great praises of triphala but I have very little faith in medicines. I believe in nature-cure.

Devdas has no intention at present of marrying. No one in my knowledge has married for the purpose of realizing God. Devdas is not free from passion. It is not a matter of surprise or regret to me. Marriage is a means of regulating passion but it has a sublime purpose too. Anyway God alone knows the human heart.

MOHANDAS GANDHI

From a photostat of the Hindi: S.G. 39.

1 Literally, League for breaking down caste distinctions
2 An Ayurvedic preparation
441. TELEGRAM TO ABUL KALAM AZAD

[October 20, 1932]

MOULANA ABULKALAM AZAD
CALCUTTA
THANKS FOR WIRE. FROM THIS PLACE OF SECLUSION I CAN ONLY SAY I WISH WITH ALL MY HEART THAT WE MAY ACHIEVE THE REAL UNITY BETWEEN HINDUS MUSLIMS AND SIJKHS AS SYMBOL OF ALL-INDIA UNITY FOR WHICH YOU AND I AND OTHER CO-WORKERS HAVE BEEN WISHING AND IN PRAYING ALL THESE LONG YEARS. ON MERITS I MAY SAY NOTHING IGNORANCE OF FULL FACTS AND SITUATION. BUT FOR ME PERSONALLY ANY SOLUTION THAT IS ACCEPTABLE TO PARTIES CONCERNED WILL BE ACCEPTABLE. THEREFORE I WISH ALL SUCCESS TO YOU AND ALL OTHER FRIENDS WORKING FOR ACHIEVEMENT OF LONG DEFERRED PEACE IN THIS DISTRacted COUNTRY OF OURS. SARDAR VALLABHBHAI JOINS.

GANDHI

Government of Bombay, Home Department, I.G.P. File No. 9

442. LETTER TO M. G. BHANDARI

October 20, 1932

DEAR MAJOR BHANDARI,

With reference to the telegram from Maulana Abul Kalam Azad I send herewith the original and my reply¹ to it. To be of any use the reply should go promptly or not at all.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

Government of Bombay, Home Department, I.G.P. File No. 9

¹ This telegram, which was withheld by jail authorities, was in reply to the addressee’s telegram dated October 19, 1932 which read: “Muslim leaders conference unanimous not to press separate electorate if other demands accepted. In present situation no better solution possible. Your absence hindering success. Bless us by message. At least trust Government won’t object.”

² Vide the following item.

³ Vide the preceding item.
443. LETTER TO C. F. ANDREWS

October 20, 1932

MY DEAREST CHARLIE,

I have your letter. God’s grace has been wonderful. Those days were days of basking in the sunshine of His presence. There was not one step taken out of self-will. Never have I experienced such an immediate response to prayer.

Yes, it was well you stayed there. I knew what it would mean for you to remain there. And yet I did not take a moment to decide the reply to your cable. Vallabhbhai and Mahadev too had never any doubt about the correctness of the decision. Indeed it is wonderful how they instinctively felt the soundness of all the fateful decisions that had to be taken during those terrible days.

But the work has only just begun. It is a life and death struggle for me. The fast has to be a fast to the finish or untouchability has to go now. It is a tremendous task. I must test the affection of the millions who have flocked to those meetings, I have to wrestle with God Himself. But He is both indulgent and exacting. He will have full surrender or none. The late fast was possibly only a prelude to what is yet to come. But no more of speculation. His will, not mine be done. I can but try to prove worthy of the sacrifice if it has to come.

And you have still to be there. The untouchability you speak of is far subtler and wears the cloak of respectability. Ours in India looks what it is and therefore in a way less difficult perhaps to fight.

I have almost regained my lost strength. Our love to you and all the members of the ever-growing family.

Yours,

MOHAN

From a photostat: G.N. 975. Also Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, pp. 158-9

444. LETTER TO ARUN DAS GUPTA

October 20, 1932

You must not give way to despair. Even organic defects have been known to have been removed or at least brought under control. Proper breathing, proper diet and fresh air added to the will to be better, bring the desired recovery. You should have living faith in God and know He will keep your body intact so long as He has use for it.

1 The addressee had been ailing.

And why do you think that we can serve only with the body? Mind is a far more powerful instrument of service. Those serve best who have perfect purity of heart. Indeed, we serve so as to attain perfect purity. Thoughts of the pure in heart can do what the bodies with corrupt hearts can never do. Therefore in no case have you the slightest cause for despair. Do not seek to prove how thoughts work. Enough for you to believe that they do work and produce mighty results. Therefore, always cultivating purity of heart, you should be perfectly at peace whether you are well in body or not. Will you do this?

_Mahadevbhaini Diary_, Vol. II, pp. 157-8

445. LETTER TO DOROTHY

_October 20, 1932_

MY DEAR DOROTHY.

I prize your love letter. Muriel was right when she told you ‘pray’ in reply to your question. Real praying from the heart brings the real work behind it. For in the end work itself becomes prayer. I like your simple affirmation ‘I am clean now’. God will keep you clean. Do not look back to the past. You have had your lesson from it. Look forward to the future in hope and confidence.

---

1 The addressee, an English girl, had written: “... I became interested in India 21 months ago. Before that I had been in the grip of a deadly vice which very nearly destroyed my body and perhaps my wits. ... Then I read about brahmacharya and have since been humbly trying to follow your teaching. ...”
446. LETTER TO J. S. HOYLAND

October 20, 1932

MY DEAR HOYLAND,

Your letter is among the treasures I have received on the fast. It is a matter of great joy to me that if some have misunderstood the fast, friends like you have had no difficulty in appreciating it. And if one may judge an act by its results, it has proved itself to have been from God.

Love to you all from us all.

BAPU

From a photostat of the original: C.W. 4507. Courtesy: Woodbrooke College, Birmingham and Mrs. Jessie Hoyland

447. LETTER TO SHANKAR

October 20, 1932

I am sorry about the objection to the name of Harijan. You may use any name that your friends like. But do please explain to them that I had not the remotest idea of thinking of Vishnu or Shiva. For me the name means ‘people of God’. I make no distinction between Vishnu, Shiva or Brahma. They are all names of God. But let their decision be taken and prevail.

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 163

448. A LETTER

October 20, 1932

Removal of untouchability does not include inter-dining and intermarriage. But in my opinion Hinduism does not prohibit inter-dining or intermarriage with anybody by reason of mere birth. Essential religion has nothing to do with the regulation of such social relations.

1 The addressee had said that in Madras they objected to the untouchables being called ‘Harijans’ because they were Shaivas and not Vaishnavas. They ought, therefore, to be called ‘Harajans’—men of Shiva—or Adi Hindus.
449. LETTER TO ASHRAM BOYS AND GIRLS

October 20, 1932

DEAR BOYS AND GIRLS,

I got your letter. What a shame that so many of you should fall ill! And who should feel ashamed for this? I hope Mohan is all right now, and others also are out of danger.

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./II

450. LETTER TO VALJI G. DESAI

October 20, 1932

Bhai Valji,

I got your letter which arrived with the Ashram mail. You seem to have lost considerable weight. Regain it now by eating properly and giving rest to the mind. You must have got the registered letter which I posted yesterday in regard to your book.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 7442. Courtesy: Valji G. Desai

451. LETTER TO GULAB

October 20, 1932

Chi. Gulab,

I got your letter. You should ask Premabehn how the earth came into being.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 1727

\(^1\) Vide “Letter to Valji G. Desai”, 19-10-1932.
452. LETTER TO SULOCHANA

October 20, 1932

CHI. SULOCHANA,

Your handwriting is improving. Improve it as much as you can and learn to be methodical in all that you do.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 1714

453. LETTER TO NARAYAN KULKARNI

October 20, 1932

BHAJ NARAYAN KULKARNI,

I have your letter. I regret my inability to write in Marathi. I hope that you will find no difficulty in following my Hindi.

Several vaidya friends of mine had informed me three or four years ago that honey should not be taken in warm water. My other friends, the allopathic doctors have no objection to it. But I am not influenced by their opinion as they have not made a close study of the effects of articles of food. In their system they do not observe much distinction between what may be eaten and what eschewed. But I am writing of my personal experience. I have found no harm but rather benefit by taking honey with warm water. I started taking honey on a doctor’s advice which came about in this way. Owing to a lack of carbohydrates in my system sugar was needed. The best sugar in his opinion was obtained from honey. I have taken honey since then and he never objected to my taking it in warm water.

My complaint against our vaidyas is that they hold on to whatever is expounded in the ancient texts even if it be contrary to experience as they consider them the last word. I am sure in the Ayurvedic system there is need for further research. It should be revised in the light of experience. Does honey lose its property by being poured into hot water? Have you made a chemical analysis of honey? Obesity and leanness are relative terms. For which kind of leanness is warm honey undesirable and why so? To conclude, have you proved by experience what you write? Vaidyas do not follow this method but are content with quoting shlokas from the old texts. I beg you to give up this irrational attitude and test by trial whatever is written in the ancient works.

1 The letter is damaged at these places.

MOHANDAS GANDHI

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 803

454. LETTER TO TARAMATI MATHURADAS TRIKUMJI

October 20, 1932

CHI. TARAMATI,

I have your letter. When you write to Mathuradas tell him that I have sent him a letter which he must have received.

Ba has come there. She is staying at Mani Bhavan. Manilal and Devdas are also there. Go and meet all of them. I do not know if you have met Manilal’s wife Sushila. She is also in Bombay. At present she is in Dosibai’s hospital.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI TARAMATI MATHURADAS

21 MINT ROAD, 2ND FLOOR

FORT, BOMBAY

From the Gujarati original: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

455. LETTER TO GULAM RASUL QURESHI

October 20, 1932

CHI. QURESHI,

Why are you not getting well? If necessary consult Haribhai. He does many operations for piles. Do you get clear motions? If there is pain you should eat only leafy vegetables, fruit and a little milk, or only leafy vegetables and fruit. To reduce her obesity Amina should eat only bread and leafy vegetables. If she does that, the fat cannot but get reduced and she will get well. She gets tired because of the excessive fat. Do write to me.

_Blessings from_

_BAPU_

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C. W. 10811. Courtesy: Gulam Rasul Qureshi

456. MESSAGE TO “THE DAILY HERALD”

[On or before October 21, 1932]

I am keeping excellent health. My blood pressure is normal. I have now gained three quarters of a pound, thus weighing now 99\(\frac{3}{4}\) lb. I had no stroke at all.

_The Hindu, 21-10-1932_

457. LETTER TO F. MARY BARR

_October 21, 1932_

MY DEAR MARY,

I have your letter. Devdas has been overworking himself. He had therefore a slight attack of fever. He is, I understand, better again.

It is true I do not believe in idol-worship in the sense generally understood. But I do not disbelieve in others worshiping God through idols. In one sense we are all idol-worshippers. We worship God of our image. That image need not have a physical form. Each one has his own imagination of and attributes for God. And yet God in reality is without attributes and beyond our imagination. Hence when we form our own picture of God, we are idol-worshippers. Therefore my mind does not condemn those who conceive God as residing in a stone or metal image. They are not wrong for God is everywhere and in everything. Now whenever we want to worship God in everything we consecrate it. But if a man excludes his fellows from participation in common worship we are entitled to say that God flees from such worship. And He is installed when there is repentance and the bar against one’s fellows is removed. I hope this explanation is capable of being understood even though it may not be appreciated. In my opinion it covers a profound truth. If the truth is not seen, the fault lies in my inability to express clearly what I want to say. You must tax me again if I have not stated my position clearly.

Love from Mahadev and myself.

BAPU

From a photostat: G.N. 5985. Also C.W. 3314. Courtesy: F. Mary Barr

458. LETTER TO DUNICHAD

October 21, 1932

Of course, I am under discipline like everybody else. But what shall man’s discipline avail when God imposes His own?

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 165

459. LETTER TO JAMSHED MEHTA

October 21, 1932

BROTHER JAMSHED,

What does this letter mean? I have not replied to the writer. May I ask you about it? If you will write to me, I will send a reply to the writer.

Hope Kikibehn is getting well.

Yours sincerely,

BAPU

Bombay Secret Abstracts, Home Department, Special Branch, File No. 800(40)(3), Pt. III, p. 309

1 The addressee had said that in future Gandhiji should take the country into his confidence before taking any step and that he should place himself under the discipline of the country.

2 There is nothing in the source to indicate that the addressee was Jamshed Mehta, ex-Mayor of Karachi. The reference, however, to Kikibehn, J.B. Kripalani’s sister who lived in Karachi would suggest that it was he.
460. A LETTER

October 21, 1932

Women like you instinctively saw the correctness of the fast and did not fear the result. Infect your husband with your faith.

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 165

461. LETTER TO KESHAV GANDHI

October 21, 1932

CHI. KESHU,

You will improve your handwriting if you write carefully and in big, separate letters. I find it hard to read your present writing. I hope you are quite well now. Do you get clear bowels?

It was of course bad that the wasp died. We do not know what punishment God inflicts for such a sin knowingly committed, but it would be enough if we resolved not to do such a thing again. True service is service which we give with love without expecting any return. Any work that we do in the Ashram is service, because the Ashram has been established for service of others. Our vision would be purified if, instead of letting our eyes wander while we walk we kept them fixed on the ground as if bowing to Mother Earth, and while sitting if we kept them fixed on the work we might be doing.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 3282

462. LETTER TO MANILAL GANDHI

October 21, 1932

CHI. MANILAL,

I got your letter. Any of you brothers who wishes to come may do so now. I hope Devdas is now completely all right. Ask him and Pyarelal to write to me. You are acting wisely in not being in a hurry to bring away Sushila from the hospital. You should let her recover completely before doing so. Since I am writing to you, I am not

1 The addressee, not indentified in the source, had said that her husband had been unhappy at the fast but that she had been confident that the result was bound to be good.
writing a separate letter to Ba. Tell her that Vallabhbhai and Mahadev often think about her as she does about them. Please write to me regularly.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 4798

463. LETTER TO NIRMALA GANDHI

October 22, 1932

CHI. NIMU,

If you keep to the diet you have now started taking, it will be beneficial in relieving constipation.

I hope the child has got over his cough. Can you get goat’s milk there? If it is not available, you may add water and honey to cow’s milk. If Sarita has already named the child ‘Kanji’. let that be his name. It is quite good. To match it with Ramdas’s name, you may even call him ‘Kandas’ or ‘Kahandas’. I count it the same whether we say ‘Kanji’ or ‘Kandas’, or ‘Ramji’ or ‘Ramdas’. If you also agree with it, write to Ramdas and tell him so. If you do not wish to write, I will write.

BAPU

From the Gujarati original: Mrs. Sumitra Kulkarni Papers. Courtesy: Nehru
Memorial Museum and Library

464. LETTER TO PRABHUDAS GANDHI

October 21, 1932

CHI. PRABHUDAS,

I have your letter. I have resumed the Magan Charkha because the pain in the left elbow started again. I have made one improvement.
I changed your spindle-frame and fixed that of the Gandiv Charkha in its place. I therefore introduced a spring. The result was that yarn was easily drawn fine. I used to spin yarn of twenty counts with great difficulty and then had made some progress. Now I can easily spin yarn of thirty counts. The speed is still the same, that is, a hundred rounds per hour. Even a little more at times. I may be able to increase the speed as also the count. The spindle-frame still needs some changes. But I have now no carpenter. The carpenter prisoners have been released on the completion of their terms.

You seem to have lost control over your expenditure and seem to be asking for money as you please. This is not right. You have vowed to keep within your budget. You must not go beyond that. You must always keep this in mind and consult the statement before asking even for one extra rupee. If it does not provide for any particular amount, you should not ask for it no matter how big the temptation before you. If there is something very important, you must take prior permission and should not, if you do not get it, feel peeved even inwardly but remain undisturbed. If you do not maintain such firmness, the work will come to a stop. Narandas must be having the budget which I had sent to you, and you also must have kept a copy. If you have not, send for one. Do not work beyond your strength. Be satisfied with a little. I have almost regained my previous strength.

_Blessings from_
BAPU

[PS.]

Will a popgun not be enough for wild animals? I think it does not require a licence. I once saw an advertisement about it.

From the Gujarati original: Gandhi Nidhi File. Courtesy: Gandhi National Museum and Library

---

465. _LETTER TO PARASRAM MEHROTRA_

_October 21, 1932_

CHI. PARASRAM,

I got your letter after a long interval. With whom does Father stay in Lucknow?
With whom did Vimal stay in your absence?

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N.7509. Also C.W. 4986. Courtesy: Parasram Mehrotra
466. LETTER TO KHWAJA

October 22, 1932

Terrorism does affect me to the very depth and if God pointed the way as He did on untouchability I should unhesitatingly take it.

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 169

467. LETTER TO URMILA DEVI

October 22, 1932

By a constant study of the Gita, you should learn to shed all care. When God is the caretaker for us all, why need we carry the burden? Ours is but to do the task that falls to our lot.

Hence I would urge you not to think of retirement. True retirement is not a physical state, it comes from within. We have to find retirement in the midst of ceaseless work. And, are not the minds of those who are living in caves, oftner than not ceaselessly at work?

We should not brood on our hard lot. The lot of those who would serve is generally, if not always, hard.

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 168

468. LETTER TO SHARDA C. SHAH

October 22, 1932

CHI. SHARDA,

You can certainly take hip-baths even when you have fever. I had given hip-baths to a coughing old man of 75 years and his asthma was cured. While taking a hip-bath the upper portion of the body should be covered and also the legs if you feel cold. Only the portion between the abdomen and the thighs is kept in water and during the treatment the abdomen in gently rubbed with a small towel. The patient enjoys this bath. He shivers while getting into the tub but once in it, he enjoys it. Diet should be simple and the bowels must clear daily. Continue to have oil-message as usual. And you should not let yourself be tired. Then see how healthy your body becomes. I have no objection to idol-worship by any one who has need of it. I do not feel the need of it. Millions can do without it. Moreover, all of us are idol-worshippers in a sense. Anyone who worships God by attributing virtues to them is an idol-worshipper. I have written this very briefly. Ask me again if you have not understood. I shall explain at greater length. But before that, try to understand from Narandas. Consult Chimanlal too.

1 The addressee had asked Gandhiji why he did not resort to satyagraha against terrorists as he did against untouchability.

BAPU

From the Gujarati original: C.W. 9958. Courtesy: Shardabehn G. Chokhawala

469. LETTER TO HEMPRABHA DAS GUPTA
October 22, 1932

CHI. HEMPRABHA,

Your letter and the report. The report is good. It is a matter of regret that not much khadi was sold during the Puja season. Consult Ghanshyamdasji about this and see if he can do something. Arun must have got my letter¹. All this touring should not affect your health. How are Satisbabu and Kshitishbabu?

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 1691

470. LETTER TO AMTUSSALAAM
October 22, 1932

DEAR DAUGHTER AMTUSSALAAM,

Your letter. You can give up hip-bath but not sitz-bath. You can take it between two and three in the afternoon. The water can be first warmed in the sun and the bath may last for two or three minutes only. It is good that you are re-reading Talash-e-Haq². You must not work to excess. Purification will come by and by, you must be patient. It is very good that Kudsia has become equable. Can you understand fully what I have written? Tell me if you find any difficulty. Do correct my mistakes.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Urdu: G.N. 260

² The Urdu edition of Gandhiji’s autobiography
471. LETTER TO DAVID

October 23, 1932

Many thanks for your elaborate letter. You have almost converted me. I knew the sinfulness (for me) of taking wild honey. But stupidly and lazily I went on taking it. Your graphic description of the manner in which wild honey is prepared has almost driven me to the abjuring of wild honey. So you see what you would have me to do when, if ever, I am outside Yeravda, I am likely to do almost immediately. But surely there must be places in India where innocent honey is prepared. What about the Himalayan honey which we see in the market?

It was good of you to have sent the different varieties of honey. The parcel has not yet been received. I know we shall all eat it with relish and without any sense of guilt. Do you stock these honeys or have you specially brought the specimens sent by you?

With regards from us all,

Your sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

PS.

Do I gather from your letter that it is possible to extract honey by scientific means from wild honeycombs without injuring the comb or the bees? If it is not, must wild honey be beyond human reach unless one is prepared to destroy the comb and the bees?

Mahadevbhai Diary, Vol. II, pp. 172-3

472. LETTER TO BHAU PANSE

October 23, 1932

CHI. BHAU,

You should not despair. We ought to be able to overcome a simple complaint like constipation. It can be cured by determined effort. One should not neglect it, nor worry about it. The argument you had with Dr. Talwalkar was unfortunate. I am writing to him.

1 In a long letter the addressee had described how wild honey was extracted, how impure it was and how it involved destruction of bees.
2 The addressee had sent Gandhiji’s specimens of Palestinian honey, American honey, New Zealand honey and French honey.
Read the letter and understand it. Narandas will show it to you if he thinks fit.

Bhaji is certainly worth trying. Try the suggestions I made in my last letter to Narandas. Fast for three days or more. Take short walks when fasting and do some light work. Drink as much water as you can, mixing in it, if necessary, a few drops of sour lemon. There will be no harm if you drink with water the juice of two or three lemons in the course of the day. Eat or drink nothing else. Take an enema every morning. Take in 2 pints ($2 \frac{1}{2}$ lb.) of lukewarm water putting in it 40 grains of soda bicarb and 20 grains of salt. Retain the water for 20 minutes if you can. You should take the enema lying on the floor. If you do not pass stool even then, you may repeat the enema in the evening. Do not worry if you still do not pass stool. Take an enema in the same way next day. Take Kuhnebath at noon. If you do not feel too weak and the tongue is still coated, continue the fast. If you begin to feel weak, break the fast with fruit juice, such as orange juice, juice of sour lemons with honey, juice of black raisins. They should be soaked overnight in water and squeezed the next morning, and the juice should be strained. It would be better to warm the juice. On the first day drink as much juice as you can. You may also eat grapes if you wish. The next day you may take bhaji, gourd or some other vegetable. Let two days pass in this way. Probably, you will pass stool in the natural course. If you don’t you may have recourse to the enema again. Thereafter begin taking milk. Milk may be taken with green vegetables. I mix with gourd or pumpkin the milk I wish to take and eat the dish. Start bread or rotli only after you begin passing regular stools. Fasting in this way will most probably overcome constipation and, in any case, it will do no harm at all. If this does not help you, we will think of some other way. You are right in deciding not to take the medicine prescribed by Dr. Talwalkar. You should not think at all of leaving the Ashram whether at Sabarmati or at Wardha (they are not distinct from each other). A person who wishes to serve others, whose thoughts are pure and who works to the best of his ability, should never think that he is a burden on others. Write to me regularly and in detail. I shall not weary of your letters. Carry out with faith whatever measures I suggest from time to time.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 6739. Also C.W. 4482. Courtesy: Bhau Panse

---

1 This letter is not traceable.
473. LETTER TO NARANDAS GAHDHI

3 p.m., October 23, 1932

CHI. NARANDAS,

Ghelabhai’s wire about Punjabhai having passed away reached me yesterday at 9 p.m. Who is this Ghelabhai? I will expect detailed information about him. I am sure all the inmates of the Ashram attended the funeral. I will give my reminiscences of Punjabhai in a separate article.¹

Read my letter to Champa. What is her problem? If Kotwal comes and stays with her, it will certainly be good. A letter for him also is enclosed. Champa writes in her letter about her desire to go to Rangoon. Think over this.

The Ashram does not seem to be a fortunate place for Jamna. She seems to be keeping all right in Rajkot. Why, then, should she not continue to live there? Those who live outside the Ashram but follow its rules, really live in the Ashram itself. On the other hand, those who live in the Ashram but follow its rules unwillingly and only in their letter, and who in their thoughts live outside the Ashram, do not really live in the Ashram. It would be far better that Jamna, instead of living in the Ashram and remaining ill all the time, should keep good health outside and do what service she can. I am not writing a separate letter to her today. But both of you should think over what I have said and do what seems proper.

I duly got both your postcards regarding Mohan. I should have received Anandi’s postcard earlier, but I got it at the same time as yours. We should not feel surprised at such things happening here. I was glad that Mohan was out of it, soon. We should thank God if there is no relapse. That Kusum, Navin, Dhiru and Manju, all four of them are ill is a terrible thing. I have already explained my ideas concerning them. Do what you think best.

Read my letter¹ to Bhau. That letter made it necessary for me to write to Talwalkar. Read the letter which I have written to him also. Pass it on to him if you approve it and think it is all right. Bhau should see whether the facts are stated correctly. If you do not approve of the letter, tear it up.

¹ Vide the following item.
² A co-worker of Gandhiji in South Africa Vide the preceding item.
Where was Joshi arrested? Where is he at present? Is anyone permitted to see him?

Anandi may take the injection. I see that your list does include a letter from the Jain muni. I had replied to him directly. If you have got his address, drop a postcard to him and tell him that I sent a direct reply to him. I have advised him not to give up his muni’s dress.

I don’t remember having seen Ramniklal’s letter. It must have been left behind there. Ask him to write again.

I get a letter from Mirabehn every week. She has stopped visiting me in order that she may be permitted to write to me as frequently. She is quite cheerful now. Her letter had given me the impression that she must have been in a daze during my fast. She was of course working, but could not concentrate on anything.

I see that your list includes a letter from Chhaganlal Joshi also. I did not get that letter either.

I saw your list of primus stoves. It took me aback. We certainly live in no ordinary style. However, it will be enough now if the women agree that only men may light these stoves. If they don’t they should be ready to sacrifice one victim at least on the altar of this demon-god. The Ashram has no licence of exemption from such accident. In this age of freedom, I should be satisfied with this warning.

Read my letter to Lilavati.

I don’t seem to have received the postcard from Wardha.

Read my letter to Prabhudas. You should certainly be strict. He must live within his budget. If it is absolutely necessary to spend more, he should get your previous permission. If there is no provision in his budget for a gardener, I think we should make it.

Manilal’s and Devdas’s visits have not been stopped. They can come whenever they wish to.

My food is practically the same. I ate bread for two days and then stopped it. The weight has increased by three-quarters of a pound. That is, it is 99\(\frac{1}{2}\) pounds.

Enquire about Kusum.

You should read the Gita daily for many hours during the fast.

There are 45 letters with this.

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./I. Also C.W. 8261. Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi
Once when speaking of Punjabhai I had used before his name the prefix chiranjivi a child had asked me in surprise: “Since Punjabhai is certainly older than I, but he trusts me like a child. And he offers me even his devotion in the same way.” This was literally true. I had my doubts about my fitness for that trust and that devotion. But I had not even an iota of doubt about Punjabhai’s trust and devotion to me. In any kind of difficulty Punjabhai would accept my advice as gospel truth. Punjabhai was not himself without a sense of discrimination but he had deliberately decided to put his trust in me.

Punjabhai may well not be here today in the sense in which I had addressed him when I called him chiranjivi, but he is chiranjivi in a wider sense than that.

Though I used to address him as chiranjivi, there was nothing I could teach him. I for one was a worshipper of his virtues. In my view, no one could surpass Punjabhai in humility, in devotion to religion, in devotion to truth and in generosity. Punjabhai had the capacity to sacrifice everything.

The poet Raichand was all in all to Punjabhai. I myself was an admirer of Raichandbhai, so Punjabhai was drawn towards me. That I, unlike Punjabhai, could not look upon Raichandbhai as my guru did not pain him. Punjabhai knew that no one could become a guru merely by being offered that status. A guru attracts a disciple just as a magnet attracts iron.

Punjabhai greatly liked what I used to say about Raichandbhai and what he liked more was the fact that I tried to assimilate what I extolled. As a consequence that bond between us became stronger and stronger every day.

Punjabhai was closely associated with the Ashram right from its inception and though he did not become an inmate of the Ashram, he lived as one. Punjabhai had shared in the ups and downs of the Ashram. He would explain to us the intricacies of the Ahmedabad

---

1. From “Diary, 1932”; Punjabhai Shah died on October 22.
2. Literally long-lived, a term usually applied by people to those younger than themselves.
market. He would bring whatever was required. We could draft Punjabhai’s men for the service of the Ashram at any time. Punjabhai’s shop and house had become the inmates’ place of refuge in the city. He would indicate where anything from a broomstick to cereals could be had at a reasonable price. The Ashram has saved a lot of money owing to his supervision and his advice. It was Punjabhai who found and purchased the piece of land where the Ashram now stands. For these and other services he did not ever expect even a few words of thanks. Punjabhai worked till his last moment as though the Ashram were his own. Though I had occasion to come into very close contact with him, I never found him given to impatience or exaggeration at any time. He would not speak unless it was necessary. How could he ever take part in idle gossip? His conversation ever concerned dharma, and he loved to dwell on the lives of virtuous men. I never sensed any hatred for anyone in Punjabhai’s heart. I never heard him speak harsh words about anyone.

Punjabhai was skilled in business. He earned much. He could have earned more had he so desired. But it is my impression that after coming into contact with Raichandbhai, he had reduced his business operations. His credit was first class. The monies kept with him were perfectly secure.

It was Punjabhai who administered the finances of the Ashram. He was for a long time even the treasurer of the Gujarat Provincial Congress Committee.

Punjabhai was pious; he aspired for moksha. In the Ashram one could count on one’s fingers the men who are as free from covetousness as Punjabhai was.

Punjabhai’s touch sanctified the Ashram. His religion was not narrow. It had a place in it for all other faiths.

Such a man as Punjabhai will live for ever. As far as we are concerned, we should remember his virtues and prove worthy of our association with him.

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./II
475. LETTER TO RAMABEHN JOSHI

October 23, 1932

CHI. RAMA,

I hope Chhaganlal’s arrest has not made you nervous. Do you get letters from him? Do you visit him any time? Where is he lodged? I put up with your negligence in writing to me till now. I will not do so any longer. You should write to me regularly. Have you recovered strength now? How do Dhiru and Vimu behave?

BAPU

From photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 5337

476. LETTER TO PREMABEHN KANTAK

October 23, 1932

CHI. PREMA,

I have your letter.

Jammadas’s case is a painful one. What can we do? No one can escape his fate do what he will.

I had a long letter from Kisan. She has given a good description of her daily life. Hard work comes so naturally to her that she got up at three in the morning to write that letter. I thought I was the only one who worked so hard. It seems even girls can humble my pride. You cannot do so, for in the Ashram it is a rule that everyone should get up early and so it is not surprising that you should do so. In Bombay, however, to get up at six in the morning will be a favour to one’s family. This is, of course, not true of labourers. But Kisan is not one of them.

You should, if you can, spare some time and learn the art of ridding the Ashram of its frequent illnesses. But your first task is to learn how to make your body strong.

If maize doesn’t grow on our farms, can we not buy it? If that is what you require to increase your weight, the matter is very simple. Here in jail they do say that maize gruel helps easy evacuation and increases one’s weight. Prisoners always get maize gruel in the morning. They add salt to it. Bran does not have to be removed from maize flour. It is worth while to make this experiment for a few days for its own sake and feel one with the prisoners. What do you serve in the morning these days? If you have been serving wheat gruel as formerly, it should be easy to switch on to jowar gruel. The women, Vithal, Kanti and others are familiar with it from experience. Their judgment should be final. I am only writing what I hear from others.

I did not follow anything of what Shanta said. She has told me nothing. It would be good if she confided in you. Now that I remember, ‘confides’ is an English word. The Gujarati idiom is ‘to open out the heart’. If Shanta wants anything to be kept confidential, you should certainly respect her wishes.

I cannot just now answer the questions which you have put to me. Have patience for some time.

There is no limit to your capacity and fitness for work. But these can be seen only if I give you an opportunity to display them. For the time being they waste their sweetness on the desert air like the flowers in Gray’s poem¹.

Our cat was really mad with joy when she saw us. She simply would not leave us. She must have keenly felt the separation from us. She is contented now.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10307. Also C.W. 6746. Courtesy: Premabehn Kantak

477. LETTER TO MANIBEHN N. PARIKH

October 23, 1932

CHI. MANIBEHN, ²

I hope you are not worrying about Mohan. I used to get news about him here. Children fall ill suddenly and recover as quickly, for their stomachs are not impaired as ours are. We ruin ours by stuffing them with all kinds of harmful things. Children have not had sufficient time to ruin theirs. Do not worry about Narahari either. He is protected not by us but by God. Who can harm a person whom He wishes to save?

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 5973. Also C.W. 3290. Courtesy: Vanamala M. Desai

¹ Elegy Written in a Country Churchyard
² Wife of Narahari Parikh
478. LETTER TO PADMA

October 23, 1932

CHI. PADMA,

I got your letter. This time your handwriting was bad. If your health has improved in other respects, the weight will increase of itself. You should do only as much work as you can without getting exhausted. Do not worry about anything. I do not know of any complaint having been made to me against you. I hope you do not regard that matter of accounts as a complaint.

Sheela must be very happy, now for she has gone to stay in Shailashram.

Tell Sarojinidevi\(^1\) that she should favour me with a letter occasionally at least.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 6139. Also C.W. 3491. Courtesy: Prabhudas Gandhi

479. LETTER TO PREMLILA THACKERSEY

October 23, 1932

DEAR SISTER,

You have pampered me enough with your love. Kindly do not tempt me now. Till now I used to accept all the fruit that you sent, as I could plead the excuse of weakness which followed my fast. My companions also are not men who would gladly eat whatever fruit they are given. They, too, wish to observe the restrictions proper for prisoners and for human beings in general. Hence it seems improper on my part to let you send me fruit in a continuous stream. Let me, therefore, have my own way about fruit as I had about honey. I shall ask for it as and when I need it. The pomegranates which you sent are enough for me just now, and the oranges and the apples brought by Manilal are also there. I will trouble you when all this stock is exhausted.

I have written to Trivedi about honey. I have sent him a letter from a friend named David. You may read that letter. I have no choice but to give up the use of wild honey. Mr. David’s letter gives a vivid description of the sin of consuming such honey. I am sure one must be able to get innocent honey in some part of India. If we cannot get it, I think we ourselves should arrange with some people to produce it. You will get a clearer idea of all this if you read Mr. David’s letter. However, drop the matter if you do not feel interested in it. I don’t wish to give you unnecessary trouble. These facts are worth knowing only if one is interested in the subject.

\(^1\) Addressee’s mother

Ba has told me much about your kindness and love. But, to be able to accept all that love without hesitation, I must have a strong desire to serve humanity.

Blessings from
MOHANDAS

CHI. LILAVATI,

I do not wish to improve you by confining you in a cage. I have faith in you. You have refrained from remarrying out of your own volition. You have come to the Ashram on your own. You will rise by your own strength. Therefore, do whatever you think proper. Come to the Ashram and stay there as if it was your father’s house. Of course, even in one’s father’s house rules must be followed. You can consider yourself totally free and leave the Ashram. Whatever you do, do after due consideration. I regard Mridu’s company as satsang for you. Whatever outward impression she may give, she is saintly girl. May God bless you.

BAPU

From the Gujarati original: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library.Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar
481. TELEGRAM TO SATYAGRAHA ASHRAM, SABARMATI

October 24, 1932

LET US REJOICE OVER PUNJABHAI’S LONG SLEEP. SEND FULL ACCOUNT LAST MOMENTS. HOPE ASHRAM FULLY REPRESENTED AT FUNERAL.

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 175

482. LETTER TO ABUL KALAM AZAD

October 24, 1932

DEAR MAULANA SAHEB,

I had your telegram and I sent a reply there and then. It has been forwarded to the Government for approval.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

MAULANA ABUL KALAM AZAD
CARE MUNICIPAL CORPORATION
CALCUTTA

Bombay Secret Abstracts, Home Department, Special Branch, File No. 800 (40)(3) Pt. III

483. LETTER TO E. E. DOYLE

Urgent

October 24, 1932

DEAR COL. DOYLE,

Your communication regarding my request for a definition of Government policy about my interviewing and carrying on correspondence in the matter of untouchability and another matter was read to me by Major Bhandari this morning. I was allowed to make a copy of it.

According to the communication, “Government are prepared to allow me a reasonable number of interviews (with persons approved by them)”, and to carry on correspondence, “provided it is clearly understood that it is not reproduced in the Press”.

It is clear to me that Government could not be aware that my fast is only suspended and that may have to be resumed if the work of removal of untouchability is not thoroughly done. Moreover, so far as a temple in the South is concerned, I might be obliged to join Sjt. Kelappan in his fast, if by or before the 2nd of January next that temple is not opened to the so-called untouchables. This the Government has known. Three weeks have already passed without my being able to do much work, apart from being permitted after long delay to send two telegrams. Despatch and publicity are essential, if I am to overtake the work of reform in due time. Every day counts. I therefore submit that all restrictions on the choice of visitors and publication of correspondence should be removed. I can have no objection to the presence of an official or officials at the interviews and inspection there and then of correspondence. If assistance is supplied to me, the Government may have copies of all correspondence and short-hand notes of interviews. Naturally these interviews and correspondence should have no reference to civil disobedience and must be strictly limited to the removal of untouchability.

Unless therefore these restrictions, as submitted above, are removed, before the 1st November next, I shall be reluctantly obliged to withdraw, subject to the limitations imposed by the law of satyagraha, such co-operation as is possible for me to do. And as a preliminary I shall deny myself all the feeding facilities permitted to me and restrict myself to such ‘C’ class diet as I can within my vow consistenly take and so long as my body can accommodate itself to such food. I do hope the Government will not regard this as a threat. The contemplated step is the natural consequence of the Government attitude. I can have no interest in life if I cannot prosecute, without let or hindrance, work for which the fast was undertaken and suspended. I would have said nothing if this moral and religious reform had anything to do with civil disobedience.

With reference to my personal letter1 to the Honourable Mr. Hudson, the reply comes upon me as a painful surprise. If the warning read out to me at the interview with Dr. Ambedkar was by way of punishment for what I am alleged to have done regarding the telegram to Maulana Shaukat Ali, common justice even to a prisoner demanded that the cause of the punishment should have been conveyed to me at the time of the warning, and before the punishment was pronounced explanation should have been called for from me. I never knew that a prisoner could be condemned unheard. Nor had I the remotest idea that the letter to my son which I had seen was intended to convey any warning to me. Let me say that my son told me definitely in official presence that Mr. Hudson had in a generous manner not only quickly granted him permission to see me as often as he liked but that he had permitted him to talk to me about anything and carry any messages from me, so long as he gave no interviews to the Press and published nothing. In view of this conversation I saw nothing wrong in asking my son to tell Mr. Shaukat Ali that I had seen his wire and that I had replied to it, and that he was likely to receive the reply in the course of a day or two, the delay being due to the fact that it had gone to the Government for being passed. I had not then the remotest idea that the utterly innocent telegram would not be passed. I did therefore give my son also the purport of the reply. Let me however correct two mis-statements in the paragraph of your communication regarding this matter. I had no knowledge at the time of talking to my son that the telegram had not been “passed for transmission”. Nor is it correct to say that the text of the reply has been published in the Press. What I have seen is only the substance. I did not give my son a copy of the reply. I add that my son out of nobility of his nature wrote a gentlemanly letter to Mr. Hudson regretting that Maulana Shaukat Ali had published his conversation with him in spite of his caution. He had expected a letter of thanks in reply for his frankness but unfortunately he received a reprimand, and he remained quiet under it. I should be sorry if after this very full explanation Mr. Hudson does not revise his opinion and think that as man to man he has done me a grave injustice.

---

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

[PS.]

Since it is obviously impossible for me to guarantee non-publication by my correspondents, known and unknown, of letters I may write to them, whilst the bar referred to lasts, I have to suspend what correspondence on untouchability I have hitherto carried on. I am entitled therefore to ask that a reply to this matter be sent as early as possible before the 31st instant.

484. LETTER TO RUKMINIDEVI BAZAJ

October 24, 1932

CHI. RUKMINI,

As my elbow needs rest, I am now dictating my letters. You have married a well-known man indeed! For there is only one ‘Bazaj’ family in Banaras, and it is so famous that the mere word ‘Bazaj’ is enough for a letter to reach. Do you know how much that increases your responsibility? Having been married into such a family, you have to shine with the power of your character and enhance the prestige of the family too. May God give you the strength to do so.

What good fortune that you got a medal at the blessed hands of Malaviyaji! If the sitar is not in order, get it repaired. You should not get out of practice. Your cough will have gone by the time you get this letter. It is easy to cure it. For a day or two, take every one or two hours some hot water—just bearably hot—with a small teaspoonful of lemon juice and as much clean salt as you can tolerate. The cough will subside in only one day if it has not become chronic. But you should eat nothing whatever for that day. Take an enema if you do not get a clear motion on that day. The next day you may take milk and sweet grapes or musambis. Write to me from time to time.

Blessings to you both from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 9143

1 On receipt of the letter, Home Department telegraphed to Bombay Government on November 1: “Your letter of 28th October forwarding important letters of Gandhi, dated 18th and 24th October, reached us only yesterday. We are after full consideration recommending to His Majesty’s Government that Gandhi should be allowed complete freedom in regard to visitors and correspondence on matters strictly confined to removal of untouchability and that there should be no restriction on publicity. Conditions suggested by Gandhiji himself about right to have official present at interviews and inspection of correspondence would be accepted, though it might not be necessary to enforce them. Meantime we regard it as of utmost importance that in these conditions Gandhi should not start restriction of his diet. Please
October 24, 1932

The comparison with Banabhatta and Valmiki is not right. One may compare the two types of yarn with “Balakanda” and “Kishkindhakanda,” or better still, with “Kishkindhakanda” and “Uttarkanda”. Fine yarn of 200 counts or more is “Uttarkanda” in the absence of which “Kishkindhakanda” would lose all value. Our forefathers forced the poor to produce Dacca Shabnam to gratify the delicate tastes of people who loved luxury. Let us atone for their sin by spinning as yajna yarn of the finest count and offer it to the Lord. The art in both cases is the same, but in olden times it ministered to selfishness. Let our art help in spreading the spirit of service, it is necessary to revive the old skill in order to popularize khadi among all classes of people. We should prove that what was possible then in the days of slavery can be done in the age of freedom too. Will not the devotee do for God what a libertine would do for a prostitute? This involves neither great trouble nor any expense; for, all that we wish to do is to learn slowly to spin fine yarn in a spirit of self-sacrifice. I have also found from experience that, if we try to spin finer and finer yarn, we shall more likely discover ways of producing better and cheaper khadi. Here we have the practical application of the Gita verse beginning with “Yavanartha udapane”.

If this reasoning appeals to you, I need not explain to you why I put down 20 counts as the minimum for a voluntary spinner to achieve. There is however nothing sacrosanct about this figure; it is not laid down as a rigid rule. It is only a test of the devotion of the voluntary spinner. An institution must lay down some such rule. Drawing out any sort of yarn should not pass for yajna. There ought to be some rule, some standard. If this is admitted, then 20 counts is inform him immediately that his letters only reached Government of India yesterday, that the matter is under closest consideration, and that we hope to communicate decision within two or three days. Meantime suggest that it might complicate situation if he started restriction of diet before we have had opportunity of fully considering his requests.” Government of India, Home Department, Political, File No. 31/95/32.

1 Vinoba Bhave had objected to spinning of fine yarn. He had compared coarse yarn with Valmiki’s Ramayana and fine yarn with Banabhatta’s Kadambari. He had also mentioned the difficulties one had to face in the villages.

2 Literally “morning dew”; kind of muslin.
not a high requirement. A voluntary spinner should not spin as if he was doing forced labour. He should enrich his \textit{yajna} with devotion and art and beauty, identifying himself with the work, that which is offered as sacrifice should be of the purest quality, shouldn’t it?

If I have not been able to explain my point of view, you may write to me again and ask me. I have no doubt in the matter, but I cannot rest at ease till I have satisfied you.

The problem of working in the villages is a very difficult one. We need not worry what the \textit{smriti} has to say regarding onions. We should go by our experience. As medicine, they are good. I have tried them very often. I also dislike their odour and generally do not eat them, though I certainly would if I found it necessary. One may eat them with the last meal of the day, for one meets few people thereafter. If eaten in small quantities as medicine, the odour will probably be less acute. If we cannot get cow’s milk anywhere at all, I would say that the country is heading towards bankruptcy. If a person touring villages carried with him \textit{mawa} of cow’s milk, he would get both ghee and protein in it and, if he should dissolve the powdered \textit{mawa} in hot water, it would then be as good as milk. I do not suggest the addition of sugar or jaggery to the \textit{mawa}, since, in the first place, that is not necessary and, secondly, it may mean indulging the palate. Thus, one can live on \textit{rotlas}¹, \textit{pendas}², onions and tamarind or sour lemon. Public workers should not have their dinner late in the evening. The only things which they may accept from the village people are \textit{rotlas} and onions, or they may cook their own food. Wherever they go, they should boil water for their use and drink only that. This way they will not have to depend on others, and no one will be put to trouble as nothing will have to be specially prepared for them. They should sleep in the open, accepting if available a charpoy to keep themselves, so far as is humanly possible, safe from the danger of snakes etc. I am giving all this advice without experience of course. I know that the facilities which were offered to me in the villages may not be available to others. Follow from this whatever is practicable and desirable, and reject the rest. I have made all these suggestions so that you may be prompted to think more about the problem. I realize very well how exceedingly difficult it is to go into the villages. However,

---

¹ Thick flat bread prepared usually from millet or maize flour
² A sweet made from milk despite the difficulties, we must go. I therefore, very much like the beginning you are making. Every public worker ought to have some knowledge of simple remedies. It is quite easy to acquire it.

[From Gujarati]

486. LETTER TO BEHRAMJI KHAMBHATTA

October 24, 1932

BHAISHRI KHAMBHATTA,

I got your letter. Since the pain in the elbow has returned, I have again started dictating as many of the letters as I can to give rest to my arm. None of us was scared by your letter in which you spoke of “blue brain”. I had not the least idea what “blue brain” was and as I had been lying under a tree when your letter came, I said: “Who knows what ‘blue brain’ is! But living under a tree might cause ‘green brain’, and it would certainly be good to have it.” Thus we had some fun about it, as I showed no symptom at all of what you feared. And we have more cause for fun now that we can understand how you came to have the fear.

There is absolutely no reason why I should not let myself be examined by Bhai Mehta. I would like him to examine me and make some suggestions. Why should not I learn from Mehta, when I am always ready to learn from anybody who has something to give? But the truth is that I would have to obtain special permission to get myself examined by him, and I am really afraid I would not get such permission if I asked for it. I do not ask the permission to spare myself the shock of the refusal. However, I would certainly think about whatever suggestions he sends in writing on the basis of any likely causes that occur to him. Like him, I also believe that disease is lurking somewhere in me, despite all the self-control I exercise, and that the disease expresses itself through the pain in the elbow or otherwise. The bowels certainly are weak. After all I have not been a man of self-control all my life. I lived a life of self-indulgence for a number of years, and who can measure the self-indulgence that must have mixed with self-control after I consciously started to lead such a life?

It would be very good indeed if both of you could go to a quiet place. Do not fight nature.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 7554, Also C.W. 5029. Courtesy: Tehmina Khambhatta
DEAR COL. DOYLE,

I thank you for your letter of 24th inst. I appreciate your assurance about the health of my several friends. But you will perhaps agree that it does not give the same satisfaction as a personal letter. So far as Sjt. N. D. Parikh is concerned, my letter was sent during the fast and you are under promise to get me a letter from him in reply as you were good enough to secure from others. So far as Shrimati Manibehn Patel is concerned, her ordinary letter is overdue. She unfailingly writes either to Sardar Vallabhbhai or to me, and neither of us has heard from her. As for Swami Anand’s letter, I can only rely upon your goodwill. There is no letter due from him in the ordinary course. If, therefore, you do not mind, I would like to know whether I may have the promised reply sent by Sjt. Parikh, the ordinary monthly letter from Shrimati Manibehn Patel and a letter by grace from Swami Anand.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

Government of Bombay, Home Department, I.G.P. File No. 9

488. LETTER TO TEJ BAHADUR SAPRU

DEAR DR. SAPRU,

As I need to give rest to my right hand, I am dictating this letter. Many thanks for your letter. I have almost regained my normal health. I go through the usual daily routine without much difficulty.

We all feel glad that your son has nearly recovered and that his injuries were not so serious as they were reported in the Press.

I hope this letter will find you completely recovered from the effect of influenza. About the other matters I may not write anything just yet.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

Gandhi-Sapru Correspondence. Courtesy: National Library, Calcutta

1 To this Doyle replied the next day that prisoner N. D. Parikh had forfeited his privilege of writing for having joined in a “work-strike”. Miss Patel and Swami Anand had not written.
489. LETTER TO PADMAJA NAIDU

October 25, 1932

MY DEAR PLAYMATE AND SLAVE,

I was shocked to hear from Devdas about the accident. You have to be a good girl and a better slave and listen to the slave-driver. You must go to the hospital and be properly treated there. Do not consider Father and Mother to be so soft as to be shaken to bits by a very simple an necessary act. After all your own bravery is surely derived from them. I therefore expect a reply to this from the hospital. You should do as Devdas says. He is very good and very noble about such services.

May God be with you and keep you.

Love from us all.

SLAVE-DRIVER

[PS.]

This is my effort with the left hand as I want to give rest to the right.

From the original: Padmaja Naidu Papers. Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library

490. LETTER TO MANILAL GANDHI

October 25, 1932

CHI. MANILAL,

I have your letter. When you come, come at twelve. Sushila and Tara can also come. Surendra too. Has he not lived in the Ashram? Moreover, being related to your father-in-law, he is a relation of ours as well. There should not be more than five at a time.

Your tour of Madras, etc., should start soon. The account of the interview with you which has appeared in newspapers does not seem to be correct. If you have not seen it, do so. It has appeared in The Hindu.

I hope you have fully recovered now.

Write to me regularly.

Blessings from

BAPU
Devdas came and saw me today. Sushila, therefore, can come on Tuesday next at the earliest. Devdas will tell the rest. I have sent the papers.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 4799

491. LETTER TO SITALA SAHAY

October 25, 1932

We must not look upon young men and women with suspicion. We must not deliberately tempt them. Here there is no such thing. . . . 1 is careful. He is not a young boy any more; he is about thirty-two. . . . too is a sensible girl and . . . 2 has a commendable habit. He hides nothing from me; if he is a prey to passion he confesses it to me. Their relationship, therefore, causes me no anxiety. I am to some extent acquainted with the Roman Catholic injunctions. Our experiment is unique, it is open to many risks. It is also not in conformity with the prevalent atmosphere in India. But the service we want to render to the women of India and the freedom that we want for them, are not possible without incurring risks. We must proceed fearlessly, cautiously, and with faith in God. And this is why we must be very careful in choosing the Ashram manager. In my judgment we cannot find a purer, more patient, disciplined and balanced person than Narandas. As long as he is there, I need not worry. Still, if you have any misgivings, if anything reaches your ears, do write to me.

[From Hindi]

Mahadevbhai Diary, Vol. II, pp. 177-8

492. LETTER TO VIDYA HINGORANI

October 25, 1932

CHI. VIDYA.

I have your letter. How is Anand? How is your health? Write to me fully. I am acquiring strength gradually and attending to all work.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Hindi. Courtesy: National Archives of India and Anand T. Hingorani

1 These names are omitted in the source.
2 Ibid
493. LETTER TO KRISHANDAS

October 26, 1932

Humanly speaking, it must be evil fate that took you to Sinhergaon. You went there for recuperation and came in for an attack of influenza. But who knows whether it is for your well being that you have had this attack leaving you completely prostrate. And since we are so hopelessly ignorant as to the truth of things, I suppose the Gita teaches us to be equi-minded, no matter what fate overtakes us. So on the one hand we have to learn to be equi-minded, and on the other we have to apply natural remedies within our means in order to get well when we are ill. I shall try therefore not to be anxious about your health but pray that whatever is good for you may happen to you.

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, pp. 178-9

494. LETTER TO MIRABEHN

October 26, 1932

CHI. MIRA,

Your letter comes with unfailing regularity.

You will find many more gems in the Quran. Some of them are penetrating. The quotation about Christianity is of a different order. It hardly does justice to the Christian doctrine. Sonship has no literal meaning. Nor does trinity mean three gods. Here ‘Letter killeth’ applies. Whose translation are you reading?

My weight and health keep steady. I tried bread for two days and then fell back on fruit, milk and a vegetable. I pour my milk over the vegetable which is just now alternatively marrow and pumpkin. These are the only two vegetables to be had just now in the prison garden. And I try to restrict myself just to the vegetables grown there. They seem to suit the body quite well. The monotony does not worry me.

I see with the comparative coolness of weather you are improving. I hope the improvement will be steady.

The seven years seem like a dream. As I recall the terrible scoldings I tremble. And I derive such comfort as is possible from the fact that it was love that was scolding; but I know that there was a 1 Perhaps a slip for “who knows whether it is not for your well-being” better way. As I look back upon the past I realize that my love was impatient. To that extent it was ignorant. Enlightened love is ever patient. Ignorant love is a crude translation of the word moha in Sanskrit. I shall learn to be patient. As I watch myself in little things, I know that I have not yet acquired that measure of patience which true love demands. That patience shall come.

You remember Shanti, the Chinese young man? I had a wire from him during the fast and now I have a penitent letter from him. Poor boy! He could not keep his vows and so kept silent. He is father of many children. He gives a desolate picture of China and is impatient to come back to India by way of penance for the past. His English has improved wonderfully.

Devdas was here yesterday. He is much better. Pyarelal obstinately refuses to take milk and butter and confines himself to oil. Fruit too he will not take. The result is that he has a sore throat. I have asked him not to be so obstinate.

Sivaprasad is better. Sushila is also better. And Ba will be going to the Ashram. She was anxious to see you. But I weaned her.

If Kisen is there, love to you both.

BAPU

[PS.]

This is going in a special envelope which I hope you will get.

From the original: C.W. 6247. Courtesy: Mirabehn. Also G.N. 9713

495. LETTER TO RAMDAS GANDHI

October 26, 1932

Constant reflection will strengthen your resolution. If you analyse each word of the Gita in detail and reflect over its meaning, that itself will give you more than enough strength. That is what I find happens to me. Do you try and understand the Gita in the original Sanskrit? Do you study Sanskrit? Among other books, Tolstoy’s essays. Imitation of Christ is worth reading. You must read an account of the life of the Buddha, and The Light of Asia¹, if you can understand it. It will of course be very good if you read the Ramayana. There is a booklet in Hindi entitled Brahmachayra which is very good. If you wish to read it, I will get it from the Ashram and send it to you. There is a collection of articles by me entitled Nitinashne Marge, which also is worth reading. For the present, this reading list is enough. Instead of worrying how you will be able to carry out your resolution, tell yourself that you are bound to succeed in carrying it out and that God will help you. Fix this thought firmly in your mind and keep yourself absorbed in your work. Do not be impatient even in reading. If you do not follow anything, read it over again. It does not matter if this takes more time. Even if you do not remember what you read, do not brood; always remain cheerful. Do not worry however slow your progress is. One day you will find everything easy. Do not do anything at the cost of your health. Put only as much burden on your mind as it can bear.

¹ By Sir Edwin Arnold

THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI

Your eagerness about the children is right. But you need not worry about them right now. Just now it is necessary that they should improve in health and become very strong. For that we require Nimu’s co-operation. I will write to her about them. Recently, I have been getting her letters fairly regularly. You also should write to her often. If their bodies become strong and if they grow up in a healthy atmosphere, they will automatically become what you want them to become. You are of course right when you say that you two should exercise self-control at least for their sake. What pure education means, how it can be imparted and what kind of education will suit the present age, all this requires careful thinking. But there is plenty of time for that. You may ask me any questions which occur to you concerning these problems. If you wish, I will send you a short note which may help you.

I suppose Surendra is busily occupied with his shoemaking. Tell him that God may be found even in shoes and the leather of dead cattle. The leather for soles which I recently received was excellent. I see in it God in a beautiful form. He is not to be found only in scriptures. Ask Surendra to explain to you the story of Tuladhar, and let him also reflect again over its meaning. It is not necessary to search for Him in inaccessible places. We carry Him under our arm, but, forgetting that, we go about the whole town looking for Him. When at last we remember that He is in our arm, we weep and laugh over our foolishness.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhai ni Diary, Vol. II, pp. 179-80

1 “Towards Moral Bankruptcy”
496. LETTER TO DAHYABHAI PATEL

October 26, 1932

CHI. DAHYABHAL.

Probably you will now get regular letters from Manibehn also. That means you will get more literature to read or have read out to you. And as you are allowed to do more reading, the time is drawing near when you will also be permitted to leave the bed. But don’t be impatient for that. I am sure you know that it is possible for one to serve even from the sick-bed.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI DAHYABHAI PATEL
RAM NIVAS
PAREKH STREET, BOMBAY-4

[From Gujarati]

Bapnuna Patro—4: Manibehn Patelne, p. 149

---

497. LETTER TO MATHURADAS PURUSHOTTAM

October 26, 1932

CHI. MATHURADAS.

This time I was waiting for a letter from you every day and wondering why there was none, when I got it. You have caught the point regarding the testing of yarn. An understanding of such practical aspects saves us much time. Some of the methods followed by the mills are devised with a purely commercial aim and some others to help in mass production. These methods are of no use to us in our rural industry, though some of them do deserve to be adopted by us too. We have to use our discrimination and judge which ones we should adopt. I suggest that Mahadev’s fine yarn may be passed through doubling before weaving, if you feel that it is unfit for weaving only because of its lack of strength. If you think, however that we do not have the type of rach and heddles required to weave such fine yarn, we should manufacture them. Perhaps Ramji’s experience may not help us much in this matter as he may not have the intelligence necessary for dealing with yarn of such fine count. To get this yarn woven, you should approach other skilled workers in Ahmedabad who weave very fine cloth. Again, it is likely that the method for testing the strength of very fine yarn is a different one, and the tools for that purpose and also the knocker required for weaving fine yarn must be especially delicate so that there is the least possible strain on the yarn. The method of starching fine yarn must also be different. It is likely, however, that the skilled weavers in Ahmedabad weave only fine silk yarn and do not know enough about very fine cotton yarn. If that is so, we should procure the necessary tools from Andhradesha or Bengal where they weave very fine yarn, or we may send to them a specimen of our yarn and inquire about the method of weaving it. Have you seen the Andhra weavers at work? Did you observe the starching and other processes which they demonstrated at our exhibitions? But I think that after reading what I have written you yourself will be able to find a better solution. We must acquire the skill to weave our finest yarn ourselves in the Ashram. You will perhaps be able to see from all this that only voluntary spinners can fully master all aspects of the art of spinning and that, when we have mastered it, it will be quite easy for us to produce ordinary khadi of the best possible quality. You will also see, if you cast a glance at other crafts and skills, that when the people themselves had not learnt the required skill the craft remained poor, and that it was only amateurs who became experts in it. It is because our people neglected hand-spinning that the country lost a cottage industry which gave work to millions in their homes. Now the craft can be revived as an occupation only if we do hard tapascharya and cultivate the art once again in a spirit of yajna. Looking at the matter from this point of view, I was very happy that you had finally decided to cling to your work and overcome your restlessness.

---

1 Son of Vallabhbhai Patel

Keshu’s carding-bow will of course be useful. As it cannot be installed in a village home, the old carding-bow will remain as the old spinning-wheel has remained. The best thing to do is to make improvements in it, and I believe that such improvements are possible. Mirabehn has been working fairly hard with that aim. She has been carding in jail too, and has made some improvements. You are quite right in applying yourself to that task.

Your test report on the yarn spun by both of us will help us very much. I saw the justice of most of your criticism. I myself have observed the defects which you have pointed out, but I ignore them sometimes when I am tired. I often observe that the yarn is rough because of an occasional bad sliver or because of uneven tension.
when spinning. Instead of cutting off and taking out that part, I let it pass. I do know that this will mean a lot of trouble for the weaver, and that, therefore, by letting that yarn remain I also commit violence. However, while I am actually spinning, partly through lack of vigilance at the time, partly through greed, partly through lethargy and partly through fatigue I may ignore defects in the yarn. But now that I have received your criticism, I know that the quality of my yarn will automatically improve. If, therefore, I receive further criticism when the yarn is woven, it will certainly help both Mahadev and me, for both of us wish to spin yarn of the finest count and of the finest quality that we can. As we cannot get here other yarn for comparison, some defects will of course remain; but we will keep up our efforts to reach as high a standard as possible.

I hope you are keeping good health. I don’t write anything about Meghaji.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 3757

498. LETTER TO VASANTLAL MORARKA

October 26, 1932

Concentration during prayers is attainable by practice alone. When one starts thinking during prayer time that prayer is even more necessary for the spirit than is food for the body, one starts enjoying the prayers after a few days. If one holds that forgetting Ramanama is the greatest sorrow, chanting the name becomes a regular habit. Holding untruth as the greatest sin and renouncing any temporary gain accruing from it will make us naturally love truth.

[From Hindi]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 178
499. LETTER TO S. D. SATAVLEKAR

October 26, 1932

BHAISHRI SATAVLEKAR,

I had been awaiting your letter when it came. I was apprehending some trouble. Your letter makes it clear¹. We all hope that your son will speedily recover his strength and so will you. I have often noticed that dentists make many mistakes and the patients have to suffer. Thanks for the exhaustive reply to the article by Mahendra Mishra that you have sent in spite of your poor health². I shall preserve it and study it with care. Sardar’s study of Sanskrit is progressing well and many learners are using the second set of the Sanskrit Readers sent by you.

Yours,

MOHANDAS

From a photostat of the Hindi: C.W. 4767. Courtesy: S. D. Satavlekar

500. LETTER TO RAMNATH ‘SUMAN’

October 26, 1932

Individual prayer alone can be the basis of congregational prayer. My emphasis on the latter does not at all mean that I attach greater importance to it. Since we are not used to congregational prayer, I have attempted to show the need for it. What you can experience in seclusion is certainly difficult, if not impossible, to experience in a group. I have also noticed that some people cannot pray except in a group. For such people individual prayer is essential. I would also admit that one can do without congregational prayer but certainly not without individual prayer.

[From Hindi]

Mahadevbhai Diary, Vol II, p. 178

¹ The addressee in his letter of October 20 had informed Gandhiji that his son had been ill with typhoid and that he had been having trouble with a tooth which a dentist had made worse.

² Mahendra Mishra in his article had contended that meat-eating was a common practice in Vedic times and the addressee had refuted the contention, citing profuse references.
501. LETTER TO HARISINGH GAUR

October 27, 1932

I confess that I do not feel the same afflatus as you do, for I do not share the view that you hold about the Brahminical influence. Whilst the Brahmins have undoubtedly a great deal to answer for, I am sure that they have been much more sinned against than sinning. Every religion has produced its own Brahmins. That they have not been known as such makes no difference. Our Brahmins would, I think compare favourably with the others. At the same time I am not in love with the caste system with all its ignorant restrictions. I do believe in varnasrama, without the restrictions superimposed upon it about inter-dining and intermarriage and the idea of superiority and inferiority. I believe with Vivekananda that Shankara never drove Buddhism from India for he was himself a prachchhanna Buddha. He merely rid it of the bad things that were creeping into it, and prevented its alienation from Hinduism. In my opinion nowhere has the influence of the teaching of Buddha been more abiding than in India. Nevertheless I would go with you the whole distance in saying that we need again a very thorough cleansing.

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 181

502. LETTER TO TARA R. MODI

October 27, 1932

CHI. TARA,

If I got your letter, it is unlikely that I did not reply to it. If you wrote to me directly, it is possible that your letter was lost on the way. If you sent it with the Ashram post, I would certainly remember receiving it. If you had asked me any special questions, please send them again. However, you should be able to get much from my numerous letters and articles.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 4174. Also C.W. 1673. Courtesy: Ramniklal Modi

1 The addressee had said that Shankaracharya, by making the supremacy of Brahmins the basis of Hinduism, had rendered it prone to many attacks, and contended that Buddhism was Hinduism in its purity. He had enclosed a book of his on Buddhism.

2 Disguised
503. LETTER TO VASUMATI PANDIT

October 27, 1932

CHI. VASUMATI,

I got your letter.

It is a mark of intellectual laziness to believe that whoever can give an account of every moment of his life can become a mahatma. There are in the West many hard-working men and women who can give an account of every moment of their lives, but they are not fortunate enough to have become mahatmas. Under the pretext that only a mahatma can do it, you cannot escape your duty to give an account of every moment. Every one of us should from the habit of keeping such an account. And no great credit should be given for it either.

The phrase, 'one’s duty however defective 'should not be interpreted to mean a duty which violates morality. 'Defective' here means what seems to be inferior. According to the Gita all duties have equal value, for Mother Gita attaches importance only to people’s hearts and, therefore, her standards are bound to be faultless. For example, if a grain-dealer who feels that his occupation is inferior to a clerk’s, gives up his trade and tries to become a clerk, wouldn’t he be a loser both ways? In the same way, if Titus, who looks after the dairy, leaves the cows in order to serve Antyajas because Antyaja service has become fashionable just now, he will be said to have given up his duty and acted contrary to the teaching of the Gita. Similarly, if you women who have bound yourselves by vows to do certain work, leave it and take up some other work of service, you will be guilty of forsaking your duty. Is this quite clear?

I see nothing wrong in a person going out of the Ashram to improve his health and returning to it after it has improved. Don’t I myself ask many to do so? But anybody who vows not to return to the Ashram and keeps the vow, as Gangadevi did, deserves all honour. Only a rare person can do that, and only if he has accepted the idea with his whole heart. Such a person, even if he or she has to be looked after by others, does great service by setting an example of immense patience and non-attachment to life. Moreover, our aspiration is to live as simply as poor people do. The latter, even when they suffer extreme pain through some disease, cannot leave either their home or their village. They remain satisfied with whatever their friends and relations can do for them and some do not get even that much service. We should bow in reverence to a person who, being a man of knowledge, voluntarily suffers with similar patience. He serves the people even by setting an example of such patience. That is why I had suggested to Punjabhai that it would be good both for him and for the Ashram if he died in it, nursed by the inmates. And for the same reason, I told Kishorelal that he should not mind having to be looked after by other people in the Ashram, for a man like him served the Ashram by his mere presence. I have only stated a principle in my letter to Narandas. You need not think much about it. If anybody is inspired by that highest sense of dharma, let him take such a step. You should do only what you can.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: S.N. 9335. Also C.W. 581. Courtesy: Vasumati Pandit

504. LETTER TO LILAVATI ASAR

YERAVDA MANDIR,
October 27, 1932

CHI. LILAVATI,

I have your letter. I wrote what I wrote to satisfy you, but I see that you are not satisfied. My intention in writing that you were free was that nobody could force you, but you could do as you wished. No other meaning was implied. I have actually said that I have trust in you and that ultimately you will attain stability. There have been numerous complaints. They are all about your impatience, your indecision and your anger. But I have not heeded them. I did not mean to suggest that you had no respect for Narandas. But my words can be interpreted to suggest that in spite of your respect for Narandas you are unable to follow his instructions. And if you are unable to do so, I see nothing wrong in your considering yourself free. I wish you would give up your craving for a bicycle. You should do whatever you can without it and be content.

I have forgotten what clarification you wanted in regard to untouchability. The other question can be answered from here itself.

BAPU

From the Gujarati original: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

505. LETTER TO SHANKARRAO GHATGE

October 27, 1932

The atman, as everyone will agree, is not destroyed with the body. Similarly the atman exists prior to the birth of the body. If we accept this, we have no reason to believe that the atman will not be reborn in a body or that it did not occupy a body in the past. But to hold that the atman will necessarily inhabit a form because it is inhabiting one at present would be merely falling in with the popular belief.

[From Hindi]
Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 182

506. LETTER TO AMTUSSALAAM

October 27, 1932

DEAR DAUGHTER AMTUSSALAAM,

It is good that you are learning Hindi. You must finish whatever you take up. I do not see any need for observing a weekly fast. But it is another thing if fasting is necessary for health. You may take my word in all this. Your good lies in doing with all sincerity whatever work Narandas may assign to you. Give up worrying about Kudsia. Let Narandas do what is his duty. Express your opinion if he consults you. Give me the news of Dr. Sharma. What was decided about his coming to the Ashram? Do you find any difficulty in reading this?

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Urdu: G.N. 261
507. TELEGRAM TO MANIBEHN PATEL

October 28, 1932

MANIBEHN PATEL
PRISONER, BELGAUM JAIL

HOPE YOU ARE NOT UPSET BY GRANDMOTHER’S DEATH WHICH ANYONE WOULD ENVY. WHY NO LETTER FROM YOU LONG TIME.

Love

BAPU

[From Gujarati]
Bapuna patro—4: Manibehn Pateline, p. 89

508. LETTER TO PRINCESS EFY ARISTARCHI

October 28, 1932

I have almost regained my normal health and am pursuing my normal activities without much strain being felt. Please therefore entertain no anxiety about me. What the future has in store one does not know, and one is not permitted to pry into it. God will take care of the future if we would mind the present.

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 184

509. LETTER TO THE SECRETARY, CHILDREN’S ASSOCIATION, SCOTLAND

October 28, 1932

I have always prized the blessings of children, because they are generally so innocent. Don’t you know that there is no such thing as soul-force without God behind it? Therefore the distinction that you have made is wrong. Anyway I have no knowledge of any person believing in the existence of the soul and denying God.

I like very much the idea of your praying for the peace and prosperity not only of your own land, but of the whole world.

Personally I do not believe in patriotism that excludes the welfare of other countries than one’s own. I therefore wish you every success.

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 183

1 The original English text is not available

THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
510. LETTER TO HENRY S. SALT

October 28, 1932

I thank you for your letter. May I say in all humility that one rarely finds people outside India recognizing non-human beings as fellow beings. Millennium will have come when mankind generally recognizes and acts up to this grand truth.

Thank you.

With my best regards to you and Mrs. Salt,

Yours sincerely,

M. K. G.

From a photostat: S.N. 18579

511. LETTER TO PARASRAM MEHROTRA

October 28, 1932

CHI. PARASRAM,

No parallel can be drawn at all between what was said during the conversation with Acharya Gidwani and the question of inter-dining with Harijans. Those who arrange such dinners have already goodwill in their hearts for the latter. Hence the students who join such dinners for sharing in their pleasure cannot be compared with them. And in any case the Harijans cannot be compared with such students who are attracted to the parties by the thought of enjoyment, for what we do for Harijans cannot be described as temptation held out to them. Those who do prayaschitta do it not as a temptation to anybody but for self-purification. Is not all this as clear as daylight? Whether or not mixed dinner parties are proper is a separate issue. In certain circumstances such a party may be proper and in certain other circumstances it may not be so. Thus it is entirely a question of the circumstances of each case.

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 7510. Also C.W. 4987. Courtesy: Parasram Mehrotra

1 An octogenarian, Salt had met Gandhiji in London in November 1931. On October 8, 1932, he had written: “The subject under special consideration, when I saw you in London, was vegetarianism; and I feel as strongly as ever that food-reform, like socialism, has an essential part to play in the liberation of mankind. I cannot see how there can be any real and full recognition of kinship, as long as men continue either to cheat or to eat, their fellow-beings!”
512. LETTER TO GULAM RASUL QURESHI

October 28, 1932

CHI. QURESHI,

I have your beautifully written letter but it gives no news about you or Amina. You should give that information in the next letter. There should be no trace of the piles trouble left. It is very necessary, so long as the pain persists, to be very careful about food. Those who get operated upon for piles some times make the serious mistake of thinking that after the operation they can eat anything they like. It is not so at all. Those afflicted with piles cannot eat even simple food. After the piles have been removed they can eat such food. But those who after the operation eat heavy food or food which they cannot digest or hot foods like chillies and other spices invariably have a relapse. And for two or three months after the operation, the greatest care has to be exercised. Amina also should pay careful attention to what I have written. I wish of get much service from both of you. I have built castles of hope on you, but they will come down if you two do not keep good health.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C. W. 10812. Courtesy: Gulam Rasul Qureshi

513. LETTER TO TARAMATI MATHURADAS TRIKUMJI

YERAVDA MANDIR,
Diwali, October 28, 1932

CHI. TARAMATI,

It was very good of you to have looked Ba up. Meet Manilal and Sushila. I have received a letter from Mathuradas today. I gather from it that he is keeping good health. He feels light in the body because he has lost weight, which is now 143 lb. Now the doctor is giving him 1 oz. of olive oil every day, to stabilize and the weight. Mathuradas has received today the packet containing the books, chappals, etc., that you had sent to him. He says that he was happy to see that your letter this time did not reflect sorrow and despair. It should always be so. God has granted you happiness in every way.
But even if there is unhappiness, it should not be taken as such. We are all doing well. May the coming year bring you health and happiness and may you render more and more service day after day. You must be aware that now there are 11 weeks for the release of Mathuradas.

Blessings from

BAPU

SMT. TARAMATI MATHURADAS TRIKUMJI
21 MINT ROAD
FORT, BOMBAY

From the Gujarati original: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

514. MESSAGE TO ARYA SAMAJ

[Before October 29, 1932]

I cannot imagine a more effective means of honouring the memory of the great Swami Dayanand than by every Arya Samajist devoting his best energies to the cause of the Harijans (so-called depressed classes) during this wave of reform.

The Hindu, 31-10-1932

515. A LETTER

October 29, 1932

Your objection would be sound if ‘Harijan’ was to be used for all time to denote ‘untouchable’ brethren, but whilst they have to be distinguished, I felt that ‘untouchables’ or its vernacular equivalent was no longer equivalent.

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 185

---

1 The Report in the source is dated October 29.
2 The addressee, a Bengali gentleman not identified by name, had said that Gandhiji appeared to perpetuate the name ‘Harijan’ for untouchables.
516. LETTER TO ASHRAM BOYS AND GIRLS

October 29, 1932

Dear Boys and Girls,

I very much liked your programme of the 20th. I indeed feel tempted to taste the food cooked by you, both boys and girls, but I don’t think you would let me, would you? You will get this letter after the New Year’s day. It is my wish and my blessing to you that during the coming year all of you may keep excellent health, do sincere work and that your conduct may become more upright day by day.

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./II

517. LETTER TO GAJANAN V. KHARE

October 29, 1932

Chi. Gajanana,

I got the paintings sent by you. None of us here is an expert on painting. But all three of us liked both the paintings. We liked the painting of Rama and Hanuman more than the other. Sardar was pleased most. On one of them is written your name, and on the other the name is “Bhau”. If the second painting is not by you, who is “Bhau”? I take it they are both by you. Are they both original or copies? Give me any other information that may be relevant.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 309. Courtesy: Lakshmibehn N. Khare

518. A LETTER

October 29, 1932

If you are sure in your mind that you will never marry again, you need not marry now. If, however, deep in your heart you desire to marry, you should yield to your mother’s wish. The way out of the problem created by the number of eligible young men in your community being smaller than that of girls is to marry the girls outside the community. The division into castes and clans has nothing to do with dharma. It is true that it is an age-old tradition among the Hindus but traditions change with time. I have replied to your questions because your letter was so very sincere. May your love of dharma grow during the year which has commenced.

1 The addressee was a goldsmith.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 186

519. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

Padavo [October 30]¹ 1932

CHI. NARANDAS,

This time I got your packet on Tuesday. By the time you get this letter, I am sure Mohan will be on his feet again. I don’t suppose you read Balbhadra’s² long letter. Pass on my letter to him without reading it, since that is his wish. It is desirable that we should respect children’s wishes in such matters. Send for him and tell him that, as suggested by me, the letter is given to him without being read. That will make him happy. He had mentioned two things in his letter. One, that he was very much afraid of his father, and two, that every time he did something wrong you and Prema threatened to send him away to his father. The complaint seemed exaggerated to me. But he is an obstinate child and likely to get on one’s nerves. I would not, therefore, be surprised if he had really been scolded in that manner. The child has no one to care for him. And, moreover, he is dull-witted, so that everybody makes fun of him. Not being able to realize his foolishness, he is upset when people make fun of him. Such children deserve great pity. Talk to him casually and find out all this from him and give what sympathy you can. If his fear of us, whether or not he has reason for such fear, leaves him, the fear of his father also will not remain much longer. At present he is very much afraid that, if he is sent away from the Ashram, he will have to go to his father. One more complaint which he makes is that students do not now enjoy the freedom which they formerly had. I don’t think there is any truth in this complaint, and I have told him so in my letter. However, you may think about the matter if there is any element of ¹ The source has October 29, Padavo, which however corresponded to October 30.

² A student of the Ashram school truth in it.

I have a very angry letter from Ratilal. He says in it that you got very angry with him, insulted him, and so forth. Champa also has joined in the complaint. I do not understand why she is angry with you. I understand what you say in regard to money. I have a letter from Mahavir in which he says he will return to the Ashram in a few days, and also that he has asked for your permission to come and see me on his way to Ahmedabad. On my part, I have asked him to give up the idea. For one thing, it is still uncertain whether I shall start seeing visitors again. And a visit here would mean an unnecessary expense of about thirty rupees. How can it be justified?

I think it would be desirable if Navin goes to Almora as soon as he can. In my letter\(^1\) to Mathuradas, I have written at length about spinning fine yarn. Read that letter. Did you find Tilakam’s health very much improved when he returned there? What is his diet at present? I think Mirabehn’s diet will suit him. His body is built on non-vegetarian diet. I have often observed that persons who have been used to non-vegetarian diet cannot preserve strength on pulses. But they can live on milk, rotli, green vegetables and sour lemons. The reason is this. Non-vegetarians do not require much starch. When they give up flesh, they eat plenty of starch to satisfy their hunger and a good quantity of pulses to provide nourishment to the tissues. Naturally they cannot digest all this food and in consequence fall ill. If, when giving up non-vegetarian food, such persons take milk in sufficient quantity, it would supply them the nourishment which they previously got from flesh. And their hunger would be satisfied by whole-flour bread. The bran contained in surch bread and the natural water of the green vegetables would help them to keep their bowels clean. This is the theory. Vegetarian diet agreed with Mirabehn immediately because I did not permit her to eat pulses at all. Of course her firm determination also was an important factor. She had resolved, from the very day she came into contact with me through letters, that she would not eat non-vegetarian food even if she died without it. But her resolution and faith are unusual.

I have written to Jamna a long sermon on the primus stove. Ask the other women also to read it, and then they may do as they like. Their renouncing the use of the primus stove will benefit them only if they do so willingly.

\(^1\) Vide “Letter to Mathuradas Purushottam”, 26-10-1932.

Read my letter to Jethalal. I need not write more about the subject here. That letter contains the answers to your questions. I hope Purushottam’s health has not deteriorated after his arrival there.

You will notice that I have dictated quite a large number of the letters this time. The right elbow is in the same condition now as the left was. I may say that I took too much freedom in writing letters after the last fast. Besides the letters to people in the Ashram, I wrote a great number of other letters too. Moreover, I wrote every day. Add to that spinning for two and a half hours. The exertion proved too much. I, therefore, decided to spare the right hand from writing work as much as possible. As a result, the condition of the elbow is a little better now. But you need not worry at all. At this age, I cannot expect to regain lost fat and tissue very soon. In six days the body had thinned visibly. It cannot become as it was before the fast in a month. There is no reason in this to feel concerned. I can do all ordinary work as usual. If I have been writing for the whole life, there is nothing wrong in my giving a long rest to the hand, and no cause whatever to feel surprised or concerned. There is certainly no disease in the hand. It does not pain when I do not work with it. I do not feel the pain even when I am working but afterwards as it starts paining I feel that that part is exhausted. Hence, as a measure of precaution, I am giving rest to it.

All the inmates have my blessings for the New Year as a matter of course. Even children who can understand things know very well now what I expect from the Ashram. It is my hope that all the inmates, grown-ups and children, may acquire the strength of character and devotion to service which would fulfil my expectations and my prayer to God that He may grant such strength to you all.

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./I. Also C.W. 8262. Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi
520. LETTER TO PREMLILA THACKERSEY

Padavo, 1989 [October 30, 1932]

DEAR SISTER,

I am sure you got the letter which I wrote to you. And still it seems you could not restrain yourself on the Diwali day. I got your loving gift. The containers were returned. I hope you will not take any trouble now. I will not fail to write to you when I need anything.

All of us wish and pray that the New Year may bring you prosperity and happiness, that your aspirations may be fulfilled and your devotion to service may grow stronger.

Blessings from

MOHANDAS

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 4826. Courtesy: Premlila Thackersey

521. LETTER TO SHANKAR¹

October 30, 1932

I hope that the New Year will give you a larger spirit of sacrifice, greater steadiness of purpose and a more vivid appreciation of self-restraint.

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 186

522. A LETTER²

October 30, 1932

You have asked me for my opinion about occult sciences. I am not in love with them. The book of life is open to the simplest minds and it should be so. There is nothing occult in God’s plan. Anyway the mysterious and the occult have never made any appeal to me. Truth has no secrets and Truth is God.

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 188

¹ Presumably S. Shankar, Joint Secretary of the Harijan Seva Sangh, Madras

² The addressee, an English woman living in Switzerland, had asked Gandhiji what he thought of occult sciences.
Oct. 30, 1932

I don’t think that I can lay down rules for indefinite fasting which would satisfy you. I might say only this. A fast should be characterized by perfect truth and non-violence, and should be undertaken only upon the prompting of one’s inner voice and not in blind imitation of somebody. One should never undertake a fast for a selfish end; the aim behind a fast should always be common good. A fast should never be undertaken for any object which is inspired by ill will towards somebody. But what is inner voice? Can everybody claim it? These are important questions. Of course the inner voice speaks to everybody; but he whose ear has not learnt to recognize and listen to the inner voice will not be able to hear it, just as a deaf person cannot hear even the sweetest music. The ears of one who lacks self-control cannot recognize the true inner voice. Only that person will be fit to recognize it who possesses the characteristics of the sthitaprajna given in Ch. II of the Gita, or of the devotee in Ch. XII, or of the gunatita in Ch. XIV or the one in whom all the three gunas blend. The question put by Sundaram is improper. But now that he has asked it, I ought to say that, according to me, on the whole the Hindu religion is “nearest to the truth”. But at the same time I admit unhesitatingly that in holding this view I may be making a mistake through ignorance or partiality. The mistake, if any, is pardonable and one which has its use, because, in the absence of all ignorance and partiality it would be impossible for any man to cling to his religion, and he would, and ought to, embrace another religion in which he saw more of truth. Call it God’s maya or know it by any other name you choose, but all human beings have this weakness. And yet, in spite of such attachment to one’s own religion, one ought to hold all religions in equal regard. In other words, I should, as a Hindu, accept it as natural for a Christian to believe that Christianity is nearer to the truth and for a Muslim to believe that about Islam, and also that it is necessary for them to do so if they are to follow their respective religions sincerely. I ought to bear them no ill will for such a belief, nor should I regard their belief as mistaken. I hope that what I have said will be clear to Bhai Sundaram and to all of you. Probably this view of mine about equality towards all religions is a new idea. If 1 He had asked which religion, in Gandhiji’s view, was nearest to the truth.

---

other people also have thought about the matter along similar lines, I am not aware of the fact. For me at any rate, the idea is original and it has given me the purest joy. My view enables me to cling to Hinduism and to hold other religions in reverence at the same time, and adopt from them without hesitation whatever is good in them. I owe this discovery to non-violence.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 186-7

524. LETTER TO GULAB

October 30, 1932

CHI. GULAB,

You should improve your handwriting. You say that your weight is 169 pounds. But that cannot be. Let me know the correct figure. If you take pains over learning carding, you will succeed.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 1728

525. LETTER TO PREMABEHN KANTAK

October 30, 1932

CHI. PREMA,

I got your letter. What you write about Krishnan Nair is correct. Did you have any talk with him before he left with Rambhau? He is misusing his intelligence. I should be glad if he could be cured of this tendency.

You seem to have quite a large number of girls on your hands now. May God give you the strength to manage them all, i.e., purify them with your love and keep them ever pure.

Take care of Lilavati. She is an unhappy girl.

You may try gum pak, if you wish. Personally I am afraid that you will not even be able to digest it. What you need is oil massage and Kuhne bath. The whole back should be massaged.

How nice it would be if you had buried your anger with the year that has ended.

1 A tonic preparation
Don’t worry if there is no agreement about the use of the Ashram money. A solution will come by and by. It will come at any rate when one day you take the management of the Ashram in your own hands.

Greet the plants and the flowers on my behalf, and give them some hope. Ask them to give us beauty and fragrance like theirs, their single-minded devotion and their firmness, their humility, equimindedness and innocence, and thus demonstrate their friendliness.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10308. Also C.W. 6747. Courtesy: Premabehn Kantak

526. LETTER TO KULKARNI

October 30, 1932

Vidya means knowledge and avidya means activity. The meanings of sambhooti and asambhooti are related to the meanings vidya and avidya. Hence asambhooti means the body and sambhooti means the self. I interpret the expressions thus for my own satisfaction. I feel that this interpretation explains the meaning of the Ishopanishad easily and satisfactorily.

[From Gujarati]
Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 188

527. LETTER TO NARMADABEHN RANA

October 30, 1932

CHI. NARMADA,

I have not neglected to reply to a single letter of yours. Nor is there any possibility of a letter having got lost. Your handwriting has improved a little. Make the letters slightly bigger and write slowly. If you are patient, you will make quite good progress in learning. You should write in every letter what you learnt during the week. You

1 The correspondent had asked Gandhiji to explain the meaning of vidya, avidya, sambhooti and asambhooti in verses 11 and 12 of the Ishopanishad. should go through a letter again to see that the conjunct letters are correctly written.

Does Shambhubhai write to you? Or anybody from home?

BAPU

From Gujarati: C.W. 2765. Courtesy: Ramanarayan N. Pathak

528. LETTER TO SULOCHANA

October 30, 1932

CHI. SULOCHANA.

Your handwriting is good, but you don’t write much in your letters. You can certainly describe what you did during the past week.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 1742

529. LETTER TO MATHURADAS TRIKUMJI

October 30, 1932

You have still a long life before you. May all your aspirations and your ambition to serve be fulfilled. May you be a true representative of the ideals of truth and non-violence.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 188

530. A LETTER

October 30, 1932

There is no uniformity of policy in public institutions because the workers lack charity and the men at the head do not have perfect humility. Generally no difficulty is experienced in an institution in which the head is a man of self-control. From these facts, we can deduce one rule at any rate, namely, that the greater the self-control on the part of the workers the greater the chances of unity in that institution will be.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 188
531. TELEGRAM TO MANIBEHN PATEL

October 31, 1932

MANIBEHN PATEL
PRISONER, BELGAUM JAIL

GRANDMOTHER DIED PEACEFULLY WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON KARAMSAD AFTER FOUR HOUR ILLNESS. HOPE LETTER GIVING DETAILS SENT FRIDAY DELIVERED. WE ARE ALL WELL. LOVE.¹

BAPU

[From Gujarati]

Bapuna Patro—4: Manibehn Patelne, p. 89

532. LETTER TO M. G. BHANDARI

October 31, 1932

DEAR MAJOR BHANDARI,

As the Government have not granted the relief sought in my letter to Col. Doyle of the 24th inst. and unless it comes in the course of the day, the progressive non-co-operation adumbrated in that letter will commence from tomorrow.

As stated in that letter, I shall begin by denying myself the special food issued to me. Will you kindly therefore have the goat’s milk stopped as from tomorrow? Besides this, just now I am only drawing sour limes and vegetables in common with Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel and sometimes taking a little brown bread from Sjt. Mahadev Desai’s ration. Sardar Vallabhbhai sends for the limes and vegetables and I have asked him not to send for my portion. In lieu of this, I shall take, for the time being and if they are issued to me, the morning kanjī and the noon and the afternoon bhakri out of the ‘C’ class rations. I may not take anything else from the ‘C’ class rations, and I can only take during any twenty-four hours five ingredients besides salt, soda and water. The vegetables and dholl generally issued to ‘C’ class prisoners contain more than three or four ingredients. These therefore I may not take. I do not propose to take anything specially prepared for special ‘C’ class prisoners².

¹ The original English text of the telegram is not available.
² On receiving this letter, Mahadev Desai says, Major Bhandari saw Gandhiji and tried to dissuade him saying that by refusing food he was used to he would become weak and might even get dysentery. For Gandhiji’s reply, vide the following item.
As a large amount of correspondence on untouchability, some of which is very important, has accumulated, and requires answering with a view to publication, I think that it is incumbent upon Government either to publish my correspondence with Government on the matter or to inform the public, in any other manner Government may choose, of my request and their refusal to accede to it.

It is needless to add that I have scrupulously avoided, either directly or indirectly, the leakage of any information about the correspondence.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat: G.N. 3855. Also Bombay Secret Abstracts, Home Department, Special Branch, File No. 800(40)(4), Pt. I, p. 245

533. LETTER TO M. G. BHANDARI

October 31, 1932

I do not want to have dysentery, but if I get it I should go through it. But at the slightest sign of it I shall stop all food. The non-co-operation has to be progressive. This course I have adopted to cause the Government the least possible inconvenience. I cannot live and not work for the removal of untouchability. But if the Government would that I died rather than I lived to work for removal of untouchability I cannot help it.

534. LETTER TO C. K. NAMBIAR

October 31, 1932

MY DEAR NAMBIAR,

I have read your letter from top to bottom. I think that you are needlessly suspicious and therefore harsh in your judgment. Whilst Press propaganda has a value, substantial results are only attainable

1 The addressee’s name is supplied from the G.N. register. through solid, silent, persistent work. Those who realize this will not deplore absence of notice of their work in the Press.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat: G. N. 148

535. A LETTER

October 31, 1932

I hope you will fulfil your promise never again to tell lies or steal. You would not like people to deceive you or steal your things. Therefore you do not expect that other people would like you to deceive them or to steal their things.

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 191

536. LETTER TO HARJIVAN KOTAK

October 31, 1932

It is your moral duty to tell him about your private life too. Surely you do believe that impurity even in private life does harm to one’s work. Don’t argue that others who are impure in their private lives have succeeded in business, etc. It is not for us to judge whether they have succeeded or not. We make no distinction between private life, public life or business activities. All our activities are for self-purification and hence any impurity in us our will obstruct progress at every step.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 190

---

1 The addressee, a little girl, is not identified in the source.
2 Manager of Srinagar Khadi Centre
3 Shankerlal Banker
537. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA

October 31, 1932

Bhai Krishnachandra,

Your letter. Who can foresee the future? The predictions of astrologers are not gospel truth. One should pay no attention to the words of astrologers. The scripture wherein fate is discussed enjoins brahmacharya too. Therefore whatever be our fate our duty is to make full effort. I mentioned Ch. XV by mistake. I should have said Ch. VIII, verse 11. The word daива in Ch. XVIII implies prarabdha.

The wheel one can ply on one’s own. There is adequate literature on the subject. The book¹ by Richard Gregg and the one² by Puntambekar and Varadachari both are worth reading. They are available from the Bombay Navajivan Karyalaya, Princess Street, Bombay 2. Of course you have my blessings on the vow of brahmacharya.

Blessings from

Mohanadas

From a photostat of the Hindi: S.G. 41

538. A LETTER

October 31, 1932

Patients observe silence on account of their suffering, some orators observe it to give rest to their throats and some observe it when in a mood for introspection. All three can benefit each in his own way. The introspective persons will, ordinarily, spend the day in seclusion, fast or have a light meal. If necessary they will study writings inducing calm thoughts. Observing silence for its own sake does little good and may cause harm. The seeker after truth should have a well-defined purpose behind every action he takes.

[From Hindi]

¹ Vide “Letter to Krishnachandra”, 10-10-1932.
² Economics of Khaddar
³ Hand-spinning and Hand-weaving
539. A LETTER

October 31, 1932

Decide upon the central core of the Gita. Then put into practice that interpretation of each verse which applies to one’s life. This would be the best commentary on the Gita, and the truest study of it. There can be no doubt that non-attachment is the central core of the Gita. I am certain that there is no other inspiration behind the composition of the Gita. And I know from my own experience that observance of truth or even ahimsa is impossible without non-attachment. Undoubtedly non-attachment is difficult of attainment. But what is so strange about it? For the realization of Satyanarayana some effort is necessarily called for and this realization without non-attachment.

[From Hindi]

540. MESSAGE TO BEGUM ALI IMAM

[On or before November 1, 1932]

Deepest sympathy in your loss which is also mine. Your dear husband was one of my oldest friends.

The Bombay Chronicle, 2-11-1932

541. LETTER TO PADAMAJA NAIDU

November 1, 1932

MY DEAR PLAYMATE AND UNWILLING SLAVE,

Wanting you to be a willing slave, though a driver of slaves, I slavishly carry out your wish that out of philanthropy I should write to you with the left hand. I had no notion of my being a slave-driver till mates like you from personal experience made the discovery. So I had thought that they must have willingly submitted to the yoke. But I see that your pride comes in the way of your making a frank

The report is dated November 1, 1932.
Sir Ali Imam, a one-time judge of Calcutta High Court and a prominent Muslim League leader, had died towards the end of October.
admission. I do not want more accidents to humble your pride. . . .

About reading the books you have sent me, I shall follow the course suggested by you. I am fast increasing the number of my teachers. Raihana was the first, then Zohra was appointed. And now you have sought the honour. Let this serve as the letter of appointment. But in order to retain the honour you will have to be good and not ill and bed-ridden.

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 194

542. LETTER TO SHANTIKUMAR MORARJEE

November 1, 1932

CHI. SHANTIKUMAR,

I specially remember you today. I have had no letter from you since long.

I didn’t get any even in the last week of September.

How are all of you? How is Grandmother? How is Gokibehn? Are your worries over now?

I wish you a happy New Year.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati; C.W. 4798. Courtesy: Shantikumar Mararjee

543. LETTER TO HOMI PESTONJI

November 1, 1932

I duly received the books sent by you. I have met Upasani Maharaj. I formed a very bad impression about him and have found his writings wanting in purity.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 193

1 A portion is omitted in the source.
2 Addressee’s father’s sister
544. LETTER TO ANASUYABEHN SARABHAI

YERAVDA MANDIR,
November 1, 1932

CHI. ANASUYABEHN,

How are you? How is Shankerlal? Has Indu recovered fully?
Write down your reminiscences of Punjabhai\(^1\) and send a copy to me.
May the New Year help us all to achieve greater purity.

_Blessings from_

BAPU

SHRI ANASUYABEHN
SEVASHRAM
MIRZAPUR, AHMEDABAD

From the Gujarati original: S. N. 32813

545. A LETTER

November 1, 1932

It is not for me to decide when I should fast. What God has decreed will happen.

[From Gujarati]

_Mahadevbhai Diary, Vol. II, p. 194_

546. TELEGRAM TO HOME SECRETARY, GOVERNMENT OF INDIA

7 a.m., November 2, 1932

TO HOME SECRETARY
GOVERNMENT OF INDIA
NEW DELHI

YOUR MESSAGE WAS DELIVERED TO ME TEN O’CLOCK LAST NIGHT.
IT IS PAINFUL SURPRISE TO ME THAT MY LETTER OF TWENTY-FOURTH ULTIMO SHOULD HAVE REACHED GOVERNMENT

\(^1\) Punjabhai Shah who died on October 22
THIRTY-FIRST NOT SO MUCH BECAUSE PROSPECTIVE FAST THEREIN ADUMBRATED INVOLVED PRISONER’S LIFE AS BECAUSE FAST COVERED MATTER HIGHEST URGENCY AND DIRECTLY ARISING OUT OF YERAVDA PACT ENDORSED BY HIS MAJESTY’S GOVERNMENT. IN VIEW HOWEVER OF THIS UNFORTUNATE DELAY AND IN VIEW OF ASSURANCE AND SUGGESTION CONTAINED IN YOUR MESSAGE I HAVE SUSPENDED RESTRICTION ON DIET WHICH COMMENCED YESTERDAY. I TRUST MY LETTER OF THIRTY-FIRST ULTIMO ADDRESSED TO SUPERINTENDENT YERAVDA CENTRAL PRISON WAS REPEATED TO YOU. WHEN HE CAME TO ME TO UNDERSTAND IMPLICATIONS OF THE LETTER I TOLD HIM THAT IF I DID NOT GET RELIEF WITHIN FOUR DAYS FROM FIRST INSTANT AMONG OTHER THINGS I MIGHT BE OBLIGED TO STOP FOOD ALTOGETHER. THIS I MENTION TO CONVEY TO GOVERNMENT SOME IDEA OF INTENSITY OF MY FEELING. ALMOST DAILY I AM GETTING LETTERS ABOUT UNTOUCHABILITY FROM REFORMERS AND REACTIONARIES DEMANDING IMMEDIATE ATTENTION AND REPLY DESIGNED FOR PUBLICATION. A MATTER IN WHICH MILLIONS OF PEOPLE HAVE TO BE INFLUENCED CANNOT BE HANDLED BY PRIVATE CORRESPONDENCE UNDER BAN OF PUBLICATION. I HAVE LETTERS AND TELEGRAMS FROM RECENTLY FORMED ALL-INDIA ANTI-UNT TouchABILITY LEAGUE ASKING FOR IMMEDIATE GUIDANCE AND ADVICE AS TO METHOD OF WORK. I HAVE MOST IMPORTANT LETTER FROM CALICUT DEMANDING IMMEDIATE REPLY AND REQUEST FROM UNTOUCHABLE FRIENDS SEEKING EMERGENT INTERVIEW. KNOWING THIS AND KNOWING THAT MY LIFE IS AT STAKE IN ANTI-UNT TouchABILITY CAMPAIGN GOVERNMENT WILL APPRECIATE MY READINESS AND DESIRE TO FORFEIT IT IF IN THIS MATTER I AM NOT TO BE ALLOWED FULL AND UNFETTERED FACILITIES AS REQUESTED IN MY LETTER. A PRISONER HAS NO OTHER HONOURABLE OUTLET FROM AN INTOLERABLE AND SOUL-KILLING POSITION.

GANDHI

Bombay Secret Abstracts, Home Department, Special Branch, File No. 800 (40)(4), Pt. I, p. 277. Also G.N. 3866

---

1 On November 1 Gandhiji had started taking food supplied to ‘C’ class prisoners; vide the following item.
547. LETTER TO M. G. BHANDARI

Urgent November 2, 1932

DEAR MAJOR BHANDARI,

With reference to Government of India message handed to me by you last night I enclose herewith a reply which I request may be sent as an express wire. As you will gather from the wire I have already suspended the restriction on my diet and partaken of my usual food. If it is at all possible, I suggest that this wire to the Government of India may not await the opening of the office of the Inspector-General of Prisons.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

Bombay Secret Abstracts, Home Department, Special Branch, File No. 800 (40)(4) Pt. I. p. 267. Also G.N. 3865

548. LETTER TO THE MANAGING COMMITTEE, SUNFIELD SCHOOL

November 2, 1932

I can well agree with much of what you say about the material and the spiritual. Matter without spirit is dead and spirit without matter cannot move. So long as we think of them and not it, each needs the help of the other. But I must not wander into that very beautiful realm.

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 197

549. LETTER TO JAMNALAL BAJAJ

November 2, 1932

CHI. JAMNALAL,

On hearing disturbing news about the condition of your ear, I sent you a wire today. I hope you got it. We are waiting for a reply. I also expect a detailed letter from you. I have of course written to

1 Vide the preceding item.
2 The letter, according to the source, also contained a reference to “my friend and daughter Esther Menon”.
3 This is not available.
Dr. Modi and requested him to send a report. May I suggest a few changes in your diet? Bananas are not at all necessary. Nor do I see any need for papaya at present. You should omit pulses for some time from your diet and add fresh grapes or oranges or mosambis. It would also be better if you could drink more milk. I have had no letter from you for a long time now. Give all details about your health.

How is Manilal? Give me news about other companions too. We are quite happy here. Manilal, Sushila, Tara¹, Surendra² and Sita paid us a visit yesterday. Sushila has improved now. I suppose you know that she had to be kept in Dosibai’s Hospital for some time.

Blessings from
BAPU

550. LETTER TO BHIKHIBEHN

November 2, 1932

CHI. BHIKHIBEHN,

I am glad you wrote to me. If you learnt reading and writing in the Ashram itself, then you have made very good progress. And that is as it should be. Still if you are a little more careful, your handwriting, as also your Gujarati, will improve further.

Tell me something more about yourself when you write again. What village do you belong to? Are your parents alive? What is your husband?

BAPU

551. LETTER TO KESHAV GANDHI

November 2, 1932

CHI. KESHU,

I got your letter. There was no harm in your ruling the sheet, but you should have ruled with a rod, and if you write slowly you can write in straight line even without ruling the sheet. God guides his

¹ Sushila’s sister
² Sushila’s brother
bhaktas. But how can we say that He guides even those who do not pray to Him and never remember Him? We use our reason well or ill according to the tendencies with which we are born as a result of our karma in past lives. God has given to all of us the strength to wipe out those effects of past karma. Anybody who uses that strength can wipe them out. Your Gujarati is very weak. Try patiently to improve it.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 3283

552. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

November 2, 1932

CHI. NARANDAS,

Bhau’s fast must have ended now. After reading this, you or Bhau should drop a postcard to me every day without fail. I suppose he took enema daily while the fast lasted. Ask him to give me full details about the period of the fast. I think I have already explained to him what he should do after the fast has ended.

I got your letter yesterday. Manilal, Sushila, Tara, Surendra and Sita came and saw me.

BAPU

[PS.]

Think and decide about Kusum without delay. Give me news about her also by return of post. The following is for Ba. She used to take it while in Sabarmati Jail. You will notice that there are two things, one to be taken by mouth and another for external application.

Atophan—One tabloid to be powdered and divided into three parts. One portion to be taken three times a day. Belladona plaster for local application over the painful part.¹

If Jugatram’s treatment is going on, she need not follow this prescription just now.

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./ Also C.W. 8263. Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi

¹ Gandhiji gives the prescription in English.
553. LETTER TO GULAB

November 21, 1932

CHI. GULAB,

I got your letter. You have still not told me what your speed in spinning is. Remember to mention it in your next letter.
You should learn the way a letter is written.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 1729

554. LETTER TO SHANTIKUMAR MORARJEE

November 2, 1932

CHI. SHANTIKUMAR,

Your letter and my postcard seem to have crossed. You are being tested fairly severely, and I am sure that you will prove your perfect worth.
Give my respectful greetings to Grandmother. I hope she preserves her peace of mind.
My blessings to Sumati.
All three of us are quite well and often think of you.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujrati: C.W. 4799. Courtesy: Shantikumar Morarjee
555. LETTER TO BHAU PANSE

November 2, 1932

CHI. BHAU,

I got your long letter. Today I will write only about what you should do after giving up your fast, though I think I have already written about it¹. For the first two or three days, you should eat only fruit and bhaji. Then you may start bread, and then milk. Please write to me every day giving full details. This experiment must succeed.

More in the next letter.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 6740, Also C.W. 4483. Courtesy: Bhau Panse

556. LETTER TO PRABODHKUMAR AND OTHERS

November 2, 1932

CHI. PRABODHKUMAR, BHUPENDRAKUMAR AND NARENDRAKUMAR,

The names of all of you seem very short. Hence think how to make them longer. A potter would never be satisfied with a badly shaped pot. He will mix up the clay again and again with the unused lot till he gets a well-shaped pot. Similarly, Prabodh should not write to me till his handwriting has improved. He should first learn to draw straight lines, triangles, circles, etc. Sardar, Mahadevbhai and I, all three of us, are well. May all of you grow up and be good men.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: S.N. 12152

557. LETTER TO PADMA

November 2, 1932

CHI. PADMA,

I did write to you on a slip of coloured paper. I have no doubt about that. But what can I do if you, wearing glasses, cannot see the colour? Let me know whether you can see it this time. Just now you should not touch either the takli or the Magan spinning-wheel or the

¹ Vide “Letter to Bhau Panse”, 23-10-1932 ordinary spinning-wheel. At present your only care should be to regain your weight and build fine health. Try and learn the correct method of writing accounts. The abcess must have been cured. You say in your letter that Mother teaches you the Gita. Does she teach you the syntax, too, of each verse? Is Sarojinidevi’s study of the Gita so deep? Does she know Sanskrit? Why does she not write to me at all?

There is not much difference between pure love and universal love. Your interpretetation of the latter as non-attachment is perfectly correct.

Write to me regularly.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 6140. Also C.W. 3492. Courtesy:
Prabhudas Gandhi

558. LETTER TO SULOCHANA

November 2, 1932

CHI. SULOCHANA,

I got your letter. If you spin with better slivers, you will spin still finer yarn. Your should feel no shame whatever in asking Premabehn any questions. If you cannot ask a teacher, whom else can you ask?
Do, therefore, ask her and let me know what replies she gives. If, even after this, you feel ashamed to ask her, write down the questions and give them to her.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 1744

559. LETTER TO NANIBEHN JHAVERI

YERAVDA MANDIH,
November 2, 1932

CHI. NANIBEHN,

I had received Gangabehn’s own letter. You have been detained in order to nurse the patients. If we look at it objectively this is wrong.
But we cannot always do so. So it is all right that you are detained.
Try to free yourself at the first opportunity. But give service without hesitation so long as it is necessary. Do not think that you are committing any wrong. Hence, get rid of your sadness of heart. Both of you always have my blessings. May God protect you and may your desire to serve grow from day to day.

BAPU

[From Gujarati]
Manavtana Prahari—Pannalal Jhaveri, p. 27

560. LETTER TO VIDYA HINGORANI

YERAVDA MANDIR

November 2, 1932

CHI. VIDYA,

I have your letter. Do I not know the situation in Sind? I know Sindhi women well. Through love even this situation can be improved. In work, the most important thing is to do ourselves what we want others to do. This you are doing. But remember that Mother Gita teaches us to keep on doing work without worrying about the fruit thereof. It is for God to worry about the fruit. Anand remains sad. But the key to happiness is in his own hands and to some extent in yours. If you have faith and serenity and are cheerful, it must infect Anand too. But this will happen once Anand get out. Do you meet Kikibehn’?

Blessings from

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Hindi. Courtesy: National Archives of India and Anand T. Hingorani

561. LETTER TO MADAN MOHAN CHATURVEDI

November 2, 1932

BHAJ MADAN MOHAN,

I saw your letter to Narandas. Inform me of Dr. Modi’s opinion by wire and ask him to send me full details. Keep me posted with the news. I hear Balkoba’ has not recovered as yet and that even speaking

1 Kikibehn Lalvani, sister of J.B. Kripalani
2 Jamnalal Bajaj at this time was suffering from ear trouble and was under the care of Dr. Modi; vide; “Letter to Jamnalal Bajaj”, 2-11-1932.
3 Balkrishna, younger brother of Vinoba Bhave is a strain for him. Tell Balkoba to write to me. Tell Janakibehn also. We are all well.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 3090

562. LETTER TO TULSI MAHER

November 2, 1932

CHI. TULSI MAHER,

I got your letter after many months. We were all very glad. You have written nothing about your work. Why? Write next time. Surendra, Ramdas and others are here. I meet them occasionally. They are all doing well.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N.6540

563. LETTER TO MIRABEHN

November 3, 1932

CHI. MIRA,

I got your letter yesterday afternoon. It is now 5.15 a.m. We have had the prayer, then the honey, hot water and a pinch of soda. Then we three together prepared my fruit, viz., two musambis which Mahadev peeled, two santras which I peeled and juice of a pomegranate which Sardar extracted. I added a pinch of salt to the juice and put the musambi and the santra pulp into the juice. They two went out for a stroll and I ate the salad. It was then 5.15. And I began this letter. The left-hand writing is by way of change and rest for the right hand.

Writing of the fruit salad, I give you my discovery. I find that fruit to produce the greatest effect should be taken by itself and on an empty stomach. You might almost say, the same law applies to juicy fruit that applies to opening medicines. In fact all food should be taken as medicine. The Sanskrit for food and medicine is a common word aushadh. Kisen will explain this more fully to you. Medicine need not be nasty to taste; nor is it taken for the pleasure of the palate.
Food should be treated exactly in the same manner, i.e., suitable food in suitable proportion in suitable manner and at suitable times. Here I interrupted the writing for the morning walk and now resume at 6.45.

There are many books on the life of the Prophet. The first place must be given to Amir Ali’s Spirit of Islam. Then there is Washington Irving’s Mahomet and His Successors, a very well written work. Carlyle’s Mahomet as Hero is also well worth reading.

I am glad you have Kisen with you. She should get the most out of you and you of her. I wonder if she got my letter in reply to hers. I sent it to the address she gave. Whether she received it or not, tell her never to write a bad hand whether there is hurry or not. This lesson everyone should learn from my misfortune. Bad writing and bad everything is truly himsa. We have a rare opportunity of learning the virtue of patience in prison life.

I think your comparison between Jesus and Muhammed is striking and partly true. You have heard the saying comparisons are odious. In my opinion all revolutionaries are reformers and all reformers are revolutionaries. Both were great teachers and each was in response to his age and its requirements. And each made a unique contribution to the advance of mankind. They have an equal place in the universal pantheon. Your description of yourself as an ashramite is perfect. You do not deny Christ but you affirm yourself as an ashramite who denies no teacher. We are not concerned much with the interpretations of the different teachers. Each fashioned his or her own.

I am sending by registered post Amir Ali’s book. When you have finished it, post it to Raihana. It belongs to the Tyabjee’s.

Love from us all to you and Kisen.

BAPU

From the original: C.W. 6248.Courtesy: Mirabehn
564. TELEGRAM TO HOME SECRETARY, GOVERNMENT OF INDIA

November 3, 1932

HOME SECRETARY TO GOVERNMENT OF INDIA
NEW DELHI
SUPPERINDENT YERAVDA CENTRAL PRISON HAS JUST CONVEYED GOVERNMENT OF INDIA’S DECISION ON MY CORRESPONDENCE AND REQUEST THEREIN REGARDING UNTOUCHABILITY. THE DECISION I GRATEFULLY ACKNOWLEDGE GIVES ME ALL FACILITIES I HAD HOPED FOR AND I COULD POSSIBLY HAVE EXPECTED. I RECOGNIZE FULLY GRACEFUL MANNER IN WHICH GOVERNMENT PROPOSE TO TRUST ME TO CARRY OUT BOTH LETTER AND SPIRIT OF MY UNDERTAKING THAT NEITHER THESE INTERVIEWS NOR THIS CORRESPONDENCE SHALL HAVE ANY REFERENCE TO CIVIL DISOBEDIENCE MATTERS OUTSIDE REMOVAL OF UNTOUCHABILITY. THIS TRUST SHALL NEVER BE ABUSED.

GANDHI

Bombay Secret Abstracts, Home Department, Special Branch, File No. 800(40)(4) Pt. I p. 289. Also G.N. 3867

565. LETTER TO U. GOPALA MENON

November 3, 1932

MY DEAR GOPALA MENON,

I was not able before now to acknowledge your letter. As soon as I was in a position, the first thing I did was to send you a telegram which I hope you received in due time. I am glad you have written at length. It has enabled me to get an idea of the difficulties that face us. But this movement is taken up in God’s name. He is our guide and I am positive that if we do not lose faith in Him, He will remove all difficulties in our path and if we would conduct ourselve in the spirit of service we would not be uncharitable towards those who may 1 This was contained in a telegram dated November 2, addressed to the Bombay Government, which, inter alia, read: “Government of India recognize in view of considerations stated in Mr. Gandhi’s letter of 18th and 24th October that if he is to carry out the programme that he has set before himself in regard to removal of untouchability, which they had not before fully appreciated, it is necessary that... oppose the reforms nor should we be uncharitable to the Zamorin. After all we do not know his difficulties. We must therefore step into his shoes and look at the position even from his point of view. I have always found that this is the quickest method of reaching a goal. We may not take our gaze off the goal for one single minute but in pursuing it we may not judge those who do not see eye to eye with us. After all, as you very properly say, we have but ourselves to die in the attempt to deliver our suppressed brethren from the yoke. Whatever happens, therefore, the people who are for the reform must remain strictly non-violent in every sense of the term. You are anxious to have Pandit Malaviyaji in your midst. Of course he would be a tower of strength if he could come, but his life has been a life of dedication. There are therefore many calls on him. He has aged, he is weak in body though his mind is as vigorous as ever. I know that he will come if he can at all spare himself. But it will be the glory of the workers of Kerala if he can be saved the long journey to the South. However, if you think that his presence is indispensable you will press your suit and I will certainly write to him.

I like your idea of a sister being sent from the North to work there during these precious few weeks that are available to us before the fateful 2nd of January. I have already moved in the matter and hope to let you know whether it is possible for anyone to come.

Do please tell me how Kelappan is doing. Why have I not heard from him?¹

From a photostat: S.N. 18602

¹ The letter as found in the source is unsigned.
566. LETTER TO MAGANBHAI DESAI

November 3, 1932

I am becoming more convinced from experience that, as one’s faith in God grows, one finds greater joy in doing one’s duty, becomes more efficient and vigilant, and also more calm and patient.

Since I have unlimited faith in God, I believe that it is He who enables us to do any work, small or big. I do not know how He does that. If a person who claims to have dedicated his all, body, mind and possessions, to God, believes that he himself has done something, he would be a thief. I would not sin by ignorantly believing that I have done anything. If I sometimes believe that or say that in ordinary conversation in joking or in order not to seem different from other people, it is foolishness on my part. The truth is that I am daily growing more humble and, therefore feel pained whenever I think in pride that I have done something.

[From Gujarati]
Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 201

567. LETTER TO PARAMANAND DESAI

November [3, 1932]¹

CHI. PARAMANAND,²

I have your letter. I am glad that Mother and you have gone there. I very much wish that both of you should now stay permanently in the Ashram. In which form are you?

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: S.N. 9483

¹ From the S.N. Register
² Mahadev Desai’s step-brother
568. LETTER TO HEMPRABHA DAS GUPTA

November 3, 1932

CHI. HEMPRABHA,

I have your letter. I can understand your shock at the plight of the Harijans. But there is not need to be agitated. You should get what workers you can and try to improve the condition of the Harijan localities. Meet the Harijan men. Ultimately, ours is only to make the effort to the utmost, the result rests with God. Give up worrying. The Gita forbids us to worry. I am awaiting Arun’s reply.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 1692

569. LETTER TO ALI HASSAN

[Before November 4, 1932]

Thanks for your letter. You must have seen my statement appealing for Hindu-Muslim-Sikh unity. From here, I can do little more. It is for those who are outside to make the move.

The Hindu, 7-11-1932

570. LETTER TO SOHANLAL SHARMA

[On or before November 4, 1932]

BHAI SOHANLAL SHARMA,

I have your letter. What is the good of merely removing the signboard? Our aim is to secure temple-entry for Harijans. If Maganiramji does not agree to it you must wait. This temple too will be thrown open when public opinion is sufficiently enlightened. Find

---

1 Secretary, Bihar and Orissa Muslim Association
2 The report in the source bears the date November 4.
3 The postmark bears the date November 4. out what temple-goers feel about it. This has to be done peacefully. See Ghanshyamdasji.

MOHANDAS GANDHI

SOHANLAL SHARMA
PRESIDENT, HINDU SABHA
PUSHKAR VIA AJMER
(B.B.& C.I. RLY.)

[From Hindi]

From a photostat of the Hindi : G.N. 2827

571. STATEMENT ON UNTOUCHABILITY

November 4, 1932

For reasons over which I had no control I have not been able to deal with the question of untouchability, as I had fully intended to after the breaking of the fast. The Government having now granted me permission to carry on public propaganda in connection with the work, I am able to deal with the numerous correspondents who have been writing to me either in criticism of the Yeravda Pact, or to seek guidance, or to know my views about the different questions that arise in the course of the campaign against untouchability. In this preliminary statement I propose to confine myself to the salient questions only, deferring for the time being other questions which do not call for immediate disposal.

I take up first the question of the possibility of my resuming the fast. Some correspondents contend that the fast savours of coercion and should not have been undertaken at all and that, therefore, it should never be resumed. Some others have argued that there is no warrant in Hindu religion, or any religion for that matter, for a fast like mine. I do not propose to deal with the religious aspect. Suffice it to say that it was at God’s call that I embarked upon the last fast and it would be at His call that it would be resumed, if it ever is. But when it was first undertaken, it was undoubtedly for removal of untouchability, root and branch. That it took the form it did was no choice of mine. The Cabinet decision precipitated the crisis of my life, but I knew that the revocation of the British Cabinet’s decision was to be but the beginning of the end. A tremendous force could not be set in motion merely in order to alter a political decision, unless it had behind it a much deeper meaning even unknown to its authors. The people affected instinctively recognized that meaning and responded.

\[1\] Following the lifting of restrictions by the Government on Gandhiji’s interviews and his carrying on propaganda in connection with anti-untouchability work, Gandhiji issued a series of statements to the Press. This is the first of them.

Perhaps no man within living memory has travelled so often from one end of India to the other or has penetrated so many villages and come into contact with so many millions as I have. They have all known my life. They have known that I have recognized no barriers between ‘untouchables’ and ‘touchables’ or caste and outcaste. They have heard me speak often in their own tongues denouncing untouchability in unmeasured terms, describing it as a curse and a blot upon Hinduism. With rare exceptions, at hundreds of these mass meetings or at private meetings in all parts of India, there has been no protest against my presentation of the case against untouchability. Crowds have passed resolutions denouncing untouchability and pledging themselves to remove it from their midst and they have on innumerable occasions called God as witness to their pledge and asked for His blessing that He may give them strength to carry out their pledge. It was against these millions that my fast was undertaken and it was their spontaneous love that brought about a transformation inside of five days and brought into being the Yeravda Pact. And it will be against them that the fast will be resumed if that Pact is not carried out by them in its fullness. The Government are now practically out of it. Their part of the obligation they fulfilled promptly. The major part of the resolutions of the Yeravda Pact has to be fulfilled by these millions, the so-called caste Hindus, who have flocked to the meetings I have described. It is they who have to embrace the suppressed brethren and sisters as their very own, whom they have to invite to their temples, to their homes, to their schools. The ‘untouchables’ in the villages should be made to feel that their shackles have been broken, that they are in no way inferior to their fellow-villagers, that they are worshippers of the same God as other villagers, and are entitled to the same rights and privileges that the latter enjoy.

But if these vital conditions of the Pact are not carried out by caste Hindus, could I possibly live to face God and man? I ventured even to tell Dr. Ambedkar, Rao Bahadur Raja and other friends belonging to the suppressed group that they should regard me as a hostage for the due fulfilment by caste Hindus of the conditions of the Pact. The fast, if it has to come, will not be for the coercion of those who are opponents of the reform, but it will be intended to sting into action those who have been my comrades or who have taken pledges for the removal of untouchability. If they belie their pledge, or if they never meant to abide by them, and their Hinduism was a mere camouflage, I should have no interest left in life. My fast, therefore, ought not to affect the opponents of reform, nor even fellow-workers and the millions who have led me to believe that they were with me and the Congress in the campaign against untouchability, if the latter have on second thoughts come to the conclusion that untouchability is not after all a crime against God and humanity.

In my opinion, fasting for purification of self and others is an age-long institution and it will subsist so long as man believes in God. It is the prayer to the Almighty from an anguished heart. But whether my argument is wise or foolish, I cannot be dislodged from my position so long as I do not see the folly or the error of it. It will be resumed only in obedience to the inner voice, and only if there is manifest breakdown of the Yeravda Pact, owing to the criminal neglect of caste Hindus to implement its conditions. Such neglect would mean a betrayal of Hinduism. I should not care to remain its living witness.

There is another fast which is a near possibility and that is in connection with the opening of the Guruvayur temple in Kerala. It was at my urgent request that Sjt. Kelappan suspended his fast for three months, a fast that had well-nigh brought him to death’s door. I would be in honour bound to fast with him if on or before the first January next that temple is not opened to the ‘untouchables’ precisely on the same terms as the ‘touchables’, and if it becomes necessary for Sjt. Kelappan to resume his fast. I have been obliged to dwell at some length upon these possible fasts because of the receipt of hot correspondence from two or three quarters. Co-workers, however, should not be agitated over the possibility. To become unnerved over a prospect one would not like face very often results in its materializing. The best way of averting it is for all affected by it to put forth their whole strength into the work that would render the occurrence impossible.

Correspondents have asked whether inter-dining and inter-marriage are part of the movement against untouchability. In my opinion they are not. They touch the caste men equally with the outcasts. It is, therefore, not obligatory on an anti-untouchability worker to devote himself or herself to inter-dining and intermarriage reform. Personally, I am of opinion that this reform is coming sooner than we expect. Restriction on inter-caste dining and inter-caste marriage is no part of Hindu religion. It is a social custom which crept into Hinduism when perhaps it was in its decline, and was then meant perhaps to be temporary protection against disintegration of Hindu society, and emphasis on them has turned the attention of mass mind from the fundamentals which are vital to life’s growth. Wherever, therefore, people voluntarily take part in functions where ‘touchables’ and ‘untouchables’, Hindus and in non-Hindus are invited to join dinner parties, I welcome them as a healthy sign. But I should never dream of making this reform, however desirable in itself it may be, part of an all-India reform which has been long overdue.

Untouchability in the form we all know it is a canker eating into the very vitals of Hinduism. Dining and marriage restrictions stunt Hindu society. I think the distinction is fundamental. It would be unwise in a hurricane campaign to overweight and thus endanger the main issue. It may even amount to a breach of faith with the masses to call upon them suddenly to view the removal of untouchability in a light different from what they have been taught to believe it to be. On the one hand, therefore, whilst inter-dining may go on where the public is itself ready for it, it should not be part of the India-wide campaign.

I have letters, some of them angrily worded, from those who style themselves sanatanists. For them untouchability is the essence of Hinduism. Some of them regard me as a renegade. Some others consider that I have imbibed notions against untouchability and the like from Christianity and Islam. Some again quote scriptures in defence of untouchability. To these I have promised a reply through this statement. I would venture, therefore, to tell these correspondents that I claim myself to be a sanatanist. Their definition of a sanatanist is obviously different from mine. For me sanatan dharma is the vital faith handed down from generations belonging even to prehistoric period and based upon the Vedas and the writings that followed them. For me the Vedas are as indefinable as God and Hinduism. It would be only partially true to say that the Vedas are the four books which one finds in print. These books are themselves remnants of the discourses left by the unknown seers. Those of later generations added to these original treasures according to their lights. There then arose a great and lofty-minded man, the composer of the Gita. He gave to the Hindu world a synthesis of Hindu religion at once deeply philosophical and yet easily to be understood by any unsophisticated seeker. It is the one open book to every Hindu who will care to study it, and if all the other scriptures were reduced to ashes, the seven hundred verses of this imperishable booklet are quite enough to tell one what Hinduism is and how one can live up to it. And I claim to be a sanatanist because for forty years I have been seeking literally to live up to the teachings of that book. Whatever is contrary to its main theme I reject as un-Hindu. It excludes no faith and no teacher. It gives me great joy to be able to say that I have studied the Bible, the Koran, Zend Avesta and the other scriptures of the world with the same reverence that I have given to the Gita. This reverent reading has strengthened my faith in the Gita. They have broadened my outlook and therefore my Hinduism. Lives of Zoroaster, Jesus and Mohammed, as I have understood them, have illumined many a passage in the Gita. What, therefore, these sanatani friends have hurled against me as a taunt has been to me a source of consolation. I take pride in calling myself a Hindu because I find the term broad enough not merely to tolerate but to assimilate the teachings of prophets from all the four corners of the earth. I find no warrant for untouchability in this book of life. On the contrary it compels me, by an appeal to my reason and a more penetrating appeal to my heart, in language that has a magnetic touch about it, to believe that all life is one and that it is through God and must return to Him.

According to sanatan dharma taught by that venerable Mother\(^1\), life does not consist in outward rites and ceremonial, but it consists in the uttermost inner purification and merging oneself, body, soul and mind, in the divine essence. I have gone to the masses in their millions with this message of the Gita burnt into my life. And they have listened to me, I am quite sure, not for any political wisdom or for eloquence, but because they have instinctively recognized me as one of them, as one belonging to their faith. And as days have gone by, my belief has grown stronger and stronger that I could not be wrong in claiming to belong to sanatan dharma, and if God wills it, He will let me seal that claim with my death.

The Epic Fast, pp. 311-7

\(^1\) Bhagavad Gita
572. LETTER TO C. F. ANDREWS

November 4, 1932

MY DEAR CHARLIE,

I have two letters to answer. Of course your decision is right. Your problem of untouchability is in a way more complex than mine. Untouchability is a dying cult and has an ever-growing army of reformers to deal it death blows. Yours shows no signs of dying and claims many supporters in the name of science. And you have very few workers. But as you and I have repeatedly found, what is difficult for man is easy for God. Anyway, we have but to do our part of work, and I shall pray for success in your work.

I assure you I do not want to kill brother ass. He is in God’s safe keeping. If He means to starve him, neither your effort nor mine can save him. For the present he is flourishing on goat’s milk and plenty of fruit with some home made bread thrown in.

Gurudev is still at it. That little fast brought me many undreamt of treasures. Gurudev was the richest find. If someone had said “fast to find Gurudev” I should have done it without a second thought. I was dying to find a corner in his heart. Thank God I found it through the fast.

Love from us all.

MOHAN

From a photostat: G.N. 976

573. STATEMENT ON UNTOUCHABILITY–II

November 5, 1932

A correspondent, in spite of having received liberal education suggests that before Harijans are put on a level with caste Hindus, they should become fit for such reception, shed their dirty habits, give up eating carrion; another goes the length of saying that Bhangis and Chamars who are engaged in what he considers are, ‘dirty occupations’ should give them up. These critics forget that caste men are responsible for whatever bad habits are to be observed amongst the Harijans. The so-called higher castes have deprived them of facilities for keeping themselves clean and also the incentive for doing so. As for the occupations of scavenging and tanning, they are no more dirty than many other occupations I can name. What may be admitted is that these occupations like several others are carried on in a dirty manner. That again is due to the high-handed indifference and criminal neglect of the ‘high castes’. I can say from personal experience that both scavenging and tanning can be done in a perfectly healthy and clean manner. Every mother is a scavenger in regard to her own children and every student of modern medicine is a tanner in as much as he has to dissect and skin human carcases. But we consider theirs to be sacred occupations. I submit that the ordinary scavengers’ and tanners’ occupations are no less sacred and no less useful than those of mothers and medical men. We shall go wrong if caste men regard themselves as patrons distributing favours to the Harijans. Whatever is done now by the caste Hindus for the Harijans will be but a tardy reparation for the wrongs done to them for generations, and if now they have to be received in their existing state, as they must be received, it is a well-deserved punishment for the past guilt. But there is this certain satisfaction that the very act of receiving them with open hearts would be a sufficient incentive to cleanliness, and the caste men will for their own comfort and convenience provide Harijans with facilities for keeping themselves clean.

It is well to remind ourselves of what wrongs we have heaped upon the devoted heads of the Harijans. Socially they are lepers. Economically they are worse than slaves. Religiously they are denied entrance to places we miscall ‘houses of God’. They are denied the use, on the same terms as the caste men, of public roads, public hospitals, public wells, public taps, public parks and the like, and in some cases their approach within a measured distance is a social crime, and in some other rare enough cases their very sight is an offence. They are relegated for their residence to the worst quarters of cities or villages where they practically get no social services. Caste Hindu lawyers and doctors will not serve them as they do other members of society. Brahmins will not officiate at their religious functions. The wonder is that they are at all able to eke out an existence or that they still remain within the Hindu fold. They are too downtrodden to rise in revolt against their suppressors.

I have recalled these tragic and shameful facts in order to make the workers vividly realize the implications of the Yeravda Pact. It is only ceaseless effort that can raise these downtrodden fellow beings from degradation, purify Hinduism, and raise the whole Hindu society and with it the whole of India.
Let us not be stunned by this simple recital of the wrongs. If the demonstration during the last week was a genuine expression of repentance on the part of caste Hindus, all will be well, and every Harijan will soon feel the glow of freedom. But before this much-desired end can be achieved the message of freedom will have to be carried to the remotest village. Indeed the work in the village is far more difficult than in the big cities where it is possible quickly to mobilize public opinion. Now that there is the All-India Anti-untouchability League, workers should work in co-ordination with that League. And here I would like to recall what Dr. Ambedkar told me. He said, “Let there be no repetition of the old method when the reformer claimed to know more of the requirements of his victims than the victims themselves”, and therefore, he added “tell your workers to ascertain from the representatives of the Harijans what their first need is and how they would like it to be satisfied. Joint refreshments are good enough by way of demonstration, but they may be overdone. There is a flavour of patronage about them. I would not attend them by myself. The more dignified procedure would be to invite us to ordinary social functions without any fuss. Even temple-entry, good and necessary as it is, may wait. The crying need is the raising of the economic status and decent behaviour in the daily contact.” I must not repeat here some of the harrowing details given by him from his own bitter experiences. I felt the force of his remarks. I hope every one of my readers will do likewise.

Many suggestions have been sent to me for adoption by the reformers. One is a repetition of what Swami Shraddhanandji used to repeat so often, namely, that every Hindu should have in his home a Harijan who would be for all practical purposes a member of the family. The second comes from a non-Hindu friend deeply interested in India’s welfare. He says that every well-to-do Hindu should bear the expense of giving, if possible under his own observation, higher education to a Harijan young man or girl so that these after finishing their education might work for the uplift of fellow-Harijans. Both the suggestions are worthy of consideration and adoption. I would ask all who have made fruitful suggestions to pass them on to the newly-established League. Correspondents should recognize my limitations. From behind the prison gates, I can only tender advice to the League and the people. I can take no part in the real execution of plans. They should also recognize that my opinions, based as they must be on insufficient data, and often on second-hand information, are liable to revision in the light of new facts and should, therefore, be received with caution.

Though it is now past history I would devote a paragraph to the objection raised by a correspondent and even voiced in suppressed tones in the Press. Referring to the political part of the Pact they ask, ‘What have you gained by it? The Harijans have surely got much more than the Prime Minister gave’. Well, that is exactly the gain. My objection to the decision was that it gave stone instead of bread. This Pact has given bits of bread. I personally would have rejoiced with Dr. Moonje if the Harijans had got all the seats allotted to the Hindus. That would have been the greatest gain to caste Hindus and Hinduism. What I wanted and what I still want is their complete merger in the caste Hindus and the latter’s in the former. It is my deliberate opinion, not likely to be altered by any fresh fact that may come to light, that the more the suppressors give to the suppressed the more they gain. They gain pro tanto discharge from overdue debts. Unless the caste Hindus approach the question in that humble, penitent, religious and right spirit, the remaining part of the Pact will never be observed in the spirit that seemed to pervade Hindu society during the fast week.

I would like to tender my congratulations to those Princes who have opened their State temples to the Harijans and have otherwise proclaimed banishment of untouchability from their States. If I may say it, they have thereby done some penance on their own behalf and their people’s. I hope that the Hindus residing in these States will carry out the terms of these proclamations and so fraternize with them as to make the Harijans feel that they never were the despised outcastes of Hindu humanity. We are too near the scene of tragedy to realize that this canker of untouchability has travelled far beyond its prescribed limits and has sapped the foundations of the whole nation. The touch-me-not spirit pervades the atmosphere. If, therefore, this white ant is touched at its source, I feel sure that we shall soon forget the differences with regard to caste and religion and begin to believe that even as all Hindus are one and indivisible, so are all Hindus, Mussalmans, Sikhs, Parsis, Jews and Christians, branches of the same parent tree. Though religions are many, Religion is one. That is the lesson I would have us learn from the campaign against untouchability. And we will learn it, if we prosecute it in the religious spirit with a determination that will not be resisted.

The Epic Fast, pp. 318-22
574. LETTER TO ARUN DAS GUPTA

November 5, 1932

I hope you clearly understood what I meant when I said you should cease to think the body as yours. It is God’s. But God has given it to you for the time being to keep it clean and healthy and use it for His service. You are therefore the trustee, not the owner. An owner may abuse or misuse his property. A trustee or keeper has to be very careful and make the best use of the property left to his care. So whilst you must not be anxious about the body you have to take every care you can of it. God will take it away when He wishes.

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 209

575. LETTER TO SATIS CHANDRA DAS GUPTA

November 5, 1932

I have endeavoured to explain the position in the Press statement which you must have seen. I wonder whether it gives you satisfaction. I draw, as I have always done, a sharp distinction between castes and varnas. Castes are innumerable and in their present condition they are a drag upon Hinduism. Therefore you and I do not observe caste distinctions. Varna stands on a different footing, and it means profession. It has nothing to do with inter-dining and intermarriage. People belonging to the four professions used formerly to inter-dine and even to intermarry and by so doing they naturally could not and did not leave their varna. This is absolutely clear from the definitions of the different varnas in the Bhagavad Gita. A man falls from his varna when he abandons his hereditary profession. Today, however, varnashrama is a lost treasure and there is utter confusion. Therefore so far as I can see there is only one varna and that is Shudra. That there is confusion of varnas is humiliating. That we should call ourselves Shudras is no humiliation, for in religion there is none high and none low. Profession of Shudra is just as honourable and necessary as that of Brahmin. Equally so of Kshatriya and Vaishya. But even if it should hurt our pride to consider ourselves as Shudra, there is no escape from it as a moment’s reflection will show. This fortunate circumstance if it is generally accepted solves the difficulty

2 With regard to varna and caste distinctions

VOL. 57 : 5 SEPTEMBER, 1932 - 15 NOVEMBER, 1932 335
of ranking the Harijans. To what varna, should they belong on admission? If we say, ‘to the Shudra varna’ we immediately accept the gradation in varna dharma and the Harijans will have every right to resent the lowest rank being given to them. If we are all Shudras there is no difficulty left. I remember a learned Shastri in 1915 suggesting at a Social Reform gathering in Nellore that there was confusion of varnas and that as originally there was only one varna, viz., that of Brahmins, we should all now call ourselves Brahmins. I could not reconcile myself to that proposition then and I could do so less now. Whilst we can all serve and hence be called Shudras, we do not all possess learning nor do we possess divine knowledge. Therefore it would be untruthful to regard ourselves as Brahmins. If we rob inter-dining and intermarriage of religious significance in the manner it is understood, it becomes purely a matter of option, where we dine and where our children marry. And removal of untouchability would then have exactly the meaning I have always given it. This ought to be quite clear.

576. LETTER TO V. RAMJEE RAO

November 5, 1932

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter of the 1st inst. Go on with the work with Rama’s name on your lips and all obstacles will be removed. You will see the statements on anti-untouchability work that I am issuing from day to day. Please read them carefully and digest them. They should allow enough guidance to the anti-untouchability worker.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat: G.N. 4579
577. A LETTER

November 5, 1932

Why do you not serve all Indians, instead of only members of the Modh community? How long will these petty divisions into castes and sub-castes survive? Why do you take interest in a movement which your elders do not like and which can achieve nothing? And please do not believe that the multiplication of pamphlets does any good.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol II, p. 208

578. LETTER TO BINDANI DEVI

November 5, 1932

I was very happy to have your letter. From your humorous manner I can see that your health is now improving. May God restore you to perfect health. If you are benefiting from your stay there, there is no reason to hurry back to Jabalpur.²

There is great disadvantage in adopting a son.³ Men tend to be arrogant and want a share in the father’s property. It is another thing that Govinddas has renounced it. The poor daughter cannot even think of demanding any share, and moreover self-appointed fathers like me extract service from the daughters. The question of making provision for the daughter does not even arise. I have warned you of the difficulties involved in becoming my daughter.

[From Hindi]

¹ Wife of Seth Govinddas
² The addressee, a heart patient, was at this time convalescing in Jaipur.
³ The addressee had jestingly referred to her husband’s annoyance at not being considered a son by Gandhiji although she was considered a daughter.
579. LETTER TO HABIBUR RAHMAN

November 5, 1932

I was glad to get your letter. Let me know more about yourself. How much Sanskrit have you studied? For how many years? What is your age? How long have you been teaching? What is the number of boys studying Sanskrit and how many are Muslims and how many Hindus? Are your parents living? If so, what is your father’s occupation?

Now I shall attempt to answer your queries. The special feature of Hinduism is that it permits considerable freedom of thought. And since tolerance towards other religions is implicit in it, Hindus may adopt such good points as they find in other religions. Indeed it is their duty to do so. That is why the exegesis of Hindu scriptures is ever developing. There is nothing new in what I have said regarding the characters of the Mahabharata and the Gita. I have taken it from the commentaries. The idea has been very well developed by Sadanand Mishra in his commentary on the Gita. I am told that some Prakrit works contain similar views. Not all that is contained in works popularly known as Hindu scriptures is gospel truth, and it is not necessary for the Hindus to accept everything laid down in the scriptures. I am in no way prepared to accept as religion, even though it might have a historical basis, the punishment of pouring molten lead into the ears of the Shudra listening to Vedic recitations. And there are innumerable Hindus who do not accept it as religious injunction. There is one simple test laid down in Hinduism which even a child can understand: anything which is not acceptable to reason, anything which goes contrary to reason cannot be religion; so also anything that violates truth and ahimsa.

Now for the Yeravda Pact. To me at any rate votes were no consideration. To me the question was one of undoing the harm that had been done to Harijans by the declaration of the British Cabinet. What explanation can I give you about my fast? I can only say that it was inspired by God and that I could not have avoided it.

[From Hindi]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, pp. 208-9
580. LETTER TO HANUMANPRASAD PODDAR

November 5, 1932

BHAI HANUMANPRASAD,

I have your letter. It does not matter that it is long. I shall make good use of it. What you write about Devdas becomes you. I still stand by my statements which you have quoted from Navajivan. To understand what I say one needs to understand my conduct for I try to avoid saying anything that contradicts my conduct and doing anything contrary to what I say. And I admit my own weakness whenever my conduct is inconsistent with the opinion I express. Here I do not see any inconsistency between my profession and my conduct.

Those who taunt and slander sanatanists commit himsa and undoubtedly injure the cause of the removal of untouchability. This whole work is purely religious and should be performed in a religious spirit. Those sanatanists who see untouchability as a part of religion should not be subjected to attacks of any kind. They have as much right to stand firm on their belief as we have to stand on ours. Even in inter-dining, cleanliness and some code of conduct are always desirable. It is a sin to use coercion in this matter or to despise those who refuse to inter-dine. Similarly to force one’s way into the temples against the wishes of the trustees is an act of sin. And even if the Harijans should manage to enter the temples in this manner and some Hindus should inter-dine with them, I would never accept it as removal of untouchability. Rather than be a witness to such reform I would prefer death, because I am convinced that compulsion can neither remove untouchability nor safeguard Hinduism.

Let me make myself clear: I am not opposed to inter-dining in any way and I consider it adharma for anyone to refuse to eat in the company of a person out of contempt for him or on account of his birth. Assuredly it would be an exaggeration to assert that dining together necessarily promotes friendly feeling. But to refuse to dine with someone who is clean and is a vegetarian because he follows another religion or he belongs to another province or is an untouchable, would be adharma. It cannot be considered proper to attribute to the untouchables as such insanitation and such other defects and to refuse to dine with them. We must bear in mind one thing if we are to consider the question in a religious spirit. The caste Hindus, having created a class of outcastes, have up to the present day been treating...

---

1 The date is from Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II. them in a most irreligious and brutal manner. This has caused uncleanliness and other vices to creep in among them. Sooner or later the Hindus have to atone for it. The time has now come when we can no longer deprive them of temple-entry, etc., by attributing to them vices of which we ourselves were the cause. Our atonement consists in meeting them as they are, allowing them to enter the temples and behaving decently with them. We must have the faith that our contact will exercise a purifying influence on their habits and that they too will make an effort to that end. There is no other way of reforming them and of the caste Hindus doing atonement. It is essential to remember that uncleanliness and similar short-comings found in Harijans are common to lacs of other Hindus who are not prevented on that account from entering the temples or joining other public institutions. Why should we sit in judgement on the Harijans? Ultimately to whom does God belong? Does He belong to the meritorious and the rich or to the sinners who can hardly lisp His name. We must not judge others. Our duty is to judge ourselves. Read and ponder calmly over what I have written and if still there is anything to ask, do not hesitate to ask me. I want to satisfy you, and that from self-interest for I expect a great deal of work from you in this cause. To me the question is purely a religious one and I want full co-operation from religious-minded people like you.

How long will you be in Ratangarh?

From a photostat of the Hindi: S.N. 18598

581. LETTER TO LILAVATI ASAR

November 6, 1932

CHI. LILAVATI,

How can I help if you misunderstood my letter and made yourself unhappy? The letter which I wrote to calm you only upset you. I have already declared my faith in you. How can I forsake a daughter who became such to me on her own? I believe that I have always protected you, and will continue to do so. Do not worry at all. God will assuredly lead you to your good. But have patience and be calm. Do not be greedy. Continue to write to me.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 9571. Also C.W. 6543. Courtesy: Lilavati Asar
582. LETTER TO ASHRAM BOYS AND GIRLS

November 6, 1932

DEAR BOYS AND GIRLS,

I got Sharda’s letter giving a beautiful description of how you enjoyed the five holidays. I can give only a short reply to it. Harijan work now takes up a great deal of my time, so that neither much time nor enough strength is left to me to write a long letter to you. You also should do whatever service you can to Harijans.

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./II

583. LETTER TO JAMNA BEHN GANDHI

November 6, 1932

CHI. JAMNA,

Your letters please me. Keep up the fearlessness which you show in them. I thought you kept better health in Rajkot. If you keep well in the Ashram both mentally and physically, I would not like you to leave it even for a moment.

BAPU

From Gujarati: C.W. 861. Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi

584. LETTER TO KESHAV GANDHI

November 6, 1932

CHI. KESHU,

You have asked me why I felt unhappy to learn that Ba had kept the spinning-wheel for herself. I have so much faith in you and in your impartiality that I readily tell you the reason. I was happy that Santok wished to use my spinning-wheel. Ba’s wish to have it made me unhappy because I smelt jealously in it. I have assumed in this that she knew that that spinning-wheel was earmarked for Santok. If my assumption is not correct, I must say that I have done great injustice to Ba. She has suffered so much at my hands in the past that I could not bring myself to ask her about the matter. You will understand that I was doubly unhappy. Santok did not get the spinning-wheel and Ba showed jealousy. But how could we alter what was destined to happen?
Do not feel even inwardly angry with Ba. I know I need not tell you even this. If you have as much goodness in you as I want you to have, go to Ba and say to her: ‘I had asked for this spinning-wheel from Bapu for my mother, and Bapu had promised it. I will get a new one made for you. Will you kindly give me this?’

This is worth doing provided you have courage enough. I spin with the slivers sent by you. I find them quite good. There is one defect in them: they are very hard. That was the experience of both of us. From one tola of cotton, we should make thirty-two soft slivers.

BAPU

[PS.]

Mahadev believes that Ba did not know. I would be very happy if that was so. All the same, I should like you to go and see her.

From Gujarati: C.W. 9465. Courtesy: Radhabehn Choudhri

585. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

November 6, 1932

CHI. NARANDAS,

I got the mail from you in due time. I understand what you say about Champa. If it is necessary to get the bungalow painted, you may do so. Let me know how much it will cost to put up a stone fence. At the present time whom else need you ask for permission? The brothers' are in no fit state of mind to think about such matters, and so it is I who will have to decide. But as I am dictating these lines Mahadev reminds me about the necessity to secure permission from the Government. He believes that that is what you have referred to. I do not think you mean that. All the same, you should ascertain whether such permission is necessary for putting up a stone or brick wall. In that case, we shall have to decide two questions: whether, if the expense is too much, we should incur it, and, if the Government’s permission is necessary, whether we should apply for it at the present time.

I hope Mohan’s fever has now completely left him. Even then, it will be necessary to nurse him carefully for some time. I cannot overcome my fear about Kusum. She wants to follow our advice, but cannot control her mind. I have written a letter to you about her and Bhau, which I suppose you will have got before you get this. After writing that letter, I also wrote a postcard to Kusum. If you have not already discussed with Bhau the subject about which he wrote to me, do so now. I have still not heard from Dr. Talwalkar. Ramniklal’s and Joshi’s letters were received, but they were kept back here. I had detailed information about Jamnalal. His health cannot be described as very good.

1 Sons of Dr. Pranjivan Mehta

8 p.m.

Read my letter to Ratubhai. Persuade him to go to Rangoon immediately. After reading Bhau’s letter this is what I think. The food which prisoners get in South Africa is wholesome from the point of view of health and self-control. In the Ashram, we serve at break-fast whole wheat flour boiled in water and with jaggery mixed in it. Here they give to every prisoner gruel of five tolas of jowar flour with salt. This experiment seems worth trying there. Perhaps we may not be able to digest five tolas of flour. We can start with 2½ tolas. Salt is better than jaggery. Moreover, by replacing jaggery with salt we shall put ourselves in the same condition as the prisoners. Rice may be served on alternate days instead of daily as now. It follows that dal also should be served on alternate days. In the jails in South Africa, they served dal only on two days in a week, and that too with one meal only. Vegetable should be served daily. Mostly it should be leaves. It would be better if only one vegetable was served every day. It may change from day to day. In South Africa, they served in the evening the same kind of gruel which they did in the morning. I am sure that there would be no difficulty if we followed the same practice. Discuss this suggestion with others. The food which the well-to-do outside and we in the Ashram eat certainly does not keep us healthy. In jail a good proportion of prisoners maintain good health. Why cannot we make suitable modifications and discover a diet which would be conducive to self-control and help to pre-serve our health? Just now our chief motive for doing this should be to live in the same way as the prisoners do and thereby learn greater self-control. Even if we adopt these suggestions, we shall retain ghee and milk, which prisoners do not get. I am at any rate convinced that we do not need rice very much, and also that, if we consume milk and ghee, we do not need much dal either. If whole wheat flour, milk and green vegetables are available, we need little else. Yes, I do believe that some fruit in the diet is essential. It is desirable, and even necessary, that everybody should get sour lemons, tomatoes, radish, carrots, radish pods, etc., in small quantities and uncooked. Besides ghee, we may use fresh oil also. If you feel interested in these suggestions, discuss them with other people. Introduce, by way of experiment, such changes as appeal to you. And the rest you may discuss with me in your letters. Actually, I have been thinking about many other changes. I have mentioned here only a few more important ones from among them. If you wish, I will discuss the others too. If you ultimately decide to introduce any of these changes, you will have of course to discuss them with the others. However, if you feel that even a tentative discussion of them will upset the people, you may leave them aside. I would certainly not press you to experiment with any changes, since I cannot be there to help in implementing them. I go on making such suggestions to you, knowing that they are not likely to frighten you.

In all there are 46 letters, 41 tied in a bundle and 5 separate.

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./I. Also C.W. 8264. Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi

586. LETTER TO RAMABEHN JOSHI

November 6, 1932

CHI. RAMA,

I hope you got the letter which I wrote to you after the last post and have started acting as I advised. Not to show anger against anger or speak ill of one who speaks ill of us, but to meet anger with patience, to speak well of one who speaks ill of us and to do good in return for evil—this is dharma and this is the ideal which guides our relations in the Ashram. See that you do not stray from it.

Give me news about Chhaganlal if you have any.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 5338
587. LETTER TO PREMABEHN KANTAK

November 6, 1932

CHI. PREMA,

The burden on me is so heavy now that I cannot possibly write long letters to the Ashram. You will be the first victim. But I know that you will be satisfied to read the long letters I shall be writing in the journal.

After reading the different accounts of the Diwali days there, I felt like flying away from here to be in your midst. But I found that the cage was closed on all sides. So I merely fluttered my wings and remained where I was.

If you increase butter in your diet and improve your health, I think the medicine would be cheap enough.

I know that your responsibilities are increasing. God will protect you. Do not give up faith in yourself. My only advice to you is that you should not lose patience.

Ramabehn has made one complaint, which seems to be justified. You got irritated and told Dhiru, “You may go to Palanpur”. You should not speak thus to anyone. One should always be courteous to children. If anyone who lives in the Ashram makes a mistake, we insult him if we tell him to leave the Ashram and go his way. Take care not to speak thus to anyone and win over Ramabehn. Krishnan Nair’s conversation with you was interesting. If I had the power of attorney from you, I would have given the very replies which you did.

You have given a good description of Kisen.

Our song1 is the one that becomes us most. I cannot analyse the dream.

Did you understand Narandas’s intention behind the presents which he gave?

There is no uniform rule for all occasions when one may express the emotion in one’s heart. I would say that one may do so when prompted by Satyanarayan2.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10309. Also C.W. 6748. Courtesy: Premabehn Kantak

1 “Vandemataram”
2 God as Truth
588. LETTER TO PARASRAM MEHROTRA

November 6, 1932

CHI. PARASRAM,

I understand about Father. You can write about me on these conditions: (1) Your writing should not interfere with the work there. (2) You should not write at the cost of your health. (3) You should not mention any facts about my life here which the people do not know. (4) You should not let yourself be carried away and become hyperbolical.

If you have really put your life in my hands, your statement that you have no joy in life has no meaning—or, if it has any, it is this, that you have put your life in my hands unwillingly and, therefore, it has become uninteresting. Anybody who has willingly accepted the path of service must feel his life to be full of joy, for he finds joy in service itself.

Grams are pulses. No one can digest roti made of gram flour. Give up the idea. Wheat, milk and greens—that is the best diet.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 7511. Also C.W. 4988. Courtesy: Parasram Mehrotra

589. LETTER TO BABALBHAI MEHTA

November 6, 1932

CHI. BABAL,

Your letter helped me very much. You forgot to mention the name of the village where you have taken up work. Mention it in your next letter. We can meet the Chamars’ objection. I think there is substance in it. We should arrange to carry away the carcasses of dead cattle. Mention the name of the village, population etc. We have started this work in the Ashram with that very aim. We can carry away the carcasses in carts. It is only a matter of planning and organization. I am glad that you have started working among the Harijans. Get as much help from the villages as possible and carry on the work. Send me detailed report from time to time. If necessary, you should devote even more time to the work.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: S.N. 9446
590. LETTER TO BHAU PANSE

November 6, 1932

CHI. BHAU,

I do not have time to write much today. I hope you got the letter which I wrote after the last weekly post. I am eager to know the effect of the fast. You should know how to resume food gradually after the fast has ended. Please remember that in connecting one’s food with dharma one is likely to go to an extreme.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 6741. Also C.W. 4484. Courtesy: Bhau Panse

591. LETTER TO SHANTA S. PATEL

November 6, 1932

CHI. SHANTA,

You seem to be as mischievous as ever. A mother who does not listen to her daughter’s complaints is no mother; similarly, a daughter who feels shy in opening her heart to her mother, thinking that she is too busy to listen to her, is no true daughter. Even in your long letter to me you have only beaten about the bush. Mahadev will, no doubt, agree to guide you, but do you think you will let yourself be controlled by anybody? You want to work. Well, there is plenty of work even in the Ashram. Besides, the Ashram supports all the three of you. Why then do you worry? If you want paid work, how much more do you expect to earn through it than what you require for your needs? You know that, generally, however much a person may earn, he feels that it is too little. He always wants to earn a little more. It is the aim of the Ashram to cure its inmates of such a desire.

Are you sure in your heart of hearts that you do not want to have a home of your own? I can see even from your letter that whether you know it or not, all your discontent springs from your desire to marry. It is not certain, of course, that you will be happy even after marriage. To marry, however, is to let yourself be bound. Then, the question of happiness or unhappiness does not arise at all. So great is the spell of this wonderful thing, marriage. Ask yourself whether you want to marry. If the answer is no, then, you must remain in the Ashram till your headstrong temper and your childishness disappear. If you trust Premabehn, you may talk to her and open your heart. You may write to me, too, or to Mahadev, if you wish. But please write seriously, to whomsoever you write. I was not happy to learn about Kamala’s laziness. The remedy I have suggested for Mangala is the only one for her. She seems to have forgotten me altogether.

1 Daughter of Shankarbhain Patel

Blessings from
BAPU

592. LETTER TO GULAM RASOOL AND AMINA QURESHI

November 6, 1932

CHI. QURESHI,

I got your beautiful description. I wish both of you to have equally beautiful health.

Blessings from
BAPU

CHI. AMINA,

I will not tolerate your silence. I wrote to you and asked you to improve your health. I should be very happy if you could pick up courage and try.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 6662
593. LETTER TO NARMADABEHN RANA

November 6, 1932

CHI. NARMADA,

I got your letter. You should put a point at the end of every sentence. It is called full stop.

You wrote utasva. The correct word is utsav¹. You wrote pootri. It should be putri². You wrote svekarsho. It should be sveekarsho³.

Please do not feel unhappy that Panditji has stopped your training in music. You should tell yourself that he must have some reason for doing that and accept his decision.

BAPU

From Gujarati: C.W. 2766. Courtesy: Ramanarayan N. Pathak

594. LETTER TO RATILAL SHETH

November 6, 1932

BHAII RATILAL,

I wrote a letter to you at your Bombay address, to which I expected a reply but did not get any. However, I had a wire from Lilavati today. She informs me that Chhaganlal has gone to Thitan, but he accepts Nanalal and you as arbitrarors. This lightens my burden. Now I am waiting for your letter. I should like you go to Rangoon as early as possible. It would be very good if Nanalal and you went together. This problem must be solved.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 7169. Also C.W. 4663. Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi

¹ Festival
² Daughter
³ Please accept
595. LETTER TO RAIHANA TYABJI

November 6, 1932

BELOVED DAUGHTER RAIHANA,

Have you now really decided not to write to me? I must have at least one letter in a week from you. When I do not get it, I fear you may be ill. Did I tell you that I have found a new teacher for me? Her name is Zohara Ansari. She teaches me with great enthusiasm. She writes the Urdu letters very neatly.¹

Teach me to write a letter [in Urdu], and tell me whom we can address as Janab or as Maulvi and when. How should I address you? Have I correctly written your address? And mind you do not fall ill. If, however, you do fall ill, then ask Hamida to write to me. Convey my regards to both Father and Mother.

Blessings to you all from

BAPU

BIBI RAIHANA
C/O ABBAS SAHEB
CAMP
BARODA

From a photostat of the Gujarati: S.N. 9667

596. LETTER TO AMTUSSALAAM

November 6, 1932

DEAR DAUGHTER AMTUSSALAAM,

I got your beautiful letter. The handwriting is very good. Keep it up. Do take hip-baths. They ought to benefit you. It is all right your taking on fresh work but do not overdo it. Do only as much as you can and be thankful for it. Or course my blessings are always with you. Have no worry about Kudsia. Narandas is responsible for her, so why must you worry? You write nothing about Dr. Sharma. What happened about his coming?

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Urdu: G.N. 262

¹ The letter up to here is in Urdu.
597. LETTER TO KAPILRAI M. MEHTA

[Before November 7, 1932]

CHI. KAPIL 2.

I had heard about your ill health and so was eager for a letter from you, when I got one. Your first duty now is to regain your health and strength. You should resume work only after you are completely all right. Those who take cover behind khadi work out of fear of imprisonment are hypocrites, but those who though convinced of the importance of khadi work prefer to go to jail out of fear of being looked upon as hypocrites, are conceited. We should avoid both, such hypocrisy and conceit. Hence we may do whatever service we get an opportunity to do from time to time and be content. Your conscience alone can tell you what is best for you now. Listen to what Kakasaheb may say and then do as your conscience prompts you. Do keep writing to me.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 3976. Also C.W. 1601. Courtesy: Shashilekha Mehta

598. STATEMENT ON UNTOUCHABILITY–III

November 7, 1932

A correspondent whom I know well and who is in sympathy with the movement against untouchability, though he does not accept the whole of the programme, wrote a long letter in Hindi from which I condense the following:

I fear that the campaign is not being kept within bounds in all parts of the country. I understand in some cases those who claim to be workers in the cause are making use of questionable methods such as resorting to abuse of adherents of the old order, and pouring ridicule on sacred names. Anyone who dares to analyse your sayings or writings or to oppose the

1 From the contents it appears that this letter was written before the letter to addressee dated November 7, 1932; vide “Letter to Kapilari M. Mehta”, 7-11-1932 extreme forms that the campaign is taking, immediately becomes a butt of ridicule and is labelled a traitor to his religion and even threatened with dire consequences. They do not seem to care for the material or moral welfare of the outcastes. They think that their effort begins and ends with promiscuous dinners and marching crowds of Harijans to temples even in defiance of the wishes to the contrary of the trustees. I am sure you do not want the movement to degenerate into mere spectacular demonstrations calculated merely to wound the feelings of the orthodox without doing the least service to the Harijans.
2 Editor, Gujarat Samachar and then Sandesh. A student of the Gujarat Vidyapith, he had taken part in the civil disobedience movement in 1930.

Out of nearly a hundred letters on untouchability received by me during the past month this is the first letter complaining of workers’ conduct bordering on violence. I, however, felt the necessity for giving publicity to the complaint, if only out of regard for my correspondent’s warning to workers. I know he will not indulge in wilful exaggeration. There can be no compulsion in matters of religion, I should say in any matter. The public know my very strong views against violence in any shape or form against anyone, no matter what his caste, creed, or nationality may be.

Let those in charge of the movement, therefore, understand that even in their impatience to save me from the prospective fast they may not force the pace by adopting questionable methods. If they do so, they will merely hasten my end. It would be living death for me to witness the degeneration of the movement on whose behalf, as I believe, God had prompted that little fast. The cause of the Harijans and Hinduism will not be served by methods of rabble. This is perhaps the biggest religious reform movement in India, if not in the world, involving as it does the well-being of nearly sixty million human beings living in serfdom.

The orthodox section that disapproves of this is entitled to every courtesy and consideration. We have to win them by love, by self-sacrifice, by perfect self-restraint, and by letting purity of our lives produce its own silent effect upon their hearts. We must have faith in our truth and love for converting our opponents to our way. There is no doubt whatsoever that the deliverance of sixty million human beings from age-long suppression will not be brought about by mere showy demonstrations. There has to be solid and constructive programme contemplating an attack on all fronts. This enterprise requires concentrated energy of thousands of men, women, boys and girls who are actuated by the loftiest of religious motives. I would, therefore, respectfully urge those who don’t appreciate the purely religious character of the movement to retire from it. Let those who have the faith and fervour, be they a few or many, work the movement.

The removal of untouchability may produce, indeed it will produce, great political consequences; but it is not a political movement. It is a movement purely and simply of the purification of Hinduism and that purification can only come through the purest instruments. Thanks be to God there are hundreds if not thousands of such instruments working in all parts of India. Let impatient sceptics watch, wait and see; but let them not mar the movement by hasty and ill-conceived interference even though it may be prompted by laudable motives.

_The Bombay Chronicle, 8-11-1932_

599. LETTER TO HOME SECRETARY, GOVERNMENT OF INDIA

November 7, 1932

THE SECRETARY OF THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA

HOME DEPARTMENT

NEW DELHI

DEAR SIR,

My thoughts having been hitherto concentrated simply upon what threatened to be an impasse about untouchability, I was unable to think of any other matter. Now that it is happily over, I would like to approach the Government of India on certain decisions of theirs which I have not been able to understand.

I should, if I may, like to know why my reply telegrams to Maulana Shaukat Ali and Abul Kalam Azad and to Dr. Ansari, expressing my hope of Hindu-Muslim unity being achieved, were disallowed. I saw in the Press the correspondence between His Excellency the Viceroy and Maulana Shaukat Ali regarding his request for permission to interview me on the same question. If the reasons given to him for refusal to let him see me are also the reasons for disallowing my telegrams I fail to see the connection between my association with civil disobedience and Hindu-Muslim unity. My association with civil disobedience appears to the Government to be bad. But I hope my views on Hindu-Muslim unity and my desire to promote it do not so appear to them. If I am right in my assumption, I can only understand the ban on the interview and my telegrams on the supposition that it is a punishment meted out to me and those who would see me or correspond with me, even on matters that have no connection with civil disobedience, only because I would not set aside the dictates of my conscience and my reason and would not dissociate myself from it. I hope Government of India have not contemplated any such punishment.

---

1 Vide “Telegram to Shaukat Ali”, 7-10-1932.

The Government of India will admit that as a prisoner I have given the authorities willing co-operation. I should like it also to be intelligent. Wherever it is possible, I should know why particular requests are refused. So far as in me lies I endeavour to make no unreasonable requests. They have been generally either in the interests of my health or of public good as distinguished from selfish gratification.

So far as the telegrams which are the subject matter of this letter are concerned, they do not now need to be sent. But occasions for dealing with public matters outside untouchability and having no connection with civil disobedience will undoubtedly arise. I should like therefore not only to know the reasons for the disallowance in the cases mentioned, but also to know the future policy of the Government on similar occasions.¹

I remain,
Yours faithfully,
M. K. GANDHI

Bombay Secret Abstra cts, Home Depart ment, Special Branch , File No. 800
(40) (4), Pt. I, p. 305

¹ The Home Secretary in a communication dated November 16 asked the Bombay Government to convey to Gandhiji the following order: “The Government of India have for exceptional reasons permitted Mr. Gandhi facilities for carrying on his programme in regard to the social and moral problem of the removal of untouchability. But his position as the leader of civil disobedience, which is still his avowed programme, makes it necessary to detain him as a State prisoner, and as a prisoner he cannot expect to take part in the ordinary public life of the country or the discussion of political questions, even though they have no connection with civil disobedience. The Government of India therefore are not prepared to give Mr. Gandhi facilities for dealing with such questions.” Government of India, Home Department, Political, File No. 31/95/32.
600. LETTER TO MANU GANDHI

November 7, 1932

CHI. MANUDI,

You seem to be very lazy and forgetful. After a long interval, you write a letter. You promise that you will not be lazy again, and then forget and break your promise. This is bad. One should always keep one’s promise, and should never make a promise which one cannot keep. You should write a letter every Sunday and post it to the Ashram. You should give in it a report of the work done by you during the preceding week, what you studied, what other work you did and how much yarn you spun. I hope you know that we should wear khadi even at home.

Blessings from

BAPU

From Gujarati: C.W. 1517. Courtesy: Manubehn Mashruwala

601. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

November 7, 1932

CHI. NARANDAS,

I got the mail from you yesterday, the day of the week on which I usually get it. I send with this a letter from Vithal. I have replied to him and told him that he should trust you and forget Liladhar. If his sense of devotion to his father draws him towards Liladhar, he may join him and find out some means of earning. He should not divide his interest between the Ashram and his father. If you think you should reply to anything in his letter, you may do so.

I had a letter from Jethalal too. He does admit his mistake. But he thinks it was unjust to ask him to leave. I see no trace of repentance on his part. I have written to him a rather strong letter and told him that, as long as he does not feel sincere repentance, I would not advise him to return to the Ashram. But I have also said that, if he can satisfy you and if you wished to take him back, I would not oppose you either. I did not wish to waste your time by sending his letter to you, and so tore it up.

Kanti’s letter was painful to read. His body seems to have become very weak. I have, therefore, sent him a wire today and advised him to go to Rajkot. I have advised in the same wire that Prema also should get herself operated upon. Remember one rule of mine. Anybody who gets fever should be given nothing to eat except fruit. If it is necessary that he should be given some nourishing food, he should be given milk only. If this rule is not followed and if the fever afterwards turns out to be typhoid, the consequences can be dangerous.

I also repeat one rule which I have mentioned concerning the experiments in food which are going on. Anybody who finds that a certain item upsets him, may stop eating it for a day or two, and not ask for anything in its place. If this is done, most probably the thing will agree with him afterwards.

I am sure you must have got Madan’s book now.
Chhaganlal has not arrived here yet.

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./I. Also C.W. 8266. Courtesy:
Narandas Gandhi

602. LETTER TO NIRMALABEHN GANDHI

November 7, 1932

Since you do not like the name Kahandas, may I conclude that you do not like the name Ramdas, either? You should then find a new name for Ramdas also—a man of thirty-two. As Ramdas himself is a das, he will like a name only if it ends in das. But choosing such a name will not help. After all, it is you I should please. Suppose we chose the name Nirmaldas? How would you like it? Or Nirmallal?
Send me some other names also which you like. And a new one for Ramdas too.

One should not meet anger with anger or repay ill with ill. One should meet anger with forbearance, repay ill with good, abuse with love and injury with kindness. That is dharma and that is the rule followed in the Ashram. Take care that neither of you depart from it.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhai Diary, Vol. II, pp. 212-3

1 Wife of Ramdas Gandhi
I am replying to your letter today. I had wanted to reply to it much earlier, but while searching for verses [from the Gita] as desired by you, I thought that it would be better if I selected at one time all such verses which you could follow in life without difficulty. I could do that today, and send with this the verses which I have selected. I have mentioned the chapter and number of the verse in each case, so that you can also look up the Gita and see where the verse occurs. You will see that all the verses appeal directly to the heart and are easy even for children to understand, and also that the Lord has assured not once but several times that He himself will awaken knowledge in the man who cultivates bhakti for Him and will provide his needs. Bhakti means selfless service of every living creature, in all of whom dwells the Lord. This includes repetition of Ramanama for one’s own peace of mind. Moreover, you will see that even the verses selected from Chapter VI contain what I wish to teach you just now. The verses from Chapter XI are the sublimest part of Arjuna’s sublime praise of the Lord. And the last verse of Chapter XVIII explains the reward of studying the Gita and of an earnest effort to put its teaching into practice. That is, where there is Shri Krishna, who stands for perfect knowledge, and Arjuna, who stands for action informed with knowledge, everything else will follow. If you meditate over these verses, you will see that one must never worry. A student of the Gita ought not to worry any time. We are enjoined to offer up everything as sacrifice to the Lord. Everything means everything without exception. Do you think anybody who does that would carry a load of worries in his head?

You must have discovered by now whether your disturbed digestion is the result of too much thinking and excessive worry, or whether it indicates the necessity of some change in your food. Do not be overambitious, either, in your reading and study. The resolutions which you have formed in your mind will now go on slowly maturing. You will know your strength when you are released. Why should you worry now whether or not you will really know it? There is no need at all to do so. You will find the meanings of the verses in the Anasaktiyoga, and in any case Surendra is there with you. You may, on your own or on the advice of Surendra or others like him, add some more to the verses which I have selected. I had made a note of the verses which I wished to select. While doing so in my copy of the Gita. I gave them the title “Ramdas Gita”. Let us see how much they help you.

I will now tell you about something which will amuse you. Nimu asked me to suggest a name for your son. Sarita has already christened him Kahanji. I suggested Kahandas, thinking that it would go well with your name and would also satisfy Sarita’s wish. But I should have known that Nimu would not like a name ending with das. She disapproved of Kahandas and asked me to suggest another name, but said that if you approved of Kahandas, she also would accept it. Vasumati, claiming her right, as aunt, to name the child, wrote to me and said that I, being an old man, would naturally suggest a name which an old man would like, but that she would not approve of any such name. She, therefore, asked for a name which would please people in this twentieth century. I have replied to her and told her that it was the exclusive right of an aunt to name a baby and that, therefore, she might give the child any name she liked. I have suggested a few names for her approval such as Fakkadlal, Chhogalashankh, Lakhtarlal, Bardolikar and Sabarmatiwala.¹ In my letter to Nimu, I have suggested Nirmallal, and also told her that, if she did not like the name Kahandas, she was hardly likely to be pleased with the name Ramdas either. I have, therefore, asked her to suggest a new name for you too. I was about to suggest one but checked myself. She should call you Nirmalkant. But we would then be going back to the age of the Ramayana, instead of living in the twentieth century, for in that age husbands were known by the names of the wives. Ramachandra was called Sitapati, Krishna was called Lakshmikant and Mahadev was called Parvatipati. We find a number of such instances. If you wish to throw any light on this profound subject, you are welcome to do so.

You ask how I cultivated non-attachment. The thing was very easy for me since everything I did was spontaneous, that is, arose naturally from my devotion to truth. If one is filled with a desire to serve the whole world, one can easily cultivate non-attachment. If I had chosen to serve only our family, I would certainly have been filled with ignorant love and even developed attachment. I would also have suffered because of illnesses and deaths. But suffering runs away from you if you dedicate yourself to the service of the countless millions. Over whose illness would you worry and over whose death would you grieve? It would be almost impossible to do either. However, non-attachment does not mean insensitivity, or cruelty, for after all one does wish to serve the people, and, therefore, compassion becomes stronger instead of becoming weaker, and one’s efficiency and concentration in work also increases. All these are signs of non-attachment. Moreover, the beauty of the thing lies in the fact that by serving the world, one does not cease to serve one’s family, for service of the family is included in service of the world. I am perfectly sure in my mind that I have served Ba, you and your brothers and other members of the family no whit less than I could have done otherwise. The service was pure because attachment was replaced by equality of mind. I am sure that none of you has lost anything in consequence and that I myself have gained much. Thus I found non-attachment easy to cultivate. The word anasakti occurred to me when, after I had finished the translation of the Gita, Kaka asked me to suggest a title. It is not that I started cultivating non-attachment after realizing that, if one wished to serve the whole world, one could do so only with non-attachment. I understood only gradually that I was acting without attachment. Those around me saw that before I did. When I returned to India, people started describing me as a karmayogi. I used to read and study the Gita even in South Africa. But I had not then thought about the meaning of karmayogi. But other people saw all that in my life, and afterwards I also felt that their description had truth in it. All cannot have such good fortune. I had it because I think I have always loved truth right from my childhood. But you need not go into these deep waters just now. At present you should try to cultivate non-attachment without attachment even to that aim. That is, you should do with a light and happy heart any service for which you get an opportunity and read and study at the same time whatever you can manage. You need not worry either for Nimu or for the children. You will now see, with the new eyes which ‘Ramdas Gita’ will give you, that God is there to worry for them and for you. You should not only believe this with your reason, but have faith in it and live accordingly. You will then be happy and learn everything you wish to. Fix firmly in your mind the Lord’s assurance in Chapter IX, that even the most sinful man will have become a good man if he cultivates single-minded bhakti for Him. The entire world might perish, but anassurance by the Lord never proves false. I think I have written enough.

---

¹ All these are fanciful and extremely funny names.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, pp. 214-7
604. LETTER TO KAPILRAI M. MEHTA

November 7, 1932

CHI. KAPIL,

I got your letter. By all means do only as your conscience bids you. Do nothing about which you have a doubt. Neither Kakasaheb nor I nor anybody else can give a confident opinion without knowing all the facts. The final decision, therefore, should be made by the person himself. This rule applies more especially to you. Take only as much work from your body as it can give. Get well soon. Write to me from time to time.

Blessings from

BAPU

BHAJ KAPILRAI MEHTA
C/O SIT. RASIKLAL VORA
SUB DIVISIONAL OFFICER
GOVT. AGRICULTURE FARM
HADAPSAR

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 3971. Also C.W. 1599. Courtesy: Shashilekha Mehta

605. LETTER TO RAMIBEHN K. PAREKH

November 7, 1932

CHI. RAMI1.

You wrote after a long time. And that, too, when coaxed by Bali2. Am I right? Is it not true that you would never think yourself of writing to me?

I shall be happy if you and your family are happy. I shall welcome your letters even if you write them when urged by somebody else. But Kunverji is not lazy like you. Why does he not write? Ask him to write. Can you meet the expenses of living in Bombay? Do the air and water of the city agree with you?

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: S.N. 9718. Also C.W. 699. Courtesy: Navajivan Trust

1 Harilal Gandhi’s daughter
2 Balibehn M. Adalaja, Harilal’s sister-in-law
606. LETTER TO BALIBEHN M. ADALAJA

November 7, 1932

CHI. BALI,

You wrote to me after a long time. But I don’t blame you. I believe you are carrying a heavy burden. I would not find fault with you if, in the midst of all that work, you cannot write purely formal letters. It seems you live only to look after your sister’s children. That is also one way, and a good one, of following the path of dharma. Who could have prevented you if you had chosen to be selfish and confine yourself to your own affair? Instead, you have chosen a path of service, however modest. May God bless you.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 5057. Courtesy: Manubehn Mashruwala

607. INTERVIEW TO THE PRESS

November 7, 1932

In a special interview given to the Associated Press inside the Yeravda Jail Mr. Gandhi emphasized that South India has become the storm centre and explained the reasons why the Guruvayur question was worth the price he had expressed his determination to pay.

. . . Replying to preliminary enquires he said, for the present his campaign would be confined to the issue of a statement but he was in correspondence with the Birla Committee and would meet them at the end of the month when other plans would be decided.

As asked about Dr. Ambedkar’s declaration that the temple-entry was not worth risking his life, Mr. Gandhi said:

I do not take the same light view that Dr. Ambedkar does of the temple-entry question. In my opinion it is a deciding test as to whether the orthodox Hindu mind has responded to the call of time or not and whether it is prepared to purge Hinduism of the blackmark of untouchability. Nothing in my opinion will strike the imagination of the Hindu mass mind including Harijans as throwing open all public temples to them precisely on the same terms as caste Hindus. I can understand Dr. Ambedkar’s comparative indifference, but I am not thinking of a few cultured men belonging to the depressed classes, but I am thinking of the uncultured, dumb many. After all Hindu temples play a most important part in the life of the masses and I who have been trying all my life to identify myself with the most illiterate and downtrodden cannot be satisfied until all temples are open to outcastes of Hindu humanity.

1 The interview took place in the Superintendent’s office. Also present in the room were Mahadev Desai, Pyarelal and P. Kodandarao of the Servants of India Society.

This, however, does not mean that I belittle in any shape or form other disabilities under which they are labouring. I feel about them just as keenly as Dr. Ambedkar. Only I feel the evil is so deep-rooted that one must not make the choice between different disabilities, but must tackle them all at once. That is the burden of my correspondence with the Anti-untouchability League also. The Guruvayur temple has come in my way by accident and I have no option left to me. After all, Mr. Kelappan is in my opinion one of the noblest of India’s silent servants. A distinguished public career was open to him any day. He is a well-known worker of Malabar but he deliberately threw in his lot with unapproachables and invisibles. I had the pleasure and honour of working with him at the time of the Vykom Satyagraha1. Long before that time and ever since he has been devoting himself to the uplift of suppressed humanity. As the public know, after long waiting he made a fixed determination to give up his life in an attempt to have the Guruvayur temple opened to Harijans.

I discovered, however, a flaw in his fast and I immediately pointed it out to him and although he believed that victory was within sight, he nobly responded and let it slip from his hands; he retraced his steps and suspended his fast. When I telegraphed to him2 I bound myself to fast with him if resumption became necessary on the termination of three months’ notice he gave. I should be an unworthy servant of India and an unworthy comrade if I now flinched and abandoned Kelappan to his fate, but there is something more than the life of a comrade or my own personal honour. Everyone recognizes that the depressed classes question has to be solved now or never, not at any rate within the present generation or several generations to come. There are thousands of men and women like me who cling to 1 This took place in March-April 1925 and was aimed at having certain roads thrown open to untouchables from which they had been barred.

Hinduism, because they believe that there is in it the ampest scope for mental, moral and spiritual expansion. This bar sinister put upon nearly sixty million human beings is a standing demonstration against that claim. Men like me feel that untouchability is no integral part of Hinduism. It is an excrescence, but if it is found to be otherwise, and if the Hindu mass mind really hugs untouchability, reformers like me have no other option but to sacrifice ourselves on the altar of our convictions.

I have patiently and silently listened to the taunt that such a fast is tantamount to suicide and I don’t believe it to be such. On the contrary for men with deep religious convictions there is no other outlet for the soul than this final sacrifice when every other effort seems perfectly hopeless. This campaign therefore in my opinion is an acid test of what I have claimed for Hinduism and I can only repeat what I said at the Round Table Conference that Hinduism dies if untouchability lives and untouchability has to die if Hinduism is to live and today I make bold to say that there are hundreds if not thousands of Indian men and women who would lay down their lives even as Kelappan and I propose to do to vindicate the claim for Hinduism that it is not a narrow creed or dogma, but a living faith, designed to satisfy the most exacting conscience of the deepest thinker and the godliest person.

The Bombay Chronicle, 8-11-1932

608. LETTER TO M. G. BHANDARI

November 8, 1932

DEAR MAJOR BHANDARI,

During the fast week there were two telegrams received from Egypt, one from Madam Zaghloul and the other from Nahas Pasha. I cabled suitable replies to both.¹ During that week all the important telegrams and my replies to them were handed to the Press. But just at present I observe that garbled versions of the telegrams mentioned above in a somewhat ludicrous form are going the round of the Press as if they were the true versions. They appear to be translations from Egyptian vernacular newspapers. I should like to supply the Press with true copies. Will you please ascertain from the Government whether these copies may be supplied by me to the Press? Of course they have reference to untouchability. I enclose herewith the text, barring Nahas Pasha’s wire which for the moment I cannot trace among my papers. The cutting herewith from the Indian Social Reformer containing the garbled version will give some idea of the original.

¹ Vide “Telegram to Hemprabha Das Gupta” 23-9-1932.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

Bombay Secret Abstracts, Home Department, Special Branch, File No. 800(40)(3), Pt. III, p. 353

609. LETTER TO M. G. BHANDARI

November 8, 1932

DEAR MAJOR BHANDARI,

You have been receiving on my behalf the Vedic Magazine a Hindi monthly, Purushartha—a Marathi monthly, both religious publications, Indian Review of Madras—Hon’ble Mr. Natesan’s monthly and possibly other magazines.

Now that I am permitted to do propaganda work regarding untouchability, I shall want these and other publications in order to enable me to keep myself in touch with public opinion as expressed in the Press and to combat, where necessary, criticism that may appear therein.

You seem to doubt whether these papers and magazines that are already coming and which may come in answer to my appeal may under the recent decision of the Government of India be given to me. Will you please obtain the Government interpretation in the matter as early as possible?

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

Bombay Secret Abstracts, Home Department, Special Branch, File No. 800(40)(3), Pt. III, p. 363
610. LETTER TO RADHAKANT MALAVIYA

November 8, 1932

What has affected me in your letter is the information you gave me about Messrs Chintamani and Kunzru. You have therefore to help me to get their confirmation and their agreement or to leave me free to get it.

Mahadevibhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 217

611. LETTER TO V. S. SRINIVASA SASTRI

November 8, 1932

DEAR FRIEND AND BROTHER,

You will have seen that Guruvayur is being made the centre of attack by the self-styled sanatanists. There is not much time to lose. I do not know how far your health will let you organize the battle on behalf of the reformers. To the extent it is possible I would like you to put your great Sanskrit learning at the disposal of the cause. I am sure you have been thinking of the thing yourself. But I could not restrain myself from sending you a line when I am writing to many friends about the impending storm.

It gives me great joy that I am able to take some work out of the Servants here.

I do hope you are better.

With love,

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

Letters of Srinivasa Sastri, p. 243

---

1 The addressee had written: “Fasting is the worst form of coercion. No one is satisfied with the Pact, not even Chintamani and Kunzru.”

2 According to the source, Sastri, writing to a friend, said he had “written two letters clearly stating my dissent from his views and my disapproval of his threatened fast”. Sastri also said he favoured the temple-entry of the untouchables.

3 Members of the Servants of India Society
612. LETTER TO JAMNALAL BAJAJ

November 8, 1932

CHIL JAMNALAL,

Your letter was delivered to me just now. It was immediately read out to me and I am now dictating this reply. May you have, on your birthday, all the blessings you desire, basketfuls of them. Why should we fear death, which comes to all sooner or later—to the great and the humble, to the white and the black, to human beings and other creatures? Why grieve over it either? I often feel that death must be a less painful event than birth. I leave aside the pain which the baby suffers in the mother’s womb before birth. But all of us know the suffering in this world which commences from the moment of birth. Consider the helplessness of the baby at the moment of birth—every baby as helpless as any other. On the other hand, if our life has been pure we shall have no such experience at the moment of death. A baby does not seek knowledge, nor can it have any. At the time of death, on the other hand, it is not only possible for one to be in a state of union with the Brahman but we actually know that many persons die in such a state. Birth always means entering a world of suffering, whereas death can be complete deliverance from suffering. We can thus think from many points of view about the beauty and the benefits of death, and can also meet our death in that spirit. I bless you that your death may be of this type. This wish includes everything else which is for your good. The two friends join me in wishing this. Even after knowing all the facts about your health, I adhere to the view which I have expressed. If you are permitted to obtain your food at your own expense, I see nothing wrong in your doing so. We should regard our body as a trust, and it is our duty as its trustee to take care of it to the best of our ability. You should not ask for or accept even a grain of jaggery to gratify your palate, but I see nothing wrong in your trying and getting even the costliest variety of grapes if you need them as medicine and if they can be had. You need not, therefore, feel unhappy if you have to eat such food. If we can, we should also help others who may be placed in similar circumstances to secure such food. In my view you don’t require all the wheat that is supplied to you. I also think it desirable for you to banish jaggery altogether from your food. Your body does not require it at all. It is better to take innocent honey instead. Mixing any form of sugar in milk affects its digestibility. It would be better to increase the quantity of milk instead. You are doing right in eating butter and not olive oil. The olive oil available in India is not always pure, and of course it cannot be fresh. Moreover, olive oil does not contain the vitamins which butter does. The vegetables which you eat should always be green vegetables. Potatoes and similar vegetables are practically a substitute for rotli. They contain starch. You require very little starch, and whatever little you require you will get from wheat. You should not eat pulses in any circumstances. If you eat a sufficient quantity of butter, two pounds of milk will be enough for you. Whether you should increase or diminish their quantity will depend upon your weight at the time. You should go on increasing the quantity of either or both to as much as you can digest, till your weight becomes steady.
Among the green vegetables, gourd, pumpkin, the different kinds of edible leaves, cabbage, cauliflower, tender bean-pods and brinjal are considered good. The wheat flour should be whole. If the wheat has been properly cleaned before it is ground, no portion of the flour should be thrown away. Among fruits, grapes, mosambis, oranges, pomegranates, apples and pineapple are beneficial for health. Some experiments being made in America indicate that a meal should not consist of a variety of articles. Fruit has the most nourishing value if it is eaten alone, and the best practice is to eat it when the stomach is empty. There is even a saying in English to the effect that fruit in the morning is gold and in the afternoon silver. Our first meal, therefore, should consist only of fruit, though there would be no harm if it is preceded by a glass of warm water the first thing in the morning. If you can get permission to live all the twenty-four hours of the day in open air, it would be worth while to secure it. It would help you if you can slowly do breathing exercises in open air. You need not at all be afraid of the cold at night. It will have no harmful effect on your health if you have properly covered yourself up to the neck and wound a piece of cloth over the head so as to keep the ears covered. It is essential that the lungs should be supplied with the purest air the whole day and night. You should expose your body to the sun in the morning for as long as you can bear. Discuss all these suggestions with Dr. Contractor and then do what seems best to you.

I hope Madhavji is happy and comfortable in every way. Give my blessings and regards of all three of us to the co-workers who are with you in the jail. Probably you know what is going on here in regard to untouchability. You can send any suggestions which occur to you. You will be permitted by the authorities there to do so.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 2903
613. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

November 8, 1932

CHI. NARANDAS,

I got your letter, but did not get Bhau’s. The thieves who carried away mattresses, etc., must have been from among those who knew the Ashram. Cannot the things lying in the red bungalow be removed? When the thieves have become neighbours, how long will you go on increasing the number of persons keeping watch at night. Is it not possible to meet the thieves themselves? Do Ratilal and Champa understand all this?

What is the total loss?
What happened to Radha all at once?
I have little faith in injections.

[PS.]

We have a book in the Ashram entitled Vedamen Brahmacarya. Ask Prema to find it out and send it to me.

From a microfilm to the Gujarati: M.M.U./I. Also C.W. 8267. Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi

614. LETTER TO KIKI LALWANI

November 8, 1932

It is true that my companions know no such thing as rest. What can one do? God himself has said in the Gita that He does not relax even for a moment, that He needs neither sleep nor food nor drink. How then can any rest be granted to us?

[From Hindi]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 218

615. A LETTER

November 8, 1932

A serious obstacle in the way of those treading the path of truth is the difficulty of deciding what to accept as Shastras. What is a man of simple faith to do when he comes across a plethora of books written in Sanskrit and passing for smritis and also utterances that contradict them? For this reason I have chosen for myself the most universal doctrine of Hinduism, namely, that any conduct that is contrary to truth and ahimsa is to be eschewed and any book that violates these principles is not a Shastra.

[From Hindi]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 218

616. STATEMENT ON UNTOUCHABILITY—IV

November 9, 1932

A correspondent writes as follows:

I consider your last fast to have been coercion of the worst type. I do not want to conceal from you my feeling about Yeravda Pact. I know my view is shared by public men who, because of their respect for your personality and because of your detention in the Yeravda Prison, did not like to say anything in public against your action in bringing about the Pact. I consider the Pact to be a public misfortune which would never have been brought about but for your unfortunate fast. I know of a very esteemed friend of yours who said that if the refusal had not meant your certain death he would never have given his consent to the Pact. There is a large number of thinking Hindus who regret having had to accept the Pact, as they think that there would have been no necessity for it if you had only accepted in London what you have done now.

In a statement you have said, “It was against these millions that my fast was undertaken.” I take it that was your intention but in actual result it was not these millions but others who had no course left open but to suspend their judgment and feeling in the matter and agree to terms to which nothing in the world would have made them agree, if their refusal had not meant losing your valued life. It was their spontaneous love that brought about the transformation inside of five days and brought into being the Yeravda Pact. If this is a correct statement of facts, will it not be more correct to say that it was only the fear of your death by starvation which brought about the Pact? Remembering the circumstances under which it was brought about I think you will recognize that much need not be made of it; if the Pact is not carried out in its fullness, much less would there be any justification for you to embark on a second fast.

It gives me no pleasure to have to criticize a public man of your eminence, but the occasion is such that to keep quiet will not be quite honest.

1 The correspondent was Radhakant Malaviya; vide p. 380, and “Letter to C. Y. Chintamani”, 11-11-1932.
Your assumption that the masses whom you have addressed on the question of untouchability have accepted your views on that question, simply because they did not publicly oppose your views, is not correct. Because of their respect for your great personality and because of your political leadership they would hear in silence and, however much they may be opposed to your views, as I know many of them are, at least in Northern India, they would still consider it their duty to give you a respectful hearing. As you are aware, these people are not very vocal and they do not go out of their way to oppose the views of those who differ from them, and specially if the views are expressed by one of your eminence.

I have removed from the letter unnecessary paragraphs and names of public men referred to by the correspondent. It would be a matter of great grief to me if public men the correspondent mentions really suppressed their own opinions and accepted proposals which but for the threat of my death they would never have endorsed. If they acted as the correspondent suggests, they rendered a great disservice to the country and failed to appreciate the purely religious character of the fast. In public life one has often to perform the painful duty of sacrificing friends for the sake of truth or public weal.

And what was there in the Pact that these friends considered it to be highly objectionable? Surely not reservation of seats; not joint electorate, nor the method of nomination of candidates by primary election, as it has been called. They could not object to the resolution restoring to Harijans social and religious rights, of which they have cruelly remained dispossessed for ages. The only thing remaining is the number of seats allotted to them, but more than that was given to them by the Rajah-Moonje Pact, and as I have already said in a previous statement, caste Hindus could never give Harijans too many seats, if they really believed them to be their own kith and kin, whom they had hitherto kept under their heels. Sorry indeed is the outlook for them if what the Pact has given them is regarded as an undeserved concession wrung from reluctant caste Hindus by my fast.

Therefore, if the information given by my correspondent turns but to be true, I would hold my fast to be doubly justified. I should not care to live as a member of a society which is chary even of doing a small and tardy measure of justice to its outcasts, who are so through no fault of their own, and my fast was trebly justified if the further statement made by my correspondent is true that millions of whom I have been writing as a matter of fact never endorsed my vehement condemnation of untouchability and that they remained silent or even signified approval purely out of their respect for my “great personality” or my “political leadership”. Life in the midst of such falsity would be a burden to me. The sooner public men and people realize the necessity of resisting and asserting themselves even against so called Mahatmas like myself, the better it would be for themselves, the country and for men like me. I should gladly fast even to have such a cleansing of the atmosphere.

My correspondent’s is a timely contribution to the movement. Those who are in it should know the implications both of the movement and the prospective fast. I can only repeat with all the emphasis at my command that my fast is not intended to coerce anyone to act against what he may consider to be the best interests of society or country. My fast is not against persons whom I can name or number. It is intended imperceptibly and unconsciously to affect and agitate the millions whom I have in mind and between whom and me, I believe, an indissoluble bond exists. How such fasts work I do know from personal experience gained more than once.

My correspondent suggests that “there would have been no necessity for the Pact if I had only accepted in London what I have done now”. I must not rake up the past beyond saying that I could not have done in London what it was possible to do in India. The correspondent although he was in London at the time simply does not know all the facts that are in my possession.

Let not the public, however, run away with the idea that I have many letters protesting against the Pact. So far as I can remember, this is the only letter of its kind. There are two or three letters complaining of coercion but none suggesting that, therefore, anything was given to Harijans that was not their due, and against this one letter I have hundreds of letters and telegrams warmly approving of the fast itself and the Pact. My closest associates both here and in the West with one or two exceptions have endorsed it and themselves felt its spiritual effect. But according to my wont and in order to keep the cause I espouse free from any harm, I publish letters containing hostile criticism, especially when it comes from men whom I know to be guided by friendly motives, as my correspondent undoubtedly is.

As I was handing in this statement, I received a wire from the ever-vigilant secretary of the All-India Anti-Untouchability League, pointing out that the total population of untouchables in India is not sixty millions but under forty. I am sorry for having given an incorrect figure, although Sjt. Thakkar corrected me even during the fast.

The Bombay Chronicle, 10-11-1932

617. TELEGRAM TO THE ZAMORIN OF CALICUT

[November 9, 1932]

It was not without pain I read your statement in the press today. My opinion is that the assurance given by you to Kelappan was an assurance given to the public. Whether Kelappan was discourteous or not I am sure you will not refuse to carry out a public duty because there is no appreciation on the part of a public worker. I would therefore urge you not to take up the irreconcilable attitude you have taken in your statement. But if you believe that temple entry by avarna Hindus is a long overdue reform you will set about overcoming every difficulty.

Gandhi

The Hindu, 12-11-1932

618. LETTER TO MIRABEHN

November 9, 1932

Chh. Mira,

Your letter as usual.

As against your loss of weight of one pound I show increase of nearly 3 lb., having shown nearly 102 lb. today. It is due to my ability to take more milk. I turn a portion into what may be called cheese and take it with bread. How long I shall be able to do justice to it I do not know.

You should get rid of your constipation at once. And for this fruit should be taken on an empty stomach. No other food should be taken for two hours thereafter. The second thing to do when one is

1 From entry in “Diary, 1932” under this date
2 This was the Zamorin’s letter published in The Hindu, 7-11-1932; Vide “Interview to “The Hindu”, 12-11-1932.
constipated is to avoid protein foods, i.e., bread and also milk, and take green vegetables cooked alternately with fruit. That was how I built up my body after the fast. And latterly Vallabhbhai has been correcting his constipation, heaviness and cough by such non-nutritious fat-free and starch-free food. It sustains one’s weight fairly well. Dried fruit may be taken of course. It may be wise not to mix dried fruit with fresh. Thus one may take four meals, one consisting of say pomegranate and musambis, the other of vegetables, e.g., dudhi and tomatoes, third of dried figs or dates or prunes soaked in water over-night and warmed or cold, the fourth may consist of the same vegetable or pumpkin and lemons squeezed on it or tomatoes repeated or it may consist of salad made of lettuce and tomatoes or grated carrots. Such food repeated for a few days should remove obstinate constipation. Sometimes mere omission of bread or milk may answer. I take it that your bread is real wholemeal bread and when it is chapati it is made of unsifted whole-wheat flour. The wheat has to be thoroughly cleaned before it is ground. The whole of the bran is absolutely necessary if one is to get the fullest advantage from wheat. These observations are simply to be used as a help and must be corrected from your own experience.

Yes, I am devoting practically the whole of my time to untouchability work. The elbows continue to give pain when used in a particular way. Most of my letters I now dictate. For the few I write I use the hands alternately. This seems to answer the purpose. I have cut down the spinning just now to 100 rounds from 200. Of course there is not the slightest cause for anxiety over this pain in the elbows. They need rest and nothing else. With returning strength and the filling in of muscle, probably the pain will disappear.

I am glad Kisen is still with you. Let her be most rigid about your pronunciation.

We are all well and all send you both love.

BAPU

[PS.]

You will be interested in the enclosed.¹ Wonderful how even such a thing should come to me. I am one of the family.

From the original: C.W. 6249. Courtesy: Mirabehn. Also G.N. 9715

¹ This is not available.
DEAR MOTIBABU,

Just now I must dictate my letters. Your book has been received. Mahadev knows Bengali quite well. The book was received today. He has already commenced reading it and fallen in love with it. He will read to me extracts from it as soon as possible.

Your question about varnashrama you will find somewhat answered in one of the statements issued to the Press. In my letter to Sureshbabu I never said that varnashrama was in any shape or form an evil, but I did say that caste was a social evil and had to go some day or other. I draw a sharp distinction between varna and caste. All I have written before on this subject I hold by with perhaps this exception: I have vaguely expressed in my previous writings what I have come to see now clearly, namely, that the four varnas are no longer in actual working order, even as the four Ashrams are not. Hence at the present moment there is only one varna in existence. We are all Shudras and if we can bring ourselves to believe this, the merger of the Harijans in Savarana Hindus becomes incredibly simple and in course of time, we might be able to reconstruct the old varnas. I also seem to see more clearly than before that the law our ancestors discovered was not that the varnas were four and were always to remain four, but that everyone had to follow his own varna which is most nearly expressed by the word profession in English. It was no part of varnadharma to regulate dining or marrying, varna determined the profession. Custom naturally grew up of people of the same varna restricting marriage to that varna. Restriction on inter-dining was of a much later growth, but marrying outside one’s varna did not entail forfeiture of the varna. I hope to develop my idea of varnadharma in the statements I am issuing, but I think I have said sufficient in my letter to enable you to understand my position.

Love to you all of the Sangha.

M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat: G.N. 11039
620. LETTER TO VALJI AND MAHENDRA DESAI

November 9, 1932

Bhai Shri Valji,

I got your note written on a slip of paper. Vallabhbhai went through every page of your booklet carefully and said to me: “What came upon Valji? Can anyone who cares write this kind of thing? Only a Christian can. If Valji wants to write, he should write something new which our people can understand.” Mahadev has not offered much criticism as he has not gone further than reading the chapter headings, but he will read the book now. I will let you know his opinion after he has read it. Personally, I do not think any book should be given free. If, however, a person who requires a particular book cannot afford to buy it, you may supply a copy to him from your stock.

Bapu

Chi. Manu,

This time your handwriting was better. Do write to me regularly.

Bapu

Shri Valji Desai
P. O. Sanjoli
Simla

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 7443. Courtesy: Valji G. Desai

621. LETTER TO FULCHAND B. SHAH

November 9, 1932

Bhai Fulchand,

This time I got your letter later than I had expected, but I am relieved now that I have got it. I had heard about the illness there, and hence I was all the more eager to hear from you. I do get reports from Ahmednagar. All the prisoners are now out of danger. They are being looked after well enough. Gangabehn and others even visited them. All the three of us are well here. I have almost regained my strength.

1 The source does not indicate which Fulchand Shah this is. However, the reference to Ahmednagar suggests Fulchand Bapuji Shah who was at this time a prisoner in Visapur jail. There had been some conflict between the political prisoners and jail authorities there.
Devdas is in Prayag and Pyarelal is in Bombay. Jamnalalji keeps moderately good health. He is suffering from some ear disease, but there is no cause for anxiety. Ba is at Sabarmati.

Blessings from
BAPU

From Gujarati: C.W. 9466. Courtesy: Chandrakant F. Shah

622. LETTER TO ANASUYABEHN SARABHAI

YERAVDA MANDIR,
November 9, 1932

CHI. ANASUYABEHN,

I enclose a letter from the mill-hands. I have advised them to see you and to act as you suggest.

Blessings from
BAPU

From the Gujarati original: S. N. 32773

623. LETTER TO SECRETARY, ANTI-UNTACTHABILITY LEAGUE, AHMEDABAD

[Before November 10, 1932]¹

We should not place the Depressed Classes in a position where they might be insulted or injured. We should place ourselves in such a position for their sake. . . .

This proposal ² is excellent but if public opinion is opposed to it, I see the risk involved in this experiment.

The Hindu, 10-11-1932

¹ The report in the source bears the date November 10.
² The addressee in his letter had informed Gandhiji that the League proposed to appoint persons belonging to Depressed Classes to serve drinking-water to passers-by on public roads.
624. LETTER TO RAMANANDA CHATTERJEE

November 10, 1932

DEAR RAMANAND BABU,

I thank you for copies of the annual reports... for the improvement of the Backward Classes of Bengal and Assam. Glancing through the page of the reports I note the steady progress made by the . . . in the work of amelioration. May its efforts bear increasing fruit from day to day.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

From the original: C.W. 9581. Courtesy: Santa Devi

625. LETTER TO BHUDEB MUKERJI

Rewritten November 10, 1932

DEAR FRIEND,

Though you have absolved me from having to write to you in reply to your letter, I must not avail myself of your kindness. You have evidently ascribed to the workers against untouchability much more than they have themselves claimed. No one has ever thought of destroying varnashrama dharma. And you are wholly wrong in thinking that the movement is carried on by or is confined to the English speaking people. It is a mass movement in which even utterly illiterate men and women are taking part with religious zeal, and are you sure that varnadharma and Ashrama dharma are being observed to any appreciable degree by even those who regard themselves as orthodox? Again I do not know what you wish to convey by the expression “levelling”, and you write of forcible levelling. I do not know that anybody has used force to level down anybody else, whatever the latter expression may mean. And you are surely libelling the untouchables when you ascribe to them vices from which the touchables, you evidently claim, are free. Not all the untouchables trade in toddy or liquor dealing, and what is worse-drinking or selling intoxicating liquors? Have you any personal experience of the private

1 Illegible in the source
2 ibid
3 An ex-lecturer of Calcutta University; he had written to Gandhiji on October 30 (S.N. 18596). life of untouchables? Do you consider them to be guilty of the hideous immorality of the lives of many touchables who disgrace themselves and Hinduism? And who is responsible for whatever is bad about untouchables? I refrain from saying more. From your letter-head I see that you are yourself a distinguished product of English learning and have obtained an upadhi for your knowledge of Sankhya and Vedanta. I have never seen anything in either Sankhya or Vedanta that teaches a man to hold in contempt his fellow-beings as you seem to do in almost every line of your letter. And my grief is enhanced by my strong suspicion that you have never cared to study the lives of those unfortunate fellow-Hindus whom you and I and other Hindus who have arrogated superiority for themselves have ground down to dust. I invite you to read the signs of the times and join me in thinking that purification of Hinduism will not come through arrogance and slander of innocent people.

Yours sincerely,

BHUEDEB MUKERJI
CALCUTTA

From a photostat: S.N. 18609

626. LETTER TO G. S. NARASIMHACHARI

November 10, 1932

DEAR FRIEND,

Your letter of 23rd ultimo was received in due course, but for reasons you now know I was unable to reply earlier. Students, if they will work heartily and intelligently, can do much in spite of the orthodox opposition. They can go to the quarters of the untouchables, fraternize with them on equal terms, understand their difficulties and remove all those in their power to remove, bring them medical help, teach them the laws of cleanliness, conduct night and day schools for them, invite them to their games and take their children for outings. Those difficulties which they cannot remove, they can bring to the notice of the local branch of the newly-established League or write to the central body, make a thoroughly critical and scholarly study of their conditions and publish it in pamphlet form. This is the most

1 Secretary of the Andhra University College Telugu Association, Vizagapatnam effective and the easiest way students can serve without interfering with their studies. But if they have to face opposition from elders even in doing this silent service, they must stand their ground, without being irritated and without weakening.

Do please let me know whether you have begun this work and if you have, how many are doing it.

The Bombay Chronicle, 7-12-1932

627. LETTER TO K. NATARAJAN

November 10, 1932

From what I can see and feel, the battle at Guruvayur is to attain all-India importance and orthodoxy is to concentrate all its fire upon the temple. I should welcome it. It should result in much greater purification than I had expected. But that means that all that is best in Hinduism has to consolidate itself and resist the orthodox onrush. I am anxious therefore for you, if it is possible for you and if you feel with me, to throw yourself heart and soul into the movement. But I observed from your writings on the last fast that you were opposed to such fasting. I hold very strong views about it and feel that it is not only a legitimate weapon, but that for one who will not resort to violence in any shape or form it becomes obligatory under given circumstances. And now that I am free to receive visitors in connection with this movement I would like you to see me any time next week, at, say, 1 o’clock, so that we can discuss the ethics of penitential public fasts and see whether we cannot agree. You know me enough to feel sure that if in the course of our discussion I discover my own error I shall have no hesitation in retracing my step.

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, pp. 221-2

---

1 Editor, Indian Social Reformer
628. LETTER TO RABINDRANATH TAGORE

November 10, 1932

DEAR GURUDEV,

You must have seen the statement I have circulated to the Press.1 I want your blessings, if I can have them, for this further effort. I do not know whether you feel that this effort is, if possible, purer than before. The last fast had a political tinge about it and superficial critics were able to say that it was aimed at the British Government. This time if the ordeal has to come, it will not be possible to give any political colour to it. You will of course recall that the last fast was broken on the clearest possible notice that I might have to resume it if there was any breach of faith by the so-called caste Hindus. The prospective fast about Guruvayur temple is absolutely a point of honour. It is being made by the orthodox section the centre of attack and is being given an all-India significance. I rather like it. But it makes it all the more necessary for the liberalizing influences to be collected together and set in motion in order to overthrow the monster of untouchability. I want your whole-hearted co-operation if you feel as I do.

I hope you are keeping well.

With deep love,

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat: G.N. 4635. Also Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, pp.220-1

629. LETTER TO AMBALAL

November 10, 1932

I agree with most of your views about untouchability, but the reasons which you have given for refusing to join the Committee have not convinced me. I do believe that Hindus who are known to be orthodox should join such a committee. If, however, as a result of waiting for such Hindus to join, the very work for which the Committee has been formed is held up, we should do without them, and, irrespective of whether or not the Committee includes such

1 The reference is to “Statement on Untouchability-I”; Vide “Statement on Untouchability”, 4-11-1932.
2 Presumably Ambalal Sarabhai

380 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
Hindus, those who have a religious disposition and want religious reforms as well must join the Committee.

The sense of responsibility which a person feels and the obligation which he accepts in joining a body, he would not feel or accept if he did not join it, however much he tried.

And now about the point on which we differ. Though I admit the usefulness and necessity of meetings, processions, speeches, conferences, etc., I believe that without constructive work we shall not succeed in eradicating untouchability completely nor will large numbers of Harijans learn to hate it. It is certainly true that such work will require an army of voluntary workers, both men and women, and much money. If, however, you recognize the imperative necessity of the work, you should not refuse to attempt it merely out of fear that we might not get the needed money and such a large number of workers. I think that, in a great movement like this, we cannot ignore a single aspect of the task.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, pp. 222-3

630. LETTER TO RUKMINIDEVI AND BENARSILAL BAZAJ

November 10, 1932

CHI. RUKMINI,

I got your letter. The right method to follow for writing letters or doing any other work is to fix the time for every work. If you really wish to write every week, then you should fix in your mind a day and an hour when you will write. Then the thought will not be a burden on your mind and you will be able to write regularly without any difficulty. What is the name of the vaid from Mathura? Do you get cow’s milk there? Is the ghee made from cow’s or buffalo’s milk?

CHI. BENARSI,

I saw your signature. Father writes to me every week. How is his work prospering? What does he do in Dublin?

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 9144
631. LETTER TO MANILAL GANDHI

November 10, 1932

CHI. MANILAL,

You returned from Madras very soon. It was very good that you stayed with Sir Kurma. Sastri is a man of few words. Don’t believe what people may say against him.

You will find with this a letter from Pragji. Read it and think over it. Do not get angry with him. Try to understand his point of view and then write to me. I will write to him only after I hear from you. You may observe that what he writes is quite the opposite of what you complain.

If you have promised to return there in December, you must start making preparations.

Reply to me by return of post.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 4800

632. LETTER TO RAIHANA TYABJI

November 10, 1932

BELOVED DAUGHTER RAIHANA,

I hope you received my postcard. My fear has come true. Since you write to me regularly, whenever I do not get a letter from you I feel uneasy. When you are not well you can ask Father or Mother to write a postcard. Whatever may happen, I certainly do not wish that you yourself should write to me when you are ill. How did you fall ill? Did you overwork? You ought not to fall ill. I hope you are better now. You need not reply to this letter yourself. It will do if Father drops me a postcard. I have not received Hamida’s letter so far. Khuda Hafiz.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Urdu: S.N. 9666

382

THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
633. LETTER TO ANTI-UNTOUCHABILITY LEAGUE, UDIPU

November 11, 1932

I am quite clear in my mind that there is no occasion for you to start satyagraha just now. You have to cultivate public opinion in your favour by the gentlest means. You should see whether the temple-going population is in favour of Harijans being admitted to the temple on the same terms as the other, and you should also remember that temple-entry is not the only thing to be done. You have to ascertain the condition of untouchables in your neighbourhood in every walk of life, make a scientific study and pass the results of your study on to me, alleviating at the same time such distress among the Harijans as you are capable of doing.

634. LETTER TO C. Y. CHINTAMANI

November 11, 1932

I have no doubt that you guessed who the author of the letter referred to in the fourth statement1 on untouchability was. The names referred to therein were those of your good self and Pandit Hridayanath Kunzru. Radhakant, the writer, has now given me permission upon my request to disclose his name to you and Pandit Kunzru. Before I say anything, it is due to you that I should know from you whether you actually felt coerced by my fast and acted against your conscience. I am writing to Pandit Kunzru also.2

635. LETTER TO BASANTI DEVI DAS

November 11, 1932

If you are at all following the papers you must have noticed that all the dark reactionary forces are being brought together to impede the progress of purification. It is therefore time for all that is clean and uplifting in Hinduism to combine together and make a united effort to overthrow the many-headed monster of untouchability. Will

2 This letter is not available, but according to the source the contents of the two letters were identical.
you respond? If you will not summon up courage enough to write a letter, I dare not accuse you of laziness. I hope you will have the courage to send me a wire. It was only last week that I invited Urmila Devi¹ to go down to the South in answer to a summons from Kerala. She at once wired consent. Will you do likewise? I do not say go down South, but I do want you to promise to take a due share in the uplift work. The field of work shall be chosen by you unless you will leave that also to me.

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 228

636. LETTER TO ESTHER MENON

November 11, 1932

MY DEAR CHILD,

I have your latest letter telling me how in ecstasy² you would have run to the telegraph office to wire to me and how you subsequently realized that that would have been wrong if only because we are poor people and all the money we had, had to be held in trust for God’s service. And I had your long love letter which you had sent to the Ashram address.

Well, the fast was well worth it even for enabling Menon to give up smoking. The value lies in having given up a thing which had so possessed him. I know that many young men and young women, old men and old women were moved to such restraint and self-denial during the fast week. It shows that it was from God.

I saw and we all admired the group photo with Andrews in it. It was very good. And the bare-bodied Tangai. She looks a perfect picture.

I expect in your next letter to see the account of your visit to the diseased sister.

I had a long letter from the Sunfield School people giving me an account of the new buildings.

You must not trifle with your body by putting into it things that will not suit it. You cannot build your body on pulses. You do not need them at all. Your diet must consist largely of milk, eggs (since

¹ Sister of C. R. Das
² At the news of the termination of the fast by Gandhiji you do take them and it is well you do) and whole-meal bread and fruit and green vegetables, salads, tomatoes, spinach, marrow and the like. Even as a soldier keeps his arms clean and in order so must we keep our arms (God-given bodies) clean and in perfect order.

I have almost regained my strength and am taking normal food. Mira writes regularly every week and is keeping well. Devdas is much better but is overworking himself and so is Pyarelal. Mahadev of course is with me. Tilakam is at the Ashram. He is a good young man. He is not strong in body.

Enclosed is a letter for the young friend from Denmark. Ba is at the Ashram. I think she has aged more than I have, though she is wonderfully active. Her mind gets easily tired. She worries too much.

Love to you all and in addition kisses to the children.

BAPU

From a photostat: No. 115. Courtesy: National Archives of India. Also My Dear Child, pp. 95-6.

637. LETTER TO S. M. MICHAEL

November 11, 1932

I should be sorry, indeed, if my prospective fast should deprive anyone of his or her intellectual freedom. Anyway, I have declared in emphatic terms that it is intended only to affect the mass mind. Naturally friends and co-workers who believe in the removal of untouchability will be stirred to action. That is no matter for regret. Nevertheless, if you have a clear call of conscience you will, of course, fast. But you will hardly expect it to move me if I continue to believe that I am also obeying God’s call.

The Hindu, 21-11-1932. Also Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 236

---

1 This is not available.

2 The addressee had announced his intention to commence, from December 1, a counter-fast as a mark of “disappointment and protest” against what he described as “coercive fast” on the question of temple-entry decided on by Gandhiji.
MY DEAR RAJBHOJ.

I was very glad to be able to see you and the friends who came with you and I feel thankful that my advice proved acceptable to you. I am quite sure that no satyagraha should be attempted regarding temple-entry, nor any fast undertaken by anybody, whilst all attention is being concentrated on Guruvayur. Nor should anybody think of undertaking sympathetic fast, should it become necessary for Sjt. Kelappan and myself to do so. My advice however to suspend satyagraha whilst all energy is being devoted to Guruvayur temple does not mean that no other effort should be made about opening the other temples. That has to be made unremittingly. But just now it is a point of honour with caste Hindus to do so. It will be time enough for Harijans to think of it when it is clearly established that caste Hindus will do nothing to secure the opening of public temples to Harijans. Fortunately every day brings the news of some temple being spontaneously opened somewhere to the Harijans and from all accounts that I have been receiving such effort is being continued though undoubtedly not with the same enthusiasm that marked the fast week. What however Harijans may do to facilitate the work of caste Hindus is to take up, so far as it is possible, internal reform such as observance of the laws of cleanliness, and giving up carrion and drink. I have discussed such things exhaustively with you.

The matter of opening facilities for the technical training of Harijan children and offering scholarships to deserving Harijan youths, I propose to discuss with Seth Ghanshyamdas Birla and the other members of the A.I.A.U. League¹ when they come here to see me.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

---

¹ All-India Anti-Untouchability League. The name was later changed to Harijan Sevak Sangh.
639. LETTER TO SHYAMJI MARWADI

November 11, 1932

BHAI SHYAMJI,

I got your letter. I am glad that you wrote to me. I have been discussing with the chief workers the problem of educational institutions in Bombay. Keep me constantly informed and also have patience.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 5206

640. A LETTER

November 11, 1932

Punjabhai is still with us. I do not miss him because I do not feel that he is no more. All this time he used both to receive and to give. Now he only gives.

[From Gujarati]
Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 212

641. LETTER TO G.D. BIRLA

November 11, 1932

BHAI GHANSHYAMDAS,

I have your letter, you too must have received mine. As we shall be meeting fairly soon, I will not write at length. There is nothing urgent to be communicated.

I have received the League’s scheme. I will give you my opinion when we meet. I have written to Bhai Ambalal requesting him to join the League. We must take up simultaneously both propaganda and constructive work. The League cannot leave out propaganda simply because I am doing it. What I may be doing is a different matter. But this too we shall discuss at length when we meet. I am certain that the League cannot take up the matter of inter-dining. Kerala needs the services of a lady from the north. After consulting Rajaji I have sent a wire to Urmiladevi that she is to go. I feel that her expenses should be borne by the League. For the present I have sent her some money from the funds I had recently received. I had intended to pass these on to the League. If the League approves of Urmiladevi being sent, it will pay her the rest of her expenses. If however it is decided that the League’s programme cannot envisage this kind of expense we shall see what we can do.

I am maintaining fairly good health. The weight too is now satisfactory. No doubt I miss some of my former energy. I am sure I shall soon recover it. You must build up your body. I do not agree with what you write about soda bicarb.¹ A doctor friend once assured me that a daily intake of soda can keep off rheumatism. It is beneficial in other ways too. I have never experienced any harm from it and in any case, a little soda is always present in the water.

I have gone through the pledge. I have not studied it very carefully but it seems all right.

Blessings from
BAPU

From Hindi: C.W. 7903. Courtesy: G.D. Birla

642. LETTER TO VIYOGI HARI

November 11, 1932

BHAI VIYOGI HARI,

I have your letter. I was so pleased. I like Tandonji’s suggestion the best. Your field is literature and service to the cause of Hindi. If while doing this you can also do Harijan service, you will have done all. I do not see any reason for reviving Patit Bandhu. At the present moment our conduct is the best form of propaganda. There are so many newspapers; your articles will always find a place in them.

Yours,

MOHANDAS

[PS.]

You can certainly come if you wish to meet me.

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 1072

¹ Quoting Dr. Kellogg’s opinion, the addressee had suggested that Gandhiji should give up soda bicarb as its daily use was harmful to the stomach and caused nausea.
643. INTERVIEW TO P. N. RAJBHOJ

November 11, 1932

RAJBHOJ: The untouchables are trying to enter the temples by all possible means. Suppose the methods of persuasion and mutual goodwill fail, do you think that the untouchables should resort to satyagraha? If they may resort to it, what should be the method adopted?

GANDHIJI: Under the present circumstances I don’t think that satyagraha is at all advisable or needed. All efforts should be concentrated on Guruvayur. Harijans should for the time being watch what the caste men are doing. Whatever happens about Guruvayur is likely to happen to many if not all the other temples.

R: In the case of the entry into the Parvati temple all methods have been tried, including the attempts of Sjts. Jamnalal Bajaj and Mr. N. C. Kelkar. May I know how to get out of this fix?

G: I am aware of your efforts and satyagraha in regard to the Parvati temple. Even regarding this I should advise you to wait till the Guruvayur matter is settled one way or the other. In the meanwhile you can carry on negotiations with the Parvati Trustees and create public opinion.

R: Now that Government has permitted you to do untouchability work unfettered what objections have you to come out and devote yourself to this cause alone?

G: I cannot accept my freedom under any restrictions. But this is a matter I must not discuss.

R: We learn from the correspondence published in the papers that you have announced a fast in suit with Mr. Kelappan. Suppose any “touchable” or untouchable announces another fast in connection with some other noteworthy temple, say Kashi Vishveshwar, may I know whether you will be prepared to stake your life in every such case? Do you think that your person will be able to cope with this anomalous situation?

G: I have given my word to Mr. Kelappan, and I am in honour bound to start my fast with him on the 2nd of January, 1933. If somebody else starts a similar fast in respect of another temple, I do not hold myself bound to join him. Every case has to be examined on its merits. And in no case should workers resort to fast without full deliberation and justification.

---

1 The text reproduced here is from a report in The Bombay Chronicle which gives both questions and answers. Some of the answers are reproduced from a photostat of a typewritten copy containing corrections in Gandhiji’s own hand.

R: What are the obligations and duties of the “touchables” and untouchables with regard to indiscriminate use by both of public wells or such other common sources of water, tanks, etc.?

G: The untouchables have as much right to have water from the public wells and tanks as the “touchables”. The matter, in case of any difference of opinion should be settled amicably by persuasion and negotiation.

All the difficulties which cannot be solved locally should be brought to the notice of the All-India Anti-Untouchability League. I will of course do what I can from here.

Whereas in the matter of the use of public wells, there is a clear legal right, the untouchables can seek the protection of law-courts, but this method does not help downtrodden people. The strong will always get round or disregard the law. The chief thing therefore is by conciliatory attitude to create favourable local public opinion.

Mr. Birla and Mr. Thakkar are coming to Poona to confer with me about this problem and the methods to be adopted for its solution. You should whole-heartedly co-operate with and help the League.¹

R: It is the desire of the depressed classes that the League should give precedence in spending its funds on technical education for the depressed classes, such as tanning, leather goods, rope-making, etc., in foreign countries as well as in India instead of spending it on other propaganda. So on behalf of these classes I have to request you to press this point of view for the promotion of this idea.

It is also our desire that common hostels be opened where “touchables” and untouchables will stay together.

G: I agree to your proposal about spending some of the funds of the League in scholarships for the untouchables and for technical education such as leather tanning, making leather goods, rope-making, etc., in India as well as foreign countries. I am wholly with you when you suggest the opening of common hostels for the “touchables” and the untouchables and trying to get the existing ones thrown open to the latter. The League will surely try and use its influence in this matter.

R: Don’t you think that the campaign against untouchability should be confined to villages, the centres of orthodoxy, rather than to towns where people are educated and broad-minded to a little extent at least? Are not some women workers necessary to do propaganda work among village women?

¹ The questions to which the foregoing three paragraphs are answers are not available.

G. Yes, the campaign against untouchability should primarily be carried on vigorously in the villages. In the East Khandesh District and several other Provinces and districts movement of this sort has been already commenced. Women should come forward in large numbers to work for this movement.

This is a very fine question. The untouchables should help much. They should observe common cleanliness, should refrain from eating the meat of dead animals and from drink, send their children to schools, remove untouchability among themselves and generally carry on such reform from within as is possible.¹

R. Do you feel the necessity of incorporating the question of removal of untouchability as one of the Fundamental Rights in the new constitution of India? That is to say, will it be proper to consider it a criminal offence if any Hindu is treated as an untouchable at any public place and, further, will it be proper to punish him under a law for wounding his religious susceptibilities? If time comes, will the Indian National Congress be prepared and try to embody this principle in the constitution?

G. Removal of untouchability should undoubtedly be one of the Fundamental Rights in the new constitution of India. Yes. It should be considered a criminal offence to treat any Hindu as an untouchable. The Congress will certainly be prepared to embody this principle in the constitution.

They should see that violence is not resorted to in furtherance of their objects.

I don’t think that the untouchables only are supposed to do the work of sweepers, of carrying carcasses, mending shoes, etc. Cases of ill-treatment because of the so-called untouchables refusing to do any work of this sort should be referred to the local agent of the League.

Nobody should object to inter-caste dinners, but no force should be brought to bear upon persons who don’t wish to attend such functions. But I am of opinion that it would not be wise to make inter-caste dinners an item in your programme.

I should not advise the untouchables to leave their trades and professions.²

From a photostat: G.N. 796 and The Bombay Chronicle, 17-11-1932

¹The question to which this is an answer is not available.
²The questions to which the foregoing four paragraphs are answers are not available.

391
644. LETTER TO PREMLILA THACKERSEY

November 12, 1932

DEAR SISTER,

May I hope that you will sincerely help in Harijan work? Please come and see me when you get the time. For this work, anybody can see me. I think you probably saw Urmiladevi, Deshbandhu Das’s sister, during the week of the fast. She will be going to the South in a few days for this work. But she will come and see me before going. She will stay in Poona for a day or two. Will you kindly put her up? She is likely to come on any day during the next week. Kindly inform me by telephone or postcard, or come and see me personally.

Blessings from

M O H A N D A S

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 4825. Courtesy: Premlila Thackersey

645. LETTER TO S. D. SATAVLEKAR

November 12, 1932

BHAISATAVLEKAR,

What part are you playing in the task of eradication of untouchability? In the face of the attacks by self-styled sanatanists we need the religious organization of those who wish to purify and ennoble Hinduism. I do not mean an organization such as the ones we see coming up these days. But the reformers should declare their considered opinion in one voice. I feel that no reformer should sit back out of lethargy or hesitation. Please do whatever you consider proper in this matter.

Yours,

M O H A N D A S

From Hindi: C.W. 4768. Courtesy: S.D. Satavlekar
INTERVIEW TO “THE HINDU”

November 12, 1932

Asked whether he had seen Lord Sankey’s latest appeal in the Newsletter, Gandhiji observed:

So far as I can understand Sir Samuel Hoare’s answer in the House of Commons to a question, letters dissuading me from civil disobedience can pass the jail precincts and be delivered to me. But I know that I have no authority to send replies to such letters with the assurance that they will leave the precincts of the jail. Under the limits that I have accepted or imposed upon myself, so far as these interviews are concerned, I may not give any reply in answer to questions by reporters or even by private friends who may visit me.

When reminded that Lord Sankey wanted a gesture and asked how he would get a reply, Gandhiji said he would gladly read Lord Sankey’s appeal with all the respect and attention that an appeal from him would demand. The Mahatma observed:

After having read it if I come to the conclusion that I can make a useful reply, it will be duly submitted to the Government for despatch to Lord Sankey.1

Gandhiji answering my question regarding Guruvayur, told me that the next fast to be declared was dependent upon Mr. Kelappan’s. He said:

I can conceive of circumstances when I have to take it up independently. Supposing Mr. Kelappan dies, God forbid it, I shall have to carry out the fast. I have taken an extreme illustration. Ordinarily speaking, I do not expect to take it independently of Mr. Kelappan.

Asked what his attitude would be if Mr. Kelappan felt satisfied that steps were being taken in right earnest, and the temple was bound to be opened shortly, though not exactly on January 1st next, say, one or two weeks later. Gandhiji said:

Supposing Mr. Kelappan comes to such a conclusion, he will have to reason it out with me and satisfy me that there is no occasion for fasting. Let me say I do not expect Mr. Kelappan ever to say that. But assume that Mr. Kelappan weakens and wants to wriggle out of the vow taken before God and man; if there is the slightest suspicion of that character, I would require some satisfaction for my reason. But I have always believed Mr. Kelappan to be inflexible in his determination and unbending in the good cause.

1 For Gandhiji’s reply to Lord Sankey, Vide “Cable to Lord Sankey”, 13-11-1932.

Questioned whether he had examined, as was his wont, the Guruvayur temple-entry question in all its details before deciding on a fast, Gandhiji replied:

I cannot pretend that I have examined the question in all its details. I have entirely depended upon Mr. Kelappan having done so though, generally speaking, I have been undoubtedly satisfying myself as to the correctness of the claim for opening the temple to the untouchables. But if anyone were to ask me whether I have seen the trust-deed, if there is any, of the Guruvayur temple or whether I have critically examined the customs or conditions governing the management of that celebrated temple, I must confess my ignorance.

When his attention was drawn to the Zamorin’s latest letter published in The Hindu dated 7th November that the Zamorin stood no longer bound by the assurance given to Mr. Kelappan when he commenced his fast, to go into the question if in the meanwhile Mr. Kelappan broke his fast, as Mr. Kelappan had rejected the offer and continued the fast, Gandhiji observed:

The Zamorin’s charge against Mr. Kelappan of discourtesy and his refusal on that ground to carry out his assurance appears to be incomprehensible. His assurance though given to Mr. Kelappan was quite an assurance to the general public and it amounted to a declaration that he was alive to the duty that rested upon him, of making every endeavour to find a way out. As a responsible person, and as a trustee, in my opinion, he is bound, irrespective of Mr. Kelappan’s conduct, to carry out that assurance.1

The trustee of a Hindu temple is not merely to guard the customs or so-called privileges of a particular caste, but to guard the purity of Hinduism itself, and to respond to the daily-growing spiritual aspirations of the Hindus. Such a trustee cannot afford to be ruffled by what one or even many men may say against him.

And so far as the legal aspect of the question is concerned, I know the Zamorin’s contention, but the legal difficulties are there to be combated and overcome when they stand in the way of a great moral reform. Therefore neither the Zamorin nor any other person can be allowed to plead legal difficulties as a sufficient answer against the opening of the temple. If public opinion itself is morally justified, a responsible trustee like the Zamorin is expected to remove the legal obstacles in the way of the moral demand of the public being satisfied.

1 Vide also “Telegram to the Zamorin of Calicut”, 9-11-1932.

Q. Would you postpone your fast, if efforts are made to amend the Act to admit untouchables into the temple, but the legislature is not able to find time to get the Bill through before 1st January?

A. Supposing it is physically impossible to secure an amendment of the Act before 1st January, that would be sufficient justification for the postponement of the fast. That presupposes that all the steps that could be taken have been taken, and that humanly speaking, there is every chance of the legislation going through. That again presupposes that the public, trustees and everybody have to be of one mind.

Asked whether he would entertain the suggestion to invite a body of orthodox sanatanists to meet him and attempt to reach an amicable settlement of the issue, Mahatmaji said:

I would consider it a presumption to invite a body of great people to come to me. It is out of respect to them that I say that I won’t invite them. I don’t invite these people not because I do not want to see them, nor because I think they can have nothing to say to me. I refrain from inviting them out of regard for their status. But if I discover that if I only issued an invitation to them they would gladly come, I would have no hesitation in sending such an invitation.

Asked how he was disposed towards those who sympathized with the temple-entry movement, and at the same time wanted to respect the feelings of the orthodox untouchables that the so-called untouchables should be allowed to go into the temples as far as the Dhvajastambham and the deity brought down there on festive days for darshan, the Mahatma said:

This movement is to remove untouchability. Therefore, the untouchables should enjoy precisely the same rights as the “touchables”, but that does not mean that they should have access to the sanctuary, which is only open to those who are in charge of the ceremonial. If non-Brahmins are prevented from going because they are considered untouchables, then undoubtedly that untouchability must go. But if there is no black mark of untouchability against them, but it is only the Brahmins who are allowed to go as far as certain parts of the sanctuary, I should have nothing to say against it as a part of this movement. The question of the exclusive rights of the Brahmins in connection with religious ceremonies stands on a different footing, and if that exclusiveness has to go, that question will have to be separately examined. I am not prepared, off hand, to condemn the practice of reserving certain functions exclusively for a particular class. This won’t be a matter of right, but of duty, to be performed by a body of experts, having the required qualifications.

Referring to Mr. V. V. Srinivasa Iyengar’s remark that temple-entry is being urged as generous gesture of political conciliation, Gandhiji observed:

I had the privilege of knowing Mr. V. V. Srinivasa Iyengar even before he became a Judge of the Madras High Court, and it is astonishing to me how temple-entry can, by any stretch of imagination, be regarded as a political question. I simply cannot understand it.

Concluding, Gandhiji said:

If Hinduism could cure itself of the age-long curse without outside intervention the cause of Hinduism would be better served. Non-Hindus will immediately begin to think that there is something very vital in Hinduism. I feel that the removal of untouchability is such a tremendous reform in Hinduism that it must have a reaction throughout the world. It will be a total denial of my existence if my method of approach proves a failure.

At the end of the conversation, I found Gandhiji exhausted. When I expressed my doubt as to whether he would be able to successfully undergo another fast, Gandhiji remarked that he was hopeful of it.

To another remark as to what he would do if the Madras Council rejected the proposed Bill, the Mahatma remarked:

I don’t anticipate such a failure. A House which adopted Dr. Subbaroyan’s resolution will not reject a Bill amending the present Act if introduced. I don’t believe in dying before my days.

Gandhiji is pleased with the Madras Council’s action in passing Dr. Subbaroyan’s resolution and is watching what steps are taken to give effect to the same.

The Hindu, 14-11-1932
647. LETTER TO CHAMPABEHN R. MEHTA

[Before November 13, 1932]

If you think that being appointed one of the trustees will make you free, you are mistaken. The word “trust” means responsibility, and I would certainly welcome a person becoming a trustee of his own property. He then ceases to be the owner of his property. He must then live within the commission which as a trustee he gets from the property. This is the meaning of trust. I am not talking here about trustees who abuse their office and misappropriate the property. I am only explaining here the duties of a trustee. You say that you want to acquire strength to stand on your own feet. Do you understand what that means? To stand on your feet means that you will not depend on your father’s earnings, nor on your father-in-law’s, nor your husband’s but subsist on your own earnings, however small they may be. You have never shown evidence of such strength in you. Nor did I ever observe any such desire in you . . .

In the past I have congratulated persons whose houses had been burgled. My attitude is the same in this case. We have no moral right to possess a single pie. Whatever we possess is as good as stolen property. Since all people in the world are thieves, possessions are not looked upon as theft. That, however, should not blind us to the truth. Is it any matter for wonder if other thieves rob us of some of the stolen property in our possession? The lesson you should draw from this theft is that you should not possess things which would tempt a thief, and that you may use the few things which you possess as long as they are not stolen. If you learn that lesson from the theft, you will have lost nothing but on the contrary gained wisdom.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, pp. 243-4

1 The source does not identify the addressee. The reference to the theft in the letter however indicates that this was written to Champabehn Mehta, wife of Ratilal Mehta, whose house had been burgled. Vide “Letter to Ratilal P. Mehta”, 13-11-1932.

2 Though the source gives November 14, the reference to this letter in “Letter to Narandas Gandhi”, before 13/14-11-1932, suggests that this was written before that letter.

3 Presumably of Champabehn Maganlal Trust
LORD CHANCELLOR
LONDON

PAINED READ CABLED SUMMARY YOUR APPEAL TO ME THROUGH “NEWS-LETTER”.¹ CAN PRISONER MAKE GENEROUS GESTURE TOWARDS HIS JAILORS? IT IS HARDLY FAIR FOR MINISTERS AND VICEROY CRITICIZING AND MISREPRESENTING, MAY BE UNCONSCIOUSLY, MY ACTIONS OR ATTITUDE WITHOUT GIVING ME OPPORTUNITY REPUDIATION. REMEMBER I RETURNED HERE PROMOTE PEACE AS MY SPEECHES, PRIVATE LETTERS, TALKS IN LONDON AND DURING RETURN VOYAGE WILL SHOW. I HAD ACTUALLY PLANNED TOUR TO THAT END. SOUGHT INTERVIEW VICEROY AND RECEIVED HIGHLY DISCOURTEOUS REPLY ATTACHING IMPOSSIBLE CONDITIONS TO GRANT REQUEST FOR INTERVIEW.² REPLY AND SCARCELY VEILED PREPARATIONS OF PENDING ARREST LEFT ME NO COURSE OPEN BUT DRAW UP FOR CONGRESS TENTATIVE PROGRAMME CIVIL DISOBEIDENCE. SEQUENCE EVENTS SHOWS THAT COMPLETE PREPARATIONS INCLUDING DRAFT ORDINANCES WHILST I WAS IN LONDON WERE MADE FOR EXECUTION OF

¹ In “Letter to an Indian Friend” published in News-letter, Lord Sankey had observed:

“...I believe that if Gandhi dropped the weapon of civil disobedience and offered to co-operate with the British Government the whole situation would be transformed. ...The problem will be solved by a united effort to secure agreement among Indians. Their refusal to assist the cause of peace is as much a weapon of war as tanks and aeroplanes. No federation can be successful if the people refuse to federate. Twice in the past few years while we were doing our utmost to arrive at an agreed solution through consultation and co-operation others endeavoured to achieve their ends by a civil disobedience movement. So long as this is your work, mine is made more difficult. Gandhi has power to change the situation and can do much to restore peace. Civil disobedience does not strike individuals but ordinary organized Governments and civilized society. I believe that if Gandhi made the great gesture and dropped the weapon of civil disobedience and with his followers offered to co-operate with the British Government the whole situation would be transformed.” The Statesman, 12-11-1932.

² For Gandhiji’s correspondence with the Viceroy on the subject.
WHOLE PLAN THAT FOLLOWED. CONCLUSION IRRESISTIBLE THAT INDIAN GOVERNMENT WANTED FORCE CRISIS BY PROVOKING CONGRESS TO ACTION ANY EVENT. I CAN ESTABLISH BEFORE ANY IMPARTIAL TRIBUNAL THAT GOVERNMENT OF INDIA HAD WILFULLY BROKEN SEVERAL CONDITIONS IRWIN GANDHI PACT BEFORE MY ARREST AND COMPLETELY BROKE THEM AFTER MY ARREST. SOME OF THEM WERE OF HIGHEST PUBLIC GOOD AND NEED NEVER HAVE BEEN BROKEN. AND NOW THERE IS VIRTUAL MARTIAL LAW IN LAND. YET SPIRIT OF PEOPLE THOUGH HUSHED REMAINS UNBROKEN. DISCONTENT IS DEEPER. FREEDOM OF MOVEMENT AND PRESS VIRTUALLY DESTROYED. NO MAN’S LIBERTY OR PROPERTY SAFE. HEAVY FINES RECOVERED FROM RELATIVES OR BY SALE OF PERSONAL BELONGINGS OF PRISONERS. PUNITIVE TAXES IMPOSED IN VILLAGES AND POPULATIONS FOR GUILT OF FEW AND THOUSANDS IMPRISONED AND TREATED AS COMMON FELONS. IT DOES SURPRISE ME THAT ON TOP OF THIS YOU FIND IT POSSIBLE INVITE ME DROP CIVIL DISOBEDIENCE. YOU DO NOT EVEN SEEM TO REALIZE THAT THE MOVEMENT IS NOT IN MY HANDS OR THAT OF ANY SINGLE PERSON, THAT I AM NOT PERMITTED SEE COMRADES WHETHER IN PRISON OR OUTSIDE AND EVEN MESSRS SAPRU AND JAYAKAR AND RECENTLY MAULANA SHAUKAT ALI COULD NOT SEE ME TO DISCUSS WITH ME POSSIBILITY SUSPENSION OF CIVIL DISOBEDIENCE. INVITATION TO BONDSMAN TO MAKE GENEROUS GESTURE IS EQUAL TO MOCKING HIM. I WOULD LIKE YOU ALSO TO REALIZE THAT SO FAR AS I AM CONCERNED CIVIL DISOBEDIENCE UNDER GIVEN CONDITIONS IS AN ARTICLE OF FAITH WITH ME. I DO NOT BELIEVE IN USE OF BRUTE FORCE IN ANY CASE. CIVIL DISOBEDIENCE THEREFORE IS FOR ME WHAT ARMED REBELLION IS FOR INDIVIDUALS OR GROUPS IN GENERAL. IN ATMOSPHERE I HAVE DESCRIBED IT IS FUTILE EXPECT LIBERAL CONSTITUTION. I WHOLLY ENDORSE YOUR PROPOSITION THAT IT IS BETTER TO BRING MEN TOGETHER THAN KEEP THEM APART. BUT YOU DO NOT FOLLOW UP YOUR THOUGHT BY RECOGNIZING THAT UNNATURAL RELATION OF CONQUERORS AND CONQUERED MUST KEEP TWO PEOPLES APART EVEN AS PRISONERS AND THEIR KEEPERS ARE IN REALITY APART THOUGH THEY ARE PHYSICALLY PLACED NEAR ONE ANOTHER. THROUGH CIVIL DISOBEDIENCE AND KINDRED METHODS I AM SEEKING MIGHT AND MAIN TO BRING TWO TOGETHER BY DESTROYING UNNATURAL RELATION. I SHOULD LIKE TO TELL YOU THAT ONE SUPREME GESTURE THAT WAS POSSIBLE FOR ME EVEN AFTER MY IMPRISONMENT AND THAT WAS PERHAPS LARGELY AFTER YOUR STYLE I DID MAKE WITHIN A FEW DAYS OF MY INCARCERATION BY WRITING PERSONAL LETTER\(^1\) TO VICEROY APPEALING TO HIM TO LET ME SEE HIM AND DISCUSS WHOLE THING AS BETWEEN MAN AND MAN AND I WROTE ADVISING SIR SAMUEL HOARE OF STEP I HAD TAKEN.\(^2\) VICEROY NEVER EVEN ACKNOWLEDGED MY LETTER WRITTEN IN FRIENDLIEST TONE POSSIBLE. NOW THEREFORE ONLY HONOURABLE GESTURE I CAN MAKE OR IS OPEN TO ME IS TO DRINK CUP OF SUFFERING TO DREGS. IN FAIRNESS I SUGGEST THAT THIS REPLY MAY BE PUBLISHED. 3

GANDHI

From a photostat: G.N. 3942. Also Bombay Secret Abstracts, Home Department, Special Branch, File No. 800(40(4), Pt. II, p. 13

---

649. LETTER TO PRIVATE SECRETARY TO GOVERNOR OF BOMBAY

November 13, 1932

TO

THE PRIVATE SECRETARY TO

H. E. THE GOVERNOR

BOMBAY

DEAR SIR,

I have seen Lord Sankey’s public appeal to me. I feel that it calls for an immediate reply from me. I therefore submit the enclosed for His Excellency’s approval and despatch by cable. I do not know whether this falls within His Excellency’s jurisdiction or His Excellency the Viceroy’s. If the latter, I request that the text of my

---

1 This letter dated January 15 is not traceable
3 On recommendation of the Viceroy, the Secretary of State agreed that Gandhiji’s message should not be published and that no reply should be sent. Lord Sankey was informed accordingly—Government of India, Home Department, Political, File No. 31/95/32. reply to Lord Sankey be wired to H. E. the Viceroy for being cabled to the Lord Chancellor.

Yours faithfully,
M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat: G.N. 3868. Also Bombay Secret Abstracts, Home Department, Special Branch, File No. 800(40(4), Pt. II, p. 5

650. MESSAGE TO VERRIER ELWIN

November 13, 1932

Cleanest air, cleanest water, simplest food and cleanest thinking which really means communion with God, are the four laws-the first three flowing from the fourth. Hence your English saying--simple, that is, plain living and high thinking. I should like to simplify that saying-clean thinking and clean living. Boils are a symptom of unclean living in my sense of the expression. Let this then be my message to the brothers1 for a beginning.

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 240

651. LETTER TO M. M. ANANTA RAU

November 13, 1932

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter. Your argument seems to be this: Bhagavad Gita refers the devotee to shastravidhi and since Shastras support untouchability, Bhagavad Gita must be said to support it. The question then is what are Shastras? And I have answered that question by the answer that whatever is contrary to the main theme of the Gita must be rejected as being no Shastra. And since the main theme is oneness and therefore equality of all life, there is no warrant for untouchability in the Gita.

Yours sincerely,

From a copy: C.W. 9558. Courtesy: Government of Mysore

1 Members of Christi Seva Sangh
652. LETTER TO ASHRAM BOYS AND GIRLS

November 13, 1932

DEAR BOYS AND GIRLS,

I read the names of the new office-bearers. Let me see now what work you do during this year. Do not distrust one another. Do not be rude to anybody. You should be polite even towards each other. Make the best use of every minute. Playing at the proper time also is good use of time. Reading at the time fixed for playing and playing at the time meant for study, this is bad use of time.

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./II

653. LETTER TO JAMNABEHN GANDHI

November 13, 1932

CHI. JAMNA,

I have done my duty in regard to the use of the primus stove and don’t think about the matter further. You should do, courageously and without regard to my views, only what seems right to you. There is no cause at all for worrying about my elbow.

BAPU

From Gujarati: C.W. 862. Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi

654. LETTER TO JAMNADAS GANDHI

November 13, 1932

CHI. JAMNADAS,

You are blaming me, instead of yourself. You wrote to me after many months and are now impatient to get a reply. The fact, however, is that I did reply to your letter by return of post.

I got your second letter. You will continue to have difficulty about money, but I am sure that at the critical hour God will send you what you need.

If somehow you can improve your health, I would regard it as a 1 Following an accident, Mahatma Gandhi had advised that the use of the primus stove should be discontinued; Vide “Letter to Chandresh Shanker”, 4-10-1932.

great achievement. Do not be unnecessarily diffident. Why do you not rest happy after doing your best? Why do you think that you should have as much strength as you desire?

Your experience about Harijans is both interesting and painful. But that is the state of affairs everywhere. You can come whenever you like and see me in connection with this work. Now that you have started writing to me, keep it up. It is for me to judge whether what you write is foolishness or wisdom.

BAPU

From Gujarati: C.W. 9467. Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi

655. LETTER TO GULAB

November 13, 1932

CHI. GULAB,

You should improve your Gujarati. The correct word is not atyanja, but atyanta, which means “very much”.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 1732

656. LETTER TO RAMABEHN JOSHI

November 13, 1932

CHI. RAMA,

I count Joshi more fortunate than Gangabehn. We need not worry about him. God will worry about him.

If you think that you should go and stay with your aunt’s people for a few days after her death, you may do so.

As regards the taunt to Dhiru, you should not get angry or be upset if anybody has said that. Just as we should not take it seriously if somebody asks us to leave our own home, so also you should not take it seriously if anybody, who has known you long enough, still asks a woman like you to leave the Ashram, much less so if that is said to a child. There is no doubt, however, that nobody should utter such threats.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 5339
657. LETTER TO PREMABEHN KANTAK

November 13, 1932

CHI. PREMA,

This letter, too, will be a short one. These days most of my time is taken up by Harijan friends.

Kamalabai, who has recently joined the Ashram, complains that she can get no time to give to her child or to reading. See what you can do about this.

I must congratulate you on your having been able to digest the gum confection. What was the quantity? What were the other ingredients?

I fully realize the difficulty of your task. God will protect you and also give you the necessary strength.

Now that you have discovered the cause of your disease, you should find the remedy too.

You ask me about my feelings, but you can learn nothing about them. No one can analyse his own feelings.

When we seem unable to follow a principle in life, we should conclude that we have not understood the principle correctly. A principle which is correct ought to be capable of being followed in life. Of course no principle can be perfectly acted upon. But a way of life which does not conform to a principle as nearly as possible is insincere and we should avoid it.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10310. Also C.W. 6749. Courtesy: Premabehn Kantak

658. LETTER TO GAJANAN V. KHARE

November 13, 1932

CHI. GAJANAN,

I was glad to read what you wrote about the paintings. You should get over your fever as quickly as you can. I would advise you to go either to Vijapur or Rajkot. But first you should write to the people there. If going to either of the two places is not practicable,

1 Wife of a khadi worker from Maharashtra you may go to whichever place you like, but get well quickly. I like your idea of going somewhere. You may go even to Wardha.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 310. Courtesy: Lakshmibehn N. Khare

659. LETTER TO NARAYAN M. KHARE

November 13, 1932

CHI. PANDITJI,

Bhangis and Chamars do not keep clean because we have never so much as looked at them. We cannot now tell them: “Learn to be clean and then we will accept you.” Instead, we should tell them this: “Come, we will embrace you and teach you rules of cleanliness, hygiene, etc.” There is no exaggeration whatever in what I am saying when I think of our cruelty towards Harijans and our indifference towards their welfare, I wonder through whose power of goodness Hinduism is still living. If we fail to atone for this sin, I clearly see the destruction of Hinduism.

BAPU

[PS.]

The leaves of the Bhajanavali are getting loose. But I have no time. I will see, however.

From Gujarati: C.W. 219. Courtesy: Lakshmibehn N. Khare

660. LETTER TO RAMACHANDRA N. KHARE

November 13, 1932

CHI. RAMACHANDRA,

I got your letter. It was good that you went and stayed with your maternal uncle. If you had stayed for some time longer, perhaps you would have benefited still more. I hope you will now rapidly regain your strength.

Did you ask Premabehn’s forgiveness? Has she forgiven you?

BAPU

From Gujarati: C.W. 300. Courtesy: Lakshmibehn N. Khare
661. LETTER TO RATILAL P. MEHTA

November 13, 1932

CHI. RATILAL,

I was glad to see your letter. I have often told you that God protects you. Don’t mind the theft. Do not replace the articles which have been stolen. If we have too many things with us, we may even lose some through theft.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 8764. Also C.W. 1048. Courtesy: Champabehn Mehta

662. LETTER TO NARMADABEHN RANA

November 13, 1932

CHI. NARMADA,

This time your handwriting is much better. You should leave some space at the top before commencing the letter. Where was your sister when she left? How old is she?

BAPU

From Gujarati: C.W. 2767. Courtesy: Ramnarayan N. Pathak

663. LETTER TO SULOCHANA

November 13, 1932

CHI. SULOCHANA,

Your report of work is good, and so is the handwriting. You did not state how much yarn you spun on the takli.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 1745
664. A LETTER

November 13, 1932

You are as dear to me as Arun, and I would have admitted you to the Ashram if that were possible. Just now, however, I would arrange for your admission in the Ashram for handicapped children in Calcutta if you agreed to go there.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 241

665. LETTER TO TULSI MAHER

November 13, 1932

CHI. TULSI MAHER,

I was glad to get your letter. You must be getting all the news from this end. Give me an account of your activities.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 6541

666. LETTER TO KESHORAM TANDON

November 13, 1932

BHAI KESHORAM TANDON,

I have your letter. The eradication of untouchability does not necessarily imply inter-dining and intermarriage.

Yours,

MOHANDAS GANDHI

SHRI KESHORAM TANDON
JAMUNA COAL TRADING CO.
FARUKHABAD, U.P.

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 5057

1 The addressee was a Muslim youth.
667. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

[Before November 13] /14, 1932

CHI. NARANDAS,

I got your letter on the usual day of the week. I got another small packet too. You will find with this a letter for Champa. Read it before you pass it on to her, for it contains my views on thefts and so, if you read it, I need not write the same thing again. You should explain my advice to others too, for I have repeated it every time there has been a theft. It is also necessary that you should glance through what I have advised Champa concerning her duty.

In the existing circumstances, I will not include your name among the trustees. I will never knowingly take any step which will put you in an embarrassing position. Our ideal is to do a duty which comes to us unsought. We have no other interest. In any case, we should never seek a position of authority or influence for its own sake.

If you remember, and if available, please send some oranges and mosambis from there as samples with anybody who may be coming here. I am very happy though the trees yield only a few. I do not mind the expenditure on trees and other farming activities. It is possible that some of the expenditure was unnecessary, but my impression is that on the whole it was all right.

I hope you have written to Prabhudas and made the necessary inquiries for Navin.

Damodar should have informed you that he had not gone to the bungalow to sleep at night.

If you feel that it is impossible to influence the Chharas go and see Mavalankar and do whatever is possible. In the last resort, we can of course endure the present state of things.

I hope that Shelat’s children have recovered. I know from a letter of Chhaganlal Joshi that Shelat has got a book entitled Flowers of St. Francis. If he has it, get it from him and send it to me with somebody who may be coming here. Its value lies in the fact that it was a loving gift from somebody.

---

1 The letter, obviously begun before November 13, was continued on November 13 and completed on November 14.

2 An ex-criminal tribe of Central Gujarat
I understand what you say about Balbhadra.

I got a postcard from Ramji, in which he says that, after reading my recent statements about untouchability, he wished to come and see me. I am sure he will also take the opportunity to pour out his complaints. Even then, it seems to me that it will be good to let him come here once. Moreover, he will be permitted to see me whenever he comes.

As regards the rach and heddle which we require for weaving khadi from fine yarn, I have just remembered that we had these implements which were made for weaving khadi from very fine yarn. We had got them from Adamji Miankhan. I also remember that Maganlal had made a number of heddles for weaving khadi from coarse yarn by breaking up this same heddle. In any case, we had quite a large number of heddles. They are probably lying in some corner among old discarded things. Ask somebody to search for them and, if you cannot get them inquire at Miankhan’s place. They may be able to find another heddle of that type, or at any rate get one manufactured. They were four brothers, Adamji, Gulam Husain, Chandabhai, and one more whose name I do not recollect. Of these Adamji is dead, Gulam Husain lives mostly in Natal and Chandabhai divides his time between Natal and Ahmedabad. Chhaganlal knows him personally. Even if none of you knows his address in Ahmedabad, Chhaganlal is sure to know it. Most probably his house is in Vohravad in Kalupur and he has also a bungalow near Ellis Bridge. The elder Kusum is your neighbour. Try to get some news about her if you can. And also go and see her if any of you is permitted to do so, and send her books, etc., if she wants them.

Rice and potatoes are like poison for Tilakam. Moreover, both contain pure starch. Then how can he feel energetic? Starch does not make one energetic, on the contrary it produces acidity in the stomach. Tilakam should only drink milk, as much as he can digest, and eat fruit and green vegetables. After he is able to digest these things, he can add bread.

Do what you think proper about Jethalal. As soon as Purushottam feels constipated, you should understand that the trouble has started. Trying city water will most probably not help him. It would be much better for him to drink the Ashram water itself after boiling it. To cure the weakness of his bowels, pranayama exercises and light massage of the abdomen are necessary.
If Kusum herself can live cheerfully in the Ashram and follow the three important rules which I have suggested, I would be relieved of my fear and worry on her account irrespective of what the final result might be.

Why did not Raojibhai write the revised letter?

So you explained to Kasumba, with logical arguments, that by eating in your company she had lost caste. If a person thus states the plain truth, instead of deceiving himself or anybody else, he would enjoy much greater peace of mind and also earn greater merit.

The mendicant could have been the cause of so much fuss only in the Ashram. Even if we do not discover the true meaning of the Vedas, I am sure we shall be able to call ourselves vedias.

It is a mercy that in this world things people do are more foolish than wicked. You know this very well indeed, otherwise you would have had to be sent to an asylum long ago.

I have not yet read Parasram’s letter, but even without reading it, after reading your letter and your recommendation, I give my consent for giving him the things which he has asked for.

Sunday Afternoon, November 13, 1932

[PS.]

I give to the hand as much rest as it needs. My weight has reached 102 pounds this week. But my strength has not increased to the same extent.

I hope my articles do not upset people there. It is an occasion for rejoicing. I will ask Rajaji about Ba. Urmiladevi is certain to go there.

Read my letter to Liladhar.

Morning, Silence Day [November 14, 1932]

[PPS.]

Vinoba’s explanation of the importance of the takli is worth pondering over by everybody. He should learn from Bhau the art of spinning on it.

BAPU

[From Gujarati]

1 Pedants
In this fifth statement to the Press, in which I would like to express my gratefulness for the publicity they are giving to my statements and movement generally, I want to summarize a part of what I said last week to Sjt. Rajbhoj and his friends,¹ who met me to discuss practically the whole movement.

One of their questions related to what Harijans could do in order to help the movement. They could do a great deal in the direction. They could anticipate the charges brought against them in justification of the refusal of some caste Hindus to associate with them on terms of absolute equality. I have already said in emphatic language that the caste Hindus are wholly to blame for the undoubtedly deplorable condition of the vast mass of Harijans and that the improvement will follow the removal of untouchability as a matter of course. It should never be made a condition of removal. Nevertheless, it is the obvious duty of Harijan workers to carry on internal reform to the extent it is possible even in the face of the existing state of things.

Harijan workers should therefore devote all their energy to:

(1) the promotion of cleanliness and hygiene among Harijans,
(2) to improve the method of carrying on what are known as unclean occupations, such as scavenging and tanning,
(3) giving up of carrion and beef, if not meat altogether,
(4) giving up of intoxicating liquors,
(5) inducing parents to send their children to day-schools wherever they are available and parents themselves to attend night schools wherever such are opened, and
(6) abolition of untouchability among themselves.

Let me go through the items to indicate what is meant by them. A daily bath is necessary at least in our climate, and clean clothes are necessary under all climates. I know that water is not easily available in Harijan quarters. They have, as a rule, no access to public wells and tanks, and they are too poor to afford a change of clothing. It is not generally realized that even a lota-full of water can give one a clean bath. It is taken by thoroughly wetting a clean towel and vigorously rubbing the body, including the head, all over, and then wiping with a dry towel. If the bath is taken daily, the wet towel after wringing out all water from it can serve the purpose of drying the body. In this climate again, the same clothes can be easily washed and dried there and then, whilst one has merely the langoti on.

¹Vide “Interview to P.N. Rajbhoj”, 11-11-1932.

I know there is nothing new in what I am saying, and yet I have been obliged to explain these very elementary things to hundreds of workers. Even graduates have been found to be ignorant of these elementary aids to hygiene as to the improved method of scavenging. Selfish, ignorant caste men make it well-nigh impossible to remove human remains in a decent manner. The closets, because of the untouchability, are unclean beyond description. They are dark and ill-ventilated and so constructed that only a portion is somewhat capable of being cleaned and that too under filthy conditions. To use these closets is a positive daily descent to Hell and but for the beneficent climate many more thousands than already do will find an early cremation. Owing to the superstitious refusal to see one’s own faeces and to permit the untouchables or themselves to clean the interior of the closet, the Harijans who have to perform the very necessary social service can even in the existing unfavourable circumstances at least have their bath immediately after the cleaning is done and use plenty of dry earth for cleaning instead of just a little straw that they use.

Being an expert scavenger that I claim to be, I could show many very cheap, efficient and thoroughly clean methods of performing this service, especially if the villagers and city people would help, but I cannot deal with this interesting subject in this cursory statement. The curious may look up my writings on sanitation in general, and village sanitation in particular. Scavengers should wear a professional dress, while they are doing the cleaning work. Every employer or a group of employers can supply such a dress for his or their scavengers.

Clean tanning is a far more difficult proposition. Our tanners do not know the modern method of skinning carcases nor of tanning. Tanning I have here used in a comprehensive sense. The so-called higher classes having criminally neglected this useful body of their co-religionists and fellow-countrymen, the whole of the process from the carrying of the carcase to the dressing of the hide is done in a crude manner resulting in the loss to the country of untold wealth and the production of inferior hide.
The late Madhusudan Das,\textsuperscript{1} who was a great philanthropist and had himself learnt the modern process of tanning, had prepared statistics to show what the country was losing annually owing to the superstition of untouchability masquerading under the name of religion. Harijan workers can learn the modern method and acquaint the tanners with it in so far as it is practicable. The scavengers should be taught resolutely not to accept the remains of the householder’s daily food which is virtually thrown at them in the cruelest manner possible. Years of habit have dulled the aesthetic sense of the scavengers and they see nothing wrong in eating the remains of another man’s dishes. They crave for what they regard as dainties from their employers’ dishes. I have known Bhangis having removed their children from school because the latter were taught not to touch these leavings and be satisfied with the jowar or the bajri bread baked in their homes.

Tanners should be induced to give up carrion and beef. As a vegetarian, I would like Harijans to give up, as many have done, meat altogether, but if they are not ready for this reform they should be taught to give up carrion as being unhygienic, besides being taboo by the rest of mankind and beef as being forbidden in Hinduism. I know that carrion is part of the price they get for removing the carcases. Dr. Ambedkar told me that in some places villagers beat those who had given up carrion, telling them it was their religion to eat it. The fact was that they were afraid that if the tanners gave up carrion-eating they would demand an equivalent price or give up carrying dead cattle. Whatever the difficulty, carrion and beef eating must be given up. That one self-restraint will at once raise the Harijans in the estimation of the caste men and make the task of caste reformers comparatively easy in the campaign against untouchability.

Items four and five do not call for any remarks. They are self-explained.

The last item is abolition of untouchability among untouchables themselves. This is an urgent need. Removal of untouchability will become most difficult if this double untouchability is not removed with one sweep. It is an uphill task for Harijan reformers. But if they will realize that this movement is predominantly religious and is designed to purge Hinduism of the uncleanness that has crept into it, they will have the necessary courage and self-confidence to carry out the great reform.

\textsuperscript{1} In fact, Madhusudan Das was not dead. Gandhiji came to know of his mistake later from a member of the Ashram and at once apologized to Madhusudan Das. \textit{Vide} \textsc{Vol. LII, “Telegram to Madhusudan Das”, 18-11-1932.}

It is needless for me to stress the point that workers in such a movement must be selfless and pure in character. I have given here a constructive programme that should satisfy the most ambitious reformer among Harijans and occupy the whole of his time and energy. But there are one or two things he and the Harijans may not do during this period of grace. At any rate, no Harijan need fast against anyone nor need satyagraha be offered by them. Let them watch the caste Hindus who are on their trial and see what they do to remove the bar that separates the Harijans from them. Let them not engage in quarrels with local caste-Hindus. Their behaviour should be at all times courteous and dignified, much more so at this time. Religion can only be vindicated by self-suffering, never by violence done to the oppressors though there may be many things they may get by force. Their credit will lie in getting their rights by the conversion of caste Hindus and today they have ample reason for deriving hope from the knowledge that there are tens of thousands of caste Hindus who have a lively sense of their guilt and are straining every nerve to do reparation to Harijans. Let them have perfect confidence in the absolute justice of their cause and in the ability of self-suffering to win it.

In the next statement I must give my reply to caste men who have asked what they can do to help the movement.

The Bombay Chronicle, 15-11-1932

669. TELEGRAM TO JAMNALAL BAJAJ

November 14, 1932

JAMNALAL BAJAJ,
PRISONER, DHULIA JAIL

GET COMPLETE REPORT FROM DR. MODI. HE SHOULD BE

---

2 The original English text of the telegram is not available.
IMMEDIATELY CALLED TO EXAMINE YOU, SO THAT A DEFINITE DIAGNOSIS CAN BE MADE. HOW IS YOUR COUGH?

BAPU

[From Gujarati]

Panchama Putrane Bapuna Ashirvad, p. 80

670. LETTER TO BHAU PANSE

Morning, Silence Day, November 14, 1932

CHI. BHAU,

I am afraid I am writing this letter very late, as you will get it twelve days after the fast was ended. I wrote to you in my previous letter what food you should eat. You may make a few changes in it to suit your constitution. The fast may be said to have succeeded only if you pass stool naturally without enema in six or seven days or before that, feel sufficiently hungry, can easily digest simple food, put on weight and also regain your strength. If, however, you do not pass stool without enema, then you should take a purgative. Castor oil is very good. Take about two tea-spoon-fuls of it immediately after brushing your teeth in the morning. If you put a little salt in the mouth, then swallow the castor oil and then again lick some salt, you will not feel the unpleasant flavour of castor oil. After this, you are sure to pass stool without taking enema. If you do not, you may conclude that your bowels are still not clear. You may, in that case, fast again after a few days when you are strong enough. But this is the only method of curing constipation.

I fully believe in the importance of takli explained by Vinoba in his letter. I have no doubt whatever that a person who spins on the takli in a spirit of service and as yajna will attain deliverance.

BAPU

[PS.] Can you teach your method of spinning on a takli by explaining it in a letter? To how many persons are you teaching it at present?

671. LETTER TO M.G. BHANDARI

November 14, 1932

DEAR MAJOR BHANDARI,

You know by now the late Dr. Mehta about whom I received so many telegrams when he died recently. I am trying to look after his affairs as far as possible from here. I have now to advise the members of Dr. Mehta’s family about the disposal of the estate he has left behind him. He was a diamond merchant and landed proprietor in Rangoon where he had settled many years ago. It is necessary for me to see some or all of those in the enclosed list in connection with his affairs. None of them has ever been engaged in politics, and with the exception of two the rest have business in Burma. As you are aware, before the fast I had dropped receiving weekly visits altogether. After the fast I have occasionally had such visits chiefly from my wife and children. But with reference to the enclosed list it might be necessary for me to see those who will come continually from day to day till the matter is settled. I trust that the Government will have no objection to my request being granted as early as possible.

Yours sincerely,

M.K. GANDHI

672. LETTER TO KUNHAPPA

November 14, 1932

You have done well in sending your letter and also copies of letters and telegrams passed between the Zamorin and Kelappan. Your letter and the enclosures have been most valuable to me. The fast if it has to come won’t be against the Zamorin. If the vast mass of Savarna Hindus are really in favour of the temple being opened to the Avarnas, do you not feel that the temple cannot be closed against them even by the Zamorin? It is not his property. It should be remembered that he does not make any claim himself and admits that he is only a trustee. And let us assume for the moment that he is a 1 Dr. Pranjivan Mehta died in Rangoon on August 3.

2 This is not available.
3 The request was granted by the Government.
trustee only for the Savarna Hindus, who alone are the temple-goers. Then the key to the temple is in their hands and the Zamorin holds the key for them. Then if the Savarnas are in earnest, there are many ways of their showing their wish in unmistakable terms. Has an attempt ever been made to take a referendum of all the Savarnas, men and women, making use of the temple? If the position is not as I imagine it to be, and if the Savarnas have no rights, if the trust is not held for them, I should then be informed of the correct position. It would then be time for you to ask me to revise my decision. If, for instance, the temple is the private property of the Zamorin, if in other words he could shut the doors of the temple against anybody entering it, if he is so willed, the whole of the agitation for opening Guruvayur to the Harijans was wrong from the commencement and we have to retrace our steps. Let all the workers examine the position from this viewpoint. If a mistake has been made there need be no shame in an open confession.

_Mahadev Bhaini Diary, Vol. II, pp. 244-5_

673. LETTER TO P.N. RAJBHOJ

_November 14, 1932_

MY DEAR RAJBHOJ,

I have your letter. Here is the corrected copy of my answers.¹ I have not made any corrections in your questions. Some questions being repetitious may be dropped.

I hope you got my previous letter which contains the message you want.

_Yours sincerely,_

M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat: G.N. 796

¹_Vide “Interview to P.N. Rajbhoj”, 11-11-1932._
674. A LETTER¹

November 14, 1932

I quite agree with you that no one should be treated as untouchable and I am sure that when we have ceased to treat forty millions of Hindus as such, we shall cease to treat Christians and Mussalmans as such.

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, P. 242

675. A LETTER²

November 14, 1932

I am glad you realise that poverty is the common lot of millions. The real way to pray to Lord Krishna is to do in His name some little service to those who are less fortunate than ourselves; and when we show the spirit of service in daily life, unbelieving neighbours will begin to believe in God. You can do untouchability work by yourself going among untouchables and rendering such service as is possible to them as if, they were members of our own family. If you do not know Hindi, you should quickly learn it.

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, P. 243

676. STATEMENT ON UNTOUCHABILITY—VI

November 15, 1932

If, among the Harijans, Sjt. Rajbhoj has yet been the only one to have asked me what Harijans might do to advance the movement, I have scores of letters from all parts of India, from caste Hindus, both men and women, students and others, inquiring in what way they can help without interfering with their other preoccupations; and since anti-untouchability is a movement, as applied to the masses, of merely change of heart and changing their attitude towards Harijans, the vast majority of the caste Hindus do not need to interrupt their daily activities in order to serve the Harijans.

¹ The addressee, not identified in the source, had asked: “Do we not treat others—such as Christians, etc.—also as untouchables?”

² The addressee, a young boy not identified in the source, had asked in what way he could do service.
The first thing is for everyone to understand the implications of the removal of untouchability in his or her own life, and if the answer is that he or she has not only no objection to, but is desirous of, seeing them entering public temples, using public places, such as schools, serais, roads, hospitals, dispensaries and the like, in short, to Harijans being put precisely on the same footing as themselves religiously, socially, economically and politically, he or she has personally taken the full step.

But that is not all that the questioners want or all that I should be satisfied with. Having gone so far, they want to know what more they can do in the furtherance of the cause. Such inquirers need not extend their activities beyond their immediate neighbourhood. Let them canvass the opinion of those with whom they come in daily contact, and if the former are not convinced of the necessity of removal of untouchability, they should, if they have critically studied the movement, endeavour to convince their neighbours or, if they are not competent, they should procure the necessary literature, supply them with it and put them in touch with those full-time workers who are specially qualified for such propaganda work. If they find that their neighbourhood is not touched by the spirit of the movement, and if they have any influence, they should arrange public lectures and demonstrations. So much for the work among caste Hindus.

But the real work that this large body of men and women can do is undoubtedly among the Harijans. Those caste Hindus who have studied my fifth statement could not fail to have noticed that there is a vast amount of silent and effective service to be rendered by caste Hindus without much expenditure of time, energy or money. Caste Hindus can effectively supplement the effort of Harijan workers in inculcating habits of cleanliness and by procuring facilities for having easy access to the required water supply. They can find out public wells and tanks situated near Harijan quarters and canvass the opinion of caste Hindus who may be using such wells or tanks, pointing out to them that Harijans have a legal right to the use of all such public services. And they can, at the same time, see to it that when the consent of caste Hindus has been secured for the use by Harijans of these services, the latter use them in a manner not offensive to the former.

As to scavenging, they can visit the owners of houses served by Harijans in their neighbourhood and explain to them the necessity of making it easy for Harijans to do the cleaning work in a hygienic manner. To this end, it would be naturally necessary for them to study the scientific method of constructing closets and disposing of night-soil. Thy can also procure from the householders special dresses to be supplied to the scavengers and make the Harijans feel by unhesitatingly doing the scavenging themselves that there is nothing low or undignified about rendering such service. Such workers should also carry on propaganda against caste men giving to their scavengers leavings from their daily food and, where they are ill-paid persuading the employers to pay them a decent wage.

As to tanning, not much help can be rendered, unless someone of such voluntary leisure-time workers has humanity and enthusiasm enough to study the hygienic method of skinning carcases and having done so, will spread the knowledge among tanners.

They certainly can do one thing. They can find out the custom about the disposal of such carcases and see that the tanners are assured of a proper wage for the service they rendered. Those who have capacity and time can conduct day or night schools, take Harijan children for picnics and sightseeing on holidays or whenever an opportunity occurs, visit Harijans in their own homes, procure medical aid where necessary and generally let them feel that a new page has been opened in their lives and that they need no longer regard themselves as the neglected and despised portion of Hindu humanity.

All that I have described can be most easily and efficiently done by the student world. If this work is done with silent zeal, determination and intelligence by a large body of men and women, I have no doubt that we shall have taken many steps in our progress towards the goal, and it would be found too that there are more things than I have described that require attention. I have but chosen a few of the many things that have come under my observation in the course of my journeyings.

677. TELEGRAM TO FEROZCHEH AND

November 15, 1932

HOPE EVERYONE HONOURING LALAJI’S MEMORY WILL DO SOME-THING REMOVE UNTOUCHABILTY.

GANDHI

Bombay Secret Abstracts, Home Department, Special Branch, File No. 900 (40) (3), Pt. III, p. 367

678. TELEGRAM TO MANIBEHN PATEL

[November 15, 1932]

MANIBEHN PATEL
PRISONER CENTRAL PRISON
BELGAUM.

DAHYABHAI SUFFERING FEVER LAST SEVEN DAYS NOW DECLARED TYPHOID NO COMPLICATIONS SPECIAL NURSES ATTENDING NO CAUSE ANXIETY WILL TRY SEND DAILY REPORT.

BAPU

Bombay Secret Abstracts, Home Department, Special Branch, File No. 800 (40) (4), Pt. III, p. 55

679. LETTER TO E.E. DOYLE

November 15, 1932

DEAR COL. DOYLE,

Sjt. Dahyabhai is the only son of Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel. He has been suffering from fever for the last eight days. Doctors have now pronounced it to be typhoid. It is necessary to inform his sister Manibehn Patel who is in the Central Prison, Belgaum, of Dhaybhai’s illness from day to day. I enclose draft of a telegram to be sent to her. I hope you will kindly send it with instructions to the Superintendent to deliver it to Manibehn Patel and to receive from her whatever message she wishes to give. And could I, whilst the fever lasts, give her detailed information from day to day and receive from her whatever messages she might have to give in reply to the daily report? My reason for wishing her to send even a daily postcard is to pass it on to the patient. It must cheer him to know that his only sister is being kept informed of the progress of his illness and that she sends him messages of love.

1 Of Lahore
2 Vide the following item.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

Bombay Secret Abstracts, Home Department, Special Branch, File No. 800(40) (4), Pt. II, p. 55

680. LETTER TO U. GOPALA MENON

[November 15, 1932]

Anyway, if there is legal difficulty we must patiently create public opinion that would demand even legislative interference. You have therefore to mobilize Savarna opinion in favour of the opening of the Guruvayur temple. Do not mix up the issue by raising the cry of general entry into all temples. Mr. Kelappan’s fast was directed to the opening of the Guruvayur temple and if it has to be resumed, it must be restricted to that purpose. If that temple is opened it will be only a question of time for other temples also to be opened, but we must be true to ourselves. There should be no abuse hurled at the Zamorin. Combat his position by all means when that is necessary. I have read his statement. If Kelappan has been discourteous, he should apologize. But in my opinion, the Zamorin is wrong in saying that his assurance was cancelled by Mr. Kelappan’s discourtesy.

The Bombay Chronicle, 17-11-1932

---

1 President, Anti-untouchability League, Travancore
2 From “Diary, 1932”
3 The fast, which was begun on September 20, ended on October 2.
681. A LETTER

November 15, 1932

My whole heart goes out to you and your wife. I am quite clear in my mind as to the course you have to follow. You should forget the man and the deed. God alone punishes and rewards. It was open to you, as I suppose it is even now, to prosecute the offender. But that is clearly not what you intend to do. After all he was not in his senses. Who knows that some day he may not learn the lesson and become a better man? If an opportunity offers for you to do a good turn to him you will not omit to do it. You should console your wife and induce her to forget the incident. Your daughter should not even be allowed to remember the incident. I suppose she has no knowledge of what was attempted to be done to her. But even if she has, she should be brought up so as to forget it altogether.

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, pp. 245-6

682. LETTER TO VASANTRAM SHASTRI

November 15, 1932

According to me, I am the same man that I was in 1921. I hope, though, that I have progressed further in the same direction. Nothing in this world remains fixed; things either progress or decline. I did not write about people whom you imagine to be wicked. The number of people who may be described as wicked is always small. I wrote about the countless millions. They may be ignorant and stupid, but they are not wicked. If you reflect more deeply, you cannot but be convinced of this. I should like you to explain more clearly what you mean by oppression.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, pp. 247

1 The addressee, not identified in the source, had written to Gandhiji that an acquaintance of the family, 50 years of age, had, while drunk, tried to commit rape on his, the addressee’s, six-year-old daughter, which had caused much distress to himself and his wife and asked Gandhiji’s advice as to what he ought to do.
683. LETTER TO TARAMATI MATHURADAS TRIKUMJI

YERAVDA MANDIR,
November 15, 1932

CHI. TARAMATI,

I had kept your letter in the hope of answering it when I had some time. In the mean time another letter had arrived. The work for the removal of untouchability takes all my time. We are doing well. The children must be having a good time. Keep writing even if I delay writing.

Blessings from
BAPU

TARAMATI MATHURADAS TRIKUMJI
21 MINT ROAD, 2ND FLOOR
FORT, BOMBAY

From the Gujarati original: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

684. LETTER TO G.D. BIRLA

November 15, 1932

BHAI GHANSHYAMDAS,

About your criticism of the Yeravda Pact we shall talk when we meet. I shall not waste time over it just now. What Thakkar Bapa writes about Patna is true about many other places too. We should write to local people about it. Why should not the municipality take up this work? The League should bring out a bulletin or journal or newspaper every fortnight or every week and make all these horrible things public\(^1\). However poor we may be, no municipality is so poor as to be unable to rectify such wrongs. I wrote to Mathuradas and to Ambalal too\(^2\).

Blessings from
BAPU

---

\(^1\) Following Gandhiji’s suggestion, Birla planned to bring out a weekly from January 1933 and had requested him for an article for the first issue.

\(^2\) Vide “Letter to Ambalal”, 10-11-1932. The letter to Mathuradas is not available.
685. DIARY, 1932¹
(1-9-1932 to 15-11-1932)

SEPTEMBER 1, THURSDAY, YERAVDA MANDIR²
Spun 238 rounds. Letters—Vasukaka, Mira, Brijkrishna, Manekbai, Anasuyabehn + Shankerlal.

SEPTEMBER 2, FRIDAY

SEPTEMBER 3, SATURDAY
Spun 250 rounds. Letters—Suresh Banerji, Maneklal, Khimchand.

SEPTEMBER 4, SUNDAY
Spun 250 rounds.

SEPTEMBER 5, MONDAY

SEPTEMBER 6, TUESDAY

SEPTEMBER 7, WEDNESDAY
Spun 220 rounds. Letters—Lala Hansraj, Devdas + Dr. Das Gupta. Dr. Dalal came again to examine the denture. Corrected the lower one slightly and brought it back. Today it is Parsi Navroz¹. Merne came in the evening and took a vow to abjure drink. He has promised to write to me after a few days from outside. Today ate the

¹ Continued from Vol. L
² This place-name is not repeated to subsequent entries. Gandhiji was arrested on January 4, 1932, and released on May 8, 1933.
³ New Year
Jail rotli made of wheat.

SEPTEMBER 8, THURSDAY

Spun [. . .]' Letters—Kamala Nehru, Krishnada, Ramsharan Sinh, Col. Doyle (about bread). Another letter to Col. Doyle regarding the 20th. Long talk with him about Government’s decision. Answered the point raised by him. Talking about bread he said that those who were used to bread would not have any difficulty. Gave me news of Kaka and of Ba. Mahadev showed today some signs of fever—had gone to help in making bread.

SEPTEMBER 9, FRIDAY

Spun 213 rounds. Letters—Khimchand, Dinkar, Prabhashankar + Balwant, Mathuradas Trikumji, Taramati, Nirmala Mashruwala, Narandas. Received and answered MacDonald’s letter. Wrote to Doyle. Today ate brown bread made here. Asked for plums and dates. The Major had brought MacDonald’s letter. Mahadev has slight fever.

SEPTEMBER 10, SATURDAY

Spun 206 rounds. Letters—Govind Ballabh Pant, Bidhan Roy. Yesterday plums worth Rs. 4 arrived. Did not at all like this, but thought I must accept them. Ate 20 in all in the morning and the evening. SEPTEMBER 11, SUNDAY

Spun 248 rounds. Spent the day in writing letters to the Ashram.

SEPTEMBER 12, MONDAY

Spun 236 rounds. Letters—The Ashram (including “Working and Thinking [−II ”]), Pyare Ali, Jamshed Mehta, Sarojini Devi. Kateli today took Mahadev along to persuade some of those on fast, to give it up. Has not succeeded so far. Prepared a draft of the appeal concerning the fast of the 20th.

SEPTEMBER 13, TUESDAY

Spun 223 rounds. Letters—Ratilal Desai + Mani + Jeki + Manekbai, Prabhashankar, Devdas. Correspondence about the fast published. Met Naidu, who was on fast—he gave up the fast. Cable from and to Andrews.

SEPTEMBER 14, WEDNESDAY

Spun 225 rounds. Letters—Devdas, Mohanlal Bhatt, Narandas,

1 The figure has been left out in the source.
Ba. Cable to Manekbai, [ letter to ] Bhaktibehn. Cables from Heath and others arrived. The Major informed me that the cable to Andrews handed over yesterday was dispatched today.

SEPTEMBER 15, THURSDAY

Spun 250 rounds. Letters—Parachure Shastri (four volumes of Vivekananda’s works), Savitri Standenath, Ghanshyamdas, Vithal, Kamakoti, Gurudev. Telegrams from Raja and Ghanshyamdas—replied to them. Dr. Dalal came and cleaned the denture. Today the bread was spoiled.

SEPTEMBER 16, FRIDAY

Spun 205 rounds. Letters—Nargis, Lily, Saraladevi, Anasuyabehn, Raihana, Mira, Radha, Romain Rolland, Muriel, Verrier, Polak, Privat, Ansari, Agatha Harrison. Today a number of telegrams arrived about the fast. Sent telegrams in reply to Sapru’s, Jamshed Mehta’s and Satis Babu’s. Woke up at 2 in the morning, left bed at 3 o’clock and drafted a public statement and handed it over to the Major for publication. Had talks with Ramdas and Surendra for about two hours and later with Khadilkar. Read in the evening that I might be released, subject to certain conditions, on starting the fast. Telegraphed to say that I would not agree to be released in that way.

SEPTEMBER 17, SATURDAY

Spun 206 rounds. Letters—Qureshi, Madhukanta, Narayanrao, Mate, Gosibehn. Today I drew up draft of agreement between caste Hindus and untouchables as I should like to have it. Vallabhbhai has fever. Dr. Dalal came and examined the denture.

SEPTEMBER 18, SUNDAY

Spun 240 rounds. Letters—Sarojini Naidu, Padmaja, Darbari Sadhu, Vallabhbhai had slight fever today too. Ghanshyamdas, Purushottamdas, Chunilal and Mathuradas came in the evening. We talked for over an hour. I explained what I had to say through written notes.

SEPTEMBER 19, MONDAY

Spun 209 rounds. Letters—Nanabhai Mashruwala, Rajbahadurlal, Gora, Raja, Mary Barr, Manilal Gandhi, Madhavdas + Krishna, Maganlal Mehta, Dr. Muthu, Taramati, Hansa Mehta, Shankar Kalekar, Lakshmi (Raja’s), Christ Seva Sangh, the Ashram (60 letters). Sir Purushottamdas, Mathuradas, Chimanlal, Ghanshyamdas called. We talked for two hours. Devdas came in the evening. Today did not take milk, took almonds instead.

SEPTEMBER 20, TUESDAY

SEPTEMBER 21, WEDNESDAY

Spun 153 rounds. Letters—Mathuradas, Kishorelal, Jairamdas, Mani, Fulchand, Jamnalal, Narahari. Cable to Polak. Talk with Sarojini, Sapru, Jayakar, Raja, Rajenbabu, Ghanshyamdas and others. Rajbhoj came, accompanied by Mate and others. Padmaja came to see me.

SEPTEMBER 22, THURSDAY

SEPTEMBER 23-29, FRIDAY -- THURSDAY

Could not write the diary all these days. It is being written on the morning of the 30th. The yarn spun during this period was: 23rd-60, 24th-43, 25th-60, 26th-60, 27th-108. The mind was full of peace during these days. Was suffering acute physical discomfort when I broke the fast on the 26th. There was a stream of visitors. Was much pleased by Gurudev’s visit. Kelappan’s fast weighed on the mind all the time, and is still doing so. During fast, I started spinning on Keshu’s new spinning-wheel from 26th. The interviews were stopped on the 29th. Only Ghanshyamdas and Mathuradas can now see me about Antyaja work. Have written a strong letter about this. Ba and Sarojini were taken away in the evening. Devdas visited me at night. Was weighed on Wednesday and stood at 95. It was 93.5 on Monday. Before the fast, it was 101.

SEPTEMBER 30, FRIDAY

Spun 235 rounds. Wrote a good many letters to Europe. Read part of the mail. Sat up for quite some time. Walked a few paces. Had a natural motion in the evening. Ba was released today and then was granted permission to visit me by day. Just as I wrote the English letters in the morning, I wrote inland letters till 8 in the evening.
OCTOBER 1, SATURDAY

OCTOBER 2, SUNDAY

Spun 219 rounds. Letters—Maithilisharan, Bhikshu Balchandracharya, Chaman Kavi, Hemprabha, Kamalnayan, Ali Hassan, Paul, Prabhashankar, Hassan Imam’s children, Taramati, Miss Petersen, Ramdas. On being weighed today I stood at 100, Vallabhbhai at 140 and Mahadev at 143.

OCTOBER 3, MONDAY

OCTOBER 4, TUESDAY

OCTOBER 5, WEDNESDAY

OCTOBER 6, THURSDAY

OCTOBER 7, FRIDAY

OCTOBER 8, SATURDAY
Spun 205 rounds. Letters—Prabhavati, Sadashiv, Gomati, Mani, Mathuradas, Mohanlal, Eliot Breckett, Nath Samuel, Salvi, Nanibehn, Angarika Govind, Dwarakaprasad Sharma, Jyotiprakash, Marie Petersen, Shankar Kalelkar about his fast. Sent a letter to Father Winslow through Gagan. As Shankar refused to give up the fast, again wrote a letter to him. Did not drink milk today. Took gulkand in the evening.

OCTOBER 9, SUNDAY

OCTOBER 10, MONDAY
Spun 204 rounds. Letters—The Ashram-23, Dr. Mahmud, Muljibhai, Mohanlal, Somasundaram, the Friends of India, Leandor, Maude, Gurudev, Chaunde Maharaj, Suresh, Baldevdas, Meghani, Ramayya, Raman Soni, Santhiavu, Kathirvelu, Kotak + Sharda, Taramati, Thakkar Bapa, Hardayal Nag, Hales, Jairam Varalkar, Shantiswaroop, Girindra Kishore, Krishnadas, Kirchand Shivlal, Dadachanji, Jamnalal, Trivedi, Raihana. Manilal came. Today the Major summoned Shankar and scolded him. He and the others gave up their fast yesterday on my writing to them to do so.

OCTOBER 11, TUESDAY

OCTOBER 12, WEDNESDAY

OCTOBER 13, THURSDAY

OCTOBER 14, FRIDAY

OCTOBER 15, SATURDAY

OCTOBER 16, SUNDAY

OCTOBER 17, MONDAY
Spun 210 rounds. Letters—Narandas (41), Nanalal Kalidas, Padmaja, Zohra, Rangaswami, Michael, Lala Roshanlal, Scott Henderson, Polak (Jr. and Sr.). Ambedkar called today. Sarojini was also with him. Hudson had made it clear that only untouchability could be discussed and that even that discussion should not be published.

OCTOBER 18, TUESDAY

OCTOBER 19, WEDNESDAY
Spun 208 rounds. Letters—Nalini, Krishnachandra, Kambhatta, Harijan (Walve), Dadachanji, Shambhooshankar, Kamalani, Jatpat Todak Mandal, Shailappa, Kanaiyalal, Arjunda, Kisan, Winslow, Gaurishankar Lal, Nath, Mohanlal Bhatt. Manilal paid a visit. We were taken to the old cells this evening.

OCTOBER 20, THURSDAY

OCTOBER 21, FRIDAY

OCTOBER 22, SATURDAY
Spun 217 rounds. Letters—Manilal Gandhi, Dr Dalal, Khwaja, Hiralal, Urmila Devi, Jamsheed, German, Mary Barr, Bhilodei Chandraji. Met Sardar Pratap Singh

OCTOBER 23, SUNDAY
Spun 220 rounds. Letters—Prof. Trivedi, David, Sesha Aiyangar, Jamsheed, Harilal Parikh, Rambharose, Hemprabha,

1 If the source this can be also read as “Trilok”.

432 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
Madhavan, Nagendranath, Lady Thackersey. Last night at 9 o’clock, received Ghelabhai’s telegram about the death of Punjabhai at 3.30 o’clock. Spent the day in writing letters to the Ashram. Wrote reminiscences of Punjabhai.

OCTOBER 24, MONDAY

Spun 208 rounds. Letters—The Ashram 45 including reminiscences of Punjabhai also, Abul Kalam, Lakshmi. Today Bhandari read out to me the Government’s order concerning the correspondence about untouchability. Refused to give me a copy. I have sent a reply to it today. A telegram from Abul Kalam Azad also has been withheld.

OCTOBER 25, TUESDAY

Spun 200 rounds. Letters—Khambhatta, Sitala Sahay, Dinshaw Mehta, Harjivan, Rukhi, Vaikunthlal, Manilal Revashankar (Ba, Pyarelal, Neelam, Manilal). Devdas called. Sent with him Pyarelal’s book and also Manilal’s. Kateli called at night and suggested deletion, in my letter to Doyle, of the paragraph about his refusal to give me a copy of the Government’s letter. He allowed me to take out a copy. Handed over the corrected letter today. Received yesterday the honey sent by David.

OCTOBER 26, WEDNESDAY

OCTOBER 27, THURSDAY

OCTOBER 28, FRIDAY

OCTOBER 29, SATURDAY (DIWALI)

OCTOBER 30, SUNDAY, PADAVO 1989

Spun [. . .]. Letters—Mathuradas, Mohanlal, Gertrude Keller, Mr. Hirnom, Mathuradas, Shankar, Kedarnath, Sukabhau, Sarojini, Lady Vithaldas. As my leg was aching today, did the rest of the spinning on the Gandiva.

OCTOBER 31 MONDAY

NOVEMBER 1, TUESDAY

NOVEMBER 2, WEDNESDAY

Spun 106 rounds. Letters—Prof. Wadia, Ramdas, The Ashram (Bhau, Rama, Titus) Jamnalal, Madanmohan. Telegram to Jamnalal. The Major called last night and handed to me telegram from the Government of India. Replied today. As a result of that telegram, I resumed today the usual food. Sent for fruit from Lady Vithaldas.

NOVEMBER 3, THURSDAY

Spun 115 rounds. Letters—Mayashankar, Mira, The Ross brothers, Michael Wilson (Sunfield), Najuklal, Dr. Gaur, Narottam

1 The Gujarati New Year
2 The figures have been left out in the source.
Girdhar Company. Government decision on untouchability received. May be considered good. Sent a reply. For the present at any rate God has dispersed the clouds. The hand pains so much that I want to reduce the spinning still further.

NOVEMBER 4, FRIDAY

NOVEMBER 5, SATURDAY

NOVEMBER 6, SUNDAY

NOVEMBER 7, MONDAY

NOVEMBER 8, TUESDAY

Spun 113 rounds. Letters—Harjivan Kotak, the Ashram (Bā+Radha+Champa+Narandas+Talwalkar), Ramdas (together with two books—the Ramayana and Ruskin), Jamnalal. About untouchability—Natarajan, Kodanda Rao, Shastri. Major Bhandari about the Egypt cable. Anandshankar Dhruva, Bhandari (2) about newspapers. Telegram to Shanti, the Chinese. Mama paid a visit. Interview to the Sakal correspondent.

NOVEMBER 9, WEDNESDAY

NOVEMBER 10, THURSDAY

NOVEMBER 11, FRIDAY

NOVEMBER 12, SATURDAY

NOVEMBER 13, SUNDAY

NOVEMBER 14, MONDAY

Takli—52 rounds. Started spinning on the takli because of the pain in the arm. Telegram to Sheth Jamnalal and Chhaganlal. Letters to the Ashram (41), Dr. Modi, Sahni. About untouchability—Kanitkar, Nripendrasingh, Rajbhoj, Anantrao, Manmathrai. Telegram to Satisbabu. Gave the fifth statement to Kodanda Rao.

NOVEMBER 15, TUESDAY

From the Gujarati: S.N. 19337
APPENDICES

APPENDIX I

(A) DISCUSSION WITH VALLABHBHAI PATEL

September 6, 1932

GANDHI: You were, of course, joking in the morning, but if you really have any questions to ask please ask them.

VALLABHBHAI PATEL: What do you think will these people do?

G. I still feel that they will release me on or before the 19th. It will be the limit of wickedness if they let me fast, let no one know about it and then say that I did what I as a prisoner ought not to have done, and that they could do nothing about it. I do not say that they cannot go that far, only they will not find it necessary. And they certainly are not the people to go further than it is necessary.

V. P. Then what will you do?

G. The fast cannot commence on the 20th. We cannot stick to the 20th.

V. P. Does it mean then that we have got time till the new constitution is drawn up? Or that you can give a longer notice to the people and the Government?

G. Yes, but that depends on how much the people will allow me to do after I get out. I cannot tell what the situation will be. I have no idea of the kind of letter I may have to write. But I shall have to consider every party—the Hindu society, the Antyajas, the Government, the Muslims. It will be necessary for the Hindus to hold meetings along with the Antyajas at every place and reject this thing. The Government has done this thing as a Christian Government and hence I shall have to tell both the Government and the Christians the same thing—that as Christians they cannot do this thing. Let our swaraj come into being, then they may influence the Antyajas in any way they like, but they should not divide us today. I had said this to the Muslims even in England. I shall say the same thing here also. I shall explain to the Hindu society that now the Antyajas have no choice but to turn Muslims or Christians.

V. P. But where are the Muslims here who will listen to you?

G. It does not matter if there aren’t any. But we should hope that those people too will wake up. The root of satyagraha lies in faith in human nature, in the faith that it will be possible to melt the cruelest of men. So there will surely be some Muslim who will say that if things go to that length he will not be able to bear it. To accomplish all this, I shall have to call certain people. I do not know whether all of them will be permitted to come here. But they may even insult me. They may say that they have released me because they will not take the responsibility for my death. However, if I launch civil disobedience, they will have to put me back into prison.

MAHADEV DESAI: Among the people who will come will also be Christian friends and they will say to you that before accusing the Government you should accuse yourself. Why does Hindu society regard the Antyajas as untouchables?

G. That is up to me to explain. That is not a difficult thing. We can say to them: ‘Allow us to settle our problems ourselves, why do you interfere? After we have set about managing our own affairs, you may do what you like. Why do you divide us and then argue over things? Today the Antyajas have either to turn to Muslims or to you. The question of women is similar to that of the Antyajas. But women are not untouchables. Even if they wish to become untouchables, men will go and sit on their beds. They cannot be separated even by having a separate electorate. Today the Antyajas have been separated permanently. What would be the outcome of it? There would be internal strife. There are people like . . . . He would collect bad characters in the community and get them to attack Hindus, poison wells and do other things.

The duty of those of you who have remained here is merely to inform everyone in the Camp jail that fasting is wholly prohibited and that everyone must remain calm.

[From Gujarati]
Mahadevbhai Diary, Vol. II, pp. 7-9

(B) DISCUSSION WITH B.R. AMBEDKAR

September 22, 1932

AMBEDKAR: We must accept that in the country there are two groups belonging to two different ideologies and act accordingly, and I should get my compensation. I also want that a clear understanding should be arrived at which would recompense me in other respects also. The decision of the Government gives me seventy-one seats and I feel that is a just, reasonable and definite allocation.

GANDHI: According to you.

A. Over and above that I get the right to vote and contest elections in the general constituencies. I also have a franchise in the labourers' constituencies. We do realize that you are of immense help to us.

G. Not to you personally.

A. But I have only one quarrel with you, that is, you work for the so-called national welfare and not for our interests alone. If you devoted yourself entirely to the welfare of the Depressed Classes, you would then become our hero.
Very sweet of you to say so.

A. I want political power for my community. That is indispensable for our survival. The basis of the agreement therefore should be: I should get what is due to me. I wish to tell the Hindus that I should be assured of my compensation.

G. You have clarified your position very beautifully. However, I should like to ask you one question. You say that if there is any genuine party among the Depressed Classes it should be given sufficient scope to rise. Therefore their refusal to accept joint electorates without primary elections is quite reasonable. What I do not understand is why you have not said so far that there should be a separate election of this kind. I feel from whatever study I have made of the subject that if I accept the primary election, the letter of my vow is not violated. I therefore accept the Clause [of primary election] but I would most certainly have to scrutinize its wording. At the moment, I say only this, that the idea of separate primary elections does not go against my vow. But I suspect something when you insist that the panel should consist only of three candidates. It does not give me sufficient place to turn in. Moreover, you consider panel system for some seats only, thereby satisfying both the parties [among Harijans]. There would be one election, i.e., of the primary nature by the Harijan voters only. The other would be by the joint electorate. I have to safeguard without any discrimination not the interest of one group alone but of the Depressed Class as a whole. I want to serve the untouchables. That is why I am not at all angry with you. When you use derogatory and angry words for me, I tell myself that I deserved that. I will not get angry even if you spit on my face. I say this with God as witness. I know that you have drunk deep of the poisoned cup. However, I make a claim which will seem astounding to you. You are born an untouchable but I am an untouchable by adoption. And as a new convert I feel more for the welfare of the community than those who are already there. At the moment I have before my eyes the dumb untouchables—unapproachables and unseeables—of South India. I am scrutinizing the scheme to see how these people will be affected by it. You will of course say why I should worry about that. All of you will either accept Christianity or Islam. I say that you may do whatever you like after my body falls. What I say is that if the panel system is good for the Depressed Classes it should be good for the entire electorate. I do not like it from the beginning that the community should be divided into two groups. I will raze to the ground the fort of sanatanists with dynamite if all the untouchables are one and united. I want that the entire untouchable community should unitedly rebel against the sanatanists. You should not worry about the number as long as the appointing power is in your hands. I am a lifelong democrat. The whole world will agree that I was the foremost among the democrats after my ashes are scattered in the air or, if that does not happen, after they are immersed in the Ganga. I do not say this out of pride but tell the truth with humility. I learnt the lesson of democracy at the tender age of 12. I quarrelled with my mother for treating the domestic sweeper as an untouchable. That day I saw God in the form of a Bhangi. You spoke the truth when you said that the welfare of untouchables is dearer to you than my own life. Now be honest and stick to it. You should not care for my life. But do not be false to Harijans. My work will not die with me. I have asked my son to convey my message to the Conference. In that, I have said that they should not be tempted to forsake the interests of the Harijans in order to save my life. I am sure that if I die my son will definitely follow me. Not only he but many others also will lay down their lives, for I do not have only one son, I have thousands. He would not be my worthy son if he did not lay down his life for the honour of Hinduism. Without eradicating untouchability root and branch the honour of Hinduism cannot be saved. That can only happen when untouchables are treated on par with caste Hindus in every respect. A person who is regarded as ‘unseeable’ today should also have the opportunity to become the Viceroy of India. I had said, in the first political speech I made on coming to India that I would like to make a Bhangi the President of the Congress.

So I appeal to you not to haggle. Do not bring to me something which is so bad that I would not even like the look of it. Bring to me some nice present which would inspire life into a person who is willingly courting death. However you will do that only if you are convinced that my co-operation has some value.

[From Gujarati]

_Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 69-72_

(C) A STATEMENT

_September 22, 1932_

I do not see any objection from the point of view of my vow in the system of primary elections which Dr. Ambedkar has explained to me and which has been laid down in Clause B of the scheme given to me. But before I finally accept any scheme, I would like to see it drafted in very clear language. After that I will give my final decision on Clause B. I do not like its language. It requires many changes. I give below my objections against Clause B and its language.

(1) The system of primary elections and reserved seats should terminate automatically after 10 years.

(2) The number of votes should be ascertained from the Lothian Committee Report. I have double objection against Clause B. Not only that it nullifies the object for which I have staked my life but it is harmful to the nation also.
About other issues you should put the Hindu Community on its honour. Do not ask me to do anything which would not do justice to a man on deathbed. I know that the country will be ruined if I swerve from the stand I have taken.

[From Gujarati]

(D) INTERVIEW TO VOHRA DEPUTATION

September 23, 1932

If you think deeply, you will see that no task in this world has been possible without someone sacrificing his life for it. Your love for me is inspired by my determination, my strength to give up my life. Hence those of you who love me should let me go. My life is in the hands of God. Even if I wish to depart I cannot, and if I am to depart, even expert doctors will not be able to save me. It will be a great thing if you bear witness to the fact that I died for truth. It is not that the blot to remove which I have been fasting disfigures Hindu religion alone it disfigures the whole of India, because the entire country is witness to it. Hence you should all pray that Gandhi’s pledge be fulfilled. It is not as if the Hindus could not pray for Muslims and vice versa. That sort of belief is hypocritical.

[From Gujarati]
Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, pp. 73-4

(E) MESSAGE TO M. M. MALAVIYA, M.R. JAYAKAR AND TEJ BAHADUR SAPRU

September 24, 1932

They should not take hasty steps on my account. They should endorse only that which they feel is right. They as well as I will be doing a wrong thing if later on I had to be persuaded to change my opinion. We should not stand on our honour as far as our duty is concerned. They should therefore cling to what is true, proper and just. If in doing so my body falls, let it be so. Everyone should do what he thinks is proper. My stand is: either agree to referendum after five years or let me die. Anyone who feels that this condition is not proper and is harmful should not accept it.

[From Gujarati]

1 The Vohras had gone to urge Gandhiji to give up his intention to fast.
2 Gandhiji had asked Mahadev Desai to convey this message.

442 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
October 17, 1932

AMBEDKAR: I have not come to discuss untouchability but political matters.

GANDHIJI: That is true. I cannot talk about it with you; even if you do I shall not be able to express an opinion—my mind does not work in that direction.

A. I have come here for this. I want to request you to give up civil disobedience and to join the Round Table Conference. The point is that if you do not come, we shall get nothing in England and everything will be upset. People like Iqbal who are enemies of the country will come to the forefront. We have to work any sort of constitution. Hence though I am a small man, I request you to come.

G. If you elaborate your argument, I shall think over it. I suggest you go and write about it at length in the newspapers. I shall think over it.

A. It is not a thing that can be put down in writing. In it I shall have to say a lot that will hurt the Muslims and I cannot say that publicly. But I shall write anonymously or have someone write in a different way. Please have a look at it and, taking it to be mine, think over it.

G. It will be good if you write under your own name. But of course you may do as you wish.

A. I must honestly say that I have no interest in the temples being thrown open, common dinners and the like, because we suffer thereby. My people have to put up with beatings and bitterness increases. After the common dinner at Vile Parle, the Maratha workers went on strike. If the caste Hindus had the strength they would have engaged untouchables as servants. But that has not been so. Hence I do not feel interested in the thing. I only want that social and economic hardships should end.

G. Give examples.

A. The untouchables do not get houses to live in; they continue to suffer injustice and oppression. In one case, an untouchable was accused of having murdered a Maratha. I could have taken the case to Sessions and got him acquitted, but the magistrate changed the charge of murder to one of grievous injury. Now he will receive some punishment. You may not know what even I have to face. I do not get any other place to live in Bombay except the Port Trust chawl. In my village, I have to stay in the midst of the Mahars. In Poona, all others stay with their friends. I have to stay at the National Hotel and have to spend Rs. 7 and transport fare.

G. Servants of India?

A. Yes, I can perhaps stay there. But only perhaps. You will know if you ask Vaze. Once Vaze’s servant insulted me in his presence. I want to do away with all these hardships.
G. I am at one with you. You ought to know that my fast has not ended yet, it is still on. To correct the agreement was a minor thing. The main thing still remains to be done. I am ready to give my life for it. All the injustices you mention ought to end.

A. Birla said that I should be taken on the Committee for the Abolition of Untouchability. I declined to join, because what can I alone do? I would have to agree to the work of abolishing untouchability being done in accordance with your wishes. If we are in a majority we can get the reforms that we wish brought about. You wish that temples should be erected or wells should be dug. We might feel that that would be a waste of money, that there should be another way out for it.

G. I understand your point of view, and I shall keep it in mind and shall see what can be done.

[From Gujarati]
Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, pp. 144-6

APPENDIX II

1. There shall be seats reserved for the Depressed Classes out of general electorates. Seats in provincial Legislatures shall be as follows:

- Madras: 30
- Bombay with Sind: 15
- Punjab: 8
- Bihar and Orissa: 18
- Central Provinces: 20

2 The signing took place on the 24th September, at about 6 in an atmosphere of cordiality. According to a report in The Bombay Chronicle, 26-9-1932, Madan Mohan Malaviya signed first, followed by Dr. Ambedkar, who used Rajagopalachari’s pen for the purpose and kept it for himself and in exchange gave him his own pen to sign and keep as a momento of the occasion.

3 These figures are based on the total strength of the Provincial Councils announced in the Prime Minister’s decision.
2. Election to these seats shall be by joint electorates subject, however, to the following procedure:

All members of the Depressed Classes registered in the general electoral roll of a constituency, will form an electoral college which will elect a panel of four candidates belonging to the Depressed Classes for each of such reserved seats, by the method of single vote and the four persons getting the highest number of votes in such primary election shall be the candidates for election by the general electorate.

3. Representation of the Depressed Classes in the Central Legislature shall likewise be on the principle of joint electorates and reserved seats by the method of primary election in the manner provided for in clause 2 above for their representation in Provincial Legislatures.

4. In the Central Legislature 18 per cent of the seats allotted to the general electorate for British India in the said legislature shall be reserved for the Depressed Classes.

5. The system of primary election to panel of candidates for election to the Central and Provincial Legislatures, as hereinbefore mentioned, shall come to an end after the first ten years unless terminated sooner by mutual agreement under the provision of Clause 6 below.

6. The system of representation of the Depressed Classes by reserved seats in the Provincial and Central Legislatures as provided for in clauses 1 and 4 shall continue until determined by mutual agreement between the communities concerned in this settlement.

7. The franchise for the Central and Provincial Legislatures for the Depressed Classes shall be as indicated in the Lothian Committee Report.

8. There shall be no disabilities attaching to anyone on the ground of his being a member of the Depressed Classes in regard to any elections to local bodies or appointment to public service.

Every endeavour shall be made to secure a fair representation of the Depressed Classes in these respects subject to such educational qualifications as may be laid down for appointment to public services.

9. In every province out of the educational grant an adequate sum shall be earmarked for providing educational facilities to members of the Depressed Classes.
APPENDIX III

INTERVIEW TO "THE TIMES OF INDIA"²

November 10, 1932

GANDHIji: The Zamorin does not say that it is impossible to throw open the temple but he goes on pointing out his difficulties. If he fails in his efforts Kelappan and I have to resort to fast unless I see some flaw in the claim advanced. In fact there is no flaw in it. There are difficulties in the way of the Zamorin but they are not such that they cannot be got over. The real test is whether the sanatanists, those who have the privilege of entering the temple, have any objection to untouchables entering the temple. All the information I have received shows that the majority of the templegoers have no objection. The whole movement is based on the belief that the temple-

¹ The signatures that follow were added to the document in Bombay at the final sitting of the Hindu Conference on September 25.

² Vide "Telegram to The Zamorin of Calicut", 9-11-1932.
goers, i.e., sanatanists are prepared for the reform. Our fast would be premature if they are not prepared for the reform.

Question: There won’t be any fast if the difficulties regarding the opening of these temples are removed. Isn’t that so?

G. The proposed fast is above all for the opening of this temple. To make it a test case Kelappan had concentrated all his efforts on this temple alone. They have made their utmost effort to get the temple opened. After I began my fast Kelappan also decided to follow me. But he had not given due notice. I pointed out this fault and advised him to postpone the fast. He agreed to it. Now therefore I am honour-bound to fast with him. This is the reason why we have concentrated our efforts on Guruvayur.

Q. The Zamorin says that thousands of people are willing to lay down their lives.

G. That statement of his is not true. However, I won’t be worried if thousands of people who call themselves sanatanists go on a fast. Truth is more precious than thousands of lives. I feel that a fast is a means to self-purification and awakening the inner self. It cannot be a means of coercion.

Q. Won’t this movement divide the Hindu community? Won’t the sanatanists be separated from the rest of the Hindus?

G. I entertain no such fear. Being a democrat, I would not oppose as I am doing now the movement known as the sanatanist movement if I am satisfied that it has the support of the majority. The whole movement of eradication of untouchability rests on the belief that the opposition does not have a formidable support. It is well known that it does not have any moral support.

Q. Don’t you feel that you would be more effective if you were outside? Do you consider eradication of untouchability less important than civil disobedience?

G. I do not give anyone of them either less or more importance. For me both are religious principles and so I cannot consider one inferior to the other. Here I am talking about civil disobedience as a principle, not as a movement. I cannot give any opinion on the civil disobedience that is going on the country.

Q. It seems that the movement is not as effective as it should be.

G. I cannot say that. I am not in a position to say anything. I cannot rely on the information gathered from the newspapers. You should contact the workers outside.

Q. What do you say about Delhi resignations from Anti-untouchability League?

G. I am not surprised. However, I do hope there is nothing very significant behind it all. The foundation of the League is quite strong. It has an ideal President and a more ideal Secretary.

[From Gujarati]

1. STATEMENT ON UNTOUCHABILITY* - VII

POONA,

November 16, 1932

Though the questions that I shall endeavour to answer in this statement have been more or less covered by the previous statements, as they continue to recur, I thought it would be well to collect as many as possible and to deal with them in one single statement. “Are you not forcing people to do things against their will?” is one such question. At least, such is not my intention.

The contemplated fast† is intended to strengthen the weak, to energize the sluggards and to give faith to the sceptics.

It should be clear to anyone who will give a little thought to it that those who are hostile to the reform will not only be unaffected by the fast, but will probably and perhaps rightly, from their own standpoint, welcome it, if only it ends fatally. An angry correspondent does not hesitate to say it in so many words, but says another correspondent, “it is all very well for you to say, you do not intend to do such and such a thing. There are many orthodox people who will follow the multitude for fear of personal injury from your over-zealous followers.”

An argument like this can be advanced under almost any conceivable circumstance. I have led many movements in my lifetime where there has been no fast necessary, but the charge I am now answering has been brought against me often enough, in order to turn me away from my purpose.

Whatever the intended consequences of the contemplated fast may be, apart from its being a question of honour, it must be taken up, if the occasion arises, for the additional reason that it is certain to stir to worthy effort tens of thousands of people who have faith in me. Such must be the case in every movement of a religious character.

The second question is:

---

1 Issued by Gandhiji, from the Yeravda Central Prison, Poona. The earlier six statements were issued on the 4th, 5th, 7th, 9th, 14th and 15th November, 1932.

2 In sympathy with Kelappan’s fast for the opening of the Guruvayur Temple to Harijans; vide “Statement on Untouchability-IX”, 26-11-1932. The fast was to commence on January 2, 1933, but was postponed.
Are you not setting one section of the Hindus against another?

Most emphatically not. Some opposition is inevitable in every reform. But up to a point. Opposition and agitation in a society are a sign of healthy growth. I have no fear whatsoever of a permanent cleavage between the sanatanists and the reformers. Far be it from me either to underrate the sanatanist opposition or to disregard their sentiment. I have no doubt whatsoever that some of them feel strongly that sanatan dharma is in danger. Nevertheless it is astonishing how narrow at least in theory is the difference between the sanatanist and the reformer.

Almost every letter that I have received from the sanatanists makes these startling admissions:

1. We admit that there is much to be done for the amelioration of the condition of the Harijans; 2. we admit that many caste Hindus are ill-treating the Harijans; 3. we admit that their children should receive education and that they should have better quarters to live in; 4. we admit that they should have proper arrangement for bathing and drawing water for themselves; 5. we admit that they should have full political rights; 6. we admit that they should have ample facilities for worship and 7. we admit that they should have all the civic rights that the others have.

But, say these sanatanists, “we must not be compelled to touch them or associate with them, especially whilst they are in their present condition.”

Then I say to them, since you admit the necessity for putting them on the same level with you, why are you agitated that other caste Hindus will go a step further and believe on strength of the same Shastras that you believe in, that is, their duty is not to regard the Harijans as untouchables, but to have them share with themselves all those rights and privileges which you concede to them, but which you would have them to enjoy and exercise in isolation from you? Surely you who want to guard your own liberty of action and rightly resent the very idea of coercion, will not desire that the reformers should be coerced into carrying out schemes of amelioration which you hold to be necessary in exactly the same manner as you would like.

I venture to suggest a better way. Since you are at one with the reformers in conceding the desirability of ameliorating the condition of the Harijans and since you have not hitherto done anything tangible in that direction, subscribe liberally to the funds that the reformers are collecting, and use them as your agents for carrying out the common scheme and respect their interpretation of Hindu religion, as you would have them to respect yours. Hitherto, in pratice, you have not resented the reformer’s action in associating with the Harijans. You have suffered him to go his own way. You have not boyocotted him. There is, then, no meaning in your opposition now simply because the movement has become more active and more universal than before.

One difficulty is still standing in the way. Who is to have the use of public temples and other public institutions that are in existence, and from which Harijans are at present debarred, in some cases legally and in other far more numerous cases, illegally? There is a very simple way out of the difficulty. If only each party will shed anger and mutual disrespect, a referendum can easily be taken for each village or a group of villages and each city or each division of a city, and whichever party has the majority in favour of its view should make use of the public institutions, including the temples. And if the sanatanists carry the majority with them, they should defray their share with the reformers of the cost of providing equal services for the reformers and the untouchables.

I bracket the reformers with the Harijans, for if they are worth their salt and will work up to their convictions, as time progresses, the duty must dawn upon them of denying to themselves the use of a single service which the Harijans cannot enjoy with the caste Hindus on absolutely equal terms.

Following out this train of reasoning the sanatanists will see that in justice they should bear the whole cost of bringing into being parallel services, because as I have understood the correspondence and as I have explained above, the sanatanists agree that the Harijans are entitled to the same services that they have hitherto enjoyed, and of which the Harijans have hitherto been deprived. Let not the sanatanists run away with themselves by picturing a condition of things as existing but which in reality does not exist.

Let them clearly understand that the removal of untouchability in accordance with the Yeravda Pact1, and with the declaration of the

---

1 Between the leaders acting on behalf of the depressed classes and of the rest of the Hindu community, regarding the representation of the depressed classes in legislatures and certain other matters affecting their welfare. For the text of the agreement, vide Appendix”Agreement between depressed classes leaders and caste Hindu Leaders”.
recently formed All-India Anti-Untouchability League includes no more than I have narrated. It does not include inter-dining and inter-marriage. That many Hindus including myself would go muchfurther ought not to disturb the sanatanists. They will not want to stifle private judgment or private action, and if they have deep faith in what they believe, they should not take fright, in anticipation of what is to come. If a particular reform has an inherent vitality and has come in response to the needs of the time, no power on earth can stem its irresistible march.

The third question is:

Are you not retarding political emancipation by forcing on public attention your views on social and religious questions, and springing upon the public a hurricane agitation for their acceptance?

I cannot answer this question at length without trespassing upon the limits which, as a prisoner, I have accepted for conducting the anti-untouchability campaign. But this much I can say that those who know me at all should understand that I draw no hard and fast line of demarcation between political, social, religious and other questions. I have always held that they are inter-dependent and that the solution of one brings nearer the solution of the rest. This does not exhaust the questions which I have collected from the correspondence which is already proving more than I can handle with the very limited assistance which only naturally I can have. I must deal with the rest to the best of my ability in the statement¹ to follow.

I would here like to urge the correspondents to be merciful. Hitherto, I have punctiliously acknowledged almost all the letters that have reached me. But the correspondents will henceforth please be satisfied with whatever answers I can give through the series of statements I am issuing, and they will help themselves and me, if they will be brief and write only when they have something original to say or when they have questions to which they must have answers from me, before they can form their judgment on any issue arising in connection with the movement.

The Bombay Chronicle, 17-11-1932

2. FOREWORD TO “HAMARA KALANK”

November 16, 1932

This venture of Sasta Sahitya Mandal is laudable. As there is such a rigorous movement afoot for the eradication of untouchability, everyone must, as a matter of course, know what is being done in this direction and how. We want, through enlightenment, to do away with this sin. It is, therefore, essential for the Hindu public to realize the implications of untouchability and our duty in this matter.

Mohandas Gandhi

[From Hindi]

Hamara Kalank

3. TELEGRAM TO JAMNALAL BAJAJ

POONA,
November 16, 1932

SHETH JAMNALAL BAJAJ
PRISONER
DISTRICT JAIL
DHULIA
WIRE RECEIVED. KEEP ME INFORMED1 IF NECESSARY DAILY BY WIRE.

BAPU

Panchven Putrako Bapuke Ashirvad, p. 98

4. LETTER TO S. M. MICHAEL

November 16, 1932

I do not claim ability to give satisfaction to anybody. I can only try. Sjt. Kelappan’s fast was without notice and therefore began with an initial flaw. That will not apply to the contemplated fast. If the temple is opened to the Harijans it will not be due in fact to any coercion used against the trustees, but it will be opened because of the irresistible demand of the temple-goers who are the real owners. Take the converse case. If the temple-goers are not converted, can any

2 The addressee had written: “If you could assure me that your fast did not imply undue pressure, I will not undertake one.”
pressure brought to bear on the trustees ever result in the admission of Harijans to the temple?

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 251

5. LETTER TO K. NATARAJAN

November 16, 1932

I have both your letters. I am delighted that the doctor has got a suitable job in Delhi. Your second letter is an appeal to reason, and rightly so. But there are two difficulties about appeals to reason in a case like mine. In the first place, though the reasoning may be perfectly sound, it may not be based on the same premises, and therefore may fail to carry conviction. Secondly, as you yourself have justly remarked, a case like mine transcends reason. Nevertheless I have always desired in such cases to compare notes with kindred spirits. For I do believe that with fallible human beings there is no such thing as absolute surety, even about promptings of the inner voice. God requires the purest instruments to speak through, but poor mortals can only make an approach to perfection. And whilst they are confined in their bodies, they can never attain perfection. What I therefore want is with the utmost freedom to discuss with you whatever has been actuating me in the hope that either you will see my viewpoint and find perfect justification for my action, or some argument or a word coming from you may discover to me a flaw that might have escaped me. I confess however I have no doubt in my mind about the ethics of the proposed fast. I am therefore suffering from no mental disturbance and therefore I do not want you to hasten back to Bombay. Do carry out all your private and public programmes in the North and when in due course you come back to Bombay I would like you when you can spare a few hours to run up to Poona to have a brief interchange of views.

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, pp. 248-9

1 Editor, Indian Social Reformer
6. LETTER TO CHAMAN KAVI

November 16, 1932

If, on the one hand, hundreds of self-seeking men have misused mosques, temples and churches, on the other, millions have made good use of them. If you wish to test the truth of this statement, use your wonderful gift of imagination and suppose that a reformer razes to the ground in a single day all the churches, temples and mosques. Then picture to yourself the condition of those millions of simple good souls when they discover that the temples and mosques from which they daily derived consolation and support were no more. I see the truth of this every day. Devotees who visit even the most unholy temples with pure heart certainly feel the presence of God in those temples, so wonderful is the mystery of His Nature, or say His maya. But some great bhakta was inspired and sang: “Maya casts a spell on all, but she is helpless before a God-lover”. If, therefore, you realize through your imagination that so long as temples exist they should be open for Harijans too, your own reason will convince you of the necessity of the fast. My fast is not aimed against the sanatanists; it is aimed against the thousands or rather the millions who are bound to me [by the tie of love]. If the fast shocks them out of their slumber, the temples are bound to be thrown open to Harijans.

I have infinite patience as regards the spinning-wheel. Your experience of villages is limited to Kutch. But conditions in the thousands of other villages are far different from those in the villages of Kutch. And even in Kutch no cloth can be cheaper than what is produced by the cultivator with his own labour from cotton growing in his own fields. If there is any such cloth, you may say that it is a shroud rather than cloth which protects the weaver against cold and heat or covers his shame. Suppose somebody offers me, instead of water, a poisonous liquid which looks like water, gives it free and even offers to me the glass which contains it as a gift, and another person offers real water but pours it from his jug into my folded palms and asks four pice for the service, whose offer should I accept? You are impatient, your mind is very much unsteady and your faith is short-lived. That is why you get irritated every now and then. But this is not your true nature. It is a disease in you. Get rid of it. Your truenature is capable of patience and iron firmness of mind. One need not put faith in anything too readily, but once we have put faith in a thing after the most careful thought, we must cling to it as tenaciously. as does a black ant to a jar of jaggery. “Better lose one’s life rather than break one’s plighted word.” I think I have written enough now.

[From Gujarati]
Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, pp. 250-1

7. LETTER TO NARASINHRAO B. DIVATIA

November 16, 1932

SUNNA BHAISHRI,

I hope I did not worry you by writing to you. If a beggar hides his begging bowl, his cause would be lost. Though you are advanced in age, I can put no limit to your capacity. Will you kindly send me the names of other persons whom you think I can approach for help?

Vandemataram from
MOHANDAS

[From Gujarati]
Narasinhraoni Rajnishi, p. 548

8. A LETTER

November 16, 1932

I got your letter. I felt unhappy to see you unhappy. I can understand your anger. I know that you have suffered beyond limit. Still, I do not repent the advice which I gave to you and to others. Suffering undergone voluntarily for a good cause is not known to have harmed anybody in the world. Having to bear suffering is not an evil. But in your present condition of mind I shall not be able to explain anything to you. May God give you peace of mind and bless you. I will welcome your letters written even in anger. What do you do in Bulsar?

[From Gujarati]
Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 247

1 (1859-1937); Gujarati poet and man of letters
9. STATEMENT ON UNTouchABILITY-VIII

POONA

November 17, 1932

Here is another question that many correspondents have asked:

You say you believe in the Shastras. We do not understand what you mean by them, for you seem arbitrarily to reject many things which are supported by the Shastras. Even the Gita that you swear by requires one to follow the Shastras.

I must repeat what I have said in a previous statement¹ that for me, nothing that is inconsistent with the main theme of the Gita is Shastra, no matter where it is found printed. If I do not shock my orthodox friends, I would like to make my meaning clearer still. Nothing that is inconsistent with the universally accepted first principles of morality has for me the authority of the Shastras. They are designed not to supersede, but to sustain the first principles, and the Gita is all-sufficing for me, because it not only conforms to the first principles, but gives you reasons for adherence to them at any cost. But for this Golden Rule that I have suggested, laymen like me would flounder in the midst of a forest of conflicting texts and a pile of nicely printed and equally nicely bound Sanskrit volumes, for which rival pundits claim divine authority.

Thus, there are many Smritis, some of which are unknown outside the little areas in which, by a few hundred men they are held in veneration. No one can give their origin or the dates of their composition. I saw one such volume in the South. When I inquired of the learned scholar friends about this volume, they told me that they had no knowledge of it.

There are numerous Agamas² which when examined, contradict one another and which have no binding effect outside the little areas where they find acceptance.

If all these books were to be held as binding on the Hindus, there is hardly an immoral practice for which it would be difficult to find Shastric sanction, and even in the hoary Manusmriti from which if the verses of doubtful authenticity are not expurgated, one would discover several texts contradicting the loftiest morals and teachingsto

¹ Vide “Statement on Untouchability—I”, 4-11-1932.
² Scriptures be found spread throughout that great book. Therefore the meaning I have given to the word ‘Shastras’ in the Bhagavad Gita, wherein it occurs only in one context, is not any book or set of laws outside the Gita itself, but it means right conduct embodied in a living authority.

I know that this is not likely to satisfy the critic, and as a layman I can give no lead to anybody, but I can satisfy the curiosity of my critics by telling them what I mean exactly by the Shastras.

Another question put with equal persistence is this:

What do you mean by divine guidance or the inner voice, and how would you and for that matter the world, fare, if every one claimed such guidance for himself and each acted in a manner wholly different from his neighbours?

This is a fair question, and we would come to a pretty pass if divinity had made no provision by way of self-protection. Whilst, therefore, all may lay the claim, some alone will be able to justify it. A person falsely claiming to act under divine inspiration or the promptings of the inner voice without having any such, will fare worse than the one falsely claiming to act under the authority of an earthly sovereign. Whereas the latter on being exposed will escape with injury to his body the former may perish body and soul together.

Charitable critics impute no fraud to me, but suggest that I am highly likely to be acting under some hallucination. The result for me, even then, will not be far different from what it would be, if I was laying a false claim. A humble seeker that I claim to be has need to be most cautious and to preserve the balance of mind. He has to reduce himself to zero before God will guide him. Let me not labour this point.

The claim I have made is neither extraordinary, nor exclusive. God will rule the lives of all those who will surrender themselves without reservation to Him. In the language of the Gita, God acts through those who have acquired complete detachment, i.e., self-effacement here.

There is no question of hallucination. I have stated a simple scientific truth, thus to be tested by all who have the will and the patience to acquire the necessary qualifications which are again incredibly simple to understand and easy enough to acquire where there is determination.

Lastly, no one need worry about my claim. What I am asking the people to do is capable of being verified by reason. Even when I disappear from the scene, untouchability will have to be removed. Whether the fast is divinely inspired or not, need not be a matter of concern even to my closest associates. They may, out of affection for me, work with double zeal in the cause. That would [not] be a calamity, even if it was found that the fast was the foolish act of a self-willed friend. Those who have neither affection for, nor faith in, me will remain unmoved by it. Constant harping, therefore, on the contemplated fast or my claim in regard thereto, is calculated to befog the public mind and the attention from the great work before the nation.

I would therefore conclude this statement by drawing the readers’ attention to a few pictures that I have picked up from the voluminous correspondence in my possession.

Here is one from Vile Parle, suburb of Bombay, inhabited by well-to-do Hindus among others. The suburb has in round figures, 1,700 villas or houses; the Municipality has an income of Rs. 70,000 of which Rs. 31,000 are spent for conservancy. The scavengers are accommodated in quarters where there are no roads, no arrangement for water-supply and no sanitary convenience. The land itself is low-lying, the huts are hovels constructed from dilapidated tins which were once used for conservancy work. There is no lighting, and nearby is the dumping ground for all the suburban rubbish which gives an eternal stench. Next to it is a structure for housing conservancy; attached to this is a water-pipe for washing dirty tins, and if the overseer is well disposed he would allow the scavengers to help themselves to water from the pipe; on the other side, is a row of carts that receive the buckets collected from the privies of households. It is in these surroundings that the scavengers have to pass their life. These quarters are surrounded by fields which are often under water, breeding mosquitoes, harbouring scorpions, snakes, field-rats. Thirty-one families live in this condition, they are composed of 35 men, 25 women, 34 boys and 15 girls.

Of this population of 109, only 9 boys can at all read and write with difficulty. The rest are utterly illiterate. This is a suburb where if the inhabitants, if they had any thought for these fellow-beings of theirs, could well afford to provide for them decent accommodation in decent quarters with lighting and water and other conveniences which are part of city life. There is work here for both the sanatanists and the reformers. It would be no answer to my complaint that the Vile Parle
Municipality has an income of only Rs. 70,000 out of which it spends the princely sum of Rs. 31,000 on conservancy. I know that the inhabitants of Vile Parle are well-to-do enough to tax themselves specially on behalf of these useful servants of society. But I would regard that as a slow process. It is the primary duty of the Hindu habitants to make decent collections overnight and provide suitable quarters and other conveniences for the scavengers. If they did so, even then it would be a tardy performance of a simple duty done to fellowmen. When they have done this, there would be a point in their moving the Municipality to take up the burden of additional annual expenditure that would undoubtedly have to be incurred in order to enable the scavengers to live in comparative comfort.

An almost identical picture has been drawn by Sjt. A. V. Thakkar, the tireless Secretary of the All-India [Anti-] Untouchability League, of scavengers’ quarters he has inspected during his travels undertaken on behalf of the League. He gives a harrowing tale about the condition of such quarters in Danapur and other places about Patna in Bihar. Now I wish that instead of engaging in fruitless controversy about what is not contained in the Shastras about untouchability, everyone of us would apply ourselves to ameliorating the conditions of the so-called untouchables. There is work enough and to spare for all my learned correspondents who almost without exception have assured me that they yield to no one in their desire to better their material and moral conditions.

The Bombay Chronicle, 18-11-1932

10. LETTER TO MIRABEHN

November 17, 1932

CHI. MIRA,¹

Not that I cannot use the right hand but it is better to use the left. I have begun this before the morning prayer just making use of the odd minutes before the little family gathers together. You should not be surprised if you find my letters shorter than usual. The Harijan work has become too heavy to allow of anything else being done. The mere reading of the voluminous correspondence takes over two hours. The (here comes Mahadev) (I resume after the prayer) interviews take from two to three hours. Therefore I must reduce the other work. Since the doctors here are firmly of opinion that the elbows have nothing wrong about them except that they require rest from the spinning motion, I have cut off the wheel altogether and just do the takli for about half an hour. The takli requires the use of other muscles. This compulsory saving of time has come when it was just wanted. (There was another interruption here for the drink and fruit, dressing and eating.)

¹ The superscription in this and other letters to Mirabehn is in Devanagari.

I do not mind your omission of salt. Take it again when the benefit of abstention has been exhausted. I do not know if juwari or bajri chapati will suit you. Is there no prison-ground whole-wheat meal? Anyway one juwari or bajri chapati ought not to do you any harm at all. But you will fare all right by taking dried and fresh fruit liberally.

Kisan¹ must attend to her eyes and become strong and well. For me I have still progress to report. Another increase of 1 lb. total 103 lb. ! This is due to a dietetic discovery as I imagine. It synchronizes with the untouchability work. But the latter has little to do with the increase. I am taking nearly an ounce of fresh, dried milk. This is called mavo² in Marathi and Gujarati. You evaporate the water. It should prove heavy. But for me it seems to have come as a godsend. It is too late to pronounce upon its efficacy. That the present increase is due to it, there is no doubt.

What you say about Amir Ali’s introduction is too true. He is safe when he talks of Islam itself.

Ba is still at the Ashram. There has been the usual crop of sicknesses there. Kusum Gandhi is rather bad, fever won’t leave her.

We are all well and send you both a cartload of love.

BAPU

[PS.]

It is now after 5.30 a.m. I must now go to the ‘library’ and then to the walk till the goats come, i.e., about 6.30.

From the original: C.W. 6250. Courtesy: Mirabehn. Also G.N. 9717

¹ Kisan Ghumatkar, Premabehn Kantak’s friend
² The source has this in Devanagari.
DEAR COL. DOYLE,

I thank you for your letter of the 15th instant in answer to my letter regarding Shrimati Manibehn Patel. As the request made in that letter had reference to a very urgent matter, I had expected an immediate reply to be of value. Fortunately her brother’s illness has not yet reached the danger point but it is serious enough to cause anxiety to those who are deeply interested in the patient. A request on behalf of a near relative as Manibehn Patel that she should be informed of the progress of her brother’s illness from day to day, I do not regard as one for a concession. I venture to submit that it is a human right belonging to every person although he or she may be a prisoner. I would therefore like the Government to consider my request from that human standpoint. I have no desire whatsoever to ask for a concession which being such may not be expected to be granted to every other prisoner in similar circumstances. And lest Government may not know, as you do, why I have made the request rather than her father, I may state that it is simply because Manibehn has been an inmate of the Ashram and has been placed by her father under my guidance since 1924. To complete the relevant information that should be put at the disposal of Government I may add that I wrote my letter to you with the consent and approval of Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel. Will you kindly place this letter before the Government if their orders have not been already received ere this reaches you?

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

Bombay Secret Abstracts, Home Department, Special Branch, File No. 800(40) (4), Pt. II, p. 61

---

1 Also called Yeravda Mandir. This place-name is not reproduced in subsequent letters. Gandhiji was in Yeravda Prison from January 4, 1932 to May 8, 1933.
3 Dahyabhai Patel
DEAR PLAYMATE AND SLAVE,

Many happy returns of the day. This trite wish requires modification in your case. I do not want a return of the day to find you in the same state of suspended animation you are in now. I want the day to return to see you hale and hearty. And you have a whole year to do that very simple thing. Be good and do it.

Sardar did justice to your oranges yesterday, I did it this morning and Mahadev says I leave him no time think of such meaties. But he says he is going to taste them. It certainly pays to be a Mahatma. I get fruit and flowers from slaves like you when it is their birthday and also when it is mine.¹

I am sorry to tell you that the Urdu dictionary you sent is not of much use. It has phrases but not a good vocabulary. What I want is a good vocabulary so that I can easily get spellings of words. If you can easily get hold of such a dictionary, I should like it. But do not put yourself to trouble about it.

I read today your translation of the bhajan with which I started the fast. I liked it very much.

Much love.

BAPU

SHRI PADMAJA NAIDU
21 SASOON ROAD
POONA

From the original: Padmaja Naidu Papers. Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library

¹ The last two sentences of this paragraph have been reproduced under the dateline November 18, 1932 in “Letter to Padmaja Naidu”, 18-11-1932.
13. LETTER TO BHAU PANSE

November 17, 1932

CHI. BHAU,

I liked your question about cow-protection. Giving up milk altogether is no doubt our ideal; but I do not think that we can act upon it now. Hence, at present, our ideal should be to maintain in the Ashram as many cows as possible, and to provide as much milk as we can. We do not have the necessary stability in the Ashram for that, but when conditions become stable, I am eager to do a good deal of work in that field. God willing, I shall be able to do it. I certainly think it morally wrong to get milk from weak cows. At present we cannot escape that. In India, we get milk from really healthy cows at very few places. The fact is that Hinduism is in a state of utter confusion. Though cow-protection is one of the pillars on which Hinduism stands, nowhere in the world is the condition of cows more wretched than in India. But you need not think too much about this and worry. If you do your present duty, you will have done everything that is possible for you.

That your constipation is not yet cured indicates that your intestines have become very weak. The disease has struck deep roots. Whenever you do not pass stool and get headache, eat only vegetables if fruits are not available. You will not get fever or headache then, will get some nourishment at least and will probably be able to pass stool. I am sure that you can get many varieties of leafy vegetables in the Ashram just now. If, however, you find that the place does not suit you, you may even go and stay in Rajkot for a while after consulting Chhaganlal. The experience will be useful to you and the water of Rajkot may even suit you.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 6743. Also C.W. 4486. Courtesy: Bhau Panse

1 A follower of Vinoba Bhave
14. LETTER TO S. D. SATAVLEKAR

November 17, 1932

BHAU SATAVLEKAR,

You have sent me a most encouraging reply. But I hope you did not think that I was unaware of your past activities in regard to the removal of untouchability. Earlier I had read your article too. I only wanted to ascertain what your contribution is to be now in this powerful movement. I am immensely reassured now on this count. Please convey my deepest thanks to Shrimant Maharaj and Rani Saheba. I shall at the right time make good use of your beautiful account of the work going on there.

Yours,

MOHANDAS

SHRI S. D. SATAVLEKAR
SVADHYAYA MANDAL
AUNDH
(DIST. SATARA)

From Hindi: C.W. 4769. Courtesy: S. D. Satavlekar

15. LETTER TO DR. RAGHUVIR SINGH AGRAWAL

November 17, 1932

BHAU RAGHUVIRJI,

I have your letter and the book. I have no time at present being totally immersed in the service of Harijans. But I shall try to follow the treatment you prescribe. Moreover, all three of us here are condemned to spectacles. It is hoped that we all will make an experiment. I would not bother you to come over here and there is no difficulty in following your instructions.

MOHANDAS GANDHI

DR. R. S. AGRAWAL
EYE AND EAR SPECIALIST
BULANDSHAHR, U.P.

From Hindi: C.W. 9664. Courtesy: M. S. Agrawal

1 In an earlier letter dated November 12, 1932, Gandhiji had asked the addressee about his participation in the eradication of untouchability; vide “Interview to the Hindu”, 12-11-1932.

2 The account was reproduced with Gandhiji’s remarks in Harijan, 25-3-1933, under the title, “Aundh State and Untouchability”.

3 Mind and Vision
16. TELEGRAM TO JAGANNATH

[November 18, 1932]¹

OUR CONDOLENCES TO YOU AND YOUR FAMILY THOUGH WE MUST NOT SUPPRESS OUR PERSONAL HAPPINESS OVER THE FORTUNE THAT FAVOURED THE NOBLE WIDOW.

The Hindustan Times, 20-11-1932

17. TELEGRAM TO GOVIND MALAVIYA

November 18, 1932

[GOVIND MALAVIYA]³

ALLAHABAD

THANK GOD. HOPE FATHER⁴ NONE THE WORSE FOR STRAIN.

BAPU

Bombay Secret Abstracts, Home Department, Special Branch, File No. 800 (40)(3), Pt. III, p. 373

18. TELEGRAM TO MADHUSUDAN DAS

[November 18, 1932]¹

LONG LIVE MADHUSUDANDAS. I HAD GATHERED THE IMPRESSION THAT YOU WERE NO MORE. THIS IS PROOF POSITIVE OF MY STUPIDITY BUT LET IT ALSO BE PROOF THAT GOD STILL HAS SERVICE TO TAKE FROM YOU FOR MANY A LONG YEAR TO COME.

The Bombay Chronicle, 19-11-1932

¹ Secretary, Servants of the People Society
² The telegram was published under the date-line, “Lahore, November 18, 1932”, as having been sent by Mahatma Gandhi, Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel and Mahadev Desai on the death of Mrs. Lajpat Rai. Vide also “Diary, 1932”, entry under this date.
³ From “Diary, 1932”, entry under November 18, 1932
⁴ Madan Mohan Malaviya
⁵ From “Diary, 1932”, entry under this date. Vide also the following item.
19. STATEMENT ON MADHUSUDAN DAS

November 18, 1932

An Ashram inmate living in Orissa has telegraphed to me saying that Babu Madhusudandas to whose good work for the tanners I referred in my fifth statement\(^1\) is not dead. I cannot account for my stupidity in having imagined Madhusudan Babu was no more. On receipt of the telegram I sent the following telegram\(^2\) to Madhusudan Babu:

I tender my humble apology to Madhusudan Babu and his family for my stupid blunder.

The Bombay Chronicle, 19-11-1932

---

20. LETTER TO E. E. DOYLE

November 18, 1932

DEAR COL. DOYLE,

Knowing that Sheth Jamnalal Bajaj was suffering from cough for some time and knowing also that he had ear trouble which was suspected to be tubercular, I had telegraphed to him suggesting that he should send for his special adviser Dr. Modi, the ear and throat specialist of Bombay.\(^3\) He telegraphs as follows:

Received General condition same. Cough and pus discharge persistent. Have today wired Inspector General of Prisons requesting to arrange X-ray examination by specialist in Bombay or Poona wherever convenient to Government.

This was received on the 15th instant. Since then I have received his usual letter also in which he gives me more information about his illness and his diet. I know what a serious view Dr. Modi takes of the ear trouble. He wants Jamnalalji to take a liberal diet. Jamnalalji is himself used to fruit. He has lost nearly 40 lb. in weight since his admission. I venture to think therefore that he should be transferred where he can have better climate and prompt expert medical assistance, that he should have frequent access to his special medical advisers, and that meanwhile there should be no restriction as to the choice of food, all extras being paid for by Jamnalalji if the Government so desire. May I request urgent attention to this matter?

\(^1\) Vide "Statement on Untouchability—V", 14-11-1932.
\(^2\) Vide the preceding item.
\(^3\) The telegram is not available; vide, however,"Letter to Jamnalal Bajaj", 2-11-1932.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

Bombay Secret Abstracts, Home Department, Special Branch, File No. 800
(40) (2), Pt. I, p. 383

21. LETTER TO PADMAJA NAIDU

November 18, 1932

It certainly pays to be a Mahatma. I get fruit and flowers from slaves like you when it is their birthday\(^1\) and also when it is mine.

22. TELEGRAM TO MANIBEHN PATEL

November 19, 1932

MANIBEHN
PRISONER, BELGAUM JAIL

DAHYABHAII SUFFERING FEVER LAST SEVEN DAYS. NOW DECLARED TYPHOID. NO COMPLICATIONS. SPECIAL NURSES ATTENDING.
NO CAUSE ANXIETY. WILL TRY SEND DAILY REPORT.

[From Gujarati]
Bapuna Patro—4: Manibehn Pateln, p. 90

23. LETTER TO M. G. BHANDARI

November 19, 1932

DEAR MAJOR BHANDARI,

You have kindly showed me a memorandum from Government in connection with my interview\(^2\) with the correspondent of The Hindu which refers to Lord Sankey’s letter. In the light of that memorandum I have read and re-read the Government of India’s decision on my letters requesting facilities in regard to visitors and correspondence on removal of untouchability. I can see absolutely no inconsistency between the undertaking given by me and the reference to Lord Sankey’s letter in the interview. It would be found on a perusal of the interview that rather than in any shape or form depart from my undertaking I have expressed my inability, because of the undertaking, to deal with the letter except through the Government.

\(^1\) Padmaja Naidu’s birthday fell on November 18.

\(^2\) On November 12, 1932; Vide”Interview to the Hindu”, 12-11-1932.

I am however grateful to Government for having drawn my attention to what they consider is inconsistency between my undertaking and the reference to Lord Sankey’s letter in the interview in question. I would add that I am carrying out the undertaking in most difficult circumstances. Questions crop up in the course of interviews which have a vital bearing upon untouchability work, but which strictly speaking would be outside untouchability. I rigorously refrain from answering them even at the risk of being misunderstood and the cause [of] suffering. As it is, generally either you or the Jailor has been present at the interviews. You or he will perhaps bear me out when I state that I have scrupulously refused to give my opinion on any matter outside untouchability and have even refused to receive visitors, whether Indian or European, when I have known that they could not have anything important to say on untouchability or when they have desired a discussion on the political aspect of untouchability. I feel that in doing the last thing I have gone beyond the letter of the Government of India’s decision and my undertaking, but I know that the spirit of them would exclude discussion even on the political aspect of untouchability. I have here in mind the correspondence I am carrying on with Mr. Jenkins.

Nevertheless if this reply does not satisfy the Government I suggest their sending an official to discuss with me exactly what the Government would have me to do in matters such as the one which is the subject-matter of this correspondence. And if consistently with my work I can carry out their wishes I would do so with great pleasure. My one desire in the midst of the extraordinary facilities given to me in extraordinary circumstances is, if it is at all possible, to earn at the end of the chapter a certificate from Government that the undertaking given by me had been carried out in an honourable manner.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

Bombay Secret Abstracts, Home Department, Special Branch, File No. 800 (40)(4), Pt. II, p. 35
24. LETTER TO DAHYABHAI PATEL

November 19, 1932

CHI. DAHYABHAI,

We get daily reports about your health. Such illness comes to us as a test. Bhai Karamchand says that you are bearing it patiently. That is just what one expects of you. Don’t worry about Manibehn. God will surely protect you.¹

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI DAHYABHAI PATEL
RAM NIVAS, PAREKH STREET
BOMBAY-4

[From Gujarati]
Bapuna Patro—4: Manibehn Pateline, p. 149

25. LETTER TO ANANDSHANKAR B. DHRUVA

November 19, 1932

You have always been diffident about yourself. You were no less diffident when you got an offer to go to Banaras. But see, how many years have you spent there? And who knows for how many more years still you may remain there? Your diffidence is not likely to have any effect on me. Rajaji has advanced a very sound argument against Malaviyaji’s going to the South. So long as he has not opened the Kashi Vishvanath Temple (for Harijans), the pundits of the South will not listen to him. They will ask him to open that temple before going to the South. We should not put him in that awkward position. Moreover, Rajaji has also argued that, in view of Malaviyaji’s indifferent health, we should not ask him to undertake such a long journey. If, therefore, Malaviyaji agrees, you should immediately start as his representative. Don’t mind if the people do not listen to you. But I don’t think that is likely to happen. So much about your tour of the South.

Now, about the correct interpretation of the Shastras. I send with this some of the literature on the subject given to me. Go through it carefully and draft a well-reasoned reply as soon as you can and obtain on it signatures of all the pundits whom you can persuade to join with you. The reply should be in Sanskrit, Hindi and English. It should be addressed to four types of readers: to the honest sanatanists, to impartial students who wish to know the truth, to persons who are working for the removal of untouchability and to whom your statement can be a great help in meeting the arguments of the sanatanists and, last, to non-Hindus who should know that the true sanatana dharma does not consider anybody as untouchable from birth and that, if in certain circumstances, a person is considered untouchable, he or she soon becomes touchable again. You should also point out that the oppression to which the untouchables are subjected today has no sanction in the Shastras at all. I quote here a sentence from a man whom you, I and many other thousands respect:

¹ Vide also “Telegram to Manibehn Patel”, 19-11-1932.

In this part of the country these classes have come to be excluded from temples from the very time the people started worshipping in temples. Scholars will find it difficult to ascertain the time when the untouchables were permitted to enter temples. I am afraid, though I don’t take pride in the fact that our religion as it is practised today enjoins exclusion of the untouchables. The people who cling to the practice as a religious principle have the law, the Shastras and tradition on their side. They are the sanatanists.

You have to reply to this argument. Law, i.e., the law of the Government, may be on their side, custom, i.e., the custom of the degenerate present, may also be on their side. But the Shastras at any rate are not. If you can honestly show that the law of the Hindu period was not on the side of the sanatanists and also that true custom, i.e., the practice of the enlightened, was never on their side during the great prosperous days of Hinduism, you should do that convincingly. Your statement should not be like a pronouncement of the Delphic oracle. Send me as early as you can a statement enunciating such a Dhruva'-principle.

[From Gujarati]

_Mahadevbhaini Diary_, Vol. II, pp. 255-6

---

1 Literally, that which is fixed or immutable; here the true essence of Hinduism.
26. LETTER TO G. D. BIRLA

November 19, 1932

BHAI GHANSHYAMDAS,

I am enclosing a letter from Ramsinhasan Mahto. Read it or get it read out and do what is necessary.

Blessings from

BAPU

From Hindi: C.W. 7905. Courtesy: G.D. Birla

27. DISCUSSION WITH G. K. DEVDHAR

November 19, 1932

Mr. Devdhar\(^1\) explained to Mahatmaji the scheme devised by the Board for starting work throughout Maharashtra, in connection with the uplift of the untouchables in general and the removal of untouchability in particular.

There was then a long discussion between him and Mahatmaji, as regards the latter’s proposed fast in connection with the Guruvayur temple-entry. Mr. Devdhar pointed out that difficulties they had to face in removing untouchability and throwing temples open to the untouchables in the province of Malabar were much greater than those in other provinces. The Hindus of Malabar were, in the opinion of Mr. Devdhar, very stern in their religious beliefs and prejudices and they strongly resented temple-entry by the untouchables.

Mahatma Gandhi expressed his desire that Mr. Devdhar, in view of the experiences he had in Malabar, should undertake propaganda work in that province to educate public opinion in regard to the removal of untouchability.

The Bombay Chronicle, 22-11-1932

---

\(^1\) President, Servants of India Society and the Maharashtra Divisional Board of the All-India Anti-Untouchability League
28. LETTER TO THORNBERG

November 20, 1932

I thank you for your letter. I was sorry not to be able to see you. The way America can help in this internal movement of reform is first by understanding and studying the movement and pronouncing intelligent opinion upon it. Even orthodoxy is today sensitive to reasoned opinion, even though it may come from outside; secondly, by placing at the disposal of the reformers the free aid of experts with reference to the economic question. For instance, there is the tremendous problem of carrion-eaters. They will not give up carrion-eating so long as they continue to take charge of dead cattle, which they skin and whose flesh they eat. I have myself tried to find clean and expeditious method of skinning carcasses and making the best use of all the contents of these carcasses. Not wanting to, and not being able to pay for expert assistance, I have been obliged to grope in the dark. America could easily send us free expert assistance in matters such as I have mentioned, without any ulterior proselytizing motives, if only religious-minded men of America could be persuaded to believe that Hinduism, Islam and other great religions are just as true as Christianity and that they do not therefore need destruction but reformation where necessary. The conviction can only come if sober-minded Americans will study the present very big movement.

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, pp. 259-60

29. LETTER TO AMINA G. QURESHI

November 20, 1932

I liked your letter. I am glad that you wrote frankly. The only way to improve your health is the one suggested by me. If you have not received education, the fault is partly yours. Think about it. The rest of the fault is mine. It is that I did not pay sufficient attention to education of the children in the Ashram. If, however, you really want

1 The addressee, an American, had sought Gandhiji’s interview twice in vain. He then sent autograph books for his signature and also asked for a message for America.
2 Imam Saheb Abdul Kadir Bawazeer’s daughter, married to Gulam Rasool Qureshi
3 Child to study, I am ready to get you admitted to a school. If you are ready to go to Bhavnagar, I will get you admitted to the girls’ school there. There is a good school at Amreli also. At both places, they will pay special attention to you. If you are unhappy only because of want of education, I can help you to remove the cause. Let me know your wish. Talk frankly to Narandas too. May God give you peace of mind.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 6663. Also C.W. 4308. Courtesy: Hamid Qureshi

30. LETTER TO ASHRAM BOYS AND GIRLS

November 20, 1932

DEAR BOYS AND GIRLS,

You should not expect any letter from me these days. You will then be satisfied with a few lines. You, however, should continue to write to me.

Do not get tired of the food which is similar to that in jail.

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./II

31. LETTER TO GULAB A. SHAH

November 20, 1932

CHI. GULAB,

Four marks for your handwriting.

The atman is that which survives when the body has perished.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 1730
32. LETTER TO JAMNAEBHN GANDHI

November 20, 1932

CHI. JAMNA1.

Did I not sign somewhere in a corner the letter2 in which I wrote about the primus stove? If I forgot to sign it and if you want my signature on it, return the last page.

If you need a stove very much, you may use in place of the primus stove the kerosene stove which is available [in the market]. Mahadev tells me that these stoves are very good, and are also cheap at present. Why not try this stove? It is also very easy to light.

I hope Purushottam’ and Kanu4 are well.

BAPU

From Gujarati: C.W. 863. Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi

33. LETTER TO KESHAV GANDHI

November 20, 1932

CHI. KESHU5.

Other people also get unwanted thoughts as you do. You should go on repeating Ramanama. The thoughts will cease then. A teacher should be a man of pure character and should know his subject well. A student should be humble and hardworking.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 3284

34. LETTER TO MANIBEHN PATEL

November 20, 1932

CHI. MANI,

I hope you received my wire6 regarding Dahyabhai’s illness. I have obtained permission7 to send you a report every day as also for

1 Wife of Narandas Gandhi
2 This is not available; vide, however, “Letter to Jamnabehn Gandhi”, 13-11-1932 and also “Letter to Narandas Gandhi”, 9-10-1932.
3 Addressee’s sons
4 ibid
5 Son of Maganlal Gandhi
you to write anything you like [to or about Dahyabhai]. You can, therefore, write to me daily from there. I will forward your letters to Dahabhai. I also will write to you every day. I have secured Dr. Madan’s letter which I enclose herewith. There is also a letter today from Bhai Karamchand. So the reports up to yesterday are reassuring. Today is the fourteenth day of the fever. The temperature remains between 100° and 103°. Once it fell even to 99.5°. The lungs are clear. He can take fruit juices, barley-water and sometimes thin butter-milk diet. Special nurses have been engaged. He is thus being looked after with the utmost care and so there is no cause for anxiety.

We are all well.

Blessings from

BAPU

[From Gujarati]

Bapuna Patro—4: Manibehn Patelné, pp. 90-1

35. LETTER TO NARMADABEHN RANA

November 20, 1932

CHI. NARMADA,

I am returning your letter after correcting the mistakes in it. Go through them carefully. You should not feel unhappy because you make mistakes. One can learn most of the things by oneself. If you practise writing carefully every day, your handwriting will improve. You can learn the tables by heart, if you go on repeating them every day. For spellings, you should consult the Jodanikosh. You can improve arithmetic by doing sums daily.

Thus in most of the things you do not need anybody’s help. Hard work also is a kind of education.

BAPU

[PS.]

See the corrections which I have made in your handwriting and also the model at the bottom.

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 2768. Courtesy: Ramnarayan N. Pathak

1 Dated November 14, 1932
2 This read: “I have your kind letter. I am exceedingly happy to read it.”
36. LETTER TO PREMABEHN KANTAK

November 20, 1932

CHI. PREMA,

My letters will remain short for some time yet. I don’t mind yours being long. I do want you to describe all the things as you do. I don’t have to give you any information. I may at the most joke with you or show my love for you. Sometimes I may admonish you and, if I know how to, may give you wise advice. But you, on your part, should continue to tell me how things go with you and tell me whether you are happy or otherwise.

I don’t wish to worry you about Ramabehn. But the very manner of your explaining the position makes it difficult for me to judge that you have love in your heart. My only consolation is that the bitterness in your words does not affect your actions. If I had sufficient time, I would give you a long lecture on this. But the Harijan friends have saved you, since they take up all my time.

Amina seems to be very much troubled in her mind. Try to discover her malady if you can, and, if possible, comfort her. What you say about Mangala is correct.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10311. Also C.W. 6750. Courtesy: Premabehn Kantak

37. LETTER TO RUKMINIDEVI AND BENARSILAL BAJAJ

November [20]?, 1932

CHI. RUKMINI,

I got your letter. How nice it is that the boy is in the Ashram. The chief thing which you should do to improve your health is to take walks, and that in a place where there is no dust in the air.

CHI. BENARSI,

1 Wife of Chhaganlal Joshi
2 Vide also “Letter to Amina G. Qureshi”, 20-11-1932.
3 From the postmark
4 Addressee’s son
I got Father’s letter this time. He has written in it about his business. There was one word in it which I could not read. It seems to be something like ‘tea’ or ‘coffee’. Does he carry on business in either? If not, in what else?

I hope your business is prospering.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI BENARSIDAS BAJAJ
THATHERI BAZAAR
BENARES CITY

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 9145

38. LETTER TO SITARAM K. NALAVDE

November 20, 1932

BHAi SITARAMJI,

I got your letter. If you and the other friends who wish to see me come on Thursday, the 24th instant, at 3 p.m., I shall be glad to see you.

Vandemataram from

MOHANDAS

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 799

39. LETTER TO GULAM RASUL QURESHI

November 20, 1932

CHI. QURESHI,

You must be fully restored now. There should be no laxity in following the treatment. Amina must get over her unhappiness. If she herself does not write about it fully, then know from her what it is and write.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 10813. Courtesy: Gulam Rasul Qureshi

1 Rameshwarlal Bajaj
40. LETTER TO MOOLCHAND AGRAWAL

November 20, 1932

BHAI MOOLCHANDJI,

Prakriti and purusha are one and the same thing because nothing exists but God. The apparent plurality is only due to the qualities attributed. Vegetation certainly contains life but that is vegetable life. The difference is clear. Our prayer is addressed to the form as well as to the formless. Image-worship is necessary for those who desire it. Others cannot lay down a rule. One who is hungry for bread needs that alone. There can be no universal common prayer for all, the very fact that none exists, clearly proves the point.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 771

41. LETTER TO PRABHAVATI

November 20, 1932

CHI. PRABHAVATI,

I got your letter. I reply to your letters immediately I get them. I simply fail to understand why my letters do not reach you. My health is fairly good. I take milk, vegetable, fruit and roti. My weight has risen to 103 lb. Blessings to you all. There is no question of disbanding the Ashram.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 3425

42. LETTER TO AMTUSSALAAM

November 20, 1932

DEAR DAUGHTER AMTUSSALAAM,

You must not expect long letters from me these days. Give up worrying for Kudsia'. Whatever is destined for her will happen. Don’t talk of your own death. Why do you get so disheartened? God will exact abundant service from you.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Urdu: G.N. 264

1 Addressee’s niece
43. LETTER TO KASHINATH N. KELKAR

November 21, 1932

MY DEAR KASHINATH,

I must acknowledge your letter, if only because you are the son of a dear friend. If by ‘garbhagriha’ is meant the ‘sanctum sanctorum’, I have clearly stated that it should be reserved for the ritualists. I have always sympathized with the Zamorin’s position. Where the law is against the reformer, he has to wait till the law is altered. I hope to develop these things as time progresses. Meanwhile, I expect you to help forward the reform in every way you can.

Yours Sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

KASHINATH N. KELKAR

ADVOCATE, YADUGOPAL PETH, SATARA CITY

C. W. 977. Courtesy: G. N. Kanitkar

44. LETTER TO KESHAV GANDHI

November 21, 1932

CHI. KESHU,

I feel like both smiling and crying. Look upon Santok as younger mother and Ba as elder mother. When you made a request for the spinning-wheel, I thought it was for the younger mother, and so, when the elder mother requested to have it I felt unhappy because I thought then that she wanted to snatch it from the younger mother. Now I can see from your letter that I have done great injustice to the former. God knows how often I have sinned in this manner in my behaviour towards her. She will be unhappy even if I beg her forgiveness. Hence I have to atone for my sin silently. You may talk about this to the elder mother jokingly if you can. But it may be beyond your capacity. I will certainly tell her about it when I meet her.

BAPU

From Gujarati: C.W. 9468. Courtesy: Radhabehn Choudhri
45. LETTER TO MANILAL GANDHI

November 21, 1932

CHI. MANILAL,

I got the postcard which you wrote on the train. I had also got your letter about Pragji\(^1\). You have not mentioned that Pragji had kept £ 450 for himself from the money which he himself had collected. Read his letter again. In another letter to me he says that you must return to Phoenix by the end of December. Whatever may happen to me on 2nd January, you ought to keep your promise. You should not break your promise on my account. It should not be a matter of sorrow if my body perishes in the cause of dharma. And you cannot delay my death even by a minute by remaining here. Your remaining may make both you and me personally happy, but don’t we have often to forgo such happiness? My blessings to all there.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 4801

46. LETTER TO MATHURADAS TRIKUMJI

November 21, 1932

This time your letter was delayed a good deal. Why should my letters also not be censored? After all, a prisoner is a prisoner.

It was certainly good that you finished the commentary on the Gitarahasya\(^2\) which you were writing. . . . As for my going through it, I don’t know when that will be possible. I am so busy with Harijan work these days that I don’t think it probable that I shall be able to attend to any other work. I cannot satisfy at present the desire of friends like you for long letters.

If you have read all my articles’ about Guruvayur, you should have no doubt in the matter. In short, the position is this: Kelappan was nearing death. He gave up the fast on my advice. It was but right that he should do so. But I who persuaded him to give it up have now a moral duty towards him. If, therefore, Kelappan is obliged to undertake a fast for a moral aim, I would have to join him. It is not yet

---

\(^1\) Pragji Khandubhai Desai, Gandhiji’s co-worker in South Africa

\(^2\) By B. G. Tilak certain whether Kelappan would have to fast.¹

Since you have said nothing in your letter about your health, I assume that it is good.

I have now got back the weight as it was before I commenced the fast. All three of us are in good health. I did not get the envelope made by you. Generally the envelopes are opened and the letters taken out before they are given to the prisoners.

[From Gujarati]

Bapuni Prasadi, pp. 117-8

47. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

November 21, 1932

CHI. NARANDAS,

The pressure of work on me is increasing day by day. The condition of the two elbows also requires rest. You should, therefore, tell everybody that at present they should not expect long letters from me. Probably I may have to content myself with only a letter to you and one to Kusum² who is ill. We should regard this as the smallest sacrifice that we can make for our Harijan friends. We shall have to make much bigger sacrifices in future. Even if the whole Ashram gave up its other activities and plunged in this movement of self-purification, I would not regard that sacrifice as too big. But there can be no renunciation without complete freedom from desire. And there can be no freedom from desire without self-purification. Anybody, therefore, who wishes to plunge into this yajna of self-purification should purify himself. The line “Hari’s way is for the brave” is perfectly applicable in the present situation.

But some of the inmates seem to tremble even at the suggestion for simplicity in food which I have made. Those who tremble and cannot overcome their misgivings are at any rate truthful, and deserve compliments for that. How long can self-restraint practised through false shame endure? Those who remember the story of the pilgrim³ should reflect over how the other characters who, blindly following his example, got tired in two or three days and returned.

¹ Vide also Appendix “Discussion with The Times of India” Representative”.
² Kusum Gandhi, daughter of Vrajlal Gandhi
³ In John Bunyan’s Pilgrim’s Progress
I do not get much time at present. When I get some, I wish to suggest a good many more changes. If we eat more than we need or eat things which we do not need for nourishment, we are guilty of theft according to our principle, besides harming our health. The experiment which I suggest in this letter is not quackery, it is based on true science. Really speaking, we should eat what the poor and the prisoners do not get only when those things become absolutely necessary in our case. Hence I feel that we must from time to time advance towards greater and greater simplicity. We should learn the secret of eating only a few things at one meal. Doctors have conducted experiments and proved that this is necessary for health. We may eat several things in the course of the day but we should not mix them all at the same meal. We cannot eat at the same meal rotli, dal, vegetables, milk, rice, etc. But we can eat at one meal rotli and milk, a vegetable and milk, rice and dal, rice and milk and rotli and dal. We should never take dal and milk together. Similarly, we should not eat wheat and bajri at the same meal. And also it is better not to eat rice and vegetables together. I make this suggestion because I have read about it and put it into practice. If we follow this practice the burden on the stomach will be lightened and the body also will feel light. Those who do not adopt such experiments with full knowledge of their likely benefits will certainly be upset by them. If the mind does not co-operate, such an experiment may possibly fail. We shall succeed in it if we strengthen our mind by thinking that through such a practice we shall increase our capacity for renunciation, show proper regard for the poor, save money and benefit our health.

I am realizing in actual experience that milk, bread, vegetables and fruit make a completely balanced diet. My weight has gone up to 103 pounds. I eat fresh fruits with nothing else. With milk, I eat dates or a vegetable. I mix half the quantity of milk with dates and drink the remaining half. In this manner, I drink from two and a half to two and three-quarter pounds of milk. In the morning, I eat mosambis or oranges without fail. At seven, I have milk and dates; at twelve, two oranges or mosambis, and at four a vegetable, milk and one loaf of bread. This is my daily food. I have been thinking of omitting milk or bread. I take twice a day sour lemon juice with water and soda bicarb. Perhaps this may not be necessary. I have yet to find that out. Mirabehn is at present living on almost the same diet as I am doing.

1 What follows is also available in M.M.U.M. and she informs me that it has benefited her. It is too early yet to attach importance to her experience. Since her heart is behind her experiment, naturally she feels that it is benefiting her. If there is no benefit in reality, we shall know by and by. It is also necessary not to eat jowar porridge in excessive quantity. It would be advisable to observe moderation in regard to the quantity of every item. In case of stomach-ache, or headache or, for those who suffer from constipation, indigestion, one may drop one or two meals, or even fast for the whole day. Nobody should lose courage all too soon. The best way of running the joint kitchen without much trouble is that anybody who does not like a particular item should not eat it, but without asking for something else in its place. Every meal provides sufficient nourishment. Generally, milk and vegetables will suit everybody. They should be enough. It is a superstitious belief that one will become weak if one does not eat solid food for the whole day. Of course all this does not apply to persons who are ill. They should always get food which the state of their health demands. But I am convinced that if we plan our diet on a scientific basis and eat moderately, nobody would fall ill. This should be enough for today on the subject of food. Show this letter to all. Everybody may reject what does not appeal to him or her.

Prabhashankar' must have returned there. I hope he is quite happy. Tell him that I had got his letter. This time I content myself with this letter in reply to him. I think all the suggestions will be acceptable to him. Is Ratilal calm? Do you know that Ramji has many complaints to make? Amina is unhappy. Ask her what the cause is.

BAPU

[From Gujarati]

---

1 Father-in-law of Ratilal Mehta
2 Dr. Pranjivan Mehta’s son
48. LETTER TO PARASHURAM MEHROTRA

November 21, 1932

CHI. PARASHURAM,

I am unable now to write a long letter. Don’t mind if some of the classes¹ have had to be closed. Carry on those which are running. You will be able to keep up the atmosphere even by talking with everybody in Hindi.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 7512. Also C.W. 4989. Courtesy: Parashuram Mehrotra

49. LETTER TO PRABHUDAS GANDHI

November 21, 1932

CHI. PRABHUDAS,

I am writing this on a silence day after the morning prayer. The correspondence about Harijans take so much time that I can hardly write other letters. Hence only this to you, that you should stop all thinking and do what work you can. When a question of incurring expenditure beyond your budget arises, your duty in this: If you feel that the expenditure is absolutely necessary, you may put the matter before Narandas and press him to permit it. If the item of expenditure is such that it makes no difference whether or not it is incurred, you should not write for it at all. In other words, what would you do if you were in N.’s place? Once the budget is prepared no additional item of expenditure should be allowed to be brought up.

BAPU

From the Gujarati original: Gandhi Nidhi File. Courtesy: Gandhi National Museum and Library

¹ Hindi classes
50. INTERVIEW TO THE PRESS

November 21, 1932

In an interview Gandhiji thoroughly exposed the baselessness of certain assertions made by an Anglo-Indian paper, which had come out with the story that Mahatmaji was ‘going spiritual’ as Aurobindo Ghosh had done, and that his interest in active politics was waning.

Gandhiji says that social reform is very important for Hinduism just now. This, however, did not and could not divert him from his political objective.

To a straight question whether he intended devoting all his time to anti-untouchability work, Mahatmaji said:

I cannot say that such is my present intention, nor is it ever likely to be. It will be perfectly true to say that my life is dedicated to this absolutely necessary reform in Hinduism, but my life is also dedicated to many other things. I don’t regard my life as divisible into so many water-tight compartments. It is one organic whole, and it will be found that all my activities spring from the same source, namely, my passion for vindication of truth and non-violence in every walk of life, be it ever so great or so small.¹

This in a nutshell supplies all the ‘terms’ on which the Mahatma is prepared to accept release. Prospects of his release solely depend on the interpretation which officialdom will put on the above statement.

The Hindustan Times, 23-11-1932, and The Hindu, 23-11-1932

51. FRAGMENT OF LETTER TO LORD SANKEY

[On or before November 22, 1932]²

Replying to Lord Sankey’s invitation, it is understood Mahatma Gandhi has assured Lord Sankey that he was by instinct a co-operator and actually dying for co-operation. But the Ottawa³ and the Ordinance Bills showed no such desire for securing co-operation. Finally, the Mahatma is reported to have assured Lord Sankey that he would find “Gandhi in his pocket” if a genuine gesture of co-operation is forthcoming from the Government side.

The Hindustan Times, 23-11-1932

¹ This paragraph appeared in The Hindu as an interview to the Poona correspondent of The Evening News of India. For Mahadev Desai’s account of the Interview, vide Appendix “Discussion with The Times of India, Representative”.

² The report was published under the date-line: “Bombay, November 22”.

³ Ottawa Tariff Bill designed to implement the Ottawa Conference agreement to impose a general tariff of ten per cent on all Empire products.
52. LETTER TO E. E. DOYLE

November 22, 1932

DEAR COL. DOYLE,

In continuation of my letter regarding Sheth Jamnalal Bajaj, I have further information from his wife and children which makes me extremely anxious. They have seen Dr. Modi of Sir J. J. Hospital, the specialist, who advised Jamnalalji before his incarceration. Dr. Modi is not satisfied with his weight and general condition. Seeing that he has not recently seen the patient, naturally his remarks are based upon the reports received by him from laymen. Nevertheless when I add Dr. Modi’s remarks to the patient’s own state of mind as revealed in his telegram I become nervous.

Perhaps it would not be considered impertinent in this connection if I mention the fact that Jamnalalji looks up to me as to a parent. His children are under my care and discipline. He has himself lived in the Ashram off and on for several months at a time. Naturally therefore even as a prisoner I try to give the members of his family what comfort and guidance I can, within the limitations put upon me, and it will be a great relief to me and his family if Jamnalalji could be transferred to this prison and is allowed facilities for such food and special medical advice as his health may require. I would lay stress upon the almost universal medical opinion that Jamnalalji suffers from a disease which may any day assume an acute and even fatal form and that such symptoms arise without sufficient previous warning. I therefore request an early decision by the Government.

Yours sincerely,

Bombay Secret Abstracts, Home Department, Special Branch, File No. 800 (40) (2), Pt. I, p. 385

53. LETTER TO DAHYABHAI PATEL

November 22, 1932

CHI. DAHYABHAI,

Devdas tells me that you are quite cheerful and says that you would be happy if you heard from us every day. We have deliberately refrained from writing every day although we daily send our blessings [mentally] and think of you. But now you will also get a letter every day.

Blessings from

BAPU

[From Gujarati]

Bapuna Patro—4: Manibehn Patelne, p.150

54. LETTER TO BHAU PANSE

November 22, 1932

CHI. BHAU,

That you are still suffering from constipation indicates that your intestines have become very weak and that your stomach also is not secreting the necessary juices. I would certainly like it if you went to Vijapur. If, however, your constipation is not cured even after going there, then you should eat only vegetables and fruit, and not even rotlis or rotlas. You may start taking milk after you begin to pass regular stools and, if that continues, you can start eating wheat, bajri and jowar. If you do this, your constipation is bound to be cured. You should, therefore, go to Vijapur and also carry out the foregoing suggestions. If there is no improvement even after this, we will think whether you should fast again. But I am confident that the complaint will disappear. Stop writing about the takli for the present. If possible, I will ask you to come and see me.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 6744. Also C.W. 4487. Courtesy: Bhau Panse

55. LETTER TO JANAKIDEVI BAJAJ

November 22, 1932

CHI. JANAKIBEHN1.

I had wanted to reply to your letter and tease you a good bit, but I get no time at all these days. I forgot to tell you about Kamalnayan2, and I write about it here now. He is very eager to learn English. He wants to be kept in an atmosphere of study. I am, therefore, of the

1 Wife of Jamnalal Bajaj
2 Addressee’s son opinion that you should send him to Colombo. He will get there all opportunity to satisfy to the full, his desire to learn English. He will be away from you, and yet not too far away. We need not believe that children remain good or acquire a good character only if they are kept at home. It may be assumed that whatever beneficial influence the Ashram was likely to have on him, it has already had. If he lives in Nuwara Eliya in Ceylon, he will have the benefits of excellent climate and water. I believe the place also has good facilities for education.
You will have no cause for worry. If you wish to write to me about the subject and discuss it further, you may do so.

Do not worry about Jamnalal at all. Report to me whatever news you get. I am in correspondence with him about the matter. I am not writing separately to Madanmohan.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 2904

56. LETTER TO MANIBEHN PATEL

[November 22, 1932]1

CHI. MANI,

I sent a wire2 to you and also wrote a letter3. I hope you got both. Write to me every day, I will forward the letter to Dahyabhai.
Today also the report about his condition is satisfactory. Devdas has been to see him. He says no one who looks at Dahyabhai will believe that he is having typhoid, such is his courage and physical stamina.

Give my blessings to all the women prisoners.

Blessings from
BAPU

SMT. MANIBEHN PATEL
PRISONER, CENTRAL PRISON, BELGAUM

[From Gujarati]

Bapuna Patro—4: Manibehn Pateln, p. 91

1 Madanmohan Chaturvedi, Jamnalalji’s secretary
2 The source is doubtful about the date. Its correctness is corroborated by “Diary, 1932”.
4 ibid
57. LETTER TO MADALASA BAJAJ

November 22, 1932

CHI. MADALASA¹.

I must say that your handwriting is improving very much. Your plan of studies is also very good. See that you do not work beyond your strength. If you neglect your health for the sake of study, both will suffer. Since you know that anger is bad, you are bound to become free from it in the course of time. And the same about pride. It is a sign of weakness that you start crying at every little thing. If you start playing games, your crying will stop. Begin reciting the Gita loudly whenever you feel that you are about to begin crying; you will then immediately forget about crying. Try this method.

Why do you say that no one lives in a temple the whole day and night? The priest certainly does so.

Blessings from

BAPU

[From Gujarati]

Panchven Putrako Bapuke Ashirvad, p.471

58. LETTER TO MATHURADAS P. ASAR

[November 22, 1932]²

CHI. MATHURADAS³.

You can only see Mahadev’s handwriting, but he may not write for himself. That would be against the law.

I understood all that you had said.

Formerly, Mahadev used to card daily. He stopped only after Chhakkaddas⁴ started sending slivers regularly. Just now we have a large stock of them. Chhakkaddas’s slivers have deteriorated in quality recently. They contain dust particles and also other impurities. I am not complaining, however. After considering everything I have come to one conclusion. Instead of wasting time in testing the strength of the yarn,

¹ Daughter of Jamnalal Bajaj
² Illegible in the source but corroborated by “Diary, 1932”
³ A khadi worker of the Ashram
⁴ An expert sliver-maker
I should give away the yarn for weaving as soon as I have spun enough. It would be best if all the yarn is woven by the same weaver. I should watch the quality of the yarn as may be necessary in the light of the results of its testing by him. Another practical course is to wind the yarn very tightly round the spindle, no matter even if it snaps occasionally, and to watch the yarn as it is being spun to know whether it is even. Don’t worry about your health, but go on employing simple remedies. I am sure you hear in due course about my latest discoveries regarding food.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 3758

59. LETTER TO K. KELAPPAN

November 23, 1932

MY DEAR KELAPPAN,

I have your letter. I wish you would write daily and give me a full report of progress from day to day. Of course you will cheerfully resume your fast if it becomes necessary. But we must strain every nerve to prevent its resumption.

Do not for one moment imagine that I promised to fast with you because of anything you had said in your telegrams. I know that you would be better pleased if I did not join you. But with me it was a point of honour that I should join you if the fast which was suspended upon my advice had to be resumed. After all, you should have no difficulty in believing me when I tell you that at least during the days of the fast, all my acts were prompted by the inner voice. All the movements of a life of perfect surrender to God are so directed, and it is my perpetual endeavour to make my life one of perfect surrender. Therefore I would like you not to expend your energy in dissuading me from the fast if it becomes necessary, but devote every ounce of your energy to organizing public opinion so that the temple is opened to the Harijans before the due date. I have read your letter to the Zamorin. I think that it is quite all right. It would have been better if you had omitted all reference to the Vaidiks and Tantriks. Your position with regard to them was already known.

I had long conversations with Sadashiv Rao. He told me all about you. I have given him my views fully but in order to make assurance doubly sure I reduce them to writing.
Our claim is that the proposed fast can never savour of coercion because it is based on the assumption that the vast majority of the temple-going savarnas are in favour of temple-entry. If this cannot be proved up to the hilt, there is no case for fasting by us. Fasting with the knowledge that savarnas are opposed to temple-entry by Harijans would undoubtedly amount to coercion. If we make that painful discovery, it would not mean that we cease to agitate for temple-entry by avarnas, but the movement will then have to take a different turn. I can even conceive the possibility of a fast in such an event, but that could only be in an unmistakably different setting. In order to demonstrate to all concerned the fact that we have the majority of temple-goers on our side, there should be a methodical taking of a referendum of temple-goers, say within a ten-mile radius. And in order to have the thing absolutely above the board, signatures should be taken at public meetings in the presence of witnesses known to the signatories with their full names, addresses and occupations, together with age and sex. It is being suggested that whilst many people have been in favour of Harijans entering temples, they may be afraid owing to pressure from their landlords or otherwise to say so openly. I should say that even in that case we must be declared to have lost. Whatever the cause of abstention may be, if we do not get the majority of votes we must be declared to have lost the battle so far as the proposed fast is concerned.

Needless to say that there should be no coercion of any kind on our part during the taking of the referendum. On the contrary every endeavour should be made to carry on the referendum with the co-operation and goodwill of the opponents. The points of difference between the so-called orthodox party and the reformers should be reduced to a minimum. The orthodox party can have nothing to say against the reformers so long as they do not resort to any coercion. If they are assured that there will be no attempt whatsoever made either on the part of the reformers or Harijans to force entry, there would be no opposition by the orthodox, and even if there is, it is bound to fall flat. Real non-violence can never beget violence. Too much emphasis cannot be laid upon the point that the removal of untouchability, apart from the political side of it, which is settled, is a wholly religious matter.

Question was put to me whether sympathizers of temple-entry may start fasting a few days before the second of January, in order, I suppose, to force the issue. This must not be done on any account whatsoever. Nor, if the fast begins, can anyone join us in the fasting out of sympathy.

Fasting by you, if it comes, must not take place on the public road. It must be in a house or a hut. There can be no public exhibition of you, whilst you are under fast.

Urmila Devi, the widowed sister of the late Deshabandhu Das, will be leaving here on the 27th by the Madras Express. She will be accompanied by her son. She is being sent there in response to Gopala Menon’s suggestion that a sister from the North may be sent. She has a weak heart, she must not therefore be rushed too much. She leads an austere life of a Hindu widow. She is an accomplished English scholar and has been doing public work for years in Bengal. I could not think of a fitter woman for work to be sent from the North. Urmila Devi can address men as well as women. She must be taken to the homes of the orthodox and she must be taken to Harijan quarters. I do not know where it is proposed to house [her]. [If] no other arrangement has already been made, I suggest the Gujarati house where I was taken during the last tour. She should be provided with a mosquito curtain if [there] are mosquitoes at all. She should be provided with a commode wherever possible. She is a pure vegetarian.

You must keep yourself in perfect order. There should be no loss of confidence and no work under a nervous strain. We can but work with zeal and honesty. The result lies in God’s hands. Purest instruments alone should lead the movement. Give me a list of all the active workers. I suggest that Malaviyaji be not worried to go to Kerala. He is too weak and he has his hands otherwise absolutely full. You should even telegraph to him saying that if he sends his blessings and messengers it would be deeply appreciated, but Kerala would spare him the trouble of undertaking the long journey whilst he is occupied in national work of the highest importance.

From a microfilm: S.N. 20004
60. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

November 23, 1932

CHI. NARANDAS,

Read my letters to Kusum and Bhau¹ and then pass them on to them. Kusum’s illness requires care. There is no cause at all for fear. She holds in her own hands the key to recovery. If she lives all the time in open air and eats only what, and as much as, she can digest, she will certainly get all right. The only cure for loose motions is a fast. During the fast she should drink as much water as she can. A little soda bicarb should be mixed in every glass of water she drinks. It helps very much in stopping loose motions. The proportion of one grain of soda for every ounce of water will be all right. If she can digest fruit juices, a fast is not necessary.

I have discussed about eggs before. Compared with fish-liver oil, pure eggs are innocent. Pure eggs are those from which no chickens come out, however long they are kept, and which are laid by the hen without a cock having been brought to her. Such eggs are not boiled but opened as they are and the liquid consumed. They help in stopping loose motions and are more nourishing than milk. If Kusum is willing, she may drink the liquid of such eggs. They are available even in Ahmedabad. But I realize that no value should be attached to my advice. Instead of doing what I advise from this distance, the proper course would be to follow the doctor’s advice and you should do that. Show my suggestions to the doctor and then do as he advises.

About Bhau, I do not wish to make any suggestion other than what I have done in my letter to him. If Kanti has not got all right, I would certainly say that his case requires careful watching. That is, we should treat his disease to be a case of black fever. That means that he should take complete rest, stop all food except fruit-juices and, if he really feels hungry, milk in small quantities at a time. If he does not pass stool, he should take an enema.

I would be happy if you or somebody else drop me a postcard daily.

Ramji came and saw me yesterday. He had many complaints against Mathuradas. The latter should remove his suspicions and should even tolerate occasional troubles caused by him. He is very eager to weave khadi of even texture from the yarn spun by Mahadev.

If he is really eager and if there is no definite complaint against him, he should be permitted to weave that yarn notwithstanding any loss that this may involve. About the other matters, call him to you and ask him in confidence. We should not feel hurt by anything he says. We should even put up with insults from him. All this is part of our atonement (for our treatment of the Antyajas). Show this to Mathuradas.

How is Hariyomal\(^1\) behaving?

In Poona, Ramji stayed in a room provided by the Christian Seva Sangh. Ordinarily, there should be no objection to anyone of us staying there. I would even welcome that. But I think the fact that Ramji had to stay there only means that he was not welcomed at any other place. You should have asked him and made some arrangements for him. Perhaps you would have found it difficult to do so. That is why probably you kept quiet. I will fix up with some families who will put up friends like Ramji, and then let you know.

_Blessings from_ BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./I. Also C.W. 8269. Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi

61. FRAGMENT OF LETTER TO DEVDAS GANDHI

November 23, 1932

You should stop coming till this affair\(^2\) is over. We shall rest satisfied by writing to each other. You must not apologize hoping that thereby you might be able to come and see me. On the other hand, when it is your duty to apologize, you need not feel the slightest hesitation or shame in doing so. Even such small incidents should teach us the way of love.

[From Gujarati]

_Mahadevbhai_ Diary, Vol. II, p. 271

---

\(^1\) A Sindhi inmate of the Ashram

\(^2\) The addressee had not been allowed to see Gandhiji the previous day, because the Jail Superintendent felt that he had been “insulted before his juniors by Devdas” during Gandhiji’s fast in September.
62. LETTER TO HIRALAL A. SHAH

November 23, 1932

I was fully aware that the analogy of a dyer did not apply in all respects, but it was good enough for my purpose. You think that the problem of untouchability has been solved in prisons. But that is so only on paper. Nothing of the kind that you suppose is being done. I am speaking from personal observation. Whether in jails or outside, the fact is that in most parts of India and for most of the year, the Bhangi’s dress is no more than loincloth. I myself did a Bhangi’s duty continually for nearly one and-a-half years. I used to do it dressed like an ordinary labourer. In the Ashram it is done with the dhoti tucked in. A person doing Bhangi’s work does not become as much soiled as a dyer. If he does his work scientifically, he need not do anything more than clean himself with earth. You probably know that according to Smritis and Islam, such cleaning is as good as a full bath. But there are occupations in which this is not sufficient, nor is even washing with water. Soap and antiseptic medicines are required for cleaning oneself properly. Such occupations are those of the Chamar, the doctor, the dyer and the worker in a coal mine. There are many others besides these. Thus the cleanliness of Bhangis has very little part in the removal of untouchability. Think over all this very carefully. You should not lose your sense of perspective. If you wish to discuss the matter further, come and see me.

I did not see anything objectionable in the note in the Chronicle. It is true that at present Bhangis work for all classes of people. If, however, Hindus had given them a place in their fold, their condition would never have become as bad as it is. The status of Bhangis in Europe or in any other part of the world is not inferior in any respect to that of other workers. There are no special localities for their residence nor is there a special dress for them. Nowhere outside India is there a special section of the community like our Bhangis.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, pp. 271-2

1 The source does not mention if any portion was omitted between this and the following paragraph.
63. INTERVIEW TO WOMEN

November 23, 1932

The Zamorin is a good man, not even obstinate, but he must take his co-trustees with him. Only the certainty of the sincerity of public opinion will accomplish that. Women have good powers of persuasion. Let them convince the bonafide temple-goers that true religion will open the hearts of the people and the gates of the temple to every human being and will brand no one as an outcaste.

Go to Malabar and enlist Nambudri and Nair women there to procure signed statements from the bonafide attenders at the temple within a radius of 10 miles that they would be willing to admit the depressed classes into the temple. This work is specially suited to the women and the Women’s Indian Association branch at Malabar should take a leading part.

Amrita Bazar Patrika, 30-11-1932

64. LETTER TO TARAMATI MATHURADAS TRIKUMJI

YERAVDA MANDIR,
November 23/24, 1932

CHI. TARAMATI,

I have your letter. I had a letter from Mathuradas only the day before yesterday. He is keeping good health. There is no cause at all to be anxious. Since he is to be released soon, there is no need for you to make a trip there. I have replied to his letter only yesterday.

We three are doing well. Dilip will be well.

There is no need for me to give you a summary of Mathuradas’s letter as it contained only the remarks about untouchability and my fast.

A woman does not become untouchable by pronouncing her husband’s name. Moreover, we have wholly renounced the idea of

---

1 According to The Bombay Chronicle, 25-11-1932, Mrs. Cousins, Mrs. Urmila Devi, Mrs. Ambalal Sarabhai and others of Women’s Indian Association met Gandhiji in the afternoon.
untouchability. You should therefore learn to speak of Mathuradas as Mathuradas and not say ‘he’.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI TAMATI MATHURADAS TRIKUMJI
21 MINT ROAD
FORT, BOMBAY

From the Gujarati original: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

65. LETTER TO MIRABEHN

November 24, 1932

CHI. MIRA,

It is again before morning prayer time, while waiting for Mahadev.

So you are without Kisan. You are having varied experiences.

I am sending you a book on Buddhism which has been recently received. It is likely to be interesting. I have not read it as yet. You will return it to me and tell me whether you think it is well written. I have promised the author that I would glance through it. But there is no hurry about returning it. I shall be unable to touch anything for two weeks or longer.

I note what you say about unsifted wheat. I shall pass on your experience to the Ashram.

Make any change you like so as to get thoroughly well.

My weight was registered at 103 lb. yesterday. I am likely just now to stop at that. I may not increase the quantity of dried milk now. And the growing strain of work is not likely to add to the weight. But 103 is a good weight for me. The elbows are not quite in order. The doctor wants me to drop spinning altogether for a week and I have agreed. He is so sure that the pain is due to the wear and tear of spinning that he thinks the rest is bound to do good. I am to try till Wednesday next.

Proper cold weather seems to have set in here now.

Love from us all.

BAPU

From the original: C.W. 625. Courtesy: Mirabehn. Also G.N. 9716
66. LETTER TO HOME SECRETARY, GOVERNMENT OF BOMBAY

November 24, 1932

SECRETARY TO GOVERNMENT OF BOMBAY
HOME DEPARTMENT

DEAR SIR,

I have waited almost to the breaking point before writing this letter. Untouchability work is proving beyond my ability to cope with and this in spite of assistance I am getting from Sardar Vallabhbhai and Sjt. Mahadev Desai. The correspondence is daily growing in volume. The number of visitors is increasing daily and more and more time has to be given to these visits as the movement progresses. I am already in arrears with my correspondence and the statements I must make for the public. My difficulty is enhanced by the fact that my elbows are giving more trouble than before and I am not able to use my hands for writing as much as I should, nor have I regained my pre-fast vitality so as to enable me to put in more work than I am doing now. As it is, we all begin work at 4 o’clock in the morning and it continues with necessary intervals up to 9 p.m. The only way therefore out of the difficulty is for the Government to send one of my prisoner-associates to stay with me. The following are the names that just now occur to me:

1. Sjt. Mohanlal Bhatt —Camp Jail, Yeravda
2. ,, Shanker Kalelkar—Central Jail, Yeravda
3. ,, Ramdas Gandhi do—
4. ,, Swami Anand —Camp Jail, Nasik Road
5. ,, Chhaganlal Joshi—(Jail not known)
6. ,, Jugatram Dave —Byculla, House of Correction

These prisoners have been intimately connected with me and have worked under me, and they know English, Gujarati and Hindi, which is what I need. If I had my choice, I would choose Swami Anand as being the most competent for the work. He has been Secretary of the Anti-Untouchability Committee established by the Congress in 1929 and since then has been devoting most of his time to untouchability work.

I need hardly say that I have confined my request to the least assistance I need immediately. If this is a matter which can only be decided by the Government of India, may I ask that my request may be telegraphed to them?

Yours sincerely,

Bombay Secret Abstracts, Home Department, Special Branch, File No. 800 (40)(4), Pt. II, p. 77

67. LETTER TO M. G. BHANDARI

November 24, 1932

DEAR MAJOR BHANDARI,

With reference to my letter1 to you of the 14th instant submitting certain names for approval by Government as visitors in connection with the late Dr. P. J. Mehta’s estate, as the widow and the heirs of the estate are anxious for an early settlement of affairs of the deceased, may I request that the matter may be treated by the Government as urgent?

Yours sincerely,

Bombay Secret Abstracts, Home Department, Special Branch, File No. 800(40)(2), Pt. I, p. 347

68. LETTER TO M. M. ANANTA RAU 2

November 24, 1932

DEAR FRIEND,

I see quite clearly that we look at the Gita from different stand-points. The main theme of the Gita to me is oneness of life. Realization thereof comes through work without attachment. Untouchability as it is practised today seems to me to be utterly contrary to this divine fact of oneness.

Yours sincerely,

From a copy: C.W. 9560. Courtesy: Government of Mysore

2 Manager, Sanatana Dharma Karyalaya, Madras, who in his letter dated November 18, 1932 (C.W. 9559) had said that Gandhiji’s contention that the main theme of the Gita was “oneness and therefore equality of all life” was perhaps based on verse 18, Chapter V, but according to the ‘context and the subject’ that verse referred only to “yoga by renunciation of action”, and did not apply to the question of ‘touchability’ and ‘untouchability’ which were based purely upon action and the effects of action. He had asked Gandhiji to enlighten him as to the authority for his advocacy for the removal of untouchability.
DEAR BROTHER,

I had your precious letters. Your criticism soothes. Your silence makes me nervous. Time only deepens my love for you. Our differences appear to me to be superficial. Deep down I feel and touch the meeting ground, and, that is precious.

I do wish I never spoke of God or the Inner Voice or Conscience. But, like Ramanama, however much it may be abused, it has got to be re-peated when it is relevant, and almost becomes imperative. Truth will receive a deep cut if, for fear of being misunderstood or even being called a fraud, I did not say boldly what I felt to be true.

I carefully read the typed notes you sent me. The reasoning failed to make any appeal to me. The implications of the Agamas are stretched too far by the writer.

I hope you are keeping well. With love,

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

Letters of Srinivasa Sastri, p. 245

---

1 The source explains: “From other letters of the period we learn that among other points Mr. Sastri had raised these two: ‘(i) I took occasion to pick a bone with him. In several places in his writings, he seems to dethrone non-violence from its place of honour, and crown the pinchbeck god of physical courage instead. He actually prefers courageous violence to cowardly non-violence. This inconsistency in the apostle of ahimsa amounts to inconstancy. Like Arjuna in the Gītā, having sent home my dart of criticism, I folded my hands and prayed: ‘Enlighten me, for my soul is cast in doubt and you know all.’

(ii) I have written objecting to his too frequent references the Inner Voice.’ ”
70. LETTER TO RABINDRANATH TAGORE

November 24, 1932

DEAR GURUDEV,

Your previous letter comforts me. It is enough for me that you are watching and praying.

With deep love,

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat: G.N. 4636

71. LETTER TO ADA WEST

November 24, 1932

MY DEAR DEVI,

What an impertinent letter you had from Mr. R. Sole, if that indeed was the name of the writer. I do hope you had a hearty laugh over it.

Hilda must have become very clever to be able to assist Albert in his work. In these times of scarcity of work and distress I suppose it will be uphill work for Albert to command enough custom to make the two ends meet.

You are not to worry over the approaching fast. It is highly likely that things will shape themselves so that the ordeal might not have to be gone through.

Love to all.

Yours,

BHAII

From a photostat: C.W. 4436. Courtesy: A.H. West. Also G.N. 7622

1 Dated November 15, 1932 in which Tagore had written: “The mighty liberating forces set in motion by your fast still continue to operate and spread from village to village . . . I . . . fervently hope that those who now stand in the way of truth will be converted to it.”
72. LETTER TO J. S. HOYLAND

November 24, 1932

MY DEAR HOYLAND,

Mahadev to whom this letter is being dictated tells me that you do not like to be called ‘Hoyland’ by near or real friends—I suppose there are degrees in friendship—but I refused to change the mode, telling him there was no ‘Jack’ about your signature! But after all what is in a name? It is the heart behind that matters and the heart is with you whether the pen traces Jack or John or Hoyland.

Your letter this time is a book compressed in a single notepaper sheet. It tells me more about Russia than what I have read in my desultory reading and heard from travellers. I must confess that this partiality for your letter is largely due to my faith in the accuracy of your observation and your truthfulness.

I want to warn you and other friends against being agitated over the proposed second fast. Probably the ordeal won’t have to be gone through. But it is the same thing whether it has to be gone through or not. I am safe in God’s hands and the prayers of many friends in many lands are one of the many infallible proofs that I am under His absolute rule.

Love to you all.

Yours,

BAPU

From a photostat: C.W. 4508. Courtesy: Woodbrooke College and Mrs. Jessie Hoyland

73. LETTER TO OLIVE ALEXANDER

November 24, 1932

MY DEAR OLIVE,

It was good Miss Howard gave me the information that your father was no more. I do not know that either you or Horace feel real grief over the death of dear ones. I have personally ceased for years to grieve over death at all. The shock is felt when a comrade is torn away from me, but that is purely due to personal attachment which in

2 Horace G. Alexander, addressee’s husband other words is selfishness. But I immediately recover and realize that death is a deliverance and has to be welcomed even as a friend is welcomed, and that it means dissolution of the body, not of the indwelling spirit. But I must not philosophize. To be true to you and to myself I had to declare my faith and at the same time let you know that Mahadev and I and your other friends here were not so indifferent as not to take note of the happenings in your circle.

May your father’s soul rest in peace.
Love to you and Horace from us all.

Yours sincerely,
BAPU

From a photostat: G.N. 1416

74. LETTER TO HARIBHAU PHATAK

November 24, 1932

DEAR HARIBHAU,

Mahadev has gone through Purandare’s manuscripts. I shall see him on Monday. I agree with you that he may be taken over by the League. I shall discuss with him what can be done.

I give you below the draft manifesto. I thought that you wanted it for Maharashtra only. I make myself responsible only for the draft. Whether it should be circulated or not and whether it will be widely signed or not, I cannot judge from here. Therefore that is a matter purely for those who are outside to judge. Here is the draft:

We the undersigned believe that untouchability is a blot upon Hinduism and should be removed. We believe in temple worship, and such believers respectfully urge the trustees of all Hindu temples to throw open their doors to the Harijans on the same terms as to the caste Hindus. We do not include in our request the garbhagriha which is only open to the professional ritualists, and as at present the attention of all India is directed to the Guruvayur Temple, we respectfully urge the Zamorin and all concerned to lead the way by opening that temple to the Harijans before the 1st of January next.

You will show this draft to as many friends as you like and make whatever changes are deemed necessary, so long as they don’t interfere with the scope of the request. If you need to see me on this point you should come with Purandare on Monday.

Yours sincerely,

From a microfilm: S.N. 20005

75. LETTER TO AN AMERICAN WOMAN

November 24, 1932

I am not enamoured of the idea of using divine healing for the purpose of proving the existence of divinity or efficiency of prayer. If Jesus came back to us, it is difficult to know what he would say to some of the uses that are being made of his powers of healing and other miracles attributed to him.

_Mehadevbhaini Diary_, Vol. II, p. 275

76. A LETTER

November 24, 1932

MY DEAR FRIEND,

Your letter has come upon me like a shock.¹ Your letter written to me as you left Bombay left on my mind the impression that you were wholly with me in all I did and I think you allowed the public too, to think that you were with the majority. No one knew of your mental reservations. At least you could have let me know your mind for my guidance, knowing as you did my regard for your opinions. Truth was hurt by your silence when it did not mean consent. Friendship is hard stuff. It must be capable of standing knock-out blows. Next time please do not spare me. You will serve the cause and me by speaking out straight.

I think Radhakant was right in drawing my attention to the mine on which he thought I was standing.

All this is however for you only. I shall respect your wish by making no use of your letter which is being destroyed.

With love,

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

_Mahadevbhaini Diary_, Vol. II, pp. 273-4

¹ The addressee had expressed his disagreement with Gandhiji in regard to the Poona Pact as well as the fast and written: “I have not done or said anything against my conscience as I was not present either at the Bombay meeting or at the Poona Committee.”
77. LETTER TO ‘LARKS’ OF ST. FRANCIS

November 24, 1932

. . . 2 is truly a spendthrift scattering his love recklessly and captures people by playing the son to them. Of course you know that although he is in India we do not meet each other; but that does not, ought not to, matter. For I feel the presence of his spirit without needing the nearness of the body. Spiritual kinship can never be destroyed. Spiritual nearness can never be sundered. You say you are all trying hard not to forget the power of prayer. We can only do so at our peril.

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, pp. 277-8

78. LETTER TO G. D. BIRLA

November 24, 1932

Bhai Ghanshyamdas,

Shindeji has a serious complaint against us, that of appropriating the name of his association. The complaint seems to be justified.3 We are concerned only with work not with the name. Therefore my suggestion is to name our association ‘Akhil Bharat Harijan Seva Sangh’ and to use the same in English and vernacular too. You are coming here but this will possibly reach you before you start.

Blessings from

BAPU

SIT. G. D. BIRLA

BIRLA HOUSE, ALBUQUERQUE ROAD, NEW DELHI

From Hindi: C.W. 7906. Courtesy: G. D. Birla

---

1 Sisters of an Italian Convent
2 The name is omitted in the source.
3 The recently-formed association for the eradication of untouchability with addressee as President had been named ‘All-India Anti-Untouchability League’ in ignorance of the fact that another association named ‘All-India Untouchability League’, was already operating under the presidency of V. R. Shinde.
79. LETTER TO ELIZABETH F. HOWARD

November 25, 1932

DEAR SISTER,

I thank you for your letter and your sympathy and also your own poem. Let me confess to you that I am so overwhelmed with untouchability work that I have not had the time to go through the poem, but I did not want to delay writing to you till I was able to read the poem. I must also tell you that I am a slow reader of poetry.

It was very good of you to have informed me of John W. Graham’s death. I should not have known it otherwise. It was as you very properly say a very splendid way to die.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat: G.N. 864

80. LETTER TO AGATHA HARRISON

November 25, 1932

MY DEAR AGATHA,

You are regular against my irregularity. But you have need to be regular, I have no cause for regular writing, unless I was to describe to you the events concerning the family consisting of cats and trees—and why not pots and pans and stove? Even they are not quite so lifeless as we imagine them to be, and we feel the loss of them in the same way that we feel the loss of dear ones. The question is only that of degree. But if I were to begin to describe all these members of the family, my letter could be dry as dust after one or two trials. Therefore the onesided bargain in which you give without expecting anything in return is in the circumstances the most natural thing. I am not going to [write] separately to Charlie. But tell him please that Gurudev and I are drawing nearer each other day by day. This news, I know, will please him more than anything else I can send him.

Love from us all.

Love.

Yours,

BAPU

From a photostat: G.N. 11460

81. LETTER TO KASHINATH N. KELKAR

November 25, 1932

MY DEAR KASHINATH,

I am grateful to you for a copy of your work on Hindu Law. Apart from the reference you have given to me, I shall prize the gift and hope some day to get the time to go through the whole work.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

KASHINATH N. KELKAR, ADVOCATE
PUSHALKARI WADA, YADUGOPAL PETH, SATARA CITY
C.W. 978. Courtesy: G. N. Kanitkar

82. LETTER TO ABBAS TYABJI

November 25, 1932

MY DEAR BEARDED FRIEND AND BROTHER,

I am not going to send you the passport you want. The princes and the people of Kathiawar know you just as well as they know me and if your greater age, your smiles and your energy which youth can emulate cannot secure help from the princes and the monied men of Kathiawar, no appeal that I can arm you with will do so. And I will not have you betray want of faith in yourself, in your cause and God. But if there must be a passport, then let this serve the purpose.

With love,

Yours,

M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat: S.N. 9581

1 The source has “am”.
83. LETTER TO ESTHER MENON

November 25, 1932

MY DEAR CHILD,

You are not to worry over the approaching second fast. It may not come at all. But if it does come, let it be a matter of joy to you. Life to be true must be a continuing sacrifice. Enjoyment does not come after. Sacrifice is the enjoyment. All taking must be for greater giving. This is becoming more and more clear to me. Therefore you will watch in utter calmness, joy and prayer what is happening and may happen.

I must not give you more time. Untouchability work leaves no time for love-letters.

Love to you all and kisses to the children.

BAPU

From a photostat: No. 116. Courtesy: National Archives of India. Also My Dear Child, pp. 96-7

84. LETTER TO FRANCISCA STANDENATH

November 25, 1932

The key to Satyavan’s purity is perhaps in your own hands. You have to be patient like the Himalayas and have the charity of the ocean. You must not irritate him on any account whatsoever nor sit in judgment upon him if he yields to his animal passion. You do not need to go through the struggle because you are a stranger to that passion. Your brahmacharya therefore is no merit in you, but Satyavan’s is. All the time he is struggling against the Devil and if he finally subdues it, it would be indeed a great merit and a singular triumph. Let us all therefore pray for him that he may have the necessary strength to overcome the enemy.

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 279

1 Named Savitri by Gandhiji
2 Frederic Standenath, addressee’s husband
85. FRAGMENT OF LETTER TO SAMUEL E. STOKES

November 25, 1932

What a joy it would be when people realize that religion consists not in outward ceremonial but an ever-growing inward response to the highest impulses that man is capable of.

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 279

86. LETTER TO E. RAMUNNI MENON

November 25, 1932

There should be no difficulty in getting an accurate referendum as to the wishes of the temple-goers. The reformers assure me with as much firmness that popular opinion is in their favour, as you assure me that it is against temple-entry. I suggest referees being appointed by either party and an honest referendum taken without any undue pressure being exercised on either side. The question on which vote is to be taken should be properly framed and explained to the voters. There need be no heat imported into what is a purely religious matter.

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 280

87. LETTER TO SECRETARY TO RABINDRANATH TAGORE

November 25, 1932

I can sense his (Gurudev’s) agony even from this distance, but I suppose it is inevitable. This curse of untouchability will not be removed from our midst, the hearts of the orthodox will not melt without the purest souls in our land passing through the agony that Gurudev is passing through just now. Let us pray that God may sustain him and keep him in our midst for many years.

Gurudev’s firm letter to the Zamorin ought to move him. During these days of travail Gurudev’s blessings and help are of inestimable value to me. Please give my love to him.

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 281

1 American missionary who had naturalized himself as a British subject and made India his home.

2 Who, on behalf of the Guruvayur branch of the Sanatana Sabha, had written: “How did you conclude that public opinion is on your side? It is with us.”
88. A LETTER

November 25, 1932

I appreciate your care for my body and I fully endorse your proposition that it belongs to the nation. But the nation belongs to God and if God imposes a task upon the body, who can resist it?

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 281

89. REPLIES TO RATLAM CORRESPONDENTS

November 25, 1932

1. Great things have been misused from times immemorial, and will continue to be misused. That is no reason for rejecting them. There is nothing in this world in whose name as much evil is done as in the name of religion. If, however, we were to banish religion for that reason, the world would perish.

2. Shri Kelappan’s error was a very small one. It could be rectified and has been rectified. If a fast in itself was an improper means, I could certainly not have supported him. Since he has fully atoned for his error, as his co-worker and as inventor of the weapon of fasting, it was clearly my moral duty to give my support to him.

3. The Zamorin’s duty is to support neither me nor the orthodox Hindus who are fasting. His clear duty is to uphold justice. Two persons may fast against each other, but both may be in the wrong. When that is so, the way of truth and non-violence tells us that we should let both of them die, and do only what is just. It is not we who can save or kill people. God does that. People have survived long fasts, and, on the other hand, we see men and women, who have not been fasting, dying every moment through innumerable causes.

4. I am quite aware that the personal element is bound to have an effect. But should I, therefore, forsake dharma? And if anybody gives up the practice of untouchability even under the spell of my personality, surely he would not be violating dharma.

5. I pray to God, and also hope, that even if millions of people fasted against me to make me betray truth, I would make my heart as

---

1 The addressee was a Bengali Assistant Accountant-General who in his letter to Gandhiji had observed: “Your body is a trust and you have no right to go on fast again and again.”

2 The questions were contained in their joint letter.
hard as a stone and not yield to them. In considering all these factors, however, we should not lose sight of one thing, namely, that not many people will come forward to lay down their lives by fasting in order to keep injustice alive. The truth is that very few people are likely to come forward to die even for justice.

6. A crore of people may act in the name of their inner voice, but they may be impostors or fools. How, then, should a man who is really urged by his inner voice act? Should he suppress his inner voice and deny God for fear that others may follow his example and falsely claim to be inspired by their inner voice?

7. If I believe that the orthodox Hindus have no popular support, why should I hide my view? If, however, they do have such support, I cannot suppress that fact and it is easy for them to prove their claim.

8. In the first place, my political, religious and social ideas are different branches of the same tree. Hence they are not inconsistent with one another. But those who see no connection among them should not forsake what they think to be dharma in order to make use of my political strength. If anybody, however, through foolishness or cowardice, is ready to barter away the diamond of dharma for the pebble of political advantage, should I for that reason forsake my dharma? It is doing violence to language to use the word ‘coercion’ in this connection. There will always be such powers like personal influence and, if we regard them as forms of coercion, there would be no room for determined human effort to achieve anything.

9. The question is improper.

10. Mixed dinner parties with Harijans are not a necessary part of the movement for the eradication of untouchability.

11. There is certainly some difference between Bharatbhusan' Panditji’s views and mine, but I don’t know if there is any difference regarding this fast. If there is any such difference, however, it is for the people to think what they should do. They should follow the view which appeals to their reason and their heart.

12. The fast is not intended to convert the orthodox Hindus. My aim is to arouse those who have risen above custom and realized the sin of untouchability so that they may begin working and to make those who have no conviction in the matter start thinking.

[From Gujarati]
Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, pp. 282-3

1 An honorific used by Gandhiji for Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya
90. LETTER TO MANIBEHN PATEL

November 25, 1932

CHI. MANI,

I have your long letter, the first after you were informed about Dahyabhai’s illness. You are worrying unnecessarily. You ought to be aware that when both Father and you are in jail, those who are outside would not fail to do everything necessary. As soon as the condition was diagnosed as typhoid, Walchand asked Karamchand to engage two nurses for day and night duty and to arrange for any doctor he thought necessary to visit Dahyabhai every day, and offered to pay all the expenses himself. They come to 30-40 rupees a day and are met by him. Thus Dahyabhai gets better nursing at home than he would in a hospital. Those looking after him are Karamchand, Chhotubhai (who is constantly by Dahyabhai’s side) and two nurses who are very kind and whom Dahyabhai has come to like very much. Bakshi and other friends too are there. It is natural for you to feel unhappy at not being by Dahyabhai’s side at this time. But God imposes the severest tests on those who love him. We receive daily reports from Karamchand, Chhotubhai and others. This is the third week. The temperature now does not rise above 102, and was even normal yesterday. Doctors hope, it will be completely normal from next Monday. I had even sent to you the letter received by Vallabhbhai from Dr. Madan, who is attending on Dahyabhai. You will see from it that the Doctors, too, give him loving care.

He is being given mosambi juice, butter-milk, etc. In typhoid as a rule the patient suffers from diarrhoea from the very beginning. But Dahyabhai has had no such troubles. So there is no cause at all for anxiety. You should go on doing your work there and pray for Dahyabhai’s speedy recovery. You should not be unhappy at Grandmother’s death. How many have the good fortune to meet such a death? Whenever we feel that we did not get an opportunity of nursing someone whom we loved during his or her last days on earth, we should console ourselves with the resolution that in future we would never let go an opportunity to serve people.

1 Walchand Hirachand, the industrialist
2 Addressee’s cousin
3 Jamnadas Bakshi, a Share-broker of Bombay
We are all well and all our waking time is taken up by Harijan work.

Blessings from

BAPU

[From Gujarati]

Bapuna Patro—4: Manibehn Patelne, pp. 92-3

91. A LETTER

November 25, 1932

You can ask the applicant whether he would do some work. Since we wish to train workers from amongst the Antyajas, it is necessary to make such a condition. In a very deserving case you may help generously even if you have to strain your means. We should be able to say that, if ten thousand such deserving boys applied for scholarships, we would give to all of them.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, pp. 280-1

92. LETTER TO K. M. MUNSHI

November 25, 1932

BHAI MUNSHI,

We exchanged a few letters some time ago. In this letter, however, I have to humbly register a complaint against you. A young man has sent me a farce by you entitled Brahmacharyashram and has criticized it with a sad heart. Sardar went through it first. Mahadev glanced through it and read out to me some sentences. If prizes were to be awarded for appreciating innocent humour, I suppose I would win a small one even at the age of sixty-four. Co-workers like you have also noticed my ability to understand humour. In your farce, however, I see no pleasant humour but the most offensive jesting, almost bordering on obscenity such as uncultured men might slip into, during their idle gossiping. One is entitled to expect you to produce, from jail, something really beautiful. I will not enter into detailed discussion; but having stated my criticism, I make this plea, write to the publisher and withdraw the farce. That young man informs me that some persons actually wish to stage the play, and the poor man is, therefore, all the more upset. I also feel that the farce should never be staged. A person who laughs at himself is not entitled to employ any type of ridicule or, under cover of self-ridicule, to ridicule the world and its ideals. This need not be explained to a person of your keen intelligence. I hope you are taking care and improving your health there. Convey my vandemataram to all the friends.

Vandemataram from
BAPU

From Gujarati: C.W. 7518. Courtesy: K. M. Munshi

93. LETTER TO DAHYABHAI PATEL

November 25, 1932

CHI. DAHYABHAI,

Shri Natarajan writes:

I have every hope and pray that Dahyabhai will pull through the remaining few days without complication. His age and active habits and his naturally strong constitution are most potent assets. He is a favourite at our home, having been with us nearly all the time when he was living with his uncle. He calls Kamakoti ‘Akka’, like her brothers and sister, and is always a welcome visitor without any ceremony.

This is an extract from his reply to my letter. Karamchand’s letter was received yesterday rather late, and I could not reply being engaged in a discussion with visitors about Harijan work. The range of your temperature seems to be gradually coming down. Provided that the patient takes proper rest and due care is taken about nourishment, an attack of typhoid proves beneficial in the end, for it removes all toxins from the body.

I hope you are cheerful.

Blessings from
BAPU

[From Gujarati]

Bapuna Patro—4: Manibehn Patelne, pp. 150-1
94. LETTER TO GOVINDLAL SAHA

November 25, 1932

BHAII GOVINDLALJI,

Prabhudas writes and tells me that you have fallen sick so much so that you were all set to leave for Ranchi to undergo an operation. I trust you are better now. Do send me the full facts.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 10675

95. INTERVIEW TO KHIMJI AND J. K. MEHTA

November 25, 1932

Mahatma Gandhi urged that there should be propaganda of a vigorous character for the removal of untouchability and specially for temple-entry at present. His attention was drawn to the fact that a referendum was going to be taken by women workers and others in Bombay for allowing untouchables to go to the temple of Guruvayur and he said that such a referendum was most welcome as it would show to the people all over India and the trustees of Guruvayur Temple, what were the feelings of the caste Hindus. He added that Provincial Boards should identify themselves with the referendum work.

He stressed, of course, the importance of the referendum near Guruvayur itself and he wanted it to be clearly understood that even if people all over the country were in favour of the entry of the untouchables into the temple of Guruvayur and the actual temple-goers to the Guruvayur Temple opposed it, he would abide by the decision of the Guruvayur people themselves, who should be considered the last authority on the question. He suggested that Shastris of note might also be asked to give their opinion regarding the authority of the Shastras on this question.

He again emphasized the importance of a census being taken of the depressed classes in the city, specially regarding the education of their children of different ages.

He also urged that adults of both the sexes among the untouchables had, through different sources, expressed a desire for education and night schools should be opened out for them. He favoured scholarships being given to students of the depressed classes in high schools or colleges so as to give an encouragement to 1 Gandhiji’s host during his visit to Takula, Nainital, in May 1931.

2 They met Gandhiji on behalf of the All-India Anti-Untouchability League. higher education among the depressed classes, who, after their education was over, might very well give one or two years' service to the cause of social uplift of their brethren.

The Bombay Chronicle, 28-11-1932

96. STATEMENT ON UNTOUCHABILITY-IX
[November 26, 1932]¹

As January 1st is nearing, the correspondence on Guruvayur is increasing. Instead of answering one by one the questions that arise from the correspondence, it would perhaps be simpler to answer them by way of a mere statement of my position. The fast will begin on January 2 next if, before that date, the Guruvayur Temple is not opened to Harijans on the same terms as it is open to the caste Hindu in general; but the fast will be postponed, if it becomes clear that the temple-going Hindus in the neighbourhood are opposed to the temple-entry of Harijans or if it is clear that although everybody is willing to open the temple to Harijans, there is a legal difficulty that cannot be overcome before January 2, next.

The majority of letters received by me assure me that the temple-goers are in favour of admission of Harijan worshippers to the temple. One or two correspondents vehemently contest the position and claim that a proper referendum will result in an overwhelming majority against such an entry. These correspondents have given me no proof in support of their opinion, whereas others say that they have actually taken referendum after their own fashion and found it to be in favour of temple-entry by Harijans. If the orthodox people will agree, a fresh referendum can at once be taken in the presence of referees appointed by both the parties. I need not repeat here the scheme suggested last Saturday in answer to a question from The Times of India correspondent. Anyway, the reform party should lose no time in fortifying their contention with incontestable proof.

They, however, say that, although the opinion of the temple-goers may be overwhelmingly in their favour, the key of the temple is held by the Zamorin. That is no doubt technically true, but he is not the owner. He is a trustee representing the temple-going public. Therefore, he cannot resist the clearly expressed wish of the majority.

¹ Vide the following item.
of them. It is his duty to overcome the legal difficulties if there are any, and if he fails to do so, it simply means that the force of the public opinion has not become strong enough to compel the performance of his obvious duty.

The fast will then further solidify public opinion so as to make itself felt. The key to the temple, therefore, is in fact in the hands of the public. But as the legal maxim has it, law or equity helps the watchful, never the slothful. Let Kerala reformers, therefore, not blame the Zamorin.

It is discourteous and wrong to impute motives to him. If he refuses to open the temple to Harijans, let us think that he is not convinced of the public demand. His refusal must be a signal not for abusing him, but discovering the weakness in our position. It is surely more dignified and proper for the public to feel that it is a clearly expressed wish and cannot be flouted by its representative which the Zamorin is.

Guruvayur has already become an all-India concern. Let the caste Hindus all over India bestir themselves and declare their opinion that they desire Guruvayur Temple to be opened to Harijans. The moral force of such an opinion honestly and freely expressed will be irresistible.

I have already warned the reformers against using unbecoming language in respect of orthodox sanatanists or no-changers, as they have called themselves, in a petition addressed to H.E. the Viceroy. They are entitled to their opinion. I look upon this untouchability question as primarily religious, and I would like both the no-changers and the reformers to work in a religious spirit without imputing motives to one another. No reform, much less religious reform, can be or should be carried by compulsion. I have repeatedly stated in unequivocal terms the limitations and functions of the proposed fast.

But a correspondent writing in Gujarati for himself and others says in effect:

It is all very well for you to say that you do not want to coerce anybody, but your position cannot but compel some people to act against their will. Some of us have no respect for your religious views or your social reforms, but we want you to live for your political power, and, therefore, if you persist in fasting, we will have to pocket our convictions and help you in your fight for temple-entry. If this is not coercion, we do not know the meaning of the word.

My answer is, I must not be expected to surrender my cherished convictions because I hold a prominent position in the Indian world, or because I have some political influence; I cannot barter away my faith or suppress its movement for the sake of retaining my social position or political influence. Everything is subservient to and is derivable from that faith. Ask me to deny or suppress it, and it would be worse than asking me to commit suicide. I would also venture to suggest that those who subordinate their convictions to their regard for my position or political influence can only have shallow convictions if any at all.

Convictions are made of sterner stuff. People have been known to stake their all for the sake of their convictions which may then be called religion. The correspondent asks:

What is the poor Zamorin to do? On the one hand you and Mr. Kelappan will fast. On the other, 1,000 no-changers are said to have decided to do likewise. Whom is the Zamorin to please?

I answer without the slightest hesitation that he is to please neither party. He is there to please God, which is Truth. He is there to do his duty, and if it demands the sacrifice of thousands of no-changers, Mr. Kelappan and myself, he should have the courage to do so and he will deserve the honour of his own generation and posterity.

God will take care of the fasting fraternity. Those who fast will do so for defending the truth as they see it, and God of Truth will do what He likes with them. If their fast is in answer to an inner urge, it will be its own reward, and it will be well with them whether the purpose to which it is directed is apparently fulfilled or not.

The same correspondent persists:

But it is all very well for you to talk of the call of God, the conscience, the inner voice and all that. Others also can and do put forth the same claim. What are we, who have no inner voice and who have no God to parade before the public, to do and which are we to believe?

I can only say: You have to believe no one but yourselves. You must try to listen to the inner voice, but if you won’t have the expression ‘inner voice’, you may use the expression ‘dictates of reason’ which you should obey, and if you will not parade God, I have no doubt you will parade something else which in the end will prove to be God for, fortunately, there is no one and nothing else but God in this universe. I would also submit that it is not everyone claiming to act on the urge of the inner voice who has that urge. After all like every other faculty this faculty for listening to the still, small voice within requires previous effort and training perhaps much greater than what is required for the acquisition of any other faculty, and even if out of thousands of claimants only a few succeed in establishing their claim, it is well worth running the risk of having and tolerating doubtful claimants.

So much for the Gujarati correspondent. I must now conclude this statement with a question from a correspondent who writes in English. His is a long letter containing elaborate argument but I think the following epitome correctly represents him:

Hitherto I have known you to be free from any trace of communalism but you now suddenly appear in a communal garb. I could have understood and justified your fast for swaraj or for all-India unity, but I cannot understand this fast on behalf of Hinduism. I have never taken you as a Hindu at all, certainly not as a narrow Hindu. What is there in opening the temples to Harijans, who do not want to go there?

I am glad of this question. I have no desire whatsoever to appear to anyone as other than what I am. I am not ashamed of Hinduism or of the Hindu. I totally deny being narrow. I fancy I could not be held for one single moment by a narrow creed, and it is because the super-imposition of untouchability would make Hinduism a narrow creed that I have rebelled against it, and I would count my life to be a cheap price to pay for the removal of that blot.

I have nothing of the communalist in me, because my Hinduism is all-inclusive. It is not anti-Mussalman, anti-Christian or anti-any-other-religion. But it is pro-Mussalman, pro-Christian and pro-every-other-living faith in the world. To me, Hinduism is but one branch from the same parent trunk, whose roots and whose quality we judge only by the collective strength and quality of the different branches put together, and if I take care of the Hindu branch on which I am sitting and which sustains me surely I am taking care also of the sister branches. If the Hindu branch is poisoned, the poison is likely to spread to others. If that branch withers, the parent will be the weaker for its withering.

If my correspondent and those who think with him have followed me hitherto, they will discover that if God gives me the privilege of dying for this Hinduism of my conception, I shall have sufficiently died for the unity of all and even for swaraj. Finally let me repeat what I have said before now, that the question whether Harijans want to, or would enter into temples, if they were open to them, is irrelevant. The removal of untouchability is not a matter of bestowing patronage on Harijans. It is one of penance and purification by the caste Hindus and one of the penances they have to do is to open the Hindu temples and invite the Harijans to them.

The Bombay Chronicle, 29-11-1932

97. LETTER TO S. MADHAVAN NAIR

November 26, 1932

I appreciate your letter. You should study the statement1 I am issuing today. When I talk of criminal neglect of comrades or reformers, I have no one in particular in mind. If we are true and active, the walls of untruth must come down. It is no use saying that the Zamorin is hardening. You will find that if the temple-goers demand the entry of Harijans to the temple, no power on earth can prevent them. The fact is that our agitation is only now beginning. It must be intense and yet gentle. Not a word need be uttered against the Zamorin. Of course if the law is really against us, it must be mended. And that too cannot be stopped if the public voice is clear and emphatic. We must not lose faith in ourselves or the cause. Am I clear? Do not hesitate to write again, if I am obscure.

Mahadevbhai Diary, Vol. II, p. 287

98. LETTER TO DR. MOHAMMAD ALAM

November 26, 1932

DEAR DR. ALAM,

Your good wife has been keeping me informed through her beautiful Urdu letters of your health. Her beautifully written letters have opened my eyes to the culture among Muslim sisters. I have three such fair correspondents—Begum Alam, Johra Ansari and Raihana Tyabji. Their diction is good and handwriting of two, i.e., Begum Alam and Johra, is like copper-plate. Raihana is a spoilt girl.

1 Vide the preceding item.
Being a poetess, she has not kept up her handwriting to the high level that the other two have. But I must not take up this letter in telling you of my good fortune, part of which, due to your unconditional release, would be now taken away from me, for Begum Alam would now consider herself to be absolved from writing to me. But let her know that I am not going to give her any such easy release. I do hope that your illness has not marred your sense of humour and that you are fit enough to receive nonsensical letters and amuse yourself over them.

You can’t receive any congratulations from me on your ill-earned discharge, but we must make the best of it and fulfil the purpose for which the discharge is granted. You have therefore to hasten to [be] well. On receipt of Begum Alam’s telegram I sent a wire to Dr. Deshmukh. I have wired to you his opinion and of local medical friends who consider you to be fit enough to travel to Bombay. You should do so and let Dr. Deshmukh take charge of you. If an operation is considered by medical advisers to be necessary, I do not believe in waiting. Please let me know what you are doing and what is the exact condition of your health. May God keep you long for His service. Love from us all.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat: G.N. 19

99. LETTER TO JAMNALAL BAJAJ

November 26, 1932

CHI. JAMNALALJI,

I have just been given the happy news of your having been brought here. I hope you did not feel the strain of the journey. Now that you are here, eat all the fruits which doctors recommend for you. How is your cough? I am trying to secure permission to see you. We are all happy.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 2905

1 The addressee was transferred to Yeravda Central Prison, but was confined to another ward. Vide also “Letter to E.E. Doyle”, 22-11-1932.

THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAATMA GANDHI
100. LETTER TO MANIBEHN PATEL

November 26, 1932

CHI. MANI,

The report about Dahyabhai today is even better than yesterday’s. The temperature did not rise above 100.5° and went down to 98.5°. It may, therefore, be said that the temperature is now returning to normal. Doctors hope that it will be completely normal tomorrow or perhaps the day after and will not rise any longer. Dahyabhai is weak of course, but such weakness is only to be expected, and there is no cause at all for anxiety. You need not now make inquiries by wire and I also will not send you any wire.

Father has already written to Karamchand yesterday asking him to send you money. All three of us are well. I have forwarded your letter to Dahyabhai. Why do you not say anything about your health?

Blessings from

BAPU

[From Gujarati]

Bapuna Patro—4: Manibehn Patelne, pp. 93-4

101. LETTER TO RUKMINIDEVI BAZAJ

November 26, 1932

CHI. RUKMINI,

I got your postcard. Keep the resolution which you have made. A person who learns to keep his small resolutions automatically acquires the strength to keep big ones. You must do something to improve your health. I hope there is no cause now to make you inwardly unhappy. If you come here and live with me, I would daily give you fresh goat’s milk to drink. Whose handwriting do you see above? Try and recognize it.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 9146
102. LETTER TO KUSUM GANDHI

November 26, 1932

Persons who are ill bemoan their inability to do anything for others while they themselves have to accept people’s services. This is a grave error. Such a person can do service by thinking pure thoughts, by exacting the minimum of service and by bathing in love those who serve him. He can also serve by keeping cheerful. We should never forget that meditating on God with pure devotion is also service.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 286

103. LETTER TO ANAND SWARUP

November 26, 1932

BHAI ANAND SWARUP,

I have your letter. All the questions are good, but I do not have sufficient time to answer them all. I am not sure when I shall be able to reply through the newspapers, and so I think I may write at least this much.

Ramanama and Omkar are one and the same. Tulsidas too has shown this most clearly. He has extolled the name precisely because one lacks concentration while reciting prayers. All the Shastras assure us and the experience of devotees shows that anyone can ultimately gain concentration of mind if one goes on praying with a feeling of reverence. Closing eyes while chanting the prayer is enough but it is certainly good if the thoughts are centred on the point between the eyebrows.

The assertion that God himself is truth has a drawback that it implies some further qualities possessed by God. That God has many names, a thousand, is quite true. But remembering God as the possessor of many names is fraught with the possibility of a diminution in the significance of the entity to which we wish to offer total surrender. But all other attributes fade away when we proclaim that Truth alone is God; only the idea of truth remains in mind and this is more prevalent in monism. Atheism has no place here as even an atheist accepts existence which is a development of sat. Here truth does not imply merely truthfulness of speech; its meaning here is unity of thought, word and deed and yet more. Whatever is in reality here, what existed in the past and will remain in the future is the substance, truth, Parameshwar\(^1\) and nothing but that.

Now for the scavenging and hygiene of commodes. A commode should be placed in a room which constantly receives sunlight. It should be constructed in such a way as to be removed daily and cleaned. Two buckets should be placed on a wooden frame, one for urine and one for stools. After evacuation of the bowels the excrement should be covered with sand or mud. A bucket full of earth should be kept in the room. If the house is near a field or a garden the excreta should be regularly buried there for being converted into manure. Except during the rainy season, the roof should be removable during the rest of the year so that the room receives sunshine throughout the day. With this arrangement and daily washing out of the buckets and the room, the lavatory will be and should be as clean as a bed-room. This arrangement is very convenient in the villages and it should not prove difficult in towns like Meerut.

Mohandas Gandhi

[PS.]

It is not essential to place the buckets in a wooden frame. They can be placed on a frame made of stone or bricks.

From Hindi: C.W. 9452. Courtesy: Bharat Kala Bhavan

104. INTERVIEW TO “THE TIMES OF INDIA”

November 26, 1932

Certain people who visited Mr. Gandhi this week left Yeravda Jail under the impression that Mr. Gandhi had assured them that once the Guruvayur temple-entry matter had been settled, he would extend his fast in order to compel the temple trustees throughout India to open all temples to the untouchables. They have told their friends about this and the news has spread quickly. This morning I sought Mr. Gandhi’s confirmation or denial of this as I felt that a mistake had occurred somewhere. He immediately denied its accuracy. Mr. Gandhi said:

Such a course on my part would disturb public opinion and would be a breach of faith. Once the fast is over and the temple is open, many other temples are highly likely to be opened to the untouchables because by the time Guruvayur is opened, so much propaganda work will have been done and public opinion will have been so much affected that it is not likely that there will be much hesitation on the part of other trustees to open the temples under their charge. Should it prove otherwise, I should not think of restarting the fast without the greatest deliberation and without an absolutely just cause. So far as I can say now no such fast for a particular item in the anti-untouchability programme is contemplated.

\(^1\) God

In reply to my query as to whether he had any detailed information as to the actual situation in the neighbourhood of the Guruvayur Temple, Mr. Gandhi said that so far as information is available the caste Hindus in the neighbourhood, who were in the habit of visiting the temple, were overwhelmingly in favour of Harijans being admitted on precisely the same terms as they themselves were admitted.

But I also have letters from people in the neighbourhood casting aspersions on the accuracy of my information. I have, therefore, suggested that a quick public referendum of the caste Hindu people within a radius of say ten miles from the temple be taken in the presence of referees, one to be appointed to act on behalf of the reformers and one on behalf of the sanatanists. If it is thought necessary there may also be an umpire. These gentlemen should supervise the taking of votes so as to avoid any chance of undue pressure being exercised, impersonation or any other malpractice.

If, however, as a result of this quick referendum it is found that the information at my disposal was wrong I will unhesitatingly advise Mr. Kelappan to postpone his fast until public opinion is sufficiently educated to warrant the opening of the temple to the Harijans.

Meanwhile he has asked¹ Urmila Devi, sister of the late Mr. C. R. Das to go south and assist in the campaign there.

The Times of India, 28-11-1932

105. LETTER TO DAHYABHAI PATEL

November 27, 1932

CHI. DAHYABHAI.

Today there is even better report of your health.

I said in my letter yesterday that even a sick person can do service. This is how he can do so. He may spend the period of rest in meditating on God and, controlling his impatience and anger, bathe in love those who are nursing him. I know of one example from the West and one from our country. An eighteen-year-old French girl spread so much fragrance during her illness, which ended in her death, that she has been canonized a saint. She now sleeps the sleep to which there is no end.

Ladha Maharaj of Bilkha, near Porbandar, was suffering from leucoderma. He went to the temple of Shiva in Bilkha and took up a seat in an asana posture. For the whole day he would repeat Ramanama or read the Ramayana. In the end he was cured and became a famous kathakar. I had seen him and heard him narrating a katha.

A devotee of God puts to good use even his illness; he does not give way to his illness.

_Blessings from_
BAPU

[From Gujarati]
_Bapuna Patro—4: Manibehn Patelne_, p. 151

106. LETTER TO BHAU PANSE
_November 27, 1932_

CHI. BHAU,

I hope you got my letter in which I wrote to you about your constipation. Do not eat for some time any cereals or pulses which you cannot digest just now. I will write again and make further suggestions after I have more information.

The takli affair is a sad story. I have, of course, written about it. It is strange that anybody should not understand the importance of observing silence. Do what you can without losing patience. Even if there is only one person who is ready to learn, teach him. I should like at least one person to learn the art from you and master it.

_BAPU_

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 6745. Also C.W. 4488. Courtesy: Bhau Panse

---

1 Vide also “An Autobiography—Part I, Chapter X”, 3-2-1929.
2 One who narrates stories from sacred books.
107. LETTER TO BHIKHIBEHN

November 27, 1932

CHI. BHIKHIBEHN,

You have introduced yourself all right. May you be happy in the Ashram and learn service and bhakti with sincere devotion.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 1747

108. LETTER TO DUDHIBEHN V. DESAI

November 27, 1932

CHI. DUDHIBEHN,

I got your letter. Just now, both of you should look after each other and the children. When Valji is completely all right, I shall be happy if your suggestion is acted upon. With whom do you live there? I think it would be very good if you could stay there for a long time.

Blessings from

BAPU

SIT. V. G. DESAI
SANJAUIG, SIMLA HILLS, N.W. RLY.

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 7444. Courtesy: Valji G. Desai

109. LETTER TO GULAB A. SHAH

November 27, 1932

CHI. GULAB,

Learn Gujarati well.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 1731

1 Wife of Valji G. Desai
110. LETTER TO UMADEVI BAJAJ

November 27, 1932

CHI. OM,

You seem to be a very cunning girl. Because you don’t spin fine yarn, you gift away the coarse yarn which you spin and take credit for voluntary service. Is it Vinoba or Janakimaiya who teaches you this?

BAPU

[From Gujarati]

Panchven Putrako Bapuke Ashirvad, p. 335

111. LETTER TO JAMNABEHN GANDHI

November 27, 1932

CHI. JAMNA,

Kusum and all of us are in God’s hands. Don’t even think about [the condition of] my elbow.

BAPU

From Gujarati: C.W. 864. Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi

112. LETTER TO JAMNADAS AND KHUSHALCHAND GANDHI

November 27, 1932

CHI. JAMNADAS,

I got your beautiful letter. Self-depreciation is good to a certain extent, but beyond that it proves harmful. Even a veteran like me may envy your descriptive power. Your language is definitely beautiful. Why, then, do you feel diffident? You have also ability for practical work. May you live long.

Send me the names of your trustees.

I cannot write more at this stage. About the second fast, try to understand as much as you can from my articles. It is true that the people get upset by such news, but such fright is sometimes necessary. It is in fact self-examination. No great reforms can be brought about without self-examination. But the fact is that my fasts are not undertaken by me of my own free will. I believe them to be inspired by God. I am looking forward to your letter about untouchability.

Blessings from
BAPU

RESPECTED MURABBI BHAI,

If you can, I want both of you to send me your sincere blessings for success in my work. To you both,

Humble pranams from
MOHANDAS

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M. U./II

113. LETTER TO LAKSHMI D. DAFDA

November 27, 1932

CHI. LAKSHMI,

I got your letter. If you feel really hungry, I am sure you would relish salted gruel of jowar. I relished it very much. A diet of rotlas and vegetables is better for health than of rice and pulses. In the course of time one comes to relish every kind of food. Did you not eat gruel in jail? Or didn’t you relish rotlas and vegetables?

Maintain excellent health.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10492. Also C.W. 7756. Courtesy: Lalchand Jaichand Bora

114. LETTER TO PURUSHOTTAM GANDHI

November 27, 1932

CHI. PURUSHOTTAM,

I got your letter. I like your idea of going to Wardha. Countless people have benefited by fasting. I know, however, that you did not. I attribute that to my insufficient experience. But you can continue the asana exercises and other remedies. Do go to Lonavala for some time. The air and water of a place certainly have an effect on health. However, I don’t wish to bother you with my suggestions just now. Do what you like, but improve your health.

BAPU

From Gujarati: C.W. 905. Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi
I got your letter. Those who understand the value of self-control will find nothing but interest in the experiments about diet. Who gave the news in papers that in the Ashram you have started eating food supplied to prisoners? No harm, of course, will have been done if this is true. But we take milk, ghee and many similar things. How, then, can we say that we have started eating prison food? If you have been able to trace the source of this rumour, let me know.

You are right when you complain that it is I who am the author of rigid rules and that I, too, am responsible for self-indulgent men coming to the Ashram. I have often said that all of you can oppose such persons and that you are not bound to admit anyone whose needs you cannot meet. I can merely advise. It is entirely for you all whether or not to act upon my advice. I do feel, of course, that though we follow very rigid rules in our own lives, we should be able to meet the needs of anyone who comes to the Ashram but cannot follow these rules, and be generous towards him or her.

I will keep in mind your suggestion. . . .'s1 case is a painful one. “What then will constraint avail?”2

Find time and discuss about Indu3 with Narandas.

I don’t feel worried about Babu4. I am sure he will come round sooner or later.

At the moment I can say that both of you may come when you wish to.5 I don’t know, though, what the position will be tomorrow.

If we can fulfil any pledge, big or small, we should no doubt thank God for that.

---

1 The name has been omitted.
2 Bhagavad Gita, III. 33
3 Pupils in the Ashram school and the kindergarten, respectively
4 ibid
5 The addressee had sought permission to see Gandhiji along with her friend ushila.
Have a talk with Lakshmi. May it not be that she wishes to marry?

_Blessings from_

_BAPU_

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10312. Also C.W. 6751. Courtesy: Premabehn Kantak

116. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

After commencing silence, _November 27, 1932_

CHI. NARANDAS,

I send with this a letter from the school for handicapped children for the information of you all. I have written about that school before. I have happy memories of it. I would very much wish something like that to be done in the Ashram, too.\(^1\) I was half-asleep when I wrote the sentence which I have scored out. I find now that it made no sense. The love which the teachers of that school show to the pupils and their patience are worth emulating. Anybody who wants more information about the school should write to it and get it.

If you know the whereabouts of Khadagbahadursing\(^2\), please inform me.

I hope Kusum gets the postcard which I write to her daily. I could not write yesterday.

It seems after grinding the _jowar_, the flour is not sifted. It should be enough if the _jowar_ is carefully cleaned before grinding it. And the same about wheat. I suppose you get the wheat ground in a flour-mill outside. If we grind it ourselves in the Ashram we should use the flour as it is without sifting it. If these cereals are eaten with all their contents intact, they provide substances which help bowel movement. If anything is removed by sifting, many essential elements are lost.

Purushottam should not wait there till he falls ill. Wherever he goes, he is bound to get opportunities for work and service. He may certainly return when his health has improved a little and can be depended upon better. If your experiments succeed, anybody can

\(^1\) In the source, the sentence which followed has been scored out.

\(^2\) An Ashram inmate come and live in the Ashram. I do feel that you will succeed.

I have already dropped a letter\(^1\) to Bhau. I hope he sees you from time to time.

I have also written to you about Parashuram.

I am sending Madan’s book\(^2\) I forgot to send it immediately.

Tell everybody this about takli. If the spinning-wheel is the king, the takli is the queen. Without a queen, a king is no king, and without the king the queen can do nothing. It should also be realized that without a queen the royal house cannot go on. If the spinning-wheel is for thousands, the takli is for millions. It is surprising that, though Bhau has demonstrated the great power which the takli possesses, all the inmates of the Ashram do not learn to spin on it. In the past people spun even the finest yarn on the takli. The takli which they used was made of bamboo. Even today, the Brahmins in the Madras Presidency spin the very fine yarn required for the sacred thread on the takli. Making a spinning-wheel takes time, but a takli can be made anywhere. It does not get out of order and makes no noise. It is quite possible that the takli will one day win over the spinning-wheel. We, of course, do not wish either to lose ground to the other. On the contrary, we wish to acquire equal and great mastery over both.

If you have heard more news about Joshi, let me have it. Where does Nanibehn\(^3\) live?

Send by registered post the receipt from the Goseva Sangh for Mahadev’s signature.

I hope Kanti is all right now.

Ask Hari-ichchha to write to me.

I have not received Appasaheb’s letter.

You did right in keeping back Maganbhai’s and Raojibhai’s letters. If you feel the slightest doubt about any letter, you should keep it back. I have no desire at all to know anything which should not be communicated to me. Any information concerning matters about which I can say or do nothing cannot be anything but a weight on my mind.

I get letters from Mirabehn regularly. She has again given up

---

2 on fasting
3 Wife of Pannalal Jhaveri, Manager of Ashram goshala salt. Since Kisan has been removed to Thana, Mirabehn is once again without a companion. If we give up attachment to particular individuals as friends, all human beings, and, if we can see more truly, even animals, birds, trees, plants, even stones are our friends. The yoga of non-attachment does teach us that lesson. My weight came to 103 pounds this time.

Blessings from
BAPU

[PS.]
There are 45 letters in all, including the letter from the school for handicapped children.

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./I. Also C.W. 8270. Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi

117. LETTER TO SULOCHANA A. SHAH

November 27, 1932

CHI. SULOCHANA,

You gave a good reply to Mother. If the new food does not agree with you, you should immediately complain. A thief gets into the habit of stealing. Some thieves steal because they see others doing that, and some make stealing their profession.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 1746

118. LETTER TO MANIBEHN PATEL

November 27, 1932

CHI. MANI,

Today’s report is better even than yesterday’s. [Dahyabhai’s] temperature had gone down to 97.5° and did not rise above 101.5°. He sleeps well. You should devote all your attention to your work.

Blessings from
BAPU

[PS.]
All the friends jointly bear the expenditure on account of Dahyabhai.

[From Gujarati]

Bapuna Patro—4: Manibehn Patelne, p. 94
119. LETTER TO LILAVATI ASAR

YERAVDA MANDIR
November 27, 1932

CHI. LILAVATI,

I have your letter. You will manage if you do not work beyond your capacity. A humble servant is one who does not proclaim her service to the world and is not proud of it even in her heart. A humble servant does not seek respect from people. Rather, she takes insults, that is to say she suffers them. She does not become angry with people. A humble servant will not be a burden to anyone, because she knows that she renders service in order to make herself pure. She does not do it to oblige anyone. A humble servant will show herself as she is.

About the vows, you must read twice or thrice. If you still do not understand, you can ask. In the absence of anything specific what can I write to you?

Be careful. May God protect you.

Blessings from

BAPU

From the Gujarati original: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

120. LETTER TO PARVATI

November 27, 1932

CHI. PARVATI,

So at long last I have a letter from you. What way can I suggest? Do as Narandas advises.

Blessings from

BAPU

From the Gujarati original: S.N. 33120
121. LETTER TO AMTUSSALAAM

November 27, 1932

DEAR DAUGHTER AMTUL SALAAM,

I have your long letter. I can write only a short one. As regards going to Delhi and all other matters, do whatever Narandas suggests. You must be convinced that sick persons too can serve. I have mentioned two individuals¹ in the letter to Kusum. Read it. Give up thinking of too many matters. May God keep you safe and fulfil all your wishes to render service.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Urdu: G.N. 265

122. FRAGMENT OF LETTER TO MANMATHA ROY ²

[Before November 28, 1932]

I quite agree with you that no one should be treated as untouchable, and I am sure that when we have ceased to treat forty millions of Hindus as untouchables, we shall cease to treat Christians and Mussalmans as such.

Amrita Bazar Patrika, 30-11-1932

123. LETTER TO ASHRAM BOYS AND GIRLS

November 28, 1932

DEAR BOYS AND GIRLS,

Do you know the reasons for the changes in food which the Ashram has introduced? Observe the effect of the new diet on your body and mind and write to me about it.

Bhau says that none of you likes to spin on takli. You can produce a sufficient quantity of yarn and of good quality with takli, ¹ The available text of the letter to Kusum Gandhi, p.75, though it is on the same subject, does not contain the names. Vide also “Letter to Dahyabhai Patel”, “Letter to Dahyabhai Patel”, 27-11-1932.

² The addressee had asked Gandhi whether his campaign against untouchability was universal in its application or limited to Hindu untouchables alone.
³ The letter was published under the date-line, “Balurghat, November 28”.

88 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAATMA GANDHI only if you spin on it with concentration in silence. Bhau believes that you are not capable of either. You cannot stop talking even for a few minutes. If this is true, it is very bad. Takli is very much superior to the spinning-wheel in teaching us silence. You should know the full power of takli and must benefit from it. It is certain that a person who cannot live in solitude, remain silent or work with concentration can never be a true brahmachari. And all of you are brahmacharis at present. Discuss this with Bhau and see that every one of you does the takli yajna.

BAPU

[PS.]
This has been written on my silence-day morning, immediately after the prayer.

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./II

124. LETTER TO E. E. DOYLE

November 28, 1932

DEAR COL. DOYLE,

I have today astounding news that a co-worker of mine, Sjt.
Appasaheb Patwardhan, a civil disobedience prisoner in Ratnagiri Jail, is semi-fasting because he and some other prisoners who were permitted to do Bhangi work have been suddenly deprived of it under your orders. My fear is that this order was a result of my having said in the course of our conversations that your policy was inconsistent in that you were allowing non-Bhangi prisoners to do Bhangi work in the Ratnagiri Prison and you would not allow it in this. It is difficult for me to understand why those prisoners who volunteer to do such work should be prevented from doing it. Surely you do not want forcibly to keep up untouchability in prisons when it is crumbling to pieces outside. Appasaheb is an M.A. of the Bombay University, is a great social reformer and a man of character whom any State would be proud to have as a citizen. Service of untouchables is an article of faith with him. He underwent a fast in 1930 for the above reason in that very jail. I had even then to intervene on his behalf. If I am misinformed about the present position you will let me know what it

1 Appasaheb Patwardhan was not allowed to spin; vide “Letter to E.E. Doyle”, 19-1-1931 and ; 20-1-1931.
really is. If I am correctly informed I would ask you in view of the circumstances brought to your notice please to telegraph instructions that my friend and his associates may be allowed to resume Bhangi work under whatever written guarantee as to its voluntary nature you may deem fit to take from them.

Though I am a prisoner, you will not expect me to see a comrade dying by inches, not for any crime, not for any indulgence he desires, but for deprivation of humanitarian service for the prosecution of which Government have recognized the necessity of giving me special facilities.

Here perhaps you would allow me to remind you that during this incarceration and the two previous ones in my own humble manner I have on several occasions helped the authorities to preserve prison discipline. I mention this fact not in order that it may be counted as a merit. I gave that assistance as a matter of duty imposed upon me by the law of satyagraha. I mention it here in order that you or the Government may know that in seeking relief about prisoner friends I am not guilty of any officious interference with the administration.

I am sure that you will treat this as a matter of urgency involving as it does the possibility of great damage being done to a fellow-being under your custody.

Yours sincerely,

Home Department, Political, File No. 31/108-Poll., 1932, pp. 11-2.

Courtesy: National Archives of India

125. LETTER TO KESHAV GANDHI

November 28, 1932

CHI. KESHU,

I got the oranges, the slivers and the takli [sent by you]. I ate the oranges as if they had been sent by Maganlal. Vallabhbhai and Mahadev also ate some. I feel that the orange plants still require some special manure, for the oranges were not sufficiently juicy and sweet. You should also get our soil analysed to see what it lacks.

I have completely stopped spinning for the time being because of the pain in the elbow. I, therefore, cannot use the slivers and the spindle.
I will write to you when I use them. Nonetheless I had reached 54 counts with your slivers.

BAPU

From Gujarati: C.W. 9469. Courtesy: Radhabehn Choudhri

126. APPEAL TO PUBLIC

November 29, 1932

I find people have now begun to come to see me merely for darshan, as it is called. I am sorry I had to refuse to meet some of them today.

Under the relaxation of restrictions on interviews, I may see people only in connection with bonafide untouchability work and no other. I would, therefore, ask all concerned to take note of the limitation, and even in connection with untouchability work only those should come who have some important work to be done or consultation to be held. The pressure on my time is already proving greater than I can cope with. Wherever possible, it would be better if a previous appointment is made.

The Bombay Chronicle, 30-11-1932

127. LETTER TO HOME SECRETARY, GOVERNMENT OF BOMBAY

November 29, 1932

THE SECRETARY, GOVERNMENT OF BOMBAY
HOME DEPARTMENT
DEAR SIR,

I am grateful to Government for letting me meet Sheth Jamnalal Bajaj soon after his admission to this prison. The Government now know the relations that subsist between him and me. Both he and I asked the Superintendent at the interview today whether we could meet each other frequently and he told us that he had permission only for that single interview. If Sheth Jamnalal had not been suffering from a bad disease, and without the cause to be just mentioned, I should have been satisfied with an occasional interview like the one I had today. But seeing that he has been specially brought to Yeravda for the sake of his health, it would be putting an undue strain on both of us if we were not allowed to see each other frequently, of course subject to restrictions as to conversation. I have no desire to hold any political conversation with him. But I should want to discuss with him problems of untouchability, as he was Chairman of the Anti-Untouchability Board appointed by the Congress in 1929 and he had specialized on the question of temple-entry, having himself been instrumental in opening to the Harijans his own family temple and in having a number of other temples opened in many parts of India.

His special medical adviser Dr. Modi has advised distraction from brooding over his illness. For him to be interested in the untouchability problem would be itself like a tonic. Indeed he was tempted to discuss the problem today, but it was impossible for me to do within the limited time allowed for the interview.

Alike therefore for the sake of his health and of the work for which the Government of India have given me facilities, I request permission to have frequent interviews with Sheth Jamnalal Bajaj subject to the restrictions as aforesaid.

I remain,

Yours faithfully,

Bombay Secret Abstracts, Home Department, Special Branch, File No. 800 (40)(2), Pt. I, p. 399; also G.N. 3871

128. LETTER TO A BENGALI YOUTH

November 29, 1932

You should make a fixed resolution to be good. Always pray to God to make you good and you will be good.

1 The letter was in reply to the addressee’s which read: “I am neck-deep in sin. My passion is roused on seeing women and I have also got into the habit of stealing. Save me.”
129. A LETTER

November 29, 1932

There is no institution but has some evil attaching to it. But my opinion is that in spite of the undeniable evil attaching to the temples, the millions who visit them are unaffected by the evil and derive the comfort they need from them.

130. LETTER TO A SINDHI DOCTOR

November 29, 1932

We must differ as to the interpretation of the Gita. You cannot keep your cake and eat it at the same time. Gita or no Gita, if you must have secret remedies not for the benefit of humanity but for your own pocket, there is no surrender to God, or reducing yourself to zero. Look at the Bhangis, how they eke out their living by doing unclean work for the community. If you will reduce yourself to nothing you have to do voluntarily and joyously the kind of service that the Bhangis do and at the same time give the poor and the afflicted the benefit of your medical knowledge free of charge. Do not call this impractical because many have been able to do it successfully.

131. LETTER TO VASANTRAM SHASTRI

November 29, 1932

Somebody sent me a copy of your pamphlet. I went through parts of it. I never thought even in my dreams that you could write and tell such lies. What you are doing will not harm me, but don't you think, it harms Vaishnava dharma?

[From Gujarati]

1 The addressee had raised the question of the impurity of temples.

2 The letter was in reply to the addressee’s which read: “How can I surrender myself to God? I have to keep my remedies secret and if I do not I will lose my income.”

3 Sathina Sath Sutro (‘Sixty maxims from a Sexagenarian’, suggesting that Gandhiji had become senile.)
132. LETTER TO PRABHAVATI

November 29, 1932

CHI. PRABHAVATI,

What can I write to you? I am tired of writing to you over and over again. My letters do not reach you at all; hence how long can I go on writing? Why should you take it to heart if you do not get the letters I write from this end? Why can’t you be confident in the belief that I can never forget you or keep you without a letter? You regularly received letters from me when you were outside, there is no reason to suppose that I no longer write to you. So forget your anguish and console yourself by imagining our predicament if we were not allowed to write at all.

One’s true support is not mother, father or anyone else but God alone.

I am keeping good health. My weight is 103 lb. and I take milk, bread and vegetables. The milk intake is about 21 pounds.

Vallabhbhai and Mahadev too are keeping well. Jayaprakash is all right and has excellent company. I hope that this reaches you and that on getting this you will write whatever you wish to.

Blessings from

BAPU

PRABHAVATI DEVI
A CLASS PRISONER, CENTRAL JAIL, LUCKNOW
From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 3426

133. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA

November 29, 1932

BHAI KRISHNACHANDRA,

I did receive your letter and sent a brief reply. You will get it now if you have not already received it. Make an effort to find the answers to your doubts from my letters. You cannot have satisfaction by merely addressing every doubt to me, you must try to own heart. I suppose you are aware that I have no time left over from my work for Harijans.

MOHANDAS GANDHI

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4265

DEAR COL. DOYLE,

I thank you for your prompt reply to my letter regarding Appasaheb Patwardhan, but I am sorry for the attitude you have taken up. Since the matter has gone up to the Government, I would like to draw their attention to the following facts:

1. Appasaheb Patwardhan is wedded to the idea that he should work side by side with Bhangis and it is most repugnant to him to have to observe in prisons untouchability which he does not do outside.

2. He had to fast in 1930 for this very reason.

3. I must adhere to my statement that Appasaheb Patwardhan had been actually doing Bhangi work in the Ratnagiri Jail, until he was stopped.

4. There was no question of his issuing any threat and, in my humble opinion, statement of his moral claim and consequence of rejection of that claim should not be considered as a threat.

5. In considering a moral or religious question, the question of shortage of labour does not arise.

6. In my opinion it is unjust to say of an absolutely docile prisoner like Appasaheb Patwardhan who has been always prepared to do any task asked of him that he is fighting for “a particular variety of work”. He wants to do Bhangi work in addition to whatever task may be given to him.

7. There are many prisoners in Yeravda, including us three, who are anxious to do their own conservancy work, and it is because you have not looked upon it with favour that I have myself remained silent and with difficulty prevented my co-workers from making it an issue of conscience.

8. As you are yourself aware of the conversation about this matter and about hand-spinning by civil disobedience prisoners has remained in abeyance because of the more important matters arising, and absorbing my time and attention. But these two are matters of deepest importance to many of us.

9. With due deference I cannot help repeating that to prevent Appasaheb Patwardhan from voluntarily working side by side with his Bhangi co-prisoners because he does not belong to the Bhangi caste is a perpetuation in prisons of the bar of untouchability when that bar is being swiftly removed outside prison walls.

---

I would therefore implore you personally to revise the uncompromising attitude you have taken up and to let humble Appasaheb Patwardhan and his associates do conservancy work. Believe me that there is no defiance in their request. Some of us who are convinced civil resisters leave our resistance outside prison walls and having entered them are anxious to carry out and promote prison discipline to the utmost extent that our conscience would allow and we do so in order to show that our resistance is always civil and never incivil or criminal.

But if I cannot make you or Government appreciate this obvious and just position, I have with the utmost regret to inform you that from Saturday the 3rd proximo, so far as I am concerned, I must join Appasaheb in his protest and respectfully claim to do my own conservancy work, and if he does not get the relief, I must put myself not on reduced rations but on a complete fast. I would ask you not to treat this as a threat, but as a human being to appreciate the feelings of a fellow-being. I have already hardened my heart, but I have not hardened it so as to see an honourable colleague wasting away in defence of a cherished principle without my at least sharing his agony and sacrifice. Believe me it is no pleasure to me to have to write such letters.

Yours sincerely,

Home Department, Political, File No. 31/108-Poll., 1932, pp.16-7. Courtesy: National Archives of India

135. LETTER TO F. MARY BARR

November 30, 1932

MY DEAR MARY,

You have asked for only a postcard, but that won’t be adequate for me. Because I do not find a particular thing helpful for me, I may not be indifferent about others and not take the trouble of knowing whether it is helpful for them. I know that that particular form of idolatry is helpful for millions, not because they are lessdeveloped than I am, but because they are differently constituted. What must not be forgotten about me is that not only do I not consider idol-worship to be a sin, but I know that in some form or other it is a condition of our being. The difference between one form of worship and another is a difference in degree and not in kind. Mosque-going or church-going is a form of idol-worship. Veneration of the Bible, the Koran, the Gita and the like is idol-worship and even if you don’t use a book or a building but draw a picture of divinity in your imagination and attribute certain qualities, it is again idol-worship and I refuse to call the worship of the one who has a stone image a grosser form of worship. Learned judges have been known to have such images in their own homes. A philosopher like Pandit Malaviya will not eat his meal without offering worship to the household deity. It would be both arrogant and ignorant to look down upon such worship as superstition. Again in the imagination of the worshipper, God is in a consecrated stone and not in the other stones lying about him. Even so, the sanctuary in a Church is more sacred than any other place in it. You can multiply for yourself instances of this character. All this is a plea not for laxity in thought or worship, but it is a plea for a definite recognition of the fact that all forms of honest worship are equally good and equally efficient for the respective worshippers. Time is gone for the exclusive possession of right by an individual or a group. God is no respector of forms or words, for He is able to penetrate our actions and our speech and read and understand our thoughts, even when we do not understand them ourselves and it is first our thoughts that matter to him.

I am glad you are with Maria and your picture of her family which includes our four-footed kinsfolk is instructive and it is just like her. I do not mind her not writing to me. Whilst I welcome her letters when she has anything to say to me, I do not want her to steal a single minute merely for writing to me because somebody else is writing.

I am glad you have fourteen months’ grace. I like your programme. So far as I recall you have not been to Santiniketan. You ought to go there at least. I do not want to harness you for untouchability work before you have gone through your touring. Untouchability work is a long programme and you can be fitted in whenever you are quite ready and you have a definite call from within. I would like you also quietly to study this movement in all its ramifications and assimilate the spirit lying behind it, and if you give yourself to it I want you to do it with your whole heart without any mental reservation. I want you therefore not to hesitate to place all your doubts before me and offer yourself for the service when both your head and heart are completely satisfied. Of course in connection with the untouchability work you can see me any time you like.

Please share this with Maria. My love to both of you in which Mahadev joins.

Yours,
BAPU

[PS.]
I have not revised this.

From a photostat: G.N. 5986. Also C.W. 3313. Courtesy: F. Mary Barr

136. LETTER TO CHITTOOR RAJAGOPALACHARI

November 30, 1932

DEAR FRIEND,

I thank you for your letter. Your suggestion puts the movement in a different frame from what I conceived. Untouchability is an evil of caste Hindus’ creation. They have, therefore, to remove the evil and everything else will follow from it. The purification of Harijans—if ‘purification’ is the word that can be used in this connection—will follow removal of untouchability. It must not be a condition precedent for removal. But whilst I would not like to identify myself with a movement such as you suggest, you are free to take it up and it will be a step in advance, if Harijans are admitted after going through the ceremonies prescribed by you. Of course I remember our meetings and etc., etc.

In whatever you do, please confer with your namesake.¹

Yours sincerely,
SJT. C. RAJAGOPALACHARI
CHITTOOR

The Hindu, 21-1-1933

¹ The addressee, in his appeal to C. Rajagopalachari, had said: “I put it to Mahatma Gandhi that this authorized method of samskaras and temple-entry thereafter will ‘scientifically and automatically lift the status of the Harijans. . . .'”
137. LETTER TO T. CHINNIAH

November 30, 1932

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter. It is my firm opinion that the Yeravda Pact is much better than the Premier’s decision. It gives many more seats than the Premier’s decision and it provides against the election of any candidate who is not in the first place approved by the majority of Harijans. So far as the vow is concerned, I suppose I must be allowed to judge whether it was broken or kept. I am certainly not in favour of special electorates for merchants, landlords and others.

Yours sincerely,

S. T. CHINNIAH, S.M.P.S.
9 SARASWATHI VILLAS
PONNANGI STREET
NUNGAMBKAM
MADRAS

From the original: C.W. 5071

138. LETTER TO MANIBEHN PATEL

November 30, 1932

CHI. MANIBEHN,

I enclose Dr. Kanuga’s letter received today. You will see from it that there is no cause for anxiety about Dahyabhai. The fever may persist for a few days more but that does not matter. We three are well.

Blessings from

BAPU

[From Gujarati]

Bapuna Patro—4: Manibehn Patelne, p. 95

139. LETTER TO ANASUYABEHN SARABHAI

YERAVDA MANDIR,
November 30, 1932

CHI. ANASUYABEHN,

You have done well in sending the plan of the workers’ houses. The whole scheme is indeed very good. I am sure there will be some conditions attached to the occupation of these houses. For if there is

1 Convener of All-India Adi-Dravida Mahajana Sabha no restriction on the number of persons staying, the best-built houses will become like slums. If there are any documents bearing on the workers’ houses please let me have them.

Blessings from
BAPU

SHRI ANASUYABEHN SARABHAI
MIRzapur
AHMEDABAD

From a photostat of the Gujarati: S. N. 32834

140. LETTER TO NARAYAN M. KHARE

November 1932

CHI. PANDITJI,

The Bavas have proved quite a challenge for us. You did right in going. That temple also will be opened to Harijans one day. However much disheartened you may feel by the atmosphere in the surrounding villages, you should continue to visit them. Love will melt all knots.

BAPU

From Gujarati: C.W. 238. Courtesy: Lakshmibehn N. Khare

141. TELEGRAM TO U. GOPALA MENON

[December 1, 1932]

YOUR WIRE. GLAD REFERENDUM BEING TAKEN METHODICALLY.
HOPE THOSE WHO VOTE WILL HAVE THE ISSUE CLEAR BEFORE THEM.

The Hindu, 6-12-1932

1 From “Diary, 1932”, entry under this date
142. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

November 30/December 1, 1932

CHI. NARANDAS,

I hope you read the slips to Radha and Kusum which I sent in today’s mail. Call both of them and ask them everything, and then literally follow the advice of the doctor whom you have consulted. Both you and I can then stop worrying. We are not masters of life or death, nor are doctors, but we can try. We may try as our reason guides us and then be unconcerned.

It is nothing but God’s kindness that . . . ' left. You had actually sanctioned him leave, and it was pure chance that you detained him afterwards for some days. It was as though God had willed that he should be tested. Such things have often happened in the history of the Ashram. Evil got exposed of itself.

I indeed wish to write at great length about food, but I don’t think I shall be able to do that. I shall have to be brief. It is not right to serve rotlas of bajri every day. If rotlas of bajri and jowar and rotlis of wheat are served by turn, the inmates would get the benefit of all the three cereals. Every time the grain taken out for consumption should be weighed and the rotlas also should be of uniform weight. What the weight of each rotla should be, you will be able to decide only through experience. If you follow this practice, everyone will be able to know how much he should eat. Here the smallest rotla weighs six ounces. If people wish to derive the full benefit from the morning gruel, they should eat nothing else with it. The quantity of flour in the gruel should be measured. If the quantity of water also is measured, it will be easy to know how much flour each helping contained. If a person is not satisfied with one helping, he may by all means have another, but nobody should exceed the limit that he has fixed for himself. He may eat less sometimes if he has not enough appetite. But he should not exceed the fixed limit even if he feels more hungry than usual. This will do him no harm.

If the grain is properly cleaned before being ground, the flour

1 The name has been omitted.
of every cereal should be used without sifting. I approve of Dr. Talwalkar’s suggestion for increasing the quantity of milk and ghee, but not at all of his suggestion for including chutney. Even those who eat chutney suffer from constipation. If you wish, you may make this experiment. You may prepare chutney for those who suffer from rather severe constipation. Let them try it. If the effect on them is undoubtedly beneficial, you may try it, if you wish, for others. In preparing the chutney, you should use black pepper instead of chillies. Read the letter which I shall write to Dr. Talwalkar about this. My own experience of chutney is not encouraging. Before I went to England, I may say that I used to eat pepper and chillies in fairly good quantities. At that time good food was my chief interest in life. In England, we get extract of chillies. I must have eaten it for about a month. I had to suffer for that. Afterwards, that is, in about a month or so, the pattern of my life changed and I left off eating spices, never to eat them again. Since then I have experimented on hundreds of persons, but I do not remember any case in which spices were used as a medicine with beneficial effect. Personally I am convinced that constipation is a sign of indigestion. Food which is digested does not cause constipation. All food leaves some residue and, if it is properly digested, the bowels throw them out. However, I don’t press you to follow my advice. It is well-known that spices are inimical to physical celibacy. For that reason, too, we should think a hundred times before including spices in our food. We may certainly serve any spices purely as medicine for a limited period. It is possible that, so long as they act as medicine, they may not endanger celibacy. For instance, if a person feels extremely cold, pure brandy will make him warm but will not intoxicate him, for the power of the brandy will have been used up in overcoming the cold. I think I have dwelt long enough on chutney. Dr. Talwalkar’s suggestion about including ground-nut should not be acted upon in any circumstances. I have experimented with ground-nut more than anybody else is likely to have done. It has been tried for a long time even in the Ashram. On the whole the result was discouraging. In the current experiment, you seem to have excluded dal altogether. It is all right if the effect has been good. For checking the effect, you should get everybody weighed, and should know from each person how he or she feels. It is for you to judge whether you can cope with all this work. If you do not get the fullest co-operation of most of the inmates for this experiment, you would do better to abandon it. If all of them co-operate, probably you will not feel it as a burden.

I should be happy if you can solve the problem of Ramji.

About other things, I will write in the weekly letter on Monday. Every inmate of the Ashram should understand one thing, namely, that he should eat or munch nothing between the three meals which are served. If anybody does so, even cuts a green tamarind or plucks any bhaji from the beds to eat, he will have violated the vow of non-stealing and jeopardized the success of the experiment.

December 1, 1932

Give Dr. Talwalkar’s letter to him after reading it and only if you approve of it.

I send with this a cutting about the primus stove. Ask everybody to read it. Isn’t Keshu keeping good health?

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M. M. U./I. Also C.W. 8271. Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi
143. LETTER TO MIRABEHN

Unrevised

December 1, 1932

CHI. MIRA.

Again this is Thursday morning before 4 o’clock. Mahadev is taking his time so as not to hurry you.¹ I should never have taken you to be 40 unless someone had told me so. Let us hope you are at least 40 times as wise as you were when you were a baby one year old and if we increase in wisdom moment by moment then the increase becomes incalculable if not infinite. May the increase in yours be infinite!

For your health, I have shared with you the new knowledge I have gained. You will now find out what is good for you. Add to your food some salad, lettuce, ripe tomatoes or tender leaves of some bhaji. It is undoubtedly good for the bowels. But you should know best what is good for you.

Verrier² came back about a month ago. He sees nobody and has given himself exclusively to good work. He is, I believe, quite well. Shamrao³ is ailing and had to go to a hospital.

Tilakam⁴ is at the Ashram. He is not quite strong. I have told him he can take up untouchability work whenever he likes. His desire is to work among the Christian untouchables.

Your time-table reads crowded. You should have more relaxation than you have given yourself. I do not think you should be rigid with yourself. There should be a feeling not of perpetual fatigue but of freshness. Are you giving yourself ample sleep? There should be no brooding.

For me, I have to report an extraordinary result. From 103 I have jumped to 106 lb. Dried milk continues. But there is not a corresponding increase in energy or a decrease in the pain in the elbows. Even the absence of spinning has yet made no difference. Therefore addition of weight may not be an unmixed blessing. I am carefully watching this sudden development.

¹ In Bapu’s Letters to Mira, Mirabehn explains: “Not to hurry Bapu’s Letter to me.”
² Verrier Elwin
³ Shamrao Hivale, a close friend of Verrier Elwin
⁴ An Ashram inmate
All my reading is suspended. Nothing but correspondence and interviews. Ba has gone to the South taking Velabehn\textsuperscript{1} and Bal\textsuperscript{2} with her. Urmila Devi has also been sent there. There is no doubt that Hindus have never thought about their religion so much as they are now doing.

I must stop now. It is past 5.30 a.m. I must go to the ‘library’ and then to the walk.

Love from us all.

BAPU

[PS.]

Hope you have received the book on Buddhism.

From the original: C.W. 6252. Courtesy: Mirabehn. Also G.N. 9718

144. LETTER TO NANALAL K. JASANI

December 1, 1932

BHAI NANALAL\textsuperscript{3},

I have received the Government’s permission today to see you. I had sent the following names:

Manekbai Mehta\textsuperscript{4} Nanalalbai
Chhaganlal Mehta\textsuperscript{5} Ratubhai Sheth\textsuperscript{9}
Lilavati Mehta\textsuperscript{6} Manilal Revashankar\textsuperscript{10}
Manjula\textsuperscript{7} Ratilal Desai\textsuperscript{11}
Mayashankar\textsuperscript{8} Jayakunvar Doctor\textsuperscript{12}
Chhotalal Shah

\textsuperscript{1} Wife of Lakshmidas Asar \textsuperscript{2} Bal Kalelkar, son of D. B. Kalelkar \textsuperscript{3} Dr. Pranjivan Mehta’s business partner and manager \textsuperscript{4} Dr. Mehta’s wife \textsuperscript{5} Dr. Mehta’s eldest son
\textsuperscript{6} Chhaganlal’s wife
\textsuperscript{7} Wife of Maganlal, Dr. Mehta’s youngest son \textsuperscript{8} Dr. Mehta’s business partner
\textsuperscript{9} Lilavati’s father
\textsuperscript{10} Dr. Mehta’s nephew
\textsuperscript{11} Dr. Pranjivan Mehta’s Mehta’s son-in law \textsuperscript{12} Dr. Mehta’s daughter \textsuperscript{13} Wife of Ratilal, Dr. Mehta’s second son
\textsuperscript{14} Champa’s father
It was not necessary to send the names of Champa, Ratilal and Prabhashankar, since they had already been approved. You may consider now whether you will come first or after Chhaganlal and Maganlal have seen me. If you have not already started in reply to my wire, kindly spare me as much as you can, as you know how busy I am these days in Harijan work. However, you need not spare me in respect of any matter for which my advice is essential.

Blessings from
BAPU

From Gujarati: C.W. 9470

145. LETTER TO BECHARDAS J. DOSHI

December 1, 1932

BHAI BECHARDAS,

I got your postcard. I cannot write more about Punjabhai than I have already done. You must have seen what I wrote.¹ You can use it. I had got the books sent by you, except Sanmati-prakaran. I hope your health is improving. There is no change in the condition of my elbow.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 1343

146. LETTER TO SHAMJI MARWADI

December 1, 1932

BHAI SHYAMJI,

I got your letter and the copies of replies received by you. Send a copy also of the final reply that you receive.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 5207

¹ Vide "Long Live Punjabhai!", 23-10-1932.
147. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

December 2, 1932

CHI, NARANDAS,

There can be only one explanation for Bhau getting fever, namely, that he must have started eating cereals too early. If my guess is correct, he should very strictly refrain from cereals for about a month. That is, he should only drink milk and eat fruit and vegetables. Among vegetables, he should eat only greens and not roots and tubers. He should start eating cereals only when he passes stool without difficulty. A person who knows how to resume eating gradually after a seven-day fast will never get fever.

Madan’s book had been misplaced and I could not find it till today. I am now sending it by registered book-post. Bhau should read most of it carefully, but chiefly the explanation on pages 149 and 173 of the method of ending a fast. It is an extremely easy book to read and he will be able to finish it in a short time. I am sure you also will read it. The person who has sent the book about Zanzibar has written something with pencil on the inside of the cover. It is worth reading to understand his faith and love.

I hope Kusum and Radha are all right now. I hope I shall get news about Puratan Buch in your next letter. How did Jamna get an attack of asthma so suddenly?

Blessings from

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M. M. U./1. Also C.W. 8272. Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi

148. LETTER TO RUKMINIDEVI BAJAJ

December 2, 1932

CHI, RUKMINI,

You write regularly now. You will see that you will not be tempted any more to postpone writing through lethargy, nor will you forget. You are ill there and Radha is ill in the Ashram. We should be cheerful even in illness. We should exercise as much self-control as we can and leave the rest to God. Observe this one rule that you should not exert yourself so long as you continue to get fever. How is the ventilation in the house? Chhaganlal will now be brought to me to help me. . . . 1 is all right.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 9147

149. LETTER TO HEMPRABHA DAS GUPTA

December 2, 1932

CHI. HEMPRABHA,

I have not written to you recently because you are receiving all the news as Satisbabu is here. I continue to receive news of you. I have explained to Satisbabu regarding those localities. Your work 2 is very much to my liking.

You have raised a pertinent question about the Ashram and the answer is a simple one. If we wish to run the Ashram only through disciplined men and women, we must admit only those who are willing to exercise self-control. They will come with full understanding of the rules and willingness to abide by them. We cannot impose our rules on those who come simply for earning a living. Their status is only that of employees. But we must not treat them as employees. We must regard them as our companions and keep them as long as they perform their duties conscientiously. The problem is that even those who come with the intention of observing regulations turn slack.
Discrimination is essential on such occasions. In the name of God and by His Grace we must do all, we can.

Do you follow all this? If not, ask me again.
No time to write more.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 1693

1 A word is scored out, probably by the jail authorities.
2 The addressee was working among the Harijans.
150. LETTER TO RAIHANA TYABJI

December 2, 1932

BELOVED DAUGHTER RAIHANA,

I was glad to see a letter from you after a long interval. Father had told me that you had gone to Ahmedabad. We should be equal-minded towards both joy and sorrow. We should regard illness, too, as a gift from God. I wrote to Dr. Alam that I had among my correspondents three who wrote to me in Urdu: Zohra, Begum Alam and Raihana. The first two write Urdu like copper-plate, but Raihana, being a poet, writes in beautiful handwriting of her own. But I see that this time you also have sent copper-plate.

Have you ceased to be my poetess daughter now? Is it only a Rabindranath who can both be a poet and write copper-plate, or will Raihana also follow his example now? May God give you peace of mind.

A thousand Blessings from

BAPU

BIBI RAIHANA
C/O D. D. NANAVATI, ESQ., I.C.S.
POONA

From a photostat of the Urdu: S.N. 9665

151. INTERVIEW TO DEPRESSED CLASSES LEADERS

[December 2, 1932]

Mr. Gandhi heartily welcomed them. They told Mr. Gandhi that the movement for temple-entry was making slow progress in Ahmedabad; only two temples having been so far thrown open to them. Mr. Gandhi admitted that he knew about it, and advised them to see what the local Anti-Untouchability League could do in the matter. Mr. Gandhi added that his efforts were, however, directed to that end, as he regarded temple-entry as essential for the removal of untouchability.

The interviewers agreed with the view, already expressed by Mr. Gandhi, that untouchability should be abolished by law. They also expressed satisfaction at their

1 Vide “Letter to Dr. Mohammad Alam”, 26-11-1932.
2 Kikabhai, Dudhabhai, Lavjibhai and three others
3 From “Diary, 1932”, entry under this date having secured Mr. Birla as the President of the Anti-Untouchability League, through the influence of Mr. Gandhi.

In conclusion, the interviewers requested Mr. Gandhi to contribute articles on the uplift of the Depressed Classes in the vernacular magazine Vijay which they had recently started. Mr. Gandhi said that he was getting a copy of that magazine, and promised to contribute articles to it.

One of the interviewers drew a sketch of Mr. Gandhi while the interview was going on, and asked Mr. Gandhi to sign it. Mr. Gandhi refused to do so, saying that it was against the rules of the jail.

The Hindu, 6-12-1932

152. TELEGRAM TO K. MADHAVAN NAIR

[December 3, 1932]

YOUR TELEGRAM. MAY GOD REVEAL TRUTH.

GANDHI

The Hindu, 7-12-1932

153. LETTER TO E. E. DOYLE

December 3, 1932

DEAR COL. DOYLE,

At about 7.15 this morning Major Mehta handed me the following message:

Mr. Gandhi may be allowed to do his own conservancy work if he wants to. But he should be informed that Government cannot accept his intervention on behalf of convict Appasaheb Patwardhan.

It seems to me that Government have not appreciated the position. The permission to me to do my own conservancy work is of little moment. Relief for Appasaheb Patwardhan is the chief and central thing. My fast began this morning as per my letter to you and, I am sorry to say, has to continue till relief is granted to Appasaheb Patwardhan and his associates. It should be understood that they have

---

1 The addressee had sought Gandhiji’s blessings in a telegram informing him that anti-untouchability campaign had been started in Guruvayur at a conference opened by Kasturba.

2 From “Diary, 1932”, entry under this date

asked not for doing their own conservancy work, but for joining the regular file and this they have done as a matter of sacred principle. Government should also know that it is not Bhangis alone who are given this work but others described as low castes are compelled to render this service although they have never done it outside prisons. Reformers like Appasaheb Patwardhan who were civil disobedience prisoners in 1930 in Ratnagiri could not suffer the misery of non-Bhangi prisoners being forced against their will to do the work and submitted to the authorities that they should be allowed to replace such men. This was, in my opinion, a laudable offer which the authorities should have gladly, if not thankfully, accepted. It was a voluntary offer made to help the Government. Meanwhile the Delhi Pact\textsuperscript{1} came. The same offer was renewed this time and these prisoners were permitted to do the work. Suddenly orders seem to have been sent to prohibit the work. Hence Appasaheb Patwardhan’s putting himself on reduced diet. I ventured to seek relief as soon as I came to know of this tragedy.

In rejecting my humble and helpful intervention, Government seem to have suddenly reversed the policy which they adopted as early as 1922-23 in connection with me and have continued ever since. When during my first incarceration in 1922—and that as a convict—I sought to intervene on behalf of two hunger-striking prisoners, it was at first resented and then on reconsideration the Government accepted it.\textsuperscript{2} The then Inspector-General of Police who was deputed by His Excellency, Sir George Lloyd, to carry on negotiations with me and the Superintendent of this Prison thanked me for the happy result of the intervention. Two precious lives were saved and a beneficial circular was issued by the Government as a result of my humble effort. In 1930 under similar circumstances the new Superintendent, who knew little or nothing of the event just described of 1922-23 disliked my offer, but subsequently it was accepted by you yourself again with happy result and the practice was then established of my being allowed to see fellow-prisoners for the definite purpose of my being able to render the humble office of intermediary between them and the administration. That practice has been continued up to now, not I hope with any unhappy result. Each time I have intervened, I hope the officials concerned will testify, I have done so in a helpful manner. It is, therefore, difficult for me to understand the Government without any apparent cause reversing this policy, and that too just when I have been obliged most reluctantly to embark upon a fast. I must regrettfully adhere to the fast until relief is given to my friends and the human right of intervention that the Government have hitherto recognized is restored to me.

\textsuperscript{1} Gandhi-Irwin Agreement of 1931.
\textsuperscript{2} Vide “Letter to Jail Superintendent, Yeravda”, 9-7-1923.

There is one thing I should mention. I am carrying on concentrated conversations about untouchability from day to day with many friends who come to see me. Just at present the strain is greater than usual because of the members of the Anti-Untouchability League being in Poona. The visitors are bound to notice the weakness that must overtake me even today and they are bound to inquire about the reason. I shall be unable to conceal the truth from them and yet I have no desire whatsoever that they should know anything about the unfortunate contretemps between Government and myself. For I am hoping that the Government will recognize the utter reasonableness of my request.

Yours sincerely,

Courtesy: National Archives of India. Also G.N. 3872

154. LETTER TO G. N. KANITKAR

December 3, 1932

You say Harijans should be allowed to enter temples, because all have broken the Shastras. This is an immoral attitude. If in 99 cases we have broken the Shastras that is no reason for breaking them in the 100th case. That is no reform but deform. My point is that not to allow Harijans to enter temples is wrong and against religion. This is a religious movement for elevation of religion.

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 302

1 The letter was in reply to the addressee’s which read: “The Shastris have very often violated the Shastras. Why should they then stick to their word in this case?”
155. LETTER TO MANIBEHN PATEL

December 3, 1932

Whatever one has learnt about dharma is tested only at a time like this. If what we have read and thought does not help us in any way, we should take it that we have learnt nothing. If a doctor or a lawyer is well read in his subject and discourses learnedly on it but cannot handle even one case, he is a doctor or a lawyer only in name. Similarly, a man may be a great authority on religion but if his knowledge of dharma is confined to what he has read in books or remains only in his mind, he is a dharma pundit only in name.

[From Gujarati]
Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 302

156. LETTER TO TARAMATI MATHURADAS TRIKUMJI

YERAVDA, MANDIR,

December 3, 1932

CHI. TARAMATI,

I have your letter. A habit of many years cannot be easily shed. After a couple of letters the hesitation will go and you will find it hard to write ‘he’ instead of ‘Mathuradas’.²

Blessings from

BAPU

From the Gujarati original: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

¹ Mahadev Desai refers to the addressee as Mani, in the third person singular, from which it appears that the letter was addressed to Manibehn Patel who was young enough to be so addressed by him.

² Vide also “Letter to kurur Nilkantan Nambudiripad”, 5-1-1933.
157. LETTER TO DILIP MATHURADAS TRIKUMJI

December 3, 1932

CHI. DILIP,

The 7th is your birthday. You have the blessings of all of us. May God grant you a long life and may you grow into pure-hearted worker. You have not been writing to me of late. Do write now.

Blessings from
BAPU

SMT. TAMARATI MATHURADAS TRIKUMJI
21 MINT ROAD
FORT, BOMBAY

From the Gujarati original: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

158. INTERVIEW TO FREE PRESS

[December 3, 1932]¹

I have never said that I will not concentrate all my energy on that service [emancipation of the Harijans], but I cannot previously bind myself not to do anything else. Circumstances may compel me to do things, which it would be sinful on my part not to do.

Replying to a question as to why he should not carry on the Anti-Uncouchability propaganda from outside as he is doing it from the prison now, he said:

I am doing nothing but concentrating the whole of my energy on the Harijans now.

Q. As you attach a great importance to fast, would you advise others to carry on the campaign by the same methods?

A. Fasting is a very special method and nobody can fast unless there is a definite special call for him to do so. Therefore there should be no fast in imitation, and I would be so presumptuous as to say that if anybody wants to fast in connection with untouchability out of sympathy he or she should refer to me and obtain my consent before so doing. But I can say that on that single issue of Guruvayur, none but Kelappan and I should fast. But everybody can and should carry on the campaign in hundreds of other ways which are open to all because the methods of service are so many and varied.

¹ From “Diary, 1932”, entry under this date

Q. Having dedicated yourself to the Harijans, does not your life belong to them now?

A. To say that my life belongs to Harijans is only half truth. The whole truth is that my life belongs to God and therefore it belongs to the Harijans and, for that matter, the whole of creation, and it is God who can keep me, or can take me away.

Questioned if, when fighting the untouchability battle, he should fritter away his energy on other issues by fasting, Mahatma said:

This was also along the same lines. There was therefore no question of frittering away any energy.

It will be a year now, since the campaign was launched.¹ What should be our next step? Would you give any message for the New Year?

A. That question is outside the scope of permission granted to me.²

The Hindustan Times, 7-12-1932

159. STATEMENT ON FAST TO ANTI-UNTACTHABILITY
COMMITTEE³

December 4, 1932

Although the Inspector-General gave me permission to say whatever I liked about the origin of the fast and what passed between Government and myself I do not want to take full advantage of the liberty he has given me. I shall only give you the substance of what happened so that you can be at ease and my position may not be misunderstood. The fast which commenced yesterday, was, you will be glad to know, broken just before I came here. Mine is a peculiar position. Though I have hardened my heart there are things about which I have an exceedingly sensitive nature. To me there is no difference of degree in matters of moment and as I am capable of giving my life for a great cause I am equally capable of laying down my life for the life of a comrade.

¹ The reference is to the resumption of the civil disobedience movement;
² Vide also Appendix “Discussion with Free Press Representative”.
³ Members of the Committee met him at 1 p.m. He was lying in bed and spoke in a low voice.
Now in the present case, the question before me was one of choice either to allow a dear comrade to die and myself live unconcerned or in an attempt to save his life put mine in jeopardy. Appasaheb Patwardhan, who is a prisoner in Ratnagiri Jail is an incorruptible man and a dear comrade whom I know to be cent per cent honest. I came to know through regular channels that Appasaheb had to put himself on the lowest diet consistent with bare existence for the service of untouchables which he wanted to do and which he was not permitted to do. I wrote to Government in mildest language possible that if relief was not given to Appasaheb, I would have to go through the same agony and sacrifice as he was undergoing. He was and is going through slow death. I said I should have to fast. If I deserted him I would be capable of deserting the Harijans, and a man who deserts his comrades is not worth much. I had necessarily to give short notice because there was no choice for me.

Although I know that Appasaheb is a man of iron nerves, I could imagine what agonies a man on reduced rations would be going through and so I could not help giving short notice. I am glad to say that circumstances have arisen enabling me to break my fast though it does not mean that the chapter is closed. The Inspector-General of Prisons who was here is conferring with Government and pending Government’s decision, which he hopes to get from Government on or before Wednesday morning, the fast stands suspended. But I have hopes I will not have to resume it. So far as my physical well-being is concerned I may say that I could not be better looked after than here and no one should run away with the idea that Government are not at all concerned about my life or they would like me to die in jail. They honestly want to see me discharged, if I am to be discharged at all, in full possession of health, that is to say, consistently with my age. In the present case I had asked for very little but perhaps Government thought it was too much; but I think they will now understand the delicate position and grant the relief which is sought for. There are other matters also regarding the fast, but I do not like to go into them. It will certainly be very good if the Government publishes the correspondence I had with it. But I leave it to the Government.

I hope what I told you is enough to give an assurance that I have not acted stupidly or hurriedly or unwisely. Knowing me as you do, you would wish me to act in the same manner should a similar occasion arise again. So far as I am concerned I should lose all my self-esteem and consider myself a despicable creature if I did not do all I was capable of doing in the contingency. For a man like me, who may not commit violence and who has taken a vow to observe non-violence in thought, word and deed, has self-sacrifice as a last resort. I depend on wisdom given by God to a small man like me and the weapon that I possess is readiness to fling away my life when there is a desperate cause. In this way my life is based on many such fasts. This is the highest form of prayer. The world has known it recently but I knew it for many years. It is not a thoughtless action. In it there is no coercion on others. It does bring pressure on individuals and the Government but is no more than the natural and moral outcome of self-sacrifice. It shakes and awakes the slumbering soul and impels a loving heart to action. The person, who has to introduce basic reforms in man, social conditions and atmosphere, has to create fermentation in the public. It cannot be brought about without causing a shake up in the society. There are only two ways of doing this—violence and non-violence. Violence affects the body and degrades both the person who commits it and the person who is the object of it. But in fasting the person suffers himself and the pressure brought about is of quite different kind. It does not affect the body of the person at whom it is directed but strengthens his morale or nature. I hope what I have told you is enough. Who knows I may have to go through a series of fasts and die by inches. But if that does happen I want you to feel proud of my action and not feel that it was the action of an imbecile. My life is largely governed by reason and, when it fails, it is governed by a superior force, that is, faith.

\footnote{\textit{Vide} “Letter to E. E. Doyle”, 30-11-1932.}
\footnote{What follows has been translated from \textit{Mahadevbhaini Diary}..}

_The Times of India, 5-12-1932, and Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, pp. 470-1_

160. TELEGRAM TO BRIJKRISHNA CHANDIWALA

December 4, 1932

BRIJKRISHNA
CARE MOHUR
DELHI
FAST BROKEN. NO CAUSE ANXIETY. SEE STATEMENT.

From a photostat: G.N. 2395

---

1 Vide the preceding item.
161. LETTER TO E. E. DOYLE

December 4, 1932

DEAR COL. DOYLE,

I am writing this after having taken my silence. It is better to put down in writing what I have understood to be the position.

The fast remains suspended till Wednesday morning so as to give the Government time to come to a final decision. The fast is not to be resumed if the Government give permission to Appasaheb Patwardhan and his associates to do conservancy work in common with the regular file, it being considered sufficient even if permission is restricted to such service in the yard they occupy.

The larger question of such permission being given to volunteers to be settled as soon as possible.

By the breaking of the fast today I do not give up the human right of intervention on behalf of fellow-prisoners. The Government have called my assistance intervention. I do not regard it as such. All my previous interventions have been helpful as I believe Majors Jones, Martin, Bhandari and perhaps you could testify.

I enclose herewith a letter to be sent to Appasaheb Patwardhan. I am most anxious to know how he is faring.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

Home Department, Political, File No. 31/108-Poll., p. 21, 1932. Courtesy: National Archives of India. Also Bombay Secret Abstracts, Home Department, Special Branch, File No. 800(40)(6), p. 121

162. LETTER TO E. E. DOYLE

December 4, 1932

DEAR COL. DOYLE,

Many thanks for your note. I did say during the morning conversation that the present practice of employing the so-called low-caste prisoners could not be suddenly changed and that therefore there was all the greater reason

1 Vide “Letter to E. E. Doyle”, 3-12-1932.
2 Vide Appendix “Letter from E.e. Doyle”.

118 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
why real volunteers should be encouraged for conservancy work whenever they make the offer spontaneously. I recognize too that the experiment can only be made cautiously till the barrier between high and low is broken down.

After I made the statement\(^1\) about the fast, the committee released me from the task of a discussion on untouchability.

Thanks for sending the letter to Appasaheb.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

Home Department, Political, File No. 31/108-Poll., p. 23, 1932. Courtesy: National Archives of India. Also Bombay Secret Abstracts, Home Department, Special Branch, File No. 800(40)(6), p. 125

---

163. LETTER TO MANILAL GANDHI

December 4, 1932

CHI. MANILAL,

You will find with this a letter from Pragji. I hope you were not upset by my short fast. A fast by me has become a common occurrence and so nobody should get upset by it. I hope you have adhered to your decision to leave.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 4802

---

164. TELEGRAM TO MIRABEHN

December 5, 1932

MIRABAI
PRISONER, ARTHUR ROAD PRISON
BOMBAY

GOD IS OUR ONLY ROCK. FAST BEGUN SATURDAY. BROKE YESTERDAY. TOOK MILK MORNING. NO ANXIETY WHATEVER. LOVE.

BAPU

From the original: C.W. 6254. Courtesy: Mirabehn. Also G.N. 9720

\(^1\) Vide “Statement on Fast to Anti-Untouchability Committee”, 4-12-1932.
165. TELEGRAM TO NARANDAS GANDHI

December 5, 1932

NARANDAS
SATYAGRAHAASHRAM
SABARMATI

DOING WELL. HAD ONLY FRUIT YESTERDAY. MILK TODAY.
NO MORE PAYMENT TO MAHAVIR.

BAPU

From a microfilm: M.M.U./I. Also C.W. 8275. Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi

166. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

December [4]/5, 1932

CHI NARANDAS.

It is surprising that you had not got my chief mail till Friday. I will inquire what happened.

The harassment by Chharas' seems to be increasing. You should find a remedy. Hasn’t Mavalankar any suggestion to make? You can write a letter to the Collector. I think that, after consulting Mavalankar, you can write a letter somewhat to this effect: ‘We cannot take any step to get anybody punished but I request you to consider how far the policy of settling a people who are habitual thieves in the neighbourhood of the Ashram is a proper one.’

Take immediate measures for Keshu’s fever.

I feel a little afraid now about Radha and Kusum. If we are under the treatment of one doctor and wish to call in another, we should do so only through the former. This is not only courtesy, but it is necessary in our own interest. The new doctor will then be in a position to benefit from the experience of the first. If you have not given up Dr. Talwakar completely, request him to see Dr. Harilal.

Write to Mahavir and inform him that I have asked you not to send any more money to him.

Morning, Monday [December 5, 1932]

My fast was short and soon over. In one-and-a-half days, I became fairly weak. I think I also overworked. But probably I shall recover strength very soon. Nobody should worry. My fasts are a daily affair now, and should cause no worry.

1 An ex-criminal tribe of Central Gujarat

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M. M. U./ I. Also C.W. 8273. Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi

167. LETTER TO PREMABEHN KANTAK

December 5, 1932

CHI. PREMA,

I am writing this after prayers. You should not expect long letters from me, but you should go on writing such letters to me. I learn much from them. I do wish to know all that.

What does Taradevi¹ wish? Does she wish to go to the Punjab?

You should listen to what Amina says. Really speaking, you should listen to what anybody may say. Anyone who carries responsibility on him or her, has no choice but to do so. If we thus listen patiently to what others have to say, many problems will get automatically solved.

I used to hear about Kisen, but, now that she is transferred, that will no longer be possible. But I hope she is all right. Please send on to Sushila the letter which is enclosed.

Why should not Lakshmibehn², you and others go and mix with the Chharas? I know that none of you can get time for that. But you may stop work for a while and can go. What is their number? How do they spend their days?

About my fast, you will read in my letter³ to Narandas.

You should now get a letter from Dhurandhar. I have no letter from Krishna Nair. Write to Brijkrishna and ask him to tell you about him.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10313. Also C.W. 6752. Courtesy: Premabehn Kantak

¹ Pyarelal’s mother
² Narayan M. Khare’s wife
³ Vide the preceding item.
168. LETTER TO CHHAGANLAL GANDHI

December 5, 1932

CHI. CHHAGANLAL,

I have your two letters. Both deal with the same thing. My fast of short duration should not worry you. I will be up in a few days.

I have an idea of the situation there. We can help only those who spin of their own volition and spin well. Can’t you get children or adults who are prepared to take up spinning as _yajna_? Did you try in the schools there? If you are not able to persuade anyone, but can look after the Harijan children, even that would do, or, if you want to set up an ashram, do so. Confer with Narandas. Only if the place gives you peace, will I prefer it. I will be satisfied if you are clear in your mind about what you are doing. Whatever you do, do it openly and it would satisfy me, Is not the place useful as a sanatorium? Can’t you get even dry fruit there? What about vegetables?

Do whatever you feel is best for Kashi. Prabhudas keeps writing to me. He wants to fly high but is unable to do so. That is the only problem in the way of his recovering his health.

_Blessings from_
BAPU

From the Gujarati original: S.N. 32870

169. LETTER TO MIRABEHN

December 5, 1932

CHI. MIRA,

You are not to be affected by the little fast which began on Saturday and ended on Sunday at 1 p.m. It was on account of Appasaheb, that noble worker. Can you recall him? I took only fruit yesterday and milk this morning.

Love.

_BAPU_

From the original: C.W. 6253. Courtesy: Mirabehn. Also G.N. 9719

---

1 Started on December 3 and broken the next day
170. LETTER TO BHAU PANSE

December 5, 1932

CHI. BHAU,

Narandas informs me that your fever has gone. See that you do not get it again. Drink milk and eat bhaji and fruit. In fruit, you may eat black raisins soaked in water. Figs also are excellent. You should eat them dry, chewing them thoroughly. It would be good if you can drink milk up to three pounds. But drink only as much as you can digest. Tandalja bhaji or fenugreek bhaji, and gourd and pumpkin among vegetables are beneficial.

You should also eat a few oranges or mosambis. Do not mind the expense.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 6746. Also C.W. 4489. Courtesy: Bhau Panse

171. LETTER TO CHAMPABEHN R. MEHTA

December 5, 1932

CHI. CHAMPA,

I got your letter. Narandas will not be one of the Trustees. Have some patience. Nothing will be finalized without showing it to you. The fence will not be put up just now. The expense will be too heavy. We shall know whether we can afford it when the accounts are brought up to date and we know the value of the total property.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 8755

172. LETTER TO GULAB A. SHAH

December 5, 1932

CHI. GULAB,

Let me know whether or not you eat the gruel served in the morning. Do you relish it? Where is the jowar ground?

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 1733

1 Amaranth
173. LETTER TO MANU GANDHI

December 5, 1932

MANUDI,

I got your letter. I did not intend to reprimand you in what I wrote about foreign-cloth. Take care of your health and be strong. You should not cry. Write to me regularly.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./II

174. LETTER TO MATHURADAS P. ASAR

December 5, 1932

CHI. MATHURADAS,

If the weaver is not intelligent and honest, he is not likely to be of much help. The finer the yarn, the less will be the value of the result of the mechanical testing. But as the weaver points out its defects to us from time to time, we should go on eliminating them.

Ramji is a different problem. Our atonement lies in winning him over. We have harassed the Harijans so much that, if, on becoming free, they harass us twice as much, we should endure that patiently. We should not do so through selfish motives or under pressure from somebody. If we do so because we want to take work from them, our motive is selfish. If you endure his conduct because I want you to do that, you will be doing so under pressure. Nor should you endure it with anger or pity in your heart.

If, however, you do not find it possible at all to work in cooperation with him, do not give him any more work. Do nothing unwillingly or if it makes you unhappy.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 3759
175. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

December 5, 1932

CHI. NARANDAS,

I got your two letters, of the 3rd and the 4th, together. I understand from what you say in your letter that Kusum will follow Dr. Talwalkar’s advice, but Radha will not. She will derive any benefit from the treatment that she is likely to get only if she carries it out with determination. Qureshi’s decision to go to Lucknow is correct. You did right in not sending Hasmukhrai’s letter. See if you can still reason with Parvati and restrain her.

I would not have the courage to undertake the experiment which you are making with regard to Ratilal. This does not mean that you should not continue it. But it can certainly mean that you have more love in you than I, and it should not be surprising if that is so. The real test of a teacher lies in his success in training his pupil to do better than himself. In other words, he should give to the pupil all he has. If, however, he had had to struggle hard to acquire what he has, his knowledge and skill would be limited. On the other hand, if the pupil whom he is training has great natural aptitude, he can considerably increase what he receives from the teacher. I have not, therefore, paid you an idle compliment in saying what I have written above. It is nothing but an expression of my sincere wish, and that has always been my nature. Whenever I try to impart to somebody what I possess, my only wish is that the other person should improve upon what I give him. In small matters this has actually happened.

Prema seems to be deceiving herself. She overworks and falls ill. She had said in her last letter that the pain in the back had completely disappeared and that she was confident that it would not come back. Take the necessary measures immediately. If it is absolutely necessary to get her tonsils removed, do so as soon as possible.

Chhaganlal is at Hyderabad. I expect him to return here in two or three days.

I have not received Flowers of St. Francis. You need not, however, send it if it is with you. I have been able to get another copy.

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./I. Also C.W. 8274. Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi
176. LETTER TO ASHRAM BOYS AND GIRLS

December 5, 1932

DEAR BOYS AND GIRLS,

You should rejoice, and not get upset, whenever I fast. You should not speak without thinking and without reason, let alone gossip. In other words, when eating or working you should speak only if it is necessary. To speak loudly is a sign of immodesty. All of you should acquire complete mastery over the takli. Know that the skill which Bhau possesses is very useful.

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U/II

177. LETTER TO RADHA GANDHI

December 5, 1932

CHI. RADHIKA,

What should I write to you? Put yourself entirely in the hands of God.

BAPU

From Gujarati: C.W. 8690. Courtesy: Radhabehn Choudhri

178. LETTER TO SULOCHANA A. SHAH

December 5, 1932

CHI. SULOCHANA,

You seem to be progressing satisfactorily. In order to purify the mind, you should busy yourself in good work and go on repeating Ramanama.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 1748

179. LETTER TO BABALBHAI MEHTA

December 5, 1932

CHI. BABAL,

You have given me useful information. I have requested Nanasaheb to intervene. Keep me informed.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: S.N. 9445
180. LETTER TO GULAM RASUL QUreshi

December 5, 1932

CHI. Qureshi,

I have your letter. You must get yourself cured of the piles completely. I will take care of Amina. There are many places to which she can be sent. I will see about it after 2nd January. Meanwhile she should get ready. I am not writing separately to her.

Bapu

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C. W. 10814. Courtesy: Gulam Rasul Qureshi

181. LETTER TO NAmibeHn Jhaveri

Yeravda Mandir,
December 5, 1932

CHI. NAmibeHn Jhaveri,

The Guruvayur fast cannot be compared with the fast associated with the mill-hands.\(^1\) At Guruvayur the Zamorin is the trustee of the people, not their master. The temple should definitely be thrown open to Harijans if the people so desire. Think and write again and let me know if you find anything amiss.

Have the two boys\(^2\) gone back to sleep again?

Bapu

[From Gujarati]

Manavtana Prahari—Pannalal Jhaveri, p. 27

182. LETTER TO AmtuSSalaam

December 5, 1932

Dear Daughter AmtuSSalaam,

Be content with whatever work God permits you to do. It does not seem proper that we should be wrapped up in warm clothing while others shiver with cold. But we have the right if at all to wear essential

\(^1\) Gandhiji had undertaken a fast from March 15 to 18, 1918 for a raise in the wages of the mill-hands of Ahmedabad.

\(^2\) Mahesh and Navin, nephews of the addressee’s husband garments.¹ We must try to provide them for others too, although God is the true Provider. Do not worry about anything.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Urdu: G.N. 266

183. LETTER TO RAIHANA TYABJI

December 5, 1932

BELOVED DAUGHTER RAIHANA,

I got your postcard. I am very glad that you have come to Poona. Your health should improve now. You can come whenever you feel like. A judge’s daughter can come when she wants to. Inform me in advance when you intend to come. Come about 1 p.m. except on a Sunday. I had a letter from Father. I had got your previous letter and I had also replied² to it.

As my right hand pains, I use the left hand and so the Urdu letters are very badly written. Come soon.³

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Urdu: S.N. 9664

184. INTERVIEW TO THE PRESS

December 5, 1932

My future is in the hands of God.

Gandhiji was resting on a cot when I was conducted to the ward. A lady visitor, who had entered the jail premises ten minutes before, was sitting near Gandhiji, carrying on a one-sided conversation, as Gandhiji’s day of silence had not yet ended. Mr. Mahadev Desai, the Mahatma’s Secretary, was busy attending to the correspondence. Punctually at 2 p.m., the Mahatma broke his silence.

The Mahatma, referring to the referendum that is being taken in Guruvayur, stated that he was glad, it was being done in a thorough manner. Instructions were ¹ The addressee had expressed a sense of guilt for being warmly clad herself, while serving the scantily clothed Harijan children of Vadaj.

³ These two sentences are in Gujarati.

128 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
printed on the back of the voting-paper, and to each house-holder the issue was to be clearly explained.¹

Referring to the legal difficulties², Gandhiji said that it was not his province to study those difficulties. He was prepared to be guided by the legal friends. The Mahatma stressed that every difficulty ought to be overcome. He was satisfied with Dr. Subbaroyan’s Bill³ published in The Hindu. Asked whether he would postpone his fast now, in view of the efforts being made in that direction, Gandhiji said that if the referendum was in his favour, and legal difficulties had to be overcome before 2nd January, so far as he could see the fast must be suspended. But if Dr. Subbaroyan was not granted leave to introduce the Bill, the fast would commence on 2nd January.

Commenting on the suggestion made in the Press that the surest way of preventing him from commencing the fast in connection with Guruvayur was to vote against temple-entry, the Mahatma said:

I cannot get out of the fast by such a dodge. I shall then have to impose upon myself a far more severe ordeal than a fast unto death.

One of those sitting round him, and listening to the answers he was giving me, remarked that there could be nothing more severe than a fast unto death. Gandhiji retorted:

No. Hitherto I have made my fast conditional. A more severe resolve would be a thirty days’ fast. If I go on a thirty days’ fast, I am bound to carry it out, irrespective of whether the temple is thrown open to Harijans or not.

Questioned regarding the suggestion of some pundits in South India for a compromise between sanatanists and reformers, that if Harijans underwent a purification ceremony they could be admitted into temples, Gandhiji said:

I am not in favour of such a proposal. It is the caste Hindus who have to undergo purification for having done a violent wrong to the untouchables.

The Mahatma would not agree to put a black mark on the Harijan and to say,

¹ The Times of India, 7-12-1932, had reported: “Nearly 300 volunteers are carrying out systematic visits collecting three sets of statistics of (1) municipal voters who favour temple-entry, (2) all males favouring or opposing it and (3) all women favouring or opposing it.”

² Arising from the Act governing religious observances in Madras Presidency

³ In the Madras Legislative Council. It sought: “to empower the Hindu residents in any locality to secure an alteration by a majority vote in the established practice regarding the admission of untouchables in the local temple” (Mahatma, Vol. III, p. 189).
for instance, that unless he put on a turban he would not be allowed into the temple. All Hindus going to temples were expected to give up carrion-eating.

Dr. Ambedkar had brought to Gandhiji’s notice an incident that took place in the neighbourhood of Poona. There Harijans decided on giving up eating carrion. They were prepared to forgo the gain they were getting from the job of removing dead animals. Caste Hindus did not like the Harijans’ decision not to remove dead animals. They forced Harijans to eat carrion, saying that it was their dharma. Caste Hindus were the real instigators, and just as in law the instigators were not exempted from punishment, caste Hindus should be taken to task. It was they who had to undergo purification.

Asked whether asking for the allotment of a particular kind of work in jail by the prisoners amounted to a breach of the jail discipline, Gandhiji said:

It is not open to any civil disobedience prisoner to ask for any particular work in the place of some other work. All jail discipline will be broken if it was for the prisoners to demand so.

Mr. Patwardhan had not demanded, the Mahatma continued, a particular work in the place of some other work. What he had said was that he should not be debarring from doing scavenging or conservancy work. He would do the task allotted to him, and also do conservancy. He wanted to be placed in the same category as the so-called low-caste men. It was not merely Bhangis that did this work. All low-caste men were doing it. Every jail did not contain Bhangis. The jail authorities were confining this unclean work to low class people. If they did not do so, there would be a violent agitation by caste Hindus that the Government were breaking their religion and asking them to do low-caste work. Government did not want such an agitation. It had been the rule to exempt high-caste Hindus from doing scavenging work. Mr. Patwardhan could not possibly take advantage of the exemption and so pleaded that he should be allowed to do this work. His case was under consideration by the Government. Gandhiji said that making such a request to the Government did not amount to violation of any jail rule. It did not amount to disobedience of jail regulations.

Gandhiji declared that the future was in the hands of God, and not in the hands of the Government. In respect of last Saturday’s fast, there was a divine call, and he had responded to it.

It was true, the Mahatma continued, that he was now devoting all his twenty-four hours to untouchability work. Even while sleeping, he was thinking of it.
Asked whether he would devote so much of his time to this question even when out of jail, Gandhiji with a twinkle in his eyes replied:

I shall not certainly neglect it.

The jail doctor arrived at this stage and examined the Mahatma. The doctor declared that Gandhiji was having a ‘tennis-elbow’. One of the visitors said, “Gandhi has never played tennis.” On this, Mahatmaji humorously remarked:

Yes, it is true. I call this ‘takli-elbow’.

Mr. Thakkar reminded Gandhiji that it was nearing 3 p.m. and Press correspondents were taking up all the time. Mahatmaji cracked a joke with him saying:

Mr. Thakkar should obey his President.

Mr. Birla (the President of the Anti-Untouchability League) declared that he had no grievance against the Pressmen.

Gandhiji expressed his satisfaction at the progress of the work going on in the country for removal of untouchability.

Gandhiji declared that he would not accept conditional release. Questioned whether he would accept ‘parole’ for fifteen days, to go to Guruvayur, the Mahatma remarked:

Parole is conditional release.

The Hindu, 6-12-1932

185. ANTI-UNTOUCHABILITY DAY PROGRAMME

December 6, 1932

Door-to-door collections of funds for the work of the Anti-Un-touchability League should be made everywhere.

A few caste Hindus can set an example to others by cleaning the quarters of Harijans and being of service to them in similar and other ways.

Games, sports and parties should be held by mixed gatherings of Harijans and caste-Hindu children.

Processions and kirtan parties of Harijans and caste Hindus should be organized and general efforts should be made to bring the

---

1 To be observed on December 18 two together, especially in the quarters of the latter.

Public meetings should be held everywhere at which evils of all forms and grades of untouchability should be clearly explained and prayers offered for their speedy and total eradication.

Also, resolutions should be adopted at these meetings for carrying on unremitting propaganda for the purpose of special resolutions in favour of entry of Harijans into all Hindu temples, especially Guruvayur.

The Hindustan Times, 7-12-1932

186. TELEGRAF TO S. P. PATWARDHAN

December 6, 1932

Appasaheb Patwardhan
Prisoner, Ratnagiri Prison
Ratnagiri

Have learnt something about putting yourself on reduced rations because of refusal by Government let you do conservancy work. On hearing this I began fast on Saturday suspended it Sunday pending government consideration. Government appreciate your point but they regard it all-India question. Therefore unable give decision off-hand in your and comrades’ case. They therefore suggest that pending consideration on all India basis you should suspend partial fast and take full rations reserving to yourself right to resume partial fast event unfavourable decision. If I have understood your position correctly I regard government suggestion quite fair. If you approve thereof please resume full rations and telegraph giving me same time statement your health.¹

Gandhi

Government of Bombay, Home Department, I.G.P. File No. 10

¹ The addressee’s reply of even date read: “Your kind wire. Agree postpone action. Letter follows. Health quite all right.”
187. TELEGRAM TO K. KELAPPAN

[December 6, 1932]

DO NOT WORRY ABOUT COMING HERE UNLESS CAUSE REQUIRES IT. YOU MUST NOT ENDANGER HEALTH TO COME.

BAPU

The Hindu, 12-12-1932

188. LETTER TO RAMDAS GANDHI

December 6, 1932

Are you able to follow the “Ram Gita”? Its central idea is bhakti and its fruit. Pure bhakti is bound to lead to non-attachment and true knowledge. If bhakti does not produce such results, it is not true bhakti but mere sentimentality. True knowledge means the discrimination between the essential and the non-essential. The book-learning that does not give this power of discrimination is not knowledge but bookishness. You can see that once this is realized and the “Ram Gita” grasped accordingly, all worry and impatience disappear.

I am writing this letter soon after the morning prayers. I intended to write about the fast, but began with comments on the “Ram Gita”. The fast is now a thing of the past. As it lasted only a day and a half, I feel no effect of it at all. The weakness came rather quickly but it also left as quickly as it had come. I did a lot of work on the day of the fast and also on Sunday. I can now take sufficient quantity of milk. You should not, therefore, worry about my fasts any time. You should know one thing, i.e., that it is not I who undertake a fast. It may be said that God does it, as my fasts are inspired by Him. You should not, therefore, feel unhappy when I fast, but, if anything, rejoice that I follow dharma by doing so. It should also be remembered that no one is to fast in mere imitation of my action. And particularly those who have close relations with me should fast only after consulting me. Of course it is possible to imagine circumstances in which there might be no time at all to consult me or when the inspiration from within might be unmistakable. However, the tradition

1 From “Diary, 1932”, entry under this date
Among spiritual seekers has been that one should take a new step only after consulting the person one has accepted as more experienced than oneself as long as such a person is physically with us. Everybody cannot hear the inner voice as a matter of course. What one hears may be only a semblance of the inner voice or in fact the voice of the ego. The ego means Satan, Ravana, Ahriman or the Demon. We cannot always recognize whether it is the voice of Rama or Ravana. Very often, Ravana appears in the garb of a sadhu and he looks like Rama. We should, therefore, consult a person of more experience if such a one is available. I intended to write a short letter, but I have written a long one. Show this to all.

[From Gujarati]

_Mahadevbhaini Diary_, Vol. II, p. 307

189. LETTER TO E. E. DOYLE

December 6, 1932

DEAR COL. DOYLE,

Sjt. S. B. Medh is an old co-worker from South Africa. He is due to sail from Bombay on the 14th and is anxious just to see me. He is not covered under the existing orders. Permission has therefore to be received from Government before I can see him. He came from South Africa only two or three months ago and is in no way connected with the political situation here. In his letter which I enclose herewith the operative sentence runs, “Before leaving I am anxious to receive your blessings. God only knows when I shall be able to see you again.” I would like to respond to the letter if I may and this is only possible if you could obtain the permission by telephone or telegram.

_Yours sincerely,_

M. K. GANDHI

Government of Bombay, Home Department, I.G.P. File No. 9
190. LETTER TO H. N. KUNZRU

December 6, 1932

MY DEAR HARIJI,

I have your note. In the light of your letter, I have re-read the clause, but I do not see any inconsistency in the previous sentence by retaining the word ‘confine’. However, I do not mind the change suggested by you, if you think that that carries out our purpose better; but I have made certain other changes which you will please note, and I have added the proviso which I had hastily omitted. You will see that the proviso is absolutely necessary. I am returning the original with corrections, and enclose herewith a copy with all the corrections carried out leaving you to make your choice of “confine its activities to” or “work for”.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

ENCLOSURE

By untouchability is meant the pollution of a person by the touch or approach or sight of another person, but as the practice of classifying people as untouchables in the different provinces does not always conform to the definition and having considered the variety of practice, the Servants of the Untouchables Society has decided for the time being to confine its activities to or work for the removal of the follow-ing among other disabilities so as to secure for these classes the same status as the other Hindus enjoy: Prohibition to use public temples, wells, roads, schools, parks, dispensaries, hos-pitals, crematoria and the like.

It is however understood that removal of untouchability shall not include interdining as it is generally understood or intercaste marriages.

From a microfilm: S.N. 18662
191. LETTER TO K. MADHAVAN NAIR

December 6, 1932

MY DEAR MADHAVAN,

I have your letter. You do not need to apologize, and under the stress you are going through, let only one person write, and that too for giving me the necessary report. Urmila Devi, of course, writes and she won’t be happy until she has written something practically every day.

Yours sincerely,

From a microfilm: S.N. 18661

192. LETTER TO GENERAL SECRETARY ¹, A.I.V.S.S.

December 6, 1932

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter for which I thank you. I shall be glad to receive a visit from any sanatanist friends, and if they convince me of my error, I shall gladly retrace my steps.

If a meeting of no-change Shastris and pro-change Shastris can be held, I would be delighted. It would certainly be instructive, and to a certain extent, useful. Being a prisoner, I can not arrange for such a meeting², and even if I was not, being a layman I should have great hesitation in taking the lead in calling together such an assembly, but I would ask you to send your suggestions to Acharya Dhruva of Bena-res Hindu University, and perhaps you and he might be able to call together the meeting you have in view.

So far as the insinuation of coercion is concerned, I can only give you my assurance that none is intended, and I fail to see how my fast can coerce a person who holds strong views opposite to mine.

Yours sincerely,

THE GENERAL SECRETARY
ALL-INDIA VARNASHRAM SWARAJYA SANGH, RAMBAG
BOMBAY

From a photostat: S.N. 18659

¹ Hiralal D. Nanavati
² The meeting took place on December 7; vide Appendix “Discussion with Poona Sanatanists”.

136 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
193. LETTER TO U. GOPALA MENON

December 6, 1932

MY DEAR GOPALA MENON,

I have your letter. I do not want you to be writing to me when you are so fagged out that you want immediately to go off to sleep. Your sleep is more precious in these days of strain and stress than mere writing to me. When writing is an absolute necessity of course you have to sacrifice sleep, but in that case you must use your words like a miser, and if you can manage with one sentence, do not give me two, and send only a postcard, and in emergent cases you may also use the wire. In other words, please conserve your energy for the work before you. One person alone giving me the necessary report of work from day to day will be quite satisfactory.

Yours sincerely,

From a photostat: S.N. 18663

194. LETTER U. SUBBA RAO

December 6, 1932

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter. I would advise you to approach the Untouchability Board of Andhra Desh. It will be difficult for me to take up individual cases and equally difficult for the Central Board to judge them.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

SHREE HARIJANA ASHRAMAM, PONNAMANDA
EAST GODAVARI

From a photostat: G.N. 6702. Also C.W. 4448. Courtesy: U. Subba Rao

195. LETTER TO A GUJARATI STUDENT

December 6, 1932

To ensure that my fast does not by any chance pass as blackmail, the opinion of the people living in the neighbourhood of the temple is being collected. If the majority is in favour of the reform, the reform is a duty and should be effected. This in no way involves injustice to the minority. If the minority desires, a fixed time can be set apart for them. Otherwise, it is open to them to build a temple of their own. If three of the four brothers living as a joint family change their religion, it will be justice if they become the owners of the joint family property and give the fourth brother his share. In the present case the utmost that the minority can demand is money to build a separate temple for themselves. However, they cannot do even that if an exclusive time is set apart for them when they can worship in the temple. If we apply this line of reasoning to your case, the conclusion is this: The Grandfather should have the freedom to follow dharma as he understands it, and you to follow it as you understand it. If, for this reason, he asks you to leave the home, you have no choice but to endure the boycott. If your wife refuses to live with you unless you undergo ceremonial purification, you should endure boycott by her too. You should not live with her against her will. A husband has no right whatever to force his wife to do or believe anything. But it is probable that the wife will say this: ‘What else can I do even if you do not undergo purification? I will live with you.’ If your wife says this, it means that she cares for you more than she does for the custom of untouchability. In other words, as between the custom of untouchability and living with you, she regards it as her duty to live with you. We have to make innumerable such choices every day in our life, but we make them spontaneously and, therefore, are not conscious of doing so. This contains a reply to all your questions. Ask me to explain again if you do not follow anything in this. If you wish to put other questions, you may do that too.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 308

196. A LETTER

December 6, 1932

For a guilty party to write about injustice having been done to him is not a sign of repentance. Nobody who has sincerely repented has ever looked upon the punishment given to him as punishment. On the contrary, such persons have always felt that the punishment was not severe enough. You compare yourself with . . . and believe that you are less guilty than he. I don’t know anything about . . . ’s

1 The names are omitted in the source.
2 ibid
misbehaviour. You don’t even seem to be aware that you have come with a sullied reputation and that you have misbehaved many times in the Ashram too. I don’t mind the mistakes. All of us commit mistakes. But what makes me unhappy is that you feel no sincere repentance for your errors. Till you do that, I think it improper on your part even to wish to go back to the Ashram. I am afraid sincere repentance is not in your nature. All the same, if you can convince Narandas about your sincerity and if he accepts you, I will not stand in your way.

Blessings from your unhappy

BAPU

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, pp. 309-10

197. LETTER TO MANIBEHN PATEL

December 6, 1932

CHI. MANI,

Dahyabhai’s temperature was expected to return completely to normal on Sunday, but it did not. It does become normal but again rises up to 99° to 100°. So the fever may perhaps persist a week longer. But the doctor has ceased to worry. He has started giving Dahyabhai Sanatogen as a tonic, besides a pound and a half of milk, which is well-digested. Ambalal1, Thakkar2, Ba and others went and saw Dahyabhai during the last two days or so. All of them report that Dahyabhai is cheerful. No one would believe that he had been suffering from typhoid for as long as four weeks. You should not, therefore, worry in the least.

My fast is now an old story. I hope you read all about it in The Times of India. Such fasts are a frequent occurrence in my life. You should, therefore, regard them as normal and devote yourself to your daily work. I hope you are quite well.

Blessings from

BAPU

[From Gujarati]

Bapuna Patro—4: Manibehn Pateline, pp. 95-6

1 Ambalal Sarabhai
2 Amritlal V. Thakkar

VOL. 58 : 16 NOVEMBER, 1932 - 14 JANUARY, 1933 139
198. LETTER TO C. NARAYANA MENON

[Before December 7, 1932]

DEAR FRIEND,

It seems to me that if the letter addressed to the Zamorin and signed by all students who believe in the removal of untouchability be sent, it will be a striking thing showing the Hindu world that the rising generation is bent on removing the black mark and it would be a great thing if the example of the Hindu University was followed by the Hindu students throughout India.

Yours sincerely,

The Hindustan Times, 9-12-1932

199. INTERVIEW TO SRIPAD SHANKER

[Before December 7, 1932]

Questioned whether he would be satisfied with the admission of Harijans up to the flag post, Mahatmaji made it perfectly clear that there was no halfway house in the house of God. There is no such thing as temple-entry step by step. It should be unconditional and unqualified. The Harijans should be given the same equality of status as the other caste Hindus in the matter of public worship.

As asked whether he would accept some elementary test like purification and giving up eating beef, etc., Mahatmaji said that though he was always advocating the purification and the social uplift of the Harijans in all respects, he has made it a point of honour not to accept any conditions whatsoever as conditions precedent for admission of Harijans into temples. Some of the caste Hindus who enjoy the right of free entry need as much purification, if not more.

The status of Harijans today is in direct proportion to the shameful treatment the caste Hindus have been giving them for generations past. In fact the conditions calling for purification are the result of such treatment. The position of the caste Hindus in this respect is exactly similar to that of a debtor in a commercial

1 Professor, Benares Hindu University
2 The letter was published under the date-line: “Benares, December 7”
3 Of Madras, who interviewed Gandhiji about the problems of temple-entry in South India
4 The report was published under the date-line: “Bombay, Wednesday, December 7, 1932”.
5 Dhvajasthambha, which stands in front of the shrine in the temple premises and to which people offer salute before worshipping the deity inside
A man who has contracted a loan is only doing his duty by paying back a portion of it and need not consider himself generous for paying back half of what he owes.

Asked whether he would allow sympathetic fasting on the issue of the temple-entry, Mahatma Ji emphatically asserted that Mr. Kelappan held the field on the issue of fasting on the Guruvayur temple-entry. If the fast came off he would strongly object to anybody else fasting in sympathy with them or offering satyagraha on that issue. This does not preclude legitimate country-wide propaganda in the cause of anti-untouchability movement and temple-entry.

The Bombay Chronicle, 8-12-1932

200. TELEGRAM TO NARANDAS GANDHI

December 7, 1932

NARANDAS
SATYAGRAHAASHRAM
SABARMATI
KANTI SHOULD GO RAJKOT RECOUP. PREMA SHOULD UNDERGO OPERATION.
BAPU

From a microfilm: M.M.U/I. Also C.W. 8276. Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi

201. TELEGRAM TO K. M. MUNSHI

December 7, 1932

KANHAIYALAL MUNSHI
PRISONER
CENTRAL JAIL BIJAPUR
JUST RECEIVED YOUR LETTER. HAVE GIVEN NO OPINION OUTSIDE. DO NOT WANT YOU TAKE ANY STEP WITHOUT CONVICTION. WILL READ PLAY
AND GIVE YOU CONSIDERED OPINION WRITING. GANDHI

From the original: C.W. 7519. Courtesy: K. M. Munshi

---

1 Vide also “Letter to Narandas Ganddhi”, 5-12-1932.
DEAR DR. BIDHAN,

I have had a long chat with Sjt. Ghanshyamdas Birla, as also Satisbabu regarding the Anti-Untouchability Board for Bengal. I have also several letters from Bengal complaining about the formation of the Board. Before it was formed Ghanshyamdas had told me that he was going to ask you to form the Board, and without giving any thought to the suggestion I at once endorsed it. But I see that the idea has not found favour in Bengal, especially so far as Satisbabu and Dr. Suresh are concerned. They think that the Board is bound to have a party colour about it. I do not know how far this fear is justified, but I do know this that the work of anti-untouchability should not become a party affair in any way whatsoever. We want all who desire the reform to associate themselves freely and whole-heartedly with any organization that may be formed. I would therefore suggest that you should call all the workers representing different groups and parties and place yourself at their disposal and let them then choose whomsoever they like as President, offering to give your whole-hearted co-operation to the President and Board of their choice. I know that this requires self-abnegation. If I know you well, I know that this is not beyond you. Of course if you feel that there is nothing in the complaints made and that you will be able to smooth down all the difficulties and that you will be able to bring all the parties together, I have of course nothing to say. In making the suggestions that I have made I have assumed the impossibility of securing the association of all parties with the Board as it is constituted at present. I have now placed the whole thing before you. You will do whatever is best in the interest of the cause.

Sjt. Khaitan gave me your message about Basanti Devi. I told him that I wanted her to make her own choice, but wanted her to work effectively and ceaselessly in the cause of anti-untouchability. I am not enamoured of her accepting any office in any organization. When I was there at the time of the Deshbandhu collections, both she and I had come to the conclusion that hers was not to run any organization.

¹ For Dr. B. C. Roy’s reply, vide Appendix “Letter from Dr. B.C. Roy”; vide also “Letter to Dr. B. C. Roy”, 15-12-1932.
but simply to work whenever she was free and had the mind for it.

You will please tell me all about Dr. Alam'.

Yours sincerely,

DR. BIDHAN ROY
WELLINGTON STREET, CALCUTTA

From a copy: C.W. 7907. Courtesy: G. D. Birla. Also S.N. 18667 and
In the Shadow of the Mahatma, pp. 76-7

203. LETTER TO JAMNALAL BAJAJ

December 7, 1932

CHI. JAMNALAL,

Write to me immediately today and inform me about the condition of your health. I am trying to secure permission to see you. Appa's problem seems to have been solved for the time being. The intended semi-fast and complete fast have been postponed. It seems the problem will be solved completely. I have regained two pounds of weight. I will get a copy of Ashramvasi Pratye and send it to you. If you want any other books, let me know. It is very necessary to send Kamalnayan to Ceylon. He writes and tells me that Janakidevi also has agreed now. The climate and water there will certainly suit him, and his desire to learn English will also be satisfied. The present atmosphere in India cannot but have a disturbing effect on his mind, but in Ceylon he will remain calm. He will be away from home, and yet not too far away. He will be able to return home whenever he wishes to do so. And he will get excellent facilities for learning English. Thus I like the idea from all points of view. Let me know what you think; I will then take the necessary steps to arrange for his going. I shall have to write to a few persons.

Ghanshyamdas left yesterday. He could not, of course, see you. Devdas is still here. Rajendrababu's health cannot be described as too good.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 2906

1 He was under Dr. B. C. Roy's treatment in Calcutta.
2 Vide "Statement on Fast to Anti-Untouchability Committee", 4-12-1932.
3 Vide also "Letter to Janakidevi Bajaj", 22-11-1932.
Padma and his mother came and saw me yesterday. Devdas was with them, too. They had brought two long letters from Prabhudas. For the present, I have given them to Devdas to read so that I might know the impression they make on him. Those letters and my conversation with Padma have given me at any rate the definite impression that the two have become deeply infatuated with each other. They regard their relation to each other as that of a brother and sister or a father and daughter, but that is nothing but self-deception. However, I believe that they have not completely fallen. The two do not even know that they are sexually attracted to each other, but in fact they are. Padma is a silly girl and still a child, is very talkative and also affectionate. So probably she does not even know what it is to be sexually attracted. But her ways and manners and the expressions on her face are those of a wife to a husband. It is rather different with Prabhudas. He is full of sexual fancies but is fighting hard to overcome them. While he had not yet succeeded in that, he came across a girl like Padma. He is quite aware that he must entertain no sexual feelings towards her. But what can he do? That is why he keeps company with her. The two have met privately and moved about together. What is poor Sarojinidevi to do? She is very much upset and deeply hurt. Padma would not listen to her, would not wake up, and as for Prabhudas, she does not have the courage to speak to him. However, the atmosphere could not but become vitiated. The neighbours saw the impurity of their relation which the two could not see. Sitala Sahay came to know of it and was very unhappy. He has rushed to me with all of them to find a solution. Though Prabhudas has not physically fallen, he believes himself so far guilty that he has come to a decision that the two of them should not be together any time and is asking my permission to undertake a fast of fifteen or twenty days’ duration so that he might learn to be vigilant. If he is not permitted to undertake a fast, he wants to be permitted to marry. All this is not quite clear in his letters, but I have been able to read it between the lines. I do not intend to permit him to undertake a fast, but wish to press him to get married. He believes that he would be able to find a suitable girl. I think he will have no difficulty in finding such a girl if he tries to look outside the circle of our caste. I have no difficulty in making up my mind to this extent, but what is to be done about Khali? Both Prabhudas and Padma need to stay at hill station. It would be proper for both to stay in Almora and at separate places but it would not be worthy of what we believe to be our poverty or what others think to be our poverty. Our poverty may seem outdated, but then we must put some limit somewhere. However, God will show us the way. I have written all this just for your information and not to ask for your help in this matter or to cause you worry. Prabhudas is no more a child. He wants me to show him the way. Since he likes my advice, I will go on guiding him and in that way things will be right in the end. Ultimately it will happen neither as I wish nor as Prabhudas wishes. After all there is a limit to what human effort can achieve. Prabhudas’s aspirations have always been noble. He is not deceitful and so, God will save him. He has struggled very hard to remain a life-long celibate, but the Fate seems to have been against him. How is Prabhudas to blame for that? He has come out safe from many difficult circumstances earlier also and will do so this time, too. I will not think it a misfortune if he marries. He will rather be happy, and so neither you nor Kashi need grieve at all and make yourselves miserable. I am not going to blame Prabhudas even in my thought, neither personally nor in my letters. If anybody has been at fault in this, it was me, for I have induced all of you to join me in a stupendous experiment as dangerous as putting one’s hand into a serpent’s burrow. I do not at all repent having done so. The experiment will certainly continue and its result is bound to be good. It will require sacrifices though, and we shall make them. You yourself were thinking of going to Khali. If you do wish to go and if you can hand over your Vijapur work to somebody, I see no harm in your going. Your presence at Khali will certainly be a source of consolation to Prabhudas, but your first duty is to take care of the work of Vijapur. How will Kashi manage? She also is almost a cripple. She just cannot tolerate the weather at Almora at this time of the year. This needs to be considered, too. If, after taking into consideration all this, you still wish to go and can go, you may do so. But do not think it at all necessary to go there for Pabhudas’s good. I cannot think of anything more to write after this.

BAPU

From the Gujarati original: S.N. 33067
205. INTERVIEW TO STUDENTS

POONA,
December 7, 1932

How can you fight them? What do you generally do when you want your things done? You cry. Is it not?

STUDENTS: (laughingly) Yes.

GANDHIJI: Then cry and weep. (Laughter)

One student said that as their fathers were Government servants, they were afraid to join the anti-untouchability movement.

GANDHIJI: But this is not political work. Government servants could do many things, contribute to the funds, engage in their houses untouchables, bring up the Harijan boys and girls and there was no politics in that.

How can we serve them in schools?

GANDHIJI: In schools you cannot do anything. You go there to learn. Do not bother your little heads there but out of school hours, you can do.

How?

GANDHIJI: Where the untouchables are living, mix with them, play with them and see that their quarters are kept clean, take broom and sweep and teach them to be clean. Show by your own life that you do not observe untouchability, show them that you love them. Treat them as your blood-brothers. You are too young. Day by day you will learn better the knack of doing the right.

The Hindustan Times, 9-12-1932

---

1 The source had reported: “...a group of young high school students...informed Gandhiji that they wanted to serve Harijans but their fathers would not allow them to do so. Gandhiji laughingly asked them to fight them...”

2 The report had concluded: “The students...thanked Gandhiji and offered him yarn garlands and withdrew.”
206. INTERVIEW TO ASSOCIATED PRESS OF INDIA

POONA,
December [7]¹, 1932

The Government have regarded the question as of all-India importance. From the point of view of prison administration, they had difficulty in giving a decision in connection with the request of Appasaheb Patwardhan, but they have consented to consider the whole question and announce their decision as early as possible. In the circumstances, I recognized the Government’s difficulty myself, and was permitted to send a telegram to Appasaheb advising him, pending Government decision, to suspend the partial fast. The following telegram was received from him this morning:

Your kind wire. Agree postpone action. Letter follows. Health is quite all right.

The result is, Appasaheb begins to take his full rations from today, and my fast stands, naturally, further suspended. From my point of view as an anti-untouchability worker, the matter is quite simple. The so-called high-caste Hindus, like Appasaheb Patwardhan and his co-workers, who voluntarily offer to do conservancy work, purely from a humanitarian motive and in a spirit of service, should be permitted to do that work. The existing practice seems to be to confine this service to the so-called low caste prisoners, although they may never have done conservancy work outside, and although they may not belong to the Bhangi caste, and this they are made to do whether they wish it or not.

People who are in prison for conscience sake cannot afford to arrogate superiority to themselves. At the same time, there are obvious administrative difficulties in suddenly disturbing a practice that has prevailed for a number of years throughout the prisons in India. I have, therefore, no hesitation in suspending the fast myself, pending an examination of the whole question by the Government of India and the Local Government. Appasaheb has specialized in this subject and therefore knows much more about it than I do. I am glad he has appreciated the Government’s difficulties and has suspended the partial fast. Let us hope that an early and satisfactory decision will be arrived at by the Government so as to enable the reformers now undergoing imprisonment to render conservancy service, without in any way impairing the smooth administration of the various goals.

¹ From The Bombay Chronicle, 8-12-1932
² Vide “Anti-Untouchability Day Programme”, 6-12-1932.

_The Hindu, 8-12-1932_

207. LETTER TO MIRABEHN

December 7/8, 1932

CHI. MIRA,

Your weekly letter to hand. I hope you had my wire¹ and postcard² regarding the fast.

The above was written last night. It is now 5 a.m. after prayer and the drink and the oranges. Of the loss of 6 lb. not in one day but in four days, I have regained 2 lb. This shows that I can gain a few pounds as quickly as I lose. In other words it is merely the weight of superficial food and water I carry about me. The fast lasted only 44 hours. It can produce no permanent harm. You are right when you say that I could not have rebuilt the muscle lost during the last fast.

But the fast has become the normal course of my life. It is the spiritual medicine applied from time to time for diseases that yield to that particular treatment. Not everyone can gain the capacity for it all of a sudden. I have gained it, if I have, after a very long course of training.

Co-workers should not be unhinged or the least disturbed whenever they hear about my fast. They should rejoice at it, if they believe in my purity and sanity. For then it must be good for us all and the whole world, even as every spiritual effort is. It must be for us all an encouragement to greater heart searching and purification.

I am glad you have again some company of the ordinary kind.

I do not want to start the saltless experiment just now. I am watching the elbows. There is no discomfort. Suspension of spinning is a deprivation. I should bear it for the time being.

Manilal and his wife are off to South Africa next week. Their presence is necessary there. They must not be diverted from their duty by my fast and the like. They cannot alter the course of events andcan render me no help. They should not have rushed here at all.

¹ Vide “Letter to Mirabehn”, 5-12-1932.
² ibid

Ba and Urmila Devi are doing well in the South.

But I must stop now.

Love from us all.

BAPU

From the original: C.W. 6255. Courtesy: Mirabehn. Also G.N. 9721

208. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

December 7/8, 1932

CHI. NARANDAS,

I send with this Liladhar’s letter. He has said something in it against Prema. What are the facts? Parashuram also complains bitterly. And, besides, there is the general complaint that she beats children. I have no time just now to write to her and for the present leave the matter here. If, moreover, she is to be operated upon, I should not like to harass her at this time.

I return Liladhar’s diary by registered post. . . .1 came and saw me yesterday. I don’t think her relation with . . .2 is absolutely pure. They have not actually sinned, but I have no doubt in my mind that they have impure feelings for each other. They certainly cannot live together. There were long letters from . . .3 which were painful to read. He also believes that they cannot live together. I shall consider now what we should do. This is not your worry, but mine. God will solve the problem. I will write more when I get time.

BAPU

December 8, 1932

I felt that I should somehow find time and write to Chhaganlal, and, therefore, have done so. Read the accompanying letter before sending it on to him, so that I need not write anything about the matter again to you. I shall have to write to you, if some new thought occurs to me or if I take some concrete step. If you wish to write and suggest anything, by all means do so.

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./I. Also C.W. 8277. Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi

1 The names have been omitted.
2 ibid
3 ibid
DEAR COL. DOYLE,

A pamphlet published by certain prisoners recently discharged from Ratnagiri Jail has just been received by me. I enclose the original. I have marked certain portions and I send you for immediate reference a free translation of some of the most important portions. From this two things stand out prominently. Quite a large number of the so-called high-caste Hindus were actually doing conservancy work with satisfaction, till the work was stopped under your orders. The party was organized and its work supervised by Appasaheb Patwardhan himself. At the time there were not sufficient Bhangis in the Jail, therefore the so-called low-caste prisoners had to be imported from another jail. If this information is correct, it makes Appasaheb’s case stronger than I had imagined. But that is not now of much moment. What however is clear to me is that this is a case which demands early and sympathetic handling.

Could you please ascertain from the Government when a decision may be expected, especially in view of my contemplated fast on the 2nd January next?

Yours sincerely,

M.K.GANDHI

The Hindu, 21-1-1933

1 Originally Gandhiji had written: “In any case, I hope that the decision of the Government of India will be reached before the 25th instant.” For Doyle’s comments on the change, vide Appendix “Letter From E.E. Doyle to R.M. Maxwell”.

2 Of Salem
211. LETTER TO P. R. LELE

December 8, 1932

Many thanks for your letter. A thousand apologies for my stupidity. But you will please excuse me. I could not help mentioning the lady, because I had her often in my mind.¹ Within the course of a few days I had had two stupid lapses of memory. What you say about Mr. Pandya’s article is quite true.²

I understand what you say about the death anniversary of Swami Shraddhanandji. I did mention your proposal to some members of the new organization, but they thought, and I agree with them, that it would be wrong for the organization to observe the day under its auspices. There is already an organization brought into being by the marvellous activities of Shraddhanandji himself. Its scope is much larger than that of the Anti-Untouchability Society. There is every danger of its activity being misunderstood if it celebrated the anniversary under its auspices, and it would be wrong if it limited the scope of the observance so as to keep it in a line with its objective.

Yours sincerely,

From a microfilm: S.N. 18671

¹ Gandhiji had confused the addressee’s late daughter with his wife (S-N. 18654).
² The addressee had written: “I have to invite your attention to the article of Mr. Pandya, because it is symbolic of the numerous attempts that have been made to bring down the numbers of so-called untouchables since 1928. If to deny the existence of the untouchables were a solution of the problem, there was some sense in these attempts. The attempted denial is only for relieving the caste-Hindu leaders of their responsibility” (S.N. 18654).
212. LETTER TO P. N. RAJBHOJ

December 8, 1932

MY DEAR RAJBHOJ,

With reference to your letter of the 3rd instant, here are my answers to your questions:

1. If, as a result of the referendum, it is found that the majority of the temple-going population in the area covered by the referendum is against temple-entry by Harijans, the fast will undoubtedly be postponed. The postponement is likely to be indefinite, and resumption, if there is to be a resumption, can only be determined by circumstances over which I can have no control and which I cannot foresee.

2. I think that it is premature to talk of satyagraha about other temples if and when Guruvayur is opened. We should always hope that the opening of Guruvayur will clear the way to the other temples.

3. I should hope that the Zamorin will not influence the people one way or the other, but even if he does, I should expect people at least on a religious question such as the one before them to think independently. In any event, I should consider myself bound by the opinion of the majority. The referendum will merely determine the question of the fast, not the question of opening the temple. If the result is hostile to temple-entry by Harijans, ways and means will have to be found of educating public opinion and preparing it for the opening. This is clear to me that there should be no forcible opening of any single temple. It would be an unseemly thing to have hostile

---

1 Honorary Organizer and General Secretary of the Depressed Classes of India Service Society, Poona

2 (i) “If after the referendum it is found that the caste Hindus are against temple-entry, will you fast? You stated that you will postpone your fast. How long will you postpone?

(ii) When Guruvayur Temple is opened, satyagraha will be offered at other temples. Will you render your active support?

(iii) As the Zamorin is a big landlord and influential man, will he not be able to carry a large section of the caste Hindus with him? Will it be a proper and genuine expression of the opinion of the caste Hindus that we obtain through the referendum?

(iv) Are you not aware that many caste Hindus eat beef? In your fifth statement in reply to my question you asked Harijans to give up beef. Some people take it as a condition for entry into temples. In that case are all caste Hindus who eat beef eligible for temple-entry? You might be aware that there are several untouchables who neither eat beef nor lead unclean lives. Why are such untouchables prevented from entry into temples?” (S.N. 18652) sections looking daggers at one another, using the same temple.

3 Vide also Appendix “Discussion with Macrae”.

4. I am firmly of opinion that there should be no condition made for the entry of Harijans to temples that are not applicable to the other Hindu worshippers. There should be therefore one regulation for all. I personally do feel that beef being forbidden food in Hinduism, it should be given up by beef-eating Harijans, whether the temples are opened or not. They should impose that condition on themselves without any prompting and without any consideration in the shape of temple-entry or other. There can be no doubt that every reform voluntarily made by Harijans among themselves is bound to hasten the removal of the black mark. It would make the task of caste-Hindu reformers infinitely easier than it is, and wind will be taken out of the sail of the opponents of the removal of untouchability. I hope therefore that no Harijan will say, ‘First remove untouchability, and then we shall abstain from beef or do many other things expected of us.’ Such an attitude will be just as bad as the attitude of those who would impose conditions on their admission to temples and the like.

Yours sincerely,

SIT. P. N. RAIBHOI
207 Ghorpade Peth, Poona 2

From a microfilm: S.N. 18672

213. LETTER TO REGINALD REYNOLDS

December [8], 1932

MY DEAR ANGADA,

You do not [know] how glad we all are when we hear from you. So we were delighted to have your letter of 10th November. This is your 3rd letter. As my companions I have only the Sardar and Mahadev. Ba and Pyarelal were naturally taken away soon after the fast was over. But Ramdas, Surendra have been in this jail for some months

1 As written in the source by an unknown hand, the original date having been defaced by the prison stamp

2 Rama’s monkey-emissary in the Ramayana. He was sent to plead with Ravana to restore Sita to Rama. Before launching the Salt Satyagraha in 1930, Gandhiji had sent his ultimatum to Lord Irwin through Reginald Reynolds. Narandas Gandhi gave him this name. Vide “Letter to Lord Irwin”, 2-3-1930 and “Letter to Narandas Gandhi”, Before 6-4-1930. and now there is Jamnalalji—the last having been transferred here for the sake of his health.

I hope you are well in every way.

With love from us all.

Yours,

BAPU

From a photostat: C.W. 4544. Courtesy: Swarthmore College, Philadelphia

214. LETTER TO K. M. MUNSHI

December 8, 1932

BHAISHRI MUNSHI,

I hope you got my wire and that it has healed your wound a little. I was pained to know that you had felt hurt, but at the same time I was also glad that you had such love for me. It is only the words of one whom we love that please or pain us.

You wrongly feared that I had communicated to that critic, too, the opinion I expressed to you. On the other hand, I wrote to him and told him that I had no right whatever to give an opinion from jail. The youth has not replied to my inquiry as to who intended to stage the play. You should rest assured that I would never criticize your writings without ascertaining your views. I have great attachment for you both and have told you that I want a good many things from you. How can I have them unless I am able to win your heart? I shall never forget that early morning scene on the beach. I will go through your farce if I get the time. I will read it with your eyes and write to you if I have anything to say. I would not use the freedom you have granted me, and you also need not stop the sale. I do not wish to persuade you to do that even through strength of our mutual love. It is true that I have not read any of your books. I will, therefore, try to read them if you recommend any.

We shall discuss art in person if and when God brings us together. I have been able to understand you from your letter to some extent.

What shall I write to you about untouchability? You should

1 Vide “Letter to K.M. Munshi”, 7-12-1932.
learn to see unity in my life in spite of its multiplicity, and, if you understand it, explain it to your co-workers. All my activities spring from one source.

I had received an interesting letter from Lilavati¹ just a few days before I got yours. I have still to reply to it.

I have written this with the left hand as my right elbow is paining more than usual. Our regards to you all.

Vandemataram from

MOHANDAS

From Gujarati: C.W. 7520. Courtesy: K. M. Munshi

215. A LETTER

December 8, 1932

If there was any error in this, let the blame be mine, for I have drawn all of you into a very risky experiment. It is as dangerous as putting one’s hand into a snake’s hole. I don’t regret it. It will be continued and I am sure that its ultimate result will be good. It will require sacrifices and we will make them.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 313

216. STATEMENT ON UNTOUCHABILITY-X

December 9, 1932

One of the friends who attended the meeting of Anti-Untouchability League, which because of the prior body founded by Mr. V. R. Shinde bearing practically the same name will henceforth be called, and in my opinion more appropriately, the Servants of Untouchables Society, gave me a list of several questions with argument woven into them. For the sake of brevity, I reproduce the most important of these questions in the form of a letter:

As the Society has been formed at your instance and for the purpose of carrying out the programme for the removal of untouchability, workers naturally would expect your definite guidance. The first question that occurs to me then is this: Are the workers to constitute themselves as reformers, doing

¹ Addressee’s wife
work of uplifting untouchables or uplifting themselves and if it is to be the latter, should not the greatest stress be laid upon work amongst caste Hindus themselves, and if so how is that work to be done?

This is a comprehensive question and in answering it, I hope to be able to cover the main points raised by my friend. I have repeatedly declared in unequivocal terms that caste Hindus are sinners who have sinned against those who are called untouchables. Caste Hindus are responsible for the present condition of the untouchables. Immediately, therefore, they repent for the sin and purify themselves by removing the load of untouchability from off the backs of untouchables, we shall discover perfect transformation among the latter. Not that they will at once shed the habits of a lifetime, but there would be conscious effort on their part to shed those habits and everywhere the multitude of caste Hindus will be helping them to give up those habits.

It would be like the suppressed members of a family rejoining the suppressors, feeling the warmth of reunion and suppressors receiving them as if they were never separated. I am painfully conscious of the fact that such a consummation will take some time before it comes, but it will never come unless some of us understand and adopt the right attitude. Even among the liberal-minded workers, I have often heard the opinion expressed that untouchability should be removed only when the Harijans give up their bad habits, educate themselves and live clean lives utterly forgetting that Harijans cannot do these things whilst they remain untouchables. Even if they would, they forget also that individual Harijans who are living decently are not received on terms of equality by caste Hindus and the very best amongst them are denied the ordinary amenities of life every day and contact with caste Hindus. Their birth constitutes the automatic cause for the penal servitude for life which cannot be commuted by any change in manners or any other consideration. Hence there is and can be no incentive to better their mode of life. The idea has taken deep root in their minds that they may hope for no redemption at least during their present lifetime.

The only way therefore is to undo the mischief and make them realize the dignity of their status as men. Caste Hindus should first unconditionally take them up as their very own and then and then only can a change in their condition on a vast scale take place. Therefore the first and foremost items in the programme of work should be a whirlwind propaganda for educating and canvassing opinion among caste Hindus. This work can be done by personal visits on a most intensive scale and by flooding the country with literature on the subject.

In my opinion untouchability is as self-demonstrated a sin as untruth. The proposition does not need the support of Shastras. Nevertheless, as there is a body of learned men who invoke the aid of Shastras in order to justify untouchability by reason of mere birth, it would be well for workers to arm themselves with pro-reform literature. There is a growing body of learned men in Shastras who emphatically hold that untouchability as it is believed and practised today, has no support whatsoever in the Shastras.

This propaganda can only be entrusted to workers who have character to lose, those who will not be easily ruffled by insults, who have patience to listen to counter argument and wit enough to combat it. In a movement of religious reform, there is no room whatsoever for coercion in any shape or form. Reformers will have to submit to their fate if as a result of this personal canvassing it is discovered that a vast majority of Hindus have no sense of sin about untouchability or even otherwise are averse to its removal and the consequent raising of the Harijans’ status. They will have then without being irritated against the majority shown by personal suffering that they are in the right and the majority in the wrong and this they can best do by making common cause with Harijans and voluntarily denying themselves those rights and conveniences which are today denied to Harijans.

Such an act of self-denial by a large body of men and women will by itself fill the Harijans with hope and raise them in their own estimation and encourage them to an effort for self-improvement. The most effective work that can be done among caste men is to induce them to take one Harijan at least per family either as member or at least as domestic servant. There is an ancient practice in well-to-do households never to take their meal without having at least one guest to share it with them. Nowadays this is more observed in the breach than in the performance. This act is described as one of the five daily yajnas or sacrifices. I cannot conceive of a better mode of offering this yajna than that of having a Harijan to share the meal with us.

This must not be confused with inter-dining. For me, inter-dining means dining with those who may touch your food and whose food you may touch but dining together under the same roof without the mutual touch does not mean inter-dining.
If untouchability of Harijans is removed, there can be no objection to their sharing the family meal precisely on the same terms as other castes. There are again innumerable social functions and ceremonies to which Harijans are never invited by caste men. Their cattle and other domestic animals may share their joys and sorrows but not Harijans or, if they do, these are occasions when they are pointedly reminded that they are not the same sort of human beings as caste Hindus.

I have pointed out only a few illustrations of the kind of propaganda and work that can be and should be done amongst caste men to purge themselves of the sin but, even as special treatment and care are bestowed upon a banished member of the family when he is recalled, so will caste men do the work amongst Harijans themselves when the sense of sin has really dawned upon them. They will then go to the Harijans not as teachers or donors but as debtors going to their creditors to discharge their obligations and in that humble spirit they will offer to teach them, their children and otherwise help them in every way possible for them.

It has been suggested that if this constructive programme is taken up, it would prove too expensive and too long-drawn-out to be of immediate service, and to do it would be a programme by itself on the part of a handful of reformers. It assumes a different shape when it is conceived as an item in the programme of self-purification. A tree is judged by its fruit and so has the changed spirit of caste men to be judged by its results. It is, therefore, not enough for them to be able to say that they have touched half a dozen Harijans during the day or even that they have fed a Harijan but their newly born affection for them should make them impatient to render this neglected portion of humanity every help that it is in their power to render.

After all, Harijans themselves have to feel the effect of the new awakening in Hinduism and they cannot do so unless caste men come in contact with them in every walk of life and every activity. If the awakening is universal, constructive programme will not prove expensive. Local volunteers will work in their own localities without needing any payment and if the awakening is not universal it becomes the double duty of workers to tackle the constructive programme.

Therefore, whether it is slow or quick, expensive or inexpensive, I have no doubt it must be the integral part of the activities of the society. It may not be able to overtake all Harijan children, or all Harijan sick needing medical aid but whatever is done in that direction will count and should be an earnest of more to come.

Moreover the monetary contributions will be the index of the extent to which caste Hindus have responded to the call of the age. In this programme temple-entry occupies the most important place, for, when the innumerable public temples are opened to Harijans they will immediately feel the dawning of a new era for them. They will forget that they were once the outcasts of the society. Intermingling at temples will of itself induce a change in their outlook and in their lives. They will forsake their objectionable habits. But say some of my correspondents:

What are temples worth today? They are dens of iniquities. All kinds of practices are going on there.

I have a cutting before me containing a letter from a lady drawing an ugly picture of what is going on in a famous temple. I do not know how far charges made against some of these celebrated shrines are true. There is no doubt that temples are not what they must have been when they were built. Temple-reform in itself is a separate subject. Their deterioration cannot be pleaded as valid reason for not opening them to Harijans and I know that vast mass of poor people who visit these temples are untouched by corruption that may be going on in them; and whatever may be true of famous temples is undoubtedly not true of village temples. Village temples were and even now are a place of refuge for villagers. It is difficult to conceive the life of a Hindu villager being regulated without his temple. Whether it is birth or death or marriage in a Hindu family, temple plays a prominent part.

Therefore, Harijans must have access to it. But says another correspondent:

If you do not insist on Harijans conforming to certain regulations such as cleanliness, you will lower the already tottering reputation of temples.

I anticipate no such catastrophe. What I have said is that no special condition should be laid down for the entry of Harijans that is not applicable to every other Hindu worshipper.

I heartily endorse that suggestion of Dr. Bhagwandas that instead of untouchability senselessly attaching to birth, it should attach to individual’s outward conduct.¹ One cannot regulate inward cleanliness but it is possible to regulate outward conduct and therefore those whose habits are unclean, who are unwashed and unkempt, who are drunk, should be regarded untouchables till they have cleaned them-selves even as every human being all the world over in decent society is untouchable whilst he is in a dirty condition from any cause what-so-ever. But under the cover of specious argument as cleanliness, etc., Harijans should no longer be kept without payment of the debt due to them by caste men.

¹ Vide also “Letter to Bhagwandas” 14-12-1939.

The first step therefore is to receive them as they are, subject only to general regulations, not specially imposed for the occasion, but the regulations that have been in vogue before reforms came. New regulations may undoubtedly be framed after freedom of Harijans is honestly declared and assured to them.

_The Bombay Chronicle, 10-12-1932_

217. TELEGRAM TO U. GOPALA MENON

December 9, 1932

Hear that votes taken from all Hindus irrespective whether they are temple-goers or not.\(^1\) If this is so referendum will be totally valueless. Please wire what precisely is being done. If absolute precaution not being taken votes hitherto received should in my opinion be cancelled.

GANDHIJI

From a microfilm: S.N. 18676

\(^1\) According to _The Hindu, _12-12-1932, “A correspondent wrote to Gandhiji expressing apprehension that the referendum at Guruvayur was not being taken in the proper way. Vide also the following two items.

\(^2\) The addressee’s telegram is not available, but a telegram dated December 10, 1932, from Rajagopalachari read: “Every precaution taken ensuring exact count votes of only _savarna_ temple-goers. See statement Press issued along with this” (S.N. 18683).
218. LETTER TO U. Gopal Menon

December 9, 1932

My dear Gopal Menon,

I have your letter. I think that you are keeping the opinion of avarnas also. I quite recognize that the opinion based upon a knowledge of the local situation should prevail. I am glad that things are shaping themselves quite well there.

Yours sincerely,

From a microfilm: S.N. 18675

219. Fragment of Letter to T. S. Kalyana Rama Iyer

December 9, 1932

I have certainly meant bonafide temple-goers for it is only the opinion of those who believe in temple-worship that should count.

Those who are wholly uninterested in temple-going have in my opinion no right to vote one way or the other.

The Hindu, 19-12-1932

220. Letter to A. S. Altekar

December 9, 1932

Dear Dr. Altekar,

I thank you for your letter and the pamphlet sent by you. Copies sent by you before were also received. Your pamphlet is very seasonable.

You say that my view that untouchability is not countenanced by Hinduism will not be acceptable to the average orthodox Hindu.

1 In his reply dated December 16, the addressee, an ex-chairman of Trichur Municipality wrote: “I thank you for your kind reply of the 9th instant. I had clearly mentioned in my letter to you as follows: ‘I have to request you to make it clear whether the opinion of the majority of the caste Hindus (no matter whether they are bonafide temple-goers or not) will prevail with you or is it the opinion of the majority of bonafide temple-goers’ and I had concluded my letter as follows: ‘If you are convinced that the majority of caste Hindus who now worship in the Guruvayur Temple (not the majority of the caste Hindus who are eligible for worship) will desert the temple if Harijans are allowed entry, will you still fast?’ ” (S.N. 18723)
Whether it will be acceptable or not is not the point. The question is whether there is any warrant for belief in untouchability as it is practised today. I am fully aware that there is untouchability in the Smritis, and perhaps also in the Vedas; but that attaches not to birth but to external practice. If you do not mind, I would like you to examine the question from the standpoint suggested by me. According to the Smritis, what is the definition of untouchability? Is that untouchability incurable by any penance whatsoever? And what are the disabilities of untouchables?

Yours sincerely,

D R A S ALTEKAR
Hindu University, Benares

From a microfilm: S.N. 18678

221. LETTER TO R. L. BISWAS

December 9, 1932

DEAR FRIEND,

I thank you for your letter. I can entirely enter into your feelings, but I would plead for a little patience. If caste Hindus do anything in connection with untouchability, I fully recognize that it must be in the spirit of service and not that of patronage, and I am quite clear in my mind that there should be no idea whatsoever of taking any political advantage of the suppressed classes. The Society that has been formed has therefore been kept wholly free from politics. I have repeatedly said that removal of untouchability for caste Hindus should mean repentance. I therefore share your sentiment to the full that you should not be spoon-fed and that you should work out your own salvation. I would like you to keep yourself in touch with me and draw my attention to anything which you may consider to be improper or undesirable in the programme or work of the new Society.

Yours sincerely,

S J T R. L. BISWAS, B.A., B.L.
59 BADRIDAS TEMPLE ST.
CALCUTTA

From a microfilm: S.N. 18674

1 The Anti-Untouchability League, renamed as the Servants of Untouchables Society; vide “Statement on Untouchability—X”, 9-12-1932.
MY DEAR CHARLIE,

    I have your letter of 12th November only today. If it was an airmail letter, it should have been received about the 22nd of November. Your letter therefore seems to have gone through the whole circuit of examination before being delivered to me. I shall enquire. I am surprised that there should be any question arising as to whether I could do untouchability work more effectively as a free man than as a prisoner. I should think that it is a self-evident proposition that I could do more effective work as a free man. At the same time I can fully appreciate the Government standpoint. So long as they feel that civil disobedience must be put down at any cost and that their plan might be frustrated or checked if I was left free to carry on civil disobedience propaganda, they are bound to keep me under detention unless I would give them an assurance, be it even verbal, that I would not carry on civil disobedience propaganda. For my part, however much I may wish to confine myself wholly to untouchability work, I cannot without a full knowledge of the circumstances outside give any undertaking as to my future action. After all civil disobedience under given circumstances is as much an article of faith with me as removal of untouchability. I can therefore never say beforehand what will occupy my attention exclusively or for the most part at a given moment and since a civil resister bargains for the punishment he receives for his resistance, he must not fret over it. Therefore and to that extent I am content with my lot. I hope this tells you clearly how I stand.

    I hope you got there no alarming report about my little fast over Appasaheb Patwardhan. I need not, give you the details about the event for you must have seen them in the papers. All I need say is that except for a little weakness there is no ill effect left of the fast. I hope too that you are finding no difficulty in understanding and appreciating the temple-entry question and the contemplated fast.

    I hope that you are keeping your health in spite of the stress.

    Dr. Ansari is wonderful. If he is there, give him our love and tell him that our prayers always ascend to heaven for his complete recovery.
If what you say about the communal decision turns out to be true, it is a silver lining to the dark cloud.

Love from us all.

MOHAN

From a photostat: G.N. 977; also Bombay Secret Abstracts, Home Department, Special Branch, File No. 800 (40) (3), Pt. III, p. 423

223. LETTER TO G. M. JOSHI

December 9, 1932

DEAR FRIEND,

With reference to questions 1 and 2, they are beyond my scope and capacity.

With reference to 3, I know from personal experience that untouchability as it has been practised in India within our generation has retarded the evolution of Hindu society and by contagion of the whole of India.

No. 4 is again beyond me.

As to No. 5, I freely grant that the conscience of no one man can be sufficient warrant, or, for that matter, any warrant for changing anything, let alone customs of ancient society.

Yours sincerely,

SJT. G. M. JOSHI
171-A BUDHAWAR PETH, POONA

From a microfilm: S.N. 18677

224. LETTER TO DR. M. S. KELKAR

December 9, 1932

DEAR DR. ICE,

I have your letter. We must agree to differ about temples. People are allowed freely to see me only when they have real untouchability matters to discuss. To meet you in connection with my health special permission has to be obtained. This is quite unnecessary. I am being well looked after and am rapidly regaining strength.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

SJT. M. S. KELKAR
172 AUNDH ROAD
KIRKEE, POONA

From a photostat: G.N. 6643

164 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
225. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

December 9, 1932

CHI. NARANDAS,

I was glad that you visited Puratan. It is necessary that somebody should visit him occasionally. I hope you got the letter about . . . which I gave for posting yesterday.

I send with this letters for Puratan, Raghavan and Kusum.

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U/I. Also C.W. 8278. Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi

226. LETTER TO MANIBEHN PATEL

December 9, 1932

CHI. MANI,

I believe that you must be getting regular reports from Bombay and so do not write to you every day. Dahyabhai is steadily improving. There is still a slight rise in the temperature for a couple of hours every day, but he is fast regaining his strength. Devdas came here today. He said he saw Dahyabhai in Bombay and found him in very good condition. The doctor is gradually increasing the nourishment. Besides milk, he is also given vegetable soup. He remains very cheerful. There is a letter from Natarajan today, and he also reports to the same effect. So stop worrying altogether. I will send a reply to your long letter when I get some leisure.

Blessings from

BAPU

[From Gujarati]

Bapuna Patro—4: Manibehn Patelne, pp. 96-7

1 The name has been omitted; vide also “Letter to Narandas Gandhi”, 7/8-12-1932.
227. LETTER TO BRIJKRISHNA CHANDIWALA

December 9, 1932

CHI. BRIJKRISHNA,

I got your telegram to which I replied promptly by wire¹. You must have got it by now. I had to undergo a fast, but that too is an old story now. Some weakness was already there, but strength will gradually come back. Fasting has become a permanent and inseparable feature of my life. Those who understand me and those near to me should not be agitated on that account. Have faith that God will never let me die until He has extracted from me service to His own satisfaction. I hope you are keeping well.

Blessings from
BAPU

[PS.]

Where is Krishna Nair?

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 2396

228. TELEGRAM TO K. L. DAFTARI

[December 10, 1932]

COULD YOU PLEASE REACH POONA ON THE 23RD MORNING TO TAKE PART IN A SMALL CONFERENCE WITH SANATANIST SHASTRIS OPPOSING TEMPLE ENTRY BY UNTOUCHABLES? IF YOU CAN WOULD LIKE TO MEET YOU BEFORE THE 23RD.

GANDHI

The Hindu, 12-12-1932

229. LETTER TO K. RAMUNNI MENON

December 10, 1932

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter enclosing copy of a letter addressed to me by 300 ladies of Guruvayur. The proper course in all such cases is to send the original to the addressee.

¹ Vide “Telegram to Brijkrishna Chandiwala”, 4-12-1932.
² Sanskrit scholar of Nagpur
³ From “Diary, 1932” entry under this date
With reference to the second paragraph of your letter, I am surprised that you should make reference to complaints about the fraudulent manner in which referendum is taken. I expect according to your promise details in proof of the charge. Meanwhile, I can only give you my assurance that every care is being taken to take the referendum openly and impartially, without using any pressure upon any person. Elaborate precautions have been taken in order to ensure complete fairness. If therefore any departure from fairness is noticed by you, I would suggest your promptly bringing it to the notice of the organizer, Sjt. Madhavan Nair, at the same time keeping me informed of any such irregularity.

I did receive a copy of the memorial to H.E. the Viceroy. I went through it carefully, and I am sorry to say that, instead of argument, I found it to be full of invective and irrelevant matters.

Yours sincerely,

SJT. KOZHIPURATH RAMUNNI MENON, B.A.
“RAMACHANDRAM”, GURUVAYUR P.O.

From a microfilm: S.N. 18680

230. LETTER TO U. GOPALA MENON

December 10, 1932

MY DEAR GOPALA MENON,

Shree K. Ramunni Menon has forwarded the enclosed document\(^1\) to me. He tells me that the original is in his possession which can be produced whenever required. You will please tell me all about it. The covering letter also I am enclosing herewith together with copy of my reply.

Yours sincerely,

SJT. GOPALA MENON
CHALAPURAM, CALICUT

From a microfilm: S.N. 18679

---

\(^1\) Copy of the letter addressed to Gandhiji by 300 ladies of Guruvayur; vide the preceding item.
231. LETTER TO SADASHIV RAO KARNAD

December 10, 1932

MY DEAR SADASHIV RAO,

I have your letter. I am glad you have given me a detailed description of the activity there. The only thing I can say about secret propaganda is that you should ignore it, but you should redouble the effort to be absolutely fair and honest. It does not matter if the referendum goes against us, but there should be no undue pressure exercised by any of our workers. The opponents should be treated with perfect courtesy, no matter what they say or do. If you remain absolutely straight, you will find that the poison will become sterilized.

Yours sincerely,

SIT. SADASHIV RAO KARNAD
C/O GOPALA MENON
ADVOCATE, CHALAPURAM, CALICUT

From a microfilm: S.N. 18684

232. LETTER TO CHAS. PEACOCK

December 10, 1932

DEAR FRIEND,

I was unable to write to you earlier. You have faced an interesting question. I think that Christians who have no desire to proselytize can render substantial help to the Anti-Untouchability Movement by working under or with the ordinary Hindu organizations. The constructive work to be done covers such a wide field that there can never be too many workers. In so far as Christian Untouchables

1 In his letter dated December 5, 1932, the addressee, giving a detailed description of the activities relating to the Guruvayur temple-entry movement, had also written: “Our work is being hampered by the secret plans of the sanatanist representatives. . . . They are holding secret meetings of a select few. The resolution come to in their deliberations . . . is that outright and unadulterated non-co-operation is to be the policy that is to be adopted by them towards our men . . .” (S.N. 18657).

2 The addressee, in his letter dated November 17, had asked Gandhiji as to what were “the duties of an Indian Christian towards Harijans”. He had written: “I am an Indian Christian employed as a teacher in a Board School. I have been a teacher for nearly twenty-five years now. I wish to devote my spare time for the raising of the Adi-Andhras of whom there are thousands living both in this town and in the neighbourhood. I should like to work for them without surrendering my Christ and . . . without trying to change their religion . . .” (S.N. 18633). are concerned, I do not mean to say anything. I observe from the correspondence I am receiving from Christian friends that the Hindu movement has quickened the conscience of Indian Christians and they are impatient to get rid of the taint of untouchability in their midst. I think I have sufficiently answered your question.

Yours sincerely,

CHAS. PEACOCK, ESQ.
HEAD MASTER, BOARD MIDDLE SCHOOL, SALUR (VIZAGAPATAM)

From a microfilm: S.N. 18682

233. LETTER TO R. V. PATWARDHAN

December 10, 1932

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter. I see clearly that you have not been studying my writings. I must adhere to my statement that there is no coercion about the temple-entry movement and so far as I am concerned there will be none.

2. No temple will be touched, caste or no-caste, where the majority of bonafide temple-goers within the locality surrounding a particular temple oppose the admission of untouchables.

3. There will be no defiance of law.

4. If the managers are owners, unless they consent no entry will be attempted, even if the temple-goers may be in favour of untouchables’ entering.

5. Where managers are trustees in respect of a public temple, they should be expected to carry out the wishes of the majority of temple-goers.

6. No coercion will be exercised against the minority. I have already suggested that for them, if they are agreeable, certain hours of the day according to their numbers may be set apart for exclusive worship by them. In short, every attempt is being made not to hurt the religious susceptibilities of any person. I do not know the meaning of your reference to my statement about Sankaracharya.

I would ask you to re-read what I have said1 about the unfavourable verdict in the referendum at Guruvayur. You have wholly misconstrued my position?"

Yours sincerely,

SIT. R. V. PATWARDHAN
BHUDHAWAR PETH, POONA CITY

From a microfilm: S.N. 18681

234. LETTER TO JAMNALAL BAJAJ

[Before December 11, 1932]

CHI. JAMNALAL,

I got both your letters. I have to cope with extremely heavy pressure of work, and, moreover, since my views regarding Kamalnayan are not the same as yours, I did not think it necessary to write imme-diately. I had, therefore, intended to write to you at the first available opportunity. I was going to write today in any case when I got your second letter. One may feel after reading it that your health had become a little worse, but I have no fear of that happening. It is good that the discharge has started again. It will not help you in any way if it is stopped with artificial means. The cause for the cramp in the stomach may be that you probably ate something in excessive quantity. On one or two days recently the bread was not properly baked. Perhaps you will find toasted bread easier to digest. You have sufficiently strong teeth for that. I am sure you know that bread should be chewed thoroughly. The bread can be toasted for you here, for it is supplied to you from our ward. And as I have a hand in baking the bread, there will be no difficulty in supplying you toasted bread. If you eat bread at all the three meals, fresh toasts can be prepared for all of them and supplied to you.

You should also not give at present, as you have been doing, too much time to interviews connected with business. According to Dr. Modi, complete rest is essential. It is not advisable even to talk much. To derive the full benefit of the air of this place, it is extremely essential that you should take complete rest and talk very little.

1 In his reply dated December 16, 1932, the addressee refutes the charge of having misunderstood any of the statements made by Gandhiji and says: “Your declared vow is altogether unjustifiable” (S.N. 18726).

2 From the date of receipt entered in the source
Colonel Doyle talked with me about you for a fairly long time. We had a talk just the day before yesterday. His advice was that you should go to Europe. I don’t think that necessary at all. We should do our best with whatever help we can get in this country and rest satisfied. Do let me know, however, if you wish to go to England. I also expect to get in a day or two a reply to my request1 for permission to see you frequently.

And now about Kamalnayan. You will require special permission if you wish to send him to South Africa. He will not get proper facilities for education there, He will not be admitted to any English school or college. They have started a college for Indians, but from our point of view it can have nothing special to offer. Facilities for private education will also be meagre. As for Phoenix, it is in the midst of a jungle. If Kamalnayan goes and lives there, he will have to spend most of his time working in the press. From all points of view, therefore, South Africa should be left out of consideration. But it is otherwise with Ceylon. Kamalnayan can join any one of the schools there. The climate of Nuwara Eliya is excellent. There is hardly any place which can surpass it in the beauty of natural surroundings. We will also find there a large number of persons whom we know. Bernard Alovihari is a close friend. He is a very good scholar and a man of character. He was on the same boat with me when I returned from England. He belongs to one of the ancient families of Ceylon. If Kamalnayan does not feel happy there, we can immediately call him back. You can also write to him frequently and so can he to you. According to me, therefore, Ceylon is the only country to which we can send Kamal-nayan to satisfy his desire for learning English, without sacrificing our principles. He also likes the idea. If, however, you do not approve of it, let him remain at Wardha for the present. If he is happy there, we can desire nothing better than that. But I gathered from my conversation with him and knew from his letter that he was not happy in Wardha. That is how the problem arose.

Manilal, who was to leave on Wednesday, has had to postpone his departure. He can now leave on the 29th.

Chhaganlal Joshi arrived here yesterday to help me. This will not lighten my burden, but work will not remain unfinished to the same extent as it did every day till now.

_Blessings from_

_BAPU_

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 2907

235. LETTER TO DEONAYAKACHARYA AND HIRALAL D. NANAVATI

December 11, 1932

DEAR FRIEND,

I thank you for your letter of 8th instant. Your interpretation in para 2 of your letter is correct. You will therefore please correspond with Acharya Dhruva and arrange for the discussion suggested. The object of such a joint discussion will, I take it, be to act upon my mind and heart. I would naturally follow the discussion with an open mind and respectful attention. If you mean more than this in para 4 of your letter you will please explain.

Your admonition in the two concluding paragraphs does not call for any reply.

MESSRS DEONAYAKACHARYA AND HIRALAL D. NANAVATI

From a microfilm: S.N. 18688; also _The Hindu_, 19-12-1932

236. LETTER TO PRAGNANESWAR YATI

December 11, 1932

I thank you for your frank letter. I would ask you not to feel so nervous about myself. Through a period of active service covering more than forty years you will not recall more than perhaps twelve occasions of vicarious fasting. It came into my life, as I conceive it, after I had become a fit instrument for doing it. No one can do it in a

1 Vide Appendix “Letter from Secretary, All-India Varnasharma Swarajya Sangh”.

2 In the source, what follows is written in Gandhiji’s own hand.

3 The addressee had written: “It is a matter of regret that you do not compromise on any point and yet keep the threat of a fast ever hanging. How can one deal with you?”
hurry and my claim you know. I do not act on my own, but I act in obedience to the inner prompting. Whether it is the voice of the divine or the devil, it is not always easy to say. Nevertheless in each case the claim to the inner prompting may be held to be justified. So far as Mr. Mate’s reproduction of his conversation between him and me is concerned, your deduction is too sweeping. In order to have a proper clearance it would be better perhaps if we meet, and I shall await you on . . . at . . .”

_Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 318_

237. LETTER TO NANABHAI I. MASHRUWALA

December 11, 1932

First about Appasaheb. One should serve untouchables wherever one finds them. Moreover, persons serving the cause of anti-untouchability ought not to be silent witnesses to people who are not untouchables being treated as such. Appa’s _tapashcharya_ in this regard is not a new thing, and his demand was not that he should be permitted to do a particular kind of work in place of another, but that he should not be prevented from doing what he regarded as his dharma. I cannot go into further details on this subject. However, I did not have even a moment’s doubt about the propriety of Appasaheb’s step or about the step I intended to take. Nor have I any doubt about it now after the matter is over.

Now about the issue of temple-entry. It would of course be illegal on the part of the trustees if they go beyond their authority in doing anything. The present movement is not intended to force the trustees to take any illegal step. However, if the people on whose behalf they are acting as trustees desire a particular step to be taken, it becomes their duty to secure legal sanction for it. If the people are against a proposed step, a fast [to force the trustees to take it] would be blackmail, and a poll is being taken to prove that the intended fast is not of such character. If the majority of people express themselves against Harijans being permitted to enter temples, then I will not fast on that issue. But other more difficult duties will arise for us then, which it is unnecessary to discuss now. If a temple belongs to a particular sect, we cannot insist on people outside its fold being permitted to visit it, but the Harijans belonging to that sect must have the right to enter it. This question, however, does not arise at all in the case of the Guruvayur Temple. The idea of fasting has a purely spiritual aim. Without it, it would be impossible to overcome our inertia. Whenever a religion had lost its vitality, men of sincere devotion went through extreme tapashcharya to restore life to it. Without such tapashcharya, no religious awakening can be brought about. If a person disappears into a jungle and undertakes an indefinite fast, nothing can be said against his step. It would of course be considered foolish if anyone did that ignorantly. But the step would be regarded as irreproachable if taken with a spiritual aim. A lighter step than that by me in the present circumstances would be fully justified. I say ‘lighter’ because my fast will not be absolute or unconditional. The fast will end if a certain condition is accepted. In laying down a condition one should exercise discretion and self-restraint, and I believe that I have done so in the present instance. Being conditional, the fast will shock the people less to that extent. My relation with the people has now become a family bond. For many years I have trained myself for such a bond, and I have seen from personal experience that, within certain limits, fasting has a place in domestic relationships. Even in that sphere, one must of course exercise self-restraint. It is after experimenting in the small family circle that I have widened the field of practice. I have tried to explain the idea so as to convince your reason, but the truth is that I have never undertaken any of my fasts after rational consideration, but that each one of them was undertaken in obedience to the inner voice. I do not mean to say that there can be no error in this. There goes on in the heart a ceaseless battle between the divine and the demoniac. We cannot always judge when it is the demon that deludes us or the divine that leads us. It is for this reason that religion enjoins that everybody who wishes to awaken the divine in him should walk on the razor’s edge of the yamaniyamas.

[From Gujarati]

238. LETTER TO ASHRAM BOYS AND GIRLS

December 11, 1932

DEAR BOYS AND GIRLS,

You should know that I have suggested¹ the changes in food in order to improve the health of the people and increase their self-control and peace of mind. Those who do not like them may not try them. Those who have tried them and found that they do not suit them may give them up. Nobody should accept them unwillingly or out of false shame. I hope you observe silence during meals and when spinning for yajna.

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./II

239. LETTER TO GANGABEHN B. JHAVERI

December 11, 1932

CHI. GANGABEHN (JHAVERI),

It is not good that you, who used to write to me regularly should have stopped writing altogether. However busy I may be, I must get letters from you all. I hope your health is improving.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 3950

240. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

December 11, 1932

CHI. NARANDAS,

Read my letter to Sitla Sahai. Read the letter to Lakshmi too.

Chhaganlal has returned. He told me that jowar gruel is the most popular item of food with prisoners. I am making further inquiries. Let me know the result of your observation. From time to time, ask all those who have joined the experiment. I hope you get everybody weighed.

I have been getting your letters in due time. For some time, keep on writing as often as necessary. Is wheat, bajri and jowar flour consumed whole? Where do you get the grain ground? Those who eat four times a day may continue the practice. My point was that nobody should eat between meals. Eating off and on does a great deal of harm. I hope that the shortage of ghee has been met. Does not Shankarbhai take milk? He should not pay excessive attention to his piles.

Raojibhai’s demand seems to be reasonable. I hope Dahibehn has taken away Balbhadra.

Ask Soman to write to me. He should increase his weight. But he should take care that in his attempt to do so he does not fall ill. How did Jamna become ill? I hope she is all right now.

In all there are 25 letters. All of them are stitched together.

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./I. Also C.W. 8279. Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi

241. LETTER TO PREMA BEHN KANTAK

December 11, 1932

CHI. PREMA.

Your tonsils must have been removed by now. I am awaiting a detailed account.

If thinner gruel agrees with you better, you should take that. My only point is that, if you take only gruel in the morning that will help evacuation. But I don’t insist on anything against your wish. If you think it necessary to eat boiled vegetables, you may do so. Drinking water slowly may also help.

You must have sent some slivers to Dhurandhar. I shall expect Sushila and you at the end of this month.

When you write to Kisen, send my blessings to her.

Try to know what is in Lakshmi’s mind. Try to understand Padma.

Is it true that Shanta has come? Have a talk with her and know all the facts from her. I did not like her conduct. I am writing to her.

However short my letters may be, you should go on sending me your narratives.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10314. Also C.W. 6753. Courtesy: Premabehn Kantak
242. LETTER TO PADMA
December 11, 1932

CHI. PADMA,

I hope you have become calm now. Do you understand now what true freedom means? If you have understood it, tell me what it is. You may come again if you wish to see me. I see that your discontent also is a cause of your ill-health. Understand this properly and become calm. If you feel the slightest desire to marry, let me know. Take complete rest there.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 6142. Also C.W. 3494. Courtesy: Prabhudas Gandhi

243. LETTER TO RAMACHANDRA N. KHARE
December 11, 1932

CHI. RAMACHANDRA,

I got your letter. You have not replied to my question. I hope your health is all right now.

BAPU

From Gujarati: C.W. 301. Courtesy: Lakshmibehn N. Khare

244. LETTER TO SHANTA S. PATEL
December 11, 1932

CHI. SHANTA,

I don’t like your behaviour, for I don’t understand it. You seem to be going and returning at will. I also did not understand why Mangala took away Pushpa with her. Probably you have sufficient reason for all this. But it is your duty to explain it to me and to Narandas. Write to me and explain every thing. You may come and see me if you wish.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 4068
245. LETTER TO THE SANATANISTS

December 11, 1932

You may convert me if you can. But I cannot accept the decision of the Parishad in a religious matter as final.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 319

246. LETTER TO PRABHUDAS GANDHI

YERAVDA CENTRAL PRISON,
(POONA),
December 11, 1993

CHI. PRABHUDAS,

I got your letters. I have had talks with Sarojinidevi and Padma. It is not permissible to see Sitala Sahai and so I have not met him. I have the impression that unknowingly you have yielded to impure thoughts about Padma. The impurity can be clearly seen in your letter. It is not possible for a man to conceal his impure thoughts. The behaviour of you two towards each other was not that of a brother and sister. The scandals that were doing the rounds were justified. Still, I do not wish to blame you. There was no end to your foolishness. I should not have allowed any girl to come into contact with you. Now that my eyes have been opened, I will make some other arrangement for Padma. She has understood. As for Sitala Sahai, he is extremely unhappy. I have consoled him. Marriage is the best remedy for you. By all means get married. It will be better if you find a widow as your partner. If that is not possible in any circumstances, you may do as you wish. Whomsoever you choose to marry, tell her all the facts about your body. If you thus marry, the question will arise as to what will happen to the Ashram which you will have left. At the moment, I can say without thinking over the matter further that there will be no harm if you stay on for the present. We can consider later what should be done. If you do this, a salary can be fixed for you with which you

---

1 This letter was in reply to a joint letter from the addressees in which they had stated that they were willing to hold a Parishad of the pundits, but had asked Gandhiji whether he would accept their decision.

2 For further discussion on the subject, vide Appendix”Discussion with Mahadeev Desai”.

178 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
may meet your household expenses and may also attend to khadi and other work. If you give the Khali to somebody, you will get money for that. Do not in any way feel helpless. I am not accusing you of anything. It is only a recognition of the true situation. If you wish to suggest any change in this, write and let me know. If you wish to see me, you may come and meet me. Let me know if you have a girl in mind. I have sent Chhaganlal an account of the matter.

Padma has asked to be permitted to write to you. I have given her the permission to do so through me. It has not finally been decided what should be done about her.

I have no fears on your account. In the end, all will certainly be well with you. I have not lost my faith in you. We are quite happy. Chhaganlal Joshi is here.

Blessings from

BAPU

[PS.]

What is the arrangement for water in Khali, Do they get enough?

From the Gujarati original: S.N. 32984

247. LETTER TO TULSI MAHER

December 11, 1932

CHI. TULSI MAHER,

I got two letters from you. I want an account from you of the yearly increase in the number of charkhas, the expenditure, the number of carding bows, the quantity of cotton carded, or spun or woven, and other activities—an account like the one maintained in all offices. I was glad to learn that you are keeping good health.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 6542
248. LETTER TO MOOLCHAND AGRAWAL

December 11, 1932

Bhai Moolchandji,

Neither the mother nor the wife can be with you for all time. Dharma is the only companion, so do the bidding of dharma.

Parameshwar and prakriti\(^1\) are not different, therefore prakriti too has no beginning. What is not Parameshwar is only an attribute.

Bapu

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 772

249. LETTER TO VIDYA HINGORANI

Yeravda Mandir,

December 11, 1932

Chi. Vidya,

I have your letter. I hope you are now well. Let me know your daily routine. Tell Anand that I remember him very much. There is no time to write more.

Blessings from

Bapu

From a microfilm of the Hindi, Courtesy: National Archives of India and Anand T. Hingorani

250. LETTER TO AMTUSSALAAM

December 11, 1932

Dear daughter Amtussalaam,

Your letter. Give up all worries; leave everything to God. It is good if Dr. Sharma\(^2\) comes to the Ashram. We must have only nature cure but up to now we did not find anyone willing to observe the Ashram rules too. These days long letters should not be expected from me.

Blessings from

Bapu

From a photostat of the Urdu: G.N. 267

\(^1\) Nature

\(^2\) Dr. Hiralal Sharma, the naturopath
251. LETTER TO T. CHINNIAH

December 12, 1932

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter of 9th instant. I do not know that I can convince you through letter-writing. I should be very sorry indeed if through my fast which was intended purely to serve the Adi-Dravida, any injustice was done to them, consciously or unconsciously. If you feel that you are part of the Hindu community, I should have imagined that you would not mind election of untouchable candidates by all Hindus including caste Hindus.

I do feel that without having lived in a paracheri I know what you want to convey to me.

If landlords and merchants were a helpless class like the untouchables, I would certainly have felt like fasting, if special electorates had been designed for them, for I am convinced that their helplessness would be increased. Even as it is, whenever we have a popular assembly, it will be discovered that those who have special electorates would not find them a method of protection, but would find them rather a method of weakness. For the reasons I have stated above, I cannot be a consenting party to the reduction of penal to two, and in any case, no one man can alter the Yeravda Pact. I have very little doubt that as time passes you will yourself be convinced that, of the two schemes, the Premier’s and the Yeravda one, the Yeravda one is better.

Yours sincerely,

From a microfilm: S.N. 18693

252. LETTER TO URMILA DEVI

December 12, 1932

My fast ought not to disturb you. It is part of discipline. It is a privilege earned by hard spiritual toil. It is a most powerful weapon in the armoury of a worshipper of truth and ahimsa. It has therefore to be used sparingly. Not every one can use it. You should therefore rejoice that I can use it. This assumes that with me it is spiritually used. If I am self-deceived, Heaven help me and all you who have faith in 1 For extracts, vide Appendix “Extract from T. Chinniah’s Letter”.

2 The place where the depressed classes live me. But if you grant its spirituality in my case, then coerced fast of mine should be a thrill of joy and a source of strength for you. It must move all those who have love for me but that movement should mean a spur to greater performance of duty. I know you can have no difficulty in grasping what I have written. You shall no longer therefore grumble when you learn about my fast in future. Who knows when the next fast will come!

253. A LETTER

December 12, 1932

I have seen *Bleeding Wound*¹ but did not like it. What was the purpose gained by obtaining and printing so many opinions? Should we do for books what the vaidyas do for their medicines? If an introduction was needed, Sjt. Chintamani’s was enough. His introduction had lost some of its weight by the addition of so many opinions. And there is no artistic merit apparent even in the type chosen for printing them. Date, place and such details have not been given at the end of all the articles. There are other mistakes too. My remarks are not intended to discourage you but only to warn you for the future. We must have self-confidence in our undertakings, and one who possesses it need procure no introduction, but one who does not should be satisfied with a single introduction.

[From Hindi]

254. LETTER TO K. M. MUNSHI

December 12, 1932

BHAI MUNSHI,

All of us deserve to be regarded as unfit for public work— one of us suffers from pain in the elbow, and another from neuritis of some limb, and so on. All of us are sick people. It does not matter when the pain in my elbow will disappear, but you must get rid of your neuritis. If it cannot be cured Dr. Gilder should renounce his degree. It is of course very excellent work if you wrote your letter with the left hand and if this was your very first attempt to do so.

¹ Compiled by the addressee with introduction, foreword, preface and blessings from four eminent men.

I suppose Jijima is the same lady I saw at a public prayer, and with whom I even joked a little. The news of her paralysis has not shocked me very much. She must be older than I at any rate. Write to her and tell her that all of us are bound to fall into the eternalsleep through some cause or another. Why, then, should we mind whether it comes through paralysis or some other illness? By all means she should hope to live for a hundred years; but if she must embrace our friend, Death, she should do so smilingly. The prayer that was recited at the prayer-meeting which she attended is recited here daily at night, so that we may learn how to die with a smile on our face. She should ponder over its last verse.

I wrote a letter\(^1\) also after sending the telegram\(^2\). You must have received it. In it I have reassured you even more clearly than in the telegram. If you do not get that letter, let me know. I will write again whatever I remember from it. Write to me from time to time.

I got your letter after I wrote to Lilavati this morning. I am dictating this reply at night.

If I am fit to bless you,

Blessings from

BAPU

From Gujarati: C.W. 7521. Courtesy. K. M. Munshi

255. LETTER TO KAMALNAYAN BAJAJ

December 12, 1932

All descriptions of the atman are of its pure state, just as a description of water can be of pure water only. There cannot be one description of dirty water. If water could think, every pool of dirty water would ask the same question that you have done, and one of them might describe the qualities of pure water and exhort its fellows to become like that. This is exactly what Shri Krishna, who knew the qualities of the pure atman, did. We should know what these qualities are and try to become such atman. If you ask me how the atman

\(^1\) Vide “Letter to K.M. Munshi”, 8-12-1932.
\(^2\) Vide “Telegram to Narandas Gandhi”, 7-12-1932.
becomes impure, my reply is that I do not know it, nor need we know it. We know that impurity is a fact, what the qualities of the pure state are and how we may get rid of the impurity. That should be enough for us. If I have not answered your question, you may ask me to explain again.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhai Diary, Vol. II, pp. 322-3

256. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

December 12, 1932

CHI. NARANDAS,

I got your letter of the 10th. Radha’s case is rather alarming. As she has been running continuous temperature going up to 103 degrees, I think she must have become very thin and weak. Kusum seems to be improving slowly. If you have now got more information about Jethalal who died in the Sabarmati jail, to what term he was sentenced and of what he died, for what offence he was arrested, etc., please let me know.

I got Mithubehn’s, Bhansali’s and Kanti’s letters.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./I. Also C.W. 8280. Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi

257. LETTER TO BEGUM MOHAMMAD ALAM

[December 12, 1932]¹

DEAR SISTER,

This letter of yours is quite perfect. Hindu ladies usually write an atrocious hand, but the letters from Muslim ladies are all good. That is why I do mind when any letter is not up to the mark. Good that my teasing has accomplished all this! Let us hope that Doctor Saheb makes a full recovery this time.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 23

¹ It is evident from the contents that this letter was written after the letter of November 26, 1932 to Dr. Mohammad Alam, the addressee’s husband. Another letter addressed to him on December 22, 1932 and “Diary, 1932”, entry under this date, mention a letter to his wife which in all probability is the present letter.
258. LETTER TO C. V. VAIDYA

December 13, 1932

I was delighted to receive your letter so full and instructive. I wish you could have discussed your position with me before sending your letter to the Premier; but nothing is lost yet, and if you can conveniently spare the time, I would love to see you and discuss the thing with you. Meanwhile, I present my doubts:

1. Do you mean to say that under no circumstances can Hindu Law or Hindu practice be changed by Hindu public opinion?
2. Do you say that Smritis are unalterable and that everything said in them has to be carried out to the letter by a devout Hindu?
3. Were not Smritis written or revealed in response to the requirements of the age in which they were written?
4. Were not the Smritis written at different times?
5. If you hold that under no conceivable circumstance can legislation alter prevailing practice, how would you deal with the legal difficulty which is supposed to exist in Madras, viz., that even one man can under the law decided by the present courts, prevent the entry of untouchables to certain temples in spite of the consensus of public opinion in favour of such entry?
6. Or, do you hold that the existing temples can never be opened to untouchables?
7. Or, is not your opposition to legislation based on the assumption that the mixed legislatures would be interfering with

---

1 Dated December 8, 1932 which read: “... I have addressed a letter (dated November 18, 1932) to Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, President, 3rd R.T.C. ... The reason which led me to address the letter is that I apprehend that hasty reformers will force by legislation, temple-entry and such like reforms down the throats of the orthodox Hindus of India who are voiceless, not being represented in the R.T.C. or the Legislative Councils. ... Subsequently came your declaration published in The Times of India, that if you had the power you would make it an offence under the Penal Code for anyone to refuse to touch the Harijans. This was the last straw that broke the back of my silence and I at once addressed a letter on the subject to Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, President, 3rd R.T.C., requesting him to introduce a section in the new Constitution like the one existing in the present Government of India Act, prohibiting future legislatures from passing any laws forcing reforms in religious and socio-religious matters. ... I feel strongly on the subject of non-interference by the State Legislatures in such matters and I thought it my duty to do what I can for it at this juncture" (S.N. 18669).
Hindu religion, although if Hindu opinion was taken, such legislation would be found to have no public backing?

8. What objection would you see to the mere Hindu legis-lators first passing legislation regarding Hindu religion and then for the sake of formality it being passed by the whole House or Houses as the case may be.

9. Who are untouchables according to the Vedas, or, if you like, traditional Hindu religion?

10. Does untouchability attach to birth and persist from generation to generation?

11. Is such untouchability incurable by any penance or purification undergone by such untouchables?

12. Is prohibition against interdining and intermarriage an integral part of varna dharma?

13. Is varna dharma fully performed if a man belonging to one varna desists from dining with those belonging to a different varna and from contracting marriage relations with people of a different varna?

14. Does a person so interdining or intermarrying forfeit his varna?

15. Is not occupation the test of varna, and ‘does not a person who changes his occupation, say, Brahmin, to that of another varna, pass on to that varna, or, it may be, forfeit his right to any varna at all?

I will not exhaust your patience nor tax your energy by adding to the already long list of questions, nor do I want you to burn midnight oil in order to be prompt in your reply, as you always are. Perhaps you will be able to give in a sentence or two an exhaustive answer which will cover all the points that have occurred to me. Anyway I shall look forward to your reply, and still more eagerly to your saying that you will make time to come to Yeravda to see me. I suppose you are older than I am, but I am sure that it does not interfere with your vigour.

Yours sincerely,

SIT. C. V. VAI DY A, M.A., LL. B.
GIRGAUM BACK ROAD, BOMBAY NO. 4

From a microfilm: S.N. 18695
MY DEAR NAGESWAR RAO,

I have your letter. My message to you is that I hope Andhra will be to the fore in removing the blot of untouchability of Hinduism.

As to the interview\(^1\) with Shree Suryanarayana Rao, I do not think there is anything to send to the Press. Nearly three-fourths of the long time I gave him was passed in reading some correspondence with his guru and then discussing with him his own credentials or qualifications for knowing all about Hinduism. He quoted some verses from the Bhagavad Gita to convince me that untouchability was countenanced by it and that it attached to birth, but he left on me the impression that public opinion in the general interest of the community demanded removal of the bar against the entry of avarnas to temples, and that so far as the other disabilities were concerned they should certainly be removed. But he was emphatic that there should be no force used in connection with temple-entry, but that efforts should be made in a conciliatory manner to persuade custodians of temples to throw them open to untouchables wherever public opinion was ripe. Naturally there was no question of our agreeing, but the attempt was made to understand each other’s position and he said that as he understood what it was that I was exactly fighting for, he would try to collect together the sanatanists in the South and procure a settlement. Whilst I am dictating this, Ramchandra Rao is here, and he generally confirms my impression. If Sjt. Suryanarayana Rao has said anything that is inconsistent with this statement, you should show this to him before publishing it, or, if you come to the conclusion that my statement should be published in any case, then, too, it should not be published without its being first shown to him.

Yours sincerely,

SJT. K. NAGESWAR RAO

“ANDHRA PATRIKA”

THAMBU CHETTY STREET, GEORGETOWN, MADRAS

From a microfilm: S.N. 18698

---

\(^1\) On December 3, 1932; vide “Diary, 1932”, entry under this date.
260. LETTER TO SADASHIV RAO KARNAD

December 13, 1932

MY DEAR SADASHIV RAO,

I am glad you are keeping me informed of your doings there. The resentment even against Ba was bound to come. We should submit to all this cheerfully as a matter of course, and if we do, that is to say, do not even mentally resent the orthodox resentment but appreciate that if we were in their place probably we would have done likewise, you will find that in an incredibly short time this resentment will spend itself for want of resistance. That anger can be conquered by want of it by the victim is a scientific fact capable of verification in day-to-day life. But I know that it is a difficult task; but whether difficult or easy, in this matter of pure religion we dare not lose self-control and retaliate in any shape or form.

Yours sincerely,

SIT. SADASHIV RAO KARNAD

From a microfilm: S.N. 18699

261. LETTER TO RAMTARAN MUKHERJI

December 13, 1932

Thank you for your letter.¹ All cannot have the gift of Shankaracharya. I am using in my own humble manner such gifts as God has given me. Just as religious preachers like Shankaracharyaji have time after time dedicated their great learning for the sake of religion, so have others promoted religion on prayer and fasting.

From a microfilm: S.N. 18660

262. LETTER TO S. P. PATWARDHAN

December 13, 1932

MY DEAR APPA,

I have got your two letters². Just at present I do not want to deal with many of the important issues you have raised in your letter of the 7th instant, but there is one thing which has complicated the matter. The Inspector-General did not know and has even now no official

¹ Vide Appendix “Letter from Ramtaram Mukherji”.
² Dated December 7 and 8 knowledge that you were actually doing conservancy work. The previous orders were therefore passed in ignorance of this very material fact. It is very difficult now all of a sudden to have alterations made simply in your case. After all, what you were and are fighting for is the principle, and the question of principle is now before the Government of India. It will be decided, I am hoping, within a few days, certainly not months. For the present, therefore, I think that you should be content with the progress that has been made. Your telegram to me was unequivocal and therefore I think that you should take proper nourishment. Full ration does not therefore mean to me the ration as it is issued to healthy prisoners. For you to lose ten pounds is a big loss. I think, therefore, that you should take the food that may be medically prescribed, if it is not otherwise forbidden food. The Inspector-General of Prisons has kindly given instructions, so far as I understand, that you should have the food that your constitution may at present require. I hope you have no objection to taking milk.

Yours sincerely,

BAPU

SIT. APPASAHEB PATWARDHAN

Home Department, Political, File No. 31/108-Poll., 1932, p. 71. Courtesy: National Archives of India. Also Bombay Secret Abstracts, Home Department, Special Branch, File No. 800(40)(6), p. 253

263. LETTER TO RAMACHANDRA J. SOMAN

December 13, 1932

Bhai Soman,

I could find your letter last night. I had a faint impression that I had received one letter. So at the time of the weekly mail there was some confusion in my mind and I asked you to write to me. But now I have found the letter I wanted.

You have raised questions of a subtle nature. It is of course likely that forbearance may result in unmanliness or cowardice. Were it not so, we would not be faced with difficult problems of what is dharma and what is not dharma. Generally speaking, we may say that we ought not to tolerate an insult if it would be spiritually degrading to do so. This does not happen frequently. If the question is not of personal convenience or amenity, we ought to resist even at the cost of physical suffering what we were not prepared to tolerate. Everybody should decide his own limits in such a matter. Moreover, we ought to distinguish between pride and self-respect. A proud person will take offence at every little thing. He who has got rid of selfishness will probably be able to distinguish between the two. Be satisfied with this. I did not lose six pounds in a day, but lost four pounds. I will not explain about the Appa affair in this letter. You ought to learn not to worry on account of my fasts. One should rejoice at a fast if it is inspired by spiritual motives. I am sure that my fasts are so inspired.

I hope your weight is increasing.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 4049. Also C.W. 94. Courtesy: Ramachandra J. Soman

264. STATEMENT ON UNTOUCHABILITY-XI

December 14, 1932

Supposing on the strength of your statement that in the event of the Referendum going against you, you would have to postpone your fast indefinitely, voters, although they may be in favour of Harijans entering the Guruvayur Temple, give their votes against you for the sake of preventing the fast, what would you do?

This is a question asked of me. I should hope there would be no such trickery resorted to by the voters. If, however, it is discovered that they have resorted to any such trickery, I can only say that they would be endangering my life more than if they voted honestly and according to their convictions.

Having put my life at stake for the removal of untouchability, I hope I shall not be found so cowardly as to save it by taking advantage of any dodge. What I have said about the postponement refers only to honest voting.

If I am satisfied that the majority of temple-goers in the neighbourhood of Guruvayur are really against temple-entry by Harijans, and if I still persisted in fasting, I should be guilty of using coercive measures in order to secure my end. I am not conscious of ever having done such a thing in my life, and I am not likely to do so now, when I may be nearing my end, to deny the practice of a lifetime.

1 Vide “Letter to P.N. Rajbhoj”, 8-12-1932.

I am most anxious to preserve the approaching fast against the slightest taint of coercion, and I have no doubt that at the end of it, it would be found to have been free from reproach. I am watching, as a scientist would watch, the effect the contemplated fast is producing, and it fills me with hope and delight. It has set the people thinking, and it will certainly not compel any person to act against his conscience; but it is making sluggish people shed their sluggishness and act promptly, that is to say, that it is moving to action those who bear affection towards me.

I am not sorry for that movement. Those who think that I am attempting to corrupt Hinduism, write to me angry letters and invite me to anticipate the fast and thus hasten my death. I do not mind such letters. I am used to receiving them. I merely refer to them to show that those who are opposed to the removal of untouchability are not likely to be affected by any fast that I may embark upon; and much less by the mere contemplation of it, and this is as it should be. I should like to say more about the origin of the fasting method under the given circumstances in my life. I must, however, postpone this to a future date. At the moment, I can only say that neither Srijut Kelappan nor I can be deterred from the step which has been dictated to us by our consciences.

When every effort is being made to ensure the honesty of the Referendum, it comes as a painful surprise to me that the Zamorin is making charges of fraud against those who are engaged in the Referendum work. I regard him as an honourable man. He knows that Srijut Madhavan Nair, who is the chairman of the Referendum Committee, is a well-known advocate respected throughout Kerala, and is assisted by Srijut Rajagopalachari, who is on the spot. I do not know of any of the leading workers who would tolerate any questionable practice.

It is, therefore, the duty of the Zamorin or any other person who may hear anything about the fraudulent practice, to bring it to the notice of the Committee. It is impossible to deal with the general charge unsupported by any evidence. There is no occasion to import passion or partisan feelings into what is purely a moral and religious question; but the orthodox party and the reformers can, if they will, work in close association for the elucidation of truth. I can only repeat my assurance so often given by me that if I found I was wrong about the local public opinion being in favour of temple-entry, I should immediately retrace my step. I have no other end to serve but that of truth.

The Bombay Chronicle, 15-12-1932

265. LETTER TO E. E. DOYLE

December 14, 1932

DEAR COL. DOYLE,

Will you kindly send the enclosed¹ to Appasaheb Patwardhan?

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

Government of Bombay, Home Department, I.G.P. File No. 10

266. LETTER TO SUNDAR DASS

December 14, 1932

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter of the 8th instant. It is difficult for me to prescribe your future programme without knowing your special condition. I would therefore ask you to see the local workers and fix the programme in consultation with them. But in any case, please give me the following information:

1. What is the population of the Balmik Achhuts² in your district?
2. What is their occupation?
3. How long have they settled there?
4. What are the disabilities they are suffering from?

Yours sincerely,

SJT. SUNDAR DASS
SECRETARY, BALMIK ACHHUT MANDAL
KOHAT (N.W.F.P.)

From a microfilm: S.N. 18700

² Untouchables
267. LETTER TO MOTILAL ROY

December 14, 1932

DEAR MOTI BABOO,

I have your letter, and now your telegram. I hope you received my telegram. I can trace through everything you write and wire your enthusiasm and optimism. It is a good thing you have decided to see me and to bring Pandit Panchanan Tarkaratna.

But I want you to be quite sure of your foundation. The trouble is one for making Hinduism a living faith. There is therefore no room for compromise on fundamentals. It does not matter, even if at the present moment, we cannot see the revival with our physical eyes, but in our impatience we may not compromise with untouchability as we know it today. Untouchability of a type is universal. Our quarrel is against the monstrosity as we see it today.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

SJR. MOTILAL ROY
PRABARTAK SAMGHA, CHANDERNAGORE

From a photostat: G.N. 11040

268. LETTER TO U. GOPALA MENON

December 14, 1932

MY DEAR GOPALA MENON,

I have your letter. I did not understand what you said about the conditions as to cleanliness. I had noticed it in the forms that were sent to me, but I had put the interpretation that you have, that it was a condition of universal application. Naturally, the Harijans come under the general conditions.

I am glad that villagers are proving a tough job. It is good education for them and for us. The workers should neither lose faith in themselves nor patience with the villagers.

I am glad that both Urmila Devi and Ba are keeping their health.

1 The letter was in reply to the addressee’s letter of December 7, asking for a telegraphic message for a conference against untouchability being held on December 25 in Bengal (S.N. 18666).
2 A Sanatanist leader
3 The source has “phase”.

VOL. 58 : 16 NOVEMBER, 1932 - 14 JANUARY, 1933  193
I came upon Madhavan Nair’s letter after having dictated this letter to you. Please therefore share this letter with him and let it be regarded as a joint letter. Though I cannot compete with you in the strenuous labour you are going through, I have my work cut out for me and I have to economize time in order to be able to overtake the growing correspondence and the increasing number of interviews.

Yours sincerely,

From a microfilm: S.N. 18705

269. LETTER TO BHAGWANDAS

December 14, 1932

DEAR BABOO BHAGWANDAS,

I have your most touching letter of the 10th instant. I do not know in what connection I could have told Devi Prasadji that you and Paramarth Baboo should go to Guruvayur. I knew the condition of your health. I cannot now recall the conversation. I can blame no one, least of all Devi Prasadji, but it is not yet, thank God, too late to mend.

In reply to Dhruvaji’s letter I sent a telegram saying it was unnecessary for you and Paramarth Baboo to come to Poona, or to go to Guruvayur. If your presence had been a necessity, I would not have hesitated to risk damage to your health, but there is no such necessity. I did want Dhruvaji, not merely as a Sanskrit scholar, but also as Malaviyaji’s accredited agent, and I told Kerala friends long ago that they should telegraph to Malaviyaji not to trouble to go to Kerala. We do not want to rush to Guruvayur. If the caste Hindus near Guruvayur are ready to admit the out-castes to that temple, nothing can stop their entry; if they are not, we shall have to wait for their conversion. I wanted someone, well-versed in Shastraic lore to see the Shastris of Malabar face to face, and if that someone went with Malaviyaji’s authority at his back, it was enough, but now even that may be unnecessary. Nevertheless, I want Dhruvaji to meet some sanatanists here, if only for the satisfaction of the latter. Some of them have been at me. I told them that whilst my conviction was deep and had been proof

1 Dr. Bhagwandas of Varanasi, a philosopher and Sanskrit scholar
2 The addressee had said in it that “despite the unfitness” he would start either on the 20th or the 21st and reach Poona on the 22nd and see Gandhiji with Anandshankar Dhruv on the 23rd and then, despite his indifferent health, proceed with the latter to Guruvayur (S.N. 18685).
against assault for the past 45 years, since I was a fallible mortal I was open to be acted upon by any of the sanatani friends, and if I discovered that I had mistaken darkness for light, I would have no hesitation in going back upon 45 years’ conviction and be witness to truth, and it is in that spirit that I shall approach the 23rd instant, if the sanatani friends will attend the contemplated meeting. If, after all this, you feel drawn towards Yeravda, do by all means come, and if you do, do not come to rush away. There will be work enough and to spare for you for a few days. It is unthinkable to disturb Malaviyaji. I know that he has his hands full.

I hope you did not miss my statement wherein I wholeheartedly endorsed your suggestion that whilst there is and should be no untouchability regarding birth, there should be as there always has been throughout the world untouchability with regard to particular kinds of work, and that such untouchability was always curable after due cleansing.

Your last paragraph is the most touching in your touching letter. I would not be truthful if I did accept your certificate, for it has been a lifelong effort to hear the voice of silence and to reduce self to zero. It has been a terrific though joyful struggle. It has not ended yet. The final result God only knows. I have no doubt that my recent acts have given a shock to dearest friends but all of them have been more than good to me. I was helpless, for in reality the acts were not mine. I was dominated by the Architect of us all.

Yours sincerely,

From a microfilm: S.N. 18706

---

1 Vide “Statement on Untouchability—X”, 9-12-1932.
2 This read: “Together with the large majority of the Indian people, I have great faith in the dictates of your pure heart, even when we may not be able to understand the reasons for them; for indeed always prayerful heart must see much further and much deeper than any head; and I feel that I should obey your least wishes at this juncture as far as may be possible for me, trusting that the needed fitness will come to me through your good wishes. Dhruvaji and Prem Nathji possess, of course, all the Sanskrit learning and debating power that may be needed, and it will be a pleasure and a privilege to work in company with them.”
DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter. I am quite clear in my mind that having given your word and heart to the girl, whether she is called a Shudra or what not, and as she is deeply attached to you, you cannot get out of this sacred pledge, no matter what befalls you. I assume that the girl herself is a virtuous one and that the same can be said of you. In other words, this is a case of pure love between you two. If, on the other hand, there is the slightest irregularity or flaw about your position, you should obey your parents. If the girl and you are really virtuous and would become model householders, your parents will forgive the difference in caste and give you both their blessings.

Yours sincerely

SIT. KAMAL KUMAR BANERJI
CENTRAL HOTEL
CALCUTTA

From a microfilm: S.N. 18707

1 Dated December 6, 1932. This read: “... some years ago when my discretion had not become sounder and intelligence had not ripened, in an unguarded moment I gave an assurance to a girl of tender age that I would be her husband. I could not foresee then that she would cling to me passionately, my assurance having become an article of faith in her. There might have been no difficulty in our union if she had been a Brahmin, to which caste I belong, but unfortunately she is a Shudra... The idea of a marriage between a Brahmin and a Shudra is revolting to my parents and they much resent it. I am in a fix. I dare not offend my parents who are my makers and to whom I still owe my existence. On the other hand I cannot disown the girl who has considered herself to be my betrothed for years and to discard whom now will probably cause her death. This, I frankly confess, militates against my conscience but I see no way to bridge the difficulty in which I am placed, viz., to marry the girl and at the same time to earn the blessings of the parents. I therefore earnestly appeal to you to take my hapless case into your kind consideration and hold out to me the torch so that I may see a path in the darkness which has enveloped me and is threatening to wipe out the existence of two poor souls” (S.N. 18666).
271. LETTER TO A BENGALI BOY

December 14, 1932

It is quite clear to me that you should make a clean breast of everything before your parents. The shame was in committing the sins you admit, but there need be no shame in making a clean confession before your parents. If you do it with a pure heart, you will find an accession of strength coming to you which you never had before.

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 335

272. LETTER TO MANIBEHN

December 14, 1932

It is but natural that palate of a person in good health should be sensitive to, and relish for himself, the tastes of various foods, and even the man of the highest degree of self-control will recognize and ought to be able to recognize, such relish. Only he should have no attachment to it. When one becomes accustomed to abstinence from a harmful thing—whatever the reason for abstaining from it, such abstinence benefits the soul as well as the body as the hankering for that thing disappears. The effect of a complete or a partial fast varies with different men according to their natures and in the same person at different times. You will be able from your numerous experiences to think of cases in which the mind or the body or both of them were the cause for such difference. Not only do I feel no hardship in observing silence, but every week I eagerly look forward to one o’clock on Sunday. The fact is that we feel hardship in doing a thing for which we are not mentally ready. Anything for which the mind is ready or is made ready becomes quite easy to do. The person who becomes absorbed in silence ceases to hear the idle chatting of people around him. I hope you remember the secluded hut erected for Kishorelalbhai. There could be nothing but peace and silence in such a place. For two or three days Kishorelal found the rattling noise made by running trains unbearable, and I suggested that he should close his ears with cotton plugs. However, when I went to him the next morning,

1 The letter was in reply to addressee’s which read: “A sinner as I am by what means should I absolve myself of the sins? You had confessed your sins before your father; how can I develop the courage to do likewise? I have read your Autobiography; how can I gain the strength to admit my sins?”
he told me that he had heard neither the train whistle nor the noise of the running wheels on that day. Of course both these things had been there, but he had stopped paying attention to them. In other words, he had become accustomed to silence. My suggestion about the cotton plugs had roused him, for such artificial aid would be repugnant to one who has voluntarily retired into solitude and taken a vow of silence. Those who come to love silence begin ultimately to listen to the divine music within, and are so absorbed in it that they cease to hear the sounds occurring around them.

Our cat family has three members. They present themselves daily without fail at both the mealtimes, without a bell being rung for them or without being called. If we all become as punctual as these dear creatures, we would save millions of hours of time. And we have doubtless been taught how time is money. This is perfectly true, and so money saved is money earned. Who can compute the loss of wealth to this world through people who do not value time?

I certainly do not wish that the number of anti-untouchability workers should increase artificially. I would never wish that those who have a clear duty before them should leave it for Harijan work, no matter how dear such work may be to them.

[From Gujarati]

273. LETTER TO SHIVPRASAD GUPTA

December 14, 1932

If a temple is somebody’s private property, it is true that it would be coercion to try to get it thrown open to Harijans.

[From Gujarati]
Mahadevbhai Diary, Vol. II, p. 338

274. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

December 14, 1932

CHI. NARANDAS,

I got the weekly mail. I am writing this after reading Anandi’s letter.

The rule about eating three times only does not apply to anybody who is ill or weak in health. Nor does it apply to children. The rule which applies to all is this:

Everybody should eat in the same manner as he takes medicine—in measured quantity and at fixed times. Somebody may even have to be fed two teaspoonfuls of something every hour. If so he should not be given that thing every half an hour.

Thus the habit of munching something in between meals is a bad one and is violation of the vow of not indulging the palate. One should not even eat a green tamarind. But a girl like Anandi may need to eat more often than thrice. She ought not to do so just to please herself, but she may eat what is necessary for the sake of her health and as often as necessary. Children of the age of Babla may eat four times. Of course nobody should swallow in three meals the quantity that he would eat in four meals. It may help if the quantity consumed in three meals is divided into four meals, but it would be harmful to eat in three meals the quantity that one might eat in four meals.

When one has got fever, one should not eat solid food, by which I mean wheat, jowar, bajri, rice, pulses and tubers, that is, articles which contain starch and protein. If, however, one feels hungry and passes normal stools, one may drink milk in small quantities. Fruit juices may be taken in practically any condition, though even these should not be taken if one has no appetite.

Anybody who cannot digest jowar and bajri must not eat them. Anybody whose body—not palate—demands rice, may eat it. For those who are ill, the water in which rice has been boiled sometimes proves the ideal food. Ordinarily, rice is not essential for health and, sometimes, even does harm. Rice-eaters are generally seen to be flabby. They have round bellies. This is a common sight in Bihar and Madras. I hope I have now made myself clear.

What shall I write concerning the Chharas? Our tapashcharya is imperfect. Our faith in God is not strong enough. We do not look upon the Chharas as our own brothers and sisters. We are afraid of them. I deserve this charge more than anybody else. My shortcomings have taken visible form as the camping of Chharas in the neighbourhood of the Ashram. Endure them. Please remember that I have not advised a letter of abject supplication to be written to the Collector. I had suggested the substance of the draft after careful thought. I am, therefore, certainly eager to know what action Mavalankar has taken. I hope you yourself had followed my meaning. I see in this situation a severe test of our devotion to dharma. From here, I see our dharma quite clearly. Any man or woman, old or young, who has courage and faith in God, should go and live among them, plead with them and, even if they beat him or her, show them the right path. We should know how they live. If, however, we do not have the necessary strength to do all this, we should think and decide whether we are willing to defend ourselves by fighting the Chharas. If we are willing to do that, we should decide whether we should seek the Government’s help and, if not, whether we could engage paid watchmen and from which community or class we would select them. If, on the other hand, we do not wish to engage such watchmen, we should decide whether we would fight as best as we could, or whether we would prefer not to abandon our path and, though we did not possess sufficient strength to follow it well, we would be content with as much as we could do in that direction. I think I have said enough. I hope nobody will get scared. I have written all this so that people there may think over the problem.

Prema’s operation must be over.

BAPU

[PS.]

Please let me know what Mavalankar has done. I am thinking what can be done in that direction.

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M. U./I. Also C.W. 8281. Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi

275. LETTER TO NARAYAN M. KHARE

[December 14, 1932]

CHI. PANDITJI,

I have your letter. I have understood the Subodh Patrika. Do you have any doubt about it? If you have, please let me know. I shall explain the thing. I find it very difficult to spare time for Bhajanavali:1

I have written about the Chharas. We should have the strength to win them over.

BAPU

From Gujarati: C.W. 256. Courtesy: Lakshmibehn N. Khare

1 From the reference to the Chharas; vide the preceding item.

276. LETTER TO CHANDRAKANTA

Y. M.,

December 14, 1932

CHI. KANTA,

I have your letter. You must always keep some soda bicarb with you. Whether or not you have a cough, sour buttermilk becomes harmless if a little soda is added to it. Where raw onion is available, do not hesitate to eat it. If nothing else is available, one can carry on with a millet rotla, onion and ghee. Onion has both harmful and beneficial properties. Onions should be eaten but as medicine. Truly, all food should be eaten only as medicine. There is no reason at all to worry because I have lost weight. My health is fine.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: Chandrakanta Papers. Courtesy: Gandhi National Museum and Library

277. FRAGMENT OF LETTER TO DHARMADEV

December 14, 1932

Although what you write about the caste system is true still we cannot mix up reforming of the caste system with the work that is being done today. I have no time at present to state my views on this subject. I shall certainly do so when I find the time for it.

[From Hindi]

Vishva Jyoti, October 1959

---

1 The original has ‘1923’, evidently a slip.
2 Quoted in addressee’s reminiscences of Gandhiji. The addressee had said that as long as people were considered high and low on grounds of birth, and no effort was made to abolish the caste system, the propaganda for eradication of untouchability would serve no purpose.
278. INTERVIEW TO DEPUTATION OF ARYA SAMAJ, BOMBAY

December 14, 1932

In response to ‘namaste’ by the deputation, Mahatmaji welcomed them with a smile. He spent an hour and a half in discussing the subject of untouchability from Shastric point of view. He said that he was aware of the activities of Arya Samaj in this direction, and hoped that Arya Samaj would continue it with more vigour. He directed that Arya Samaj should do propagandist work by lectures and literature and also continue more enthusiastically the constructive work among the untouchables.

Mahatmaji said that he was fully confident about the success of the Guruvayur question from the information received from the workers. He said hundreds of volunteers had reached Malabar and the work was going on satisfactorily. Some of the sanatanist Shastris were also supporting him. The work of referendum was also going on well. He showed his indifference towards the mischievous propaganda which some of the persons had started by misrepresenting his writings, taking a sentence from here and another from there without giving reference to the context.

On request Mahatmaji selected three books from the big bundle brought by the deputationists and being asked to have a copy of Satyarth Prakash, the ‘Magnum Opus of Rishi Dayanand’, he said in reply that he always kept that book with him.1

The Bombay Chronicle, 17-12-1932

1 The deputation, which consisted of Dwijendranath, Shivdas Chapsey, Vijayashankerji, Parbhubhai Sharma, Vallabhdas R. Mehta, Jammubhaiji and Shanker Rao, “impressed upon Mahatmaji that it was essential to counteract the propaganda started by the so-called sanatanists against the work of the removal of untouchability. There was no mention or sanction of so-called untouchability in the Vedas and other ancient scriptures of the Hindus. The criteria to determine the Chandalas, etc., as prescribed in Manu and other Smritis were in no way applicable to the present so-called ‘untouchables’, and Arya Samaj following in the footsteps of Maharshi Dayanand Saraswati had been propagating the message of equality among all human beings. In accordance with the mission of Maharshi Dayanand, Arya Samaj was doing the work of removal of untouchability for long, and with more vigour after the epic fast. The deputation showed its readiness to help the Guruvayur cause, and thanked Mahatmaji for fulfilling the mission of Swami Dayanand Saraswati.”

2 For correction in regard to this report, vide “Letter to Secretary, Arya Samaj, Bombay”, 19-12-1932.
279. STATEMENT ON UNTOUCHABILITY-XII

December 15, 1932

I thought I had made my position quite clear about the limitations of the temple-entry agitation. But I see sanatanist friends are still agitated over a fancied danger which they think sanatan dharma is facing from this agitation. I, therefore, summarize below what I have said in published statements and letters to correspondents:

1. The method of fasting is at the present moment confined only to Guruvayur. There are historic reasons for the fast from a reformer’s standpoint. There was no escape from it. Those reasons I know will not be accepted as any justification by the opponents of reform or even by all who believe in temple-entry. My purpose in referring to it is merely to state the limitations of the fast.

2. The fast as contemplated will not be undertaken if the referendum goes against the reformers. It will be postponed if it is found that the existing law is against reformers and that every effort is made for the necessary legislation and Viceregal sanction has been obtained for the introduction of a permissive Bill, that the Bill cannot go through the Legislature before 2nd January, 1933.

3. I would not be a party to any forcible temple-entry in defiance of the wishes of a majority of worshippers at the respective temples and the agitation will be confined only to public temples. Therefore, the opening of private temples will depend entirely upon their owners and the restrictions applicable to caste Hindus will naturally be applicable to Harijans.

In my opinion, these limitations ought to satisfy any reasonable Hindu, but I know there is a body of opinion which will not tolerate the opening of any existing Hindu temple to Harijans on the same terms as to other Hindus. For such uncompromising opponents, there is no method of conciliation that I can devise short of a programme of new temple building. That means a sharp additional division in an already divided society, but I am convinced if the reformers will loyally and honestly abide by the limitations I have suggested, the unreasonable opposition will die for want of support. Those who have arrogated to themselves the name sanatan dharma, should not be surprised or shocked if opponents also derive authority for reform from the same scriptures that the sanatanists profess to believe in. There is a growing body of Shastris, well versed in Sanskrit lore, who believe... that it is not only permissible in Hinduism to admit ‘untouch-ables’ to public temples, but that it is wrong to prohibit them from offering worship in common with other Hindus at these temples. These pundits also believe that there is no such thing as untoucha-ibility, attaching to birth and incapable of being cured by any penance or purification. They do believe in untouchability attaching to acts and occupations, but this is no peculiarity to Hinduism. It is common to all religions and is based upon sound hygienic principles.

I believe, too, that the alarm caused over the proposed legislation is also based on ignorance. So far as I understand the proposal, it simply amounts to this. If a two-thirds majority of worshippers at a particular temple express their desire through a regular channel devised by the legislature, such temples should be thrown open to Harijans on terms of equality with others. In my opinion, the proposal itself is so intrinsically sound that no reasonable person can have anything to say in opposition to it.

Anyway, let the opponents of reform understand exactly what the reformers seek to achieve. As it is, I am sorry to have to observe an agitation against reform being conducted in disregard of facts and that it is being sustained by statements that are contrary to truth and by baseless insinuations and imputations. Such methods can do no harm to reform if it is sound in itself, but it hurts Hinduism if the reformers or their opponents resort to methods that are less than fair and just.

The Hindu, 16-12-1932

280. CABLE TO C. F. ANDREWS

December 15, 1932

ANDREWS
WOODBROOKE SETTLEMENT
BIRMINGHAM

REMAIN THERE. LOVE.

GANDHI

From a photostat: G.N. 978

1 In reply to the addressee’s of December 8, which read: “Discount over-anxiety my letters. Everything clear now. If my help needed India cable. Otherwise remaining London” (Bombay Secret Abstracts, Home Department, Special Branch, File No. 800(40)(3), Pt. III, p. 431).
281. LETTER TO MIRABEHN

December 15, 1932

CHI. MIRA,

Your letter has arrived in due time. It is now nearly 4.20 and we have finished the morning prayer. Chhaganlal Joshi makes the fourth member of the human family and if we add the feline members, we make seven. Only the latter won’t attend the prayers. Their recognition of kinship is confined to the common board.

Chhaganlal’s arrival has facilitated despatch of work, but has not reduced my hours of labour. It was not expected to. Things that must be attended to by me, have to be. The pressure must continue at least till 2nd January.

What is it that prevents the heart from following or co-operating with reason? Can it be want of faith? Though I have not come to any final decision, my opinion tends in that direction. Though my reason tells me that there is no need to avoid a snake if I have love in me, it must be my want of faith that prevents my association with him. Instances of this character can be multiplied. I would like you to make researches in this direction and try to trace the cause of conflict between the heart and reason in every case you can recall. By so doing it may be possible for you to make the heart co-operative with reason. If it is good for me and everybody that I should fast, why should the heart refuse to rejoice? The heart does rejoice if I am healthy. It is better in certain cases that I should fast than that I should be healthy. Reason says so, yet the heart rejects the clear testimony of reason. Does it do so for want of faith? Or is there here self-deception and as a matter of fact reason has not perceived the necessity for fasting as it has for the preservation of health? Here I have simply stated the problem for you without presuming to decide. I cannot have sufficient data for coming to a decision even if I wanted to come to a decision. I must leave this subject at this point for the time being at any rate.

My weight is now 103. I have reduced the quantity of milk, knocked off bread and increased the quantity of oranges from eight to sixteen. Dates too have been dropped for the time being. Of milk I am taking just one lb. Presently I hope to increase the quantity of milk.
I have sent you Dr. Gour’s book for the information it is likely to contain. Justice Amir Ali’s is likely to be a superior book as a historical work. I may be mistaken.

It is useless to appeal The Times of India to publish my statements in full. I shall try to get someone to send you copies of the statements. There can be no objection to your receiving them for they are to be found in the papers allowed to you if you took them in.

Ba is expected to finish her tour on 16th and come to Poona.

Appa is not the Anna of Madras. Appa belongs to Maharashtra. He is a learned man. He was a teacher in the Ashram before you came. He is very lean. His brother Shripatrao you must have seen. He was in charge of the sales department. The whole incident was deeply interesting and very human.

We are all doing well. Dahyabhai has had a slight relapse but no complications.

Love from us all.

BAPU

[PS.]

I am sending the first nine statements save seventh and eighth. These I must find out . . . .

From a photostat: C.W. 9511. Courtesy: Mirabehn

282. LETTER TO DR. B. C. ROY

December 15, 1932

DEAR DR. BIDHAN,

Your letter stuns me. I sent you a telegram immediately I read it. I had thought that we were so near each other that you could never misunderstand a friendly letter from me. But I see that I committed a grave blunder. I ought not to have written that letter. I have therefore unreservedly and unconditionally withdrawn it. That letter being with-

---

1. On untouchability
2. Presumably Appasaheb Patwardhan
3. These were sent with “letter to Mirabehn”, 22-12-1932.
4. Some lines here were censored by the jail authorities.
drawn, you need not take any of the steps adumberated in your letter. Do please, therefore, go on with the Board as if I had never written anything to you. The mental hurt that I have caused you, you will generously forget. I shall not easily forgive myself for writing that letter to you. Someone had suggested, I cannot recall who, that you might misunderstand my letter and I foolishly said that you would never misunderstand anything I wrote to you. Pride goeth before destruction, and vanity before a fall. After these amends, I hardly think you need to publish the correspondence between us. But if, for the sake of the cause, you think it necessary to publish it, you have my permission, in so far as it may be necessary.

Please tell me how Kamala and Dr. Alam are doing,¹ and ask Kamala to write to me.

Yours sincerely,

From a copy: C.W. 7908. Courtesy: G. D. Birla. Also S.N. 18715

283. LETTER TO A. RANGASWAMI IYENGAR

December 15, 1932

MY DEAR RANGASWAMI,

I have your letter enclosing a Session Judge’s commentary on the present agitation. I read it through. It gave me pain to find that a judge could lose balance of mind over reform carried on as it is with the greatest restraint and many limitations. The letter is one more proof to show that the reform was overdue. In some shape or form the agitation for temple-entry and complete removal of untouchability as it is being practised today has been on for years, and I am glad that the proposed fast has put life into it.

I hope that your wife is now thoroughly restored.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

SJT. A. RANGASWAMI IYENGAR
THE HINDU OFFICE
MOUNT ROAD, MADRAS

From a microfilm: S.N. 18712

¹ Kamala Nehru and Dr. Mohammad Alam were under Dr. B. C. Roy’s treatment.
284. LETTER TO JAMNALAL BAJAJ

December 15, 1932

CHI. JAMNALAL,

I got your letter. I understand what you say regarding Kamalnayan. No arrangement can be made for him to stay in Poona. I had discussed the matter with Vakil. They do not accept a young man of his age, for they simply don’t have the necessary facility for that. We shall discuss the matter further when we meet. Shri Kateli knew that we had a stock of the swadeshi ink for fountain pen which you wanted, and, therefore, we have sent a bottle of it for you. We have quite a large quantity of it.

The sugar used in the bread made here is probably swadeshi, for very little foreign sugar is available in Poona. Even if it is foreign, I would not consider it wrong to eat the bread for that reason, for the sugar is used for preparing yeast. That is, it mixes with the other ingredients of yeast and produces a new substance altogether—as two gases combine in a certain proportion and produce water. Hence we cannot say that when eating bread we consume two different articles, wheat and sugar. Three things are used for preparing yeast—mahura, sugar and salt. The mahura is indigenous. According to me, therefore, bread is innocent food even for a person who has taken a vow not to eat foreign sugar. However, after knowing all these facts it is for you finally to decide what you should do. If the chapatis which they prepare here agree with you, I certainly would not press you to eat bread.

I have received no reply as yet to my request for permission to see you.

I understand your reason for not going to England just now for an operation. Personally, I entertain no such fear at all. Thousands of people get discharge from their ears and suffer from no other disease. Since the affected parts adjoin the brain, extreme consequences may follow in some cases. The possibility may alarm doctors and they, in turn, frighten the patients. I would, therefore, willingly rest satisfied with whatever help is available in India. But this discussion is unnecessary just now. After there is a settlement, we shall know what to do.

There is no change in the condition of my elbow. The weight is 103 pounds. General health is good on the whole.

I send with this Janakibehn’s letter. Please read what she writes in regard to Kamalnayan. I have told her in my reply that I would certainly not agree to a tutor and a cook being sent with him. That will deprive him of the benefits of staying away from home. I have also told her that we have been discussing the matter.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 2908

285. LETTER TO G. V. MAVALANKAR

December 15, 1932

BHAJ MAVALANKAR,

I had advised Narandas to consult you about the problem of harassment by the Chharas. Please let me know what advice you gave. Before you take any step, I should like to know what it is. Any way that you find must be one which would become us, and if you cannot find such a way we would prefer to endure the harassment.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 1229

286. LETTER TO RUKMINIDEVI BAJAJ

December 15, 1932

CHI. RUKMINI,

I got your letter. I am very glad that your health is improving and that you are now gaining confidence. How fine it would be if you become as strong as you did at Deolali! I am sure you get news about Radhika and Kusum from time to time. Their health is not quite satisfactory. Kusum, however, seems to be coming round gradually.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 9148

1 Vide “Letter to narandas gandhi”, 4/5-12-1932.
287. MESSAGE FOR ANTI-UNTOUCHABILITY DAY

December 16, 1932

I hope the message of hope born of the movement for the abolition of untouchability will penetrate Harijan quarters in every village in India on next Sunday which has been fixed by the Central Board for the removal of untouchability. Every Hindu child can do something by way of some little service to his or her Harijan brother or sister in this mass movement of self-purification. I have been listening to discourses of sanatanist friends with respectful attention with a perfectly open mind, and I shall continue to do so as long as they will strive with me with a view to conversion to their interpretation of Hinduism, but the conviction is daily growing upon me that untouchability as it is interpreted and practised today has no sanction whatsoever in the Hindu Shastras taken as a whole, as they must be taken. There can be no doubt that the present interpretation and practice of untouchability is utterly contrary to every canon of morality.

When therefore the evil is banished from our midst, it will be the greatest single act of purification in modern times on the part of caste Hindus. I, therefore, hope that there will be full response to the programme issued by the Central Board.

I would invite the sanatani friends not to stand aloof from this movement on the ground that they cannot reconcile themselves to temple-entry. Service of no human being can be contrary to religious precepts; much less can the service of Harijans be contrary to the Hindu religion which regards them as a part of the Hindu society. There are innumerable acts of kindness that they can perform by way of serving the Harijans who are truly children of God forsaken by us.

I have seen a paragraph in newspapers about the fast of one described as Avadhut Swami. It is true that this gentleman wrote to me some letters some months ago. They were, like the many letters that I often receive, long, incoherent and irrelevant. The impression left on me was that the writer of those letters had lost his balance. He said in his letters that he had met me in 1909 or thereabouts. I have no recollection of any such meeting, and I wrote to him to that effect. He never challenged my denial.

1 The day was to be observed on December 18.
I have no knowledge of the notice referred to in the Press message as having been received from him when he is supposed to have met me. At that time years ago, there was no question of fast either.

Someone telegraphed me a few days ago saying that Avadhut Swami was fasting and would continue to do so, unless I gave up anti-untouchability propaganda. I wired to the sender of the telegram saying that he should wean the Swami from the fast.

The movement that I hold as a part of my living faith cannot be abandoned even if a million people fast to make me give it up. To everyone the living faith comes from God, and God alone can turn him from it.

_The Bombay Chronicle, 17-12-1932_

---

288. LETTER TO G. D. BIRLA

December 15/16, 1932

MY DEAR GHANSHYAMDAS,

I have sent you one telegram today about the name of the League and another about the Bengal Provincial Organization will go tomorrow.

First, about the name. I enclose herewith Rajaji’s letter¹. I think that his argument is conclusive, and if it is at all possible to adopt his suggestion, you will alter the name accordingly. I was so possessed with the idea of service that I missed the implication to which Rajaji draws pointed attention.

Now, as to the Bengal Organization, I fear that I have committed a grievous blunder. I overrated my influence with Dr. Bidhan. I am sorry because I have given him pain; and I am sorry because I have placed you in an awkward position. He will survive the pain; you will surmount all awkward difficulty; I shall not easily forget my folly.

I have sent Dr. Roy the following telegram:

Your unsigned letter received today. Correspondence not meant for publication. Have told you distinctly if you feel confident you should continue work already begun. Accept my apology for what I now recognize was undue interference and what I had meant to be friendly suggestion. Please therefore treat my letter as absolutely withdrawn.—Gandhi and I enclose herewith a copy of the letter I am sending him. I do not need to add anything more. I hope that the incident will close without causing much worry to you. I enclose also a copy of Dr. Bidhan’s reply.

¹ Vide Appendix “Letter from C. Rajagopalachari”, 12-12-1932.

I have received your letter of the 12th December. The definition that Sjt. Thakkar has sent you has been further altered by me. I enclose copy of the altered definition. Pandit Kunzru had sent me the definition that Sjt. Thakkar had sent you. I made alterations and sent him the altered copy. I see that Sjt. Thakkar had not received the altered copy when he wrote to you.

I had about seven friends and followers of Dr. Ambedkar today. They complained or stated (because they said they did not want to complain but merely to make a statement) that Dr. Ambedkar’s letter to Sjt. Thakkar written on board the steamer making certain suggestions was not mentioned during the meeting of the Board in Poona. I told them I did not know that it was not mentioned, but I told them also that the letter could not have been passed by and it must have been considered by the Board. You will now please write to them or me as to what was exactly done in connection with that letter.

These friends also stated that our organizations were keeping up the split amongst the Harijans and wherever possible favouring Rao Bahadur Rajah’s party. I assured them that such never could be your intention and that the endeavour of the Board would be to steer clear of party divisions, and that the endeavour of the Board and its Branches everywhere would be to cement the relations between the two parties for which now that the political part of the question was settled there was absolutely no need.

Although I have got additional assistance in the shape of Sjt.

---

1 Vide “Letter to Dr. B. C. Roy”, 15-12-1932.
2 Vide Appendix “Letter from Dr. B. C. Roy”, 12-12-1932.
3 Vide “Letter to H. N. Kunzru”, 6-12-1932.
4 For an account of the discussion, vide Appendix “Discussion with Untouchables’ Deputation”, 15-12-1932.
5 Government nominee representing the depressed classes in the Legislative Assembly
Chhaganlal Joshi having been sent to me, as also efficient shorthand assistance, I can have no leisure. This much-needed assistance enables me to keep abreast with the growing work. Interviews take up a great deal of time, but they are all necessary. I do not therefore grudge them.

I hope you are keeping fit. You must do something that would induce sound sleep, not by way of drugs, but through natural means or dietetic changes. Have you tried the prunes in the manner I suggested? Some of the easy asanas and deep breathing, which is what pranayam for health means, might assist digestion and induce sleep.¹

Yours sincerely,

[December 16, 1932]

PS.

Since dictating the above letter, I have received the following telegram from Dr. Bidhan:

Thanks for telegram. Respectfully submit don’t understand what you mean feeling confident. As explained in letter in view of present enthusiasm in Bengal any President and Board can perform anti-untouchability work. If however you mean confidence in obtaining co-operation from those who refuse it when offered no one can ensure it. Measure of success will depend on funds and proper utilization thereof. Please wire whether I and Board can rely on your full support if we continue.—Bidhanray to which I have sent the following reply:

Thanks your wire. By confidence I mean self-confidence. Of course you can rely upon such assistance as is within my power.—Gandhi

From a copy: C.W. 7909. Courtesy: G. D. Birla. Also S.N. 18715

¹ For addressee’s reply to this letter, vide Appendix “Letter from G. D. Birla”, 21-12-1932.
289. LETTER TO HOME SECRETARY, GOVERNMENT OF BOMBAY

December 16, 1932

THE SECRETARY TO THE GOVERNMENT OF BOMBAY
HOME DEPARTMENT

DEAR SIR,

With reference to my letter dated the 29th ultimo regarding permission to see Sheth Jamnalal Bajaj from time to time, both in respect of his health and untouchability, I shall be grateful for a reply.

Yours faithfully,

M. K. GANDHI

Bombay Secret Abstracts, Home Department, Special Branch, File No. 800(40)(2), Pt. I, p. 417

290. LETTER TO HARIBHAU PHATAK

December 16, 1932

MY DEAR HARIBHAU,

I had your letter yesterday. I could not send you the reply as Sjt. Agashe gave your letter to me too late for me to send you a reply through him. I note that Sjt. Deodhar will come along with Sjt. Natarajan on Sunday. You and Sjt. Deodhar and other friends can decide whether to invite Dr. Kurtukoti or not. I would warn you against accepting reports. You must be sure of his views.

With reference to the expenses, I think that the Provincial Board should approach the All-India Board. With regard to the guests who would be coming in the course of a few days, it would be best to see me about their residence, etc.

As to the other invitations including Sjt. Vaidya, you and Sjt. Deodhar should decide. Personally, I have very great regard for Sjt. C. V. Vaidya. At the same time, the list ought not to become unduly long on my account.

1 The source has “30th”; vide “Letter to Home Secretary, Government of Bombay”, 29-11-1932.

THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
I do not know that I can give any opinion upon the artificial tea or coffee that you brought me the other day. Unless I knew how many ingredients it contained, I could not test it, and if I do not, I could not give any opinion. If the manufacturer will give you the ingredients, and if I can take it, I shall be prepared to experiment upon it.

Yours sincerely,

SIT. HARIBHAU PHATAK
SADASHIV PETH, POONA

From a microfilm: S.N. 18721

291. LETTER TO S. NEELAKANTHA AYYAR

December 16, 1932

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter. I am sorry that the Diwan Bahadur should look at this movement in a bargaining spirit. I must say what I hold to be good and true, irrespective of consequence, and so should every responsible Hindu. I hope that a humble man does not cease to be humble when he gives expression to his innermost thoughts which he

1 Dated December 11, 1932. It read: “... I had an interview with Dewan Bahadur T. R. Ramachandra Ayyar last month when I found him in a fairly reasonable frame of mind towards the movement. I again met him this morning and asked him why he had changed his mind. He said it was Gandhiji’s uncompromising attitude in the matter that had made him also uncompromising. Previously when Mr. K. Bhashyam and other leaders in Madras had approached him, what they proposed was, what he regarded as a compromise, viz., to admit the Harijans as far as the Dhwaja Sthambha, i.e., to admit them within the temple, but in the outer round,... He was also agreeable to admit Harijans into the inner round once or twice such as on Ekadasi days.

“Now in view of Gandhiji’s demand that they should be treated absolutely on the same terms as the higher castes, which he regards as most uncompromising he also assumes an equally uncompromising position and leads a movement organizing the orthodox with the support of all the Mathadhipatis.

“What has given him greater affront was Gandhiji’s statement that it was the caste Hindus who were the sinners and were to perform prayashchitta and not the Harijans. He was very much excited over the idea that Gandhiji should have asked pious people like him to perform prayashchitta in their old age for their pious past conduct. He felt that in dictating like this Gandhiji’s usual humility had entirely deserted him and made him an avatar of haughtiness...” (S.N. 18690).
holds to be true. I have judged no individual in saying that cast Hindus as such are sinners before God and man in their treatment of Harijans. An individual who is most pious may have to perform prayashchitta for the sin of the class to which he belongs. I see no dictation, either, in stating the truth and it was said by me in 1915 and was repeated since from a thousand platforms.

Yours sincerely,

S. N. Neelakanta Ayyar, B.A., L.T.
SECRETARY, COCHIN-TRAVANCORE ANTI-UNTICKABILITY BOARD
TRICHUR

From a microfilm: S.N. 18730

292. LETTER TO GENERAL SECRETARY, A.I.V.S.S.

December 16, 1932

DEAR FRIEND,

I thank you for your letter of the 13th instant. You may perhaps know that some Shastris from Pandharpur have had long discussions with me, at the end of which we agreed that on the 23rd instant there should be a discussion between them and those Shastris who generally support the view I have taken. I therefore think that there will be a discussion on the 23rd and I suggest that the Shastris whom you have in mind should also take part in the discussion. Personally, I do not think that any terms need be previously fixed, but if it is necessary, they can be fixed on the 23rd, and if a chairman is considered necessary, one could be appointed from those Shastris who will be present on the 23rd. Acharya Dhruva will reach Poona in any case on the evening of the 22nd, and he will be available so long as the discussions last. My own object in listening to such discussions is to allow my mind and heart to be acted upon, and if I discover a flaw in the attitude I have hitherto held, I should have no difficulty in owning my mistake and retracing my steps. Whether a discussion induces a change in my attitude or not, a friendly conversation between Shastris representing different views cannot but do good and result in removing bitterness. I quite agree with you that the number of those taking part in the discussion should not be more than seven on either side.

I do not at all anticipate that the discussion to be started on the 23rd can go on for more than two or, at the outside, three days, three hours being devoted each day. There is therefore no occasion just now to think of the 2nd of January next.

Yours sincerely,

GENERAL SECRETARY
SANATANA VARNASHRAM SWARAJYA SANGH
BOMBAY

From a microfilm: S.N. 18728

293. LETTER TO MANGALDAS M. PAKVASA

December 16, 1932

BHAISHRI PAKVASA,

Dhirubhai told me that you had to get yourself operated upon for hernia. All of us felt worried on hearing this. Dhirubhai said that you had became quite weak. Write and give full details. May God restore your strength soon.

Vandemataram from
MOHANDAS

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 4677. Courtesy: Mangaldas Pakvasa

294. LETTER TO MANMOHANDAS P. GANDHI

December 16, 1932

BHAII MANMOHAN,

I got your letter and the books sent by you. Just now none of us get any time to read such things.

There is no cause for worry about my health.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 17

295. LETTER TO K. M. MUNSHI

December 16, 1932

BHAISHRI MUNSHI,

From what Dhirubhai told me yesterday, I see that your pain is more serious than I had thought. Let me know what the doctors say.

VOL. 58 : 16 NOVEMBER, 1932 - 14 JANUARY, 1933 217
Dictate the letter and do not write it yourself.

Do you feel the pain only in one arm? Does it remain all the time? Is there any improvement after your release?

I hope Jijima is quite well. Give my pranams to her.

Blessings from

BAPU

From Gujarati: C.W. 7522. Courtesy: K. M. Munshi

296. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

December 16, 1932

CHI. NARANDAS,

I got your postcard. I hope Premabehn did not suffer much after the operation. At the time of the operation one is not conscious and does not feel the pain, but very often the patient suffers afterwards. I hope that did not happen in this case. It was in order to save a day that I wrote directly to Mavalankar yesterday regarding the problem of the Chharas.

Just now I asked Chhaganlal the name of Liladhar’s father, and he tells me that it is not our practice in the Ashram to note in the register the full names of the inmates. Only the name by which a person is generally known is recorded. If this is the general practice, or even if it happens only in exceptional cases, it should be immediately changed. For, if the full names are not recorded, we may sometimes find ourselves in a difficult situation. When a name is first entered in the register, full particulars including the address should be recorded. Even when a child’s name is entered, the full name should be written down. The last place where the person lived before joining the Ashram should be mentioned in brackets. This is how I learnt to keep registers. If you look into the old registers, you will find in them all such information. You should, therefore, examine the whole record and, wherever the names are incomplete, write them in full.

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./I. Also C.W. 8282. Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi

218

THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
297. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

Saturday morning, December 17, 1932

CHI. NARANDAS,

I got your letter, as also the other letters enclosed. I saw Narayanappa yesterday. He told me that he had written several letters to you, to which he had got no reply. Let me know what the position is. He wishes to return to the Ashram. I told him that was for you to decide, and that he could return only if he satisfied you. There is still some time before he will be released.

You did right in fasting for a day. That is the best remedy when one feels liverish. Do not eat jowar and bajri if they do not agree with you. You may reduce their quantity. It is possible that they may not agree with some people. Do not harm your health for the sake of this experiment. What is your food at present?

Kusum’s ship is in mid-ocean. I hope Talwalkar examines her carefully. Did he say anything after reading my letter?

I understand what you say about Shanta. The Chharas seem to be quiet now. Did you come to know where Gangabehn and other women are kept?

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./I. Also C.W. 8283. Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi
December 17, 1932

DEAR DR. DATTA,

I was delighted to have your letter, giving me the only thing you could properly give in my present condition. In discovering the use of Indian words among the Gypsies, President Masaryk and you have perhaps made a discovery of great value. How nice it would be if some painstaking and accurate scholar could follow up your discovery and ascertain whether the few common words that you discovered were a mere accident or whether they are evidence of a recent common origin or of intimate intercourse, or may it be that the Gypsies are a set of universalists for whom the whole world is their country? The information you give about the old President is also very instructive. I wish that we could emulate his energy and vigour.

Mahadev is with me, Devdas sees me fairly often, and Pyarelal was able to see me practically only during the fast. Please send our love to Mrs. Datta and your boy. I can feel your difficulties in your new post, but God will give you strength to grapple with them. All this however is preface to the question I want to ask you: “What are your boys doing for the Harijans?”

Yours sincerely,

S.J.T. S.K. DATTA
PRINCIPAL, FORMAN CHRISTIAN COLLEGE
LAHORE

From a microfilm: S.N. 18733

1 The letter was in reply to the addressee’s dated December 9, 1932, which read: “Last August, my son and myself went to spend two days with President Masaryk. The President talked to me a great deal about you. You remember that they invited you to stay with them at Prague, but you were unable at the end to accept the invitation. He is a wonderful old man—85 years of age—who rides his horse every day not like an old man, but athletically. I must tell you of an experience that I had when staying with him at a small village in Slovakia. . . . The inhabitants were a colony of Gypsies. . . . The strangest experience was to hear these folk speak. There were scores of words which I could understand—almost pure Hindi—such as behn for sister, pani for water, aag for fire, etc., etc. When I went back to the Presidential House, he and I studied with a little care that evening Bible stories written in Gypsy language and I recognized in them Hindi words . . .”
DEAR LALA DUNICHAND,

You have done well according to your wont in writing to me on the burning question.

I think you are quite right in rejecting the evidence of the inner urge. I was bound to meet that statement, as I believe it to be true. But the public has not only the right but [it is] its duty to examine the question dispassionately and from a common-sense point of view. I have myself endeavoured therefore to reason out the justification for the steps I have taken and those that are contemplated. Therefore you do not want me to reiterate the argument I have publicly advanced in my own statements in justification. One issue however I have not dealt with publicly. You are quite right in saying that my body is not my own, but that it belongs to the nation. You will however recognize that it also belongs to God, or rather, it belongs to the nation because it belongs to God. And here I have got to state that it is God who is dealing with this body, and He will keep it intact against the whole world if He wants to use it for a service, great or small, and the whole world will not be able to keep it if God decides to take it away. Let us therefore wait upon Him and trust that whatever He does will be for our good.

Yours sincerely,

SIT. LALA DUNICHAND, B.A.
KRIPA NIVAS
AMBALA CITY

From a microfilm: S.N. 18735

1 The letter was in reply to the addressee’s of December 11, 1932, requesting Gandhiji not to go on fast from January 2, 1933 (S.N. 18689).
300. LETTER TO N. SUBRAHMANYA AIYAR

December 17, 1932

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter\(^1\). Do you not remember the saying of a wise and learned man that the things you cannot say and intelligibly explain well inside of an hour are not worth saying or explaining? But I promised you full one hour. You can still take that hour if that will satisfy you.

Here are my answers to your questions:

1. A Hindu temple is one built by Hindus for worship by Hindus in accordance with the requirements of Hinduism.

2. There is no such thing as Indian caste system in Hinduism, but there is varnashrama. And varna is wholly different from the current caste.

3. Custom that is not repugnant to the moral sense must be recognized by courts of law.

4. Those who want to enforce a custom have to show that it has been in vogue for a long time and that it is not in conflict with the moral sense, but the burden may be shifted if a custom already recognized is challenged.

5. A self-respecting court will not be bullied into giving decisions by agitations, but it would be governed by well-recognized rules.

6. The question is answered in No. 1.

7. When the religious texts differ, evidence as to usage will be one of the determining factors.

8. Private property lawfully acquired is entitled to protection.

9. Communal property is also entitled to protection if communal ownership is not in conflict with the common weal.

10. A private temple is entitled to the same protection as private property.

11. I am not aware of anybody having agitated for confiscation of temples

\(^1\) Senior Dewan Peishkar, Travancore
\(^2\) Dated December 10, 1932 (S.N. 18687)
12. Simple suicide is an offence under the present Law as I have been told.

13. If Gandhi took up his stand at the Viceregal gateway and threatened to fast even for one day unless the British Government withdrew from the country, the Government would be justly entitled to arrest him and imprison him till he came to his senses.

14. The contemplated fast does not make it impossible for anybody to deal with the temple-entry question in a fearless and reasonable manner; nor do I see any sign that the opponents are in any way deterred from their purpose, and I think that they are quite right in ignoring the contemplated fast.

15. I am sorry to have to remark that this question is packed with ignorance of the true situation and is outside my limits.

Although I have, out of regard for you, answered your questions, you will permit me to say that many of them are argumentative and take no note of the existing situation, and some of them are based upon mere assumptions. It has filled me with sorrow to discover that learned men have imagined a woeful state of things to exist and have thrown themselves into rage over the imaginary woe.

Yours sincerely,

S. N. SUBRAHMANYA AIYAR, M.A.
C/O THE RESIDENT MEDICAL OFFICER
GOVERNMENT HOSPITAL, ROYAPETTAH, MADRAS

From a microfilm: S.N. 18731

---

1 It read: “15. Is not this movement—against which orthodox opposition is only being just mobilized and is bound to rise to a proportion which neither the Government nor its present engineers have any idea of, and started at a stage of India’s death and religious decline when faith in temples is steadily waning and is absolutely non-existent among the people who are projecting and conducting this movement and who are doing so more as a political stunt against the Government for winning swaraj than as a measure of religious catholicity—calculated to create increasing discord in the country, rioting and even bloodshed—and to indefinitely postpone the prospect of swaraj which is the common aim of all?”
DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter. You will please pardon me for the frankness with which I propose to discuss it in the hope that it may open your eyes to the untenability of the position you have taken up and which you say represents orthodox opinion.

Before I do that, let me ask why your letter-paper is so grotesque. It cannot add dignity to the sanatan dharma by having your letter-paper printed with borders as on an address-paper, still less to have a portrait of the agent surrounded by other figures. Advertisers do sometimes adopt ornamentation for their letter-paper, but I have never seen anything so wholly inartistic as the paper which you are using. I restrained myself twice against drawing your attention to the incongruity of a religious agency using ornamentation, and that, too, utterly inartistic, but though my claim may be rejected, I am or am trying to be a humble representative of sanatan dharma, and therefore, whenever anything unbecoming is done in the name of that dharma, it pains me deeply. So much by way of preface.

Now, regarding the contents of your letter. Surely, it ought to be easy for you to see that since you admit that untouchability is quite contrary to the divine fact of oneness of all life, the only way to realize that oneness is to have as little differentiation as possible, and wherever it exists, it should be accepted as an evil to be removed at the first opportunity. There is no such difficulty or impossibility about the removal of untouchability as we practise it today. You say that untouchability is based on “physical, moral and mental purity”, and you have stated as if it was a self-proved proposition. I find it most difficult to understand your statement so utterly at variance with daily experience. To claim permanence for untouchability, as you evidently claim for it, is to indefinitely postpone realization of oneness, unless you were to postulate that that realization is to come to humanity from outside sources. But I have never heard anybody saying so; on the contrary, there is complete agreement that realization of oneness can only come by incessant striving. In other words, it can only come when, in a daily increasing ratio, we obliterate differences and begin with those which are of our own creation and which have no moral justification.

1 Dated December 14, 1932 (C.W. 9561)

Nor can we be oblivious to the practices followed in other religions. If there is oneness of all life, there is oneness of all religions. It is, therefore, instructive, if not absolutely necessary, to test our own practice by a reference to that of other religions, and then we find that untouchability as we know it today does not exist in any other religion. For justifying our untouchability, therefore, we have to prove that the other religions are defective in that they do not practise untouchability and that it is so essential to the realization of the common goal that those religions which do not practise it will be driven to it whether they will or no. I have never heard anybody making such claim.

Those who claim to be sanatanists have put themselves in a state of rage as if I was about to violate all that is good in Hinduism, and they have rendered themselves incapable, first, of understanding what I am after, and then, of knowing what they are attacking. I can safely say that no two letters from among the mass of letters I am receiving from sanatanists have agreed about the definition of untouchability. They either swear at me or enter into argument that has no bearing on the subject. All this cannot be good for sanatan dharma. The correspondence I am having is to me a painful sign of decadence of Hinduism.

I invite you to ponder over what I have written, and if you find any force in my argument, study the whole question dispassionately, and if you feel with me that untouchability is an evil, courageously proclaim the truth and fight the evil.

You refer me to the four Sankaracharyas.¹ What shall I do by worrying them? I entertain no doubt about the correctness of my position. It is as clear to me as noon-day light. If they think that I am immersed in darkness, it is for them to show me the light.

¹ The addressee had written: “You are eager to know about true orthodox opinion about the subject of untouchability. You can do full justice to your desire to know this if you wire to (1) His Holiness Sri Sankaracharya Swami of Kamakoti peetam, now camping at Madras, (2) His Holiness the Jeer, Sri Ahobila Matam, Srirangam, (3) His Holiness Sri Sankaracharya Swami of Sarada Peetam, Sringeri, (4) His Holiness Sri Satyagnanatirtha Swami of Uttaradimatam, now camping at Benares, requesting them to send the best pundits amongst them under their nomination for the conference you intend holding. Without this your true object cannot be fully fulfilled.”

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

SIT. M. M. ANANTA RAU
AGENT, SANATANA DHARMA AGENCY
40 ISHWARDAS LALA STREET, TRIPLICANE, MADRAS

From a copy: C.W. 9565. Courtesy: Government of Mysore. Also S.N. 18736

302. LETTER TO N. S. VARADACHARI

[December 17, 1932]¹

I have your letter. Whoever is responsible for the so-called blessings, I am not. Yours is the first intimation that I have of any swadeshi exhibition in Kumbakonam. I do not and cannot under the limitations of jail life send messages on anything except untouchability. You may therefore make whatever use you like of this letter.

The Hindu, 21-12-1932

303. LETTER TO JAMNABEHN GANDHI

December 17, 1932

CHI. JAMNA,

This time also you are having repeated attacks of asthma. Doesn’t this mean that you should live somewhere else and do whatever service you can? You may go and live at Wardha this time if you wish. You can do much service even while living there. If you have imbibed the spirit of the Ashram you may look after the girls who are being brought up in the Ashram, at Wardha. Moreover, Purushottam is there at present. Balkrishna also is there, and Krishna frequently visits the place. Have you tried Vijapur? It is a different matter if you have decided to remain in the Ashram, irrespective of how you keep there. If, however, you can preserve better health at some other place and the spirit of service has become part of your nature, it is your clear duty to go and live there. Experience shows that one who has the spirit of service in him or her will feel at home wherever he or she goes.

¹ From “Diary, 1932”, entry under this date. This appeared under the date-line: “Madras, December 21”.

THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI

BAPU

From Gujarati: C.W. 865. Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi

304. LETTER TO DAHYABHAI PATEL

December 17, 1932

CHI. DAHYABHAI,

You are still not out of the wood, but I know that you will not lose heart. I suppose you know that to get well is something that is in the patient’s own hands. He should never lose hope nor get impatient. He should suffer bravely as long as it is his lot to suffer and fight on. If you try it, you will find that Ramanama is a more powerful remedy than all diets and drugs put together. The power of electricity is nothing before it. It will give you peace of mind and keep you cheerful. It seems that you are eager to write letters. Resist your desire. At present your duty lies in taking perfect rest. If you wish, you may dictate a few sentences to us or to friends for fun, but you must not think about office work. I hope you will follow this advice. God will surely preserve you.

I have written this letter with my left hand.

Blessings from

BAPU

[From Gujarati]

Bapuna Patro—4: Manibehn Patelne, pp. 152-3

305. LETTER TO PREMABEHN KANTAK

December 17, 1932

CHI. PREMA,

I got your beautiful letter. If you have come away from the hospital against the doctor’s advice, I would blame you. Don’t you know that you can go on doing service even while lying in a hospital? See that you don’t speak much. For some time live only on milk and fruit. Where did you learn that a sick person should not eat rice? Don’t make haste and fall ill.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10315. Also C.W. 6754. Courtesy: Premabehn Kantak
306. LETTER TO SUSHILABEHN GANDHI

December 17, 1932

CHI. SUSHILA,

I got your letter. Of course I can understand your remaining behind in India for the sake of your health or some such reason. Otherwise, we at any rate have a simple rule of duty. Just as Sita followed Rama wherever he went, so the husband and the wife should live together not for carnal pleasure but for mutual service. It is, therefore, proper that you should accompany Manilal.

Fasts, etc., have become a part of my life. You need not postpone your departure for such a reason. One can understand either of you staying back at such a time if that is necessary in order to look after me. As there is no such reason on this occasion, from every point of view it seems proper that you should accompany Manilal. You should, therefore, decide to leave for South Africa without feeling anxious for me.

I will await Tara’s letter attacking me. If she requires any evidence, I will send it from here. She should not mind if she loses in the argument. Her defeat will be the first step towards victory. And if she wins, that will not be surprising either, since children’s victory over their elders is in fact the victory of the latter.

Does not the fact that Sita cannot be cured of her boils prove your own deficiency as a mother?

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 4803

307. LETTER TO KIRCHAND KOTHARI

December 17, 1932

As a general rule I can say that where there is a possibility of a riot and we are also likely to get no help from the authorities, we should abandon the idea of holding a meeting or taking out a procession. We should slowly cultivate public opinion at such a place, and at the same time go on with the work for the welfare of the Harijans. For that purpose, some persons may even have to go and live among them.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 345
308. LETTER TO PYARELAL NAYYAR

December 17, 1932

You seem to have taken a vow not to write to me. Well, I must live as God wills, or as Pyarelal wills. If your health is good and you have nothing to write to me about, I am quite content.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, pp. 345-6

309. LETTER TO PARASHURAM MEHROTRA

December 17, 1932

. . . behn¹ is like a milch cow. Her shortcomings are countless, but her virtues are far greater in number. Remember what Tulsidas taught in this regard, and look only to the virtues and disregard the shortcomings. We should know that all of us have shortcomings and bear those of our co-workers.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 346

310. LETTER TO ASHRAM BOYS AND GIRLS

December 17, 1932

Just now I cannot write long letters. Parashuramji knows the new takli method. He does not have the same speed as Bhau but he may be able to teach you.

Narandas is quite right in saying that any boy or girl who has not undergone training in khadi work, carpentry, farm work, tanning, dairy work, etc., has remained uneducated. It seems you have still not understood one special feature of the Ashram. It is that farm work, carpentry, etc., also are a part of your education, and develop your intellect and also some of the bodily senses. If these crafts are taught as part of your education, they would do more good, as I have already explained in one of my previous letters² to the Ashram, than a purely literal education' does. If you have forgotten what I said in that letter or cannot find that letter, let me know and I will write to you again about it, for the point deserves to be understood by all. Do not think that I say this because I wish to run down book-learning. I fully understand its value. You will not easily come across many men who put such knowledge to better use than I do. My purpose in saying this is to put training in crafts on the same footing as education in letters. Those who thoroughly understand this point will never be eager for a literal education at the cost of training in crafts. Their book-learning will shine better and also prove of greater benefit to the people. If you understand this fully, all of you will be ready to take out the cattle for grazing.

¹ The name is omitted in the source.
² Vide “Education”, 10-7-1932.

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./II

311. LETTER TO KUSUM GANDHI

December 17, 1932

Every person who is ill, holds the key to his life in his own hands as long as recovery is possible. If he or she gives way to despair, no medicine will help, and, on the contrary, if he or she does not lose heart, even a simple powder will be a priceless remedy. You should, therefore, remember three rules: Do not lose courage; follow the advice of the person in whose hands you have placed yourself; and, however much you suffer, go on repeating Ramanama, remain cheerful and never cry.

[From Gujarati]
Mahadevbhai Diary, Vol. II, pp. 346-7

312. LETTER TO SATIS CHANDRA DAS GUPTA

December 18, 1932

DEAR SATISBABU,

No letter from you. I have failed miserably in my endeavour to have the Board reconstructed. I have apologized to Dr. Roy and withdrawn my letter. You should forget that I ever tried. Things must take their own course. You will act as may seem best to you.

Love to you both.

BAPU

From a photostat: G.N. 1619

1 Literally, ‘knowledge of letters’
2 Vide “Letter to Dr. B. C. Roy”, 15-12-1932.
313. LETTER TO JAMNABEHN GANDHI

December 18, 1932

CHI. JAMNA,

I read your letter which arrived with the general post [from the Ashram]. I would advise you to go and stay somewhere else.1

BAPU

From Gujarati: C.W. 866. Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi

314. LETTER TO CHHOTUBHAI TRIVEDI

December 18, 1932

CHI. CHHOTUBHAI,

You have been rendering good service. You will learn the job with practice. You may not expect specific advice from me.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10471

315. LETTER TO KOTWAL

December 18, 1932

BHAI KOTWAL,

I got your letter. The doubt which has occurred to you is a natural one.

Following the path of dharma would not have been compared to walking on the razor’s edge, if no occasions ever arose when in doing one’s duty, one found oneself on the horns of a dilemma. A thing which is ordinarily forbidden may with a little change in the circumstances become a duty. The thing is similar to the manner in which a chemical compound is formed. Appa’s demand was not for a right or privilege, nor for any personal facility. It was for permission to do his duty. It was my duty—and I have not the least doubt about this—to join Appa in his fast, as, when we were all free, I had already given my opinion that Appa could undertake a fast in the circumstances which actually arose. As this argument appeals to reason, it is not necessary for you to go by faith in what I say. As long as your reason is not convinced, you should not accept anything more than what you have been able to understand about the ethics of fasting. Do not think too much about the matter and get confused. Ask me again if my explanation is not clear to you. But you need not, if you do not wish. The situation in which I found myself was no ordinary one, and in such situations too much thinking is to be avoided.

1 Vide also “Letter To Jamnabehn Gandhi”, 17-12-1932.

It seems to be my clear duty to fast with Kelappan if it becomes necessary for him to do so, since it was I who had asked him to give up his fast. This involves a number of other issues, and I have no time to explain them in this letter. You will have no question to ask if you carefully go through all that I have written on the subject.

It need not be assumed that the fast will start on the 2nd. There are many complications. The date was not fixed recently, but was fixed at the very time that Kelappan gave up his fast.1 The agitation is not for depriving any people of their right, but for restoring their rights to those who were deprived of them. I think that I have now answered all your questions.

What you read in the newspapers about the time limit of thirty days has no basis in fact. There is no such intention even. There is no end to the misunderstandings being spread at present by the men who come to discuss things with me. No one, therefore, should believe anything said about me. People should go by only what I myself say.

There was no need to ask the Zamorin before fixing the 2nd as the date; he himself had wired suggesting postponement of Kelappan’s fast. I fixed the date that seemed to be the most suitable.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 3606

316. LETTER TO NARMADABEHN RANA

December 18, 1932

CHI. NARMADA,

I got your letter. I am very glad that you keep good health. All your actions should be straightforward and all your thoughts clean.

BAPU

From Gujarati: C.W. 2770. Courtesy: Ramnarayan N. Pathak

317. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

December 18, 1932

CHI. NARANDAS,

So at last you also have fallen ill. All of us do. You and all others should carry out the new experiment only to the extent that it agrees with you. For some time, you should only drink milk and eat fruit. You may also eat vegetables. If you feel the need for rice, you should eat it unhesitatingly. I have suggested its exclusion purely for health reasons. Hence anybody who needs it for maintaining good health may certainly eat it. Nobody should feel ashamed to eat it. If the results do not seem beneficial, you may give up the whole experiment.

I cling to the suggestion which I have made concerning Jamna.¹

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./I. Also C.W. 8284. Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi

318. LETTER TO PREMABEHN KANTAK

December 18, 1932

CHI. PREMA,

I wrote to you some letters in the course of the week. This one is in reply to your weekly letter.

I have decided to obey your order forbidding me to show your letters to Chhaganlal. Of course I had to show him your order. I think you, too, would not wish that he should remain ignorant of what you wrote about him. I showed him the relevant part of the letter and asked him not to read the rest. All the same, I did not like your order. Why should any person in the Ashram hide anything from another inmate?

I can understand a child or a grown-up who knows no better feeling thus. But what can you have to hide from anybody? The fact that others read your letters doesn’t lessen, but rather increases, the sanctity of your letters. You should not at all feel embarrassed if the whole world knows your thoughts. We have no right to think any thoughts which others may not know. If we follow this as a fixed rule in our life, we automatically learn to control our thoughts. Every human being is God’s representative on the earth. He knows all our thoughts, but we do not know that He does, because we do not see Him face to face. If, however, we look upon human beings as God’s representatives on the earth, we should not mind others knowing our thoughts. Moreover, since we see a representative bodily, it becomes easy for us to acquire control over our thoughts. I wish that you should voluntarily withdraw your order. I had hoped that I would be able to write with my right hand, but I see that I ought not to use it and, therefore, I shall not perhaps be able to write all that I wished to say. I don’t mind your writing about Ramabehn whatever comes to your mind. She does know indeed that you will write nothing out of ill-will for her. So you may write anything you may wish to. I will carry out any suggestion you may make.

¹ Vide “Letter to Jamnabehn Gandhi”, 17-12-1932 and ibid 18-12-1932.

You seem to have left the hospital much too soon. If you are carrying out the doctor’s instructions faithfully, there will be no difficulty. It will be fine indeed if the operation succeeds in its purpose.

...’s1 story is a sad one. I am not ready to blame ...2 without knowing his side of the case. ...3 is man of pure heart; he is not cruel. He knows his duty. If I had more time at my disposal, I would have explained the matter in greater detail. You should serve ...4 as well as you can. If she feels lonely, she is not altogether blameless in the matter. But she should not be left uncared for because of that. ...5 has quite a few good qualities too.

Indu is of course careless. He is a simple-hearted boy and loves play a little too much. I have written to his father and told him that he should take the boy under his loving care.

Take milk and fruit for some time and think that they are medicines. Don’t eat kanji, etc., for a while. If you wish to eat rice,

1 The names have been omitted.
2 ibid.
3 ibid.
4 ibid.
5 ibid.
you can. See the doctor regularly.
A letter for Sushila® is enclosed.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10316. Also C.W. 6755. Courtesy: Premabehn Kantak

319. LETTER TO GULAB A. SHAH

December 18, 1932

CHI. GULAB,

I got your letter. You should always keep a margin on the left side of the sheet. You can see such a margin in this letter.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 1734

320. LETTER TO SHARDA C. SHAH

December 18, 1932

CHI. BABU ALIAS SHARDA.

Is it that you have boycotted me? You used to write beautiful letters every week and now you are silent. Why? If you are taking pity on me, I have no use for it. What I want is beautiful letters, even if I do not write.

BAPU

From the Gujarati original: C.W. 9959. Courtesy: Shardabehn G. Chokhawala

321. LETTER TO NIRMALA GANDHI

YERAVDA MANDIR,

December 18, 1932

CHI. NIMU,

So, after a long time you have condescended to write to me. Should I thank you or twit your ear? Ramdas leaves it to you to decide about Kanu Sheth’s name. If you let me have a few names, I will help you make the choice. Ramdas has now started taking milk and bread.

BAPU

From the Gujarati original: Mrs. Sumitra Kulkarni Papers. Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library
322. LETTER TO SECRETARY, ALL-INDIA SHRADDHANAND MEMORIAL TRUST

[Before December 19, 1932]

We hardly find a greater benefactor, a truer sympathizer of Harijans than Swami Shraddhanand at the present day. The memory of Swami Shraddhanand can fittingly be celebrated by doing every possible service to Harijans and at least those that have means should contribute to the Shraddhanand Memorial Trust.

The Hindu, 20-12-1932

323. TELEGRAM TO KASTURBHAI LALBHAI

POONA,

[December 19, 1932]

SETH KASTURBHAI LALBHAI
SHAHI BAG
AHMEDABAD

OUR CONDOLENCES OVER YOUR REVERED MOTHER’S DEATH.

GANDHI

From the original: S. N. 33149

324. LETTER TO NIROD RANJAN GUHA

December 19, 1932

DEAR FRIEND,

I thank you for your long but instructive, well-reasoned and sympathetic letter. I listened to it from beginning to end. You rightly do not expect any answer to your argument. I will however say this that the argument advanced by you was not new to me; and whilst I could subscribe to almost all you have said in your letter, I could consistently defend the course I have adopted.

Yours sincerely,

SIT. NIROD RANJAN GUHA
P 215-A RUSSA ROAD (SOUTH), P.O. TOLLYGANJ
CALCUTTA

From a microfilm: S.N. 18744

1 The letter was published under the date-line: “New Delhi, December 19”.
2 He was assassinated on December 23, 1926.
3 From the postmark

236 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
DEAR FRIEND,

Here are answers to the questions you left with me:

1. The reformer has to convert the people by patience, gentleness and purity of character. My fast can only prepare the ground for the reformer’s work and make the reformer also more active than before in the execution of his mission.

2. I would just as soon fast in respect of Dakornath Temple as Guruvayur if the call came. I had no notion that I should have to contemplate a fast regarding Guruvayur, as everyone knows it came to me; but it would be wrong on my part to tack on other temples. Nevertheless, there are many other ways in which the movement for opening other temples is being, and should be, carried on.

3. If I refuse to be party to conditional temple-entry by Harijans, it is not because I feel less for the cow, but because it is the best way of weaning Harijans from taking beef. In matters of religion, there should be no bargaining. Every Harijan knows that one of the essential conditions of being a good Hindu is to abstain from taking beef or carrion. Therefore my formula is that those Harijans who are in the habit of taking beef or carrion should be induced to give it up, irrespective of whether the temples are opened to them or not, purely on the ground that beef and carrion-eating is prohibited in Hinduism. Similarly temples should be opened unconditionally. Even as it is the duty of Harijans to abstain from beef and carrion without asking for or receiving any consideration therefor, so is it the duty of caste Hindus, irrespective of consideration, to throw open the doors of temples to Harijans without claiming any consideration. Even today there is no inquisition held as to the Hindu practice of temple-goers. Very properly it is taken for granted that temple-goers conform to the rules applicable to them regarding temple-entry. So must we expect Harijans to do.

4. There are many courses that we can adopt in order to ensure success in a movement. There are some courses, however, which are

---

1 On December 16, 1932 (S.N. 18722)
2 In Gujarat
beyond our capacity to adopt. My release is a course which it is beyond my capacity to adopt.

5. To seek to abolish untouchability amongst untouchables before caste Hindus abolish untouchability with reference to untouchables is like an attempt to twist a rope of sand foredoomed to failure. When caste Hindus really abolish untouchability, the other will crumble to pieces practically without an effort.

6. In my opinion, seeing that the society now formed is one to do penance or to discharge an obligation due to Harijans, it should be composed of penitents or debtors, but there should be a corresponding committee or society of creditors, that is Harijans, whose wishes should be ascertained from time to time.

7. No law will abolish untouchability before caste Hindus are ready to do so. Law can only help them when they need its assistance. But it can never compel them.

8. In Hinduism, and for that matter in every religion, every activity of a religious man is governed by his religion. A man cannot be religious that is guided by his moral and spiritual sense in some activities and not in others. When there is religion about a person, it pervades his whole being.

9. All the three statements are not inconsistent with one another, but they represent the same truth. Without Guruvayur there will be no Kelappan fasting, without Kelappan there would have been no inspiration for me to fast for Guruvayur.

Yours sincerely,

SIT. R. B. TALEGAONKAR
1034 RAVIWAR PETH, POONA CITY

From a microfilm: S.N. 18722

326. LETTER TO C. Y. CHINTAMANI

December 19, 1932

I am not going to judge my friends. I can only convey to them my own feeling and leave them to correct themselves where my different opinion may appeal to them. I am satisfied if by your action

---

1 The reference is to statements on different occasions attributed by the addressee to Gandhiji to the effect that he was going to ‘perform the fast for the sake of Guruvayur Temple’; ‘for the sake of Mr. Kelappan’; and ‘for the sake of God’s wish inspiring him to go through this ordeal of fast’ (S.N. 18722).
in Bombay you did no violence to your conscience. But I would like one promise from you. Even when you will not publicly oppose me, do warn me privately. The warning may produce no visible effect on me. But I am very receptive. Such warnings have always helped me.

_Mahadevbhaini Diary_, Vol. II, p. 360

327. LETTER TO SECRETARY, ARYA SAMAJ, BOMBAY

_December 19, 1932_

I was pained to see the published report of our interview. I do not carry a copy of the _Satyarthaprakash_ with me. I only said that there were several copies of it in the Ashram library. I did not ask for the books, but Mahadev did.

When you offered your help to the temple-entry movement, I advised you not to interfere with it and you also accepted my advice. But the report suggests that I desired your help. The cause will suffer through such misrepresentations. I, therefore, consider it necessary that for the sake of truth and the cause you should immediately publish a correction to the report. I should like you to publish it as soon as you can. A false report can never help a cause, and it cannot but harm dharma. A correction, therefore, is desirable from every point of view.

[From Gujarati]

328. A LETTER

_December 19, 1932_

It is true that I refused to eat eggs. Still I believe that cod-liver oil is objectionable, milk is less objectionable than cod-liver oil and unfertilized eggs are less objectionable than either. However, people have become accustomed to cod-liver oil but not to eggs, and so even unfertilized eggs are regarded as objectionable.

In the statement: [“And if any man will sue thee at the law] and take away thy coat, let him have thy cloak also”, it is understood

1 On December 14, 1932; vide “Interview to Deputation of Arya Samaj, Bombay”, 14-12-1932.
2 St. Matthew, v. 40 that the man who asks for your coat is a deserving person. But the statement also means that, if anybody tries to rob us of a thing and if it is not our duty to resist him, it would be better to let him take more than he wished. The golden rule behind this precept is that of non-possession. Nobody can practise it to perfection. If, however, we have understood it fully, we should try to follow it more and more in our lives to the extent that we can.

[From Gujarati]
Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, pp. 360-1

329. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

December 19, 1932

CHI. NARANDAS,

I got your letter. I can judge whether or not you can write only after I see a copy of the letter which Shri Mavalankar has written. Obtain one and send it to me. Tell the German lady that, if she wishes, she may certainly write to me. It is highly unlikely that she will be permitted to see me. If Parashuram told the story of the cat not merely as a joke but to argue that we might do the same thing, some pain would mingle with my amusement.

I hope you are completely all right now. All the same, be careful about your food.

BAPU

PS.

I send with this a letter from Bhai Umedram. He stayed in the Ashram once, alone. I think that, after his talk with me here, I had dropped a hint to you that he might come to live in the Ashram with his children. He has now written to me. Admit him to the Ashram. He knows its rules. He also said that he would abide by them. I think the best course would be that he should come and stay in the Ashram for some time and that, after you have had experience of each other, he should decide finally. However, you are the best judge, therefore, do what you think best. Do not think, because I wish him to be admitted, that it is your duty to admit him. I am writing to Umedram also to tell him what I have told you.

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./I. Also C.W. 8285. Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi

1 Margarete Spiegel

240

THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
330. LETTER TO TARAMATI MATHURADAS TRIKUMJI

YERAVDA,

December 19, 1932

CHI. TARAMATI,

I had received your last letter all right. There was nothing in it that called for a reply. So I saved the time. I did hope that Mathuradas would stop losing weight. We are all fine. Dilip’s education will be progressing smoothly.

Blessings from

BAPU

SMT. TARAMATI MATHURADAS TRIKUMII
21 MINT ROAD
FORT, BOMBAY

From the Gujarati original: Pyarelal Papers Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

331. LETTER TO GOPIKRISHNA VIJAYAVARGIYA

December 19, 1932

BHAI GOPIKRISHNA.

Received your letter. If we exist, God exists, for God is the sum-total of all life just as the sun is the aggregate of rays. In order to have faith in God we have to have faith in ourselves, which is acquired through service without consideration of results. Another way is to have faith simply because the rest of the world has it.

I do not even think what the goal of independent India will be. This goal will be clear with the coming of independence. The rest you can see from my writings.

Vandemataram from

MOHANDAS GANDHI

[From a facsimile of the Hindi]

332. LETTER TO KRISHNAN NAIR

December 19, 1932

No new idea of mine warrants anyone getting upset over it and I would not expect it to be followed unless it is digested. I am translating the English word ‘assimilation’ as ‘digesting’¹. Invariably when we follow anything without assimilating it, we are either too involved or hurt [in the process]. There is no need to resort to faith regarding anything that can be grasped by the intellect. To do that would be a sign of mental lethargy.

[From Hindi]
Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 361

333. LETTER TO SOHANLAL SHARMA

December 19, 1932

Bhai Sohanlal,

Your letter. Do whatever you can, but only peacefully.² Keep me informed.

MOHANDAS GANDHI

Bhai Sohanlal Sharma
President, Hindu Sabha, Pushkar, Ajmer

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 2828

334. LETTER TO KRISHNACHANDRA

December 19, 1932

Bhai Krishnachandra,

I have your postcard. I had the registered letter too. I did not reply to it as it contained nothing new and I have no time these days. If you read carefully all my letters and your questions alongside, you will find the answers there.

Blessings from
MOHANDAS GANDHI

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 4266

¹ “Hajam karna” in the source
² The addressee at this time was engaged in securing temple-entry for the Harijans.
335. LETTER TO R. SANKARANARAYANA IYER

[Before December 20, 1932]

I have your letter. I forwarded your telegrams to Calicut. Beyond that I would do no more. The vote of the avarnas is wholly unnecessary. The call is not in answer to what the avarnas want, but it is a call to self-purification, penance, and discharge of an overdue debt and when a man pays his debt, he is unaffected by the fact whether the creditor demands payment or not.

The Hindu, 21-12-1932

336. TELEGRAM TO SECRETARY A.I.V.S.S.

December 20, 1932

SECRETARY
VARNASHRAM SWARAJYA SANGH
RAMBAG
BOMBAY

YOUR LETTER. SORRY CANNOT FIX OTHER THAN TWENTY-THIRD AS OTHER SHAstras ALREADY INVITED FOR TWENTY-THIRD. I WOULD GLADLY MEET SHAstras ON YOUR BEHALF ON ANOTHER DATE AND RESPECTFULLY LISTEN WHAT THEY SAY BUT IF POSSIBLE I WOULD LIKE THEM ATTEND TWENTY-THIRD. THERE ARE OTHER POINTS IN YOUR LETTER ABOUT WHICH THERE IS DIFFERENCE OPINION BUT THIS CAN BE BEST SETTLED TWENTY-THIRD OR BEFORE IF YOU WILL SEND REPRESENTATIVE FOR DISCUSSION.

GANDHI

From a microfilm: S.N. 18754

1 The letter was in reply to the addressee’s regarding the Guruvayur referendum.
2 The letter was published under the date-line: “Coimbatore, December 20”.
3 Dated December 19; vide Appendix “Letter from Secretary, All-India Varnashrama Swarajya Sangh”, 19-12-1932.
337. LETTER TO RAMAGOPALA SHASTRI

DEAR FRIEND,

I thank you for your letter. It is wholly unnecessary for you to trouble to come to Poona, and in any case the interpretation of an Arya Samajist will be discounted by the sanatanist Shastris.

Yours sincerely,

S. J. T. RAMAGOPALA SHASTRI
SECRETARY, PUNJAB DALIT SEWA MISSION, LAHORE

From a microfilm: S.N. 18755

338. LETTER TO G. M. JOSHI

DEAR FRIEND,

I am not sure that the meeting of the 23rd is actually coming off, but even if it is, for me it would be a deeply religious function, and nobody should be there except those pundits who are to take part in it. You will therefore kindly excuse me.

Yours sincerely,

S. J. T. G. M. JOSHI
171-A BUDHAWAR, POONA CITY

From a microfilm: S.N. 18758

339. LETTER TO VAKKAYIL ACHUTHAN NAIR

DEAR FRIEND,

I thank you for sending me a copy of the plaint in the Guruvayur Case. Have you not the judgment with you, and can you not send me a more detailed history of the Temple, as also a map of it with a detailed specification?

Yours sincerely,

S. J. T. VAKKAYIL ACHUTHAN NAIR
GURUVAYUR

From a microfilm: S.N. 18759
340. LETTER TO K. RAMABHADRA ROW

December 20, 1932

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter. In matters so deeply personal as you have stated, you must be the sole judge as to your duty.

Yours sincerely,

SJT. K. RAMABHADRA ROW
PODURI HOUSE, INNESPETA, RAJAHMUNDRY

From a microfilm: S.N. 18757

341. LETTER TO G. H. PATWARDHAN

December 20, 1932

DEAR FRIEND,

I thank you for your letter. There are some people who will deliberately misrepresent me. How shall I overtake such deliberate misrepresentations except by trusting the truth in me to make itself felt in its own time? I have said repeatedly that Guruvayur was not my choice. It thrust itself upon me. If Dakorji had done likewise, I would have joyfully proclaimed a fast. I am in God’s hands like clay in the potter’s, and had that come my way, probably the public would have found me wrestling with the Gujaratis with greater vigour than with the Malabaris. I can throw nothing at the latter, because they are at such a convenient distance from me, whereas the Gujaratis are within a stone’s throw. But as a proverb says, “You can wake up a man who is really asleep by a simple tickle in his ear, but a thousand tickles will fail to wake up a man who is pretending to sleep.”

Yours sincerely,

SJT. G. H. PATWARDHAN
DHULIA

From a microfilm: S.N. 18756

1 The letter was in reply to the addressee’s dated December 14, 1932, which read: “Since you declared that in the event of the Guruvayur Temple not being opened to the Harijans till the 1st of January 1933 you would go on a fast unto death, a Marathi newspaper has been insinuating in its columns that your choice of a distant temple like Guruvayur is due to your consciousness that were you to choose the Dakorji’s Temple for this purpose you would be severely attacked by the Gujarati community who have been your staunch followers in politics, and this probably is the reason of your choice of the temple of Guruvayur. Your explanation on the point would, I submit, be greatly useful in clearing the ground with regard to this” (S.N. 18703).
342. LETTER TO R. V. PATWARDHAN

December 20, 1932

DEAR FRIEND,

I thank you for your letter. I can only say in reply to one part of it that I have signed letters asking me to anticipate the 2nd and thus end my earthly life. I do not mind these letters. I merely state the fact.

For the rest of your letter, I can only give you my assurance that behind every step I take, and every word that I utter, there is great and prayerful deliberation. I ask sanatani friends to give me the same liberty of thought and action as they claim for themselves. Without such mutual toleration, no reform is possible.

I may also tell you that I am leaving no stone unturned to reach some workable compromise. But I must regretfully confess that I have failed hitherto.

Yours sincerely,

From a microfilm: S.N. 18760

343. LETTER TO G. D. BIRLA

December 20, 1932

MY DEAR GHANSHYAMDAS,

I have your letter\(^1\) of the 14th instant. I hope I have made ample amends for my presumption and that there is no wound left any-

\(^1\) The addressee in his letter dated December 16, 1932 referring to Gandhiji’s statement dated 16th November had objected to it as “a most cruel and objectionable charge against the sanatanists who are opposed to temple-entry” and the fast. He had also written: “... If the Zamorin and the Trustees bend before your threat of fast, do you believe that it would be due to a real change of heart and not to the suppression of their honest convictions? ... Such a suppression is the worst kind of tyranny; it is more reprehensible than the one foisted by the force of arms” (S.N. 18726).

\(^2\) Vide Appendix “Letter from G. D. Birla”, 14-12-1932.
If you think that there is still anything more left to be done by me, do please tell me. I hope not to repeat the folly.

Yours sincerely,

BAPU

SJT. GHANSHYAMDAS BIRLA
ALBUQUERQUE ROAD, NEW DELHI

From a photostat: S.N. 18762. Also C.W. 7910. Courtesy: G. D. Birla

344. LETTER TO M. I. DAVID

December 20, 1932

DEAR MR. DAVID,

I thank you for the letter and still more for the perseverance with which you are pursuing your scheme; and since you have willingly given me an inch, do not be surprised over my asking for an ell. Please prepare the whole scheme as you would have it, incorporating your latest suggestions. Then discuss it with Sjt. Mathuradas and Jaisukhlal Mehta, and if they approve of it, send it to me, and I shall devote to it exclusively a Press statement, but I must use your name as its father. After all, Sjt. Birla has already let the cat out of the bag.

And before you send me the scheme, I would like you to do a little lobbying and get as many scholarships as you can. I know this means a large draught of your time and energy, but you are a willing worker. Willing workers know to their cost how exacting I can be. The fact is with my dwindling physical capacity, I am hardly able to cope with the work day to day. Therefore, whenever I have a good thing suggested to me by anyone, I straightaway ask that one to present it to me ready-made, so that I should have very little to do but to put my signature to it.

Yours sincerely,

M. I. DAVID, ESQ.
4 QUEEN’S ROAD
FORT, BOMBAY

From a microfilm: S.N. 18748

1 Vide letters to Dr. B. C. Roy, 7-12-1932 and 15-12-1932; also “Letter to G. D. Birla”, 15/16-12-1932.

2 The letter was in reply to the addressee’s dated December 15, 1932 (S.N. 18718), in which he had suggested a few additional points regarding his scheme for higher education of selected Harijans about which he had already written to Gandhiji in his letter dated December 2, 1932.
MY DEAR CHARLIE,

I have your letter posted days after it was written, and I have your two dear cables. I was wondering whether the later developments in the anti-untouchability campaign including the prospective fast were thoroughly understood by you. Your wires show that you have understood them fully, and I am so glad, for, whereas the fast in connection with British decision was appreciated by many, the one contemplated to take place on the 2nd January next is misunderstood by many, and I am afraid that you might not understand it at all, whereas to me the necessity is clearer than when I fasted about the British decision. The British decision was a political issue, though with me it had a deeply religious significance. In the present instance, it is a purely religious issue. I have given many explanations in defence of it. All of them put together fall far short of what I feel about it, but what, I have no adequate language to express. Of course, for me personally, it transcends reason, because I feel it to be a clear call from God. My position is that there is nothing just now that I am doing of my own accord. He guides me from moment to moment. This is a thing which you cannot make other people believe, and it would be quite proper for them to reject such testimony. That has happened before now. That which was claimed as the voice of God proved to be the prompting of the Devil. What it is in my case will be partly judged by results and partly after my death, never wholly in any case and at any time except by God. After all, the intention behind an act is the final criterion, and that God alone can know, not even the author of the intention.

There is no knowing whether the fast will have to be taken on the 2nd January. It will depend upon the legal difficulty.

Yes, I read your book What I Owe to Christ immediately I got it. Both Vallabhbhai and Mahadev have glanced through it. Mahadev had not the time to go through it fully. The opening chapters are very good indeed. All the chapters are a great help to a struggling soul.

---

1 The reference presumably is to addressee’s letter of November 10, 1932; vide Appendix “Extract from Letter from C. F. Andrews”, 10-11-1932.
They reveal you as nothing else that you have written can do, but there was a chapter in it which as I read I criticized and I thought I had written to you about it, but evidently I have not. I should have to look at the book again in order to be able to recall the chapter and the subject. I could do so without much trouble, and if I can find a few spare moments, I will look it up and give you my criticism. I shall await copy that you promise of Gurudev’s thoughts on his reading your book.

I hope that you got my cable already in answer to yours from Birmingham.

I am quite clear that your presence is most useful there, and you are not to have anxiety complex if I have to fast. You at least will have no difficulty in believing that if I enter upon the fast, it would be by God’s will, and He will keep me intact if He has more service to take through this body.

With love and greetings from us all,

Yours

[PS.]

My love to all the other members of the family in both the senses. Please tell those who do not hear from me that I get little time to attend to all my correspondence.

From a photostat: G.N. 995

346. LETTER TO U. GOPALA MENON

December [20], 1932

MY DEAR GOPALA MENON,

I have your letter. The workers undoubtedly deserve warm thanks for the zeal with which they have been working. Please give them all my love. If you will not become jealous of your wife, let me tell you that everyone who had returned from Calicut tells me that whilst you have been good, your wife has been ever so much better. She has been working tirelessly and with utter self-effacement and if all the women of Malabar are as good, Malabar must be an extra-

1 Vide letters to the addressee, “Letter to U. Gopala Menon”, 21-12-1932 and “Letter to U. Gopala Menon”, 22-12-1932. The source, however, has “21”.

VOL. 58 : 16 NOVEMBER, 1932 - 14 JANUARY, 1933  249
ordinary good place to live in. I discount all this testimony, and Mrs. Gopala Menon must be an exceptional woman, for, if all the Malabar women were as good as she is, Malabar could not be the worst place in India for untouchability. All this is meant more for her than for you, so please share this letter with her and give her my warm congratulations.

Yours sincerely,

SJT. GOPALA MENON
CALICUT

From a microfilm: S.N. 18767

347. LETTER TO DAHYABHAI PATEL

December 20, 1932

CHI. DAHYABHAI,

I had intended to write a long letter but now there is no time for it. Get well soon. Ba, Velanbehn' and Bal are sitting near me as I write this letter.

Blessings from

BAPU

[From Gujarati]

Bapuna Patro—4: Manibehn Patelne. p. 153

348. LETTER TO C. F. ANDREWS

[December 21, 1932]¹

Since dictating this letter¹, I had your precious letter of the 9th instant. My whole heart goes out to you with reference to your brother. I know what it is to have a man with an unbalanced mind thrown on you. Perhaps you know that I have at the Ashram Dr. Mehta’s son, Ratilal, just like that. I hope, however, that things are not quite so bad as they appear to me from this distance. My prayers are all with you and for you. I am glad that you did not run to India on hearing from Amiyo. I am absolutely clear in my mind that it is we as distinguished from you that have to solve this problem of untouc-

¹ Wife of Lakshmidas P. Asar
² From the last paragraph hability. We have got to do the penance. As for the Zamorin, he deserves all the pity that one can extend to him, and even if you were here, I would not think of your going to him. That I would call undue pressure. God alone can work upon him if He will. All things considered, therefore, your presence is needed there.

This ought to have gone in as postscript to the letter dictated and posted yesterday.

Yours,

From a photostat: G.N. 995

349. LETTER TO U. GOPALA MENON

December 21, 1932

MY DEAR GOPALA MENON,

Since dictating my letter yesterday, I have read a notice or manifesto by Sjt. M. K. Acharya of which he has sent me a copy. I send you both the leaflet and Sjt. Acharya’s notice. If the notice correctly sets forth the purport of the leaflet, it is disturbing, and the comments made by Sjt. Acharya are quite justified. The people of Ponnani Taluk are being asked not whether they would save my life or let me die, but whether they, being themselves believers in temples as an integral part of Hinduism, are prepared to have the temple doors opened for the admission of Harijans. According to the English notice, you have befogged the issue, and that is just the charge brought by sanatanists against us and especially me, as you know they say that the contemplated fast, instead of making the people decide on the rights and wrongs of temple-entry, will take their minds away from temple-entry and lead them against their wishes to give their votes any way so as to save me. If such were the result of my fast, it would be a tragedy. I should expect co-workers, therefore, to tell the people not to be affected by the fast, but to vote for or against temple-entry according to their hearts. You will now please write to me fully, first, as to the notice, and secondly, as to what has been generally done, and if you discover that people have been misled, do not hesitate to tell me so. I will have no compunction in owning the mistake, retracting my steps and postponing the fast. It would be farcical to take a referendum again if the people have been already misled by an altogether false issue having been presented to them. Whereas if Sjt.

1 The letter was signed by Mahadev Desai “for Bapu”.
Acharya’s charge cannot be sustained, you will please give me chapter and verse in support of your statement and it will give me new strength and new hope.

You will confer with Madhavan and Kelappan. I do not know whether Rajaji would be there, or Sadashiv Rao, at the time you receive this letter. You will please telegraph to me the substance of the reply you would make.

Yours sincerely,

From a photostat: S.N. 18765

350. LETTER TO C. RAJAGOPALACHARI

December 21, 1932

MY DEAR C.R.,

I enclose herewith my letter¹ to Gopala Menon. You would not need to see Sjt. Acharya’s notice. My letter sufficiently tells you the purop of its contents. I do not know whether you would agree with me in my conclusion if it is found that Sjt. Acharya’s charge is sustained.

You have not told me, and I have not worried you about the state of the law on the subject. What is happening to theBill?² I am told that before a Bill of a religious character receives the Viceregal sanction for introduction, he is to have clear two months. If such be the case, and if the law as it stands is admittedly against us, the fast has to be automatically postponed; whereas if the sanction is withheld or is delayed purely through want of popular expression of public opinion on it, the fast has to go on till public opinion is sufficiently mobilized, if it can be, so as to secure Viceregal sanction. If public opinion is against such legislation the fast must stand adjourned. I would like you therefore to instruct me on the law. Ba tells me you are to be expected here about the 28th, if it is not possible for you to come earlier.

Yours sincerely,

From a copy: S.N. 18766

¹ Vide the preceding item.
² Vide “Interview to the Press”, 5-12-1932.
351. LETTER TO KONDA VENKATAPPAYYA

December 21, 1932

MY DEAR VENKATAPPAYYA,

It is just like you to steal into Calicut and not say anything to me. How are you keeping, how is your wife, and how is your daughter?

Yours sincerely,

SJT. VENKATAPPAYYA

C/O SJT. GOPALA MENON, CALICUT

From a microfilm: S.N. 18768

352. LETTER TO SADASHIV RAO KARNAD

December 21, 1932

MY DEAR SADASHIV RAO,

I am glad you are keeping me well-posted with progress of work. It was good to ignore the assault. We must be prepared for such things and bear them without retaliation.

Yours sincerely,

SJT. SADASHIV RAO KARNAD

C/O SJT. GOPALA MENON, CALICUT

From a microfilm: S.N. 18769

353. LETTER TO K. RAMUNNI MENON

December 21, 1932

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter for which I thank you. The letter contains so many innuendoes and imputations. It is very difficult for me to answer them all. I can only say generally that the statements you make are inconsistent with the facts as I know them. Naturally the arguments based upon misstatements must be unconvincing. My own position has been abundantly clear in the statements that have appeared in the Press. If you had asked me a series of questions to ascertain first of all from me the position, I would gladly have responded, and you could then have built your case against me. I can only give you my assurance that I consider myself to be a humble follower of Hinduism constantly seeking to act according to its dictates.

In one thing I can heartily be with you with my whole heart. You are entirely right in saying that you and the members of the Sanatan Hindu Sabha will not be deterred from what you believe to be the right course by any fast of mine. My fast was never conceived with the purpose of influencing your decision, and for that matter any decision. My fast is intended to stir Hindus to action, and that, I am glad to say, is happening day after day, although the fast has yet to start.

Yours sincerely,

SIT. K. RAMUNNI MENON
MANAGER, SANATAN HINDU SABHA, GURUVAYUR

From a microfilm: S.N. 18772

354. LETTER TO JAISUKHLAL K. MEHTA

December 21, 1932

MY DEAR JAISUKHLAL,

I have your letter. I do not think I would trouble the Shastri you name or Dr. Kurtukoti to come all the way to Poona, but what I would like is a clear expression of their opinion on the temple-entry question. Let them answer three questions:

1. Who are untouchables?
2. Is untouchability curable in this life?
3. What are the disabilities of untouchables who are not entitled to enter the Hindu temples?

Yours sincerely,

From a microfilm: S.N. 1877
DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter and the three enclosures. I have gone through the dedicatory letter, as also Swami Kevalanand’s, but you do not expect me just now to go through the synopsis of your treatise on trans-migration. For me it is a fascinating subject but there are so many fascinating things that I am obliged to put aside.

Yours sincerely,

S.J.T. Paramahamsa Pragnaneshwar Yati
329 Sadashiv Peth, Poona City

From a microfilm: S.N. 18774

BHAI KIRCHAND.

I got your letter, and also both the pamphlets. You probably know that we are at present four kept together in this jail. When your pamphlet was read, it seemed to be an occasion either for tears or laughter. Ordinarily, I do not read the letters but they are read out to me. But it happened by chance that I started reading your pamphlet, and at the very first sentence, since I could not weep as I have now grown stone-hearted, I burst out into laughter and went on laughing to the end. But it was a matter for tears, not for laughter. The language is not in the least that of non-violence. It is not civil either. You are under the vow to remain absolutely peaceful and non-violent. You have made no effort at all in your pamphlet to win over the sanatani friends with love. Every word of it is likely to make them angry. You have invited them to belabour you. Your language is theatrical. It will not teach the youths the lesson either of peace or of civility, let alone truth. And there is no limit to self-praise. However, what I fear is that I am not likely to succeed in explaining to people my ideas. How can people change all at once if they are accustomed to using such language?

I hope you got my reply to your previous letter. You must have seen that my advice had been quite the opposite to what has actually happened. If, however, you did want to hold a meeting, you could have done so without issuing violent pamphlets. Your duty was, before doing that, to see some reasonable sanatanists, or, if you did not find any, to seek the help of the State and hold the meeting if you got it. If you had not held the meeting, you would not have failed to serve the cause of Harijans. I see no victory in the fact that the sanatanists did not come to the meeting to break it up. They must have felt very angry, but they may have got frightened by the strength of your numbers. These things betoken violence on your part. Your variety of non-violence puts my non-violence to shame, and I learn some truth even from the poisonous writings of the sanatanists. This is not the way to save dharma, and it is with that end in view that we try to serve Harijans. What more shall I say?

Blessings from

BAPU

From Gujarati: C.W. 2861. Courtesy: Shardabehn Shah

357. LETTER TO NANALAL K. JASANI

December 21, 1932

BHAISHRI NANALAL,

I had a long and frank discussion today with Chhaganlal and Maganlal. Now you, Ratubhai and the two brothers should sit together and discuss the matter. I have of course advised that Manilal also should be present. But the brothers seemed to be rather lukewarm about it, though they said that Manilal did not wish it. When I explained to them the implication of that statement, they said that they would include him, if necessary. My advice, which they seemed to accept, was as follows: Doctor’s will should be fully respected as far as practicable, that is, the sisters’ shares should be paid to them, though it would not matter if that cannot be done just now. It will be enough if their shares are credited to their names and they are paid interest at market rate. As for Ratilal, Doctor’s wish should be respected. If, on dividing the property into three parts, Ratilal’s share comes to more than that¹, the excess should be credited to his account. As for Manekbai, it is probable that the interest on the sum intended for her

¹ Probably the sum specified in the Will

256 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
by Doctor will not be enough to meet her needs, and hence a monthly allowance should be fixed for her and arrangements should be made so that she gets it regularly. If, however, she insists on taking the amount intended by Doctor, it should be decided to pay it to her and she would then get nothing more. The sums which she has drawn after Doctor’s death should be deducted from that amount. The three brothers’ shares should be divided. Trustees should be appointed for Ratilal and his running expense allowance should be fixed. As for the other two brothers, they may, in mutual consultation, take whichever part of the business each likes. If this is not acceptable to them, the diamonds and the farms also should be divided into two shares and the whole management should be in the hands of Trustees or Manager, and, as in the case of the mother, a monthly allowance should be fixed for them and the brothers should not exceed it. For the present, they should not interfere with the work of the Trustees or the Manager. When both have acquired sufficient reputation in business circles, they may take over the management if they wish but they should not interfere with it as long as the business has not been started again and put in order. For the present, Chhaganlal should stay at Rajkot or elsewhere in India, and for their education the children should be admitted in the National School at Rajkot or elsewhere. I have heard that Chhaganlal is addicted to a vice. He confesses that it was so, but I believe that he is still addicted to it. In their talk with me, both the brothers adopted a reasonable attitude. If they adopt a similar attitude in their discussion with you, you will be able to decide the matter in a few hours. After this has been settled, you may send for Prabhashankar, and also for Champa, if you wish. It is likely that Ratilal will get upset if Champa is called. If possible, therefore, you should settle the matter without calling her. I consider it essential that the whole matter should be settled before the 2nd. If it seems necessary to you to discuss the matter with me, you may leave your work and come any time you wish. I assume that all of you, or those of you for whom it is considered necessary, will come to me with the decision that is finally arrived at.

As for the amount to be paid to the Ashram, my advice is this. If any balance is left after paying the other contributions from the funds in the Trust, the Ashram may be given its full amount or whatever is left. It may be given nothing if there is no balance. All the other contributions which are usually paid should be fully paid. If the sum reserved does not bring enough income for this purpose, there should be a proportionate reduction from the amounts of those contributions. I understand that Rs. 800-900 are being paid every month. Maganlal believes that after deduction for taxes, etc., the net income does not exceed Rs. 500.

If that is so, the Ashram will get between Rs. 100 and 200. It seems that the receipts are enough to pay the other contributions. I do not think I have left out anything. You may certainly ask me about anything, if you wish.

Show this letter to Ratubhai, as it is intended for both of you.

Blessings from
BAPU

From Gujarati: C.W. 9471

358. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

December 21, 1932

CHI. NARANDAS,

I got your weekly mail. Prema left the hospital much too soon. And she was also very hasty in resuming work immediately on returning to the Ashram. If she does not become careful even now, I think she will suffer very much and will be unable to do the service which she is so impatient to do. Read the accompanying letter to Madhavlal [Shah]¹ and apply to Prema every sentence of what I have said in it about the difference between what one loves and what is for one’s good. At present her good lies in not talking to anyone and in avoiding exertion. And, though she loves to carry on work with determination, in fact her determination is a form of duragraha² and springs from ignorance and she should, therefore, give it up. I have still not heard from Mavalankar. I shall be able to think what to do after I know what he has done. Let me know the outcome of your meeting with the Chharas.³

Please let me know what you eat, and what Navin eats. Dhiru never writes to me. If anybody wishes to write to me, do not stop him. Let him write. It will be enough if at present he does not expect a

¹ From Bapuna Patro—9: Shri Narandas Gandhine, Pt. II, p. 524
² Obstinacy
³ Vide “Letter to Narandas Gandhi”, 14-12-1932.
reply from me. I may read letters at my convenience, but I cannot write or dictate letters in that manner.

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./I. Also C.W. 8286. Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi

359. LETTER TO RATILAL SHETH

December 21, 1932

BHAI RATILAL,

Read the long letter I have written to Bhai Nanalal. I have talked frankly to Chhaganlal about his vices. I also told him about the letter which Lilavati wrote to me. I thought that it was absolutely necessary to do so. He, too, confessed that he had those vices in the past. But I could see from his face that he had them still. I also tried to convince him that, instead of being angry with Lilavati, he should believe that she had done him a great service. He has definitely promised to reform himself.

Blessings from

BAPU

360. LETTER TO VANAMALA N. PARIKH

December 21, 1932

CHI. VANAMALA,

You have become careless about your handwriting recently. Write the next letter with your right hand. You should write with both hands alternately.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 5780. Also C.W. 3003. Courtesy: Vanamala M. Desai

1 The letter was signed by Mahadev Desai “for Bapu”.
361. LETTER TO PREMI JAIRAMDAS

December 21, 1932

CHI. PREMI,

Your Hindi letter is extremely good. The characters too are very well-formed. I did not write as I thought there was no letter from you. Inform Father when you write to him that we are all well. Jamnalalji too is quite well. I saw him only today.

This is in Mahadevbhai’s hand.

Blessings from
BAPU

PREMI JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM
MARKET ROAD, HYDERABAD, SIND

From a photostat of the Hindi: C.W. 9249. Courtesy: Jairamdas Doulantram

362. LETTER TO MIRABEHN

December 22, 1932

CHI. MIRA,

Your usual letter came in at the usual time but as yet without the notes from the book you are reading. For the first time perhaps I found your letter mutilated. Was it a reminder that you and I were prisoners? But I do not mind nor will you. Blessed are they that expect nothing.

You say our fears are not due to want of faith in God but want of faith in self. But these are one and the same thing. Want of faith in self comes from want of faith in God. It betrays ignorance of what God is. Then again you say want of faith comes from our want of self-restraint. This is true but it connotes the same thing. Read the verse 59 of Ch. II, Gita. Objects of senses are eradicated only by seeing God face to face, in other words by faith in God. To have complete faith in God is to see Him. Nor is the matter any better by assuming the existence of the fourth dimension. It ultimately

1 Daughter of Jairamdas Doulantram
2 “I cannot remember now exactly what my theory was. Spiritual truths come to one imperceptibly but surely so long as the search is unrelenting. Today I know the truth that fear means lack of faith in God.” —Mirabehn points to the same thing, “Seek ye first the kingdom of God and all else will be added unto you.” When we meet Him, we will dance in the joy of His Presence and there will be neither fear of snakes nor of the death of dear ones. For there is no death and no snake-bites in His Presence. The fact is that the most living faith, too, falls short of the perfect. Hence there is no such thing as complete absence of fear for the embodied, i.e., imprisoned soul. The possession of the body is a limitation. It is a wall of separation. We can therefore but try to shed our fear, i.e., increase our faith.

THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI

My weight is now 103 lb. I have just now eliminated bread and even vegetable and therefore also salt. The quantity of milk is slightly less than 2 lb. Under heavy strain of work milk and fruit is my diet. Ba and Bal are here. Jamnalalji is getting better. He is adding to his weight.

The missing statements\(^2\) accompany this letter.

Our cats have suffered disgrace. The mother has been found helping herself to foods without permission and during nights dirtying our carpets and papers. Vallabhbhai has therefore cut off the food supply. Thus inter-dining has stopped. What other ordinances Vallabhbhai will promulgate I do not know. Ordinance rule is the order of the day even for poor kitty!

Love from all.

BAPU

[PS.]

It is just 5.30 a.m.

From a photostat: C.W. 9512. Courtesy: Mirabehn

363. LETTER TO KOWTHA SURYANARAYANA ROW

December 22, 1932

DEAR FRIEND,

I thank you for your letter. The way you have put the subject in your letter there is very little for me to disagree with. Untouchability

\(^1\) St. Matthew, vi. 33

\(^3\) The letter was in reply to the addressee’s dated December 17 (S.N. 18739) in which he had requested Gandhiji to put off or give up the contemplated fast.
of a type is not only to be found in our Shastras but is universal. But that is untouchability not attaching to birth but to work or occupation. Such untouchability can only be temporary and is always easily curable. If you can make other sanatani friends take that view and admit that in practice we have gone far beyond the Shastras and further that in so doing we have sinned against our religion, the so-called untouchables and humanity, I think that a middle course can be found without any difficulty regarding temple-entry. I have no desire whatsoever to do violence to the scruples of any sanatanists. So far as the contemplated fast is concerned, I again agree with you that fast from a religious standpoint can only be a spiritual act and can, therefore, never be exploited for secular or selfish ends. As I have told you, I believe my fast to be spiritual, both in intention and end; intention is to purify Hinduism and end is to secure religious justice for those of the Hindus who have been hitherto denied that justice.

Yours sincerely,

SIT. KOWTHA SURYANARAYANA ROW
95 BROADWAY, MADRAS

From a microfilm: S.N. 18782. Also Swarajya, 25-1-1933.

364. LETTER TO DR. MOHAMMAD ALAM

December 22, 1932

DEAR DR. ALAM,

I have your letter and it filled all of us with delight. I wonder if you got my letter sent to you at Lahore. Then I wrote to Begum Alam at the address sent by her, 57, Lansdowne Road. I hope she got that letter. If you are under a prohibition order, it is better for you not to write even to me. Begum Alam is with you as nurse, companion, secretary and many other things rolled into one. Therefore let her write to your dictation, and dictate to her in Urdu. She is a very careful writer, and her handwriting I have no difficulty in deciphering. What is more, I shall get a free lesson in Urdu. She must keep me informed regularly. I am glad that you have been keeping so well otherwise. I know that you could not be in better hands than Dr.

1 Vide “Letter to Dr. Mohammad Alam”, 26-11-1932.
Roy’s. We are all doing well. With love to both of you and from us all and with our united prayers for your speedy recovery.

Love from us all.

_Yours sincerely,_

M. K. GANDHI
DR. SHEIK MOHAMMAD ALAM
C/O DR. B. C. ROY, 36 WELLINGTON ST., CALCUTTA

From a photostat: G.N. 20

DEAR FRIEND,

I thank you for your letter1. I do not regard the Pulayas and the others as aborigines, and so far as I am aware Hinduism regards them as Hindus. That in spite of their being Hindus, they seem to be a class apart is the tragedy of Hinduism. You will not quote school-histories or any historical text-books in order to show that they are not Hindus but please understand the formula under which the temple-entry movement is being conducted. It is the caste Hindus who have to do an act of reparation by throwing open the doors of Hindu temples to those who are regarded as untouchables though still part of Hindu society. If Pulayas are not Hindus they will never enter Hindu temples. I quite agree with you that what is needed is a change of heart on the part of caste Hindus. Temple-entry would be one of the signs of that change of heart. If, as you say, it is quite possible that “these reformers care little for religion and temples”, might it not be said with a little more truth that it is equally possible that these reformers do care for Hindu religion and temples? Seeing that they are working for temple-entry, is not the presumption in their favour till the contrary is proved? It would be proper to say that those who take no part in the movement, either for or against, care little for religion and temples. If the reformers take up the attitude of touch-me-not in their daily life whilst they advocate temple-entry, their advocacy is certainly hypocritical. But there again the evidence is contrary to what you think to be the attitude of “many a present-day reformer”. Believe me that I would not risk my life “for achieving a sham”. On the contrary I am trying to achieve on behalf of Harijans a most substantial thing from a religious standpoint.

1 Dated December 17, 1932 in which, dissuading Gandhiji from his fast, the addressee had said that Pulayas and others were aborigines “who were in India long before the Aryan invasion and were never amalgamated into Hindu religion or society”.

VOL. 58: 16 NOVEMBER, 1932 - 14 JANUARY, 1933 263

Yours sincerely,

P. K. Mathew, Esq.
Christava Mahilalayam, Alwaye (Travancore)

From a microfilm: S.N. 18777

366. LETTER TO J. R. GHARPURE

December 22, 1932

DEAR FRIEND,

I am sorry that you were put to any trouble on account of my wire. Our common friend, Haribhau, told me that he had written to you as to two or three friends and that I was to telegraph in order to reinforce the letter, and the reason was to have you, Swami Kevalanand and other learned friends in Poona to have a quiet discussion on the temple-entry question and probably to join the argument between pro-reform Shastris and anti-reform Shastris on the 23rd. As there is nothing certain now about this meeting of the 23rd being attended by the anti-reform Shastris,¹ I will not trouble you or Swami Kevalanand to come here, at any rate just now. But if you could send me your joint-opinion on the whole question, I should value it.

Yours sincerely,

Sjt. J. R. Gharpure
Girgaon, Bombay

From a microfilm: S.N. 18778

367. LETTER TO N. V. THADANI

December 22, 1932

MY DEAR THADANI,

I thank you for your letter enclosing copy of the resolution passed by the staff and students of your college and the letter addressed to the Zamorin.

¹ Vide “Letter to H. D. Nanavati”, 22-12-1932. However the meeting did take place; vide “Letter to M. G. Bhandari”, 24-12-1932.
I am not treating your resolution and the letter to the Zamorin as your final contribution to the cause of the Harijans, but I regard them as an earnest of many services to come.

Yours sincerely,

SJT. N. V. THADANI
PRINCIPAL, RAMJAS COLLEGE, DELHI

From a microfilm: S.N. 18779

368. LETTER TO U. GOPALA MENON

December 22, 1932

MY DEAR GOPALA MENON,

Since dictating my letter of the 20th I have read a copy of the manifesto or notice issued by Sjt. M. K. Acharya. He has attached to it a copy of the leaflet said to have been issued by you. Will you please send me your comments on it?

Yours sincerely,

From a microfilm: S.N. 18780

369. LETTER TO DIWANCHAND

December 22, 1932

DEAR FRIEND,

I thank you for your letter. You are wrong in thinking that Guruvayur is the only temple left to be opened, but whether it is the only one or one out of many yet to be opened, the fast is not my act, therefore if it comes I shall be unable to avoid it.

Yours sincerely,

SJT. DIWANCHAND
GORJRA (DISTRICT LYALLPUR)

From a microfilm: S.N. 18781

2 The letter was signed by Mahadev Desai “for Bapu”.
DEAR FRIEND,

I thank you for your wire of 21st instant. I am sorry to learn that you are ill. I hope you are fully restored. It was in pursuance of my agreement with you and other sanatani friends that I became party to an organized discussion. It would be impossible for me to get together again the pundits who have specially come or are coming for this discussion. At the same time I shall be pleased to meet your pundits on a day to be mutually agreed upon and try to secure the presence of some pundits who give general support to my view. You have in mind some elaborate conception of the discussion. I have failed to grasp all its implications. Mine is a very simple conception. As a humble seeker of truth, I listen to all who have honestly any light to give me. The discussion for me has no other interest apart from elucidation of truth.

Yours sincerely,

S. H. NANAVATI
SECRETARY, ALL-INDIA VARNASHRAM SWARAJYA SANGH
BOMBAY

From a microfilm: S.N. 18783

DEAR DR. ANSARI,

I am so glad you were able to send me that long letter of 1st instant. We were all looking forward to a detailed letter from you. Sherwani must have already left for India. Western medicine and surgery seem to be becoming a very complicated and costly affair. The fewest men and women can get the whole benefit of it. It seems to me that there must be something radically wrong in the system, which daily tends to become more and more costly, and split into compartments, each one of which requires a specialist and a change from one
I suppose you have a complete and conclusive answer to my objection. I have stated it in order to coax you. You may give me your considered answer when you have ample leisure. Anyway, I do not want you to return to India till you are completely restored, and now that you are there, I do not care if you have to go to a hundred experts to have all the parts of the body fully restored.

It is a great thing for you to have hardened your heart and resisted all temptations to attend public functions and meetings.

Of course I knew your devotion to your profession and I am glad that you will soon complete an original treatise on rejuvenation. We all wish you success in your work.

Please remember me to Shwaib and Shaukat Ali if the latter is there. Zohra and I correspond with each other regularly. You may discount her abilities as a teacher. For me she is an ideal teacher. She takes great pains over correcting my Urdu, and her handwriting has never been excelled by a single correspondent of mine in Urdu. I look forward to her weekly letter. I like her composition also but as to that, I can be no judge. Love from us all.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

DR. M. A. ANSARI

From a copy: Ansari Papers. Courtesy: Jamia Millia Islamia Library

372. LETTER TO DAHYABHAI PATEL

December 22, 1932

CHI. DAHYABHAI,

The reports I get about you are so good that I need not write anything. But let me say this. Do not think either about the illness or about office work. If possible, turn all your thoughts to God and place yourself in His hands. Don’t you remember this bhajan': “My life is in your hands, Lord; may Thou protect it.”

Blessings from
BAPU

[From Gujarati]

Bapuna Patro—4: Maniben Patelne, p. 154

1 By Keshavlal Bhatt
373. LETTER TO RUKMINIDEVI BAJAJ

December 22, 1932

CHI. RUKMINI,

I had got your letter in due time. How nice it would be if you maintain the slow improvement in your health and by and by become completely all right? Do you read any newspapers? Or is it that you get no time at all to read anything? If you read newspapers, which ones do you read? I suppose you have to speak in Hindi there most of the time. Do you read anything else? Do you visit any people? Have you made any friends?

All of us are well. These days I spend most of my time in Harijan work.

Blessings to you both from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 9149

374. QUESTIONS FOR SHASTRI PARISHAD

[On or before December 23, 1932]¹

1. Define untouchability according to Shastras.
2. Can the definition of untouchables given in the Shastras be applied to the so-called untouchables of the present day?
3. What are the restrictions imposed by Shastras on the untouchables?
4. Can an individual be free from untouchability in his own lifetime?
5. What are the injunctions of the Shastras regarding beha-viour of the touchables with the untouchables?
6. Under what circumstances will the Shastras permit temple-entry by the untouchables?
7. What are Shastras?
8. How is authoritativeness of the Shastras proved?

¹ The Shastris were to meet Gandhiji on December 23, 1932.
9. How will the differences arising over the definitions or interpretations of Shastras be decided?
10. What are your conclusions?

The Hindustan Times, 27-12-1932

375. TELEGRAM TO ZAMORIN OF CALICUT

December 23, 1932

UNDERSTAND GURUVAYUR IS OPEN ALL HINDUS INCLUDING HARIJANS THREE DAYS EVERY YEAR. PLEASE WIRE WHETHER THE INFORMATION IS CORRECT.¹

GANDHI

The Hindu, 3-1-1933

376. LETTER TO S. SEN

December 23, 1932

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter of 17th instant enclosing resolution of the students and staff of your college, for which please convey my thanks to them and accept them for yourself. You will not ask me to regard this resolution as the final contribution by your college. I take it by way of promise of tangible services to the cause of Harijans.

Yours sincerely,

S. S. S. Sen

Principal, Commercial College

8 DARYAGANJ, DELHI

From a microfilm: S.N. 18788

¹ The Zamorin in his letter dated December 26, 1932 replied: “Your telegram of the 23rd was received by me only this morning, as I had come away to Kottakkal on the 14th. I have telegraphed as follows: ‘Your Telegram 23rd. Information is not correct. Letter follows.’” (M.M.U./XXII, and The Hindu, 3-1-1933)
377. LETTER TO MANINDRA NATH MITTER

December 23, 1932

DEAR FRIEND,

I thank you for your letter of 16th instant. I showed it to Motibabu who is in Poona at present. I am quite sure that Motibabu would not consciously be party to any sham, nor would he say anything to hurt anybody. Motibabu himself is a veteran reformer. He has banished untouchability, banished the purdah, and there is complete freedom in his Ashram at Chandernagar. His idea of drawing sana-tanists to the reform was itself, you will agree, quite laudable. He has come here not to thwart or endanger the progress of reform, but to advance it. I would therefore ask you to utilize Motibabu’s services and those of his Sangh to the extent that they can give their services.

Yours sincerely,

SJT. MANINDRA NATH MITTER
SECRETARY, THE HINDU MISSION
32-B HARISH CHATTERJEE STREET
KALIGHAT, CALCUTTA

From a microfilm: S.N. 18789

378. LETTER TO MOHAN LAL

December 23, 1932

DEAR LALA MOHAN LAL,

I was glad to have your letter after such a long time. Whatever the remnant of the untouchability in the Punjab, it has got to be fought against. Therefore, no province should say: “We are not as the others.” Every province has to show an absolutely clean slate.

Yours sincerely,

LALA MOHAN LAL, ADVOCATE
“FIRGROVE”, SIMLA

From a microfilm: S.N. 18787

1 Motilal Roy, Chairman, Reception Committee, Unity Conference, Bengal
2 Mohan Lal, M.L.C., an Arya Samajist
3 Dated December 15 (S.N. 18708) in which the addressee had written: “In Punjab the untouchability question is not so keen as in other parts of India.”
379. LETTER TO HORACE G. ALEXANDER

December 23, 1932

MY DEAR HORACE,

I must dictate this letter. It is a matter of such joy to me that our little circle has not misunderstood my latest venture, and that you can trace the finger of God in it. I have gone through your little pamphlet. I think that it is a fair presentation of the case about untouchability. Dr. Ansari has written to me at length about his meeting you, Andrews and other friends.

With love to you all from us all,

BAPU

PROF. HORACE ALEXANDER
144 OAKTREE LANE, SELLY OAK BIRMINGHAM (ENGLAND)

From a photostat: G.N. 1417

380. LETTER TO ABBAS TYABJI

December 23, 1932

MY DEAR WHITE BEARD,

I was waiting for your letter after your tour in Kathiawar. There is the negative satisfaction that if you hadn’t gone, not even Rs. 17 would have been collected. To collect money in Kathiawar in these times of general depression for anti-untouchability work is like drawing a live tooth. I am glad however that the tour was successful from the health point of view. You were in need of a change from the humdrum of domestic life. You cannot be happy till you have got some service to do, and I know that nothing delights you more than serving those who are at the bottom. Do I not remember vividly your beaming face, when, years ago, we went to the Harijan quarters in Godhra and held the real reform meeting there? I had a letter from Hamida before I got yours. I sent her a reply which I hope she received.

Please send me as early as you can a description of the rowdy Wadhwan meeting. Were they really out even to assault you? What did the wreckers actually do? I have accounts which make one’s hair stand on end. Were the rowdies quite so bad as all that? I should have thought that your glowing silvery beard would sweep all rowdyism before it.

With love from us all to you all,

Yours sincerely,

BHHRR
SIT. ABBASTYABJI SAHEB
CAMP BARODA

From a photostat: S.N. 9582

381. FRAGMENT OF LETTER TO KHORSHEDE NAOROJI

December 23, 1932

Why do you think that my fast was due to disappointment? On the contrary it sprang from hope eternal. Fasting is as necessary for life as eating. It is a necessary part of prayer. We serve as well by dying as by living. But it is the privilege of the few to have to fast. Needless to say I write of spiritual fasts. I know that fasting may come also from despair. Then it is rank suicide. I should defend my fast against such a charge. For me it has always been a process of penance and purification. The fast of 1921 was not born of despair. The basis of all penitential fasts has always been faith in mankind, God and oneself. It gives an inward joy that sustains one. I therefore want you to share with me the joy of it. I hope you have understood my argument. Of course you know that there is no certainty about the 2nd January fast. It may have to be postponed.

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, pp. 366-7
382. LETTER TO MATHURADAS TRIKUMJI

December 23, 1932

I am being visited by a great number of Shastris these days. Their plight is pitiful. It has become difficult to learn anything from them. They lack the capacity even to impart what they possess. And so I see them full of prejudices and hatreds. But I don’t wish to narrate this painful story.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, pp. 367-8

383. LETTER TO G. V. MAVALKAR

December 23, 1932

BHAISHRI MAVALKAR,

The enclosed letter is for your information. I have replied and said that I do not know the facts and that I have faith in you that you would never do injustice to anybody. I have also advised that Keshavji should see you. You may write to me what you wish.

I am awaiting your letter about the problem of the Chharas.¹

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 1230

384. LETTER TO G. V. NARASIMHACHAR

December 24, 1932

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter. I appreciate your zeal but cannot endorse your action. I am quite sure in my mind that till the Guruvayur question is settled, no one should fast in respect of temple-entry. Try still more to convince the opponents of reform that it is necessary if Hinduism is to live. For the abandonment of your projected fast, you may make use of this letter, and seeing that the fasting method has been applied by me in the first instance, I would ask you to listen to my advice.

¹ Vide “Letter to G. V. Mavalankar”, 15-12-1932.

Yours sincerely,

Sjt. G. V. Narasimhachar
“Madhava Vilas”, Brahmin Street, Bellary

From a microfilm: S.N. 18798

385. LETTER TO T. B. KESHAVA RAO

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter. I am quite clear that there should be no fast by anybody in connection with temple-entry in any place till the Guruvayur question is finally settled. In the meantime a persistent but gentle propaganda should be carried on for convincing the orthodox people. I have written to Sjt. G. V. Narasimhachar asking him to give up the idea of the fast.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI
Sjt. T. B. Keshava Rao
Secretary, District Anti-Uncouchability League
Brahmins Street, Bellary

From a photostat: G.N. 160

386. LETTER TO R. VENKATARAMAN

DEAR FRIEND,

I thank you for giving me the particulars about S. Ponnammal. Your letter was received by me two or three days after Mrs. Gandhi’s arrival here. How and why it was delayed in delivery to me, it is difficult to account for. If I would have received your letter in time, I would certainly have asked her to meet Shrimati Ponnammal.

Yours sincerely,

Sjt. R. Venkatraman
Calicut

From a microfilm: S.N. 18791

1 Vide the preceding item.
2 Vide also “Letter to S. Ponnammal”, 10-1-1933.
387. LETTER TO S. RAJAGOPALACHARI

December 24, 1932

DEAR FRIEND,

I thank you for your letter. If removal of untouchability is a necessary act, all the sufferings you describe have got to be undergone. Undoubtedly the movement has to be handled gently. No needless irritation should be caused to the opponents of the reform. But it is likely that in spite of all the precautions that may be taken to avoid wounding the feelings of the orthodox, some shock to orthodoxy may be inevitable. That is the price that every reform has exacted.

Yours sincerely,

S. RAJAGOPALACHARI
713 NORTH ADAYAVALANJAN STREET, SRIRANGAM

From a microfilm: S.N. 18792

388. LETTER TO DR. T. S. S. RAJAN

December 24, 1932

DEAR DR. RAJAN,

I enclose herewith a letter received from Srirangam. You will please tell me how far it correctly describes the situation.

Yours sincerely,

DR. T. S. S. RAJAN
TRICHINOPOLY

From a microfilm: S.N. 18793

1 Presumably from S. Rajagopalachari; vide the preceding item.
389. LETTER TO SECRETARY, VAIDIK DHARMAVARDHINI SABHA

DEAR FRIEND,

I thank you for your letter supplying me with the population figures for Ponnani Taluk. They will help me when I receive the result of the referendum.

Yours sincerely,

THE SECRETARY
VAIDIK DHARMA VARDHINI SABHA, BEZWADA

From a microfilm: S.N. 18794

390. LETTER TO W. E. S. HOLLAND

DEAR CANON,

I thank you for your letter. It is a good thing that you have a night school for Chamars and other Harijans, but I hope that not only 30, which you tell me is the number out of a total of 450 giving their time to the service of the Harijans, but all those who are at all able will join this band of volunteers, and I also hope that those who give in their names will be very strict in the fulfilment of their promise. I have found again and again that those who give their service by fits and starts and can never be depended upon to keep time, often prove a hindrance rather than a help to the movement to which they promise their services.

Yours sincerely,

THE REV. CANON W. E. S. HOLLAND, M.A.
ST. JOHN’S COLLEGE, AGRA

From a microfilm: S.N. 18799
391. LETTER TO N. VENKATAKRISTNAYYA

December 24, 1932

DEAR FRIEND,

I thank you for your letter. I remember my visit to your Sams-thanam. I am trying my utmost to avoid friction between the orthodox people and the reformers, but it is difficult on all occasions for a reformer to avoid hurting susceptibilities.

You may send your representative and I shall gladly give him at the most one hour any time after the 3rd or 4th of January, if I am not fasting. Before the fasting day I have a crowded programme. It would be wise and economical if you send me your suggestions in writing. But I leave the choice to you.

Yours sincerely,

SIT. N. VENKATAKRISTNAYYA

KHALDAR SAMSTHANAM

HOUSE NO. 21/191 GOVERNORPET, BEZWADA

From a microfilm: S.N. 18796

392. LETTER TO MUKANDI LAL

December 24, 1932

DEAR FRIEND,

I thank you for your interesting letter of the 16th instant. I fully realize that it will be only by persistent and gentle effort that the deep-rooted evil can be removed.

As to the proposed scholarships, I would advise you to discuss

---

1 The letter was in reply to the addressee’s dated December 18, 1932, which read: “... We hope you can succeed in finding out some way or other in the solution of Guruvayur temple-entry question, and revive in the Hindu community such generous spirit as existed at the time of the Poona Pact. The Guruvayur question is creating a sort of stiffness in the orthodox section of the Hindu community, and the spirit which led to the Poona Pact is now being weakened” (S.N. 18741).

2 The addressee, Ex-Deputy President, U. P. Council, giving the details of the anti-untouchability work in Garhwal, had written: “... what is wanted here is financial help to give scholarships to the children of depressed classes in large numbers and to open an orphanage in which orphans could be taken from all castes. If we could do this, much could be done for them” (S.N. 18719). your project with Pandit Kunzru who is the Chairman of the U.P. Branch of the newly formed Society.

Yours sincerely,

SJT. MUKANDI LAL
BARRISTER-AT-LAW
LANSDOWNE (U.P.)

From a microfilm: S.N. 18800

393. LETTER TO RADHAKANT MALAVIYA

December 24, 1932

DEAR RADHAKANT,

It was impossible for me to reach your letter earlier. Meanwhile, I had a long letter from Sjt. Madhavan Nair. I have advised him to give to the Press the substance of his letter. Sjt. Rajagopalachari telegraphed to me that it was impossible to do more than they had done to ensure accuracy. You will find that if the referendum is a bogus affair or otherwise improper, I shall have no hesitation in postponing the fast. After all, the referendum is designed to help me to come to a decision as to the fast.

Yours sincerely,

SJT. RADHAKANT MALAVIYA
207 KALBADEVI ROAD, BOMBAY

From a microfilm: S.N. 18801

394. LETTER TO U. GOPALA MENON

December 24, 1932

MY DEAR GOPALA MENON,

Will you please read the enclosed letter about the lady mentioned therein, and tell me all about her, and whether the statements made in the letter are true?

Yours sincerely,

From a microfilm: S.N. 18802

\[1\] Vide also “Letter to U. Gopala Menon”, 14-12-1932 and 21-12-1932.
395. LETTER TO B. VARADARAJULU

December 24, 1932

DEAR VARADARAJULU,

The students of your school can fraternize with the Harijan children, play with them, go in for excursions with them, clean them if they are dirty, share their own refreshments with them if they are hungry and their own clothes with them if they are ill-clad. He is an ideal teacher who has a spotless character and loves his pupils as his own children.

Yours sincerely,

SJT. B. VARADARAJULU
26 Paper Mills Road, Perambur

From a microfilm: S.N. 18797

396. LETTER TO R. SANKARANARAYANA IYER

December 24, 1932

DEAR FRIEND,

I thank you for your two letters of the 15th and 19th instant, respectively. I am sorry that I have no access to the literature refer-red

1 The letter was in reply to the addressee’s dated December 20, 1932 (S.N. 18764).
2 This read: “. . . What they (savarnas) believe according to their Shastras is that the untouchable as every other individual in this universe, is born as such in the graded scale of caste only as a result of his own individual karma in his past life and that it is never the savarnas that made them so. There is thus no liability either self-contracted, undertaken or imposed to be discharged by the savarnas in this matter” (S.N. 18710).
3 This read: “. . . please lay your cards clearly on the table as to what tenets of Hinduism you believe in . . . mention any religious authority quoting chapter and verse wherein it is said that an untouchable can enter a temple? According to the Agama Shastras if an untouchable enters a temple, pollution is caused to idol and purificatory rites should be done to remove it. . . . Do you believe in caste distinction as a fundamental tenet of Hinduism? . . . I shall thank you to favour me with clear and convincing answers to the above categorically. Lastly allow us to make this fervent appeal. . . . The underlying principle of your action is love towards humato by you, and even if I had, I would not find the time to study it, nor is it necessary, because of the way I look at the whole question.

Whilst I believe in all the Hindu Shastras as such, I am guided by one supreme canon of interpretation provided in the Shastras themselves. It is this. Every rule and every interpretation thereof that is inconsistent with truth or morality (one and the same thing) is to be rejected. Without some such canon in the midst of a multitude of texts and interpretations a man in the street would feel utterly helpless. As a firm believer in the necessity of temples, I have held the opinion that public temples, except when they are designed for only particular sects, should be open to all Hindus and therefore to Harijans. If your application of the law of karma was to hold good, sacrifice becomes a meaningless term and help given by one person to another a purely criminal act. If an untouchable, assuming that he is so by reason of his past actions, may not be helped out of his degraded position, why should other people suffering from distress be helped? And since I deny divine authority for rules that are inconsistent with truth, I easily come to the conclusion that the disabilities that Harijans are labouring under were imposed upon them by caste Hindus. Hence I regard the latter as debtors.

You ask whether I believe in castes. My answer is “No”, but I do believe in varnashrama—a totally different institution from the modern castes.

Yours sincerely,

S.R. Sankaranarayana Iyer
Timber Merchant
Coimbatore

From a microfilm: S.N. 18803

nity and it is the sanatanists who will more truly realize its force and in practice do material good to the Harijans than the present social reformers. It is the imbedded religious instinct in a man that more prompts him to do good for a fellow-being and deters him from doing injury to another. No man however high, nor any man-made laws can keep an individual’s action in the path of righteousness as the call of religion can do” (S.N. 18745).
DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter of 16th instant. I have since heard from co-workers and I find that every precaution that should be legitimately taken was taken in order to ensure voting on the part of those who are bona-fide temple-goers. Thus, the question was how to distinguish the bona-fide temple-goers from the non-believers in temple going. I accept Sjt. Rajagopalachari’s statement that it was not possible to have “an inquisition or a confession of faith”. When the referendum is completed and the whole report is before me, I should be better able to estimate the value of the referendum. After all, the referendum by itself is not going to decide the Guruvayur temple-entry question, but it would be a material factor in helping me to decide whether the contemplated fast is to be taken or postponed.

Yours sincerely,

From a microfilm: S.N. 18804

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter. I quite agree with you that no person should give his or her signature on more than one paper. The principal use of Guruvayur referendum is for the satisfaction of my own conscience. I want to be quite clear that the majority of those who live in the neighbourhood of Guruvayur are in favour of temple-entry by Harijans.

Yours sincerely,

SJT. C. NARAYANA MENON
BENARES HINDU UNIVERSITY, BENARES

From a microfilm: S.N. 18805

1 Which read: “... the referendum that is now being taken is not in the sense as you have wanted it. Since a reformer can have no idea of the feelings of a no-changer in this matter, I humbly request you to give strict orders to take only votes of bona-fide temple-goers. I think the best and easiest way to take their votes will be from the temple-gates. Votes may be taken for three or four days at random” (S.N. 18723). Vide also “Fragment of Letter to T. S. Kalyana Rama Iyer”, 9-12-1932.
DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter 1. Where the villagers are so cruel as to threaten complete boycott of untouchables who would make use of public wells or tanks, the ideal course for Harijans would be to vacate such a village. Boycott of workers is a simpler matter. They should have the courage to brave all the risks attendant upon working for the reform. If they continue their service without retaliation, the opposition will die out. The other way of course is to await the conversion of the villagers.

Yours sincerely,

SIT. NARAYANRAO KULKARNI
POST ASHTA (SATARA)

From a microfilm: S.N. 18806

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter 2, and had your telegram also. Why do you think that the proceedings of the meeting organized under the aegis of the Pravartak Sangha were a manoeuvre of Motibabu? He is here and tries his best to help the movement in his own manner, not to hinder it. He is a tried worker and head of a responsible institution of long standing. I think that it would be well to understand his viewpoint. You need not agree with it, but it would be wrong to regard him as hindrance to the progress of the movement for the removal of untouchability. 3

Yours sincerely,

SIT. PURNA CHANDRA DEY
SECRETARY, HINDU MASS MEETING, CHANDERNAGORE

From a microfilm: S.N. 18808

1 Dated December 17, 1932 (S.N. 18738)
2 Dated December 20, 1932 (S.N. 18747)
DEAR MAJOR BHANDARI,

Mahadev has told me all about what you felt over yesterday’s gathering. I tried my utmost to keep the numbers inside of 25, but it was impossible to prevent the Shastris who had come from surrounding districts and they belonged to the sanatanist school and therefore I had to walk warily. I had hoped that today would be the last day but I find that I have to prolong the period. They are coming on Monday. It taxed all my strength and tact to keep the number inside of 25 as I had promised. I shall try to keep it at that on Monday also and thereafter. But I can make no promise. I am fully aware that you have to act under instructions. But they should not be inconsistent with the orders of the Government of India. According to my reading of those orders, the number of visitors has been left open, to be regulated by me. I have been endeavouring to the utmost of my ability to suit your convenience both as to number and time, but occasions arise when it is impossible for me to restrict the number as you would wish. If therefore it is necessary for you to refer the matter to higher authority, you will please do so and receive instructions as to the meeting on Monday and thereafter. As the 2nd of January approaches, I know that the pressure is bound to increase. I would therefore like a fairly free hand leaving me always to realize that I am a prisoner and therefore may not arrange things as if I have no restrictions to submit to. But I would like you and the Government to feel with me that I can consult the convenience of the administration only so far as not to inter-fere with the progress of the movement in furtherance of which extraordinary facilities have been given to me.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

Bombay Secret Abstracts, Home Department, Special Branch, File No. 800 (40) (4), Pt. II, p. 115; also G.N. 3875

1 Vide footnote to “Telegram to Home Secretary, Government of India”, 3-11-1932.
402. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

December 24, 1932

CHI. NARANDAS,

I got your mail. I understand your point of view regarding Narayanappa. I cannot take the step about the Chharas which I wish to from here before I hear from Mavalankar.¹

I do not know which ideas of Ramdas, Surendra is referring to. Tara and Vasumati are at Thana. From this, I infer that Mahalakshmi also must be there. Do you get any news about Gangabehn?

I feel a little afraid about the consequences of Prema’s having left her bed. If she does not exercise self-control, not about food but about speaking, I am sure she will harm herself. I do not know how to put some check on her in regard to what she writes in her letters. One way is that you should stop sending me letters written by her in excitement. The last letter contained nothing but bitter criticism of Chhaganlal.² I would never keep such a letter from him, and so I read out to him the whole of it. The letter has had no effect on him, since he knows nothing about the allegations which Prema has made against him. His only reply, therefore, is to endure in silence.

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M. U./I. Also C.W. 8287. Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi

403. LETTER TO SATIS CHANDRA DAS GUPTA

December 25, 1932

DEAR SATISBABU,

I have your letter for which I have been waiting all this time. I hope you have passed on the result of your examination of the Kirloskar Wheel to Shankarlal. I have already told¹ you what passed between Dr. Bidhan and myself. I saw that, contrary to expectations, he resented what he regarded as my interference. I therefore unhesitatingly withdrew my letter and apologized. That was the only thing open to me to do. I had no business to interfere except on the assumption that anything I said would be welcomed as a friendly suggestion. When therefore it was not, I had to tender apology and withdraw. You will now do exactly as your conscience leads you. Let me not guide you in such a delicate matter from this distance.

I do not mind the uttermost renunciation from you, but it must be from perfect assimilation, and the test of assimilation would be that it would give you perennial joy, there would be not a trace of anxiety in your face, and therefore in your mind. What is more, Hemprabha should go with you heart and soul and the result of such life should be freedom from illness. With you two, illness cannot be the result of dietetic error. It can only be the result of unconscious anxiety, if not even conscious. Mental worry and anxiety are as responsible for human illnesses as wrong air, wrong water, and wrong diet; but a life of natural, joyful renunciation has been known even to overcome compulsory limitations about air, water and food. Men of God have been found in utter destitution, in swamps with pestilential air, dirty water and wretched food to sustain them, and yet they have kept their health for prolonged periods and carried on their work. It is related of Mahomed that when a disciple questioned him about his own prolonged fasts and his prohibition to his followers against under-taking more than the regulation fasts, he said he was fed by God when he was fasting and therefore did not even know the privation, but such was not the case with the followers. Whether the tradition has a historical basis or not, what has been related is a permanent truth, verifiable by anybody, subject of course to the conditions laid down. Not having the capacity myself for such uttermost renunciation and being still dependent upon pure air, pure water and suitable food for retaining my health, I am incompetent to advise you. I can therefore only warn you against a hasty leap in the dark. I take it that you will not refuse monetary help if it comes in due course and without door-to-door begging. Will it not be wise of Hemprabha to do what was done for you, to come down to Poona and take rest, if necessary, for full one month if the climate is found suitable for her constitution? I dread the prospect of her developing beriberi. Let her not give up writing to me because you are there.

With love,

Yours sincerely,

BAPU

From a photostat: G.N. 1620

1 Vide “Letter to Dr. B. C. Roy”, 15-12-1932.
404. LETTER TO P. P. SHENAI

December 25, 1932

DEAR FRIEND,

My fast is a process of purification and penance. Everything else flows from that fundamental fact.

Yours sincerely,

SIT. P. P. SHENAI
20 ANDIAPPA GRAMANI ST., ROYAPURM, MADRAS

From a microfilm: S.N. 18813

405. LETTER TO K. L. SAHU

December 25, 1932

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter\(^1\). Please convey my thanks to the Harijans for their gift of flowers. I fully appreciate the affection of which the gift is but a token. I would ask them to follow up the gift by making the necessary changes in their lives which are peremptorily demanded by the altered conditions. They will not wait to make the change till they see with their own eyes the alteration in the conditions that have prevailed hitherto.

Yours sincerely,

SIT. K. L. SAHU
BHANDARA (C.P.)

From a microfilm: S.N. 18814

406. LETTER TO T. S. KALYANA RAMA IYER

December 25, 1932

DEAR FRIEND,

I thank you for your long letter. You are at liberty to publish your own letter and this reply.

In the first place, it seems to me that you have misconstrued the

\(^1\) The letter was in reply to the addressee’s dated December 22, requesting Gandhiji to justify his fast “as a means of solving a problem”.

\(^2\) Dated December 20, 1932 (S.N. 18746)
proposed Bill. It is not sought to impose the views of a minority on the majority, but it is sought to restore the condition as it was before the decisions of Courts gave a permanent legal effect to a custom. Whilst a particular custom is in vogue without at any stage being made permanent by decisions of a Court or by legislation, it becomes stagnant and is not liable to the gradual and imperceptible change that every healthy custom undergoes in process of time and under pressure of the demand of the public governed by that particular custom. The proposed Bill will so alter the Court-made Law as to make it possible for the public interested by a majority to change the then existing custom. Instances are not wanting in Hinduism to prove that even the interpretations of accepted Shastras have suffered evolution, so much so that in some cases the original meaning has completely gone into disuse. All the fears that you have described in your letter are in my opinion groundless for the reason I have stated.

You will admit that there are rival schools of interpretation of the Agamas, as also there are Shastris who question the authenticity of certain Agamas. If Hinduism was not in a decaying condition, we would not find those versed in Vedic lore supine, whilst gross superstition is defiling a religion that was once pure and had inherent capacity for continually throwing out impurities and responding to the call of the age. I can only give you my assurance that I have no desire whatsoever to do violence to Hindu public feeling or to ignore the Shastras on which Hinduism is based. I have, however, reserved to myself the right to determine according to my light the choice of interpretation in the midst of a variety, or even in all humility to give a new interpretation where in rare instances I feel the capacity for it, and this practice is quite consistent with the spirit of Hinduism. We would not have a variety of interpretations and make them acceptable to a large number of Hindus, not always ignorant of Shastras.

You say that whenever an idol is polluted, all that is needed to restore its purity is to do so by authorized purification. Since there is no method of guarding an idol against pollution by the surreptitious entry of an untouchable or others who are prohibited from entering a particular temple, and since there is no infallible method of detecting intruders before they come within the pollution distance, does it not follow that the ceremony of purification has to be gone through every day in order to retain the efficacy of the idol?

1 Vide also 2nd footnote to “Letter to R. Sankaranarayana Iyer”, 24-12-1932.
Again, how would you guard against the so-called untouchables declining to be classed as such and insisting upon being classified as savarna Hindus at the next census? Do you contemplate courts of inquisition for determining the birth-status of tens of thousands of Hindus? If the Agamas, or rather the custodians of the Agamas, were at all alive to their trust, they would recognize the spirit of the age and draw from the very Shastras a meaning consistent with it.

From a copy: S.N. 18815

407. A LETTER

December 25, 1932

You meditate daily over the teaching of the Gita. In due course you will realize that one whose mind is pure will always be serene.

[From Gujarati]

408. A LETTER

December 25, 1932

Take a lesson from your error. . . . You should never be alone with . . . behn². Observe even seemingly unimportant rules scrupulously. Do not speak untruth even for Indra’s throne. Prefer to give up your life by fasting rather than gratify your lust.

[From Gujarati]

409. A LETTER

December 25, 1932

If you stop worrying, I also would immediately do so. I hope you know that your understanding of the teaching of the Gita is being tested now. Even if you could read the verses with correct pronunciation and proper understanding of their meaning or learn them by heart, I would not hold you to have passed the test. You will get marks

---

¹ The addressee wished to observe brahmacharya.
² The name is omitted in the source.
according to the measure in which you put the teaching in practice. One who can discourse in the principles of spinning fluently is not, therefore, an expert in spinning. He is the expert who follows those principles, that is, who spins and cards. The same is true about the \textit{Gita}. It is the best remedy for all illnesses. If you use it properly, I would not worry much about you.

[From Gujarati]
\textit{Mahadevbhaini Diary}, Vol. II, p. 371

\textbf{410. LETTER TO BHAU PANSE}

\textit{December 25, 1932}

CHI. BHAU,

I got your letter. If you don’t keep well there, you should immediately go to Rajkot and see if the climate of that place helps you. You will get milk there. Your \textit{swadharma} means the work you are doing at present, namely, popularizing the \textit{takli} and study. If cow-protection or other work comes to you unsought, you may do it. This is not the age for you to put into practice your own ideas about acceptable and forbidden food. For one thing you are not mature enough for that, and, secondly, being a member of an institution you should follow its rules in the faith that its practice cannot be contrary to dharma. If you do not understand this, ask me to explain it again.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 6747. Also C.W. 4490. Courtesy: Bhau Panse

\textbf{411. LETTER TO GANGABEHN B. JHAVERI}

\textit{December 25, 1932}

CHI. GANGABEHN,

I got your letter. Please don’t stop writing to me. It is good news that your health is improving.

Nanibehn had written to me about Navin and Mahesh having gone there.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 3951
412. LETTER TO JAMNABEHN GANDHI

December 25, 1932

CHI. JAMNA,

I have been thinking hard about some way of improving Purushottam’s health, but I can think of nothing except that he should try out different places. I have been thinking of a place as far as Almora. There is Hajira near Surat. It is a well-known health resort. I do believe that he should go and stay there as long as necessary and improve his health. At any rate, Lonavla is there. He has even thought about it. Think over this suggestion.

How are you?

BAPU

From Gujarati: C.W. 867. Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi

413. LETTER TO NARAYAN M. KHARE

December 25, 1932

CHI. PANDITJI,

Do write to me and let me know your views about the changes in food.¹

I have received Mavalankar’s letter about the problem of the Chharas. I don’t think it is necessary for me to do anything from here.

I liked the description of cleaning work. I do remember about the Bhajanavali, but I am helpless.

BAPU

From Gujarati: C.W. 239. Courtesy: Lakshmibehn N. Khare

414. LETTER TO PREMABEHN KANTAK

December 25, 1932

CHI. PREMA,

Since we shall be soon meeting, I need not write this letter. You wanted my reply so that it should reach you before Friday, but because of your order [that Chhaganlal should not be permitted to

¹ Vide “Letter to Narandas Gandhi”, 30-11/1-12-1932

THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
read your letters] I could not read your letter immediately. Since Chhaganlal cannot read it, I cannot hear it, read out to me while I pace to and fro. Afterwards I would be busy with other things. You have yourself created a difficulty both for you and me. I showed to Chha-ganlal your lengthy story of complaints against him. I am sure you did not wish that it should not be shown to him. I, at any rate, cannot be a party to that. What burning hatred, though, there was in what you wrote! Chhaganlal is altogether ignorant of those short-comings. If he had the shortcomings which you have attributed to him, he could not have lived in the Ashram. And Surendra! You will hardly come across in the Ashram a man as clean as he is. I had never thought that you had in you malice enough to remember for so long what he had told you in his goodness. I love your pouring out your heart to me. But it also pains me extremely to know that you can harbour such thoughts about anyone. Your duty now is to pray to God to forgive you for this grave sin and thereby purify yourself. Do that and remove the pain in my heart.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10317. Also C.W. 6756. Courtesy:
Premabehn Kantak

415. LETTER TO SHANTA S. PATEL

December 25, 1932

CHI. SHANTA,

I got your letter. You may follow the path which you think is for your good.

What I do not like is the following:
1. Your movements;
2. your want of sense of responsibility;
3. your failure to do your duty of guiding Mangala’ an Pushpa’;
4. your irresoluteness.

Probably you have an explanation about all these. If you have, your failure to tell me about it before is an additional cause for my

1 Vide “Letter to Narandas Gandhi”, 24-12-1932.
2 An Ashram inmate known for his strict observance of brahmacharya
3 Addresser’s sister
4 Ibid.
dissatisfaction. You should remove that dissatisfaction.

What did Mangala and Pushpa not like in the Ashram? Along with the Ashram, have they left me too!

Is Kamala happy?

BAPU

416. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

December 25, 1932

CHI. NARANDAS,

I will make this letter short.

Read my letters to Radha and Prema. Explain to everybody my comments on the Gita.

I think that, if Amrtussalaam wishes to go somewhere for the sake of her health, you should let her go. She is a very pure-minded lady. I would be very happy if going to some other place improves her health. If she can, she may also try and get her share of the money. But this opinion of mine may be based on incomplete data. You should be guided by your own judgment.

I got Mavalankar’s letter concerning the Chharas. I will do nothing just now. Nor need you do anything. We may, if we wish, try our own methods.

I hope you have completely recovered now.

Think over what I have written about Purushottam in my letter\(^1\) to Jamna.

BAPU

[PS.]

In all there are 29 letters and they are stringed together.

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./I. Also C.W. 8288. Courtesy:

Narandas Gandhi

\(^1\) Vide “Letter to Jamnabehn Gandhi”, 25-12-1932.
417. LETTER TO NIRMALA GANDHI

December 25, 1932

CHI. NIMU,

At long last, I received a letter from you. Kanu’s name can certainly be changed. Let me have the name you would like me to give him, and I will do accordingly. I do not insist on any particular name. Nor does Ramdas.

Ba is here.¹ She can see me from time to time.

BAPU

From the Gujarati original: Mrs. Sumitra Kulkarni Papers. Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library

418. LETTER TO SULTANA QURESHI

December 25, 1932

CHI. SULTANA²,

I was greatly pleased to see your first letter. By trying hard one can learn to write well-formed characters.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C. W. 10823. Courtesy: Gulam Rasul Qureshi

419. LETTER TO HAMID QURESHI

December 25, 1932

CHI. HAMID,

I was glad to see your letter. Try and learn to write well-formed characters.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C. W. 10802. Courtesy: Gulam Rasul Qureshi

¹ In Yeravda Prison
² Daughter of Amina
420. LETTER TO PANNALAL JHAVERI

December 25, 1932

CHI. PANNALAL,

I had been awaiting your detailed letter. And then I saw your beautiful handwriting. I have been getting news about all of you. Rohit does not yet appear to be wholly out of the wood. How are you keeping?

Keep writing to me.
I am not writing to Nanibehn this time.

Blessings from
BAPU

[From Gujarati]
Manavtana Prahari—Pannalal Jhaveri, p. 30

421. LETTER TO NARADEV SHAHSTRI

December 25, 1932

All the doubts will be resolved if you bear in mind the fact that I am working for Harijans while confined in jail. To write more would be to violate the restrictions. No Congressman is under any compulsion to join this work. No one need give up his dharma for the sake of this work.

[From Hindi]
Mahadevbhai Diary, Vol. II, p. 370

422. LETTER TO MOOLCHAND AGRAWAL

December 25, 1932

BHAI MOOLCHANDJI,

Draw a circle and ask anyone to find its beginning and end. None can indicate it if the circle is drawn correctly. This being true of man’s creation, what can we say of God’s creation? I am unable to answer your queries because no answer will be adequate. Leave the thing alone.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 832

THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
423. LETTER TO AMTUSSALAAM

December 25, 1932

Dear Daughter AmtuSSalaam,

I got your letter. I was sorry to read about the piles. You should avoid bajra roti in this condition. Take bread with butter, milk and fruit. It may help to consult the doctor. Whatever Narandas advises should be done. I would approve of your going away if that is considered necessary for your health. In this matter too follow Narandas’s advice. The German lady met me and gave me all news. Kudsia seems to be doing well.

Blessings from

Bapu

From a photostat of the Urdu: G.N. 268

424. LETTER TO RAIHANA TYABJI

December 25, 1932

Beloved Daughter Raihana,

You just came and went away. I got no opportunity at all to talk to you. I did get your and Padmaja’s kisses. Nobody else saw them, though. But I will tell the whole world that these two girls sent me their kisses again by post. I was looking into some letters today. I saw the two bhajans sent by you. How nice it would have been if I could have heard you sing them. But I am helpless, I get no time at all. Respectful greetings from us all to Father and Mother. Ask Hamida to send me some more of her copper-plate handwriting.

Blessings from

Bapu

[PS.]

You do not seem to have taken full advantage of the Poona air. You went back very soon.¹

Blessings from

Bapu

Bibi Raihana
C/o Abbas Saheb Tyabji
Camp Baroda

¹ These sentences are in Gujarati.
425. LETTER TO G. V. MAVALANKAR

December 26, 1932

BHAISHRI MAVALANKAR,

I got your letter. I don’t see any error in the step which you have taken. There was no such thought in my mind. I was only afraid lest my brief remarks might have been misunderstood. In fact, I myself had advised Narandas to seek your advice. A patient is ill-equipped to judge the action of the physician. In any case he has no right to do so. The poet’s statement “the strong are never in the wrong” is true in all cases. I have not read the letter addressed by you, nor is it necessary to do so now. I had thought of taking some appropriate step from here, but now I have given up the idea. I will watch the effect of your letter.

All of us know very well that you are working very hard.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 1233

426. LETTER TO K. M. MUNSHI

December 26, 1932

BHAJI MUNSHI,

Your letter did not require an immediate reply. Meanwhile, Anandshankarbh.ai gave me news about your health. He painted a more serious picture of it than I had thought. And that has prompted me to suggest my quack-remedy. Madon gives nature-cure treatment. If, with Dr. Gilder’s permission and after careful inquiry, you take it, it will probably help you.

It seems Jijima is not going. My congratulations to her. I do hope she will complete a hundred.

Blessings from

BAPU

From Gujarati: C.W. 7523. Courtesy: K. M. Munshi
427. LETTER TO RUKMINIDEVI AND BENARSI BAJAJ

December 26, 1932

CHI. RUKMINI,

You do write to me regularly, but you will have to make your letters more interesting. I will not be satisfied with such dry letters. You don’t need to be taught how to make them interesting.

CHI. BENARSI,

I like your practice of writing a few lines in Rukmini’s letters. If you want anything to be conveyed to Jamnalalji, you may write to me about it. Do you earn sufficiently from your business?

Blessings from
BAPU

From Gujarati: C.W. 9450-a. Courtesy: Benarsilal Bajaj

428. MESSAGE TO HARI KIRTAN MAHA SAMMELAN, MEERUT

[Before December 27, 1932]

I hope the Harijans would join you in your recitations of bhajans on the occasion of your Sammelan.

The Hindustan Times, 29-12-1932

1 The message was sent in a letter to the Reception Committee. It was published under the date-line: “Meerut, December 27”,

2 ibid.
MY DEAR GHANSHYAMDAS,

I have your letter. The dazzle of my presence is really a greater embarrassment to me than to friends like you, and I wish that we can work and speak to one another on a par. I hate to have any special credit given to my word than would be claimed by any other person saying the same thing. With this preface I must say that I wholly dissent from your diagnosis. If I had written a similar letter, say, for instance, to you, I do not think that you would have resented it. In other words, I would not have over-rated my influence with you. How could I help Dr. Roy in securing the co-operation of Babus Suresh and Satis when I knew that such a thing was not possible unless I simply coerced them into giving mechanical co-operation, but I would not think of such co-operation even between Suresh babu and Satis-babu? Even in the Ashram, where I may be said to have equal influence with all, there are incompatible temperaments where I cannot look for co-operation, much less can I impose it; and inasmuch as I believed that Suresh and Satis Babus were more effective people as plodders, I naturally desired the work to be in their hands, and I thought that Dr. Roy would appreciate my suggestion. Why should anybody feel hurt if a burden is shifted from his shoulders and put on to another, thought to be more able to carry it? And I, as it now turns out erroneously, thought that Dr. Bidhan would not misconstrue my letter, take it in good light, and contest, if he liked, the underlying assumption, but never resent the letter. And why do you say that I have rebuked Dr. Roy in my second letter? I think I have fairly put the position, but if you have not followed it, you may read it over again. I would like you to understand the motive under-lying the first letter. I shall see if I can think of a good secretary for you who will work for the love of work.

1 In the printed source, this letter is dated December 29, 1932, which seems to be wrong as the addressee referring to this letter in his reply dated January 2, 1933, says: “I have your letters of the 27th and 28th.” For the letter of the 28th, vide “Letter to G. D. Birla”, 28-12-1932.
3 The reference is to Gandhiji’s letter to Dr. B. C. Roy; vide 7-12-1932.
I would warn you against issuing the English edition, unless it is properly got up and contains readable English and translations are all accurate. It would be much better to be satisfied with the Hindi edition only, than to have an indifferently edited English weekly.

Of course, I know that there is no question of partiality, but it is as well to bear in mind how Dr. Ambedkar’s people feel about all we do.

Yours sincerely,

From a photostat: S.N. 18825; also In the Shadow of the Mahatma, pp. 85-6

430. LETTER TO L. N BHARGAVA

December 27, 1932

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter¹. I will deal with the matter of baskets² in one of my statements.

With reference to the temples, though they are in the hands of Goswamis, they cannot but be affected by the opinion of bonafide temple-goers, if that opinion favours the admission of Harijans to the temples. You should also try to see the Goswamis and discuss the thing with them. I need hardly say that they should be approached in a courteous and sympathetic spirit.

Yours sincerely,

SJT. L. N. BHARGAVA
PRESIDENT, SERVANTS OF UNTOUCHABLES SOCIETY, MUTTRA

From a microfilm: S.N. 18828

431. LETTER TO SHYAMLAL

December 27, 1932

MY DEAR SHYAMLAL,

I sent the English article for Dalit Sevak some days ago to Sjt. Birla. You must have had it by this time. You will see to it that no mistakes occur, either of grammar or spelling in the English edition. It is quite unnecessary to translate the Hindi article. Whenever a transla-

¹ Dated December 21, 1932 (S.N. 18776)
² Used for scavenging ation is necessary of any article I may write in Hindi, I will take care to send it from here or ask you to make it there.

Yours sincerely,

From a microfilm: S.N. 18821

432. LETTER TO M. R. RAMASWAMI

December 27, 1932

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter for which I thank you. I shall certainly deal with the subject-matter of your letter publicly,¹ but that may take a little time. I may therefore give you this assurance, that it is not open to those who have no faith in temple worship to join the movement for temple-entry, and I should be very sorry indeed if any person who does not believe in temple worship joined the movement simply in order to destroy the veneration for temples, and I should be very sorry to find reformers resorting to abuse of sanatanists. I would like you to give me specific instances in which case I would be able more effectively to deal with cases of abuse.

Yours sincerely,

S
J
M. R. RAMASWAMI,
B. A., B.L.
VIVEKODYAM, TRICHUR (COCHIN STATE)

From a microfilm: S.N. 18824

433. LETTER TO SITARAM K. NALAVADE

December 27, 1932

Bhai Sitaram,

I have your letter.
Come at one o’clock on the 7th. You can take . . .² from me.

MOHANDAS GANDHI
[PS.]
Do not take more than half an hour.

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 800

¹ Vide “Statement on Untouchability-XIII”, 30-12-1932.
² The original is mutilated here.
434. LETTER TO BRIJKRISHNA CHANDIWALA

December 27, 1932

CHI. BRIJKISHAN,

Why so much attachment? Console yourself with the thought that if I die, it will be in the cause of dharma. Then why grieve? Anyway the body has to die of some cause or other. It seems at the moment that the fast of the second proximo will be suspended. Things will be clearer in a couple of days.

I shall write something about the condition of temples in the newspapers. Temples are pretty important. Temple-entry of Harijans is the first step and the internal reforms will follow.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 2397

435. LETTER TO G. D. BIRLA

December 28, 1932

MY DEAR GHANSHYAMDAS,

The Secretary of the Friends of India Society, London, writes to me saying that she has sent you a cheque or draft for £42-0-3 being the takings during the Fast Week.¹ You will please tell me whether the amount has been received.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

C.W. 7911. Courtesy: G. D. Birla. Also S.N. 18832

436. LETTER TO T. S. KALYANA RAMA IYER

December 28, 1932

DEAR FRIEND,

I thank you for your letter. In spite of my desperate attempt to give you a detailed reply, I see that it is beyond my capacity just now to do so. I must therefore ask you kindly to await the statements that I issue from time to time which are designed to cover the points that several correspondents raise. You will please appreciate that it is not the want of will but want of ability that I cannot give you a detailed reply.

¹ Vide also “Letter to Mrs. Hunter”, 6-1-1933.

Yours sincerely,

From a microfilm: S.N. 18831

437. LETTER TO T. A. V. NATHAN

December 28, 1932

DEAR FRIEND,

I thank you for your letter of the 16th instant, and for your assurance of support in the great reform movement.

Yours sincerely,

SIT. T. A. V. NATHAN
EDITOR OF “JUSTICE”, 14 MOUNT ROAD, MADRAS

From a microfilm: S.N. 18833

438. LETTER TO C. F. ANDREWS

December 28, 1932

MY DEAR CHARLIE,

I have your many love-letters. You had prepared me for them by your cable of cancellation and had evidently thought you had finished writing when the light had dawned on you. You do not want me to reason with you at all. I only want to repeat what I have already said that your being one with me gave me very great joy. As I have been saying to so many friends who know me, in all these things I am not the doer; I am merely the passive willing instrument in the hands of God. Of course, it may be a hallucination. No argument can remove hallucination. For that, God’s light is needed. But hitherto, in no single case wherein I have claimed God’s direction, it has been found to be otherwise.

I do not wonder that your book is rapidly going through edition after edition, and I like very much the idea of your being settled in Woodbrooke.

Love from us all to you all.

From a photostat: G.N. 1305

302 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
439. LETTER TO AN ENGLISH WOMAN

December 28, 1932

MY DEAR SISTER,

I must dictate if I must write at all. You are pouring your love on me, not merely showering it. I have your well-marked book, your telegram, your letters laden with sacred cards, each bearing some verse or proverb written by you, and your gift of £6 for Harijans, for all of which God bless you.

You will not expect me to give you long letters. I can only send you a line to tell you that you are never out of my mind.

Yours sincerely,

From a microfilm: S.N. 18834

440. LETTER TO M. SWAMINATHAN

December 28, 1932

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter. I would like you to write to the Secretary of the Provincial Board yourself, giving him your credentials accompanied by introductions.

Yours sincerely,

SIT. M. SWAMINATHAN
EDITOR, “SUTHANDIRA MURASU”, 2 AZIZ MULK LANE
CATHEDRAL POST, MADRAS

From a microfilm: S.N. 18830

441. LETTER TO SHANKERLAL BANKER

December 28, 1932

CHI. SHANKERLAL,

I have gone through the comments you sent to me. Of course, I know that the task is difficult. It is necessary to carry on propaganda among the people in every village. It is necessary to get acquainted with the conditions of the Harijans in every village. Teachers, local-boards, etc., should be awakened. It may also be necessary to fight Women like Sharadabehn, etc., who were involved in this said that even though there was no conflict between the Harijan Labour Committee and their Committee, the scope of both these Committees was not well defined. And since they do not have a clear idea as to what you desire, conflict may arise in course of time. Meet them personally in this connection and clarify the issue. If it is necessary to meet me, you may come any time you wish.

As regards Harijan work you can write as much as you wish and whenever you wish. So keep writing to me without hesitation.

_Blessings from_

_BAPU_

From the Gujarati original: S. N. 32705

442. LETTER TO MIRABEHN

_Morning, after prayer [December 29, 1932]_

CHI. MIRA,

The notes were after all received. Your letter came in at the usual time.

It is a wrong thing to rehearse a calamity (i.e., an event believed by us to be a calamity though in fact it may be a blessing) and to reproduce in advance the feelings one would have. It is enough that we hold ourselves prepared for the worst. This we do by an ever increasing faith in God, the Good, the Just, the Compassionate, the Bountiful, the Giver of the daily bread, the Help of the helpless, the All-powerful, the All-knowing, the Ever-vigilant, the Whole Truth.

_Nirvan_ is utter extinction of all egoism, self. Its positive aspect is capable of being experienced but incapable of being described. But we know by inference that it is something vastly superior to any bliss that we can possibly experience on this earth.

---

1 “Undated, probably December 29, 1932, postmark December 30, 1932”—Mirabehn. At the top of the letter are the initials presumably of the Jail authority in Bombay with the date December 31, 1932.

2 “The teaching of this letter as likewise that of January 5, 1933 and January 19, 1933 has been one of the things that sank deep into my being and by now it has become a habit with me immediately to check my mind the moment it begins speculating and picturing. Cessation of mental imaginings of what might come to pass, either good or bad, is an essential condition to inner peace.”—Mirabehn
Dr. Gour’s book you can keep longer if you need.
Saltless diet continues without producing any effect on the elbow. Great pressure of work has led to reduction of milk and that has reduced the weight temporarily to 102 lb. No cause for anxiety.
There will be no fast on 2nd. The reasons you will see in the Press.¹ No time now.
Love.

BAPU

PS.
The dentist is Dr. D. M. Desai, Whiteway Laidlaw Buildings. Is it necessary for me to do anything from this end?

From a photostat: C.W. 9513. Courtesy: Mirabehn

443. LETTER TO BHAGWANJI A. MEHTA

December 29, 1932

Bhai Bhagwanji,

I got your letter. It was from Bhai Khimchand’s letter two or three days ago that I learnt for the first time that Bhai Manilal had any hand in his case. I don’t know anything at all about this matter, and I have no right to intervene in such a matter from here.

Vandemataram from
MOHANDAS

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 5815. Also C.W. 3038. Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi

444. LETTER TO JAMNABEHN GANDHI

December 29, 1932

Chiji Jamna,

I got your letter. I liked it very much. If you show in your life the same freedom and frankness of heart as you do in this letter, I shall believe that I have succeeded in teaching you all that I wished to. The Bombay climate has certainly suited you. You should regard Gangabehn’s home in Borivli as your own. You can stay there if they have a spare room for you. That would be the sea-coast you wanted.

¹ Vide “Interview to Associated Press of India”, 29-12-1932 and “Statement on Untouchability-XIII”, 30-12-1932.

You should give a trial to Vijapur also. You will stay there permanently only if you keep good health there. There is, therefore, no question of being a burden on Kashi. Nor need you stay outside the Ashram for all the months of the year. You may pass ten months outside the Ashram and build up your health, and then spend two months in the Ashram.

If it is a wife’s duty to live with her husband, so also it is the husband’s duty to live with the wife. However, just as owing to circumstances or for the sake of duty the husband has sometimes to endure separation from his wife, she too must bear separation from him for a similar reason. Dharma does not require that a husband or a wife should always remain present by the sick-bed of the other partner. We can know what the duty of either is in a given case only if we know the exact circumstances. It is true, however, that the two should have equal rights. I would even go further and say that the wife has more rights as long as she regards herself as the weaker one and suffers from handicaps.

I hope you keep better health now. Do think of going to some other place. I have already written\(^1\) to you about the desirability of Purushottam going to Hajira.

\[\text{Blessings from} \]
\[\text{BAPU} \]

From Gujarati: C.W. 868. Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi

445. LETTER TO MANGALA S. PATEL

December 29, 1932

CHI. MANGALA.

We should not mind if anybody is offended as a result of our following a rule. It would be wrong for a girl who has been helping in rolling the dough to linger on after her work is over. Why, then, should another who is frying the cakes feel offended [if the former leaves]? However, if the work of rolling the dough is over before frying, it means that more girls are doing it than are necessary.

\[\text{BAPU} \]

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 4086. Also C.W. 50. Courtesy: Mangalabehn B. Desai

\(^1\) Vide “Letter to Jamnabehn Gandhi”, 25-12-1932.
446. LETTER TO AMINA QURESHI

YERAVDA,

December 29, 1932

CHI. AMINA,

You seem to be blaming me for what is really your fault. From whom did you learn this perverse rule of never yourself writing to me but expecting me to write to you? Those who expect letters from me should either write to me or fall so ill as to be unable to write. I hope that out of lethargy in writing to me you don’t wish to fall ill so as to have letters from me from time to time.

Your studies must be progressing well. Encourage the children to write to me from time to time. That also will be a lesson in their studies. If you write, the children will copy you and write too.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C. W. 10791. Courtesy: Gulam Rasul Qureshi

447. INTERVIEW TO ASSOCIATED PRESS OF INDIA

December 29, 1932

Reclining on a cot in the sun, Mr. Gandhi this afternoon talked with the Associated Press correspondent for two minutes. He said:

In view of what has happened in connection with Viceregal sanction to Dr. Subbaroyan’s Bill and inevitable delay that has occurred in regard thereto, I have decided after full consultations with Mr. Kelappan, Mr. Rajagopalachari and Mr. Madhavan Nair to postpone the contemplated fast indefinitely. I am trying to draft exhaustive statement on it but owing to tremendous pressure of work I have not been able to finish it. I hope to give it to Press at a very early date.

More than this, he said, he did not want to say at this stage. He however

1 The Viceroy’s decision regarding sanction to the introduction of the Bill in the Council could not be reached before January 15.
2 Vide Appendix “Discussion with K. Kelappan”, 29-12-1932.
3 Vide the following item.
jocularly added:

The sun’s rays make me strong and I love them.

_The Bombay Chronicle, 30-12-1932_

448. STATEMENT ON UNTOUCHABILITY-XIII

December 30, 1932

I had full consultation with Mr. C. Rajagopalachari, Mr. K. Madhavan Nair and Mr. Kelappan¹, who have come to Poona to confer with me. They have placed the results of the Guruvayur referendum before me. The referendum was taken of the Ponnani Taluk where the temple is situated.

Never perhaps was a referendum taken with such scrupulous care or with such scientific precision before this. Rarely to my knowledge, have 73 per cent of the eligible voters voted.

In order to find out the truth, voting was confined only to those who were actual temple-goers, that is to say, those who were not entitled to enter the Guruvayur Temple and those who would not, such as the Arya Samajists, were excluded from the voters’ list. I had intended without thinking of all implications actually to find out by some method of examination, who were actual temple-goers, but I have found it to be utterly impracticable. It was enough to announce that only those should vote who believed in temple-going, who had faith in temple-worship as an integral part of the Hindu religion and who were entitled to enter the Guruvayur Temple.

The total population entitled to the temple-entry being approximately 65,000, the outside estimate of adults may be taken as 30,000. As a matter of fact, 27,465 adult men and women were actually visited for receiving their votes. Of these 55 per cent were in favour of temple-entry; nine per cent against, eight per cent were neutrals, and 27 per cent abstained.

It should be remembered that the referendum was taken amidst adverse influences. The Zamorin would not co-operate, and I am sorry to have to say, even cast aspersions upon the workers and the procedure they followed. The Ponnani Taluk is the stronghold of orthodoxy and yet there was a decisive majority in favour of admission of the untouchables to that shrine now made famous throughout the length and breadth of the land.

¹ Vide Appendix “Discussion with K. Kelappan”, 29-12-1932.

The figures were also instructive, as showing that both men and women had no hesitation in spite of the contemplated fast, of expressing their dissent. I would also draw a fair deduction from the neutrals and non-co-operators. They could not at all, if they had chosen to give their decision, be regarded as against the temple-entry of the Harijans. It would not be a bad or unfair guess to make, if I suggested that a fourth of these, at least, were probably for temple-entry. The percentage of the voters favouring temple-entry would then be sixty-five per cent of the total eligible voters. If they be excluded altogether from the referendum, the majority would be 77 per cent.

Turn the figures as we may, the unchallengeable conclusion is that a decisive majority of eligible voters are in favour of the entry by the Harijans.

That fact shows that Mr. Kelappan’s statement that the majority of temple-going population surrounding Guruvayur was in favour of temple-entry, is correct.

In view of the official announcement that the Viceregal decision as to the sanction for the introduction in the Madras Legislative Council of Dr. Subbaroyan’s permissive Bill with reference to the temple-entry could not possibly be announced before the 15th of January, the fast contemplated to take place on the 2nd day of the New Year will be indefinitely postponed, and in any case up to the date of the announcement of the Viceregal decision. Sjt. Kelappan concurs with this postponement. As the contemplated fast was addressed to the public, let me, at the risk of repeating what I have said previously, state my own position clearly. My fast, I regard, as a purely spiritual act, and therefore not capable of being fully explained. But in so far as I can, I may say that it is intended to stir the public conscience.

Hinduism teaches that when evils and corruption are beyond control by ordinary means and, human endeavour is supplemented by tapasya or penance which, in its extreme form, means fasting either conditional or unconditional.

Therefore it is no new thing. But for the influence, supposed or real, I enjoy among the masses, perhaps no notice would be taken of it.

My conviction is that Hinduism has fallen from the purity and vitality it once had. Its very scriptures are evidence of the continuous progress and adaptability to circumstances that arose from time to time. Though it has retained unimpaired the claim to divine inspiration for the scriptures as a body, it did not hesitate to introduce new reforms and make changes. Hence it is that we have in Hinduism not only Vedas, but all later writings claiming authority. But a time came, when this healthy growth or evolution was arrested, and instead of the written word being used as an aid to the search for light from within, it was held to be all-sufficing, whether it accorded with longings and strivings of the spirit within or not. The descendants of those who wrestled with God Himself and drew from Him some of the imperishable things one finds in Vedas and later writings, felt too exhausted for further effort, either to wring out new meaning from an old verse or mantra or produce a new mantra. They felt that they had done with God and that God had finished His work, after inspiring the last verse of the latest Shastra. And so one finds an army of interpreters seeking to reconcile, often irreconcilable texts, unmindful as to whether they answer the pressing needs of the age or whether they can stand the light of searching examination. And even penances took mere outward form, instead of being an expression of the inward agonizing struggle. I may be wrong in my diagnosis, but such being my case and finding the Hindu society irresponsible to the central call of Hinduism, that is, progressive realization of unity of all life, not as a philosophical doctrine but as a solid fact of life, I thought that by continuous effort to live my religion as I understood it, I had the fitness for doing penance by way of fasting and that I had such a call from within.

I hope it is easy for the reader to see that there is no coercion behind the fast thus conceived. If my fast was fixed as an unconditional one, it is obvious there can be no coercion about it, for nothing that the public may do or not do could suspend my fast. Therefore, if a conditional fast is held to be coercive, it would be so considered because of the condition. My experience is that the fast has not deterred people from sticking to their principles or even their inclinations, as was seen at Guruvayur.

The public will now understand that the postponement is what it means and no more. The fast was intended to secure admission of the untouchables into the Guruvayur Temple, and if its resumption is necessary in a legitimate manner to secure the opening, it will certainly come, as for instance, if through the mere supineness of the reformers and consequent want of expression by public opinion in demanding the necessary legislation to remove the block created by decisions of courts and the Law of Trusts or the Madras Religious Endowments Act, which itself was a measure affecting religion, naturally the fast has to be resumed.

That is to say, it must be resumed, if the original vow is to be fulfilled. The fast must be resumed for the acts of omission or commission by those who are believed to be in favour of opening the Guruvayur Temple.

The Yeravda Pact was entered into between the representatives of the caste Hindus and the Harijans, and while confirming the Pact at the memorable conference in Bombay, the former resolved as follows:

This conference resolves that henceforth, amongst Hindus, no one shall be regarded as untouchable by reason of his birth and that those who have been so regarded hitherto, shall have the same rights as the other Hindus in regard to the use of public wells, public schools, public roads and other public institutions. These rights shall have statutory recognition at the first opportunity, and shall be one of the earliest Acts of the Swaraj Parliament, if they shall not have received such recognition before that time. It is further agreed that it shall be the duty of all Hindu leaders to secure, by every legitimate and peaceful means, an early removal of all social disabilities now imposed by caste Hindus upon the so-called untouchable classes, including bar in the respect of admission to temples.

If the distinguished caste Hindus that passed the resolution, represented, as they claim to, the Hindu portion of the Indian Nation, the claim has to be made good by increasing fraternization day by day with Harijans on the part of caste Hindus by way of opening to them public institutions.

Mr. Kelappan’s fast over the opening of the Guruvayur Temple was actually going on whilst the Pact was emerging, and I asked him to suspend it principally at the suggestion of the Zamorin of Calicut. Moreover, as I have already said, when on the British Government’s acceptance of relevant portion of the Pact I broke the fast, I solemnly assured Dr. Ambedkar and took a vow in the secret of my heart and in the presence of God that I would hold myself as a hostage for the fulfilment of the resolution above mentioned, and the general carrying out of the Pact by the caste Hindus. It would be a betrayal of trust and a betrayal of the Harijans if, in any shape or form, I slacked my effort or gave up altogether the intention of fasting in connection with the removal of untouchability.

\[1\] This resolution was drafted by Gandhiji and passed by the conference with Malaviyaji in the chair on September 25, 1932; vide “Resolution at the Hindu Leaders’ Conference, Bombay”, 25-9-1932, where, however, “imposed by custom” is found instead of “imposed by caste Hindus”.

VOL. 58: 16 NOVEMBER, 1932 - 14 JANUARY, 1933  311

I would like the voiceless and helpless Harijans to feel that thousands of Hindu reformers, as zealous of Hindu religion and scriptures on which it is based, as any Hindu calling himself a sanatanist can be, are prepared, no less than I am, to sacrifice their lives, if need be, in an attempt to remove untouchability, root and branch.

There can be no rest, therefore, for me or those who, by word of mouth or show of hands, silently endorsed the resolution, until untouchability becomes a thing of the past. It would be only out of the ashes of untouchability that Hinduism can revive, and thus be purified and become a vital and vitalizing force in the world.

The Bombay Chronicle, 31-12-1932; also The Hindu, 31-12-1932

449. STATEMENT TO THE PRESS

December 30, 1932

As some misunderstanding has arisen about Pandit Panchanan Tarkaratna’s visit to me, it is necessary to state how he came to me, and what happened between us.

The Pandit came with Babu Motilal Roy, Director of the Pravartak Sangh of Bengal. Babu Motilal Roy has been trying to avoid a split among the Hindus over the campaign against untouchability and he was most anxious that Pandit Panchanan Tarkaratna should accompany him when he came to see me to discuss and understand the whole position from my standpoint. When I heard that from Babu Motilal Roy, I telegraphed to him welcoming him and Pandit Panchanan Tarkaratna. It gave me joy, therefore, when the Pandit came to me. We had two friendly conversations, as a result of which I think we came closer together and I began to entertain hope. Though he represents the ordinary orthodox sanatani attitude, he appreciated my viewpoint and he did not despair of finding a way of solving the temple-entry question. I have made a definite suggestion to him, which ought to satisfy the most exacting sanatanist. He is now in Guruvayur, and I hope a formula will be found acceptable to the Pro-Change and No-Change sanatanists.

The Hindu, 31-12-1932
Viceroy’s Camp

Reluctant as I am to say something to Government regarding proposed Bill framed by Dr. Subbaroyan and forwarded for Viceroyal Sanction by Madras Government perhaps His Excellency expects me to submit my views thereon so as to help him to correct decision. Bill proposed no innovation in Hindu belief on contrary it seeks carry out requirements of Hindu Shastras in accordance with opinion held by pundits acknowledged to be well versed in Sanskrit religious lore. It seeks to restore status quo as it existed before British courts enforced what was held by some to be ancient practice in Malabar and thus clothed it with force of law and it does so by amending religious endowments act of Madras which in itself was considerable interference with then prevailing practice. Bill embodies unanimously expressed wish of Madras Legislative Council through its recent resolution. It seeks to render tardy justice to vast number of Hindus who have been arbitrarily deprived of right to religious consolation equal with other Hindus. It seems best to carry out repeated declarations of His Majesty’s Government to afford protection to Untouchables. Not to sanction measure will be tantamount to contradiction of those declarations and encouragement to forces of reaction. Seeing that Bill is in response to movement that set in as direct result of Yeravda Pact Government of India are in my opinion morally bound not in any way to hinder movement which they will obviously do if they block Bill. Bill is merely permissive measure in that it makes opening of temples to Harijans dependent upon wishes of majority of those at present entitled to offer worship in particular temple. To these considerations I would add this very material fact that if orthodox opinion must carry WEIGHT OPINION OF FOUR CRORES OF HARIJANS WHICH MUST BE ASSUMED TO BE IN FAVOUR OF BILL SHOULD CARRY GREATER WEIGHT NOT TO SPEAK OF DEMAND OF EVER-INCREASING NUMBERS OF REFORMERS. A WORD IS NECESSARY HERE REGARDING FAST THAT WAS TO COMMENCE ON SECOND JANUARY NEXT IF GURUVAYUR TEMPLE WAS NOT OPENED BEFORE THEN. IF FAST WERE TO BE TAKEN ON THAT DATE IT COULD NOT BUT EMBARRASS GOVERNMENT. AFTER CONSULTATION WITH KELAPPAN THEREFORE I HAVE ANNOUNCED THAT IT WOULD BE INDEFINITELY POSTPONED. BUT IT MIGHT HAVE TO BE TAKEN IF FOR LACK OF DECISIVE EXPRESSION OF PUBLIC OPINION SANCTION IS WITHHELD OR SOME UNFORESEEN BUT AVOIDABLE CAUSE OCCURS WHICH MAY PREVENT OPENING OF GURUVAYUR TEMPLE. I MAY STATE THAT PUBLIC AGITATION HAS BEEN PURPOSELY KEPT IN ABEYANCE UNDER BELIEF THAT CASE FOR VICEREGAL SANCTION WAS UNANSWERABLE. BUT IN VIEW OF GROWING AGITATION ON PART OF SANATANISTS I HAVE SUGGESTED ORGANIZATION OF MEETINGS AND THE LIKE FOR EXPRESSION OF PUBLIC OPINION IN SUPPORT OF BILL. BUT I DO FEEL THAT IT WOULD BE BETTER IF AGITATION ONE WAY OR OTHER OVER MERE QUESTION OF VICEREGAL SANCTION CAN BE AVOIDED. I THEREFORE HOPE THAT VICEREGAL SANCTION WILL SOON BE ANNOUNCED FOR INTRODUCTION OF DR. SUBBAROYAN’S BILL IN MADRAS LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL. I AM NOT SENDING THIS TELEGRAM FOR PUBLICATION. BUT OF COURSE I CAN HAVE NO OBJECTION TO ITS PUBLICATION IF HIS EXCELLENCY DESIRES IT.

GANDHI

From a photostat: C.W. 9555. Courtesy: India Office Library. Also Bombay Secret Abstracts, Home Department, Special Branch, File No. 800(40) (7), p. 79
451. LETTER TO DR. B. C. ROY

[December] 30, 1932

DEAR DR. BIDHAN,

I have your great and good letter quite worthy of you. I love and accept your correction, and say with you that we are near to each other; and since we are near to each other, let me say that my letter had no complaint behind it. It simply went out as an advice in order to secure what I thought would be a better working of the organization, and I expected you, as a friend, if my advice did not find any response within your breast, to say plainly to me, ‘You do not know the situation, and therefore I do not accept your advice.’ Of course, your reply said the same thing, but in an unexpectedly different manner, but that is all dead and gone. After having tendered you my apology, I had dismissed the incident from mind, but you have revived the memory, and now rendered it sacred by your generous letter.

I am glad of the news you give me about your distinguished patients. It is quite like Baby to have placed her flat at Kamala’s disposal.

Yours sincerely,

From a microfilm: S.N. 18493

452. LETTER TO JAWAHARLAL NEHRU

December 31, 1932

MY DEAR JAWAHARLAL,

Sarup came to me the other day to discuss her project about untouchability. She said you had advised rest in Ceylon. I regard it as unnecessary. She is quite able to do some work and she is quite willing to do some untouchability work. I think that she should be allowed to do the work so long as she wishes to do it.

1 Inferred from the contents; the source, however, has “January”.
2 Vide “Letter to Dr. B. C. Roy”, 7-12-1932.
3 In a telegram; vide “Letter to G. D. Birla”, 15/16-12-1932; also “Letter to Dr. B. C. Roy”, 15-12-1932.
4 Kamala Nehru and Dr. Sheikh Mohammad Alam
5 Vijayalakshmi Pandit
She told me you had some more teeth out while she was busy growing grey hair. But eye-witnesses tell me you were otherwise keeping quite fit. You still seem to be refusing to see visitors. I wish you would see them, if it is at all possible. It will give them satisfaction.

We are now a happy team of four, Chhaganlal Joshi having been added unto us. I do not know whether you are interesting yourself in the Harijan work. I am having a glorious time with the Shastris. My knowledge of the letter of the Shastras is better but of true religion they are able to give me but little.

With love from us all,

BAPU

A Bunch of Old Letters, p. 108

453. LETTER TO MOTILAL ROY

December 31, 1932

DEAR MOTIBABU,

It was a matter of great joy to me to have you and your disciples with me for so many days. I have understood your resolve to work for the removal of untouchability. I entirely agree with you that whilst we may sacrifice nothing of what we hold dear as life itself, we must endeavour to bring round orthodoxy to our point of view, if it is at all possible. In any case we may do nothing to hurt anybody’s susceptibilities. May God bless your effort.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat: G.N. 11041

454. LETTER TO K. RAMACHANDRA

[December] 31, 1932

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter. I am sorry for the complication that has arisen there with reference to the temple-entry question.\(^1\) I have no doubt whatsoever that whilst a non-Hindu may sympathize with there-

\(^1\) Inferred from the contents; the source, however, has “January”.
\(^2\) Vide also “Letter to K. Ramachandra”, 28-1-1933.
form movement, he cannot and ought not to take part in any direct action.

Yours sincerely,

S. K. Ramachandra
Sri Wickrama
Wellawatte
Colombo

From a microfilm: S.N. 18494

455. LETTER TO U. GOPALA MENON

[December] 31, 1932

My dear Gopala Menon,

I have your letter of the 26th instant. Now that the fast is off for the time being, I shall watch what work Kerala is going to put in. The taking of signatures to the memorial is, I hope, proceeding apace. You should report the number taken from day to day. You must have fixed a time-limit.

The work of educating public opinion should continue side by side with constructive work amongst the Harijans.

Yours sincerely,

From a microfilm: S.N. 18495

456. LETTER TO BHULABHAI J. DESAI

December 31, 1932

Bhai Bhulabhai,

We were all happy to have your letter. I wish that nobody should worry on account of the pain in my elbow. I am taking the necessary treatment. The [authorities] will themselves call for help from outside when there is need for it. I shall myself ask for it if I feel the need. There is not much pain.

We are all glad to know that all of you are doing well. Obviously

---

1 Inferred from the contents; the source, however, has “January”.
2 Gandhiji announced the postponement of the fast on December 29; vide “Interview to Associated Press of India”, 29-12-1932.
3 Presumably to the Viceroy for according sanction to introduction of Dr. Subbaroyan’s Bill; vide “Telegram to Private Secretary to Viceroy”, 30-12-1932.
one cannot study here as well as one can [outside].

Regards to all from all of us. Dhirubhai will come again.

M Using the provided information, the text fragments are translated as follows:

457. LETTER TO AMTUSSALAAM

[December 1932]

DEAR DAUGHTER AMTUSSALAAM,

I have your letter. Do not worry about me. There is nothing much the matter with my arm to cause anxiety. I feel no discomfort in writing to you. I understand about the roza. By all means observe it. I will not write any more today; there is no time. It is very good you are serving the Harijans.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Urdu: G.N. 263

458. LETTER TO RAMABEHN JOSHI

1932

CHI. RAMA,

I am a little disappointed about you. You know that I long for letters from everybody. If somebody does not write to me in order to save my time and because he or she is all right, that is another matter.

---

1 In Bapuke Patra—8: Bibi Amtussalaam ke Nam, this letter has been placed after the one of November 6. However, from the reference to the roza fast it would seem that the letter was written just before or during the Ramzan, which commenced in December.

2 Complete abstention from food and drink during the daylight hours observed by devout Muslims in the month of Ramzan

3 The addressee was working at Vadaj near Sabarmati Ashram.
But in your case I think the reason is indifference and lethargy. Am I right? If I am, your conduct should be regarded unpardonable.

Chhaganlal’s weight has been steadily increasing. It is 115 now.

[From Gujarati]

Bapuna Patro—7: Shri Chhaganlal Joshine, p. 285

459. DIARY, 1932

NOVEMBER 16, WEDNESDAY, YERAVDA MANDIR

NOVEMBER 17, THURSDAY

NOVEMBER 18, FRIDAY

1 Continued from Vol. LI.
2 This place-entry is not reproduced under subsequent dates.
NOVEMBER 19, SATURDAY

NOVEMBER 20, SUNDAY

NOVEMBER 21, MONDAY

Takli—48 rounds. Letters—Narandas (42), Chhaganlal Joshi, Rukhi, Prabhavati, Chaitanyalalji, the Andhra Kala Parishad, Pyarelal, Thornberg. About untouchability—Labhshankar Mehta, Dhirubhai Bhulabhai, Manilal, Krishnacharya Sharma, Adar Ardesher Desai, the Bharat Dharma Office. Sadasiva Rao, Macrae, Satisbabu, Haribhau. Bhave paid a visit.

NOVEMBER 22, TUESDAY

Takli—48 rounds. Letters—Zohra, Ramanujachari, Himmatlal, Harjivan, Gudel (2), Bhatnagar, Col. Doyle, Dahyabhai, Manibehn Patel, Abboy, Bhargava, Shankarlal, Mathuradas, Ja[mnalal] Bajaj, Miss Willy. About untouchability—Principal Dhruva, Nagini, Fulchand Gurjal, Vasant Chatterji, Krishnarao, Kashinath Kelkar, Sakat Bharuchia, Thomas, Kanitkar, Haribhau, Gagannarayan, Iswaran, Chaman, Medhekar, Choksi, Baban Gokhale, Avantikabai, Ratanbhehn, Devdas, Dhirubhai, Ramjibhai, Padmaja. Venkatachari, a lawyer and two others, with a message from the Shankaracharya of Kumbhakonam, all these came to see me. Prof. Purandare gave a handwritten copy of his speeches on untouchability.

---

1 In Mahadevbhaini Diary (Vol. II, p. 269), Mahadev Desai refers to him as Shankaracharya of Kanchi.
NOVEMBER 23, WEDNESDAY

[Letters-] The Shankaracharya of Kumbhakonam, Hiralal Amritlal, Devdas, Narandasbhai, Durgaprasad, Manibehn Kara, Sir Lallubhai, J. K. Mehta, Bhatt, Hiralal Shah, Devdas, Dahyabhain, Mani. Telegrams to Begum Alam, Deshmukh. A gentle reproof to the Major about Devdas. Today the interviews took place under the tree where the fast was undertaken. Mrs. Cousins, Saraladevi, Shardabehn, Vidyabehn, Nandubehn called. Urmila and Jiten paid a visit. Satisbabu, Shanti the Chinese paid a visit. I told Dr. Mehta that I would not spin on the takli till Wednesday.

NOVEMBER 24, THURSDAY

Takli—Nil (Stopped since yesterday). On the doctor’s advice decided to give my hand a week’s rest. Letters—Pyarelal, Mirabehn, Kusum, Dharshi, Haridas Majmudar, Chintamani, Taramati, Effy, Miss Upton, Gilligan, Hendriks. About untouchability—Lakshmi, Vidyagauri, Gopala Menon (with a letter from Kelappan), Sastri, Gurudev, Revashankar, Gokhale, Jayantiprasad, Manilal Vyas, Shivratan Mohota, Ghanshyamdas, Patde, Nathan, Satyananda, Manibhai Morarjee, Nargisbeh, Shirinbehn Gadodia, his wife, Urmila Devi, Satisbabu and Nalavde of Wai (along with a Harijan and a Gujarati merchant) R. and also Jedhe.

NOVEMBER 25, FRIDAY

NOVEMBER 26, SATURDAY

Nawle and his group, Sathe, Editor of Shikshakanche Kaivari (Champions of Teachers), Kanitkar (along with four of his friends), Urmila Devi, her son, and Satisbabu paid a visit. Arranged payment of Rs. 250 to Urmila Devi for the journey.

NOVEMBER 27, SUNDAY

NOVEMBER 28, MONDAY

NOVEMBER 29, TUESDAY

NOVEMBER 30, WEDNESDAY

DECEMBER 1, THURSDAY

_Takli_—Nil. (The doctor advised that it should not be resumed for a few days more). Letters—Gangadharprasad, Pashabhai, Narandas, Mira, Magalnal, Secretary of the Dayalbagh, Agra. About untouchability—Chandrashankar, Chandrasinh Thakore, Lele, Gopala Menon, Satyanarayana Shetty, Haribhau, Vinayak, Iyer, Rajbhoj, Shamji Marwadi. Telegram to Gopala Menon. Today private visitors were Manilal, Devdas, Harjivan and Sharda. Public visitors were Bhole, Jadhav, Bhonsle, Satisbabu. Nargis and Shirinbehn brought fruit and a mattress. Received approval of the names which had been sent regarding Dr. Mehta. Moreover, Chhaganlal Joshi will come here.

DECEMBER 2, FRIDAY

Letters—Benarsidas, Raihanabehn, Mohanlal Bhatt, Nanalal, C. Mehta, Reynolds, Andrews, Dorothy Newman, Rachel Price, Jayakunwar, Bechardas, Hemprabha. About untouchability—D. V. Joshi, Daftari, Narasinhachari, Tahmankar, Bachu Karim. Telegrams to Charu Bhattachari (about Dr. Roy), Nanalal, Arya (Rangoon). This morning from 8 to 10.30 Birla, Khaitan and their two friends had a meeting with me. In the afternoon, Ramjibhai, Harilalbhai and two others from Amreli, Nageswara Rao and Bapi Needu from Andhra, Kikabhai Waghela, Dudhabhai, and four other Harijans from Ahmedabad, Satkodibabu from Bengal, a gentleman from Bihar and Birla’s group of the morning as also Satisbabu called.

DECEMBER 3, SATURDAY

Started fast in connection with Appasaheb’s satyagraha of eating less than normal food. Major Mehta came to reply on behalf of the Government at 7.15 o’clock to the effect that if I so chose I could engage myself in scavenging work but it would not countenance my interference in the matter concerning prisoner Appa Patwardhan. A reply was sent immediately. Letters—Powalkar, Dr. Chandulal, Pyarelal, Taramati, Kanti Chandraji, Mahendra, Zohra. About untouchability—the Chronicle Laundry, Mamad Rajabhai, Sadhak Siddhanand, Deshmane, C. V. Vaidya, Lakhbhai Sagathia, M. S. Kannamwar, Nanasaheb, Kanitkar. Telegrams—Madhavan Nair, the Raja of Kalakan, Kowtha Suryanarayana, Ramachandra, Lallubhai, Vaikunth, his wife, Ambalalbhai, Devdhar, Mate, Haribhau and others, _The Free Press_ representative, Nargisbehn, Shirinbehn, Satisbabu, Devdas called. All these met me in the evening. In the morning the Birla party, Thakkar Bapa, Parikshitlal, Harakhchand and others paid a visit.

DECEMBER 4, SUNDAY

The second day of my fast. Letters—Narasinhrao Bholanath, Ramprasad Bakshi, Elwin. Wrote two letters to Doyle. Letter to Appa. About untouchability—Shambushankar, Lallubhai Sa[maldas], Nawle, Kelkar (Ice Doctor), Urmila Devi, Sinhanarayan. This time the fast has affected me very much. Have become very weak. The weight went down at once by six pounds and the hands and feet became stiff. Doyle called after 11 o’clock and asked for time till Wednesday morning. I readily agreed and gave up the fast. If the decision is not satisfactory, the fast will have to be resumed. Ate oranges and mosambis and also took their juice, as also pomegranate juice and grapes.

DECEMBER 5, MONDAY

Letters—Manilal, Mirabehn, Narandas (23 letters). About untouchability—Gopala Menon (with letters from Ba and Urmiladevi,) Raihanabehn. Members of the Anti-untouchability League arrived, but as they numbered more than 12, there was an objection to my seeing them. The difficulty, however, was resolved. Raihana, Padmaja, representatives of The Hindu and The Times [of India], Lady Ramabai Pattani and Anant Pattani and Upasak.

DECEMBER 6, TUESDAY

DECEMBER 7, WEDNESDAY

Letters—Narandas, Jethalal, Vithal. About untouchability—Thirukutasundaram, Kajrolkar, Narayana Menon, Somji, Sonavane, U. Subba Rao, Hiralal Nanavati, Gopala Menon, Mevade, Shivdutt Shastri, Lady Lakshmibai, Dhrandhar Shastri came early for typing. Interview with Padma, Devdas and Sarojini. Discussion for two hours with Shastris from Poona, Pandharpur, Jalgaon, etc. They were 14 in all.

DECEMBER 8, THURSDAY

Letters—Mirabehn, Narandas (along with those to Liladhar and Chhaganlal Gandhi), Nanalal Shroff, Munshi. About untouchability to—Dhaygude, Nawle, Tummala Basavayya, Tembekar, Manibhai Desai, Devdas, Arkate, Rajbhoj, Lele. Telegram to Belgaumwala, telegram about calling Ratubhai. The Shastris from Pandharpur and Jalgaon who had come to Poona for the Sanatan Dharma Sabha and others (15 in all) called on me. More will come tomorrow. Haribhau came with three women from the Seva Sadan.

DECEMBER 9, FRIDAY

DECEMBER 10, SATURDAY

DECEMBER 11, SUNDAY

DECEMBER 12, MONDAY
Letters—Bhaktibehn, Begum Alam, Miss Cora Fry, Narandas (25). Telegram to Motilal Roy. [Letters to] Hamida, Prabhudas, Ramnath Suman, Kamalnayan. About untouchability—Gopala Menon, Secretary, Varnashram Swaraj Sangh, Talegaonkar, the Bombay Arya Samaj, Vijay Kumar, Sukhabhau (Ba, Urmiladevi, Raja), G. Behn Ghia, Kikibehn Lalwani, Godavaribein, Purushottamdas Harkisandas, Hari-ichchha, Nanabhai, Sathe. Today Haribhau,

1 Wife of her husband’s younger brother
2 A caste traditionally engaged in carrying carcasses

VOL. 58: 16 NOVEMBER, 1932 - 14 JANUARY, 1933 325
Mahadev Shastri and a Zamindar from Satara as also The Times [of India] correspondent and a businessman named Vrajlal along with a Shastri from Porbandar paid a visit. [Also] Ramachandra Rao and his co-worker.

DECEMBER 13, TUESDAY

DECEMBER 14, WEDNESDAY

DECEMBER 15, THURSDAY

DECEMBER 16, FRIDAY

Letters—Jamnalalji, Jamnadas, Pakwasa, Munshi, Jekibehn, Chhotalalji, Janakibehn, Narandas (Prema, Vithal), Liladhar, Manmohan Gandhi, Janakibehn, the All-India Swaraj Sangh. About untouchability—Rameshwar Oza, Sukhabhau, Vishnu Datta, Mishra, Hanumanprasad, Salunke. Telegrams to Bidhan Roy, Birla, Rajagopalachari, Birla (2). Among those who met me were Talegaonkar and Joshi with seven others.

DECEMBER 17, SATURDAY

DECEMBER 18, SUNDAY

Letters—Mohanlal Bhatt, Fulchand, Kausalya Ram. About untouchability—Nrisinhprasad Bhatt, Manilal Dwivedi, Chhotubhai Trivedi, Vishnuprasad Trivedi, Chhotelal, Pranlal Ambalal, Subrahmanya Aiyer, Ananta Rau, Chandrashankar, Kotwal, Natarajan1, Devdhar2, Miss Barr.

DECEMBER 19, MONDAY

Letters—Lakshmi, Narandas (24), Gopikrishna, Keshu (Radha, Santokbehn), Sitla Sahai (Sarojini, Padma), Zohra, Surbala (Indumati), Madhumati. About untouchability—The Secretary of Arya Samaj, Satis Das Gupta, Sohanlal, Jivraj Solanki. Telegrams—Kasturbhai, Gidwani, Jaisukhlal Mehta. Motibabu and his two followers, the Shastris (Shridhar Shastr, Kokje Shastr, Lakshman, Chitrav) and also Haribhau, Poddar, Prof. Purandare called. Miss Barr and a man from the Christ Seva Sangh paid a visit.

DECEMBER 20, TUESDAY

1 For Gandhiji’s discussion with them, vide Appendix “Discussion with Natarajan and Devdhar”, 18-12-1932.
2 ibid.
me along with Panchanan Tarkaratna. Dr. Maitra, Miss Barr, Satavlekar, Lakshman Shastri [of] Wai, Kokje Shastri, Daftari, Dave and others paid a visit. Telegram to Gopala Menon.

DECEMBER 21, WEDNESDAY
Letters—Premi, Nanalal, Andrews, Narandas (Madhavlal, Radhika). About untouchability—Vakkayil Nair, Joshi, Ramabhadra Row, Prabhakar, Gopaladas, Lakshmidas Dani, Kunzru, Ramgopal Shastri, G. H. Patwardhan, David, Birla, R. V. Patwardhan, Ramanath Nayak, Kidabhai Waghela, Mangalbhai Waghjibhai, Vanmali Parekh, Altekar, Bhambhania. Miss Spiegel, two American women (who came and under a misunderstanding gave me Rs. 270) Chintamanrao Vaidya, Vasukaka Joshi, S. Banker and Moolji Sikka, Miss Gilette and the Pocha sisters, Miss Barr, Motibabu and his group (along with two women), Vrajlal Sheth and Himmatschankar Shastri, Raja of Kalakanker, Raghavendra [came to see me].

DECEMBER 22, THURSDAY

DECEMBER 23, FRIDAY

DECEMBER 24, SATURDAY
Letters—Maganlal (Jeki), Chhaganlal, Valji, Mavalankar, Mathuradas, Bhagwati Devi, Narandas (Bhau, Indu), Olson, Manindranath Mitra, Alexander, Sen, Gidwani, Muriel, Mohanlal, Abbas Saheb. About untouchability—K. Waghela, Harilal Parikh, Vishwanan Giri, Nargis, Nargis (Khorsheed’s letter), Vasantkumar Chatterji (an insured packet for Rs. 100 to Birla). All the sanatanist and reformist Shastris who had come yesterday [called again].

DECEMBER 25, SUNDAY

DECEMBER 26, MONDAY

DECEMBER 27, TUESDAY

DECEMBER 28, WEDNESDAY

DECEMBER 29, THURSDAY

DECEMBER 30, FRIDAY
Letters—Dinkar, Madhavlal Patel. About untouchability—Ghanshyamdas, Raja, Madhavan, Kelappan, Dharurkar, Davde (with three others), Keshavdutt Maharaj, Bhagwandas, Indira Raman, Joshi Shastri, the Mehta brothers, Prema, Sushila, Jamnadas, Urmila Devi, Jiten [called].

DECEMBER 31, SATURDAY

[List of Books]
1 Durant [The Case for India]; Crozier [A Word to Gandhi]; Brailsford [Rebel India]; [Mahomedali] Al Haj Salmin’s Imam Hussain and Khalifa Ally; [Sir Samuel] Hoare’s Fourth Seal; Ramsay MacDonald’s travelogue; The Survey of Matar Taluka; Rama-

---

1 This is in Gandhiji’s hand on the last pages of the exercise book in which the Diary was written.
3 ibid
4 ibid
5 From “Diary, 1932” Vide “Diary, 1932”
6 By J. C. Kumarappa nathan’s Speech on Khadi; [Will] Hayes’s _Indian Bibles_; Ruskin’s _St. George’s Guild_; Shah’s _Federal Finance_; [Rothenstein’s] Ruin of Egypt; [Hayes’s] The _Book of the Cow_; [A. E.’s] _Candle of the Vision_; Kinley’s _Money_; Shaukat Khan’s _Kodhi_ (Gujarati); [Andrews’s] biography of Munshi Zaka Ullah; _The Golden Book of Tagore_; Saker; Shah’s _Sixty Years of Indian Finance_; _Panchavati_; Salvemini’s _Mussolini_; Delisle Burnes’s _Democracy_; Upton Sinclair’s _The Wet Parade_; [Edward Carpenter’s] Adam’s Peak to Elephanta; Maithilisharan’s Anagh; Stokes’s Satyakama; Ruskin’s Fors Clavigera; Letters of Narasinhbhai; Samarpanda, Buddha and Mahavir; Second and Third Urdu Reader; Imam Saheb’s and Nanabhai’s biographies of the Prophet; Heath’s Astronomy; Rolland’s Ramakrishna; Mander’s Astronomy [without a Telescope]; [Rolland’s] Vivekananda; Keay’s Hindu Astronomy; Kirtikar’s Studies in Vedanta; Sir Jeens’s Astronomy; Lady Ramanathan’s Ramayana; Ghanshyamdas’s pamphlets: Vaidik Vinaya; Fourth Urdu Reader of the Lahore Anjuman; K. T. Shah’s Indian Currency [and] Exchange Banking; Jamia’s Urdu plays, Shareef Ladka and Kheti; Kimiyagar; Veda number [of Ganga]; [Premchandji’s] Ramacharcha; Kharas’s Astronomy; Swadhyaya Samhita; Iyer’s Foreign Exchange; The Way of the Cross; The Prophet’s Message to the West; Sirat-un-Nabi; Locaire’s Astronomy; Nadkarni’s

1 “Letter to Narandas Gandhi”, 3/8-2-1932
3 Khushal T. Shah
4 “Letter to Narandas Gandhi”, 3/8-2-1932
5 _ibid._
6 _ibid._
7 _ibid._
8 by Maithilisharan Gupta
9 Letter to Narandas Gandhi” has “sixty rears of Economic Administration of India”
10 by Maithilisharan Gupta
11 From “Diary, 1932”; vide Diary, 1932
12 _ibid._
13 Narasinhbhai Ishwarbhai Patel
14 By Kishorelal G. Mashruwala
15 Nrisinhprasad Kalidas Bhatt
16 Nrisinhprasad Kalidas Bhatt
17 From “Diary, 1932”; vide “Diary”.
18 _ibid._
pamphlet; Vedman Adhyatma; Reports of Herschel and other committees; Maeterlink’s Magic of Stars; Andrews’s What I Owe to Christ; Jeans’s Mysterious Universe; Gandhi Vichardohan; Prof. Wadia’s Southern Cross; Thadani’s Poems; Madan’s [book on] fasting

From the Gujarati original: S.N. 19337

460. LETTER TO SHANTA S. PATEL

[1932]

CHI. SHANTA.

I have your letter. It is good. You must now make your handwriting as good as the letter. When we meet, remain young enough to serve me as a staff for support. Some people however old they grow remain children at heart. What does child mean? Write your answer.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G. N. 4052

461. LETTER TO CHILDREN

Silence Day [1932]

BIRDS [OF BAL MANDIR].

Received your letter. It seems you do not love the poor enough. Otherwise, how would you feel satisfied with spinning 160 rounds of yarn? Your classes would now be regularly held. That would be very good. Then I would test all of you through letters.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati original: S. N. 9178

---

1 From “Diary, 1932”; vide “Diary”.
2 This and the following letter are placed in 1932, as in the source.
462. LETTER TO JANAKIDEVI BAJAJ

[1932]

CHI. JANAKIBEHN,

How is it that there is no letter from you again? Did Gomati receive my letter or not? Write to me about how Jamnalal and Kishorelal are keeping.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: G. N. 2895

463. LETTER TO MANGALA S. PATEL

YERAVDA MANDIR,

Silence Day [1932]¹

CHI. MANGALA,

How can I not remember you? What is the news about Pushpa with the pointed nose? We shall meet when God wants us to meet. But we meet in the spirit every day, do we not? As for the body it is here today and gone tomorrow. What does it matter whether physically we meet or not? Tell Premabehn that she should tell you the story of Lucy and her seven brothers².

Blessings from

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: C. W. 11105. Courtesy: Pushpa Naik

¹ From the contents and from “Yeravda Mandir” in the date-line.
² The allusion is to “We are Seven”, a poem by William Wordsworth.
DEAR FRIEND,

I thank you for your letter of the 26th ultimo. Your letter has come upon me with painful surprise. In a matter that is purely religious to me, as it must be to you, I should expect the uttermost frankness and goodwill on either side. I miss the latter in your letter under reference. Have you ever turned out an untouchable on the Krithigai Ekadasi day? Surely, if hundreds, if not thousands, of untouchables, both men and women, enter the temple every Ekadasi, as can be proved they do, it cannot be difficult to detect some of them. The evidence in my possession goes to show that crowds of untouchables make use of the privilege every year on that holy day. You refer me to the judgment of the Madras High Court. That judgment, if I understand it rightly, shows clearly that untouchables enter the temple on the Ekadasi day, not stealthily but openly and as a matter of right.

Here is what I read in the judgment before me:

The Guruvayur Temple is not a private temple, but a public temple and every Hindu has a right to worship in it, subject to such customary rules and regulations which have been prevailing from time immemorial. The high castes are allowed actual right of entry into the temple throughout the year. In that purpose they have a right of way over the roads leading to the temple and around the temple. The lower castes are allowed the right of entry only on Ekadasi Festival day, and on that day they have got the right of using the roads. On the other days they have neither of these rights. This was the situation from time immemorial.

This read: “You ask whether the temple is open to all Hindus including untouchables for three days every year. In reply, I have to say that the information is not correct. The untouchables have no right to enter the temple on any day. But, as a large crowd admittedly enter the temple on the Krithigai Ekadasi day and as this crowd might possibly include untouchables and as in any case, it is difficult to ascertain the different castes to which the members of the crowd belong, a purificatory ceremony is performed on the next day (Dwadasi). Apart from this, the alleged entry of untouchables on the Ekadasi day is not a fact. They do not enter the temple at all. For more definite particulars I would refer you to the judgment of Mr. Justice Ramesam Pantulu of the Madras High Court, pronounced in the middle of June last, of which I presume you have a copy.”
I read then from the same judgment

The lower-caste Hindus are after all Hindus and it may be with this consideration in view that for one day in the year the temple is thrown open to them with the ostensible excuse that on such a day it would be impossible to check the crowds, the inner object being to allow all castes’ entry on that day. This was the view of Ramanuja, the famous Vaishnava reformer. According to him, all Vaishnava temples ought to be thrown open to all castes one day in the year.

Unless I am very much mistaken, these two paragraphs seem to be conclusive evidence that for that particular Ekadasi day untouchables are allowed to enter the temple without let or hindrance.

As this matter is of great public importance, I am sending the correspondence to the Press.

Yours sincerely,

RAJA MANAVEDAN RAJA
ZAMORIN OF CALICUT
KOTTAKKAL

From a microfilm: M.M.U./XXII

465. LETTER TO C. Y. CHINTAMANI

January 1, 1933

DEAR MR. CHINTAMANI,

I thank you for your letter. The matter of the fast is not for me wholly one of reason, because you will have no hesitation in believing me when I tell you that all such fasts have been prompted by an unseen power. I deliberately use the expression “unseen power”, because I do not exclude the possibility of that power being evil. But these fasts have appealed to my reason as they have to that of many utterly detached friends. The silent and invisible effects of all spiritual acts are far deeper and far more pervasive than their felt and visible effects. If therefore these fasts have amounted to moral coercion in some cases, they have imperceptibly undoubtedly moved to action a thousand times more than those who have acted under moral coercion, which therefore may be regarded as a negligible quantity. That such is the result of spiritual acts is not a matter of conjecture, but provable under given conditions like any other tangible result. So much for the moral coercion.

DEAR MR. CHINTAMANI,

I thank you for your letter. The matter of the fast is not for me wholly one of reason, because you will have no hesitation in believing me when I tell you that all such fasts have been prompted by an unseen power. I deliberately use the expression “unseen power”, because I do not exclude the possibility of that power being evil. But these fasts have appealed to my reason as they have to that of many utterly detached friends. The silent and invisible effects of all spiritual acts are far deeper and far more pervasive than their felt and visible effects. If therefore these fasts have amounted to moral coercion in some cases, they have imperceptibly undoubtedly moved to action a thousand times more than those who have acted under moral coercion, which therefore may be regarded as a negligible quantity. That such is the result of spiritual acts is not a matter of conjecture, but provable under given conditions like any other tangible result. So much for the moral coercion.
As to the permissibility of fasts, I quite agree with you that the motive is irrelevant if the act itself is prohibited. In the first instance, a conditional fast is not a suicide, but if we accept the authority of the Hindu Shastras, then there is ample warrant not only for conditional fasts, but even unconditional, under some extraordinary circumstances. I have only recently found myself in possession of a pamphlet issued by Madras Advocates in which are collected instances of fasts like mine in the Shastras. If you would care to explore the subject, I would gladly send you my copy.

My regards to you and Mr. Krishnaram.

Yours sincerely,

SJT. C. Y. CHINTAMANI
17 HAMILTON ROAD, ALLAHABAD

From a photostat: S.N. 19129

466. LETTER TO P. SUBBAROYAN

January 1, 1933

DEAR DR. SUBBAROYAN,

I thank you for your letter of the 28th ultimo. All these days I have kept myself in touch with you through Sjt. Rajagopalachari. He sent me a copy of the full text of your Bill. I went through it at the time not critically. I found then that it answered the purpose. I shall apply my mind to it critically after you receive the Viceregal sanction, which, I hope, will be forthcoming without undue delay. You will see that I had anticipated your letter by announcing indefinite postponement of the fast.

With my regards to you and Mrs. Subbaroyan.

Yours sincerely,

DR. P. SUBBAROYAN
TIRUCHENGodu, SALEM DISTRICT

From a microfilm: S.N. 19133
467. LETTER TO G. D. BIRLA

January 1, 1933

MY DEAR GHANSHYAMDAŚ,

I have your letter of 27th ultimo. I had seen the Bill. It is not permissive in the sense you have evidently imagined. It is permissive in the sense that the Bill does not declare all temples automatically open. But individual temples can be opened by the vote of the majority of the temple-goers, not at the will of the Trustees.

I hope that your confidence about the assent will be justified by the event. Rajaji was here for three days, and we had long discussions about the Bill and the situation in Guruvayur in general.

I hope the formalities about the publication of the Weekly¹ have been completed.

BAPU

C.W. 7915. Courtesy: G. D. Birla. Also In the Shadow of the Mahatma, p. 86

468. LETTER TO JAMNALAL BAJAJ

January 1, 1933

CHI. JAMNALAL,

I got your letter. The copy of the statement² was sent to you as soon as its last page was typed. Copies had been given to the Press reporters before then. The statement came into your hands the day before yesterday, and it appeared in the papers yesterday. The only news which came out a day earlier was that the fast had been postponed; and the statement was sent to you the moment it was ready. There was, thus, no delay. I shall send you the Gujarati translation when it is ready.

As for the letters, they are being despatched as soon as each is ready. There was no need to make another copy of the statement. I shall be able to supply a copy to anyone who may want it.

I believe that Raja, as also Ba and Shankerlal, left today for Bombay. Rajaji will leave for Madras by the night train today.

¹ Harijan
² On untouchability; vide “Statement on Untouchability-XIII”, 30-12-1932.
Manilal and Sushila did try to see you, but without success. They left on Wednesday.

We shall meet tomorrow at 10 o’clock. As I would then be observing silence, you may tell me what you have to say. We shall be able to discuss for an hour or an hour and a quarter. I will note down the points which require a reply.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 2909

469. LETTER TO VINOBA BHAVE

January 1, 1933

CHI. VINOBA,

Your love and faith bring me tears of joy. I may or may not deserve them, but they will bring their reward to you. You will be the instrument of some great service to the people. You did quite right in going to stay in Nalwadi.

For the future, I have to make only this suggestion just now: take care of your health and do not be rigid about excluding milk from your diet. Your swadharma at present is to work for removal of untouchability. Find time to read what I write from time to time. It is not much. Write to me regularly. It will be enough if you write once a week.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 392

470. LETTER TO NARAYAN M. KHARE

January 1, 1933

CHI. PANDITJI,

You have made good progress with the Chharas. If you keep up your efforts, the result is bound to be good. I trust you did much work in Kashi.

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: C.W. 242. Courtesy: Lakshmibehn N. Khare
471. LETTER TO VIDYA R. PATEL

January 1, 1933

CHI. VIDYA,

You wrote after a long interval. Don’t be lazy like this. If you work hard, you will surely become thin.

BAPU

472. LETTER TO KESHAV GANDHI

January 1, 1933

CHI. KESHAV (JUNIOR),

I got your letter. You should regard all children as your brothers and help them as much as you can. There is only one friend, God. He never forsakes us and He fulfils all our aspirations. Why, then, do we need any other friend?

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 3285

473. LETTER TO CHAMPABEHN R. MEHTA

January 1, 1933

CHI. CHAMPA1.

Your name is included as one of the Trustees. The other names are from among those which you had suggested. Narandas’s name is not included. Bhai Nanalal2 will be meeting you and he will give you the details. I, therefore, don’t write more here.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 8756

1 Wife of Ratilal, Dr. Pranjivan Mehta’s son
2 Nanalal K. Jasani, Dr. Pranjivan Mehta’s business manager and partner
474. LETTER TO RUKMINIDEVI BAJAJ

January 1, 1933

CHI. RUKMINI,

I got your letter. In spite of more persons helping me as secretaries, the pressure of work remains heavy. Ba, Devdas, Pyarelal, Bal and Rajaji came and saw me. Premabehn, Jamnadas and Indu also came. Jamnadas has been very much reduced. He was ill. Isn’t there a women’s library? If there is one, why don’t you become a member?
Or is it that you have no love for reading or you get no time for it? I don’t write separately to Benarsi this time.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 9150

475. LETTER TO PREMABEHN KANTAK

January 1, 1933

CHI. PREMA,

I was glad that Sushila and you came and saw me. Today I need not write a long letter to you. I shall wait for your letter describing your impressions.

Give me news about Dhurandhar’s health. Ask him to write to me.

You should find out the cause of your back-ache. Do see Haribh-hai in any case. You need not regret the removal of the tonsils, and don’t harm your throat by speaking too much. You must cure your habit of speaking very loudly.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10318

476. LETTER TO NARMADABEHN RANA

January 1, 1933

CHI. NARMADA,

Your handwriting is improving. You should write the lines straight. I am very glad that you are learning to make bread.

BAPU

From the Gujarati original: C.W. 2771. Courtesy: Ramnarayan N. Pathak
477. LETTER TO ASHRAM BOYS AND GIRLS

January 1, 1933

BOYS AND GIRLS,

You are doing very good work. Keep it up. Once you learn farming, you will find it more interesting than any other work. And when one gets familiar with plants, one feels they are part of one’s family.

And service of Harijans itself is dharma.
Concentrate on whatever work you are doing.

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./II

478. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

January 1, 1933

CHI. NARANDAS,

I get all your letters.

The drum announcing another fast of mine has stopped beating now. Let Shri Krishna start it again when He wills.

The burden of work on you at present must be quite heavy. Who visits the Chharas these days? Do you have some peace from that quarter now? I see nothing to object to in Bhai Mavalankar’s letter. You or I need not write anything just now.

Ramji wants some arrangement for more light in his house, and also a hedge round it. See what can be done.

The problem of Tilakam is a little difficult. He is still restless. He will go forward if somebody takes him under his charge.

Indu came and saw me. He cannot live anywhere outside the Ashram. Just now he will go to Cutch. Take him back when he returns. If such is his and our fate, we must submit to it.

I have just heard that Kishorelal cured his asthma by eating every night ten to fifteen roasted fenugreek seeds. Jamna should try this.

BAPU

[PS.]

There are 27 letters, all tied together.

[From Gujarati]

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./I
479. LETTER TO CHAND TYAGI

January 1, 1933

Bhai Chand Tyagi,

I was glad to get your letter. You did well to start taking milk. The Harijan work is proceeding nicely. Have no worry. Where is Balvir?

Blessings from

Bapu

SHRI CHAND TYAGI
PRISONER, JAIL, SAHARANPUR, U.P.

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 3260

480. LETTER TO SOHANLAL SHARMA

January 1, 1933

Bhai Sohanlal,

I have your two letters. There is no need to send me Ramanuja-charit. I am somewhat familiar with the life of the Acharya.

I am unable to offer any advice about the marriage. You can do whatever seems proper.

Mohandas Gandhi
Shri Sohanlal Sharma
Hindu Mahasabha
Pushkar, Near Ajmer
Rajputana

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 2829
481. LETTER TO HEMPRABHA DAS GUPTA

January 1, 1933

CHI. HEMPRABHA,

Your letter. Sun-bathing should do you good. It would be excellent if you took some rest too. All our actions must be performed with detachment.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI HEMPRABHA DEVI
KHADI PRATISHTHAN
COLLEGE SQUARE, CALCUTTA

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 1694

482. LETTER TO AMTUSSALAAM

January 1, 1933

DEAR DAUGHTER AMTUSSALAAM,

I have your letter. You should not move about when you have fever. You should take complete rest. You would do well to restrict yourself to milk and fruit only. You do not require anything more. Give up the idea of settling in the village. Stay in the Ashram and render what service you can.¹ It does not matter if you fall sick. Leave somethings at least to God. You did well in sending the [Ashram] regulations to Dr. Sharma. I shall write to him if he is willing to abide by them. Why do you grieve over the inability to join the prayers these days? Sick persons are always exempted. Remember God whenever you wake up. Forgo the temptation of working overmuch. Your thanks-giving to God consists in doing whatever little you can. May God grant you peace.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Urdu: G.N. 269

¹ The addressee was considering settling in the village Vadaj so as to avoid being a burden on the Ashram.
483. LETTER TO SHARDA C. SHAH

January 1, 1933

CHI. SHARDA,

Nobody need take any food which does not suit him.

It does not matter if you have taken up study of English. If you have in your hand the key of grammar, you can learn it well by yourself.

Don’t be lazy about writing to me.

BAPU

From the Gujarati original: C.W. 9967. Courtesy: Shardabehn G. Chokhawala

484. LETTER TO GULAM RASUL QURESHI

January 1, 1933

CHI. QURESHI,

I would not consider it good health if you were always constipated. You must get rid of the constipation. Try Gangabehn’s tablets. Change of diet may help.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 10815. Courtesy: Gulam Rasul Qureshi

485. LETTER TO AMINA QURESHI

January 1, 1933

CHI. AMINA,

You should give me an account of the progress of your studies every week.

I hope the children’s injuries have completely healed now.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 10792. Courtesy: Gulam Rasul Qureshi
486. TELEGRAM TO DR. MOHAMMAD ALAM

January 2, 1933

DOCTOR MOHAMMAD ALAM
57 LANDSDOWNE ROAD
CALCUTTA

YOUR WIRE. THANK GOD YOU ESCAPED OPERATION AND CAN EVEN MOTOR.

GANDHI

From a photostat: G.N. 20

487. LETTER TO MADHUSUDANAN THANGAL

January 2, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I thank you for your letter enclosing Resolution passed by the Conference of Namboodiri Brahmins of Kerala of which you were the President.

You already know that the fast has been indefinitely postponed. I however hope that the Namboodiri Brahmins, both men and women, will put forth redoubled efforts to secure for the Harijans not merely the right of entry into temples, but all the other rights to which all the other Hindus are entitled.

Yours sincerely,

SREEMAN MADHUSUDANAN THANGAL, M.L.C.
PRESIDENT, 25TH NAMBOODIRI YOGAKSHEMAM CONFERENCE
KARLAMANNA (S. MALABAR)

From a microfilm: S.N. 19139

488. LETTER TO A. KALESWAR RAO

January 2, 1933

MY DEAR KALESWAR RAO,

I was delighted to receive your letter and to have the greeting and prayers from fellow-prisoners.

I have seen your contribution to the Press. Of course there is no lack of precedent for introduction of Bills of a religious character.

Yours sincerely,

SJT. A. KALESWAR RAO
PLEADER, BEZWADA

From a microfilm: S.N. 19137

VOL. 58: 16 NOVEMBER, 1932 - 14 JANUARY, 1933  345
489. LETTER TO G. S. B. SARASWATI

January 2, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter. As I have no personal knowledge of your work, my recommendation to the Servants of Untouchables Society can carry no greater weight than your own. I would, therefore, advise you to approach the Society directly. Its headquarters are Delhi.

Yours sincerely,

SREE SWAMY G. S. B. SARASWATI
INDUKURPET, NELLORE

From a microfilm: S.N. 19138

490. LETTER TO GOVIND RAGHAV

January 2, 1933

I have your loving note.¹ What a great thought! “He is not heavy, he is my brother.” The heaviest things become light as feather when love bears them.

From the manuscript of Mahadev Desai’s Diary. Courtesy: Narayan Desai

491. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

January 2, 1933

CHI. NARANDAS,

I got your letter. How did Radha and Kusum get fever again? If you have been able to discover the cause, let me know.

Your account of Mahavir’s doings makes one feel sad about him. Speak to him plainly. There is no reason why the Ashram should bear the expenses of the person whom he has brought with him. And write without fail to everybody from whom he has borrowed money and find out the facts. Do so after informing him. Read the letter which I am writing to him. Brijkrishna, at any rate, should not have

¹ The addressee had written to Gandhiji about the story of a bishop who met a little girl of about six or seven carrying over her shoulder a boy, about two years old. The bishop remarked that the boy was too heavy for her to which she replied: “No. He is not heavy, he is my brother.”

346
THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
given him a single pie. If he is there, ask him why he gave anything. If he is not there, write to him. If you do not know the addresses of all the persons whose names are given to you by Mahavir, write to Sitaramji and get them. I hope you know his address. If you do not know it, write to him C/o Khadi Bhandar. The Bhandar is on Harrison Road.

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./I

492. LETTER TO NIRMALA B. MASHRUWALA

January 2, 1933

CHI. NIRMALA,

I did not get from you as many letters as Sushila spoke of. I was wondering why there were no letters from you. Write the following letter to Kishorelal:

"I am able to take up today, the Silence Day (January 2), your letter of December 6, which I had kept aside for replying. For the present the fast has been postponed, as it seems that the law stands in the way of the temple being thrown open to Harijans and has to be amended. Necessary steps are being taken for that purpose. However, all your arguments are correct. Those who are directly taking part in the movement for temple-entry should be people who are entitled to visit the temple concerned. The votes of only such people were taken, and the result was excellent. Nobody can enter a private temple without the proprietor’s permission. It is acknowledged on all hands that the Guruvayur Temple is a public temple. In this matter, I am scrupulously following dharma according to my lights. The issue raised by Appa’s demand was clear and that is why the problem was solved so soon. It might be regarded improper if I write more on this point. You will learn everything in future.

“I can see Jamnalalji from time to time. He is better. His weight has been increasing and the ear is all right.”

“Ranchhodbhai told me that your asthma was cured by the use of fenugreek seeds. If the report is correct, the remedy was quite cheap. I find no time at present to read the remaining chapters of

1 Kishorelal G. Mashruwala

VOL. 58: 16 NOVEMBER, 1932 - 14 JANUARY, 1933 347
your book about the Gita and the other things, as Harijan [work] takes up all my time. You probably know that Chhaganlal Joshi is with me. Vinoba has gone to live in an Antyaja hamlet near Wardha. Kaka is coming in a day or two to see me. He seems to be keen to take up Harijan work. I neither encourage nor dissuade anybody. Manilal and Sushila seemed a little reluctant to return to South Africa, but I felt that it was their duty to resume their work there, and so they have left. There is no change in the condition of my elbow. I have started the massage methodically from today. There is no reason at all for worrying.”

Write to Gomati¹ as follows:

“You must be hearing everything about me. There is no reason for any anxiety for the present as the fast has been postponed. Even otherwise, there was none. Tell the other women there to write to me when they can. I should get all news. Jamnalalji is quite well. I see him frequently. Chhaganlal Joshi is with me. I don’t read anything at present. The Harijan [work] takes up all my time. Even spinning has been stopped because of the elbow, but you need not worry on that account."

Blessings to all from

BAPU

SHRI NIRMALABEHN

C/O BALUBHAI MASHRUWALA

TOPIWALA BUILDING, SANDHURST ROAD, BOMBAY

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 1006. Courtesy: Nirmalabehn Shroff

---

493. LETTER TO FEROZABEHN TALEYARKHAN

January 2, 1933

DEAR SISTER,

We were all very happy to read your sweet but lisping Gujarati and had a hearty laugh over it. Though sometimes I feel like quarreling with Parsi men and women for their defective Gujarati, still I like their sweet Gujarati very much. And I would like to keep a whip ready for one who knows even a bit of Gujarati but writes to me in English. I hope both of you are all right. Write to me from time to time.

¹ Wife of Kishorelal

Blessings from

BAPU

FEROZABEHN TALEYARKHAN
NAZIR HOUSE
CUMBALLA HILL
BOMBAY

From Gujarati: C.W. 9777

494. INTERVIEW TO THE ASSOCIATED PRESS OF INDIA

January 2, 1933

That in a spirit of compromise he had made a suggestion in order to reconcile opposition to temple-entry by Harijans at Guruvayur, was revealed by Mr. Gandhi to the Associated Press this afternoon in the course of an interview.

Gandhiji’s attention was drawn to the statement made by him on Pundit Panchanan Tarkaratna’s visit to him in which he was reported to have made a definite suggestion to the Pundit which ought to satisfy the most exacting sanatanists. When invited to throw light on the suggestion, Gandhiji said:

The suggestion I made was this: During certain hours of the day, the temple should be thrown open to Harijans and to other Hindus, who have no objection to the presence of Harijans, and during certain other hours it should be reserved for those who have scruples against the entry of Harijans. There should be no difficulty, whatsoever, in accepting this suggestion, seeing that in connection with the Krithikai Ekadasi festival at Guruvayur, Harijans are allowed to enter side by side with other Hindus and then the idol of the temple undergoes purification.

Asked if his suggestion was that the temple might undergo purification daily after the entry of the Harijans, Mr. Gandhi replied:

Personally, I am opposed to purification at all. But if that would satisfy the conscience of objectors, I would personally raise no objec-

---

1. Gandhiji was reclining on a cot in the shade of the famous mango tree. A few Shastris were sitting around him discussing and arguing.
3. This paragraph is from Amrita Bazar Patrika, 4-1-1933.
tion to purification. If purification has any value, then there are so many possibilities of daily defilement from a variety of causes referred to in the various texts, that there should be a daily purification, whether Harijans are allowed to enter or not.

Asked if the compromise suggested by him did not still maintain a distinction between Harijans and high-castes, Mr. Gandhi replied that the Harijans’ attitude should be this:

If there is a person who objects to my presence, I would like to respect his objection, so long as he (the objector) does not deprive me of the right that belongs to me. So long as I am permitted to have a legitimate share of the day for offering worship side by side with those who have no objection to my presence, I would be satisfied.

Mr. Gandhi proceeded to say that in a place where the majority of people favoured temple-entry by Harijans, then the number of caste Hindus who would want the temple exclusively for them during certain hours, would be so small as to be negligible.

Proceeding to another aspect of the temple-entry agitation, Mr. Gandhi emphatically discouraged direct action by non-Hindus for procuring entry for Harijans. He declared:

This is a deeply religious movement, and it will be thousand pities if out of misplaced sympathy or other motives non-Hindus were to interfere by way of direct action.

What prompted Mr. Gandhi to make this observation, was a letter received by him from Colombo, in which the correspondent stated that, with reference to the local temple-entry campaign, what had been misnamed satyagraha was offered by non-Hindus, consisting of a Buddhist, a Roman Catholic lady, a Christian and a few Muslims. They were prosecuted by the law at the instance of the temple trustees and convicted. The correspondent asked Mr. Gandhi whether interference by non-Hindus in order to secure temple-entry for Harijans could be justified. Mahatmaji declared:

I have no hesitation whatsoever in saying that this could not be justified under any circumstances. It would be a most dangerous interference if non-Hindus were to express their sympathy by way of direct action. Indeed, I go so far as to say that direct action can be offered [only] by those caste Hindus who are entitled to enter the temple in regard to which such action is taken, and who being entitled, believe in temple-entry.

Asked what he had to say about Viceregal sanction for Dr. Subbaroyan’s Bill, Mr. Gandhi said that he hoped that the Viceroy would give permission as early as possible.

The Hindu, 3-1-1933
INTERVIEW ON SUBBAROYAN’S BILL

January 2, 1933

Asked for his views on sanatanists’ agitation based on the Queen’s Proclamation, Gandhiji observed:

I do not know what meaning is attached to the word ‘neutrality’ by those who are seeking to oppose Dr. Subbaroyan’s Bill. I can say, with perfect confidence, that Dr. Subbaroyan’s Bill is intended to undo the wrong done by the British courts’ decision. I do not suggest that the wrong was done intentionally. It should again be remembered that Dr. Subbaroyan’s Bill seeks to amend the Madras Religious Endowments Act which is itself of a religious character, another breach of neutrality according to the sanatanists’ interpretation. Again if one were to examine the contents of the Bill, dispassionately, it will be found that it seeks to impose nothing on the Hindus, but it merely seeks to register the will of the Hindu public in connection with temples in which that public are interested—not of the whole of the Hindu public but only of those who are entitled to have a say in connection with a particular temple. I can see in this measure no interference whatsoever, with anybody’s religion. The Bill seeks to protect both the opponents and advocates of temple-entry.

Gandhiji wanted the actual text of Mr. T. R. Ramachandra Aiyar’s Guruvayur speech to deal with it.

When I drew his attention to the fact that I was prohibited by the jail warders from bringing into the jail a copy of the newspaper containing the speech, Gandhiji said that he would talk to the Superintendent and see that the Pressmen were allowed to bring in their reference papers in the future.

Asked whether he would abandon the fast if the Viceroy gave his sanction to Dr. Subbaroyan’s Bill, Gandhiji said that he would further postpone the fast till the next stage was reached. The Bill must be enacted and the Government’s final assent given for it to become law. A referendum in which the Zamorin also would have to participate, would follow. The possibility of a fast would continue till the temple was thrown open, but at every step stated above, the possibility would be reduced. The fast would be finally abandoned only when the temple was thrown open.

Questioned what would be his attitude if the Viceroy refused his sanction to the Bill, Mahatma remarked:

Ah, if the Viceroy refused sanction, I would consider the position. Then, the fast is bound to come, but I should wait till the Government state their attitude. I do not want to go into the question at the present moment.

Referring to the proposal of a section of South Indians for building new temples where reformers and Harijans could go for common worship, leaving the old temples to the orthodox, Gandhiji said:

The question does not arise, until I am satisfied that those who are entitled to worship are in favour of that proposal. The orthodox view is that the sanctity of a temple would decrease if Harijans are admitted. People who are in favour of temple-entry are of the opinion that the sanctity of a temple will increase if all the Hindus are allowed inside the temple. Increase or decrease in sanctity is only a mental process. If the majority of the temple-goers are in favour of such a proposal, I shall give it consideration. But I am sure that the suggestion will not be acceptable to any of the reformers.

The Hindu, 3-1-1933

496. TELEGRAM TO DAMARAJU LAKSHMAMMA

[On or before January 3, 1933]

Srimathi Lakshmamma received a wire from Mahatma Gandhi requesting her not to commence fasting and stating that he was writing in detail.

The Hindu, 4-1-1933

497. STATEMENT ON UNTOUCHABILITY IN HINDU SHASTRAS

January 3, 1933

I have had the privilege, as the public knows, of having a friendly discussion with Bhagwan Shastri Dharurkar of Pandharpur and others who accompanied him. These gentlemen came, as they made it clear to me, in their personal capacity, and not as representatives of any association. They came with a view to understanding my

---

1 The telegram was in reply to a communication from Shrimati Lakshmamma, Congress worker and member, District Board, Ellore, informing Gandhiji of her determination to commence fasting from the 2nd instant, in respect of the local Sri Janardhana Swami Temple in case Mahatma Gandhi would fast in connection with the temple-entry problem at Guruvayur, and requesting Gandhiji’s permission to do so.

2 The telegram was reported under the date-line: “Ellore, January 3”. position regarding untouchability in general and the movement for temple-entry by Harijans in particular. No doubt they had also the intention of helping me to understand and even adopt the sanatani viewpoint, for which they were speaking.

I had a long discussion with them. In order to leave no stone unturned in my attempt to understand the viewpoint of sanatani pundits and in accordance with the arrangement made with Bhagwan Shastri Dharurkar, I had invited some friends, learned in the Shastras and who, I knew, generally supported my position, so that I may have both the schools of thought playing upon my mind.

I can say that I listened to their arguments and discourses with the greatest patience and with respectful attention. I was unable to find any error in the position which I have held for period now nearing half-a-century. I know that time never runs in favour of an error, and as I regard myself as a humble seeker after truth and prone to error like any other mortal, I have always held myself ready to confess errors as soon as the conviction went home; but these discussions have left me more convinced than ever that untouchability, as it is practised today in Hinduism, has no warrant in the Hindu Shastras. Many have done me and themselves great injustice by not giving their full value to the expression “as it is understood and practised today”. But rather than just state the effect produced on my mind by these prolonged discussions, I have secured from the pundits or Shastris who gave me general support, their interpretation of the Shastras about untouchability, and I have pleasure in giving below an authorized translation of the statement which is in Hindi. Acharya Anandshankar Dhruva and Dr. Bhagwandas are responsible for this translation.

The statement runs as follows:

Three kinds of untouchables are mentioned in the Hindu Dharma-shastras: (1) Persons classed as untouchables by birth, i.e., progeny of the union of a Shudra with a Brahmin woman. (2) Persons guilty of any of the five heinous sins or of certain practices condemned in Hinduism. (3) Persons whilst they are in a polluted state.

There is nothing to show that any of the communities now classed as untouchables come under the first category. Therefore, the rules governing untouchability and ex-communication under the first head are inapplicable to them. Assuming that any of these communities can be brought under the first head, they can be free from their untouchability and have all the privileges... enjoyed in common by the four varnas by clean living, initiation into the Shaiva or Vaishnava worship, and the like.

The second kind of untouchability obviously cannot attach exclusively to any class or community as a whole. It may apply to individuals in any and every community. The untouchability of the untouchables so-called, is not due to their fallen state under the second head, nor can they be shown to be descendants of such fallen parents. Persons guilty of heinous sins, referred to under the second head, become fully purified by the performance of appropriate purificatory ceremonies. The progeny of such fallen persons as have not become thus purified cannot be classed as untouchables. Some Smritikaras who regard such progeny as untouchables, prescribe a very slight purificatory ceremonial for their restoration; and persons who are guilty of practices rendering them untouchable can also be free from untouchability by giving up such practices.

The third kind of untouchability, due to one’s being in a polluted state, obtains among all classes whether regarded as untouchables or not. There is no warrant in the Shastras for considering tanners, Bhangis and others as permanent untouchables, merely by reason of their occupation. Their untouchability is due to the external uncleanness caused by the nature of their work. All untouchability under the third head is cured by a bath and a change of clean clothes at the due time.

Thus, it is necessary that the rights common to four varnas, e.g., of entry into temples, educational institutions, of use of public wells, ghats, tanks, rivers, etc., should equally accrue to the untouchables so called, and that it is wrong to deprive them of such common rights. This is probable from the texts, the fundamental principles and the spirit of the Dharmashastras.

I do not need to introduce the signatories to the public, but I can say that they claim to Sjt. C. V. Vaidya. All these I hope to share with the public as early represent sanatan dharma no less than those who call themselves sanatanists. Apart from these, I have received valuable opinions in general support from Mahamahopadhyaya Pramathanath...
Tarkabhushan, Pundit Shreedhar Shastri Pathak, Krishna Thanasukh Misra and last but not least as it is possible to have them printed simultaneously with this. I am issuing to the Press the original Hindi and authorized translations in Marathi and Gujarati, and I hope that the respective journals would only print the authorized text.

The opinion of these learned men, popularly construed, means that no class of persons today bears the brand of permanent untouchability. It is obvious that untouchability by birth cannot exist today in connection with a class. In connection with individuals, it is practically impossible of detection. There are undoubtedly men who must be guilty of the five heinous sins, but all castes are capable of committing those sins, and society today takes no notice of them. The condemned practice under the second head refers to eating of carrion or beef. There are undoubtedly some people among those classed as untouchables who are given to this practice, but they are bound to give it up as soon as caste Hindus make the real advance. At the present moment the very incentive to give up beef or carrion is lacking. The temporary pollution under the third head carries no condemnation with it. It is a pollution which is inevitable for all in a certain state, and the pollution ceases immediately the state ceases.

If the signatories have correctly interpreted the Shastras, then we have been all these many years doing a grave injustice to Bhangis, tanners and others by classing them as permanent untouchables, although we recognize that their profession is as honourable as any and much more indispensable for the very existence of society than many others which do not carry the mark of untouchability with them.

M. K. GANDHI

The Hindu, 4-1-1933

498. LETTER TO F. MARY BARR

January 3, 1933

MY DEAR MARY.

I must dictate this letter. You will be entitled to treat us as hosts or hostesses when we agree to look upon you as a guest. But I must flatly decline to give you that treatment.

1 From The Hindustan Times, 4-1-1933
The experience you have related is not uncommon; hence we have the proverb that it takes two to make a quarrel. I think that your interference was quite timely and proper.

Love from us.

BAPU

From a photostat: G. N. 5987. Also C.W. 3344. Courtesy: Miss F. Mary Barr

499. LETTER TO K. NAGESWAR RAO

January 3, 1933

MY DEAR NAGESWAR RAO,

I enclose a telegram received by me. If you know Sjt. Kasi Krishnamacharya, I would not adopt the suggestion of the sender of the telegram and drag him all the way to Poona, but if you will give his opinion on the same question put by me I should value it, and if you get the opinion please tell me also briefly who Kasi Krishnamacharya is.

Yours sincerely,

From a microfilm: S.N. 19146

500. LETTER TO NAGARDAS K. BHAMBANIA

January 3, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter. To me the whole of your argument tends to show that those who have the ideas of physical purity that you have should treat themselves as untouchables rather than treat any single human being as such, and this is the well-known practice followed among the Vaishnavas. Those who follow it do not call themselves untouchables, but they are called ‘merjadees’. You know the meaning of the word.

And why so much stress upon external purity when the scriptures lay stress on inward purity? No doubt external purity is necessary as a help to the attainment of the inner, but that can be ensured by everyone for himself.

1 The letter was in reply to the addressee’s dated December 22, 1932 (S.N. 18785).
2 The source has “leads”.
3 Maryadis, those who observe maryada, i.e., strict rules in regard to pollution.
There is no question whatsoever of forcing sanatanists to do anything against their conviction. Private temples remain untouched by the movement. It is open to the owners to do what they liked with them. Public temples are the property of the public that is entitled to the use of these temples. Is there any force if the majority of visitors to a particular temple decide to open that temple to Harijans? The whole movement is to quicken Hindu conscience and then leave it to act according to its dictates. Can you see any flaw in this? I would like you to study the movement and its implications.

Lastly, I must tell you that I have not found a single authority in support of untouchability as it is practiced today, if you will dispassionately study the question and give its full meaning to the words underlined.

NAGARDAS K. BHAMBANIA
POONA

From a microfilm: S.N. 19141

501. LETTER TO T. A. V. NATHAN

January 3, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I thank you for your letter. I have not however got a copy of Justice referred to in your letter. If you will send me the cutting, it will reach me in safety and I shall then be able to deal with it.

Yours sincerely,

From a microfilm: S.N. 19142

502. LETTER TO M. BALAKRISHNA TIVARI

January 3, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I thank you for your letter. Almost every intelligent Hindu knows that among our saints there are quite a number of Harijans, but we are such a curious mixture we have no scruple in condemning whole communities though we may worship individuals belonging to them. I have, therefore, refrained from laying stress upon the facts you have kindly mentioned.

Yours sincerely,

SJR. M. BALAKRISHNA TIVARI
RETD. MUNICIPAL ENGINEER, BANGALORE CITY

From a microfilm: S.N. 19143

503. LETTER TO RAMANANDA SANNYASI
January 3, 1933

DEAR RAMANANDAJI,

I have your letter. It is not possible for me to do much from here, but I am forwarding your letter to Ghanshyamdasji.

Yours sincerely,

RAMANANDA SANNYASI
NEW CENTRAL JAIL, MULTAN

From a microfilm: S.N. 19147

504. LETTER TO G. D. BIRLA
January 3, 1933

MY DEAR GHANSHYAMDAS,

Here is a letter from Ramananda Sannyasi which speaks for itself. You will see if there is anything to do in this connection.

I enclose also a letter from Ganeshilal Mistry for your information and guidance. This is a letter which requires investigation. It is impossible for you to cope with all complaints personally, but there should be someone who would take the pains to see such writers when they are local people, and in every case find out what truth there is in their complaints and then give the writers whatever satisfaction is possible.

To save you the trouble, if you will put me on to someone to whom I should write directly I would do so, and then he will bring to your notice whatever is necessary.

Yours sincerely

BAPU

C.W. 7916. Courtesy: G. D. Birla. Also S.N. 19169

1 An Arya Samajist from Delhi who was in jail. He seems to have asked for financial help for his institution; vide the following item.
505. LETTER TO DHARMA VIR VEDALANKAR

January 3, 1933

MY DEAR DHARMA VIR,

I was glad to receive your letter and cuttings giving a description of the various activities that took place on the Shraddhanand Day.¹

Yours sincerely,

PT. DHARMA VIR VEDALANKAR
SHRADDHANAND BAZAR, DELHI

From a microfilm: S.N. 19148

506. LETTER TO KONDA VENKATAPPAYYA

January 3, 1933

MY DEAR VENKATAPPAYYA,

I have your letter. I hope you got my letter² in Calicut. In it I enquired about your daughter and your wife. How are they both doing? I hope you are completely restored. Do come whenever you like, as long as it is untouchability you want to discuss.

Yours sincerely,

SJT. KONDA VENKATAPPAYYA
GUNTUR

From a microfilm: S.N. 19153

507. LETTER TO D. NARAYANA RAJU

January 3, 1933

MY DEAR NARAYANA RAJA,

I have your letter. I am quite sure that Lakshmamma should not fast in connection with the opening of the temple you mention. I have already wired to her.³

¹ For Gandhi’s message, vide “Letter to Secretary, All-India Shraddhanand memorial Trust”, before 19-12-1932.
² Vide “Letter to Konda Venkatappaya”, 21-12-1932.
³ This sentence is in Gandhi’s hand. For the telegram, vide “Telegram to Damaraju Lakshamma”, on or before 3-1-1933.
Whilst Guruvayur is pending, only propaganda should be carried on. Fasting is a method applicable only in rare cases.

Yours sincerely,

SJT. D. NARAYANA RAJU
ELLORE

From a microfilm: S.N. 19152

508. LETTER TO M. MANICKAM

January 3, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter and I am glad that you have drawn my attention to the fact of non-Hindus offering obstruction, mis-called satyagraha, in connection with a temple in Colombo. I considered it to be so important that I have dealt with it in a Press message\(^1\) which, no doubt, you have seen. I do hope that there has been no repetition of interference by non-Hindus.

Yours sincerely,

SJT. M. MANICKAM
PRESIDENT, THE NEHRU SANGHAM
165 SEA STREET, COLOMBO

From a microfilm: S.N. 19151

509. LETTER TO G. VENKATARATNAM

January 3, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

The pain such as you refer to in your letter of 23rd ultimo is nerve’s peculiar way and it would last to the end of time.

Yours sincerely,

SJT. G. VENKATARATNAM
AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE, COIMBATORE

From a microfilm: S.N. 19150

\(^1\) Vide “Interview to the Associated Press of India”, 2-1-1933.
510. LETTER TO S. K. DATTA

January 3, 1933

DEAR DR. DATTA,

I had your letter. The way your students can help is by doing regular, steady service to the Harijans as by conducting night schools, by organizing not expensive but indigenous sports for Harijan children in which the students would play side by side with the children, by penetrating Harijan homes and finding out their difficulties and solving them where they are able to do so. These are only some of the ways. They will no doubt discover many others.

Yours sincerely,

From a microfilm: S.N. 19149

511. LETTER TO M. S. PARKHE

January 3, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I thank you for your letter and the sample envelopes.

I can say nothing about the embossed bust, because I am no judge of such things.

Yours sincerely,

SJT. M. S. PARKHE
THE BHARAT ENVELOPES CO., POONA 2

From a microfilm: S.N. 19144

512. LETTER TO C. R. KRISHNASWAMI

January 3, 1933

MY DEAR KRISHNASWAMI,

I am so glad you have sent me Low’s cartoon. I had read about it. I am sorry it came too late for Daddy to see it. I know he would have enjoyed it.

Yours sincerely,

SJT. C. R. KRISHNASWAMI
C/O “THE HINDU”, MADRAS

From a microfilm: S.N. 19154

1 C. Rajagopalachari
513. LETTER TO C. RAJAGOPALACHARI

January 3, 1933

MY DEAR C.R.,

It was stupid of me not to have discussed with you my proposal to Pandit Panchanan Tarkaratna. Now I have given it to the Press; you will therefore see it earlier than you receive this. I would like to have your opinion on it.

Yours sincerely,

From a photostat: S.N. 19170

514. LETTER TO MANIBEHN PATEL

January 3, 1933

CHI. MANI,

I do not have now a single minute to spare. I feel we should now stop writing everyday. Dahyabhai is all right now.

Blessings from

BAPU

[From Gujarati]

Bapuna Patro—4: Manibehn Patelne, p. 97

515. APPEAL TO SANATANISTS

January 4, 1933

This is an appeal to you from a fellow sanatanist, whom you are trying to reject in spite of yourself. Hard swearing at me and the libellous charges some of you are indulging in, are proof to me of your distorted love. I feel like the wife whom her many husbands profess to reject because the poor woman cannot give equal satisfaction to all her lords and masters. But not being able to reject her, (they know she, the willing slave, has served them all well enough) they screw up all the wrath they think they have, and swear at her for all they are worth. The faithful wife, staunch in her loyalty, calmly allows

1 Vide “Statement to the Press”, 30-12-1932 and “Interview to the Associated Press of India”, 2-1-1933.
the storm to pass over her, for she is utterly innocent of all the charges promiscuously hurled at her. After the storm has subsided, the wife finds herself a greater favourite than before of her husbands, who laugh at their own exacting nature, and realize that their patient companion had, after all, placed her all at their disposal. Thus will it be with me, I dare to prophesy.

There are some telling verses in a sanatan scripture. You, having brooded over the wrongs you fancy I have done to you, have put yourself in a state of rage. Those verses say: ‘Rage generates hallucination, which produces forgetfulness. The lapse of memory clouds intelligence; and failing intelligence leads to destruction.’ In your rage, you do not even know what you are doing. You have not even cared to inquire what I am aiming at.

Let me put a few facts before you. The popular definition of sanatan dharma is ‘that good conduct which people can reach’. It rules out bad conduct and bad habits, however popular they may be. Religion is something that binds. Bad habits loosen, and therefore can never be religion. Therefore, if after the issues are dispassionately put before the people, they choose a particular course which is not in itself an evil, is not that sanatan dharma? Is it not the way how the body of doctrine and conduct known as sanatan dharma has grown? Is it not a condition of its growth?

If I have taken you with me so far, then know that, in all that I am doing, there is nothing more and nothing less than that I am trying to find out how far people will go along the road which I hold to be good and which some of the scholars, who have first-hand knowledge of divine books, tell me is also good, according to their reading of them. But you protest that their reading is bad. Very well. Let the two different readings be put before the people, and let them make their choice. If they accept my reading, will that not be sanatan dharma? You need not even then accept my reading. You may adhere to your own, but in that case you will not call that sanatan dharma. You think your reading is sanatan dharma, because you assume that a vast majority of the villagers will accept it, and you reject my claim to be a sanatanist because you think it will be unacceptable to the people if it was put to them. I have put forth no insolent claim. I have wandered amongst millions for a number of years, not as a politician, but as a man of religion. They have accepted me as such, and your own hot repudiation of me is itself a proof of your having hitherto believed me to be more a man of religion than of politics. Have you not noticed that the politician will have none of me, and has always regarded me as an intruder and unpractical visionary, whilst at religious meetings I have been instinctively welcomed? And that happened even so early as 1915, when I had the good fortune to be practically an unknown man.

---

1 Bhagavad Gita, ii. 63

If you will but calmly examine the situation, you will discover that whether at Guruvayur or anywhere else, I am doing nothing but examining my claim and even yours by implication. My reading of sanatan dharma has forced me to the conclusion that caste-men have erred in treating a large number of Hindus as ‘untouchables’ and prohibiting them, amongst other things, from entering temples. You hold that sanatan dharma obliges you to regard these very Hindus as ‘untouchables’ and, therefore, they are unfit, under any circumstances, to enter the temples on the same terms as yourself. I say, let temple-goers themselves make a choice of the two readings, and you throw yourself in a state of rage, because I advance such a simple proposition. That, surely, is neither law nor common sense, nor toleration.

I am sure you would not deny me the right you have allowed to non-Hindus, that is, of preaching their opinion so long as they do not adopt illegal, immoral or otherwise questionable methods. You call my fast a species of coercion. It ill-becomes a sanatanist to describe a simple fast as coercion for, are not the pages of religious history filled with instances of fasting, whenever dharma had been in danger? I will not insult your intelligence by citing notable illustrations in support of my statement. But even the fast is off for the time being.

You then raise a hue and cry over a simple Bill such as Dr. Subbaroyan’s is, and shout that religion is in danger. But if you were to examine this Bill, it again seeks to do nothing more than ascertain the wish of the parties concerned and to give effect to that wish. If the British courts had not intervened at the instance of a sanatanist, if the mixed legislatures such as we now have, had not passed a measure of a religious character at the instance of Hindu legislators, this Bill would be unnecessary. So, you see, it simply seeks to remove the obstruction created under modern conditions, and not to introduce innovations in Hinduism. It is the British law, as it exists today, that makes it possible for a single individual to thwart the will of a whole host—may be even nine-thousand-nine-hundred and ninety-nine. It may suit you today, but if you will give calm consideration to it, you will come to the conclusion that it is a most dangerous thing both for you and for me. It is calculated to deaden religious life. Sanatan dharma, and for that matter, all dharma, must give fair play. You do not wish to play with loaded dice, as you would if this law was not altered.

I have suggested another test for the demonstration of the spirit of fair play, if there is any in you. You will not deny that there are at least a respectable number of Hindus, if not a majority, who believe that it is consistent with the Hindu religion to admit Harijans to public temples. I have therefore suggested a solution which is incapable of improvement from the fair-play point of view. It respects every prejudice and every scruple, and so far as Guruvayur is concerned and my solution is only confined for the moment to Guruvayur—it follows an established precedent, with but a variation. Harijans have been admitted from time immemorial, without restriction along with other Hindus to that temple for full one day in the year. There is, therefore nothing irreligious or extraordinary in my suggestion, that they should be always allowed, but only for certain hours in the day. You may say there is purification after this mixing of the two on the Ekadasi day. Repugnant as the idea is to me, if purification satisfied the scruples of the objectors, let there be a daily purification by all means.

All the letters I have received from sanatanists have protested that behind the sanatanists’ upholding of untouchability, there is no hatred. The writers proclaim that though Harijans are children of God, equal with all others, religion demands their separation on high moral grounds, but that it should be carried out with love and not in hatred, and therefore, they should have full rights of citizenship. Let us examine this claim in the light of the existing facts.

(1) Have you ascertained who are untouchables and why? (2) Do you know why a subtle and in my opinion cruel social arrangement has made them landless? If one happens to possess land, he cannot make the same use of it that you can. (3) He cannot make use of the innumerable public utilities that you can; and you have provided no such separate utilities. Therefore, he might die of thirst, and you would not help him to a drink of water. (4) Careers that are open to you are tightly closed against him. (5) Even medical assistance and spiritual assistance are denied to him.

If these are the fruits of love, will you not think with me that hate must be far more preferable to love? I cannot think of anything more bitter than the fruits I have pictured above.

I tell you that there is nothing like this on the face of the earth, and what is worse, bearing the stamp of religion.

I have addressed this appeal to you, which proceeds out of my soul’s agony. I ask you to share that agony and shame with me, and co-operate with me, for I have no other end to serve than to see sanatan dharma revivified and lived in its reality in the lives of millions who at present seem to me to deny it. I am glad you are awakened, but you must now work and, instead of engaging in a perfectly fruitless quarrel with me, go through the catalogue of evils that have crept into Hinduism and make a giant effort to remove them. I call your quarrel with me a fruitless effort, because I won’t be a party to it. An English proverb has it, that it takes two to make a quarrel—happily I will not help you to make up the two.

The Hindu, 5-1-1933

516. LETTER TO JAMNAEBHN GANDHI

January 4, 1933

CHI. JAMNA.

I got your letter. In what I wrote¹ I had in mind only the mutual dharma of husband and wife. I certainly did not mean that you should stay somewhere away from the Ashram for a long time and that Narandas should never visit you. But don’t you agree that he should go to see you only when the work in the Ashram permits him? And, if you yourself go for a short stay in the Ashram every six months, would it be necessary then for him to visit you? I would certainly not think of being harsh on you in a matter like this. On the contrary, I would wish to meet your wishes as far as possible. Have no doubt at all that it has always been my effort to create conditions in the Ashram so that no woman in it should feel herself dependent.

BAPU

From Gujarati: C.W. 869. Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi

517. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

January 4, 1933

CHI. NARANDAS,

I got your letter. I have already replied regarding Mahavir. I hope you got the letter. About Sitala Sahay, I want you to do what you think best. I know very well that he is extremely careless about expenditure. If the understanding with him is that the expenses for all of them should not exceed Rs. 75, I am inclined to pay him that much.

It also seems to me that we have no choice but to pay him the expenditure incurred in travelling. But in future the sum of Rs. 75 should include all such expenses. However, I cannot form the correct view from here, and, therefore, after saying what I have done, I leave the final decision to you.

I believe I have already written to you and told you that Prema, Jamnadas, Sushila and Indu came and saw me. Prema must have returned there now. Kaka has not come and seen me yet. I understand about Damodar. Let him do as he likes. What are Vanamala and Mohan still suffering from?

BAPU

PS.

Read Liladhar’s letter. Did Jivarambhai get for him the expenses for his daughters? If so, from when had he been doing so and what was the amount? If we are permitted to pay the same amount to Sharda Mandir, I think we should pay it. Write to me what you think about this and, if Liladhar happens to come to the Ashram, have a talk with him.

BAPU

[PPS.]

You will find with this letters for Jamna, Amina, Qureshi, Liladhar, Jaikor, Shanti, Anandi, Radha and Kusum.

[From Gujarati]

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./I

---

1 Vide “Letter to Narandas Gandhi”, 2-1-1933.
518. TELEGRAM TO SHAMJI MARWADI

January 5, 1933

SHAMJI MARWADI

VALPABHADI ROAD

BOMBAY

CAN SEE YOU EARLIEST ELEVENTH TWO O’CLOCK.

GANDHI

From a photostat: G.N. 5209

519. LETTER TO MIRABEHN

Thursday Morning, January 5, 1933

CHI. MIRA,

Herewith is my copy of An Optimist’s Calendar for you. The idea is not mine but Vallabhbhai’s. The author, as you will see, has sent 12 copies. I asked Vallabhbhai Patel whether he thought it worth distribution and if yes, to suggest names. He gave some names to which the addition of your name came simultaneously through our lips.

Your longest letters are brief for me. You need never think of sparing me when you are writing to me. Indeed I want your long letters when you can give them to me without effort. I wish I could give you equally long letters. But I am not a good letterwriter. And just now I can’t give you long letters even when I could write them, if I had the time. I must be content with giving you about 30 minutes near about the Thursday morning prayer time.

You do not need to think of the fast just now. Never imagine things good or bad until they stare you in the face.¹ Full surrender means full freedom from all care. A child never has care for anything. It knows instinctively that it is being cared for by its parents. How much more true should it be with us grown-up people? There you have the test of faith or detachment of the Gita, if you like.

‘Untouchables’ was chosen because some Harijans in the South objected to the new name. They suspected some design behind it. Therefore the word is a choice of necessity.

¹ Vide also “Letter to Mirabehn”, 29-12-1932.
Ba has gone and is on her way to the Ashram. Urmila Devi went yesterday. I may have a little less pressure now that the Shastris are gone. But I might have to listen to another debate on 12th instant.

My weight went up again to 103 yesterday. The saltless continues. I have no difficulty in so doing. Whether the body needs it or not is the only consideration. The elbow is no better. Of course bread and vegetables are still omitted.

Love from us all.

BAPU

From the original: C.W. 6256. Courtesy: Mirabehn. Also G.N. 9722

520. LETTER TO M. M. ANANTA RAU

January 5, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your postcard of the 1st instant.¹ I sent you a reply² to your letter of the 14th ultimo. Fortunately, I have a copy of it. I send you a copy.

I duly received your letter of the 18th which I thought had crossed my reply, and as my reply, of which copy is going herewith, is exhaustive, there was no occasion for a further reply to your letter of the 18th ultimo. I hope you will receive this letter safely.

Yours sincerely,

From a microfilm: S.N. 19172. Also C.W. 9564. Courtesy: Government of Mysore

521. LETTER TO HORACE G. ALEXANDER

January 5, 1933

MY DEAR HORACE,

I am overdue in acknowledging your and other love letters, but the work before me has to take precedence over everything else.

I am glad you were able to see Dr. Ansari and other friends, and gladder still that you were able to have that long conversation with Dr. Ambedkar. Of course he has still got that over-sensitiveness and ¹ The addressee had complained that he had received no reply to his letters dated December 14 and 18, 1932 (C.W. 9563).

terrible suspicion, but there is to me nothing unnatural in it. As I used to say so often in London, he had every excuse for the bitterness with which only he could speak whenever he spoke about untouchability or of those touchable Hindus who had anything to do with it. He has not only witnessed the inhuman wrongs done to the social pariahs of Hinduism, but in spite of all his culture, all the honours that he has received, he has, when he is in India, still to suffer many insults to which untouchables are exposed. The wonder is that he is so tolerant and forbearing as he showed himself, for instance, at the time when the Yeravda Pact was being hammered into shape. It was perfectly open to him to withstand all pressure and remain defiant, but he allowed himself to be moved by friendly pressure. He will soften if the terms of the Yeravda Pact are carried out in full by the caste Hindus, but though things are shaping well on the whole, I am experiencing newer difficulties from day to day. They do not dismay me. I was prepared for them. I knew that that little fast was not enough penance for moving to right action the great mass of Hindu humanity. Many lives might have to be given before the last remnant of untouchability is gone. But no sacrifice will be too great to remove a wrong which lies like a dead weight, not only on Hindu society, but on all who surround it. I get now and then piteous letters from Christian Indians who, being born of untouchable parents, are isolated from the rest of their fellows. Such is the contagious nature of this dreadful disease.

With our love to you and Olive,

Yours,

BAPU

From a photostat: G.N. 1418

522. LETTER TO PETER J. MASCREEN

January 5, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter. You will pardon me for telling you that my reading of Hinduism is wholly different from yours. The doctrine of transmigration does not entitle one man to claim superiority over another. Hinduism is not wholly different from Roman Catholicism, as you imagine. The fundamentals of all religions are the same.

Yours sincerely,

PETER J. MASCREEN, ESQ.
C/O J. MASCREEN, ESQ., VELLYIL PARAMPIL, TANGACHERY QUILON

From a microfilm: S.N. 19176
523. LETTER TO BIRESWAR SEN

January 5, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

You have done well in writing to me. If the analogy you have taken was correct, what you say will be quite true, but there is no analogy between a public temple and a private house. Public temples are the common property of Hindus or sects of Hindus, and members of those sects have a perfect right to regulate admission. All I claim is just that and no more, the right of the temple-goers of the existing temples to decide whether Harijans shall enter.

You are wrong also in thinking that my fast was a suicide. A suicide is when a man does an act with the intention of ending his earthly existence. I never had any such intention. To my fast was attached a condition. That you may still call it wrong is quite possible; only the fast could not be condemned on the ground you have advanced.

Yours sincerely,

SIT. BIRESWAR SEN
3 ROAD 36, ANISABAD, P. O. PATNA

From a microfilm: S.N. 19175

524. LETTER TO GANGA RAM

January 5, 1933

DEAR LALA GANGARAM,

I thank you for your letter of the 30th ultimo and a Copy of the report you have kindly sent me. I shall try to find time to go through your report.

Yours sincerely,

LALA GANGA RAM, B.A.
ADVOCATE, SIALKOT CITY

From a microfilm: S.N. 19174
525. LETTER TO KURUR NILKANTAN NAMBUDIRIPAD

January 5, 1933

MY DEAR NILKANTAN NAMBUDIRIPAD,

I thank you for your letter enclosing the considered opinion of the Government Advocate on “Usage”.

Yours sincerely,

SIT. KURUR NILKANTAN NAMBUDIRIPAD

T. C. HOUSE, TRICHUR

From a microfilm: S.N. 19173

526. LETTER TO BALDEODAS BAJORIA

January 5, 1933

DEAR BALDEODASJI

I thank you for your letter of the 29th ultimo. I quite agree with you that the Shastras are inviolate, and that religion is higher than political swaraj.

I have already explained the meaning of my fast. It cannot coerce a single sanatani Hindu who has deep convictions opposed to mine; and why do you say that I hurt the feelings of the orthodox Hindus? In this connection I would like you to study carefully my appeal1 to the sanatanists. If you will study carefully, you will discover that there can be no struggle between orthodox Hindus and the others. You should continue to strive with me till you are convinced or you have succeeded in convincing me.

Yours sincerely,

SIT. BALDEODAS BAJORIA

130 MECHUA BAZAR STREET, CALCUTTA

From a microfilm: S.N. 19171

1 Vide “Appeal to Sanatanists”, 4-1-1933.
527. LETTER TO AN ENGLISH GIRL

January 5, 1933

MY DEAR DAUGHTER,

I was very pleased to get your letter. You are quite right in addressing me as you have done. I enjoy the happiness of having thousands of daughters. You are a welcome addition to the ever-growing family; and since I, a puny mortal, cannot cope with such a large family, I entrust you all to the safe keeping of the All-powerful and Eternal Father, and so I never feel the burden of having the large family; on the contrary, only the joy of possessing the trust remains.

I see that though you are an invalid, you have a strong faith and a great heart. May your faith increase with the progress of years and may you ever find peace in the midst of pain and sorrow.

Yes, I knew when I was fasting I had the prayers of many pure souls like yourself, and that knowledge sustained me greatly.

With love,

Yours,

BAPU

From a photostat No. 13. Courtesy: National Archives of India. Also My Dear Child, p. 123

528. LETTER TO ESTHER MENON

January 5, 1933

MY DEAR CHILD,

If I am to cope with my correspondence, side by side with untouchability work, I can only dictate letters for the most part, and even then be brief. It is a fortunate thing that I have been allowed the facility. The untouchability work was going beyond my capacity in spite of the assistance I received from Vallabhbhai and Mahadev. I wish I could do justice to your long love letter. I cannot send you anything like it. I see that you have Andrews settling down in Wood brooke. You will, therefore, have him always by your side, a strong support to lean on whenever you are in need.

\(^1\) The letter was presumably addressed to Nellie Ball; vide the following item and Vol. LIII, “Letter to Nellie Ball”, 2-3-1933.

Yes, I have seen the beautiful poem of Shelley’s that you have copied for me. I hope you are keeping quite well, and I pray that the New Year has opened for you with much greater inner joy and peace than you have ever possessed.

I was glad for the letter from the ailing sister. Here is my reply ¹ to her. Though she has given me her address, as I cannot quite make out her name I send it through you.

Love from us both and kisses to the children to whom a separate postcard is going.

Mahadev sent a book for Tangai and Nannie for Christmas gift. I hope they got it.

BAPU

From a photostat: No. 117. Courtesy: National Archives of India. Also My Dear Child, pp. 97-8

529. LETTER TO RAMABEHN JOSHI

January 5, 1933

CHI. RAMA,

Your excuse for not writing to me does not impress me. When one is living outside, one gets so many experiences that one need not search for something to write about. Moreover, if you do wish to write to me, you would tell me frankly what difficulties you experienced in observing the Ashram rules when living outside and which rules could not be observed at all, etc., etc. If all inmates of the Ashram who go to live outside describe to me their experiences, think how much that would help me.

I hope you got my letter.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 5340

¹ Vide the preceding item.
530. LETTER TO PREMABEHN KANTAK

January 5, 1933

CHI. PREMA.

I got both your letters. Please do not expect a long reply from me today. The right hand has got tired and the speed with the left hand is at least four times less than with the right. Moreover, I must now spare [both] hands and save time for Harijan. Though I cannot write a long letter to you, I expect a detailed letter from you. You are the only one who gives me news about all the women.

I hope you have been following the advice1 I gave you regarding your throat.

If you learn to work peacefully and not to worry about it, you would not become weak. I know very well of course that this is more easily said than done. But I have observed that sometimes such advice is taken to heart and acted upon.

Watch Lakshmi.
How is Narmada?
How is Dhurandhar’s health?
What is the news about Kisan?

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10319

531. LETTER TO NARAYAN M. KHARE

January 5, 1933

CHI. PANDITJI,

I got your letter as well as the brief description. of Pritampur. The scheme seems to be fine. If it succeeds, it will be considered a great reform.

Some settlement must have been made about the Giri family.
Can it be said that the trouble from the Chharas has diminished?

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: C.W. 243. Courtesy: Lakshmibehn N. Khare

1 Vide “Letter to Premabehn Kantak”, 1-1-1933.
CHI. NARANDAS.

I must content myself with the fewest letters today. Tell all the people that I would have to write for Harijan and, therefore, they should not be surprised if I write fewer letters for some time. Anybody who has something to communicate may certainly write to me. In any case the women and the children must write. For them it is a kind of education too. Even if I do not write in reply, they should continue to write.

After leaving school, Rambhau’s weight seems to have increased very much. That seems to have happened to Shanti and Jaikore after they left the Ashram. Try to discover the reason for this and, if you succeed, let me know it.

Two or three correspondents have complained in their letters that stray dogs loitering in the Ashram compound find nothing to eat and, therefore, try to eat shoes, etc. If this is true, it does not mean that we should give them rotlas to eat. You should send for a cart from the pinjrapole and the dogs should be removed in it, as used to be done in the past. Probably you know that we have such an understanding with the pinjrapole. You will even find in the office the correspondence which took place on this subject.

We should certainly think what we can do in cases like . . .’s¹. If a young man who has been living in the Ashram wishes to marry, it seems to me that we cannot immediately throw him on the streets. We should be able to help them in some way. I have not thought what we can do, or whether we can do anything. The first thing to do is to consider whether we owe any duty to such persons. If we do, then we will think further and may discover some way of helping. You and other senior members may think about this and you may then let me know the view of you all.

BAPU

In all there are 18 letters, tied together.

[From Gujarati]

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./I

¹ The name has been omitted.
SUJNA BHAISHRI,

I got your letter. I am satisfied. I also have full confidence that you will do your best. By contribution I did not mean money. Even an unknown child who approaches you for money will get it. Don’t think I am so simple-minded as to ask you for money. For that, I would simply sign a hundi on you. I want from you a much bigger contribution than that. You can make it and I believe that you will.

I would not use coercion even to save a cow from the hands of a butcher. I certainly don’t wish to use it to secure freedom for Harijans to enter temples, nor to make the Harijans give up beef, meat, etc.

But the latter tell me: ‘You force us to remove dead cattle and charge us for their flesh. We, therefore, eat it and through long habit we have come to relish it. So in the first place you should not charge us for the flesh, and secondly, should make some other arrangement for the removal of the dead cattle so that we may have no opportunity to remove their flesh.’

There is some cunning in this. They know that we cannot make any other arrangement for the removal of dead cattle in the immediate future, and some of them wish to exploit the situation. They have a right to do so. This is what anyone would do.

I suggest this step to the States. The carcass of a dead cattle belongs, or should be considered as belonging, to the owner of the cattle. Since he does not arrange for the proper disposal of the carcass, it means that he renounces his right over it. It, therefore, becomes the property of the State, and the State should arrange for its disposal through Harijans by paying them suitably. The State should also use every part of the body for public good. If it does not do that, for the present it may utilize only the hide. It may fix a reasonable price for the hide, and the Chamar or the Harijan concerned should pay it, deducting from it the charge for his labour. Or, if separate cash payment is fixed for labour, he may have that and hand over the hide to the State. The State should instruct its officer to see that at the time of the skinning of the carcass, the flesh and the bones which cannot be sold or utilized in any way are buried deep at a spot fixed for the purpose. This will of course show the ignorance of the State. prudent State can make profitable use of the flesh and the bones. If you wish to know how this can be done, I will explain that in another letter. Just now, I have only suggested the easiest and simplest way, one which can be immediately adopted, of making the Chamars give up the practice of eating beef and carrion. At present, besides the hide and the flesh, the other parts of the carcass are not utilized at all. They can be easily utilized. But since that is not relevant to my purpose in writing this letter, I have saved your time and mine by not entering into a discussion of it.

I hope you will be able to read my handwriting and will get my point. I am quite well.

Why do you feel that you have grown old? Why do you believe that the body has become old, even though you continue to work? You enforce laws on others, but yourself do not obey the laws of good health. Who should punish you for that?

Vandemataram from
MOHANDAS

534. LETTER TO TOTARAM SANADHYA

January 5, 1933

BHAI TOTARAMJI,

I have seen the views expressed about the Giri family. It is a pity that we could not convert them to goodness. Do send me some time an account of your farming. I hope you are keeping well.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 2539
535. INTERVIEW TO ASSOCIATED PRESS OF INDIA

January 5, 1933

In my opinion, No. What my proposal does is to respect the prejudices of a class of temple-goers who still feel that they would be doing something wrong in associating with Harijans at the time of entering temples, and since this reform movement is not one of compulsion but conversion, my proposal is intended to respect the scruples even of one single conscientious objector. In a matter, essentially of religion, so far as it is possible one would avoid carrying out the will of the majority. By this compromise, such an objector can, during certain hours of the day, offer worship as he used to, before the reforms.

Underlying my proposal is undoubtedly the belief or assumption that at Guruvayur (because my compromise is for the present moment confined only to Guruvayur) a large majority of caste Hindus are in favour of admission of the Harijans to that temple.

If, when the compromise is accepted and put into practice, it is found to be otherwise, then, I admit the distinction is still maintained.

If on the other hand the majority remain with the Harijans, then it would be a mark of generous self-restraint on the part of the Harijans and the majority of temple-goers. If reformers are found to be in a minority, it would be a question for consideration as to whether the Harijans should take advantage of the compromise or not. After all it is the essence of compromise that it must be a half-way house between the two extreme positions without, of course, involving any surrender of principles by either party.

In this proposed compromise, the principle on behalf of the Harijans and the reformers is that the two should offer worship on terms of equality. The period during which the worship may be offered is not an essential part. The principle on the part of the objectors is that they cannot offer worship side by side with the Harijans without doing violence to their religious sense. This objection I promise to respect in its entirety, but only limit the period during which they can offer worship consistently with their objection.

The Bombay Chronicle, 6-1-1933

1 The correspondent had asked Gandhiji whether the compromise regarding entry of Harijans into Guruvayur Temple (vide “Interview to the Associated Press of India”, 2-1-1933) still retained untouchability to a certain extent.
536. TELEGRAM TO RANCHHODDAS PATWARI

[On or before January 6, 1933]\(^1\)

Mr. Gandhi has sent a wire inviting Mr. Patwari to proceed to Yeravda Jail, with a view to convincing Mr. Gandhi if he was erring.

The Hindu, 6-1-1933

537. LETTER TO JOHN MORRIS

January 6, 1933

MY DEAR FRIEND JOHN MORRIS,

I was much touched to receive your wonderful letter and the Christmas card, both of which reached me in due time. I have always treasured the memory of that early morning visit to your hospital and the handshake. It was a great sight to see you so cheerful and happy, although a permanent invalid. May you retain that inward happiness till the end of your earthly days. Mira, you may know, is also in prison, but she is quite well and quite happy. She is doing a great deal of spinning and some very useful reading. I shall send your letter to her. I think that there will be no difficulty in her being allowed to receive it, and I know that she would be as pleased as I was to have it.

Devdas whom you saw is just now touring in India in connection with untouchability work.

From a copy: C.W. 6257. Courtesy: Mirabehn. Also G.N. 9723

---

1 The telegram was in reply to a letter from the addressee, ex-Dewan of the Morvi State, requesting Gandhiji to desist from activities likely to divide every Hindu family. Shri Patwari left for Poona in response to Gandhiji’s telegram. Vide also “Letter to Ranchhoddas Patwari”, 11-1-1933.

2 The report was published under the date-line: “Ahmedabad, January 6”.

3 The addressee was blind.
538. LETTER TO MADELEINE ROLLAND

January 6, 1933

MY DEAR MADELEINE,

It was a great joy to receive your brief letter, especially as it recalled the precious days of communion with you all. It was like meeting members of one’s family.

If the events at the time of the late fast were a miracle, as they were, it was purely God’s work. I was but a very humble instrument in His hands. At no stage did I feel that I was doing anything. I simply could not do it, but when I said that it was God working through me, it was literally true, as far as my knowledge went.

But I observe from your great and good brother’s telegram to Devdas that people on the Continent had not understood the contemplated second fast. I don’t wonder at it. The whole conception seems to be so new, and yet it appears to me to be the logical outcome of a prayerful search after truth. There is no prayer without fasting, and fasting which is not an integral part of prayer is mere torture of the flesh doing no good to anyone. Such fasting is an intense spiritual effort, a spiritual striving. It is a penance and a process of self-purification. True fast generates a silent unseen force which may, if it is of requisite strength and purity, pervade all mankind. I have seen its unseen pervasive effect on a small scale but sufficiently large to know that it is a mighty force. It was in this instance an inevitable step in the prosecution of the campaign against untouchability. I would have been false to myself, to my companion Kelappan and to the cause of the Harijans, if I had faltered. At the present moment, however, it stands indefinitely postponed. Even now, perhaps, I have not made myself clear. It is difficult to do so. But I have no hesitation in saying that time will prove the correctness of the step, and in any case for me it was a call from God which I could not resist. If a further explanation is necessary, please do not hesitate to write to me.

I have been tying to find out a suitable adjective for your brother. To write of him to you as ‘Mons. Rolland’ or as ‘your brother’ sounds too prosaic and distant. To describe him as simple

1 A copy of this letter was sent to Mirabein.
2 Gandhiji’s fast of September 1932.
3 Romain Rolland
‘brother’ is too familiar and does not convey adequately the existing relationship. The two words that come to me are ‘rishi’ or ‘the sage’. They are almost synonymous terms but not identical in meaning. Subject therefore to his and your approval, I am going henceforth to describe him as ‘the Rishi’. I hope that this letter will find him in full possession of his normal health. I am afraid one dare not hope for perfect health for him. He will not give it all that chance. It would mean concentration on physical health at the expense of concentration on his historical researches, and with him historical is also spiritual, or else he would not be a rishi. Please tell the Rishi that some months ago I had for the first time his volumes on Ramakrishna and Vivekananda. The reading gave me great joy and enabled me more fully than before to get a measure of his love for India.

Mira and I exchange weekly letters. She is quite happy in her rest house. She is studying Hindi, reading the Mahabharata and the Ramayana, and at the present moment she is reading Dr. Gour’s work on Buddhism. She is keeping her health and making dietetic experiments. There is no restriction about her diet. She is therefore able to get what she requires. She gets also one or two papers and whatever non-political books she may need.

Mahadev Desai is with me. The two others you do not know personally. Love to you both from us both.

From a copy: C.W. 6258. Courtesy: Mirabehn. Also G.N. 9724

539. LETTER TO C. F. ANDREWS

January 6, 1933

MY DEAR CHARLIE,

I have your letters. I am quite sure that your work still lies there for some time at least, and when I feel otherwise, there will be no hesitation in sending an S.O.S. If you could but get a month’s quiet at Woodbrooke, there will be some rest for your nerves. I can well understand what the constant rush amid all the din and noise of railway traffic must mean to you. I hope you will have the needed time to finish your book on “The Sermon on the Mount”.

I had your two cables telling me that you were working in connection with the sanction for Dr. Subbaroyan’s Bill. Anyway till at least the fate is known, the fast stands postponed. I am hoping that you have ceased to worry about it. There can be no anxiety about anything that comes from God. Did I ever give you the rendering of a verse we have every day at the morning prayer? “Adversity is no adversity, nor is prosperity real prosperity. Real adversity consists in forgetting God’s omnipresence, and real prosperity consists in its constant remembrance.” If then the fast comes from God, where is there the slightest cause for anxiety?

Yes, I have had wonderful letters often from Esther, and she was enthusiastic over the news that you were to settle at least for the time being at Woodbrooke.

I hope that improvement in your brother’s condition has continued. I shall look forward to your next letter bringing me still better news of him.

Mira writes to me every week and has from me a weekly letter. I shall send your love to her when I write her next. I hope I shall not forget it as I do so often forget such things.

With love from us all,

From a photostat: G.N. 1306

540. LETTER TO MRS. HUNTER

January 6, 1933

DEAR SISTER,

I thank you for your letter of the 8th December last, and for telling me that you had sent to the Anti-untouchability Committee a cheque for £42-0-3.³

Please convey my thanks to all the English and other friends. I have just heard from the Committee that they duly received your cheque. I hope you have had a proper receipt from them.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat: G.N. 1532

¹ Vide “Ashram Bhajanavali”, 15-12-1930.
² Addressee’s name is supplied from the G.N. Register.
541. STATEMENT TO THE PRESS

January 7, 1933

Of late several Congressmen have been to me and told me that there is much suppressed talk among them about my action in setting up an agitation against untouchability from within the prison walls and that they do not know whether to prosecute civil disobedience or to take an active part in the campaign against untouchability. I do not wonder at the question. All I have been able to tell these questioners is this:

‘For me there is nothing inconsistent in my conduct. It would be foolish, if not sinful, for me if I did not use all the talents that my Master has given me, whenever I have the opportunity for their use. I have used all the talents, I have for civil disobedience. I found that I had also talents for the service of Harijans which I could use, and I am using them. In doing so I have abated nothing from my existing dharma or obligation. I have added service of the untouchables to it. I had therefore no question before me of making a choice. With those who are outside prison walls, the case, I know, is different. Those who are civil resisters have to decide whether to continue civil disobedience or to take up anti-untouchability work. This is a question I cannot decide for them. I am constitutionally unfit, having entered the prison gates, to guide the movement of civil disobedience in any shape or form. And even if I thought otherwise, I must not guide it as I have bound myself in honour not to take advantage of the considerable latitude given to me regarding untouchability by directly or indirectly and secretly or openly guiding the movement. Everyone therefore has to take his or her decision without reference to me.’

Having adopted this attitude, I have refused to guide even my wife and my son. My appeal for the removal of untouchability lies to every caste Hindu, be he a Congressman or other. For the resolution of Bombay arrived at during the Fast Week pledges the honour of every Hindu to remove untouchability, so far as he or she is personally concerned and to induce his or her neighbours to do likewise. The first part is a mere mental performance accompanied by personal conduct wherever corresponding action is called for. The second, that is, the propaganda part, requires everyone to make the choice between propaganda and his or her present work, where the former cannot be added to the latter.
Congressmen who are civil resisters are undoubtedly presented with a conundrum; but that would be only if they would make the vain effort of reading my mind. I think I have made it clear that I have no mind whatsoever for them. When I decided to conduct the untouchability campaign from within the prison, I had not civil resisters in my mind as such, but I had the whole of Hindu society. If that whole fails to respond, civil resisters alone cannot remove the age-long evil. But a civil resister may well feel a special call for doing untouchability work, or, he or she may think that there is no disciplined resistance left in him or her, or that the spirit of resistance is played out, or even that there is no such thing as civil resistance and that all resistance is necessarily uncivil or incivil.

It is obvious that I can offer no useful guidance in the consideration of these problems. These are all matters for those who are outside to judge. If many are filled with doubts, let them confer together and come to a decision as to the proper course to take. Those who have no doubts may be reminded of the celebrated Sanskrit verse whose exact equivalent perhaps is to be found in the equally celebrated English proverb, “Much wants more and loses all”.

M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat: C.W. 9694

542. LETTER TO HOME SECRETARY, GOVERNMENT OF BOMBAY

January 7, 1933

SECRETARY TO GOVERNMENT
HOME DEPARTMENT, BOMBAY

DEAR SIR,

I feel the need of issuing the accompanying statement to the Press. In my opinion it is well within the limits of the Government of India decision. But the Government may think otherwise. Before issuing the statement I would like to ascertain the view that they take of 1 Presumably, “यो घरवाणि परित यथ य अथुब परिषिवते।

पुरुलिण तस्म नरसन्ति अहुि नमहेवर च।”

2 Vide the preceding item.
the matter. I shall be thankful for an early reply.

As I know that there is considerable confusion in the public mind, I am anxious to let them know clearly that they must not look to me for guidance in the choice between civil disobedience and untouchability work. I feel that I owe this much to them.

Yours faithfully,
M. K. GANDHI

Bombay Secret Abstracts, Home Department, Special Branch, File No. 800(40)(8), Pt. I, p. 3

543. LETTER TO BHAGWANDAS

January 7, 1933

DEAR BABU BHAGWANDAS.

I cannot tell you what a joy it was to have you with me for so many days. It was all so unexpected and therefore a double pleasure.

I got the letter you left with Mahadev. I am struggling through the book, if only for your sake, but I have no notion when I shall be able to finish it. I feel like a thief when I steal a single minute for any other work than the untouchability business, because there hardly is a day when I have no arrears with reference to it. Therefore if you do not have anything from me about the book for some time, you will now know the reason for my silence, and if I am ever able to give you my opinion of the book, it won’t be for publication, for I may send out nothing apart from untouchability without the permission of the Government.

Yours sincerely,

DR. BHAGWANDAS

SEVASHRAM, BENARES CANTONMENT

From a microfilm: S.N. 19184
544. LETTER TO S. SALIVATI

January 7, 1933

MY DEAR SALIVATI1.

I have your letter2. The question of dividing the Hindu community, as you have seen, has already been dealt with by me. I have not yet had the time to read Mr. Iyer’s address. As soon as I do, if I have anything to say, I will tell you. You should secure a proper legal opinion on the points discussed by you. Of course, I shall make no use of Sir Chimanlal’s opinion.

Yours sincerely,

SJT. S. S. ALIVATI
C/O THOS COOK & SON, BOMBAY

From a microfilm: S.N. 19186

545. LETTER TO G. RAMACHANDRA RAO

January 7, 1933

MY DEAR RAMACHANDRA.

I had your two letters. I have gone through your scheme. You should give the names of the Managing Board with their qualifications for bringing the scheme to a successful end. In the midst of tremendous pressure, I have just hurriedly glanced through it and noticed the omission. But there is something lacking about the whole thing. I have not been able sufficiently to concentrate my mind upon it to reduce to words what is lacking. A scheme has to be so framed as to carry conviction on the very first reading of it. This does not. Perhaps the business friends would immediately spot what it is that is worrying me.

1 Correspondent of The Hindu
2 Dated January 3, 1933, and signed Salivatiswaram. It read: “I had two hours’ discussion with Sir Chimanlal Setalvad this afternoon on the temple-entry question. When I met him on Friday last, he was in full agreement with Mr. T. R. Ramachandra Iyer. Today after going through justice Ramesam’s judgment he is of the view that the Zamorin has no case. The cry that religion is in danger is absurd when three days’ entry into the temple is permitted according to the usages and custom. His argument is that if three days’ entry is allowed and constitutes no danger to religion, why not 30 days? The trustees can have purification ceremony everyday if they want” (S.N. 19157).
As to the sanatanists’ quotations from my writings, the less said the better. Many of them are distortions, some of them are half-quotations, and some are so contrary to what I have written as to amount to libel. But you or any friend who would answer these things must go to the pages of Young India and verify the quotations. I could not do so, because I have no will for it, as I know what those quotations are, and if I have the will, I have not the time. The quotation you have sent me has some resemblance to the original writing.

As regards the charges against you, I cannot understand your sensitiveness. Why do you worry if there is no truth whatsoever in those charges? You must trust to time to clear away all misunderstandings and to right every wrong conceivable. Time always runs against wrong and in favour of right.

I have secured now pure cow ghee, and I have already begun the trial of your remedy from yesterday.

Yours sincerely,

SJIT. G. RAMACHANDRA RAO
C/O THE SERVANTS OF INDIA SOCIETY
MADRAS

From a microfilm: S.N. 19188

546. LETTER TO NARGIS CAPTAIN

January 7, 1933

I have preserved your letter of 26th December so as to remind me that I had to prepare the statement you wanted. But now that I have issued my appeal1 to the sanatanists and the previous appeal2, do you think it is still necessary to give the statement? If you do, I will have to address a letter to you which you will be free to publish, because apart from your letter, I have no correspondence raising the difficulty that you have, and I don’t want to issue a statement which may not be needed by the general public. But you are not going to waive the statement in order to save my time and energy. If it is needed, the energy for it will be there.

NARGISBEN

From a microfilm: S.N. 19187

1*Vide* “Appeal to Sanatanists”, 4-1-1933.
2Presumably “Statement on Untouchability-XIII”; vide 30-12-1932.
547. LETTER TO G. D. BIRLA

January 7, 1933

MY DEAR GHANSHYAMDAŚ,

I have your letter. I hope you got the copy of Dr. Roy’s letter¹. It was, by mistake, omitted from the letter² with which the copy had to go. When we meet I would love to give you satisfaction with reference to the position I took up in my letter³ to Dr. Roy.

I think it will be better not to take up any special agitation about Kashi Vishwanath⁴ just yet. The general effort for temple-entry by way of cultivating public opinion should certainly go on, but no special effort for any particular temple just yet.

From a microfilm: S.N. 19185

548. LETTER TO PREMABEHN KANTAK

January 7, 1933

CHI. PREMA,

You are as sensitive and obstinate in nursing resentment as you are quick to get angry. How long should a daughter nurse resentment against her father? Her love will melt away her pride. How long do you intend to nurse your resentment? Probably you repented immediately after writing the letter.¹ Do you know that by writing that note you have sprinkled salt on my wound, so to say? But probably I know you better than you do yourself. At first I felt extremely unhappy. But afterwards laughed. You are not as bad as you seem to be in your letter⁴. I immediately reassured myself that, as you had sulked for some time once before and afterwards, felt unhappy for that, so you would feel sorry this time, too, and apologize. If I was wrong in ¹Vide Appendix “Letter from Dr. B. C. Roy”, 12-12-1932.

²Vide “Letter to G. D. Birla”, 15/16-12-1932.
³Vide “Letter to Dr. B. C. Roy”, 15-12-1932.
⁴Temple in Banaras
⁵Gandhiji’s letter to the addressee, dated December 25, 1932, had offended her. She had got it on her return to Ahmedabad from her visit to Gandhiji and written back to say that she would never write to him again.
⁶Presumably the one to which Gandhiji had replied on December 25, 1932 thinking so, well I should like you to apologize now. You may then write any kind of letters. I had rebuked you only for nursing hatred in your heart. However, so long as it is there, you can relieve yourself of it only before me. And if I don’t show your shortcomings to you, who else will? So long as the poison of hatred is there in your heart, you must let me drink it. Probably you do not think that it is poison. Rarely does a person know his or her own nature. I want you to know yours and wake up.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10320

549. A LETTER

January 7, 1933

There is also one more thing about all this unnecessary travelling. Even the inmates of the Ashram do not show sincere love of simplicity. This is not only your defect. Even some of the inmates who have been longer in the Ashram than you are not free from it. Nevertheless, I do wish to explain to those who will listen to me that it is our duty to live as the poorest among the poor do. We should not spend two pice where we can do with one and we should take whatever risks this may involve. We should, therefore, avoid travelling as far as possible and renounce as many facilities and conveniences as we can. We should practise such strict economy not only in money matters but also in our activities. We should be miserly even in our speech and thinking. Only then shall we be able to follow truth and ahimsa and observe brahmacharya. Try and overcome this deficiency in you. Do not answer me, nor think in your mind, that A, B and C in the Ashram spend more than you do. The path of dharma is for him who chooses to follow it.

And now for the question which you have asked. If we measure our children from our experience of the strength of our own passions, we shall never succeed in our aim. We did not have the benefit of the environment which, learning from our own experience, we have created for the children. We should have faith that it is bound to produce an effect on them. We need not worry if we see no such effect immediately. It may be that in making this experiment we shall sacrifice our own children. Still we should not lose faith. Our efforts will be rewarded with success only if we continue the experiment as long as we do not see any error in it. The path is like the flame of the sacrificial fire and, therefore, we should offer ourselves and our children as oblation in it with a smiling face. Unless we act thus in all spheres of our activities, we shall not get a vision of perfect truth, ahimsa or brahmacharya, or we shall arrive at the conclusion that one or both of those principles are wrong. There are a good many schools of thought which regard ahimsa as a wrong ideal, and we see before our very eyes how the numbers of those who look upon brahmacharya as a sin keep growing. If, despite that, we wish to demonstrate that the ideal of brahmacharya is the right one and that those who oppose it are mistaken, we shall have to learn to sacrifice a boy like . . . and a girl like . . . We cannot sacrifice the children of others. We should give that privilege to our own children. But you say that our children, too, can be regarded to have passed the test only if they remain above the waves when they are thrown into the sea of life outside. I agree with you, and that is why we have made the Ashram an arm of that sea. If we do not sink in it, we can hope to be able to swim even in the great ocean of life.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. III, pp. 22-3

550. LETTER TO NANALAL K. JASANI

January 7, 1933

BHAJ NANALAL,

I sent you a telegram in reply to your letter. I also waited for you, but you did not come. Firmness is necessary in dealing with Prabhahankar. We shall be able to manage all the others provided, the two brothers stick to the arrangement arrived at. Prabhashankar’s demand seems to be quite new to me. I am sure that the demand can never be accepted. I have not the least doubt that the arrangements fully secured the interests of Ratilal or Champa.

Apart from that trouble, there is another which has come today and is more serious. Bhai Khimchand has practically served a notice. It seems that Chhaganlal had sent for him. He knows that I greatly distrust him. He now writes and says that he has decided to join in the discussions and that he disagrees with the proposed arrangement. I have written to him strongly and advised him not to interfere in this affair, but there is little chance that he will listen to me. In my letter to Chhaganlal I have urged upon him not to associate with Khimchand, and have also told him that he might see me again if he is dissatisfied in any way. I have asked him also to stick to the arrangement, and I am hopeful that he will be amenable. You or Ratubhai should try and see if you can persuade him. Also see Khimchand if possible. Show this letter to Ratubhai and Maganlal, as I am not writing to them separately. Be firm in dealing with Khimchand also. If even then some difficulties arise, we shall face them. There will be more trouble if we lose the co-operation of both. Keep me informed. Ask Maganlal also to write to me. I shall drop postcards to him and to Ratubhai if I get time.

1 The names are omitted in the source.
2 ibid

Blessings from
BAPU

[PS.]
I got your card. Come on Tuesday. Khimchand seems to have come round. If he is sincere, we shall have one problem less.

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: C.W. 9627

551. LETTER TO FULCHAND B. SHAH

January 7, 1933

BHAI FULCHAND,
I hope you had received the letter which I wrote to you in reply to yours. I had sent a long reply\(^1\) to Balwant Sinha, but he does not seem to have received it. I do not remember his questions. If he has still not received my letter, he may ask the questions\(^2\) again. Haribhau must not undertake a fast. The entire question will be solved in a few days. Prithuraj had come and seen me. He told me that all of you were well. Chhaganlal Joshi is with me now.

Blessings to all from
BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: C.W. 9626. Courtesy: Chandrakant F. Shah

\(^1\)This is not traceable.

552. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

January 7, 1933

CHI. NARANDAS,

I got your letter and Prema’s, and also those of the others. My reply1 to Prema is enclosed. I hope that she has realized her foolishness.

What food do you eat now? What was the effect of jowar porridge and rotlas of jowar and bajri? From where do you get the ghee?

Is there any relief in the harassment by the Chharas? Does anybody visit them?

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U/I

553. LETTER TO DHARMADeV

January 7, 1933

I like your letter immensely. You are quite right in saying that no one can find what my decisive opinion on varnashrama dharma is from all my articles published so far on the subject. The reason is that in each article I express the opinion I had reached at the time.

Now I have certainly arrived at a more definite opinion and possibly the picture seems clearer. I am writing thus vaguely because until I have put into writing my views up to date, things will not be clear to me. I intend to write an article2 on varnashrama in connection with this agitation when I have some time.

[From Hindi]

Vishvajyoti, October 1959

1 Vide “Letter to Premabehn Kantak”, 7-1-1933.
2 An article under the title “Confusing the Issue” appeared in Harijan, 4-3-1933.
554. LETTER TO HEMPRABHA DAS GUPTA

January 7, 1933

CHI. HEMPRABHA,

A nice long letter from you has arrived after a long interval. Let me point out your fault which is not the one you regard as such. Your fault lies in being too greedy. “Bapu is working for the Harijans, so I must do that too.” Keep away from what Bapu has taken up and stick to what you were already doing. That too was service and consumed all your time. “Better one’s own duty, bereft of merit, than another’s well-performed.” You should be satisfied with what-ever falls to your lot. Greed even for good works is to be eschewed. “Excess is to be avoided in every matter.” You can give up Harijan service even now. You wish to work for your “Bapu”, don’t you? Bapu will be fully satisfied with khadi work alone. Your attempt to do both jobs will deprive you of both as the body will be unable to stand the strain. Khadi work involves sufficient Harijan service; be content with this. You have to be above attachment. Greed is another name for attachment, this is my reading. If you do not concur, forget it. “Do as you wish.” As you always do good you can never come to grief. God is ever with you, He will never forsake you.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 1695

555. LETTER TO SATIS CHANDRA DAS GUPTA

January 8, 1933

DEAR SATISBABU,

Please read my letter to Hemprabha very carefully. It probably applies to you just as well as to her. I know your passion for doing all that I am doing, but there must be a limit somewhere. If I am doing many things, the reason is that so many forces combine to enable me to handle them. Not only so, I merely seem to be doing them. In reality, it is Truth as God working through me. In that case, you are in no way called upon to undertake all my activities unless there is a definite clear call, and if there is such a call, you will not have to force your way to the work. It will come to you; and the way will be clear in front of you. But all this is by way of caution. You will do exactly as you like.

1 Bhagavad Gita, III. 35

Now, about the Mandali. I do not like the description of the members. Instead of saying that they hold my views on religion and politics in reverence, it would be much better to state exactly the things that they approve. A general endorsement for a large body of men and women has no value. If each were to be examined separately as to what they hold in reverence and what they will endeavour to put into practice, the answer would be different. The first sentence is all-sufficing that the members want to serve the Harijans and rouse a sense of self-respect in them. You may define the scope of service beyond rousing a sense of self-respect in them. You can say what they will exactly do, and if they are to confine their work to the service of Harijans, then it is better to say that, and nothing more. The field is vast enough to occupy several thousand workers all the hours of the day for a number of years.

Then, again, why form any Mandali at all? You say that after all it is a branch of the Pratishthan. If that be so, it is cumbrous to have a new name and a constitution. The less pretentiousness there is, the better for the work in hand.

With love,

BAPU

S.J.T. SATISBABU
15 COLLEGE SQUARE, CALCUTTA

From a photostat: G.N. 1623; also S.N. 19192

556. LETTER TO G. D. BIRLA

January 8, 1933

MY DEAR GHANSHYAMDAS,

In reply to your letter of the 4th, I sent you a telegram yesterday. I have revived my suggestion that the English edition at least should be published in Poona, and it can be published, not simultaneously with the Hindi, but on Fridays, if the Hindi is published on Mondays. The English edition may then be issued under my supervision, and would take in as much as may be necessary from the Hindi edition. All the facts and figures, reports and the like will be taken from the Hindi, and there will be original things also in it. In that case, you need not send anybody from there, if there is no one available. I fancy that I shall be able to get a local man, or more, to do the work.

I discussed this thing with Sjt. Thakkar yesterday and he approves of the idea. I then suggested that he should discuss it with you, but he said it would cause delay and that, therefore, I should transmit my views to you by the post. If you heartily approve of the idea, you may pursue it further, and may even come down here, if you think it necessary to discuss it. For this purpose you need not delay the Hindi edition. The English may come a week or two later.

I enclose herewith a telegram and a letter received from Lala Shamlal. I enclose also a copy of my reply.1

Yours sincerely,

BAPU

C.W. 7917. Courtesy: G. D. Birla

557. LETTER TO SHAMLAL

January 8, 1933

MY DEAR LALA SHAMLAL,

I have your letter. I have forwarded it to Sjt. Ghanshyamdas Birla. He can render very little assistance on the technical side. I do not know what he can do on the financial side.

I am also writing to Sjt. Shankerlal Banker.

It should be possible to provide you with an expert, but you won’t get the work that you want out of an expert sent from outside the Punjab; and there seems to me to be something incongruous for the Punjab, where hand-spinning and hand-weaving are most known, to have to go out in search of an expert in these matters, and he being

1 Vide the following item.

2 Dated January 8, 1933, which read: “Hissar District in the Punjab has been suffering from a devastating famine. . . . Harijans are suffering most. . . . approaching you in the interests of Harijans to kindly instruct the All-India Spinners’ Association to provide an expert for advising the spinners in the various centres as well as to make arrangements for the disposal of the yarn and start weaving operations in new centres” (S.N. 19155).
unfamiliar would find it very difficult to locate the spots where weaving operations may be started. An outside expert will be able only to examine and test wheels, looms and their products, but from your letter I gather that you want an organizer. I do not know a better organizer than yourself. But it is high time that the Punjab produced technical experts.

All this notwithstanding, I am sending a copy of your letter and my reply to Sjt. Shankerlal Banker and I have no doubt that he will do whatever is possible.

I should have thought that Harijans were least affected by famines, not being themselves agriculturists.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

LALA SHAMLAL
ADVOCATE
LAHORE

From a photostat: G.N. 1282; also S.N. 19190

558. LETTER TO DR. HIRALAL SHARMA

January 8, 1933

DEAR DR. SHARMA,

Amtussalaam tells me you are likely to pass through Sabarmati in the near future. I would like you to stay for a few months in the Ashram and make your experiments and at the same time observe if the Ashram-life suits you and you, the Ashram. If you cannot do this, stay, if you can, for a few days for Amtul Salaam’s treatment. She has great faith in you.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

Bapaki Chhayamen Mere Jivanke Solah Varsh, p. 15
559. LETTER TO M. M. ANANTA RAU
January 8, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter of the 5th instant. I hope you have received my previous letter enclosing a copy of the one that went previous to that.

Can you supply me with a list of all the Agamas in vogue in the South? Are they available in translations?

I am quite aware of the verse you have quoted, but you are begging the question by regarding the so-called untouchables as outside the four divisions. There is no such thing as a fifth division. The burden lies on those who object to the admission of the so-called untouchables to show that they are untouchables in accordance with the Shastras; and my objection about the definition of Shastras and their interpretation still stands.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

C.W. 9567. Courtesy: Government of Mysore

560. LETTER TO N. NARAYAN MURTHI:
January 8, 1933

MY DEAR NARAYAN MURTHI,

I thank you for your letter. I am glad that the Sree Raghunath Swami Temple of Berhampore is now really open to Harijans.

I take it that you are carrying on an agitation amongst Harijans for self-reform and for conforming to the common requisites of temple-entry—avoidance of beef and carrion, the taking of daily ablutions and the wearing of clean clothes.

Yours sincerely,

SJT. N. NARAYAN MURTHI
THE BHARATHI MANDALI
BERHAMPORE

From a microfilm: S.N. 19202

1 Vide “Letter to M. M. Ananta Rau”, 5-1-1933.
2 The letter was in reply to the addressee’s dated December 23, 1932 (S.N. 18790).
3 Managing Editor, the Bharathi Patrika, a Telugu daily
561. LETTER TO S. MAHALINGA IYER

January 8, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter¹. I refer you to the extract² I have published in the Press regarding the entry of avarnas on the Karthigai Ekadasi day.

Yours sincerely,

SJT. S. MAHALINGA IYER
TOWN HIGH SCHOOL ROAD, KUMBAKONAM

From a microfilm: S.N. 19201

562. LETTER TO G. V. KETKAR

January 8, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I thank you for your postcard. I shall go through your essay as soon as I get the time and write to you again if there is anything to say.

Yours sincerely,

SJT. G. V. KETKAR
PLEADER, NASIK CITY

From a microfilm: S.N. 19198

¹Dated January 1, 1933, which read: “In connection with the compromise proposals . . . permitting the entry of avarnas into the Guruvayur Temple, it appears it has been reported to you that the avarni classes have been allowed entry into the temple as of right on the Karthigai Ekadasi Day. I beg to bring to your notice that the report is incorrect, in view of the statement of the hereditary Chief Priest of the temple, Narayanan Nambudripad” (S.N. 19161).

²*Vide* “Letter to the Zamorin of Calicut”, 1-1-1933.
563. LETTER TO P. V. SESHU AIYAR

January 8, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I thank you for your letter1. Whilst your proposals are good in themselves, the propaganda for temple-entry has to go on side by side with the work suggested by you.

I am glad you wrote2 to Sjt. Kelappan.

It was a pleasure to see your daughter with you. Please give her my regards.

Yours sincerely,

SJT. P. V. SESHU AIYER
PERUVAMBA
PALGHAT

From a microfilm: S.N. 19159

564. LETTER TO C. RAJAGOPALACHARI

January 8, 1933

MY DEAR C. R.,

You are silent, but I know that means overwork. Here is a copy of Rao Bahadur Seshu Aiyar’s letter. There is much in his suggestions which I like. I have simply sent him an acknowledgment3 saying that temple-entry propaganda should go side by side with the working of his suggestions wherever such work is feasible.

Yours sincerely,

From a microfilm: S.N. 19197

1Dated January 3, 1933, in which the addressee had proposed that those who had favoured temple-entry, if they owned tanks and wells, should open them to the Harijans and referendum on equal treatment to Harijans in respect of use of tanks, wells, temples, etc., be taken in villages (S.N. 19158)

2On January 3, 1933

3Vide the preceding item.
565. LETTER TO K. MADHAVAN NAIR

January 8, 1933

MY DEAR MADHAVAN,

I send you herewith a copy of Rao Bahadur Seshu Aiyar’s letter for your consideration and remarks if you have any to offer.

Yours sincerely,

From a microfilm: S.N. 19195

566. LETTER TO PROMODE BIHARI MATHUR

January 8, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter¹. The practice you mention is by no means common all over India, but the remedy is surely in the hands of the householders. If they have got rid of the false notions of untouchability, they would dismiss a careless sweeper and do sweeping themselves. He can interfere with a new man coming, but he dare not prevent the householder himself from doing his own cleaning. The evil is of our own creation and therefore we can deal with it without any difficulty.

Yours sincerely,

SJT. PROMODE BIHARI MATHUR
KANUNGOYAN STREET, ALIGARH (U.P.)

From a microfilm: S.N. 19194

567. LETTER TO G. V. MAVALANKAR

January 8, 1933

BHAISHRI MAVALANKAR,

I got both your letters. I certainly did not want you to spend so much of your time in replying. I had merely forwarded² to you the letter which I had received. But your letter has certainly thrown more light on the problem.

¹Dated January 2, 1933 (S.N 19135).
I have nothing to write about the Chharas. Inform me by and by whether the step you have taken proves sufficient.

Vandemataram from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 1235

568. LETTER TO DUDABHAI M. DAFDA

January 8, 1933

BHAII DUDABHAI,

I think we ought to get Lakshmi1 married now. She gets frequent fainting fits and I believe they suggest marriage. Have a talk with her about this and then write to me. How are you getting on? How many pupils attend the school? Write to me occasionally.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 3245

569. LETTER TO PARMANANDA K. KAPADIA

January 8, 1933

The explanation about Guruvayur is contained in your own statement. It is literally true that the issue is an offshoot of the withdrawal of the Cabinet decision. Ever since I came to India, I have been impressing on people the importance of a pledge, but I see that it is not readily accepted even by persons like you. At the time of the withdrawal of the decision, a pledge was taken in the name of the people under the leadership of a great man like Malaviyaji. Can we now forget the pledge even for a moment and still hope to win swaraj? People should now act with a greater sense of urgency for the removal of untouchability than they thought it necessary to do for the withdrawal of the decision. It would not matter if they do not succeed immediately. But the tempo of this campaign should be faster than that of the movement for the withdrawal of the decision. Why do you

1 Addressee’s daughter whom Gandhiji had adopted and brought up in the Ashram believe that swaraj is something apart from the eradication of untouchability? Swaraj is not like a straight rod. It is rather like a banyan tree. The latter has innumerable branches each of which is as important for the tree as the original trunk. Feeding any of them means feeding the tree. Nobody can lay down a rule as to which of the branches should be fed when. Circumstances determine that.

Kelappan’s mistake was a very small one. If, after having persuaded him to give up his fast, I had abandoned him, I am sure all of you would have left me in the end. Anybody who forsakes an humble co-worker at a difficult hour is a man of straw.

Your other questions can be convincingly answered, but they lie outside the limits of my present freedom. If I am alive, I will explain them some other time. My fasts never spring from despair or frustration. They have their source in my undying optimism and intense faith. Nor are they as cheap as you think. If the last fast had not been postponed, I would have violated dharma. But I cannot explain all this fully just now. The fact is that I am making my experiment in the quest of truth along a new line altogether. New ideas, therefore, occur to me at every step—they are new even to me—and are placed before the nation. How can all of them be understood by the people immediately? And I also cannot explain them freely. But truth does not require many words to explain it—if in fact it requires any. It has the power of spreading by itself, like the fragrance of a flower. The difference between the two is that fragrance disappears as quickly as it spreads, whereas truth continues to spread indefinitely and with even greater speed. Since we cannot measure that speed, we make the mistake of believing that truth does not spread. You should, therefore, have patience and faith and never give way to despair.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. III, pp. 27-9

570. LETTER TO RUKMINIDEVI AND BENARSILAL BAJAJ

January 8, 1933

CHI. RUKMINI,

I got your letter. Maganlal¹ must have taught you sufficiently well how to make a letter interesting. Should I now teach it all over again? A person who desires to make his letters interesting should himself be interested in everything round him, human beings, other

¹Maganlal Gandhi, addressee’s father creatures, trees, earth and sky. He should also have an interest in writing the letter to the man or the woman to whom it is addressed. If you had such interest, you would be making new discoveries every day. You can describe your home, the street, the work which the persons whom you meet do, the members of your family, your thoughts, the letters which you receive, animals, birds and hundreds of things like that. Mirabehn writes to me every week, and no letter of hers is shorter than ten pages. And remember, she is in jail. Do you understand now [how to write interesting letters]?

_Blessings from_

BAPU

CHI. BENARSI,

What is the correct name, ‘lal’ or ‘das’? I see Jamnalalji from time to time. I will convey your message to him.

_Blessings from_

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 9151

571. LETTER TO PREMABEHN KANTAK

January 8, 1933

CHI. PREMA,

Don’t be altogether childish.

Do not forget that you have two duties. One duty is to pour out your heart to me. But one cannot do that duty mechanically. If the spring in your heart has dried up, what can you do? The other duty is to give a report of your work. That certainly can be done mechanically. Do that duty at any rate.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10321

572. LETTER TO BHAGWANJI A. MEHTA

January 8, 1933

BHAJ BHAGWANJI,

I got your letter. Though you usually write frankly, your postcard this time is not frank enough. You seem to believe that Manibhai is a bad man. If that is so, you should state it plainly. I wrote\(^1\) to you and told you that I did not know even that Manilal had complained. Do you have personal knowledge of his having complained? If you have it, your first duty as a gentleman and as a relation was to write to him. I am willing to write to him if you give me some evidence of his misdeeds. Apart from that, I don’t know what to say about your suggestion as to whom I should put up with. I do not think that I am so good a man that I should never put up with a person whom the people believe to be a bad man. I myself am a bad man, and still I live in my house. Would it be proper for me, then, if I try to sit in judgment over others? Moreover, how can a man, who daily wanders from place to place and eats and sleeps at other people’s places, afford to be too particular about the place where he puts up. I, therefore, follow one rule, namely, to regard all strangers as my kith and kin. My own relations remain so in any case. I do not agree with the principle, if you have laid down any such for yourself, that one must not lodge a criminal complaint against one’s relations, no matter what wicked things they do, but one may do so against strangers. However that may be, I ought to tell you, as I told Khimchand some months ago, that I have not the least trust in him. You may also know that Manilal is not the cause of my distrust. It is Khimchand’s own letters one after another which have increased my distrust of him. You may see now how much worry and trouble you have created for me. And still you ask for forgiveness, but I don’t think, you expect to receive it. But you are free to do whatever you like and so are safe.

\(^1\) _Vide_ “Letter to Bhagwanji A. Mehta”, 29-12-1932.

Vandemataram from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 5816. Also C.W. 3039. Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi

573. LETTER TO VIMALCHANDRA V. DESAI

January 8, 1933

CHI. NANU,

I was very glad to get your letter. Write such letters often. It would be better if you write with pen and ink.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 5758. Courtesy: Valji G. Desai
574. LETTER TO TULSI MAHER

January 8, 1933

CHI. TULSI MAHER,

I got your letter and the leaflet. Your interpretation of the dream is all right. We have so many things which are real and true that we need little help from anything seen in a dream.

I am waiting for news of your marriage. Chhaganbhai is with us at present. Jamnalalji also is in this jail, though not with me. He is in excellent health.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 6543

575. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

January 8, 1933

CHI. NARANDAS,

I got your large packet.

After reading Prema’s letter, I feel that we should get Lakshmi married immediately. I have written to Lakshmidas and told him that, if Marulia has changed his mind, he has a right to do so. I think it will also be good if Prema writes to him and tells him about the special circumstances of Lakshmi. If Marulia has changed his mind, we will think what to do.

Post the accompanying letter1 to Dudabhai. And please send me his address.

Read the letter to Liladhar and then pass it on to him. Take him back if he agrees to behave well. I leave the matter entirely to your decision. I assume that, if Liladhar comes to live in the Ashram, you will entrust him with some work.

Ask the doctor why Kusum’s injection turned septic. How long will she have to take the injections?

I had agreed with what you had written about Bhikhabhai and Balwant. I, therefore, did not say anything in reply. Thus the reason was not that I had any doubt in my mind.

1Vide “Letter to Dudabhai M. Dafda”, 8-1-1933.
There is still no letter regarding Amina’s children.

I am expecting Pyare Ali’s letter in a day or two.¹

Please let the Muslim lady who has come from Ajmer stay there for the present. Write to Pyare Ali about her. Read out our rules to her. She may stay there as long as she is ready to observe them. Tell her that, meanwhile, we are inquiring about other places where she can stay. If there is an institution for Muslim women in Ahmedabad itself, you should try to get her admitted there. Know from her all details about her, whether or not she has been educated, where she was brought up, etc.

Such cases will turn up again and again. Even if, instead of becoming what we intend it to be, the Ashram becomes only a place of refuge, we shall not lose heart. I am not sure if, by rejecting such persons who throw themselves on us, we would not be committing violence. But in taking any decision in this matter, we should of course take into account our capacity, our rules, our aim, etc. After considering all these factors, do what you think best. There is no absolute dharma in this matter. If in the last resort we have to be guided by the principles of truth and non-violence in all that we do, we must sometimes relax the rules framed by ourselves. But the final decision will be entirely yours. Treat my opinions and sermons as so much weaving of words. You may use them only for coming to your own decisions.

Prabhudas can leave Almora. We should draw a lesson from this, that the place can be looked after even if nobody stays there. And in any case the boys are there. I am sure the expenditure has come down now. I am glad that, while he is in his present very unsettled state of mind, he lives at Wardha. And, moreover, he will be marrying shortly. Let him, therefore, remain at Wardha so long as the expenditure is not excessive.

I understand what you say about a well near the river bed. I know Malik’s² goodness. Convey my vandemataram to him and ¹The following was added at this point by Mahadev Desai before the letter was despatched: “Pyare Ali’s reply was received today. He says that he cannot keep the children. Now discuss the matter with Qureshi. Bapu thinks that for the present the best thing would be that they should accompany Aminabehn daily to Sharda Mandir.”

²City Engineer, Ahmedabad Municipality
thank him on my behalf. Soniramji\(^1\) had written to me and promised to pay up to Rs. 5,000 towards the cost of a well. It is possible that I do not remember the Figure correctly, but I have no doubt about the promise itself. Write to him, therefore, for the money required for the well. He may send the actual amount spent or the amount which he had promised.

Do what you think proper about Hariyomal. I think that we have no choice but to let him stay as often as he comes. What you say about him is quite right, of course. But how can we reject him if he is so importunate?

BAPU

[PS.]

Do you still receive the annual remittance for Mirabehn? If you do, let me know what the amount is.

—from Gujarati

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./I

---

576. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

January 8, 1933

CHI. NARANDAS,

Send again, with anybody who may be coming here, a piece of leather for repairing the soles of the sandals. There is no hurry. I hope Prema has calmed down.

Teach that lady, M. Edith, everything, if she agrees to learn. Read my letter to her.

If you have heard anything regarding the Chharas, please let me know.

BAPU

[PS.]

There are in all 26 letters, tied together.

—from Gujarati

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./I

---

\(^1\) Businessman from Rangoon, a khadi worker

408 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
577. LETTER TO VALJI G. DESAI

January 8, 1933

CHI. VALJI,

I got your letter. I do not doubt that a referendum would result in your favour. Have I ever expressed such a doubt? My objection is not of that kind. I do not want to have my opinion put before the people for their judgment. It is above their opinion. The real question is what you can give to the people. Your pen should produce something unique which would still be popular. This is not beyond your capacity. If, however, you are not convinced of this, why don’t you print it? It can never be my wish that you must respect my view.

Has your health improved? Has the air of that place agreed with all of you? Give me a short account of your experience there.

I have asked Chhaganlal to go through your book.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati. C.W. 7445. Courtesy: Valji G. Desai

578. LETTER TO ASHRAM BOYS AND GIRLS

January 8, 1933

BOYS AND GIRLS,

I got your letter. One can say that there is a rush for admission. Try to acquire the art of learning even if you have no teacher. Increase your knowledge whenever you can learn it yourself. After thinking, write to me what you can all study by yourselves and what each boy or girl wants to study.

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./II

1About Ishucharita; vide “Letter to Valji G. Desai”, 19-10-1932.
579. LETTER TO HAMID QURESHI

January 8, 1933

CHI. HAMID,

I have your letter. By now you should be all right. You must improve your handwriting.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C. W. 10803. Courtesy: Gulam Rasul Qureshi

580. LETTER TO SULTANA QURESHI

January 8, 1933

CHI. SULTANA,

You have written a nice letter indeed. Why are you making no progress in the school work?

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 10824. Courtesy: Gulam Rasul Qureshi

581. LETTER TO VIMAL KISHORE MEHROTRA

January 8, 1933

CHI. VIMAL1.

Here is some coloured paper for you. I got your letter, it is good. Children like you do not need any rice. But you are used to it and if you cannot give it up, you may certainly eat it. But eat only a little quantity.

BAPU

From Hindi: C.W. 3423. Courtesy: Parashuram Mehrotra. Also G.N. 6101

1Son of Parashuram Mehrotra
582. LETTER TO AMTUSSALAAM

January 8, 1933

DEAR DAUGHTER AMTUSSALAAM,

I have your letter. Very well, henceforth I shall never ask you to follow Narandas’s advice. How fine it would be if you became well by going away somewhere! Stick to milk and fruit. You have no need to take roti and rice. Take plenty of rest. You do have warm clothes, I hope. I am writing to the doctor. It would be to my liking even if he for your sake delays leaving. Why don’t you write anything about Kudsia these days? How is she keeping now? May God make you well.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Urdu: G.N. 270

583. LETTER TO RAIHANA TYABJI

January 8, 1933

DEAR DAUGHTER RAIHANA,

You are right. I do commit many mistakes. I get absolutely no time for reading. Letters to you and Zohra are the only [Urdu] lessons I have. What can I do? That I do at least this much is something. Must a sick person like you attend a wedding? Wouldn’t the wedding have taken place if you had kept away? What sort of justice is that even sick people must perforce attend weddings? Anyway, I hope you are better now. What does ‘tuk’ mean in that bhajan? Our respects to Father and Mother. There is no letter from Hamida yet. Sohaila must be all right. Kamal Miyan must be flourishing. I acknowledge your kiss. I am treasuring them all. My kiss to Kamal and to you, too, if you wish.

Blessings from

From a photostat of the Urdu and Gujarati: S.N. 9662

1 Vide “Letter to Dr. Hiralal Sharma”, 8-1-1933.
2 In the source, up to this the letter is in Urdu; what follows is in Gujarati.
584. LETTER TO DR. MOHAMMAD ALAM

January 9, 1933

DEAR DR. ALAM,

I had your letter. God be thanked that you are steadily improving under Dr. Bidhan’s kind care. May you be completely restored.

We all often think and talk about you.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat: G.N. 26

585. LETTER TO NIRMALA B. MASHRUWALA

January 9, 1933

CHI. NIRMALA,

I got your letter. I had received the extract from Gomati’s letter which you had sent to me. But I have not yet heard from Gomati herself. If she has not written to me, ask her to write. If you can write to Kishorelal immediately, tell him that I have written a postcard to him today. It is only about the use of fenugreek seeds and the name ‘Sukruta’. I hope you received my previous letter1. It contained messages for Kishorelal and Gomati. You need not, out of compassion for me, refrain from writing to me.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 1007. Courtesy: Nirmala Shroff

586. LETTER TO K. M. MUNSHI

January 9, 1933

BHAI MUNSHI,

I have preserved your letter of the 23rd. Are you better now? What treatment is being given to you there? Does your diet include fruits?

Others who do not know me may believe, but how can you 1Vide “Letter to Nirmala B. Mashruwala”, 2-1-1933.

believe that I would be such a spendthrift as to risk my life without any reason? Even when you have a doubt, you should not let it grow in your mind without putting it before me. Won’t you be my advocate and tell people this: ‘Till we have discussed the matter with this old youngster, we should not form an unfavourable opinion about any of his steps?’ Doesn’t law also require this?

Sardar read your books with great interest. I will certainly read those two, and try to read the others.

Regards from us to all co-workers.

Blessings from

BAPU

From the Gujarati original: C.W. 7524. Courtesy: K. M. Munshi

587. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

January 9, 1933

CHI. NARANDAS,

You will find with this a letter from Kanhaiyalal to Ghan-shyamdasji. Do you know anything about it? If you do not, it was improper for an inmate of the Ashram to have applied for help to an outsider, particularly to a friend of the Ashram. Kanhaiyalal him-self may not have been aware of any impropriety when writing the letter, but this incident makes it necessary to warn everybody. It is assumed that those who join the Ashram do so in a spirit of renunciation. Hence, while they live in the Ashram, they should not seek help from outside even for their work of service. When giving such a warning to the inmates of the Ashram, it is not necessary to mention Kanhaiyalal’s name. I am writing to him too.

I have already written to you suggesting that Jamna should try fenugreek seeds. A letter from Kishorelal just received gives a little more information. The discovery about the efficacy of these seeds is his own. He eats about 20-25 seeds in the morning and the same number in the evening. He roasts them till they become red. He says that they may even be eaten fried in ghee. There is a possibility that they may bring about constipation. If that happens, Jamna may reduce the quantity. If 20-25 seeds have no effect, she can increase the quantity up to 50-60 grains. Kishorelal had started with that number. The asthma was cured, but he reduced the quantity because he found that the seeds had caused constipation. Jamna should first try the seeds without frying them. If necessary, she may afterwards try fried seeds.

1Vide “Letter to Narandas Gandhi”, 1-1-1933.

Mahadev tells me that this experiment is worth trying on Chimanlal and Babu also.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./I

588. LETTER TO SHANKERLAL BANKER

YERAVDA.

January 9, 1933

CHI. SHANKERLAL,

Sarayubehn is in Bombay at present. She will be doing the untouchability work for the present. Therefore she has been detained in the hope that she will be able to tour Kathiawar and Gujarat. I think it would be well to ask her to go round the villages of Gujarat and some cities like Ahmedabad, etc. If all of you think it proper, send me a telegram. Send me the programme and write to her also. I have written to Ramjibhai about Kathiawar. So you may consult him and decide whether to make the programme comprehensive or have it for Gujarat only.

Blessings from
BAPU

From the Gujarati original: S. N. 32730

589. LETTER TO A SANATANI

January 9, 1933

Truth, exclusive devotion to non-violence and cow-protection are the chief points of Hinduism. One who neglects them is no more a Hindu. I have felt no need for the sacred thread and no one should be asked to wear it. One who has lost the qualities of a Brahmin no longer deserves the prerogative of a Brahmin. Why should such nominal Brahmins be fed? Only the common simple mantras are essential in the wedding ceremony. They have been given in Navajivan. I have no faith in the custom of shraddha as it is observed these days.

[From Hindi]
Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. III, pp. 29-30

590. LETTER TO GIRDHAR SHASTRI

January 9, 1933

I have your letter. I do accept the Shastras as authoritative. But no one gives me a list of the works and my observation so far does not even suggest the possibility of such a list. That is why the Gita is my refuge. I try to be courteous in whatever I undertake. But I try harder to make courtesy consistent with truth. What more can I say?

[From Hindi]
Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. III, p. 30

591. LETTER TO NANASAHEB KHASGIWALE

January 9, 1933

I believe in the injunctions of the Shastras, as also in custom and the practice of respected men and women. But the inner voice springs from the cumulative effect of all these. It is the moving force behind the whole world. It is no exclusive virtue or defect of mine. My inner voice may certainly be imperfect, as everybody else’s. That is why man has been regarded as the embodiment of errors.

If there truly exists an untouchable class in the human race I am striving to be born only into that and no other.

My whole inclination is towards a revival of the varnashrama dharma; I have no doubt about it.

To spend thought or anything else on an irrelevant matter is against my nature.

Devotion to Krishna is the keynote of my life; and sanatan dharma is my very life-breath. One day those who at present call themselves sanatanists will accept the truth of this avowal of mine.

[From Hindi]
Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. III, p. 30

1Vide “With Bare Religious Rites”, 7-3-1926.
592. LETTER TO PRABHAVATI

January 9, 1933

CHI. PRABHAVATI,

I am told that the telegram I sent about you has reached you. I was expecting a letter from you to follow it but nothing has come. My letters of course do not reach you. From a letter from Krishna received only today I learn that you are having fits. I am very sorry. I shall enquire about your condition from the Superintendent too. You must be getting letters from Jayapракash. He is always cheerful. Chhaganlal Joshi has joined me now and we are all doing well. My weight is 103 lb. and the diet consists of 2 lb. milk, mosambis, oranges, dates and papaya. And of course there is honey. I maintain good health on this. The pain in the elbow is there but that is an old story. There is no need at all to worry on that account.

I have to devote a great deal of time to Harijan work and the government have sent Chhaganlal Joshi to assist me in this work.

How is Kanta? Who else is with you? What is your diet these days?

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 3431

593. LETTER TO BEGUM MOHAMMAD ALAM

January 9, 1933

DEAR SISTER,

I have your letter. It is incomprehensible why my letters do not reach you. Neither of the two letters addressed to Calcutta and Lahore reached you. The address on both was exactly the one you sent. Let us see the fate of this letter. The news about the improvement in Dr. Saheb’s health is immensely pleasing. May God make him perfectly healthy. The country is in great need of his services. Keep me posted with all the news even though Dr. Saheb is able to write. Your letters take the place of Urdu lessons for me. Raihana and Zohra are already giving me such lessons. We are all well. We are four now. The 1The original has “1932”, which is evidently a slip.

Government have sent Chhaganlal Joshi from the Ashram to assist me. I have to devote a lot of time for Harijan work these days.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Urdu: G.N. 26

594. LETTER TO R. V. PATWARDHAN

January 10, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter¹. I think you have mixed argument with curses and you have addressed your argument to a state of things that does not exist. I would therefore ask you to adopt a dispassionate attitude and study this question as a student studies and works at problems. If you will do that, many of the eight points that you have raised will fall to pieces. For instance, when you have studied the question dispassionately and properly you will discover as to your first point that there is no question of ‘molesting’ a single Hindu temple; as to your second point that there is no legislation attempted in the matter of temple-entry, what is attempted is to remove an artificial barrier created by a foreign Court of Law; as to the third, that you should say with me those who seek equity or justice should come with clean hands.

Yours sincerely,

From a microfilm: S.N. 19210

¹Dated December 9, 1933 which read: “I solemnly warn you that you do not appear to be acting as a God-fearing Hindu; and although you may succeed in forcing the entry of the untouchables into our temples . . . all honest sanatanists will always regard your act as a sacrilegious deed becoming an atheist . . .” (S.N. 19206).
595. LETTER TO SARAT CHANDRA GUHA

January 10, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I thank you for your letter of the 2nd instant. Upon hurried reading I can find nothing to suggest and you will excuse me for not giving more concentration to your letter. I have no spare time.

Yours sincerely,

KALIGHAT, CALCUTTA

From a microfilm: S.N. 19212

596. LETTER TO N. H. PURANDARE

January 10, 1933

MY DEAR PURANDARE,

I have your letter. I am sorry for the mistakes that still remain in your book. As to the remuneration, I have accepted, without demur, the figure mentioned by Haribhau. I hope that the amount has been paid to you already. Five copies of any new edition for the translation should certainly be given to you. I hope you have five copies of the first edition. I don’t like the spirit of the rest of your letter. There never can be any question of anyone making a personal profit. It is not practicable to charge only the cost price. To charge the cost price would be to ensure a loss, because many copies will have to be given free of charge. There would also be lying a dead stock. Some commission will have to be paid to book-sellers. I could understand all that you have said in your letter if you were dealing with a comm-

1. The addressee, Secretary, Removal of Untouchability Tour Party, Hindu Mission, Calcutta, in his letter (S.N. 19136) had given an account of the untouchability work being done by the Hindu Mission and had stated that untouchability removal oath was being administered “at the instance of the Hindu Mission through their own workers and preachers throughout Bengal and Assam”. In the end he had sought Gandhiji’s suggestions “for further work”.

2. Based on the addressee’s lectures and published by the Maharashtra Prantik Mandal; the addressee in his letter dated January 7, 1933 (S.N. 19181) had complained about a number of mistakes in the book in spite of his having already pointed them out at the proof stage. The book was a refutation of the orthodox case in favour of untouchability.
mercial firm. Please draft and let me have the letter you want for five books and I shall get it signed by Sjt. A. V. Thakkar as Secretary of the Servants of Untouchables Society.

Yours sincerely,

Sjt. N. H. Purandare
Poona 2

From a microfilm: S.N. 19209

597. LETTER TO U. GOPALA MENON

January 10, 1933

MY DEAR GOPALA MENON,

I have your letter. Of course permission to Harijans and others during the non-pooja hours is perfectly useless. The permission must be during pooja hours. As a matter of fact, where there is a will, there is a way. Each pooja time may be divided, half of which would be for the general public and the other half for the objectors. The period allotted to each will be regulated according to the numbers, or, as you suggest, some pooja periods may be allotted to the general public and some to the objectors: but of course it may be that in working out details, my suggestion is impracticable. If it is found to be practicable, the objection as to keeping up untouchability can easily be met. I have already partly dealt with it through an Associated Press message. As to the freedom of Ekadasi, I have already quoted from the judgment you refer to in my letter to the Zamorin which has been published already.

Yours sincerely,

From a microfilm: S.N. 19213

1The letter was in reply to the addressee’s dated January 5, 1933 (S.N. 19163).
2The source has “made out”.
3Vide “Interview to Associated Press of India”, 5-1-1933.
4Vide “Letter to the Zamorin of Calicut”, 1-1-1933.
598. LETTER TO S. PONNAMMAL

January 10, 1933

DEAR SISTER,

I was very much touched by your letter¹. I am still unable to know why you should be getting only Rs. 8 per month. Is it possible for you to see Sjt. K. Madhavan Nair? I am writing to him and sending him a copy of your letter. He may even find you out instead of putting you to the trouble of going to him. If it is not a matter of much distance between Calicut and your place, the matter is simple. If it is a long distance to be covered, it may be difficult for you. I quite see that full use is not being made of your talents. Is your letter your own composition?

Yours sincerely,

S. PONNAMMAL
PATTERI HOUSE
CALICUT

From a microfilm: S.N. 19211

599. LETTER TO K. MADHAVAN NAIR

January 10, 1933

MY DEAR MADHAVAN,

I enclose herewith a copy of a letter from Mrs. Ponnamomal and a copy of my letter to her. Do please try to see her, and if you feel that she is a deserving woman, she ought to be relieved of the burden that she has, and her very simple wants must be assured to her. She seems to me to be a worker of a rare type, but from this distance I may be exaggerating her merits. You will please guide me.

Yours sincerely,

From a microfilm: S.N. 19207

¹Dated January 3, 1933 in which the addressee, a widow teaching in Lady Chandavarkar Primary School, Calicut, at Rs. 8 per month, had explained that she found it impossible to carry on with only Rs. 8 per month. The letter had explained that after school hours she had been teaching poor people music, folk dances and reading and writing, etc., and had added: “I feel that if I am relieved of my school work and if there is help for my personal living expense which is very little, and house-rent, I might be able to show some really good work” (S.N. 19186).
DEAR LALA GIRDHARILAL,

I have your letter. I am sorry to learn that the improvement has not been continuous and that even the diagnosis may be incorrect. You will please tell me what Dr. Deshmukh said when he last saw you.

I wish you had not worried about untouchability. The first three points deserve consideration. About the 4th, you should wait and watch my Statement. I have no such fear as you have. Inter-dining and inter-marriage would be most dangerous interpolations. They can never form part of a campaign against untouchability, but they will be part of a campaign against unnatural caste distinctions and caste conception. It is a reform which must stand altogether separately.

Nos. 7 to 13 are suggestions outside the scope of my consideration. Actual execution of the reform I cannot control from here. If you have energy for all these things, you should write to the secretary of the local organization, but I would warn you against putting any strain upon what little energy might still be left in you. You should conserve it for regaining your past health and not spend it up from day to day.

Yours sincerely,

LALA GIRDHARILAL
ESPLANADE ROAD, FORT, BOMBAY

From a microfilm: S.N. 19208

1 Dated January 7, 1933. It contained the following four points: “(1) If all leaders and prominent men who are interesting themselves in the movement made it a point, when visiting places, to live or stay with Harijan people only, it will be a practical step and very effective in its results. . . . (2) Similarly when Harijan leaders and workers travel they should be made guests of high-caste Hindus and not allowed to stay with their own class as it is understood, and as is the general practice now. (3) This qualified separate admission to temples of Harijans at separate hours has the stamp of inferiority complex about it. The purification is another distinction difficult to gulp down (4) Equal emphasis should be laid on inter-dining and inter-marriages which automatically result in temple-entry . . .” (S.N. 19183).

2 Vide “Confusing the Issue”, 4-3-1933.
601. LETTER TO D. N. SHIKHARE

January 10, 1933

DEAR MR. SHIKHARE,

I have your letter enclosing a summary of the discussion you had with me about temple-entry. I now enclose the corrected version.

Yours sincerely,

SJT. D. N. SHIKHARE
THE KESARI AND THE MAHRATTA OFFICE
POONA 2

From a microfilm: M.M.U./XXII

602. LETTER TO PREMLILA THACKERSEY

January 10, 1933

DEAR SISTER,

There is no need for pomegranates for the time being. Sardar has stopped eating them for some time. I will not fail to write to you and ask you to send them when they are needed.

Blessings from

MOHANDAS

From a photostat of the Gujarati original: C.W. 4827. Courtesy: Premlila Thakersey

603. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

January 10, 1933

CHI. NARANDAS,

Kanaiyalal and his wife came and saw me. Kailas did not come. I was glad that the former two came. I got the piece of leather. It is too thin for the soles, and certainly so for the heels. I didn’t require any leather for repairing the upper side of the sandals. I got the slivers too. We have several copies of Satyarthaprakash in the Ashram. Send

In his letter dated January 8, 1933 (M.M.U./XXII), the addressee had sought Gandhiji’s permission to publish the interview with him on “last Thursday”.

422 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
me one of them with anybody who may be coming here. I want the edition which contains 14 samullasas.¹

Since Pyare Ali cannot take charge of the children, let Amina take them with her to Sharda Mandir.

BAPU

[PS.]
Letters on Amina, Champa and Manekbehn are enclosed.

[From Gujarati]

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./I

604. LETTER TO HARIBHAU UPADHYAYA

January 10, 1933

CHI. HARIBHAU,

Why have you written or dictated no letter to me? You seem to be taking a long time to recover after the operation. How are you now? What was the trouble? How is the nursing? What is the news about Rohit Mehta?

I often see Jamnalalji. He keeps good health.

Blessings from

BAPU

From the Gujarati original: C.W. 6074. Courtesy: Haribhau Upadhyaya

605. LETTER TO AMINA QURESHI

January 10, 1933

CHI. AMINA,

Pyare Ali is not in a position to take charge of the children just now. My advice, therefore, is that you should go to Sharda Mandir with the children. There you yourself may give them instruction in Islam. The work is quite easy. Teach them to recite the Kalma. Teach namaz. Tell them some stories. Teach them the books for children published by the Islamia college. That will be enough. For the rest, the rules of discipline and good manners are the same everywhere. Do not give up the practice of Urdu. The children will serve you as a protective wall. Spread your fragrance in Sharda Mandir. Mix with everybody. Do not be a burden on anyone. Keep your body light and take willing part in the school work.

¹Chapters
²At Ahmedabad

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C. W. 10793. Courtesy: Gulam Rasul Qureshi

606. DIARY, 1933

JANUARY 1, 1933, SUNDAY

Letters—Lady Thackersey, Ambaram, Jhinabhai, Vidyadevi, Shyamnarayan Kapur, Ramdas, Jamnalalji, Haridas, Gokaldas, David. [About] untouchability—Vasukaka Joshi, Suryakant, Subbaroyan, the Zamorin, Ghanshyamdas, Chintamani, Hiralal Nanavati.¹

From the Gujarati original: S.N. 19337

607. STATEMENT TO ASSOCIATED PRESS

January 11, 1933

I observe that there is a lot of misunderstanding about the compromise proposal¹ I have made in connection with the temple-entry question, and I see that there is dissatisfaction over it even among Harijans. That dissatisfaction is quite natural. Where inequality is rampant, anything that savours of it is immediately suspected and condemned. I have however every faith in my proposal and in spite of the criticisms directed against it, I see no reason to withdraw it. If any single temple is opened according to that proposal, it would be found not only workable in practice, but that Harijans, who are now suspecting in it inequality and a surrender to orthodox opinion, will see that, while it takes that opinion into full account, it surrenders nothing of the principle, namely, that Harijans should be admitted to temples, if at all, on terms of absolute equality with the rest of the Hindus. But since there can be no compulsion in religion, prejudices, which amount to belief for those who hold them, ¹The remaining pages of the exercise book are blank.

²Vide “Interview to the Associated Press of India”, 2-1-1933. must be respected, in so far as that respect is consistent with the main thing. There is then needed a formula whereby such objectors will not be deprived of the religious consolation to which they are entitled. That can only be done if there is some period fixed during which they can have their darshan in isolation.

However unreasonable it may appear to reformers, as it does to me, the sentiment undoubtedly exists that the efficacy of the idol is diminished, if not altogether destroyed, by the presence of certain people in the temple in which it is installed. It is not possible to make the people who harbour that sentiment give it up by force of law or arms. That can only disappear either through an appeal to reason or through experience gained from those who act contrariwise, and yet do not suffer any misfortune which can be directly connected with their giving up that particular sentiment. I am sure that Harijans do not want to cause violence to the feelings of any single person in their legitimate demand to vindicate their status in Hinduism.

This is a period of grace. Caste Hindus are on their trial. Either the Resolution arrived at last September at the meeting in Bombay has the backing of the general mass of the caste Hindu or it has not. If it has, the temples must be voluntarily flung open to Harijans and if the majority of the temple-goers show their desire in no unmistakable terms for such admission, the Resolution must be regarded as fully vindicated. Cent per cent assent is almost an impossibility in human affairs, and in a matter of religion dissenters ought to be taken into consideration. My proposal does that, and nothing more. It is an acid test for all. The dissenters are in a minority, and sincere in their conviction but tolerant to their opponents. After having made every provision for themselves, they would make equal provision for their opponents. If the reformers be equally sincere and tolerant towards the dissenters, they will make adequate provision for the dissenters’ being able to offer worship according to their wont. If Harijans have no desire whatever to coerce anybody so long as they can exercise equal rights with the reformers, they should have nothing to complain of at all.

My proposal is undoubtedly based on the assumption that upon

1 Sight of a person, place or thing considered holy a referendum, a large majority of the temple-goers would vote for the admission of Harijans to temples, and that, therefore, they would visit temples only during the joint hours, and would not visit them during the time set apart for the dissenters. If, in practice, it is discovered that the reformers are a negligible quantity, they would naturally abstain from making use of such temples and if the majority of the temples show such an unfortunate minority they will rightly conclude that the Bombay Resolution has not the backing of the caste Hindus.

But say Harijan friends: ‘What about the purification against which you have so often written and spoken?’ Of course, I am as much against purification now as ever. If purification remains a general law, then untouchability remains. But purification under my proposal assumes a different shape altogether. Do we not do many things in order to respect the sentiments of our friends and tolerate many more? The question before Harijans, before Hindu society and before the whole world is whether caste Hindus, as a whole, have undergone a change of heart, and whether they are ready to abolish untouchability as it is practised today. If the majority of the caste Hindus vote for its abolition, surely, it is the duty of both reformers and Harijans to accommodate the minority that may not see eye to eye with the reformers, when their difference is based on what is to them a deep religious conviction. Mutual toleration is the law of the human family, and what my proposal has done is to rigidly enforce that principle.

I would like, in one sentence, to emphasize the fact that the present campaign is one against untouchability as it is practised today in Hindu-ism, and not against untouchability which is, in some shape or form, common to mankind. Such untouchability does not attach to a person, but to his work or to his conduct. It is not sought to gain complete freedom from the laws of cleanliness and hygiene and the like, the observance of which is obligatory on every temple-goer, even at the present day. But what is insisted upon is that every Harijan who conforms to these laws is entitled to admission to all public temples on terms of equality with the rest.

_The Hindu, 12-1-1933_
MY DEAR GHANSHYAMDAS,

I am permitted to see Jamnalalji as often as may be necessary and to discuss untouchability matters with him. He was reading the constitution of the Society and these are the pertinent things to which he drew my attention:

The resolution is wrong. It is not in accordance with the resolution as it was passed by the Conference. There is nothing in the resolution as it is given in the pamphlet about temple-entry. You will see the correction made in my statement of the 30th December. How the incomplete resolution came to be taken I do not know. The correct text appears in The Times of India of the 26th September. This point was first noticed by me, but I forgot all about it till the resolution was required for my statement. Then too I forgot to write to you about it. But I noted down the points that Jamnalalji brought forward, and this was the very first.

The second is that whereas the resolution about electorate is described as having been passed by the Conference, the resolution about the social and religious rights of Harijans is described as having been passed by a meeting of Hindus, five days later. Jamnalalji therefore says that as the text reads, it will appear as if it was a resolution passed by a meeting of Bombay Hindus only and not by representatives of all-India Hindus. If so, the Anti-untouchability League could not be established for all India by a Bombay Hindus'

1 Gandhiji was in this Prison from January 4, 1932 to May 8, 1933. This place-name is not reproduced in subsequent items.
2 Harijan Sevak Sangh (Servants of Untouchables Society); originally called the All-India Anti-untouchability League, founded on October 26, 1932, in pursuance of the resolutions of an all-India Conference of caste Hindus and a public meeting convened by them in Bombay on September 25 and 30, 1932, respectively, under the chairmanship of Madan Mohan Malaviya; G. D. Birla became the President and A. V. Thakkar the Secretary.
3 On the postponement of fast on the question of opening of the Shri Krishna temple at Guruvayur to Harijans; vide “Statement on Untouchability-XIII”, 30-12-1932.
4 Ratifying the Yeravda Pact; vide before “Agreement between Depressed Classes Leaders and Caste Hindu Leaders”, 10-11-1932. meeting.

The third point he made was that there is nothing in the creative resolution authorizing the All-India Anti-untouchability League, as it was originally called, to alter its name.

The fourth was that the resolution describing the powers of the League or the Society was not exhaustive enough.

The fifth was that there was no Treasurer appointed, and that it was not clear as to who would have the control of the funds raised by provincial organizations.

All these points deserve consideration. I could not throw much light upon them, except that I told him that you retained in your own person the Treasurership purposely in the initial stages.

I take it that you are collecting statistics somehow or other as to the opening of temples, wells, etc., throughout India.

Yours sincerely,

From a photostat: S.N. 19226

609. LETTER TO G. D. BIRLA

January 11, 1933

MY DEAR GHANSHYAMDAS,

I have your letter of the 6th instant. I am surprised that Kanhaiyalal¹ should have written to you. I do know him well by correspondence. He has been in the Ashram sent by Soniramji. He frequently sends me questions for solution. He should not have written to you without reference to me or at least to Narandas. You need not think of him any more.

Yours sincerely,

BAPU

From a copy: C.W. 7918. Courtesy: G. D. Birla

¹ Whose letter was forwarded by the addressee, with a request to consider how his services could be utilized
610. LETTER TO G. D. BIRLA

January 11, 1933

MY DEAR GHANSHYAMDAS,

I have your doleful letter of the 7th January,¹ but you are not going to be disappointed or discouraged. What you describe is the common lot of most organizations. The best in a man, as also the worst, is drawn out when he is in charge of such organizations. The best is drawn out when he works with sufficient detachment.

Yours sincerely,

BAPU

From a copy: C.W. 7919. Courtesy: G. D. Birla

611. LETTER TO C. Y. CHINTAMANI

January 11, 1933

DEAR MR. CHINTAMANI²,

I have your letter. No excuse necessary for dictating your letter. I am not so vain as to think that I am the only hardworked and hard-working man in all India.

The pamphlet³ about ‘Fasts’ is being sent herewith. You can keep it as long as you like, and keep it altogether, if it is of use to you.

Yours sincerely,

SJT. C. Y. CHINTAMANI
17 HAMILTON ROAD, ALLAHABAD

From a photostat: S.N. 19227

¹ The addressee had written to say that both Arya Samajists and the depressed classes in Delhi were torn by rivalries.
² Editor of The Leader
DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter\(^1\) enclosing three cuttings for which I thank you. I take them in order of their dates.

That of the 28th December calls for no reply.

That of the 29th, that is, the one on the postponement\(^2\) of the fast has led you to grant me an indulgence, because you have been averse to the method of the fast. But I must not exist on indulgences from friends, especially in religious matters. Fortunately for me, your indulgence is due to an oversight of a material condition, whose happening was to automatically postpone the fast, and this was some legal difficulty which could not be got over within the time. This difficulty came in the shape of the want of Viceregal sanction. If I had taken the fast on the 2nd of January, I am afraid that you would not only have condemned the fast as such but you would have condemned it as coercion against the Government of India. So, you see that the fast is postponed, not because I have realized its uselessness, but because I have realized the sinfulness of taking it in spite of the supervening of a contingency that had been contemplated and provided for.

Your last article, that is, of the 4th instant, calls for a fairly large reply, but I shall not attempt it, if only because I have to economize time just at present. I see in my proposal no surrender whatsoever of principle. In this campaign I have endeavoured, as much as a Harijan by adoption can, to put myself in his position, and I say to the objectors: ‘If you are polluted by my presence or by my touch, I am quite prepared to consent to a separate period being reserved for you to offer worship by yourselves. give you the same credit for sincerity that I claim for myself. You are as much entitled to worship in the temple as I think I am. Therefore you offer worship in your time, and I shall offer worship, along with the reformers, during the period

\(^1\) In which the addressee had written: “I feel you have let down the reformers by your compromise formula, and I hope you will excuse me when I say that the impression in enlightened circles in South India is that you have played into the hands of orthodox Brahmans.”

\(^2\) Vide “Interview to the Associated Press of India”, 29-12-1932 and “Statement on Untouchability-XIII”, 30-12-1932.
reserved for us, and since by tradition you have been taught to think that the efficacy of the idol is diminished by my entering the portals of the temple gate, though I do not believe in it myself, let the priest perform the purification ceremony.'

This is how I rehearsed the whole thing to myself before I made the proposal to Pandit Panchanan Tarkaratna. Of course the proposal would not be worthy of consideration if there was not a big assumption underlying it, namely, that the objectors would be in a negligible minority.

My proposal, therefore, is an effective and acid test of the sincerity of all concerned. If the objectors including the Shastris are sincere in their protest on behalf of what they consider to be sanatana dharma, they would jump at the proposal. If the reformers and the Harijans are sincere, they should hail the proposal with joy, and if it is accepted, regard it as a vast step towards the fruition of the reform. If it is found by experience that the caste Hindus who offer worship during the joint period are themselves a negligible quantity, it would be a defeat for the reformer, and it would be a sign that the Harijans should abstain from entering those temples where they are unwelcome visitors. They would not then have to go to the temples as beggars before caste-men. They will go, if they go at all, as fellow-Hindus, welcomed by an overwhelming majority of caste-men who would not consider themselves in any way polluted by the touch of the erstwhile untouchables.

Any other solution would be tantamount to compulsion. You will recall what I said in one of my previous statements that wherever the majority of the temple-goers are against the admission of Harijans those temples should not be visited by them, and where the majority was composed of reformers, the possession should go to them along with the Harijans and that the minority should build another temple for themselves, if they so choose; but in the course of argument with Pandit Panchanan Tarkaratna, I discovered a flaw in that proposal. It is an undoubted fact that—whether it is right or wrong is not the question—thousands of people attribute particular sanctity to their favourite temples. That sanctity is for them an untransferable thing. Sanctity handed down from ancient times cannot be imparted to a new image and a new temple by the mere will of man, and therefore the proposal I have now published dawned upon me, and the proposal to be of any value has to carry within the consent to purification, again out of scrupulous regard for the religious sentiment of the minority.

1Gandhiji’s compromise proposed to satisfy caste Hindus. Vide “Interview to the Associated Press of India”, 29-12-1933.

You will sympathize with my reasoning, even if you may not agree with it, when you realize that ahimsa is a fundamental creed with me and enforceable under every conceivable circumstance. That I may fail miserably in reducing my creed to practice on all occasions does not detract from the creed, and is irrelevant to the discussion; and my non-violence would not permit me to do violence to the feelings of a single devotee who has been accustomed to visit a particular temple. I would also ask you to remember that, whatever may be said to the contrary, for me the whole of this campaign against untouchability is a purely religious campaign. It is a movement of a big reform in Hinduism which, as I have said so repeatedly, must die if untouchability as we know it today is not eradicated. I must also confess that I have a profound reverence for the Hindu Shastras as I have conceived them; but I cannot impose my conception upon others by force. I must let it work its way in the midst of competing interpretations and conceptions. Therefore wherever possible, my attitude would be to make provision for all other conceptions and interpretations.

If you would bear these things in mind, you would not only understand my position but you will support me whole-heartedly, and I want your support. I want the support of every Hindu. Your paper represents I know a very large body of advanced Hindu opinion and since you are taking the trouble of trying to understand me, I am not going easily to give up the attempt to enlist your full support.

You have asked me quite unjustly “whether he (i.e., I) would be willing to satisfy the conscience of conservative seekers in England who want that political reform in India should be postponed to some later period”. I will not insult your intelligence by showing you that there is no analogy between the position underlying your question and the position with reference to temple-entry, especially in view of what I have said in the foregoing paragraphs.

Lastly, you cavil at the use of the word ‘Harijan, for untouchables. Evidently, you do not know how the word came to be used in the first instance. It was suggested by certain untouchable friends who do not like to be called ‘untouchables’, and it was suggested because a saintly poet of Gujarat, according to their interpretation of one of his hymns, used it in connection with 'untouchables'. I immediately seized upon the word as also otherwise most fitting, for the most despised people are the most favoured of God.

I fail to see any slave mentality about the origin of the use of the word or its continuance, and let us hope that when untouchability has a decent burial, we shall all strive to become Harijans, that is, pure men of God.

Yours sincerely,

SJT. T. A. V. NATHAN
EDITOR, “THE JUSTICE”
14 MOUNT ROAD, MADRAS

From a microfilm: M.M.U/XXII

613 LETTER TO DUNICHAND
January 11, 1933

DEAR LALA DUNICHAND,

For a long time I have not heard from or about Surajbhan or his wife Yasoda Devi. Can you tell me anything about them?

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat: G.N. 5582

614. LETTER TO ZAMINDAR OF GOLLAPALLI
January 11, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I thank you for your letter of the 4th instant. Your fear is baseless as you will see from the explanations I have issued to the Press.

Yours sincerely,

THE ZAMINDAR OF GOLLAPALLI
GOLLAPALLI

From a microfilm: S.N. 19216

1 Narasinha Mehta
2 An advocate of Ambal
615. LETTER TO K. MADHAVAN NAIR
January 11, 1933

MY DEAR MADHAVAN,

Here is a letter for you to see.

Yours sincerely,

From a microfilm: S.N. 19217

616. LETTER TO K. R. KRISHNA MURTHI
January 11, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I thank you for your letter of 6th instant, and I should be sorry if what you said was found to be correct.

Yours sincerely,

SIT. K. R. KRISHNA MURTHI
JOIN SECRETARY
THE DHARMA VEERA ASSOCIATION
GURUVAYUR

From a microfilm: S.N. 19219

617. LETTER TO D. RAG. RAGHAVACHANDRAYYA SASTRI
January 11, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter. You should have pity on me. I have no time whatsoever for reading books and manuscripts. I hardly get time to cope with the correspondence that I get daily.

Yours sincerely,

SIT. D. RAGHAVACHANDRAYYA SASTRI
SATH BRAHMAN ASHRAMA
BEZWADA

From a microfilm: S.N. 19218

1 A lawyer and social worker of Calicut
2 From K. R. Krishna Murthi; who had challenged the statement that the Guruvayur youths were in favour of temple-entry by the depressed classes. Regarding the referendum the addressee had said that “violence, coercion and deceit” were being exercised by Gandhiji’s co-workers; vide the following item
3 The source has “M”, which is a slip. The addressee had signed K
618. LETTER TO L. L. YELIGAR

January 11, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter together with the cutting for which I thank you. I shall read the article as soon as I get a moment’s time.

Yours sincerely,

SIT. L. L. YELIGAR
C/O SRI SARPABHUSAN SWAMI MATH
BALEPETH, BANGALORE CITY

From a microfilm: S.N. 19220

619. LETTER TO G. DORASWAMY

January 11, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I thank you for your letter of 8th inst., enclosing a copy of the resolution of your college. I hope that you are also doing constructive work. Without that the resolution cannot have much meaning.

Yours sincerely,

SIT. G. DORASWAMY
NO. 45 PACHAIYYAPPA’S HOSTEL
KILPAUK, MADRAS

From a microfilm: S.N. 19221

620. LETTER TO SARASVANI

January 11, 1933

MY DEAR SARASVANI,

I like your letter. You should accept my assurance that there is no intention whatsoever of wounding the feelings of orthodox Hindus. No temple will be touched where the majority of orthodox Hindus are opposed to the entry of Harijans into the temple which they are entitled to visit and which is in their neighbourhood.

Yours sincerely,

MISS SARASVANI
C/O SIT. K. V. RAMASWAMY AIYAR
CHOKKIKULAM, MADURA

From a microfilm: S.N. 19222

1 An article about untouchability work published in the Mysore Star, a weekly
2 Condemning untouchability in Hindu society
621. LETTER TO G. V. KETKAR

January 11, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I have now carefully read both your articles on the Gita. I have found them to be interesting.

I observe that you have reached the same conclusion that I had by a different method. Yours is the learned way, not so mine.

Yours sincerely,

S. J. T. G. V. KETKAR, B.A., LL.B.
NASIK CITY

From a microfilm: S.N. 19223

622. LETTER TO RANCHHODDAS PATWARI

January 11, 1933

RESPECTED RANCHHODBHA!

I was pained to read your letter. Is it not strange that you should write to me in English? or that you should frame questions as if you wanted to catch in your trap a witness who was trying to escape it? But, as an elder brother, you have a right to do all that, for I could judge from our discussion that you believed me to have completely forsaken dharma. However, if God grants you a long life you will admit one day that I had not knowingly done so. I will now reply to your questions.

Pranams from

MOHANDAS

1. You desire that each and every sanatanist Hindu should form and express his opinion on this question according to the dictates of his conscience.

I would welcome it if it were possible.

2. Is it not a fact that there are thousands of people who believe that India cannot get real swaraj without you?

If it is so, I would regard that as a heavy responsibility on me.

---

1 Ex-Dewan of Morvi State
2 On January 7, 1933
3 The questions are reproduced from the addressee's letter dated January 9, 1933 (S.N. 20036).
3. Is it not a fact that there are thousands of people who value your life more than what they consider to be their religion?

I would be much pained if this is true. I cannot endure anybody giving up what he regards as his dharma in order to save my life.

4. Where was the need of announcing your firm resolve to fast to death if the Guruvayur Temple was not opened to the untouchables?

This I have discussed at great length in my articles¹.

5. Why did you not issue a referendum² without taking such a vow?

To this too my articles contain a satisfactory reply.

6. Did not the persons who were engaged in taking votes exploit your vow?

What you believe is not altogether improbable.

7. Can you correctly ascertain the percentage of voters who voted in favour of the entry on account of your vow before them?

It is impossible to reply to this without knowing what is in the heart of the person concerned.

8. If your case is strong and the cause you advocate is just and reasonable, why have you announced your vow to fast to death if His Excellency the Viceroy does not sanction the Bill³ before him?

It is absolutely necessary to read my articles for a reply to this question.

9. Do you know that this vow is being exploited for nourishing the agitation

---

¹ Statements which Gandhiji started issuing from prison from November 4, 1932.
² In Ponnani taluk where the Guruvayur temple is situated. The Zamorin of Calicut, a trustee of the Temple, being against temple-entry, the referendum was taken amidst adverse influences. Vide “Statement on Untouchability-XIII”, 30-12-1932.
³ Two Bills were awaiting Viceroy's sanction, one for introduction in the Central Legislative Assembly by Ranga Iyer and the other for introduction in the Madras Council by Dr. Subbaroyan. On January 23, the Viceroy gave his sanction to the introduction of the Untouchability Abolition Bill by Ranga Iyer in the Assembly subject to the condition that the Government did not commit themselves to accepting its principles and that the fullest opportunity would be given to every section of the Hindu community to express an opinion on its provisions. Sanction to Dr. Subbaroyan's Temple-Entry Bill in the Madras Council was refused on the ground that it was too far-reaching in implication for enactment by a provincial legislature. Afterwards Ranga Iyer drafted a second Bill, based on Dr. Subbaroyan’s, which the Viceroy permitted to be introduced in the Central Assembly, subject to the same qualifications as in the case of his former Bill. The Temple-Entry Bill, as redrafted, was introduced in the Central Legislative Assembly on March 24, 1933. Vide also “Statement on Viceroy's Decision”, 24-1-1933.
in favour of the Bill being sanctioned?

No such thing has happened to my knowledge.

10. Are you prepared to give up your vow and issue a fresh referendum in connection with the Guruvayur Temple?

If a systematic referendum is held with the Zamorin’s co-operation and if he implements the result, my pledge will have been fulfilled.

11. Before issuing the referendum, did you frame definite rules as to who can rank as bona-fide worshipper of the deity for guidance of your men who were engaged in taking votes?

Yes.

12. Who can rank as a bona fide worshipper of the deity according to you?

Those who, according to the present practice, are entitled to visit temples and who accept the necessity of worshipping in temples.

13. Did the persons engaged in taking votes ascertain by inquiry which of the voters were bona-fide worshippers of the deity?

Due publicity was given as to who were entitled to vote and leaflets were distributed to every home, and the people were then trusted to show regard for truth.

14. Can you say that a Hindu who does not visit a temple even once a month for darshan and who does not pay a single farthing as bhet or *samagri*¹, can rank as a bona-fide worshipper of the deity?

Certainly, if such Hindus believe in temples.

15. If the entry of the untouchables into temples depends on votes in a particular district, the condition precedent is that definite rules should be framed as to who can be treated as a bona-fide worshipper?

This is correct.

16. Which of the temples would you treat as public?

Any temple which is not the property of an individual or of several individuals.

17. Your parents were staunch followers of the Pushtimarga (a Vaishnavite Sampradaya). Did they freely touch the untouchables? Would they allow them to enter into temples?

No.

18. You have never worn the sacred thread, viz., upavita. You wore a

¹ Offerings
when you went to England in 1886. When did you give up that kanthi?

I used to wear the sacred thread for some time. I did not discard the tulsi-kanthi, but, after I had worn it for some years in South Africa, it left me, that is, it snapped.

19. Are you of the opinion that the wearing of a sacred thread or kanthi is not essential for a sanatanist Hindu?

I don’t regard the practice as an essential requirement of sanatana dharma and so, when the kanthi snapped, I did not replace it.

20. During your stay in England you took meals in hotels or in the house of an Englishman?

At both places.

21. Are you of the opinion that a Hindu does not cease to be a sanatanist Hindu by this?

That is my considered view.

22. Even now you have no objection to take the food prepared in European hotels or by a Christian or a Mohammedan?

I would have no objection if I otherwise regarded the article as acceptable food.

23. Are you in favour of the priti-bhojans in which even the Brahmins, Dheds, Bhangis, Chamars, Mohammodans and Christians dine together?

I oppose mixed dinners with Harijans as a part of the movement for the removal of untouchability. If, however, the items are cooked with proper regard for rules of hygiene, I see nothing wrong in Harijans and others sitting together and eating from separate plates.

24. Will you say that the Hindus who take part in such priti-bhojans can claim to be sanatanist Hindus?

Provided the foregoing condition is observed, Hindus participating in mixed dinners with Harijans should be, ought to be, regarded as sanatanist Hindus—if they have the other characteristics of such Hindus.

25. Are you in favour of intermarriages between the Brahmins, Kshatriyas and Vaishyas on the one hand and the untouchables on the other?

If the bride and the bridegroom are a suitable pair, if their lives are pure and they believe in the ideal of self-control in married life, I would certainly approve of such unions. But I do not regard

---

1 String of tulsi beads
2 Mixed dinner parties with Harijans interdining and intermarrying between Harijans and other Hindus as a necessary part of the movement for the eradication of untouchability.

26. Do you keep any idol or any picture of Shri Rama or Shri Krishna when you offer prayers in the morning and at night?
   No.

27. Are you a staunch believer in idol-worship?
   Yes.

28. Do you believe that it is necessary to go to a temple for darshan of the image for attaining emancipation and for acquiring supreme love for God?
   No.

29. How often have you visited the Hindu temples for the darshan of the idols during the last sixteen years?
   I have visited them so often in the course of my tours that I cannot count the number of times.

30. What amount have you sent as bhet or samagri to temples from the funds collected by you?
   I had no right to spend anything on temples from the money I had collected.

31. Do you believe that a Dhed, Bhangi or Chamar cannot attain emancipation or acquire supreme love for God unless he gets an opportunity to go into the Hindu temple for darshan?
   I don’t believe so at all.

32. If you think that idol-worship is essential for the untouchables, what if separate temples are built for them with the idols of Shri Rama or Shri Krishna?
   Since I don’t see any justification for the existence of a separate class of untouchable communities, I would not be satisfied by separate temples for them.

33. Do you think that the worship of an idol in a public temple is more efficacious than that of an idol installed in the temple built for untouchables?
   No.

34. Has Mr. Kelappan\(^1\) or any Dhed, Bhangi or Chamar told you that he has such supreme love for the deity, that he will lose his life if he does not get darshan in a temple of the sanatanists?
   No.

\(^1\) K. Kelappan; he had undertaken a fast unto death on September 20, 1932, for the opening of the Guruvayur temple to Harijans and suspended it on October 2 following Gandhiji’s advice.
35. When you attended the Round Table Conference, you were under the impression that the population of the Dheds, Bhangis and Chamars, who are treated as untouchables, was six or seven crores.

No.

36. Were you under the same impression when you made a compromise\(^1\) with Mr. Ambedkar?

No.

37. Did you even take the trouble of studying the causes with a view to ascertain the actual population of these three communities?

I don’t follow the question.

38. Is it not a fact that the percentage of the population of such untouchables varies from 2 per cent in Kathiawar and Gujarat?

This is not impossible.

39. Have you even now ascertained the actual population of the three communities in India?

I do not know the exact number.

40. Is it not a fact that lakhs of high-caste Hindus who were touchables became Mohammedans during the Mohammedan rule and Christians after the advent of the British rule?

I would be surprised if this is true.

41. Can you give even approximately the number of the untouchables who became either Mohammedans or Christians?

I can say that the number is quite large.

42. Are you for allowing any Dhed, Bhangi or Chamar admission into the Hindu temples? If not, what conditions or restrictions would you suggest?

All Dheds, Bhangis and members of other such communities who observe the rules of cleanliness must be entitled to visit temples.

43. Who will frame these conditions and restrictions and who will enforce them? Will this not cause constant bickerings?

These rules are still accepted, and I think it easier to persuade Harijans to observe them than to persuade other Hindus to do so.

44. Has a large section of the Dheds, Bhangis and Chamars authorized you to create this sort of agitation for securing their entry into the Hindu temples?

No. The present movement is intended to persuade caste Hindus to do their duty.

\(^1\) Yeravda Pact
45. Do you know that most of them are deadly against your agitation and say that it will widen the gulf between them and the caste Hindus, create trouble and make their position considerably worse?

The truth is the exact opposite of this.

46. Are you prepared to issue a referendum for ascertaining wishes of the untouchables in the different parts of India?

In the light of the reply to (44), your suggestion is unnecessary.

47. Assuming that you suggest a compromise and it is accepted by some orthodox Hindus, do you think that it will be held as binding on all the untouchables and other orthodox Hindus?

The present movement is not a commercial bargain. It is a purely religious movement. It will show the path of dharma to those who accept it as such.

48. Do you know that the sentiments of untouchability are rampant even amongst the Rabaris, Bharavads, Kolis, Thakardas, Kanbis, Patidars, Rajputs, and such other castes?

That is our misfortune.

49. Do you know that the Dheds do not dine with the Bhangis and Chamars, and there are separate wells for them in almost all the towns and villages?

That is another misfortune.

50. Can you say with some authority that the Dheds will allow the Bhangis and Chamars to enter into their temples?

If I can persuade the so-called high-caste Hindus, I think it will be easy enough to persuade the Harijans.

51. Have you got a written assurance from the bulk of the Dheds that they will give up such sentiments if public temples are opened even to the Bhangis and Chamars?

Many persons have given me assurances, though I have nothing in writing.

52. You have been constantly preaching touchability after your return from Africa? Will you state the number of temples in the towns and villages which are opened to the untouchables with the consent of the local sanatanists?

I think the number must be about 500.

53. Do you not think that the Lion of India who once roared and launched non-co-operation movement against the British Government ought not to seek help from His Excellency the Viceroy on this question?

If I reply to this question, I would be violating my promise to the Government.¹

54. You propose to fast to death if the Viceroy does not sanction the Bill. Is this by way of resentment against the Viceroy or the obstinate sanatanists?

The reply to this question is contained in the reply to question

55. You do not think that your identification with the question will prejudicially affect reverence of the sanatanists for you and practically wreck the Congress and strengthen hands of the British statesmen who are against giving substantial rights to India?

I do not believe so.

56. Do you not think that the reverence for you is your real strength?

Whatever power I have is Rama’s, not mine.

57. Are you prepared to face the human nature as it is?

That is what I have done all my life.

58. Do you really appreciate the practical difficulties in the way of accomplishment of your desire?

I think I am fully aware of the difficulties.

59. Can you suggest a practical way by which public temples may be opened to the untouchables without creating a split or tension among the Hindus?

I have certainly made my suggestions.

60. Can the Jains, who are not Hindus by religion, and the Hindus who are against idol-worship, and who have therefore nothing at stake, ask the Viceroy to sanction the Bill?

No.

61. Has any of the so-called benefactors of the untouchables built or offered to build any temple for the untouchables?

No.

62. What harm is there if separate temples, having due regard to local needs, are built, and the question of the entry into the temples built and maintained by the sanatanists is shelved?

That will harm sanatana dharma itself.

63. Have you ever stayed long in places of pilgrimage with a view to correctly ascertain the depth of the religious sentiments of sanatanist males and females?

Yes.

¹ Gandhiji was to eschew all politics during his incarceration, while he was allowed to meet and communicate freely for anti-untouchability work.
64. Is it not a fact that the heart, and not the body, is the seat of love?
   It is so.

65. Is it a fact that the sacred books of the Hindus lay the greatest stress on the mutual touch by heart?
   True.

66. Is it not a fact that it is the lack of mutual touch by heart which creates wars and disputes among families and nourishes civil and criminal courts?
   Quite true.

67. You know that during the dire famine of Samvat 1956\(^1\), numerous sanatanists fed the needy and supplied clothes? Can you point to a single instance of the untouchables having been denied that benefit?
   There is no limit to that.

68. Do you not think that the non-touchability of the Hindu women in menses is based on the principle of purity? Does it breathe any hatred for them?
   That is right. It implies no contempt.

69. Should a Hindu take his bath and wash his clothes if he touches a corpse or any dead creature?
   They should purify themselves.

70. You know that among then Parsis the women in menses are treated as untouchables for eight days.
   I have heard that it is so.

71. Do you know that no pious Mohammedan would go to a Masjid for prayers if there be a drop of urine or pus on any of his clothes?
   That is true.

72. Supposing that a majority of people in a particular village or town believe that to drink is no vice, should the minority also drink?
   Never.

73. Are you of the opinion that dharma should be defined according to the notions of the majority in a particular locality?
   Whatever the theory, the practice will remain what the majority does.

74. Do you know that about 80 per cent of the boys attending schools and colleges, who wear a white khaddar cap, do not visit temples even once a year; and most of them state that the sacred books of the Hindus should be thrown into the sea?
   I would be surprised and pained if this is true.

\(^1\) 1900 A.D
75. Have you ever advised these boys to visit temples for darshan at least once a fortnight or a month?

No.

76. Do you not think that if the administration of India be entrusted to the people of such views, they would follow in the footsteps of Russia, whose policy is to make the country Godless?

I have no such fear.

77. Have you ever cared to ascertain the percentage of boys referred to in Q.74, who offer prayers to God even once a day ?

Generally all pray at least once every day.

78. Do you know that the ladies residing in the ‘Vanita Vishram’ and numerous educated high-caste ladies do not observe menses?

I do not know.

79. Has not Shri Krishna said that dear unto him is one who causes no udvega to others? What are your notions about the ahimsa dharma?

I have replied to this question in many of my articles.

80. Can you point to two males or females having similar features of the body, etc., from the population of 180 crores of the earth?

No.

81. Is it possible to expect all human beings to be of the same temperament or the same habits?

No.

82. Do you not think that the contact of high-caste Hindus with the untouchables in their present state would do considerable harm to the former?

If the so-called high-caste Hindus really deserve to be called high-caste, mixing with Harijans will, instead of harming them, benefit both themselves and the Harijans. Even if they do not possess the kind of heart about which you have asked a question above, they will benefit by freely mixing with the Harijans because such mixing concerns the heart.

83. All tinctures contain liquor. Would you advise those who take them to take liquor or to give up the tinctures?

Personally I would appeal to them to give up drinking tinctures.

84. Can you point to any Rajput ruler following the Buddhistic religion, or to

---

1 Women’s home
2 Pain
any Mohammedan ruler who had compelled the sanatanists to allow the untouchables to enter their temples?

I don’t know of any.

85. Do you think that if the British Government were to violate the repeated sacred pledges of absolute non-intervention in religious matters, it would contribute to their stability and to peace and contentment among men?

No.

86. Does Malaviyaji take meals or do Sandhya-Gayatri\(^1\) without taking a bath if he has touched any untouchable person?

This question should be addressed to Malaviyaji.

87. If the sentiments of the Hindus who support you on this question do not materially differ from those of our friend Mr. Shaukat Ali, is it not open to him to say that he too is a sanatanist? And can he be our teacher as to what the sanatana dharma is?

It is beyond my power to say what Maulana Shaukat Ali can do.

88. Is it a fact that most of the Dheds, Bhangis and Chamars take beef even now? Do you think that they can be all Harijans?

I know that all of them do not eat beef. Certainly all of them can become Harijans.

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 4112. Also C.W. 2799. Courtesy: Chhaganlal Gandhi

---

623. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

January 11, 1933

CHI. NARANDAS,

I got the mail from you. I cannot judge whether or not you could read Mahavir’s\(^2\) letter. Read my reply to him and do the needful. I suppose you did write to all persons who had lent him money. Tell Mahavir what Brijkishan\(^3\) also told you about him.

What is Ratilal’s\(^4\) state of mind? Prema’s\(^5\) anger does not seem to have cooled down. But I assume that she does not harass you in any way. And I am sure that she would not neglect her work because of

---

1. Vedic prayer to the Sun-God
2. Mahavir Giri
3. Brijkrishna Chandiwala
4. Ratilal Mehta, son of Dr. Pranjivan Mehta
5. Premabehn Kantak
her anger. I hope she does not ill-treat her body because of it. If her anger is directed only against me, I don’t mind it; I am passing it on to the Court above.

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U/I

624. LETTER TO MADALASA BAJAJ

January 11, 1933

CHI. MADALASA,

Your health seems to be all right these days. If you continue in the same manner, your petulance and your habit of crying will disappear in a short time. It is enough if you digest the food which you eat.

The questions which occur to you occur to all people who love knowledge. They are solved by reading and reflection. We ourselves are the world. We are in it and it is in us. God also is in us. We do not see the air in our body, but we have another physical sense with which we can feel it. We can develop a sense with which we can feel God, and, if we do so, we can know Him also. Vinoba is helping you to develop such a sense. Have patience.

Tell Janakimaiya1 that I often see Jamnalal2. His health is good.

BAPU

[From Gujarati]

Panchven Putrako Bapuke Ashirvad, p. 314

625. LETTER TO GULAM RASUL QURESHI

YERAVDA,

January 11, 1933

CHI. QURESHI,

What has gone wrong with you now? What does the doctor say? I will not tolerate it in the slightest degree that you should be ill. How did a body which seemed so strong become weak? The children must

1 Addressee’s mother
2 Addressee’s father have completely recovered now. Is Amina at peace? Do not hesitate to write to me. Such hesitation will be misplaced sympathy. I must have all the necessary information about all of you.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C. W. 10816. Courtesy: Gulam Rasul Qureshi

626. LETTER TO INDRA VIDYALANKAR
January 11, 1933

CHI. INDRA,

I have a letter from some Harijans of your area, I am enclosing it. Read it and after an inquiry do whatever is possible. I have written to them to see you.

Blessings from
MOHANDAS

Enclosure: Letter from the Harijans

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 7204. Also C.W. 4862. Courtesy: Chandragupta Vidyalankar

627. LETTER TO MIRABEHN
Now 5 a.m., January 12\(^1\), 1933

CHI. MIRA,

Your letter arrived as usual. Also your notes on Dr. Gour’s book.

I always omit to tell you about what our common friends write about you. They all think of you, would like to write to you if you could receive their letters and invariably send their love to you. Among these are the Kingsley Hall people, the Privats, the Italian sisters, the Larks of St. Francis and Mary Barr. This is not an exhaustive list, it is only an illustrative list. But I must send you some of the letters themselves. Thus you will find Madeleine’s letter and a copy of my reply, Andrews’s and John Morris’s, the blind man. I must not omit Agatha, Esther, Horace and the Woodbrooke people. They never fail to remember you whenever they write. You will find with this also John Morris’s X’mas card and one of the very beautiful picture-cards that Princess Aristarchi sends every week. She seems to be a learned woman of deep devotion.

\(^1\) The source has “13”, but in his letter of January 19, 1933, to the addressee, Gandhiji refers to this letter as of “Thursday”, which was January 12. Vide also “Letter to Narandas Gandhi”, pp. 35-6.

You are late with your remarks about the primus stove. It was banished from the Ashram now some two months ago. I ought to have written to you then. On learning of the death of Prof. Trivedi’s brother’s wife from the primus-lighting, I wrote to Narandas that the best way to mourn the event was to banish the stove altogether from the Ashram. It was a hard job to convince some of the women. But they all realized the necessity. The banishment was not made compulsory. Everyone gave it up voluntarily. I should have given you this pleasing information before but how many such titbits I must be omitting every week! However, I know that you do not expect such things from me. And yet if I do not tell them to you, you remain ignorant of all the happenings in the Ashram which you should and may under the prison rules know. I must do what I can.

My weight is the same as last week and so is the food. No salt as yet. It is no deprivation for me. There is no craving for it. When I take it, I like it. But I would not like anything the moment I knew that it was harmful for me. The elbow pain remains what it was, not the slightest cause for anxiety.

You need not return the enclosed letters and the cards.
Love from us all.

BAPU

From a photostat: C.W. 9679. Courtesy: Mirabehn

1 Madeleine Rolland, sister of Romain Rolland
2 Woodbrooke Settlement, the Quaker Centre near Birmingham
628. LETTER TO EDMOND AND YVONNE PRIVAT

January 12, 1933

MY DEAR ANAND AND BHAKTI,

We were all delighted to receive your letter after many months. I know that you are both spreading the gospel of love and also trying to live it. I often think of those very happy times we were together on the Pilsna. I am never tired of recalling your utter indifference to possession of riches, and your losing yourselves in one another.

May this New Year make your life richer, happier and more fruitful in the service of humanity.

I had to dictate if I was to write to you at all.

Love from us all.

Did you get Mahadev’s Christmas letter?

BAPU

From a photostat: G.N. 8794

629. LETTER TO MARGARETE SPIEGEL

January 12, 1933

MY DEAR MARGARETE,

I had your love-letter from your ship. I was glad that you were at the Ashram and were able to take actual part in the service of the Harijans and, in my opinion, inasmuch as you rendered this selfless service to downtrodden humanity; you served the whole of it.

You were quite right in giving up spinning ‘ropes’ as you were doing. If you could have learnt the art properly, I would certainly have advised you to continue to spin not cotton but wool; but perhaps you have no talent for such work. God has blessed you with many other gifts, and it is well with you so long as you use them for the service of mankind including of course your dear mother.

Next time we meet, if we do, you are not going to be ‘awed’ by me, if you are to be a daughter to me. Do not hesitate to write to me whenever you feel like it.

Mahadev joins me in sending love to you.

BAPU

Spiegel Papers. Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library

1 A Swiss couple; Gandhiji called them Anand and Bhakti
2 During the return-voyage from England after the Round Table Conference.
3 Dr. Margarete Spiegel, a German lady, who lived in the Ashram for some time. She was also a teacher at Santiniketan
630. LETTER TO V. M. NAWE

January 12, 1933

DEAR DR. NAWE,

I have your letter after many days, but you have not acknowledged my letter regarding Sjt. C. V. Vaidya. I therefore do not know whether you have appreciated the force of my criticism.

Please tell me in as few words as possible what “the new and unique path” to the temple-entry is; then I shall decide whether an inter-view is necessary. I have just now no time to spare for anything but the most important matters.

Yours sincerely,

DR. V. M. NAWE
EDITOR, “DINBANDHOO”
444 RASTA PETH, POONA

From a microfilm: S.N. 18907

631. LETTER TO SIDDHIAH

January 12, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your telegram1. I dare not interfere in election matters without knowing anything and from inside a prison.

Yours sincerely,

SIDDHIAH
HARIJAN SANGH
ERODE

From a microfilm: S.N. 18908

632. LETTER TO NAWAL KISHORE SHARMA

January 12, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter. What is required is not articles for the Press. So far as that kind of propaganda is concerned, it is being done by

---

1 In which the addressee had requested Gandhiji to bless a Harijan candidate standing for the presidentship of the Erode Taluk Board and to ask the opposing candidate to withdraw (S.N. 18894) experienced people. What you can do is to take up some actual constructive work in which you will spend your money and yourself.

Yours sincerely,

SIT. NAWAL KISHORE SHARMA
C/O MESSRS S.S. BRIJ BASI & SONS
BUNDER ROAD, KARACHI CITY

From a microfilm: S.N. 18909

633. LETTER TO PARASHURAM SHARMA

January 12, 1933

DEAR DR. PARASHURAM,

I have your letter and I had your telegram also. I telegraphed to Mathuradas Jain as soon as I got your telegram. I wonder if he gave it up. I have not heard from him. His statement is of course altogether wrong. He did not even take the elementary precaution of finding out from me how and why the fast was postponed. Beyond sending a telegram, I have not taken any other steps, and even after receiving your letter I have not thought it proper to write to him. You will please tell me what has been the outcome of the fast. I hope you are keeping well.

Yours sincerely,

DR. PARASHURAM
KRISHNA NAGAR
LAHORE

From a microfilm: S.N. 18910

634. LETTER TO K. KELAPPAN

January 12, 1933

MY DEAR KELAPPAN,

I have your letter. On receipt thereof I telegraphed to Gopalan

1 The addressee had requested Gandhiji to persuade Mathuradas Jain of Ferozepur to give up his fast.
2 Mathuradas Jain had obeyed Gandhiji’s instruction and abandoned his fast; vide “Letter to Mathuradas Jain”, 8-2-1933. to confer with Rajagopalachariar.

I hope that you have got over the effect of the accident\(^1\) and do please see me on your way back.

Yours sincerely,

From a microfilm: S.N. 18911

635. LETTER TO R. SOMASUNDARAM AIYAR

January 12, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter for which I thank you. Your letter seems to me to be an illustration of the imaginary quarrel between the poor wife and her many husbands. You say you will not allow my will to thwart your allegiance to God and your conscience. I say I am not going to allow a few million out of my 300 millions to thwart my allegiance to God, my conscience and, what is perhaps more pertinent for you, my allegiance to my other many million husbands. So you see the odds against me are not even. Husbands can always play ducks and drakes with their wives, for they always play with loaded dice. But God has gifted wives with infinite patience. So, you will see how at the end of it I bear down the opposition of the very few husbands out of many who are up in arms against me, and when the quarrel is over, you will shed crocodile tears over the scars “the whole host” of you may leave on your poor wife and then make her forget all about her past miseries.

You appeal to me to exploit your sympathy for the economic betterment of the backward classes. I invite you to make a sporting offer.

Your argument, I hope, you don’t want me to take seriously, or, if you do, then I must ask you dispassionately to study all the statements that I have been making, and you will find that every one of the questions raised by you is sufficiently answered therein.

Yours sincerely,

SJT. R. SOMASUNDARAM AIYAR

ADVOCATE

MYLAPORE, MADRAS

From a microfilm: S.N. 19230

\(^1\) Car accident
636. LETTER TO KONDA VENKATAPPAYYA

January 12, 1933

MY DEAR VENKATAPPAYYA,

I have your letter. I fear that your suggestion is fatal, especially at the present moment. To set up new temples would be to set up a new religion and accept defeat. If it is to be defeat, I should take it and resign myself to it, but I will not set up a new religion. If our contention is right and the public reject it, we should know that untouchability is not to be destroyed or even shaken during our time. Whether the contemplated legislation should be there or not is a matter that should be examined on its own merits. I have come to the conclusion that both from the point of view of interference in matters religious and seeking Viceregal sanction, it is free from reproach. Any time we would want legislation in order to correct errors and, in the hottest non-co-operation days, I should not hesitate to promote legislation backed by public will. No law or rule can be cited to defeat its own end. You may then be sure that there is flaw in your reasoning. The cry of religious interference is perfectly thoughtless where it is not obviously hypocritic[al]. Of course, there is a third objection to the proposed Bill, namely, that the question who should or should not enter a temple should not be decided by those who are temple-goers but by some extraneous authority, in this instance, learned men. I totally deny the validity of that proposition. No religion could grow under such a chilling rule. Hindu religion, so far as I know it, has never followed any such rule. Mind, I do not insist that all old temples should be opened to Harijans, but I do insist that all old temples should be opened where the majority of present worshippers are willing. It is the acid test of the sincerity or the reality of the Bombay Resolution.

I suppose we must resign ourselves to the prospect of your wife

---

1 The addressee had written: “So far as Guruvayur temple is concerned, the object may be taken as having been practically fulfilled, the opinion of the people being found to be decidedly favourable. . . . There will be no need to seek the aid of law if public opinion is secured in favour of the movement and legislation will be of no value if public opinion is adverse.”
leaving this stage any moment. Perhaps it would be a welcome deliverance from a lingering death. I hope you are feeling better.

Yours sincerely,

SIT. KONDA VENKATAPAYYA
GUNTUR

From a microfilm: S.N. 19231

637. LETTER TO C. RAJAGOPALACHARI

January 12, 1933

MY DEAR C.R.,

I have your second letter. I hope that what you have heard is not true, but if it turns out to be true, it would be unfortunate. But I should not take any action upon a mere rumour. Mahadev has just suggested a public statement. I shall see whether such a thing is possible. In any case, I suppose I should know the result in a day or two.

I am glad you like the appeal to the sanatanists. Of course, all such effort is costly, but the cost is worth paying. The deliberate falsehoods that are flung about are the things that shake me and cut me to the marrow. But I have no shadow of a doubt that Truth will conquer.

I expect to meet the sanatanist Shastris about whom Hiralal Nanavati has been writing to me.

I have written a long letter to the Editor of the Justice about his attack on my proposal. He wrote to me sending me three cuttings from his paper and invited my criticism.

I gave also on the same question a long interview yesterday to the Associated Press which you will see.

You seem to have forgotten all about Gopala Menon’s letter referring to the proposed All-Hindu Conference at Guruvayur. You remem-ber Gopala Menon said that you would attend to it. I therefore

1 Based on the Madras Mail article suggesting that sanction for Dr. Subbaroyan’s Temple-entry Bill should neither be given nor refused, and that a committee might be appointed to enquire and report on the strength of the demand (S.N. 19193)

2 Vide “Appeal to Sanatanists”, 4-1-1933.

4 Vide “Statement to Associated Press”, 11-1-1933.
sent Gopala Menon a telegram yesterday to see you, because he reminded me that I had done nothing about it. If you want that Conference, you have to advise Acharya Dhruva and Dr. Bhagwandas in good time. In my opinion, Malaviyaji should still be left free.

Yours sincerely,

From a photostat: S.N. 19232

638. LETTER TO L. B. NAYAK

January 12, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter. Attractive as your suggestion may appear to be, it savours of dishonesty, if I have understood it correctly, and it also seems to be impracticable in the existing circumstances.

Yours sincerely,

SJT. L. B. NAYAK
34 L. THAKURDWAR
BOMBAY NO. 2

From a microfilm: S.N. 19233

639. A LETTER

January 12, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter and a copy of your resolution, for which I thank you.

I think you should discuss with Sjt. Ghanshyamdas Birla the interesting points you have raised in your letter. It is difficult for me to deal with the situation from this distance. I am forwarding your letter to Sjt. Ghanshyamdas Birla.

Yours sincerely,

From a microfilm: S.N. 18912

1 General Secretary, Depressed Classes Mission Society of India, Bombay; in his letter dated January 7, the addressee had suggested that the Mahars and Chamars should designate themselves as “Kshatriyas” in all places and records.
640. LETTER TO ASHRAM BOYS AND GIRLS

January 12, 1933

BOYS AND GIRLS,

I got your letter. It is good to talk things over with the Harijans. With patience and love they will understand our work. You should listen to what they have to say to you. Answer to the extent you can. If you go to them regularly, there will be discussions. If you inquire about their sufferings and take interest in all aspects of their lives, slowly they will come to accept us as their relations.

Try to grow enough vegetables for the Ashram. That is not difficult.

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./II

---

641. A LETTER

January 12, 1933

It would be improper from every point of view for a person who cannot observe the basic rules of the Ashram to remain in the Ashram. Neither he nor the Ashram would benefit by his staying. If the inmates lived in that manner the Ashram would break up.

Anybody who wishes to live in the Ashram should have sincere love for it. He should always take care to see that he does nothing to harm its good name. I have not been able to see any such thing in you.

[From Gujarati]

---

642. A LETTER

January 12, 1933

You should constantly bear this in your mind, that so long as you cannot remain pure in your feelings towards her you have no right to go near her nor to serve her. If you understand this, all impure feelings towards her will soon vanish. If you remain determined, your strength will daily go on increasing.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. III, p. 43

---

This and other letters from the same source are mostly fragments from the original letters extracted by Mahadev Desai in his diary.
643. LETTER TO LAKSHMIBEHN N. KHARE

January 12, 1933

CHI. LAKSHMIBEHN,

I note every week that you do not write to me. It is not right that you should boycott me completely like this. Occasionally you should write a few lines. I cherish high hopes of the few women like you who are old inmates of the Ashram.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 284. Courtesy: Lakshmibehn N. Khare

644. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

January 12, 1933

CHI. NARANDAS,

Read my letter1 to Mirabehn and pass it on to her. I hope your asthma has left you.

Mirabehn is your neighbour now. Send her fruits and any other things which she may need. I hope Mahavir and the party have left. That was the best course. The arrangement which you have made is right.

Keep a regular register for recording people’s weights and get everybody weighed at fixed intervals.

Did you see the account of expenditure which Mahavir prepared from memory? If you have not seen it and wish to see it, let me know and I will send it to you. I have preserved it. It did not satisfy me. I hope you remember that I asked you to send Kellogg’s book and Satyarthapr-akash2.

It was necessary to write a long letter to Prema explaining everything, and, therefore, though I am rather hard pressed for time, I found the necessary time and have written it. Though the letter is addressed to her, it is meant for all, that is, for all workers of the Ashram. I hope you had noted the difference between workers of the Ashram and inmates of the Ashram which I had explained in a previous letter. My remarks about you in the letter were necessary. It is not merely formal courtesy on the part of a father but it is his moral

1 Vide 12-1-1933.
2 By Swami Dayananda duty to express the faith which he has in his son. May God grant you, whenever the occasion arises, the necessary strength to justify my faith. I am sure that these words of mine will not upset you.

BAPU

[PS.]

There are 19 letters in all. They are all tied with a string.

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./I

645. LETTER TO SITARAM K. NALAVDE

January 12, 1933

BHAI NALAVDE,

Your letter.

The Harijan brethren certainly have the right to give up carrion-eating as well as disposal of dead cattle. But it would be better if they took the vow to give up carrion-eating. The duty of removal of dead cattle has the sanction of society. After all someone has to perform this duty. The public will certainly be put to hardship if those who are well versed in the job give it up. It is the dharma of all to protect society from this difficulty. Therefore if necessary this job may be given up only after coming to some arrangements with . . . \(^1\) the mahajan\(^2\). The giving up of carrion-eating is, however, obligatory. Those who give up beef and carrion-eating and have proper bath, etc., should be entitled to enter temples. They too should thus qualify themselves for darshan of the image and be confident that they will have the right of temple-entry.

Those who do not give up carrion-eating should not be summarily boycotted. They should have the chance of reforming themselves. It is not an easy matter for everyone to give up a long-standing habit.

I hope that the Conference will be successful. I also hope that all the Harijan brothers and sisters will resolve on self-reform.

Yours,

MOHANDAS GANDHI

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 801

\(^1\) The letter is damaged here
\(^2\) Caste leaders
646. NOTE TO DEONAYAKACHARYA\(^1\)

January 12, 1933

DEAR SHASTRIJI,

I have received all your letters. I have already stated that my mind and heart are open for a discussion with you. Though I have not been given enough time to write to the Shastris I have in mind, I have sent invitations to those who can come immediately. I still do not know whether they will be able to come. The subject for our discussion is not whether untouchability is sanctioned by the Shastras or not. The subject is to determine the sanction of the Shastras for untouchability as it is practised today. And if the untouchability in current usage has the sanction of the Shastras, then who can be defined as untouchable? I certainly desire in all humility to hear your views on these two questions and other points that may arise out of these and I hope you are now satisfied and will honour me by coming over.

Yours,

MHOHANDAS GANDHI

From a microfilm of the Hindi: S.N. 19229

647. NOTE TO DEONAYAKACHARYA

January 12, 1933

DEAR SHASTRIJI,

I have your note. I have made the minimum alterations in the pamphlet sent by you and signed it. I do not mean any discourtesy and sincerely wish to have a discussion. I hope the alterations made by me are in accordance with what you have said in your letter.

From a microfilm of the Hindi: S.N. 19229

\(^1\) The addressee, Secretary, All-India Varnashram Swarajya Sangh, had arrived at Yeravda Prison, along with four other pandits representing the Sangh, to have a discussion with Gandhiji and his advisers, on the validity of untouchability according to the Shastras. On arrival at the prison, he forwarded to Gandhiji a printed pamphlet giving information about the subject of discussion, the procedure for the debate and the names of the participants. Gandhiji added the words ‘as at present classified’ to qualify ‘untouchables’ in the printed pamphlet. This was not approved by the Sangh delegates and they went away without meeting Gandhiji. Vide “Letter to C. Rajagopalachari”, 13-1-1933.
648. NOTE TO DEONAYAKACHARYA
January 12, 1933

DEAR SHASTRIJI,

I am helpless. And I am sadly grieved too that you want, in the manner of a lawyer, to tie up a jijnasu\(^1\) and mumukshu\(^2\) like me. My humble request to you is to come and enlighten me taking me as I am. I am unable to make any further modifications than what I have already done.

Yours,

From a microfilm of the Hindi: S.N. 19229

649. LETTER TO N. H. PURANDARE
January 13, 1933

MY DEAR PURANDARE,

I have your letter. I am sorry to have had it. I don’t like the spirit underlying it. You have looked upon the whole thing as a commercial transaction, whereas I have looked upon the whole thing as a matter of selfless service. You left the question of remuneration entirely in my hands, although I asked you to tell me what you would charge for giving me a corrected collection of your speeches on untouchability and for supervising the printing. But you would not think of it, telling me that there was no mercenary motive behind it. That being so, I had no hesitation in undertaking the delicate task, but at the end of it, I shirked it, and I asked Haribhau to name the sum. He named Rs. 125 and I straightaway accepted. Believe me, so far as I am concerned, I did not think of the Arya Bhushan bill in connection with fixing up your fee, remuneration or honorarium, whatever it may be called. Nor did I then know nor do I now know that the Arya Bhushan bill is exorbitant. My understanding is that they should not make anything but nominal profits. You are thinking of anything between Rs. 500 to 3,000. I can only meet your proposal with a reasonable offer. You can take over the book yourself by simply paying the printing charges and sell the book on your own account and make whatever profit you can, only you should not increase the published price, for any increase in the price would be unjust to the public.

\(^1\) Seeker after knowledge
\(^2\) Seeker after moksha
I have already asked Haribhau to pay you Rs. 125 if you would accept the amount in full payment and not feel any dissatisfaction. For I would be deeply hurt if, after having left the thing in my hands, you were dissatisfied with the amount declared by me.

Yours sincerely,

SIT. N. H. PURANDARE
604 SADASHIV PETH
POONA 2

From a microfilm: S.N., 18915

650. LETTER TO DHANNU LALL SHARMA

January 13, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I will not refer you to any of my statements this time, but I will ask you to re-read your own letter. I suggest to you that that letter is libellous, insulting and unworthy of one who holds the position of General Secretary of a Sanatan Dharma Sabha.

If you will re-read your letter calmly and dispassionately, you will at once apologize to the pandits whom you have libelled, and, in any event, till you apologize, your letters will neither be read nor replied to. I am sorry for it.

Your sincere friend,

SIT. DHANNU LALL SHARMA
GENERAL SECRETARY
SHREE SANATAN DHARMA SABHA
220 HARRISON ROAD
CALCUTTA

From a microfilm: S.N. 18917

---

1 In which the addressee had referred to Gandhiji’s “Appeal to Sanatanists”, 4-1-1933, and said that the pandits had deceived not only him but the whole world.
651. LETTER TO SATYANANDA BOSE

January 13, 1933

DEAR SATYANANDA BABOO,

You are always so good and always think of me whenever there is anything to say to me.

I think that this is hardly the time to consider improvements in Dr. Subbaroyan’s Bill. The first thing is to get the Viceregal sanction. When that is had, many improvements may be possible. I am not therefore just now applying my mind to your suggestion¹. After the principle of the Bill is once accepted, the Government themselves may take it up or may advise amendments so far as that may be necessary to free the Bill from any possible political mischief. So far as I am concerned, my one thought in connection with the temple-entry is the purification of caste Hindus. But of course I shall bear your suggestions in mind whenever the occasion arises for their use.

Yours sincerely,

SJT. SATYANANDA BOSE
4 NUNDY ST.
BALLY GUNGE
CALCUTTA

From a microfilm: S.N. 18918

652. LETTER TO S. T. RAMANUJA IYENGAR

January 13, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter together with your article². I am sorry indeed that there should have been any molestation of you by the audience. I have, as you must be aware, repeatedly written against intolerance, and I shall gladly re-emphasize my warning when the time comes.

As for your article, we must agree to differ.³ Our conception of

¹ That the Bill be confined to giving authority to the trustee of a temple to allow the untouchables to enter it and worship as the caste Hindus do (S.N. 18893)
² “The Drive against Untouchability”
³ The addressee had written in his article: “He [Gandhiji] has given up his creed of non-co-operation with Government so far as untouchability is concerned by accepting special Government favours, and is actively blessing legislative efforts, once taboo, to facilitate removal of untouchability. . . .”
sanatana dharma is different. In your impatience you have not even cared to understand my fundamental position. I can only say, ‘Read all my statements with a fresh mind, then if you have still doubts, discuss them with Sjt. Rajagopalachariar and if you are not still convinced and would care to do so, come down to Yeravda and I shall gladly give you one hour and try to convince you that the position I take up and the means I adopt to vindicate are both perfectly defensible.’

Yours sincerely,

SJT. S. T. RAMANUJA IYENGAR
4 VARADARAJA PERUMAL COIL ST.
TRICHINOPOLY

From a microfilm: S.N. 18919

653. LETTER TO S. NAGASUNDARAM

January 13, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter. I have read the texts quoted by you. So far as I can make them out, they have no application to the present-day conditions. Those who are regarded as untouchables today cannot be classified as Chandalas at all.

Inter-dining is no part of the campaign against untouchability

Yours sincerely,

SJT. S. NAGASUNDARAM
NEAR KING’S CIRCLE
MATUNGA
BOMBAY

From a microfilm: S.N. 18921
January 13, 1933

MY DEAR C.R.,

Vallabhbhai had a battle royal with me last night on your behalf. If a person, an utter stranger to him, had chance to be there, from the vehemence of Vallabhbhai’s language, he would have concluded that we must be most quarrelsome persons.

He thought that I was doing violent injustice to you, inasmuch as, without consultation with you, I made proposals that might prove to be utterly embarrassing, as had happened on two occasions.

The cause of our quarrel was my compromise proposal\(^1\). He thought that I had no right to publish it without consultation with you, and he was quite sure that though you were too good to mention it to me, you had felt very much embarrassed by it, if not also irritated. I told him that you were too good to conceal your embarrassment from me, if you were really embarrassed, and that would be quite unlike you. I even added that in this particular instance you happened even to like my proposal and that even if it was discovered that you did not like it and that you were really embarrassed, it was impossible for me every time to consult you, or such other colleagues on such occasions. I went further and argued that work on such lines would become almost impossible. People act together when there is a general agreement between them on fundamentals and [provided] that their deductions from those fundamentals were, as a rule, identical, and that if, at times, they came to different deductions, a timely confession of error would keep their friendship in tact, as also the common cause. Nothing that I could say, however, would conciliate Vallabhbhai. The curfew bell, mutually agreed upon by us, came to the rescue, and put an end to what promised to be an endless discussion. But I retired to bed with a determination that I would refer the matter to you. Your reply, one way or the other, would bring some consolation to your counsel, and you know that it won’t make me disconsolate if you agreed with your counsel on both his propositions, namely, that before giving to the world the compromise proposal which I had given to Pandit Panchanan Tarkaratna I should have consulted you, and that it, as a matter of fact, did embarrass you. You would also add to your opinion on these points, your opinion whether on merits you consider my proposal to be sound or otherwise.

\(^1\) For a discussion, vide Appendix “Talk with Sadashivrao and Shinde”, 13-1-1933.

A perfect tragedy was enacted here yesterday. Five pandits and their five advisers came to the jail gate yesterday an hour and a half after the appointed time and took two hours and a half in exchanging brief notes with me, the three notes that they exchanged with me taking all the two hours and a half. And, will you believe it, when I tell you that they would not come in and carry on the discussion because I would not remove one word I had added to their draft, the word being an adjective added to the word ‘untouchables’. The adjective applied was ‘as at present classified’. Of course it altered the whole scope of their discussion. So they went away. Of course it is not our position that there is no untouchability at all in the Shastras. Our position is that there is no untouchability in the Shastras as we practise it today. They were expected to prove that untouchability as at present practised has sanction in the Shastras. It is an impossible task to perform honestly. No text that has yet been cited on their behalf has proved it. The Shastris on our behalf are really very learned men, and also pious men. It is their honest conviction that there is no warrant for the untouchability of the present day in the Shastras. The real untouchability will be there for all time. It is a sound hygienic rule practised all over the world.

Yours sincerely,

From a microfilm: S.N. 18922

655. LETTER TO GEORGE JOSEPH

January 13, 1933

MY DEAR JOSEPH,

You can better imagine than I can describe my joy at receiving your letter, and especially your letter to Pyarelal. I shall try to have your letter delivered to him. But let me say two things in connection with that letter.

1 Vide “Note to Deonayakacharya”, 12-1-1933.
2 In which the addressee had expressed his views on Pyarelal's book The Epic Fast and stated: “The Inner Voice is either a hallucination or the voice of God. If it is truly the voice of God, it cannot counsel self-destruction because the life that God gives is for Him alone to put an end to . . .”
My fast was not a fast unto death in its literal sense. The Roman Catholic priest, who is a visitor to this prison, knows me, and when I was on the eve of taking that fast, he came over to me in his kindly manner just to say one word, and he said how he drew the distinction between a suicide and a sacrifice. A suicide carried with it a certainty of destruction. A sacrifice meant risking life, the greater the risk, the greater the sacrifice. But there should be nothing beyond risk. I had no hesitation in agreeing with the distinction, and my fast being conditional was not a fast amounting to suicide, but it was a fast involving the greatest risk, but still a risk and no more.

You will be interested to know that some of my Roman Catholic friends have detected no flaw in the fast. Of course, in Hinduism some few extreme cases there are in which ending of life is peremptory, but these I need not consider at present. There is general agreement between Hinduism and other faiths that suicide is a sin.

Now, about the Inner Voice. Here again I can agree with you whole-heartedly when you say that the voice of God can never counsel or countenance sin. Encouragement to sin can only come from the devil. But the real difficulty comes in when the question of sin itself is debatable. Those who would consider a particular act to be sinful will naturally reject the claim that it was prompted by God. Hence it was that in answer to a question I said that whilst in self-defence and for the sake of truth which I worship I was bound to say what I believed, my claim was not to be accepted as part of argument in determining relevant questions. The opponents were bound to rule [out] that claim as wholly beside the point. Whether the claim for the voice of God was well or ill-made in a particular case can only be decided after the claimant's death, and in some extraordinary cases it may even then be difficult. Apart from the danger of hypocrisy there is the still greater danger of self-deception to which mankind is prone, and it is possible for self-deceived people to attain great things and yet their claim that the voice of God was behind their acts might be wholly wrong. These are final difficulties which will remain to the end of time, but if the truth is to make any progress, then self-deluded people must also be allowed full play.

Finally comes the question of confession. You may not know that I have some very valued Roman Catholic friends also. I am in the habit of picking up knowledge more from personal contact than from 1 For a discussion, vide Appendix “Discussion with a Friend”, 13-1-1933.

---

printed texts. These friends have not yet been able to clearly define the function of Confession and the Confessor. For instance, what is one to confess who has no consciousness of guilt and when there is, I can understand a Confessor granting absolution, but can he also guide the future acts of the penitent? In the place of the Confessor Hinduism has the Guru. I have all my life striven to find one, one to whom I can shift all my burdens and roam about merely doing his will. But then such implicit limitless obedience is not a mechanical act; and having got the spirit of obedience instinctively within me I would be satisfied by nothing less than tendering complete obedience. But it seems to me that it is not given to all to find the true Guru in this short span of life. But it is given to all to make that diligent search, and it may be that that very search is its own reward, and that it keeps one in possession of peace and joy everlasting. Anyway, you will accept my testimony that ceaseless search has not only given me such joy and peace, but has protected me from conscious error.

I thank you for copying for me that extract from Imitation of Christ. I read that book in one single sitting, I think, in the year 1905 or 1906, and a friend, only a few months ago, sent me another copy.

With our love to all of you,

Yours sincerely,

GEORGE JOSEPH, ESQ., M.A., BARRISTER-AT-LAW
“HILL VIEW”, MADURA

From a microfilm: S.N. 18923

656. LETTER TO G. V. MAVALANKAR

January 13, 1933

BHAISHRI MAVALANKAR,

I got your letter. Vinabehn also told me about your illness. Illness does not spare even a lawyer, nor the chairman of a municipality! It is something to be thankful for that you will be able to move about soon.

I read Keshavji’s questions. We should willingly endure a great many things like this to atone for the sins of our ancestors and our contemporaries. When to suspicion is added selfishness, you can expect nothing better. But I suppose the skin of your back has become sufficiently thick by now so that you feel such blows as light as flowers.

Thakkar Bapa¹ suggests that I should write to Dada² for the Harijan fund. Since when did you become Dada? It must have been before I was born. May you live long and serve the Harijans. Bapa suggests that you should use your influence with Vaishnavas like Chimanbhai, Sakarbhai, etc. They may not permit Harijans to enter temples for darshan, but they should liberally help with money for activities other than the movement for temple-entry. But need one commend the cause of the tongue to the teeth? If Bapa’s word does not carry weight with Dada, how can Bapu of merely fifteen years, standing hope that his will? I have only passed on to you the load put on my head by Bapa. He has also ordered me to write to Kasturbhai³ and make a similar request to him. May I give you my power of attorney?

Since you have just risen from the sick-bed, I tried to lighten business with a little humour and that has made the letter long. I, therefore, leave it to you to speak to Kasturbhai. As for Chimanbhai, I also will write to him.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 1234

657. LETTER TO NANALAL K. JASANI

January 13, 1933

BHAJ NANALAL⁴,

I got your postcard. I had a wire from Lilavati⁵ too. She has replied that she cannot say anything without consulting Padma. Let me have all the information you possess regarding this marriage. Who is the bridegroom and what kind of a man is he? What is his age? What is his economic condition and what sort of health does he have? What is his occupation? I suppose you know that Maganlal⁶ is against the marriage.

¹ Amritlal V. Thakkar; “Bapa” means father.
² “Grand-father” in Gujarati, but “elder brother” in Marathi. Addressee’s mother tongue was Marathi.
³ Kasturbhai Lalbhai, a mill-owner of Ahmedabad
⁴ Business partner of the late Dr. Pranjivan Mehta
⁵ Lilavati Mehta, wife of Chhaganlal Mehta
⁶ Maganlal Mehta
You seem to be very busy with the marriage in your family. I hope you have not been incurring unnecessary expenditure. Utilize the occasion also to give as much money to worthy causes as you can.

_Blessings from_
_BAPU_

From Gujarati: C.W. 9628

658. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

_CHI. NARANDAS,_

_Doctor Kanuga writes and tells me that Radha\(^1\) does suffer from tuberculosis. She should be sent away to a place like Deolali. She will be restored to health only if she takes complete rest there. You should discuss this with Santoks and Radha\(^2\). This is a difficult problem, but we must solve it._

_Do you get any letter from Ramabehn\(^3\)? Chhaganlal has received no letter from her at all._

_BAPU_

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./I

659. LETTER TO SHANKERLAL BANKER

_YERAVDA MANDIR,_

_January 13, 1933_

_CHI. SHANKERLAL,_

_I have your letter. Enclosed are the letters from Chamanbhai and Sakarbhai. Show them to Bhai Mavalankar. If his health has improved go with him to both of them. Or, you yourself do what you can. If we fail today, we shall succeed tomorrow. Let us not give up hope. My booklet for the Gujaratis will certainly materialize. It is taking time but now it will soon be ready. provided nothing fresh crops up to impede it._

_You and Anasuyabehn must be in good health._

_Blessings from_
_BAPU_

From the Gujarati original: S. N. 32735

---

\(^1\) Radha Gandhi, daughter of Maganlal Gandhi.
\(^2\) Widow of Maganlal Gandhi
\(^3\) Ramabehn Joshi, wife of Chhaganlal Joshi
660. LETTER TO CHAMANLAL GIRDHARDAS PAREKH

YERAVDA MANDIR,
January 13, 1933

DEAR CHAMANBHAI,

Bhai Shankerlal and Thakkar Bapa write that apart from the temple-entry, you are also declining to help to other activities of Harijan service. I did not, and still do not, expect this of you. Others may find fault with me as a Vaishnava, but surely you would not join them. My ideas about Harijan service are not new. Some day, you will yourself admit that my ideas are in keeping with Vaishnava dharma. However, I will let that pass for now. Do not bring into Gujarat the conflict prevailing elsewhere. I am entitled to ask this much of you. Bhai Mangaladas gave me this right and you acknowledge it. Therefore, I urge you to contribute what you can to the Fund.¹

Vandemataram from
MOHANDAS

From the Gujarati original: S. N. 32752

661. LETTER TO MARGARETE SPIEGEL

January 14, 1933

MY DEAR MARGARETE,

I must continue to dictate. You are entitled to call yourself an Indian since you have felt like one from your childhood, but that is not a substitute for your German birth. The adoption should be an addition both to your name and to your strength, and what can be finer than that we should all add on the virtues of our own nations to those of the others!

Why was there a struggle to choose between Gurudev and myself? We are no competitors. Gurudev occupies a throne which belongs to him by sheer merit. I have none of the gifts that he has, and what is more, we dearly love each other, and as years roll on, our love becomes stronger, and we understand also each other better and better. I would have you therefore to say that you like us both equally for whatever gifts God has bestowed upon us. No more therefore of choice-making, if you would be a real daughter like Mira.

¹ Vide also “Letter to G. V. Mavalankar”, 13-191933.

I hope you got my previous letter in which I acknowledged your letter written from Aden. The registered packet addressed to Mahadev was also duly received.

Love from us both.

BAPU

Spiegel Papers. Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library

662. LETTER TO M. THIAGARAJAN

January 14, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter. The question is not so much what the Harijans need, but how the caste Hindus should behave towards them. In my opinion, it is the clear duty of caste Hindus to give to the Harijans the same rights that they enjoy. The fact that evil has survived numberless generations does not make it any the less an evil. Similarly, the fact that untouchability has survived the great religious teachers whom you name does not warrant the present generation in continuing it, if it can be proved to be an evil. I am convinced it is.

A person who has heard the inner call should still be open to reason and therefore conviction. That attitude enables him and others to test the truth of his claim.

I do say with my conception of Hinduism that God denies Himself what Harijans are denied, because they are called Harijans.

Yours sincerely,

SJT. M. THIAGARAJAN
42 SINGARA TOPE
TRICHINOPOLY

From a microfilm: S.N. 18928

663. LETTER TO BHAGWANDAS

January 14, 1933

DEAR BABOO BHAGWANDAS,

I have your letter. I read an account of your meeting\(^1\) in the papers. We are bound at the present moment to find obstruction at our meetings. I know that the Benares meeting was in the safest hands and I knew how you took the wind out of the sail of the adversary by always giving him the chance and even the first chance of speaking and restraining the sympathizers from retaliating. I do hope that you soon got out of the effect of the little fever. It does not do to take unnecessary risks at our age. I suppose you are a few years older.

I will send you the other essays as soon as I am ready, and I shall thank you to ask someone to send me all the cuttings dealing with untouchability from the Aaj and even other Hindi newspapers. I am getting cuttings from Marathi and Gujarati but not from Hindi. I have not forgotten the message for the Aaj, nor the book you kindly left for me, the very first copy. I acknowledged it in a previous letter which I hope you duly received. You will be pleased to know that I have already made the commencement, but I have to confess that I am going very slow and sometimes misreading it altogether.

Yours sincerely,

DR. BHAGWANDAS
SEVASHRAMA, SIGRA
BENARES (CANTT.)

664. LETTER TO VERRIER ELWIN

January 14, 1933

I want to warn you against resisting nature beyond the saturation point. In Biblical language, I should say: “Thou shalt not tempt the Lord, thy God.” I would say without the slightest hesitation, if you have another bad attack you should treat it as the clearest call from God to return to England and render what service you can render there. If God wants you here, the first thing He would give you is health of body. If you have humbly to acknowledge defeat, you should do so. Your defeat will be victory for God of truth. There is no

\(^1\) Held on January 8, 1933, which passed a resolution in favour of temple-entry waste in God’s laboratory. The work begun there by you will not die. I do not mind if one man who has good health and is beyond reproach in character is there in sole charge. If there is no such worker just now, let the whole thing be temporarily wound up. This is no doleful picture. It is the real background for a Godly life. “Not my will, but thine, of Truth.” I must not prolong this sermon. You know what I mean. Where there is complete surrender, there is no room for self-will.

From the manuscript of Mahadev Desai’s Diary. Courtesy: Narayan Desai

665. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

January 14, 1933

CHI. NARANDAS,

I got your letter. I don’t require any information about Liladhar from you. Do you know if Shankarbhai neglects his father? I have already written to Mahavir again. Vallabhbhai suggests Wadhwan for Radha.

I asked you to write to me about the Chharas. Their harassment of us seems to have stopped. Does a bhajan party visit their settlement? Has the Government posted police to keep watch on them?

Prema causes me some worry. Her conduct frightens me. If she is silent because she has realized her error, I need not mind. If, however, she is silent because she is angry, she has more serious defect of character than I had thought. Try and discover, if you can, what is in her heart.

If you have any news about Gangabehn, Kusum and Lilavati, let me have it.

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: m.m. u./i APPENDICES

APPENDIX I

DISCUSSION WITH “THE TIMES OF INDIA” REPRESENTATIVE

November 21, 1932

REPRESENTATIVE: Have you decided to devote the rest of your life to eradication of untouchability?

GANDHJI: I cannot say that that is my present intention or that there is a possibility of it. It is wholly true to say that my life is devoted to this most important reform of Hindu dharma. But then my life is devoted to so many other things. I cannot divide my life into water-tight compartments. My life is indivisible. The root of all my activities is the same. In every sphere of life, be it small or big, my aim is to promote truth and ahimsa. This morning I read an article appearing in The Times of India. I would like to say something about it. I wish to correct an error in your editorial. It is not correct to say that all the questions regarding giving social rights to Harijans are covered by temple-entry. Temple-entry is just one of the many questions. If today it has come to the fore it is not because of me. At my request Shri Kelappan has given up his fast. So I am under an obligation to help him. Therefore, naturally, I have to do all I can to attract public attention to Guruvayur and see that before the second of January, the famous temple is thrown open to Harijans. The fast will be only to get that temple opened and no other. The fast will not be of my choosing. Only if Shri Kelappan is obliged to fast, it becomes my duty to undertake a fast too. In the effort to have the temple opened to Harijans, there is no thought of coercing any section of society. According to the information I have—and I have no cause to doubt the truth of it—many caste Hindus are in favour of throwing open the temples to Harijans. If this is so, it cannot be said that there was coercion. It may be kept in mind that though this question was put before the public only recently, Shri Kelappan and his associates have been working for it for a long time. And if he has won the public over to his view, it has not happened in a few days. It is the result of many years of sustained work.

R. Is your duty towards Shri Kelappan so great that if he undertakes a fast you must stake your life?

G. If I lose self-respect, I would at once become useless for any kind of service. I do not consider it a great thing to risk my life to keep a pledge made in all awareness in a just cause.

R. Do you consider this of more importance than the work you are doing for the Harijan cause?
Once I have violated a pledge, my life would be of no use to Harijans. But if in keeping a vow I have to die, it will be in my view a precious thing not only for the Harijans, not only for Hinduism, but I humbly submit, for the whole of India and the entire world.

Since you do not believe in image-worship, why are you taking so much trouble to have the right of image-worship given to Harijans?

I don’t think I have ever said that I have no faith in image-worship. I don’t remember that there is anything of this sort in my articles either. What I have repeatedly said is that I am both an iconoclast and an idolator. Is it not a very different thing from saying that I have no faith in image-worship? But if someone says that I hardly ever go to a temple, it will be quite true. I would not like to go into the reasons why I don’t visit the temples. But I will say this: that my religion is so all-embracing that I go with the same devotion to a Hindu temple, a Muslim mosque, a Christian church or a Jewish synagogue. I have never gone to any of these places as an atheist or a critic, but always with full devotion.

[From Gujarati]

APPENDIX II

DISCUSSION WITH “FREE PRESS” REPRESENTATIVE

December 3, 1932

1. From the point of view of the duty of the caste Hindus the question of Guruvayur is not a small one. It is wholly wrong to use the phrase ‘uplift of Harijans’. According to me, the first duty of the caste Hindus towards the Harijans is to throw open all the temples to them which are open to others.

2. I would not place the responsibility for temple-entry on the Anti-Untouchability League. Before the League was born, the question of Guruvayur was before the people. The League should certainly do as much as it can about the matter. But if the temple is not thrown open within the time fixed for it, the Sangh would not deserve to be castigated more than the other institutions.

3. If it is proved that Guruvayur is a private temple, there can be no ground for the fast.

4. If the reformers are truthful and humble, they can bring about a change of heart in the sanatanists. They should bear in mind that before they became reformers, they were sailing in the same boat with the sanatanists.

1 Vide “Statement on Fast to Anti Untouchability Committee”, 4-12-1932.
5. Reformers are trying their best to cultivate public opinion. And as a reformer myself, I think that public opinion has veered towards the reform to a considerable degree. I do not believe at all that most of the Hindus are under the influence of dharmacharyas. They listen to the Shankaracharya and other acharyas only to the extent it suits them. Suppose the Shankaracharya issues an injunction that nobody should drink liquor, do you think everyone will abide by it? If the dharmacharyas themselves observe restraint, then only can they make others do so.

6. I cannot wait to see myself fully restored before I undertake the fast. I believe that it will be at the command of God. When my body is weak, I am better able to stand fasting.

7. Millions of people—if they love me—will be distressed by my fast. They will raise such a powerful voice that it will become irresistible. There is a war between me and untouchability. If you want me to live, untouchability has to go. If you want untouchability to stay, I have to die.

[From Gujarati]
Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, pp. 302-3

APPENDIX III

LETTER FROM E. E. DOYLE

Inspector-General of Police,
Bombay Presidency,
Poona,
December 4, 1932

DEAR MR. GANDHI,

I am in receipt of your letter of today for which many thanks. I shall convey its contents, tomorrow, personally to Government. There is one point, a very important point, to my mind, on which we were agreed, which you have not touched on in your letter, it is, that the present practice of employing so-called ‘low-caste’ prisoners is of very wide import, and that you realize it cannot at present be altered. I feel I shall have a stronger case, if I have your confirmation of this in writing. I am sorry to worry you on your day of silence, especially after the strain of interviewing the Deputation, but I am sure you will appreciate that I desire to have all my points absolutely correct, when I place your case before Government tomorrow.

Yours sincerely,

E. E. Doyle

Home Department, Political, File No. 31/108-Poll., p. 22, 1932. Courtesy: National Archives of India

1 Vide “Letter to E. E. Doyle”, 4-12-1932.

VOL. 58: 16 NOVEMBER, 1932 - 14 JANUARY, 1933 477
APPENDIX IV

DISCUSSION WITH POONA SANATANISTS

December 7, 1932

GANDHJI: Temple-entry is a purely religious question. I have never regarded it as a question of expediency. For me religion is practice. Every Hindu has the right to go to a temple. The rules regarding personal hygiene apply to all. The custom of admitting Hindus of one particular class into temples has been in vogue for many years. But which Hindus should be admitted into a temple and which not is not a religious question. About this only the temple-goers should be consulted. Dharmashastras should not be brought in. The few who are left out should not coerce others. They should build another temple for themselves. From what study I have made of my religion, I feel that for those who are not permitted in other temples, the temple should be opened for a few hours. True religion is that which leads to spiritual progress and for which we are ready to sacrifice everything. The temple should be thrown open for ‘touchables’ for a few hours; but if the reformers are few, it cannot be thrown open to untouchables. The question of minority and majority arose from my fast. In answer to those who doubted if the majority wanted temples to be opened to untouchables, a referendum was suggested. If you prove beyond doubt that temple-entry by untouchables is against the Shastras, I shall be helpless.

QUESTION: Do you promise to listen to the Shastris if they secure a 51 per cent majority?

G. I would give up the fast today if you prove it to be adharma.

Q. Would you consider this opportunity for a discussion with the Shastris?

G. Whether it is my good luck or bad luck, you people have come here because of my fast. I had resolved that it was our duty to throw open the temples. I decided this long ago. I met the Shastris at Vaikom. They showed me Shankara Smriti and translated it too. But there was nothing in it to support what the Shastris said. I shall, of course, listen to you, since you have come to throw new light on the question; but, in the course of discussion I will not give up the resolve to fast. I read through many granthas and their translations and in the end decided that that which stands the test of ahimsa and truth is dharma. I did not go to the Gita, instead the Gita came to me. The Gita is for me an independent support. To save myself from all sorts of criticisms, I fell back on my faith, reason and bhakti. If what you say appeals to my reason, I shall say that I have lost on the rational plane. Then I shall depend on my heart. You will have to satisfy my heart.

Q. Will it not follow that what appeals to your heart is your dharma?
Whatever appeals to a man’s heart is dharma to him. Dharma cannot be reached by the intellect. It can only be reached by the heart. That is why it is for fools too. The question of temple-entry is purely religious. To alter my views is very difficult indeed because behind my views is a past. An ordinary man cannot decide what is and what is not dharma as regards temple-entry. It would be a mistake on my part to advocate temple-entry, if I regard it as adharma. But after a prolonged study and experience I have come to believe that it is our religious duty to throw open the temples to Harijans. I do not want to force on others what I have decided for myself. But I tell you that if your heart does not rebel against the existing tradition, I will be forced to undertake a fast. If it rebels, there will be no need for me to undertake it. I have already decided for myself. People have to decide for themselves.

Q. How can we appeal to your heart?

G. It is the teacher’s duty to convey the lesson to the student. How to do it, is the teacher’s look out. If he does not know this, how can he be called a teacher? Where am I to look for the guru? The guru should find me. If I go in search of him, I may stumble. Man does not have to go in quest of God. If we have to go in quest of Him, is It God? God finds His servants and devotees.

Q. Please talk in Sanskrit.

G. I am an ignoramus. If I were a pundit like you, I would not have allowed you to come here or I would have locked you up. I would have said, ‘Go away, my study of Shastras is different from yours.’

[From Gujarati]
Mahadevbhai Diary, Vol. II, pp. 310-3

APPENDIX V

LETTER FROM DR. B. C. ROY

36 WELLINGTON STREET,
CALCUTTA,
December 12, 1932

MY DEAR MAHATMAJI,

Your letter reached me yesterday. I heard from Mr. Khaitan the details of the discussion he had with you regarding the Bengal Anti-Untouchability Board. You told him that you were going to write to me. After hearing Mr. Khaitan, I was prepared for a letter from you such as you have sent me. Before I proceed further, you will allow me to mention that the position of the Presidentship of the Bengal

1 Vide “Letter to Dr. B. C. Roy”, 7/15-12-1932.
Board was not of my seeking and I now know that Mr. Birla had, after consultation with you and with your approval, selected me as President. When the call came, I agreed, in spite of my imperfections and my other pre-occupations. I do not forget also that the whole scheme originated with you and friends who met at Poona and, therefore, when these friends wanted me to do so, I accepted the responsibility. You asked me to be the President because you were then convinced that I could do the work. Now that you do not feel so sure and want me to withdraw, I gladly do so. I am writing to Mr. Birla today offering my resignation. It is no matter of self-abnegation for me, because I have never in my life occupied any place or position for a moment when those who have it in their gift desired that I should not continue to do so.

You have, in your letter, suggested that I should call all workers representing different groups and parties and let them choose whomsoever they like as President. May I point out to you that under the constitution of the League, the President of the Central Board nominates the Presidents of the Provincial Boards, who in their turn nominate the members of the Provincial Boards. I have no power to dissolve the Board already formed in Bengal. It is not, therefore, possible for me to follow your instructions even if I desired to, but I am referring the whole matter to Mr. Birla, the President of the All-India Board for him to take such action as he chooses.

You say in your letter: ‘But I see that the idea has not found favour in Bengal.’ I feel it my duty to inform you that in Bengal there are many parties and groups, besides those led by Sjt. Satis Das Gupta and Dr. Suresh Banerji, who are interested in removal of untouchability and who are doing very valuable work now. We framed the Bengal Board very carefully and, as Syt. Debi Prasad Khaitan must have told you, the Board was representative of the various groups. Many of the district bodies already in existence have written to us signifying their desire to co-operate with the Board and in fact we have had no refusal except, as Syt. Khaitan told you, from Messrs Das Gupta and Banerji, though each had different reasons. As you, however, seem to think that in Bengal a Board cannot function effectively unless with the co-operation of Syt. Das Gupta and Dr. Banerji, which they have refused to give, there is no option left but to dissolve the Board.

As the work of the League has already begun in Bengal, it would be difficult for me and the members of my Board to explain the position unless I get your permission to send this letter and the first paragraph of your letter to the Press. I hope you have no objection.

Yours sincerely,

B. C. Roy

In the Shadow of the Mahatma, pp. 77-8
APPENDIX VI

LETTER FROM E. E. DOYLE TO R. M. MAXWELL

POONA,

December 8, 1932

MY DEAR MAXWELL,

I had hardly put down the receiver after telephoning you, when I received a communication from Gandhi—further “mahseer wriggle”—I attach a copy of his letter, I shall send the original by Registered Post tomorrow, as the alterations are in his own handwriting, and it is much too important a document to chance going astray in the Post.

As soon as I received his letter I went down to Yeravda and found him interviewing a ‘deputation’—however I got him apart and had a real talk—I told him straight that there was not a vestige of truth in the statement, as far as I was aware, that so-called high-caste prisoners had been doing conservancy work for several months in Ratnagiri Prison and that I had not issued any orders stopping this work. Also that when I saw him last he had appreciated Government’s inability to give a reply “off-hand”, and realized that if this question was to be considered on an all-India basis and thoroughly examined it must take time—and that I had reported this to Government. After a great deal of hedging and talk I got him to alter his letter as shown. I cannot help feeling that he is funkimg his so-called “contemplated fast” on the 2nd January and is casting round for any excuse to get out of it.

Yours sincerely,

E. E. DOYLE

Home Department, Political, File No. 31/108-Poll., p. 30, 1932. Courtesy: National Archives of India

APPENDIX VII

DISCUSSION WITH MACRAE

December 12, 1932

GANDHII: I don’t think there is anything special I can say at the moment. I think, for the present, we should leave the question of wells. If at all I can say something, it will be about the fast. You may ask me about that.

MACRAE: What have you to say about the allegation that through this you impose your opinion on others?

G. My answer to this question will also cover what you have said about the resolution concerning my fast. Shri Jamnadas Mehta has perfect right to make the criticism he has made. But I do not accept his allegations. I have never tried to impose my views on others. I have never imposed my views even on the closest co-workers. But it has so happened that, despite my having admitted that I have committed Himalayan blunders, my views on many things have been proved correct. For me the question of untouchability is forty years old. Ever since, I have been facing opposition on this score. It has come not only from outsiders but also from my family members—old and young. But the views I have been holding and putting into practice for the last 45 years have been commonly accepted. Today, if my sanatanist friends charge that I have been forcing my views on the public or on the sanatanists, there is not much substance in the charge. Looking at the history of mankind, we find that whenever an individual has held some good ideas, has insisted on them and put them into practice in his life, the whole society has accepted them. Now, to say that he has forced his thoughts on the people is absurd. So long as there is no physical force behind one, it cannot be said that one has forced one’s views on others. It is true that my fast has evoked some anxiety. But I have no doubt in my mind that I am not at all to blame for it. I am carefully watching, with the eye of a scientist, the impact that my contemplated fast has had, and is having. What I see fills me with joy and hope. The fast has made people think. The fast will not force anybody to do anything against his conscience, but those who are lethargic will give up their lethargy and will start working with zest, that is, all those who love me will actively start working. I do not in the least feel depressed by this development. Those who feel that I am destroying Hinduism write angry letters saying I should quickly undertake the fast and depart from the world. Such letters do not have any effect on me. I am talking about these letters only to show that those who are opposed to eradication of untouchability will not be affected in the least by the fast which I am thinking of undertaking and it should be so. But about the fast, I will have to say more later on. At the moment I can only say that nobody would be able to deflect Shri Kelappan or me from the resolve to fast which has been inspired by God. I appreciate the efforts of Shri Mehta who has already warned the public beforehand. What causes me pain and surprise is the fact that the Zamorin is bringing all sorts of allegations against those who are engaged in organizing voting. I consider him to be a gentleman. He knows that Shri Madhavan Nair, who is the Chairman of the Voting Committee is a respectable lawyer, well-known throughout Kerala. Rajaji is helping the Committee and supervising the work. They are people who will not tolerate any unfairness. It is the Zamorin’s duty to point out if they have resorted to any objectionable means. This question is purely moral and religious. There can be no room for taking sides, for love and hate. If the sanatanists and reformers work together they will be able to bring out the truth. Let me once again assure you that as soon as I come to know that I am mistaken about the public opinion, I will immediately give up the idea of fasting. I wish to worship Truth only. I have no other aim than that.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhai Diary, Vol. II, pp. 325-7

APPENDIX VIII

LETTER FROM SECRETARY, ALL-INDIA VARNASHRAMA SWARAJYA SANGH

December 8, 1932

We have to thank you for your prompt reply to the 6th instant.

We note that you will be pleased to receive a visit from any sanatanist friends and that if they convince you of the error, you will gladly retrace your steps. Having regard to our letter to you of which this is a reply, we take it that you are prepared to retrace your steps if, from the discussion suggested by us, you are convinced of the error of your steps from the Shastraic point of view. The object of our last letter was to know from you, whether you were willing to have an organized discussion on the lines suggested in our letter, in order to ascertain what is the truth so far as the Shastraic view on untouchability and restrictions on the temple-entry are concerned.
From your letter, it appears that you are willing to have such a discussion. We never suggested that you should call such an assembly.

After you definitely declare your willingness to have the Shastraic point of view investigated in the manner suggested by us, the work of calling together the assembly may be done by Acharya Dhruva of Benares on your side and by us on behalf of the All-India Varnashram Swarajya Sangh. We take it that after the investigation of the Shastraic view, your attitude would be in accordance with such a view.

Your division of the Shastris into no-change Shastris and pro-change Shastris is not relevant to the present discussion, as our common object is to find out the truth as regards the statement that untouchability and restrictions on untouchables’ temple-entry have no Shastraic basis.

As regards your assurance that no coercion is intended by you by your fast, please allow us to tell you the well-known maxim of law that a man is presumed to intend the consequences of his own acts.

The Hindu, 19-12-1932
APPENDIX IX

EXTRACT FROM T. CHINNIAH’S LETTER

December 9, 1932

“. . . . You say the Poona Pact is much better than the Award for it gives more seats. I wish to inform you that it is not the quantity that is important but it is the quality. The Award gives 18 seats by separate election, voting power in the general election, and seats if liked by the Depressed Classes and allowed by the caste people in the general electorate. The Pact gives only 30 seats in the general electorate. . . . In the words of Dr. Ambedkar according to the Premier’s Award we will send to the Councils 30 diluted (in Madras). Secondly by the Award the so-called high class people would beg of the Depressed Classes to give them votes by which the pride of the high caste people will be suppressed. . . .

You say the Poona Pact “provides against the election of any candidate who is not in the first place approved by the majority of Harijans”. I know you are referring to the Primary Election and its panel is four. I hope you would realize dear Mahatmaji that there is difference in confidence which each member in the panel enjoys among the Depressed Classes. Suppose in the Primary Election ten people contest. The first man secures 5,000 votes, the second 2,000 votes, the third 1,000, the fourth 900, the fifth 800, the sixth 700, . . . the eighth 600, the ninth 590, and the tenth 500. All these people enjoy the confidence of the Depressed Classes but there is difference in the confidence. . . . If the panel is six, the first six would be approved by the Depressed Classes, and if the panel is eight, the first eight would be approved by the Depressed Class. But don’t you see there is vast difference between each man? After the Primary Election the selected candidates would have to stand in the joint electorate (I know the mentality of the caste people), and the result is the last man in the panel would be elected by the caste Hindus. The caste people would elect a man who possesses the least confidence among the Depressed Classes so that he may be subservient to them.

On 9-3-31 [I] wrote you a letter requesting you [to] stay in a paracheri (i.e., the place where the Depressed Classes live) whenever you visited Madras so that you may learn at first hand the difficulties of my people but you took up your residence in the palatial buildings of the Brahmins at Mylapore. If you had listened to my words, you would never have spoiled the Premier’s award.

You say “I am certainly not in favour of special electorates for the merchants, landlords, and others. Then why don’t you fast for their abolition; is it because that your fast won’t have any effect over the merchants and the landlords?

Dear Mahatmaji, though the Poona Pact has been signed by the M.L.C.[s] yet the people of this Presidency are against it. They want at least the panel in the Primary Election should be two and not four. I request you to consent to the panel being two. . .”

From a microfilm: S.N. 18673

APPENDIX X

LETTER FROM RAMTARAN MUKHERJI

December 6, 1932

I humbly beg to approach you as the greatest man of India, nay of the whole world, in view of the fact that you claim to be a sanatanist.

You know that Dadhichi gave up his bones for the benefit of the Devas, when they asked for them, but you are going to lay down your life without the asking. You know that Jesus was crucified under a decree of the then authority. You know that Socrates drank a cup of poison under certain decree of some sort of authority, but in your case, no such decree comes your way to obey. Under the circumstances it justifiable to lay down your valuable life without fulfilling the plainest duty of convincing the sanatanists that therefore they are in the wrong in not following your ideal?

Your ideal is lofty. But you cannot expect that the faith, conscience, and call from within of an ordinary row of sanatanists are similar to yours. Had it been so, all the sanatanists would have been transformed into so many Mahatma Gandhis. Therefore is it not just and fair and proper for the present conditions of mentality, to descend from the ideal, which is your own, to common, practical and realistic ground, with a view to enlighten and convince the sanatanists, with your sweet reasonableness? Please consider how Bhagwan Shankaracharya defeated the Bouddhas and drove them out of India by force of reason, etc. Please consider how Mahaprabhu Shri Chaitanya Deb succeeded in conquering the hearts of people by propagating the religion of love. But you have not yet launched any propaganda to convince the sanatanists that the old order of the sanatanists must be changed in a suitable manner, yielding place to new order of things and that the Shastras should not be thrown in the Ganges water, but according to the interpretation of Shastras the sanatanists must swallow the pill however bitter it may be. We admit that Bhagwan Shankaracharya had not had the occasion to refute the Christian and the Mohammedan religion. He refuted Jain, Bouddha, Sankhya, Vaisheshik, Bhagavat and other persuasions. But now we have come in contact with democratic civilizations of the West, which we cannot ignore. On the contrary, we must consider how far varnasrama religion should be modified, so as to meet the pressing demands of the modern times.

I, therefore, earnestly pray that you will kindly take up the propaganda of enlightening and convincing the sanatanists in right earnest and in your own way and till then you should do well to abandon the idea of self-immolation.

Yours sincerely

RAMTARAN MUKHERJI VEDANTATIRTHA

PS.

I humbly beg to inform you as, although I am an orthodox Hindu, we have removed the ban of untouchability, if Harijans think fit to be pure in body and dresses.

Yours sincerely,

RAMTARAN MUKHERJI VEDANTATIRTHA

From a microfilm: S.N. 18660

APPENDIX XI

LETTER FROM C. RAJAGOPALACHARI

CALICUT,
[December 12, 1932]¹

I do not quite like the change of name you have agreed to for the League. ‘Servants of Untouchables Society’ is good in itself, but it means a continued recognition of untouchables as such. ‘Servants of India’ or ‘Servants of Bhils’ or ‘Servants of God’ are all right because ‘India’ must be there, ‘Bhils’ is a race name and not a name implying inferiority, and ‘God’ is always there. But ‘Servants of Untouchables’ or ‘Servants of Slaves’ would not be right if we intend to abolish untouchability or slavery. Suppose the American abolitionists had a league called ‘Servants of Helpers of Slaves’. It would not have expressed the object. Of course the Society may close down when the institution of slavery or of untouchability is abolished. But the argument is not right, for it is the abolition in the psychology of men that is wanted at once. You would have to say ‘Servants of Untouchables so-called’ which is cumbersome and in reality open to the same objection. I would have liked ‘Untouchability Abolition League’ or (Society) . . . As a matter of fact, I did not ¹ The source has “12-10-1932” which seems to be a misprint for ‘12-12-1932’.

486 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
like ‘Anti-Untouchability’ as a phrase. It is so barbarous. ‘Untouchability Abolition Society’ would be further a literal rendering of the names already in use in Hindi, Gujarati and other Indian languages without any objection. It is really abolition of a slave status and the phrase ‘Abolition’ would be suggestive and emphatic, as ‘prohibition’ has come to stay in connection with drinks and drugs. Service to a group of men is not really the object and aim, if we think about it. It is really the doing away with the evil. There is a school of thought which would keep the segregation, and asks us to do all we can to make them live and eat more comfortably. This is not all we want to do.

_In the Shadow of the Mahatma_, pp. 81-2

APPENDIX XII

_DISCUSSION WITH UNTOUCHABLES’ DEPUTATION_

_December 15, 1932_

QUESTION: There is no mention of Dr. Ambedkar’s letter in the report of the Anti-Untouchability League.

GANDHII: Your complaint should be that the issues raised in it were not considered. You let me know your complaint against me. I will tell you in what ways I am helping you.

Q. You said to Devrukhkar: ‘Win these people through love.’ But there should be love in him in the first place.

G. Then you reverse the thing, and you win him through love!

Q. No, no; he is as big as the Gaurishankar mountain. No doubt, we can fight him, but there is a limit to our violence too.

G. I firmly believe that factionalism should be avoided. I will try my level best to remove this tendency among caste Hindus.

Q. What about giving some social privileges to them?

G. This is going on in all the Provinces. People are being made to understand and there is no laxity about it. Go to Malabar and see what a great change has taken place.

Q. But what plan do you have for the betterment of this section of society?

G. It is precisely for this that I have raised the question of temple-entry. Sanatanists have got frightened because of it. They tell me, ‘You do everything else, let them take water from the wells; but please don’t touch the temples.’ This is just the first step. When the work progresses, other problems also will be solved. There is a lot of propaganda work to be done as regards temple-entry. And this work is already going on proper lines in Malabar.

Q. To remove the sufferings of the untouchables and the hardships inflicted on them by the touchables, please appoint a committee of lawyers to find a remedy.

G. We shall use the services of volunteer-lawyers.

Q. Volunteers will not be able to do much.

G. Even if they are like me?

Q. They [untouchables] should be admitted in the weaving department of the mills. Today there is untouchability in eating-houses and in the matter of water-taps. It is there in the tea-stalls of Majoor Mahajan. Why don’t you suggest to the Chamber of Commerce that they should take casual labourers from among the untouchables? Is there any change in your views regarding the four varnas?

G. I am afraid, no. I do believe in the four varnas. There should not be any restrictions regarding inter-marriages and inter-dining. There is nothing in the Shastras that says that different varnas cannot inter-marry. I have put this into practice in my life, but at present I do not want to propagate it. If I take up the programme of reforming the castes, my work regarding eradication of untouchability would suffer. All occupations should be hereditary. Millions of people are not going to become Prime Ministers and Viceroyos. Moreover, so long as ashrams dharma does not revive, varna dharma too is not going to revive.

Q. To what extent can we consider you as our man?

G. Since before Ambedkar was born, I have been your man. You will find all the things that he advocates in my old articles. Nobody has opposed untouchability in such strong language as I.

Q. That is what the Editor of Bhala also claims?

G. Everyone who makes the claim honestly can do so. But, as Solon said, a man should be given a certificate only after his ashes cool down. Who knows I may not prove to be the worst sanatanist!

[From Gujarati]

---

1 The saying attributed to Solon is: “Call no man happy till he dies.”
APPENDIX XIII

LETTER FROM G. D. BIRLA

December 21, 1932

MY DEAR BAPU,

I have your typed letter with its enclosures. Dr. Roy had already sent to me a copy of his letter to you, and now with your reply to the same I have got the full correspondence with me. I should not like to waste your time over this matter any more, yet I cannot resist my inclination to write as I feel. Your mistake was somewhat of a different nature from the one as understood by you. There is no question of my being placed in an awkward position. If you put me even in a more awkward position, you can do so with pleasure. But even now I do not agree with you that your mistake was confined to over-rating your influence with Dr. Bidhan. In fairness to Dr. Roy, I must say that he could not have helped feeling hurt. To my mind, the mistake lay in the fact that Sureshbabu and Satisbabu being more closely associated with you, you should have helped Dr. Roy in securing the former’s co-operation instead of asking the latter to resign simply because your nearest friends would not give their co-operation to Dr. Roy. I may admit that Sureshbabu and Satisbabu had good reason to withhold their co-operation, yet I think you should not have chosen Dr. Roy for sacrifice. This, in my opinion, was your mistake. And I felt surprised when I saw your first letter to Dr. Roy, as constitutionally you are almost incapable of making such mistakes. We are so much dazzled with your superhuman personality that we have almost lost self-confidence in ourselves. The result is that whenever I feel doubtful about your actions I console myself with an explanation that the fault may be with my own capacity to understand the implication of your decision. So it was in this case. I still feel that in your last reply to Dr. Roy you should not have rebuked him, if I may use the word, for misunderstanding your letter. I hope I am not wasting your time. I am writing all this for my personal satisfaction and you may write to me if you think it at all necessary to do so.

As regards the definition, as you know in such matters I worry little. But your latest definition seems to be the best of all those discussed previously. As regards the complaint of Dr. Ambedkar’s friends that we did not give serious consideration to the Doctor’s letter, I think it is made under some misapprehension. Like Dr. Ambedkar’s suggestion, there were many other suggestions before us which required to be considered and embodied in the Blue Pamphlet. But we decided not to discuss the Blue Pamphlet at all in such a big meeting and therefore appointed a small committee of three to discuss and revise the Blue Pamphlet in the light not only of suggestions by Dr. Ambedkar but of many other criticisms which may be received from the Provincial Boards and other members. But I confess that our Secretariat is not so efficient as it ought to be. Poor old Thakkar is wandering from place to place and in the absence of a capable Secretary at the Head Office the work is, undoubtedly, suffering. Before we started this Society, Devidas had promised to help me, but he seems to be occupied with other work. In fact I made a grievance of it to him when I met him yesterday. But he has promised to get me a good man. As it is, I told him, the work must suffer. I myself can get a good man, but you know, my getting a good man means payment of so much money. I can get a man only on the market value. What is required in such societies is a man who wants to undergo self-sacrifice. I wonder, therefore, whether you could help me. If he can take charge of the work Devidas can do wonders, but unfortunately he is not coming.

We are issuing the Journal about the beginning of January and I am expecting a contribution from you (I have got it just now.). Viyogi Hari has been appointed to edit the Hindi Journal. I do not have a good man just now to look after the English Journal and so I am utilizing our office staff to do the work. But as you will realize all this requires the services of a good secretary and I must have one.

About the name of the Society, I am afraid it would look ridiculous to change it for the third time. Rajaji’s letter although it impressed you so much did not make an impression on me. But probably it is due to the fact that I look upon all these things with some indifference.

I hope you are quite fit.

Please do not worry about my health. I am just all right. I have not tried the prunes. I propose to do so.

Yours affectionately,

Ghanshyamdas

In the Shadow of the Mahatma, pp. 82-4

APPENDIX XIV

DISCUSSION WITH NATARAJAN AND DEVDHAR

December 18, 1932

NATARAJAN: What you tried to avoid in England is taking place here. There is a big gulf between the sanatanists and the reformers. It is necessary for you to come out to stop our society from disintegrating. I strongly feel that you should come out to conduct this movement. To use your own words, you have to stand surety to stop this fight. But I do not know how you can come out.

G. Nor do I. There should be no restrictions on those who want to do only this work. Those who are in jail can also go out saying that they will confine their work only to the eradication of untouchability. But whether or not they should do this, I cannot say. I cannot even say that I would like their doing so. But it is not that anyone who gives up civil disobedience will cease to be my co-worker and will become less dear to me. Suppose I am released unconditionally, it is possible I may advise people to give up civil disobedience. But today I would not like to bind myself by any such condition.

N. Is it not possible to postpone civil disobedience for the time being?

G. We can think over it after I am unconditionally released.

N. I cannot ask you for an assurance of any sort. But when you say that you have devoted your life to this work, it means that you will leave all other work and will concentrate only on this. You do not wish society to be divided. You want the caste Hindus to accept the Harijans as their own. The caste Hindus as well as the opposition both have faith in you.

G. We can certainly prevent division.

DEVDHAR: Bitterness can be removed if certain matters are cleared up.

G. I am not afraid that society will be divided. There may be some bitterness regarding Guruvayur, but I have kept that matter separate from all others.

D. If we go step by step, the sanatanists will join us.

G. They certainly will. That is why I have laid down so many restrictions with regard to other temples. But if there is laxity in securing the Viceroy's permission, I will have to undertake the fast.

N. But it will take two months to obtain that because the Bill would remain with him for two months.

D. Why don't you write to the Government that those who say that they will work only for the eradication of untouchability should be released? You must also make it public that those of your followers who devote themselves exclusively to this work will not, on that account, become less dear to you.

G. I cannot tell them to take up this work instead of going to jail. In that case, I myself should first come out by giving such an assurance. Only then I can tell others to do so.

D. If you really feel that this work requires the whole of your lifetime, you can come out without any sort of mental hesitation.

G. No. If I really felt the need for it, I would have written to the Government long ago. Today, it is my firm belief that if I go out in this way, I shall lose all the strength for work.

D. Is it because people consider you a political leader?

G. No, people see me as a whole, for what I am. They know that politics is only a part of my service to them. They have instinctively understood that my whole life is for the service of the people. This is a question of mental justification. The moment I go out, I shall start wondering what to do in this calamitous situation. It is possible I may think only of civil disobedience and nothing else. I am fully satisfied that I am able to do this work even from here.

D. Try to find some way so that you are able to have these other people released.

G. The way I have suggested should have an impact on the Government. The Government should itself understand that the whole nation is occupied with this work.

D. Will you not say that this work is equally important and that workers should plunge themselves into it?

G. Take for instance Jamnalalji. He should not go out on any such condition. If I tell him to do so, he may agree, but I cannot tell him to go out like this. In this movement there is no need of old workers who are in jail. A new class of workers has emerged and I am happy about it. If Jamnalalji himself feels like going out, he can do so with my blessings. But I will not tell him to do so. Many prisoners meet me every fortnight. I have told them that, if they feel like going out by giving an assurance that they will work only for the eradication of untouchability, I will not say that they had done something wrong.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, pp. 351-3

APPENDIX XV

LETTER FROM SECRETARY, ALL-INDIA VARNASHRAMA SWARAJYA SANGH

December 19, 1932

DEAR SIR,

With reference to your letter of the 16th instant delivered this morning, you will please not mix up any other discussion with any other Shastris whether from Pandharpur or from any other place with the discussion which we have agreed upon with you.

If you have fixed 23rd instant for discussion with Pandharpur Shastris, you will please appoint some other day for investigation settled between us and after reference to the pundits who are to attend on behalf of the All-India Varnashrama Swarajya Sangh, we shall confirm the said date, if convenient.

We have mentioned no terms regarding the discussion. What we said was that some madhyasthas will have to be appointed and it will have to be settled what books shall be relied upon and the rules of interpretation will have to be settled.

It is, therefore, absolutely necessary that you will please mention the names of any two gentlemen of experience, position and dignity to sit as madhyasthas and the names of the pundits whom you or Acharya Dhrufa intend to call to support your statements.

As soon as this is done, we shall mention the names of our pundits and the two madhyasthas.

The duty of the madhyasthas will not be the duty of the Chairman but the duty will be to see that the discussion is carried on in writing in an organized manner.

Our sole desire is that the discussion should be carried on in an organized manner as has been stated to you in the very beginning and not merely a fruitless discussion.

As has already been settled in the correspondence, the objects of the discussion would be to investigate and find out the truth whether untouchability is enjoined by Shastras and whether there are restrictions in Shastras on untouchables’ temple-entry. We take it that if it is done and the pundits whom you call are unable to support the view hitherto propounded by them, you will retrace your steps.

Yours truly,

HIRALAL D. NANAVATI
SECRETARY, A.I.V.S. SANGH

M. K. GANDHI, ESQ.
C/O YERAVDA PRISON
POONA

From a microfilm: S.N. 18753

---

1 Mediators
MY DEAR BAPU,

I have received today the resignation from Dr. Roy. He has also sent to me a copy of his letter to you which he wrote in this connection. I am accepting his resignation. The more I think of the matter the more I feel that our troubles are not ended. Dr. Roy is not a quarrelsome man, and I hope he may forget the whole incident. But I doubt if his followers will so easily forget it. Besides I feel the public would not sympathize with Satisbabu and Sureshbabu, as in my opinion by humiliating Dr. Roy they have put themselves absolutely in the wrong. Thus your action instead of soothing the situation may cause a greater gulf between the various parties in Bengal. Satisbabu and Sureshbabu both being closely related to you, probably it would have been better for them to yield rather than wish for Dr. Roy’s resignation. This would have helped easing the situation. As it is, you have given Bengalis cause to feel that it was a non-Bengali who could make or unmake Presidents of public bodies. This would surely be resented. If I were Dr. B. C. Roy, I would refuse to accept Presidentship under such circumstances. I, however, express these views just for your information and that of Satisbabu, if he is still there. Let me hope, this will end the trouble.

We are coming out with the first issue of our weekly on the 1st of January. Please therefore send us your article in time.

Yours affectionately,

M. K. GANDHI, ESQ.
POONA

From a photostat: S.N. 18704

---

2 The source has “would be”.
APPENDIX XVII

EXTRACT FROM LETTER FROM C. F. ANDREWS ¹

November 10, 1932

The whole of my own religious upbringing has been such as to make any thought of suicide on my part impossible.

I am really troubled still . . . such a practice as this will certainly be used by fanatics to force an issue which may be reactionary instead of progressive. Human madness or even doting affection may become tyrannical in this way. How far my anxieties and fears are mixed with weak human affection I can hardly myself understand. I do know that I saw you finally giving your life itself for the Depressed Classes, in your last fast, and I was glad—I saw in it the ‘greater love’. I can see you now preparing to do the same thing on January 1st, if the temple authorities do not give way.

. . . It seems to me that I would very gladly lay down my life to remove ‘untouchability’, between the white race fanatics who call themselves Christians and the other races. But you have evidently come to the point of forcing the issue, literally forcing it, and I have to think that out in terms of Christ.

I think He did force the issue, when He set His face steadfastly to go to Jerusalem. He saw then, I think, that only His own death could call the Jewish leaders to a halt. There is one strange saying of His, ‘The Kingdom of Heaven suffereth violence, and the violent take it by force.’ Again I am not sure whether His act in cleansing the temple was not of the same character, i.e., forcing the issue. But the method of fasting, committing suicide, still instinctively repels me.

Charles Freer Andrews, p. 264

APPENDIX XVIII

DISCUSSION WITH K. KELAPPAN ²

December 29, 1932

KELAPPAN: When I asked you to share my burden, I said nothing about the fast.

GANDHJI: Others gave what they could. What had I to give other than a fast? So you should have known that I would be sharing your burden only in some such way. There is nothing wrong in this. The more I think over it, the more I feel that the ² Vide “Interview to Associated Press of India”, 29-12-1932 and “Statement on Untouchability”, 30-12-1932.

complications I have created were necessary. Hinduism is dying before my eyes. If I want to revive it, what else is there for me to do? You don’t know what is going on inside me. You must wait and enquire and suffer. If I have to fast, you must put up with it. For the present the fast is postponed. What the future has in store, I do not know. Maybe, fasting will be unnecessary. Or I may feel that to undertake a fast for Guruvayur will be foolish and a waste of energy. You will benefit from the confusion I am causing you. The questions which Rajaji asked yesterday have set me thinking and maybe my statement will take a different shape. But you should let the matter rest here and set to work at once. Try to understand the inner meaning of the fast, of the eradication of untouchability and of temple-entry. I feel that if we can get rid of untouchability the right way, it will be the saving of Hinduism. Otherwise, there is going to be a fierce fight between caste Hindus and the so-called untouchables. The untouchables will fight with violent rage and hatred and in sheer desperation will try to obliterate Hinduism from the face of the earth. They are not going to deny Hinduism. They are also not going to embrace any other religion. But they will deny God. This strife will be more fierce than between Brahmins and non-Brahmins because they feel the pain more deeply. My fast may prevent such a strife, though I do not know. Or it may not have any effect. But I did not go in search of the fast. I lay in bed thinking about an ugly decision of the Government and this question of yours came up before me and I plunged into it. At that time, I did not even know that it would call for a fast. You did right in acquainting me with all the facts. Other friends also sent me telegrams, which too was proper. Everything that has happened has been for the good.

[From Gujarati]
Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, pp. 382-3

APPENDIX XIX

DISCUSSION WITH MAHADEV DESAI

BAPU: In a religious matter nobody should accept anyone else’s opinion as binding. One must rely on one’s own intuition.

MAHADEV: Then we should not join in calling the Parishad.

BAPU: We are not doing that. They are calling the Parishad on their own. I tell them that if they can convince me that I am wrong, I will admit my error.

MAHADEV: Then we should not concern ourselves with whether or not the Parishad comes to a unanimous decision. You should merely say, you are keeping an open mind. That’s enough.

Bapu further explained: Look at the man asking me why I do not challenge my opponents to a public discussion and defeat them, as Shankaracharya did. I tell him that that is beyond my strength. My strength is of a different character and I am using it. How can I change my idea of dharma in deference to other people’s views?

[From Gujarati]
Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. II, p. 319
1. LETTER TO N. H. PURANDARE

January 13, 1933

MY DEAR PURANDARE,

I have your letter. I am sorry to have had it. I don’t like the spirit underlying it. You have looked upon the whole thing as a commercial transaction, whereas I have looked upon the whole thing as a matter of selfless service. You left the question of remuneration entirely in my hands, although I asked you to tell me what you would charge for giving me a corrected collection of your speeches on untouchability and for supervising the printing. But you would not think of it, telling me that there was no mercenary motive behind it. That being so, I had no hesitation in undertaking the delicate task, but at the end of it, I shirked it, and I asked Haribhau to name the sum. He named Rs. 125 and I straightaway accepted. Believe me, so far as I am concerned, I did not think of the Arya Bhushan bill in connection with fixing up your fee, remuneration or honorarium, whatever it may be called. Nor did I then know nor do I now know that the Arya Bhushan bill is exorbitant. My understanding is that they should not make anything but nominal profits. You are thinking of anything between Rs. 500 to 3,000. I can only meet your proposal with a reasonable offer. You can take over the book yourself by simply paying the printing charges and sell the book on your own account and make whatever profit you can, only you should not increase the published price, for any increase in the price would be unjust to the public.

I have already asked Haribhau to pay you Rs. 125 if you would accept the amount in full payment and not feel any dissatisfaction. For I would be deeply hurt if, after having left the thing in my hands, you were dissatisfied with the amount declared by me.

Yours sincerely,

S. N. H. PURANDARE

604 SADASHIV PETH

POONA 2

From a microfilm: S.N., 18915
2. LETTER TO DHANNU LALL SHARMA

January 13, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I will not refer you to any of my statements this time, but I will ask you to re-read your own letter. I suggest to you that that letter is libellous, insulting and unworthy of one who holds the position of General Secretary of a Sanatan Dharma Sabha.

If you will re-read your letter calmly and dispassionately, you will at once apologize to the pandits whom you have libelled, and, in any event, till you apologize, your letters will neither be read nor replied to. I am sorry for it.

Your sincere friend,

SIT. DHANNU LALL SHARMA
GENERAL SECRETARY
SHREE SANATAN DHARMA SABHA
220 HARRISON ROAD
CALCUUTA

From a microfilm: S.N. 18917

3. LETTER TO SATYANANDA BOSE

January 13, 1933

DEAR SATYANANDA BABOO,

You are always so good and always think of me whenever there is anything to say to me.

I think that this is hardly the time to consider improvements in Dr. Subbaroyan’s Bill. The first thing is to get the Viceregal sanction. When that is had, many improvements may be possible. I am not therefore just now applying my mind to your suggestion. After the principle of the Bill is once accepted, the Government themselves may

1 In which the addressee had referred to Gandhiji’s “Appeal to Sanatanists”, 4-1-1933, and said that the pandits had deceived not only him but the whole world; vide “Appeal to Sanatanists”, 4-1-1933

2 That the Bill be confined to giving authority to the trustee of a temple to allow the untouchables to enter it and worship as the caste Hindus do (S.N. 18893) take it up or may advise amendments so far as that may be necessary to free the Bill from any possible political mischief. So far as I am concerned, my one thought in connection with the temple-entry is the purification of caste Hindus. But of course I shall bear your suggestions in mind whenever the occasion arises for their use.

Yours sincerely,

Sjt. Satyananda Bose
4 Nundy St.
Bally Gunge
Calcutta

From a microfilm: S.N. 18918

4. LETTER TO S. T. RAMANUJA IYENGAR

January 13, 1933

Dear Friend,

I have your letter together with your article1. I am sorry indeed that there should have been any molestation of you by the audience. I have, as you must be aware, repeatedly written against intolerance, and I shall gladly re-emphasize my warning when the time comes.

As for your article, we must agree to differ.2 Our conception of sanatana dharma is different. In your impatience you have not even cared to understand my fundamental position. I can only say, ‘Read all my statements with a fresh mind, then if you have still doubts, discuss them with Sjt. Rajagopalachariar and if you are not still convinced and would care to do so, come down to Yeravda and I shall gladly give you one hour and try to convince you that the position I take up and the means I adopt to vindicate are both perfectly defensible.’

Yours sincerely,

Sjt. S. T. Ramanuja Iyengar
4 Varadaraja Perumal Coil St.
Trichinopoly

From a microfilm: S.N. 18919

1 "The Drive against Untouchability"
2 The addressee had written in his article: “He [Gandhiji] has given up his creed of non-co-operation with Government so far as untouchability is concerned by accepting special Government favours, and is actively blessing legislative efforts, once taboo, to facilitate removal of untouchability. . . .”
5. LETTER TO S. NAGASUNDARAM

January 13, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter. I have read the texts quoted by you. So far as I can make them out, they have no application to the present-day conditions. Those who are regarded as untouchables today cannot be classified as Chandalas at all.

Inter-dining is no part of the campaign against untouchability.

Yours sincerely,

SIT. S. NAGASUNDARAM

NEAR KING’S CIRCLE

MATUNGA

BOMBAY

From a microfilm: S.N. 18921

6. LETTER TO C. RAJAGOPALACHARI

January 13, 1933

MY DEAR C.R.,

Vallabhbhai had a battle royal with me last night on your behalf. If a person, an utter stranger to him, had chance to be there, from the vehemence of Vallabhbhai’s language, he would have concluded that we must be most quarrelsome persons.

He thought that I was doing violent injustice to you, inasmuch as, without consultation with you, I made proposals that might prove to be utterly embarrassing, as had happened on two occasions.

The cause of our quarrel was my compromise proposal. He thought that I had no right to publish it without consultation with you, and he was quite sure that though you were too good to mention it to me, you had felt very much embarrassed by it, if not also irritated. I told him that you were too good to conceal your embarrassment from me, if you were really embarrassed, and that would be quite unlike you. I even added that in this particular instance you happened even to like my proposal and that even if it was discovered that you did not

---

1 For a discussion, vide “Talk with Sadashivrao and Shinde”, 13-1-1933 like it and that you were really embarrassed, it was impossible for me every time to consult you, or such other colleagues on such occasions.
I went further and argued that work on such lines would become almost impossible. People act together when there is a general agreement between them on fundamentals and [provided] that their deductions from those fundamentals were, as a rule, identical, and that if, at times, they came to different deductions, a timely confession of error would keep their friendship in tact, as also the common cause.
Nothing that I could say, however, would conciliate Vallabhbhai. The curfew bell, mutually agreed upon by us, came to the rescue, and put an end to what promised to be an endless discussion. But I retired to bed with a determination that I would refer the matter to you. Your reply, one way or the other, would bring some consolation to your counsel, and you know that it won’t make me disconsolate if you agreed with your counsel on both his propositions, namely, that before giving to the world the compromise proposal which I had given to Pandit Panchanan Tarkaratna I should have consulted you, and that it, as a matter of fact, did embarrass you. You would also add to your opinion on these points, your opinion whether on merits you consider my proposal to be sound or otherwise.

A perfect tragedy was enacted here yesterday. Five pandits and their five advisers came to the jail gate yesterday an hour and a half after the appointed time and took two hours and a half in exchanging brief notes with me, the three notes that they exchanged with me taking all the two hours and a half. And, will you believe it, when I tell you that they would not come in and carry on the discussion because I would not remove one word I had added to their draft, the word being an adjective added to the word ‘untouchables’. The adjective applied was ‘as at present classified’. Of course it altered the whole scope of their discussion. So they went away. Of course it is not our position that there is no untouchability at all in the Shastras. Our position is that there is no untouchability in the Shastras as we practise it today. They were expected to prove that untouchability as at present practised has sanction in the Shastras. It is an impossible task to perform honestly. No text that has yet been cited on their behalf has proved it. The Shastris on our behalf are really very learned men, and also pious men. It is their honest conviction that there is no warrant for the untouchability of the present day in the Shastras. The real

1 Vide “Fragment of Letter to Lord Sankey”, 22-11-1932 untouchability will be there for all time. It is a sound hygienic rule practised all over the world.

Yours sincerely,

From a microfilm: S.N. 18922

7. LETTER TO GEORGE JOSEPH

January 13, 1933

MY DEAR JOSEPH,

You can better imagine than I can describe my joy at receiving your letter, and especially your letter\(^1\) to Pyarelal. I shall try to have your letter delivered to him. But let me say two things in connection with that letter.

My fast\(^2\) was not a fast unto death in its literal sense. The Roman Catholic priest, who is a visitor to this prison, knows me, and when I was on the eve of taking that fast, he came over to me in his kindly manner just to say one word, and he said how he drew the distinction between a suicide and a sacrifice. A suicide carried with it a certainty of destruction. A sacrifice meant risking life, the greater the risk, the greater the sacrifice. But there should be nothing beyond risk. I had no hesitation in agreeing with the distinction, and my fast being conditional was not a fast amounting to suicide, but it was a fast involving the greatest risk, but still a risk and no more.

You will be interested to know that some of my Roman Catholic friends have detected no flaw in the fast. Of course, in Hinduism some few extreme cases there are in which ending of life is peremptory, but these I need not consider at present. There is general agreement between Hinduism and other faiths that suicide is a sin.

Now, about the Inner Voice.\(^3\) Here again I can agree with you whole-heartedly when you say that the voice of God can never counsel or countenance sin. Encouragement to sin can only come from the devil. But the real difficulty comes in when the question of

\(^1\) In which the addressee had expressed his views on Pyarelal's book The Epic Fast and stated: “The Inner Voice is either a hallucination or the voice of God. If it is truly the voice of God, it cannot counsel self-destruction because the life that God gives is for Him alone to put an end to . . .”

\(^2\) Vide

\(^3\) For a discussion, vide “Discussion with a Friend”, 13-1-1933 sin itself is debatable. Those who would consider a particular act to be sinful will naturally reject the claim that it was prompted by God.
Hence it was that in answer to a question I said\(^1\) that whilst in self-defence and for the sake of truth which I worship I was bound to say what I believed, my claim was not to be accepted as part of argument in determining relevant questions. The opponents were bound to rule [out] that claim as wholly beside the point. Whether the claim for the voice of God was well or ill-made in a particular case can only be decided after the claimant’s death, and in some extraordinary cases it may even then be difficult. Apart from the danger of hypocrisy there is the still greater danger of self-deception to which mankind is prone, and it is possible for self-deceived people to attain great things and yet their claim that the voice of God was behind their acts might be wholly wrong. These are final difficulties which will remain to the end of time, but if the truth is to make any progress, then self-deluded people must also be allowed full play.

Finally comes the question of confession. You may not know that I have some very valued Roman Catholic friends also. I am in the habit of picking up knowledge more from personal contact than from printed texts. These friends have not yet been able to clearly define the function of Confession and the Confessor. For instance, what is one to confess who has no consciousness of guilt and when there is, I can understand a Confessor granting absolution, but can he also guide the future acts of the penitent? In the place of the Confessor Hinduism has the Guru. I have all my life striven to find one, one to whom I can shift all my burdens and roam about merely doing his will. But then such implicit limitless obedience is not a mechanical act; and having got the spirit of obedience instinctively within me I would be satisfied by nothing less than tendering complete obedience. But it seems to me that it is not given to all to find the true Guru in this short span of life. But it is given to all to make that diligent search, and it may be that that very search is its own reward, and that it keeps one in possession of peace and joy everlasting. Anyway, you will accept my testimony that ceaseless search has not only given me such joy and peace, but has protected me from conscious error.

I thank you for copying for me that extract from *Imitation of \(^1\) Vide, passim

Christ. I read that book in one single sitting, I think, in the year 1905 or 1906, and a friend, only a few months ago, sent me another copy.

With our love to all of you,

Yours sincerely,

GEORGE JOSEPH, ESQ., M.A., BARRISTER-AT-LAW
“HILL VIEW”, MADURA

From a microfilm: S.N. 18923

8. LETTER TO G. V. MAVALANKAR

January 13, 1933

BHAISHRI MAVALANKAR,

I got your letter. Vinabehn also told me about your illness. Illness does not spare even a lawyer, nor the chairman of a municipality! It is something to be thankful for that you will be able to move about soon.

I read Keshavji’s questions. We should willingly endure a great many things like this to atone for the sins of our ancestors and our contemporaries. When to suspicion is added selfishness, you can expect nothing better. But I suppose the skin of your back has become sufficiently thick by now so that you feel such blows as light as flowers.

Thakkar Bapa\(^1\) suggests that I should write to Dada\(^2\) for the Harijan fund. Since when did you become Dada? It must have been before I was born. May you live long and serve the Harijans. Bapa suggests that you should use your influence with Vaishnavas like Chimanbhai, Sakarbhai, etc. They may not permit Harijans to enter temples for \textit{darshan}, but they should liberally help with money for activities other than the movement for temple-entry. But need one commend the cause of the tongue to the teeth? If Bapa’s word does not carry weight with Dada, how can Bapu of merely fifteen years, standing hope that his will? I have only passed on to you the load put on my head by Bapa. He has also ordered me to write to Kasturbhai\(^3\) and make a similar request to him. May I give you my power of \(^1\) Amritlal V. Thakkar; “Bapa” means father.

\(^2\) “Grand-father” in Gujarati, but “elder brother” in Marathi. Addressee's mother tongue was Marathi.

\(^3\) Kasturbhai Lalbhai, a mill-owner of Ahmedabad

THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
attorney?

Since you have just risen from the sick-bed, I tried to lighten business with a little humour and that has made the letter long. I, therefore, leave it to you to speak to Kasturbhai. As for Chimanbhai, I also will write to him.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 1234

9. LETTER TO NANALAL K. JASANI

January 13, 1933

BHAI NANALAL¹,

I got your postcard. I had a wire from Lilavati² too. She has replied that she cannot say anything without consulting Padma. Let me have all the information you possess regarding this marriage. Who is the bridegroom and what kind of a man is he? What is his age? What is his economic condition and what sort of health does he have? What is his occupation? I suppose you know that Maganlal³ is against the marriage.

You seem to be very busy with the marriage in your family. I hope you have not been incurring unnecessary expenditure. Utilize the occasion also to give as much money to worthy causes as you can.

Blessings from

BAPU

From Gujarati: C.W. 9628

10. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

January 13, 1933

CHI. NARANDAS,

Dr. Kanuga writes and tells me that Radha⁴ does suffer from tuberculosis. She should be sent away to a place like Deolali. She will be restored to health only if she takes complete rest there. You should

¹ Business partner of the late Dr. Pranjivan Mehta
² Lilavati Mehta, wife of Chhaganlal Mehta
³ Maganlal Mehta
⁴ Radha Gandhi, daughter of Maganlal Gandhi.
discuss this with Santoks and Radha. This is a difficult problem, but we must solve it.

Do you get any letter from Ramabehn? Chhaganlal has received no letter from her at all.

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./I

11. LETTER TO SHANKERLAL BANKER

YERAVDA MANDIR,
January 13, 1933

CHI. SHANKERLAL,

I have your letter. Enclosed are the letters from Chamanbhai and Sakarbhai. Show them to Bhai Mavalankar. If his health has improved go with him to both of them. Or, you yourself do what you can. If we fail today, we shall succeed tomorrow. Let us not give up hope. My booklet for the Gujaratis will certainly materialize. It is taking time but now it will soon be ready, provided nothing fresh crops up to impede it.

You and Anasuyabehn must be in good health.

Blessings from

BAPU

From the Gujarati original: S. N. 32735

12. LETTER TO CHAMANLAL GIRDHARDAS PAREKH

YERAVDA MANDIR,
January 13, 1933

DEAR CHAMANBHAI,

Bhai Shankerlal and Thakkar Bapa write that apart from the temple-entry, you are also declining to help to other activities of Harijan service. I did not, and still do not, expect this of you. Others may find fault with me as a Vaishnava, but surely you would not join them. My ideas about Harijan service are not new. Some day, you will

1 Widow of Maganlal Gandhi
2 Ramabehn Joshi, wife of Chhaganlal Joshi yourself admit that my ideas are in keeping with Vaishnava dharma. However, I will let that pass for now. Do not bring into Gujarat the conflict prevailing elsewhere. I am entitled to ask this much of you. Bhai Mangaldas gave me this right and you acknowledge it. Therefore, I urge you to contribute what you can to the Fund.¹

Vandemataram from
Mohanadas

From the Gujarati original: S. N. 32752

13. LETTER TO MARGARETE SPIEGEL

January 14, 1933

MY DEAR MARGARETE,

I must continue to dictate. You are entitled to call yourself an Indian since you have felt like one from your childhood, but that is not a substitute for your German birth. The adoption should be an addition both to your name and to your strength, and what can be finer than that we should all add on the virtues of our own nations to those of the others!

Why was there a struggle to choose between Gurudev and myself? We are no competitors. Gurudev occupies a throne which belongs to him by sheer merit. I have none of the gifts that he has, and what is more, we dearly love each other, and as years roll on, our love becomes stronger, and we understand also each other better and better. I would have you therefore to say that you like us both equally for whatever gifts God has bestowed upon us. No more therefore of choice-making, if you would be a real daughter like Mira.

I hope you got my previous letter in which I acknowledged your letter written from Aden. The registered packet addressed to Mahadev was also duly received.

Love from us both.

BAPU

Spiegel Papers. Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library

¹ Vide also “Letter to G.V. Mavalnkar”, 13-1-1933
² Vide “Letter to Margarete Spiegel”, 12-1-1933
14. LETTER TO M. THIAGARAJAN

January 14, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter. The question is not so much what the Harijans need, but how the caste Hindus should behave towards them. In my opinion, it is the clear duty of caste Hindus to give to the Harijans the same rights that they enjoy. The fact that evil has survived numberless generations does not make it any the less an evil. Similarly, the fact that untouchability has survived the great religious teachers whom you name does not warrant the present generation in continuing it, if it can be proved to be an evil. I am convinced it is.

A person who has heard the inner call should still be open to reason and therefore conviction. That attitude enables him and others to test the truth of his claim.

I do say with my conception of Hinduism that God denies Himself what Harijans are denied, because they are called Harijans.

Yours sincerely,

SIT. M. THIAGARAJAN
42 SINGARA TOPE
TRICHINOPOLY

From a microfilm: S.N. 18928

15. LETTER TO BHAGWANDAS

January 14, 1933

DEAR BABOO BHAGWANDAS,

I have your letter. I read an account of your meeting\(^1\) in the papers. We are bound at the present moment to find obstruction at our meetings. I know that the Benares meeting was in the safest hands and I knew how you took the wind out of the sail of the adversary by always giving him the chance and even the first chance of speaking and restraining the sympathizers from retaliating. I do hope that you soon got out of the effect of the little fever. It does not do to take unnecessary risks at our age. I suppose you are a few years older.

\(^1\) Held on January 8, 1933, which passed a resolution in favour of temple-entry
I will send you the other essays as soon as I am ready, and I shall thank you to ask someone to send me all the cuttings dealing with untouchability from the Aaj and even other Hindi newspapers. I am getting cuttings from Marathi and Gujarati but not from Hindi. I have not forgotten the message for the Aaj, nor the book you kindly left for me, the very first copy. I acknowledged it in a previous letter which I hope you duly received. You will be pleased to know that I have already made the commencement, but I have to confess that I am going very slow and sometimes misreading it altogether.

Yours sincerely,

DR. BHAGWANDAS
SEVASHRAMA, SIGRA
BENARES (CANTT.)

From a microfilm: S.N. 18929

16. LETTER TO VERRIER ELWIN

January 14, 1933

I want to warn you against resisting nature beyond the saturation point. In Biblical language, I should say: “Thou shalt not tempt the Lord, thy God.” I would say without the slightest hesitation, if you have another bad attack you should treat it as the clearest call from God to return to England and render what service you can render there. If God wants you here, the first thing He would give you is health of body. If you have humbly to acknowledge defeat, you should do so. Your defeat will be victory for God of truth. There is no waste in God’s laboratory. The work begun there by you will not die. I do not mind if one man who has good health and is beyond reproach in character is there in sole charge. If there is no such worker just now, let the whole thing be temporarily wound up. This is no doleful picture. It is the real background for a Godly life. “Not my will, but thine, of Truth.” I must not prolong this sermon. You know what I mean. Where there is complete surrender, there is no room for self-will.

From the manuscript of Mahadev Desai’s Diary. Courtesy: Narayan Desai
17. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

January 14, 1933

CHI NARANDAS,

I got your letter. I don’t require any information about Liladhar from you. Do you know if Shankarbhai neglects his father? I have already written to Mahavir again. Vallabhbhai suggests Wadhwan for Radha. I asked you to write to me about the Chharas\(^1\). Their harassment of us seems to have stopped. Does a bhajan party\(^2\) visit their settlement? Has the Government posted police to keep watch on them?

Prema causes me some worry. Her conduct frightens me. If she is silent because she has realized her error, I need not mind. If, however, she is silent because she is angry, she has more serious defect of character than I had thought. Try and discover, if you can, what is in her heart.

If you have any news about Gangabehn, Kusum and Lilavati, let me have it.

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./I

\(^1\) An ex-criminal tribe of central Gujarat. Vide also “Letter to Narandas Gandhi”, 7-1-1933
\(^2\) Troupe of devotional singers
Prema causes me some worry. Her conduct frightens me. If she is silent because she has realized her error, I need not mind. If, however, she is silent because she is angry, she has more serious defect of character than I had thought. Try and discover, if you can, what is in her heart.

If you have any news about Gangabehn, Kusum and Lilavati, let me have it.

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U/I

18. LETTER TO KASHI GANDHI

YERAVDA,

January 14, 1933

CHI. KASHI,

I have gone through your letter. I felt very unhappy that we could not talk a little longer. If, however, we go a little deeper into the matter, we might wonder what after all there was to talk about. Since you will be reading my letter to Prabhudas, I will not say anything more about the matter. I will write directly to you and you also should send your letters directly to me. I had written to Keshu just a few days before. There is much difference between Keshu’s nature and that of Prabhudas’s. Prabhudas will open his mind to everyone, Keshu will not do so to anyone. With Maganlal, too, he hardly ever talked. However, it is certainly your duty to tell me if you know anything or have seen anything about him.

Blessings from

BAPU

From the Gujarati original : S.N. 33075

19. LETTER TO PRABHUDAS GANDHI

YERAVDA,

January 14, 1933

CHI. PRABHUDAS,

I received your letter. It seems to me improper that you should have written directly to Nanabhai. Kakasaheb may write if he wishes to. And it would be unreasonable for me to burden him with responsibility. We may keep in mind the conditions you have stipulated but we cannot put them down on paper. It would be altogether unbecoming to do so. Discuss with Kakasaheb all that you have written to me and do as he suggests. I can understand your impatience. Once you have decided to marry, it is best that you should do so as soon as possible. However, some time is bound to elapse. Or, perhaps it may not be so.

Certainly the best course is that you yourself should look for a girl concurrently with the work you are doing and Kakasaheb and others also may be on the lookout at the same time. Do not worry about what Vinoba will think. His blessings will always be with you. You cannot have a girl from the Ashram, for it would be improper to arouse the least trace of such a feeling in any girl in the Ashram. Even indirectly, such a feeling should not be encouraged. Hence you should also not think of selecting any of the girls who have newly joined the Ashram.

What you say about Padma in your letter shows how dangerous was the close association of you two. Both of you were forcing yourselves to behave as brother and sister, while deep down in your hearts you felt yourselves to be husband and wife. But that is an old story now. Padma will of course know the fact when you get married, but it is too much to expect her to find a girl for you. It is beyond her capacity, but even if it was within her capacity, it would be undesirable to do so. We just cannot burden her with such a responsibility. You have no reason whatever to feel helpless. Write to me without hesitation any foolish or silly idea that may occur to you. I will not misunderstand what you say, for, I have faith in you and even blind love for you. I believe that you will never deceive me. I am not at all unhappy at your simplicity of mind. If your simplicity is a cause of fear for you, it also acts as a shield for me. You yourself may tell G.V. Pant, Harivallabh or any other of your acquaintances in Almora to guide and help you. Do not think of the high or low social status of the girl concerned, consider only her character. Write to Devdas. He may possibly have some girl in view. It would be good if you spend about a month in Kosamba and learn the harmless method of extracting honey. The whole course takes a month and a half to complete. But really speaking, it should not require even that much time. I am firmly of the view that for industrious people like us, a week or fifteen days at the most are sufficient.

There is no need at all for you to go out of your way to see Sarojinidevi, nor to satisfy her with an explanation. If she has indulged in an exaggeration, it cannot be undone now. Our own way of looking at things should be such that if we ourselves have committed a little wrong, it should appear to us big as mountain, so that if the world regards it as such, we are not shocked. The man who looks upon his failings as if they were diamonds and pearls and weighs their value as we do that of diamonds and pearls, is certain to commit big sins and he who looks upon the smallest sin as if it was the biggest, would certainly be saved from big sins. I would see nothing wrong if you happen to meet Sarojinidevi by chance and the matter comes up for discussion but there is no need at all to open the subject intentionally.

Blessings from
BAPU

From the Gujarati original: S.N. 32983

20. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

January 15, 1933

CHI. NARANDAS,

All your letters seem to have been delivered to me. For how many days did Chimanlal\(^1\) try the fenugreek seeds? Jamna\(^2\) may try them along with any other medicine which she is taking. But she should take care that she does not get constipation.

About Mahavir, I can think of no other way. The whole family must leave. I have given up the hope of their observing the rules. This is my view. If, however, you wish to let them stay, I can have no objection. But have no doubt that misplaced kindness is a form of violence.

I also feel worried about Prema. I am pained and surprised that she cannot see her weakness which everybody else can see. I had hoped that I would be able to open her eyes. It seems I have been wrong, for the present at any rate. But she is a thoughtful lady. Hence I do not give up hope altogether. Her language was certainly full of hatred, but she denies it. That means that she does not know when one’s language may be described as full of hatred. She does not

---

\(^1\) One of the oldest inmates of the Ashram who was suffering from asthma
\(^2\) Jamnabehn Gandhi, addressee’s wife even have faith in me to trust that, when my loving heart feels the presence of hatred anywhere, it must be there. I am partial to her and stress her virtues as outweighing her faults. If, then, I see a weakness in her, instead of getting angry with me she should be humble and try to understand her weakness. If I am committing an error, she should point it out to me. This is how I feel. I may die any day. Ultimately the burden will have to be shouldered by you. Therefore do what you think best. If I am doing injustice to anybody in any matter, do not hesitate to tell me so. And if you are convinced that my view is correct, do not hesitate to tell her so emphatically. I certainly do not wish to crush her individuality in any manner whatsoever. If the individuality of any person in the Ashram is crushed, that would harm the Ashram itself. But I think Prema misunderstands the meaning of individuality. I understand her problem, but I feel helpless before her obstinacy.

I understand what you say regarding Liladhar. Has he abandoned his plan of going to Zanzibar? If you decide to take him back, have a frank talk with him before doing so.

If the harassment by the Chharas has stopped, is it because our people have started going in their midst or does it mean something else?

I have discussed everything with Prabhudas. Your letter did not give the statistics of people’s weights.

[PS.]

BAPU

NARANDAS,

Durlabhji Sampat and Sitaram, two brothers, are prisoners in this jail. Durlabhji is married. After he is released, he wishes to stay in the Ashram for two months or so and have experience of the life there. And so does Sitaram. I have told them that there will be no difficulty in admitting them. They will write to you. If you can accommodate them, admit them.

Did anything happen between Balwant, Prabhashankar’s son, and you? How is Ratilal? I hope Totaramji is completely all right now. Read all my letters to the Giri family.

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./L.Also Bapuna

Patro–9: Shri Narandas Gandhine, Pt. II, pp. 14-6

1 Prabhudas Gandhi, son of Chhaganlal Gandhi
2 Father-in-law of Ratilal Mehta
3 Totaram Sanadhya, an Ashram inmate
21. LETTER TO RATILAL K. SHAH

January 15, 1933

BHAI RATILAL KUNVARJI,

I got your letter. You have given very important information. But we find the same thing in regard to many temples. Hoping that what happens occasionally will by and by happen every day, we should go on trying.

MOHANDAS GANDHI

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 92

22. LETTER TO KRISHNADAS GANDHI

January 15, 1933

CHI. KRISHNADAS

I have read your letter to Prabhudas. It is ignorance, and therefore an error, to go on working without regard to one’s health till the body breaks down. You should take rest even for being able to serve, as you wish to do. I hope that Prabhudas did not drag you as far as Bombay. He could have easily gone there by himself and also seen Vinoba. I will suggest this to him if it is not too late—let me know if it is.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 3084

23. LETTER TO KESHAV GANDHI

January 15, 1933

CHI. KESHU

If you take only as much milk and ghee as you can digest, I don’t think you will experience any difficulty in observing brahmacharya. Mutual service keeps love fresh.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 3268

1 Son of Chhaganlal Gandhi
2 Son of Maganlal Gandhi
24. LETTER TO PREMABEHN KANTAK

January 15, 1933

CHI. PREMA,

Your continued sulking shows that you have a good measure of childishness in you. If you do not tolerate my criticizing you, you are not at all likely to tolerate anybody else doing so. Instead of thanking me for [telling you] the impression you produce on me, you get angry with me. Your duty is to try to ask me again to explain my charge against you, if you have not understood it. You may also quarrel with me. But all your education and wisdom seem to have disappeared on this occasion. You cannot even see that behind your sulking lies your extreme pride. Let me tell you that this is not freedom but self-will. I wish that you should open your eyes and understand my love, and not falsify my estimate of you. It is not right for you to sulk; on the contrary, you should feel sorry and weep for having made me suffer. Why don’t you realize that, if I say anything harsh to you, it is for your own good? If I am making any mistake in doing so, it is your duty to point it out humbly to me. If you are sure that you are innocent, you should be confident of being able to prove it to me. Instead, you resent my criticism and sulk, and thereby seem to aggravate your guilt. I had never expected this from you. Wake up and express sorrow for nursing resentment against me.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10322

25. LETTER TO JAMNABEHN GANDHI

January 15, 1933

CHI. JAMNA,

You seem to have lost confidence in me. It doesn’t matter. Go and live somewhere for a year and then tell me. Will it give you confidence if I suggest that Narandas may pay a short visit during the last month or even earlier? It will not matter if you are not able to return to the Ashram at all. Create the atmosphere of the Ashram wherever you live. You need not then go to the Ashram. Will this satisfy you?

I feel much worried that Purushottam’s health does not improve. I have been thinking what to do.

BAPU

From Gujarati: C.W. 870. Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi

26. LETTER TO PURUSHOTTAM GANDHI

January 15, 1933

CHI. PURUSHOTTAM,

It is not right that your constipation does not disappear completely. It will certainly be cured if you go and live in Hajira. The air and water of that place have that miraculous effect. Or you should come to Poona and stay here for some time. I will have you treated by a doctor here. The water of this place is believed to be good and life is comparatively cheaper. This is the best season of the year. You will certainly get some work here.

Blessings from

BAPU

From Gujarati: C.W. 906. Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi

27. LETTER TO K. M. MUNSHI

January 15, 1933

BHAISHRI MUNSHI,

I got your letter. I am writing this letter only to reassure you. You need not reply to this. Poor Pradhan, he has a reason to describe me as a young man. But should he do that before you? But apart from that, would it be surprising if an old man of twenty should regard you, a man of forty-five, as being ‘dateless’?

I don’t mind differences of opinion at all. Where the heart is one, why should we mind such differences? I shall not be so foolish as to lose you readily. We shall be like two beads in a necklace held on the string of truth, no matter even if they are of rather strange colours. Lilavati’s\(^1\) boldness is beyond praise. She was always like that. Get all right soon.

\(^1\) Addressee’s son

_Blessings from_

_BAPU_

From Gujarati: C.W. 7525. Courtesy: K. M. Munshi

28. LETTER TO JIVRAM K. KOTHARÍ\(^2\)

_January 15, 1933_

The words “twenty-four hours” you have taken rather literally. You should have understood my intention in using them. For twenty-four hours mean for as long as possible. When it is raining or is very hot, when there is a strong wind or it is extremely cold, or when for any other reason it is absolutely impossible or will be harmful to remain or sleep or work in the open, one’s moral duty is to take shelter under a shade or a roof or in a house with the doors and the windows shut. All that you should have read in my words is that it is desirable to spend as much time as possible in the open without anything between oneself and the sky. Those who understand this will spend the least possible time inside their houses and will also see that there is adequate ventilation inside.

And now about knowing the time of the day. A village worker does not require a clock or a watch. All his activities follow nature. His clock also is nature’s. His manner of indicating time is different from ours. He will not ask a person to come at four. He will say: ‘Come at prayer time’, or ‘Come an hour or two before sunset’, or ‘Come at daybreak’, or ‘Come when the birds start singing’, or ‘Come at dinner time’, or ‘Come when I am weaving tape’, or ‘Come at twilight’ or ‘at supper time’. One can thus use different descriptions for different hours of the day. And the worker is so regular in his tasks that he does not need to look at the sky to know the time of the day. Every day he does the same job at the same hour and takes the same time for doing it. Because of this exact regularity, when the work is over he knows what time of day it is. Since he is not in the habit of consulting a watch, he cannot say how many hours he would require

---

1. Addressee’s wife
2. The addressee was working in Orissa for a given job. But he says that he weaves a certain number of yards of tape daily, and from that he and others can judge for how many hours he must be working. It was because of this that in former days time was not counted in hours but was measured by the amount of work done. Even when the village worker travelled, he experienced no difficulty, for he knew how many miles he could walk between sunrise and sunset. Such a worker rests not according to the clock but only when he feels tired. In short, one feels very little need for a clock in a village; one may say that one feels no need at all. The village worker measures his work by reference to the movements of the sun or the other heavenly bodies. Clouds are no obstacles to this, because there are very few days in the year when the sky is covered with clouds. Even on such days, however, his work goes on as usual. Prayer time also is observed without any conscious effort. If one’s hours of the day are filled with work and succeed one another in the same order, one will know without looking at the clock when it is time for prayer. It will, then, rarely happen that one gets up late and has to worry about how to make up for the lost time. It is not necessary to adjust the time of evening prayer with the prayer hour in the Ashram. People living in different parts of the world cannot do a particular thing at the same hour. It will, therefore, be most convenient for you to start your prayer when the sun sets in that part of the country. I think I have answered all your doubts, big and small.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. III, pp. 55-7

29. LETTER TO SHARDA C. SHAH

January 15, 1933

CHI. SHARDA,

Your letter. You seem to be absorbed in work. That is very good indeed. Is not writing to me part of your work? If not, why not?

BAPU

From the Gujarati original: C.W. 9961. Courtesy: Shardabehn G. Chokhawala
30. A LETTER\(^1\)

January 15, 1933

There are four remedies: First, Ramanama; second, pure air, pranayama in open air, asanas and other exercises; third, wholesome food, wheat, green vegetables and milk, exclusion of spices and sweets; and fourth, keeping the body busy with work the whole day so that one may get sound sleep at night.

[From Gujarati]
Mahadevbhai Diary, Vol. III, p. 54

31. LETTER TO GOPALDAS DESAI

January 15, 1933

All four of us were at one in complimenting you for not coming.\(^2\) Few people have observed such self-control. Compliments to you once again.

[From Gujarati]
Mahadevbhai Diary, Vol. III, p. 54

32. A LETTER

January 15, 1933

If it is true that my life is dedicated to the service of all creatures, it is still more true that it is dedicated to God. How can I help when He prompts me to undertake an indefinite fast?

I can show that the use of legislatures to secure freedom to the Harijans to enter temples is not opposed to the principle of non-co-operation. But I would be violating jail rules by doing so. If, therefore, I get an opportunity later to explain that and if you are present at that time, you may ask your question. My present activities for the removal of untouchability may seem to do temporary harm, but it is a fact of universal experience that work for a good cause

\(^1\) The correspondent had asked how he could cure wet dreams.

\(^2\) The addressee, who had recently been released from jail, had not gone to see Gandhiji.
ultimately does no harm, and I have no doubt in my mind that this is a good cause.

[From Gujarati]
Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. III, pp. 54-5

33. LETTER TO A YOUTH¹

January 15, 1933

A great many such things are being written about me. The article is such a palpable lie that I hope nobody will put his trust in it. And if there are any people who put their trust in it, my reply to it will have no effect on them.

[From Gujarati]
Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. III, p. 55

34. LETTER TO ANASUYABEHN SARABHAI

*Y. M.,
January 15, 1933*

CHI. ANASUYABEHN,

Muldas's account is excellent. I had learnt about it from someone. Such tours may prove very effective. They are an object-lesson and real propaganda.

I saw your signature after many days. I do think of you constantly of course. I am certainly hungry for silent devotion.

Blessings from

BAPU

From the Gujarati original: G. N. 11559

¹The addressee is described in the source as “a young man of Dar-es-Salaam”
35. A LETTER

January 15, 1933

The article you have sent me is full of poison from beginning to end. I hope my life is living proof of its falsehood.

[From Hindi]
_Mahadevbhaini Diary_, Vol. III, p. 55

36. TELEGRAM TO HOME SECRETARY
GOVERNMENT OF INDIA

January 16, 1933

SECRETARY TO GOVERNMENT
HOME DEPARTMENT
NEW DELHI

REGARDING MY REQUEST FOR PERMITTING CONSERVANCY WORK TO BE DONE BY HIGH-CASTE PRISONERS WHO MAY VOLUNTEER TO DO SUCH WORK MAY I NOW KNOW GOVERNMENT DECISION?

GANDHI

From a photostat: G. N. 3876. Also Bombay Secret Abstracts, Home Department, Special Branch, File No. 800 (40)(6), p. 285

37. LETTER TO E. E. DOYLE

January 16, 1933

DEAR COL. DOYLE,

Sjt. Mathuradas, the only grandson of a deceased sister of mine, was recently discharged from Belgaum Prison. He met me and told me that my letters were delivered to him with passages cut out. Now my letters never contain anything that might possibly be considered of an obnoxious nature from the prison or any other standpoint. They go from here duly censored. The Superintendents here have done me the favour of drawing my attention to passages in my letters which they may not like. But to cut out words or passages from a letter without reference to the writer may lead to dangerous interpretations or interpretations not intended by the writer. In my opinion any letter of which a passage is held objectionable should be referred to the writer and option given to him either of withdrawing the passage or the letter altogether. And I cannot understand the practice of double censoring. My letters are all thought out and conceived as one piece. They contain mostly ethical matters. The removal of a word may change the meaning. I should not like my letters to be interfered with without my knowledge. I may say that I often receive Maniben Patel’s letters with large patches making the letters meaningless.

---

1 By Vasantram Shastri

I wish you could grant relief in this matter by no means trivial to me.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

Government of Bombay, Home Department, I.G.P. File No. 9

38. LETTER TO E. E. DOYLE

January 16, 1933

DEAR COL. DOYLE,

I hope that you have now overtaken the Christmas week arrears and are comparatively free to devote a little attention to an important matter which we have often talked about but never thoroughly thrashed out. I refer to the question of handcarding and hand-spinning in the prisons. I have told you that as early as 1922 these two things were first introduced at my request in this prison. At first Sjt. Shankerlal Banker and I were permitted to do this work on our own bows and wheels with our own cotton. Then cotton was brought by Col. Dalziel from Dharwar. The result of our work was liked by Major Jones who followed Col. Dalziel and he allowed all Civil Disobedience prisoners who volunteered to do this work regularly. I was permitted to regulate and examine the daily work and issue the necessary instructions for improvement. A record was kept of the work. Spinning-wheels and bows were manufactured in the prison, spindles were made and the yarn was used as welt, and, if I am not mistaken, also for tapes. I was allowed to train convict warders as carders, and a considerable quantity of yarn was thus produced.

On the resumption of Civil Disobedience in 1930 the question was raised by me and several prisoners and permission was granted in some cases and not in others. There was no fixed policy evolved when peace was declared and the C. D. prisoners were discharged.

The matter this time is also in the same uncertain state. In Dhulia for instance Seth Jamnalal Bajaj tells me hand-spinning is universal among the C. D. prisoners, so much so that much khadi has been manufactured out of the yarn so spun. I know that in some other jails too it is freely allowed. It is only here that almost complete prohibition reigns except with me, my companions and certain other prisoners and the female Civil Disobedience prisoners.

I have told you that many Civil Disobedience prisoners have been under vows to spin regularly as a sacrifice. It is only after much effort that I have succeeded generally in persuading the Civil Disobedi-ence prisoners not to regard the vow as binding in prisons. They know that I am trying to persuade you to give the permission to spin to those who regard it as a sacred duty, either as part of their task or as extra work to be kept by them for their use.

To carding and spinning by itself I am sure the Government can have no objection. It has no connection with the Civil Disobedience campaign. Spinning organizations have not been declared unlawful nor spinning an unlawful activity. From the State point of view I can demons-trate, as I did in 1922 by actual results, that it is a more remunerative occupation than several others followed in the prisons. Indeed I endeavoured to show to one of your predecessors, viz., Col. Mel, that it was possible even to make prisons self-supporting by a universal introduction of all cotton processes in the prisons. But whilst I was carrying on these conversations, he retired. Inspectors-General and Superintendents change rapidly and I was discharged all too prematurely owing to the attack of appendicitis. If I can but get a little encouragement from you, I have the same confidence as in 1922 and could show you startling results.

But that may be a far cry. My present purpose is to ask you please to regularize the practice, which is now followed haphazard, of allowing volunteers to do hand-carding and hand-spinning with such restrictions as may be considered necessary in the interest of the administration.

Yours sincerely,
M. K. GANDHI

Government of Bombay, Home Department, I.G.P. File No. 9
39. LETTER TO SANKARANARAYANA IYER

January 16, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I thank you for your letter. Had I the time, I would have attempted a reply to it. But as most of the points raised by you have been covered in my statements, you would not mind my referring you to them.

Yours sincerely,

SJT. SANKARANARAYANA IYER
TIMBER MERCHANT
COIMBATORE

From a microfilm: S.N. 18933

40. LETTER TO KPA RAMESWARAN NAMBOODIRI

January 16, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I thank you for your letter and offer of the sacred oil. Believing as I do firmly in true Shastras not only tolerating but permitting Harijans of today to enter temples, I could not avail myself of the offer you kindly made. If you will investigate the Shastras, you will fail to discover a single text that would apply to those whose entry today is debarred.

Yours sincerely,

SJT. K. PARAMESWARAN NAMBOODIRI
OTHIKKEN
C/o TEMPLE SUPERINTENDENT
GURUVAYUR

From a microfilm: S.N. 18937
41. LETTER TO V. V. KETKAR

January 16, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter. You are in a hurry. I am constitutionally opposed to coercing anybody, whether he is in the majority or in the minority, and essentially so in religious matters. Hence I would respect the scruples of the minority in so far as it is possible to do so.

Yours sincerely,

S V. V. KETKAR
SADASHIVA LANE
BOMBAY 4

From a microfilm: S.N. 18938

42. LETTER TO BASANT KUMAR CHATTERJEE

January 16, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter by registered post. Of late I have missed the balanced judgment which characterized all your letters which it was my pleasure to receive. The latest one in front of me is full of hot spices, reckless statements and innuendoes. If your letter had not betrayed anger, I would have pleaded with you and shown you the mis-statements and misrepresentations with which your letter bristles. Some day, and I am sure that day is not very far, when passions have subsided, you will admit, if you have patience enough to keep this letter, that what I have said in it was all true.

Yours sincerely,

BASANT KUMAR CHATTERJEE
CALCUTTA

From a microfilm: S.N. 18939
43. LETTER TO R. KAIMAL

January 16, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

The letters that come to me from Travancore, that is, from Trivandrum, and all practically from M.A.s and B.A.s who are also High Court vakils, are very remarkable for hard-heartedness and want of susceptibility to the upward impulse of humaneness. The writers seem to exhaust the whole of their effort in resorting to subtleties of argument for defending the obviously indefensible. I was ill-prepared for such an exhibition of ungenerous interpretation of Shastras from a place of which I have such happy memories. It is to me a vast tragedy that you, who have such a magnificent natural scenery about you, expressive of bountiful Nature, should steel your hearts against your own kith and kin and find it in you to make an appeal to me for peace when, un mindful of consequences, perhaps all unconsciously to yourself, you are engaged in carrying on destruction. I would not have written thus to you if I had not traced a ring of sincerity about your letter.

Yours sincerely,

S. R. KAIMAL, M.A., LL.B.
HIGH COURT VAKIL
TRIVANDRUM

From a microfilm: S.N. 18940

44. LETTER TO BALKRISHNA BHAVE

January 16, 1933

According to me, the reasons why your body does not become strong and healthy are these: though you eat, you do not have faith in the food which you eat and feel aversion towards it, you waste your mental energy too much and neglect your health out of ignorant attachment to work. The remedy is indicated by the reasons themselves. You should cure your lack of faith, look upon the food which you eat as a sign of God’s kindness and pray, while eating it,

The addressee had pleaded: “Please drop temple-entry; vouch peace; destroy not; but, fulfil.”
that it may give you strength. You should realize that it is necessary to preserve the body in good health for the sake of the atman, regard it as a trust and take the best care of it that you can. Anybody who neglects a trust is guilty of a wrong.

I do not know when I first became aware of the existence of God. Doing these things becomes so natural to me that I feel I have always been doing them. Who can say that the leaves of a tree became so big on such and such a day? All that I can say is that I have arrived at the present stage at the age of sixty-four. But this means nothing.

When a person has attained the Brahmi state, he does not suffer at the sight of others’ sufferings because he does not rejoice at the sight of their happiness. A carpenter does not feel either happy or unhappy when repairing a ship; a Brahmin acts in the same manner. A Brahmin is one who has attained the Brahmi state.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. III, p. 58

45. LETTER TO MATHURADAS TRIKUMJI

YERAVDA,

January 16, 1933

CHI. MATHURADAS,

I shall expect you on Friday at noon. Bring along the Court decision if you have no need of it. I am cognizant of all that you write about Malabar; I have been there three or four times. The ground has also been well prepared. Work has been going on since my visit in 1925 in connection with the Vykom [Satyagraha]. Yet, much remains to be done. But we will talk more about it when you come. Do bring along Taramati and children.

If you have preserved my letters which you received in the jail

1 State of oneness with Brahman, the Absolute
2 An extract from this letter appears in “Letter to Mathudas Trikumji”, 16-1-1933
3 Ibid.,
bring along with you such of them as have passages scored out or otherwise tempered with by the authorities.

Blessings from

BAPU

SIT. MATHURADAS TRIKUMJI
21 MINT ROAD
FORT, BOMBAY

From the Gujarati original: Pyarelal Papers. Nehru Memorial Museum and Library. Courtesy: Beladevi Nayyar and Dr. Sushila Nayyar

46. LETTER TO BINDU DASTANE

January 16, 1933

Bangles and kumkum are the marks of a married woman or a maiden eligible for marriage. Therefore one who desires marriage may certainly adorn herself with both. You may, by all means, wear the bangles and the kumkum if you are fond of them. Anyway, you may wear them if Mother wants you to; you must not hurt her feelings.

[From Hindi]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. III, p. 57

47. LETTER TO MRS. DASTANE

January 16, 1933

Read carefully my letter to Bindu. If you agree with what I have said, do encourage the girls in giving up bangles, etc. But if you do not approve of brahmacharya, you may ask them to wear bangles and other things. In my view a mother’s duty is to encourage the spirit of renunciation in the children. The mind is bound to run after pleasures. Ultimately the girls are bound to use all those things if they are interested in marriage, but we must not compel them.

[From Hindi]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. III, p. 57

---

1 Vermilion mark on the forehead of women
48. LETTER TO VATSALA V. DASTANE

January 16, 1933

By doing our best to remove suffering and by faithfully observing the rules of truth and so on we serve living beings. Those who indulge in untruth, violence, hoarding, thieving and abrahamcharya\(^1\) hurt life itself. By observing truth and so on they alleviate suffering, which amounts to serving.

[From Hindi]
Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. III, pp. 57-8

49. A LETTER

January 16, 1933

If you are keen to stay, you should observe the rules, be sincere and do the work.

[From Gujarati]
Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. III, p. 58

50. INTERVIEW TO ASSOCIATED PRESS

January 16, 1933

I am quite sure that Seth Chamanlal\(^2\) could not believe that there was any likelihood of a civil war in the country. As I have said in my appeal to sanatanists, such a thing I hold to be inconceivable. If anybody knows the reformers, I should surely know them. War could take place only if there are two parties to fight one another. Self-styled sanatanists would be simply beating the air if they staged a war. And why should there be a war? The Viceroy gives formal sanction not to a Bill passed but to a Bill that has been introduced, which even when passed ensures absolute freedom from fight.

The fight may come when the matter goes out of the reformers’ hands and disappointed and enraged Harijans take the matter in their own hands and fight for their rights against the whole host of caste Hindus. But even that is a remote possibility, so long as reformers are alive to vindicate the honour of sanatana dharma.

\(^1\) Violation of brahmacharya

\(^2\) Chamanlal Girdhardas Parekh, Chairman, Ahmedabad Mill-owners’ Association, was reported to have urged the Viceroy not to sanction the introduction of the Temple-entry Bills, as it would lead to a religious civil war.

The Bill can only pass if it has solid Hindu opinion behind it and not otherwise. I hope, therefore, that nobody will be scared by the telegram to which you have just drawn my attention.

The Bombay Chronicle, 17-1-1933

51. LETTER TO F. MARY BARR

January 17, 1933

MY DEAR MARY,

I have your letter. Whatever you are, you are no guest.¹ You are a member of the ever-growing family. Whether you are daughter, or sister or mother, matters little. In this strange family, each one makes his or her own choice of the position he or she would occupy. Therefore you understand you will be no guest to me wherever we meet.

My conception of idol-worship is wholly different from that of the learned men. I know from the experience of many people that idol-worship has given them spiritualism of the highest type and that a philosophic conception of God has made such philosophers grossly material.

As I have told you, whilst the form may be different, mankind are idol-worshippers by their very nature. It is true that not all are uplifted by such worship, but that can be said of every form of worship. Those who look down upon idol-worship with philosophic contempt are not idol-worshippers but probably the worst form of idolaters, for they are worshippers of self.

Ba is in the Ashram. She left here some time ago. Mira writes to me every week and I to her and I often mention you to her.

I have not yet got the Little Plays of St. Francis. Tell me when you sent the book. Did you register it?

Love from us all.

Yours sincerely,

BAPU

From a photostat: G.N. 5988. Also C.W. 3345. Courtesy: F. Mary Barr

¹The addressee, after three visits to Gandhiji in jail in January, had remarked jokingly in a letter that although they were prisoners, she felt as if she had been entertained by them as their “guest”.
52. LETTER TO DEYASA BOYS’ UNION

January 17, 1933

DEAR YOUNG FRIENDS,

I have your letter. I am delighted that you are serving Harijan children in the only way open to you. God will bless you for this real service of His most needy children. This is my advice. Treat these children as your own blood brothers and blood sisters. Teach them good manners by having good manners yourselves. Teach them cleanliness. If they come in a dirty condition to the school, wash them. See that their eyes, ears, nose and hair are quite clean. Let there be no dirt in their nails. If their clothes are rags, you should beg some khaddar and get a volunteer tailor or your own mothers to make nice little vests and chaddis\(^1\) for them. You should take them for walks to see interesting sights. Tell them stories from Ramayana, Mahabharata, etc., and by being truthful and kind under every circumstance, teach them to be likewise; and to all this you may add booklearning including simple arithmetic. You will now tell me how much of this advice you have digested.

Yours sincerely,

DEYASA BOYS’ UNION
C/O RAKHARHAR CHAKRAVARTY
DEYASA VILLAGE
DIGNAGAR P. O.
(BURDWAN DT.)

From a microfilm: S.N. 18941

53. LETTER TO A. SUBBIAH

January 17, 1933

MY DEAR SUBBIAH,

Never apologize for your letters, rather apologize when you keep me without any. You know how I want letters from those who are near me.

The fast about Appasaheb Patwardhan was a necessity. He had obtained my permission during the truce period for doing what he did. When, therefore, I came to know of it, I was bound to stand up for him, especially because it was pure untouchability work. Whether I fast often or rarely, know that it could be only in obedience to the peremptory dictates of the Inner Voice.

\(^1\) Shorts

The news you have given me about the Madras referendum\(^1\) is very good. Tell me if you know what was the total strength of the eligible voters. Did the voters include those Hindus who are not entitled to temple-entry?

I hope you are now better. Lalita\(^2\) should write to me occasionally if she continues her Hindi study.

Though my elbows are not yet in good condition, I am keeping quite healthy.

Yours sincerely,

S. N. A. SUBBIH
GANDHI ASHRAM, KHADI BHANDAR
BLACKBURN LIGHT
MADURA

From a microfilm: S.N. 18942

54. LETTER TO ARUN CHANDRA DUTT

January 17, 1933

MY DEAR ARUN,

I was delighted to have your letter containing a good account of the celebration\(^3\) and I am glad that you are able to get Satyanand Baboo to preside\(^4\). The resolution, too, is quite good. Now we have to continue to do the work quietly and resolutely, unmindful of all that may be said against us. Truth is bound to win in the end.

Yes, Pandit Panchanan Tarkaratna was here. He was able to

---

\(^1\) In Madura, where members to the Sri Meenakshi Devasthanam Committee were elected. The addressee had written to Gandhiji: “The results are entirely in favour of temple-entry. . . . out of 1887 votes (valid) polled, 1498 voted for candidates who stood for temple-entry. . . .” (S.N. 18898).

\(^2\) Addressee’s wife

\(^3\) Of the 50th birth anniversary of Motilal Roy of the Prabartak Sangh

\(^4\) At a public meeting at Chandernagore, held on January 8, 1933, which passed a resolution for allowing all classes of Hindus the right of entry to Hindu temples (S.N. 18889) make no headway in Guruvayur. I do not know that he tried much either. The impression that he has left on my mind is that he is convinced that our case is unassailable, but he has not the courage to come out boldly for the purification of Hinduism. Of course this is not for publication, but if Moti Baboo sees him, I do not mind his showing this letter to him. I do not want to say of him what I am not prepared to say in front of him. He promised to send his son or some other representative to me who was to engage in a quiet discussion with me on the meaning of the Shastras for a number of days. I thought the son or another Shastri was to come soon after he reached Bombay. I observed that the son was one of the Shastris who were to hold the discussion on the 12th, a discussion which unfortunately never came off. It is a painful episode¹, not worth describing. A great deal of misrepresentation is now going on in the local Press. If it goes further, I might have to publish the whole correspondence.

I shall await Moti Baboo’s letter, but there is no hurry, if he has not written already. Let him take his own time.

Yours sincerely,

MY DEAR GHANSHYAMDAS,

I have your letter of the 10th instant from Gwalior. I am meeting Sjts. Deodhar² and Vaze³ tomorrow (Wednesday) about the English edition of Harijan Sevak. I have already had a preliminary conversation with Vaze since the receipt of your letter. It seems there will be no difficulty about publishing the paper here. But I shall do nothing in a hurry. I will send you the fullest information before actually embarking on the enterprise.

¹ Vide “Note to Deonayakacharya”, 12-1-1933 and “Letter to C. Rajagopalchari”, 13-1-1933
² G. K. Devdhar
³ S. G. Vaze, Editor of Servant of India
What is this opposition in Bengal against the Yeravda Pact? I am writing also to Dr. Bidhan enquiring about it.¹

I note what you say about the effect of prunes. Have you tried them at all?

Yours sincerely,

BAPU

From a copy: C.W. 7920. Courtesy: G. D. Birla. Also S.N. 18944

56. LETTER TO RASI K LAL BISWAS

January 17, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I thank you for your letter. I am forwarding it to Dr. Bidhan and I would suggest your meeting him if you have not done so already. All the advice that I would give you just now is that you should be patient and watch the progress of the campaign against untouchability, giving the reformers all the help they may need, and you can anticipate their need by carrying on social reformation of a concentrated character amongst the Harijans and preparing a statement giving accurately a list of all the social and other disabilities that they may be suffering from. I would like such a statement myself and also like you to prepare an accurate census of all the Harijans according to the sub-divisions. It will be of great help to me in guiding you in so far as you may need my guidance.

Yours sincerely,

SIT. RASI K LAL BISWAS, B.A., B.L.
SECRETARY
ALL-INDIA DEPRESSED CLASSES FEDERATION
CALCUTTA

From a microfilm: S.N. 18946

¹Vide “Letter to Dr. B. C. Roy”, 17-1-1933
57. LETTER TO DR. B. C. ROY

January 17, 1933

DEAR DR. BIDHAN,

I enclose herewith a letter from Sjt. Rasik Lal Biswas. I have advised him to see you. Do please invite him to see you.

What is this agitation against the Yeravda Pact? I would like you to give me the inwardness of the opposition. How can there be any injustice in the Pact, simply because of reservation of more seats for Harijans than had been provided in the British Government decision? Are they not also Hindus? Was there not always the cry on our part that the Harijans could take as many seats as they liked, even cent per cent? This opposition, if it is popular, is likely to estrange Harijans and to justify the fears often expressed on their behalf as to the attitude of caste Hindus. But you know the local situation infinitely better than I do. You will correct me if I have erred in putting the argument. I have given no public reply, because I felt that any reply from me at the present stage might increase the resentment of the Harijans. In any case, I did not want to say anything without first understanding the situation through you. Please guide me.

I hope Kamala and Dr. Alam are making steady progress.

Yours sincerely,

From a microfilm: S.N. 18948

58. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

January 17, 1933

CHI. NARANDAS,

Some of the developments there are such as cause me worry, and so these days I wait for a letter from you almost every day. This does not mean of course that you should write daily. When there is no letter from you, I must assume, and I shall, that you had nothing to write about. I have only explained the state of my mind.

You will have to take the necessary step about the Giri family even at the risk of appearing cruel. I feel all the time that it is against their interests and those of the Ashram to let them remain. We must realize that Mahavir is supported in his behaviour by all of them.
Chimanlal has won the confidence of Krishnamaiyadevi\(^1\) in some measure. After he has had a talk with her, call a meeting of the committee which you have appointed there and let it decide finally. Since the question is a serious one, it is desirable that you alone should not take the responsibility. If you have not already written to the people from whom Mahavir has borrowed, do so immediately and ascertain the facts.

Sitla Sahai\(^2\) may have been arrested. Write to Sarojinidevi\(^3\) occasionally. Inquire what happened about Padma\(^4\). Keep an eye on her monthly expenses.

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./I. Also Bapuna Patro-9: Shri Narandas Gandhine, Pt. II, pp. 16-7

59. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

January 17, 1933

CHI. NARANDAS,

These days I write to you almost daily. I got today both your weekly mail and the letters despatched on the 15th. I don’t remember what I wrote to Madhavlal. It did not seem necessary to me to consult you about the matter. If you wish, however, you may write to him and tell him that, instead of asking me for an explanation, he should write to you directly.

What do you mean when you say that the mill will start working soon? Do you mean the ordinary hand-mill of stone? If you have decided to revive it, I assume that you must have taken all the factors into consideration. I hope you did not think from any of my letters that I wished it to be done. Personally I believe that we shall not be able to revive it now. We do not even get good hand-mills now. It is easy and cheap to get grain ground in flour-mills. I think it will be difficult to give up the practice. But we can grind small quantities of grain in the Ashram with our own mills or with American hand-mills. If such a mill is of a good quality, it never gives trouble. When any of

\(^1\) Widow of Dalbahadur Giri
\(^2\) A khadi worker from U.P.
\(^3\) Wife of Sitla Sahai
\(^4\) Daughter of Sitla Sahai its parts get worn out, they can be replaced.

Generally I take two pounds of milk daily. I have to reduce it to one pound once every week.

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./I. Also Bapuna Patro-9: Shri Narandas Gandhine, Pt. II, p. 17

60. LETTER TO RUKMINIDEVI BAZAJ

January 17, 1933

CHI. RUKMINI¹,

Your letters are becoming increasingly dull. I would not be surprised if in time you begin to write as Chhotelalji does. Sometimes his letters come to me in this form:

“BAPU,

Regards from

CHHOTELAL”

Probably I should fill in whatever I wish and I need not (so that I may not have to) take the trouble of reading it at all.

Blessings from

BAPU

From Gujarati: C.W. 9644. Courtesy: Benarsilal Bazaj

---

61. LETTER TO A COLLEGE STUDENT

January 17, 1933

It is not correct to say that I am a champion of mixed marriages. It can be said that I do not oppose such marriages. There is a difference between the two statements. The statement that I am a champion of mixed marriages or even that I am not opposed to them is likely to give rise to some misunderstanding in so far as your idea of a mixed marriage is different from mine. Today we hardly come across any true Brahmins or true Shudras. Therefore what you do not regard as a mixed marriage is likely to be one and what, if I accepted the popular parlance, would be a mixed marriage may not actually be such. For instance, if a so-called Shudra girl possessing the qualities of a Brahmin girl marries a real Brahmin I would not call it a mixed marriage, whereas you would regard it as such. On the other hand, if a so-called Brahmin boy with the qualities of a Shudra marries a so-called Shudra girl with Brahmin-like qualities it would be a mixed marriage in my view. You would also regard it as one. Both of us will, however, do it for different reasons.

¹ Daughter of Maganlal Gandhi and wife of Benarsilal Bazaj

You should understand from this that I never reject a scientific truth that has been established. But you should also note that in [the realm of] science what has come to be accepted as truth today is not unlikely to be proved as untruth tomorrow. Sciences founded on deduction are always bound to suffer this basic imperfection. We cannot therefore regard it as an absolute truth. I think I understand and also believe in varnashrama-dharma. But you and I seem to understand the purport of varnashrama-dharma in different ways.¹

In spite of saying all this I ought to caution you that if you propose to consider the question of untouchability in a scientific way you should understand that interdining and mixed marriage have nothing to do with the question, and you should act accordingly. As for me today I am living, but tomorrow I may not be there, but this problem is certainly going to be there even after me. At the moment I am not at all canvassing for interdining and mixed marriage. We shall see about it when I start advocating them. It is neither scientific nor moral to condemn, because of faults you find in me, the noble work that I happen to be doing.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. III, p. 61

62. LETTER TO INDRA VIDYALANKAR

January 17, 1933

CHI. INDRA,

I have your letter. I can never suggest from here that Ganeshilal or anyone else may be admitted into the Sangh. I have no acquaintance with him. I am aware of the distressing fact that there are five or six divisions among the Harijans. This is a reflection of our own deeds. Has anyone anywhere published a list of the temples and wells that have been thrown open to Harijans?

Blessings from

MOHANDAS

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 7205. Also C.W. 4863. Courtesy: Chandragupta Vidyalankar

¹ For discussion, vide “Discussion with Dharmadev”, 17-1-1933
63. LETTER TO CHAND TYAGI

January 17, 1933

BHAII CHAND TYAGI,

I have your letter. I spend almost the whole day under the sky and in the sun. The finger is all right. My diet consists of milk, dates, oranges and, when available, papaya. Mirabehn is in the Bombay jail. The observance of physical as well as mental brahmacharya is made possible by keeping both body and mind under control.

Chhaganlal Joshi too is with me. We are all doing well.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 3261

64. A NOTE ON THE PROPOSED INTRODUCTION OF HAND-SPINNING IN YERAVDA CENTRAL PRISON

January 18, 1933

1 lb. Of carded cotton yields 840 yards of yarn of 1 count, i.e., 8400 yards of yarn of 10 counts.

An average good spinner spins at least 150 yards per hour of 10 counts. Therefore in 6 working hours he will spin 900 yards—4.14 tolas. Therefore 9 such men will spin 1 lb. of yarn per day.

At the rate of 3 as. per lb. of 10 [count] yarn as the ordinary wage of a spinner, 9 men will earn 3 as. a day, i.e., 1/3 of an anna each. At the present moment at least, 1000 C. D. prisoners in this jail are not producing even half of this small amount of wealth. In other words there is a dead waste of at least Rs. 10 per day in the Yeravda Central Prison.

The outlay required for producing the yarn is 120 lb. of cotton per day. It is likely that it will not be necessary to supply spinning-wheels to all these spinners. I am unable to say off-hand how many will have their own spinning-wheels. But that will need to be ascertained.

NOTE. I have given the lowest possible estimates so as to err on the safest side. It may also be stated that it is possible to do the spinning through the takli, the easiest and the cheapest method, but the output would be 1/3 compared to the wheel. I suggest that the beginning should be made at once with those who volunteer to do the spinning and who can produce their own spinning-wheels.

\[1\] Vide also “Letter to E. E. Doyle, 16-1-1933.

There remains now the question as to what to do with the yarn. Yarn of 10 counts can be utilized to weave coarse cloth or the yarn as it is produced can be sold without the slightest difficulty. I have made no reference in this note to carding. The usual estimate is that one carding-bow can supply ten spinners with carded cotton. The processes to be gone through before spinning is begun are carding and sliver-making in which last is the simplest.

If further particulars are required I will gladly supply them.

I have here confined myself only to the commercial aspect and made no reference to those with whom spinning is a part of daily sacrifice. I think that for such the permission should be granted at once, in view of the fact that it is being done in several prisons.

M. K. GANDHI

Government of Bombay, Home Department, I. G. P. File No. 10

65. TELEGRAM TO “THE HINDU”

January 18, 1933

WHAT PURPORTS TO BE AN INTERVIEW1 WITH YOUR POONA CORRESPONDENT AND PUBLISHED IN THE DAK EDITION OF THE SIXTEENTH IS GROSS DISTORTION OF A CONVERSATION WHICH I HAD SPECIALLY WARNED YOUR CORRESPONDENT AGAINST PUBLISHING. I TOLD HIM I WAS UNPREPARED TO GIVE HIM ANYTHING FOR PUBLICATION. I HAVE ALSO WARNED ALL PRESS CORRESPONDENTS NOT TO PUBLISH ANYTHING WITHOUT FIRST SHOWING ME THE TEXT THEREOF.2

The Hindu, 19-1-1933

1 It appeared in The Hindu, 16-1-1933; vide “Interview to “The Hindu” Correspondent”, 14-1-1933
2 In reply, the Editor of The Hindu apologized as follows: “We gladly publish Mahatmaji’s contradiction and deeply regret that an unauthorized and incorrect report of a talk with him should have obtained publication”.

VOL. 59 : 13 JANUARY, 1933 - 9 MARCH, 1933 45
66. TELEGRAM TO S. SALIVATI

January 18, 1933

YOUR REPORT OF INTERVIEW BADLY DISTORTED. GREATLY PAINDED AT BREACH OF TRUST IN PUBLISHING IT. DAMAGE ALREADY DONE.

[From Gujarati]
Mahadevbhai Diary, Vol. III, pp. 68-9

67. LETTER TO R. P. AGNIHOTRI

January 18, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter enclosing a copy of your letter to the Municipal Committee of Jubulpoore. Without knowing the condition of the Harijans it is impossible for me from here to say whether the suggestions made therein are proper and feasible. Workers should generally take care that in advising Harijans they do not raise false or impossible hopes. Anti-untouchability workers are expected more to do some tangible service themselves rather than promote petitions, etc. In the first instance, local bodies are to be expected to do their duty and when they manifestly fail to do so, public agitation undoubtedly becomes a necessity.

Yours sincerely,

SIT. R. P. AGNIHOTRI
SECRETARY, ANTI-UNTTOUCHABILITY LEAGUE JUBBULPORE

From a microfilm: S.N. 18962

68. LETTER TO C. NARAYANA MENON

January 18, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

Do you mean to suggest that in Malabar the public temples do not belong to the Hindus who have the right of worship there? Will you contend that even when the temple was first built, it was not the property of Hindus although Hindus subscribed to the cost of building it? And if that was so, then the trustees would not be trustees, but they would be absolute owners. There are thousands of such temples owned by private persons. A public temple is so called only because it is public property; that is to say, the property of those members of the public at whose instance and with whose money and on whose behalf the temple was built. Do you think that the multitude of people who give donations daily have no right whatsoever to the temple to which they give donations? Of course you may say that the right does not include authority to change the character or quality of those who are entitled to offer worship. If you do so, you will simply beg the question. For the contention of the reformers is that the so-called Harijans are only so called, and that they should never have been excluded from rights enjoyed by any other members of the Hindu family, provided that they conform to the regulations as to cleanliness and the like.

The purity of the temples themselves is irrelevant to the present discussion. You don’t want to say that if a temple has dancing girls and swindling Brahmins, it should be opened to Harijans, and not if the Brahmins cease to swindle and the girls cease to dance in those temples?

Do indeed see Malaviyaji, if he can give you a few moments, and Dr. Bhagwandas. He certainly has more leisure than Malaviyaji.

About my fast you need have no fear.

Yours sincerely,

SIT. C. NARAYANA MENON, M.A., PH.D.
BENARES HINDU UNIVERSITY
BENARES

From a microfilm: S.N. 18963

69. LETTER TO HRIDAY NATH KUNZRU

January 18, 1933

MY DEAR HARJI,

Here is a letter for you to read and deal with. I have simply asked the writer to see you. Is there any truth in the charge that all the Harijan candidates were unsuccessful at the municipal election?

Yours sincerely,

From a microfilm: S.N. 18964
70. LETTER TO G. B. NIRANTAR

January 18, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter. You and your pupils, 15 in all, can come on 23rd instant, at 2 p.m.

Yours sincerely,

SJT. G. B. NIRANTAR
TEACHER
SEVA SADAN HIGH SCHOOL
POONA CITY

From a microfilm: S.N. 18965

71. LETTER TO AMTUSSALAAM

January 18, 1933

MY DEAR AMTUSSALAAM,

I must hurry on to write to you. Therefore this English letter. I would like you to make up your mind quickly as to the treatment to be followed. My advice is, if you get a doctor there who would take real interest in you, you should give him the fullest chance by obeying all his instructions and doing as he bids. That is to say, you should do as Veenabehn advises you. There should be no time wasted in simply making a decision. You should be in the hospital and take what medicine or injection is given to you and undergo the operation that may be needed. Do not think of the removal of the womb unless the doctor says so. Never mind the letter written to Dr. Sharma. You yourself say that he cannot cure piles. After you are well you shall come and see me.

Love. God may keep you well.¹

Yours,

BAPU

From a photostat: G.N. 272

¹ This sentence is in Urdu.
72. LETTER TO N.¹

January 18, 1933

MY DEAR N.,

I have your two interesting and instructive letters. It is very great work you are doing, and if the young men who have responded to your call remain steadfast and do not give in after the first flush of enthusiasm is exhausted, the street-cleaning you are doing must prove infectious and it would be a great advance towards the removal of untouchability. I am therefore surprised that anybody should cavil at the work itself or take exception to the fact that you, who have become an Indian by adoption and by right of love, should have taken the lead, and if anybody thinks that I would not have advised such work if I was out, he is wholly mistaken. I have personally undertaken such work before now, both publicly and privately, and the cleaning of Harijan quarters that was done all over India on the 18th ultimo was due to the suggestion made by me and heartily taken up by the Servants of Untouchables Society. You are at liberty to make public use of this letter.

I did think from the language of your previous letter that you had fasted all the days that I was fasting. I am glad therefore of the correction you have made.

As you know, I am deeply interested in the question of scientific or (which is the same thing) hygienic and spiritual dietary. Tell me therefore more about your diet. Give me the actual things you take and the quantities, and how far you have been on this diet. As you seem to have read practically everything I have ever written, perhaps you are aware that I have lived on fruits and nuts for over six years, that I have gone without milk for over nine years, and it has been the most disappointing thing for me to have been obliged to take even goat’s milk. I know of no one of my acquaintance who has been able to do hard physical work as also hard mental work, as you seem to be doing, merely on fruits and vegetables, that means, no protein, no starch and no fat of any kind. The two letters before me whet my appetite for seeing you face to face and understanding you more than ¹ An American woman who later stayed at the Sabarmati Ashram for some time; the name in this and the subsequent items, however, has been omitted.

I do. I confess that I am very stupid and I don’t and I can’t understand people merely through their correspondence. To know them I need to look at them and talk to them, and you have written so much to me about yourself that I do want to know you if I can. But at the same time I don’t want you to come here at the sacrifice of the great work you are doing there. You should come only when you can be spared for a few days from your work.

Yours sincerely,

From a photostat: S.N. 18966

73. LETTER TO BRITISH INDIAN ASSOCIATION

January 18, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I thank you for your letter of the 12th instant. I shall thank you if you will enlighten me about the facts and conditions prevailing in the Province of Bengal which require a re-consideration of the Yeravda Pact.1

Yours sincerely’

THE JOINT HONY. SECRETARY BRITISH INDIAN ASSOCIATION
18 BRITISH INDIAN ST.
CALCUTTA

From a microfilm: S.N. 18967

74. LETTER TO FULCHAND SHAH

January 18, 1933

You are carrying on spinning2 whereas we are arguing with the Shastris, some of whom are being sulky. They have been pouring abuses on me. They discover weaknesses in me of which till now I was unaware. My words are interpreted in strange ways and by such means the victory of sanatana dharma is declared with beat of drums. We laugh at all this, knowing that there is no real strength behind it. If there were real strength behind it, and also public opinion, then it would be not an occasion for laughter, but one for weeping; then one

1 Vide also “Letter to Ramananda Chatterjee”, 20-1-1933
2 In Visapur Jail
could not help but weep. This movement of the so-called sanatanists suggests that the foundation of untouchability is tottering and the structure will shortly tumble down.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. III, p. 69

75. LETTER TO VAMANBUWA BRAHMACHARI

January 18, 1933

SHRI BRAHMACHARIJI,

Your letter. I can see you on the 25th instant at 2 o’clock and shall reserve one hour for you. I shall not give this time to anyone else. But according to my vow I regard it a duty to answer your doubts.

(1) I agree with all that you say in the first question but there is the difference of interpretation which is almost impossible to explain through correspondence. All human beings are like blind men but all the devotees of truth are partially right in the same way that the seven blind men were right on their part in giving varying descriptions of the elephant on each touching different parts of its anatomy.

(2) Untouchability as practised today is found nowhere in the Shastras. This is the impression I have gathered on hearing what many Shastris say.

(3) Everything can be found in the Gita. According to the change of place, time and circumstances, conduct as prescribed by the principle can change but never the principle itself.

(4) This too is a fact that we have degenerated and continue to do so because of failure in observing dharma.

(5) What you say is not true.

(6) In no way do I regard myself as more learned and wiser than anyone else.

(7) I have never taken such a vow as you think I have.

1 The addressee had asked whether Gandhiji had faith in the Vedas, whether he accepted their traditional interpretation or he had his own original interpretation.

2 The addressee had stated that the Government was creating internal disunity in the country by allowing Gandhiji, even while in jail, to work for the removal of untouchability.

3 Of winning swaraj within a year or removing untouchability within six months
(8) I do not appreciate the extreme rules of purification and so on.

(9) The observation that things follow their natural bent should be regarded as quite correct.

(10) Intermarriage and interdining have no connection with untouchability. They are totally different; read what I have said on this subject. Certain people, because of their hostile attitude, grossly misinterpret it.

(11) The idea of founding a new religion has never occurred to me even in a dream.

(12) It is perfectly right that the politics which does not serve to protect dharma deserves to be wholly disregarded.

(13) I cannot either give up or take up fasting.

(14) What you say is almost correct.¹

(15) I have firm faith in the worthiness of the object for which I am thinking of a ‘referendum’.

(16) I hold courteous dialogue with whosoever wants to talk to me, whether he is small or big. What more can I do?

Yours,

MOHANDAS GANDHI

From a microfilm of the Hindi: S.N. 18956

76. INTERVIEW TO ASSOCIATED PRESS

January 18, 1933

When his attention was drawn to the report of an interview² between him and its correspondent appearing in a Madras paper Gandhiji said:

I had decided not to express any opinion on the proposal that a committee should be appointed to gauge opinion in respect of temple-entry, because I did not attach any importance to the proposal. But now that mention has been made, I can unhesitatingly say that the appointment of such a committee would be a most unfortunate thing.

¹ The addressee had referred to the dehumanizing effects of the Western industrial civilization.

² Vide “Interview to “The Hindu” Correspondent”, 14-1-1933. For Gandhiji’s contradiction, vide “Telegram to The Hindu”, 18-1-1933
I do not believe that the Government can ever endorse such a proposal.

The report stated that Mr. Gandhi said that he had decided to express his views on the proposal and that if the Viceroy refused sanction to the introduction of Dr. Subbaroyan’s Bill, he (Mr. Gandhi) would resist it with his life. While characterizing the report as a misrepresentation of a conversation never intended for publication, Mr. Gandhi said that he never told the correspondent that he had decided to express his views on the proposal for a committee. On the contrary, he had decided not to do so.

Explaining why the appointment of a committee would be most unfortunate, Mr. Gandhi said that Dr. Subbaroyan’s Bill was thoroughly inoffensive. It not only did not seek interference with religion, but was intended to sound the religious feelings of the people concerned. There was no question of sanctioning any law; the only thing the Viceroy was requested to do was to give his formal consent to the introduction of the Bill, which was the result of the unanimous vote of the Madras Council.

Mr. Gandhi expressed surprise regarding the second part of the interview attributed to him, and said that he had no recollection whatsoever of having said that if the Viceroy refused to sanction, he would resist it with his life. He had no such settled plan before him, and if he had, he was not in the habit of making premature announcements to the public and that, even before bringing such an important decision to the notice of the authorities concerned. Indeed, he could say emphatically that he himself did not know what he would do if permission was withheld.

But I know it to be a terrific ordeal for me, if the progress of reform was interfered with by the refusal of sanction to the introduction of a measure indispensable for the growth of religious freedom.

_The Hindu, 19-1-1933_

77. LETTER TO MIRABEHN

January 19, 1933

CHI. MIRA,

This is just after the morning prayer Thursday. Vallabhbhai and I are waiting for the hot water for honey.

I have your letter before me. Of course I wrote last week as usual on Thursday after the morning prayer. If the letter was for any reason detained by the Superintendent there, he would have at least informed you of the fact so as to spare you the anxiety of imagining all sorts of evil. I brought the matter to the notice of Major Bhandari and he promised to inquire. The letter was duly posted at this end. It may be, however, that the letter was withheld because, for the first time so far as I can recall, I sent you with my letter, letters of welfare from Madeleine Rolland, Andrews and copy of my letter to Madame Rolland. I sent also a very beautiful picture-card containing the Virgin and the divine babe. I should be surprised if the letter was withheld for that reason and even then why the letter itself. I therefore imagine that it has been waylaid during transit. Anyway I am inquiring at this end and you may at yours. For me that card was the greatest treasure with Aristarchi’s inscription at the back.

And from this incident learn the lesson that even if such a mishap occurs again feel assured that I have written as usual even though I may not have got your weekly message and that the mishap must be due to causes beyond my control. If I got ill and could not write or if I was prevented for any other cause, you should be duly informed that no letter was sent during that week. In other words do not imagine causes but wait patiently for the knowledge if it is to come and in any case never imagine the worst. Since God is a God of mercy, if we must imagine, it is best to imagine the best. Of course, a votary of the Gita never imagines anything. Good and bad are after all relative terms. He takes note of things as they happen and reacts naturally to them, fulfilling his part as if propelled by the Great Mechanic, even as a piece of machine in good order responds automatically to the call of the machinist. It is the most difficult thing for an intelligent being to be like a machine. And yet, if one is to become a zero, that is precisely what one desiring perfection has to become. The vital difference between the machine and the man is that the machine is inert, the man is all life and consciously becomes like a machine in the hands of the Master Mechanic. Krishna says in so many words that God moves all beings as if they were parts of a machine.¹

You see I have written this with the right hand. I notice that the left too requires rest from even the little writing it does. It is probable that the pain in the elbows has something to do with outward fatigue caused by writing or spinning or both. It has certainly not yielded to the saltless, and how should it if the cause is not organic? It produces immediate effect in you, because with you the cause is organic. I have no rheumatism. If there was any, I should not fail to know it. Anyway the saltless diet still continues. And I showed yesterday an increase of one lb. It is therefore now 104 lb.

¹ Vide Bhagavad Gita, XVIII. 61.

You should, if you can, discover the cause of your giddiness. Have you discussed it with the medical officer there? You ought not to feel giddy at the end of your walk. You should feel refreshed. It is often a good thing to dash cold water on the face and even the head before starting the walk and sip cold water during the walk on the slightest warning of approaching giddiness. Even stopping for a moment to take deep breath avoids it. These are all bits out of my own experience.

I note what you say about your reading. The Mahabharat is a good programme. You ought to be a good Hindi scholar when you have finished reading the unabridged Hindi translation without missing the meaning of a single word. That means a great feat. But I know there is nothing that can defeat love.

If you are allowed to drop a postcard to acknowledge this and if it is delivered on receipt, drop me a postcard.

Love from us all.

BAPU

From the original: C.W. 6259. Courtesy: Mirabehn. Also G.N. 9725

78. LETTER TO KALISHANKAR CHAKRAVARTI

January 19, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I have gone through your printed letter very carefully. You don’t expect me to argue out my position. My argument is to be found in my writings. Therefore, to you I can only say I have been endeavouring to follow the light that God gives me, and whatever I have written at any time, I have believed and have meant fully. Where you find contradictions in my writings, I find nothing but a due fulfilment or elaboration of a previous position. But I am not so much concerned with showing consistency in my writings as with stating that I have given to the readers the truth as I have known it at the time of writing. I however heartily endorse your fear that whatever I have said believing it to be true may after all be found to have been a vast error.
But I take comfort (very poor, you may say) in the thought that it is a possibility common, without exception, to the whole of mankind. But you will perhaps agree that so long as I do not see the error of my ways myself I would be cowardly and disloyal to the truth I worship if I fail to act up to my conviction.

Yours sincerely,

SJT. KALISHANKAR CHAKRAVARTI
JYOTI
CHITTAGONG

From a microfilm: S.N. 18971

79. LETTER TO G. D. BIRLA

January 19, 1933

MY DEAR GHANSHYAMDAS,

I have your letter of 14th instant. I had a prolonged conversation with Syts. Deodhar and Vaze yesterday regarding the English edition, and as a result\(^1\) I have telegraphed to Amritlal Thakkar to send Shastri\(^2\) at once if he could be spared. Vaze tells me that Shastri is the fittest man for doing the editorial work. He himself will help but cannot be completely identified with the paper. I can appreciate his reason. But both told me that though Shastri had applied to the Society for admission as a probationer, the Society would have no objection to Shastri taking up the editorial responsibility. Of course, so long as Mahadev and I have the time, the columns will be filled by us, and Shastri will carry out instructions, and in time to come write original articles himself.

I wonder when the Hindi edition will be out.\(^3\)

Yours sincerely,

BAPU

From a copy: C.W. 7921. Courtesy: G. D. Birla. Also S.N. 18970

---

1. \textit{Harijan}
2. R. V. Shastri
3. The first issue of \textit{Harijan Sevak} appeared on February 23, 1933
80. LETTER TO AMULYA DHAN RAY

January 19, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter. I have read as you have about the movement in Bengal for the revision of the Yeravda Pact. I can assure you that I have found no reason whatsoever to revise my own attitude. You need not be anxious, for I am convinced that that Pact cannot be revised without the unanimous consent of all the parties concerned.

Yours sincerely,

S. JT.

AMULYA DHAN RAY, M.L.C.
JESSORE TOWN
BENGAL

From a microfilm: S.N. 18972

81. LETTER TO NARASIMHAN

January 19, 1933

Oh yes, it is necessary for you to write to me, although P and L write to me. They cannot tell me what you can if you choose to write. There is always an individuality about letters when they are written with a will. You know or ought to know that letter writing is an art. It can come to everyone who writes naturally and to the point. You should try to acquire this art.

From the manuscript of Mahadev Desai’s Diary. Courtesy: Narayan Desai

82. LETTER TO KIKABHAI WAGHELA

January 19, 1933

BHAI KIKABHAI,

I got your letter. Please do not be impatient. I will do the best I can. I did not wish to deceive people by using the word ‘Harijan,. Since the word Dhed and others like that in common use are not proper, I accepted the word ‘Harijan’ at the request of one or two

^1 Son of C. Rajagopalachari
^2 Papa and Lakshmi, daughters of C. Rajagopalachari
Antyaja friends. You may rest assured that I am ready to lay down my life in order to wipe out this blot. Though the Harijans are despised today, they will soon become respected.

Blessings from
Bapu

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 87

83. LETTER TO AMRITLAL V. THAKKAR

January 19, 1933

Bhaithakkar Bapa,

Read the accompanying cutting carefully and then write to me giving me your views. If we have made a mistake anywhere, we will admit it. If the fast resulted in coercion on anybody but secured justice, we need not think about the matter. But we should certainly think if it has resulted in injustice. The article has had no effect on me. Is this mere agitation or is there anything serious behind it? If it is only agitation, what is the motive?

Bapu

[PS.]

I have just received your wire regarding Shastri. I shall await your letter. I had sent the wire yesterday in the presence of Deodhar and Vaze. The latter had offered volunteers on the understanding that they would not participate directly.

Bapu

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 1104

84. LETTER TO AMRITLAL V. THAKKAR

January 19, 1933

Bhaithakkar Bapa,

After I had written a letter to you [today], I got your letter of the 16th. Hence this second letter.

I have already written to you regarding Ahmedabad. Our letters crossed each other.

Karsandas had written to me about Gokhale’s death anniversary. I do not at all wish to cheapen Gokhale’s name. The country is not ready yet to celebrate the 19th\(^1\) in a manner befitting his greatness. History will appreciate the purity of his character and the greatness of his services. I don’t think they will be appreciated in our lifetime. I don’t mind “Anti-untouchability Days’, being celebrated independently. This is my firm view. Don’t you think it is based on very good reasons?

The Sangh has not yet reached its destination. On the contrary, several swords are hanging over it. Rajaji, of course, is holding an umbrella over it, but it is the Sangh’s lot to pass through an ordeal just now. So what can an umbrella avail? However, you may consult Harijan and other principal fighters. If they agree, you may proceed further, otherwise bury Rajaji’s letter deep under the ground. I had passed on to Ghanshyamdas the letter which I had received from him. He is not particular about the name. If I wish, he would agree to change it. Personally I do wish [that it should be]. But time is all-powerful. He swallows our desires alive, like a snake and makes even a Mahatma like me look an \textit{alpatma}\(^2\). Hence I have held my tongue. You have strong shoulders. If you wish, you may take up the responsibility. As for the name the saying is, “With great love, we name the child Hari, and it dies in infancy.” The Sangh will not succeed or fail because of its name. It will be judged by its work. If it works in the manner of the Yamaraj\(^3\), I have no doubt that it will swallow the demon of untouchability alive.

You are wrong. You yourself should have humorously advertised the Holloway ointment. There are persons who will bear witness to its efficacy. If you do not like doing it or have no time, forget about it.

I have got some free time and so could indulge in this bit of light talk.

\textbf{BAPU}

\textit{From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 1105}

---

\(^1\) Gokhale died on February 19, 1915
\(^2\) Literally, ‘a little soul’
\(^3\) Lord of Death
85. LETTER TO MADAN MOHAN MALAVIYA

January 20, 1933

I have seen your statement convening a Conference of sanatanists. I had purposely refrained from worrying you over the question of temple-entry. Much as I stood in need of your invaluable assistance, I knew that you were preoccupied with matters of the highest moment, and I felt that the least I could do, as also the most that was possible, was deliberately to forgo that assistance. Friends in Kerala pressed me to ask you to go to their rescue. I refused to do so, and I warned them against troubling you. But now I see that you have yourself taken the initiative and a tremendous responsibility. I hope and pray that great good will come out of the Conference.

I wish that it had been possible for us to meet before the Conference, or that we had exchanged ideas before you propounded your suggestions about temple-entry. I feel, however, that I should submit to you my own position. If the Bombay Meeting, during and immediately after the fast week, that passed the resolution was representative of Hindu India, it is up to every Hindu to make good that resolution in its fulness. That resolution, as you know, has definite reference to temple-entry. It prescribes no conditions. The whole trend of the resolution is that temple-entry and the use of public institutions by Harijans on the same terms as the other Hindus is a debt long overdue by caste Hindus. I feel that it would be wrong, if not a manifest breach of faith, to import any conditions specially applicable to Harijans. Naturally, Harijans would be expected to conform to the conditions that are implied in Hinduism and have to be observed by everyone who enters temples. But that is a different thing from laying down special conditions that are applicable to Harijans irrespective of their caste or status. That is to say, there may be described these general conditions that apply to all Hindus regardless of their caste. conditions, such as, daily bath, recitation of Dwadash\textsuperscript{1} or other mantras, abstention from carrion or beef, intoxicating drinks, if the latter abstention is enjoined in any of the current Smritis and Puranas).

From all the discussions that I had with the Shastris who favour the present movement and who are hostile to it, I have gathered that there is no warrant whatsoever for untouchability as we now know it. There is perfect confusion as to whom, of all the people classified as untouchables in the census books, the verses oft-quoted apply. Untouchability by birth seems to be utterly non-existent. There is no proof whatsoever to show that any single one of the untouchables so classed is the progeny of a Brahmin woman through a Shudra man or that he is a descendant of such a union. I would, therefore, beg of you not to surrender on the matter of principle. I would far rather that the reformers were left to plough the lonely furrow than that they should be called upon to lend themselves to an unworthy surrender. The surrender, in my opinion, of the highest type I have suggested in my compromise proposal, where the most delicate susceptibilities of a minority, however small it may be, have been taken into consideration. Even that has cost me much criticism, but I am unaffected by it, because, in my opinion, it is perfectly honourable and satisfies all sincere and religious-minded reformers and dissenters.

If I am obscure, you will, I know and hope, use the wire freely.

I am most anxious that God may make you the instrument of purifying Hinduism and keeping faith with the Harijans.

86. LETTER TO S. SALIVATI

January 20, 1933

MY DEAR SALIVATI,

I had your telegram and your letter\textsuperscript{2}, for which I thank you.

I think that your letter seems completely exonerative. But I would have preferred to have seen the copy of your original despatch. In any case, I never questioned the goodness of your motive.

Yours sincerely,

From a microfilm: S.N. 18978

\textsuperscript{1} ग्यो भगवान् नापृणाम

\textsuperscript{2} Dated January 18, explaining how his original despatch was mutilated in transmission
87. LETTER TO SATIS CHANDRA DAS GUPTA

January 20, 1933

DEAR SATISBABOO,

Have you at all interested yourself in the opposition that is being raised in Bengal against the Yeravda Pact, and can you tell me what is at the back of it?

I hope you received my previous letter and that you are keeping well.

Yours sincerely,

From a microfilm: S.N. 18980

88. LETTER TO S. G. VAZE

January 20, 1933

MY DEAR VAZE,

I have a telegram from Sjt. Thakkar telling me that Shastri is not available yet for two weeks. He is following up his wire with a letter which will give me more information.

I have the estimate for which many thanks.

Tell me, if you can, what preliminaries have to be gone through before the paper can be brought out, and what notice will the Arya Bhushan Press require to bring out the first issue. Could you let me have a copy of the latest Press Act? Do you get the permission at once and for the asking for the publication of a non-political paper? Is the filing of a security a sine qua non? If it is, what form does the security take? Besides the names of the printer and the publisher, is it necessary to announce the name of the editor, and if it is, is he to file a declaration?

In the estimate before me, the cost of wrappers has not been given. Is the Reay Paper Mill situated in Poona? Is this Padamjee’s Mill? Padamjee has always supplied me with paper for Young India and Navajivan. Has the Arya Bhushan Press Gujarati type?

Will you also prepare for me an estimate giving me the cost of the staff and other incidental expenses?

Yours sincerely,

From a microfilm: S.N. 18981
89. LETTER TO MOTILAL ROY

January 20, 1933

DEAR MOTI BABOO,

I have your telegram about Malaviyaji’s Conference. I am not so enthusiastic as you are. Let’s however wait, watch and pray.

Yours sincerely,

From a microfilm: S.N. 18982

90. LETTER TO RAMANANDA CHATTERJEE

January 20, 1933

DEAR RAMANAND BABOO,

This letter is not for publication.

This sudden opposition in Bengal against the Yeravda Pact comes upon me as a painful surprise. The Secretary of the British Indian Association has sent me the text of the Resolution in which, among other things, an appeal is made to me to assist in revising the Pact in so far as Bengal is concerned. I have refrained from taking any part in the public discussion of the question, because I do not want to make confusion worse confounded, or to give an opinion on a matter on which I am not sufficiently informed. I therefore seek your assistance and guidance in enabling me to form a judgement. Two Harijan friends from Bengal, dreading that I might weaken, have asked me what I think about the opposition, and I have told them that I have not altered my opinion and that the Pact could not be changed without the unanimous consent of all the parties concerned.

My own position is that Harijans cannot be given too much by caste Hindus. It is my confirmed opinion that if all the seats available to Hindus were taken by Harijans and other depressed classes, the so-called superior castes will not only lose nothing, but will gain by the sacrifice, if such it may be called.

Taking this into consideration, please tell me whether you share the views of the opposition, and if you do, on what grounds, and why

1 Editor, Modern Review
2 Vide “Letter to British Indian Association”, 18-1-1933 those grounds were not at least urged at the Conference in Bombay by any one of the Bengal representatives.

You hardly need my assurance that I would be grateful to you for your frank opinion, even though it may be against the Pact. I have no other end in life to serve but that of truth. It is therefore never too late for me to mend an error, of which the conviction has gone home to me.

Yours sincerely,

From a microfilm: S.N. 18983

91. LETTER TO V. M. NAWLE

January 20, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter of 17th instant. I never had your letter regarding Sjt. Vaidya’s letter nor Mr. Seymer Stone’s. If you have kept a copy, please let me have it, as also your explanation about Sjt. Vaidya.

It is a most difficult thing for me to spare you one hour just now. You should first reduce to writing exactly what your formula\(^1\) is. It does not matter whether your English is good or bad. You may even write to me in Marathi. I shall have no difficulty in following it, if the writing is legible.

Yours sincerely,

From a microfilm: S.N. 18983a

92. LETTER TO L. R. PANGARKAR

January 20, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I thank you for your letter. You have started with an error and ended with an error. I have gathered round me no one but God. I would like you to name those whom you have in mind. Who do you think could be with me fifty years ago, when the truth first dawned on me that untouchability as practised today is a sin, and do you know

\(^1\) A proposal, described by the addressee as “new and unique path,” to temple-entry; vide also “Letter to V. M. Nawle”, 12-1-1933 that at that age I was forlorn unlike all the other school boys?

What authority have you to say that 90% caste Hindus are against temple-entry, and supposing that they are, and supposing further that they are actually in error, why should it be suicidal for me to fight that error even though I was alone?

The untouchability question was taken up by the Congress in 1920 as an integral part of its programme. I have no knowledge that from that day onward the Congress began to dwindle down in popular favour.

I claim to know something of the saints of Maharashtra whom you have named. They have taught me a lesson quite different from the one you have learnt. This is no new experience. People learn from the Gods not what the latter would teach them but what they want to learn. If you are really an admirer of my work, you will at least do me the favour of studying what I am doing before judging me, and if you will do so, you will soon discover that I am out not to destroy varnashramadharma, but to destroy the excess of it which is the present-day untouchability, so that varnashramadharma may be revived in all its purity.

Yours sincerely,

SJT. L. R. PANGARKAR
NASIK CITY

From a microfilm: S.N. 20061
93. LETTER TO M. R. JAYAKAR

January 20, 1933

DEAR MR. JAYAKAR,

From all the accounts that I have received, I understand that you have returned this time with very great benefit to your health. I hope that the news I have received is quite correct.

The purpose, however, of writing to you is to ask you to guide me in the matter of the all-India Bill about untouchability. I hope you have read my statement on it. I would appreciate your opinion about it. What I would like you specially to apply your mind to are the following points:

1. Is the Bill itself good for the purpose intended?
2. Is my argument about it correct?
3. What are the prospects of its passing?
4. Supposing that the opinion outside the Assembly is overwhelmingly in its favour, what should be done to ensure its safe passage through the Assembly?

If in this matter you think that you should discuss the whole question with me before you can usefully guide me, and if you can spare the time, do please come. You perhaps know that in this matter you do not need to ask for any permission.

Yours sincerely,

From a microfilm: S.N. 20106

94. LETTER TO D. B. KALELKAR

January 20, 1933

CHI. KAKA,

I got your two letters. I had been waiting to hear from you. Complete the dental treatment. I am glad that you try to reassure me regarding Prabhudas. In fact I do wish my mind to be at rest in the matter. What is the doctor’s explanation about the regular bleeding from the gums? or is it that a dentist cannot know that? Ask Talwalkar or Kanuga if they can explain. I saw Rohit. He must have reached Bombay now and will be under Dr. Deshmukh’s treatment. See him.
I know Rajbhoj very little and have not been able to form any opinion about him. We should ask some Maharashtrian friend who knows him.

Now about the problem of freedom for Harijans to enter temples. We had a full discussion on the subject of cooked food and I had expressed my firm opinion that this was not at all a suitable time to raise the issue. Nobody has so far considered it to be a stumbling-block nor is there any proposal that Harijans should make food offerings at all in the temples. Your suggestions can be implemented when the issue is raised.

Blessings from
BAPU

From the Gujarati original: C.W. 9491. Courtesy: D. B. Kalelkar

95. LETTER TO BHAGWANJI A. MEHTA
January 20, 1933

Bhai Bhagwanji,

You are a pessimist and an atheist. I am a great optimist and a devotee of God. I, therefore, see no possibility of our agreeing about anything. Both of us, therefore, should go our different ways and learn in the school of experience. He who survives will know the truth a little.

Vandemataram from
Mohandas

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N, 5817

96. LETTER TO AMTUSSALAAM
January 20, 1933

Dear Daughter Amtussaalam,

You must have got the wire I sent about you. I sent a letter¹ too. Your mind must not waver. Call it my order or my wish, doing or not doing what I have said is totally in your hands. You will give up all worry if you follow what I say. May God grant you recovery and peace.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Urdu: G.N, 273

¹ Vide “Letter to Amtussalaam”, 18-1-1933
97. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

January 20, 1933

CHI. NARANDAS,

How do you find Kanhaiyalal? Has he acquired sufficient proficiency in khadi work? Is he hard-working? Is he careful in his work? If he has the necessary qualities, it should not be difficult to find suitable work for him.

I hope you remember about the leather for repairing soles of sandals. I don’t need it immediately, of course. Send it with somebody who may be coming this way.

I suppose you have ascertained Radha’s wish. Is Prema calm? Does she do her work? Does she take care of her health? Sitla Sahai wrote to me saying that he had requested you to send Rs. 30 or 35 to enable him to take Sarojinidevi and Padma to Dehradun. I have not replied to him. You may do what seems proper to you.

BAPU

[PS.]

You will find with this letters for Keshu, Amtussalaam, Kanhaiyalal and Santok. Read all the letters except the one to Amtussalaam.

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./I. Also Bapuna Patro-9: Shri Narandas Gandhine, Pt. II, p. 18

98. LETTER TO F. MARY BARR

January 21, 1933

MY DEAR MARY,

I have got the Little Plays at last. Alas! What shall I do with all the literature that is pouring in on me? There are many books I would love to read. But where is the time?

Love.

BAPU

MISS MARY BARR
C/O MISS MINNS
MEDICAL SCHOOL HOSPITAL
VELLORE

From a photostat: G.N. 5990. Also C.W. 3315. Courtesy: F. Mary Barr

THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
MY DEAR RANGASWAMI,

I have your letter. You have made all the amends that it was possible for you to make. From Salivati’s letter of yesterday received by me I thought that he had done likewise, but now I see that the fault seems to have been entirely his. His motives was no doubt good, but his judgement wholly bad, but before I can give my final opinion, I would like you to send me his despatch as it was received by you. In his letter of yesterday, which I enclose herewith, as you can see he protests innocence and if his despatch was as he describes it to be, I fancy that he stands exonerated. So far as my own memory is concerned, it is not at all at fault, and Mahadev, who is ever vigilant, and aspires to be another Boswell, has notes of my conversation with Salivati which confirm me and in no way support him if he reported me as he appears to have done according to The Hindu of the 16th. The unfortunate report came at such an awkward time when the slightest error on my part could have undone a structure that is being built up with patient toil and most delicate care. Happily, the A. P. interview I really gave most reluctantly, both out of my regard for you and solicitude for Salivati, and your prompt publication of my telegram averted what might have proved a dangerous situation. The only reason now for my pursuing the subject is in order that no injustice may be done to Salivati.

Yours sincerely,

SJT. A. RANGASWAMI IYENGAR
EDITOR, “THE HINDU”

MADRAS

From a microfilm: S.N. 18987

1 Vide “Telegram to “The Hindu”, 18-1-1933

2 In his Diary Mahadev Desai recorded Gandhiji having said: “They know my views. They will not do anything without full deliberation. And as for the future I am simply jealous of my power, and will not fritter it away. There are so many things which are likely to happen in which I am interested. But why should I anticipate? God will give me the strength to deal with them as they arise.” (Mahadevbhaini Diary.)

3 Vide “Interview to Associated Press”, 18-1-1933

4 The addressee in his reply stated: “It was a painful shock to me to receive your message regarding Salivati’s message which we edited and published in our issue on Monday. I may inform you at once that the message itself was carefully edited in the office and there is no question of any mutilation or error in transmission. I do not know what to conclude of the action of Salivati in putting through a message of this character in spite of your specific instructions and which, as you say, so grossly misrepresents whatever you may have said in private conversation . . .”
100. LETTER TO K. V. SESHA AIYANGAR

January 21, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I have been glancing through the numbers of the Bharat Dharma and the pamphlets you have kindly sent. The precedents of prayopavesan¹ you have collected have proved useful to me.²

Yours sincerely,

SJT. K. V. SESHA AIYANGAR
23 NADU STREET
MYLAPORE

From a microfilm: S.N. 18988

101. LETTER TO BHAGWANDAS

January 21, 1933

DEAR BABOO BHAGWANDAS,

I enclose herewith a Hindi translation of Sjt. C. V. Vaidya’s contribution, which is in Marathi, and a copy of Shridhar Shastri Pathak’s which is in Hindi.

Both the translations are likely to contain grammatical errors, which you will please have corrected.

The translation of Sjt. C. V. Vaidya’s contribution was done by Sjt. Mahadev.

When these are published, will you kindly send me ten copies of that supplement and ten of the first supplement?

Please tell Sri Prakasa to write to me.

Here are the promised lines for the Aaj.

Yours sincerely,

From a microfilm: S.N. 18990

¹ Fasting
² Vide also “Letter to C. Y. Chintamani”, 11-1-1933
102. LETTER TO KARNAD SADASHIVA RAO

January 21, 1933

MY DEAR SADASHIVA RAO,

I have your letter of 13th instant written on the train. Untruthful propaganda and abuse are the lot generally of all reformers. Why should we be any exception to the general rule? Those who can stand such abuse and will not retaliate by matching two untruths against one have not only nothing to fear but will actually gain in strength through such unscrupulous opposition. Therefore, so long as consciousness of the correctness of the campaign and the purity of the means employed in conducting it continue, we may not become agitated in any shape or form over such opposition. But we may be sure of thriving on it. And when we have positive consciousness of the truth in us and the strength derived from it, we need never be afraid of being charged with weakness. He who for fear of appearing weak hesitates to say or do the right thing becomes untruthful in the very act, and therefore it may be said of him that he never had consciousness of the truth in him.

I read through the questions you left with me. I have not dealt with them because you will find that every one of the points is amply covered in the statements already made by me. I wonder if you have seen my letter to the Editor of the Justice published on the day of its expiry.

There now remains your question about the conduct of Congressmen in connection with the provincial and district branches of the Servants of Untouchables Society. They should be identified with activities of these organizations only in so far as their services are wanted and no further, even though the work may appear to them to be languishing. In a service that may take in the activity of as many true servants who will offer their services, one need not belong to or work through an organization. Even a cup of water lovingly handed to a Harijan, giving or procuring medical aid for an ailing Harijan, giving shelter to a shelterless Harijan, and innumerable such individual... acts are a solid contribution to the removal of untouchability. Therefore the embarrassing position that you picture need never arise.

Yours sincerely,

From a microfilm: S.N. 18989

103. LETTER TO K. RANGACHARYULU

January 21, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter. When there is opposition of the kind you mention, workers should abstain.

Yours sincerely,

SIT. K. RANGACHARYULU
TUNI

From a microfilm: S.N. 18992

104. LETTER TO A. D. APPADURAI

January 21, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter. In my opinion, khaddar has virtues which nothing else has. Khaddar means help to the most needy, and amongst them are to be counted thousands of Harijans, for their women eke out a living by spinning and several thousands of Harijans are weavers of nothing but khaddar.

Yours sincerely,

SIT. A. D. APPADURAI
ST. JOHN’S COLLEGE
PALAMCOTTAH
(TINNEVELLY DIST.)

From a microfilm: S.N. 18993
105. LETTER TO AMRITLAL V. THAKKAR

January 21, 1933

MY DEAR THAKKAR BAPA,

Your letter of the 18th instant surprises me. I never asked the Bombay Board\(^1\) to make an advance payment of Rs. 500 on account of the Central Board, but I asked them, if they would, to pay Rs. 500 to Poona on account of the expenses that Poona had to incur because of my activities being directed from Poona. If I had intended the Central Board to pay, I would have approached the Central Board myself without the slightest hesitation. I asked the Bombay Board because of its being well able to bear these expenses, Poona being next door to it. You need not therefore refund the amount asked of you, but refer them to me.

As for the 5000 copies of my statements\(^2\), I am not aware that I asked them to print them. There certainly was some conversation about a reprint of my statements in pamphlet form, but I cannot now recall whether I talked about it to Seth Mathuradass, or Sjt. J. K. Mehta, or Pyarelal or Chandrashankar. As a matter of fact, I warned them against incurring the expense, as I had the impression that the Ajmer people were reprinting them and therefore asked them to enquire before embarking upon this expense. But there never was the slightest intention on my part that the Central Board should be called upon to bear these expenses, and my own opinion is, as it always has been, that propaganda work should be more or less self-supporting. Therefore, I should consider it bad management if the sale of 5000 copies of my statements did not cover even the printing expenses. You should refer the Bombay Board to me about this item also.

Sjt. G. K. Devdhar’s letter to you is quite in order. When Haribhau asked me about the matter I agreed with him and he was the bearer of G. K. Devdhar’s message that they should have Rs. 500 over and above the grant they would receive from the Central Board, and I told him to tell Devdhar that I would endeavour to secure that amount either from the Central Board or the Bombay Board. But I first chose to write to the Bombay Board for the reason I have already stated, and

---

\(^1\) Of the All-India Harijan Sevak Sangh
\(^2\) On the question of untouchability
I was glad that promptly and without demur they sent a cheque for Rs. 500. Had they told me that it was on account of the Central Board, I would have asked Haribhau to return the cheque.

I am sending a copy of this letter to the Bombay Board for their information.

I am sending you a copy of my letter to the Bombay Board.

Yours sincerely,

From a microfilm: S.N. 18994

106. LETTER TO JAISUKHLAL K. MEHTA

January 21, 1933

MY DEAR JAISUKHLAL,

I enclose herewith a copy of my letter¹ to Thakkar Bapa which speaks for itself.

How did you gain the impression that I had authorized you to debit the Central Board with the two items referred to in my letter? If I had so intended, according to my wont, I would have made it quite clear to you. Indeed, I would have approached the Central Board myself for sanction, as I have done about various matters.

Yours sincerely,

From a microfilm: S.N. 18995

107. LETTER TO G. D. BIRLA

January 21, 1933

MY DEAR GHANSHYAMDAS,

I have your letter. I do not want you to come out with any public statement on the Bengal question, as you have noticed I am not making any public statement myself, and I have anticipated you by copying you, that is, writing to Dr. Bidhan and Ramanand Baboo. I am not writing to Sjt. J. C. Gupta, nor is it necessary for me to do so. I might have met him, but I cannot say that I am even acquainted with him.

Please do not wait for the revision of the pamphlet till the present copies are exhausted. You can do one or the other thing, either issue a revised pamphlet suppressing the old copies, or paste the full resolution onto the imperfect resolution in the existing copies, and send a public circular to the effect that by an oversight an incomplete resolution was printed in the pamphlet, giving the corrected full text.

¹ Vide the preceding item

I quite understand that you have to look after your own business also, with more concentration today than before.

What is the hitch in getting Harijan Sevak out?

The news about your health is disturbing. Why not have the necessary operation, if a reliable doctor advises it? I have learnt by experience that even dietetics and fasts have their limitations. They do not always answer. And whatever rest is necessary, you ought to impose on yourself. Dilatoriness in these matters should be regarded as sinful.

Yours sincerely,

BAPU

From a copy: C.W. 7922. Courtesy: G. D. Birla. Also S.N. 18991

108. LETTER TO RUKMINIDEVI AND BENARSILAL

BAZAJ

January 21, 1933

CHI. RUKMINI,

I got your letter. Your handwriting seems to be getting worse and worse. That will never do. Even from her sick-bed, whenever Radha writes a letter she writes it in beautiful handwriting which looks like printed type. Surely you are not incapable of writing like that? As for the contents of the letter, though none of us could observe it Chhaganlal discovered that you had tried this time to introduce some colour in it, but the colour was so faint that six out of eight eyes could not observe it. As he is taking down this letter, Mahadev tells me that he also had observed it. You may get out of this what comfort you wish to. You should know from this with what attention even a letter of ten lines from you is being read here.

CHI. BENARSILAL,

I will not forget now. You are certainly a ‘lal’.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 9152

1 Literally, ‘precious stone’
109. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

January 21, 1933

CHI. NARANDAS,

I send with this a letter addressed to Liladhar. It seems to have been sent to me through mistake. Or is it possible that Liladhar sent it for me to read? Ask him. If he accepts the letter, give it to him, or do what seems best to you.

The other letter is from Ramji. It is rather long. I have received many other letters like this, but I felt like sending this to you. Are his present earnings only as much as he mentions? Calm him down a little if you can. I can’t believe that Mathuradas would tell a lie. We ought not to get angry with him for writing what he has done, but should learn from it whatever may be worth learning.

A letter for Ramji is enclosed. Give it to him after reading it. I hope you got the letters posted yesterday.

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U/I

110. LETTER TO VITHAL L. PHADKE

January 21, 1933

CHI. MAMA,

Narandas informs me that the yarn spun in Visapur has been woven into cloth. The khadi will soon be in my hands. I have received plenty of other khadi like that. The friends in Dum Dum Jail have been released today. They also have sent a dhoti which they had got woven in the jail itself [from yarn spun by themselves]. When all this stock of khadi is exhausted, I will ask you to send the khadi woven from your yarn. Write to me sometimes.

BAPU

From Gujarati: C.W. 9645
111. LETTER TO SHANKERLAL BANKER

YERAVDA MANDIR,
January 21, 1933

CHI. SHANKERLAL,

Your letter has reached me.

If you have found out how those signatures were taken and who is behind it, write to me. This thing does not frighten me. In my view, all the dirt is coming to the surface. Ultimately, they themselves will regret it. It is surprising that persons like Girijashanker have joined hands with them.

I have been able to complete today the article I had to write. Now I shall write for Harijan. Now that I have started it, it will continue. If you do not like this article, reject it and put it aside. Should it not be published by the Gujarat Mandal? Anyway, consider and do what is proper.

If you would want me to write on some other subsidiary question let me know.

Blessings from
BAPU

[PS.]

Let me know the date of receipt of this letter.

From the Gujarati original: S. N. 32732

112. INTERVIEW TO ASSOCIATED PRESS

January 21, 1933

Referring to the Delhi message published this morning, in which probable difficulties in the way of the Government according sanction to the Temple-entry Bills were anticipated, Gandhiji observed:

If the report is an intelligent anticipation of the forthcoming Viceregal decision I can only say it will be a tragedy. I emphatically repudiate the suggestion that there is any political objective behind these measures. If court decisions had not hardened a doubtful custom into law, no legislation would probably be required. I would...
myself regard State interference in religious matters as an intolerable nuisance. But, here, legislation becomes an imperative necessity in order to remove the legal obstruction and, based as it will be on popular will so far as I can see, there can be no question of a clash between parties representing rival opinions.

It has been suggested that one of the reasons for withholding sanction is likely to be that there has been no demand on the part of Harijans for legislation to remove their social disabilities. But, I do know that Dr. Ambedkar’s memorandum bristles with suggestions for legislation regarding all sorts of social disabilities. Yet, I hope nobody wants a hurricane agitation on behalf of Harijans before the social and religious yoke is removed from off their necks. Furthermore, I make bold to claim, if there has not been a loud demand by Harijans for temple-entry, I am responsible for it, because I have been advising them not to enter the agitation on a large scale, whilst caste Hindus are themselves making Herculean efforts to implement the Bombay Resolution of September last, which pledges caste Hindus to opening public temples, among other things, to Harijans.

In conclusion, I would only repeat that the refusal to sanction the introduction of a measure demanded by caste Hindu opinion would obstruct the progress of reform, whose advisability no lover of religious freedom has questioned.

Mr. Gandhi has declined to comment on the suggestion that the Government might decide in favour of a single Central legislation, saying that he would like to have more details regarding this proposal.

The Hindu, 23-1-1933

113. LETTER TO RATILAL SHETH

January 22, 1933

Bhai Ratubhai,

I hope you got my letter. Please try to do your best to keep the Doctor’s nest intact. At present things seem to be out of control. When somebody goes back on his word, I feel helpless.

1 Father-in-law of Chhaganlal Mehta, Dr. Pranjivan Mehta’s eldest son
2 Dr. Pranjivan Mehta, who died in Rangoon on August 3, 1932. As there was dispute between his sons on the question of property, Gandhiji was keen that the matter should be settled amicably. Vide
As if this worry were not enough, I got a wire from Chhaganlal regarding Padma. And now I have received one from Lilavati. They ask for my blessings. How can I give them when I have never seen or known Padma or the bridegroom? I understand that you also wish that this marriage should take place soon. Please help me. Leave me out of this, and do what you think is for their good. If you had not asked me about the matter and if Maganlal had not written to me about it I would have had no occasion at all to give advice. What right had I to give any? When all of you seek my advice, looking upon me as your well-wisher, I think it my duty to give whatever advice may seem right to me. I know the limits of one’s relations with persons with whom one has no blood relation.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 7171

114. LETTER TO RAOJIBHAI N. PATEL

January 22, 1933

CHI. RAOJIBHAI,

I got your letter of the 20th. You may fix the day with me in advance and come, with or without Lalita. You can write to me anything you wish to in this matter. I did not get your previous letters. If I had received them, I would not have left them unanswered.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 8998

115. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

January 22, 1933

CHI. NARANDAS,

I can’t understand how you received on the same day the letters handed over by me on different days. I will inquire of the authorities. Henceforth, whenever you receive a letter from me mention in your

---

1 Dr. Mehta’s grand-daughter
2 Wife of Chhaganlal Mehta
3 Dr. Mehta’s youngest son who was studying in England
4 Addressee’s sister
next letter the date on which it was posted, the date on the letter itself and the date on which you received it. If you let me know every time these dates as you have done this time, I can ask the authorities here to be more alert.

I got [today] the letters posted by you on the 20th. The letters posted on the 19th were received yesterday.

I am convinced that we shall gain nothing from Krishnamaiyadevi’s connection with the Ashram. If it seems proper to you, you may fix a monthly allowance to be paid to her for some time. During that period, Mahavir should secure a job. The mother and the daughters also should work. I would have no objection to their being paid Rs. 50 a month for four months plus railway fare from Ahmedabad to the place where they decide to go and live. These are my personal views. If, however, all of you there have discussed the matter and come to some other decision, you should abide by it and implement it. I still advise you to write to the persons who have lent them money. We shall thereby know, we ought to know, what the facts are.

You may derive what consolation you can from the fact that . . .\(^1\) has harassed me more than he has done you. And he has crossed all bounds in his behaviour to me this time. All the same, we should go on doing our duty by him. I may even have made a mistake in permitting him to join the Ashram. I also doubt whether he really suffers from tuberculosis. However, I never regret such mistakes.
Anybody who tries to follow ahimsa is bound to commit them. How can we judge a man’s worth? Does he live in the Ashram now?

I hope Indira has recovered. How does Ramnik behave?

If Bhikhabhai lives in the Ashram, does he take his meals at home or in the Ashram kitchen?

As for the land cess to be paid by the Ashram, you may do what you think right. I am writing to Mama about khadi.\(^2\) I have more of it here than I need.

There is no harm in Amtussalaam going to Delhi. She has faith in Dr. Sharma and the latter is confident. Just now the weather in Delhi will also be lovely. She seems to be very eager to come and see me. Do what you think right about that.

\(^1\) The name has been omitted.
\(^2\) Vide “Letter to Vithal L. Phadke”, 21-1-1933
I got Prema’s letter. I, therefore, don’t write about the matter here. You may know my views from the letter which I will write to her.

BAPU

[PS.]

In all there are 24 letters, stitched together.

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U/I

116. LETTER TO PREMABEHN KANTAK

January 22, 1933

CHI. PREMA,

I was relieved to get your letter. Even worry is a child of imagination. Why should I worry if I do not get a letter from you, and why should I feel relieved on getting one? If you ask me this question, I would not be able to reply to it, or would only say: ‘“This is what ignorant attachment means.”

A foolish letter from you would not upset me. If, however, I see your error or shortcoming and do not point it out to you, I would not be doing my duty as your well-wisher, co-worker, friend or father. What I find strange is that you should get angry with me and sulk for telling you something with a sincere motive, instead of thanking me for it. Should we not thank a person for telling us frankly what he feels? I learnt this in my very childhood. I do want you to learn it from me. If my understanding of a situation is wrong, I deserve to be pitied, and, if it is correct, I would be doing you good. In either case, you gain something, in that you come to know better the person with whom you have thrown in your lot. I want that all of you should know my shortcomings and deficiencies and it is always my effort to show them myself. I don’t wish to hide even my thoughts. I would even write them down if I had the necessary gift. But I know I cannot do that. I don’t think there can be any power in the world which can penetrate all the secrets of thought. Probably we shall be able to know them if somebody invents a machine to reveal them. Even while I was writing these few sentences, my imagination traversed the universe many times over.

You will admit that everybody cannot understand whether or not he has the poison in his heart. Because one does not consciously wish to nurse hatred, it does not mean that there is no hatred in one’s heart.
It takes hold of us against our will. You will probably not admit that anybody whose heart is full of anger is also full of hatred. If you do not, then the word “poison” does not have the same meaning for you and me. I remember that Ba often charged me with having poison in my heart. How can I deny that charge? I may not have believed that there was any poison in my words. But that is beside the point. What should matter to me is that she felt the poison. Words which are perfectly truthful and spoken with perfect love will never hurt anybody. They may sometimes hurt one in the beginning, but such a person himself will afterwards admit their beneficial effect on him.

I should like you not to be your own judge in all matters. It is possible that others judge you better than you do yourself. I will now end this tale of “poison”.

The question of your leaving the Ashram does not arise just now. It will arise only after I am released and return to the Ashram to stay there. That is how I read your letter. Morally speaking, it can arise only then, if at all, for, so long as I cannot return to the Ashram to stay in it, in the eyes of the inmates of the Ashram I will remain a prisoner. All of you who decided to stay on when I bade good-bye to the Ashram bound yourselves thereby to remain there till I returned. If I am right in believing this, it is a waste of time and energy to think now what should be done when I return to stay there.

The news you have given about happenings in the Ashram is very useful to me. You should discuss the problem of Lakshmi with Narandas, and if both of you decide that she should be married, it should be done soon. Her restlessness also is likely to be the result of an unconscious desire to get married. She is now of marriageable age, and she does intend to marry. The desire to wait till I am released should be regarded as nothing but ignorant attachment to me. You should try and understand her heart properly, and not wait for her emphatic consent. It seems to me desirable to take the advice of Lakshmibehn and Durgabehn in this matter. They would understand the problem better than you can. I understand from what you yourself have said that you have no experience of how a girl feels when she desires to marry. In other words, you have never felt the desire to marry. I also know some other unmarried women who have never felt it. Some other women remain unmarried with an effort of will. They know what marriage means.

What advice should I give you about your health? Ghee seems to be absolutely necessary for it. Whenever you leave the Ashram, your weight increases, and as soon as you return to the Ashram you lose the weight you had gained. You must get over this weakness. How it can be done, you alone know. I hope you experience no difficulty now in speaking.

I don’t wish to catch anybody in my snare. What would be my plight if all people became my slaves? And, moreover, I am sure that any such effort would be doomed to failure. Even if it is true that I try to catch people in my snare, why should you lose confidence in yourself for that reason? Your letters are sufficient evidence that you are vigilant and not likely to succumb. It does seem, however, that you are perpetually afraid that you will let yourself be caught. That is a bad sign. Having resolved that you will not let yourself be caught, why should you feel afraid? But may it also not be possible that you and I do not mean the same thing by ‘‘getting caught’’?

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10323

117. LETTER TO BHAGWANJI P. PANDYA

January 22, 1933

CHI. BHAGWANJI,

Chit and chitta are two different words, but the latter is derived from the former. Chit means consciousness, or it can be interpreted to mean that which can have consciousness, namely, the atman. To say that the chitta of one who has overcome attachment is always serene and contented means that his atman is so. Chitta may also mean the mind. The word should be interpreted according to the context in the sentence or the verse in which it occurs. In trying to explain the meaning of dhyanayoga, one frequently has to use the word yoga. It should be remembered when doing so that yoga means skill in work or action done without attachment.

Blessings from

BAPU

From Gujarati: C.W. 350a. Courtesy: Bhagwanji P. Pandya
118. LETTER TO NARMADABEHN RANA

January 22, 1933

CHI. NARMADA,

I got your letter. Slowly you will progress. Why should we feel hurt if somebody speaks ill of us? Learn from someone the bhajan “My detractor is my benefactor.” Its central idea is that anybody who speaks ill of us serves us by doing so. Continue to write to me.

BAPU

From the Gujarati original; C.W. 2772. Courtesy: Ramnarayan N. Pathak

119. LETTER TO VIMALCHANDRA V. DESAI

January 22, 1933

CHI. NANU,

Since you have written your letter on khadi paper with red ink and in your most careful handwriting, shouldn’t I also write the reply on beautiful paper? How do you like this paper? And this handwriting? Do you take plenty of exercise?

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 5762. Courtesy: Valji G. Desai

120. LETTER TO VALJI G. DESAI

January 22, 1933

CHI. VALJI,

There is no harm in your having published *Ishucharita*¹. The people will certainly like it very much. The verse from Kabir also is appropriate. Still, there is some incompleteness in your evaluation, but it is not a serious defect. Only, one would expect more from you. I have no doubt that you have given what you could. But I have no doubt, either, that you can do better. We need not, however, worry about that. I would be happy if I could give you more marks every

¹ “Life of Jesus”. For Gandhiji’s criticism of the booklet, vide “Letter to Valji G. Desai”, 19-10-1932 time. If your health improves, all your capacity will blossom forth. For the present, let this remain my wish and hope. Send a few copies to me—twenty-five. Don’t leave that place till you are quite well again.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 7446. Courtesy: Valji G. Desai

121. LETTER TO ASHRAM BOYS AND GIRLS

January 22, 1933

BOYS AND GIRLS,

Just now please do not expect to get long letters from me. Who cooked at Pujya Anasuyabehn’s? Did you behave politely and courteously there? Did you keep on asking for food very often? Did you clean the utensils yourselves? There is nothing to worry about your eating bhajias\(^1\). But henceforward right at the beginning, whenever you have to go anywhere, tell them clearly: “Please give us this only and do not make that for us.”

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./II

122. LETTER TO SHARDA C. SHAH

January 22, 1933

CHI. SHARDA,

When a person wears khadi with an enlightened mind, he does it for the sake of its simplicity, for the help it brings to the starving people, for the purity it embodies. This knowledge calms down our passions. Hence, I would say that khadi, when worn with such awareness, helps brahmacharya. Do you get the point?

BAPU

From the Gujarati original: C.W. 9962. Courtesy: Shardabehn G. Chokhawala

\(^{1}\) A fried and heavily spiced delicacy made of gram flour
123. LETTER TO GULAM RASUL QURESHI

January 22, 1933

CHI. QURESHI,

I hope you and the children are fully recovered now.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C. W. 10817. Courtesy: Gulam Rasul Qureshi

124. LETTER TO AMTUSSALAAM

January 22, 1933

DEAR DAUGHTER AMTUSSALAAM,

I have your letter. It would be a crime not to send you to Delhi even after receiving Dr. Sharma’s letter. So you may proceed direct for Delhi but see me on the way to the Ashram on your return. You must learn to some extent the value of remaining quiet. And remember that we profess to be poor. The poor remain content by meeting their companions and relatives in the spirit only. Who would provide them railway fare? Anyway, go to Delhi immediately, get well and visit me on return. God will keep you safe. Keep writing to me. Do not be anxious about the Harijan children; after all everybody is in the care of God alone.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Urdu: G.N. 274

1 The addressee was doing social work among Harijans at Vadaj, near Sabarmati Ashram.
125. DRAFT TELEGRAM TO R. V. SHASTRI

[On or after January 22, 1933]

YOUR LETTER. CERTAINLY PROCEED MADRAS REACHING HERE END MONTH.

GANDHI

From a microfilm: S.N. 19241

126. LETTER TO PUNJAB PROVINCIAL STUDENTS’ UNION

January 23, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I thank you for your letter enclosing a copy of the resolution of your Union. I note what the resolution says about a distinct name. A name is inevitable till there is a complete fusion. The only question therefore is what name to distinguish the so-called untouchables by; and ‘Harijans’ was the name suggested by some of them, and as it was a name that exactly fitted the condition, I adopted it; for, those who are forsaken by mankind become the chosen of God, and ‘Harijan’ literally means that.

I hope that this resolution by your Union is not the end of the service to the cause, but merely a beginning and an earnest of solid and constructive service yet to come.

Yours sincerely,

THE VICE-PRESIDENT
PUNJAB PROVINCIAL STUDENTS’ UNION
LAHORE

From a microfilm: S.N. 18996

1 Received on January 22, 1933. The addressee had consented to work for the English edition of Harijan Sevak and sought Gandhiji’s permission to shift his family to Madras before joining A. V. Thakkar at Delhi.
127. LETTER TO PRABHASHANKAR PATTANI

January 23, 1933

SUNA BHAL

You have returned at the right time. I hope you have come back with improved health. May I hope that your contribution to the Harijan cause will surpass that of anybody else? You may make it in your way, but that way should be such that the progress made by others will seem insignificant in comparison. If you decide, I am sure you will be able to do much. Do try. Pay immediate attention to the problem of bham1. It is necessary to introduce a great change in this practice if we wish to make the Dheds and Chamars give up eating carrion. All of us are well.

Vendemataram from

MOHAN DAS

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 5923

128. LETTER TO MANU GANDHI

January 23, 1933

CHI. MANUDI.

I got your letter. You should not write in too small a hand, nor should you write too fast. Each letter in a word should be distinct.

It is Ba’s love which makes her write that she would like you to stay with her. But you may continue to live there and be happy. If you keep good health and your mind is at peace, I shall be satisfied. Write to Ba from time to time.

Serve your aunts.

Blessings from

BAPU

From Gujarati: C.W. 1519. Courtesy: Manubehn Mashruwala

---

1 Payment exacted from Harijans for the hide, flesh, etc., of the dead cattle which they were obliged to remove
129. LETTER TO BALIBEHN M. ADALAJA

January 23, 1933

CHI. BALI,

Kamu¹ writes and tells me that you had no time and that is why you have not written to me. I don’t believe this. How can I believe that you do not get time just to write one letter?

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 1520. Courtesy: Manubehn Mashruwala

130. LETTER TO RANCHHODDAS PATWARI

January 23, 1933

RESPECTED RANCHHODBHAI,

I will not let you off easily now. You have said that you accept everything else except opening of temples to Harijans. You may leave me to strive for the cause of temple-entry, but the other things you must do as a sacred duty. If you help, we can soon make the Harijans give up eating carrion. All schools, hospitals, wells, and so on should be thrown open completely. You yourself have said that if the Harijans pray, bathe regularly and keep themselves clean, they will be as good as we are. You should help in making them do all that. You will then be welcome to abuse me as much as you wish to. Only help me in my work. I hope you got my answers² to your questions.

Pranams from

MOHANDAS

From Gujarati: C.W. 9222. Courtesy: Chhaganlal Gandhi

¹ Kumibehn T. Maniar, addressee’s sister
² Vide “Letter to Ranchhoddas Patwari”, 11-1-1933
131. LETTER TO GORADIA

January 23, 1933

BHAI GORADIA,

Do Thakoresaheb\(^1\) and you contribute anything to Harijan service? Perhaps you are afraid that the local subjects may be offended if the temple is thrown open, but what about the bham?

What are the arrangements for the disposal of carcasses? Do you charge the Dheds for clearing them? If you wish to stop them from partaking of carrion, you ought to pay them for their services and supervise the processing of carcasses. This would involve some labour no doubt, but no loss. How are they treated in courts, and in hospitals? Will you please give me an account of this?

[From Gujarati]

132. LETTER TO SUMANGAL PRAKASH

YERAVDA MANDIR,

January 23, 1933

CHI. SUMANGAL,

I have your letter after many weeks, nay, months.

It is only proper to utilize some time for improving your health.

I keep getting news of Kanta. Saroop gives me news of her, as does Prabhavati. I have no doubt she has been putting her time to good use.

If one gets food from outside after securing permission, for the sake of one’s health, one is doing nothing wrong. But it is praiseworthy if one is content with whatever food one gets inside and refrains from asking for more. But he who cannot maintain his health on the food he gets in prison, and has secured permission to obtain it from outside and can easily have it, yet does not do so and so spoils his health, is obstinate. Perhaps he could be considered a literalist.

\(^1\) Title of the head of a small principality
I certainly do not think there is any harm in having a shikha. It is a time-honoured custom which the reformer may not try to change and so run into trouble. You may not find a strong reason in support of every custom, yet if it is popular and there is nothing morally wrong in it, it deserves to be followed.

The statement that “a few medicines are found to be effective but they are well known” is not happily phrased. The meaning can be made more explicit. Although one may not repose one’s faith in allopathy, some allopathic medicines can certainly be used. One does not have to go out and look for them. They are well-known household remedies such as castor-oil, quinine, kariata, sonamukhi.

I have not come to any harm from fasting. Fasting may be resorted to in old age. Then, a fast undertaken from spiritual motives is not difficult to go through. Of course one does become emaciated because there is not enough fat in the body.

You write in haste and therefore your letters are difficult to decipher. If you write a little slowly they will be easier to read.

Blessings from

BAPU

From the Gujarati original: Sumangal Prakash Papers. Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library

133. LETTER TO PARAMANAND KAPADIA

January 23, 1933

Bhai Paramanand,

Bring along your friend and his wife on Saturday.

Blessings from

BAPU

Shri Paramanand Kunverji

164 Mumbadevi

BOMBAY

From the Gujarati original: G. N. 11582

---

1 Tuft of hair on the crown of the head
2 This and the previous paragraph appear under “A Letter”, 23-1-1933
134. A LETTER

January 23, 1933

If one gets food from outside after securing permission, for the sake of one’s health, one is doing nothing wrong. But it is praiseworthy if one is content with whatever food one gets inside and refrains from asking for more. But he who cannot maintain his health with the food he gets in prison, and has secured permission to obtain it from outside and can easily have it, yet does not do so and so spoils his health is obstinate. Perhaps he could be considered pedantic.

I certainly do not think there is any harm in wearing a shikha¹. It is a time-honoured custom which the reformer may not try to change and so run into trouble. You may not find a strong reason in support of every custom, yet if it is popular and there is nothing morally wrong in it, it deserves to be followed.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. III, p. 83

135. A LETTER

January 23, 1933

In order to control our passions we should turn our thoughts inward. The basic formula for spiritual progress is self-surrender. Spiritual progress is nothing but knowledge of the atman.

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. III, p. 82

136. A LETTER

January 23, 1933

The fast has in no way harmed my health. Even in old age a fast can be undertaken and completed without any ill effects. Moreover a fast undertaken with a spiritual motive is not difficult to go through. The body will of course grow weak as it has less fat [in old age].

[From Gujarati]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. III, p. 83

¹ The tuft of hair on one’s head
137. LETTER TO S. J. SOMAVANSHI

January 23, 1933

BHAI SOMAVANSHI,

I read your loving letter from beginning to end. I have received the books also. I also listened to the life story of the Maharaj. I have read almost all the marked portions of the book. Both failed to impress me. Chiefly because we find no basis for regarding the so-called untouchables as untouchables; nor for the treatment meted out to them.

How am I at fault? I have been saying for the last 45 years the very thing about the eradication of untouchability that I say now. My views have been well known in India for more than 25 years. Now and then some opposition was certainly heard but I incurred no one’s wrath. Now that I am ready to do penance for it I am blamed. But the Shastras and the saints have preached the necessity of tapascharya whenever dharma dwindles and this is what I am attempting to do. There is no headstrongness about it. How can that man be headstrong who is ever prepared to correct his errors?

By pointing out the omission on the part of saints to lay stress on this particular problem you are doing them and me an injustice. The saints do not try to remove all the evils, nor can they do so. They simply disseminate dharma and in the process try to remove some evil. Even the avatars are unable to destroy all evil; they perform their deeds concentrating on the chief evil of their times.

An important feature of the non-violent spirit is that it always keeps the popular will in view. The anti-untouchability movement may also be taken as basically meant to test public will. The highest religion is useless for those who are not prepared to live by it. Compulsion has absolutely no place in the spirit of non-violence.

You are correct in suggesting that I should offer daily prayers to God to show me the right path. I not only constantly do that but believe that I take no action without His command; you may rest assured on this.

Mohanandas Gandhi

From a microfilm of the Hindi: S.N. 18997

1 Biographies of a Marathi saint
2 Self-suffering as moral discipline
138. A LETTER

January 23, 1933

Observing silence implies abstaining from talking, gestures, food and drink, and closing one’s eyes and ears, i.e., remaining in seclusion and losing oneself in thought. On the day of silence, one should remember God. The purpose of silence is meditation.

[From Hindi]

Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. III, p. 82

139. LETTER TO BEGUM MOHAMMAD ALAM

January 23, 1933

DEAR SISTER,

I got your letter. How great is God’s grace that Doctor Saheb should recover so soon and the operation become unnecessary! I hope that he will take complete rest for the present. Keep writing to me. Tell Doctor Saheb that we all remember him.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Urdu: G.N. 27

140. LETTER TO RAIHANA TYABJI

January 23, 1933

DEAR DAUGHTER RAIHANA,

I have your letter. The meaning of tuk as given by you seems correct. If I wait till I can write a good hand and commit not a single error, I shall never be able to write in Urdu. If you send me by post some extra time along with the Urdu lessons, you will find no mistakes. My respects to Father and Mother. May I send a kiss for you? But only on one condition; that you drive away the fever. Why don’t you become perfectly well by taking a little more rest? There are enough duties for you if you remain well. There is no lack of jobs for those keen to serve.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Urdu: S.N. 9661
141. STATEMENT ON VICEROY’S DECISION

January 24, 1933

Having read the Government decision on the two Bills¹ about untouchability now before the country, I cannot help expressing my regret on general grounds that the Government could not see their way to allow both the Bills to be discussed by the respective Legislatures and the country.

Dr. Subbaroyan’s Bill restricts itself to one particular issue of temple-entry and that too in the Madras Presidency, and the opening of each temple depends on the will of the majority of those entitled to temple-entry. It therefore reduces the possibility of a clash between one party and another party to a minimum and to a zero if the reformers play the game, i.e., allow for the religious scruples even of a microscopic minority as my compromise proposal does. But this was not to be. From a strict sanatanist point, the Madras Bill was perhaps the lesser of the two evils as they would put it. It was easier for a reformer to cope with, and for me personally too as a fasting hostage, for Viceregal sanction would have in all probability successfully prevented a fast over Guruvayur. But the Government of India had willed otherwise. I must try to trace the hand of God in it. He wants to try me through and through. If He does, He will have to give me adequate strength as He has always vouchsafed those who would surrender themselves wholly to Him.

The all-India Bill is short and sweet, being of negative character in one way. It gives no direct aid to the reformer. It merely refuses aid to any and every individual sanatanist who would come to seek assistance in the secular courts to impose his will on the whole Hindu society and to enforce a custom which the latter may consider to be repugnant to Hindu Shastras and the innate moral sense of man. It abolishes legal untouchability, leaving the social and religious to its fate. The sanction given to this Bill is an unintentional challenge to Hinduism and the reformer. Hinduism will take care of itself if the reformer will be true to himself. Thus considered, the Government of India’s decision must be regarded as a godsend. It clears the issue. It makes it easy for India and the world to understand the tremendous importance of the moral struggle now going on in India. It takes it at one sweep to its natural platform to which it was timidly advancing.

¹ Vide footnote 3, “Letter to Ranchhoddas Patwari”, 11-1-1933. For Gandhiji’s reaction to the announcement, vide “Talk with M. G. Bhandari”a, 24-1-1933

As a life-long reformer and fighter, I must take up the challenge in all humility, and so must every Hindu who was directly or indirectly a party to the resolution adopted under the chairmanship of the revered Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya. The resolution bears repetition:

This Conference resolves that henceforth, amongst Hindus, no one shall be regarded as ‘untouchable’ by reason of his birth, and that those who have been so regarded hitherto will have the same rights as other Hindus in regard to the use of public wells, public schools, public roads and all other public institutions. These rights shall have statutory recognition at the first opportunity, and shall be one of the earliest Acts of the swaraj Parliament, if it shall not have received such recognition before that time.

It is further agreed that it shall be the duty of all Hindu leaders to secure, by every legitimate and peaceful means, the early removal of all social disabilities now imposed by custom upon the so-called untouchable classes including the bar in respect of admission into temples.

Let the reader carefully note the words printed in italics. The resolution contemplates, if at all possible, the removal of legal untouchability even before the establishment of a swaraj Parliament. The opportunity has now offered itself. No Hindu who is jealous of the honour of Hinduism or the word given to Harijans dare let the opportunity slip. Even the sanatanist, if he will read the all-India Bill, as I do, may not resist it. For, has he not said to me, has he not said it even in his writings, that he has no quarrel with political and civic rights being given to Harijans on the same terms as caste Hindus? In other words, he has no objection to Harijans being treated as equals with the rest in the eye of the law. If he is not, in the eye of religion, that is a matter for the sanatanist and his conscience. The law’s assistance must not be summoned to aid him to enforce his conscience against a fellow-being.

The sanatanist Shastris whom I had the pleasure of meeting had been able only to cite me verses to the effect that if anyone is polluted by the touch of an untouchable he has either to take a sip of water or

---

1 On September 25, 1932; vide also “Resolution at the Hindu Leaders’ Conference, Bombay”, 25-9-1932 have a bath. There seems to be nowhere mention of punishment for an untouchable entering a public place including a temple. And, in no case, should the aid of secular law be summoned to punish an untouchable guilty of mere infringement of a sacerdotal rule. The present Bill rightly renders such an interference by law impossible.

The opening of temples to Harijans would, under the Bill, be regulated by mutual adjustment. Where the opinion of the temple-going population is not ripe for reform, naturally the Harijans cannot enter the temples. Where the opinion is ripe, the law cannot be invoked by individuals to thwart the will of the majority. But whatever the sanatanists may decide, the movement for temple-entry now broadens from Guruvayur in the extreme south to Hardwar in the north, and my fast, though it remains further postponed, depends not, now, upon Guruvayur only but extends automatically to temples in general. That is to say, the fast becomes dependent upon the actions of reformers not regarding the Madras Bill which was to cover Guruvayur only, but regarding the all-India Bill which covers all temples including Guruvayur.

And so it has been throughout my life. One step has naturally led me on to another, even despite myself. I was confining my attention to the Madras Bill. It was enough for me. Even on Saturday last, that is, the 21st January, when the Associated Press correspondent asked my opinion of the Associated Press Delhi correspondent’s forecast, I declined to commit myself to any opinion on the all-India Bill as compared to the Madras Bill.\(^1\) I was not prepared to face a bigger and graver contingency. But now that it comes upon me as an accomplished fact, I dare not flinch.

The Government pronouncement would have one to think that the Bill will be one long-drawn-out agony, and may never become the law of the land. They are right, from their standpoint, in being over-cautious. But if Hindu conscience is really roused against untouchability, as the latter is practised today, the Bill can become law in no time. The Government cannot resist the unequivocal expression of Hindu opinion in favour of it. Despite sanatanist opposition, my belief is that a vast mass of Hindu opinion is against untouchability, though it may not take energetic steps to remove it. It is that faith which sustains me. No further ordinary propaganda will convince the the Hindu mind of the sense of wrong of untouchability if it is not already convinced by years of work in that behalf. It requires then, as it has done before now, the extraordinary propaganda of penance. It may be that it needs the stimulus of a fast on the part of one who has made his life one with them. If so, they shall have it. They must either remove untouchability or remove me from their midst.

\(^1\) Vide “Interview to Associated Press”, 21-1-1933

Let me proclaim it, for the thousandth time, that for me, as with my co-workers, the removal of untouchability is an indispensable religious need and the opening of temples to Harijans, being a pure spiritual act, is an indispensable test of that removal. It is the one thing that alone can give new life and new hope to Harijans, as no mere economic uplift can do. Economic and all other uplift will follow temple-entry as light follows dawn. The one single act of opening temples to Harijans will purify Hinduism, and will open the hearts of both caste Hindus and Harijans to receive new light.

The message of the temples will penetrate every Harijan hut; the message of economic and educational uplift will touch only those to whom it is personally brought. This proposition of mine can easily be understood by those who, like me, believe in temples as an integral part of Hinduism, as churches and mosques are of Christianity and Islam. It is not necessary that every Harijan should at once enter the temples. It is enough and necessary if he knows that he has acquired that right. And in this religious conception of Hinduism fasts and the like take their natural and necessary place. They are then, no more coercion than any bona-fide cry of love of the Divine is.

The Hindu, 25-1-1933
142. LETTER TO G. M. THENGE

January 24, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter.¹ My statement² has not the meaning that you have assigned to it, as would be quite clear to you if you will read it as a whole. I have considered myself to be incapable of coming to a judgement one way or the other, if only because I have not all the data for coming to a judgement. I have therefore stated in unequivocal language that every Congressman has to decide for himself or herself, taking stock of the circumstances over which they alone have control and I have none, as also of their own individual obligations of which they alone can have knowledge and I can have none.

Yours sincerely,

SJT. G. M. THENGE
PAREKH STREET, GIRGAUM
BOMBAY

From a microfilm: S.N. 18986

143. LETTER TO SUBRAHMANIA SHASTRI

January 24, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I thank you for your letter enclosing your reply to Acharya Dhruva’s opinion in Sanskrit about untouchability.

I do not remember having said whichever side stops correspondence is to be considered to have accepted the other’s position. In my opinion such a thing should not be regarded as conclusive, because each party may exhaust all points of difference

¹ The addressee had written: “In answer to those Congressmen who wish to know whether they should prosecute the civil disobedience campaign or should take an active interest in the campaign against untouchability, you have reminded them of the celebrated English proverb: ‘Much wants more and loses all.’ I presume that you intend thereby to convey that we have had enough of the civil disobedience movement in the past and that we do not want it any longer, lest we stand to lose all that we aspire for...”
² Dated January 7, 1933; vide “Statement to the Press”, 7-1-1933 and may still maintain their respective positions. However, you will not find me suddenly stopping the correspondence, because I want to get all the wisdom and all the information that I can from everyone.

Coming to your reply or rejoinder as you call it, I shall leave Acharya Dhruva to answer for himself, but you do not carry conviction even to a layman like myself. You say that the word _api_ only denotes the unfitness of the _Chandala_ and the height of the path of devotion. Do you not see the inconsistency of your statement? If the _Chandala_ is unfit, there is no height (I suppose you mean ‘greatness’) about the path of devotion. The path of devotion is truly great, because it brings peace and joy and salvation even to the _Chandala_. Instances of the use of _api_ by way of emphasis can surely be multiplied.

In your second paragraph, emphasis is not on the fact that here the _Chandala_ was pious but that it was the _Chandala_ who was speaking. Most of the sanatanists who oppose temple-entry by Harijans contend that no piety on the part of a _Chandala_ would cure him of his disability.

In the third clause, your admission that all life as _atman_ is one rules out the impassable barrier between touchables and untouchables. The verse in question itself notes the differentiation between persons and bodies and yet insists on equality of treatment.

I need not labour the rest of your replies except to say that they are unconvincing to me. However, without my comments on your reply, I am forwarding it to Acharya Dhruva, for his own independent reply which I shall gladly send to you when it comes to me.

_Yours sincerely,_

From a microfilm: S.N. 18999

---

1 “Also”
MY DEAR RAMACHANDRA RAO.

I have your postcard. I shall await further information from you.

Yes, I am applying ghee religiously every day. I am sorry to report to you that as yet there is no relief whatsoever. There is no doubt about the ghee being cow’s milk ghee.

The addition of ‘if’ was intended for the sake of preserving truth. However close I may be to a friend, in speaking to him I would have to say to him not ‘since you are so and so”, but “if you are so and so, you have no cause to be anxious”.

Yours sincerely,

SJT.

G. RAMACHANDRA RAO
C/O SERVANTS OF INDIA SOCIETY
ROYAPETTAH, MADRAS

From a microfilm: S.N. 19000

DEAR FRIEND.

I have your letter for which I thank you. I do hope that students will not be satisfied with merely having passed a resolution but that they will engage in some concrete service of Harijans.

Yours sincerely,

SJT. T. K. S. RAJAN
51, I, AGRAHARAM
SALEM

From a microfilm: S.N. 19001
146. LETTER TO P. V. SUNDARAVARADULU

January 24, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter. You have given me interesting information.¹ Can you supplement it by giving me the exact figures of those who kill cows and buffaloes for sacrifice? What is their caste name? Are there any touchable castes that eat beef? I understand that there are numberless caste men in Andhradesh who eat pork.

I cannot think of any special message to be given to the ryots of Andhra villages. The statements that I issue from time to time are as much addressed to them as to the rest of the Hindus all over the country.

Yours sincerely,

SIT. P. V. SUNDARAVARADULU
SECRETARY
ANDHRA PROVINCIAL RYOTS' ASSOCIATION
KILPAUK, MADRAS

From a microfilm: S.N. 19002

147. LETTER TO D. G. VELANKAR

January 24, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter. You can come and bring your two or three friends at 2 p.m. on 27th instant. I hope 30 minutes will be enough for you.

Yours sincerely,

SIT. D. G. VELANKAR
866 SADASHIV PETH
POONA CITY

From a microfilm: S.N. 20083

¹ The addressee had written: ‘‘Their [ryots’] contention is that the Harijans eat cow, mutton, and are most indecent in their habits. . . . They [Harijans] sacrifice cows and buffaloes to their goddesses in public and offer toddy on such occasions. . . . I therefore request you to turn your attention to . . . purifying the Harijans” (S.N. 18984).
148. LETTER TO R. N. BHIDE

January 24, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your pathetic letter. Do not mix up two questions, the fast and temple-entry. Dismiss the fast from your mind, because it is a personal matter and it may or may not come. Temple-entry is the question. The economic and the educational questions are what the adjectives imply. Temple-entry is a spiritual act, transforming the whole society by one single act of admission. It will electrify into a new life the whole of the Harijan population, and it will purify Hinduism as no single act that I can think of can do. If you have the Hindu religious instinct in you, you will not find it difficult to follow my argument. If you do not possess a living faith in Hinduism or do not consider temples an integral part of it, I have no effective argument to meet your difficulty. On the contrary, I must then accept a defeat.

Yours sincerely,

S. J. T. R. N. BHIDE
D. B. HOSTEL
PORT PUTTUR (S. KANARA DT.)

From a microfilm: S.N. 20088

149. LETTER TO M. M. ANANTA RAU

January 24, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I thank you for all your letters and the great pains you have been taking to instruct me and to supply me with the information I have wanted. When I have studied all your letters I shall write to you if necessary at length.

Though you have not replied to my criticism about your letter-paper, you seem to have done better by acting upon a part of my suggestion, namely, removing the portrait and the surrounding letter-press; if the removal is an acknowledgement of the correctness of my criticism, you will note that my criticism was directed also against the ornamental border. Letter-paper, especially for a religious agency, should, in my opinion, be free from all ornamentation and contain only in just readable plain type the name and address. The beautiful verse at the top and the “Om” can stand. I have made bold to offer what may appear to be gratuitous criticism, because you have been so prompt and diligent in your correspondence. Though we may not agree finally in our conclusions, I cannot fail to appreciate your courtesy and promptness.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

SIT. M. M. ANANTA RAU
SANATANA DHARMA KARYALAYA
40 ISWARDAS LALA STREET
TRIPLICANE, MADRAS
From a copy: C.W. 9571. Courtesy: Government of Mysore

150. LETTER TO DR. HIRALAL SHARMA

January 24, 1933

MY DEAR SHARMA,

Amtussalaam has forwarded your letter\(^1\) of the 15th instant to me and I was glad to receive it. You have indeed fulfilled your self-imposed vow, for the letter you have written to me is not for yourself. I have already advised Amtussalaam to proceed to Delhi and I hope that she will leave the Ashram at once, stay there till you can discharge her fully cured and then return to the Ashram. I quite appreciate your desire to fulfil your present obligations before you come down to the Ashram.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

SIT. H. L. SHARMA
SUNRAY HOSPITAL
KAROLBAGH, DELHI

_Bapaki Chhayamen Mere Jivanke Solah Varsh_, p. 16

\(^1\) The addressee had stated that, leaving his in-door patients at Delhi, he did not go out of station for any patient for more than a week.
151. LETTER TO RADHAKRISHNA BAJAJ

January 24, 1933

CHI. RADHAKRISHNA,

I have read your letter to Jamnalalji. The Ashram cannot run under its auspices the proposed Mahila Ashram or Mahila Vidyalaya or Vanita Ashram or Vanita Vidyalaya, because such an institution would not be prepared to accept Harijan girls at present. It would not be possible to burden the institution with both the tasks. It should be considered enough for it to admit Harijan girls as day scholars. The Ashram cannot even lend the support of its name to such an institution. I agree with Vinobaji’s view and also feel that such a restriction on the scope of the Mahila Vidyalaya is inevitable.

Tell Janakibehn that I see no need at present to get Jamnalalji examined by Dr. Modi. He is physically well enough. The ear gives no trouble. He can digest food fairly well and his weight has gone up. There is no cause for worry at all. Nor do I feel that Dr. Modi can say or do anything just now. There would be no difficulty and no delay in making the necessary arrangements as soon as the slightest need is felt, or if Jamnalalji himself wishes to be examined by him. I don’t think it advisable that he should be taken to Bombay just now. Since the climate here has agreed with him, why make a change for a few days?

I got the two lengths of cloth woven from yarn spun by Grandmother. I shall gladly wear them as a loving gift from her.

Kamalnayan was here, but went away without seeing me. He should have seen me, and he would have been permitted to do so. Tell him to see me when he comes next. What progress has he made in his studies? Why does he not write to me now?

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 9118
152. LETTER TO G. V. GURJALE

January 25, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your very long letter. I am afraid that I cannot guide you definitely. There is much to be said in favour of your method and as much to be said in favour of the method of living in the midst of the Harijans. Therefore you alone can be the final judge. You should serve in the manner that appeals most to you, after consultation with those who know you well and know the local circumstances.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

SJT. G. V. GURJALE
KRIPA ASRAM
TIRUVENNAINALLUR (S. INDIA)

From a photostat: G.N. 1398. Also S.N. 20092

153. LETTER TO Hriday Nath Kunzru

January 25, 1933

MY DEAR HARIJI,

I thank you for your letter of 19th instant with enclosures. I do hope that you will succeed in your effort at raising funds.

Since you have mentioned the fact of your having sought financial assistance from the Government, I would like to say, altogether apart from my views on non-co-operation, that if I could have prevailed with you or with your Board, I would have prevented you from seeking such assistance. I think in purely religious matters Government aid should not be sought. Anti-untouchability work is essentially for Hindus to do. It is a huge religious reform, and I should be chary of seeking financial assistance even if we had a purely national government, or if financial assistance is given, it will have to be under a scheme of just distribution to all the different 1The addressee, known as Bhikshu Nirmalanand, had been serving the Harijans in the village Tiruvennainallur since 1929 and had asked Gandhiji whether he should go back to the city and serve the Harijans from there. religious denominations.

I hope you see my point, though you may not agree with it.
I am glad that Sarup\(^1\) has offered her services to you.

_Yours sincerely,_

From a microfilm: S.N. 20097

---

154. LETTER TO G. D. BIRLA

January 25, 1933

MY DEAR GHANSHYAMDAS,

Here is the estimate for the proposed English edition of Harijan Sevak. As you can see, it is a very moderate sum. There will still be some overhead charges on clerical assistance, and whatever remuneration that might have to be paid to Shastri who has agreed to edit the paper.

I propose to bring out, to start with, 10,000 copies. Then if there is not that demand, we might slow down. My policy, as you know, is that I shall not handle the paper except to make it self-supporting. If it does not become self-supporting, I should conclude that there is inefficient management or editing, or that there is no public demand for such a paper. In any one of these cases, if the defect cannot be mended, the paper must be ended. I should give the paper a trial for three months, within which time it must become self-supporting.

I would therefore like you, after consultation with Thakkar Bapa and such others as you need to consult, to telegraph your sanction of the expenditure, such as it may be, up to the final limit to be fixed by you. I suggest an addition of Rs. 200 per month at the outside to the figures as per estimate, excluding the postal and telegraphic charges. I should be able to give you more definite figures after I have seen Shastri. If you can pass the budget, should I proceed with the paper whether you have brought out the Hindi edition or not? I understand that there is not likely to be any difficulty at this end about bringing out the paper.

I have your telegram from Gwalior about the Government decision on the untouchability Bills. I hope you received my reply. I hope, too, that you have read my very exhaustive statement\(^2\) to the

\(^{1}\)Vijayalakshmi Pandit

\(^{2}\)Vide “Statement on Viceroy’s Decision”, 24-1-1933
Press. I do not need, therefore, to add anything to the Press statement, for I have nothing more to add.

I am sending you a copy of my letter to Hariji about the Society receiving or seeking financial assistance from the Government. Here again I do not need to add to it. It speaks for itself. I hope you are better. I would like you to treat your health as much of a business concern as any other, and thus not a thing to be neglected or wasted.

Yours sincerely,

BAPU

From a photostat: S.N. 20096. Also C.W. 7923. Courtesy: G. D. Birla

155. LETTER TO VIRIYALA VENKATA RAO

January 25, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter. Here are my answers:

The opening of temples to Harijans is to be an act of penance on the part of caste Hindus or rather an act of payment of an obligation due to them. That one act will elevate them. Throwing open of temples to them is the foundation for their elevation and not a reward for good behaviour. They will only be liable to the same conditions as caste Hindus are as to daily bath, etc. But just as we do not ask every caste Hindu who enters a temple whether he has conformed to the conditions or not, unless he bears the mark of non-performance on his own person at the time of entry, even so we may not cross-question a Harijan in appearance showing no disregard of conditions whether he has fulfilled other conditions or not. Please remember that abstention from flesh and drink is not an indispensable condition of entry for caste Hindus in all sects of Hinduism. Personally, I would like such abstention to be a condition, but it cannot be imposed upon Harijans, if it is not imposed upon all Hindus.

If three or four orthodox Brahmins cause obstruction, miscalled satyagraha, by stretching themselves in front of the temple, they can be easily dodged. Temple-entry is not complete until Harijans are

---

1 Vide the preceding item.
2 For a discussion, vide “Talk with Duncan Greenless”, 25-1-1933 allowed to enter on the same terms and up to the same part as caste Hindus are allowed. There is no question of Harijans entering the sanctuary if caste Hindus do not enter the sanctuary and only those who perform the ceremonial are allowed to enter.

I think this answers all your questions.

Yours sincerely,

SIT. VIRIYALA VENKATA RAO
ANTI-UNT Touchability League
ELLORE

From a microfilm: S.N. 19003

156. LETTER TO VAKAYIL ACHUTHANNAIR
January 25, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I must thank you for your having taken such trouble to furnish me with the papers in connection with the Guruvayur case. I have had them looked up. I now return them to you by registered post. You need not now trouble to discover the missing papers. I see, that the information contained in the papers you were good enough to send me is all that I wanted to get.

Yours sincerely,

SIT. VAKAYIL ACHUTHAN NAIR
GURUVAYUR

From a microfilm: S.N. 19005

157. LETTER TO SURENDRAMOHAN BHATTACHARYA
January 25, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter. If the sa tantrists do not ill-treat—not hate as you have said—untouchables, then, why is it that they cannot get water, medical aid, decent accommodation, equal travelling facilities, equal educational facilities for their children, equal use of public places?

Educated Indians cannot be responsible for these causes; they are a microscopic minority. Will you give me instances of educated persons having ill-treated Harijans, as you say they have? I would also like you please to furnish me with instances within your knowledge of sanatanists having done anything to help these brethren of ours to lighten their burden.

Yours sincerely,

SIT. SURENDRAMOHAN BHATTACHARYA
VEDANTA SHASTRI
SECRETARY, EAST BENGAL BRAHMIN SABHA BRANCH
VILLAGE ALGI, P. O. MADHABDI
DT. DACCA

From a microfilm: S.N. 20095

158. LETTER TO N. H. PURANDARE

January 25, 1933

MY DEAR PURANDARE,

I have your postcard. I do not know how to console you and how to deal with you. I am sorry I find it so difficult to please you and I must not betray the trust imposed upon me even in order to please you. Therefore please regard what I have offered as final.¹

Yours sincerely,

PROF. N. H. PURANDARE
604 SADASIV PETH
POONA 2

From a microfilm: S.N. 20098

159. LETTER TO K. KELAPPAN

January 25, 1933

MY DEAR KELAPPAN,

I have a bitter complaint that Mathrubhumi² contains articles abusing Brahmins. If that is so, you will see that the abuse is stopped.

Yours sincerely,

From a microfilm: S.N. 20099

¹ Vide “Letter to N. H. Purandare”, 13-1-1933
² A Malayalam daily
160. LETTER TO T. KRISHNA MENON

January 25, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I would like you to give me translations of relevant parts of Mathrubhumi.

SJT. T. KRISHNA MENON
C/O CHAMPAKLAL DEVIDAS, ESQ.
36 DALAL STREET, FORT
BOMBAY

From a microfilm: S.N. 20100

161. LETTER TO DR. PARASHURAM SHARMA

January 25, 1933

DEAR DR. PARASHURAM,

Thank you for your letter and the news that Mathuradas Jain broke his fast on receipt of my telegram.1 We are all keeping quite well.

Yours sincerely'

From a microfilm: S.N. 20101

162. LETTER TO AMRITLAL V. THAKKAR

January 25, 1933

MY DEAR THAKKAR BAPA,

I have your three letters, one only requires an answer. If. it could be decently done I would certainly like the name of the Society2 to be more in keeping with the object we have in view. I should incur the risk of the ridicule of the unthinking if all those who compose the Society agree that Rajaji’s suggestion3 be adopted and if

1 Vide “Letter to Mathuradas Jain”, 8-2-1933.
2 Servants of Untouchables Society
3 C. Rajagopalachari had suggested: “I do not quite like the change of name you have agreed to for the League. ‘Servants of Untouchables Society’ is good in itself, but it means a continued recognition of untouchables as such. . . . I would have liked ‘Untouchability Abolition League’ or Society.”
it is not against the constitution to do so. But if the change is adopted, let it not be adopted in a hurry.

I have the articles for the English weekly\(^1\).

I had a telegram from Shastri accepting the offer.

_Yours sincerely,_

From a microfilm: S.N. 20102

163. LETTER TO RATILAL SHETH

_January 25, 1933_

BHAI RATUBHAI,

I got your letter. I too had a wire from Lilavati. I sent a wire asking not to commit me in advance. They should allow me to see Padma. I would like to see the boy too. Jekibehn came to see me yesterday and she told me: ‘‘Padma is yet only 14 years old and the boy is immoral.’’ What can I say if the parents are willing? But if I do not approve of the match, they should not ask me to say I do. What is your opinion about this marriage? Even you should keep me out of it. I can only interfere wherever you all wish me to. I cannot at all insist on anything.

I want to write to Chhaganlal and Lilavati too about the firm. I have written to them to come and see me. Come and see me when Maganlal arrives. Keep on writing to Chhaganlal and Lilavati.

There is no doubt that Khimchand’s company is undesirable. I have written strongly to Khimchand also.

_Blessings from_

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 7172

---

\(^1\) Harijan
164. LETTER TO CHHOTALAL

January 25, 1933

BHAI CHHOTALAL,

I got your letter. There is a great difference between varna and caste. There are innumerable castes, but only four varnas. Varna refers to a person’s qualities of character and occupation. Caste is based at best on convenience. Caste deserves to be abolished, whereas varna should be reformed. There is a confusion of varnas at present, but it is possible and necessary to reform the system. There may perhaps be no harm in serving one’s own community, but the best service which one can do to it is to cultivate relations with members of other communities. One should not be attached to one’s own caste and be proud of it.

Though interdining and intermarriage will be restricted to groups of similar temperament and occupation, that is, within the limits of the same varna, this was not an essential feature of the system in former times.

With regards from,

[Mohandas]

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 8034

165. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

January 25, 1933

CHI. NARANDAS,

I get your letters. If occasionally you cannot write for want of time, I will know that that was the reason and also that there was nothing urgent to write about.

It seems you note the weights of only the boys and girls. Since we wish to know the effect of the new regimen, it would be better if you note the weights of all the inmates. You may do so every fortnight. The weights should be recorded on fixed dates in a separate register kept for the purpose. Have you shown in the record of weights sent to me the weekly increases? In every case in which there is loss in weight, the reason, if it can be ascertained, should be noted. What effect did the change have on the incidence of constipation? Can we say by how much the consumption of rice has decreased? I should like a record maintained of the quantity of each kind of grain consumed and the number of persons among whom consumed and the record sent to me. What vegetables do you serve? Do you buy any from the market or what is produced in the Ashram suffices? Does any fruit grow in sufficient quantity in the Ashram to meet your requirements fully? I know that you require time to think about and plan all this. You may carry out only those of my suggestions which you can and leave the rest. If, however, we can have correct information on these matters, we can so plan things as to benefit considerably both in regard to health and expenditure. Our farm, orchard and kitchen should be run with this aim in view.

It is not, it ought not to be, beyond our capacity to banish illness from the Ashram. All that is necessary is that somebody should pay attention to the problem and maintain strict vigilance about it. If you can select someone from among the many workers at your disposal, train him for the job. You can train even some of the boys or girls if you find them suitable.

I was pleased by the certificate which you have given to Kanhaiyalal. What progress has his wife made?

Tell him about the climate of Orissa. If their health is not good, don’t send them to Orissa just now. If, however, they are ready to endure all hardships, they may leave even now.

I am glad to learn that Manekbai has arrived there. I don’t suppose you knew her before. I hope Ba sees her frequently. Amtussalaam must have left for Delhi.

I got the slivers sent with Prabhudas. There is no change in the condition of my elbow. However, I have started spinning since yesterday. As there has been no improvement though I had stopped spinning, I don’t think it right to continue the restriction. I have informed the doctor, too. If the pain increases, I will stop spinning again. I am not being unnecessarily obstinate in this matter. I look at it entirely from the point of view of dharma.

I am certainly very glad that jowar¹ and bajri² are grown in the Ashram itself. It would certainly be good if the hand-mill is revived even for our own needs only. But I am afraid that this thing is beyond our capacity. Of course the practice of getting small quantities ground occasionally in the Ashram will continue.

¹ Kinds of millet
² ibid

Doesn’t Bhau keep good health?

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./I

166. LETTER TO JAISUKHLAL K. MEHTA

January 25, 1933

I understand what you say about Tambe’s hotel. If he does not himself announce his intention nor let us do it, how are Harijans going to know about it? Such secret help does not serve our purpose; it fails to educate the people or create public opinion. We workers would then have no chance of seeing where we stand vis-a-vis the people. Our initial proposition therefore should be to have an eating-house run to suit our own convenience.

[From Gujarati]
Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. III, p. 88

167. A LETTER

January 25, 1933

I know . . . ’s weakness. In my view it is misplaced pity or excess of pity and hence it is violence. I think I would not indulge in such pity. Therefore wherever I shall see the absence of truth I shall immediately tell you about it. You are open-minded. And so you will certainly progress. Truth and non-violence both demand fearlessness. If that is lacking, there is often a chance of untruth creeping in. And where an untruth has been committed, it is violence as well. Hence let the world laugh at you or call you a fool or bury you alive or starve you—but we shall always observe truth. This cannot be done without fearlessness.

[From Gujarati]
Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. III, p. 88

1 The proprietor Tambe was willing to admit Harijans but reluctant to make an announcement to that effect.
2 The name is omitted in the source.
168. A LETTER

January 25, 1933

There is no other cause but the atmosphere for the slackness which sets in at a later stage.¹ But a man who wishes to progress has always to fight against the discouraging circumstances and for the same reason Tulsidas stresses the need of satsang². But it is not to be found everywhere. We should therefore look for the subtle form of satsang which is to be found within our own self, i.e., in noble thoughts and deeds. One who achieves this inner satsang can fight to the last against the unfavourable environment and succeed in carrying out his resolves.

[From Gujarati]
Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. III, p. 88

169. LETTER TO VIDYA HINGORANI

January 25, 1933

CHI. VIDYA,

I have your letter. You ought to have written to me earlier that you were in the family way. There is nothing to be ashamed of in it. That is the way of the world. Of course it is very good to practise restraint but that is possible only for a few. Since the child’s brithday coincides with Mahadev’s let us call him Mahadev. I am returning the photograph. Hope you are both well. Keep on writing to me. Send my blessings to Anand.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a microfilm of Hindi. Courtesy: National Archives of India and Anand T. Hingorani

¹ Gandhiji is referring to the pious resolutions and the initial enthusiasm of workers whenever they were imprisoned.
² The company of saints or good people
170. INTERVIEW TO ASSOCIATED PRESS

January 25, 1933

Asked if his intention was to hold his fast in abeyance till the fate of Mr. Ranga Iyer’s Bill was known, Mahatma Gandhi replied that it would depend on circumstances arising from day to day. If Mr. Ranga Iyer’s Bill hung up indefinitely, the question of temple-entry could not await solution so long.

I am hoping that Mr. Ranga Iyer’s Bill being of a negative character, all Hindus will see that it does not interfere with religion in any shape or form and if sanatanists admit that the Harijans should suffer under no social disabilities they must make good their admission by welcoming the measure. They do not seem to seek legal protection for enforcing religious observances. Religious observance ceases to be religious, the moment it becomes enforceable by law. It must depend on mutual goodwill and on the readiness of Hindus in general to perform religious observances.

There are numerous religious observances in the Hindu religion as in all other religions but they are not enforceable by law and what Mr. Ranga Iyer’s Bill provides is that the religious prohibition against temple-entry should not be forced at the point of the bayonet. But should the sanatanists not appreciate this obvious proposition of mine and there is opposition to the Bill, it would become a question for me as to what would be my duty. But I am hoping that there would be an unequivocal declaration by the vast mass of Hindus to favour the Bill so as to compel the acceleration of its passage through all its stages.

The Hindustan Times, 26-1-1933

171. LETTER TO MIRABEHN

January 26, 1933

CHI. MIRA,

This is before prayer time Thursday. I get your weekly letter Wednesday noon and I write the reply Thursday morning after prayer or sometimes before as now. So whenever you get my letter later than usual or not at all? you will know that there has been no delay on my part. But accidents will happen in the best of all possible worlds. There is no such thing as accident in God’s dictionary. The world is a chapter of accidents. For accidents are events which we cannot control and often can’t find causes for even after they have occurred.

As you see I have again taken to writing by the right hand. I do not do much writing. Some Gujarati every day not more than two hours and the weekly English letter to you. That cannot injure the hand. At least no one has suggested that as the cause. The wheel was blamed. But even that seems to be an exploded theory. I recommenced moderate spinning on Tuesday last. But I shall not be obstinate. I shall give it up, if the pain increases. The weight went down 2 lb. yesterday but the little fluctuation is a matter of no concern whatsoever.

Now about yourself. Whatever the cause of that giddiness, you ought to discuss with the doctor. If it is due to the stenches, you should be transferred to a better place. If you do not mind I would like to write to the Government myself. You have a very sensitive nose and therefore are more readily acted upon than others by foul smells. Shall I apply for transfer? Perhaps you will be allowed to answer this question apart from your usual weekly letter.

Blind Morris¹ will appreciate your letter. It will be an event with him for many days. This reminds me of Mrs. Aiman. Did you know her? Andrews says we all did. Mahadev remembers her. I cannot. If you do, you may know that she is no more. Aiman is connected with 112 Gower Street. Andrews made me write to Mr. Aiman.

The expression “There is no prayer without fasting” is thoroughly sound. Here fasting has to be of the widest character possible. Fasting of the body has to be accompanied by fasting of all the senses. And alpahar, the meagre food of the Gita, is also a fasting of the body. The Gita enjoins not temperance in food but ‘meagreness’. Meagreness is a perpetual fast. Meagreness means just enough to sustain the body for the service for which it is made. The test is again supplied by saying that food should be taken as required, not for taste but for the welfare of the body. ‘Meagreness’ is perhaps better rendered by ‘measured quantities’. I cannot recall Arnold’s rendering. A ‘full’ meal is therefore a crime against God and man—the latter because the full-mealers deprive their neighbours of their portion. God’s economy provides from day to day just enough food.

¹ Vide “Letter to John Morris”, 6-1-1933 for all in just medicinal doses. We are all of the tribe of full-mealers. Instinctively to know the medicinal dose required is a Herculean task. For by parental training we are gluttons. Then when it is almost too late it dawns upon some of us that food is made not to enjoy but to sustain the body as our slave. It becomes from that moment a grim fight against inherited and acquired habit of eating for pleasure. Hence the necessity for a complete fast at intervals and partial fasts for ever. Partial fast is the meagre or measured food of the _Gita_. Thus ‘There is no prayer without fasting, is a scientific proposition capable of verification by experiment and experience.

Yes, I remember Manorama. Poor girl. If I know where she is to go, I would gladly write to her. If she is there, here is a note for her. The Superintendent will kindly hand it to her or to you for giving it to her or if she is transferred, send the letter to her.

Love from us all.

BAPU

From the original: C.W. 6260. Courtesy: Mirabehn. Also G.N. 9726

172. LETTER TO SHAM LAL

January 26, 1933

DEAR LALA SHAM LAL,

I have your letter. I am glad you have fixed up everything for the famine-stricken Harijans. It is just like you.

_Yours sincerely,_

M. K. GANDHI

LALA SHAM LAL

ADVOCATE,
9 DAYAL SINGH MANSIONS
LAHORE

From a photostat: G.N. 1283
MY DEAR MARY.

I have your two letters, but not knowing whether any letter from me could reach you at Tirupattur I have refrained from writing and am now sending you this in the hope that you will receive it at the Bombay address given by you. I am trying to reach you at the Poona station also through Shastri, for if you want to stay in Bombay for two or three days, you will stay where I stay in Bombay. The place you know: “Mani Bhuvan, Laburnum Road, Gamdevi”. You will present the accompanying note to Manibhai or Dhirubhai, the two brothers. It is as good as a home. You will find there also the late Dr. Mehta’s daughter, Jekibehn. Of course if you stay there one or two days, you should meet as many members of the growing family that you have entered. You might have to pay heavily for the choice you have made. Perhaps you know something of what it has cost Mira to become a daughter. She is generally the Cinderella not however having the expectation of getting the golden slipper some day or other.

I sent you a card telling you that I have received the book The Little Plays of St. Francis. I got on to one of the plays marked by you, I suppose, and perhaps that is all the progress I shall have made with it. It is a hopeless thing for me to try to read or do anything outside the work in front of me.

About idol-worship I would like you not to worry. Let it unconsciously simmer in the brain, and when you have leisure and I have leisure and we can meet, you will discuss it to your heart’s content. But if there is a difficulty that gnaws you, you must have it out and I shall try patiently to solve it if I can.

At the Ashram you are going to be truly at home and ask

---

1 The addressee remarks in her book Bapu: Conversations and Correspondence with Mahatma Gandhi: “In Bombay the posted copy of this long letter reached me, enclosing the note of introduction to his friend. So he had sent four letters to make sure that one unimportant person should be safe and comfortable in Bombay. Could any meticulous business man do more for his partner, or loving father for his daughter?”

2 The source has “who”.

3 Vide “Letter to F. Mary Barr”, 21-1-1933 everything that you may need for physical comfort. I will not easily forgive you if you damage your health, because the foolish people at the Ashram could not anticipate your want and you foolishly would not express it. I would call it ‘not playing the game’. I am supposed to have the instinct of a mother. I do often succeed in anticipating people’s wants, but I admit that I have also failed miserably and not anticipated wants that I should have. I have therefore exacted a promise even from guests that if they would make me feel at ease about them, they would at once tell me what they need. If I had the time, I could give you some ludicrous instances, all at my expense, of how, if the friends had not told me, they would have made themselves miserable and judged me uncharitably in the bargain. People at the Ashram are a self-satisfied lot. They think that nobody can possibly want more than they do, wherein they are quite wrong. They would be quite right if they were to say nobody should want more than they do, for they themselves take more than what they should want and more than [what] millions of people get.

Again, don’t think that the Ashram is an abode of angels where there can be no pilfering. As it so happens, we have just now very dangerous neighbours. Their occupation is stealing at night, and in broad daylight, and that without ally compunction. Quite selfishly we are trying to do some work in their midst. I say selfishly, because through that service we would like them to leave the Ashram untouched, but they don’t, and they say it quite frankly. You will make their acquaintance if you are so minded. These are the known thieves, but there are unknown thieves also to warn you that you are not entitled to possess anything beyond the poorest garment that you have on your person and the coarsest food with which you can manage. But if you will have more than that, you expose yourself to be deprived of the superfluities by those who are in greater need. We have the vow of non-possession in the Ashram, but we do not follow it strictly. At the present moment it is only there as an ideal. You should study the rules of the Ashram, if you have not done so already.

Love.

[BAPU

[PS.] The note of introduction in the letter posted to Bombay. But you may go even without that letter for I have written directly to Dhirubhai.

BAPU

From a photostat: G.N. 5989
174. LETTER TO TEJ BAHADUR SAPRU

January 26, 1933

Dear Dr. Sapru,

I hope that you have benefited by your English visit and that the strain this time was not anything like what it was in 1931.

This is however to seek your guidance about Ranga Iyer’s Bill about untouchability. If you have not already read my statement\(^1\) on the Government of India announcement sanctioning the introduction of the All-India Bill and withholding it for the Madras Bill, I would ask you please now to read it, and then criticize it freely, and tell me how to go about it.

To be interested in the passage of Bills is an experience I have not had since the passing of the Champaran Ryots’ Relief Bill in 1917. But then my task was easy, as both the Government of Bihar and of India were interested in its passage, and it was a Government measure. Here the circumstances are quite novel. I therefore approach you, as to an expert, and if you think that you would like a conversation with me before you could guide me, I know that you would not mind taking the trouble of running down to Yeravda.

I hope that your son who had that nasty accident just after the Yeravda Pact has no trace left of it.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. Gandhi

Gandhi-Sapru Correspondence. Courtesy: National Library, Calcutta. Also G.N. 7589

175. LETTER TO SATIS CHANDRA DAS GUPTA

January 26; 1933

My dear Satisbaboo,

I understand every word of what you have said in your letter of the 21st and you are going to do as the spirit leads you. I must think aloud all the reactions that your letters produce upon me so that whenever they find an echo in your heart, you may re-adjust yourself

\(^1\) Vide “Statement on Viceroy’s Decision”, 24-1-1933

122 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
accordingly. But there is to be no re-adjustment if there is no such echo in your heart because in reading letters, even yours, hurriedly, I may miss a word here and a word there which may alter a conclusion equally hurriedly come to. Thus, take this startling statement of yours—I mean startling for me—“As soon as I feel that I have been able to set up some arrangement for serving the Harijans on proper basis, I shall revert to my old field of activity.” This is what you would undoubtedly do as a chemist and mechanic, as you have done so successfully often. But service of Harijans is no such mechanical thing to be arranged, put on a basis, and then left to workers. It is a spiritual act, soul acting upon soul, and therefore there is no such mechanical replacement as we have in purely temporal activities.
There do come replacements even in spiritual activities, but those replacements are of a different character. Even the Pratishthan work is a spiritual activity but can be arranged up to a point as a temporal activity; not so the Harijan work. Your great organizing ability may even be a hindrance than a help in doing Harijan work, for you might have to plough what may appear to be a lonely furrow without yielding any fruit which you can see with your physical eyes. You have simply to believe that fruit is there whether you see it or not.
Thus having once taken up Harijan work in the style that you have, there is no reversion to the “old field of activity”. Reversion can only be consistently with the unimpaired continuance of Harijan service. I wonder if I have made my meaning perfectly clear. Of course your conception of personal service in the basti may be quite different from mine. You are not to fit in mine with your own. You must hold on to your own, unless mine appeals to you as the correct one. The two won’t run together. But all this is only by way of illustration as to what I am trying to drive at. Please also bear in mind that whenever you feel like running down to Poona, you should do so. It won’t be money thrown away. Andrews has done it so often with me. He has not even heeded my chiding, for, he would say, “What you consider to be waste of money is for me a definite want which I must satisfy”, and from his own standpoint he has been right. He would have been torn to pieces if he had not run to me. No writing of letters would have satisfied him. Even as I am dictating this letter a cablegram has come to me from him. Just now he is sending a cablegram per day.
This is a costly affair, but I cannot restrain him. I do not need his cablegrams, but he needs to send them for his peace. Look at this latest samples: “Thank God—Charlie, Esther”. This cablegram perhaps you cannot even understand but it has a world of meaning for me. The latest statement of mine has reached him and as he drafted his cable under Esther’s roof, he added her name, for Esther is like a daughter to me. But the cablegram has no place in the plan of Harijan service, and considered in terms of money it deprives Harijans of so much money.

If, after your walk of 26 miles in one day, you had no sense of over-fatigue, you are certainly in a fit state, and if that is due to the pills you took, it is worth knowing them.

I would like to be just as free from anxiety about Hemprabha’s health as you are making me about yours.

BAPU

From a photostat: G.N. 1624

176. LETTER TO DUNICHAND

January 26, 1933

DEAR LALA DUNICHAND,

I thank you for your letter giving me information about Surajbhan. Do please ask him to write to me.

I know your and Mrs. Dunichand’s concern for me. It touches my heart. Please be assured that I am safe in God’s hands.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat: G.N. 5583.

177. LETTER TO S. SALIVATI

January 26, 1933

MY DEAR SALIVATI,

I have now got from Madras a true copy of your message. So far as I can see it, there is complete justification for my complaint. I am afraid that your over-zeal has led you astray. Thinking that you must have a copy yourself by now, I am not sending you the copy in front of me, but you can have it if you want to see it. Before I write to Rangaswami again, I would like to know what you have to say.
I have had your telegram about the Bill and now your letter. I could not possibly postpone my statement.

Yours sincerely,

From a microfilm: S.N. 20105

178. LETTER TO G. S. CHETTY

January 26, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I thank you for your letter. I do not quite understand what you are driving at. Is it the handful of Congressmen who are serving the anti-untouchability campaign who are misbehaving themselves, or, is it the very large body of non-Congress reformers who are the mischief-makers? Is your complaint against the Congressmen or the other reformers exploiting my fast which may never come? If you have any proof in your possession that Harijans do not want temple-entry, I should like to have that proof, and supposing that what you say is true, is that any reason for caste Hindus not to discharge the obligation that they owe to Harijans? Then, is it any argument against reformers that they do not carry out the principle of equality in all their transactions? May not imperfect human beings take part to the best of their ability in the progress of mankind?

Yours sincerely,

SIT. G. S. CHETTY
MADRAS

From a microfilm: S.N. 20113

1 In which the addressee had expressed doubts about the sincerity of the “so-called” reformers who, he thought, would create trouble and “disrupt the tranquility of the peace-loving population”. He had asked Gandhiji “to educate public opinion to elevate the social standards of untouchables” by teaching them clean living and good habits.
179. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

January 26, 1933

CHI. NARANDAS.

Read my letter to Kanhaiyalal.

It would be very good if Amina could be sent to Sharda Mandir. Read my letter to Qureshi too.

It would help Bhau very much if he could go to Rajkot. He and Jamnadas will like each other’s company. If for any reason Bhau does not feel comfortable in Rajkot, send him here. I will arrange for him to stay at Lady Thackersey’s place and keep a watch on his health. I will also give him some work to do. His constipation must be cured.

You must have received the letters posted yesterday. Let me pass on to you one discovery which I have made. If it is very cold at night or at any other time, one can keep oneself warm by wrapping paper round oneself. If the cotton sheet used for covering the body during sleep is further covered with paper, one will immediately feel warm. It is very cold here these days. But I sleep in the open. Even three blankets are not enough to keep off cold. I don’t have the courage, or I don’t want to use a fourth blanket. So once I put a newspaper between the cotton sheet and the blanket, as also under the bed-sheet. This gave more than enough warmth. For a long time now I have been covering the legs, when they feel very cold, with a newspaper and keep them warm. If one puts paper on the plastered floor when sitting, it does not feel cold. These are a poor man’s ways of keeping himself warm. That even these are not available to the village folk is a different problem.

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U/I
180. LETTER TO BHAU PANSE

January 26, 1933

CHI. BHAU,

Even if I am very busy, you must write to me. You should go to Rajkot full of faith. It will not matter if you do not improve. We shall think about fasting after you have tried Rajkot. Describe your other experiences at Vijapur.

BAPU

From Gujarati: C.W. 4491. Courtesy: Bhau Panse

181 LETTER TO GULAM RASUL QURESHI

Y. M., January 26, 1933

CHI. QURESHI,

I got your letter. The boys must be given education in Islam from their childhood. I will not hesitate to keep the children with Noor Banu for whatever reason. I regard her as one of the family. It is essential that the children should get instruction in Islam and Amina should get the training she needs at present. Don’t mind the children being separated from her in the process. If we keep insisting on this, a Hindu institution would impart instruction in Islam and a Muslim institution instruction in Hinduism. Such a day may be distant but is not inconceivable. You may have read in the Autobiography that I used to do that in South Africa. I had Muslim, Christian and Prasi children with me. They got religious instruction to the extent I could provide them such instruction. At the moment, however, this is only a dream. I have mentioned it only by the way. I should be very pleased if they admit Amina to Sharda Mandir. She need not worry at all. If she does not feel comfortable there, she can go back to the Ashram. Why need one feel ashamed of returning to one’s home? And in any case Amina will be joining Sharda Mandir for education. I greatly value the benefits of education. If Amina studies well and then devotes herself to service, Imam Saheb’s soul, wherever it may be, will be pleased. Let Amina join that particular school without second thought.
She need not then go to Bhavnagar. I am willing to write to Pyare Ali if you wish. I hope you are now quite well. The children must have recovered. I am not writing separately to Amina.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C. W. 10818. Courtesy: Gulam Rasul Qureshi

182. LETTER TO M. G. BHANDARI

January 27, 1933

DEAR MAJOR BHANDARI,

With reference to the late Dr. Mehta’s estate I need to see the following parties in addition to the thirteen for whom permission has already been given:

(1) Padmabehn, Dr. Mehta’s grand-daughter.
(2) Sjt. Kantilal A. Doshi, the son of the well-known Morbi shroff and engaged to be married to (1).
(3) Shrimati Vrajkunwar Ratilal Sheth, wife of Sjt. Ratilal Sheth for whom permission has already been granted.

I hope that early permission will be received as I have to advise about the marriage of (1) with (2), and it is proposed to be celebrated in February.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat: G.N. 3877

183. LETTER TO BILL LASH

January 27, 1933

DEAR BROTHER LASH,

I have your letter and the questions which are very good. Enclosed you will find my brief answers. If you find them to be too brief to be clear, you will not hesitate to tackle me further, and if it will serve the purpose better by coming, please do not hesitate to come.

1 These are not available.
I am glad the ointment has cured you of the poisonous sting. You should now give me a receipt for that ointment.

Yours sincerely,

BAPU

BRO. BILL LASH
CHRISTA SEVA SANGHA ASHRAM
POONA

From a photostat : G.N. 39

184. LETTER TO C. F. ANDREWS

January 27, 1933

I have your letters and plenty of cablegrams.¹ I know their meaning and the anxiety complex underlying them. I have no doubt that the Government of India should have given their assent to the introduction of both the Bills. But the sanatanist agitation has frightened them. I do not mind however the refusal to give the assent to Dr. Subbaroyan’s Bill. No doubt it protracts the agony, but that cannot be helped. After all, it is the Hindu mass mind that has to be awakened. If the touchable Hindus are not ready for the removal of untouchability, I do not want even the all-India Bill, though, as you will see, from my statement² on the Bill, it is perfectly harmless. It simply refuses to give the sanction of secular law to untouchability, thus leaving free scope to the reformers and the objectors to carry on the education of the masses. It is strictly a Bill of non-interference either way. Nevertheless, I shall be prepared to reconcile myself to the Bill being blocked by the Government, if it is conclusively proved that caste Hindus will not have it. My difficulty is to prove the readiness of the vast mass of caste men for the change, unless the Government are prepared to accept the ordinary methods of proof. Just at present a vicious agitation that, so far as I am aware, has no authority from the public at large is being conducted in the name of sanatana dharma. It is difficult to show to outsiders that it has no genuine public support. If this agitation is taken to be the genuine expression of the Hindu

¹ The addressee had written in his letter dated January 13 that it would be better if the proposed legislation regarding untouchability was made “an all-India question” and dealt with by the Central Legislature rather than by the Madras Council.
² Vide “Statement to Viceroy’s Decision”, 24-1-1933 mass mind, a very difficult and critical situation will undoubtedly arise. I am however moving heaven and earth to ensure purity and trust that all will be well in the end. Meanwhile, the fast remains postponed. I have absolutely no will of my own in the matter. I am continually praying for light, and if the fast comes, you will know the source, and therefore not get at all anxious.

I observe what you say about Kunwar Maharaj Singh’s boys, and I am glad that your effort was successful. It was a kind of temple-entry, as you have put it.

I take it that you are getting all my statements. Nevertheless, I enclose herewith my statement on the all-India Bill. I would like you to study it carefully and appreciate, if you can, the fundamental distinction I have drawn between the temple-entry and the economic and educational programme.

I hope your ailing mother is better and more amenable to control.

C. F. ANDREWS

From a photostat: S.N. 19004

185. LETTER TO S. D. NADKARNI

January 27, 1933

DEAR MR. NADKARNI,

It was a pleasure to hear from you. My faith has not weakened; if anything, it has become stronger. Civic rights will certainly be protected by law if they are to be worth anything. There is no question of Harijans existing on the sufferance of anybody. But law is one thing, cultivation of public opinion wholly another. Society holds together on the strength not of law but of mutual goodwill, and unless the majority of caste Hindus are converted, there is not much use in the law protecting rights which the majority is not prepared to recognize. The whole of the present campaign is directed towards cultivating and ascertaining the opinion of caste Hindus. The legal guarantees and all that they mean are bound to be there, but they will be an expression of the will of the majority and not a superimposition.

Yours sincerely,

SIT. S. D. NADKARNI
KARWAR

From a microfilm: S.N. 20116

130 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
186. LETTER TO V. M. NAWLE

January 27, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter. You cannot say that I do not give you time. I gave you plenty of time the other day, and I am giving you time by answering your letters promptly, and I would have, given you more time by inviting you if I had found your proposal\(^1\) to be sound or even workable. Let me tell you that it is not in any sense a new suggestion. It was put before me when I returned from South Africa in 1915 and I rejected it. It is a bad training for the Harijans and it is bad also for caste Hindus. What however you and I want is that caste Hindus should do penance and make reparation to those whom they have ignorantly or may be even insolently regarded as untouchables. What is therefore wanted in terms of religion is not a fraud, however pardonable, but a conscious act on the part of caste Hindus of welcoming Harijans with open arms. That Hinduism has absorbed people who were once under boycott but who had stolen in by assuming other names is only too true. But it is not in my opinion a practice to be copied. I wish I could convince you that the removal of untouchability\(^2\) is purely a religious problem which does not admit of questionable methods or tricks. Do you not now agree with me?

Yours sincerely,

From a microfilm: S.N. 20117

187. LETTER TO S. KRISHNA AIYAR

January 27, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I thank you for your letter. You evidently contemplate that those who are seeking the assistance of law whether in British India or in the States want to force people to do anything against their will, especially in matters of religion. What is wanted is that there should be no State recognition of untouchability. At the present moment there is \(^1\)That untouchables should give up caste names like Mahar, Mang, Chambhar, Dhor, etc.

\(^2\)The source has “this method of untouchability”.

VOL. 59 : 13 JANUARY, 1933 - 9 MARCH, 1933 131 this anomaly that the State not only recognizes untouchability, but helps believers in it to enforce their views against others, thus making what they believe to be a religious precept a matter of legal obligation. Seeking assistance of law therefore becomes obligatory for reformers in order to have the anomaly removed, and when the anomaly is removed there will be no question of forcing the entry of Harijans into temples but it would be possible for the majority of those who are under the present usage entitled to enter temples to throw them open to Harijans. In that event there can be no question of boycotting of temples by the majority. There may be a minority who may cease to take advantage of the temples. It would be their loss, but I have in my compromise proposal made allowances even for their views or prejudices as I would call them. Therefore those in Travancore who believe that untouchability should be removed for the good name of Hinduism will work might and main on the one hand to convert by gentle means and purity of conduct orthodox objectors to their own view and on the other work among the Harijans so as to induce them to shed those habits or customs which are repugnant to the moral sense.

Yours sincerely,

SIT. S. KRISHNA AIYAR, B.A., B.L.
HIGH COURT VAKIL., TRIVANDRUM

From a microfilm: S.N. 20119

188. LETTER TO V. S. BARVE

January 27, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I thank you for your letter, but I am very much afraid that I have no capacity for giving you satisfaction. I have not arrived at what I believe to be truth in the analytical way and therefore it is most difficult for me to understand some of your questions. It is not even possible for me to say how I have arrived at my present outlook upon life as a whole. A multitude of contacts with books, men and events are together responsible for what I am today, as they must be for everyone. Some may have the ability for locating the cause or causes for everything they think, say or do. I confess that I am very stupid and often cannot account for things I do and beliefs I hold and sometimes I fancy that God is speaking or acting through me. I am painfully conscious of the fact that such belief may be merely a figment of my imagination, but while it lasts, believe me, it is as true to me as it is that I am dictating this letter to you.

Yours sincerely,

SJT. V. S. BARVE
CONTRACTOR
917 SADASHIV PETH
POONA CITY

From a photostat: S.N. 20123

189. LETTER TO STUDENTS’ HARIJAN SERVICE LEAGUE

January 27, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter. I am glad that you have formed the League. At the present moment I do not think that I can add anything useful to the suggestions you have already made. There need be no overlapping if your League will work in conjunction with and even under instructions from the Servants of Untouchables Society.

Yours sincerely,

THE SECRETARY
THE STUDENTS’ HARIJAN SERVICE LEAGUE
NAI SARAK, DELHI

From a microfilm: S.N. 20124

190. LETTER TO P. GOMATHINAYAGOM PILLAI

January 27, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I thank you for your letter and three copies of your pamphlet on untouchability. I am wholly unable to judge whether Tamil and Malayalam translations are necessary. That is a matter for the provincial branch of the Servants\(^1\) of Untouchables Society to determine and I would like you to consult them in the matter.

_Yours sincerely_,

SJT. P. GOMATHINAYAGOM PILLAI
ILANJI, TENKASI, (S. INDIA)

From a microfilm: S.N. 20125

191. LETTER TO V. JAGATHRAKSHAKAN

_January 27, 1933_

DEAR FRIEND,

I think we have made a fetish of preservation of the purity of stock through unnatural restrictions. The ancients never knew these restrictions. This does not mean that I am an advocate of promiscuous unions. I think that it is a wise rule to have marriage among people having common thought and common habits of life, but it is a vicious thing when it becomes so rigid as to make a departure from it a sinful act, especially in these days when the varnas have lost their purity, if not their original significance altogether. The division between the superior and inferior people that you seem to believe in is, in my opinion, a monstrous perversion of truth.

_Yours sincerely_,

SJT. V. JAGATHRAKSHAKAN
7 SOUTH MADA STREET
TRIPLICANE, MADRAS

From a microfilm: S.N. 20126

192. LETTER TO G. V. MAVALANKAR

_January 27, 1933_

BHAI MAVALANKAR,

I got your letter. Blessings from us all to both the new entrants to the ranks of the twice-born. May they live long and do honour to the sacred thread.

The weakness will decrease day by day.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 1236

\(^1\)The source has “Service”.

134 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
193. LETTER TO PARIKSHITLAL L. MAZMUDAR.

January 27, 1933

Bhai Pariksitbhai,

I have your letter. Read the proposed Bills. Is not giving scholarships to the children a form of bribe or a reward for attending school? If it is, do you think this practice should be encouraged?

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 3961

194. LETTER TO INDU N. PAREKH

January 27, 1933

Chh. Indu,

I got your letter. How did you become ill? I hope you are careful about eating. You may use a bicycle, but you should also walk daily. Send me your time-table for the day’s work.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 6254

195. INTERVIEW TO ASSOCIATED PRESS

January 27, 1933

Mr. Gandhi said that he was surprised and pained to find that Mr. Iyengar, an ex-judge, had spoken “so irresponsibly” as he had done. If he had taken the trouble of studying the movement, he would at once have seen that, with Mr. Gandhi, the removal of untouchability was an article of faith before he knew anything of politics. If he (Mr. Gandhi) had been guided by political, instead of religious instinct, he would have excluded temple-entry from the programme and confined his attention to economic and educational uplift. But he had staked his popularity, such as it was,

1 Srinivasa Iyengar was reported to have said at a sanatanist meeting in Madras that the present temple-entry movement was but a political stunt of Gandhiji and his followers to placate the Harijans and win them over to the Congress so as to present a united front.
because he believed that without temple-entry untouchability could not be said to have been abolished from Hinduism. Mr. Gandhi added:

I make an offer to Mr. Iyengar and other sanatanists who say that they do not wish to ill-treat Harijans, and would like to promote their economic and other temporal welfare. Let them join the Servants of Untouchables Society and finance and work its programme for temporal uplift and leave temple-entry to me and those who think with me. Mr. Iyengar should know that the Society contains few Congressmen. The organization contains many prominent Liberals. Indeed, sanatanists can, if they mean what they say, by bringing money and workers to the Society, take charge of it and shape its policy. If this does not suit them, let them run a rival organization and spread its branches all over the country, and win the hearts and gratitude of Harijans. I would take my chance of gaining religious merit by prosecuting the temple entry movement and showing that it will, at a stroke, uplift the Harijans and caste Hindus, and purify both and automatically promote the temporal welfare of the former. Mr. Iyengar should realize that, in a matter concerning the masses, no stunt can be of much use. They are open to be appealed to by everybody, and only honesty and hard work can win in the end.

As for the charge of religious interference, Gandhiji said:

I have already dealt with the question in my previous statements. I can only reiterate my view that I myself will be the first person to oppose religious interference by the State even when real power passes to the people. But sanatanists cannot have it both ways. They would want, as they have done before, the aid of law to sustain what, to one like me, appears to be prejudice or worse; and when I seek to remove that interference, the cry of interference is at once raised by the upholders of prejudice in the name of religion. Indeed, I want to respect even prejudice, for I realize what may appear to me prejudice may be enlightenment to others. But these are matters where the aid of the law cannot be sought. The law can only take a temporal view of the questions that come before it. It cannot recognize the Agamas' upholding thieving. I have, at the Ashram, neighbours who honestly believe that thieving is an occupation enjoined by God to them as a caste. I respect their prejudice, but the law does not. I am here not giving a hypothetical case. I am quoting from actual experience.

1 Scriptures
Mr. Iyengar says that I do not believe in the Shastras. He will fail to produce a single statement of mine to support his accusation. Surely, he is too good a lawyer to claim infallibility for his interpretation of the Shastras or his judgment of their authenticity. I would ask him and those who are flinging all sorts of charges against me, distorting my writings in order to prove them, whether they will uphold sanatana dharma by such methods. Let them believe me when I say that I am quite capable of saying so if I had the slightest desire to found a new religion or a new sect.

I have no other wish in this world, but to find light, joy and peace through Hinduism. It is for that reason that I want to see it purified. It satisfies me because, as I have understood and lived it, it has enabled me to treat other religions on a footing of absolute equality and their followers even as my blood brothers and sisters. Hinduism and my conception of the Gita, of the Vedas, the Upanishads, the Bhagavata, and the Mahabharata, teach me that all life is one, and that in the eye of God there is no superior and no inferior. I am sick of controversy. But I am more sick of untruth and impurity. I invite sanatanists to join hands with me in fighting them.

The Hindu, 28-1-1933, and The Bombay Chronicle, 28-1-1933

196. LETTER TO V. M. NAWLE
January 28, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your two letters. The proposed newspaper¹ will not be issued under my editorship. It will be an English weekly issued under the aegis of the Servants of Untouchables Society. I think that you should continue your own paper without any outside interference, giving such help as you can to the movement.

With reference to your other letter, I have already sent you an answer yesterday.

Yours sincerely,

From a microfilm: S.N. 20128

¹Harijan
197. LETTER TO K. KELAPPAN

January 28, 1933

MY DEAR KELAPPAN,

I have your letter. You must have seen my statement. That explains my position. I think we have to concentrate on Ranga Iyer’s Bill. I know that it has many difficulties to face, but that does not matter. The legal obstruction must be removed. We must therefore educate the public on the necessity of the removal of the legal bar, and meanwhile, where there is no obstruction from trustees and the public desire it, temples should be thrown open. Our programme, therefore, practically remains as it was, the all-India Bill replacing the Madras Bill. Rajaji is coming here on Monday and I shall discuss the future programme with him.¹

My elbow need not cause you any worry. I am on the alert and if I find that it requires immediate treatment from outside, I shall not hesitate to apply for it. Without permission however no outside help can be received.

Yours sincerely,

From a microfilm: S.N. 20130

198. LETTER TO K. RAMACHANDRA

January 28, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter². It is very difficult for me to give you any further advice.³ I am quite convinced, however, that the interference on the part of non-Hindus cannot be tolerated in a matter which is a purely religious issue and which is one essentially for

¹ For the discussions with C. Rajagopalachari, G. D. Birla and others vide “Discussion with C. Rajagopalachari and Others”, 30-1-1933
² Dated January 23, 1933 (S. N. 20078). Referring to Gandhiji’s statement in an interview to the Associated Press of India, vide “Interview to the Associated Press of India”, 2-1-1933, the addressee had stated that in spite of his warning non-Hindus were determined to champion the cause of temple-entry as their own, to collect funds in its name and to start direct action.
³ For Gandhiji’s previous letter to the addressee, vide “Letter to K. Ramachandra”, 31-12-1932 Hindus to settle among themselves. I am surprised that non-Hindus should persist in their interference.

Yours sincerely,

SJT. K. RAMACHANDRA
SRI WICKRAMA ROAD
WELAWATTE

From a microfilm: S.N. 20131

199. LETTER TO R. KAIMAL

January 28, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter. I can only vaguely gather what you are driving at. I wish you will adopt a simple style to express simple ideas and give up all metaphor and ornamentation.

Remember the following:
1. No cause that is backed by truth is ever lost.
2. Legislation is required now and will always be required to remove legal obstruction.
3. Both hotels and vilasams¹ are bad; both pander to the palate.
4. One can be a glutton on vegetarian food and strictly temperate on flesh food which he does not consider forbidden food.
5. Virtue lies in abstaining from visiting public eating houses altogether, and even in one’s home, partaking of food as medicine, just enough to sustain the body, and never to please the palate.
6. Don’t mix up the loose life of modern times with a very big movement for religious reform.

Yours sincerely,

From a photostat: S.N. 20132

¹Eating-houses
200. LETTER TO N. H. PURANDARE

January 28, 1933

MY DEAR PURANDARE,

I had written to you before receiving your postcard of the 25th. I have nothing more to add to what I have said. If you are prepared to take over the book, I shall gladly go through the estimates you have received and you will pay no more than the market rate.

Yours sincerely,

From a microfilm: S.N. 20134

201. LETTER TO KOKKIRAKULAM BRETHREN’S UNION

January 28, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I thank you for your letter and resolution¹. If my compromise is ever accepted by the sanatanist Hindus, you will find that, not only does it not wound the self-respect of Harijans, but it actually enhances it; but the matter is just now irrelevant.

Yours sincerely,

THE HON. SECRETARY
THE KOKKIRAKULAM BRETHREN’S UNION
SELVAVINAYAGAR ST., KOKKIRAKULAM
TINNEVELLY

From a microfilm: S.N. 20136

¹Which, among other things, stated that “the suggestion of allotting separate hours of worship in Hindu temples by Harijans made in Mahatma Gandhi’s compromise formula is not only detrimental to the unity of Hindu society . . . but also wounding to the self-respect of the so-called Depressed Classes.”
202. LETTER TO SAROJ MOHAN SEN

January 28, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter. I cannot imagine Sjt. Sasmal being guilty of any such thing as you attribute to him. But if he or anybody has been guilty of action such as you describe you should institute proceedings against them. I am sending your letter to Sjt. Sasmal asking him to enquire into the matter.¹

Yours sincerely,

KAVIRAJ SAROJ MOHAN SEN
VAIDYASASTRI
CONTAI, P. O. MIDNAPORE

From a microfilm: S.N. 20137

203. LETTER TO B. N. SASMAL

January 28, 1933

MY DEAR SASMAL,

Here is a postcard for you to digest. Please enquire and let me know what truth, if any, there is in the charge made by the Kaviraj. I have written to him saying that you are incapable of inciting people to shoot others.

Yours sincerely,

Encl. 1: p. c.

SJT. B. N. SASMAL
BAR-AT-LAW
MIDNAPORE

From a microfilm: S.N. 20135

¹ Vide the following item.
204. LETTER TO G. V. KETKAR

January 28, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your card. I have no objection to my opinion\(^1\) on your article being published, only it must be as addressed to you, for, as a prisoner, I have no right to address letters to editors apart from matters of untouchability.

As to your article on temple-entry, I did go through it when I received it, and I have a recollection that it seemed to me to be reasonable, but I am just now working under a very severe strain and I glance through the literature that I get to an extent just enough for my purpose. My opinion therefore has no value when I do not express it as a result of deliberate study.

Yours sincerely,

From a microfilm: S.N. 20138

205. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

January 23, 1933

CHI. NARANDAS,

I got your mail\(^2\). I have not received slivers from Chhakkaddas. I have written to Maganlal and asked if he can send any. If you can send slivers from there without any difficulty, please do so. Parachure Shastri and Dastane also are supplied slivers from here, and Mahadev and Chhaganlal give all their time [to spinning]. Hence making slivers to meet the requirements of five spinners is likely to take a great deal of our time. If, however, Chhakkaddas from there cannot supply any, don’t trouble him. If Keshu can offer any without inconvenience to himself, you may send them.

Do you get any letters from Tulsi Maher? He doesn’t seem to be making much progress about spinning. If you know anything about this or have information, let me know.

\(^1\) Vide “Letter to G. V. Ketkar”, 11-1-1933
\(^2\) According to the source this was posted on January 26.
Barring two days, I have written to you daily for the past few days.

[From Gujarati]

206. LETTER TO RADHAKRISHNA BAJAJ
January 28, 1933

CHI. RADHAKISAN,

I wrote one letter to you about the Mahilashram. I hope you got it. I frequently see Jamnalal. He keeps good health. I heard yesterday that the number of visitors to the Lakshminarayan temple had gone down. Is this true? Is any record maintained of the number of daily visitors? Find out also the position regarding the other temples which have been thrown open to Harijans.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 3038

207. LETTER TO D. B. KALELKAR
January 28, 1933

CHI. KAKA,

I got your letter. As I told you in a previous letter you ought not to have got into the condition in which you find yourself.

I had understood what you said about the offering of food to the deity. All the same, the issue is not worth raising now. If and when it is raised, we shall see.

Rohit is in King Edward Hospital. He is under the treatment of Dr. Deshmukh.

Would it not be wiser to cling to your decision not to take up any work till the treatment of your teeth was completed, unless you had a valid reason for doing otherwise?

You may do what you think proper regarding Chandrashankar.
Do not neglect your health.

Don’t include chiku and bananas among the fruits which you may eat. For the teeth, citrus fruits alone are useful. Only fruits like pomegranate, pineapple and fruits of the citrus group (orange, mosambi, papanas, grapes, etc.) from which juice can be extracted will be useful. I think apple also is included in this class.

Blessings from

BAPU

[PS.]

What is the matter with Haribhau? I suppose Parel means K. E. M. Hospital. Isn’t that so?

From Gujarati: C.W. 9492. Courtesy: D. B. Kalelkar

208. LETTER TO HRISHIKESH

January 28, 1933

BHAI HRISHIKESHJI,

I have your letter. You have opened your temple to Harijans; this will do immense good. Please accept my congratulations.

MOHANDAS GANDHI

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 6278

209. LETTER TO TULSI MAHER

January 28, 1933

CHI. TULSI MAHER¹.

Your letter. It cannot be said that your work is at all progressing. Let there be no self-delusion. If it is impossible to popularize the charkha in Nepal it must be given up. There are many other branches of service. But I would say nothing if you have confidence in yourself.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 6544

¹ The original in Gandhiji’s hand has “Mehta”, evidently a slip.
210. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

January 28, 1933

CHL. NARANDAS,

I hope you got the letter which I wrote yesterday. If you can arrange for Amina to be admitted in Sharda Mandir, do so immediately. I have already written to you regarding the boys and the girls. If the parents approve of the arrangement suggested, make it immediately.

If Tilakam’s things have been stolen, I suppose you have replaced such of the articles as are indispensable to him.

Mary Barr must have arrived there. I would advise you to assign her some teaching work and some work connected with the uplift of Harijans. If she intends to live there for a short time only, let her, if she likes, learn ginning, carding and spinning thoroughly. Probably she is accustomed to eating fruits. If so, supply her what she needs. I am sure you must have provided her with a commode. If she wishes to join in cleaning lavatories, let her do so.

Read my letters to Liladhar, Ramji, etc.

This time my weight was less by two pounds. That is, it has gone down from 104 to 102. But my health is quite good otherwise. You must have read in the papers about my getting headaches. But they were soon cured by mud-packs and it is an old story now. There is no cause at all for worry. We have in the Ashram a book by Kellogg named Dietetics. Send it with somebody who may be coming to this side.

[PS.]

There are 37 letters in all.

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U/I

211. LETTER TO AMRITLAL V. THAKKAR

January 29, 1933

MY DEAR THAKKAR BAPA,

I understand what you say about the Bengal agitation on the Pact. Whilst we should know for our purposes accurately who the untouchables are, personally, the more people are included in the list the better it is in view of the circumstances.

I do not despair of the Ahmedabad Vaishnav friends, as you seem to have done. I wrote to both Chamanlal Sheth and Sheth Sakarlal. The latter has sent an amiable reply. I shall still try.

About Shastri’s suggestion, I shall write to you after he comes here and after I have discussed the whole thing with him. Of this I am quite sure, that we shall not want two men of the same level for the English weekly. You may tell me what work you were taking or you had intended to take from Shastri.

You have asked Mahadev to send you about 25 copies of the Hindi translation of the opinion on untouchability of the learned men. Mahadev destroyed the copies. He has only one or two copies for his file. You will therefore have to multiply the copies you have in your possession. I wonder if you have carried out all the corrections in the Hindi copy. If you are still going to have the opinion in all the principal vernaculars in one cover, I expect you to ensure absolutely correct translation and to see to it that the pamphlet is free from any errors.

Yours sincerely,

From a photostat: G.N. 1107

212. LETTER TO JANARDHAN SHARMA

January 29, 1933

MY DEAR JANARDHAN,

I was pleased to receive your letter. God will forgive you for having thought low of Harijans, if you will abide by your pledge and continue to treat them as if they were blood brothers and sisters.

Yours sincerely,

SJT. JANARDHAN SHARMA

C/O B. PANNALALJI

CLERK, CHANDNI CHOWK POST OFFICE

DELHI

From a microfilm: S.N. 19259
213. LETTER TO P. N. RAJBOHJ

January 29, 1933

MY DEAR RAJBOHJ,

I have your letter with the constitution of the proposed hostel. We should discuss together your scheme if you will kindly come on the 4th February at 2 p.m.

Yours sincerely,

From a microfilm: S.N. 19260

214. LETTER TO A. RANGASWAMI IYENGAR

January 29, 1933

MY DEAR RANGASWAMI,

I had a visit from Salivati yesterday. Poor man, he is very much dejected. He has really no defence. The sub-editor at your end made no mistakes at all in carrying out his message. But in his own over-zeal for the cause, Salivati drew upon his imagination. He admits that many things he attributed to me I never said, but he simply inferred from a word here and a word there that had dropped out of my lips that I had meant what he said. That of course was very dangerous, but he thought that he would serve the cause by allowing his imagination full play. He admits also that I had warned him that he was not to make any use whatsoever of the conversation, but again he thought there was no harm, since the cause was good. There was no mala fides behind his action. I think and hope that this mistake will last him for the rest of his life. Therefore, beyond warning him that he must act purely as a reporter and not at all as a protagonist of a cause, nothing further need be done. When one sees so much of indifferent, incompetent and even unscrupulous reporting it would be a pity to punish a mistake, though serious, quite unintentional.

Yours sincerely,

[PS.]

1 Honorary Organizer and General Secretary of a society for the service of depressed classes
After dictating this letter I got from Salivati a carbon copy of his letter to you. I think it fairly represents what he conveyed to me yesterday.

From a microfilm: S.N. 19264

215. LETTER TO S. SALIVATI

January 29, 1933

MY DEAR SALIVATI,

I have your letter, for which many thanks. Your letter fairly represents what you said to me yesterday. I do hope that no harm will befall you.

Yours sincerely

From a microfilm: S.N. 19261

216. LETTER TO BHAGWANDAS

January 29, 1933

DEAR BABOO BHAGWANDAS,

I hope you received my previous letter with the accompanying essays from Shastris.

I enclose today another and that is from Raghunath Shastri Kokaje. His essay is not convincing. The argument is somewhat loose, and it does not examine the position of the opposite school. The Hindi admits of much correcting, which I hope you will see to.

I have been having regularly cuttings from newspapers from the Aaj office, for which many thanks, and which give me useful indication of what is going on in the Hindi Press.

Yours sincerely,

From a microfilm: S.N. 19262
DEAR FRIEND,

I have your last letter which is undated but which was received yesterday.

The first part of that letter is a complaint against unseemly behaviour of certain people at the meeting organized by the “followers of sanatana dharma”. I was grieved to hear of the incident referred to by you. I shall discuss it with Shri Rajagopalachariar who is expected here tomorrow. It hurts me whenever there is any rowdyism or untruthfulness on either side. Honest differences of opinion there will always be. The cause of Truth cannot be served by hard swearing, stone-throwing or untruthfulness.

The second part of your letter relieved the pain caused by the first part owing to the manner in which you approached my argument about untouchability. As it so happened, I read your letter aloud amongst us, four prisoners, and I must confess to you that, as I proceeded, I could not help bursting into laughter, in which my companions heartily joined. But behind the laughter was also a sadness that you, an agent of sanatana dharma, could not see that religion could not be treated in terms of algebra. You have, instead of going straight to the core of my argument, launched out into an irrelevant discourse, ending in a ludicrous algebraical formula.

You will pardon me for writing straight from the heart. Of all the letters that I have been receiving only yours and one or two others that I can mention have been courteous and have attempted to argue cogently. I should only return your courtesy and your honest attempt to convince me by giving you an honest reply. Let me tell you that all the letters and literature that have come to me have only confirmed me in the opinion that untouchability, as we are practising today, is a big blot upon Hinduism and an atrocious error in which we are still persisting, simply because of our laziness to understand and act up to the very fundamentals of Hinduism. This inglorious persistence in error cuts me to the quick, but I am an optimist. I have implicit faith in the ultimate victory of Truth. I know therefore that untouchability will go and Hinduism will live a purified religion.

Yours sincerely,

SIT. M. M. ANANTA ROW

From a microfilm: S.N. 19263. Also C.W. 9573. Courtesy: Government of Mysore
218. LETTER TO C. P. SRINIVASA IYER

January 29, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter. I cannot recall a single occasion when I called the Mahabharata a heap of rubbish. I have not had many occasions to speak or write about the Mahabharata, and when I did write about it I compared it to a diamond mine, whereas I compared the Gita to a diamond chest. Perhaps, the Shankaracharya had that simile in mind, but at the present moment, for sanatanists, whether they are big men or small men, any stone is good enough to fling at me.

Yours sincerely,

S. C. P. SRINIVASA IYER
NORTH VILLAGE
CHITTUR (COCHIN STATE)

From a microfilm: S.N. 19265

219. LETTER TO K. P. RAMAN PILLAI

January 29, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I thank you for the letter giving me the information that Koteshwaram Mahadev temple near Kuzithurai in South Travancore was opened to the Harijans. I hope to see that other temples follow suit.

Yours sincerely,

S. K. P. RAMAN PILLAI
OLACODE COLACHEL, P.O.
S. TRAVANCORE

From a microfilm: S.N. 20142
DEAR FRIEND,

I thank you for your letter. So much untruth, almost bordering on the libellous, is being broadcast at the present moment about me that I should warn you not to believe anything against me unless you have it verified by me or you yourself have verified it from my authentic writings. Thus, I have never declared to the world that “the hereditary caste system of the Hindu society is an artificial creation of some designing men”. By hereditary system I suppose you mean varnashramadharma. If so what I have said and written is that I believe in hereditary varnashramadharma which is one of the gifts that Hinduism has made to the world.

Again, what I have resisted and what I would resist with my life is untouchability as it is being practised today. But I have never said that there is no such thing as untouchability. On the contrary, I have said that untouchability of a kind is common to all mankind and all religions and that it is a necessary institution, and in that real sense all mankind become untouchable while they are performing certain functions of nature. This is only one instance of natural necessary untouchability, but that carries no sin with it.

Again, interdining, intermarriage and the like are no part whatsoever of the campaign against untouchability as it is being practised today. I have written in favour of interdining and even intermarriage under certain circumstances, but that is wholly irrelevant to the present discussion. You can, if you desire to know my views on things not pertaining to untouchability, do so by studying my writings.

I hope this fully answers your letter.

Yours sincerely,

SIT. DHIRENDRANATH MUKHERJI
SENHATI P.O.
KHULNA DIST. (BENGAL)

From a microfilm: S.N. 20143
221. LETTER TO BHUJANGILAL

January 29, 1933

CHI. BHUJANGILAL,

I got your letter. If I had not understood your point of view at all, I would not have written to you. All the same, I do wish to understand it better.

I very much like your resolution to apply yourself exclusively to your studies and please your parents. I believe that you will be able to please them with your gentleness and your self-control.

Write to me occasionally.

Improve your handwriting. You will be able to do so if you write slowly and with care.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 2596

222. LETTER TO KESHAV GANDHI

January 29, 1933

CHI. KESHU (JUNIOR),

I got your letter. God does not let things happen as we wish. We should go on working and rest satisfied with that. The result is in God’s hand.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G. N. 3287

223. LETTER TO RUKMINIDEVI BAJAJ

January 29, 1933

CHI. RUKMINI,

I got your letter. Having regard to your difficulty, I should exempt you from writing to me. I know very well what the burden of guests can mean. You need not, therefore, write whenever you have guests on hand. I don’t want you to put yourself to trouble for writing to me. When I don’t hear from you for some time, I will conclude that you are very busy and have not been able to write.
    I am very glad that your weight has gone up.

    Blessings from
    BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 9138

224. LETTER TO PREMABEHN KANTAK

January 29, 1933

CHI. PREMA,
    I must have your letters, no matter how foolish they are. So don’t keep me without one any week. How are you now?

    BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 10324

225. LETTER TO BABALBHAI MEHTA

January 29, 1933

CHI. BABALBHAI,
    I got your letter. There is no point in writing anything to Nanasaheb now. Nothing further can be done in the matter. You may go on doing what other service you can.

    BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: S.N. 9444

226. LETTER TO SHIVABHAI G. PATEL

January 29, 1933

CHI. SHIVABHAI,
    You did very well in writing to me. You are faced with a really difficult moral dilemma. All that I can say in this matter is that you should consult your own conscience and fearlessly follow its bidding.
There is a risk of your committing an error in taking that course, but that risk is worth taking. In such matters, the advice of others never helps. If, in consequence, you feel that you ought to leave the Ashram, do not hesitate to do so. Nobody can force himself to observe brahmacharya. If one cannot observe it, one should admit one’s weakness and follow the common way. It is possible to exercise self-control even in conjugal life. You may do as much as you can. Write to me from time to time. Do not hesitate to write to me out of fear of adding to my burden.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: S.N. 9510

227. LETTER TO ANNAPURNA

January 29, 1933

CHI. ANNAPURNA,

Your handwriting is quite good, but you should make the letters larger. I know Chunilal’s address. Does he write to you?

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: S.N. 9422

228. LETTER TO NARAYAN M. KHARE

January 29, 1933

CHI. PANDITJI,

The more you write to me about the Chharas, the more I feel that we the Hindus are responsible for their evils. We do not recognize our dharma. If we do, then we have not observed it. Now do what you can. If we try we can definitely reform them.

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: C.W. 244. Courtesy: Lakshmibehn N. Khare

229. LETTER TO RAMACHANDRA N. KHARE

January 29, 1933

CHI. RAMACHANDRA,

Your letter is fine. It is very good indeed that your weight has increased by 20 lb. Continue putting on more weight. Those who improve in body, improve in mind also. Keep on writing to me. Since you know a little Urdu, brush it up.

BAPU

From a copy of the Gujarati: C.W. 303. Courtesy: Lakshmibehn N. Khare

THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
230. LETTER TO JAMNABEHN GANDHI

January 29, 1933

CHI. JAMNA,

I had a letter from Purushottam. Bombay will probably suit him. He should try it, and then come and see me whether it suits him or not. How happy I would be if both of you completely recover your health.

BAPU

From Gujarati: C.W. 871. Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi

231. LETTER TO PURUSHOTTAM GANDHI

January 29, 1933

CHI. PURUSHOTTAM,

I got your letter. It would be a very good thing if you would set us all at rest in regard to your health. And you can do so. I do not want you to do anything in which you have no faith. It is certainly good that you intend to seek the advice and help of Dhuranand. Let me know what exactly is. Madan also runs a ‘Health Home’ or some such thing. Get acquainted with it with the help of Bhai Khambhatta. His address is 275 Hornby Road. We have close relations with him and he is a very good man. I want you to come and see me after you have spent some time there or if you find that the place does not agree with you.

Blessings from

BAPU

From Gujarati: C. W. 907. Courtesy: Narandas Gandhi

232. LETTER TO RAMABEN JOSHI

January 29, 1933

CHI. RAMA (JOSHI),

May I describe your letter, received after a long interval, as a favour? Chhaganlal takes down the letters which I dictate, looks after files and puts every letter in its proper file, prepares dates for me to eat, etc., etc. He is learning the Gita by heart and trying to improve his handwriting. He is also trying to put on weight. I have already written to you that he has succeeded somewhat in this. All four of us take a walk every morning and evening. You need not, therefore, worry about Chhaganlal at all.

Tell this to Vimu also. If even then she continues to worry you about her father, tell her that I would then not call her a sensible girl. I should like her to say: “If father’s body and mind improve and become stronger, let him remain in jail. I will endure separation from him.”

BAPU

[From Gujarati]
Bapuna Patro-7: Shri Chhaganlal Joshine, p. 288

233. LETTER TO ANANDSHANKAR B. DHRUVA

January 29, 1933

I have always needed you; and do that more so now, as I have given you and Malaviyaji the rank of my guru. Therefore you must act your role.

[From Gujarati]
Mahadevbhai Diary, Vol. III, p. 100

234. LETTER TO ASHRAM BOYS AND GIRLS

January 29, 1933

BOYS AND GIRLS,

Your letter can be said to be beautiful. I cannot send you such a beautiful one. All of you should try and increase your knowledge of farming. The more you know of farming, the more you will be interested in it. Take it from me it is a good training.

All of you going out to serve the Harijans I regard it a better training still. If you work conscientiously and do not tire of it, you will be able to win them over and wean them from their bad habits.

BAPU

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./II

1 Gandhiji is jestingly alluding to the Bombay asnatanists’ charge that he had come to look upon them as his gurus.
235. LETTER TO AMTUSSALAAM

January 29, 1933

DEAR DAUGHTER AMTUSSALAAM,

Your letter. You did very well in going to Dr. Sharma. Write to me every week; if you write oftener, all the better. I will certainly write. Leave Delhi only when you have recovered fully.

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Urdu: G.N. 275

236. LETTER TO MOOLCHAND AGRAWAL

January 29, 1933

BHAI MOOLCHAND

(i) The varna system proper is no longer in practice and there are no varnas like the Bhangi or the Chamars. If we have to make a proper division we have to take into consideration the qualities of each individual.

(ii) It is a matter of one’s inclination.

(iii) Inter-dining should be left entirely to individual choice.

(iv) Who bothers about anyone’s wearing yajnopavit these days? Having no preference in this matter I have no opinion to offer.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 769

The addressee had asked the following questions: (i) Under the varna system, to which varna do Bhangis and Chamars belong? (ii) Should there be intermarriage between people of different occupations? (iii) As removal of untouchability is the goal, should not people interdine with the Harijans? (iv) You are indifferent on the subject of yajnopavit [sacred thread]. Nevertheless, if Brahmis, Vaishyas and others can wear yajnopavit, can Bhangis and Chamars too wear it?

Vide also “Three problems”, 7-4-1933.
237. LETTER TO GUJARAT CASTE HINDUS

[Before January 30, 1933]

I have settled amongst you since 1915. I have often spoken to you on untouchability. You have often condemned it and promised to give it up. Fulfil this promise or . . . you can fill up the sentence.

I have used the word ‘so-called’ purposely. I do not believe in high or low. Religion teaches that he who believes himself high commits a sin. God creates various classes, but does not make any class high or low.

Bulletins are being issued against me. I have been subjected to abuse. My writings are being torn from their context and used against me. Don’t feel angry at that. Those who serve have been always treated like that. If they tolerate it, they profit thereby. I have been long used to it.

The Hindu, 31-1-1933

238. LETTER TO HARIJANS OF GUJARAT

[Before January 30, 1933]

Sooner or later, the temples are bound to be open for you. That is, you will be admitted to public temples on the same conditions as other Hindus, but devotees of God should be as clean as possible internally and externally. Do not say other Hindus are also unclean. Do not take the example of those who err.

The Hindu, 31-1-1933

---

1 According to the source, Gandhiji wrote this to the “so-called highcaste brothers and sisters of Gujarat”.
2 The report is dated January 30, 1933.
3 The report is dated January 30, 1933.
239. LETTER TO MANILAL AND SUSHILA GANDHI

January 30, 1933

CHI. MANILAL AND SUSHILA,

There has been no letter either from you or from Sushila. No sooner you leave the shores of India, my complaints start. Sita’s boils must have disappeared as soon as the ship had left the shore.

I hope your work has become smoother. Let me know what arrangements you have finally made. If you wish to live happily and preserve your reputation, pay off the debt soon and never borrow money again. One should not incur a debt even for the sake of one’s father. One may give one’s life for him, but not forsake one’s dharma, and incurring a debt is as good as forsaking dharma.

I am all right. I do not know whether or when I shall have to fast, but I am sure of this, that I will fast only if, and when, God prompts me. If you believe me when I say this, you will not be upset and will not be anxious to come running here. You should leave South Africa when you feel beyond doubt that it is your duty to do so. Till then, your duty is to remain there and do what service you can. You should live as if at present your country was South Africa.

You should preserve the utmost simplicity in your life except in regard to things which may be necessary for conforming to the standard of life there. Do not discontinue the daily recitation of the Gita; Chapter XII is in fact your spiritual food in the journey of life. Not only should you be able to recite the verses from memory but they should have also sunk into your heart. If they have, you will find that they contain the essence of all Shastras.

Did I write to you that Chhaganlal Joshi was with me? We are all well.

Ramdas also is well. Devdas is touring with Rajaji in connection with the temple-entry movement. Most probably they will see me today. Ba has gone to Kaira district. She writes to me. Radha and Kusum keep indifferent health. The former is likely to go and stay in Deolali. Dahyabhai is completely all right how and is now in Poona for change of climate.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 4805
240. LETTER TO K. M. MUNSHI

January 30, 1933

BHAII MUNSHI,

I read your three speeches. Two of them do not help one much to understand you but I did get something from the third. I liked it. The speeches would have told me more about you if the dates of all of them had been given. I will now try to glance through some of your books which have been received here and, if I feel like it, will write to you about them. You have aroused my interest. I do want to get much public service from you, and your books will help me to know you well.

Now about another matter. You are one of the trustees appointed by Kabibai’s will. I saw your scheme for the high school. It was shown to me by Bhai Multi. You must be aware that the High Court’s order includes primary education. Despite that, why have you decided to start only a high school? And even in the high school I see that you have given place only to pupils drawn from a higher social level. Think over the following points and let me have your views:

1. What is meant by “high class Hindus”?
2. Does not the clause of the will under which you have framed your scheme also include primary education?
3. If it does, why have you excluded primary education?
4. Don’t you think that you have made the hostel of the high school very expensive?
5. What place have you given to the mother tongue in your scheme?
6. Does the phrase “for high class Hindus” mean that the untouchable communities cannot take advantage of the high school? I have heard of a case in which it was ruled that, if an institution was established for a particular class, there was no bar to the admission of other classes if they could be admitted without injury to the interests of the former and if that class did not raise any objection to these others being admitted.

I hope you are all right. If you cannot write with either of the two hands, you need not write yourself. You may take the help of one of your companions.

THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
Lilavati has not yet come and seen me. We are all well. Regards from us all to you and your companions.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: S.N. 20144

241. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

[January 30, 1933]¹

CHI. NARANDAS,

I got the big packet of letters sent by you.

Your decision regarding the Giri family seems all right. It must be carried out now. Be firm and carry it out. If we do not act thus, the Ashram cannot go on. Its good requires that the decision should be carried out.

Be firm in talking with Ramji also. Discuss his problem with all the others, and call him when you do so. We should act towards him in the same way as you would towards me or I towards you in similar circumstances. The path of ahimsa is like a razor’s edge. Everybody in the Ashram should realize that the institution does not exist for him or her, but that it exists in order to train all the inmates for service, to teach them to offer themselves as sacrifice in the yajna of self-purification. There can be no room in it for selfish objectives.

Why didn’t Santok go with Radhika? Who will look after her?

BAPU

[PS.]

Give me the cost of the quantity of grains consumed of which you have supplied the figures.

I think it would be better not to trouble Chhakkaddas for the slivers. It is not quite impossible to make them here.

Take immediate measures for Prema’s throat.

There are six letters: for Prema, Amina, Mathuradas, Bhau, Mahavir and Narayan.

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./I

¹The date is supplied in Bapuna Patro-9: Shri Narandas Gandhine, Pt. II.
242. LETTER TO S. D. SATAVLEKAR

January 30, 1933

Bhai Satavlekar,

I am sending for your perusal a book by the late Rajendralal Mitra. Return it to me after reading. I shall then read it along with your comments. One thing needs consideration. There could hardly be any doubt that the meanings he has inferred are the same as the meanings inferred by Hindus who studied Vedas and performed cow-sacrifices on their authority. If this is a fact, is there a historical or some other reason for it?

Vandemataram from

Mohandas

Shri Pandit Satavlekar
Svadhyaya Mandal
Aundh
Dist. Satara

From Hindi: C.W. 4770. Courtesy: S. D. Satavlekar

243. LETTER TO USHAKANTA MUKHERJI

January 31, 1933

Dear friend,

I thank you for your letter of 21st instant. I do not recollect having received yours of the 16th November last.

In reply to your elaborate argument I can only commend to your attention the various statements that I have been issuing from time to time. The more I study the question and the literature that correspondents send me, the more deeply I become convinced that there is absolutely no warrant in the Shastras for untouchability as we practise it today. He who runs may read the signs of the times and see that it is crumbling to pieces even as it is. Is it not better that we should deliberately destroy it and purify Hinduism? Its destruction merely through its own weakness will leave Hinduism weaker. The whole of your letter in my opinion betrays want of perception of the realities of the situation.

Yours sincerely,

SJT. USHAKANTA MUKHERJI
12 MUKHERJI PARA LANE
KALIGHAT, CALCUTTA

From a microfilm: S.N. 19272

244. LETTER TO MANMATHNATH SANYAL

January 31, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter of 24th instant for which I thank you. The extract from my article of 1920 seems to be quite correct though I have no means of verifying it. But I should repeat the ideas contained in that extract even today word for word, and I repeated the same thing to Sjt. R. Patwari. I do not know what is now going on in Bengal, but you can proclaim it from the house-top that in my opinion interdining and intermarriage form no part of the movement for removal of untouchability.

Yours sincerely,

SJT. MANMATHNATH SANYAL
P.O. KANTALIA
DT. MYMENSINGH (BENGAL)

From a microfilm: S.N. 19273

245. LETTER TO KALI MOHAN GHOSH

January 31, 1933

DEAR KALI BABOO,

It was a matter of great joy to me to receive your letter describing the activities of Santiniketan and Sriniketan in the service of the Harijans. My heart-felt congratulations to you for the solid work you are doing.

I note that you are presently holding a district conference of the Harijans of Birbhum. I hope that that would result in a great wave of purification both amongst the Harijans and the caste Hindus followed by really solid work.

Yours sincerely,

SIT. KALI MOHAN GHOSH
HON. SECRETARY
SERVANTS OF UNTOUCHABLES SOCIETY
BIRBHUM, BENGAL

From a microfilm: S.N. 19274

246. LETTER TO BHAGWANDAS

January 31, 1933

DEAR BABOOJI,

The shorter form is more affectionate than the longer. Any way I use it as such.

I wish I could induce you to follow my rule—not to publish a newspaper unless it becomes self-supporting. If the public want a newspaper, they should pay for it, and when it does not pay for itself, it shows that it is not wanted. For such a paper naturally there are no advertisements. There is no padding. It contains only that which the editor cannot help giving and the staff of such newspapers will also be chosen for its spirit of self-sacrifice. You at least may not be party to a paper that exists on charity. Of course you will throw these ideas in the waste-paper-basket of your mind if you have any rigid notions about the conduct of newspapers and if these ideas find no echo in you.

I take it that as editor of the supplement you have every right to add your own comments to any of the opinions you may be publishing in the supplement.

I am now torturing my brain and heart to yield to me the right method of dealing with the situation that has arisen from the Viceroyal decision. My statement is but the prelude to the action that is developing.

The suggestion you make does not appear to me to be practical in the sense that the people require prolonged training for its adoption. The vast mass of those who are today in the habit of attending temples fervently believe in darshan and its spiritual benefit. They will not deny to themselves a spiritual benefit for the sake of others who might be deprived of it and from their own standpoint they will be right. If they could be persuaded to believe that there can be no spiritual benefit to be derived from a temple whose trustees perpetuate injustice, it would be a different thing. That is the lesson we are trying to drive home, but we have not yet succeeded to the extent we would like to.

I never knew that Sri Prakasa was a stickler for the proper spelling of his name in the Roman character.¹ His name in Devanagari can only be spelt in one way. Rendered in a character with defective phonetics, it cannot be a matter of much consequence how it is spelt. However I shall respect his weakness.

I had a letter some time ago from Shivaprasad which led me to think that he was making steady headway. But your letter seems to point the other way. I would therefore like you to give me an accurate account about him when Sri Prakasa returns.

Of course if you can get the permission for the publication of my opinion of your book, if I succeed in sending one, I should have no objection whatsoever. Of course my private letters do find their way to the Press. That’s no concern of mine. What I have to guard against is sending of opinions on books for publication or messages to newspapers for publication apart from untouchability.

Yours sincerely,

From a microfilm: S.N. 19275

247. LETTER TO HRIDAY NATH KUNZRU

January 31, 1933

DEAR HARIJI,

I have your letter of the 26th instant. If you will look up my telegram about Lakshmanastri², you will find that it was accurate enough. You got the telegram at 10.45 p.m. The next day began after midnight. Therefore Lakshmanastri was reaching there, as he did, at 2 a.m. following 10.45 p.m. I would not however have bothered you about this, as it was quite a small matter, if I did not want to write to you about the defeat of the Harijan candidates.¹

¹ Earlier Gandhiji used to spell his name as “Shri Prakasha”.
² Lakshmanastri Joshi; Gandhiji had asked the addressee to receive him at the station.

This defeat makes me sad. I would not trouble you to enquire again into the matter. But I cannot help owning to you my utter stupidity. I had fondly believed, I suppose quite without any warrant, that Harijan candidates will have a walk-over at elections, especially in the beginning stages. I see, however, that without reservation they would have a poor chance of being elected unless caste Hindus develop a high sense of honour or unless Harijans are overwhelmingly represented on the voters’ list, but where there is neither honour nor overwhelming representation on the voters’ list, reservation seems to be their only safety. This Cawnpore election opens my eyes as nothing else before did, and I can now appreciate the force of the summary rejection by Dr. Ambedkar of any convention. Nothing but statutory reservation would satisfy him, and it may be that we shall have to have statutory reservation everywhere as fit punishment for our selfishness. In order to avert a calamity of such a nature descending upon us, if I had my way, I would right this evil by three caste Hindus vacating their seats and allowing three Harijans to be elected. It would be a striking demonstration of our ability to repair wrongs if the defeat of Harijan candidates was a striking demonstration of our selfishness.

You may make whatever use you like of this letter.

Yours sincerely,

SJR. Hriday Nath Kunzru
1 Katra Road
Allahabad

From a microfilm: S.N. 19276

248. LETTER TO MADHAVDAS AND KRISHNA KAPADIA

January 31, 1933

Bhai Madhavdas,

I got your letter. May God protect you. I shall tell Devdas to wire to Medh. He is here. But if Medh sends something, isn’t that enough hope?

Ch. Krishna,

¹ In the Municipal elections at Kanpur, all Harijan candidates had been defeated.
You should keep on writing to me. There is no need to worry about my elbow.

Blessings from

BAPU

SHRI MADHAVDAS GOKALDAS
MANORDAS STREET
BOMBAY, FORT

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./XXII

249. LETTER TO KASHI GANDHI

January 31, 1933

CHI. KASHI,

I have your letter. Do not at all worry about Prabhudas. He is indeed Prabhu’s das.¹ God will look after him better than we can. We may do the best that we can.

He must now go to Almora as early as possible. It seems necessary that he should again settle down there and be free from all worries. On the plains, the days will get hotter by and by. All of us will look for a suitable girl for him.

Blessings from

BAPU

From the Gujarati original: S.N. 33071

250. LETTER TO DR. RAGHU VIR SINGH AGRAWAL

January 31, 1933

BHAIRAGHURVIRJI,

I have your letter. I am not permitted to send for doctors from outside. They can come only with the special permission granted by the Government. So it cannot he helped. I have gone through your book and shall carry out the experiment prescribed therein when I have some leisure.

Yours,

MOHANDAS GANDHI

DR. R. S. AGRAWAL
RAM EYE CHARITABLE HOSPITAL
BULANDSHAHR

From Hindi: C.W. 9665. Courtesy: M. S. Agrawal

¹ That is, Servant of God
251. LETTER TO HEMPRABHA DAS GUPTA

January 31, 1933

CHI. HEMPRABHA,

Your letter. I have understood your position. God will help you. Your faith will save you from all disasters. Stay on at Sodepur and do whatever you can from there. Your health is closely connected with your mental state. It will improve as your worries diminish. Come here whenever you feel like it.

Encourage Arun to write to me.

You must keep writing to me.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Hindi: G.N. 1696

252. LETTER TO PRIVATE SECRETARY TO VICE ROY

February 1, 1933

THE PRIVATE SECRETARY
TO HIS EXCELLENCY THE VICEROY
NEW DELHI

DEAR SIR,

On the 30th December I sent you a telegram¹ for submission to His Excellency on the question of what is known as Dr. Subbaroyan’s Bill regarding temple-entry. I have had no acknowledgement of it, formal or otherwise. Nevertheless I deem it my duty to make my submission to His Excellency on the decision just announced regarding Sjt. Ranga Iyer’s Bills.

Though I feel that it would have served the cause of humanity better, in point of time, if Dr. Subbaroyan’s Bill had been allowed, I feel thankful that sanction has been granted for the introduction of Sjt. Ranga Iyer’s Bills, one of which is drawn after Dr. Subbaroyan’s disallowed Bill.

My purpose in addressing this submission is to invite His Excellency’s attention to some considerations that warrant helpful action by the Government of India regarding the consideration of the Bills by the Assembly at as early a date as is consistent with the importance of the object of the Bills.

¹ Vide “Telegram to Private Secretary to Viceroy”, 3-12-1932

Not knowing the procedure of the Assembly, I sought Sjt. M.R. Jayakar’s assistance and guidance which he very kindly gave me yesterday. He told me that the Government, if they wished, could make it possible to pass one at least of the Bills during the ensuing session of the Assembly.

If such is the case, I would urge that the Government are morally bound to give such assistance as may be necessary for the speedy consideration of the measures. By the acceptance of the Yeravda Pact relating to the representation of the ‘depressed classes’, now commonly described as ‘Harijans’, in the legislatures, they bound themselves morally to facilitate as far as it lay in their power the observance by caste Hindus of all the other conditions of the Pact, which had reference to social and religious matters. Inasmuch as His Majesty’s Government endorsed the legislative part of the Pact, they recognized the representative character of the Conference that passed the various resolutions. One of them is as follows:¹

It is in due fulfilment of the pledge thus given to the Harijans that the Bills have been brought. They are necessary inasmuch as the English Law of Trusts bars the progress of reform in the shape of opening temples to the Harijans. I am advised that the decisions of British Courts hold it a breach of trust by a trustee who would open temples contrary to the usage prevailing at the time of his entering upon his trust. Therefore it is not open either to the trustees or the congregations of the numerous Hindu temples even if they so wished to admit Harijans if usage shows, as it would show, that the general body of Hindu temples are not open to them on the same terms as to the caste Hindus. But for decisions based on the English Law of Trusts it would be possible for Hindu pandits and the laity to vary the custom and introduce reforms.

The Bills are designed to remove this obstacle to progress and restore the condition that existed prior to the decisions referred to above. His Excellency may not know that cases have already occurred in which Harijans have been fined for entering temples in good faith and for the sole object of offering worship. Hindu religious usage warrants no such punishment. It enjoins purification of the idol and the temple and prescribes purification of caste Hindus in the shape of a bath, but no punishment of the offending worshipper.

¹This is not reproduced here. For the text of the Resolution, vide “Statement on Viceroy’s Decision”, 24-1-933

Until therefore the Bills are passed or an equivalent is found by the Government, the vital part of the Hindu pledge cannot be performed. For me, personally, holding my life as hostage for the due and timely fulfilment of the pledge, an indefinite prolongation of the impediment is an intolerable agony. And as a prisoner I have, I feel, a right to seek Government’s active assistance.

I ask for no State interference in religious matters. I am personally opposed to it. In the present case what is sought is to remove the existing State interference.

I hesitate to point out how the Government can help the introduction and consideration of the Bills. It would be presumption on my part to make any such attempt. I hope however that I have shown sufficiently clearly that this is a case for the Government of India to facilitate the progress and passage of the Bills in every way legitimately open to them.

Though I have shown this to some friends, I am not sending it to the Press.¹

From a copy: C.W. 7925. Courtesy: G. D. Birla

253. LETTER TO C. F. ANDREWS

February 1, 1933

MY DEAR CHARLIE.

I enclose herewith copy of my letter to the Viceroy on the Bills whose introduction he has just sanctioned. I take it that you have already seen my statement on the first Bill. I have not issued any public statement on the sanction for introducing a Bill which is almost a copy of Dr. Subbaroyan’s Bill, except that it is meant now for the Assembly instead of the Madras Council. It is feared that the Bills, although formal sanction for their introduction has been given, will be shelved unless the Government are helpful and even anxious that the Bills should be considered by the Assembly during the session that ¹For the Government of India’s reply, vide “Letter from Government of India”, 17-2-1933 begins on the 3rd instant. You will see my argument in my letter to the Viceroy. So far as I can judge, it is a conclusive argument making it a moral obligation on the part of the Government to facilitate the immediate consideration of the Bills.

The telegram referred to in my letter to the Viceroy was a long argument urging that sanction should be given for introduction of Dr. Subbaroyan’s Bill as early as possible.

Love.

M. K. GANDHI

Home Department, Political, File No. 50/II/33, p. 7. Courtesy: National Archives of India. Also S.N. 19284

254. LETTER TO M. R. JAYAKAR

February 1, 1933

DEAR MR. JAYAKAR,

Hereewith copy of my letter to the Private Secretary to the Viceroy. I hope I have correctly set forth your advice. If you could directly write to the Viceroy, I would ask you please to do so.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

Home Department, Political, File No. 50/II/33, p. 6. Courtesy: National Archives of India. Also S.N. 19279

255. LETTER TO DR. MOHAMMAD ALAM

February 1, 1933

DEAR DR. ALAM,

Id Mubarak from us all. It is very naughty of Begum Alam to get sick. I hope however that it was no more than a superficial fever and that there was nothing wrong about the appendix. You must carry out rigorously all the medical instructions and become proof against disease before you take up any active work.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

DR. SHAIKH MOHAMMAD ALAM
33 FEROZEPUR ROAD
LAHORE

From a photostat: G.N. 22
256. LETTER TO ALOO E. LALKAKA

February 1, 1933

DEAR ALOO,

I am glad you have been able to gain admission for two Harijan girls.¹ What is the use of your having got the necessary funds from Nargisbehn? You should have collected the small amount needed in Poona itself. Next time you must develop faith in yourself. Of course the girls have my blessings, and tell them when they grow up I expect them to become fine servants of the Harijan cause.

I did know, I don’t know who told me, that Sister Mary was joining Verrier.

Yours sincerely,

From a microfilm: S.N. 19277

257. LETTER TO DUNCAN GREENLEES

February 1, 1933

DEAR MR. GREENLEES,

I write this in accordance to my promise. I am taking you at your word.² I shall make use of your services for untouchability work, but since you have offered yourself, body, soul, and mind for that service, after consultation with Sjt. Ghanshyamdas I have decided first to send you to the Ashram and have a little bit of the experience of the method we adopt in service and then to put you wherever you may be most wanted. Experience at the Ashram would enable you to come in touch with the variety of workers and the manner in which Harijan service is being organized. I mention nothing as to your remuneration because, if I understand you rightly, you want nothing more than what may be needed for the sustenance of the body. That may be fixed up after you have had your time at the Ashram. If, therefore, you retain ¹ The addressee had asked for Gandhiji’s message and blessings for the two Harijan girls who were to be admitted to Karve’s institute at Hingne, Poona.

² The addressee wanted to consult Gandhiji about his “possible future work for Harijans”.

172 THE COLLECTED WORKS OF MAHATMA GANDHI
the opinion you expressed to me here, please come to Poona as early as you can. Everything else can then be fixed up.

Yours sincerely,

MR. GREENLEES
C/O THE MANAGER
ALLAHABAD BANK LTD.
ALLAHABAD

From a microfilm: S.N. 19278

258. LETTER TO DR. B. C. ROY

February 1, 1933

DEAR DR. BIDHAN,

I have your letter. 1 Ghanshyamdas is here and he will be able to tell you something about what happened in Bombay, for I had no knowledge of the composition of the Conference. I have simply concerned myself with the Pact purely from the Harijan point of view, for I assumed as an axiom that whatever was good for Harijans was necessarily good for caste Hindus and that too much good can never be given to Harijans. So far as the question of separate electorate is concerned, for my purpose the scheme of the Pact bears no analogy to the separate electorate provided for in the Government scheme. That caste Hindus have no voice in the selection of candidates cannot be a matter for complaint. The election of one out of four candidates selected by Harijans leaves a wide range of choice for caste Hindu voters cum Harijan voters. However, you will please let me know the progress of events there.

I wonder if Kamala will be fully restored to health so as to enable her to do active work. Thank you also for Abdul Alim’s case. I hope the young man has already been admitted to the Refuge.

Yours sincerely,

DR. BIDHAN ROY
36 WELLINGTON ST.
CALCUTTA

1 The addressee had said that the caste Hindus of Bengal wanted to alter the Poona Pact “either by taking away the reservation of seats for the depressed classes altogether or by giving them a lesser number of seats by mutual arrangement”, because they apprehended that “at the second election after the new constitution is established, the number of so-called caste Hindus in the local legislature will be reduced to less than forty . . .” (S.N. 19247).
259. LETTER TO BHAU PANSE

February 1, 1933

CHI. BHAU,

How did you get fever? I hope you are all right now. If your health does not improve in Rajkot, you will come here. We shall then think about a fast. In Rajkot you may eat the food which you get in the normal course, that is, rotli\(^1\) made from wheat flour, ghee, milk, green vegetables and fruits. Jamnadas knows something about this subject. Follow his advice. There is also a good vaid there. If necessary, you may consult him. Instead of my advising you from here, I think it will be better if you let Jamnadas guide you there. Show this letter to him. Write to me regularly.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 6794

260. LETTER TO PREMAEBHN KANTAK

February 1, 1933

CHI. PREMA,

You ought to be careful about your throat. I had cautioned you and advised you not to exert it soon after the operation. You should now please show it to Dr. Haribhai and follow his advice and improve it. Don’t neglect it and invite trouble. You cannot afford to be obstinate in this matter. Your duty is: obey my order. The frequent colds must disappear. You are not the only one whose tonsils have been removed. Thousands of people have got their tonsils removed and benefited from the operation. If the operation turns out to have done you harm, that will be your misfortune. But before you are convinced that it has done you harm, you should give a trial to the doctor’s advice. At any rate you must stop speaking loudly. Complete silence would of course be the best. But go and see the doctor and let me know what he advises.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati G.N. 10325

\(^1\)Chapati
261. DRAFT CABLE TO C. F. ANDREWS

February 2, 1933

REUTER’S SUMMARY FAIR. HUMANLY SPEAKING THAT IS LOGICAL OUTCOME Viceroyal DECISION. WHAT GOD WILL DIRECT GOD ALONE KNOWS. CONCENTRATING AT PRESENT ON SECURING CONSIDERATION BILLS PRESENT SESSION. GOVERNMENT IF WILLING CAN HELP HERE.

From a photostat: S.N. 19288

262. LETTER TO MIRABEHN

After morning prayer, Thursday, February 2, 1933

CHI. MIRA,

Though I have not received your weekly letter as usual, I must commune with you as I do every Thursday morning.

There is one pound increase in weight to report this week. The saltless continues. The articles have become stereotype: papaw, 20 dates, four oranges, two sour limes, four dessert-spoonfuls honey, one lb. goat’s milk, one dessert-spoonful almond paste. Honey I take twice with hot water and ten grains of soda bicarb each time and limes twice with cold water and soda bicarb. Milk in the morning and almond paste evening. There is a variation between the paste and _ lb. milk. This gives you an accurate idea of my food. I began yesterday to take unboiled fresh milk. They say that unboiled milk if fresh and clean is any day preferable to and more digestible than boiled milk. I shall watch the effect of the experiment.

Raja, Birla, Devdas and Mathuradas have been among the visitors. They will all have left this morning for Bombay and thence for Delhi. Raja tells me that Devdas has discovered himself a most polished and effective speaker. He has just finished his tour in the South for untouchability work.

Radha is bad and has gone to Deolali. Kusum has slightly

^1^ In reply to the addressee’s cable which read: “Reuter quotes you follows: No occasion declare fast at present. Threat fast not extended embarrass Government but wake reformers. Fast now will virtually apply whole India not Garuvayur only. Is this fairly accurate satisfactory?”

VOL. 59 : 13 JANUARY, 1933 - 9 MARCH, 1933 175
improved. Mary Barr must have reached the Ashram by now, Prabhad das is now in search of a wife.

We are all well.

Love.

BAPU

[PS.]

Herewith Devdas’s speech in Hindi and its translation. It is an extraordinary performance.

[PS.]

After all I have your weekly letter but not the intermediate as yet. I have not the time to say more today. I would send you another note in continuation of this. Perhaps it will be allowed as part of this.

God keep you.

BAPU

From the original: C.W. 6261. Courtesy: Mirabehn. Also G.N. 9727

263. LETTER TO GAURISHANKAR BHARGAVA

February 2, 1933

MY DEAR GAURISHANKAR,

I have your letter. I presume from your letter that you are entirely free from the attack that you had of facial paralysis of which I was sorry to learn.

Do you mean that the Harijan employees in the B.B.& C.I. Railway Workshops are admitted to temples, the temple authorities and the caste Hindu worshippers well knowing that they are Harijans, or, do you imply that they being well-dressed pass unnoticed? Measures are being taken everywhere to introduce clean ways of living among Harijans. I am glad therefore that you are having a Conference just for the sake of bringing this home to Harijans. I wish your Conference every success. If Dr. Ambedkar comes to see me I shall talk to him about it. I take it that you have already written to him and to Sjt. Rajagopalachari. He will be leaving Bombay for Delhi tonight. You may therefore write to him directly.

Yours sincerely,

SJT. GAURISHANKAR BHARGAVA
PHUL NIWAS
CIVIL LINES, AJMER

From a microfilm: S.N. 19287

1 Rajputana Provincial Conference of the Harijans which was to be held at Ajmer on February 25 and 26
264. LETTER TO U. GOPALA MENON

February 2, 1933

MY DEAR GOPALA MENON,

I have your letter. Satyagraha regarding Guruvayur in the old style is not to be thought of just now. We must for the moment concentrate upon the passing of legislation and educating public opinion in favour of complete removal of untouchability and in getting those temples opened which are private properties or about which both the trustees and the public are agreed. Therefore our programme should be threefold:

Firstly, meetings all over the country urging the Government of India to provide all facilities in their power for the introduction and consideration of the two Bills and appealing to the members of the House generally not to obstruct the passage of the Bills, regarding them as measures demanded by the dictates of humanity and non-interference with anybody’s private faith, and appealing to the Hindu members to vote solidly for the measures so as to leave Hindu conscience complete freedom of action regarding untouchability.

Secondly, you have to carry on house-to-house propaganda amongst caste Hindus and induce them to show in a concrete manner that they have ceased to believe in untouchability as it is practised today.

Thirdly, propaganda should be carried on amongst Harijans with reference to the observance of the laws of cleanliness and abstention from food and drink forbidden by Hinduism.

And all this work should be carried on by men of character who have a living faith in Hinduism.

Yours sincerely,

From a microfilm: S.N. 19289
265. LETTER TO DEVDAS GANDHI

February 2, 1933

CHI. DEVDAS,

I read your speeches in Hindi and English. You have expressed yourself well in both languages. Every speech is short and full of thoughts and most of the suggestions are useful. It is difficult to say to what degree the reform of Hindi is possible. Many languages have irregular genders for inanimate objects and this cannot be changed. There must have been some rule originally behind this phenomenon. The difficulty is felt only by those to whom the language is not their mother tongue, and should be accepted as unavoidable. The reform suggested by you involves a change in the basic structure of the language and seems impossible, at present at any rate. There has been no instance of a language which was simplified by a deliberate effort in such manner. A common script for all the languages would probably save some effort in learning them. But this is a question which concerns the science of the study of languages. I wanted to refer only to the beauty of expression in your speeches.

Have you studied Tamil and acquired any proficiency in it?

We could not talk much and you did not come again. But don’t mind. You have congenial company at present and so I do not worry on your account.

Now that you are in Delhi, send me the Urdu books which you were to send and one small dictionary in which I can find the spellings of words without difficulty. It should preferably be a combined Urdu-English and English-Urdu dictionary. One book on grammar. And any other books which you may like. Write to me often.

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 1997
266. INTERVIEW TO ASSOCIATED PRESS

February 2, 1933

Interviewed by the Associated Press, Mahatma Gandhi expressed pleasure that Mr. Ranga Iyer’s second Bill, which is virtually a copy of Dr. Subbaroyan’s Bill, has received the Viceregal sanction. He continued:

I can only hope that every facility will be offered for the immediate consideration of these measures by the Assembly. Though they are private Bills, they are measures of all-India importance and, from a humanitarian standpoint, of world importance. I hope that members of the Assembly have no difficulty in recognizing that the Bills constitute no interference with anybody’s religion, whatever is being said to the contrary in utter disregard of the facts.

The Bills are necessary, if the State is to observe the strictest religious neutrality. Both the Bills are simply designed to remove impediments in the path of progress and do not coerce anybody or alter any religious custom or usage.

Replying to another question regarding the chances of the introduction of the Bills in the Assembly this session itself on which Mahatma Gandhi had been seeking information from prominent persons, he stated that he could say on authority of those who had been members of the Assembly, it was perfectly possible not only for the Bills to be introduced, but if members desired it, the Bills would become law. It was quite possible for the Government and members at least to afford reasonable facilities for the introduction of the Bills this session.

Asked for his views on the suggestion that the Bills should be circulated for eliciting public opinion, Gandhiji said:

I can only hope that no such procedure will be adopted, because the question underlying the measure is in no sense new and the Bills contain no complicated sections which may be difficult to understand. Opinion of different individuals and groups of parties is also well known. Therefore, circulation of the Bills means, to me, a mere dilatory procedure.

Asked if any definite programme has been chalked out as a result of his conversation with Messrs Birla, Rajagopalachariar and others, Gandhiji said that they had compared notes and tried to understand the implications in the Viceregal sanction for the introduction of the Bills as all-India measures. They had debated on the method to be adopted for consolidating public opinion and for demonstrating the sincerity of the sanatanists. There was no essential difference between them and reformers, and the latter did not revolutionize religious customs or flout Shastras.

It was felt that the sanatanist agitation was largely due to the refusal of the sanatanists to appreciate the reformer’s point of view, and the suspicion that more lay at the bottom of the movement for the removal of untouchability than was stated in their programme. It was, therefore, recognized that propaganda for enlightening the public should be continued and workers should be advised not to engage in vain debating but confine themselves to placing the issues in the clearest possible manner.

The Bombay Chronicle, 3-2-1933

267. LETTER TO PREMNATH BHARGAVA

February 3, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I thank you for your letter enclosing your questions. I return the questions with answers given against them.

Yours sincerely,

SIT. PREMNATH BHARGAVA
BAGH RAMSAHAI, GHAS KI MANDY agra

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q. The report of the Hide Cess Committee, vide copy enclosed, states that the depressed classes and the peasantry would derive much benefit from the development of the tanning industry and incidentally refers to the existing appalling waste. Can this statement be accepted entirely in respect of unslaughtered cattle hides? If it can be, how should the development be brought about so as to yield maximum benefit to the depressed classes and to the peasantry?

A. It can. The development can be brought about only by teaching the classes concerned simple but scientific methods fitted for individuals and villages of lifting carcasses at the places where the cattle die and of treating every part in an economic manner excluding the use of meat for food.

Q. Should tanning of unslaughtered hides be taken up in India to the exclusion of slaughtered hides or only as an industry mixed up with that of slaughtered hides as at the present stage? Is it in any way derogatory for caste Hindus to take up this industry as a profession?
A. I should love to have tanning of the unslaughtered hides as a separate industry distinct from that of slaughtered hides. In my opinion it is not derogatory or irreligious for caste Hindus to take up this industry. It is essential for the purpose of cow-protection that this industry be developed as an aid to cow-protection and therefore on philanthropic lines.

Q. Would not the tanning of unslaughtered cattle hides on a large scale by modern scientific methods be helpful to the following?
(a) Economic uplift of Harijan brethren and an immediate item of programme of work for the Servants of Untouchables Society.
(b) Improvement of the living wealth of the country.
(c) The creation of a new field of activity for the educated unemployed.
(d) Protection of cows.

A. I have my doubts. Home or village tanning is necessary.

Q. The unslaughtered cattle hides can be tanned to near perfection of the slaughtered ones. Is your information to the contrary?

A. I believe that this is only partly true, if the carcass is taken up immediately after death and removed so as not to damage the hide.

Q. In the manufacture of leather goods, particularly shoes, difficulty is being experienced in providing lining which is to be thin and delicate. Such a leather is only available from the skins of live sheep and goat. Since Hindu India in a fair number is a flesh eater would it go against the principles of the industry of unslaughtered hides to utilize the skins for lining and other purposes of such sheep and goats as are unavoidably killed for food?

A. Much as I should like to answer otherwise, I believe that for the majority of Hindus the use of the skins of goats and sheep slaughtered for food will not offend their religious sense.

Q. In the event of the Agra Tannery at Agra restricting its activities to the tanning of unslaughtered hides exclusively, may the Tannery expect your blessings and distinguished patronage?

A. Any tannery restricting its activities as suggested would certainly receive my blessings if it is run on the lines suggested by me, but whoever does so should realize that in the initial stages he might have to lose. I can say nothing of distinguished patronage.

From a microfilm: S. N. 19291
268. LETTER TO ELIZABETH F. HOWARD

February 3, 1933

DEAR SISTER,

It was good of you to send me the in memoriam card announcing the death of your great and good mother, of the meeting with whom I have pleasant memories. Please accept from both Mahadev and myself our sympathies in your bereavement, though I know that those who have faith in God have the conviction that death is but a sleep and a forgetting. Do not harbour grief over the departure from this earth of loved ones.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

From a photostat: G. N. 865

269. LETTER TO M. S. SESHACHARI

February 3, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter for which I thank you.¹ In every case where there has been resistance offered by prostration, whether in front of a temple or elsewhere, I have condemned it as being contrary to the rule of satyagraha. For, satyagraha requires suffering in one’s own person, not offering physical resistance to another which prostration undoubtedly does. Being the author of satyagraha I have endeavoured to lay down certain rules for the guidance of those who recognize my authority, but as I claim no monopoly of the knowledge of the doctrine of satyagraha, it is open to anyone to give what meaning he likes to satyagraha and lay down rules also according to his liking.

My letter to the President of the League in Ellore has only a limited application. The word ‘dodge’ is to be taken in its dictionary meaning. I never knew it to bear the meaning of tramping over any person. Once Pandit Malaviyaji ‘dodged’ to the amusement of the public and to the discomfiture of the so-called satyagrahi students prostrating in front of his college by erecting a bridge over them and making a safe passage for the fellow-students who wanted to exercise the right of attending the college. Not one of the prostrating brotherhood was in any shape or form injured or molested, and, if my recollection serves me right, the prostrating ones admired Malaviyaji’s non-violent resourcefulness. But that was only one way of dodging. The dictionary says you can make a dodge behind, around, under, between or into what will hide one. But you will recognize that all these dodgings exclude violence.

¹ The addressee had asked why it could not be called a satyagraha and could be “dodged” if four or five orthodox Brahmins prostrated themselves in front of a temple and peacefully resisted any attempt to allow untouchables in the temple.

Yours sincerely,

SIT. M. S. SESHACHARI
704 NORTH ADAYAVALANJAN
SRIRANGAM
From a microfilm: S.N. 19293

270. LETTER TO NARANDAS GANDHI

[February 3, 1933]¹

CHI. NARANDAS,

I got your letter.

You must have got my letter regarding Mahavir and the family must have left now. If they have not left, you may use the accompanying letter. It is best now that the chapter should be closed as early as possible. After it is closed, I will write in greater detail about the duties of people who live in the Ashram.

Titus’s overstaying his leave seems improper. We would be in a better position to judge if we know the reason for his doing so. But it can be stated as a general rule that nobody should overstay his leave except for reasons absolutely beyond his control. However, do not start enforcing this rule with Titus. Know the reason from him after he has returned and write to me. But we can lay down the following rule for the future:

Anybody who violates a vow or pledge taken by him should, if he is outside the Ashram at the time of doing so, keep out of the Ashram and, if he is in the Ashram, leave it. In an ashram which is dedicated to truth, this rule should be observed without any exception.

¹The date is supplied in Bapuna Patro-9: Shri Narandas Gandhine, Pt. II.
It will not apply in a case in which the reason for violating the vow or the pledge is beyond the control of the person doing so. A person who goes on leave also promises to return before a certain date. This rule is observed even in ordinary institutions. An institution in which it is not observed will not run for long or will lose its reputation.

You and other senior inmates there should discuss this rule among yourselves and, if all of you agree, read it out to the other inmates. If all the people accept it, enforce it rigorously thereafter. The enforcement of such rules is essential for the work which the Ashram has to do. I feel that it will soon be necessary for us to lay down our lives for banishing untouchability. But only those who are perfectly pure in their lives are fit to make such a sacrifice. If we did not strictly observe the necessary rules in looking after all the girls in the Ashram, we would be lost. We should not mind if the Ashram breaks up, but should not tolerate the violation of rules which we accept for ourselves. We are judged by the manner in which we observe formal rules in their true spirit. Only God can know whether we observe a rule in its spirit, but everybody can know whether or not it is formally observed. However, the Ashram does not belong to me alone; it belongs to you all. I have only stated my views. It is for you all to consider whether you should act upon them.

Mahadev had got Vasram’s letter to him. I have referred to this in my letter to him. I hope he got that letter.

What you write about Chhotubhai is correct.

My headaches did not last long. They were cured by mudpacks. I have continued the packs as a preventive measure.

BAPU

[PS.]

Give the accompanying letters after reading them. Letters for Durga, Krishnamaiyadevi, Nimu, Liladhar, Bhagwanji, Ba and Mary Barr.

From a microfilm of the Gujarati: M.M.U./I
271. LETTER TO BHAGWANJI P. PANDYA

February 3, 1933

CHI. BHAGWANJI,

I got a letter from you after many days. Do we tolerate in other people what the Harijans do, i.e., refuse to work and yet ask for more money? What error do you see in what Narandas says? Shouldn’t we expect them to give eight hours’ work? Misplaced pity is violence. I make no distinction between them and other people, or only that we may tolerate faults in them which we would not in other people. Discuss this also with Totaramji, Panditji and Chimanlal and try to understand the point. I hope you will see the error in your reasoning or show me mine.

BAPU

From Gujarati: C.W. 351. Courtesy: Bhagwanji P. Pandya

272. LETTER TO CHIMANLAL N. SHAH

February 3, 1933

CHI. CHIMANLAL,

I got your letter. I need not write anything about the Giri family. I have seen instances of asthma being cured by giving up salt and through such other experiments. It is because of that that I recommended giving up salt in the book¹ on health. In India I have not had the miraculous experiences I had in South Africa, and being very busy with other affairs I have not been able to make any experiments. However, there will be no harm at all if you try the experiment. You will also have to take the Kuhne-bath in sunshine. The head must be covered with a mud-pack or a wet towel to protect it from heat. The bath should be taken before eating anything. The diet should consist only of fruit and milk. As for fruits, the papaw and mosambis will suffice. Such a diet requires no salt. One should get clear stools; if there is any difficulty, one should take enema. You should also daily practise slow breathing, retaining the air in the lungs for some time. All this may help you. If you do not know how to do the pranayama exercise properly, you may learn it from somebody in the Ashram who knows it. It helps very much.

¹ Guide to Health, first published as a series entitled “General Knowledge about Health”

Blessings from
BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: S.N. 24375

273. LETTER TO HARIBHAU UPADHYAYA
February 3, 1933

CHI. HARIBHAU.

I got your letter. You should stop dates, munakka, dried grapes and bananas for the present. Take mosambi juice or juice of fresh grapes in the morning. I hope you can get good milk. Drink only as much as you can easily digest. You can take moderately fermented curds. Take honey together with milk. Take it with lemon juice and water, or take ten grains of soda bicarb with it. You can take the juice of pomegranates and apples. This should be all your diet till the wound has completely healed up. You may also drink the juice of fully ripe tomatoes without making it into soup. Just a little quantity will suffice for the present. Meet Gaurishankar who is in Santacruz. Purushottam is under his treatment. You may also inquire in Kaivalyadhama. Gomatibehn knows Gaurishankar. I will read [what you have written] about ahimsa. Look after Rohit. Give him my blessings.

Blessings from
BAPU

From Gujarati: C.W. 6075. Courtesy: Haribhau Upadhyaya

274. LETTER TO MOHANLAL M. BHATT
February 3, 1933

The world is not a carefully drawn geometrical figure but is a supreme work of art painted by the brush of a mysterious artist, whose significance is known only to the artist and will ever remain unknown to us. That leaves only desireless effort to us.

[From Gujarati]
Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. III, p. 113
275. LETTER TO MAGANBHAI P. DESAI

February 3, 1933

We should try to cultivate in ourselves the strength of our elders and never follow the example of their weakness. We should see love in their eyes red with anger and save ourselves from their indulgence. Through ignorant compassion for us, they may permit us to do or ask us to do many things, but we should steel our hearts and refuse to avail ourselves of their indulgence. I may ask people never to tell a lie, but in a difficult situation may be tempted to connive at a lie. You will then show your love for me by forcibly opening my eyes, but will act as my enemy if you condone my weakness.

[From Gujarati]
Mahadevbhaini Diary, Vol. III, pp. 113-4

276. LETTER TO S. D. SATAVLEKAR

February 3, 1933

BHAI SAVALEKAR,

Your letter. The Harijan Sevak Sangh is to bring out a Hindi weekly from Delhi. Will it be necessary to publish something over and above that? If so, why? or, are you by any chance suggesting something in Marathi? I shall discuss it with Lakshmanshastri when I see him.

Yours,

MOHANDAS

PANDIT SATAVLEKARJI
SWADHYAYA MANDAL
AUNDH
DIST. SATARA

From a photostat of the Hindi: C.W. 4771. Courtesy: S. D. Satavlekar
277. LETTER TO NIRMALA GANDHI

Y. M.,
February 3, 1933

CHI. NIMU,

Is it not better that you write regularly once a year rather than not write at all? Observing rules, however light, helps to form character. What would happen if the seasons did not follow a regular cycle and the sun did not rise regularly? That is why I have taught up to lesson of observing rules, by suggesting that you should write regularly once a year. Learn the lesson if you can.

Your decision to go to Lakhtar in order to wean Kanu is correct. It is also good that you will stay there for some time.

BAPU

From the Gujarati original: Nirmala Gandhi Papers. Courtesy: Nehru Memorial Museum and Library

278. LETTER TO PALLATH RAMAN

February 4, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter. I have no doubt that when the so-called higher classes or castes have forgotten the distinctions between high and low and given up untouchability, Harijans will give up untouchability as among themselves.

The origin that you give of Nayadis¹ is very interesting and instructive if it is historically true.

Yours sincerely,

SJT. PALLATH RAMAN
“SAHITHU SADANA”
PALGHAT

From a microfilm: S.N. 19294

¹ An untouchable community of Kerala
279. LETTER TO BHAGWANDAS

February 4, 1933

DEAR BABOO BHAGWANDAS,

I have your letter with 15 copies of the Supplements. I talked to Sjt. Ghanshyamdas about the cost and he told me that he would certainly send you a contribution and write to you also. If he has not done so already, will you please remind him quoting this letter?

I know what you say about caste. By caste I have not meant varna. I draw a broad distinction between varna and caste. Caste is a comparatively modern growth. It had some material use and it may even have it now, but I feel that it has outlived its use, and in any event it was and is a social institution, having no spiritual basis, which varna has. But of this I would love to write when the occasion comes and time permits. Meanwhile, do please let me have your views whenever you have the time.

Yours sincerely,

From a microfilm: S.N. 19295

280. LETTER TO L. L. YELIGAR

February 4, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I thank you for your letter of 30th ultimo enclosing an explanatory article on one of sister Mahadevi’s sayings. As soon as I get the time I shall go through the article and write to you.

Yours sincerely,

SJT. L. L. YELIGAR
C/O K. B. MUMMIGATTI
SCHOOL MASTER, HOSAYELLAPUR
DHARWAR

From a microfilm: S.N. 19296
281. LETTER TO G. D. BIRLA

February 4, 1933

MY DEAR GHANSHYAMDAS,

I have your letter. If Damodarlalji sends you any money, you will of course accept it as from anybody who sends it, but in my opinion there can be no approaching him. We would be well without his financial help unless it comes unsolicited and of his free will.

Yours sincerely,

BAPU

SIT. GHANSHYAMDAS BIRLA
BIRLA HOUSE
ALBUQUERQUE ROADS
NEW DELHI

From a photostat: S.N. 19298. Also C.W. 7926. Courtesy: G. D. Birla

282. LETTER TO NARAHARI D. PARIKH

February 4, 1933

CHI NARAHARI,

I got your letter. It is a good sign that we are able to see our own weaknesses. Even if people call us simpletons or impractical fools, we will not violate truth in word or deed. Your experience that it is difficult to live in that manner in a place like that is that of others too, but one may be said to follow dharma only if one does so even in the face of difficulties. He is not the best captain who steers a ship in a calm sea; it is the one who does not let a ship sink even in stormy waters. But we should not feel unhappy about the past. We have learnt the necessary lesson from it. In future let God decide what work you should take up and what you should not. All that we should do is to resolve to cling to truth in whatever circumstances we may be placed. We should have faith that God does not test beyond their strength those who trust Him. The pity is that we do not trust Him. If we do, why should we feel concerned whether we shall lose our good name by clinging to truth, or harm the cause or displease a co-worker? God is there to concern Himself with all these problems.

But my purpose in saying all this is only to advise you not to bemoan the past.

Give me a description of Kuvalayananda’s Ashram. Who are the teachers there? What things do they teach? What fee do they charge?

Manibehn and you should learn this lesson from what has happened, that a mother should know how to take care of the children’s teeth. Their food should not be very soft and should not contain too much starch. They should have sugar and jaggery in very small quantity only. Instead, they may be allowed to suck juice from lots of sugarcane in the season. When the season is over, the children may be given fruits containing sugar, like figs, munakka, dates, etc. Moreover, the mother should stand by the side of the children when they brush their teeth in the morning and teach them to clean the teeth with the babool stick vigorously, and also see that they use a mixture of powdered coal and salt which has been properly sifted. They should be taught to gargle properly after every meal and to massage the teeth and the gums with their fingers.

The truth is that most of us are scarcely fit to be parents. Why should those who have not learnt the science of child-care bring children into the world? This question led some to the discovery of brahmacharya and some others to the discovery of artificial birth-control. The second is a dangerous and perilous way. The middle course, that of lethargy and indifference, is still more dangerous and perilous.

While teaching Mani how to take care of the children’s teeth, teach her the whole science of child-care. She should also learn to observe the stools and the urine of the children. She should examine them from time to time. She should also examine their eyes, ears and nails, their habits of breathing and their tongues, and watch how they speak and what they do during the whole day.

All these things become very easy to do once the mother has formed the habit of doing them.

Tell Gomati that she may come whenever she wishes.

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: G.N. 9054
283. LETTER TO ANANDI L. ASAR

February 4, 1933

CHI. ANANDI,

I got your letter. Your fever will not be cured by our blessings, it will be cured by your own care and effort. You should take complete rest. Complete rest means lying in bed all the time. You may read a little in bed. You should even eat without getting out of bed. The diet should be milk, curds and fruits, also boiled vegetables if you want. You may eat rotlis too, but need not worry about them if you cannot digest them because of lack of exercise. I am sure you will come to relish milk. If you do this, you are sure to be all right.

Not only three, but four of us give you blessings for eighteen years. Don’t you want the blessings of Chhaganbhai? Ask Prithuraj to write to me and explain what the trouble with him is. Who is treating him? And what is the treatment being given? Does Rohini glow with the brightness of the constellation of that name?

Blessings from

BAPU

From a photostat of the Gujarati: C.W. 5068. Courtesy: Anandibehn P. Buch
284. STATEMENT ON “HARIJAN”

[Before February 5, 1933]

The first number of the English edition of Harijan to be published under the auspices of the Servants of Untouchables Society will be published on Saturday the 11th instant. It will be printed at the Arya Bhushan Press. Mr. A.N. Patwardhan, of the Servants of India Society, is the declared Printer and Publisher. Mr. R. V. Shastri, B.A., B.L., is the Editor. Only recently the latter left a lucrative post in partnership in Calcutta, and gave his services on a mere living wage to Mr. A. V. Thakkar, Secretary of the Servants of Untouchables Society. When it was decided that this English edition is to be published in Poona, I asked Mr. Thakkar whether he could spare Mr. Shastri for the editorial work, and whether the latter would undertake the responsibility. Both promptly responded.

I hope to contribute my full share so far as it is possible for me, to the contents of the paper. I hope the paper will have a very large patronage. It is desired to make the paper completely self-supporting. The annual subscription, inland, will be Rs. 4 including postage and Rs. 3 without, while the foreign subscription will be Rs. 5-8. A single copy will be priced one anna. Intending subscribers will please send their names to Mr. Patwardhan, with subscription charges in money or stamps.

The Hindu, 6-2-1933

1 Vide “Letter to V. S. Srinivasa Sastri”, 5-2-1933.
2 After Gandhiji’s arrest in January 1932, Young India was discontinued, its last issue being that of January 14, 1932. As the movement against untouchability grew stronger, Gandhiji decided to bring out another journal, Harijan, to propagate his views. The first issue of Harijan appeared from Poona on February 11, 1933 under the editorship of R. V. Shastri. On April 13, 1935, Mahadev Desai became its editor. In 1940, during the Individual Civil Disobedience movement, it was suspended. However from January 18, 1942 it again began to make its appearance from the Navajivan Press, Ahmedabad, till the press was raided on August 21, 1942 and the journal banned. After the removal of the ban by the Government on January 10, 1946, the journal was revived on February 10, 1946, under the editorship of Pyarelal who continued to work in that capacity up to February 22, 1948. Subsequently, it was edited by Kishorelal G. Mashruwala and lastly by Maganbhai P. Desai till the journal stopped publication in March 1956.
285. MESSAGE TO HARIJAN CONFERENCE, KOLABA

February 5, 1933

I hope the Conference will pass constructive resolutions, with the full intention of carrying them into effect.

The Hindu, 6-2-1933

286. LETTER TO E. E. DOYLE

February 5, 1933

DEAR COL. DOYLE,

Major Bhandari has just shown me the Bombay Government’s order in connection with my cable to Mr. Andrews. As it was rather important that it should go at once I have asked Major Bhandari kindly to withdraw an amount from my private account which as a matter of fact is not my own property. I am hoping for a revision of the Government’s order and thus to reimburse my private account. My reason for asking for a revision is this. But for the very heavy bill that was paid to the dental surgeon my account would show a good balance. You will recall that the dental surgeon was called in at your suggestion and not mine; also that when you suggested that I should obtain a new plate I asked for Dr. Desai, a dentist friend, to be called in, and that I also told you in my letter of the 28th June, 1932 that I had suggested his name as “I had no desire to land the Government in the expense of a new set of teeth”, and I knew that “Dr. Desai would not want to make any charge for the plates he might make for me.” You will thus see that I could have had the plate without any charge and at that time I had never suspected that the dental charges if they had to be paid would be paid out of monthly allowance. As you are aware, from month to month I was saving as much out of the hundred rupees as possible. But you chose to call in a dental surgeon of your own selection. I could have no objection and when the bill was shown to me by Major Bhandari and when he told me that the money had to be paid out of my allowance, though I demurred I did not wish to raise any objection because I did not think then that I would want to draw upon the balance that was then outstanding in my

1 Vide “Draft Acable to C. F. Andrews”, 2-2-1933 favour.

But in the new circumstances that have arisen, I must ask for the dental charges being removed from my account and if that be done there would be at once a balance in my favour. I would further suggest that Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel’s and my accounts be amalgamated. There is a balance in his favour still left. If therefore these two accounts are amalgamated there would be a surplus left. I have consulted the Sardar and he is quite willing that our accounts should be amalgamated. In fact both of us have often suggested the adoption of this course to Major Bhandari.

May I ask you please to secure an early decision on this point as telegrams have to be frequently sent by me especially at this moment.

Yours sincerely,

M. K. GANDHI

Government of Bombay, Home Department, I. G. P. File No. 10

287. LETTER TO BILL LASH

February 5, 1933

DEAR FATHER LASH,

You do confound a poor man like me. Who is father, and who is brother, and when, and also perhaps why? But that is neither here nor there.

It is a fine thing to find you in Sabarmati. I hope you will feel as much at home there as at the C.S.S.A., and it is good too that you are there when Mary Barr is there. I take a promise from every stranger that visits the Sabarmati Ashram that he should give me his criticism of the Ashram and especially tell me frankly all about the defects he might have noticed in it. You have to make the promise, please.

Now, for your difficulty. It is not necessarily wrong “to be compelled to act against one’s reasoning and instinct through fear of hurting someone whom we love”, provided of course that the thing we do is in itself not only not wrong but morally worth doing. You will notice that I have copied your own wording. Conversely, to be compelled even through love to do a thing that is wrong is undoubtedly wrong. But then that love itself is wrong. It is good for me to love you and be loved by you. But it is immoral for me to do wrong for the sake of love. If there is any likelihood of that happening, we have to shun each other’s company.

Having stated these two propositions, let me cite the world’s experience in proof. Whether it is right or wrong, it is a fact that in innumerable cases men and women are good, not for the sake of good, but for the sake of love which they owe to others or which they receive from them. In an equal number of cases such love keeps us from falling. Perhaps you will easily admit that Jesus Christ was and still remains one of the greatest among moral coercers of the world. He continually coerces you, a very weak man otherwise, to do the right thing though your weak flesh would have you to do the wrong thing, and the strange thing is that you sing hymns of praise to Him for holding you tight in His chains. You do not mind some people laughing at you for your helplessness and weakness. Do not retort by way of answer: “But Jesus was Christ and God Incarnate.” I have given you the most telling illustration to show what is happening in everyday life. Some have God to rely upon; others, poor mortals, have their parents; and yet others, like me, have their wives, sons and friends to lean on. I had, not very many years ago, all but fallen, but the thought of Devdas, who was then living with me, of Mahadev, Mathuradas and others who were at that time surrounding me and whom I believed to be themselves leaning on me, and the thought of my wife, kept me from going to perdition. It was their love which chained me so tightly and strongly that I could not burst through the bond although the flesh was pulling hard enough to tear the chains to bits and rush into hell-fire.

That is the type of coercion and no other which my love, expressed through my fast, was intended to exercise, the common thing in all these illustrations being the doing of a right act. There is nothing wrong in people doing the right thing under the pressure of love and later doing the same thing for the sake of it. I hope I have made my point clear, even though I might not have carried conviction.

You must pardon me when I contradict you by saying that God’s shoulders are broad enough to bear the responsibility even of anything that is wrong. In Christian parlance, does He not bear easily the humanly intolerable burden of the world’s sins? This contradiction is unnecessary for our purpose, but I thought I would draw your attention to what I think is a clear slip. My fast was certainly right so long as I hold the belief truthfully that it was prompted by God. But even under God’s shelter I cannot claim immunity from a fast which may be designed to compass unknowingly an immoral thing. Therefore, the motive behind must be right, the end in front must be equally right, and the act itself propelled by the motive should also be right. Hence in this chain the intermediate act, if it is violent, would vitiate both the motive and the end. Hence the necessity for unadultered ahimsa—non-violence in thought, word and deed. And since the Gita says “Man can really only control his acts”\(^1\), if they are right he may safely leave the rest to God, and whether he willingly and wittingly does so or not, God alone controls the rest.

I do hope that your foot is quite all right now. If it is not, I would not now ask you to try the earth-cure, but ask Narandas to send you to a doctor or fetch a doctor for you. It is no use playing with even a small mischief.

With love from us,

Yours sincerely,

BAPU

288. LETTER TO V. S. SRINIVASA SASTRI

February 5, 1933

Ere this reaches you, you will have seen from the papers that an English weekly called Harijan will be published from Poona by the Arya Bhushan Press, Patwardhan being the Printer and Publisher and R. V. Shastri, whom you know well, being the Editor. Of course I shall be writing for the paper and guiding the policy. It will be solely devoted to the Harijan cause. If you at all feel like it, I would appreciate a message from you, addressed in your own inimitable way, both to the caste Hindus and the Harijans, but the manner of doing it I leave entirely to you.

I hope you are keeping well.

RT. HON. SASTRI

From a photostat: S.N. 19299

\(^1\) II. 47
DEAR MR. KELKAR,

I do want your active help in the campaign against untouchability. How far and in what manner you can give it, you alone know. But please understand that I am a beggar knocking at your door. When you have the leisure, do please give me a call by appointment, Wednesdays, Thursdays and Sundays excepted.

As you know, an English weekly called the Harijan will be presently out. It will occupy me for the whole of Wednesday and Thursday every week, and Sunday is a bad day for the jail authorities. I would also like you to give me a message for Harijan, if you feel like giving one.

From all accounts, I understand that you have physically benefited by your recent visit to London.

Yours sincerely,

N. C. KELKAR

From a photostat: S.N. 19300

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter and the memorandum of items of work to be undertaken by your Anti-untouchability League. I notice seven items, of which five relate to the carrying on of agitation or propaganda, one relates to satyagraha and one relates to the administration of funds. My advice is that all these may be cut out altogether and the activities of the League be confined to actual constructive work by individual workers. It is wholly unnecessary to agitate for waste land, political rights or even about matters of education. What you need today is to educate as many as possible and to relieve economic distress of as many as possible and to have as many temples opened as possible. There may be some propaganda required about this, but that is part of the constructive work itself and cannot absorb the whole of the time of the members. There is no question just now of satyagraha for anything. Such is my idea.

Yours sincerely,

SIT. R. VENKATA SIVUDU
HARIJAN SEVA SAMITI
BRODIEPET, GUNTUR

From a microfilm: S.N. 19301

291. LETTER TO N. H. PURANDARE

February 5, 1933

MY DEAR PURANDARE,

I have been working at your long letter. I handed it to Sjt. Patwardhan and asked him to tell me whether there was any overcharge at all in connection with the bill for the publication of the book. He placed himself in touch with Vasukaka and he says that you never showed him the book but asked him for quotation for printing a book containing eight demi pages. When he saw the proof and saw the corrections you have made, he said that in some respects the Arya Bhushan bill was lower than his. Thus whereas for composing, the Arya Bhushan bill is Rs. 18, for the same amount of work, Chitrashala’s will be Rs. 36, for printing, Arya Bhushan 3, Chitrashala 5; for paper, Arya Bhushan 4, Chitrashala 8; and even in the bill as rendered by Chitrashala Press, the amount is 32 as against Arya Bhushan’s 25/8. For covers Arya Bhushan has charged 7, Chitrashala would charge 7/8, for binding Arya Bhushan has charged 7/8, Chitrashala would charge 10.

So you will see that at every step you are wrong. I wish you could see your mistake.

Yours sincerely,

PROF. N. H. PURANDARE
POONA 2

[FS.]

Before this letter was typed, I had your postcard. You will see I have anticipated you in the foregoing. But if you will have Vasukaka Joshi to formally go through the bill, I will gladly hand the Arya Bhushan bill to him and give his opinion as to its fairness or otherwise, I will accept his opinion as final and on payment by you of the amount fixed by Vasukaka Joshi, less what might have been received for the books already sold, the books will be delivered to you.

From a microfilm: S.N. 19302

VOL. 59 : 13 JANUARY, 1933 - 9 MARCH, 1933 199
292. LETTER TO SEENU

February 5, 1933

DEAR SEENU,

I must thank you for your letter and the very good photographs you have sent me. They gave me a good idea of the work you are all doing.

Yours sincerely,

From a microfilm: S.N. 19303

293. LETTER TO T. SUNDARAM

February 5, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter. Please do not ask me to read and correct what you have written¹. It is really beyond me, and from what little I have read, my advice to you is to abstain from writing anything at all about temple-entry or anything else to the papers. You have no restraint over your pen.

Yours sincerely,

SIT. T. SUNDARAM

Typist

TEPPAKULAM P. O.
TRICHINOPOLY

From a microfilm: S.N. 19304

294. LETTER TO T. M. KRISHNAMURTHI

February 5, 1933

DEAR FRIEND,

I have your letter for which I thank you. Let me first of all set your mind at ease by telling you that no temple is to be opened to the Harijans except by the consent of the overwhelming majority of those who are present entitled to offer worship at the respective temples.

¹On “Temple-entry Compromise”
Therefore, there never will be any cause for desertion. Nor, so far as I know, are temples already opened—and there are no fewer than 500 temples opened—deserted by the ordinary temple-goers except a few.

I entirely agree with you that the hearts of people can only be changed by prayer, but my own experience and the experience of innumerable people shows that there is no intense prayer without fasting. My fasts have been in the past, as I hope they will be in the future, if they have to come, an expression of intense prayer.

Yours sincerely,

SIT. T. M. KRISHNAMURTHI
2/19 CHENGAL ROY MUDALI ST.
TRIPLICANE, MADRAS

From a microfilm: S.N. 19305

295. LETTER TO D. B. KALELKAR

February 5, 1933

CHI. KAKA,

I got your letter. You should have got your teeth extracted earlier. Even now, you should get as many of them extracted as may be necessary, and not only thirteen. As too many midwives complicate labour, so also with doctors. Till you feel safe about the teeth, remain in Bombay. Don’t feel at all that by doing so you will neglect your duty. You can serve in many ways while staying in Bombay While the treatment of the teeth is going on, you should live in the open air and daily go for as long walks—up to fifteen miles—as your body can endure without fatigue. I am sure you go to bed early and rise early. The morning hours should always be spent in taking walks. In food, it is necessary to exclude all starches for the present. The best diet of course would be milk, curds, ghee and the juice of oranges and mosambis. These things do not have to be chewed. The starch should be converted into sugar in the mouth, which will not be possible in the present condition of your teeth. Hence the diet which I have suggested is the only suitable one. You may, if you wish, eat some green vegetables, like gourd or bhaji, but even these are not necessary.

Have no fear about my teeth. Since the doctors here don’t worry about my elbow, why should I? For calling my own doctor, I would have to obtain special permission, which the Government is not likely to give. You should rest assured that I am not at all neglecting my health. The moment I suspect something, I will not remain indifferent even for a moment. And why should you worry about that which I myself am ready to worry about?

Your suggestion about Bal is correct. Write to me and let me know when he comes to Bombay. I believe Harijan will be published on Saturday.

BAPU

From the Gujarati original: C.W. 9490. Courtesy: D. B. Kalelkar

296. LETTER TO BALWANTSINHA

February 5, 1933

BHAJ BALWANTSINH,

I have your letter.

1. The guru must possess the virtues of a sthitaprajna. I have not come across such an embodiment of perfection. But I have found a few people in all countries who possess varying degrees of these virtues.

2. To remain equally unmoved by happiness and unhappiness, honour and dishonour means that one should not be hurt by insults nor feel elated by honours. But in no way does it follow that one should not reply to the insult or end the sorrow.

3. The virtues of a devotee can be acquired by effort and the direction of effort has been indicated in the chapter on bhakti. But there is nothing to hinder one from acquiring the virtues in a different way if it be possible.

4. Sleep can become sounder by practice. On waking from sound sleep there is awareness of nothing except sleep and a sense of well-being. Even when the Gita, etc., are recited many thoughts rise unawares in the mind. Sound sleep is possible when the soul is in rapport with the Gita or, in other words, with God. Therefore we should faithfully continue the present effort of filling ourselves with the Gita.

1 The letter carries the following note in English evidently for the jail authorities: “This contains only answers to religious questions. M.K.G.”

2 A man of steadfast wisdom

3 Bhagavad Gita, XII
5. The idea of writing about the Ramayana too has always been there but lack of time has stood in the way. Anyway there is no longer much need of it. One who studies Anasaktiyoga\(^1\) well can easily get at the secret of the Ramayana.

6. The history contained in the Ramayana is only secondary. Spiritual philosophy is the main thing. Dharma has been revealed through the unfolding of events. Hence while studying the Ramayana, you must regard Rama as the Supreme Being and Ravana as the forces opposed to Him. You may equate Rama with Krishna, his forces with the Pandava army, and Ravana with Duryodhana. The Mahabharata and Ramayana express one and the same idea.

Your study of the Gurumukhi works is also useful. The vow of memorizing the Gita must be kept.

I have answered Bhai Fulchand’s letter. I hope this letter reaches [him].\(^2\)

We are all well.

Blessings to all from

BAPU

---

297. LETTER TO G. T. HINGORANI

[Before February 6, 1933]\(^3\)

You should not be impatient. There should be no satyagraha just yet. We must educate public opinion, and deal gently with orthodoxy. Remember that at one time many of us shared the same prejudices as orthodox people do today. You must, first of all, ascertain whether it is the trustees who refuse to open the temples or whether it is the temple-goers who would not tolerate the admission of Harijans. For that purpose, you should have a scientific and accurate referendum, voting being strictly confined to those who are entitled to enter the respective temples. The proprietors of hotels and saloons stand on a somewhat different footing. They have their bread and butter to consider, and they must not be expected to take risks.

---

1 Gandhiji’s commentary on the Gita; vide
2 An earlier letter to the addressee had miscarried; vide, “Letter to Fulchand B. Shah”, “Letter to Ada West”, 24-2-1933
3 The letter was released to the Press from Karachi on February 6, 1933.
Therefore, you must take a referendum of their actual patrons and if the patrons have no objection, I have no doubt the proprietors of hotels and saloons will be quite glad.

_The Hindu, 7-2-1933_

298. LETTER TO HOME SECRETARY, GOVERNMENT OF BOMBAY

_February 6, 1933_

THE SECRETARY TO THE GOVERNMENT OF BOMBAY

HOME DEPARTMENT

DEAR SIR,

I enclose herewith letter from Shrimati Mirabai (Slade) dated 28th ultimo and handed to me only this day. It speaks for itself. Being in answer to an anxious enquiry from me, the letter might have been given to me earlier. Since this letter was written the usual weekly letter was received in which she stated that she was examined by the Civil Surgeon who had recommended her for transfer. Miss Slade had repeatedly complained to me in her weekly letters about the stenches and the stifling atmosphere of Arthur Road Prison and recurring attacks of headache, giddiness, eruptions and the like. But I felt, as she had felt, that as a prisoner she must suffer the hardships of prison life. It might however be held pardonable, if not even right, in cases causing anxiety about health, for prisoners to bring to the knowledge of superior authority the condition of their health. Acting in accordance with that rule I have approached Government before now, wherever I have felt the necessity of bringing to their notice cases of prisoners in whose welfare I have been interested as if they were my own nearest relatives. The letter enclosed gives a true picture of Miss Slade’s health, and her attachment towards me. It has been a privilege to me to enjoy that affection. She came to me with the fullest consent of her late mother and the reluctant consent of her father the late Sir Edmond Slade who never cut off the annuity that he used to give to her. I hardly need to say anything more about her family connections which are better known to Government than to me.

You will notice the dread she has of being sent away to a place further away from me. I wish she was less sensitive, but her sensitiveness has to be taken into account as it so quickly affects her body. I therefore suggest her transfer to the Female Yard attached to this Prison. From all the accounts that I have heard of the Yard, it is airy, roomy and much cooler than Arthur Road Prison. She will certainly be happier there.

I suggest too that she be examined by specialists in view of what she says about her glands and the condition of her tonsils. I would gladly name my doctors if Government would entertain their names, but I have no desire to press the point. I should be entirely satisfied so long as she is examined by specialists.

It grieves me to have to approach the Government over a delicate and personal matter. But I entertain the hope that perhaps the Government may even appreciate the fact that I have brought this matter to their notice. I shall be thankful for an early decision.

I remain,
Yours truly,
M. K. GANDHI

Bombay Secret Abstracts, Home Department, Special Branch, File No. 800 (40) (3), Pt. IV, pp. 29-31

299. INTERVIEW TO MACRAE

February 6, 1933

There may undoubtedly be points on which we will agree to differ, but I have no doubt that there will be so many points of contact between us that there will be no real difficulty. Whether there is or not, my own course in the matter is simple, as I have said repeatedly that caste Hindus have wronged the so-called untouchables, and that those of us who have realized the magnitude of that wrong have got to do penance for it.

Home Department, Political, File No. 44/35, 1933, pp. 16-8. Courtesy: National Archives of India

---

